Sheriff cannot deliver the Goods by him taken in Execution to the Plaintiff, in Satisfaction of his Debt; because his Authority is to sell the Goods. Ibid. 589. 1 Lill. Abr. 611. A Sheriff took Goods in Execution upon a Fieri facias, whereupon a Stranger promis'd the Officer to pay him the Debt, in Consideration he would restore them; on Indebitatus Assumpsit brought for the Money, it was objected upon a Demurrer, that it was ill, for that it was like a Consideration to suffer a Prisoner to escape; but it was held, that as upon a Fieri facias Goods are to be sold by the Sheriff, and the Writ is to raise the Money, this is no more in Effect than a Sale for that Purpose. 1 Salk. 28. By the Seizure of the Goods, the Sheriff hath a Property in them; but Goods of a Stranger, &c. in the Possession of the Defendant, shall not be seized in Execution; for the Sheriff at his Peril must take Notice whose Goods they are: Tho' if the Sheriff enquires by a Jury where the Property is lodg'd, and it is found that they are the Defendant's Goods, when they are not, this will indemnify the Sheriff. Dalt. Sher. 60. Wood's Inst. 608. The Sheriff cannot break open the Door of an House to execute a Fieri facias upon the Goods of the Owner or Occupier; but he may on the Goods of a Stranger, Request being first made, and Denial to open it; for a Man's House shall be a Protection for his own Goods only, and not for the Goods of another. 5 Rep. 91. 2 Nelf. Abr. 775. If the Defendant is a beneficed Clergyman, and the Sheriff returns Quod est Clericus beneficiatus, &c. a Writ shall go to the Bishop of the Diocese to levy the Debt, &c. De bonis Ecclesiasticis, who thereupon sends forth a Sequestration of the Profits of the Clerk's Benefice, directed to the Church-wardens, &c. But this Writ of Sequestration must be renewed every Term. 2 Inst. 4. 472, 627. By Virtue of a Fieri facias a Term for Years may be sold, as well as any other Goods, and without an Inquest or Jury: Also Corn growing may be sold. 8 Rep. 96. 1 Roll. Abr. 892. And if the Sheriff on a Fieri facias, &c. selleth a Term for Years, and afterwards the Judgment is reversed; the Term shall not be restored, but the Money for which it was sold. 8 Rep. 141. A Term is sold on an Execution by Fieri facias; the Sale of the Term is good, tho' the Judgment be revers'd, and Restitution shall be only of the Money: But where a Term is delivered to the Plaintiff upon an Elegit, and then the Elegit is reversed, Restitution shall be of the Term. Cro. Jac. 246. Where upon a Fieri facias the Sheriff sells a Term, reciting it falsely, as to its Commencement and Ending, &c. the Sale is void, because there is no such Term: Yet if he recites it generally, and being of divers Years yet to come, sells all the Interest which the Defendant had in the Land, the Sale will be good. 4 Rep. 74. If an Execution is sued on a Fi. fac. and the Defendant dies before it is executed, it may be served on the Defendant's Goods in the Hands of his Executor or Administrator. Cro. Eliz. 181. Two Fieri facias's are delivered the same Day to the Sheriff against the same Person; he is bound to execute that first which was first delivered; and if he executes the last first, he must answer it to the Party that brought the First, who may bring an Action against him; but the Execution shall stand good. 1 Salk. 330. By the Common Law Goods were bound from the Day of the Teste of the Writ; but by Statute 29 Car. 2. they are bound bound only from the Time of Delivery, &c. Ibid. The Sheriff having taken Goods, and levied the Money by Virtue of a Fieri facias, ought to bring it into Court, and not pay it to the Party. Godb. 147. See Execution.

Fifteenth, Are a Tribute or Imposition of Money upon Cities, Boroughs, &c. through the Realm, not upon the Poll, or this or that Person, but in general upon the whole City or Town; and it is so called, because it amounts to a Fifteenth Part of that which the City hath been antiently valued at, or a Fifteenth of every Man's Personal Estate according to a reasonable Valuation. And every Town knew what was a Fifteenth Part, which was always the same; whereas a Subsidy raised on every particular Man's Lands or Goods, was adjudg'd uncertain: And in that Regard the Fifteenth seems to have been a Rate formerly laid upon every Town, according to the Land or Circuit belonging to it. Cambd. Britan. 171. There are certain Rates mentioned in Domesday, for Levying this Tribute yearly; but since, though the Rate be certain, it is not to be levied but by Parliament. By 31 Ed. 3. c. 13. a Fifteenth was granted, for Pardons, &c. The 7 Ed. 6. c. 4. granted a Subsidy and two Fifteenths by the Temporalty, &c. And in the 1, 5, &c. Eliz. and 1, 3 & 18 fac. 1. Fifteenths and Tenths were granted for Maintaining the Wars, &c.

Filacer or Filizer, (Filazarius, from the Lat. Filum) Is an Officer of the Court of Common Pleas, called by this Name as he files those Writs whereon he makes out Process. There are Fourteen of these Filizers in their several Divisions and Counties; and they make forth all Writs and Processes upon original Writs, issuing out of the Chancery, as well real, as personal and mix'd, returnable in that Court: And in Actions merely Personal, where the Defendants are returned summoned, they make out Pones or Attachments; which being return'd and executed, if the Defendant appears not, they make forth a Distingas, and so ad infinitum, or until he doth appear: If he be return'd Nihil, then Process of Capias infinite, &c. They enter all Appearances and Special Bails, upon any Process made by them: And make the first Scire facias upon Special Bails, Writs of Habeas Corpus, Distingas nuper Viccomitem vel Balicum, and all Superfedeas's upon Special Bail: In Real Actions, Writs of View, of Grand and Petit Cape, &c. And also Writs of Adjourn ment of a Term, in Case of publick Disturbance, &c. And until an Order of Court 14 fac. 1. they enter'd Declarations, Imparances and Pleas, and made out Writs of Execution, and divers other judicial Writs, after Appearance: But that Order limited their Proceedings to all Matters before Appearance, and the Prothonotaries to all after. The Filizers of the Common Pleas have been Officers of that Court before the Statute 10 H. 6. c. 4. wherein they are mentioned: And in the King's Bench, of later Times, there have been Filizers, who make out Process upon original Writs returnable in that Court, on Actions contra Pacem, &c.

File, (Filacium) A Thread, String or Wire, upon which Writs, and other Exhibits in Courts and Offices are fastened or filed, for the more safe Keeping and ready Turning to the same. A File is a Record of the Court; and the Filing of Process of a Court, makes it a Record of it. 1 Lill. 112. An original Writ may be filed after Judgment given in the Cause, if sued forth before: And Declarations, &c. are to be filed in the Office. Ibid. 113. Affidavits must be filed, some before read in Court; and some presently when read in Court. Before Filing, a Record removed by Certiorari, the Justices of B. R. may refuse to receive it, if it appears to be for Delay, &c. and remand it back for the Expedition of Justice: But if the Certiorari be once filed, the Proceedings below cannot be revived. 2 Hawk. 7. 204. An Indictment, &c. cannot be amended after filed.

Field-Ale or Fildale, A Kind of Drinking in the Field, by Bailiffs of Hundreds; for which they gathered Money of the Inhabitants of the Hundred to which they belong'd: But it has been long since prohibited. Bract. 4 Inst. 307.

Filiolus, Is properly a little Son, also a Godson. — Filiolus quem de sacro Fonte suscepit. Dugd. Warwicksh. 697.

Filum Aquæ, Is the Thread or Middle of the Stream, where a River parts two Lordships: Et habebunt istas Buttas usque ad Filum Aquæ prædictæ. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Wormley, fol. 3. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. fol. 390. File du Mer, the Tide of the Sea. Rot. Parl. 11 H. 4.

Finders, Are mentioned in several antient Statutes, and seem to be the same with those which we now call Searchers; who are employ'd for the Discovery of Goods imported or exported, without paying Custom. Stat. 18 Ed. 3. 14 R. 2. c. 10. and 17 R. 2. c. 5. 1 H. 4. c. 13, &c.

Fine, (Finis) Is a final Agreement or Conveyance upon Record, for the Settling and Assuring of Lands and Tenements, acknowledged in the King's Court by the Cognisor to be the Right of the Cognissee. Accomp. Convey. 1 Vol. 89. This Word hath divers Uses or Significations; but it is most commonly, Amicabilis Compositio & Finalis Concordia, ex consensu & Licentia Domini Regis vel ejus Jusficiariorum, or a Covenant made before Justices and enter'd of Record for Conveyance of Lands, Tenements, or any Thing inheritable, to cut off all Controversies: Et Finis dicitur Finalis Concordia quia finem litibus imponit. Glanv. lib. 8. c. 1. Bract. lib. 5. A Fine was antiently a Determination of a real Controversy; but now it is generally a feigned Action upon a Writ of Covenant, &c. and supposes a Controversy where in Reality there is none, to secure the Title that a Man hath in his Estate against all Men; or to cut off Intails, and with more Certainty convey the Title

tle of Lands, &c. either in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, or Years, whereupon also a Rent may be reserved. West's Symb. par. 2. Originally the final Concord was instituted and allow'd, in Regard that by the Law and antient Course of Proceedings, no Plaintiff could agree without Licence of the Court: And Fines have been formerly levied in Personal Actions; but Time hath wrought other Uses of them, viz. to cut off Intails, and pass the Inheritance of Lands, though the same be not controverted, to whom we think good; and a Fine may be levied on a Writ of Right, &c. in any Real Action, tho' not on an Original in a personal Action; and the common Writ of Covenant on which a Fine is levied, is not a Personal but a Real Action. As a Fine is a Concord acknowledged before a competent Judge, touching Hereditaments or Things immovable, and for its better Credit imputed to be made in the Presence of the King, because levied in his Court; therefore it binds Women covert, being Parties, and others whom ordinarily the Law disables to act, for this Reason, that all Presumption of Deceit is excluded, where the King and his Court of Justice are supposed to be privy to what is transacted. And Fines are now levied in the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, on Account of the Solemnity thereof, ordained by the Statute of 18 Ed. 1. before which Time they were sometimes levied in the Exchequer, in the County-Courts, Courts-Baron. &c. They may be acknowledged before the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, as well in as out of Court; and Two of the Justices of the same Court, have Power to take them in open Court: Also Justices of Assize may do it by the general Words of their Patent or Commission; but they do not usually certify them without a special Writ of Dedimus Potestatem. 2 Inst. 512. Dyer 224. And Fines are also taken by Commissioners in the Country, empower'd by Dedimus Potestatem, one whereof named must be a Knight; and the Writ of Dedimus doth surmise, that the Parties who are to acknowledge the Fine are not able to travel to Westminster for the Doing thereof: These Commissions general and special, issue out of the Chancery. By the Common Law all Fines were levied in Court: But the Statute 15 Ed. 2. allows the Dedimus Potestatem to Commissioners, who may be punished for Abuses, and the Fines taken before them set aside: And it is said an Information may be brought by him in Reversion against Commissioners who take the Caption of a Fine, where a married Woman, &c. is an Infant. 3 Lev. 36. In the Levying of Fines in Court, a Pleader shall say Sir Justice conge de Accorder, &c. And when the Sum for the King's Fine is agreed, after Proclamation and Crying the Peace, the Pleader shall repeat the Substance of the Fine, &c. Stat. de Finibus. 18 Ed. 1. Touching the Form of Fines, it is to be considered upon what Writ or Action the Concord is to be made; and there must first pass a Pair of Indentures between the Cognisor and Cognisee, whereby the Cognisor covenants to pass a Fine to the Cognisee of such Things, by a Time limited; and these Indentures preceding the Fine, are said to lead the Uses of the Fine: But by the Statute 4 & 5 Ann. the Uses of a Fine, &c. may be declared after the Fine levied, and be good in Law. Upon this the Writ of Covenant is brought by the Cognisee against the Cognisor, who then yields to pass the Fine before the Judge; and so the Acknowledgment being recorded, the Cognisor and his Heirs are presently concluded, and all Strangers (not excepted) after five Years past: And if the Writ whereon the Fine is grounded, be not a Writ of Covenant, which is usual, but of Warrantia Charta, or a Writ of Right, or of Customs and Services, &c. then the Writ is to be served upon the Party that is to acknowledge the Fine, and he appearing doth it accordingly. West. Sect. 23. Dyer 179. By Statute, a final Concord cannot be levied in the King's Court, without original Writ, &c. And when a Fine is pass'd, it is to be in the Presence of the Parties, who are to be of full Age, good Memory, &c. And if a Feme Covert be one, she is to be privately examined if she consent freely, for if she doth not, the Fine cannot be levied. Stat. 18 Ed. 1. A Fine after the Ingrossing is to be openly read and proclaimed in the Court of C. B. and a Transcript to be sent to the Justices of Assize, and another to the Justices of the Peace of the County where the Land lieth, to be openly proclaimed there; which being certified, concludes all Persons; Feme Coverts, Persons under Age, in Prison, &c. excepted, if they lay Claim, by Way of Action or Entry, in five Years: Also Persons out of the Land, or Non sane Memoriae, &c. have the like Term of Years after their Imperfections are removed. 1 R. 3. c. 7. And by subsequent Acts, Fines after Ingrossing are to be proclaimed in Court the same Term, and the Three next Terms, formerly Four several Days in each Term; but of late only once in the Term wherein ingross'd, and once in each of the succeeding Terms. 4 H. 7. 31 Eliz. c. 2. The Day and Year of acknowledging a Fine, and Warrant of Attorney for the Suffering a Recovery, are to be certified with the Concord: And an Office has been erected for the Inrollment of Writs for Fines, &c. the Fees whereof are limited and appointed; likewise the Chirographer the first Day of every Term is to fix in the Court of C. B. a Table containing the Fines passed in the Term before in every County, &c. by 23 Eliz. c. 3. There are in every Fine five Parts, viz. 1st, An original Writ, usually a Writ of Covenant. 2. The Licentia Concordandi, or King's Licence, for which the King hath a Fine, called the King's Silver. 3. The Concord it self, containing the Agreement between the Parties how the Land, &c. shall pass, being the Foundation and Substance of the Fine; it begins, Et est concordia talis, &c. 4. The Note of the Fine, or Abstract of the original Contract. 5. The Foot of the Fine, which includes all, setting forth the Day, Year, and Place, and before what Justices the Concord was made, &c. Of this there are Indentures made forth in the Office, which is called the Ingrossing of the Fine; and it beginneth thus, Hec est finalis Concordia facta in Curia Domini Regis apud Westm. a die Pasche in quindecim dies, anno, &c. 2 Inst. 511, 517. 'Tis said, the Concord being the compleat Fine, it shall be adjudg'd a Fine of that Term in which the Concord was made, and the Writ of Covenant returnable. 1 Salk. 341. A Concord cannot be of any Thing but what is contained in the Writ of Covenant: And the Note of the Fine remaining with the Chirographer, it hath been held, est Principale Recordum. 3 Leon. 254. As to Fines, there are various Kinds: They are either with Proclamations, or without; that with Proclamations, is term'd a Fine according to the Statutes. 1 R. 3. c. 7. and 4 H. 7. c. 24. And such a Fine is every Fine that is pleaded intended to be, if it be not shewed what Fine it is; and these Fines are the best Sort, and most used; also if there be Error in the Proclamations, it shall be taken as a good Fine at Common Law. 3 Rep. 86. A Fine may stand, though the Proclamations according to the Statute are made irregularly; for Fines are Matter of Record, and remain in Substance and Form as they were before. Plowd. 265. If Tenant in Tail levies a Fine, and dies before all the Proclamations are made, tho' the Right of the Estate-tail descends upon the Issue, immediately on the Death of the Ancestor; yet if Proclamations are made afterwards, such Right shall be barred by the Fine, by the Statute 4 H. 7. and 32 H. 8. 3 Rep. 84. The Fine without Proclamations is called a Fine at the Common Law, levied in such Manner as was us'd before the 4 H. 7. c. 24. and is still of the like Force as by the Common Law, to discontinue the Estate of the Cognisor, if the Fine be executed. A Fine also with or without Proclamations, is either executed or executory: A Fine executed is such a Fine as of its own Force gives present Possession to the Cognisee, without any Writ of Seisin to enter on the Lands, &c. as a Fine sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo; and in some Respects a Fine sur Release, &c. are said to be executed. A Fine executory doth not execute the Possession in the Cognisee, without Entry or Action, but requires a Writ of Seisin; as the Fine sur Cognissance de Droit tantum, &c. unless the Party be in Possession of the Lands; for if he be in Possession at the Time of Levying the Fine, there needs not be any such Writ, or any Execution of the Fine; and then the Fine will enure by Way of Extinguishment of Right, not altering the Estate or Possession of the Cognisee, however it may better it. West. Set. 20. Fines are likewise single or double: Single, where an Estate is granted by the Cognisor to the Cognisee, and nothing is thereby rendered back again from the Cognisee to the Cognisor. The double Fine is that which doth contain a Grant or Render back again from the Cognisee, of the Land it self, or of some Rent, Common, or other Thing out of it; many Times limiting Remainders to Strangers, &c. West. Set. 21, 30. And a Fine is sometimes called a double Fine, when the Lands lie in several Counties: Fines are further divided into four Sorts, viz. A Fine sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo, &c. A Fine sur done Grant & Render; a Fine sur Cognissance de Droit tantum; and a Fine sur Concessit: The Fine sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo is a single Fine levied with Proclamations, according to the Statute 4 H. 7. And it is the principal and surest Kind of Fine, it being said to be executed, because it gives present Possession (at least in Law) to the Cognisee, so that he needs no Writ of Hab. facias Seisinam, or other Means for Execution thereof; for it admits the Possession of the Lands of which the Fine is levied to pass by the Fine, so that the Cognisee may enter, and the Estate is thereby in him, to such Uses as are declared in the Deed to lead the Uses thereof. But if it be not declared by Deed to what Use the Fine was levied, such Fine shall be to the Use of the Cognisor that levied the same. 2 Inst. 513. If the Cognisee of a Fine levied of Lands, do pay Money unto the Cognisor at the Time of the Fine levied, and there is no Use declared of the Fine, the Law will construe the Fine to the Use of the Cognisee: And if there be no Money paid by the Cognisee, nor any Use declared, the Fine shall enure to the Cognisor that levied it. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. Where a Fine is levied to the Use of two Persons in Tail, &c. in Consideration of Marriage, tho' the Deed to lead its Uses do not mention any Marriage had between them, yet it hath been adjudg'd that the Estate-tail is executed before Marriage; for the Fine doth carry the Uses, and they are perfected by the Fine, notwithstanding the Consideration is perfected afterwards; but without a Fine, the Marriage must be had, before any Use could arise. 1 Leon. 138. If a Feme Covert alone declares the Uses of a Fine intended to be levied by Husband and Wife of her Land, and the Husband alone declares other Uses; it has been held that both Declarations of Uses are void, and the Use shall follow the Ownership of the Lands: But in another Case, it was determined that the Uses declared by the Wife were void; and the Uses declared by the Husband, good only against himself, during the Coverture. 2 Rep. 56. If Husband and Wife levy a Fine of the Lands of the Wife, and he alone declares the Uses, this shall bind the Wife, if her Dissent doth not appear; because otherwise it shall be intended that she did consent. Ibid. 59. A Fine sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo, &c. may not be levied to any Person but one that is Party to the Writ of Covenant; tho' a Vouchee after he hath enter'd into the Warranty to the Demandant, it is said, may confess the Action, or levy a Fine to the Demandant, for he is then suppos'd to be Tenant of the Land, though he is not a Party to the Writ; and yet a Fine levied by the Vouchee to a Stranger, is void. No single Fine can be with a Remainder over to any other Person not contained in it: But if A. levy a Fine to B. Sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo, and B. by the same Concord grants back the Land again to A. for Life, Remainder to E. the Wife of A. for her Life, Remainder to A. and his Heirs; this will be a good Fine. Plowd. 248, 249. A Fine sur Done Grant & Render, is a double Fine, being in a Manner two Fines, i. e. A Fine sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo, &c. and a Fine sur Concessit, both form'd into one; whereby the Cognisee after a Release and Warranty made to him by the Cognisor of the Lands contained therein, doth grant and render back to the Cognisor the Lands, &c. And thereby oftentimes limiting Remainders to Persons that are Strangers, and not named in the Writ of Covenant. This Fine is partly executed and partly executory; and as to the first Part of it, is altogether of the same Nature with a Fine sur Cognissance de Droit come ceo; but as to the second Part, containing a Grant and Render back, it is taken in Law to be rather a private Conveyance or Charter between Party and Party, and not as a Writ of Judgment upon Record: And this Render is sometimes of the whole Estate, and sometimes of a particular Estate, with Remainder or Remainders over; or of the Reversion, and sometimes with Reservations of Rent and Clause of Distress, and Grant thereof over by the same Fine. 5 Rep. 38. A. B. and C. D. levied a Fine of Lands, and the Cognisee by the same Fine rendered back the Land to A. B. in Tail, reserving a Rent to himself, &c. the Rent and Reversion shall pass, though in one Fine; and it shall enure as several Fines. Cro. Eliz. 727. A Fine and Render is a Conveyance at Common Law, and makes the Cognisor on the Render back back a new Purchaser; by which Lands arising on the Part of the Mother, may go to the Heirs on the Part of the Father, &c. 1 Salk. 337. 2 Nelf. Abr. 864. The Fine Sur Concessit is where the Cognisor is seised of the Lands contained therein, and the Cognisee hath no Freehold in it, but it passeth by the Fine: This Fine is used to grant away Estates for Life, or Years; and it is executory, so that the Cognisees must enter or have a Writ of Hab. fac. Seisinam to obtain Possession; if the Parties to whom the Estate is limited, at the Time of Levying such Fine, be not in Possession of the Thing granted. A Fine Sur Cognisance de Droit tantum is also a Fine executory, and much of the Nature of a Fine Sur Concessit; it is commonly made use to pass a Reversion, and then it is expressed by such Fine that the particular Estate is in another, and that the Cognisor willeth that the Cognisee shall have the Reversion, or that the Land shall remain to him after the particular Estate is spent: And sometimes it is used by Tenant for Life, to make a Release (in Nature of a Surrender) to him in Reversion, but not by the Word Surrender; for it is said a particular Tenant, as for Life, &c. cannot surrender his Term to him in Reversion by Fine; but he may grant and release to him by Fine. Plowd. 268. Dyer 216. A Fine upon a Release, &c. shall not be intended to be to any other Use, but to him to whom it is levied. 3 Leon. 61. A Fine is called a Feoffment of Record, and is of great Antiquity, for we read of Fines before the Conquest. 2 Inst. 511. But it hath been held, that a Fine is improperly called a Feoffment of Record; tho' it hath the Effects of a Feoffment, where he that levies it is seised of the Freehold at the Time of the Fine levied. 1 Salk. 340. Lands bought of divers Persons, by several Purchasers, may pass in one Fine, to save Charges; but the Writ of Covenant must be brought by the Vendee against all the Vendors, and every Vendor warrant against him and his Heirs. If a Feme sole marries after the Dedimus Potestatem to take her Fine, &c. the Fine shall nevertheless be pass'd as her Fine. Dyer 246. And if either of the Parties Cognisors die after the King's Silver is entered, the Fine shall be finished, and be good. 1 Cro. 469. A Record of a Fine may be amended, (if the King's Silver is paid) where it is the Misprision of the Clerk. 5 Rep. 43.

THIS Indenture made, &c. Between A. B. of, &c. Esq; and M. his Wife, of the one Part, and C. D. of, &c. of the other Part, Witnesseth, That the said A. B. and M. his Wife, for the Settling and Assuring of the Manors, Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments and Premises herein after mentioned, to the several Uses herein after declared and limited, and for divers other good Causes and Considerations, he, the said A. B. hath covenanted and granted, and by these Presents doth for himself, his Heirs and Assigns, covenant and grant, to and with the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns; and the said M. Wife of the said A. B. doth hereby consent and agree, that the said A. B. and M. his Wife shall and will, before the End of Michaelmas-Term next ensuing, acknowledge and levy in due Form of Law, before his Majesty's Justices of the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, unto the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns, one Fine Sur Conusance de Droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations to be thereupon had according to the Form of the Statute in that Case made, of all that the Manor of, &c. And of all that Messuage or Farm called, &c. and also the Reversion and Reversions, Remainder and Remainders, Rents and Services of the said Manor and Premises above-mentioned, and of every Part and Parcel thereof with the Appurtenances, by the Names of twenty-five Messuages, fifteen Cottages, two Mills, Four hundred Acres of Land, Three hundred Acres of Meadow, Five hundred Acres of Pasture, thirty Acres of Wood, and thirty Pounds Rent, and Common of Pasture for all Manner of Cattle, &c. with the Appurtenances in, &c. as aforesaid. And it is hereby agreed by and between the said Parties to these Presents, and the true Meaning hereof is, and it is hereby so declared, That the Fine so as aforesaid, or in any other Manner to be had and levied of the said Manor and Premises, or any Part thereof; and also all and every other Fine and Fines already had, levied, or to be had and levied of the same Premises, or any Part thereof, shall be and enure, and shall be adjudged, esteemed, and taken to be and enure, and the said C. D. and his Heirs, and all and every other Person and Persons, and his and their Heirs now standing and being seised, or which at the Perfecting of the said Fine shall stand or be seised of the said Manor and Premises, or any Part thereof, shall at all Times hereafter stand and be seised thereof, and of every Part thereof, with the Appurtenances, to and for the several Uses, Intents and Purposes herein after limited, expressed and declared, (that is to say) As for and concerning the said Manor, with its Rights, Members, and Appurtenances, and all and singular the Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Tenements, Commons, Wastes, Waste-Grounds, Mines, Royalties, Rents and Hereditaments whatsoever, to the same Manor belonging or appertaining, or accepted, reputed, or taken as Part, Parcel, or Member thereof, to the Use and Behoof of the said A. B. and M. B. for and during the Term of their natural Lives, and the Life of the longest Liver of them, without Impeachment of or for any Manner of Waste; and with full Power and Authority for the said A. B. alone, during his Life, and after his Death, for the said M. alone, during her Life, to make and grant any Lease or Leases, or Grant or Grants by Copy of Court-Roll, for one, two, or three Life or Lives, in Possession or Reversion, of any Lands or Tenements, Parcel of the said Manor, which have been usually so granted; provided that there shall be no more than three Lives at any one Time in Being on the said Premises, or any Part thereof, and so as the usual Rents, Heriots and Services, or more shall be reserved on such Leases and Copies respectively; and from and after the Decease of the said A. B. and M. his Wife, and the Survivor of them, then to the Use and Behoof of the right Heirs of the said A. B. for ever. And as for and concerning all and singular the said Messuage or Farm called, &c. with the Appurtenances, whereof the said Fine shall be so levied, and whereof no Use is herein before declared, to the only proper Use and Behoof of the said A. B. &c. his Heirs and Assigns for ever; and to and for none other Use, Intent or Purpose whatsoever. In Witness, &c.

A Fine may be levied of any Thing whereof a Præcipe quod reddat lies, as of Lands, Rents, &c. or of any Thing whereof a Præcipe quod faciat lies, as Customs, Services, &c. or whereof a Præcipe quod permittat, or Præcipe quod teneat may be brought. 2 Inst. 513. And almost any Kind of Contract may be made and expressed by a Fine, as by a Deed; and therefore it may be so made that one of the Parties shall have Land, and the other a Rent out of it; and that one shall have it for a Time, and another for another Time; also a Lease for Years, or a Jointure for a Wife, may be made; and a Gift in Tail, and a Remainder over, may be limited and created thereby. 1 Rep. 76. The King, and all Persons who may lawfully grant by Deed, may levy a Fine; but not Infants, Ideots, Lunatics, &c. 7 Rep. 32. Civil Corporations, as Mayor and Commonalty, &c. may levy a Fine of Land belonging to their Body: But Bishops, Deans and Chapters, Parsons, &c. are restrained from levying of Fines to bind their Successors. All Persons that may be Grantees, or that may take by Contract, may take by Fine: Though in Cases of Infants, Feme Coverts, Persons attainted, Aliens, &c. who, it is said, may take by Fine, before the Ingrossing of the Fine, there goes a Writ to the Justices of C. B. quod permittat finem Levare. Litt. 669. Tenant in Fee-simple, Fee-tail general, or special, Tenant in Remainder or Reversion, may levy a Fine of their Estates; so may Tenant for Life, to hold to the Cognisee for Life of Tenant for Life: But a Person who is Tenant, or hath an Interest only for Years, cannot levy a Fine of his Term to another. 3 Rep. 77. 5 Rep. 124. As Fines may be levied of Things in Possession; so they may be levied of a Remainder or Reversion, or of a Right in futuro. 3 Rep. 90. But if a Lessee for Years, or a Disseisee, or one that hath Right only to a Reversion or Remainder, levy a Fine to a Stranger that hath nothing in the Land, this Fine will be void or voidable as to the Stranger; and he that hath Cause to except against it, may shew that the Freehold and Seisin was in another at the Time of the Fine levied, and that Partes Finis nihil habuerunt tempore Levationis Finis, and by this avoid the Fine: And yet a Disseisor, who hath a Fee-simple by Wrong in him, may levy a Fine to a Stranger that hath nothing in the Land, like unto one that is rightfully seised of Land in Fee, &c. and it will be a good Fine. Plowd. 353. 3 Rep. 87. If the Cognisor of a Fine hath nothing in the Land pass'd, at the Time

Time of the Fine levied, the Fine may be avoided: Yet where the Cognisor or Cognisee is seised of an Estate of Freehold, whether by Right or by Wrong, the Fine will be a good Fine in Point of Estate. 41 E. 3. 14. 22 H. 6. 43. 27 H. 8. Fines may be had of all Things in esse tempore Finis, which are inheritable; but not of Things uncertain; or of Lands held in Tail by the King's Letters Patent; of Land restrained from Sale by Act of Parliament; or of Lands in Right of a Man's Wife, without the Wife, &c. 5 Rep. 225. West. Sess. 25. Lands assured for Dower, or Term of Life, or in Tail; to any Woman by Means of her Husband, or his Ancestors, cannot be conveyed away from her by Fine, &c. without her Assent: But if a Woman and her Husband levy a Fine of her Jointure, she is barred of the same, though if the Jointure be made after Coverture, when the Wife hath her Election to have her Jointure or Dower on the Husband's Death, it is said this will be no Bar of her Dower in the Residue of the Land of the Husband. Dyer 358. Leon. 285. No Fine of the Husband alone, of the Lands of the Wife, shall hurt her, but that she or her Heirs, or such as have Right may avoid it; but if she joins with him, it shall bind her and her Heirs. 37 H. 8. Women Coverts ought to be cautious in levying Fines with their Husbands of their own Lands; and if a married Woman under Age levies a Fine of her Lands, she cannot reverse it during her Husband's Life, nor after his Death, if she be of full Age when he dies; but if the Husband dies during her Minority, she may. Dyer 359. Wood's Inst. 243. A married Female ought not to be admitted alone without her Husband to levy a Fine; and if she be receiv'd, the Husband may avoid the Fine by Entry; but if he do not, it is good to bar her and her Heirs, except she be an Infant at the Time of the Fine levied: The Husband and Wife together may dispose of her Land, &c. 12 Rep. 122. If Baron and Feme levy a Fine, the Feme within Age, she may be brought into Court by Habeas Corpus; and if it be found by Inspection that she is under Age, it hath been adjudged, where the Baron and Feme brought a Writ of Error, that as to both, quod Finis Revocetur. 1 Leon. 116, 117. 3 Salk. 168. Husband and Wife, Tenants in Special Tail, the Husband only levies a Fine, this bars the Issue in Tail; but it remains in Right to the Wife as to her self, and to all the Estates and Remainders depending upon it, and to all the Consequences of Benefits to her self and others, so long as she lives, as if the Fine had not been levied. Hob. 257, 259. If a Husband make a Feoffment of the Wife's Land upon Condition, which is broken, and the Feoffee levies a Fine, and the Husband and Wife dies having Issue, and five Years pass; the Heir is barred to enter as Heir to the Father upon the Condition, but he shall have five Years after the Death of his Father as Heir to his Mother. Plowd. 367. If a Woman with a second Husband acknowledge a Fine, it shall not bind her; though if she levies a Fine with her right Husband by a wrong Christian Name, she is bound by Estoppel during her Life, and the Tenant may plead, that she by such a Name levied the Fine. 1 Aff. pl. 11. Brook 117. When the Husband and Wife join in a Fine of the Wife's Lands, all the Estate passeth from her, and he is join'd only for Conformity; so that if the Fine levied by Husband and Wife in such a Case be reversed, she shall have Restitution.

2 Rep. 77. A Husband and his Wife covenanted to levy a Fine of the Lands of the Wife, to the Use of the Heirs of the Body of the Husband on the Wife, Remainder to the Husband in Fee; both dying without Issue, it was held that the Heir of the Wife had the Title, because the Limitation to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband was merely void, there being no precedent Estate of Freehold for Life, &c. to support it as a Remainder. 2 Salk. 675. 4 Mod. 153. If a Widow having an Estate in Dower accept of a Fine, and by the same Fine render back the Land for 100 Years, &c. this is a Forfeiture of her Estate within the Stat. 11 H. 7. 20. by which Statute she may not make a greater Estate than for her own Life; if she do, it is a present Forfeiture. 2 Cro. 689. If Tenant for Life grants a greater Estate by Fine than for his own Life, it is a Forfeiture: And if there be Tenant for Life, and Remainder for Life, and the Tenant for Life levy a Fine to him in Remainder and his Heirs, both their Estates are forfeited, the Tenant for Life by Levying the Fine, and the Remainder-Man for Life by Accepting it. 2 Lev. 202. Where a Fine is levied by Tenant for Life, for a greater Estate, the Fine may be good; but it is a Forfeiture of the Estate of Tenant for Life, whereof he in Remainder, &c. may take present Advantage and enter: And where a Person enters for a Forfeiture, all Estates are avoided. Dyer 111. But if such a Tenant for Life levy a Fine Sur Grant & Release to the Cognisee for the Life of Tenant for Life; or by Fine grant a Rent out of the Land for a longer Time, the Fine is good, and there will be no Forfeiture of the Estate of Tenant for Life: So likewise if a Fine be levied of Lands by Tenant for Life to a Stranger, who thereby acknowledges all his Right to be in the Tenant for Life, and releases to him and his Heirs. 27 Ed. 1. 1. 44 Ed. 3. 36. If there be Tenant in Tail upon Condition not to alien, or discontinue the Lands, &c. if he doth, the Donor to re-enter; and his Issue levy a Fine of the Land, this is a Forfeiture of the Estate. 1 Leon. 292. A Fine is levied by Lessee for Life, &c. who continues the Possession, and pays the Rent; it shall not bind the Lessor, who shall have five Years Claim after the Determination of the Lessee's Estate, &c. 3 Rep. 77, 78. If one doth levy a Fine of my Land, while I am in Possession, this will not hurt me; nor where a Stranger levies a Fine of my Lands let to a Tenant, if the Tenant pays me his Rent duly: And if there is Tenant in Tail, or for Life, Remainder in Tail, &c. And the first Tenant in Tail, or for Life, bargains and sells the Land by Deed inrolled, and levies a Fine to the Bargainee, the Remainders are not bound; for the Law adjudges them always in Possession. 9 Rep. 106. Lessees who pretend Title to the Inheritance of the Lands, cannot by Fine bar the Inheritance. 3 Rep. 77. But if a Lease is made for Years, and the Lessor before Entry of the Lessee levies a Fine with Proclamations, and the Lessee doth not make his Claim within five Years, the Lessee is barred, and no Relief can be had for him; for though the Lessee for Years cannot levy a Fine, yet he shall be barred by a Fine levied by the Tenant of the Land, &c. 5 Rep. 124. If a Person hath a Remainder depending on an Estate for Years, and the Termor is disseised, and a Fine is levied and five Years pass, &c. the Termor and Reversioner are barred: Because the Termor might presently have entered, and he in Remainder had an Assise. West. Sect. 183. In case a Person enters upon and puts out a Copyholder, and the Disseisor doth levy a Fine of the Lands, if the Copyholder suffer five Years to pass after the Disseisin and Fine, without making any Claim, the Interest of the Copyholder and his Lord are hereby barred for ever: And if a Copyholder makes a Feoffment in Fee upon good Consideration, and the Feoffee levies a Fine with Proclamations, and five Years pass, the Lord is barred; but if a Copyholder himself levies a Fine, and five Years do pass, the Lord is not barr'd, for the Copyholder not having a Freehold, the Fine will be void. Wood's Inst. 247, 248. A Fine of Cestui que Trust shall bar and transfer a Trust, as it should an Estate at Law, if it were on a good Consideration. Chanc. Rep. 49. And Fines of Cestui que Use are as good as if levied of immediate Possessions, &c. 1 R. 3. 2 Nelf. Abr. 860. Interests in Estates which may be barred by Fine, are either Interests by Common Law, or by Custom; as Copyholds, &c. And if I have a Fee-simple, and am disseised, and the Disseisor levies a Fine with Proclamations, and I do not claim within five Years after, I and my Heirs (Allowance being made for Impediments) are barred for ever. Plowd. 353. 3 Rep. 79. A Fine with Proclamations levied by Persons of Lands entailed to them or their Ancestors, &c. is a good Bar against their Heirs, claiming only by such Intail. 32 H. 8. c. 36. But though such Fine bars the Estate-tail and the Issue in Tail, yet it doth not Remainders or Reversions; though Recoveries bar them all. And if one makes his Title as Heir by another, and not by him that levied the Fine, he is not barred. 1 Cro. 377. Also he that is privy in Blood only, and not in Estate, is not within the Statutes to be barred by a Fine: As if Lands are given to a Man and the Heirs Females of his Body, and he hath a Son and a Daughter, and the Son levies a Fine and dies without Issue, this is no Bar to the Daughter; for notwithstanding she be Heir to his Blood, yet she is not Heir to the Estate, nor need make her Conveyance to it by him; but if the Father had levied the Fine, it would have been otherwise. Trin. 21 Fac. A Fine, &c. cannot destroy an executory Estate, which depends upon Contingencies, as it is uncertain whether there will ever be an Estate in Being for the Fine to work upon; but a Fine and Recovery will bar an Estate in Remainder, as that is an Estate vested. 1 Lill. Abr. 617. If a Fine be levied of Lands in Ancient Demesne, it doth not bar by the Statute of Non-claim. Lutw. 781. Estates by Statute-Merchant, Statute-Staple, and Elegit, may be barred, if a Fine is levied, and those that have Right suffer five Years to pass without Claim, &c. 5 Rep. 124. As Deans, Bishops, Parsons, &c. are prohibited by Statute to levy Fines, and may not have a Writ of Right, they are not barred by five Years Non-claim, and their Non-claim will not prejudice their Successors. Plowd. 138, 375. If a Corporation which hath an absolute Estate, so as to maintain a Writ of Right, is disseised of Land, and a Fine is levied by the Disseisor; if they claim not in five Years, they are barred: But in such Case it is said, that every Successor being Head of the Corporation, may have a new five Years to make their Claim. Plowd. 537. By the ancient Common Law, he that had Right was to make his Claim, &c. within a Year and a Day of the Fine levied and the Execution thereof, or he was barred for ever: But this Bar is now gone; and if a Fine without Proclamations according to the Common Law be now levied, he that hath Right may make his Claim or Entry, &c. at any Time to prevent the Bar. 1 Inst. 254, 262. By Statute, a Claim or Entry to avoid the Bar of a Fine is to be made in five Years: And no Claim or Entry shall avoid any Fine with Proclamations, unless an Action be commenc'd within one Year after such Entry, and prosecuted with Effect. 1 R. 3. c. 7. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. The Statutes 4 H. 7. c. 24. and 32 H. 8. c. 36. declare the Force of Fines, how far they bar Parties, Privies, and Strangers; and to bar is to take away the Entry or Action of him that hath Right: Privies in Blood, as Heirs of the Cognisor are barred presently by a Fine; but Strangers to the Fine, such as are not Parties nor Privies, have five Years to enter and claim their Rights, &c. Plowd. 367, 375. Feme Coverts have five Years after the Death of their Husbands, to avoid the Fine of the Husband of the Wife's Lands; and also to claim their Dower: And if they do not make their Claim in that Time by Action or Entry, they are barred by Statute. Dyer 72. 2 Rep. 93. An Infant shall have five Years after he comes of Age, although he was in his Mother's Womb at the Time of the Fine levied. Plowd. 359. And an Infant is allow'd Time during his Minority to reverse his own Fine, and prevent the Bar; and if not reversed during that Time, their Fines will be good. Aff. pl. 53. Strangers out of the Realm at the Time of the Fine levied, shall have five Years after their Return to prevent the Bar; and so if they were in England when the Fine was levied, and within five Years are sent in the King's Service by his Commandment. Plowd. 366. A Person in Scotland or Ireland shall be said to be out of the Realm. 4 H. 7. Madmen, &c. have five Years after the Cure of their Maladies, and though the Infirmary happen after the Fine levied, if before the last Proclamation. Plowd. 367. Dyer 3. And they who have divers Defects, have five Years after the last Infirmary removed; but if the Impediments are once wholly gone, and afterwards the Party relapses into the like again, the five Years shall begin immediately after the first Removal; and if the Party dies, his Heir shall not have a new five Years. Plowd. 375. Dyer 133. If a Feme Covert dies during the Coverture, being no Party to the Fine, &c. or if an Infant, being Party to the Fine, and having present Right, dies in his Infancy: If a Person beyond Sea when the Fine was levied, never return, &c. a Person in Prison dies whilst therein; or if one Non Compos, &c. dies such; in all these Cases, their Heirs are not limited to any Time. 2 Inst. 519, 520. Five Years are given after a Remainder falls; and five Years after the Forfeiture of Tenant for Life. Plowd. 374. And he that hath two Titles, shall have Two five Years to make his Claim. Jenk. Ca. 45. Where a Claim is to be in Equity within five Years after Levying the Fine, the Claim must be by Subpoena. Chanc. Rep. 279. A future Interest of another Person, cannot be barred by Fine and Non-claim, until five Years after it happens; as in Case of a Remainder or Reversion. 2 Rep. 93. Raym. 151. And where there is no present nor future Right in Land, &c. only a Possibility at the Time of Levying the Fine, a Person may enter and claim when he pleases. 10 Rep. 49. Also when there is only a Right to a Rent, &c. if-

suing out of Lands, and not the Land in the Fine, the Persons that have it are not barred at all. 5 Rep. 124. No Fine bars any Estate in Possession or Reversion, which is not divested and put to a Right. 9 Rep. 106. He that at the Time of a Fine levied had not any Title to enter, shall not be immediately barred by the Fine: But this is in Case of an Interest not turned to a Right, where a Man is not bound to claim; and not in the Case of Tenant in Tail, barring his Issue. 32 Hen. 8. When an Estate is put to a Right, and there comes a Fine and Non-claim, it is a perpetual Bar. Carter 32, 163. A Fine, Grant and Render was levied, and a Scire facias brought and Judgment given, and also Writ of Seisin awarded, but not executed; and afterwards a second Fine was levied and executed, and five Years passed; it was the Opinion of the Court that the second Fine barred the first. March's Rep. 194. 2 Nels. Abr. 864. A Fine was levied, and five Years passed without bringing a Writ of Error; and it was held a good Bar by the Word Actions, within the Stat. 4 H. 7. cap. 14. Cro. Jac. 333. But it has been adjudged that where five Years pass, that shall not hinder, where the Fine is erroneous. 2 Nels. Abr. 838. And Fines may be reversed for Error, so as the Writ of Error be brought in twenty Years, &c. and not afterwards, by Stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 14. Fines are not reverfible for false Latin, Rasure, Interlineation, Misentry, &c. or any Want of Form; but 'tis otherwise if of Subtance. 23 Eliz. A Fine shall not be reversed for small Variance, which will not hurt it; nor is there Occasion for a precise Form in a Render upon a Fine, because it is only an amicable Assurance upon Record. 5 Rep. 38. If a Fine be levied of Lands in a wrong Parish, though the Parish in which they lie be not named, it will be a good Fine, and not be erroneous, being an amicable Assurance: And a Fine of a Close may be levied by a Lieu Conus in a Town, without mentioning the Town, Vill, &c. Godb. 440. 2 Cro. 574. 2 Mod. 47. If there be Want of an Original, or not Writs of Covenant for Lands in every County; or if there is any notorious Error, in the Suing out a Fine, or any Fraud or Deceit, &c. Writ of Error may be had to make void the Fine. 1 Inst. 9. 1 Cro. 469. So if either of the Parties dies before finished, &c. And if the Cognisor die before the Return of the Writ of Covenant, (though after the Caption of the Fine) it is said it may be reversed. 3 Salk. 168. A Writ of Error may be brought in B. R. to reverse a Fine levied in C. B. and the Transcript only, not the very Record of the Fine is removed in these Cases: But if the Court of B. R. adjudge it erroneous, then a Certiorari goes to the Chirographer to certify the Fine it self, and when it comes up it is cancelled. 1 Salk. 341. And where on a Writ of Error in B. R. to reverse a Fine in C. B. the Fine was affirmed; a Writ of Error coram vobis Residen. hath been allowed to lie. Ibid. 357. The Court of B. R. will not reverse a Fine, without a Sci. fac. returned against the Tertenant, because the Cognisees are but nominal Persons. Ibid. 339. A Fine may be set aside, by pleading that neither of the Parties had any Thing in the Estate, at the Time of Levying the Fine, &c. But those that are privy to the Person that levied the Fine, are etopped to plead this Plea. 3 Rep. 88. In the Pleading a Fine or Recovery to Uses, the Deeds need not be set forth; but the Pleader is to say, that the Fine, &c. was levied to such Uses, and produce the Deeds in Evidence to prove the Uses. 8 W. 3. B. R. Fines levied before the Justices in Wales; or in the Counties Palatine of Chester, Durham, &c. have the same Effect as Fines levied before the Justices of C. B. 34 & 35 H. 8. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 5 Eliz. &c. Sometimes a Sum of Money paid for the Income of Lands, &c. let by Lease, is called Fine: And Fine also signifies an Amends, or Punishment for an Offence committed, in which Case a Man is said facere finem de Transgressionem cum Rege, &c. And in all Cases it is a final Conclusion or End of Differences.

Fine adnullando levato de Tenemento quod fuit de antiquo Dominico, Is a Writ directed to the Justices for disannulling a Fine levied of Lands in ancient Demeasne, to the Prejudice of the Lord. Reg. Orig. 15. Fine capiendo pro Terris, &c. a Writ lying where a Person upon Conviction of any Offence by Jury, hath his Lands and Goods taken into the King's Hands, and his Body is committed to Prison, to be remitted his Imprisonment, and have his Lands and Goods redelivered him, on obtaining Favour for a Sum of Money, &c. Reg. Orig. 142. Fine levando de Tenementis tentis de Rege in Capite, &c. was a Writ directed to the Justices of C. B. to admit of a Fine for the Sale of Land holden of the King in Capite. Reg. Orig. 167. Fine non capiendo pro pulchre Placitando is a Writ to inhibit Officers of Courts to take Fines for fair Pleading. Reg. Orig. 179. Fine pro Redisseisina capienda, &c. a Writ lying for the Release of one imprisoned for a Redisseisin, on Payment of a reasonable Fine. Reg. Orig. 222.

Fines for Alienation, Were Fines paid to the King by his Tenants in Chief, for Licence to alien their Lands, according to the Statute 1 Ed. 3. cap. 12. But these are taken away by the Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Fines for Offences. Among the Ancients, all Punishments were by Fine; but in Process of Time this Sort of Punishment became too mild, and then for some Crimes Death was inflicted: And as to the Definition of a Fine, it is a Sum of Money which one is to pay to the King, for any Contempt or Offence against the Government. 3 Inst. 218. 3 Salk. 32. All Fines belong to the King, and the Reason is, because the Courts of Justice are supported at his Charge; and wherever the Law puts the King to any Charge for the Support and Protection of his People, it provides Money for that Purpose. Bract. 129. Where a Statute imposes a Fine at the Will and Pleasure of the King, that is intended of his Judges, who are to impose the Fine. 4 Inst. 71. Courts of Record only can fine and imprison a Person: And such a Court may fine a Man for an Offence committed in Court in their View, or by Confession of the Party recorded in Court. 1 Lill. Abr. 621. A Man shall be fined and imprisoned for all Contempts done to any Court of Record against the Commandment of the King's Writs, &c. 8 Rep. 60. If a Person is arrested coming to the Courts of Justice to answer a Writ, the Offender doing it shall be fined for the Contempt: But there has been a Difference made where it is done by the Plaintiff in the Writ, and a Stranger, who it is said shall not be fined. 9 H. 6. 55. 1 Danv. 469. If an Officer of the Court neglects his Duty, and gives not due Attendance; a Clerk of the Peace doth not draw an Indictment ment well in Matter of Form, on Return thereof upon a Certiorari to remove the Indictment into B. R. If a Sheriff, &c. make an insufficient Return of a Habeas Corpus issuing out of B. R. &c. Or if Justices of Peace proceed on an Indictment after a Certiorari issued to remove the Indictment, the Court may set a Fine upon them, 1 Lill. 620. Where a Juror at the Bar will not be sworn, he may be fined. 7 H. 6. 12. And if one of the Jury depart without giving his Verdict; or any of the Jury give their Verdict to the Court before they are all agreed, they may be fined. 8 Rep. 38. 40 Aff. 10. In all Actions quare Vi & Armis, &c. the Defendant shall be fined. 8 Rep. 59. If a Writ abates through the Default of the Plaintiff, he shall be fined: And so if the Plaintiff be nonsuited. 34 Aff. 9. And if in Appeal of Maihem, &c. against several, some are found Guilty, and the Plaintiff prays Judgment against them only, and relinquishes his Suit against the others, he shall be fined for not proceeding against the Rest. 22 Aff. 82. If in an Action a Man denies his own Deed, and this is found against him by Verdict, he shall be fined for his Falsity, and the Trouble to the Jury. 8 Rep. 60. 1 Dann. 471. But where a Person denies a Recovery or other Record, to which he himself is Party, he shall not be fined; for it is not his Act but the Act of the Court, and he does not deny it absolutely, but non habetur tale Recordum. Ibid. All Capiatur Fines are taken away by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 12. Except where a Defendant pleads Non est factum, and it is found against him. 1 Lill. Abr. 621. In Trespass, Assault and Battery, &c. there can be no Capiatur pro Fine entered since the Statute 5 & 6 W. 3. but instead thereof the Plaintiff is to have so much in Costs allowed him, to pay to the King for the Fine; And in B. R. Judgment is entered up without any Notice of the Fine, the Law being altered by this Statute: In C. B. they enter their Judgments nihil de Fine quia remittitur per Stat. 1 Salk. 54. 2 Nels. Abr. 847. To every Fine Imprisonment is incident; and when the Judgment is quod Defendens Capiatur, that is Capiatur quousque finem fecerit. 8 Rep. 59. Where an Offender is to be fined, the usual Judgment is Quod Capiatur, i. e. to be imprisoned till the Fine is paid: But if the Fine is tendered, there ought to be no Imprisonment. 1 Ventr. 116. When a Person is fined to the King, notwithstanding the Body remains in Prison, it is said the King shall be satisfied the Fine out of the Offender's Estate. 4 Leon. v. 393. A Fine may be mitigated in the same Term wherein it was set, it being under the Power of the Court during that Time; but it may not be done afterwards. Raym. 376. And Fines assessed in Court by Judgment upon an Information, cannot be afterwards mitigated. Cro. Car. 251. If a Fine certain is imposed by Statute on any Conviction, the Court cannot mitigate it; but if the Party comes in before the Conviction, and submits himself to the Court, they may assess a less Fine; for he is not convicted, and perhaps never might. 3 Salk. 33. The Court of Exchequer may mitigate a Fine certain, because it is a Court of Equity, and they have a Privy Seal for it. Ibid. A Defendant being indicted for an Assault, confessed it, and submitted to a small Fine; and it was adjudged that in such a Case he may produce Affidavits to prove on the Prosecutor that it was son Assault, and that in Mitigation of the Fine; though this cannot be done after he is found Guilty. 1 Salk. 55. Where a Person is found Guilty of a Misdemeanor upon Indictment, and fined, he cannot move to mitigate the Fine, unless he appear in Person; but one absent may submit to a Fine, if the Clerk in Court will undertake to pay it. 1 Ventr. 209, 270. 1 Salk. 55. 2 Hawk. 446. It is a common Practice in the Court of B. R. to give a Defendant Leave to speak with the Prosecutor, i. e. to make Satisfaction for the Costs of the Prosecution, and also for Damages sustained, that there may be an End of Suits; the Court at the same Time shewing on that Account an Inclination to set a moderate Fine on Behalf of the King. Wood's Inst. 653. And in Cases where Costs are not given by Law, after a Prosecutor has accepted Costs from the Defendant, he cannot aggravate the Fine; because having no Right to demand Costs, if he takes them, it shall be intended by way of Satisfaction of the Wrong. 2 Hawk. P. C. 292. A Joint Award of one Fine against divers Persons, is erroneous; it ought to be several against each Defendant; as otherwise one who hath paid his Part might be continued in Prison till all the others have paid theirs likewise, which would be in Effect to punish him for the Offence of another. 2 Hawk. 446. A Man was fined a great Sum who drank a Health to the pious Memory of a Traitor, that was executed, &c. Raym. 376. 3 Mod. 52. Fines to the King are estreated into the Exchequer.

Fines le Roy, Are all Fines to the King; and under this Head are included Fines for Original Writs. Originals in Trespass on the Case, where the Damages are laid above 40 l. pay a Fine, viz. from 40 l. Damages to 100 Marks, 6 s. 8 d. from 100 Marks to 100 l. the Fine is 10 s. From 100 l. to 200 Marks, 13 s. 4 d. From 200 to 400 Marks, 16 s. 8 d. From 400 Marks to 200 l. it is 1 l. Fine; and so for every 100 Marks more, you pay 6 s. 8 d. and every 100 l. further 10 s. Practif. Attorn. 1 Edit. pag. 132. And Fines are paid for Original Writs in Debt; for every Writ of 40 l. Debt, 6 s. 8 d. and if it be of 100 Marks, 6 s. 8 d. and for every 100 Marks, 6 s. 8 d. &c. Also for every Writ of Plea of Land, if it be not a Writ of Right Patent, which is for the yearly Value of 5 Marks, 6 s. 8 d. and so according to that Rate. 19 Hen. 6. 44. 7 H. 6. 33. *New Nat. First-fruits, (Primitia) Are the Profits after Avoidance, of every Spiritual Living for the first Year, according to the Valuation thereof in the King's Books. These were given in ancient Time to the Pope throughout all Christendom; and were first claimed by him in England of such Foreigners as he bestowed Benefices on here by way of Provision; afterwards they were demanded of the Clerks of all Spiritual Patrons, and at Length of all other Clerks on their Admission to Benefices: But upon the Throwing off the Pope's Supremacy in the Reign of King Hen. 8. they were translated to and vested in the King, as appears by the Stat. 26 H. 8. c. 3. And for the Ordering thereof, there was a Court erected 32 Hen. 8. but dissolved Anno 1. Mar. Though by 1 Eliz. these Profits are reduced again to the Crown, yet the Court was never restored; for all Matters formerly handled therein, were transferred to the Exchequer, within the Survey of which Court they now remain. By the Statute 26 Hen. 8. the Lord Chancellor, &c. is empowered to examine into the Value of First-fruits; and Clergymen entering on their Livings before the same are paid or compounded, are to forfeit double Value. But the 1 Eliz. c. 4. ordains, that if an Incumbent on a Benefice do not live Half a Year, or is ousted before the Year expired, his Executors are to pay only a fourth Part of the First-fruits; and if he lives the Year, and then dies, or be ousted in six Months after, but Half of the First-fruits shall be paid. And by this Statute Livings not above 10 l. per Ann. &c. are discharged from Payment of these Duties: As are also Benefices under and not exceeding 50 l. a Year, by Stat. 5 Ann. c. 24. The 2 Ann. cap. 11. settles upon a Corporation the First-fruits of all Benefices for the Maintenance of the poor Clergy; which is called the Corporation of the Bounty of Q. Anne. See 3 Geo. c. 10.

None shall fish in any Pond or Moat, &c. without the Owner's License, on Pain of three Months Imprisonment. 31 H. 8. cap. 2. And no Person shall take any Fish in any River, without the Consent of the Owner, under the Penalty of 10 s. for the Use of the Poor, and treble Damages to the Party grieved, leviable by Distress of Goods; and for Want of Distress, the Offender is to be committed to the House of Correction for a Month: Also Nets, Angles, &c. of Pochers may be seized, by the Owners of Rivers, or by any Persons, by Warrant from a Justice of Peace, &c. 22 & 23 Car. 2. cap. 25. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 23. The Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 21. was made for the Increase and Preservation of Salmon in Rivers in the Counties of Southampton and Wilts; requiring that no Salmon be taken between the 1st of August and 12th of November, or under Size, &c. And by 1 Geo. c. 18. Salmon taken in the Rivers Severn, Dee, Wye, Were, Ouse, &c. are to be 18 Inches long at least; or the Persons catching them shall forfeit 5 l. And Sea Fish sold must be of the Lengths following, viz. Bret and Turbot 16 Inches, Bril and Pearl 14, Codlin, Bais and Muller 12, Sole, Plaice 8, Flounders 7, Whiting 6 Inches long, &c. on Pain of forfeiting 20 s. to the Poor, and the Fish. Vide the Statute.

As to Right of Fishing, It has been held that where the Lord of a Manor hath the Soil on both Sides, 'tis a good Evidence that he hath the Right of Fishing, and it puts the Proof upon him who claims Liberam Piscariam; but where a River ebbs and flows, and is an Arm of the Sea, there 'tis common to all, and he who claims a Privilege to himself must prove it; for if Trespass is brought for fishing there, the Defendant may justify that the Place where is Brachium Maris, in quo unusquisque subditus Domini Regis habet & habere debet Liberam Piscariam: In the Severn, the Soil belongs to the Owners of the Land on each Side, and the Soil of the River Thames, is in the King, &c. but the Fishing is common to all. 1 Mod. 105. He who is Owner of the Soil of a private River, hath Separalis Piscaria; and he that hath Libera Piscaria, hath a Property in the Fish, and may bring a possessory Action for them; but Communis Piscaria is like the Case of all other Commons. 2 Salk. 637.

Folcmote or Folkmoete, (Sax. Folcgemot, i. e. Conventus Populi) Is compounded of Folk, populus, and Mote or Gemote, convenire; and signified originally as Sommer in his Saxon Dictionary tells us, a general Assembly of the People, to consider of and order Matters of the Common Wealth: Omnes proceres Regni & Milites & Liberi homines universi totius Regni Britannie facere debent in pleno Folcmote Fidelitatem Domino Regi, &c. Leg. Edw. Confess. cap. 35. And Sir Henry Spelman says the Folcmote was a Sort of annual Parliament, or Convention of the Bishops, Thanes, Aldermen and Freemen, upon every May-day yearly; where the Laymen were sworn to defend one another, and to the King, and to preserve the Laws of the Kingdom, and then consulted of the Common Safety. But Dr. Brady infers from the Laws of our Saxon Kings, that it was an inferior Court, held before the King's Reve or Steward, every Month to do Folk Right, or compose smaller Differences, from whence there lay Appeal to the Superior Courts. Brady's Gloss. pag. 48. Manwood mentions Folkmoete as a Court holden in London, wherein all the Folk and People of the City did complain of the Mayor and Aldermen, for Misgovernment within the said City: And this Word is still in Use among the Londoners; and denotes Celebrem ex tota Civitate conventum. Stow's Survey. According to Kennet, the Folkmoete was a Common Council of all the Inhabitants of a City, Town or Borough, convened often by Sound of Bell to the Mote-hall or House; or it was applied to a larger Congress of all the Freemen within a County, called the Shire-mote, where formerly all Knights and military Tenants did Fealty to the King, and elected the annual Sheriff on the 1st of October, till this popular Election to avoid Tumults and Riots devolved to the King's Nomination, Anno 1315. 3 Ed. 1. After which

which the City Folk-mote was swallowed up in a select Committee or Common Council; and the County Folk-mote, in the Sheriff's Tourn and Assises. 3. The Word Folk-mote was used for any Kind of Popular or Publick Meeting; as of all the Tenants at the Court-Leet or Court-Baron, in which Signification it was of a less Extent. — *Paroch. Force, (Vis) Is most commonly applied in pejorem partem, the evil Part, and signifies any unlawful Violence. It is defined by West to be an Offence, by which Violence is used to Things or Persons; and he divides it into Simple and Compound; Simple Force is that which is so committed that it hath no other Crime accompanying it; as if one by Force do only enter into another Man's Possession, without doing any other unlawful Act: Mix'd or Compound Force is when some other Violence is committed with such a Fact, which of it self alone is criminal; as where any one by Force enters into another Man's House, and kills a Man, or ravishes a Woman, &c. And he makes several other Divisions of this Head; as True Force, and Force after a Sort, &c. West Symbol. par. 2. Sect. 65. By the Law any Person may enter a Tavern, a Landlord may enter his Tenant's House to view Repairs, &c. But if he that enters a Tavern, commits any Force or Violence, or he that enters to view Repairs, breaketh the House, &c. it shall be intended that they entered for that Purpose. 8 Rep. 146. Forcible Entry, (Ingressus manu forti factus) Is a violent actual Entry into Houses or Lands: And Forcible Detainer is a With-holding by Violence, and with strong Hand, of the Possession of Land, &c. whereby he which hath Right of Entry is barred or hindered. Writ of Forcible Entry lies where one is seised of a Freehold, and is put out thereof with Force; or if he is disseised peaceably, and afterwards the Disseisor doth hold and detain the same by Force. F. N. B. 54. When one or more Persons armed with unusual Weapons, violently enter into the House or Land of another; or where they do not enter violently, if they forcibly put another out of his Possession: If one enter another's House, without his Consent, although the Door be open, &c. These are Forcible Entries punishable by Law. 1 Inst. 257. So when a Tenant keeps Possession of the Land at the End of his Term against the Landlord, it is a Forcible Detainer. Cro. Jac. 199. And if a Lessee takes a new Lease of another Person, whom he conceives to have better Title, and at the End of the Term keeps Possession against his own Landlord, this is a Forcible Detainer. Ibid. Also Persons continuing in Possession of a defeazible Estate, after the Title is defeated, are punishable for Forcible Entry; for continuing in Possession afterwards, amounts in Law to a new Entry. 1 Inst. 256, 257. And an Infant, or Feme Covert may be Guilty of Forcible Entry within the Statutes, in Respect of Violence committed by them in Person; but not in Respect of what is done by others at their Command, their Commands being void. 1 Inst. 357. Indictment of Forcible Entry lies not only for Lands, but for Tithes; and also for Rents: But not against a Lord entring a Common with Force, for which the Commoner may not indict him, because it is his own Land. Cro. Car. 201, 486. And no Man can be Guilty of Forcible Entry, for entring with Violence into Lands or Houses in his own sole Possession, at the Time of Entry; as by breaking open Doors, &c. of his House, detained from him by one who has the bare Custody of it: But Jointenants, or Tenants in Common, may be Guilty of Forcible Entry, and holding out their Companions. 1 Hawk. P. C. 147. A Person is not Guilty of a Forcible Detainer, by barely refusing to go out of a House, and continuing therein in Despight of another. Ibid. 146. And no Words alone can make a Forcible Entry, although violent and threatening, without Force used by the Party. 1 Lill. Abr. 514. 1 Hawk. 145. At Common Law, any one who had a Right of Entry into Lands, &c. might regain Possession thereof by Force; but this Liberty being much abused, to the Breach of the publick Peace, it was found necessary that it should be restrained by Statute: At this Day he who is wrongfully dispossessed of Goods, may justify the Retaking them by Force. Lamb. 135. Cromp. 70. Kelw. 92. By Statutes, none shall enter into any Lands or Tenements, but where Entry is given by Law, and in a peaceable Manner, though they have Title of Entry, on Pain of Imprisonment, &c. And when a Forcible Entry is committed, Justices of Peace are empowered to view the Place, and enquire of the Force by a Jury summoned by the Sheriff of the County; and cause the Tenements to be seised and restored, and imprison the Offenders till they pay a Fine. 5 R. 2. cap. 7. 15 R. 2. cap. 2. 8 H. 6. c. 9. The Justices of Peace are not to enquire into the Title of either Party : And there shall be no Restitution upon an Indictment of Forcible Entry or Detainer, where the Defendant hath been in quiet Possession for three Years together without Interruption, next before the Day of the Indictment found, and his Estate in the Land not ended ; which may be alledged in Stay of Restitution, and Restitution is to be staid till that be tried, if the other will traverse the same, &c. Dalt. 312. Stat. 31 Eliz. cap. 11. If a Disseisee within three Years makes a lawful Claim, this is an Interruption of the Possession of the Disseisor. H. P. C. 139. Though it has been adjudged, that it is not the Title of the Possessor, but the Possession for three Years, which is material. Sid. 149. Since the Statute 5 R. 2. if W. R. is seised of Lands, and L. R. having good Right to enter, doth accordingly enter Manu forti, he may be indicted notwithstanding his Right, &c. 3 Salk. 170. For a Forcible Detainer only 'tis said there is no Restitution, the Plaintiff never having been in Possession ; but there may be Restitution where Forcible Entry and Detainer are found. 1 Ventr. 23. Sid. 97, 99. The Justices on Forcible Detainer may punish the Force upon View, and fine and imprison the Offenders ; but cannot meddle with the Possession. Sid. 156. And it hath been held, that in Forcible Entry and Detainer, the Jury are to find all or none ; and not the Detainer, without the Forcible Entry. 1 Ventr. 25. A Reversioner cannot bring Action of Forcible Entry, because he cannot be expelled, though he may be disseised. Dyer 141. And the Words in the Writ to maintain the Action are that the Defendant Expulit & Disseisvit, &c. yet it is said that every Disseisin implies an Expulsion in Forcible Entry. 2 Cro. 31. The Possession of the Termor is the Possession of him in Reversion : And where a Lessee for Years is put out of Possession by Force, Restitution must be to him in Reversion, and not the Lessee ; and then his Lessee may re-enter. 1 Leon. 327. A Termor may say that he was expelled, and his Landlord in Reversion disseised ; or rather that the Tenant of the Freehold is disseised, and he the Lessee for Years expelled. 4 Mod. 248. 2 Nelf. Abr. 869. A Copyholder cannot be disseised, because he hath no Freehold in his Estate ; but he may be expelled : And a Copyhold Tenant may be restored, where he is expelled wrongfully ; but if the Indictment be only of Disseisin, as he may not be disseised, there can be no Restitution but at the Prayer of him that hath the Freehold. Yelv. 81. 2 Cro. 41. Indictment for Forcible Entry must be laid of Libetum Tenementum, &c. to have Restitution by the Statute 15 R. 2, &c. 2 Cro. 157. Though by 21 Jac. 1. cap. 15. Justices of Peace may give like Restitution of Possession to Tenants for Years, Tenant by Elegit, Statute-staple, &c. and Copyholders, as to Freeholders. Justices of Peace only have Power to enquire of Forcible Entry : But an Indictment of Forcible Entry may be removed from before Justices of Peace into the Court of B. R. coram Rege, which Court may award Restitution. 11 Rep. 65. A Record of Justices of Peace of Forcible Entry, is not traversable ; but the Entry and Force, &c. may be traversed in Writing, and the Justices may summon a Jury for Trial of the Traverse. 1 Salk. 353. The Finding of the Force being in Nature of a Presentment by the Jury, is traversable ; and if the Justices of Peace refuse the Traverse, and grant Restitution, on removing the Indictment into B. R. there the Traverse may be tried ; and on a Verdict found for the Party, &c. a Re-restitution shall be granted. Sid. 287. 2 Salk. 588. If no Force is found at a Trial thereof before Justices, Restitution is not to be granted ; nor shall it be had till the Force is tried ; or ought the Justices to make it in the Absence of the Defendant, without calling him to Answer. 1 Hawk. P. C. 154. No other Justices of Peace but those before whom the Indictment was found, may either at Sessions or out of it award Restitution ; the same Justices may do it in Person, or make a Precept to the Sheriff to do it, who may raise the Power of the County to assist him in executing the same. 1 Hawk. 152. And the same Justices of Peace may also supersede the Restitution, before it is executed ; on Insufficiency found in the Indictment, &c. But no other Justices, except of the Court of B. R. A Certiorari from B. R. is a Superfedeas to the Restitution ; and the Justices of B. R. may set aside the Restitution after executed, if it be against Law, or irregularly obtained, &c. 1 Salk. 154. If Justices of Peace exceed their Authority, Information may be brought against them in B. R. A Conviction for Forcible Entry, before a Fine is set, may be quashed on Motion ; but after a Fine is set, it may not ; the Defendant must bring Writ of Error. 2 Salk. 450. Indictments for Forcible Entry must set forth that the Entry was Manu forti, to distinguish this Offence from other Trespases Vi & Armis ; and there are many Niceties to be observed in drawing the Indictment, otherwise it will be quashed. 1 Cro. 461. Dalt. 298. There must be Certainty in this Indictment ; and no Repugnancy, which is an incurable Fault. An Indictment of Forcible Entry was quashed, for that it did not set forth the Estate of the Party : So where the Defendant had not been in Possession peaceably three Years before the Indictment, without saying before the Indictment found, &c. And Force shall not be intended when the Judgment is generally laid, for it must be always expressed. 2 Nelf. Abr. 867, 869. If a Plaintiff proceeds not criminally by Indictment for Forcible Entry, but commences a Civil Action on the Case, which he may do on the Statute of Hen. 6. the Defendant is to plead Not guilty, or may plead any special Matter, and traverse the Force ; and the Plaintiff in his Replication must answer the special Matter, and not the Traverse ; and if it be found against the Defendant, he is convicted of the Force of Course ; whereupon the Plaintiff shall recover treble Damages and Costs. 3 Salk. 169. Though Forcible Entry is punishable either by Indictment or Action ; the Action is seldom brought, but the Indictment often.

Forcible Marriage, Of a Woman of Estate is Felony; for by the Stat. 3 Hen. 7. cap. 2. it is enacted, That if any Persons shall take away any Woman having Lands or Goods, or that is Heir apparent to her Ancestor, by Force and against her Will, and marry or defile her, the Takers, Procurers, Abettors, and Receivers of the Woman taken away against her Will, and knowing the same, shall be deemed principal Felons: But as to Procurers and Accessaries, they are to be before the Offence committed, to be excluded the Benefit of Clergy, by 39 El. c. 9. The Indictment on the Stat. 3 H. 7. is expressly to set forth, that the Woman taken away had Lands or Goods, or was Heir apparent, and also that she was married or defiled, because no other Case is within the Statute; and it ought to alledge that the Taking was for Lucre: It is no Excuse that the Woman at first was taken away with her Consent; for if she afterwards refuse to continue with the Offender, and be forced against her Will, she may from that Time properly be said to be taken against her Will: And it is not material whether a Woman so taken away, be at last married or defiled with her own Consent or not, if she were under the Force at the Time, the Offender being in both Cases equally within the Words of the Act. 3 Inst. 61. H. P. C. 119. 1 Hawk. P. C. 109, 110. Those Persons who after the Fact receive the Offender, are but Accessaries after the Offence, according to the Rules of the Common Law: And those that are only Privy to the Marriage, but not Parties to the Forcible Taking away, are not within the Act. H. P. C. 119. A Man may be indicted for taking away a Woman by Force in another County; for the Continuing of the Force in any County amounts to a Forcible Taking there. Ibid. Taking away any Woman Child, under the Age of sixteen Years and unmarried, out of the Custody and against the Will of the Father, Guardian, &c. the Offender shall suffer Fine and Imprisonment. Stat. 4 & 5 P. & M. cap. 8. This is a Force against the Parents: And an Information will lie for seducing a young Man or Woman from their Parents, against their Consents, in order to marry them, &c. 3 Cro. 557. Raym. 473.

FORD, (Forda) A shallow Place in a River, made so by damming or penning up the Water. Mon. Ang. Tom. 1. pag. 657.

FORDOL, (From the Sax. Fore, before, and dola a Part or Portion) Signifies a But or Head-band, shooting upon other Bounds. Cordet.

Foretheapum, Praemption, from the Sax. Fore, ante, and Ceapean, i. e. Nundinari, Emere. — Et non licebat iis aliquod Foretheapum facere Burghmannis, & dare Theolonium suum. Chron. Brompton. Col. 897, 898. and LL. Æthelredi, c. 23.

Foreclosed, Shut out, or excluded; as the Barring the Equity of Redemption on Mortgages, &c. 2 Inst. 298.

Foregoers. The King's Purveyors were so called, from their going before to provide for his Household. 36 Ed. 3. 5.

Foreign, (Fr. Forain, Lat. Forinsecus, Extraneus) Strange or outlandish, of another Country; and in our Law, is used adjectively, being joined with divers Substantives in several Senses. Kitch. 126.

Foreign Attachment, Is an Attachment of Foreigners Goods, found within a Liberty or City, for the Satisfaction of some Citizen, to whom the Foreigner is indebted; or of Money in the Hands of another Person, due to him against whom an Action of Debt is brought, &c. See Attachment.

Foreign Court, At Lemster (Anciently called Leominster) There is the Borough and the Foreign Court; which last is within the Jurisdiction of the Manor, but not within the Liberty of the Bailiff of the Borough: So there is a Foreign Court of the Honour of Gloucester. Clans. 8 Ed. 2. Foreign bought and sold is a Custom within the City of London, which being found prejudicial to the Sellers of Cattle in Smithfield, it was enacted 22 & 23 Car. 2. that as well Strangers, as Freemen may buy and sell any Cattle there.

Foreign Kingdom, Is a Kingdom under the Dominion of a Foreign Prince; so that Ireland, or any other Place, subject to the Crown of England, cannot with us be called Foreign; though to some Purposes they are distinct from the Realm of England. If two of the King's Subjects fight in a Foreign Kingdom, and one of them is killed, it cannot be tried here by the Common Law; but it may be tried and determined by the Constable and Marshal, according to the Civil Law; or the Fact may be examined by the Privy Council, and tried by Commissioners appointed by the King in any County of England, by Stat. 3 Inst. 48. 33 H. 8. One Hutchinson killed Mr. Colson abroad in Portugal, for which he was tried there and acquitted, the Exemplification of which Acquittal he produced under the Great Seal of that Kingdom; and the King being willing he should be tried here, referred it to the Judges, who all agreed, that the Party being already acquitted by the Laws of Portugal, could not be tried again for the same Fact here. 3 Keb. 785. If a Stranger of Holland, or any Foreign King-

Kingdom, buys Goods at London, and gives a Note under his Hand for Payment, and then goes away privately into Holland; the Seller may have a Certificate from the Lord Mayor, on Proof of Sale and Delivery of the Goods; upon which the People of Holland will execute a legal Process on the Party. 4 Inst. 38. Also at the Instance of an Ambassador or Consul, such a Person of England, or any Criminal against the Laws here, may be sent from a Foreign Kingdom hither.

Foreign Plea, Is a Plea in Objection to a Judge, where he is refused as incompetent to try the Matter in Question, because it arises out of his Jurisdiction. Kitch. 75. Stat. 4 H. 8. cap. 2. And if a Plea of issuable Matter is alledged in a different County from that wherein the Party is indicted or appealed; by the Common Law, such Pleas can only be tried by Juries returned from the Counties wherein they are alledged. 2 Hawk. P. C. 404. But by the Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 14. all Foreign Pleas triable by the County, upon any Indictment for Petit Treason, Murder or Felony, shall be forthwith tried without any Delay, before the same Justices afore whom the Party shall be arraigned, and by the Jurors of the same County where he is arraigned, notwithstanding the Matter of the Pleas are alledged to be in any other County or Counties: Though as this Statute extends not to Treason, nor Appeals, it is said a Foreign Issue therein must still be tried by the Jury of the County wherein alledged. 3 Inst. 17. H. P. C. 255. In a Foreign Plea in a Civil Action, the Defendant ought to plead to that Place where the Plaintiff alleges the Matter to be done in his Declaration; and the Defendant may plead a Foreign Plea where a Matter is transitory, or not transitory; but in the last Case he must swear to it. Sid. 234. 2 Nels. 871. When a Foreign Plea is pleaded, the Court generally makes the Defendant put it in upon Oath, that it is true; or will enter up Judgment for Want of a Plea: But if a Plea in B. R. &c. be only to the Jurisdiction of the Court, or a Plea of Privilege, &c. if they are not put in on Oath, Judgment shall not be signed for Want thereof. 5 Mod. 335. Foreign Answer is such an Answer as is not triable in the County where made: And Foreign Matter is that Matter which is done in another County, &c.

Foreign Service, Is that whereby a man Lord holds of another, without the Compass of his own Fee: Or that which a Tenant performs either to his own Lord, or to the Lord paramount, out of the Fee. Kitch. 299. Of these Services, Bracton say thus: Item sunt quedam servitia, quæ dicuntur Forinfeca, quævis sunt in Charta de Feoffamento expressa & nominata; & quæ ideo dici possunt Forinfeca, quia pertinent ad Dominum Regem, & non ad Dominum Capitalem, &c. Quandoque enim nominantur Forinfeca, large sumpto vocabulo, quoad servitium Domini Regis, quandoque scutagium, quandoque servitium Domini Regis, & ideo Forinfecum dici potest, quia sit & capitur Foris, sive extra servitium quod sit Domino Capitali. Bract. lib. 2. c. 16. And Foreign Service seems to be Knights-Service, or Escuage uncertain. Perkin, 650. — Salvo Forinfeco Servitio. Mon. Ang. Tom. 2. pag. 637.

Foreigners, Though made Denizens, or naturalized here, are disabled to bear Offices in the Government, to be of the Privy Council, Members of Parliament, &c. by the Acts of Settlement of the Crown. 12 W. 3. cap. 2. 1 Geo. cap. 4.

Forejudger, (Forjudicatio) A Judgment whereby a Person is deprived or put by the Thing in Question. Bract. lib. 4. To be forejudged the Court is when an Officer or Attorney of any Court is expelled the same for some Offence; or for not appearing to an Action, on a Bill filed against him, &c. And in the latter Case, he is not to be admitted to practise in the Court, till he appears. 2 Hen. 4. cap. 8. If an Attorney privileged in C. B. is sued, after a Bill filed against him, he is to be called in Court, and a Rule must be made to Plead; and if upon that Rule, he doth not appear, he shall be forejudged the Court; after he is forejudged, but not before, he may be arrested as another Person, &c. Practif. Solic. 322. He shall lose his Office, and be forejudged the Court. — Forjudicare interdum est male Judicare. Spelm.

Forechoke, (Develictum) Is of the same Meaning with Forsaken in modern Language: In one of our Statutes, it is specially used for Lands or Tenements seised by a Lord, for Want of Services performed by the Tenant, and quietly held by such Lord beyond a Year and a Day; now the Tenant, who seeing his Land taken into the Hands of the Lord, and possessed so long, and not pursuing the Course appointed by Law to recover it, doth in Presumption of Law disavow or forsake all the Right he hath to the same; and then such Lands shall be called Forechoke. Stat. 10 Ed. 2. c. 1.

Forest, (Foresta, Saltus) Signifies a great or vast Wood; Locus Sylvæstris & Saluosus. Our Law-Writers define it thus, Foresta est Locus ubi fera inhabitant vel includuntur; others say, it is called Foresta, quasi ferarum statio, vel tuta mansio ferarum. Manwood in his Forest Laws gives this particular Definition of it: A Forest is a certain Territory or Circuit of woody Grounds and Pastures, known in its Bounds, and privileged, for the peaceable Being and Abiding of wild Beasts, and Fowls of Forest, Chase and Warren, to be under the King's Protection for his princely Delight; replenished with Beasts of Venary or Chase, and great Coverts of Vert for Succour of the said Beasts; for Preservation whereof, there are particular Laws, Privileges and Officers belonging thereunto. Manw. part. 2. cap. 1. Forests are of that Antiquity in England, that (except the New Forest in Hampshire, erected by William called the Conqueror, and Hampton-Court erected by King Hen. 8.) it is said there is no Record or History doth make any certain Mention of their Erections and Beginnings; though they are mentioned by several Writers, and in divers of our Laws and Statutes. 4 Inst. 319. Our ancient Historians tell us, that New Forest was raised by the Destruction of twenty-two Parish Churches, and many Villages, Chapels and Manors, for the Space of thirty Miles together; which was attended with divers Judgments on the Posterity of King Wil. 1. who erected it; for William Rufus was there shot with an Arrow, and before him Richard the Brother of Hen. 1. was there killed; and Henry Nephew to Robert, the eldest Son of the Conqueror, did hang by the Hair of the Head in the Boughs of the Forest like unto Absalom. Blount. Besides the New Forest, there are sixty-eight other Forests in England; thirteen Chases, and more than seven hundred Parks: The four principal Forests, are New Forest

Forest on the Sea, Shirewood Forest on the Trent, Dean Forest on the Severn, and Windsor Forest on the Thames. The Way of making a Forest is thus: Certain Commissioners are appointed under the Great Seal of England, who view the Ground intended for a Forest, and fence it round with Metes and Bounds; which being returned into the Chancery, the King causeth it to be proclaimed throughout the County where the Land lieth, that it is a Forest, and to be governed by the Laws of the Forest, and prohibits all Persons from hunting there without his Leave; and then he appointeth Officers fit for the Preservation of the Vert and Venison, and so it becomes a Forest by Matter of Record. Manw. cap. 2. Tho' the King may erect a Forest on his own Ground and Wastes; he may not do it in the Ground of other Persons, without their Consents; and Agreements with them for that Purpose, ought to be confirmed by Parliament. 4 Inst. 300. Proof of a Forest appears by Matter of Record; as by the Eyres of the Justices of the Forest, other Courts, and Officers of Forests, &c. and not by the Name in Grants. 12 Rep. 22. As Parks are enclosed with Wall, Pale, &c. so Forests and Chafes are inclosed by Metes and Bounds; such as Rivers, Highways, Hills, &c. which are an Inclosure in Law; and without which there cannot be a Forest. 4 Inst. 317. And in the Eye of the Law, the Boundaries of a Forest go round about as it were a Brick Wall, directly in a right Line the one from the other; and they are known either by Matter of Record, or Prescription. Ibid. Bounds of Forests may be ascertained by Commission from the Lord Chancellor, and Commissioners, Sheriffs, Officers of Forests, &c. are empowered to make Inquests thereof. Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 1. c. 16. Also the Boundaries of Forests are reckoned a Part of the Forest; for if any Person kill or hunt any of the King's Deer in any Highway, River, or other inclusive Boundary of a Forest, he is as great an Offender as if he had killed or hunted Deer within the Forest it self. 4 Inst. 318. By the Grant of a Forest, the Game of the Forest does pass; and Beasts of Forest are the Hart, Hind, Buck, Doe, Boar, Wolf, Fox, Hare, &c. The Seasons for Hunting whereof are as follow, viz. That of the Hart and Buck, begins at the Feast of St. John Baptist, and ends at Holy-rood Day; of the Hind and Doe, begins at Holy-rood, and continues till Candlemas; of the Boar, from Christmas to Candlemas; of the Fox, begins at Christmas, and continues till Lady-day; of the Hare, at Michaelmas, and lasts till Candlemas. Dyer 169. 4 Inst. 316. Not only Game, &c. are incident to a Forest, but also a Forest hath divers special Properties. 1. A Forest truly and strictly taken cannot be in the Hands of any but the King; for none but the King hath Power to grant Commission to be a Justice in Eyre of the Forest: But if the King grants a Forest to a Subject, and granteth farther that upon Request made in Chancery, he and his Heirs shall have Justices of the Forest, then the Subject hath a Forest in Law. 4 Inst. 314. Cro. Jac. 155. The second Property of a Forest is the Courts; as the Justice-Seat, the Swainmote, and Court of Attachment. The third Property is the Officers belonging to it; as first the Justices of the Forest, the Warden or Warder, the Verderors, Foresters, Aqisters, Regarders, Keepers, Bailiffs, Beadles, &c. Tho' as to the Courts, the most especial Court of a Forest is the Swainmote, which is no less incident to it, than a Court of Pie-powders to a Fair: And if this fail, there is nothing remaining of a Forest, but it is turned into the Nature of a Chafe. Manw. cap. 21. Crompt. Jur. 146. There is but one Chief Justice of the Forests on this Side Trent, and he is named Justiciarius Itinerans Forestarum, &c. citra Trentam; and there is another Capitalis Justiciarius, and he is Justiciarius Itinerans omnium Forestarum ultra Trentam, &c. who is a Person of greater Dignity, than Knowledge in the Laws of the Forest; and therefore when Justice-Seats are held, there are associated to them such as the King shall appoint, who together with him determine Omnia placita foresta, &c. 4 Inst. 315. A Justice in Eyre cannot grant Licence to fell any Timber, unless it be sedente Curia, or after a Writ of Ad quod Damnum: And it hath been resolved by all the Judges, that though Justices in Eyre, and the King's Officers within his Forests, have Charge of Venison, and of Vert or green Hue, for the Maintenance of the King's Game, and all Manner of Trees for Covert, Bruise and Pannage; yet when Timber of the Forest is sold, it must be cut and taken by Power under the Great Seal or the Exchequer Seal, by View of the Foresters, that it may not be had in Places inconvenient for the Game: And the Justice in Eyre, or any of the King's Officers in the Forest, cannot sell or dispose of any Wood within the Forest without Commission; so that the Exchequer and the Officers of the Forest have Divisum Imperium, the one for the Profit of the King, the other for his Pleasure. 3d Vol. Read. on Stat. pag. 304, 305. Also no Officer of the Forest can claim Windfalls, or Dotard Trees, for their Perquisites, because they were once Parcel of the King's Inheritance; but they ought to be sold by Commission, for the King's best Benefit. Ibid. If any Officers cut down Wood, not necessary for Browse, &c. they forfeit their Offices. 9 Rep. 50. The Lord of a Forest may by his Officers enter into any Man's Wood within the Regard of the Forest, and cut down Browse-Wood for the Deer in Winter. 2. par. Game Law, p. 46. A Prescription for a Person to take and cut down Timber-trees in a Forest, without View of the Forester, it is said may be good: But of this Quere, without Allowance of a former Eyre, &c. If a Man hath a Wood in a Forest, and hath no such Prescription, the Law will allow him to fell it, so as he doth not prejudice the Game, but leave sufficient Vert; but it ought to be by Writ of Ad quod Damnum, &c. 4 Inst. Cro. Jac. 155. And every Person in his own Wood in a Forest, may take House-bote and Hay-bote, by View of the Forester; and so may Freeholders by Prescription, Copyholders by Custom, &c. 1 Ed. 3. cap. 2. The Wood taken by View of the Forester, ought to be presented at the next Court of Attachment, that it was by View, and may appear of Record. Fences, &c. in Forests and Chafes, must be with low Hedges; and they may be destroyed, though of forty Years Continuance, if they were not before. Cro. Jac. 156. He whose Wood is in Danger of being spoiled, for Want of repairing Fences by another, ought to request the Party to make good the Hedges; and if he refuse, then he must do it himself, and have Action on the Case against the other that should have done it. 1 Jones 277. A Person may have Action at Common Law, for a Trespass in a Forest, as to Wood, &c. to recover his Right. Sid. 296. The Court of Justice in Eyre may proceed upon the Presentments or Verdicts dicts in the Swainmote, &c. And Presentments and Convictions of the Court of Attachement and Swainmote, must be delivered to the Lord Chief Justice in Eyre, at the next Court of Justice-Seat, &c. where Judgment is to be given: And the Plea of the Forest runs thus; Presentatio per Forestarios, & Convictio per Viridarios, &c. The Court of Attachement, or Woodmote in Forests, is kept every forty Days; at which the Foresters bring in the Attachments de viridi & venatione, and the Presentments thereof, and the Verderors do receive the same, and inrol them; but this Court can only enquire, and not convict. 4 Inst. 289. The Court of Swainmote is holden before the Verderors, as Judges, by the Steward of the Swainmote, thrice in the Year: The Freeholders within the Forest, are to appear at this Court, to make Inquests and Juries; and this Court may enquire de superoperatione Forestariorum & aliorum Ministrorum Forestæ & de eorum Oppressionibus populo nostro illatis: It may enquire of Offences, and convict also; but not give Judgment. Ibid. The Court of the Chief Justice in Eyre, or Justice-Seat, is a Court of Record, and hath Authority to hear and determine all Trespases, Pleas and Causés of the Forest, &c. within the Forest, as well concerning Vert and Venison, as other Causés whatsoever; and this Court cannot be kept oftner than every third Year. As before other Justices in Eyre, it must be summoned forty Days at least before the Sitting thereof; and one Writ of Summons is to be directed to the Sheriff of the County, and another Writ Custodi Forestæ Domini Regis vel ejus locum tenenti, &c. Which Writ of Summons consists of two Parts; first, to summon all the Officers of the Forest, and that they bring with them all Records, &c. Secondly, all Persons which claim any Liberties or Franchises within the Forest, and to shew how they claim the same: If there be erroneous Judgment at the Justice-Seat, the Record may be removed by Writ of Error into B. R. 4 Inst. 291. The Court of Regard, or Survey of Dogs, is holden likewise every third Year, for Expedition or Lawing of Dogs; by cutting off to the Skin three Claws of the Forefeet, to prevent their running at and killing of Deer. By Statute, three Courts of Swainmote are to be held for Forests in the Year; one fifteen Days before Michaelmas, another about Martinmas, and the third fifteen Days before Midsummer: And Presentments of Trespases of Green Hue, and hunting in Forests, must be made at the next Swainmote by Foresters, &c. Also no Officer of the Forest shall surcharge the Forest, on Pain of Imprisonment by the Justices of the Forest. Charta de Foresta. 9 Hen. 3. cap. 1. Ordinatio de Foresta 24 Ed. 1. Justices of Forests, &c. may make Deputies. 32 H. 8. cap. 35. The Chief Warden of the Forest is a great Officer, next to the Justice of the Forest, to bail and discharge Offenders; but he is no judicial Officer: And the Constable of the Castle where a Forest is, by the Forest Law is Chief Warden of the Forest, as of Windsor-Castle, &c. A Verderer is a judicial Officer of the Forest, and chosen in full County, by the King's Writ: His Office is to observe and keep the Assises or Laws of the Forest, and view, receive and inrol the Attachments and Presentments of all Trespases of the Forest, of Vert and Venison, and to do equal Right and Justice to the People: The Verderors are the Chief Judges of the Swainmote Court; although the Chief

Warden, or his Deputy, usually sits there. 4 Inst. 292. The Regarder is to make Regard of the Forest, and to view and enquire of Offences, Concealments, Defaults of Foresters, &c. Before any Justice-Seat is holden, the Regarders of the Forest must make their Regard, and go through and view the whole Forest, &c. They are ministerial Officers, constituted by Letters Patent of the King, or chosen by Writ to the Sheriff. 4 Inst. 291. A Forester is in legal Understanding a sworn Officer ministerial of the Forest, and is to watch over the Vert and Venison, and to make Attachments and true Presentments of all manner of Trespases done within the Forest: A Forester is also taken for a Woodward: This Officer is made by Letters Patent, and 'tis said the Office may be granted in Fee or for Life. 4 Inst. 293. Every Forester when he is called at a Court of Justice-Seat, ought upon his Knees to deliver his Horn to the Chief Justice in Eyre; so every Woodward ought to present his Hatchet to my Lord. A Riding Forester is to lead the King in his Hunting. 1 Jones 277. The Office of Forester, &c. though it be a Fee-simple, cannot be granted or assigned over, without the King's Licence. 4 Inst. 316. If a Forester by Patent for Life, is made Justice of the same Forest pro hac vice, the Forestership is become void; for these Offices are incompatible, as the Forester is under the Correction of the Justice, and he cannot judge himself. 4 Inst. 310. An Agister's Office is to attend upon the King's Woods and Lands in a Forest, receive and take in Cattle, &c. by Agistment, that is to depasture within the Forest, or to feed upon the Pawnage, &c. And this Officer is constituted by Letters Patent. 4 Inst. 293. Persons inhabiting in the Forest, may have Common of Herbage for Beasts commonable within the Forest; but by the Forest Law, Sheep are not commonable there, because they bite so close that they destroy the Vert; and yet it has been held, that Sheep may be commonable in Forests by Prescription. 3 Bulst. 213. There may be a Prescription for Common in a Forest at all Times in the Year; though it was formerly by the Opinion of our Judges, that the Fence-month should be excepted. 3 Lev. 127. A Forest may be disafforested and laid open; but Right of Common shall remain. Poph. 93. He that hath a Grant of the Herbage or Pawnage of a Park, Forest, &c. cannot take any Herbage or Pawnage, but of the Surplusage over and above a competent and sufficient Pasture and Feeding for the Game; and if there be no Surplusage, he that hath the Herbage and Pawnage, cannot put in any Beasts; if he doth, they may be driven out. 3 Vol. Read. on Stat. 305. None may gather Nuts in the Forest, without Warrant. A Ranger of a Forest is one whose Business it is to recharge the wild Beasts from the Purlicus into the Forest, and to present Offences within the Purlicu, and the Forest, &c. And though he is not properly an Officer in the Forest, yet he is a considerable Officer of and belonging to it. The Beadle is a Forest Officer, that warns all the Courts of the Forest, and executes Process, makes all Proclamations, &c. 4 Inst. 313. There are also Keepers or Bailiffs of Walks in Forests and Châtes, which are subordinate to the Verderors, &c. And these Officers cannot be sworn on any Inquests or Juries out of the Forest. If any Man hunt Beasts within a Forest, although they are not Beasts of the Forest, they are punishable by the Forest Laws; because all hunting there, without Warrant, is unlawful. 4 Inst. 314. If Deer be hunted in a Forest, and afterwards by hunting it is driven out of the Forest, and the Forester follows the Chase, and the Owner of the Ground where driven kills the Deer there; yet the Forester may enter into the Lands and retake the Deer: For Property in the Deer is in this Case by Pursuit. 2 Leon. 201. He that hath any manner of License to hunt in a Forest, Chase, Park, &c. must take heed that he do not abuse his License, or exceed his Authority; for if he do, he shall be accounted a Trespasser ab initio, and be punished for that Fact as if he had no License at all. Manw. 280, 288. Every Lord of Parliament, sent for by the King, may in coming and returning kill a Deer or two in the King's Forest or Chase through which he passes; but it must not be done privily, without the View of the Forester if present; or if absent by causing one to blow a Horn, because otherwise he may be a Trespasser, and seem to steal the Deer. Chart. Forest. c. 11. 4 Inst. 308. Lex Foresta is a private Law, and must be pleaded. 2 Leon. 209. But it hath been observed, that the Laws of the Forest are established by Act of Parliament, and for the most Part contained in Charta de Foresta. 9 H. 3. and 34 Ed. 1. By the Law of the Forest, Receivers of Trespassers in hunting or killing of Deer, knowing them to be such, or any of the King's Venison, are principal Trespassers; tho' the Trespass was not done to their Use or Benefit, as the Common Law requires; by which the Agreement subsequent amounts to a Commandment: But if the Receipt be out of the Bounds of the Forest, they cannot be punished by the Laws of the Forest, being not within the Forest Jurisdiction, which is local. 4 Inst. 317. If a Trespass be done in a Forest, and the Trespasser dies, it shall be punished after his Death in the Life-time of the Heir, contrary to the Common Law. Hue and Cry may be made by the Forest Law for Trespass, as to Venison; tho' it cannot be pursued but only within the Bounds of the Forest. 4 Inst. 294. And not pursuing Hue and Cry in the Forest, a Township, &c. may be fined and amerced. In every Trespass and Offence of the Forest in Vert or Venison, the Punishment is to be imprisoned, ransomed, and bound to the good Behaviour of the Forest, which must be executed by a judicial Sentence by the Lord Chief Justice in Eyre of the Forest. If any Forester find any Person hunting without Warrant, he is to arrest his Body, and carry him to Prison; from whence he shall not be delivered without special Warrant from the King, or his Justices of the Forest, &c. But by 1 Ed. 3. c. 8. Persons are bailable if not taken in the manner, as with a Bow ready to shoot, carrying away Deer killed, or smeared with Blood, &c. Tho' if one be not thus taken, he may be attached by his Goods. 4 Inst. 289. The Warden of the Forest shall let such to Mainprise until the Eyre of the Forest; or a Writ may be had out of the Chancery to oblige him to do it, and if he refuse to deliver the Party, a Writ shall go to the Sheriff to attach the Warden, &c. who shall pay treble Damages to the Party grieved, and be committed to Prison, &c. Stat. 1 Ed. 3. No Officer of the Forest shall take or imprison any Person, without due Indictment, or per main ouvre, with his Hand at the Work; nor shall constrain any to make Obligation against the Alliance of the Forest, on Pain to pay double Damages, and to be ransomed at the King's Will.

7 R. 2. c. 4. A Forester shall not be questioned for killing a Trespasser, who (after the Peace cried unto him) will not yield himself; so as it be not done out of some former Malice. 21 Ed. 1. But if Trespassers in a Forest, &c. kill a Man who opposes them, altho' they bore no Malice to the Person killed, it is Murder; because they were upon an unlawful Act, and therefore Malice is implied. Roll. Abr. 548. And if Murder be committed by such Trespassers, all are Principals. Kel. Rep. 87. If a Man comes into a Forest in the Night-time, the Forester cannot justify Bearing him before he make Resistance; but if he resists he may justify the Battery. Persons may be fined for concealing the killing of Deer by others; and so for carrying a Gun, with an Intent to kill the Deer: And he that steals Venison in the Forest, and carries it off on Horseback, the Horse shall be forfeited, unless it be a Stranger's ignorant of the Fact. 2 Par. Game Law, 34, 35. Where Heath is burned in a Forest, the Offenders may be fined: And if any Man cuts down Bushes and Thorns, and carries them away in a Cart, he is fineable; and the Cart and Horses shall be seized by the Forest Laws. Ibid. 36, 46. By Charta de Foresta, no Man shall lose Life or Member for killing the King's Deer in any Forest, &c. but shall be fined, and if he have nothing to pay the Fine, he shall be imprisoned a Year and a Day; and then be delivered, if he can give good Security not to offend for the future, and if not, he shall abjure the Realm: Before this Statute, it was Felony to hunt the King's Deer. 2 Roll. 120. To hunt in a Forest, Park, &c. in the Night disguised, if denied or concealed, upon Examination before a Justice of Peace, it is Felony: But if confessed, it is only Fineable. 1 H. 7. c. 7. By the 9 Geo. c. 22. If any Persons armed and disguised, shall appear in any Forest, Chase, &c. where Deer are kept, and hunt, wound, kill or steal any Deer; or if any Persons shall procure any one to join with them in any such unlawful Act; or shall rescue such an Offender, &c. they shall be guilty of Felony. And the Norman Kings punished those who hunted and killed Deer in Forests with great Severity, inflicting their Punishments in various Ways; as by Hanging, Forfeiture of Goods, and Loss of Limbs, Gelding, and putting out Eyes, &c. W. 1. H. 1. R. 1. &c. Felony committed within a Forest, is enquired of before the Judges of the Common Law, and not by the Justice of the Forest. See Drift of the Forest, Chase and Purlieu.

Forestagium, Seems to signify some Duty payable to the King's Foresters, as Chiminage or such like: Et sint quieti de Thelonio & Passagio, & de Forestagio, &c. Chart. 18 E. 1.

Forestal, (Forestallamentum, from the Sax. Fore, i. e. via & Stal.) Is to intercept on the Highway. Spelman says, it is Via obstructio, vel itineris interceptio; with whom agrees Coke on Litt. fol. 161. And according to Fleta, Forestalling significat obstructionem Via vel Impedimentum transitus & fuga averiorum, &c. lib. 1. cap. 24. In our Law, Forestalling is the Buying or Bargaining for any Corn, Cattle or other Merchandise, by the Way as they come to Fairs or Markets to be sold, before they are brought thither; to the Intent to sell the same again, at a higher and dearer Price. By the 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 14. any buying or contracting for Merchandise, Victuals, or other Thing whatsoever in the Way, coming by Land or Water to any Fair or Market, or to any Port, &c. to be sold, or causing the same to be bought, or dissuading People by Word, Letter, Message or otherwise, from bringing such Things to Market, or persuading them to enhance the Price after they are brought thither, is Forestalling: And the Party guilty of any Offence of Forestalling, &c. upon Conviction at the Quarter-Sessions by two Witnesses, on Bill, Information, Presentment, &c. shall, for the first Offence, lose the Goods so bought, or the Value of them, and suffer two Months Imprisonment; for the second Offence, he shall forfeit double the Value, and be imprisoned six Months; and for the third Offence, he shall lose all his Goods, be set upon the Pillory, and be imprisoned at the King's Pleasure. Stat. ibid. The Forfeitures are to the King's Use only, if there are no Informers; otherwise a Moiety goes to the King, and a Moiety to the Informer. All Endeavours to enhance the common Price of any Victuals or Merchandise, and Practices which have an apparent Tendency thereto, whether by spreading false Rumours, or buying Things in a Market before the accustomed Hour, or by buying and selling again the same Thing in the same Market, &c. are highly Criminal by the Common Law; and all such Offences anciently came under the general Appellation of Forestalling. 3 Inst. 195, 196. And so jealous is the Common Law of Practices of this Nature, which are a general Inconvenience and Prejudice to the People, and very oppressive to the poorer Sort, that it will not suffer Corn to be sold in the Sheaf before thrashed; for by such Sale the Market is in Effect Forestalled. 3 Inst. 197. H. P. C. 152. By the Common Law, Persons guilty of Forestalling upon an Indictment found, are liable to a Fine and Imprisonment, answerable to the Heinousness of their Offence. 1 Hawk. 235. See Ingrosser.

Forestaller, Is a Person guilty in any of the Instances and Particulars described of Forestalling. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 14.

Forsang and Forseng, (From the Sax. Fors, ante & fangen, prendere) Is the Taking of Provision from any one in Fairs or Markets, before the King's Purveyors are served with Necessaries for his Majesty. — Est captio obsoniorum, quæ in Foris aut Nundinis ab aliquo fit, priusquam Minister Regis ea ceperit quæ Regi fuerint necessaria. Antecaptio vel preventio — Et sint quieti de Wardwite & de Forseng, & Withfang, &c. Chart. Hen. 1. Hosp. Sancti Barth. Lond. Anno 1133.

Forfeiture, (Forisfactura, Fr. Forfait) Signifies the Effect or Penalty of transgressing some Law; and not the Transgression itself. It is of Lands or Goods, and differs from Confiscation, in that Forfeiture is more general; whereas Confiscation is particularly applied to such as forfeit only to the King's Exchequer. Staundf. P. C. 186. There is a full Forfeiture, Plena Forisfactura, otherwise called Plena Wita, which is a Forfeiture of Life and Member, and all that a Man hath. Leg. H. 1. cap. 88. And there is Mention in some Statutes, of Forfeiture at the King's Will, of Body, Lands and Goods, &c. but this is not extended farther than Imprisonment, and Lands and Goods. 4 Inst. 66. Forfeitures are in Criminal Matters, where a Person is attainted of Treason, Felony, &c. And in Civil Cases, when Tenant in Tail makes Leases, not warranted by the Statute; a Copyholder commits Waste, refuses to pay his Rent, or do Suit of Court; and where an Estate is granted on Condition, upon Non-performance thereof, &c. these will make a Forfeiture. 1 Rep. 15. Also Offices may be Forfeited by Neglect of Duty, &c. As all Estates are said to be derived from the Crown; so all Forfeitures and Escheats of Lands belong to the King, unless granted away. Finch 132, 164. In Treason, all Lands of Inheritance whereof the Offender was seised in his own Right, were Forfeited by the Common Law; and Rights of Entry, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 448. and the Inheritance of Things not lying in Tenure, as of Rent-Charges, Commons, &c. shall be Forfeited in High Treason: But no Right of Action whatsoever to Lands of Inheritance is Forfeited, either by the Common or Statute Law. Ibid. 449. All Lands, Tenements, &c. are Forfeited in Treason by Stat. 26 H. 8. c. 13. And the King shall be adjudg'd in Possession of Lands and Goods forfeited for Treason on the Attainder of the Offender, without any Office found, saving the Right of others. 33 H. 8. c. 20. Lands and Hereditaments in Fee-simple and Fee-tail, are forfeited in High Treason: But Lands in Tail could not be forfeited only for the Life of Tenant in Tail till the Statute 26 H. 8. by which Statute they may be forfeited. 2 Hawk. Where Tenant for Life, &c. is attainted, the King shall have the Profits of the Lands during the Life of such Tenant only. 2 Inst. 37. There shall be no Forfeiture of Lands for Treason of dead Persons, not attainted. 3 Inst. 12. Tho' the Chief Justice of B. R. as Sovereign Coroner may view the Body of a Person killed in a Rebellion, and make a Record thereof, whereby he shall forfeit Lands and Goods. Wood's Inst. 654. And a Man may be attainted by Act of Parliament. After the Decease of the Pretender, no Attainder for Treason shall make any Forfeiture to disinherit the Heir. Stat. 7. Ann. c. 21. Upon Outlawry in Treason or Felony, the Offender shall forfeit as much as if he had appeared, and Judgment had been given against him, so long as the Outlawry is in Force. 3 Inst. 52, 212. For Petit Treason, Murder, Burglary, Robbery, and all Felonies for which the Offenders shall suffer Death, they shall forfeit all their Lands in Fee-simple, Goods and Chattels. 1 Inst. 391. 1. Lill. Abr. 628. In Man-slaughter, the Offender forfeits Goods and Chattels: And in Chance-medley, and se Defendendo, Goods and Chattels; but the Offenders have their Pardon of course. 1 Inst. 391. Those that are hanged by Martial Law in Time of War, forfeit no Lands. 1 Inst. 13. And for Robbery or Piracy, &c. on the Sea, if tried in the Court of Admiralty by the Civil Law, and not by Jury, there is no Forfeiture: But if a Person be attainted before Commissioners, by Virtue of the Statute 28 H. 8. there works a Forfeiture. 1 Lill. Abr. The King shall have Goods of Felons, and Year, Day and Waste in their Lands, &c. which afterwards go to the Lord of the Manor of whom held. Magn. Chart. c. 22. & 17 Ed. 2. c. 14. Tho' tis said the Profits of Lands whereof a Person attainted of Felony is seised of an Estate of Inheritance in Right of his Wife, or of an Estate for Life only in his own Right, are forfeited to the King, and nothing is forfeited to the Lord. 3 Inst. 19. Fitz. Affis. 166. By the Conviction of a Felon, his Goods and Chattels are forfeited; but by Attainder, his Lands and Tenements. 1 Inst. 291. The Forfeiture in Case of Felony shall relate to the Time mentioned in the Indictment when the Felony was committed, as to the avoiding of Estates and Charges after; but for the mean Profits of the Land, it shall relate only to the Judgment. 1 Inst. 390. Goods or Lands of one arrested for Felony, shall not be seised before he is convicted or attaint of the Felony; on Pain of forfeiting double Value. 1 R. 3. c. 3. Goods of a Felon, &c. cannot be seised before forfeited; tho' they may be inventoried, and a Charge made thereof before Indictment. Wood's Inst. 659. In Treason or Felony, the Delinquent may sell his Goods, be they Chattels Real or Personal, bona fide, before Conviction, for his Maintenance in Prison; for the King hath no Interest in the Forfeiture till Conviction. 8 Rep. And where Goods of a Felon are pawned before he is attainted, the King shall not have the Forfeiture of the Goods till the Money is paid to him to whom they were pawned. 3 Inst. 17. 2 Nelf. Abr. 874, 875. A Trust of a Term shall be forfeited for Felony: Tho' 'tis said a Trust in a Freehold shall not be forfeited for Treason. Cro. Jac. 512. Goods of Persons that fly for a Felony, are forfeited to the Lord of the Franchise, when the Flight is found of Record. 2 Inst. 281. A Felo de se forfeits all his Goods and Chattels. 3 Inst. 55. For Misprison of Treason, the Forfeiture is Goods and Chattels, and Profits of Lands during Life. 1 Inst. 392. In a Premunire, Lands in Fee-Simple are forfeited, with Goods and Chattels. 1 Inst. 129. For Petit Larceny the Offender forfeits his Goods. 1 Inst. 391. And for standing Mute, where Persons are adjudged to Penance, in Cases of Felony, there is a Forfeiture of Goods and Chattels; and so for challenging above 35 Jurors, &c. 3 Inst. 227. Drawing a Weapon upon a Judge, or striking another in the King's Courts, incurs Forfeiture of the Profits of Lands for Life, and of Goods: And it is the same Forfeiture for rescuing a Prisoner in or before any of the Courts, committed by the Justices. 2 Cro. 367. 3 Inst. 141. Artificers going out of the Kingdom, and teaching their Trades to Foreigners, are liable to forfeit all their Lands, &c. by Stat. 5 Geo. 1. 27.

Forfeited Estates. There are several Statutes appointing Commissioners of forfeited Estates, on Rebellions in this Kingdom and Ireland: By 11 Ed. 12 W. 3. c. 3. all Lands and Tenements, &c. of Persons attainted or convicted of Treason or Rebellion in Ireland, were vested in several Commissioners and Trustees for Sale thereof; and any Person or Society might purchase any of the said Lands, and the Conveyances being inrolled, they should be actually seised thereof: And the Commissioners had Power to proceed summarily, and determine by Examinations on Oath, &c. The 1 Geo. c. 50. appointed Commissioners to enquire of forfeited Estates in England and Scotland, on the Rebellion at Preston, &c. And the Estates of Persons attainted of Treason were vested in his Majesty for Publick Uses; but afterwards in Trustees, to be sold for the Use of the Publick; and Purchasers to be Protestants. The Commissioners had Power to summon Claimants, and determine Claims, &c. for which they were a Court of Record; and five Judges were assigned to be a Court of Delegates, to hear and determine Appeals. The Commissioners gave up their Accounts to the King, and both Houses of Parliament: And were also impowered to enquire of Estates of Popish Recusants, and Lands given to superstitious Uses; two thirds of the former being liable to Forfeiture, and the latter vested in the Crown, &c. See 1 Geo. c. 50. and 4 Geo. c. 8.

Foragabel, (Foragabulum) A small reserved Rent in Money, or Quit-Rent: — Ita quod ego Henricus M. vel Heredes mei nihil juris de Tenemento, &c. exceptis vi. denar. de Forgabulo annuatim percipiendis ad Pascha pro omnibus servitiis. Ex Chartul. Abbat. de Rading. M.S. f. 88.

Forge, (Forgia) A Smith's Forge, to melt and work Iron. — Henricus Rex concessisse, &c. & unam Forgiam Ferrariam ita liberam. Chart. Hen. 2.

Forgery, (From the Fr. Forger, i. e. accudere, to beat on an Anvil, or bring into Shape) Is where a Person fraudulently makes and publishes false Writings, to the Prejudice of another Man's Right; or it signifies the Writ that lies against him who commits such an Offence, the Penalty whereof is declared in the Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 14. The Latin Word used to describe this Offence, is Fabricare: And there can be no Forgery, where none can be prejudiced by it but the Person doing it. 1 Salk. 375. Forgery by the Common Law extends to a false and fraudulent making or altering of a Deed or Writing, whether it be a Matter of Record, or any other Writing, Deed or Will. 3 Inst. 169. 1 Roll. Abr. 65. Not only where one makes a false Deed; but where a fraudulent Alteration is made of a true Deed, in a material Part of it, as by making a Lease of the Manor of Dale appear to be a Lease of the Manor of Sale, by changing the Letter D into an S, or by altering a Bond, &c. for 500 l. expressed in Figures, to 5000 l. by adding a new Cypher, these are Forgery: So it is if a Man finding another's Name at the Bottom of a Letter, at a considerable Distance from the other Writing, causes the Letter to be cut off, and a general Release to be written above the Name, &c. Also a Writing may be said to be Forged, where one being directed to draw up a Will for a sick Person, doth insert some Legacies therein falsely of his own Head; tho' there be no Forgery of the Hand or Seal, for the Crime of Forgery consists as well in endeavouring to give an Appearance of Truth to a meer Falsity, as in counterfeiting a Man's Hand, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 182, 183. 3 Inst. 170. But a Person cannot regularly be guilty of Forgery, by any Act of Omission; as by omitting a Legacy out of a Will, which he is directed to draw for another: Tho' it has been held, that if the Omission of a Bequest to one cause a material Alteration in the Limitation of an Estate to another; as if the Devisor directs a Gift for Life to one Man, and Remainder to another in Fee, and the Writer omit the Estate for Life, so that he in the Remainder hath a present Estate upon the Death of the Devisor, not intended to pass, this is Forgery. Noy 118. Moor 760. If one write a Will without any Direction, and bring it to the Testator, who is not of perfect Memory, and he signs it, it is said this doth not amount to Forgery. Ibid. If a Feoffment be made of Land, and Livery and Seisin is not indorsed when the Deed is delivered, and afterwards on selling the Land for a valuable Consideration to another, Livery is indorsed upon the first Deed; this hath been adjudged Forgery both in the Feoffor and Feoffee; because it was done to deceive an honest Purchaser. Moor 665. And when a Person knowingly falsifies the Date of a second Conveyance, which he had no Power to make, in order to deceive a Purchaser, &c. he is said to be guilty of Forgery. 3 Inst. 169. 1 Hawk. 182. It seems to be no way material, whether a forged Instrument be made in such manner, that if it were in Truth such as it is counterfeited for, it would be of Validity or not. 1 Sid. 142. The Counterfeiting Writings of an inferior Nature, as Letters and such like, is not properly Forgery; but the Deceit is punishable. 1 Hawk. 184. By Statute 1 H. 5. c. 3. A Forger or Publisher of False Deeds, was to pay Damages, Fine and Ransom. And by 5 Eliz. c. 14. If any Person alone or with others, shall falsely forge or make, or cause to be forged and made, or assent to the Forging of any Deed or Writing sealed, Court-Roll, or Will in Writing, to the Intent that the Freehold or Inheritance of Lands may be defeated or charged; or shall pronounce, publish, or shew forth in Evidence any such forged Writing as true, knowing of the Forgery; and shall be convicted thereof, upon an Action founded on this Statute, or otherwise by Bill, &c. in the King's Bench or Exchequer, he shall pay double Costs and Damages to the Party grieved, and be set on the Pillory, and have both his Ears cut off, and his Nostrils slit, and shall forfeit to the King the Issues and Profits of his Lands and Tenements during Life, suffer perpetual Imprisonment, &c. And if any one shall forge or falsely make any Deed or Writing, containing a Lease for Years of Lands (not Copyhold) or an Annuity in Fee, for Life or Years, or any Obligation, Acquittance, Release, or other Discharge of any Debt or personal Demand, or publish or give in Evidence the same knowingly; he shall pay to the Party injured double Costs and Damages, and shall be likewise set on the Pillory, and lose one of his Ears, and be imprisoned for a Year. And if any Person shall be guilty of a second Offence, it shall be adjudged Felony, without Benefit of Clergy. Stat. Ibid. The Forgery of a Deed of Gift of meer personal Chattels, is not within the Words of the Statute; which are Obligation, Acquittance, Release, &c. 3 Leon. 170. And Forging an Assignment of a Lease is not within the Act, because it doth not charge the Lands, but only transfers an Interest which was in Being before. Noy 42. Forgery of a Lease of Lands in Ireland is not within this Statute. 3 Leon. 170. Where there is a Penalty in an Obligation, &c. the Party grieved by a forged Release thereof, shall recover double the Penalty as Damages, and not of the Debt appearing in the Condition. 3 Inst. 172. As to Publishing a Deed, knowing the same to be forged, it has been resolved, that if a Person is informed by another that a Deed is forged, if he afterwards publishes it as true, he is within the Danger of this Statute. Ibid. 171. The King may pardon the corporal Punishment which tends to common Example; but the Plaintiff cannot release it: If the Plaintiff release or discharge the Judgment or Execution, &c. it shall only discharge the Costs and Damages, and the Judges shall proceed to Judgment upon the Residue of the Pains, and award Execution upon the same. 5 Rep. 50. 5 Eliz. c. 12. But in an extraordinary Case a Forgery hath been compounded; and the Defendant discharged, on paying a small Fine. 3 Salk. 172. In an Information for Forgery, it was adjudged that no Person who is or may be a Loser by the Deed forged, or who may receive any Benefit or Advantage by the Verdict being found against the Defendant, shall be a Witness for the King. Hardy. 331. A Person convicted of Forgery, and adjudged to the Pillory, &c. whereby he becomes Infamous, is not allowed to be a Witness; but it is a good exception to his Evidence. Hawk. P. C. 432. And one convicted of this Crime, may be challenged on a Jury, so as to be incapable to serve as a Juror; and it hath been holden, that Exceptions to Persons found guilty of Perjury or Forgery, as well as Felony, &c. are not saved by a Pardon. 2 Hawk. 417. The Court of B. R. will not ordinarily, at the Prayer of the Defendant, grant a Certiorari for Removal of an Indictment of Forgery, &c. 1 Sid. 54. Persons guilty of Forgery or Perjury are not indictable before Justices of Peace, &c. Forging of Exchequer and Bank Bills, Lottery Tickets, Letters of Attorney to transfer Stock, &c. See Felony.

Forletland, Was Land in the Bishoprick of Hereford granted or leased dum Episcopus in Episcopatu steterit, so as the Successor might have the same for his present Revenue: This Custom has been long since diffus'd, and the Land thus formerly granted is now let by Lease as other Lands, tho' it still retains the Name by which it was anciently known. Butterfield's Surv. 56.

Form, Is required in Law Proceedings, otherwise the Law would be no Art; but it ought not to be used to snare or entrap. Stat. 27 Eliz. Hob. 232.

Forma Pauperis, Is where any Person has just Cause of Suit, and is so poor, that he cannot bear the usual Charges of suing at Law, or in Equity: In this Case, upon his making Oath that he is not worth 5 l. his Debts being paid, and bringing a Certificate from some Lawyer that he hath Cause of Suit, the Judge admits him to sue in forma Pauperis, i. e. without paying Fees to Counsellor, Attorney or Clerk: This had Beginning from the Statute 11 H. 7. c. 12. by which it is enacted, that poor Persons having Cause of Action or Suits, shall have Original Writs, Counsel and Attornies, assign'd them gratis. On proceeding in Chancery, Affidavit is first made that the Plaintiff is not worth 5 l. in Lands, Tenements, Goods or Chattels, his wearing Apparel, and the Matters of the Suit excepted; and then a Petition is drawn up and presented to the Lord Chancellor or Master of the Rolls, praying to be admitted in forma Pauperis, and to have Counsel,

&c. assigned him; who are neither to take Fees, nor make any Contract for Recompence, on Pain of Punishment; and no Counsellor or Attorney assigned shall refuse to proceed, without shewing good Cause to the Lord Chancellor, &c. Pract. Sol. 24. If a Cause goes against a Pauper, or a Plaintiff in forma Pauperis be Nonsuit; he shall not pay Costs to the Defendant, but shall suffer such Punishment in his Person as the Court shall award. 23 H. 8. c. 15. 1 Litt. Abr. 634. 2 Sid. 261. Paupers using Delays to vex their Adversaries, or being proved to be vexatious Persons, and having many frivolous Suits depending, will be dispaupered by the Court; for the Law doth not assist them to do Injury to others. 1 Litt. 633.

Formedon, (Breve de Forma donationis) Is a Writ that lies for him who hath Right to Lands or Tenements by Virtue of any Intail, growing from the Statute of Westminster 2. cap. 2. It is a Writ of Right for Recovery of Lands, and is of three Kinds, viz. in Descender, Remainder and Reverter: Formedon in Descender lieth where Tenant in Tail enfeoffs a Stranger, or is disseised and dieth, the Heir shall have this Writ to recover the Land. Formedon in Remainder lies where one gives Land in Tail, and for Default of Issue the Remainder to another in Tail, &c. If the Tenant in Tail die without Issue, and a Stranger abates and enters into the Land, he in Remainder shall have this Writ. Formedon in the Reverter lieth where Land is entailed to certain Persons and their Issue, with Remainder over for Want of Issue, and on the Remainder failing to revert to the Donor, and his Heirs; now if Tenant in Tail dies without leaving any Issue, and likewise he in Remainder, then the Donor or his Heirs to whom the Reversion comes, shall have this Writ for Recovery of the Estate, in Case it be aliened, &c. Reg. Orig. 238, 242. E. N. B. 111. Formedon in Descender is the highest Writ a Tenant in Tail can have: And where Tenant in Tail aliens, or is disseised of his Estate, or if a Recovery is had against him by Default, and he die, his Heir shall have a Formedon, it being the only Remedy the Heir may have for the Possession of his Ancestor; but if he be outed of his own Possession, as if he be seised, and put out, he shall have his Writ of Assise. There is a Writ of Formedon in Descender, where Partition of Lands held in Tail, being made among Parceners, &c. and one alieneth her Part, her Heir shall have this Writ: And by the Death of one Sister without Issue, the Partition is made void, and the other shall have the whole Land as Heir in Tail. New Nat. Br. 476, 477. Also there is a Writ of Formedon in simul tenuit, that lies for a Coparcener against a Stranger upon the Possession of the Ancestor; which may be brought without naming the other Coparcener who hath her Part in Possession. Ibid. 481. This Writ may be likewise had by one Heir in Gavelkind, &c. of Lands entailed; and where the Lands are held without Partition. A Demandant in a Writ of Formedon, ought to make his Descent by all which did hold the Estate, otherwise the Writ will abate; and the Demandant should always be made Cousin and Heir, or Son and Heir to him who was last seised of the Tail; but the surest Way is to make every Man named in the Writ Son and Heir in the Writ, and it is not material whether they were seised or not, altho' they are named Heir. 8 & 11 H. 6.

In a Formedon in Descender, The Demandant is to set forth the Pedigree: In Formedon in Remainder, that the Tenant in Tail is dead without Issue; but in a Formedon in Reverter the Donor, &c. need not shew the Pedigree of the Issue, nor who was last seised, because he is supposed to be a Stranger to them. 2 Nelf. Abr. 880. Where a Fee-simple is demanded in a Formedon in Reverter, the Taking of the Profits ought to be alledged in the Donor, and Donee: If an Estate Tail is demanded, it must be alledged in the Donee only. 1 Lutw. 96. The Writ of Formedon is now rarely brought, except in some special Cases, where it cannot be avoided; and the Trying Titles by Ejectione firma supplies its Place at an easier Rate.

The Stat. 1 Hen. 7. c. 4. mentions this Crime; which by an Act made Anno 1650. during the late Times of Usurpation, was punished with three Months Imprisonment for the first Offence; and the second Offence 'tis said was made Felony. Scobel's Collect. The Spiritual Court hath Cognizance of this Offence: And formerly Courts-Leet had Power to enquire of and punish Fornication and Adultery; in which Courts the King had a Fine assessed on the Offenders, as appears by the Book of Domesd. 2 Inst. 488.

Fozpise, (Forprisum) An Exception or Reservation, in which Sense it is used in the Statute 14 Ed. 1. The King only can found a College; but there may be a College in Reputation, founded by others. Dyer 267. If it cannot appear by Inquisition, who it was that founded a Church or College, it shall be intended it was the King; who has Power to found a new Church, &c. Moor 282. The King may found and erect an Hospital, and give a Name to the House, upon the Inheritance of another, or licence another Person to do it upon his own Lands; and the Words Fundo, Creo, &c. are not necessary in every Foundation, either of a College or Hospital made by the King, but it is sufficient if there be Words equivalent: The Incorporation of a College or Hospital is the very Foundation; but he who endows it with Lands is the Founder; and to the Erection of an Hospital, nothing more is requisite but the Incorporation and Foundation. 10 Rep. Case of Sutton's Hosp. Persons seised of Estates in Fee-simple, may erect and found Hospitals for the Poor, by Deed inrolled in Chancery, &c. which shall be incorporated, and subject to such Visitors as the Founder shall appoint, &c. Stat. 39 Eliz. Where a Corporation is named, it is said the Name of the Founder is Parcel of the Corporation. 2 Nels. 886. Fourcher, (Fr. Fourchir) Signifies a putting off, or delaying of an Action; and has been compared to flammering, by which the Speech is drawn out to a more than ordinary Length of Time, as by Fourching a Suit is prolonged, which might be brought to a Determination in a shorter Space. This Device is commonly used when an Action or Suit brought against two Persons, who being jointly concern'd, are not to answer till both Parties appear; and is where the Appearance or Essoin of one, will excuse the other's Default, and they agree between themselves that one shall appear or be essoind one Day, and for Want of the other's Appearing, have Day over to make his Appearance with the other Party; and at that Day allow'd the other Party doth appear, but he that appear'd before doth not, in Hopes to have another Day by Adjournment of the Party who then made his Appearance. Terms de Ley 356. This is called Fourcher; and in the Statute of Westm. 1. c. 42. it is termed Fourcher by Essoin; where are Words to this Effect, viz. Coparceners, Jointenants, &c. may not fourch by Essoin, to essoin severally; but shall have only one Essoin, as one sole Tenant. And Anno 6 Ed. 1. c. 10. it is used in like Manner: The Defendants shall be put to answer without Fourching, &c. 23 H. 6. c. 2. 2 Inst. 250. Fourcher in the Latin is writ Furcare; because it is two fold.

Fraction. The Law makes no Fraction of a Day; if any Offence be committed, in Case of Murder, &c. the Year and Day shall be computed from the Beginning of the Day on which the Wound was given, &c. and not from the precise Minute or Hour. 2 Hawk. 163. See Co. Litt. 255.

Frampole Fences, Are such Fences as the Tenants in the Manor of Writtel in Essex, set up against the Lord's Demains; and they are entitled to the Wood growing on those Fences, and as many Poles as they can reach from the Top of the Ditch with the Helve of an Axe, towards the Reparation of their Fences. It is thought the Word Frampole comes from the Sax. Frempul, profitable; or that it is a Corruption of Franc-pole, because the Poles are free for the Tenants to take: But Chief Justice Brampton, whilst he was Steward of the Court of the Manor of Writtel, acknowledged that he could not find out the Reason why these Fences were called Frampole; so that we are at a Loss to know the Truth of this Name etymologically.

Franchilanus, (Fr. Franchi, i. e. free) A Freeman. — Sciatis me dedisse, cum Villanis, & Franchilano, & cum Tenuris eorum, &c. Chart. Hen. 4. And we find Francus homo used for a Freeman in Domesday. Franchise,

Franchise, (Fr.) Is taken for a Privilege or Exemption from ordinary Jurisdiction, as for a Corporation to hold Pleas to such a Value, &c. And sometimes it is an Immunity from Tribute, when it is either personal or real, that is belonging to a Person immediately, or by Means of this or that Place whereof he is Chief or a Member. Crompt. Jurisd. 141. There is also a Franchise Royal; which seems to be that where the King's Writ runs not. 28 H. 6. c. 4. But Franchise Royal is said by some Authors, to be where the King grants to one and his Heirs, that they shall be quit of Toll, &c. Bratt. lib. 2. cap. 5. A Franchise in general is a Royal Privilege in the Hands of a Subject; and may be vested in Bodies Politick or Corporations, either aggregate or sole, or in many Persons that are not Corporations, (as in Borough-Towns, &c.) or in a single Person: And Franchises are of different Kinds; such as the Principality of Wales, Counties Palatine, Counties, Hundreds, Ports of the Sea, &c. Then there is a Franchise or Liberty of having a Leet, Manor or Lordship, as well as a Liberty to make a Corporation, and to have Cognisance of Pleas; and Bailiwicks of Liberties, the Liberty of a Forest, Chafe, &c. Fairs and Markets, Felons Goods, Goods of Fugitives, Outlaws, Decadants, Treasure Trove, Waifs, Estrays, Wrecks, &c. All these come under Franchises and Liberties. F. N. B. 230. 2 Inst. 221. All Franchises and Liberties are derived from the Crown, and some are held by Charter; but some lie in Prescription and Usage, without the Help of any Charter. Finch 164. And Usage may uphold Franchises, which may be claim'd by Prescription, without Record either of Creation, Allowance or Confirmation; and Wreck of the Sea, Waifs, Strays, Fairs and Markets, and the like, are gained by Usage, and may become due without Matter of Record. 2 Inst. 281. 9 Rep. 27. But Goods of Felons and Outlaws, and such like, grow due by Charter, and cannot be claimed by Usage, &c. Ibid. It hath been adjudg'd, that Grants of Franchises, made before the Time of Memory, ought to have Allowance within Time of Memory in the King's Bench, or before the Barons of the Exchequer, or by some Confirmation on Record; and 'tis said they are not Records pleadable, if they have not the Aid of some Matter of Record, within Time of Memory; and such antient Grants, after such Allowance, shall be construed as the Law was when they were made, and not as it hath been since alter'd: But Franchises granted within Time of Memory are pleadable without any Allowance or Confirmation; and if they have been allowed or confirmed as aforesaid, the Franchises may be claimed by Force thereof, without shewing the Charter. 9 Rep. 27, 28. 2 Inst. 281, 494. There have been formerly several antient Prerogatives divided from the Crown, beside the Franchises aforementioned; as Power to pardon Felony, make Justices of Assise, and of the Peace, &c. Tho' by the Statute 27 H. 8. c. 24. they were resumed and re-united to the Crown; and the King cannot grant Power to another to make Strangers born, Denizens here, because such Power is by Law inseparably annex'd to his Person. 7 Rep. 25. By the Statute of Magna Charta, 9 H. 3. c. 37. The Franchises and Liberties of the City of London, and all other Cities, Towns, &c. are confirmed. The 30 Ed. 1. ordains, that a Writ shall issue out to the Sheriffs of Counties, to permit all Men to enjoy their antient Liberties and Franchises; and on Proclamation made, they shall shew their Tenures to the Justices of Assise, or forfeit their Franchises. All Writs, Proseses, &c. in Franchises, are to be made in the King's Name; and Stewards, Bailiffs, and other Ministers of Liberties, shall attend the Justices of Assise, and make due Execution of Proseses, &c. 27 H. 8. Some Franchises, as York, Bristol, &c. have Return of Writs, to whom Mandates are directed from the Courts above, to execute Writs and Proseses: And a Mayor or Bailiff of a Town or Liberty, may have Liberty to keep Courts, and hold Pleas in a certain Place according to the Course of the Common Law; and Power to draw Causes out of the King's Courts, by an exclusive Jurisdiction: But the Causes here may be removed to the superior Courts. 1 Inst. 114. 4 Inst. 87, 224. A Franchise hath no Relation to the County wherein it lies; for it is not necessary to set forth the County when any Thing is shewed to be done within a Liberty or Franchise. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. If a Franchise fails to administer Justice within the same, the Franchise shall not be allow'd; but on any such Failure, the Court of B. R. may compel the Owners of the Franchise, &c. to do Justice; for this Court ought to see Justice equally distributed to all Persons. 1 Lill. Abr. 635. Franchises may be forfeited and seised when they are abused, for Mis-user or Non-user; and where there are many Points, a Mis-user of any One will make a Forfeiture of the Whole upon a Quo Warranto brought. Kitch. 65. And where Franchises come to the Crown again from whence derived, by Forfeiture, &c. they are extinguished; but in some Cases 'tis said they are not. For Contempt of the King's Writ, in a County Palatine, &c. the Liberties may be seised, and the Offenders fined; and the Temporalities of a Bishop, have been adjudg'd to be seised until he satisfied the King for such a Contempt, on Information exhibited, &c. Cro. Car. 183. Where-ever the King is Party to a Suit, as in all Informations and Indictments, the Proseses ought to be executed by the Sheriff, and not the Bailiff of any Franchise, whether it have the Clause Non omittas, &c. or not; for the King's Prerogative shall be preferred to any Franchise. 2 Hawk. 284. And Sheriffs upon a Non omittas, or on a Capias Utlagatum, or Quo minus, may enter and make Arrests in any Franchise. 1 Lill. 635. If a Person claims Franchises which he ought not to have, it is a Usurpation upon the King. See Quo Warranto.

Francigenæ, Was the general Appellation of all Foreigners. Vide Englevery.

Frank, A French gold Coin, worth about a French Shilling; but in Computation twenty Sols, which is a Livre, and twenty Pence in our Money.

Frankalmoign, (Libera Eleemosyna) Is a Tenure by Spiritual Service, where an Ecclesiastical Corporation, sole or aggregate, holdeth Land to them and their Successors, of some Lord and his Heirs in free and perpetual Alms: And perpetual supposes it to be a Fee-simple; though it may pass without the Word Successors. Litt. 133. 1 Inst. 94. A Lay Person cannot hold in free Alms: And when a Grant is in Frankalmoign, no Mention is to be made of any Manner of Service; for it is free from any Temporal Service, and is of the highest Nature, because it is a Tenure by Spiritual Service. Litt. 137. None can hold in Frankalmoign but by Prescription, or by Force of some

Some Grant made before the Statutes of Mortmain. 7 Ed. 1. c. 36. and 18 Ed. 1. c. 1. so that the Tenure cannot at this Day be created, to hold of a Founder and his Heirs in free Alms: But the King is not restrained by the Statutes; nor a Subject licensed or dispensed with by the King, to make such a Grant, &c. 1 Inst. 98, 99. And if an Ecclesiastical Person holds Lands by Fealty and certain Rent, the Lord may at this Time confirm his Estate, to hold to him and his Successors in Frankalmoign; for the former Services are extinct, and nothing is reserved but that he should hold of him, which he did before; whereby this Change and Alteration is not within the Statute 18 Ed. 1. of Quia emptores Terrarum. Litt. 540. 1 Inst. 99, 306. Tenure in Frankalmoign is incident to the inheritable Blood of the Donor or Founder; except in Case of the King, who may grant this Tenure to hold of him and his Successors. Litt. 135. And the Reason why a Grant in Frankalmoign, since the Stat. 18 Ed. 1. is void, except in the Case of the King, &c. is, because none can hold Land by this Tenure, but of the Donor; whereas that Statute enjoins, that it be held of the Chief Lord, by the same Service by which the Feoffor held it; tho' the King may grant away any Estate, and reserve the Tenure to himself. 1 Inst. 99, 223. If any Persons that hold Lands or Tenements in Frankalmoign, make any Failure in doing such Divine Service as they ought, the Lord may make Complaint of it to the Ordinary or Visitor; which is the King, if he be Founder, or a Subject where he was appointed Visitor upon the Foundation; and the Ordinary, &c. may punish the Negligence, according to the Ecclesiastical Laws. Litt. 136. 1 Inst. 96. Also for Neglect in performing Divine Service in certain, the Lord may distrain: But Frankalmoign is said to be held by Service uncertain; and where the Tenure is tied to certain Services, as to read Prayers every Friday, &c. this is not Frankalmoign, but Tenure by Divine Service; it is Lands given in Alms, but not in free Alms. Britton, cap. 66. The Tenure by Frankalmoign is an ancient Tenure, chiefly to be met with in Grants to Religious Houses, Bishops, Deans, Colleges, &c. and is become out of Use.

Frankchase, Is a Liberty of Free Chase; by which all Persons that have Lands within the Compass thereof, are prohibited to cut down any Wood, &c. without the View of the Forester, though it be in their own Demesnes. Crompt. Jurisd. 187.

Frankfee. (Feudum liberum) That Land, according to Broke, which is in the Hands of the King or Lord of any Manor being the Demesnes of the Crown is called Frankfee; and that in the Tenant's Hands is Ancient Demesne. Bro. Tit. Demesne. In the Register of Writs, we find that is Frankfee, which a Man holds at the Common Law, to him and his Heirs; and not by such Service, as is required in Ancient Demesne, according to the Custom of the Manor: And that the Lands in the Hand of King Edward the Confessor, at the Making of the Book of Domesday, were Ancient Demesne, and all the rest Frankfee; wherewith Fitzherbert agrees. Reg. Orig. 12. F. N. B. 161. And the Author of the Terms of the Law defines Frankfee to be a Tenure pleadable at the Common Law; and not in Ancient Demesne. Terms de Ley 358. ——— Feudum Francum est, pro quo nullum Servitium prestatum Domino. Frachinensis, lib. 7. cap. 39.

Frankferm, Was Lands or Tenements, changed in the Nature of the Fee, by Feoffment, &c. out of Knights Service, for certain yearly Services. Britton, cap. 66. See Fee farm.

Frank-Law, (Libera Lex) Is applied to the Benefit of the Free and Common Law of the Land. You may find what it is by the contrary, from Crompton in his Justice of Peace; where he says, he that for any Offence loseth his Frank-Law, falls into these Mischiefs, viz. He may never be impanelled upon any Jury or Assize; or be permitted to give any Testimony: If he hath any Thing to do in the King's Courts, he must not attend them in Person, but appoint his Attorney therein for him: And his Lands shall be estreated, and his Body committed to Prison, &c. Crompt. Jurisd. 156. Lib. Assis. 59. See Conspiracy.

Frank-Marriage, (Liberum Maritagium) Is where a Man seised of Land in Fee-simple, gives it to another with his Daughter, Sister, &c. in Marriage; to hold to them and their Heirs: And it is a Tenure in special Tail, growing from these Words in the Gift, i. e. Sciatis, &c. me A. B. dedisse & concessisse, &c. T. B. filio meo & Annæ Uxor. ejus, filia, &c. in Liberum Maritagium unum Messuagium, &c. Litt. 17. West. Symb. par. 1. lib. 2. sect. 303. The Effect of which Words is, that they shall have the Land to them and the Heirs of their Bodies; and shall do no Services to the Donor, except Fealty, until the fourth Degree. Glanvil, lib. 7. cap. 18. And Fleta gives this Reason why the Heirs do no Service until the fourth Degree: Ne Donatores vel eorum heredes per Homagium receptionem, a reversione repellantur. And why in the fourth Descent and downward, they shall do Services to the Donor; Quia in quarto gradu vehementer presumitur, quod Terra est pro defectu heredum Donatoriorum reversura. Fleta, lib. 3. cap. 11. All this appears in Bracton, lib. 2. cap. 7. where it is said, that Lands in Frank-Marriage are quæta & libera ab omni seculari servitio, &c. usque ad tertium heredem, & usque ad quartum gradum. Also Bracton divides Marriage into Liberum Maritagium and Maritagium servitio obligatum; which last was where Lands were given in Marriage, with a Reservation of the Services to the Donor, which the Donee and his Heirs were bound to perform for ever; but neither he, or the next two Heirs, were obliged to do Homage, which was to be done when it came to the fourth Degree, and then, and not before, were required to be perform'd both Services and Homage. Bract. lib. 2. Lands given by one Man to another with a Wife in Frank-Marriage, amounts by Implication to a Gift in Fee-tail; which in this Case may be created without the Words Heirs or Body. Litt. 17. Wood's Inst. 120. A Gift in Frank-Marriage might be made as well after as before Marriage: And such a Gift was a Fee-simple before the Statute of Westm. 2. but since, it is usually a Fee-tail: These Gifts were common in former Times, whereon Questions in Law did arise; but are now disused. 2 Nelf. Abr. 888.

Frankpledge, (Franci plegium, from the Fr. Franc. i. e. Liber, and Pledge, Fidejussor) Signifies a Pledge or Surety for the Behaviour of Freemen; it being the ancient Custom of this Kingdom, borrowed from the Lombards, that for the Preservation of the publick Peace, every free-born Man at the Age of Fourteen, (Religious Persons, Clerks, &c. excepted) should give Security for his Truth towards the King and his Subjects, or be committed to Prison; whereupon a certain certain Number of Neighbours, usually became bound one for another, to see each Man of their Pledge forth-coming at all Times, or to answer the Transgression done by any gone away: And when ever any one offended, it was forth-with inquired in what Pledge he was, and then those of that Pledge either produced the Offender within One and thirty Days, or satisfied for his Offence. This was called Frank-pledge; and this Custom was so kept, that the Sheriffs at every County-Court, did from Time to Time take the Oaths of young Persons as they grew to fourteen Years of Age, and see that they were settled in one Decennary or other; whereby this Branch of the Sheriff's Authority was called Visus Franci-plegii, or View of Frank-pledge. At this Day no Man ordinarily giveth other Security for the Keeping of the Peace, than his own Oath; so that none answereth for the Transgression of another, but every Person for himself. 4 Inst. 78. Living under Frank-pledge has been termed Living under Law, &c. See the Statute of View of Frank-pledge. 18 Ed. 2. And Court-Leet, Deciner, &c.

Frank Tenement, A Possession of Freehold Lands and Tenements. See Freehold.

Fraxetum, A Corruption of Fraxinetum, is taken for a Wood, or woody Ground, where Aspes grow. 1 Inst. 4.

Frateria, A Fraternity, Brotherhood or Society of Religious Persons, who were bound to pray for the good Health and Life, &c. of their living Brethren, and the Souls of those that were dead: In the Statutes of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's in London, collected by Ralph Baldock, Dean, 1295. there is one Chapter de Frateria Beneficiorum Ecclesie S. Pauli, &c.

Fratres conjurati, Are sworn Brothers or Companions; sometimes those were so called who were sworn to defend the King against his Enemies. Hoveden, pag. 445. Leg. W. 1. — Præcipimus ut omnes Liberi homines sint Fratres conjurati ad Monarchiam nostram & Regnum nostrum contra Inimicos pro posse suo defendendum. Leg. Ed. 1. cap. 35.

Fratrueles, The Sons of two Brothers; as successit Fratrueles ejus in Regnum, &c.

Fratres pures, Were certain Friars, wearing black and white Garments; of whom Mention is made by Walsingham, pag. 124.

Fratriagium, Is a younger Brother's Inheritance; and whatever the Sons possess of the Estate of the Father, they enjoy it ratione Fratriagii, and are to do Homage to the elder Brother for it, who is bound to do Homage for the Whole to the superior Lord. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 35.

Fraud, (Fraus) Is Deceit in Grants and Conveyances of Lands, and Bargains and Sales of Goods, &c. to the Damage of another Person. F. N. B. 98. Every Gift or Feoffment of Lands, made by Fraud, shall be void; and the Disfeisee shall recover his Estate. Stat. 1 R. 2. c. 9. Fraudulent Assurances of Lands or Goods to deceive Creditors, are to be void; and the Creditors shall have Execution thereof. 50 Ed. 3. c. 6. By the Statute 13 Eliz. c. 5. all fraudulent Conveyances as to Creditors, are made void; and by 27 Eliz. c. 4. they are made void as to Purchasers: And Persons justifying or putting such Grants, &c. in Use as good, and bona fide made, shall forfeit a Year's Value of the Lands, and the whole Value of Goods and Chattels, and be also imprisoned, &c. Where Lands are convey'd with Clause of Revocation, &c. and afterwards sold for valuable Consideration, the first Conveyance shall be void against the Purchaser; but this is not to extend to Mortgages made bona fide. And Devises of Lands, Rents, &c. are deemed fraudulent and void, against Creditors upon Bonds, or other Specialties. 3 & 4 W. & M. Also Judgments against Purchasers of Lands for a valuable Consideration, shall be deemed Judgments only from the Signing, &c. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. The Stat. 13 Eliz. makes a fraudulent Deed void against Creditors, but not against the Party himself, his Executors or Administrators, for against them it remains good: And a Conveyance made by Fraud is not void by the Statute against all Persons, but only against those who afterwards come to the Land upon valuable Consideration. Cro. El. 445. Cro. Jac. 271. Grants and Conveyances are to be on good Consideration, and bona fide, or they will be fraudulent; and a Grant bona fide is made without any Trust, &c. A Grant upon good Consideration, except it be also bona fide, is not within the Proviso of the Act 13 Eliz. 3 Rep. 81. Consideration valuable is Money, Marriage, &c. and not natural Affection, &c. A Man made a Lease for twenty-one Years, in Trust for his Daughter 'till Marriage; and if she married with his Consent, then to her during the Term; this 'till Marriage, has been held fraudulent as to a Purchaser: But after Marriage it is good, because Marriage is an Advancement to the Daughter, and taking Effect made it upon valuable Consideration, which a Marriage is always taken to be, and the Husband was drawn in by this Conveyance to marry her. 1 Sid. 133. It has been adjudg'd, That if a Father makes a Feoffment to another, for the Advancement of his Daughters, or his younger Sons, or for Payment of his Debts; and afterwards enfeoffs his eldest Son or Heir, this is not Fraud or Collusion within the Statute, for he is bound in Law to make Provision for his Children: But where there is a Grandfather, Father, and two Sons, and the Grandfather (living the Father) conveys his Land to either of the Sons, this is out of the Statute 32 H. 8. because it is not a common Thing so to do, and the Father ought to have the immediate Care of his Children; tho' if he is dead, then it belongeth to the Grandfather. 6 Rep. 76. If a Man levy a Fine to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to his Son in Tail, and after sells the Fee-simple to another, he as a Purchaser shall avoid this Conveyance upon the Statute 27 Eliz. because it was voluntary, and therefore fraudulent; so it had been if he had settled the Remainder on his Wife, unless there had been a Consideration on precedent Marriage. Sid. 133. 3 Salk. 174. But it was ruled by Hale Chief Justice, that a Deed may be voluntary, and not fraudulent, as where a Father having an extravagant Son, settles his Land so that he may not spend all; this is good, if there is no Consideration of Money. 1 Mod. 119. Although every voluntary Conveyance is prima facie deem'd fraudulent against Purchasers, yet some Circumstances may alter the Case: An Infant promised, on his Marriage, to settle his Estate when he came of Age, upon himself and his Issue; and this was held a sufficient Consideration, tho' an Infant by Law is not compellable to fulfil such Promise. 2 Lev. 147. A Feme Covert joins with her Husband in the Alienation of her Jointure, and hath a new Deed of Settlement of other Lands dated the same Day, in Lieu thereof, without Articles or Agreement precedent to this second Settlement; this is not fraudulent against a Purchaser, though the Lands in the new Settlement are more in Value than those in the First; for the old Settlement being destroyed, and a new one made on the same Day, it shall be presumed that there was an Agreement for it. 2 Lev. 70, 71. The Husband who married a Wife an Inheritor, promised, that if she would join with him in a Sale of her Land, and let him have the Money to pay his Debts, that he would leave her 400 l. at his Death; about six Months after the Lands were sold, he gave Bond to a Stranger to leave his Wife the 400 l. And it was adjudged that this was not fraudulent quoad Creditors, but good against them. 2 Lev. 148. A Person makes a voluntary Conveyance, and then mortgages the same Land, and the first Deed is upon a Trial found fraudulent; then he to whom the Deed was made exhibited his Bill in Equity to redeem the Mortgage, and it was held, that though the first Deed was fraudulent quoad the Mortgage-Money, yet it was good to pass the Equity of Redemption. Chanc. Rep. 59. Where a Lease is made with a Proviso, that if the Lessor pays 10 s. the Lease shall be void; because 10 s. is not the Value of the Lease and Land, but only limited as a Power of Revocation, it is fraudulent as to a Purchaser: But if a Man mortgages his Land for 100 l. with Proviso, that if he pay 100 l. the Lease shall be good against a Purchaser. Cro. Jac. 455. In Chancery it has been decreed, That if a Man conveys his Land to Friends in Trust, to the Use of his Children, &c. to defraud a Purchaser, the Trust shall go in Equity to the Purchaser; also it shall be liable for Debts, to satisfy the same. Totbil 43, 44. A Husband assign'd a Term of his Wife's, in Trust for his Wife; and it was held fraudulent against Purchasers. Chanc. Rep. 225. If a Man make an Assignment of his Lease, and yet keeps Possession of the Lands, the Deed of Assignment will be judg'd fraudulent. By the Common Law, an Estate made by Fraud, shall be avoided only by him who hath a former Right, Title, Interest, Debt, or Demand. 3 Rep. 83. If one indebted do really sell Lands, tho' to avoid Payment of Debts; if the Vendee be not privy to the Intent, the Sale to him is good: For as to the Vendee there is no Fraud in the Case. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. A Man gives his Goods to his Son, they are nevertheless liable as to his Creditors; but if he gives them to one of his Creditors, without any Trust or Covin, it shall not be fraudulent to make him liable to other Creditors. 3 Salk. 174. If a Man is indicted, and give away his Goods to prevent a Forfeiture, the King shall have them upon an Attainder or Conviction; though 'tis otherwise if he sell them for a good Consideration, to one who had no Notice of the Indictment. Ibid. If Tenant for Life commit a Forfeiture, and he in the Reversion enters, this shall be as a fraudulent Conveyance with Respect to Creditors. Ventr. 257. Fraudulent Gifts, or Grants of Goods to defraud the Lord of his Heriot, shall be void; and the Value of the Goods forfeited. 13 Eliz. 5. Gifts made in Secret are liable to Suspicion of Fraud: A general Gift of all a Man's Goods may be reasonably suspected to be fraudulent, even though there be a true Debt owing to the Party to whom made. 3 Rep.

80, 81. And the several Marks or Badges of Fraud, in a Gift or Grant of Goods are, if it be general, without Exception of some Things of Necessity; if the Donor still possesses and uses the Goods; if the Deed be secretly made; if there be a Trust between the Parties; or if it be made pending the Action. 3 Rep. 80, &c. And where a Person is Party to a Fraud, all that follows by Reason of that Fraud shall be said to be done by him. Cro. Jac. 469. But where Fraud is not expressly averr'd, it shall not be presumed; nor shall the Court adjudge it to be so, 'till the Matter is found by Jury. 10 Rep. 56. Fraudulent Conveyances to multiply Votes at Election of Knights of the Shire, shall be taken against the Persons making them as free and absolute; and all Securities for Redeeming or Restoring, &c. to be void. Stat. 10 Ann. c. 23. A Presentation to a Benefice, or Administration of Goods obtained by Fraud, are void; and so is Sale of Goods by Fraud, altho' in open Market, &c.

Fraus Legis. If a Person having no Manner of Title to a House, procure an Affidavit of the Service of a Declaration in Ejectment, and thereupon gets Judgment; and by Virtue of a Writ of Hab. fac. Possessionem turns the Owner out of Possession of the House, and seises and converts the Goods therein to his own Use, he may be punished as a Felon; because he used the Process of the Law with a felonious Purpose, in fraudem Legis. Raym. 276. Sid. 254.

Fredum, Was a Composition made by a Criminal, to be freed from Prosecution, of which the third Part was paid into the Exchequer. See Delatura.

Free-Bench, (Francus Bancus, i. e. Sedes Libera) Is that Estate in Copyhold Lands which the Wife hath on the Death of her Husband for her Dower, according to the Custom of the Manor: But it is said the Wife ought to be espous'd a Virgin; and is to hold the Land only so long as she lives sole and continent. Kitch. 102. Of this Free-Bench, several Manors have several Customs; and Fitzherbert calls it a Custom whereby in certain Cities the Wife shall have the whole Lands of the Husband for her Dower, &c. F. N. B. 150. In the Manors of East and West Enborne in the County of Berks, and the Manor of Torre in Devonshire, and other Parts of the West of England, there is a Custom; that when a Copyhold Tenant dies, his Widow shall have her Free-Bench in all his Customary Lands, Dum sola & casta fuerit; but if she commits Incontinency, she forfeits her Estate: Yet nevertheless, on her coming into the Court of the Manor, riding backward on a Black Ram, with his Tail in her Hand, and saying the Words following, the Steward is bound by the Custom to re-admit her to her Free-Bench; the Words are these,

Here I am,
Riding upon a Black Ram,
Like a Whore as I am:
And for my Crincum Crancum,
I have lost my Binkum Bankum;
And for my Tail's Game,
Have done this worldly Shame;
Therefore pray Mr. Steward let me have my Land again.

This is a Kind of Penance, among jocular Tenures and Customs, to purge the Offence.

Free-booter, Signifies a Person who fights without Pay, in Hopes of getting some Booty.

Freehold, (Francbor. us) Is Ground claimed in some Places, more or less, beyond, or without the Fence: It is said to contain two Foot and a Half, in Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 241.

Free-Chapel, (Libera Capella) A Chapel so called, because it is exempt from the Jurisdiction of the Diocesan. Those Chapels are properly Free-Chapels which are of the King's Foundation, and by him exempted from the Ordinary's Visitation: Also Chapels founded within a Parish for the Service of God, by the Devotion and Liberality of Pious Men, over and above the Mother-Church, and endow'd with Maintenance by the Founders, which were free for the Inhabitants of the Parish to come to, were therefore called Free-Chapels. Reg. Orig. 40, 41. The Free-Chapel of St. Martin le Grand is mentioned in the Stat. 3 Ed. 4. c. 4. as are others likewise, by antient Statutes: But these Chapels were given to the King, with the Chantries, &c. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14.

Freehold, (Liberum Tenementum) Is that Land or Tenement which a Man holds in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Term of Life. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 9. And is described to be of two Sorts: Freehold in Deed, and Freehold in Law; the First, being the real Possession of Lands, &c. in Fee, or for Life; and the other, the Right a Person hath to such Lands or Tenements, before his Entry or Seizure. Freehold is also extended to Offices, which a Man holds either in Fee, or for Life: And in the Register of Writs it is said, that he who holds Land upon an Execution of a Statute-Merchant, until he is satisfied the Debt, Tenet ut Liberum Tenementum sibi & assignatis suis; and the same of a Tenant by Elegit; but such Tenants are not Freeholders, only as Freeholders for their Time, 'till they have received the Profits of the Land to the Value of their Debt. Reg. Judic. 68, 73. A Lease for ninety-nine Years, &c. determinable upon a Life or Lives is not a Lease for Life to make a Freehold, but a Lease for Years or Chattel determinable upon Life or Lives: And an Estate for One thousand Years is not a Freehold, or of so high a Nature as an Estate for Life. Co. Litt. 6. He that hath an Estate for the Term of his own Life, or the Life of another, hath a Freehold, and no other of a less Estate; though they of a greater Estate have a Freehold, as Tenant in Fee, &c. Litt. 57. When a Man pleads Liberum Tenementum generally, it shall be intended that he hath an Estate in Fee; and not a bare Estate for Life. Cro. Eliz. 87. An Estate of Freehold cannot by the Common Law commence in futuro; but it must take presently in Possession, Reversion, or Remainder. 5 Rep. 94. A Man made a Deed of Gift to his Son and his Heirs, of Lands after his Death, and no Livery was made; now if there had been Livery, it had been void, because a Freehold cannot commence in futuro: And it has been held, that it shall not enure as a Covenant to stand seised, by Reason of the Word Give; by which was intended a Transmutation of the Estate, and not to pass it by Way of Use. March Rep. 50, 51. A Freehold Lease for Life, of any Thing, if it be in Esse before, it is said cannot begin at a Day to come. 1 Inst. 5. Whatsoever is Part of, or fix'd to the Freehold, goes to the Heir; and Glass-Windows, Wainscot, &c. affix'd to the House, are Parcel of the House, and cannot be removed by Tenants. 4 Rep. 63, 64. But it hath been adjudg'd, that if Things for Trade, &c. are fixed to the Freehold by the Lessee, he may take them down and remove them, so as he do it before the End of the Term, and he do not thereby injure the Freehold. 1 Salk. 368. Any Thing fix'd to the Freehold, as a Furnace, Windows, Boards, &c. of a House, may not be taken in Distress for Rent. 2 Danv. Abr. 641. Though it is not Felony to steal any Thing annex'd to the Freehold; such as Lead on a Church or House, Corn or Grass growing on the Ground, Apples on a Tree, &c. this is only Trespass: But if they are severed from the Freehold, whether by the Owner or the Thief, if he sever them at one Time, and take them away at another, it is Larceny to take them. 12 Aff. 32. 1 Hawk. 93. The Statute, of Magna Charta, c. 29. ordains, that no Person shall be disseised of his Freehold, &c. but by Judgment of his Peers, or according to the Law of the Land; which doth not only relate to common Disseisins, but the King may not otherwise seize into his Hands the Freehold of the Subject. Wood's Inst. 614. Freehold Estates, of certain Values, are required by Statutes to qualify Jurors; Electors of Knights of the Shire in Parliament, &c.

Freeholders, Are such as hold any Freehold Estate: By the antient Laws of Scotland, Freeholders were called Milites; and Freehold, in this Kingdom, hath been sometimes taken in Opposition to Villanage, it being Lands in the Hands of the Gentry and better Sort of Tenants, by certain Tenure, who were always Freeholders, contrary to what was in the Possession of the inferior People, held at the Will of the Lord. Lambard.

Freight, (Fr. Fret) Signifies the Money paid for Carriage of Goods by Sea; or in a larger Sense, it is taken for the Cargo, or Burthen of the Ship. Ships are freighted either by the Tun, or by the Great; and in Respect to Time, the Freight is agreed for at so much per Month, or at a certain Sum for the whole Voyage. If a Ship freighted by the Great, happens to be cast away, the Freight is lost; but if a Merchant agrees by the Tun, or at so much for every Piece of Commodities, and by any Accident the Ship is cast away, if Part of the Goods is saved, it is said he ought to be answered her Freight pro rata: And when a Ship is insured, and such a Misfortune happens, the Insured commonly transfer those Goods over to the Assurers, towards a Satisfaction of what they make good. Lex Mercat. or Merchant's Compan. 79. If Freight is agreed for the Lading and Unlading of Cattle at such a Port, and some of them die before the Ship arrives there, the whole Freight shall be paid for the Living and the Dead; but if the Agreement be for transporting them, Freight shall be only paid for the Living: And it is the same of Slaves. Ibid. 85. The Lading of a Ship, in Construction of Law, is bound for the Freight; the Freight being in Point of Payment preferr'd before any other Debts to which the Goods so laden are liable, though such Debts as to Time were precedent to the Freight: And Actions touching the same, are construed favourably for the Ship and Owners; for if four Part-Owners of Five, belonging to a Ship, settle their Accounts with the Freighters, and receive their Dues, yet the fifth Man may sue singly by himself without joining with the Rest, by the Common Law, and the Law Marine. Hill. 27 Car. 2. B. R. If Part of the Lading be on Ship-board, and through some Misfortune happening to the Merchant, he has not his full Lading aboard at the Time agreed, the Master shall have Freight by Way of Damage, for the Time those Goods were on Board; and is at his Liberty to contract with another, least he lose his Season and Voyage: And where a Ship is not ready to take in, or the Merchant not ready to lade aboard, the Parties are not only at Liberty, but the Person damnified may bring an Action against the other, and recover his Damages sustained. Leg. Rhod. If the Freighter of a Ship shall lade on board prohibited Goods, or unlawful Merchandize, whereby the Ship is detained, or the Voyage impeded; he shall answer the Freight agreed for. Style 220. And when Goods are laden aboard, and the Ship hath broke Ground, the Merchant may not afterwards unlade them; for if he then changes his Mind, and resolves not to venture, but will unlade again, by the Marine Law the Freight becomes due. If a Master freights out of his Ship, and afterwards secretly takes in Goods unknown to the first Laders, by the Law Marine he forfeits his Freight: And if a Master of a Ship shall put into any Port than what the Ship was freighted to, he shall answer Damages to the Merchant; unless he is forced in by Storm, Enemies, or Pirates; and in that Case he is obliged to fail to the Port agreed at his own Expence. Leg. Oleron. A Ship is freighted out, and in, there shall be no Freight due 'till the Voyage is perform'd; so that if the Ship be cast away coming home, the Freight outwards as well as inwards are both gone. 1 Brownl. 21. A Master of a Ship is not bound to answer Freight to the Owners for Passengers, where it appears they are not able to pay. See Charterparty.

French. King William 1. called the Conqueror, caused the Laws of this Realm, in his Time, to be written and pleaded in the French Language. 3 Rep. 17. One Justice of Peace upon Examination and Proof of the Offence, may commit the Offender till he hath paid the Forfeiture of 100 l. And Persons not qualified by Law, keeping Dogs, Nets, or other Engines to kill Game, being convicted thereof before a Justice of Peace, shall forfeit 5 l. or be sent to the House of Correction for three Months, and the Dogs, Game, &c. shall be taken from them, by the Stat. 5 Ann. No Certiorari shall be allowed to remove any Conviction or other Proceedings on the Stat. 5 Ann. &c. into any Court at Westminster, unless the Party convicted shall become bound to the Party prosecuting with sufficient Sureties, in the Sum of 50 l. to pay the Prosecutor his Costs and Charges, &c. after the Conviction confirmed, or a Proceudo granted. Ibid. In Convictions for keeping of Guns, the Peace is not concerned, but only the Qualification of the Persons that use them; so that it hath been adjudged the Justices of Peace have no general Power to punish the Offenders, for Want of Jurisdiction. 4 Mod. 49. But where a Person was brought before a Justice of Peace for shooting with Hail-shot in a Hand-gun, the Justice committed him to Prison until he should pay 10 l. &c. and having made a Record of his Conviction, it was certified upon the Return of an Habeas Corpus; and it was held, that if the Justice of Peace had pursued the Statute, no Court could discharge the Defendant. W. Jones 170. On a Certiorari to remove a Conviction before a Justice, &c. for carrying a Gun, not being qualified; it appeared upon the Return to be taken before a certain Justice of Peace, without adding, Necnon ad diversas felonias Transgressiones, audiend. assign. &c. and it was ruled that this was a good Exception upon a Certiorari to remove an Indictment taken at the Sessions; but not upon a Conviction of this Nature, because the Court can take Notice that the Statutes give the Justices Authority in these Cases. 1 Ventr. 33 Sid. 419. A Person was convicted before a Justice of Peace upon the Statute, for keeping a Gun, not having 100 l. per Annum; and the Conviction being removed into B. R. was quashed, for not saying when the Defendant had not 100 l. a Year; for it might be he had such Estate at the Time when he kept the Gun, though not at the Conviction, and the Offence and Time ought to be certainly alledged. 3 Mod. 280. The Defendant not having 100 l. per Annum, did shoot in a Gun in February, and was brought before a Justice of Peace in March following, and then by him convicted; and it was held, that as by the Statute no Time was limited when the Offender should be carried before a Justice to be examined, it therefore ought to be Instantur; which not being done, the Conviction was quashed. 4 Mod. 147. A Man was indicted for shooting of Game, but it was omitted shewing that he was not worth 100 l. a Year; and it was ordered by the Court, that the Party should shew he was worth so much to discharge him. 2 Keb. 582. If a Person hunt upon the Ground of another, such other Person cannot justify the Killing of his Dogs, as appears by 2 Roll. Abr. 567. But it was otherwise adjudged, Mich. 33 Car. 2. in C. B. 2 Cro. 44. and see 3 Lev. 28. Tho' the Common Law allows the Hunting of Foxes, and other ravenous Beasts of Prey, in the Ground of another Person; yet a Man may not dig and break the Ground to unearthen them, without Licence, which is unlawful; and the Owner of the Ground may maintain an Action of Trespass for it. 2 Roll. 538. Cro. Jac. 321. An Action was brought against a Person for entering another Man's Warren; the Defendant pleaded that there was a Pheasant on his Land, and his Hawk pursued it into the Plaintiff's Ground; it was resolved that this doth not amount to a sufficient justification, for in this Case he can only follow his Hawk, and not take the Game. Poph. 162. though it is said to be otherwise where the Soil of the Plaintiff is not a Warren. 2 Roll. Abr. 567. If a Man in Hunting starts a Hare upon his own Ground, and follows and kills it on the Ground of another, yet still the Hare is his own, because of the fresh Suit; but if a Man starts a Hare upon another Person's Ground, and hunts and kills it there, he is subject to an Action; tho' it is seldom brought, being frivolous. Cro. Car. 553.

Game-keepers, Are those who have the Care of keeping and preserving of the Game, being appointed thereto by Lords of Manors, &c. Lords of Manors or other Royalties, not under the Degree of an Esquire, may by Writing under Hand and Seal, authorize one or more Game-keepers; who may seize Guns, Dogs, Nets, and other Engines, made Use of to kill the Game by such Persons as are prohibited, for the Use of the Lord of the Manor, or otherwise destroy them. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. Any Lord or Lady of a Manor or Lordship, may empower his or her Game-keeper, within their respective Royalties, to kill Hare, Pheasant, Partridges, &c. But if the said Game-keeper shall under Colour of the said Power, kill and afterwards sell or dispose thereof to any Person whatsoever, without the Consent of the Lord or Lady of such Manor, upon Conviction thereof, he shall be committed to the House of Correction for three Months, there to be kept to hard Labour. 5 Ann. cap. 14. By the Stat. 9 Ann. no Lord or Lady of a Manor shall make, constitute or appoint, above one Person to be Game-keeper within any one Manor, with Power to kill Game; the Name of which Game-keeper so appointed, is to be entered with the Clerk of the Peace of the County wherein the Manor lies: And if any other Game-keeper shall presume to kill any Hare, Pheasant, Partridge, &c. Or if any Game-keeper shall sell any Hare, Hare, Pheasant, &c. he shall for every Offence incur such Forfeitures, as are inflicted by the Act 5 Ann. And by 3 Geo. c. 11. no Lord of a Manor is to make or appoint any Person to be a Game-keeper, with Power to take and kill Hare, Pheasant, Partridge, or other Game, unless such Person be qualified by Law so to do, or be truly and properly a Servant to the said Lord, or immediately employed to take and kill the Game for the sole Use or Benefit of the said Lord: And any Person not qualified, or not employed as aforesaid, who under Pretence of any Qualification from any Lord of a Manor, shall take or kill any Hare, &c. or shall keep or use any Dogs, to kill and destroy the Game, shall for every such Offence incur such Forfeitures, Pains and Penalties, as are inflicted by the Acts. 5 & 9 Ann. By this last Statute, no Game-keeper can qualify any Person to kill Game, or to keep Guns, Dogs, &c. Vide the Statutes.

Appointment of a Game-keeper by a Lord of a Manor.

TO all People to whom these Presents shall come, J. T. Lord A. Lord of the Manor of B. in the County of, &c. have (by Virtue of several Acts of Parliament lately made for the Preservation of the Game) nominated, authorized and appointed, and by these Presents do nominate, authorize and appoint E. D. of, &c. to be my Game-keeper of and within my Manor of, &c. in the County of, &c. aforesaid, with full Power and Authority, according to the Direction of the Statutes in that Case made, to kill Game for my Use; and to take and seize all such Guns, Greyhounds, Setting-dogs, and other Dogs, Ferrets, Trammels, Hays, or other Nets, Snares or Engines, for the Taking, Killing or Destroying of Hares, Pheasants, Partridges or other Game, as within the said Manor of, &c. and the Precincts thereof, shall be kept or used by any Person or Persons not legally qualified to do the same: And further to act and do all and every Thing and Things which belong to the Office of a Game-keeper, pursuant to the Direction of the said Acts of Parliament, during my Will and Pleasure, for which this shall be his sufficient Warrant. Given under my Hand and Seal, &c.

Gaming, Or Game: unlawful, (Ludos vanos) The Playing at Tables, Dice, Cards, &c. King Ed. 3. in the 39th Year of his Reign, enjoined the Exercise of Shooting and of Artillery, and forbade the Casting of the Bar, the Hand and Foot-balls, Cock-fighting, &c. alias Ludos vanos; but no Effect did follow from it, till they were some of them forbidden by Act of Parliament. 11 Rep. 87. Anno 28 Hen. 8. Proclamation was made against all unlawful Games, and Commissions awarded into all the Counties of England for the Execution thereof; so that in all Places, Tables, Dice, Cards and Bowls, were taken and burnt. Stow's Annals 527. And by the Stat. 33 Hen. 8. cap. 9. Justices of Peace, and head Officers in Corporations, are empowered to enter Houses suspected of unlawful Games; and to arrest and imprison the Gamesters, till they give Security not to play for the Future: Also the Persons keeping unlawful Gaming Houses, may be committed by a Justice, until they find Sureties not to keep such Houses; who shall forfeit 40 s. and the Gamesters 6 s. 8 d. No Artificer, Apprentice, Labourer or Servant, shall play at Tables, Tennis, Dice, Cards, Bowls, &c. out of Christmas

Time, on Pain of 20 s. for every Offence; and at Christmas, they are to play in their Master's House, or Presence: But any Nobleman, or Gentleman, having 100 l. per Ann. Estate, may licence his Servants or Family to play within the Precincts of his House, or Garden, at Cards, Dice, Tables, or other Games, as well among themselves, as others repairing thither. Stat. Ibid. This Act is to be proclaimed once a Quarter, in every Market-Town, by the respective Mayors, &c. and at every Assises and Sessions. A Person was convicted of keeping a Cock-Pit; and the Court resolved it to be an unlawful Game, within the Stat. 33 H. 8. and fined him 40 s. a Day. Keb. 510. But to play at Dice, &c. is not unlawful in it self; though prohibited by Statutes to certain Persons, and to be used in certain Places. 2 Ventr. 175. If any Person of what Degree soever, shall by Fraud, Deceit, or unlawful Device, in playing at Cards, Dice, Tables, Bowls, Cock-fighting, Horse-races, Foot-races, or other Games or Pastimes, or bearing a Share in the Stakes, Betting, &c. win any Money, or valuable Thing, he shall forfeit treble the Value, one Moiety to the Crown, and the other to the Party grieved, Prosecution being in six Months; in Default whereof, the last mentioned Moiety is to go to such other Person as will prosecute within one Year, &c. 16 Car. 2. c. 7. And by this Statute, if any Person shall play at any of the said Games, upon Tick, and not for ready Money; and shall lose above 100 l. upon Tick or Credit, at any one Meeting, if the Money be not paid down, his Security taken for it shall be void; and the Winner shall forfeit treble the Value of the Money won; one Moiety to the Crown, and the other Moiety to him that will sue for the same, by Action of Debt, Bill, Plaint or Information, &c. A Watch may be lost at Gaming, which is convertible to, or may be taken for ready Money; and it is not within the Statute. 1 Lev. 244. It has been adjudged, that if A. B. lose 100 l. to one, and afterwards 100 l. to another, upon Tick or Credit, it is not within the Meaning of the Statute, because it is a several Contract; but it would be otherwise on a joint Contract: And if a Person lost 200 l. in ready Money; and 100 l. more, for which he gave his Note, the Note would be good, but all beyond it be void. 1 Salk. 345. A Person brought an Action for 40 l. the Defendant pleaded it was for Money won at Play, and that at the same Time he also lost 66 l. to another; but on Demurrer the Plaintiff had Judgment, for it was held that Losing 106 l. to several Persons at one Time, is not within the Statute 16 Car. 2. unless they are Partners in the Stakes; for then as to the Chance of the Game, they are as one Person. Mich. 13 W. 3. 1 Salk. 345. Where Security is given for Money won at Gaming to a third Person, not being privy to it, or not knowing it was won at Play, it is not within the Statute; as where the Winner being indebted to another, brought the Loser to his Creditor, who entered into Bond to him, &c. 2 Mod. 297. If a Person lose Money at Play, and the Loser give the Winner a Bill for it drawn upon a third Person, who accepts the Bill; though the Acceptance of the Bill is in Nature of a new Contract, yet all is founded on the illegal Winning, and it is for the Security of the Payment of the Money lost; and therefore 'tis within the Statute: But if the Bill be assigned for a valuable Consideration to

a Stranger, such Assignee not being privy to the first Wrong, as was the Winner, it shall not be within the Statute. 1 Salk. 344. By the Statute of 9 Ann. cap. 14. all Notes, Bills, Bonds, Judgments, Mortgages, or other Securities, given for Money won by playing at Cards, Dice, Tables, Tennis, Bowls, or other Games; or by Betting on the Sides of such as play at any of those Games, or for Repayment of any Money knowingly lent for such Gaming or Betting, shall be void: And where Lands are granted by such Mortgages or Securities, they shall go to the next Person, who ought to have the same as if the Grantor were actually dead, and the Grants had been made to the Person so entitled after the Death of the Person so incumbering the same. If any Person playing at Cards, Dice, or other Game, or Betting, shall lose the Value of 10*l.* at one Time, to one or more Persons, and shall pay the Money, he may recover the Money lost by Action of Debt, within three Months afterwards; and if the Loser do not sue, any other Person may do it and recover the same, and treble the Value with Costs, one Moiety to the Prosecutor, and the other to the Poor: And the Person prosecuted shall answer upon Oath, on preferring a Bill to discover what Sums he hath won. Persons by Fraud, or ill Practice, in playing at Cards, Dice, or by bearing a Share in the Stakes, &c. or by Betting, winning any Sum above 10*l.* shall forfeit five Times the Value of the Thing won, and suffer such Infamy and corporal Punishment, as in Cases of wilful Perjury, being convicted thereof on Indictment or Information; and the Penalty shall be recovered by Action, by such Person as will sue for the same. And if any one shall assault and beat, or challenge to fight any other Person, on Account of Money won by Gaming, upon Conviction thereof, he shall forfeit all his Goods, and suffer Imprisonment for two Years. Stat. 9 Ann. Also by this Statute, any two or more Justices of Peace, may cause such Persons to be brought before them, as they suspect to have no visible Estates, &c. to maintain them; and if they do not make it appear, that the principal Part of their Expenses is got by other Means than Gaming, the Justices shall require Securities for their good Behaviour for a Twelve-month; and in Default of such Security, commit them to Prison until they find it: And Playing or Betting during the Time, to the Value of 20*s.* shall be deemed a Breach of Behaviour, and a Forfeiture of their Recognizances. Ibid. It was formerly held that Indebitatus Assumpsit would lie for Money won at Play; though some Judges were of Opinion it would not, but special Action upon the Case. 2 Lev. 118. 2 Ventr. 175. But it hath been since adjudged, that it will not lie, for there must be some Work done to maintain Action of Debt: And although a Cast of the Dice, alters the Property of the Money, if it is staked down, it being then a Gift on a Condition precedent, and an Indebitatus Assumpsit lies against him who holds the Wager, because it is a Promise in Law to deliver it if won; yet in other Cases, there is no Consideration. 5 Mod. 13. Mod. Caf. 128. Common Gaming Houses are a common Nuisance in the Eye of the Law; not only because they are great Temptations to Idleness, but as they draw together great Numbers of disorderly Persons, to the Disturbance of the Neighbourhood. 1 Hawk. P. C. 198.

Gang-days, (Dies Lustrationis) And Gang-weeks are mentioned in the Laws of King Athelstan. See Rogation Week.

Gaol, (Gaola, Fr. Geole, i. e. Gaveola, a Cage for Birds) Is used metaphorically for a Prison. It is a Place wherein a Man is restrained of his Liberty, to answer an Offence done against the Laws: And every County hath two Gaols, one for Debtors, which may be any House where the Sheriff pleases; the other for the Peace and Matters of the Crown, which is the County-Gaol. Mod. Inst. 230. And Justices of Peace may not commit Felons, and other Criminals, to the Counters in London, or other Prisons but the common Gaols; for they can legally imprison no where but in the common Gaol. Co. Lit. 9. 119. But the House of Correction, and the Counters of the Sheriffs of London, are the common Prisons for Offenders for the Breach of the Peace, &c. Sheriffs of Counties are to have the Keeping of the common Gaols; except such as are held by Inheritance. 19 Hen. 7. 10. And for the Relief of Prisoners in Gaols, Justices of Peace in Sessions have Power to tax every Parish in the County, not exceeding 8*d.* per Week, leviable by Constables, and distributed by Collectors, &c. 14 Eliz. cap. 5. Offenders committed to Prison, are to bear the Charges of their Conveying to Gaol; or on Refusal, their Goods shall be sold for that Purpose, by Virtue of a Justice of Peace's Warrant; and if they have no Goods, a Tax is to be made by Constables, &c. on the Inhabitants of the Parish where the Offenders were apprehended. 3 Fac. 1. c. 10. If a Gaol be out of Repair, insufficient, &c. the Justices of Peace in the Quarter-Sessions may agree with Workmen for Rebuilding or Repairing it; and by Warrant under their Hands and Seals, order the Sum agreed upon to be levied upon the several Hundreds and Divisions in the County, by a proportionate Rate. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 19.

Gaoler, Is the Master of a Prison; and Sheriffs must make such Gaolers for which they will answer: But if there is a Default in the Gaoler, Action lies against him for an Escape, &c. 2 Inst. 592. In common Cases, the Sheriff, or Gaoler, are chargeable at the Discretion of the Party; though the Sheriff is most usually charged. Wood's Inst. 76. He who hath the Custody of the Gaol wrongfully or of Right, shall be charged with the Escape of Prisoners; and if he that hath the actual Possession be not sufficient, Respondeat Superior. Ibid. A Gaoler kills an unruly Prisoner, it is no Felony; but if it be by hard Usage, it is Murder. 3 Inst. 52. And if a Gaoler barbarously misuse Prisoners, he may be fined and discharged. Raym. 216. If any Person assault a Gaoler, for keeping a Prisoner in safe Custody, he may be fined and imprisoned. 1 Hawk. 58, 59. Where a Gaol is broken by Thieves, the Gaoler is answerable; not if it be broken by Enemies. 3 Inst. 52. See Escape, Prisoners.

