To the RIGHT HONOURABLE
Sir R O B E R T R A Y M O N D, Knt.
Lord Chief Justice of England.

MY LORD,

AT length, by your Lordship's generous Encouragement, vouchsafed me on a former Dedication to your Lordship, my New Law-Dictionary appears to the World committed to your Patronage and Protection, and as You are universally allowed to be the most proper Patron for a Work of this Nature.

It hath been often observ'd to be a Commendation to any Person, to attempt any Great and Useful Undertaking; but it is not every One who engages in it is capable to perform it: Whatever Censure, in this particular, is pass'd upon me by the Readers, my Judges, I have one very great Satisfaction; which is, that your Lordship is at the Head of them, whose generous Influence and kind Interpretation will silence others into Candor and Good Nature.

To say, That every Thing Praise-Worthy belongs to your Lordship, is not to pay the Debt of Compliment, but of Merit: As by indefatigable Study and Application to Business, Reputation ever attended You; so on your Advancement to the Supreme Station of the Common Law, your Behaviour therein hath evidently gain'd You universal Approbation. There have been Many who have filled the prime Offices of Judicature, which must always be supply'd with a Succession of Men, tho' few that have adorned them; But 'tis your Lordship's Glory to do both: And after the Great Lord Chief Justice Holt, it is the Happiness of the present Age to boast of a RAYMOND.

My Lord, Applause and Popularity Court You, whilst You endeavour to shun them, for they are the natural Reward of doing impartial Justice; and those who least seek them in Publick Authority, by their great Integrity and consummate Abilities have the largest Share of Them: It is impossible to be otherwise, than that your Lordship should be a Favourite of Mankind, when your whole Conduct is so exceeding Just as to merit the Highest Honour, and give me Leave to observe of You, what every One finds who Approaches your Lordship.

On a Character so very considerable as your Lordship's, much more might be enumerated; but I am conscious of my Inequality to the Task, and therefore desist from it, my only Aim being to shew how much I am,

MY LORD,

Your Lordship's

Most Dutiful, and most

Obliged Humble Servant,

Giles Jacob.

THE PREFACE.

ALL Prefaces to Writings, are intended by Authors either to Explain the Works to which they belong, and set forth the Reasons of their Engaging in them, or to Vindicate their Writings and Reputations from those Reflections which may be cast upon them by the Critical Part of Mankind; and I think it Necessary for me to say something on these Heads, in my Preface to this Work.

According to a Great Writer, the Study of the Law is not rendered easy by numerous Volumes, but by reducing the Sense into a compleat methodical System; and the Difficulty and Disagreeableness of this Study, is not to be imputed to any material Defect in it self, but to the Manner in which the Books that contain this Learning are Written: The Justice of this Wise Observation, hath been always acknowledged; As our Abridgments of the Law abound in Tautologies and Confusion, and are very voluminous to little Purpose, (except Nelson's Abridgment, the latest and best of the Kind) which has been a Principal Reason for my Attempting the following Sheets.

This large Work now publish'd, contains the Derivations and Definitions of Words and Terms used in the LAW, and likewise

The P R E F A C E.

likewise the whole Law, with the Practice thereof, extracted from all other Books in an easy concise Method, for the Universal Use of all Barristers, Students, and Practisers of the Law, and other Persons of what Degree or Profession soever, and for all Studies and all Offices, being a Kind of Library; so that although I have the Interpretation of Words, to give it the Title of a Dictionary, yet my Scheme is very different from the other Law-Dictionaries: And the Great Lawyer Sir EDWARD COKE having observ'd, that the Forms of Writs, and Judicial Proceedings, do much contribute to the Right Understanding of the Law; Therefore these, together with Forms of Deeds and Conveyances, illustrating the Practice on that Head, are here inserted: Further, the Reader will find interspersed, taken from the most antient Authors treating of the British, Saxon, Danish, and Norman Laws, such Informations as Explain the History and Antiquity of the Law, with our Manners, Customs and Original Form of Government.

As in this Age it is become common for Arts and Sciences to be comprehended in Dictionaries, I have pursued this Method; and the Knowledge of the Arts themselves, cannot be improper to follow the Terms and Definitions of Them. Under the Heads of Law, by the Advice of my Learned and Judicious Friends, I have gone through and gather'd every Thing I could find any ways Useful; and there is nothing Collected, but some Benefit may be drawn from it, either as immediately to the Purpose, or Explanatory of what the same hath Relation to: In my Larger Heads, where they interfere with Others, I have but just touch'd upon the Matters interfering; and left the particular Learning to the more particular Heads, where 'tis expected to be found, at the same Time some Notice being required under the general Titles.

*I may with great Truth and Justice affirm, that considerably above two Thirds of my Work, with some Hundreds of very material Words, are entirely New in a Performance of this Kind; and the Other Part is greatly Improv'd, although Abridg'd as to Quantity by omitting a great Deal of Obsolete Matter. There is not any Thing in the following Dictionary, directly the same as appears elsewhere, but in such Cases only where it was absolutely Necessary for my own Justification; (though the Compilers of the other Law-Dictionaries have generally transcribed verbatim from each Other.) The Law-Latin in many Instances differing from other Latin, I have purposely used and followed it, as those have done who have gone before me.

As to the other Dictionaries, let who will for the Future Enlarge them, it must be always confess'd, that it was I who first attempted a Body of the Law, and the Practise of it, in any Law-Dictionary: This I ought to mention, in Justice to my self; That it may not at any Time be affirm'd I have wholly built on the Others, but They on Me as to any Additions, if they should fill up their Works in my Method beyond what they were in the Year 1720, when I first began this elaborate Treatise. And if I have borrow'd from my Own Productions hitherto Publish'd, I have assumed no Freedom but such as Writers of the best Reputation have thought fit to take; who have had Occasion to treat subsequently on their former Subjects, in any larger or more general Work: Also I have every where inserted References unto them, sometimes Pointing out the Best Editions, where One Impression is esteem'd better than another.

I have now made deeper and closer Searches into the Knowledge of the Law, and taken a long Journey of Observations and Improvements on those Things which I had but just seen at a Distance before; which however painful to my self, I am confident I have struck out therein a much easier Path for Others than they had before to Walk in. I have endeavour'd to make a Right Choice of Matter, as well as to follow an exact Method, which I found no small Task; And of this I may say with Virgil, Hoc Opus, hic Labor est.

'Tis indeed True that my great Work is chiefly Collection; but let this be Consider'd with it, That Collecting on the Subject of the Law, is infinitely more difficult than upon other Subjects; because because most other Subjects are treated of with Order and Connexion, but the Law is not, and is with great Difficulty capable of it.

If at any Time it hath happened, That some small light Treatises have dropt from my Pen, They have been the Offspring of Leisure Hours, and as a Relaxation from severer Studies; without which, I could not have gone through Great Undertakings: And as for what I have already written, a prudent Author will commonly attempt many of the smaller Matters, by Way of Trial of his Abilities, and See their Success, before he will have Courage to venture upon Larger; and if I had not Experienc'd what hath fallen in my Way, it would have been Impossible for me to have perfected this Work in the advantageous Manner it is now handed to the Publick.

And thus much I am obliged to say farther in Behalf of this Dictionary; That if notwithstanding the infinite Pains I have taken, it be not in it self Authority, it carefully refers to Books of the greatest, which is all as can be asserted in Favour of any of the Abridgments of Law: But where there is such great Variety of Learning and abundant Quantity of Nice Matter, with the utmost Care, there must be some Faults and Failings to be Pardon'd by the Reader, and many Literal Errors.

I hope upon the Whole, tho' I am sufficiently Sensible of my own Inabilities, it will appear That I have done my Part, and given some Testimony to the World of what Industry and Application are capable of Effecting.

G. Jacob.

A NEW LAW-DICTIONARY:

CONTAINING

The whole Law, and the Practice thereof, under all the

A.

A, The first Letter of the Alphabet, which being prefix'd to Words in English, signifies as much as un in French, as a Man un homme.

Ab, From the Word Abbot, and in the Beginning of any Place signifieth that the Place belong'd to some Abbey.

Abacot, A Cap of State, wrought up in the Form of two Crowns, worn by our antient British Kings. Chron. Angl. 1463. Spelman's Gloss.

Abactores, (Abactores, derived ab abigendo) Stealers and Drivers away of Cattle by Herds, or in great Numbers. They are thus distinguish'd from Fures: Nam qui ovem unam surripuerit, ut fur coercetur, qui gregem ut abactor. M. S.

Abacus, Arithmetick, From the Abacus or Table on which the Antients made their Characters.

—Omnium liberalium artium peritus, Abacum, principue, lunavem compotum & cursum rimatus. Knighton's Chron. lib. 1. cap. 3.

Abandum, (Abandonum) Any Thing sequestred, proscribed or abandon'd. Abandon, i. e. In Bannum res missa.—A Thing bann'd or denounc'd as forfeited and lost; from whence is to abandon, desert, or forsake as lost and gone.

Abarnare, From the Sax. Abarian, to discover and disclose to a Magistrate any secret Crime.—Si homo furtivum aliquid in Domo sua occultaverit, & ita fuerit abarnatus, rectum est ut inde habeat quod quesivit. Leg. Canuti Reg. cap. 104.

Abate, Is deriv'd from the French Abatre or Abbatre, which signifies as much as destruere, profermere, to break down or destroy: It is taken in the common Sense for to diminish or take away; and in our Law it has the like Signification. For to abate a Castle or Fort, is interpreted to beat it down. Old Nat. Br. 45. Westm. I. c. 17. Abater Maison, is to ruin or cast down a House. Kitch. 173. As he that puts a Person out of Possession of his House, Land, &c. is said to dissesse; so he that steps in between the former Possessor and his Heir, is said to abate: And this in its special Sig-nification. Old Nat. Br. 115. To abate a Writ, is to defeat or overthrow it, by some Error or Exception. Brit. c. 48. In the Statute De conjunctim Feoffatis, the Writ shall be abated, that is, shall be disabled or overthrown. 34 Ed. 1. Stat. 2. The Appeal shall abate by Covin, i. e. The Accusation be defeated by Deceit, Staundf. Pl. Cr. 148. And the Justices shall cause the said Writ to be abated and quash'd. Anno 11 H. 6. c. 2.

Abatement, (from the French Abatement) Is called in Latin Intrusio, or rather Interpositio, to distinguish it from Intrusion after the Death of Tenant for Life. It is used for the Act of the Abator; as the Abatement of the Heir into the Land before he hath agreed with the Lord. Old Nat. Br. 91. And it is also used for the Affection or Passing of the Thing abated; as Abatement of the Writ. Kitch. 214. In this last Signification, which is most general, it is an Exception alledged and made good in our Law; being as much as Exceptio dilatoria with the Civilians. Brit. c. 51. And this Exception may be taken either to the Insufficiency of the Matter, or the Incertainty of the Allegation, by misnaming the Plaintiff or Defendant, or the Place; to the Variance between the Writ and the Specialty or Record; to the Incertainty of the Writ, Count, or Declaration; or to the Death of either of the Parties before Judgment had; or for that a Woman Plaintiff is married before, or hanging the Suit; and for many other Causes, upon which the Defendant prays that the Writ or Plaint may abate, viz. That the Suit of the Plaintiff may for that Time cease. Terms de Ley 1. On Abatement of Suits, all Writs and Process must be begun de Novo: And one great Cause for the Abatement of Writs is, that the Party prosecuted may not be twice charged or vexed for one Debt; as where the Plaintiff hath another Action depending for the same Matter, &c. 3 Lev. 304. In an Action of Debt, &c. another Action depending in the Courts at Westminster, for the same Matter, is a good Plea in Abatement: But Plea of Action in an inferior Court is not good, unless Judgment be given. 5 Rep. 62. In an Appeal, Information, &c. it is a good Plea in Abatement, that another Prosecution is depending; but not on Indictment. 2 Hawk. Pl. Cr. 190, 367. Error depending in the Exchequer Chamber, is a good Plea in Abatement to Debt on Judgment in B. R. 5 Mod. 68. A Suit may be abated, for that the Writ in Debt precedes the Day of Payment: For that there are not 15 Days between the Teste and Return of the Writ. 1 Lutw. 16, 25. Where a Defendant binds himself jointly with another, and he is not named: Or the Bill is in Case, and ought to be in Account: And where the Plaintiff declares of several and distinct Causes of Action in the same Bill; or it appears by the Plaintiff's own Shewing, that he had no Cause of Action for the Whole or for Part, the Writ shall abate. 2 Mod. Intr. 18. 4 E. 4. 32. If a Plaintiff, after Appearance, be nonsuit, discontinue, &c. the Writ shall abate. 7 Rep. 27. And where the Plaintiff discharges Part of the Debt after the Writ purchased, on shewing the Acquittance, the Writ shall abate. Misnomer in the Addition, Place, Trade, Dignity, &c. of the Defendant, may abate the Writ; as where one pleads there is no such Place, or that he is a Baronet and no Knight, &c. 1 Vent. 154. If the Addition of the Defendant's Quality and Dwelling be omitted in any original Writ, in a personal Action, Appeal or Indictment, where Exigent may be awarded, the Writ shall abate; but it shall not abate for Surplusage in the Addition. 1 H. 5. c. 5. Where one is misnamed in a Bond, the Writ must be brought against him by the same Name as in the Bond. Dyer 279. And where a Defendant comes in gratis, or pleads by the Name alledged by the Plaintiff, he is estopped to alledge any Thing against it. Style 440. To the Plea of Misnomer, the Plaintiff may reply, the Defendant was known by the Name in the Writ. 1 Salk. 6. Where an Indictment for a capital Crime is abated for Misnomer of the Defendant, the Court will not dismiss him, but cause him to be indicted de novo by his true Name. 2 Hawk. 367. Pleas in Abatement found against a Defendant in capital Cases, are not peremptory as they are in other Cases; but he may afterwards plead over to the Felony, &c. Ibid. 191. None shall plead Misnomer but the Party himself: He may not plead Misnomer of a Partner or Companion. Lutw. 36. And a Person cannot to an Action brought against him, plead in Disability of himself, that he is attainted of Treason, &c. 1 Leon. cap. 466. Outlawry may be pleaded in Abatement, or in Bar; but 'tis only a Disability till the Outlawry is reversed. 1 Inst. 128. Excommunication, or any Plea in Disability of the Plaintiff, may not be pleaded after a general Impar lance. 1 Lutw. 19. After Plea in Bar to annul the Action for ever, and after Impar lance, one cannot plead in Abatement of the Writ. An Alien born may be pleaded in Abatement: But Jews may prosecute Actions and recover, a Plea in Abatement against them being but a Disability so long as the King shall prohibit them to trade. 1 Lill. 4. One may plead in Abatement of a Declaration, where 'tis by Original; but if the Action be by Bill, you must plead in Abatement of the Bill only. 5 Mod. 144. A little Variance between the Declaration and Bond pleaded, will not make naught the Declaration: But Incertainty will abate it. Plowd. 84. The Court Ex Officio abates Writs for Want of proper Words of Art, Want of legal Form, &c. And false Latin will abate an original Writ; but not make void any judicial Writ, Plea, &c. Litch. 178. An Original tested in the Reign of a King, who dieth before the Return, by the Common Law 'tis abated and gone, and shall not be return'd in the Reign of another. Dyer 165, 206. But by Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 7. No Writ shall be abated in any Suit between Party and Party, by the Death of the King: Nor shall any Writ or Suit abate, on the Preferment of the Plaintiff, pending the Suit; as by his being made a Peer, one of the Justices, &c. And Process or Suits before Justices of Assize, Gaol-Delivery, Justices of Peace, &c. shall not abate by any new Commission or Association. Stat. Ibid. Informations for the King do not abate upon the Death of the King; but shall be continued by Resummons, &c. Moor 748. The Death of a Husband, where Husband and Wife are prosecuted for Words spoke by the Wife, &c. will not abate the Writ or Action. Hardr. 151. But if the Words are by Husband and Wife, and the Husband die, the Writ shall abate. Style 135. Where two Jointenants are Defendants, the Death of one of them will not abate the Writ. 3 Mod. 249. And no Plea in Abatement shall be receiv'd in any Suit for Partition; nor shall the same be abated by the Death of any Tenants. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 31. The Death of a Plaintiff did in all Cases abate the Writ before Judgment, 'till the Statute 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 10. by which neither the Death of Plaintiff or Defendant shall abate it, if the Action might be originally prosecuted by and against the Executors or Administrators of the Parties: And if there are two or more Plaintiffs or Defendants, and one or more die, the Writ or Action shall not abate, if the Cause of Action survives to the surviving Plaintiff against the surviving Defendant, &c. Stat. Ibid.

Abator, Is a Person that abateth or entreth into a House or Land, void by the Death of him that last possessed the same, before the Heir takes Possession, and by that Means keeps out the Heir. Old Nat. Br. 115.

Abatude, Is any Thing diminished. — Moneta abatuda, is Money clipp'd or diminished in Value: Si tempore solutionis hæc Moneta fuerit abatuda sive deteriorata. Charta Simonis Comitis Leicesteræ, Anno 1209.

Abay, or Abey: Ye shall fore Abey it; that is, you shall suffer great Pain, or pay dear for it: From the Word Buy, the Letter A being added.

Abbay, (Abbatia) Is the same as to the Government of a Religious House, and the Revenues thereof, subject to an Abbot, as a Bishoprick is to a Bishop. This Word is used in some of our ancient Grants, particularly Anno 34 & 35 Hen. 8. in a Grant to the Countess of Pembroke.

Sciant quod ego Isabella Comitissa Pembr. pro salute Anima mea, &c. Dedi Deo & Abbatæ de Nutteleg. totam Wickham juxta prædictam Abbatiam, &c.

Abbat, or Abbot, (Abbas in Latin, in French Abbe, and in Saxon Abbud) Is a spiritual Lord or Governor, having the Rule of a Religious House: The Word is also by some derived from the Syriac Abba Pater. Of these Abbots here in England, some were elective, some preservative; and some were mitred, and some were not; such as were mitred had Episcopal Authority within their Limits, being exempted from the Jurisdiction of the Diocesan; but the other Sort of Abbots bots were subject to the Diocesan in all Spiritual Government. The mitred Abbots were Lords of Parliament, and were called Abbots Sovereign, and Abbots General, to distinguish them from the other Abbots. And as there were Abbots; so there were also Lords Priors, who had exempt Jurisdiction, and were likewise Lords of Parliament. Some reckon twenty-six of these Lords Abbots and Priors that sat in Parliament. Sir Edw. Coke says there were twenty-seven parliamentary Abbots, and two Priors. Co. Lit. 97. In the Parliament 20 R. 2. there were but twenty-five: But Anno 4 Ed. 3. in the Summons to the Parliament at Winton more are named. And in Monasticon Anglicanum, there is also Mention of more; the Names of which were as follow: Abbots of St. Austin's in Canterbury, Ramsay, Peterborough, Croyland, Evesham, St. Benet de Hulmo, Thornby, Colchester, Leicester, Winchcomb, Westminster, Cirencester, St. Alban's, St. Mary's York, Spresbury, Selby, St. Peter's Gloucester, Malmesbury, Waltham, Thorney, St. Edmond's, Beaulieu, Abingdon, Hide, Rading, Glastonbury, and Osney.—And Priors of Spalding, St. John's of Jerusalem, and Leves.—To which were afterwards added, the Abbots of St. Austin's Bristol, and of Bardeny, and the Priory de Sempingham. These Abbeys and Priories, were founded by our antient Kings, and great Men, from the Year 602 to 1133. An Abbot with the Monks of the same House were called the Convent, and made a Corporation; but the Abbot was not chargeable by the Act of his Predecessor, unless it were under the common Seal, or for such Things as came to the Use of the House or Convent. Terms de Ley 4. By Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 28. All Abbeys, Monasteries, Priories, &c. not above the Value of 200 l. per Annum, were given to the King, who sold the Lands at low Rates to the Gentry. Anno 29 H. 8. the Rest of the Abbots, &c. made voluntary Surrenders of their Houses, to obtain Favour of the King: And Anno 31 H. 8. A Bill was brought into the House to confirm those Surrenders; which passing, compleated the Dissolution, except the Hospitals and Colleges, which were not dissolv'd, the first till the 33d, and the last till the 37th of H. 8. when Commissioners were appointed to enter and seise the said Lands, &c.

Abbatis, An Avenor or Steward of the Stables; the Word was sometimes used for a common Hostler, pronounc'd short in the middle Syllable.—Abbatis ad cœnam dat Equis Abbatis avenam. Spelm.

Abbrochment, (Abbrocamentum) The Buying up of Wares before they are expos'd to Sale in a Fair or Market, and Selling the same by Retail; which is a Forefalling of a Market or Fair. MS. de placit' coram Rege Ed. 3. penes J. Trevor Mil.

Abbuttals, (from the French Abutter, to limit or bound) Are the Buttings and Boundings of Lands, East, West, North, or South, shewing how the same lie with Respect to others; as on what Lands, Highways, or other Places, they are limited and bounded. The Word Abuttare, to Abbut or bound, is derived from the Saxon Onbutan, or Butan. Cambden tells us, that Limits were distinguish'd by Hillocks rais'd in the Lands call'd Botentines, whence we have our Word Butting. The Sides on the Breadth of Lands are properly Adjacentes, lying or bordering; and the Ends in Length Abbuttantes, Abutting or Bounding. And in old Surveys these last are called Head-Lands, from Capitare to Head. The Boundaries and Buttals of Corporation and Church Lands and of Parishes are preserved by an annual Procession. And Boundaries are of several Sorts; such as Inclosures of Hedges; Ditches and Stones in common Fields; Brooks, Rivers, and Highways, &c. of Manors and Lordships.

Abdicate, (Abdicare) To renounce or refuse any Thing. Terms de Ley 5.

Abdication, (Abdicatio) A Renunciation, Quitting and Relinquishing, so as to have nothing further to do with a Thing; or the Doing of such Actions as are inconsistent with the Holding of it. On King James's Leaving the Kingdom and Abdicating the Government, the Lords would have had the Word Desertion made Use of; but the Commons thought it was not comprehensive enough, for that the King might then have Liberty of Returning. Abdication Debates. The Scots called it a Forfeiture of the Crown, from the Verb Forisfacio.

Abditozium, An Abditory or Hiding-Place, to hide and preserve Goods, Plate, or Money: And is used for a Chest in which Reliques are kept, as mentioned in the Inventory of the Church of York. Mon. Angl. p. 173.—Item unum Coffeur, & una pixis de Ebore ornata cum argento deaurato, Item tria Abditoria, &c.

Abbeched, From the French Abbecher to feed, is an old Word, which signifies to be satisfied.

Abberemurder, Abberemurdrum, Plain or downright Murder, as distinguish'd from the less heinous Crimes of Manslaughter and Chance-medley. It is derived from the Saxon Æbepe, apparent, notorious, and Mord, Murder: And was declared a capital Offence, without Fine or Commutation, by the Laws of Canute, cap. 43. and of Hen. 1. c. 13. Spelm.

Abbeſſed, (from the French Abbaiffer, to depress) Hath the Signification of Humbled; and hence we derive the Words Abase and Base.

Abett, (Abettare) From the Saxon A and Bedan or Beteren, to stir up or incite; or from the French Bouter, Impellere or Excitare. In our Law it signifies as much as to encourage or set on. The Substantive Abetment, is used for an Encouraging or Instigation. Staundf. Pl. Cr. 105. And Abettor (Abettator) is an Instigator or Setter on; one that promotes or procures a Crime. Old Nat. Br. 21. Abettors of Murder, are such as command, procure, or counsel others to perpetrate the Murder; and in some Cases these Abettors shall be taken as Principals, in others but as Accessaries; their Presence or Absence at the Time of committing the Fact, making the Difference. Co. Lit. 475. Vide Accessaries.

Abeyance, or Abbeyance, (from the Fr. Bayer) To expect: It is what is in Expectation, Remembrance and Intendment of Law. By a Principle of Law, in every Land there is a Fee-simple in some Body, or it is in Abeyance. Litt. c. Discontin. If a Man be Patron of a Church, and Presents one to the same, now the Fee of the Lands and Tenements pertaining to the Rectory is in the Parson: But if the Parson die, and the Church become void, then is the Fee in Abeyance, until there be a new Parson presented, admitted and inducted; for the Patron hath not the Fee, but only the Right to present, the Fee being in the Incumbent that is presented. Terms de Ley 6. The Frank-tenement of the Glebe of a Parsonage, during the Time the Parsonage is void, is in no Man; but in Abeyance or Expectation, belonging to him who is next to enjoy it. If a Man makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder to the right

Heirs of J. S. the Fee-simple is in Abeyance until J. S. dies. Co. Lit. 342. In this Case the Remainder passeth from the Grantor presently; tho' it vests not presently in the Grantee, but is said to be in Abeyance until J. S. dies, after whose Death the Heir has a good Remainder, and it ceases to be in Abeyance. Terms de ley. If Lands be leased to A. B. for Life, the Remainder to another Person for Years, the Remainder for Years is in Abeyance until the Death of the Lessee, and then it shall vest in him in Remainder as a Purchaser, and as a Chattel shall go to his Executors. 3 Leon. 23. Where Tenant for Term of another's Life dieth, the Freehold of the Lands is in Abeyance till the Entry of the Occupant. Fee-simple in Abeyance cannot be charged until it comes in esse, so as to be certainly charged or aliened; tho' by Possibility it may fall every Hour. Co. Lit. 378. The Word Abeyance hath been compared to what the Civilians call Hereditatem jacentem; for as the Civilians say Lands and Goods do jacere, so the Common Lawyers say, that Things in like Estate are in Abeyance, as the Logicians term it in posse, or in Understanding; and as we say in nubibus, that is in Consideration of Law. See Plowd. Rep. Walsingham's Case.

Abgatoria, Abgetorium, The Alphabet A. B. C. &c. This seems to be an Irish Word. Mat. Westm. reports of St. Patrick — Abgetoria quoque 345. & eo amplius scripsit, totidem Episcopos ordinavit — The Irish still call the Alphabet Abghittin.

Abigevus, For Abigens, signifies a Thief who hath stoll many Cattle, viz. Si quis suam surripuit fur erit, & si quis gregem Abigevus erit. Bract. l. 3. cap. 6.

Abissuring, Is understood to be quit of Amercements. It originally signified a Forfeiture or Amercement; and is more properly Misshering or Miskering, according to the Learned Spelman. Since it hath been termed a Liberty or Freedom, because where-ever this Word is used in a Grant or Charter, the Persons to whom made have the Forfeitures and Amercements of all others, and are themselves free from the Control of any within their Fee. Rastal's Abr. Terms de ley.

Abjuration, (Abjuratio) A Forswearing or Renouncing by Oath, signifies a sworn Banishment, or an Oath taken to forsake the Realm for ever Staundf. Pl. Cr. l. 2. c. 40. It also hath now another Signification extending to the Person, as well as Place; as to abjure the Pretender by Oath, &c. Formerly in King Edward the Confessor's Time, and other Reigns down to the 22 H. 8. (in Imitation of the Clemency of the Roman Emperors towards such as fled to the Church) if a Man had committed Felony here, and he could fly to a Church or Church-yard before his Apprehension, he might not be taken from thence to be tried for his Crime; but on Confession thereof before the Justice, or before the Coroner, he was admitted to his Oath to abjure or forsake the Realm; which Privilege he was to have for forty days, during which Time any Persons might give him Meat and Drink for his Sustenance, but not after, on Pain of being guilty of Felony: The Form of the Oath you may read in an ancient Tract de officio Coronatorum, and in Horn's Mirror of Justice, lib. 1. But at last, this Punishment being but a perpetual Confinement of the Offender to some Sanctuary, wherein (upon Abjuration of his Liberty and free Habitation) he would chuse to spend his Life, as appears by the Statute Anno 22 H. 8. c. 14. it is enacted 21 Jac. 1. c. 28. That thence after no Sanctuary or Privilege of Sanctuary should be allowed; whereupon this Abjuration ceased. 2 Inst. 629. An Abjuration or Deportation for ever into a foreign Country, is a civil Death; and called (by the Lord Coke) a Divorce between Husband and Wife; and the Wife of such a Person may bring Actions, or be impleaded during the natural Life of the Husband, which she may not do in any other Case. Co. Lit. 133. This is where a Person suffers Banishment for any Crime. By Stat. 35 Eliz. Popish Recusants not making the Submission of Conformity, &c. are to abjure the Realm. And by 1 W. & M. 13. W. 3. 1 Geo. &c. All Persons are to abjure the pretended Prince of Wales; and refusing the Oath, are liable to divers Penalties and Forfeitures, &c. This Abjuration Oath was invented for the Security of the Crown, and the Protestant Religion. See Oaths.

Abolition, A Destroying or Effacing, or putting out of Memory: And signifies the Leave given by the King, or Judges, to a Criminal Accuser to desist from further Prosecution. Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 21.

