THE TIMES.
CHARLESTON, Thursday, June 21, 1806.

FOREIGN WAR.

We have this day received a despatch from our war correspondent, giving the latest intelligence respecting the war between the English and Russian fleets. The English have been victorious in several engagements, and have captured several Russian vessels. The Russian fleet is reported to be in great disorder, and the English are expected to follow up their success with decisive victories.

HIS MAJESTY.

The King of England has issued a proclamation, declaring his intention to wage war against the French, and authorizing the English navy to engage in the conflict. The declaration is well received by the English people, and is expected to bring about a generalEuropean coalition against Napoleon.