Gaol-delivery, The Administration of Justice being originally in the Crown, in former Times our Kings in Person rode through the Realm once in seven Years, to judge of and determine Crimes and Offences: Afterwards Justices in Eyre were appointed; and since Justices of Assize and Gaol-delivery, &c. A Commission of Gaol-delivery is a Patent in Nature of a Letter from the King to certain Persons, appointing them his Justices, or two or three of them, and authorizing them to deliver his Gaol, at such a Place, of the Prisoners

soners in it; for which Purpose, it commands them to meet at such Place, at the Time they themselves shall appoint; and informs them, that for the same Purpose the King hath commanded his Sheriff of the same County to bring all the Prisoners of the Gaol, and their Attachments before them, at the Day appointed. Crompt. Jurif. 125. 4 Inst. 168. Justices of Gaol delivery are empowered by the Common Law to proceed upon Indictments of Felony, Trespass, &c. and to order Execution or Reprieve: And they have not only Power to discharge such Prisoners, as upon their Trials shall be acquitted, but also all such against whom, upon Proclamation made, no Evidence appears to indict them; which Justices of Oyer and Terminer, &c. may not do. 2 Hawk. 24, 25. But these Justices have nothing to do with any Person not in Custody of the Prison, except in some special Cases; as if some of the Accomplices to a Felony be in such Prison, and some of them out of it, the Justices may receive an Appeal against those who are out of the Prison, as well as those who are in it; which Appeal after the Trial of such Prisoners, shall be removed into B. R. and Process issue from thence against the Rest; but if those out of Prison be omitted in the Appeal, they can never be put into any other, because there can be but one Appeal for one Felony. Fitz. Coron. 77. S. P. C. 64. Such Justices have no more to do with one let to Mainprise, than if he were at large; for such Person cannot be said to be a Prisoner, since it is not in the Power of his Sureties to detain him in their Custody: And where a Person is bailed, that he is in the Custody of his Sureties, they may detain him where they please. 2 Hawk. P. C. 25. Justices of Gaol delivery may punish those who unduly bail Prisoners; as being guilty of a negligent Escape. S. P. C. 77. 25 Ed. 3. 39. They are also to punish Sheriffs and Gaolers, refusing to take Felons into their Custody from Constables, &c. 4 Ed. 3. 10. and have Authority to punish many particular Offences by Statute.

It is sometimes used for all Manner of Corn and Grain, that is usually bound in Sheafs, as Decima Garbarum: And in some Places it is taken for an Handful, viz. Garba acervis fit ex triginta peciis. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 12. Garba Sagittarum is a Sheaf of Arrows containing twenty-four. Skene.

Garble, Is to sever the Dross and Dust from Spice, Drugs, &c. Garbling is the Purifying and Cleansing the Good from the Bad; and may come from the Italian Garbo, i. e. Finery or Neatness; and thence probably we say, when we see a Man in a neat Habit, that he is in a handsome Garb. Cowel.

Garbler of Spices, Is an Officer of Antiquity in the City of London, who may enter into any Shop, Warehouse, &c. to view and search Drugs and Spices, and garble, and make clean the same, or see that it be done. 21 Fac. 1. c. 19. And all Drugs, &c. are to be cleansed and garbled before sold, on Pain of Forfeiture or the Value. Stat. Ibid.

Garnish. To garnish the Heir, signifies in Law to warn the Heir. Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 3.

Garnishment, (Fr. Garnement, from Garnir, i. e. instruire) In a legal Sense intends a Warning given to one for his Appearance, for the better Furnishing of the Cause and Court. For Example; One is sued for the Detinue of certain Writings delivered; and the Defendant alledging that they were delivered to him by the Plaintiff, and another Person upon Condition, prays that the other Person may be warned to plead with the Plaintiff, whether the Conditions be performed or not; in this Petition he is said to pray Garnishment; which may be interpreted either a Warning of that other, or a Furnishing the Court with all Parties to the Action, whereby it may thoroughly determine the Cause; and until he appears and joins, the Defendant is as it were out of the Court. Crompt. Jurif. 211. F. N. B. 106. A Writ of Scire facias is to go forth against the other Person to appear and plead with the Plaintiff; and when he comes and thus pleads, it is called Enterpleader: If the Garnishee be returned Scire feci, and make Default, Judgment will be had to recover the Writings, and for their Delivery against the Defendant; and if the Garnishee appears and pleads, if the Plaintiff recovers, he shall have Damages. Rast. 213. 1 Brown. 147. Garnishment is generally used for a Warning; as Garnisher le Court is to warn the Court; and Reasonable Garnishment is where a Person hath reasonable Warning. Kitch. 6. In the Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 3. we read, upon a Garnishment, or two Nichils returned, &c. And further, some Contracts are naked, sans Garnement, and some furnished, &c.

Garnishee, Is a third Person or Party in whose Hands Money is attached within the Liberties of the City of London, by Process out of the Sheriff's Court; so called, because he hath had Garnishment or Warning, not to pay the Money to the Defendant, but to appear and answer to the Plaintiff Creditor's Suit. Garter, (Garterium, Fr. Fartier, i. e. Periscelis, Fascia poplitaria) Signifies in divers Statutes and elsewhere, a special Garter, being the Ensign of a Noble Order of Knights, instituted by King Ed. 3. called Knights of the Garter: It is also taken for the Principal King at Arms, among our English Heralds; attending upon the Knights thereof, created by King Hen. 5. and mentioned in the Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 33.

Garth, A little Backside or Clofe in the North of England; being an ancient British Word, as Gardd in that Language is Garden, and pronounced and writ Garth; also a Dam or Wear, &c.

Garthman. As there are Fishgarths or Wears, for catching of Fish, so there are Garthmen; for by Statute it is ordained, that no Fisher nor Garthman shall use any Nets or Engines to destroy the Fry of Fish, &c. 17 R. 2. c. 9. And this Word is supposed to be derived from the Scottish Gart, which signifieth enforced or compelled; and Fish are forced by the Wear to pass in a Loop, where they are taken.

Gate, At the End of the Names of Places, is taken for a Way or Path, from the Geat, i. e. Porta, and sometimes for a Gate.

Gabel, (Sax. Gafel) Tribute, Toll, Custom or yearly Revenue; of which we had in old Times several Kinds. See Gabel.

Gavelet, (Gaveletum) Is an ancient and special Kind of Cessavit used in Kent, where the Custom of Gavelkind continues, whereby a Tenant if he with-holds his Rents and Services due to the Lord, shall forfeit his Land: It was intended where no Distress could be found on the Premises, so that the Lord might seize the Land it self in the Name of a Distress, and keep it a Year and a Day; within which Time, if the Tenant came and paid his Rent, he was admitted to his Tenement to hold it as before; but if not, the Lord might enter and enjoy the same. 10 H. 3. 10 Ed. 2. The Lord was to seek by the Award of his Court, from three Weeks to three Weeks, to find some Distress upon the Land or Tenement, until the fourth Court; and if in that Time he could find none, at the fourth Court it was awarded that the Tenement should be seized as a Distress, and kept a Year and a Day without manuring; and if the Tenant did not in that Time redeem it, by paying the Rent, and making Amends to the Lord, the Lord having pronounced the same at the next County-Court, was awarded by his Court to enter and manure the Tenement as his own: And if the Tenement would afterwards have it again, he was to make Agreement with the Lord. Fitz. Cess. 60. Terms de Ley 373. Gaveletum is as much as to say to cease, or to let to pay the Rent; and Consuetudo de Gavelet was not a Rent or Service, but a Rent or Service with-held, denied or detained, causing the Forfeiture of the Tenement. Co. Lit.

Gavelet in London, (Breve de Gaveleto in London, pro redditu ibidem quia Tenementa fuerunt indistricibilia) Is a Writ used in the Hustings of London; and the Statute of Gavelet, 10 Ed. 2. gives this Writ to Lords of Rents in the City of London, as well as in Kent: Here the Parties, Tenant and Demandant, appear by Scire facias, to shew Cause why the one should not have his Tenement again on Payment of his Rent, or the other recover the Lands, on Default thereof. Practif. Solic. 419.

Gavelkind, Is said by Lambert to be compounded of three Saxon Words, Gyfe, Eal, Kyn, omnibus cognatione proximis data. Verstegan calls it Gavelkind, quasi Give all kind, that is to each Child his Part: And Taylor in his History of Gavelkind, derives it from the British Gavel, i. e. a Hold or Tenure; and Cenned, Generatio aut familia; and so Gavel cenedb might signify Tenuva Generationis. But whatever is the Etymology, it signifies a Tenure or Custom, annexed and belonging to Lands in Kent, whereby the Lands of the Father are equally divided at his Death among all his Sons; or the Land of the Brother among all the Brethren, if he have no Issue of his own. Litt. 210. In the Time of our Saxon Ancestors, the Inheritance of Lands did not descend to the eldest Son as now, but to all alike; from whence came the Custom of Gavelkind: And the Reason why this Custom was retained in Kent, is because the Kentishmen were not conquered by the Normans in the Time of Will. 1. For Stigand, then Archbishop of Canterbury, who commanded the Forces in that Country, ordered every Man to march with Boughs in their Hands, and meeting William, they acquainted him with their Resolution of standing and falling in Defence of the Laws of their Country; and he imagining himself to be encompassed in a Wood, granted that they and their Posterity should enjoy their Rights, Liberties and Laws; some of which, particularly this of Gavelkind continues to this Day. Blount. All the Lands of England were of the Nature of Gavelkind before the Conquest, and descended to all the Issue equally; but after the Conquest, (as it is called) when Knights-Service was introduced, the Descent was restrained to the eldest Son, for the Preservation of the Tenure. Lamb. 167. 3 Salk. 129. In the Reign of H. 6. there were not above thirty or forty Persons in all Kent that held by any other Tenure than this of Gavelkind; which was afterwards altered upon the Petition of divers Kentish Gentlemen, in much of the Land of that County, so as to be descendible to the eldest Son, according to the Course of the Common Law, by the Stat. 31 H. 8. cap. 3. But the Custom to devise Gavelkind Land, and the other Qualities and Customs remain. 1 Inst. 140. By the Statute 34 & 35 H. 8. cap. 26. all Gavelkind Lands in Wales were made descendible to the Heir, according to the Common Law; whereby it appears, that the Tenure of Gavelkind was likewise in that Principality. By the customary Tenure called Gavelkind, which is an ancient Socage Tenure, the Lands are dividable between the Heirs Male, who shall inherit as Sisters do at the Common Law; and when one Brother dies without Issue, all the other Brothers are to inherit. 1 Inst. 140. But a Father having Gavelkind Lands, had three Sons, one of them died in the Life-time of his Father, leaving Issue a Daughter; and it was held that the Daughter shall inherit the Part of her Father jure Representationis, and yet she is not within the Words of the Custom of dividing the Land between the Heirs Male, for she is the Daughter of a Male, and Heir by Representation. 1 Salk. 243. The Heir at the Age of fifteen Years, it is said, may give and sell his Lands in Gavelkind, and shall inherit. Co. Lit. 111. The Custom of Gavelkind is not altered, though a Fine be levied of of the Lands at Common Law ; because 'tis a Custom that runs with the Land. 6 Ed. 6. Land in Gavelkind was devised to the Husband and Wife for Life, Remainder to the next Heir Male of their Bodies, &c. They had three Sons, and it was adjudged that the eldest Son should not have the Whole. Dyer 135. A Donee in Tail, of Gavelkind Lands, had Issue four Sons ; and it was held, that all should inherit : But if a Lease for Life is made of Gavelkind, Remainder to the right Heirs of A. B. who hath Issue four Sons, in this Case the eldest Son shall inherit the Remainder ; because in Case of Purchase, there can be but one right Heir. 1 Rep. 103. If Gavelkind Lands come to the Crown, and are regranted to hold in Capite, &c. the Land shall descend to all the Heirs Males as Gavelkind. 4 & 5 Mar. 2. Nell. Abr. 895. A Wife shall be endowed of Gavelkind Land, of a Moiety of the Land whereof her Husband died seised, during her Widowhood. 1 Inst. 111. And it has been adjudged, that the Widow cannot have Election to demand her Thirds or Dower at Common Law, so as to avoid the Custom, and marry a second Husband, by which she shall lose her Dower. Moor 260. But see 1 Leon. 62. the Husband shall be Tenant by the Curtesy of Half the Gavelkind Lands of the Wife, during the Time he continues unmarried, without having any Issue by his Wife ; but if he marry, he shall forfeit his Tenancy by the Curtesy. 1 Inst. 111. If the Husband had Issue by his Wife, and she die, he shall be Tenant by the Curtesy of the whole Land ; and tho' he do marry, he shall not forfeit his Tenancy. Mich. 21 Car. B. R. 1 Lill. Abr. 649. Although a Father be attainted of Treason or Felony, and hanged, the Heir of Gavelkind Lands shall inherit ; for the Custom is the Father to the Bough, and the Son to the Plough. Doct. & Student, c. 10. A Rent in Fee granted out of Gavelkind Land, shall descend in Gavelkind to all the Heirs Male, as the Lands would have done ; it being of the same Nature with the Land it self. 2 Lev. 138. 1 Mod. 97. All Lands in Kent shall be taken to be Gavelkind, except those which are disgavelled by particular Statutes. 1 Mod. 98. If Lands are alleged to be in Kent, it shall be intended that they are Gavelkind ; if the contrary doth not appear. 2 Sid. 153. By Hale Chief Justice, Gavelkind Law is the Law of Kent, and is never pleaded, but presumed : And it has been held, that the superior Courts may take Notice of Gavelkind generally, without Pleading, though not of the special Custom of devising it, &c. which ought to be pleaded specially : But it appears by some of our Books, that the Court cannot judicially take Notice of the Custom of Gavelkind, without pleading the same ; and that it ought to be set forth in the Declaration, &c. 1 Mod. 98. Cro. Car. 465. 1 Lutw. 236, 754.

Gavelman, Is a Tenant liable to Tribute. — Villani de, &c. qui vocantur Gavelmanni. Somn. of Gavelkind, pag. 33. And Gavelling Men were Tenants who paid a reserved Rent, besides some customary Duties to be done by them. Cartular. Abbat. Glaston. M.S. fol. 38.

Gavelmed, The Duty or Work of mowing Grass, or cutting of Meadow Land, required by the Lord from his customary Tenants. Consuetudo falcandi quæ vocatur Gavelmed. Somn.

metendi 40 acras & dimid. de Gave.rip in Autumno 40. Sol. & sex Denar.

Gabelsefter, (Sax.) Sextarius Vectigalis, Is a certain Measure of Rent-Ale : And among the Articles to be charged on the Stewards and Bailiffs of the Manors belonging to the Church of Canterbury in Kent, according to which they were to be accountable, this of Old was one : De Gabelsefter cujuslibet Bracini braciati infra Libertatem Maneriorum, viz. unam Lagenam & dimidiam Cervisie. This Duty elsewhere occurs under the Name of Tolsefter ; in Lieu whereof the Abbot of Abington was wont of Custom to receive the Penny mentioned by Selden in his Dissertation annexed to Fleta, cap. 8. Nor doth it differ from what is called Oakgavel in the Glossary at the End of Hen. 1. Laws. Sax. Dist.

Gabelswerk, (Sax.) Was either Manu-opera, by the Hands and Person of the Tenant, or Carropera by his Carts or Carriages. Philips of Purvey.

Gaugeum, A Gauge or Gauging, done by the Gauger ; and the true English Gauge is mentioned Rot. Parl. 35 Ed. 1.

Gauger, (Gaugeator, Fr. Gauchir, i. e. in gyrum torquere) Signifies an Officer appointed by the King, to examine all Tuns, Pipes, Hogsheds, Barrels and Tercians of Wine, Oil, Honey, &c. and to give them a Mark of Allowance, as containing lawful Measure, before they are sold in any Place : And because his Mark is a Circle made with an Iron Instrument for that Purpose, it seems to have its Name from thence. Of this Officer and his Office, we have many Statutes ; as by 27 Ed. 3. cap. 8. all Wines, &c. imported, are to be gauged by the King's Gaugers, or their Deputies : By 31 Ed. 3. c. 5. Selling Wine before gauged, incurs Forfeiture or the Value. And by 23 H. 6. cap. 16. the Gauge-Penny is to be paid Gaugers, on gauging Wines. The 31 El. ordains, that Beer, &c. imported, shall be gauged by the Master and Wardens of the Coopers Company. See 12 Car. 2. c. 4. Vide Excise.

Gauge-penny, The Gauger's Fee, allowed by 23 H. 6.

Geburship, (Geburscipa) Neighbourhood, or adjoining District. Leg. Edw. Confess. c. 1.

Geburus, A Country Inhabitant of the same Gebureship or Village ; from the Sax. Gebure, a Carl, Ploughman, or Farmer. Convel.

Geld, (Geldum) Multa, Compensatio Delicti & Pretium rei. Hence in our ancient Laws, Wergild was used for the Value or Price of a Man slain ; and Orgild of a Beast : Likewise Money or Tribute ; for it is said, Et sint quieti de Geldis, Danegeldis, Horngeldis, Blodwita, &c. Chart. Rich. 2. Priorat. de H. in Devon. Pat. 5. Ed. 4. Angeld is the single Value of a Thing ; Twigeld, double Value, &c.

Geldable, (Geldabilis) That is liable to pay Tax or Tribute. Cambden dividing Suffolk into three Parts, calls the first Geldable, because subject to Taxes ; from which the other two Parts were exempt, as being Ecclesia Donata. This Word is mentioned in the Stat. 27 H. 8. cap. 26. But in an old M.S. it is expounded to be that Land or Lordship, which is sub districtione Curie vicecom. 2 Inst. 701. — Fur. dicunt quod Prior de Sempringham tenet tres Carucatas terra in S. & non sunt Geldabiles. Ex Rot. Hundr. in Turr. Lond. Ann. 3 Ed. 1.

Generale. The single Commons, or ordinary Provision of the Religious, were termed Generale, as their general Allowance, distinguished from their Pietantie or Pittances; which upon extraordinary Occasions were thrown in as Overcommons. In the Observances of the Cluniac Monks, they are described thus: Generale appellamus quod singulis in singulis datur scutellis: Pietantia quod in uno scutella duobus. They are also described amongst other Customs. Cartular. Glaston. M.S. fol. 10.

Generals of Orders, Chiefs of the several Orders of Monks, Friars, and other religious Societies.

Gentleman, (Generosus) Is compounded of two Languages, from the Fr. Gentil, i. e. Honestus, vel honesto loco natus, and the Sax. Mon, a Man; as if you would say a Man well born. The Italians call those Gentil homini whom we stile Gentlemen; the French likewise distinguish such by the Name of Gentilhomme; And the Spaniards keep up to the Meaning of the Word, calling him Hidalgo or Hijo d'alga, who is the Son of a Man of Account; so that Gentlemen are such whom their Blood or Race doth make known. Under the Denomination of Gentleman, are comprised all above Yeomen; whereby Noblemen are truly called Gentlemen. Smith de Rep. Ang. lib. 1. cap. 20, 21. A Gentleman is generally defined to be one, who without any Title, bears a Coat of Arms, or whose Ancestors have been Freemen; and by the Coat that a Gentleman giveth, he is known to be, or not to be descended from those of his Name, that lived many hundred Years since. Cicero in his Topicks, speaks thus of this Subject; Gentiles sunt, qui inter se eodem sunt nomine ab ingenuis oriundi, quorum majorum nemo servitutem servavit, qui capite non sunt diminuti. There is said to be a Gentleman by Office, and in Reputation, as well as those that are born such. 2 Inst. 668. And we read that J. Kingston was made a Gentleman by King R. 2. Pat. 13 R. 2. par. 1. Gentilis Homo for a Gentleman, was adjudged a good Addition. Hill. 27 Ed. 3. But the Addition of Esquire, or Gentleman, was rare before 1 H. 5. though that of Knight is ancient. 2 Inst. 595, 667.

Gentlewoman, (Generosa) Is a good Addition for the Estate and Degree of a Woman; as Generosus is for that of a Man; and if a Gentlewoman be named Spinster in any Original Writ, Appeal, &c. it hath been held that she may abate, and quash the same. 2 Inst. 668.

Gift, (Donum) Is a Conveyance, which passeth either Lands or Goods. And a Gift is of a larger Extent than a Grant, being applied to Things moveable and immoveable; yet as to Things immoveable, when taken strictly, it is applicable only to Lands and Tenements given in Tail; but Gift and Grant are often confounded. Wood's Inst. 260. A Gift may be by Deed, in Word or in Law: All Goods and Chattels personal may be given without Deed, except in some special Cases; and a Free Gift is good without a Consideration. Perk. 57. But a general Gift of all one's Goods, without any Exception, tho' this be by Deed, it is liable to Suspicion as fraudulent, to deceive Creditors; for by giving all a Man's Goods, there seems to be a secret Trust and Confidence implied, that the Donee shall deal favourably with the Donor, in Respect to his Circumstances. 3 Rep. 80. And therefore whenever any Gift shall be made, in Satisfaction of a Debt, it is good to make it in a publick Manner before Neighbours; that the Goods and Chattels be appraised to the full Value, and the Gift expressly made in Satisfaction of the Debt; and that on the Gift, the Donee take Possession of them, &c. Hob. 230. If a Man intending to give a Jewel to another, say to him, Here I give you my Ring, with the Ruby in it, &c. and with his own Hand delivers it to the Party; this will be a good Gift, notwithstanding the Ring should bear any other Jewel, being delivered by the Party himself to the Person to whom given. Bac. Max. 87. And if a Person give a Horse to another, being present, and bid him take the Horse, tho' he call the Man by a wrong Name, it will be a good Gift: But it would be otherwise if the Horse was delivered for the Use of another Person, being absent; there a Mistake of the Name would alter the Case. Ibid. As to Gifts in Law, when a Man is married to a Woman, all her Goods and Chattels by Gift in Law become the Husband's; but then he is liable for her Debts: So if a Man is made Executor of a Will, the Law gives him all the Goods and Chattels of the Testator, subject to the Testator's Debts: And if a Person make a Suit of Cloaths for another, and put it upon him to use and wear, this will be a Gift or Grant in Law of the Apparel made. 1 Inst. 351. The Words Give and Grant, in Deeds of Gift, &c. of Things which lie in Grant, will amount amount unto a Grant, a Feoffment, a Gift, Release, Confirmation or Surrender, at the Election of the Party, and may be pleaded as a Gift, or Grant, Release, &c. at his Election. 1 Inst. 301. And Words shall be marshalled so in Gifts and Grants, that where they cannot take Effect according to the Letter, the Law will make such Construction as the Gift by Possibility may take Effect: Benigna sunt Interpretationes Chartarum propter simplicitatem Laicorum, ut res, &c. Co. Lit. 183. Gifts and Grants are said to be alike in Nature, and equal in Power.

Glebe, (Gleba) Is Church-land; Dos vel Terræ ad Ecclesiam pertinens. Lynde-wode says, Gleba est terra in qua consistit Dos Ecclesiæ; generaliter tamen sumitur pro solo vel pro terra culta. We most commonly take it for the Land belonging to a Parish-Church, besides the Tithes. If any Parson, Vicar, &c. hath caused any of his Glebe Lands to be manured and sown at his own Costs, with any Corn or Grain, the Incumbents may devise all the Profits and Corn growing upon the said Glebe by Will. Stat. 28 H. 8. c. 11. And if a Parson sows his Glebe and dies, the Executors shall have the Corn sown by the Testator. But if the Glebe be in the Hands of a Tenant, and the Parson dies after Severance of the Corn, and before his Rent due; it is said neither the Parson's Executors, or the Successor, can claim the Rent, but the Tenant may retain it, and also the Crop, unless there be a special Covenant for the Payment to the Parson's Executor proportionably, &c.

Good Abearing, (Bonus Gestus) Signifies an exact Carriage or Behaviour of a Subject towards the King and the People; whereunto some Persons upon their Misbehaviour are bound: And he that is bound to this, is said to be more strictly bound than to the Peace; because where the Peace is not broken, the Surety de Bono Gestu may be forfeited by the Number of a Man's Company, or by their Weapons. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 2. cap. 2. 34 Ed. 3. c. 1.

Good Behaviour, Surety for the Good Behaviour is Surety for the Peace, and differs very little from Good Abearing. A Justice of Peace may demand it ex Officio, according to his Discretion, where he sees Cause; or at the Request of any other under the King's Protection: His Warrant also is to be issued when he is commanded to do it by Writ of Supplicavit out of the Chancery or B. R. It may be granted against any Persons whatsoever, under the Degree of Nobility, against whom Complaint is to be made in the Court of Chancery, or in B. R. and they may be bound there to keep the Peace. Dalt. 267, 268. The Warrant of the Justice to keep the Peace, is to be granted against Infants, and Feme Coverts, who ought to find Security by their Friends, and not be bound themselves; it may be had against the Husband, at the Request of the Wife, and against the Wife, at the Request of the Husband; against a Lunatick, that hath sometimes lucid Intervals; (but not against a Non Compos, against or for one attainted of Felony, &c.) against any Person affronting a Judge, Justice of Peace, &c. and in a Word against all Persons that are suspected to break the Peace, or that do break it by Affrays, Assaults, Battery, Wounding, Fighting, Quarrelling, threatening to beat another, or to burn his House, Rioters, &c. and in all Cases, where there is a future Danger. Dalt. 263, 264. 4 Inst. 180. Also one may be bound to his Good Behaviour for a scandalous Way of Living, for keeping Bawdy-Houses or haunting them, Gaming-Houses, &c. and so may common Drunkards, Whoremongers, and common Whores, Night-walkers, and those that live idly, Cheats, Libellers, &c. Dalt. 292, 293. A Woman who is a common Scold may be bound to the Good Behaviour: But the Stat. 34 Ed. 3. c. 1. only relates to Misbehaviours against the Publick Peace; so that it ought not to be demanded for private Defamation of another, but for Words only, which tend to the Breach of the Peace, or terrifying others, or unto Sedition, &c. 4 Inst. 181. 1 Lill. Abr. 650, 651. A Justice of Peace may not bind any Person to the Good Behaviour, upon a general Accusation made against the Party. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. He that demands Security for the Peace, must make Oath before the Justice of Blows given, or that he stands in Fear of his Life or some bodily Hurt, or that he fears the Party will burn his House, &c. and that he doth not demand the Peace of him for any Malice or Revenge, but for his own Safety; whereupon the Justice grants his Warrant to bring the Party before him, and then Security is to be given by Recognizance for the Good Behaviour; or on Default thereof, the Party shall be committed to Gaol. 1 Inst. 293. 4 Inst. 180. and when Security for the Peace is given to the King by Recognizance in a Penal Sum, if the Peace is afterwards broken by any Act of the Party, or by his Procuring another to break it, &c. it is a Forfeiture of the Recognizance, which being brought to the next Sessions of the Peace by the Justice, the Justices in Sessions are to certify the Recognizance, with the Cause of For-

Forfeiture, into the B. R. or the Exchequer, &c. from whence Process shall go out against the Offender. Dalt. 277, 296. Justices of Peace, under Colour of their Authority, use to require the Good Behaviour of every one at their Pleasure; and if they refused, then to commit them to Prison: But if they have not good Cause to require Sureties for Good Behaviour, and the Party refusing to give it is committed to Prison, false Imprisonment well lies; for the Statute which gives the Justices that Authority, is principally against Vagabonds. 1 Lill. 651. The Surety for the Peace or Good Behaviour may be released by the Justice that took it, and the Party upon whose Complaint it was granted. Dalt. 296. But it is said such a Recognizance may not be discharged by Release of the Party himself; because the Cognisor is bound to the King, and to keep the Peace in general; tho' by the Death of the King, or of the Principal Cognisor, (not of the Sureties) it is discharged of Course. Roll Rep. 199.

Sir Edward Coke derives this Word from Gurges, a deep Pit of Water, and calls it a Gors or Gulf; but this seems to be a Mistake, for in Domesday it is called Gourt and Gort, the French Word for a Wear. *Co. Grand Distress, Is a Writ so called not for the Quantity of it, for it is very short, but for its Quality, for the Extent thereof is very great, being to all the Goods and Chattels of the Party distrained within the County: It lies in two Cases, either when the Tenant or Defendant is attach'd, and appears not, but makes Default; or where the Tenant hath once appear'd, and after makes Default, then this Writ is had by the Common Law in lieu of a Petit Cape. Grant, (Concessio) Signifies a Conveyance in Writing of Incorporeal Things not lying in Livery, and which cannot pass by Word only; as of Reversions, Advowsons in Gross, Tithes, Services, Rent, Common in Gross, &c. 1 Inst. 172. 3 Rep. 63. And Grants are made by such Persons as cannot give but by Deed; but this Difference is oftentimes neglected, and then it is taken generally for every Gift whatsoever made of any Thing by any Person: And he that Granteth is termed the Grantor; and he to whom the Grant is made is the Grantee. West. Symb. Sect. 234. Any natural Person, or corporate Body, (not prohibited by Law, as Infants, Feme Coverts, Monks, &c.) may be a Grantor; and an Infant, or Woman Covert may be a Grantee. Perk. 3, 4, 43, &c. Tho' the Infant at his full Age may disagree to the Grant, and the Husband disagree to the Grant to his Wife. Ibid. Grants made by Persons non sana memoria, are good against themselves; but they are voidable by their Heirs, &c. A Person attainted of Treason or Felony, may make a Deed of Gift or Grant, and be good against all Persons, except the King and the Lord of whom the Lands are held; and for Relief in Prison, they may be good against them likewise. 1 Inst. 2. Perk. Sect. 26, 31. Regularly to every good Grant the following Things are requisite: 1. That there be a Person able to Grant. 2. A Person capable of the Thing granted.

granted. 3. That there be a Thing grantable. 4. That it be granted in such manner as the Law requires. 5. That there be an Agreement to and Acceptance of the Thing granted, by him to whom made. And 6. There ought to be an Attornment where needful. 1 Inst. 73. But Grants and Conveyances are good, without Attornment of Tenants, Notice being given them of the Grants by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. Grants are taken most strongly against the Grantor in Favour of the Grantee: The Grantee himself is to take by the Grant immediately, and not a Stranger, or any in futuro; and if a Grant be made to a Man and his Heirs, he may assign at his Pleasure, tho' the Word Assigns be not expressed. Litt. 1. Saund. 322. The Use of any Thing being granted, all is granted necessary to enjoy such Use: And in the Grant of a Thing, what is requisite for the Obtaining thereof is included. 1 Inst. 56. So that if Timber-Trees are granted, the Grantee may come upon the Grantor's Ground to cut and carry them away. 2 Inst. 309. Plowd. 15. Where the principal Thing is granted, the Incident shall pass; but the Principal will not pass by the Grant of the Incident. 1 Inst. 152. A Lord of a Manor cannot grant the same, and reserve the Court-Baron, it being inseparably incident. Ibid. 313. A Grant of a Manor, without the Words cum pertinentiis, will pass all Things belonging to the Manor: A Grant of a Farm will also pass all Lands belonging to it; but a Grant of a Messuage passes only the House, Outhouses and Gardens. Owen's Rep. 51. Tot. il. Maner. de A. may be taken in the singular or plural Number; and Dashes and Abbreviations in Grants shall be so taken that the Grant be not void. 9 Rep. 48. Where Lands are granted by Deed, the Houses which stand thereon will pass: Houses and Mills will pass by the Grant of all Lands, because that is the most durable Thing on which they are built. 4 Rep. 86. 2. And. 123. By Grant of all the Lands the Woods will pass: And if a Man grant all his Trees in a certain Place, this passeth the Soil; tho' an Exception of Wood extends to the Trees only, and not the Soil. 1 Roll. Rep. 33. Dyer 19. 5 Rep. 11. Trees in Boxes will not pass by the Grant of the Land, &c. because they are separate from the Freehold. Mod. cap. 170. A Man grants all his Wood that shall grow in Time to come; it is a void Grant, not being in Esse. 3 Leon. 57. A Grant de Vespura Terra passeth not the Freehold, because the Soil itself belongs to another; and the Grantee hath no Authority to dig in it by Virtue of such a Grant. Owen 37. By the Grant of all Lands in the Possession of another, it is good if such other be in Possession, let the Possession be by Right or Wrong. 1 Roll. Rep. 23. When a Grant is general, and the Lands granted restrained to a certain Vill, the Grantee shall have no Lands out of the Vill. 2 Rep. 33. If I grant all my Lands in D. which I had by the Grant of A. B. this is a good Grant of all my Lands in D. whether I had them of A. B. or any other. Mich. 2. Fac. 2. It has been held, that where a Grant is made of Lands and Tenements in D. Copyhold Lands will not pass; because they cannot pass otherwise than by Surrender. Owen 37. When Lands are certainly described in a Grant, with Recital as granted to A. B. &c. tho' they were not thus granted, it has been adjudged that the Grant was good. 10 Rep. 110. A first Description of Lands in a Grant is false, notwithstanding the second be true, nothing will pass by it; tho' if the first be true, and the second false, the Grant may be good. 3 Rep. 10. The Word Grant, where it is placed among other Words of Demise, &c. shall not enure to pass a Property in the Thing demised; but the Grantee shall have it by Way of Demise. Dyer 56. This Word imports a general Warranty against all Men in Grants, and shall not be qualified by a subsequent Clause of Warranty against the Makers own Acts only. 2 Cro. 233. But a Man cannot grant that which he hath not, or more than he hath: Tho' he may covenant to purchase an Estate, and levy a Fine to Uses, which will be good. Bac. Max. 58. A Man may grant a Reversion as well as a Possession; but the Law will not allow of Grants of Titles only, or imperfect Interests, or of such Interests as are merely future. Ibid. A bare Possibility of an Interest, which is uncertain; a Right of Entry or Thing in Action, Cause of Suit, &c. may not be granted over to a Stranger. Perk. Sect. 65. 1 Inst. 214. 4 Rep. 66. It was formerly held, that by a Grant of all a Man's Goods and Chattels, Bonds would pass; now 'tis held the contrary, that the Words Goods and Chattels do not extend to Bonds, Deeds or Specialties, being Things in Action, unless in some special Cases. 8 Rep. 33. 1 Inst. 152. In Grants there must be a Foundation of Interest, or they will not be binding: If a Person grants a Rent-Charge out of Lands, when he hath nothing in the same Land, tho' he afterwards purchase the same, the Grant will be void. Perk. 15. Tho' it is said, if a Man grant an annual Rent out of Land, wherein he hath no Kind of Interest, yet it may be good to charge the Person of the Grantor. Owen Rep. 3. A Man may grant an Annuity for him and his Heirs, to commence after his Death, and it shall charge the Heir. Bac. Max. 58. And after the Grant of an Annuity, &c. is determined, Debt lies for the Arrears; and the Person of the Tenant will be charged. 7 Rep. 39. If a common Person grants a Rent, or other Thing that lies in Grant, without Limitation of any Estate, by the Delivery of the Deed, a Freehold passes: But if the King make such a Grant of a Rent, &c. it is void for Uncertainty. Dav. Rep. 45. A Grant to a Man, with a Blank for his Christian Name, is void, except to an Officer known by his Office, when it must be averred: And it is the same where the Grantee's Christian Name is mistaken. Cro. El. 328. And Grants may be void by Incertainty, Impossibility; being against Law, on a wrong Title, to defraud Creditors, &c. 1 Inst. 183. Grants are usually made by these Words, viz. Have Given, Granted and Confirmed, &c. And Words in Grants shall be construed according to a reasonable Sense, and not strained to what is unlikely. Hob. 304. Also it hath been adjudged, that Grants shall be expounded according to the Substance of the Deed, not the strict Grammatical Sense; and agreeable to the Intention of the Parties. 1 Inst. 146, 313.

D. and his Assigns, into the said Premises abovementioned, or into any Part thereof, to Enter and Distrain, and the Distress and Distresses then and there found, to take, lead, drive, carry away and impound, and the same in Pound to detain and keep until the said Annuity, and the Arrears thereof (if any be) together with all Costs and Charges thereabout, shall be fully paid and satisfied. And the said A. B. for himself, his Heirs and Assigns, doth Covenant and Grant to and with the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, that he the said A. The King's Grant is good for himself and Successors, tho' his Successors are not named. Yelv. 13. Before the Statute de prerogativa Regis, Dowers, Advowsons, and other Things, have passed by the general Grant of the King; but by that Statute they are to be granted in express Words. 1 Rep. 50. The King may not grant away an Estate-tail in the Crown, &c. And the Law takes care to preserve the Inheritance of the King for the Benefit of the Successor. 2 And. 154. Style 263. A Grant may not be made by the King which tends to a Monopoly against the Interest and Liberty of the Subject: Nor can the King make a Grant non obstante any Statute made or to be made; if he doth, any subsequent Statute prohibiting what is granted, will be a Revocation of the Grant. 11 Rep. 87. Dyer 52. Where the King is restrained by the Common Law to make a Grant, if he makes a Grant Non obstante the Common Law, it will not make the Grant good; but when he may lawfully make a Grant, and the Law requires he should be fully apprised of what he grants, and not be deceived, a Non obstante supplies it, and makes the Grant good: If the Words are not sufficient to pass the Thing granted, a Non obstante will not help. 4 Rep. 35. Nels. Abr. 904. If a Grant is made by the King, and a former Grant is in Being of the same Thing, if it be not recited, the Grant will be void: And Reciting a void Grant, when there is another good, may make the King's Grant void. Dyer 77. Cro. Car. 143. But there may be a Non obstante to a former Grant. If the King is deceived in his Grant, as where it contains more than was intended to be granted; or if there be any Deceit in the Consideration, &c. such Grant of the King is void. 5 Rep. 94. Moor 293. And the King's Grants may be void by Reason of Incertainty; as if Debts and Duties are granted, without saying in particular what Duties, &c. 12 Rep. 46. But where there is a particular Certainty preceding, they shall not be destroyed by any Incertainty or Mistake which follows: And there is a Distinction where a Mistake of Title is prejudicial to the King, and when it is in some Description of the Thing which is supplemental only and not material or issuable. 1 Mod. 195.

is either Legitimus, Testamentarius, Datus or Custumarius: He that is a legitimate or lawful Guardian is so Jure Communi or Jure Naturali; the first as Guardian in Chivalry, who is so either in Fact or in Right; the other de Jure Naturali, as Father or Mother: A Testamentary Guardian was by the Common Law; for the Body of the Minor was to remain with him who was appointed, till the Age of Fourteen. And as for his Goods it might be longer, or as long as the Testator appointed; but as to this Matter there are several Statutes: Guardianus Datus was by the Father in his Life-time, or by the Lord Chancellor after the Death of the Father; and where there is a Guardianship by the Common Law, the Lord Chancellor can order and intermeddle, but where by Statute he cannot remove either the Child or the Guardian: Guardianship by Custom is of Orphans by the Custom of London, and other Cities and Boroughs; and in Copyhold Manors, by the Custom it may belong to the Lord of the Manor to be Guardian himself, or to appoint one. 3 Salk. Rep. 176, 177. The Guardianships, by the Common Law, are Guardians in Chivalry; (taken away by Statute) Guardians by Nature, such as the Father or Mother; Guardians in Socage, who are the next of Blood, to whom the Inheritance cannot descend, if the Father does not order it otherwise; and Guardian because of Nurture, when the Father by Will appoints one to be Guardian of his Child. 1 Inst. 88. 2 Inst. 305. 3 Rep. 37. The eldest Son of the Half-blood shall be Guardian in Socage to a Son by a second Venter: And the Guardianship in Socage continues till the Minor accomplishes the Age of Fourteen Years, and then he may chuse his Guardian before a Judge at his Chamber, or in Court, or in the Chancery: Also after the Minor is come to the Age of Fourteen, he may sue his Guardian in Socage to account as Bailiff, &c. Cro. Jac. 219. Tho' a Father is Guardian by Nature, yet a Man may be Guardian to an Infant against his Father, for Prevention of Waste; which is a Forfeiture of Guardianship. Hardr. 96. Guardian in Socage shall make no Waste nor Sale of the Inheritance, but keep it safely for the Heir: And where there hath been some Doubt of the Sufficiency of Guardian in Socage, the Chancery hath obliged him to give Security. 2 Mod. 177. Also a Guardian may be ordered to enter into Security by Recognizance not to suffer a Female Infant to marry whilst in his Custody; and to permit other Relations to visit her, &c. 2 Lev. 128. And the Court of Chancery will make such Guardian give Security not to marry the Infant, without the Court is first acquainted with it. 2 Chanc. Rep. 237. Before the Act of 12 Car. 2. Tenant in Socage might have disposed of his Land in Trust for the Benefit of the Heir; but it is said he could not devise or dispose of the Guardianship or Custody of the Heir from the next of Kin to whom the Land could not descend, because the Law gave the Guardianship to such next of Kin. Keilw. 186. But now Tenant in Socage may nominate whom he pleases to have the Custody of the Heir, and the Land shall follow the Guardianship, as an Incident given by Law to attend the Custody; and such special Guardian cannot assign the Custody by any Act, the Trust being Personal; nor shall it go to the Executor or Administrator of the Guardian, but determines by his Death. Vaugh. 180. Dyer 189. Guardianship by Statute is by the 12 Car. 2. c. 24. by which it is enacted, enacted, That a Father by Deed in his Life-time, or by Will, may dispose of the Custody of his Child under twenty-one Years of Age, and not married at the Time of his Death, and whether then born, or in Ventre sa Mere, during the Minority, to any Persons not Popish Recusants, who may maintain Action of Trespass, &c. against unlawful Takers away of such Children, and take into Custody their Lands, &c. And by this Statute the Father may appoint a Guardian to his Heir for any Time till he is twenty-one Years old; and such Guardian shall have the like Remedy for his Ward as the Guardian in Socage had at Common Law. 2 Nelf. Abr. 911. But if the Father appoint no Guardian to his Child, the Ordinary or Spiritual Court may appoint one for the Personal Estate until the Age of Fourteen. And as to his Lands, there shall be a Guardian in Socage, &c. as heretofore. 2 Lev. 262. If a Bishop appoints a Guardian of Goods and Lands, it will be void; for it may be only of Goods and Chattels: And Guardianship is a Thing cognizable by the Temporal Courts, where a Devise is made of it, which Courts are to judge whether the Devise be pursuant to the Statute. 1 Ventr. 207. A Copyhold Tenant is not within the Statute 12 Car. 2. to dispose of the Custody of his Children; for it belongs to the Lord or others, according to the Custom of the Manor: But the Lord of a Manor hath no Power by the Common Law, without some particular Custom, to grant the Guardianship of an Infant Copyholder. 3 Lev. 395. Lutw. 1190. Guardianships are not only by the Common Law, by Statute Law, and by particular Custom, but are also distinguished into Guardian in Socage, Guardian appointed by the Father, and Guardian assign'd by the Court. 1 Lill. Abr. 655. and a Father or Mother, without Assignment, are Guardians of Women Children, &c. Stat. 4 & 5. Ph. & M. 1. 8. A Female Infant may be brought into Court, and ask'd whether she be willing to stay with her Guardian. 2 Lev. The Husband of a Woman under Age cannot disavow a Guardian made by the Court for his Wife. 1 Ventr. 185. An Infant 'tis said cannot revoke the Authority of the Guardian: But the Court may discharge one Guardian, at their Discretion, and assign another: And the Justices of Nisi Prius, &c. may assign a new Guardian. Palm. 252. Stile 456. Noy 49. 1. Danc. Abr. 604. The Court will assign a Guardian to an Infant to sue or defend Actions, if the Infant comes into Court and desires it; or a Judge at his Chamber, at the Desire of the Infant, may assign a Person named by him to be his Guardian; but this last is no Record until entered and filed with the Clerk of the Rules: The Heir must be in Person in Court, for the Appointment of a Guardian for his Appearance. 1 Lill. 656. 2 Leon. 238. Guardians to Infants, appointed by the Court to sue, may acknowledge Satisfaction upon Record, for a Debt recovered at Law for the Infant. Trin 23 Car. B. R. A Guardian in Socage may keep Courts in the Infant's Manors in his own Name, grant Copies, &c. He is Dominus pro Tempore, and hath an Interest in the Lands. Cro. Jac. 91. Such a Guardian may let the Land for Years, and avow in his own Name and Right, and his Lessee for Years may maintain Ejectment: But he cannot present to an Advowson, for which he may not lawfully account; and the Infant must present of whatsoever Age. Cro. Jac. 98, 99. A Guardian for Nurture of the Minor appointed by Will, hath Power to make Leases at Will only. Cro. El. 678, 734. Guardians are to take the Profits of the Minors Lands, &c. to the Use of the Minor, and account for the same: They ought to sell all Moveables in a reasonable Time, and turn them into Land or Money, except the Minor is near of Age, and may want such Goods himself: And they shall pay Interest for Money in their Hands, which might have been put out at Interest; in which Case, it shall be presumed the Guardians made use of it themselves. 3 Salk. 177. A Guardian shall answer for what is lost by his Fraud, Negligence or Omision, but not for any casual Events, as where the Thing had been well but for such an Accident. Litt. 123. On accounting of Guardians, they shall have Allowance of Costs and Expences; and if they are robbed, &c. without any Default or Negligence, they shall be discharged thereof. 1 Inst. 89. In Guardianships of great Estates, the Guardians generally pass their Accounts yearly in the Chancery, for their better Justification when the Minor calls them to a general Account at his full Age. Action of Account may be brought against the Executors or Administrators of a Guardian, &c. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. A Guardianship of a Minor is an Interest in the Body and Lands, &c. of one within Age.

Guild, (From the Sax. Gildan, to pay) Signifies a Fraternity or Company, because every one was Gildare, i. e. to pay something towards the Charge and Support of the Company. The Original of these Guilds and Fraternities, is said to be from the Old Saxon Law; by which Neighbours entered into an Association, and became bound for each other, to bring forth him who committed any Crime, or make Satisfaction to the Party injured, for which Purpose they raised a Sum of Money among themselves, and put it into a common Stock, whereout a pecuniary Compensation was made according to the Quality of the Offence committed. From hence came our Fraternities and Guilds; and they were in Use in this Kingdom long before any formal Licences were granted for them: Tho' at this Day they are a Company combined together, with Orders and Laws made by themselves, by the Prince's Licence. Camd. Gildam Mercatoriam, or the Merchants Guild, is a Liberty or Privilege granted to Merchants, whereby they are enabled to hold certain Pleas of Land within their own Precinct. 37 Ed. 3. 15 R. 2. Gule of August, (Gula Augusti, alias Goule de August) Is the Day of St. Peter ad Vincula, which is celebrated on the 1st of August, and called the Gule of August, from the Lat. Gula, a Throat, from this Reason, that one Quirinus a Tribune, having a Daughter that had a Disease in her Throat, went to Pope Alexander, the Sixth from St. Peter, and desired of him to see the Chains that St. Peter was chained with under Nero, which Request being granted, she the said Daughter kissing the Chains, was cured of her Disease: Whereupon the Pope instituted this Feast in Honour of St. Peter; and, as before, this Day was termed only the Calends of August, it was on this Occasion called indifferently either St. Peter's Day ad Vincula, from what wrought the Miracle, or the Gule of August, from that Part of the Virgins whereon it was wrought. Durand's Rationale Divinorum, lib. 7. cap. 19. It is mentioned F. Habeas Corpus, Is a Writ for the Bringing in a Jury, or so many of them as refuse to appear upon the Venire facias, for the Trial of a Cause brought to Issue, Old Nat. Br. 157. And the Habeas Corpora Juratorum in the Court of C. B. serves for the same Purpose as the Disfringas Jurator. in B. R. It commands the Sheriff to have the Jurors before the Judges at such a Day, to pass on the Trial of certain Parties, in such a Cause, &c. Practif. Solic. 308, 309.

Habeas Corpus, The great Writ of English Liberty, lies where one is indicted for any Crime or Trespas before Justices of Peace, or in a Court of any Franchise, and being imprisoned for the same, hath offer'd sufficient Bail, but it is refus'd where bailable; he may then have this Writ out of the King's Bench to remove himself thither, and answer the Cause there. F. N. B. 250. And the Course in this Case is first to procure a Certiorari out of the Chancery, directed to the Justices for removing the Indictment into B. R. And upon that to procure this Writ to the Sheriff, for the Causing his Body to be brought at a Day. Reg. Jud. 81. This Writ is also used to bring the Body of a Person into Court, who is committed to any Gaol, either in Criminal or Civil Causes; and a Habeas Corpus removes a Person and Cause from one Court and Prison to another. The Writ of Habeas Corpus was originally ordained by the Common Law of the Land, as a Remedy for such as were unjustly imprisoned, to procure their Liberty; and it is a mistaken Notion that this Writ is of a modern Date, and introduced with the Reign of King Charles 2. But before the Statute 31 Car. 2. 'tis true, it was difficult to be obtained, because the Judges who had Authority to issue it, pretended to have Power either to grant or deny it; and the Sheriffs and Gaolers to whom the Writ was directed; frequently put poor Prisoners to the Charges of a second, and third Habeas Corpus, before they would yield Obedience to the First; which being grievous to the People, the Stat. 31 Car. 2.

was enacted to prevent Abuses of this Nature, and further our Laws for the Benefit of the Liberty of the Subject. Laws of Liberty, p. 44, 45. By the Statute 31 Car. 2. c. 2. a Person in Prison may have an Habeas Corpus from any Judge, on Complaint made and View of the Copy of the Warrant of Commitment; (unless he be committed for Treason or Felony especially expressed in the Warrant, or other Offences or Matters not bailable) which Habeas Corpus shall be returnable immediately; and upon Certificate of the Cause of Commitment, the Prisoner shall be discharged on Bail to appear in the Court of B. R. the next Term, or at the next Assizes, &c. where the Offence is cognisable: And Persons committed for Treason or Felony, (specially expressed in the Warrant) on Prayer in open Court the first Week of the Term, or Day of Sessions, &c. are to be brought to Trial; and if not indicted the next Term, or Sessions after Commitment, upon Motion the last Day of the Term, &c. they shall be let out upon Bail; except it appears upon Oath, that the King's Witnesses are not ready; and if on Prayer they are not indicted or tried the second Term after Commitment, they shall be discharged. No Person which shall be delivered upon his Habeas Corpus, shall be committed again for the same Offence, other than by legal Order and Process of such Court where they shall be bound to appear, or other Court having Jurisdiction of the Cause; on Pain to forfeit 500 l. And if any Person be in Prison, or any Officer's Custody, for any Criminal Matter, he shall not be removed into the Custody of any other Officer but by Habeas Corpus, upon Pain of incurring the Penalty of 100 l. for the first Offence, and 200 l. for the second Offence, and being disabled to execute his Office. No Person shall be sent Prisoner to Ireland, Scotland, or any Place beyond the Seas in the King's Dominions; which will be False Imprisonment, on which the Prisoner may recover treble Costs, and not less than 500 l. Damages, &c. and the Party committing or detaining him also shall incur the Penalty of a Premunure. Judges denying a Habeas Corpus shall forfeit 500 l. And the Officer refusing to obey it, or to deliver a true Copy of the Commitment-warrant, is liable to a Forfeiture of 100 l. for the first Offence, &c. Stat. Ibid. This is the Substance of the Habeas Corpus Act; which hath been suspended several Times in late Reigns, on Rebellions, &c. No Writ of Habeas Corpus, or other Writ to remove a Cause out of an inferior Court, shall be allowed, except delivered to the Judge of the Court, before the Jury to try the Cause have appeared, and before any of them are sworn. 43 Eliz. c. 5. And Writs to remove Suits commenced in an inferior Court of Record shall not be obey'd, unless delivered to the Steward of the Court before Issue or Demurrer joined, &c. And a Suit shall never be removed again, after a Procedendo is allow'd. 21 Jac. 1. 23. Nor shall any Suit be removed where the Thing in Demand doth not exceed 5 l. or where the Freehold, Inheritance, Title of Land, &c. are concern'd. And Judges are to proceed in Suits in inferior Courts laid not to exceed the Sum of 5 l. altho' there may be other Actions against the Defendant, wherein the Plaintiff's Demand may exceed 5 l. by Stat. 12 Geo. If the Steward of an inferior Court proceeds after an Habeas Corpus delivered and allowed, the Proceedings are void; and the Court of B. R. will award a Superfedeas; and

and grant an Attachment against the Steward for the Contempt. Cro. Car. 79, 296. A Habeas Corpus suspends the Power of the Court below, so that if they proceed, it is void, and coram non judice. On a Habeas Corpus, if the Record be filed, no Procedendo can go to the Court below; but where a Record below is not filed, or not returned, it may be granted. 1 Salk. 352. A Habeas Corpus cum causa removes the Body of the Party for whom granted, and all the Causes depending against him; and if upon the Return thereof the Officer doth not return all the Causes, &c. it is an Escape in him. 2 Lill. Abr. 2. A Judge will not grant a Habeas Corpus in the Vacation, for a Prisoner to follow his Suits; but the Court may grant a special Habeas Corpus for a Prisoner to be at his Trial in the Vacation-time. Ibid. 3. And the Court may grant a Habeas Corpus to bring a Prisoner, not in Prison on Execution, out of Prison, to be a Witness at a Trial; tho' it is at the Peril of the Party suing out the Writ, that the Prisoner do not escape. Style 119. Trin. 1640. But no Person ought to take out a Habeas Corpus for any one in Prison, without his Consent; except it be to turn him over to B. R. or charge him with an Action in Court. 2 Lill. A Man brought into B. R. by Habeas Corpus, shall not be removed thence till he has answered there; he shall be detained until then, and after he may be removed. 1 Salk. 350. If there be Judgment against a Defendant in the Court of B. R. and another in C. B. on which he is in Execution in the Fleet, he may have a Habeas Corpus to remove himself into B. R. where he shall be in Custody of the Marshal for both Debts. Dyer 132. Where the Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench commits a Person to the Marshal of the Court by his Warrant, he ought not to be brought to the Bar by Rule, but by Habeas Corpus. 1 Salk. 349. In extrajudicial Commitments, the Warrant of Commitment ought to be returned in hac verba on a Habeas Corpus; but when a Man is committed by a Court of Record, 'tis in the Nature of an Execution for a Contempt, and in such Case the Warrant is never returned. 5 Mod. 156. The Cause of the Imprisonment must be particularly set forth in the Return of the Habeas Corpus, or it will not be good; for by this the Court may judge of it, and with a Paratum habeo, that they may either discharge, bail, or remand the Prisoner. 2 Nelf. Abr. 915. 2 Cro. 543. Where a Commitment is without Cause, or no Cause is shewn, a Prisoner may be delivered by Habeas Corpus. 1 Salk. 348. But on a Habeas Corpus granted by the Court of B. R. a Difference was made as to a Return; that where a Prisoner is committed by one of the Privy Council, there the Cause of his Commitment is to be returned particularly; but when he is committed by the whole Council, no Cause need be alledged. 1 Leon. 70, 71. And it has been adjudged, that on a Commitment by the House of Commons, of Persons for Contempt and Breach of Privilege, no Court can deliver on a Habeas Corpus: But Holt Ch. Just. was of a contrary Opinion. 2 Salk. 503, 504. A Writ of Error may be allowed by the King in such a Case, &c. and it is not to be denied ex debito Jusfitie; though it has been a Doubt, whether any Writ of Error lay upon a Judgment given on a Habeas Corpus. Ibid. A Man may not be delivered from the Commitment of a Court of Oyer and Terminer by Habeas Corpus, without Writ of Error: And where there appears to be good Cause, and a Defect only in the Form of the Commitment, he ought not to be discharged. 1 Salk. 348. If a Person be committed by the Admiralty in Execution, he is not removable by Habeas Corpus into B. R. to answer an Action brought against him there; but it might be otherwise if an Action were depending. Ibid. 351. Where there is a precedent Action in B. R. to the King's Suit, on which the Party is out on Bail, Habeas Corpus may be brought by the Bail, &c. and the Prisoner turned over; tho' this was greatly opposed in Favour of the King's Execution. Ibid. 353. A Hab. Corpus is a prerogative Writ, which concerns the Liberty of the Subject, and must be obey'd in Counties Palatine, &c. If it is not, an alias Hab. Corp. will issue with a great Penalty. 2 Cro. 543. And on the Insufficiency of the Return of a Habeas Corpus, an Alias Habeas Corpus shall be granted. 12 W. 3. B. R. Before a Habeas Corpus is returned and filed, it may be amended; but not afterwards. 2 Lill. Abr. 2. A Habeas Corpus is grantable, without Motion, to remove a Person upon an Arrest; but not where committed for a Crime. 1 Lev. 1. In the Suing out these Writs in B. R. to remove a Cause, &c. they are first to be carried to the other Court to be allowed; and some few Days after the Delivery, the Return must be called for, and special Bail put in at a Judge's Chamber; which being done, within four Days in Term, and six Days in the Vacation, the Cause is removed to the superior Court. Practif. Solic. 262. And if the Defendant be actually a Prisoner, he shall not be delivered from Prison till the Bail on the Habeas Corpus be accepted, or justified in Court. Ibid. If a Defendant arrested cannot find Bail, and would be removed to the King's Bench or Fleet Prison, a Habeas Corpus is to be delivered there; and they will make out a Return, and send an Officer with the Defendant to a Judge's Chamber, and there a Committitur is made; whereupon the Judge's Tipstaff takes the Prisoner into Custody, and charges him in Prison; and he may agree with the Marshal or Warden, for the Liberty of the Rules, &c. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 124. When the Defendant is in Custody either of a Bailiff or in any other Prison, and would be turned over to the King's Bench, the Practice is the same; the Habeas Corpus directed to the Sheriff of London and Middlesex is to be delivered, and he after Search in his Office for what Writs he hath against the Defendant, will make Return of them, and then the Bailiff or Keeper of the other Prisoner, who hath the Defendant in Custody, is to carry him to a Judge's Chamber, where he will be turned over, ut supra. Ibid.

Form of a Habeas Corpus returnable immediate.

Habeas

Habeas Corpus ad ad Respondendum, Is to remove a Man in Order to Prosecution and Trial in the proper County, &c.

Habeas Corpus ad Respondendum, Lies where a Person is imprison'd upon Process at the Suit of another, in any Prison, except the King's Bench Prison; and a third Person would sue the Prisoner in B. R. this Writ removes the Prisoner from the Prison where he was into the King's Bench, to answer the Action in that Court; and for that Reason it is called Habeas Corpus ad Respondendum. 2 Lill. Abr. 4. And where a Person is in Custody in an inferior Jurisdiction, the Plaintiff may bring his Writ returnable in B. R. and then the Defendant cannot nonsuit the Plaintiff, nor be bailed but by the Court of B. R. &c. Ibid. A Writ of Habeas Corpus is either ad Respondendum granted on the Plea Side, to answer the Party; or ad subjiciendum, issued on the Crown-Side, to submit to the Order of the Court in Criminal Matters.

Habeas Corpus ad Satisfaciendum, Is had against a Man in the Fleet Prison, &c. to charge him in Execution; which being delivered to the Warden will be sufficient. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 173.

Habendum. In every Deed or Conveyance there are two principal Parts, the Premises, and the Habendum; the Office of the First is to express the Name of the Grantor and Grantee, and the Thing granted: And the Habendum is to limit the Estate, by which the general Implication in the Premises may be qualified: As in a Lease or Grant to two Persons, if the Habendum be to one for Life, and the Remainder to the other for Life, this alters the general Implication of the Jointenancy, which would pass by the Premises, if the Habendum were not. 2 Rep. 55. And where Things which lie in Grant are conveyed to take Effect barely on Delivery of the Deed of Grant, without other Ceremony; in such Case, if the Habendum be for a less Estate than in the Premises, or be repugnant to it, the Habendum is void: But when a Ceremony is requisite to the Perfection of an Estate limited in the Premises, and not a bare Delivery only of the Deed, there tho' the Habendum is of a less Estate than the Premises, the Habendum shall stand good, and qualify the Estate granted in the Premises. 2 Rep. 23. 2 Nels. 920. An Habendum may not only qualify what is granted in the Premises; but it may also enlarge what is thus granted, or explain the Premises: Though the Habendum shall never introduce one who is a Stranger to the Premises. 1 Jones 4. 3 Leon 60. If a Bargain and Sale be made, without expressing to whom; although it were Habendum to A. B. who is a Party to the Deed, it is not good; because the Habendum is only to limit an Estate, and not give any Thing. Cro. El. 585, 903. 2 Lill. 8. See Deed.

And one may have a new Writ, if a former be not well executed; but where Execution is made, and the Writ returned, the Court will never grant a new Habere facias, &c. Mich. 22 Car. 1. B. R. A Sheriff delivered Possession in the Morning, by Virtue of an Habere facias Possessionem, and some Time in the same Day after he was gone, the Defendant turn'd the Plaintiff out of Possession; and it was held, that if he had been turn'd out immediately, or whilst the Sheriff or his Officers were there, an Attachment might be granted against the Defendant; for this had been a Disturbance in Contempt of the Execution; but it being several Hours after the Plaintiff was in Possession, the Court doubted, but agreed to grant a new Habere facias, &c. 1 Salk. 321. 2 Nels. Abr. 779. If the Sheriff delivers Possession of more than is contained in the Writ of Habere facias Possessionem, an Action of the Case will lie against him; or an Assize for the Lands. Style 238. The Sheriff cannot return upon this Writ, that another is Tenant of the Land by Right, because that will not come in Issue between the Demandant and him; therefore he must execute the Writ, and leave the Right to be determined by Law. 6 Rep. 52.

Hedge-breakers. By the Statute 43 Eliz. c. 7. Hedge breakers, &c. shall pay such Damages as a Justice of Peace shall think fit; and if not able to pay the Damages, shall be committed to the Constable to be whipp'd. And Constables, and others, may apprehend Persons suspected of Hedge-stealing, and carry them before a Justice; where not giving a good Account how they came by Wood, &c. they are not only to make such Recompence as the Justice of Peace shall adjudge, but pay a Sum not exceeding 10 s. for the Use of the Poor; or be sent to the House of Correction for a Month, by 15 Car. 2. 2. Persons convicted of Buying stolen Wood, shall forfeit treble Value to him from whom taken. Ibid.

Heir, (Hæres, ab hereditate) Is he that succeeds by Descent to Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, being an Estate of Inheritance. The Estate must be Fee, because nothing passeth Jure Hereditatis but Fee; and by the Common Law a Man cannot be Heir to Goods and Chattels: But the Civilians call him Hæredem, qui ex Testamento succedit in Universum jus Testatoris. Some Writers have made a Distinction of Hæres sanguinis & Hæreditatis; a Man may be Hæres sanguinis to a Father or Ancestor, and yet may upon Displeasure be defeated of his Inheritance: And there is an Ultimus Hæres, being he to whom Lands come by Escheat, for Want of lawful Heirs, viz. The Lord of whom the Lands are held, or the King. Bract. lib. 7. c. 17. Hæres, according to Sir Edw. Coke, is he qui ex justis Nuptiis procreatus est, to whom Lands and Tenements by the Act of God, and Right of Blood, do descend. Co. Litt. 7. There are some Persons who may not be Heirs; as a Bastard, born out of lawful Wedlock; an Alien, born out of the King's Allegiance, though in Wedlock; a Man attainted of Treason or Felony, whose Blood is corrupted; these last may not be Heirs, propter Delictum; and an Alien cannot be Heir, propter Defectum subjectionis; nor may one made Denizen by Letters Patent, though 'tis otherwise of a Person naturaliz'd by Act of Parliament. Co. Litt. 8. 2 Danv. Abr. 552. A Bastard, by Continuance, may be Heir against a Stranger: And an Hermaphrodite may be Heir, and take according to that Sex which is most prevalent; but a Monster, that hath not human Shape cannot be Heir, altho' a Person deformed may. Co. Litt. 7. 2 Danv. 553. Idiots and Lunatics, Persons excommunicate, attainted in Premunise, Out-laws in Debt, &c. may be Heirs. Ibid. There is a Lineal Heir, as the Son of a Person; and a Collateral Heir, as Brother, &c. Yet a Man can have no right Heir, to take Lands during his Life. Dyer 99. The Word Heir is not a good Description of a Person in the Life-time of the Ancestor; and an eldest Son shall not take by the Name of Heir in the Life-time of his Father. 2 Leon. 70. A Man cannot raise a Fee-simple Estate to his right Heirs, by the Name of Heirs, as a Purchase, by Conveyance or otherwise; but in such Case the Heir shall be in by Descent: Fortior & Potentior est Dispositio Legis, quam Hominis. Hob. 30. 2 Lill. Abr. 11. By the Law of England, no Person can take to himself an Inheritance in Fee-simple by Deed, without the Word Heirs; but he may by Devise: Though in Cases where the Word Heirs is wanting, it has been adjudged that if there are other Words equivalent, and the Interest in the Thing granted passeth by the Consideration only, without any further Ceremony in the Law, an Estate in Fee may pass. 2 Nelf. Abr. 928. The Word Heir is nomen collectivum, and extends unto all Heirs: And under Heirs, the Heirs of Heirs are comprehended in Infinitum; if Lands are given to a Man and his Heirs, all his Heirs are so totally in him, that he may give his Lands to whom he will. Trin. 23 Jac. 1. Noy 56. The Heir is favoured by the Common Law; and the Ancestor could not give away his Lands by Will from his Heir at Law, without the Consent of the Heir, till the Statute 32 H. 8. 2 Lill. 11. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. Dubious Words in a Will shall be construed for the Benefit of the Heir; and not to disinherit him: And the Heir at Law is preferred in Chancery in a doubtful Case. Noy 185. Chanc. Rep. 7. Not only Land, but Rent not due at the Death of the Ancestor Lessor, shall go to the Heir; so Corn sown by Tenant for Years, where his Term expires before the Corn is ripe; every Thing fastened to the Freehold, Timber-Trees, Deeds belonging to the Inheritance; Deer, Conies, Pigeons, Fish, &c. 2 Nelf. Abr. 927. An Heir shall enforce the Administrator to pay Debts with Personal Estate, to preserve the Inheritance to the Heir. Chanc. Rep. 280, 293. If an Executor hath Assets, he is compellable in Equity to redeem a Mortgage, for the Benefit of the Heir; and it is the same where the Heir is charged in Debt. Hardr. 511. And when the Heir is sued for the Debt of his Ancestor, and pays it, he shall be re-imburfed by the Executor of the Obligor, who hath personal Assets. 1 Chanc. Rep. 74. But in Action of Debt brought upon a Bond against an Heir, 'tis no good Plea for the Heir to say, that the Executors have Assets in their Hands. Dyer 204. For a Creditor may sue either Heir or Executor; and Heirs and Executors are both chargeable upon Specialties. If an Heir hath Assets, and the Executor also, it is at the Election of the Obligee to have Action of Debt against the One, or the other; but he shall not charge them doubly. 2 Plowd. 433. If an Heir has made over Lands fallen to him by Descent, Execution shall be had against him to the Value of the Land, &c. if it be not sold bona fide before the Action brought, in which Case there is a Saving by the Statute 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 14. And whether the Heir hath Lands by Descent, shall be tried and enquired of, with the Value, by a Jury, to make the Heir answerable. 5 Mod. 122. It has been held, that the Heir is never chargeable without an express Lien and Assets; and even then no longer than he hath Assets, for he is not obliged to keep them 'till he is charged: But if he hath Assets, he ought to plead truly, and to confess them; otherwise Judgment shall be given against him de Terris propriis, for 'tis then his Debt. Jones 88. 3 Salk. 179. When a Man recovers against an Heir, by Default or Verdict, on Pleading Riens per Descend, a Special Judgment de Terris Descendens may be entered against the Heir, and the Plaintiff shall have all the Lands by Descend in Execution: Though if the Judgment be general against the Heir, he can have only a Moiety by Elegit. Davis 439. 2 Leon. 16. And the Judgment and Execution shall be general, where the Heir acknowledges the Action, and shews that he hath so much by Descend; but if he will not shew what he hath by Descend, he loses the Benefit of the Law. Mich. 1 W. & M. B. R. Cro. Eliz. 692. Where an Heir is sued for the Debt of his Ancestor, his Body ought not to be taken in Execution, or any other Lands which he had not by Descend; yet if the Heir do not shew what Lands he had by Descend, it shall be intended that he had Assets to pay the Debt. Moor 522. A collateral Heir is chargeable for the Debt of his Ancestor; but the Declaration must be special, and he is to be charged as collateral Heir, not as immediate Heir; and if a Son happens between, who dies, he must be said Uncle and Heir of the Son, who was Heir of the Debtor, &c. Cro. Car. 151. And a Child born, though he lives but an Hour, has the Fee of Lands vested in him as Heir. Heth. 134. In a Writ a Man need not shew how he is Heir; but he must in a Declaration, &c. though it is only for Form to set forth how a Person is Heir, because it is not traversable; and Heir, or no Heir, is issuable. Moor 885. If an Heir ought to confess the Debt on Action brought against him, and the Debt be not denied, it must be admitted. 1 Lutw. 442. Debt against the Heir, upon the Bond of his Ancestor, is to be brought in the Debet and Detinet, because the Heir himself is bound; and not in the Detinet only, though that is cured by a Verdict. Sid. 342. 1 Lev. 224. The Heir is not bound by the Bond of the Ancestor, unless he is expressly bound: And if in a Bond a Man binds his Heirs, but not himself, the Bond is void. 2 Saund. 136. Cro. Jac. 570. Also a Man shall never bind his Heir to Warranty, where himself was not bound: If he makes a Feoffment in Fee, and binds his Heirs only to Warranty, the Feoffment is void; for the Heir shall be bound to Warranty in such Cases only, where the Ancestor was bound, without which it cannot descend upon him. 1 Inst. 386. And a Grant of an Annuity must be for a Man and his Heirs, to bind the Heir, although there be Assets; and when he is named, the Heir shall not be bound, except there be Assets. 1 Inst. 144. A Person covenants with another to perform any Act, if his Heir be not named, he is not bound by it: But in Covenants of others, that concern the Inheritance, and run with the Land, the Heir shall have the Benefit of them, though not named. 5 Rep. 8. 1 Roll. Abr. 520. An Heir may enter for a Condition broken, when the Condition is annex'd to Lands, and take Advantage of it; because if there had been no Condition, the Land would have descended to him: And an Heir may perform a Condition, to save the Land. 2 Nelf. Abr. 929. The Heir shall not have Money due on Mortgages in Fee, if he be not particularly named, but the Executor; and if the Day be past, although the Heir be named, the Executor shall have it. 1 Inst. 210. 2 Ventr. 348. If a Person makes a Lease for Years of Lands of Inheritance, rendering Rent to his Executors and Assigns, the Heir shall have the Rent; because by the Reservation it is to continue after the Lessor's Death, and is incident to the Reversion; though it was formerly held otherwise, the Heir not being named: And where it is reserved to the Lessor, and his Assigns, it is otherwise. 2 Lev. 13, 14. 12 Rep. 36. Heirs includes Assigns in Grants, &c. If a Woman keeps Land from the Heir, on Pretence of being with Child by the Heir's Ancestor, her deceased Husband, the Writ Ventre Inspeciendo is to be granted to search her, &c. that the Heir be not defrauded. F. N. B. 227. The next Heir Male is to bring Appeal for the Death of his Ancestor, &c. And Heirs may have divers Writs, as Writ of Mortdancestor, Entre ad communem Legem, In casu Proviso, and Consimili casu, Quod permittat, &c. See Discent, &c.

Heir-loome, (From the Sax. Heier, i. e. Hæres, & Leome, Membrum) Comprehends divers Implements of Household, which by the Custom of some Countries have belonged to a House certain Descents, are never inventoried after the Decease of the Owner as Chattels, but accrue to the Heir with the House it self by Custom, and not by the Common Law: And these are not devisable by Testament; for the Law prefers the Custom before a Devise, which takes not Effect 'till after the Death of the Testator, and then they are vested in the Heir by the Custom. Co. Litt. 18, 28. But Sale in a Man's Life-time might make it otherwise. The antient Jewels of the Crown are Heir-looms, and shall descend to the next Successor; and are not devisable by Will. Ibid. 185. And Heir-looms in general are said to extend to all Household Implements; of which Spelman says thus: Omne Utensile robustius quod ab adibus non facile revellitur, ideoque ex more quorundam locorum ad hæredem transit, tanquam membrum hereditatis. And Sir Edw. Coke says, Consuetudo Hundredi de Stretford in Com. Oxon. est, quod Hæredes Teneamentorum post Mortem antecessorum suorum habebunt, &c. Principalium, Anglice, an Heirloom, viz. de quodam genere Catallorum, Utensilium, &c. Optimum Plaustrum, optimam Carucam, optimum Cippum, &c. Co. Litt. 18.

Herald, Heralt, or Harold, (Ital. Heraldo, Fr. Herault; quasi Herus altus) Signifies an Officer at Arms. Vesfegan thinks it may be derived from two Dutch Words, viz. Here, exercitus, & Healt, pugil Magnanimus; as if he should be called the Champion of the Army: And the Romans called Heralds, Feciales. Polydore, lib. 19. describes them thus: Habent insuper Apparitores Ministros, quos Heraldos dicunt, quorum praefectus Armorum Rex vocitatur; hii Belli & pacis Nuncii; Ducibus, Comitibusque a Rege factis insignia aptant, ac eorum funera curant. The Function of these Officers, as now exercised with us, is to denounce War, proclaim Peace, and to be employed by the King in Martial Messages: They are Examiners and Judges of Gentlemen's Coats of Arms, and Conservers of Genealogies; and they marshal the Solemnities at the Coronations, and Funerals of Princes, and other great Men. The three Chief of these Heralds, are called Kings at Arms; of which *Gar*ter is the Principal, instituted by King Henry 5. whose Office is to attend the Knights of the Garter at their Solemnities, and to marshal the Funerals of the Nobility: And King Edw. 4. granted the Office of *King of Herald*s to one *Gar*ter, cum Feudis & Proficiis ab antiquo, &c. The next is Clarenceux or Clarentius, ordained by Edward 4. who attaining the Dukedom of Clarence by the Death of George his Brother, whom he beheaded for aspiring to the Crown, made the Herald which belong'd to that Dukedom a King at Arms, and called him Clarenceux; his proper Office is to marshal and dispose the Funerals of all the lesser Nobility, Knights and Esquires, through the Realm, on the South-Side of Trent. The Third is Norroy, quasi North-Roy, whose Office and Business is the same on the North-Side of Trent, as Clarentius on the South, which is intimated by his Name, signifying the Northern King, or King at Arms of the North Parts. These Three Officers are distinguished as follows, viz. *Gar*ter, Rex Armorum Anglicorum indefinite; Clarenceux, Rex Armorum partium Australium; Norroy, Rex Armorum partium Borealium. Besides the Kings at Arms, there are Six inferior Heralds, according to their Original, as they were created to attend Dukes and Great Lords, in Martial Expeditions, i. e. York, Lancaster, Chester, Windsor, Richmond, and Somerset; the Four former instituted by King Edward 3. and the Two latter by Edward 4. and Henry 8. To these, upon the Coming of King George to the Crown, on Account of his Hanoverian Dominions, a new Herald was made called Hanover Herald; and another stiled

Gloucester, King at Arms. Anno 11 Geo. And lastly, to the superior and inferior Heralds, are added Four others called Marshals, or Pursuivants at Arms, who commonly succeed in the Places of such Heralds as die, or are preferred; and they are Blue Mantle, Rouge-Cross, Rouge-Dragon, and Portcullis; all equipp'd with proper Ensigns, Badges, and Distinctions. The ancient Heralds have been made a Corporation or College, under the Earl Marshal of England, with certain Privileges by the Kings of this Realm: *Concesserunt, &c. Heraldum Armorum, & omnes alii Heraldum, Prosecutores sive Pursuivandi Armorum, qui pro tempore fuerint, imperpetuum, sint unum Corpus Corporatum, in re, facto, & nomine; habeantque successiorem perpetuam, nec non quoddam sigillum commune, &c. It is a Word of very great Extent, comprehending whatever may be inherited or come to the Heir; be it Real, Personal or Mix'd, and though it is not holden, or lieth not in Tenure. Co. Lit. 6. 16. And by the Grant of Hereditaments in Conveyances, Ma-

Hereſy, (Hereſis) Is an Opinion contrary to sound Principles of Religion; among Protestants it is taken for a false Opinion repugnant to some essential Point of Doctrine of the Christian Faith, revealed in Scripture, and obstinately maintained and persisted in, by such as profess the Name of Christ. There is no express Law or Statute that determines what shall be called Hereſy, it being impossible to set down all the particular Errors which may be said to be Heretical, concerning which there have been so many Disputes: Yet as the Stat. 1 Eliz. ca. 1. directed the High Commission Court, (since abolished) to restrain the same to what had been adjudged so by the Authority of the Scriptures; or by the first four General Councils, or any other General Council wherein it was declared Hereſy by express Words of Scripture; or as should be determined to be such by Parliament, the Convocation assenting: These Rules may be a good Direction to the Judges of the Ecclesiastical Courts in Relation to Hereſy. 3 Inst. 40. H. P. C. 3, 4. The Archbishop, or Bishop of every Diocese, have Power to convict any for Hereſy; this is by the Common Law. And by the 23 Hen. 8. cap. 9. the Archbishop of either Province, may cite any Person before him for Hereſy, if the immediate Ordinary or Bishop consent thereto; or do not his Duty in punishing the same: The Convocation may declare what Tenets are heretical; and some say that an Heretick may be convicted before an Archbishop and Bishops, &c. at a general Convocation; but it is said to be a Question of late, whether they have Power to convene and convict the Heretick. 2 Roll. Abr. 226. 1 Hawk. P. C. 4. The Temporal Courts cannot take Cognizance of any Person for Hereſy, by Indictment, or otherwise; but they may incidentally adjudge whether any Tenet be Hereſy or not, as in a Quare Impedit, where the Bishop pleads, that he refused the Clerk for Hereſy, &c. 5 Rep. 58. And if a Person in Maintenance of his Errors sets up Conventicles, and raises Factions, to the Disturbance of the publick Peace; he may be fined and imprisoned, upon an Indictment at the Common Law. 2 Hawk. 4. Hereſy was anciently Treason according to Lord Finch; and the Punishment for Hereſy was Burning, by Force of the Writ de Hæretico Comburendo; but the Heretick forfeited neither Lands nor Goods, because the Proceedings against him were only pro salute Animæ. H. P. C. 5. 3 Inst. 43. Raym. 407. By the Stat. 29 Car. 2. cap. 9. the Proceedings on the Writ de Hæretico Comburendo, and all Punishments by

Death in Pursuance of any Ecclesiastical Censures, are taken away: And all the old Statutes which gave Power to arrest or imprison Persons for Hereſy, &c. are repealed: But by the Common Law, an obstinate Heretick being excommunicate, is still liable to be imprisoned by Virtue of the Writ de Excommunicato capiendo, till he make Satisfaction to the Church: And denying the Truth of the Christian Religion, or the Divine Authority of the Holy Scriptures, &c. is liable, for the second Offence, to three Years Imprisonment, and divers Disabilities, by Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. cap. 32.

Heretick, (Hæreticus) Is one that is convicted of Hereſy, or that maintains any Opinions or Principles contrary to the Christian Religion. See Hæretico Comburendo.

Hergripa, (Sax. Her, capillus, and grypan, capere) Signifies the Pulling any one by the Hair; which was punishable by the Laws of Hen. 1. cap. 94.

Herigaldis, A Sort of Garment called by that Name. Blount.

Heriot, (Heriotum) Is in the Sax. Heregate, derived from Here, i. e. Exercitus, an Army, and Gate, a Beast; and signified originally a Tribute given to the Lord of a Manor for his better Preparation for War: By the Laws of Canutus, at the Death of the great Men of this Realm, so many Horses and Arms were to be paid as they were in their respective Life-times obliged to keep for the King's Service. Spelm. Sir Edw. Coke makes Heriot, or Heregat, the Lord's Beasts, from Here, Lord: And it is now taken with us for the best Beast, whether it be Horse, Ox, or Cow, that the Tenant dies possessed of, due and payable to the Lord of the Manor; and in some Manors, the best Goods, Piece of Plate, &c. Kitch. 133. There is Heriot-Service, or Heriot-Custom: Heriot-Service is payable on the Death of Tenant in Fee-simple; and Heriot-Custom upon the Death of Tenant for Life: When a Tenant holds by Service to pay a Heriot at the Time of his Death, which Service is expressed, and especially reserved in the Deed of Feoffment, this is Heriot-Service; and where Heriots have been paid Time out of Mind, by particular Custom, after the Death of Tenant for Life, this is Heriot-Custom. Co. Lit. 185. Heriots by Custom are commonly paid for Copyhold Estates; and if an Heriot is reserved upon a Lease, it is Heriot-Service, and incident to the Reversion. Lutw. 1366, 1367. For a Heriot goes with the Reversion, as well as Rent; and the Grantee of the Reversion shall have it. 2 Saund. 166. Altho' a Heriot reserved upon a Lease is called an Heriot-Service, yet it is not like the Case where a Man holds Lands by the Service of paying an Heriot, &c. because where a Heriot is reserved on Lease, the proper Remedy is either a Distress, or Action of Covenant grounded on the Contract; for the Lessor cannot seize, as the Lord of a Manor may do, the Beast of his Tenant who holds of him by Heriot-Service. Keilw. 82, 84. There may be a Covenant in Leases for Lives,

Lives, &c. to render the best Beast, or so much in Money for an Heriot, at the Election of the Lessor; in which Case the Lessor must give Notice which he will accept, before Action may be brought for it, or a Distress taken, &c. 2 Litt. Abr. 19. For Heriot-Service, the Lord may distrain any Beast belonging to the Tenant on the Land: Also it has been held, that the Lord may distrain any Man's Beasts which are upon the Land, and retain them till a Heriot is satisfied. 1 Inst. 185. Litt. Rep. 33. And if the Tenant devise away all his Goods, &c. yet the Lord shall have his Heriot on the Death of the Tenant. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 3. For Heriot-Custom, the Lord is to seise, not distrain; and he may seise the best Beast, &c. though out of the Manor, or in the King's Highway, because he claims it as his proper Goods, by the Death of the Tenant, which he may seise in any Place where he finds it: But for Heriot-Service, it is said he ought to distrain, and not to seise. Kitch. 267. 2 Inst. 132. 2 Nelf. Abr. 931. The Lord may properly seise for Heriot-Custom, and take a Distress for Heriot-Service: And for Heriot-Custom, he may seise any where; but for Heriot-Service, on the Land only: Though it has been adjudged, that a Heriot-Custom or Service, may be seised any where; but one cannot distrain for them out of the Manor. Plowd. 96. Keilw. 84. 1 Salk. 356. Where a Woman Life marries and dies, the Lord shall have no Heriot-Custom, because a Feme Covert can have no Goods to pay as a Heriot. 4 Leon. 239. And when a Heriot is to be paid by a certain Life of his own Goods, an Assignee is not liable to pay the Heriot; his Goods not being the Goods of such Life. Cro. Car. 313. 2 Nelf. 932. If the Lord purchase Part of the Tenancy, Heriot-Service is extinguished; but it is not so of Heriot-Custom. 8 Rep. 105. There is this Difference between Heriot and Relief; Heriot has been generally a Personal, and Relief always a predial Service.

Hidage, (Hydagium) Was an extraordinary Tax, payable to the King for every Hide of Land. Bracton writes of it thus: Sunt etiam quedam communes Prestationes, que servitia non dicuntur, nec de Consuetudine veniunt, nisi cum necessitas intervenerit, vel cum Rex venerit; sicut sunt Hidagia, Coragia, & Carvagia, ex consensu communi totius Regni introducta, &c. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 6. This Taxation was levied not only in Money, but Provision of Armour, &c. And when the Danes landed at Sandwich, in the Year 994. King Ethelred taxed all his Land by Hides, so that every 310 Hides, found one Ship flourished; and every 8 Hides, found one Jack and one Saddle, to arm for the Defence of the Kingdom, &c. Sometimes the Word Hidage was used for the being quit of that Tax; which was also called Hidegild, and interpreted from the Saxon, a Price or Ransom paid to save one's Skin or Hide from Beating. Sax. Dict. See Danegeld.

Highway, (Via Regia) Is a Passage for the King's People, for which Reason it is called the King's Highway; but the Freehold of the Soil is in the Lord of the Manor, or in the Owner of the Land on each Side; and if there are Trees and other Profits there, they belong to him. Dalt. 76. Our Books mention three Kinds of Ways, 1st, A Foot-way, which is called Iter, quod est jus eundi vel ambulandi hominis. 2d, A Foot-way and Horse-way, which is termed Adus ab agendo, and this is called a pack and prime Way, because it is both a Foot-way, which was the first or prime Way, and a pack or drift Way also. 3d, Via, Aditus, which contains the other two, and likewise a Cart-way, &c. And this is either the King's Highway for all Men, or Communis strata, belonging to a City or Town, &c. and is called by our ancient Writers Chimin, being a French Word for a Way. Co. Lit. 56. Any one of the the aforementioned Ways; may properly be called the Highway, if common to all the King's People; and so may a private Way, that leads from Town to Town, and is a Thorough fare: If a Way leads to a Market-Town, is a Way for Travellers, and has a Communication with a great Road, &c. it is a Highway; but if it leads only to a Church, a Village, or the Fields, &c. there it is a private Way. Co. Lit. 56. Ventr. Rep. 189. A Foot way common to all People, is a Highway, although it do not lead to a Market-Town: A common Street is a Highway; and so may a River be said to be, that is common to all Men. Ibid. Highways which lead from one Town to another; and those Highways that are Drift ways, or Cart-ways, leading from Market to Market, that are Ways for all Travellers, and great Roads, or do communicate with them, are only under the Care of Surveyors, as to Reparation, &c. 2 Inst. 38. 1 Ventr. 189. A Highway lying within a Parish, the whole Parish is of common Right bound to repair it; except it appear that it ought to be repaired by some particular Person either ratione Tenure, or by Prescription. 1 Ventr. 183. Style 163. The King by the Common Law may award his Commission for amending the Highways and Bridges throughout the Realm. Dalt. 77. And all the Country ought to make good the Reparations of a Highway, where no particular Persons are bound to do it; by Reason the whole Country have their Ease and Passage by the said Way. Co. Rep. 13. A Hamlet within a Parish is not obliged to repair a Highway, except it be by Prescription, or for some other special Reason; because of common Right the whole Parish is charged with it: But though a Hamlet be not bound to the Repairs of common Right, yet a Vill may. Style 163. Private Ways are to be repaired by the Village or Hamlet; and sometimes by particular Persons. 1 Ventr. 789. Where a Parish is indicted for not repairing a Highway, they cannot plead Not guilty, and give in Evidence that such a one is bound to repair it, either by Tenure, or Prescription; for the Parish is chargeable de Comuni jure, and they must plead the Prescription, &c. if they would discharge themselves. 1 Ventr. 256. 1 Mod. 112. The general Issue Not guilty, goes only to the being in Repair, or not; and a special Justification ought not to be given in Evidence upon the general Issue. 1 Salk. 287. On Indictment against a Parish, they can give nothing in Evidence upon Not guilty, but that the Way is in Repair: Though where a private Person is indicted for not repairing a Highway, he may give in Evidence that another is to repair, because he is not bound of common Right as a Parish is. Mich. 8 W. 3. 3 Salk. 183. Tho' a Highway be not set forth in the Indictment to lead to any Market-Town, it has been adjudged no Objection; for every Highway leads to some Market-Town, or Vill, &c. Nor is it necessary to shew that the Prosecutors are Surveyors, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 412. But the Indictment must shew with Certainty, in what Place a Nuisance was done, the Extent of it, &c. And the Fact is to be set forth in proper Terms, that the Court may judge of it. 1 Hawk. P. C. 220. An Indictment concerning the Highways ought to set forth that it is the King's Highway, and for all the King's People; or it may be quashed. Co. Lit. 56. Cro. Eliz. 63. Upon an Indictment for not repairing a Highway, if the Defendant produce a Certificate before Trial, that the Way is repaired, he shall be admitted to a Fine: But after Verdict, the Certificate is too late, for then he must have a Constat to the Sheriff, who ought to return that the Way is repaired, because the Verdict which is a Record, must be answered by a Record. Rym. 215. And where the Defendants, indicted for not repairing a common Foot-way, confessed the Indictment, and submitted to a Fine; it was held that the Matter was not ended by their being fined, but that Writs of Disfringas shall be awarded in infinitum, till the Court of B. R. is certified that the Way is repaired, as it was when it was at best; but the Defendants are not bound to put it in better Repair than it has been Time out of Mind. 1 Salk. 358. Where a Defendant hath made a Highway, as good as it is capable of being made, it is said this shall not discharge him, on an Information against him; though it may be a Mitigation of his Fine. 3 Salk. 183. Also it is no Excuse for the Inhabitants of a Parish indicted at Common Law, for not repairing the Highways, that they have done the Work required by Statute; for the Statutes are made in Aid of the Common Law: And when the Statute-Work is not sufficient, Rates and Assessments are to be made. Dalt. cap. 26. The Presentment of a Justice of Peace upon his own Knowledge of a Highway out of Repair, is of the same Effect as the Presentment of twelve Men; but the Authority of Justices of Peace is limited only to common Highways, and not to private Ways; and the Presentment of the Justices may be traversed by the Defendants, &c. On a Presentment of a Highway out of Repair, and that the Inhabitants of such a Parish ought to repair it; upon a Traverse to this Presentment, the Jury found it was not a common Highway: And it was adjudged that the Inhabitants ought to have pleaded Reparare non debent, and that such a Person, naming him, ought to repair; but by taking the Traverse, the Presentment is admitted to be good. 4 Mod. 38. A Presentment before Justices of Peace of a Way out of Repair, &c. may be removed into B. R. And an Indictment for not repairing of Highways, may be thus removed by Certiorari: But by the Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. no Presentment, Indictment, &c. shall be removed by Certiorari to be tried out of the County; tho' if the Right to repair such Ways come in Question, a Certiorari may be had to remove the Indictment into B. R. 5 & 6 W. & M. In Cases of Trials on Indictments, relating to the Highways, those Persons in the Parish no way liable to the Reparations will be good Evidence; but Persons chargeable to the same will not. Hill. 14 & 15 Car. 2. A Person may be indicted for not repairing a House standing upon a Highway, which is ruinous, and like to fall down, to the Danger of Travellers, whatever be his Tenure, which in such Case is not material. 1 Salk. 357. And in Respect of Inclosure of Land, wherein a Way lies, particular Persons may be liable to the general Charge of repairing a Highway. H. P. C. 144. 8 H. 7. 5. If any Person enclose any Part of a Highway, or Waste adjoining, he thereby takes upon him to keep the Way in Repair; but if afterwards he lays it open again, he shall be discharged from the Reparation, and the Parish is to repair it. 1 Sid. 464. Cro. Car. 306. Where a Man encloses his Land on both Sides of a Highway, tho' he makes the Way better than it was before, by the Enclosure, he is bound to keep it in Repair at his own Charges; and the Country is freed from the Charges of it, which before was bound to do it: And if a Person enclose Land of one Side of the Way only, and it was anciently enclosed of the other Side; he that makes the new Inclosure, is to repair the whole Way; though if there hath not been any Inclosure of the other Side, then but Half of the Way is to be repaired by him. Cro. Car. 366. 2 Saund. 160. 1 Danv. Abr. 783. When any Person turns a Highway, or encloses a Field to his own Benefit, leaving a Way, he is to repair the Way at his own Charge, and make it passable, although it were foundrous before. Cro. Car. 306. If a Highway leading through a Field is foundrous, Travellers may go out of the Track-way, notwithstanding there be Corn sown: And where it hath been used Time out of Mind for the King's Subjects to go by Outlets on the Lands next the Highway, when the Way is foundrous; the Outlets are a Part of the Way, for the good Passage is the Way. Yelv. 141. Trin. 18 Car. B. R. 1 Danv. 782. If there be a common Foot-way through a Close by Prescription, and the Owner of the Close ploughs up the Way, and sows it, and lays Thorns at the Side of it, Passengers may go over another Foot-way in the same Close, without being Trespassers. Yelv. 142. And if a Highway is not sufficient, any Passenger may break down the Inclosure of it, and go over the Land, and justify it till a sufficient Way is made. 3 Salk. 182. One Highway cannot lawfully be estopped, and another laid out, without the King's Licence upon a Writ of Ad quod Damnum, after Return of the Inquisition. Cro. Car. 266. Vaugh. 341. But this in some Measure is altered by the Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. To change an ancient Highway, there must be this Writ; or the Subjects cannot justify going there, nor are they liable to repair it, or the Hundred answerable for Robberies, &c. Vaugh. Ibid. Erecting a Gate cross a Highway, though not locked, but opening and shutting at Pleasure, is esteemed a Nuisance; for it is not so free and easy a Passage, as if there had been no Gate: And the usual Way of redressing Nuisances of this Kind, is by Indictment; but every Person may remove the Nuisance, by cutting or throwing it down, if there be Occasion so to do; and it hath been held, that although there are many Gates cross Highways, they must be anciently set up, and it shall be intended by Licence from the King upon the Writ Ad quod Damnum. Cro. Car. 184. All Manner of Injuries to Highways which render them less commodious to Travellers, are adjudged Nuisances; as Laying Logs of Timber in Ways, Erecting Gates, or making Hedges overthwart them, Permitting Boughs of Trees to hang over the Road; Digging Ditches, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 157. Where a Carrier carries an excessive Weight, as more than twenty Hundred, and thereby spoils the Way; this is a Nuisance. Mich. 17 Car. And Drawing with more Horses than allowed by Law, to the Injury of the Highways; or with Wheels under such Breadth, &c. is punishable, and liable to certain Forfeitures of Horses, by Statute 1 Geo. cap. 11. 5 Geo. cap. 12. A Nuisance in a Highway is punishable by Indictment, Information, &c. And if in a common or private Way, by Action on the Case; and if a private Way in a Vill, &c. be ruinous and out of Repair, every Inhabitant has a Right to bring an Action.

1 Ventr. 208. An Indictment against particular Persons, must especially charge them every one. 1 Hawk. 220. For avoiding Multiplicity of Suits, Indictments, &c. are to be had for Nuisances in Highways, and not Actions; but for any particular Damage, not common to others, a Man shall have Action on the Case. 1 Inst. 56.

For repairing Highways, by Statute 2 & 3 P. & M. cap. 8. it is enacted, That Constables and Church-wardens of Parishes, calling together the Parishioners, shall yearly elect two honest Persons to be Surveyors of the Highways, who are authorized to order and direct the Persons and Carriages that shall be employed in the Works for the Amendment of the Highways; and the Persons chosen shall take upon them the Execution of the Office, on Pain of forfeiting 20 s. Also Days are to be appointed for Working on the Repairs of Highways; on which every Person having a Plough-land, (formerly 100 Acres, now 50 l. per Annum) or keeping a Draught or Plough, shall send out one Wain or Cart, furnished with Horses, Oxen, Tools, &c. and two able Men with the same, on Pain of 10 s. for every Default; and every Householder, Cottager and Labourer, shall work on the said Days for the Amendment of the Highways, under the Penalty of 1 s. per Day. Stewards of Leets are empowered to enquire of all Offences against this Statute, and to assess Fines and Amerciaments; in Default thereof, the Justices of Peace in their Sessions are to enquire of the said Offences: And the Fines, which are leviable by Distrels, and all Forfeitures, shall go towards the Repairing of the Highways. By the 18 Eliz. c. 10. Persons having a Plough-land in several Parishes, shall be chargeable with a Team only where they reside; but every Person occupying and keeping in his Hands several Plough-lands, in several Towns, or Parishes, shall be chargeable to find in each Town where the Lands lie one Wain, &c. And it has been adjudged, that he who occupies several Plough-lands, ought to send a Team for each, whether he keep any Draught or not; that he who keeps a Draught and but two Horses, is obliged to give his Attendance with it for repairing of the Highways; and a Clergyman keeping a Coach and Horses, not a Team, is bound to send out a Wain towards the Repairs of the Highways; a Coach and Horses doing as much Damage to the Ways as a Cart and Horses; and Clergymen are not exempted from the publick Duties of the Nation. Raym. 186. Dalt. 105. 1 Lev. 139. If a Man hath Plough-lands, though he hath no Draughts; or if he hath Draughts, and no Lands, he must send out Teams: But in such Places where there is no Use of Carts and Teams for the Amendment of the Highways, the Inhabitants shall send Horses or other Carriages with able Persons to work, under certain Penalties, by Stat. 22 Car. 2. cap. 12. And this Statute gives Power to Justices of Peace in their Sessions, to enquire into the Value of Lands given for the Maintenance of Highways, &c. and to see that they are let at the full Value, and the Rents and Profits duly applied: And likewise the Justices, at their general Quarter-Sessions, on their being satisfied that the common Highways cannot be repaired by Force of the Laws in Being, may cause one or more Assessments to be made and levied upon the Inhabitants, Owners and Occupiers of Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, or any personal

Estate, usually rated to the Poor, towards the Repairing such Highways; and such Assessments shall be levied by Distress and Sale of Goods of the Persons assessed, not paying the same within ten Days, &c. Stat. Ibid. And it has been resolved, that it is the Occupier, and not the Owner of Land, who is chargeable with the Repairs of Highways: But it is otherwise where there is no Occupier, and the Owner suffers the Lands to lie fresh, &c. For in such Case he shall be charged as if he had occupied them. 2 Roll. Rep. 412. Palm. 389. By 5 Eliz. c. 13. Surveyors of the Highways may take and carry away the small broken Stones of any Quarry, being already dug, without the Licence of the Owners, for the Amendment of the Highways; and they may dig for Gravel in the Ground of any Person adjoining to the Highway, not being a Garden, Meadow, &c. provided they make not above one Pit of ten Yards Square in one Ground, and such Pits be filled up in one Month; and may gather Stones upon any Lands in the Parish, to be employed in the Amendment of the Ways: And the Surveyors are also empowered to turn any Water-course or Spring, being in any Highways, into the Ditches of the Grounds adjoining. The Hedges, Fences and Ditches adjoining to the Highways, shall from Time to Time be scoured, repaired and kept low; and all Trees and Bushes growing in the Highway shall be cut down, that the Ways may lie open: There shall be six Days yearly appointed to be employed in the Reparation and Amendment of the Highways; of which Notice shall be given in the Church the next Sunday after Easter: And Surveyors of the Highways are to present Defaults within one Month, to the next Justice of Peace, on Pain of forfeiting 40 s. and the said Justice shall certify the said Presentment to the next General Sessions of the Peace; at which Sessions the Offenders shall be fined, &c. and this Statute is made perpetual by 29 Eliz. c. 5. Justices of Peace, &c. are to appoint particularly the six Days for working on the Highways by Statute, and not generally between such a Time and such a Time; which Appointment is ill, and Persons are not bound to come thereon. 1 Salk. 357. The Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 12. ordains, That all the Laws and Statutes concerning the Repairing of the Highways, not thereby repealed or altered, shall be put in Execution: And on the 26th of December yearly, the Parish-Officers and Inhabitants of every Parish are to assemble and make a List of the Names of Persons having 10 l. per Annum, or personal Estate of 100 l. or who rent 30 l. per Ann. or if there be none such, of the most sufficient Inhabitants, and shall return the said List to two Justices of Peace at a special Sessions to be held on the 3d of January, or within fifteen Days after; who are by Warrant to appoint two or more to be Surveyors of the Highways in every Parish, &c. for the ensuing Year: And if any Surveyor being served with the Warrant of Appointment of the Justices, shall neglect or refuse to take upon him the Office, he shall forfeit 5 l. and the Justices shall nominate another, &c. And every Surveyor shall within fourteen Days after the Acceptance of his Office, and afterwards every four Months, view the Highways and Roads, and make a Presentment of the Condition thereof, on Oath, to some Justice; and give Notice of such Defects and Annoyances, as they find, the next Sunday after Sermon; and if they are not removed or amended within thirty Days after, then the Surveyor shall do the same, and be reimbursed his Charges by the Party who should have done it: The Justices of Peace in their respective Divisions, are to hold a special Sessions once in four Months for the Highways, and summon Surveyors, at which they shall make Presentments, and account for Money coming to their Hands, which ought to be employed in amending the Highways: And on Oath made by Surveyors of Sums expended for Materials, &c. to mend the Ways, the Justices in their special Sessions may cause a Rate to be made to reimburse the same; also they may make a Rate for reimbursing any Inhabitant of a Parish on whom a Fine shall be levied: And in their General Quarter-Sessions, by Force of this Act, they may order Assessments to be made on Lands, Tenements, &c. not exceeding 6 d. in the Pound, &c. Every Cart-way leading to a Market-Town must be eight Foot wide, and as near as may be level; and no Causey shall be under three Foot wide. Laying in any Highway not twenty Foot broad, any Stone, Timber, Dung, or other Matter to obstruct it, incurs a Penalty of 5 s. and the Occupier of Lands adjoining may remove and convert the same to his own Use; and no Tree or Bush shall be permitted to grow in, or spread or hang over such Way, under the like Penalty. Surveyors neglecting their Duty, required by this Statute, shall forfeit 40 s. and Justices of Peace 5 l. and Offences against this Act are to be prosecuted in six Months, &c. By 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 16. Justices of Peace at their Quarter-Sessions have Power to order the Enlarging of any Highways; so as the Ground taken in do not exceed eight Yards in Breadth, and they do not pull down any House, or take away the Ground of any Garden, &c. And a Jury shall be empanelled to enquire of the Value of the Ground taken into Highways, and assess Damages as a Recompence for Injuries; on the Payment of which, the Interest of such Ground shall be devolved out of the Owners, and the Ground be taken to be a publick Way: The Justices may also cause Assessments to be made upon the Occupiers of Lands, &c. for the Purchase of the said Ground, to enlarge the said Highways. And Persons aggrieved by the Order of Justices in their Quarter-Sessions for enlarging Highways, may appeal to the Judges of Assize at the next Assizes, &c. Surveyors of the Highways, by Precept from the Justices in their special Sessions, are to fix a Stone or Post with Inscriptions in large Letters, where two or more Cross-ways meet; as a Direction to Travellers to the next Market-Town, to which each of the Ways lead, on Pain of forfeiting 10 s. to be employed in erecting such Post: And if any Person shall pull up, cut down, or remove any Post, Block, or great Stone, or other Security set up for securing Horse and Foot-Causeys, he shall forfeit 20 s. leviable by Distress, &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 29. The 1 Geo. cap. 48. enacts, that the Laws for Repairing of Highways shall be put in Force; and Surveyors of the Highways are every four Months, or oftner if required by two Justices of Peace, to view all Highways, &c. and give an Account of their State and Condition to the Justices at the next special Sessions, under the Penalty of 5 l. And the Justices in their special Sessions may order the Reparation of such great Roads as most want Repairing to be first amended, and in what Manner. The Surveyors shall take the first and most convenient Time of the Year for repairing the Highways, and perfect the same before Harvest; and Fines, &c. are to be rightly applied for the Repairs of the Highways. Justices of Peace at their General Quarter-Sessions may make Assessments for Reparation of Highways, according to the Proportion limited by the Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. Although the Statute-Work hath not been performed; but Money raised shall not excuse the Working on the Ways. Persons neglecting to scour Ditches, thirty Days after Notice given thereof by the Surveyors, shall forfeit 2 s. 6 d. for every eight Yards not scoured: And permitting Soil to lie in the Highways, incurs a Forfeiture not exceeding 5 l. nor under 20 s. And the Surveyors are to scour and keep open such Ditches; or may make new ones through the adjoining Lands, and to remove all Annoyances out of the Highways. Justices of Peace in Cities and Corporations, are empowered to execute the Laws relating to the Highways: Appeal lies from the Special Sessions, to the Quarter-Sessions; and Persons sued for what they do in Pursuance of the Statutes, may plead the General Issue, and give the Act and the special Matter in Evidence, &c. Stat. Ibid. See Waggon.

Holt, (Sax.) A Wood: Wherefore the Names of Towns beginning or ending with Holt, as Buckholt, &c. denote that formerly there was great Plenty of Wood at those Places.

Homage, (Homagium) Is a French Word derived from Homo, because when the Tenant does his Service to the Lord, he says, I become your Man. Co. Lit. 64. In the Original Grants of Lands and Tenements by way of Fee, the Lord did not only oblige his Tenants to certain Services, but also took a Submission, with Promise and Oath to be true to him, as their Lord and Benefactor: And this Submission, which is the most honourable Being from a Freehold Tenant, is called Homage. Stat. 17 Ed. 2. The Lord of the Fee for which Homage is due, takes Homage of every Tenant, as he comes to the Land or Fee: But Women perform not Homage, but by their Husbands, as Homage especially relates to Service in War; and a Corporation cannot do Homage, which is Personal, and they cannot appear but by Attorney: Also a Bishop, or religious Man, may not do Homage, only Fealty; but the Archbishop of Canterbury does Homage on his Knees to our Kings at their Coronation; and it is said the Bishop of the Isle of Man doth Homage to the Earl of Derby; though Fulbes reconciles this, when he says that a religious Man may do Homage, but may not say to his Lord, Ego devenio homo vester, I become your Man, because he has professed himself to be God's Man; but he may say, I do unto you Homage, and to you shall be faithful and loyal. Briton, c. 68. There is Homage by Ligeance, Homage by Reason of Tenure, and Homage Ancestrel: Homage by Ligeance is inherent and inseparable to every Subject; Homage by Tenure, is a Service made by Tenants to their Lords according to the Statute; and Homage Ancestrel, is where a Man and his Ancestors have Time out of Mind held their Land of the Lord by Homage, and such Service draws to it Warranty from the Lord, and Acquittal of all other Services to other Lords, &c. Bract. lib. 3. F. N. B. 269. Litt. Sect. 85. But according to Sir Edw. Coke, there must be a double Prescription for Homage Ancestrel, both in the Blood of the Lord, and of the Tenant; so that the same Tenant and his Ancestors, whose Heir he is, is to hold the same Land of the same Lord and his Ancestors, whose Heir the Lord is, Time out of Memory, by Homage, &c. and therefore there is but little Land holden by Homage Ancestrel; though in the Manor of Whitney in Herefordshire, there is one West who holds Lands by this Tenure. Co. Lit. Homage Tenure is incident to a Freehold, and none shall do or receive Homage, but such as have Estates in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, in their own Right or Right of another. Kitch. 131. Seisin of Homage is Seisin of Fealty, and inferior Services, &c. And the Lord only shall take Homage, and not the Steward, whose Power extends but to Fealty. 4 Rep. 8. When a Tenant makes his Homage to the Lord, he is to be ungirt, and his Head uncovered, and his Lord shall sit, and he shall kneel, and hold his Hands together between his Lord's Hands, and say; I become your Man from this Day forward, for Life, for Member, and for worldly Honour, and unto you shall be true and faithful, and bear you Faith for the Lands that I hold of you, (saying the Faith that I owe to our Sovereign Lord the King): And the Lord so sitting shall kiss the Tenant, &c. 17 Ed. 3. Litt. Sect. 85.

Homagium reddere, to renounce Homage; Was when the Tenant or Vassal made a solemn Declaration of disowning his Lord, for which there was a set Form and Method prescribed by the Feudatory Laws. Bract. lib. 2. c. 35.

Homicide, (Homicidium) Signifies the Slaying of a Man; and is divided into Voluntary and Casual: Voluntary Homicide is that which is done with Deliberation, and a set Purpose to kill; and Casual Homicide is where the Death of a Man happens by Chance, without any Intention to kill: The Former done out of Malice is Murder, and the Latter may be Manslaughter, Chancemedley, &c. Glanvil, lib. 14. cap. 3. West's Symb. Sect. 37. Co. Lit. lib. 3. c. 8. See Murder, &c.

Homine Eligendo ad custodiendam peciam sigilli pro mercatoribus editi, Is a Writ directed to a Corporation, for the Choice of a new Person to keep one Part of the Seal appointed for Statutes-Merchant, when a Former is dead, according to the Statute of Aston Burnel. Reg. Orig. 178.

Homine capto in Withernamium, Is a Writ for the Apprehending of one who has taken any Man or Woman, and conveyed him or her out of the County, so that they cannot be replevied by Law. Reg. Orig. 79.

Homine Replegiando, Is an ancient Writ for bailing a Man out of Prison: It lies where a Person is in Prison, not by special Commandment of the King, or his Judges, or for any Crime

Crime or Cause irrepleviable, directed to the Sheriff to cause him to be replevied: And if the Sheriff return on a Homine Replegiando, that the Defendant hath esloined the Plaintiff's Body, so that he cannot deliver him; then the Plaintiff shall have a Capias in Withernam to take the Defendant's Body, and keep it quousque, &c. And if the Sheriff return Non est Inventus on that Writ against the Body, the Plaintiff shall have a Capias against the Defendant's Goods, &c. F. N. B. 66. New Nat. Br. 151, 152. Where one Man takes away secretly, or keeps in his Custody another Man against his Will, upon Oath made thereof, and a Petition to the Lord Chancellor, he will grant a Writ of Replegiari facias, with an Alias and Pluries, upon which the Sheriff returns an Elongatus, and thereupon issues out a Capias in Withernam: And when the Party is taken, the Sheriff cannot take bail for him; but the Court where the Writ is returnable may, if they think fit, grant a Habeas Corpus to the Sheriff to bring him into Court and bail him, or remand him. 2 Lill. 23. In a Homine Replegiando it hath been adjudg'd, that it doth not differ from a common Replevin, on which the Sheriff must return a Deliberati feci, or an Excuse why he doth not: That where he cannot make Deliverance, if he return an Elongatus, the Defendant is not concluded by that Return to plead Non cepit; and after the Return of an Elongatus, and a Capias in Withernam, if the Defendant plead this Plea, he shall be bailed, for the Withernam is no Execution: And after a Defendant is bailed upon the Capias in Withernam, there may be a new Withernam against him. 2 Salk. 581. And it was held, that in a Homine Replegiando after an Elongatus returned, if the Defendant comes in gratis, and calls for a Declaration, and pleads Non cepit, he shall not be obliged to give Bail; but if he come in upon the Return of the Capias, he must give Bail, and shall not be admitted to it till he call for a Declaration, and plead Non cepit. Ibid. The Sheriff returned an Elongavit in a Homine Replegiando, and then a Capias in Withernam went forth; afterwards the Defendant having entered an Appearance, moved for a Superfedeas to the Withernam, and offer'd to plead Non cepit; which was opposed, unless he would give Bail to deliver the Person, in case the Issue was found against him: Tho' it was Ruled, that if any Property had been pleaded in the Party, then the Defendant ought to give Bail to deliver him; but he says he hath not the Person, and therefore Non cepit is a proper Plea, and he shall put in Bail to appear de die in diem. 4 Mod. 183. In this Case the Defendant shall not be compelled to Gage Deliverance; and a Superfedeas was granted to the Withernam. 5 W. & M.

Homines, Were a Sort of Feudatary Tenants, who claimed a Privilege of having their Causes and Persons try'd only in the Court of their Lord: And when Gerrard de Camvil. Anno 5. R. 1. was charged with Treason and other Misdemeanors, he pleaded that he was Homo Comitum Johannis, &c. and would stand to the Law and Justice of his Court. Paroch. Antiq. 152.

Honour, (Lat. Honor) Is especially used for a more noble Seignior or Lordship, on which other inferior Lordships and Manors do depend, by Performance of Customs and Services. Originally no Lordships were Honours but such as belonged to the King; tho' afterwards they were given in Fee to Noblemen: And it appears, that Honours have been created by Act of Parliament; for by the Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 37, 38. Amptbill, Grafton and Hampton-Court, are made Honours; and by 37 H. 8. c. 18. the King is empowered by Letters Patent to erect four several Honours, viz. Westminster, Kingston upon Hull, St. Osithe and Donnington. There are divers Honours in England besides these; as Lancaster, Clare, Wallingford, Nottingham, West and East Greenwich, Bedford, Windsor, Montgomery, Gloucester, Arundel, Leicester, Hertford, Chester, Warwick, and a great many others, mentioned by Authors, and in ancient Records. 4 Inst. 224. This Word is taken in the same Signification in other Nations as with us; (but anciently Honor and Baronia signified the same Thing). Uti Mancium plurimis gaudet (interdum Feodis, sed plerumque) Tenementis, consuetudinibus, servitiis, &c. Ita Honor plurima complectitur Maneria, plurima Feoda Militaria, plurima Regalia, &c. dictus etiam olim est Feodum Regale, tentusque Semper a Rege in Capite. Spelm. A Name of Dignity or Honour may be entailed upon one and the Heir Males of his Body; also it may be forfeited at the Common Law, and by the Stat. 26 H. 8. c. 13. as an Hereditament. 2 Nelf. Abr. 934.

Honour-Courts, Are Courts held within such Honours, mentioned in the Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 37. And there is a Court of Honour of the Earl Marshal of England, &c. which determines Disputes concerning Precedency and Points of Honour. 2 Hawk. P. C. 11. This Court of Honour, which is also exercised to do Justice to Heralds, is a Court by Prescription, and has a Prison belonging to it called the White Lyon in Southwark. 2 Nelf. 935.

Hora Aurora, The Morning Bell, or what we now call the Four a-Clock Bell, was called anciently Hora Aurora; as our eight a-Clock Bell, or the Bell in the Evening, was called Ignitegium or Coverfeu. Cowel.

Hordera, (From the Sax. Hord, Thesaurus) And hence we have the Word Hord, as used for Treasuring or laying up a Thing. Leg. Adelftan. cap. 2.

Hordeum Palmale and Hordeum Quadragesimale, Beer-Barley of a large spreading Ear, which in Norfolk is term'd Sprat-Barley and Battle-dore, and in the Marches of Wales, Cymridge. Chart. Dat. 43 Ed. 4.

Horn with Horn, (Cornutum cum Cornuto) Is when there is Common per Cause de Vicinage, or an Intercommoning of horned Beasts. The promiscuous Feeding of Bulls and Cows, &c. that are allowed to run together upon the same Common, is called Horn with Horn, or Horn under Horn: And in the Constitutions of Robert Bishop of Durham, Anno 1276. where the Inhabitants of several Parishes let their common Herds run Horn with Horn upon the same open large Common; that there might be no Dispute about the Right of Tithes, the Bishop ordain'd, that the Cows should pay Tithe to the Minister of the Parish where the Owner lived. Spelm.

Hornagium, Is supposed to be the same with Horngeld.

Horngeld, (From the Sax. Horn, Cornu and Geld, i. e. Solutio) Signifies a Tax within the Forest, to be

be paid for horned Beasts. Crompt. Jurisd. 197. And to be Free of it is a Privilege granted by the King—Quietum esse de omni Collectione in Foresta de Bestiis Cornutis, &c. 4 Inst. 306. Et sint Quieti de omnibus Geldis, Danegeldis, Wodgeldis, Horn-geldis, &c. Chart. H. 3.

Hors de son ffer, (Fr. i. e. out of his Fee) Is an Exception to avoid an Action brought for Rent or Services, &c. issuing out of Land, by him that pretends to be the Lord; for if the Defendant can prove that the Land is without the Compass of his Fee, the Action falls. Broke. In an Avowry, a Stranger may plead generally Hors de son Fee; and so may Tenant for Years. 2 Mod. 104. A Tenant in Fee-Simple ought either to disclaim, or plead Hors de son Fee. 1 Danv. Abr. 655.

Horfes, Were not to be conveyed out of the Realm on Pain of Forfeiture, by an ancient Statute, 11 H. 7. c. 13. Persons having Lands of Inheritance in Parks, &c. are to keep a certain Number of Mares apt to bear Foals thirteen Hands high, for the Increase of the Breed of Horfes, and not suffer them to be leaped by stolen Horfes under fourteen Hands, on certain Penalties. 27 H. 8. c. 6. And for the Preservation of a strong Breed of Horfes, Stone Horfes above two Years old are to be fifteen Hands high, or they shall not be put into Forests or Commons, where Mares are kept, upon Pain of Forfeiture; and scabbed or infected Horfes shall not be put into common Fields, under the Penalty of 10 s. leviable by the Lord of the Leet. 38 H. 8. c. 13. Stealing of any Horse, Gelding or Mare, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy: But Accessories to this Offence are not excluded Clergy. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 23. And if any Horse that is stolen be not sold according to the Statute 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 7. the Owner may take the Horse again where ever he finds him, or have Action of Detinue, &c. To prevent Horfes being stolen and sold in private Places, the 2 & 3 P. & M. provides, that Owners of Fairs and Markets shall appoint Toll-takers or Book-keepers, who are to enter the Names of Buyers and Sellers of Horfes, &c. And to alter the Property, the Horfes must be rid or stand in the open Fair one Hour; and all the Parties to the Contract must be present with the Horse. And by 31 Eliz. c. 12. Sellers of Horfes are to procure Vouchers of the Sale to them; and the Names of the Buyer, Seller and Voucher, and Price of the Horse, are to be entered in the Toll-taker's Book, and a Note thereof delivered to the Buyer: And if any Person shall sell a Horse without being known to the Book-keeper, or bringing a Voucher; or if any one shall vouch without knowing the Seller; or the Book-keeper shall make an Entry without knowing either; in either of these Cases the Sale is void, and a Forfeiture is incurred of 5 l. A Horse stolen, tho' sold according to the Direction of the Act, may be redeemed and taken by the Owner within six Months, repaying the Buyer what he shall swear he gave for the same. Stat. Ibid.

Horfifiers, (Fr. Hofeliers) Is used for Inn-keepers: And in some old Books the Word Horfers is taken in the same Sense. 31 Ed. 3. c. 2.

Hospitalers, (Hospitalarii) Were a certain Order of Religious Knights in this Kingdom, so called because they built an Hospital at Jerusalem wherein Pilgrims were received. The Institution of their Order was first allowed by the Pope in the Year 1118. and confirmed by Parliament with many Privileges and Immunities; and Pope Clement the 5th transferred the Templers to them. Which Order, by a Council held at Vienna, he afterwards suppressed. These Hospitalers were otherwise stiled Knights of St. John of Jerusalem; they are mentioned in the Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 42. and 9 H. 3. c. 37. And all the Lands and Goods of these Knights here in England were given to the King, by the Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 34.

Hospitals. Any Person seized of an Estate in Fee-Simple, may by Deed inrolled in Chancery, erect and found an Hospital for the Sustainance and Relief of the Poor, to continue for ever; and place such Heads, &c. therein as he shall think fit: And such Hospital shall be incorporated, and subject to such Visitors, &c. as the Founder shall nominate; also such Corporations have Power to take and purchase Lands not exceeding 200 l. per Annum, so as the same be not holden of the King, &c. and to make Leases for twenty-one Years, reserving the accustomed yearly Rent: But no such Hospital is to be erected, unless upon the Foundation it be endowed with Lands or Hereditaments of the clear yearly Value of 10 l. per Ann. Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5. It has been adjudged upon this Statute, that if Lands given to an Hospital be at the Time of the Foundation or Endowment of the yearly Value of 200 l. or under, and afterwards they become of greater Value, by good Husbandry, Accidents, &c. they shall continue good to be enjoy'd by the Hospital, altho' they be above the yearly Value of 200 l. And Goods and Chattels, (Real or Personal) may be taken of what Value soever. 2 Inst. 722. And if one give his Land then worth 10 l. a Year to maintain Poor, &c. and the Land after comes to be worth 100 l. a Year, it must all of it be employ'd to increase their Maintenance, and none of it may be converted to private Use. 8 Rep. 130. Also if one devise the Rent of his Land for such Uses, it shall be taken largely for a Devise of the Rent then reserved, or afterwards to be reserved upon an improv'd Value. 9 Jac. Such only are to be Founders of Hospitals within the Act 39 Eliz. as are seized of any Estate in Fee, and who give the same at the first Foundation of the Hospital to the Incorporation of the Hospital, &c. But if a Man, as a Citizen of London, by Will devises that his Executors shall lay out 1000 l. in the Purchase of Lands, &c. and that an Hospital shall thereupon be built and incorporated for the Sustainance and Relief of poor impotent People, and dieth, whereupon the Executors purchase Lands of such a Value, and cause the Estate to be conveyed to certain Persons and their Heirs, and build an Hospital; in this and the like Cases, the Persons that have the Estate in the Lands are by the Purview of this Statute to be Founders, and to do all Things that the Founder is appointed to do. 2 Inst. 724. If one devise so much a Year for the Poor, &c. leaving Lands and Assets in Goods; this is good, and the Executors will be forced to buy as much Land, and to assure it to that Use, Trin. 15 Car. And if a Devise be to the poor People maintained in the Hospital of St. Laurence in Reading, &c. (where the Mayor and Burgeffes, capable to take in Mortmain, do govern the Hospital) albeit the Poor not being a Corporation are not capable by that Name to take; yet the Devise is good, and Commissioners appointed to enquire into Lands given to Hospitals, &c. may order him that hath the Land to assure it to the Mayor and Burgeses for the Maintenance of the Hospital. 43 Eliz. A Deed of Gift to a Parish generally, to maintain Poor, or other charitable Use, is not good: But a Devise by Will is good, and the Churchwardens and Overseers shall take it in Succession; and in London the Mayor and Commonalty. 40 Ass. 26. A Gift must be to the Poor, and not to the Aged or Impotent of such a Parish, without expressing their Poverty; for Poverty is the principal Circumstance to bring the Gift within the Stat. 43 Eliz. Altho' at common Law a Corporation may be of an Hospital, that is in potestate of certain Persons to be Governors of the Hospital, and not of the Persons placed therein; the safest Way upon the Act 39 Eliz. is first to prepare the Hospital, and to place the Poor therein, and to incorporate the Persons therein placed; and after the Incorporation, to convey the Lands, Tenements, &c. to the said Corporation, by Bargain and Sale, or otherwise, between the Founder of the one Part, and the Master and Brethren, &c. of the other Part, in Consideration of 5 s. in Hand paid by the Master of the said Hospital, &c. 2 Inst. 724, 725. And the Founder cannot erect an Hospital for Years, Lives, or any other limited Time, but it must be for ever, according to the Stat. 39 Eliz. which Statute for erecting of Hospitals is made perpetual by 21 Jac. 1. c. 1.

Hotchpot, (In partem portio) Is a Word brought from the Fr. Hochepot, used for a confused Mingling of divers Things together, and among the Dutch it signifies Fleih cut into Pieces, and scedden with Herbs or Roots; but by a Metaphor it is a Blending or Mixing of Lands given in Marriage, with other Lands in Fee falling by Descent: As if a Man seised of thirty Acres of Land in Fee, hath Issue only two Daughters, and he gives with one of them ten Acres in Marriage to the Man that marries her, and dies seised of the other twenty Acres: Now she that is thus married, to gain her Share of the rest of the Land, must put her Part given in Marriage in Hotchpot, i. e. she must refuse to take the sole Profits thereof, and cause her Land to be mingled with the other, so that an equal Division may be made of the whole between her and her Sister, as if none had been given to her; and thus for her ten Acres she shall have fifteen, otherwise her Sister will have the twenty Acres of which her Father died seised. Litt. 55. Co. Lit. lib. 3. c. 12. This seems to be a Right of waving a Provision, made for a Child in a Man's Life-time at his Death; but as it depends on Frank-Marriage, and Gifts therein, which now seldom happen, it is almost out of Use.

Cry, unless made by Horsemen and Footmen, &c. Hue and Cry is the Pursuit of an Offender from Town to Town, till he is taken; which all Persons who are present where a Felony is committed, or a dangerous Wound given, are by the Common Law bound to raise against the Offenders who escape; also a Man may raise Hue and Cry against one who sets upon him in the Highway to rob him; and Hue and Cry shall be levied upon any Stranger who will not obey the Arrest of the Watch in the Night; and in Forests, &c. against Offenders: But if a Man take upon him to levy Hue and Cry, without sufficient Cause, he shall be punished for the same. 2 Hawk P. If the Inhabitants of any Hundred, after the Hue and Cry is made, neglect to pursue it, they shall answer one Moiety of the Damages recoverable against the Hundred where a Robbery is committed. 27 Eliz. c. 13. And if the Country will not produce the Bodies of the Offenders, the whole Hundred shall be answerable for Robberies there committed, &c. 13 Ed. 1. Where a Robbery is done on the Highway, in the Day-time, of any Day except Sunday, the Hundred where committed is answerable for it: But Notice is to be given of it, with convenient speed, to some of the Inhabitants of the Village near the Place, to the Intent that they may make Hue and Cry for the apprehending of the Robbers, or no Action will lie against the Hundred: And in the making of Hue and Cry, diligent Search is to be made in all suspected Houses and Places, and not only Officers but all others who shall pursue the Hue and Cry, may arrest all such Persons as in their Search and Pursuit they shall find suspicious, and carry them before some Justice of the Peace of the County where taken, to be examined where they were at the Time of the Robbery, &c. for in this Case the Arrest of a Person not guilty is lawful. 13 Ed. 1. 27 Eliz. And if any of the Robbers are taken within forty Days, and convicted, the Hundred shall be excused; if not, after the forty Days past, the Party robb'd is to make Oath before a Justice of Peace of the County where the Robbery was done, of the Time and Place of the Robbery, and of what Sum he was robb'd, and that he knew none of the Robbers; and then in twenty Days he may bring his Action against the Hundred by Original Writ, &c. which must be sued out within a Year after the Robbery: If a Recovery is had against the Hundred, the Sheriff may levy his Execution, which is a Charge upon the Lands, on any one or more in the Hundred; but Justices of Peace at their Sessions, may make a Rate or Tax upon the whole Hundred, to pay and reimburse it; and Constables, &c. of every Town and Parish are to levy it proportionably on all the Inhabitants; also the like Taxation may be made for a Moiety of Damages leviable where any Default shall be of fresh Pursuit after Hue and Cry

The Party robbed is not bound to pursue the Robbers himself, or to lend his Horse for that Purpose; but still has his Remedy against the Hundred, if they are not taken: Tho' if any of them are taken either within forty Days after the Robbery, or before the Plaintiff recovers, the Hundred is discharged. If a Party be robbed in the Night-time, when Persons are at Rest, the Hundred is not chargeable: And where a Person is seized by Day-light, but robbed in the Night, he is without Remedy. 3 Leon. 350. Though where Robbers forced a Coach out of the Way, in the Day-time, and afterwards robbed it in the Night, this was held a Robbery in the Day, and that Action lay against the Hundred. 1 Sid. 263. When a Man is robbed on a Sunday, on which Day Persons are supposed to be at Church, and none ought to travel, the Hundred is not liable. 27 Eliz. But where a Robbery is done of a Sunday, though the Hundred is not chargeable, Hue and Cry shall be made. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 7. And if a Person be robbed going to Church in a Country Town or Village, of a Sunday, which is a religious Duty required by Law, it has been lately held an Action lies against the Hundred; but not if one be robbed on that Day in other travelling for Pleasure, &c. which is prohibited by Statute, 6 Geo. C. B. per King, Ch. Justice. And there is something like this in a Case in our Books, where Mention is made that Physicians, &c. are necessitated to travel on this Day. 2 Cro. 496. Godb. 280. See 2 Nelf. Abr. 937, 938. If a Person be robbed in a House, where he is presumed to be at Safety by his own Care, the Hundred is not chargeable: A Robbery must be an open Robbery, that the Country may take Notice of it, to make the Hundred answerable. 7 Rep. 6. A Man is set upon and assaulted by Robbers in one Hundred, and carried into a Wood, &c. in another Hundred, near the Highway, and there robbed, the Action shall be brought against the Hundred where the Robbery was committed, as particularly expressed in the Statute, and not the Hundred where the Man was taken or assaulted, because the Assault is not the efficient Cause of the Robbery, as a Stroke is in Case of Murder. Hill. 1 Ann. B. R. 2 Salk. 614. But where Goods are taken from a Man in one Hundred, and opened in another, where they are first taken or seized they are stolen, and the Robbery is committed. 2 Litt. If a Servant is robbed of his Master's Money, he may sue the Hundred on the Statute of Winton of Hue and Cry; or the Master may bring the Action, and the Man making Oath of the Robbery, and that he knew none of the Robbers, is sufficient without the Oath of the Master. Goldf. 24. Cro. Car. 26, 37, 336. Where a Servant is robbed, he must be examined and sworn; but if the Master be present, it is a Robbery of him. Show. 241. 1 Leon. 323. If a Quaker is robbed, or a Man's Servant being a Quaker is robbed, and either

When a Carrier is robb'd of another Man's Goods, he or the Owner may sue the Hundred; but the Carrier is to give Notice, and make Oath, &c. though the Owner of the Goods brings the Action. 2 Saund. 380. In Action upon the Statute of Hue and Cry, the Declaration is good, tho' the Plaintiff doth not say, that the Justice of Peace who took the Oath lived prope locum where the Robbery was committed. Mich. 6 W. And where Oath was made before a Justice of Peace of the County where the Robbery was done, in a Place of another neighbouring County, it has been held good. Cro. Car. 211. If a Justice of Peace refuses to examine a Person robb'd, and to take his Oath, Action on the Statute lies against the Justice. 1 Leon. 323. It is safe to say the Plaintiff gave Notice at such a Place, near the Place where the Robbery was done; and though that Place where Notice is given be in another Hundred or County, yet it is good enough; for a Stranger may not know the Confines of the Hundred or County. Cro. Car. 41, 379. 3 Salk. 184. Where a Robbery is committed in divers Hundreds, Notice to the Inhabitants of either of them is sufficient. Cro. Jac. 675. If there be a Mistake of the Parish in the Declaration where the Robbery was, if it be laid in the right Hundred, it is well enough. 2 Leon. 212. And though the Party puts more in his Declaration than he can prove, for so much as he can prove it shall be good. Cro. Jac. 348. Action against the Hundred must be brought by Writ, and not Bill, &c. being against many Inhabitants, who cannot in B. R. be supposed to be in Custodia Mareschalli, as a single Person may be. Goldsb. 148. Upon a Trial in these Cases, the Party must file his Original, and be sure to have a true Copy thereof, and Witnesses to prove it; and he must also have the Affidavit or Oath, and a Witness to prove the Taking it. 2 Lill. Abr. 25. In these Actions, poor Persons in a Hundred, and Servants, are good Witnesses for the Hundred; but not those Housholders as are worth any Thing. 1 Mod. 73. And as Proof cannot be otherwise for the Plaintiff, he is allow'd to make Proof in his own Cause.

Hundred, (Hundredum, Centuria) Is a Part of a County, so called, because it contained ten Ti-

things, and a Hundred Families; or for that it found the King One hundred able Men for his Wars. These Hundreds were first ordained by King Alfred, the 29th King of the West-Saxons; who took the Form of dividing Counties into Hundreds for better Government, from the Constitution of Germany, where Centa or Centena is a Jurisdiction over an Hundred Towns; and has the Punishment of Capital Crimes. After the Division of England into Counties by the afore-mentioned King, and the Government of each County given to a Sheriff; those Counties were subdivided into Hundreds, of which the Constable was the Chief Officer: And the Grants of Hundreds at first proceeded from the King to particular Persons. 9 Co. 25. The Jurisdiction of the County remained to the Sheriff, until K. Ed. 2. granted some Hundreds in Fee; and all Hundreds which were not before that Time granted by the Crown in Fee, were by Statute joined to the Office of Sheriff. By the Statute 14 Ed. 3. c. 9. Hundreds which were severed from the Counties, were re-joined to the same; but neither of these Statutes extend to a Grant of the King of an Hundred in Fee, with Retorna Brevium. 1 Vent. 399. 2 Nelf. Abr. 942. Hundreds, 'tis said, are Parcel of the Crown; and by the Grant of an Hundred a Lect passes, and an implied Power of Making a Bailiff to execute Process, &c. But a Hundred cannot at this Day be separated from the County, except such as were granted by King Edward 3. or his Ancestors; it may not now be by Grant or Prescription, though formerly derivative out of the County. 3 Mod. 199. Our Hundreds keep the Name, and remain in some Sort the same, as originally used; but their Jurisdiction is devolved to the County Court, some few excepted, which have been by Privilege annex'd to the Crown, or granted to some great Subjects, and remain still in the Nature of a Franchise: This hath been ever since the Statute 14 Ed. 3. whereby the Hundred Courts, antiently farmed out by the Sheriff to other Men, were reduced all or the most Part to the County Court, and so continue at present; so that where there are now any Hundred Courts they are several Franchises, wherein the Sheriff hath nothing to do by his ordinary Authority, unless they of the Hundred refuse to do their Duty. West. Symb. lib. 2. sect. 288. There were formerly Justices of Hundreds: And the Word Hundredum is sometimes taken for an Immunity or Privilege, whereby a Man is quit of Money or Customs due to the Hundreds. See Turn. Hundred chargeable for Robberies. Vide Hue and Cry.

Hundredors, (Hundredarii) Are Persons serving on Juries, or fit to be impanelled thereon for Trials, dwelling within the Hundred where the Land in Question lies. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 6. Default of Hundredors was a Challenge or Exception to Panels of Sheriffs, by our Law; 'till the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. ordain'd, that to prevent Delays by Reason of Challenges to Panels of Jurors for Default of Hundredors, &c. Writs of Venire facias for Trial of any Action in the Courts at Westminster, shall be awarded of the Body of the proper County where the Issue is triable. Hundredor also signifies him that hath the Jurisdiction of the Hundred, and holds the Hundred Court; and is in some Places applied to the Bailiff of an Hundred. 13 Ed. 1. c. 38. 9 Ed. 2. 2 Ed. 3. Horn's Mirror, lib. 1.

Iconia, (Iconia) A Figure or Representation of a Thing. Matt. Paris. 146. Hoveden 670.

Ulcus durius, A Maim, Bruise, or Swelling; any Hurt without Breaking the Skin and Shedding of Blood, which was called Plaga: It is mentioned in Bracton, lib. 2. tract. 2. cap. 5 & 24. And in the Laws of Hen. 1. c. 34.

Identitate nominis, Is a Writ that lies for him who is taken and arrested in any Personal Action, and committed to Prison, for another Man of the same Name: In such Case he may have this Writ directed to the Sheriff, which is in Nature of a Commission to inquire, whether he be the same Person against whom the Action was brought; and if not, then to discharge him. Reg. Orig. 194. F. N. B. 267. Mich. 25 H. 8. But when there are two Men of one Name, and one of them is sued without any Name of Place, or Addition, to distinguish him, this Writ will not lie; and where there is Father and Son, &c. of the same Name, if there is no Addition of Junior, the Person sued is always taken for Senior, and if the Younger be taken for him, he may have False Imprisonment. Hob. 330. A Writ de Identitate Nominis, 'tis said, hath been allow'd after Verdict and Judgment; and may be maintained by Executors, &c. by Stat. 9 H. 6. c. 4. Cro. Jac. 623. It lies also for seising wrongfully of another Person's Lands or Goods. 37 Ed. 3. c. 2. 2 Lill. Abr. 29.

Idiot, (Lat. Idiota, Indotus) Is used in our Law, for one who is a natural Fool, from his Birth. By the Statute 17 Ed. 2. c. 9. The King shall have the Custody of the Lands of an Idiot or natural Fool, taking the Profits during his Life, without committing Waste, and finding him and his Family necessaries; and after his Death, shall render the Lands to the right Heir: And the King shall also have the Custody of the Body, Goods and Chattels of an Idiot, after Office found, &c. The Custody of the Body and Goods of the Idiot are given to the King by the Common Law; as the Custody of his Lands is by the Statute de Prærogativa Regis, and the Use of them is in the King; but the Freehold is in the Idiot: If he alien his Land, the King shall have a Scire facias against the Alience, and re-seise the same into his Hands, and the Inheritance shall be vested in the Idiot; but this must be after he is found by Inquisition to be an Idiot. 13 Eliz. Dyer 302. 5 Rep. 125. It has been adjudg'd, that the King shall have the Profits of an Idiot's Lands only from the Time of the Inquisition; but to prevent Incumbrances made by the Idiot, it shall have Relation to the Time of his Birth. 8 Rep. 170. By his Prerogative, and Jure Protectionis sue Regiæ, the King hath the Lands, and 'tis said the sole Interest in granting the Estate of an Idiot, but not of a Lunatick. If a Person had once Understanding, and became a Fool by Chance or Misfortune; the King shall not have the Custody of him. Staundf. Prærog. c. 9. 4 Rep. 124. And if one have so much Knowledge as to measure a Yard of Cloth, number twenty Pence, or rightly name the Days of the Week, &c. he shall not be accounted an Idiot by the Laws of the Realm. 4 Rep. Though where there was a general Finding of an Idiot, and afterwards said for so many Years, and not from his Nativity;

it was held good, and that what follow'd was Surplussage. 3 Mod. 43. Idiots not having Understanding, are incapable to make a Will or Testament; and their Deeds, Grants and Conveyances are voidable, or may be made void: But what they do concerning Lands, &c. in a Court of Record, shall bind themselves, and all others claiming under them. 1 Inst. 247. 2 Inst. 483. 5 Rep. 111, 124. If an Idiot contracts Matrimony, it shall bind him: And Idiots shall be bound to pay for Necessaries. 1 Roll. Abr. 357. 2 Sid. 112. A Descent may take away an Entry of an Idiot, &c. 4 Rep. But where an Heir is an Idiot, though of any Age, any Person may make a Tender for him. 1 Inst. 206. Idiots cannot appear by Attorney, but when they sue or defend any Action they must appear in Person; and the Suit be in their Names, but followed by others. 2 Sid. 112, 335. Idiots, &c. ought not to be prosecuted for any Crime; because they want Knowledge to distinguish Good and Evil. 1 Inst. 247. 3 Inst. 4, 108.

Idiotæ Inquirendo vel Examinando, Is a Writ to examine whether the Person be an Idiot. The King having the Protection of his Subjects, and the Government of their Lands who are naturally defective in their Understanding; for this Purpose the Writ de Idiota Inquirendo, &c. is issued, directed to the Sheriff to call before him the Party suspected of Idiocy, and to examine him and inquire by a Jury of twelve Men, who are to be on their Oaths, whether the Party is an Idiot, or not, viz. If he be of sufficient Understanding and Discretion to manage his Estate; and when the Inquisition is taken, the Sheriff is to certify it into the Chancery: Also the Party may be afterwards examined by the Lord Chancellor, &c. F. N. B. 232. Reg. Orig. 267. 9 Rep. 31.

Ides, (Idus) Are eight Days in every Month, so called; being the eight Days immediately after the Nones. In the Months of March, May, July, and October, these eight Days begin at the eighth Day of the Month, and continue to the fifteenth Day: In other Months they begin at the sixth Day, and last to the Thirteenth. But it is observable, that only the last Day is called Ides; the First of these Days is the Eighth Ides, the second Day the Seventh, the Third the Sixth, i. e. the Eighth, Seventh, or Sixth Day before the Ides; and so it is of the Rest of the Days: Wherefore when we speak of the Ides of any Month in general, it is to be taken for the Fifteenth or Thirteenth of the Month mentioned. See Calends.

Idoneum se facere, (Idoneus, used for Innocens) Is to purge himself by Oath of a Crime whereof he is accused. Leg. H. 1. c. 75.

Iejunium, (Purgatio per Jejunium) We read of in the Laws of Canutus, cap. 7.

Ieofoile, Is compounded of the Fr. Fay faillé, i. e. Ego lapsus sum, and signifies an Oversight in Pleading, or other Law-Proceedings. It is when the Parties to any Suit have gone so far that they have join'd Issue, which shall be tried, or is tried by a Jury or Inquest, and this Pleading or Issue is so badly pleaded or join'd, that it will be Error if they proceed; then some of the Parties may by their Counsel shew it to the Court, as well after Verdict given and before Judgment, as before the Jury are charged; the Shewing of which Defects by the Counsel was often, when the Jury came into Court to try the Issue, by saying, saying, This Inquest ye ought not to take; and if after Verdict, by saying, To Judgment you ought not to go, &c. Therefore for avoiding the frequent Delays in Suits by such Suggestions, several Statutes have been made. Terms de Ley 401. If the Plaintiff in an Action declares upon a Promise to find the Plaintiff, his Wife, and two Servants with Meat and Drink for three Years, upon Request; and the Defendant pleads that he promis'd to find the Plaintiff and his Wife with Meat, &c. absque hoc, that he promis'd to find for two Servants, and the Plaintiff replies, that he did promise to find, &c. for three Years next following; Et hoc petit, &c. and thereupon a Verdict is found for the Plaintiff; yet he shall not have Judgment, for the Promise in the Replication is not the same with that in the Declaration, which was traversed by the Defendant, and so there is no Issue join'd, and therefore 'tis not help'd by Statute, Mich. 19 & 20 Eliz. 3 Leon. 66. In an Assumpsit, the Defendant pleads Not guilty, and thereupon Issue is join'd, and found for the Plaintiff; he shall have Judgment, though this is an improper Issue in this Action, for as there is a Deceit alledged, Not guilty is an Answer thereto, and it is but an Issue misjoin'd, which is aided by Statute. Cro. Eliz. 470. If in Debt upon a single Bill, the Defendant pleads Payment, without an Acquittance, and Issue is join'd and found for the Plaintiff; though the Payment without Acquittance is no Plea to a single Bill, he shall have Judgment, because the Issue was joined upon an Affirmative and a Negative, and a Verdict for the Plaintiff. Mich. 37 & 38 Eliz. 5 Rep. 43. An immaterial Issue, no Way arising from the Matter, is not within the Statutes of Jeofails. 1 Danv. Abr. 357. An ill Plea and Issue may be aided by the Statute of Jeofails, after a Verdict: And if an Issue join'd be uncertain and confus'd, a Verdict will help it. Cro. Car. 316. Hob. 115. The Statutes likewise help when there is no Original; and where there is no Bill upon the File, it is aided after Verdict by Statute: But when there is an Original, which is ill, that is not aided. Cro. Jac. 185, 480. Cro. Car. 282. The Statute of Jeofails 16 & 17 Car. 2. helps a Mistrial in a proper County; but not where the County is mistaken. 1 Mod. 24. And these are the Statutes of Jeofails, which help Errors and Defects by Mispleading in Records, Process, Misprisions of Clerks, &c. By 32 H. 8. c. 30. it is enacted, that if the Jury have once passed upon the Issue, though afterwards there be found a Jeofail in the Proceedings, yet Judgment shall be given according to the Verdict. The 18 Eliz. c. 14. ordains, that after Verdict given in any Court of Record, there shall be no Stay of Judgment, or Reversal for Want of Form in a Writ, Count, Plaint, &c. or for Want of any Writ original or judicial; or by Reason of insufficient Returns of Sheriffs, &c. But this is not to extend to Appeals of Felony, Indictments, &c. By the 21 Jac. 1. c. 13. if a Verdict shall be given in any Court of Record, the Judgment shall not be stayed or reversed for Variance in Form between the original Writ or Bill and the Declaration, &c. or for Want of Averment of the Party's being living, so as the Person is prov'd to be in Life; or for that the Venire facias is in Part misawarded; for Misnomer of Jurors, if prov'd to be the Persons return'd; Want of Return of Writs, so as a Panel of Jurors be return'd and annex'd to the Writs; or for that the Return Officer's Name is not set to the Return, if Proof can be made that the Writ was return'd by such Officer, &c. The Statute 16 & 17 Car. 2. c. 8. enacts, that Judgment shall not be stayed or reversed after Verdict in the Courts of Record at Westminster, &c. for Default in Form; or for that there are not Pledges to prosecute upon the Return of the original Writ, or because the Name of the Sheriff is not returned upon it; for Default of alledging the Bringing into Court of any Bond, Bill, or Deed, or of alledging or bringing in Letters Testamentary, or of Administration; or for the Omission of Vi & Armis, or contra pacem; mistaking the Christian Name or Surname of either Party, or the Sum of Money, Day, Month, or Year, &c. in any Declaration or Pleading, being rightly named in any Record, &c. preceding; nor for Want of the Averment of hoc paratus est verificare, or for not alledging prout patet per Recordum; for that there is no right Venire, if the Cause was try'd by a Jury of the proper County or Place; nor any Judgment after Verdict, by Confession Cognovit actionem, &c. shall be reversed for Want of Miseriordia or Capiatur, or by Reason that either of them are entered, the one for the other, &c. But all such Defects, not being against the Right of the Matter of the Suit, or whereby the Issue or Trial are altered, shall be amended by the Judges: Though not in Suits of Appeal of Felony, Indictments, Informations on Penal Statutes, &c. which are excepted out of the Act. The 22 & 23 Car. c. 4. made this Act perpetual. By 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. all the Statutes of Jeofails shall extend to Judgments entered by Confession, Nil dicit, or Non sum Informatus in any Court of Record; and no such Judgment shall be reversed, nor any Judgment or Writ of Inquiry of Damages thereon shall be stayed for any Defect which would have been aided by those Statutes, if a Verdict had been given; so as there be an original Writ filed, &c. The 5 Geo. c. 13. ordains, that after Verdict Judgment shall not be stayed or reversed for Defect in Form or Substance, in any Bill or Writ, or for Variance therein, from the Declaration or any other Proceedings. See Error.

Fesse, A large brass Candlestick, with many Sconces hanging down in the Middle of a Church or Choir; which Invention was first called Fesse from the Similitude of the Branches to those of the Arbor Fesse: And this useful Ornament of Churches was first brought over into this Kingdom by Hugh de Flory, Abbot of St. Austins in Canterbury about the Year 1100. *Chron. Fetsen, Fetson, or Fetsam, (From the Fr. Fetter, i. e. egi ere) Is any Thing thrown out of a Ship, being in Danger of Wreck, and by the Waves driven to Shore. 5 Rep. 106. See Flotsam.

Fesuits, &c. Born in the King's Dominions, and ordained by the pretended Jurisdiction of Rome, remaining in England, or coming from beyond Sea into this Kingdom, and not submitting to some Bishop or Justice of Peace within three Days, and taking the Oaths, are guilty of High Treason; and Receivers, Aiders, and Harbourers of them, are Guilty of Felony. Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 2. Persons knowing Priests, Fesuits, &c. and not discovering them to a Justice of Peace, shall be fined and imprisoned. 22 Car. 2.

Jews, (Judæi) In former Times the Jews and all their Goods were at the Disposal of the Chief Lord where they lived; who had an absolute Property in them; and they might not remove to another Lord without his Leave: And we read that K. Henry 3. sold the Jews for a certain Term of Years to Earl Richard his Brother. They were distinguished from the Christians, in their Lives-time, and at their Deaths; for they wore a Badge on their outward Garments, in the Shape of a Table, and were fined if they went abroad without such Badges; and they were never buried within the Walls of any City, but without the same, and antiently not permitted to Burial in the Country. Matt. Paris. 521, 606, &c. There were particular Judges and Laws by which their Causes and Contracts were decided; and there was a Court of Justice assigned for the Jews. 4 Inst. 254. A Jew may be a Witness by our Laws, being sworn on the Old Testament. 4 Inst. 279. But by our antient Books, Jews, Hereticks, &c. are adjudged out of the Statutes allowing Benefit of Clergy. 2 Hawk. P. C. 338. The 53 H. 3. is called Provisiones de Judaismo; and by the Statute 18 Ed. 1. the King had a Fifteenth granted him pro expulsione Judæorum. See Stat. 1 Ann. c. 30. concerning Jewish Parents refusing Maintenance to a Protestant Child; and 10 Geo. c. 4. by which Jews may take the Oaths to the Government, &c. Vide Judaism.

Ignis Judicium, Purgation by Fire, or the old judicial fiery Trial.

Ignitegium, The Evening Bell to put out the Fire, in the Time of Will. 1. called The Conqueror. See Curfew.

Ignoramus, (i. e. We are ignorant) Is used by the Grand Jury empanelled on the Inquisition of Causes criminal, when they reject the Evidence as too weak or defective to make good the Presentment against a Person, so as to put him on his Trial, in which Case they write this Word on the Bill of Indictment; the Effect whereof is, that all farther Inquiry and Proceedings against that Party, for that Fault wherewith he is charged, is thereby stopped, and he is deliver'd without further Answer. 3 Inst. 30.

Ignorance, (Ignorantia) Which is Want of Knowledge of the Law, shall not excuse any Man from the Penalty of it. Every Person is bound at his Peril to take Notice what the Law of the Realm is; and Ignorance of it, though it be invincible, as where a Man affirms that he hath done all that in him lies to know the Law, shall not excuse him. Doff. & Stud. 1. 46. And an Infant of the Age of Discretion shall be punished for Crimes, though he be ignorant of the Law; but Infants of tender Age, have Ignorance by Nature to excuse them; as Persons Non Compos have Ignorance by the Hand of God. Stud. Compan. 83, 84. Tho' Ignorance of the Law excuseth not; Ignorance of the Fact doth. 2 Co. 3.

Illet, By Contraction Ight, signifies a little Island. Blount.

Illeivable, A Debt or Duty that cannot, or ought not to be levied; as Nihil set upon a Debt is a Mark for illeviable.

Illiterate. If an illiterate Man be to seal a Deed, he is not bound to do it, if none be present to read it, if required; and also to expound it, if written in Latin: And Reading a Deed false, will make it void. 2 Rep. 3, 11. A Man may plead Non est factum to a Deed read false; as where a Release of an Annuity was read to an illiterate Person, as a Release of the Arrears only, &c. agreed to be released. Moor 148. If there is a Time limited for a Person to seal a Writing, in such Case Illiterate shall be no Excuse, because he might provide a skilful Man to instruct him; but when he is obliged to seal it upon Request, &c. there he shall have convenient Time to be instructed. 2 Nelf. Abr. 946.

Illuminare, To illuminate, or draw in Gold and Colours the initial Letters and occasional Pictures in manuscript Books. Brompt. Anno 1076.

Imbargo, (Span. in Lat. Navium detentio) Is a Stop, Stay, or Arrest upon Ships or Merchandize, by Publick Authority. Stat. 15 Car. 2. c. 5. This Arrest of Shipping is commonly of the Ships of Foreigners, in Time of War and Difference with States to whom they are belonging: But by an antient Statute, foreign Merchants in this Kingdom are to have forty Days Notice to sell their Effects and depart, on any Difference with a foreign Nation. 27 Ed. 3. c. 17. Prohibiting Commerce in Time of War, or of Plague, Pestilence, &c. is a Kind of Imbargo on Shipping.

Imbezle, To steal, pilfer, or purloin; or where a Person entrusted with Goods, wastes and diminishes them. The Word Imbezle is mentioned in several Statutes, particularly relating to Workers of Wool, &c. as the Stat. 7 Jac. 1. c. 1. 14 Car. 2. c. 31. and 1 Ann. By the former of which, Imbezlers of Wool, Yarn, or other Materials for making of Cloth, are to make Satisfaction, or be whipp'd and put in the Stocks; and by the latter they are to forfeit double Damages, and be committed to the House of Correction till paid, &c. By a late Statute, if any Servant imbezils, purloins, or makes away his Master's Goods, to 40 s. Value, it is made Felony without Benefit of Clergy. 12 Ann. c. 7.

Impalare, Is to put in a Pound; by the Laws of Hen. 1. c. 9.

Impanel, (Impanellare Furatis) Signifies the Writing and Entering into a Parchment Schedule by the Sheriff, of the Names of a Jury summoned to appear for the Performance of such Publick Service as Juries are employ'd in. Impanulare was sometimes a Privilege granted, that a Person should not be impanelled or returned upon a Jury. — Non Ponatur nec Impanuletur in aliquibus Furatis, &c. Paroch. Antiq. 657. See Panel.

Imparlance, (Interlocutio, vel Licentia Interloquendi) Is derived from the Fr. Parler, to speak, and in the Common Law is taken for a Petition in Court of a Day to consider, or advise what Answer the Defendant shall make to the Action of the Plaintiff; being a Continuance of the Cause till another Day, or a larger Time given by the Court. And Imparlance is either General or Special; General, when it is set down and entered in general Terms, without any special Clause, thus, Et modo ad hunc diem Fovis prox. post Octab. Sancti Hillarii isto eodem Termino usque quem Diem præd. E. F. Defend. habuit Licentiam ad Billam præd. Interloquend. & tunc ad Respondend. &c. Special Imparlance is where the Party desires a farther Day to answer, adding also these Words, Salvo omnibus Advantagiis, tam ad Jurisdictionem Curie, quam ad Breve & Narrationem, &c. Kitch. 200. This Imparlance is had on the Declaration of the Plaintiff; and special Imparlance is of Use where the Defendant is to plead some Matters which cannot be pleaded after a general Imparlance. 5 Rep. 75. Imparlance is generally to the next Term; and if the Plaintiff amend his Declaration after delivered vered or filed, the Defendant may imparl to the next Term afterwards, if the Plaintiff do not pay Costs; but if he pay Costs, which is accepted, the Defendant cannot imparl. 2 Lill. Abr. 35. Also if the Plaintiff declares against the Defendant, but doth not proceed in three Terms after; the Defendant may imparl to the next Term. Ibid. The not delivering a Declaration in Time is sometimes the Cause of Imparlance of Course: And where the Defendant's Case requires a special Plea, and the Matter which is to be pleaded is difficult; the Court will, upon Motion, grant the Defendant an Imparlance, and longer Time to put in his Plea, than otherwise by the Rules of the Court he ought to have: If the Plaintiff keeps any Deed, or other Thing from the Defendant, whereby he is to make his Defence, Imparlance may be granted till the Plaintiff delivers it to him, or brings it into Court, and a convenient Time after to plead. Hill. 22 Car. 1. B. R. An Imparlance being pray'd on a Defendant's Appearing to answer an Information, it was said Imparlance was formerly from Day to Day, but now from one Term to another, on the Crown-Side; and it was ruled, that the Defendant should have the same Time to imparl that the Process would have taken up, if he had stood out 'till the Attachment or Capias; for when he comes in upon that, he must plead instantly. 1 Salk. 367. Mod. Cases 243. And if Process had been continued, he might have been brought in the same Term upon an Attachment; and then there would be no Imparlance, but he ought to plead instantly. 2 Nelf. Abr. 947. There are many Cases wherein Imparlances are not allow'd; no Imparlance is granted in an Homine Replegiando; or in an Affise, unless on good Cause shewn, because 'tis Festinum Remedium: Nor shall there be an Imparlance in Action of special Clausum fregit; tho' it is allow'd in general Actions of Treipass. Hill. 9 W. 3. 3 Salk. 186. Where an Attorney, or other privileged Person of the Court, sues another, the Defendant cannot imparl, but must plead presently: If the Plaintiff sues out a special Original, wherein the Cause of Action is express'd, and the Defendant is taken on a special Capias, he shall not have Imparlance, but shall plead as soon as the Rules are out. 2 Lill. 35, 36. Every Imparlance ousts all Pleas to the Jurisdiction of the Court; so that a Plea to the Jurisdiction is not to be received after an Imparlance. Raym. 34. After Imparlance the Defendant cannot plead in Abatement; if he doth, and the Plaintiff tenders an Issue, whereupon the Defendant demurs, and the Plaintiff joins in Demurrer, such Plea is not peremptory; because the Plaintiff ought not to have joined in Demurrer, but to have moved the Court, that the Defendant might be compelled to plead in Chief. Allen 65. Tho' a Defendant may not plead in Abatement after a general Imparlance; yet if it appears by the Record that the Plaintiff hath brought his Action before he had any Cause, the Court ex Officio will abate the Writ. 2 Lev. 197. The Defendant cannot have Oyer of a Deed in a common Case, after Imparlance: And a Tender after Imparlance is naught. 2 Lev. 190. Lutw. 258. If it appears upon the Record, that an Imparlance was due, and denied, it is Error; but then such Error must appear on the Record. 3 Salk. 168. It has been held, that if the Defendant doth not appear on a Dies Datus, the Plaintiff shall not have Judgment by Default, as he may on Imparlance; because the

Dies Datus is not so strong against him as an Imparlance; and therefore the Plaintiff must take out Process against the Defendant for not Appearing at the Time. Moor 79. 2 Nelf. 497.

Imparlancee, (As Parson Imparlancee) Is he that is inducted and in Possession of a Benefice. See Parson.

Impeachment, (From the Lat. Impetere) Is the Accusation and Prosecution of a Person for Treason, or other Crimes and Misdemeanors. Any Member of the House of Commons may not only impeach any one of their own Body, but also any Lord of Parliament, &c. And thereupon Articles are exhibited on the Behalf of the Commons, and Managers appointed to make good their Charge and Accusation; which being done in the proper Judicature, Sentence is passed, &c. And it is observed, that the same Evidence is required in an Impeachment in Parliament, as in the ordinary Courts of Justice: But not in Bills of Attainder. State Trials, Vol. 4. 311. Vol. 1. 676. No Pardon under the Great Seal can be pleaded to an Impeachment by the Commons in Parliament. 12 W. 3. c. 2.

Impeachment of Waste, (Impetio Vastii, from the Fr. Empeschement, i. e. Impedimentum) Signifies a Restraint from committing of Waste upon Lands or Tenements; or a Demand of Recompence for Waste done by a Tenant that hath but a particular Estate in the Land granted: But he that hath a Lease to hold without Impeachment of Waste, hath by that such an Interest given him in the Land, &c. that he may make Waste without being impeached for it; that is, without being questioned, or any Demand of Recompence for the Waste done. 11 Rep. 82.

Impediments in Law. Persons under Impediments are those within Age, under Coverture, Non Compos mentis, in Prison, beyond Sea, &c. who, by a Saving in our Laws, have Time to claim and prosecute their Rights, after the Impediments removed, in Case of Fines levied, &c. 1 R. 3. c. 7. 4 H. 7. c. 24. See Stat. Limitations 21 Jac. 1.

Impetration, (Impetratio) Signifies an Obtaining any Thing by Request and Prayer: And in our Statutes it is a Pre-obtaining of Church Benefices in England from the Court of Rome, which belong to the Gift and Disposition of the King, and other Lay Patrons of this Realm; the Penalty whereof was the same with Provisors. 25 Ed. 3. 38 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Impiermen, Is used for Impairing or Prejudicing; as to the Impiement and Diminution of their good Names, &c. 23 H. 8. c. 9.

Implead, To sue or prosecute by Course of Law; from the Fr. Plaider.

Implements, (From the Lat. Impleo, to fill up) Are Things of necessary Use in any Trade or Mystery, without which the Work cannot be perform'd; also it is the Furniture of an House, as all Household Goods, Implements, &c. In this Sense we find this Word often in Gifts and Conveyances of Moveables. Terms de Ley 403.

Implication. When the Law giveth any Thing to any one, it giveth Implicitly; whatsoever is necessary for the Enjoying of the same. And there is an Implication in Wills and Devises of Lands, whereby Estates are gained; as if a Husband devises the Goods in his House to his Wife, and that after her Decease his Son shall have them, and his House; though the House be not devised to the Wife by express Words, yet it hath hath been held that she hath an Estate for Life in it by Implication, because no other Person could then have it, and the Son and Heir being excluded, who was to have nothing 'till after her Decease. 1 Ventr. 223. But where it may be reasonably intended, that the Devisor meant as well the one as the other, in such Case his Intention shall never be construed in Prejudice to the Heir at Law; for Instance; A Man devised Part of his Lands to his Wife for Life, and that the same and all the Rest of his Lands should remain to his youngest Son, and the Heirs of his Body, after the Death of the Wife; now here was no express Devise of the Rest of the Lands to the Wife, and she shall not have them by Implication, because the eldest Son and Heir at Law was not excluded, who shall have them during the Life of the Wife, 'till the Devise to the youngest Son takes Effect, for they shall descend to the Heir in the mean Time. Moor 123. Tho' Croke, who reports the same Case, says, it was adjudged the Wife should have the Whole. Cro. Eliz. 15. Estates for Life, and Estates-tail, may be raised by Implications in Wills; a Testator had three Sons, the eldest Son died, leaving his Wife with Child, to whom the Father devised an Annuity in Ventre sa mere, and if his middle Son died before he had any Issue of his Body, Remainder over, &c. And it was resolved, that such Son had an Estate-tail by Implication. Moor 127. It is said, a Fee-simple Estate shall not arise by Implication in a Will, though there is a perpetual Charge imposed by the Devisor on the Devisee; as where a Chaplain, &c. is to be maintain'd by the Parson out of the Profits of a House, &c. Bridgm. 103. Also it hath been adjudg'd, that where a particular Estate is devised by Will expressly, a contrary Intent shall not be implied by any subsequent Clause: And Implication is either necessary or possible; and where-ever an Estate is raised by that Means in a Will, it must be by a necessary Implication; for the Devisee must necessarily have the Thing devised, and no other Person whatsoever can have it. 1 Salk. 236. 2 Nelf. Abr. 949. No Implication shall be allowed against an express Estate, limited by express Words, to drown the same. Salk. 266. Implication will sometimes help Law-Proceedings, and supply Defects: See Intendment and Use.

Importation, (Importatio) Is where Goods and Merchandize are brought into this Kingdom from other Nations. 12 Car. 2. c. 4.

Impost, (Fr. from the Lat. Impono, i. e. Injungere) Is a Tribute or Custom; but more particularly that Tax which the King receives for Merchandizes imported into any Port or Haven: And it may be distinguished from Customs, which are rather the Profits arising to the King from Goods exported. 3 Eliz. c. 5.

Impossibility. A Thing which is impossible in Law, is all one with a Thing impossible in Nature: And if any Thing in a Bond or Deed be impossible to be done, such Deed, &c. is void. 21 Car. 1. B. R.

Imprisonment, (Imprisonamentum) Is a Restriction of a Man's Liberty under the Custody of another; and extends not only to a Gaol, but a House, Stocks, or where a Man is held in the Street, &c. for in all these Cases the Party so restrained is said to be a Prisoner, so long as he hath not his Liberty freely to go about his Business as at other Times. 1 Inst. 253. Imprisonment according to Law, is according to the Common or Statute Law, or the Custom of England; or by Process, and Course of Law. 2 Inst. 46, 50, 282. And no Person is to be imprison'd, but as the Law directs either by Command and Order of a Court of Record, or by lawful Warrant, or the King's Writ; by which one may be lawfully detained to answer the Law. 2 Inst. 46. 3 Inst. 209. At Common Law, a Man could not be imprisoned in any Case, unless he were guilty of some Force and Violence; for which his Body was subject to Imprisonment, as one of the highest Executions of the Law: But Imprisonment is inflicted by Statute in many Cases. 3 Rep. 11. Though see Magn. Chart. 9 H. 3. c. 29. If a Warrant of Commitment be for Imprisoning a Man until farther Order, &c. it has been held ill; for it should be 'till the Party is delivered by due Course of Law. 1 Roll. Rep. 337. It is the same when a Person is imprison'd on a Warrant, without shewing any Cause for which he is committed: And where a Person was committed to Prison by Warrant from a Secretary of State, without assigning any Cause, &c. it was adjudged, that he ought to be discharged for that Reason; but then another Warrant was return'd of the same Secretary, in which the first Warrant was recited, and that upon farther Examination, he commanded the Gaoler to detain him safely, for Suspicion of High Treason; and it was said this was no Cause to detain him, because this second Warrant refer'd to the First, which was no Warrant at all; besides, there was no special Cause of Suspicion alledged, nor for what Species of Treason. Palm. 558. 1 Roll. Rep. 219. In all Actions Quare Vi & Armis, if Judgment be given against the Defendant, he shall be fined and imprison'd, because to every Fine Imprisonment is incident; and therefore where the Defendant is fined for a Contempt to any Court of Record, he may be imprisoned 'till the Fine is paid. 8 Rep. 60. In what Cases Persons imprison'd may be deliver'd on Bail; or by the Habeas Corpus Writ, &c. see Bail and Habeas Corpus.

Impropriation, Is properly so called when a Benefice Ecclesiastical is in the Hands of a Lay Man; and Appropriation, when in the Hands of a Bishop, College, or Religious House, though sometimes they are confounded. There are computed to be in England 3845 Impropriations; and on the Dissolution of Monasteries they were granted to Lay Persons by the King's Patents, &c. 31 H. 8. Vide Appropriation.

Incertantp, In Law Proceedings, will make them void; for all Proceedings at Law are to be certain and affirmative, that the Defendant may be at a Certainty as to what he should answer, &c. Plowd. 84. If the Count and Verdict in an Appeal be incertain, there can be no Judgment given thereon; and it is the same on an Indictment. 3 Mod. 121. Incertainty in Deeds renders them void; but sometimes a Term for Years granted by Lease, may be made certain by Reference to a Certainty; and Incertainty may be reduced to Certainty, by Matter ex post facto, Implication, &c. Plowd. 6. 273. 6 Rep. 20. Incertainty in Declarations of Uses of Fines of Lands, &c. is rejected in Law; for otherwise there would be no certain Inheritances. 9 Rep.

Inchanter, (Incantator) Is he that by Charms conjures the Devil; Qui Carminibus vel Cantunculis Dæmonem a-jurat: And they were anciently called Carmina, by Reason in those Days their Charms were in Verse. 3 Inst. 44.

Inch of Candle, Is the Manner of selling Goods by Merchants; which is done thus: First, Notice is to be given upon the Exchange, or other publick Place, of the Time of Sale; and in the mean Time, the Goods to be sold are divided into Lots, printed Papers of which, and the Conditions of Sale, are also forthwith published; and when the Goods are exposed to Sale, a small Piece of Wax Candle, about an Inch long, is burning, and the last Bidder when the Candle goes out, is entitled to the Lot or Parcel so exposed. If any Difference happens in adjusting to whom a Lot belongs, where several bid together, the Lot is to be put up again; and the last Bidder is bound to stand to the Bargain, and take the Lot, whether good or bad. In these Cases, the Goods are set up at such a Price; and none shall bid less than a certain Sum, more than another hath before, &c. Merch. Dict.

Incident, (Incidens) Is a Thing appertaining to, or following another, that is more worthy or principal. Incroachment, (Fr. Accroachment, i. e. a Grasping of a Thing) Signifies an unlawful Gaining upon the Right or Possession of another Man. As where a Person sets his Hedge or Wall too far into the Ground of his Neighbour, that lies next to him, he is said to make Incroachment upon him: And a Rent is said to be incroached, when the Lord by Distress or otherwise compels his Tenant to pay more than he owes; and so of Services, &c. 9 Rep. 33. And sometimes this Word is applied to Power; for the Spencers, Father and Son, it is said, incroached unto them Royal Power and Authority. Anno 1 Ed. 3. Indefeisible, Is what cannot be defeated or made void; as a good and Indefeisible Estate &c.

Indefensus, A Word signifying one that is impleaded, and refuseth to make Answer: Et predictus J. nihil sciebat dicere contra sectam dicti Richardi, nec voluit ponere se in Inquisitionem aliquam; Consideratum est quod tanquam Indefensus sit in misericordia, &c. Mich. 50 H. 3. Rot. 4.

Indemnity. On the Appropriation of a Church to any College, &c. when the Archdeacon loses for ever his Induction Money, the Recompence he receives yearly out of the Church so appropriate, as 12 d. or 11 s. more or less, as a Pension agreed at the Time of the Appropriating, is called an Indemnity. M.S. in Bibl. Cotton. p. 84.

Indenture, (Indentura) Is a Writing containing some Contract, Agreement or Conveyance between

tween two or more Persons, being indented in the Top answerable to another Part, which hath the same Contents. Co. Lit. 229. If a Deed or Writing begins, This Indenture, &c. and is not indented, it is no Indenture; but it may work as a Deed-Poll: But if the Deed is actually indented, and there are no Words importing an Indenture, it is nevertheless an Indenture in Law. Wood's Inst. 223. Cro. Eliz. 472. A Deed of Bargain and Sale of Freehold Lands, &c. must be by Indenture, inrolled, &c. Stat. 27 H. 8. cap. 16. Indicavit, Is a Writ or Prohibition that lies for a Patron of a Church, whose Clerk is sued in the Spiritual Court by another Clerk for Tithes, which do amount to a fourth Part of the Profits of the Advowson; then the Suit belongs to the King's Courts, by the Stat. Westm. 2. c. 5. And the Patron of the Defendant, being like to be prejudiced in his Church and Advowson, if the Plaintiff recovers in the Spiritual Court, hath this Means to remove it to the King's Court. Reg. Orig. 35. Old Nat. Br. 31. This Writ may be also purchased by the Parson sued; and is directed as well unto the Judge of the Court, as unto the Party Plaintiff, that they do not proceed, &c. But it is not to be had before the Defendant is libelled against in the Spiritual Court, the Copy of which ought to be produced in the Chancery, before the Indicavit is granted: And this Writ must be brought before Judgment given in the Spiritual Court; for after Judgment there, the Indicavit is void. New Nat. Br. 66, 101. The Writ Indicavit doth not lie of a less Part of the Tithes, &c. than a fourth Part of the Church; if they are not so much, this being furnished by the other Party, a Consultation shall be had. Ibid. The Patron of the Clerk who is prohibited by the Indicavit, may have his Writ of Right of the Advowson of Dismes, &c.

Indiction, (Indictio, ab indicendo) Was the Space of fifteen Years, by which Computation Charters and publick Writings were dated at Rome; and likewise anciently in England, which we find not only in the Charters of King Edgar, but of King Hen. 3. And by this Account of Time, which began at the Dismission of the Nicene Council, every Year still increased till it came to Fifteen; and then returned again, making the First, second Indiction, &c. Dat. apud Chippenham, 18 Die Aprilis, Indictione nona, Anno Dom. 1266.