Abzidge, (Abbreviare) Is derived from the French Word Abreger, to make shorter in Words so as to retain the Sense and Substance. And in the Common Law it signifies particularly the Making a Declaration or Count shorter, by severing some of the Substance from it: A Man is said to abridge his Complaint in Assize; and a Woman her Demand in Action of Dower, where any Land is put into the Complaint or Demand which is not in the Tenure of the Defendant; for if the Defendant pleads Non-tenure, Joint-tenancy, &c. in Abatement of the Writ, the Plaintiff may leave out those Lands, and pray that the Tenant may answer to the Rest. The Reason of this Abridgment of the Complaint is, because the Certainty is not set down in such Writs, but they run in general: And though the Demandant hath abridged his Complaint in Part, yet the Writ will be good for the Remainder. Brook, Tit. Abridgment, Anno 21 H. 8. c. 3.

Abzidgment, (Abbreviamentum) A Treatise or Writing abridged and made shorter.

Abzocamentum, The Buying Goods by Wholesale before they are brought to the Market, and Selling them again in Parcels. See Abzocament.

Abzogate, (Abrogare) To disannul or take away any Thing: As to abrogate a Law, is to lay aside or repeal it. Stat. 5 & 6. Ed. 6. c. 3.

Abzenter, or Des Absentees, Was a Parliament so called, held at Dublin 10 May 28 H. 8. And mentioned in Letters Patent, Dar. 29 H. 8. Vide 4 Co. Inst. 354.

Abzolve, (Absolvere) To absolve one excommunicated, or pardon, or set free from Excommunication. Vide Affoile.

Abzolutions from Rome, High Treason, &c. Stat. 23 Eliz. See, Bull.

Abzoniare, Was a Word used by the English Saxons in the Oath of Fealty, and signified to shun or avoid — As in the Form of the Oath among the Saxons recorded by Mr. Sommer: In illo Deo, pro quo sanctum hoc sanctificatum est, volo esse nunc Domino meo N. fidelis & credibilis, & amare quod amat, & abzoniare quod abzoniatur, per Dei rectum, & seculi competentiam —

Abzque hac, Are Words of Exception made Use of in a Traverse; as the Defendant pleads that that such a Thing was done at, &c. absque hoc, that it was done at, &c. Mod. ca. 103. v. Ardenne.

Accapitum, and Accapitare, The same with Relief due to Lords of Manors—Capitali Domino accapitare, i. e. to pay a Relief to the Chief Lord. Fleta l. 2. c. 50.

Arcebas ad Curiam, Is a Writ that lies where a Man hath received false Judgment in a Hundred-Court, or Court-Baron. It is directed to the Sheriff; and issued out of the Chancery, but returnable into B. R. or C. B. And is in the Nature of the Writ de falso judicio, which lies for him that hath received false Judgment in the County-Court. In the Register of Writs, it is said to be a Writ that lies as well for Justice delayed, as for false Judgment; and that it is a Species of the Writ Recordare, the Sheriff being to make Record of the Suit in the inferior Court, and certify it into the King's Court. Reg. Orig. 9. 56. F. N. B. 18. Dyer 169.

Arcebas ad Wircomitum. Where a Sheriff hath a Writ called Pone delivered to him, but suppresseth it; this Writ is directed to the Coroner, commanding him to deliver a Writ to the Sheriff. Reg. Orig. 83.

Acceptance, (Acceptatio) Is the Taking and Accepting of any Thing in good Part, and as it were a tacit Agreement to a preceding Act, which might have been defeated and avoided, were it not for such Acceptance had. For Example; If a Bishop before the Statute 1 El. leased Part of his Bishoprick for Term of Years, reserving Rent, and then dies; and after another is made Bishop, who accepts and receives the Rent when due, by this Acceptance, the Lease is made good, which otherwise the new Bishop might have avoided. It is the same if Baron and Feme seized of Lands in Right of the Feme, join and make a Lease or Feoffment, reserving Rent; and the Baron dies, after whose Death the Feme receives or accepts the Rent; by this the Lease or Feoffment is confirmed, and shall bar her from bringing a Cui in vita. Co. Lit. 211. But if a Parson, &c. make a Lease for Years not warranted by the Statute 32 H. 8. but is void by his Death; Acceptance of Rent by a new Parson or Successor, will not make it good. 1 Saund. 241. And if a Tenant for Life make a Lease for Years, there no Acceptance will make the Lease good, because the Lease is void by his Death. Dyer 46, 239. So if Tenant in Dower, Leases for Years, and dies, and the Heir accepts the Rent. Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years not warranted by the Statute, rendering Rent, and dies; if the Issue accepts the Rent, it shall bind him. 3 Leon. Case 36. And if an Infant accepts of Rent at his full Age, it makes the Lease good, and shall bind him. But if Tenant in Tail make a Lease for Years, to commence after his Death, rendering Rent, in such Case Acceptance of Rent by the Issue, will not make the Lease good to bar him, because the Lease did not take Effect in the Life of his Ancestor. Plowd. 418. If a Lessor accepts from his Tenant, the last Rent due to him, and gives the Lessee a Release for it, all Rent in Arrear is by Law presumed to be satisfied. Co. Lit. 373. And if a Lessee for Term of 20 Years, accepts of a Lease of the same Land for 10 Years, by the Lessee's Acceptance of the new Lease, the Term of 20 Years is determined in Law. 2 Roll. Abr. 469. Lease is made on Condition, that the Lessee shall do no Waste; if he commits Waste, and afterwards the Lessor accepts the Rent, he cannot Enter. Godb. 47. And where a Lessor accepteth of a Surrender from the Lessee, he will be concluded of his Action of Waste, for Waste before the Surrender. Acceptance of the next Rent due, at a Day afterwards, will bar one to Enter for a Condition broken before by Reason of Non-payment of the Rent; because the Lessor thereby affirmeth the Lease to have Continuance. Co. Lit. 211. And taking a Distress, affirmeth the Continuance of the Rent: But if Rent was due, at a Day before, and thereby the Condition was broken, one may receive that Rent; and yet re-enter. And if he accepts of Part of the Rent, he may enter for a Condition broken, and retain the Lands until he has the whole Rent. 3 Rep. 64. 1 Inst. 203. On accepting of Rent afterwards, the Lessor must have Notice of the Breach of the Condition, to bar his Entry. 1 Leon. 626. If a Lessor accepts of Rent from an Assignee, knowing of the Assignment, it bars him from Action of Debt against the Lessee; for the Privy of Contract is extinguished: But after such Acceptance, the Lessor, or his Assigns may maintain an Action against the first Lessee upon his Covenant for Payment of the Rent. 1 Saund. 241. 3 Rep. 24. Acceptance of Rent from the Assignee has been adjudged a sufficient Notice of this Assignment, so that the Lessor could not resort to the first Lessee. 2 Bulst. 151. Acceptance of a lesser Sum of Money, may be in Satisfaction of a greater Sum, if it be before the Day on which the Money becomes due. 3 Bulst. 301. But it will not be so after the Money is due. Moor 671. A Bill or Bond accepted may not be pleaded in Satisfaction of a Bond; but 'tis said a new Bond may, if it be not for Payment of Money on another Day. Hob. 68, 69. Where the Condition of a Bond is to pay Money, Acceptance of another Thing is good: But if the Condition is not for Money, but a collateral Thing, it is otherwise. Dyer 56. 9 Rep. 79. And the Acceptance of uncertain Things, as Customs, &c. made over, may not be pleaded in Satisfaction of a certain Sum due on Bond. Cro. Car. 192. If a Woman hath Title to an Estate of Inheritance, as Dower, &c. she shall not be barred by any collateral Satisfaction or Recompence: And no collateral Acceptance can bar any Right of Inheritance or Freehold, without some Release, &c. 4 Rep. 1. When a Man is intitled to a Thing in gross, he is not bound to accept it by Parcels; and if a Lessor distrains for Rent, he is not obliged to accept Part of it; nor in Action of Detinue, Part of the Goods, &c. 3 Salk. 2.

Accessory, Accessorius vel Accessorium, (Particeps Criminis) Is where a Man is guilty of a felonious Offence, not Principally, but by Participation, as by Command, Advice, or Concealment, &c. And is of two Sorts, viz. Before the Fact, and after it: An Accessory before the Fact, is he that Commands or Procures another to commit Felony, and is not himself present when it is done; for if he be present, he is a Principal: And an Accessory after the Fact, is he that receives, assists or comforts any Man that hath committed Murder or Felony, which hath come to his Knowledge; But this doth not extend to a Woman, who receives or assists her Husband; tho' a Husband receiving his Wife, will be Accessory; and a Servant may be Accessory in relieving his Master, or assisting him in his Escape, &c. Also

Per-

Persons furnishing others with Weapons; finding a Felon a Horse for his Journey, or relieving him with Money, Victuals, &c. will make Persons Accessary. H. P. C. 218. 3 Inst. 108. There is likewise an Accessary of an Accessary; as he that receives an Accessary to a Felony. Fitz. Coron. 197. And Accessaries in Petit Treason, Murder, Robbery on the Highway, in Dwelling-Houses, &c. shall not have their Clergy. 4 & 5 P. & M. c. 4. One that is present and aiding the Stabbing of another, is not a Principal, but Accessary to the Stabbing, within the Act 1 Jac. 1. There cannot be an Accessary before the Fact in Manslaughter, because it is committed of a sudden, and unpremeditated. H. P. C. He who Counsels or Commands any Evil, shall be adjudged Accessary to all that follows upon it; but not to any Thing else. If a Person commandeth another to beat such a Person, and he beats him so that he dies of his Wounds, the Person commanding will be Accessary to the Murder: But if the Command had been to beat another Person; or to burn such a House, and he burns another; he that commandeth will not be Accessary. 3 Inst. 51. If I command a Person to do an unlawful Act, as to rob A. B. at one Place, and he doth it at another; or to rob him on such a Day, and he doth it not himself, but procures another to do it; or to kill by Poison, and he doth it by Violence; in all these Cases I shall be Accessary: But where the Command is to kill A. B. and he killeth A. D. this differing in Substance, will not make the Commander Accessary. Plowd. 475. If a Man counsels a Woman to murder the Child in her Womb, and the Woman murder her Child after it is Born, he is Accessary to the Murder. Dyer 185. If the Owner of stolen Goods, after Complaint made to a Justice of Peace, consent to the Escape of the Felon, or compound the Offence, this 'tis said will make him Accessary after the Fact. Lamb. 285. Persons buying or receiving stolen Goods, knowing the same to be stolen, are Accessaries to the Felony. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. If a Principal be not attainted, convicted, or outlawed thereupon, the Accessary may not be arraigned; there being a Law-Maxim, Ubi non est principalis non potest esse accessorius. If the Principal is pardoned, or hath his Clergy, the Accessary cannot be arraigned; for the Principal must be adjudged so by Law: But if the Principal is pardoned after Attainder, in such Case the Accessary may be arraigned, because it appears judicially that there was a Principal. 4 Rep. 43. If the Principal be erroneously attainted, it must stand good 'till 'tis reversed. 9 Rep. By Stat. 1 Ann. c. 9. It is enacted, that where the Principal is convicted of Felony, or stands Mute, or challenges above twenty of the Jury, it shall be lawful to proceed against the Accessary in the same Manner as if the Principal had been attainted; and notwithstanding such Principal shall be admitted to his Clergy, pardoned, or delivered before Attainder. And if the Principal can't be taken, then the Accessary may be prosecuted for a Misdemeanor, and punished by Fine, Imprisonment, &c. Stat. ibid. See Stat. 5 Ann. c. 31. Accessaries are by Common Law, and by Statute: But in the highest and lowest Offences, there are no Accessaries; but all are Principals. Co. Lit. 71. Vide Murder, Principal, &c.

Accola, An Husbandman whocame from some other Parts or Country to till the Lands, eo quod adveniens terram colat — And is thus distinguished from Incola, viz. Accola non propriam, propriam colit Incola terram. Du Fresne.

Accolade (from the French Accoller, collum amplecti) A Ceremony used in Knighthood by the King's putting his Hand about the Knight's Neck.

Accompt, (Computus) Is a Writ or Action which lies against a Bailiff or Receiver to a Lord or others who by Reason of their Offices and Business, are to render Accompts; but refuse to do it. F. N. B. 116. If a Man make one his Bailiff of a Manor, &c. he shall have a Writ of Accompt against him as Bailiff. Where a Person makes one his Receiver, to receive his Rents or Debts, &c. he shall have Accompt against him as Receiver. And if a Man make one his Bailiff, and also his Receiver, then he shall Accompt against him in both Ways. Also a Person may have a Writ of Accompt against a Man as Bailiff or Receiver, where he was not his Bailiff or Receiver; as if a Man receive Money for my Use, I shall have an Accompt against him as Receiver; or if a Person deliver Money unto another to deliver over unto me, I shall likewise have Accompt against him as my Receiver. So if a Man enter into my Lands to my Use, and receive the Profits thereof, I shall have an Accompt against him as Bailiff. 9 H. 6. 36 H. 6. 10 R. 2. Fitz. Accompt 6. A Judgment in Accompt as Receiver, is no Bar to Action of Accompt as Bailiff. 2 Lev. 127. But a Bailiff cannot be charged as Receiver, nor a Receiver as Bailiff; because then he might be twice charged. 1 Danv. Abr. 220, 221. Where two Persons are adjudged jointly to Accompt, if one Discharges himself upon the Accompt, it shall be a Discharge to the other; and if he be charged by the Accompt, it shall be a Charge upon the other. Danv. 230. None shall be generally charged in Accompt but as Bailiff or Receiver, or Guardian in Socage. 1 Danv. 220. Action of Accompt will not lie against Executors or Administrators, but Action of Debt for Money delivered the Testator, &c. 1 Roll. Rep. 52. By the Stat. Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 11. Masters may assign Auditors to take the Accompt of Servants, &c. (this extends not to Guardians in Socage.) And if the Accomptant be found in Arrear, the Auditors assigned have Power to commit him to Prison, there to remain till he makes Agreement with the Party: But if the Accomptant be not allowed his reasonable Expences and Costs, or if he be charged with more Receipts than he ought, he may sue out of the Chancery a Writ ex parte talis, directed to the Sheriff to take four Mainpernors for bringing his Body before the Barons of the Exchequer at a certain Day, and to warn the Lord or Master to appear at the same Time. Vide the Statute. Where a Man is adjudged to Accompt, the Court may assign him Auditors: And before the Auditors, the Plaintiff or Defendant may join Issue, or demur upon the Pleadings before them; which shall be certified to the Court, and there tried or argued. If Auditors are assigned, and a Day given the Defendant to Accompt before them, if the Defendant would pray a further Day to give in his Accompt, the Auditors must grant it, and not the Court: But if the Defendant is remiss and negligent, they must certify to the Court that he will not Accompt. 1 Danv. 231. 1 Mod. 42. By 4 & 5 Ann. Actions of Accompt may be brought against the Executors and Administrators of Guar-

Guardians, Bailiffs, Receivers, &c. And by one Joint-tenant, &c. against the other his Executors and Administrators, as Bailiff for receiving more than his Share; and the Auditors appointed by the Court, where the Action shall be depending, are authorized to Administer an Oath, and examine the Parties, &c. The Auditors are Judges of Record. 2 Inst. 380. But what may be pleaded in Bar to the Action, shall not be allowed to be pleaded before the Auditors. Cro. Car. 82. 161. If Action of Accompt be brought against one as Bailiff, he shall be allowed his Costs and Expenses; but 'tis otherwise if such Action be brought against him as Receiver. Co. Lit. 172. If a Bailiff or Receiver make a Deputy, Action of Accompt will not lie against the Deputy, but against them. 1 Leon. 32. If a Person receive Money due to me upon an Obligation, or for Rents owing to me, I may either have an Action of Accompt against him as my Receiver, or Action of Debt, or on the Case, as owing me so much Money as he hath received. 1 Lill. 33. If I pay Money to another, I may bring an Action against him for so much Money received to my Use: But then he may Discharge himself by alledging it was for some Debt, or to be paid over by my Order to some other Person, which he hath done, &c. 1 Lill. 30. An Apprentice shall not be charged with Action of Accompt: But if a Man have a Servant, whom he Orders to receive Money, the Master shall have Accompt against him, if he were his Receiver. 1 Inst. 172. If Money be received by a Man's Wife, Action of Accompt lies against the Husband, and he may be charged in the Declaration as his own Receipt. Co. Lit. 295. As to other Actions of Accompt, they will not lie of a Thing certain; if a Man delivers 10 l. to Merchandize with, he shall not have Accompt of the 10 l. but of the Profits, which are uncertain. And this is one Reason why this Action shall not lie for the Arrears of Rent. 1 Danv. 215. Action of Accompt may be brought against a Factor who sells Goods and Merchandizes upon Credit, without a particular Commission so to do, tho' the Goods are bona peritura. 2 Mod. 100. The usual Pleas in this Action, are Quod nunquam fuit Receptor, quod plene computavit, &c. It is no Plea in an Accomptant that he was robbed; but alledging it was without his Default and Negligence, will be a good Plea. Co. Lit. 89. This Action is now almost disused: Damages are not given by it, for the Judgment is only to Accompt. 1 Leon. 302. The usual Judgment is quod computet, on which the Defendant is taken by Capias ad computandum. The Process in Accompt, is Summons, Pone, and Distress, and upon a Nihil returned, the Plaintiff may proceed to Outlawry. The Statute of Limitations, 21 Fac. 1. doth not bar a Man who is a Merchant from bringing Action of Accompt for Merchandize at any Time: But all other Actions of Accompt are within the Statute.

Accord, (French) Is an Agreement, Concordance or Consent; and signifies an Agreement between two or more Persons where any one is injured by a Trespass, Offence or Contract, to satisfy him with some Recompence, which if executed and performed, shall be a good Bar in Law, if the other Party after the Accord performed bring any Action for the same. Terms de ley 14. And it is to be observed that Accord executed only is pleadable in Bar; and Executory not. 1 Mod. 69. Also in Pleading it, 'tis safest by Way of Satisfaction, and not of Accord alone. For if it be pleaded by Way of Accord, a precise Execution thereof in every Part must be pleaded: But by Way of Satisfaction, the Plaintiff need only alledge, that he paid the Plaintiff such a Sum, &c. in full Satisfaction of the Accord which the Plaintiff received. 9 Rep. 80. The Defendant must plead that the Plaintiff accepted the Thing agreed upon in full Satisfaction, &c. And if it be on a Bond, it must be in Satisfaction of the Money mentioned in the Condition, and not of the Bond; which can't be discharged but by Writing under Hand and Seal. Cro. Jac. 254, 650. When a Duty is created by Deed in Certainty, as by Bill, Bond, or Covenant to pay a Sum of Money, this Duty accruing by Writing, ought to be discharged by Matter of as high a Nature: But when no certain Duty arises by Deed, but the Action is for a Tort or Default, &c. for which Damages are to be recovered, there an Accord with Satisfaction is a good Plea. 6 Rep. 43. As a Contract upon Consideration may commence by Words; so by an Agreement by Words for any valuable Consideration, the Agreement may be dissolved. In Accord, one Promise may be pleaded in Discharge of another, before Breach; but after Breach, it cannot be discharged without a Release in Writing. 2 Mod. 44. Accord with Satisfaction, is no Plea to a Covenant not broken; for the Covenant being created by Deed, by Deed must be discharged: But upon a Covenant broken, it is a good Plea in Satisfaction and Discharge of the Damages. Lutw. 359. And Accord made before the Covenant broke, hath been adjudged a good Bar of Action of Covenant, as it may be in Satisfaction of Damage to come. 1 Danv. 546. An Accord with Satisfaction may be pleaded in Bar in Account; but not in Discharge. Heth. 114. If a Contract without Deed is to deliver Goods, &c. there Money may be paid by Accord in Satisfaction: But if one is bound in an Obligation to deliver Goods, or to do any collateral Thing, the Oblige can't by Accord give Money in Satisfaction thereof: Though when one is bound to pay Money, he may give Goods or any other valuable Thing in Satisfaction. 9 Rep. 78. 1 Inst. 212. Where Damages are uncertain, a lesser Thing may be done in Satisfaction, and in such Case an Accord and Satisfaction is a good Plea; but in Action of Debt on a Bond, there a lesser Sum cannot be paid in Satisfaction of a greater. 4 Mod. 88. Accord with Satisfaction is a good Plea in personal Actions, where Damages only are to be recovered; and in all Actions which suppose a Wrong, vi & armis, where a Capias and Exigent lay at the Common Law, in Trespass and Ejectment, Detinue, &c. Accord is a good Plea: So in an Appeal of Maihem. But in real Actions it is not a good Plea. 4 Rep. 1, 9, 70. 9 Rep. 77. An Accord is not any Bar of an Action, unless it be executed, because the Plaintiff hath not any Means to recover that which he ought to have by the Accord. Danv. Abr. 240. But of late it hath been been held, that upon mutual Promises an Action lies, and consequently there being equal Remedy on both Sides, an Accord may be pleaded without Execution, as well as an Arbitrament. Raym. 450. 2 Jones 158. Acceptance of the Thing agreed on in these Accords is the only material Thing to make them binding. Hob. 178. 5 Mod. 86.

Accroche, (from the French Accrocher) To hook or grapple unto: It signifies as much as to encroach, and is mentioned in the Statute 25 Ed. 3. c. 8. to that Purpose. The French use it for Delay, as Accrocher un Proces. to stay the Proceedings in a Suit.

Accusation, (Accusatio) To charge any Person with a Crime. By Magna Charta, no Man shall be imprisoned or condemned on any Accusation, without Trial by his Peers, and the Law. 9 H. 3. And none shall be compelled to answer an Accusation to the King, without Presentment, or some Matter of Record. Stat. 42 Ed. 3. Promoters of Suggestions are to find Surety to pursue them; and not making them Good, shall satisfy Damages to the Party accused, and pay a Fine to the King. 38 Ed. 3. c. 9. In Treason there must be two lawful Accusers. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. Vide the Statutes.

Ac etiam Bille, Words or a Clause of a Writ, where the Action requires good Bail. The Stat. 13 Car. 2. c. 2. which enjoins the Cause of Action to be particularly expressed in the Writ or Process which holds a Person to Bail, hath ordained the Inserting of this Clause in Writs; but it ought not to be made out against a Peer of the Realm, or upon a penal Statute, or against an Executor or Administrator, or for any Debt under 10 l. Nor in any Action of Account render, Action of Covenant, &c. unless the Damages are 10 l. or more: Nor in Action of Trespas, or for Battery, Wounding or Imprisonment, except there be an Order of Court for it, or a Warrant under the Hand of one of the Judges of the Court out of which the Writ issues. 1 Lill. Abr. 12.

Achat, (Fr. Achet) Signifies a Contract or Bargain. Purveyors by Statute 36 Ed. 3. were called Achators, from their frequent Making of Bargains.

Acherfet, A Measure of Corn, conjectured to be the same with our Quarter or eight Bushels. The Monks of Peterborough had an Allowance weekly of twelve Acherfetos de frumento, and eight Acherfetos de Brasio, and Six de Grad. and eleven Acherfetos de fabis, &c.

Acholite, (A. bolitus) An inferior Church Servant who, next under the Subdeacon, followed or waited on the Priests and Deacons, and perform'd the meaner Offices of lighting the Candles, carrying the Bread and Wine, and paying other servile Attendance.

Acknowledgment Money, Is a Sum paid in some Parts of England by Tenants on the Death of their Landlords, as an Acknowledgment of their new Lords; in like Manner as Money is usually paid on the Attornment of Tenants.

Solvet XII d. ad Recognitionem cujuslibet novi Domini de Hope, &c.—Ex libro Cart. Prior. Leominstræ.—It is in Latin called, Laudativum vel Laudemium, a laudando Domino.

Acquietancia de Shiris & Hundredis, To be free from Suits and Services in Shires and Hundreds.

Acquietandis Plegiis, A Writ of Justicies lying for the Surety against a Creditor, who refuses to acquit him after the Debt is satisfied. Reg. of Writs 158.

Acquittal, (from the French Word Acquitter, and the Latin Compound Acquietare) To free or discharge: It signifies in one Sense to be free from Entries and Molestations of a superior Lord for Services issuing out of Lands; and in another Signification (the most General) it is taken for a Deliverance and Setting free from the Suspicion of Guilt; as he that on Trial is discharged of a Felony, is said to be Acquietatus de Felonia; and if he be drawn in Question again for the same Crime, he may plead auter foits acquit; as his Life shall not be twice put in Danger for the same Offence. When two are indicted, the one as Principal and the other as Accessary, the Principal being discharged, the Accessary of Consequence will be acquitted by Law: Acquittal in Fact, is when a Man is found Not guilty of the Offence by a Jury, on Verdict, &c. 2 Inst. 385. But in Murder, if a Man is acquitted, Appeal may be brought against him. 3 Inst. 275. If a Person is acquitted on a malicious Prosecution, he may bring his Action, &c. for Damages, after he hath obtained a Copy of the Indictment and the Judge's Certificate. An Offender may be acquitted by the King's Pardon, or Proclamation. Staundf. 168.

Acquittance, (Acquietancia) Signifieth a Discharge in Writing of a Sum of Money, or Debt due: As if a Man be bound to pay Money upon Bond, or Rent reserved upon a Lease, &c. And the Party to whom due, on Receipt thereof, gives a Writing under his Hand witnessing that he is paid. This will be such a Discharge in Law, that he cannot demand and recover the Sum or Duty again, if the Acquittance be produced. Terms de Ley 15. Dyer 6, 25, 51. An Acquittance is a Discharge and Bar in the Law, to Actions, &c. And if one acknowledges himself to be satisfied by Deed, it may be a good Plea in Bar, without any Thing received: But an Acquittance, without Seal, is only Evidence of Satisfaction, and not pleadable; for no Deed signifies a Deed of Acquittance. 1 Inst. 52. The Obligor is not bound to pay Money upon a single Bond, except an Acquittance be given him by the Obligee: Nor is he obliged to pay the Money before he hath the Acquittance. But in Case of an Obligation with a Condition, it is otherwise; for there one may aver Payment. And by 3 & 4 Ann. c. 16. If an Action of Debt is brought upon a single Bill, and the Defendant hath paid the Money, such Payment may be pleaded in Bar of the Action. A Servant may give an Acquittance for the Use of his Master, where such Servant usually receives his Master's Rents, &c. and the Master shall be bound by it. 1 Inst. 112. The Manner of Tender and Payment of Money shall be generally directed by him who pays it, and not by him who receives it; and the Acquittance ought to be given accordingly.

Acre, (from the German Word Aker, i. e. Ager) A Quantity of Land, containing in Length 40 Perches, and in Breadth four Perches: Or in Proportion to it, be the Length or Breadth more or less. By the Customs of Countries, the Perch differs in Quantity, and consequently the Acres of Land: It is commonly but 16 Feet and a Half; but in Staffordshire it is 24 Feet. According to the Statute 34 Hen. 8. concerning the Sowing of Flax, it is declared that 160 Perches make an an Acre, which is 40 multiplied by Four. And the Ordinance of measuring Land, 35 Ed. 1. agrees with this Account. The Word Acre formerly meant any open Ground; as Castle-Acre, West-Acre, &c. and not a determined Quantity of Land. Also Acre, or Acre-fight, is an old Sort of Duel fought by single Combatants, English and Scott, between the Frontiers of their Kingdoms, with Sword and Lance; and this Duelling was called Camp-fight, and the Combatants Champions, from the open Field that was the Stage of Trial.