Indictment, (Indictamentum, from the Fr. Enditer, i. e. deferre nomen aliquis) Is a Bill or Declaration of Complaint drawn up in Form of Law, exhibited for some Offence criminal or penal, and preferred to a Grand Jury; upon whose Oaths it is found to be true, before a Judge or others, having Power to punish or certify the Offence. Terms de Ley 293. Lambard says, an Indictment is an Accusation, at the Suit of the King, by the Oaths of Twelve Men of the same County wherein the Offence was committed, returned to enquire of all Offences in general in the County, determinable by the Court into which they are returned, and their Finding a Bill brought before them to be true: But when such Accusation is found by a Grand Jury, without any Bill brought before them, and afterwards reduced to a formed Indictment, it is called a Presentment; and when it is found by Jurors returned to enquire of that particular Offence only which is indicted, it is properly called an Inquisition. Lamb. lib. 4. cap. 5. And by Pulton, an Indictment is an Inquisition taken and made by twelve Men, at the least, thereunto sworn, whereby they do find and present, that such a Person, of such a Place, in such a County, and of such a Degree, hath committed such a Treason, Felony, Trespass, or other Offence, against the Peace of the King, his Crown and Dignity, &c. Pult. 169. A Bill of Indictment is said to be an Accusation for this Reason; because the Jury that enquireth of the Offence, doth not receive it, until the Party that offereth the Bill appearing subscribes his Name, and offers his Oath for the Truth of it: But it differs from an Accusation in this, that the Preferrer of the Bill is not tied to the Proof of it, upon any Penalty, except there appear Conspiracy. Staundf. P. C. lib. 2. cap. 23. Although a Bill of Indictment be preferred to a Grand Jury upon Oath, they are not bound to find the Bill, if they find Cause to the contrary; and on the contrary, tho' a Bill of Indictment be brought unto them without Oath made, they may find the Bill if they see Cause: But it is not usual to prefer a Bill unto them before Oath be first made in Court, that the Evidence they are to give unto the Grand Inquest to prove the Bill is true. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 44. The Grand Jury are to find the Whole in a Bill, or reject it, and not find specially for Part, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 210. According to the Common Law, every Indictment must be found by Twelve Men at the least, every one of whom ought to be of the same County, and returned by the Sheriff, or other proper Officer, without the Nomination of any other, and to be Freemen, not under any Attainder of Felony, nor Outlaws, &c. And any one under Prosecution for a Crime, before he is indicted, may except against or challenge any of the Persons returned on the Grand Jury; as being outlawed, returned at the Instance of the Prosecutor, or not returned by the proper Officer, &c. 2 Hawk. 215. By Statute, no Indictment shall be made but by Inquest of lawful Men returned by Sheriffs, &c. 11 H. 4. cap. 9. And if a Person not returned by the Sheriff on a Grand Jury, procures his Name to be read among those of others who were actually returned; whereupon he is sworn of the Jury, he may be indicted for it and fined, and the Indictment found by such a Jury shall be void. Stat. 11 Hen. 4. cap. 9. 12 Rep. 98. 3 Inst. 33. Sheriffs had formerly Power to take Indictments; which they did by Roll indented, one Part whereof remained with the Indictors. 13 Ed. 1. and 1 Ed. 3. Justices of Peace have no Power relating to Indictments, for Crimes, but what is given them by Act of Parliament: And it is said Justices of Peace in Sessions, cannot on an Indictment try and determine the Offence in one and the same Sessions in which the Offenders are indicted. Hill. 11 Car. Cro. Car. 430, 448. And Indictments before Justices of Peace, &c. may be removed into the Court of B. R. by Certiorari: But an Indictment removed by Certiorari into B. R. may be sent back again into the County or Place whence removed, if there be Cause to do it. Mish. 22 Car. Before the Stat. 3 Hen. 7. c. 1. it was the common Practice not to try any Man upon an Indictment of Murder, before the Year and Day were passed, to bring an Appeal, lest that Suit should should be prevented. 2 Hawk. 214. And Appeals are to be generally preferred to Indictments. 3 H. 7. As an Appeal is ever the Suit of the Party, so an Indictment is always at the Suit of the King. 1 Inst. 126. And till the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. If a Man had been indicted and convicted of Felony, &c. and the King had died before Judgment, no Judgment could be given, because it was at the Suit of the King; and the Authority of the Judges who should give the Judgment was determined by his Death: But by that Statute Judgment may be given in the Time of another King. 7 Rep. 29. An Indictment is the King's Suit; for that the Party who prosecutes it, is a good Witness to prove it: And no Damages can be given to the Party grieved upon an Indictment or other criminal Prosecution, unless particularly grounded on some Statute; but the Party indicted shall be fined: But the Court of B. R. by the King's Privy Seal may give to the Prosecutor a third Part of the Fine assessed for any Offence; and the Fine to the King may be mitigated, in Regard to the Defendant's making Satisfaction to a Prosecutor for Costs of the Prosecution, and Damages sustained by the Injury received. 2 Hawk. 210. No Man may be put upon his Trial for a capital Offence, except on an Appeal or Indictment, or some Thing equivalent thereto. H. P. C. 201. And all Indictments ought to be brought for Offences committed against the Common Law, or against some Statute; and not for every slight Misdemeanor. Trin. 23 B. R. 2 Lill. 44. Where a Statute appoints a Penalty to be recovered by Bill, Plaint, or Information, it cannot be by Indictment, but as directed to be recovered: An Indictment will not lie where another Remedy is provided by Statute. Cro. Jac. 643. 3 Salk. 187. Indictments are for the Benefit of the Commonwealth, and the publick Good; and to be preferred for Criminal, not Civil Matters: They may be of High Treason, Petit Treason, Felony, Trespas, and in all Sorts of Pleas of the Crown, but not of Injuries of a private Nature, which do not concern the King, and the Publick. 1 Inst. 126, 303. 4 Rep. 44. An Indictment lies against one for assaulting and stopping another on the Highway, being a Breach of the Peace. Hill. 22 Car. Indictment will lie for taking away Goods forcibly, whereby there is a Breach of the Peace; though the Goods are the Taker's own Property. Trin. 2 Ann. 3. Salk. 187. It lies for cheating a Person at Play, with false Dice, or any other Cheating: But it is not indictable for one Man to make a Fool of another, in the Case of Cheats getting Money, &c. tho' Action may be brought. 2 Lill. 44. 1 Salk. 479. Indictment will not lie for a private Nuisance, wherein Action on the Case only lies; and where a Person is indicted for Trespas, which is not indictable at Law, but for which Action should be had; or if a Man be indicted for scandalous Words, as Calling another Rogue, &c. such Indictments are not good; for private Injuries are to be redressed by private Actions. 2 Lill. Abr. 42. But where a Person is beaten, he may proceed for this Trespas by Indictment, or Information, as well as Action; but not both Ways. Pasch. 24 Car. B. R. And where in an Action on the Case a Defendant justifies for Words, as Calling the Plaintiff Thief, &c. if on the Trial it be found for the Defendant, Indictment may be brought forthwith to try the Plaintiff for the Felony. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 44. A Parson may be indicted for Preaching against the Government of the Church, the Civil and Ecclesiastical Government being so incorporated together, that one cannot subsist without the other; and both center in the King; wherefore to speak against the Church, is within the Statute 13 Car. 2. Sid. 69. 2 Nelf. Abr. 959. And a Parson was indicted for pronouncing Absolution to Persons condemned for Treason, at the Place of Execution, without shewing any Repentance. 5 Mod. 363. Indictments are to be in Latin, or they will not be good; and ought to be more certain than common Pleadings in Law, because they are more penal, and to be more precisely answered unto. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. They must be precise and certain in every Point, and charge some Offence in particular, and not a Person as an Offender in general, or set down Goods, &c. stolen, without expressing what Goods; and it ought to be laid positively, not by Way of Recital, &c. or be supplied by Implication. Cro. Jac. 19. 2 Hawk. P. C. 225, 226. Indictments must set forth the Christian Name, Surname, and Addition of the Place of Residence of the Offender; the Certainty of the Time when the Offence was done, as the Day, Year, &c. and the Town or Place where; the Nature of the Offence, whether Treason, Felony, &c. The Value of the Thing by which it is committed, &c. And in Indictment of Murder, the Length and Depth of the Wound is to be expressed: The Value of Things stolen is to be specified that it may appear whether Grand or Petit Larceny; and of the Thing that does the Felony, which is forfeited to the King: The Dimensions of a Wound must be expressed, that it may be judged whether mortal. 1 Hen. 5. cap. 5. 2 Inst. 318. H. P. C. 264. West's Symb. Sect. 70. In Treason, the Indictment must say Proditorie, and conclude contra Ligeantia sua debitum; in Murder, it is to say Murdravit; and if the Killing was by Shooting, or with the Hand, &c. it must say Percussit; in Burglary, Burglariter, or Burgalariter; in Rape, Rapuit; in Felony, Felonice; in Larceny, Felonice cepit; Maihem, Mayhemavit, &c. And in all these Cases, and in Trespas, the Indictment ought to be Vi & Armis, and conclude contra pacem, which are Words to shew an Offence generally; and if the Offence is created by Statute, it must conclude contra formam Statuti, &c. 4 Rep. 39. 48. 5 Rep. 121. H. P. C. 206. These Words the Law hath appropriated for the Description of Offences, and none others will supply them: But the Omission of Vi & Armis & contra pacem, is helped by Statute, 4 & 5 Ann. False Latin will not hurt an Indictment, if the Word is Latin, or by any Intendment it can be made good; but if a Word be not Latin, or allowed by Law as a Word of Art; or if it be insensible in a material Point, it will make the Indictment insufficient. 5 Rep. 121. 1 Cro. 108. 3 Cro. 465. An Indictment shall not be set aside for a false Concord between the Substantive and Adjective, such as prafate Regi, or prafato Regina, &c. for tho' the Expressions be incongruous, yet they are Latin and significant to make the Sense appear. 5 Rep. 121. But an Indictment against two or more, laying the Fact in the singular Number as if against one; as where it finds that A. B. and C. D. insultum fecit, &c. is insufficient for the Incertainty. 2 Hawk. 238. The Use of a Word that is not Latin at all, or not Latin in the Sense in which used, may in many Cases be helped by an Anglice; though where there is a proper Latin Word for the Thing intended to be expressed, no Anglice will help an improper one, as it will when there is no proper Latin Word. Ibid. 239, 240. A Misnomer of the Defendant's Surname, will not abate the Indictment, as it will in case of the Name of Baptism; and if there be a Mistake in Spelling, if it sounds like the true Name, it is good. 1 Hen. 5. A Person may be indicted for Felony against an unknown Person; and when the Name of one killed is unknown, or Goods are stolen from a Person that cannot be known, it is sufficient to say in the Indictment that one unknown was killed by the Person indicted, or that he stole the Goods of one unknown. Wood's Inst. 624. Where a Person injured is known, his Name ought to be put into the Indictment. 2 Hawk. 232. If an Indictment be generally of Offences at several Times, without laying any one of them on a certain Day, as if it be laid between such a Day and such a Day, it hath been adjudged that the Indictment is void: But a Mistake in not laying an Offence on the very same Day, on which it is afterwards proved upon the Trial, is not material upon Evidence. 2 Hawk. 236. And it is said the Crown is not bound to set forth the very Day when Treason, &c. was committed: Evidence may be given of a treasonable Conspiracy, &c. at any Time before or after the Time alledged in the Indictment; where it is laid on such a Day and divers other Days as well before as after, because the Time is only a Circumstance, and of Form some Day must be alledged; but it is not material. 1 Salk. 288. If no Town or Place be named where the Fact was done, the Indictment shall be void; though a Mistake of the Place in laying the Offence, is of no Signification on the Evidence, if the Fact is proved at some other Place in the same County. H. P. C. 264. 1 Hen. 5. cap. 5. Indictments for Facts committed ought to be laid in the County where done; and the Town or Parish in which committed to be set forth, &c. And if upon Not guilty pleaded to an Indictment, it shall appear that the Offence was done in a County different from that in which the Indictment was found, the Defendant shall be acquitted. H. P. C. 203. Kel. 15. At Common Law, if a Man had died in one County of a Wound received in another, he could not regularly be indicted in either County, the Offence not being compleat in either; and no Jury could enquire of what happened out of the Limits of their own County: But by the Stat. 3 Ed. 6. c. 24. the Offence is to be indicted and tried by Jurors of the County where the Death happens. 2 Hawk. 220. It has been held, if a Person steals Goods in one County, and carry them into another, he may be indicted in the other County: And if a Person steals my Goods from another, who had stolen them before, he may be indicted as having stolen them from me; because in Judgment of Law, the Possession as well as Property always continued in me. 1 Hawk. 90. If there be an Accessory in one County, to a Felony committed in another, the Accessory may be indicted and tried in the same County wherein he was Accessory. Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. Husband and Wife may commit a Trespass, Felony, &c. and be indicted together; so for keeping a Bawdy-house, though the House be the Husband's. Hob. 95. 1 Salk. 382. If an Offence wholly arises from any joint Act that is criminal of several Defendants, they may be all charged in one Indictment jointly and severally, or jointly only; and some of the Defendants may be convicted, and others acquitted, for the Law looks on the Charge as several against each, though the Words of it purport a joint Charge against all: In other Cases, the Offences of several Persons must be laid several, because the Offence of one cannot be the Offence of another; and every Man ought to answer severally for his own Crime. 2 Hawk. 240. On penal Statutes, several Things shall not be joined in an Indictment, &c. except it be in Respect of some one Thing, to which all of them have Relation. Ibid. 241. When an Indictment is drawn upon a Statute, it ought to pursue the Words of it, if a private Act; but it is otherwise on a general Statute: It is best not to recite a publick Statute; the Recital is not necessary, for the Judges are bound ex officio to take Notice of all publick Statutes, and Mis-recitals are fatal; so that it is the surest Way only to conclude generally Contra formam Statuti, &c. 4 Rep. 48. Though there be no Necessity to recite a publick Statute in an Indictment, yet if the Prosecutor take upon him to do it, and materially vary from the substantial Part of the Purview of the Statute, and conclude Contra formam Statuti, prædict. he vitiates the Indictment. Plowd. 79, 83. Cro. Eliz. 236. But many Mis-recitals may be salved by a general Conclusion Contra formam Statuti, without adding prædict. &c. And Mistakes may be helped by the constant Course of Precedents upon such Statutes. 2 Hawk. 247. An Indictment is to bring the Fact making an Offence, within all the material Words of the Statute, or the Words Contra formam Statuti, &c. will not make it good, if the Statute be not recited. Ibid. 249. If a Word of Substance be omitted in the Indictment, the whole Indictment is naught; but it is otherwise where a Word of Form is omitted, or there is an Omission of a synonymous Word, where the Sense is the same, &c. Ibid. 246. Judgment shall not be given by Statute, upon an Indictment which doth not conclude contra formam Statuti: And Judgment by Statute shall never be given on an Indictment at Common Law, as every Indictment which doth not thus conclude shall be taken to be. 2 Hawk. 251. But where Persons are indicted on the Statute of Stabbing, and the Evidence is not sufficient to bring them within the Statute; they may be found Guilty of general Manslaughter at Common Law, and the Words contra formam Statuti be rejected as useless: In some other Cases the same has been also adjudged; though formerly it was held, that an Indictment grounded on a Statute, which would not maintain it, could not in any Case be maintained as an Indictment at Common Law. Ibid. Indictments may be amended the same Term wherein brought into Court, and not after: But criminal Prosecutions are not within the Benefit of the Statutes of Amendments; so that no Amendment can be made to an Indictment, &c. but such only as is allowed by the Common Law. 2 Lill. 45. 2 Hawk. 244. The Body of a Bill of Indictment removed into B. R. may not be amended, except from London where a Tenor only of the Record is removed; tho' the Caption of an Indictment from any Place may, on Motion, be amended by the Clerk of the Assises, &c. so as to make it agree with the original Record. Ibid. And Captions of

Indict-

Indictments ought to set forth the Court in which, and the Jurors by whom; and also the Time and Place, at which the Indictment was found; and that the Jurors were of the County, City, &c. Also they must shew that the Indictment was taken before such a Court as had Jurisdiction over the Offence indicted. 2 Hawk. 253. While the Jury who found a Bill of Indictment is before the Court, it may be amended by their Consent in Matter of Form, the Name, or Addition of the Party, &c. Kel. 37. Clerks of the Assize and of the Peace, &c. drawing defective Bills of Indictment, shall draw new Bills without Fee, and take but 2 s. for drawing any Indictment against a Felon, &c. on Pain of forfeiting 5 l. Stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. cap. 23. If one material Part of an Indictment is repugnant to or inconsistent with another, the Whole is void; but where the Sense is plain, the Court will dispense with a small Impropriety in the Expression. Ibid. 228, 229. And many Objections to Indictments are over-ruled. 5 Rep. 120. Where an Indictment is void for Insufficiency; or if the Trial is in a wrong County, another Indictment may be drawn for the same Offence, whereby the Insufficiency may be cured; and the Indictment may be laid in another County, 'tis said, though Judgment be given. 4 Rep. 40. H. P. C. 244. By the Common Law, the Court may quash any Indictment for Insufficiency, as will make the Judgment thereon erroneous: But the Court may refuse to quash an Indictment preferred for the publick Good, tho' it be not a good Indictment, and put the Party to traverse or plead to it. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. And the Court will grant Time for the King's Counsel to maintain an Indictment, if they desire it. Judges are not bound ex debito Jusitiae to quash an Indictment; but may oblige the Defendant either to plead or demur to it; and where Indictments are not good, the Parties indicted may avoid them by Pleading. 2 Lill. 42. 2 Hawk. 258. The Court doth not usually quash Indictments for Forgery, Perjury, or Nulances, notwithstanding the Indictments are faulty; and it is against the Course of the Court to quash an Indictment for Extortion. 2 Lill. 41. 5 Mod. 31. If an Indictment be good in Part, tho' the other Part of it is naught, the Court will not quash it; for if an Offence sufficient to maintain the Indictment be well laid, 'tis good enough, altho' other Facts are ill laid. Latch. 173. Poph. 208. 1 Salk. 384. One that is convicted upon an erroneous Indictment, cannot after the Conviction move to have the Indictment quashed; but must bring his Writ of Error to reverse the Judgment given against him upon the Indictment. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. An Indictment is quashed for the Insufficiency in it; or because no good Judgment can be given upon it: But if Judgment be given upon an erroneous Indictment, it is good against the Party till reversed by Writ of Error. 2 Lill. 43. If the Party indicted is outlawed upon the Indictment, the Court will not quash the Indictment though erroneous; but will force the Party outlawed to bring his Writ of Error to reverse the Outlawry. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. The Stat. 7 W. 3. cap. 3. ordains, that no Indictment for Treason, &c. or any Process thereon, shall be quashed, on Motion of the Prisoner, or his Counsel, for Mit-writing, false Latin, &c. unless Exception be made before Evidence given in Court; nor shall any such Defect, &c. after Conviction, be Cause to arrest Judgment; though any Judgment given upon such Indictment may be reversed on a Writ of Error, &c. By the Statute of Hen. 5. Indictments shall abate for Omissions, by the Exception of the Party; and if no Advantage be taken by Exception, but he appears and pleads, he loses the Benefit of the Law. 2 Inst. 670. A Person indicted of Felony, &c. may plead generally Misnomer, or wrongful Addition; a former Acquittal, or Conviction; a Pardon, or other special Plea; or the general Issue; or may plead any Plea in Abatement of the Indictment, &c. 2 Hawk. 259. One indicted for Felony may have Counsel assigned him to speak for him in Matter of Law only. 2 Lill. 44. And all Persons indicted for High Treason, shall have a Copy of the Indictment before Trial, to advise with Counsel, &c. And such Indictments are to be found in three Years after the Offence committed; except it be against the King's Person. 7 W. 3. Persons indicted of Treason must be by the Oaths of two Witnesses; but in other Cases one Witness is enough. After a Person is indicted for Felony, the Sheriff is commanded to attach his Body by a Capias; and on Return of a Non est Inventus, a second Capias shall be granted, and the Sheriff is to seize the Offender's Chattels, &c. And if on that Writ a Non est Inventus is returned, an Exigent shall be awarded, and the Chattels be forfeited, &c. Stat. 25 Ed. 3. If an innocent Person be indicted of Felony, and will not suffer himself to be arrested by the Officer who has a Warrant for it, he may be killed by the Officer, if he cannot be otherwise taken; for there is a Charge against him upon Record, to which at his Peril he is bound to answer. Fitz. Coron. 179, 261. A Person may be indicted twice at the same Time, where he hath committed two Felonies; and if he hath his Clergy for one, be hanged for the other. Kel. 30. And if there is an Indictment and Inquisition against one for the same Offence, one found by the Coroner's Inquest, and another by the Grand Jury; he may be tried on both at the same Time: Or if he be tried and acquitted upon the one, it may be pleaded in Bar on Trial for the other. Kel. 108. 1 Salk. 382. An Indictment being found in the proper County, may be heard and determined in any other County, by special Commission. 3 Inst. 27. When a Person is convicted upon an Indictment for Trespass or Misdemeanor, he is to appear in Court, on Judgment pronounced; and the Court having set a Fine upon him, will commit him in Execution, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 41.

Indictor, Is he that indicteth another Man for any Offence; and Indictee is the Party that is indicted. 1 Ed. 3. cap. 11. 21 Fac. 1. c. 8.

Indistanter, A Word signifying without Delay. Matt. Westm. Anno 1244.

Indivisum, Is used for that which two Persons hold in common without Partition; as where it is said he holds pro Indiviso, &c. Kitch. 241.

Indolis, A Youth, or studious young Man. —Ego Edgar Indolis Clito consensu. Mon. Ang. Tom. 3. pag. 120.

Indorsement, (Indorsamentum) Signifies any Thing written on the Backside of a Deed; and Receipts for Consideration Money, and the Sealing and Delivery, &c. on the Back of Deeds, are called Indorsements. West's Symb. par. 2. Sect. 157. There is also an Indorsement of Bills or Notes, of what Part thereof is paid, and when, &c. And in another Sense it is a Writing a Man's Name only on the Backside of Bills of Exchange, which which passing from one Man to another, all the Indorsers are answerable as well as the Drawer. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9.

Indowment, Of a Church, &c. See Endowment.

Inducement, Is what is alledged as a Motive or Incitement to a Thing; and in Law is used specially in several Cases, viz. there is Inducement to Actions, to a Traverse in Pleadings, a Fact or Offence committed, &c. Inducements to Actions need not have so much Certainty as in other Cases: A general Indebitatus is not sufficient, where it is the Ground of the Action; but where it is but the Inducement to the Action, as in Consideration of forbearing the Debt till such a Day, (for that the Parties are agreed upon the Debt) this being but a collateral Promise, is good without shewing how due. Cro. Jac. 548. 2 Mod. 70. A Man ought to induce his Traverse, when he denies the Title of another, because he should not deny it till he shew some colourable Title in himself; for if the Title traversed be found naught, and no Colour of Right appears for him who traversed, there could be no Judgment given: But an Inducement cannot be traversed, because that would be a Traverse after a Traverse, and Quitting a Man's own Pre- tence of Title, and Falling upon another. Cro. 265, 266. 3 Salk. 357. An Inducement to a Traverse must be such Matter as is good and justifiable in Law. Cro. Eliz. 829. There is an Inducement to a Justification, when what is alledged against it is not to the Substance of the Plea, &c. Cro. Jac. 138. Moor 847. 2 Nels. Abr. 986.

Induction, (Inductio, i. e. a Leading into) Is the Giving a Parson Possession of his Church: And after the Bishop hath granted Institution, he issues out his Mandate to the Archdeacon to induct the Clerk, who thereupon either does it personally, or commissions some neighbouring Clergymen for that Purpose; which is compared to Livery and Seisin, as it is a Putting the Minister in actual Possession of the Church, and of the Glebe Lands, which are the Temporalities of it. This Induction is done in the following Manner: One of the Clergymen commissioned takes the Person to be inducted by the Hand, lays it on the Key of the Church, and pronounces these Words; By Virtue of this Commission, I induct you into the real and actual Possession of the Rectory of, &c. with all its Appurtenances. Then he opens the Church-door, and puts the Parson into Possession thereof, who commonly tolls a Bell, &c. and thereby shews and gives Notice to the People that he hath taken corporal Possession of the said Church: If the Key of the Church-door cannot be had, the Clerk to be inducted may lay his Hand on the Ring of the Door, the Latch of the Church-gate, on the Church-wall, &c. and either of these are sufficient: Also Induction may be made by Delivery of a Clod, or Turf of the Glebe, &c. Countr. Parf. Compan. 21, 22. Ordinarily the Bishop is to direct his Mandate to the Archdeacon, as being the Person who ought to induct or give Possession unto the Clerks instituted to any Churches within his Archdeaconry; But 'tis said the Bishop may direct his Mandate to any other Clergymen to make Induction. 38 Ed. 3. cap. 3. And by Prescription, others as well as Archdeacons may make Inductions. Parf. Counsel. 8. An Induction made by the Patron of the Church, is void; but Bishops and Archdeacons may induct a Clerk to their Benefices of which they are Patrons, by Prescription, &c. 11 Hen. 4. The Dean and Chapter of Cathedral Churches are to induct Prebends; though it hath been held, if the Bishop doth induct a Prebend, it may be good at the Common Law. 11 Hen. 4. 7. 11 Hen. 6. At Westminster, where the King makes Collation by his Letters Patent: If the King grants one of his free Chapels, the Grantee shall be put in Possession by the Sheriff of the County, and not by the Bishop: And no Induction is necessary to a Donative, where the Patron by Donation in Writing puts the Clerk into Possession, without Presentation, &c. 11 Hen. 4. If the Authority of the Person, who made the Mandate for Induction, determines by Death or Removal, before the Clerk is inducted, the Induction afterwards will be void; as where before 'tis executed, a new Bishop is consecrated, &c. But if the Archbishop, during the Vacancy of a See, as Guardian of the Spiritualities, issue a Mandate to induct a Clerk to a Church, it is good though not executed before there is a new Bishop. 2 Lev. 199. 1 Ventr. 309. Induction is a temporal Act; and if the Archdeacon refuse to induct a Parson, or to grant a Commission to others to do it, Action of the Case lies against him, on which Damages shall be recovered; and he may likewise be compelled by Sentence in the Ecclesiastical Court to induct the Clerk, and shall answer the Contempt. 12 Rep. 128. It is Induction makes the Parson compleat Incumbent, and settles and fixes the Freehold in him; and a Church is full by Induction, which cannot be avoided but by Quare Impedit at Common Law. 4 Rep. 79. 2 Plowd. 529. Hob. 15. A Bishop sued in the Court of Audience, to repeal an Institution, after Induction had, and a Prohibition was granted; because an Institution is not examinable in the Spiritual Court after Induction, but then a Quare Impedit lies. Moor 860. 'Tis not the Admission and Institution, but Induction to a second Benefice, which makes the first void, in case of Pluralities, &c. Moor 12.

In esse, Is any Thing in Being; and the Learned make this Distinction between Things in esse and in posse; as a Thing that is not, but may be, they say is in posse or in potentia; but what is apparent and visible, they alledge is in esse, viz. that it has a real Being, whereas the other is casual, and but a Possibility. A Child before he is born or conceived, is a Thing in posse; after it is born, he is said to be in esse, or actual Being. The Words in esse are mentioned in the Statute 21 Jac. 1. cap. 2. And where there must be Persons in esse, to take by Grants, &c. See Grants and Wills.

Infamatio, Was an ancient Punishment of Felons, by throwing them among the Rocks and Sands, customarily used in Port-Towns: It is the Opinion of some Writers, that Infamatus did imply some capital Punishment, by exposing the Malefactor upon the Sands, till the next Tide carried him away, of which Custom 'tis said there is an old Tradition: However the Penalty seems to take Name from the Norman Falese or Falesta, which signified not only the Sands, but rather the Rocks and Cliffs adjoining, or impending on the Sea-shore. Mon. Ang. Tom. 2. pag. 165. — Commist Feloniam ob quam fuit suspensus, utlagatus, vel alio modo morti Damatus, &c. vel apud Dover Infamatus, apud Southampton submersus, &c. Hengham parva, cap. 3.

Infamy,

Infamy, Which extends to Forgery, Perjury, Gross Cheats, &c. disables a Man to be a Witness, or Juror; but a Pardon of Crimes restores a Person's Credit to make him a good Evidence. 2 Hawk. P. C. 432, 433. Judgment of the Pillory makes Infamy by the Common Law; but by the Civil and Canon Law, if the Cause for which the Person was convicted was not infamous, it infers no Infamy. 3 Lev. 426.

Infang or Infeng, Significat quietantiam prioris Præ ratione convivii. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 47.

Infangtheof, Infangenetheof, (From the Sax. Fang or Fangen, i. e. capere, and Theof, Fur) Signifies a Privilege or Liberty granted unto Lords of certain Manors, to judge any Thief taken within their Fee. Bract. lib. 3. cap. 35. In some ancient Charters, it appears that the Thief should be taken in the Lordship, and with the Goods stolen, otherwise the Lord had not Jurisdiction to try him in his Court; though by the Laws of King Edward the Confessor, he was not restrained to his own People or Tenants, but might try any Man who was thus taken in his Manor: 'Tis true afterwards, the Word Infangtheof signified Latro captus in terra alicujus seistus de ali no Latrocinio, de suis propriis hominibus. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 15. The Franchises of Infangtheof and Outfangtheof, to be heard and determined within Court-Barons, are antiquated, and gone long since. 2 Inst. 31.

Infant, (Infans) In our Law is a Person under twenty-one Years of Age, whose Acts are in many Cases either void, or voidable. 1 Inst. 171. All Gifts, Grants, &c. of an Infant, which do not take Effect by Delivery of his Hand, are void; and if made to take Effect by Delivery of his own Hand, are voidably by himself, and his Heirs, and those which shall have his Estate. 8 Rep. 44. Where an Infant makes a Deed and delivers it within Age, though he afterwards delivers it again at full Age, this second Delivery and Deed are void; for the Deed must take Effect from the first Delivery. 3 Rep. 35. If an Infant bargain and sell Lands by Deed indented and inrolled, he may avoid it. 2 Inst. 673. And if an Infant makes a Feoffment, he may enter and avoid it; and if he dies, his Heir may enter, or have a Dum fuit infra Aetatem, &c. 1 Inst. 247, 248. An Infant seised in Fee makes a Feoffment and dies, his Heir shall enter; and it is the same if seised in Tail Male. 8 Rep. 42. And Privies in Blood, as the Heir general or special, may avoid a Conveyance made by their Ancestor during his Infancy. Ibid. But Privies in Estate, such as the Donor of an Estate-tail where the Tenant in Tail dies without Issue; or Privies in Law, as the Lord by Escheat where there is no Heir, shall not avoid a Conveyance made by an Infant. 8 Rep. 43, 44. If a Man within Age seised in Right of his Wife, makes a Feoffment and dies, his Heir cannot enter and avoid it, because no Right descends to him; for the Baron if he had lived could have entered only in Right of his Wife. 8 Rep. 43. And no Person shall take Advantage of the Infancy of his Ancestor, but he that hath a Right descending to him from that Ancestor; though the Heir may take the Benefit of a Condition, notwithstanding no Right descended to him from his Ancestors. 8 Rep. 44. If Husband and Wife are both within Age, and they by Indenture join in a Feoffment, and the Husband dies, the Wife may enter and avoid the Deed, or have a Dum fuit infra Aeta- tatem. 1 Inst. 337. Though if there be two Jointenants within Age, and one of them makes a Feoffment in Fee of his Moiety during his Infancy, and dies, the Survivor cannot enter; but the Heir of the Feoffor may enter into the Moiety, &c. 8 Rep. 43. If an Infant exchanges Lands with another, and the other enters, the Infant may have Affise. 18 Ed. 4. 2. If an Infant leases for Years, he may affirm the Lease, or bring Trespals against the Lessee for the Occupation. 18 Ed. 4. Bro. Trespals 338. A Lease made by an Infant reserving Rent, is voidable; but if there be no Rendring Rent, it is absolutely void. Latch. 199. If an Infant makes a Lease, paying Rent, and after his Coming of Age he accepts the Rent, the voidable Lease is made good; and an Infant's Lease in Ejectment is good. 2 Litt. Abr. 55. 3 Salk. 196. A Lease made to an Infant may be avoided by waving the Land before the Rent-Day: But if where a Lease for Years is made to an Infant, rendring Rent, after the Infant coming of full Age he continues the Possession of the Land, this will make him chargeable with the Rent incurred during his Infancy. Cro. Jac. 320. An Infant cannot surrender a future Interest, by taking a new Lease; his Surrender by Deed and by Acceptance of a second Lease, are void, except there be an Increase of the Term or Decrease of the Rent; for where there is no Benefit comes to him, his Acts are merely void. Cro. Car. 502. An Infant may purchase, being intended for his Benefit; yet at his full Age he may confirm, or avoid it, by Agreement or otherwise; and if he agree not when at Age, his Heirs after him may disagree to the same. 1 Inst. 2. 172. An Infant's Feoffment, or other Deed, may be avoided by Plea or Entry, after or before he is of full Age; but his Acts on Record, as his Fine levied, Recovery suffered, or Statute acknowledged, must be avoided by Matter of Record, viz. by Writ of Error, or Audita Querela, during his Minority. 3 Salk. 196. 1 Inst. 380. An Infant confessed Judgment in an Action of Debt brought against him; and it was held, Audita Querela did not lie upon this Judgment, though it would on a Statute or Recognisance; but the Party ought to bring Writ of Error in the Exchequer-Chamber, by Virtue of the Statute 27 Eliz. Moor 460. Infants ought not to be received to levy Fines, though if they are admitted, their Fines are good and unavoidable, unless reversed during their Minority. 1 Inst. 233. If an Infant levy a Fine before the Justices, and the Cognisees will not have it ingrossed till after he is of Age; on producing a Note of the Caption, his Age may be examined, whereupon he may bring Writ of Error. Moor 189. But where an Infant may levy a Fine, he may declare the Uses of it also by Deed: And the Infant's Declaration of Uses, shall be good and binding to the Infant and his Heirs, so long as the Fine continues unreversed. Hob. 224. 2 Leon. 193. 2 Rep. 58. 10 Rep. 42. It was held formerly that an Infant appearing by Guardian, could not suffer a common Recovery. 10 Rep. 43. Though since it hath been allowed in many Cases, and by all the Judges, that an Infant may suffer a common Recovery by Guardian, and he shall not avoid it; for by Intendment he shall have Recompence in Value; and if it be not for the Good of the Infant, he may have his Recompence over against his Guardian. 2 Danv. Abr. 772. A common Recovery may be had had against an Infant, being examined sole & secrete; and he may suffer a Recovery by Guardian in open Court. Hob. 169. 2 Bull. 255. 2 Nelf. Abr. 994. A Recovery was suffered by an Infant by his Guardian. 1 Leon. It has been agreed, that if an Infant appear by Guardian, and suffer a common Recovery, it shall not be reversed for Error: But if he appear by Attorney, and suffer a Recovery, it is otherwise; for in such Case he may reverse it by Error when of full Age, because it may be tried by a Jury whether he was an Infant when he made the Letter of Attorney, or not; whereas in the other Case it must appear by Inspection, which cannot be after full Age. Sid. 321. 2 Nelf. 995. A Recovery or Judgment by Default against an Infant, is erroneous; but the Infant must reverse it by Writ of Error during his Minority. Wood's Inst. 603. And if the Default be after Appearance, the Judgment shall not be reversed. Dyer 104. If an Infant appears by Attorney, and not by Guardian, it is Error; for which a Judgment may be reversed. 2 Nelf. 998. But if an Infant appearing per Guardianum comes of Age pending the Suit, he may then plead per Attornatum. Moor 665. An Infant is to sue by Prochein Amy, or Guardian; but always defend by Guardian. 1 Inst. 135. He is not to appear by Attorney in his own Right; but if he be joint Executor with others of Age, they may make an Attorney for him. 2 Saund. 212. And yet it hath been held, if an Action be brought against three several Defendants, and one of them is an Infant, they may not all appear by Attorney; but he within Age must appear by Guardian, or it will be Error to reverse the Judgment. Style 400. 1 Lev. 294. If Baron and Feme, where the Feme is an Infant, appear by Attorney, it is Error. 5 Mod. 209. When the Defendant in an Action is an Infant, the Plaintiff shall have six Years to bring his Action in after the Defendant comes of Age: And if the Plaintiff be an Infant, he hath six Years likewise after his Age, to sue by the Statute of Limitations. Lutw. 243. And Infants are not bound by Nonclaim, &c. on Fines levied by others, within five Years, by the Stat. 13 Ed. 1. Nonclaim shall not bind an Infant, nor any Negligence, &c. be imputed to him; except in some particular Cases, viz. in case of a Fine where the Time begins in the Life of the Ancestor; or of an Appeal of Death of his Ancestor, where he brings not his Appeal within a Year and a Day, &c. 1 Inst. 246, 380. Wood's Inst. 13. Laches shall prejudice an Infant, if he presents not to a Church in six Months. Lit. 402. All Acts of Necessity bind Infants, as Presentations to Benefices, Admittances and Grants of Copyhold Estates, and Assenting to Legacies, &c. 3 Salk. 196. Conditions annexed to Lands, whether the Estate come by Grant or Discent, bind Infants: And where the Estate of an Infant is upon Condition to be performed by the Infant, if the Condition is broken during the Minority, the Land is lost for ever. 1 Inst. 233, 380. Tho' a Statute is not extendible against an Infant, yet Chancery will give Relief against Infants. 1 Lev. 198. And by Statute 7 Ann. c. 19. Infants seised of Estates in Fee in Trust, or in Mortgage, on Petition of the Person for whom the Infant is seised in Trust, or the Mortgagor, &c. by Order of the Court of Chancery, may make Conveyances of such Estates, as Trustees or Mortgagees of full Age. An Infant may bind himself Apprentice, and if he serve seven Years, have the Benefit of his Trade: If he be guilty of Misbehaviour, the Master may correct him; or complain to a Justice of Peace, and have him punished. Cro. Car. 179. Stat. 5 Eliz. And an Infant may bind himself to pay for Necessaries, as Meat, Drink, Apparel and Learning; but not by Bond with Penalty; though a Bill for Necessaries without a Penalty for the very Sum due, 'tis said, will bind him. 2 Inst. 483. 1 Roll. Abr. 729. 1 Lev. 86. Infants are not obliged to pay for Clothes, unless it be averred for their own Wearing, and that they were convenient and necessary for them to wear, according to their Degree and Estate. Cro. Jac. 560. Though upon Promise of an Infant to pay a Taylor for making of Clothes, it need not be averred for necessary Clothes, &c. Noy 85. Money laid out for Necessaries for an Infant, hath been allowed; when Money lent for that Purpose, hath not. 5 Mod. 368. The Infant may buy, but cannot borrow Money to buy Necessaries; for the Law will not trust him with Money, but at the Peril of the Lender, who must lay it out for him in Necessaries, or see it thus laid out. 1 Salk. 386. Where Money is lent to an Infant, who employs it in buying Necessaries, yet he is not liable; because the Foundation of the Contract is the Lending. 1 Salk. 279. An Infant is not bound by an Account concerning Necessaries for his Family, &c. for he may be mistaken in an Account; and no Contract binds him but what concerns his Person. 2 Roll. Rep. 271. Latch. 189. If an Infant makes a Contract pro Victu & Vestitu, this shall be binding: And a Promise by an Infant to another, that if he will find him Meat, Drink and Washing, and pay for his Schooling, that he will pay him such a reasonable Sum yearly, Action on the Case lies upon this Promise. 2 Danv. 768. Trin. 3 Car. But in other Cases, it is otherwise; though a Promise of a Person when at full Age, for a Consideration during Infancy, shall be binding, and Assumpsit lieth. 2 Lev. 144. 3 Leon. 215. If an Infant delivers Money with his own Hand, it is voidable, and to be recovered by Action of Account. Hob. 77. The Infant sells Goods to another; he may make the Sale void, or have Trespass or Debt for the Money. 13 Ed. 4. 2. Though if an Infant deliver Goods to his own Use, he shall not have Trespass against the Bailee. 18 H. 6. 2. Action will not lie against an Infant for Goods sold to him, to sell in his Shop. Cro. Jac. 494. And if one deliver Goods to an Infant, knowing him to be such, the Infant shall not be charged in Trover and Conversion: But it is otherwise if delivered to him, not knowing him to be an Infant. 1 Sid. 129. Action lies not against an Infant Innkeeper, for Goods lost. 2 Danv. 769. If an Infant accepts a Bill of Exchange, he may plead Infancy upon an Action brought against him. Trin. 3 W. 3. 3 Salk. 197. And if a Trespass be done to an Infant, and he submits to an Award, 'tis said the Award shall not bind him. 2 Danv. 770. If an Infant enters into Bond, pretending to be of full Age, though he may avoid it by pleading his Infancy, he may be indicted for a Cheat. Wood's Inst. 585. Infants committing a Trespass against the Person or Possession of another, must answer for the Damage in a Civil Action. Hob. 134. 2 Roll. Abr. 547. And

Infants;

Infants being Tenants for Life or Years, are punishable for Waste: An Infant shall be punished for Battery, Slander, Cheating with false Dice, Perjury, not going to Church, &c. 3 Salk. 196. Infants under fourteen Years of Age are not generally punishable capitally for Crimes committed; but if they are of that Age, or under thote Years, having Maturity of Discretion, they may be punished as Felons: But Execution of these for Felony is oftentimes respited in order to a Pardon; and if an Infant apparently wanting Discretion, be found guilty of Felony, the Justices may dismiss him without Pardon. 1 Inst. 247. Doctor and Stud. c. 26. 1 Hawk. 2. An Infant is incapable of being a Parson, Juror, Attorney, Steward, Bailiff, &c. But he may be a Mayor, Sheriff, Gaoler, &c. Co. Lit. 3. 3 Salk. 195. See Age.

Infancy of the King. The King cannot be an Infant by our Law. 1 Inst. 43. And he shall never avoid his Grants, &c. in Respect of Infancy; for he cannot be a Minor, being as King a Body Politick. 2 Danv. Abr. 767. The Acts of a Mayor and Commonalty shall not be avoided by Reason of Infancy of the Mayor. Cro. Car. 557.

Infidels, (Infideles) Heathens; who may not be Witnesses by the Laws of this Kingdom, because they believe neither the Old nor New Testament to be the Word of God, on one of which Oaths must be taken. 1 Inst. 6. 2 Hawk. P. C. 434.

Infirmariy, (Infirmarius) In Monasteries there was an Apartment allotted for infirm or sick Persons; and he who had the Care of the Infirmariy was called Infirmarius. Matt. Paris. Anno 1252.

Information, (Informatio) For the King, is the same which for a common Person is called Declaration; and it is not always brought directly by the King, or his Attorney General, and the Clerk of the Crown-Office, but frequently by some other Person, who informs as well for the King as for himself, upon the Breach of some Penal Law or Statute, wherein a Penalty is given to the Party that will sue for the same: And it differs from an Indictment, which is found by the Oaths of twelve Men, and this is only the Allegation of the Officer, &c. Also it is different from an Action on a Penal Statute, which is at the Suit of the King only. Terms de Ley 406. Informations are either at the Suit of the King, or at the Suit of the King and of the Party, which is called an Information Qui tam, because the Informers prosecute tam pro Domino Rege quam pro seipso; but these Informations will not lie on any Statute which prohibits a Thing, as being an immediate Offence against the Publick good in general, under a certain Penalty, unless the Whole or Part of such Penalty be expressly given to him who will sue for it, because otherwise it goes to the King, and nothing can be demanded by the Party. 2 Hawk. P. C. 265. The King shall put no one to answer for a Wrong done principally to another, without Indictment or Presentment; tho' of common Right Informations, or Actions in the Nature thereof, may be brought for Offences against Statutes, whether mentioned or not in such Statutes, where other Methods of Proceeding are not particularly appointed. Ibid. 260. There may be an Information for the King against a Criminal, as well as Indictment; but it doth not lie for a Capital Crime except on the Statutes against Bankrupts, who may be convicted of Felony by Indictment or Information, by 5 Geo. c. 4. Wood's Inst. 630. It has been alledged, that Informations began in the Reign of King Henry 7. and are new Things with Respect to Indictments, and carry Hardships with them, &c. But it was adjudged, that the old Statutes enact, that Proceedings shall be by Presentment or Indictment; an Information by the Attorney General is no more than a Presentment, and that Informations were at Common Law. 5 Mod. 459. An Information may be brought for Offences and Misdemeanors by the Common Law; as for Batteries, Conspiracies, seducing Persons, Nuisances, Contempts, Libelling, seditious Words, Abusing the King's Commission to the Oppression of the Subject, &c. And in very many Cases by Statute, wherein the Offender is liable to a Fine, or other Penalty. Finch 340. Show. 109. If the Marshal of B. R. misdemeanors himself in his Office, he who is prejudiced by it may prefer an Information against him in that Court, where he shall be fined, and ordered to make Satisfaction. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. For obtaining a Judgment against a Woman before Marriage, by Cheating and Fraud, whereby her Husband's Lands were afterwards extended, adjudged that Information lay, and the Judgment should be set aside, &c. Sid. 431. Information may be brought against the Inhabitants of any Town for not repairing of Highways; for going armed in Affray of the Peace, &c. and in general for any Offences against the Publick good, or against the Principles of Justice, Information lies; tho' not where a Complaint is trifling or vexatious, or wholly of a private Nature. 2 Hawk. 260, 262. If a Person exhibits his Information only for Vexation, the Defendant may bring Information against the Informers upon the Statute 18 Eliz. c. 5. 2 Bulst. 18. An Information upon a Penal Statute must be sued in one of the Superior Courts, and cannot be brought in any Inferior Court, because the King's Attorney cannot be there to acknowledge or deny, as he can in a Superior Court. Cro. Jac. 538. All Informations on Penal Statutes, brought by an Informers where a Sum certain is given to the Prosecutor, must be brought in the proper County where the Offence was committed; and within a Year after the same: But a Party grieved, who is not a common Informers, is not obliged to bring his Information in the proper County, but may inform in what County he pleases. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 5. Cro. Eliz. 645. And the King may exhibit an Information in two or three Years, and be good; though it will be naught in an Informers. Cro. Jac. 366. Where an Information is given by Statute, to be prosecuted at the Assizes, &c. the Informers on filing of his Information, must make Oath before a Judge, that the Offence laid in the Information was not committed in any other County than that mentioned in the Information; and that he believes the Offence was committed within a Year next before the Filing of the Information. 21 Jac. I. c. 4. And when an Information is ordered to be filed upon an Affidavit made, the Court will not suffer the Prosecutor to put any more or other Matter into the Information than what only is in his Affidavit. Mish. 9. W. 3. B. R. It has been resolved, that the Stat. 21 Jac. I. restrains the Jurisdiction of B. R. in Actions of Debt by common Informers, and that they cannot bring Debt upon the Statute in that Court, unless the Cause of Action arise in the County where the King's Bench sits, but must in other Cases prosecute by Information before Justices of Assize, &c. as the Statute directs. 1 Salk. 373. All Informations, &c. on Penal Statutes, made before the Statute 21 Jac. c. 4. must by that Act be laid and prosecuted in the County where the Fact was done: But that Act doth not extend to any Offence created since that Statute, so that Prosecutions on subsequent Penal Statutes, are not restrained thereby, but that Statute is as to them as it were repealed. 1 Salk. 372, 373. By the Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 5. Informers are to exhibit their Suits in proper Person, by Way of Information, or Original Action; they are not to compound with the Defendant, without the Consent of the Court, on Pain of 10 l. Penalty, Pillory, &c. And if they discontinue or are Nonsuit, the Court shall immediately assign Costs to the Defendant: But this Statute and the 21 Jac. 1. c. 4. do not extend to Informations of Officers, nor on the Statutes of Maintenance, Champerty, concerning Concealments of Customs, &c. and it extendeth not to Parties grieved, and those to whom any Forfeiture is given in certain. Ibid. The 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18. enacts, That Informations brought in the Crown-Office for Trespas, Battery, &c. are to be by Order of Court; and Recognizances to be entered into of 20 l. Penalty for the Informers to prosecute with Effect, &c. And in Case any Person against whom such Information shall be exhibited shall appear and plead to Issue, and the Prosecutor do not proceed to Trial within a Year after Issue joined; or if it shall pass for the Defendant, or the Informers procure a Nolle Prosequi, &c. the Court shall award the Defendant Costs; except it be certified that there was reasonable Cause for the Information. An Informers upon a popular Statute shall never have Costs, if not given by Statute; but the Party grieved in Action on the Statute shall, where a certain Penalty is given. 2 Hawk. 273. Informations by the Attorney General remain as they were at Common Law, notwithstanding the Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. And when the Attorney General exhibits an Information, he does it ex Officio; whereas when the Clerk of the Crown does it, it is generally by Order of Court. 5 Mod. 464. Where a Penalty is divided by Statute between the King and the Informers, if the King prefers his Information before the Informers, he shall have the whole Penalty: But if the Informers prefer his Information first, the King cannot hinder him from his Proportion. 2 Lill. Abr. 60. If an Informers dies, the Attorney General may proceed in the Information for the King: Nonsuit of an Informers is no Bar against the King; and if the King's Attorney enter a Nolle prosequi, it is not any Bar quoad the Informers. Cro. Eliz. 583. 1 Leon. 119. If two Informations are had on the very same Day, they mutually abate one another; because there is no Priority to attach the Right of the Suit in one Informers, more than in the other. Hob. 138. An Information hath somewhat of it of an Indictment, viz. to alledge the Offence in particular, and also something in Nature of an Action, to demand what is due; and if the Informers make no Demand, or demand what appears not to be his due, the Information is ill. Hob. 242. The same Certainty is requisite in an Information as in an Indictment; and all the material Parts of the Crime must be as precisely found in the one as the other. 2 Hawk. 261. If an Information contain several Offences against a Statute, and be well laid as to some of them, but defective as to the rest, the Informers may have Judgment for so much as is well laid. Ibid. 266. After a Plea pleaded to an Information for any Crime, the Defendant by Favour of the Court may appear by Attorney; also the Court may dispense with the personal Appearance before Plea pleaded, except in such Cases where a personal Appearance is required by some Statute: And it is the same of Indictments for Crimes under the Degree of Capital. Ibid. 273. If a Defendant plead Nil debet to an Information Qui tam, &c. it is safest to say he owes nothing to the Informers, nor the King, which is an Answer to the Whole. On Breach of a Statute alledged from a Matter in pais, the Defendant may plead that he owes nothing, or Not guilty, &c. And if there be more than one Defendant, they ought to plead severally and not jointly, Not guilty: But if it be alledged from a Matter of Record, the Record not being triable by the Country but by it self, such Plea is not good. 2 Hawk. 276. Bro. Issues 23. A Prior Suit depending, a Pardon or Release may be pleaded to an Information: And if the Defendant hath Matter to plead in his Discharge, it hath been held that he ought to plead it specially, and cannot give it in Evidence; tho' this seems to be contrary to the Statute 21 Jac. 1. A Replication to an Information on a special Plea in the Courts at Westminster, is to be made by the Attorney General, and before Justices of Assize, by the Clerk of the Assize: Tho' the Replication to a general Issue in an Information Qui tam in the Courts at Westminster, may be made in the Name of the Attorney General only; and in Actions Qui tam, most of the Precedents are that the Replication is to be made by the Plaintiff. 2 Hawk. 277. A Demurrer may be to an Information Qui tam, without the Attorney General. Ibid. Informations are not quashed for Insufficiency, like Indictments; but the Defendant must demur to them. Pasch. 1650. 2 Lill. 59. Fines assessed in Court by Judgment on an Information, cannot be afterwards qualified or mitigated. Cro. Car. 251. The Stat. 9 Ann. c. 20. makes the Proceedings upon Informations in the Nature of a Quo Warranto more speedy and effectual. Vide the Statute, &c.

Informers, (Informator) Is a Person as informs against or prosecutes in any of the King's Courts those that offend against any Law or Penal Statute; and no Man may be an Informers who is disabled by any Misdemeanor. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 5.

Infirmitatem, Is one Part of the Digests of the Civil Law; according to Benedict, Abbot of the Monastery of Peterborough, in the Reign of K. Hen. 3.

Infugare, Signifies to put to Flight. Leg. Canuti, cap. 32.

Infula, Was anciently the Garment of a Priest, like that which we now call a Cassock; sometimes it is taken for a Coif.

Inge. This Syllable in the Names of Places, denotes Meadow or Pasture; and in the North, Meadows are called the Inges from the Sax. Ing. i. e. pratium.

Ingenium, Is an Instrument used in War, Arte & Ingenio confectum; from whence 'tis said we derive the Word Engine.

Ingenuitas, Used for Liberty given to a Servant by Manumission. Leg. H. 1. c. 89.

Ingenuitas Regni. Ingenui, Liberi & Legales Homines; Freeholders, and the Commonalty of the the Kingdom : And sometimes this Title was given to the Barons and Lords of the King's Council. Eadmer. Hist. Nov. fol. 70.

Ingress, Egress and Regress, Words in Leases of Land, to signify a free Entry into, Going forth of, and Returning from some Part of the Lands let ; as to get in a Crop of Corn, &c. after the Term expired.

Ingressu, Is a Writ of Entry, whereby a Man seeks Entry into Lands or Tenements ; and lies in divers Cases, having as many different Forms : This Writ is also called Præcipe quod reddat, because those are formal Words inserted in all Writs of Entry. See Entry.

In gross. Advowson in gross, Villain in gross, &c. See Gross.

Ingrosser, (Ingrossator) Is one that buys and sells any Thing by Wholesale ; and whoever shall get into his Hands by Buying, Contract or Promise, other than by Demise, Grant or Lease of Lands, any Corn growing, or other Corn or Grain ; Butter, Cheese, Fish, or other dead Victuals whatsoever, within the Realm of England, to the Intent to sell the same again, shall be reputed an unlawful Ingrosser, by Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 14. Such Victual only as is necessary for the Food of Man, is within the Purview of the Statute ; and therefore Apples and Fruits are not within the Meaning of it ; and it has been holden, that Hops are not within the Statute. 3 Inst. 195. H. P. C. 152. Cro. Car. 231. The Buying of Corn to make Starch of it, and then to sell it, is not within the Intent of the Statute, because it is not bought to be sold again in the same Nature it was bought, but to be first altered by a Trade or Science ; and by the like Reason the Buying of Corn to make Meal of it, and then to sell it, is said to be not within the Act ; and Buying of Barley, with an Intent to make it into Malt, and after that to sell it, had no Need of the Exception made for it in the said Statute. 1 Hawk. P. C. 237. Foreign Corn and Victuals, except Fish and Salt, are exempted, and not within the Penalty of the Statute, 13 Eliz. c. 25. And licensed Badgers are excepted ; as are likewise Fishmongers, Butchers, Poulterers, &c. buying any Thing in their own Faculties, otherwise than by Forestalling, and selling the same again at reasonable Prices by Retail. 1 Hawk. 240. Any Merchant, whether a Subject or Foreigner, bringing Victuals, or other Merchandize into this Kingdom, may sell the same in Gross ; but he that buys them of him cannot do so, because by such Means the Price will be enhanced, for the more Hands any Merchandize passeth through, the dearer it must grow, as every one will make a Profit of it : And if this were allowable, a rich Man might ingross into his Hands a whole Commodity, and then sell it at what Price he should think fit ; which is of such a bad Consequence, that the bare Ingrossing of a whole Commodity with Intent to sell it at an unreasonable Price, is an Offence indictable at Common Law, whether any Part thereof be sold by the Ingrosser, or not. 3 Inst. 196. Cro. Car. 231, 232. The Punishment of this Offence by Statute, is Forfeiture of the Goods for the first Offence, and two Months Imprisonment ; double Value and six Months Imprisonment for the second Offence ; and Loss of all Goods and Imprisonment at the King's Pleasure, &c. for the third Offence. See Forefaller.

Ingrosser of Deeds, Is a Clerk that writes Records or Instruments of Law in Skins of Parchment.

Ingrossing of a Fine. The making of the Indentures by the Chirographer, and Delivery of them to the Party to whom the Fine is levied. F. N. B. 147.

Inhabitant, Is a Dweller or Householder in any Place ; as Inhabitants in a Vill, are the Householders in the Vill. 2 Inst. 702.

Inheritance, (Hæreditas) Is a Perpetuity in Lands or Tenements, to a Man and his Heirs : And the word Inheritance is not only intended where a Man hath Lands or Tenements by Descent of Heritage ; but also every Fee-Simple, or Fee-Tail, which a Person hath by Purchase, may be said to be an Inheritance, because his Heirs may inherit it. Litt. Sect. 9. And one may have Inheritance by Creation ; as in Case of the King's Grant of Peerage, by Letters Patent, &c. Inheritances are Corporeal or Incorporeal ; Corporeal Inheritances relate to Houses, Lands, &c. which may be touched or handled ; and Incorporeal Inheritances are Rights issuing out of, annexed to, or exercised with Corporeal Inheritances, as Advowsons, Tithes, Annuities, Offices, Commons, Franchises, Privileges, Services, &c. 1 Inst. 9. 49. There is also several Inheritance, which is where two or more hold Lands severally ; if two Men have Land given to them and the Heirs of their two Bodies, these have joint Estate during their Lives ; but their Heirs have several Inheritances. Kitch. 155. Without Blood none can inherit ; and therefore it is that he who hath the whole and entire Blood, shall have an Inheritance before him who hath but Part of the Blood of his Ancestor. 3 Rep. 41. The Law of Inheritance prefers the first Child before all others ; the Male before the Female ; and of Males the first born, &c. Goods and Chattels cannot be turned into an Inheritance. 3 Inst. 19, 126. See Descent and Fee-Estate.

Inhibition, (Inhibitio) Is a Writ to forbid a Judge from farther Proceeding in a Cause depending before him, and is usually issued out of a Higher Court Christian to an Inferior, being in Nature of a Prohibition. 9 Ed. 2. c. 1. 24 Hen. 8. c. 12. 15 Car. 2. c. 9. F. N. B. 39. 2 Inst. 601. Inhibitions are used upon Appeals to the higher Ecclesiastical Courts, or on Visitations of Bishops, &c. And this Inhibition is either Hominis or Juris ; 'tis Ne visitationem facias, vel aliquam Jurisdictionem Ecclesiasticam contentionem vel voluntariam habeas : Thus when the Archbishop visits, he inhibits the Bishop, and when a Bishop visits, he inhibits the Archdeacon ; and this is to prevent Confusion, and continues till the last Parish is visited : Now after such Inhibition by an Archbishop, if a Lapse happens, the Bishop cannot institute, because his Power is suspended, but the Archbishop is to do it, &c. Pasch. 13 Car. B. R. 3 Salk. 201.

Inhor, or Inhoke, (From In, within, and bokē a Corner or Nook) Signifies any Corner or Part of a common Field ploughed up and sowed with Oats, &c. and sometimes fenced in with a dry Hedge, in that Year wherein the rest of the same Field lies fallow and common. It is called in the North of England an Intock, and in Oxfordshire a Hitchin ; and no such Inhoke is now made without the joint Consent of all the Commoners, who in most Places have their Share by Lot in the Benefit of it, except in some Manors where the Lord has a special Privilege of so doing. Kenner's Paroch. Antiq. 297, &c. and his Glossary.

Injunction, (Injunctio) Is a Kind of Prohibition granted in divers Cases; it is generally grounded upon an Interlocutory Order or Decree out of the Court of Chancery or Exchequer, to stay Proceedings in Courts at Law; and sometimes it is issued to the Spiritual Courts. West. Symb. Sect. 25. It is likewise sometimes used to give Possession to a Plaintiff, for Want of the Defendant's Appearance; and may be granted by the Chancery or Exchequer to quiet Possession of Lands; also where a privileged Person of the Chancery is sued elsewhere; and to stay Waste, &c. Injunction lies. If a Defendant by his Answer in Chancery, swears a certain Sum of Money is due to him, the Court will often not grant an Injunction, unless the Money be brought into Court: And an Injunction is obtained by Order, either upon Matter confessed, or upon some Matter appearing of Record, or by Deed, Writing or other Evidence shewn in Court, from whence there is a Probability that the Party ought to be discharged in Equity; and sometimes it is granted before Answer, when 'tis usually only until Answer, and further Order, &c. A Delay of Proceedings for a considerable Time, is good Cause for setting aside and dissolving an Injunction to stay Proceedings at Law; but an Injunction may be revived on Cause shewn, and sometimes the Court will revive it tho' Dissolved, where the Plaintiff's Case is hard, or Equity is evidently on his Side. Pract. Sol. 124, 125. If an Injunction be for staying of Waste, there must be Affidavit made of Waste committed in Houses, Lands, &c. belonging to the Complainant: And if it be to stay Suits in other Courts, it is granted on suggesting some Matter, by Reason of which the Complainant is not able to make his Defence in the other Court, as for Want of Witnesses, &c. or for that he is prosecuted at Law for what in Equity he ought not to pay; or that the other Court acts erroneously, denies him some rightful Advantage; and that if the Rigour of the Law takes place, it is against Equity and good Conscience, &c. Ibid. If an Attorney proceeds at Law, after he is served with an Injunction to stay Proceedings, on Affidavit made thereof, Interrogatories are to be exhibited against him, to which he must answer on Oath; and if it appears that he was duly served with the Injunction, and hath proceeded afterwards contrary thereto, the Court of Chancery will commit the Attorney to the Fleet-Prison for the Contempt. 2 Lill. Abr. 64. If a Cause at Law be at Issue, the Injunction may give Leave to go to Trial, and stay Execution, &c. The Writ of Injunction is directed to the Party proceeding, ac omnibus & singulis Consiliar. Attorn. Solicitat. suis quibuscunque, &c. and concludes, Injungen. Precipimus quod ab omni ulteriori prosecutione quacunque ad communem Legem de, pro vel concernen. aliquib. Materijs in querimon. content. &c. desistatis & quilibet vestrum desistat, sub pœn. &c.

Injury, (Injuria) Is a Wrong or Damage to a Man's Person or Goods. The Law punisheth Injuries; and so abhors them, that it grants Writs of Anticipation for their Prevention, in Cases of Combinations and Confederacy, &c. Stud. Compan. 93. But the Law will suffer a private Injury rather than a publick Evil; and the Act of God, or of the Law, doth Injury to none. 4 Rep. 124. Co. Lit. 148.

Inlagation, (Inlagatio, from the Sax. In-lagiam, i. e. Inlagare) Signifies a Restitution of one Outlawed, to the Protection of the Law, and Benefit of a Subject. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 14. Leg. Canut. par. 1. c. 2.

Inlagh, (Inlagatus, vel Homo sub Lege) Is he that is of some Frank-Pledge, and not Outlawed: It seems to be the contrary to Utlagh. Bract. tract. 2. lib. 3. c. 11.

Inland, (Inlandum) Terra Dominicalis, pars Manerii Dominica, terra interior vel inclusa; for that which was let to Tenants was called Outland. In an ancient Will there are these Words; To Wulfee I give the Inland or Demeans, and to Elfey the Utlands or Tenency. Testam. Brithewici. This Word was in great Use among the Saxons, and often occurs in Domesday.

Inland Trade, A Trade wholly managed at Home in one Country. Merch. Dict.

Intangled, (From the Fr. Enlasse) Intangled or ensnared; it is used in the Champion's Oath. 2 Inst. 247.

Inmates, Are those Persons that are admitted to dwell with and in the House of another, and not being able to maintain themselves. Kitch. 45. These Inmates are generally idle Persons harboured in Cottages; wherein it hath been common for several Families to inhabit, by which the Poor of Parishes have been increased; but suffering it is an Offence by Statute, liable to a Forfeiture of 10 s. a Month, inquirable of in the Court-Lect, &c. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 7. See Cottage.

Innamum, A Pledge — Innama non capiantur, nisi per communem assensum. Du Cange.

Innings, Lands recovered from the Sea in Romney Marsh, by Draining: Ancient Records make Mention of the Innings of Archbishop Becket, Boniface, and others; and at this Day there is Elderton's Innings, &c.

Innonia, (From the Sax. Innan, i. e. Intus) An Inclosure. Spelm. Gloss.

Innotescimus. This Word and Vidimus are all one; it signifies Letters Patent, so called, which are always of a Charter of Feoffment, or some other Instrument, not of Record, concluding Innotescimus per presentes, &c.

Innovations, Are thought dangerous by our Laws; and the ancient Judges of the Law have ever suppressed them, lest the Quiet and Certainty of the Common Law should be disturbed. Co. Lit. 379. In the Reign of King Ed. 3. the Judges said we will not change the Law, which always hath been used; and in the Time of K. H. 4. they declared, it would be better that it should be turned to a Default, than that the Law should be changed, or any Innovation made. Ibid. 303.

Innoxiate, To purge one of a Fault, and make him innocent. Leg. Ethelred. c. 10.

Inns, (Hospitii) Were instituted for Lodging and Relief of Travellers; and at Common Law any Man might erect and keep an Inn or Alehouse to receive Travellers, but now they are to be licensed and regulated by Statute, by Justices of Peace, who are to take Recognizances for keeping good Orders, &c. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 25. And if the Keeper of an Inn harbours Thieves or Persons of a scandalous Reputation, or suffers frequent Disorders in his House; or sets up a New Inn in a Place where there is no Manner of Need of one, to the Hinderance of other antient and well-governed Inns; or keep it in a Situation wholly wholly unfit for such a Purpose, he may by the Common Law be indicted and fined. H. P. C. 146. Dalt. 33, 34. Inn-keepers not selling their Hay, Oats, Beans, &c. and all Kinds of Victuals for Man and Beast, at reasonable Prices, having Respect to the Price sold in the Markets adjoining, without taking any Thing for Litter, they shall be fined for the first Offence, and for the second be imprisoned for a Month; and for the third stand on the Pillory, &c. Stat. 21 Fac. 1. c. 21. If one who keeps a common Inn, refuse to receive a Traveller as a Guest into his House, or to find him Victuals or Lodging, upon his Tendering a reasonable Price for the same; the Inn-keeper is liable to render Damages, in an Action at the Suit of the Party grieved, and may also be indicted and fined at the Suit of the King: And it is said, he may be compelled by the Constable of the Town to receive and entertain such a Person as his Guest; and that it is not material whether he have any Sign before his Door or not, if he make it his common Business to entertain Travellers. 1 Hawk. P. C. 225. Action of the Case on an implied Assumpsit will lie against the Guest, where the Inn-keeper is obliged by Law to furnish him with Meat, Drink, &c. And when a Guest calls for any Thing at an Inn, the Inn-keeper may justify Detaining of a Horse, or other Thing, till he is paid his just Reckoning. Dyer 30. If any Theft be committed on a Guest that lodgeth in an Inn, by the Servants of the Inn, or by any other Persons, (not the Guest's Servant or Companion) the Inn-keeper is answerable: But if the Guest be not a Traveller, but one of the same Town, the Master of the Inn is not chargeable for his Servant's Theft; and if a Man is robbed in a private Tavern, the Master is not chargeable. 8 Rep. 32, 33. In this Action the Writ is, Hospitandis homines per partes, ubi hujusmodi Hospitia existunt, trans-euntes & in eisdem Hospitantes, &c. And the Inn-keeper shall not answer for any Thing that is out of his Inn, but only for such Things as are infra Hospitium, the Words being eorum Bona & Catalla infra Hospitia illa existentia: But if the Inn-keeper put the Guest's Horse to Grass, without Orders for it, and the Horse is stolen, he shall make it good. 8 Rep. 34. Any Person found tipling in an Inn, is adjudged within the Statutes against Drunkenness, 21 Fac. 1. 1 Car. 1. And Inn-keepers or Alehouse-keepers, permitting Tipling in their Houses, are liable to the Penalty of 10 s. &c. by Statute, 1 Fac. 1. c. 9. 1 Car. 1. c. 14. See Action on the Case, and Guest.

Inns of Court, (Hospitii Curia) Are so called, because the Students therein do not only study the Laws to enable them to practise in the Courts at Westminster, but also pursue such other Studies as may render them more serviceable to the King in his Court. Fortescue, cap. 49. Of these, (says Sir Edward Coke) there are four well known, viz. The Inner Temple, Middle Temple, Lincoln's Inn and Gray's Inn; which with the two Serjeants Inns, and eight Inns of Chancery, viz. Clifford's Inn, Symond's Inn, Clement's Inn, Lyon's Inn, Furnival's Inn, Staple's Inn, Bernard's Inn, and Thavies's Inn, (to which is since added New Inn) make the most famous University for Profession of the Law, or of any one humane Science in the World. Co. Lit. Our Inns of Court, or Societies of the Law, which are very numerous, and fam'd for their Production of Learned Men, are governed by Masters, Principals, Benchers, Stewards, and other proper Officers; and have the Chief of them Chapels for Divine Service, and all of them publick Halls for Exercises, Readings and Arguments, which the Students are obliged to perform and attend for a competent Number of Years, before admitted to Speak at the Bar, &c.

Innuendo, (From Innuo, to nod or beckon with the Head to one) Is a Word used in Declarations and Law Pleadings, to ascertain a Person or Thing which was named before; as to say he, (Innuendo the Plaintiff) did so and so, when as there was Mention before of another Person. 4 Rep. 17. An Innuendo is in Effect no more than a Predict, and cannot make that certain which was uncertain before; and the Law will not allow Words to be enlarged by an Innuendo, so as to support an Action of the Case for speaking of them. Hob. 2, 6, 45, 5. Mod. 345. An Innuendo may not enlarge the Sense of the Words, nor make a Supply, or alter the Case, where the Words are defective. Hutt. Rep. 44. In Slander, both the Person and scandalous Words ought to be certain, and not want an Innuendo to make them out: If a Plaintiff declares that the Defendant said these Words, Thou art a Thief and stolest a Mare, &c. (Innuendo the Plaintiff) without an Averment that the Words were spoke eidem Querenti, this is not good; because it doth not certainly appear of whom they were spoken, and the Innuendo doth not help it. Pasch. 11 Car. B. R. 1 Danv. Abr. 158. And if the Plaintiff alledge that the Defendant said to him, Thou art a forsworn Man, and didst make a false Oath against me before Justice Scawen, (Innuendo Scawen, a Justice of Peace) Action doth not lie; for it is not shewn that Scawen was a Justice of Peace, otherwise than by the Innuendo, and there may be a Man whose Name is Justice Scawen. Mich. 35 Car. 2. 3 Lev. 166. If one say of another he hath forsworn himself, (Innuendo before Justices of Assize, &c.) this Innuendo shall not make the Words actionable. 1 Danv. 157. A Man shall not be punished for Perjury by the help of an Innuendo. 5 Mod. 344. Where Action lies for Words without any Innuendo, an Innuendo shall be repugnant and void. 1 Danv. 158.

Inoperatio, Is one of the legal Excuses to exempt a Man from appearing in Court: — Causa qua ad excusationem, &c. hoc est, vel Infirmittatis, vel Domini Necessitatis, vel contramandationis, vel Regis implacitationis, vel Inoperationis causa, viz. on the Days in which all Pleadings are to cease, or in diebus non Juridicis. Leg. H. 1. cap. 61.

Inordinatu, Was anciently taken for one who died Intestate; 'tis mentioned in Matt. Westm. 1246.

Inpeny and Outpeny, Money paid by the Custom of some Manors on the Alienation of Tenants, &c. — Inpeny & Outpeny consuetudo talis est in Villa de East Radham, de omnibus Terris qua infra Burgagium tenentur, viz. Quod ipse, qui vendiderit vel dederit dictam Tenuram alium, dabit pro exitu suo de eadem tenura unum Denarium, & simile pro ingressu alterius; & si predicti Denarii a retro fuerint, Ballivus Domini distringet pro eisdem Denariis in eadem Tenura. Regist. Prior. de Cokesford, p. 25.

Inquest, (Inquisitio) Is an Inquisition of Jurors, in Causes Civil and Criminal, on Proof made of the Fact on either Side, when it is referred to their Trial, being impanelled by the Sheriff for that Purpose; and as they bring in their Verdict, Judgment passeth; For the Judge saith, the Jury finds the Fact thus, then is the Law thus thus, and so we Judge. Staundf. P. C. lib. 3. c. 12. There is an Inquest of Office, as well as on the Mise of the Party, &c. as in Cases of Appeals of Robbery, the fresh Suit to entitle Restitution of Goods, is to be inquired of by Inquest of Office; which Inquest is chiefly for the Satisfaction of the Conscience of the Judges. 2 Hawk. P. C. 169. Whether a Criminal be a Lunatick or not, shall be tried by an Inquest of Office, returned by the Sheriff of the County; and if it be found by the Jury that he only feigns himself Lunatick, and he refuses to plead, he shall be dealt with as one standing Mute. H. P. C. 226. 1 And. 107. Where a Person stands Mute without making any Answer, the Court may take an Inquest of Office, by the Oath of any twelve Persons present, if he do so out of Malice, &c. But after the Issue is joined, when the Jury are in Court, if there be any Need for such Inquiry, it shall be made by them, and not by an Inquest of Office. 2 Hawk. P. C. 327. If a Person attainted of Felony escape, and being retaken, denies he is the same Man, Inquest is to be made of it by a Jury before he is executed. Ibid. 463. By Magna Charta, nothing is to be taken for Inquest of Life or Member. 9 H. 3. c. 26.

Inquisition, Is a Manner of Proceeding by Way of Search or Examination, and used in the King's Behalf, in Temporal Causes and Profits, in which Sense it is confounded with Office. Staundf. Prærog. 51. This Inquisition is upon an Outlawry found; in Cases of Treason and Felony committed; upon a Felo de se, &c. to entitle the King to Forfeitures of Lands and Goods: And there is no such Nicety required in an Inquisition as in Pleading; because an Inquisition is only to inform the Court how Process shall issue for the King, whose Title accrues by the Attainder, and not by the Inquisition; and yet in the Cases of the King and a common Person, Inquisitions have been held void for Incertainty. Lane 39. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1008. It is said there are two Sorts of Inquisitions, one to inform the King, the other to vest an Interest in him; the one need not be certain, but the other must; and where an Inquisition finds some Parts well, and nothing as to others, it may be helped by Melius Inquirendum. 2 Salk. 469. There is a Judicial Writ Ad Inquirendum, to inquire by a Jury into any Thing touching a Cause depending in Court; and Inquisition is had upon Extents of Land, Writs of Elegit, where Judgment is had by Default, and Damages and Costs are recovered, &c. Finch 484. 2 Lill. Abr. 65.

Inquisition, or Ex Officio Mero, Is one Way of proceeding in Ecclesiastical Courts. Wood's Inst. 596. And formerly the Oath Ex Officio was a Sort of Inquisition.

Inquisitores, (Inquisitores) Are Sheriffs, Coroners super visum Corporis, or the like, who have Power to enquire in certain Cases; and by the Stat. of Westm. 1. Inquirors or Inquisitors are included under the Name of Ministri. 2 Inst. 211.

Inrollment, (Inrolulatio) The Registering or Entering in the Rolls of the Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer, or by the Clerk of the Peace in the Records of the Quarter-Sessions, of any lawful Act; as a Statute or Recognizance acknowledged, a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Lands, &c. An Inrollment of a Deed is either an Inrollment of it by the Common Law, or according to the Statute: And Inrollments of Deeds ought to be made in Parchment, and recorded in Court, for Perpetuity's sake.

Trin. 23 Car. Pasch. 24 Car. 1. B. R. But the Inrolling a Deed doth not make it a Record, though it thereby becomes a Deed recorded; for there is a Difference between Matter of Record, and a Thing recorded to be kept in Memory; a Record being the Entry in Parchment of Judicial Matters controverted in a Court of Record, and whereof the Court takes Notice, whereas an Inrollment of a Deed is a private Act of the Parties concerned, of which the Court takes no Cognizance at the Time of doing it, altho' the Court gives Way to it. Mich. 21 Car. 1. 2 Lill. Abr. 69. Every Deed before it is inrolled, is to be acknowledged to be the Deed of the Party before a Master of the Court of Chancery, or a Judge of the Court wherein inrolled; which is the Officer's Warrant for the Inrolling of the same: And the Inrollment of a Deed, if it be acknowledged by the Grantor, will be good Proof of the Deed it self upon a Trial. Ibid. A Deed may be inrolled without the Examination of the Party himself; for 'tis sufficient if Oath is made of the Execution of the Deed: If two are Parties, and the Deed is acknowledged by one, the other is bound by it: And if a Man lives in New York, &c. and would pass Lands in England, a nominal Person may be joined with him in the Deed, who may acknowledge it here, and it will be binding. 1 Salk. 389. If the Party dies before it is inrolled, it may be inrolled afterwards: And Inrollment of Deeds operates by Virtue of the Statute of Inrollments; but if Livery and Seisin, &c. be had before the Inrolling, it prevents the Operation of the Inrollment, and the Party shall be in by that, as the more worthy Ceremony to pass Estates. 1 Leon. 5. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1010. Altho' Inrollment, or Matter of Record, shall not be tried per Pais, yet the Time when the Inrollment of a Deed was made shall be thus tried. 2 Lill. 68. See Bargain and Sale.

Inscriptiones, Were written Instruments by which any Thing was granted; as, Inscriptiones Monasterii, &c. Blount.

Insecutor, A Prosecutor or Adversary at Law. Paroch. Antiq. 388.

Insitena, (Sax.) An Inditch. Insitenis, & Watergangs, &c. Ordin. Romn. Marisc. p. 73.

Insidiatores Viarum, Are Way-Layers; which Words are not to be put in Indictments, Appeals, &c. by the Stat. 4 Hen. 4. c. 2. for before this Statute, Clergy was denied Felons charged generally as Insidiatores Viarum, &c. See 23 Car. 2. c. 1.

Insignia, Ensigns or Arms. See Arms and Gentility.

Insilium, Evil Advice or Counsel — Multaque Regis Infilia adversus Anglos dederunt. Sim. Dunelm. Ann. 1003. Insiliarius is an Evil Counsellor: Filius Regis cum suis Consiliariis, & Insiliariis, &c.

Insimul computassent, Is a Writ or Action of Account, which lies not for Things certain but only of Things uncertain. Broke Acco. 81. The common Declaration upon an Insimul computassent is to say, That the Plaintiff and Defendant, such a Day, Year, and Place, Insimul inter se computaverunt de Diversis Denariis summis per ipsum (the Defendant) eidem (the Plaintiff) præantea ibidem debiti. & insolut. existens. & super compoto illo eidem (the Defendant) ad tunc & ibidem inventus fuit in Arre-ragiis erga eundem (the Plaintiff in so much) prædictoque dictoque Defendente sic in Arveragiis invent. existens. adtunc & ibidem in Consideratione inde super se assumpsit, &c.

Infimul tenuit, Is one Species of the Writ of Partition, brought against a Stranger by a Coparcener upon the Possession of the Ancestor. See Formedon.

Insinuation, (Insinuatio) Is a Creeping into a Man's Mind or Favour covertly; mentioned in the Stat. 21 Hen. 8. c. 5. And Insinuation of a Will is among the Civilians, the first Production of it; or Leaving it in the Hands of the Register, in order to its Probate.

Insolvent Debtors, Unable to pay their Debts, &c. See Debtors.

Insperimus, A Word used in Letters Patent, being the same with Exemplification; and is called Insperimus, because it begins Rex omnibus, &c. Insperimus Irrotulamentum quarund. Literar. Patent. &c. 5 Rep.

Installment, A Settlement, Establishing, or sure Placing in; as Installment into Dignities, &c. 20 Car. 2. c. 2.

Instant, (Lat. Instans, Instanter) Is defined by the Logicians to be, Unam indivisibile in Tempore, quod non est Tempore, quod non est Tempus, nec pars Temporis, ad quod tamen partes Temporis copulantur; and though it cannot be actually divided, yet in Intendment of Law it may, and be applied to several Purposes: He who lays violent Hands upon himself commits no Felony 'till he is dead, and when dead he is not in Being so as to be term'd a Felon; but he is so adjudg'd in Law eo Instante, at the very Instant of this Fact done. And there are many other Cases of the like Nature. Plowd.

Instaurum, Is used in antient Deeds for a Stock of Cattle; and we read of Staurum and Instauramentum, properly young Beasts, Store or Breed. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 548. Instaurum was commonly taken for the whole Stock upon a Farm, as Cattle, Waggon, Ploughs, and all other Implements of Husbandry. Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 72. And Instaurum Ecclesia is applied to the Books, Vestments, and all other Utensils belonging to a Church. Synod. Exet. Ann. 1287. Instauratio is taken in the same Sense as Instaurum.

Instirpare, To plant or establish. — Non securum est Gentem externam & turbidam Instirpare. Brompt. 935.

Institution, (Institutio) Is when the Bishop says to a Clerk, who is presented to a Church Living, Instituto te Rectorem talis Ecclesie, cum Cura animarum, & accipe curam tuam & meam: Or it is a Faculty made by the Ordinary, whereby a Parson is approved to be inducted to a Rectory or Parsonage. If the Bishop upon Examination finds the Clerk presented capable of the Benefice, he admits and institutes him; and Institution may be granted either by the Bishop under his Episcopal Seal; or it may be done by the Bishop's Vicar General, Chancellor or Commissary; and if granted by the Vicar General, or any other Substitute, their Acts are taken to be the Acts of the Bishop: Also the Instrument or Letters Testimonial of Institution may be granted by the Bishop, tho' he is not in his Diocese; to which some Witnesses should subscribe their Names. 1 Inst. 344. Clergym. Law 109. The Bishop by Institution transfers the Cure of Souls to the Clerk; and if he refuseth to grant Institution, the Party may have his Remedy in the Court of Audience of the Archbishop, by Duplex Querela,

&c. for Institution is properly cognisable in the Ecclesiastical Court: Where Institution is granted, and suspected to be void for Want of Title in the Patron, &c. a Superinstitution hath been sometimes granted to another, to try the Title of the present Incumbent by Ejectment. 2 Roll. Abr. 220. 4 Rep. 79. Taking a Reward for Institution incurs a Forfeiture of double Value of one Year's Profit of the Benefice, and makes the Living void. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6. On Institution the Clerk hath a Right to enter upon the Parsonage-house and Glebe, and take the Tithes; but he cannot grant, let, or do any Act to charge them 'till he is inducted into the Living: He is compleat Parson as to the Spirituality, by Institution; but not as to the Temporality, &c. By the Institution he is only admitted ad Officium, to pray and preach; and is not intitled ad Beneficium, until formal Induction. Plowd. 528. The Church is full by Institution against all common Persons, so that if another Parson be afterwards inducted, it is void, and he hath but a meer Possession; but a Church is not full against the King 'till Induction. 2 Inst. 358. 1 Roll. Rep. 151. When a Bishop hath given Institution to a Clerk, he issues his Mandate for Induction; and if the Archbishop should inhibit the Archdeacon to induct the Clerk thus instituted, he may do it notwithstanding. 4 Rep. The first Beginning of Institutions to Benefices, was in a national Synod held at Westminster, Anno 1124. For Patrons did originally fill all Churches by Collation and Livery; 'till this Power was taken from them by Canons. Selden's Hist. of Tithes, cap. 6 & 9. pag. 375. See Induction.

Insuper Is used by Auditors in their Accounts in the Exchequer; as when so much is charged upon a Parson as due on his Account, they say so much remains insuper to such an Accountant. 21 Fac. 1. c. 2.

Insurance, Is where a Man for a Sum of Money paid him by a Merchant obliges himself to make good the Loss of a Ship, &c. so far as the Value of the Premium extends. Insurances are either Publick or Private; the First done at the publick Office of Assurance, and the Latter agreed upon between Merchant and Merchant in private: And all Insurances, whether publick or private, must be made upon the Ship, or on the Goods, or upon Ship and Goods: And some Insurances are to Places certain; and others General, in trading Voyages, where Ships deliver their Goods at one Port, and take in fresh Cargoes, and then proceed to other Places, &c. which being dangerous, the Premium runs higher than that of any other certain Voyage. Merch. Compan. 90. Any Man may make a private Policy of Insurance; and there is no fix'd Price for the Rates of Insurances, which rise and fall according to the State of the Nation in Peace or War, the Season of the Year, and other various Occurrences; in former Wars, the Rates of Insurance on a good Ship, from London to any Port or Place in the East-Indies, &c. and back, was 16 per Cent. but in the late War in the Reign of K. William, the Premium of Insurance for the like Voyage was about 22 per Cent. And when a Ship hath been long missing, and no Advice can be had where she is, the Premium in Time of War will run very high; sometimes 30 or 40 per Cent. but then these Words are inserted in the Insurance, Lost or not Lost; and in such Case, if it happens at the Time the Subscription is made, that the Ship is cast away, away, the Insurers must answer: But if the Party that caused the Insurance to be made, saw the Ship wreck'd, or had certain Intelligence of it, such Subscription will not be obligatory; so likewise if the Insured having a rotten Ship, shall insure upon the same more than she is worth, and afterwards going out of the Port she is sunk or wreck'd, this will be adjudg'd fraudulent, and not oblige the Insurers to answer. Mich. 26 Car. 2. B. R. And wilfully Casting away, or making Holes in the Bottom of a Ship, &c. is made Felony by Stat. 1 Ann. Subscriptions for Insurances are generally for certain Sums; as 100 l. or 500 l. &c. at the Premium current; and if a Man insures Goods to the Value of 5000 l. and he hath but 2000 l. remitted, now he having insured a real Adventure, if a Loss happens by the Law Marine, all the Insurers are compellable to answer pro rata: Though this is more by the Custom of Merchants than by Law; and by some Opinions, only the first Subscribers, who underwrit so much as the real Adventure amounted to, are to be made liable, and the Rest to have their Premiums deducted, and be discharged. Grot. Introd. Fur. Holl. 212. If a Merchant freights out Wool, &c. which occasions a Forfeiture of Ship and Lading; or if he lades contraband Goods knowingly, and afterwards insures the same, and they are seized by the King's Officers; the Insurers are not liable to bear the Loss: But if Goods insured are not contraband at the Time of the Lading and Insurance, and after become such, if they are then seized, the Insurers are answerable. 12 Car. 2. 32. And if Goods and Merchandize be lawfully insur'd, and afterwards the Ship becomes disabled, by Reason of which, with the Consent of the Supercargo or Merchant, they are re-laden into another Vessel; and that Vessel proves the Ship of an Enemy, by Reason of which, on her Arrival, she is subject to Seizure; in this Case 'tis said the Insurers are liable, for that it is an Accident within the Intention of the Policy of Insurance, which mentions Dangers of the Seas, Enemies, &c. Yet where Goods are insured in a Ship bound to any foreign Port, and in the Voyage she happens to be leaky or receive other Damage, and another Vessel is freighted for the Preservation of the Goods; and then the second Vessel is lost at Sea, it is said the Insurers are discharged without a special Clause to make them liable. Lex Mercat. or Merch. Compan. 93. If a Ship be insured from the Port of London to any foreign Place, and before the Ship breaks Ground she happens to take Fire and is consumed, the Insurers are not obliged to answer, unless the Words of the Insurance are, At and from the Port of London; for the Adventure did not commence 'till the Ship was gone from thence: Though if the Ship had broke Ground, and afterwards been driven by Storm back to the Port of London, and there had took Fire, the Insurers must answer. Rot. Scaccar. 15 Car. 2. Goods are stolen or imbeziled on Ship-board, the Master, and not the Insurers are liable: And when Insurers are to answer, and it happens that some Part only of the Effects insured are lost, as in the Case of Ejections in a Storm, or other such Accidents; then the Insurers make an Average of it, and each Man pays so much per Cent. in Proportion to the Sum for which he subscribed. If a Ship arrives safe, after the Adventure is born, generally the Insurers receive their Money; but if a Loss happens, the Premium is deducted with the usual Abatement, and the Insured receive about 80 per Cent. &c. And when Advice is received of the Loss of the Ship or Goods, Application is to be made to the Insurers, and the Vouchers to be produc'd; with which, if they are satisfied, they will pay the Money; but if they have reasonable Ground to scruple it, the Insured must wait a convenient Time, 'till the Insurers can obtain more satisfactory Advice; or if nothing can be heard of the Ship in any reasonable Time, the Insurers are obliged forthwith to pay the Money: Though if after that the Ship shall arrive in Safety, the Money is to be returned them by the Insured. Merch. Compan. 91, 96, 97. A Merchant having insured the greatest Part of the Adventure of a Ship, if Advice is receiv'd of a Loss, but with Hope of Recovery, whereby such Merchant would have the Assistance of the Insurers; he has a Privilege to make a Renunciation of the Lading to the Insurers, and to come in himself in the Nature of an Insurer, for so much as shall appear he hath born the Adventure of, beyond his Part of the Value insured. Insurance may be made on Men's Heads; as where a Man is in Danger of being taken into Slavery by the Moors, whereby a Ransom must be paid for his Redemption, he may advance a Premium, in Consideration of which the Insurer must answer the Ransom secured, if there be a Caption. Mich. 29 Car. B. R. Also Men's Lives may be insured at Land: And Policies of Insurance are used in other Matters, where Damage is fear'd; in Case of Houses or Goods from Loss by Fire, &c.

Form of a Policy of Insurance.

K NOW all Men by these Presents, That A. B. of, &c. Merchant, as well in his own Name, as for and in the Name and Names of all and every other Person and Persons, to whom the same may or shall appertain, doth make Assurance and hereby cause himself and them, and every of them, to be insured, lost or not lost, at and from the Port of London to, &c. in the Kingdom of, &c. and at and from thence back to London, upon the Body, Tackle, Apparel, Ordnance, Munition, Artillery, and other Furniture, of and in the good Ship Elizabeth, Burtben, &c. or thereabouts, whereof, &c. is Master, and also upon all Kinds of Goods and Merchandizes ship'd on board the said Ship; beginning the Adventure upon the said Ship and Goods, from and immediately following the Day of the Date hereof, and so to continue and endure, until the said Ship, with her said Tackle, Apparel, &c. shall be arrived back at London, and hath there moor'd at Anchor twenty-four Hours. And it shall be lawful for the said Ship in this Voyage to proceed and sail to, and touch and stay at, any Ports or Places whatsoever, especially at, &c. without Prejudice to this Insurance; and the said Ship and Goods, &c. for so much as concerns the Insured, is and shall be rated and valued at, &c. Sterling, without further Account to be given by the Assureds for the same. And touching the Adventures and Perils, which are the Insurers are content to bear, and do take upon us, they are of the Seas, Men of War, Fire, Enemies, Pirates, Rovers, Thieves, Letters of Mart, and Reprisals at Sea, Arrests, Restraints, and Detainments of all Kings, Princes, and People, of what Nation, Condition or Quality soever, Barratry of the Master and Mariners, and all other Losses and Misfortunes that shall come to the Hurt or Damage of the said Ship, &c. or any Part thereof. And in Case of any Misfortune, it shall be lawful for the Insured, their Factors, Servants and Assigns, to sue, labour, and travel for, in and about the Defence, Safeguard, and Recovery of the said Ship, &c. or any Part thereof, without Prejudice to this Insurance; to the Charges whereof we the Insurers will contribute each of us according to the Rate and Quantity of his Sum herein assured. And so we the Insurers are contented, and do hereby Promise, and bind our selves, each for his own Part, our Heirs, Executors, Goods and Chattels, to the Insured, their Executors, Administrators and Assigns, for the true Performance of the Premises, confessing our selves paid the Consideration due to us for this Insurance, by, &c. at and after the Rate of, &c. per Cent. and in Case of Loss, to abate, &c. And to pay without farther Proof, &c. more than this present Policy, any Use or Custom to the contrary notwithstanding. In Witness, &c.

By 43 Eliz. cap. 12. An Office of Insurance was erected for Deciding of Differences arising upon Policies of Insurance in London; and a Court was to be held for that Purpose by Virtue of a Standing Commission issued out by the Lord Chancellor to the Judge of the Court of Admiralty, the Recorder of London, two Doctors of the Civil Law, and two Common Lawyers, and eight Merchants; which Commissioners were to meet Weekly, and to have Power to summon and examine Witnesses, and hear and determine all Causes in a summary Way, subject to appeal to the Lord Chancellor, &c. And by Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 25. several additional Privileges were granted to this Court, which was a Court of Equity, as well as of Law; but now there is no such Court in Being, and Causes of this Nature are try'd in the ordinary Courts. The 6 Geo. c. 18. empowers his Majesty to grant two Charters for Insurance of Ships and Merchandize, &c. and to incorporate the Adventurers, in Consideration of a large Sum of Money advanc'd; and all other Corporations for Insurance, and their Policies, are declared void.

Intakers, Were a Kind of Thieves in the Northern Parts of England, so called, because they did take in and receive such Booties as their Confederates the Outpartners brought to them from the Borders of Scotland; they are mentioned 9 H. 5. c. 7.

Intendment of Law, (Intellectus) The Understanding, Intention, and true Meaning of the Law. Co. Litt. 78. Intendment shall sometimes supply that which is not fully express'd or apparent; and when a Thing is doubtful in some Cases, Intendment may make it out: But Intendment cannot supply the Want of Certainty in a Charge in an Indictment for any Crime, &c. 5 Rep. 121. 2 Hawk. P. C. 227, 441. Sometimes a Thing is necessarily intended by what precedes or follows it; and where an indifferent Construction may have two Intendments, the Rule is to take it most strongly against the Plaintiff. Show. 162. Though if a Plaintiff declares, that the Defendant is bound to him by Obligation, it shall be intended that the Obligation was sealed and delivered: If one is bound in a Bond to another, and in the Solvend. of the Bond it is not express'd unto whom the Money shall be paid, or if said to the Obligor; the Law will intend it is to be paid to the Obligee: And where no Time is limited for Payment of the Money, it shall be intended to be presently paid. 2 Lill. Abr. 71. Pasch. 24 Car. B. R. The Intent of Parties in Deeds, Contracts, &c. is much regarded by the Law; yet Intendment shall not take Place against the direct Rules of Law: The Law doth not in Conveyances of Estates, admit them regularly to pass by Intendment and Implication; in Devises of Lands they are allow'd, with due Restrictions. Vaugh. 261, 262. Where Seisin of an Inheritance is once alledged; it shall be intended to continue till the contrary is shewed. Jones 181. A Court pleaded generally to be held secund. Consuetud. shall be intended held according to the Common Law. Com. Law. Com. Plac. 276. Common Intendment is where one Thing or Person may be more strongly intended than another. Mich. 39 Eliz. Goldsb. 111. See Implication.

Intendment of Crimes. In antient Times felonious Attempts, intending the Death of another, were adjudg'd Felony; for the Will was taken for the Fact. Braff. 1 E. 3. But at this Day the Law does not generally punish Intendments to do ill, if the Intent be not executed; except it be in Case of Treason, where Intention prov'd by Circumstances shall be punish'd as if put in Execution. 3 Inst. 108. And if a Person enter a House in the Night, with Intent to commit Burglary, it is Felony: And by Statute maliciously Cutting off or Disabling any Limb or Member, with an Intent to disfigure, &c. is Felony. Plowd. 474. 23 Car. 2. c. 1. Intention of Force and Violence makes Riots criminal. 3 Inst. 9. And if a Man entering a Tavern, &c. commit a Trespass, the Law will judge that he intended it. 8 Rep. 147. Vide Murder.

Intensio, Is a Writ that lies against him that enters into Lands after the Death of Tenant for Life, &c. and holds out him in Reversion or Remainder: And every Entry upon the King's Possession is called Intensio upon the King. F. N. B. 203. Staundf. Prærog. 40.

Inter Canem & Lupum, Words used formerly in Appeals, to signify a Crime being done in the Twilight, i. e. inter Diem & Noctem, &c. Plac. Trin. 7 E. 1. This hath divers other Denominations; as in Herefordshire they call it the Mock-shadow, corruptly the Muck-shade; and in the North, Daylight's Gate; others, betwixt Hawk and Buzzard. Cowel.

Intercommoning, Is where the Commons belonging to two Manors lie contiguous, and the Inhabitants of both have, Time out of Mind, depastured their Cattle in each of them. Terms de Ley 411.

Interdict, Is an Ecclesiastical Censure, by which Persons are prohibited to hear Divine Service, or to have the Sacraments administered them, or Burial. The Canon Law, with which the Common Law agrees, defines it thus; Interdictio est Censura Ecclesiastica prohibens Administrationem Divinorum: And so it is used 22 H. 8. c. 12. There is an Interdict of Places as well as of Persons; an Interdict of Place is when Divine Service is forbidden to be had in such a Church, and is only with Regard to that Church or Place, so that the Persons may be received into another Church, though not into their own; but an Interdict of Persons follows them where-ever they remove: And by a mixt Interdict, both the People and the Church, &c. are subjected to this Censure. Sometimes an Interdict is a general Excommunication of a whole Kingdom or Country; and Knighton tells us, that anno 1208, the Pope excommunicated King John of England, and all his Adherents, Et totam Terram Anglicanam supposit Interdicto, which begun the first Sunday after Easter, and continued above six Years; during ring all which Time nothing was done in the Churches besides Baptism, and Confessions of dying People. The Form of an Interdict, as set down by Du Cange, is as follows, viz.

IN the Name of Christ, We the Bishop, in Behalf of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost, and of St. Peter, the Chief of the Apostles, and in our own Behalf, do excommunicate and interdict this Church, and all the Chapels thereunto belonging, that no Man from henceforth may have Leave to sing Mass, or to hear it, or in any wise to administer any Divine Office, nor to receive God's Tithes without our Leave; and whosoever shall presume to sing or hear Mass, or perform any Divine Office, or to receive any Tithes contrary to this Interdict, on the Part of God the Father Almighty, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, and on the Behalf of St. Peter, and all the Saints, let him be accursed and separated from all Christian Society, and from Entering into Holy Mother-Church, where there is Forgiveness of Sins; and let him be Anathema Maranatha for ever with the Devils in Hell. Fiat, Fiat, Amen.

This severe Church Censure hath been of long Time disused.

Interdicted of Water and Fire, Were antiently those Persons who suffer'd Banishment for some Crime; by which Judgment, Order was given, that no Man should receive them into his House, but deny them Fire and Water, the Two necessary Elements of Life, which amounted as it were to a Civil Death; and this was called Legitimum Exilium, says Livy.

Interest, (Interesse) Is commonly taken for a Chattel Real, as a Lease for Years, &c. and more particularly for a future Term; in which Case, it is said in Pleading, that one is possessed De Interesse Termini. Therefore an Estate in Lands is better than a Right or Interest in them: But in legal Understanding an Interest extends to Estates, Rights and Titles, that a Man hath in or out of Lands, &c. so as by Grant of his whole Interest in such Land, a Reversion therein as well as Possession in Fee-simple shall pass. Co. Litt. 345.

Interest of Money, As distinguish'd from the Principal, what lawful, &c. See Usury.

Interlocutory Order, (Ordo Interlocutorius) Is that which decides not the Cause, but only some incidental Matter, which happens between the Beginning and End of it; as where an Order is made in Chancery, for the Plaintiff to have an Injunction, &c. till the Hearing of the Cause: This, or any such Order, not being final, is Interlocutory. — Ordo Interlocutorius non definit Controversiam, sed aliquid obiter, ad Causam pertinens, decernit. Lanc. Inst. Juris Canon. lib. 3.

Interlopers, Persons that intercept the Trade of a Company of Merchants. Merch. Diff.

Interpleader In Actions, see Enterpleader.

Interrogatories, Are particular Questions demanded of Witnesses brought in to be examined in a Cause, especially in the Court of Chancery. And these Interrogatories must be exhibited by the Parties in Suit on each Side; which are either direct for the Party that produces them, or counter on Behalf of the adverse Party; and generally both Plaintiff and Defendant may exhibit, direct and counter, or cross Interrogatories. They are to be pertinent, and only to the Points necessary, and either drawn or perused by Counsel, and be signed by them; if they are leading, viz. such as these, Did you not do or see such a Thing, &c. the Depositions on them will be suppress'd; for they should be drawn, Did you see, or did you not see, &c. without leaning to either Side; and not only where they point more to one Side of the Question than the other, but if they are too particular, they will be likewise suppress'd: The Commissioners, &c. who examine the Witnesses on the Interrogatories, must examine to one Interrogatory only at a Time; they are to hold the Witnesses to every Point interrogated; and take what comes from them on their Examinations, without asking any idle Questions, or putting down any impertinent Answers not relating to the Interrogatories, &c. Pract. Attorn. 1st Edit. 225. See Depositions.

Interrogate, In the Saxon Laws signified to sequester, or put into a third Hand; as when any Thing was stolen and sold to another, and afterwards demanded by the right Owner of him in whose Possession it was found, it was then usual to sequester the Thing to a third Person, who was allow'd to keep it till the Buyer produced the Seller, and so on to the Thief. Leg. Ina, cap. 27, 52. LL. Ed. Confess. c. 25.

Intestates, (Intestati) Those that die without making any Will or Disposition of their Estates. Formerly he who died Intestate was accounted by the Churchmen damn'd, because he was obliged by the Canons to leave at least a tenth Part of his Goods to pious Uses, for the Redemption of his Soul; and whoever neglected so to do, was adjudg'd to take no Care of his Salvation; and no Difference was made between a Suicide and an Intestate; for as the one forfeited his Goods to the King, so by the other they were forfeited to the chief Lord: But because it often happen'd by sudden Diseases, that People died without making any Distribution of their Goods to pious Uses; therefore by subsequent Canons, the Bishops had Power to make such a Disposition, as the Intestate himself was bound to do; and 'tis said by this Means the Spiritual Court came first to have Jurisdiction in Testamentary Cases. Matt. Paris. Anno 1190. By the Stat. Westm. 2. Goods of Intestates were to be committed to the Ordinary, to answer the Debts of the Deceas'd, &c. And the 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 10. appoints a Distribution of Intestate's Estates, after Debts and Funeral Expences are paid, among the Wife and Children of the Deceas'd; or for Want of such, the next of Kin, &c. And the Act of Parliament doth immediately, upon the Death of the Intestate, vest an Interest in the Persons intitled; so that if any one dies before the Distribution, though within the Year, his Share shall go to his Executors or Administrators; and not to the Survivors and next of Kin to the Intestate. 1 Lill. Abr. 487. If a Man makes a Will and Executors, and they refuse the Executorship, in such Case he dies quasi Intestatus. 2 Inst. 397. See Administrators.

Intestate's Estates, Are the Goods and Chattels of Persons dying Intestate. 2 Lill. Abr. 73.

Intrare Mariscum, Signifies to drain any low Ground, and by Dikes, Walls, &c. take in and reduce it to Herbage or Pasture; whence comes the Word Innings. Will. Thorn.

Intrusion, (Intrusio) Is when the Ancestor dies seized of any Estate of Inheritance, expectant upon an Estate for Life, and then Tenant for Life dies, between whose Death and the Entry of the the Heir, a Stranger intrudes. Co. Litt. 227. — Intrusio est, ubi quis, cui nullum jus competit in re nec scintilla juris, possessionem vacuum ingreditur, &c. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 2. By which Intrusion signifieth an unlawful Entry into Lands or Tenements void of a Possessor, by him that hath no Right unto the same: And the Difference between an Intruder and an Abator is this, that an Abator entereth into Lands void by the Death of a Tenant in Fee; and an Intruder enters into Land void by the Death of Tenant for Life or Years. F. N. B. 203. As he that enters and keeps the right Heir from the Possession of his Ancestor is an Intruder punishable by the Common Law; so he that enters upon the King's Lands, and takes the Profits, is an Intruder against the King. Co. Litt. 277. For this Intrusion Information may be brought; but before Office found, he who occupies the Land shall not be said to be an Intruder, for Intrusion cannot be but where the King is actually possessed which is not before Office; though the King is intitled to the mesne Profits after the Tenant's Estate ended. Moor 295. By Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 14. the Defendants may plead the General Issue in Informations of Intrusion, brought on Behalf of the King, and retain their Possession 'till Trial; where the King hath been out of Possession, and not receiv'd the Profits for twenty Years, &c.

Intrusion de Gard, Was a Writ that lay where the Infant within Age entered into his Lands, and held out his Lord. Old Nat. Br. 90.

Intrusione, Is a Writ brought against an Intruder; by him that hath Fee-simple, &c. New Nat. Br. 453.

Inbadiare, To engage or mortgage Lands; and Inbadiationes were Mortgages of Land. — Confirmamus eis omnes Donationes, venditiones, & Inbadiationes, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 478.

Inbadiatus, Is when a Person accused of any Crime, on it's not being fully proved, was put sub debita fidejussione. Blount.

Inbasiones. In the Inquisition of Serjeancies and Knights Fees, Anno 12 & 13 of King John, there are some Titles called Invasiones; & Invasiones super Regem.

Inventiones, In antient Charters is used for Treasure-trove, Money or Goods found by any Persons, and not challenged by the Owner; which by the Common Law is due to the King, who grants the Privilege to some particular Subjects. — Quod habeant Inventiones suas in Mari & in Terra. Chart. K. Ed. 1. to the Barons of the Cinque Ports.

Inventozz, (Inventorium) Is a List or Schedule containing a true Description of all the Goods and Chattels of a Person deceased at the Time of his Death, with their Value apprais'd by indifferent Persons; which every Executor or Administrator ought to exhibit to the Bishop or Ordinary at such Time as he shall appoint. West. Symb. lib. 2. pag. 696. By 21 H. 8. c. 5. Executors and Administrators are required to make and deliver in upon Oath to the Ordinary, Inventories indented, of which one Part shall remain with the Ordinary, and the other Part with the Executor or Administrator: And the Intention of this Statute was for the Benefit of the Creditors and Legatees, that the Executor or Administrator might not conceal any Part of the Personal Estate from them: Though as to the Valuation it is not conclusive, but the real Value found by a Jury; if they are undervalued, the Creditors may take them as apprais'd, and if over-valued, it shall not be prejudicial to the Executor. 2 Nels. Abr. 1015. But tho' generally all the Personal Estate of the Deceased, of what Nature or Quality soever, ought to be put into the Inventory; yet Goods given away in the Life-time of the deceased Person, and actually in the Possession of the Person to whom given, and the Goods to which a Husband is intitled as Administrator to his Wife, are not. 3 Bulst. 355. And notwithstanding the Law requires that the Inventory be exhibited within three Months after the Death of the Person; if it is done afterwards, it is good, for the Ordinary may dispense with the Time, and even whether it shall be exhibited, or not; as where Creditors are paid, and the Will performed, &c. Raym. 470. These Inventories proceed from the Civil Law; and whereas by the old Roman Law, the Heir was obliged to answer all the Testator's Debts, Justinian ordain'd, that Inventories should be made of the Substance of the Deceased, and he should be no further charged. Justin. Inst.

In ventre sa mere, (Fr.) In the Mother's Belly, relating to which there is a Writ mentioned in the Register of Writs, and in 12 Car. 2. c. 24. A Devise to an Infant in Ventre sa mere, may be good by Way of future executory Devise. Raym. 164.

Inveritare, To verify or make Proof of a Thing. Leg. Ine, cap. 16.

Invest and Investiture, (From the Fr. Investir) Signifies to give Possession: Some define it thus, Investitura est alicujus in suum jus Introductio; a Giving Livery of Seisin or Possession. The Customs and Ceremonies of Investiture or giving Possession, were long practis'd with great Variety: At first Investitures were made by a Form of Words; and afterwards by such Things which had most Resemblance to what was to be transferred; as Lands pass'd by the Delivery of a Turf, &c. which was done by the Grantor to the Person to whom the Lands were granted: But in after Ages, the Things by which Investitures were made, were not so exactly observ'd. Ingulph. pag. 901. In the Church, it was the Custom of old for Princes to promote such as they liked to Ecclesiastical Benefices, and declare their Choice and Promotion by Delivery to the Persons chosen of a Pastoral Staff and Ring; the one a symbolical Representation of their Spiritual Marriage with the Church; and the other of their Pastoral Care and Charge, which was term'd Investiture; after which they were consecrated by Ecclesiastical Persons. Hoveden tells us, that our King Richard being taken by the Emperor, gave this Kingdom to him, & Investivit eum inde per Pileum suum; and that the Emperor immediately afterwards return'd the Gift; Et Investivit eum per duplicem Crucem de auro. Hoved. 724. And Walsingham says, that John Duke of Lancaster was made Duke of Acquitaine, per Virgam & Pileum, pag. 343.

Invitatoria & Venitarium, Those Hymns and Psalms that were sung in the Church to invite the People to Prayer: They are mentioned in the Statutes of St. Paul's. M.S.

Invoice, A particular Account of Merchandize, with its Value, Custom, and Charges, &c. sent by a Merchant to his Factor or Correspondent in another Country. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 34.

Jobber, Is used for one that buys or sells Cattle for others. 22 & 23 Car. 2. And there are Stockjobbers, who buy and sell Stocks for other Persons, &c. See Brokers.

Focalia, (Fr. Foyaux) Jewels; derived from the Lat. Focus, Foculus, and Focula, which comprehends every Thing that delighteth; but in a special and more restrain'd Sense, it signifies those Things which are Ornaments to Women, and which in France they call their own; as Diamonds, Ear-Rings, Bracelets, &c. But in this Kingdom, a Wife shall not be intitled to Jewels, Diamonds, &c. on the Death of her Husband, unless they are suitable to her Quality, and the Husband leave Assets to pay Debts, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 911.

Jocatus, A Jester; as in an old Deed we read of Jocarius Dom. Abbatis; and Joculator Regis, the King's Jester. Domesd.

Jocus partitus, Is when two Proposals are made to a Person, and he hath Liberty to chuse which he pleases. — Nec potest transigere, nec pacisci, nec Jocum partitum facere, &c. Bract. lib. 4. tract. 1. cap. 32.

Joinder, Is the Coupling or Joining of Two in a Suit or Action against another: Duorum in eadem Actione conjunctio. F. N. B. 118. In all Personal Things, where Two are chargeable to Two, the one may satisfy it, and accept of Satisfaction, and bind his Companion; and yet one cannot have an Action without his Companion, nor both only against one. 2 Leon. 77. In joint Personal Actions against two Defendants, if they plead severally, and the Plaintiff is nonsuit by one before he hath Judgment against the other, he is barr'd against both. Hob. 180. A Covenant to Two, not to do a Thing without their Consent; one of them may bring an Action for his particular Damage. 2 Mod. 82. And three covenanted jointly and severally, with Two severally; and it was held, the Three could not join in Action of Covenant. March. 103. But a Person, in Consideration of a Sum of Money paid to him by A. and B. promises to procure their Cattle distrained to be delivered; if they are not delivered, one joint Action lies by the Parties, for the Consideration cannot be divided. Style 156, 203. 1 Danv. Abr. 5. And if one Jointenant of Goods is robb'd, both may join in an Action: And where two Joint-owners of a Sum of Money are robb'd upon the Highway, they may join in one Action against the Hundred. Latch. 127. Dyer 370. 'Tis otherwise if they have several Properties. Ibid. Upon a joint Grievance all Parties may join; as the Inhabitants of a Hundred, &c. And where an Action against Owners of a Ship, in Case of Goods damaged, &c. is quasi ex contractu, it must be brought against all of them. 3 Lev. 258. 3 Mod. 321. 2 Salk. 440. Tho' one Partner acts in Trade, where there are many Partners, Actions are to be brought against all the Partners jointly for his Acts. 1 Salk. 292. If two Men are Partners, and one of them sells Goods in Partnership, Action for the Money must be brought in both their Names. Godb. 244. But where there are two Partners in Merchandize, and one of them appoints a Factor; they may have several Writs of Account against him, or they may join. Moor 188. And if one of the Merchants dies, the Survivor is to bring the Action. 2 Salk. 444. If one Man calls two other Men Thieves, they shall not join in an Action against him; and one joint Action will not lie against several Persons for Speaking the same Words: For the Wrong done to one is no Wrong to the other; and the Words of the one are not the Words of the other. 1 Danv. 5. Palm. 313. So it is in Assault and Battery. On a joint Trespas the Plaintiff may declare severally; but it remains joint 'till severed by the Declaration. 2 Salk. 454. A Man cannot declare in an Action against one Defendant for an Assault and Battery, and against another for Taking away his Goods; because the Trespasses are of several Natures. Mich. 24 Car. Style 153. But where they are done by two Persons at one Time, they may be both guilty of the Whole. 10 Rep. 66. If two Men procure another to be indicted falsely of Barretry, he may have Action against them both jointly; and it is the same if Two conspire to maintain a Suit; though one only gives Money, &c. Latch. 262.

As to Actions join'd; in Personal Actions, several Wrongs may be join'd in one Writ; but Actions founded upon a Tort, and on a Contract, cannot be join'd, for they require different Pleas and different Processes. 1 Keb. 847. 1 Ventr. 366. And where there is a Tort by the Common Law, and a Tort by Statute, they may not be join'd; though where several Torts are by the Common Law, they may be join'd, if Personal. 3 Salk. 203. A general Action of Trespas, and special Action on the Case, may be join'd in one Action: Trover and Assumpsit may not be join'd; but in an Action against a common Carrier, the Plaintiff may declare in Case upon the Custom of the Realm, and also upon Trover and Conversion, for Not guilty answers to both. 1 Danv. Abr. 4. And any Actions may be join'd, where the Plea of Not guilty goes to all. 8 Rep. 47. But as to Carriers, see 1 Ventr. 365. And Judgment was arrested in Assumpsit, in such a Case. 1 Salk. 10. Ejectment and Battery cannot be join'd; but after Verdict, where several Damages were found, the Plaintiff was allow'd to release those for the Battery, and had Judgment for the Ejectment. 1 Danv. 3. A Person cannot as Administrator, &c. join an Action for the Right of another, with any Action in his own Right; because the Costs will be intire, and it can't be distinguish'd how much he is to have as Administrator, and how much for himself. 1 Salk. 10.

Joinder of Counties. There can be no Joinder of Counties for the Finding of an Indictment: Though in Appeal of Death, where a Wound was given in one County, and the Party died in another, the Jury ought to be return'd jointly from each County, before the Statute 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 24. But by that Statute the Law is alter'd; for now the Whole may be tried either on Indictment or Appeal, in the County wherein the Death is. 2 Hawk. P. C. 323, 403. Where several Persons are arraigned upon the same Indictment or Appeal, and severally plead Not guilty, the Prosecutor may either take out Joint Venire's or several. H. P. C. 256. But after a Joint Venire, several ones can't be taken out.

Joint Executors, Are accounted in Law but as one single Person, and Acts done by any of them shall be taken to be the Acts of every one of them; for they all represent the Person of the Testator. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1026. If two Joint Executors have a Lease for Years, one of them may sell the Term without the other's Joining; because each is possessed of it as one Person in Right of the Testator; and this is the Reason why one of them cannot assign the Term to the other; and for which Cause one Joint Executor cannot cannot compel his Companion to account. Cro. Eliz. 347. Sid. 33. If one joint Executor gives an Acquittance or Release, the other is bound by it; as they are but one Executor to the Testator, wherefore each hath an Authority over the whole Estate. 2 Brownl. 183. Kelw. 23. But if a Release is procured of one joint Executor by Fraud, for a less Sum than due; Relief may be had in Equity: And joint Executors shall not be charged by the Acts of their Companions, any farther than they are actually possess'd of the Goods of the Testator. Moor 620. Cro. Eliz. 318. 2 Leon. 209. Tho' if joint Executors by Agreement among themselves, agree that each shall intermeddle with such a Part of the Testator's Estate; in this Case each of them shall be chargeable for the Whole by the Agreement, as to Receipts, &c. Hardr. 314. Also it has been decreed in Chancery, that if Two or more Executors join in a Receipt, and one of them only receives the Money; each of them is liable to the Whole as to Creditors at Law, but not as to Legatees, and those who claim Distribution, &c. 1 Salk. 318. Two Joint Executors cannot plead distinct Pleas, because their Testator, if Living, who was but one Person, on Action brought against him, could have but one Plea. Raym. 123. Where two joint Executors have commenc'd a Suit, and one of them dies pending the Action, it shall abate, tho' he so dying had been summoned and severed; the Law is the same where they are Defendants: And all the Executors are to be named in an Action brought by joint Executors, or the Action shall abate; but where one Executor is under Age, if it be specially set forth in the Declaration, it may be good, though he be not join'd in the Action. 2 Nelf. 1027. See Executors.

Joint Fines. Where a whole Vill is to be fined, a Joint Fine may be laid, and it will be good for the Necessity of it; but in other Cases, Fines for Offences are to be severally impos'd on each particular Offender, and not jointly upon all of them. 1 Roll. Rep. 33. 11 Rep. 42. Dyer 211.

Joint Indictments, May be sometimes had: If Offences of several Persons arise from a joint Criminal Act, without any Regard to any particular Personal Default or Defect of either of the Defendants; as the joint Keeping of a Gaming-house; or unlawful Hunting and carrying away Deer; or for Maintenance, Extortion, &c. an Indictment or Information may charge the Defendants jointly. 1 Vent. 302. 2 Hawk. P. C. 240. Where there are more Defendants than one in an Information, they may not exhibit a Joint Plea of Not guilty; but are to plead severally, that neither they, nor any of them are guilty, &c. 21 H. 6. 20. 2 Roll. Abr. 707.

Joint Lives. A Bond was made to a Woman Dum sola, to pay her so much yearly as long as she and the Obligor should live together, &c. Afterwards the Woman married, and Debt being brought on this Bond by Husband and Wife, the Defendant pleaded, that he and the Plaintiff's Wife did not live together; but it was adjudged that the Money should be paid during their joint Lives, so long as they were living at the same Time, &c. 1 Lutw. 555. And a Person, in Consideration of Receiving the Profits of the Wife's Lands on Marriage, during their joint Lives, was to pay a Sum of Money yearly, in Trust for the Wife; though it was not said every Year, &c. It was held, that the Payment shall be intended to continue every Year also during their joint Lives. 1 Lutw. 459. Lease for Years to Husband and Wife, if they or any Issue of their Bodies should so long live, has been adjudg'd so long as either the Husband, Wife, or any of their Issue should live; and not only so long as the Husband and Wife, &c. should jointly live. Moor 339. The Word Or may be taken disjunctively and distributively for either; when the Word And, which requires a Joining and Coupling, shall not.

Jointenants, (Simul Tenentes, or Qui conjunctim tenent) Are those that come to, and hold Lands or Tenements jointly by one Title: And these Jointenants must jointly plead, and be jointly sued and impleaded, which Property is common to them and Coparceners; but Jointenants have a sole and peculiar Quality of Survivorship, which Coparceners have not; for if there be two or three Jointenants, and one has Issue and dies, he, or those Jointenants that survive shall have the Whole. Litt. 277, 280. 1 Inst. 180. They are called Jointenants, not only because Lands are conveyed to them jointly by one and the same Title; but for that they take by Purchase only; whereas an Estate in Coparcenary is always by Descent. Ibid. Where a Man is seised of Lands and Tenements, and makes a Feoffment to Two or more, and their Heirs; or makes a Lease to them for Life; or where Two or more have a joint Estate in Possession, in a Chattel Real or Personal; or a joint Estate in a Debt, Duty, Covenant, Contract, &c. it is a Jointenancy, and the Part of him that dieth goeth not to his Heir or Executor, but the Whole to the Survivors or Survivor: But an Exception is to be made as to joint Merchants, for their Stock or Debts which they have in Partnership, which go to the Executor of him that dies, by the Law Merchant, and not the Survivor. Litt. 277, 281. 1 Inst. 181. If a Father make a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Lands to his Son, To hold to him and his Heirs, &c. to the Use of the Father and Son, and their Heirs and Assigns for ever, they are Jointenants. 2 Cro. 83. And if the Father devises Lands to his Eldest and other Sons, they are Jointenants and not Tenants in Common. Goldf. 28. Poph. 52. And a Man having only two Daughters, who were his Heirs, devised his Lands to them and their Heirs; and it was adjudged they were Jointenants, because they take in another Manner than what the Law would have given them, which would have been as Coparceners by Descent; but here the Survivor shall have the Whole. Cro. Eliz. 431. A Man devised Lands to his Wife for Life, and after her Death to his three Daughters, and the Heirs Males of their Bodies, &c. The Wife and two eldest Daughters died, and it was held that the surviving Daughter shall have the Whole for her Life; the three Sisters being Jointenants for Life, and several Tenants in Tail of the Inheritance. Lez 47. A Devise to Two jointly and severally is a Jointenancy. Poph. 52. Where Lands are devised to Two equally, and their Heirs, they are Jointenants; but if it had been to Two, equally to be divided between them, it generally makes a Tenancy in Common. 2 And. 17. But by Holt Ch. Just. the Words Equally to be divided, do not make a Tenancy in Common in a Deed, but a Jointenancy; tho' they might in a Will. 1 Salk. 390. And it is said a Term for Years or Goods devised to Two equally, makes a Tenancy in Common, and not not Jointenancy; but Lands devised to Two equally, makes a Jointenancy. 3 Cro. 697. 3 Salk. 205. A Devise to Two equally to be divided, Habendum to them and the Heirs of the Survivor is a Jointenancy. Style 211, 434. Lands given in the Premises of a Deed to Three, to hold to one for Life, Remainder to the other for Life, Remainder to the Third for Life, they are not Jointenants, but shall take successively. Dyer 160. There may be a Jointenancy, tho' there is not equal Benefit of Survivorship on both Sides. 1 Inst. 181. When a Fee-simple Estate is limited by a new Conveyance, there one may have the Fee and another an Estate for Life; but when two Persons are Tenants for Life first, and one of them gets the Fee-simple, there the Jointure is severed. 2 Rep. 6. If a Reversion descend upon one Jointenant, the Jointure is severed, and by Operation of Law they are then Tenants in Common. 1 Bullf. 113. And a Diversity has been taken, that where the Reversion comes to the Freehold, the Jointure is destroy'd; but where the Freehold comes to him in Reversion, and to another, it is otherwise. Cro. Eliz. 470, 743. If there be two Jointenants in Fee, and one makes a Lease for Life to a Stranger, the Freehold and Reversion is severed from the Jointure: But in Case one such Jointenant leases for Years, the Jointure of the Inheritance is not severed, but the other Jointenants shall have the Reversion by Survivorship. Lutw. 729, 1173. Two Jointenants are of a Lease for twenty-one Years, and one lets his Part but for three Years, the Jointure is severed, so that Survivorship shall not take Place. 1 Inst. 188, 192, 199. Where there are several Jointenants in Fee-tail, and some of them suffer a Common Recovery of the Whole, the Estate of the others is turn'd to a Right; and contingent Remainders may be destroy'd, and a new Estate gain'd thereby. Sid. 241. And if one Jointenant levies a Fine, it severs the Jointenancy; but it doth not amount to an actual Turning out of his Companion. 1 Salk. 286. A Jointenant in Fee makes a Lease for Years of the Land, to begin presently, or in futuro, and dies, it cannot be avoided by the Survivor. Litt. 286. And it has been held, that where a Jointenant in Fee or for Life, makes a Lease for Years to commence after his Death, it is good against the Survivor. 2 Cro. 91. 2 Nels. Abr. 1037. But it has been also adjudg'd not good. Moor 776. Noy 157. Where there are two Jointenants for Life, it is said each of them hath an Estate for his own Life, and for the Life of his Companion; and for that Reason, if one of them make a Lease, it shall continue not only during the Life of the Lessor, but after his Death during the Life of his Companion, as long as the original Estate out of which it was derived: Though it hath been resolv'd, that such a Jointenant hath only an Estate for his own Life, and a Possibility of Surviving his Companion to be entitled to his Part; and therefore if he grants over his Estate, that Possibility is gone, and if he dies, the Estate of the Grantee shall revert to him in Reversion. 1 Roll. 441. Jones 55. 3 Salk. 204, 205. If one Jointenant grants a Rent, &c. out of his Part, and dies, the Survivor shall have the whole Land discharged. Litt. 289. And if one Jointenant make a Lease for Years, reserving a Rent, and dieth, the Survivor shall have the Reversion but not the Rent, because he claims by Title paramount. 1 Inst. 185. Jointenants, as to the Possession of Lands in Jointure, are seised by Intireties of the Whole, and of every Part equally, (and the Possession of one Jointenant is the Possession of both) but as to the Right of the Land, they are seised only of Moieties, and therefore if one grant the Whole, a Moiety only passeth. 1 Bullf. 3. Cro. Eliz. 809. Jointenants cannot singly dispose of more than the Part that belongs to them; where they join in a Feoffment, in Judgment of Law each of them gives but his respective Part; and so it is of a Gift in Tail, Lease for Life, &c. And for a Condition broken, they shall only enter on a Moiety of the Lands. 1 Inst. 186. Every Jointenant hath a Right as to his own Share, to several Purposes, as to give, lease, forfeit, &c. But a Devise of Land, whereof the Devisor is jointly seised, is void; the Will not taking Effect 'till after Death, and the Title of the Survivor cometh by the Death. 1 Inst. 186. Litt. 287. One Jointenant may lease to his Companion, or make him his Bailiff. 3 Leon. 352. But one Jointenant cannot make a Feoffment, or grant to another Jointenant; though he may release. 1 Ventr. 78. Raym. 187. By whatever Means one Jointenant comes to the Estate of his Companion, by Conveyance, &c. from him, it may enure by Way of Release. 2 Cro. 695. Action of Trespass or Trover may not be brought by one Jointenant against his Companion, because the Possession of the one is the Possession of the other. 1 Salk. 290. Before the Stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 16. one Jointenant had no Remedy against his Companion to recover Damages for what he had received more than his Share; and a Jointenant might prejudice his Companion in the Personality, by Reason of the Privy and Trust between them, though not in the Reality; but that Statute gives Action of Account to one Jointenant or Tenant in Common, his Executors or Administrators, against the other as Bailiff or Receiver, his Executors, &c. One Jointenant may distrain for Rent alone; and he may avow in his own Right, and as Bailiff to the others, but he cannot avow solely; and he may not bring Debt alone. 5 Mod. 73, 150. If a Jointenant in Fee-simple is indebted to the King, and dieth; the Lands can't be extended in the Hands of the Survivor, who claimeth not from his Companion, but from the Feoffor, &c. 1 Inst. 185. Where there are two Jointenants, and one is indebted to the King, and dieth, the other shall hold the Land discharged of the Debt: But if Husband and Wife purchase a Term jointly, and the Husband is indebted to the King, and dieth, in such Case the Term shall be subject to the Debt, because the Husband might have disposed of the whole Estate. Plov. 321. Judgment in Action of Debt is had against one Jointenant for Life, who before Execution releases to his Companion; adjudg'd that the Moiety is still liable to the Judgment during the Life of the Releasor; but if he had died before Execution, the Survivor should have had the Land discharged of the Debt and Judgment. 6 Rep. 78. Husband and Wife were Jointenants, and Action was brought against the Husband alone, who made Default; thereupon the Wife prayed to be received; but it was not allow'd, because she was not Party to the Writ; but he in Reversion may be received, and plead Jointenancy in Abatement of the Writ. Moor 242. If a Feme Sole and A. B. purchase a Term for Years jointly, and afterwards they intermarry, the Jointenancy continues. Dyer 318. 2 Nels. Abr. 1035. And where there there are two Women Jointenants of a Lease for Years, and one taketh Husband, and dies, the Term shall survive; if the Husband hath not alienated her Part, and severed the Jointure: But it is otherwise in Case of Personal Goods, vested in the Husband by Marriage. 1 Inst. 185. If a Jointenant doth not alienate his Part, to bar the Survivorship; Jointenants sometimes enter into Covenants not to take Advantage of each other by Survivorship. Wood's Inst. 148. When there are two Jointenants, and one aliens his Part, the Alienee and the other Jointenant are Tenants in Common; for they claim by several Titles. Litt. 292, 319, 321. And Jointenants and Tenants in Common of Inheritance, by Statute are to make Partition, as Coparceners; also Jointenants and Tenants in Common for Life or Years, may be compelled to do the same by Writ of Partition, &c. 31 H. 8. c. 1. 32 H. 8. c. 32. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 31.

The King cannot be Jointenant with any Person, because none can be equal with him. 1 Inst. 1. Finch 83. And a Corporation cannot be jointly seised of any Estate with another. 2 Lev. 12.

Jointures of Lands. A Jointure is a Settlement of Lands and Tenements made to a Woman in Consideration of Marriage, for Term of Life: It is so called, either because it is granted Ratione Junctura in Matrimonio, or for that Land in Frank-Marriage was given jointly to Husband and Wife, and after to the Heirs of their Bodies, whereby the Husband and Wife were made as it were Jointenants during the Coverture. 3 Rep. 27. By some a Jointure is defined to be a Bargain and Contract of Livelihood, adjoined to the Contract of Marriage; being a competent Livelihood of Freehold Lands or Tenements, &c. for the Wife, to take Effect after the Death of the Husband, if she her self is not the Cause of the Determination or Forfeiture of it. 1 Inst. 36. 4 Rep. 2, 3. And to the Making of a perfect Jointure within the Statute 27 H. 8. c. 10. to bar Dower, several Things are to be observ'd: 1. It must be made to take Effect for the Life of the Wife in Possession or Profit, presently after the Decease of her Husband. 2. It is to be for the Term of her own Life, or a greater Estate; but it may be limited to continue no longer than she remains a Widow, &c. 3. It must be made for her self, and to none other in Trust for her. 4. It is to be express'd to be in Satisfaction of her whole Dower, and not a Part of it. 5. It may be made before or after Marriage: If it be made before, the Wife cannot waive it, and claim her Dower at Common Law; but if it be made after Marriage, she may, at the Husband's Death; unless the Jointure be made by Act of Parliament. 1 Inst. 36. 4 Rep. 1. All other Settlements in Lieu of Jointure, not made according to the Statute, are Jointures at Common Law, and no Bars to Claim of Dower: And a Jointure was no Bar of Dower before this Statute; as a Right or Title to a Freehold cannot be barred by Acceptance of a collateral Satisfaction, tho' Dower may be released, &c. 1 Inst. 36. A Father made a Settlement to the Use of himself for Life, and afterwards to the Use of his Son and his Wife, for their Lives, for the Jointure of the Wife; this was adjudg'd no Jointure, to bar the Wife of her Dower, because it might not commence immediately after the Death of the Husband, who might die in the Life-time of the Father. 2 Cro. 489. So if a Feoffment be made to the Use of the Husband for Life, Remainder to another for Years, Remainder to the Wife for Life for her Jointure. Ibid. But a Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition that the Feoffee should make another Feoffment to the Use of the Son of the Feoffor, and to his the Son's Wife in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Feoffor, which Feoffment is made accordingly; this is a good Jointure within the Statute, and Bar to the Dower of the Wife. Moor 28. An Estate settled in Jointure, coming from the Ancestors of the Wife, and not of the Purchase of the Husband or his Ancestors, is not within the Statute 11 H. 7. as to Discontinuances, Alienations, &c. Where a Father of the intended Wife, in Consideration of Marriage, &c. covenanted to assure Lands to the Husband and Wife, his, the Covenantor's Daughter, and the Heirs of her Body, &c. this was held no Jointure, within the Meaning of the Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. being an Advancement of the Woman by her own Father. 2 Cro. 264. 2 Lill. Abr. 80. And an Estate in Fee-simple convey'd to a Woman for her Jointure, was not any Jointure within that Statute; which never extended to Lands granted to Women in Fee: But an Estate in Fee, conveyed to a Woman for her Jointure, and in Satisfaction of her Dower, is a Jointure within the Statute 27 H. 8. 4 Rep. 3. Yet an Estate for Life is the usual Jointure: And an Estate for Life upon Condition, may bar the Wife if she accepts it; as a Jointure to a Woman on Condition to perform the Husband's Will, was judg'd good, where the Wife enter'd and agreed to the Estate. 3 Rep. 1, 2, &c. If no Inheritance is reserv'd to the Husband and his Heirs, but the Estate is limited to the Wife for Life, or in Tail, the Remainder to a Stranger; it is not a Jointure within the Stat. 11 H. 7. tho' made by the Husband or his Ancestor. Cro. Eliz. 2. A Husband covenanted to stand seised of Lands, to the Use of himself and his Heirs, 'till the Marriage should take Effect; and afterwards to himself, his Wife, and their Heirs; and it was adjudg'd a good Jointure within the Statute 27 H. 8. Dyer 248. A Devise to a Wife for Life, or in Tail, for her Jointure, is good within this Statute: But a Devise to a Wife generally, without expressing what Estate, is not good; because it cannot be averred to be for her Jointure. 3 Rep. 1. Tho' where an Assurance was made to a Woman, and it was not express'd to be made for her Jointure; it was held it might be averr'd to be made for that Purpose, which is not traversable. Owen 33. If a Master, in Consideration of Service done by his Servant, grants Lands to the Servant and a Woman he intends to marry, and the Heirs of their Bodies, creating an Estate-tail; this is not a Jointure, not being a Gift of the Husband, or any of his Ancestors, but of his Master, and in Consideration of Service, which will not make the Husband such a Purchaser as the Law requires. Moor 683. But as to Considerations, if an Estate is settled in Jointure upon a Woman, in Consideration of Money paid, and also of a Marriage to be had; the Marriage shall be look'd upon to be the Consideration. Cro. Fac. 474. A Husband, Tenant in Tail, Remainder to his Wife for Life, makes a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself and his Wife for Life, for her Jointure; it is no Bar to the Wife's Dower, because it may be avoided by a Reverter to her first Estate for Life. Moor 872. If Lands are conveyed to a Woman before Marriage, in Part of her Jointure only, and after Mar-

Marriage other Lands are granted in full; it is said she may waive and refuse the Lands convey'd to her after Coverture, and retain her first Jointure Lands and Dower also. 3 Rep. 1. 5. 2 Nels. Abr. 1039. Where a Jointure is made of Lands, according to the Direction of the Statute of H. 8. before Coverture, and after the Husband and Wife alien them by Fine, she shall not have Dower in any other Lands of her Husband; but 'tis otherwise where the Jointure is made after Marriage, when the Wife's Estate is waivable, and her Election of choosing comes not 'till the Death of the Husband. 1 Inst. 36. After the Death of the Husband, the Wife may enter into her Jointure, and is not driven to a real Action, as she is to recover Dower by the Common Law; and upon a lawful Eviction of her Jointure, she shall be endow'd according to the Rate of her Husband's Lands, whereof she was dowable at Common Law. 1 Inst. 37. Stat. 27 H. 8. If she be evicted of Part of her Jointure, she shall have Dower pro tanto. A Wife's Jointure shall not be forfeited by the Treason of the Husband: But Feme Coverts committing Treason or Felony, may incur a Forfeiture of their Jointures; and being convict of Recusancy, they forfeit two Parts in Three of their Jointures and Dower, by Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 4. If a Woman conceals her Jointure, and brings Dower and recovers it, and then sets up her Jointure, she is barr'd of her Jointure; and by bringing Writ of Dower for her Thirds, the Wife waives the Benefit of Entry into Lands, so as to hold them in Jointure. Cro. Eliz. 128, 137. 3 Rep. 5. See Marriage.

Jointress or Jointress, Is she who hath an Estate settled on her by the Husband, to hold during her Life, if she survives him. 27 H. 8. c. 10. 1 Inst. 46. Where Estates settled on a Wife are a Jointure, if the Jointress makes any Alienation of them by Fine, Feoffment, &c. with another Husband, it is a Forfeiture of the same; but if they are not a Jointure by Law, it is otherwise. 2 Nels. 1040. A Jointress within the Statute may make a Lease for forty Years, &c. if she so long live; and also for Life, and be no Forfeiture, though she levies a Fine Sur Cognissance de Droit, &c. Cro. Fac. 688. 3 Rep. 50. 1 Lill. 81. In other Cases, if she levy a Fine, it is a Forfeiture; and if a Jointress within the Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. suffer a Recovery covinously to bar the Heir, the Heir may enter presently, &c. 2 Leon. 206. 1 Plowd. 42.

Journal, Is a Day-Book or Diary of Transactions, used in many Cases: As by Merchants and other Trademen in their Accounts; by Mariners in Observations at Sea, &c.

Journals of Parliament, Are not Records, but Remembrances, and have been of no long Continuance. Hob. Rep. 109.

Journchoppers, Were Regrators of Yarn, which formerly perhaps was called Journ: They are mentioned in the Stat. 8 H. 6. c. 5.

Journeyman, (From the Fr. Journée, i. e. A Day, or Day's Work) Was properly one that wrought with another by the Day; though it is extended by Statute to those also that covenant to work with others in their Trades or Occupations by the Year. 5 Eliz. c. 4.

Journeys Accounts, (Dieta computata) Is a Term in the Law thus understood; if a Writ abates by the Death of the Plaintiff or Defendant, or for false Latin, Want of Form, &c. the Plaintiff shall have a new Writ by Journeys Ac- counts, i. e. within as little Time as he possibly can after the Abatement of the first Writ; and this second Writ shall be a Continuance of the Cause, as if the first Writ had not been abated. Terms de Ley 414. When the new Writ is purchased, which must be recenter, the Plaintiff is to recite in an Entry upon the Roll, that the former Writ was abated, and shew for what: Super quo per Dietas Computat. recenter tulit quoddam aliud Breve, &c. 6 Rep. 10. This Writ is to be brought presently; and fifteen Days is held a convenient Time for the Purchase of the new Writ. 2 Lill. Abr. 83. 1 Lutw. 297. Judicial Writs shall never be had by Journeys Accounts; because they never abate for Form. 6 Rep. 10. The Abatement of the Writ must be without the Default of the Plaintiff, or a second Writ may not be purchas'd by Journeys Accounts: If a Writ abates for the Plaintiff's Default, in his Mistaking the Name of the Vill, &c. he shall not have Writ of Journeys Accounts; but where it abates by Default of the Clerk, for False Latin, Variance, or Want of Form, in such Case he may have it. 6 Rep. 10. And when an Outlawry is discharged or reversed, the Plaintiff may have Writ of Journeys Accounts; for there is no Default in him. Cro. Fac. 590. The Writ must be brought for the same Thing, and in the same Court as the first Writ.

Ipso facto, Is where the same Person obtains Two or more Preferments in the Church with Cure, not qualified by Dispensation, &c. the first Living is void ipso facto, viz. without any declaratory Sentence, and the Patron may present to it. Dyer 275. And there is not only Deprivation of Clergymen ipso facto; but for Crimes in striking Persons in a Church or Church-yard, the Offenders are to be excommunicated ipso facto. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 4. An Estate or Lease may be ipso facto void by Condition, &c. 1 Inst. 45, 215.

Ireland, Is a distinct Kingdom from England, but subordinate to it in Government; and by Poyning's Law enacted in Ireland, anno 10 Hen. 7. all the Statutes of England, 'till that Time were declared in Force in Ireland; and by special Words our Statutes still may bind the People of Ireland, notwithstanding they have Parliaments of their own, who make Laws and Statutes, being affirm'd here by the King and his Council. 1 Inst. 141. 2 Inst. 2. 3 Inst. 18. Treason committed in Ireland by an Irish Peer, is not triable in England because he is entitled to a Trial by his Peers, which cannot be in England, but Ireland. Dyer 360. But the King's Bench here may reverse a Judgment given in B. R. in Ireland, by directing a Writ of Error to the Chief Justice there, to summon the Party to appear here, &c. And the House of Lords of England have Power to reverse or affirm the Decrees of the Court of Chancery, &c. of Ireland. By Statute 17 Ed. 1. c. 1. No Pardon for the Death of a Person, or for Felony, shall be granted by the Justices of Ireland, but at the King's Command, and under his Seals. By 34 Ed. 3. c. 18. all Kinds of Merchandizes may be exported and imported from and to Ireland, by Aliens as well as Denizens: But Wool, and Woollen Manufactures, &c. are prohibited to be exported from thence into foreign Parts by a Modern Statute. By the 32 Car. 2. c. 2. Cattle, Butter, Cheese, &c. are not to be imported from Ireland into this Kingdom, on on Pain of Forfeiture to the Poor. By 3 W. & M. cap. 2. Members of Parliament, Officers in the Government, Ecclesiastical Persons, Lawyers, &c. in Ireland, are to take the Oaths, or be liable to Forfeitures. The Stat. 1 Ann. cap. 32. ordains, that Persons educated in the Popish Religion in Ireland of eighteen Years of Age, shall take the Oaths, or be disabled to take Lands by Discent, &c. And by 6 Geo. cap. 5. the Jurisdiction of the House of Lords in Ireland to reverse Judgments or Decrees given in the Courts of that Kingdom, was wholly taken away.

Irishmen, Coming to live in England, by an ancient Statute were to give Security for their good Behaviour. 2 Hen. 6. c. 8.

Irregularity, (Irregularitas) Signifies Disorder, or going out of Rule: And in the Canon Law, it is used for an Impediment to the Taking of Holy Orders; as where a Man is base born, notoriously defamed of any Crime, where he is maimed, or much deformed in Body, &c.

Irrepleviable or Irreplevisable, That neither may nor ought to be replevied, or delivered on Sureties. 13 Ed. 1. c. 2. It is against the Nature of a Distress for Rent, to be Irreplevisable. 1 Inst. 145.

Isle, (Insula) Is Land inclosed in and inviron'd with the Sea, or fresh Water. There are several Islands belonging to England; as the Isles of Jersey and Guernsey, Isle of Man, &c. The Isles of Jersey and Guernsey are not bound by our Acts of Parliament, except they are specially named; nor do our original Writs run into those Islands: But the King's Commission under the Great Seal runs there, to redress any Injuries or Wrongs; yet the Commissioners must judge according to the Laws and Customs of those Isles: And for Controversies arising in Law, among the King's Subjects in the Isles of Jersey and Guernsey, &c. the King and his Privy Council are the proper Judges, without Appeal. 4 Inst. 286, 287. Wood's Inst. 2. 458. The Isle of Man is a distinct Territory from England, and out of the Power of our Chancery, or of Original Writs which issue from thence; it has been granted by Letters Patent under the Great Seal to divers Subjects, and their Heirs, and hath peculiar Laws and Customs: And in the Case of the Earl of Derby, it was adjudged, that no Man had any Inheritance in this Isle, but the Earl and the Bishop; and that they are governed by Laws of their own, so that no Statute made in England did bind there without express Words, in the same Manner as in Ireland. 1 Inst. 9. 4 Inst. 284. 7 Rep. 21. 2 And. 115. An Island in the Sea that has no Owner, by the Law of Nations belongs to him that first finds it. Fustin. Inst. lib. 2. See Plantations.

Issue, (Exitus, from the Fr. Issuer, i. e. Emanare) Hath divers Significations in Law, as sometimes it is taken for the Children begotten between a Man and his Wife; sometimes for Profits growing from Amerciaments and Fines; and sometimes for Profits of Land and Tenements: But it generally signifies the Point of Matter, issuing out of the Allegations and Pleas of the Plaintiff and Defendant in a Cause, to be tried by a Jury of twelve Men. 1 Inst. 126. 11 Rep. 10. The Issues concerning Causes, are of two Kinds; upon Matter of Fact, or Matter of Law: An Issue in Fact is where the Plaintiff and Defendant have agreed upon a Point to be tried by a Jury; and Issue in Law is where there is a Demurrer to a Declaration, Plea, &c. and a Joinder in Demurrer, which is an Issue at Law to be determined by the Judges. 1 Inst. 71, 72. As to Issues of Fact, viz. whether the Fact is true or false, which are triable by the Jury, they are either General or Special; General, when it is left to the Jury to try whether the Defendant hath done any such Thing as the Plaintiff lays to his Charge; as when he pleads Not guilty to a Trespass, &c. Special is when some special Matter, or material Point alledged by the Defendant in his Defence, is to be tried; as in Assault and Battery, where the Defendant pleads that the Plaintiff struck first, &c. 1 Inst. 126. And when special Matter is alledged by the Defendant, both Parties join thereupon, and so go to a Trial by the Jury, if it be Quæstio facti; or to a Demurrer, if it be Quæstio juris. There is also a General Issue, wherein the Defendant may give the special Matter in Evidence, for Excuse or Justification, by Virtue of several Statutes, made for avoiding Prolixity and Captiousness of Pleading; and upon the General Issue in such Cases, the Defendant may give any Thing in Evidence, which proves the Plaintiff hath no Cause of Action. 1 Inst. 283. Matter amounting to the General Issue, and special Matter of Justification, have been joined in one entire Plea, and held good. 3 Lev. 41. And where there is an Issue upon Not guilty, and there are other Issues upon Justifications, the Trial of the General Issue of Not guilty is but Matter of Form, and the Substance is upon the special Matter. Cro. Jac. 599. In real Actions, Causes grown to Issue are tried by a Jury of Twelve Men of the County where the Cause of Action arises; and in criminal Cases, Issues ought to be tried in the County where the Offence was committed; but this hath admitted of some Alteration by Statute. 3 Inst. 80, 135. 2 Rep. 93. The Place ought not to be made Part of the Issue, in a transitory Action; it is not material as it is in Real and Mixt Actions. Trin. 24 Car. B. R. If the Place is material, and made a Part of the Issue, there the Jury cannot find the Fact in another Place, because by the special Pleading, the Point in Issue is restrained to a certain Place; but upon the General Issue pleaded, the Jury may find all local Things in another County; and where the Substance of the Issue is found it is good, and the Finding more may be Surplusage. 6 Rep. 46. If an Issue is of two Matters in two Counties, Trial may be in one County by the Stat. 21 Jac. for that Statute extends to Cases where the Matter in Issue arises in two Counties, and the Trial is by one only, as well as where the Matter in Issue arises in two Places in one County, and the Trial is by one. 2 Lev. 121. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1050. Every Issue is to be joined in such a Court that hath Power to try it, otherwise the Issue is not well joined; for if the Cause cannot be tried, the Issue is fruitless; and if it be tried, the Trial is coram non Judice. 21 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 84. Where an Issue is not joined, there cannot be a good Trial, nor ought Judgment to be given. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1042. All Issues are to be certain and single, and join'd upon the most material Thing in the Cause; that all the Matter in Question between the Parties may be tried. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 85. An immaterial Issue joined, which will not bring the Matter in Question to be tried, is not helped after Verdict by the Statute of Jeofails; but there must be a Repleader: But an unformal Issue is helped. 18 Car. 2. B. R. The Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 30. helps Misjoining of Issues. A Repleader may be awarded after Verdict, for the Badness and Incertainty of the Issue: And a Judgment may be reversed in Error, being on an immaterial Issue. 2 Lutw. 1608. 2 Lev. 194. On a joint Trespass by many Persons, there must be only one Issue joined: And if several Offences are alledged against the Defendant, he ought to take all but one by Protestation, and offer an Issue upon that one, and no more. Moor 80. If two Negatives are pleaded, it is no good Issue. 3 Lev. 19. But in Action for Damages, according to the Loss which the Plaintiff hath sustained, every Part ought to be put in Issue. 1 Saund. 269. In Action upon the Case for Service done for a Time certain, the Defendant ought to put in Issue all the Time alledged in the Declaration. 2 Lutw. 268. Upon a General Issue in Waste, the Plaintiff must shew his Title. Ibid. 1547. When any special Point is in Issue, the Plaintiff is not obliged to set forth any other Matter. Cro. Eliz. 320. If there are several Things in a Declaration, upon which an Issue may be joined, and 'tis joined in any of them, it is good; and an Affirmative and an implied Negative will make a good Issue. Style 151, 210. There must be in every Issue an Affirmation on the one Part, as that the Defendant owes such a Debt, &c. and a Denial on the other Part, as that he oweth not the Debt, &c. And though Matter is contradictory, there must be a Negative and Affirmative of it, to make an Issue. 1 Ventr. 213. Also a Negative should be as broad and full as the Affirmative, or it is no Negative to make an Issue; as if a Defendant pleads a Grant of four Acres, and two Acres only are denied, &c. 1 Roll. Rep. 86. It has been held, that Issue ought not to be joined on a Traverse, but on an Affirmative and Negative. 2 And. 6. But where the Matter which is the Gift or Cause of the Action is found, it has been adjudged good after Verdict, though there was no Negative and Affirmative to make the Issue; as where in Debt upon Bond the Defendant pleads Payment, and concludes to the Country, without giving the Plaintiff Opportunity to deny the Payment, if the Jury in such Case find the Money paid, it is good after Verdict. Sid. 341. If several Issues are joined, and the Jury give a Verdict but as to one of them, the Whole is discontinued: And where there are two Issues joined, one good and the other bad, if entire Damages are given upon the Trial on both Issues, it will be Error; but if several Damages are found, the Plaintiff may release the bad Damages, and have Judgment for the Rest. 2 Lill. Abr. 87, 88. And it is said Judgment may be entered as to one Part of the Issue; and a Nolle prosequi to another Part of the same Issue, where it may be divided. Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. There may be a Plea to Issue to Part, and a Demurrer to Part; which have no Dependence on each other. 1 Saund. 338. Where the Declaration of the Plaintiff is good, and the Plea of the Defendant is ill; if the Plaintiff in his Replication tender an Issue upon such ill Plea, and a Trial is had, and it is found for the Plaintiff, he shall have Judgment. Cro. Car. 18. And when a Plea is naught, that the Plaintiff might have demurred upon it, and he doth not, but takes Issue, and it is found for the Defendant; this is aided by the Statute of Jeofails, and the Defendant shall have Judgment: So likewise where the Replication is naught, and Issue is taken upon it, and found for the Plaintiff, he shall have Judgment. Cro. Eliz. 455. Cro. Jac. 312. If Issue be taken on a dilatory Plea, &c. and found against the Defendant, final and peremptory Judgment shall be given; but it is otherwise upon a Demurrer. Raym. 118. A good Issue is offered to the Defendant, he ought not to plead over; and if he pleads over, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment. 1 Saund. 338, 318. If he does not join Issue, but demurs, it is the same. Lutw. A Plea being pleaded to the Plaintiff's Declaration, and the Plaintiff's Attorney's Hand set to it, then the Issue is joined between the Plaintiff and Defendant, and not before: And the Plaintiff's Attorney is also to be paid by the Defendant's Attorney for entering the Plea; and for Paper-Books, in special Pleadings, &c. 2 Lill. 87, 88. And when Issue is joined between the Parties, it cannot be afterwards waved, if it be a good Issue, without the Consent of both Parties: But where the Defendant pleads the General Issue, and it is not entered, he may within four Days of the Term wave that Issue, and plead specially; and where the Defendant pleads in Abatement, he may at any Time after wave his Plea of special Matter, and plead the General Issue, unless there be a Rule made for him to plead as he will stand by it. 12 W. 3. B. R. 3 Salk. 211. If the Plaintiff neglects to enter the Issue, the Term it is joined, the Defendant in the first five Days of the next Term, may alter his Plea de novo: And if the Plaintiff will not try the Issue after joined, in such Time as he ought by the Course of the Cause, the Defendant may give him a Rule to enter it; which if he do not, he shall be nonsuit, &c. 2 Lill. 84. If the Tender of the Issue comes on the Part of the Plaintiff, the Form of it is, Et hoc petit Inquiratur per Recordum or per Patriam; and when on the Part of the Defendant, Et de hoc Ponit se super Patriam, &c.

Issues on Sheriffs, Are for Neglects and Defaults, by Amercement and Fine to the King, levied out of the Issues and Profits of their Lands; and double or treble Issues may be laid on a Sheriff for not returning Writs, &c. But they may be taken off before estreated into the Exchequer, by Rule of Court, on good Reason shewn. 2 Lill. Abr. 89. Issues shall be levied on Furors, for Non-appearance; though on reasonable Excuse proved by two Witnesses, the Justices may discharge the Issues. Stat. 35 Hen. 8. cap. 6.

Itinerant, (Itinerans) Travelling, or taking a Journey: And those were anciently called Justices Itinerant, who were sent with Commission into divers Counties, to hear Causes.

Jubilee, (Annus Jubilæus) The most solemn Time of Festival at Rome, when the Pope gives his Blessing and Remission of Sins. It was first instituted by Boniface the 8th, in the Year 1300, who granted a plenary Indulgence and Remission of Sins to all those which should visit the Churches of St. Peter and St. Paul at Rome in that Year, and stay there fifteen Days; and this he ordered to be observed once in every hundred Years: Which Pope Clement the 6th reduced to fifty Years, Anno 1350. and to be held upon the Day of Circumcision of our Saviour: And Urban the 4th in the Year 1389. ordained it to be

be kept every Thirty-three Years, that being the Age of our Saviour: After which, Pope Sixtus the 6th reduced it to Twenty-five Years. In Imitation of the Grand Jubilee of Rome, the Monks of Christ-Church in Canterbury, every fiftieth Year invited a great Concourse of People to come thither, and visit the Tomb of Thomas Becket. And King Edw. 2. in the fiftieth Year of his Age, which was 1362. caused his Birthday to be observed at Court, in the Nature of a Jubilee; giving Pardons, Privileges, and other civil Indulgences.

Jubileus. Because when the Jubilee was first instituted, it was ordered to be kept every hundred Years; therefore Jubileus signified afterwards a Man one hundred Years old; and likewise a Possession or Prescription for fifty Years, &c.

Judaism, (Judaismus) The Custom, Religion, or Rites of the Jews: Also the Income heretofore accruing from the Jews to the King; and the Word Judaism was formerly used for a Mortgage; and it sometimes signifies Usury. 9 E. 2.

Judge, (Judex) Is a Chief Magistrate in the Law, to try Civil and Criminal Causes, and punish Offences. He is appointed with a certain Jurisdiction; and our King hath the Nomination and Appointment of Judges. 1 Inst. 56. A Judge at his Creation takes an Oath, That he will serve the King, and indifferently minister Justice to all Men, without denying Right to any; and this he shall not forbear to do, though the King by his Letters, or by express Words command the contrary, &c. and he is answerable in Body, Lands and Goods. 18 Ed. 3. c. 1. Judex est Lex Loquens, and ought to judge by Laws, and not by Examples: And by Glanvil a Judge is called Justitia in abstracto, because he should be as it were Justice it self. Co. Lit. 71. 7 Rep. 4. And all the Commissions of Judges are bounded with this Limitation. Facturi quod ad Justitiam pertinet secundum Legem & Consuetudinem Angliae. Judges have not Power to judge according to that which they think fit; but that which by Law they know to be right: Judex bonus nihil ex arbitrio suo faciat, nec proposito Domestica voluntatis, sed juxta Leges & Fura pronunciat. 7 Rep. 27. They are to give Judgment according to Law, and what is alledged and proved: And they have a private Knowledge, and a judicial Knowledge, though they cannot judge of their private Knowledge, but may use their Discretion; but where a Judge has a judicial Knowledge, he may and ought to give Judgment according to it. Plowd. 82. King Hen. 4. demanded of Judge Gascoigne, if he saw one in his Presence kill A. B. and another Person who was not culpable, should be indicted of this, and found Guilty before him, what he would do in this Case? To which he answered, That he ought to respite the Judgment against him, and relate the Matter to the King, in order to procure him a Pardon; for there he cannot acquit him, and give Judgment according to his private Knowledge. Ibid. And the same King Hen. when his eldest Son the Prince, was by the Lord Chief Justice committed to Prison, for a great Misdemeanor, thank'd God that he had a Son of that Obedience, and a Judge of that Courage and Impartiality. Stow. The King in all Cases doth judge by his Judges; who ought to be of Counsel with Prisoners, and if they are doubtful or mistaken in Matter of Law, a Stander-by may be allowed to inform the Court, as Amicus

Curia. 2 Inst. 178. Our Judges are to execute their Offices in proper Person, and cannot act by Deputy, or transfer their Power to others; as the Judges of Ecclesiastical Courts may. 1 Roll. Abr. 382. Bro. Judges 11. Yet where there are divers Judges of a Court of Record, the Act of any one of them is effectual; especially if their Commission do not expressly require more. 2 Hawk. 3. Though what a Majority rules when present, is the Act of the Court. No Judge of any Court is compellable to deliver his Opinion before Hand, in Relation to any Question which may after come judicially before him. 3 Inst. 29. Judges of the Common Law, have no ordinary Jurisdiction to examine Witnesses at their Chambers; tho' by Consent of Parties, and Rule of Court, they may on Interrogatories; and some Things done by Judges at their Chambers, in Order to Proceedings in Court, are accounted as done by the Court. They are to have a Paper of the Causes, which are to be spoken to in Court, sent to them by the Attornies the Day before spoken to, that they may be prepared; and where special and doubtful Matter arises upon reading the Record of a Cause, so that the Judges are not for the Present satisfied of the Law, they will order Paper-Books to be made and delivered them, by the Attornies on both Sides, containing Copies of the Record, that they may the better consider of the Matters in Dispute. 2 Lill. Abr. 90, 91. A Judge shall not be generally excepted against, or challenged; or have any Action brought against him, for what he does as Judge. 1 Inst. 294. 2 Inst. 422. And to kill a Judge of either Bench, or of Assize, &c. in his Place administering Justice, is Treason: Also drawing a Weapon only upon a Judge, in any of the Courts of Justice, the Offender shall lose his Right-hand, forfeit his Lands and Goods, and suffer perpetual Imprisonment. 25 Ed. 3. cap. 2. 2 Inst. 549. Judges are not in any Way punishable for a mere Error of Judgment. 2 Hawk. 4. The Judges of Courts of Record are freed from all Prosecutions whatsoever, except in the Parliament where they may be punished, for any Thing done by them in such Courts as Judges; this is to support their Dignity and Authority, and draw Veneration to their Persons, and Submission to their Judgments: But if a Judge will so far forget the Dignity and Honour of his Post, as to turn Solicitor in a Cause which he is to judge, and privately and extrajudicially tamper with Witnesses, or labour Jurors, he may be dealt with according to the same Capacity to which he so basely degrades himself. 12 Rep. 24. Vaugh. 138. S. P. C. 173. Bribery in Judges is a very high Offence, punishable by Loss of Office, Fine and Imprisonment; and at Common Law, Bribery of Judges in Relation to a Cause depending before them, was sometimes punished as High Treason. 1 Leon. 295. Cro. Jac. 65. 1 Hawk. 170. If a Judge who hath no Jurisdiction of the Cause, give Judgment of Death, and award Execution, which is executed, such Judge is guilty of Felony; and also the Officer who executes the Sentence. H. P. C. 35. 10 Rep. 76. And if Justices of Peace, on Indictment of Trespas, arraign a Man of Felony, and judge him to Death, and he is executed, it is Felony in them. H. P. C. 35. Dalt. cap. 98. A Judge ought not to judge in his own Cause, or in Pleas where he is Party. 8 Rep. 118. And no one shall be Judge of Assize in the County where born, or he doth inhabit, under the Penalty of 100 l. by Statute; but this is not to prejudice any Judge in the Courts at Westminster, in hearing and determining Assises in those Courts. 18 Ed. 3.

Judger. In Cheshire, to be Judger of a Town, is to serve on the Jury there. Leicester's Hist. Antiq. 302.

Judgment, (Judicium, quasi Juris dictum) Is the Determination or Sentence of the Court upon the Suit, &c. And the ancient Words of Judgments are, Consideratum est, &c. because Judgment is ever given by the Court upon due Consideration had of the Record and Matter before them. 1 Inst. 39. Of Judgments some are final, and some not, &c. A Judgment may be given not only upon Trial of the Issue, but by Default, Nihil dicit, Confession or Demurrer; and Outlawry is a Judgment in it self. 1 Inst. 167. 2 Inst. 236. Finch 457. There is likewise Judgment for Departing in Despite of the Court, without Leave, in common Recoveries, &c. And after an Issue joined to be tried by the Plaintiff and Defendant, the Plaintiff may if he will without going to Trial, accept of a Judgment from the Defendant, without any Verdict in the Cause, which Judgment must be by Relicta Verificatione cognovit actionem: But on this Judgment Error may be brought without putting in of Bail, which it may not on Judgment after Verdict. 2 Lill. Abr. 104. Judgment is sometimes had with a cessat Executio; and if the Defendant gives a Judgment, with Stay of Execution, till a certain Day, the Plaintiff may notwithstanding sue forth a Capias or Fieri facias into the County where the Action is laid, returnable before the Day, to enable him at that Day to take a Testatum against the Defendant; though he shall not in that Case sue out a Capias to warrant a Scire facias against the Bail. Pasch. 22 Car. 2. If Debt be brought against an Executor upon the Bond of the Testator, and he pleads Plene Administravit, this is a Confession of the Debt; and the Plaintiff may have Judgment with a Cessat Executio till the Defendant hath Assets. 4 Rep. 2 Nels. Abr. 1052. On Interlocutory Judgments, upon dilatory Pleas, it is in many Cases Respondeat Ouster, to answer over; and if the Plaintiff or Defendant die after interlocutory Judgment, the Action shall not abate. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 10. Judgment upon a Demurrer, to a Declaration, &c. is no Bar to any other Action; because it is not on the Merits, and the Plaintiff may afterwards make his Declaration right, and then proceed. 2 Lill. 113. But other Judgments may be pleaded in Bar to any other Action for the same Causes; and Judgment in an inferior Court, may be alledged in Bar to an Action in a superior Court. 2 Lev. 93. A Judgment on Nihil dicit, in Case, Trespass, or Covenant, &c. is not a perfect Judgment until Writ of Enquiry of Damages taken out and executed upon it; of which Notice is to be given the Defendant, and the Time of Execution, &c. But in Debt, it is a perfect Judgment as soon as signed, &c. and there needs no Writ of Enquiry. 2 Lill. 105. Where Damages are given upon a Judgment without Trial, there shall issue out a Writ of Enquiry of Damages; and when Judgment is given on Trial of the Issue, the Court gives Damages, without Writ of Enquiry. 1 Inst. 167. Judgment ought not to be given upon Default in real Actions; but a Grand Cape upon Default before Appearance, and a Petit Cape on Default after Appearance. 1 Lev. 105. In every Case the Party in Judgment ought to be in Misericordia, or a Capiatur be against him; unless the Defendant comes primo die placiti, and confesses the Action; or it may be assigned for Error by either Party. Cro. Jac. 211. And if in Debt, Part is found for the Plaintiff, and the Defendant is acquitted of the Residue, the Judgment must be, Quod Quer' in Misericordia for that Part whereof the Defendant is acquitted. Cro. El. 699. But the Statute 4 & 5 W. & M. takes away the Capiatur in Trespass, Assault, false Imprisonment, &c. and there is in Lieu thereof 6 s. 8 d. paid to the Secondary for the Fine before he signs Judgment. All Judgments given in any Court of Record, must be entered in Latin, or it will be Error. 21 Car. B. R. The Plaintiff's Attorney, four Days after the Postea is brought into Court, if the Rule for Judgment is out, may enter Judgment for his Client by the Course of the Court. 2 Lill. Abr. 95. After a Rule to sign Judgment, there ought to be four Days exclusive of the Day on which the Rule was made, before the Judgment is signed, that the Party may have a reasonable Time to bring Writ of Error: In C. B. they never give Rules for signing Judgment, but stay till the quarto die post, which makes but four Days inclusive. Mod. Caf. 241. And a Judgment cannot be entered until after the Postea is brought in and entered in the Office, and a Rule given thereupon for the Defendant to shew Cause why Judgment should not be entered against him; and that he may have Liberty to find out what he can to arrest the Judgment. 2 Lill. 115. If a Disfringas is returnable within Term, and the Party, &c. is tried two or three Days only before the End of the Term, the Judgment shall be entered that very Term, though there be not four Days to move in Arrest of Judgment. 1 Salk. 77. But if Verdict be given after Term, no Judgment can be given on it till the next Term following; for the Judgment is the Act of the Court, and the Court sits not but in Term. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. If Verdict pass for the Plaintiff, and he will not enter his Judgment; the Defendant by Motion of Court may oblige him to it. 2 Lill. Abr. 97. The Defendant may enforce the Plaintiff to enter his Judgment, to the End he may plead it to another Action. Latch. 216. 1 Danv. 722. Palm. 281. Judgments are not only to be signed by a Judge, but entered of Record; before which they are not Judgments: And in a Judgment given to recover a Sum of Money, the Sum must be entered in Words at length; and not in Figures, which may be easily altered; and a Judgment was reversed, because the Time when given was in Figures, and the Sum recovered expressed in Figures, &c. But the Court may amend their Judgments of the same Term, because the Term is but as one Day in Law; though they may not do it in another Term. 2 Lill. 103. 3 Lev. 430. A Judgment signed the very Day the Rules were out, has been set aside for Irregularity. 5 Mod. 205. And if a Judgment be unduly obtained, the Court will vacate the Judgment, and restore the Party damaged; if not punish the Offender: But it is against the Course of the Court to vacate a Judgment the last Day of the Term. Pasch. 1656. By Statute, if a Plaintiff die before Judgment, it shall not hinder the Judgment being entered, provided it be done within two Terms after Verdict. 17 Car. 2. cap. 8. A Judgment

ment entered into C. B. shall relate to the Effoin-Day of the Term, and be a Judgment from that Time: But a Judgment in B. R. shall relate only to the first Day of the Term. Cro. Car. 102. If a Rule be given for the Defendant to plead at a certain Day, and he do not plead accordingly, the Plaintiff may enter Judgment against him, without moving the Court; though in real Actions, and criminal Causes, on Indictments, &c. there must be Motion in Court for a peremptory Rule. 2 Lill. 116. Yet a Plaintiff after he hath signed Judgment against the Defendant, may wave it if he will, and accept of a Plea from the Defendant. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. If a Judgment be obtained, but the Plaintiff doth not take out Execution within a Year and a Day, the Judgment must be revived by Scire facias: And if the Judgment be not above seven Years standing, a Scire facias may be had to revive it without Motion. Pasch. 24 Car. B. R. If any Thing be entered in a Judgment, which is not mentioned in the Plaintiff's Declaration, the Judgment is not good. 2 Lill. 104. And where it appears upon the Record, that the Plaintiff hath no Cause of Action, he shall never have Judgment. 8 Rep. 120. Also if it appeareth to the Court that the Plaintiff hath recovered a Verdict, without Cause of Action, the Court may give Judgment for the Defendant. 1 Plow. 66. Although it appear to the Court that the Defendant's Title is not good, if the Plaintiff in his Declaration hath not set forth a good Title for himself, the Court shall never give him Judgment. 2 Lill. 98. Tho' the Plaintiff destroys the Defendant's Title, if he gives him another Title by Pleading, &c. the Defendant shall have Judgment; for the Court are to judge upon the whole Record. 8 Rep. 90. But if Action of Trespass is brought for Trespas done in Lands belonging to such a House, and it appears at the Trial that the Plaintiff had no Title to the House, the Court cannot give Judgment to turn him out of Possession, because that was not judicially before them. 3 Salk. 213. If more be in the Judgment than the Plaintiff demands, it is erroneous; though this may be helped by a remissit Damna for Part. 2 Lill. 97. Where one recovers on Action for divers Things, and hath Verdict upon the Whole, but doth wave some one or more of the Things for which his Action was brought, and hath a special Judgment; in this Case he must release his Damages to all, and yet he may have Costs of Suit. Ibid. If Issue is found against one Party in a Suit, and not against the other, Judgment may be for the Plaintiff to recover against him where the Matter is found, and a Nil capiat per Billam be entered against the Plaintiff as to the other. 1 Saund. 216. And where several Damages are recovered against several Defendants, the Plaintiff may enter a Nolle Prosequi as to one of the Defendants, &c. and have Judgment against one only for the Damages against him. 3 Mod. 101. In Trespas and Assault against three Persons, they plead severally, and are found Guilty, and entire Damages are given, the Judgment is good: And where there is but one Judgment for the Damages against several, the Plaintiff may make his Election against which he will take his Judgment. Cro. Jac. 384. Cro. Eliz. 118. If one entire Judgment is given against two several Persons, and one of them is an Infant, the whole Judgment is void; (which being entire cannot be divided) except the Infant be joint Executor with the other Party. 2 Lill. 100. When a Judgment is entire, it cannot be divided, to make one Part of it good, and another Part thereof erroneous; but if it be not an entire Judgment, it may. Ibid. On Action where Damages are to be recovered, if the Declaration be good in Part, and insufficient in Part, and the Defendant demurs upon the entire Declaration; the Plaintiff shall have Judgment for that which is well laid, and be barred for the Rest. 2 Saund. 379. And if in Action of Debt upon three Bonds, it appears that one of them is forfeited, &c. the Plaintiff shall have Judgment for the other two. 1 Saund. 286. Where a Judgment is partly by the Common Law, and partly by Statute, the Judgment at Common Law may remain and be compleat, without the other. 1 Salk. 24. Every Judgment ought to be compleat and formal: One Judgment cannot determine another Judgment; and the Judges will not give a Judgment against Law, although the Plaintiff and Defendant do agree to it. 1 Salk. 213. Cro. Eliz. 817. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. A Judgment contrary to the Verdict found in the Cause, is void; for it is to be warranted by the Verdict. M. b. 22 *Car. B. Where a Debt on Specialty is demanded in an Action, it must be for the Whole and exact Sum, or the Judgment upon it will not be good. 3 Mod. 41. Action of Debt lies upon a good Judgment, as well after Writ of Error brought, as before. Raym. 100. 2 Mod. 127. And 'tis said Debt lies in the Marshalsea, or in any other Courts, upon a Judgment in B. R. or C. B. and if a Nul tiel Record is pleaded, the Issue shall be tried by Certiorari and Mittimus out of the Chancery. 1 Salk. 209. though 'tis held otherwise 439. In Actions of Debt on Bonds, a Rule may be made to stay Proceedings on Payment of Principal, Interest and Costs; but not in Actions of Debt upon Judgments; yet the Defendant may plead a Tender & uncove prius. Mod. Ca. 60. If a Judgment is recovered jointly against three Defendants, the Plaintiff cannot bring Action of Debt upon that Judgment against one alone. 2 Leon. 220. And it has been held, that there is this Difference where Execution is sued upon a Judgment, and where an Action of Debt is brought upon it; that if the Plaintiff brings Debt, he must have good Ground for his Action, or he shall not recover; but he may have Execution upon a voidable Judgment; and it shall stand good till the Judgment is reversed. 1 Leon. 82. A Plaintiff shall not have a new Action of Debt on the same Bond, &c. after Judgment had on it, as long as the Judgment is in Force. 6 Rep. 2. Nelf. Abr. 1056. An erroneous Judgment in Chancery, is reversible in B. R. Dyer 315. And if the House of Lords reverse a Judgment of B. R. the Lords are to enter the new Judgment, and not the Court of B. R. who by the first Judgment had executed their Authority. Trin. 6 Ann. B. R. 1. Salk. 403. Judgments are to continue, till they are attain of Error. Stat. 4 H. 4. cap. 23. And after Verdict given in any Court of Record, there shall be no Stay of Judgment, for Want of Form in a Writ, Count, &c. or mistaking the Name of either Party, Sum of Money, Day, Month, Year, &c. rightly named in any Writ or Record preceding, &c. 18 Eliz. cap. 14. 16 & 17 Car. 2. 8 & 9 W. 3. orders Judgments acknowledged for Debts. The Course for one to acknowledge a Judgment for Debt, is for him that doth acknowledge it to give a general Warrant of Attorney to any Attorney, or some particular Attorney of that Court where the Judgment is to be acknowledged, to appear for him at his Suit, against the Party who is to have the Judgment acknowledged unto him; and also to file common Bail, and receive a Declaration, and then plead Non sum Informatus, &c. or to let it pass by Nihil dicit, whereupon Judgment is entered for Want of a Plea. 2 Lill. 105. If one gives a Warrant of Attorney to confess a Judgment, and dies before it is confessed, this is a Countermand of the Warrant. 1 Ventr. 310. And if a Feme Sole gives Warrant of Attorney to confess Judgment, and marries before it is entered, the Warrant is also countermanded; and Judgment shall not be entered against Husband and Wife. 1 Salk. 399. A Man under Arrest gives Warrant of Attorney to confess a Judgment in B. R. if no Attorney for the Defendant is then present, the Court of B. R. on a Supposition that the Judgment was obtained by Force or Fear, will set aside the same. 1 Salk. 402. A Judgment confessed upon Terms, being in Effect conditional, the Court will see the Terms performed: But where a Judgment is acknowledged absolutely, and a subsequent Agreement is made, this does not affect the Judgment, and the Court will take no Notice of it. Ibid. 400. A Man gave Bond and Judgment, defeated upon Payment of Money on such a Day, and it was agreed that Execution should not be sued out before; but a Fieri facias was sued out a Month before and executed, upon Demand and Non-payment of the Money: And though this was a Breach of the Agreement, since it was for a just Debt, the Court would not undo any Thing, for Fear it should frustrate the Judgment. Mod. Caf. 49. If a Warrant be to enter Judgment as of such a Term, or any Time after; the Attorney may enter it at any Time during Life; but without those Words, the Judgment must be entered the Term expressed in the Warrant: And if no Term be mentioned, it may be intended the next Term. 1 Mod. 1. Or it has been held, it may be entered within a Year after the Date of it: And if Judgment upon a Warrant of Attorney be not entered within the Year, it cannot be done without Leave of the Court, on Motion and Affidavit made of the Party's being living, and the Debt not satisfied. 2 Lill. Abr. 118. 2 Show. 253. It is dangerous to take a Judgment acknowledged in the Vacation, as of the preceding Term; and if any such Judgment be taken, the Warrant of Attorney to confess the same must bear Date before, or in the Term whereof it is confessed: But the safest Way is to make it a Judgment of the subsequent Term; though common Practice is otherwise. 2 Lill. 103. By Holt Chief Justice, if one will enter a Judgment as of a precedent Term, he must actually enter it before the Effoin-Day of the succeeding Term: And if Judgment be signed in Hillary Term, and in the subsequent Vacation the Defendant sells Lands, if before the Effoins of Easter Term, the Plaintiff enters his Judgment, it shall affect the Lands in the Hands of the Purchaser; and if one enters Judgment so in Vacation, when the Party is dead, the Judgment shall be good by Relation, if he was living in the precedent Term. 1 Salk. 401. Law Securities 74. By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. Judges that sign Judgments of Lands, are to set down the Day of the Month and Year of their so doing upon the Paper or Record; and they are to be Judgments against Purchasers bona fide only from that Signing: If any Person having acknowledged or suffered a Judgment as a Security for Money, afterwards on borrowing other Money of another, mortgage his Lands, &c. without giving Notice of such Judgment, unless he pay it off in six Months, he shall forfeit his Equity of Redemption, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M. The particular Times of entering Judgments of Debt by Confession, Non sum Informatus, &c. And docketting them after every Term, by the Clerks of Courts, &c. is directed under Penalties by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 20. And no Judgment shall affect Purchasers of Lands or Mortgagees till docketted. Ibid.

Form of a Warrant of Attorney to confess Judgment.

To Mr. A. B. and C. D. Attornies of his Majesty's Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, or to any other Attorney of the same Court.

TH E S E are to desire and authorize you, or any other Attorney of the said — Court, to appear for me E. F. of, &c. in the said — Court, this present Easter Term, or any other subsequent Term, at the Suit of G. H. of, &c. and thereupon to confess Judgment against me unto the said G. H. by Non sum Informatus, Nil dicit, or otherwise, in any Action of Debt for 500 l. of lawful British Money, together with Costs of Suit: And for your or any of your so doing, this shall be your sufficient Warrant. In Witness, &c.

On Judgments, a Release of Errors is usually entered into at the Time of the Warrant of Attorney given, or Judgment had. And in case of several Judgments, if two are given in one Term, and the last is first executed, that Creditor hath the best Title. Latch. 53. When a Judgment is satisfied, it is to be acknowledged on Record by Attorney, &c. Acknowledging a Judgment in the Name of another, who is not privy or consenting to the same, is Felony. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 26.

Judgment in criminal Cases. No Man can be attainted of Treason or Felony, but on Judgment by express Sentence, or by Outlawry, or Abjuration. 2 Hawk. 447. And a Person shall not have two Judgments for one Offence; for in Outlawry which is a Judgment, Execution shall be awarded against the Offender, but no Sentence pronounced. Finch 389, 467. But one convicted of a scandalous Libel, had Judgment to pay a Fine, and to go to all the Courts in Westminster-hall, with a Paper in his Hat signifying his Crime; and on his Behaving impudently, his Punishment was encreased. 1 Salk. 401. No Judgment or Punishment can be inflicted unknown to our Laws; but only by Act of Parliament. Dalif. 20. And the Law makes no Distinction, in fixed and stated Judgments, between a Peer and a Coma Commoner; or between a common and ordinary Cause and one extraordinary. 2 Hawk. 443. Judgment cannot be given for a corporal Punishment, in the Absence of the Party. 1 Salk. 400. Though Persons may have Judgment to be fined in their Absence, having a Clerk in Court to undertake for the Fine. 1 Salk. 56. Judgment in High Treason is for the Offender to be drawn, hanged, his Entrails taken out and burnt, his Head cut off, and Body quartered, &c. In Petit Treason, to be drawn to the Place of Execution, and hanged: And a Woman in all Cases of High and Petit Treason, to be drawn and burnt. A Man or Woman for Felony, is to be hanged by the Neck till dead. Misprision of Treason incurs Imprisonment for Life. In Præmunire, the Party offending is to be out of the King's Protection, and his Body to remain in Prison during the King's Pleasure, &c. And for Misprision of Felony, Fine and Imprisonment is inflicted. 2 Hawk. 443, 444. For Crimes and Misdemeanors of an infamous Nature; Perjury or Forgery at Common Law, Gross Cheats, Conspiracy, Keeping Bawdy-houses, &c. the Judgments are discretionary in the Court, by Fine, Pillory, Whipping, &c. 2 Hawk. 445.

Jurats, (Jurati) Are in Nature of Aldermen, for the Government of many Corporations. As Romney Marsh is incorporate of one Bailiff, twenty-four Jurats, and the Commonalty thereof, by Chart. 1 Ed. 4. And we read of the Mayor and Jurats of Maidstone, Rye, Winchelsea, &c. Also Fersey hath a Bailiff and twelve Jurats, or sworn Assistants, to govern that Island. The Name is taken from the French; for in France, among others, there are Major & Jurati, &c. They are mentioned in the Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 30. Sometimes Jurats are taken for Furors. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 26.

Juridical Days, (Dies Juridici) Days in Court, on which the Law is administered. See Day.

Jurisdiction, (Jurisdiclio) Is an Authority or Power, which a Man hath to do Justice, in Causes of Complaint made before him: Of which there are two Kinds; the one, which a Man hath by Reason of his Fee, and by Virtue thereof doth Right in all Plaints concerning the Lands of his Fee; the other is a Jurisdiction given by the Prince to a Bailiff, as divided by the Normans; and by him whom they called a Bailiff, we may understand all that have Commission from the King to give Judgment in any Cause. Custum. Normand. cap. 2. The Courts and Judges at Westminster have Jurisdiction all over England; and are not restrained to any County or Place: But all the other Courts are confined to their particular Jurisdictions; which if they exceed, whatever they do is erroneous. 2 Lill. Abr. 120. There are three Sorts of Inferior Jurisdictions; the First whereof is Tenere Placita, which is the lowest, and the Party may either sue there, or in the King's Courts: The second is Consuance of Pleas, and by this a Right is vested in the Lord of the Franchise to hold Pleas; and he is the only Person who can take Advantage of it, by claiming his Franchise: The third Sort is an Exempt Jurisdiction, as where the King grants to some City, that the Inhabitants shall be sued within their City, and not elsewhere; though there is no Jurisdiction, which can withstand a Certiorari to the superior Courts. 3 Salk. 79, 80. And a Court shall not be presumed to have a Jurisdiction, where it doth not appear to have one. 2 Hawk. 59. In some Causes, the Spiritual and Temporal Courts have a concurrent Jurisdiction. See Court, &c.

Juris utrum, Is a Writ which lies for the Parson of a Church, whose Predecessor hath alienated the Lands and Tenements thereof. F. N. B. 48. And if a Man intrude into Lands and Tenements, after the Death of a Parson, the Successor shall have this Writ: So if a Parson be disfeised of Lands, Parcel of his Rectory, and dieth, his Successor shall have a Juris utrum. New Nat. Br. 109. But if a Parson receive Rent of the Tenant of the Land, which is aliened by his Predecessor, he shall not himself have a Writ of Juris utrum; but his Successor shall have it. Ibid. 111. A Vicar shall have a Juris utrum against a Parson for the Glebe of his Vicarage, which is Part of the same Church: And the Plaintiff ought to be named Parson or Vicar, or such Name in Right of which he bringeth his Action. Ibid.

Juro, (Jurator) Is one of those Persons that are sworn on a Fury; and the Law requires the Returning of able and sufficient Furors. 16 & 17 Car. 2.

Jury, (Jurata from Lat. Jurare, to swear) Signifies a certain Number of Men sworn to inquire of and try the Matter of Fact, and declare the Truth upon such Evidence as shall be delivered them in a Cause: And they are sworn Judges upon Evidence in Matter of Fact. The Privilege of Trial by Fury is of great Antiquity in this Kingdom; some Writers will have it that Furies were in Use among the Britains; but it is more probable that this Trial was introduced by the Saxons: And these Furies are not only used in the Circuits of the Judges; but in other Courts and Matters: As if a Coroner inquire how a Person killed came by his Death, he doth it by Fury; and the Justices of Peace in their Quarter-Sessions, the Sheriff in his County-Court, the Steward of a Court-Leet or Court-Baron, &c. if they inquire of any Offence, or decide any Cause between Party and Party, they do it in like Manner: And at the General Assizes there are usually many Furies, because there are

are a great many Causes, both Civil and Criminal, commonly to be tried; whereof one is called the Grand Fury, and the Rest Petit Furies, of which it is said there should be one for every Hundred. Lamb. Eiren. pag. 384. Anciently the Fury as well in Common Pleas, as Pleas of the Crown, were twelve Knights according to Glanvil and Bracton: And to make a Fury in a Writ of Right, called the Grand Assise, there must be Sixteen, viz. Four Knights, and twelve others. Finch 412. Also as there are twelve Furymen; so there were in ancient Times twelve Judges for the Trial of Matters of Law in the Exchequer-Chamber. Co. Lit. The Grand Fury generally consists of Twenty-four Men of greater Quality than the other, chosen indifferently out of the whole County by the Sheriff; and the Petit Fury consisteth of twelve Men, impanelled in Criminal Cases, called the Fury of Life and Death: The Grand Fury finds the Bills of Indictment against Criminals; and the Petit Fury convicts them by Verdict, in the Giving whereof all the Twelve must agree; and according to their Verdict the Judgment passeth. 3 Inst. 30, 31, 221. By the Common Law, Fury-men are to be returned, in all Cases for Trial of General Issues, from the County where the Fact was done. S. P. C. 154. And Furymen are to be Freemen, indifferent, and not outlawed, or infamous; Aliens, Men attainted of any Crime, ought not to serve on Furies; and Infants, Persons seventy Years old, Clergymen, Apothecaries, &c. are exempted by Law from serving upon Furies. 3 Inst. 221. 2 Inst. 447. Likewise the King may grant to some other Persons to be discharged of Furies; but not a whole Country. By Statute, Jurors empanelled are to be the next Neighbours, most sufficient, and least suspicious; or the Officer shall forfeit double Damages. 28 Ed. 1. cap. 9. Their Qualification by 13 Ed. 1. was 40*s.* per Annum Estate; which was increased to 4*l.* per Annum by 27 Eliz. cap. 6. and is made 10*l.* per Annum Freehold or Copyhold, within the same County, by 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 24. But all Cities, Boroughs, and corporate Towns, are excepted out of this last Act: And Trials of Felons in Corporations may be by Freemen worth 40*l.* in Goods, by Stat. 23 Hen. 8. c. 13. Panels of Furies returned to inquire for the King, may be reformed by the Judges of Gaol-delivery, &c. 3 Hen. 8. c. 12. Furymen not appearing shall forfeit Issues, if they have no reasonable Excuse for their Defaults, viz. 5*s.* on the first Writ, upon the Second 10*s.* and third Writ 13*s.* 4*d.* 35 H. 8. cap. 6. Though no Fury is to appear at Westminster for a Trial, when the Offence was committed thirty Miles off; except the Attorney General require it. 18 Eliz. cap. 5. Constables, &c. at Michaelmas Quarter-Sessions yearly, are to return to the Justices of Peace, Lists of Persons qualified to serve on Furies; and Sheriffs are to impanel no others, under the Penalty of 20*l.* &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 32. 3 Ann. cap. 18. No Sheriff, Bailiff, &c. shall return any Person to serve on a Fury, unless he hath been duly summoned six Days, before the Day of Appearance; nor shall take any Money or other Reward to excuse the Appearance of any Furyman, on Pain of forfeiting 10*l.* 4 & 5 W. & M. Either Plaintiff or Defendant may use their Endeavours for a Furyman to appear; but one who is not a Party to the Suit, may not: And an Attorney was thrown over the Bar, because he had given the Names of several Persons in Writing to the Sheriff, whom he would have returned on the Fury, and the Names of others whom he would not have returned. Moor 882. There ought to be Twenty-four Jurors summoned and returned for Trial of Issues; and if there be not, it will be Error. Godb. 370. But this may be remedied as a Misreturn, by Stat. 18 Eliz. 1 Cro. 123. A Furyman misnamed may be averred he is not the same Person, &c. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 13. And if a Trial is for any Thing which concerns the Sheriff, or Under-Sheriff, the Coroner is to return the Fury. 2 Lill. Abr. 124. The Process to bring in the Fury in B. R. is a Distingas Furat. and in C. B. Venire facias, and Habeas Corpora Furator: Upon the Venire, the Sheriff returns a Fury in a Panel, or little Piece of Parchment annexed to the Writ, and then goes the Writ of Habeas Corpora to bring in the Fury; and where after Issue joined, a Suit is continued on the Roll, the Process is to be continued from Time to Time against the Jurors. Bro. Discontin. 3. The first twelve Men returned upon a Fury that do appear, are to be sworn and try the Cause, if none of them are challenged; but if some of them are challenged, and the Challenge is made good, then so many more of those that remain above the Number of Twelve shall be taken in Order as they stand in the Panel to fill up the Number wanting, and make a full Fury; and the Rest summoned to be Furymen must depart. 2 Lill. 126. It is said after a Furyman is challenged, and the Challenge is entered, that Juror is not usually allowed afterwards to be sworn on the Fury to try that Cause, if there be other Furymen enough; though if there be not, then the Cause of Challenge is to be shewn and tried; and if it be found no good Challenge, he may be sworn. Ibid. 127. If a Furyman appear, and refuse to be sworn, or refuse to give any Verdict, if he endeavours to impose upon the Court, or is guilty of any Misbehaviour after Departure from the Bar, he may be fined, and Attachment issue against him. 2 Hawk. P. C. 145, 146. After a Juror is sworn, he may not go from the Bar until the Evidence is given, for any Cause whatsoever, without Leave of the Court; and with Leave he must have a Keeper with him. 2 Lill. 123, 127. A Witness may not be called by the Fury to recite the same Evidence he gave in Court, when they are gone from the Bar. Cro. Eliz. 189. Nor may a Party give a Brief or Notes of the Cause to the Fury to consider of; if he doth, he and the Jurors may be fined. Moor 815. The Furymen are not to meddle with any Matters which are not in Issue; but they may find a Thing of their own Knowledge, which is not given in Evidence. 3 Leon. 121. When the Evidence is given, the Fury are to be kept together till they bring in their Verdict, without Speech with any, and without Meat or Drink, Fire or Candle, otherwise than with Leave of the Court by Consent of the Parties; and the Court may give them Leave to eat or drink at the Bar, but not out of Court. 1 Inst. 227. If Furymen after sworn, either before or after they are agreed of their Verdict, eat and drink, the Verdict may be good; but they are fineable: And if it be at the Charge of either Parties, the Verdict is void. Dalif. 10. Cro. Jac. 21. If they agree to cast Lots for their Verdict, or to bring in Guilty or Not guilty, as the Court shall seem inclined, they may be fined.

fin'd. 2 Lev. 205. Cro. Eliz. 779. But a Fury have been permitted to recall their Verdict; as where one was indicted of Felony, the Fury found him Not guilty, but immediately before they went from the Bar, they said they were mistaken, and found him Guilty, which last was recorded for their Verdict. Plowd. 211. Furies are fineable, if they are unlawfully dealt with to give their Verdict; but they are not fineable for giving a Verdict contrary to the Evidence, or against the Direction of the Court; for the Law supposes the Fury may have some other Evidence than what is given in Court, and they may not only find Things of their own Knowledge, but they go according to their Consciences. Vaugh. 153. 3 Leon. 147. It has been held, where a Person was acquitted of a Robbery by a Fury, that the Court of B. R. may impose a Fine on a Fury, who finds a Verdict contrary to the Direction of the Judges; though Justices of Assize could not fine them, only for Misdemeanors in Eating, or Drinking, &c. Bendl. 153. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1061. Attaint may lie against a Fury in a Civil Cause, for going contrary to Evidence, in case of any Corruption. Vaugh. 144. And Jurors are subject to no Prosecution for giving their Verdicts, except by way of Attaint for a false Verdict; in which Case being found Guilty, they are punishable by Loss of Lands and Goods, their Houses to be rased, and their Bodies cast into Prison, and the Party is to be restored to all that he lost by the Verdict; but this is altered by the Stat. 23 Hen. 8. cap. 3. 2 Hawk. 147. If a Furyman is guilty of Bribery, he is disabled to be of any Assizes or Furies, and to be imprisoned and ransomed at the King's Will. 5 Ed. 3. cap. 10. Furymen accused of Bribery, are to be tried presently by a Fury then taken. 34 Ed. 3. cap. 8. And if a Juror takes any Thing of either Party to give his Verdict, he shall pay ten Times as much as taken; or suffer a Year's Imprisonment. 38 Ed. 3. c. 12. But Furymen, where there is a full Fury, and they try the Cause, are to have their Charges allowed them. 2 Lill. 125. If a Fury take upon them the Knowledge of the Law, and give a general Verdict, it is good; but in Cases of Difficulty it is best and safest to find the special Matter, and leave it to the Judges to determine what is the Law upon the Fact. 1 Inst. 30. A Fury sworn and charged in case of Life and Member, cannot be discharged till they give a Verdict: In Civil Cases, it is otherwise; as where Nonsuits are had, &c. And sometimes when the Evidence hath been heard, the Parties doubting of the Verdict, do consent that the Fury shall be drawn or discharged. 1 Inst. 154, 227.

Special Fury. Where it is conceived an indifferent impartial Fury will not be returned between Party and Party by the Sheriff, the Court upon Motion will order the Sheriff to attend the Secondary of B. R. with his Book of Freeholders of the County, and the Secondary in the Presence of the Attornies on both Sides, is to strike a Fury: And when a Cause of Consequence is to be tried at the Bar, the Court of B. R. on Motion and Affidavit made, will make a Rule for the Secondary to name forty-eight Freeholders; and each Party is to strike out Twelve, one at a Time, the Plaintiff or his Attorney beginning first, and the Remainder are to be the Fury for the Trial; and this is called a Special Fury. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 123. The Nomination of a Special Fury before the Secondary, is to be in the Presence of the Attornies on each Side; but if either of them refuse to come, then the Secondary may proceed ex parte, and he shall strike Twelve for the Attorney who makes Default. Trin. 8 W. B. R. It has been adjudged, if a Rule is made for a Special Fury, and it is not expressed that the Master of the Office or Secondary shall strike Forty-eight Freeholders, and that each of the Parties shall strike out Twelve; in such Case the Master shall strike the Twenty-four, and neither of the Parties strike out any. 1 Salk. 405. This is never done in a capital Cause. T. Jones 222. Touching the Affairs of Merchants, where two Merchants are Plaintiff and Defendant, a Fury of Merchants may be returned to try the Issue between them: The Court was moved, that a Fury of Merchants might be returned to try an Issue between two Merchants, and it was granted; because it was conceived they might have better Knowledge of the Matters in Difference than others who were not of that Profession. Hill. 21 Car. B. R. When an Alien is Plaintiff or Defendant in a Cause, the Fury ought to be half Foreigners, and half English; but 'tis not necessary that the Foreigners be all of the same Country. 2 Lill. 125. And if the Trial is by all English Jurors, it is not Error; where the Party slips his Time, and does not pray Trial by an equal Number of Aliens, &c. See Challenge, Verdict.

Trial by Fury, Was anciently called Duodecim virale Judicium.

Jus Patronatus, Is a Commission granted by the Bishop to some Persons to inquire into who is the rightful Patron of a Church. If two Patrons present their Clerks, the Bishop shall determine who shall be admitted by Right of Patronage, &c. on Commission of Inquiry of six Clergymen, and six Laymen, living near to the Church; who are to inquire on Articles as a Jury, whether the Church is void? Who presented last? Who is the rightful Patron, &c. But if Coparceners severally present their Clerks, the Bishop is not obliged to award a Jus Patronatus, because they present under one Title; and are not in like Case where two Patrons present under several Titles. 5 Rep. 102. 1 Inst. 116. The Awarding a Jus Patronatus is not of Necessity, but at the Pleasure of the Ordinary, for his better Information who hath the Right of Patronage; for if he will at his Peril take Notice of the Right, he may admit the Clerk of either of the Patrons, without a Jus Patronatus. 2 Leon. 168. A Bishop may award a Jus Patronatus with a solemn Premonition to all Persons, Quorum Interest, &c. where he knows not who is the Patron, to give Notice of an Avoidance by Deprivation, &c. Hob 318. This Inquiry by Jus Patronatus is to excuse the Ordinary from being a Disturber.

Justa, A certain Measure of Liquor, Quasi Justa Mensura; being as much as was sufficient to drink at once. — Percipiet Frater cotidie duas Justas de Cervisia. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 149.

Justs, (Fr. Jouste, i. e. Decursus) Were Exercises between Martial Men and Persons of Honour, with Spears on Horseback; and differed from Tournaments, which were all Sorts of Military Contentions, and consisted of many Men in Troops; whereas Justs were usually between two Men singly. They are mentioned in the Stat. 24 H. 8. c. 13. and are now disused. See Tournament.

Justice, (Justiciarius) Signifies he that is deputed by the King to administer Justice, and do right by Way of Judgment; and is called Justice, because he hath his Authority by Deputation, and not Jure Magistratus. In the King's Bench, and Common Pleas, there are Chief Justices, the former of which is called, Capitalis Justiciarius Banci Regii, vel ad Placita coram Rege tenenda, hath the Title of Lord whilst he enjoys his Office, and is stiled Capitalis Justiciarius, because he is Chief of the Rest; and for this Reason he hath usually the Title of Lord Chief Justice of England. This Justice was anciently created by Letters Patent under the Great Seal; but is now made by Writ in this short Form: Rex, &c. Roberto Raymond Mil. Salutem, Sciatis quod constituimus vos Justiciarium nostrum Capitem ad Placita coram nobis Tenenda, quamdiu vos bene gesseritis, &c. Teste, &c. And the ancient Dignity of this Supreme Magistrate was very great; he had the Prerogative to be Vicegerent of the Kingdom, when any of our Kings went beyond Sea, being chosen to this Office out of the greatest of the Nobility; and had the Power alone, which afterwards was distributed to three other great Magistrates, that is, he had the Power of the Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, of the Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and the Master of the Court of Wards; and he commonly sat in the King's Palace, and there executed that Authority which was formerly performed per Comitum Palatii, in determining Differences which happened between the Barons and other great Persons of the Kingdoms, as well as Causes Criminal and Civil between other Men: But K. Richard 1st, first diminished his Power, by appointing two other Justices; to each whereof he assigned a distinct Jurisdiction, viz. to one the North Parts of England, and to the other the South; and in the Reign of K. Edward 1. they were reduced to one Court, with a further Abridgment of their Authority, both as to the Dignity of their Persons, and Extent of their Jurisdiction; for no more were chosen out of the Nobility as antiently, but out of the Commons, who were Men of Integrity, and skilful in the Laws of the Land; whence 'tis said the Study of the Law dates its Beginning. Origines Judiciales. In the Time of K. John, and other of our antient Kings, it often occurs in Charters of Privilege, Quod non ponatur respondere, nisi coram nobis vel Capitali Justicia nostra: And this high Officer hath at this Time a very extensive Power and Jurisdiction in Pleas of the Crown; and is particularly intrusted with not only the Prerogative of the King, but the Liberty of the Subject. The Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, hath also the Title of Lord whilst he is in Office, and is called Dominus Justiciarius Communium Placitorum, vel Dominus Justiciarius de Banco; who with his Assistants did originally, and doth yet, hear and determine all Common Pleas in Civil Causes, as distinguished from the King's Pleas, or Pleas of the Crown. Bract. lib. 3. The Chief Justices are installed or placed on the Bench by the Lord Chancellor; and the other Justices by the Lord Chancellor and the Lord Chief Justices. Besides the Lords Chief Justices, and the other Justices of the Courts at Westminster, there are many other Justices commissioned by the King, to execute the Laws; as Justices of Assize, of the Forest, of Nisi Prius, Oyer and Terminer, &c. all of them treated of under their Heads; and Justices of Peace, &c.

Justices of the Peace, (Justicarii ad Pacem) Are those that are appointed by the King's Commission to keep the Peace of the County where they dwell; and are rather Commissioners of the Peace, of whom some of the greater Quality are of the Quorum, because Business of Importance may not be dispatched without the Presence of them, or one of them. Justices of Peace, Polydore Virgil tells us, had their Beginning in the Reign of William the 1st, called the Conqueror; but Sir Edward Coke was of Opinion, that in the sixth Year of K. Ed. 1. Prima fuit Institutio Justiciariorum pro Pace conservanda: Mr. Prynne affirms, that in the Reign of K. Hen. 3. after the Agreement made between that King and his Barons, Guardians ad Pacem conservandam were constituted: And Sir Henry Spelman differs from both these, being of Opinion that they were not made until the Beginning of the Reign of K. Ed. 3. when they were thought necessary for suppressing Com-motions, which might happen upon the De-throning of K. Ed. 2. 'Tis certain the general Commission of the Peace, by Statute, began 1 Ed. 3. Tho' before that Time there were particular Commissions of the Peace to certain Men, in certain Places; tho' not throughout England. 2 Nels. Abr. 1063. Heretofore there were Conservators of the Peace at the Common Law, elected by the County, upon a Writ directed to the Sheriff: But the Election of Conservators is transferred ferred by Statutes from the People, to the King; and at length Justices of Peace are created Conservators of the Peace by Commission or Letters Patent under the Great Seal: The Power of constituting them is only in the King; tho' they are generally made at the Discretion of the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper, by the King's Leave; and the King may appoint in every County in England and Wales as many as he shall think fit. 1 Inst. 174, 175. At first the Number of Justices were not above three or four in a County. 18 Ed. 3. Afterwards the Number was limited to six in every County; whereof two were to be of the best Quality, two Knights, and two Men of the Law. 34 Ed. 3. By the Stat. 14. R. 2. Eight Justices of Peace were to be assigned in every County: And the Number of Justices has greatly increased since their first Institution; Mr. Lambard above One hundred Years ago complaining of their excessive Number; and after him the Learned Spelman takes Notice that there were above Threescore in each County: They are now without Limitation; and their prodigious Increase with the unsuitable Appointment many Times made of Persons for this Trust, hath rendered the Office contemptible in the Eye of our best Gentry, for whom it was originally intended: And therefore it hath been propos'd, that in each County there should be eight Honorary Justices constituted of Men of Quality, who should not be obliged to an Attendance any farther than their Zeal for Justice, and Love for their Country shall incline them; and the like Number of acting Justices, Gentlemen capable of Business, who should constantly attend, and be intitled to a Reward for their Pains, and upon any Neglect be subject to Penalties. Lambard's Inst. By Statute, Justices of Peace must be resident in the County; are to be most sufficient Persons, and of the best Reputation, and they are to have 20 l. per Annum in Lands, as a Qualification, and if they act without such Qualification, (except Lawyers) they shall forfeit the Sum of 20 l. And they were to be allowed 4 s. a Day during their Attendance at the Quarter-Sessions, to be paid by the Sheriffs of Counties. 12 R. 2. 2 H. 5. 18 H. 6. Also they are to hold their Sessions four Times a Year, i. e. the first Week after Michaelmas, the Epiphany, Easter, and St. Thomas called Becket, being the 7th of July. Stat. 2 H. 5. They are Justices of Record; for none but Justices of Record can take a Recognizance of the Peace: And their Power arises from their Commission, or from Statutes. By Virtue of these Words in their Commission, viz. Sciatis quod assignavimus vos conjunctim & divisim & quemlibet vestrum Justitiariorum nostros ad Pacem nostram in Comitatu nostro S. Conservandam, &c. every Justice of Peace hath a separate Power, and may do all Acts concerning his Office apart and by himself; and even may commit a Fellow-Justice upon Treason, Felony, or Breach of the Peace: And this is the ancient Power which Conservators of the Peace had at Common Law. By Virtue of another Assignavimus, or Clause in the Commission, two or more Justices of Peace (one of the Quorum) have a joint Power to inquire by Jury of all Offences mentioned in the Commission; to take Indictments, and grant Process thereupon; and to hear and try the Offences; which are Matters to be transacted at the Quarter-Sessions. And by the Statutes, in many Cases they are empowered to act where their Commission doth not reach; the Statutes themselves being a sufficient Commission. Lamb. lib. 4. Wood's Inst. 79, 80. The Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 12. 33 H. 1. c. 10. and 37 H. 8. c. 7. give a further general Power than is expressed either in their Commission, or in any particular Statute. The particular Statutes are to be executed as they direct, wherein if no express Power is given to any one Justice, he can admonish only, and if not obeyed, may make Presentment of it upon the Statute, and with his Fellow-Justices hear and determine it in Sessions; or he may bind the Offender to the Peace, or the good Behaviour: Some Statutes empower one Justice of Peace alone to act; some require two, three, four Justices, &c. Where a special Authority is given to Justices of Peace, it must be exactly pursued; or the Acts of the Justices will not be good. 2 Salk. 475. And if a Justice of Peace does not observe the Form of Proceeding directed by Statute, it is coram non Judice, and void: But if he acts according to the Direction of the Statutes, neither the Justices in Sessions nor B. R. can reverse what he has done. Jones 170. The Power of Justices is Ministerial when they are commanded to do any Thing by a superior Authority, as by the Court of B. R. &c. In all other Cases they act as Judges: But they must proceed according to their Commission, &c. And a Justice is to exercise his Authority only within the County where he is appointed by his Commission; not in any City which is a County of itself or Town Corporate, having their proper Justices, &c. tho' in other Towns and Liberties he may. Dalt. When a Justice of Peace acts to compel another to perform any Thing required by Law, as where he imprisons or commands any one to be imprisoned, &c. he cannot act out of the Jurisdiction of his County; but he may take Informations any where to prove Offences in the County where committed, and he principally resides, or take a Recognizance to prosecute. Cro. Car. 213. And by a late Statute, Justices of any County, dwelling in a City that is in it self a County within the County at large, may grant Warrants, take Informations, make Orders, &c. at their own Dwelling-Houses, tho' out of the County, &c. 9 Geo. c. 7. A Man may be a Justice of Peace in one Part of Yorkshire, and yet be no Justice of Peace in every Part of the County; this County being divided into separate Ridings. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. Justices of Peace have Power by their Commission to hear and determine Felonies and Trespases, &c. 18 Ed. 3. c. 2. But there must be a special Clause in their Commission, otherwise they cannot do it. H. P. C. 165. And if a Commission of Oyer and Terminer issues to hear and determine Felonies, that determines the Commissions of Justices of Peace as to Felonies, tho' not as to the Peace, &c. The Stat. 1 & 2 Ph. & M. c. 13. directs Justices of Peace to take Examinations in Cases of Murder and Felony, and to certify them to the Justices of Gaol-Delivery, &c. since which they forbear to try great Felonies. H. P. C. 166. They commit all Felons, in order to Trial; and bind over the Prosecutors to the Assizes: And if they do not certify Examinations and Informations to the next Gaol-Delivery; or do not bind over Prosecutors, &c. they shall be fined. Dalt. c. 11. For Petit Larceny, and small Felonies, the Justices in their Quarter-Sessions may try Offenders; other Felonies being of Course try'd at the Assizes: And in Case of Felonies, Pleas upon Penal Statutes, they cannot hold Cognisance without an express Power given them by the Statutes. Justices of the Peace in their Sessions cannot try a Cause the same Sessions, without Consent of Parties, &c. for the Party ought to have convenient Time, or it will be Error. Cro. Car. 317. Sid. 334. Nor can the Sessions of Justices refer a Matter which ought to be try'd to be determined by another Sessions; yet they may refer a Thing to another to examine, and make Report to them for their Determination. 2 Salk. 477. The Sessions is all one Day, and the Justices may alter their Judgments at any Time while it continues. Ibid. 494. 'Tis incident to the Office of a Justice of Peace to commit Offenders: And a Justice may commit a Person that doth a Felony in his own View, without Warrant; but if it be on the Information of another, he must make a Warrant under Hand and Seal for that Purpose. If a Justice issues a Warrant to arrest a Felon, tho' the Accusation be false, the Justice is excused, where a Felony is committed; but if there be no Accusation, Action will lie against the Justice. 1 Leon. 187. A Justice makes a Warrant to apprehend a Felon, though he is not indicted, he who executes the Warrant shall not be punished: And if one brings another before a Justice on Suspicion of Felony, notwithstanding it happen to be without just Cause, no Action lies. 13 Rep. 76. Cro. Jac. 432. A Justice of Peace may make a Warrant to bring a Person before himself only, and it will be good; tho' it is usual to make Warrants to bring the Offenders before him or any other Justice of the County, &c. And if a Justice directs his Warrant to a private Person, he may execute it. 5 Rep. 60. 1 Salk. 347. If a Justice grants his Warrant beyond his Authority, the Officer must obey; but if it be where the Justice has no Authority, the Officer is punishable if he executes it. Justices of Peace may make and perswade an Agreement in petty Quarrels and Breaches of the Peace, where the King is not intitled to a Fine: Tho' they may not compound Offences, or take Money for making Agreements. Noy 103. Justices may not intermeddle with Property; if they do, Action lies against them and the Officers who execute their Orders. 3 Salk. 217. But for Detainer of Goods, in small Matters of poor People, not of Ability to go to Law, in some Places Justices interpose and grant Warrants to do Justice. Mod. Just. 167. A Justice of Peace hath a discretionary Power of binding to the good Behaviour; and may require a Recognizance with a great Penalty of one for his Keeping of the Peace, where the Party bound is a dangerous Person, and likely to break the Peace, and do much Mischief. Pasch. 1652. 2 Lill. Abr. 131. And where a Person is to be bound to the good Behaviour for Default of Sureties, he may be committed to Gaol. But a Man giving Security for keeping the Peace in B. R. or the Chancery, may have a Superfedeas to the Justices in the Country not to take Security; and so where a Person hears of a Warrant out against him, gives Surety of the Peace to any other Justice, &c. If one make an Assault upon a Justice of Peace, he may apprehend the Offender, and send him to Gaol till he finds Sureties for the Peace; and a Justice may record a forcible Entry upon his own Possession: In other Cases he cannot judge in his own Cause. Wood's Inst. 81. Where a Man abuseth a Justice by Words, before his Face or behind his Back, in Relation to his Office, he may be bound to the good Behaviour; and if a Justice of Peace be abused in the Execution of his Office, the Offender may be also indicted and fined. Crompt. 149. 4 Rep. 16. To say of a Justice of Peace he doth not understand Law, &c. is indictable: And Contempts against Justices are punishable by Indictment and Fine at the Sessions. 3 Mod. 139. 1 Sid. 144. But abusing a Justice out of his Office, by Words that do not relate to his Office, seems to stand only as in the Case of other Persons. Justices shall not be regularly punished for any Thing done by them in Sessions as Judges: And if a Justice of Peace be sued for any Thing done in his Office, he may plead the general Issue, and give the special Matter in Evidence; and if a Verdict goes for him, or the Plaintiff be Nonsuit, he shall have double Costs. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. Tho' if a Justice of Peace is guilty of any Misdemeanor in his Office, Information lies against him in B. R. where he shall be punished by Fine and Imprisonment. Sid. 192. And for Contempt of Laws, &c. Attachment may be had against Justices of Peace in B. R. on Motion of the Attorney General, &c. If a new Commission is made out for Justices of Peace, out of which some of the Justices in the old Commission are omitted, yet what Acts they do as Justices are lawful till the next Sessions, at which the new Commission is published; and when the new Commission is published, they are to take Notice of it, and not act further. Moor 187. By granting a new Commission, Discharge under the Great Seal, Accession of another Office, and by the Death of the King, the Power and Offices of Justices of Peace determine. 4 Inst. 165. But till then they are empowered to act in a great many particular Cases by Statute, as follows, viz.

Justices of Peace are to license Alehouses; and issue Warrants to levy the Penalty of 20 s. on Persons keeping Alehouses, without Licence; 10 s. on Victuallers, &c. permitting Tipling, and 3 s. 4 d. on Tiplers; also a Sum not above 40 s. nor under 10 s. for selling Ale in Vessels not mark'd, or under Measure; and they are to take Recognizances for good Order; suppress unlawful Alehouses, &c. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. 21 Jac. 1. 3 Car. 1. 11 & 12 W. 3. They are to reconcile Differences between Masters and Apprentices; and commit disorderly Apprentices, &c. And to consent to the Binding poor Boys out Apprentice, and Apprentices to the Sea-Service. 5 & 43 Eliz. 2 Ann. Justices are to grant Warrants against Persons seducing Artificers to go out of the Kingdom, and bind them over to the Assises or Sessions, where they shall be fined not exceeding 100 l. 5 Geo. To bind to the good Behaviour Persons riding Armed, &c. 2 Ed. 3. Penalty on Carriers, &c. taking more for Carriage of Goods than assessed in Sessions; and 20 s. of Carriers travelling on a Sunday: And on Proof before a Justice of more than six Horses used by Carriers in Waggon, &c. the Justice is to issue his Warrant for Delivery to the Seisor of the Horses forfeited. 3 Car. 1. 3 & 4 W. & M. 5 Geo. Their Office was to make Inquisition through the Kingdom on all Officers and others touching Extortion, Bribery, and such like Grievances; of Intruders into other Mens Lands, Barrctors, Robbers

Abr. 1067.* When the Action concerns a transitory Thing, if the Defendant do justify the Taking or Doing in one Place; this is a Justification in all Places: If the Action concern a local Thing, a Justification in one Place is not a Justification in another Place; for in the former Case the Place is not material, but the meer Doing or Taking of the Thing is the Substance, and in the latter the Place is material, as the Defendant may be able to justify in one Place, and not in another. Pasch. 24 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 134. If the Matter of the Justification is local, there, the Defendant ought to shew the Cause specially and traverse the Place; but not where it is transitory. Cro. Eliz. 667. Words spoken may be justified; because spoke in a legal Way: If Words are false, the Defendant may justify in an Action, but not in an Indictment. 1 Danv. 162. 3 Salk. 226. There is a justifiable Homicide, &c. and justifiable Assault. See Assault.

Kindred, Are a certain Body of Persons of Kin or allied to each other. There are three Degrees of Kindred in our Law; one in the Right Line descending, another in the Right Line ascending, and the third in the Collateral Line; and the Right Line descending, wherein the Kindred of the Male Line are called Agnati, and of the Female Line Cognati, is from the Father to the Son, and so on to his Children in the Male and Female Line; and if no Son, then to the Daughter, and to her Children, in the Male and Female Line; if neither Son nor Daughter, or any of their Children, to the Nephew and his Children, and if none of them, to the Niece and her Children; if neither Nephew nor Niece, nor any of their Children, then to the Grandson or Grandaughter of the Nephew;

and if neither of them, to the Grandson or Granddaughter of the Niece; and if none of them, then to the Great Grandson or Great Granddaughter of the Nephew and of the Niece, &c. & sic ad infinitum. The Collateral Line is either descending by the Brother and his Children downwards, or by the Uncle upwards: It is between Brothers and Sisters, and to Uncles and Aunts, and the Rest of the Kindred, upwards and downwards, a-cross and amongst themselves. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1077, 1078. If there are no Kindred in the Right descending Line, the Inheritance of Lands goes to the collateral Line; but it never ascends in the right Line upwards, if there are any Kindred of the collateral Line, though it may ascend in that Line: And there is this Difference between the right Line descending, and the collateral Line; that the Right of Representation of Kindred in the Right descending Line reaches beyond the Great Grandchildren of the same Parents; but in the collateral Line, it doth not reach beyond Brothers and Sisters Children, for after them there is no Representation among Collaterals. In the Right ascending Line, the Father or Mother are always in the first Degree of Kindred; and by the Civil Law, if the Son died without Issue, his Father or Mother succeeded, and after them his Brother or Sister, Uncle, Aunt, &c. But in Case of Purchase by the Son, if he died without Issue, his Father or Mother could not inherit, but his Brother, or Sisters, &c. by which it appears, that the Father cannot succeed the Son immediately, though he is the next of Kin. It is a constant Rule in the collateral Line, that they who are of the whole Blood are first admitted; but after Brothers and Sisters Children, the nearest in Degree in Kindred is to be considered, and not whether they are of the Whole or Half Blood; as for Instance; there were two Brothers of the whole Blood, and one of the half Blood, those of the whole Blood died, each of them leaving Issue a Son, then one of the Sons died without Issue, in this Case his Uncle of the half Blood shall be admitted, before the other surviving Son of his Brother by the whole Blood: Yet if a Man purchase Lands, and dies without Issue, it shall never go to the half Blood in the collateral Line; though it is otherwise in Case of a Descent from a common Ancestor. 2 Nelf. Abr. Ibid. The Children of the Brothers and Sisters of the half Blood, shall exclude all other collateral Ascendants, as Uncles and Aunts, and all remoter Kindred of the whole Blood in the collateral Line; but then the Brothers of the half Blood, and their Children, shall succeed equally per Stirpes, and not per Capita, according to the distinct Number of their several Persons. Ibid. There are several Rules to know the Degrees of Kindred; in the ascending Line, take the

Son and add the Father, and it is one Degree ascending, then add the Grandfather, and it is a second Degree, a Person added to a Person in the Line of Consanguinity making a Degree; and if there are many Persons, take away one, and you have the Number of Degrees, as if there are four Persons, it is the third Degree, if Five the Fourth, &c. so that the Father, Son, and Grandchild, in the descending Line, though three Persons make but two Degrees: To know in what Degree of Kindred the Sons of two Brothers stand, begin from the Grandfather and descend to one Brother, the Father of one of the Sons, which is one Degree, then descend to his Son the Ancestor's Grandson, which is a second Degree; and then descend again from the Grandfather to the other Brother, Father of the other of the Sons, which is one Degree, and descend to his Son, &c. and it is a second Degree; thus reckoning the Person from whom the Computation is made, it appears there are two Degrees, and that the Sons of two Brothers are distant from each other two Degrees: For in what Degree either of them is distant from the common Stock, the Person from whom the Computation is made, they are distant between themselves in the same Degree; and in every Line the Person must be reckon'd from whom the Computation is made. If the Kindred are not equally distant from the common Stock; then in what Degree the most remote is distant, in the same Degree they are distant between themselves, and so the Kin the most remote maketh the Degree; by which Rule I, and the Grandchild of my Uncle, are distant in the third Degree, such Grandchild being distant three Degrees from my Grandfather, the nearest common Stock. Wood's Inst. 48, 49. The Common Law agrees in its Computation with the Civil and Canon Law, as to the right Line; and only with the Canon Law as to the collateral Line. Ibid.

King, (Rex, from Lat. Rego to rule, in Sax. Cyning or Coning) Is he that hath the highest Power and Rule over the whole Land. The King is the Head of the Commonwealth; and the learned Bracton says, Rex est Vicarius & Minister Dei in Terra, omnis quidem sub eo, & ipse sub nullo nisi tantum sub Deo. Bract. lib. 1. c. 8. But the King, on his Coronation, takes an Oath of the following Purport, viz. To govern the People of this Kingdom, according to the Statutes in Parliament agreed on, and the Laws and Customs of the same; to his Power cause Law and Justice in Mercy to be executed in all his Judgments; to maintain to the Utmost of his Power, the Laws of God, the true Religion and Profession of the Gospel establish'd by Law; and preserve to the Bishops and Clergy, their Rights and Privileges, as by Law are appertaining to them: This is the obligatory Oath of our Kings, as regulated to be taken by 1 W. & M. And the Coronation Oaths, in antient Times, were undoubtedly a Contract between the King and the People in this Nation. A late Author has endeavour'd to prove the original Contract between the King and the People, from the Prophet Samuel's Conference with the Israelites; who refus'd a King offer'd unto them, and insisted upon one like all the other Nations: And taking Notice of the Breaches made in the Constitution of this Kingdom in several Reigns, and the Necessity of their being redress'd, affirms that it is the original Power and Constitution of the States of the Kingdom, to re-institute the regal Estate, as well where Kings act arbitrarily and break through the Constitution, as where there is no immediate Heir to succeed the King, so that the Throne is actually vacant; and without this I take it there is no perfect Constitution. Britann. Constitut. In King John's Magna Charta of Liberties, there was a Clause making it lawful for the Barons of the Realm to chuse twenty-five Barons, to see the Charter observ'd by the King; with Power, on any Justice or other Minister of the King's failing to do Right, and acting contrary thereto, for Four of the said Barons to address the King, and pray that the same might be remedied; and if the same were not amended in forty Days, upon the Report of the four Barons to the Rest of the Twenty-five, those twenty-five Barons with the Commonalty of the whole Land, were at Liberty to distress the King, take his Castles, Lands, &c. until the Evils complained of should be remedied, according to their Judgment; saving the Person of the King, Queen, and their Children: And when the Evils were redressed, the People were to obey the King as before. King John's Magn. Chart. cap. 73. But this Clause, and some others in Favour of Liberty, are omitted out of King Henry 3d's Magna Charta; though in a Statute made at Oxford, anno 42 Hen. 3. to reform Misgovernments, it was enacted, that twenty-four great Men should be named, Twelve by the King, and Twelve by the Parliament, to appoint Justices, Chancellors, and other Officers, to see Magna Charta observ'd. The Barons Wars mention'd in our antient Histories, seem to have proceeded in some Measure from a like Power granted to them as by the Charter of King John; and probably the Parliament's Wars, from their Example. Sir Edward Coke tells us, that if there be a King regnant in Possession of the Crown, altho' he be but Rex de facto, and not de Jure, yet he is Seignior le Roy; and another that hath Right, if he be out of Possession, is not within the Meaning of the Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 1. for the Subjects to serve and defend him in his Wars, &c. And a Pardon, &c. granted by a King de Jure, that is not likewise de facto, is void. 3 Inst. 7. Every King for the Time being, has a Right to the People's Allegiance, who 'tis said are bound by the Statute 11 H. 7. to defend him in his Wars against every Power whatsoever, and shall incur no Pains or Forfeitures thereby. 1 Hawk. P. C. 36. And a King out of Possession, we are bound by the Duty of our Allegiance to resist. Ibid. But in the Case of King Charles the Second, who was kept out of the Exercise of the Kingly Office by Traitors and Rebels, it was adjudg'd that he was King both de Facto and de Jure; and all the Acts which were done to the Keeping him out, were High Treason. Kel. Rep. 15. There may be some Kings de Facto, to whom it may be dangerous to do any Service, viz. Such as shall depose a rightful King: And according to the Lord Chief Just. Hale, if the right Heir of the Crown be in actual Exercise of the Sovereignty in one Part of the Kingdom, and a Usurper in the Exercise of it in another, the Law adjudgeth him in the Possession of the Crown that hath the true Right; and the other is not a King de Facto, but a Disturber and no King; This was the Case between King Edw. 4. and Hen. 6. And the like was held as to Queen Mary, who openly laid Claim to the Crown, and was proclaimed Queen, at the same Time the Lady Jane was proclaimed Queen at London on the Nomination of King Ed. 6. so that both being de Facto in Possession of the Crown, the Law adjudg'd Possession in Mary, who had the Right to the same. State Trials 932. It is High Treason to conspire against the King, Queen, &c. And a Person may be guilty of Treason against a King, though he be not in the Possession of the Crown. The Dignity of the King of England is imperial; and our Kings have placed on their Heads an imperial Crown: King Edgar wrote himself Imperator & Dominus, &c. Though no King of England us'd any Seal of Arms till the Reign of Rich. 1. before that Time, the Seal was the King sitting in a Chair of State on one Side of the Seal, and on Horseback on the other Side; but this King sealed with a Seal of two Lions, and King John was the first that bare three Lions, and afterwards Edw. 3. quarter'd the Arms of France, which has been continued down to this Time. Also King Hen. 8. was the first to whom Majesty was attributed; before which our Kings were called Highness, &c. Lex Constitut. 47, 48. The eldest Son of the King of England is Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, &c. and the younger Sons are born Dukes and Earls of what Places the King pleases. K. Hen. 2. took his Son into a Kind of subordinate Regality with him, so that there was Rex Pater and Rex Filius; but he did not divest himself of his Sovereignty, but reserv'd to himself the Homage of his Subjects. And notwithstanding this King, by Consent of Parliament, created his Son John King of Ireland; and King Rich. 2. made Robert de Vere Duke of Ireland; and Edw. 3. made his eldest Son Lord of Ireland, with Royal Dominion; yet it has been held, that the King cannot regularly make a King within his own Kingdom. 4 Inst. 357, 360. Hen. de Beauchamp, Earl of Warwick, was by King Hen. 6. crown'd King of Wight Island; but it was resolv'd, that this could not be done without Consent of Parliament, and even then our greatest Men have been of Opinion, that the King could not by Law create a King in his own Kingdom, because there cannot be two Kings of the same Place: And afterwards the same King Henry made the same Earl of Warwick, Primus Comes totius Anglie. A King cannot resign or dismiss himself of his Office of King, without the Consent of his Parliament; nor could Hen. 2. without such Consent, divide the Sovereignty: There is a sacred Band between the King and his Kingdom, that cannot be dissolv'd without the free and mutual Consent of both in Parliament; and though in foreign Kingdoms, there have been Instances of voluntary Cessions and Resignations, which possibly may be warranted by their several Constitutions, by the Laws of England, the King cannot resign his Sovereignty without his Parliament. Sir Matt. Hale's Hist. Corone. If a King hath a Kingdom by Title of Descent, where the Laws have taken good Effect and Rooting, he cannot change those Laws of himself, without Consent of Parliament: And if a King hath a Christian Kingdom by Conquest, after the People have Laws given them for the Government of the Country, to which they submit, no succeeding King can alter the same without the Parliament. Coke's 7 Rep. 17. It has been held, that Countries got by Conquest may be govern'd by what Laws the King thinks fit, and that the Laws of England do not take Place in such Countries, until declared so by the Conqueror, or his Successors; and in Case of an Infidel Country, that their Laws do not cease by Conquest, but only such as are against the Law of God; and where the Laws are rejected or silent, the conquer'd Country shall be govern'd according to the Rule of natural Equity. 2 Salk. Rep. 411, 412, 666. Our Kings have distributed their whole Power of Judicature to the Courts of Justice; which Courts by immemorial Usage have gain'd a known and stated Jurisdiction, that no King can alter without an Act of Parliament. 2 Hawk. P. C. 2. But as it has been resolv'd, that the Successor of every King begins his Reign on the very Day that the former King died; therefore all Patents of Judges, Sheriffs, Justices of Peace, &c. determine by the Death of the King. The Kings of England not having the whole Legislative Power, if the King and Clergy make a Canon, though it binds the Clergy in re Ecclesiastica, it does not bind Laymen; for they are not represented in the Convocation, but in Parliament: In the primitive Church, the Laity were present at all Synods; and when the Empire became Christian, no Canon was made without the Emperor's Consent, and indeed the Emperor's Consent included that of the People, he having in himself the whole Legislative Power; but the Kings of this Kingdom have it not. 2 Salk. Rep. 412, 673. Religion, Justice, and Truth, are the Supporters of the Crowns of Kings. See Crown.

King's Prerogative. The Statute of the King's Prerogative 17 Ed. 2. contains not the King's whole Prerogative, but only so much thereof as concerns the Profit of his Coffers, for his Prerogative extends much further; and the King hath divers Rights of Majesty peculiar to himself, which the Learned in the Law term Sacra Sacrorum, viz. Sacred and inseparable, and which are many and various. Staundf. Prerog. Reg. Plowd. 314. Sir Henry Spelman calls the King's Prerogative, Lex Regia Dignitatis; and a great many Prerogatives arise to the King from the Reason of the Common Law; which allows that to be Law almost in every Case for the King, which is not so for the Subject: But the King's Prerogative does not extend to any Thing injurious to his Subjects; for the King by our Law can do no Wrong. Finch. 85. 1 Inst. 19. It is the King's Royal Prerogative to make War or Peace: And as Head of the State he calls, continues, prorogues and dissolves Parliaments; and all Statutes are to have his Royal Assent, which he may refuse to give to a Bill; though his Denial is not an express Negative, but that he will advise upon it. 1 Inst. 110, 165. His Proclamation in calling or dissolving Parliaments, declaring War and Peace, &c. has the Effect of a Law; but he cannot by Proclamation introduce new Laws, yet he may inforce old ones discontinued. 3 Inst. 162. 2 Inst. 743. It was antiently held, that the King might suspend or alter any particular Law that was hurtful to the Publick: And he may dispense with a Penal Statute, wherein his Subjects have not any Interest. 4 Inst. 7. Rep. 36. Acts of Parliament do not bind the King, if he be not specially named; unless they concern the Commonwealth, suppress Wrong or Fraud, &c. in which Cases they do; but he may take the Benefit of any Statute, tho' not named. 5 Rep. 14. 11 Rep. 71. 7 Rep. 32. And a Prerogative given generally to one King, or any Thing to be done to one, goes of Course to others. Raym. 212. He determines Rewards and Punishments; moderates Laws, and pardons Offenders: But the King cannot pardon Murder where Appeal is brought by the Subject. 2 Inst. 316. And Pardons of Felony, &c. shall be granted only where the King may lawfully do it, according to his Coronation-Oath. 14 Ed. 3. The King may lay Imbargo's on Shipping; but then it must be pro bono Publico, and not for the private Advantage of any particular Traders. 1 Salk. 32. And though the King hath an Interest in every Subject, and a Right to his Service, he cannot discharge the Right of a Subject, or hinder him of a Remedy the Law gives him. Holt Ch. Just. 1 Salk. 19, 168. As supreme Head of the Church, our King hath Power to call a national or provincial Council; and by his Royal Assent the Canons made in Convocation have the Force of Laws: And to him the last Appeal is made. Dav. 73. 4 Inst. 325. He hath the supreme Right of Patronage all over England; and is the Founder and Patron of all Bishopricks, &c. so that none can be made Bishop but by his Nomination: He not only founds Churches, but licenses others to found them, exempt from the Ordinary's Jurisdiction; and he hath the Tithes of Forests and Places extraparochial, which he may grant by Letters Patent: Also the King shall pay no Tithes; though his Lessee shall pay them. Wood's Inst. 18. 1 Cro. 511. He is the Fountain of Honour; and has the sole Power of conferring honourable Titles: He may create Universities, Colleges, Counties, Boroughs, Fairs, Markets, &c. 4 Inst. 294. The King may incorporate a Town, and inable them to chuse Burgeses of Parliament; but this Part of the Prerogative of increasing the Number of Parliament-Men, seems to be given up by our late Kings. Hob. 14. No Forest, Chase, or Park, can be made, or Castles built, without the King's Leave. The King hath Power to make an Alien free-born, and to grant Letters of safe Conduct to foreign Parts: He can put a Value upon the Coin, which is made by his Authority; and make foreign Coin current by Proclamation: And to make Money, the Law gives the King all Mines of Gold and Silver. Plowd. 314. He is the general Guardian of Idiots and Lunatics; and shall have the Lands of Felons, &c. convict; also the Goods of Felons and Fugitives; Goods and Chattels of Pirates; Wreck of the Sea, &c. Stat. 17 Ed. 2. c. 1. 9 H. 3. 4 Inst. 136. The King is Lord paramount of all the Lands in England; and all Estates for Want of Heirs, or by Forfeiture escheat to him: All Lands are said to be holden of the King; as by Construction of Law they are originally derived from the Crown. 1 Inst. 1. Lands in the King's Possession are free from Tenure; and the King may not be Jointenant with any. Finch. 83. The Grant of the King is taken most strongly against a Stranger, and favourably for him: And he may avoid his own Grants for Deceit, &c. Plowd. 243. The King may grant a Thing in Action, which another cannot; and reserve a Rent to a Stranger, &c. He cannot grant or take any Land, (not cast upon him by Descent) but by Matter of Record: And the King may not grant an Annuity to charge his Person, which is not chargeable like the Person of a Subject; tho' he may grant it out of the Revenues of Excise, &c. 4 Rep. 54. 2 Inst. 186. 1 Salk. 58. Where the Title of the King and of a common Person concurs, his Title shall be preferr'd. 1 Inst. 30. No Distress can be made upon the King's Possession;

tion; but he may distrain out of his Fee in other Lands, &c. and may take Distresses in the Highway. 2 Inst. 131. An Heir shall pay the King's Debt, though he is not named in the Bond: And the King's Debt shall be satisfied before that of a Subject, for which there is a Prerogative Writ. 1 Inst. 130, 386. By the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. c. 19. a common Person may sue the King's Debtor, notwithstanding he hath a Protection, and recover Judgment against him; but he cannot have Execution, unless he give Security to pay the King's Debt: If he take out Execution before, and levy the Money, the same may be seized to satisfy the Debt of the King. Godb. 290. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1081, 1082. If a Debtor has not a Writ of Protection, he may be in Execution for a common Person as well as the King: And it hath been adjudg'd, that although the King hath a Prerogative by the Common Law, to have his Debt first satisfied, that must be when it is in equal Degree with the Debt of his Subject; and by the Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 39. the King's Debt shall be preferred, so as there is no Judgment, &c. Cro. Car. 283. Hardr. 23. Goods and Chattels may go in Succession to the King; though they may not to any other sole Corporation. 1 Inst. 90. In whosesoever's Hands the Goods of the King come, their Lands are chargeable, and may be seized for the same: And the King is not bound by Sale of his Goods in open Market. 2 Inst. 713. No Prescription of Time runs against the King; he is not within the Statutes of Limitation of Actions. 11 Rep. 74. Action lies not against the King; but a Petition instead of it, to him in the Chancery: And it is lawful for any Subject to Petition the King for Redress, where he finds himself grieved by any Sentence or Judgment. 2 Inst. 187. Hob. 220. There are no Costs against the King; no Entry will bar him; and no Judgment is ever final against him, but with a Salvo Jure Regis: And in the Case of others, the King may issue a Command to the Judges, not to proceed 'till he is advised; where his Title may be prejudic'd, &c. Litt. 178. Finch. 460. The King may sue in what Court he pleases, and cannot be nonsuit, as he is supposed to be present in all his Courts: He is not bound to join in Demurrer on Evidence, but the Court may direct the Jury to find the Matter specially. Finch. 82. 5 Rep. 104. The King's only Testimony of any Thing done in his Presence, is of as high a Nature and Credit as any Record; whence it is, that in all Writs or Precepts sent out for the Dispatch of Justice, he useth no other Witness than himself, as Teste melius, &c. The King cannot be a Minor; and in him the Law will see no Defect, Negligence or Folly. 1 Inst. 41, 57. There are some other Prerogatives belonging to our Kings; but as the King's Prerogative is Part of the Common Law of England, of Consequence it ought to be ancient; or otherwise it may be an Incroachment on the Liberty of the Subject. See Debt to the King, Grants of the King, &c.

King's Bench, (Bancus Regius, from the Sax. Banca, a Bench or Form) Is the Court or Judgment-Seat where the King of England was sometimes wont to sit in his own Person; and was therefore moveable with the Court or King's Household, and called Curia Domini Regis, or Aula Regis: And by Stat. 28 Ed. 1. c. 5. this Court is to follow the King. King Hen. 3. sat in Person with the Justices in Banco Regis several Times: And the King's Bench was originally the only

Court in Westminster Hall; out of which the Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer seem to have been derived. 2 Hawk. P. C. 6. This Court hath supreme Authority, the King himself being still presumed by Law to sit there, tho' he doth Judge by his Judges; and the Proceedings are supposed to be Coram nobis, (i. e. Rege) ubique fuerimus in Anglia. 4 Inst. 73. It consists of a Lord Chief Justice (who is Lord Chief Justice of England) created by Writ, and three other Justices created by Letters Patent; and according to ancient Writers, the Lord Chief Justice hath had three, four, or five Justices for his Assistants. Fortescue, cap. 51. The Justices of B. R. are the Sovereign Justices of Oyer and Terminer, Gaol-Delivery, and of Eyre, and Coroners of the Land; and their Jurisdiction is general all over England: By their Presence the Power of all other Justices in the County, during the Time of this Court's Sitting in it is suspended; for in Præsentia Majoris cessat Potestas minoris; but such Justices may proceed by Virtue of a special Commission, &c. H. P. C. 156. 4 Inst. 73. 2 Hawk. P. C. 32. It is these Justices who have a Sovereign Jurisdiction over all Matters of a criminal and publick Nature, judicially brought before them, to give Remedy either by the Common Law or by Statute: And their Power is Original and Ordinary; when the King hath appointed them, they have their Jurisdiction from the Law. 1 Hawk. 152. 4 Inst. 74. Whatsoever Crime is against the publick Good, though it doth not injure any particular Person, comes within the Cognizance of the Justices of this Court; and no private Subject can suffer any Kind of unlawful Violence or Injury against his Person, Liberty, or Possessions, but he may here have a proper Remedy, and not only for Satisfaction of Damages, but the exemplary Punishment of the Offender: This Court is the Custos morum of all the Subjects of the Realm; and where it meets with any Offence contrary to the first Principles of common Justice, may inflict a suitable Punishment. 2 Hawk. 6. It is in the Discretion of the Justices of B. R. to inflict Fine and Imprisonment, and infamous Punishment on Offenders; and they may commit to any Prison they think fit, and the Law doth not suffer any other Court to remove or bail any Persons imprisoned by them. 1 Sid. 145. 1 Mod. 666. The Court of B. R. may proceed on Indictments found before other Courts, and remov'd into this in the same Manner as on Indictments or Informations commenc'd in this Court; though the Court before whom such Indictments were found be determined, &c. And notwithstanding certain Justices were appointed to execute a Statute on which the Proceedings were had; nor doth a Statute which appoints certain Crimes to be tried before certain Judges, exclude the Jurisdiction of the Justices of B. R. without express negative Words: But if a Statute creates a new Offence, no Way taken Notice of by the Common Law, and erects a new Jurisdiction for its Punishment, &c. it may be otherwise. 2 Hawk. P. C. 7. To this Court it regularly belongs to examine Errors of all Judges and Justices in their Judgments and Proceedings; the Court of Exchequer excepted. F. N. B. 20, 21. It hath been held, that a Writ of Error lies in B. R. of an Attainder before the Lord High Steward. 1 Sid. 203. And upon Judgment given in the Chancery, Writ of Error in some Cases lies returnable in the Court of King's Bench, Bench. Practif. Attorn. 1st Edit. 185. But on Proceedings in B. R. by original Writ, Error lies not but to the Parliament. The Court of B. R. being the highest Court of Common Law, hath Power to reform inferior Courts, reverse erroneous Judgments given therein, and punish the Magistrates and Officers for Corruption, &c. 2 Hawk. 8. It may award Execution, not only against Persons attainted there, but also against Persons attainted in Parliament, or any other Court; when the Record of their Attainder or a Transcript is remov'd, and their Persons brought thither by Habeas Corpus. Cro. Car. 176. Cro. Jac. 495. Pardons of Persons condemn'd by former Justices of Gaol-Delivery, ought to be allow'd in B. R. the Record and Prisoner being removed thither by Certiorari and Habeas Corpus. 2 Hawk. 27. This Court grants Habeas Corpus's to relieve Persons wrongfully imprison'd; and may bail any Person whatsoever: A Person illegally committed to Prison by the King and Council, or either House of Parliament, may be bailed in B. R. and in some Cases on legal Commitments; also Persons committed by the Lord Chancellor, &c. 2 Hawk. 110, 111. Writs of Mandamus are granted by this Court, to restore Officers in Corporations, Colleges, &c. unjustly turn'd out; and Freemen wrongfully disfranchis'd: Also Quo Warranto's against Persons or Corporations, usurping Franchises and Liberties against the King; and on Misuser of Privileges, to seise the Liberties, &c. And in B. R. the King's Letters Patent may be repeal'd by Scire facias, &c. This Court in antient Times was ordinarily exercis'd in all criminal Matters, and Pleas of the Crown; leaving private Contracts and Civil Actions to the Common Pleas, and other Courts. 4 Inst. 70. It is now divided into a Crown side and a Plea-side; the one determining Criminal, and the other Civil Causes: The Crown-side determines all Criminal Matters, (wherein the King is Plaintiff) as Treasons, Felonies, Murders, Rapes, Robberies, Riots, Breaches of the Peace, and all Causes prosecuted by Way of Indictment, Information, &c. And into the Court of B. R. Indictments from all inferior Courts and Orders of Sessions, &c. may be removed by Certiorari; and Inquisitions of Murder are certified of Course into this Court, as it is the supreme Court of Criminal Jurisdiction: Hence also issue Attachments, for disobeying Rules or Orders, &c. 4 Inst. 71, 72. On the Plea-side it holds Plea of all Personal Actions prosecuted by Bill or Writ, as Actions of Debt, Detinue, Covenant, Account, Actions upon the Case, and all other Personal Actions, Ejectment, Trespas, Waste, &c. against any Person in the Custody of the Marshal of the Court, as every one sued here is suppos'd to be; and in all Personal Actions for or against any Officer, Minister, or Clerk of the Court, who in respect of their necessary Attendance have the Privilege of the Court. Ibid. It has been held, that Action upon the Statute of Winchester, of Robbery, does not lie by Original in the Court of B. R. because it is a Common Plea; but it has been adjudg'd otherwise, and allow'd on Bill. 2 Danv. Abr. 279, 282. An Appeal in B. R. must be arraigned on the Plea side; except it come in by Certiorari, when it is said it ought to be arraigned on the Crown-side. 2 Hawk. 308. Where the Court of B. R. proceeds on an Offence committed in the same County wherein it sits, the Process may be made returnable immediately; but where it proceeds on an Offence removed by Certiorari from another County, there must be fifteen Days between the Teste and Return of every Process, &c. 9 Rep. 118. 1 Inst. 134. 1 Sid. 72.

And he also informs the Court in Point of Practice. Their Deputy has the Custody of the Stamp for Signing all Writs, &c. and keeps Remembrances of all Records; Writs return'd are filed in his Office, and common Bails, &c. The Custos Brevium files Originals and other Writs whereon Proceedings are had to Outlawry; examines and seals all Records of Nisi prius for Trials at the Assises, and has several Clerks under him for making up Records throughout England. The Clerks of the Papers make up the Paper-Books of all Special Pleadings and Demurrers, which the Plaintiff's Attorney commonly speaks for, and afterwards gives Rule for the Defendant's Attorney to bring to him again to be entered, &c. The Clerk of the Declarations files all Declarations after they are ingross'd, and continues them on the Back from the Term of Declaring 'till Issue is join'd. vanc'd, 40,000*l. per Annum* was allow'd for her Houshold. And on the Restoration of K. Charles 2. the Parliament, for the Honour of the King and Kingdom, settled on his Majesty 200,000*l. per Annum*. In the Reigns of King William 3. and Queen Anne 700,000*l. a Year* was allotted for the Support of the Houshold, and ordinary Charge of the Civil List. And his Majesty King George has the like Sum of 700,000*l. per Annum* settled upon him by Parliament, arising out of the Duties of Excise, Wine-Licence, Post-Office, &c. Lex Constitut. 59, 60.

Kipe, (From the Sax. Cypa) Is a Basket or Engine made of Osiers, broad at one End, and narrower by Degrees, used in Oxfordshire and other Parts of England for the Taking of Fish; and the Fishing with these Engines is called Kipping. We read that no Salmon shall be taken between Gravesend and Henly upon Thames in Kipper-time, viz. between the 3d of May and the Epiphany. Rot. Parl. 50 Ed. 3.

Kirby's Quest, Is an antient Record remaining with the Remembrancer of the Exchequer; so called from its being the Inquest of John de Kirby Treasurer to K. Ed. 1.

Kirkmote, A Synod; and sometimes it has been taken for a Meeting in the Church or Vestry. Blount.

Knave, An old Saxon Word, which had at first a Sense of Simplicity and Innocence, for it signified a Boy; Sax. Cnapa, whence a Knave-Child, i. e. a Boy, distinguished from a Girl in several old Writers; afterwards it was taken for a Servant Boy, and at length for any Servant Man: Also it was applied to a Minister or Officer, that bore the Weapon or Shield of his Superior, as Scild Knapa, whom the Latines called Armigerum, and the French Escuyer. 14 Ed. 3. c. 3. And it was sometimes of old made use of as a titular Addition; as Johannes C. filius Willielmi C. de Derby, Knave, &c. 22 Hen. 7. 36. The Word is now perverted to the hardest Meaning, viz. A false and deceitful Fellow.

Knight, (Sax. Cnyt, Fr. Chevalier, Lat. Miles, & Eques Auratus, from his gilt Spurs usually worn) In its Original is said to be properly a Servant; but there is now but one Instance where 'tis so taken, and that is of Knights of the Shire, who serve for their Country in Parliament: In all other Cases it signifies one that bears Arms, who for his Virtue and martial Prowess, is by the King singled from the Rank of Gentlemen, and exalted to a higher Step of Dignity. He who serv'd the King in any Civil or Military Office, was formerly called Miles, which is often mentioned in the old Charters of the Anglo-Saxon Kings; but the Word was after restrained to him that serv'd only upon some military Expedition; or rather to such who by Reason of their Tenure were bound to serve in the Wars: And he that by his Office or Tenure was obliged to perform any military Service, was furnished by the Chief Lord with Arms, and so adoptabatur in militem; which the French call Adouber, and we to Dub such a Person a Knight, &c. By the Statute 1 Ed. 2. c. 1. all Persons having a full Knights Fee of Land, and holding the same by Knights Service, might be compelled to be made Knights. Repealed by 17 Car. 1. c. 20. The Manner of making Knights is thus shortly express'd by Camden: Nostris vero temporibus, qui Equestrem Dignitatem suscipit, flexis genibus leviter in humero percutitur, Princeps his verbis Gallice affatur; Sus vel Sois Chevalier au nom. de Dieu, i. e. Surge aut sis Eques in nomine Dei. This is meant of Knights Bachelors, which is the lowest, but most antient Order of Knighthood with us. Of Knights there have been reckoned two Sorts, Knights Spiritual and Temporal; the Spiritual Knights are so called by Divines in regard of their Spiritual Warfare; the Temporal Knighthood consists of Knights of the Sword, Knights Baneret, of the Bath, Knights of the Garter, &c. Selden's Titles of Honour, pag. 770. The Privilege belonging to Knights, see Fern's Glory of Generosity 116.

Knights Baneret, (Milites Vexillarii) Are made only in Time of War, and is a high Honour: And tho' Knighthood is commonly given for some personal Merit, which therefore dies with the Person; yet John Coupland, for his valiant Service perform'd against the Scots, had the Honour of Baneret conferr'd on him and his Heirs for ever by Patent. 29 Ed. 3. See Baneret.

Knights of the Bath, (Milites Balnei) Have their Name from their Bathing the Night before their Creation. In antient Times before Knights went into the Service, it was usual for them to go into a Bath and wash themselves, and afterwards they were girt with a Girdle; which Custom was constantly observ'd, especially at the Inauguration of our Kings, on which Times Knights were made, who for that Reason were called Knights of the Bath: This Order of Knights was introduc'd by King Hen. 4. and revived in the Reign of King Geo. with great Ceremony; thirty-seven of these Knights being then made, having each three honorary Esquires; and they now wear a red Ribband a-cross their Shoulders; have a Prelate of the Order, who is the Bishop of Rocheſter, several Heralds, and other Officers, &c.

Knights of the Chamber, (Milites Camerae) Seem to be such Knights Bachelors as are made in Time of Peace, because knighted in the King's Chamber, and not in the Field: They are mentioned in Rot. Parl. 29 Ed. 3. 2 Inst. 666.

Knights of the Garter, (Equites Garterii, or Periscelidis) Are an Order of Knights, founded by K. Ed. 3. who after he had obtain'd many notable Victories, for furnishing this honourable Order, made Choice in his own Realm, and all Europe, of Twenty-five the most excellent and renown'd Persons for Virtue and Honour, and ordained himself and his Successors, Kings of England, to be the Sovereigns thereof, and the Rest to be Fellows and Brethren. Smith's Repub. Angl. lib. 1. cap. 20. And according to Camden, and others, this Order was insti-instituted upon King Edward the Third's having great Success in a Battle, wherein the King's Garter was used for a Token: But Polydore Virgil gives it another Original, and says, that this King in the Height of his Glory, the Kings of France and Scotland being both Prisoners in the Tower of London at one Time, first erected this Order; Anno 1350, from the Countess of Salisbury's dropping her Garter, in a Dance before his Majesty; which the King taking up, and seeing some of his Nobles smile, he said Honi soit qui mal y pense, interpreted, Evil be to him that Evil thinketh, which has ever since been the Motto of the Garter, declaring such Veneration should be done to that filken Tie, that the best of them should be proud of enjoying their Honours that Way: Camden in his Britannia saith, that this Order of Knights received great Ornament from K. Ed. 4. And King Charles 1. as an Addition to their Splendor, order'd all the Knights Companions to wear on their upper Garment, the Cross intircled with the Garter and Motto. The honourable Society of this Order is intituled to St. George; and they are a College or Corporation, having a Great Seal, &c. The Site of the College is the Royal Castle of Windfor, with the Chapel of St. George, and the Chapter-house in the said Castle, for their Solemnity on St. George's Day, and at their Feasts and Installations. Besides the King their Sovereign, and Twenty-five Companions, Knights of the Garter, they have a Dean and Canons, &c. and twenty-six Poor Knights, that have no other Subsistence but the Allowance of this House, which is given to them in Respect of their daily Prayer to the Honour of God and St. George; and these are vulgarly called Poor Knights of Windfor. There are also certain Officers belonging to the Order; as Prelate of the Garter, which Office is inherent to the Bishop of Winchester for the Time being; the Chancellor of the Garter, who is the Bishop of Sarum; Register, always Dean of Windfor; the Principal King at Arms, called Garter, to manage and marshal their Solemnities; and the Usher of the Garter, being likewise Usher of the Black Rod. A Knight of the Garter wears daily abroad, a blue Garter deck'd with Gold, Pearl, and precious Stones, on the Left-leg; and in all Places of Assembly, upon his Coat on the Left-side of his Breast, a Star of Silver Embroidery; and the Picture of St. George, enamell'd upon Gold and beset with Diamonds, at the End of a blue Ribbon that crosses the Body from the Left-Shoulder; and when dress'd in his Robes, a Mantle, Collar of SS, &c.

Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, (Milites Sancti Johannis Hierosolomitani) Had their Beginning about the Year 1119, and their Denomination from John, Patriarch of Alexandria, tho' vowed to St. John Baptist their Patron. They had one general Prior, for the Government of the whole Order within England and Scotland; who was the first Prior of England, and sate in the Lords House of Parliament. Their primary Foundation and Abode was first in Hierusalem, and then in the Isle of Rhodes, until they were expelled thence by the Turks; since which their Chief Seat is the Isle of Malta. See 32 H. 8. and Hospitalers.

Knights of Malta. These Knights took their Name and Original from the Time of their Expulsion from Rhodes, Anno 1523. The Island of Malta was then given them by the Emperor

Charles 5. where they now reside, and are therefore called Knights of Malta: They have done great Exploits against the Infidels, especially in the Year 1595.

Knights of Rhodes, The Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, after they removed to Rhode Island. 32 H. 8. c. 24.

Knights Service, (Servitium Militare) Was a Tenure, whereby several Lands in this Kingdom were held of the King, which drew after it Homage, and Service in War, Escuage, Ward, Marriage, &c. But it is taken away by Statute 12 Car. c. 24. A Knight's Fee was so much Inheritance in Land as was sufficient to maintain a Knight; and this was 15 l. per Ann. in the Time of King Hen. 3. But by the Statute 1 Ed. 2. a Knight's Fee was 20 l. a Year: And Sir Tho. Smith in his Repub. Angl. rates it at 40 l. per Annum. Also Sir Edw. Coke says, a Knight's Fee contain'd 680 Acres. 2 Inst. 596. In England, at the Time of William called The Conqueror, there were Sixty thousand two hundred and fifteen Knights Fees; whereof Twenty-eight thousand and fifteen were in the Possession of Religious Houses. Stow's Annals 285. Bract. lib. 5. See Chivalry.

Knights of the Shire, (Milites Comitatus) Otherwise called Knights of Parliament, are two Knights or Gentlemen of Worth, chosen on the King's Writ, in pleno Comitatu, by the Freeholders of every County that can dispend 40 s. a Year; and these, when every Man that had a Knight's Fee was customarily constrained to be a Knight, were obliged to be Milites gladio cincti, for so runs the Writ at this Day; but now Notabiles Armigeri may be chosen. Stat. 1 Hen. 5. c. 1. 10 H. 6. c. 2. 23 H. 6. c. 6. Their Expences were to be born by the County, during their Sitting in Parliament, by the 35 H. 8. c. 11. And as to their Qualifications, &c. Vide 9 Ann. c. 5. and Parliament.

Knights Templars, (Milites Templarii) Were a Religious Order of Knights, instituted in the Year of our Lord 1119, and so called, because they dwelt in Part of the Buildings belonging to the Temple at Jerusalem, and not far from the Sepulchre of our Saviour: They entertain'd Christian Strangers and Pilgrims, and in their Armor led them through the Holy Land, to view the sacred Monuments of Christianity, without Danger from Infidels. This Order was far spread in Christendom, particularly here in England, where it flourish'd in the Time of King Hen. 2. And had in every Nation a particular Governor or Master; but at length some of them at Jerusalem falling away to the Saracens from Christianity, the whole Order was suppress'd by Clemens quintus, Anno 1307. And their Substance given partly to the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, and partly to other Religious. Cassan. de gloria Mundi, par. 9. These Knights at first wore a white Garment; and afterwards in the Pontificate of Pope Eugenius, it was ordained that they should wear a Red Cross: In antient Records they were also called Fratres Militie Templi Solomonis. Landirecta. In the Saxon Times the Duties which were laid upon all that held Land, were term'd Trinoda neceſſitas, viz. Lapis Pacis, The same with Osulum Pacis; as mentioned by Du Cange.

Lapse, (Lapsus) Is a Slip or Omission of a Patron to present to a Church, within Six Months after it becomes void; in which Case we say, that Benefice is in Lapse or lapsed. 13 Eliz. c. 12. And Lapse is defined to be a Title given to the Ordinary to collate to a Benefice, on the Patron's Negligence in Presenting within Six Months; and also to be a Devolution of a Right of Presenting from the Patron to the Bishop; from the Bishop to the Archbishop; and from the Archbishop to the King. Wood's Inst. 158. If after an Avoidance, the Patron doth not present in six Months, the Ordinary hath the next six Months to collate to the Benefice; and if he doth not collate in six Months, then the Metropolitan hath further six Months; and if he doth not collate within his six Months, it then devolves to the Crown. 2 Roll. Abr. 360. Hob. 30. 4 Rep. 17. And the Computation of the six Months, is by the Kalendar Months, exclusive of the Day in which the Church becomes void. 6 Rep. 62. Where a Patron presents his Clerk before the Bishop hath collated, the Presentation is good notwithstanding the six Months are past, and shall bar the Bishop who cannot take any Advantage of the Lapse: And so if the Patron makes his Presentation before the Archbishop hath collated, though twelve Months are past: But if the Bishop collates after twelve Months, this bars not the Archbishop. 2 Roll. Abr. 369. 2 Inst. 273. If a Bishop doth not collate to Benefices of his own Gift, they lapse at the End of six Months to the Archbishop; and if the Archbishop neglects to collate within six Months, to a Benefice of his Gift, the King shall have it by Lapse. Dr. & Stud. cap. 36. And if a Church continues void several Years by Lapse, the Successor of the King may present. Cro. Car. 258. But if the King hath a Title to present by Lapse, and he suffers the Patron to present, and the Presentee dies, or resigns before the King hath presented, if the Presentation is real and not by Covin, he hath lost his Presentation, for Lapse is but for the first and next Turn; and by the Death of the Incumbent, a new Title is given to the Patron; though it has been adjudged that the King in such Case may present at any Time as long as that Presentee is Incumbent. 2 Cro. 216. 7 Rep. Moor 244. When the Patronage of the Church is litigious, and one Party doth recover against the other in a Quare Impedit, if the Bishop be not named in the Writ, and six Months pass while the Suit is depending, Lapse shall incur to the Bishop: If the Bishop be named in the Writ, then neither the Bishop, Archbishop, or King, can take the Benefice by Lapse; and yet it is said if the Patron within the six Months brings a Quare Impedit against the Bishop, and then the six Months pass without any Presentation by the Patron, Lapse shall incur to the Bishop. 2 Roll. Abr. 365. 6 Rep. 52. 1 Inst. 344. Hob. 270. Though where the Bishop is a Disturber, or the Church remains void above six Months by his Fault, there shall be no Lapse. 1 Inst. 344. A Clerk presented being refused by the Bishop for any sufficient Cause, as Illiterature, ill Life, &c. he is to give the Patron Notice of it, that another may be presented in due Time, otherwise the Bishop shall not collate by Lapse; because he shall not take Advantage of his own Wrong, in not giving Notice to the Patron as he ought to do by Law. Dyer 293. And if an Avoidance is by Resignation, which must necessarily be to the Bishop by the Act of the Incumbent; or by Deprivation, which is the Act of the Law, Lapse shall not incur to the Bishop, till six Months after Notice given by him to the Patron: When the Church becomes void by the Death of the Incumbent, &c. the Patron must present in six Months without Notice from the Bishop, or shall lose his Presentation by Lapse. Dyer 293, 327. 1 Inst. 135. 4 Rep. 75. In the Cases of Deprivation and Resignation, where the Patron is to have Notice before the Church can lapse, the Patron is not bound to take Notice from any Body but the Bishop himself, or other Ordinary, which must be personally given to the Party, if he live in the same County; and such Notice must express in certain the Cause of Deprivation, &c. If the Patron live in a Foreign County, then the Notice may be published in the Parish-Church, and affixed on the Church door. Cro. Eliz. 119. Dyer 328. A Lapse may incur against an Infant or Feme Covert, if they do not present within six Months. 1 Inst. 246. But there is no Lapse against the King, who may take his own Time; and Plenary shall be no Bar against the King's Title, because Nullum tempus occurrit Regi. 2 Inst. 273. Dyer 351. By Presentation and Institution, a Lapse is prevented; though the Clerk is never inducted: And a Donative cannot lapse, either to the Ordinary or the King. 2 Inst. 273.

Larceny, (Fr. Larrecin, Lat. Latrocinium) Is a Theft or Felony of another's Goods, in his Absence; and in Respect of the Thing stolen, it is either great or small: Grand Larceny is a felonious Taking and Carrying away the personal Goods of another, above the Value of 12 d. not from the Person, or by Night, in the House of the Owner; and Petit Larceny is when the Goods stolen do not exceed the Value of 12 d. It agrees with Grand Larceny in all Things except only the Value of the Goods; so that wherever an Offence would be Grand Larceny, if the Thing stolen was above 12 d. Value, it is Petit Larceny if it be but of that Value, or under. H. P. C. 60, 69. If two Persons steal Goods to the Value of 13 d. it is Grand Larceny in both; and if one at different Times steals divers Parcels of Goods from the same Person, which together exceed the Value of 12 d. they may be put together in one Indictment, and the Offender found Guilty of Grand Larceny; but this is very seldom done: On the contrary, the Jury sometimes, where it is an Offender's first Offence, &c. find it specially, as they may, that the Goods are of but 10 d. Value; whereby it will be only Petit Larceny, though the Offender is indicted for stealing Things of the Value of 30 or 40 s. H. P. C. 70. Pult. 125. 3 Inst. 109. Hest. Rep. 66. And Grand Larceny is a Felony punished with Death; Petit Larceny only with Whipping, or other Corporal Punishment, &c. But the Offenders may have the Benefit of Transportation by Statute. There is not only Simple Larceny, taking away the Goods of another, but a mixt or complicated Larceny, which has a further Degree of Guilt in it, and is either a Taking from the Person, or from the House; as in case of Robbery, Burglary, &c. Also there is a Private Larceny from a Man's Person, without his Knowledge; or an Open Larceny, with his Knowledge; Private, by picking the Pocket, &c. Openly, where a Thief takes off my Hat, or Periwig, from my Head, and runs away with it: And as to Private Larceny from the Person above 12 d. it is excluded Clergy, if laid in the Indictment as done clam & secreta, &c. according to the Words of the Stat. 8 Eliz. but otherwise it is not; Open Larceny with Knowledge, by the Common Law is within the Benefit of Clergy. H.P.C. 75. Dalt. c. 110. 3 Inst. 68. Dyer 224. Of all moveable Goods, the Property whereof is in any Person, Felony or Larceny may be committed; as Money, Household-stuff, Hay, Corn and Trees severed from the Ground, &c. But the Goods stolen must be mere Personal, to make it Larceny; for if it be of any Thing in the Realty, or fixed to the Freehold; as Corn, or Fruit growing, not severed, Lead on a Church, &c. it is not Larceny. 3 Inst. 109. 8 Rep. 33. Dalt. 372. And of Paper and Parchment, on which Conveyances are written concerning Lands, or Obligations, &c. Larceny cannot be committed. Wood's Inst. 366. Where a Person finds the Goods of another that are lost, and converts them to his own Use it is no Larceny. H.P.C. 61. To take away Goods the Owner of which is unknown, sometimes is no Larceny; such as Treasure-Trove, Wrecks, Waifs, Strays, before Seizure by the Person who hath a Right to the same; though in other Cases, a Man may be Guilty of Larceny in taking away Goods, the Owner whereof is not known. Dalt. 370. 3 Inst. 108. H.P.C. 67. And in some extraordinary Cases, the Law will rather feign a Property, where in Strictness there is none, than suffer an Offender to escape Justice. 1 Hawk. P.C. 94. A Man may commit Larceny, by taking away his own Goods, in the Hands of another; where the Owner delivers Goods to a Carrier, and afterwards secretly steals them from him, with an Intent to charge him for them, &c. because the Carrier had a special Property, and the Possession for a Time. 3 Inst. 110. Dalt. 373. Pult. 126. To make the Crime of Larceny, there must be a felonious Taking; or an Intent of stealing the Thing, when it comes first to the Hands of the Offender, at the very Time of the Receiving. 3 Inst. 107. Dalt. 367. And if one intending to steal Goods, gets Possession of them by Ejectment, Replevin, or other Process at Law unduly obtained, by false Oath, &c. it is a felonious Taking. 3 Inst. 64. Kel. Rep. 43. 44. If a Man hath Possession of Goods once lawfully, though he afterwards carry them away with an ill Intention, it is no Larceny: Where a Taylor imbezils Cloth delivered to him, to make a Suit of Clothes, &c. it is not Felony. H.P.C. 61. 5 Rep. 31. And if I lend a Person my Horse to go to a certain Place, and he goes there, and then rides away with him, it is not Larceny; but Remedy is to be had by Action for the Damage: Though if one comes on Pretence to buy a Horse, and the Owner gives the Stranger Leave to ride him, if he rides away with the Horse, it is Felony; for here an Intention is implied. Wood's Inst. 364. 365. In the above Cases, there is a lawful Possession by Delivery, to extenuate the Offence: But Persons having the Possession of Goods by Delivery, may in some Instances be guilty of Felony, by taking away Part thereof; as if a Carrier open a Pack, and take out Part of the Goods; a Miller, who has Corn to grind, takes out Part of the same, with an Intent to steal it, &c. in which Cases, the Possession of Part, distinct from the Whole, was gained by Wrong, and not delivered by the Owner, &c. H.P.C. 62. S.P.C. 25. 1 Hawk. P.C. 90. If a Lodger hath the Possession of Goods and Furniture in a House, by the Consent and Delivery of the Owner, the Taking away, Imbeziling or Purloining thereof, with an Intent to steal them, is Felony and Larceny. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. And by Statute, if a Servant being of the Age of eighteen Years, and not an Apprentice, goes away with Goods of his Master or Mistress delivered him to keep; or being in his Service, imbezils them, or converts them to his own Use, with Intention to steal them, it is Felony, if the Goods are of the Value of 40 s. or above. 21 H. 8. cap. 7. Also if one Servant delivers the Goods to another Servant, this is a Delivery by the Master; yet if the Master or another Servant delivers a Bond, or Cattle to sell, and the Servant goes away with the Bond and receives the Money thereon due, or receives the Money for the Cattle sold, and goes away with the same, this is no Felony or Larceny within the Statute. Dalt. 388. H.P.C. 62. 3 Inst. 105. So if a Servant receives his Master's Rents; for the Master did not deliver the Money to the Servant; and it must be of Things delivered to keep: And if Goods delivered to the Servant to keep, are under 40 s. Value, and he goes away with them, this is only a Breach of Trust, by Reason of the Delivery; but if the Goods were not delivered to him, it is Felony and Larceny to go away with or imbezil them, though under the Value of 40 s. &c. Dalt. 369. See 12 Ann. c. 7. A Person that hath the bare Charge of Goods, and not the Possession; as a Butler that hath the Charge of Plate, a Shepherd of Sheep, a Servant who hath the Charge of a Chamber by Delivery of the Key to him, &c. may be guilty of Larceny: If my Shepherd whom I trust with my Sheep, suffers them by his Negligence to be lost, drowned, &c. Action on the Case lies. H.P.C. 61. 3 Inst. 108. If a Man reduc'd to extrem Necessity, (not owing to his own Unthriftiness) steals Victuals merely to satisfy his present Hunger, and keep him from Starving, by our ancient Books, this is neither Felony nor Larceny. 1 Hawk. P.C. 93. An Acquittal of Larceny in one County, may be pleaded in Bar of a subsequent Prosecution for the same Stealing in another County: And an Averment that the Offences in both Indictments are the same, may be made out by Witnesses, or Inquest of Office, without putting it to Trial by Jury; though that of latter Years hath been the usual Method. 2 Hawk. P.C. 370. But it is no Plea in Appeal of Larceny, that the Defendant hath been found Not guilty in Action of Trespas brought against him by the same Plaintiff for the same Goods, for Larceny and Trespas are entirely different; and a Bar in an Action of an inferior Nature, will not bar another of a Superior. Ibid. 371. If a Person be indicted for Felony or Larceny generally, and upon the Evidence it appears that the Fact is but a bare Trespas, he cannot be found Guilty and have Judgment on the Trespas, but ought to be indicted anew, tho' it may be otherwise where the Jury find a special Verdict, or when the

the Fact is specially laid, &c. In Trespass where the Taking is felonious, no Verdict ought to be given, unless the Defendant hath before been tried for the Felony. 2 Hawk. 440. All Felony includes Trespass, so that if the Party be Guilty of no Trespass in taking the Goods, he cannot be Guilty of Felony or Larceny in carrying them away; and in every Indictment of Larceny, there must be the Words Felonice cepit & asportavit, &c. H. P. C. 61. 1 Hawk. 89. See Felony.

Lathreve, Leidgrebe or Trithingrebe, Was an Officer under the Saxon Government, who had Authority over a third Part of the County; and whose Territory was therefore called Trithing, otherwise a Leid or Leithen, in which Manner the County of Kent is still divided; and the Rapes in Sussex seem to answer the same. As to the Jurisdiction of this Officer, those Matters that could not be determined in the Hundred-Court, were thence brought to the Trithing, where all the principal Men of three or more Hundreds being assembled by the Lathreve or Trithingrebe did debate and decide it; or if they could not, then the Lathreve sent it up to the County-Court, to be there finally determined. —Suoque olim subaudiens magistratui quem Ledgevium appellabant. Latin. There are three Sorts of Latin. 1. Good Latin allowed by Grammarians and Lawyers. 2. False or incongruous Latin, which shall abate Original Writs; but will not make void any judicial Writ, Declaration, Plea, &c. And 3. Words of Art, known only to the Sages of the Law; and not to Grammarians, called Lawyers Latin. 2 Lill. Abr. 146, 147. Stat. 36 Ed. 3. c. 15. When there is no Latin for a Thing, if a Word be made which hath some Countenance of Latin, and an Anglice is added to it, it will be good; as Velvetum, Anglice Velvet, &c. 10 Rep. 133. And if a Latin Word be falsely englished, the English Word shall be adjudged void, and the Latin Word stand. 5 Rep. 127. March. 16. See Indictment.

Latinarius, An Interpreter of Latin, or Latiner; which may be derived from the Fr. Latiner. 2 Inst. 515.

Latitat, Is a Writ whereby all Men are originally called to answer in personal Actions in the King's Bench; having its Name upon a Supposition that the Defendant doth lurk and lie hid, and cannot be found in the County of Middlesex to be taken by Bill, but is gone into some other County, to the Sheriff of which, this Writ is directed to apprehend him there. F. N. B. 78. Terms de Ley 421. The Original of it is this; In ancient Time, while the King's Bench was moveable, when any Man was sued, a Writ was sent forth to the Sheriff of the County where the Court was resident, called a Bill of Middlesex, to take him; and if the Sheriff returned Non est Inventus, &c. then was a second Writ sued out, that had these Words, Cum Testatum est quod Latitat, &c. and thereby the Sheriff was commanded to attach the Party in any other Place, where he might be found: And when the Tribunal of the King's Bench came to be settled at Westminster, the same Course was observ'd for a long Time; but afterwards, by the Contrivance of Clerks, it was devised to put both these Writs into one, and so to attach the Defendant upon a Fiction that he was not in the County of Middlesex, but lurking elsewhere; and that therefore he was to be apprehended by the Sheriff of the County where he was suspected to be and lie hid: It is called a Testatum Writ, issuing out of B. R. grounded upon a Bill of Middlesex, supposed to be sued out before, and returned Non est Inventus: And a Latitat out of the King's Bench is in Nature of the Original Writ Clausum fregit, on which the Practice is in the Common Pleas. 2 Lill. Abr. 147. A Latitat cannot issue into the County of Middlesex, except the Court remove out of Middlesex, into another County; for in the County where the Court of B. R. is, the Process must be by Bill, and out of the

the County by Latitat. Ibid. If the Writ of Latitat is issued during Term-Time, the Teste thereof is to be the first Day of the Term; and if in the Vacation, it must be the last Day of the Term preceding: A Note is to be made of it on Paper in Court-hand, and the Latitat being filled up, is to be carried with the Note to the King's Bench Office, and there the Writ is signed; from whence it is carried to the Seal-Office, where it is sealed, and the Day stamp'd on the Backside; and then a Warrant is to be procured from the Sheriff of the County to execute the Writ. Bract. Solic. 217.

Lex, (In Sax. Lag, Lat. Lex, from Lego or Legendo, Choosing, or rather à Ligando binding) Is the Rule and Bond of Men's Actions: And according to Bracton, Lex est Sanctio iusta iubens Ho-

nesta & prohibens Contraria: And the Divine Schoolman says, Lex Humana est quoddam dictamen rationis, quo diriguntur humani actus. The Law is Rectum, as it discovers that which is crooked or wrong; and these three Qualities are incident to the Law, viz. It must be Iusta, Iubens Honesta, Prohibens Contraria: And Iusta requires five Properties; Possibilis, Necessaria, Conveniens, Manifesta, nullo privata commodo. 2 Co. Inst. 56, 587. Laws are said to be Arbitrary, or Natural Laws; the last of which, are essentially just and good, and bind every where and in all Places where they are observed: Arbitrary Laws are either concerning such Matter as is in its self morally indifferent, in which Case both the Law and the Matter, and Subject of it is likewise indifferent, or concerning the natural Law it self, and the Regulating thereof; and all arbitrary Laws are founded in Convenience, and depend upon the Authority of the Legislative Power which appoints and makes them, and are for maintaining publick Order: Those which are natural Laws, are from God; but those which are arbitrary, are properly humane and positive Institutions. Selden on Fortescue, cap. 17. The learned Selden tells us, that the Laws of any Country began, when there first began to be a State in the Land: And that we may consider the World as one universal Society, and then that Law by which Nations are governed, is called Ius gentium; if we consider the World as made up of particular Nations, the Law which regulates the publick Order and Right of them is termed Ius publicum; and that Law which determines the private Rights of Men, is called Ius civile. Ibid. No Law can oblige a People without their Consent; now this Consent is either Verbis or Factis, i. e. 'tis expressed by Writing, or implied by Deeds and Actions; and where a Law is grounded on an implied Assent, rebus & factis, 'tis either Common Law, or Custom; if it is universal, it is Common Law; and if particular to this or that Place, then 'tis Custom. 3 Salk. Rep. 112. The Law in this Land hath been variable; the Roman Laws were in Use anciently in Britain, when the Romans had several Colonies here, each of which was governed by the Roman Laws: Afterwards we had the Laws called Merchenlage, West Saxonlage and Danelage; all reduced into a Body, and made one by King Edw. Confess. Magn. Chart. cap. 1 & 14. Camd. Britan. 94. At present the Laws of England are divided into three Parts: 1. The Common Law, which is the most ancient and general Law of the Realm, and common to the whole Kingdom; being appropriate thereto, and having no Dependence upon any Foreign Law whatsoever. 2. Statutes, or Acts of Parliament, made and passed by the King and the Lords and Commons in Parliament; being a Reserve for the Government to provide against new Mischiefs arising, through the Corruption of the Times: And by this the Common Law is amended where defective, for the Suppression of publick Evils; though where the Common Law and Statute Law concur or interfere, the Common Law shall be preferred. 3. Particular Customs; but they must be particular, for a general Custom is Part of the Common Law of the Land. Co. Lit. 15, 115. There is another Division of our Laws, more large and particular; as into the Prerogative or Crown Law; the Law and Custom of Parliament; the Common Law; the Statute Law; Reasonable Customs; the Law of Arms, War and Chivalry; Eccle-

Ecclesiastical or Canon Laws; Civil Law, in certain Courts and Cases; Forest Law; the Law of Marque and Reprisal; the Law of Merchants; the Law and Privilege of the Stannaries, &c. But this large Division may be reduced to the common Division; and all is founded on the Law of Nature or Reason, and the revealed Law of God, as all other Laws ought to be. 1 Co. Inst. 11. And the Original Laws were the Laws of Nature, grounded upon right Reason and Honesty; our circumstantiated Laws are only to fix a Rule for an equal and mutual Community in Things, which God and Nature gave us to dispose of: The Use of the Law is to secure the Property of what we enjoy; and the Objects of it concern Persons, their Estates, Crimes and Misdemeanors, Courts of Justice, &c. See Common Law.

Law hath also a special Signification, wherein it is taken for that which is lawful with us, and not elsewhere; as Tenant by the Curtesy of England, is called Tenant by the Law of England.

Law of Arms, (Lex Armorum) Is that Law which gives Precepts how to proclaim War, make and observe Leagues and Treaties, to assault and encounter an Enemy, and punish Offenders in the Camp, &c. The Law and Judgment of Arms are necessary between two strange Princes of equal Power, who have no other Method of determining their Controversies, because they have no superior nor ordinary Judge, but are supreme and publick Persons; and by the Law of Arms, Kings obtain their Rights, Rebels are reduced to Obedience, and Peace is established: But when the Laws of Arms and War do rule, the Civil Laws are of little or no Force. Treat. Laws 57. Common Things concerning Arms and War, are under the Cognizance of the Constable and Marshal of England. 13 R. 2.

Law-Books. All Books writ in the Law, are either Historical, as the Year-Books; Explanatory, such as Staundford's Treatise of the Prerogative Royal; Miscellaneous, as the Abridgments of the Law; or Monological, being on one certain Subject, such as Lambard's Justice of Peace, &c. Fulbeck's Parall. cap. 3. And our Books of Reports have such great Weight with the Judges, that many of them are as highly valued, as the Responsa Prudentum among the Romans, which were Authoritative. Wood's Inst. 10. Authors of Law-Books. Vide Common Law.

Law-Day, (Lagedayum) Called also View of Frank-pledge, or Court-Leet, was any Day of open Court; and commonly used for the Courts of a County or Hundred. Et quiete sint de Sectis Comitatum & Hundredorum nostrorum, de visu Franci-plegii & Lawdayorum, &c. Chart. 39 Hen. 3.

Lawing of Dogs, Is the Cutting off several Claws of the Fore-feet of Dogs in the Forest. Chart. Forest. c. 6. See Expediate.

Lawless Court, Is a Court held on Kingshill, at Rochford in Essex, on Wednesday Morning next after Michaelmas Day yearly, at Cock-crowing; at which Court, they whisper, and have no Candle, nor any Pen and Ink, but a Coal: And he that owes Suit or Service there, and appears not, forfeits double his Rent: This Court is mentioned by Camden, who says, that the servile Attendance was imposed on the Tenants, for conspiring at the like unreasonable Time to raise a Commotion. Camd. Britan. 441. It belongs to the Honour of Raleigh, and is called Lawless, because held at an unlawful Hour; or Quia dicta sine

Lege. The Title of it is in Rhime, and in the Court-Rolls runs thus:

Lawless Man, (Exlex) Is he that is an Out-law. Pro exlege tenebitur, cum Principi non obediat nec Legi, & tunc utlagabitur sicut ille qui est extra Legem, sicut Laugheless Man. Bract. lib. 3. c. 11.

Law of Marque, (From the Germ. March, i. e. Limes) Is where they that are driven to it, do take the Shipping or Goods of that People of whom they have received Wrong, and cannot get ordinary Justice in another Territory, when they can take them within their own Bounds and Precincts. Stat. 27 Ed. 3. c. 17.

Law Merchant, (Lex Mercatoria) Is a special Law differing from the Common Law of England, proper to Merchants, and become a Part of the Laws of the Realm: And the Charia Mercatoria 31 Ed. 1. grants this perpetual Privilege to Merchants, coming into this Kingdom: Quod omnes Ballivi, Ministri Feriarum, Civitatum, Burgorum & Villarum Mercatoriarum Mercatoribus antedictis comparantibus coram eis celerem Fugitiam facient de die in diem sine dilatione; secundum Legem Mercatoriam, de universis & singulis que per eandem Legem poterunt terminari. See 13 Ed. 1. and 27 Ed. 3. c. 8. Co. Lit. 182. See Custom of Merchants.

Law Spiritual, (Lex Spiritualis) Is the Ecclesiastical Law, allowed by our Laws where it is not against the Common Law, nor the Statutes and Customs of the Kingdom: And regularly according to such Ecclesiastical or Spiritual Laws, the Bishops and other Ecclesiastical Judges, do proceed in Causes within their Cognitance. Co. Lit. 344. This was also called Law Christian; and in Opposition to it, the Common Law was often called Lex Mundata, Terrena, &c.

Lawyer, (Legista, Legisperitus, Furis, consultus) By the Saxons called Labman, is a Counsellor, or one learned in the Law.

Lay-fee, (Feodum Laicum) Land held in Fee from a Lay Lord, by the common Services to which military Tenure was subject; as distinguished from the Ecclesiastical Holding in Frankalmoign, discharged from those Burdens. Kennet's Gloss.

Layman, Is one that is not of the Clergy ; and the Lat. Word Laicus signifies as much as Populus, that which is common to the People, or belongs to the Laity. Litt. Dict.

Layfall, (Sax.) A Place to lay Dung or Soil in. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Lazzi. The Saxons divided the People of the Land into three Ranks : The First they called Edhilingi, which were such as are now Nobility : The Second were termed Frilingi, from Friling signifying he that was born a Freeman, or of Parents not subject to any Servitude, which are the present Gentry : And the Third and Last were called Lazzi, as born to Labour, and being of a more servile State than our Servants, because they could not depart from their Service without the Leave of the Lord ; but were fix'd to the Land where born, and in the Nature of Slaves : And hence the Word Lazzi or Lazy, signifies those of a servile Condition. Nithardus de Saxonibus, lib. 4.

Lea of Barn, A Quantity of Yarn, so called ; and at Kidderminster it is to contain 200 Threads, on a Reel four Yards about. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Leche or Leak, (From Sax. Leccian, to let out Water) In the Bishoprick of Durham is used for a Gutter ; and in Yorkshire any Slough or watry Hole upon the Road, is called by this Name : Also the Water-Tub or Vessel to put Ashes in to make a Lee for Washing of Cloaths, is in some Parts of England termed a Leche. Cowel.

Leakage, Is an Allowance of Twelve per Cent, to Merchants importing Wine out of the Customs ; and of two Barrels in Twenty-two of Ale, to Brewers, &c. out of the Duty of Excise. Merch. Dict.

Leap, A Net, Engine or Weel, made of Twigs, to catch Fish in. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 23. See Lepa.

Leap Year, Every fourth Year, having one Day more than other Years. Vide Bissextile.

Lease, (Dimissio, from the Fr. Laiffer, i. e. Dimittere, to depart with or forego) Is a Demise or Letting of Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments to another, for Term of Life, Years, or at Will, for a Rent reserved. Co. Lit. 43. Leases are either in Writing, or by Word of Mouth, when they are called Leases Parol ; and it is said not to be material whether any Rent is reserved upon a Lease for Life, or Years, except in the Case of Leases by Tenant in Tail, &c. according to the Statute 32 Hen. 8. A Lease for Life requires Livery of Seisin ; and generally to the Making of a good Lease, several Things necessarily concur ; there must be a Lessor, not restrained to make a Lease ; a Lessee not disabled to receive it ; a Thing demised which is demisable, and a sufficient Description of the Thing demised, &c. If it be for Years, it must have a certain Commencement and Determination ; it is to have all the usual Ceremonies, as Sealing, Delivery, &c. and there must be an Acceptance of the Thing demised. Lit. 56. 1 Inst. 46. Plowd. 273, 523. A Demise having no certain Commencement is void : For every Contract sufficient to make a Lease, ought to have Certainty in Commencement, in the Continuance, and in the End. Vaugh. 85. 6 Rep. 35. A Lease at Will is at the Will of the Lessor or Lessee ; or regularly at the Will of both Parties. 1 Inst. 55. All Estates, Interests of Freeholds, or Terms for Years in Lands, &c. not put in Writing, and signed by the Parties, shall have no greater Effect than as Estates at Will ; unless it be of Leases not exceeding three Years from the Making, wherein the Rent reserved shall be two Thirds of the Value of the Thing demised. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. Leases exceeding three Years must be made in Writing ; and if the Substance of a Lease be put in Writing, and signed by the Parties, though it be not sealed, it shall have the Effect of a Lease for Years, &c. Wood's Inst. 266. Articles with Covenants to let and make a Lease of Lands, for a certain Term, at so much Rent, hath been adjudged a Lease. Cro. Eliz. 486. In Covenant, the Words Have, Possess and Occupy Lands, in Consideration of an yearly Rent, without the Word Demise, it hath been held a good Lease : And a Licence to occupy, take the Profits, &c. which passeth an Interest, amounts to a Lease. 3 Bulfr. 204. 3 Salk. 223. A Person seised of an Estate in Fee-simple, in his own Right, of any Lands or Tenements, may make a Lease of it for what Lives or Years he will ; and he that is seised of an Estate-tail in Lands, may make a Lease of it for his own Life, but not longer ; except it be by Fine or Recovery, or Lease warranted by the Stat. 32 H. 8. And if Tenant in Tail, or for Life, make a Lease generally, it shall be construed for his own Life. 1 Inst. 42. He that is seised of an Estate for Life, may make a Lease for his Life, according as he is seised ; also he may make a Lease for Years of the Estate, and it shall be good as long as the Estate for Life doth last : One possessed of Lands for Years, may make a Lease of all the Years, except one Day, or any short Part of the Term ; it is to be granted for a less Term than the Maker hath in the Lands ; for if all the Estate is granted, it is an Assignment : And if Lessee for Years makes a Lease for Life, the Lessee may enjoy it for the Lessor's Life, if the Term of Years lasts so long ; but if he gives Liberty and Seisin upon it, this is a Forfeiture of the Estate for Years. Wood's Inst. 267. Jointenants, Tenants in Common, and Coparceners, may make Leases for Life, Years, or at Will, of their own Parts, and shall bind their Companions : And in some Cases, Persons as are not seised of Lands in Fee, &c. may make Leases for Life or Years, by special Power enabling them to do it, when the Authority must be exactly pursued. Ibid. But there is a Difference, where there is a general Power to make Leases, and a particular Power. 8 Rep. 69. Every Lease must be made for a less Time than the Lessor hath in the Premises : A Lease for Life cannot be made to commence in futuro, by the Common Law ; because Livery cannot be made to a future Estate : Tho' where a Lease is made for Life, Habendum at a Day to come, and after the Day the Lessor makes Livery, there it shall be good ; and a Lease in Reversion may be made for Life, which commences at a Day that is future. 5 Rep. 94. Hob. 314. 1 Inst. 5. A Lease for Years may begin from a Day past, or to come ; as Michaelmas last, Christmas next, three or four Years after, or after the Death of the Lessor, &c. Though a Term cannot commence upon a Contingency, which depends on another Contingency. 1 Inst. 5. 1 Rep. 156. And if a Man makes a Lease to another for so many Years as a third Person shall name, when the Years are named by such Person, it is good for so many Years. 1 Inst. 45. So if a Person lets his Lands for as many Years as he hath in the Manor of D. and he hath then a Term for ten Years, this is a good Lease for ten Years ; and in the like Cases, Cases, by referring to a Certainty, it may be made good and certain. Ibid. A Lease may be made for Life or Years, of any Thing that lies in Livery or Grant; but Leases for Years ought to be made of such Lands, &c. whereunto the Lessor may come to distrain; not of incorporeal Inheritances. 1 Inst. 47. And they may be for the Term of One thousand Years, or any Number of Years, Months or Weeks; or be from Week to Week, &c. for three or four Years, and be good for those Years: And a Tenant for Half a Year, or a Quarter of a Year, is Tenant for Years. 1 Inst. 6. If one makes a Lease for a Year, and so from Year to Year, it is a Lease for two Years; and afterwards it is but an Estate at Will. 1 Mod. 4. 1 Lutw. 213. And if from three Years to three Years, it is a good Lease for six Years: Also if a Man make a Lease for Years, without saying for how many, it may be good for two Years, to answer the plural Number. Wood's Inst. 265. A Lessee hath a Term for a Year by Parol, and so from Year to Year, so long as both Parties please; if the Lessee enters on a second Year, he is bound for that Year, and so on: And if there is a Lease by Deed for a Year, and so from Year to Year as long as both Parties agree, this is binding but for one Year; though if the Lessee enter upon the second Year, he is for that Year bound: If 'tis for a Year, and so from Year to Year, so long as both Parties agree till six Years expire; this is a Lease for six Years, but determinable every Year at the Will of either Party: But if it is for a Year, and so from Year to Year till six Years determine, this is a certain Lease for six Years; adjudged by Holt Chief Justice. Mod. Caf. 215. A Parson makes a Lease of his Glebe, for so many Years as he shall be Parson, this cannot be made certain; but if he makes a Lease for three Years, and so from three Years to three Years, so long as he shall be Parson, this is a good Lease for six Years, if he continues Parson so long. 6 Rep. 35. 3 Cro. 511. And if one make a Lease for twenty-one Years, if the Lessee shall so long live; this is a good Lease for Years, and a Certainty in an Uncertainty. 1 Inst. 46. If a Lease be made to A. B. during his own Life, and the Lives of C. and D. it is one entire Estate of Freehold, and shall continue during the three Lives, and the Life of the Survivor of them; and though the Lessee can have it no longer than his own Life, yet his Assignee shall have the Benefit of it so long as the other two are living. 5 Rep. 13. Moor 32. Where one grants Land by Lease to A. B. and C. D. to hold to them during their Lives, although the Words and the longest Liver of them be omitted, they shall hold it during the Life of the longest Liver. 5 Rep. 9. A Lease is made to a Person for sixty Years, if A. B. and C. D. so long live; and afterwards A. B. dies, by his Death the Lease is determined: Though if the Lease be made to one for the Lives of A. B. and C. D. the Freehold doth not determine by the Death of one of them; and if in the other Case of a Term, the Words or either of them be inserted in the Lease, it will be good for both their Lives. 13 Rep. 66. A Lease was made to a Man for ninety-nine Years, if he should so long live; and if he died within the Term, the Son to have it for the Residue of the Term: This was adjudged void as to the Son, because there can be no Limitation of the Residue of a Term which is determined. Cro. Eliz.

216. A Lease is made for Twenty-one Years, if the Lessee live so long, and continue in the Service of the Lessor; the Lessor died within the Term, and yet it was held that the Lease continued, for it was by the Act of God that the Lessee could serve no longer. Cro. Eliz. 643. If a Lease be to a Man, and to her whom he shall take to be his Wife, it is void: Because there ought to be such Persons at the Time of the Commencement of the Lease which might take. 4 Leon. 158. When a Lease in Reversion is granted as such after another Lease, and that Lease is void by Rasure, &c. the reversionary Lease expectant upon the Lease for Years that is void, is void also. Cro. Car. 289. But where a Man recites a Lease, when in Truth there is no Lease; or a Lease which is void, and misrecites the same in a Point material, and grants a further Lease to commence after the Determination thereof; in such Case the new Lease shall begin from the Time of Delivery. Dyer 93. 6 Rep. 36. Vaugh. 73, 80, &c. A Lease that has an impossible Date for its Commencement, is said to be void; and an uncertain Limitation makes the Lease void, because it being Part of the Agreement, the Court cannot determine what the Contract was. 1 Mod. 180. But it hath been adjudged, where a Lease bears a Date which is impossible, the Term shall begin from the Delivery, as if there was no Date. 1 Inst. 40. If a Lease be to hold from the Day of the Date, the Day it self is excluded; otherwise the Day of Delivery is inclusive. 5 Rep. 2. A Man makes a Lease for Years to one, and afterwards makes a Lease for Years to another of the same Land; the second Lease is not void, but shall be good for so many Years thereof, as shall come after the first Lease ended. Noy's Max. 67. And if one make a Lease for Years, and afterwards the Lessor enters upon the Lands let, before the Term is expired, and makes a Lease of these Lands to another; this second Lease is a good Lease until the Lessee doth re-enter, and then the first Lease is revived, and he is in thereby. 2 Lill. Abr. 152. A Lease which is only voidable, and not absolutely void, must be made void by the Lessor by Re-entry; but if a Lease be void absolutely, there needs no Re-entry: And as a voidable Lease is made void by Re-entry, and putting out the Lessee; so it is affirmed by accepting and receiving the Rent, which acknowledges the Lessee to be Tenant. 21 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. 149. If a Lessor accepts of Rent of an Assignee of a Lease, having Knowledge of the Assignment, he may not afterwards charge the Lessee with the Rent in Action of Debt. 3 Rep. 23. And where a Lessee for Years accepts of a less Term from the Lessor, even by Word, it is said this is a Surrender of the Term which he had by Deed. Style 448. When a Term for Years in Lease, and a Fee-simple, meet in one Person, the Lease is drowned in the Inheritance; yet in some Cases it may have Continuance, to make good Charges and Payments, &c. Poph. 39. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1106. If a Lease for Years is made to a Man and his Heirs, it shall go to his Executors. 1 Inst. 46, 388. And a Lease for Years, notwithstanding it be a very long Lease, cannot be intailed, but may be assigned in Trust to several Uses. 2 Lill. Abr. 150. If such a Lease comes to be limited in Tail, the Law allows not a present Remainder to be limited thereupon. Ibid. Lessee for Years, though for never so great a Term, has only a Chattel; but Tenant for Life hath a Freehold. 1 Inst. 6. A Lease is sealed by the Lessor, and the Lessee hath not sealed the Counterpart, Action of Covenant may be brought upon the Lease against the Lessor: But where the Lease is sealed by the Lessee, and not the Lessor, nothing operates. Yelv. 18. Owen 100. A Man, out of Possession, cannot make a Lease of Lands, without Entering and Sealing the Lease upon the Land. Dalish. 81. The Lessee is to enter on the Premises let; and such Lessee for Years is not in Possession, so as to bring Trespass, &c. until actual Entry; but he may grant over his Term before Entry. 1 Inst. 46. 2 Lill. 160. A Lessee of a future Interest never enters by Virtue of his Term, but enters before, and continues after the Commencement of the Term; and if then the Lessor ousts him, the Lessee may assign over his Term off from the Land. 1 Lev. 47. But a Lease to begin at Michaelmas, if the Lessee enters before Michaelmas, and continues the Possession immediately, it is a Disseisin. Ibid. 46. Where Land and Mines are leased to a Tenant, it only extends to the open Mines; and the Lessee shall not have any others, if there are such: A Man demises Land and Timber, the Lessee is not impowered to sell it. 2 Lev. 184. 2 Mod. 193. If a Lease be made of a Close of Land, by a certain Name, in the Parish of A. in the County of B. whereas the Close is in another County, the said Parish extending into both Counties; such a Lease is good to pass such Land: But where a House is leased, without a Name, and the Parish is mistaken; it hath been held otherwise. Dyer 292, 276. A Man makes a Lease of Lands for Life, or Years, the Lessee hath but a special Interest in the Timber-Trees, as annexed to the Land, to have the Mast and Shadow for his Cattle; and when they are severed from the Lands, or blown down with Wind, the Lessor shall have them as Parcel of his Inheritance. 4 Rep. 62. 11 Rep. 81. If an House falls down by Tempest, &c. the Lessee hath an Interest to take the Timber to re-edify it for his Habitation. 4 Rep. 63. And every Lessee for Years, &c. may take of Timber necessary Plough-bote, House-bote, Fire-bote, &c. without doing Waste. 1 Inst. 41. And Tenants suffering Houses to be uncovered, or in Decay; taking away Wain-scot, &c. fixed to the Freehold, unless put up by the Lessee, and taken down before the Term is expired; cutting down Timber-Trees to sell; permitting young Trees to be destroyed by Cattle, &c. Ploughing up Ground that Time out of Mind hath not been ploughed; not keeping Banks in Repair, &c. are Waste. 1 Inst. 52. Dyer 37. 1 Salk. 368. Lessees are bound to repair their Tenements, except it be mentioned in the Lease to the contrary. Noy's Max. 30. Though a Lessee for Years is not obliged to repair the House let to him, which is burnt by Accident; if there be not a special Covenant in the Lease, that he shall leave the House in good Repair at the End of the Term; if the House be burnt by Negligence, the Lessee shall repair it, altho' there be no such Covenant. Pasch. 24 Car. B. R. A Lessee at Will is not bound to sustain or repair, as Tenant for Term of Years is: If the House of such a Tenant is burnt down by Negligence, Action lies not against the Tenant; but Action lies for voluntary Waste, in pulling down Houses, or cutting Wood, &c. 5 Rep. 13. By Stat. 6 & 16 Ann. cap. 14. no Action shall be brought against any Person in whose House any Fire shall accidentally begin, or any Recompence be made by such Person for Damage, so as not to extend to make void any Agreement between Landlord and Tenant; and negligent Firing of Houses is liable to Penalties: A Lessor cannot reserve Rent to any other but himself, his Heirs, &c. And if he reserves a Rent to his Executors, the Rent shall be to the Heir, as Incident to the Reversion of the Land. 1 Inst. 47. The Lessor may distrain in the Tenements letten for the Rent, or may have Action of Debt for the Arrears, &c. Also Land leased shall be subject to those lawful Remedies which the Lessor provides for Recovery of his Rent, Possession, &c. into whose Hands soever the Land comes. Cro. Jac. 300. And as to the Lessee, if Lessee for Years loses his Lease, if it can be proved that there was such a Term let to him by Lease, and that it is not determined, he shall not lose his Term; so it is of any other Estate in Lands, if the Deed that created it be lost; for the Estate in the Land is derived from the Party that made it, and not from the Deed otherwise than instrumentally and declarative of the Mind and Intent of the Party, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 152. If a Person be in Possession of the Lands of another, and hath usually paid Rent for them; the Proof of a Quarter or Half Year's Rent paid, will be good Evidence of a Lease at Will, though it cannot be expressly proved that the Lands were demised at Will to him in Possession; it shall be presumed the Rent was received by the Owner of the Land upon some private Contract. Ibid. 151. Lands are leased at Will, the Lessee cannot determine his Will before or after the Day of Payment of the Rent, but it must be done on that very Day; and the Law will not allow the Lessee to do it to the Prejudice of the Lessor, as to the Rent; nor that the Lessor shall determine his Will to the Prejudice of the Lessee, after the Land is sowed with Corn, &c. Sid. 339. Lev. 109. For where Lessee at Will sows the Land, if he does not himself determine the Will, he shall have the Corn; so where Tenant for Life sows the Corn, and dies, his Executors shall have it; but it is not so of Tenant for Years, where the Term ends before the Corn is ripe, &c. 5 Rep. 716. The Lessor and Lessee, where the Estate is at Will, may determine the Will when they please; but if the Lessor doth it, within a Quarter, he shall lose that Quarter's Rent; and if the Lessee doth it, he must pay a Quarter's Rent. 2 Salk. 413. By Words spoken on the Ground by the Lessor, in the Absence of the Lessee, the Will is not determined; but the Lessee is to have Notice. 1 Inst. 55. If a Man makes a Lease at Will, and dies, the Will is determined; and if the Tenant continues in Possession, he is Tenant at Sufferance. Ibid. 57. But where a Lessor makes an Estate at Will to two or three Persons, and one of them dies, it has been adjudged this doth not determine the Estate at Will. 5 Rep. 10. Tenant at Will grants over his Estate to another, it determines his Will. 1 Inst. 57. A Person is Tenant at Sufferance, who continues after his Term is ended, and wrongfully holdeth over against another, &c. Ibid. No Tenant shall take Leases of above two Farms, in any Town, Village, &c. nor hold two, unless he dwell in the Parish, under Penalties and Forfeitures, by Stat. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 13. See 21 H. 8. cap. 13.

Leases by Statute. There are three Kinds of Persons, who may make Leases for Life or Years by Statute, that could not do so heretofore, viz. Tenants in Tail, Husband and Wife of the Wife's Land, and Persons seised of Land in Right of the Church. By the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 18. Tenants in Tail are enabled to make Leases on the following Conditions, i. e. They are to be made by Deed indented; to begin from the Time of Making, or some short Time after, as Michaelmas next, &c. If there be an old Lease in Being, it must be absolutely surrendered, or expire within a Year after the making of the New; they must not exceed three Lives or twenty-one Years, from the making, or be for both, but may be for less Terms; they are to be of Lands manurable or corporeal, out of which a Rent may be legally issuing; and of such Lands or Tenements which have been most commonly let to Farm by the Space of twenty Years; the accustomed yearly Rent, paid within twenty Years, is to be reserved; and they are not to be made without Impeachment of Waste, &c. It has been held on this Statute, that where a new Thing is demised with Lands accustomedly let, tho' there be a great Increase of Rent, the Lease is void: But more Rent than the accustomed Rent, may be reserved. 5 Rep. 5. 6 Rep. 37. And the Leases according to the Statute bind the Issues in Tail; but not those in Reversion or Remainder: For if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease warranted by the Statute, and dies without Issue, the Lease as to him in Reversion or Remainder is void; though by a common Recovery, Leases may be made to bind him in Remainder, &c. Wood's Inst. 267. A Guardian during the Minority of an Infant Tenant in Tail, who was but one Year old, made a Lease for twenty Years, and it was adjudged not good by the Stat. 32 H. 8. to bind the Issue in Tail; and it is the same in the Case of Tenant in Dower, Tenant by the Curtesy, or Husband seised in Right of his Wife, because they have no Inheritance. Dyer 271. The Statute empowers a Husband to make Leases of Land in Tail, held in his Wife's Right, so as in such Leases the Conditions aforementioned are observed, and the Wife be made a Party to and seal the Leases; and the Rent is to be reserved to the Husband and Wife, and her Heirs, &c. If a Lease of the Wife's Land is not warranted by the Statute, it is a good Lease against the Husband, tho' not against the Wife: The Husband and Wife can't bind him in Reversion or Remainder. 1 Inst. 362. Bishops, Spiritual Persons, &c. seised in Fee in Right of their Churches, may make Leases of their Spiritual Livings for three Lives, or one and twenty Years, having all the Qualities required by the Statute, in Case of Leases made by Tenants in Tail. 32 H. 8. And Leases otherwise made are to be void; but not against the Bishops, &c. making them, only against their Successors. 3 Rep. 59. A Bishop, &c. may make Leases of Lands for twenty-one Years, or three Lives, according to the Statute, without Confirmation of Dean and Chapter; and at Common Law might make them for any longer Time, without Limitation, with Confirmation of Dean and Chapter; but this is restrained by the Statutes 1 Eliz. c. 19. & 13 Eliz. c. 10. Such Confirmation will now make good concurrent Leases for twenty-one Years, &c. upon Leases for Years; tho' a Bishop cannot make a concurrent Lease for Life or Lives. Wood's Inst. 273. Leases of a Dean and Chapter are good, without Confirmation of the Bishop, Dyer 273. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1096. Where there is a Chapter, and no Dean, they may make Grants, &c. and are within the Statute. 1 Mod. 204. And a Prebendary is seised in Right of the Church within the Equity of the Statute 32 H. 8. 4 Leon. 51. A Prebend's Lease confirmed by the Archbishop, who is his Patron, is good without Confirmation of Dean and Chapter. 3 Bulst. 290. But where a Prebendary made a Lease for Years of Part of his Prebend, and this was confirmed by Dean and Chapter; because it was not confirmed likewise by the Bishop, who was Patron and Ordinary of the Prebend, the Lease was adjudged void. Dyer 60. If a Prebend hath Rectories in two several Dioceses belonging to his Prebendary, and his Lease of them is confirmed by the Bishop, Dean and Chapter of the Diocese of which he is Prebend, it is good, tho' not confirmed by the other. Sid. 75. A Chancellor of a Cathedral Church may make a Lease, and 'tis said it will be good against the Successor, tho' not confirmed, &c. Ibid. 158. When a Bishop is Patron and Ordinary, he may confirm a Parson's Lease for Years, without Dean and Chapter. Cro. Eliz. 359. And if a Parson or Vicar makes a Lease for Life or Years, of Lands usually letten, reserving the customary Rent, &c. it must be confirmed by Patron and Ordinary, for they are out of the Statute 32 H. 8. If the Parson and Ordinary make a Lease for Years of the Glebe to the Patron, and afterwards the Patron assigns this Lease to another; such Assignment is good, and is a Confirmation of that Lease to the Assignee. 5 Rep. 15. Antient Covenants in former Leases may be so good to bind the Successor, so as to discharge the Lessee from Payment of Pensions, Tenths, &c. but of any new Matter they shall not. 1 Vent. 223. By the Stat. 13 Eliz. the Lease of a Parson is not good any longer than while the Lessor or Incumbent shall be resident, without Absence fourscore Days in any Year; and an Incumbent offending contrary to this Act, shall lose a Year's Profit of the Benefice, &c. 4 Rep. 403. A Lease for Years of a Spiritual Person, will be void by his Death, if it is not according to the Statutes; and a Lease for Life is voidable by Entry, &c. of the Successor: And so in the like Cases, Leases not warranted by Statute, are void or voidable on the Deaths of the Makers: Acceptance of Rent on a void Lease shall not bind the Successor. 2 Cro. 173. On College Leases, a third Part of the Rent is to be reserved in Corn, &c. 18 Eliz. c. 6. By 14 Eliz. c. 11. it is ordained, that the 13 Eliz. c. 10. shall not extend to Leases of the Masters and Fellows of Colleges, &c. of Houses in Corporation Towns, which may be made for forty Years, &c. The 18 Eliz. c. 11. makes void Leases of Masters and Fellows of Colleges, Deans and Chapters, Masters of Hospitals, &c. by Virtue of 13 Eliz. for twenty-one Years, or three Lives, where another Lease for Years is in Being, and not expired or surrendered within three Years: But Bishops are out of this Statute. If a Bishop be not Bishop de Jure, Leases made by him to charge the Bishoprick, are void; tho' all judicial Acts by him are good. 2 Cro. 353. Where a Bishop makes a Lease, which may tend to the Diminution of the Revenues of the Bishoprick, &c. which should maintain the Successor; there the Deprivation or Translation of the Bishop is all one with his Death. 1 Inst. 329. All Assurances and Demises of Bishops Lands to the King, shall be void. 1 Jac. 1. c. 3.

Leases of the King. Leases made by the King of Part of the Duchy of Cornwall, are to be for three Lives, or thirty-one Years, and not be made dispunishable of Waste, whereon the ancient Rent is to be reserved; and Estates in Reversion, with those in Possession, are not to exceed three Lives, &c. 13 Car. 2. c. 4. 12 Ann. c. 22. Persons for whose Lives Estates are held, remaining beyond Sea, or being absent for seven Years, if no Proof be made of their being alive, shall be accounted dead. 19 Car. 2. c. 6.

B. his Heirs and Assigns, into the said Messuage or Tenement, Lands and Premises hereby demised, with the Appurtenances to re-enter, and the same to have again, re-possess and enjoy, as in his or their former Right and Estate, any Thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding. And the said C. D. for himself, his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, doth covenant and grant to and with the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns, that he the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, shall and will well and truly pay or cause to be paid unto the said A. B. his Heirs or Assigns, the said yearly Rent and Heriots above reserved, at the Days and Times, and in Manner and Form above expressed, according to the true Intent and Meaning of these Presents. And also, that he the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, at his and their own proper Costs and Charges, shall and will from Time to Time, and at all Times, during the said Term hereby granted, well and sufficiently repair, maintain, sustain, uphold, amend, hedge, ditch, cleanse and keep the said Messuage or Tenement, Lands and Premises hereby demised, and every Part and Parcel thereof, with the Appurtenances, in and with all Manner of needful and necessary Reparations and Amendments whatsoever, when and as often as Need shall require; and the same so well and sufficiently repaired, maintained, sustained, upheld, amended, hedged, ditched, cleansed and kept, at the End, Expiration or other Determination of the said Term hereby granted, unto the said A. B. his Heirs or Assigns, or of any other Person or Persons whatsoever lawfully claiming or to claim any Right, Title or Interest, from, by or under him, them, or any or either of them. In Witness, &c.

A Freehold Lease for three Lives, Differs from the preceding Chattel Lease only in this, viz. that the Habendum is to the Lessee, his Heirs and Assigns, for and during the natural Lives of him the said C. D. E. his Wife, and T. D. his Son, and during the Life natural of every and either of them longest living; and in every Covenant, the Lessee covenants for himself, his Heirs and Assigns; and the Covenants are the same as in the foregoing Lease, with the Addition of a Letter of Attorney at the End, to deliver Possession and Seisin, as in a Deed of Feoffment.

Lease and Release, Is a Conveyance of Right or Interest in Lands or Tenements, to another that hath the Possession thereof. Accomp. Conv. 1. Vol. 129. Tho' the Deed of Feoffment was the usual Conveyance at Common Law; yet since the Statute of H. 8. of Uses, the Conveyance by Lease and Release has taken Place of it, and is become a very common Assurance, to pass Lands, and Tenements; for it amounts to a Feoffment the Use drawing after it the Possession, and supplying the Place of Livery and Seisin, required in that Deed: In the making it, a Lease or Bargain and Sale for a Year, or such like Term, is first prepared and executed; to the Intent that by Virtue thereof the Lessee may be in actual Possession of the Lands intended to be conveyed by the Release, and thereby and by Force of the Statute 27 H. 8. c. 10. for transferring of Uses into Possession, be enabled to take and accept a Grant of the Reversion and Inheritance of the said Lands, &c. to the Use of himself and his Heirs for ever: Upon which, the Release is accordingly made, reciting the Lease and declaring the Uses. And in these Cases, a Pepper-Corn Rent in the Lease for a Year is a good Reservation, and sufficient to raise an Use, to make the Lessee capable of a Release. 2 Vent. 35. 2 Mod. 262. When an Estate is conveyed by Lease and Release, in the Lease for a Year there must be the Words Bargain and Sell for Money, and 5 s. or any other Sum, though never paid, is a good Consideration, whereupon the Bargainee for a Year is immediately in Possession on the Executing of the Deed without actual Entry: If only the Words Demise, Grant and to Farm Let are used, in that Case the Lessee cannot accept of a Release of the Inheritance until he hath actually entered, and is in Possession. 2 Lill. Abr. 435. But where Littleton says, that if a Lease is made for Years, and the Lessor releases to the Lessee before Entry; such Release is void, because the Lessee had only a Right, and not the Possession; and such Release shall not enure to enlarge the Estate, without the Possession: Though this is true at Common Law, it is not so now upon the Statute of Uses. 2 Mod. 250, 251. And if a Man make a Lease for Life, Remainder for Life, and the first Lessee dieth; on which, the Lessor releases to him in Remainder; before Entry, this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate, he having an Estate in Law capable of Enlargement by Release, before Entry had. 1 Inst. 270. It is necessary in all Cases where a Release of Lands is made, that the Estate be turned to a Right, as in a Disseisin, &c. where there two Rights, a Right of Possession in the Disseisor, and a Right to the Estate in the Disseeisee; now when the Disseeisee hath released to the Disseisor, here the Disseisor hath both the Rights in him, viz. The Right to the Estate, and also to the Possession: Or else it is requisite that there be Privy of Estate, between the Tenant in Possession and the Releffor; for a Release will not operate without Privy. 2 Lill. 435. A Release made by one that at the Time of the Making thereof had no Right, is void; and a Release made to one that at the Time of Making thereof hath Nothing in the Lands, is also void, because he ought to have a Freehold, or a Possession, or Privy. Noy's Max. 74. He that makes a Release must have an Estate in himself, out of which the Estate may be derived to the Releffee; the Releffee is to have an Estate in Possession in Deed or in Law, in the Land whereof the Release is made, as a Foundation for the Release; there must be Privy of Estate between the Releffor and Releffee; and be sufficient Words in Law not only to make the Release, but also to create and raise a new Estate, or the Release will not be good. 1 Inst. 22. A Release to a Man and his Heirs will pass a Fee-Simple; and if made to a Man, and the Heirs of his Body, by this the Releffee hath an Estate-Tail: But a Release of a Man's Right in Fee-Simple, is not sufficient to pass a Fee-Simple. 1 Inst. 273. And if a Person release to another all his Right which he hath in the Land, without using any more Words, as, To hold to him and his Heirs, &c. the Releffee hath only an Estate for Life. Dyer 263. A Release made to a Tenant in Tail, or for Life, of Right to Land, shall extend to him in Remainder or Reversion. 1 Inst. 267. By Release of all a Man's Right unto Lands, all Actions, Entries, Titles of Dower, Rents, &c. are discharged; though it bars not a Right that shall descend afterwards: And a Release of all Right in such Land, will not discharge a Judgment not executed; because such Judgment doth not vest any Right, but only makes the Land liable to Execution. 8 Rep. 151. 3 Salk. 298. 'Tis said a Release of all one's Title to Lands, is a Release of all one's Right. Litt. 509. 1 Inst. 292. By a Release of all Entries, or Right of Entry a Man hath into Lands, without more Words, the Releffor is barred of all Right or Power of Entry into those Lands; and yet if a Man have a double Remedy, viz. a Right of Entry, and an Action to recover, and then release all Entries, by this he is not barred and excluded his Action; nor doth a Release of Actions bar the Right of Entry. Plowd. 484. 1 Inst. 345. A Release that doth enure by Way of Passing away an Estate, or Extinguishment, may be made upon Condition, or with a Defeasance, so as the Condition, &c. be contained in the Release, or delivered at the same Time with it: And there may be a Recital, Covenants, Warranty, &c. inserted in this Release; but it is said the Deed is good without any such Additions. Irra Lease and Release to make a Tenant to the Præcipe to suffer a Recovery, where the Release is made to A. B. and his Heirs, (viz. the Tenant to the Præcipe) it must also be to the Use of him the said A. B. and his Heirs and Assigns for ever; for the Releffee must be absolute Tenant of the Freehold. Lill. Conveyanc. 331. A Lease and Release make but one Conveyance, being in the Nature of one Deed.

Virtue

THIS Indenture made, &c. Between A. B. of, &c. of the one Part, and C. D. of, &c. of the other Part, Witnesseth, that the said A. Though by 20 Car. 2. c. 5. Transportation of Leather is allowed to Scotland, Ireland, or any foreign Country, paying a Custom or Duty; which Statute is continued by divers subsequent Acts. Lecturer, (Prælector) A Reader of Lectures; and in London, and other Cities, there are Lecturers who are Assistants to the Rectors of Churches in Preaching, &c. These Lecturers are chosen by the Vestry, or Chief Inhabitants of the Parish, and are usually the Afternoon Preachers: The Law requires, that they should have the Consent of them by whom they are employed, and likewise the Approbation and Admission of the Ordinary; and they are, at the Time of their Admission, to subscribe to the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, &c. required by the Stat. 14 Car. 2. They are to be licensed by the Bishop, as other Ministers, and a Man cannot be a Lecturer without a Licence from the Bishop or Archbishop; but the Power of the Bishop, &c. is only as to the Qualification and Fitness of the Person, and not as to the Right of the Lectureship; for if a Bishop determine in Favour of a Lecturer, a Prohibition may be granted to try the Right. Mich. 12 W. 3. B. R. If Lecturers preach in the Week-Days, they must read the Common Prayer for the Day when they first preach, and declare their Assent to that Book; they are likewise to do the same the first Lecture Day in every Month, so long as they continue Lecturers, or they shall be disabled to preach till they conform to the same: And if they preach before such Conformity, they may be committed to Prison for three Months, by Warrant of two Justices of Peace, granted on the Certificate of the Ordinary. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 4. Right Clerg. 338. Where Lectures are to be preached or read in any Cathedral or Collegiate Church, if the Lecturer openly at the Time aforesaid, declare his Assent to all Things in the Book of Common Prayer, it shall be sufficient; and University Sermons or Lectures are excepted out of the Act concerning Lecturers. There are Lectures founded by the Donations of pious Persons, the Lecturers whereof are appointed by the Founders; without any Interposition or Consent of Rectors of Churches, &c. though with the Leave and Approbation of the Bishop; such as that of Lady Moier at St. Pauls, &c.

Lega & Lacta. Anciently the Allay of Money was so called. Debita nummi temperies, quam veteres Legam & Lactam appellabant. Spelm.

Legabilis, Signifies what is not inailed as Hereditary; but may be bequeathed by Legacy, in a Last Will and Testament. Articuli propositi in Parlamento coram Rege, Ann. 1234.

Legacy, (Legatum) Is a particular Thing given by Last Will and Testament; and he to whom such Legacy is given, is called a Legatee; and there is a Residuary Legatee. It seems necessary, that the Legatee should be born at the Time of making the Will; and it has been adjudged judg'd where Legacies were given to a Man's Children, that those who were born afterwards should have no Share thereof. 1 Bulst. 153. But it has been otherwise decreed in Chancery. 1 Ch. Rep. 301. A Man devised 200 l. a-piece to the two Children of A. B. at the End of ten Years after the Death of the Testator; afterwards the Children died within the ten Years, and it was held a lapsed Legacy: For there is a Difference where a Devise is to take Effect at a future Time, and where the Payment is to be made at a future Time; and whenever the Time is annexed to the Legacy it self, and not to the Payment of it, if the Legatee dies before the Time happens, 'tis a lapsed Legacy. 2 Salk. 415. A Bequest of Money to one at the Age of Twenty-one, or Day of Marriage, without saying to be paid at that Time, and the Legatee dies before the Term; this is a lapsed Legacy: And so it is if the Devise had been to her when she shall marry; or when a Son shall come of Age, and they die before. Godb. 182. 2 Ventr. 342. But a Devise of a Sum of Money, to be paid at the Day of Marriage, or Age of twenty-one Years; if the Legatee die before either of these happen, the Legatee's Administrator shall have it, because the Legatee had a present Interest, though the Time of Payment was not yet come; and 'tis a Charge on the Personal Estate which was in Being at the Testator's Death, and if it were discharged by this Accident, then it would be for the Benefit of the Executor, which was never intended by the Testator. 2 Ventr. 366. 2 Lev. 207. A Father bequeathed Goods to his Son, when he should be of the Age of twenty-one Years, and if he die before that Time, then his Daughter should have them; afterwards the Father died, and then the Son died before he was of Age; adjudged, that the Daughter should have the Goods given in Legacy immediately, and not stay 'till her Brother would have been of Age, if he had lived. 1 And. 33. And where a Legacy was devised to an Infant, to be paid when he should come of Age, and he died before that Time; it was ruled, that his Administrator should have it presently, and not stay until the Infant should have been of Age, in case he had lived. 1 Leon. 278. As an Executor is not obliged to pay a Legacy, without Security given him by the Legatee to refund, if there are Debts, because the Legacy is not due 'till the Debts are paid, and a Man must be just before he is charitable; so in some Cases, the Executor may be compelled to give Security to the Legatee for the Payment of his Legacy, as where a Testator bequeathed 1000 l. to a Person, to be paid at the Age of Twenty-one, and made an Executor, and died, afterwards the Legatee exhibited a Bill in Equity against the Executor, setting forth that he had wasted the Estate, and praying that he might give Security to pay the Legacy when it should become due; and it was ordered accordingly. 1 Ch. Rep. 136, 257. If a Legacy is devised, and no certain Time of Payment, and the Legatee is an Infant, he shall have Interest for the Legacy from the Expiration of one Year after the Testator's Death; for so long the Executor shall have, that he may see whether there are any Debts, and no Laches shall be imputed to the Infant: But if the Legatee be of full Age, he shall have no Interest but from the Time of the Demand of his Legacy: Where a Legacy is payable at a Day certain, it must be paid with Interest from that Day. 2 Salk. 415. 2 Nelf. Abr.

1114. The Assent or Agreement of the Executor is first to be obtained before any Legacy can be taken; until then the Legatee may not meddle with the Legacy, because the Executor is to pay Debts before Legacies, &c. Wood's Inst. 329. And this is the Reason why no Property can be transferred to the Legatee, without the Executor's Assent: If the Executor refuses to assent to a Legacy, he may be obliged to it by a Court of Equity, or the Spiritual Court. March. Rep. 19. Legacies being Gratuities, and no Duties, Action will not lie at Common Law for the Recovery of a Legacy; but Remedy is to be had in the Chancery or Spiritual Court, Allen 38. The Cognizance of a Legacy properly belongs to the Spiritual Courts, for such Bequests were not good by the Common Law; but this is where a Legacy is devised generally: If 'tis payable out of the Land, or out of the Profits of the Land, an Action of the Case lies at Common Law; but the usual Remedy is in Chancery. Sid. 44. 3 Salk. 223. By Holt Ch. Just. A Legatee may maintain an Action of Debt at Common Law against the Owner of Land, out of which the Legacy is to be paid; and since the Statute of Wills gives him a Right, by Consequence he shall have an Action at Law to recover it. 2 Salk. 415. And sometimes the Common Law takes Notice of a Legacy, not directly, but in a collateral Way; as where the Executor promised to pay the Money, if the Legatee would forbear to sue for the Legacy, this was adjudged a good Consideration to ground an Action; but that it would not lie for a Legacy in Specie; which would be to devert the Spiritual Court of what properly belonged to their Jurisdiction, by turning Suits which might be brought there into Actions on the Case. Raym. 23. If Security is given by Bond to pay a Legacy, in such Case an Action at Law is the proper Remedy; by giving the Bond, the Legacy becomes a Debt at Common Law, and the Legatee can never afterwards sue for it in the Spiritual Court. Yelv. 39. For the Recovery of a Debt, or such like Thing in Action, given by Way of Legacy, it is best to make the Legatee Executor as to that Debt, &c. or he must have a Letter of Attorney to sue in the Executor's Name. Wood's Inst. 330. Some Persons are incapable of Taking by Legacy by several Statutes; as the 13 W. 3. c. 6. relating to Officers, Lawyers, &c. not taking the Oaths; and 5 Geo. c. 27. concerning Artificers going abroad, &c. See Executor and Wills.

Legalis Homo, Is used for him who stands Reftus in Curia, not outlawed, excommunicated, or infamous; and in this Sense are the Words Probi & Legales Homines: Hence also Legality is taken for the Condition of such a Man. Leg. Edw. Conf. c. 18.

Legalis Moneta Angliæ, Lawful Money of England, is gold or silver Money coined here by the King's Authority, &c. 1 Inst. 207. See Coin.

Legate, (Legatus) An Ambassador or Pope's Nuncio. And there are two Sorts of Legates, a Legate a Latere, and Legatus natus; the Difference between whom is thus: Legatus a Latere was usually one of the Pope's Family, vested with the greatest Authority in all Ecclesiastical Affairs over the whole Kingdom where he was sent; and during the Time of his Legation, he might determine even those Appeals which had been made from thence to Rome: Legatus natus had a more limited Jurisdiction, but was exempted from the Authority of the Legate a Latere; and he could exercise even his Jurisdiction in his own Province. The Popes of Rome had formerly in England the Archbishops of Canterbury their Legatos natos; and upon extraordinary Occasions, sent over Legatos a Latere.

Essex*, that every Cart which comes over Greenbury within that Manor, (except it be the Cart of a Nobleman) shall pay 4 d. to the Lord. Orig. 237*. The Writ lies against those Lepers that appear outwardly to be such, by Sores on their Bodies, Smell, &c. and not against others: And if a Man be a Leper, and keep within his House, so as not to converse with his Neighbours; he shall not be removed. *New Nat. Letare Jerusalem, Was used for the customary Oblations made on Midlent Sunday, when the proper Hymn was Letare Jerusalem, &c. by the Inhabitants within a Diocese to the Mother Cathedral Church; and these voluntary Offerings on that Day, were by Degrees settled into an annual Composition or pecuniary Payment, charged on the parochial Priest, who was presumed to receive them from the People of his Congregation, and obliged to return them to the Cathedral Church; and this among other Burdens was at length thrown on the oppress'd Vicars, as appears by the Ordination of the Vicarage of Erdele, in the Archdeaconry of Huntingdon, anno 1290. where it is provided, Qui quidem Vicarius solvet Synodalia, Letare Jerusalem, &c. From the antient Custom of Procession and Oblation at that Time, began the Practice which is still retained in many Parts of England, of Mothering, or going to visit Parents on Midlent Sunday. See Quadragesimalia.

Letters of Absolution, (Litera Absolutoria) Or absolatory Letters, were such in former Times, when an Abbot released any of his Brethren ab omni subjectione & Obedientia, &c. And made them capable of Entering into some other Order of Religion. Mon. Favershamensi, pag. 7.

Letter of Attorney, (Litera Attornati) Is a Writing authorising an Attorney to do any lawful Act in the Stead of another: As to give Seisin of Lands, receive Debts, sue a third Person, &c. And Letters of Attorney are either General or Special. West. Symb. par. 1. Stat. 7 R. 2. c. 13. The Nature of this Instrument is to give the Attorney the full Power and Authority of the Maker, to accomplish the Act intended to be perform'd: And sometimes these Writings are revocable, and sometimes not so; but when they are revocable, it is usually a bare Authority only; and they are irrevocable when Debts, &c. are assign'd to another, in which Case the Word irrevocable is inserted. In Cases of Letters of Attorney, the Authority must be strictly pursued: If it be to deliver Livery and Seisin of Lands between certain Hours, and the Attorney doth it before or after; or in a Capital Messuage, and he does it in another Part of the Land, &c. the Act of the Attorney to execute the Estate shall be void. Plowd. 475. Where the Attorney does less than the Authority mentions, it is void: But it is said if he doth more, it may be good for so much as he had Power to do. 1 Inst. 258. If a Mayor and Commonalty make a Feoffment of Lands, and execute a Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin; the Livery and Seisin, after the Death of the Mayor, will be good, by Reason the Corporation dieth not. 1 Inst. In other Cases, by the Death of the Party giving it, the Power given by Letter of Attorney generally determines.

These Letters of Licence give Leave to the Party to whom granted to resort freely to his Creditors, or any others, and to compound Debts, &c. And the Creditors covenant, that if the Debtor shall receive any Molestation or Hinderance from any of them, he shall be acquitted and discharged of his Debt against such Creditor, &c. See my Accomp. Conveyanc. Vol. 1.

Letters of Marque, Are extraordinary Reprisals for Reparation to Merchants taken and despoil'd by Strangers at Sea, grantable by the Secretaries of State, with the Approbation of the King and Council; and usually in Time of War, &c. Lex Mercat. 173. If a Letter of Marque wilfully and knowingly take a Ship and Goods belonging to another Nation, not of that State against whom the Commission is awarded, but of some other in Amity, this amounts to a downright Piracy. Roll. Abr. 530. See Reprisal.

And we read of Letters Patent to make Denizens. 32 H. 6. c. 16. Letters Patent of Summons of Debt, &c. 9 H. 3. c. 18. Letters Patent may be granted by common Persons, but in such Case they are properly Patents; yet for Distinction, the King's Letters Patent have been called Letters Patent Royal. Anno 2 H. 6. c. 10. Letters Patent conclude with Tes-te me ipso, &c. 2 Inst. 78. See Patents.

Levant and Couchant, Is a Law-Term for Cattle that have been so long in the Ground of another, that they have lain down, and are risen again to feed; in ancient Records writ Levantes & Cubantes. Abr. 167. Beasts of a Stranger on the Lord's Ground may be distrained for Rent, though they have not been Levant and Couchant; but it is otherwise if the Tenant of the Land is in Fault in not keeping up his Mounds, by Reason whereof the Beasts escape upon the Land. Wood's Inst. 190. Levari facias, A Writ directed to the Sheriff for Levying a Sum of Money upon a Man's Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels, who has forfeited his Recognizance. Reg. Orig. 298. And Cattle of a Stranger on the Land have been held Issues of the Land, which is Debtor. 1 Salk. 395. On a Judgment in an inferior Court, and a Levari facias, whereupon a Warrant was made to levy the Debt de Terris & Catallis, it was ad-judg'd that the Precept ought to be to levy the Money de Terris, Bonis & Catallis, &c. 2 Lutw. 1410. There is a Levari facias in Debt against a Parson, directed to the Bishop, &c. to levy the Money of his Spiritual Goods. 13 H. 4. 17. When a Year and Day is past, after the Day of Payment by the Recognizance, there should be anciently a Writ of Debt; but now a Scire facias, &c.

Form of a Writ of Levari facias.

In Times past, when any Man granted a Lease of his House; it was usual to insert an express Covenant, that the Tenant should not entertain any Lewd Women, &c. See Bawdy-house.

Libel, (Libellus) Signifies literally a little Book; but by Use, it is the original Declaration of any Action in the Civil Law. 1 H. 5. c. 3. 2 Ed. 6. c. 13. It signifieth also a scandalous Report of any Man spread abroad, or otherwise unlawfully published, and then called Famosus Libellus, an infamous Libel: And this is either in Scriptis, aut sine Scriptis; in Scriptis is when any Writing is compos'd or published to another's Disgrace, &c. And sine Scriptis, where the Person is painted in a shameful Manner, with a Fool's Coat, Asses Ears, &c. or a Gallows, or other ignominious Sign is fix'd at his Door. 3 Inst. 174. 5 Co. Rep. 124. Seneca calls defamatory Libels Contumeliosi Libelli, and Bracton, Carmina Famosa; contumelious Libels, and infamous Rhimes, which flow from Malice: And the Romans would not permit their Lives and Fame to be subject to the Injury and Scandal of Poets; for they made an Ordinance, that whosoever should presume to compose any such Verses, were to be punished with Death. Treat. of Laws 75. A Libel in a strict Sense is a malicious Defamation and Aspersion of another, express'd in Printing or Writing; and tending either to blacken the Memory of one who is dead, or the Reputation of one that is alive, and to expose him to publick Hatred, Contempt, or Ridicule: But in a larger Signification, it may be applied to any Defamation whatsoever. 5 Rep. 121. All Libels are made against private Men, or Magistrates, and publick Persons; and those against Magistrates deserve the greatest Punishment: If a Libel be made against a private Man, it may excite the Person libelled, or his Friends, to revenge and break the Peace; and if against a Magistrate, it is not only a Breach of the Peace, but a Scandal to the Government, and stirs up Sedition. Ibid. 125. And although a private Person or Magistrate be dead at the Time of Making the Libel, yet it is punishable; as it has a Tendency to the Breach of the Peace. Hob. 215. And with Regard to this Consideration, it is far from being a Justification of a Libel, that the Contents thereof are true, or that the Person upon whom made had a bad Reputation; since the greater Appearance there is of Truth in any malicious Invektive, so much the more provoking it is. 5 Rep. 125. Moor 627. It is not material whether the Matter be true or false, if the Prosecution be by Information or Indictment; but in Action on the Case, one may justify that the Matter is true. 5 Rep. 125. Hob. 253. When any Man finds a Libel, if it be against a private Person, he ought to burn it, or deliver it to a Magistrate; and where it concerns a Magistrate, he should deliver it presently to a Magistrate. Ibid. If a Libel is found in a House, the Master cannot be punish'd for Framing, Printing, and Publishing it; but it is said he may be indicted for having it, and not delivering it to a Magistrate. 1 Vent. 31. If a Printer print a Libel against a private Person, he may be indicted and punished for it; and so he may who prints a Libel against a Magistrate; and much more one who does it against the King and State: Nor can a Person in such a Case excuse himself, by saying they were dying Speeches, or the Words of dying Men; for a Man may at his Death justify his Villany, and he who publishes it is punishable: And it is no Excuse for the Printing or Publishing a Libel, to say that he did it in the Way of Trade, or to maintain his Family. State Trials, 1 Vol. 982, 986. Also if Book-sellers, &c. publish or sell Libels, tho' they know not the Contents of them, they are punishable. It has been resolved, that where Persons write, print, or sell, any Pamphlets, scandalizing the Publick, or any private Persons, such libellous Books may be seized, and the Persons punished by Law; and all Persons exposing any Books to Sale, reflecting on the Government, may be punished: Also Writers of News, though not scandalous, seditious, or reflecting on the Government, if they write false News, are indictable and punishable. State Trials, 2 Vol. 477. One was indicted for a Libel in scandalizing the King's Witnesses, and reflecting on the Justice of the Nation, and had Judgment of Pillory and Fine. Ibid. 3 Vol. 50. A Person for Libelling the Lord Chancellor Bacon, affirming that he had done Injustice, and other scandalous Matter, was sentenced to pay 1000*l.* Fine, to ride on a Horse with his Face to the Tail from the Fleet to Westminster, with his Fault written on his Head, to acknowledge his Offence in all the Courts at Westminster, stand in the Pillory, and that one of his Ears should be cut off at Westminster, and the other in Cheapside, and to suffer Imprisonment during Life. Poph. 135. One who exhibited a Libel against a Lord Chief Justice, directed to the King, calling the Chief Justice, Traitor, perjured Judge, &c. had Judgment to stand in the Pillory, was fined 1000 Marks, and bound to the Good Behaviour during Life. Cro. Car. 125. The Petition of the Seven Bishops in the Reign of King James 2. against the King's Declaration, setting forth, that it was founded on a dispensing Power, which had been declared illegal in Parliament, &c. was called a seditious Libel against the King; and they refusing to give Recognizances to appear in B. R. were committed to the Tower; but being after tried at Bar, were acquitted. 3 Mod. 212. The Printing of a Petition to a Committee of Parliament, (which would be a Libel against the Party complained of were it made for any other Purpose) and delivering Copies thereof to the Members of the Committee, is not the Publication of a Libel, being justified by the Order and Course of Proceedings in Parliament. Hawk. P. C. 196. And scandalous Matter in legal Proceedings, by Bill, Petition, &c. in a Court of Justice, amounts not to a Libel, if the Court hath Jurisdiction of the Cause. Dyer 285. 4 Rep. 14. But he who delivers a Paper full of Reflections on any Person, in Nature of a Petition to a Committee, mittee, to any other Persons except the Members of Parliament who have to do with it, may be punish'd as the Publisher of a Libel. 1 Hawk. 196. And by the better Opinion, a Person cannot justify the Printing any Papers which import a Crime in another, to instruct Counsel, &c. but it will be a Libel. Sid. 414. Sending an abusive Letter to one, without Publishing it to others, is no Libel; but if it be sent to a third Person, or any Ways dispers'd, it is a Publication of the Libel: And though sending a scandalous Letter to the Party himself is not a Libel, nor can any Action be brought upon it, because it is no Publication; yet it is a high Offence. 12 Rep. 34. 1 Lev. 139. 2 Brownl. 157. It is an Offence against the King's Peace punishable by Indictment; and if Copies of it are afterwards dispersed, it aggravates the Crime, or rather makes it a new Crime, for which the Party may have an Action. Popb. 35. Hob. 62. Writing a Letter to a Man, and abusing him for his Publick Charities, &c. is a libellous Act, punishable by Indictment. Hob. 215. And a private Libel, for a private Matter, as a Letter scandalising a Person courting a Woman, is indictable, and fineable to the King. Sid. 270. No Writing is esteem'd a Libel, unless it reflect upon some particular Person; and a Writing full of obscene Ribaldry, is not punishable by any Prosecution at Common Law; but the Author may be bound to the Good Behaviour, as a Person of Evil Fame. 1 Hawk. 195. Where a Writing inveighs against Mankind in general, or against a particular Order of Men, this is no Libel; it must descend to particulars and individuals, to make it a Libel. Trin. 11 W. 3. B. R. But a general Reflection on the Government is a Libel, though no particular Person is reflected on: And the Writing against a known Law is held to be criminal. State Trials, 4 Vol. 672, 903. According to Holt Ch. Just. scandalous Matter is not necessary to make a Libel; 'tis enough if the Defendant induces an ill Opinion to be had of the Plaintiff, &c. And if a Man speak scandalous Words, unless they are put in Writing, he is not guilty of a Libel; for the Nature of a Libel consisteth in putting the infamous Matter into Writing. 2 Salk. 417. 3 Salk. 226. A defamatory Writing, expressing only one or two Letters of a Man's Name, if it be in such a Manner that from what goes before and follows after, it must be understood by the natural Construction of the Whole, to signify and Point at such a particular Person, is as properly a Libel as if the whole Name were express'd at large. Trin. 12 Ann. 1 Hawk. 194. Printing or Writing may be libellous, though the Scandal is not charged directly, but obliquely and ironical: And where a Writing pretends to recommend to one the Characters of several great Men for his Imitation, instead of taking Notice of what they are generally famous for, pitches on such Qualities only which their Enemies charge them with the Want of; as by proposing such a one to be imitated for his Learning, who is known to be a good Soldier, but an illiterate, &c. this will amount to a Libel. Ibid. In the Making of Libels, if one Man dictates, and another writes a Libel, both are guilty; for the Writing after another shews his Approbation of what is contained in the Libel; and the first Reducing a Libel into Writing may be said to be the Making it, but not the Composing: If one repeats, another writes, and a Third approves what is written, they are all Makers of the Libel; because all Persons who concur to an unlawful Act are guilty. 5 Mod. 167. The Making a Libel is the Genus; and Composing and Contriving is one Species; Writing, a second Species; and Procuring to be written, a Third; and one may be found guilty of Writing only, &c. 2 Salk. 419. If one writes a Copy of a Libel, and does not deliver it to others, the Writing is no Publication: But it has been adjudg'd, that the Copying a Libel, without Authority, is Writing a Libel, and he that thus writes it, is a Contriver; and that he who hath a written Copy of a known Libel, if 'tis found upon him, this shall be Evidence of the Publication; but if such Libel be not publickly known, then the bare having a Copy is not a Publication. 2 Salk. 417. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1122. Writing the Copy of a Libel is Writing of a Libel, as it has the same pernicious Consequence; and if the Law were otherwise, Men might write Copies, and print them with Impunity. 2 Salk. 419. And when a Libel appears under a Man's own Hand-writing, and no Author is known, he is taken in the Manner, and it turns the Proof upon him; and if he cannot produce the Composer, it is hard to find that he is not the very Man. Ibid. If one reads a Libel, or hears it read, and laughs at it, it is not a Publishing; for before he reads or hears it read, he cannot know it to be a Libel: Though if he afterwards reads or repeats it, or any Part thereof, in the Hearing of others, it is a Publication of it; yet if Part of it be repeated in Mirth, without any malicious Purpose of Defamation, it is said to be no Offence. 9 Rep. 59. Moor 862. Every one convicted of Publishing a Libel, ought to be esteem'd the Contriver or Procurer: The Procurer and Writer of a Libel have been held to be both Contrivers; also the Procuring another to publish it, and the Publisher, are both Publishers: And the Contriver, Procurer, and Publisher of a Libel, are punishable by Fine, Imprisonment, Pillory, or other corporal Punishment, at the Discretion of the Court, according to the Heinousness of the Crime, &c. Moor 627. 5 Rep. 125. 3 Inst. 174. 3 Cro. 17. In Law Proceedings there are two Ways of Describing a Libel, by the Sense, and by the Words; the first is cujus Tenor sequitur, and the second, Quae sequitur in hac Anglicana verba, &c. in which the Description is by particular Words, and whereof every Word is a Mark, so that if there is any Variance, it is fatal; in the other Description by the Sense, it is not material to be very exact in the Words, because the Matter is described by the Sense of them. 2 Salk. 660. One great Intention of the Law in prohibiting Libels against Persons, is to restrain Men from endeavouring to make themselves their own Judges of Complaints, and to oblige them to refer the Decision thereof to the Law, &c.

Libera Batella, Signifies a free Boat. —

Per Liberam Batellam, hoc est, habere unam Cymbam ad Piscand. subter Pontem Cestria, &c. & ibidem cum omni genere retium. Plac. in Itin. apud Cestriam, 14 H. 7.

Liberate, Is a Writ that lies for the Payment of an yearly Pension, or Sum of Money granted under the Great Seal, and directed to the Treasurer, Chamberlains, and Barons of the Exchequer, &c. for that Purpose. In another Sense it is a Writ to the Sheriff of a County, for the Delivery of Possession of Lands and Goods extended, or taken upon the Forfeiture of a Recognizance. Also a Writ issuing out of the Chancery directed to a Gaoler for Delivery of a Prisoner that hath put in Bail for his Appearance. F. N. B. 132. 4 Inst. 116. This Writ is most commonly used for Delivery of Goods, &c. on an Extent; and by the Extent the Confessèe of a Recognizance hath not any absolute Interest in the Goods, until the Liberate. 2 Lill. 169. It has been adjudg'd, that where an Extent is upon a Statute-Merchant, there needs no Liberate, for the Sheriff may deliver all in Execution without it; but where an Extent is upon a Statute-Staple, or a Recognizance, there must be a Return made of such an Extent, and then a Liberate before there can be a Delivery in Execution. 3 Salk. 159. See Extent.

Liberatio, Is taken for Money, Meat, Drink, Clothes, &c. yearly given and delivered by the Lord to his Domestick Servants. Blount.

Libertate probanda, Is an antient Writ that lay for such as being demanded for Villains offer'd to prove themselves free; directed to the Sheriff that he should take Security of them for the Proving of their Freedom before the Justices of Assize, and that in the mean Time they should be unmolested. F. N. B. 77. Villénage, and the Appendixes thereof, viz. Writs de nativo habendo, Libertate probanda, &c. were of old great Titles in the Books of the Law, but now antiquated.

Libertatibus allocandis, A Writ lying for a Citizen or Burgess, impleaded contrary to his Liberty, to have his Privilege allowed. Reg. Orig. 262. And if any do claim a special Liberty to be impleaded within a City or Borough, and not elsewhere, there may be a special Writ de Libertatibus allocandis, to permit the Burgesses to use their Liberties, &c. These Writs are of several Forms; and may be sued by a Corporation, or by any single Person, as the Case shall happen. New Nat. Br. 509, 510. The Barons of the Cinque Ports, &c. may sue forth such Writs, if they are delayed to have their Liberties allowed them. Ibid.

Libertas Ecclesiastica, Church Liberty, is a frequent Phrase in old Writers who treat of Ecclesiastical Immunities. The Right of Investiture, extorted from our Kings by the Papal Power, was at first the only Thing challenged by the Clergy as their Libertas Ecclesiastica; but by Degrees under the Title of Church Liberty, they contended for a Freedom of their Persons and Possessions from all secular Power and Jurisdiction, as appears by the Canons and Decrees of the Councils held by Boniface, Archbishop of Canterbury, at Merton, Anno 1258. And at London, A. D. 1260, &c.

Liberty, (Libertas) Is a Privilege held by Grant or Prescription, by which Men enjoy some Benefit beyond the ordinary Subject. Bracton. But in a more general Signification, it is said to be a Power to do as one thinks fit; unless restrained by the Law of the Land. The Laws of England, in all Cases, favour Liberty, which is counted very precious, not only in Respect of the Profit which every one obtains by his Liberty; but also in Respect of the Publick. 2 Lill. Abr. 169. No Freeman shall be imprisoned or condemned, &c. without Trial by his Peers, or the Law. Magn. Chart. c. 19. And no Person is to be arrested, &c. without Process at Law; Matters which concern Liberty are to be speedily determined, &c.

Liblâcum, The Manner of Bewitching any Person; also a barbarous Sacrifice. Leg. Athelstan 6.

Libra pēsa, A Pound of Money in Weight: In former Times, it was usual not only to tell the Money, but to weigh it; for besides the King, several Cities and Places, and some Noblemen, had their Mints and the Coinage of Money, which being often very bad, therefore although the Pound consisted of 20 s. as now, they weighed it notwithstanding. Gale's Hist. Brit. 761. We read in Domesday Register, reddit nunc trigint. Libras arsas & pensatas; and that sometimes People took their Money ad Numerum, by Tale; in the current Coin upon Content; and sometimes they rejected the common Coin by Tale, and would melt it down to take it by Weight ad Scalam, when purified from the Dross and too great Alloy; for which Purpose they had in those Days always a Fire ready in the Exchequer to burn the Money, and then weigh it. Domesd.

Library. Where a Library is erected in any Parish, it shall be preserved for the Uses directed by the Founder: And Incumbents and Ministers of Parishes, &c. are to give Security therefore, and make Catalogues of the Books, &c. None of the Books shall be alienable, without Consent of the Bishop, and then only when there is a Duplicate of such Books: If any Book shall be taken away and detain'd, a Justice's Warrant may be issued to search for and restore the same; also Action of Trover may be brought in the Name of the proper Ordinary, &c. And Bishops have Power to make Rules and Orders concerning Libraries, appoint Persons to view their Condition, and inquire of the State of them in their Visitations. Stat. 7 Ann. c. 14.

Librata terræ, Is a Quantity of Land, containing four Oxgangs: But some say it is so much Ground only as is worth yearly 20 s. of current Money. Skene. See Fardingdeal.

Licence, (Licentia) Is a Power or Authority given to a Man to do some lawful Act: And is a Personal Liberty to the Party to whom given, which cannot be transferred over; but it may be made to a Man, or his Assigns, &c. 12 H. 7. 25. There may be a Parol Licence, as well as by Deed in Writing; but if it be not for a certain Time, it passes no Interest. 2 Nels. Abr. 1123. And if there be no Time certain in the Licence; as if a Man license another to dig Clay, &c. in his Land, but doth not say for how long, the Licence may be countermanded; though if it be until such a Time, he cannot. Poph. 151. If a Lessor license his Lessee, (who is restrained by Covenant from aliening without Licence) to alien, and such Lessor dies before he aliens, this is no Countermand of the Licence: So it is if the Lessor grants over his Estate. Cro. Jac. 103. But where a Lord of a Manor for Life granteth a Licence to a Copyhold Tenant Tenant to alien, and dieth; the Licence is destroyed, and the Power of Alienation ceaseth. 1 Inst. 52. Copyhold Tenants leasing their Copyholds for a longer Time than one Year, are to have a Licence for it; or they incur a Forfeiture of their Estates. 1 Inst. 63. If any Licence is given to a Person, and he abuses it, he shall be adjudg'd a Trespasser ab initio. 8 Rep. 146.

Licence to alien in Mortmain. Alienations in Mortmain to Ecclesiastical Persons, &c. are restrained by several Statutes; but the King may grant Licences to any Person, or Bodies Politick, &c. to alien or hold Lands in Mortmain. 27 Ed. 1. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 37. See Mortmain.

Licence to arise, (Licentia surgendi) Is a Liberty or Space of Time given by the Court to a Tenant to arise out of his Bed, who is effoined de malo lecti in a Real Action: And it is also the Writ thereupon. Bracton. And the Law in this Case is, that the Tenant may not arise or go out of his Chamber, until he hath been viewed by Knights thereto appointed, and hath a Day assign'd him to appear; the Reason whereof is, that it may be known, whether he caused himself to be effoined deceitfully, or not; and if the Demandant can prove that he was seen abroad before the View or Licence of the Court, he shall be taken to be deceitfully effoin'd, and to have made Default. Bracton, lib. 5. Fleta, lib. 6. c. 10.

Licence to found a Church, granted by the King. See Church.

Licence to go to Election of Bishops is by Conge d'Esire directed to the Dean and Chapter to elect the Person named by the King, &c. Reg. Writs 294. Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 20.

Licence of Marriage. Bishops have Power to grant Licenses for the Marrying of Persons; and Parsons marrying any Person without Publishing the Banns of Matrimony, or without Licence, incur a Forfeiture of 100*l.* &c. by Statute 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35.

Lidford Law, Is a proverbial Speech, intending as much as to hang a Man first, and judge him afterwards.

Liege, (Ligeus) Is used for Liege Lord, and sometimes for Liege Man: Liege Lord is he that acknowledgeth no Superior; and Liege Man is he which oweth Allegiance to his Liege Lord. 34 & 35 H. 8. The King's Subjects were antiently called *Liege People, (Ligati)* because they owe and are bound to pay Allegiance to him. Stat. 8 H. 6. c. 10. 14 H. 8. c. 2. But in antient Times, private Persons as Lords of Manors, &c. had their Lieges. Skene saith, that this Word is derived from the Ital. Liga, a Bond or League; others derive it from Litis, which is a Man wholly at the Command of the Lord. Blount.

Ligeance, (Ligeantia) Is the true and faithful Obedience of a Subject to his Sovereign: And is also applied to the Dominion or Territory of the Liege Lord; as Children born out of the Ligeance of the King, &c. Stat. 25 Ed. 3. Co. Litt. 129.

Ligeancy, (Ligeantia) Is such a Duty or Fealty, as no Man may owe or bear to more than one Lord; and therefore it is used for that Duty and Allegiance, which every good Subject oweth to his Liege Lord the King. It has been thus defined, Ligeantia est Vinculum arctius inter Subditum & Regem utrosque invicem connectens; hunc ad Protectionem & justum regimen, illos ad Tributa & debitam subjectionem. As there is a mutual Connexion of Dominion and Fidelity between Lords and Tenants; so there is a higher and greater Connexion between the King and Subject: For the Subject oweth to the King his faithful Obedience, and ought to prefer the Service of his Prince and Country before the Safety of his Life; and the Sovereign is to protect and defend his Subjects. Fortescue. See Allegiance.

Lien, (Fr.) Is a Word used in the Law, of two Significations: Personal Lien, such as a Bond, Covenant or Contract; and Real Lien, a Judgment, Statute, Recognizance, &c. which oblige and affect the Land. Terms de Ley 427.

Lieu conus, In Law Proceedings, signifies a Castle, Manor, or other notorious Place, well known and generally taken Notice of by those that dwell about it. 2 Lill. Abr. 641. See Venire facias.

The Lieutenant of the Ordnance. 39 Eliz. c. 7. And the Lieutenant of the Tower, an Officer under the Constable, &c. And the Word Lieutenant is used for a military Officer, next in Command to the Captain.

Life, (Vita) Is common Nature; and the Life of every Man is under the Protection of the Law. Wood's Inst. 11. A Lease made to a Person during Life, is determinable by a Civil Death; but if it be to hold during natural Life, it will be otherwise. 2 Rep. 48.

Limitation, (Limitatio) Is a certain Time assign'd by Statute, within which an Action must be brought: And Limitation of Time is two-fold, viz. To make Title to an Inheritance by the Common Law; and in Writs by several Statutes. 1 Inst. 115. There is a Limitation in Real and Personal Actions; and in the former, he that will sue for any Lands or Hereditaments, ought to prove that he or his Ancestors were seised of the Lands sued for by Writ of Affise, or he cannot maintain his Action: And this is called Limitation of Affise. F. N. B. 77. Stat. Westm. 1. c. 38. No Person shall have any Writ of Right, or make any Title or Claim to any Lands, &c. of the Possession of his

his Ancestors, but of a Seisin within sixty Years, next before the Teste of the Writ, &c. In Assise of Mortdancestor, Writ of Entry sur Disseisin, or other possessory Action, upon the Possession of an Ancestor, it must be within fifty Years; and upon the Party's own Possession, within thirty Years, and the Plaintiff is barred, not proving such Possession, &c. 32 H. 8. c. 2. But this Statute is not to extend to a Writ of Right of Advowson, &c. by Statute 1 M. c. 5. The 21 Jac. 1. c. 16. ordains, that all Writs of Formedon, &c. for Title to Lands in Esse, shall be sued and prosecuted within twenty Years after the Title had: But there is a Proviso in the Statute, to relieve Infants, Feme Coverts, Persons beyond Sea, or in Prison, and the Heirs of such Persons, so as they commence their Suits within the Times limited after their Impediments are removed. It has been held, that the Act 32 H. 8. doth not extend to Rent, Services, &c. out of Land: And one that hath been out of Possession for sixty Years, if his Entry is not taken away, may enter and bring his Action for his own Possession. Wood's Inst. 557. If a Man hath been in Possession twenty Years without Interruption, and afterwards another gets into Possession; he may bring an Ejectment, because twenty Years Possession is a good Title in him to maintain Action of Ejectment, as if he had at that Time been actually possessed: But if the Plaintiff be out of Possession more than twenty Years, where there is an actual Disseisin, and not a Disseisin by Perception of Profits, &c. only, he is barred by the Statute of Limitations. 2 Salk. 421, 423. By Statute, Actions of Debt, Actions upon the Case, (except for Words) Actions of Account, (except concerning Merchandise) of Detinue, Trover, and Trespass, are to be commenced within six Years after the Cause of Action; and not after; Actions of Assault and Battery, within four Years; and for Slander within two Years after the Cause of Action, &c. 21 Jac. 1. c. 16. If these Personal Actions are not brought in the Time limited by this Statute, they are barred: And the Statute of Limitations is a good Bar to a Suit for Seamen's Wages, if 'tis well pleaded. Mod. Ca. 26. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. The Statute of Limitations extends to Accounts current only between Merchants; for when an Account is stated and balanced, Debt lies, and the Action must be brought within six Years: The Statute is not pleadable to an Account current, but it is to an Account stated. 1 Mod. 70, 268. 2 Saund. 124. Where Money is to be paid as a Trust, it is not within the Statute of Limitations. March. 151. 2 Ventr. 345. If the Consideration of a Promise is executory, or Money is to be paid on Request, &c. it is not material when the Promise was made, but when the Cause of Action did arise; and the Defendant ought to plead that Causa Actionis non accrevit infra sex annos, &c. 2 Salk. 422. When Words are actionable in themselves, there Damages shall be recovered according as they were first spoken, if the Action be brought within two Years, as required by the Statute of Limitations; and otherwise the Party will be barred by the Statute: But where the Words are actionable only in Respect of the Special Damages which happen after the Speaking, in such Case, if the Damage is seven Years afterwards, it is no Bar. Sid. 95. An Action barrable by the Statute, a fresh Promise will revive it; so it is of an Acknowledgment, because that is Evidence of a Promise. 3 Salk.

228. And a Latitat taken out and filed, and continued, is an Avoidance of the Statute; for 'tis a Demand, and a good Bringing of an Action within the Time mentioned by the Statute of Limitations. 3 Salk. 229. 1 Lill. Abr. 19. If after Proceedings in an inferior Court the six Years expire, and then the Cause is removed into B. R. the Plaintiff may set forth the Suit below, and aver that to be within six Years, &c. and thereby prevent the Bar of the Statute. Sid. 228. 2 Salk. 424. If a Plaintiff is beyond Sea when the Cause of Action doth accrue, he shall have Liberty at his Return to bring it; but if the Defendant is beyond Sea, and the Plaintiff here, he must file an Original against the Defendant, and continue it till he returns; and if he do not file an Original, or outlaw the Defendant, the Statute of Limitations will bar him. 2 Salk. 420. The King is not within the general Acts of Limitation; nor Ecclesiastical Persons, for Lands belonging to their Churches. 11 Rep. 74.

Limitation of Estate, In a legal Sense, imports how long the Estate shall continue, or is rather a Qualification of a precedent Estate. A Limitation is by such Words as Durante vita, Quamdiu, dum, &c. And if there be not a Performance according to the Limitation, it shall determine an Estate, without Entry or Claim; which a Condition doth not. 10 Rep. 41. 1 Inst. 204. There may be a conditional Limitation to support a Person's Intent, &c. 1 Ventr. 199. If a Limitation of an Estate be uncertain, the Limitation is void; and the Estate shall remain as if there had been no such Limitation. Cro. Eliz. 216. But a Thing that is limited in a Will by plain Words, shall not be afterwards made uncertain by general Words which follow it. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. Where a Devise is to the eldest Son, upon Condition that he pays such Legacies; and if he refuses, the Land shall remain to the Legatees: On his Refusal, the Legatees may enter by Way of Limitation. Noy 51. And in all Cases, where after a Condition, an Interest is granted to a Stranger, it is a Limitation. 1 Leon. 269. Cro. Eliz. 204. Lands may be given and limited to one in Tail, Remainder to another, Remainder in Fee, &c. Though a Limitation of an Estate cannot begin after the Determination of an absolute Estate in Fee-simple; for that would be to suffer Perpetuities to be made, which the Law abhors. 2 Lill. Abr. 173.

Literatura. Ad Literaturam ponere signifies to put Children out to School; which Liberty was antiently denied to those Parents who were servile Tenants, without the Consent of the Lord: And this Prohibition of educating Sons to Learning, was owing to this Reason; for Fear the Son being bred to Letters might enter into Orders, and so stop or divert the Services which he might otherwise do as Heir to his Father.

Lith of Pickering, In the County of York, viz. The Liberty, or a Member of Pickering, from the Sax. Lid, i. c. Membrum.

Libery, (Fr. Livre, i. e. Inſigne, Geſtamen, or Liverer, i. e. Tradere) Hath three Significations. In one Senſe, it is uſed for a Suit of Clothes, Cloak, Gown, Hat, &c. which a Nobleman or Gentleman gives to his Servants or Followers, with Cogniſance or without; mentioned in the 1 R. 2. c. 7. and divers other Statutes: And formerly great Men gave Liveries to ſeveral who were not of their Family, to engage them in their Quarrels for that Year; but afterwards it was ordained, that no Man of any Condition whatſoever, ſhould give any Livery but to his Domeſticks, his Officers, or Counſel learned in the Law. By 1 R. 2. it was prohibited, on Pain of Imprifonment; and the 1 Hen. 4. c. 7. made the Offenders liable to Ransom at the King's Will, &c. which Statute was farther confirmed and explained, Anno 2 & 7 Hen. 4. and 8 H. 6. c. 4. and yet this Offence was ſo deeply rooted, that Edw. 4. was obliged to confirm the former Statutes, and further to extend the Meaning of them; adding a Penalty of 5 l. on every one that gives ſuch Livery, and the like on every one retained for Maintenance, either by Writing, Oath; or Promise, for every Month. 8 Ed. 4. c. 2. But moſt of the above Statutes are repealed by 3 Car. 1. c. 4. Livery in the ſecond Signification, was a Delivery of Poſſeſſion to thoſe Tenants which held of the King in Capite, or by Knights Service; as the King by his Prerogative hath Primer Seifin of all Lands and Tenements ſo holden of him. Staundf. Prerog. 12. In the third Uſe, Livery was the Writ which lay for the Heir of Age, to obtain the Poſſeſſion or Seifin of his Lands at the King's Hands. F. N. B. 155. By the Statute 12 Car. 2. c. 24. All Wardſhips, Liveries, &c. are taken away.

Libery of Seifin, (Liberatio Seifine) Is a Delivery of Poſſeſſion of Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, unto one that hath Right to the ſame; being a Ceremony in the Common Law, uſed in the Conveyance of Lands, &c. where an Eſtate of Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or other Freehold paſſeth. Bract. lib. 2. c. 18. Weſt. Symb. part 1. lib. 2. And it is a Teſtimonial of the willing Departing of him who makes the Livery, from the Thing whereof the Livery is made; and of the willing Acceptance of the other Party receiving the Livery; firſt invented that the common People might have Knowledge of the Paſſing or Alteration of Eſtates from Man to Man, and thereby be better able to try in whom the Right of Poſſeſſion of Lands and Tenements were, if the ſame ſhould be conteſted, and they ſhould be impanelled on Juries, or otherwiſe have to do concerning the ſame. Weſt. Ibid. This Livery may be made of a Houſe, Lands, or any Thing corporeal; but not of incorporeal Things: Where a Houſe and Lands are convey'd, the Houſe is the Principal, and the Lands acceſſory; and there the Livery muſt be made, and not upon the Land. 2 Rep. 31. 4 Leon. 374. Of Livery and Seifin there are two Kinds; a Livery in Deed, and Livery in Law: Livery in Deed is when the Feoffor taketh the Ring of the Door, &c. and delivereth the ſame to the Feoffee, in the Name of Seifin. 1 Inſt. 48. 6 Rep. 26. And Livery in Deed may be either by Words, and ſome ſolemn Act; or by Words, without any ſolemn Act, if the Feoffor and Feoffee are on the Land. Wood's Inſt. 237. Livery in Law is when the Feoffor himſelf, being in View of the Houſe or Land, ſaith to the Feoffee, after Delivery of the Deed, I give to you yonder Land, &c. to you and your Heirs, go enter into the ſame and take Poſſeſſion accordingly; now if the Feoffee enters on the Land, during the Lifetime of the Feoffor, it is a good Feoffment and Livery. 1 Inſt. 48, 52. If a Deed of Feoffment be delivered upon the Land, in the Name of Seifin of all the Lands, it will be a good Livery and Seifin; but the bare Delivery of a Deed upon the Land, though it may make the Deed, it ſhall not amount to Livery and Seifin, without thoſe Words. 1 Inſt. 52, 181. If one makes a Feoffment to four Perſons, and Seifin is delivered to Three of them, in the Name of All; the Eſtate is veſted in all of them. 3 Rep. 26. And if Lands lie in divers Places in one County, Livery and Seifin in one Parcel in one Place, in the Name of the Reſt, is ſufficient; though if the Lands lie in ſeveral Counties, it is otherwiſe, for then Livery and Seifin muſt be in every County. Litt. 61. No Perſon ought to be in the Houſe, or upon the Land, when Livery is made, but the Feoffor and Feoffee; all others are to be removed from it: If the Leſſor Feoffor makes Livery and Seifin, the Leſſee being upon the Land contradicting it, the Livery is void. Cro. Eliz. 321. A Leſſor enfeoff'd a Stranger, and came to make Livery and Seifin, the Leſſee's Wife being in the Houſe; the Leſſor enters, and by Force turns the Wife into the Backſide, which was Part of the Land let, and then he makes Livery in the Houſe, in the Name of all the Lands let; as the Woman was remaining all the While upon the Land, and contradicting the Livery, the Livery was held void: But if ſhe had voluntarily gone out of the Houſe, upon Part of the Land; or the Leſſor had turned her into the Street, ſo that ſhe had not been upon any Part of the Land, it had been good. Dalif. Rep. 94. If a Man agrees with me to make a Feoffment upon Condition, and after makes a Charter of Feoffment without any Condition, and then makes Livery and Seisin secundum formam Chartæ, this is absolute without any Condition; for the Livery is not made according to the Agreement, but according to the Charter. 34 Aff. 1. But if a Person enfeoffs another, as a Security for the Payment of Money, and afterwards makes Livery of Seisin to him and his Heirs generally; the Estate hath been holden to be upon Condition, since the Intent of the Parties was not changed, but continued at the Time of the Livery. 1 Inst. 222. And where a Charter of Feoffment is made, and in the Deed there is no Condition; but when the Feoffor would make Livery of Seisin to the Feoffee by Force of the Deed, he expressing the Estate, makes Livery of Seisin upon Condition, the Feoffment is of Force as if it had not been made. Litt. Sect. 359. 2 Danv. Abr. 13. A Man makes a Lease for Years, Remainder to another for Life, in Tail, or in Fee: Here Livery and Seisin in Deed must be made to the Lessee for Years; without which nothing passeth to him in Remainder, it being for the Benefit of him in Remainder, and not the Lessee who hath only a Term: And if the Lessee entereth, before Livery and Seisin made to him, the Livery will be void. Litt. 60. 1 Inst. 49. Wood's Inst. 238. A Lease for Years is granted to A. B. with Remainder to his right Heirs, whereon Livery is made; the Remainder is void, because there is not any Person in esse, who can presently take by the Livery; and every Livery ought to have its Operation presently. 4 Leon. 67. There was a Lease made to a Man and his Wife, and their Daughter, to hold from Michaelmas next, and the Lessor made Livery after Michaelmas; this was adjudg'd good, being made by the Lessor himself, but it had been otherwise, if it had been to be done by Attorney, or if the Lessor had made Livery before Michaelmas. 2 Roll. Rep. 109. Lease for twenty Years to a Man, to commence from a Time past; and after the Expiration of the said Term, then to him and his Wife, and their Son, for their Lives, and the longest Liver of them, with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery and Seisin, &c. It is a good Lease for Years, with Remainder for Life, if Livery and Seisin be made by the Attorney at the Time of executing the Lease; but if the Livery and Seisin be made by the Attorney some Time afterwards, in such Case it is said the Livery is void. Moor 14. A Man may make a Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin by Force of the Deed, which may be contained in the same Deed; and a Letter of Attorney may be likewise made to receive Livery and Seisin. 5 Rep. 91. 1 Inst. 49, 52. The Manner of making Livery of Seisin is thus: The Parties to the Deed, Grantor and Grantee, or the Attornies by them authorized, come to the Door of the House, or some Part of the Land; and there having declared the Cause of their Meeting, in the Presence of Witneses, they read the Deed or the Contents thereof; and if by Attorney the Power of Attorney; and then, if it be a House, they take the Ring, Latch, or Key of the Door, (all the People being out of the House), or if it be Land, a Clod of Earth, and a Twig or Bough of one of the Trees thereon; and the same Ring or Key, Clod, &c. with the Deed, they deliver to the Grantee, or his Attorney, saying the usual Words, viz. 'I A. B. do hereby deliver unto you C. D. Possession and Seisin of this Messuage or Tenement, &c. To hold to you, your Heirs and Assigns, according to the true Intent and Meaning of this Indenture, &c. And afterwards, if it be a House, the Grantee, &c. enters first alone, and shuts to the Door; and then he opens it, and lets in others. Accomp. Convey. 2d Edit. Vol. 1.

If a House or Lands belong to an Office, by Grant of the Office by Deed, the House or Land passeth without Livery: And by a Fine, which is a Feoffment of Record; by a Lease and Release; Bargain and Sale by Deed inrolled; Exchange, &c. a Freehold passeth, without Livery; and so in a Deed of Feoffment to Uses, by Virtue of the Statute of Uses. 1 Inst. 49. So that Livery and Seisin is not so commonly used as formerly; neither can Estates be created now by Livery and Seisin only, without Writing. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

H. P. C. 10, 43.* And it is said, if one who has committed a capital Offence, become Lunatick and Non compos before Conviction, he shall not be tried; and if after Conviction, that he shall not be executed. 1 *Hawk. Magna Charta, The Great Charter of Liberties granted in the ninth Year of King Hen. 3. It is so called, either for the Excellency of the Laws therein contained, or because there was another Charter called the Charter of the Forest established with it, which was the less of the two ; or in Regard of the great Wars and Trouble in the Obtaining it, and the remarkable Solemnity in denouncing Excommunication and Anathema's against the Breakers thereof : And Spelman calls it, Augustissimum Anglicarum Libertatum diploma & Sacra Anchora. King Edward the Confessor granted to the Church and State several Privileges and Liberties by Charter ; and some were granted by the Charter of King Hen. 1. Afterwards King Stephen, and King Hen. 2. confirmed the Charter of Hen. 1. and King Rich. 1. took an Oath at his Coronation to observe all just Laws, which was an implicate Confirmation of that Charter ; and King John took the like Oath : This King likewise, after a Difference between him and the Pope, and being embroiled in Wars at home and abroad, particularly confirmed the aforementioned Charter ; but soon after broke it, and thereupon the Barons took up Arms against him, and his Reign ended in Wars ; to whom succeeded King Hen. 3. who in the 37th Year of his Reign, after it had been several Times

Times by him confirmed, and as often broken, came to Westminster hall, and in the Presence of the Nobility and Bishops, with lighted Candles in their Hands, Magna Charta was read; the King all that while laying his Hand on his Breast, and at last solemnly swearing faithfully and inviolably to observe all the Things therein contained, as he was a Man, a Christian, a Soldier, and a King: Then the Bishops extinguished the Candles, and threw them on the Ground; and every one said, Thus let him be extinguished, and sink in Hell, who violates this Charter: Upon which the Bells were set on Ringing, and all Persons by their Rejoycing approved of what was done. But notwithstanding this very solemn Confirmation of this Charter, the very next Year King Henry invaded the Rights of his People, till the Barons levied War against him; and after various Success, he confirmed this Charter, and the Charter of the Forest, in the Parliament of Marlbridge, and in the 52d Year of his Reign: And his Son King Edw. 1. confirming these Charters, in the 25th Year of his Reign, made an Explanation of the Liberties therein granted to the People; adding some which are new, called Articuli super Chartas: And Magna Charta was not only then confirmed, but more than thirty Times since. Co. Lit. 81. This excellent Statute, or rather Body of Statute Law, so beneficial to the Subject, and of such great Equity, is the most ancient written Law of the Land: And it is divided into 38 Chapters; the 1st of which, after the solemn Preamble of its being made for the Honour of God, the Exaltation of Holy Church, and Amendment of the Kingdom, &c. ordains, That the Church of England shall be free, and all Ecclesiastical Persons enjoy their Rights and Privileges. But the Cutting off an Ear, or Nose, the Breaking of the hinder Teeth, and such like, was held no Maimem; as they were not a Weakening of a Person's Strength, but a Disfiguring and Deformity of the Body. Glanvil. lib. 4. cap. 7. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. Britton, cap. 25. S. P. C. 112. All Maimem by the Common Law was Felony: And it is said that anciently a Maimem by Castration was punished with Death, and other Maimems with the Loss of Member for Member; but afterwards no Maimem was punished in any Case with the Loss of Life or Member, but only with Fine and Imprisonment, and Damages to the Party. 3 Inst. 62, 118. Br. 42. F. N. B. 249. Manwood makes this Difference between Mainprise and Bail: He that is mainprised is said to be at large, after the Day he is set to Mainprise, until the Day of his Appearance; but where a Man is let to Bail, by any Judge, &c. until a certain Day, there he is always accounted by the Law to be in their Ward for the Time; and they may, if they will, keep him in Prison all that Time; so that he that is so bailed shall not be said to be at large, or at his own Liberty. Manw. p. 167. A Man under Mainprise is supposed to go at large, under no Possibility of being confined by his Sureties or Mainpernores, as in case of Bail. 4 Inst. 179. Mainprise is an Undertaking in a Sum certain; Bail answers the Condemnation in Civil Cases, and in Criminal, Body for Body: Mainprise may be where one is never arrested, or in Prison; but no Man is bailed, but he that is under Arrest, or in Prison; so that Mainprise is more large than Bail, and every Bail is Mainprise, but every Mainprise is not Bail. H. P. C. 96. Wood's Inst. 582, 618. There is an ancient Writ of Mainprise, whereby those who are bailable, and have been refused the Benefit of it, may be delivered out of Prison; as where Persons are imprisoned on Suspicion of Larceny, or indicted of Trespas, before Justices of Peace, &c. *Reg. Maintamozs, Are those that maintain or second a Cause depending between others, by disbursing Money, or making Friends for either Party, &c. not being interested in the Suit, or Attornies employed therein. Stat. 19 Hen. 7. cap. 14.