Action. (Actio) Is the Form of a Suit given by Law for Recovery of that which is one's Due: Or it is a legal Demand of a Man's Right. 1 Inst. 285. And the learned Braffton thus defines it: Actio nihil aliud est quam jus prosequendi in Judio quod alicui debetur. And Actions are either Criminal or Civil; Criminal, to have Judgment of Death, as Appeals of Death, Robbery, &c. or only to have Judgment for Damage to the Party, Fine to the King and Imprisonment, as Appeals of Maihem, &c. 1 Inst. 284. 2 Inst. 40. Civil Actions are such which tend only to the Recovery of that which by Reason of any Contract, &c. is due to us; as Action of Debt; upon the Case, &c. 6 Inst. 61. There are also Actions Penal; which lie for some Penalty or Punishment in the Party sued, be it corporal or pecuniary. Braff. Actions upon the Statute, brought upon the Breach of any Statute, whereby an Action is given that lay not before: As where one commits Perjury to the Prejudice of another, the Party that is injured shall have a Writ upon the Statute. Actions Popular, given on the Breach of some penal Statute, which every Man hath a Right to sue for himself and the King, by Information, &c. And because this Action is not given to one especially, but generally to any that will prosecute, it is called Action Popular. These last Actions may be rank'd under Criminal Actions: And Actions Civil are divided into Real, Personal, and Mix'd. Action Real is that Action whereby a Man claims Title to Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, in Fee, or for Life: And these Actions are Possessory, or Auncestrel; Possessory, of a Man's own Possession and Seisin; or Auncestrel of the Possession or Seisin of his Ancestor. Action Personal is such as one Man brings against another, on any Contract for Money or Goods, or on Account of any Offence or Trespas; and it claims a Debt, Goods, Chattels, &c. or Damages for the same. Action Mix'd is an Action that lieth as well for the Thing demanded, as against the Person that hath it; on which the Thing is recovered, and likewise Damages for the Wrong sustained: It seeks both the Thing whereof a Man is deprived, and a Penalty for the unjust Detention. But Detinue is no Action mix'd, notwithstanding the Thing demanded and Damages for with-holding it be recovered; for it is an Action meerly personal, brought only for Goods and Chattels. In a Real Action, setting forth the Title in the Writ, several Lands held by several Titles may not be demanded in the same Writ: In Personal Actions, several Wrongs may be comprehended in one Writ. 8 Rep. 87. A Bar is perpetual in Personal Actions, and the Plaintiff is without Remedy, unless it be by Writ of Error or Attaint: But in Real Actions, if the Defendant be barred, he may commence an Action of a higher Nature; and try the same again. 5 Rep. 33. Action of Waste sued against Tenant for Life, is in the Reality and Personality; in Reality, the Place wasted being to be recovered, and in the Personality, as treble Damages are to be recovered. 1 Inst. 284. If a Disfeisor make a Feoffment to another, the Disfeisee shall have Assize of Novel Disseisin against the Disfeisor and the Feoffee, and recover Seisin of the Lands, and Damages for the Profits: And so it is by Action Mix'd, not only in Waste, but Quare Impedit, &c. Terms de Ley 18. But if a Lessee for Years commit Waste, and dies, Action of Waste may not be had against his Executor or Administrator, for Waste done by the deceased. And where a Keeper of a Prison permits one in Execution to escape, and afterwards dieth, no Action will lie against his Executors. Also if a Battery be committed on a Man, and he that is the Aggressor, or the Party on whom committed, die, the Action is gone: For Personal Actions die with the Person. 1 Inst. 53. Actions Real and Mix'd, Ejectment, Waste, Trespasles, Quare clausum fregit, &c. are to be laid in the same County where the Land lieth. But Personal and Transitory Actions, as Debt, Detinue, Assault and Battery, &c. may be brought in any County (except it be against Officers of Places, &c. by Stat. 21 Fac. 1.) 1 Inst. 282. Actions Transitory may be laid in any County, altho' the Statute 6 R. 2. enacted, That Writs of Debt, Account, &c. should be commenced in the County where the Contracts were made; for that Statute was never put in Use; and yet generally Actions have been laid in the County where the Cause of them was arising. Actions are said to be perpetual and temporal; Perpetual, those which cannot be determined by Time, and all Actions may be called perpetual that are not limited to Time for their Prosecution: Temporary Actions are those which are expressly limited: As for Example; the Statute 7 H. 8. c. 3. gives Action within four Years after the Offence committed: The 1 Ed. 6. c. 1. within three Years: The 31 Eliz. c. 5. within one Year, &c. Since the Statute of Limitations, all Actions seem to be temporary; or not so perpetual, but they may in Time be prescribed against: A Real Action may be prescribed against within five Years, on a Fine levied, or Recovery suffered. By Stat. Hen. 8. A Writ of Right for Recovery of Lands is to be brought within sixty Years: By 21 Fac. 1. Writs of Formedon for any Title to Lands in Esse, are to be sued within twenty Years: Actions of Debt, on the Case, of Account, Detinue, Trover and Trespas, are to be brought within six Years; of Assault and Battery within four Years; and Slander within two Years: But the Right of Action in these Cases is saved to Infants, Feme Coverts, Persons beyond Sea, &c. And on a fresh Promise the Time limited may be enlarged; also the Taking out and Filing of a Writ, is a good bringing of an Action to avoid the Statute of Limitations. 1 Lill. 19. Actions are joint or several; Joint, where several Persons are equally concerned, and the one cannot bring the Action, or cannot be sued, without the other; Several, in Case of Trespas, &c. done, where Persons are to be severally charg'd, and every Trespas committed by many is several. 2 Leon. 77. A Man attainted of Treason or Felony, convict of Recusancy, an Outlaw, excommunicated Person, convict of Premunire, an alien Enemy, &c. cannot not bring an Action, 'till Pardon, Reversal, Absolution, &c. But Executors or Administrators being outlawed, may sue in the Right of the Testator or Intestate; tho' not in their own Right. A Feme Covert must sue with her Husband. 1 Inst. 128. Litt. 196, &c. Infants are to sue by Guardian, &c. Actions may be brought against all Persons, whether attainted of Treason or Felony, a convict Recusant, outlawed and excommunicate, &c. and a Feme Covert must be sued with her Husband. A Scire facias, or any Writ to which the Defendant may plead, or by which a Plaintiff may recover, is an Action. 6 Rep. 3. Salk. 5. But where it appears upon the Record, that an Action is brought before the Cause of Action arises, either in the Declaration or Verdict, or otherwise by the Plaintiff's own Shewing, he shall never recover. 3 Salk. Right and Wrong are the Mother of all Actions; and therefore no Action can be brought without the having of a Right, and the Laying of a Wrong done before the Action. Hob. 198. Also injuria & damnum are the Foundations of Actions on the Case. March 114.

Action upon the Case, (Actio super casum) Is a general Action given for Redress of Wrongs and Injuries, done without Force, and by Law not provided against: And in Actions upon the Case, the like Process is to be had as in Actions of Trespass or Debt. 19 H. 7. c. 9. Terms de Ley 17. If my Fire, by Misfortune, burn the Goods of another Man; for this Wrong he shall have Action on the Case against me: And if my Servant puts a Candle or other Fire in any Place in my House, and this burns all my House and the House of my Neighbour, Action of the Case lies for him against me. 1 Danv. 10. But see the Stat. 10 Ann. c. 14. If a Person delivereth Goods to a common Carrier, to carry them to a certain Place, and he loseth them, Action upon the Case lies against him, for by the common Custom of the Realm he ought to carry them safely: It is the same of a common Hoyman or Lighterman, who is a Water-Carrier of Goods; but Goods in this Case, may be thrown over-board in a Tempest, to preserve the Passengers Lives in the Lighter, &c. and no Action lie. 2 Bulst. 280. If a common Carrier is robbed of Goods, he is chargeable for them, because he had his Hire, and took upon himself the safe Delivery of the Goods therefore: And tho' a Person doth not acquaint the Carrier with all the Particulars in a Box, as that there is such a Sum of Money, &c. the Carrier shall answer for the Money, if robbed: Tho' a special Acceptance may excuse the Carrier. 1 Danv. 13. A common Inn-keeper is chargeable for Goods stolen in his House. And if the Inn-keeper be not of sound Memory, it is said Action lies against him: But if the Inn-keeper be an Infant, no Action will lie against such Infant. The Person robbed must be a Traveller, and Guest in the Inn: If the Goods are committed to the Host upon another Account, and are stolen, no Action will lie. So if a Man comes to an Inn, and leaving Goods there, goes away for two or three Days, if in that Time they are stolen, no Action lies against the Inn-keeper; for at the Time of the Stealing he was not his Guest. But where a Man comes on Horseback to an Inn, and leaves his Horse with the Host, if he goes away from the Inn for several Days, and in his Absence the Horse is stole, the Inn-keeper shall be charged for it; because he had Benefit by the Continuance of the Horse with him, he being paid for it, and so the Owner was a Guest. Moor 877. If a Man upon a special Agreement boards in an Inn for any Time, and is robbed, the Inn-keeper shall not answer for it. Latch 127. An Inn-keeper is liable, tho' the Guest doth not acquaint him what Goods or Money he hath. 8 Rep. 33. If an Inn-keeper refuse to entertain his Guest, this Action may be brought against him. Dyer 158. If a Mail is robbed, and Bills are lost; by Holt Chief Justice, Action lies against the Post-master, as against a common Carrier, &c. he being paid a Salary for doing his Duty; but 'twas over-ruled by the other Justices. 1 Salk. 17. Breaches of Trust are actionable: And this Action lies for Deceits in Contracts, Bargains and Sales. If a Vintner sells Wine, knowing it to be corrupt, as good and not corrupt, tho' without Warranty, Action lies. Danv. 173. So if a Man sells a Horse, and warrants him to be sound of his Limbs, if he be not, Action on the Case lies. 11 Hen. 6. If a Smith promises to shoe my Horse well, if he pricks him, this Action lies: And so when he refuses to shoe him, whereby I travel without, and my Horse is damaged. If a Man sells certain Packs of Wool, and warrants that they are good and merchantable, if they are damaged, Action of the Case lies against him. 1 Danv. 187. The bare Affirmation by the Seller of a particular Sort of Diamond, without warranting it to be such, will not maintain an Action. 2 Cro. 4. 196. But where a Man hath the Possession of a personal Thing, the Affirming it to be his Own, is a Warranty that it is so: Tho' 'tis otherwise in Case of Lands, where the Buyer at his Peril is to see that he hath Title. 1 Salk. 210. If a Person sells to another Cattle or Goods, that are not his own, Action of the Case lies: So if he sells Wares by false Weights or Measures; or warrants Cloths to be of such a Length, that are deficient of it. If a Taylor undertakes to make a Suit of Clothes, and spoils them, Action lies. And if a Carpenter promises to mend my House before a certain Day, and doth not do it, by which my House falls: Or if he undertakes to build a House for me, and doth it ill; Action on the Case lies. 1 Danv. 32. If a Chirurgeon neglects his Patient, or applies unwholesome Medicines, whereby the Patient is injured, this Action lieth. And if a Counsel retained to appear on such a Day in Court, doth not come, by which the Cause miscarries, Action lies against him. For Stopping up a Water-course or Way; Breaking down a Man's Wall, Stopping of ancient Lights, and for any private Nuisance to a Man's Water, Light, or Air, whereby a Person is damaged, this Action lieth. 1 Cro. 427. Yelv. 159. If a Horse that is hired, hath been abused by the Rider; Action lies: So where Goods pawned are not delivered, on Offering the Money: Where any one personates another; for Cheating at Gaming; where a Surety is not saved harmless, &c. 2 Inst. 198. Action on the Case also lieth for Toll of a Mill, or Marker, &c. And Action of the Case on Assumpsit, lies for not making a good Estate of Land sold, according to Promise: Not paying Money upon a Bargain and Sale, according to Agreement; not delivering Goods upon Promise, on Demand: This is by express Assumpsit; and may relate to one's Real or Personal Estate, or to one's Person: Implied Assumpsit is where Goods are sold, or Work is done, &c. without any Price agreed upon; on Action of the Case by Quantum meruit, the Law implies a Promise and Satisfaction to the Value. If a Man make a Lease for Years, rendering Rent, he cannot have Action upon the Case sur Assumpsit for this Rent; but is to have Action of Debt on the real Contract. 1 Danv. 28. So it is upon Promise of Payment of Money on a Bond; unless there be a Collateral Promise. And for Breach of Promise made by Deed, Writ of Covenant is to be brought. 1 Roll. Abr. 517. Indebitatus Assumpsit will not lie upon a Bill of Exchange accepted; but Action upon the Custom only. 1 Vent. 152. The Consideration is the Ground of the common Action on the Case: And no Action on the Case lieth against a Man for a Promise where there is no Consideration why he should make the Promise. 1 Danv. 53. A Consideration wholly past and executed before, is not sufficient to bring Action of the Case. Moor 820. But it may be good on Promise for Service done. 2 Leon. 225. If a Man promise to do a Thing by such a Day, without any Consideration or Reward, and doth it not, no Action will lie; but if he actually enters upon the Performance of the Thing, and then neglects it to the Deceit of the Plaintiff, Action on the Case lies. Trin. 2 Ann. 3 Salk. 11. 'Tis said the Folly of a Defendant hath been considered in some Promises, and reasonable Damages given by the Jury. Mod. Ca. 305. The Person to whom a Promise is made, shall have the Action; and not those who are Strangers, or for whose Benefit it is intended. Danv. 64. Nor shall Action be brought against one for what another receives, not at his Request, &c. 1 Salk. 23. But if a Man delivers Money to A. B. to my Use, I may have an Action on the Case against him for this Money. If a Man accounts, and upon the Account is found in arrear to a certain Sum, and presently in Consideration thereof assumes to pay the Debt at a Day; Action on the Case lies for this after the Day. Yelv. 70. And where Account lies, Indebitatus will lie. 2 Mod. 263. For malicious Prosecutions, where a Suit is without Ground, and one is arrested, Action on the Case lies for unjust Vexation: So for false Imprisonment. And for falsely and maliciously arresting a Person for more than is due to the Plaintiff, whereby the Defendant is imprisoned, for Want of Bail; or if it be on Purpose to hold him to Bail, Action on the Case will lie, after the Original Action is determined. 1 Lev. 275. 1 Salk. 15. And Action likewise lies against Sheriffs for Default in executing Writs; permitting Escapes, &c.

Action on the Case for Words, Is brought where a Person is injured and defamed in his Reputation. And for Words spoke of a Person, which affect his Life, Office, or Trade, or tend to his Loss of Preferment in Marriage, Service, or to his Disinheritance, or which occasion any particular Damage, this Action may be had. To say of another, that he hath killed a Man, Action lies; though he did not design any particular Person. 1 Danv. 150. To call an honest Person Thief, Action on the Case lies: But not to say of a Man he deserves to be hang'd: Nor to call another Rogue generally, or say he will prove him to be a Rogue; though it will lie to say a Man is a Rogue of Record. 4 Rep. 15. Danv. 92. To say of another he is a Traitor, Action lies. 1 Bulst. 145. And so to say that he is a Witch, and did bewitch such a Person, &c. but not to call a Person Witch, without more Words. 1 Brownl. 15. To say a Man was in Gaol for stealing any Thing, is not actionable, for the Words do not affirm the Theft. Danv. 104. But to say I will not keep a Thief, as A. B. doth: Or that I think A. B. committed such a Felony; or I dreamt he stole a Horse, &c. these are actionable. Dal. 144. 1 Danv. 105. If one say of another, thou art a Bugging Rogue, and I could hang thee, Action lies. 1 Sid. 373. And if a Man say, I know my self, and I know you, I never bugger'd a Mare, &c. it is actionable. To say of a Person, he hath perjured himself; or that he would prove him perjured; or that he was forsworn in the Court of Chancery, Common Pleas, &c. are actionable: But not to call a Person forsworn Man, unless it be said in a Court of Record. 3 Inst. 163. Danv. 87, 89. If a Man say he gave another Money for forswearing himself; or call him perjured Knave, Action will lie. To say a Man hath forged an Obligation, &c. and he will prove it; this is actionable. Danv. 130. When such Words are spoken of another maliciously, for which Words, if true, such other might be punished, Action lies: As to say of a Man, he can prove him perjured, &c. Or if he might have his Will he would do such a Thing, which Thing is actionable. 10 Rep. 130. If A. says that B. said that C. did a certain scandalous Thing, C. shall have Action against A. with Averment that B. never said so, whereby A. is the Author of the Scandal. Cro. Jac. 406. If one say of a Bishop, that he is a Papist, Action lies: So of a Member of Parliament, &c. But to call any other Papist, or Heretic, is not actionable. 2 Brownl. 166. To say a Minister preacheth Lies in the Pulpit, Action lies: Not if the Words are that he is a Preacher of false Doctrine. Danv. 119. If one says of a Parson that he hath a Bastard, whereby he receives Injury, it is actionable. 1 Lev. 248. To say a Justice of Peace doth not administer Justice, is actionable. Cro. Eliz. 358. And so for other Disgrace in his Office. To call an Attorney Rogue and Knave, in his Profession; or say he is not fit to be an Attorney; or to say a Man is a cheating Knave; if it be in his Trade and Profession, these are actionable. Danv. 111. Moor 261. To call a Clerk in Court corrupt Man, and say he deals corruptly, is actionable. 4 Rep. To say of a Counsellor, that he is no Lawyer; that they are Fools that come to him for Law, and that he will get nothing by the Law, Action lies. Danv. 113. And it is the same to say he hath disclosed Secrets in a Cause. To call a Doctor of Physick Fool, Ass, Empirick and Mountebank, or say he is no Scholar, are actionable. Cro. Car. 270. If one calls a Merchant Bankrupt, Action lies. 1 Leon. 336. And to call a Trading Person Bankrupt Knave, is actionable. 1 Danv. 99. Also if one say of a Merchant, that he is a beggarly Fellow, and not able to pay his Debts: Or say of a Person that he is a Runaway, and dares not shew his Face, by Reason whereof he is disgraced and injured in his Calling, these are actionable. Raym. 184. To say an Alehouse-keeper keeps a Bawdy-house, Action lies. Cro. Eliz. 582. Though to say of an Inn-keeper, that he harbours Rogues, &c. is not actionable; for his House is common to all Guests. 2 Roll. Rep. 136. To say of another he hath the French Pox, Action will lie. Cro. Jac. 430. But 'tis said, if one say that he had the Pox, after cured, no Action lies; because none will then avoid his Company, &c. Noy 151. To call call a Man Whore-master, or a Woman Whore, no Action lies; for these are merely spiritual. Danv. But Calling a Woman Whore in London is actionable by the Custom of the City. And to say that a Woman hath a Bastard, or is with Child, or that a certain Person hath had the Use of her Body, whereby she loses her Marriage, Action lies. Though not without special Damage, on Action at Common Law. 2 Salk. 696. To say of a Man that he lay with a certain Woman, &c. by which he loses his Marriage, is actionable: For in these Cases there is a Temporal Damage. 1 Danv. 81. If one says of another that has Land by Descent, that he is a Bastard; Action upon the Case lies, as it tends to his Disinheritance. Co. Ent. 28. But to say of a Son and Heir apparent, that he is a Bastard, Action lies not until he is disinherited, or is prejudiced thereby. 1 Danv. 83. To slander the Title of another Person, is actionable. And though scandalous Words are spoken before a Man's Face, or behind his Back, by way of Affirmation, or Report, when drunk, or sober; and although they are spoke in any Language, if they are understood by the Hearers, they are actionable. 4 Rep. 14. Hob. 165, 236. But if the Defendant can make Proof of the Words, he may plead special Justification. Co. Ent. 26. And where Words may receive a double Interpretation, the one Way that they shall be actionable, and the other Way not, they shall be taken in mitiori sensu, so as not to be actionable. Cro. Jac. 438.

Action Prejudicial, (otherwise called Preparatory or Principal) Is an Action which arises from some Doubt in the Principal; as in Case a Man sues his younger Brother for Lands descended from his Father, and it is objected against him that he is a Bastard: Now this Point of Bastardy is to be pre-tried, viz. before the Cause can any further proceed: And therefore it is termed Præjudicialis, quia prius Judicanda. Bract. 1. 3. cap. 4.

Action of a Writ, Is a Term used when a Man pleads some Matter by which is shewn that the Plaintiff had no Cause to have the Writ which he brought: But it may be that he may have another Writ for the same Matter. It is called a Plea to the Action of the Writ, as a Distinction from a Plea to the Action; which is where the Plaintiff hath no Cause to have any Action for the Thing demanded. Terms de Ley. 17.

Action Burnel, The Stat. 13 Ed. 1. so called from its being made at a Place called Action Burnel, a Castle in Shropshire, antiently of the Burnels, and afterwards of the Lovels: It ordained the Statute-Merchant for Recovery of Debts.

Actor, The Proctor or Advocate in Civil Courts or Causes: As Actor Ecclesia has been sometimes used for the Advocate of the Church: Actor Dominicus, for the Lord's Attorney: Actor Villa, the Steward or Head Bailiff of a Village.

Acts of Parliament, Are positive Laws, consisting of two Parts, (viz.) The Words of the Acts, and being the Sense and Meaning of them, which being joined make the Law. The Words of Acts of Parliament shall be taken in a lawful Sense: Cases of the same Nature are within the Remedy, though out of the Letter of the Act; and some Acts extend by Equity to other Things than are mentioned therein, &c. 1 Inst. 24, 381. Vide Statute.

Actuary, (Actuarius) A Clerk that registers the Acts and Constitutions of the Convocation.

Adcredulitate, To purge one's self of an Offence by Oath. — Qui in Collegio fuerit ubi aliquis occisus est, Adcredulitet se quod eum non percussit. Leges Inæ, c. 36.

Addition, (Additio) Signifieth a Title given to a Man besides his Christian and Surname, setting forth his Estate, Degree, Trade, &c. As for Example; Additions of Estate are Yeoman, Gentleman, Esquire, &c. Additions of Degree are Knight, Earl, Marquess and Duke: Additions of Trade, are Clothier, Carpenter, Mason, &c. Then there are likewise Additions of Place of Residence, as London, York, Bristol, &c. And these Additions were ordained that one Man might not be grieved or molested for another; and that every Person might be certainly known, and bear his own Burden. If one be of the Degree of a Duke, Earl, &c. he shall have the Addition of the most worthy Dignity. 2 Inst. 669. But the Titles of Duke, Marquess, Earl, &c. are not properly Additions, but Names of Dignity. Terms de Ley 20. And the Title of Knight or Baronet, is Part of the Party's Name, and ought to be rightly used; but the Titles of Esquire, Gentleman, Yeoman, &c. being no Part of the Name, but Additions as People please to call them, may be used or not used, or if varied is not material. 1 Lill. 34. An Earl of Ireland is not an Addition of Honour here in England; but such a Person must be written by his Christian and Surname, with the Addition of Esquire only: And Sons of English Noblemen, although they have given them Titles of Nobility in respect to their Families; if you sue them they must be named by their Christian and Surnames, with the Addition of Esquire, as such a one Esquire, commonly called Lord A. &c. 2 Inst. 596, 666. By the Common Law, a Man that had no Name of Dignity, was named by his Christian and Surname in all Writs, which was sufficient. If he had an inferior Name of Dignity as Knight, &c. he ought to be named by his Christian and Surname with the Name of Dignity. But a Duke, &c. might be sued by his Christian Name only, and Name of Dignity, which stands for his Surname. 2 Inst. 665, 666. By Stat. 1 Hen. 5. cap. 5. It is enacted that in Suits or Actions where Process of Outlawry lies, Additions are to be made to the Name of the Defendant, to shew his Estate, Mystery, and Place of Dwelling; and that Writs, not having such Additions shall abate, if the Defendant take Exceptions thereto, but not by the Office of the Court. By pleading to Issue, the Party passes by the Advantage of Exception for Want of Addition; for by the Common Law it is good without Addition, and the Statute gives Remedy only by Exception. Cro. Jac. 610. 1 Roll. 780. No Addition is necessary where Process of Outlawry doth not lie. 1 Salk. 5. If a City be a County of it self, wherein are several Parishes, Addition thereof as de London is sufficient: But Addition of a Parish, not in a City, must mention the County, or it will not be good. 1 Danv. 237. An Addition after the Alias dictus is ill; and according to Holt Chief Justice, if a Man of Wilts commit Felony at Westminster, he shall be indicted by his Name, as of Westm. 3. Salk. 20.

Adeling, (from the Saxon Ædelan) Signifying Excellent, was a Title of Honour amongst the Angles, properly belonging to the King's Children; it being usual for the Saxons to join the Word Ling to the Christian Name, which signified a Son or the Younger: King Edward the Confessor having no Issue, and intending to make Edgar, his Nephew, the Heir of the Kingdom, gave him the Stile and Title of Adeling. Spelm. Gloss.

Ad Inquirendum, Is a judicial Writ, commanding Enquiry to be made of any Thing relating to a Cause depending in the King's Courts. It is granted upon many Occasions for the better Execution of Justice. Reg. Judic.

Adjournment, (Adjournamentum) The same with the French Word Adjournement, and signifies a putting off until another Day, or to another Place. As Adjournment in Eyre, by Stat. 25 Ed. 3. is an Appointment of a Day, when the Justices in Eyre will sit again. A Court, the Parliament, &c. may be adjourn'd; and the Substance of the Adjournment of Courts, is to give Licence to all Parties that have any Thing to do in Court to forbear their Attendance 'till such a Time. Every last Day of the Term, and every Eve of a Day in Term, which is not Dies Juridicus, or a Law-Day, the Court is adjourned; and it is usually done in French two several Times, sitting the Court. The Justices of Assize have Power to adjourn the Parties to Westminster, or to any other Place. 2 Inst. 26. And Writs, Pleas, &c. may be adjourned, by Writ of Adjournment. 1 Lill. 37. After Dissolution or Prorogation of a Parliament, and after Adjournment for above fourteen Days, Actions may be prosecuted against Persons entitled to Privilege, &c. Stat. 12 W. 3. For the Solemnity of adjourning the Courts of Justice, see Cro. Car. 11, 12, 27, 200.

Adiratus, A Price or Value set upon Things stolen or lost, as a Recompence to the Owner. — Poterit enim rem suam petere ut Adiratam per testimonium proborum hominum. Braët. l. 3. tract. 2. cap. 32.

Adjudication, (Adjudicatio) A giving or pronouncing by Judgment, a Sentence or Decree. Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. c. 10.

Adjura Regis, A Writ brought by the King's Clerk presented to a Living, against those that endeavour to eject him, to the Prejudice of the King's Title. Reg. of Writs 61.

Ad Larnum, at large; as Title at large, Assize at large; Verdict at large; to vouch at large, &c.

Adlegare, or Aleier in French, is to purge himself of a Crime by Oath. In the Laws of King Alfred, in Brompt. Chron. c. 4. Si se velit adlegiare, &c. And cap. 13. Si Accusetur, inde adlegiet se per sexaginta bidas, &c.

Admeasurement, (Admensuratio) Is a Writ brought for Remedy against such Persons as usurp more than their Share, to bring them to Reason. It lies in two Cases; one is termed Admeasurement of Dowry (Admensuratio Dotis) where a Man's Widow after his Decease holdeth from the Heir more as Dowry than of Right belongs to her: And the other is Admeasurement of Pasture (Admensuratio Pasture) which lies between those that have Common of Pasture appendant to their Freehold Estates, or Common by Vicinage, where any one or more of them surcharge the Common. Reg. Orig. 156, 171. In the first Case, the Heir shall have this Writ against the Widow, whereby she shall be admeasured, and the Heir restored to the Overplus; and in the last Case, it may be brought against all the other Commoners, and him that surcharg'd; for all the Commoners shall be admeasured. Terms de Ley 23. The Heir shall have a Writ of Admeasurement of Dowry, for Dowry assigned in the Time of his Ancestor: And if the Heir within Age assign unto the Wife more in Dowry than she ought to have, &c. the Guardian in Right may have a Writ of Admeasurement. But if the Guardian do assign Dowry more than she ought to have, the Heir, during his Nonage, shall not have a Writ of Admeasurement of Dowry. 7 H. 2. 4. 7 E. 2. cap. 13. If the Wife after Assignment of Dowry do improve the Land, and make it better than it was at the Time of the Assignment; an Admeasurement doth not lie of that Improvement. Nat. Brevium 332. A Person who hath Common Appurtenant certain, or Common by certain Grant, shall be admeasured, and a Tenant shall have Admeasurement against him: But he who hath a Common Appurtenant without Number, or Common in Gross without Number, shall not be stinted, nor shall Writ of Admeasurement of Pasture lie against him. If the Lord surcharge the Common, his Tenant must not have Writ of Admeasurement, but an Assize of Common against the Lord. 18 E. 2. cap. 20. And so if the Lord do make Approvement of the Common. And it is said that if the Tenant surcharge the Common, the Lord shall not have a Writ of Admeasurement against him; but he may distrain the Surplusage Cattle. On a second Surcharge of a Common, after Admeasurement made, the Plaintiff shall recover his Damages against him that was Defendant in the first Writ; and also he shall forfeit to the King the Cattle which he put in over the due Number after the Admeasurement made. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 7. The Writ of Admeasurement of Pasture is quicongit, and shall be directed to the Sheriff, and not be returnable.

Writ of Admeasurement of Pasture.

REX Vic. &c. Questus est nobis A. quod B. & C. injuste superoneraverunt communiam Pasturæ suæ in, &c. ita quod in ea plura habent animalia & pecora quam habere debent & ad ipsos pertinent habendum, Et ideo tibi precipimus quod iuste & sine dilatione Admensur. fac. pasturam illam, ita quod prad. A. habeat in pastura illa tot animalia & pecora quos habere debet, & ad ipsum pertinet habend. ne amplius inde clam. audiamus.

Adminicle, (Adminiculum) Signifies Aid, Help, or Support; being used to this Purpose. Stat. 1 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Administratoz, (Latin) Is one that hath the Goods of a Man dying Intestate committed to his Charge by the Ordinary, for which he is accountable when thereunto required. The Bishop of the Diocese where the Party dies is regularly to grant Administration: But when the Person dying hath Goods in several Dioceses, which are Bona notabilia, Administration must be granted by the Archbishop in the Prerogative Court, or it will be void. 1 Plowd. 281. When one dies without Child or Kindred, Administration may be granted by Letters Patent, by the King; but the

Admini-

Administrator ought to be admitted by the Ordinary. 1 Salk. 37. At Common Law there was no such Thing as an Administrator; for who-ever possessed himself of the Goods of the Intestate, was chargeable by the Name of Executor. 5 Rep. 82. But by the Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11. Authority was given to the Ordinary of every Diocese to appoint Administrators, to gather up and dispose of the Goods of the Deceased, so as they should account for the same as Executors. Before this Statute, by the Statute of Westm. 2. It was ordained that the Goods of Persons dying Intestate, should be committed to the Disposition of the Ordinary, who was bound to answer the Debts of the Deceased, as far as his Goods would extend. Administration must be granted, 1st, To the Husband of the Wife's Goods and Chattels. 2. To the Wife of the Husband's Goods and Chattels. 3. If there is no Husband or Wife, to the Children, Sons or Daughters. 4. If there be no Children alive, to the Father or Mother. 5. Then to a Brother or Sister of the whole Blood, or of the half Blood. 6. And if there are none such, to the next of Kin, as Uncle, Aunt, or Cousin. 7. Then to a Creditor of the Deceased. 8. And for Want of all these, to any other Person, at the Discretion of the Ordinary. Or the Ordinary may grant to a Stranger Letters Ad Colligendum bona defuncti, to gather up the Goods of the Deceased; or may take them into his own Hands to pay the Deceased's Debts, in such Order as an Executor or Administrator ought to pay them: But 'tis said, he or the Stranger who hath Letters Ad Colligendum, cannot sell them, without making themselves Executors of their own Wrong. Wood. Inst. 333. By Stat. 21 H. 8. Widows and next of Kin, are to be appointed Administrators; and a Mother is to have Administration of Goods of a Child before a Brother or Sister, &c. But an Administration may be granted to the Father, before a Widow; and a Residuary Legatee ought to be preferred before the Widow in an Administration, Cum Testamento annexo. 3 Salk. 21. A Grandmother is as near of Kin to a Person deceased as the Aunt. 1 Salk. 38. An Ordinary may grant Administration to a Father of a Son, or the Son's Wife, at his Election: And where Persons are of equal Degree of Kindred to the Intestate, it is in the Discretion of the Ordinary to grant Administration to which of them he pleaseth. 3 Salk. 22. When there are two next of Kin to the Deceased, and one of them the Administrator dies Intestate within the Year, before Distribution, his next of Kin shall have the Administration. Show. 25. If an Administrator die, his Executors are not Administrators; but in this Case the Ordinary is to grant new Administration. Terms de Ley 24. An Alien may be Administrator, and shall have Leases for Years of Lands, and Personal Estate in Debris, because he hath them in auter Droit. Cro. Car. 8. But a Popish Recusant Convict is disabled by Statute to be an Administrator. 35 El. c. 4. On granting Administration, Bonds with Sureties are to be taken for the Administrator to make and exhibit an Inventory of the Goods of the Deceased, render a just Account thereof, and make a Distribution of the Surplusage according to Law, &c. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. cap. 10. One of half Blood is in equal Degree of Kindred with one of the whole Blood, to take out Letters of Administration: And Administrators are to make Distribution of Personal Estate equally between whole Blood and half Blood. 2 Lev. 173. And where Persons die Intestate, their Estates are to be distributed, one third Part to the Wife, and the other equally amongst the Children, and their Representatives: If their be no Children, one Moiety of the Personal Estate, shall go to the Wife, and the Residue equally to the next of Kin: If there is no Wife, but Children, it shall be distributed among such Children; and if there be no Wife or Children, it shall go to the next of Kin in equal Degree. 22 & 23 Car. 2. When Children shall die after their Father without Wife or Child, the Mother and every Brother and Sister and their Representatives, shall have equal Share in the Estate of such Intestates. Stat. 1 Jac. 2. cap. 17. But no Representatives are allowed after Brothers and Sisters Children; and Children advanced by the Intestate in his Lifetime, with any Estate equal to the other Shares, are excepted; though not the Heir at Law, who is to have equal Share in the Distribution, notwithstanding what he hath by Descent. The Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. is not to extend to the Estates of Feme Coverts, who die Intestate; but the Husband shall have Administration as before the Act; and not be compellable to make Distribution of their Estates. 29 Car. 2. cap. 3. Security may be required from those to whom Distribution is made, to refund to the Administrator in case Debts appear afterwards. Administrators have a Property vested in them of the Goods of the Intestate, immediately upon his Death, and the Possession is cast on them by Law. Godb. 33. They may sue for Goods before they have Possession as well as Executors. 8 Rep. 135. An Administrator hath an Interest in all the Chattels Real and Personal of the Deceased; and in all Goods and Chattels either in Possession or Action, in like Manner as an Executor: And all the Goods and Chattels which come to the Hands of the Administrator, shall be Assets to make him chargeable to the Creditors, as Executors are to Creditors and Legatees. 2 Inst. 398. A Residuary Legatee is to have the Care and Administration of the Estate, where the Executor of a Will dies Intestate, the Residue of the Estate being devised to such Legatee. 1 Ventr. 217. A Creditor Administrator may retain the Goods of the Intestate, to satisfy his Debt; and if the Goods are taken away before Administration granted to him, he may have Trespass against the Person that took them. Stile 384. If Administration is granted to an Obligor, this doth not extinguish the Debt; but it shall be Assets in his Hands. 8 Rep. 136. Against an Administrator and for him, Action will lie, as for and against an Executor, and he shall be charged to the Value of the Goods, and no further; unless it be by his own false Plea, or by waiving the Goods of the Intestate. An Executor or Administrator shall never be charged de bonis propriis, but where he doth some Wrong; as by selling the Testator's Goods and converting the Money to his own Use, concealing or waiving them, or by pleading what is false. Dyer 210. 2 Roll. Rep. 295. If an Administrator plead Plene Administravit, and 'tis found against him, the Judgment shall be de Bonis propriis, because 'tis a false Plea, and that upon his own Knowledge. 2 Cro. 191. Contra where he pleads such a Plea, and that he hath no more than to satisfy such a Judgment, &c. the Recovery shall be de Bonis Testatoris, &c. 2 Roll. Rep. 400. Upon Plene Administravit pleaded by an Administrator, Administrator, the Plaintiff must prove his Debt, or he shall recover but a Penny Damages, though there be Assets; because the Plea only admits the Debt, but not the Quantum. 1 Salk. 896. Special Bail is not required of Administrators in any Action brought against them for the Debt of the Intestate; except where they have wasted the Goods of the Deceased. Nor shall Costs be had against Administrators. 24 H. 8. Where an Administrator is Plaintiff, he must shew by whom Administration was granted; for that only intitles him to the Action. But where an Administrator is Defendant, the Plaintiff need not set forth by whom Administration was granted, for it may not be within his Knowledge; though he must declare that it was granted to the Defendant debita juris forma, which is necessary to charge him with the Action. Sid. 228. 1 Lutw. 301. If a Stranger that is not Administrator, take the Goods and Administer in his own Wrong, he shall be charged and sued as an Executor: But if the Ordinary make a Letter Ad Colligendum, he that hath it, is not Administrator, but the Action lies against the Ordinary. Terms de ley 24. The Power of an Administrator is almost equal to that of an Executor: But if there are many Administrators, one cannot sell Goods, release Debts, &c. without the other, for they must all join. Noy Max. 106. The Office of Administrators is the same with that of Executors, in the Burial of the Deceased, Payment of funeral Charges, making Inventories of his Goods and Chattels, Payment of Debts, &c. The Ordinary ought not to repeal Letters of Administration which he hath duly granted; but if they are granted to such Persons who ought not by Law to have them, he may revoke them. 1 Lill. 38. For just Cause they may be revoked, and where a Person is a Lunatick, &c. And if granted where not grantable, they may be repealed by the Delegates. 1 Lev. 157, 186. If an Administration is granted, and afterwards a Will is produced and proved, the Administration shall be revoked; and all Acts done by the Administrator, are void. 2 Roll. Abr. 907. If a Citation is granted against a Stranger Administrator, and his Administration is revoked by Sentence, yet all Acts done by him bona fide as Administrator are good till the Revocation; the Administration being only voidable. 6 Rep. 18. 8 Rep. 135. But if there is any Fraud, a Creditor may have Relief upon the Stat. 13 El. c. 5. And when the first Administration is merely void, as granted by a wrong Person, &c. it is otherwise: So when there is an Appeal from the Grant of the Administration, to suspend the former Decree, 5 Rep. 30. Where the first Administration is void, the Administrator that takes the Goods is a Trespassor. 2 Leon. 135. Letters of Administration obtained by Fraud, are void. 3 Rep. 37. Where Infant is intitled to Administration of the Goods of an Intestate, Administration shall be granted to another Durante minori etate, till he is of the Age of 21 Years. But where an Infant is made Executor, such Administration granted during his Minority ceases at the Infant's Age of 17 Years. 5 Rep. 29. 6 Rep. 27. If a Female Infant under 17 Years old is made Executrix, and she afterwards marries with one of that Age, her Husband shall have the Execution of the Will, and the Administration ceaseth. 1 Salk. 39. An Administrator durante minori etate cannot sell Goods of the Deceased; unless it be of Necessity for Payment of Debts, or bona peritura, Goods that are perishable; for he hath his Office pro bono & commodo of the Infant. 5 Rep. 29. Administration cum Testamento annexo, is where an Executor refuseth to prove a Testament, and Administration with the Will annexed to it is granted to the next of Kin, &c. And where an Executor dies before Probate of the Will, Administration is to be granted with the Will annexed, and the Testator is looked upon in Law to die Intestate. 1 Inst. 113. If where a Person has made a Will, after his Death the Executor proves it, and then dies Intestate, Administration is to be granted by the Ordinary of the Goods of the Testator unadministred, to some other Person; which is called an Administration de bonis non, &c. (viz.) Non Administratis. 2 Roll. Abr. 907. And an Administrator de bonis non, &c. may sue out a Scire facias on a Judgment after a Verdict recovered by an Executor, &c. Stat. 17 Car. 2. Besides all these Administrations, there is Administration durante absentia extra Regnum, where a Person is absent abroad; and Administration Pendente Lite, which may be granted by the Ordinary as well as Durante minori etate.

Administratrix, (Lat.) She that hath Goods and Chattels of an Intestate committed to her Charge as an Administrator.

Admiral, (Admiralis, Admirallus, Admiralis, Capitaneus or Custos Maris) and derived of the French Amerel, signifies an high Officer or Magistrate, that hath the Government of the King's Navy, and the Determining of all Causes belonging to the Sea. This Word is also said to be derived from the Saxon Aen Mereal, over all the Sea: And in ancient Time the Office of the Admiralty was called Custodia Maritima Anglie. Co. Lit. 260. It appears that anciently the Admirals of England had Jurisdiction of all Causes of Merchants and Mariners, happening not only upon the main Sea, but in all foreign Parts within the King's Dominions, and without them, and were to judge them in a summary Way, according to the Laws of Oleron, and other Sea Laws. 4 Inst. 75. And the Admiral was formerly stiled Capitaneus Marinariorum. In the Time of R. Ed. 1. and K. John, all Causes of Merchants and Mariners, and Things arising upon the main Sea were tried before the Lord Admiral: But the first Title of Admiral of England, expressly conferred upon a Subject, was given by Patent of R. 2. to the E. of Arundel and Surrey. Of late Times this high Office has been executed by Commissioners; who by Statute are impowered to use and execute the like Authorities as Lord Admiral. 2 W. & M. c. 2. In the Reign of Ed. 3. the Court of Admiralty was established; and R. 2. limited its Jurisdiction. The Admiralty hath Cognisance of the Death or Maim of a Man, committed in any great Ship riding in great Rivers, beneath the Bridges thereof, next the Sea: But by the Common Law, if a Man be killed upon any Arm of the Sea, where the Land is seen on both Sides, the Coroner is to inquire of it, and not the Admiral; for the County may take Cognisance of it; and where a County may inquire, the Lord Admiral has no Jurisdiction. 3 Rep. 107. All Ports and Havens are infra Corpus Comitatus, and the Admiral hath no Jurisdiction of any Thing done in them: Between high and low Water Mark, the Common Law and Admiral have Jurisdiction by Turns; one upon the Water, and the other upon the Land. 3 Inst. 113. The Admiral hath Power to arrest Ships in great Streams, for the Service of the King, or Common-wealth, and hath hath Jurisdiction in such Streams; and during the same Voyages. Every Commander, Officer, and Soldier of Ships of War, shall observe the Commands of the Admiral, &c. on Pain of Death, or other Punishment. 13 Car. 2. c. 9. The Lord Admiral hath Power to grant Commissions to inferior Vice-Admirals, &c. to call Courts Martial, for the Trial of Offences against the Articles of War; and these Courts determine by Plurality of Voices, &c. Stat. ibid. Admiralty Process is made out in the Name of the Admiral; who has under him a Judge of the Admiralty: And tho' the Proceedings are according to the Civil Law, and the Maritime Laws of Rhodes and Oleron, the Sea being without the Common Law; yet by Stat. 28 H. 8. Murder, Robbery, &c. at Sea, may be tried by special Commission to the Lord Admiral, &c. according to the Laws of England: But see the Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 7. The Admiralty is said to be no Court of Record, by Reason it proceeds by the Civil Law. 4 Inst. 135. The Admiralty hath Jurisdiction where the Common Law can give no Remedy, and of all Contracts made super altum mare. 6 Rep. All Maritime Causes, or Causes arising wholly upon the Sea, the Admiralty hath Cognisance of. And the Admiralty hath Jurisdiction in Cases of Freight, Mariners Wages, Breach of Charter-Parties, tho' made within the Realm; so as the Penalty be not demanded: And likewise in Case of building, mending, saving, and victualling Ships, &c. so as the Suit be against the Ship, and not only against the Parties. 2 Cro. 216. Mariners Wages are contracted on the Credit of the Ship, and they may all join in Suits in the Admiralty; whereas at Common Law they must all sever: The Master of a Ship contracts on the Credit of the Owners, and not of the Ship, and therefore he cannot prosecute in the Admiralty for his Wages. 1 Salk. 33. It is allowed by the Common Lawyers and Civilians, that the Lord Admiral hath Cognisance of Seamen's Wages, and Contracts, and Debts for making Ships; also of Things done in navigable Rivers, concerning Damage done to Persons, Ships, Goods, Annoyances of free Passage, &c. And of Contracts, and other Things done beyond Sea, relating to Navigation and Trade by Sea. Wood. Inst. 818. But if a Contract be made beyond Sea, for doing of an Act or Payment of Money within this Kingdom; or the Contract is upon the Sea, and not for a Marine Cause, it shall be tried by Jury; for where Part belongs to the Common Law, and Part to the Admiral, the Common Law shall be preferred. And Contracts made beyond Sea, may be tried in B. R. and a Fact be laid to be done in any Place in England, and so tried here. 2 Bulst. 322. Where a Contract is made in England, and there is a Conversion beyond Sea, the Party may sue in the Admiralty, or at Common Law. 4 Leon. c. 257. So where a Bond is made and delivered in France. The Court of Admiralty cannot hold Plea of a Matter arising from a Contract made upon the Land, tho' the Contract was concerning Things belonging to the Ships: But the Admiralty may hold Plea for the Seamen's Wages, &c. because they become due for Labour done on the Sea; and the Contract made upon Land, is only to ascertain them. 3 Lew. 60. Contra where there is a special Agreement in Writing under Seal. Salk. 31. Where the Master and Mariners of a Ship, fitted out with Letters of Repisal, without the Notice or Assent of the Owners commit Piracy, the Owners shall lose their Ship by the Admiral Law. 1 Roll. Abr. 530. If the Master pawns the Ship on the high Sea out of Necessity for Tackling or Provision, without the Consent of the Owners, it shall bind them; but 'tis otherwise where the Ship is pawned for the Master's Debt. Sale of Goods taken by Piracy in open Market, is not binding by the Admiral Law, so that the Owner may retake them; but at Common Law the Sale is binding, of which the Admiralty must take Notice. 1 Roll. Abr. If Goods delivered on Shipboard are imbezilled, all the Mariners ought to contribute to the Satisfaction of the Party that lost his Goods by the Maritime Law, and the Cause is to be tried in the Admiralty. 1 Lill. 368. By the Custom of the Admiralty, Goods may be attached in the Hands of a third Person, in causa Maritima & Civili, and they shall be delivered to the Plaintiff after Defaults, on Caution to restore them if the Debt, &c. be disproved in a Year and Day; and if the Party refuse to deliver them, he may be imprisoned quousque, &c. March. Rep. 204. The Admiralty Court may award Executions upon Land; tho' not hold Plea of any Thing arising on Land. 4 Inst. 141. And upon Letters Missive or Request, the Admiralty here may award Execution upon a Judgment given beyond Sea, where an Englishman flies or comes over hither, by Imprisonment of the Party, who shall not be delivered by the Common Law. 1 Roll. Abr. 530. When Sentence is given in a foreign Admiralty, the Party may libel for Execution of that Sentence here; because all Courts of Admiralty in Europe are governed by the Civil Law. Sid. 418. Sentences of any Admiralty in another Kingdom are to be credited, that ours may be credited there, and are not to be examined at Law here: But the King may be petitioned, who may cause the Complaint to be examined; and if he finds just Cause, may send to his Ambassador where the Sentence was given, to demand Redress, and upon Failure thereof, will grant Letters of Marque and Repisal. Raym. 473. If one be sued in the Admiralty contrary to the Statutes, he may have a Superseas in Nature of a Prohibition, to cause the Judge to stay the Proceedings, and may also have Action against the Party suing. 10 Rep. 75. And if an erroneous Judgment is given in the Admiralty, Appeal may be had to Delegates appointed by Commission out of Chancery, whose Sentence shall be final. Stat. 8 Eliz. c. 5. Appeals may be brought from the inferior Admiralty Courts, to the Lord High Admiral: But the Lord Warden of the Cinque-Ports hath Jurisdiction of Admiralty exempt from the Admiralty of England.

Admission (Admissio) Is when a Patron of a Church having presented to it, the Bishop upon Examination admits the Clerk, by saying admitto te habilem. Co. Lit. 344. Admission is properly the Ordinary's Declaration that he approves of the Presentee, to serve the Cure of the Church to which he is presented. All Persons are to have Episcopal Ordination before they are admitted to any Parsonage or Benefice; and if any shall presume to be admitted, not having such Ordination, &c. he shall forfeit 100 l. Stat. 14 Car. 2. No Person is to be admitted into a Benefice with Cure of 30 l. per ann. in the King's Books, unless he is a Bachelor in Divinity at least, or a Preacher lawfully allowed by some Bishop, &c. An Action of the Case will not lie against the Bishop, if he refuse to admit a Clerk to be qualified according cording to the Canons, (as for any Crime or Impediment, Illiterature, &c.) but the Remedy is by Writ Quare non admittit, or Admittendum clericum brought in that County where the Refusal was. 7 Rep. 3.

Admittendo Clerico, A Writ where a Man has recovered his Right of Presentation against the Bishop. Reg. Orig. 33. If a Man do recover his Presentation in the Common Pleas against the Bishop, then he may have a Writ to the same Bishop to admit his Clerk, or unto the Metropolitan. If a Person recover an Advowson, and the six Months pass, yet if the Church be void, the Patron may have a Writ to the Bishop; and if the Church is void when the Writ comes to the Bishop, the Bishop is bound to admit his Clerk. 7 H. 8. 14 H. 4. Where a Man recovers against another than the Bishop, this Writ shall go to the Bishop; and the Party shall have an Alias and a Pluries, if the Bishop do not execute the Writ, and an Attachment against the Bishop, if need be. New Nat. Br. 84. In a Quare Impedit betwixt two Strangers, if there appears to the Court a Title for the King, they shall award a Writ unto the Bishop, for the King.

Admittendo in socium, A Writ for associating certain Persons to Justices of Assize. Reg. Orig. 206. Knights and other Gentlemen of the County, are usually associated with Judges in holding their Assizes on the Circuits.

Adnichilet, From the Latin Nihil, written of old Nichil, and signifies annulled, cancelled, or made void. Stat. 28 H. 8.

Ad quod Damnum, Is a Writ which ought to be issued before the King grants certain Liberties, as a Fair, Market, &c. which may be prejudicial to others: It is directed to the Sheriff to inquire what Damage it may do, for the King to grant a Market, Fair, &c. Terms de ley 25. This Writ is also used to inquire of Lands given in Mortmain to any House of Religion, &c. And it is a Damage to the Country, that a Freeholder who hath sufficient Lands to pass upon Assises and Juries, should Alien his Lands in Mortmain, by which Alienation his Heir should not have sufficient Estate after the Death of the Father to be sworn in Assises and Juries. F. N. B. 121. The Writ Ad quod Damnum is likewise had for the turning and changing of ancient Highways; which may not be done without the King's Licence obtained by this Writ, on Inquisition found that such Change will not be detrimental to the Publick. Vaugh. Rep. 341. Ways turned without this Authority, are not esteemed Highways, so as to oblige the Inhabitants of the Hundred to make Amends for Robberies; nor have the Subjects an Interest therein to justify going there. 3 Cro. 267. If any one change an Highway without this Authority, he may stop the Way at his Pleasure. But see the Statute 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 16. For enlarging of Highways by Order of Justices, &c. Where any common Highway shall be enclosed after a Writ of Ad quod Damnum executed, any Person aggrieved by such Inclosure, may complain to the Justices at the next Quarter-Sessions; but if no such Appeal be made, then the Inquisition and Return, recorded by the Clerk of the Peace, shall be for ever binding. 8 & 9 W. 3. It appears by the Writs in the Register, that in ancient Times, upon every Grant, Confirmation, &c. or Licence made by the King, first a Writ of Ad quod damnum was to be awarded, to inquire of the Truth thereof, and what Damage the King might have by the same: But now the Practice is contrary; and in the Patents of Grants of Licence, are put in the End these Words—Et hoc absque aliquo Brevis de Ad quod Damnum, seu aliquibus aliis brevibus sive inquisitionibus aut mandatis superinde habend. fiend. aut prosequend. &c.

A Writ of Ad quod Damnum.

R Ex dilecto, &c. salutem. Precipimus tibi, quod per Sacramentum proborum & legalium hominum de Balliva tua vel de comitat. tuo per quos rei veritas melius sciri poterit diligenter inquiras, si sit ad Damnum vel ad prejudicium nostrum vel aliorum, si concedamus, &c. Et si sit ad Damnum vel prejudicium nostrum aut aliorum, tunc Ad quod Damnum & quod prejudicium nostrum & Ad quod Damnum & quod prejudicium aliorum, &c. Et inquisitionem inde distincte & aperte factam nobis in Cancell. nostra sub sigill. tuo & sigillis eorum per quos fact. fuerit sine dilatione Mittatis, & hoc breve. Teste, &c.

Ad terminum qui preterit, A Writ of Entry, that lies for the Lessor and his Heirs, where a Lease has been made of Lands or Tenements for Term of Life, or Years, and after the Term is expired, the Lands are with-held from the Lessor by the Tenant, or other Stranger that possesseth the same: And it likewise lies for the Heir of the Lessor. F. N. B. 201.

Advent, (Adventus) A Time containing about a Month preceding the Feast of the Nativity of our Saviour Christ. It begins from the Sunday that falls either upon St. Andrew's Day, being the 30th of November, or next to it, and continues to the Feast of Christ's Nativity commonly called Christmas. Our Ancestors shewed great Reverence and Devotion to this Time, in Regard to the Approach of the solemn Festival: For in adventu Domini nulla assisa debet capi. Int. placita de temp. Regis Joh. Ebor. 126. But the Statute Westm. 1. c. 48. Ordained that notwithstanding the usual Solemnity and Times of Rest, it should be lawful (in Respect of Justice and Charity, which ought at all Times to be regarded) to take Assises of Novel Disseisin, Mort d'Ancestor, &c. in the Time of Advent, Septuagesima, and Lent. This is also one of the Seasons, from the Beginning of which to the End of the Octaves of the Epiphany, the Solemnizing of Marriages is forbidden, without special Licence, as we may find from these old Verses,

*Conjugium Adventus prohibet, Helarique relaxat; Septuagena vetat, sed Paschæ Octava reducit;
Rogatio vetitat, concedit Trina potestas.*

Ad ventrem Inspiciendum, A Writ mentioned in the Statute of Essoins. 12 Ed. 2. See Ventre Inspiciendo, by which a Woman is to be searched, whether she be with Child by a former Husband, on her with-holding Lands from the Heir.

Adultery, (Adulterium, quasi ad alterius thorum) Anno 1 H. 7. c. 4. and in divers old Authors termed Adultery, is the Sin of Incontinence between two married Persons; and if but one of the Persons be married, it is nevertheless Adultery. But in this last Case, it is called single Adultery, to distinguish it from the other, which is double. This Crime is severely punished by the Laws of God, and the ancient Laws of the Land: The Julian Law, among the old Romans, made it Death; but in most Countries at this Time, the Punishment is by Fine, and sometimes Banishment: In England it is now punished by Fine, Penance, &c. King Edmund a Saxon, Leg. suar, cap. 4. Adulterium affici jussit instar Homicidii. Canutus the Dane, *Hominem Adulterum in exilium relegari jussit, facinoram nasum & aures præcidi. Leg. par. 2. c. 6. and cap. 50. Qui uxoratus faciet Adulterium, habeat Rex vel Dominus superiorem, Episcopus inferiorem. Leg. H. 1. c. 12. — Rex, &c. Præcipimus tibi quod diligenter inquiri facias per legales homines de Visn. Candeur. si Robertus Pincerna habens suspectum Will. Wake qui cum uxore sua Adulterium committeret, prohibuit ei ingressum domus sue, & si idem Will. post prohibitionem illam, domus ipsius Roberti ingressus Adulterium prædictum commisit, inde præfatus Robertus mentula eum privavit, & si inquisitio dederit, quod ita sit, tunc eidem Roberto & suis qui cum eo erant ad hoc faciend. terr. & Cattalla sua occasione illa in manum nostram seiscita. in pace esse facias, donec aliud inde tibi præcipimus, &c. Claus. 14. Joh. m. 2. Perhaps this might be in some Measure agreeable to a Law made by William the Conqueror, that whoever forced a Woman should lose his Genitals, the offending Parts. Before the Statute 22 Car. 2. which makes malicious maiming Felony, it was a Question, whether Cutting off the privy Members of a Man, taken in Adultery with another Man's Wife, was Felony or not? For according to Braeton, sequitur pena aliquando Capitalis: But Anno 13 H. 3. one John a Monk being taken by Henry Hull in the Act with his Wife, he cut off the privy Members of the Monk, and was only indicted for a Maihem. 3 Inst. 118. If a Wife elope from her Husband, and live with the Adulterer, (without being reconciled to the Husband) she shall forfeit her Dower. 1 Inst. 36. 2 Inst. 435. And there is a notable Case concerning Margaret the Wife of John de Camois, who with her Husband's Consent lived in Adultery with Sir William Pannell, yet lost her Dower. 2 Inst. Adultery being a Thing Temporal, as well as Spiritual, is against the Peace, &c.*

Advocate, Is the Patron of a Cause, assisting the Client with Advice, and who pleads for him: It is the same by the Civil and Ecclesiastical Laws, as a Counsellor by the Common Law. The Ecclesiastical or Church Advocate, was originally of two Sorts; either an Advocate of the Causes, and Interest of the Church, retained as a Counsellor and Pleader of its Rights; or an Advocate, or Patron, of the Presentation and Advowson. Both these Offices at first belonged to the Founders of Churches and Convents, and their Heirs, who were bound to protect and defend their Churches, as well as to nominate or present to them—As Ailwin Founder of Ramsey Abbey; Proruit in medium, se Rameiensis Ecclesie Advocatum, se possessionum ejus tutorem allegans. Lib. Ramef. Sect. 49. But when the Patrons grew negligent in their Duty, or were not of Ability or Interest in the Courts of Justice, then the Religious began to retain Law Advocates, to solicit and prosecute their Causes. Vid. Spelman.

Advocati, Were those which we now call Patrons, viz. who were the Founders of Churches, and reserved to them and their Heirs, a Liberty to present a Person on any Avoidance.

Advocatione Decimarum, A Writ that lies for Tithes, demanding the fourth Part, or upwards, that belong to any Church. Reg. Orig. 29.

Advow, (Advocare) To justify or maintain an Act formerly done. For Example; One takes a Distress for Rent, or other Thing, and he that is distrained sues a Replevin; now the Distrainer, justifying or maintaining the Act is said to Advow or Avow: And hence comes Advowant and Advowry. Old Nat. Br. 43. The Signification of this Word is also to bring forth any Thing: Anciently when stolen Goods were bought by one, and sold to another, it was lawful for the right Owner to take them where-ever they were found; and he in whose Possession they were found, was bound advocare, i. e. to produce the Seller to justify the Sale; and so on till they found the Thief. Afterwards the Word was taken for any Thing which a Man acknowledged to be his own, or done by him; and in this Sense it is mentioned in Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 5. par. 4. Si vir ipsum in domo sua suscepit, nutriverit & advocaverit filium suum.