Maintenance, (Manutenentia) Signifies the unlawful Upholding of a Cause or Person, metaphorically drawn from the Succouring a young Child that learns to go by one's Hand; and in Law is taken in the worst Sense. 32 Hen. 8. c. 9. Also it is used for the Buying or Obtaining of any pretended Rights to Lands. Stat. Ibid. And Maintenance is either ruralis, in the Country; as where one assists another in his Pretensions to Lands, by taking or holding the Possession of them for him; or where one stirs up Quarrels or Suits in the Country: Or it is Curialis, in a Court of Justice; where one officiously intermeddles in a Suit depending in any such Court, which no Way belongs to him, and he hath nothing to do with, by assisting the Plaintiff or Defendant with Money or otherwise, in the Prosecution or Defence of any such Suit. Co. Lit. 368. 2 Inst. 213. 2 Roll. Abr. 115. And he who fears that another will maintain his Adversary, may by Way of Prevention have an original Writ grounded on the Statutes, prohibiting him so to do. 1 Hawk. P. C. 225. Reg. Orig. 182. Also a Court of Record may commit a Man for an Act of Maintenance done in the Face of the Court. Hevl. Rep. 79. Not only he who lays out his Money to assist another in his Cause, but he that by his Friendship or Interest saves him that Expence which he might otherwise be put to, is guilty of Maintenance. Bro. Mainten. 7, 14, 17, &c. And if any Person officiously give Evidence, or open the Evidence without being called upon to do it; speak in the Cause, as if of Counsel with the Party; retain an Attorney for him, &c. or shall give any publick Countenance to another in Relation to the Suit; as where one of great Power and Interest, says that he will spend 20 Pounds on one Side, &c. or such a Person comes to the Bar with one of the Parties, and stands by him while his Cause is tried, to intimidate the Jury; if a Juror solicits a Judge to give Judgment according to the Verdict, after which he hath nothing more to do, &c. these Acts are Maintenance. 1 Hawk. 249, 250. But a Man cannot be guilty of Maintenance, in respect of any Money given by him to another, before any Suit is actually commenced: Nor is it such, to give another Advice, as to what Action is proper to be brought, what Method to be taken, or what Counsellor or Attorney to be employed; or for one Neighbour to go with another to his Counsel, so as he do not give him any Money: And Money may be lawfully given to a poor Man, out of Charity, to carry on his Suit, and be no Maintenance: Attornies may lay out their Money for their Clients, to be repaid again; but not at their own Expence, on Condition of no Purchase no Pay, if they carry the Cause or lose it. Fitzherb. Mainten. 18. 3 Roll. Abr. 118. 2 Inst. 564. It is said, that if a Man of great Power, not learned in the Law, tells another who asks his Advice, that he hath a good Title, it is Mainte- nance. 1 Hawk. 250. If a Person hath any Interest in the Thing in Dispute, though on Contingency only, he may lawfully maintain an Action relating to it; as if Tenant in Tail, or for Life, be impleaded, he in Reversion or Remainder, &c. may maintain the Defence of the Suit, with his own Money; and a Lessor may lawfully maintain his Lessee. 2 Roll. Abr. 115. A Lord may justify maintaining a Tenant, in Defence of his Title; and the Tenant may maintain his Lord: One bound to warrant Lands, may lawfully maintain the Tenant impleaded; and a Man may maintain those who are enfeoff'd of Lands in Trust for him, concerning those Lands, &c. An Heir apparent, or the Husband of such an Heir, may maintain the Ancestor in an Action concerning the Inheritance of the Land whereof he is seised in Fee; a Master maintain his Servant, and assist him with Money, but not in a real Action, unless he hath some of his Wages in his Hands; and a Servant by Reason of Relation may maintain his Master, in all Things, except laying out his own Money in the Master's Suit. 1 Hawk. 252, 253. 1 Inst. 368. By the Statutes, none of the King's Officers shall maintain Pleas, or Suits, in the King's Courts, for Lands, &c. under Covenant to have Part thereof, or any Profit therein. And Clerks of Justices, &c. are not to take Part in Quarrels, or delay Right, on Pain of treble Damages. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 25. No Persons shall take upon them to maintain Quarrels, to the Let and Disturbance of the Common Law, by themselves, or by any other. 1 Ed. 3. cap. 14. and 20 Ed. 3. 4. The King's Counsellors, Officers or Servants, or any other Person whatsoever, shall not sustain Quarrels by Maintenance, upon grievous Pain, Imprisonment and Ransom. 1 R. 2. c. 4. No Man shall obtain or buy any pretended Right or Title to any Land, unless the Seller hath taken the Profits a Year, or been in Possession, on Pain of forfeiting the Value, &c. And none shall unlawfully maintain any Suit concerning Lands, or retain any Person for Maintenance, by Letters, Rewards or Promises, under the Penalty of 10 l. for every Offence, to be divided between the King and the Prosecutor. 32 H. 8. cap. 9. But maintaining Suits in the Spiritual Court, is not within the Statute relating to Maintenance. Cro. Eliz. 594. Though Maintenance in a Court-Baron, is as much within the Purview of the Stat. 1 R. 2. as Maintenance in a Court of Record. 1 Hawk. 255. A Lessor having good Right to Land, but not Possession, made a Lease of it, and did not seal it on the Land; it was adjudged within the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. 1 Leon. 166. The Law will not suffer any Thing in Action, Entry, &c. to be granted over; this is to prevent Titles being granted to Men of Substance, to oppress the meaner Sort of People. 1 Inst. 214. And where a Bond was given for Performance of Covenants in a Lease, and after the Covenants being broken, the Lessee assigned both the Lease and Bond to another, and then the Assignee put the Bond in Suit, this was held Maintenance; so it would have been if the Lessee had assigned the Bond and not the Lease, and afterwards the Covenants were broken, and the Bond put in Suit. Gadb. 81. 2 Nels. Abr. 1142. By the Common Law, Persons guilty of Maintenance may be prosecuted by Indictment, and be fined and imprisoned; or by Action, &c. 1 Inst. 368.

Majority. The only Method of determining the Acts of many, is by a Majority: The major Part of Members of Parliament enact Laws, and the Majority of Electors chuse Members of Parliament; the Act of the major Part of any Corporation, is accounted the Act of the Corporation; and where the Majority is, there by the Law is the Whole. Stat. 19 Hen. 7. Canut. But the Manca and Mancusa were not always of that Value; for sometimes the former was valued at six Shillings, and the latter as used by the English Saxons was equal in Value to our Half-Crown: Manca sex solidis aestimetur. Leg. H. 1. c. 69. Thorn, in his Chronicle, tells us, that Mancusa est pondus duorum solidorum & sex denariorum; and with him agrees Du Cange, who says that twenty Manca make fifty Shillings. Manca and Mancusa are promiscuously used in the old Books for the same Money. Spelm.

Mandamus, Is a Writ issuing out of the Court of King's Bench, sent by the King to the Head of some Corporation, commanding them to admit or restore a Person into his Place or Office, &c. 2 Inst. 40. It lies to restore a Mayor, Alderman, or Capital Burgeſs of a Corporation; a Recorder, Town-Clerk, Attorney turned out of an Inferior Court, Steward of a Court, Constable, &c. 11 Rep. 99. Raym. 153. 1 Keb. 549. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1148, 1149. By some Opinions it doth not lie to restore a Common Council-Man. 2 Cro. 540. But a Common Council-Man hath been restored by Mandamus. 1 Ventr. 302. A Mandamus may be had to restore a Freeman; and also to admit one to the Freedom of the City, having served an Apprenticeship. Sid. 107. To restore a Fellow of the College of Physicians, it lies; though not for a Fellow of the College in the Universities, if there is a Visitor. 1 Lev. 19, 23. And this Writ lieth, not for the Deputy of an Office, &c. yet he who hath Power to make such Deputy, may have it. Mod. ca. 18. 1 Lev. 306. It lieth not generally to elect a Man into any Office; nor for a Clerk of a Company, which is a private Office; or to restore a Barrister expelled a Society; a Proctor; &c. 2 Lev. 14. 18. 2 Nelf. 1150, 1151. But a Mandamus may lie to remove Persons as well as restore them; by Virtue of any particular Statute, on Breach thereof. 4 Mod. 233. If Justices of Peace refuse to admit one to take the Oaths, to qualify himself for any Place, &c. Mandamus lies; so to a Bishop or Archdeacon, to swear a Churchwarden; and to admit an Executor to prove a Will, or an Administrator; to a Rector, Vicar or Churchwarden, to restore a Sexton, Mod. c. 310. Wood's Inst. 558. In the Writ of Mandamus, the Words are to admit or restore, vel Causam significare quare, &c. And if a Corporation have Power to disfranchise a Freeman, and they do it accordingly, if a Writ is granted to restore him, vel Causam significare quare, and they certify a sufficient but false Cause; the Court of B. R. cannot restore him, but there lies an Action for a false Return: And if then it be found for him, he shall have a peremptory Mandamus, which is usually granted after the first Writ; or if he be imprisoned, he may bring Action of Trespass and false Imprisonment. &c. 11 Rep. 99. 5 Mod. 254. There is to be Judgment upon the Return of the Writ, before any Action of the Case may be brought for a false Return of a Mandamus. 2 Lev. 238. And Returns upon Writs of Mandamus must be certain for the Court to adjudge upon. 11 Rep. 99. By Statute, where any Writ of Mandamus shall issue out of B. R. &c. the Persons required by Law are to make their Return to the first Mandamus; and on the Return made thereto, the Person suing out the Writ may plead to and traverse all or any of the material Facts contained in such Return, to which the Person making the Return shall reply, take Issue, &c. And the Parties proceed as if Action had been brought for a false Return, and if Judgment be given for the Plaintiff, he shall have Damages and Costs, as in Action on the Case, &c. 9 Ann. c. 20. And all the Statutes of Feofails, shall extend to Writs of Mandamus, and Proceedings thereon. A Person having a Mandamus to be admitted to any Office or Privilege, ought to suggest whatever is necessary to intitle him to be admitted; and if that be not done, or if it is false, it will be good Matter to return on the Mandamus: And on the Return of these Writs, as well as others of this Nature, there are usually great Arguments in Favour of Liberty, &c. Mod. c. 310. It has been held, that several Persons cannot have one Mandamus; nor can several join in an Action on the Case for a false Return. 2 Salk. 433. A Writ of Mandamus may not be directed to one Person, or to a Mayor and Aldermen, &c. to command another to do any Act; it must be directed to those only who are to do the Thing required, and obey the Writ. 2 Salk. 446, 701. This Writ is not to be Tested, before granted by the Court; and if the Corporation, to which the Mandamus is sent, be above forty Miles from London, there shall be fifteen Days between the Teste and the Return of the first Writ of Mandamus; but if but forty Miles, or under, eight Days only; and the Alias and Pluries may be made returnable immediate: Also at the Return of the Pluries, if no Return be made, and there is Affidavit of the Service, Attachment shall go forth for the Contempt, without hearing Counsel to excuse it. Ibid. 434. A Motion was made for an Attachment, for not returning an Alias Mandamus; and by Holt Ch. Just. In Case of a Mandamus out of Chancery, no Attachment lies till the Pluries, for that is in Nature of an Action to recover Damages for the Delay; but upon a Mandamus out of B. R. the first Writ ought to be returned, tho' an Attachment is not granted without a peremptory Rule to return the Writ, and then it goes for the Contempt, &c. Ibid. 429.

Mandamus, Was also a Writ that lay after the Year and Day, where in the mean Time the Writ Writ called Diem clausit Extremum had not been sent out to the Escheator, on the Death of the King's Tenant in Capite, &c. And was likewise a Writ or Charge to the Sheriff, to take into the Hands of the King all the Lands and Tenements of the King's Widow Tenant, who against her Oath married without his Consent. F. N. B. 253. Reg. Orig. 195.

Mandati dies, Mandie or Maunday Thursday, the Day before Good Friday, when is commemorated and practised the Command of our Saviour, in washing the Feet of the Poor, &c. And our Kings of England, to shew their Humility, long executed the ancient Custom on that Day, of washing the Feet of Poor Men, in Number equal to the Years of their Reign, and giving them Shoes, Stockings and Money.

Maner, (From the Fr. Manier, or Mainer, i. e. Manu tractare) To be Taken with the Manner, Is where a Thief having stoln any Thing, is taken with the same about him, as it were in his Hands; which is called Flagrante delicto, S. P. C. 179. Such a Criminal is not bailable by Law: And anciently if one guilty of Felony or Larceny had been freshly pursued; and taken with the Manner, and the Goods so found upon him had been brought into Court with him, he might be tried immediately, without any Appeal or Indictment; and this is said to have been the proper Method of Proceeding in such Manors which had the Franchise of Infangthefe. H. P. C. 201. S. P. C. 28. 2 Hawk. P. C. 211. By Fitzherbert this Word is thus used; where a Man takes a Thing by Manour, or levying or eltopping, in such Case he shall have an Affise, where it signifies Hand-Labour, and is but an Abbreviation of Mainovere.

Manning, (Manoperz) A Day's Work of a Man; and in ancient Deeds there was sometimes reserved so much Rent, and so many Mannings.

Mannire, Is where one is cited to appear in Court, and stand to the Judgment there: It is different from Bannire; for though both of them signify a Citation, one is by the adverse Party, and the other by the Judge. Leg. H. 1. c. 10.

Manor, (Manerium, derived from the Fr. Manoir, i. e. Habitatio, or from Manendo, of abiding, because the Lord of it did usually reside there) Is an ancient Royalty or Lordship, formerly called Barony, consisting of Demesnes and Services, and of a Court-Baron as incident to it: It is a noble Kind of Fee, granted out partly to Tenants for certain Services to be performed, and partly reserved to the Use of the Lord's Family, with Jurisdiction over his Tenants for their Farms or Estates. And as to the Original of Manors, it is said, that after the Conquest there were certain Circuits of Ground granted by the King or Conqueror to some Barons or Men of like Worth, for them and their Heirs to dwell upon, and exercise Jurisdiction, more or less within their Territories, as the King thought fit to grant, performing such Services, and paying such yearly Rent for the same, as he by his Grant required; and that afterwards these great Men allotted Part of their Lands to other meaner Men, reserving again to themselves Rents and Services; and by that Means, as they became Tenants to the King, so the inferior Tenants became Tenants to them. Horn's Mirr. Just. lib. 1. But at this Time a Manor rather signifies the Jurisdiction and Royalty Incorporeal, than the Land; for a Man may have a Manor in Gros, that is, the Right and Interest of a Court-Baron, &c. and another enjoy all the Land belonging to it. Kitch. 4. Bract. lib. 5. Tract. 5. cap. 28. A Manor may be compounded of divers Things; as of an House, Arable Land, Meadow, Pasture, Wood, Rents, Advowson, Court-Baron, &c. Terms de Ley 434. Manerium est nomen collectivum, and comprehends Messuages, Lands, Gardens, Woods, &c. Mish. 4 Eliz. A Parsonage may be a Manor, if granted by the Parson, Patron and Ordinary, &c. to be held of the Parson by certain Services. Pasch. 22 Eliz. By a Grant of the Demesnes and Services, the Manor passeth; and by a Grant and Render of the Demesnes only, the Manor is destroyed, because the Services and Demesnes are thereby severed by the Act of the Party; though 'tis otherwise, if by Act of Law, as by Partition. 6 Rep. 63. There are two Coparceners of a Manor; the Demesnes are assigned to one, and the Services to the other, the Manor is gone; but if one die without Issue, and the Manor descends to her who had the Services, the Manor is revived again, for the Severance was by Act in Law. 1 Inst. 122. 8 Rep. 79. 3 Salk. 25. 40. A new Manor may arise and revive by Operation of Law. 1 Leon. 204. A Manor cannot be without a Court-Baron: And it must be Time out of Mind; at this Day a Manor cannot be made, because a Court-Baron cannot now be made. 1 Inst. 58, 108. It may contain one or more Villages or Hamlets; or only great Part of a Village, &c. And there are Capital Manors, or Honours, which have other Manors under them, the Lords whereof perform Customs and Services to the Superior Lords. 2 Inst. 67. 2 Roll. Abr. 72. There may be also Customary Manors granted by Copy of Court-Roll, and held of other Manors. 4 Rep. 26. 11 Rep. 17. But it cannot be a Manor in Law, if it wanteth Freehold Tenants; nor be a Customary Manor, without Copyhold Tenants: If all the Freeholds escheat, or come to the Lord by Purchase, the Manor is lost; so if there are no Suitors in a Court-Baron but one, or there be only one Copyholder in a Customary Manor: For there should be two Freeholders, or Suitors at least. 1 Inst. 58. Lit. 73. 2 Roll. Abr. 121. But it is said, if there be but one Freehold Tenant, the Seignior continues between the Lord and that one Tenant. 1 And. 257. 1 Nelf. Abr. 524. The Custom remains, where Tenements are divided from the rest of the Manor, the Tenants paying their Services; and he who hath the Freehold of them, may keep a Court of Survey, &c. Cro. Eliz. 103.

Manse, (Mansa) An Habitation, or Farm and Land. Spelm. See Mansum.

Manſion, (Manſio, à Manendo) Among the ancient Romans was a Place appointed for the Lodging of the Prince, or Soldiers in their Journey; and in this Sense we read Primam Manſionem, &c. It is with us most commonly used for the Lord's chief Dwelling-house within his Fee; otherwise called the Capital Meſſuage, or Manor Place. Skene. Sometimes Manſio signifies a Family; and the Latin Word Manſia, according to Sir Edward Coke, seems to be a certain Quantity of Land: Hida vel Manſia, and Mansa, are mentioned in some old Writers and Charters. Fleta, lib. 6. And that which in ancient Latin Authors was termed Hida, was afterwards called Manſus.—Manſio eſſe poterit conſtructa ex pluribus Domibus vel una, quæ erit habitatio una & ſola ſine vicino; etiam & ſi alia Manſio ſit vicinata non erit villa, quia villa eſt ex pluribus Manſionibus vicinata & collata ex pluribus vicinis. Braët. lib. 5. Traët. 5. p. 1. Manſion-Houſe is taken in Law for any Houſe of Dwelling of another; in Cases of committing Burglary, &c. 3 Inst. 64.

Manſlaughter, (Homicidium) Is the unlawful Killing a Man without any preſented Malice; as when two Perſons meet, and upon ſome falling out, the one kills the other. It is done in a preſent Heat, on a ſudden Quarrel, and upon a juſt Provocation; and without any deliberate Intention of doing Miſchief: And it differs from Murder only, in that it is not done with foregoing Malice; and from Chancemedley, having a preſent Intent to kill. Staundf. P. C. lib. 1. c. 9. This Crime is Felony; but for the firſt Time admits of Clergy: And there can be no Acceſſaries to this Offence before the Fact, becauſe it muſt be done without Premeditation. H. P. C. 217. In the Laws of Canutus, the ſame Diſtinction was made between Murder and Manſlaughter, as now; for we find, if a Man were killed wilfully and premeditatedly, then the Offender was to be delivered to the Kindred of the ſlain, &c. But if on his Trial, the Fact was proved not to be wilful, then he was reſigned to the Biſhop, &c. Leg. 53. Manſlaughter muſt be upon a ſudden Quarrel, where the Party guilty doth not appear to be Maſter of his Temper, by talking calmly upon the Quarrel, or afterwards in other Diſcourſe, whereby the Heat of Blood may be preſumed to be cooled. Crompt. 25 Kel. 56. Therefore if two Perſons meet together, and in ſtriving for the Wall, one of them kills the other, this is Manſlaughter: And ſo it is if, upon a ſudden Occaſion, they had gone into the Fields and fought, and one had killed the other; for all is one continued Act of Paſſion, on the firſt ſudden Occaſion. 3 Inst. 51. 55. H. P. C. 48. And if two

Perſons, who have formerly fought on Malice, are afterwards to all Appearance reconciled, and fight again on a freſh Quarrel, and one of them is kill'd, it ſhall not be conſtrued that they were moved on the old Grudge, unleſs it appear by the whole Circumſtances of the Fact. 1 Hawk. P. C. 82. If two Men fall out on a Sudden and fight, and one breaks his Sword, and a Stranger ſtanding by lends him another, with which he kills his Adverſary, it is Manſlaughter in both. H. P. C. 56. And where a Stranger to a Perſon, a Man's Servant, &c. coming ſuddenly, ſees him fighting with another, and ſides with him and kills the other; this is only Manſlaughter: Alſo if a Man's Friend is aſſaulted, and he in Vindication of his Friend, on a Sudden takes up a miſchievous Inſtrument, and kills the Enemy of his Friend, this is Manſlaughter: So where a Perſon in Reſcuing another injuriouſly reſtrained of his Liberty, by pretended Preſs-Maſters, &c. kills any of them. H. P. C. 57. Plowd. 101. Kel. 46, 136. But if the Perſon killed were a Bailiff, or other Officer of Juſtice, reſiſted by any one in the due Execution of his Duty; it would be Murder. Kel. 67, 86. Several Perſons having forcible Poſſeſſion of a Houſe, afterwards kill'd the Perſon whom they had ejected, as he was endeavouring in the Night forcibly to regain the Poſſeſſion, and to fire the Houſe; and they were adjudg'd only guilty of Manſlaughter, notwithstanding they did the Fact in Maintenance of a deliberate Injury, becauſe the Party ſlain was ſo much in Fault himſelf: Yet if in ſuch, or any other Quarrel, whether it were ſudden or premeditated, a Juſtice of Peace, Conſtable, or even a private Perſon be killed in endeavouring to keep the Peace, he who kills him is guilty of Murder. 1 Hawk. 85. It hath been adjudg'd, that upon a Killing on a ſudden Quarrel, if a Man be ſo far provoked by another by Words or Geſtures, as to make a Puſh at him with a Sword, or ſtrike at him with any other ſuch Weapon as manifeſtly endangers his Life, before the other's Sword is drawn, and thereupon a Fight enſues, and he who made ſuch Aſſault kill the other, it is Murder; for by Aſſaulting the other in ſuch a Manner, without giving him an Opportunity to defend himſelf, ſhewed that he intended to kill him: But in Caſe he who draws upon another in a ſudden Quarrel, make no Paſs at him 'till his Sword is drawn, and then fighting with him kill him, he is guilty of Manſlaughter only; becauſe by Giving the other Time to be on his Guard, he ſhews his Intent is not ſo much to kill as to combat with the other, according to the common Notions of Honour. Kel. 61, 131. 1 Hawk. P. C. 81, 82. And as to Provocations, no Treſpaſs, Breach of a Man's Word, or Affront by Words, &c. will be thought a juſt Provocation to excuſe the Killing of another. Ibid. 130. Though if upon ill Words, as giving the Lie, or calling another Son of a Whore, both Parties ſuddenly Fight, and one kills the other, this is Manſlaughter: And if one upon angry Words aſſault another, by pulling him by the Noſe, and he that is aſſaulted draws his Sword and immediately kills the other, this is but Manſlaughter; for an Indignity was offered to the Slayer, from whence he might reaſonably apprehend that there might be ſome further Deſign upon him. Ibid. 55, 60, 155. There is a Manſlaughter puniſhable as Murder; by Statute: By the 1 Fac. 1. c. 8. If any Perſon ſhall ſtab another, another, not having then a Weapon drawn, or not stricken first, so that he dies within six Months, although it were not of Malice or Forethought, it is Felony without Benefit of Clergy: But this doth not extend to Persons stabbing others Se Defendendo, or by Misfortune, &c. with no Intent to commit Manslaughter; and the Statute relates to the Party only that actually gave the Stroke, or stab'd the other, and not to those that were aiding or abetting. H. P. C. 58. A Blow given, or Weapon drawn at any Time during the Quarrel, before the Thrust or Stab given, is within the Statute; and Drawing out a Pistol, and Levying it at the Party killing, or throwing a Pot, Bottle, &c. at him, are within the Equity of the Words, having 2. Weapon drawn. 3 Lev. 255, 266. 2 Lev. 266. And he that is ousted of Clergy by this Statute must be specially indicted upon it; though even then the Jury may find Manslaughter generally: For the Statute makes no new Offence, but only takes away the Benefit of the Clergy which was allow'd at Common Law. H. P. C. 58, 266. The Statute is but a Declaration of the Common Law; and made to prevent the Compassion of Juries, who oftentimes were perswaded to believe that to be a Provocation to extenuate the Crime of Murder, which in Law was not. Kel. 55. If a Man is taken in Adultery with another Person's Wife, and the Husband draws his Sword and presently kills the Adulterer; this is a just Provocation, and makes it Manslaughter. 1 Ventr. 158. Raym. 212. Two Masters of Defence play at Hand-sword, and one wounds the other, of which he dies, it is only Manslaughter; and it is said not to be Felony where they play by the King's Command, for that they play by Consent to try their Manhood, and may be the better able to do the King Service upon Occasion. 3 Inst. 56, 160. Dalt. 352. Hob. 134. When two Persons play at Foils, and one kills the other, it is Manslaughter. H. P. C. 32, 57. These last Cases are without an ill Intent: And if one shoots off a Gun in a Highway, or throws a Stone over a Wall, in a Place where People often meet, and a Person is kill'd; or at another in play, and kill him; if done without an evil Intention, it is Manslaughter. 3 Inst. 57. And any unlawful Act, without an ill Intent, is Manslaughter; but with an ill Intent, and where the Act is deliberate, if Death happens, it is murder. H. P. C. 32, 44. 3 Inst. 56. Kel. 112. A Person shoots at the Tame Fowl of another, which is an unlawful Act, and kills a Stander-by, it is Murder: If he be shooting at Hare, Wild Fowl, &c. and not qualified to keep a Gun, or to kill Game, it is Manslaughter: And where he is qualified to keep a Gun it is only Chancemedley. 3 Inst. 56. Though in Cases of this Nature it ought to be considered how far the unlawful Act doth tend immediately, or by necessary Consequence to the Injury of another. H. P. C. 31. Kel. 117. See Chancemedley and Murder.

Manumission, (Manumissio) Is the Freeing a Villein or Slave out of Bondage; which was formerly done several Ways: Some were manumitted by Delivery to the Sheriff in the County, &c. and others by Charter; one Way of Manumission was for the Lord to take the Bondman by the Head, and say, I will that this Man be free, and then shoving him forward out of his Hands. And there was a Manumission implied; when the Lord made an Obligation for Payment of Money to the Bondman, or sued him where he might enter without Suit, &c. The Form of Manumitting a Person in the Time of Will. 1. called The Conqueror, is thus set down. — Si quis velit servum suum Liberum facere, tradat eum Vicecomiti per Manum dextram, in pleno comitatu, & quietum illum clamare debet a jugo Servitutis sue per Manumissionem, & ostendat ei liberam portas & vias, & tradat illi libera Arma, scilicet Lanceam & Gladium, & deinde Liber homo efficitur. *Lamb. Manure, (Colo, Melioro) To till, plough, or manure Land. Litt. Dict.

Manus, Was antiently used for an Oath, and for him that took it as a Compurgator. And it often occurs in old Records; Tertia, quarta, &c. Manu Furare; that is, the Party was to bring so many to swear with him that they believed what he vouched was true: And we read of a Woman accused of Adultery; Mulieri hoc neganti Purgatio Sexta Manu extitit Indicta, i. e. She was to vindicate her Reputation upon the Testimony of Six Compurgators. Reg. Eccl. Christi. Cant. If a Person swore alone, it was propria Manu & Unica. The Use of this Word came probably from its being required at a Person's Hands to justify himself; or from laying the Hand upon the New Testament, on Taking the Oath.

Marchers, or Lords Marchers, Were those Noblemen that lived on the Marches of Wales or Scotland; who in Times past (according to Camden) had their Laws, and Potestatem vite, &c. like Petty Kings; which are abolished by the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 26. and 1 Ed. 6. c. 10. In old Records, the Lords Marchers of Wales were styled Marchiones de Marchia Wallie. See 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 15.

Marches, (Marchia, from the Germ. March, i. e. Limes, or from the Fr. Marque, viz. Signum, being the notorious Distinction between two Countries or Territories) Are the Limits between England and Wales, or between us and Scotland; which last are divided into West and Middle Marches. 4 Hen. 5. c. 7. 22 Ed. 4. c. 8. 24 H. 8. c. 9. And the Word is used generally for the Precincts of the King's Dominions by 24 H. 8. c. 12. There was formerly a Court called the Court of the Marches of Wales, where Pleas of Debt or Damages, not above the Value of Fifty Pounds, were tried and determined; and if the Council of the Marches held Plea for Debts above that Sum, &c. a Prohibition might be awarded. *Hill. 14 Car. 1. The Custom for the Lord to lie the first Night with the Bride of his Tenant, was very common in Scotland, and the North of England: But it was abrogated by Malcolm the Third, at the Instance of his Queen; and instead thereof a Mark was paid to the Lord by the Bridegroom, from whence it is denominated Marcheta Mulieris. See Maiden Rents.

Marinarius, A Mariner or Seaman: And Marinariorum Capitaneus was the Admiral or Warden of the Ports, which Offices were commonly united in the same Person; the Word Admiral not coming into Use till the latter End of the Reign of King Edw. 1. before which Time the King's Letters ran thus. — Rex Capitaneo Marinario- rum & eisdem Marinariis Salutem. Paroch. Antiq. 322. The Mariners of a Ship are accountable to the Master; the Master to the Owners; and the Owners to the Merchant, for all Damages by Negligence, or otherwise. Lex Mercat. or Merch.

Compan. 66. If a Mariner be hired, and he deserts the Service before the Voyage is ended, by the Law Marine, and by the Common Law, he shall lose his Wages: And if a Ship is lost by Tempest, &c. the Mariners lose their Wages as well as the Owners their Freight; and this is to oblige them to use their utmost Endeavours to preserve the Ship. Leg. Oleron. 1 Sid. 179. Where a Mariner is wounded in the Service of a Ship, he is to be provided for at the Charge of the Ship; and if his Illness is very violent, he is to be left ashore with necessary Accommodations, and the Ship is not to stay for him; if he recovers, he is intitled to his full Wages, deducting what the Master expended for him. *Leg. Maritime, (Maritimus) Signifies Sea Affairs; any Thing belonging to the Sea.

Maritima Angliæ, The Profit and Emolument arising to the King from the Sea, which antiently was collected by Sheriffs; but it was afterwards granted to the Lord Admiral. — Richardus de Lucy dicitur habere Maritimam Angliæ. Pat. 8 H. 3. m. 4.

Mark, (Merca, Sax. Mearc) Of Silver is now thirteen Shillings and four Pence: Though in the Reign of King Hen. 1. it was only six Shillings and a Penny in Weight; and some were coined, and some only cut in small Pieces, but those that were coined were worth something more than the others. In former Times, Money was paid, and Things valued oftentimes by the Mark; Assignavimus Regin. pro dote sua, mille Marcas Argenti annuatim 13 s. 4 d. computatis pro Marca. Paten. 3 Joh. m. 17. We read of a Mark of Gold of eight Ounces, and 6 l. in Silver; or as others write 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. Stow's Annals 32. Rot. Mag. Pipe, Ann. 1 Hen. 2.

Mark to Goods, Is what ascertains the Property or Goodness thereof, &c. And if one Man shall use the Mark of another, to the Intent to do him Damage, Action upon the Case lieth. 2 Cro. 471.

Market, (Mercatus, from Mercando, Buying and Selling) Is the Liberty by Grant or Prescription whereby a Town is enabled to set up and open Shops, &c. at a certain Place therein, for Buying, Selling, and better Provision of such Victuals as the Subject wanteth: It is less than a Fair; and usually kept once or twice a Week. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 24. 1 Inst. 220. And according to Bracton, one Market ought to be distant from another Sex leucas (vel Milliar.) & dimidiam, & tertiam partem dimidiæ: If one hath a Market by Charter or Prescription, and another obtains a Market near it to the Nuisance of the Former; the Owner of the Former may avoid it. 2 Inst. 406. The Fair or Market is taken for the Place where kept: And it was customary of old, for most Fairs and Markets to be kept on Sundays; and in many Places they are still kept in Churchyards: But by Statute 27 H. 6. c. 5. no Fair or Market shall be kept upon any Sunday, or upon the Feasts of the Ascension, Corpus Christi, Good Friday, day, All Saints, &c. except for necessary Victuals, and in Time of Harvest: And they ought not to be held in Church-yards, by 13 Ed. 1. c. 6.

All Fairs are Markets: And there may be a Mar- ket without an Owner; though where there is an Owner, a Butcher cannot prescribe to sell Meat in his own House upon a Market-Day; for the Market must be in an open Place, where the Owner may have the Benefit of it. 4 Inst. 272.
In the Country, Things sold in the Markets are to be in the usual Place, appointed for the Sale:
But in London, every Shop is a Market overt, for such Goods as are put there to be sold by the Trade of the Owner; though if the Sale be in a Ware-house, and not publickly in the Shop, the Property is not altered. 5 Rep. 83. Moor 300.
Sale upon a Sunday, though in a Fair or Mar- ket, will not alter the Property of the Thing sold. 5 Rep. All Contracts for any Thing vendible in Markets, &c. shall be binding, and Sales alter the Property, if made according to the following Rules, viz. 1. The Sale is to be in a Place that is open, so that any one that passeth by may see it, and be in a proper Place for such Goods. 2. It must be an actual Sale for a valuable Consideration. 3. The Buyer is not to know that the Seller hath a wrongful Possession of the Goods sold. 4. The Sale must not be fraudulent betwixt Two, to bar a third Person of his Right. 5. There is to be a Sale and a Contract, by Persons able to contract. 6. The Contract must be originally and wholly in the Market overt. 7. Toll ought to be paid, where required by Statute, &c. 8. The Sale is not to be in the Night, but between Sun and Sun; (though if the Sale be made in the Night, it may bind the Parties) A Sale thus made shall bind the Parties, and those that are Strangers, as have Right. 5 Rep. 83. But it shall not bind the King, for any of his Goods sold in Market overt; though regularly it bindeth Infants, Feme Coverts, Men beyond Sea, and in Prison, Persons Non Compos, &c. 2 Inst. 713. And yet if a Sale be made by an Infant, or Feme Covert, where they appear or are known to be such, (except by a Woman Covert for such Things as she usually trades for, by her Husband's Consent) it bindeth not. 5 Rep. 83. Sale of Goods stolen in London to Brokers, &c. alters not the Property. 1 Jac. 1.
c. 21. And the Statutes which ordain, that Toll-takers shall be appointed in Markets and Fairs to enter in their Books the Names of the Buyers, Sellers, Vouchers and Prices of Horses sold, and deliver a Note thereof to the Buyer, &c. Secure the Property of stolen Horses to the Owner, although sold in Fair or Market. 2 & 3 P. & M.
c. 7. and 31 Eliz. c. 12. Every one that hath a Market shall have Toll for Things sold, which is to be paid by the Buyer; and by antient Custom may be paid for the Standing of Things in the Market, though nothing be sold; but not otherwise: A Piepowder Court is incident as well to a Market as a Fair; and Proprietors of Markets ought to have Pillory and Tumbrel, &c. to punish Offenders. 2 Inst. 221. 4 Inst. 272. 1 Inst. 281.
Keeping a Fair or Market, otherwise than it is granted; as by Keeping them upon two Days, when only one is granted; or on any other Day than appointed; extorting Toll, or Fees, where none are due, &c. are Causes of Forfeiture.
Finch. 164.

Marketzeld, or Marketgeld, Signifies Toll of the Market; the Word Zeld denoting a Payment.

Marle, (Marla, from the Sax. Margel, i. e.
Medulla) Otherwise called Malin, is a Kind of Earth or Mineral; which in divers Counties of this Kingdom is used to fertilize Land. 17 Ed. 4.

Marque, (Fr. i. e. Bonorum detentio) In our an-tient Statutes signifies as much as Reprisals; Marque and Reprisal are used as Synonyma, and Letters of Marque in the same Signification. 4 H. 5.
cap. 7.

Marquis, or Marquess, (Marchio) Is a Title of Honour before an Earl, and next to a Duke:
And by the Opinion of Hotoman, the Name is derived from the German March, signifying originally Custos Limitis, or Comes & prefectus limitis.
In the Reign of King Rich. 2. came up first the Title of Marquess, which is a Governor of the Marches; for before that Time those that govern'd the Marches were called commonly Lords Marchers, and not Marquesses, as Judge Do- deridge has observed in his Law of Nobility and Peerage. Selden's Mare claus. lib. 2. cap. 19. A Marquis is created by Patent; and antiently by Cincture of Sword, Mantle of State, &c.

Mariscus, Is used for Fenny Ground in the Book of Domeſday.

Marriage, (Maritagium) Signifies not only the lawful Joining of Man and Wife; but also the Interest of bestowing a Ward or Widow in Mar- riage, in our antient Law. Magn. Chart. c. 6.
And Maritagium is also applied to Land given in Marriage; and that Portion which the Husband
Glanvil, lib. 7. cap. 1. In this Sense there are divers Writs de Maritagio, &c. Reg. 171. But Mar- riage is generally the Conjunction of Man and Woman in a constant Society and Agreement of Living together; till the Contract is dissolv'd by Death or Breach of Faith, or some notorious Misbehaviour, destructive of the Ends for which it was intended. It is one of the Rights of human Nature; and was instituted in a State of Innocence, for Preservation thereof: And nothing more is requisite to a compleat Marriage, by the Laws of England, than a full, free, and mutual Consent between Parties, not disabled to enter into that State, by their near Relation to each other, Infancy, Precontract or Impotency; and as to the Solemnization of Marriage, this is a Civil Right, regulated by the Laws and Customs of the Nation where we reside; and every State allows such Privileges to the Parties as it deems expedient, and denies legal Advantages to those who refuse to solemnize their Marriage in the Manner the State requires; but they cannot dissolve a Marriage celebrated in another Manner, Marriage being of Divine Institution, to which only a full and free Consent of the Parties is necessary. Before the Time of Pope Innocent III.
there was no Solemnization of Marriage in the Church, but the Man came to the House where

the Woman inhabited, and led her home to his own House, which was all the Ceremony then used: And it has been since held, that if a Man and a Woman are married by a Priest in a Place which is not a Church or Chapel, and without any Solemnity of the Celebration of Mass, yet it is a good Marriage. Mcor's Rep. 170. 1 Roll. Abr. 359. 1 Sid. 64. Though it has been also otherwise adjudged. 10 Ed. 4. Marriages by Romish Priests, whose Orders are acknowledged by the Church of England, are deemed to have the Effects of a legal Marriage in some Instances; but Marriages ought to be solemnized according to the Rites of the Church of England, to intitle the Privileges attending legal Marriages, as Dower, Thirds, &c. And by Statute, Popish Recusants convicted, married otherwise than according to the Orders of the Church of England, by a Minister lawfully authorized, and in some open Church, &c. shall be disabled, the Man to be Tenant by the Curtesy, and the Woman to claim her Dower, Jointure, or Widow's Estate, &c. 3 Jac. 1. c. 5. Marriage at Common Law is either in Right or in Possession; and a Marriage de Facto, or in Reputation, as among Quakers, &c. is allowed to be sufficient to give Title to a personal Estate. 1 Leon. 53. Wood's Inst. 59. But in the Case of a Dissenter, married to a Woman by a Minister of the Congregation, who was not in Orders; it was held, that when a Husband demands a Right to him as Husband by the Ecclesiastical Law, he ought to prove himself a Husband by that Law, to intitle him to it: And notwithstanding the Wife, who is the weaker Sex, and the Children of this Marriage, may intitle themselves to a temporal Right by such Marriage; yet the Husband shall not, by the Reputation of the Marriage, unless he hath a substantial Right: And this Marriage is not a meer Nullity, because by the Law of Nature the Contract is binding; for though the positive Law of Man ordains Marriage to be made by a Priest, that Law only makes this Marriage irregular, and not expressly void. 1 Salk. 119. Marriages contracted between lawful Persons, being solemnized in the Face of the Church, and consummated, were declared valid, notwithstanding any Precontract, not consummated, by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 38. But this was repealed by the 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 23. And all Marriages solemnized by Justices of Peace, during Oliver's Usurpation, were ordained to be good and valid, as if solemnized according to the Rites and Ceremonies of the Church. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 33. By the Ordinances of the Church, when Persons are to be married, the Bans of Matrimony shall be published in the Church where they dwell three several Sundays or Holidays, in the Time of Divine Service; and if at the Day appointed for their Marriage, any Man do allege any Impediment; as Precontract, Consanguinity, or Affinity, Parents not consenting, where under Age, &c. why they should not be married, and become bound with sufficient Sureties to prove his Allegation, then the Solemnization must be deferred until such Times as the Truth is try'd. Rubrick. And no Minister shall celebrate Matrimony between any Persons without a Faculty or Licence, except the Bans of Marriage have been first published as directed, according to the Book of Common Prayer, upon Pain of Suspension per triennium; nor shall any Minister, under the like Penalty, join any Persons in Marriage who are so licensed, at any unseasonable Times, or in any private Place, &c. Canon 62. Also on the Granting of Licences, Bond is to be taken, that there is no Impediment of Precontract, Consanguinity, &c. Nor any Suit or Controversy depending in any Ecclesiastical Court, touching any Contract of Marriage of either of the Parties with any other; that the Parties have the Consent of Parents, &c. And the Marriage be celebrated in the Parish-Church where one of the Parties dwelleth, and in no other Place, and that between the Hours of Eight and Twelve in the Morning: Oath is to be likewise made by one of the Parties as to there being no Impediment, and two Witnesses are to testify the Consent of Parents, &c. Licences to the contrary shall be void; and the Parties marrying are subject to Punishment as for clandestine Marriages. Can. 102. But notwithstanding the Canons afore-mentioned, Marriages, especially of Persons of Quality, are frequently in their own Houses, out of Canonical Hours, in the Evening; and oftentimes solemnized by others in other Churches, than where one of the Parties lives, and out of Time of Divine Service, &c. There are besides some Things disus'd on granting Licences for Marriage; as the Testification of Witnesses of the Consent of Parents, &c. Though I don't know by what Authority all these Things are dispens'd with, except it be in Regard to the Substance of the Marriage, to make the same good without all the Ceremonies. Parsons, Vicars, or Curates, marrying any Persons, or employing other Ministers to do it, without Publishing the Bans of Matrimony according to Law, or without a Licence for the Marriage first had and obtain'd, shall forfeit 100 l. The Person so married 10 l. and Parish-Clerks, &c. assisting, knowing it to be so 5 l. Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35. And by a subsequent Act, the preceding Statute is confirm'd; and extends to privileged Places, so that if a Parson offending be a Prisoner in any Place, on Conviction he shall be removed to the County Gaol, there to remain in Execution charged with the said Penalty of 100 l. &c. 10 Ann. c. 19. Before these Statutes an Information was exhibited against a Person for Combination, in procuring a clandestine Marriage in the Night, without Bans or Licence, between a Maid-servant and a young Gentleman who was Heir to an Estate; and the Parson being in Liquor, they were fined 100 Marks, and ordered to be committed till paid: But it doth not appear that the Marriage could be made void. Cro. Car. 557. Marriages are prohibited in Lent, and on Fasting-Days, because the Mirth attending them is not suitable to the Humiliation and Devotion of those Times; yet Persons may marry with Licences in Lent, although the Bans of Marriage may not then be published. And formerly, in Popish Times, Priests were restrained from Marriage, and their Issue accounted Bastards, &c. But on the Reformation, Laws were made, declaring that the Marriage of Priests should be lawful, and their Children legitimate; tho' the Preambles to those Statutes set forth, that it would be better for Priests to live chaste, and separate from the Company of Women, that they might with the more Fervency attend the Ministry of the Gospel. 2 & 3, and 5 & 6 Ed. 6. All Persons of the Age of Consent to marry, viz. A Man at Fourteen, and a Woman at Twelve) who are not prohibited by the Levitical Degrees, or otherwise by God's Law, may lawfully marry: But

But Marriages made within the Degrees, are incestuous and unlawful. 1 Inst. 24. 2 Inst. 684. The Son of a Father by another Wife, and Daughter of a Mother by another Husband, Cousin Germans, &c. may marry with each other: A Man may not marry his Brother's Wife, or Wife's Sister; an Uncle his Niece, an Aunt her Nephew, &c. But if a Man takes his Sister to Wife, they are Baron and Feme, and the Issue are not Bastards till a Divorce. Levit. c. 18, 20. 2 Inst. 683. 1 Roll. Abr. 340, 357. 5 Mod. 448. A Libel was exhibited against a Person for Marrying his Wife's Sister; the Defendant suggested for a Prohibition, that his Wife was dead, and he had a Son by her, to whom an Estate was descended as Heir to his Mother; yet the Ecclesiastical Court proceeded to annul the Marriage, and to bastardise the Issue: But a Prohibition was granted quoad the Annulling the Marriage, and Bastardising the Issue, and giving Leave to proceed to punish the Inceit. 2 Salk. 548. 4 Mod. 182. A Sister's Bastard Daughter is said to be within the Levitical Law of Affinity; it being morally as unlawful to marry a Bastard as one born in Wedlock, and 'tis so in Nature; and if a Bastard doth not fall under the Prohibition Ad proximum Sanguinis non accedas, a Mother may marry her Bastard Son. 5 Mod. 168. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1161. There are Persons within the Reason of the Prohibition of Marriage, though not mentioned, and must be prohibited; as the Father from Marrying his Daughter, the Grandson from Marrying the Grandmother, &c. Vaugh. 321. The Temporal Courts by the Stat. 28 H. 8. c. 7 are to determine what Marriages are within or without the Levitical Degrees; and prohibit the Spiritual Courts if they impeach any Persons, for Marrying without these Degrees. Vaugh. 206. 2 Ventr. 9. And it is said were it not for that Statute, we should be under no Obligation to observe the Levitical Degrees. Ibid. When there is a perpetual Impotency; Fear or Imprisonment, so that there can be no Consent; or where Persons are precontracted; a Man or Woman have a Wife or Husband living, &c. in such Cases the Marriages are to be adjudg'd void, as prohibited by God's Law. 1 Inst. 235. 2 Inst. 687. And altho' matrimonial Causes have been for a long Time determinable in the Ecclesiastical Courts, they were not so from the Beginning; for as well Causes of Matrimony as Testamentary, were Civil Causes, and appertained to the Jurisdiction of the Civil Magistrate, until Kings allow'd the Clergy Cognisance of them. Davis Rep. 51. If Persons married are infra annos Nubiles, the Ecclesiastical Judges are to judge as well of the Assent, whether sufficient, &c. as of the first Contract; and where they have Cognisance, the Common Law Judges ought to give Credit to their Sentences, as they do to our Judgments. 7 Rep. 23. Loyalty or Lawfulness of Marriage is always to be tried by the Bishop's Certificate; on Inquisition taken before him, and Examination of Witnesses, &c. Dyer 303. If the Right of the Marriage come naturally in Question, as in Dower, &c. the Lawfulness of Marriage is to be tried by the Bishop's Certificate; but in a Personal Action, where the Right of Marriage is not in Question, it is triable by Jury at Common Law. 1 Lev. 41. Whether a Woman is married, or she is the Wife of such a Person, is triable by a Jury: And in personal Actions it is right to lay the Matter upon the Fact of the Marriage, to make it issuable and triable by a Jury; and not upon the Right of the Marriage, as in Real Actions and Appeals. 1 Inst. 112. 3 Salk. 64. If the Marriage of the Husband is in Question, Marriage in Right ought to be, and that shall be tried by Certificate. 1 Leon. 53. But if on Covenant to do such a Thing to another upon the Marriage of a Man's Daughter, the Party alledges that he did marry her, &c. This shall be tried per Pais; for the Marriage is only in Issue, and not whether he was lawfully espous'd. Cro. Car. 102. Conditions against Marrying generally, are void in Law: And if a Condition is annex'd to a Legacy; as where Money is given to a Woman, on Condition that she marries with Consent of such a Person, &c. such a Condition is void by the Ecclesiastical Law, because the Marriage ought to be free without Coercion; yet it is said it is not so at the Common Law. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1162. Popb. 58, 59. 2 Lill. 192. A Man contracts to marry with A. and after marries B. whereupon A. sues him in the Spiritual Court, and Sentence is given that he shall espouse A. and cohabit with her, which he doth, and they have Issue; such Issue shall inherit, though there was no Divorce from the Marriage of B. Moor 169. 1 Danv. Abr. 700. If Persons are married before the Age of Consent, they may at that Age disagree and marry again, without any Divorce: Though if they once give Consent when at Age, they cannot afterwards disagree; and where they are married before, there needeth not a new Marriage, if they agree at that Age. 1 Inst. 33. 2 Inst. 182. A Man is at the Age of Consent, and the Woman not; or the Woman of Age, and the Man not; he or she may disagree to the Marriage at the other's Coming of Age to consent, as well as the other, for there is a mutual Power of Disagreement. 3 Inst. 88. 6 Rep. 22. 1 Danv. Abr. 699. A Woman cannot disagree within her Age of twelve Years, till which the Marriage continues; and before her Disagreement is void. 1 Danv. 699. Though if a Man marries a Woman under that Age, and afterward she within her Age of Consent disagrees to the Marriage, and at her Age of twelve Years marries another; now the first Marriage is absolutely dissolv'd, so that he may take another Wife; for although the Disagreement within the Age of Consent was not sufficient, yet her Taking another Husband at the Age of Consent, and cohabiting with him, affirms the Disagreement, and so the first Marriage is avoided. Moor 575, 764. If after Disagreement of the Parties, at the Age of Consent they agree to the Marriage, and live together as Man and Wife, the Marriage hath Continuance, notwithstanding the former Disagreement: But if the Disagreement had been before the Ordinary, they could not afterwards agree again to make it a good Marriage. 1 Danv. Abr. 699. If either Party be under seven Years of Age, Contracts of Marriage are absolutely void: But Marriages of Princes made by the State in their Behalf, at any Age, are held good; though many of these Contracts have been broke through. Swinb. Matrimon. Contr. By the Laws of England, where a mutual Contract of Marriage in Words of present Time can be proved, the Ecclesiastical Courts will compel the Parties to solemnize their Marriage, altho' either or both of them are married elsewhere, and Children have been the Fruits of it; and the Children

dren of such Marriages are deem'd Bastards. Read. Stat. 4 Vol. 192. If the Contract is made in Words of future Time, and this is not carried into Execution by Consummation, &c. And the Parties marry elsewhere, the Marriage is good. A Contract of Marriage in the present Time is when it is said, I marry You; You and I are Man and Wife, &c. And such Contract is a Marriage, and not releasable; but a Contract of Marriage in future Time, which is, where it is said, I will marry You, or I Promise to marry You, &c. is releasable. East. Term. 2 Ann. B. R. Holt Ch. Just. held, that if a Contract was in Words of future Time, as I will take Thee, &c. and the Man does take her accordingly, and cohabit with her, 'tis a Marriage; and the Spiritual Court cannot punish for Fornication. Mich. 5 Ann. 2 Salk. 477, 478. And it has been adjudg'd on a Promise of future Marriage, if the Parties afterwards lie together, the Contract passes thereby into a real Marriage in Construction of Law. Swinb. I will take, and I do take, are Words of Contract in the future and present Time; and the Words, I will take Thee from henceforth, &c. are as much as, I do take Thee, and an absolute Marriage: If it is demanded of a Man, whether he will take the Woman to his Wife, and he answers, I Will; and it is demanded of the Woman, if she will take the Man to her Husband, and she answers, I Will; by this Marriage, and not Spousals, is said to be contracted. Ibid. It is not necessary in Contracts of Marriage, that both Parties use the same Words or Expressions; but if one Party says I will marry Thee, and the other answers, I am content, &c. hereby Spousals de futuro are contracted: And if a Man say to a Woman, I Promise to marry Thee, and if thou art content to marry me, Kifs me, or give me thy Hand, if the Woman do Kifs or give her Hand, Spousals are contracted. Swinb. pag. 210. Also if a Ring be solemnly delivered by a Man, and put on the Woman's Fourth Finger; if she accepts and wears it, without any Words, the Parties are presumed to have mutually consented to Marriage. Ibid. And where the Promise of the Man is prov'd, but no actual Promise on the Woman's Side; if she carry her self as one consenting and approving the Promise of the Man, it is Evidence that the Woman likewise promis'd. Pasch. 3 Ann. 3 Salk. 16. In Contracts it is not necessarily required, that the Parties contract Matrimony at the same Instant, by Answering one another; but if there be some Distance of Time betwixt the Promise of the one and the other, the Contract may be good, if the Party first Promising continues in the same Mind until the other Party hath promised: But where Persons are under Age to consent, this is not Matrimony, but Spousals, if it be either, because at their Ages they may dissent; and when Words of the Contract are only conditional on one Side, and on the other absolute; or if the Words are spoken in Jest, they are not obligatory. Swinb. If a Father or Mother promise Marriage for their Child, the Silence of the Child being present and hearing the same, hath been adjudg'd a Consent to the Contract. Ibid. 69. And Contracts of Marriage may be by absent Parties, by Mediation of their Proctors, by Messengers or Letters; when by Proxy it is by special Power of Attorney to contract Matrimony or Spousals for the Party in his Name, with such a Woman, &c. And the Proctor says, I do contract Matrimony with Thee in the Name of such a One, whose Proctor I am, &c. or that such a Man doth contract Matrimony with Thee by me his Proctor; to which the Woman answers, I do take him to my Husband, by Thee being his Proctor; and both Parties are to continue in the same Mind until the Contract is finish'd, for before that the Proctor may be revoked, and then the Contract will be void. Swinb. A Promise or Contract of Marriage, by Messenger or Letter is good; unless it appear the Party dissents before the other consents thereto, and the mutual Consent of the other Party ought to be sent immediately, or shortly after, or it will not be good. Ibid.

By Marriage with a Woman, the Husband is intitled to all her Estate Real and Personal; and the Effects of Marriage are, that the Husband and Wife are accounted one Person, and he hath Power over her Person as well as Estate, &c. 1 Inst. 357. On Promise of Marriage, Damages may be recovered, if either Party refuses to marry; but the Promise must be mutual on both Sides to ground the Action. 1 Salk. 24. And by Statute 29 Car. 2. c. 3. no Action shall be brought on any Agreement or Consideration of Marriage, except it be put in Writing, and sign'd by the Party to be charged, &c. A Promise by Letter to give Money in Marriage with a Daughter is a sufficient Promise in Writing, within the Statute 29 Car. 2. 2 Ventr. 361. Where a Person promises to give his Daughter Wedding-Clothes on the Marriage, she shall have two Suits, one for the Wedding-Day, and the other for the Time of Feasting afterwards, according to the Dignity of the Person. Cro. Car. 53. Contracts and Bonds for Money to procure Marriage between others, have been held void in Equity. 3 Lev. 41. And where-ever a Parent or Guardian insists upon private Gain, on the Marriage of Children, Covenant or Obligation for it shall be set aside in Chancery, as extorted from the Husband. 1 Salk. 156. If a Man before Marriage gives Bond and Judgment to the Wife, to leave her worth 1000*l.* at his Death, in Consideration of a Marriage-Portion, this shall be made good out of the Husband's Estate, and be satisfied before any Debts; provided a Judgment be not obtained against him with her Consent. An intended Husband, in Consideration of a Marriage, covenanted with the intended Wife, that if she would marry him, and she should happen to survive him, he would leave her worth 500*l.* The Marriage took Effect, and the Wife survived, and he did not leave her worth that Money; she married a second Husband, and he brought an Action of Debt against the Administrator of the first Husband for the 500*l.* To which it was objected, that this being a Personal Action, it was suspended by the Marriage, which was a Release in Law, and so extinct; but the Plaintiff had Judgment, for the Action is not suspended, because during the Coverture there was no Cause of Action: Nothing in this Case is due whilst the Coverture takes Place, and the Debt arises by the Death of the Husband. Palm. 99. 2 Sid. 58. A Man and a Woman intending to intermarry, he entered into Articles with her before their Marriage, by which he agreed to settle such Lands upon her, &c. And in Pursuance of those Articles she married him; if he dies before any Settlement made, the Widow in Equity shall have the Articles executed, and had the Lands for her Life, &c. 2 Ventr. 243. Though a Term to raise Daughters Portions, in a Marriage-Settlement is limited in Remainder, to commence after the Death of the Father generally; or if it be in Case he die without Issue Male of his Wife, and she dies first without such Issue, leaving a Daughter, &c. In Equity the Term is saleable during the Lifetime of the Father, when the Daughter is eighteen Years old, or married; because every Thing is happened and past which is contingent, for 'tis impossible there should be Issue Male of the Wife when she is dead; and as to the Father's Death, that is not contingent, but certain, by Reason all Men must die: But if there is a Contingency not yet happened, as if the Daughters are to be unmarried, or not provided for at the Time of the Father's Death, &c. it is otherwise. 1 Salk. 159. Upon Marriages, Settlements are usually made of the Estate of the Husband, &c. To the Husband for Life, after his Death to the Wife for Life for her Jointure, and to their Issue in Remainder, with Limitations to Trustees to support contingent Uses, and Leases to Trustees for Terms of Years, to raise Daughters Portions, &c. And they are made several Ways, by Lease and Release, Fine and Recovery, Covenant to stand seised to Uses, &c. Accomp. Conv. 143. These Settlements the Law is ever careful to preserve, especially that Part of them which relates to the Wife; of which she may not be dejected, but by her own Fine: And if a Woman about to marry, to prevent her Husband's Disposal of her Land, conveys it to Friends in Trust, and they with the Husband after Marriage make Sale of the same; the Court of Chancery will decree the Purchaser to reconvey to her. Totbil 43. Marriage is dissolved by the natural Death of the Husband or Wife, or by Divorce; and where a Marriage is dissolv'd by the Death of the Husband, Dower, &c. survives to the Wife, when no Settlement is made of the Husband's Lands, &c. See Baron and Feme.

D. lawfully to be begotten; (or to the Use and Behoof of the first Son of the Body of the said A. B. &c. and the Heirs Males of the Body of such first Son lawfully issuing; and for Default of such Issue, then to the Use and Behoof of the second Son, &c. and so to the Third and Fourth; and then to the Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Son and Sons, and all and every other Son and Sons, severally and successively in Remainder one after another) And for Default of such Issue, to the Use and Behoof of the said C. Provided always, and it is hereby declared and agreed, by and between the said Parties to these Presents, that the said Term of 500 Years so limited to them the said C. D. E. F. and G. H. their Executors, Administrators and Assigns, as aforesaid, is upon this Condition; That if the said A. B. shall happen to die without Issue Male, by him begotten on the Body of the said E. or shall leave Issue Male, and such Issue Male shall happen to die before he shall attain the Age of twenty-one Years, without Issue Male; and that in either of the said Cases, there shall happen to be one or more Daughter or Daughters of their Bodies begotten, that then, and in such Case, if the said A. B. his Heirs or Assigns do, and shall well and truly pay, or cause to be paid to such Daughter or Daughters respectively, at her and their respective Ages of twenty-one Years or Days of Marriage, the several Portions following (that is to say) if it shall happen there shall be but one such Daughter, then the Sum of 5000 l. for the Portion of such Daughter, to be paid to her at the Age of twenty-one Years, or Day of Marriage, which shall first happen, with Interest in the mean Time after the Rate of 5 l. per Cent. per Annum; and if it shall happen that there shall be Two or more such Daughters, then the Sum of 6000 l. &c. for the Portion of such Two or more Daughters, to be equally divided among them, Share and Share alike, and to be paid to them respectively at their respective Ages of twenty-one Years or Days of Marriage, which shall first happen, with Interest therefore in the mean Time, &c. And if any such Daughter or Daughters shall happen to die unmarried, before her or their Portion or Portions shall become payable as aforesaid, then the Portion or Portions of her or them so Dying, shall go and be paid to the Survivors or Survivor of them, equally to be divided amongst them, Share and Share alike, (to be paid at the same Time as the original Portions should or ought to become payable, as aforesaid, in Case they had been Living) so as no one such Daughter shall have for her Portion by Survivorship, or otherwise, by Virtue of the said Term of 500 Years, above the Sum of 5000 l. Provided also, and upon this further Condition, that in Case the said A. B. shall happen to die without such Issue Male as aforesaid, and shall happen to leave one or more Daughter or Daughters, as aforesaid, and such Daughter or Daughters, or either of them, shall happen to marry in the Life-time of the said A. B. and E. his intended Wife, or either of them, or in the Life-time of the said Trustees, or any or either of them, without the Consent of such of them the said A. B. and E. and of the said Trustees, or the greater Number of them then Living, signed and declared under their Hands; that then the Portion and Portions hereby intended for such Daughter and Daughters so marrying respectively, shall go and be paid to such other Daughter or Daughters, who shall marry with such Consent as aforesaid; and in Case all such Daughters shall happen to marry without such Consent as aforesaid, that then the said Term of 500 Years shall cease and be void. Provided also, and it is hereby further declared and agreed, that it shall and may be lawful to and for him the said A. B. during his Life, and after his Death for the said E. his intended Wife, during her Life, in Case the said intended Marriage shall take Effect, by any Writing or Writings under his or her Hand and Seal respectively, attested by Two or more credible Witnesses, to make any Lease or Leases, Demise or Grant of all or any Part or Parts of the said Messuages and Lands to any Person or Persons whatsoever, for the Term of twenty-one Years, or for any Term or Number of Years not exceeding twenty-one Years, so as such Leases, Demises or Grants for Years, be made to commence and take Effect in Possession within one Year after the Date thereof; and so as upon all and every such Lease or Leases, Demises or Grants for Years to be made by the said A. B. and E. his intended Wife respectively, there be reserved payable yearly during the Continuance thereof, the best and most improv'd yearly Rents, which at the Time of Making thereof, can or may be gotten for the same; and so that in every such Lease there be contained a Clause of Re-entry for Non-payment of the Rent or Rents thereby reserv'd; and so as the Lessee and Lessees to whom such Lease and Leases shall be made, do seal and deliver Counterparts of such Lease and Leases. And the said A. B. for himself, his Heirs and Assigns, doth covenant and grant, to and with the said C. D. E. F. and G. Marshal, (Marescallus) Is a French Word, signifying as much as Tribunus militum, with the antient Romans; and Marescallus may also come from the German Marschalk, i. e. Equitum Magister, which Hotoman in his Feuds under verb. Marschalkus derives from the old Word March, which signifies a Horse; and others make it of the Sax. Mar, i. Equus, & Scalch, Præfectus. In France there are Marshals of the Camp, called Marshals of France; of the Nobility and Diets in Poland; and in divers Countries, Provost Marshals to punish Robbers, &c. With us there are several Officers of this Name; the Chief whereof is the Earl Marshal of England, mentioned in the Stat. 1 Hen. 4. c. 7. and 13 R. 2. c. 2. &c. whose Office consists especially in Matters of War and Arms, as well in this Kingdom as in other Countries; and this Office is very antient, having formerly greater Power annex'd to it than now; it has been long hereditary in the Family of the Duke of Norfolk. The next is the Marshal of the King's House, otherwise called Knight Marshal; and his Authority is exercised in the King's Palace, in hearing and determining all Pleas of the Crown, and Suits between those of the King's House, and other Persons within the Verge, and punishing Faults committed there, &c. 18 Ed. 3. c. 7. 27 Ed. 3. Stat. 2. c. 6. and 2 H. 4. c. 13. Crompt. Jurisd. 192. Fleta mentions a Marshal of the King's Hall, to whom it belongs, when the Tables are prepared, to call out those of the Household and Strangers, according to their Rank and Quality, and properly place them. Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 15. There are other inferior Officers called Marshals, as Marshal of the Justices in Eyre. Anno 3 Ed. 1. cap. 19. Marshal of the King's Bench, Stat. 5 Ed. 3. c. 8. who hath the Custody of the Prison, called the King's Bench Prison in Southwark: This Officer gives Attendance upon the Court, and takes into his Custody all Prisoners committed by the Court; he is fineable for his Absence, and his Non-attendance is a Forfeiture of his Office. Hill. 21 & 22 Car. 2. Stat. 51 Hen. 3. 5.

Marshallsey, (Marescallia) Is the Court or Seat of the Marshal of the King's House: And it is used for the Prison in Southwark, which is so called; the Reason whereof may be, because the Marshal was wont to sit there in Judgment. Stat. 9 R. 2. c. 5. and 2 H. 4. c. 23. King Char. 1. by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, erected a Court by the Name of Curia Hospitalii Domini Regis, &c. which takes Cognisance more at large of all Causes than the Marshallsey could; of which the Knight Marshal or his Deputy is Judge. See Court of Marshallsey.

Martial Law, Is the Law of War, that depends upon the just but arbitrary Power and Pleasure of the King, or his Lieutenant; for though the King doth not generally make any Laws but by common Consent in Parliament, yet in Time of War, by Reason of the Necessity of it to guard against Dangers which often arise, he useth absolute Power, so that his Word is a Law.

Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 4. Alien Enemies invading the Kingdom, &c. are to be dealt with by Martial Law. H. P. C. 10, 15. See Corporation.

Measure, (Mensura) Is a certain Quantity or Proportion of any Thing sold; and in many Parts of England, is one Bushel. The Statute of Magna Charta. cap. 25. ordains, that there shall be but one Measure throughout England, according to the Standard in the Exchequer: Which Standard is called in our Histories Mensura Regalis, and was formerly kept in the King's Palace; and in all Cities, Market-Towns and Villages, it was kept in the Churches. 4 Inst. 273. By 17 Car. 1. c. 19. there is to be but one Weight and Measure, and one Yard, according to the King's Standard; and whosoever shall keep any other Weight or Measure, whereby any Thing is bought or sold, shall forfeit for every Offence 5 s. And by 22 Car. 2. c. 8. Water-Measure, as to Corn and Grain, or Salt, is declared to be within the Stat. 17 Car. 1. And if any sell Grain, or Salt, &c. by any other Bushel or Measure, than what is agreeable to the Standard in the Exchequer, commonly called Winchester-Measure; he shall forfeit 40 s. &c. Notwithstanding these Statutes, in many Places and Counties there are different Measures of Corn and Grain; and the Bushel in one Place is larger than in another; but the Lawfulness of it is not well to be accounted for, since Custom or Prescription is not allowed to be good against a Statute. Dalt. 250. And we have three different Measures, viz. one for Wine, one for Ale and Beer, and one for Corn. Selling by false Weights and Measures, being an Offence by the Common Law, may be punished by Fine, &c. upon an Indictment at Common Law, as well as by Statute. He that will have the Advantage of Trial per Medietatem Lingua must pay it; for 'tis said he cannot have the Benefit of it by Way of Challenge. S. P. C. 158. 3 Inst. 27. In Petit Treason, Murder and Felony, Medietas Lingua is allowed; but for High Treason, an Alien shall be tried by the Common Law, and not per Medietatem Lingua. H. P. C. 261. And a Grand Jury ought not to be de Medietate Lingua, in any Case. Wood's Inst. 623. Egyptians are excluded from this Trial, by 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 4. 'tis found for the King, if the Writ be void for Repugnancy, or otherwise, a new Melius Inquirendum shall be had: But if upon the first Melius, it had been found against the King, in such Case he could not have a new Melius, &c. for then there would be no End of these Writs: And if an Office be found for the King, the Party grieved may traverse it; and if the Traverse be found against him, there is an End of that Cause; and if for him, it is conclusive. 8 Rep. 169. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1008. Merchant, (Mercator) Is one that buys and trades in any Thing: And as Merchandise includes all Goods and Wares exposed to Sale in Fairs or Markets; so the Word Merchant formerly extended to all Sorts of Traders, Buyers and Sellers: But every one that buys and sells is not at this Day under the Denomination of a Merchant; only those who traffick in the Way of Commerce, by Importation or Exportation, or carry on Business by Way of Emption, Vendition, Barter, Permutation, or Exchange, and which make it their Living to buy and sell, by a continued Assiduity, or frequent Negotiation, in the Mystery of Merchandizing, are esteemed Merchants: Those that buy Goods, to reduce them by their own Art or Industry, into other Forms than they are of, and then to sell them, are Artificers and not Merchants: Bankers, and such as deal by Exchange, are properly called Merchants. Lex Mercat. or Merch. Comp. 23. Merchants were always particularly regarded by the Common Law; tho' the municipal Laws of England, or indeed of any one Realm, are not sufficient for the Ordering and Determining the Affairs of Traffick, and Matters relating to Commerce, Merchandize being so universal and extensive that it is impossible; therefore the Law Merchant, (so called from its universal Concern) all Nations take special Knowledge of; and the Common and Statute Laws of this Kingdom leave the Causes of Merchants in many Cases to their own peculiar Law. Ibid. In the Reign of King Ed. 4. a Merchant Stranger made Suit before the King's Privy Council, for several Bales of Silk feloniously taken from him, wherein it was moved, that this Matter should be determined at Common Law; but it was answered by the Lord Chancellor, that as this Suit was brought by a Merchant, he was not bound to sue according to the Law of the Land. 13 Ed. 4. In former Times it was conceived, that those Laws which were prohibitory against Foreign Goods, did not bind a Merchant Stranger: But it has been a long Time since ruled otherwise; for in the Leagues that are now established, between Nation and Nation, the Laws of either Kingdom are excepted; so that as the English in France, or any other Foreign Country in Amity, are subject to the Laws of that Country where they reside; so must the People of France, or any other Kingdom, be subject to the Laws of England when resident here. 19 Hen. 7. English Merchants are not restrained to depart the Kingdom, without Licence, as all other Subjects are; they may depart and live out of the Realm, and the King's Obedience, and the same is no Contempt, they being excepted out of the Statute 5 R. 2. cap. 2. And by the Common Law, they might pass the Seas without Licence, tho' not to merchandize. Mich. 12 & 13 Eliz. Dyer 206. By Magna Charta it is enacted, that all Merchant Strangers in Amity, not publickly prohibited, shall have safe Conduet to come into, depart out of, and remain in England, and to travel by Water or Land in and through the same, to buy and sell, &c. 9 Hen. 3. c. 30. But such Merchants may be prohibited to trade into this Realm, be they in Amity or otherwise. Ibid. All Merchants (except Enemies) may safely come into England with their Goods and Merchandize. 14 Ed. 3. Merchant Strangers may come into this Realm, and depart at their Pleasure; and they are to be friendly entertained. 5 R. 2. c. 1. And Merchants alien shall be used in this Kingdom, as Denizens are in others, by the Statute 5 Hen. 4. cap. 7. Merchant Strangers are to find Sureties, that they shall not carry out the Merchandize which they bring into England. 18 Ed. 2. cap. 21. And when they bring in any Merchandize into the Realm, and sell the same for Money, they are to bestow it upon other Merchandizes of England, without exporting any Gold or Silver in Coin, Plate, &c. on Pain of Forfeiture. 4 Hen. 4. cap. 15. 5 Hen. 4. cap. 9. The same extends as well to Denizens as Strangers; and in Strictness of Law, they ought not to receive any Gold in Payment. 3 Hen. 7. c. 8. And the Reasons of these Laws were, to preserve and keep the Gold and Silver within the Realm; and at the same Time increase our Manufactures, by encouraging their Exportation abroad: Any Merchant may deal in more Merchandizes than one. 38 Ed. 3. cap. 2. Foreign Merchants are to sell their Merchandize at the Port where they land, in Gross and not by Retail. 1 R. 3. cap. 9. And Merchandize is to be laden and unladen at certain certain Ports, and in the Day-time, under Penalties. 1 Eliz. cap. 11. All the King's Subjects are to have a free Trade to and from France, Spain and Portugal. 3 Jac. 1. c. 6. Merchants, &c. selling adulterated Wine, are liable to Penalties and Forfeitures, by 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. cap. 34. Vide Custom of Merchants.

There are Companies of Merchants in London for carrying on considerable Joint Trades to foreign Parts, viz. The Merchant Adventurers, the first Company established in England for the Improvement of Commerce; which was erected by Patent by King Ed. 1. merely for the Transportation of Wool, &c. before we knew the Value of that Commodity, and at a Time we were in a great Measure Strangers to Trade. The next Company was that of the Barbary Merchants, incorporated in the Reign of King Hen. 7. A Company of Merchants trading to the North, called the Muscovy Company, was established by King Ed. 6. and encouraged with additional Privileges, by Queen Mary, Queen Elizabeth, &c. The Barbary Merchants decaying towards the latter End of Queen Elizabeth's Reign, out of their Ruins arose the Levant or Turkey Company; who first trading with Venice, and then with Turkey, furnished England that Way with the East-India Commodities: This Company hath very considerable Factories, at Constantinople, Smyrna, Aleppo, &c. From the flourishing State of the Levant or Turkey Company, in the Reign likewise of Queen Eliz. sprung the Old East-India Company, who having fitted out Ships of Force, brought from thence at the best hand, the Indian Commodities, formerly sold to England by distant Europeans; and they having obtained divers Charters and Grants from the Crown, in their Favour, were sole Masters of that advantageous Traffick; until at last a New Company was incorporated by King William, they having lent the Government Two Millions of Money; and both these Companies, after the Expiration of a certain Term, were by Articles united. In the 21st Year of Queen Elizabeth, the Eastland Company of Merchants was erected; and in King Charles the Second's Time that Company was confirmed, with full Power to trade in Norway, Sweden, Poland, and other Eastland Countries. The Royal African Company had their Charter granted them in the 14th Year of King Car. 2. And by 9 & 10 W. 3. they are to maintain all Forts, &c. King Car. 2. also by Commission under the Great Seal of England, constituted his Royal Highness James Duke of York, (afterwards King Jam. 2.) Edward Earl of Clarendon, and others, to be a Council for the Royal Fishery of England, and declared himself to be the Protector of it; and in the 29th Year of his Reign, he incorporated them into a Company. King Will. 3. in the 4th Year of his Reign established a Greenland Company. By Stat. 9 Ann. to pay the Debts of the Army and Navy, &c. amounting to near Ten Millions, the South-Sea Company of Merchants was erected; who having advanced that Money, the Duties upon Wines, Vinegar, Tobacco, &c. were appropriated as a Fund for Payment of the Interest, after the Rate of 6 l. per Cent. &c. And this Company had granted to them great Immunities by King Geo. 1. in the 1st and 6th Years of his Reign, who was their Governor and Protector.

This short History of our Companies of Merchants, which have ever had many and great Privileges, and are at length become of double Use, i. e.

to enlarge Commerce, and supply the Necessities of the State, sufficiently shews the Progress and Increase of our Trade, and the Wealth of the Nation; But I must nevertheless observe, that they are a Kind of Monopolies, erected by Law; and when the Power granted them is abused, are of fatal Consequence, for which I need only instance the ever memorable Year 1720. Over and above these Companies, there are the Dutch Merchants, those that trade to the West-Indies; the Canary Merchants; Italian Merchants, which trade to Leghorn, Venice, Sicily, &c. The French and Spanish Merchants, &c.

York, Derby, Nottingham, Leicester, Lincoln, Northampton, Bedford, Bucks, Hertford, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Suffolk, Cambridge and Huntingdon; which was governed by the Laws called Danelage: And the Third was in the Possession of the Mercians, whose Law was called Merchenlage; and contained eight Shires, Gloucester, Worcester, Hereford, Warwick, Oxford, Chester, Salop and Stafford: From which Three, King Will. 1. chose the Best, and with other Laws ordained them to be the Laws of the Kingdom. Camd. Rep. 60, 61. If a Lessor, who hath the Fee, marries with the Lessee for Years; this is no Merger, because he hath the Inheritance in his own, and the Lease in Right of his Wife. 2 Plowd. 418. And where a Man hath a Term in his own Right, and the Inheritance descends to his Wife, so as he hath a Freehold in her Right; the Term is not merged or drowned. *Cro. The 10 Ann. requires Persons in Dorsetshire to account for Money received for raising the Militia, on King William's Landing in the West, undisposed of. During the Reigns of King Will. 3. Queen Anne, and King George, Acts were annually made for raising the Militia, although the Month's Pay formerly advanced by the Country be not repaid ; and by the 1 Geo. c. 14. The Militia of Horse and Foot are computed to be about the Number of two hundred Thousand, in England and Wales.

Mines (Mineria) Quarries or Places where-out any Thing is digged; and are likewise the hidden Treasures dug out of the Earth. The King by his Prerogative hath all Mines of Gold and Silver to make Money; and where the Gold and Silver in Mines is of the greater Value, which are called Royal Mines. Plowd. Com. But by Statute, no Mine of Copper or Tin shall be adjudg'd a Royal Mine, though Silver be extracted. 1 W. & M. c. 6. And Persons having Mines of Copper, Tin, Lead, &c. shall enjoy the same, although claimed to be Royal Mines; but the King may have the Oar, (except in Devon and Cornwall) paying to the Owners of the Mines, within thirty Days after it shall be raised; and before removed, 16 l. per Tun for Copper Oar, wash'd and made merchantable; for Lead Oar, 9 l. per Tun; Tin or Iron 40 s. &c. If a Man hath Land where there are some Mines open, and others not, and he lets the Land with the Mines therein, for Life or Years, the Lessee may dig in the open Mines only, which is sufficient to satisfy the Words in the Lease: But if there be no open Mine, and the Lease is made of the Lands, together with all Mines therein, there the Lessee may dig for Mines and enjoy the Benefit thereof; otherwise those Words would be void. 1 Inst. 54. 5 Co. Rep. 12. 2 Lev. 184. To dig Mines is Waste, where Lessees are not authoriz'd by their Leases.

Muniments or Muniments, (Munimenta; from Munio, to defend) Are the Evidences and Writings concerning a Man's Possession or Inheritance, whereby he is enabled to defend the Title of his Estate: And this Word includes all Manner of Evidences, Deeds, Charters, &c. *Terms de Ley 451. is at present, and long hath been in the Tower of London, though it appears by divers Statutes, that in ancient Times the Mint has also been at Calis, and other Places. 2 R. 2. c. 16. and 9 H. 5. c. 5. The Mint-Master is to keep his Allay, and receive Silver at the true Value, &c. 2 H. 6. c. 12. And Gold and Silver delivered into the Mint is to be assay'd, coin'd, and given out, according to the Order and Time of bringing in. 18 Car. 2. c. 5. By the last mentioned Statute 3000 l. a Year was granted out of certain Duties on Wine, Beer, &c. imported, to defray the Expence of the Mint: But this was increas'd by the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 22. and very much augmented by 1 Geo. c. 43. by which Statute it may be a Sum not exceeding 15000 l. a Year, &c. The Officers belonging to the Mint have not always been alike: They are now the following, viz. The Warden, who is the Chief of the Rest, and is by his Office to receive the Silver and Bullion of the Goldsmiths to be coined, and take Care thereof, and he hath the Overseeing of all the other Officers. The Master Worker receives the Silver from the Warden, and causes it to be melted, when he delivers it to the Moniers, and taketh it from them again after made into Money. The Comptroller, who is to see that the Money be made to the just Assise, and control the Officers, if the Money be not made as it ought. The Master of Assay, that weigheth the Silver, and examineth whether it be according to the Standard: The Auditor takes Accounts of the Silver, &c. The Surveyor of the Melting, who is to see the Silver cast out, and that it be not altered after the Assay-Master hath made Trial of it, and it is delivered to the Melters. The Clerk of the Irons, that seeth that the Irons be clean and fit for Working. The Graver, whose Office is to engrave the Stamps for the Money. The Melters, that melt down the Bullion, &c. The Blanchers do anneal and cleanse the Money. The Moniers, who are some to shear the Money, others to beat it broad, some to round, and some to stamp or coin it. The Provost to provide for all the Moniers, and to oversee them, &c. Vide Coin.

Mis. This Syllable added to another Word, signifies some Fault or Defect: As Misprison; Misdicere, to scandalize any one; Misdocere, to teach amiss. — Si Presbyter populum suum misdoceat.

Misadventure, (Fr. Mesadventure, i. e. Infortunium) Has an especial Signification for the Killing a Man, partly by Negligence and partly by Chance. S. P. C. lib. 1. c. 8. And Briton distinguishes between Adventure and Misadventure; the

First

First he makes to be meer Chance; as if a Man, being upon or near the Water, be taken with some sudden Sickness, and so fall in and is drown'd; or into the Fire, and is burnt: Misadventure he says is, where a Person comes to his Death by some outward Violence, as the Fall of a Tree, the Running of a Cart-wheel, Stroke of a Horse, or such like. Brit. c. 7. Staunford construes Misadventure more largely than Britton understands it; and says, it is where one thinking no Harm carelessly throws a Stone, wherewith he kills another, &c. West defines Misadventure to be, when a Man is slain by meer Fortune, against the Mind of the Killer; and he calls it Homicide by Chance mix'd, when the Killer's Ignorance or Negligence is join'd with the Chance. West. Symb. Sect. 48, 49. See Chancemedley.

Miscognisant, Ignorant, or not knowing. In the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. c. 9. against Champerty and Maintenance, it is ordain'd, that Proclamation shall be made twice in the Year of that Act, to the Intent no Person should be ignorant or miscognisant of the Penalties therein contain'd, &c.

Mise, (A French Word, written in Latin Missum, and sometimes Misa) Is a Law Term signifying Expences, and it is so commonly used in the Entries of Judgments in Personal Actions; as when the Plaintiff recovers, that Recuperet damna sua to such a Value, and pro Mis & Custagiis, for Costs and Charges, so much, &c. This Word hath also another Signification in the Use made of it by Law; which is where it is taken for a Word of Art, appropriated to a Writ of Right, so called, because both Parties have put themselves upon the meer Right, to be tried upon the Grand Assise; so as that which in all other Actions is called an Issue, in a Writ of Right is termed a Mise: But if in the Writ of Right a collateral Point be tried, there it is called an Issue. To join the Mise upon the Meer is as much as to say, to join the Mise upon the clear Right; i. e. to join upon this Point, whether has the more Right, the Tenant or Demandant. 1 Inst. 294. 37 Ed. 3. c. 16.

Mises are taken for Taxes or Tallages, &c. An honorary Gift or customary Present, from the People of Wales to every new King and Prince of Wales, antiently given in Cattle, Wine and Corn, but now in Money, being 5000*l.* or more, is denominated a Mise: So was the usual Tribute or Fine of 3000 Marks, paid by the Inhabitants of the County Palatine of Chester, at the Change of every Owner of the said Earldom, for the Enjoying of their Liberties. And at Chester they have a Mise-book, wherein every Town and Village in the County is rated what to pay towards the Mise. The 27 H. 8. c. 26. ordains, that Lords shall have all such Mises and Profits of their Lands as they have had in Times past, &c. And Mise is sometimes corruptly used for Mease, in Law French Mees, a Messuage; as a Mise Place in some Manors is such a Messuage or Tenement as answers the Lord a Heriot at the Death of its Owner. 2 Inst. 528.

Mise-Money, Was Money given by Way of Contract or Composition to purchase any Liberty, &c. Blount Ten. 162.

Miserere, The Name and first Word of one of the Penitential Psalms, and is most commonly that which the Ordinary gives to such guilty

Malefactors as are admitted to the Benefit of the Clergy; being therefore called the Psalm of Mercy.

Misericordia, Is in Law used for an arbitrary or discretionary Amerciament impos'd on any Person for an Offence; and where the Plaintiff or Defendant in any Action is amerced, the Entry is Ideo in Misericordia, &c. Bract. lib. 4. tract. 5. cap. 6. Kitch. 78. It is called Misericordia, because it ought to be but small, and rather less than the Offence, according to Magna Charta, c. 14. Sometimes Misericordia is to be quit of all Manner of Amerciaments. Crompt. Jurisd. 196. See Amerciament.

Misericordia communis, Signifies where a Fine is set on the whole County or Hundred. — Ac de communi Misericordia quando contigerit, videlicet Comitatus & Hundredi coram nobis vel aliquibus Justiciariis nostris, &c.

Misericordia in Cibis & potu, Is used for any gratuitous Portion of Meat and Drink, given to the Religious in Convents beyond their ordinary Allowance. Matt. Paris. And in some Convents they had a stated Allowance of these Overcommons upon extraordinary Days; which were called Misericordie Regulares. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 149.

Misevenire, Is where a Man accused of a Crime, fails in his Defence or Purgation. Leg. Canut. 78.

Misfeasance, A Misdeed or Trespas. — The Jury shall inquire of all Purprestures and Misfeasances. Cro. Car. 498.

Misfeasor, Is a Trespasser. 2 Inst. 200.

Miskennung, (Miskennunga) Is derived from Mis, and Sax. Cennan, i. e. citare. Leg. H. 1. c. 12. Iniqua vel injusta in jus vocatio; inconstanter Loqui in Curia, vel invariare. It is mentioned among the Privileges granted and confirmed to the Monastery of Ramsay by S. Edward the Confessor. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 237. Et in Civitate London. in nullo Placito Miskennagium. Chart. H. 2.

Miskering. Hoc est quietus pro querelis coram quibuscunque in transumptione probata. MS. LL. in Bibl. Cotton. fol. 262.

Misnomer, (Compounded of the Fr. Mes, signifying amiss, and Nomer, i. e. Nominare) Is the Using of one Name for another, a Misnaming. Nomen est quasi rei notamen, and was invented to make a Distinction between Person and Person; and where a Person is described, that he may with Certainty be distinguished from other Persons, the Omission or in any Case the Mistake of the Name shall not avoid the Grant. 11 Rep. 20, 21. But the Christian Name ought always to be perfect; and the Law is not so precise as to Surnames, as it is of Christian Names. Popb. 57. 2 Lill. Abr. 199. Misprisions of Clerks in Names are amendable: And Peter and Piers have been adjudged one and the same Name. 2 Cro. 67, 425. 1 Leon. 146. But where a Christian Name is quite mistaken, as John for Thomas, &c. it may be pleaded, that there was no such Man in rerum Natura. Dyer 349. If a Person pleads, that he was never called by such a Name, it is ill; for this may be true, and yet he might be of that Name of Baptism. 1 Salk. 6. One whose Name is Edmund is bound in a Bond by the Name of Edward; though he subscribes his true Name, that is no Part of the Bond. 2 Cro. 640. Dyer 279. A Man cannot have two Names of Baptism: But if a Person be bound by the Name of W. R. he may may be sued by the Name of W. R. alias dictus W. B. his true Name; not W. B. alias dict. W. R. 3 Salk. 238. A Lady, Wife to a private Person, ought to be named according to the Name of her Husband, or the Writ shall abate; so if the Son of an Earl, &c. be sued as Lord, and not as a private Person, by the Name of his Family. Dyer 76. 2 Salk. 451. Where a Man's Title is mistaken in a Writ, &c. it shall abate, and he must be arrested again. 1 Vent. 154. And the Plaintiff is to confess the Misnomer, and pray an Abatement of his Writ, before he proceeds to a new one. Trin. 2 Ann. 1 Salk. 129. But if a Person's Title of Lord, &c. be mistaken in a Lease or Demise, on Not guilty pleaded, the Issue is not, whether the Person making the Lease is a Lord, or not; so that it is sufficient if 'tis the same Person who demised, though misnamed. Allen 58. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1172. Misnomer of Corporations may be pleaded in Abatement. 1 Leon. 159. 5 Mod. 327. 2 Salk. 451. A Defendant may avoid an Outlawry, by Pleading a Misnomer of Name of Baptism or Surname; Misnomer as to Additions of Estate, of Town, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 460. Though Misnomer of a Surname may not be pleaded on an Indictment; in Appeal it may: And any other Misnomers, and defective Additions, are as fatal in an Indictment as an Appeal. Ibid. 130. A Misnomer must be pleaded by the Party himself who is misnamed. 1 Lutw. 35. If a Man is taken upon a Cap. Excom. who is not of the Name in the Writ, he has no Day in Court to plead this Matter to be discharged; but must bring an Action of False Imprisonment. 1 Mod. 70. See Addition.

Misprision, (Mispriso, from the Fr. Mespris, Contemptus) Signifies a Neglect or Oversight: As for Example; Misprision of Treason is a Negligence in not revealing Treason where a Person knows it to be committed. Staundf. P. C. lib. 1. cap. 19. If a Man knoweth of any Treason or Felony, and conceals the same, it is Misprision: In a larger Sense, Misprision is taken for many great Offences, which are neither Treason nor Felony, or Capital, but very near them; and every great Misdemeanor, which hath no certain Name appointed by the Law, is sometimes called Misprision. 3 Inst. 36. H. P. C. 127. Wood 406, 408. There is also a Misprision of Clerks, as to their Neglects in Writing or keeping Records: And Misprision signifies a Mistaking. 14 Ed. 3. c. 6. When one knows that another hath committed Treason, and doth not reveal it to the King or his Privy Council, or some Magistrate, that the Offender may be secured and brought to Justice, it is High Treason by the antient Common Law; for the Delay in Discovering the Treason was deem'd an Assent to it, and consequently High Treason: But there must now be an actual Assent to some outward Act to make it Treason. Bracton 118. S. P. C. 37. 3 Inst. 138, 140. And by Stat. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 10. a bare Concealment of any High Treason, shall be only Misprision of Treason. A Person having Notice of a Meeting of Conspirators against the Government, goes into their Company and hears their treasonable Consultation, and conceals it, this is Treason; and so where one has been accidentally in such Company, and heard such Discourse, if he meets the same Company a second Time; for in these Cases the Concealment is attended with Circumstances which shew an Approbation thereof. H. P. C. 127. Kel. 17, 21. And a Man that hath Knowledge of a Treason cannot secure himself by Discovering that there will be a Rising in general, without disclosing the Persons intending to rise; nor can he do it by Discovering these to a private Person, who is no Magistrate. S. P. C. H. P. C. 127. But where one is told in general, that there will be a Rising or Rebellion, and doth not know the Persons concerned in it, or the Place where, &c. this uncertain Knowledge may be concealed, and it shall not be Treason or Misprision. Kel. 22. 1 Hawk. P. C. 36. If High Treason is discover'd to a Clergyman in Confession, he ought to reveal it; but not in Case of Felony. 2 Inst. 629. Concealers of Bulls of Absolution from Rome are guilty of Misprision of Treason. 13 Eliz. c. 2. There is a Misprision of Treason in counterfeiting the Great Seal; forging and uttering counterfeit Money brought from another Kingdom, &c. 14 Eliz. c. 3. And Misprision being included in every Treason or Felony, where a Man hath committed Treason or Felony, the King may cause him to be indicted and arraigned of Misprision only, if he please. S. P. C. 32. Information will not lie for Misprision of Treason, &c. but Indictment, as for Capital Crimes: And there must be two Witnesses upon Indictments, as well as Trials of Misprision of Treason, by the Statute 7 W. 3. 2 Hawk. P. C. 258, 260. In all Cases of Misprision of Treason, the Offender shall be imprisoned for Life; and forfeit his Goods, and the Profits of his Lands during Life. H. P. C. 128. 3 Inst. 36, 218.

Misprision of Felony, Is not only where a Man knows of any Felony committed, and concealeth or procures the Concealment thereof; but under this Title of Misprision, that of Theftbote may be reduced; which is where one knowing of a Felony, takes his own Goods again, or rather Amends. 3 Inst. 134, 139. H. P. C. 130. Tho' the bare Taking one's own Goods again which have been stolen is no Offence, unless some Favour be shewn the Thief. 1 Hawk. P. C. 125. The Stat. 3 H. 7. c. 1. provides against Concealments of Felonies by Sheriffs, Coroners and Bailiffs, &c. And for Misprision of Felony, the Offenders shall be punished by Fine and Imprisonment, and remain in Prison 'till the Fines are paid. S. P. C.

Misprisions at large, Are when Persons contemn the King's Prerogative, by refusing to assist the King according to Law; or by Speaking or Writing against his Person or Government; receiving a Pension from a foreign Prince, without his Leave; refusing to take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy; and Contempts against the King's Palace; or the Courts of Justice, &c. H. P. C. 3 Inst. 139, 149.

Mitred Abbots, Were those Governors of Religious Houses who had obtained from the Pope the Privilege of wearing the Mitre, Ring, Gloves, and Crozier of a Bishop. The Mitred Abbots, says Cowel, were not the same with the conventual Prelates, who were summoned to Parliament as Spiritual Lords, tho' it hath been commonly so held; for the Summons to Parliament did not any Way depend on their Mitres, but upon their receiving their Temporals from the Hands of the King. See Abbot.

Mitta, (From the Sax. Mitten, Mensura) An ancient Saxon Measure; its Quantity doth not certainly appear, but it is said to be Mensura decem Modiorum, a Measure of ten Bushels. Domesday. Tit. Wirec scire. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 262. And Mitta, or Mitcha, besides being a Sort of Measure for Salt and Corn, is used for the Place where the Caldrons were put to boil Salt — Calderias quoque ad Sal conficiendum cum propriis sedibus quæ vulgo Mitchæ vocantur. Gale's Hist. Brit. 767.

Stat. 5 R. 2. c. 15. 28 & 29 H. 8. Dyer 29, 32. Mittimus is also a Precept in Writing, under the Hand and Seal of a Justice of Peace, directed to the Gaoler, for the Receiving and safe Keeping of an Offender, until he is delivered by Law. 2 Inst. 590. One must be committed by lawful Mittimus; or Breach of Prison will not be Felony, &c.

Moderata misericordia, A Writ that lies for him who is amerced in a Court-Baron, or other Court not of Record, for any Transgression, beyond the Quality or Quantity of the Offence: It is directed to the Lord of the Court or his Bailiff, commanding them to take a moderate Amerciament of the Party, and is founded upon Magna Charta. If a Man be amerced in a Court-Baron, on Presentment by the Jury, where he did not any Trespas, he shall not have this Writ, unless the Amerciament be excessive and outrageous: And if the Steward of the Court, of his own Head, will amerce any Tenant or other Person without Cause, the Party ought not to sue for his Writ of Moderata Misericordia, if he be distrained for that Amerciament; but he shall have Action of Trespas. New Nat. Br. 167. When the Amercement which is set on a Person is affected by his Peers, this Writ of Moderata Misericordia doth not lie; for then it is according to the Statute. 10 Ed. 2.

Modiatio, Was a certain Duty paid for every Tierce of Wine. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 994.

Modius, A Measure, usually a Bushel; but various according to the Customs of several Countries.

Modius Terræ vel Agri. This Phrase was much used in the ancient Charters of the British Kings, and probably signified the same Quantity of Ground as with the Romans, viz. One hundred Foot long, and as many broad. — Sciendum est quod dedit Ilias pedum quatuor Mediorum Agri circa se, cum omni censu suo, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. p. 200.

Modo & forma, Are Words of Art in Pleadings, &c. in a Cause; and particularly used in the Answer of the Defendant, whereby he denies to have done the Thing laid to his Charge, Modo & forma declarata. Kitch. 232. And Modo & forma are of the Substance of the Issue, as well as Words of Course. Co. Lit. 281.

Modus Decimandi, Is when Lands, Tenements, or some annual certain Sum, or other Profit, hath been given Time out of Mind to a Parson and his Successors, in full Satisfaction and Discharge of all Tithes in Kind, in such a Place. 2 Co. Rep. 47. And it may be paid in Cities and Towns, as in London, for Houses, in lieu of the Tithe of the Lands on which the Houses were built: And there may be a Modus Decimandi for Personal Tithes. 2 Inst. 657, 659. A Modus ought to be for the Benefit and Advantage of the Parson; and is supposed to be of the full Value of the Tithes, at the Time of the original Composition; and if it doth not now come up to that Value, it shall be intended that the Tithes are improved, or that Money is become of less Value than it was at the Time of the Modus agreed on. 13 Rep. 152. Hob. 40. But one Tithe must not be paid in Consideration of another; it is to be something different from the Thing that is due, where the Tithes are due of common Right, and not by Custom only; and it must be something as certain and durable as the Tithe: All which are necessary to make a good Prescription. 1 Roll. Abr. 650. 1 Cro. 276, 446, 475. Hob. 40. A Modus arises either by Composition, Custom or Prescription; a Composition is an Agreement entered into by Deed, executed under Hand and Seal, that such and such Lands shall be discharged of Tithes, paying some annual Payment, or doing something for the Benefit and Advantage of the Parson, &c. which is a legal Exemption from Payment of Tithes for ever, if made before the Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 10. Custom and Prescription differ in this; that Custom is what gives a Right to a whole County, City, Town or Parish, and must be common to all within the Limits where it is averred to be; but Prescription is that which gives a Right to some particular Person, with respect to some particular House, Farm, &c. And the Ecclesiastical Laws allow forty Years to make a good Custom and Prescription; but by the Common Law, it must be beyond the Memory of Man. 1 Roll Abr. 653. Count. Parf. Compan. 159. A Layman, Lord of a Manor, may prescribe De modo Decimandi, for himself and Tenants; also a private Person, for his own Lands, or Part thereof, &c. But in Cases of Prescription, 'tis only to be discharged of a particular Sort of Tithes; for a Prescription De non Decimando generally, would undo the Clergy, and therefore it is not good where there is not sufficient left for their Maintenance; as it may be where there is a competent Livelihood for the Parson. 2 Rep. 47. 1 Cro. 784. 1 Roll Abr. 653. A Layman cannot prescribe by the Common Law De non Decimando; but he may be discharged of Tithes for Lands in his own Hands, by Grant from Parson, Patron and Ordinary. 2 Rep. 44. A Parish, &c. may not prescribe De non Decimando, though it may prescribe De modo Decimandi. 1 Roll Abr. 653. But Tithes due by Custom only are not within the Rule against Prescription in non Decimando by Laymen; for by the like Custom Persons may be discharged from the Payment of such Tithes. Wood's Inst. 179. And spiritual Persons and Corporations may prescribe De non Decimando, to be discharged absolutely of Tithes, and pay nothing in lieu thereof; so also may their Tenants. 2 Rep. 44. 1 Roll Abr. 653, 654. 1 Cro. 512. A Parson may sue in the Spiritual Court for a Modus Decimandi, or Rate Tithe: But if the Modus is denied, or a Custom is to be tried, it must be tried in the Common Law Courts: And where a Modus is pleaded in the Spiritual Court to a Demand of Tithes in Kind, a Prohibition lies upon Supposition that the Spiritual Court will not admit of any Plea against Tithes. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 13. Wood 178. Where Land is converted to other Uses, as Hay Ground to Tillage, &c. or where the Thing is altered or destroyed; as when a Fulling Mill is made a Corn Mill, or a Corn Mill is come to Ruin, &c. a Modus made on good Consideration may be discharged, and then Tithes be paid in Kind. 1 Danv. Abr. 607, 608. so by Nonpayment of the Consideration, or by Payment of Tithes in Kind, for so long Time, that the Prescription for a Modus Decimandi cannot be proved: But a short Interruption 'tis said shall not destroy it. 1 Roll 932. Hob. 43. A Payment of different Sums is Evidence that there is no Modus.

Moiety, (Medietas, Fr. Moitie, i. e. coequa vel Media pars) Is the Half of any Thing; and to hold by Moieties, is mentioned in our Books, in Case of Jointenants, &c. Lit. 125.

Molendinum, A Mill of divers Kinds. See Mill.

Molendum, Signifies Corn sent to a Mill, a Grift. Chart. Abbat. de Rading, M.S. fol. 116.

Molitura, Commonly taken for the Toll paid or taken for grinding Corn at a Mill; and sometimes called Molta, Fr. Moulta. Molitura libera, free Grinding or Liberty of a Mill, without paying Toll; a Privilege which the Lord generally reserved to his own Family — Salva mihi & heredibus meis Molitura libera familie nostre queta in dicto Molendino. Paroch. Antiq. 236.

Molman, A Man subject to do Service; applied to the Servants of a Monastery. Prior. Lewes, p. 21. Spelm. Gloss. 63.

Molmutian, or Molmutin Laws. These were the Laws of Dunawallo Molmutius, sixteenth King of the Britains, who began his Reign above four hundred Years before the Birth of our Saviour; and they were famous in this Land till the Time of William the 1st, called the Conqueror. This King was the first who published Laws in Britain; and his Laws, with those of Q. Mercia, were translated by Gildas out of the British into the Latin Tongue. Usher's Primord. 126.

Monasteries and Abbeys, &c. dissolved by K. H. 8. See 27 H. 8. c. 28. and Abbot.

Monetarium, Signified a certain Tribute paid by Tenants to their Lord every third Year, that he should not change the Money which he had coined, formerly when it was lawful for great Men to coin Money current in their Territories; but not of Silver and Gold: It was abrogated by the Stat. 1 Hen. 1. c. 1. The Word Monetarium is likewise used for a Mintage, and the Right of coining or minting Money: Fus & Artificium cudendi Monetas.

Money, (Moneta) Is that Metal, be it Gold or Silver, that receives Authority by the Prince's Impress to be current; for as Wax is not a Seal without Print, so Metal is not Money without Impression. Co. Lit. 207. It belongs to the King only to put a Value, as well as the Impression on Money; which being done, the Money is current for so much as the King hath limited, 2 Inst. 575. Any Piece of Money coined is of Value as it bears a Proportion to other current Money, and that without Proclamation: And though there is no Act of Parliament, or Order of State for Guineas, as they are taken; yet being coined at the Mint, and having the King's Insignia on them, they are lawful Money, and current at the Value they were coined and uttered at the Mint. 2 Salk. 446. Gold and Silver Coin, &c. is not to be exported without License, on Pain of Forfeiture. Stat. 9 Ed. 3. c. 10. And Money of Silver melted down, is to be forfeited, and double Value. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 31. But by old Statutes, foreign Money may be melted down; and no Money shall be current but the King's own, &c. 27 Ed. 3. c. 14. 17 R. 2. c. 1. See Coin and Exchange.

Money in Court. In Law Proceedings, Money demanded is oftentimes brought into Court, either by a Rule of Court, or by pleading a Profert in Curiam of the Money, and then if the Money is not paid into Court, the Plea will not be received. The Money must be brought into Court, upon the Plea of a Tender: And the Defendant may at any Time, pending an Action on Bond with a Penalty, bring the Money and Costs into Court, and it shall be a good Satisfaction and Discharge, by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. If a Defendant pay Money, or Part, into Court, and it is struck out of the Declaration, though the Plaintiff is Nonsuit, he shall take the Money out of Court, for by paying it into Court, the Defendant admitted that so much was due; but if the Defendant brings Money into Court upon a Tender, and unore prist, and the Plaintiff takes Issue upon the Tender, and 'tis found against him, then the Defendant shall have the Money out of Court, 2 Salk. 597. Money may be brought into Court upon an Action of Debt for Rent: In Replevin, when the Defendant avows for so much Rent arrear, the Plaintiff hath been admitted to bring it into Court: And in Covenant, &c. where the Breach is assigned for Nonpayment of Rent, the Defendant may bring the Money due into Court. Ibid. In a Quantum Meruit it hath been denied; though it was granted in such Case, Pasch. 5 Ann. And it is said, where an Action is brought by an Executor or Administrator, the Defendant cannot bring the Money into Court. 2 Salk. 596.

Monetarii, (Monetarii) Are taken for Bankers, or those that make it their Trade and Business to turn and return Money; also Officers of the Mint, mentioned in the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 15.

Monger, A little Sea Vessel which Fishermen use. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 11. And when a Word ends with Monger, as Ironmonger, &c. it signifies Merchant, from the Sax. Manger, i. e. Mercator.

Monk, (Monachus) From the Gr. μοναχ, solus, qu. soli, i. e. Separati ab aliorum consortio vivant, because the first Monks lived alone in the Wilderness. They were divided into three Ranks; Cœnobitarum, i. e. a Society living in Common in a Monastery, &c. under the Government of a single Person; and these were under certain Rules, and afterwards called Regulars. Anachoreta or Eremita, those Monks who lived in the Wilderness on Bread and Water. And Sarabaita, Monks living under no Rule, that wandered in the World. St. Ferome tells us, that of the Anachoreta, Paulus fuit Auctor, Antonius Illustrator, Johannes Baptista princeps.

Monopoly, (From Μονο, unus, & πωλέω, vendo) Is an Allowance of the King by his Grant, Commission, or otherwise, to any Person or Persons, for the sole Buying, Selling, Making, Working or Using of any Thing, by which any other Persons are restrained of any Freedom or Liberty that they had before, or hindered in their lawful Trade. 3 Inst. 181. All Monopolies are against the ancient and fundamental Laws of the Realm: A By-Law, which makes a Monopoly, is void; and so is a Prescription for a sole Trade to any one Person or Persons, exclusive of all others. Moor 591. Monopolies by the Common Law are void, as being against the Freedom of Trade, and discouraging Labour and Industry, and putting it in the Power of particular Persons to set what Prices they please on a Commodity. 1 Hawk. P. C. 231. Upon this Ground it hath been held, that the King's Grant to any Corporation, of the sole Importation of any Merchandize, is void. 2 Roll. Abr. 214. 3 Inst. 182. The Grant of the sole Making, Importing and Selling of Playing Cards, was adjudged void. 11 Rep. 84. Moor 671. And the King's Grant of the sole Making and Writing of Bills, Pleas, and Writs in a Court of Law, to any particular Person, hath been resolved to be void. 1 Jones 231. 3 Mod. 75. The King may grant to particular Persons the sole Printing of the Holy Scriptures, and Law Books, &c. 1 Hawk. 231. All Matters of this Nature ought to be tried by the Common Law, and not at the Council-Table, or any other Court of that Kind; and the Making use of or Procuring any unlawful Monopoly, is punishable by Fine and Imprisonment at Common Law. 3 Inst. 181, 182. By Statute, all Monopolies, Grants, Letters Patent and Licenses, for the sole Buying, Selling, and Making of Goods and Manufactures, are declared void, except in some particular Cases; and Persons grieved by putting them in use, shall recover treble Damages and double Costs, by Action on the Statute; and Delaying such Action, before Judgment, by Colour of any Order, Warrant, &c. or Delaying Execution after, incurs a Premunire: But this doth not extend to any Grant or Privilege granted by Act of Parliament; nor to any Grant or Charter to Corporations or Cities, &c. Grants to Companies or Societies of Merchants, for Enlargement of Trade; or to Inventors of New Manufactures, who have Patents for the Term of fourteen Years; Grants or Privileges for Printing; Making Gunpowder; Casting Ordnance, &c. 21 Fac. 1. c. 3. As to Inventors of New Manufactures, &c. it has been adjudged on this Statute, that a Manufacture must be substantially new, and not barely an additional Improvement of any old one, to be within the Statute; it must be such as none other used at the Granting the Letters Patent; and no old Manufacture in Use before, can be prohibited in any Grant of the sole Use of any such new Invention. 3 Inst. 184. Yet a Grant of a Monopoly may be to the first Inventor by the Stat. 21 Fac. notwithstanding the same Thing was practised before beyond Sea; because the Statute mentions new Manufactures within the Realm, and intended to encourage new Devices useful here, and it is the same Thing whether acquired by Experience or Travel abroad; or by Study at home. 2 Salk. 447. It is said, a new Invention to do as much Work in a Day by an Engine as formerly used to employ many Hands, is contrary to the Statute; by Reason it is inconvenient, in turning so many Men to Idleness. 3 Inst. 184.

Monstrans de Droit, Is a Shewing of Right, and signifies a Writ out of the Chancery to be restored to Lands and Tenements that are a Man's in Right, tho' by some Office found to be in the Possession of another lately dead; by which Office the King would be intitled to the said Lands, &c. It is given by the Stat. 34 Ed. 3. c. 14. and 36 Ed. 3. 13 Staundf. Prærog. c. 21. 4 Co. Rep. 54.

Monstrans de Faits, Shewing or Producing of the Deed in open Court, when an Action is brought upon any Deed; and the Difference between Monstrans de faits and Oyer de faits, is this: He that pleads any Deed or Record, or Declares upon it, ought to shew the same; and the other, against whom such Deed or Record is pleaded, may demand Oyer thereof. Where a Man pleads a Deed, which is the Substance of his Plea or Declaration, if he doth not plead it with a Profert in Curia, his Plea or Declaration is naught, upon a special Demurrer, shewing it for Cause: And if he doth plead it with a Profert in Curia, if the other Party demands a Sight, of it, he cannot proceed till he hath shewn it; and when the Defendant hath had a Sight of it if he demands a Copy of the same, the Plaintiff may not proceed until a Copy is delivered unto him. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. 2 Lill. Abr. 201, 202. Vide Profert in Curia.

Monstraverunt, Is a Writ that lies for Tenants in ancient Demesne, who hold by free Charter, when they are distrained to do unto their Lords other Services and Customs than they or their Ancestors used to do: Also it lieth where such Tenants are distrained for the Payment of Toll, &c. contrary to their Liberty, which they do or should enjoy. F. N. 14. 4 Inst. 269. This Writ is directed to the Sheriff to charge the Lord that he do not distrain them for such unusual Services, &c. And if the Lord nevertheless distrains his Tenants for other Services than of Right they ought to do, the Sheriff may command the Neighbours who dwell next the Manor, or take the Power of the County, to resist the Lord, &c. And the Tenants in such Case may likewise sue an Attachment against their Lord, returnable in C. B. or B. R. to answer the Com-tempt, and recover Damages. New Nat. Br. 32. But the Lord shall not be put to answer the Writ of Attachment sued against him upon the Monstraverunt, before the Court is certified by the Treasurer and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, from the Book of Domesday, whether the Manor be ancient Demesne; so that it is requisite that the Plaintiff in the Monstraverunt do sue forth a special Writ for the certifying of the same. Ibid. 35. The Writ of Monstraverunt may be sued by many of the Tenants, without naming any of their proper Names, but generally Monstraverunt nobis homines de, &c. But in the Attachment against the Lord, the Tenants ought to be named; though one Tenant may sue it in his own Name, and the Name of the other Tenants by general Words, Et homines, &c. 2 H. 6. 26.

Monstrum, Is sometimes taken for the Box in which Relicks are kept: Item unum Monstrum cum Ossibus S. Petri, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. pag. 173.

Month, or Moneth, Sax. Monath, (Mensis, à Mensione, Luna cursus) Signifies the Time the Sun goes through one Sign of the Zodiack, and the Moon through all twelve; properly the Time from the New Moon to its Change, or the Course or Period of the Moon, whence 'tis called Month from the Moon. Litt. Dist. A Month is a Space of Time containing by the Week twenty-eight Days; by the Kalendar sometimes thirty, and sometimes thirty-one Days: And Julius Caesar divided the Year into twelve Months, each Month into four Weeks, and each Week into seven Days, according to the Number of the seven Planets. The Month by the Common Law is but twenty-eight Days; and in Case of a Condition for Rent, the Month shall be computed at twenty-eight Days; so in the Case of Inrollments of Deeds, and generally in all Cases where a Statute speaks of Months: But when the Statute accounteth by the Year, Half-Year or Quarter of a Year, then it is to be reckoned according to the Kalendar. 1 Inst. 135. 6 Rep. 62. Cro. Jac. 167. A Twelvemonth, in the singular Number, includes the whole Year, according to the Kalendar: But twelve Months, six Months, &c. in the plural Number, shall be accounted after twenty-eight Days to every Month; except in Case of Presentations to Benefices to avoid Lapse, &c. which shall be in six Kalendar Months. 6 Rep. 61. Cro. Jac. 141. And if an Agreement is to pay 50 s. for the Interest of 100 l. at the End of six Months, it is said the Computation must be by Kalendar Months; because if it was by Lunar Months the Interest would exceed the Rate allowed by the Statute. Wood's Inst. 433. Though in common Cases of Loans and Forbearance of Money, the Months according to some shall be reckoned at twenty-eight Days, and according to others by the Kalendar. 1 Leon. 96.

Monument. An Heir may bring an Action against one that injures the Monument, &c. of his Ancestor: And the Coffin and Shroud of a deceased Person belong to the Executors or Administrators; but the dead Body belongeth to none. 3 Inst. 202, 203.

Moots, In the Isle of Man, who summon the Courts for the several Sheadings, are the Lord's Bailiffs, called by that Name; and every Moor has the like Office with our Bailiff of the Hundred. King's Descript. Isle of Man.

Moot, (From the Sax. Motian, placitare, to treat or handle) Is a Term well understood in the Inns of Court, and signifies that Exercise or Arguing of Cases which young Barristers and Students perform at certain Times, the better to enable them for Practice and Defence of Clients Causes. The Place where Moot-Cases were argued, was anciently called the Moot-Hall: And in the Inns of Court, there is a Bailiff of the Moots yearly chosen by the Benchers, to appoint the Mootmen for the Inns of Chancery; and keep Accounts of the Performances of Exercises, both there and in the House. Orig. Juridical. 212.

Mootmen, Are those that argue the Readers Cases, called Moot-Cases, in the Inns of Chancery, in Term-Time, and in Vacations. 3 Rep.

Moor, A Moor, or barren and unprofitable Ground, derived from the Sax. Mor, signifying also Marshland. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 50. 1 Inst. 5. and, according to Fleta, it is used for Heath. Flet. lib. 2. cap. 71.

Moor, A watery or boggy Moor; and such in Lancashire they call Mosses: Moressa is used in the same Sense. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 306.

Mozatur in Lege, Is the same with Demoratur, and signifies as much as he demurs; because the Party goes not forward in pleading, but rests or abides upon the Judgment of the Court in a certain Point, as to the Sufficiency in Law of the Declaration or Plea of the adverse Party, who deliberate and take Time to argue and advise thereupon, and then determine it. Co. Lit. 71. See Demurrer.

Mozetum, A Sort of brown Cloth, with which Caps were formerly made. Matt. Paris. An. 1258.

Mozgangina, (From the Sax. Morgen, i. e. Aurora, and Gifan or Givan, dare) Is that Gift which the Husband presents to his Wife on the Wedding Day, which we now call Dowry Money, and was usually among the Lombards the fourth Part of his personal Estate. It signifies literally Donum Matutinale; and in some Books it is writ Morganegiba; in others Morgangiva, Morgagifa. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 70. Leg. Canut. c. 99.

Moztdancelloz, A Writ. See Assise of Mortdancelloz.

Moztgage, (Mortgagium, vel Mortuum vadium, From the Fr. Mort, i. e. Mors and Gage, Pignus) Is a Pawn of Lands or Tenements, &c. for Money borrowed, to be the Creditors for ever, if the Money be not repaid on the Day agreed: And

And it is called a Mortgage, because it is a dead Pledge, until the Money is paid; or for that if the Money is not paid at the Day, the Land Mortitur to the Debtor, and is forfeited to the Creditor. Litt. 332. It is usually made by Lease for a long Term of Years, Lease and Release, Assignment, &c. And the Creditor holding the Land upon this Agreement, is in the mean Time called Tenant in Mortgage, and holdeth the Estate upon the Condition in the Deed: But generally till Failure is made of Payment, the Mortgagor holds the Land; and if Failure is made, and the Mortgagee doth enter into the Lands, the Mortgagor hath an Equity of Redemption in the Court of Chancery, and may call the Mortgagee to an Account for the Profits, &c. Litt. 332. 1 Inst. 205. In a Mortgage is contained a Proviso, that if the Money be paid at the Day, the Deed to be void: And on the Mortgagor's Paying the Interest of the Money, Mortgages are continued a long Time without disturbing the Possession or Parties. Law Securit. 103. A Feoffment in Fee, or a Lease for Life or Years, &c. may be made with a Proviso or Condition, that if the Feoffor or Grantor, or their Heirs or Executors, pay to the Feoffee or Grantee, &c. such Sum of Money at a certain Day, then the Feoffor, &c. may re-enter; and this hath been a common Condition in a Mortgage, or of an Estate upon Condition in Deed: In the former Case of Mortgages, the Mortgagor keeps Possession till Failure; but here the Mortgagee has the Possession presently, and till Payment. Litt. 332, 333. An old Mortgage assigned to another, ought to be taken as a new Mortgage from the Time of the Assignment: And as a Mortgagee, where the Mortgage is forfeited, shall have Interest for his Interest; so shall an Assignee for all Interest due from the Time the Mortgage was assigned. 1 Chanc. Rep. 218, 258. For where a Mortgagor assigns the Mortgage, all Money paid by the Assignee, if due at that Time, shall be accounted Principal as to the Mortgagor, whenever he comes to redeem. Ibid. 68. But an Agreement made at the Time of a Mortgage, will not make future Interest Principal, before any Interest is grown due; the Interest must be first due before an Agreement concerning it may make the same Principal. 2 Salk. 449. Not only the Mortgagor, but his Heir, being interested in the Condition, may pay the Mortgage Money to prevent the Forfeiture; and so may the Executors or Administrators of the Mortgagor: But if no Time be limited for Payment of the Money, and the Mortgagor having Time during Life to pay it do not pay the same; his Heirs or Executors, &c. shall not in such Case be received to pay the Money after his Death. 1 Inst. 206. Executors of the Mortgagee shall have Money due on Mortgages, where a Mortgagee in Fee dies before the Day of Payment, unless the Heir be particularly named: And where the Heir is named, if the Day of Payment be past, it is as much as if no Person had been appointed, and then the Law appoints it to the Executor; as the Money first came out of the Personal Estate, and the Executor more represents the Testator than the Heir. 1 Inst. 210. 2 Ventr. 348. Chanc. Rep. 284. If Heirs and Executors are named, it may be paid to either. A Man mortgaged Lands for Payment of such a Sum to the Mortgagee, his Heirs, Executors or Assigns, the Mortgagee died, and made the Heir within Age his Executor, and the Mortgagor paid the Money at the Day to the Heir; it was held, that the Heir had not the Money as Heir, but that it should be Asssets in his Hands as Executor. 3 Leon. 59. But it hath been adjudged, that upon a Mortgage of Land in Fee, with Condition to pay to the Heirs or Assigns of the Mortgagee, the Heirs and not the Executors shall have the Money. Chanc. Rep. 88. When the Heir of the Mortgagee is to reconvey the Estate mortgaged, and there is no Defect of Asssets in the Hands of the Executors, the Mortgage Money for Redemption shall be paid to the Heir, if the Condition was to pay it to him; or if it was to pay it to the Mortgagee, his Heirs or Assigns, or to his Heirs or Executors: But it is otherwise if it was to be paid to the Executor only. Chanc. Rep. 83. 3 Salk. 241. Mortgages have been looked upon as Part of the personal Estate, except a Mortgagee in Fee otherwise declare the same. Chanc. Rep. 286. And personal Estate of a Mortgagor shall, in Favour of the Heir, be applied to discharge the Mortgage; if there be personal Asssets, to pay all Legacies. 2 Salk. 450. It has been decreed, that where a Mortgagee lends more Money upon Bond to the Mortgagor, he shall not redeem, unless he pay the Money due on the Bond as well as on the Mortgage: Though if he mortgage the Equity of Redemption to another, the second Mortgagee shall not be affected by this Bond, because 'tis but a personal Charge upon the Mortgagor. 3 Salk. 240. In Equity it is allowed, that if Lands are thrice mortgaged the third Mortgagee may buy in the first Incumbrance to protect his own Mortgage; and he shall hold against the second Mortgagee, if such second Mortgagee do not satisfy him the Money he paid on the first, and also his own Money which he lent on the last Mortgage. 2 Ventr. 338. And a Purchaser upon valuable Consideration, purchasing a precedent Incumbrance, shall protect his Estate against any Person that hath a Mortgage subsequent, &c. A Mortgagee, without Notice of a former Incumbrance, buys in an Incumbrance precedent to that Incumbrance, which precedes his Mortgage; he shall not be impeached in Equity, but upon Payment of all that is due to him on both Estates. Chanc. Rep. 149. 2 Lill. Abr. 206. If a Mortgagor retaining the Possession levies a Fine to another Mortgagee, this shall not bar the first Mortgagee. 1 Lev. 272. But in a late Case, a second Mortgage, with the Title Deeds, may be paid in Equity before a first Mortgagee, without the Deeds: And by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 16. where Mortgagors make second Mortgages, and do not discover the first, the second Mortgagee may redeem, &c. A Jointress of mortgaged Lands was decreed to pay the Mortgage Money for Redemption, and hold over, till she and her Executors should be paid with Interest. Chanc. Rep. 27. And where a Devise of Land mortgaged, was to one for Life, and Remainder to another in Fee; it was adjudged, that Tenants for Life should pay one third, and he in Remainder two thirds, to redeem. Ibid. The Interest in Lands mortgaged is in Law in the Mortgagee before Forfeiture; he hath purchased the Land as it were upon valuable Consideration, as the Law will intend: And though the Mortgagor may redeem, yet it is not certainly known whether he will or no; and if he do not, the Estate is absolute in the Mortgagee. A Mortgagee is esteemed in Possession on executing the Mortgage; and if the Mortgage Money be not paid, whereby the Land is forfeited, he may may bring Ejectment without actual Entry; but where a Condition is to be defeated, it must be by actual Entry. 2 Lill. Abr. 203. After twenty Years, (the Time of Entry limited by Stat. 21 Jac. 1.) where no Demand has been made of the Money, or Interest paid, &c. Mortgages are not relievable in Chancery, unless there be particular Circumstances to induce it, as in Case of Feme Coverts, Infants, &c. 2 Vent. 340. Infants seized of Estates in Fee, in Mortgage, &c. may make Conveyances of such Estates, by Order of the Court of Chancery. Stat. 7 Ann. c. 19. See Equity of Redemption.

Mortgago, Is he that mortgages or pawns the Lands; and he to whom the Mortgage is made is called the Mortgagee.

Morth, (Sax.) Signifies Murder, Morthlaga a Murderer or Manslayer.

Mortmain, (Manus Mortua, i. e. Dead Hand, from the Fr. Mort, viz. Mors and Main, Manus) Is where Lands and Tenements are given or aliened to any House of Religion or Corporation, sole or aggregate, Ecclesiastical and Temporal, and their Successors, &c. which may not be done without Licence from the King: And the Reason of the Name proceeds from this, that the Services and other Profits due for such Lands, should not without such Licence come into Hands as it were dead, and be so dedicated to pious Uses as to be abstractedly different from other Lands, and never to revert to the Donor, or any temporal or common Use. And because the Lords had nothing from the Alienees; for by Alienation in Mortmain they lost their Escheats, and many Services which were heretofore due to them, as Bodies Politick never die, nor can perform personal Service, commit Treason or Felony, &c. This occasioned the Statutes of Mortmain, by Virtue whereof the King, or other Lord of whom the Land is holden, may enter into Lands so aliened. 1 Inf. 2. 2 Inf. 75. The Foundation of all the Statutes of Mortmain was Magna Charta. By the 9 H. 3. c. 36. it is declared, that it shall not be lawful for any to give his Lands to any Religious House, and to take the same Land again to hold of the same House, &c. upon Pain that the Gift shall be void, and the Land shall accrue to the Lord of the Fee. This Statute is interpreted to extend to Lands which a Religious House kept in their own Hands, though they gave them not back again to hold of the same House. 2 Inf. 75. But Ecclesiastical Persons found Means to creep out of the Statute, by purchasing Lands holden of themselves, or by taking Leases for a long Term of Years,

Years, &c. wherefore by 7 Ed. 1. commonly called the Statute of Mortmain, or de Religiosis, no Persons religious, or others whatsoever, shall buy or sell any Lands or Tenements, or under the Colour of any Gift or Lease, or by Reason of any other Title receive the same, or by any other Craft shall appropriate Lands in any wise to come into Mortmain, on Pain of Forfeiture; and within a Year after the Alienation, the next Lord of the Fee may enter; and if he do not, then the next immediate Lord, from Time to Time, is to have Half a Year; and for Default of all the Lords entering, the King shall have the Lands so alienated for ever, and may enfeoff others by certain Services, &c. As this Statute extended only to Gifts, Alienations, &c. made between Ecclesiasticks and others, they found out an Evasion also of this Statute; for pretending a Title to the Land which they meant to gain, they brought a feigned Action against the Tenant of the Land, and he by Consent and Collusion was to make Default, and thereupon they recovered the Land, and entered by Judgment of Law: So that the Stat. Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 32. was thought necessary; by which it is to be inquired by the Country whether the Demandant had a just Title to the Land; and if so, then he shall recover Seisin; but if otherwise, the Lord of the Fee shall enter, &c. Notwithstanding all these Statutes, Ecclesiastical Persons (not being able to get Lands by Purchase, Gift, Lease or Recovery) procured Lands to be conveyed by Feoffment, or in other Manner, to divers Persons and their Heirs, to the Use of them and their Successors, whereby they took the Profits. 2 Inst. 75. To bar this, the Stat. 15 R. 2. c. 5. was made, which Statute enacts, that no Feoffment, &c. of any Lands and Tenements, Advowsons or other Possessions, to the Use of any Spiritual Persons, or whereof they shall take the Profits, shall be made without Licence of the King, and of the Lords, &c. upon Pain of Forfeiture. And by 23 H. 8. c. 10. against superstitious Uses, Feoffments, Fines, Recoveries, Grants, Devises, &c. of Lands, in Trust to the Use of any Parish-Church, &c. or to have perpetual Obits or continual Service of a Priest for ever, or for sixty Years, &c. to the Prejudice of the King and other Lords, as in Case of Lands aliened in Mortmain, shall be void: Though this last Statute extends not to Corporations, where there is a Custom to devise Lands in Mortmain; as in London, a Freeman that pays Scot and Lot may devise all his Lands in the City in Mortmain, without Licence. 1 Roll. Abr. 556. And notwithstanding this, or any of the aforesaid Statutes, any Man at this Day may give Lands, Tenements, &c. to any Persons and their Heirs, for finding a Preacher, Maintenance of a School, Reparation of Churches, Relief of the Poor, &c. or for any like charitable Uses: Though it is good Policy on every such Estate to reserve a small Rent to the Feoffor and his Heirs, when the Feoffees shall be seised to their own Use, and not to the Use of the Feoffor; or if a Consideration of a small Sum be expressed, the 23 H. 8. cannot by any Pretence make void the Use. 1 Rep. 24. 11 Rep. 70. Wood's Inst. 303. By the Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 5. the Gift of Lands, &c. to Hospitals is permitted, without obtaining Licence of Mortmain. Owners of Improvements may annex them to the Parsonage or Vicarage where they lie, or settle them in Trust for the Curates, where the Parsonage is impropriate and no Vicarage endowed, without Licence of Mortmain: And if the settled Maintenance of any Benefice with Cure shall not amount to 100 l. per Annum, the Incumbent may purchase to him and his Successors, &c. without Licence in Mortmain. 17 Car. 2. c. 3. By an antient Statute the King's Licence may be had for Amortizing of Lands, and the Writ of Ad quod Damnum is to issue out of Chancery to inquire concerning the same. 27 E. 1. Prelates, Clerks, &c. shall not be impeached for purchasing Lands in Mortmain, on producing the King's Charter of Licence. 18 E. 3. And it is declared lawful for the King to grant to any Person, Body Politick or Corporate, their Heirs and Successors, License to alien in Mortmain; and purchase and hold in Mortmain in Perpetuity, &c. without incurring any Forfeiture, by Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 37. A Grant of an Advowson in Fee, or an Appropriation of an Advowson, hath been adjudged a Mortmain; but an Appropriation of Tithes, which are Things merely Spiritual, or a Grant of an Annuity, that chargeth the Person only, cannot be Mortmain, to be forfeited. 1 Inst. 2, 374. 2 Inst. 361. 5 Rep. 56. 9 Rep. 96.

Mortuary, (Mortuarium) Is defined to be a Gift left by a Man at his Death to his Parish-Church, in Recompence of personal Tithes and Offerings omitted to be paid in his Life time: Or it is that Beast or other Chattel moveable, which, after the Death of the Owner, by the Custom of some Place is due to the Parson, Vicar, or Priest of the Parish, in lieu of Tithes or Offerings forgot, or not well and truly paid by him that is dead. Terms de Ley 449. Mr. Selden tells us, that the Usage anciently was to bring the Mortuary along with the Corpse when it came to be buried, and to offer it to the Church as a Satisfaction for the supposed Negligence and Omission the deceased had been guilty of in not paying his personal Tithes; and from thence it was called a Corse-present. Seld. Hist. Tithes 287. A Mortuary is not properly due to an Ecclesiastical Incumbent from any but those only of his own Parish, to whom he ministers spiritual Instruction, and hath Right to their Tithes; but by Custom in some Places they are paid to the Incumbent of other Parishes, when the Corpses of dead Bodies pass through them: And the Bishops of Bangor, Landaff, St. David's, &c. formerly had Mortuaries of Priests, till taken away by a late Statute. 12 Ann. c. 6. In the Diocese of Chester there is said to be a Custom for the Bishop to have a Mortuary on the Death of every Priest dying within the Archdeaconry of Chester, of his best Beast, Saddle and Bridle, and best Gown or Cloak, Hat, and upper Garment under the Gown, &c. Cro. Car. 172. Before the Stat. 21 H. 8. Mortuaries were payable in Beasts; the best to the Lord for a Heriot, the second best for a Mortuary; nor was it only De meliori Averno, sed de meliori re: And Mortuarium (says Lindwood) sic dictum est quia relinquitur Ecclesie pro Anima Defuncti. It hath been held, that such a Right was vested in the Parson to have the second best Beast for a Mortuary, (where by Custom it was due) that he might seise it wherever he could find it; but they are now settled to be paid in Money. 2 Inst. 491. Clergym. Law 474. No Mortuary is originally due by Law but by Custom only: And Custom did so prevail, that Mortuaries were held as due Debts, and the Payment of them was enjoined

as well by the Statute De Circumspecte agatis. 13 Ed. 1. as by several Constitutions, &c. And by the 21 H. 8. c. 6. Mortuaries are to be paid as follows, viz. He that dies possessed of moveable Goods to the Value of 40 l. or above, (his Debts first paid) is to pay 10 s. He that dieth possessed of Goods of 30 l. Value and under 40 l. is to pay 6 s. 8 d. And dying possessed of Goods to the Value of 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. and under 30 l. to pay 3 s. 4 d. But if the Goods are under 6 l. 13 s. 4 d. Value, no Mortuary is to be paid; and no Mortuary is to be paid by any Feme Covert or Child, Persons not keeping House, &c. If one happens to die in a Place where he does not reside, by this Statute the Mortuary shall be paid in the Place where he had his most Abode; no Person shall pay Mortuaries in more Places than one, or more than one Mortuary; and no Mortuary shall be demanded of any but in such Places where Mortuaries are due by Custom, and have used to have been paid: Also there is a Proviso in the Statute, that in Places where Mortuaries have been of less Value than as aforesaid, no Person shall pay any more than has been accustomed. If a Parson, Vicar, &c. take or demand more than is allowed by the Statute for a Mortuary, he shall forfeit all he takes beyond it, and 40 s. more to the Party grieved, to be recovered by Action of Debt, &c. Stat. Ibid. Since this Statute, whereby Mortuaries are reduced to a Certainty, an Action of Debt will lie upon the said Statute in the Courts of Common Law, for Recovery of the Sum due for a Mortuary, being due by Custom as aforesaid, although before that Statute they were recoverable only in the Spiritual Court: But as such Actions have never been brought, it is said they are still recoverable in that Court only. Watf. Clergym. Law 475. Count. Parf. Compan. 140. Where by Custom a Mortuary hath not been usually paid, if a Person be libelled in the Spiritual Court, he shall have a Prohibition by Virtue of the Statute 21 H. 8. And upon a Prohibition the Custom may be tried, &c. 2 Lutw. 1066. 3 Mod. 268.

And from this we draw our Word Moot, to plead in the Inns of Court and Chancery: Also Mota was sometimes taken for a Fortress; as Turris de London, & Mota de Windsor, the Tower of London and Fortrefs of Windsor. *Chart. Motion in Court. In the Courts of Chancery, King's Bench, &c. Motions are made by Barristers and Counsellors at Law, for what concerns their Clients Causes: And where any Motion is made in Chancery, that is not of Course, generally an Affidavit of the Facts alledged must be read in Court; and if Motions are founded on the general Rules or Usage of the Court, and are not of Course, but granted or denied as the Court thinks fit, on hearing Counsel on both Sides, Notice is to be given in Writing to the Solicitor of the other Party, or his Clerk in Court, expressing every Thing moved for, which must be served two Days at least before the Day on which the Motion is to be made, whereof Affidavit must also be made. Pract. Solic. 17. In B. R. one ought not to move the Court for a Rule for a Thing to be done, which by the common Rules of Practice may be done without moving the Court for it: Nor shall the Court be moved for the doing what is against the Practice of the Court: One ought not to move for several Things in one Motion; and where a Motion hath been denied, the same Matter may not be moved again by another Counsel, without acquainting the Court thereof, and having their Leave for the same: But every Person who makes a solemn Argument at the Bar, is allowed by the Court a Motion. 2 Lill. Abr. 209, 210. If there be divers Rules of Court made in a Cause, and the Party intends to move thereon, he must produce the Rule that was last made in the Cause, and move upon that: But it is necessary to have all the Rules and Copies of the Affidavits, to satisfy the Court how the Cause hath been proceeded in, and how it stands in Court; though the last Rule is the most material: And where a Motion is made to set aside a Rule grounded on an Affidavit, a Copy of the Affidavit must be produced, that the Court may be informed upon what Grounds the Rule was made, and judge whether there be Cause shewn upon the Motion sufficient to set aside the Rule. Pasch. 13 Car. B. R. Hill. 1649. If any Thing be moved to the Court upon a Record, the Record is to be in Court, or the Court will make no Rule upon such Motion. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. One Party ought not to surprise another by a Motion in Court, but to move in convenient Time, that the other Party may have Time to be heard. Pasch. 23 Car. It is against the Practice of the Court to move for an Attachment, or any Matters in Law, upon the last Day of the Term, except the Case is peremptory.

remptory. Monday is a special Day for Motions in B. K. by the ancient Course, but they are made upon any Day, as the Business of the Court will permit: The three or two last Days of the Term, are Days appointed to hear Motions, and Crown-Office Causes; and the last Day chiefly for Motions, to prepare Business against the next Term or Assises. 2 Lill. 208, 210. In the Chancery, during the Term, every Thursday is a Day for Sealing, and Motions; and Tuesdays and Saturdays are Days for Motions, as are the first and last Days of the Term: In Vacation, only Seal-Days appointed by the Lord Chancellor, are Days of Motion. *Practis. Mulier, As used in our Law, seems to be a Word corrupted from Melior, or the Fr. Melieur; and signifies the lawful Issue, born in Wedlock, (though begotten before) preferred before an elder Brother born out of Matrimony. 9 Hen. 6. cap. 11. Smith's Republ. Angl. lib. 3. cap. 6. But by Glanvil, the lawful Issue are said to be Mulier, not from Melior, but because begotten of Muliere, and not ex Concubina; for he calls such Issue Filius Mulieratus, opposing them to Bastards. Glanv. lib. 7. cap. 1. It appears to be thus used in Scotland also; Skene saying; Mulieratus filius is a lawful Son, begotten of a lawful Wife. If a Man hath a Son by a Woman, before Marriage, which is a Bastard and unlawful, and after he marries the Mother of the Bastard, and they have another Son, this second Son is Mulier and lawful, and shall be Heir to his Father, but the other cannot be Heir to any Man; and they are distinguished in our old Books with this Addition, Bastard eigne, and Mulier puisne. Co. Lit. 170, 243. Where a Man has Issue by a Woman, if he afterwards marries her, the Issue is Mulier by the Civil Law, though not by the Laws of England. 2 Inst. 96. 5 Rep. 416. Of ancient Time, Mulier was taken for a Wife, as it is commonly used for a Woman, particularly one that is not a Maid; and some Times for a Widow; but it has been held, that a Virgin is included under the Name of Mulier. 1 Inst. 243.

Multiplication of Gold and Silver, Was prohibited and declared to be Felony by Statute 5 Hen. 4. cap. 4. Which Statute was made on a Presumption that Persons skilful in Chymistry, could multiply or augment these Metals, by changing other Metals into Gold or Silver; and the Endeavours of some Persons in making use of extraordinary Methods for the Producing of Gold and Silver, and finding out the Philosopher's Stone, were found to be so prejudicial to the Publick, from the lavish Waste of many valuable Materials, and the Ruin of many Families, by such useless Expences, that they occasioned the Statute 5 Hen. 4. But the Restrain thereby, having no other Effect, from the unaccountable Vanity of those who fancied those Attempts practicable, than to send them beyond Sea to try their Experiments with Impunity in other Countries, the 5 Hen. 4. was at last repealed by 1 W. & M. cap. 30. Dyer 88. 8 Hawk. P. Gloss.* Some would have Mundbrech to signify an Infringement of Privileges; though of later Times it is expounded Clausarum fractionem, a Breach of Mounds, by which Name Ditches and Fences are called in many Parts of England: And we say, when Lands are fenced in and hedged, that they are mounded.

Munus Ecclesiasticum, Signifies the consecrated Bread, out of which a little Piece is taken for a Communicant. — Insuper & omne sacrificium quod nos dicimus Munus Ecclesiasticum, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 838.

Murage, (Muragium) Is a reasonable Toll, to be taken of every Cart and Horse coming laden through a City or Town, for the Building or Repairing the publick Walls thereof, due either by Grant, or Prescription: And it seems to be a Liberty granted to a Town by the King, for the Collecting of Money towards the Walling of the Same. 3 Edw. 1. c. 30. 2 Inst. 222. The Service of Work and Labour done by Inhabitants and adjoining Tenants in Building or Repairing the Walls of a City or Castle, was called Murorum operatio; and when this personal Duty was commuted muted into Money, the Tax so gathered was called Murage. Paroch. Antiq. 114. And in the City of Chester, there are two ancient Officers called Murengers, being two of the principal Aldermen yearly chosen to see the Walls kept in good Repair; for the Maintenance of which they receive certain Tolls and Customs.

Murder, Murdrum, from the Sax. Morth, whence comes the barbarous Latin Mordrum & Murdrum; in French Meurdre) Is a Word in use long before the Reign of King Canutus, which some would have to signify a violent Death; and sometimes the Saxons expressed it by Morthdæd & Morthweorc, a deadly Work: But I cannot find that the Sax. Morth relates to a violent Death, but generally Mors. Anciently Murder signified only the private Killing of a Man, as appears by the Laws of King Hen. 1. And it was not Murder, except the Party slain was an Englishman, and no Foreigner; though by the Stat. 14 Edw. 3. c. 4. the Killing of any Englishman or Foreigner, living under the King's Protection, through Malice prepense, and whether committed openly or secretly, is declared to be Murder. S. P. C. lib. 1. cap. 2. And doubtless the Makers of the Statute of 23 H. 8. c. 1. which excludes all wilful Murder from the Benefit of the Clergy, intended to include open, as well as private Homicide within the Word Murder. 1 Hawk. P. C. 78. By Murder at this Day, we understand the wilful and felonious Killing of any Man whatsoever, upon Malice fore-thought; so as the Party wounded or hurt die within a Year and a Day after the Fact: And if one dies in that Time, through disorderly Living, it shall be no Excuse, the Wounds will be judged the principal Cause of his Death; but if one wounded die after that Time, the Law will presume he died a natural Death. 3 Inst. 53. H. P. C. 55. Kel. 26. Murder may be committed in divers Manners; as by Weapon, Poison, Crushing, Bruising, Smothering, Strangling, Starving, &c. And where a Person having Malice to another, strikes or shoots at him, but misseeth him and kills one not intended; or if one lays Poison to kill a Person, and another takes it and dies; these are Murder: Also if a sick Man be laid in the Cold, whereof he dieth; or an Infant is laid under Leaves or Trees, &c. and suffered to be destroyed by Vermin, they are a Killing. 3 Inst. 51. 9 Rep. 81. If a Person stir up a Dog accustomed to bite, knowing it to be such, and it kill a Person; or if a Man have an Ox, or Horse, which he knows to be mischievous, by being used to gore or strike at those who come near them, and do not tie them up, if they kill a Man, according to some Opinions, the Owner may be indicted, as having himself feloniously killed him. Pult. 122. H. P. C. 53. 1 Hawk. P. C. 79. Anciently it was holden, that the Causing an Abortion, by giving a Potion to, or striking a Woman big with Child, was Murder: But now it is said to be a great Misprision only, and not Murder, unless the Child be born alive, and die thereof. 1 Hawk. 80. If the Death of a Bastard Child newly born be concealed, it shall be supposed to be murdered; if the Mother doth not prove it was born dead. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 27. If one by Duress of Imprisonment compel a Man to accuse an innocent Person, who on his Evidence is condemned and executed; in Judgment of Law it is the Killing of the Compeller, &c. S. P. C. 36. 3 Inst. 91. All the above Cases shew Malice; so where a Prisoner, by the Duress of the Gaoler, comes to an untimely End; if one is executed contrary to the Direction of the Law; or if a Person sentenced to be whipped, is whipped with that Rigour that he dieth of it, &c. But one under the Age of Discretion, or non Compos Mentis, cannot be guilty of Murder; tho' if it appears by Circumstances that the Infant did hide the Body, &c. it is Felony. H. P. C. 43. 3 Inst. 4, 6, 54. It is Malice makes the Crime of Murder, which is either express, or implied; it is express, when it may be evidently proved there was formerly some ill Will, and the Killing is with a sedate Mind, and form'd Design of doing it: And implied, where one kills another suddenly, having nothing to defend himself; as going over a Stile, or the Like. 3 Inst. 51. H. P. C. 47. Such Murder as is occasioned through an express Purpose to do some principal Injury to him who is slain, is properly said to be of express Malice: And such as happens in the Execution of an unlawful Action, principally intended for some other Purpose, and not to do a personal Injury to him in particular that is killed, is most properly Malice implied. Kel. 129, 130. He that doth a cruel and voluntary Act, whereby Death ensues, doth it of Malice prepensed in the Esteem of the Law: And if a Person in cool Blood, maliciously and deliberately beats another in such a Manner, beyond any apparent Intent of Chastisement, that he dieth, it is Murder by express Malice, although he did not design to kill him. H. P. C. 49, 50. Kel. 64, 127, 135. But if a Person on any Provocation beat another so, that it might plainly appear he meant not to kill, but only to chastise him; or if he restrains himself till the other hath put himself on his Guard, and then in fighting with him he killeth him, he will not be guilty of Murder but Manslaughter. 1 Hawk. P. C. 82. When one executes his Revenge, upon a sudden Provocation, in such a cruel Manner, with a dangerous Weapon, as shews a malicious Intention to do Mischief; and Death ensues, it is express Malice and Murder from the Nature of the Fact. Kel. 55, 61, 65, 130. A Man chided his Servant, and upon some cross Answer given, he having a hot Iron in his Hand, ran it into the Servant's Belly, of which he died; this was adjudged Murder. Kel. 64. If a Person is trespassing upon another, by breaking his Hedges, &c. and the Owner upon Sight thereof take up an Hedge-Stake and give him a Stroke on the Head, whereof he dies; this is Murder, because it is a violent Act beyond the Proportion of the Provocation. H. P. C. And where a Boy was upon a Tree in a Park cutting of Wood, and the Keeper bid him come down, which he did; and then the Keeper struck him several Blows with a Cudgel, and afterwards with a Rope tied him to his Horse's Tail, and the Horse ran away with him and killed him; this was held to be Murder out of Malice, the Boy having come down at the Keeper's Command. Cro. Car. 139. H. P. C. A Man's Son was beaten, and complaining of it to his Father, the Father in Anger beat the other Boy with a Cudgel whereof he died; the Law shall adjudge it to be upon that sudden Occasion, and stirring of Blood, that he made the Assault, and

and not upon Malice, unless it be found; and if the Distance of the Place where his Son complained was a Mile, it is not material, being all upon one Passion. Cro. Jac. 296. And it is the same in Case of a Brother, Cousin, Servant, &c. it is only Manslaughter, not Murder. 2 Lill. 211. If two having Malice fight, and the Servant of one of them, not knowing of the Malice, killeth the other, this is Murder in the Master, and but Manslaughter in the Servant: Though if there be a Conspiracy to kill a Man, but no Malice against his Servant; if the Servant be slain, the Malice against the Master shall be construed to extend to his Servant, and the Killing the Servant is Murder. Dyer 128. 1 Mar. If two Persons meet and fight in cool Blood, on a precedent Quarrel, and one is killed: Or if a Person in a sudden Quarrel appears to be Master of his Temper, and kills another, it is Murder. 1 Hawk. P. C. 81. for where two Persons fight after a former Quarrel, it shall be presumed to be out of Malice; and where two Men fall out in the Morning, and meet and fight in the Afternoon, if one of them is killed, this is Murder; their after Meeting is of Malice. Plowd. 474. If a Man upon a Quarrel with another, tells such other that he will not strike him, but will give him a Pot of Ale to strike first, and thereupon the other strikes him, and he kills the other, he is guilty of Murder; this being only a Cover to his malicious Intention. H. P. C. 48. And where a Person kills another, it shall be intended of Malice; if he prove not the contrary. Kel. 27. A Man assaults another Person with Malice, although he be afterwards driven by the other to the Wall, and kill him there in his own Defence, he is guilty of Murder, in Respect of his first Intention. H. P. C. 47. Kel. 58, 129. But if the Party assaulted flee to the Wall, and being still pursued kills the other, it is only Manslaughter in his own Defence. Bract. 3 Ed. 3. If one resolves to kill the next Man he meets, and doth kill him, it is Murder; here Malice is implied against all Mankind. Kel. 27. By poisoning, and where one killeth another without Provocation, Malice is implied; as where any Magistrate or Minister of Justice is killed in the Execution of his Office; a Sheriff, Constable or Watchman, doing their Duty; or any other that comes in Aid of the King's Officer; and if a Watchman be killed in slaying of Night-walkers, it is said to be Murder. 3 Inst. 51. Cro. Jac. 280. Kel. 60, 128. In these Cases, it is a very high Contempt of the Laws, for a Person to execute his Revenge against those who have no Way offended him but by doing their Duty; and he cannot come off by alledging that what he did was in a sudden Affray, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 84. And where a Bailiff is killed in executing a lawful Warrant, &c. it is Murder: Nor is it any Excuse to the Person that the Process was erroneous; or that the Arrest was in the Night; that the Officer did not tell him for what Cause he arrested him; or that he did not shew his Warrant, &c. being a Bailiff commonly known. 9 Rep. 68, 69. Cro. Jac. 280, 486. But if a Bailiff who is not executing his Office is killed, it is not Murder; for he ought to be duly executing his Office, by serving the Process of the Law, wherein he is assisted cum Potestate Regis & Legis. Cro. Car. 537. 2 Lill. Abr. 212. Therefore where the Warrant by which he acts gives him no Authority to arrest the Party; as where a Bailiff arrests a wrong Person, or J. S.

a Baronet, by Force of a Warrant to arrest J. S. Knight; or if a good Warrant is executed in an unlawful Manner; as if a Bailiff be killed in breaking open a Door, or Window, to arrest a Man; or perhaps if he arrest one on a Sunday; since the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 7. by which all such Arrests are made unlawful, and he is slain; Malice shall not be implied to make it Murder, but the same shall be Manslaughter only. H. P. C. 46. Cro. Car. 372. 12 Rep. 49. 1 Hawk. 86. If Bailiffs come to a House to arrest a Person, and the House being locked they attempt to break in, whereupon the Son of the Person intended to be arrested, shoots and kills one of them, it is not Murder. Jones 429. A Person was arrested, and another not knowing the Cause of the Struggle, but seeing Swords drawn, and to prevent Mischief, came and defended the Party arrested, and in the Scuffle the Bailiff was killed; it was resolved to be no Murder in the Person doing it, but that all that were present and assisting, knowing of the Arrest, were principal Murderers. Kel. 86. Though it has been held in such a Case, that the Person offending is guilty of Murder, whether he knew that the Person slain were an Officer or not; for all Fighting is unlawful, and he who seeing Persons engaged in it, takes Part with one Side, and fights in the Quarrel without knowing the Cause of it, especially where the Fight is begun in Opposition to the Justice of the Nation, shews a Readiness to break through the Laws on a small Occasion, and must at his Peril take Heed what he doth. 1 Sid. 160. Noy 50. 1 Hawk. 85. If one attack another to rob him, and by the Resistance of the Party kills him, this is Murder. 3 Inst. 52. Dalt. 344. And if two or more Persons come together to do an unlawful Act, as to beat a Man, rob a Park, &c. and one of them kills a Person, this is Murder in all that are present, aiding or assisting, or that were ready to Aid and Assist: All will be said to intend the Murder. 3 Inst. 56. Dalt. 347. H. P. C. 31. And such Persons will be judged to be present that are in the same House, though in another Room, or in the same Park, although Half a Mile off, &c. H. P. C. 47. Kel. 87, 116, 127. Several Persons having conspired to enter the King's Park, and to hunt and carry away Deer, with Design of killing any one that should oppose them; although the Keeper's Servant began the Assault, and required them first to stand, whereupon they fled, and one of the Keeper's Men discharged a Piece at them, and they continued their Flight until he laid violent Hands upon one of the Offenders, and then, and not before, they killed one of the Keeper's Servants, this was held to be Murder; as they were doing an unlawful Act, the Law implies Malice, and they ought not to have fled, but to have surrendered themselves. Roll. Rep. 20. By Statute, Murder shall not be adjudged where it is found by Misadventure, but when it is done with a felonious Intent. 52 H. 3. c. 25. Offenders for Murder, and Accessories being indicted, may be arraigned at any Time within the Year, at the King's Suit; and if the Principal or Accessary be acquit, yet the Justices shall not suffer them to go at large, but either remand them to Prison, or let them be bailed, until the Year and Day be out, allowed for an Appeal. 3 H. 7. c. 1. All Trials for Murder must be in the County where the Fact was committed, by the Common Law. Cro. Car. 247. But if a Person be wounded by a Stroke given in one County, and he dieth in another County, the Indictment may be found in the County where the Party dies, which shall be as well as if the Stroke had been given in the same County. Stat. 2 & 3 Edw. 6. c. 24. The Killing must be in some County; for if the Murder be done out of the Realm, it cannot be determined by the Common Law, but must be determined by the Constable and Marshal, &c. 3 Inst. 48. H. P. C. 54. When one is murdered in the Day-Time, and the Murderer escapes untaken, the Township that suffers it, shall be amerced. 3 H. 7. If one who sees a Murder done, doth not his best Endeavours to apprehend the Murderer: Or if where two are fighting, and others looking on do not endeavour to part them, if one is killed, the Lookers on may be indicted and fined. 3 Inst. 53. Noy 50. And Killing any Person endeavouring to part others fighting; though without any evil Intention against him, is Murder. See Duelling, Manslaughter, &c.

Murder or Homicide justifiable. There is a Killing that is justifiable; as if a Person attempts to commit Murder, Robbery, or other Felony, a Man or any of his Servants, may lawfully kill him. 2 Inst. 316. See Stat. 24 H. 8. c. 5. If a Person in Defence of the Possession of a Room in a publick House, kill another who attempts to turn him out of it, the Killing the Assailant hath been holden to be justifiable. Kel. 51. 1 Hawk. 83. In the Defence of the Possession of a Man's Goods, against him that would wrongfully take them away, Killing cannot be justified, except he be a Thief. Wood's Inst. 361. If a Woman kills a Man attempting to ravish her, it is justifiable. H. P. C. 39. Those who are engaged in a Riot, or forcible Entry, &c. standing in Opposition to a Justice's Command, or lawful Warrant: Or if Trespassers in a Forest, or Park, will not surrender, but defend themselves: If a Felon will not suffer himself to be arrested, and refusing to obey an Arrest on lawful Warrant, defends himself; or if one either with or without a Warrant, pursues a Felon upon Hue and Cry, and he flies for it: If a Prisoner assaults those that conduct him to Gaol, or his Gaoler in endeavouring to Escape; or a Person arrested, resist the Sheriff, &c. the Killing these is justifiable; but a Sheriff cannot kill one that flies from the Execution of a Civil Process: And as no private Person hath this Authority, upon an Arrest in a Civil Matter, as he hath upon an Arrest for Felony; so neither hath the Sheriff this Power in Criminal Cases, but upon a Necessity; as when an Offender cannot be taken without killing, &c. for if he might be taken without killing him, it will be esteemed Murder. 3 Inst. 56, 221. H. P. C. 37. Dalt. 150; 355. Kel. 28. When one in Danger of drowning, thrusts another from a Plank, whereby he is drowned; this is justifiable. Bac. Max. 25. And there is a Homicide or Killing excusable, where a Man kills another merely in his own Defence; called se Defendendo.

A Person indicted for intending to Murder the Master of the Rolls, Term. Mich. 16 Car. 2. and for offering a Sum of Money to another Person to do it, saying at the same Time, that if he would not perpetrate the Crime, he would do it himself; upon Conviction, the Court declared that this was a heinous Offence, and not only indictable but fineable, and the Offender was fined one Thousand Marks, committed to Prison for three Months, and ordered to find Sureties for his good Behaviour during Life. 1 Lev. 146.

Musicians. The Musicians of England, were incorporated by King Charles 2. Anno 1670. And of late Years all foreign Musick, Operas, &c. have very much increased upon us, through the Management of this Corporation, and the Softness and Politeness of our modern Gentry. See Minstrels.

Muster, (From the Fr. Moustre) Faire Moustre generale de tout son Armie, is as much as Lustrare exercitum, the Signification being well known to Muster an Army: And mustered of Record is to be inrolled in the Number of the King's Soldiers. Stat. 18 H. 6. c. 19.

Muster-Master general, Mentioned in the 35 Eliz. c. 4. See Master of the King's Musters.

Muta Canum, (Fr. Mente de Chiens) Signifies a Kennel of Hounds, in ancient Records: And the King at a Bishop's and Abbot's Decease, had six Things. 1. Optimum Equum sive Palefridum ipsius Episcopi, &c. 2. Unam Chlamydem sive Cloacam cum Capella. 3. Unum Ciphum cum co-opertorio. 4. Unum pelvem cum lavatorio. 5. Unum Annulum aureum. 6. Necnon Mutam Canum; qua ad Dom. Regem, ratione Prærogative sua spectant & pertinent. Hill. 2 Edw. 2. in Stat. post mortem Episc. Bath. & Wellens. & Claus. 30 Edw. 1. M. 16. Vide Mortuary.

Mutare, To mew up Hawks, in the Time of their Molting, or Casting their Plumes. In the Reign of King Edw. 2. the Manor of Broughton in Com. Oxon. was held, ——— Per Serjantiam Mutandi unum Hosticum Domini Regis, &c. Paroch. Antiq. 569. Mutatus accipiter is a mew'd Hawk: And hence the Mews, (Muta Regia) near Chairing Cross London, now the King's Stables, was formerly the Falconry, or Place for the King's Hawks.

Mute, (Mutus) One Dumb, that cannot speak, or who refuses to speak. And by our Law a Prisoner may stand Mute two Manner of Ways: 1. When he speaks not at all, and it shall be inquired whether he stands Mute out of Malice, or by the Act of God; and if by the later, then the Judge ought to inquire whether he be the same Person, and of all Pleas which he might have pleaded in his Defence, if he had not been Mute.

Mute. 2. When the Prisoner pleads not directly, or will not put himself upon the Inquest to be tried; and a Person feigning himself Mad, and refusing to answer, shall be taken as one who stands Mute. 2 Inst. H. P. C. 226. Also if a Prisoner on his Trial peremptorily challenge above the Number of Jurors allowed by Law, this being an implied Refusal of a legal Trial, he shall be dealt with as one that stands Mute, and according to some Opinions be hanged. H. P. C. 259. Kel. 36. 2 Hawk. 327. A Person obstinately standing Mute is to be put to the Penance of Paine forte & Dure: In Case of High Treason where the Offender stands Mute, he shall have Judgment and forfeit Lands and Goods, as if he had been attainted; likewise in the Case of Felony and Petit Treason, if a Person by standing Mute do not avoid being attainted for such Crimes, he shall forfeit his Land and Goods in the same Manner as on other Attainders: Though whenever a Person standing Mute is adjudged to his Penance for Felony, and thereby prevents that Attainder, which otherwise he might have incurred, he forfeits his Chattels only, and not his Lands. 2 Hawk. P. C. 330, 331. It is said by Sir Matth. Hale, that an Appellee of Felony standing Mute shall be executed, and not have Judgment of Penance; but the Contrary hath been held by others. H. P. C. 226. S. P. C. 150. 2 Inst. 178. Kel. 37. One who stands Mute shall have the Benefit of his Clergy: And although it be enacted by the Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. That if any Person shall be indicted of any Offence, for which by Virtue of any former Statute, he is excluded from the Benefit of his Clergy, if he had been thereof convicted by Verdict or Confession, if he stand Mute he shall not be admitted to the same; yet Appeals, and Offences excluded from the Benefit of the Clergy, by subsequent Statutes, seem not within that Act: And a Statute taking away the Benefit of Clergy generally from those who are convicted of a Crime, doth not take it away from those who stand Mute on an Indictment or Appeal. 2 Hawk. 332. See Felony.

Mutual Promise, Is where one Man promises to pay Money to another, and the other in Consideration thereof promises to do such an Act, &c. And on mutual Promises and Covenants, equal Remedies are on both Sides. 3 Salk. 15, 108.

Mutuatus. If a Man oweth another Person 10 l. and hath a Note for the same, without Seal, Action of Debt lies upon a Mutuatus; but in this there may be Wager of Law, which there may not be in Action upon the Case, on an implied Promise of Payment, &c. Comp. Attorn. 6, 111.

And lawful Naam, which is a reasonable Distress, proportionable to the Value of the Thing distrained for, was anciently called either Vif or Mort, quick or dead, as it consisted of dead or quick Chattels; and it is when one takes another Man's Beasts Damage feasant, in his Ground, or by a Person's particular Fact, by Reason of some Contract made; as for Default of Payment of an Annuity, it shall be lawful to distrain in such or such Lands, &c. And there is a Naam unlawful; mentioned in our Books. Horn's Mirror, lib. 2. — Nemo Namium capiat in Comitatu vel extra Comitatum, priusquam ter in Hundredo suo rectum sibi perquisierit. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 76. And in Cornwall, it was a Custom, that a Freeman marrying Nativam, if he had two Daughters, one of them was Free, and the other Villain. Bract. lib. 4. c. 21.

Nativo habendo, Was a Writ that lay to the Sheriff, for a Lord who claimed Inheritance in any Villain, when his Villain was run away from him, for the Apprehending and Restoring him to the Lord: And the Sheriff might seise the Villain, and deliver him unto his Lord, if he confessed his Villenage; but if he alledged that he was a Freeman, then the Sheriff ought not to seise him, but the Lord was to sue forth a Pone to remove the Plea before the Justices of C. B. &c. And if the Villain purchased a Writ de Libertate probanda before the Lord had taken out the Pone, it was a Superfedeas to the Lord, that he proceeded not on the Writ of Nativo habendo.

Naturalization, (Naturalizatio) Is where a Person who is an Alien, is made the King's natural Subject by Act of Parliament, whereby one is a Subject to all Intents and Purposes, as much as if he were born so: For by Naturalization, a Person's Issue, before the Naturalization, shall inherit. 1 Inst. 8, 129. A Stranger naturalized by Act of Parliament, may have Lands by Discent, as Heir at Law, as well as have them by Purchase: But until naturalized or made Denizen, a Stranger is not generally under the King's Protection, to have the Benefit of the Laws; also no Person is to be naturalized, until he has received the Sacrament of the Church, and taken the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, &c. And Strangers when naturalized, are disabled to be of the Privy Council, to hold Offices, &c. 7 Jac. 1. cap. 2. 12 W. 3. cap. 2. 1 Geo. cap. 4. By the Stat. 7 Ann. cap. 5. it was declared that all Persons born out of the King's Allegiance, taking the Oaths, &c. should be deemed natural-born; though this was repealed, but not to prejudice Persons naturalized, by 10 Ann. cap. 5. Protestant Families, being Palatines, settled in Ireland, are declared naturalized, on their taking the Oaths. 1 Geo. cap. 29. And great Numbers of Foreigners are every Year naturalized, by private Acts of Parliament.

Navis, Nabivula, A small Dish to hold Frankincense, before put into the Thuribulum, Censer, or smoking Pot; and it seems to have its Name from the Shape, resembling a Boat or little Ship: We have several of the Boat-Cups in Silver, &c. for various Uses. Paroch. Antiq. 598.

Navy, A Fleet of Ships, or Armament at Sea. The Navy of England, it has been observed, excels all others for three Things; viz. Beauty, Strength, and Safety; for Beauty, our Ships of War are so many floating Palaces; for their Strength, so many moving Castles; and for Safety, they are the most defensive Walls of the Land: And as our naval Power gains us Authority in the most distant Climates, so the Superiority of our Fleet above other Nations, renders the British Monarch the Arbitrer of Europe. The King's of England in ancient Times commanded their Fleets in Person; and the renowned King Arthur, famous for his warlike Achievements, vindicated the Dominion of the Seas, making Ships of all Nations salute our Ships of War, by lowering the Top-sail and striking the Flag, as in like Manner they shall do the Forts upon Land; by which Submissions they are put in Mind, that they are come into a Territory, wherein they are to own a Sovereign Power and Jurisdiction, and receive Protection from it: And this Duty of the Flag, which hath been constantly paid to our Ancestors, serves to imprint Reverence in Foreigners, and adds new Courage to our Seamen; and Reputation Abroad is the principal Support of any Government at Home. King Edgar Successor to Arthur, stiled himself Sovereign of the narrow Seas; and having fitted out a Fleet of four Hundred Sail of Ships, in the Year 937, sailing about Britain with his mighty Navy, and arriving at Chester, was there met by eight Kings and Princes of foreign Nations, come to do him Homage; who as an Acknowledgment of his Sovereignty, rowed this Monarch in a Boat down the River Dee, himself steering the Boat; a marine Triumph, which is not to be paralleled in the Histories of Europe. Canutus, Edgar's Successor, laid the ancient Tribute called Danegeld, for the Guarding of the Seas, and Sovereignty of them, with the following Emblem expressed, viz. Himself sitting on the Shore in his Royal Chair, while the Sea was flowing, speaking, Tu mee ditionis es, & Terra in qua sedes est, &c. And Egbert, Althred, and Elthred, kept up the Dominion and Sovereignty of their Predecessors; nor did the succeeding Princes of the Norman Race wave this great Advantage, but maintained their Right Right to the four adjacent Seas surrounding the British Shore: The Honour of the Flag King John challenged, not barely as a Civility, but as a Right to be paid cum debita reverentia, and the Persons refusing he commanded to be assaulted, and taken as Enemies: And the same was ordained not only to be paid to whole Fleets, bearing the Royal Standard, but to those Ships of Privilege that wear the Prince's Ensigns or Colours of Service; this Decree was confirmed and bravely asserted by a Fleet of five Hundred Sail, in a Royal Voyage to Ireland, wherein he made all the Vessels which he met with in his Way, in the eight circumfluent Seas, to pay that Duty and Acknowledgment, which has been maintained by our Kings to this Day, and was never contested by any Nation, unless by those who attempted the Conquest of the intire Empire. It was Trade that gave Occasion to the bringing of mighty Fleets of Ships to Sea; and upon the Increase of Trade, Ships of War were necessary in all Countries for the Preservation of it in the Hands of the just Proprietors: And in ancient Times the several Counties of England were liable to a particular Taxation for building Ships of War, and fitting out Fleets, every one in Proportion to their Extent and Riches, so that the largest Counties were each of them to furnish a First-Rate Man of War, and the others every one to build one in Proportion; but this Method has been long disused, and the Fitting out our Navy for many Ages has been always thrown into the publick Charge. King Edw. 3. in his Wars with France, had a Fleet of Ships before Calais so numerous, that they amounted to seven Hundred Sail: But King Henry 8. it is said, was the First that began to build a Navy Royal in England; he built a Ship called the Great Henry of one Thousand Tuns, the largest Ship that had been then seen in this Kingdom, (though now our First-Rate Ships of War, contain at least two Thousand Tuns, are mounted with above one Hundred Canon, and carry above one Thousand Men). He fitted out a Royal Fleet, constituted a Navy Office, &c. And in this King's Reign, and the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, our Navy Royal was in a most flourishing Condition, being mostly commanded by our valiant Nobility; and it is remarkable, that there are Lists of the Fleets of Queen Elizabeth, which make it appear there was but one private Gentleman a Captain, all the rest being Lords and Knights: So high was the Esteem for Service at Sea in those Days, when our Princes ruled with the most consummate Glory: But the Opinion of serving at Sea having been very much lessened, it has since been declined by the Nobility and Gentry. The Navy Royal of England is at this Time in a very flourishing State; for Number of Shipping, and Strength and Force of the Ships, it was never, perhaps, more formidable than now; and when compleat, it is divided into three Squadrons, distinguished by the different Colours of the several Flags, viz. Red, White, and Blue; the principal Commanders whereof bear the Title of Admiral, and each has under him a Vice-Admiral, and a Rear-Admiral, who are likewise Flag-Officers. There are belonging to his Majesty's Navy, six great Yards, viz. Chatham, Deptford, Woolwich, Portsmouth, Sheerness, and Plymouth; fitted with several Docks, and furnished with Stores of Timber, Masts, Anchors, Cables, &c. And for the Management of the Navy Royal, there are several Officers of Trust and Authority, besides the Commissioners of the Admiralty; as the Treasurer, Controllers, Surveyor, Commissioners of the Navy, Commissioners of Victualling Office, &c. the Principal whereof hold their Offices by Patent under the Great Seal. By Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. the Sum of 570,000*l.* was appropriated for the Building of twenty-seven Ships of War, with their Guns, Rigging, &c. And the 6 Ann. Enacts, That over and above the Ships for the Line of Battle, Forty-three Ships of War shall be employed as Cruisers and Convoys, for the better preserving such Ships as shall be made use of in the Trade of Great Britain; four of these Ships are to be Third Rates, and sixteen Fourth Rates, and the rest of sufficient Force to guard our Commerce: They are to attend in certain Stations; and the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty may direct the Commissioners of the Navy, or some one or more Persons resident at such Places as his Majesty shall appoint, to superintend and oversee every Thing relating to these Cruisers; also the Commissioners of the Admiralty have Power to order any of the said Ships to be employed in the Line of Battle, in Case of Necessity. This Statute likewise empowers the Commissioners of the Admiralty, during War, to grant Commissions to Privateers and Commanders of Ships, for the taking and seizing Ships and Goods of Enemies. And by 5 & 6 W. & M. Ships built by Merchants of three Decks, containing four Hundred and fifty Tuns, and mounted with Thirty-two Pieces of Ordnance, for the three first Voyages the Owners shall receive a tenth Part of the Tonage and Poundage Duties, &c. as an Encouragement to them to build Ships of Force, for the furnishing of Mariners for the Fleet; by 7 & 8 W. 3. it is Enacted, That all Seamen, Watermen, &c. above the Age of eighteen Years, and under fifty, capable of Sea Service, who shall register themselves voluntarily for the King's Service in the Navy Royal, to the Number of thirty Thousand, shall have paid to them the yearly Sum or Bounty of 40*s.* besides their Pay for actual Service, and that whether they be in Service or not; and none but such Mariners, &c. as are registred, shall be capable of Preferment to any Commission, or be Warrant-Officers in the Navy: And such registred Persons are exempted from serving on Juries, Parish Offices, &c. also from Service Abroad after the Age of Fifty-five Years, unless they go voluntarily; and when by Age, Wounds, or other Accidents, they are disabled for future Service at Sea, they shall be admitted into Greenwich Hospital, and there be provided for during Life: And the Widows of such Seamen as shall be slain or drowned, not of Ability to provide for themselves, shall be likewise admitted into the said Hospital, and their Children educated, &c. But if any registred Seamen shall withdraw himself from the King's Service, in his Ships or Navy; or if any such Mariner shall relinquish the Service, without the Consent of the Commissioners of the Admiralty, he shall for ever lose the Benefit of the Act, and be compelled to serve in his Majesty's Fleet for six Months without any Pay. By a subsequent Statute, Watermen plying on the Thames between Gravesend and Windsor, on Notice given by the Commissioners of the Admiralty to the Company of Watermen, are to appear before before the said Company, to be sent to his Majesty's Fleet, or on Refusal, they shall suffer one Month's Imprisonment, and be disabled working on the Thames for two Years. Every Seaman whatsoever serving the King, or any other Person in any Ship belonging to the Subjects of England, or the Dominions thereof, shall allow out of his Wages six Pence per Month, for the better Support of Greenwich Hospital; and by the 1 Fac. 2. a Duty of five Shillings per Tun, was granted on all foreign Ships; one Moiety for the Chest at Chatham, and the other for Greenwich Hospital, to relieve decayed Seamen, &c. The Registering of Seamen is the grand Nursery for the Fleet; but there are other Ways and Means of supplying Mariners for the Navy Royal; and Training up of Persons in the Sea Service: For the Stat. 2 Ann. provides, that poor Boys, whose Parents are chargeable to the Parish, may by Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor, with the Consent of two Justices of Peace, be placed out Apprentices to the Sea Service, until the Age of Twenty-one Years, they being thirteen Years old, at the Time of their Placing forth: Those at eighteen Years of Age, may be impressed for Service in the Fleet, when the Owners or Masters of such of them as shall prove qualified, shall have able Seaman's Wages; and all Masters or Owners of Ships, from thirty to fifty Tuns Burthen, are required to take one such Apprentice, one more for the next fifty Tun, and one more for every hundred Tun above the first Hundred, under the Penalty of 10*l.* Masters of Apprentices placed out by the Parish, may with the Consent of two Justices, turn over such Apprentices to Masters of Ships, for the Remainder of their Terms: Leud and disorderly Servants, Vagrants, &c. are to be taken up and sent to his Majesty's Fleet; and poor Prisoners for Debt, which were to have the Benefit of 4 & 5 Ann., appearing on their Release to be able bodied Seamen, were to enter themselves in the Service. Thus is the Navy recruited with Mariners; not to mention particularly the Manner of Pressing in Cities, and populous Towns, on extraordinary Occasions. The Commissioners of the Navy, &c. have power to examine and punish all Persons who make any Disturbance, fighting or quarrelling in the Yards, Offices, &c. of the Navy: And in the 13th Year of King Charles 2. an Act passed for regulating the Government of the Fleet, which contains the particular excellent Articles and Orders following.

Articles and Orders for Government of the Navy, established by 13 Car. 2. cap. 9. 1. Ne admittas, Is a Writ directed to the Bishop, for the Plaintiff or Defendant, where a Quare Impedit or Affise of Darrein Presentment is depending, when either Party fears that the Bishop will admit the other's Clerk during the Suit between them: It ought to be brought within six Calendar Months after the Avoidance, before the Bishop may present by Lapse; for 'tis in vain to sue out this Writ when the Title to present is devolved unto the Bishop. Reg. Orig. 31. F. N. B.

37. Writ of Ne admittas doth not lie, if the Plea be not depending in the King's Court by Quare Impedit or Darrein Presentment; and therefore there is a Writ in the Register directed to the Chief Justice of C. B. to certify the King in the Chancery, if there be any Plea before him and the other Judges between the Parties, &c. So that this Writ should not be granted until that be done: But yet it may be had out of the Chancery before the King is certified that such Plea of Quare Impedit is depending; and then the Party grieved may require the Chief Justice to certify, &c. New Nat. Br. 83, 84. The Writ runs, Prohibemus vobis, Ne admittas, &c.

Ne exeat Regnum, Is a Writ to restrain a Person from going out of the Kingdom without the King's Licence. F. N. B. 85. It may be directed to the Sheriff, to make the Party find Surety that he will not depart the Realm; and on his Refusal, to commit him to Prison: Or it may be directed to the Party himself; and if he then goes, he may be fined. 3 Inst. 178. And this Writ is granted on a Suit's being commenced against a Man in the Chancery, when the Plaintiff fears the Defendant will fly to some other Country, and thereby avoid the Justice and Equity of the Court; which hath been sometimes practis'd: And when thus granted, the Party must give Bond to the Master of the Rolls in the Penalty of 1000*l.* or some other large Sum, for yielding Obedience to it; or satisfy the Court by Answer, Affidavit, or otherwise, that he hath no Design of leaving the Kingdom, and give Security therefore. Practif. Solic. 129. A Ne exeat Regnum has been granted to stay a Defendant from going to Scotland; for though 'tis not out of the Kingdom, yet it is out of the Process of the Court, and within the same Mischief. 2 Salk. 702. 3 Mod. 127, 169. 4 Mod. 179. If the Writ be sued for the King, the Party against whom sued may plead Licence by Letters Patent, &c. which shall discharge him: But where any Subject goes beyond Sea with the King's Licence, and continues longer than his appointed Time, it hath been held he loses the Benefit of a Subject. 4 Leon. 29. And if a Subject beyond Sea, refuse to return on the King's Letters under his Privy Seal, commanding him to return upon Pain of his Allegiance, being certified into the Chancery, a Commission may be awarded to seize his Lands, &c. 3 *Nelf. Negative. A Negative cannot be testified by Witnesses, only an Affirmative. 2 Inst. 622.

Negative pregnant, (Negativa Pregnans) Is a Negative, which implies or brings forth an Affirmative; and is said to be where a Negative carries an Affirmative in his Belly. Litt. Rep. 65. Where an Action is brought against a Man, and he pleads in Bar of the Action a Negative Plea, which is not so special an Answer to the Action, but it includes also an Affirmative; this is a Negative Pregnant: As for Instance; he in Reversion brings a Writ of Entry in casu Provisio, upon an Alienation made by Tenant for Life, supposing sing that he has aliened in Fee, which is a Forfeiture of his Estate: If the Tenant comes and pleads that he hath not aliened in Fee; this is a Negative, wherein is included an Affirmative; for though it be true, that he hath not aliened in Fee, yet it may be he hath aliened in Tail, which is also a Forfeiture of his Estate. 2 Lill. Abr. 212. If a Breach be assign'd that a Man was not seised of an Estate in Fee; and the Bar is, that he was seised, &c. notwithstanding any Act done by him; this is Pregnant and uncertain. Litt. Rep. 64. And if a Person being impleaded to have done a Thing on such a Day, or in such a Place, denieth generally, without saying any Thing more, that he did it on the Day, &c. it is a Negative Pregnant, as it implieth nevertheless that in some Sort he did it. Dyer 17. A Negative Pregnant is a Fault in Pleading; and there must be a Special Demurrer to a Negative Pregnant Plea, &c. for the Court will intend every Pleading to be good, till the contrary doth appear. Mich. 23 Car. 1. *B. Negro. By the Laws of Virginia, Negro Servants are saleable; and where a Negro is sold here, in Action Indebitatus Assumpsit for the Money, the Declaration ought to be, that the Defendant was indebted to the Plaintiff for the Negro sold here at London, but the said Negro at the Time of Sale was in Virginia, and that by the Laws and Statutes of Virginia, Negroes are saleable as Chattels. Per Holt Ch. Just. 2 Salk. Rep. 666. In Action of Trover for a Negro, and Verdict and Damages for the Plaintiff; it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that Trover lay not for a Negro, for the Owner had not an absolute Property in him: But the Court seem'd to think that in Trespass Quare Captivum suum cepit, the Plaintiff might give in Evidence that the Party was his Negro, and he bought him. Ibid.

Neif, (Fr. Naif, i. e. Naturalis, Nativa) Was a Bond-Woman or the Villain, born in one's House, mentioned in the Stat. 9 R. 2. c. 2. And a free Woman taking a Villain to her Husband, was not thereby Bond; but their Issue were Villains as their Father was, though this is contrary to the Civil Law, which says, Partus sequitur Ventrem. Terms de Ley 454. And every Fishing Ship as first enters any Harbour or Creek in Newfound-land, shall be Admiral of the said Harbour for that Season, and determine Differences between the Masters of Fishing Vessels, and the Inhabitants there, &c. Stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 25.

Niderling, Nidering, or Nithing, A vile base Person, a Sluggard. Will. of Malmsb. pag. 121. Mat. Paris. Ann. 1088.

Nient comprise, Is an Exception taken to a Petition, because the Thing desired is not contained in that Deed or Proceeding whereon the the Petition is founded: For Example; One desires of the Court wherein a Recovery is had of Lands, &c. to be put in Possession of a House, formerly among the Lands adjudged unto him; to which the adverse Party pleads, that this is not to be granted, by Reason this House is not comprised amongst the Lands and Houses, for which he had Judgment. New Book Entries.

Nient dedire, Signifies to suffer Judgment to be had against one, by not denying or opposing it, i. e. by Default. 29 Car. 2.

Riger Liber, The Black Book or Register in the Exchequer is called by this Name.

Night. Is when it is so dark that the Countenance of a Man cannot be discerned; and by some Opinions Burglary in the Night may be committed at any Time after Sun-set, and before Rising. H. P. C. 79. 3 Inst. 63. 1 Hawk. 101. See Noctanter.

Nightwalkers. Constables are authorized by the Common Law to arrest Nightwalkers and suspicious Persons, &c. Watchmen may also arrest

Night-

Nightwalkers, and hold them until the Morning: And it is said, that a private Person may arrest any suspicious Nightwalker, and detain him till he give a good Account of himself. 2 Hawk. P. C. 61, 80. One may be bound to the Good Behaviour for being a Nightwalker; and common Nightwalkers and Haunters of Bawdy-houses are to be indicted before Justices of Peace, &c. 1 Hawk. 132. 2 Hawk. 40. Latch. 173. Poph. 208.

Nihil capiat per Breve, or per Billam, Is the Judgment given against a Plaintiff in Bar of his Action, or in Abatement of his Writ or Bill, &c. Co. Litt. 363.