Advowee, Or Avowee, (Advocatus) is used for him that hath Right to present to a Benefice: And by 25 Ed. 3. Stat. 5. we find Advowee Paramount is taken for the King, the highest Patron—Advocatus est ad quem pertinet jus Advocationis alicujus Ecclesie, ut ad Ecclesiam, nomine proprio non alieno, possit presentare. Fleta lib. 5. c. 14.

Advowson, (Advocatio) Signifies the Right of Presentation to a Church or Benefice. He who hath this Right to present is called Patron; because they that originally obtained the Right of Presentation to any Church, were Maintainers of, or Benefactors to the same Church: And therefore they are sometimes stiled Patroni, sometimes Advocati, and sometimes Defensores. When the Christian Religion was first established in England, Kings began to build Cathedral Churches, and to make Bishops; and afterwards in Imitation of them, several Lords of Manors founded particular Churches on some Part of their own Lands, and endowed them with Glebe, reserving to themselves and their Heirs, a Right to present a fit Person to the Bishop, when the same should become void: And this is called an Advowson, and he who hath this Right of Presentation is termed the Patron, it being presumed that he who founded the Church, will Avow and take it into his Protection, and be a Patron to defend it in its just Rights. 1 Nelf. Abr. 184. Advowsons are of two Kinds; Appendant, and in Gross: Appendant is a Right of Presentation dependant upon a Manor, Lands, &c. and passes in a Grant of the Manor, as incident to the same; and when Manors were first created, and Lands set apart to build a Church on some Part thereof, the Advowson or Right to present to that Church became appendant to the Manor. Advowson in Gross is a Right subsisting by it self, belonging to a Person, and not a Manor, Lands, &c. So that when an Advowson appendant is severed by Deed or Grant from the corporeal Inheritance to which it was appendant, then it becomes an Advowson in gross. 1 Inst. 121, 122. Also Advowsons are either Presentative, Collative, or Donative. Advowsons were formerly most of them appendant to Manors, and the Patrons parochial Barons; the Lordship of the Manor, and Patronage of the Church were seldom in different Hands till Advowsons were given to religious Houses; but of late Times the Lordship of the Manor, and the Advowson of the Church have been divided; and now not only Lords of Manors, but mean Persons have, by Purchase, the Dignity of Patrons of Churches, to the great Pre-

Prejudice thereof. By the Common Law the Right of Patronage is a real Right fixed in the Patrons or Founders, and their Heirs, wherein they have as absolute a Property as any other Man hath in his Lands and Tenements: For Advowsons are a temporal Inheritance, and Lay Fee; they may be granted by Deed or Will, and are Affests in the Hands of Heirs or Executors. 1 Inst. 119. A Recovery may be suffered of an Advowson; a Wife may be endowed of it; a Husband Tenant by the Curtesy; and it may be forfeited by Treason or Felony. 1 Rep. 56. 10 Rep. 55. If an Advowson descends to Coparceners, and the Church after the Death of their Ancestors becomes void, the eldest Sister shall first present. Stat. 21 Ed. 3. And when Coparceners, Joint-tenants, &c. are seised of an Advowson, and Partition is made to present by turns, each shall be seised of their separate Estate. 7 Ann. An Infant may present to a Church; and where an Advowson belongs to a Feme-Covvert, the Presentation must be by Husband and Wife. 1 Inst. 135. Persons seised of Advowsons being Papists, are disabled to make Presentations, and the Chancellors of the Universities shall present. 1 W. & M. cap. 26. Presentations to Advowsons, &c. for Money or other Reward, shall be void, &c. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6. Vid. Presentation, Simony, &c.

Advocatio medietatis Ecclesie, Advowson of the Moiety of the Church, is where there are two several Patrons, and two several Incumbents in one and the same Church, the one of the one Moiety, the other of the other Moiety thereof. Co. Lit. Medietas Advocationis, a Moiety of the Advowson, is where two must join in the Presentation, and there is but one Incumbent; as where there are two Parceners: And though they agree to present by turns, yet each of them hath but the Moiety of the Church. 1 Inst. 17. But Vide Stat. 7 Anna.

Advowson of religious Houses. Where any Persons founded any House of Religion, they had thereby the Advowson or Patronage thereof, like unto those who built and endowed Parish-Churches. And sometimes these Patrons had the sole Nomination of the Abbot, or Prior, &c. either by Investiture or Delivery of a Pastoral Staff: Or by direct Presentation to the Diocesan; or if a free Election were left to the Religious, a Conge d'Eslire, or Licence for Election, was first to be obtained of the Patron, and the Elect confirmed by him. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 147, 163.

Aerie, (Aeria accipitrum) Airy of Goshawks. It is the proper Term for Hawks, for that which of other Birds we call a Nest. Stat. 9 H. 3. cap. 12. And it is generally said to come from the French Word Aire, or Eyre, a Hawk's Nest: But Spelman derives it from the Saxon Eghe, which the Germans and Normans made Eye, an Egg; whence Eyerie was a common Name for a Bird's Nest, viz. A Repository of Eggs. The Liberty of keeping these Aeries of Hawks was a Privilege, granted to Great Britain: And the Preserving the Aeries in the King's Forests was one Sort of Tenure of Lands by Service. Anno 20 Ed. 1. Simon de Raghton & al. Tenent terras in Raghton, &c. per Serjantiam custodiendi Aerias Austurcorum Domini Regis.

Ætatio Capitis, (Pretium Hominis) King Athelstane ordained that Fines should be paid for Offences committed against several Persons according to their Degrees and Quality, by Estimation of their Heads. Cress. Ch. Hist. 834. Leg. Hen. 1.

Ætate probanda, A Writ that lay to inquire, Whether the King's Tenant holding in chief by Chivalry, were of full Age to receive his Lands into his own Hands. It was directed to the Escheator of the County; but is now disused, since Wards and Liveries are taken away by the Statute. Reg. Orig. 294.

Affeerers, (Afferatores) From the Fr. Affier, to affirm. They are those that in Courts-Leet upon Oath settle and moderate the Fines imposed on such Persons as have committed Faults arbitrarily punishable, viz. that have no express Penalty appointed by Statute: And they are also appointed for moderating Amercements in Courts-Baron. The Persons nominated to this Office, affirm upon their Oaths what Penalty they think in Conscience ought to be inflicted on the Offenders. This Word is used Stat. 25 Ed. 3. c. 7. Where Mention is made, that the Justices before their Rising in every Sessions shall cause the Amerciaments to be affeer'd. And this seems to be agreeable to Magna Charta, by which it is ordained, that Persons are to be amerced after the Manner of the Fault; and the Amerciaments shall be assessed by the Oath of honest and lawful Men of the Vicinage. 9 H. 3. c. 14.

The Oath of Affeerers.

YOU shall well and truly Affeer and Affirm the several Amercements here made, and now to you read over; you shall spare no one out of Love, Fear, or Affection, nor raise or inbase any out of Hatred or Malice, but impartially shall do your Duties herein. So help you God.

Affeurer, (Affeur) In the Customary of Normandy c. 20. this Word the Latin Interpreter expresseth by Taxare, that is to set the Price of a Thing, as Æstimare, indicare, &c.

Affiance, The Plighting of Troth between a Man and a Woman, upon Agreement of Marriage. It is derived from the Latin Word Affidare, and signifies as much as fidem ad alium dare. Lit. Sect. 39.

Affidare, To plight one's Faith, or give, or swear Fealty, i. e. Fidelity. M. S. Dom. de Farendon 22.

Affidatio Dominozum, An Oath taken by the Lords in Parliament, Anno 3 H. 6. Rot. Parl.

Affidatus, Signifies a Tenant by Fealty, also a Retainer—Affidatio accipitur pro mutua fidelitatis connexionione, tam in sponsaliis, quam inter Dominum & vassallum—Proles de Affidata & non maritata, non est Heres. M. S. Arth. Trevor Ar.

Affidari, Seu Affidari ad Arma. To be mustered and inrolled for Soldiers upon an Oath of Fidelity. Dom. de Farendon, M. S. 55.

Affidabit, Signifies in Law an Oath in Writing; as to make Affidavit of a Thing, is to testify it upon Oath. An Affidavit generally speaking is an Oath in Writing, sworn before some Person who hath Authority to take such Oath: And the true Place of Habitation, and true Addition of every Person who shall make an Affidavit, is to be inserted into his Affidavit. 1 Lill. Abr. 44, 46. Affidavits ought to set forth the Matter of Fact only, which the Party intends to prove by his Affidavit; and not to declare the Merits of the Cause, of which the Court is to judge. 21 Car. 1. B. R. The Plaintiff or Defendant may make Affidavit in a Cause depending; but it will not be admitted in Evidence at the Trial, only upon Motions. 1 Lill. 44. When an Affidavit hath been read in Court, it ought to be filed, that the other Party may see it, and take a Copy of it. Pasch. 1655. An Affidavit taken before a Master in Chancery, will not be of any Force in the Court of King's Bench, or other Courts, nor ought to be read there; for it ought to be made before one of the Judges of the Court wherein the Cause is depending. Style's Rep. 445. But by Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 5. The Judges of the Courts at Westminster by Commission may impower Persons in the several Counties of England to take Affidavits concerning Matters depending in their several Courts, as Masters in Chancery extraordinary used to do. Where Affidavits are taken by Commissioners in the Country, according to the Statute 29 Car. 2. And 'tis expressed to be in a Cause depending between two certain Persons, and there is no such depending, those Affidavits cannot be read, because the Commissioners have no Authority to take them; (and for that Reason the Party cannot be convicted of Perjury upon them) but if there is such a Cause in Court, and Affidavits taken concerning some collateral Matter, they may be read. 2 Salk. 461. On a Rule to shew Cause, &c. Affidavits that contain new Matter, are not to be read; but if they tend to confirm what had been alledged and sworn before the Rule was made, then they shall be read. Salk. ibid. No dilatory Plea shall be received in any Court, unless the Truth thereof be made out by Affidavit; or some probable Matter be shewn to believe the Fact. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. Affidavits are usually for certifying the Service of Process, or other Matters touching the Proceedings in a Cause.

An Affidavit of serving a Subpœna in Chancery.

Affirm, (Affirmare) Signifies to ratify or confirm a former Law or Judgment. So is the Substantive Affirmance used, Anno 8 H. 6. a 12. And so is the Verb it self by West. Part 2. Symbol. Tit. Fines, Sect. 152. If the Judgment be affirmed, &c. So also by Crompton in his Jurisd. f. 166. 19 H. 7. cap. 20.

Affirmation, An Indulgence allowed by Law to the People called Quakers, who in Cases where an Oath is required from others, may make a solemn Affirmation that what they say is true; and if they make a false Affirmation, they are subject to the Penalties of Perjury: But this generally relates only to Oaths to the Government, and on publick Occasions; for Quakers may not give Testimony in any criminal Cause, &c. Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 34. See Quakers.

Affozare, To set a Value or Price on a Thing Et quod Amerciament. predictor. tenentium affozentur & taxentur per Sacramentum parium. Charta Anno 1316. apud Thorn. Du Cange.

Affozatus, Appraised or valued, as Things vendible in a Fair or Market——Retinuit Rex potestatem pardonandi ei omnimoda Amerciamenta tam Affozata, quam non Affozata, tam de se quam de omnibus hominibus. Cartular. Glaston. M. S. f. 58.

Afforciamēt, (Afforciamētum) A Fortrefs, strong Hold, or other Fortification——Pro reparatione murorum & aliorum Afforciamētorum dictæ Civitatis, &c. Pryn. Animad. on Coke, fol. 184.

Afforciamētum Curie, The Calling of a Court upon a solemn and extraordinary Occasion. Cartul. Glaston. 43.

Afforcietur, To add, increase, or make stronger——Cum juratores in veritate dicenda sunt sibi contrarii de consilio Curie Afforcietur assisa ita quod apponantur alii juxta numerum majoris partis que dissenserit. Bract. lib. 4. c. 19. viz. Let the Witnesses be increased.

Afforest, (Afforestare) To turn Ground into a Forest. Chart. de Forest. c. 1. When Forest Ground is turned from Forest to other Uses, it is called Dis-afforested. Vide Forest.

Affray, Is derived from the Fr. Word Effrayer, to affright, and it formerly meant no more; as where Persons appeared with Armour or Weapons not usually worn, to the Terror of others. Stat. 2 Ed. 3. c. 3. But now it signifies a Skirmish or Fighting between two or more, and there must be a Stroke given, or offered, or a Weapon drawn, otherwise it is not an Affray. 3 Inst. 158. It is inquirable in the Court-Leet; and punishable by Justices of Peace in their Sessions, by Fine and Imprisonment. And it differs from Assault, in that it is a Wrong to the Publick; whereas Assault is of a private Nature. Lamb. lib. 2. A Justice of Peace may commit Affrayers, until they find Sureties of the Peace: A Constable may require Affrayers to depart, and if they resist, he may call others to his Assistance; who, if those refuse to assist him, may be fined and imprisoned: And a private Person, or Stander by, may put a Stop to an Affray, and seize the Offenders, where Persons are assembled in a tumultuous Manner to break the Peace. 3 Inst. 158. H. P. C. 135. In Case a Person be dangerously wounded, any Man may apprehend the Offender, and carry him before a Justice, in the same Manner as a Constable. Dalt. 35. In a very dangerous Affray, a Constable may justify Commitment, till the Offenders find Sureties for the Peace. Lamb. 139. He may likewise put the Affrayers in the Stocks till he can procure proper Assistance to convey them to Gaol. Dalt. 38. But in all Cases of Affrays, the Constable must apprehend the Persons offending before the Affray is over, or else he may not do it without a Warrant from a Justice, except it be in an extraordinary Case; as where a Person is wounded dangerously. Dalt. 36. If a Constable is hurt in an Affray, he may have his Remedy by Action of Trespass, and have good Damages; but the Affrayers if they are hurt, shall have no Remedy. Lamb. 141. And where any other Persons receive Harm from the Affrayers, they may have Remedy by Action against them. Dalt. 35.

An Indictment for an Affray.

Age, (Ætas, Fr. Age) In common Acceptation signifies a Man's Life from his Birth to any certain Time, or the Day of his Death: It also hath Relation to that Part of Time wherein Men live. But in the Law it is particularly used for those special Times which enable Persons of both Sexes to do certain Acts, which before thro' Want of Years and Judgment they are prohibited to do. As for Example; a Man at twelve Years of Age ought to take the Oath of Allegiance to the King; at Fourteen, which is his Age of Discretion, he may consent to Marriage, and chuse his Guardian; and at Twenty-one he may alien his Lands, Goods and Chattels: A Woman at nine Years of Age is dowable; at Twelve she may consent to Marriage; at Fourteen she is at Years of Discretion, and may chuse a Guardian; and at Twenty-one she may alienate her Lands, &c. 1 Inst. 78. There are several other Ages mentioned in our antient Books, relating to Aid of the Lord, Wardship, &c. now of no Use. Co. Lit. The Age of Twenty-one is the full Age of Man or Woman; which enables them to contract and manage for themselves, in Respect to their Estates, until which Time they cannot act with Security to those as deal with them; for their Acts are in most Cases either void, or voidable: Perk. But a Person under Twenty-one, may contract for Necessaries suitable to his Quality, and it shall bind him: Also one under Age may be Executor of a Will. 1 Inst. 171. And at fourteen Years of Age a Person may dispose of Goods and Personal Estate by Will; tho' not of Lands 'till the Age of Twenty-one. A Person under the Age of Twenty-one may make a Purchase; but at his full Age he may agree or disagree to it. 1 Inst. 2. So where Persons marry, the Man under the Age of Fourteen, or the Woman within Twelve, they may disagree to the Marriage at those Ages: And the Law is the same in other Cases. Persons under the Age of Fourteen, are not generally punishable for Crimes: But if they do any Trespas, they must answer for the Damage. 1 Inst. 247. 2 Roll. Abr. 547. Fourteen is the Age by Law to be a Witness, being the Age of Discretion; and in some Cases a Person of nine Years of Age has been allow'd to give Evidence. 2 Hawk. 434. None may be a Member of Parliament under the Age of twenty-one Years; and no Man can be ordained Priest till Twenty-four; nor be a Bishop till thirty Years of Age.

Age Prier, (Ætatem precari or Ætatis precatio) Is when an Action being brought against a Person under Age for Lands which he hath by Descent, he by Petition or Motion shews the Matter to the Court, and prays that the Action may stay 'till his full Age of twenty-one Years, which the Court generally agrees to. Terms de Ley 30. But as a Purchaser, a Minor shall not have Age-Prier: Nor in a Writ of Affize, because it is of his own Wrong, and this Writ shall not be delayed. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. 38 Ed. 3. c. 27. Nor in a Writ of Dower; or of Partition. Hob. 242. In a Writ of Debt against an Heir, he shall have his Age, for at full Age he may plead Riens per Descent, or a Release to his Ancestor, and be discharged. Dano. Abr. 259. See Parol Demurrer.

Agensfrida, The true Lord or Owner of any Thing. — Si porcus non fuerit ibi sapius quam semel det Agensfrida unum solidum. Leg. Inæ, cap. 50. apud Brompt. c. 45.

Agenhine, A Guest at an Inn after three Nights, when accounted one of the Family. See Hogbenhine.

Agent and Patient, Is when a Person is the Doer of a Thing, and the Party to whom done. As where a Woman endows her self of the best Part of her Husband's Possessions, this being the sole Act of her self to her self, makes her Agent and Patient. Also if a Man be indebted unto another, and afterwards he makes the Creditor his Executor, and dies, the Executor may retain so much of the Goods of the Deceased as will satisfy his Debt; and by this Retainer he is Agent and Patient, that is, the Party to whom the Debt is due, and the Person that pays the same. But a Man shall not be Judge in his own Cause, Quia iniquum est aliquem suæ rei esse judicem. 8 Rep. 138.

Agild, Signifies to be free from Penalties, not subject to the customary Fine or Imposition. Sax. a Gild, Sine multa. Leges Aluredi, cap. 6. Si utlagata efficiat ut occidatur, pro eo quod contra Dei vestrum & Regis imperium Stet — jaceat Agild. In Leg. Hen. 1. c. 88. Agilde, was a Person so vile, that whoever kill'd him was to pay no Mulct for his Death.

Agiler, From the Sax. a gile, an Observer or Informer.

Agilarius, A Hey-ward, Herd-ward, or Keeper of Cattle in a common Field. Towns and Villages had their Heywards, to supervise and guard the greater Cattle, or common Herd of Kine and Oxen, and keep them within due Bounds; and if these were servile Tenants, they were privileged from all customary Services to the Lord, because they were presumed to be always attending their Duty, as a Shepherd on his Flock. And Lords of Manors had likewise their Heywards, to take Care of the Tillage, Harvest-Work, &c. and see that there were no Incroachments made on their Lordships: But this is now the Business of Bailiffs, Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 534, 576. The Agillarius or Heyward, was sworn in his Office in the Lord's Court. Kitch. 46.

Agist, (from the Fr. Giste, A Bed or Resting-place, or from Gister, i. e. Stabulari) Signifies to take in and feed the Cattle of Strangers in the King's Forest, and to gather up the Money due for the same. Chart. de Foresta. 9 H. 3. c. 9. The Officers appointed for this Purpose are called Agisters, or Gift-takers, and are made by the King's Letters Patent: There are four of them in every Forest wherein the King hath any Pannage.

Agistment, (Agistamentum) Is where other Men's Cattle are taken into any Ground, at a certain Rate per Week. Our Graziers call the Cattle which they thus take in to keep Gisements; and to Gise or Fuice the Ground, is when the Occupier thereof feeds it not with his own Stock, but takes in the Cattle of others to agist or pasture it. Agistment is likewise the Profit of such Feeding in a Ground or Field: And extends to the Depasturing of barren Cattle of the Owner, for which Tithes shall be paid to the Parson. There is Agistment of Sea-Banks, where Lands are charged with a Tribute to keep out the Sea. Terra Agistata are Lands whose Owners are bound to keep up the Sea-Banks. Spelm. in Romney-Marsh. Agitatio Animalium in Foresta, The Drift of Beasts in the Forest. *Leg. Agararia Lex, A Law made by the Romans for Distribution of Lands among the common People.

Agreement, Agreementum, (aggregatio mentium) Is a joining together of Two or more Minds in any Thing done, or to be done. Plowd. 17. It is Threefold, 1st, An Agreement executed already at the Beginning; as where Money is paid for the Thing agreed, or other Satisfaction made. 2dly, An Agreement after an Act done by another; as where one doth such a Thing, and another Person agrees to it afterwards, which is executed also: And, 3dly, An Agreement executory, or to be perform'd in futuro. This last Sort of Agreement may be divided into two Parts; one certain at the Beginning, and the other when the Certainty not appearing at first, the Parties agree that the Thing shall be perform'd upon the Certainty known. Terms de Ley 31. Every Agreement ought to be perfect, full and compleat, being the mutual Consent of the Parties; and ought to be executed with a Recompence, or be so certain as to give an Action or other Remedy for the same. Plowd. 5. An Agreement without Satisfaction, is to no Purpose. Cro. Car. 193. Any Thing under Hand and Seal, which imports an Agreement, will amount to a Covenant: And a Proviso, by Way of Agreement, amounts likewise to Covenant; and Action may be brought upon them. 1 Lev. 155. A forced Agreement of the Party is accounted no Agreement; and therefore he that did agree to the Thing, shall not be compelled to perform it. 1 Lill. 48. An Agreement made only by Parol, may be discharged and made void, at any Time before broken, by Parol only, without Satisfaction: But not after it is broken, when an Injury is done. 22 Car. 1. B. R. Agreements are to be in Writing by Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 1. of Frauds and Perjuries: And by the Common Law, are govern'd by the Intention, or as near it as may be. They are either concerning Lands or Goods.

mentioned, doth covenant and agree with the said C. D. That he the said A. B. shall and will, at the Costs and Charges of the said C. D. on or before the Day, &c. next coming, by such Conveyances, Ways and Means in the Law as his Counsel shall reasonably advise, well and sufficiently grant, convey and assure to the said C. D. and his Heirs, or to whom he or they shall appoint, and to such Uses as he or they shall direct, All that Messuage, Tenement, &c. with Covenants to be therein contained against all Incumbrances done or committed by him the said A. B. or any claiming under him. Item, The said C. D. for himself, his Heirs and Assigns, doth covenant and grant to and with the said A. B. his Heirs and Assigns, That he the said C. D. shall and will, on executing the said Conveyance, pay unto the said A. B. his Heirs or Assigns, the said Sum of, &c. as and for the Purchase-Money for the said Messuage, Tenement and Premises above-mentioned. Item, It is further agreed by and between the said Parties to these Presents, That the said C. D. his Heirs and Assigns, shall and may, on the Day, &c. enter into and upon the said Premises, and receive the Profits thereof, to his and their own Use and Uses. In Witness, &c.

Aid, (Auxilium) Is all one with the French Aide, and is generally understood to be a Subsidy granted to the Crown. By the antient Law of the Land, the King and any Lord of the Realm, might lay an Aid upon their Tenants, for Knighting an eldest Son, or Marriage of a Daughter; but this is taken away by the Statute 12 Car. 2. This Imposition, which was often levied in antient Times, seems to have descended to us from Normandy, or rather from the feudal Laws. Grand Custum. c. 35. It is said to differ from Tax in Signification; for Taxes were formerly levied at the Will of the Lord, upon any Occasion whatsoever, but Aids could not be levied but where it was lawful and customary so to do; as to make the eldest Son a Knight, marry the eldest Daughter, or to redeem the Lord from Prison. By Statute 34 Ed. 1. It is ordained that the King shall levy no Aid or Tax without his Parliament.

Aid-Prayer, (Auxilium Petere) Aid-Prayer, A Word made use of in Pleading, for a Petition in Court to call in Help from another Person that hath an Interest in the Thing contested: This gives Strength to the Party praying in Aid, and to the other likewise, by giving him an Opportunity of avoiding a Prejudice growing towards his own Right. As Tenant for Life, by the Curtesy, for Term of Years, &c. being impleaded, may pray in Aid of him in Reversion; that is, desire the Court that he may be called by Writ to alledge what he thinks proper for the Maintenance of the Right of the Person calling him, and of his Own. F. N. B. 50. Aid shall be granted to the Defendant in a Writ of Trespass: It lies in Ejectione firma, for the Defendant, when the Title of the Land is in Question: Lessee for Years, shall have Aid in Trespass; and Tenants at Will shall have Aid: But Tenant in Tail shall not have Aid of him in Remainder in Fee; for he himself hath Inheritance. Danv. Abr. 292. There ought to be Privy between a Person that joins in Aid and the other to whom he is joined; otherwise Joinder in Aid shall not be suffered. Danv. 318. There is a Prayer in Aid of the King: Of Patrons, by Parsons, Vicars, &c. And between Coparceners, where one Coparcener shall have Aid of

of the other to recover pro rata. Co. Litt. And also Servants, having done any Thing lawfully in Right of their Masters, shall have Aid of them. Terms de Ley 34.

Aid of the King, (Auxilium Regis) Is where the King's Tenant prays Aid of the King, on Account of Rent demanded of him by others. A City or Borough, that holds a Fee-farm of the King, if any Thing be demanded against them which belongs thereto, they may pray in Aid of the King: And the King's Bailiffs, Collectors, or Accountants shall have Aid of the King. In these Cases, the Proceedings are stop'd till the King's Counsel are heard to say what they think fit, for avoiding the King's Prejudice. Terms de Ley 35. Stat. 4 Ed. 1. and 14 Ed. 3.

Aile, (of the French Aieul, i. e. Avus) Signifies a Writ which lies where a Man's Grandfather or Great Grandfather (called Besaiel) being seised of Lands and Tenements in Fee-simple, the Day that he died, and a Stranger abateth or entereth the same Day, and dispossesses the Heir of his Inheritance. F. N. B. 222. In this Writ, a Man cannot make Title higher than his Besaiel, or the Brother of his Besaiel. 3 E. 3. The Aunt and the Niece shall join in a Writ of Aiel of the Seisin of their Grandfather. And the Writ runs thus: Rex Vic. &c. Prac. A. B. quod juste, &c. redd. B. & D. unum Messuagium, &c. de quo D. Avus præd. B. & proavus præd. D. cujus hæred. ipsi sunt, fuit seistus, &c.

Alimentum, i. e. Easements, Which include any Liberty of Passage, open Way, Water-course, &c. for the Ease and Accommodation of Tenants. Kitch. 105.

Al, Ald, Words which begin with Al or Ald in the Names of Places, signify Antiquity; as Alborough, Aldworth, &c.

Alba, The Alb, A Surplice or white sacerdotal Vest, antiently used by officiating Priests.

Alba firma, This Word is used by my Lord Coke, and seems to signify a Tenure. — Duplex est Tenura in Com. Westmorland, scilicet una per Albam firmam, & alia per Cornagium, &c. 2 Inst. 10.

Albergellum, The same with Halsberga: Omnis homo, &c. habet Albergellum & capellum ferreum, Lanceam & Gladum. It here signifies a Defence for the Neck. Hoveden 611.

Album, Is a Word made Use of for white Rent, paid in Silver. Rot. Parl. 6 H. 3.

Alder. Signifies the First; as Alder best, is the best of all; Alder liefest, the most Dear.

Alderman, (Sax. Ealdorman, Lat. Aldermannus) Hath the same Signification as Senator, or Senator: But at this Day, and long since, those are called Aldermen who are Associates to the Civil Magistrate of a City or Town corporate. Stat. 24 H. 8. c. 13. There was formerly an Aldermannus Hundredi, which was first introduced in the Reign of H. 1. Among his Laws, cap. 8. we read, Præst autem singulis hominum novenis Decimus, & toti simul Hundredo unus de melioribus, & vocetur Aldermannus, qui Dei leges & hominum jura vigilantia studeat observantia promovere. Du Cange. And in Spelman's Glossary we find that we had antiently a Title of Aldermannus totius Angliæ, Witness this Inscription upon a Tomb in Ramsay Abbey. — Hic requiescit D. Alwinus incliti Regis Eadgari cognatus, totius Angliæ Aldermannus, & hujus Sacri Coenobii miraculosus Fundator. This Officer was in the Nature of Lord Chief Justice of England. Spelm. Alderman was one of the Degrees of Nobility among the Saxons, and signified an Earl; sometimes applied to a Place, it was taken for a General, with a Civil Jurisdiction as well as military Power; which Title afterwards was used for a Judge. But it literally imports no more than Elder.

Alæ Ecclesiæ, The Wings or Side Iles of the Church, from the French Les Ailes de l'Eglise. — Ad bases pilariorum murus erat tabulis Marmoreis compositus, qui Chorum cingens & Presbyterium, corpus Ecclesiæ lateribus quæ Alæ vocantur, dividebat. Gervaf. Doroborn in Descript. Eccl. Cantuar.