Nihil dicit, Is a Failing by the Defendant to put in an Answer to the Plaintiff's Plea by the Day assigned; which being omitted, Judgment is had against him of Course, as saying nothing, why it should not: These Words are generally writ short Nil dicit, &c.

Nihil or Nichils, Are Issues which the Sheriff that is appos'd in the Exchequer says, are Nothing worth, and illeivable, for the Insufficiency of the Parties from whom due. Practice Excheq. pag. 101. Accounts of Nihil shall be put out of the Exchequer. Stat. 5 R. 2. c. 13.

Nil Debet, Is a common Plea to an Action of Debt, when the Money is paid: But 'tis no Plea in Covenant; on Breach assign'd for Non-payment of Rent, &c. 3 Lev. 170. It is entered thus: Et prad. A. B. per, &c. Attorn. suum ven. & defend. vim & injur. quando, &c. Et dicit quod ipse Non Debet prefat. A. B. vigint. libr. nec aliqu. denar. sum. in forma prout prad. A. B. superius vers. eum narravit. &c.

Nil habuit in Tenementis, A Plea to be pleaded in an Action of Debt only, brought by a Lessor against Lessee for Years, or at Will, without Deed. 2 Lill. Abr. 214. In Debt for Rent upon an Indenture of Lease, Nil habuit in Tenementis may not be pleaded; because it is an Estoppel, and a general Demurrer will serve. 3 Lev. 146. But if Debt is brought for Rent upon a Deed-Poll, the Defendant may plead this Plea: And where a Defendant pleaded Nil habuit in Tenementis tempore Dimissionis; the Plaintiff replied, Quod habuit in Tenementis, &c. and Verdict and Judgment was had for the Plaintiff; whereupon Writ of Error being brought, it was assign'd for Error, that the Replication was not good, for he ought to have shewn what Estate he then had; and of that Opinion was the Court; and it had been naught upon a Demurrer, but being after a Verdict, it is good. Cro. Jac. 312. If a less Estate is found than the Plaintiff pleads in his Reply to a Nil habuit, &c. So as it be sufficient to intitle the Plaintiff to make a Lease, it is good enough. 10 W. 3.

Nisi prius, Is a Commission to Justices of Nisi prius; so called from a judicial Writ of Distingas, whereby the Sheriff is commanded to distrain the impanelled Jury to appear at Westminster before the Justices at a certain Day in the following Term, to try some Cause, Nisi prius Justic. Domini Regis ad Assisas capiend. venerint, viz. unless the Justices come before that Day to such a Place, &c. 2 Inst. 424. 4 Inst. 159. A Writ of Nisi prius is where an Issue is joined, then there goes a Venire to summon the Jury to appear at a Day in Court; and upon the Return of the Venire, with the Panel of the Jurors Names, the Record of Nisi prius is made up and sealed, and there goes forth the Writ of Distin-

gas to have the Jurors in Court, Nisi prius Justic. venerint, &c. such a Day in such a County, to try the Issue joined between the Parties. 2 Lill. 215. A Record of Nisi prius ought to contain a Transcript of the whole Issue-Roll; and no Record of Nisi prius, for the Trying an Issue at the Assizes, shall be sealed after a Month next following the End of the Term; which Time is by a late Order of Court altered to three Weeks. Ibid. All Civil Causes grown to Issue in the Courts at Westminster are brought down in the Vacation before the Day of Appearance appointed for the Jury above, into the County where the Action was laid, to be tried there; which is usually done in two or three Days: And then upon the Return of the Verdict given by the Jury to the Court above, the Judges there give Judgment for the Party for whom the Verdict is found: And these Trials by Nisi prius are for the Ease of the Country, the Parties, Jurors, and Witnesses, by saving them the Charge and Trouble of coming to Westminster; but in Matters of great Weight and Difficulty, the Judges above, upon Motion and Information, will often retain Causes to be try'd there, though laid in the Country, and then the Juries and Witnesses in such Causes must come up to the Courts at Westminster for Trial at Bar: And the King hath his Election to try his Suits at the Bar, or in the Country, &c. Wood's Inst. 479. The Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 30. having ordained, that all Pleas in either Bench, which require only an easy Examination, shall be determined in the Country before Justices of Assize, by Virtue of the Writ appointed by that Statute, commonly called the Writ of Nisi prius; it has been held, that an Issue joined in the King's Bench upon an Indictment or Appeal, whether for Treason or Felony, or a Crime of an inferior Nature, committed in a different County from that wherein the Court sits, may be tried in the proper County by Writ of Nisi prius: But as the King is not expressly named in this Statute; and it is a general Rule, that he shall not be bound except named, it is said where the King is Party a Nisi prius ought not to be granted, without his special Warrant, or the Assent of his Attorney; though the Court may grant it in Appeals in the same Manner as any other Actions. 2 Inst. 424. 4 Inst. 160. Dyer 46. 2 Hawk. P. C. 411. Justices of Nisi prius have Power to record Nonsuits and Defaults in the Country at the Days assigned, and are to report them at the Bench, &c. And are to hear and determine Conspiracy, Confederacy, Champerty, &c. by 12 Ed. 2. c. 4. 4 Ed. 3. c. 11. Nisi prius shall be granted in Atraints; but that which cannot be determined before the Justices upon the Nisi prius shall be adjourned to the King's Bench where they are Justices: And the Justices before whom Inquisitions, Inquests, and Juries, shall be taken by the King's Writ of Nisi prius, are impowered to give Judgment in Felony and Treason, &c. and to award Execution by Force of their Judgments. 5 Ed. 5. 14 Hen. 6. c. 1. The Chief Justice of the King's Bench, Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, and Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and in their Absence two other of the Judges, &c. as Justices of Nisi prius for the County of Middlesex, shall try Causes upon Writs of Nisi prius on Issues joined in B. R. and C. B. and the Exchequer, which were formerly only triable at Bar, in the Term-time, or four Days after each Term. 18 Eliz. c. 12. And the Time is enlarged to eight Days after the End of any Term; also any one Judge or Baron may try Issues, &c. according to the Statute 18 Eliz. in the Absence of the Chiefs, by the 12 Geo. The Authority of Justices of Nisi prius in the Country is annexed to the Justices of Assize: And the Court above will take judicial Notice of what is done at Nisi prius; being entered on Record. 2 Hawk. 409. See Assize.

Nivicolini Britones, Is used for Welshmen; because in Carmarthenshire and other Northern Countries of Wales, they lived near high Mountains covered with Snow. — Cum adversus Nivicolinos Britones Regia esset Expeditio. Du Cange.

Nobility, (Nobilitas) Signifies a Nobleness of Birth, a Generosity or Greatness of Mind; Excellence of Virtue: According to Juvenal, — Nobilitas sola est, atque unica Virtus.

The Nobility with us compriseth all Dignities above a Knight; and all Degrees of Nobility are derived from the King, who may grant it in Fee, or for Life, &c. See Peers of the Realm.

Noble, Was an antient Kind of English Money, in Use in the Reign of K. Edw. 3. And Knigh-ton tells us, the Rose Noble was a Gold Coin current in England about the Year 1344. At this Day there is no peculiar Coin of that Name; but a Noble is Six Shillings and eight Pence Value, being a third Part of twenty Shillings. Merch. Dict.

Noctanter, Is the Name of a Writ issuing out of the Chancery, and returnable in the King's Bench, given by the Statute Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 46. By Virtue of which Statute, where any one having Right to approve Waste Ground, &c. makes and erects a Ditch for an Hedge, and it is thrown down in the Night-time, and it cannot be known by a Verdict of Assize or a Jury, by whom; if the neighbouring Villages will not indict such as are guilty, they shall be distrained to make again the Hedge or Ditch at their own Costs, and to answer Damages. 2 Inst. 476. And the Noctanter Writ thereupon is directed to the Sheriff of the County, commanding him by the Oath Proborum & legalium hominum Com. predicti. Inquire. qui Malefactores & pacis Dom. Regis perturbatores apud, &c. Sepes & Fossata A. B. ibidem per ipsum nuper levat' Noctanter aut tali tempore quo facta eorum sciri non credebant prostraver. ad dampnum prad. A. B. & contra Pacem Dom. Regis, &c. And on the Return of this Writ by the Sheriff, that the same is found by Inquisition, and the Jury are ignorant who did it; the Return being filed in the Crown-Office, there goes out a Writ of Inquiry of the Damages, and a Distingas to the Sheriff to distrain Propinquas Villatas sepes & Fensuras prad. circumadjacentes sepes, &c. prostrat. Le-ware ad Custos suos proprios, and also to restore the Damages, &c. The circumadjacent Villages intended by the Statute, are the contiguous Villages round the Place; and if they are not contiguous, they are not guilty, and may plead so: And when other Villages near of as great Value, by Favour or Negligence of the Sheriff are not summoned, &c. they may plead as Tertenants do, where all are not summoned. As to the Pleadings to this Writ, where more Damages are found than there ought to be; the Defendants may by Protestation deny the Fact, or confess and aver that the Damages were but small; and traverse that the Party sustinuit dampna to the Sum found, or any other Sum beyond what they admit; or may plead Not guilty, and in their Defence any Matter which will be a Bar to the Prosecutor, but Satisfaction. 2 Lill. Abr. 217. Also if the Villages repair, Damages ought not to be given to the Value of the Repairs; and if the Villages have repaired, it ought so far to help them in the Trial of the Quantum dampnificatus, that the other Damages ought only to be considered. Ibid. The Charges of the Defence for the several Villages must be raised by Agreement; and if they cannot agree, each Village is to bear their own Charges, as in Case of a Suit against a Hundred, till Execution; and then the Statute of 27 Eliz. hath provided a Remedy: The Writ of Noctanter, by the better Opinion, lies for the Prostration as well of all Inclosures as those improved out of Commons; but if it be not in the Night, this Writ will not lie: And there ought to be a convenient Time (which the Court is to judge of) before the Writ is brought, for the Country to inquire of and indict the Offenders; which Sir Edw. Coke says should be a Year and a Day. 2 Inst. 476. Cro. Car. 440. 1 Keb. 545. And if any one of the Offenders be indicted, the Defendants must plead it, &c.

The Word Noctanter is so necessary in an Indictment of Burglary, that it hath been adjudged insufficient without it. Cro. El. 483.

Noctes & Noctem de firma. In the Book of Domesday we often meet with Tot Noctes de firma, or firma tot Noctium; which is understood of Entertainment of Meat and Drink for so many Nights: For in the Time of the English Saxons, Time was computed not by Days, but Nights; and so it continued till the Reign of King Hen. 1. as appears by his Laws, cap. 66, 76. And from thence it is still usual to say a Sevennight, i. e. Septem Noctes, for a Week; and a Fortnight for two Weeks, i. e. Quatuordecem Noctes.

Nocturnus or Nocturni, (Sax.) The learned Spelman says is derived from the old Saxon Noed, obsequium & Fry, Ignis, and signified Fires made in Honour of the Heathen Deities. But by others it is said to come from the Saxon Neb, that is necessary; and was used for necessary Fire.

Nolle Prosequi, Is used in the Law, where a Plaintiff in any Action will proceed no further, and may be before or after a Verdict; though it is usually before: And it is then stronger against the Plaintiff than a Nonsuit, which is only a Default in Appearance; but this is a voluntary Acknowledgment, that he hath no Cause of Action. 2 Lill. 218. A Plaintiff comes by his Attorney hic in Curia & fatetur se ulterius Nolle Prosequi; whereupon Judgment was given, That the Defendant eat sine Die, and no Amercement upon the Plaintiff: This was held erroneous; for the Plaintiff ought also to be amerced 8 Rep. 58. Where there are two Defendants, and one pleads Non Cul. and the other another Plea; if upon a Demurrer there is a Judgment for the Plaintiff against one on the Demurrer, and a Nolle Prosequi for the other, there it ought to be eat sine Die, or it is ill; and the Entry of Quod eat sine Die is a Discharge to the Defendant. Cro. Fac. 439. Hob. 180. In Action brought against three Persons, one of them pleads the General Issue, and the other Specially; the Plaintiff demurs to the Special Plea, and tries the General Issue, on which he hath a Verdict and Judgment; but before Judgment on the Demurrer he enters a Nolle Prosequi as to the Demurrer: And it was adjudg'd, that if the Nolle Prosequi

had been entered before the Verdict and Judgment, it had discharged the whole Action; being in Nature of a Release in Law to the others: So also if Judgment had been against all the Defendants, and the Plaintiff had entered the Nolle Prosequi for Two; for Nonsuit or Release, or other Discharge of one, discharges all the Rest. Hob. 70. But in Action of Trespass against Two, one pleaded Not guilty, and the other justified; and both Issues being found for the Plaintiff, and several Damages and joint Costs assessed; the Plaintiff then entered a Nolle Prosequi against one, and took Judgment against the other for Damages found against him, and the Costs; upon which it was insisted on for Error, that the Entry of a Nolle Prosequi before Judgment as to one, is a Release to him, and quasi a Release to both: Per Cur. It is not an absolute Release, but as it were an Agreement that the Plaintiff will not proceed against the one; and as to him it is a Bar, but he may proceed against the other; and where they sever by Pleas, there may be Proceedings against one, and a Nolle Prosequi against the other. Cro. Car. 239, 243. 2 Lill. 220. On two Promises, the Plaintiff may demur as to one Promise, and enter a Nolle Prosequi as to the other; and if Judgment is had on the first Promise, it will be well enough, though the Nolle Prosequi be not entered before such Judgment. 2 Lev. 33. And if there are divers Issues, or an Issue and Demurrer in one Cause, against one Person, joined between the Parties, the Plaintiff may enter on the Roll a Nolle Prosequi, that he will not proceed on one or more of the Issues, or Demurrer joined; and may notwithstanding go to Trial upon the Rest of the Issues, or argue the Demurrer. Hill. 23 Car. B. R. The King may enter a Nolle Prosequi on an Information; but it shall not stop the Proceedings of the Informer. 1 Leon. 119. And if an Informer cause a Nolle Prosequi to be entered, the Defendant shall have Costs, &c. by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. Kemble mentions a Nolle Prosequi on Retraxit by Attorney. 3 Keb. 332.

Nomination, (Nominatio) Is a Power that a Man hath of Appointing a Clerk to a Patron of a Benefice, by him to be presented to the Ordinary. The Right of Nomination a Man may have by Deed; and in such Case, if the Patron refuse to present the Nominee, or presents another, he may bring a Quare Impedit; for he who is to present is only an Instrument to him who nominates, and the Person that hath the Nomination is in Effect the Patron of the Church. Plowd. 529. Moor 47. A Nominator must appoint his Clerk within Six Months after the Avoidance; if he doth not, and the Patron presents his Clerk before the Bishop hath taken any Benefit of the Lapse, he is obliged to admit that Clerk: But where one hath the Nomination, and another the Presentation, if the Right of Presentation should afterwards come to the King, it is said he that hath the Nomination will be intitled to the Presentation also; because the King who should present cannot be subservient to the Nominator, it being contrary to his Dignity. Hughes's Parsl. Law 76, 77. Right of Nomination may be forfeited to the Crown as well as Presentation; where the Nominator corruptly agrees to nominate within the Statute of Symony, &c.

Nomina Villarum. King Edw. 2. sent his Letters to every Sheriff in England, requiring an exact Account and Return into the Exchequer of the Names of all the Villages, and Possessors thereof in every County; which being done accordingly, the Returns of the Sheriffs all joined together, are called Nomina Villarum, still remaining in the Exchequer. Anno 9 Ed. 2.

Nomine Pœne, Is a Penalty incurred for not Paying of a Rent, &c. at the Day appointed by the Lease or Agreement for Payment thereof. 2 Lill. 221. If Rent is reserved, and there is a Nomine Pœne on the Non-payment of it, and the Rent be behind and unpaid, there must be an actual Demand thereof made, before the Grantee of the Rent can distrain for it; the Nomine Pœne being of the same Nature as the Rent, and issuing out of the Land out of which the Rent doth issue. Hob. 82, 133. And where a Rent-Charge was granted for Years, with a Nomine Pœne and Clause of Distress, if it was not paid on the Day; on the Rents being behind, and the Term expired, the Court was moved that the Grantee might distrain for the Nomine Pœne, but it was held that he could not, because the Nomine Pœne depended on the Rent, and the Distress was gone for that, and by Consequence for the other. 2 Nels. Abr. 1182. When any Sum is to be forfeited Nomine Pœne for Non-payment of Rent at the Time, &c. the Demand of the Rent ought to be precisely at the Day, in Respect of the Penalty: And Debt will not lie on a Nomine Pœne, without a Demand. 7 Rep. 28. Cro. Eliz. 383. Style 4. If there is a Nomine Pœne of such a Sum for every Day, after Rent becomes due, it has been a Question whether there must be a Demand for every Day's Nomine Pœne, or one Demand for many Days: And by the better Opinion it hath been holden, that for every Day there ought to be a Demand; and that one will not be sufficient for the Whole: But where a Nomine Pœne of 40 s. was limited quolibet die proximo the Feast-Day on which the Rent ought to be paid, it was adjudged that there was but one 40 s. forfeited, because the Word Proximo must relate to the very next Day following the Rent-Day; and so likewise when the Rent became due and unpaid at the next Rent-Day after that, and so on. Palm. 207. 2 Nels. 1182. An Assignee is chargeable with a Nomine Pœne incurred after the Assignment, but not before. Moor 357. 2 Lill. Abr. 221. Though a Forfeiture is mentioned to be Nomine Pœne, on not paying of a collateral Sum; it is no Nomine Pœne, if it be not of a Rent. Lutw. 1156.

Nonability, Is an Exception taken against the Plaintiff in a Cause, upon some just Ground, why he cannot commence any just Suit in Law; as Premunire, Outlawry, being a Stranger born, &c. F. N. B. 35, 65. Vide Disability.

Nonæ & Decimæ, Payments made to the Church by those who were Tenants of Church Farms; where Nonæ was a Rent or Duty for Things belonging to Husbandry, and Decimæ were claimed in Right of the Church. Formerly a ninth Part of moveable Goods was paid to the Clergy on the Death of Persons in their Parish, which was called Noragium; and claimed on Pretence of being distributed to pious Uses. Blount.

Nonage, In general Understanding, is all the Time of a Person's being under the Age of One and twenty; and in a special Sense, where one is under Fourteen, as to Marriage, &c.

Non Assumit, A Plea in personal Actions, whereby a Man denies any Promise made, &c. See Assumit.

Non-

Non-claim, Is an Omission or Neglect of one that claims not within the Time limited by Law; as within a Year and Day, where continual Claim ought to be made, or in five Years after a Fine levied, &c. By which a Man may be barred of his Right or Entry. Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24. 32 H. 8. c. 33. See Claim.

Non compos Mentis, Is where a Person is not of sound Mind, Memory, and Understanding. And there are four Sorts of Non compos Mentis; 1st, An Idiot or natural Fool. 2^{dly}, A Madman, or one who was of Sane Memory, but hath lost his Understanding by Sickness, Accident or Misfortune. 3^{dly}, A Lunatick, sometimes of Sane Memory, and at other Times not so. 4^{thly}, A Drunkard that deprives himself of his Memory and Understanding for a Time. But though a drunken Person is Non compos Mentis, it shall give no Privilege or Benefit to him or his Heirs, as to Acts done, &c. And his Drunkenness shall not extenuate, but rather aggravate his Offence, as well touching his Life as his Lands or Goods. 1 Inst. 264. 4 Rep. 125. A Deed of Feoffment, Grant, &c. made by a Person Non compos Mentis is voidable; his Heir, as privy in Blood, may shew the Disability of his Ancestor, and avoid his Grants; and his Executors, &c. as Privies in Representation may do the same, by setting forth the Infirmary of the Testator or Intestate. 4 Rep. 126. It is no good Plea for a Man himself to say, that he was Non sane Memory at the Time of Making a Bond. Cro. Eliz. 398. But where a Person of Sane Memory becomes Non compos Mentis, and afterwards aliens his Lands or Goods; if he be found Non Compos, and that he had aliened, the King may protect him, and take the Profits of his Lands, &c. to maintain him and his Family. 4 Rep. 127. And he that hath the Custody of a Man of Non sane Memory is accountable as Bailiff to the Non Compos, his Executors or Administrators. Ibid. A Man Non compos Mentis shall not lose his Life for Felony or Murder; for he cannot be guilty of the Murder of another. 3 Rep. 124. 3 Inst. 4, 54. Though if one who wants Discretion or Understanding, does any corporal Hurt to, or Trespas against another; he may be compelled by Action to render Damages. 35 H. 6. 1 Inst. 247. 1 Hawk. P. C. 2. Vide Lunatick.

Non-conformists. The Statutes 1 Eliz. and 13 Car. 2. were made for the Uniformity of Common Prayer, and Service in the Church; and Persons not conforming thereto are subject to divers Penalties.

Non Damnificatus, Is a Plea to an Action of Debt upon a Bond, with Condition to save the Plaintiff harmless. 2 Lill. Abr. 224. If the Condition of a Bond be to save harmless only, Non Damnificatus generally is a good Plea; but if it be to discharge the Plaintiff, &c. then the Manner of the Discharge is to be shewn. 1 Leon. 72. When one pleads a Discharge, and that he saved another harmless, he ought to shew it that the Court may judge thereof: Though a Defendant may plead Non Damnificatus, without shewing of it. Cro. Jac. 363. 2 Rep. 3, 4. March. 121. It has been adjudg'd, where a Condition of a Bond is to save harmless from all Suits in general; Non Damnificatus may be pleaded: And if it is in a particular Suit or Thing, there the Defendant must shew how he hath saved harmless and discharged; but where a Suit is upon a Counter-

Bond, the Plea of Non Damnificatus is good. 8 W. 3. B. R. 5 Mod. 243.

Non Decimando. A Custom or Prescription De non Decimando is to be discharged of all Tithes, &c. See Modus Decimandi.

Non Distringendo, Is a Writ not to distrain, used in divers Cases. Table of Reg. of Writs.

Nones, (Nona) Of every Month is the seventh Day of March, May, July, and October; and the Fifth of all the other Months. By the Roman Account, the Nones in the afore-mentioned Months are the six Days next following the first Day, or the Calends; and of others the four Days next after the First, according to these Verses,

*Sex Nonas Maius, October, Julius, & Mars,

Though the last of these Days is properly called Nones; for the others are reckon'd backward as distant from them, and accounted the Third, Fourth, or Fifth Nones, &c. And Nones had their Name from their Beginning, the Ninth Day before the Ides. See Ides.

Non est Culpabilis, Short Non Cul. is the general Plea to an Action of Trespas, whereby the Defendant absolutely denies the Fact charged on him by the Plaintiff; whereas in other Special Pleas, the Defendant grants the Fact to be done, but alledges some Reasons why he lawfully might do it. And as the Plea of Non Culp. is the general Answer in Actions of Trespas, being Actions criminal civilly prosecuted; so it is likewise in all Actions criminally followed, either at the Suit of the King or any other, where the Defendant denies the Crime for which he is brought to Trial. S. P. C. lib. 2. c. 62.

Non est factum, A Plea where an Action is brought upon a Bond, or any other Deed, and the Defendant denieth that to be his Deed whereon he is impleaded. Broke. In every Case where a Bond is void, the Defendant may plead Non est factum: But when a Bond is voidable only, he must shew the special Matter, and conclude Judgment Si Action, &c. 2 Lill. 226. If a Deed is raised in a material Part, by which it becomes void, the Person bound by it may plead Non est factum, and give the Matter in Evidence; because it was not his Deed at the Time of the Plea. 11 Rep. 27. A Bond was dated November the 10th, and so set forth in the Plaintiff's Declaration; the Defendant pleaded Non est factum, and though it was found that it was not delivered till the eighteenth, the Issue being upon a Non est factum, it appeared to be his Deed: But it is said the Defendant might have helped himself by Pleading. Cro. Jac. 126. The Defendant pleads Quod factum prædict. was made and delivered without a Date, and that the Plaintiff put a Date to it, and so Non est factum; this was held naught upon a Demurrer, for the Defendant confesses the Deed, by saying Factum prædict. and afterwards denies it; though he might have said generally, Non est factum. Cro. Eliz. 800. None but the Party, his Heirs, Executors, &c. can plead Non est factum. Lutw. 662.

Nonfeasance, Is an Offence of Omission of what ought to be done; as in not coming to Church, &c. Which need not be alledged in any certain Place. Hob. 251. 1 Hawk. 13. Nonfeasance will not make a Man a Trespasser; and a Person cannot be guilty of Forgery, by a bare Nonfeasance. 8 Rep. 146. Moor 760. Vide Forgery.

Non

Non implacitando aliquem de Libero Tenemento sine Breve, Is a Writ to prohibit Bailiffs, &c. from Distraining any Man touching his Freehold, without the King's Writ. Reg. Orig. 171.

Non intromittendo, quando Breve Præcipe in Capite subdole impetratur, Was a Writ directed to the Justices of the Bench or in Eyre, commanding them not to give one, that had, under Colour of intitling the King to Land, &c. as holding of him in Capite, deceitfully obtained the Writ called Præcipe in Capite, any Benefit thereof, but to put him to this Writ of Right. Reg. Orig. 4. This Writ having Dependence on the Court of Wards, since taken away, is now disused.

Nonjurors, Are Persons who refuse to take the Oaths to the Government: And Persons refusing the Oaths enjoined by Law, &c. are liable to certain Penalties; and for a third Offence to abjure the Realm, by 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 1. Ecclesiastical Persons not taking the Oaths on the Revolution, were rendered incapable to hold their Livings: But the King was impowered to grant such of the Nonjuring Clergy as he thought fit, not above Twelve, an Allowance out of their Ecclesiastical Benefices for their Subsistence, not exceeding a third Part. 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 8. Those Persons as refuse the Oaths shall incur, forfeit, and suffer the Penalties inflicted on Popish Recusants convicted; and the Court of Exchequer may issue out Process against their Lands and Goods, &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 27. See the Stat. 1 Geo. c. 55. and Oaths.

Non Merchandizando victualia, Is a Writ to Justices of Assize, to inquire whether the Magistrates of such a Town do sell Victuals in Gross, or by Retail, during the Time of their being in Office, which is contrary to an antient Statute; and to punish them if they do. Reg. Orig. 184.

Non Molestando, A Writ that lies for a Person who is molested contrary to the King's Protection granted him. Reg. Writs 184.

Non Obstante, (Notwithstanding) Is a Clause frequent in Statutes and Letters Patent, and is a Licence from the King to do a Thing which at the Common Law might be lawfully done; but being restrained by Act of Parliament, cannot be done without such Licence. Vaugh. 347. Plowd. 501. The Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 2. confirmed all Grants of the Queen by Letters Patent, of any Honours, Castles, Manors, Lands, Tenements, &c. and that they should stand and be good in Law, against the Queen, her Heirs and Successors, Non obstante any Misnaming, Mis-recital, Want of Certainty, finding Offices or Inquisitions, Livery of Seisin, &c. By 14 Car. 2. c. 11. it was declared, that all Grants of Pensions, &c. and every Non Obstante therein contained, should be void. And the 1 W. & M. c. 2. makes Dispensations, Non Obstante to Statutes, void; unless allowed therein. See Dispensation, and Grants of the King.

Non omittas, Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff, where the Bailiff of a Liberty or Franchise who hath the Return of Writs refuses or neglects to serve a Process, for the Sheriff to enter into the Franchise and execute the King's Writ himself, or by his Officer: Before this Writ is granted, the Sheriff ought to return, that he hath sent to the Bailiff, and that he hath not served the Writ; but for Dispatch, the usual Practice is to send a Non omittas with a Capias or Latitat. F. N. B. 68, 74. 2 Inst. 453. If a Sheriff return, that he sent the Process to the Bailiff of a Libertry, who hath given him no Answer; a Non omittas shall be awarded to the Sheriff: And if he returns, that he sent the Process to such Bailiff, who hath returned a Cepi Corpus, or such like Matter; and the Bailiff bring not in the Body, or Money, &c. at the Day, the Bailiff shall be amerced, and a Writ issue to the Sheriff to distrain the Bailiff to bring in the Body. 2 Hawk. 143. Writs of Capias Utlagatum, and of Quo Minus out of the Exchequer, and it is said all Writs whatsoever at the King's Suit, are of the same Effect as a Non omittas; and the Sheriff may by Virtue of them enter into a Liberty and execute them. 2 Lill. Abr. 229. The Reg. of Writs mentions three Sorts of this Writ; which was given to prevent Liberties being privileged to hinder or delay the general Execution of Justice: And the Clause of the Non omittas is, Quod Non omittas propter aliquam Libertatem, (viz. of the Liberty to which the Sheriff hath made a Mandavi Ballivo, qui nullum dedit Responsum) quin in eam ingrediaris & Capias A. B. Si, &c.

Non-plevin, (Non plevina) Is defined to be Defalta post Defaltam; and in Hengham Magna, cap. 8. 'tis said, that the Defendant is to replevy his Lands seized by the King within fifteen Days; and if he neglects then at the Instance of the Plaintiff at the next Court-Day, he shall lose his Seisin, Sicut per Defaltam post Defaltam: But by Statute it was enacted, that none should lose his Land, because of Non-plevin, i. e. where the Land was not replevied in due Time. 9 Ed. 3. cap. 2.

Non ponendis in Assis & Juratis, Is a Writ granted for freeing Persons from serving on Assises and Juries; and when one hath a Charter of Exemption, he may sue the Sheriff for returning him. This Writ is founded on the Stat. of Westm. 2. c. 38. And the Stat. Articuli super Chartas, c. 9. F. N. B. 165. 2 Inst. 127, 447.

Non procedendo ad Assisam Rege inconsulto, A Writ to stop the Trial of a Cause appertaining to one who is in the King's Service, &c. until the King's Pleasure be farther known. Reg. Orig. 220.

Non Pros. If a Plaintiff in an Action, doth not declare against the Defendant within reasonable Time, a Rule may be enter'd against him by the Defendant's Attorney, to declare; and thereupon a Non Prof. &c. Pract. Solic. 232. And a Plaintiff may enter a Non Prof. before the Record of the Cause is sent down by Nisi prius to be tried at the Assises: But it is said there cannot be a Non Prof. in a Cause at the Trial at the Assises. 3 Salk. 246. Though in Actions against several Defendants, it has been ruled otherwise. 2 Salk. 456. Non Pros. have been frequent upon Informations; but never upon Indictments, 'till the Reign of King Charles 2. Ibid. See Nolle Prosequi, and Non suit.

Non Residence, Is applied to those Spiritual Persons that are not Resident, but do absent themselves wilfully by the Space of one Month together, or two Months at several Times in one Year, from their Dignities or Benefices, which is liable to Penalties by the Statute against Non Residency. 21 H. 8. c. 13. But Chaplains to the King, or other great Persons mentioned in this Statute, and the 25 H. 8. c. 16. may be Non resident on their Livings; for they are excused from Residence whilst they attend those that retain them: And Bishops are not punishable by Statute for Non-Residency; but if a Bishop hold a Deanery, Deanery, Parsonage, &c. in Commendam with his Bishoprick, he is punishable by the Stat. 21 H. 8. for Non-Residence on the same. Also where Bishops are Non-resident on their Bishopricks, they are liable to Ecclesiastical Censure; and the King may issue a mandatory Writ for their Attendance thereon, and compel them to it by Seising their Temporalities, a notable Precedent whereof we have in the Case of the Bishop of Hereford, in the Reign of K. Hen. 3. 2 Inst. 625. See Residence.

Non Residentia pro Clericis Regis, Is a Writ directed to the Bishop, charging him not to molest a Clerk employ'd in the King's Service, by Reason of his Non-Residence; in which Case he is to be discharged. Reg. Orig. 58.

Non sane Memory, (Non sana Memoria) Is used in Law for an Exception to any Act, declared to be done by another; and the Effect of it is, that the Party that did that Act, was not well in his Senses when he did it, or when he made his Last Will and Testament. New Book Entries. And Sane Memory for the Making of a Will is not always where the Testator can answer Yes or No, or in some Things with Sense; but he ought to have Judgment to discern, and be of perfect Memory, or the Will shall be void. Moor, c. 1051. See Non compos Mentis.

Nonsuit, (Tergiversatio, Litis renunciatio) Is the letting a Suit or Action fall; or a Renunciation of it by the Plaintiff or Demandant, most commonly upon the Discovery of some Error or Defect, when the Matter is so far proceeded in, as the Jury is ready at the Bar to deliver their Verdict. 2 H. 4. c. 7. Where a Man brings a Personal Action, and doth not prosecute it with Effect, or if upon the Trial, he refuses to stand a Verdict; then he becomes nonsuited: If the Plaintiff be not ready at the Trial when the Jury is called and sworn, the Court may call him Nonsuit; it shall be intended he will not proceed in his Cause, though sometimes the Court hath staid a While in Expectation of his Coming, and making good his Action: And on a Trial, when the Jury comes to deliver in their Verdict, and the Plaintiff is called upon to hear their Verdict; if he do not appear after thrice called, by the Cryer of the Court, he is nonsuited, and the Nonsuit is to be recorded by the Secondary, by the Direction of the Court, at the Prayer of the Defendant's Counsel; for the Court will not order it to be recorded, except the Counsel pray it. Hill. 21 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 231. But where a Plaintiff doth not appear to hear the Verdict when he is called, and thereupon the Court direct the Secondary to record the Nonsuit; if afterwards he do appear before the Nonsuit is actually recorded, the Court may proceed to take the Verdict; it not being a Nonsuit until recorded by the Secondary, and then it is made Part of the Record, and is in the Nature of a Judgment against the Plaintiff. 2 Lill. 232. The Court cannot compel the Plaintiff to appear, and stand a Verdict; but if he appears, or his Counsel or Attorney appear for him, he cannot be afterwards Nonsuit, but the Jury must deliver in their Verdict. A Plaintiff in Ejectment not appearing at the Assises, he was nonsuited, and this was recorded; but as there was no Venire or Habeas Corpora put in, the Nonsuit was discharged, because the Judge of Nisi prius hath no Power to nonsuit without an Habeas Corpora or Distingas. Sid. 164. After a Demurrer join'd, if the Court gives a Day over, the Plaintiff may be nonsuit; for the Plaintiff is then demandable: And after a Judgment quod computet, the Plaintiff may be nonsuited, because it is but an interlocutory Judgment; though after any Verdict, whereupon a final Judgment is to be given, he cannot. 1 Inst. 140. 2 Lill. 231. At Common Law, upon every Continuance or Day given, the Plaintiff might be nonsuit; so that even after a Verdict, if the Court took Time to consider of it, the Plaintiff was demandable and might be nonsuit; but this is now remedied by the Stat. 2 Hen. 4. Yet after a privy Verdict, the Plaintiff might still be nonsuit; and so he may after a Special Verdict found; and after a Demurrer, though the Matter was argued, if the Court give a Day over. 1 Inst. 139. Dyer 53. 3 Salk. 249. In Real or Mix'd Actions, the Nonsuit of one of the Plaintiffs or Demandants is not the Nonsuit of both; in this Case, he which makes Default shall be summoned and severed: But regularly in personal Actions, the Nonsuit of one Plaintiff is the Nonsuit of the others, unless in some particulars. 1 Inst. 138, 139. If an Action of Debt, &c. is brought against several Defendants, a Nonsuit as to one is a Nonsuit as to the Rest; but it is otherwise in a Discontinuance. 3 Salk. 244. And where there is but one Defendant, who pleads to issue as to Part, and demurs to the other Part; the Plaintiff may be nonsuit as to one, and proceed for the other. Hob. 180. The King cannot be nonsuited, because in Judgment of Law he is always present in Court; though the Attorney General may enter a Nolle Prosequi: And the King's Suit may be discontinued, upon the Prayer of the Party, after a Year; where it is delay'd to be prosecuted. 1 Inst. 139. Goldsb. 53. Also notwithstanding the King cannot be nonsuit in any Information or Action, wherein he himself is the sole Plaintiff, an Informer Qui tam, or Plaintiff in a Popular Action, may be nonsuit; and thereby wholly determine the Suit as well in Respect of the King as of himself. 1 Inst. 139. Bro. 68. Fitzherb. 13. A foreign King seeking to take the Benefit of the national Laws here, may be nonsuit in England; which was the Case of the King of Spain. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. A Nonsuit after Appearance, in Appeals of Murder, Writs of Quare Impedit, Attaints, &c. is peremptory. 1 Inst. 139. In other Cases, when a Plaintiff is nonsuit, he may proceed again on a new Declaration; but not on that wherein he became nonsuit, that Declaration being void, and he hath no Day in Court. A Nonsuit is not generally a Bar to Actions of the like Nature, for the same Cause or Duty; yet a Retrahit is a Bar to all other Actions. 2 Lill. 231. On nonsuit of the Plaintiff, &c. Costs are given the Defendant in all Cases where the Plaintiff would have had Costs, if Judgment had been for him. Stat. 4 Jac. 1. c. 3. And on Appearance entered at the Return of the Writ, if the Plaintiff neglects to deliver a Declaration against the Defendant, in personal Action or Ejectment; before the End of the next Term following, a Nonsuit shall be entered against the Plaintiff; and he is to pay Costs to the Defendant. 13 Car. 2. cap. 2.

Non sum Informatus, Is a formal Answer made of Course by an Attorney, who is not instructed or informed to say any Thing material in Defence of his Client's Cause; by which he is deem'd to leave it undefended, and so Judgment passeth against his Client. New Book Entries.

Non

Non-tenure, Is a Plea in Bar to a Real Action, by saying, that he, the Defendant, holdeth not the Land mentioned in the Plaintiff's Count or Declaration, or at least some Part thereof. 25 Ed. 3. c. 16. 1 Mod. Rep. 250. And our Books mention Non-tenure general and special: General, where one denies ever to have been Tenant to the Land in Question; and special is an Exception, alledging that he was not Tenant the Day whereon the Writ was purchased. West. Symb. par. 2. When the Tenant or Defendant pleads Non-tenure of the Whole, he need not say who is Tenant; but if he pleads Non-tenure to Part, he must set forth who is the Tenant. 1 Mod. 181. Non-tenure in Part or in the Whole is not pleadable after Imparance. 3 Lev. 55.

Non-term, (Non-terminus) Is the Vacation between Term and Term: And it was formerly called the Time or Days of the King's Peace. Lamb. Archa. 126.

Non-user, Of Offices concerning the Publick, is Cause of Forfeiture. 9 Rep. 50. See Office.

Nook of Land, (Nocata terra) In an old Deed of Sir Walter de Pedwardyn, twelve Acres and a Half of Land were called a Nook of Land; but the Quantity is generally uncertain. — Illi qui tenuerunt dimidiam Virgatam terre, vel Nocatam terræ, vel Cottagium de Bondagii tenura. Dugd. Warw. pag. 665.

Nozroy, Quasi North-Roy, the Northern King at Arms, mentioned in the Statute 14 Car. 2. c. 33. See Herald.

Notary, (Notarius) Is a Person, generally a Scrivener, who takes Notes, or makes a short Draught of Contracts, Obligations, or other Writings and Instruments. Stat. 27 Ed. 3. c. 1. At this Time we call him a Notary Publick, that publickly attests Deeds or Writings; to make them Authentick in another Country; but principally in Business relating to Merchants: They make Protests of Foreign Bills of Exchange, &c. And Noting a Bill is the Notary's going as a Witness, to take Notice of a Merchant's Refusal to accept or pay the same. Merch. Diff.

Note of a Fine, Is a Brief of the Fine made by the Chirographer, before it is ingrossed. West. Symb. par. 2.

Notes Promissory, For Payment of Money. See Bill of Exchange.

Not guilty, Is the General Issue or Plea of the Defendant in any criminal Action; and Not guilty is a good Issue in Actions of Trespas on the Case, and upon the Case for Deceits or Wrongs; but not on a Promise, &c. Palm. 393. If one hath Cause of Justification and Excuse in Trespas, and he pleads the General Issue Not guilty; he cannot give the Special Matter in Evidence, but must confess the Fact, and plead the Special Matter, &c. 5 Rep. 119. Vide Non est Culpabilis.

Notice, Is required to be given in many Cases by Law, to justify the Proceedings in a Cause where any Thing is demanded, &c. But none is bound by the Law to give Notice to another Person of that which such other may otherwise inform himself of. 22 Car. B. R. If one be bound by an Assumpsit generally to do a Thing to another, he to whom the Promise is made must give Notice when he will have him to do it; but if he promise that another Person shall do it, there he to whom the Thing is to be done is not obliged to give Notice to that third Person when he will have it done, but the Party must procure it at his Peril: For it may be he may not know that other Person, and there is no Privy of Contract between them Two, as there is betwixt the other Two. 2 Lill. Abr. 239. And in Case of a Promise it has been adjudg'd, that where a Penalty is to be recovered, Notice is requisite; but 'tis not so where Damages are to be recovered, in which Case the Party hath sufficient Notice by the Action brought. 1 Bulst. 12. If a Person promise to pay so much to another at his Day of Marriage; the Party at his Peril is to take Notice of the Marriage. Cro. Car. 34, 35. And it is a necessary Intendment, that when after the Marriage the Plaintiff requested Payment of the Money, that Notice was given of the Marriage. Cro. Jac. 228. It is held, that where a collateral Thing is to be done at or after Marriage, there Notice is to be given of it; though where Money is to be paid, 'tis a Debt due to the Party by the Marriage, and may be recovered without any Notice given. 2 Bulst. 254. Notice must be given to an Heir at Law, of a Condition annexed to his Estate; or he is not bound to take Notice of the Condition. 1 Lutw. 809. 4 Rep. 82. 3 Mod. 28. Yet it is said, that the Heir is bound to take Notice of a Proviso in a Feoffment, without any Notice; and this Difference has been taken; that where Notice is required to be given by the original Deed or Agreement, it is hereditary, and descends to the Heir; but if 'tis collateral to the Father, it shall not bind his Heir without express Notice. Winch. 108. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1186. A Man who is a Stranger to a Deed, that hath an Estate by Way of Remainder, or otherwise; shall not forfeit or determine his Estate by Virtue of any Proviso in such Deed, unless he hath Notice of it. 8 Rep. 92. Where one is bound to another to make such an Assurance as A. B. shall advise, the Obligor is bound to make the Assurance, without Notice that A. B. had advised it; but if he had been bound to make such Assurance as the Counsel of the Obligee should advise, Notice ought to be given the Obligor, that the Counsel of the Obligee had advised it. 1 Leon. 115. If I am bound to enfeoff such Persons as the Obligee shall name; he is to give Notice of those which he names, otherwise I am not bound to enfeoff them. 2 Danv. Abr. 105. And if the Condition of an Obligation be to account before such Auditors as the Obligee shall assign, and the Obligee assigns Auditors; he is to give Notice thereof to the Obligor, or he will not be bound to account. Ibid. Notice is not to be given so strictly upon a Covenant, as upon a Bond; which is Point of Forfeiture. Cro. Jac. 391. If the Agreement be that a Person shall pay so much as A. B. hath paid, the Defendant is to inquire of him, and the Plaintiff is not bound to give Notice: But if the Person is altogether uncertain, the Plaintiff to intitle himself to an Action must give Notice. Cro. Jac. 432, 433. If an Act is to be done by a Stranger, and not by the Plaintiff, the Cognisance thereof lies as well in the Notice of the Defendant as of the Plaintiff; and therefore the Plaintiff need not lay a Notice. Cro. Jac. 492. Cro. Car. 132. When one may take Notice, and not the other; Notice is necessary. Latch. 15. A Thing lies in the Knowledge of the Plaintiff, there ought to be Notice given to the Defendant. March. 156. Mod. 230. It has been holden, that a Defendant having undertaken to do a Thing, undertakes to do all Circumstances incident to the Doing it, and that without Notice; but if he had been ignorant of the Thing to be done, then Notice must be given. 2 Bulst. 143. Want of Notice upon various Occasions, has been often the Cause of Arrest of Judgment in Actions, &c.

Notice is also to be given of Trials and Motions; of a Robbery committed, to recover against the Hundred; of a prior Mortgage, on making a second; of an Assignment of a Lease, to charge the Assignee only on Acceptance of Rent; in Cases of Distress for Rent, according to the Statute; and of Avoidances of Churches, to the Patron that he may present, &c.

Novat, Signifies Land newly ploughed or converted into Tillage, that without Memory of Man had not been tilled: And sometimes it is taken for Ground which hath been ploughed for two Years, and afterwards lies Fallow for one Year; or that which lies Fallow every other Year: It is called Novat, because the Earth Novat cultura profcinditur. Cartular. Abbat. de Furnesse in Com. Lanc. in Officio Ducat. Lanc. fol. 41.

Novat Oblata, mentioned in Claus. 12 Ed. 1. m. 7. See Oblata.

Novel Assignment, (Nova Assignatio) Is an Assignment of Time, Place, or such like, in Action of Trespass, otherwise than as it was before assigned; or where it is more particularly in a Declaration than in the Writ, &c. Bro. Trespass 122. And if the Defendant justifies in a Place where no Trespass was done, then the Plaintiff is to assign the Close where, to which the Defendant is to plead, &c. Terms de Ley 459. Vide Trespass.

Novel Disseisin, (Nova Disseisina.) See Affise of Novel Disseisin.

Novellæ. Those Constitutions of the Civil Law, which were made after the Publication of the Theodosian Code, were called Novellæ, by the Emperors who ordained them: But some Writers call the Julian Edition only by that Name. Blount.

Noyles. No Person shall put any Flocks, Noyles, Thrums, &c. or other deceivable Thing, into any broad Woollen Cloth, by Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 18.

Nuces colligere, To gather Hazle-Nuts, which was formerly one of the Works or Services imposed by Lords upon their inferior Tenants. Paroch. Antiq. 495.

Nude Contract, (Nudum Pactum) Is a bare naked Contract, without any Consideration had therefore. If a Man bargains or sells Goods, &c. and there is no Recompence made or given for the doing thereof; as if one say to another, I sell you all my Lands or Goods, but nothing is agreed upon what the other shall give or pay for them, so that there is not a Quid pro quo of one Thing for another; this is a Nude Contract, and void in Law, and for the Nonperformance thereof no Action will lie; Ex nudo pacto, non oritur Actio. Terms de Ley 459, 460. The Law supposes Error in making these Contracts; they being as it were of one Side only.

Nude Matter, Is a naked Matter, or bare Allegation of a Thing done, &c. Vide Matter.

Nul tiel Record, Is the Plea of a Plaintiff that there is no such Record, on the Defendant's Alleging Matter of Record in Bar of the Plaintiff's Action. See Failure of Record.

Numerum. Civitas Cant. Reddit 24 l. ad numerum, i. e. by Number or Tale, as we call it. Domesday.

Nun, (Nonna) Is a consecrated Virgin or Woman that by Vow hath bound herself to a single and chaste Life, in some Place or Company of other Women, separated from the World, and devoted to an especial Service of God by Prayer, Fasting, and such like holy Exercises: It is an Egyptian Word, as we are told by St. Hierome.

Nuncius, A Nuncio or Messenger, &c. And the Pope's Nuncio is his Legate, Legatus Pontificis.

Nuncupative Will, (Testamentum Nuncupatum) Is a Will by Word of Mouth; it is a verbal Declaration of the Testator's Mind before a sufficient Number of Witnesses, which being reduced into Writing either before or after the Death of the Testator, is good to dispose of his personal Estate, but not his Lands. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1191. Before the Stat. 29 Car. 2. it was necessary not only to put a Nuncupative Will in Writing, but to Prove it likewise by Witnesses in the Spiritual Court, and to have it under the Seal of the Ordinary; until which it hath been decreed in Equity, that such Will was not pleadable against an Administrator. 1 Chanc. Rep. 122. And by that Statute, no Nuncupative Will shall be good, wherein the Estate bequeathed exceeds 30 l. unless proved by three Witnesses who were present at the Making thereof, and bid by the Testator to bear Witness; nor except it be made in the Time of the last Sickness of the Deceased, and in his House, or where he hath been Resident for ten Days before, unless surprised with Sickness from home: And no Evidence shall be received to prove such Will, after six Months after the speaking of the Testamentary Words; if the same or the Substance of it be not committed to Writing within six Days after the Making. Nor shall any Probate of such Nuncupative Will pass the Seals till fourteen Days after the Death of the Testator, and until Process hath issued to call in the Widow or next of Kin to the Deceased, to contest it if they think fit. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. And by the same Act, no Will in Writing concerning personal Estate shall be repealed by any Words or Will by Word of Mouth, except the same be put into Writing in the Life-time of the Testator, and read to and approved of by him, and proved to be so done by three Witnesses, &c. All Witnesses as are allowed to be good Witnesses upon Trials at Law, shall be good Witnesses to prove any Nuncupative Will, by Stat. 4 & 5 Anna.

Nuper obiit, Is a Writ that lies for a Sister and Coheir, deforced by her Coparcener of Lands or Tenements, whereof their Father, Brother, or any other common Ancestor, died seised of an Estate in Fee-Simple: For if one Sister do deforce another of Land held in Fee-Tail, her Sister and Coheir shall have a Formedon against her, &c. and not a Nuper Obiit; and where the Ancestor being once seised, died not seised of the Possession, but the Reversion, in such a Case a Writ of Rationali parte lies. Reg. Orig. 226. F. N. B. 197. Terms de Ley 460. If one Coparcener be deforced by another and a Stranger, she shall have a Nuper obiit against her Coparcener: And if two Coparceners after the Death

Death of their Ancestor enter and deforce a third Sister, and afterwards they make Partition betwixt them, and then one of the two alieneth her Part to a Stranger in Fee; yet the third shall have the Writ Nuper obiit against her two Sisters, notwithstanding that Alienation, and shall recover the third Part of what the Coparcener who aliened not was seised, &c. And may sue an Affise of Mortdancesthor, or Writ of Aiel as the Case is, in the Name of the other Coparcener, to recover her third Part in the Hands of the Stranger. New Nat. Br. 437, 438. A Nuper obiit ought to be brought by that Coparcener who is deforced, against all the other Coparceners; and although some of them have nothing in the Tenancy. Ibid. And this Writ lieth between Sisters of the half Blood; and likewise between Coheirs in Gavelkind, as well as between Women Parceners, &c.

Nusance, (Nocumentum, from the Fr. Nuire, i. e. Nocere) Particularly so called, is where one makes any Encroachment on the King's Lands, or the Highways; common Rivers, &c. 2 Inst. 272. And where a Man doth any Thing upon his own Ground, to the particular Damage of his Neighbour, &c. it is accounted a Nusance. Nusance signifies not only a Thing done to the Annoyance of another, in his Lands or Tenements, but the Affise or Writ lying for the same. F. N. B. 183. And Nusances are Publick and Common, or Private: A Common Nusance is defined to be an Offence against the Publick, either by doing a Thing which tends to the Annoying of all the King's Subjects, and is common against all; or by neglecting to do any Thing which the common Good requires. 2 Roll. Abr. 83. And Annoyances in Highways, as where a Gate, Hedge, &c. or Ditches are made therein; of Bridges and publick Rivers, disorderly Alehouses, Bawdy-Houses, Gaming-Houses, Stages for Rope-Dancers, Mountebanks, &c. Brewing-Houses erected in Places not convenient, Cottages with Inmates, common Scolds, Eves-Droppers, &c. are generally Common Nusances. 2 Inst. 406. If a Man stops up the Light of another's House, or builds so near to and hanging over mine, that the Rain which falleth from his House falls upon mine; Turning or Diverting Water, running to a Man's House, Mill, Meadow, &c. or Stopping up a Way, leading from Houses to Lands; Suffering the next House to decay to the Damage of my House; and Setting up or making a House of Office, Lime-pit, Dye-house, Tan-house or Butcher's Shop, &c. and using them so near my House, that the Smell thereof doth annoy me or is infectious; or if they hurt my Grass, or Trees, or the Corruption of the Water of Lime-pits spoils my Water, or destroys Fish in a River, &c. These are in general Private Nusances. 3 Inst. 231. 9 Rep. 54. 5 Rep. 101. 1 Roll. Abr. 88. 2 Roll. 140. 1 Danv. Abr. 173. For a common Nusance, Indictment lies at the Suit of the King; and the Party shall be fined and imprisoned, &c. No Action lieth in this Case, for if one Man might have an Action, all Men might have the like: And the Indictment must be ad Commune Nocumentum omnium Ligeorum, &c. 5 Rep. 73. 1 Inst. 56. 1 Ventr. 208. But though Action may not be brought for a common Nusance, but Indictment or Presentment; yet where the Inhabitants of a Town had by Custom a watering Place for their Cattle which was stopped by another, it has been held, that any Inhabitant might have an Action against him, otherwise they would be without Remedy, because such a Nusance is not common to all the King's Subjects, and Presentable in the Leet, or to be redressed by Presentment or Indictment in the Quarter-Sessions. 5 Rep. 73. 9 Rep. 103. And if any one Person hath more particular Damage by a common Nusance than another; as if by Reason of a Pit dug in a Highway, a Man for whose Life I held Lands is drowned; or my Servant falling into it receives Injury, whereby I lose his Service, &c. for this special Damage, which is not common to other Persons, Action lies. 5 Rep. 73. 4 Rep. 18. Cro. Car. 446. Vaugh. 341. 4 Bull. 344. For private Nusances, Action on the Case lieth, or Affise of Nusance by the Party grieved; and on Action for a private Nusance, Judgment shall be given that the Nusance shall be removed, and the Party injured recover Damages for the Injury sustained. 1 Roll. Abr. 391. 1 Ventr. 208. There is a Difference between an Affise for a Nusance and an Action on the Case; for the first is to abate the Nusance, but the last is not to abate it but to recover Damages; if the Nusance be removed, the Plaintiff is intitled to his Damages which accrued before; and though 'tis laid with a Continuando for a longer Time than the Plaintiff can prove, he shall have Damages for no more than he can make Proof of before the Nusance was abated. 2 Mod. 253. It is said both of a common and private Nusance, that they may be abated or removed by those Persons that are prejudiced by them; and they need not stay to prosecute for their Removal. 2 Lill. Abr. 244. Wood's Inst. 443. It has been adjudged, that every Person may remove a Nusance; and that the Cutting a Gate set cross an Highway is lawful. Cro. Car. 184, 185. Also if a House be on the Highway, or a House hang over the Ground of another, they may be pulled down; but no Man can justify the Doing more Damage than is necessary, or Removing the Materials. 1 Hawk. 199. A Man builds a House so near mine that it is a Nusance, I may enter and pull it down; and a Man indicted for a Riot in such a Case, had only a small Fine set on him. 2 Salk. 459. If a Ship be sunk in a Port or Haven, and it is not removed by the Owner, he may be indicted for it as a common Nusance, because it is prejudicial to the Commonwealth in hindering Navigation and Trade. 2 Lill. 244. Indictment lies for laying Logs, &c. in the Stream of a publick navigable River: It is a common Nusance to divert Part of a publick Navigable River, whereby the Current of it is weakened, and made unable to carry Vessels of the same Burthen as it could before: And if a River be stopped to the Nusance of the Country, and none appear bound by Prescription to cleanse it; those who have the Piscary, and the neighbouring Towns, that have a common Passage and Easement therein, may be compelled to do the same. 1 Hawk. P. C. 198, 199, 200. It is a common Nusance indictable, to divide a House in a Town for poor People to inhabit in, by reason whereof it will be more dangerous in the Time of Sickness and Infection of the Plague. 2 Roll. Abr. 139. A common Play-house, if it draws together such Numbers of Coaches and People as incommode and disturb the Neighbourhood, may be a Nusance; but those Places are not naturally Nusances, but become so by Accident. 1 Roll. Rep. 109. 1 Hawk. 191. A prohibitory Writ was issued out of B. R. against Betterton, and other Actors, for erecting a New Play-house in Little Lincoln's Inn Fields, reciting that it was a Nuisance to the Neighbourhood; and they not obeying the Writ, an Attachment was granted against them: But it was objected, that an Attachment could not be issued, and that the most proper Method was to proceed by Indictment, and then the Jury would consider whether it were a Nuisance or not; and this was the better Opinion. 5 Mod. 142. 2. Nelf. Abr. 1192. One Hall having begun to build a Booth near Charing-Cross for Rope-dancing, which drew together a great many idle People, was ordered by the Lord Chief Justice not to proceed; he proceeded notwithstanding, affirming that he had the King's Warrant and Promise to bear him harmless; but being required to give a Recognizance in 300 l. that he would not go on with the Building, and he refusing, he was committed, and a Record was made of this Nuisance, as upon the Judge's own View, and a Writ issued to the Sheriff of Middlesex to prostrate it. 1 Vent. 169. 1 Mod. 96. Erecting a Dove-cote is not a common Nuisance; the Action of the Case will lie at the Suit of the Lord of the Manor, for erecting it without his Licence. 1 Hawk. 199. It was anciently held, that if a Man erected a Dove-cote, he was punishable in the Leet; but it has been since adjudged not to be punishable in the Leet as a common Nuisance, but that the Lord for this particular Nuisance should have an Action on the Case, or an Affise of Nuisance, as he may for building an House to the Nuisance of his Mill. 5 Rep. 104. 3 Salk. 248. A Brewhouse erected in such an inconvenient Place, wherein the Business cannot be carried on without greatly incommoding the Neighbourhood, may be indicted as a common Nuisance; and so in the like Case may a Glass-house, &c. 1 Hawk. 199. Where there hath been an ancient Brewhouse Time out of Mind, although in Fleetstreet, &c. this is not any Nuisance, because it shall be supposed to be erected when there were no Buildings near: Tho' if a Brewhouse should be now built in any of the high Streets of London, or trading Places, it will be a Nuisance, and Action on the Case lies for whomsoever receives any Damage thereby; and accordingly in an Action brought against a Brewer in the last Case, where a Person's Goods were injured in his Shop, the Jury gave the Plaintiff for two Years Damages sixty Pounds. 2 Lill. Abr. 246. Palm. 536. A Plaintiff was possessed of an House wherein he dwelled, and the Defendant built a Brewhouse, &c. in which he burnt Coal so near the House, that by the Stink and Smoak he could not dwell there without Danger of his Health; and it was adjudged, that the Action lay, though a Brewhouse is necessary, and so is Burning Coal in it. Hutton 135. If a Person melt Lead so near the Close of another Person that it spoils his Grass there, whereby Cattle are lost; notwithstanding this is a lawful Trade, and for the Benefit of the Nation, Action lies against him; for he ought to use his Trade in waste Places, so as no Damage may happen to the Proprietors of the Land next adjoining. 2 Roll. Abr. 140. Building a Smith's Forge near a Man's House, and making Noise with Hammers so that he could not sleep, was held a Nuisance, for which Action lies; although the Smith pleaded that he and his Servants worked at seasonable Times, that he had been a Blacksmith and used the Trade above twenty Years in that Place, and set up his Forge in an old Room, &c. For though a Smith is a necessary Trade, and so is a Lime-burner, and a Hog-Merchant, yet these Trades must be used not to be injurious to the Neighbours. 1 Lutw. 69. But if a Schoolmaster keeps a School so near the Study of a Lawyer by Profession, that it is a Disturbance to him; this is not a Nuisance for which Action may be brought. Wood's Inst. 538. An Innkeeper brought an Action on the Case against a Person for erecting a Tallow Furnace, and melting stinking Tallow so near his House that it annoyed his Guests, and his Family became unhealthful; and adjudged that the Action lay. Cro. Car. 367. So where a Person kept a Hogsty near a Man's Parlour, whereby he lost the Benefit of it. 2 Roll. Abr. 140. And in Trespass for a Nuisance, in causing stinking Water in the Defendant's Yard to run to the Walls of the Plaintiff's House, and piercing them so that it run into his Cellar, &c. Judgment was given for the Plaintiff. Hardres 60. An Action lies for hindering of the wholesome Air, and also for corrupting of the Air. 9 Rep. 58. And none shall cast any Garbage, Dung or Filth into Ditches, Waters, or other Places, within or near any City or Town, on Pain of Punishment by the Lord Chancellor at Discretion, as a Nuisance. Stat. 12 R. 2. c. 13. The Continuation of a Nuisance is as it were a new Nuisance: Where a Nuisance is erected in the Time of the Devisor, and continued afterwards by the Devisee, it is as the new Erecting of such a Nuisance. 2 Leon. 129. Cro. Car. 231. A Man erects a Nuisance, and then lets it; the Continuance by the Lessee has been held a Nuisance, against whom Action lies. Cro. Jac. 373. Moor 353. But it is said in another Case of this Nature, that admitting the Plaintiff might have an Affise of Nuisance against the Builder, the Lessor, he cannot have an Action against his Lessee, because it would be Waste in him to pull it down; but the Plaintiff may abate the Nuisance, standing on his own Ground: Yet where the Thing done is a Nuisance per intervalla, as a Pipe or Gutter, Action lies against the Lessee, because every fresh Running is a fresh Nuisance; and if a Man have a Way over the Ground of another, and such other stops that Way, and then demises the Ground, an Action lies against the Lessee for continuing this Nuisance. 1 Mod. 54. 3 Salk. 248. If a Person assigns his Lease with a Nuisance, Action lies against him for continuing it, because the Lease was transferred with the original Wrong, and his Assignment affirms the Continuance; besides he hath a Rent as a Consideration for the Continuance, and therefore he ought to answer the Damages occasioned by it. 2 Salk. 460. 2 Cro. 272, 555. If a Nuisance is levied in an House, &c. to the Prejudice of another, and then the House is aliened; Action of the Case lies against him that levied it, and also against the Alience for continuing it, by Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 24. If a Fair or Market be set up to the Nuisance of another, the Party grieved may have his Writ or Action. F. N. B. 184. 2 Saund. 173. Lutw. 69, 91. And no special Nuisance need be assigned, when a Matter appears to the Court to be a Nuisance. 9 Rep. 54. When a Man hath but a Term of Years in a House or Lands, and not a Freehold, he shall not have an Affise of Nuisance; but Action upon the Case. New Nat. Br. 10. Writs of Nuisance, called Vicintiel, are to be made at the Election of the Plaintiff, determinable before the Justices of either Bench, or the Justices of Assise of the County, being in Nature

ture of Affises, &c. 6 R. 2. c. 3. And the Writ of Nufance runs thus: — Questus est nobis A. quod B. injuste, &c. levavit Domum, Murum, &c. & alia que sunt ad Nocumentum, &c. See Highway.

Nutritimentum, Nourishment, particularly applied to Breed of Cattle. — Quilibet Custumarius Domina non debet vendere Equum masculum neque Bovem de proprio Nutrimeto suo. Paroch. Antiq. 401.

Nypas, (Nidarius, accipiter) A Hawk or Bird of Prey. Litt. Dist.

O.

O, Is an Adverb of Calling, or Interjection of Sorrow: And the seven Antiphones or alternate Hymn of seven Verses, &c. sung by the Quire in the Time of Advent was called O, from beginning with such Exclamation: In the Statutes of St. Paul's Church in London, there is one Chapter De faciendo O. Liber. Statut. M.S. fol. 86.

Oath, (Sax. Eoth Lat. Furamentum) Is an Affirmation or Denial of any Thing, before one or more who have Authority to administer the same, for the Discovery and Advancement of Truth and Right, calling God to Witness that the Testimony is true; therefore it is termed Sacramentum, a Holy Band or Tie: And it is called a Corporal Oath, because the Witness when he swears lays his Right-hand upon and toucheth the Holy Evangelists, or Book of the New Testament. 3 Inst. 165. There are several Sorts of Oaths in our Law, viz. Furamentum promissionis, where Oath is made either to do or not to do such a Thing. Furamentum purgationis, when a Person is charged with any Matter by Bill in Chancery, &c. Furamentum probationis, where any one is produced as a Witness, to prove or disprove a Thing. And Furamentum triationis, when any Persons are sworn to try an Issue, &c. 2 Nelf. 1181. All Oaths must be lawful, allowed by the Common Law, or some Statute; if they are administered by Persons in a private Capacity, or not duly authorized, they are Coram non Judice, and void; and those administering them are guilty of a high Contempt, for doing it without Warrant of Law, and punishable by Fine and Imprisonment. 3 Inst. 165. 4 Inst. 278. 2 Roll. Abr. 257. One that was to testify on the Behalf of a Felon or Person indicted of Treason, or other Capital Offence, upon an Indictment at the King's Suit, could not formerly be examined upon his Oath for the Prisoner against the King, though he might be examined without giving him his Oath: But by a late Statute, Witnesses on the Behalf of the Prisoner upon Indictments are to be sworn to depose the Truth in such Manner as Witnesses for the King; and if convicted of wilful Perjury, shall suffer the Punishment inflicted for such Offences. 1 Ann. c. 9. And the Evidence for the Defendant in an Appeal, whether Capital or not, or on Indictment or Information for a Misdemeanor, was to be upon Oath before this Statute. 2 Hawk. P. C. 434. A Person that is to be a Witness in a Cause may have two Oaths given him, one to speak the Truth to such Things as the Court shall ask him concerning himself, or other Things which are not Evidence in the Cause; and the other to give Testimony in the Cause in which he is produced as a Witness: The former is called the Oath upon a Voyer dire.

Pasch. 23 Car. B. R. If Oath be made against Oath in a Cause, it is a Non liquet to the Court which Oath is true; and in such Case the Court will take that Oath to be true, which is to affirm a Verdict, Judgment, &c. as it tends to the expediting of Justice. 2 Lill. Abr. 247. And the Court will rather believe the Oath of the Plaintiff than the Oath of the Defendant, if there be Oath against Oath; because it is supposed that the Plaintiff hath Wrong done him, and that he is forced to fly to the Law to obtain his Right. Ibid. A voluntary Oath, by the Consent and Agreement of the Parties, is lawful as well as a compulsory Oath; and in such Case, if it is to do a Spiritual Thing, and the Party fail, he is suable in the Ecclesiastical Court, pro lensione Fidei; and if to do a temporal Thing, and he fail therein, he may be punished in B. R. Adjudged on Assumpsit where if the Defendant would make Oath before such a Person, the Plaintiff promised, &c. Cro. Car. 486. 3 Salk. 248. By the Common Law, Officers of Justice are bound to take an Oath for the due Execution of Justice. Trin. 22 Car. 1. B. R. Though if Promissory Oaths of Officers are broken, they are not punished as Perjuries, like unto the Breach of Affertory Oaths; but their Offences ought to be punished with a severe Fine, &c. Wood's Inst. 412. Anciently at the End of a legal Oath, was added, So help me God at his holy Dome, i. e. Judgment; and our Ancestors did believe, that a Man could not be so wicked to call God to witness any Thing which was not true; but that if any one should be perjured, he must continually expect that God would be the Revenger: And thence probably Purgations of Criminals, by their own Oaths, and for great Offences by the Oaths of others, were allowed. Malmsh. lib. 2. c. 6. Leg. H. 1. c. 64.

Oaths to the Government. By Magna Charta, the Oaths of the King, the Bishops, the King's Counsellors, Sheriffs, Mayors, Bailiffs, &c. were appointed. 9 H. 3. The Oaths of the Judges of both Benches; and of the Clerks in Chancery, and of the Curfitors, were ordained by 18 Ed. 3. Ecclesiastical Persons are required to take the Oaths of Supremacy, &c. And Clergymen not taking the Oaths, on their Refusal being certified into B. R. &c. incur a Pramunire. 1 Eliz. c. 1. Officers and Ecclesiastical Persons, Members of Parliament, Lawyers, &c. are to take the Oath of Allegiance, or be liable to Penalties and Disabilities. 7 Jac. 1. c. 6. Persons shall take the Oaths, and receive the Sacrament, to qualify them to hear any Office of Magistracy in Corporations. 13 Car. 2. c. 1. And Officers of the Lieutenantancy and Militia are required to take the Oaths by 13 Car. 2. c. 6. All Persons that bear any Office, Civil or Military, or receive any Salary, &c. from the King, are to take the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy; and Persons refusing are disabled, &c. 25 Car. 2. c. 2. By the 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 6. the Coronation Oath was altered and regulated for future Kings and Queens: And the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy abrogated, and others appointed to be taken and enforced, on Pain of Disability, &c. by 1 W. & M. c. 8. and 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 27. All that bear Offices in the Government, Peers, and Members of the House of Commons, Ecclesiastical Persons, Members of Colleges, Schoolmasters, Preachers, Serjeants at Law, Counsellors, Attornies, Solicitors, Advocates, Proctors, &c. are enjoined to take the Oath of Abjuration; and Persons

Persons neglecting or refusing are declared incapable to execute their Offices and Employments, disabled to sue in Law or Equity, or to be Guardian, Executor, &c. and to forfeit 500*l*. This extends not to Constables, and other Parish Officers, nor to Bailiffs of Manors, &c. 13 W. 3. c. 6. The Stat. 1 Ann. c. 22. obliges the receiving the Abjuration Oath with Alterations: And by 4 Ann. c. 8. the Oath of Abjuration is settled after the Death of Queen Anne. Also the Oath of Abjuration, with further Alterations relating to the Protestant Succession, is required to be taken by the 1 Geo. c. 55. And by a late Statute, all Persons whatsoever are to take the Oaths to the Government, or register their Estates, upon Pain of Forfeiture, &c. 9 Geo. c. 24. See Papists.

Persons maintaining an Oath to be unlawful, incur Forfeitures by Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. Two Justices of Peace have Power to tender the Oaths to suspected Persons; and if they refuse them, it is to be certified into the Chancery, &c. But it hath been held, that a Person cannot be said to refuse the Oaths unless they are read or offered to be read to him. Oaths must be taken in the very Words expressed in the Acts, and cannot be qualified; yet using the Words in Conscience, instead of my Conscience, or Sea of Rome, instead of See of Rome, is not material. 1 Bulst. 197.

Form of the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy.

I A. B. do sincerely promise and swear, that I will be Faithful and bear true Allegiance to his Majesty King George.

So help me God.

And I do swear, that I do from my Heart abhor, detest and abjure, as impious and heretical, that damnable Doctrine and Position, that Princes excommunicated or deprived by the Pope, or any Authority of the See of Rome, may be deposed or murdered by their Subjects, or any other whatsoever: And I do declare, that no Foreign Prince, Person, Prelate, State or Potentate, hath or ought to have any Jurisdiction, Power, Superiority, Prebeminence or Authority, Ecclesiastical or Spiritual, within this Realm.

So help me God.

Form of the Oath of Abjuration required by Law.

I A. B. do truly and sincerely acknowledge, profess, testify and declare, in my Conscience, before God and the World, that our Sovereign Lord King George is lawful and rightful King of this Realm, and all other the Dominions and Countries thereunto belonging. And I do solemnly and sincerely declare, that I do believe in my Conscience that the Person pretended to be Prince of Wales, during the Life of the late K. James 2. and since his Decease pretending to be, and taking upon himself the Stile and Title of King of England, by the Name of James 3. or of Scotland by the Name of James 8. or the Stile and Title of King of Great Britain, hath not any Right or Title whatsoever to the Crown of this Realm, or any other the Dominions thereunto belonging. And I do Renounce, Refuse and Abjure any Allegiance or Obedience to him; and I do swear, that I will bear Faith and true Allegiance to his Majesty K. George, and him will Defend to the utmost of my Power against all traitorous Conspiracies and Attempts whatsoever, which shall be made against his Person, Crown or Dignity. And I will do my utmost Endeavours to disclose and make known to his Majesty and his Successors, all Treasons and Traiterous Conspiracies which I shall know to be against him or any of them. And I do faithfully promise, to the utmost of my Power, to support, maintain and defend the Succession of the Crown against him the said James, and all other Persons whatsoever; which Succession by an Act entitled, An Act for the further Limitation of the Crown, and better Securing the Rights and Liberties of the Subject, is and stands limited to the late Princess Sophia, Electress and Dutches Dowager of Hanover, and the Heirs of her Body, being Protestants. And all these Things I do plainly and sincerely acknowledge and swear, according to the express Words by me spoken, and according to the plain and common Sense and Understanding of the said Words; without any Equivocation, mental Evasion, or secret Reservation whatsoever. And I do make this Recognition, Acknowledgment, Abjuration, Renunciation and Promise, heartily, willingly and truly, upon the true Faith of a Christian.

Vid. Affirmation.

So help me God.

Obedientia, In the Canon Law is used for an Office, or the Administration of it: Whereupon the Word Obedientiales, in the Provincial Constitutions, is taken for Officers under their Superiors. Can. Law. cap. 1. And as some of these Offices consisted in the Collection of Rents or Pensions, Rents were called Obedientia; Quia colligebantur ab Obedientialibus. But though Obedientia was a Rent, as appears by Hoveden, in a general Acceptation of this Word, it extended to whatever was enjoined the Monks by the Abbot; and in a more restrained Sense was the Cells or Farms which belonged to the Abbey to which the Monks were sent, Vi ejusdem Obedientie, either to look after the Farms, or to collect the Rents, &c. — Prohibemus ne Redditus quos Obedientias vocant ad firmam teneant. Matt. Paris. Ann. 1213.

Obit, (Lat.) Signifies a Funeral Solemnity or Office for the Dead, most commonly performed when the Corpse lies in the Church uninterred: Also the Anniversary Office. 2 Cro. 51. Dyer 313. The Anniversary of any Person's Death was called the Obit; and to observe such Day with Prayers and Alms, or other Commemoration, was the Keeping of the Obit: And in Religious Houses they had a Register, wherein they entered the Obits or Obitual Days of their Founders and Benefactors, which was thence termed the Obituary. The Tenure of Obit or Chantry Lands is taken away and extinct, by the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. and 15 Car. 2. c. 9.

Oburgatrices, Are Scolds or unquiet Women, punished with the Cucking-stool. M.S. LL. Lib. Burg. Villæ de Montgomery temp. Hen. 2.

Oblata, Gifts or Offerings made to the King by any of his Subjects, which in the Reigns of K. John and K. Hen. 3. were so carefully heeded, that they were entered into the Fine-Rolls under the Title of Oblata; and if not paid, esteemed a Duty, and put in Charge to the Sheriff. Philips of Purveyance. In the Exchequer it signifies old Debts, brought as it were together from precedent Years, and put on the present Sheriff's Charge. Pract. Excheq. 78.

Oblations, (Oblationes) Are thus defined in the Canon Law: Dicuntur quæcumque à piis fidelibusque Christianis offeruntur Deo & Ecclesiæ, sive res solidæ sive mobiles sunt. Spelm. de Concil. Tom. 1. p. 393. The Word is often mentioned in our Law Books; and formerly there were several Sorts of Oblations, viz. Oblationes Altaris, which the Priest had for saying Mass; Oblationes Defunctorum, which were were given by the Last Wills and Testaments of Persons dying to the Church; Oblationes Mortuorum, or Funerales, given at Burials; Oblationes Penitentium, which were given by Persons penitent; and Oblationes Pentecostales, &c. The Chief or Principal Feasts for the Oblations of the Altar, are All Saints, Christmas, Candlemas and Easter; which were called Oblationes quatuor principales; and of the customary Offerings from the Parishioners to the Parish-Priest, solemnly laid on the Altar, the Mass or Sacrament Offerings were usually Threepence at Christmas, Twopence at Easter, and a Penny at the two other principal Feasts: Under this Title of Oblations were comprehended all the accustomed Dues for Sacramentalia or Christian Offices; and also the little Sums paid for saying Masses and Prayers for the Deceased. Kennet's Gloss. Oblationes funerales were often the best Horse of the Defunct, delivered at the Church-Gate or Grave to the Priest of the Parish; to which old Custom we owe the Original of Mortuaries, &c. And at the Burial of the Dead, it was usual for the surviving Friends to offer liberally at the Altar for the pious Use of the Priest, and the good Estate of the Soul deceased, being called the Soul-Seat: In North Wales this Usage still prevails, where at the Rails of the Communion Table in Churches, is a Tablet conveniently fixt, to receive the Money offered at Funerals, according to the Quality of the Deceased; which has been observed to be a providential Augmentation to some of those poor Churches. Kennet's Gloss. At first the Church had no other Revenues beside these Oblations, till in the fourth Century it was enriched with Lands, and other Possessions. Blount. Oblations, &c. are in the Nature of Tithes; and 'tis said are included in the Act 7 & 8 W. 3. for Recovery of small Tithes under 40 s. by the Determination of Justices of Peace, &c. Countr. Pars. Compan. 137, 138. Vid. Obventions.

Obligation, (Obligatio) Is a Bond, containing a Penalty, with a Condition annexed for Payment of Money, Performance of Covenants, or the like; and it differs from a Bill, which is generally without a Penalty or Condition, tho' a Bill may be Obligatory. Co. Lit. 172. See Bond.

Obligor, Is the Party that enters into or makes such Obligation; and the Obligee is the Person to whom made.

Oblolata terra, Is, according to some Accounts, Half an Acre of Land; but others hold it to be only Half a Perch. Spelm. Gloss.

Obventions, (Obventiones) Are Offerings or Tithes; and Oblations, Obventions and Offerings, are generally one and the same Thing, though Obvention is esteemed the most comprehensive. The Profits of the Churches in London were formerly the Oblations and Obventions; for which a Remedy is given by Law: But the Tithes and Profits arising to the London Clergy are now settled and appointed by Act of Parliament. Countr. Pars. Compan. 138. Rents and Revenues of Spiritual Livings are called Obventions. 12 Car. 2. c. 11. — Margeria Comitissa de Warwick Universi Sanctæ Matris Ecclesiæ filii, &c. dedi omnes Obventiones tam in Decimis Majoribus & Minoribus, quam in aliis rebus de Affartis de W. & Decimam pannagii, &c. Occassio, Is taken for a Tribute which the Lord imposed on his Vassals or Tenants; propter occasiones Bellerum vel aliarum Necessitatum. And Occasionare signified to be charged or loaded with Payments, or occasional Penalties. Meta, lib. 1. cap. 24.

Occationes, Derived ab occando, viz. Harrowing or Breaking Clods are Affarts: Affarta vulgo dicuntur quæ apud Isidorum Occationes nominantur. Lib. niger Scacc. par. 1. cap. 13. Spelm.

Occupant, (Occupans) Is he that first seizes or gets Possession of a Thing. An Island in the Sea, precious Stones on the Sea-shore, and Treasure discovered in a Ground that has no particular Owner, by the Laws of Nations belong to him who finds them, and gets the first Occupation of them. Treat. Laws 342. Where a Man findeth a Piece of Land that no other possesses or hath Title unto, and he that so finds it doth enter upon the same, this gains a Property, and a Title by Occupancy: But this Manner of gaining Property in Lands has long since been of no Use in England; for Lands now possessed without any Title are in the Crown, and not in him that first enters. Ibid. 218. Though an Estate for another Person's Life, by our antient Laws, may be gotten by Occupancy: As for Example; A. having Lands granted to him for the Life of B. dieth without making any Estate of it; in this Case whosoever first enters into the Land after the Death of A. it is said getteth the Property for the Remainder of the Estate granted to A. for the Life of B. For to the Heir of A. it cannot go, not being an Estate of Inheritance, but only an Estate for another Man's Life; which is not descendable to the Heir, unless he be specially named in the Grant: And the Executors of A. cannot have it, as it is not an Estate Testamentary, that it should go to the Executors as Goods and Chattles; so that in Truth no Man can intitle himself unto those Lands: And therefore the Law preferreth him that first enters, and he is called Occupans, and shall hold the Land during the Life of B. paying the Rent, and performing the Covenants, &c. Bac. Elem. 1. And not only if Tenant per terme d'antier Vie dies, living cestuy que Vie; but if Tenant for his own Life grant over his Estate to another, and the Grantee dies before him, there shall be an Occupant. Co. Lit. 41. 388. A Man cannot be an Occupant but of a void Possession; and it is not every Possession of a Person entering that can make an Occupancy, for it must be such as will maintain Trespass without farther Entry. Vaugh. 191, 192. Carter 65. 2 Keb. 250. There can be no Occupancy by any Person of what another hath a present Right to possess: Occupancy by Law must be of Things which have natural Existence, as of Land, &c. and not of Rents, Advowsons, Fairs, Markets, Tithes, &c. which lie in Grant, and are incorporeal Rights and Estates; and there cannot be an Occupant of a Copyhold Estate. Vaugh. 195. Mod. cap. 66. And Occupancy of Land in our Law now seldom happens; Leases and Grants being generally made to the Lessees or Grantees, and their Heirs, during the Life of Cestuy que Vie, whereby the Lands for the Remainder of the Term descend to the Heir, &c. Wood's Inst. 216. By Statute, any Estate pur antier Vie shall be devisable by Will in Writing; and if no Devise thereof be made, but the Heir become special Occupant, it shall be Affets in his Hands by Descent to pay Debts; and if there be no special Occupant, it shall go to the Executors or Administrators of the Party that had the Estate, and be Affets in their Hands. 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

It hath been adjudged, that an Heir, Executor, &c. shall be charged on this Statute with Payment of Debts only, not Legacies, except devised particularly out of the Estate; and an Estate pur auter Vie of an Intestate, is not distributable. Mich. 8 W. 3. B. R. 2 Salk. 464.

Occupation, (Occupatio) Signifies in our Law Use or Tenure, as we say such Land is in the Tenure or Occupation of such a Man, that is in his Possession or Management: Also it is used for a Trade or Mystery. 12 Car. c. 18. 249. And Occupations at large are taken for Purprestures, Intrusions and Usurpations, and particularly for Usurpations upon the King, by the Stat. de Bigamis, c. 4. 2 Inst. 272.

Occupabit, Is a Writ that lies for him who is ejected out of his Freehold in Time of War; as the Writ Novel Disseisin lies for one disseised in Time of Peace. Ingham.

Odio & Mita, Was a Writ, anciently called Breve de Bono & Malo, directed to the Sheriff to inquire whether a Man committed to Prison upon Suspicion of Murder, were committed on just Cause of Suspicion, or only upon Malice and Ill-will: And if upon the Inquisition it were found that he was Not guilty, then there issued another Writ to the Sheriff to bail him. Reg. Orig. 133. Bract. lib. 3. cap. 20. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 11. But now that Courte is taken away, by the Stat. 28 Ed. 3. c. 9. S. P. C. 77. 2 Inst. 42. 9 Rep. 506.

Oeconomus, Is sometimes taken for an Advocate or Defender; as, Summus secularium Oeconomus & Protector Ecclesiarum. Matt. Paris. Anno 1245.

Oeconomicus, A Word used for the Executor of a Last Will and Testament, as the Person who had the Oeconomy or fiduciary Disposal of the Goods of the Party deceased. Hist. Dunelm. apud Wharton Angl. Sacr. par. 1. pag. 784.

Offence, (Delictum) Is an Act committed against a Law, or omitted where the Law requires it, and punishable by it. West. Symb. And all Offences are Capital, or not so; Capital, those for which the Offender shall lose his Life: And not Capital, where the Offender may forfeit his Lands and Goods, be fined, or suffer corporal Punishment, or both; but not Loss of Life. H. P. C. 2, 126, 134. Capital Offences are comprehended under High Treason, Petit Treason, and Felony: And Offences not Capital include the remaining Part of the Pleas of the Crown, and come under the Title of Misdemeanors. Some Offences are by the Common Law; but most of them are by Statutes.

Offerings, Which are reckoned among personal Tithes, are payable by Custom to the Parson or Vicar of the Parish, either occasionally, as at Sacraments, Marriages, Christnings, Churching of Women, Burials, &c. or at constant Times, as at Easter, Christmas, &c. Count. Pars Compan. 137. Offerings, and all personal Tithes, may be sued for in the Ecclesiastical Courts. Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. Vide Oblations.

Offerings of the King, All Offerings made at the Holy Altar by the King and Queen, are distributed amongst the Poor by the Dean of the Chapel: And there are twelve Days in the Year, called Offering Days, as to these Offerings, viz. Christmas, Easter, Whitsunday, All Saints, New Year's Day, Twelfth-Day, Candlemas, Annunciation, Ascension, Trinity Sunday, St. John Baptist, and Michaelmas-Day: All which are high Festivals. Lex Constitution. 184. The Offering commonly made by King James 1. was a Piece of Gold, having on one Side the Portrait of the King kneeling before the Altar, with four Crowns before him, and circumscribed with this Motto, Quid retribuam Domino pro omnibus quae tribuit mihi? And on the other Side, a Lamb lying near a Lion, with this Inscription, Cor contritum & humilium non despiciet Deus. Ibid.

Offerozium, Is used for a Piece of Silk, or fine Linen, to receive and wrap up the Offerings or occasional Oblations in the Church. Statut. Eccl. S. Paul. London. M. S. fol. 39. — Offertorium esse Sindonem sericeam, seu Linteamen, in quo fidelium Oblationes reponebantur. —

Office, (Officium) Is a Function, by Virtue whereof a Man hath some Employment in the Affairs of another, as of the King, or any common Person: An Office in Fee is that which one hath to him and his Heirs. Kitch. 152. And Offices may be granted in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, Years, &c. But Offices which concern the Administration of Justice, cannot be granted for Years, to go to Executors, &c. 9 Rep. 97. Every Subject is capable of an Office generally by Grant; but if an Office that concerns the Administering or Execution of Justice, &c. be granted to one who is not skilled to execute it, the Grant is void. Cro. Jac. 605. And no Man, though never so skilful, is capable of a judicial Office in Reversion; for notwithstanding a Person may be of Ability to execute the Place at the Time of the Grant of the Reversion, yet before the Office falls, he may become unable and insufficient to perform it: But ministerial Offices may be granted in Reversion, in Fee, for Life, &c. as the Office of Marshal of England, Chamberlain of the Exchequer, Warden of the Fleet, &c. 1 Inst. 3. 11 Rep. 4. 2 Roll. Abr. 286. Officers of the King's Courts are to be sworn to appoint such Ministers under them, for whom they will answer shall be faithful, and such as are sufficient, and attending to the Performance of their respective Businesses. Stat. 2 H. 6. cap. 10. By 12 R. 2. cap. 2. It is Enacted, That no Officer or Minister of the King shall be ordained or made for any Gift, Favour, or Affection, nor shall any be put into Office, but such as are sufficient, a Law (said Sir Edward Coke) worthy to be writ in Letters of Gold, but more worthy to be put in Execution: For certainly Justice will never be duly administered, but when the Officers and Ministers of Justice are of such Quality, and come to their Places in such Manner as by this Law is required. Co. Litt. And by the Stat. 5 & 6 Edw. 6. cap. 16. if any Officers touching the Administration of Justice, or concerning the King's Treasure, &c. shall bargain or sell any of the said Offices, or take any Money, Profit, Reward, &c. for the same, they shall not only forfeit their Estates therein, but every Person so buying, giving or assuring, shall be adjudged disabled to hold the same Office, and all Contracts shall be void, &c. But the two Chief Justices, or Justices of Assize, may grant Offices as before this Act. Sir Robert Vernon Confeſſer in the Reign of King James 1. for a certain Sum of Money did bargain and sell his Place to Sir A. J. and agreed to surrender the same same to the King, to the Intent a Grant might be made to Sir A. J. and he accordingly surrendered, and thereupon Sir A. was by the King's Appointment admitted and sworn Cofferer; and yet it was adjudged by the Lord Chancellor Egerton, and other Justices, that the said Office was void, whereupon Sir A. J. was removed, and another sworn in his Place. Co. Litt. 234. Queen Elizabeth granted the Office of Exigenter of London to one, when there was no Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas; and it was held, that the Grant was void, because the Office was incident to that of Chief Justice, &c. Dyer 257. 4 Rep. 33. The King may not grant an Office to the Prejudice of the Freehold of others in their Offices, which is contrary to Law; and the Judges in such a Case refused to admit an Officer, tho' commanded to do it by Sign Manual. 1 And. 152. A Person who was Remembrancer of the Exchequer, and held that Office by Patent for Life, was made a Baron of that Court; adjudged that the Office of Remembrancer was ipso facto void and determined, because a Man cannot be Judge and Minister in one and the same Court. Dyer 198. Several Offices were never instituted to be used by one Man: And no new Office can be erected with new Fees, or old Offices established with new Fees, without an Act of Parliament; as the Fees amount to a Taxation upon the Subject, who may not be so charged but by Parliament. 2 Inst. 533. 12 Rep. 117. Ancient Offices are to be granted in such Manner as they used to be, unless an Alteration is made by Act of Parliament: If an Officer is constituted by Statute, he hath no greater Authority than the Statute gives him; he cannot prescribe as an Officer at Common Law may. 4 Inst. 75, 146, 267. 4 Rep. 75. If a Man prescribes to an Office, and the Profits thereof, he ought to shew it to be Antiquum Officium. Cro. Jac. 605. And a Fee may belong to an ancient Office, and Debt will lie for it. Lutw. 381. If a Person usurps an Office, the Acts of the Officer are void; but if he comes in by Colour of Election, &c. his Acts shall be binding, though he is only an Officer de facto; for all ministerial and judicial Acts done by an Officer de facto are good. 1 Lutw. 508. Offices of Trust must be personally executed, except granted to be executed by Deputy; and Offices of personal Trust cannot be assigned. Vaugh. 181. There shall be no Survivorship of an Office of Trust, if it be not granted to two Officers, &c. and the Survivor. 2 Mod. 260. Where an Office of Trust is granted to two for their Lives, by the Death of one the Grant is void: But if it were et eorum diutius viventis, the Survivor shall hold, to whom another may be added. 11 Rep. 3, 4. A Man having an Office granted him, to enjoy so long as he behaves well, Quamdiu se bene gesserit, hath an Estate in it for Life. Show. 523, 531. 4 Mod. 167. An Estate in an Office, durante beneplacito, is at the Will of the King only, and may be surrendered, forfeited, &c. 2 Salk. 465. Publick Officers by Patent, cannot be removed at Pleasure; nor may any Officer be thus removed, where he hath any other Fees and Profits belonging to his Office, besides a collateral certain Fee. But private Officers by Grant may be turned out at Pleasure; and so may an Officer for Life, &c. where he hath no other Profit but a collateral certain Fee; as a Bailiff, Receiver, Auditor, &c. yet it is said he must have his Fee. 1 Inst. 233. Litt.

378. 9 Rep. 50. 3 Cro. 59, 60. Non-user of publick Offices, which concern the Administration of Justice, or the Commonwealth, is a Cause of Forfeiture: Though Non-user of it self, without some special Damage, is no Forfeiture of a private Office; and the same may be said of a Refusal to execute the Office upon Request. 9 Rep. 50. 1 Inst. 233. for Mis-user an Office is liable to be forfeited; as if a Steward of a Court, burns the Court-Rolls, takes a Bribe, &c. Wood's Inst. 204. And where a Condition in Law requires Skill and Confidence in Cases of Offices; an Infant or Feme Covert not observing it, forfeit their Interest, whether they come to the Office by Grant, or Discent: But if an Infant or Feme Covert break a Condition in Law, that requires no Skill or Confidence, this is no absolute Forfeiture. 1 Inst. 233. 8 Rep. 44. Officers entrusted with a particular Administration of Justice; as Sheriffs, Coroners, Gaolers, Keepers of Houses of Correction, Constables, &c. neglecting any Part of their Duties, may be fined and imprisoned. Wood 421. All Officers Civil and Military are to take the Oaths, and receive the Sacrament, &c. Stat. 25 Car. 2. and 12 Ann. And no such Office shall be void on the Death of the King, but shall continue six Months, unless superseded, or made void by the next Successor. 1 Ann. c. 8.

Office found. Is where an Inquisition is made to the King's Use of any Thing by Virtue of his Office who inquireth, and it is found by the Inquisition. In this Signification it is used in the Stat. 33 Hen. 8. cap. 20. and Stauford's Prerog. pag. 60. where to traverse an Office, is to traverse an Inquisition taken of Office: And to return an Office, is to return that which is found by Virtue of the Office. Kitch. 177. There are two Kinds of Offices issuing out of the Exchequer by Commission, viz. an Office to intitle the King, in the Thing enquired of; and an Office of Instruction. 6 Rep. 52. And the King by the Common Law is not in Possession of Lands, forfeited for Treason, during the Life of the Offender, without an Office found: But the Lands, whereof a Person attainted of High Treason dies seised of an Estate in Fee, are actually vested in the King, without any Office, because they cannot descend, the Blood being corrupted, and the Freehold shall not be in Abeyance. 2 Hawk. P. C. 448. There may be an Office, and Scire facias, and Seizure on such Office, &c. See Inquisition.

Qdeal, (Ordalium) Is a Saxon Word compounded of Or, Magnum, & Dele, Judicium; and was used for a Kind of Purgation, practised in ancient Times, in the Canon Law called Purgatio vulgaris, whereby the Party purged was judged expers Criminis, or Not guilty. Leg. Edw. Confess. cap. 9. Anciently when an Offender being arraigned pleaded Not guilty, he might chuse whether he would put himself for Trial upon God and the Country, by twelve Men, as they are at this Day, or upon God only; and then it was called the Judgment of God, presuming that he would deliver the Innocent. Terms de Ley 462. 9 Rep. 32. This Trial was two Ways, one by Water, and another by Fire: The Water Ordeal was performed either in hot or cold; in cold Water, the Parties suspected were adjudged innocent, if their Bodies were not born up by the Water contrary to the Course of Nature; in hot Water, they were to put their bare Arms or Legs into scalding Water, which if they brought out without Hurt, they were taken to be innocent of the Crime. They that were tried by the Fire Ordeal, passed bare-footed and blindfold over over nine hot glowing Plough-shares; or were to carry burning Irons in their Hands, usually of one Pound Weight, which was called Simple Ordeal, or of two Pounds which was duplex, or of three Pounds Weight which was triplex Ordaliū; and accordingly as they escaped, they were judged innocent or nocent, acquitted or condemned: this Fire Ordeal was for Freeman, and Persons of better Condition; and the Water Ordeal for Bondmen and Rusticks. — Homo Liber per ferrum candens, Rusticus per Aquam. Glanv. lib. 14. cap. 1. And the horrible Trial by Fire Ordeal, in the first Degree, Queen Emma, Mother of Edward the Confessor, underwent on a Suspicion of her Chastity: Also an Example of the second Kind is mentioned in our Books of a Company of Persons suspected to be Stealers of the King's Deer. in the Reign of King Will. 2. who having carried burning Irons without Injury, on its being reported to the King, he received it with a remarkable Indignation; and replied, Quid est id? Deus est justus Judex: Pereat qui deinceps hoc crediderit.

The Saxons, besides the Trial by Combat, commonly used their Fire and Water Ordeals; but this Ordalian Law was condemned by Pope Stephen 2. and afterwards here totally abolished by Parliament, so as to be no Trials but by Jury. Rot. Pat. Anno 3 Hen. 3.

Orders, Are of several Sorts, and by divers Courts; as of the Chancery, King's Bench, &c. Orders of the Court of Chancery, either of Course or otherwise, are obtained on the Petition or Motion of one of the Parties in a Cause, or of some other interested in or affected by it; and they are sometimes made upon Hearings, and sometimes by Consent of Parties. Pract. Solic. 26. They are to be pronounced in open Court, and drawn up by the Register from his Notes; and if there be any Difficulty in adjusting the Notes, a Summons is given by the Register for the Clerk or Solicitor of the other Side to attend, whereupon they are settled, or the Court is applied to, if it cannot be otherwise done: And before the Orders are entred and passed by the Register, the other Side hath four Days allowed to object against them, for which Purpose Copies are delivered; and when they are perfected, they are to be served on the Parties, or the Clerk or Solicitor employed by them. Ibid. If an Order is of Course, the Solicitor usually draws up the Notes or Minutes, and gives them to the Register's Clerk, to draw up the Order from; and when the Order is drawn up, it is to be entred by the Entering Clerk, which must be within eight Days from the Pronouncing; and then the Register passes and signs it, after which is the Service, &c. For not obeying an Order, personally served, a Party may be committed.

Orders of the King's Bench, Are Rules made by the Court in Causes there depending; and when they are drawn up and entred by the Clerk of the Rules, they become Orders of the Court. 2 Litt. 261. This Court doth not take Notice of Orders made in Chancery, nor in any other Court, so as to be bound by them; but will proceed according to their own Rules and Orders. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. And if a Cause be put in the Paper of Causes, that it may be spoke unto in Matter of Law, by the Order of the Court; and the Attorney in the Cause doth not attend at the Day, the Cause is to be put out of the Paper, and not be put in again that Term; except very good Cause be shewed. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. 2 Litt. 261. The Court of King's Bench may quash any Orders made at the publick or private Sessions of the Peace; or by any other Commissioners, if they find good Reason for it. Ibid.

Orders of Justices of Peace. Justices of Peace that make Orders, must be said in such Orders to be Justices of the County, for residing in the County is not sufficient; but they need not be of the Division: It must also appear that one of the Justices was of the Quorum. 2 Salk. 474, 480. The Sessions of the Peace, during all their Sessions, may alter or revoke their Orders, and make a new Order to vacate the former, though it be drawn up; as Judgments in B. R. may be altered during the same Term, the Sessions as well as the Term being in Law accounted as one Day. Ibid. 606. And the Quarter Sessions is not bound to set forth the Reason of their Orders and Judgments, no more than other Courts. Ibid. 607. See Poor.

Ordinance, (Ordinatio) Is a Law, Decree, or Statute, variously used. Litt. Dist.

Ordinance of the Forest, (Ordinatio Foreste) Is a Statute made touching Matters and Causes of the Forest, Anno 34 Edw. 1.

Ordinance of Parliament, Is said to be the same with Act of Parliament; for in the Parliament Rolls, Acts of Parliament are often called Ordinances, and Ordinances Acts. But originally there seems to be this Difference between them; that an Ordinance was but a temporary Act, by Way of Prohibition, which the Commons might alter or amend at their Pleasure; and an Act of Parliament is a perpetual Law, not to be altered but by King, Lords and Commons. Rot. Parl. 37 Edw. 3. Pryn's Animadver. on 4 Inst. 13. And Sir Edward Coke says, that an Ordinance of Parliament is to be distinguished from an Act; in as much as the later can be only made by the King and the three Estates, whereas the former is by one or two of them. Co. Litt.

Ordinary, (Ordinarius) Is a Civil Law Term for any Judge that hath Authority to take Cognizance of Causes in his own Right, and not by Deputation; but by the Common Law, it is taken for him that hath ordinary or exempt and immediate Jurisdiction in Causes Ecclesiastical. Co. Lit. 344. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 19. 31 Edw. 3. cap. 11. and 21 H. 8. cap. 5. This Name is applied to a Bishop, that hath original Jurisdiction; and an Archbishop is the ordinary of the whole Province, to visit and receive Appeals from inferiour Jurisdictions, &c. 2 Inst. 398. 9 Rep. 41. Wood's Inst. 25. An Archdeacon is an Ordinary; and Ordinaries are empowered to grant Administration of Intestate's Estates, &c. by Stat. 31 Edw. 3. cap. 11. Anciently Clerks accused of Crimes were delivered to the Ordinary, and the Bodies of such Clerks kept in the Ordinary's Prison, until they had been tried before him by a Jury of twelve Clerks; and if condemned, they were liable to no greater Punishment than Degradation, Loss of Goods, and the Profits of their Lands; unless they had been guilty of Apostacy, &c. This was when they had the Privilege of being tried only by Ecclesiastical Judges; which was so far indulged them, that after they had been once delivered to the Ordinary, they could not be remanded to any Temporal Court, until the Stat.

8 Eliz. cap. 4. 2 Hawk. P. C. 361.

Ordinary of Newgate, Is one who is Attendant in ordinary upon the condemned Malefactors in that Prison, to prepare them for Death; and he records the Behaviour of such Persons.

Ordination of Clergy. No Man is capable of taking any Parsonage, Vicarage, Benefice, or other Ecclesiastical Promotion, or Dignity whatsoever, but must be ordained a Priest, to qualify him for the same. A Clerk is to be Twenty-three Years old, and have Deacons Orders, before he can be admitted into any Share of the Ministry: And a Priest must be Twenty-four Years of Age, before he shall be admitted into Orders to preach, or to administer the Sacraments; but the Archbishop may dispense with one to be made Deacon at what Age he pleases, though he cannot with one that is to be made a Priest. 13 Eliz. Deacons and Priests are to be ordained only upon the four Sundays immediately following the Ember-Weeks, except upon urgent Occasions; and it is to be done in the Cathedral or Parish Church where the Bishop resides, in Time of Divine Service, and in the Presence of the Archdeacon, Dean, and two Prebendaries, or of four other grave Divines.
And no Bishop shall admit any Person into Orders, without a Title, or Assurance of being provided for; and before any are admitted, the Bishop shall examine them in the Presence of the Ministers, that assist him at the Imposition of Hands; on Pain, if he admits any not qualified, &c. of being suspended by the Archbishop from making either Deacons or Priests for two Years.
Can. 31, 34. If any Impediment or Crime be objected against one that is to be made either Priest or Deacon, at the Time that he is to be ordained, the Bishop is bound to surcease from ordaining him, until he shall be found clear of that Impediment or Crime; and it is generally held, that whatever are good Causes of Deprivation, are also sufficient Causes to deny Admission to Orders; as Incontinency, Illiterature, Perjury, Forgery, Simony, Heresy, Outlawry, Bastardy, &c. 2 Inst. 631, 5 Rep. A Person to be ordained Priest, must bring a Testimonial of four Persons, known to the Bishop, of his Life and Doctrine; and be able to give an Account of his Faith in Latine: And a Deacon is not to be made a Priest, unless he produce to the Bishop such a Testimonial of his Life, &c. and that he hath been found faithful and diligent in executing the Office of a Deacon. A Bishop shall not make any one a Deacon and Minister, both together upon one Day; for there must be some Time of Trial of the Behaviour of a Deacon in his Office, before he is admitted to the Order of Priesthood; which Time is generally the Space of a Year, or it may be a shorter Time on reasonable Cause allowed by the Bishop: And Priests and Deacons are not only to subscribe the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, but take the Oath of the King's Supremacy, &c. as directed and altered by Stat. 1 W. & M. A Priest by his Ordination receives Authority to preach the Word, and administer the holy Sacraments, &c. (but he may not preach without Licence from the Bishop, Archbishop, or one of the Universities):
And Ordination of a Priest is thus performed;
After Veni Creator is sung, and some Prayers are read, the Bishop with the Divines present, laying their Hands severally on the Priest's Head, the Bishop pronounces the Words following.

Form of the Ordination of a Priest.

Recieve the Holy Ghost for the Office and Work of a Priest in the Church of God, now committed to Thee by the Imposition of our Hands; whose Sins Thou dost forgive, are forgiven, and whose Sins Thou dost retain, are retained; and be Thou a faithful Dispenser of the Word of God, and of his Holy Sacrament, in the Name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. — Then the Bishop delivers a Bible to him with these Words, viz.
Take Thou Authority to preach the Word of God, and to minister the Sacraments in the Congregation, where Thou shalt be lawfully appointed.

The Stat. 31 Eliz. cap. 6. punishes corrupt Ordination of Priests, &c.

Ordines Majores & Minores. The Holy Orders of Priest, Deacon, and Subdeacon, any of which were a Qualification for Admission to an Ecclesiastical Benefice, were called Ordines Majores; and the inferior Orders of Reader, Chantor, Psalmist, &c. termed Ordines Minores; for which the Persons so ordained, had their Prima Tonsura, different from the Tonsura Cleri- calis.

Ordinum fug tibi, Signified those of the Religious who deserted their Houses, and throwing off the Habits, renounced their particular Order, in Contempt of their Oath and other Obligations.

851. The Cluniacs likewise wore Black. Matt.

frizled or embroidered, anciently made and used in England, worn by our Kings and Nobility:

led Orfraies, because adorned with such Works of Gold. Mention is made of those Orfraies in the Records of the Tower.

Island. 31 Ed. 3. Stat. 3. cap. 2.

Orgild, (Sine Compensatione) Without Recompense; as where no Satisfaction was to be made for the Death of a Man killed, so that he was judged lawfully slain. Spelm.

Original. In the Court of King's Bench, the usual Original Writ issued in Actions, is for Action of Trespass upon the Case; and this Court doth not issue Originals in Actions of Debt, Covenant, or Account, &c. Whereas the Court of Common Pleas, proceeds by Original in all Kinds of Actions: But to arrest and sue a Party to Outlawry, it is made Use of by both Courts. And for Originals in

in Trespas on the Case, there is a Fine payable to the Crown, where the Damages are laid above forty Pounds in Proportion to the Damage. Practif. Solic. 254, 255. The Original is the Foundation of the Capias, and all subsequent Process; the Return whereof is generally the Teste of the Capias: Though the Capias may be taken out before the Original, by leaving the Præcipe with the Filizer, who will make out a Capias upon it, and afterwards carry it to the Curfitor to make an Original; and the Filizer when it is returned, is to file it with the Custos Brevium. Proceedings on Original are thus, — When the Defendant is arrested and appears, the Plaintiff's Attorney is to deliver a Copy of his Declaration to the Defendant's Attorney; and the Term he declares, after Rules given to plead, he calls upon him for his Plea, and draws his Replication, &c. He also makes up the Paper-Book, and delivers a Copy of it to the Defendant's Attorney: Then if it be an Issue, he gives Notice of Trial, signs his Venire Distr. fur, &c. and seals the Record of Nisi prius; when he summoneth his Witnesses, prepares Breviates, and goes to Trial as in Actions by Bill: After the Trial is over, the Issue must be entered in due Time on the Filizer's Roll; and Rules given to sign Judgment, whereupon Judgment is entered, and Execution made out for the Party recovering. Pract. Solic. 256. There are new Originals to warrant Judgment, and in Cases of Outlawry, Writs of Error, &c. And if a new Original be returned any Time before Judgment is signed, it is soon enough. Ibid. 319. An Original in Case, &c. sets forth the whole Declaration of the Plaintiff; and the Writ runs thus: Georgius Dei Gra. &c. Vic. S. Salutem. Si A. B. fecer. te securum de Clam. suo prof. tunc pone per vad. & Salv. pleg. &c. quod sit coram nob. apud Westm. die, &c. Quare cum prædict A. Die & Anno apud Paroch. &c. Indebitat. fuisset C. D. &c. in &c. libr. pro, &c. eidem A. ad spial. Instanc. & requisit. ipsius, &c. ante Tempus illud vendit. & deliberat. Et sic inde Indebitat. existen. &c. fidel. promisit, &c. (as in the Declaration to the End) Et habeas nomina pleg. & hoc Breve. Teste, &c. See Writ.

Orphan, (Orphanus) Is a Fatherless Child; and in the City of London there is a Court of Record established for the Care and Government of Orphans. 4 Inst. 248. The Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London have the Custody of Orphans, under Age and unmarried, of Freemen that die; and the Keeping of all their Lands and Goods: And if they commit the Custody of an Orphan to any Man, he shall have the Writ of Ravishment of Ward, if the Orphan be taken away; or the Mayor and Aldermen may imprison the Offender until he produces the Infant. 2 Danv. Abr. 311. If any one without the Consent of the Court of Aldermen, marries such an Orphan under the Age of Twenty-one Years, though out of the City, they may fine and imprison him, until paid. 1 Lev. 32. 1 Ventr. 178. Executors and Administrators of Freemen dying, are to exhibit true Inventories of their Estates before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen in the Court of Orphans, and must give Security to the Chamberlain of London and his Successors by Recognisance for the Orphan's Part; which if they refuse to do, they may be committed to Prison until they obey. Wood's Inst. 522. If an Orphan, who by the Custom of London is under the Government of the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, sue in the Spiritual Court for any Legacy, &c. a Prohibition shall be granted, because the Lord Mayor and Aldermen only have Jurisdiction of them. 5 Rep. 73. But an Orphan may waive the Benefit of suing in the Court of Orphans, and file a Bill in Equity against any one for Discovery of the personal Estate, &c. The Lord Mayor and Commonalty of London being answerable for the Orphans Money paid into the Chamber of the City, and by some Accidents become indebted to the Orphans and their Creditors, in a greater Sum than they could pay; by Stat. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 10. it is Enacted, that the Lands, Markets, Fairs, &c. belonging to the City of London, shall be chargeable for raising eight Thousand Pounds per Ann. to be appropriated for a perpetual Fund for Orphans; and towards Raising such a Fund, the Mayor and Commonalty may assess two Thousand Pounds yearly upon the personal Estates of Inhabitants of the City, and levy the same by Distress, &c. Also a Duty is granted of four Shillings per Tun on Wines imported, and on Coals; and every Apprentice shall pay 2 s. 6 d. when he is bound; and 5 s. when he is admitted a Freeman; for raising of the said Fund: The Fund is to be applied for Payment of the Debts due to Orphans, by Interest after the Rate of 4 l. per Cent. &c. And no Person shall be compelled by Virtue of any Custom of the City, to pay into the Chamber of London any Sum of Money or personal Estate belonging to an Orphan of any Freeman for the future. 5 & 6 W. & M.

Osculum Pacis. A Custom formerly of the Church, that in the Celebration of the Mass, after the Priest had spoke these Words, viz. Pax Domini vobiscum, the People kissed each other, was called Osculum Pacis: Afterwards when this Custom was abrogated, another was introduced; which was whilst the Priest spoke the aforementioned Words, a Deacon offered the People an Image to kiss, which was commonly called Pacem. Mat. Paris. Anno 1100.

Oberfeyted, (From the Sax. Ofer, i. e. super, & Cythan, offendere) Is used where a Person is convicted of any Crime; that it is found upon the Offender: This Word is mentioned in the Laws of Edw. apud Brompton pag. 836.

Oberhernissa, Contumacy, or Contempt of the Court. In the Laws of Adelftan, cap. 25. it is used for Contumacy: But in a Council held at Winchester, Anno 1027, it signifies a Forfeiture; So Leg. Æthelred. cap. 27.

Oberfamella, Seems to have been an ancient Fine, before the Statute for Hue and Cry, laid upon those, who, hearing of a Murder or Robbery, did not pursue the Malefactor. 3 Inst. 116.

Si quis furi obviamerit, & sine vociferatione gratis eum dimiserit, emendet secundum Weram ipsius furis, vel plena lada se adlegiet, quod cum eo falsum nesciuit: Si quis audito clamore supersedit, reddat Oberfamella Regis, aut plene se laudiet. Lib. Rub. cap. 36.

Overseers of the Poor, Are publick Officers created by the Stat. 43 Eliz. cap. 2. to provide for the Poor of every Parish; and are sometimes two, three, or four, according to the Largeness of Parishes. Churchwardens by this Statute are called Overseers of the Poor, and they join with the Overseers in making a Poors Rate, &c. But the Churchwardens having distinct Business of their own, usually leave the Care of the Poor to the Overseers only; though anciently they were the sole Overseers of the Poor. Dalt. ch. 27. Wood's Inst. 95. See Poor.

Overt-Act, (Apertum factum) An open Act, which by Law must be manifestly proved. 3 Inst. 12. Some Overt-act is to be alledged in every Indictment for High Treason: Such as for Treason in compassing the Death of the King, the Providing Arms to effect it, &c. 3 Inst. 6, 12. H. P. C. 11. And no Evidence shall be admitted of any Overt-act, that is not expressly laid in the Indictment, by Stat. 7 W. 3. Vide Treason.

Overt-Word, Is an open plain Word, not to be mistaken. Stat. 1 Mar. Sess. 2. c. 3.

Ousted, (From the Fr. Oster, to put out) As ousted of Possession, is where one is removed or put out of Possession. 3 Cro. Rep. 349.

Ouster le Main, (Amovere manum) Signifies a Livery of Land out of the King's Hands, or a Judgment given for him that sued a Monstrans de droit; and when it appeared upon the Matter, that the King had no Title to the Land he seized, Judgment was given in the Chancery that the King's Hands be removed, and thereupon an Amoveas manum was awarded to the Escheator, to restore the Land; it being as much as if the Judgment were given that the Party should have his Land again. Staundf. Prærog. cap. 24. 28 Ed. 1. cap. 19. It was also taken for the Writ granted upon a Petition for this Purpose. F. N. B. 256. And is written Ouster le Maine, in the 25 Hen. 8. cap. 22. But all Wardships, Liveries, and Ouster le mains, &c. are taken away by Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 24.

Ouster le Mer, (Fr. Oultre, i. e. Ultra, & le Mer, Mare) Is a Cause of Essoin or Excuse, if a Man appear not in Court on Summons, for that he was then beyond the Seas.

Outfangtheft, (From the Sax. Ut, i. e. Extra, fang, captus, & Theof, fur) Eur extra Captus, quem Dominus, quanquam in alieno fundo comprehensum, in Curiam tamen suam revocat, ibique judicat. Litt. It is a Liberty or Privilege, as used in the ancient Common Law, whereby a Lord was enabled to call any Man dwelling in his Manor, and taken for Felony in another Place out of his Fee, to Judgment in his own Court. Rastal. Stat. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 15.

Outhest, Is the same with Outborn; which is a Calling Men out to the Army, by the Sound of an Horn.

Out-houses, Are those belonging and adjoining to Dwelling-houses; and Taking away any Money, Goods, &c. from such Out-houses, in the Day-time of 5 s. Value, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy. Dalt. c. 99. Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 15. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. See Burglary.

Outland. The Saxon Thanes divided their hereditary Lands into Inland, such as lay nearest to their own Dwelling, and which they kept to their own Use; and Outland, which lay beyond the Demeans, and was granted out to Tenants, but merely at the Will and Pleasure of the Lord, like to Copyhold Estates. This Outland they subdivided into two Parts, whereof one Part they disposed among such as attended on their Persons, called Theodens or lesser Thanes; and the other Part they allotted to their Husbandmen, or Churls. Spelm. de Feud. cap. 5.

Outlaw, (Sax. Utlaghe, Lat. Utlagatus) One deprived of the Benefit of the Law, and out of the King's Protection. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47. If where a Person is called into the Law, after an original Writ, and three Writs of Capias, Alias, and Pluries, returned by the Sheriff Non est inventus, and Proclamation made for him to appear, &c. he contemptuously refuses to appear, he is then outlawed: And in former Times no Person was outlawed but for Felony, the Punishment whereof being Death, any Man might kill an Outlaw as a Wolf; but this was prohibited by Statute, and none but the Sheriff by lawful Warrant, may put any Man outlawed for Felony to Death, on Pain to suffer the like Punishment, as if he had killed any other Person. Braff. lib. 5. 2 Aff. pl. 3. 1 Inst. 128. A Woman cannot be an Outlaw, because Women are not sworn to the King as Men are, to be ever within the Law; therefore they are said to be waived, as not regarded but forsaken of the Law. F. N. B. 161. And an Infant under Twenty-one Years old, his Age to take the Oath of Allegiance, cannot be outlawed. When a Person is restored to the King's Protection, he is Inlawed again.

Outlawry, (Utlagaria) Is where a Person is outlawed, that he loses the Benefit of a Subject. Process of Outlawry lies in all Appeals, whether of Felony or Maihem, and in Indictments of Treason, or Felony; and also Indictments of Trespass Vi & Armis, Conspiracy, or Deceit; but not on any Indictment for a Crime of an inferior Nature: And it lies not in any Action on a Statute, unless it is given by such Statute, either expressly or impliedly: But by divers Statutes, Outlawry lies in many Civil Actions, as in Debt, Case, Account, Covenant, &c. And Outlawries are become frequent in personal Actions. Finch 346, 355. 1 Inst. 128. 2 Hawk. P. C. 302, 303.

As by committing Felony, by the Common Law, a Man forfeited all his Lands, Goods, and Chattels; so by an Outlawry for Felony, at this Time he forfeits the same, 1 Inst. 128. Outlawry in personal Actions is by Statute only, in which Case the Goods and Chattels of the Person are only liable, as those alone were chargeable in personal Actions, and they are forfeited to the King, who shall likewise have the Pernancy of the Profits of the Chattels Real; tho' this seems by a Consequence only, for that the Party being extra Legem, is therefore incapable to take the Profits himself. 3 Salk. 263. Upon an Outlawry on a Judgment in Debt, &c. the Person immediately forfeits his Goods and Chattels to the King; but not the Profits of his Lands or his Chattels Real until Inquisition taken: And Alienation after an Outlawry, and before Inquisition, is a good Bar to the King, as to the Perception of the Profits. Raym. 17. Hardr. 101. 1 Salk. 395. If after Outlawry in a personal Action, and before Seizure, the Party outlawed levy a Fine, the Cognisee shall hold against the King: But if the Seizure be before the Fine levied, it is good for the King. 1 Lev. 33. By a Feoffment made before a Seizure, upon an Outlawry, the King is ousted of the Pernancy of the Profits. Ibid. An outlawed Person was sued in the Exchequer by Bill, to discover his real and personal Estate, for the Benefit of the King; and upon a Demurrer to the Bill, because the Defendant is not bound to accuse himself, it was over-ruled, the King having a Title by the Outlawry, which is quasi a Judgment for him. Hardr. 22. And the King may dispose of the Land it self of a Person outlawed, by the Course of the Exchequer. Raym. 17. In Ejectment, Lessee for Years was indicted, and Outlawry had against him; and it being found by Inquisition that he was possessed of his Term at the Time of the Outlawry, the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer sold the Lease for a valuable Consideration: Then the Outlawry was reversed; and Judgment given that he should be restored to all which he had lost by Reason of the Outlawry; and though the Term was lawfully sold, and the Possession in another, yet it was held that the Lessee shall have his Term again, for otherwise the Judgment upon the Reversal would be in vain, as by that he is to be restored to all which he lost, &c. which cannot be unless he have his Lease again. 1 And. 277. A Lessee was outlawed for Felony; he assigned his Term, and then the Outlawry was reversed, and the Assignee brought Trespass for the Profits taken between the Outlawry and the Assignment; and it was adjudged good, because the Outlawry being reversed, it was as if there was none, and there is no Record of it. Cro. Eliz. 270, 278. The King on Reversal of an Outlawry, may grant Restitution de Omnibus quibus nobis non est Responsum: And if there be Lands, there must be a Scire facias to the Lords mediate and immediate, to shew Cause why the Party should not have Restitution. 2 Lev. 49. 2 Salk. 495. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1217, 1218. A. B. was a Bankrupt, and sometime afterwards being outlawed, the King made a Lease of the Profits of his Lands, and granted his Goods; afterwards a Commission of Bankruptcy was taken out against him, but it was five Years after he had committed the Act of Bankruptcy; resolved, that by the Outlawry he forfeits his Goods and Chattels, his Leases for Years, and his Trust in such Leases, and the Profits of his Freehold Lands; but that this Outlawry cannot defeat any Interest which his Creditors had acquired in the Estate, because he voluntarily suffered himself to be outlawed. 1 Salk. 108. Sid. 115. A Man was indebted to one by Judgment, and to another on Bond, and was outlawed upon the Bond, and his Lands seized; and the Question being, whether the Judgment Creditor could extend those Lands, it was held that the Outlawry shall be preferred, except the Judgment Creditor could shew any Practice between the Obligor and Oblige. 2 Salk. 495. A Person cannot be fined, upon an Outlawry; but is punishable by Forfeiture of his Goods and Chattels. Ibid. 494. By Outlawry, a Man is disabled to sue; of which all Men may take Advantage by Pleading, until the Outlawry is reversed. Litt. 197. 1 Inst. 122, 128. One outlawed cannot prosecute in any Court, unless it be to reverse his Outlawry. Cro. Jac. 425. But he may make a Will, and have Executors, or an Administrator. Cro. Eliz. 575, 150. And an Executor may reverse an Outlawry of the Testator, where he was not lawfully outlawed. 1 Leon. 325. An Executor or Administrator outlawed is not disabled to sue Actions in Right of the Testator or Intestate: Also a Mayor and Commonalty may sue for a Corporation, notwithstanding the Outlawry of the Mayor. 6 Rep. 53. On a Writ of Error to reverse an Outlawry, the Outlawry is no good Plea in Disability of the Person: But Outlawry may be pleaded in Bar to Audita querela. Sid. 43. In Assumpsit upon a Bill of Exchange, &c. the Defendant pleaded an Outlawry in Bar; and on Demurrer to this Plea it was objected, that it ought to be pleaded in Abatement, because in this Action Damages are to be recovered, which are uncertain, and therefore not forfeitable by Outlawry; But it was adjudged, that it is pleadable in Bar, for the Debt is certain, though it is to be recovered in Damages. 3 Lev. 29. And in Indebitatus Assumpsit and Quantum meruit, for Meat, Drink, &c. Plea of Outlawry by the Defendant is good; though in this Action Damages are only recovered, which are uncertain; but it is the Consideration which creates the Debt or Duty, notwithstanding the Recompence is to be had by Way of Damages. 2 Ventr. 232. A Defendant pleaded an Outlawry in Bar to Action of Trover, and held good, though the Plaintiff in such Action could only recover uncertain Damages; for the Action is founded on the Property of the Goods, and these being forfeited by the Outlawry, the Plea is good. 3 Leon. 205. In Action of Assault and Battery, the Plaintiff recovered in C. B. and upon Writ of Error in B. R. the Judgment was affirmed; and thereupon the Plaintiff brought a Scire facias to shew Cause Quare Executionem non haberet, to which the Defendant after an Imparlance pleaded an Outlawry before the Judgment had, in Bar to the Execution; and it was ruled a good Plea; in this Case, though before the Judgment nothing is forfeited, yet a certain Sum being recovered in the Action, that is forfeited by the Outlawry had against the Plaintiff. W. Jones 238. Nelf. Abr. 1219. A Plaintiff delivered his Declaration in Trinity-Term, the Defendant imparled to Michaelmas-Term, and in the long Vacation the Plaintiff was outlawed; and then in Michaelmas-Term the Defendant pleaded this Outlawry in Bar to the Action, but did not say, that it was after the last Continuance, for which

which Reason the Plaintiff demurred; but the Plea was adjudged good, since the Record of the Outlawry doth appear. 5 Mod. 11. Where an Outlawry is pleaded, it must be Sub pede Sigilli, otherwise the Plaintiff may refuse it; but if he accepts the Plea, he shall not afterwards demur for that Cause. 1 Salk. 217. And how to plead an Outlawry in the same Court, or in another; and before, or after Judgment. Lutw. 40, 110, 111. An Attorney brought an Action of Debt by Bill of Privilege, and after Judgment the Defendant was outlawed, who brought a Writ of Error to reverse it; and it was adjudged that Process of Outlawry did not lie upon such Judgment, because there was no Capias in the original Action. 1 Leon. 229. A Judgment in Debt was had against two Defendants, and a Capias ad satisfaciendum sued forth against one of them, upon which he was outlawed; and afterwards he brought a Writ of Error to reverse the Outlawry, and assigned for Error that it ought to have been awarded against both; and so it was held. Cro. Eliz. 648. Two Persons were outlawed, one of them moved, that upon filing common Bail he might have Leave to reverse the Outlawry; and adjudged, that the Writ of Error to reverse it, must be brought in the Name of both the Defendants, and where one appears, the other is to be summoned and severed, and then it may be reversed as to him who appears, but he must give Bail to appear and answer the Action. 2 Salk. 496. An Outlawry grounded upon an Indictment on the Statute against Forcible Entry, preferred against several Persons, may be reversed as to some of the Parties, and stand good as to others that are outlawed, upon the same Indictment: For the Outlawries against them are several and not entire, and the Proceedings to the Outlawry may be good as to some of them, and as to the others may be not good. Hill. 22 Car. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 263. If a Party outlawed comes in gratis upon the Return of the Exigent, Alias, or Pluries he may be admitted by Motion to reverse the Outlawry, without putting in Bail: If he comes in by Cepi Corpus, he shall not be admitted to reverse the Outlawry without appearing in Person, as in such Case he was obliged to do at Common Law; or putting in Bail with the Sheriff for his Appearance upon the Return of the Cepi Corpus, and for doing what the Court shall order: Appearing by Attorney is an Indulgence by the Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 18. And the Bail is to be special or common, in this as in other Cases; but Treason and Felony are excepted out of the Act. 2 Salk. 496. It is said that on Outlawry the Party ought to appear in Person, and submit himself to his Trial; and it must be ex gratia; if he is admitted to assign Errors before. 3 Salk. 263. Persons outlawed for Felony cannot be bailed, being attainted in Law; they may appear in Person, and plead Error in Avoidance of the Outlawry, &c. 2 Inst. 187. H. P. C. 101, 105. Upon Outlawry in Treason or Felony, it may be reversed by Writ of Error, or Plea; and it has been observed, that few Outlawries for Treason, Felony or Trespas, are valid, because the Statutes relating to the same are not pursued, as the Statutes. 1 H. 5. cap. 5. 6 H. 6. cap. 1. 8 H. 6. cap. 10. By the Stat. 5 Edw. 6. cap. 11. Outlawry against one for Treason, being out of the Realm, or beyond Sea, shall be good in Law: And if the Party within one Year after the Outlawry, or Judgment thereon, shall yield himself to the Chief Justice of England, and traverse the Indictment whereupon he was outlawed, he shall be admitted to such Traverse, and being acquit shall be discharged of such Outlawry. Since this Statute, and the 26 H. 8. c. 13. In Case of Treason, one is barred of his Writ of Error, if he does not come in within a Year after the Outlawry, while he was out of the Realm, or beyond Sea: And when an Outlawry of Treason or Felony is reversed, the Party must plead to the Indictment. Wood's Inst. 659. It hath been adjudged that if a Man commits a Murder, and after the Exigent awarded against him he flieth out of the Realm, and then is outlawed, he shall not reverse it for that Cause, because he fled on Purpose to avoid the Law, and therefore by his Absence he shall not have the Benefit of the Law; but if the Attorney General, &c. confess that he was beyond Sea both before and after he was outlawed, the Outlawry may be reversed. 2 Cro. 464. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1222, 1223. In a Civil Cause, if one appears before he is returned outlawed, he may supersede the Exigent, &c. And where a Defendant is beyond Sea, in Prison, &c. the Award of the Exigent may be reversed. As Suing to the Outlawry is practised only where a Defendant is not easy to be taken, or hath not sufficient Estate in the County to be summoned; if where the Party is well known, is sufficient, and may be arrested, the Plaintiff outlaw him, he shall be ordered to reverse it at his own Expence. But where Motion was made upon Affidavit, that the Defendant lived publicly, and therefore to order the Plaintiff to reverse the Outlawry at his own Charge, it was not granted; because the Charge is small in C. B. to reverse an Outlawry, viz. but 16 s. 8 d. But in B. R. it is very chargeable. 2 Salk. 495. 2 Nelf. 1224. A Defendant was actually in Execution in the Fleet at the Suit of the Plaintiff in another Action, and yet he outlawed him; and upon Affidavit of this Matter the Plaintiff was ordered to reverse the Outlawry at his own Charge. Ibid. Where a Person would reverse an Outlawry, he must have an Attorney of Record to undertake an Appearance to a new Original; and put in special Bail, if the Debt or Damage amount to 10 l. or above: And if it be an Outlawry after Judgment, it cannot be reversed until Satisfaction is acknowledged by the Plaintiff on Record; or the Defendant hath brought the Money into Court. If an Outlawry be reversed, the Plaintiff may declare against the Defendant for the same Cause of Action in two Terms, upon a new Original, and in another County than that where the Action was first laid. 3 Lev. 245. But if the Plaintiff proceeds not in two Terms after Notice, the Defendant shall have Costs. In the Reversing of Outlawries, Proceedings may be by Motion to inform the Court of some Fault; or by Writ of Error, &c. And an Outlawry may be reversed, where the County-Court Days are mistaken in the Proclamations; if sufficient Time is not allowed between any of them; the Party is misnamed, or the Sheriff's Name omitted or mistaken; by any Error found in the Return of the Proclamation, or for Want of filing it; Want of Returns, and Mistakes in the Writs of Capias, Alias, &c. And so if the Exigent and Proclamation do not go forth to the County where the Party dwells; if there be no Warrant of Attorney filed for the Plaintiff the same Term sued forth, &c. 1 Inst. 128. 2 Inst. 670. When a Defendant is outlawed in a Civil Action in B. R. if the Proclamation is not filed, the Defendant may reverse the Outlawry without any Writ of Error, by Pleading no Proclamation filed; and upon the Custos Brevium's Attending the Court with the File of Writs, whereby it appears that the Proclamation is not filed, the Court will reverse the Outlawry; but if the Proclamation be filed, then he must bring his Writ of Error to reverse it. 2 Lill. Abr. 263. If a Husband and Wife are returned Utlagati fuerunt, as the Wife ought to be waived, this Error may be avoided by Exception, on a Motion to the Court in the same Term in which they were outlawed; but not afterwards without Writ of Error. 2 Bulst. 213. If the Names of Coroners are not put to the Judgment of Outlawry; or it is not said Coronatoris Comitatus, &c. it is Error, for which the Outlawry may be reversed. 1 Roll. Rep. 266. 2 Cro. 528. 2 Roll. Rep. 82. The Court of B. R. will not reverse an Outlawry, though both Parties consent, except there be Error in the Outlawry; the King being concerned as well as the Parties. 2 Lill. 262. Judgment in Outlawry is given by the Coroners of the County; for after the Defendant is quinto exactus, and maketh Default, the Judgment is Ideo utlagetur per Judicium Coronatorum: In London it is pronounced by the Recorder; per Judicium Recordatoris, &c. 1 Inst. 238.

To sue a Person to Outlawry, in Debt, Trespass, &c. in B. R. the two Chief Terms for it are Easter and Michaelmas, and Care is to be taken not to begin in Hilary-Term, for then the Defendant will not be outlawed in less than four Terms, by Reason of the Shortness of Easter Vacation; but if you commence your Suit in any other Term, the Outlawry will be finished in three Terms, the Original being returnable the first Return of the Term: And in London, one may sue to the Outlawry three Times in the Year, because the Hustings, wherein Proclamation is to be made, are oftener held than the County-Court in the Country; for which Reason in suing to the Outlawry, most Actions are laid in London. In this Action, first a Præcipe is to be made out, if it be for Debt, or a Pone in Case, Trespass, &c. And having carried it to the Curfitor of the County wherein the Action is laid, he makes the Original thereupon; which you are to carry to the Filizer of the County, who will make out a Capias, Alias, and Pluries, or for Dispatch you may make them out your self; all of which must have fifteen Days between the Date and Return, and are return'd Non est Invent. of Course, and filed with the Custos Brevium. When the Capias, Alias, and Pluries are returned, the Pluries is to be carried to the Exigent of the County, who will make out your Exigent and Proclamation, which is to be sent down to the Sheriff of the County where the Defendant lives; and the Exigent being carried to the proper Sheriffs, you call for their Returns at the Time when returnable, allowing five County-Court Days between the Teste and Return of the Exigent, if the Action be laid in the Country, and five Hustings if it be laid in Town; and when your Exigent and Proclamation are return'd, the later is to be filed with the Custos Brevium, and the Exigent with the Filizer of the County; whereupon the Filizer will make out a Capias Utlagatum into any County you desire, where the Defendant hath any Estate. Prattis. Solic. 257. If Judgment be had against a Defendant, who to evade the Law and Execution against him, lurks in several Counties, he may be sued to Outlawry after Judgment, and on issuing a Capias ad satisfaciend. for the Debt and Costs, and a Non est Inventus return'd, an Exigent is made and return'd by the Sheriff; upon which you may have a Capias Utlagatum into as many several Counties as you please, till the Defendant is taken; when he cannot be discharged without making Satisfaction to the Plaintiff, a Pardon of the Outlawry, or reversing the same for Error. Ibid. 322. And where a Plaintiff recovers Damages, and he against whom the Damages are recovered is outlawed at the King's Suit; no Pardon shall be granted, unless the Chancellor is certified that the Plaintiff is satisfied his Damages, by Statute 5 Ed. 3. See Capias Utlagatum and Exigent.

Out-Riders, Are Bailiffs errant employ'd by Sheriffs, to ride to the farthest Places of their Counties or Hundreds, with the more Speed to summon Persons into County-Courts, &c. 14 Ed. 3. cap. 9.

Owelry, Is when there is Lord Mesne and Tenant, and the Tenant holds of the Mesne by the same Service that the Mesne holds over of the Lord above him; this is called Owelry of Services. F. N. B. 136. And Owelry of Services is Equality of Services. Co. Litt. 169.

Oxlers, Are Persons that carry Wool, &c. to the Sea-side by Night, in order to be shipp'd off contrary to Law: And this is prohibited by Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 23.

Oxford. No Purveyor or Badger, &c. shall bargain for, and take away Victuals in the Markets of Oxford or Cambridge, or within five Miles, without Licence from the Chancellor, on Pain of Forfeiting four Times the Value, and three Months Imprisonment. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 15. 13 Eliz. c. 21. Oxgang, (From Ox, i. e. Bos, and Gang or Gate, Iter) Is commonly taken for fifteen Acres of Land, or as much as one Ox can Plough in a Year; six Oxgangs of Land are such a Quantity of Ground as six Oxen will plough. Crompt. Jurisd. 220.

Oyer, Seems to have been antiently used for what we now call Affises. Ann. 13 Edw. 1.

Oyer of a Deed, Is where a Man brings an Action of Debt upon a Bond, or other Deed, and the Defendant appears, and prays that he may bear the Bond, &c. wherewith he is charged, which shall be allowed him. 2 Lill. Abr. 266. The Demand of Oyer is a Kind of Plea, and may be counterpleaded: Where there may be Oyer, the Party demanding it is not bound to plead without it; but the Defendant may plead without it if he will, on taking upon him to remember the Bond or Deed; though if he plead without Oyer, he cannot after waive his Plea, and demand Oyer. Mod. Ca. 28. 3 Salk. 119. In the Court of B. R. Oyer may be prayed after Imparlance; but not in C. B. 5 Rep. 74. After Imparlance, Oyer cannot be demanded, because Imparlance is always to another Term; also after a Plea in Abatement, Oyer may not be had the same Term to plead another dilatory Plea. Mod. Ca. 27. 2 Lill. 267. To demand Oyer of an Obligation is not only to desire the Plaintiff's Attorney to read the same; but to have a Copy thereof, that the Defendant may consider what to plead to the Action. Hob. 217. And when upon Oyer of a Deed it is entered, the whole Case appears to the Court, as if the Deed were in the Plea, and the Deed is become Parcel of the Record: Though Oyer of a Deed cannot be demanded only during the Term it is produced in Court; and then it may be entered in hac verba, and there may be a Demurrer or Issue upon it, &c. 5 Rep. 76. Lutw. 1644. 3 Salk. 119. A Defendant ought to crave Oyer of the Plaintiff's Deed, on which he hath declared; and cannot set forth another to plead Performance thereof. Mod. Ca. 154. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1225. If there is Misnomer in a Bond, &c. The Defendant is to plead the Misnomer, and that he made no such Deed, without craving Oyer; for if he doth, he admits his Name to be Right. 1 Salk. 7. Executors bringing Action of Debt, the Defendant may demand Oyer of the Testament, &c. See Monfrans de Faits.

Oyer de Record, (Audire Recordum) Is a Petition made in Court, that the Judges, for better Proof-sake, will hear or look upon any Record. And it hath been adjudg'd, that the Craving Oyer of an original Writ is not like the Craving Oyer of a Deed; because the Deed is always produced by the Plaintiff, and 'tis the Act of the Party, wherefore he shall not be admitted to say, that it is not his Deed: But the Filing a Writ, and having it read on Oyer demanded is the Act of the Court. 2 Lutw. 1641. See 3 Salk. 119.

Oyer and Terminer, (Fr. Ovir & Terminer, Lat. Audiendo & Terminando) Is a Commission directed to the Judges, and other Gentlemen of the County to which issued, by Virtue whereof they have Power to hear and determine Treasons, and all Manner of Felonies and Trespases. Crompt. Jurisd. 121. 4 Inst. 162. 2 Inst. 419. It is the first and largest of the five Commissions by which our Judges of Affise do sit in their several Circuits: And is General, for trying all Offenders and Offences; or Special, to try only particular Persons or Offences: And in our Statutes it is often printed Oyer and Determiner. 4 Inst. 162. The usual Commission of Oyer and Terminer of Justices of Affise is general; and when any sudden Insurrection or Trespas is committed, which requires speedy Reformation, then a special Commission is immediately granted. F. N. B. 110. And this Commission was formerly issued only where some Insurrection was made, or heinous Misdemeanor was done in any Place; when the Manner and Usage was to grant a Commission of Oyer and Terminer, to hear and determine such Misbehaviours; and the Stat. 2 Ed. 3. c. 2. requireth, that no Commission of Oyer and Terminer be granted, but before the Justices of one Bench or other, or the Justices itinerant, and that for horrible Trespases. New Nat. Br. 243. A Man may have a special Commission of Oyer and Terminer, to inquire of Extortions and Oppressions of Under-Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Clerks of the Market, and all other Officers, &c. upon the Complaint and Suit of any one that will sue it out: And the King may make a Writ of Association unto the Justices of Oyer and Terminer, to admit those into their Company whom he hath associated unto them; also another Writ may be sent to the Justices to proceed, although that all the Justices do not come at the Day of the Sessions, and this Writ is called a Writ of Si non omnes, &c. Ibid. 245, 247. As to these Commissions it is said, that if a Commission of Oyer and Terminer, &c. be awarded to certain Persons to inquire at such a Place, they can neither open their Commission at another, nor adjourn it thither, or give Judgment there; if they do, all their Proceedings shall be esteemed as coram non Judice: But it is held, that Justices appointed pro hac vice, may adjourn their Commission from one Day to another, though there be no Words in their Commission to such Purpose; for a general Commission authorising Persons to do a Thing, doth implicitly allow them convenient Time for the Doing of it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 18. The same Justices at the same Time may execute the Commission of Oyer and Terminer, and also that of Gaol Delivery; and the same Persons being authorized by both these Commissions, may proceed by Virtue of the One in those Cases, where they have Jurisdiction by the other, and make up their Records accordingly. Ibid. 20. But Justices of Oyer and Terminer cannot proceed but upon Indictments taken before themselves, unless they have a Commission of Gaol-Delivery likewise, or a special Commission; for the Commission of Oyer and Terminer is, Ad Inquirendum, Audiendum & Terminandum, to inquire, hear and determine. Wood's Inst. 478. And though Justices of Gaol-Delivery have a more general Commission for Proceeding against and trying Malefactors than the Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer have; yet such Justices may not proceed but on Indictments found before other Justices, as Justices of Peace, &c. 2 Hawk. 24. On Indictments found before the Justices of Oyer and Terminer, they may proceed the same Day against the Party indicted.

Form of a Commission of Oyer and Terminer.

This is a Special Commission of Oyer and Terminer granted upon urgent Occasion; and the Party suing it might thereupon take out a Writ to the Sheriff commanding him to arrest Goods wrongfully taken away, and keep them in safe Custody, 'till Order made concerning them by the Justices assigned to determine the Matter. *Reg. P ain Fort & Dure, (Lat. Pœna Fortis & Dura, Fr. Peine Forte & Dure) Signifies an especial Punishment inflicted by Law, on those that being arraigned of Felony, refuse to put themselves upon the ordinary Trial, but stubbornly stand mute; and it is vulgarly called Pressing to Death. Stat. Westm. 1. cap. 12. If a Criminal doth not plead directly to the Fact, or put himself on Trial by the Country, he shall be put to the Penance of Pain Fort & Dure, in Cases of Petit Treason and Felony, and forfeit his Goods: And some Criminals have undergone this Punishment, to prevent Attainder, Corruption of Blood, and Forfeiture of Lands; but upon standing mute in High Treason, the highest Offence, and in Petit Larceny the lowest of all Felonies, the Offenders shall have the like Judgment as if they had been convicted by Confession or Verdict. 3 Inst. 217. H. P. C. 226. Kel. 27. Women standing mute in Felony are liable to Penance of Pain Fort & Dure as well as Men. 2 Inst. 177. The Judgment of Pain Fort & Dure is by the Common Law, and according to the usual Practice, as recorded in our Books, is as follows, viz. That the Criminal shall be remanded to the Prison from whence he came, and put in some low dark Room, and there laid on his Back, without any Manner of Covering, except for the Privy Parts, with his Legs and Arms extended with Cords to the four Quarters of the Room, and that as many Weights shall be laid on his Body as he can bear, and more, and that he shall have no Sustenance, but of the worst Bread and Water, and shall not eat the same Day in which he drinks, nor drink the same Day he eats; and that he shall so continue till he die. S. P. C. 150. 2 Inst. 178. But antiently the Judgment was not, that he should so continue 'till he were dead, but 'till he should answer; and he might save himself from the Penance, by putting himself on his Trial. 2 Hawk. P. C. 331. Before Judgment passes of Pain Fort & Dure, the Court orders a Tasse to be given to the Criminal of the Pain to be endured, if he will not comply; and the Court will not proceed to this Judgment, before all Methods are used to persuade him to plead: This is the constant Practice of Newgate-Sessions. Kel. 27, 28. Rob. Grosthead Episc. Lincoln.*

P allium, Is a Word often mentioned in our old Historians; and Durandus tells us, that 'tis a Garment made of White Wool, after the following Manner, viz. The Nuns of St. Agnes every Year, on the Feast-Day of their Saint, offer two White Lambs on the Altar of their Church, during the Time they sing Agnus Dei in a solemn Mass; which Lambs are afterwards taken by Two of the Canons of the Lateran Church, and by them given to the Pope's Subdeacons, who put them to Pasture 'till Shearing-time, and then they are shorn, and the Pall is made with their Wool, mix'd with other White Wool: The Pall being thus made is carried to the Lateran Church, and there placed on the High Altar by the Deacons of that Church, on the Bodies of St. Peter and St. Paul; and after a usual Watching, it is carried away in the Night, and delivered to the Subdeacons, who lay it up safe. And because it was taken from the Body of St. Peter, it signifies the Plenitude of Ecclesiastical Power; and therefore it was the Prerogative of Popes, who pretend to be the immediate Successors of that Saint, to invest other Prelates with it, which at first was done no where but at Rome, but afterwards in other Places. Durandus's Rationale.

Palls, The Pontifical Vestures made of Lamb's Wool, in Breadth not exceeding three Fingers, cut round that they may cover the Shoulders; they have two Labels or Strings on each Side, before and behind, and likewise four purple Crosses on the Right and Left, fastened with Pins of Gold, whose Heads are Saphire: These Vestments the Pope gives or sends to Archbishops and Metropolitans, and upon extraordinary Occasions to other Bishops; who wear them about their Necks at the Altar, above their Ornaments. The Pall was first given to the Bishop of Ostia by Pope Marcus the Second, Anno 336. And the Preface to an antient Synod here in England, wherein Odo, Archbishop of Canterbury presided, begins thus:—Ego Odo humilis & extremus, divina largiente Clementia, Almi Prasulis & Pallii honore ditatus, &c. *Selden's Hist. Panel, (Panella, Panelum) According to Sir Edward Coke denotes a little Part; but the learned Spelman says, that it signifies Schedula vel Pagina, a Schedule or Page; as a Panel of Parchment, or a Counterpane of an Indenture: But it is used more particularly for a Schedule or Roll, containing the Names of such Jurors as the Sheriff returns to pass upon any Trial. Kitch. 226. Reg. Orig. 223. And the Impanelling a Jury is the Entering their Names by the Sheriff into a Panel or little Schedule of Parchment; in Panello Assise. 8 H. 6. c. 12. Panels of Juries are to be return'd into Court, on Writs of Nisi prius, &c. before Inquests can be taken upon them, by Stat. 42 Ed. 3. c. 11. And Persons indicted of High Treason shall have a Copy of the Panel of the Jurors, who are returned to try them, two Days at least before tried. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 3. But it is said, that in Trials before Justices of Gaol-Delivery, the Prisoner has no Right to a Copy of the Panel before the Time of his Trial; except only in Cases within that Statute. 2 Hawk. P. C. 410.

Panis vocat' Blackwhytlof, Bread of a middle Sort, between White and Brown, such as in Kent is called Ravel-bread. Jurisd.* 155. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 25. Manwood says, Pannage signifies most properly the Mast of the Woods or Hedge-rows: And Linwood thus defines it; Pannagium est pastus pecorum in Nemoribus & in Sylvis, utpote de glandibus & aliis fructibus arborum Sylvestrium, quarum fructus aliter non solent colligi. It is mentioned in the Statute 20 Car. 2. c. 3. And in antient Charters this Word is variously written; as Pannagium, Pasnagium, Pathnagium, Patnagium, Paunagium, & Pefsona.

And the Clerks of the Papers of the Court of King's Bench, in all Copies of Pleas and Paper-Books by them made up, shall subscribe to such Paper-Books, the Names of the Counsel who have sign'd such Pleas, as well on the Behalf of the Plaintiff as of the Defendant; and in all Paper-Books delivered to the Judges of the Court, the Names of the Counsellors, who did sign those Pleas, are to be subscribed to the Books, by the Clerks or Attornies who deliver the same. Pasch. 18 Car. 2. 2 *Lill. It has been adjudged on this Statute, that the Person is only disabled to present; and that he continues Patron to all other Purposes. Cawley 230. That such a Person by being disabled to grant an Avoidance is not hindered from Granting the Advowson it self, in Fee, or for Life, bona fide for good Consideration. 1 Jon. 19, 20. And that if an Advowson or Avoidance belonging to a Papist come into the King's Hands, by Reason of any Outlawry, or Conviction of Recusancy, &c. the King, and not the Universities, shall present. 1 Jon. 20. Hob. 126. And it is said that being convicted of Popish Recusancy, they may be taken up by the Writ de Excom. capiend. and shall not be admitted as competent Witnesses in a Cause: But this seems to be carried beyond the Intent of the Statute. 2 Bulstr. 155, 156. 1 Hawk. P. C. 23. Persons going beyond Sea to be trained up by Papists, shall forfeit their Goods and Chattels, if they do not conform within Six Months after their Return: And sending Children abroad to be thus trained up, is liable to a Penalty of 100 l. Stat. 3 Car. 1. c. 2. The Lord Mayor of the City of London, and Justices of Peace, &c. are to cause to be brought before them Papists within the said City, and ten Miles thereof, and tender them the Declaration 30 Car. 2. cap. 1. against Transubstantiation, and refusing to subscribe it, they shall suffer as Popish Recusants convicted: But such as use any Trade or manual Art; and foreign Merchants, Servants to Ambassadors, &c. are excepted. 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 9. Papists refusing to appear and subscribe the said Declaration, are not to keep in their Houses any Arms, Weapons, Gunpowder, &c. And Justices of Peace may order any such to be seized: And they may not keep any Horse above the Value of 5 l. which may be also seized. And Persons concealing Arms or Horses, or hindering a Search after them, shall be committed, and forfeit treble Value. 1 W. & M. c. 15. If any Person refuse to repeat and subscribe the afore-mentioned Declaration, he shall be disabled to make any Presentation, &c. And presenting contrary to this Act, shall forfeit 500 l. 1 W. & M. c. 26. Papists, who keep Schools are to suffer perpetual Imprisonment: And Persons educated in the Popish Religion, not taking the Oaths and subscribing the Declaration in the 30 Car. 2. within six Months after they attain the

And where the Parents of Protestant Children are Papists, the Lord Chancellor may take Care of the Education of such Protestant Children, and make Order for their Maintenance suitable to the Ability of the Parent. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 4. Every Trustee, &c. for Popish Children is disabled to present to any Benefice, &c. and Presentations by them shall be void; and the Chancellor and Scholars of the Universities shall present, as by the Act 3 Jac. 1. And Bishops are required to examine Persons presented on Oath, before Institution, whether the Person presenting be the real Patron, and made the Presentation in his own Right, or whether he be not a Trustee for a Papist, &c. And if the Person presented refuse to be examined, his Presentation shall be void. 12 Ann. Sess. 2. c. 14. Papists are to register their Estates, as by this Statute is directed, on Pain of Forfeiture; and Lands registred must be expressed in what Parishes they lie, who are the Possessors thereof, the Estate therein, and the yearly Rent, &c. Persons suing in Chancery for Forfeitures for Default of Registry, may demand all Discoveries as if Purchasers; and they may bring Ejectment on their own Demise, and give the Act and special Matter in Evidence. 1 Geo. c. 55. Sales of Lands by Papists (incurring the Disabilities 11 & 12 W. 3.) to Protestant Purchasers, are confirm'd notwithstanding the Disability of Persons joining in the Sale; unless before such Sales any Person who is to take Advantage of the Disability, has recovered, or entered his Claim, and given Notice, &c. No Lands shall pass from Papists, by Deed or Will, without Inrollment: And Papists are rendered incapable to purchase Lands. 3 Geo. c. 18. All Persons within England, of the Age of eighteen Years, not having taken the Oaths, and who refuse to take the same, shall register their Estates as Papists; or neglecting such Registry, are to forfeit the Inheritance of their Lands, two Thirds to the King, and the other Third to the Prosecutor. 9 Geo. c. 24. But by a subsequent Act, this shall not extend to oblige any Woman to take the Oaths, or to register her Estate, nor any Person that hath only an Interest in Lands in Reversion, or to Estates under 10 l. a Year, &c. And only one Year's Rent and Profits of Lands is forfeited for Default of Registering by this Statute, recoverable by Action in the Courts at Westminster, within six Months after the Offence: Persons in Prison, beyond Sea, Non Compos, &c. are to have six Months to take the Oaths, and register their Estates, after the Removal of their Disabilities; and Certificates of Taking the Oaths, by the proper Officers, shall be allowed as Evidence of Taking the Oaths, &c. 10 Geo. c. 4. See Oaths.

Papists taxed. Papists, or reputed Papists, who refuse to take the Oaths 1 W. & M. are to pay double to the Land-Tax, &c. Stat. 8 W. 3. c. 6. And a Tax of 100,000 l. for the Year 1723. was laid on the Lands of all Papists, over and above the double Taxes; charged by so much on every County, &c. and leviable by the Commissioners of the Land-Tax, by Stat. 9 Geo. c. 18.

Par, Is a Term in Exchange, where a Man to whom a Bill is payable receives of the Acceptor just so much in Value, &c. as was paid to the Drawer by the Remitter. Merch. Dict. And in Exchange of Money, Par is defined to be a certain Number of Pieces of the Coin of one Country, containing in them an equal Quantity of Silver to that of another Number of Pieces of the Coin of some other Country; as where thirty-six Shillings of the Money of Holland have just as much Silver as twenty Shillings English Money: And Bills of Exchange drawn from England to Holland, at the Rate of thirty-six Shillings Dutch for each Pound Sterling, is according to the Par. Lock's Confid. of Money, pag. 18.

Parage, (Paragium) Signifies Equality of Name, Blood, or Dignity; but more especially of Land, in the Partition of an Inheritance between Coheirs: Hence comes to disparage, and Disparagement. Co. Litt. 166.

Paragium, Was commonly taken for the equal Condition betwixt two Parties to be contracted in Marriage: For the old Laws of England did strictly provide that young Heirs should be dispos'd in Matrimony cum Paragio, with Persons of equal Birth and Fortune, Sine Disparagione.

Paramount, (Compounded of two French Words, Par. i. e. Per, and Monter, ascendere) Signifies in our Law the highest Lord of the Fee, of Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments. F. N. B. 135. As there may be a Lord Mesne, where Lands are held of an inferior Lord, who holds them of a Superior under certain Services; so this superior Lord is Lord Paramount: And all Honours, which have Manors under them, have Lords Paramount. Also the King is Chief Lord, or Lord Paramount of all the Lands in the Kingdom. Co. Litt. 1.

Paraphernalia, or Paraphernalia, (From the Gr. Παρά, Præter, and Παρών, Dos) Are those Goods which a Wife challengeth over and above her Dower or Jointure, after her Husband's Death; as Furniture for her Chamber, wearing Apparel, and Jewels, which are not to be put into the Inventory of her Husband. 1 Cro. Rep. A Wife, after the Death of her Husband, may claim her Paraphernalia or necessary Apparel for her Body, and Cloth given her to make a Garment, &c. besides her Dower; so that the Husband cannot give them away by Will: But she shall not have excessive Apparel, beyond her Rank. Pearl Necklaces, Chains of Diamonds, Gold Watches, &c. may be included under Paraphernalia, if they were usually worn by the Wife, and were suitable to her Quality, and the Fashion of the Times, and there are Assets to pay Debts and Legacies; provided the Husband does not give these away by Will. 1 Roll. Abr. 911. 3 Cro. 343. Kitch. 369. Noy's Max. 168. It was adjudg'd in the Viscountess Bindon's Case, that Paraphernalia ought to be allowed to a Widow, having Regard to her Quality and Degree; and that her Husband being a Viscount, she shall be allowed her Jewels to the Value of 500 Marks, &c. 2 Leon. 166. A Widow retain'd a Chain of Diamonds and Pearls, against the Devise of her Husband; and two Judges held, that she might detain them, because they were convenient for a Woman of her Quality; but Two other Judges were of a contrary Opinion, that Paraphernalia should be not only convenient, but necessary, otherwise the Widow shall not detain them against the express Devise of the Husband: Though it is said it was adjudg'd, that the Widow might detain necessary Apparel, and likewise Ornaments, against the Devise of her Husband; and that he cannot dispose of them by Will, though he might have sold them in his Life-time, for immediately upon his Death the Property is vested in the Widow. Cro. Car. 347. 2 Nels. Abr. 1225.

Parasitus, A Word used for a Domestick Servant. Blount.

Paravail, (Per-availe) Signifies the lowest Tenant of the Fee, or he that is immediate Tenant to one who holdeth over of another; and he is called Tenant Paravail, because 'tis presumed he hath Profit and Avail by the Land. F. N. B. 135. 2 Inst. 296.

Parcella Terræ, A Parcel of Land, as used in some ancient Charters. — Sciant, quod Ego Stephanus W. Dedi, &c. Roberto de D. Unam Parcellam Terræ cum pertinen. jacen', &c. Sine dat.

Parcel-makers, Are two Officers in the Exchequer, that make the Parcels of the Escheators Accounts; wherein they charge them with every Thing they have levied for the King's Use, within the Time of their being in Office, and deliver the same to the Auditors, to make up their Accounts therewith. Practice Excheq. 99.

Parceners, (Quasi Parcellers, i. e. Rem in Parcellas dividens) Are of two Sorts, viz. Parceners according to the Course of the Common Law; and Parceners according to Custom. Parceners by the Common Law, are where a Man or Woman seised of Lands or Tenements in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, hath no Issue but Daughters, and dieth, and the Tenements descend to such Daughters, who enter into the Lands descended to them, then they are called Parceners, and are but one Heir to their Ancestor: And they are termed Parceners, because by the Writ de Partitione facienda the Law will constrain them to make Partition; though they may make Partition by Consent, &c. Litt. 243. 1 Inst. 164. Also if a Man seised of Lands in Fee-simple, or in Tail, dieth without any Issue of his Body begotten, and the Lands descend to his Sisters, they are Parceners; and in the same Manner where he hath no Sisters, but the Lands descend to his Aunts, or other Females of Kin in equal Degree, they are also Parceners: But where a Person hath but one Daughter, she shall not be called Parcener, but Daughter and Heir, &c. Litt. Sect. 242. If a Man hath Issue two Daughters, and the eldest hath Issue divers Sons and divers Daughters, and the Youngest hath Issue divers Daughters; the eldest Son of the eldest Daughter shall not only inherit, but all the Daughters of the Youngest shall inherit, and the eldest Son is Coparcener with the Daughters of the youngest Sister, and shall have one Moiety, viz. his Mother's Part; so that Men, descending of Daughters, may be Parceners as well as Women, and shall jointly plead and be impleaded, &c. 1 Inst. 164. None are Parceners by the Common Law, but either Females, or the Heirs of Females, which come to Lands or Tenements by Descent. Litt. 254. Parceners by Custom is where a Person seised in Fee-simple, or in Fee-tail of Lands or Tenements of the Tenure called Gavelkind, within the County of Kent, &c. hath Issue divers Sons, and dies; such Lands shall descend to all the Sons as Parceners by the Custom, who shall equally inherit and make Partition as Females do, and a Writ of Partition lies in this Case, as between Females, &c. Litt. Sect. 265. Women Parceners make but one Heir, and have but one Freehold: But between themselves they have in Judgment of Law several Freeholds, to many many Purposes; for one of them may infeoff the other of her Part; and the Parcenary is not severed by the Death of any of them; but if one dies, her Part shall descend to her Issue, &c. 1 Inst. 164, 165. If one Parcener make a Feoffment in Fee of her Part, this is a Severance of the Coparcenary, and several Writs of Præcipe shall lie against the other Parceners and the Feoffee. 1 Inst. 167. Though if two Coparceners by Deed alien both their Parts to another in Fee, rendring to them Two and their Heirs a Rent out of the Land, they shall have the Rent in Course of Parcenary; because their Right in the Land out of which the Rent is reserved was in Parcenary. Ibid. 160. If there be two Parceners, and each of them taketh Husband, and have Issue, and the Wives die; the Parcenary is divided; and here is a Partition in Law. Ibid. Partition of Lands held in Tail, by the Death of one Sister without Issue is made void, and the other Sister as Heir in Tail will be intitled to the whole Land; and may have Writ of Formedon where the other Parcener hath aliened, &c. New Nat. Br. 476. And a Writ of nuper obiit lies for one Parcener deforced by another, &c. F. N. B. 197. Parceners are to make Partition of the Lands descended; and Estates of Coparceners are applicable only to Inheritances: Partition may be made between Parceners of Inheritances, which are intire and dividable, as of an Advowson, Rent-charge, or such like; but tis otherwise of Inheritances which are intire and indivisible, as of a Piscary, Common without Number, or such uncertain Profits out of Lands; for in such Case the eldest Parcener shall have them, and the others have Contribution from her out of some other Inheritance, left by the Ancestor; but if there is no such Inheritance, then the Eldest shall have these uncertain Profits for one Time, and the Youngest for another Time. Dyer 153. Parceners cannot make Partition so as for one to have the Land for one Time, and another for another, &c. for each is to have her Part absolutely: But where there is an Advowson descended to them, they may present by Turns; and if there be a Common, &c. which may not be divided, one may have it for one Year, and another for another Year, &c. 1 Inst. 164. An Advowson is an intire Thing, and yet in Effect the same may be divided betwixt Parceners; for they may present by Turns: And if there be Coparceners of an Advowson appendant to a Manor, and they make Partition of the Manor without Mentioning the Advowson; the same is still appendant, and they may present by Turns. 8 Rep. 79. If two Parceners be of an Advowson, and they agree to present by Turns, this is a good Partition as to the Possession. 1 Rep. 87. And where there are Coparceners of an Advowson, the Eldest hath Privilege to present first; not in Respect of her Person, but Estate: And if one Parcener hath a Rent granted to her upon a Partition made, to make her Part equal with the other, she may distrain for the Arrears of such Rent of common Right, and so shall the Grantee of the Rent, because it is not annexed to her Person only, but to her Estate. 3 Rep. 32. If there are two Parceners of a Manor, and on Partition made, each of the 7 hath Demesnes and Services allotted; in this Case each of them is said to have a Manor. 1 Leon. 26. Davis 61. A Partition may not be of Franchises, as Goods of Felons, Waifs, Estrays, &c. which are casual. 5 Rep. 3. Partition between Partners may be made four Ways, viz. First, when they themselves divide the Land equally into so many Parts as there are Parceners; and each chuses one Share or Part, the Eldest first, and so the one after another, &c. Secondly, When they make Agreement to chuse certain Friends to make Division for them: Thirdly, Partition by drawing Lots, where having divided the Lands into as many Parts as there are Parceners, and written every Part in a distinct Scroll, being wrapt up they draw each of them one out of a Hat, Bason, &c. And Fourthly, Partition by Writ de Partitione facienda, which is by Compulsion, where some agree to Partition, and others do not; and when Judgment is given on a Writ of Partition, it is that the Sheriff shall go to the Lands, and by the Oaths of twelve Men make Partition between the Parties, without any Mention of Preference to the eldest Sister, &c. Litt. 248. 1 Inst. 164. The Partition made and delivered by the Sheriff and Jurors, ought to be return'd into the Court, under the Seal of the Sheriff, and the Seals of the twelve Jurors; for the Words of the judicial Writ of Partition which doth command the Sheriff to make Partition are, Assumptis tecum, duodecim, &c. & Partitionem inde Scire facias Jusficiariis, &c. sub sigillo tuo & sigillis eorum per quorum Sacramentum Partitionem illam feceris, &c. If Partition be made by Force of the King's Writ, and Judgment thereof given, it shall be binding to all Parties, because it is made by the Sheriff, by the Oath of twelve Men, by Authority of Law; and the Judgment is, that the Partition shall remain firm and stable for ever. 1 Inst. 171. In a Writ of Partition, the Judgment was, Quod Partitio fiat, and before it was executed by the Sheriff, a Writ of Error was brought; and it was adjudged, that a Writ of Error doth not lie upon this first Judgment, because this is not like other Actions, where Error lies before the Habere facias Seisnam is return'd, and the Judgment is final; but it is not so in this Case, as there must be another Judgment, i. e. Quod Partitio stabilis maneat, which cannot be 'till the Partition is made and return'd by the Sheriff. Hesley 36. Dyer 67. Where two Persons hold Lands pro Indiviso, and one of them would have his Part in Severalty, and the other refuseth to make Partition by Deed, there lies the Writ de Partitione facienda against him who refuses, directed to the Sheriff; and he must be present when the Partition is made, and if it is objected before the Return of the Writ, that he was not present, it may be examined by the Court; but after the Writ is returned and filed, 'tis too late. Cro. Eliz. 9. A Writ of Partition was taken forth, and the Sheriff made Partition, but was not upon the Land; and on Motion that the Return might not be filed, but that a new Writ might be awarded, because the Sheriff was not on the Land, the Court staid the Filing, and on examining the Sheriff, ordered a new Writ. Cro. Car. 9, 10. On Writ of Partition to the Sheriff to make Partition of Lands, Part of the Lands were allotted to one, and the Jury would not assist the Sheriff to make Partition of the other Part; which appearing upon the Return of the Writ, the Court was moved for an Attachment against the Jury, and a new Writ to the Sheriff. Godb. 265. Partition was brought by Tenant in Fee of one Moiety, against Tenant for Life of the other Moiety, on the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 32. And though it has been resolv'd, if Partition be made between one that that hath an Estate of Inheritance, and another who hath a particular Estate for Life; that the Writ ought to be framed upon the Statute, and to be made special, setting forth the particular Estate: Yet it was held to be good where the Writ was general. Goldsb. 84. 2 Lutw. 1015. A Partition may be made of any Estate of Freehold, or for Term of Years, &c. of Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments whereof the Partition is demanded; and if after Process of Pone return'd upon a Writ of Partition, and Affidavit of Notice given of the Writ to the Tenant to the Action, and a Copy left with the Tenant in Possession at least forty Days before the Return of the said Pone, &c. there be no Appearance entered in 15 Days; the Demandant having entered his Declaration, the Court may give Judgment by Default, and award a Writ to make Partition, whereby the Demandant's Part or Purpart will be set out severally; which Writ being executed, after eight Day's Notice, and return'd, and thereupon final Judgment entered, shall conclude all Persons, &c. But the Court may suspend, or set aside the Judgment, if the Party concerned move the Court in a Year, and shew good Matter in Bar. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 31. And by this Statute, if the High Sheriff by Reason of Distance, &c. cannot be present at the Execution of any Judgment in Partition, then the Under-Sheriff in the Presence of two Justices of Peace of the County, shall proceed to the Execution of the Writ, by Inquisition, and the High Sheriff is to make the Return, &c. Ibid. When the Partition is made and return'd, the Persons who were Tenants of the Lands, or any Part thereof, before divided, shall continue Tenants of the Lands they held, to the respective Owners, under such Conditions and Rents as before: And no Plea in Abatement shall be admitted or received in any Suit or Partition; nor shall the same be abated by the Death of any Tenant, &c. Ibid. In a Writ of Partition the Defendant pleaded, that he himself formerly brought Writ of Partition against the now Plaintiff, and had Judgment to have Partition, and this was held a good Plea; but it was a Question, whether it should be pleaded in Bar or Abatement, or by Way of Estoppel. Dyer 92. No Damages can be recovered on a Writ of Partition; though the Writ and Declaration conclude ad Damnum. Hestl. 35. Noy 143. 2 Nels. Abr. 1237. Where Judgment for Debt is had against one Parcener, the Lands, &c. of both may be taken in Execution, and the Moiety undivided is to be sold, and then the Vendee will be Tenant in Common with the other Coparcener: If the Sheriff seise only a Moiety and sell it, the other Parcener will have a Right to a Moiety of that Moiety. 1 Salk. 392. All Partitions ought to be according to the Quality and true Value of the Lands, and be equal in Value: But if Partition be made by Parceners of full Age, and unmarried, and Sane Memoria, it binds them for ever, although the Value be unequal, if it be made of Lands in Fee; and if it be of Lands intailed, it shall bind the Parties themselves for their Lives, but not their Issues, unless it be equal: If it be unequal, the Issue of her that hath the lesser Part, may after her Decease disagree, and enter and occupy in Common with the Aunt: Also if any be covert, it shall bind the Husband, but not the Wife or her Heirs; or if any be within Age, it shall not bind the Infant, but she may at her full Age disagree,

&c. 1 Inst. 166, 170. 2 Lill. Abr. 283. It hath been adjudg'd, that notwithstanding a Partition is unequal, if it is by Writ, it cannot be avoided; but if it be by Deed, it may be avoided by Entry. 1 Inst. 171. If the Estate of a Parcener be in Part evicted, that shall defeat the whole Partition; Partition implying a Warranty and Condition in Law to enter upon the whole on Eviction, as in Case of Exchange of Lands. 1 Inst. 173. 1 Rep. 87. And if after Partition, one of the Parts is recovered from a Parcener by lawful Title, she shall compel the others to make a new Partition. Cro. Eliz. 902. Partitions made by Deed are of the following Form:

One Parcener may justify the Detaining of the Deeds concerning the Land in Coparcenary against the other; as they belong to one as well as the other. 2 Roll. Abr. 31. Parcenary is a Holding of Lands jointly by Coparceners, when the common Inheritance is not divided. Litt. 56.

Parco fracto, Is a Writ that lies against him who violently breaks a Pound, and takes out Beasts from thence, which for some Trespasses done, &c. were lawfully impounded. Reg. Orig. 166. F. N. B. 100. The Word Parcus was frequently us'd for a Pound to confine trespassing or straying Cattle; whence Imparcare to impound, Imparcatio Pounding, and Imparcamentum, Right of Pounding, &c.

Pardon, (Fr. Pardonatio) Is a Work of Mercy, whereby the King, either before Conviction or Attainder, or afterwards, forgiveth any Crime, Offence, Punishment, Execution, &c. And the King may extend his Mercy upon what Terms he pleases; and annex Conditions to his Pardon, on the Performance whereof the Validity of the Pardon will depend, as upon Condition of Transportation, &c. 3 Inst. 233. 1 Inst. 274. Pardons of Crimes and Transgressions against the King and the Laws, are Ex gratia Regis, or of Course; the First is that which the King, in some special Regard of the Person or other Circumstance, gives by his absolute Prerogative or Power; yet where some Things are required for its Allowance by the Common Law and by Statute; and the other is that which he granteth, as Law and Equity perswade for a light Offence, as where a Person is convicted of Homicide casual and excusable. S. P. C. 47. H. P. C. 38. West's Symb. par. 2. sect. 46. And Pardons of Grace are either General, by Act of Parliament or Charter of the King; or Particular, at the Coronation or any other Time, when any Offence is committed, &c. 2 Inst. 200. 3 Inst. 233. H. P. C. 250. A general Pardon doth discharge, not only the Punishment which was to have been inflicted upon the Person that did commit the Offence pardon'd; but also the Guilt of the Offence it self: It pardons Culpa so clearly, that in the Eye of the Law the Offender is as innocent as if he never had committed the Crime. 2 Lill. Abr. 270. And the Pardon of a Treason or Felony, even after a Conviction or Attainder, so far clears the Party from the Infamy, that he may have an Action for a Scandal in calling him Traitor or Felon, after the Time of the Pardon; and he may be a good Witness notwithstanding the Attainder or Conviction, because the Pardon makes him a new Man, and gives him a new Capacity and Credit. 2 Hawk. P. C. 395. Also a Conviction of Felony, and Burning in the Hand, has in some Cases the Effect of a Pardon; for by this the Party is cleared of his Offence, and becomes a lawful Witness: But it seems to be the better Opinion, that the Pardon of a Conviction of Perjury doth not so restore the Party to his Credit, as to make him a good Witness. Ibid. A Conviction of Barrettry renders a Man infamous, and incapable of being a Witness; but a general Pardon will restore him: And according to Holt Ch. Just. The Difference between the King's Special Pardon and a General Pardon is this; wherever the Disability is Part of the Judgment by Act of Parliament, as in a Conviction of Perjury upon the Statute, there the King's Special Pardon cannot remove that Disability, but a General Pardon may; but where the Disability is by the Common Law, and only consequential to the Conviction, and no Part of the Judgment, in that Case the King's Pardon will take it away. 2 Salk. 513. 3 Salk. 264. The King may by Pardon restore a Person attainted of Treason or Felony, to his Lands, &c. But full Restitution of the whole Blood cannot be made by him, which must be by Parliament. The King's Pardon restores the Blood as to all Issue begotten afterwards: If a Man be attainted of Treason, &c. and the King pardons him, after which he purchases Lands and marries, and hath Issue and dies, this Issue shall inherit; for by his Pardon he is well restored, and is thereby enabled to purchase, &c. Dalif. 14. The Words Pardonavit, Remisit & Relaxavit, in a Charter of Pardon granted to one for Felony, doth not restore unto him what he hath forfeited to the King; there must be the Word Restituit in the Pardon, to restore him to his Goods, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 270. No Pardon by the King, without express Words of Restitution, shall devest the King or a Subject of an Interest in Lands or Goods, vested in them by an Attainder or Conviction precedent; but a Pardon prior to a Conviction will prevent any Forfeiture of Lands or Goods. 5 Rep. 10. 2 Hawk. P. C. 306. The Power of Pardoning all Offences is inseparably incident to the Crown by the Common Law: But the King's Power of Pardoning is restrained by Statute in Cases of Murder; and where an Appeal may be brought at the Suit of the Subject, by the Laws of England a Murderer could never be pardoned. Show. 284. 2 Inst. 316. 5 Rep. 50. And in Appeals of Death, of Rape, Robbery, &c. the King cannot pardon. Though if on Appeal, the Offender is found guilty of Manslaughter, the King may pardon the Burning in the Hand. 3 Inst. 237. The King may pardon Crimes, Punishments and Forfeitures, and in Forgery the corporal Punishment; but the Plaintiff cannot release it. 3 Inst. 171. An Offence Malum in se cannot be pardoned before committed. Finch 234. A Pardon of Murder, &c. shall not be allowed without Writ of Allowance directed to the Justices. Raym. 13. In Case of Treason, a Pardon shall be admitted without Writ of Allowance; though not of Felony. Cro. Eliz. 814. And by our Statutes, no Charter of Pardon is to be granted for Murder, only where one killeth another in his own Defence, or by Misadventure. 2 Ed. 3. c. 2. Also no Pardon of the Death of a Man, or other Felony, is to be granted but where the King may do it consistent with his Coronation-Oath. 14 Ed. 3. c. 15. The Offence is to be particularly specified in Pardons; no Pardon of Treason or Felony shall pass, without Warrant of the Privy Seal; and if the Offence is found wilful Murder, the Pardon shall not be allowed. 13 R. 2. c. 1. and 16 R. 2. c. 9. And Persons pardon'd of Felony, are to enter into a Recognizance with two sufficient Sureties for Good Behaviour for seven Years, &c. 5 & 6 W. & M. c. 13. A Man was indicted for Murder and Robbery, which he confessed, and produced his Pardon, which was of all Murders, Robberies, &c. Non Obstante the Stat. 13 R. 2. But the Court would not allow it; for after the said Statute a general Non Obstante would not do, without a Recital of the Effect of the Indictment, that it may appear the King was apprised of the Fact. Sid. 366. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1233. One Parsons being attainted for the Murder of Mr. Wade, pleaded the King's Pardon, which was for the Murder by express Words, without any Non Obstante, that being taken away by the Statute 1 W. & M. And he produced the Writ of Allowance, certifying that he had found Sureties for the Peace, &c. On its being objected against the Allowance of the Pardon, that the Crime could not be pardon'd by Law: It was held, that there was as good Reason for the King to pardon an Indictment for Murder, which is his Suit; as for the Party to discharge an Appeal for the same Crime, which is the Suit of the Subject; and that the King was by his Coronation-Oath, to shew Mercy as well as do Justice: That the Statute 2 Ed. 3. did not prohibit the Pardoning Murder, it only meant that the King should be fully inform'd before he pardon'd any Felony; for before the Statute of Gloucester, c. 9. it was usual for Criminals of this Nature to apply to the Lord Chancellor, and by false Suggestions procure Pardons with general Words in them; and this was the Occasion of these restrictive Statutes, that Application should be made to the King in Person, to the Intent he himself might be apprised of the Matter: 'Tis true, by the Statute 13 R. 2. great Difficulties were put upon Suitors for a Pardon of Murder; they are to incur a Penalty, &c. but by the Statute 16 R. 2. 'tis said this was repealed, which shews that there is a Necessity that the King should have Power to pardon; and the Pardon was allowed: Hill. 3 W. & M. B. R. 2 Salk. 499. 4 Mod. 63. The King pardons no Treasons by Implications; but by Special Words of Pardon. Hutt. 21. In Sir Walter Raleigh's Case it was adjudg'd, That the King's Grant of a military Command to a Person attainted of High Treason, and in his Commission called his True and Loyal Subject, and having thereby judicial Power given him over the Lives of others, did not amount to a Pardon of Treason, because every Pardon of Treason requires an express Mention of it; and if the Offence had been but Felony, it could not have been pardon'd after the Attainder, without express Mention made both of the Felony and the Attainder. 2 Hawk. P. C. 388. A Man commits Felony, and is attainted thereof, and abjured for the same; the King pardoneth him the Felony, without mentioning the Attainder or Abjuration, the Pardon is void. 3 Inst. 238. Pardon of all Felonies doth not extend to Piracy; for it cannot be extended beyond the Words of it: And a Pardon of all Felonies is no Bar to Execution, where a Felon is attainted; nor will a Pardon of all Attainders, or Executions, pardon the Felony. 1 Inst. 391. 3 Inst. 15, 233. 2 Hawk. 384. But a Pardon of all Misdemeanors, Trespasses and Offences, &c. will pardon any Crime which is not capital; here the Word Offences is very extensive: And a Person convicted of a Premunire, obtained a Pardon in these Words, Pardonamus omnes & singulas Transgressionis Offensiones & Contemptus; and it was adjudged, that the Premunire was pardon'd. 1 Mod. 102. 2 Bulstr. 299. If a General Act of Pardon be of all Felonies, Offences, Injuries, Misdemeanors, and other Things done before such a Day, and a Person has a Wound given before the Day, though he dies not till after the Day mentioned in the Pardon; as the Stroke which was the Cause of the Death is pardon'd, all the Effects of it are pardon'd. Read. on Stat. Vol. 4. pag. 327. And all Contempts being pardon'd, Amerciaments, &c. depending upon them, are of Consequence pardon'd. 5 Rep. 49. A General Pardon of all Felonies, &c. except Murder, will pardon a Felo de se. 1 Lev. 8. In some Cases, the Felony of one Man may be so far dependant upon that of another, that a Pardon of it may enure to his Benefit; as where the Principal pleaded his Pardon, and was allowed it at Common Law, before Attainder, this extended to the Accessary; and where he pleads, and is allow'd it, at this Day, before his Conviction, 'tis said the Accessary may take the Benefit of it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 387. If a Man be bound to the King, as Surety for another, for the Payment of a Fine, or other Debt due to the Crown; the Pardon of the Principal is a Discharge of the Surety. Ibid. A Pardon may be of all Suits in the Spiritual Court pro salute Anima, as well before as after a Suit commenced: Not where the Party hath a Property in the Thing, as for Tithes, Legacies, &c. which the King cannot pardon. 5 Rep. 51. Although the Suit in the Spiritual Court be for the King, which he may pardon; when Sentence is given in a Cause of Defamation, &c. and Costs are taxed for the Plaintiff, he hath thereby a particular Interest in them by the Sentence, which the King cannot pardon: Though if the Pardon had been before Sentence it had discharged all. Ibid. Notwithstanding the King's Pardon to a Simonist, coming into a Church contrary to the Stat. 31 Ed. 6. or to an Officer coming into his Office by corrupt Contract contrary to 5 & 6 Ed. 6. may save such Clerk or Officer, from any criminal Prosecution thereupon; yet it shall not inable the Clerk to hold the Church, nor the Officer to retain the Office, because they are absolutely disabled by Statute. 2 Hawk. 395. But where one who was Judge of the Prerogative Court, was sentenced for Bribery, &c. and fined and imprisoned, and another obtained his Office; he afterwards brought an Assize for the said Office, and produced the King's Pardon after Sentence, wherein all the Special Matter was recited, and all Penalties and Punishments by Reason thereof, and all Disabilities were pardon'd: Adjudged, that the Pardon had taken away the Force of the Sentence, and that he might proceed in the Assize. Cro. Car. 40. A General Pardon by Parliament shall set aside a Judgment, and relate to the first Day of the Parliament. Latch. 22. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1227. And a General Pardon doth Pardon Publick Offences, done done against the Commonwealth, but not private Injuries to particular Persons: It shall be taken Beneficially for the Subject, and most strongly against the King. 5 Rep. 49. 2 Lill. Abr. 271. A general Pardon by Act of Parliament 'tis said ought to be taken Notice of by the Court; but if it hath Exceptions of Offences or Persons, the Court cannot take Notice of it, nor can the Party have Benefit thereof unless he pleads it, and shews that he is none of the Persons, &c. excepted. 3 Inst. 233. 1 Lev. 25. He that will take the Benefit of a general Pardon, is to plead the Statute by which it is granted, that the Court may judge whether his Offence is pardoned or not, which they cannot do if the Pardon be not pleaded, and the Party do not shew that he is comprised in the Pardon. 2 Lill. Abr. 268. Sometimes Advantage is given to Offenders by the Act itself without pleading: And it hath been held; where a Statute Pardon contains Exceptions in the Body of the Act, he who pleads such Statute, to intitle himself to the Benefit thereof, must aver himself, not to be a Person excepted; but when the Exception follows in a distant Clause, by Way of Proviso, he needs not. 1 Vent. 134. 3 Salk. 266. A Charter of Pardon of the King under the Great Seal, cannot be allowed unless it be pleaded; and he who pleads such a Pardon, ought to produce it sub pede Sigilli: And it will be Error to allow a Man the Benefit of it, if it be not pleaded. H. P. C. 250. If there be Variance between the Record on which a Man is convicted or attainted, and his Charter of Pardon; if there be no Repugnancy that the same Person or Thing are meant in both, it may be supplied by proper Averments; as that he is the Person intended in the Indictment, and the Pardon, &c. And there are some Instances in the old Books, where upon such Variance the Court took an Enquiry of Office, whether the same Person were meant in both Records: Also if such variant Pardon be pleaded without any Averment, the Court may give a farther Day either for the Party to perfect his Plea, or to purchase a better Pardon. 2 Hawk. 398. Pardon for Treason cannot be pleaded, until the Prisoner is charged with Indictment for the Offence committed: But where a Man is indicted for Treason a Pardon is good though it doth not mention the Indictment; though it is not so where the Party is indicted for Murder, &c. 4 Rep. 43. 1 Vent. 217. The Acceptance of a Pardon is an Argument of Guilt; and he that pleads it, confesseth the Fact: But a Person may waive it, if it be not a general Pardon by Parliament, which cannot be waived. 4 Inst. 235. If a Peer hath a Pardon, he must plead it before the Judges of the Court where he is indicted. Wood's Inst. 637. And if one have a Charter of Pardon of Felony, the Court will allow it upon the Prayer of the Party, and on his producing it at the Bar; for if he Pray not the Allowance of it, the Court cannot tell whether he accepts of the Benefit thereof; and he is to do it upon his Knees, to express his Thankfulness for the Mercy afforded him by the Pardon. 2 Lill. Abr. 271. Gloves are due to the Judges on Allowance of a Pardon. Pult. 88.