Alcenarium, A Sort of Hawk called a Lanner. See Putura.

Alfeth, (Sax. Alfeth) A Chauldron or Furnace, wherein antiently boiling Water was put for a Criminal to dip his Arm in up to his Elbow, and there hold it for some Time. Du Cange.

Alehouses, Are to be licensed by Justices of Peace; who have Power to put down Alehouses, &c. But the Act is not to restrain Selling of Ale in Fairs. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 25. Alehouse-keepers are liable to a Penalty for keeping Alehouses without Licence; for selling their Ale in short Measure; and permitting Tippling, &c. 1 Jac. 1. c. 9. 3 Car. 1. c. 3. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 15. See Inns.

Aler San jour, (Fr.) To go without Day, viz. To be finally dismissed the Court, because there is no further Day assign'd for Appearance. Kitch. 146.

Ale-Silber, A Rent or Tribute annually paid to the Lord Mayor of London by those that sell Ale within the Liberty of the City. Antiq. Purvey. 183.

Alestake, A May-Pole call'd Alestake, because the Country People drew much Ale there: But it is not properly the common May-Pole, but rather a long Stake drove into the Ground, with a Sign on it, that Ale was to be sold.

Ale-taster, Is an Officer appointed in every Court-Leet, sworn to look to the Affize and Goodness of Bread, Ale and Beer, within the Precincts of the Lordship. Kitch. 46. In London there are Ale-Conners, who are Officers appointed to taste Ale and Beer, &c. in the Limits of the City.

Alias, Is a second or further Writ, issued from the Courts at Westminster, after a Capias, &c. sued out without Effect. Præf. Attorn. Edit. 1.

Alias dict. Is to ascertain the Name and Additions of the Defendant in Declarations for Debt on Bond, &c. See Misnomer.

Alien (Alienus, Alienigena) One born in a strange Country out of the Allegiance of the King: It is taken for the contrary to a Denizen or natural Subject. But a Man born out of the Land, so as it be within the Limits of the King's Obedience beyond Sea; or born of English Parents out of the Obedience of the King, if the Parents at the Time of the Birth were of such Obedience, is no Alien. Statute 25 Ed. 3. c. 2. And if one born out of the King's Obedience, come and reside in England, his Children begotten and born here are not Aliens but Denizens. 7 Rep. All Persons being the King's natural-born Subjects,

Subjects, may inherit, as Heirs to their Ancestors, tho' their Ancestors were Aliens. By Statute 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 6. Children of an Embassador in a foreign Country, by a Wife being an English Woman, by the Common Law, are natural-born Subjects, and not Aliens. 7 Rep. 18. And if an English Merchant living beyond Sea marries a Wife there, and hath a Child by her, and dies; this Child is born a Denizen, and shall be Heir to him, notwithstanding the Wife be an Alien. Cro. Car. 605. March 91. Those which are born in the English Plantations, are Subjects born. Danv. Abr. 324. There are two Incidents regularly that are necessary to make a Subject born; First, That his Parents, at the Time of his Birth, be under the actual Obedience of the King; Secondly, That the Place of his Birth, be within the King's Dominions. 7 Rep. 18. And it is the Place of Birth that makes the Disability of an Alien to have Lands, &c. The Blood is not the Disability, but the Place where born. Cro. Jac. 539. An Alien can hold no Land by Descent, or Purchase, or be Tenant by the Curtesy, or in Dower. 5 Rep. 502. But 'tis said he may suffer a Recovery, and it will bar the Estate-tail. 4 Leon. 84. An Alien may purchase a House for Years, for Habitation during his Residency, as necessary for Trade; tho' not Lands. If an Alien, being a Merchant, leaves the Realm, the King shall have the Lease; and if he dies here possessed thereof, his Executors or Administrators shall not have it, but the King; he having it only as an Habitation for his Trade. If an Alien is no Merchant, the King shall have his Lease for Years, tho' it were for his Habitation. 7 Rep. 18. 1 Inst. 2, 129. 2 Inst. 741. In Case an Alien purchase Lands, the King upon Office found, shall have it. 1 Inst. 2. Aliens are prohibited to purchase Benefices, without the King's Licence, &c. Stat. 7 R. 2. c. 12. A Devise of Lands to an Alien, is void. 4 Leon. 82. And if a Man be bound to an Alien Enemy in an Obligation, the Bond is void to him; but the King shall have it. 1 Lev. 59. Danv. Abr. 322. Aliens may obtain Goods and Personal Estate, by Trade, &c. And may maintain Actions for the same; they may also have Actions of Assault and Battery, and for Support of their Credit. 1 Bulst. 134. But they cannot bring any Real Action, unless it be for an House for necessary Habitation, being for the Benefit of Trade. 7 Rep. And an Alien Enemy cannot maintain any Action whatsoever, nor get any Thing lawfully within this Realm. Terms de Ley 36. An Alien Enemy coming into this Kingdom, and taken in War, shall suffer Death by the Martial Law; and not be indicted at Common Law, for the Indictment must conclude contra Ligeantiam suam, &c. And such was never in the Protection of the King. Molloy de jur. Marit. 417. Aliens living under the Protection of the King, may have the Benefit of a general Pardon. Hob. 271. An Alien Friend may be an Administrator to a Person dying. 1 Ventr. 417. No Alien shall be returned on any Jury, nor be sworn for Trial of Issues between Subject and Subject, &c. but where an Alien is Party in a Cause depending, the Inquest of Jurors are to be half Denizens, and half Aliens: But in Cases of High Treason, this is not allowed. 2 Inst. 17. An Alien shall not have any Vote in the Choice of Knights of the Shire, or Burgesses to Parliament. Hob. 270. And Persons that are Aliens, or born out of the Realm, are incapable to be Members of Parliament, enjoy Offices, &c. Stat. 12 W. 3. c. 2. Aliens are to take an Oath to be true to the King, and obedient to his Laws: They shall not take Apprentices, but such as are born in the King's Allegiance. Strangers not being Denizens and Householders, are restrain'd from keeping any Shop, &c. to exercise their Handicrafts: And the Goods and Wares of Aliens, are to be examined and marked, by Wardens of Handicrafts, &c. 14 H. 8. 21 H. 8. c. 16. 32 H. 8. c. 16. No Alien shall be a Factor abroad, in the English Plantations, under Penalties. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 18. See Artificers.

Alienation, (from Alienare to alien) A Transferring the Property of a Thing to another. It chiefly relates to Lands and Tenements: As to alien Land in Fee, is to sell the Fee-simple thereof: So likewise of Estates in Fee-tail, &c. And to alien in Mortmain, is to make over Lands or Tenements to a Religious House or Body Politick; for which the King's Licence is to be obtained. Stat. 15 R. 2. c. 5. Fines for Alienations are taken away by Statute; except Fines due by particular Customs of Manors. 12 Car. 2. Danv. Abr. 327. All Persons who have a Right to Lands, may generally alien them to others: But some Alienations are forbidden; as an Alienation by a particular Tenant, such as Tenant for Life, &c. which infers a Forfeiture of the Estate. 1 Inst. 118. For if Lessee for Life, by Livery alieneth in Fee, or make a Lease for the Life of another, or Gift in Tail, it is a Forfeiture of his Estate: So if Tenant in Dower, Tenant for another's Life; Tenant for Years, &c. do alien for a greater Estate than they lawfully may make. 1 Inst. 233, 251. Conditions in Feoffments, &c. that the Feoffee shall not alien, are void. 1 Inst. 206. Hob. 261. And it is the same where a Man possessed of a Lease for Years, or other Thing, and gives and sells his whole Property therein, upon such Condition. But one may grant an Estate in Fee, on Condition that the Grantee shall not alien to a particular Person, &c. And where a Reversion is in the Donor of an Estate, he may restrain an Alienation by Condition. Lit. 361. Wood's Inst. 141. Estates in Tail, for Life, or Years, where the whole Interest is not parted with, may be made with Condition not to alien to others, for the Preservation of the Lands granted in the Hands of the first Grantee.

Alfred, An old Saxon Word, signifying allowed or permitted; from whence we say such a one hath Leave, &c.

Alimony, (Alimonia) Signifies Nourishment or Maintenance: And in a legal Sense, it is taken for that Allowance which a married Woman sues for and is entitled to, upon any occasional Separation from her Husband. But the Woman must not be charged with Elopement or Adultery. Terms de Ley 38. Where a Woman is divorced a Mensa & Thoro, she may sue her Husband in her own Name for Alimony or Maintenance out of the Husband's Estate, during the Separation, either in the Chancery or Spiritual Court; and it will be allowed, except it be in Cases of Elopement and Adultery. 1 Inst. 235. But the Spiritual Court is the proper Court to sue in for Alimony: And the not allowing a Wife Maintenance, is not an Offence within the Statute 1 Eliz. but a Neglect of the Husband's Duty, and a Breach of his Vow. 12 Rep. 30. A Man may be sued in the Spiritual Court for Beating his Wife, and he may be ordered to pay her so much per Week Alimony: But a Prohibition hath been granted by

B. R.

B. R. in such Case ; and the Wife may have Sureties of the Peace for unreasonable Beating her. Trin. 11. Fac. 1. Pracipimus tibi quod de Maritagio Emmæ de Pinckeny uxoris Laurentii Penire, qui Excommunicatus est, eo quod predictam Emmam affectione Maritali non tractat, eidem Emma Rationabile Estoverium suum invenias, donec idem Laurentius Vir suus eam tanquam uxorem suam tractaverit, ne iteratus clamor ad nos inde perveniat. — Rot. 7. Hen. 3. Allauds, Ab Alanis, Scythia Gente, Hare-Hounds.

Allay, (Fr. in Lat. Allaya) A Word used for the Tempering and Mixture of other Metals with Silver or Gold. Stat. 9 Hen. 5. This Allay is to augment the Weight of the Silver or Gold, so as it may defray the Charge of Coinage, and to make it the more fusile. A Pound-Weight of Standard Gold, by the present Standard in the Mint, is Twenty-two Carats fine, and two Carats Allay : And a Pound-Weight of right Standard Silver consists of eleven Ounces two Penny Weights of fine Silver, and eighteen Penny Weight of Allay. Lownd's Essay upon Coins, pag. 19. One Penny Weight of Angel Gold is worth four Shillings and Two-pence ; of Crown-Gold, three Shillings and Ten-pence ; and of Foreign Gold, three Shillings and Six-pence : And one Ounce of pure Silver, is worth five Shillings and Four-pence ; and with Allay, five Shillings. Mod. Just. tit. Coin, pag. 120.

Alliegance, Allegiantia (formerly called Ligeance, from the Latin Alligare & Ligare, i. e. Ligamen Fidei) is the sworn Allegiance, or Faith and Obedience, which every Subject owes to his Prince. It is either perpetual, where one is a Subject born ; or where one hath the Right of a Subject by Naturalization, &c. or it is temporary, by Reason of Residence in the King's Dominions. To Subjects born, it is an Incident inseparable, and as soon as born they owe by Birth-right Obedience to their Sovereign : And it cannot be confined to any Kingdom, but follows the Subject wheresoever he goes. 1 Inst. 2. 329. 2 Inst. 741. This Word at first implied the legal Subjection of Vassals to their Lords. Cow. Interp. All Persons above the Age of 12 Years are to be required to take the Oath of Allegiance in Courts-Lect. And there are several Statutes requiring the Oath of Allegiance and Supremacy, &c. to be taken, under Penalties : Justices of Peace may summons Persons above the Age of 18 Years, to take these Oaths. Stat. 1 Eliz. 1 W. & M. 8cc. Absolving any Persons from their Allegiance, is High Treason, by 1 & 21 Eliz.

Allegiare, To defend or justify by due Course of Law. — Si quis se velit allegiare secundum Regis Weregildum hoc faciat. Leges Alfyred. c. 4. Spelm.

Aller Good. The Word Aller is used to make what it is added to signify superlatively ; as Aller-Good is the greatest Good.

Allebiare, Signifies to levy or pay an accustomed Fine. Some of our ancient Histories mention such Fines paid by Persons to their Lords for Redemption of their Daughters, or for a Licence to marry them. Brady's Pref. to Engl. Hist. 64.

Allocation, (Allocatio) In a legal Sense is an Allowance made upon an Account in the Exchequer ; or more properly a Placing or Adding to a Thing.

Allocatione Facienda, A Writ for allowing to an Accountant such Sums of Money as he hath lawfully expended in his Office ; directed to the Lord Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer upon Complaint made. Reg. Orig. 206.

Allodial : This is where an Inheritance is held without any Acknowledgment to any Lord or Superior ; and therefore is of another Nature from that which is feudal. Allodial Lands are free Lands, which a Man enjoys without paying any Fine, Rent, or Service to any other.

Allumino, (from the Fr. Allumer, to lighten). Is used for one who coloureth or painteth upon Paper or Parchment ; and the Reason is, because he gives Light and Ornament by his Colours to the Letters or other Figures. The Word is used Stat. 1 R. 3. cap. 9. But we now call such a one a Limner.

Almaria for Armaria : The Archives of a Church, a Library. — Omnia etiam Ecclesia Almaria confregit, Chartas & Privilegia quadam igne cremavit. Gervaf. Dorob. in R. 2.

Almoner, or Almoner, (Eleemosynarius) An Officer of the King's House, whose Business it is to distribute the King's Alms every Day. He ought to admonish the King to bestow his Alms, especially upon Saints Days and Holy Days ; and he is likewise to visit the Sick, Widows that are poor, Prisoners and other necessitous People, and to relieve them under their Wants ; for which Purpose, he hath the Forfeitures of Deodands, and the Goods of Felo's de se, allowed him by the King. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 22. The Lord Almoner has the Disposition of the King's Dish of Meat, after it comes from the Table, which he may give to whom he pleases ; and he distributes Four-pence in Money, a Two-penny Loaf of Bread, and a Gallon of Beer ; or instead thereof Three-pence daily at the Court-gate to twenty-four poor Persons of the King's Parish, to each of them that Allowance. This Officer is usually some Bishop.

Almonarium, (Almonaria) A Cupboard, or Safe, to deposite broken Victuals in, to be distributed in Alms to the Poor. This Sort of Repository is in the Northern Parts still called the Aumbry and Ammerj. — Nos Dedimus totam illam seldam vocatam le Huse, cum Schopis, Solaris, Stallis, Cistis, & Almorietis, cum omnibus suis pertinentiis. Cart. 5. Rich. 2.

Almesfeoh, or Aelmesfeoh, Saxon for Alms-Money : It has been taken for what we call Peter-pence, first given by Ina King of the West-Saxons, and anciently paid in England on the First of August. It was likewise called Romefeoh, Romefcot, and Heorthpening. Selden's Hist. Tithes 217.

Almutium, A Garment which covered the Head and Shoulders of Priests. Quasivit Episcopus in quali habitu esset ? Responsum est, quod in tunica de Burneto & Almutio sine cuculla. W. Thorn. 1330.

Alnage, (French Aulnage) Signifies a Measure, particularly the Measuring with an Ell. Stat. 17 E. 4. cap. 5.

Alnager, or Aulnager, (French Alner, Latin Ulniger) Is properly a Measure by the Ell ; and the Word Aulne in French signifies an Ell. An Aulnager with us is a publick sworn Officer of the King's, whose Place it is to examine into the Assise of all Cloths, made throughout the Land, and to fix Seals upon them ; and another Branch of his Office is to collect a Subsidy or Aulnage Duty granted to the King. He hath his Power by Stat. 25 Ed. 3. and several other antient Statutes; which appoint his Fees, and inflict a Punishment for putting his Seal to deceitful Cloth, &c. viz. a Forfeiture of his Office, and the Value. 27 Ed. 3. 3 R. 2. But there are now three Officers belonging to the Regulation of Clothing, who bear the distinct Names of Searcher, Measurer, and Aulnager; all which were formerly comprised in one Person. 4 Inst. 31. And because the Subjects of this Kingdom should not be abused, an Office of Searching is established by Act of Parliament.

Alnetum, A Place where Alders grow; or a Grove of Alder-trees. — Alnetum est ubi Alni arbores crescant. — Domesday-Book.

Alodium, Alodarii. Alodium in Domesday signifies a free Manor: And Alodarii Lords of Manors, or Lords Paramount. Quando moritur Alodarius, Rex inde habet Relevationem terra, &c. Domesday. Tit. Kent. 1 Inst. 1. 5.

Alloverium, A Purse. This Word is mentioned in Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 82. par. 2.

Altarage, (Altaragium) The Offerings made upon the Altar, and also the Profit that arises to the Priest by Reason of the Altar, obventio Altaris. Mich. 21 Eliz. It was declared that by Altarage is meant Tithes of Wool, Lambs, Colts, Calves, Pigs, Chickens, Butter, Cheese, Fruits, Herbs, and other small Tithes with the Offerings due: The Case of the Vicar of West-Haddon in Northamptonshire. But the Word Altarage at first is thought to signify no more than the casual Profits arising to the Priest, from the Peoples voluntary Oblations at the Altar; out of which a Portion was assigned by the Parson to the Vicar: Since that, our Parsons have generally contented themselves with the greater Profits of Glebe, and Tenths of Corn and Hay; and have left the small Tithes to the officiating Priests: And hence it is that Vicarages are endowed with them. Terms de Ley 39. 2 Cro. 516. — Vicarius de Tickhill ad sustentationem sui habeat totum Altaragium, ita quod Nomine Altaragii contineantur omnes obventiones, Decima & proventus ipsius Ecclesie de Tickhill, Exceptis Decimis Bladi Leguminis & fœni, & terris ad dictam Ecclesiam pertinentibus, &c. Ordinatio Walter. Archiep. Ebor. An. Dom. 1249.

— Oblationes sive nummorum, sive panum, tali vel tali Altari, vel ex Devotione, vel ex consuetudine, aut a Parochianis, aut ab extraneis facta, Altaragii nomine consebantur. Norton in Com. Northampt. Gloss. in Mat. Paris. — Vicaria in Ecclesia Sancti Martini de Stampford consistit in toto Altaragio dictæ Ecclesie. Monasticon. 2 Tom. 881. 3 Tom. 139.

Alto & Basso. By this is meant the absolute Submission of all Differences. Pateat Universis per presentes quod Willielmus T. de Y. & Thomas G. de A. posuerunt se in Alto & Basso in Arbitrio quatuor hominum viz. — de quadam Querela pendente, &c. Et prædicti quatuor homines Judicaverunt, &c. Dat. Anno 2 Hen. 5.

Amabyr, vel Amvabyr, (Br.) A Custom in the Honour of Clun, belonging to the Earls of Arundel: Pretium Virginitatis Domino Solvendum LL. Eccl. Howeli Dha. Regis Walliæ. Puella dicitur esse defertum Regis, & ob hoc Regis est de ea Amvabyr habere. This Custom Henry Earl of Arundel released to his Tenants, Anno 3 & 4 P. & M.

Ambassador, (Legatus) Is a Servant of the State, representing the King in a Foreign Country, to take Care of the Publick Affairs. And Ambassadors are either Ordinary, or Extraordinary; the Ordinary Ambassadors, are those who reside in the Place whither sent; and the Time of their Return being indefinite, so is their Business uncertain, arising from emergent Occasions; and commonly the Protection and Affairs of the Merchants is their greatest Care: The Extraordinary Ambassadors are made pro tempore, and employed upon some particular great Affairs, as Condolements, Congratulations, or for Overtures of Marriage, &c. Their Equipage is generally very great and magnificent; and they may return without requesting of Leave, unless there be a restraining Clause in their Commission. Molloy 144. An Agent represents the Affairs only of his Master; but an Ambassador ought to represent the Greatness of his Master, and his Affairs. ibid. By the Laws of Nations, none under the Quality of a Sovereign Prince, can send any Ambassador: A King that is deprived of his Kingdom and Royalty, hath lost his Right of Legation. No Subject, though never so great, can send or receive an Ambassador; and if a Viceroy does it, he will be guilty of High Treason: The Electors and Princes of Germany, have the Privilege of sending and Reception of Ambassadors; but it is limited only to Matters touching their own Territories, and not the State of the Empire. Molloy 145. It is said there can be no Ambassador without Letters of Credence from his Sovereign, to another that hath Sovereign Authority: And if a Person be sent from a King or absolute Potentate, though in his Letters of Credence he is termed an Agent, yet he is Ambassador, he being for the Publick. 4 Inst. 153. Ambassadors may by a Precaution be warned not to come to the Place where sent; and if they then do it, they shall be taken for Enemies: But being once admitted, even with Enemies in Arms, they shall have the Protection of the Laws of Nations, and be preserved as Princes. Moll. 146. If a banished Man be sent as an Ambassador to the Place from whence he is banished, he may not be detained or molested there. 4 Inst. 153. The Killing of an Ambassador, has been adjudged High Treason. 3 Inst. Some Ambassadors are allowed by Concession, to have Jurisdiction over their own Families; and their Houses permitted to be Sanctuaries: But where Persons who have greatly offended fly to their Houses, after Demand and Refusal to deliver them up, they may be taken from thence. Ambassadors cannot be defended when they commit any Thing against the State, or the Person of the King, with whom they reside. 4 Inst. 152. An Ambassador guilty of Treason against the King's Life, may be condemned and executed: But for other Treasons, he shall be sent home, with Demand to punish him, or to send him back to be punished. 4 Inst. 152. 1 Roll. Rep. 185. If a Foreign Ambassador commits any Crime here, which is contra jus Gentium, as Treason, Felony, &c. or any other Crime against the Law of Nations, he loseth the Privilege of an Ambassador, and is subject to Punishment as a private Alien; and he need not be remanded to his Sovereign, but of Curtsey. Dano. Abr. 327. But if a Thing be only Malum Prohibitum by any Act of Parliament, Private Law, or Custom of the Realm, and it is not contra jus Gentium, an Ambassador shall not be bound by them. 4 Inst. 153. And it is said Ambassadors may be excused of Practices against the State where they reside, (unless it be in Point of Conspiracy; which is against the Law of Nations) because it doth not appear whether ther they have it in Mandatis; and then they are excused by Necessity of Obedience. Bac. Max. 26. By the Civil Law, the Person of an Ambassador cannot be arrested: And the moveable Goods of Ambassadors which are accounted an Accession to their Persons, cannot be seized on, as a Pledge, nor for Payment of Debt, tho' by Leave of the King or State where they are Resident; but on Refusal of Payment, Letters of Request are to go to his Master, &c. Molloy 157. Danv. 328. By our Statute Law, an Ambassador, or Publick Minister, or his Domestick Servants, register'd in the Secretary's Office, &c. are not to be arrested; if they are, the Process shall be void, and the Persons suing out and executing it, shall suffer such Penalties and Corporal Punishment as the Lord Chancellor or either of the Chief Justices shall think fit. Stat. 7 Ann. c. 12. Also the Goods of an Ambassador, or of his Servants, shall not be distrained. Stat. ibid.

Ambidexter, (Lat.) One that can use his left Hand as well as his right; or that plays on both Sides. But in a legal Sense, it is taken for a Juror or Embraceror, who takes Money of both Parties for giving his Verdict. For his Punishment, See Decies tantum. Crompt. Just. 156.

Ambys, (Sax. Amber, Lat. Amphora) A Vessel among the Saxons: It contained a Measure of Salt, Butter, Meal, Beer, &c. Leg. Inæ West. Sax.

Ambry, The Place where the Arms, Plate, Vessels, and every Thing which belong'd to House-keeping were kept; and probably the Ambry at Westminster is so called, because formerly set a-part for that Use: Or rather the Aumonery, from the Latin Eleemosynaria, an House adjoining to an Abbey, in which the Charities were laid up for the Poor.

Amenable, (Fr. Amener) To bring or lead unto: Or Amainable (from the Fr. Main a Hand) signifies tractable, that may be led or governed: And in our Books it is commonly applied to a Woman, that is governable by her Husband. Co. Interp.

Amendment, (Emendatio) The Correction of an Error committed in any Process, which may be amended after Judgment; but if there be any Error in giving the Judgment, the Party is driven to his Writ of Error: Though where the Fault appears to be in the Clerk who writ the Record, it may be amended. Terms de Ley. 39. A Plaintiff may amend his Bill on the File at any Time before Plea pleaded; but not afterwards without Motion and Leave of the Court. 1 Lill. Abr. 58. Original Writs are not amendable at Common Law; for if the Writ be not good, the Party may have another: Judicial Writs may and have been often amended. 8 Rep. 157. And by the Statutes 8 H. 6. and 18 Eliz. the Misprision of the Clerk, and false Latin, &c. is amendable in Original Writs; but it must not be in another Term, when the Roll is a Record. 8 Rep. 88. The Faults and Mistakes of Clerks are in many Cases amendable: The Misprision of a Clerk in Matter of Fact is amendable; tho not in Matter of Law. Palm. 258. If there be a Mistake in the legal Form of the Writ, it is not amendable: There is a Diversity between the Negligence and Ignorance of the Clerk that makes out Writs; for the Negligence (as if he have the Copy of a Bond and do not pursue it) this shall be amended; but his Ignorance in the legal Course of Original Writs is not amendable. 8 Rep. 159. Mistakes in Matter of Form are amendable; and Matter of Substance is not. Danv. Abr. 349.

If a Thing which the Plaintiff ought to have entered himself, being a Matter of Substance, be totally omitted, this shall not be amended; but otherwise it is if omitted only in Part and misentered. Danv. 346. By the Common Law a Writ of Error returned and filed, could not be amended; because it would alter the Record. But now by Stat. 5 Geo. cap. 13. Writs of Error wherein there shall be any Variance from the original Record or other Defect, may be amended by the Court where returnable. A Declaration grounded on an Original Writ, may not be amended, if the Writ be erroneous: Though if it be on a Bill of Middlesex or a Latitat, it is amendable. 1 Lill. Abr. 67. Declarations upon any penal Statutes, Qui tam, &c. may not be amended after Issue joined. 2 Mod. 144. And Indictments of Treason, and Felony, Writs of Appeal, &c. are excepted out of the Statutes of Amendments. A Plaintiff may amend his Declaration in Matter of Form after a general Issue pleaded, before Entry thereof, without Payment of Costs: If he amend in Substance, he is to pay Costs, or give Imparance; and if he amend after a special Plea, though he would give Imparance, he must pay Costs. 1 Lill. 58. B. R. A Plea when only on Paper, upon Notice and Payment of Costs may be amended; but if the Plea be entered on Parchment it is not amendable, being a Plea of Record: After Demurrer, and after Issue joined, a Plea may not be amended. A Demurrer may be amended, after the Parties have joined in Demurrer, if it be only in Paper. Style 48. An Issue entered upon Record, with Leave of the Court may be amended; but not in a material Thing, or in that which will deface the Record. 1 Lill. Abr. 61. A Record may be amended by the Court in a small Matter, after Issue joined, so as the Plea be not altered. Danv. Abr. 338. If on a Writ of Error a Record is amended in another Court in Affirmance of the Judgment, it must be amended in the Court where Judgment was given. Hardr. 505. Where the Record of Nisi Prius does not agree with the Original Record, it may be amended after Verdict, provided it do not change the Issue: But a Record shall not be amended to attain the Jury, or prejudice the Authority of the Judge. Mich. 8 W. A General or Special Verdict may be amended by the Notes of the Clerk of Assise in Civil Causes; but not in Criminal Actions. 1 Salk. 47. At Common Law, the Judges may amend their Judgments of the same Term; and by Statute of another Term. 8 Rep. 156. 14 E. 3. If Judgments are not well entered, on Payment of Costs they will be ordered to be so: When Judgments are entered, 'tis said the Defects therein being the Act of the Court, and not the Misprision of the Clerk, are not amendable. Goldsb. 104. Mistakes in Returns of Writs, Fines and Recoveries, made by mutual Assent of Parties may be amended. 5 Rep. 45. Judgment shall not be stayed after Verdict, for that an Original wants Form, or varies from the Record in Point of Form, which are amendable. 4 Rep. 45. After Verdict given in any Court of Record, there shall be no Stay of Judgment for Want of Form in any Writ, or insufficient Returns of Sheriffs, Variance in Form between the Original Writ and Declaration, &c. Stat. 32 H. 8. 18 Eliz. Vide 5 Geo. Where Judgment shall not be reversed for Defects in Form or Substance. Imperfections and Defects are aided after Verdict, by the Statutes.

of Jeofails: And by 4 & 5 Ann. All the Statutes of Jeofails shall be extended to Judgments upon Confession, Nilil di. it. &c. And upon Demurrer, the Judges shall give Judgment without regarding Imperfections in any Writ, &c. except the same be set down as Cause of Demurrer. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. Amendments are usually made in Affirmance of Judgments; and seldom or never to destroy them: And where Amendments were at Common Law, the Party was to pay a Fine for Leave to amend. 3 Salk. 29.

Amerciament, Amerciamentum, (from the Fr. Merci) Signifies the pecuniary Punishment of an Offender against the King, or other Lord in his Court, that is found to be in Misericordia, i. e. to have offended, and to stand at the Mercy of the King or Lord. The Author of Terms de Ley saith, that Amerciament is properly a Penalty assessed by the Peers or Equals of the Party amerced, for the Offence done; for which he putteth himself at the Mercy of the Lord. Terms de Ley 40. And by the Statute of Magna Charta, a Freeman is not to be amerced for a small Fault, but proportionable to the Offence, and that by his Peers. 9 H. 3. c. 4. Amerciaments are a more merciful Penalty than a Fine; for which if they are too grievous, a Release may be sued by an ancient Writ called Moderata Misericordia. The Difference between Amerciaments and Fines, is this; Fines are said to be Punishments certain, and grow expressly from some Statute; but Amerciaments are such as are arbitrarily imposed. Kitch. 78. Also Fines are imposed and assessed by the Court; and Amerciaments by the Country. 8 Rep. 39. No Court can impose a Fine, but a Court of Record; other Courts can only amerce. 8 Rep. 41. A Court-Leet can amerce for publick Nuisances only. 1 Saund. 135. For a Fine and all Amerciaments in a Court-Leet, a Distress is incident of Common Right: But for Amerciament in a Court-Baron, Distress may not be taken but by Prescription. 11 Rep. 45. When an Amerciament is agreed on, the Lord may have an Action of Debt, or distress for it, and impound the Distress, or sell it at his Pleasure: But he cannot imprison for it. 8 Rep. 41. 45. In Courts-Baron, the Amerciaments ought to be assessed; but 'tis otherwise of Fines imposed by a Court of Record. 2 Inst. 27. In the Court-Baron, Tenants not doing Suit of Court, Persons making any Incroachments, not performing what is ordered, or for other Misdemeanors there punishable, are to be amerced. These Amerciements are made upon Presentment of the Jury; and if they are grounded upon a void Presentment, the Amerciements are also void. 1 Lill. Abr. 72. There is also Amercement in Pleas in the Courts of Record, when a Defendant delays to tender the Thing demanded by the King's Writ, on the first Day. 1 Inst. 116. In all Personal Actions without Force, as in Debt, Detinue, &c. if the Plaintiff be nonsuit, barred, or his Writ abate for Matter or Form, he shall be amerced: But if on judicial Process, founded on a Judgment and Record, the Plaintiff be nonsuit, barred, &c. he shall not be amerced. 1 Nelf. Abr. 206. Sheriffs are to be amerced for the Faults of their Officers; and Clerks of the Peace are amerceable in B. R. for gross Faults in Indictments removed thither. Hill. 21 Car. The Amercement of the Sheriff, or other Officer of the King, is called Amercement Royal. Terms de Ley. A Town shall be amerced for the Escape of a Murderer, in the Day-time:

And if the Town be walled, 'tis said, it shall be subject to Amercement, whether by Day or Night. 3 Inst. 53. Amerciaments are likewise in several other Cases.

Amesse, (from the Lat. Amictus) Is taken for a priestly Garment.

Amicia, (the same with Almutium) A Cap made with Goats or Lambs Skins; that Part whereof which covered the Head was square, and one Part of it hung behind, and covered the Neck. Monasticon 3. Tom. p. 36.

Amictus, Was the uppermost of the six Garments worn by Priests, tied round the Neck, and it covered the Breast and Heart. — Ne inde ad Linguam transeat mendacium, ne vanitates cogitet. — Amictus, Alba, Cingulum, Stola, Manipulus, & Planeta. — These were the six Garments of Priests.

Amittere Legem Terræ, To lose and be deprived of the Liberty of swearing in any Court: As to become infamous, renders a Person incapable of being an Evidence. Vide Glanvil, lib. 2. And see the Statute 5 Eliz. cap. 9. against Perjury.

Ammobragium, A Service. — Terras in Com. Flint. tenentur de Domino Rege per certa servitia, & per Ammobragium quod ad quinque Solidos extenditur cum acciderit. Pat. 7. Ed. 2.

Amnitum Insulæ, Isles upon the West Coast of Britain. Blount.

Amortization, (Amortizatio, Fr. Amortissement) Is an Alienation of Lands or Tenements in Mortmain, viz. to any Corporation or Fraternity, and their Successors, &c. And the Right of Amortization is a Privilege or Licence of taking in Mortmain. Fus Amortizationis est privilegium seu Licentia capiendi in Manum Mortuam. In the Statute De Libertatibus perquirendis Anno 27 Ed. 1. the Word Amortisement is used.

Amortize, (Fr. Amortir) Is to alien Lands in Mortmain. See Mortmain, and the Statute 7 Ed. 1. of amortizing Lands.

Ampliation, (Ampliatio) An Enlargement, but in Sense of Law it is a Referring of Judgment 'till the Cause is further examined.

Amp, (Amicus) In Law prochein Amy is the next Friend to be trusted for an Infant. Alien Amy is a Foreigner here subject to some Prince in Friendship with us.

An Hour & Waste, (Annus Dies & Vastum) Year, Day and Waste; a Forfeiture of Lands to the King by Tenants committing Felony, and afterwards the Land falls to the Lord.

Ancestor, (Antecessor) Signifies as much as a Predecessor, or one that has gone before in a Family: But the Laws make a Difference between what we commonly call an Ancestor and a Predecessor; the one being applied to a natural Person and his Ancestors, and the other to a Body Politick and their Predecessors. Co. Lit. A Prepossessor of an Estate hath been called Ancestor.

Ancestrel, What relates to or hath been done by one's Ancestors; as Homage Ancestrel, &c.

Ancho, Is a Measure of Brandy, &c. containing ten Gallons. Lex Mercat.

Anchorage, (Ancoragium) A Duty taken of Ships for the Use of the Haven where they cast Anchor. M. S. Arth. Trevor, Ar. The Ground in Ports and Havens belonging to the King, no Person can let any Anchor fall thereon without paying therefore to the King's Officers.

Ancients, Gentlemen of the Inns of Court. In Gray's Inn, the Society consists of Benchers, Ancients, Barristers, and Students under the Bar; and here the Ancients are of the oldest Barristers. In the Middle Temple, such as have gone through or are past their Readings are termed Ancients: The Inns of Chancery consist of Ancients and Students or Clerks; and from the Ancients one is yearly chosen the Principal or Treasurer.

Ancient Demesne, or Demain, (Vetus Patrimonium Domini) Is a Tenure whereby all Manors belonging to the Crown in the Days of St. Edward and William, called the Conqueror, were held. The Number and Names of all Manors, after a Survey made of them, were written in the Book of Domesday; and those which by that Book appear to have at that Time belonged to the Crown, and are contained under the Title Terra Regis, are called Ancient Demesne. Kitch. 98. Fitzherbert tells us, that Tenants in Ancient Demesne had their Tenures from ploughing the King's Lands, and other Works towards the Maintenance of the King's Freehold, on which Account they had Liberties granted them. F. N. B. 14. 228. And there were two Sorts of these Tenures and Tenants; one that held their Lands freely by Charter; the other by Copy of Court-Roll, according to the Custom of the Manor. Britt. c. 66. The Tenants holding by Charter cannot be impleaded out of their Manor; for if they are, they may abate the Writ by pleading their Tenure: They are free from Toll, for all Things bought and sold concerning their Sustenance and Husbandry: And they may not be impanelled upon any Inquest. F. N. B. 14. If Tenants in Ancient Demesne are returned on Juries, they may have a Writ de non ponendis in Assis, &c. And Attachment against the Sheriff. 1 Rep. 105. And if they are disturbed by taking Duties of Toll, &c. they may have Writs of Monstraverunt, to be discharged. These Tenants are free as to their Persons, but not as to their Estates: And their Privileges are supposed to commence by Act of Parliament; for they cannot be created by Grant at this Day. 1 Salk. 57. Lands in Ancient Demesne are extendible upon a Statute Merchant, Staple, or Elegit. 4 Inst. 270. No Lands ought to be accounted Ancient Demesne but such as are held in Socage; and whether it be Ancient Demesne or not, shall be tried by the Book of Domesday. A Lessee for Years cannot plead in Ancient Demesne: Nor can a Lord in Action against him plead Ancient Demesne, for the Land is frank-fee in his Hands. Danv. Abr. 660. In Real Actions, Ejectment, Replevin, &c. Ancient Demesne is a good Plea; but not in Actions merely Personal. Danv. 658. A Fine levied in the King's Courts will change Ancient Demesne to Frank-fee, at Common Law: So if the Lord enfeoffs another of the Tenancy; or if the Land comes to the King. &c. 4 Inst. 270.

Ancienty, (Fr. Anciennete, Lat. Antiquitas) Eldership or Seniority. This Word is used in the Statute of Ireland. 14 Hen. 3.

Anden, A Swath in Mowing: It likewise signifies as much Ground as a Man could stride over at once.

Anelacium, A short Knife or Dagger. — Loricâ erat indutus, gestans Anelacium ad Lumbare. Mat. Paris. 277.

Anfeldtyhde, or Anfealtibile, A simple Accusation; for the Saxons had two Sorts of Accusations, viz. Simplex and Triplex: That was called Single, when the Oath of the Criminal and two more was sufficient to discharge him; but his own Oath, and the Oaths of five more were required to free him a triplici Accusatione. Somner. In the Laws of Adelstan we read — Et si Anfeldtyhde sit, immergatur manus post Lapidem, vel Examen usque ad Wristle. Leg. Adelstani, cap. 19. apud Brompton.

Angaria, (from the Fr. Angarie, i. e. Personal Service) Is a troublesome vexatious Duty or Service which Tenants were obliged to pay their Lords; and they performed it in their own Persons. — Terram liberam ab omnibus Angariis & Exactionibus, &c. M. S. Eliam Ashmole Arm. — Præstationes Angariarum & Perangariarum, Plaustrorum & Navium. — Impressing of Ships, Blount.

Angelica Vestis, A monkish Garment which Laymen put on a little before their Death, that they might have the Benefit of the Prayers of the Monks. It was from them called Angelicus, because they were stiled Angeli, who by these Prayers animæ salutis succurrebant. The Word Succurrendum in our old Books is understood of one who had put on the Habit, and was near Death: Siquis ad succurrendum metu mortis se loco prænominato dederit, illic recipietur. Monasticon. 1 Tom. p. 632. So likewise De susceptis in Morte, i. e. Those dying Persons that had put on the Habit.

Angel, Signifies, in the Computation of Money, ten Shillings of English Coin.

Angild, (Angildum) The bare single Valuation or Compensation of a Criminal. From the Sax. An One, and Gild, Payment, Mulct or Fine. Una Solutio, Si Villanus furatus fuerit, &c. Et habeas plegium, admones eum de Angildo. — Twigild was the double Mulct or Fine; and Trigild the treble, according to the rated Ability of the Person. Laws of Ina, c. 20. Spelm.

Anlote, A single Tribute or Tax. The Words Anlote and Anscot are mentioned in the Laws of William the Conqueror. And the Sense is, that every one should pay according to the Custom of the Country, his Part and Share as Scot and Lot, &c. Leg. W. 1. c. 64.

Annals, Yearlings or young Cattle of the first Year. — Vituli primo anno postquam nati sunt, Vituli Vocantur; Secundo compoto Annales vocantur; tertio Boviculi; quarto Bovetti. — Regulæ compoti Domus de Farendon M. S.

Annats, (Annates) This Word has the same Meaning with First-Fruits, Ann. 25 H. 8. c. 20. The Reason of the Name is, because the Rate of the First-fruits paid to spiritual Livings, is after the Value of one Year's Profit. Annates more suo appellat primos fructus unius anni sacerdotii vacantis, aut dimidiam eorum partem. Pol. Virgil de Invent. rer. lib. 8. cap. 2.

Annealing of Tile, (Anno 17 Ed. 4.) From the Sax. Onalan, accendere, signifies the Burning or Hardening of Tile.

Annented, (from the Fr. Anneantir) Abrogated, frustrated, or brought to nothing. Lit. 3. cap. Seft. 741.

Anniversary Days, (Dies Anniversarii) Solemn Days appointed to be celebrated yearly in Commemoration of the Deaths or Martyrdoms of Saints; or the Days whercon, at the Return of every Year, Men were wont to pray for the Souls of their deceased Friends, according to the Custom of the Roman Catholics, mentioned in the Statute of 1 Ed. 6. cap. 14. and 12 Car. 2. cap. 13.

cap. 13. This was in Use among our ancient Saxons, as you may see in Lib. Ramef. Sect. 124. — Anniversaria dies ideo repetitur defunctis, quoniam nescimus qualiter eorum causa habeatur in alia vita. This was the Reason given by Alcuinus, in his Divine Offices. The Anniversary or yearly Return of the Day of the Death of any Person, which the Religious register'd in their Obitnal or Martyrology, and annually observed in Gratitude to their Founders and Benefactors, was by our Fore fathers called a Year-day, and a Mind-day. i. e. a Memorial Day. And though this proceeded from one of the Trading Arts of the Priests, who got many a Legacy for thus continuing the Memorial of their Friends; yet abating the Superstition of it, we must confess this Practice of theirs has been a great Advantage to the History of Men and Times, by fixing the Obits of great and good Men.

Annus nubilis, (Lat.) When a Woman is under 12 Years of Age, her Age to marry, she is said to be infra annos nubile, and unmarriedable; so that it signifies the marriageable Age of a Woman. 2 Co. Inst. 434.

Anno Domini, The Computation of Time from the Incarnation of our Saviour; which is generally inserted in the Dates of all publick Writings, with an Addition of the Year of the King's Reign, &c. The Romans began their Era of Time from the Building of Rome: The Grecians computed by Olympiads; and the Christians reckon from the Birth of Jesus Christ.

Annoisance, or Noisance. Is a Word used for any Hurt done to a publick Place, as a Highway, Bridge, River, &c. or to a private Place, by laying any Thing therein that may breed Infection, by Incroachments, or such like Means; and it is also taken for the Writ brought upon such a Transgression. This Word is mentioned Anno 22 H. 8. c. 5. Vide Nuisance.

Annua Pensione, An ancient Writ for providing the King's Chaplain unpreferred with a Pension. It was brought where the King having due to him an annual Pension from an Abbot or Prior, for any of his Chaplains whom he should nominate, (being unprovided of Livings) to demand the same of such Abbot or Prior. Reg. Orig. 165, 307.

Annuale, A Word signifying the yearly Rent or Income of a Prebendary.

Annualia, A yearly Stipend assigned to a Priest for celebrating an Anniversary, or for saying continued Masses one Year, for the Soul of a deceased Person. — Inhibemus quoque districtius ne aliquis Rector Ecclesie faciat huiusmodi pactum cum suo sacerdote videlicet quod ipse Sacerdos prater cetera stipendia poterit recipere Annualia & Triennialia. Const. Rob. Grostest Episcopi Lincoln. in Append. ad Fascic. pag. 411.

Annuity, (Annuus Redditus) A yearly Rent, payable for Term of Years, Life, or in Fee; and it is used for a Writ that lies against a Person for Recovery of such a Rent. Reg. Orig. 158. Annuity is also defined to be a yearly Payment of a certain Sum of Money, granted to another in Fee, for Life, &c. to be received of the Grantor or his Heirs, so that no Freehold be charged therewith; whereof a Man shall never have Assise or other Action, but a Writ of Annuity. Terms de Ley 44. The Treatise called Doctor and Student, Dial. 1. cap. 3. shews several Differences between a Rent and an Annuity, viz. that every Rent is issuing out of Land; but an Annuity chargeth the Person only, as the Grantor or his Heirs, who have Assets by Discent: For the Recovery of an Annuity, no Action lies but only the Writ of Annuity; but of a Rent the same Remedy lies as for Lands; and an Annuity is never taken for Assets, because it is no Freehold in Law; nor shall it be put in Execution upon a Statute Merchant, Staple, or Elegit, as a Rent issuing out of Land may. Dyer 345. 2 Rep. 144. If no Lands are bound for the Payment of an Annuity, a Distress may not be taken for it. Dyer 65. But if an Annuity be issuing out of Land, (which of late it often doth) the Grantee may bring Writ of Annuity, and make it Personal, or an Assise, or distrain, &c. so as to make it Real. 1 Inst. 144. And if the Grantee take a Distress, yet he may afterwards have Writ of Annuity, and discharge the Land, if he do not avow the Taking, which is in Nature of an Action. 1 Inst. 145. But if the Grantee of a Rent bring an Assise for it, he shall never after have Writ of Annuity; he having elected this to be a Rent; so if the Grantee of an Annuity avow the Taking of a Distress, in a Court of Record. Danv. Abr. 486. And if the Grantee purchase Part of the Land out of which an Annuity is issuing, he shall never after have a Writ of Annuity. Co. Lit. 148. When a Man recovers in a Writ of Annuity, he shall never have a new Writ of Annuity for the Arrears due after the Recovery, but a Scire facias upon the Judgment, the Judgment being always executory. 2 Rep. 37. No Writ of Annuity lieth for Arrearages only when an Annuity is determined, but for the Annuity and Arrearages. 1 Inst. 285. Though if a Rent-charge be granted out of a Lease for Years, it hath been adjudged that the Grantee may bring Annuity when the Lease is ended. Moor cap. 450. Upon a Rent created by way of Reservation, no Writ of Annuity lies. Danv. 483. If a Man grants a Rent out of his Manor, or Lands, or to be received of his Tenants, and he hath no Manor, Lands, or Tenants, yet it may be a good Annuity, though void as to a Rent. Danv. Abr. 485. A Person grants to me 10 l. every Year, that I shall be Resident in such a Parish; an Annuity lies for this, it being annual at my Will; and it is the same if a Rent be granted payable at the End of a certain Number of Years, though it be not annual. Ibid. 452. If a Man grants an Annuity, to be received out of his Coffers, the last Words are void, and the Annuity is good. A Grant is made by a Person of an Annuity to another and his Heirs, without the Grantor's saying for him and his Heirs, this is determinable by the Death of the Grantor. Danv. Abr. 482. Writ of Annuity may not be had against the Grantor's Heir, unless the Grant be for him and his Heirs; and there must be Assets to bind the Heir, by Grant of an Annuity by his Ancestor, when he is named. 1 Inst. 144. 1 Roll. Abr. 226. An Annuity granted by a Bishop with Confirmation of Dean and Chapter, shall bind the Successor of the Bishop. New Nat. Br. 340. If the King grant an Annuity, it must be expressed by whose Hands the Grantee shall receive it, as the King's Bailiff, &c. or the Grant will be void; for the King may not be sued, and no Person is bound to pay it if not expressed in the Patent. 9 H. 6. New Nat. Br. 341. If where an Annuity is granted pro Decimis, the Grantor is disturbed of his Tithes, the Annuity ceaseth; and so it is where any Annuity is granted to a Person pro filio, and the Grantee refuseth to give Counsel. For where the Cause and Consideration of the Grant amounts to a Condition, and the one ceases, the other shall determine. 1 Inst. 204. —

The Writ of Annuity runs thus: Rex vic. &c. Praecepit A. quod iuste, &c. redd. B. Decem. libr. centum Marcas, &c. quod ei a retro sunt de annuo redditu, &c. quae ei debet, ut dicit, sicut rationabiliter monstrare poterit, quod ei redder. debeat, ne amplius, &c. nisi, &c.

Ansel, or Ansul, See Ansel Weight — De pede, pollice, cubito, & Palma, de Ansul Balancibus & Mensuris. Thorn. Chron.

Antejuramentum and Præjuramentum, by our Ancestors called Juramentum Calumnie, in which both the Accuser and Accused were to make this Oath before any Trial or Purgation, viz. The Accuser was to swear that he would prosecute the Criminal; and the Accused was to make Oath on the very Day that he was to undergo the Ordeal, that he was Innocent of the Crime of which he was charged. Leg. Athelstan. apud Lambard 23. If the Accuser failed to take his Oath, the Criminal was discharged; and if the Accused did not take his, he was intended to be guilty, and not admitted to purge himself by the Ordeal. Leg. H. 1. c. 66.

Antithetarius, Signifies where a Man endeavours to discharge himself of the Fact of which he is accused, by recriminating and charging the Accuser with the same Fact. This Word is mentioned in the Title of a Chapter in the Laws of Canutus, capite 47.

Apatifatio, An Agreement or Compact made with another. Upton, lib. 2. cap. 12. — De Officio Militari, viz. Concedimus per presentes bonum & saluum conductum, ac saluam gardiam sive securitatem Apatifationis.

Aporiare, To be brought to Poverty — Permissit suos spoliare patriam, Aporiare vulgus. Walsingham in R. 2. It hath been used sometimes to signify shun or avoid.

Apostare, To violate: Apostare Leges, and Apostatare Leges, wilfully to break or transgress the Laws — Qui leges Apostabit terra sua, reus sit apud Regem. Leg. Edw. Confessoris c. 35. Apostabit is read Apostatabit ann. H. 1. Spelm.

Apostata capiendo, A Writ that formerly lay against one who having entered and professed some Order of Religion, broke out again, and wandered up and down the Country, contrary to the Rules of his Order: It was directed to the Sheriff for the Apprehension of the Offender, and Delivery of him again to his Abbot or Prior. Reg. Orig. 71. 267.

Apothecaries Medicines, &c. are to be searched by the Physicians chosen by the College of Physicians, and if Faulty to be burnt, &c. 32 H. 8. 1 M. And Apothecaries to the Army, &c. are to make up their Chests of Medicines at Apothecary's Hall, there to be openly viewed, &c. Penalty of 40 l. Stat. 10 Ann. c. 14. Sec Physicians.

Apparator, or Apparitor, A Messenger that serves the Process of the Spiritual Court. His Duty is to cite the Offenders to appear; to arrest them; and to execute the Sentence or Decree of the Judges, &c. Anno 21 H. 8. c. 5. In the Year 1316. Walter Archbishop of Canterbury granted the following Commission to an Apparitor of his Consistory Court — Walterus Dei Gratia Cant. Archiep. totius Angliae Primas, Dilecto filio Willielmo de Graftone in Apparitoris Officio, in Curia nostra Cantuar. videlicet, in Consistorio ac Decanatu nostro Ecclesia Beatae Mariae de Arcubus London. ministranti salutem Gratiam & Benedictionem. Personam tuam eo quod de fidelitate in dicto Officio per laudabile Testimonium apud nos multipliciter commendaris volentes prosequi cum favore, dictum Apparitoris Officium in Curia Consistorio & Decanatu predictis perpetuo possidendum tibi conferimus per Praesentes. Ita tamen quod te fideliter geras in Officio predicto memorato. Volentes & tibi specialiter concedentes, ut cum in ministerio dicti Officii per teipsum personaliter vacare non poteris, vel absens fueris a Curia, Consistorio & Decanatu predictis, nihilominus per aliam idoneam personam, quem ad hoc assignandum omnia & singula quae dicto incumbunt Officio — facere valeas, & jugiter exercere — Dat. apud Lambith. 8. Id. Mart. 1316.

Apparator Comitatus. There was formerly an Officer called by this Name, for which the Sheriffs of Buckinghamshire had a considerable yearly Allowance; and in the Reign of Queen Eliz. there was an Order of Court for making that Allowance: But the Custom and Reason of it are now altered. Hale's Sher. Acco. 104.

Appartement, (from the Fr. Pareilment, i. e. likewise, or in like Manner) Signifies a Resemblance or Likelihood; as Appartement of War. 2 R. 2. Stat. 1. c. 6.

Apparura, Furniture and Implements; Appertinen. Dominus clamat habere omnes Carrectas ferro non ligatas, & omnes Carrucas cum tota Apparura. Placit. in Itin. apud Cestriam 14 H. 7. Carrucarum Apparura is Plough-Tackle, or all the Implements belonging to a Plough.

Appeal, Appellum, (from the Fr. Appel or Appeller to accuse) Is a Word used in our Law for the Removal of a Cause from an inferior Court or Judge to a Superior; but more commonly for the Accusation of a Murderer, by a Party who had Interest in the Person killed; or of a Felon. 1 Inst. 287. It signifies as much as Accusatio with the Civilians; for as in the Civil Law, Cognizance of Criminal Causes is taken either upon Inquisition, Denunciation or Accusation; so in the Common Law, it is upon Indictment, or Appeal, Indictments comprehending both Inquisition and Denunciation. And Accusation or Appeal is a lawful Declaration of another Man's Crime (being Felony at least) before a competent Judge, by one that sets his Name to the Declaration, and undertakes to prove it, upon the Penalty that may ensue of the contrary. Bract. lib. 3. Brit. cap. 22, 25. Staundf. lib. 2. cap. 6. An Appeal is presented two Ways: either by Writ, or Bill: Appeal by Writ is when a Writ is purchased out of Chancery by one to another, to the Intent he appeal a third Person of some Felony committed by him, finding Pledges that he shall do it: Appeal by Bill, is where a Man of himself gives up his Accusation in Writing, offering to undergo the Burden of appealing the Person therein named. Bracton. By Stat. 3 H. 7. The Wife or Heir of a Person killed, are to bring their Appeal of Murder; which differs from Indictment, being the Suit of the Subject, and the Party's private Action; who prosecutes also for the Crown in Respect of the Felony. Lit. 116. And this is the Reason that in Appeal of Death, &c. the King cannot pardon the Defendant. 3 Inst. 237. This Appeal may be brought by Bill before the Justices, in the King's Bench; before Justices of Gaol-Delivery, if the Appellee is in Prison before them; before the Commissioners of Oyer and Terminer, &c. or before the Sheriff and Coroner, in the County-Court: But the Sheriff and Coroner ner have only Power to take and enter the Appeal and Count; for it must be removed by Certiorari into B. R. Appeals may be likewise brought before the Constable and Marshal, of Felony done out of the Realm. Wood's Inst. 628. At Common Law, Appeals lay for High Treason, and were commonly in Parliament. 3 Inst. 132. But this was ousted by Stat. 1 H. 4. c. 14. By the Common Law, a Man could not maintain an Appeal of Death, unless he had made fresh Suit. 2 Inst. 319. A Female might have an Appeal at Common Law, as Heir to any Ancestor, as well as the Male; but by Magna Charta, nullus capiatur vel Imprisonetur propter Appellam foemina de Morte alterius quam viri sui, &c. 3 Salk. 37. The Heir Male is to bring the Appeal for the Death of his Ancestor; and the Wife for the Death of her Husband; &c. 2 Inst. 318. But the Husband shall not have Appeal for the Death of his Wife; but the Heir only. Danv. Abr. 488. An Heir shall not have Appeal for the Death of a Man married, except the Wife kill the Husband; in which Case the Heir may prosecute the Appeal. 1 Leon. 326. 1 Inst. 33. The Wife is to be a Wife de facto to be intitled to Appeal; and if she marries again, before the Appeal is brought, or whilst the same is depending, her Appeal will be gone. 2 Inst. 68, 317. If a Wife dies within the Year, the Heir shall have no Appeal. Kelw. 120. And if after the Death of the Ancestor the Heir Male dies, 'tis said another Heir shall not have Appeal. H. P. C. 182. For a Person that prosecutes an Appeal must be immediate Heir to the Ancestor killed, or his Suit shall not be received. Staundf. 59. But where an Appeal lies against an Heir, the next Heir shall bring it. H. P. C. 182. An Infant may prosecute an Appeal: And it is to be brought where the Felony is done, and the Party wounded shall die. Staundf. 63. The Appellant is to commence his Appeal in Person; but he may prosecute it by Attorney, having a special Warrant of Attorney filed. 1 Salk. 60. The Appeal must be brought in a Year and a Day after the Death of the Person murdered: And the Count must set forth the Fact, and the Length and Depth of the Wound, the Year, Day, Hour, Place where done, and with what Weapon, &c. And that the Party died in a Year and Day. 2 Inst. 665. Principal and Accessaries before and after are to be joined in Appeal. Danv. Abr. 493. And this is to be observed, though the Accessary is guilty in another County. 3 H. 7. c. 1. In Appeal by Original, Principals and Accessaries are generally charged alike, without Distinction till the Plaintiff counts: But 'tis otherwise in Appeals by Bill. Danv. 494. There is to be but one Appeal against the Principal and Accessary: If the Principal is acquitted, it shall acquit the Accessary; and both shall have Damages against the Appellant on a false Appeal, or the Accessary may bring a Writ of Conspiracy. 33 H. 6. c. 2. 2 Inst. 383. Though where a Person is acquitted on a just Appeal, he may be arraigned upon Indictment at the King's Suit. And if a Murderer is acquitted upon Indictment, or found guilty and pardoned by the King, the Wife or Heir may bring Appeal. Wood 629. If the Defendant in Appeal is attaint, or acquit; or the Plaintiff Non-suit after Appearance, which is peremptory, no other Appeal lies. H. P. C. 188. But if the Appeal is good and well taken, and afterwards fails, the Defendant shall be arraigned at the Suit of the King: Contra, if the Appeal was never good; or well taken, as if it abates for Misnomer, &c. Staundf. 147, 148. If there be an Indictment and Appeal depending at the same Time against the same Person, the Appeal shall be tried first, if the Appellant be ready. Kel. 107. Where the Appellant doth not prosecute his Appeal; or in case he release to the Defendant; the Appellee may be arraigned at the King's Suit. If the Defendant on an Indictment is convicted of Manslaughter, and allowed his Clergy, it will bar an Appeal: But some of our Books tells us the Heir may lodge an Appeal immediately before Clergy had: Though others say Clergy ought to be granted; and that it is unreasonable an Appeal should interpose presently to prevent Judgment. 3 Inst. 131. If a Person immediately after the Verdict of Manslaughter, put in an Appeal of Murder, and before the Appeal is arraigned, the Defendant demands his Benefit of Clergy; this is a good Bar to Appeal, and Praying of Clergy, is having of Clergy, tho' the Court delay calling the Party to Judgment, &c. 1 Salk. 60, 62. See Kel. 93. Tel. 204. But formerly it was held, that the Court might delay the Calling a Convict to Judgment, and thereby hinder him from his Clergy, and make him liable to an Appeal, especially if the Appeal were depending; and where the Record of a Conviction of Manslaughter is erroneous, or insufficient, &c. the Offender cannot plead the Conviction and Clergy had therein, in Bar of an Appeal or second Indictment, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 378, 379. A Charter of Pardon is no Bar of an Appeal: And if the Party be outlawed, &c. in Appeal, and the King pardon him, a Scire facias shall Issue against the Appellant, who may pray Execution, notwithstanding such Pardon; but if returned Sci. fec. and he appears not, then the Appellee shall upon the Pardon be discharged. H. P. C. 251. When a Person is indicted for murder, and acquitted thereupon, he is to be bailed till the Year and Day is past, allowed for bringing the Appeal, if an Appeal be intended. 3 H. 7. c. 1. A Peer in Appeal of Murder, shall not be tried by his Peers, but by a common Jury; though he shall upon an Indictment for Murder. 3 H. 7. In Writ of Appeal, the Omission of any Word that is material will destroy it. H. P. C. 200. No Essoin is allowed the Appellant, in Appeal of Death. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. In Appeal the Court can grant no Impar lance, but it may be adjourned. 1 Sid. 325. And where Appeal of Death is brought, the Defendant cannot justify se Defendendo, but must plead Not guilty, and the Jury are to find the special Matter. Bro. App. 122. 3 Salk. 37. Appeal is the nicest Suit in Law, for any small Matter will abate it; the Process must bear Date the same Day with the Return; if it be a Day afterwards it is a Discontinuance; and it varies from all other Proceedings, for there can be no Amendment of the Writ, nor is the Discontinuance of it helped by any Statute. Nelf. Abr. 215. By Statute, an Appellant bringing a false Appeal, shall suffer a Year's Imprisonment, yield Damages to the Party grieved, and pay a Fine to the King; and being not able, those that abetted him, shall be punished in like Manner. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 12. There are not only Appeals of Murder, but of Maim, Rape, Robbery, &c.