General Acts of Pardon. In the 5th and 13th Years of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth, and also 21 Jac. 1. General Pardons were granted, which were very extensive and beneficial to the Subject. By Stat. 12 Car. 2. a General Pardon was granted to Persons concerned in the Grand Rebellion against King Charles 1. except those who sat in the traitorous Assembly which proceeded against the King's Life; and the two Persons that appeared disguised on the Scaffold at the King's Murder, &c. The 25 Car. 2. c. 5. likewise granted a General Pardon. By 2 W. & M. Sess. 1. c. 10. A General Pardon was granted on Account of the Revolution and Abdication of K. James 2. Treasons against the King and Queen's Persons, Murders, &c. excepted; and there was an Exception of the Marquess of Powys, the Lord Bishop of Durham, the Lord Jefferies, &c. The Stat. 6 & 7 W. 3. c. 20. was made for a general and free Pardon. And by 7 Ann. c. 23. was granted the Queen's most Gracious, General and Free Pardon; Treason, Murder, &c. and Persons employed in the Service of the Pretender excepted. By the 3 Geo. c. 19. a General and Free Pardon was granted of Crimes and Offences; and out of this Act were excepted Murders, Piracies, Burglaries, Rapes, &c. and all such Persons as were in the Service of the Pretender, and levied War against his Majesty in the late Rebellion; Robert Earl of Oxford, Simon Lord Harcourt, Matthew Prior, Thomas Harley, and Arthur Moor, Esqrs. and such who were impeached by Parliament. And the 7 Geo. c. 29. granted a most gracious, general and free Pardon, without the Exception of the Persons above named, so that it extended to those Gentlemen; and the late Directors of the South-Sea Company for their Conduct in the Year 1720. were excepted out of this Statute.

Pardons by Statute on Discovery of Accomplices in Crimes, are granted in the following Cases. For the Discovery of Highwaymen, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M. 11 W. 3. for discovering Counterfeiters of the Coin. 6 & 7 W. 3. for the Discovery of Persons guilty of Burglary, &c. 5 Ann. for discovering of Offenders in forcibly hindering or wounding any Officer of the Customs in the Execution of his Office. 6 Geo. and for Discovery of Smuglers of the Customs, &c. 7 Geo.

Pardoners, Were Persons that carried about the Pope's Indulgences, and sold them to any that would buy them. Stat. 22 H. 8.

Parent, (Parens) A Father or Mother; but generally applied to the Father. Parents have Power over their Children by the Law of Nature, and the Divine Law; and by those Laws they must educate, maintain and defend their Children. Wood's Inst. 63. The Parent or Father hath an Interest in the Profits of the Children's Labour while they are under Age, if they live with and are maintained by him: But the Father hath no Interest in the Estate Real or Personal of a Child, otherwise than as his Guardian. Ibid. The eldest Son is Heir to his Father's Estate; and if there are no Sons but Daughters, the Daughters shall be Heirs, &c. And there being a reciprocal Interest in each other's Estate, Parents and Children may maintain the Suits of each other, and justify the Defence of each others Persons. 2 Inst. 564.

Parentale, or de Parentela se tollere, Signified to renounce his Kindred or Family, which was done in open Court before the Judge, and in the Presence of twelve Men, who made Oath that they believed it was done for just Cause: We read of it in the Laws of K. Hen. 1. c. 38. — Si quis propter Faidam vel causam aliquam de Parentela se velit tollere & eam foris Furaverit, & de societate & hereditate & tota illius ratione se seperet, si postea ali-

Parish, (Parochia) Did formerly signify what we now call the Diocese of a Bishop: But at this Day it is the Circuit of Ground in which the People that belong to one Church do inhabit, and the particular Charge of the Secular Priest. This Realm was first divided into Parishes by Honorius, Archbishop of Canterbury, in the Year of our Lord 636. according to Camden, who reckons 9284 Parishes in England, but other Authors differ in the Number. Camd. Britan. pag. 160. It is said that Parishes were ordained by the Lateran Council; before which every Man being obliged to pay Tithes to a Priest, had his Liberty to pay them to what Priest he pleased; but then came the Council which made the Parishes, and decreed, that every Person should pay his Tithes to his Parish Priest. Hob. 296. 2 Lill. Abr. 271. The Lord Chief Justice Holt held, that Parishes were instituted for the Ease and Benefit of the People, and not of the Parson; and the Reason why Parishioners must come to their Parish-Churches, is, because he having charged himself with the Cure of their Souls, that he may be enabled to take Care of that Charge. 3 Salk. 88, 89. A Parish may comprise many Villages; but generally it shall not be accounted to contain more than one except the contrary be shewed, because most Parishes have but one Village within them. Hill. 23 Car. 1. B. R. And it shall not be intended that there is more than one Parish in a City, if it be not made to appear; for some Cities have but one Parish. Ibid. Where there are several Villages in a Parish, they may have Peace-Officers, and Overseers of the Poor for every particular Village: And an ancient Village in a Parish, that Time out of Mind hath had a Church of its own, and Churchwardens and Parochial Rights, being reputed a Parish, is a Parish within the Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 2. to provide for its own Poor, and shall not pay to the Poor of the Parish wherein it lies. Cro. Car. 92, 384, 396. But to make a Village a reputed Parish within 43 Eliz. it must have a Parochial Chapel, Chapel-Wardens and Sacraments at the Time that Statute was made. 2 Salk. 501. Parishes in Reputation are within that Statute, especially where it has been the constant Usage of such Parishes to chuse their own Overseers, who may distrain for a Poor Tax, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 160. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1235. If a Highway lie in a Parish, the Parish is obliged to repair the same; and it is the most convenient and equal for the Parishioners in every Parish, to repair the Ways within it, if they are able to do it. 2 Lill. 272. And if any Village, Liberty, &c. that uses to repair their own Highways, shall, after the usual Rate levied and employed, find the Ways not sufficiently repaired; the whole Parish may be ordered by Justices of Peace in their Sessions to contribute to the Repairing thereof. Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 29. Money given by Will to a Parish, shall be to the Poor of the Parish. Chanc. Rep. 134.

Parish Clerk. In every Parish the Parson, Vicar, &c. hath a Parish Clerk under him, which is the lowest Officer of the Church. These were formerly Clerks in Orders, and their Business at first was to officiate at the Altar, for which they had a competent Maintenance by Offerings; but now they are Laymen, and have certain Fees with the Parson, on Christnings, Marriages, Burials, &c. besides Wages for their Maintenance.

Count. Parf. Compan. 83, 84. They are to be twenty Years of Age at least, and known to be of honest Conversation, sufficient for their Reading, Singing, &c. And their Business consists chiefly in Responses to the Minister, Reading of Lessons, Singing of Psalms, &c. And in the large Parishes of London, they have some of them Deputies under them for the Dispatch of the Business of their Places, which are more gainful than common Rectories. Ibid. The Law looks upon them as Officers for Life: And they are chosen by the Minister of the Parish, unless there is a Custom for the Parishioners or Churchwardens to chuse them; in which Case the Canon cannot abrogate such Custom; and when chosen it is to be signified, and they are to be sworn into their Office by the Archdeacon. Cro. Car. 589. Can. 91.

Parishioner, (Parochianus) Is an Inhabitant of or belonging to any Parish, lawfully settled therein. See Poor.

Physicians and Surgeons, Apothecaries, Dissenting Teachers, Registered Seamen, and Persons having prosecuted any Felon to Conviction, &c. Park, (Lat. Parcus, Fr. Parque, i. e. locus inclosus) Is a large Quantity of Ground inclosed and privileged for wild Beasts of Chace, by the King's Grant or Prescription. 1 Inst. 233. Manwood defines a Park to be a Place of Privilege for Beasts of Venery, and other wild Beasts of the Forest and of the Chace, tam Sylvestres, quam Campestres; and differs from a Chace or Warren, in that it must be inclosed, and may not lie open; if it do 'tis good Cause of Seizure into the King's Hands as a Thing forfeited; as a Free Chace is if it be not inclosed; besides, the Owner cannot have an Action against such as hunt in his Park, if it lies open. Man. Forest Laws. Crompt. Jurisd. 148. No Man can now erect a Park, without a Licence under the Broad Seal; for the Common Law does not encourage Matters of Pleasure which bring no Profit to the Commonwealth. Wood's Inst. 207. But there may be a Park in Reputation, erected without lawful Warrant; and the Owner of such a Park may bring his Action against Persons killing his Deer. Ibid. To a Park three Things are required, 1. A Grant thereof. 2. Inclosures by Pale, Wall or Hedge. 3. Beasts of a Park, such as the Buck, Doe, &c. And where all the Deer are destroyed, it shall no more be accounted a Park; for a Park consists of Vert, Venison and Inclosure, and if it be determined in any of them, it is a total Disparking. Cro. Car. 59, 60. And the King may by Letters Patent dissolve his Park. 2 Lill. Abr. 273. Parks as well as Chaces are subject to the Common Law, and are not to be governed by the Forest Laws. 4 Inst. 314. Pulling down Park Walls or Pales, the Offenders shall be liable to the same Penalty as for killing Deer, &c. by Statute; and the Statutes against Deer-stealing, are the 13 Car. 2. c. 10. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 10. 5 Geo. c. 15, &c. See Deer-stealers.

Parle Hill, The learned Spelman gives us this Description of it; [it is] (says he) Collis vallo plerumque munitus, in loco campestri, ne insidiis exponatur, ubi convenire olim solebant Centurie aut Vicinie, utcola ad lites inter se tractandas & terminandas. Scotis

Parliament, (Parliamentum, from the Fr. Parler, i. e. loqui, & Ment, Mens, to speak the Mind, sometimes called Commune Concilium Regni Angliæ, Magnum Concilium, &c.) Is the great Assembly of the States of the Kingdom, summoned together by the King's Authority, to treat of the weighty Affairs of the Realm. Some Authors say, that the ancient Britains had no such Assemblies, but that the Saxons had, which may be collected from the Laws of K. Ina, who lived about the Year 712. And William the 1st, called the Conqueror, having divided this Land among his Followers, so that every one of them should hold their Lands of him in Capite, the Chief of these were called Barons; who 'tis said thrice every Year assembled at the King's Court, viz. at Christmas, Easter and Whitsuntide, among whom the King was wont to come in his Royal Robes, to consult about the Publick Affairs of the Kingdom. This King called several Parliaments, wherein it appears, that the Freemen or Commons of England were also there, and had a Share in making of Laws: He by settling the Court of Parliament, so established his Throne, that neither Britain, Dane, nor Saxon, could disturb his Tranquility; the making of his Laws were by Act of Parliament, and the Accord between Stephen and him was made by Parliament; though all the Times since have not kept the same Form of assembling the States. Dodderidge's Antiq. Parliament. And according to the same Author, there was a Parliament before there were any Barons, and if the Commons do not appear, there can be no Parliament; for the Knights, Citizens and Burgeses, represent the whole Commons of England, but the Peers only are present for themselves, and none others. Ibid. Sir Edward Coke affirms, that divers Parliaments were held before the Conquest; and produces an Instance of one held in the Reign of King Alfred: He likewise gives us a Conclusion of a Parliament holden by King Athelstan, where Mention is made, that all Things were enacted in the great Synod or Council at Grately, whereat was Archbishop Wolfhelme, with all the Noblemen and Wisemen, which that King called together. 1 Inst. 110. It is apparent (says Mr. Pryn) from all the Precedents before the Time of the Conquest, that our pristine Synods and Councils were nothing else but Parliaments; that our Kings, Nobles, Senators, Aldermen, Wisemen, Knights and Commons, were present and voting in them as Members and Judges: And Sir Henry Spelman, Camden, and others, prove the Commons to be a Part of the Parliament in the Time of the Saxons, but not by that Name, or elected as consisting of Knights, Citizens and Burgeses. Pryn's Sovereign Pow. Parliam. As to the Original of the present House of Commons, our Authors of Antiquity vary very much; many are of Opinion that the Commons began not to be admitted as Part of the Parliament, upon the Footing they are now, until the 49 H. 3. And the Reason for it is, because the first Writ of Summons of any Knights, Citizens and Burgeses, is of no ancients Date than that Time. But the great Charter in the 17th Year of King John, (about which Time the Distinction of Barones Majores and Minores, is supposed to begin) was made per Regem, Barones & Liberos Homines totius Regni: Mr. Selden says, that the Borough of

St. Albans claimed by Prescription in the Parliament 8 Edw. 2. to send two Burgeses to all Parliaments, as in the Reigns of Edw. 1. and his Progenitors, which must be the Time of King John; and so before the Reign of King H. 3. And in the Reign of H. 5. it was declared and admitted, that the Commons of the Land were ever a Part of the Parliament. Selden's Tit. Hon. 709. Polydore Virgil, Hollinshead, Speed, and others mention, that the Commons were first summoned at a Parliament held at Salisbury. 16 Hen. 1. Sir Walter Raleigh, in his Treatise of the Prerogative of Parliaments, thinks it was Anno 18 H. 1. And Dr. Heylin finds another Beginning for them, viz. in the Reign of K. Hen. 2. Thus much for the Original of our Parliament: Which is the highest and most honourable, and absolute Court of Justice in England; consisting of the King, the Lords of Parliament, and the Commons; and again the Lords are divided into two Sorts, viz. Spiritual and Temporal; and the Commons divided into three Parts, i. e. into Knights of Shires or Counties, Citizens out of Cities, and Burgeses from Boroughs; the Words of the Writ to the Sheriff for the Election, being Duos Milites gladiis cinctos magis idoneos & discretos comitatus tui, & de qualibet civitate comitatus tui duos Cives, & de quolibet Burgo duos Burgeses, de Discretioribus & magis sufficientibus, &c. 1 Inst. 109. The Jurisdiction of this Court is transcendent, that it makes, enlarges, abrogates, repeals and revives Laws and Statutes, concerning Matters Ecclesiastical, Common, Civil, Criminal, Martial, Maritime, &c. And for making of Laws and in proceeding by Bill, this supreme Court is not confined either for Causes or Persons within any Bounds; nor is it tied down to any certain Rules or Forms of Law, in Proceedings and Determinations: The Court of Parliament hath Power to examine into the Corruption of Judges and Magistrates, and illegal Proceedings of other Courts; to redress Errors, and determine on Petitions and Appeals, &c. and from this High Court there lies no Appeal. Ibid. Affairs of Parliament are to be determined by the Parliament; though the Parliament err, it is not reversible in any other Court: And not only what is done in the House of Commons, but what relates to the Commons during the Parliament, and sitting the Parliament, is no where else to be punished but by themselves, or a succeeding Parliament. Sir Robert Atkins. Every Court of Justice having Laws and Customs for its Direction, the High Court of Parliament hath its own proper Laws and Customs, called the Laws and Customs of Parliament; inasmuch that no Judges ought to give any Opinion of Matters done in Parliament, because they are not to be decided by the Common Law: But the Parliament, in their judicial Capacity, are governed by the Common and Statute Laws, as well as the Courts in Westminster-Hall. 4 Inst. 14, 15. State Trials, Vol. 2. 735. The Lords and Commons in their respective Houses have Power of Judicature, and so have both Houses together: And in former Times both Lords and Commons sat together in one House of Parliament. 4 Inst. 23. The Lords have one that presides as Speaker in common Affairs, usually the Lord Chancellor; and the Commons have their Speaker, chosen by the House, but to be approved of by the King: The Commons anciently had no continual Speaker, but after Consultation, their Manner of Proceeding was to agree upon upon some Person of great Abilities, to deliver their Resolutions: In the Reign of William Rufus, there was a great Parliament held at Rockingham, and a certain Knight came forth and stood before the People, and spake in the Name and Behalf of them all, who was undoubtedly the Speaker of the House of Commons at that Time: But the first Speaker certainly known was Peter de Mountford. 44 H. 3. when the Lords and Commons sat in several Houses, or at least gave their Assents severally. Lex Constitution. 162. Sir Richard Walgrave, 5 R. 2. was the first Speaker that made any formal Apology for Inability, as now practiced: Richard Rich, Esq; 28 H. 8. was the first of our Speakers that is recorded to have made Request for Access to the King: Thomas Moyle, Esq; 34 H. 8. is said to be the first Speaker that petitioned for Freedom of Speech; and Sir Thomas Gargrave, 1 Eliz. was the first that made the Request for Privilege from Arrests, &c. Sir John Busbey, 17 R. 2. was the first Speaker presented to the King in full Parliament by the Commons: And when Sir Arnold Savage was Speaker, 2 H. 4. it was the first Time that the Commons were required by the King to chuse a Speaker. Ibid. 163, &c. The King cannot take Notice of any Thing said to be done in the House of Commons, but by the Report of that House; and every Member of the House of Parliament has a judicial Place, and can be no Witness. 4 Inst. 15. When K. Charles 2. being in the House of Commons, and sitting in the Speaker's Chair, asked the then Speaker, whether certain Members, whom the King named, were present? The Speaker, from a Presence of Mind which arose from the Genius of that House, readily answered, That he had neither Eyes to see, nor Tongue to speak, but as the House was pleased to direct him. Atkins's Jurisd. and Antiquity of House of Commons. King Henry 8. having commanded Sir Thomas Gawdy, one of the Judges of the King's Bench, to attend the Chief Justices and know their Opinion, whether a Man might be attainted of High Treason by Parliament, and never called to answer; the Judges declared it was a dangerous Question, and that the High Court of Parliament ought to give Examples to Inferior Courts, for proceeding according to Justice, and no Inferior Court could do the like. Lex Constitution. 161. The House of Lords is a distinct Court of Judicature from the Commons, to several Purposes; they try Criminal Causes on Impeachments of the Commons; and have an original Jurisdiction for the Trial of Peers upon Indictments found by a Grand Jury: They also try Causes upon Appeals from the Court of Chancery, or upon Writs of Error to reverse Judgments in B. R. &c. And all their Decrees are as Judgments; and Judgment given in Parliament may be executed by the Lord Chancellor. 4 Inst. 21. Fimb. 233. 1 Lev. 165. It is said, that the Judicial Power of Parliament is in the Lords; but that the House of Lords hath no Jurisdiction over original Causes, which would deprive the Subject of the Benefit of Appeal. 2 Salk. 510. Also the House of Commons is a distinct Court to many Purposes; they examine the Right of Elections, expel their own Members, and commit them to Prison, and sometimes other Persons, &c. And the Book of the Clerk of the House of Commons is a Record. 2 Inst. 536. 4 Inst. 23. The Commons coming from all Parts are the General Inquisitors and Grand Inquest of the Realm; to present publick Grievances and Delinquents to the King and Lords, to be punished by them: And any Member of the House of Commons, has the Privilege of impeaching the highest Lord in the Kingdom. Wood's Inst. 455. As the House of Lords seems to be politically constituted for the Support of the Rights of the Crown; so the proper Province of the House of Commons, is to stand for the Preservation of the People's Liberties. The Commons in making and repealing of Laws have equal Power with the Lords; and for laying of Taxes on the Subject, the Bill is to begin in the House of Commons, because from thence the greatest Part of the Money arises, and 'tis they that represent the whole Commons of England; for which Reason they will not permit any Alterations to be made by the Lords in a Bill concerning Money: And as formerly the Laying and Levying of new Taxes have caused Rebellions and Commotions; this has occasioned, particularly 9 Ed. 3. when a Motion has been made for a Subsidy of a new Kind, that the Commons have desired a Conference with those of their several Counties and Places, whom they have represented before they have treated of any such Matters. 4 Inst. 34. There are no Places of Precedency in the House of Commons as there are in the House of Lords; only the Speaker has a Chair or Seat, fixed towards the upper End, in the Middle of the House; and the Clerk, with his Assistant, sits near him at the Table, just below the Chair: The Members of the House of Commons never had any Robes as the Lords ever had, except the Speaker and Clerks, who in the House wear Gowns, as Professors of the Law do during the Term-Time: If a Lord be absent from the House, he may make another Lord his Proxy; though a Member of the House of Commons cannot make a Proxy. Wood's Inst. 456. No Knight, Citizen or Burghers of the House of Commons, shall depart from the Parliament without Leave of the Speaker and Commons assembled; and the same is to be entered in the Book of the Clerk of the Parliament. Stat. 6 H. 8. c. 16. And in the 1 & 2 P. & M. Informations were preferred by the Attorney General against Thirty-nine of the House of Commons, for departing without Licence, whereof six of them submitted to Fines, but 'tis uncertain whether any of them were ever paid. The Calling of the House is to discover what Members are absent, without Leave of the House, or just Cause; in which Cases Fines have been imposed: On the Calling over, such of the Members as are present, are marked; and the Defaulters being called over again the same Day, or the Day after, and not appearing, are sometimes summoned, and sometimes sent for by the Serjeant at Arms. Lex Constitution. 159. Forty Members are requisite to make a House of Commons for Dispatch of Business; and the Business of the House is to be kept entirely a Secret among themselves: In the 23d Year of Queen Elizabeth, Arthur Hall, Esq; Member of Parliament, for publishing the Conferences of the House, and writing a Book which contained Matter of Reproach against some particular Members, derogatory to the general Authority, Power and State of the House, and prejudicial to the Validity of the Proceedings, was adjudged by the Commons to be committed to the Tower for six Months, fined 500 l. and expelled the House. But the Speaker of the House

House of Commons, according to the Duty of his Office, as Servant to the House, may publish such Proceedings as he shall be ordered by the Commons assembled; and he cannot be liable for what he does that Way by the Command of others, unless all those other Persons are liable. The Case of William Williams, Esq; If any Member of either House speak Words of Offence in a Debate, after the Debate is over he is called to the Bar, where commonly on his Knees he receives a Reprimand from the Speaker; and if the Offence be great, he is sent to the Tower. When the Bill of Attainder of the Earl of Strafford, was passing the House of Commons, Mr. Taylor, a Member of that House, opposed it with great Violence and Indecency, and being heard to explain himself, was commanded to withdraw; whereupon it was resolved he should be expelled the House, be made incapable of ever serving as a Member of Parliament, and should be committed Prisoner to the Tower, there to remain during the Pleasure of the House: And he was called to the Bar, where he kneeled down, and Mr. Speaker pronounced the Sentence accordingly. And Sir John Elliot, Denzel Hollis, and another Person, having spoke these Words, (viz.) The King's Privy Council, his Judges, and his Counsel learned in the Law, have conspired to trample under their Feet the Liberties of the Subject, and of this House, an Information was brought against them by the Attorney General; and farther, for that the King having signified his Pleasure to the House of Commons for the Adjournment of the Parliament, and the Speaker endeavouring to get out of the Chair, they Violenter, &c. detained him in the Chair; upon which there was a great Tumult in the House, to the Terror of the Commons there assembled, and against their Allegiance, in Contempt of the King, his Crown and Dignity: The Defendants pleaded to the Jurisdiction of the Court, and refused to answer but in Parliament; but it was adjudged, that they ought to answer, the Charge being for a Conspiracy, and seditious Acts to prevent the Adjournment of the Parliament, which may be examined out of it; and not answering, Judgment was given against them, that Sir John Elliot should be committed to the Tower, and fined 2000 l. and the other two were Fined and Imprisoned. Cro. Car. 130. Members of Parliament, with their Servants, are not only privileged from Arrests, but likewise in an extraordinary Manner from Assaults, Menaces, &c. Sir Robert Brandling made an Assault upon Mr. Witherington, a Member of the House of Commons, in the Country before his Coming up to Parliament; and Sir Robert was sent for up by the House, and committed to the Tower. And Anno 19 Jac. 1. some Speeches passed privately in the House between two of the Members, and one of them going down the Parliament Stairs struck the other, who catching at a Sword in his Man's Hand, endeavoured to return the Stroke; and upon Complaint to the House of Commons they were both ordered to attend, where he who gave the Blow was committed to the Tower during the Pleasure of the House. Assaulting a Member coming to or attending in Parliament, the Offender shall pay double Damages, and make Fine and Ransom, &c. Stat. 11 H. 6. All Members of Parliament, that they may attend the publick Service of their Country, have Privilege of Parliament for themselves and their menial Servants, to be free from Arrests, Subpœnas, Citations, &c. and for their Horses and Goods to be free from Distresses: And this Privilege of Parliament doth generally hold in all Cases except in Treason, Felony and Breach of the Peace. 4 Inst. 24, 25. There are many remarkable Cases in our Books treating of the Privileges of Parliament, relating to Arrests of Members of the House of Commons, and their Servants, and the Manner of their Confinement, Release, &c. The first Year of K. Jac. Sir Thomas Shirley, a Member of Parliament, was arrested four Days before the Sitting of the Parliament, and carried Prisoner to the Fleet; on which a Warrant issued to the Clerk of the Crown for a Habeas Corpus to bring him to the House, and the Serjeant was sent for in Custody, who being brought to the Bar, and confessing his Fault, was excused for that Time: But on hearing Counsel at the Bar for Sir Thomas Shirley, and the Warden of the Fleet, and upon producing Precedents, Simpson the Prosecutor, who caused the Arrest to be made, was ordered to be committed to the Tower; and afterwards the Warden refusing to execute the Writ of Habeas Corpus, and the Delivery of Sir Thomas being denied, was likewise committed to the Tower, tho' on his Agreeing to deliver up Sir Thomas, upon a new Warrant for a new Writ of Habeas Corpus, and making his Submission to the House, he was discharged: This Affair taking up some Time, the House entered into several Debates touching their Privileges, and how the Debt of the Party might be satisfied, which produced three Questions; First, Whether Sir Thomas Shirley should have Privilege? Secondly, Whether presently or to be deferred? And, Thirdly, Whether the House should petition the King for some Course for securing the Debt of the Party, according to former Precedents, and saving harmless the Warden of the Fleet? All which Questions were resolved; and a Bill was brought in to secure Simpson's Debt, &c. which also occasioned an Act 1 Jac. 1. c. 13. for Relief of Plaintiffs in Writs of Execution, where the Defendants in such Writs are arrested, and set at Liberty by Privilege of Parliament, by which a fresh Prosecution and new Execution may be had against them when that Privilege ceases. Lex Constitut. 141. And 19 Jac. one Johnson, a Servant to Sir James Whitlock, a Member of the House of Commons, was arrested by two Bailiffs, who being told Sir James Whitlock was a Parliament Man, answered, that they had known greater Mens Servants than his taken from their Masters in Time of Parliament: And this appearing, the two Bailiffs were sentenced to ask Pardon of the House and Sir James Whitlock, on their Knees; that they should both ride upon one Horse bare-backed, Back to Back, from Westminster to the Exchange, with Papers on their Breasts signifying their Offence; all which was to be executed presently, Sedente Curia. Ibid. In Action of Debt upon a Bond, conditioned that B. B. should render himself at such a Day and Place to an Arrest; the Defendant pleaded, that by Privilege of Parliament, the Members, &c. and their Servants, ought not to be arrested by the Space of forty Days before the Sitting of the Parliament, nor during the Session, nor forty Days afterwards; and that B. B. was at that Time Servant to such a Member of Parliament, so as he could not render himself to be arrested: Upon Demurrer to this Plea, it was adjudged ill, because he might have rendered himself at the

the Time and Place; but then it would be at their Peril if he was arrested. 1 Brownl. 81. The Commons in Parliament claim Privilege for forty Days before and after each Session and Prorogation. 2 Lev. 72. Though the Statute 12 W. 3. c. 3. ordains, that Actions may be prosecuted in any of the Courts at Westminster against Persons intitled to Privilege of Parliament, after a Dissolution or Prorogation, until a new Parliament is called, or the same is reassembled. And after Adjournment for above fourteen Days, and the respective Courts may proceed to Judgment, &c. Proceedings are to be by Summons and Distress infinite, until the Parties shall enter a common Appearance; and the Real or Personal Estates of the Defendants may be sequestred for Default of Appearance; but the Plaintiff may not arrest their Bodies: And where any Plaintiff shall be stayed or prevented from Proceeding by Privilege of Parliament, he shall not be barred by any Statute of Limitation, or Nonsuited, Dismissed, or his Suit discontinued for Want of Prosecution; but at the Rising of the Parliament shall be at Liberty to proceed to Judgment and Execution. Also the King's Debtor or Accomptant shall not be Privileged by Parliament, &c. And by 2 Ann. c. 8. Actions may be prosecuted against Officers of the Revenue, or in any Place of Publick Trust, for any Forfeiture or Breach of Trust, &c. and shall not be stayed by Colour of Privilege: But such Officer being a Member of Parliament, is not subject to Arrest during the Time of Privilege, but Summons, Attachment, &c. A Defendant who was a Member of Parliament, brought a Letter from the Speaker to the Court of King's Bench to stay Proceedings; but the Court would not allow it, but told him he might bring his Writ of Privilege. Latch. 150. Judgment was had against the Defendant, and afterwards he was chosen a Member of Parliament, and after his Election he was taken in Execution, yet he had his Privilege; though the Book tells us minus juste. Moor 57. And where Judgment being had against a Defendant, and he was taken in Execution in the Morning, and about three Hours afterwards was chosen a Member of Parliament; the House agreed, that being arrested before he was chosen, &c. he shall not have his Privilege. Moor 340. 1 Nelf. Abr. 27. The Courts at Westminster may judge of the Privilege of Parliament, where it is incident to a Suit the Court is possessed of: And Courts may proceed to Execution between the Sessions of Parliament, notwithstanding Appeals lodged, &c. State Trials, 2 Vol. pag. 66, 209.

Election of Members of Parliament. The Parliament is called by Force of the King's Writ of Summons out of Chancery, at least forty Days before the Parliament begins: And the Commons are elected by the People; and every Member, though chose for one particular Place or Borough, serves for the whole Kingdom. Also as Attendance of this Nature is for the Service of the Publick, the whole Nation has such an Interest therein, that the King cannot grant an Exemption to any Person from being elected as a Knight, Citizen or Burgess in Parliament; and for that Elections ought to be free. 29 H. 6. But an Alien cannot be elected of the Parliament, for he is not the King's Liege Subject; though if an Alien were Naturalized by Act of Parliament, he was eligible till the Stat. 12 W. 3. c. 2. A Man attainted of Treason or Felony, or one

Outlawed, &c. is not eligible; nor shall such Persons be suffered in the House of Parliament. 4 Inst. 48. A Person under the Age of twenty-one Years, may not be elected to sit in Parliament; neither can any Lord sit there, until he be of the full Age of twenty-one Years. Ibid. It was formerly held, that Mayors and Bailiffs of Towns-Corporate were not eligible; but now they may be elected: And so may a Sheriff of a County for another Shire. 4 Inst. 38 H. None of the Judges of the King's Bench or Common Pleas, or Barons of the Exchequer, who have Judicial Places, can be chosen Knight, Citizen or Burgess of Parliament, as it is now holden, and because they are Assistants in the House of Lords: And yet we find in the Parliament. Roll 31 H. 8. that Thorpe, Baron of the Exchequer, was Speaker of the House of Commons: Persons that have Judicial Places in the other Courts, Ecclesiastical or Civil, are eligible. 4 Inst. 47. Clergymen are not eligible to be Knights, Citizens or Burgesses of Parliament, they being of another Body, viz. of the Convocation. Ibid. Any of the Profession of the Common Law, and which are in the Practice of the same, are eligible; but Anno 6 H. 4. a Parliament was summoned by Writ and by Colour of a certain Ordinance, it was forbidden that any Lawyers should be chosen; by Reason whereof my Lord Coke observes, this Parliament was fruitless: And the prohibitory Clause inserted in the Writs was against Law, for Lawyers are eligible of Common Right, and cannot be disabled by Ordinance without Act of Parliament. By Stat. 12 W. 3. no Person who had any Office or Place of Profit under the King, or Pension from the Crown, was to serve as a Member of the House of Commons: And by 4 & 5 Ann. no Member of Parliament may enjoy any Office in the Government, and sit in the House at the same Time by Virtue of his former Election; for by the Acceptance of any Office, his Election is void: But he may be elected again, on a new Writ issued out, and sit in the House; and Officers in the Army or Navy, receiving any new Commission, need not be re-elected. 6 Ann. When Persons are incapable of being elected, the Election shall be void; and Sitting or Voting in the House of Commons they shall forfeit 500 l. And the Stat. 1 Geo. c. 56. enacts, that no Person having any Pension from the Crown, either in his own Name or in Trust for him, shall be capable of being elected a Member of Parliament, or of Sitting and Voting in the House: Pensioners presuming to Sit and Vote, shall forfeit 20 l. for every Day, &c. But the Act mentions a Pension for any Term or Number of Years; and not a Pension during Pleasure, according to the 4 Ann. c. 8. By ancient Statutes, Knights of the Shire are to be resident in the County for which they are chosen, as likewise Citizens and Burgesses elected shall be resident in and free of the same Cities and Boroughs, the Day of the Date of the Writ of Summons; and they are to be notable Knights of the same County, &c. notable Esquires or Gentlemen: Also by a late Act, no Person shall be qualified to serve in Parliament as a Knight of the Shire, who hath not an Estate of Freehold or Copyhold for Life, or some greater Estate to his own Use, of 600 l. a Year, over and above what will satisfy all Incumbrances, and a Citizen and Burgess 300 l. per Annum, of which Oath is to be made at the Request of a Candidate, or two Persons having Right

Right to Vote; and if any Person shall be elected and returned not so qualified, the Return shall be void. 9 Ann. c. 5. And none shall be qualified by Virtue of any Mortgage, whereof the Equity of Redemption is in another; unless the Mortgagee shall have been in Possession seven Years before the Election: But the eldest Son of a Peer, or of any Person qualified to serve as Knight of the Shire, shall not be incapable of being elected. Stat. Ibid. Members of Parliament must take the Oaths to the Government before they Sit and Vote in the House; or be adjudged Popish Recufants, and be disabled to sit in Parliament, and liable to certain Forfeitures, &c. Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 1. 30 Car. 2. c. 1. And this Statute is confirmed and enforced by the 13 & 14 W. 3. c. 6. The Election of Knights of the Shire is to be made by a Majority of Voices dwelling in the Counties, having each of them Lands or Tenements to the yearly Value of 40 s. besides Reprifes; and he that cannot expend 40 s. per Ann. shall have no Vote in the Election of Knights for the Parliament. 8 H. 6. c. 7. And by the 10 H. 6. c. 2. an Elector of Knights of the Shire must be resident, and have 40 s. per Annum Freehold over and above Reprifes in the same County. The 7 & 8 W. 3. requires, that every Freeholder shall take an Oath that he is a Freeholder of the County, and has Freehold Lands or Hereditaments of the yearly Value of 40 s. lying at such a Place, within the said County, and that he hath not been before polled at the Election: No Person is to be admitted to Vote in any Election of a Member to serve in Parliament, who is under the Age of twenty-one, or be intitled to any Vote by Reason of any Trust or Mortgage; if the Trustee or Mortgagee be not in actual Possession, and receive the Rents and Profits of the Estate; but the Mortgagor or Cestui que Trust in Possession, shall and may vote for the same Estate: And all Conveyances of Lands, Tenements, &c. in order to multiply Votes, or split and divide the Interest in any Houses or Lands, among several Persons, to enable them to vote, shall be void and of none Effect. By the 10 Ann. c. 22. None shall have a Voice for electing Knights of the Shire in Right of any Lands, who has not been charged or assessed to the Publick Taxes, Church Rates and Parish Duties, in such Proportion as other Lands and Tenements of 40 s. per Annum, lying within the same Parish; and for which he shall not have received the Rents and Profits, or be intitled to have received the same to the full Value of 40 s. or more, to his own Use for one Year, before the Election, except such Lands or Tenements come by Descent, Devise, Presentation to some Church, or Promotion to an Office, to which a Freehold is annexed; and Persons voting contrary shall forfeit 40 l. All Estates and Conveyances made to any Person in a fraudulent Manner, on Purpose to qualify him to vote, subject to Conditions to defeat or determine such Estate or reconvey the same, shall be taken against the Persons executing the same as free and absolute; and all Bonds, &c. for Redemption shall be void; also Persons voting by Colour of such Conveyance, incur a Forfeiture of 40 l. Persons refusing to take the Oaths of Abjuration, &c. are disabled to vote at any Election for Members of Parliament. 1 Geo. c. 13. As to who are or ought to be the Electors in Boroughs, it hath very much exercised the British House of Commons: In the 22 Jac. 1. it was resolved, that where there is no Charter or Custom to the contrary, the Election in Boroughs is to be made by all the Householders, and not Freeholders only: And in a Question whether the Commons or the Capital Burgeses of a certain Borough in Lincolnshire, were the Electors of Members to Parliament, Anno 4 Car. 1. it was agreed, that the Election of Burgeses in all Boroughs did of common Right belong to the Commoners, and that nothing could take it from them but a Prescription and constant Usage beyond the Memory of Man. It has been holden, that the Commonalties of Cities and Burghs are only the ordinary and lower Sort of Citizens, Burgeses or Freemen; and that the Right of Election of Burgeses to Parliament in all Boroughs belongs to the Commoners, viz. the ordinary Burgeses or Freemen; and not to the Mayor, Aldermen, and Common Council: Though the Meaning of the Words Communitates Civitatum & Burgorum, has always signified, rightly understood, the Mayor, Aldermen and Common Council, where they were to be found; or the Steward or Bailiff, and Capital Burgeses, or the governing Part of Cities and Towns, by what Persons soever they were governed, or Titles called. The most extraordinary Case which has happened in this Age, with Relation to the Determinations of a Committee of Privileges and Elections, was the Case of Ashby and White, concerning the Borough of Ailesbury; on a Question put, whether an Action at Law lies for an Elector who is denied his Vote? In this Case the Debates ended in the following Resolutions, viz. That the Qualification of Electors and of Persons elected, is cognizable only before the Commons in Parliament; and that the examining and determining the Qualification or Right of any Elector, &c. belongs to them, where the Acts of Parliament give no particular Direction, that whoever shall prosecute any Action, &c. which shall bring the Right of Electors to the Determination of any other Jurisdiction than that of the House of Commons, except in Cases provided for by some Statute, shall be guilty of a Breach of the Privilege of the House. Several Defendants were committed to Newgate by a Warrant signed by Robert Harley, Speaker of the House of Commons, for prosecuting Actions at Law against the Constables of the aforesaid Borough of Ailesbury, for refusing to take their Votes at the Election of Members of Parliament, &c. in Contempt of the Jurisdiction and Privileges of the House; and this Matter being returned by Habeas Corpus severally, and the Defendants brought into Court, their Counsel moved that they might be discharged, for that the Prosecution of a Suit at Law could be no unlawful Act, nor a Breach of the Privileges of the House of Commons: Three Judges were of Opinion, that the House were the proper Judges of their own Privileges; but Holt Chief Justice held, that the Authority of the Commons was circumscribed by Law; and if they should exceed that Authority, then to say they were Judges of their own Privileges is to make their Privileges to be what they would have them to be; and that if they should wrongfully imprison there could be no Redress, so that the Court at Westminster could not execute the Laws upon which the Liberties of the Subject subsist. 2 Sal. 503. And in Action on the Case, by a Burgess of Ailesbury against the Constables of the said

Borough, for refusing to receive the Plaintiff's Vote in the Election for a Member of Parliament; the Plaintiff had a Verdict, but the Judgment was arrested by the Opinion of three Judges, viz. That the Action is not maintainable, because the Constables acted as Judges, and the not Receiving the Plaintiff's Vote is Damnum sine injuria; for when the Matter comes before the House, his Vote will be received; that the Right of electing Members to serve in Parliament, is to be decided in Parliament, and the Plaintiff may petition the House for that Purpose, and after 'tis determined there, he may there bring his Action, and not before: Holt Chief Justice contra, That the Plaintiff had a Right to vote; a Freeholder has a Right to vote by Reason of his Freehold; and it is a real Right, and the Value of his Freehold was not material till the Stat. 8 Hen. 6. which requires it to be 40 s. per Annum: That as it is Ratione liberi tenementi in Counties; so in ancient Boroughs, they have a Right to vote ratione Burgagii; and in Cities and Corporations, it is ratione Franchesie, and a personal Inheritance, vested in the whole Corporation, but to be used by the particular Members; that this is a noble Privilege, which entitles the Subject to a Share in the Government and Legislature; and that if the Plaintiff hath a Right, he must have a Remedy to assert that Right, for Want of Right and Want of Remedy is the same Thing; that Refusing to take the Plaintiff's Vote is an Injury, and every Injury imports a Damage; and that where a parliamentary Matter comes in incidentally to an Action of Property, in the King's Court, it must be determined there, and not in Parliament; the Parliament cannot judge of the Injury, nor give Damages to the Plaintiff, and he hath no Remedy by way of Petition: And according to this Opinion, the Judgment of the other three Judges was reversed upon a Writ of Error brought in the House of Lords. 1 Salk. 19. Mod. Caf. 45. This Cause occasioned great Disputes, between the two Houses of Parliament; the Lords insisting, that if the Commons only could judge of the Right of their Electors, they would in Effect chuse their Electors, &c. And the Commons alleging, that if the Right of Electors might be determined in the Courts of Law, from whence Causes are removed by Writ of Error into the House of Lords, the Lords would become Judges of the Right of Electors to chuse, and consequently who were duly elected Members of the Commons House, whereby the Commons would lose their Independency, and be subject to the Lords, &c. But the Parliament being soon after prorogued, the Dispute was drop'd. By the Common Law of England, every Commoner hath a Right not to be subjected to Laws made without his Consent; and because such Consent cannot be given by every individual Man in Person, by Reason of Number and Confusion; that Power is lodged in their Representatives, elected and chosen by them, viz. Knights, Citizens, &c. 3 Salk. 18. And in several Counties, the Citizens and Burgesses were formerly chosen in the County-Courts, with the Knights of Shires, and jointly returned, &c. For there were commonly four or five Citizens or Burgesses sent from the respective Cities or Boroughs to the County-Court; and there they were chosen, with full Power for themselves and their several Communities, to do and consent to such Things, as by the Common Council of the Kingdom, assembled in Parliament, should be ordained and enacted. It is said by some Writers, that in ancient Times the King hath nominated the very Persons to be returned, and did not leave it to the Election of the People; for which they give an Instance in the 45th Year of Ed. 3. And among the Parliament Writs 14 Eliz. there appears to be an Appointment and Return of Burgesses, by the Lord of a Town, &c. But these are single Instances in their Kind; and the Writs for Elections in the 23d Year of King Ed. 1. ran in English as follows, viz.

Form of an ancient Writ for Election of Members of Parliament.

TO the Sheriff of, &c. Greeting: Because we desire to have a Conference and Treaty with the Earls, Barons, and other great Men of our Kingdom, to provide Remedies against the Dangers our Kingdom is in at this Time; therefore we have commanded them, that they be with us at Westminster, on the Day, &c. next coming to treat, ordain, and do, so as those Dangers may be prevented: And we command, and firmly enjoin thee, that, without Delay, thou dost cause to be chosen, and to come to us, at the Time and Place aforesaid, two Knights of the County aforesaid, and of every City two Citizens, and of every Borough two Burgesses, of the best, most able, and discreet Men for Business; so as the said Knights may have sufficient Power for themselves, and the Community of the County aforesaid, and the Citizens and Burgesses may have the same Power separately from them, for themselves and the Communities of Cities and Burghs, then to do in the Premises what shall be ordained by the Common Council of the Realm, so that the Business aforesaid may not remain undone; and have there the Names of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses, and this Writ. Witness the King, &c.

The Return of the Writ, thereon indorsed, was thus.

IA. B. Sheriff, by Virtue of this Writ have caused to be chosen in the County of, &c. two Knights, and of every City of the same County two Citizens, and of every Borough two Burgesses, of the best, most able, and discreet Knights, Citizens and Burgesses of the County, City and Burghs aforesaid, according to the Tenor of the Writ.

By the Stat. 7 H. 4. cap. 15. The Election of Knights of the Shire, is to be made in the following Manner: At the next County-Court, after the Delivery of the Writ, Proclamation is to be made by the Sheriff of the County of the Day and Place the Parliament is to assemble, and that all as are there present shall attend to the Election of Knights of the Shire; and then in full County, a free and indifferent Election shall be made: And after such Choice, the Names of the Parties chosen, are to be written in an Indenture under the Seals of the Electors, which Indenture so sealed and tacked to the Writ, shall be the Sheriff's Return thereof. And by 23 H. 6. cap. 7. it is Enacted, That the Sheriff after Receipt of the Writ, shall deliver a Precept under his Seal to every Mayor and Bailiff of Cities and Boroughs within his County, reciting the Writ, and requiring them to chuse two Citizens and Burgesses to come to the Parliament; and such Mayors and Head Officers, are to make Return of the Precept to the Sheriff, by Indenture, &c. whereupon the Sheriff is enabled to make a good Return of the Writ: The Sheriff

Sheriff is to make Election between the Hours of eight and eleven in the Forenoon; and if any Knight, Citizen, or Burgeſs, returned by the Sheriff ſhall be put out and the Name of another put in, diſverſe Penalties are incurred; Sheriffs acting contrary to this Statute, and not returning a Member duly elected, are ſubject to a Forfeiture of 100 l. recoverable by Action of Debt; and Officers of Corporations, making falſe Returns, liable to a Penalty of 40 l. &c. It has been adjudged on this Act, that though no Election ſhould be made of any Knight of the Shire, but between eight and eleven of the Clock in the Forenoon; if the Election be begun within that Time, and cannot be determined in thoſe Hours, it may be made after. 4 Inſt. 48. And if any Electors give their Voices before the Precept for Election is read and published, it will be of no Force; for after the Precept is thus read, &c. they may alter their Voices and make a new Election. Ibid. 49. The Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. ordains, if any Perſon ſhall return a Member to ſerve in Parliament for any Place, contrary to the Determination in the Houſe of Commons of the Right of Election for ſuch Place, the Return ſo made ſhall be judged a falſe Return; and the Party making it may be proſecuted, and double Damages with Coſts recovered againſt him: Officers wilfully and falſly returning more Perſons than are required to be choſen by the Writ or Precept, the like Remedy may be had againſt them; and all Contracts, Promiſes, &c. to return any Member of Parliament are not only declared void, but the Makers or Givers of the Contracts, &c. or of any Gift or Reward to procure a falſe or double Return, ſhall forfeit 300 l. one Third to the King, another to the Informer, and the other Third to the Poor of the Place, to be recovered in any Court of Record at Weſtmiſter, &c. By 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 25. When any new Parliament ſhall be called, there ſhall be forty Days between the Teſte and Returns of the Writs; the Lord Chancellor, &c. is to iſſue out Writs for Election of Members of Parliament, with as much Expedition as may be; and the ſeveral Writs ſhall be delivered to the proper Officers for Execution, who are to indorſe the Day of the Receipt on the back of the Writ, and forthwith make out the Precepts to each Borough, &c. which are to be delivered to the Officers of every ſuch Borough, within three Days, and they muſt likewiſe indorſe the Day of Receipt, and immediately cauſe publick Notice to be given of the Time and Place of Election, and proceed to Election thereupon in eight Days: For electing of Knights of the Shire, the Sheriff is to hold his County-Court at the moſt publick and uſual Place, and there proceed in the Election at the next Court, unleſs it fall out to be within fix Days after the Receipt of the Writ, and then the ſame is to be adjourned, giving ten Days Notice of the Election; if the Election be not determined on View, but a Poll is demanded, the Sheriff is to take the ſame, and likewiſe a Scrutiny, and he or his Under-Sheriff ſhall appoint and ſwear Clerks for that Purpoſe, &c. The County-Court is not to be adjourned to any other Place, without the Conſent of the Candidates; nor ſhall any unneceſſary Adjournments be made, but the Poll to proceed; alſo every Sheriff, &c. is to deliver a Copy of the Poll to any Perſon deſiring it; and Officers for every wilful Offence againſt this Act, are ſubject to a Forfeiture of 500 l. The 10 & 11 W. 3. directs, That the Sheriff or other Officer having the Execution and Return of Writs of Summons for Parliament, ſhall on or before the Day of Meeting of the Parliament, and with all Expedition not exceeding fourteen Days after Election, make Returns to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery to be filed, on Pain of forfeiting 500 l. And the returning Officer, within twenty Days after the Election, is to deliver over to the Clerk of the Peace, all the Poll-Books on Oath made before two Juſtices, to be preſerved among the Records of the Sessions of the Peace, &c. 10 Ann. cap. 23. In double Returns, it has been formerly a general Practice in the Houſe of Commons, that neither one nor the other ſhould ſit in the Houſe, until it be decided; Anno 1640, two Returns were made for Great Marlow, and in both Indentures one Perſon was returned, and he was admitted to ſit, but the others ordered to withdraw until the Queſtion was determined: And in the ſame Year, it was ordered, That where ſome are returned by the Sheriff, or ſuch other Officer as by Law hath Power to return, and others returned by private Hands; in ſuch Caſe, thoſe that are returned by the Sheriff or other Officer, ſhall ſit until the Election is quaſhed by the Houſe. Ordin. 1640. If one be duly elected Knight, Citizen, or Burgeſs, and the Sheriff, &c. return another, the Return muſt be reformed and amended; and he that is duly elected, is to be inſerted, for the Election is the Foundation, and not the Return. 4 Inſt. 49. In Action of the Caſe, &c. the Plaintiff declared, that he was duly elected a Member of Parliament for ſuch a Borough, and the Defendant returned two other Perſons, and that he petitioned the Houſe of Commons, and was adjudged to be duly elected, and his Name ordered to be inſerted in the Roll, and the Name of the other to be razed out: The Plaintiff had a Verdict; but it was adjudged in Arreſt of Judgment, that this Declaration was not founded on the Act 7 & 8 W. 3. becauſe that Statute gave an Action where there was none before, and therefore the Faſt muſt be laid agreeable to it, which not being done, the Defendant had Judgment. 2 Salk. 504. The Court will not meddle in an Action upon a double Return, until it is determined in Parliament. Lutw. 88. And it hath been holden, that for a double Return, no Action lay before the Statute 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. becauſe it is the only Method that the Sheriff had to ſecure himſelf; and when the Right was decided in the Parliament, then one Indenture is taken off the File, ſo that it is not then a double Return; neither can the Party have an Action for a falſe Return, for the Matter may be determined in the Houſe whether true or falſe; and if ſo, there will be an Inconvenience in contrary Reſolutions, if they ſhould determine in one Way, and the Courts at Law another Way; but after a Diſſolution the Action may lie for a falſe Return, as then the Right cannot be determined in Parliament. 2 Salk. 502. A double Return is of the ſame Nature with a falſe Return, as to Action on the Caſe; in both it is grounded on the Falſity; but there is another Reaſon why this Action will not lie for a double Return, (viz.) becauſe the Law doth not take any Notice of ſuch a Return, it is only allowed by the Uſage of Parliament, and in Caſes wherein the proper Officer cannot determine who is chosen; therefore when he doubts, he makes a double Return, and submits the Choice to the Determination of the House of Commons; and if that House doth admit such Returns, and make Determinations on them, it will be hard for the Law to subject a Man to an Action only for submitting a Fact to be determined by a Court, which hath a proper Jurisdiction to determine it: And by Reason of the Variety of Opinions, that an Action in this Case would lie, and would not; it hath been enacted by Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 7. That the last Determination of the House of Commons concerning the Right of Election, is to be pursued. 2 Lev. 114. 1 Nelf. Abr. 30. A Member elected and returned for several Places, is to make his Choice for which Place he will serve; and if he doth not, by the Time which the House shall appoint, the House may determine for what Place he shall continue a Member, and Writs shall go out for the other Place. Candidates are not to make Presents of Money to, or treat, &c. Electors, after the Teste of the Writ of Summons, or issuing out the Writs of Election, or after any Place of a Member becomes vacant; if they do, for this Bribery they shall be incapacitated to serve as Members. 7 W. 3. c. 4. And no Officers of the Excise, Post-Office, &c. are to make any Interest for Members of Parliament, on Pain of forfeiting 100*l.* and Disability, &c. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 20. Members of Parliament had anciently an Allowance or Wages, for Attendance in the House, by Statute; Knights of the Shire 4*s.* a Day, and Citizens and Burgeffes 2*s.* per Diem. 4 Inst. 46.

Parliaments holden, and Proceedings in. Before the Conquest, Parliaments were to be held twice every Year: The 4 Ed. 3. Enacted, That a Parliament should be holden once a Year, and oftner if necessary; and the 36 Ed. 6. requires a Parliament to be held every Year. But by the Means of Cardinal Wolsey, the Favourite of King Hen. 8. a Parliament was but held once in fourteen Years during that Reign; which was upon a remarkable Occasion, viz. to attain the Duke of Buckingham. The Stat. 16 Car. 2. cap. 1. ordains, that the Sitting and Holding of Parliaments shall not be discontinued above three Years. And the 6 W. & M. cap. 2. enacts, That new Parliaments shall be chosen once in three Years; and no Parliament continue longer than three Years. But by 1 Geo. c. 38. the Time of Continuance of Parliaments is enlarged to seven Years; to be computed from the Day appointed for their Meeting, by the Writ of Summons. The occasional Law. 1 W. & M. Sess. 1. cap. 1. declared, That the Lords and Commons convened at Westminster, were the two Houses of Parliament, notwithstanding the Want of any Writ of Summons, or other Defect of Form, &c. A Parliament cannot begin, on the Return of the Writs, without the Presence of the King, in Person, or by Representation; and by Representation two Ways, either by a Guardian of England, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, when the King is out of the Realm; or by Commission, to certain Noble Lords in Case of Indisposition, &c. when his Majesty is at Home. 4 Inst. 6, 7. And if any Parliament is to be holden before a Guardian of the Realm, there must be a special Commission to begin the Parliament; but the Teste of the Writs of Summons is to be in the Guardian's Name: And by an ancient Law, if the King being beyond the Seas, cause a Parliament to be summoned in this Kingdom, by Writ under the Teste of his Lieutenant; and after the King returns hither, the Parliament shall not be dissolved by the Arrival of the King, but shall proceed without any new Summons. 8 H. 5. In the fifth Year of King Henry 5. a Parliament was held before John Duke of Bedford, Brother to the King, and Guardian of the Kingdom. Anno 3 Edw. 4. a Parliament was begun in the Presence of the King, and prorogued to a further Day; and then William Archbishop of York, the King's Commissary by Letters Patent, held the same Parliament, and made an Adjournment, &c. And 28 Eliz. the Queen by Commission under the Great Seal, reciting that for urgent Occasions she could not be present in her Royal Person, did authorise John Whitgift Archbishop of Canterbury, William Lord Burleigh Lord Treasurer of England, and Henry Earl of Derby Lord Steward, to hold a Parliament, &c. Ad faciendum omnia & singula, necnon ad Parliamentum Adjornand' & Prorogand', &c. And in the upper Part of the Page, above the Beginning of the Commission is written, Domina Regina Representatur per Commissarios, viz. &c. These Commissioners sat on a Form before the Cloth of State, and after the Commission read, the Parliament proceeded. A Parliament may be holden at any Place the King shall assign; but it ought not to be dissolved as long as any Bill remains undiscussed, and Proclamation must be made in the Parliament, that if any Person have any Petition, he shall come in and be heard, and if no answer be given, it is intended that the publick are satisfied. Lex Constitution. 157. In former Times, by the Death of the King during the Sitting of the Parliament, the Parliament was ipso facto dissolved: But by the Stat. 1 Ann. c. 8. A Parliament sitting or in Being, at the Demise of the King, shall continue for six Months, &c. All Orders of Parliament determine by Prorogation; and one taken by Order of the Parliament, after their Prorogation, may be discharged on an Habeas Corpus, as well as after a Dissolution: But the Dissolution of a Parliament doth not alter the State of Impeachments, brought up by the Commons in a preceding Parliament. Raym. 120. 1 Lev. 384. And it hath been resolved by the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, that Cases of Appeals and Writs of Error, shall continue, and are to be proceeded in Statu quo, &c. as they stood at the Dissolution of the last Parliament. Raym. 381. A Prorogation of the Parliament is always by the King, and in this Case the Sessions must begin de Novo; and if a Parliament is prorogued upon the Return of the Writ of Summons, it begins at the End of the Prorogation: An Adjournment is by each House, and the Sessions continues notwithstanding such Adjournment. 1 Mod. 242. By a Prorogation of a Parliament, there is a Session; and every several Session of Parliament is in Law a several Parliament: Though if it be only an Adjournment, there is no Session; and when a Parliament is called and doth sit, but is dissolved without any Act passed, or Judgment given, it is no Session of Parliament, but a Convention. 4 Inst. 27. If a Parliament is assembled, and several Orders are made, and Writs of Error brought in the House of Peers, and several Bills agreed on, but none signed; this is but a Convention, and no Parliament, or Sessions of Parliament: But every Session, in which the King signs a Bill

a Bill, is a Parliament, and so every Parliament is a Session. 1 Roll. Rep. 29. Hutt. 61. And a Session doth continue, until it is prorogued or dissolved. The Parliament from the first Day of sitting is called the first Session of Parliament, &c. Raym. 120. And the Courts of Justice, ex Officio are to take Notice of the Beginning, Prorogation, and Ending of every Parliament; also of all general Statutes: And Acts of Parliament take Effect from the Beginning of the Parliament, unless it be otherwise ordered by the Acts. 1 Lev. 296. 4 Rep. Hob. 111. On a Prorogation, such Bills as have passed either or both Houses, not having received the Royal Assent, must fall: For there can be no Act of Parliament, without the Consent of the Lords, and Commons, and the Royal Fiat of the King, giving his Consent personally, or by Commission; and by the Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 21. the King may pass Acts by Commission under the Great Seal, signed by his Hand; and such Acts shall be of equal Force as if the King were present in Person. Every Man in Judgment of Law is Party to an Act of Parliament; after the Royal Assent is given, it is the Prince's, and whole Realm's Deed: The Determination of the High Court of Parliament, being presumed to be the Act of every particular Subject, who is either present personally, or consenting by his Representative. Publick Bills or Acts of Parliament are commonly drawn by such Members of the House of Commons as are most inclined to the Effecting the Good of the Publick, particularly in Relation to the Bill designed, taking Advice thereupon; and Acts for the Revival, Repeal, or Continuance of Statutes, are penned by Lawyers Members of the House, appointed for that Purpose: And in the bringing in and passing of Statutes, the following Formalities are observed, viz. Any Member of Parliament may move for a Bill to be brought in, except it be for imposing a Tax, which is to be done by Order of the House; and being granted, the Person making the Motion, and those who second it, are ordered to prepare and bring in the same: When the Bill is ready, some of the Members ordered to prepare it, present it; and upon a Question being agreed to, it has the first Reading by the Clerk at the Table; after this, the Clerk delivers the Bill to the Speaker, who standing up declares the Substance of it, and if any Debate happens, he puts the Question, whether the same shall have a second Reading? And some Times upon Motion appoints a Day for it; for publick Bills, unless upon extraordinary Occasions, are seldom read more than once in a Day, the Members being allowed convenient Time to consider of them: If nothing be said against a Bill, the ordinary Course is to proceed without a Question; but if the Bill be generally disliked, a Question is some Times put, whether the Bill shall be rejected? And if it be rejected, it cannot be proposed any more that Session: When a Bill hath been read a second Time, any Member may move to have the same amended; but no Member of the House is admitted to speak more than once in a Debate, except the Bill be read more than once that Day, or the whole House is turned into a Committee; and after some Time spent in Debates, the Speaker collecting the Sense of the House, reduces the same to a Question, which he submits to the House, and is put to the Vote: And a Question is to be put, after the Bill is so read a second

Time, whether it shall be committed? which is either to a Committee of the whole House or a private Committee, as the Importance of the Bill shall require; and this Committee is to report their Opinion of the Bill, with the Amendments to the House, the Chairman having caused the Clerk attending to read the Bill, and read it himself, putting every Clause to the Question, &c. The Chairman makes his Report at the Side-Bar of the House, reading all the Alterations made, and then delivers the same to the Clerk of the Parliament; who likewise reads all the Amendments, and the Speaker puts the Question, whether they shall be read a second Time? And if that be agreed unto, he reads the Amendments himself, and puts the Question, whether the Bill so amended shall be ingrossed, and read a third Time some other Day? And then the Speaker takes the Bill in his Hand, holds it up, and puts the last Question, whether the Bill shall pass? If a Majority of Voices are for it, then the Bill passes; and it is sent up to the House of Lords, where, when it is twice read, the Question is to be for Commitment; or if it be not committed, then it is to be read a third Time, and the next Question to be for its Passing; and upon the third Reading of the Bill, any Member may speak against the whole Bill to throw out the same, or for Amendment of any Clause thereof; and if it be amended, it is to be sent back again to the Commons for their Concurrence, and being returned, is then passed in the House of Lords, and ready for the Royal Assent. If a Bill passes in one House, but a Demur happens upon it when sent to the other House, in this Case a Conference is demanded; wherein certain deputed Members of each House meet in the Painted Chamber, and Debate the Matter; and when they have agreed, the Bill passed is brought to the King in the House of Lords; where having his Crown upon his Head, and his Royal Robes on, he declares the Royal Assent, by the Clerk of the Parliament. Pract. Solic. in Parliam. 397, 398. As for private Bills, Leave is to be obtained by Petition, &c. to bring in the same, and the Substance thereof is to be set forth, until which the Bill is not to be offered; and when the Petition is read, and Leave given to bring in the Bill, whereupon it is accordingly brought into the House, the Persons concerned may be heard by themselves or Counsel at the Bar, or before a Committee, to whom such Bill is referred; (and in Case of a Peer, he shall be admitted to come within the Bar of the House of Commons, and sit covered on a Stool whilst the same is debating) And after Counsel is heard on both Sides, and the House is satisfied with the Contents of the Bill, it is committed, and passed, &c. All Bills, Motions and Petitions, are by Order of Parliament to be entered on the Parliament Rolls, although they are denied, and never proceeded to the Establishment of a Statute, together with the Answers. Lex Constitution. 154. The Speaker of the House of Commons is not allowed to persuade or dissuade in passing of a Bill, only to make a short Narrative of it; if any Question be upon the Bill, he is to explain, but not enter into Argument or Dispute; and he is not to vote, except the House is equally divided: When Mr. Speaker desires to speak, he ought to be heard without Interruption; and when the Speaker stands up, the Member standing up is to sit down.

down: If two stand up to speak to a Bill, he that would speak against the Bill, if it be known, is to be first heard; otherwise he that was first up, which is to be determined by the Speaker: Whosoever hisses or disturbs any Person in his Speech, shall answer it at the Bar of the House. And in going forth, no Member is to stir, until Mr. Speaker rises from his Seat: and then all the Rest are to follow after. Ord. Anno 1604.

Parliamentum insanum, Was a Parliament assembled at Oxford Anno 41 H. 3. so stiled, from the Madness of their Proceedings; and because the Lords came with great Numbers of armed Men to it, and Contentions grew very high between the King, Lords and Commons, whereby many Things were enacted contrary to the King's Pleasure, &c. 4 Co. Abr. 280. 2 Inst. 258. Rasb. Entr. 360. The Granting of a Parol Demurrer is in Favour of an Infant, and for his Benefit, that he may not be prejudiced in his Right for Want of well knowing his Estate, &c. And, if his Ancestor dies seised, and the Lands descend to him, and he enters and takes the Profits, it would be a Prejudice to the Infant to lose the Possession which he hath; so that in that Case it shall stay until his Age. 6 Rep. 3. The Tenant in an Action, cannot pray Parol Demurrer, until the Infant Demandant comes of Age: This is expressly provided for by 6 Ed. 1. cap. 2. And it would damage the Infant, if he should be so delayed upon an Action brought by him, where an Estate is descended to him from his Ancestor. 6 Rep. 3, 5. Parol Demurrer is not allowed in an Affise, &c. 8 Rep. 50. But when it may be had, if two are vouched, and there is Parol Demurrer for the Nonage of one; it shall be for the other also. 45 Ed. 3. 23. See Age Prier.

N. B. 160.* No Parson or Spiritual Person, shall take a Farm, or Lease of Lands, &c. to himself, or any one for his Use, on Pain of forfeiting 10 l. a Month, one Moiety to the King, and the other to the Informer. Stat. 21 Hen. 8. cap. 13. Nor shall he buy, to sell again, any Merchandize, Corn, Cattle, &c. upon Forfeiture of treble Value: But it is provided, that he may buy Horses, or any other Cattle, for his necessary Use in manuring his Glebe and Church Lands. Ibid. On Information upon this Statute for renting a Farm, the Defendant pleaded in Bar, that he had nor sufficient Glebe for pasturing his Cattle, nor Corn for his Family; but the Plaintiff traversed his having spent the Product thereof in his Family, &c. 1 Lutw. 134. See Church.

is the Parson to whom the Benefice is given in the Patron's Right. Persona Impersonata is used for the Rector of a Church presentative. Reg. Judic. 24. And Dyer says, a Dean and Chapter are Parsons Imparsones of a Benefice appropriated to them; who also shews that Persona Impersonata is one that is inducted and in Possession of a Benefice. Dyer 40, 221. So that Persona may be termed Impersonata, only in Regard of the Possession he hath of the Rectory, by the Act of another. 1 Inst. 300. In a Quare Impedit the Parson is to plead Persona Impersonata; but if he doth not say at the Time of obtaining the Writ, it will be inferred by the Writ that he is. Cro. Car. 105.

Or it is a certain Portion of Land, Tithes, and Offerings; established by Law, for the Maintenance of the Minister, that hath the Cure of Souls within the Parish whereof he is Rector: And though properly a Parsonage or Rectory doth consist of Glebe Land and Tithes; yet it may be a Rectory, tho' it have no Glebe, but the Church and Church-yard: Also there may be neither Glebe nor Tithes, but annual Payments in Lieu thereof. Parf. Conc. 190. The Rights to the Parsonage and Church Lands are of several Natures: For the Parson hath a Right to the Possession; the Patron hath the Right of Presentation; and the Ordinary a Right of Investiture, &c. But the Rights of the Patron and Ordinary are only collateral Rights; neither of them being capable of possessing or retaining the Church themselves; though no Charge can be laid on the Church or Parsonage, but by the Consent and Agreement of all of them. *Hugh's Parf. And when there are Part-owners of a Ship, the Majority may fit her out, without the Consent of the Rest; and if they do, such Majority run all the Hazard, and are to partake of the Profits. Show. 13, 30. Action lies as well against the Part-owners of a Ship, for the Loss or Spoiling of Goods delivered to the Master, as against the Master; for as the Master of a Ship is chargeable in Respect of his Wages, so are the Part-owners in Respect of the Freight; but the Action against the Part-owners must be brought against all of them, or the Defendants may take Advantage of it by pleading in Abatement, &c. Show. Pastura differs from Pascua, as appears from what follows, viz. Pastura omne genus pascendi significat, sive fiat in Pratis, sive in stipula, sive in Agriis, sive in Campis; sed Pascua est locus principaliter deputatus pecoribus pascendis, ut puta in montibus, moris, mariscis & planis non cultis nec aratis. *Lindwood. Patron, (Patronus) Signifieth in the Civil Law him that hath manumitted a Servant; and thereby is accounted his great Benefactor, and claims Duty and Reverence of him during his Life. Digest. Tit. de Jure Patronatus. In the Canon and Common Law, it is he who hath the Gift and Disposition of an Ecclesiastical Benefice; and the Reason of it is, because the Gift of Churches and Benefices belonged unto such good Men, as either built or endowed them with great Part of their Revenues. Terms de Ley 473. And there are three Causes of Patronage: Ratione Fundationis, where one solely founds a Church; Ratione Donationis, when a Man only endows it; and Ratione Fundi, where a Person erects a Church on his own Ground. Litt. Rep. 137. 2 Lill. Abr. 286. The Patron is to present within six Kalendar Months after an Avoidance of the Church: And where the Church becomes void by the Death of the Incumbent, the Patron at his Peril is to take Notice of it, in making Presentation; but if there be an Avoidance by Deprivation, &c. he shall have Notice, and six Months after to present. 6 Rep. 61. 3 Leon. 46. Where a Church becomes litigious by the Presentation of two several Patrons of their Clerks, a Jus Patronatus may be awarded by the Bishop to inquire into who is rightful Patron; and he is to admit accordingly, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 384, 385. If there is a Right of Nomination in one, and a Right of Presentation in another to the same Church; he that hath the Right of Nomination is the true Patron. *F. N. Pawn, (Pignus) A Pledge or Gage for Surety of Payment of Money lent: It is said to be derived à Pugno, quia Res quæ Pignori dantur, pugno vel manu traduntur. Litt. Dist. The Party that pawns Goods, hath a general Property in them; they cannot be forfeited by the Party that hath them in Pawn for any Offence of his, nor be taken in Execution for his Debt; neither may they otherwise be put in Execution, till the Debt for which they are pawned is satisfied. Litt. Rep. 332. If a Man pawns Goods for Money, and afterwards a Judgment is had against the Pawnee, at the Suit of one of his Creditors; the Goods in the Hands of the Pawnee shall not be taken in Execution upon this Judgment, until the Money is paid to the Pawnee, because he had a qualified Property in them, and the Judgment-Creditor only an Interest. 3 Bulst. 17. And when a Person hath Jewels in Pawn for a certain Sum, and he that putteth them in Pawn is attainted; the King shall not have the Jewels unless he pay the Money. Plowd. 487. The Pawnee of Goods hath a special Property in them, to detain them for his Security, &c. and he may assign the Pawn over to another, who shall hold it subject to the same Conditions: And if the Pawnee die before redeem'd, his Executors shall have it upon the like Terms as he had it. If Goods pawn'd are perishable, and no Day being set for Payment of the Money, they lie in Pawn till spoiled, without any Default in him that hath them in Keeping; the Party that pawned them shall bear the Damage, for it shall be adjudged his Fault that he did not redeem them sooner; and he to whom pawned may have Action of Debt for his Money: Also if the Goods are taken from him, he may have Action of Trespass, &c. Co. Litt. 89, 208. Where Goods are pawned for Money borrow'd, without a Day set for their Redemption, they are redeemable at any Time during the Life of the Borrower: They may be redeem'd after the Death of him to whom pawn'd; but not after the Death of him who pawn'd the Goods. 2 Cro. 245. Goods pawned generally, without any

Day of Redemption, if the Pawner dies, the Pawn is absolute and irredeemable; if the Pawnee dies, it is not so. Noy 137. 1 Bulst. 9. If Goods are redeemable at a Day certain, it must be strictly observed; and the Pawnee, in Case of Failure of Payment at the Day, may sell them. 1 Roll. Rep. 181, 215. In other Cases; Brokers commonly stay but a Year for their Money, at the End of which, if not redeem'd, they sell the Goods. Law. Secur. 99. He who borrows Money on a Pawn is to have again the Pledge when he repays it, or he may have Action for the Detainer; and his Tender of the Money revests the Special Property. 2 Cro. 244. And it hath been held, that where a Broker or Pawnee refuses upon Tender of the Money, to redeliver the Goods in Pawn, he may be indicted; because being secretly pawn'd, it may be impossible to prove a Delivery for Want of Witnesses, if Action of Trover should be brought for them. Pasch. 5 W. 3. 3 Salk. 268. Adjudg'd, that if Goods are lost, after the Tender of the Money, the Pawnee is liable to make them good to the Owner; for after Tender he is a wrongful Detainer, and he who keeps Goods wrongfully must answer for them at all Events, his wrongful Detainer being the Occasion of the Loss: But if they are lost before a Tender, 'tis otherwise; the Pawnee is not liable, if his Care of Keeping them was exact; and the Law requires nothing of him, but only that he shall use an ordinary Care in Keeping of the Goods, that they may be restored on Payment of the Money for which they were deposited; and in such Case, if the Goods are lost, the Pawnee hath still his Remedy against the Pawner for the Money lent. 2 Salk. 522. 3 Salk. 268. If the Pawn is laid up, and the Pawnee robb'd, he is not answerable: Though if the Pawnee useth the Thing, as a Jewel, Watch, &c. that will not be the worse for Wearing, which he may do, it is at his Peril; and if he is robbed, he is answerable to the Owner, as the Using occasioned the Loss, &c. Ibid. If the Pawn is of such a Nature that the Keeping is a Charge to the Pawnee, as a Cow, or a Horse, &c. he may milk the one, or ride the other, and this shall go in Recompence for his Keeping. Ibid. Things which will grow the Worse by Usage, as Apparel, &c. he may not use. Owen 124.

Pawnage In Woods and Forests for Swine. Vide Pannage.

Payment Of Money before the Day appointed, is in Law a Payment at the Day; for it cannot, in Presumption of Law, be any Prejudice to him to whom the Payment is made, to have his Money before the Time; and it appears by the Party's Receipt of it, that it is for his own Advantage to receive it then, otherwise he would not do it: Yet it is said, that the Defendant must not plead, that the Plaintiff accepted it in full Satisfaction; but that he paid it in full Satisfaction. 5 Rep. 117. Payment of a lesser Sum in Satisfaction of a greater, cannot be a Satisfaction for the Whole, unless the Payment be before the Day: Though the Gift of an Horse, or Robe, &c. in Satisfaction, may be good. Ibid. Upon Soluit ad Diem pleaded, it is good Evidence to prove Payment at any Time after the Day, and before the Action brought; and Payment, altho' after the Day, may be pleaded to any Action of Debt, upon Bill, Bond or Judgment, or Scire facias upon a Judgment. 2 Lill. Abr. 287. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. Payment of Money shall be directed by him who pays it, and not by the Receiver, &c. 5 Rep. 117. Cro. Eliz. 68. Vide Bond. Payment of Rent. See Rent.

Peace, (Pax) In the general Signification, is opposite to War; but particularly with us, it signifies a quiet and inoffensive Behaviour towards the King and his People. Lamb. lib. 1. c. 2. All Authority for Keeping of the Peace comes originally from the King, who is the supream Officer or Magistrate for Preservation thereof; though it is said the King cannot take a Recognizance of the Peace, because it is a Rule in Law, that no one can take any Recognizance, who is not either a Justice of Record, or by Commission: Also it is certain, that no Duke, Earl, or Baron, as such, have any greater Power to keep the Peace, than meer private Persons. Lamb. lib. 1. ch. 3. Dalt. ch. 1. But the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, the Lord High Steward, the Lord Marshal, and every Justice of the King's Bench, have as incident to their Offices, &c. a general Authority to keep the Peace throughout all the Realm, and to award Process for the Surety of the Peace, and take Recognizances for it. 2 Hawk. P. C. 32. And every Court of Record hath Power to keep the Peace within its own Precinct: As have likewise Sheriffs of Counties, who are intrusted with the Custody of the Counties, and consequently have by it an implied Power of Keeping the Peace within the same; and Coroners may bind Persons to the Peace who make an Affray in their Presence; but these last may not grant Process of the Peace, &c. Ibid. See Justice of Peace and Good Behaviour.

Peace of God, and the Church, (Pax Dei & Ecclesie) Was antiently used for the Rest and Cessation, which the King's Subjects had from Trouble and Suits at Law between the Terms. According to Spelman, Pax Dei, Tempus dicitur cultui Divino adhibitum, eaque appellatione omnes Dies Dominici, Festa & vigilia censentur. Spelm. Gloss.

Peace of the King, (Pax Regis) Is that Peace and Security, for Life and Goods, which the King promises to all his People under his Protection: And where an Outlawry is reversed, a Person is restored to the King's Peace, called Ad Pacem redire. Braff. lib. 3. c. 11. There is, besides these, the Peace of the King's Highway, which is the Immunity that the King's Highway hath to be free from Annoyance or Molestation. The Peace of the Plough, whereby the Plough and Plough-Cattle are secured from Distresses. F. N. B. 90. And Fairs have been said to have their Peace; because no Man might be troubled in them for any Debt contracted elsewhere.

Pecia, A Piece or small Quantity of Ground. — Cum duabus Peciis, &c. dicta terra pertinentibus. Paroch. Antiq. 240.

Pectorale, A Word often met with in old Writings; and most Authors agree, that it is the same with the Garment called Rationale, which the High Priest in the old Law wore on his Shoulders as a Sign of Perfection, and the High Priests of the new Law wear as a Sign of the greatest Virtue: 'Tis by some taken to be that Part of the Pall which covers the Breast of the Priest, and from thence termed Pectorale; but it is by all agreed to be the richest Part of that Garment, embroidered with Gold, and adorn'd with precious Stones. Item Capa cum Pectorale optime brendato cum rotundis Pectoralibus aurifrigiis, &c. humerali vincato de Fino auro brendato, & lapidibus insertis, &c.

Peculiar, (Fr. Peculier, i. e. Private) Is a particular Parish or Church, that hath Jurisdiction within it self, and Power to grant Administration or Probate of Wills, &c. exempt from the Ordinary. There are Royal Peculiars, and Archbishops Peculiars: The King's Chapel is a Royal Peculiar, exempted from all Spiritual Jurisdiction, and reserved to the immediate Government of the King himself; and there are also some peculiar Ecclesiastical Jurisdictions belonging to the King, which formerly appertain'd to Monasteries and Religious Houses. Wood's Inst. 504. It is an ancient Privilege of the See of Canterbury, that wheresoever any Manors or Advowsons do belong to it, they forthwith become exempt from the Ordinary, and are reputed Peculiars of that See; not because they are under no Ordinary, but because they are not under the Ordinary of the Diocese, &c. For the Jurisdiction is annexed to the Court of Arches, and the Judge thereof may originally cite to these Peculiars of the Archbishop. Ibid. The Court of Peculiars of the Archbishop of Canterbury, hath a particular Jurisdiction in the City of London, and in other Dioceses, &c. within his Province, in all fifty-seven Peculiars. 4 Inst. 338. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. There are some Peculiars which belong to Deans and Chapters, or a Prebendary, exempted from the Archdeacon only; they are derived from the Bishop, of ancient Composition, and may be visited by the Bishop in his primary or triennial Visitation: 'In the mean Time, an Official of the Dean and Chapter, or Prebendary, is the Judge; and from hence the Appeal lies to the Bishop of the Diocese. Wood 504. Appeal lieth from other peculiar Courts to the King in Chancery. Stat. 25 H. 8. The Dean and Chapter of St. Paul's have a peculiar Jurisdiction; and the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury have a large Peculiar within that Diocese; so have the Dean and Chapter of Litchfield, &c. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1240, 1241. There are said to be Peculiars of Archdeacons; but they are not properly Peculiars, only subordinate Jurisdictions; and a Peculiar is prima facie to be understood of him who hath a co-ordinate Jurisdiction with the Bishop. Hob. 185. Mod. Ca. 308. If an Archdeacon hath a peculiar Authority by Commission, this shall not take away the Authority of the Bishop; but if he hath Authority and Jurisdiction by Prescription, it is said it shall. 2 Roll. Rep. 357. Where a Man dies Intestate, leaving Goods in several Peculiars, it has been held, that the Archbishop is to grant Administration. Sid. 90. 5 Mod. 239.

Et capiens Pedagium, debet dare saluum Conductum, & Territorium ejus tenere securum.* Spelm. This Word is likewise mentioned by Matt. Paris. Anno 1256. Pedale, A Foot-Cloth, or Piece of Tapestry laid on the Ground to tread on for greater State and Ceremony. Ingulph. pag. 41.

Pedis abscissio. Cutting off the Foot was a Punishment of Criminals in former Times inflicted here, instead of Death; as appears by the Laws of William, called The Conqueror, viz. Interdicimus ne quis occidatur vel suspendatur pro aliqua Culpa, sed eruantur Oculi, Abscindantur Pedes, vel Testiculi, vel Manus. Leg. Will. 1. cap. 7. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 38. Bract. lib. 3. c. 32.

Pedones, A Word used for Foot-Soldiers. Simoon de Durh. Anno 1085.

Peer, (Fr. Pierre) Is a Fortrefe or Defence made against the Force of the Sea; for the better Security of Ships that lie at Harbour in any Haven: Such as the Pier of Dover. Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 27. and the Pier of Great Yarmouth, mentioned 22 Car. 2. c. 2.

Peerage, A Duty or Imposition for Maintenance of a Sea Pier: Also the Dignity of the Lords or Peers of the Realm.

Peers, (Pares) Signify in our Common Law those that are impanelled in an Inquest for the Trial of any Man, and convicting or clearing him of the Offence for which he is called in Question: And by the Laws and Customs of England, every Man is to be tried by his Peers or Equals. Kitch. 78. Magna Charta, 9 H. 3. c. 29. And as every one of the Nobility being a Lord of Parliament, is a Peer or equal to all the other Lords, though they are of several Degrees; so the Commons are Peers to one another, although distinguished as Knights, Esquires, Gentlemen, &c. 2 Inst. 29. 3 Inst. 31.

Peers of the Realm, (Pares Regni, Proceres) Are the Nobility of the Kingdom, and Lords of Parliament; who are divided into Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscounts and Barons: And the Reason why they are called Peers, is for that notwithstanding there be a Distinction of Degrees and Dignities in our Nobility, yet in all publick Actions they are equal; as in their Votes of Parliament, and in Passing upon the Trial of any Nobleman. S. P. C. lib. 3. And this Appellation seems to be borrowed from France, from those twelve Peers that Charlemaine instituted in that Kingdom, (called Pares vel Patritii Francia) but we have applied this Name to all our Lords of Parliament, and have no set Number of Peers, for they are more or less at the King's Pleasure. All Nobility and Peerage is granted by the Crown; and created either by Writ or Letters Patent: The Calling up a Lord by Writ is the most ancient Way, and gives a Fee-simple in a Barony, without Words of Inheritance, viz. To him and his Heirs; but the King may limit the general Estate of Inheritance to Heirs Male, or the Heirs of the Body: And as soon as the Person called sits in Parliament by Virtue of this Writ, his Blood is ennobled, and he is a Peer; but if he dies before he sits in Parliament, he is not, the bare Direction and Delivery of the Writ having no Effect. 1 Inst. 9, 16. But Creation by Letters Patent is good, and makes the Peerage sure, although though he never sits in Parliament, and his Heirs shall inherit the Honour pursuant to the Words of the Patent: Though the Person created must in this Case have the Inheritance limited by apt Words; as to him and his Heirs, or the Heirs Male of his Body, Heirs of his Body, &c. otherwise he shall have no Inheritance. 1 Inst. 16. 2 Inst. 48. The King may create either Man or Woman noble for Life only: And Peerage may be granted for Life by Act of Law; as if a Duke take a Wife, she is a Dutches in Law by the Intermarriage; so of a Marquess, Earl, &c. 1 Inst. 16. 9 Rep. 97. Also the Dignity of an Earl may descend to a Daughter, if there be no Son, who shall be a Countess; and if there are many Daughters, it is said the King shall dispose of the Dignity to which Daughter he pleases. 1 Inst. 165. Wood's Inst. 42. Before the Time of King Ed. 3. there were but two Titles of Nobility, viz. Earls and Barons: Barons were originally by Tenure, afterwards created by Writ, and after that by Patent; but as to Earls, they were always created by Letters Patent. Seld. 536. And King Hen. 6. created Edmond of Haddam, Earl of Richmond, by Patent, and granted him Precedency before all other Earls. Queen Mary 1. likewise granted to Henry Ratcliff, Earl of Suffex, a Privilege by Patent beyond any other Nobleman, viz. that he might at any Time be covered in her Presence, like unto the Grandeess of Spain; and some few others of our Nobility have had conferred on them this Honour. The Stat. 31 H. 8. c. 10. settles the Precedency of the Lords of Parliament, and great Officers, &c. After whom, the Dukes, Marquesses, Earls, Viscounts, and Barons, take Place according to their Antienty; but it is declared, that Precedence is in the King's Disposition. Thomas de la Warre was summoned to Parliament by Writ, anno 3 H. 8. and William his Son, Anno 3 Ed. 6. was disabled by Attainder to claim any Dignity during his Life, but was afterwards called to Parliament by Queen Elizabeth, and sat there as puisse Lord, and died; then Thomas, the Son of the said William, petitioned the Queen in Parliament to be restored to the Place of Thomas his Grandfather; and all the Judges to whom it was referred were of Opinion that he should, because his Father's Disability was not absolute by Attainder, but only personal and temporary during his Life; and the Acceptance of the new Dignity by the Petitioner shall not hurt him, so that when the old and new Dignity are in one Person, the old shall be preferred. 11 Rep. 1. A Dignity of Earl, &c. is a Title by the Common Law; and if a Patentee be disturbed of his Dignity, the regular Course is to Petition the King, who indorses it and sends it into Chancery. Staundf. Prerog. 72. 22 E. 3. And where Nobility is gained by Writ, or Patent, without Descents, 'tis triable by Record; but when it is gained by Matter of Fact, as by Marriage, or where Descents are pleaded, Nobility is triable per Pais. 22 Affs. 24. 3 Salk. 243. A Person petitioned the Lords in Parliament to be tried by his Peers; the Lords disallowed his Peerage, and dismissed the Petition: And it was held in this Case, that the Defendant's Right stood upon his Letters Patent, which could not be cancelled but by Scire facias; and that the Parliament could not give Judgment in a Thing which did not come in a judicial Way before that Court. 2 Salk. 510, 511. 3 Salk. 243. Where Peerage is claimed ratione Baronii, as by a Bishop, he must plead, that he is unus Parium Regni Anglie; but if the Claim is ratione Nobilitatis, he need not plead otherwise than pursuant to his Creation. 4 Inst. 15. 3 Salk. 243. There are no feudal Baronies at this Day: But there are Barons by Succession, and those are the Bishops, who by Virtue of ancient Baronies held of the King, (into which the Possessions of their Bishopricks have been converted) are called by Writ to Parliament, and have Place in the House of Peers as Lords Spiritual: The temporal Possessions of Bishops are held by their Service, to attend in Parliament when called; and that is in the Nature of a Barony; and all the Bishops together, it hath been said, make one of the three Estates in Parliament; but this is denied, because they have separately from the other Lords no negative Vote, &c. And though the Bishops are Lords of Parliament, and called by the King's Writ, and have a Vote there; they shall not be tried by the Peers, as they do not sit in Parliament by Reason of their Nobility, but of their Baronies which they hold in Right of the Church: They are not of the Degree of Nobility; their Blood is not ennobled, nor their Peerage hereditary; so that they are to be tried by the Country, i. e. by a common Jury: And when one of the Nobility is to be tried by his Peers in Parliament, the Spiritual Lords must withdraw and make their Proxies. 1 Inst. 70, 97, 110. 3 Inst. 30. 4 Inst. 1, 2. Some Bishops have been tried by Peers of the Realm; but it hath been when impeached by the House of Commons, as upon special Occasion many others have been who have not been Peers: And the Bishops may claim all the Privileges of the Lords Temporal; saving they cannot be try'd by their Peers, because the Bishops cannot in like Cases pass upon the Trial of any other Peers, they being prohibited by Canon to be Judges of Life and Death, &c. When a Lord is newly created, he is introduced into the House of Peers, by two Lords of the same Form in their Robes, Garter King at Arms going before, and his Lordship is to present his Writ of Summons, &c. to the Lord Chancellor; which being read, he is conducted to his Place: And Lords by Descent, where Nobility comes down from the Ancestor and is enjoy'd by Right of Blood, are introduced with the same Ceremony, the Presenting of the Writ excepted. Lex Constitution. 79. A Nobleman, whether a Native or Foreigner, who has his Nobility from a foreign State, although the Title of Dignity be given him, (as the highest and lowest Degrees of Nobility are universally acknowledged) in all our legal Proceedings no Notice is taken of his Nobility, for he is no Peer: And the Laws of England prohibit all Subjects to receive any hereditary Title of Honour or Dignity, of the Gift of any foreign Prince, without the Consent of the Sovereign. Ibid. 80, 81. Though Dignities of Peerage are granted from the Crown; they cannot be surrendered to the Crown, except it be in order to new and greater Honours; nor are they transferable over, unless they relate to an Office: And notwithstanding there are Instances of Earldoms being transferred, and wherein one Branch of a Family sate in the House of Peers, by Virtue of a Grant from the other Branch, particularly in the Reigns of H. 3. and Ed. 2. These Precedents have been disallowed; and the Duke of Bedford, who in the Reign of

King Edw. 4. was degraded for Poverty and Want of Possessions to support the Title, lost not his Peerage by Surrender, but by Authority of Parliament: And as Dignities may not be surrendered or transferred, without Authority of Parliament; so it hath been holden, that Honour and Peerage cannot be extinguished but by Act of Parliament, the King and Kingdom having an Interest in the Peerage of every Lord. Lex Constit. 85, 86, 87. An Earldom consists in Office, for the Defence of the Kingdom; and of Rents and Possessions, &c. and may be intailed as any other Office may, and as it concerns Land: But the Dignity of Peerage cannot be transferred by Fine, because it is a Quality affix'd to the Blood, and so merely personal, that a Fine cannot touch it. 2 Salk. 309. 3 Salk. 244. A personal Honour or Dignity may be forfeited, on committing Treason, &c. for 'tis implied by a Condition in Law, that the Person dignified shall be loyal; and the Office of an Earl, &c. is ad Consulendum Regem tempore Pacis, & Defendendum tempore Belli, therefore he forfeits it when he takes Counsel or Arms against the King. 7 Rep. 33. 2 Nelf. Abr. 934. All Peers of the Realm are looked upon as the King's hereditary Councillors: And as to the Privileges belonging to the Peerage, they are very great. At Common Law, it was lawful for any Peer to retain as many Chaplains as he would; but by Statute 21 H. 8. their Number is limited, viz. a Duke to have Six, Marquess or Earl Five, Viscount Four, Baron Three, &c. In many Cases, the Protestation of Honour shall be sufficient for a Peer; as in Trial of Peers, they proceed upon their Honour, not upon Oath; and if any Peer is a Defendant in a Court of Equity, he shall put in his Answer upon his Honour; (though formerly it was to be on Oath): And in Action of Debt upon Account, the Plaintiff being a Peer, it shall suffice to examine his Attorney, and not himself on Oath: But where a Peer is to answer Interrogatories, or make an Affidavit, or to be examined as a Witness, he must be upon his Oath. Braet. lib. 5. c. 9. 9 Rep. 49. 3 Inst. 29. W. Jones 152. 2 Salk. 512. A Subpoena shall not be awarded against a Peer out of the Chancery in a Cause; but a Letter from the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, in Lieu thereof. In any Trial where a Peer of the Realm is Plaintiff or Defendant, there must be Two or more Knights on the Jury. 2 Mod. 182. A Peer may not be impanelled upon any Inquests, though the Cause hath Relation to two Peers; and if any Peer be return'd upon a Jury, a special Writ shall issue for his Discharge from Service. No Peer can be assessed towards the Militia, but by an Assessment made by Six or more Peers; and the Houses of Peers shall not be searched for Conventicles, but by Warrant under the Sign manual, or in the Presence of the Lord Lieutenant, or one Deputy Lieutenant, and Two Justices of the Peace. 13 & 14 Car. 2. and 22 Car. 2. A Peer of the Realm being sent for by the King, in coming and returning may kill a Deer or Two in a Forest through which he passes; being done by the View of the Forester, or on blowing a Horn. 9 H. 3. If any Person shall divulge false Tales of any of the Lords of Parliament, by which Dissention may happen, or any Slander arise, the Offender shall be imprisoned, &c. Stat. Westm. 1. c. 34. A Nobleman menacing another Person, whereby such other Person fears his Life is in Danger, no Writ of Supplicavit shall issue, but a Subpoena; and when the Lord appears, instead of Surety, he shall only Promise to keep the Peace. 35 H. 6. No Capias or Outlawry can be sued out against Peers of the Realm, in Civil Causes; and no Essoin lies against them. 9 Rep. 49. The Person of a Peer, as well out as in Parliament-time is privileged from all Arrests; unless for Treason, Felony, or Breach of the Peace, &c. Peers are not to be arrested upon mean Process, or on Execution for Debt or Trespas, because they are presumed not only to attend the King and the Publick Affairs, but the Law doth presume that they have sufficient Lands in which they may be distrained: But they may be arrested or apprehended, in Criminal Cases. 6 Rep. 52, 53. And though a Peer may not be arrested in his Body; yet his Estate may be sequestered for Debt, &c. upon a Prosecution after a Dissolution and Prorogation of Parliament, or Adjournment for above the Space of fourteen Days, when he refuses to appear and answer. 12 W. 3. And of late Years, on Non-appearance, &c. the Coaches and Horses of several Peers of this Kingdom, have out of the Time of Privilege been distrained, and Cattle seized upon their Lands, to compel them to appear: But the Privilege of a Peer is so great in Respect of his Person, that the King may not restrain him of his Liberty, without Order of the House of Lords, except it be in Cases of Treason, &c. A memorable Case wherein was that of the Earl of Arundel imprisoned by the King in the Reign of Charles 1. Every Lord of Parliament is allowed his Clergy in all Cases, where others are excluded by the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. 12. except wilful Murder; and cannot be denied Clergy for any other Felony wherein it was grantable at Common Law, if it be not ousted by some Statute made since the first of King Ed. 6. S. P. C. 1309. And it is said the Lord Morley, who was tried for Murder, and found guilty of Manslaughter, was discharged without Clergy. Sid. 277. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1181. Peers of the Realm are to be tried by their Peers in Parliament, Magna Charta, cap. 29. and 15 Ed. 3. c. 2. But Noblemen of France, Ireland, &c. and Sons of Dukes or Earls who are noble, and have the Title of Lords, but are not Lords of Parliament, shall not be permitted to have this Trial. 2 Inst. 50. A Peer shall be tried by his Peers, on Indictment for Treason, Murder, or Felony; though in Appeal of Felony, he shall be tried by Freeholders: And Indictments of Peers for Treason or Felony, are to be found by Freeholders of the County, and then they plead before the Lord High Steward, &c. 1 Inst. 156. 3 Inst. 28.

On the Trials of Peers in criminal Matters, all the Peers who have a Right to sit and vote in Parliament, are to be duly summoned twenty Days at least before the Trial, to appear and vote at the same, every such Peer first taking the Oaths required by the Act 1 W. & M. &c. The Peer being indicted for the Treason or Felony, before Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, or in the King's Bench, if the Treason, &c. be committed in the County of Middlesex; then the King by Commission under the Great Seal, constitutes some Peer (generally the Lord Chancellor) Lord High Steward, who is Judge in these Cases; and the Commission commands the Peers of the Realm to be attendant on him, also the Lieutenant of the Tower, with the Prisoner, &c. A Certiorari is awarded awarded out of the Chancery, to remove the Indictment before the Lord High Steward: And another Writ issues for the Bringing of the Prisoner; and the Lord Steward makes his Precept for that Purpose, assigning a Day and Place, as in Westminster-Hall inclos'd with Scaffolds, &c. and for summoning the Peers, which are to be Twelve and above at least present: At the Day, the Lord High Steward takes Place under a Cloth of State; his Commission is read by the Clerk of the Crown, and he has a White Rod delivered him by the Usher, which being return'd, Proclamation is made, and Command given for Certifying of Indictments, &c. and the Lieutenant of the Tower to return his Writ, and bring the Prisoner to the Bar; after this, the Serjeant at Arms returns his Precept with Names of the Peers summoned, and they are called over, and answering to their Names are recorded, when they take their Places: The Ceremony thus adjust'd, the High Steward declares to the Prisoner at the Bar, the Cause of their Assembly; assures him of Justice, and encourages him to answer without Fear; then the Clerk of the Crown reads the Indictment, and arraigns the Prisoner, and the High Steward gives his Charge to the Peers; this being over, the King's Counsel produce their Evidence for the King; and if the Prisoner hath any Matter of Law to plead, he shall be assigned Counsel; but if he pleads Not guilty, and has nothing farther, he shall be allowed no Counsel, for the Court are instead of it; after all the Evidence given for the King, and the Prisoner's Answer heard, the Prisoner is withdrawn from the Bar, and the Lords that are Triers go to some Place to consider of their Evidence: But the Lords can admit no Evidence, but in the Hearing of the Prisoner; they cannot have Conference with the Judges, (who attend on the Lord High Steward, and are not to deliver their Opinions before-hand) but in the Prisoner's Hearing; nor can they send for the Opinion of the Judges, or demand it, but in open Court; and the Lord Steward cannot collect the Evidence, or confer with the Lords, but in the Presence of the Prisoner; who is at first to require Justice of the Lords, and that no Question or Conference be had but in his Presence: Nothing is done in the Absence of the Prisoner, until the Lords come to agree on their Verdict; and then they are to be together as Juries until they are agreed, when they come again into Court and take their Places, and the Lord High Steward, publickly in open Court, demands of the Lords, beginning with the Puisne Lord, whether the Prisoner, calling him by his Name, be guilty of the Treason, &c. whereof he is arraigned, who all give in their Verdict; and he being found Guilty by a Majority of Votes more than Twelve, is brought to the Bar again, and the Lord Steward acquainting the Prisoner with the Verdict of his Peers, passes Sentence and Judgment accordingly: After which, an O Yes is made for dissolving of the Commission, and the White Rod is broken by the Lord High Steward; whereupon breaks up this Grand Assembly, which is esteem'd the most solemn and august Court of Justice upon Earth. 2 Hawk. P. C. 421, 422, &c. The Lord Steward gives no vote himself on a Trial by Commission; but only on a Trial by the House of Peers, while the Parliament is sitting: Where a Peer is tried by the House of Lords in full Parliament, the House may be adjourn'd as often as there is Occasion, and the Evidence taken by Parcels; also it hath been adjudg'd, that where the Trial is by Commission, the Lord Steward, after a Verdict given, may take Time to advise upon it, and his Office continues 'till he has given Judgment. But the Triers may not separate upon a Trial by Commission, after the Evidence is given for the King; and it hath been resolv'd by all the Judges, that the Peers in such Case must continue together till they agree to give a Verdict. State Trials, Vol. 2. fol. 702. Vol. 3. fol. 657. 2 Hawk. 425. A Peer of the Realm arraigned in Parliament, must be tried before a Lord Steward; and if he appear not, he shall be outlaw'd: And he cannot waive a Trial by his Peers; for if a Peer on Arraignment before the Lords refuse to put himself upon such Trial, he shall be proceeded against as one who stands mute: But if one who has a Title to Peerage, be indicted and arraigned as a Commoner, and plead Not guilty, and put himself upon his Country; it hath been held, that he cannot afterwards suggest that he is a Peer, and pray Trial by his Peers. 3 Inst. 30. Kel. 57. Dalif. 16. It is said, that a Writ of Error lies in B. R. of an Attainder of a Peer before the Lord High Steward. 2 Hawk. P. C. 462. If a Peer be attainted of Treason or Felony, he may be brought before the Court of B. R. and demanded what he has to say why Execution should not be awarded against him? And if he plead any Matter to such Demand, his Plea shall be heard, and Execution ordered by the said Court, upon its being adjudg'd against him. 1 H. 7. 22. pl. 15. Bro. Coro. 129. Fitz. Coro. 49. Likewise the Court of King's Bench may allow a Pardon pleaded by a Peer to an Indictment in that Court: But that Court cannot receive his Plea of Not guilty, &c. but only the Lord Steward, on an Arraignment before the Lords. 2 Inst. 49. The Sentence against a Peer, in Case of Treason, is the same as against a common Subject; though the King forgives all but Beheading, which is a Part of the Judgment: For other capital Crimes, Beheading is also the general Punishment of a Peer; but 33 H. 8. the Lord Dacres was attainted of Murder, and had Judgment to be hanged; and anno 3 & 4 P. & M. the Lord Stourton being attainted of Murder, had Judgment against him to be hanged by the Neck until he was dead, which Sentences were executed. If Execution be not done; the Lord Steward may by Precept command it to be done according to the Judgment. 3 Inst. 31. Trial by Peers is a Practice very antient: In the Reign of Will. 1. called The Conqueror, the Earl of Hereford, for Conspiring to receive the Danes into England, and depose the Conqueror, was tried by his Peers, and found Guilty of the Treason, per Judicium parium suorum; but he lived in Prison his whole Life. 2 Inst. 50. The Duke of Suffolk, 28 H. 6. being accused of High Treason by the Commons, put himself upon the King's Grace, and not upon his Peers, and the King alone adjudg'd him to Banishment; but he sent for the Lord Chancellor, and all the Lords that were in Town to his Palace at Westminster, and also the Duke, and commanded him to quit the Kingdom in their Presence: The Lords nevertheless entered a Protest to save the Privilege of their Peerage; and this was deemed no legal Banishment, for the King's Judging in that Manner was no Judgment at all; he was extrajudicially bid to absent himself out of the Realm, and in doing;

doing it he was taken on the Sea and slain. The Case of the Lord Cromwell, in the Reign of K. H. 8. was very extraordinary; this Lord was attainted in Parliament, and condemned and executed for High Treason, without being allowed to make any Defence: And several great Persons during this Reign were brought to Trial before Lords Commissioners. Anno 32 Car. 2. the Lord Stafford was tried for Treason; and after the Evidence was given for the King, and the Prisoner had summ'd up all his Objections to the King's Evidence, he insisted upon several Points of Law, viz. That no Overt-Act was alledged in his Impeachment; that they were not competent Witnesses who swore against him, but that they swore for Money; and whether a Man could be condemned for Treason by one Witness, there not being two Witnesses to any one Point, &c. But the Points insisted upon being over-ruled, he was found Guilty by a Majority of twenty-four Votes; and was executed on Tower-hill. See more of Peers under Baron, Descent of Dignities, Lords, &c.

Peereſs. As we have Noblemen of several Ranks; so we have noble Women, and those may be by Creation, Descent, or Marriage: And first, King Hen. 8. made Anne Bullen Marchioness of Pembroke: King James 1. created the Lady Compton, Wife to Sir Tho. Compton, Countess of Buckingham in the Life-time of her Husband, without any Addition of Honour to him; and also the same King made the Lady Finch Viscountess of Maidstone, and afterwards Countess of Winchelsea, to her and the Heirs of her Body: And the late King Geo. 1. made the Lady Sculinborough, Dutcheſs of Kendal. A Woman noble by Creation or Descent, marrying one under the Degree of Nobility, still remaineth Noble; but if she be noble by Marriage only, she loseth her Dignity if she marry afterwards a Commoner; though not if the second Husband is noble, and inferior in Dignity to the first Husband: And by the Custom of England, Women noble by Marriage always retain their Nobility. 1 Inst. 16. 1 Inst. 50. 6 Rep. 53. If an English Woman born takes to Husband a French Nobleman, she shall not bear the Title of Dignity; and if a German Woman, &c. marry a Nobleman of England, unless she be made Denizen, she cannot claim the Title of her Husband, no more than her Dower, &c. Lex Constitution. 80. A Countess or Baroness may not be arrested for Debt or Trespass; for though in Respect of their Sex, they cannot sit in Parliament, they are nevertheless Peers of the Realm, and shall be tried by their Peers, &c. But a Capias being awarded against the Countess of Rutland, it was held that she might be taken by the Sheriff; because he ought not to dispute the Authority of that Court from whence the Writ issued, but must execute it, for he is bound by his Oath so to do; and although by the Writ it self it appeared, that the Party was a Countess, against whom a Capias would not generally lie, for that in some Cases it may lie, as for a Contempt, &c. therefore the Sheriff ought not to examine the judicial Acts of the Court. 6 Rep. 52. By the Statute 20 H. 6. c. 9. a Dutcheſs, Countess, or Baroness, married or sole, shall be put to answer, and judged upon Indictments of Treason and Felony, before such Judges and Peers as the Peers of the Realm shall be: And it has been agreed, that a Queen Consort, and Queen Dowager, whether she continue sole after the King's Death, or take a second Husband, and he be a Peer or Commoner; and also all Peereſſes by Birth, whether they be sole or married to Peers or Commoners; and all Marchionesses and Viscountesses are intitled to a Trial by the Peers, though not expressly mentioned in the Act. 2 Inst. 50. Crompt. Jurisd. 33. 2 Hawk. P. C. 423. A Dutcheſs, Marchioness, Countess, or Baroness, may retain two Chaplains, by 21 H. 8. c. 13. But it is said that a Baroness, &c. may not retain Chaplains during her Coverture; only Widows of Noblemen. Wood's Inst. 44. 4 Rep. 89. Vide Chaplain.

Penal Laws, Are of three Kinds, viz. Pœna Pecuniaria, Pœna Corporalis, and Pœna Exilii. Cro. Jac. 415. And Penal Statutes have been made upon many and various Occasions, to punish and deter Offenders; and they ought to be construed strictly, and not be extended by Equity; but the Words of them may be interpreted beneficially, according to the Intent of the Legislators. 1 Inst. 54, 268. Where a Thing is prohibited by Statute under a Penalty, if the Penalty, or Part of it be not given to him who will sue for the same; it goes and belongs to the King. Rast. Entr. 433. 2 Hawk. 265. But the King cannot grant to any Person, any Penalty or Forfeiture, &c. due by any Statute, before Judgment thereupon had; though after Plea pleaded, Justices of Assize, &c. having Power to hear and determine Offences done against any Penal Statute, may compound the Penalties with the Defendant, by Virtue of the King's Warrant or Privy Seal. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 3. The Spiritual Court may hold Plea of a Thing forbidden by a Statute upon a Penalty; but they may not proceed upon the Penalty. 2 Lev. 222. See Information.

Penalty of Bonds, &c. If a Man brings an Action of Debt upon a Bond for Performance of Covenants, the Plaintiff shall recover the whole Penalty of his Bond; because in Debt, the Judgment must be according to the Demand, and the Demand is to be for the whole Penalty: But upon the Defendant's bringing a Bill in Equity, and praying an Injunction to the Suit at Common Law, the Court of Equity usually grants it 'till the the Hearing of the Cause; and upon the Hearing of the Cause, they will continue the Injunction farther, and order a Trial at Law on a Quantum damnificatus, for the Jury to find what Damage the Plaintiff received by Reason of the Breach of Covenants, &c. And they farther order, that after such Verdict given at the Common Law, both Parties shall resort back for the Decree of that Court: So that here must be several Actions and Suits at Law and in Equity; whereas a bare Action of Covenant, without suing for the Penalty of the Bond, will make an End of the Business in less Time, and for a much less Charge. 2 Lil. Abr. 288, 289.

Penance, (Pœnitentia) Is a Punishment imposed for a Crime by the Ecclesiastical Laws. It is an Acknowledgment of the Offence, and standing in some publick Place, &c. to satisfy the Church for the Scandal given by an evil Example; particularly in the Cases of Adultery, &c. for which the Offender stands in the Church, Barefoot and Bareheaded, in a White Sheet, &c. But for smaller Faults it may be made in the Court, or before the Minister and Church-wardens, or some of the Parishioners; as in Case of Defamation, &c. Wood's Inst. 507. Penance may be changed into a Sum of Money, to be applied to Pious Uses, called Commuting. 3 Inst. 150. 4 Inst. 336.

Penance At Common Law, where a Person stands mute. See Pain Fort & Dure.

Penerarius, An Ensign-bearer; as John Parient was Squire of the Body, and Penerarius to K. Rich. 2.

Denigeldum, Denarii alicujus ex quavis consuetudine pro facultate aliqua, vel Privilegio habendo, puta in Foresta aut alibi. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 372.

Denon, (Fr. Penmon) A Standard or Banner carried in War. 11 R. 2. c. 1.

Pension, (Pensio) Is an yearly Payment of Money in Recompence of Service, &c. And to receive a Pension from a foreign Prince or State, without Leave of our King, has been held to be criminal, because it may incline a Man to prefer the Interest of such foreign Prince to that of his own Country. 1 Hawk. P. C. 59. Persons having Pensions from the Crown are declared incapable of being elected Members of Parliament, &c. by Statute 12 W. 3. 4 & 5 Ann. 1 Geo. See Parliament.

Pensions of Churches, Are a certain Sum of Money paid to Clergymen in Lieu of Tithes. And some Churches have settled on them Annuities, Pensions, &c. payable by other Churches; which Pensions are due by Virtue of some Decree made by an Ecclesiastical Judge upon a Controversy for Tithes, by which they have been decreed to be enjoyed by one, and a Pension instead thereof to be paid to another; or they have arisen by Virtue of a Deed made by the Consent of the Parson, Patron, and Ordinary; and if such Pension hath been usually paid for twenty Years, then it may be claimed by Prescription, and be recovered in the Spiritual Court; or a Parson may prosecute his Suit for a Pension by Prescription, either in that Court or at Common Law, by a Writ of Annuity; but if he takes his Remedy at Law, he shall never afterwards sue in the Spiritual Court: If the Prescription be denied, that must be tried by the Common Law. F. N. B. 51. Hardr. 230. Ventr. 120. A Spiritual Person may sue in the Spiritual Court, for a Pension originally granted and confirmed by the Ordinary; but where it is granted by a Temporal Person to a Clerk, he cannot; as if one grant an Annuity to a Parson, he must sue for it in the Temporal Courts. Cro. Eliz. 675. If a Parson or Vicar have a Pension out of another Church, and it is not paid, they may bring a Writ of Annuity; because a Pension issuing out of a Rectory is the same Thing as a Rent, for it may be demanded in a Writ of Entry, and a Common Recovery may be suffered of it. 2 Nels. Abr. 1243. Upon a Bill in the Exchequer for a Pension issuing out of a Vicarage, it hath been held, that though there is no Glebe nor Tithes, but only Offerings, &c. yet the Vicar is chargeable; and a Suit may be brought in this Court as well as at Common Law, &c. for a Pension by Prescription. Hardr. 230. A Pension out of an Appropriation by Prescription is suable in the Spiritual Court; and if the Duty is traversed, it may be tried there. 1 Salk. 58. A Libel was had in the Spiritual Court for a Pension, to which the Plaintiff made a Title by Prescription; and a Prohibition was pray'd, for that the Court had no Cognisance of Prescriptions; but adjudged, that they having Cognisance of the Principal, it shall draw the Accessary. 1 Ventr. 3. The Curate of a Chapel of Ease libelled against the Vicar of the Parish for the Arrears of a Pension, which he claimed by Prescription; though a Prohibition was granted, because the Curate is removable at the Will of the Parson, and therefore cannot prescribe; he must bring a Quantum meruit. 2 Salk. 506. The Stat. 13 Ed. 1. appoints a Remedy for Pensions in the Ecclesiastical Court: And the 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 19. gives Damages to the Value and Costs, &c.

Pensions of the Inns of Courts, Are annual Payments of each Member to the Houses: And also that which in the Two Temples is called a Parliament, and in Lincoln's Inn a Council, in Gray's Inn is termed a Pension.

Pension-writ, Is a Writ or peremptory Order against those who are in arrear for Pensions and other Duties; and when once issued, none sued thereby in any of the Inns of Court shall be discharged or permitted to come in Commons till all Duties are paid. Ord. Gray's Inn.

Pensioners, (Pensionarii) Are a Band of Gentlemen so called, that attend as a private Guard on the King's Person; they were first instituted Anno 1539.

Pentecostals, (Pentecostalia) Certain pious Oblations made at the Feast of Pentecost or Whitson-tide by Parishioners to the Priest of the Parish, &c. Which Oblations were also termed Whitson Farthings, and divided into four Parts; one to the Parish Priest, a second to the Poor, a Third for the Repairs of the Church, and the Fourth to the Bishop of the Diocese. Steph. of Pentecostals, &c.

Peny, Was our ancient current Money; and the Saxons had no other Sort of Silver Coin. 2 Inst. 575. It was equal in Weight to our Three Pence now; five of those Penies made one Saxon Shilling, and thirty Pence a Mark, which weighed as much as Three of our Half-Crowns: And this Peny was made with a Cross in the Middle, and so broke into Half-pence and Farthings. Matt. Paris. 1279. The English Peny called Stirling is round, and antiently weighed 32 grana frumenti in medio Spica. Stat. Edw. 1.

Peny-weight. As every Pound contains 12 Ounces, so each Ounce was divided into twenty Parts, called twenty Peny-weights; and tho' the

Peny-

Peny-weight be altered, the Denomination still remains: Every Peny-weight is subdivided into twenty-four Grains.

Perambulation, (Perambulatio) Signifies a Travelling through, or over: As Perambulation of the Forest is the Surveying or Walking about the Forest, and the utmost Limits of it; by certain Justices, or other Officers thereto assign'd, to set down and preserve the Metes and Bounds thereof. 17 Car. 1. c. 16. 20 Car. 2. c. 3. 4 Inst. 30. Perambulation of Parishes is to be made by the Minister, Church-wardens and Parishioners, by going round the same once a Year, in or about Ascension-week: And the Parishioners may well justify going over any Man's Land in their Perambulation, according to Usage; and it is said may abate all Nuisances in their Way. Cro. Eliz. 444. And there is a Perambulation of Manors; and a Writ Perambulatione facienda, which lies where any Incroachments have been made by a neighbouring Lord, &c. then by the Assent of the Lords, the Sheriff shall take with him the Parties and Neighbours, and make a Perambulation, and settle the Bounds: Also a Commission may be granted to other Persons to make Perambulation, and to certify the same into the Chancery, or the Common Pleas, &c. And this Commission is issued to make Perambulation of Towns, Counties, &c. New Nat. Br. 296. If Tenant for Life of a Lordship, and one who is Tenant in Fee-simple of another Lordship adjoining, sue forth this Writ or Commission, and by Virtue thereof a Perambulation is made; the same shall not bind him in Reversion: Nor shall the Perambulation made with the Assent of Tenant in Tail, bind his Heir. Ibid. And 'tis said this Assent of the Parties to the Perambulation ought to be acknowledged and made Personally in the Chancery, or by Dedimus Potestatem; and being certified, the Writ or Commission issues, &c. The Writ begins thus: Rex Vic', &c. Precipimus tibi, quod assumpt. tecum duodecim discretis & legal. Milit. in Com. tuo in propria Persona tua accedas ad terram A. B. de, &c. & terram C. D. de, &c. per eorum Sacramentum Fieri fac. Perambulat', &c. per certas Metas & Divisas, &c.

If Perambulation be refused to be made by a Lord, the other Lord who is grieved thereby shall have a Writ against him called de Rationabilibus Divisib.

Perca, For Pertica, a Perch of Land. — Et unam acram Prati per majorem Percam. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 87.

Perch, Is used with us for a Rod or Pole of sixteen Foot and a Half in Length, whereof forty in Length, and four in Breadth, make an Acre of Ground. Cromp. Jurisd. 222. But by the Customs of several Counties, there is a Difference in this Measure: In Staffordshire it is twenty-four Foot; and in the Forest of Sherwood twenty-five Foot, the Foot there being eighteen Inches long: And in Heresfordshire, a Perch of Ditching is twenty-one Foot; the Perch of Walling sixteen Foot and a Half; and a Pole of denshired Ground is twelve Foot, &c. Skene.

Perdings, Signifies the Dregs of the People, viz. Men of no Substance. Leg. H. 1. c. 29.

Perdonatio Utlagariæ, Is a Pardon for a Man who for Contempt in not yielding Obedience to the Process of the King's Courts is outlawed, and afterwards of his own Accord surrenders himself. Reg. Orig. 28.

Peremptory, (Peremptorius) Joined with a Substantive, is taken for a final and determinate Act, without Hope of Renewing or Altering the same: And there is a Peremptory Action, Day, Nonsuit, &c. Bract. lib. 4. c. 20. F. N. B. 35, 38, 104. If a Defendant in an Action, tender an Issue in Abatement of the Plaintiff's Writ, and the Plaintiff demurs upon the Issue, if on arguing the Demurrer the Issue is over-ruled as not good; the Court will give the Defendant a Day over to answer peremptorily, viz. To plead a Plea to the Merits of the Cause; the former Plea which was over-ruled, being only in Abatement of the Writ: But it is otherwise where such an Issue and Demurrer is in Bar of the Action; for there the Merits of the Cause are put upon it. Trin. 24 Car. 1. B. R. 2 Lill. Abr. 190. A Peremptory Day is when a Business is by a Rule of Court to be spoken to at a precise Day; but if it cannot be spoken unto then, by Reason of other Business, the Court at the Prayer of the Party concerned will dispence with the not Speaking to it at that Time, and give a farther Day without Prejudice to him; and this is called the putting off of a Peremptory, and is used to be moved for by Counsel at the Rising of the Court, when it is granted of Course. 2 Lill. Ibid. If a Peremptory Day is put off by the Court, the Party that will take Advantage of it, must enter the Rule of Court that was made for the Putting it off. Trin. 1651. Peremptory Challenge of Jurors in Capital Cases. Vide Challenge.

Perinde valere, Is a Term in the Ecclesiastical Law; and signifieth a Dispensation granted to a Clerk, who being defective in his Capacity, is nevertheless admitted de facto to a Benefice, or other Ecclesiastical Function: And it is also called a Writ. Stat. 25 Hen. 8. c. 21.

Periphrasis, {Lat.} Is a Circumlocution; a Figure of Rhetorick, when that which might have been said in one or two Words is express'd by many. Litt. Dist. No Periphrasis or Circumlocution will supply Words of Art, which the Law hath appropriated for the Description of Offences in Indictments: And not any Periphrasis, Intendment and Conclusion shall make good an Indictment, which doth not bring the Fact within all the material Words of a Statute; unless the Statute be recited, &c. Cro. Eliz. 535, 749. 2 Hawk. P. C. 224, 249.

Perjury, (Perjurium) Is a Crime committed, when a lawful Oath is administered by one that hath Authority to any Persons in a judicial Proceeding, who swear absolutely and falsely in a Matter that is material to the Issue or Cause in Question, by their own Act, or the Subornation of others. 3 Inst. 164. And Perjury, before the Conquest, was punished sometimes by Death, other Times by Banishment, and sometimes by corporal Punishment, &c. Afterwards it came to Fine and Ransom, and Disability to bear Testimony. 3 Inst. 163. At Common Law, Perjury and Subornation of Perjury is punished by Fine, Imprisonment, Pillory, &c. and the Offender is ever after incapable to be a Witness. 3 Inst. 163. By Statute, Persons committing wilful and corrupt Perjury, in any Cause depending concerning Lands or Goods, &c. in any of the Courts of Record, shall forfeit 20*l.* and be imprisoned fix Months, and their Oath shall not be received in any

any Court of Record, until the Judgment is reversed; and if the Offenders have not Goods or Chattels to the Value of 20 l. they shall be set on the Pillory in some Market-place, and have both their Ears nailed thereto: And unlawful and corrupt Procuring and Suborning a Witness to give false Testimony in any Court of Record, &c. or corruptly Procuring any Witness to testify in perpetuam rei Memoriam, the Offender shall forfeit 40 l. And if he be not worth 40 l. he shall suffer Six Months Imprisonment, and stand on the Pillory in some open Market near the Place where the Offence was committed; and shall not be received as a Witness till such Judgment be reversed; but if the Judgment be reversed, the Party grieved shall recover Damages against the Prosecutor, by Action on the Case, &c. 5 Eliz. cap. 9. It has been adjudged, that if a Man be convicted of Perjury at the Common Law, a Pardon will restore the Party to his Testimony; but not in a Conviction on the Statute, for there he must reverse the Judgment before he can be restored, and Disability is Part of the Judgment. 2 Salk. 513. 2 Nelf. Abr. 978. Yet a Person convicted of Perjury was allowed to make Affidavit, to set aside a Judgment for Irregularity; though the Affidavits of such Persons have been refused to be read. 2 Salk. 461. Perjury, if it relates to Justice, is punishable by Statute; and if it be in a Spiritual Matter in the Spiritual Court, it may be punished there. 3 Salk. 269. A false Oath in a Court of Justice is more criminal than elsewhere: And 'tis an Offence for which the Party may be indicted, either by the Common Law, or upon the Stat. 5 Eliz. by which the Punishment is enlarged, but the Nature of the Offence is not altered by that Statute; and in many Cases an Indictment will lie at Common Law, when it will not lie upon the Statute; as for Instance; A Person may be indicted at Common Law for a false Affidavit taken before a Master in Chancery, but not on the Statute; because this is not Perjury in a Matter relating to the Proof of what was in Issue. Style 336. Sid. 106. Bulst. 322. The Statute extends to no other Perjury than that of Witnesses; but Persons perjuring themselves in their Answers in Chancery, or in the Exchequer, by Affidavit, or Swearing the Peace against another, &c. may be punished for the Perjury at the Common Law; which is esteemed the safest Way to prosecute for Perjury, or Subornation of Perjury. 3 Inst. 166. 2 Roll. Abr. 77. Wood's Inst. 414. Perjury at Common Law may be in an immaterial Thing in an Answer in Chancery; but if one swear false to an Interrogatory, in a Thing not materially charged therein, this is not Perjury, because he who administered the Oath had not Power to administer it, but in Matters charged in the Interrogatory. Sid. 274. And where an Oath is taken before one, that hath not Authority to do it; or when a Court hath no Authority to hold Plea of the Cause; there Perjury cannot be committed. 3 Inst. 164. 4 Inst. 278. Also if an Oath be given by him that has lawful Authority, and any Breach be made therein, if it be not in a judicial Proceeding, it is not punishable as Perjury by the Common or Statute Law; as where one takes an Oath to the Government, or duly to perform an Office, &c. and breaks it. Read. on Stat. Vol. 4. 349. Indictment will not lie at the Sessions before Justices of Peace, for a Perjury at Common Law; though it will for a Perjury upon the Stat. 5 Eliz.

that Statute giving the Justices Jurisdiction. 1 Salk. 406. It is said a Man may be indicted for Perjury upon a voluntary and extrajudicial Oath; as where a Person stole the Daughter of another, and made Oath before a Justice of the Peace, that he had her Father's Consent, and this in order to get a Licence to marry her. 1 Ventr. 369. On Indictment for Perjury, for that the Defendant swore at a Trial by Nisi prius, that a Person was on such a Day in London, to be arrested; this was material, as the Issue to be tried was concerning the Arresting him by the Sheriff, and it was proved that he was in Southwark at that Time, and the Defendant being found Guilty was fined 20 l. Sid. 404. A Person was indicted for Perjury, and convicted of Swearing that he was Servant to W. R. when in Truth he was Servant to his Servant, and fined 10 l. Allen 79. Perjury in Witnesses, if it is not of Consequence in the Decision of the Cause, tho' it is a false Oath, it is not to be punished as Perjury: But if a false Oath be given by a Man, attended with Circumstances, which makes them Reasons of his Remembrance of a Thing, to strengthen the substantial Part of his Evidence, by this Means the Jury may be induced in the Giving of a Verdict, and he may be guilty of Perjury. 3 Inst. 167. 1 Roll. Abr. 41, 78. 1 Cro. 428. 2 Lill. Abr. 291. Palm. 382, 535. Though where a Witness being ask'd, whether such a Sum of Money were paid for two Things in Controversy between the Parties? Answered, that it was, where the Truth of it was, that it was paid only for one of them by Agreement; such Witness ought not to be punished for Perjury; for as the Case was, it was no Way material whether it was paid for one or both. 2 Roll. Rep. 41. To make an Offence Perjury, it must be wilful and deliberate, and not committed through Surprise, Inadvertency, or Mistake of the Question; and the Deposition is to be direct and absolute, not as the Person swearing thinks or believes, &c. 3 Inst. 167, 266. Nothing which the Party offers upon his Belief is assignable for Perjury. Sid. 418. It must be false, in express Words or Intention, to make it Perjury; for Falshood in Intention may be punished by the Common Law, though the Words be true: And if one knows not what he swears, it is a false Oath in him, so that one may swear the Truth, and yet be perjured; as where the Plaintiff in an Action caused two Men to swear the Value of his Goods, who never saw or knew them, although that which they swore was true, yet because they knew it not, it was a false Oath in them, for which the Procurer and the Witnesses were sentenced in the Star-Chamber. 3 Inst. 166. 2 Roll. Abr. 77. But the Law will not allow of constructive Perjury. 2 Salk. 513. Perjury may not be in a private Matter, howsoever wilful or malicious the Oath may be; and upon this Ground it hath been holden, that a false Oath taken by one upon the Making of a Bargain, that the Thing sold is his Own, is not Perjury. 1 Hawk. 173. Not only in a Court of Record, but in any other lawful Courts, as a Court-Baron, &c. Perjury may be committed. Wood's Inst. 412. An Indictment for Perjury may be preferred against one for Taking a false Oath rashly, and for Want of Consideration in a Court of Record; and he may be convicted and fined thereupon, but the Fine shall be more moderate than where committed out of Malice. 2 Lill. Abr. 291. The Words Wilfully and Corruptly must be inserted in the Prosecution upon the Statute; and an Indictment was held ill, because it did not allege that the Defendant voluntarily swore, &c. 3 Inst. 166. 1 Cro. 147. Perjury or Subornation of Perjury, in Proceedings on an Indictment, is not within the Statute, which mentions only Suits by Writ, Bill, Plaint, or Information: And no false Oath is within the Intent of the Act, that is not prejudicial to some Person in his Cause; and gives him just Cause of Complaint, that he was aggrieved by the Deposition of the Witnesses. 3 Inst. 164. But it hath been held not to be material upon an Indictment of Perjury at Common Law, whether the false Oath were at all credited, or whether the Party in whose Prejudice it was intended were in the Event any Way grieved by it, or not; as this is not a Prosecution grounded on the Damage of the Party, but on the Abuse of publick Justice. 3 Leon. 230. 2 Leon. 211. And if a Person procure another to take a false Oath amounting to Perjury, but he doth not take it, though the Person who incited him is not guilty of Subornation of Perjury, he is punishable by Fine. Read. Stat. 4 Vol. 350. Where a Plaintiff loses his Action by a false and perjured Witness produced on the Part of the Defendant, it is said he cannot have an Action against that Witness, till he is indicted and convicted; unless it be such a Perjury, or in such a Court, that an Indictment would not lie for it. Sid. 90. 3 Salk. 270. On Motion to amend an Information for Perjury, it was granted, giving Notice to the Defendant what they would amend; and he to shew Cause why they should not. 1 Lev. 189. Acquittal upon a bad Indictment of Perjury is no Plea to a good one, and the Party may be indicted de novo; but an Acquittal upon a good One is peremptory. Mod. Ca. 167. A Person was found guilty in an Information for Perjury, and upon several Affidavits the Court was moved for a new Trial; tho' it was denied, except the King's Counsel would consent, notwithstanding it appeared to the Court that there was Cause for a new Trial. Sid. 49. Sir John Jackson being acquitted of a great Debt, by the Perjury of Fenwick and Holt, they were indicted for the Perjury, and the Trial being appointed, the Witnesses who could prove it were arrested and committed, so that they could not be present at the Trial; and this being done by the Contrivance of Sir John, he was found guilty of the Misdemeanor on an Information, and fined 1000 Marks, and committed for a Month: But the Court would not grant a new Trial in Perjury. Sid. 149, 153. An Indictment for Perjury will not be quashed for any Insufficiency till the Merits are tried, and 'tis Time enough to move to quash it after a Verdict; and no Certiorari shall be had to remove an Indictment for Perjury or Forgery; for when they are removed, they are seldom proceeded on. Sid. 54. 2 Nels. Abr. 975. Indictment at Common Law is to be brought where a Witness for the King swears falsely; or he may be punished by Information: And the Offence of Perjury, if prosecuted by Indictment, is local; but 'tis otherwise on an Information. 3 Inst. 164. 1 Ventr. 182.

Per my & per tout, Are Words used where a Jointenant is said to be seised of the Land he holds jointly, by every Parcel, and by the Whole; which Signification they bear in the Law. Litt. 10. Sec. 288.

Pernancy, (From the Fr. Prendre) Signifies a Taking or Receiving; as Tithes in Pernancy are Tithes taken or that may be taken in Kind.

Perno of Profits, Is he that takes or receives the Profits of Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments; and is said to be all one with Cestuy que use. Stat. 1 Hen. 7. cap. 1. 1 Rep. 123. The King has the Pernancy of the Profits of the Lands of an Outlaw, in personal Actions; and by Seizure shall hold against the Alienation of such Outlaw, &c. Raym. 17. See Co. Lit. 589.

Perpars, A Part of the Inheritance.—Tantumquam terram qua sibi descendit in perpartem de hereditate, &c. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 54.

Perpetuity, (Perpetuitas) Is a Continuance everlastingly; and in Law, it is when an Estate is designed to be so settled in Tail, &c. that it cannot be undone or made void: As where if all the Parties that have Interest join, they cannot bar or pass the Estate; but if by the Concurrence of all having the Estate-tail, it may be barred, it is no Perpetuity. 2 Lill. Abr. 292. It is a Rule that hath destroyed Perpetuities, that an Estate cannot be made to cease for a Time, and then to rise again; or to cease as to one Person, and have Being as to another; or deprive a Tenant in Tail by Condition or Limitation of the Power of Alienation. Hob. 257. 1 Rep. 84. Perpetuities are odious in the Law; and an executory Devise of Lands after an Estate-tail generally, tends to a Perpetuity; tho' not where it depends upon one Life, when a Fee-simple may be to one, and remain to another, &c. 2 Cro. 695. A Term for Years may not be devised in Tail, with Remainders over to raise a Perpetuity: But a Limitation of a Term in Reversion, to several Persons in esse, doth not extend to create a Perpetuity; though if it be to Persons not in esse, it is otherwise. Moor 495. Chanc. Rep. 8. A Lease for Years, to a Man and the Heirs of his Body, &c. is not good; but it may be assigned to Trustees, for the Issue in Tail to receive the Profits, &c. yet if such a Lease comes then to be limited in Tail, a present Remainder may not be limited thereon; but the Law will allow a future Contingent Estate, so as it wears out in a short Time, as in the Compass of two Lives, &c. 10 Rep. 87. 4 Inst. 27.

Per quæ servitia, Is a judicial Writ, issuing on the Note of a Fine, and lies for the Cognisee of a Manor, Lands, Rents, or other Services, to compel the Tenants at the Time of the Fine levied to attorn to him thereupon. Old Nat. Br. 155.

Perquisite, (Perquistum) Signifies any Thing gained by one's own Industry or Purchase; contradistinguished from that which descends to a Man from a Father or Ancestor. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 30.

Perquisites of Courts, Are commonly those Profits that arise to Lords of Manors, from their Courts-Baron, over and above the certain and yearly Revenue of the Lands; as Fines of Copyholds, Heriots, Amerciaments, &c. Perk. 20, 21. Perquisites of Officers. See Fees.

Per quod consortium amisit, And per quod servitium amisit, are Words necessary in Declarations for Trespass, &c. where a Man's Wife or Servant is beaten, or taken from him, and he loses their Service, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 595, 596.

Person, A Man or Woman; also the State or Condition, whereby one Man differs from another.

Personable, (Personabilis) Is as much as to say enabled to hold Plea in Court; as the Defendant was judged personable, to maintain the Action. Old Nat. Br. 142. And in Kitchen, the Tenant pleaded, that the Demandant was an Alien, born in Portugal, without the Allegiance of the King; and Judgment was asked whether he should be answered: To which the Demandant said, he was made personable by Parliament, i. e. as the Civilians would speak it, Habere Personam standi in Judio. Kitch. 214. Personable likewise signifieth to be of Capacity to take any Thing granted. Plowd. 27.

Personal, (Personalis) Goods or Chattels, signifies any movable Thing belonging to a Man, be it quick or dead. West. Symb. par. 2. Sect. 58. Personal Things may be given to a Corporation; as a Horse, a Cow, Sheep, or other Goods, &c. Kitch. 139. See Chattels.

Personal Action, (Actio Personalis) Is that which one Man may have by Reason of a Contract for Money or Goods against another: It is such an Action whereby a Debt, Goods and Chattels are demanded, or Damages for them; or Damages for Wrong done to a Man's Person. Terms de Ley 19. Action of Debt lieth not against Executors, upon a Contract for the Eating and Drinking of the Testator; for that Action in such Case dieth with him. 9 Rep. 87. If a Person commit a Battery or Trespass, and he or the Person beaten, &c. die; the Action dieth, and is gone. Noy's Max. 5. An Executor cannot bring an Appeal for a Larceny from the Testator; the Appeal for it is said to be a mere Personal Action, vested in the Testator, and dies with him as all Actions for Torts do. H. P. C. 184. S. P. C. 50. And an Appeal of Death is a Personal Action given to the Heir, in Respect to his immediate Relation to the Person killed; and like other Personal Actions, shall die with the Person. 2 *Hawk. P. But it is said not to be as a Tribute to the Pope, but for the Sustentation of the English School or College at Rome; and it was called Peter-pence, because collected on the Day of St. Peter ad vincula, and was a Penny for every House. King Edgar's Laws contain a sharp Constitution touching this Money. Leg. Edg. 78. cap. 4. R.* or at the Assises, &c. 13 Car. 2. cap. 5. And if what is required by this Statute be observed, Care must be taken that Petitions to the King contain nothing which may be interpreted to reflect on the Administration; for if they do, it may come under the Denomination of a Libel: And 'tis remarkable, that the Petition of the City of London, for the Sitting of a Parliament was deem'd libellous, because it suggested that the King's Dissolving a late Parliament was an Obstruction of Justice. Read. Stat. Vol. 4. 353. To subscribe a Petition to the King, to frighten him into a Change of his Measures, intimating that if it be denied, many Thousands of his Subjects will be discontented, &c. is included among the Contempts against the King's Person and Government, tending to weaken the same, and punishable by Fine and Imprisonment. 1 *Hawk. The Laws of Oleron ordain, that if any Pilot shall designedly misguide a Ship, that it may be cast away, he shall be put to a rigorous and unmerciful Death, and hung in Chains: And if the Lord of the Place where a Ship shall be thus lost, shall abet such Villains in Order to have a Share in the Wreck, he shall be apprehended, and all his Goods forfeited for the Satisfaction of the Persons suffering; and his Person shall be fastened to a Stake in the midst of his own Mansion, which being fired on the four Corners thereof, it shall be burnt to the Ground, and he with it. Leg. Ol. cap. 25. Pirates.

Pirates, (Pirate) Are common Sea Rovers, without any fix'd Place of Residence, who acknowledge no Sovereign and no Law, and support themselves by Pillage and Depredations at Sea: But there are Instances wherein the Word Pirata has been formerly taken for a Sea Captain. Spelm. Pirates are Enemies to all; for which Reason, neither Faith nor Oath is to be kept with them: They are denied Succour by the Laws of Nations; and by the Civil Law, a Ransom promis'd to a Pirate, if not complied with, creates no Wrong; for the Law of Arms is not communicated to such, neither are they capable of enjoying that Privilege, which lawful Enemies are intitled to in the Caption of another. Lex Mercat. or Merch. Comp. 183. If a Pirate enters a Port or Haven, and assaults and robs a Merchant Ship at Anchor there; this is not Piracy, because it is not done upon the High Sea; but it is a Robbery at the Common Law, the Act being infra Corpus Comitatus: And if the Crime be committed either super Altum mare, or in great Rivers within the Realm, which are looked upon as common Highways, there it is Piracy. Sir Fra. Moor, 756. And it has been held, that Piracy being an Offence by the Civil Law only, shall not be included in a Statute speaking generally of Felonies, as to Benefit of Clergy, &c. which shall be construed only of those Felonies which are such by our Law; as those Piracies are which are committed in a Port or Creek, within the Body of a County. 2 Hawk. P. C. 345. If a Ship be riding at Anchor at Sea, and the Mariners Part in their Ship Boat, and the Rest on Shore, so that none are left in the Ship; and a Pirate shall attack her, and commit a Robbery, the same is Piracy. 14 Ed. 3. And where a Pirate assaults a Ship, and only takes away some of the Men, in order to the Selling them for Slaves; this is Piracy: And if a Pirate shall make an Attack on a Ship, and the Master for the Redemption is compelled to give his Oath to pay a certain Sum of Money, though there be no Taking, the same is Piracy by the Marine Law; but by the Common Law there must be an actual Taking, as in case of Robbery on the Highway. Lex Mercat. 185. But the Taking, by a Ship at Sea, in great Necessity, of Victuals, Cables, Ropes, &c. out of another Ship, is no Piracy; if that other Ship can spare them, and paying or giving Security therefore. Ibid. 183. A Pirate takes Goods upon the Sea, and sells them, the Property is not thereby altered, no more than if a Thief upon the Land had stolen and sold them. 27 Ed. 3. cap. 13. Godb. 193. Yet by the Laws of England, if a Man commits a Piracy upon the Subjects of any other Prince, and brings the Goods into England, and sells them in a Market-overt, the same shall be binding, and the Owners be concluded. Hob. 79. When Goods are taken by a Pirate, and afterwards the Pirate making an Attack upon another Ship, is conquered and taken by the other, by the Law Marine the Admiral may make Restitution of the Goods to the Owners, if they are Fellow Subjects of the Captor's, or belong to any State in Amity with his Sovereign, on paying the Costs and Charges, and making the Captor an equitable Consideration for his Service. Lex Mercat. 184. If a Pirate at Sea assault a Ship, and in the Engagement kills a Person in the other Ship, by the Common Law all the Persons on Board the Pirate Ship are Principals in the Murder, although none enter the other Ship; but by the Marine Law, they who gave the Wound only shall be Principals, and the Rest Accessaries, if the Parties can be known. 28 Eliz. Yelo. 134. It has been holden, that there cannot be an Accessary of Piracy, by the Law of this Realm; but if it happens, that there is an Accessary upon the Sea, such Accessary may be punished by the Civil Law, before the Lord Admiral: And it was made a Doubt, whether one who was an Accessary at Land to a Felony at Sea, were triable by the Admiral, within the Purview of 28 Hen. 8. Though this is settled by 11 & 12 W. 3. which provides that Accessaries to Piracy, before or after, shall be inquired of, tried and adjudged according to the said Statute. 2 Hawk. 222. In case the Subjects of a Prince in Enmity with the Crown of England, enter themselves Sailors on Board an English Pirate, and a Robbery is committed by them, who are afterwards taken; it is Felony in the English, but not in the Strangers: But in ancient Times, it was Petit Treason in the English, and Felony in the Strangers: And if any Englishman commits Piracy upon the Subjects of any Prince or State in Amity with the Crown of England, they are within the Stat. 28 Hen. 8. If the Subjects of any Nation or Kingdom, in Amity with England, shall commit a Piracy on the Ships or Goods of the English, the same is Felony, and punishable by this Statute: And Piracy committed by the Subjects of France, or of any other Country in Friendship with us, upon the British Seas, is properly punishable by the Crown of England only. Lex Mercat. 186, 187. In case of Piracy attempted on the Ocean, if the Pirates are overcome, the Takers may immediately inflict a Punishment, by hanging them up at the Main-yard-End; tho' this is understood where no legal Judgment may be obtained: And hence it is, that if a Ship shall be on a Voyage to any Part of America, or the Plantations there, on a Discovery of those Parts; and in her Way she is attacked by a Pirate, but in the Attempt the Pirate is overcome; the Pirates may be forthwith executed, without any Solemnity of Condemnation, by the Marine Law. Ibid. 184. By Stat. 28 Hen. 8. cap. 15. all Robberies and Felonies committed by Pirates at Sea, &c. shall be inquired of, heard and determined in any County of England, by the King's Commission, as if the Offences had been committed on Land; and such Commission shall be directed to the Lord Admiral, &c. and three or four other Persons, as shall be named by the Lord Chancellor, who shall hear and determine such Offences after the common Course of the Laws of the Kingdom used for Felonies and Robberies, &c. and award Judgment and Execution against Persons indicted on the Statute, as against Felons for any Felony done upon the Land; and the Offenders shall suffer such Pains of Death, Loss of Lands and Goods, as if they had been attainted of such Offence committed on Land, &c. This Statute doth not alter the Offence of Piracy, but leaves it as it was before, viz. Felony only by the Civil Law; but giveth a Trial according to the Common Law, and inflicts Pains of Death, &c. as if the Offenders had been convicted of any Felony done upon the Land. 3 Inst. 112. H. P. C. 77. And no Attainder for this Offence corrupts the Blood, the Statute mentioning only that the Offender shall suffer such Pains of Death, Loss of Lands, &c. as if

if he were attainted of a Felony at Common Law; but says not, that the Blood shall be corrupted. 3 Inst. 112. Likewise the Offender is to be tried on the Statute; to forfeit his Lands, &c. which are not forfeited by the Civil Law. 1 Lill. Abr. The Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. cap. 7. enacts, that all Piracies, Felonies and Robberies committed in or upon the Sea, or in any Haven, &c. where the Admiral hath Jurisdiction, may be try'd at Sea or upon the Land, in any of his Majesty's Islands, Plantations, &c. abroad, appointed for that Purpose, by Commission, under the Great Seal or Seal of the Admiralty, directed to such Commissioners as the King shall think fit; who may commit the Offenders, and call a Court of Admiralty, consisting of seven Persons at least; or for Want of Seven, any Three of the Commissioners may call others; and the Persons so assembled may proceed according to the Course of the Admiralty, pass Sentence of Death, and order Execution of the Criminals, &c. And Commissioners for Trial of the said Offences within the Jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports, shall be directed to the Warden of the said Cinque Ports, and the Trial to be by the Inhabitants of the same Ports. And by the said Statute 11 & 12 W. 3. if any natural-born Subjects or Denizens of England, shall commit Piracy against any of his Majesty's Subjects at Sea, under Colour of any Commission from any foreign Prince, they shall be adjudged Pirates: If any Master of a Ship or Seaman, give up his Ship, &c. to Pirates, or combine to yield up or run away with any Ship; or any Seaman shall lay violent Hands on his Commander, or endeavour a Revolt in the Ship, he shall be adjudged a Pirate, and suffer accordingly; also if any Person shall discover a Combination for running away with a Ship, he shall be intitled to a Reward of 10 l. for every Vessel of 100 Tons, and 15 l. if above: And all Persons who shall set forth any Pirate, or be assisting to those committing Piracy; or that shall conceal such Pirates, or receive any Vessel or Goods piratically taken, shall be deemed Accessary to the Piracy, and suffer as Principals. The 6 Geo. makes the Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. cap. 7. perpetual: And by 8 Geo. cap. 24. Masters of Ships trading with Pirates, or furnishing them with Stores, &c. and Persons corresponding with Pirates, are declared Guilty of Piracy; and shall be tried according to the Statutes 28 Hen. 8. and 11 & 12 W. 3. and suffer Death, forfeit Lands, &c. Ships fitted out with Design to trade with Pirates, and the Goods shall be forfeited: And Masters of Ships, and Seamen of Ships carrying Guns, being attacked by Pirates, if they do not defend their Ships, shall forfeit their Wages, and be imprisoned six Months; but Seamen wounded in the Defence of Ships against Pirates, shall be admitted into Greenwich Hospital, &c. Where an English Ship shall have been defended by Fight against Pirates, and any of the Officers or Seamen shall be killed or wounded, the Judge of the Admiralty, or Mayor or chief Officer of any Port, assisted by four Merchants, may by Process levy a Sum not exceeding 2 per Cent. of the Value of the Ship and Goods defended, to be distributed among the Officers and Seamen, or the Widows and Children of the Persons killed. Lex Mercat. 186. Pirates are always excepted in general Pardons: And the Indictment for Piracy must alledge the Fact to be done upon the Sea; and have both the Words Felonice and Piraticæ, &c.

Piscary, (Piscaria, vel Privilegium Piscandi) Is a Right or Liberty of Fishing in the Waters of another Person: And there are three Sorts of Piscaries, Libera Piscaria; Separalis Piscaria; and Communis Piscaria. See Fishing, and Common of Piscary.

Pit, Is a Hole wherein the Scots use to drown Women Thieves; and to say condemned to the Pit, is as when we say condemned to the Gallows. Skene.

Pit and Gallows. See Fossa and Furca.

Pitance, (Pitancia, modicum) A little Repast, or Refection of Fish or Flesh, more than the common Allowance. — Johannes Dei Gratia, &c. Concessimus, &c. In usus Pauperum, & ad Refectionem Monachorum, qui illis diebus Officia divina pro Defunctis celebrabunt, quæ Refectio Pitancia vocat. &c. Rot. Char. ad Hospital. S. Salvator. Sancti Edmundi, &c. Ann. 1. Reg. Johan. p. 2.

Pitching-pence, Is that Money, commonly a Penny, which is paid for Pitching, or setting down every Bag of Corn, or Pack of Goods, in a Fair or Market.

Placard, (Fr. Plaquant, Dutch Placcaert) Hath several Significations: In France, it is a Table, wherein Laws, Orders, &c. are written and hung up; and in Holland, it is an Edict or Proclamation; also it is used for a Writing of safe Conduct: With us it is mentioned as a Licence to use certain Games, &c. in the Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. cap. 7.

Place, (Locus) Where a Fact was committed, is to be alledged in Appeals of Death, Indictments, &c.

Placita, Is a Word often mentioned in our Histories, and Law Books: At first it signified the publick Assemblies of all Degrees of Men where the King presided, and they usually consulted upon the great Affairs of the Kingdom; and these were called Generalia Placita, because Generalitas universorum majorum tam Clericorum quam Laicorum ibidem conveniebat: And this was the Custom in our neighbouring Nation of France, as well as here, as we are told by Bertinian, in his Annals of France, in the Year 767. Some of our Historians, as Simeon of Durham, and others, who wrote above 300 Years afterwards, tells us, that these Assemblies were held in the open Fields; and that the Placita Generalia, and Curia Regis, were what we now call a Parliament: 'Tis true, the Lords Courts were so called, viz. Placita Generalia, but oftner Curia generales, because all their Tenants and Vassals were bound to appear there. The Word Placita was likewise sometimes applied to Penalties, Fines, Mulcts, or Emendations, according to the Black Book in the Exchequer, Lib. 2. Tit. 13. And hence is the old Custom, Comes habet tertium denarium Placitorum. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 12. It is now taken for Pleadings or Debates, and Trials at Law.

Placitare, i. e. Litigare & Causas agere, to plead: And the Manner of Pleading before the Conquest was, Coram Aldermanno & Proceribus, & coram Hundredariis, &c. M.S. in Bibl. Cotton.

Placitum nominatum, Is the Day appointed for a Criminal to appear and plead, and make his Defence. Leg. Hen. 1. cap. 29, 46.

Plague.

Plague. Mayors, Bailiffs, Head Officers of Corporations, and Justices of Peace, have Power to tax Inhabitants, Houses, Lands, &c. within their Precincts, for the Relief of Persons infected with the Plague; and Justices of the County may tax Persons within five Miles round, on a Parish's Inability; the Tax to be levied by Distress and Sale of Goods, or in Default thereof by Imprisonment: Infected Persons going abroad, after commanded to keep House for avoiding further Infection, may be resisted by Watchmen, &c. and punished as Vagrants, if they have no Sores upon them; and if they have infectious Sores on them, it is Felony: Justices of Peace, &c. are to appoint Searchers, Examiners, and Buriers of the Dead, in Places infected, and administer Oaths to them for the Performance of their Duties, &c. Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 31. Some Places in the Baltick being infected with the Plague, in the Reign of Queen Anne, an Act was made for obliging Ships coming from thence to perform their Quarentine during the Infection in foreign Parts; and Masters of Ships coming on Shore, during the Quarentine, are to forfeit their Ships, &c. And others directed to take Care of the Quarentine, permitting any to come on Shore, shall forfeit 100 l. 9 Ann. c. 2. During the late Reign that Marfeils in France was infected, a Statute was made with further Provisions for the Preventing of Infection: By this Act, Ships coming into Ports, are to perform Quarentine; and Persons quitting Ships before performed, shall incur the Forfeiture of 200 l. Goods after Quarentine performed are to be aired; and Ships infected, to be burnt: His Majesty may make Orders concerning Quarentine; and, in Time of Infection here, cause Lazarets to be provided for the Sick, and Lines and Trenches to be cast up about Places, &c. And infected Persons were to be removed from their Houses to such Lazarets; and Escaping from thence, or out of the Lines of Places, to be guilty of Felony: Watches to be appointed by Justices of Peace, to keep People within the Lines, &c. 7 Geo. cap. 3. And by a subsequent Act, the King is enabled to prohibit Commerce with any Countries infected, by Proclamation; also Persons trading contrary to the Proclamation, their Goods and Ships shall be forfeited; and Officers of Ports may resist the Entrance of Ships, by firing of Guns, &c. Persons going to Places infected, incur a Premunire; and coming from such Places, shall be adjudged guilty of Felony. 8 Geo. cap. 8. The Clauses in the Act 7 Geo. relating to Removal of Persons infected to Lazarets, and making Lines round Towns, &c. are repealed by 8 Geo. cap. 10. And these last Acts, are since expired.

Plaint, (Fr. Plainte Lat. Querela) Is the Exhibiting any Action, real or personal, in writing; and the Party making his Plaint is called the Plaintiff. Kitch. 231. A Plaint in an inferior Court is the Entry of an Action, after this Manner: A. B. Queritur versus C. D. de Placito Transgressionis, & sunt Pleg. de Prosequend. scilicet Johannes Doe & Richardus Roe. The first Process in an inferior Court is a Plaint, which is in the Nature of an Original Writ, because therein is briefly set forth the Plaintiff's Cause of Action; and upon this Plaint there may issue a Pone, till the Return of a Nihil, upon which a Capias will not lie against the Body of the Defendant. 2 Lill. Abr. 294. Where a Plaint is levied in an inferior Court, the Defendant must be first distrained for Non-appearance, by something of small Value; and then if he doth not appear, a farther Distress is to be taken to a greater Value, and so on; if all his Goods are distrained upon the first Distress, Attachment may be issued out of B. R. against the Officers, &c. Ibid. A Plaintiff in an Affise may abridge his Plaint of any Part whereunto a Bar is pleaded. 21 H. 8. c. 3. See County Court.

A Plaint is said to be the Cause for which the Plaintiff doth complain against the Defendant, and for which he doth obtain the King's Writ: For as the King denies his Writ to none, if there be Cause to grant it; so he grants not his Writ to any without there be Cause alledged for it. 2 Lill. 294.

Plantation, (Plantatio, Colonia) Is a Place whither People are sent to dwell, or a Company of People transplanted from one Place to another, with an Allowance of Land for their Tillage. Litt. Dist. All Wastes, which the Natives of any Country make no use of, nor can receive any Damage by their being in the Hands of others, may lawfully be possessed by Planters: If a Nation or People should happen to be expelled out of their own Land, they may seek void Places in some other Country, and there may justly plant; and the immediate Possessing such Plantations creates a Right against all Persons but he that hath Empire there. Lex Mercat. 156. And where Persons having arrived in any Territories and planted there, if before they can reap the Fruits of their Labour the Necessities of human Life are wanting, by the Laws of Nature they may force a Subsistence from a Neighbour Planter; and the Reason is this, that a Subsistence belongs to every Man, unless he has merited to lose the Life which he seeks to preserve. Ibid. Our Plantations abroad are chiefly Islands in America, over which there are particular Governors; and the Islands of Jamaica and Barbadoes, with some others, are very populous, and much frequented by unfortunate Persons, as they are there privileged from Arrests for Debt on foreign Contracts made out of those Islands; and have so great Advantages in Trade, that by Industry and Application, a present Misfortune is oftentimes attended with a future Happiness, by accumulating great Wealth from the Products of these foreign Colonies. Geograph. Epitom. 228. The Plantation Islands being gotten by Conquest, or by some of the King's Subjects going in Search of some Prize, and planting themselves there, the King is not restrained by the Laws of England to govern them by any particular Laws, but may govern them by what Law he will. 3 Mod. 159. 2 Nelf. Abr. 871. But it is said, if an uninhabited Country be newly found out by English Subjects, all Laws in Force in the Kingdom of England are immediately in Force there. 2 Salk. 411. All that are appointed Governors of the Plantations, shall, before their Entrance into their Government, take an Oath to do their utmost to put the Laws in Force in the said Plantations; and upon Complaint to the King, or such as he shall appoint, that such Governors have been wittingly negligent therein, the Governors so offending shall be removed, &c. 12 Car. 2. c. 18. 7 & 8 W. 3. And by the Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 12. If any Governor, Deputy Governor, or Commander in Chief of any Plantation or Colony within his Majesty's Dominion beyond the Seas, shall shall oppress any of his Majesty's Subjects within their respective Governments, or be guilty of any other Crime or Misdemeanor, contrary to the Laws of this Realm, or those in Force within their Governments; such Oppressions shall be inquired of, heard and determined in the Court of King's Bench in England, or before such Commissioners, and in such County of this Realm as the King shall appoint, and by good and lawful Men of such County; and the like Punishments shall be inflicted as are usual for such Offences here in England. All Laws, Usages or Customs in Practice in any of the Plantations, which are repugnant to the Laws of this Kingdom, are declared null and void. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 22. By the same Statute all Places of Trust in the Courts of Law, or relating to the Treasury, in any Island, Colony or Plantation, belonging to England, shall be in the Hands of the Native-born Subjects of England, Ireland, or of the said Islands; also Tracts of Land on the Continent of America, held by Charter or Letters Patent, shall not at any Time be aliened or sold to any other than the Natural-born Subjects of England, Ireland, &c. without the King's Licence. Stat. Ibid. No Alien shall be a Merchant or Factor in any of the Territories and Plantations belonging to England, in Asia, Africa or America, on Pain to lose all his Goods; one third to the King, another third to the Governor of the Plantation, and the other third to any Person suing in any of the King's Courts there. 12 Car. 2. And no Governor abroad shall be a Factor or Agent under the Penalty of 500 l. &c. 9 & 10 W. 3. Governors of the Plantations are not to suffer any foreign-built Ship or Vessel to load or unload Goods, till a Certificate is produced that the Owner or Owners are not Aliens, and Examination is made: And no Sugars, Tobacco, Ginger, Indico, &c. of the Growth of any English Plantations in America, shall be transported to any Place but to some English Plantation, or to England, Ireland, &c. on Pain of Forfeiture and the Ship, one Moiety to the King, and the other to him that will seize and sue for the same. 12 Car. 2. c. 18. For every Vessel which sets out from England or Ireland for any of the said Plantations, Bond shall be given, with one Surety, to the chief Officers of the Custom-house of the Place whence she sails, of 1000 l. if the Ship be under 100 Tuns; and of 2000 l. Penalty if of greater Burden; that if the said Vessel load any of the said Commodities at such Plantations, it shall bring them to some Port of England, Ireland, &c. And for all Ships coming from any other Port to those Plantations, the Governors, before the Ship be permitted to load, shall take such Bond that it shall carry the Merchandize to some other English Plantations, or to England or Ireland; and every Ship taking on board any of the aforesaid Goods before such Bond given, or Certificate thereof, &c. shall be forfeited; and the said Governors shall twice in every Year return true Copies of such Bonds to the chief Officers of the Customs in London, &c. Ibid. If any Vessel shall take on board any of the Commodities aforesaid, at any of the said English Plantations, before Bond be given, as directed by 12 Car. 2. or Certificate produced from the Officers of some Custom-house in England, &c. that such Bond hath been there given; or shall carry the said Goods to any Place, contrary to the Tenor of such Bonds, the same shall be forfeited, with the Ship and all her Furniture, Guns, Ammunition, &c. one Moiety to the King, and the other Moiety to him that will sue for the same in any of the said Plantations, or in the Court of the High Admiral of England, or of any Vice-Admiral, or any Court of Record in England. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 26. But these Penalties seem to be taken off by the Stat. 25 Car. 2. c. 7. which ordains, that if any Ship or Vessel shall come to any of his Majesty's Plantations to ship any Sugar, Tobacco, &c. and Bond shall not be first given to bring the same to England, there shall be answered to the King several Duties before Lading thereof, and under such Penalties as for Non-payment or defrauding the King of his Customs in England. Goods are to be imported and exported from and to the Plantations in Ships built in England or Ireland, or the said Plantations; and navigated with the Master and three Fourths of the Mariners of the said Places, on Pain of forfeiting Ship and Goods, &c. And all Ships, lading or unlading any Goods at any of the Plantations in America, and the Masters and Commanders thereof shall be subject to the same Rules, Visitations, Searches, Penalties, and Forfeitures, as Ships and their Ladings are liable to in England; and the Officers for collecting the Customs there, shall have the like Powers as the Officers of the Customs in this Kingdom; and Persons assisting in Concealments, shall be subject to the like Penalties, &c. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 22. Persons serving on Board, or retained to serve on Board any Trading Ships, in any Part of the Plantations of America, or any Persons being on Shore there, may not be impress'd by any Ships of War; unless such Persons shall be Deserters from such Ships, on the Penalty of 20 l. Stat. 6 Ann.

Playhouse. Playhouses were originally instituted with a Design of recommending Virtue to the Imitation of the People, and exposing Vice and Folly; and therefore are not in their own Nature Nuisances: But it hath been holden, that a common Playhouse may be a Nuisance, if it draw together great Numbers of Coaches, &c. as prove generally inconvenient to the Places adjacent. 5 Mod. 142. If any Persons shall in Plays, &c. jestingly or profanely use the Name of God, they shall forfeit 10*l.* Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 21. And speaking any Thing in Derogation of Religion, &c. they are liable to Forfeitures and Imprisonment. 1 Eliz. Also acting Plays or Interludes on a Sunday, is subject to Penalties, by 1 Car. 1. cap. 1.

Plea, (Placitum) Is that which either Party alledges for himself in Court, in a Cause there depending to be tried: And Pleading in a large Sense, contains all the Matters which come after the Declaration, as well on the Defendant's as the Plaintiff's Side, till Issue is joined; but is commonly taken for the Defendant's Answer to the Plaintiff's Declaration. Pleas are divided into Pleas of the Crown and Common Pleas; Pleas of the Crown are all Suits in the King's Name, for Offences committed against his Crown and Dignity, and also against the Peace, as Treasons, Felonies, Maihem, &c. And Common Pleas are those that are agitated between common Persons, in Civil Cases: And Pleas may be farther divided into as many Branches as Action; for they signify all one. S. P. C. cap. 1. 4 Inst. 10. A Plea to the Action is that which goes to the Merits of the Cause or Action; and is General to the Declaration, or a Special Plea: A General Plea, in Debt on Contract, is Nil debet: In Debt on Bond, Non est factum, or Solvit ad Diem; in Action of the Case upon a Promise, Non assumpsit; in Trespass upon the Case, Not guilty; in Covenant, Performance of Covenants, &c. A Special Plea contains the Matter at large, concluding to the Declaration or Action; and Special Pleas are many, as Per Dures and Per Minas, and in Justification, that in Assault and Battery, the Plaintiff struck the first Blow, &c. In Waste, on Nul Waste pleaded, the Defendant cannot plead justifiable Waste; but he may give in Evidence, Lightning, Enemies, &c. to prove it to be no Waste: He is to confess the Fact, and plead specially in these Cases. Finch 362, 378. 1 Inst. 282, 372. Special Pleas in Answer to the Plaintiff's Declaration, are of two Kinds; Pleas in Bar, and in Abatement; and every Plea must be pleaded either in Bar to the Action brought, or in Abatement of the Writ upon which the Action is framed, or it is but a Discourse, and not a Plea. A General Plea is drawn without Counsel's Hand, only the Defendant's Attorney's Name is to it; and he is to pay the Plaintiff's Attorney for entering it: Special Pleas are drawn up in Form, and must be sign'd by Counsel, or they will not be received: A Foreign Plea is to be ingrossed in Parchment, and signed by Counsel, and be put in upon the Oath of the Defendant, that the Plea is true. Practis. Attorn. Edit. 1. pag. 80. And when a Defendant hath pleaded, the Plaintiff answers the Defendant's Plea, which is called a Replication; and the Defendant answers the Plaintiff's Replication, by Rejoinder; which the Plaintiff may answer by Surrejoinder; and sometimes, though seldom, Pleadings come to Rebutter, in Answer to the Surrejoinder; and Surrebutter. 1 Inst. 303. In good Order of Pleading, a Person ought to plead, 1st, To the Jurisdiction of the Court. 2dly, To the Person of the Plaintiff, and next of the Defendant. 3dly, To the Writ. 4thly, To the Action of the Writ. 5thly, To the Count or Declaration. 6thly, To the Action it self in Bar thereof. A Plea to the Jurisdiction is called a foreign Plea, because it alledges that the Matter ought to be tried in another Court, &c. Pleas to the Person have been formerly Six, viz. Villenage, Outlawry, Excommunication, the Party an Alien, out of Protection, and professed in Religion; but the last is now no Plea. The Plea to the Writ, &c. is for Variance between the Writ and Record, Death of Parties, Misnomer, Jointenancy, &c. and may be to the Writ and Bill, or Count together. Pleas to the Count or Declaration are Variance between the Writ and the Count, Specialty or Record, Incertainty, &c. and all these are properly Pleas in Abatement. Plea to the Action of the Writ is where one pleadeth such Matter which sheweth the Plaintiff had no Cause to have the Writ brought. And a Plea in Bar to the Action it self, is when the Defendant pleadeth a Plea which is sufficient to overthrow the Action of the Plaintiff. Kitch. 95. Litt. 196. Pleas in Bar, such as a Release, the Statute of Limitations, Agreement with Satisfaction, &c. destroy the Plaintiff's Action for ever: But Pleas in Abatement are temporary and dilatory, and do not destroy the Action, only

ly stop the Cause for a while, till the Defect is removed ; as where there is some Fault in the Writ or Declaration, Misnomer of the Defendant, where the Plaintiff is excommunicate, &c. A Plea to the Jurisdiction, Misnomer, or any other Plea in Abatement, cannot be pleaded after an Imparance ; though a Plea in Bar may, because that goes to destroy the Action. 2 Lutw. 1174. Pleas in Bar may come after a Continuance, or general Imparance ; but if such Plea be first pleaded, the Defendant shall not be admitted afterwards to plead in Abatement of the Writ, which is allowed to be good by Pleading in Bar to the Action : Yet Matter of Record may be shewn in Arrest of Judgment, and thereby the Writ be abated. Hob. 280, 281. By Imparance a Writ or Bill is admitted to be good, so that after it Plea in Abatement ought not to be received ; but if it be accepted, and the Plaintiff doth demur to it, the Demurrer is good : After a Defendant hath pleaded in Abatement, and before he pleads directly in Bar, he may demur to the Declaration of the Plaintiff ; as he may where he is advised that the Declaration is insufficient, &c. Pract. Solic. 235, 236. If the Defendant can have no Advantage by Pleading in Abatement, or by Demurring in Law, he may afterwards plead in Bar ; and before he pleads any special Matter in Bar, he may plead in general, viz. A Release, or Defeasance ; Acceptance of other Things ; Tender of Amends ; Concord or Accord ; Arbitrament ; Auterfoits Bar by former Judgment ; the Statute of Limitation of Actions ; Disability of the Plaintiff ; Privilege of the Defendant, or other Matter ; for several Matters pleadable in Abatement, may be pleaded in Bar. Pract. Attorn. 1 Edit. 82. Also he may plead another Action depending of the same Nature, for the same Thing, &c. and if a Person mistaking his first Action, bring another Action without discontinuing the First, this Plea may be pleaded. 1 Salk. 392. There is likewise a Plea puis Darrein Continuance, where the Defendant hath pleaded a Plea, and before Trial, there happens some new Matter, which will avoid the Action : It may be pleaded after Issue joined, at any Time before the Verdict ; but after Verdict, and before Day in Bank, there is no Day to plead it ; so that the Remedy is by Audita Querela, Cro. Jac. 646. Anciently all Pleadings were in French ; but by Statute, they are to be pleaded and answered in English, and entered and inrolled in Latin. Stat. 36 Ed. 3. cap. 15. 22 Car. 2. c. 3. A Defendant in any Suit, may plead several Matters ; but if any such Matter be excepted to, and found insufficient, Costs shall be given : And no dilatory Plea shall be allowed in any Court of Record, unless the Truth be proved by Affidavit ; or probable Matter be shewn. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. When a Declaration, or Bar, are defective in Circumstances of Time, Place, &c. this may be helped by the Pleading of the adverse Party to it ; but not if it be insufficient in Matter. 2 Ventr. 222. 1 Danv. Abr. 156. If the Defendant pleads a dilatory and frivolous Plea, to hinder the Plaintiff from going to Trial ; the Court, on Motion, will order the Defendant to plead such a Plea as he shall stand to, or to accept of a Demurrer to his dilatory Plea, on Arguing whereof, if the Plea be not good, the Court will not after permit him to amend it ; and when a dilatory Plea in Abatement is over-ruled, there shall be a

Respondeas Ouster, except an Issue be joined on it. 6 Mod. 102. And if a Plea in Bar of the Action, which is peremptory, is over-ruled, Judgment shall be given against the Defendant. Lutw. 42. Where it is doubtful between the Parties, whether a Plea be good or not, it cannot be determined by the Court on Motion, but there ought to be a Demurrer upon the Plea ; and upon Arguing thereof, the Court shall judge of the Plea whether good or bad : And no Advantage can be had of double Pleading, without special Demurrer. 2 Lill. Abr. 310. Lutw. 422. But though the Court is to judge of Pleadings, they will not direct any Person how to plead, notwithstanding the Matter be difficult ; but the Parties must plead at their Peril, and Counsel are to advise, &c. If the Plaintiff's Attorney will consent, the Defendant may wave his Plea pleaded, without moving the Court ; but if he will not consent, it cannot be done without moving the Court. Trin. 1651. A Defendant may wave his special Plea, and plead the general Issue, if there be no Joinder in Demurrer. 2 Salk. The Defendant, before Joinder in Demurrer, may amend his Plea ; and so after Joinder in Demurrer, before argued : And where a Defendant has demurred, and the Plaintiff joined ; the Court will oftentimes allow him to withdraw his Demurrer, and plead to the Action, if the Plaintiff hath not been put by a Trial. Pract. Solic. 303. A Plea may be amended, on Leave of the Court, if it be but in Paper, and not entered, paying Costs : If after the Defendant hath pleaded, the Plaintiff alters his Declaration, the Defendant may alter his Plea. 2 Lill. 322. Falshood in a Defendant's Plea, if it be not hurtful to the Plaintiff, nor beneficial to the Defendant, it doth no Injury ; as it doth where detrimental to the Plaintiff, &c. Ibid. 297. Though if an Attorney pleads a false Plea by Deceit, it is against his Oath, and he may be fined. 1 Salk. 515. Concerning Pleas in general ; all Pleas are to be succinct, without unnecessary Repetitions, and to be direct and pertinent to the Case, not by Way of Argument or Rehearsal ; and the Plea of every Man shall be taken most strongly against himself. 2 Lill. 304. The Plea must directly answer the Charge in the Plaintiff's Declaration, or it will not be good. 1 Danv. Abr. 235. If it doth not answer all the Matter contained in the Declaration, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment as for Want of a Plea. 1 Lev. 16. And in pleading a Tender, at the Putting in of the Plea, the Money is to be brought into Court, or the Plea will not be accepted, but the Plaintiff shall sign Judgment. 2 Lill. Abr. 308. Though when Judgment in Ejectment is signed for Want of a Plea if Possession be not delivered, a Judge before the Assises may compel the Plaintiff to accept of a Plea. 2 Salk. 516. Pleadings which amount to no more than the general Issue, are not to be allowed, but the general Issue shall be entered ; and where the Defendant may plead the general Issue, he ought to plead so that the whole Matter in Question may be tried. 2 Lill. 302. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1246. 1 Salk. 394. If the Defendant is not constrained to plead a special Plea, he may plead the general Issue proper to the Action brought, and give the special Matter in Evidence : And in many Cases general Pleadings are permitted, to avoid Tediousness and Multiplicity, and the Particular shall come on the other Side ; as in Case of a Condition to perform all Covenants in an Indenture, &c. but where a Thing rests in a Man's own Notice, he must plead it particularly. 1 Inst. 303. 8 Rep. 133. 2 Danv. Abr. 249. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1249. General Estates in Fee-simple may be generally alledged; but Estates in Tail, and particular Estates, must be shewed. A Plea of Conveyance of Lands, &c. inter alia, where the Conveyance contains more than relates to the Matter of the Plea, is good. 1 Roll. Rep. 72. But Pleading a Thing per nomen, &c. is no good Way of Pleading; for it never mends a Plea which is bad in the Beginning. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1267. Bonds and Deeds are to be pleaded with a Profert hic in Curia, &c. Ibid. 1261. If one comes in by Act of Law, the general Allegation will suffice; and Things spiritual, or where the Plea consists of Matter infinite may be generally pleaded: All necessary Circumstances implied by the Law, need not be expressed in the Plea; but when any special or substantial Matter is alledged, it should be specially answered; and so Matters of Record, where they are the Foundation of the Suit, or Substance of the Plea. 10 Rep. 94. 3 Cro. 749. Plowd. 65. That which is alledged by Way of Inducement to the Substance of the Matter, needs not be certainly alledged as the Substance it self. Plowd. 81. Pleas that are too general are not good. 1 Lutw. 239. 2 Salk. 521. And every Plea ought to be single and certain; and not be double, or contain a Multitude of distinct Matter to one and the same Thing, whereto several Answers are required, which will not be allowed; nor where the Defendant pleads two Matters, each being a sufficient Bar to the Action, unless one depends upon the other, or the Defendant cannot come at the one without shewing the other, when it is good. 11 Rep. 52. 1 Ventr. 48, 272. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1254. A double Plea will not be good; for where there is double Matter, no certain Issue can be taken: But a Plea is not double which contains divers Matters, if it would not have answered the whole Declaration without alledging all those Matters in it, and which are necessary in the Defendant's just Defence. 2 Lill. Abr. 300. A Man cannot plead any Thing afterwards which he might have pleaded at first. Ibid. 318. Though Surplusage shall never make the Plea vicious, but where it is contrary to the Matter before. Raym. 8. The Court never orders a Defendant to plead peremptorily, 'till all the Rules are out: And where the Plaintiff amends and gives an Imparlance, there shall be new Rules given to plead, but not if there is no Imparlance. 2 Salk. 517. In the Court of C. B. if the Defendant doth not plead on Rule to answer, before the Rule is expired, the Plaintiff's Attorney may afterwards enter up Judgment by Nil dicit. Pract. Solic. 303. If a Copy of the Plaintiff's Declaration be delivered to the Defendant's Attorney before the Essoin-Day of the Term, he may be compelled to plead that Term, or Judgment shall be entered against him: By the usual Course, the Defendant is to answer the same Term in which he appears, if it be an issuable Term, and the Writ is returnable at the Beginning thereof; but generally a Defendant hath Time to plead 'till the next Term. Pract. Attorn. Edit. 1. When a Matter is expressly pleaded by one Party in the Affirmative, which is expressly pleaded to and denied by the other Party, the next Thing is to be an Issue in order to Trial, that they may not plead in infinitum. Raym. 199. The Law requires in every Plea two Things, viz. Matter sufficient; and that it be expressed according to the Forms of the Law. Hob. 164. Each Plea is to have its proper Conclusion; and regularly all Pleas that are Affirmative conclude, Et hoc paratus est verificare, &c. A Plea in Abatement begins, Quod Def. ad Billam, &c. Respondere non debet, &c. and concludes, Unde petit Judicium de Bill. vel Nar. prad. Et quod Billa cassetur, &c. or, Si prad. C. D. ad Bill. prad. Respondere compelli debeat, &c. In a Plea in Bar, the Defendant in the Beginning says, Quod Quer. Actionem suam vers. eum habere seu manutenere non debet; and concludes with, Pet. Judicium si Actionem suam vers. eum habere seu manutenen. debeat, &c. Pract. Solic. 236. A Plea of Record ought to conclude, Et hoc paratus est verificare per Recordum, or prout patet per Recordum. 2 Nelf. 1269. See Abatement, Issue, Misnomer, &c.

Pleas in Criminal Cases. One indicted of Felony, &c. ought not to be allow'd to plead to the Indictment, 'till he holds up his Hand at the Bar; which is in Nature of an Appearance, &c. A Prisoner on his Arraignment may plead the General Issue, or in Abatement, &c. or demur to the Indictment; and he may plead in Bar, Auterfoits Acquit, Auterfoits Convict before Judgment, Auterfoits Attaint, &c. viz. That he was heretofore acquitted, convicted, or attainted of the same Felony. H. P. C. 228. 3 Inst. 213, 214. A Criminal may also plead a Pardon, or Benefit of Clergy, tho' this last is not usually pleaded until he has otherwise pleaded before. Vide Auterfoits Acquit.

Pleas of the Sword, Were the Pleas of the Dignity of the Earl of Chester; signifying Sovereign Authority. King Will. 1. gave the Earldom of Chester to his Half-Brother Hugh Lupus, Ancestor to Ranulph the third Earl of Chester; Tenere

Tenere ita libere per Gladium, sicut ipse Rex Willielmus tenuit Angliam ad Coronam: And Earl Ranulph, anno 2 Hen. 3. granted to his Barons of Chebbire, a Charter of Liberties, Exceptis Placitis ad Gladium, &c. Rot. Pat. 3 Ed. 4. According to the Grant of Will. 1. in all Indictments for Felony, Murder, &c. in that County Palatine, the Form was antiently. — Contra Pacem Domini Comititis, Gladium & Dignitatem, &c.

Plebanus, A Rural Dean, because the Deane-ries were commonly affix'd to the Plebanae, or chief Mother-Churches within such a District, at first commonly of ten Parishes: But it is infer'd from divers Authorities, that Plebanus was not the usual Title of every Rural Dean; but only of such a Parish Priest in a large Mother-Church, exempt from the Jurisdiction of the Ordinary, who had the Authority of a Rural Dean committed to him by the Archbishop, to whom the Church was immediately subject. *Wharton. Pledge, (Lat. Plegius, Fr. Pleige, i. e. Fidejussor) A Surety that undertakes for another Man in Action of Trespafs, &c. Pledges are Bail to Actions; also upon suing out some original Writs, it is thus inserted, viz. Si A. B. fecerit te securum de Clamore suo Prosequendo tunc pone per vadios & salvos Plegios C. D. & E. F. de, &c. quod sit, &c. or these Pledges are generally John Doe and Richard Roe. 2 Litt. Abr. 329. Those that bail or redeem any Thing but the Body of a Man, are called Pledges: And Pledges are usually found for the Demandants in Real Actions, and Plaintiffs in Personal Actions. Ibid. The Reason of finding these Pledges was, that the Plaintiff should prosecute his Suit with Effect to Judgment, and not put the Defendant to unnecessary Trouble and Charge; for if he were nonsuited at the Trial, the Entry of the Judgment upon it was thus, Ideo Considerat. est quod pred. Quer. & Pleg. sui de Prosequend. sint inde in Misericordia, &c. The Plaintiff's Pledges that he shall prosecute his Suit, may be entered at any Time pending the Action; and the Putting in of Pledges is now but a meer formal Thing; yet if the Pledges be not entered at all, it is Error, because the Law directs the Plaintiff to find Pledges. Trin. 22 Car. B. R. In the Return of a Venire facias, the Omission of the Returning of the Pledges is but Matter of Form, and not like unto where Pledges are omitted upon an original Writ; wherefore it has been adjudged to be help'd by the Statutes of Feofails. 2 Nelf. Abr. 944. Want of Pledges hath been held to be Substance; but it is aided by the Statute of 4 & 5 Ann. unless set forth particularly for Cause upon a Demurrer. 2 Lev. 39. 2 Litt. Abr. 329. The Pledges, John Doe, &c. are entered by the Defendant; on his being arrested, and giving common Bail for his Appearance, &c.

Pledgery, (Fr. Pleigerie, Lat. Plegiagium) Signifies Suretiship, an Undertaking or Answering for: And the Appellant shall require the Constable and Marshal to deliver his Pledges, and discharge them of their Pledgery, after that he is come into the Lists, &c. Orig. Fur. ex Cod. M.S. in Bibl. Seldeniana.

Plegiis Acquietandis, Is a Writ that lies for a Surety, against him for whom he is Surety, if he pay not the Money at the Day. F. N. B. 137. If the Party who becomes Surety be compelled to pay the Money, &c. he shall have this Writ against the Person who ought to have paid the same: And if a Man be Surety for another to pay a Sum of Money, so long as the Principal Debtor hath any Thing, and is sufficient, his Sureties shall not be distrained by the Statute of Magna Charta; if they are distrained by the Sheriff, &c. they shall have a special Writ upon the Statute to discharge them. Magn. Chart. 9 H. 3. c. 8. But if the Plaintiff sue the Sureties in C. B. where the Principal is sufficient to pay the Debt, whether the Sureties may plead that, and aver that the Principal Debtor is sufficient to pay it; or whether they shall have a Writ to the Sheriff not to distrain in such a Case, hath been made a Question. New Nat. Br. 306. It was adjudged Pasch. 43 Ed. 3. that the Writ de Plegiis acquietandis lieth without any Specialty shewed thereof: As it has been held, that a Man shall have an Action of Debt against him who cometh Pledge for another upon his Promise to pay the Money, without any Writing made of it. New Nat. Br. 270, 304.

Plena forisfactura, A Forfeiture of all that one hath, &c. See Forfeiture.

Plenary, Is a Term used in Ecclesiastical Affairs, where a Church is full of an Incumbent. A Clerk inducted may plead his Patron's Title; and being instituted by the Space of Six Months, his Patron may plead Plenary against all common Persons. Plowd. 501. Institution by Six Months, before a Writ of Quare Impedit brought, is a good Plenary against a common Person; but Plenary is no Plea against the King, 'till Six Months after Induction. 1 Inst. 119, 344. Plenary for Six Months is not generally pleadable against the King, because he may bring Quare Impedit at any Time, and Nullum Tempus occurrit Regi: Though if a Title devolves to the King by Lapse, and the Patron presents his Clerk by Usurpation, who is instituted and inducted, and enjoys the Benefice for Six Months, this is such a Plenary as deprives the King of his Presentation. 2 Inst. 361. And Plenary by Six Months after Institution is a good Plea against the Queen-Consort; although she claims the Benefice of the King's Endowment. Wood's Inst. 160. Upon Collation of a Bishop by Lapse, Plenary is not pleadable; for the Collation doth not make a Plenary, by Reason the Bishop would be Judge in his own Cause: The Bishop must certify whether the Church is full, or not; and his Collation is interpreted to be no more than to supply the Cure 'till the Patron doth present; and 'tis for this Cause a Plenary by Collation cannot be pleaded against the right Patron: But by Collation, Plenary may be a Bar to any Lapse of the Archbishop, and to the King, though 'tis no Bar to the right Patron. 6 Rep. 50. 1 Inst. 344. 2 Cro. 207. Plenary, or not, shall be tried by the Bishop's Certificate, being acquired by Institution, which is a Spiritual Act; but in a Quare Impedit, the Plenary must be tried by a Jury. 6 Rep. 49. By the Common Law, where a Person is presented, instituted and inducted to a Church, the Church is full, though the Person presented be a Layman; and shall not be void, but from the Time of the Deprivation of the Incumbent for his Incapacity.

Plene administrabit, Is a Plea pleaded by an Executor or Administrator, where they have administered the Deceased's Estate faithfully and justly before the Action brought against them. On Plene administravit pleaded by an Executor, if it be proved that he hath Goods in his Hands which were the Testator's, he may give in Evidence that he hath paid to the Value of his own Money, and need not plead it specially; for when an Executor before the Action, hath paid the Money in equal Degree with that demanded by the Plaintiff, he may plead fully administered generally, and give the Special Matter in Evidence. 2 Lill. Abr. 330. And where a Testator or Intestate was indebted to the Executor or Administrator, upon Bond, they may plead Plene administravit, and give their own Bonds in Evidence against any other Bond; so likewise upon an Indebitatus, having the Privilege of Paying themselves first. Ibid. Plene administravit is no Plea where an Executor, &c. is sued in the Debet and Detinet, because he is charged for his own Occupation. 1 Mod. 185. And if Plene administravit be pleaded, omitting the Words, Et quod ipse non habet aliqua bona seu Catalla Testatoris, nec habuit die exhibitionis Bille præd. seu unquam postea, &c. it is naught on a Demurrer, and not help'd by Verdict, &c. Cro. Jac. 132. 3 Lev. 28. See Executors. Plevin, (Plevina, from the Fr. Plenwine). Vide Replevin.

Plow-alms, (Eleemosyna aratrales) Was antiently 1 d. paid to the Church for every Plow-land. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 256.

Plow-bote, A Right of Tenants to take Wood to repair Ploughs, Carts and Harrows, and for making Rakes, Forks, &c.

Plow-land, Is the same with a Hide of Land; and a Hide or Plow-land, it is said, do not contain any certain Quantity of Acres: But a Plough-land, in Respect of Repairing the Highways is settled at 50 l. a Year, by the Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 29. See Carucate.

Plurality, (Pluralitas) Signifies the Plural Number; mostly applied to such Clergymen who have more Benefices than one: And Selden mentions Triality and Quadrality, where one Parson hath three or four Livings. Seld. Tit. Hon. 687. Plurality of Livings is where the same Person obtains Two or more Spiritual Preferments, with Cure of Souls; in which Case the first is void ipso facto, and the Patron may present to it, if the Clerk be not qualified by Dispensation, &c. for the Law enjoins Residence, and 'tis impossible that the same Person can reside in two Places at the same Time. Count. Pars. Compan. 94. By the Canon Law, no Ecclesiastical Person can hold two Benefices with Cure simul & semel, but that upon Taking the second Benefice, the First is void: But the Pope by Usurpation did dispense with that Law; and a first every Bishop had Power to grant Dispenations for Pluralities, till it was abrogated by a General Council, held anno 1273, and this Constitution was received till the Statute 21 H. 8. c. 13. Moor 119. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1271. The Stat. 21 H. 8. ordains, that if any Person having one Benefice with Cure, of the yearly Value of 8 l. or above, in the King's Books, accepts of another Benefice with Cure, and is instituted and inducted, then the first shall be void: So that there may be a Plurality within the Statute; and a Plurality by the Canon Law. 2 Lutw. 1306. The Power of granting Dispenations to hold two Benefices with Cure, &c. is vested in the King by the aforesaid Statute: And it has been adjudged, that a Dispensation is not necessary for a Plurality, where the King presents his Chaplain to a second Benefice; for such a Presentment imports a Dispensation, which the King hath Power to grant as supreme Ordinary; but if such a Chaplain be presented to a second Benefice by a Subject, he must have a Dispensation before he is instituted to it. 1 Salk. 161. A Man by Dispensation may hold as many Benefices, without Cure, of whatsoever Value, as he can get; and likewise so many with Cure as he can get, all of them, or all but the last being under the Value of 8 l. per Annum in the King's Books; if the Person to be dispensed withal, be not incapable thereof: Yet if a Dispensation is made to hold three Benefices with Cure, whereof the first is of the yearly Value of 8 l. the Dispensation is void, unless it be in Case of the King's Chaplains, &c. who may hold three Benefices with Cure, above the Value of 8 l. a Year, where one of them is in the King's Gift. Hob. 148. In these Cases it hath been held, that the Value of Livings to make Pluralities shall be determined by the King's Books in the First-fruits Office: Though the Court hath been divided, whether the Value should be taken as it was in the King's Books, or according to the true Value of the Living. 2 Lutw. 1301. 2 Nelf. 1271. No Deanery shall be taken by our Law to be a Benefice with Cure, to need Dispensation on having another Benefice, &c. 21 H. 8. 1 Leon. 316. And a Parsonage and Vicarage make not a Plurality, but are only one Cure; the Vicarage being endow'd out of the Parsonage. 2 Cro. 691. Parsons may purchase a License or Dispensation to take and keep Two or more Benefices with Cure, according to the Directions and Qualifications in the said Statute 21 H. 8. c. 13. And in some Cases, Persons may hold Pluralities, without being retained as Chaplains, &c. pursuant to that Statute, viz. by Birth, as being the Son or Brother of a Lord; by University Degree, where a Man is Doctor of Divinity, Law, &c. or by Office or Employment, as a Bishop. Stat. 26 H. 8. But when a Person is made a Bishop, his former Qualification to hold Plurality of Livings is void. Hob. 158. See Chaplain.

Pluries, Is a Writ that issues in the third Place, after two former Writs have been disobey'd; for first goes out the Original Writ or Capias, which if it has not Effect, then issues the Alias; and if that also fails, then the Pluries. Old Nat. Br. 33. It is used in Proceedings to Outlawry; and in great Diversity of Cases. Table Reg. Writs.

Pocket of Wool, Is a Quantity of Wool containing Half a Sack. 3 Inst. 96.

Poison, The Killing a Person by Poisoning, has been held more criminal than any other Murder, because of its Secrecy which prevents all Defence against it; whereas most open Murders

ders give the Party kill'd some Opportunity of Resistance: And for this Reason Offenders guilty of Poisoning any Person, were antiently judg'd to a severer Punishment than other Offenders. In this Kingdom Poisoning Persons was formerly a Kind of Treason, punished by Boiling to Death. 22 H. S. c. 9. 3 Nels. Abr. 363. And at this Day, to poison any one wilfully, is Murder and Felony, if the Party die in a Year; and the Aiders and Abettors, &c. shall suffer Death. Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 12. If a Man persuade another to drink a poisonous Liquor, under the Notion of a Medicine, who afterwards drinks it in his Absence; or if A. intending to poison B. put Poison into a Thing, and deliver it to C. who knows nothing of the Matter, to be by him delivered to B. and C. innocently delivers it accordingly in the Absence of A. In this Case the Procurer of the Felony is as much a Principal as if he had been present when it was done. 2 Hawk. P. C. 313. And so likewise all those seem to be who are present when the Poison was infused, and privy and consenting to the Design: But Persons who only abet their Crime, by Command, Counsel, &c. and are absent when the Poison was infused, are Accessaries only. Ibid.

Policy of Assurance, or Insurance, (From the Ital. Poliza, i. e. Schedula, & Assicuratio) Is an Instrument entered into by Insurers of Ships and Merchandize, &c. to Merchants, obligatory for the Payment of the Sum insured, in Case of Loss. Merch. Dict. It is a Course taken by those who adventure Goods or Merchandizes to Sea, that they unwilling to hazard the Whole do give unto some other, called an Insurer, a certain Rate or proportionate Sum of so much per Cent. to secure the safe Arrival of the Ship and Goods, &c. at the Place agreed upon; so that if the Ship and Merchandize do miscarry, the Insurer maketh good to the Adventurer so much as he promis'd to secure; but if the Ship arrive safely, he gaineth that clearly which the Merchant compoundeth to pay him: And for the more equal Dealing between the Insurer and the insured in this Case, there is a Clerk or Officer ordain'd to set down in Writing the Sum of their Agreement, which is subscribed or underwritten by the Insurer; and this is called Policy, to prevent any Difference that might after happen between them. Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 12. and 14 Car. 2. c. 23. See Insurance.

Ponderare. It was a Custom formerly in Times of Superstition, to weigh sick Children at the Tomb of some Saint, and to ballance the Scales with Wheat Bread, or any Thing which they were willing to offer to God or his Saints, but always with some Money, and by this the Cure of the Sick was said to be perform'd. — Ad Sepulchrum Sancti Nummo se Ponderabat.

Pondus Regis, Is the Standard Weight appointed by our antient Kings. 35 Ed. 1. And what we now call Troy Weight, was this Pondus Regis, or Le Roy Weight, with the Scales in equilibrium; whereas the Aver du pois was the fuller Weight, with a declining Scale. Cowel.

Pone, Is a Writ whereby a Cause depending in the County-Court, or other inferior Court is removed into the Common Pleas; and sometimes into the King's Bench: As when a Replevin is sued by Writ out of Chancery, &c. then if the Plaintiff or Defendant will remove that Plea out of the County-Court into C. B. it is done by Pone. F. N. B. 69. 2 Inst. 339. And the Writ Pone lies to remove Actions of Debt, Writs of Detinue, Writ of Right, of Nuisance, &c. New Nat. Br. Also a Writ willing the Sheriff to summon the Defendant to appear and answer the Plaintiff's Suit, on his putting in Sureties to prosecute, &c. Wood's Inst. 570. And the Writ to the Sheriff to take Surety of one for his Appearance is called Pone per Vadium.

Ponendis in Affis, A Writ granted by the Statute of Westm. 2. c. 38. which Statute shews what Persons Sheriffs ought to impanel upon Affises and Juries, and what not. Reg. Orig. 175. F. N. B. 165.

Ponendum in Ballium, Is a Writ commanding that a Prisoner be bailed in Cases bailable Reg. Orig. 133.

Ponendum sigillum ad Exceptionem, A Writ by which Justices are required to put their Seals to Exceptions, exhibited by the Defendant against the Plaintiff's Evidence, Verdict, or other Proceedings before them, according to the Stat. Westm. 2.

Pontage, (Pontagium) Is a Contribution towards the Maintenance or Re-edifying of Bridges: And may also signify Toll taken to that Purpose. 1 H. 8. c. 5. 3 Eliz. c. 24. This was accounted one of the Three publick Charges on the Nation, from which no Persons were exempted, viz. Expediitio, Pontis & Artis reparatio, called Trinoda Neccitas, always excepted in Grants of Privileges, propter Publicum Regni utilitatem, that the People might the better resist the Enemy; and from which Selden writes, That ne quidem Episcopi, Abbates & Monachi immunes erant. Seld. Notes on Eadmer.

Pontibus reparandis, A Writ directed to the Sheriff, &c. commanding him to charge one or more Persons to repair a Bridge, to whom it belongs. Reg. Orig. 153.

Pauper, (Pauper) A poor Person is such as is a Burden to, and charge upon a Parish. The Poor our Law takes Notice of, are of three Kinds, 1st, Poor by Impotency and Defect; as the Aged and Decrepit, Fatherless and Motherless, Poor under Sicknefs, and Persons that are Ideots, Lunaticks, Lame, Blind, &c. these the Overseers of the Poor are to provide for. 2^{dly}, Poor by Casualty; such as House-keepers decay'd or ruin'd by Fire, Water, Robbery, &c. or by Losses in Trade; Poor Persons over-charged with Children, Labourers that are disabled; and these, having Ability, are to be set to work; but if not able to work, they are to be relieved with Money. 3^{dly}, Poor by Prodigality and Debauchery, also called Thriftless Poor; as idle slothful Persons, Pilferers, Vagabonds, Strumpets, &c. which are to be sent to the House of Correction, and be put to hard Labour, to maintain themselves; or Work is to be provided for them, that they do not perish for Want; and if they become impotent by Sicknefs, or if their Work will not maintain them, there must be an Allowance by the Overseers of the Poor for their Support. Dal. ch. 73. sect. 35. Before the Reign of Queen Elizabeth we had no such Thing as settled Laws for the Relief of the Poor; for, as History tells us, our Abbeys and Monasteries, assisted with the Benevolence and antient Hospitality of Lords of Manors, 'till the Time of the Reformation, were a sufficient Provision for the Poor of this Kingdom: But I find, by the Stat. 23 Ed. 3. c. 7. Relief was to be given to those that could not Labour: The 2 H. 5. c. 1. ordained, that Hospitals founded for impotent Poor, were to be visited. And by 27 H. 8. c. 25. Governors of Counties, Cities, Towns, &c. were obliged to keep aged Poor and impotent Persons; and compel those that were able to work and go to Service: And then in the Reign of Q. Eliz. several particular Laws were enacted for the Relief of the Poor, appointing Overseers, &c. For by the 5 Eliz. c. 3. Relief of Parishes is to be gathered by Collectors, and weekly distributed to the Poor; and none shall be permitted to beg openly, &c. And the 43 Eliz. c. 2. enacts, That the Church-wardens of every Parish, and two or three House-keepers, shall be nominated yearly in Easter-Week, or within one Month after, by Two or more Justices of the Peace of the County, dwelling near the Parish, under their Hands and Seals, to be Overseers of the Poor; and they with the Consent of Two such Justices, shall set to work the Children of those Persons who are not able to maintain them, and all Persons who have no Means to maintain themselves, or use no Trade to get their Living; and shall raise weekly, or otherwise, by a Tax, on every Inhabitant and Occupier of Lands, &c. such a Sum as they shall think fit for Purchasing a Stock of Flax, Hemp and Wool, to set the Poor on Work; and such Sums as shall be necessary for the Relief of the Lame, Old, Blind and Impotent, and for putting out poor Children Apprentices, &c. And the said Overseers so nominated and appointed, shall meet once a Month at least in their Parish Church, having no just Excuse, to be allow'd of by two Justices, upon a Sunday after evening Service, and there take Order in the Premises; which Overseers, within four Days after the End of their Year, are to yield a true Account to two Justices, of all Money by them received, and all Things concerning their Office, and deliver what shall be in their Hands to the new Overseers, or on Refusal, shall be committed to Gaol till they account, and pay over the Money, &c. If the Inhabitants of any Parish are not able to raise Money for the Relief of their Poor, then two Justices of the Peace may tax any other Parishes within the Hundred; and if the Hundred be not thought able, the Justices at their Quarter-Sessions may rate any other Parish in the County; the Sums assessed to be levied by Warrant of two Justices, by Distress and Sale of Goods, and in Default thereof the Justices may commit the Offenders till paid; and the said Justices may commit Persons not setting themselves to work, according to Appointment, &c. The Church-wardens and Overseers, by the Assent of two Justices, may bind poor Boys Apprentices until the Age of twenty-four Years, and every Girl 'till the Age of twenty-one Years, or 'till she marry; and the Overseers, &c. by Leave of Lords of Manors, may build Dwelling-houses on the Waste for the impotent Poor, and place Inmates, or more Families than one in them; the said Houses to be built at the Charge of the Parish, Hundred or County, to be taxed as aforesaid: And the Father and Grandfather, Mother and Grandmother, and Children of every poor impotent Person, being able, shall relieve such Poor, in such Manner, and according to such Rates as the Justices of Peace at their Sessions shall assess, under the Penalty of 20 s. a Month for every Failure: And Mayors, and other Head Officers of Corporations, being Justices of Peace within their Precincts, shall have the same Power as Justices of Peace of the County, to execute this Act; and no other Justices shall intermeddle there; also every Alderman of London may execute so much of the Statute as is appointed to be done by one or two Justices of Peace of any County: Where any Parish extends into more Counties than one, or lies Part within a Corporation and Part without, the Justices and Head Officers shall act only in that Part of the said Parish as lies within their Limits; but the Church-wardens and Overseers of such Parishes as extend into several Limits shall, without dividing themselves, jointly execute their Office, and exhibit one Account to the Head Officer of the Corporation, and another to two Justices of Peace as aforesaid. And where in any Place there shall be no Overseers yearly appointed, every Justice of the Division where such Default shall happen, and every Mayor and Head Officer of

of a Corporation, &c. shall forfeit 5*l.* to the Use of the Poor, leviable on their Goods by Warrant from the Quarter-Sessions. The 3 Car. 1. c. 4. ordains, That the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, mentioned in the 43 Eliz. may, with the Consent of Two or more Justices of Peace, or of one Justice where there shall be no more, set up any Trade or Occupation for Employing or better Relief of the Poor of their Parishes. By the 14 Car. 2. c. 12. Persons coming to settle in a Parish, and renting a Tenement under the Value of 10*l.* a Year, on Complaint by the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor to a Justice of Peace within forty Days, may be removed to the Parish where last legally settled for forty Days, &c. by Order of two Justices; unless they give Security to indemnify the Parish, to be allowed by the said Justices: But Persons may go into another Parish to Harvest-Work, &c. by Certificate from the Minister, Church-wardens and Overseers, that they have a Dwelling in the Parish they came from; and such Persons are to return to their Parishes when their Work is finished, and shall not be accounted settled where they sojourn, &c. and by this Statute, one Corporation or Work-house was to be in the Cities of London and Westminster, and the Towns and Places within the Bills of Mortality, govern'd by Presidents, &c. as a Stock for which Justices in their Sessions might tax and assess the Inhabitants in their Divisions and Parishes not exceeding a Year's Rate usually made for Relief of the Poor. The Act 14 Car. 2. (except what relates to the Incorporation of Work-houses within the Weekly Bills of Mortality) is continued by 1 Fac. 2. c. 17. And the 40 Days to make a Settlement was to commence from the Delivery of Notice to the Church-wardens. And by 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 11. it is enacted, that the forty Days intended to make a Settlement by the Act 13 & 14 Car. 2. shall be accounted from the Publication of Notice in Writing in the Church, of any Person's coming to inhabit in any Parish; and Church-wardens and Overseers neglecting to publish such Notice the next Sunday after received, or to register the same, shall forfeit 40*s.* to the Party grieved: But Persons coming into a Parish, and executing for themselves any Publick annual Office during one Year; or who shall be charged and pay publick Taxes to the said Parish; they shall be deemed a legal Settlement, without Notice: And if any unmarried Person, not having a Child or Children, shall be hired into any Service for one Year, such Service shall be a Settlement; and being bound Apprentice, and inhabiting in any Parish, such Binding and Habitation shall make a Settlement, without Notice: Persons removed by Warrant or Order of two Justices, are to be received by the Church-wardens and Overseers whither sent, on Pain of forfeiting 5*l.* to the Poor of the Parish from whence convey'd, to be levied by Distress and Sale by Warrant from one Justice; and for Want of Distress to be committed to Gaol for forty Days; but Persons aggriev'd may appeal to the next Quarter-Sessions of the County, &c. and there shall be kept in every Parish a Book, wherein the Names of all Persons that receive Relief shall be registred, and the Occasion; and the Parishioners are to meet at a Vestry yearly in Easter-Week, or oftner, when the Book shall be examined, by calling over the Persons, and inquiring into the Reasons of their taking Relief, and then a new List shall be made of such Persons as they think fit to allow Collection to; and no other Persons shall receive Collection, unless by Authority under the Hand of one Justice, or by Order of Justices in their Sessions, &c. The Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 30. gives Leave to poor Persons to remove to other Parishes for Work and the better Maintenance of their Families, by Certificate from the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, under Hand and Seal, attested by two Witnesses, and allowed and subscribed by two Justices of Peace, owning and acknowledging them to be Parishioners legally settled at the Place from whence they came; which Certificate shall oblige the said Parish or Place to receive and provide for them and their Families, when-ever they become chargeable to, or ask Relief of the Parish to which they remove and the Certificate is given; and then, and not before, such Persons and their Children, (though born in that Parish, not having acquired a legal Settlement) shall be removed back to, and settled in the Parish from whence such Certificate was brought: Poor receiving Relief of any Parish, upon the Shoulder of the right Sleeve of their Coats, are to wear a Badge or Mark, with a large Letter P. and the first Letter of the Name of the Parish whereof they are Inhabitants, cut either in Red or Blue Cloth; and such Poor neglecting or refusing to wear such Badge, any Justice of Peace may punish them, by Ordering their Allowance to be abridged or withdrawn, or committing them to the House of Correction there to be whipp'd and kept to hard Labour; and if any Church-warden or Overseer shall relieve any poor Person, not wearing a Badge, he shall forfeit 20*s.* one Half to the Informer, and the other to the Poor. By 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 11. No Person coming into any Parish by Certificate, shall gain a legal Settlement there, unless he bona fide take a Lease or Tenement of 10*l.* per Annum, or execute some annual Office in such Parish. And the 12 Ann. c. 18. which makes the 13 & 14 Car. 2. perpetual, (excepting what concerns Corporations) declares, that no Apprentice or hired Servant to Persons coming into a Parish by Means of a Certificate, shall acquire a Settlement in such Parish, except the Master be afterwards legally settled. The Stat. 2 Ann. c. 6. impowers Justices of Peace, &c. and Church-wardens and Overseers, with Consent of two Justices, to place out poor Boys, of Parents chargeable to the Parish, Apprentice to the Sea-Service, and the Church-wardens and Overseers are to pay to the Master with a Boy 2*l.* 10*s.* for Cloathing and Bedding, which shall be allowed in their Accounts; and these Apprentices are to be convey'd to the respective Ports to their Masters by the Overseers, and the Charges born as is provided for Vagrants; and the Indentures to be sent to the Collectors of the Customs of such Ports, &c. The 5 Geo. cap. 8. provides, that Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, where any Wife or Children are left upon the Parish, by Persons who have Estates, &c. which might keep them, by Warrant from two Justices of Peace, may seise so much of the Goods and Chattels and receive so much of the Rents of the Husband or Father as the Justices shall order for the Keeping of such Wife or Children, which Order of the Justices is to be confirm'd at the next Quarter-Sessions, and then the Goods and Chattels may be disposed of; and the Overseers,

&c. shall be accountable to the Sessions. And the Stat. 9 Geo. enacts, that no Justice of Peace shall order Relief to any poor Person 'till Oath be made of reasonable Cause, and that such Person had been refused Relief by the Overseers of the Poor of his Parish, &c. and until the Justice hath summoned the Overseers to shew Cause why Relief should not be given; and Persons to whom any Justice shall order Relief, shall be registered in the Parish-Books as other Poor, and the Church-wardens and Overseers are not to bring to the Parish Account any Money given to Poor, (unless on sudden and emergent Occasions) that are not registered, on Pain of 5 l. Penalty, to be levied by Distress and Sale, by Warrant from two Justices, and applied to the Use of the Poor: Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, with Consent of a Majority of the Parishioners, at a Vestry or other Publick Meeting, may purchase or hire Houses, and contract with Persons for the Lodging, Maintaining and Employing of poor Persons desiring Relief; and take the Benefit of their Work for their better Maintenance; and poor Persons refusing to be so lodged and kept, shall be struck out of the Parish-Books, and not be intitled to any Collection; and where any Parish, &c. shall be too small to purchase or hire Houses, two Parishes, with Consent as aforesaid, and Approbation of a Justice of Peace, may unite in doing thereof; and the Poor may be also lodged and maintained in other Parishes by Church-wardens and Overseers, &c. But no poor Persons, or their Apprentices, or Children, shall gain a Settlement in such Parishes: No Person shall be deemed to have acquired a Settlement in any Parish, by Virtue of any Purchase of an Estate under 30 l. Value, for any longer Time than such Person shall inhabit in the Estate purchased; and Persons taxed or assessed on the Scavenger's Rates, or to the Highways; and who shall pay such Rates, shall not thereby gain any legal Settlement in a Parish: And in Case of Appeals from Orders for Removal of Poor, none shall be proceeded upon in the Quarter-Sessions, unless reasonable Notice be given; and if the Justices determine in Favour of the Appellant, he shall be awarded the Expenses employ'd in Relief of the poor Person, between the Time of the Removal and Determination of the Appeal, to be recovered by Distress, &c. by Order of the Justices, as Costs and Charges, by 9 W. 3. c. 30. Every Parish is to keep their own Poor, by the 43 Eliz. And if any Poor demand Relief, that are not settled in a Parish; they ought to be removed to their proper Parishes, and there be relieved. Dalt. 73. If Justices of Peace in Sessions, &c. make Orders for Maintenance of Persons who are not impotent, but able to work, or having any Thing to live upon; those Orders are against Law. Dalt. 166. A Father has been ordered to make an Allowance to his Son's Wife, while his Son was beyond Sea: And if the Father of Children leaves the Parish, and there is a Grandfather to be found; this Grandfather, if he be of Ability, is chargeable with keeping the Children, and not the Parish. 2 Bulst. 2. Lill. 333. A Father-in-Law, or a Grandfather-in-Law, married to the Mother or Grandmother of Children, of Ability to keep them, is within the Stat. 43 Eliz. Style 283. A Husband marrying a Grandmother, having an Estate with her sufficient, shall be chargeable to the Relief and Maintenance of a poor Grandchild, during the Life of the Grandmother; but after her Death he is under no Obligation to do it: And where a Grandmother is unable to relieve her Grandchildren, and marries with a Man of Ability, he is not to be charged to maintain his Wife's Grandchildren; also if the Husband, after Marriage, becomes to be of Ability, the Grandmother, at the Time of the Marriage, having nothing, he shall not be bound to keep the Children. 2 Bulst. 345. A Person was ordered by Justices in Sessions to pay so much a Week towards the Support and Maintenance of his Father, 'till that Court should order the contrary; and it was held good; and if an Estate happen to fall to the Father, the Justices might be applied to: Otherwise if a Time was limited. 2 Salk. 534. Rates and Assessments for providing for and relieving of the Poor of Parishes, made by the Overseers of the Poor, are usually approved by the Inhabitants, and to be allowed by the Justices: And not only Lands, Houses, &c. but Tithes, and any Thing from whence an annual Profit arises, may be taxed towards the Poor's Rate. 2 Bulst. Persons are to be taxed according to the visible Estate they have in the Parish; and this Tax may be upon Lands or Goods; and when charged on Goods, they are rated according to the usual Value of Land, viz. 100 l. Stock of Goods at 5 l. per Annum. A Person, who hath Lands in his Occupation, and a Stock of Goods and Wares besides, as a Tradesman, Draper, Grocer, &c. may be taxed for both; but not for such Stock or Goods with which he uses to manure his Lands, nor for the Profits of Lands for which he hath been already taxed as Occupier, though for other Stock and Personal Estate he is chargeable. 2 Salk. The Farmer or Occupier is to be charged to the Poor's Rate, and not the Landlord, who is not to be taxed for his Rent, for then the Land would pay twice; though if he be possessed of Personal Estate, he may be taxed for that: And for Personal Estate, the Party must be charged only in that Place where the Goods are at the Time of the Assessment; if he hath not Goods or Personal Estate where he is assessed, to the Value he is charged, and is distrained, he may have Action of Trespass. Read. Stat. Vol. 5. pag. 21. The most reasonable and the common Way of taxing Lands for Relief of the Poor is by a Pound-Rate; and if the Overseers make an unequal Rate, they may be indicted and fined for it. 1 Keb. 173. Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor of a Parish, made a Rate for the Relief of the Poor, which was confirmed by two Justices of Peace; but all was rated upon the Real Estates, and none on the Personal, and therefore upon Appeal to the Sessions the Rate was quash'd, and the Overseers, &c. ordered to make a new Rate, upon the Real and Personal Estates; which they afterwards did, but with a very great Inequality on the Real Estates; whereupon several Persons appeal'd again, and this Rate was likewise vacated: In B. R. it was objected, that the Sessions had no Power to vacate whole Rates; but adjudg'd, that they may quash whole Rates, and refer it to the Church-wardens and Overseers to make new Rates, or they may make a new Rate themselves. 2 Salk. 483. Church-wardens and Overseers may not tax particular Persons, and not the whole Parish; but the Justices tices may tax particular Persons, and need not affect the whole Parish, which is to contribute to the Poor of another: Or the Justices may assess the Parish in a certain Sum, and leave it to the Parish-Officers to collect and levy the same of particular Persons. 2 Bulst. 352. 2 Salk. 480. It has been held, that Justices cannot make a standing Rate; because by Statute the Rate must be equal, which a standing Rate cannot be, for Lands may be improv'd every Year, and the Rate should be altered as Circumstances alter. 2 Salk. 526. A Rate should be made every Month, which the Justices are to approve; and if they refuse, a Mandamus may be had: And it hath been resolv'd, that a Tenant could not be rated for a whole Quarter, by Reason the Statute directs Rates to be assessed monthly, and otherwise a Man cannot remove in the Middle of a Quarter but he will be twice rated; and where there is a Custom to rate quarterly, a Distress cannot be taken of any one before the Quarter is ended, nor then without special Warrant on Purpose. Ibid. 532. A Mandamus to make a Rate to reimburse an Overseer Money laid out is not good; for the Court of B. R. cannot order such a Rate, but only to raise Money for Relief of the Poor: And an Overseer is not bound to lay out Money till he has it; if he doth he must make a new Rate for Relief of the Poor, &c. Ibid. 531. Justices of Peace refusing to sign a Poor Rate, a Rule was made in B. R. for them to sign it, or shew Cause, &c. and no good Cause being shewed, a peremptory Rule was made for them to sign it, or that an Attachment should go. Sid. 377. 5 Mod. 275. A Mandamus was issued to Justices of Peace, and the Overseers of the Poor, to give an Account of Money by them received for the Relief of the Poor; who return'd, that they had given an Account of the Money, and that they had disposed several Sums in a particular Manner, setting forth, &c. And it was held, that the Mandamus was ill, for Want of Suggesting that the ordinary Remedy could not be had. 5 Mod. 420. If Overseers make a false Account, they may be indicted. Dalt. 154. But where Overseers of the Poor refused to account, &c. and they were indicted for the same; an Objection was made, that the Indictment would not lie, because another Remedy was provided by the Statute. 3 Salk. 187. And where an Account of Overseers was allow'd by two Justices, and the Parish appealed from this Allowance to the Quarter-Sessions, and they disallowed the Account, and ordered the Overseer to pay, &c. for not doing which, they committed him; it was resolv'd, that the Justices of Peace at the Sessions upon the Appeal, must execute their Judgment in the same Manner as the two Justices might do, who must first send their Process to distrain, and on Return that there is no Distress, then commit the Overseer. Mich. 4 Ann. B. R. 2 Salk. 533. There are Penalties and Forfeitures for Offences, given by Statute to the Poor, for their further Maintenance, which are to be paid to Church-wardens and Overseers, &c. and by them to be accounted for; and these are concerning Ale-houses, Drunkenness, Customs, Excise, unlawful Gaming, Destroying the Game, Hedge breakers, Sabbath-breaking, Swearing, Scavengers, unlawful Weights and Measures, &c. Poor Laws 57. Vide Justice of Peace.

Poor settled in Parishes. Settlements of Poor are gained three Ways: By Inheritance; as when a Child claims a Settlement in a Parish, because his Father was there settled: By being born in a Parish; and by Commorancy. As to the First of these, if the Father has a legal Settlement, the Child is settled where the Father is: And if the Father have no legal Settlement, the Child regularly gains a Settlement in the Parish where born. 2 Bulst. 351. But this Settlement by Birth may be defeated several Ways; 1st, If the Parent is removed by an illegal Order; and from the Order an Appeal is duly made, pending which the Child is born; in this Case on quashing the Order the Child shall be sent back with the Mother. 2. By Practice; if a Woman near her Time is clandestinely sent to another Parish, and there delivered. 3. If a Woman with Child be sent to the House of Correction, and is there delivered, the Child shall not gain a Settlement by its Birth in the Parish where the House of Correction is; but in the Parish where the Mother dwelt when sent to the House of Correction, as the Place where she had otherwise probably been delivered. 2 Bulst. 358, 381. 1 Salk. 121. If a travelling Woman, having a small Sucking-child, shall be apprehended for Felony, and be sent to the Gaol, and afterwards arraigned and hanged, this Child is to be sent to the Place of its Birth, there to be settled and maintained, if the same be known; but otherwise it must be sent to the Town where the Mother was apprehended: And Children born in common Gaols, their Parents being Prisoners, are to be maintained at the Charge of the County. Dalt. 157. If a Man and his Family be illegally thrust out of a Parish, and during that Time he shall have a Child born; he must be returned to the Place where he was legally settled, and the Child with him: And Persons, whose Interest in Houses or Lands is determined, cannot be put out of the Town where they were legally settled; nor can they be sent to the Place of their Birth, or last Habitation, but according as they are able or impotent shall be set to work, or relieved in the Town where so settled; though if they wander and beg, then they may be taken up and sent to the Place of their Birth. Dalt. 158, 166. Bastard Children gain a Settlement by their Birth; but it has been usual for preventing any Charge to the Parish, if a single Woman with Child come into a Parish, by Justice's Warrant to remove her to the Place of her last legal Settlement: Bastards of Vagrants must be with the Mother while Nurse-Children until seven Years of Age; and then be sent to the Parish where born. Ibid. Till seven Years of Age, Children are accounted Nurse-Children; yet afterwards they must have Maintenance from the Parishes where they themselves were settled: If a poor Man settled at A. marries a poor Woman who is settled at B. and has Children by a former Husband, the Wife shall be removed with him to A. and the Children under seven Years old shall be removed, but only for Nurture; so that they shall be kept at the Charge of the Parish from whence they are removed: But the Children above seven Years of Age are not removeable. 2 Salk. 470, 482. Generally a Wife is to be sent to, and settled with the Husband, though he be but an Inmate or Servant; as all Children are generally to be sent to, and settled with the Parents: But if a Man hireth an House in A. and being there with his Wife and Children, he shall afterwards bind himself a Servant to one in B. his Wife and Children are not to be sent to B. but are to remain still at A. where they were once settled. Dalt. 166. A Man and his Wife settled at one Parish, came clandestinely into another Parish, and there a Child was born; the Father died in the King's Service, the Question was, Who should keep the Child: Per Holt Ch. Just. The Death of the Father doth not alter the Child's Settlement; which must be settled where the Father was last settled as well as the Mother. Comberb. 380. Settlement gain'd by Commorancy is where a Person continues in some other Place than that in which he was before legally settled; and such Continuation makes a Settlement: Formerly, every one who was settled as a Native, Householder, Apprentice, or Servant, for a Month, without a just Complaint made to remove them, were lawfully settled. Dalt. But since, this Month has been enlarged to forty Days, where a Person shall come into a Parish, and Rent a Tenement under 10 l. per Annum. By the Statutes 13 & 14 Car. 2. 3 W. & M. and by Statute, Renting 10 l. a Year; Executing a publick Office in the Parish on a Man's own Account; Paying a Share to the Parish-Taxes, as Church or Poor Rates, &c. Living as a hired Servant for a Year in the Parish, being unmarried, &c. and Serving an Apprenticeship in a Parish, all make a legal Settlement: So that a Person being settled by any such Means, and not having acquired a Settlement elsewhere, if he falls into Poverty, shall be intitled to Relief from the Parish where he last gained such Settlement; and where he is settled his Family must follow him. Wood's Inst. 94. It has been held, in Respect to a Settlement within the Statute 13 & 14 Car. 2. That coming into a Parish publicly, taking a House, and being rated to the Poor on the Parish-Book is sufficient Notice; the Statute being made against private and clandestine Removals, and not publick ones, which the Parish can take Notice of it self. Show. 12. A Person rented a House of 3 l. per Annum in a Town, and his Landlord paid the Taxes; and whilst he lived in the Parish, he took his Freedom of the Corporation, and voted as a Freeman at the Election of Bailiffs, &c. And it was adjudg'd, that since the explanatory Act of 3 & 4 W. 3. nothing makes a Settlement that is not within the Words of the Statute, which implies a Negative to any Thing else not contained in it; and that as to his Voting, it doth not imply a Settlement, for 'tis an Act which relates to the corporate Body, and not to the Parish. 2 Salk. 534. Renting a Water-mill of 10 l. per Annum, &c. makes a Settlement; for a Mill is a Tenement. 2 Salk. 536. But no Settlement can be legal in any Parish, when the Residence of the Party is obscure and uncertain, as coming now and then, and lying in Barns, Outhouses, &c. or where the Party is under Disturbance by Officers. 3 & 4 W. & M. A poor Man appointed to be a Parish-Clerk, and executing the Office a Year, has been adjudg'd to make a good Settlement; and 'tis not material whether he came in by Appointment of the Parson, or by the Election of the Parishioners; for he is in for Life, and this is Executing a Publick annual Office and Charge within the Meaning of the Statute 3 & 4 W. 3. 2 Salk. 536. A Servant was hired first from Lady-day to Michaelmas, and from thence to Lady-day following; and this was resolved to be a good Settlement, for there was a Hiring for a Year: But it must be one intire Hiring, and one intire Service (though different Times are mentioned) for one whole Year, that must make a Settlement, according to the Statute. Hill. 10 W. 3. An unmarried Person, hired as a Servant for a Year, married before the Year was expired; and it was held, that he could not be removed, and that from performing his Service he would gain a Settlement. 2 Salk. 527. A Man hired a Maid-servant for a Year; but she falling sick, her Master turn'd her out of his Service: The Servant, in her Passage to the Place of her Nativity, begg'd for Relief, and she was sent as a Vagrant to the Parish where she was born; whereupon she was sent back by that Parish, to the Parish where she was a hired Servant; but by Order of Sessions she was settled at the Place of her Birth: This was removed by Certiorari into B. R. and the Court determined the Settlement to be at the Parish where she was an hired Servant, and not where she was born. Style 168. A Person served an Apprenticeship in a Parish, where he marry'd and had several Children; his Wife dying, he married another Woman, who had a Term for Years in another Parish, to which Place he removed, and resided there for a Year; afterwards he return'd to the first Parish, was rated to the Poor, lived there two Years, and then he died: In a short Space after his Death, his Widow and Children were removed, by an Order of two Justices to the other Parish where he had lived a Year; but upon Appeal to this Order at the Sessions, the Sessions adjudged them to be Inhabitants settled in the first Parish. Mich. 3 Jac. 2. Where a Man lives in a Parish, and hath Lands of his own there, or in Right of his Wife, this will make a Settlement; but if he hath Land in one Parish, and lives in another, the Land will not make a Settlement of him in that Parish where it lies and he doth not live. 2 Salk. 524. If a Man be settled where he will, he cannot, though likely to become chargeable to the Parish where he goes to reside in, be removed from thence, if he have any Estate there. 5 Mod. 416. See Stat. 9 Geo. supra. The Law unsettles none who are lawfully settled, nor permits it to be done. If one had but hired a House, the Law unsettles not such Person; and if any shall by indirect Means hinder a poor Man from Hiring an House, he may be indicted; also it is fineable to remove any out of the Parish who ought not to be put out, and the Persons removed may be sent back. Dalt. 98. And if a Parish will have a Man born in A. but settled with them, to go and wander and beg in B. that he may be sent to A. and he doth so; he shall be sent back to the Parish from whence he came. Ibid. But when two Justices of Peace of one County, send a poor Person to a Parish in another County, two Justices of the County whither such Person is sent, cannot make an Order to remove him back again, or to send him to any other Place; the Town to which such Person was sent, hath no other Remedy than by Appeal to the Sessions of that County from whence the Party was sent. 2 Salk. 488. A Settlement by Order of Sessions upon an Appeal is good and binding; but if it do not appear that the Cause came before the Justices in Sessions by Way of Appeal, it may be quashed, for without that they have no Jurisdiction: If a poor Family, after Order of Sessions for their Removal on Appeal, return to the Parish from whence they were removed, moved, the Sessions must see their Order of Settlement obeyed; though if such poor Family go into another Parish, not concerned in the Appeal, two Justices of Peace ought by an Original Order to remove them to the Parish where they were settled by the Sessions Order. 2 Salk. 481, 482, 489. The Sessions having made an Original Order for Removal of a poor Person to a third Parish, after an Order of two Justices, it was quashed upon Motion: And adjudged, that the Sessions could only confirm, or reverse the Order of Settlement of the two Justices; and thereupon a new Order might be made by two Justices for Removal to the third Parish, &c. 2 Salk. 475. A general Order to remove a Man and his Family, is not good; it must be particular, for some of the Family may be chargeable, and others not: And where Justices make Orders of Settlement, it must appear, that the Parties are likely to become chargeable; and that the Person removed is removable; and contain an Adjudication of the last legal Settlement of the Party, &c. 2 Salk. 485, 491. 5 Mod. 149, 321. And according to the Opinion of the Lord Chief Justice Holt, the most regular Way to proceed on the Statute 14 Car. 2. in removing a poor Person, is to make a Record of the Adjudication of the last Settlement, and the Complaint of the Churchwardens and Overseers, and upon that to make a Warrant or Order under their Hands and Seals to the Churchwardens, &c. to convey the Persons to the Parish to which they ought to be sent, and to deliver in the Record at the next Sessions, to be kept among the Records; and this Record may be removed by Certiorari. 1 Salk. 406. But on a Motion in B. R. to set aside an Order for the Settling a poor Person in a Parish, sent thither by Warrant of two Justices, and confirm'd in the Sessions, upon an Appeal: The Court refused to enter into the Merits of the Cause; the Orders of Sessions being in this Case final, unless it be made appear that there is Error in the Form of Proceeding. Pasch. 29 Car. 2. Vent. 310. And it is a standing Rule in the Court of King's Bench, That if upon an Appeal, the Order of two Justices is either affirmed or quashed, upon the Merits of the Cause, in Relation to Settlements, it shall be conclusive between the two Parishes. Pasch. 10 Ann. The Order of two Justices not appeal'd from, binds the Parish upon which it is made, 'till a new Settlement is gained: An Order reversed is final only between the Parties; but an Order confirm'd, &c. is final to all the World. 2 Salk. 472, 492. By Law, the Place that the Poor were last legally settled at, is the Place that is to provide for them. Trin. 5 Ann. B. R. See Vagrants.

very Poor and Impotent: And the said A. B. hath made Oath before me, That by Reason of Age and Lameness, he is utterly disabled to provide for himself and his Family, so that they must inevitably perish, unless timely relieved; and that he had applied to, &c. Overseers of the Poor of your Parish, and been refused Relief by them; and the said Overseers, &c. having been summoned to shew Cause why Relief should not be given, and assigned none: These are therefore to require you to pay to the said A. B. the Sum of 2 s. per Week, for and towards the Support and Maintenance of the said A. B. and his Family, until the said A. B. shall be better able to provide for the same, or until you shall be ordered to the contrary. Given under my Hand and Seal, &c.

Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor of the Parish of, &c. in the County aforesaid, That B. A. being on, &c. last settled in the Parish of, &c. in the County of S. is now come into the Parish of, &c. aforesaid, to endeavour to obtain a Settlement in the said Parish, not having done any Act as the Law requires to make him a Parishioner there, whereby he is likely to become chargeable to the Parish of, &c. aforesaid: And whereas it appears by the Oath of, &c. that the said B. A. was last legally settled at the Parish of, &c. which we do adjudge accordingly: Now we the aforesaid Justices, do hereby order you the Constable of, &c. to remove and convey the said B. A. from the said Parish of, &c. unto the aforesaid Parish of, &c. the Place of this last legal Settlement, and to deliver him to the Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor there, or some or one of them; hereby also requiring you the said Churchwardens and Overseers of the said Parish of, &c. to receive the said B. A. as your lawful Parishioner, and provide for him accordingly. Given, &c.

Pope, (Papa) Was anciently applied to some Clergymen in the Greek Church; but by Usage is particularly appropriated in the Latin Church to the Bishop of Rome, who is called the Pope; and formerly had great Authority here. As to the Incroachments of the See of Rome, it is said to be the general Opinion, That Christianity was first planted in this Island by some of the Eastern Church, which is very probable from the ancient Britons observing Easter always on the fourteenth Day of the Month, according to the Custom of the East: But the Saxons being converted about the Year 600. by Persons sent from Rome, and wholly devoted to the Interest thereof, it could not be expected that such an Opportunity of enlarging the Jurisdiction of that See, should be wholly neglected; and yet there are few Instances of the Papal Powers in England before the Norman Conquest, though four or five Persons were made Bishops by the Pope at the first Conversion, and there was an Instance or two of Appeals to Rome, &c. But the Pope having favoured and supported William the First, in his Invasion of this Kingdom, made that a Handle for enlarging his Incroachments; and in this King's Reign, began to send his Legates hither; and after he prevailed with King Hen. 1. to give up up the Donation of Bishopricks; and in the Time of King Stephen, gained the Prerogative of Appeals; and in the Reign of King Hen. 2. he exempted all Clerks from the secular Power: Indeed this King did at first strenuously withstand these Innovations; but upon the Death of Becket, who for having violently opposed the King, was slain by some of his Servants, the Pope got such an Advantage over the King, that he was never able to execute the Laws he had made: And not long after this, by a general Excommunication of the King and People, for several Years, because they would not suffer an Archbishop to be imposed upon them, King John was reduced to such Straits, that he surrender'd his Kingdoms to the Pope, to receive them again, and held them of him under the Rent of a thousand Marks: And in the following Reign of King Hen. 3. partly from the Profits of our best Church Benefices, which were generally given to Italians, and others residing at the Court of Rome, and partly from the Taxes imposed by the Pope, there went yearly out of the Kingdom Seventy Thousand Pounds Sterling, a very great Sum in those Days: The Nation being thus burden'd and under a Necessity, was obliged to provide for the Prerogative of the Prince, and the Liberties of the People, by many strict Laws. And hence in the Reign of King Edw. 1. it was declared by Parliament, That the Pope's Taking upon him to dispose of English Benefices to Aliens, was an Incroachment not to be endured; and this was followed with the Stat. 25 Ed. 3. called the Statute of Provisors, against Popish Bulls, and disturbing any Patron to prefer to a Benefice, &c. The 12, 13 & 16 R. 2. the Stat. 2 H. 4. and 6, 7 & 9. ejusdem; the 3 Hen. 5. 23 & 28 Hen. 8. &c. And Maintaining by Writing, Preaching, &c. the Pope's Power here in England, is made a Præmunire upon the first Conviction; and High Treason upon the Second. 5 Eliz. In the Construction of which Statute, it has been held, That he who knowing the Contents of a Popish Book, written beyond Sea, brings it over, and secretly sells it, or secretly conveys it to a Friend; or having read the Book, or heard of its Contents, doth after in Discourse allow it to be good, &c. is in Danger of the Statute; but not he who having heard thereof, buys and reads the same. *Selden's Janus Anglor. Popery. There are several Statutes made against Persons perverting or withdrawing others to Popery, and being perverted to the Romish Religion, &c. which was made Treason, by 23 El. and 3 Fac. 1. But if any one reconciled to the See of Rome beyond the Seas, return into the Realm, and submit himself, &c. and take the Oaths within six Days, he is to be excused. 3 Fac. 1. cap. 4.

Popish Recusants, Are subject to divers Penalties and Disabilities by Statute. See Recusants.

Popular Action, Is an Action given in general to any one who will sue for a Penalty on the Breach of some Penal Law. Actions Popular, which may be brought before Justices of Assize, &c. are to be generally prosecuted in the Counties where the Offences were done. And Popular Actions, where the King only hath the Penalty or Forfeiture, are to be commenced in two Years; and where an Informer hath a Part, in one Year, &c. 21 Fac. 1. cap. 4. 31 Eliz. c. 5. Vide Information.

Portgreve or Portrebe, (Portus præfectus) Is a Chief Magistrate in certain Maritime Towns; and as Camden says, the Chief Magistrate of London was anciently so called, as appears by a Charter of King Will. 1. called the Conqueror, to the same City in these Words.—William King, Greet William Bishop, and Godfrey Portgreve, and all the Burgeis within London, French and English: And I grant you, That I will that you be all your Law worth that ye were in Edward's Days the King: And I will that each Child be his Father's Eyer, and I will not suffer that any Man you any wrongs Beed. And God you kepe. Ex libro perveitusto. Instead of this Portgreve, the succeeding Kings by Charter ordained two Bailiffs; and afterwards a Mayor, for their yearly Magistrate. Camd. Britan. 325.

Pl. in Itin. Ibid. 14 Hen. 7.* The Portmote, or Portmannimote, i. e. Portmen's Court, is said to be held not only in Port-Towns, as generally rendred; but in Inland Towns, the Word Port in Saxon signifying the same with City.

Posse Comitatus, The Power of the County, according to Lambard, contains the Aid and Attendance of all Knights, Gentlemen, Yeomen, Labourers, Servants, Apprentices, and of other young Men above the Age of Fifteen, within the County; because all of that Age are bound to have Harnes, by the Statute of Winchester: But Ecclesiastical Persons, and such as are decrepit, or labour under any Infirmary, are not compellable to attend, Persons able to travel being required to be assistant in this Service; which is used where a Riot is committed, a Possession is kept upon a Forcible Entry, or any Force or Rescue made, contrary to the Commandment of the King's Writ, or in Opposition to the Execution of Justice. Stat. 2 Hen. 5. cap. 8. Sheriffs of Counties are to be assisting to Justices of Peace in the suppressing of Riots, &c. and raise the Posse Comitatus, by charging any Number of Men to attend for that Purpose, who may take with them such Weapons as shall be necessary to enable them to do it; and they may justify the Beating, Wounding and even Killing of such Rioters as shall resist, or refuse to surrender themselves; and Persons refusing to assist the Sheriffs or Justices of Peace herein, may be fined and imprisoned. 17 R. 2. cap. 8. 13 Hen. 4. cap. 7. 2 Hen. 5. cap. 8. Lamb. 313, 318. Crompt. 62. Dalt. cap. 46. 2 Inst. 193. Justices of Peace, having a just Cause to fear a violent Resistance, may raise the Posse in Order to remove a Force in making an Entry into or detaining of Lands: And a Sheriff, if Need be, may raise the Power of the County to assist him in the Execution of a Precept of Restitution; and therefore if he make a Return thereto, that he could not make a Restitution by reason of Resistance, he shall be amerced. 1 Hawk. P. C. 152, 156. Also it is the Duty of a Sheriff, or other Minister of Justice, having the Execution of the King's Writs, and being resisted in endeavouring to execute the same, to raise such a Power as may effectually enable them to quell any such Resistance; though it is said not to be lawful for them to raise a Force for the Execution of a civil Process, unless they find a Resistance. 2 Inst. 193. 3 Inst. 161. It is lawful for a Sheriff, Constable, or other Peace-Officer, or for a private Person, to assemble a competent Number of People, and sufficient Power to suppress Rebels, Enemies, Rioters, &c. But herein there must be great Caution, least under a Pretence of keeping the Peace, they cause a greater Breach of it; and Sheriffs, Justices of Peace, &c. are punishable for using any needless Violence, or alarming the Country in these Cases, without just Grounds. 1 Hawk. P. C. 156, 161.

Posse, Is an Infinitive Mood, but used substantively for a Possibility; as we say, such a Thing is in posse, that is, it may possibly be. See in esse.

Possessio fratris, Signifies in the Law where a Man hath a Son and a Daughter by one Woman or Venter, and a Son by another Venter, and dies, if the first Son enters and dies without Issue, the Daughter shall have the Land as Heir to her Brother, although the second Son by the second Venter is Heir to the Father: But if the eldest Son dies without Issue, not having made an actual Entry and Seisin, the younger Brother by the second Wife, as Heir to the Father, shall enjoy the Estate; and not the Sister. 1 Inst. 11, 15. Lands are settled on a Man, and the Heirs of his Body, and he hath Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Woman, and a Son by another, and dieth; and then the eldest Son dies before any Entry made on the Lands either by his own Act, or by the Possession of another, the younger Brother shall inherit, he claiming as Heir of the Body of the Father, and not generally, as Heir to his Brother; yet if the elder Brother enter, and by his own Act hath gained the Possession; or if the Lands were leased for Years, or in the Hands of a Guardian, there the Possession of the Lessee or Guardian doth vest the Fee in the elder Brother, and then upon his Death the Sister shall inherit as Heir to her Brother, for there is Possessio fratris. 3 Rep. 42. There can be no Possessio fratris of a Dignity; in such Case, the younger Brother is Heres Natus: The Lord Grey being created a Baron to him and his Heirs, had Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Venter, and a Son by another; and after his Death, the Eldest being possessed of the Barony, and dying without Issue, it was adjudged, that the younger Brother, and not the Sister should have it. Cro. Car. 437. 2 Nels. Abr. 923.

Possession, (Possessio, quasi Pedis positio) Is either actual, where a Person actually enters into Lands or Tenements descended or conveyed to him; or in Law, when Lands, &c. are descended to a Man, and he hath not actually entered into them: Also before, or until an Office is found of Lands escheated to the King by Attainder, he hath only a Possession in Law. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 17. Long Possession, beyond the Memory of Man, establishes a Right; but if by the Knowledge of Man, or Proof of Record, &c. the contrary is made out, though it exceeds the Memory of Man, this shall be construed within Memory. 1 Inst. 115. A long Possession the Law favours, as an Argument of Right, although no Deed can be shewn; rather than an ancient Deed, without Possession. 1 Inst. 6. Continued quiet Possession is a violent Presumption of a good Title: And where two Persons claim the same Land, as to Forcible Entries, and Detainers, &c. the Possession will be always adjudged in him who has Right, &c. 1 Inst. 256, 323. He that is out of Possession of Lands, if he brings his Action, must make a good Title: And where one Man would recover any Thing from another, it is not sufficient to destroy the Title of him in Possession; but you must prove your own better than his. Vaugh. 8, 58, 60. But in Action against a Person for digging of Coney-Boroughs in a Common, &c. it was held, that the Action being grounded on the Possession of the Tenement, to which the Common belonged, the Plaintiff need not shew a Title; and in this Case the Defendant may be a Stranger; besides the Title is not traversable, but ought to be given in Evidence dence upon the Trial of the Issue. Trin. 8 W. 3. 3 Salk. 12. A Defendant in Trespas, &c. for taking Cattle Damage-feeant, has been allowed to justify the Taking on his Possession, without shewing his Title; the Matter of Justification being collateral to the Title of the Land. 2 Mod. 70. 3 Salk. 220. Though in such a Case, on its being insisted, that there was the same Reason for justifying upon a Possession, as there was for maintaining an Action upon a bare Possession; it hath been adjudged, that a Justification upon a Possession only is not good; for a Possession cannot be but by Contract, but a Seisin may be by Right or Wrong. Hill. 2 & 3 Fac. 2. In Replevin, if the Defendant had the Possession, 'tis a good Bar against the Plaintiff, if he has no Title; but he cannot give a Return, unless he shew a Property in the Goods. Pasch. 2 Ann. Action of the Case lies for shooting at and frightening away Ducks from a Decoy-Pond, which is in the Plaintiff's Possession, without shewing that he had any Property in them. 3 Salk. 9. A Man upon a Lease and Release of Lands, &c. is in Possession to all Intents, except bringing Trespas; which cannot be without an Entry, Pedis positio. 2 Lill. Abr. 335. And to make Possession good on Entry, the former Possessor and his Servants, &c. are to be removed from the Land; and if Possession be lost by Entry of another, it must be regained by Retray, &c. Pasch. 1650. A Person in Possession may bring an Action, for Loss of his Shade, Shelter, Fruit, &c. when Trees are injured; and he in Reversion, for spoiling the Trees. 3 Lev. 209. One in Defence of his lawful Possession, may assemble his Friends to resist those that threaten to make an unlawful Entry into a House, &c. 5 Rep. 91. There is an Unity of Possession, when by Purchase, the Seignior and Tenancy, become in one Man's Possession. Kitch. 134.

Impossibilitas, Is taken in the Saxon Laws for an Act wilfully done; and Impossibilitas, for a Thing done against one's Will. Leg. Alfred. cap. 38.

Possibilitas, In our Law is defined to be an uncertain Thing, which may or may not happen. 2 Lill. Abr. 336. And it is either near or remote; as for Instance: Where an Estate is limited to one, after the Death of another, this is a near Possibility; but the Law doth not regard a remote Possibility. Haydr. 417. 2 Rep. 50. A Possibility cannot be granted over; no Possibility, Right, or Chose in Action, &c. may be granted or assigned to a Stranger. 4 Rep. 66. 10 Rep. 48. A Lease was made to Husband and Wife of a Term of Years, for their Lives, Remainder to the Executors of the Survivor; the Husband granted the Term, and it was adjudged, that it should not bind the Wife, the Husband having only a Possibility to it, if he had survived his Wife, and no Interest till then. Hill. 17 Eliz. 2. Nels. Abr. 1274. A Man made a Lease to his Brother for Life, and that if he marry'd, and his Wife should survive, then she should have it for Life; the Lessee, before he married, made a Feoffment of the Lands to another, and afterwards the Lessor levied a Fine to him; then the Lessee married, and died, and his Wife survived: And it was held, that the Remainder to the Wife for Life was gone by this Feoffment, and the Possibility of her having it was included in the Fine, which is likewise barred. Moor 554. A Testator possessed of a Lease for Years, devised the Profits thereof to W. R. for Life, Remainder to another; and afterwards the Devisee for Life entered with the Assent of the Executor, and then he in Remainder for Life assign'd all his Interest to another, and after the Devisee for Life died; it was resolv'd, that this Assignment was void, because whilst the Devisee for Life was living, he in Remainder had only a Possibility to have the Term, for the Devisee for Life had an Interest in it sub modo, and might have survived the whole Term. 4 Rep. 64. A Devise of the Possibility of a Term is void; as where a Term is devised to A. for Life, Remainder to B. and B. devises this Remainder to C. and dies, and then A. dies; this Devise to C. is void, and the Executors of B. shall have it. 3 Lev. 427. A Possibility founded on a Trust, differs from a mere Possibility; the first may be devised, but the other cannot. Moor 808. 2 Nels. 1275.

Post, A swift or speedy Messenger to carry Letters, &c. And the Post-Office is of the greatest Consequence to this Kingdom, being a Country of Trade. The first Law that introduced this very great Convenience, was made in the Reign of King Car. 2. By the 12 Car. 2. cap. 35. a General Letter or Post-Office was erected, under the Management of a Postmaster General, &c. And the Rates for Carriage of Letters was 2 d. for a single Letter of a Sheet, not exceeding eighty Miles; two Sheets 4 d. Packets 8 d. per Ounce; and above eighty Miles 3 d. not exceeding a Sheet, &c. The 1 W. & M. was made for erecting a Post-Office in Scotland: And by 9 Ann. cap. 10. the Post-Office of England and Scotland are united; and the Price of Postage of Letters is increased to 3 d. for a single Letter from any Place not distant above eighty Miles from London, and 6 d. for a double Letter, and so proportionably for Packets of Letters; and for Packets of Writs, Deeds, &c. 12 d. per Ounce; single Letters above eighty Miles from London 4 d. and for double Letters 8 d. and for other Things 1 s. 4 d. per Ounce: Single Letters to and from Edinburgh, or to and from Dublin 6 d. double Letters 12 d. and Parcels 2 s. per Ounce, &c. And by this Statute, the Rates of Letters from London to France, Spain, Flanders, Holland, &c. are appointed: And the Postmaster is not only to continue constant Posts to all Places on the Post Roads; but may erect cross Stages, keep Packet-Boats, &c. for the Conveyance of Letters; and no Person but the Postmaster or his Deputies, shall receive, take or carry Letters, or set up any Foot-Post, &c. under certain Penalties; nor shall Carriers carry Letters, except such as concern Goods sent by them: Opening, Delaying, or Detaining Letters, by Officers of the Post-Office; unless by Warrant from a Secretary of State, or the Party to whom directed refuses to pay the Postage; or where the Letter is returned for Want of true Directions, incurs a Penalty of 20 l. Money due for Postage of Letters, not exceeding 5 l. shall be recovered before two Justices of Peace, on Complaint, and Summons of the Party, Distress, &c. as small Tithes; and shall be paid before any Debt due to a private Person. Stat. 9 Ann. A Person having inclosed Exchequer Bills in a Letter sent by the Post, which were lost, the Owner brought an Action on the Case against the Postmaster; and by three Judges it was held, that the Action did not lie, because the Office is for Intelligence only; and it is impossible the Postmaster General, who is to execute this Office in such distant Places, by so many many several Hands, should be able to secure every Thing, and for that this is not a Conveyance for Treasure: But the Lord Chief Justice Holt was of a contrary Opinion; he considered this as a Letter lost in the Office, not on the Road, and held that the Postmaster General is liable, the whole Care being committed to him, and the Law makes the Officer answerable for himself and his Deputies; he has a Reward, which is the Reason why Innkeepers, Carriers, &c. are liable for Goods lost; and where a Man takes upon him a publick Employment, he is bound to serve the Publick, or Action lies against him, &c. Pas. h. 12 W. 3. B. R. 1 Salk. 17. The Post Office in London is managed by the Postmaster, and other Officers to the Number of Seventy-seven; one of which is called the Court Post, constituted by Patent for Life, with a handsome Salary: And the Postmaster General has under him one hundred eighty-two Deputy Postmasters in England and Scotland, most of them keeping regular Offices in their Stages, and Sub-Postmasters in their Branches: The Conveyance of Post Letters extends to every considerable Market-Town, and is so expeditious that every twenty-four Hours the Post goes Six-score Miles; and the Post Days to send Letters from London to any Part of England and Scotland, are Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, and the Returns Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; but to Wales and Ireland, the Post goes only twice a Week, Tuesdays and Saturdays, and returns from Wales every Monday and Friday; but from Ireland the Return is uncertain, &c. See Master of the Posts.

Penny-Post. Letters or Parcels, not exceeding sixteen Ounces Weight, or ten Pounds Value, are conveyed daily by the Penny-Post, to and from all Places within the Bills of Mortality, and ten Miles Distance from the General Post Office, for 1 d. each Packet, Letter, &c. Stat. 9 Ann. c. 10. And several General Offices are kept at convenient Distances from one another, to receive and take in Penny-Post Letters every Day, Sundays excepted: Also Letters that come from all Parts by the General Post, directed to Persons in any Country-Towns to which the Penny-Post goes, are delivered by the Messengers thereof the same Day they come to London; and the Answers are carried every Post Night to the General Post Office in Lombard-street, being left at the Receiving Houses.

Post Conquestum, Were Words inserted in the King's Title, by King Ed. 1. and constantly used in the Time of Ed. 3. Claus. 2 Ed. 3.

Post Diem, Is where a Writ is returned after the Day assigned, for which the Custos Brevium hath a Fee of 4 d. whereas he hath nothing if it be returned at the Day.

Post-Disseisin, Is a Writ that lies for him who having recovered Lands or Tenements by Precipe quod reddat, on Default or Reddition, is again disseised by the former Disseisor; then he shall have this Writ, and recover double Damages, and the Party shall be punished by Imprisonment, &c. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 26. Reg. Orig. 208. F. N. B. 190. The Writ of Post-Disseisin ought to be brought by the Parties who first recovered, or some of them, and of the same Land which was recovered, or Part thereof, and against those or some of them against whom the Recovery was: But if a Man recover by a Precipe quod reddat, and after he is disseised by him against whom he recovered, and the Disseisor makes a Feoffment, and takes back an Estate to him and another, a Post-Disseisin may be had against him and his Jointenant; and if he that loseth the Land, by Default, &c. do after disseise him who recovered, and make a Feoffment to another Person, he that recovered shall have this Writ against the Disseisor, although he be not Tenant of the Land; for in a Writ Post-Disseisin, the Demandant shall not have Judgment to recover the Land; but the Sheriff shall restore the Plaintiff to his Possession, if the Disseisin be found, and take the Defendant and keep him in Prison. New Nat. Br. 423. And the Defendant is not to be delivered out of Prison, until he hath paid a Fine to the King, and without the King's special Command, upon a Certiorari to remove the Record into B. R. whereupon a Writ shall go to the Sheriff to deliver him. Ibid. Non-tenure is no Plea in a Post-Disseisin, for the Defendant ought to answer the Disseisin, &c.

Postea, Is the Return of the Judge, before whom a Cause was tried, after a Verdict, of what was done in the Cause; and is indorsed on the Back of the Nisi prius Record: It begins, Postea die & loco, &c. wherefore it is so called. 2 Lill. 337. A Postea is a Record of the Court, trusted with the Attorney in the Cause by the Clerk of the Assise; and the Attorney, so entrusted, is to deliver it into the Office, that the Judgment may be entred by it by the Officer of the Court. Trin. 1651. It is brought into Court at the Day in Bank, and recorded there, and delivered back to the Attorney, who gives a Rule for Judgment upon it; and if there be no Rule to the contrary, after the Rule for Judgment is out, the Attorney brings his Postea to the Secondary, who signs his Judgment, and then he enters all his Matter upon the Issue Roll. 2 Lill. 337. The Court may stay the Bringing in of the Postea, and Entering up the Judgment upon a Verdict, if they find Cause to do it, for any undue Practice in the Proceedings to Trial: And if the Party for whom the Verdict passed, will not bring in the Postea, upon Notice given by the other Party that he intends to move in Arrest of Judgment; the Court, on Motion, will order Judgment to be stay'd, until four Days after the Postea is brought in, allowed to speak in Arrest of Judgment. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. Altho' the Verdict given be prejudicial to the Plaintiff, he ought to bring in the Postea; for he must abide by the Trial. There is no general Rule of Court for the Clerk of the Assise, &c. to bring in the Postea into the Court of B. R. by a precise Time; but if it be not return'd in convenient Time, the Court may be moved at the Side-Bar for a Rule to bring it in speedily. 2 Lill. 337. If the Clerk of the Assise hath mistaken in drawing up the Postea, he may amend it by his Notes, before it is filed; and the Return of a Postea hath been amended by the Memory of a Judge, who tried the Cause. Cro. Car. 338.

Posterioꝛity, (Posterioꝛitas) Signifies the Being or Coming after, and is a Word of Comparison and Relation in Tenures, the Correlative whereof is Priority: As a Man holding Lands or Tenements of two Lords, holds of his ancients Lord by Priority, and of his latter Lord by Posterioꝛity. Staundf. Prærog. 10, 11. 2 Inst. 392.

Post-fine, Is a Duty to the King for a Fine formerly acknowledged in his Court, paid by the

the Cognisee after the Fine is fully passed ; and it is so much, and Half so much as was paid to the King for the Pre-Fine, collected by the Sheriff of the County where the Land lies of which the Fine was levied, to be answered by him into the Exchequer. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Posthumous, Is where a Child is born after his Father's Death, &c. And Posthumous Children are enabled to take Estates by Remainder in Settlements, as if born in their Father's Lifetime, though no Estate be limited to Trustees to preserve them till they come in esse. 10 & 11 W. 3. cap. 16.

Postnatus, Is a Word that signifieth the second Son, or one born afterwards ; often mentioned in Bracton, Glanville, Fleta, and other ancient Law-Writers : And as to Postnati and Antenati ; it was by all the Judges solemnly adjudged, that those who after the Discent of the Crown of England to King Jam. 1. were born in Scotland, were not Aliens here in England : But the Antenati, or those born in Scotland, before the said Discent, were Aliens here, in respect of the Time of their Birth. 7 Jac. 7 Rep. Calvin's Case.

Postponed, (From Postpono) Set or put behind or after another. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Post-Terminum, Is a Return of a Writ, not only after the Day for the Return thereof, but after the Term ; on which the Custos Brevium of the Court of Common Pleas takes the Fee of 20 d. It is also used for the Fee so taken.

Postulation, (Postulatio) Signifies a Request, Suit or Petition. Formerly when a Bishop was translated from one Bishoprick to another, he was not elected to the new See ; for the Canon Law is, Electus non potest Eligi, and the Pretence was, that he was married to the first Church, which Marriage could not be dissolved but by the Pope ; thereupon he was petitioned, and he consenting to the Petition, the Bishop was translated, and this was said to be by Postulation : But being an Usurpation and against our Law, it was restrained by the Stat. 16 R. 2. and 9 H. 4. c. 8. Since which Translations of Bishops have been by Election, and not by Postulation. 1 Jones 160. 1 Salk. 137. Postulations were made upon the unanimous Voting any Person to a Dignity or Office ; of which he was not capable by the ordinary Canons or Statutes, without special Dispensation : And by the ancient Customs, an Election could be made by a Majority of Votes ; but a Postulation must have been Nemine Contradicente.

Pot, An Head-Piece for War, mentioned in the Stat. 13 Car. 2. c. 6.

Pound, (Parvus) Is generally any Place inclos'd, to keep in Beasts ; but especially a Place of Strength to keep Cattle that are distrained, or put in for any Trespas done by them, until they are replevied or redeemed. In this Signification, it is called Pound overt and Pound covert ; a Pound overt is an open Pound, usually built on the Lord's Waste, and which he provides for the Use of himself and his Tenants, and is also called the Lord's or the Common Pound ; and a Backside, Yard, Ground, &c. whereto the Owner of the Beasts impounded may come to give them Mear, without Offence, is a Pound overt : And a Pound covert is a close Place, as the Owner of the Cattle cannot come to for the Purpose aforesaid, without giving Offence ; such as a House, Cattle, &c. Kitch. 144. Terms de Ley 483. 1 Inst. 96. There is a Difference between a common Pound, an open Pound, and a close Pound, as to Cattle impounded : For where Cattle are kept in a common Pound, no Notice is necessary to the Owner to feed them ; but if they are put into any other open Place, it is otherwise, Notice is to be given ; and if Beasts are impounded in a Pound Close, in Part of the Distrainer's House, &c. he is to feed them, at his Peril. 1 Inst. 47. See Distress.

Pound-breach. If a Distress be taken, and impounded, though without just Cause, the Owner cannot break the Pound, and take away the Distress ; if he doth, the Party distraining may have his Action, and retake the Distress wherever he finds it : And for Pound-breaches, &c. Action of the Case lies, whereon treble Damages may be recovered. 1 Inst. 161. 2 W. & M. c. 5. Also 'tis said, that all Pound-breaches, may be inquired of in the Sheriff's Turn ; as they are common Grievances, in Contempt of the Authority of the Law. 2 Hawk. P. C. 67.

Poundage, Is a Subsidy or Duty granted to the King of 12 d. in the Pound on all Goods and Merchandizes exported and imported. Stat. 1 & 2 Ed. 6. c. 13. 1 Jac. 1. c. 33. 12 Car. c. 4. See Customs.

Pound in Money, (From the Sax. Pund, i. e. Pondus) Is Twenty Shillings : In the Time of the Saxons it consisted of 240 Pence, as it doth now ; and 240 of those Pence weighed a Pound, but 720 scarce weigh so much at this Day. Lambard 219.

Pour fair proclamer, que null inject Fines ou Ordures en Fosses ou Rivières pres Cités, &c. Is an ancient Writ directed to the Mayor or Bailiff of a City or Town, requiring them to make Proclamation, That none cast Filth into the Ditches or Places near such City or Town, to the Nuisance thereof ; and if any be cast there already, to remove the same : It is founded on the Stat. 12 R. 2. c. 13. F. N. B. 176.

Pourpresture, In Lands and Woods, &c. See Purpresture.

Pour seisir Terres la Femme que tient en Dotier, Was a Writ whereby the King seised the Land, which the Wife of his Tenant in Capite had for her Dowry after his Decease, if she married without the King's Leave ; by Virtue of the Statute of the King's Prerogative, cap. 3. F. N. B. 174.

Poursuivant, A Messenger of the King. Vide Pursuivant.

Power, Is an Authority which one Man gives to another to act for him ; and it is sometimes a Reservation which a Person makes in a Conveyance for himself to do some Acts, i. e. to make Leases, or the like. 2 Lill. Abr. 339. And Powers are either Appendant or Collateral ; the one is where a Man devises Lands for Life, with a Power for the Devisee to make a Jointure, &c. and the other is when he devises to his Executor to sell, &c. In the first Case, the Power is annexed to the Estate, and derived out of it ; but in the other Case, 'tis collateral to it. 3 Salk. 276. A Feoffment, Fine or Recovery, will destroy a Power coupled with an Interest to the Party himself ; though not a collateral Power : As for Instance ; Lands are devised to W. R. in Tail, Remainder over, with a Power given to him to make a Jointure to a second Wife, &c. The

The Tenant in Tail, in the Life-time of his first Wife, suffered a common Recovery to the Use of himself and his Heirs; then his Wife died, and he married a second Wife, and covenanted to stand seised to the Use of himself and his Wife, for their Lives, &c. Adjudged, that this Power when created, was to be executed out of the Estate-tail, which was now destroyed by suffering the Recovery, and by Consequence the Power to make a Jointure was destroyed. 2 Lev. 58, 60. A single Lady made a Settlement of her Estate for Life, Remainder to her in Tail, with a Power to make Leases (being sole) for three Lives; afterwards she married, and she and her Husband made a Lease, &c. And it was held, that this Lease was void, being not pursuant to the Power; for the Lease of the Husband and Wife is the Lease of the Husband; and the Difference betwixt a naked Power, and a Power which arises from an Interest, is, That if a Woman hath only a naked or bare Power, as by a Will to sell Lands, she may sell, tho' she marry, because this is not a Power created by her self out of any Interest; but where a Power is reserved upon a Settlement, she must execute it pursuant to that Power, when it was at first reserved. Chanc. Rep. 18. 3 Salk. 273. It is said, if a Man hath a Power to make a Lease for three Lives, or Twenty-one Years, he cannot make a Lease for Ninety-nine Years, if three Persons live so long: But if he hath a Power to make a Lease, Proviso that it doth not exceed three Lives, &c. he may make a Lease for Ninety-nine Years, if three live so long. 4 Rep. 70. A Power ought to be exactly and strictly executed. 6 Rep. 33. But a Power may be well executed, though there be no Recital of the Power in the Deed for the Execution thereof. 1 Lev. 150. And a Power hath been decreed in Equity, though not pursued strictly. Chanc. 263, 264. Yet it hath been held, that a Power not well executed in Law, shall not be made good in Equity. 1 Lev. 241. A Power to sell Lands, is subject to the Rules of Equity. Chanc. Rep. 281. Powers ought to be construed according to the Intent of the Parties; and a bare Power is not assignable over. 5 Mod. 379. 1 Mod. 318. Where Attornies have Power to make Leases for Years, they must make them in the Name of him who gave the Authority. 9 Rep. 76. And the Lease ought to run thus: This Indenture made, &c. between A. B. and C. D. of the one Part, and E. F. of the other Part: Whereas the said A. B. by a Writing or Letter of Attorney under his Hand and Seal duly executed, dated, &c. among other Things therein mentioned, did authorize the said C. D. in the Name of him the said A. B. and on his Behalf, to seal and execute Leases of such Parts of his Lands, Tenements, &c. as he thought fit to be leased: Witnesseth that in Consideration of, &c. he the said A. B. by his Attorney C. D. hath demised and granted, Habend', &c. yielding and paying to the said A. B. &c. And the said E. F. covenants with the said A. B. his Heirs, &c. And the said A. B. by the said C. D. his said Attorney doth covenant, &c. 2 Lill. 340. See Letter of Attorney.

Power of the County, On what Occasions, and how raised, &c. See Posse Comitatus.

Poyning's Law, Is an Act of Parliament made in Ireland in the Reign of King Hen. 7. and so called because Sir Edward Poyning was Lieutenant there when it was made, whereby all the Statutes in England were declared of Force in Ireland; which before that Time were not, nor any since that Time, but by special Words. 12 Rep. 109.

Practice. The Law loves plain and fair Practice, and will not countenance Fraud in Proceedings, nor suffer Advantage to be taken thereby. 2 Lill. 342. Private clandestine Proceedings in several Cases, are said to be by Practice.

Præceptories, (Præceptorie) Were a Kind of Benefices, having their Name from being possessed by the more eminent Templers, whom the Chief Master by his Authority created and called Præceptores Templi: And of these Præceptories, there are recorded Sixteen, as belonging to the Templers in England, viz. Cressing Temple, Balshal, Shengay, Newland, Tevely, Witham, Templebruere, Willington, Rothley, Ovenington, Temple Combe, Trebigh, Ribstane, Mount St. John, Temple Newsum and Temple Hurst. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 543. But some Authors say, these Places were Cells only; subordinate to their Principal Mansion, the Temple in London. 32 Hen. 8. c. 24.

Præcipe in capite, Was a Writ issuing out of the Chancery, for a Tenant holding of the King in capite, viz. in Chief, as of his Crown. Magn. Chart. cap. 24. Reg. Orig. 4.

Præcipe quod reddat, Is the Form of a Writ, which extends as well to a Writ of Right, as to other Writs of Entry or Possession, beginning Præcipe A. quod reddat B. unum messuagium, &c. Old Nat. Br. 13.

Præcipitium, Was a Punishment inflicted on Criminals, by casting them from some high Place or Rock. Malsm. lib. 5. p. 155.

Præfatus Uilæ, Is the same as Præpositus Ville, i. e. The Mayor of a Town. Leg. Ed. Confess. cap. 28.

Præfine, Is that Fine which upon suing out the Writ of Covenant on levying Fines of Lands, is paid before the Fine is passed. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Præmium, A Reward or Recompence; among Merchants it is used for that Sum of Money, which the Insured gives to the Insurer, for insuring the safe Return of any Ship or Merchandize. Stat. 19 Car. 2. c. 1.

Præmunire, Is taken either for a Writ so called, from the Words therein Præmunire facias, or Præmonere facias, &c. signifying to forewarn, or bid the Offender take Heed, or it is the Offence on which the Writ is granted. The Church of Rome, under Pretence of her Supremacy, formerly carried Things to that Height in this Kingdom, that King Ed. 3. in the 27th Year of his Reign, made a Statute against those that drew the King's People out of the Realm, to answer and sue for Things belonging to the King's Court; which greatly restrained this Liberty of the Pope: But notwithstanding, he still adventured to continue his Mandates and Bulls, insomuch that King Rich. 2. made several Statutes against them, but most expressly that of 16 R. 2. cap. 5. commonly called the Statute of Præmunire, which ordains the Punishment of this Offence, viz. The Offenders are to be out of the King's Protection, forfeit their Lands and Goods, and be imprisoned and ransomed at the King's Pleasure, &c. and if the Offenders are not to be found, they shall be outlawed. After him King Hen. 4. in like Manner aggrieved at other Abuses not remedied by former Statutes, in the second Year of his Reign added certain new Cases, laying upon the Offenders the same Punishment; as likewise did 3 Hen. 5. cap. 4. And by the 24 Hen. 8. cap. 12.

to appeal to Rome from any of the King's Courts is made a Premunire. So if any Dean and Chapter refuse to elect a Bishop named by the King, or any Archbishop or Bishop to confirm him, &c. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 20. Refusing the Oath of Supremacy is a Premunire: And Affirming the Authority of the Pope; or Contributing to the Maintenance of a Popish Seminary, is the same Offence. 1 Eliz. c. 1. 13 Eliz. c. 1. and 27 Eliz. cap. 2. To refuse the Oath of Allegiance, upon Tender, incurs a Premunire. 3 Jac. 1. cap. 4. Affirming that both or either Houses of Parliament, have a Legislative Power without the King, is made a Premunire. 13 Car. 2. cap. 1. The Oaths of Supremacy and Allegiance prescribed in former Acts are abrogated, and new Oaths substituted by 1 W. & M. c. 8. which to refuse upon Tender, makes one liable to the Penalty of a Premunire: And Counsellors, Attornies, Solicitors, Proctors, &c. practising as such in any Court, without taking the Oaths of Allegiance and Supremacy, and subscribing the Declaration, incur a Premunire, by the Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. cap. 24. If any shall maliciously and directly, by Preaching, or advisedly Speaking, affirm that the pretended Prince of Wales hath any Title to the Crown, or that the King with Authority of Parliament, cannot by Laws limit the same, &c. it is a Premunire. 1 & 2 Ann. cap. 17. 4 Ann. c. 8. And so in divers other Cases; and most of these later Statutes refer the Punishment to the Stat. 16 R. 2. On the Statutes 27 Ed. 3. and 16 R. 2. making it a Premunire to sue or pursue Causes out of the Realm, in the Court of Rome or elsewhere, or in any other Court, to defeat the Judgments given in the King's Courts, it has been formerly holden, by the Words elsewhere, &c. That Suits in Equity, to relieve against a Judgment given at Law, as the Court of Chancery in the Proceeding in Course of Equity, which is no Court of Record; Suits in the Admiralty, or in the Courts of the Constable and Marshal; and Ecclesiastical Courts, for Matters belonging to the Cognisance of the Common Law, are within the Statute: And he that procures one to sue to the Court Christian, in a Temporal Cause, shall forfeit as much as he that sueth as Principal, and is in equal Degree of Premunire. 3 Inst. 121. 2 Inst. 601, &c. But it is agreed at this Day, that no such Suit in Equity seeking Relief after Judgment at Law, &c. is within the Intention of the said Statutes. 1 Hawk. P. C. 51. The Writ of Premunire runs Contra Coronam & Dignitatem Regis; and it hath been held by all the Judges, that when an Ecclesiastical Judge doth usurp upon the Temporal Laws, which are the Birthright of the Subject, he draweth the Matter ad aliud Examen, and therein he offends contra Coronam & Dignitatem, &c. 12 Rep. 50. A Prohibition was granted by the King against a Prior, for that the King having recovered against him in a Quare Impedit, he sent his Brother with an Appeal to Rome, and sued there to avoid the Judgment; upon Not guilty pleaded, it was found against the Defendant, and thereupon the King prayed Judgment upon the Stat. 27 Ed. 3. as in case of a Premunire; but it was adjudged, that he should not have such Judgment, because the Suit was not brought according to the Statute, but by a Writ of Prohibition at Common Law. 9 Rep. 71. And yet it hath been resolved, That a Statute, by appointing that an Offender shall incur the Penalty and Danger mentioned in the 16 R. 2. of Premunire, does not confine the Prosecution for the Offence to the particular Process thereby given. 1 Vent. 173. A Premunire lieth as well for the Party grieved, as for the King; and both may join in one Writ. 3 Inst. 125. Davies 83. But where the Attorney General prosecuted a Premunire for the Queen and R. B. against the Dean of Christchurch in Oxford, and others, and afterwards withdrew his Suit: It was held, that by this Means the Party grieved could not proceed, because the principal Matter of the Premunire was the Putting the Defendants out of the King's Protection, &c. and the Damages to the Party are but accessory; so that the Principal being released, the Damages are so likewise. 1 Leon. 290. In Prosecutions on the Stat. 1 Eliz. and 3 Jac. 1. for refusing the Oaths of Allegiance, &c. the Trial must be by a Jury of the County wherein the Oaths were refused; though the Statute authorizes an Indictment by a Jury of the County where the Court sits: And any Misrecital of the very Words of the Oath, in an Indictment for not taking it, is erroneous; but the Tenor of the Oath is as much as if it were verbatim. Dyer 234. Raym. 212, 374. The Lord Vaux was indicted for refusing to take the Oath of Allegiance, being lawfully tendered to him, and he being above 18 Years old; this was certified into B. R. under the Hands of several of the Privy Council; and he being brought into Court, and the Oath read to him, he pray'd to have Counsel; but it was denied; and being press'd to plead to the Indictment, he confess'd it, and thereupon had Judgment of Premunire, viz. To be out of the King's Protection, to forfeit his Lands, Tenements, Goods and Chattels to the King, and to be imprisoned during Life. 1 Bulst. 197. The Forfeiture of Lands to the King in a Premunire, is understood of Lands in Fee only for ever; and of Lands in Tail but during Life, or of such Estate as one may lawfully forfeit. 1 Inst. 130. 3 Inst. 125. Tenant in Tail is attainted in a Premunire, he shall forfeit his Lands only during Life; and afterwards the Issue in Tail shall inherit. 11 Rep. 56. A Person being seised in Fee of Lands, was indicted for a Premunire upon the Stat. 13 Eliz. but before Conviction he made an Entail of his Lands; and it was adjudged, that the Attainder shall relate to the Time of the Offence, and that was before he entailed the Lands, and not the Time of the Judgment which was afterwards; and the Freehold being in him at the Time of the Attainder, shall not be divested without an Inquisition under the Great Seal. Cro. Car. 123, 172. It is said the Statute of Premunire doth not extend to the Forfeiture of Rents, Annuities, Fairs, &c. or any other Hereditaments that are not within the Word Terre. 3 Inst. 126. This Suit need not be by Original Writ in B. R. for if the Defendant be in Custodia Marefchalli, the Suit may be against him by Bill; and the Defendants cannot be sued in any other Court, when they are in Custodia Marefchal. But if the Defendant come not at the Day, &c. Judgment shall be given against him; and if the Defendant appear and plead, and the Issue be found against him; or if he demur in Law, &c. Judgment shall be given, that he shall be out of Protection, &c. 3 Inst. 124. So odious was this Offence of Premunire, that a Man attainted of the same, being out of the King's Protection, might be slain by any Person;

son; because it was provided by Law, that a Man might do to him as to the King's Enemy, and any Man may lawfully kill an Enemy: But this Severity and Inhumanity is restrained and provided against by Stat. 5 Eliz. though no Person attainted of any Præmunire can bring an Action for any Injury whatsoever; and no one knowing himself to be guilty, can with Safety give him Aid, Comfort or Relief. 1 Inst. 130. 1 Hawk. 55. The Laws making Offences to be Præmunire, it has been observ'd are so very severe, that they are seldom put in Execution. See Pope.

Præpositus Ecclesiæ, Is used for a Church-Reve, or Church-warden.

Præpositus Villæ, Is sometimes taken for the Constable of a Town; and frequently an Head or Chief Officer of the King in any Town, Village, Manor, &c. Leg. Edw. Confess. cap. 28. Crompt. Jurisd. 205. But this Præpositus Villæ in old Records, was no more than the Bailiff of the Lord of the Manor: And by the Laws of Hen. 1. the Lord answered for the Town where he was resident, and where he was not, his Seneschal; but if neither of them could be present, then Præpositus & quatuor de unaquaque Villa, i. e. The Bailiff or Reeve, and Four of the most substantial Inhabitants, were summoned to appear before the Justices, &c. Brad. Gloss. pag. 97.

Præsentare ad Ecclesiam, Denotes originally the Patron's Sending or Placing an Incumbent in the Church, and is made for Representare; which in the Council of Lateran, and elsewhere, occurs for Præsentare. Selden of Tithes, pag. 390.

Pragmaticus, A Practiser in the Law; Petty-fogger, or Splitter of Causes.

Pratum falcatibile, A Meadow or mowing Ground. Trin. 18 Edw. 1.

Pray in Aid, Or Aid-Prayer. See Aid.

Prayers of the Church, Are to be read in Churches by Clergymen, as directed by the Book of Common Prayer, under Penalties. Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2. 14 Car. 2. c. 4. Vide Common Prayer.

Preaching. Every beneficed Preacher, resident on his Benefice, and having no lawful Impediment, shall in his own Cure, or some neighbouring Church, preach one Sermon every Sunday of the Year: And if any beneficed Person be not allow'd to be a Preacher, he shall procure Sermons to be preached in his Cure by licensed Preachers; and every Sunday whereon there shall not be a Sermon, he or his Curate is to read some one of the Homilies: Also no Person not examined and approved by the Bishop, or not licensed to preach, shall expound the Scripture, &c. nor shall any be permitted to preach in any Church, but such as appear to be authorized thereto, by shewing their Licence; and Church-wardens are to note in a Book the Names of all strange Clergymen that preach in their Parish; to which Book every Preacher is to subscribe his Name, the Day when he preached, and the Name of the Bishop of whom he had Licence to preach. Can. 44, 45, 49. If any Parson licensed to preach, refuses to conform to the Laws Ecclesiastical, after Admonition, the Licence of every such Preacher shall be void: And if any Parson shall preach Doctrine contrary to the Word of God, or the Articles of Religion, Notice is to be given of it to the Bishop by the Church-wardens, &c. So likewise of Matters of Contention and impugning the Doctrine of other Preachers in the same Church; in which Case, the Preacher is not to be suffered to preach, except he faithfully promise to forbear all such Matter of Contention in the Church, until the Bishop hath taken farther Order therein. Can. 53, 54. No Minister shall preach or administer the Sacrament in any private House, unless in Times of Necessity, as in Cases of Sickness, &c. upon Pain of Suspension for the first Offence, and Excommunication for the Second; which last Punishment is also inflicted on such Ministers as meet in private Houses, to consult upon any Matter tending to the impeaching the Doctrine of the Church of England. Can. 71, &c.

Prebend, (Præbenda) Is the Portion which every Prebendary of a Cathedral Church receives in Right of his Place, for his Maintenance, as Canonica Portio is properly us'd for that Share, which every Canon receiveth yearly out of the common Stock of the Church. And Præbenda is a several Benefice rising from some Temporal Land, or some Church, appropriated towards the Maintenance of a Clerk, or Member of a Collegiate Church, and is commonly named of the Place whence the Profit arises. Præbenda, strictly taken, is that Maintenance which daily præbetur to another; but now it signifies the Rents and Profits belonging to the Church, divided into those Portions called Præbenda, and is a Right of Receiving the Profits for the Duty perform'd in the Church, sufficient for the Support of the Person in that Divine Office where he resides. Decret. Tit. De Præbend. Præbends are distinguished into those which are called Simple and Dignitary: A Simple Prebend hath no more than the Revenue for its Support; but a Prebend with Dignity hath always a Jurisdiction annexed, and for this Reason the Prebendary is stiled a Dignitary, and his Jurisdiction is gained by Prescription: And Præbends are some of them donative; and some are in the Gift of Laymen, but in such Case they must present the Prebendary to the Bishop, and the Dean and Chapter inducts him, and places him in a Stall in the Cathedral Church, and then he is said to have Locum in choro; at Westminster the King collates by Patent, and by Virtue thereof the Prebendary takes Possession, without Institution or Induction. 2 Roll. Abr. 356. As a Prebend is a Benefice without Cure, &c. a Prebend and a Parochial Benefice are not incompatible Promotions; for one Man may have both without any Avoidance of the First: But though Prebendaries are such as have no Cure of Souls, yet there is a sacred Charge incumbent upon them in those Cathedrals where they are resident, and they are obliged to Preaching by the Canons of the Church; and it is not lawful for a Prebendary to possess two Præbends in one and the same Collegiate Church. Roll. Abr. 361. Prebendaries are said to have an Estate in Fee-simple in Right of their Churches, as well as Bishops of their Bishopricks, Deans of their Deaneries, &c.

Prebendary, (Præbendarius) Is he that hath such a Præbend; so called, not as is said by some Writers, a Præbendo auxilium & consilium Episcopo, &c. but from Receiving the Præbend. And there is a Golden Præbendary of Hereford, otherwise term'd Præbendarius Episcopi, who is one of the twenty-eight minor Præbendaries there, and has ex Officio the first Canon's Place that falls; he was antiently Confessarius of the Cathedral Church, and to the Bishop, and had the Offerings at the Altar, whereby, in Respect of the Gold commonly given there, he had the Name of Golden Prebendary. Blount.

Præcaræ, Days Work that the Tenants of some Manors are bound to give the Lord in Harvest; which in some Places are called Bind-Days.

Precedents, Are Examples or Authorities to follow, in Judgments and Determinations in the Courts of Justice. Precedents have always been greatly regarded by the Judges and Sages of the Law: The Precedents of the Courts are said to be the Laws of the Courts; and the Court will not reverse a Judgment, contrary to many Precedents. 4 Rep. 93. Cro. Eliz. 65. 2 Lill. Abr. 344. But new Precedents are not considerable; Precedents without a judicial Decision upon Argument, are of no Moment; and an extrajudicial Opinion given in or out of Court, is no good Precedent. Vaugh. 169, 382, 399, 429. It has been held, that there can be no Precedent in Matters of Equity, as Equity is universal Truth; but according to the Lord Keeper Bridgman, Precedents are necessary in Equity to find out the Reasons thereof for a Guide; and besides the Authority of those that made them, it is to be supposed they did it upon great Consideration, and it would be strange to set aside what has been the Course for a long Series of Time; therefore Precedents were ordered. 1 Mod. 307. And says Hale Ch. Baron, If a Man doubt whether a Case be equitable, or no, in Prudence he will determine as the Precedents have been; especially if made by Men of good Authority and Learning. Ibid. If there be a Special Cause to alter an antient Precedent of a Writ, by Reason of any new Statute, &c. the Curfitors are not to keep to the old Form, but to alter it as the Case requires; to prevent Abatement of Writs, and Vexation to the People. Trin. 1650. See Innovation.

Præce partium, Is where a Suit is continued by the Prayer, or Assent of both Parties. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 27.

Precept, (Præceptum) Is generally taken for a Commandment in Writing sent out by a Justice of Peace, &c. for the Bringing of a Person or Records before him; of which divers are mentioned in the Table of the Register judicial.

Precontract, Is a Contract made before another Contract; chiefly applicable to Contracts of Marriage. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 25.

Prædial Tithes, (Decima Prædiales) Are those which are paid of Things arising and growing from the Ground only; as Corn, Hay, Herbs, &c. 2 Ed. 6. c. 13.

Pre-emption, (Pra-emptio) Signifies the first Buying of a Thing; and it was a Privilege allowed the King's Purveyor, to have the Choice and first Buying of Corn, and other Provisions for the King's House. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Prælate, (Prælatus) We commonly understand to be an Archbishop or Bishop. It is a Bishop, or one who hath a Dignity in the Church: And the learned Spelman saith, Prælati Ecclesiæ vocantur nedom superiores, ut Episcopi, sed etiam inferiores, ut Archidiaconi, Presbyteri, &c. Spelm.

Præmisses, Is that Part in the Beginning of a Deed whose Office is to express the Grantor and Grantee, and the Land or Thing granted. 5 Rep. 55. See Deed.

Prændit, (Fr. Prendre, i. e. Accipere) Is the Power or Right of Taking a Thing before it is offered; as it lies in Render, but not in Prender, &c. 1 Rep.

Prænder de Baron, Signifieth literally to take an Husband; and it is used for an Exception to disable a Woman from pursuing an Appeal of Murder, against one who killed her former Husband. S. P. C. lib. 3. c. 59.

Præpensed, (Præpensus) Forethought; as prepensed Malice is Malitia Præcogitata, which makes Killing Murder; and when a Man is slain upon a sudden Quarrel, if there were Malice prepensed formerly between the Parties, it is Murder, or as it is called by the Statute prepensed Murder. 12 H. 7. c. 7. 3 Inst. 51. See Murder.

Prærogative, (Prærogativa Regis, from Pra ante, & Rogare, to ask or demand) Is that Power, Pre-eminence, or Privilege which the King hath and claimeth over and beyond other Persons, and above the ordinary Course of the Common Law, in Right of his Crown: Set forth in the Statute called Prærogativa Regis. 17 Ed. 2. c. 1. and other Statutes. See King.

Prærogative of the Bishop of Canterbury or York, (Prærogativa Archiepiscopi Cantuariensis sive Eboracensis) Is an especial Pre-eminence that these Sees have in certain Cases above the other Bishops within their Province. De Antiq. Britan. Eccl. cap. 8. pag. 25.

Prærogative Court, (Curia Prærogativa Archiepiscopi Cant.) The Court wherein all Wills are proved and Administrations granted, that belong to the Archbishop by his Prærogative; that is, in Cases where the Deceased had Goods of any considerable Value out of the Diocese, wherein he died within the Archbishop's Province, and that Value is usually 5*l.* and above. And if any Contention arise between Two or more, touching any such Will or Administration, the Cause is properly to be debated and decided in this Court; the Judge whereof is termed Judex Curiae Prærogativæ Cantuariensis, the Judge of the Prærogative Court of Canterbury. Not only all Causes of Instance for Proving or Revoking such Wills as aforesaid, and for Granting or Revoking such Administrations; but also Causes concerning Accounts upon the same, and Legacies bequeathed in such Wills are to be tried in the Prærogative Court: Though of late such Legacies are suffered by this Court to be sued for in the inferior Ecclesiastical Court, under whose Jurisdiction the Executor dwells. 1 Vent. 233. Wood's Inst. 502. Appeal lies from this Court to the King in Chancery; who appoints Delegates, &c. 25 H. 8. c. 19. Though it is said if the Delegates revoke a Will, &c. They cannot grant Letters of Administration; for their Power is to hear and determine the Appeal. 2 Bulstr. 2. Roll. Abr. 233. The Archbishop hath Probate of every Bishop's Testament, &c. though he hath not Bona Notabilia out of the Diocese: So where a Person dies beyond Sea. 4 Inst. 335. Vide Bona Notabilia.

Prærogative Court of York. The Archbishop of York hath the like Court, but inferior to that of Canterbury in Power and Profit; which is called his Ex-bequer.

Præbiter, A Priest; an Elder or honourable Person. Isidore, lib. 7.

Præbyterium, Presbytery; or that Part of the Church where Divine Offices are perform'd, applied to the Choir or Chancel, because it was the Place appropriated to the Bishop, Priests and other Clergy, while the Laity were confined fin'd to the Body of the Church. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 243.

Presbyterian, A Sectarist or Dissenter from the Church. 13 Car. 2.

Prescription, (Prescriptio) Is a Title acquired by Use and Time, and allowed by the Law; as when a Man claims any Thing because he, his Ancestors, or they whose Estate he hath, have had or used it all the Time, whereof no Memory is to the contrary: Or it is where for Continuance of Time, ultra Memoriam Hominis, a particular Person hath a particular Right against another. Kitch. 104. 1 Inst. 114. 4 Rep. 32. Prescriptions are properly Personal, and therefore are always alledged in the Person of him who prescribes, viz. That he, his Ancestors, or all those whose Estate he hath, &c. or of a Body Politick or Corporation, they and their Predecessors, &c. Also a Parson may prescribe, quod ipse & predecessores sui, and all they whose Estate, &c. for there is a perpetual Estate, and a perpetual Succession, and the Successor hath the very same Estate which his Predecessor had, as that continues, though the Person alters, like the Case of the Ancestor and the Heir. 3 Salk. 279. There is a Difference between a Prescription, Custom, and Usage: Prescription hath Respect to a certain Person, who by Intendment may have Continuance for ever; as for Instance; he and all they whose Estate he hath in such a Thing, this is a Prescription: But Custom is local, and always applied to a certain Place, as Time out of Mind there has been such a Custom in such a Place, &c. And Prescription belongeth to one or a few only; but Custom is common to all: Now Usage differs from both, for that may be either to Persons or Places; as to Inhabitants of a Town, to have a Way, &c. 2 Nels. Abr. 1277. Prescription is to be Time out of Mind; though it is not the Length of Time, that begets the Right of Prescription, nothing being done by Time, although every Thing is done in Time, but it is a Presumption in Law, that a Possession cannot continue so long quiet and not interrupted, if it was against Right or injurious to another. 3 Salk. 278. A Prescription cannot be annexed to any Thing but an Estate in Fee, which must be set forth; but it is always applied to incorporeal Inheritances: One cannot make Title to Land by Prescription; but only to Rent or Profit out of Land. 2 Mod. 318. 4 Rep. 31. A Person may make Title by Prescription, to an Office, a Fair, Market, Toll, Way, Water, Rent, Common, Park, Warren, Franchise, Court-Leet, Waifs, Estrays, Wreck, &c. But nothing may be prescribed, which cannot be raised by Grant at this Day, and a Prescription must not be laid in an Uncertainty; no Person can prescribe against an Act of Parliament, or against the King, where he hath a certain Estate and Interest against the Publick Good, Religion, &c. Nor can one Prescription be pleaded against another, unless the First is answered or traversed; or where one may stand with the other. Lutw. 381. Raym. 232. 2 Roll. Abr. 264. 2 Inst. 167. 7 Rep. 28. Cro. Car. 432. 1 Bulstr. 115. 2 Lill. 346. Tenants in Fee-simple are to prescribe in their own Name; and Tenants for Life, or Years, &c. though they may not prescribe in their own Names, yet they may in the Name of him who hath Fee: And where a Person would have a Thing that lies in Grant by Prescription, he must prescribe in himself, and his Ancestors, whose Heir he is by Descent; not in himself and those whose Estate, &c. (unless the Que Estate is but a Conveyance to the Thing claimed by Prescription) for he cannot have their Estate that lies in Grant without Deed, which ought to be shewed to the Court. 1 Inst. 113. Wood's Inst. 297. A Copyholder, by Reason of the Baseness of his Tenure, cannot lay a Prescription in himself and his Ancestors; but he may prescribe in the Name of the Lord of the Manor, that the Lord and his Ancestors have had Common, &c. for themselves and Tenants, &c. And this serves where Persons cannot prescribe in their own Name, or of any certain Person; Parishioners cannot generally prescribe, but they may alledge a Custom; and Inhabitants may prescribe in a Matter of Easement, Way to a Church, Burying-place, &c. 2 Saund. 325. 1 Lev. 253. Cro. Eliz. 441. Cro. Car. 419. 2 Roll. 290. To lay a Prescription for Common, a Man must shew, that he and his Ancestors, or all those whose Estate he hath, have Time out of Mind of Man had and used to have Common of Pasture in such a Place, being the Land of another, &c. And as a Prescription is a Title or Claim of a real Interest of Profit in the Land of another Person, it must be pleaded according to certain Rules; and they are not like Customs or improper Prescriptions, that are by Way of Discharge, or for Easements, or for Matters of personal Exemption or Privilege. Wood's Inst. 298, 299. A Prescription may be laid in several Persons, where it tends only to Matters of Easement or Discharge; though not where it goes to Matter of Interest or Profit in alieno solo, for that is a Title, and the Title of one doth not concern the other; therefore several Men having several Estates, cannot join in making a Prescription. 1 Mod. 74. 3 Mod. 250. The Word Easement is a Genus to several Species of Liberties, which one may have in the Soil of another, without claiming any Interest in the Land it self; but where the Thing was set forth in a Prescription to catch Fish in the Water of another Man, &c. and no Instance could be given of a Prescription for such a Liberty by the Word Easement, a Rule was made to set the Prescription right, and to try the Merits. 4 Mod. 362. In Trespass for Breaking the Plaintiff's Close, the Defendant prescribed, that the Inhabitants of such a Place, Time out of Mind, had used to dance there, at all Times of the Year, for their Recreation, and so justified; and Issue being taken upon this Prescription, the Defendant had a Verdict; it was objected against it, that a Prescription to dance in the Freehold of another, and spoil his Grass, was ill, especially as laid in the Defendant's Plea, viz. At all Times of the Year, and not at seasonable Times, and for all the Inhabitants; who, though they may prescribe in Easements which are necessary, as a Way to a Church, &c. they cannot in Easements for Pleasure only: But adjudg'd, that the Prescription is good, Issue being taken upon it, and found for the Defendant; although it might have been ill on a Demurrer. 1 Lev. 176. 2 Nels. 1280. A Custom that the Farmers of such a Farm have always found Ale, &c. to such a Value at Perambulations, was held naught; because it is no more than a Prescription in Occupiers, which is not good in Matter to charge the Land. 2 Lev. 164. Prescription by the Inhabitants of a Parish to dig Gravel in such a Pit, which was the Soil of W. R. it was doubted whether this was good, or not, though it was to repair the Highway; but the Inhabitants may prescribe for a Way, and by

by Consequence for necessary Materials to repair it. 2 Lutw. 1346. A Defendant pleaded, that within such a Parish, all Occupiers of a certain Close habent, & habere consueverunt, a Way leading over the Plaintiff's Close, to the Defendant's House; this was held to be ill, for 'tis not like a Prescription to a Way to the Church or Market, which are necessary, & pro bono publico. 2 Ventr. 186. Where a Man prescribes for a Way to such a Close, he must shew what Interest he hath in the Close: Aliter if he prescribes for a Way to such a Field; because that may be a common Field by Intendment. Latch. 160. The Plaintiff declared, that the Occupiers of the adjoining Field have, Time out of Mind, repaired the Fences, which being out of Repair, his the Plaintiff's Beasts escaped out of his own Ground and fell into a Pit; it is good, without shewing any Estate in the Occupiers, but it had not been so if the Defendant had prescribed. 1 Ventr. 264. Prescription, &c. to take Underwood growing on the Lands of another, to make the Hedges there, is not good. 1 Leon. 313. A Man may claim a Fold-course, and exclude the Owner of the Soil by Prescription. 1 Saund. 353. But a Diversity has been taken where a Prescription takes away the whole Interest of the Owner of the Land; and where a particular Profit is restrained: In one Case it is good, and in the other it is void. 1 Leon. 11. If a Person prescribes for Common Appurtenant, 'tis ill, unless it be for Cattle Levant and Couchant, &c. And the Reason is, because by such a Prescription the Party claims only some Part of the Pasture, and the Quantum is ascertained by the Levancy and Couchancy, the Rest being left for the Owner of the Soil; and therefore if he who thus prescribes, should put in more Cattle than are Levant and Couchant on his Tenement, he is a Trespasser. Noy 145. 2 Saund. 324. Prescription to have Common for a Cow and a Half, has been held good; and it shall be intended that two Men had but one Cow originally. Sid. 226. In a Prescription to have Common, the Jury found it to be Paying every Year a Penny: Here the Prescription is intire, whereof the Payment of one Penny is Parcel; which ought to be intirely alledged in the Prescription in the Plea, or it will not be good. Cro. Eliz. 563, 564. But where the Payment is collateral from the Prescription, a Prescription may be good without alledging it. Cro. Eliz. 405. Upon the Pleadings in a Cause, it was a Question, whether a Toll, independent of Markets and Fairs, might be claim'd by Prescription, without shewing that the Subject hath some Benefit; and some Arguments were brought for it, from an Authority in Dyer 552. Though by Holt Ch. Just. this Prescription cannot be good, because there was no Recompence for it; and every Prescription to charge the Subject with a Duty, must import some Benefit to him who pays it; or else some Reason must be shewed why the Duty is claimed. 4 Mod. 319. A Court-Leet is derived out of the Hundred; and if a Man claims a Title to the Leet, he may prescribe that he and his Ancestors, and all those whose Estate he hath in the Hundred, Time out of Mind had a Leet. 1 Inst. 125. If a Court held by Prescription is granted and confirmed by the King's Letters Patent; this doth not destroy the Prescription, but 'tis said the Court may be held by Prescription as before. 2 Roll. Abr. 271. And a Grant may enure as a Confirmation of a Prescription; and the Prescription continue unaltered by a new Charter, &c. where the Charter is not contrary to the Prescription. Moor 818, 830. But in some Cases it is intended, that a Prescription shall begin by Grant; and as to Prescriptions in general, the Law supposes a Descent, or Purchase originally. Cro. Eliz. 709. 1 Inst. 113. Every Prescription is taken strictly: And a Man ought not to prescribe to that which the Law of common Right gives. 3 Leon. 13. Noy 20. A Prescription must have a lawful Commencement, and peaceable Possession and Time are inseparably incident to it. 1 Inst. 113. Though a Title gain'd by Custom or Prescription, will not be lost by Interruption of the Possession for ten or twenty Years; but it may be lost by Interruption in the Right. 1 Inst. 114. 2 Inst. 653. Prescriptions for repairing Highways. See Highways.

Prescriptions against Actions and Statutes. The 7 Hen. 8. ordains, that four Years being past after the Offence committed, provided against by this Statute, no Suit can be commenced. By 31 Eliz. c. 5. all Actions, &c. brought upon Statutes, the Penalty whereof belongs to the King, shall be brought within two Years after the Offence done, or shall be void. And the Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 1. enacts, that Offences comprised in that Statute, &c. are inquirable and determinable before Justices of Peace and Assize, within a Year and a Day after the Offence, &c. So that whosoever offendeth against any of these Statutes, and escapes unquestion'd for four Years, Two, or One Year, may be said to prescribe against the Actions and Punishments ordained by those Statutes: And there are other Statutes which have the like Appointments or Limitations of Time, whence may arise the like Prescription and Bar. 4 Rep. 84. 2 Inst. 652. Vide Action.

Prescription by the Ecclesiastical Law, as to Tithes, &c. See Modus Decimandi.

Presentation, (Presentatio) Is properly the Act of a Patron, offering his Clerk to the Bishop of the Diocese, to be instituted in a Church or Benefice of his Gift, which is void. 2 Lill. Abr. 351. Antiently the Presentation to all Churches was said to be in the Bishop of common Right, 'till since it has been indulg'd to the Laity, to encourage them to build and endow Churches; and now if the Patron neglects to present to the Church, then this Right returns to the Bishop by Lapse, &c. 1 Nelf. Abr. An Alien born can't present to a Benefice in his own Right; for if he purchase an Advowson, and the Church becomes void, the King shall present after Office found that the Patron is an Alien. 2 Nelf. 1290. And by Statute no Alien shall purchase a Benefice in this Realm; nor occupy the same, without the King's Licence, on Pain of a Premunire. 7 R. 2. c. 12. Papists are disabled to present to Benefices, and the Universities are to present, &c. But a Popish Recusant may grant away his Patronage to another, who may make Presentation, where there is no Fraud. Stat. 3 Jac. 1. 1 W. & M. 1 Jon. 19. All Persons that have Ability to purchase or grant, have likewise Ability to present to vacant Benefices: But a Dean and Chapter cannot present the Dean; nor may a Clergyman who is Patron present himself, though he may pray to be admitted by the Ordinary, and the Admission shall be good. An Infant may present of whatsoever Age, because Guardians have not Power to do it in Right of the Heir; a Guardian in Socage cannot present to a Church, by the Law he being not to meddle with any Thing but for what what he may account, which he cannot do for a Presentation, by Reason he is to take nothing for it: If a Feme Covert hath Title to present, the Presentation ought to be in the Name of both Husband and Wife, and not be by her alone; or he may present in his own Name during the Coverture: Coparceners are but as one Patron, and ought to agree in the Presentation of one Person; if they can't agree, the Eldest shall present first alone, and the Bishop is obliged to admit her Clerk, and afterwards the others in their Order shall prefer their Clerks; Jointenants and Tenants in Common must regularly join in Presentation, and if either present alone, the Bishop may refuse his Clerk, as he may also the Clerk presented by the major Part of them; but if there are two Jointenants of the next Avoidance, one of them may present the other, and two Jointenants may present a Third, but not a Stranger: The next Presentation was granted to four Persons, & eorum cuilibet conjunctim & divisim, &c. And the Church becoming void, one of the Grantees alone presented one of the others; and it was adjudg'd, that this Presentation by one was good: When an aggregate Corporation presents, it must be under their common Seal, and by the true Name of their Corporation: The King may present by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, and by the Words, viz. Damus & concedimus; for this amounts to a Warrant for the Bishop to admit the Clerk; it is said the King may present by Word, or in Writing under any Seal, who cannot do any other legal Act but by Matter of Record; and in the Opinion of some, the King may present to a Church by his Letter sent to the Ordinary, to institute and induct such a One his Clerk to the Living; but the most secure Way is to have a Presentation under the Great Seal: If a Rector is made Bishop, the King shall present to the Rectory, unless he grant to the Bishop before he is consecrated, a Dispensation to hold it with his Bishoprick; and if an Incumbent of a Church is made a Bishop, and the King presents or grants that he shall hold the Church in Commendam, which is quasi a Presentation, a Grantee of the next Avoidance or Presentation hath lost it, the King having the next Presentation: If the King do present to a Church by Lapse, where he ought to present Pleno jure, and as Patron of the Church, such a Presentation is not good; for the King is deceived in his Grant, by Mistaking his Title, which may be prejudicial to him, the Presenting by Lapse intitling only that Presentation: The Lord Chancellor presents to the King's Benefices under 20 l. a Year, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 354. 3 Inst. 156. 1 Inst. 186. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1288, 1290. 2 Lill. 351. The King may repeal a Presentation, before his Clerk is inducted; and this he may do by Granting the Presentation to another, which without any farther Signification of his Mind is a Revocation of the first Presentation. Dyer 293, 360. A Patron may revoke his Presentation before Institution, but not afterwards, a Presentation being no more than a Power given to the Ordinary to admit the Clerk; and if the Patron die before Induction, his Presentation is determined: But this is in the Case of the King; for in the Case of a common Person, if he die after Institution, and before Induction, the Presentation is not determined by his Death. Latch. 191. Dyer 348. If two Patrons present their Clerks to a Church, the Bishop is to determine who shall be admitted by a Fus Patro- natus, &c. And two Patrons pretending a Title to present, one of them presented W. R. but the Bishop refused Institution; whereupon he sued in the Court of Audience of the Archbishop, and had an Inhibition to that Bishop, and upon that Suit he obtained an Institution by the Archbishop, on which he was inducted; afterwards the Bishop, who was inhibited, granted Institution upon the Presentation of the other Patron, and his Clerk was likewise inducted; and thereupon W. R. who had been instituted and inducted before, on a Motion procured a Prohibition, because by the first Induction the Incumbency was determined: So that quoad the Incumbency, the Prohibition was granted; but not as to the Contempt of the Ordinary after he had been inhibited. Moor 499. The Father was incumbent, and after his Death the Patron presented his Son, who was refused by the Bishop, because by the Canon Law Filius non potest succedere patri in eadem Ecclesia, and the Patron presented another Person; then the Son, who was first presented, obtained a Dispensation non obstante the Canon; but the Ordinary admitted the second Presentee, who was also instituted and inducted; thereupon the Son sued him and the Bishop in the Spiritual Court, but a Prohibition was granted. Latch. 191. A Clerk may be refused by the Bishop, if the Patron is excommunicate; or if the Clerk is not Persona Idonea, which includes Ability of Learning, and Honesty in Conversation, &c. But in a Quare Impedit brought against the Bishop for Refusal of a Clerk, he must shew the Cause of his Refusal specially and directly; and because the Clerk is of ill Life, or a Schismatick in general, is not sufficient, without shewing what Crimes, or Sort of Schism he has been guilty of: And the Temporal Court then will judge whether the Cause be just or not; and if the Party denies the same, the Court may write to the Metropolitan to examine the Matter, and certify it; and tho' the Matter be of a Spiritual Nature, it shall be tried by a Jury: For whether the Cause be Temporal or Spiritual, the Examination of the Bishop concludes not the Clerk; he is Judge of the Ability, but not the ultimate Judge: But in Case of Refusal for Insufficiency in Learning, it hath been adjudg'd, that the Ordinary is not accountable to any Temporal Judge; and that in Literatura minus sufficiens, &c. is a good Plea, without setting forth the Kind of Learning, or Degrees of it. 5 Rep. 58. 2 Inst. 631. 3 Lev. 311. Show. 88. Wood's Inst. 32, 35. That the Presentee has a Benefice already, is no good Cause of Refusal, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 355. If the Bishop refuses to admit the Clerk presented, he must give Notice of his Refusal, with the Cause of it forthwith; and on such Notice the Patron must present another Clerk, within Six Months from the Avoidance, if he thinks the Exception against his first Clerk contains sufficient Causes of Refusal; but if not, he may bring his Quare Impedit against the Bishop. 2 Roll. Abr. 364. And where a Church becomes void by Deprivation by the Canon Law, or Resignation, the Patron must have Notice from the Ordinary, to present another Person: But if the Church becomes void by the Act of God, as Death of the Incumbent; or by Creation, or Cession, &c. the Patron is bound to take Notice himself of the Avoidance, and to present, &c. Wood's Inst. 154. If a Defendant, or any Stranger, presents a Clerk pending a Quare Impedit, and afterwards the Plaintiff obtains a Verdict and Judgment, he cannot by Virtue of that Judgment remove him who was thus presented; but he is to bring a Scire facias against him, to shew Cause Quare Executionem non habet; and then if it be found that he had no Title, he shall be amoved: Now the Way to prevent such a Presentation, is to take out a Ne admittas to the Bishop; and then the Writ Quare Incumbavit lies, by Virtue whereof the Incumbent shall be amoved, and put to his Quare Impedit, let his Title be what it will; but if a Ne admittas be not taken out, and another Incumbent should come in by good Title pendente lite, he shall hold it. Sid. 93. 2 Cro. 93. A Man must set forth a Presentation in himself, or those under whom he claims, in a Quare Impedit; and it ought to be alledged in him that hath the Inheritance: And when Six Months pass hanging the Writ, &c. by the Disturbance of any one, so that the Bishop hath a Right to present by Lapse, Damages shall be recovered by two Years Value of the Church, if the Person lose his Presentation; and if he recovers his Presentation within the Six Months, Damages to Half a Year's Value, &c. 2 Inst. 362. Vaugh. 7, 57. Cro. Eliz. 518. 13 Ed. 1. c. 5. Where a Person gets the Fee to his Presentation, which is his Title, he must in his Declaration alledge the Presentation to be Tempore pacis, or it may be intended to be Tempore belli, and then 'tis no Title; but where the bare Presentation is not his Title, but only in Pursuance of a former Right, in such Case he may alledge it generally: As for Instance; where he declares that A. B. was seised of the Manor of D. as of Fee, to which an Advowson was appendant, and that being so seised he presented W. R. and afterwards granted the next Avoidance to the Plaintiff; this is good, for here the Plaintiff shews a precedent Right, and doth not make the Presentation it self his Title. 1 Mod. 130. 2 Mod. 183. 3 Salk. 280. If a Church becomes void in the Life-time of a Bishop, he cannot devise the next Presentation; but if the Bishop, or any Incumbent of a Church, hath the Advowson in Fee, and then either of them deviseth, that upon the next Avoidance his Executor shall present; this is good, though they devise the Inheritance to another. Dyer 285. When a Bishop hath a Presentation in Right of his Bishoprick, and dies, his Executor, nor Heir, shall not have the void Turn; but the King in whose Hands are the Temporalities, and he hath a Right to present upon an Avoidance after the Seizure, and upon the Death of the Bishop: Tho' where an Incumbent was seised of the Advowson in Fee, and died, upon a Question who should present either his Heir or Executor, the Advowson not descending to the Heir till after the Death of his Ancestor, and immediately upon his Death the Church was void, and therefore that Avoidance was vested in the Executor; it was adjudg'd, that the Heir shall present, because the Descent to him, and the Avoidance to the Executor, happened at one and the same Instant, and where two Titles concur in an Instant, the elder Title shall be preferred. 3 Lev. 47. A Grant was made of the next Presentation to a Church, the Grantee died, and then the Church became void; and it was held, that the Executor of the Grantee shall have the Presentation as a Chattel. Glanvil, lib. 6. c. 7. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1286. But in Quare Impedit, the Defendant pleaded, that the Patron granted the next Presentation to B. B. who died, and made his Executor, who presented the Defendant; Issue was taken upon Non concessit, and the Jury found, that the Patron granted the Presentation to B. B. during his Life, and that he died before the Church became void; adjudg'd, that this was not an absolute Grant of the next Presentation, but restrain'd during the Life of the Grantee, wherefore it shall not go to the Executor, unless the Church become void in the Life-time of the Testator. Cro. Car. 363. A Tenant in Tail of an Advowson, and his Son and Heir joined in a Grant of the next Presentation, the Tenant in Tail died; this Grant was held void as to the Son and Heir, because he had nothing in the Advowson at the Time that he joined with his Father in the Grant. Hob. 45. By Last Will and Testament, the Right of Presenting to the next Avoidance, may be devised to any Person; and by the Deed the next Avoidance of a Church may be granted; where the Church is then full; also whilst a Church is void, the next Avoidance that shall happen, or the Inheritance of the Advowson may be granted away, and by Deed or Grant, the Right of Presenting will pass: But the void Turn it self is not grantable by any common Person, though it may be granted by the King, and be good; for that it is a meer Spiritual Thing annex'd to the Person of the Patron, and during the Time of the Vacation 'tis a Thing in Right and in Action, the Fruit and Execution of the Advowson, not the Advowson it self. 2 Cro. 371. Clergym. Law 154. As a void Turn is not grantable; so if Two have a Grant made to them of a next Avoidance, and after the Church is void, one doth release all his Right and Title which he had in the Advowson and Presentation to his Companion, who presents to the Church, this Presentation is void; because after the Avoidance, the Interest was attached in both, and both had a Power to present, which could no more be released by one to the other, than it could be granted in that Manner, being but a Right, and not a Chattel in Possession: But a Release in this Case may be good, if it be made before the Church is void, and the Party to whom made may present, &c. 1 And. 223. 3 Cro. 173. Moor 467. If a Presentation it self bears Date whilst the Church is full of another Clerk, it is void: And where Two or more have a Title to present by Turns, one of them presents, and his Clerk is admitted, instituted and inducted, and is afterwards deprived for some Crime; he shall not present again, but that Presentation shall serve his Turn: Though where the Admission and Institution of his Clerk is void, there the Turn shall not be serv'd, as if after Induction he neglects to read the thirty-nine Articles, &c. his Institution is void by the Stat. 13 Eliz. and the Patron may present again. F. N. B. 33. 5 Rep. 102. The Right of Presenting to a Church, 'tis said, may pass from one seised of the same, by the Patron's Acknowledging of a Statute, &c. which being extended, if the Church doth become void, during the Conussee's Estate, the Conussee may present. Owen 49. A Presentation doth not carry with it the Formality of a Deed; but is in the Nature of a Letter Missive, by which the Clerk is offered to the Bishop; and it passeth no Interest, as a Grant doth, being no more than a Recommendation of a Clerk to the Ordinary to be admitted. Young Clergym. Lawyer 17, 18. But where a Plaintiff declared upon a Grant of the next Presentation, and on Oyer of the Deed it appeared to be only a Letter written by the Patron to the Father of the Plaintiff, that he had given his Son the next Presentation; adjudg'd, that it would not pass by such Letter, without a formal Deed. Owen 47.

Form of a Presentation to a Benefice.

Reverendo in Christo Patri & Domino Domino B. Permissione Divina Episcopo S. &c. ejus vel in Absentia Vicario suo in Spiritualibus Generali, aut alii cuicunque in hac parte sufficientem Autoritatem habenti: Prænobilis A. B. Baro de, &c. verus & indubitatus Patronus Rectorie Ecclesie Parochialis de, &c. Salutem, in Domino Sempiternam. Clericum, Artium Magistrum, Paternitati vestre Præsentem, humiliter supplicans ut præfatum E. F. ad dictam Ecclesiam admittere, ipsumque in Rectoriam ejusdem Ecclesie Institui & Induci facere, cum suis juribus & pertinentiis Universis cateraque; omnia & singula peragere & adimplere in hac parte, quæ ad vestrum munus Episcopale pertinere videbuntur, dignemini cum favore. In cujus rei Testimonium, his Præsentibus sigillum meum apposui, dat' Die, &c. Anno Regni, &c. Annoq; Dom. 1727.

A Grant of the next Presentation to a Church.

TO all to whom these Presents shall come, A. B. of, &c. Esq; the True and undoubted Patron of the Rectory or Parish-Church of D. in the County and Diocese of, &c. sendeth greeting. Know ye, that the said A. B. for divers good Causes and Considerations him thereunto moving, hath given, granted and confirmed, and by these Presents, doth for him and his Heirs, give, grant and confirm unto C. D. of, &c. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, the First and next Advowson, Presentation, free Disposition and Right of Patronage, of, and to the Parsonage, Rectory, or Parish-Church of D. aforesaid, with all its Appurtenances, with full Power and Authority to and for the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, to present a Learned and fit Person to the said Parsonage, Rectory, or Parish-Church, with all its Rights and Appurtenances, whensoever the same shall first and next happen to become void, by the Death, Resignation, Cession, or Deprivation of E. F. the present Incumbent, or otherwise howsoever; and to do and perform all and every other Act and Acts, Thing and Things whatsoever, in order to the same, in as full and ample Manner, to all Intents and Purposes, as the said A. B. or his Heirs might, or hereafter could have done, if this present Grant had not been made. In Witness, &c.

Right of Presentation may be forfeited in several Cases: As by Attainder of the Patron, or by Outlawry; and though the Outlawry be reversed, where the Advowson is forfeited by the Outlawry, and the Church becomes void after, the Presentation is vested in the Crown; but if at the Time of the Outlawry the Church was void, then the Presentation is forfeited as a Chattel, and upon Reversing the same, the Party shall be restored to it. By Appropriation without Licence from the Crown, Right of Presentation may be forfeited; though the Inheritance in this Case is not forfeited, only the King shall have the Presentation in Nature of a Distress, 'till the Party hath paid a Fine for his Contempt. By Aliena- tion in Fee of the Advowson, by a Grantee for Life of the next Avoidance, a Presentation is forfeited; and after such Alienation the Grantor may present, but then he must enter for the Forfeiture of the Grantee in the Life-time of the Incumbent, to determine his Estate before the Presentation vests in him on the Incumbent's Death. And by Simony it may be likewise forfeited and lost, where any Person for Money, &c. shall present any one to a Benefice. Moor 269. Plowd. 499. 2 Roll. Abr. 352. Stat. 31 Eliz. See Advowson, Patron, Simony, &c.

Presentee, The Clerk presented to a Church by the Patron: And our Statutes mention the King's Presentee, that is he whom the King presents to a Benefice. 13 R. 2. c. 1.

Presentia, Presents, so call'd, because they are given Præsentim: And they differ from Munera, which are Gifts sent to the Person. Matt. Paris. Anno 1170.

Presentment, Is a meer Denunciation of Jurors, or some Officers, as a Justice of Peace, Constable, &c. (without any Information) of an Offence inquirable in the Court whereunto it is presented. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 4. cap. 5. Or Presentment is an Information made by the Jury in a Court, before a Judge who hath Authority to punish any Offence done contrary to the Law: It is that which a Grand Jury finds and presents to the Court, without any Bill or Indictment delivered; and it is afterwards reduced into the Form of an Indictment. 2 Inst. 739. The Presentment is drawn up in English by the Jury, in a short Note, for Instructions to draw the Indictment by; and differs from an Indictment, in that an Indictment is drawn up at large in Latin, and brought ingrossed to the Grand Jury to find. 2 Lill. Abr. 353. There are Presentments of Justices of Peace in their Sessions, of Offences against Statutes, in order to their Punishment in superior Courts; and Presentments taken before Commissioners of Sewers, &c. But a Presentment of Commissioners of Sewers was quashed, because it did not appear in the Presentment by what Authority the Commissioners did sit who took the Presentment, or that any of them were of the Quorum, as directed by Statute. Hill. 1649. And Presentments are made in Courts-Leet and Courts-Baron, before the Stewards thereof; and in the latter of Surrenders, Grants, &c. Also by Constables, Church-wardens, Surveyors of the Highways, &c. of Things belonging to their Offices.

Præses, (Præses) Is used for the King's Lieutenant in any Province, as President of Wales, &c.

Præses of the Council, Relates to the Function of the Person, and is the Fourth great Officer of State: He is as ancient as the Reign of K. John; and hath sometimes been called Principalis Consiliarius, and other Times Capitalis Consiliarius. The Office of President of the Council was ever granted by Letters Patents under the Great Seal durante beneplacito; and this Officer is to attend upon the King, to propose Business at the Council Table, and report to his Majesty the Transactions there. 21 H. 8. c. 8.

Præses of the Weavers. There is Mention of a President of Weavers of Kidderminster-Stuffs. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 1.

Præst Is taken for a Duty paid by Sheriffs upon their Accounts in the Exchequer; or for Money left or remaining in their Hands. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 4.

Prest-Money, Is so term'd from the Fr. Preſt, i. e. Promptus, Expeditus; for that it binds those that receive it to be ready at all Times appointed, commonly meant of Soldiers. 18 H. 6. c. 19. 7 H. 7. c. 1. 3 H. 8. c. 5.

Prestation-Money, (Præſtatio, a Performing or Paying) Is a Sum of Money paid by Archdeacons, and other Clergymen, yearly to their Bishop, pro exteriori Jurisdictione. And Præſtatio was antiently used for other Payments; and sometimes for Purveyance. — Et quieti ſint a Præſtatione Muragii, &c. Chart. Hen. 7.

Presumption, (Præſumptio) Signifies an Opinion or Belief of a Thing; and is of three Sorts: 1. Violent Presumption, which is many Times plena Probatio; as if one be found to be killed in a House, and a Man is observ'd to come out of that House with a bloody Sword or Knife, no other Person being at that Time in the House; this is a violent Presumption, that that Man was the Murderer, and passeth for Proof. 2. Probable Presumption, which is of some Weight, though it hath but a small Effect. 3. Light Presumption, Levis seu temeraria, which proveth not at all. 1 Inst. 6. If all the Witnesses to a Charter of Feoffment or other Deed be dead, then violent Presumption, which stands for a Proof, is continual and quiet Possession: If a Defendant pleads Payment to a Bond, and it appears that the Debt is of very long standing by the Bond, and it hath not been demanded, nor Interest paid for many Years, it shall be presumed that the Money is paid, though the Plaintiff hath the Bond in his Custody: Also if a Rent be behind and in Arrear for twenty Years, and the Landlord gives a Receipt for the last Year that is due, all the Rest is presumed to be paid, &c. 1 Inst. 6, 373. Wood's Inst. 599. Where divers Houses are let to a Man by one Lease, the Court will presume that the Lessee is in Possession of them all, if he be in Possession of any one of them, and the contrary doth not appear to the Court: And so in other Cases, tho' Presumption is what may be doubted of, yet it shall be accounted Truth, if the contrary be not proved. 2 Lill. Abr. 354. But no Presumptions ought to be admitted against the Presumptions of Law; and a Wrong shall never be presumed. 1 Inst. 232, 373. Presumptions and Suspitions in Criminal Cases are Causes of Arrests, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 76.

Presumptio Was antiently taken for Intrusion, or the unlawful Seizing of any Thing. Leg. H. 1. cap. 11.

Pretender. The pretended Prince of Wales is attainted by Statute 13 W. 3. c. 3. And the Lord Treasurer, &c. out of the Money granted by Parliament is impowered to give 100,000*l.* Reward to any one that shall seize the Pretender, when he shall Land or attempt to Land in England, &c. 1 Geo. Stat. 1.

Pretended Right, (Fus Prætenſum) Is where one is in Possession of Land, and another who is out of Possession claims and sues for it; here the pretended Right or Title is said to be in him who so claims and sues for the same. Blount, Pretium Sepulchri, Is applied to those Goods which accrue to the Church when a Corps is buried. Irish Can. Lib. 19. cap. 6.

Pride-gavel, (From Prid, the last Syllable of Lamprid, and Gavel, a Rent or Tribute) In the Manor of Rodeley in the County of Gloucester is a Rent paid to this Day to the Lord, by certain Tenants, in Duty and Acknowledgment to him for their Liberty and Privilege of Fishing for Lampreys or Lamprids in the River Severn. Tayl. Hist. Gavelk. 112.

Priests, In general Signification are any Ministers of a Church; but in our Law, this Word is particularly used for Ministers of the Church of Rome. Priests saying Mass shall forfeit 200 Marks, by Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 1. And Persons apprehending a Romish Priest, saying Mass, shall have 100*l.* from the Sheriff of the County, to be paid within four Months after Conviction of the Offence, &c. And such Priests, &c. keeping Schools, are liable to perpetual Imprisonment. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 4. See Jesuit.

Primage, Is a Duty at the Water-side, due to the Master and Mariners of a Ship; to the Master for the Use of his Cables and Ropes, to discharge the Goods of the Merchant, and to the Mariners for Loading and Unloading of the Ship or Vessel in any Port or Haven; it is usually about 12*d.* per Tun, or Six pence per Pack or Bale, according to Custom. Merch. Dict.

Primicerius, The First of any Degree of Men; and the Nobility of England, were antiently call'd Primicerios totius Anglia. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 838.

Primier Seisin, (Prima Seisina) The first Possession. It was a Branch of the King's Royal Prerogative, whereby he had the first Possession or Profits for a Year of all Lands and Tenements holden of him in Capite, whereof his Tenant died seised in Fee, his Heir being then at full Age; and this the King antiently took, until the Heir, if he were of Age, did his Homage, and if under Age 'till he were so: But since the Taking away of the Tenure in Capite by Statute, all Charges of Primier Seisin are of Consequence taken away also. Staundf. Prærog. 11. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Primier Serjeant, The King's first Serjeant at Law.

Primo Beneficio, The first Benefice in the King's Gift, &c. See Beneficio.

Primogeniture, (Primogenitura) Is the Title of an elder Brother, in Right of his Birth: The Reason of which is, Qui prior est Tempore, Potior est Jure. Co. Litt. And according to Dodderidge, it was antiently ordained, that all Knights Fees should come to the eldest Son by Succession of Heritage, that he succeeding his Ancestors in the whole Inheritance might be the better enabled to maintain the Wars against the King's Enemies, and for Defence of the Realm: And that the Sorage Tenure should be partible among the Male Children, to inable them to increase into many Families for the better Furtherance and Maintenance of Husbandry. Leg. Alfred. Dodd. Treat. Nobil. 119.

Prince, (Princeps) Is sometimes taken at large for the King himself; but more properly it is the King's eldest Son, who is called Prince of Wales. It is said by some Writers, that the King's eldest Son is Prince of Wales by Nativity; but others say, the eldest Son of our King is born Duke of Cornwall, and afterwards he is created Prince of Wales, though from the Day of his Birth he is stiled Prince of Wales, a Title originally given by King Edw. 1. And all his Titles are, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, and Earl of Chester: Before Edw. 2. who was the first Prime of Wales, the eldest Son of the King was called

Lord

Lord Prince; but Prince was a Name of Dignity long before that Time in England. Staund. Prærog 75. The Prince of Wales, besides the Principality of Wales, Dutchy of Cornwall, &c. has a Revenue, settled upon him by Parliament; for by Statute, his late Majesty was empowered to grant to his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales his Son, now King, an Annuity of 100,000*l.* per Annum, payable out of the Post-Office and Excise-Duties, &c. 1 Geo. c. 22.

Princess. The King was also enabled to grant to the Princess of Wales the present Queen, an Annuity of 50,000*l.* a Year, after the Prince's Death, out of the abovesaid Duties; and to grant to her Royal Highness Somerset-house Palace, &c. Stat. Ibid.

Principal, (Principalium) Is variously used in our Law; as an Heir-Lome, the best Beast, best Bed, Table, &c. which pass to the eldest Child, and are not subject to Partition, are called Principals: And the chief Person in the Inns of Chancery is called Principal of the House.

Principal and Accessary. The Principal is the Person, who actually commits any Crime; and the Accessary is he who is assisting to him in the Doing thereof. 2 Lill. Abr. 355. In the highest Offences, as in Treasons, &c. all are Principals; and so in the lowest, such as Riots, forcible Entries, and other Trespases; in these Cases, there are no Accessaries. 1 Inst. 71. By the Common Law, if a Principal be pardoned before Judgment, or hath his Clergy, the Accessary may not be tried; but if it be after Attainder, the Accessary shall be arraigned: And where the Principal dies before attained, or is acquitted by Verdict, &c. the Accessary shall be discharged: Also if the Principal appears not, though the Accessary may be put to Answer, he shall not be tried till the Principal is attained, &c. 4 Rep. 43. H. P. C. 47. Dalt. 339. But this is altered by Stat. 1 Ann. cap. 9. See Accessary.

Principal Money On Mortgages, Bonds, &c. Vide Scrivener and Usury.

Printing. By Statute, the Printing, Selling or Buying popish or superstitious Books, &c. is liable to Penalties and Forfeitures. 3 Fac. 1. c. 5. None shall print heretical or seditious Pamphlets, or tending to the Scandal of the Government, &c. nor print any Books, unless entered in the Register at Stationers-Hall and licensed; Books of Law, by the Allowance of the Lord Chancellor, Chief Justice, &c. Of Divinity, by the Archbishop of Canterbury, &c. and History, by a Secretary of State: Printers are to shew the Names of Authors, if required; the Number of Printing Presses is limited; and no Person shall print beyond Sea, or use Presses in Vaults, without Notice, &c. And Messengers, by Warrant of Secretary of State, may search for and seize seditious Books. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 33. This particular Statute made for regulating Printing, was revived and continued by 4 & 5 W. & M. &c. but is now expired. The Archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Chancellor, Bishop of London, and Chief Justices, &c. on Complaint, have Power to reform unreasonable Prices of Books: Nine Copies of Books printed enter'd at Stationers-Hall, are to be delivered for the Use of publick Libraries: Authors of Books already printed, and the Copies not transferred, and Booksellers, who have already purchased, are to have the sole Right of printing Books for twenty-one Years; and Authors of Books not yet printed, shall have such Right for fourteen Years: And when the Copies are transferred, after the End of fourteen Years, the Right of Printing, &c. is to return to the Authors for the like Term: Other Persons reprinting, or importing any Book printed, within those Times, without Consent, shall forfeit the Books to the Proprietor, and 1*d.* for every Sheet in Possession, the Book being entered in the Register of the Stationers Company. 8 Ann. cap. 19. There are certain Stamp-Duties payable for Pamphlets and Books printed under such and such Sizes, for every Sheet, &c. And Printers or Publishers are to put the Names thereto, under the Penalty of 20*l.* &c. Stat. 10 Ann. Vide Libel.

Prior, He who was first in Dignity next to the Abbot; or the Chief of a Convent, &c. And there was a Lord Prior of St. John's of Jerusalem. 26 Hen. 8. c. 2.

Priors Aliens, (Piores Alieni) Were certain religious Men, born in France and Normandy, Governors of religious Houses erected for Outlandish Men here in England, but they were suppress'd by King Hen. 5. and afterwards their Livings were given to other Monasteries and Houses of Learning, and especially towards the Erecting of those two famous Colleges, called the King's Colleges, at Cambridge and Eaton. 2 Inst. 584.

Priors perpetual, And Datary and Renewable, are mentioned in the Statutes 9 R. 2. cap. 4. and 1 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Priority, (Prioritas) Is an Antiquity of Tenure, in Comparison of another less ancient. Old Nat. Br. 94. And we read that the Lord of the Priority shall have the Custody of the Body, &c. Crompt. Jurisd. 120. See Posteriority.

Priority of Debts and Suits. A Prior Suit depending may be pleaded in Abatement of a subsequent Action or Prosecution. A Prior Mortgage ought to be first paid off; and Debts first due should be first satisfied; for as the first Creditor advances his Money before his Debtor is incumbered, it is but reasonable he should be paid his Debt before the Discharge of the subsequent Incumbrances: But Debts first due must likewise be first prosecuted; otherwise in some Cases Priority will not be allowed. Comp. Attorn. 120. There is no Priority of Time in Judgments; for the Judgment first executed shall be first paid.

Prisage, (Prisagium) Is that Part and Share which belongs to the King, or Admiral, out of such Merchandizes as are taken at Sea by way of lawful Prize, which is usually a tenth Part. — Prisagium est jus Prisas capiendi, &c. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 5. Prisage of Wines is a Duty or Custom on Wines, payable at certain Ports, as Southampton, &c. where the King claims out of every Ship or Vessel laden with Wines, containing twenty Tons or more, two Tons of Wine, the one before, the other behind the Mast, at his Price, which is twenty Shillings for each Ton; but this varies according to the Customs of Places; and at Boston every Bark laden with ten Tons of Wine, or above, pays Prisage: This Word is almost out of Use, being now called Butlerage, because the King's chief Butler receives it. 1 Hen. 8. cap. 5. 4 Inst. 30. Calthrop's Rep. 20.

Prize, (Captio, Præda, from the Fr. Prendere) Signifies a Prey or Booty taken from an Enemy in Time of War, &c. If Ships are laden with contraband Goods, both Ship and Goods may be taken as Prize; and Powder, Shot, Guns, Swords, and all other Instruments and Provisions of Armature for Sea or Land, bound for an Enemy from an neuter Nation, &c. shall be taken as Prise; so also Money, Corn, Victuals, &c. in Time of Necessity. Lex Mercat. 178. Whether a Ship be Prise or not, shall be tried in the Admiralty; and no Prohibition shall be granted: And if a Suit be commenced between the Captor of a Prise, and a Claimant, and a Decree is obtained either for or against the Claimer; on giving Security, such Sentence or Decree shall be put in Execution, notwithstanding any Appeal, &c. 1 Sid. 320. 2 Keb. 158. During the late War with France, all Vessels with their Ladings, taken as Prise, were to be brought into some Port, and put into the Possession of the Commissioners of Prises, and after adjudged Prise, to be sold by the said Commissioners, and the Product distributed amongst the Captors, &c. But where Vessels were taken in Ports or Havens, they were adjudged a Perquisite of the Admiralty, and the Captors to have what should be thought fit; and if any English Vessels seized by the French as Prise, should be retaken, they were to be restored, paying an eighth Part of the Value for Salvage. Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 25. Prise Goods imported shall be subject to the same Duties and Customs as other Goods and Merchandizes. 9 Ann. c. 27. See Privateers.

Prison, (Prisona) Is a Place of Confinement for the safe Custody of a Person, in order to his answering any Action, Civil or Criminal: And it has been observ'd, that this Salva Custodia must be only Custodia; for *Carcer ad Homines custodiendos, non ad Puniendo*s dari debet. Co. Lit. lib. 3. cap. 7. Any Place where a Man is restrained of his Liberty, is a Prison: And when any one is arrested on Process, he is to be committed to Prison, or be bound in Recognizance with Sureties, or give Bail, according to the Nature of the Case, to appear at a Day in Court, and answer what is alledged against him. Dalt. 421. If one is brought before a Justice of Peace for Suspicion of Felony, where a Felony has been committed, the Justice may send him to Prison, or bail him; and if no Felony be done, he hath Power to discharge him. H. P. C. 98. But when a Person is committed to Prison for Treason, or Felony, he cannot regularly be discharged from Prison, till indicted, and acquitted, &c. Though one taken and committed to Prison in a Civil Cause, may be released and set at Liberty by the Plaintiff in the Suit. 3 Inst. 209. H. P. C. 94. But see Habeas Corpus, &c. Vide Gaol. Prison-breaking, and the Punishment thereof. See Escape.

Prisoner, (Prisonarius, Fr. Prisonnier) Signifies one that is confined in Prison, on an Action, or upon Commandment: And a Man may be a Prisoner upon Matter of Record, or of Fact; a Prisoner on Matter of Record, is he who being present in Court, is by the Court committed to Prison; and the other is upon an Arrest, be it by the Sheriff, Constable, &c. Staund. P. C. 34, 35. A Prisoner for the King may not be charged in an Action at the Suit of the Subject, without Leave of the Court. 1 Lev. 125, 146. The Court of King's Bench hath Power to send for a Prisoner out of the Marshalsea Court, by Rule of Court, and need not issue an Habeas Corpus, as that Prison belongs to this Court; but they cannot send for a Prisoner out of any other Prison, without Writ of Habeas Corpus. Mich. 1650. Every Judge of B. R. may remit Prisoners, with their Indictments, to the Places where the Offences where-with they are charged were committed; and a Prisoner for Debt may be removed from the Fleet to the King's Bench, and thence to the Marshalsea, on something charged against him in the Habeas Corpus or Return, or on bringing him into Court. Dyer 275. 2 Lill. Abr. 357. Prisoners in the King's Bench and Fleet Prisons, on mesne Process, &c. are to be actually confined within the said Prisons, or the Rules of the same, till they are discharged; and the Profits of the Marshals and Warden's Places are liable to Sequestration for Payment of Debt on Judgment, upon an Escape, besides the common Remedy: And Judgment may be signed against a Prisoner in the Fleet, in a Personal Action, entering a Declaration, and leaving a Copy thereof with the Prisoner, &c. after a Rule to plead, to be out at 8 Days, &c. Prisoners in the King's Bench are not to pay above 2 s. 6 d. per Week Chamber-Rent, on Pain of Keepers taking more, to forfeit 20 l. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 7. And Prisoners in the aforesaid Prisons, going at large, may be taken up on an Escape Warrant. 1 Ann. cap. 6. But Prisoners may go out of the Rules, on a Day-Rule of Court, about their Business, so as they do not go into the Country, or to Plays, Diversions, &c. Trin. 6 Ann. B. R. 2 Lill. 366.

Prisoners discharged. The 22 & 23 Car. 2. 2 W. & M. and 7 & 8 W. 3. 1 Anna, and 6 Geo. were made for releasing, by Justices of Peace in their Sessions, &c. of poor Prisoners for Debt, actually in Custody, making Oath that they had no Effects of the Value of 10 l. &c. and who owed not above 100 l. and by the latter Statute 50 l. to any one Person; and by the 7 & 8 W. 3. the Prisoners discharged under forty Years of Age, were to list themselves in the King's Service during the War against France. A Defendant was taken by Process of the Court of B. R. and pray'd the Benefit of being discharged upon Common Bail, according to the Statute for discharging poor Prisoners; shewing the Certificate of the Gaoler, and the Adjudication of the Justices of Peace, &c. And it was held, that the Justices had no Authority, unless the Defendant was in Custody on such a Day; for a bare being within the Rules will not be sufficient, and this Court will examine the Truth of it, notwithstanding the Certificate, and Adjudication. Mich. 5 Ann. 3 Salk. 330. One being indebted on a Bond of 180 l. conditioned to pay 90 l. and Interest on such a Day, was arrested, and discharged by the Justices, upon the Statute of poor Prisoners: But per Curiam, there being 20 l. due for Interest, at the Time that Statute was made, by Consequence the Defendant owed at that Time more than 100 l. and therefore the Justices could not lawfully discharge him; so their Order was made void. Ibid. And if a Prisoner for Debt is discharged by Justices of Peace, as a poor Prisoner on the Statutes for Relief of such, where the Debt is above 100 l. &c. and they have no Power to discharge him; this hath been adjudged an Escape. 1 Salk. 273.

Privateers, Are a Kind of private Men of War: And that Privateers are lawful, there is no Room to question; for if a War be enter'd into on a just Foundation, these cannot be unjust. Persons concern'd in Privateers administer at their own Costs a Part of a War, by providing Ships

Ships of Force, and all other military Utenfils; and they have, instead of Pay, Leave granted to keep what they can take from the Enemy, allowing the Admiral his Share, &c. Privateers may not attempt any Thing against the Laws of Nations; as to assault an Enemy in a Port or Haven, under the Protection of any Prince or Republick, whether he be Friend, Ally, or Neuter; for the Peace of such Places must be inviolably kept; and therefore by a Treaty made by King William and the States of Holland, before a Commission shall be granted to any Privateer, the Commander is to give Security if the Ship be not above 150 Tons, in 1500*l.* and if the Ship exceeds that Burthen, in 3000*l.* that they will make Satisfaction for all Damages which they shall commit in their Courses at Sea, contrary to the Treaties with that State; upon Pain of forfeiting their Commissions, and the Ship is made liable. Lex Mercat. or Merch. Compan. 177, 178. Besides these private Commissions, there are special Commissions for Privateers, granted to Commanders of Ships, &c. that take Pay, who are under a Marine Discipline; and if they do not obey their Orders, they may be punished with Death: And the Wars in latter Ages, have given Occasion to Princes to issue these Commissions, to annoy the Enemies in their Commerce, and hinder such Supplies as might strengthen them, or lengthen out the War; and likewise to prevent the Separation of Ships of greater Force from their Fleets or Squadrons. Ibid. By Statute, Ships taken by private Men of War, are to be divided into five Parts; four Parts whereof to go to the Persons interested in the Privateer, and the Fifth to his Majesty; and the Ship and Furniture to be enjoy'd by the Owners of the Privateer: And as a farther Encouragement, Privateers, &c. destroying any French Man of War, or Privateer, shall receive for every Piece of Ordnance in the Ship so taken 10*l.* Reward, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M.

Privation, (Privatio) A Taking away or Withdrawing; most commonly applied to a Bishop or Rector of a Church, when by Death or other Act they are deprived of their Preferments: It seems to be an Abbreviation of the Word Deprivation. Co. Lit. 329.

Privatus, Signifies a Friend or Familiar; by Blount.

Privement enfiert, Is where a Woman is with Child by her Husband; but not quick with Child. Wood's Inst. 662.

Privies, (From the Fr. Prive, i. e. Familiaris) Are those that are Partakers, or have an Interest in any Action or Thing; or any Relation to another: As every Heir in Tail is privy to recover the Land entailed, &c. Old Nat. Br. 117. And there are five several Kinds of Privies, viz. Privies in Blood, such as the Heir to the Ancestor; Privies in Representation, as Executors or Administrators to the Deceased; Privies in Estate, between Donor and Donee; Lessor and Lessee, &c. Privies in respect of Contract; and Privies on Account of Estate and Contract together. 3 Rep. 23, 123; 4 Rep. 123. Latch. 260. If a Fine be levied, the Heirs of him that levied it, are termed Privies. If a Lessor grants his Reversion, the Grantee and Lessee are Privies in Estate: And Privies in Contract extend only to the Persons of the Lessor and Lessee; and where the Lessee assigns all his Interest, here the Lessor and Lessee remain privy in Contract, but not in Estate which is removed by the Assignment. 3 Rep. 23. Privies in respect of Estate and Contract appears, where the Lessee assigns his Interest, but the Contract between the Lessor and Lessee as to Action of Debt continues, the Lessor not having accepted of the Assignee. 3 Lev. 295. But where there are Privies in Contract, and this Privy is alter'd by Assignment of an Executor, &c. before any Rent due; and after the Privy of Estate by the Assignment of the Executor's Assignee, nothing remains whereby to maintain any Action. Latch. 260. There are likewise Privies in Deed, or in Law; where the Deed makes the Relation; or the Law implies it, in case of Escheats to the Lord, &c. And only Parties and Privies shall take Advantage of Conditions of Entry on Lands, &c. 1 Inst. 516.

Privilege (Privilegium) Is defined to be a private or particular Law, whereby a private Person or Corporation is exempted from the Rigour of the Common Law, or it is some Benefit or Advantage granted or allowed to any Persons contrary to the Course of Law, and is sometimes used for a Place that hath a special Immunity: A Privilege is therefore Personal, or Real; Personal, as of Members of Parliament, and of Convocation, and of their menial Servants, not to be arrested in the Time of Parliament or Convocation, nor for certain Days before or after; Peers, Ambassadors and their Servants, &c. Real, that which is granted to a Place, as to the King's Palaces, the Courts at Westminster, the Universities, &c. that their Members or Officers must be sued within their Precincts or Courts, and not in other Courts. Cowel. 2 Roll. Abr. 272. Finch. 321. Also the Counties Palatine, Cinque Ports, many Cities and Towns, &c. have Privileges as to Pleas, that none shall be compelled to appear or answer out of their Jurisdictions. 4 Inst. 212. Crompt. Jurisd. 137. The King's Servants are privileged from Arrests; for that the King shall not be deprived of them, without Leave. Raym. 152. A Member of Parliament is privileged, as well in his Lands and Goods, as in his Person; because being disturb'd in any of them, he is hinder'd in serving of the Commonwealth, which is to be prefer'd before all private Interests. 2 Lill. Abr. 370. The Lord Mayor of London is privileged from all Actions, that he may not be hindered in the Government of the City: And so is an Alderman from serving Offices, &c. Ibid. Cro. Car. 585. Privileges are of Parliament, of Courts, and their Officers and Suitors, and of Attornies, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 368. According to Holt Chief Justice, Privilege is either of Court, or of Process; as in the Court of Common Pleas, every Person who belongs to that Court, such as Attornies, and their Clerks, &c. shall have the Privilege of being sued there, and not elsewhere; and this is the Privilege of the Court: But none shall be allowed the Privilege of Process, but those who are the Officers of the Court, and are supposed to be attending therein. 3 Salk. 283. And there are two Kinds of Privileges in the Court of C. B. the one is of the Officers of the Court, to be sued there by Bill; and the other of the Clerks to be sued there by Original. Ibid. In the Court of Exchequer there are three Sorts of Persons who are privileged, i. e. Debtors to the King, Accountants, and Officers; against the First of these Persons, any Man who has a Privilege in another Court, as an Officer or Attorney thereof, shall have his Privilege, for the Privilege of a Person as Debtor, is but a general Privilege: But if an Accountant begin his Suit here, he hath in such Case a special Privilege, and no other Privilege shall be allowed against him, because of his Attendance to pass his Account, in which the King hath a particular Concern; and it is the same in an Officer of the Court who commences a Suit here, no Privilege shall prevail against him: Though where the Account is closed and reduced to a Debt, there the Accountant hath only the general Privilege as Debtor; and the like of a Servant to an Officer or Minister of the Court, he has no Privilege against a privileged Person elsewhere. Hardr. 367, 507. By Hale Chief Baron, a general Privilege of a Person as a Member of the University, or a Clerk in Chancery, doth not take away the particular Privilege of the Court of Exchequer, where the Person is Debtor and Accountant to the King. Ibid. 189. But one who was Receiver General of the Revenues of the Crown in W. being sued in the Common Pleas, brought a Writ of Privilege out of the Exchequer, and it was disallow'd by the Court. Dyer 328. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1296. In the Exchequer it hath been held, that there are two Ways of pleading Privilege; one is, if the Party is an Officer on Record, to go to Trial, and at the Trial to produce the Record; and if he is no Officer, but Attendant on the Court, that must be tried by a Jury: The other Way is, if he be an Officer on Record, then to produce a Writ of Privilege at the Time of the Plea pleaded, upon which there can be no Issue joined; and being otherwise pleaded, &c. Judgment may be given to answer over. Mod. Caf. 305. A Writ of Privilege lies for an Officer of the Courts at Westminster, that is sued in any other Court than where he attends, to remove the Cause to his own Court. 2 Inst. 551. Stat. 18 Ed. 3. A Defendant pleaded his Privilege, that he was an Attorney of C. B. and upon Demurrer to this Plea, it was objected, that it ought to be concluded with a Profert hic in Curia, the Writ of Privilege testifying him to be an Attorney, which is true, and that he ought to have said prout patet per Recordum; but that must be in such Case where he sets forth the Writ, and he must plead Privilege upon the Writ, or Exemplification of the Record of his Admission, or without it. 2 Salk. 545. If Privilege of an Attorney be pleaded with a Writ, the Defendant cannot be denied to be an Attorney; if without, he may, and then a Certiorari shall be awarded to certify whether he be an Attorney or not. Ibid. By Order of the Court of C. B. the Clerk of the Warrants is to certify that an Attorney's Name is upon the Roll of Attornies, before he shall have a Writ of Privilege; and Writs of Privilege are to be signed by the Clerk of the Warrants, to shew the Person is an Attorney of the Court, or they shall not be allowed. Trin. 29 Car. 2. Trin. 9 W. 3. And to save Arrest upon Process, an Attorney must deliver his Writ of Privilege to the Sheriff, and allow it with him; otherwise the Sheriff will not discharge him upon his Writ of Privilege, unless it be on Process issuing out of an inferior Court, but he must plead his Privilege sub pede sigilli. Pract. Solic. 322. Privilege is not to be pleaded in the Negative; as that an Attorney or Clerk, ought not to be sued elsewhere but in such a Court, without saying it is usual for them to be sued there, &c. and it should not be pleaded too general. 2 Sid. 164. But see 2 Salk. 543. In Trespass against an Attorney of C. B. he pleaded his Privilege per Attornatum, to which Plea the Plaintiff demurred; because he ought to have pleaded it in Person, and Pleading by Attorney destroys the very Reason of his Privilege, which is his Attending the Court in Person; but the Plea was adjudged good, for he may be sick, or have Business in another Court to attend. Style 413. But an Information being brought against a Custos Brevium of B. R. for several Abuses in his Office, he insisted not to appear in Person, but by Attorney; and it was ruled that he should appear in Person, because he is an Officer of the Court, and is presumed to be always present; and if he doth not appear, Judgment shall be given against him without any other Process. Sid. 134. Privilege has been allowed for a Clerk in the Office of Custos Brevium, and a Writ of Privilege signed by the Justices of C. B. to exempt him from being pressed, &c. It being the Custom and Privilege of that Court, that the Attornies and Clerks shall not be pressed, nor chose into any Office, sine voluntate, but ought to attend the Service of the Court. Cro. Car. 8. Though it is said an Attorney shall not be excused by Privilege from Offices which may be executed by Deputy; only those which require personal Duty, as that of Churchwarden, Constable, &c. March. 30. 2 Lill. Abr. 374. A Filizer's Clerk claimed to be privileged in B. R. but was denied it; for tho' the Master may be privileged, the Court takes no Notice of the Servant, he having no necessary Dependence on the Court. Mich. 23 Car. And Privilege extends only to such Attornies, &c. who have an immediate Dependence on the Court; and not to their Servants: It hath been held, that although an Attorney doth not practise, he shall have Privilege so long as he continues an Attorney upon Record. Lutw. 1667. Attornies or Filizers of the Common Pleas, if sued in B. R. may plead their Privilege, because they owe a personal Attendance to that Court: But a Serjeant at Law, being sued in the Court of B. R. cannot plead Privilege of C. B. for he may sign Pleas, be of Counsel, and Practise in other Courts in Westminster-Hall, and is not confined to Practise in the C. B. though if he is sued in any inferior Court, he shall have his Privilege. 2 Lev. 129. 1 Mod. 298. And yet formerly a Serjeant at Law claiming his Privilege to be sued in the Court of C. B. had his Privilege allowed; so a Serjeant's Clerk. Trin. 6 Ed. 6. and 28 Hen. 8. Dyer 24. Cro. Car. 59. A Barrister at Law, attending on the Court, ought to have Privilege to be sued in all transitory Actions in Middlesex: And an Attorney of C. B. &c. may chuse whether he will sue or be sued out of the County of Middlesex; because his Attendance is always supposed to be there. 2 Lill. 370. Where an Attorney is sued as Executor or Administrator, he shall not be allowed his Privilege; nor in a joint Action, with another not privileged; though if the Action may be severed, the Want of Privilege of one shall not take away the Privilege of the other. 1 Salk. 2, 245. 2 Nelf. Abr. 1295. Privilege shall not be allowed to a Man, where his Wife is joined in the Action with him: The Wife of an Attorney of B. R. if she be arrested, shall not have Privilege; but her Husband is to put in Bail for her, or for Want thereof she is to be committed to Prison; for the Husband is privileged only in Regard of his personal Attendance upon the Court, and his Privilege is annexed to his Person, and concerns not his Wife. Noy 68. 2 Lill. Abr. 371. An Attorney of the Common Pleas was indebted to A. B. who was indebted to C. D. who according to the Custom of London attached the Money in the Attorney's Hands; and he brought a Writ of Privilege, which was allowed by the Court, because the Attorney was not indebted to C. D. but only by Custom; and the Privileges of those attending the Courts at Westminster, shall not be impeached by any Custom whatsoever. 2 Leon. 156. But where Money was attached in London, in the Hands of an Attorney of B. R. it was held, he shall not have his Writ of Privilege, because the Plaintiff cannot follow his Attachment against him in the King's Bench, but only in the Court of London; and if this Court should stay Proceedings there, then there would be a Failure of Justice. 2 Lill. Abr. 371, 372. One that hath a Suit depending in B. R. &c. is privileged from being arrested in coming to the Court from his House or Lodging, to follow his Cause, and also in going back again directly to his House or Lodging; and if he be arrested in so doing, the Court upon Motion made to inform them of it, will set the Party at Liberty, and punish the Person that arrested him, if he knew the other had a Suit depending here, and came hither to attend it. 2 Lill. 371. One that was coming to the Court of King's Bench to attend upon his Cause, was arrested as he was coming, and forc'd to put in Bail; and on Motion making it appear to the Court, he and his Bail were both discharged; and the Party that arrested him had been also punished, had he not alledged that he knew not that the Party arrested came about his Business depending in the Court. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. An Action of Assault, &c. was brought in the Common Pleas, and the Parties were at Issue, and after the Trial, when the Jury went out to consider of their Verdict, the Defendant in his Action arrested the Plaintiff by Process out of B. R. for an Assault made before that Time on him; and this appearing to the Court, they order'd him to release the Party from the Arrest, and they set a Fine upon him for the Contempt, which he immediately paid in Court: And the Court declared, that the Suitors ought safely to come and go by the Privilege of the Court, without Vexation elsewhere. Goldsb. 33. One arrested in Westminster-Hall sedente Curia, may be discharged upon Motion, if the Arrest was on Mesne Process; but not if he was taken in the Execution, tho' even in that Case, the Officer is punishable per Curiam. Bull. 85. Privilege of the Court was pray'd to protect a Witness from being arrested in coming and going from the Court, which was granted. Hill. 1655. 2 Lill. 370. In Treason, Felony, or Breach of the Peace, no Privilege shall be allowed; nor on an Indictment, &c. It has been adjudged, that where Proceedings are merely at the Suit of the King, as upon Indictments or Informations brought by the Attorney General, in such Cases Privilege shall not be allowed; but where the Proceedings are at the Suit of the King and the Party, as in case of a common Informer, &c. there the Defendant may have his Privilege. 1 Lutw. 193. If a privileged Person in one Court, do sue a privileged Person in another, in a Civil Action, the Person sued shall not have his Privilege. 2 Leon. 41. 2 Lill. Abr. 368. A privileged Person shall not be generally allowed his Privilege upon Motion; but he must plead it, and on Pleading it shall be allowed. Mich. 23 Car. B. R. But there is no Need to plead the Privilege of the Exchequer; for it shall be granted upon producing the Red Book of the Exchequer by a Baron of that Court. 1 Lutw. 46. And of later Times, the Party hath been admitted to Privilege upon Prayer, to the Court. 2 Lill. 370. By some Opinions, Privilege may be allowed, after Bail put in; and not after Impar lance: By others, that Privilege of Attornies may not be pleaded after Bail given in, which allows the Jurisdiction, &c. 3 Lev. 343. 1 Salk. 1, 2. To sue an Attorney privileged, or any Clerk or Officer of the Court of B. R. they are not to be arrested, but be proceeded against as follows: A Declaration is to be filed against the Party privileged, and a Copy of it delivered to him, and then Rules given in order for his Plea; and the Declaration and Rules being delivered and served in Time, he will be obliged to plead the same Term; and if he do not appear and plead, after called in Court, &c. he may be forejudged the Court: If such Attorney, Clerk or Officer be Plaintiff, and his Declaration is delivered, and the Rules given in Time, the Defendant is to plead the same Term, and cannot imparl over to the next; which ought to be remember'd, for fear of Executions when not thought of. Pract. Solic. 259, 260. In B. R. where an Attorney is Plaintiff, he cannot by his Privilege have special Bail where other Persons cannot have it; except it be for Fees, as a Minister of the Court, in which Case he may. In the Court of C. B. if an Attorney is Defendant in any Suit, it is not required that he shall give in Bail, he being at all Times present in the Court, as the Law will suppose; and by giving in Bail, he waves his Privilege: Yet by the Usage of the Court, on Attachment at the Suit of an Attorney Plaintiff, though the Debt be but 40s. special Bail shall be given. Ibid. 260, 323. A Bill must be filed, tho' an Attorney agrees to appear and dispencc with it; but it may in such Case be filed afterwards: And a Bill cannot be filed against a Person privileged in Vacation, for then he is not present in Court. Hill. and Pasch. 9 W. 3. B. R. If without filing a Declaration, an Action is brought against an Attorney, &c. he may bring Attachment of Privilege, and supersede the Action. A Declaration against an Attorney runs thus: *Memorandum quod tali die, &c. isto eodem Termino ven. hic in Cur. A. B. per, &c. Attorn. suum & exhibuit Justic. Dom. Privileged Places. A Person was arrested in the Temple, and upon a Motion to set it aside, it was insisted for him, that the Temple is privileged from Arrests by the King's Grant; for which the Authority of Stow's Chronicle and Dugdale were alledged: But by Holt Chief Justice, if the King hath made any such Grant to that Society, 'tis void in Law, they having no Court of Justice within themselves: 'Tis true the Temple is extra-parochial, and not within any Parish, nor in the City, so as to come within the Customs of the City, but 'tis within the County of the City; and White Fryars is within the Jurisdiction of the City: Yet the Court inclined not to countenance Arrests in the Temple, especially in Term-Time; though they would not set aside this Arrest, so the Defendant was held to special Bail. 9 W. 3. B. R. 3 Salk. 285. By an Act made 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 26. for preventing the many ill Practices used in the privileged Places to defraud Persons of their Debts; the pretended Privilege of White Fryars, the Savoy, Salisbury Court, Ram Alley, Mitre Court, Fuller's Rents, Baldwin's Gardens, Montague Close, the Minories, Mint, Clink, or Deadman's Place, are taken away, and made subject to all Arrests, &c. And the Sheriffs of London or their Officers, are enabled to take the Posse Comitatus, and such other Power as shall be requisite, and enter such privileged Places to make any Arrest on legal Process, and in case of Refusal, to break open Doors; and if such Sheriff, Bailiff, &c. shall neglect with such Force to use their best Endeavours for executing any Process, he shall forfeit to the Plaintiff 100 l. to be recovered in any of the Courts at Westminster; and if any Person doth resist the Officers in executing any Process, or any who shall be aiding and assisting to them, he shall forfeit 50 l. suffer Imprisonment, and be set in the Pillory, as the Court of Assises, Gaol-delivery, &c. shall think fit: Persons rescuing any one arrested in the aforesaid pretended privileged Places, are to forfeit to the Plaintiff in the Action 500 l. On Nonpayment whereof, within one Month after recovered in the Courts at Westminster, and Judgment signed, they shall be transported to the Plantations for seven Years; and returning within that Term, be adjudged guilty of Felony without Benefit of Clergy; also Harbourners and Concealers of such Rescuers knowingly, are liable to Transportation, unless they pay the Plaintiff his Debt for which the Action was brought, with full Costs, &c. The Stat. 9 Geo. cap. 28. enacts, That if any Person within the Place commonly called Suffolk Place, or the Mint, in the Parish of St. George in the County of Surry, or the pretended Limits thereof, shall wilfully obstruct or oppose any Persons in the Serving or Executing any Writ, or legal Process, Rule or Order of Court, or Warrant of any Justice of Peace, &c. or assault or abuse any Person, surviving or executing the same, whereby he shall receive Damage or bodily Hurt, the Person offending shall be deem'd Guilty of Felony, and be transported to the Plantations, by such Ways, and for such Time, and under such Pains, as Felons in other Cases: And upon Complaint to three Justices of Peace, &c. by any Person who shall have a Debt owing from any one who resides in the Mint, having a legal Process taken out for Recovery thereof, if the Debt be above 50 l. on Oath thereof, the Justices are empowered to issue their Warrant to the Sheriff of Surry, to raise the Posse, and to enter the said pretended privileged Place, and arrest the Party, &c. And the Sheriff neglecting or refusing, incurs a Forfeiture of 200 l. Persons resisting the Sheriff, &c. or making a Rescous of a Prisoner; or harbouring or concealing any Prisoner so taken, or Person that rescued him; or who shall exercise any unlawful Jurisdiction, or make or execute any pretended Ordinance for supporting any pretended Privilege, &c. within the said Place, for hindering the due Execution of legal Process; every such Offender shall be guilty of Felony, and be transported: And Persons in Vizards or Disguises, opposing the Execution of any Process in the Mint, or abetting any Riot or Tumult there, shall be adjudged guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy, &c. Persons apprehending any Offender, and prosecuting him to Conviction; or an Offender out of Prison, discovering and convicting two of his Accomplices, are intitled to a Reward of 40 l. The Rewards and Charge of raising the Posse for enforcing this Act, are to be paid by the Sheriff, and allowed in his Accounts, or repaid by the Treasury, &c. And by this Statute the Minters residing in the Mint at such a Time, delivering up their Effects upon Oath, for the Benefit of their Creditors, on Petition, and Notice to Creditors, &c. were to be discharged by the Justices in their Quarter-Sessions; and any Minter forswearing himself, to be guilty of Felony, &c.

Privy Council, (Concilium Regis, Privatum Concilium) Is a most honourable Assembly of the King and Privy Counsellors, in the King's Court or Palace, for Matters of State. 4 Inst. 53. The King sits himself in Council, and appoints Privy Counsellors without Patent or Grant, by putting them on the List, and on their Removal striking them out, which he may do as he pleases: They take an Oath to the King, justly to advise him, to keep Secrecy, &c. Their Number at the first Institution was Twelve; but at this Time is without Limitation, at the King's Will: Next to the Lord President of the Council, the Lord Privy Seal sits in Council, the Secretaries of State, and many other Lords and Gentlemen: And in all Debates of the Council, the Lowest delivers his Opinion first, and the King declares his Judgment last; and thereby the Matter of Debate is determined. 4 Inst. 55. Sir Edward Coke has these notable Conclusions, with respect to the Proceedings of the Privy Council, viz. That it is consistent with Safety, for a Privy Counsellor to give the King Council when demanded; and that the Truest and best Council is ever given to a Prince, when the Question is so evenly stated and propounded, as the Counsellor cannot discern which Way the King himself inclines; that Resolution should never precede Deliberation, nor Execution go before Resolution; and when upon Debate and Deliberation, any Matter is well resolv'd by the Council, a Change of it upon some private Information is neither safe nor honourable. 4 Inst. The Court of Privy Council is of great Antiquity: The Way of Government in England it is said was originally by the King and his Privy Council; tho'

though at present the King and his Privy Council, only intermeddle in Matters of Complaint on sudden Emergencies; their constant Business being to consult for the Publick Good, Honour and Welfare of the Realm, in Affairs of State. 4 Inst. 53. The Lords and Commons assembled in Parliament, have oftentimes transmitted Matters of high Concern to the King and his Privy Council: And Acts of the Privy Council, whether Orders or Proclamations, were heretofore of very great Authority in England; and in the Reign of King Hen. 8. that King procured an Act of Parliament to be made, that with the Advice of his Privy Council, he might set forth Proclamations, which should have the Force of Acts of Parliament; but that Statute was repealed in the Reign of King Edw. 6. Though Acts of the Privy Council still continued of great Authority until the Reigns of King Charles First and Second. And by these were Controversies sometimes determined touching Lands and Rights, between Party and Party; as well as the Suspension of penal Laws, &c. But this seemed to be contrary to the 25 Ed. 3. cap. 4. and by Stat. 16 Car. 1. cap. 10. it is declared, that neither the King, nor the Privy Council, have Authority by Petition, Bill, &c. to determine or dispose of Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments or Goods and Chattels of any Subject. The King, with the Advice of his Council, publishes Proclamations binding to the Subject; but they are to be consonant to, and in Execution of the Laws of the Land: It is in the Power of the Privy Council, to inquire into Crimes against the Government, and they may commit Persons for Treason, and other Offences against the State, in order for their Trial in some of the other Courts; and any one or two of the Privy Council may lawfully do it: But they take Cognisance of no private Matters that may be determined by the ordinary Laws in other Courts; yet the Kingdom of Ireland, and the Plantations are in many respects subject to the Control and under the Direction of the Privy Council of Great Britain; and Law-Controversies among the Subjects of Fer-sey and Guernsey, &c. are determined by the Privy Council. 3 Inst. 182. 4 Inst. 53. Wood's Inst. 458. By Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 23. Persons examined by the Privy Council, on Treasons, Murder, &c. done within or without the Realm, may be tried before Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer appointed by the King in any County of England: This Statute as far as it relates to Treason committed within the Kingdom, is repealed by 1 & 2 P. & M. cap. 10. If a Person be killed beyond Sea, out of the Realm, the Fact may be examined by the Privy Council, and the Offender tried according to the aforesaid Statute. Conspiracies by the King's Servants, against the Life of a Privy Counsellor, &c. is Felony. 3 H. 7. cap. 14. And any Persons attempting to kill, or unlawfully assault any Privy Counsellor, when in the Execution of his Office of Privy Counsellor, are guilty of Felony, without Benefit of Clergy, by the Stat. 9 Ann. cap. 16. And anciently if one did strike another Person in the House of a Privy Counsellor, or in his Presence, the Party offending was to be fined. 4 Inst. 53. No Person born out of the King's Dominions, except of English Parents, shall be of the Privy Council. 12 W. 3. cap. 2. There is to be but one Privy Council in Great Britain. And the Privy Council is not dissolved by the Death of the King; but to continue for six Months, &c. 6 Ann. cap. 6, 7.

Privy Seal, (Privatum Sigillum) Is a Seal that the King useth to such Grants or Things, as pass the Great Seal. 2 Inst. 554. First they pass the Privy Signet, then the Privy Seal, and lastly the Great Seal of England; and the Clerks of the Privy Signet-Office write out such Grants, Patents, &c. as pass the Sign Manual, which being transcribed and sealed with the Signet, is a Warrant to the Privy Seal, as the Privy Seal is a Warrant to the Great Seal. Wood's Inst. 457. How the King's Grants, Writings, and Leases, shall pass the three Seals, viz. the Privy Signet, the Privy Seal, and the Great Seal; and the Duties of the Clerks of the Privy Signet, and Privy Seal, and what Fees shall be paid to them, and many Articles concerning the Passing of the King's Grants, &c. are mentioned in the Statute 27 H. 8. cap. 11. No Protection can be granted under the Privy Seal, but under the Great Seal: But a Warrant of the King under the Privy Seal to issue Money out of his Coffers, is sufficient; tho' not under the Privy Signet. 2 Inst. 555. 2 Rep. 17. 2 Roll. Abr. 183. And the Privy Seal is sometimes used in Things of less Consequence, that never pass the Great Seal; as to discharge a Recognisance, Debt, &c. No Writs shall pass under the Privy Seal, which touch the Common Law. 2 Inst. 555. And Matters of the Privy Seal are not issuable, or returnable in any Court, &c. 3 Nelf. Abr. 211. See Keeper of the Privy Seal.

Privien, Was the Name of the Seal of King Arthur, on which the Virgin Mary was engraved. Geoff. of Monm. lib. 7. cap. 2.

Pro, Is a Preposition, signifying for, or in respect of a Thing; as Pro Consilio, &c. And in Law Pro in the Grant of an Annuity pro Consilio, shewing the Cause of the Grant, amounts to a Condition: But in a Feoffment, or Lease for Life, &c. it is the Consideration, and doth not amount to a Condition; and the Reason of the Difference is, because the State of the Land by the Feoffment is executed, and the Grant of the Annuity is executory. Plowd. 412. Wood's Inst. 231.

Probate, In the Laws of Canutus, was used for to claim a Thing as a Man's own. Leg. Canut. c. 44.

Probate of Testaments, (Probatio Testamentorum) Is the Exhibiting and Proving Last Wills and Testaments before the Ecclesiastical Judge, delegated by the Bishop, who is Ordinary of the Place where the Party dies: And if all the Deceased's Goods, Chattels and Debts owing to him, were in the same Diocese, then the Bishop of the Diocese, &c. hath the Probate of the Testament; but if the Goods and Chattels were dispersed in divers Dioceses, so that there were any Thing out of the Diocese where the Party lived, to make what is called Bona Notabilia, then the Archbishop of Canterbury, or York, is the Ordinary to make Probate by his Prerogative. Blount. The Probate of a Will is usually made in the Spiritual Court, and this is done by granting Letters Testamentary to an Executor under the Seal of the Court, by which the Executor is enabled to bring any Action, &c. And if such Letters Testamentary are granted to the Party, who exhibits the Will merely upon his Oath, by swearing that he believeth it to be the Last Will of the Deceased; this is called Proving it in common Form, and such a Probate may be controverted at any Time: If the Executor, besides