Appeal of Maihem, Is the Accusing one that hath maimed another: But this being generally no Felony, it is in a Manner but Action of Trespass; and nothing is recovered by it but Damages. In Action of Assault and Maiming, the Court may increase Damages, on View of the Maihem, &c. And though Maihem is not Felony, in Appeals and Indictments of Maihem, the Words felonice Maihemavit are necessary. 3 Inst. 63. Bracton calls Appeal of Maihem Appellum de Plagiis & Mahemio, and writes a whole Chapter of it. Lib. 3, Tract. 2. c. 24. And Appeal of wrong Imprisonment is used by Bracton for an Action of wrong or false Imprisonment. Lib. 3. Tract. 2. c. 25.

Appeal of Rape. This lies where a Rape is committed, viz. where a Man hath carnal Knowledge of the Body of a Woman by Force, and against her Will. 3 Inst. 30. A Feme Covert, without her Husband, may bring Appeal of Rape: And the Stat. 11 H. 4. c. 13. gives Power where a Woman is ravished, and afterwards consents to it, for a Husband, or a Father, or next of Kin, there being no Husband, to bring Appeal of Rape; also the Criminal in such Case, may be attainted at the Suit of the King. 3 Inst. 131. 6 R. 2. c. 6. And if a Woman consent after, she is disabled to challenge any Inheritance, Dower, &c. by Stat. 6 R. 2. The Statute of West. 1 c. 13. Enacts that Appeal of Rape shall be brought within 40 Days: But by Stat. Westm. 2. c. 34. relating to this Offence, no Time is limited for the Prosecution; so that it may be brought in any reasonable Time. H. P. C. 186. Appeal of Rape is to be commenced in the County where committed: And if a Woman be assaulted in one County, and ravished in another, the Appeal of Rape lies in that County where she was ravished. H. P. C. 186.

Appeal of Robbery. A Remedy given by the Common Law, where a Person is robbed of his Goods, &c. to have Restitution of the Goods stolen: As they could not be restored on Indictment at the King's Suit, this Appeal was judged necessary. 3 Inst. 242. If a Man robbed make fresh Pursuit after, and apprehend, and prosecute the Felon, he may bring Appeal of Robbery at any Time afterwards. Staundf. 62. And if one Man robs several Persons, every one of them may have Appeal: Likewise if the Robber be attainted at the Suit of one, he shall be tried at the Suit of the rest, so as their Appeals were commenced before fore the Attainder. Danu. Abr. 494. In Appeal of Robbery, the Plaintiff must declare of all Things whereof he is robbed, or they shall be forfeited to the King; for the Appellant can have Restitution for no more than is mentioned in his Appeal. 3 Inst. 227. This Appeal is drawn after the following Manner.

By the Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 11. The like Restitution of stolen Goods may be had on Indictments after Attainder, as on Appeals: And Appeals of Rape and Robbery are now much out of Use; but the Appeal of Murder still continues, and is often brought.

Appeal to Rome. This was ever esteemed so great an Interruption to national Justice, that even at the Time the Roman Catholick Religion took Place in this Kingdom it was prohibited. By Statute 24 H. 8. Appealing to Rome incurs the Penalty of a Premunire: And it is made Treason by the Stat. 13 El. Where an Appeal in an Ecclesiastical Cause is made before the Bishop, or his Commissary, it may be removed to the Archbishop; and if before an Archdeacon, to the Court of Arches, and from the Arches to the Archbishop; and when the Cause concerns the King, Appeal may be brought in fifteen Days from any of the said Courts to the Prelates in Convocation. 24 H. 8. c. 12. And the Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 19. gives Appeals from the Archbishop's Courts to the King in Chancery, who thereupon appoints Commissioners finally to determine the Cause; and this is called the Court of Delegates: There is also a Court of Commissioners of Review; which Commission the King may grant as supreme Head, to review the definitive Sentence given on Appeal in the Court of Delegates. 4 Inst. 340. Wood's Inst. 506. On taking away the Supremacy of the Pope in this Kingdom, this Power was lodged in the Crown as originally belonging to it.

Appearance, In the Law signifies the Defendant's Filing Common or Special Bail, when he is arrested on any Process out of the Courts at Westminster: And there can be no Appearance in the Court of B. R. but by Special or Common Bail. There are four Ways for Defendants to appear to Actions; in Person, or by Attorney, by Persons of full Age; and by Guardian, or next Friend, by Infants. Show. 165. In all Cases where Process issues forth to take the Person's Body, if an Appearance only, and not Special Bail is required, there every such Person may appear in Court in his proper Person, and file Common Bail. 1 Lill. Abr. 85. Hill. 22. Car. B. R. Persons outlawed in any Case, except for Treason or Felony, may appear by Attorney to reverse the same without Bail, except where Special Bail shall be ordered by the Court. Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18. If where a Debt is under the Sum of 10 l. the Action requires only an Appearance, the Attorney for the Defendant is to back the Sheriff's Warrant, and indorse thereon that he will appear, and cause Common Bail to be filed for the Defendant; which is an Appearance upon Record. 1 Lill. Abr. 84, 85. Attornies subscribing Warrants to appear, are liable to a Penalty of 5 l. and Attachment, upon Non-appearance. And where an Attorney promiseth to appear for his Client, the Court will compel him to appear and put in Common Bail, in such Time as is usual by the Course of the Court; and that altho' the Attorney say he hath no Warrant for Appearance. Nor shall Repealing a Warrant of Attorney to delay Proceedings, excuse the Attorney for his not appearing, who may be compelled by the Court. 1 Lill. 83, 84. The Defendant's Attorney is to file his Warrant the same Term he appears, and the Plaintiff the Term he declares, under Penalties by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. And Appearances and Common Bail are to be entered and filed by the Defendant within eight Days after the Return of the Process on which he was arrested, on Pain of forfeiting 5 l. to the Plaintiff, for which the Court shall forthwith award Judgment and Execution. 5 & 6 W. & M. c. 21. If the Defendant does not appear and find Bail, the Plaintiff's Attorney is to call upon the Sheriff for the Return of the Writ, whether the Defendant be arrested, or not; and proceed accordingly. On two Nihil returned upon a Scire & Alias Scire facias, they amount to a Scire feci, and the Plaintiff giving Rule, the Defendant is to appear, or Judgment shall be had against him by Default: And where a Defendant doth not plead after Appearance, Judgment may be had against him. Style 208. Upon a Party's Appearing, Errors in Writs are in many Cases salved, and the Party may be obliged to answer as if there had been no such Errors. 2 Hawk. 302. Appearance by Guardian, and next Friend. Vide Infants, &c.

Appendant, (Appendens) Is a Thing of Inheritance belonging to another Inheritance that is more worthy; as Accessorium principali with the Civilians, or Adjunctum subjecto with the Logicians. An Advowson, Common, Court, &c. may be Appendant to a Manor: Common of fishing, Appendant to a Freehold: Land Appendant to an Office: A Seat in a Church to a House, &c. But Land is not Appendant to Land, both being Corporeal, poreal, and one Thing Corporeal may not be Appendant to another that is Corporeal; but an incorporeal Thing may be Appendant to it. 1 Inst. 121. 4 Rep. 86. Danv. Abr. 500. Common of Estovers cannot be Appendant to Land; but to a House to be spent there. 1 Inst. 120. Land is not Appendant to a Messuage. 1 Nels. Abr. 224. But by the Grant of a Messuage, the Orchard and Garden will pass as Appendant. Appendants are ever by Prescription.

Appenditia, The Appendages or Pertinences of an Estate — Simon Earl of Northampton gave to the Knights Templars his Manor of Merton in Com. Oxon. cum omnibus Appenditiis suis — Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 110. Hence our Penticies, or Pent-Houses are called Appenditia Domus, &c.

Appennage, or Apennage, (Fr.) Is derived from Appendendo, or the German Word Apanage, or Avanage, signifying a Portion. It is used for a Child's Part or Portion; and is properly the Portion of the King's younger Children in France, where by a Fundamental Law called the Law of Appennages, the King's younger Sons have Dutchies, Counties, or Baronies granted to them and their Heirs, &c. the Reversion being reserved to the Crown, and all Matters of Regality as to Coinage, and Levying Taxes in such Territories. Spelman's Gloss.

Appensura, The Payment of Money at the Scale, or by Weight. — Dedit Regi prefato Appensuram novem Librarum purissimi auri juxta magnum pondus Normannorum. Hist. Elicn. Edit. Gale l. 2. c. 19.

Appodfare, Is a Word used in our old Historians, and it signifies to lean on, or prop up any Thing, &c. Walsingham ann. 1271. Mat. Paris. Chron. Aula Regie ann. 1321.

Apponere, To pledge or pawn — Accepta a fratre Gulielmo summa non Modica Normanniam illi apposuit. Neubrigenfis, Lib. 1. c. 2.

Apportionment, (Apportionamentum) Is a Dividing of a Rent, &c. into two Parts, according as the Land out of which it issues is divided among two or more: As if a Man have a Rent-service issuing out of Land, and he purchaseth Part of the Land, the Rent shall be apportioned with Respect to the Value of the Land. Terms de Ley 47. And if a Stranger recovers Part of the Lands, a Lessee shall pay, having Regard to that recovered, and what remains in his Hands. Where the Lessor recovers Part of the Land: Or enters for a Forfeiture into Part thereof; the Rent shall be apportioned. 1 Inst. 148. If a Man leases three Acres rendring Rent, and afterwards grants away one Acre, the Rent shall be apportioned. 1 Inst. 144. Lessee for Years leases for Years, rendring Rent, and after devises this Rent to three Persons, this Rent may be apportioned. Danv. Abr. 505. If a Lessee for Life or Years under Rent, surrenders Part of the Land, the Rent shall be apportioned: But where the Grantee of a Rent-charge purchaseth Part of the Land, there all is extinct. Moor c. 231. A Rent-charge issuing out of Land, may not be apportioned: Nor shall Things entire, as if one hold Lands by Service to pay yearly to the Lord, at such a Feast, a Horse, &c. 1 Inst. 149. But if Part of the Land out of which a Rent-charge issues descends to the Grantee of the Rent, this shall be apportioned. Danv. 507. A Grantee of a Rent releases Part of the Rent to the Grantor, this doth not extinguish the Residue, but it shall be apportioned; for here the Grantee dealeth not with the Land, only the Rent. Co. Lit. 148. On Partition of Lands out of which a Rent is issuing, the Rent shall be apportioned. Danv. Abr. 507. And where Lands held by Lease rendring Rent are extended upon Elegit, one Moiety of the Rent shall be apportioned to the Lessor. Ibid. 509. If Part of Lands leased is surrounded by fresh Water, there shall be no Apportionment of the Rent: But if it be surrounded with the Sea, there shall be an Apportionment of the Rent. Dyer 56. A Man purchases Part of the Land where he hath Common appendant, the Common shall be apportioned: Of common appurtenant it is otherwise, and if by the Act of the Party, the Common is extinct. 8 Rep. 79. Common appendant and appurtenant may be apportioned on Alienation of Part of the Land to which it is appendant or appurtenant. Wood's Inst. 199. If where a Person has Common of Pasture Sans Number, Part of the Lands descends to him, this being intire and uncertain cannot be apportioned: But if it had been common certain, it should have been apportioned. 1 Inst. 149. Conditions generally are entire, and cannot be apportioned by the Act of the Party. 1 Nels. Abr. 227. A Contract may not be divided or apportioned, so as to subject a Man to two Actions. 1 Salk. 65.

Apportum, (from the Fr. Apport) Signifies properly the Revenue or Profit which a Thing brings in to the Owner: And it was commonly used for a Corody or Pension. It hath also been applyed to an Augmentation given to an Abbot out of the Profits of a Manor for his better Support. — Ita quod Proficua Manerii predicti nomine Apporti, quolibet anno prefato A. in subventionem sustentationis sue solverentur, &c. Anno 22 Ed. 3.

Appofal of Sheriffs. The Charging them with Money received upon their Accounts in the Exchequer. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Apprendre, (Fr.) A Fee or Profit Apprendre, is Fee or Profit to be taken or received. Anno 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 8.

Apprentice, (Apprenticius, Fr. Apprenti from Apprendre to learn) Signifies a young Person bound by Indendures to a Tradesman or Artificer, who upon certain Covenants is to teach him his Mystery or Trade: These Apprentices are a Kind of Bond-Men, differing only in that they are Servants by Covenant, and for a certain Term, usually seven Years, and they live for the most Part more reputably. Smith's Rep. Angl. lib. 3. cap. 8. Seven Years Apprenticeship is required to intitle a Man to use any Trade; but this relates only to such Apprenticeship to any Craft or Mystery, and does not extend to getting of a Livelihood by meer Labour, where there is no Craft or Mystery. 1 Roll. Rep. 10. By the Statute 5 El. c. 4. Aliens and Denizens are restrained to use any Handicraft or Trade therein mentioned, unless they have served seven Years Apprenticeship within the Realm. Hutt. 132. But it hath been adjudged, that if an Apprentice serve seven Years beyond Sea, he shall be excused from the Penalties of the Stat. 5 El. And if he serve seven Years, although he was never bound. 1 Salk. 76. And Apprentices going into the Army in the last Wars might set up their Trades in the County where born, though they did not serve out their Times, Stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. An Infant above the Age of fourteen Years may bind himself with Covenants to serve as an Apprentice by the Custom of London: Infants may voluntarily bind themselves Apprentice, and continuing seven Years, have the Benefit of their Trades; but a Bond for their Service shall not bind them. Cro. Car. 179. By the Custom of the City of London, an Apprentice may be turned over from one Master to another. And if the Master refuse to make the Apprentice Free at the End of the Term, the Chamberlain may make him Free: In other Corporations, there must be a Mandamus to the Mayor, &c. to make him Free in such Case. Danv. Abr. 421. Wood's Inst. 51. No Apprentice or Journeyman shall be restrained by Bond or Oath from keeping of a Shop. 1 Lill. Abr. 89. Whatever an Apprentice gains, is for the Use of his Master; and whether he was legally bound or no, is not material, if he was an Apprentice de facto. Salk. 68. But the Stat. 12. relating to Servants stealing and purloining the Goods of their Masters of the Value of 40 s. which is Felony, extends not to Apprentices under fifteen Years old. For enticing an Apprentice to leave his Service, Action of the Case may be brought: And for enticing to imbezil Goods, Indictment will lie. 1 Salk. 380. A Master may be indicted for not providing for, or turning away an Apprentice. If a Master give his Apprentice Licence to leave him, it cannot be afterwards recalled. Mod. Ca. 70. As no Apprentice can be made without Writing; so none may be discharged by his Master, but by Writing under his Hand, and with the Allowance of a Justice of Peace. Dalt. 121. Justices of Peace in their Sessions may cause disorderly Apprentices to be corrected and punished; or upon Complaint of the Apprentice of ill Usage from his Master, they may discharge him. Stat. 5 Eliz. When a Master dies, the Apprentice is to go to the Executor or Administrator to be maintained if there be Assets: But the Executor, &c. may bind him over to some other Master for the Remainder of the Time. Serving an Apprenticeship gains a Settlement by Statute in a Place: But a Covenant between a Master and a third Person, the Servant not being Party, makes no Apprenticeship to gain a Settlement. Salk. 479. By Stat. 42 Eliz. c. 2. Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor may bind out poor Apprentices, by Assent of two Justices of Peace: And Persons receiving Money with poor Apprentices, where Money is given for placing such out, are to give Security for Re-payment in seven Years, for the Binding out others, &c. 7 Jac. 1. c. 3. And if any Person refuse to accept a poor Apprentice, he shall forfeit 10 l. 8 s. 9 d. 3. Also Justices of Peace and Churchwardens, &c. may put out poor Boys Apprentice to the Sea-Service. 2 Ann. c. 6. A Duty of 6 d. in the Pound under 50 l. and 12 d. in the Pound for Sums exceeding it, given with Apprentices, (except poor Apprentices) is granted by Stat. 8 Ann. cap. 9.

An Indenture of Apprenticeship.

THIS Indenture made the Day and Year, &c. Witnesseth that A. B. Son of, &c. Hath of his own free and voluntary Will placed and bound himself Apprentice unto C. D. of, &c. to be taught in the Trade, Science, or Occupation of &c. which he the said C. D. now useth, and with him as an Apprentice to dwell, continue, and serve from the Day of the Date hereof, unto the full End and Term of seven Years from thence next ensuing, and fully to be compleat and ended; during all which Term of seven Years, the said Apprentice his said Master well and faithfully shall serve, his Secrets keep, his lawful Commands every where gladly do, Hurt to his said Master he shall not do, nor wilfully suffer to be done by others, but of the same to his Power shall forthwith give Notice to his said Master; the Goods of his said Master he shall not Imbezil or Waste, nor them lend without his Consent to any; at Cards, Dice, or any other unlawful Games, he shall not play; Taverns, or Alehouses he shall not frequent; Fornication he shall not Commit, Matrimony he shall not Contract; from the Service of his said Master he shall not at any Time depart or absent himself, without his said Master's Leave; but in all Things as a good and faithful Apprentice shall and will demean and behave himself towards his said Master, and all his, during his said Term. And the said Master his said Apprentice the said Trade, Science, or Occupation of, &c. which he now useth, with all Things thereunto belonging, shall and will Teach and Instruct, or cause to be well and sufficiently taught and instructed, after the best Way and Manner that he can; and shall and will also find and allow unto his said Apprentice, Meat, Drink, Washing, Lodging, and Apparel, both Linen and Woollen, and all other Necessaries fit and convenient for such an Apprentice, during the Term aforesaid; and at the End of the said Term, shall and will give to the said Apprentice one new Suit of Apparel, &c. In Witness, &c.

Appropriation, (Appropriatio from the Fr. Appropriier) Is the Annexing of a Benefice, originally Juris Divini & in Patrimonio nullius, to the proper and perpetual Use of some Religious House, Bishoprick, College, or Spiritual Person. And when Appropriation is made, the Patron is perpetual Parson, and hath perpetual Institution and Induction; for the Appropriation alone is a sufficient Admission, &c. Plowd. 499. To make an Appropriation, the King's Licence is to be obtained in Chancery, the Consent of the Ordinary, Patron and Incumbent, where the Church is full; and of the Diocesan, and Patron, if the Benefice is void. Plowd. 496. 15 R. 2. c. 6. Appropriation made during the Vacancy of the Benefice, is executed immediately; and when the Church is full, by apt Words, the Patron is constituted Parson after it becomes void. 11 Rep. 11. An Appropriation may be by the King alone, where he himself is Patron; as when by Letters Patent he grants the Advowson which he is seised of in Right of his Crown to a Dean and Chapter, &c. Plowd. 499. No Appropriation can be made without Licence of the King. 8 Rep. 11. Nor may it be properly unless to a Spiritual Person capable of the Cure: It may be to a Bishop, &c. and his Successors. Danv. Abr. 511. Where Appropriations are made, a Vicar is to be endowed to serve the Cure: And formerly in Licenses of Appropriation, it was expressed that the Diocesan should also provide a convenient Sum of Money to be yearly paid out of the Fruits, towards the Sustentation of the Poor of the Parish. Stat. 15 R. 2. c. 6. A Vicarage endowed may not be appropriated; but it may be united to another Church, or to a Dean and Chapter, or College, with the King's Consent. Hob. 307. An Appropriation cannot be assigned over, or surrendered to any; nor can it indure longer than the Body Spiritual to which it is at first appropriated: But those to whom granted may make Leases of the Profits. Plowd. 499. If after an Appropriation, a Clerk is presented to the Bishop, and instituted and inducted, the Benefice returns to its former Nature, and the Appropriation is dissolved. 7 Rep. 13. But if Lessee for Years of an Appropriation, pre-presents thereto, this Disappropriation shall not bind him to the Reversion. Danv. 513. If a Feme endowed of an Advowson appropriate presents to it, the Appropriation is dissolved. 1 Inst. 46. If a Man recovers the Advowson in Writ of Right, this disappropriates the Church: And Dissolution of the Spiritual Corporation disappropriates an Appropriation. Tho' Appropriation cannot properly be made, except to Spiritual Persons, and their Successors; yet by the Statute 31 H. 8. the King's Patentees (though Laymen) are rendered capable of Parsonages appropriate of dissolved Monasteries; but these are generally called Impropriations. Appropriations have been judged an Abuse and Robbery of the Church and Parish-Priests, &c. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 433.

And a Commoner may break down an Inclosure, if the Lord doth inclose Part of the Common, and not leave sufficient Room in the Residue. But if any, upon just Title of Approvement, do make a Hedge or Ditch for that Purpose, which afterwards is thrown down in the Night by Persons unknown, the Towns adjoining may be distrained to make such Hedge, &c. for which there is a Writ called the Noctanter Writ. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 46. 2 Inst. 474. Approvement is to be only by Inclosure; and the Lord may not by the Statutes of Approvement dig Pits for Gravel, or Coal, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 90, 405. 9 Rep. 112. Approvement may be made between Neighbour and Neighbour, though one of them dwell in another Town, if the Common join together; and if the Lord hath Common in the Tenant's Ground, the Tenant may approve. 2 Inst. 475. The Common is to be Common appendant or appurtenant, to be subject to Approvement, and not Common in gross to a certain Number. The Word Approvement is also used for the Profits of Lands themselves. Crompt. Jurisd. 152. And the Statute of Merton 2 H. 3. makes Mention of Land newly approved. F. N. B. 71. Approvement ann. 43. Eliz. c. 11. Is the same with Improvement — Idem Approvementum — Cum omnibus Approvementis & aliis Pertinentis suis. Mon. Angl. 607.

Approvers. Anno 9 H. 6. Bailiffs of Lords in their Franchises are called their Approvers: And Approvers in the Marches of Wales were such as had Licence De vendre & a-bater Beasts, &c. But by the Statute 2 Ed. 3. c. 12. Approvers are such as are sent into Counties to increase the Farms of Hundreds, &c. held by Sheriffs. Such Persons as have the Letting of the King's Demesnes in small Manors, are called Approvers of the King, (Approbatores Regis) Anno 51 H. 3. And in the Stat. 1 Ed. 3. c. 8. Sheriffs are called the King's Approvers.

Approver, or Prover, (Approbator) Is one that confessing Felony committed by himself, appeal-eth or accuseth others to be guilty of the same Crime. He is called Approver in this Sense, because he must prove what he hath alledged; and that Proof was by Battle, or the Country, at the Election of him appealed. And the Form of this Accusation you may find in Crompt. Just. 250. See also Bracton lib. 3. Staundf. Pl. Cor. 52. If a Person indicted of Treason or Felony, not disabled to accuse, upon his Arraignment, before any Plea pleaded, and before competent Judges, confesseth the Indictment, and takes an Oath to reveal all Treasons and Felonies that he knoweth of; and therefore prays a Coroner to enter his Appeal, or Accusation against those that are Partners in the Crime contained in the Indictment, such a one is an Approver. 3 Inst. 129. H. P. C. 192. Though the Approver is sworn to discover all Treasons and Felonies, yet he is not to be an Approver, but of the Offence whereof he is indicted: And this Accusation of himself, and Oath, makes his Accusation of another of the same Crime to amount to an Indictment; and if his Partners are convicted, the King is to pardon him, as to his Life: But he ought not to be suffered to continue in the Kingdom. Coroners may award Process to the Sheriff against Appelles in the same County, on the Discovery of the Approver: And the Justices of Gaol-Delivery, &c. have Power to award Process into any County to apprehend and try them. 2 Hawk. Pl. Cor. 208. A Man may be an Approver against any Person within the Realm, if there be such a Person, and he be named of the County wherein he dwells; but if there be no such Person, the Approver shall be hanged for his false Appeal. Ibid. 206. When a Person hath once pleaded Not guilty, he cannot be an Approver. 3 Inst. 129. And Persons attainted of Treason or Felony, shall not be Approvers; their Accusation will not then be of such Credit as to put any Man upon his Trial. 2 Hawk. 205. Infants under the Age of Discretion, may not be Approvers: And it being in the Discretion of the Court

Court to suffer one to be an Approver, this Method of late hath been seldom practised. But we have in Cases of Burglary and Robbery on the Highway, what seems to amount to the same, by Statute; it being ordained, that where such a Criminal, out of Prison, discovers two others concerned in the Crime, he shall have his Pardon, &c. Statute 5 Ann. c. 31. &c.

Appuare, To take to his own Use or Profit, viz. Domini vastorum & Boscorum, &c. Appuare se possunt de vastis, &c. W. 2. c. 20.

Appurtenances, (Pertinentia) Derived from the French Appartenir, to belong to; signify Things both Corporeal and Incorporeal appertaining unto another Thing as Principal: As Hamlets to a Chief Manor; and Common of Pasture, Piscary, &c. Also Liberties and Services of Tenants. Brit. cap. 39. If a Man grant Common of Estovers to be burnt in his Manor, these are appurtenant to the Manor; for Things appurtenant may be granted at this Day. Co. Lit. 121. Common appurtenant may be to a House, Pasture, &c. Outhouses, Yards, Orchards and Gardens are appurtenant to a Messuage; but Lands cannot be said to be appurtenant to a Messuage. 1 Lill. Abr. 91. And one Messuage cannot be appurtenant to another. Ibid. Lands cannot, as to the Right of the Words cum Pertinentiis, be appurtenant to the House; but the Word Pertinens may be taken in the Sense of usually letten or occupied with the House. Plowd. 170. Land shall pass in a Lease, or Devise of a House with the Appurtenances, as pertaining to the same, when it hath been used and occupied with it ten Years or more; which is judg'd a sufficient Time to make it appertaining to the House. Cro. El. 704. Lands, a Common, &c. may be appurtenant to a House; tho' not a Way. 3 Salk. 40. Grant of a Manor, without the Words cum pertinentiis, 'tis said will pass all Things belonging to the Manor. Owen's Rep. 51. Where a Person hath a Messuage, &c. to which Estovers are appurtenant, and it is blown down or burnt by the Act of God; if the Owner re-edify it, in the same Place and Manner as before, he shall have the ancient Appurtenances. 4 Rep. 86. A Turbary may be appurtenant to a House; so a Seat in a Church, &c. but not to Land; for the Things must agree in Nature and Quality. 3 Salk. 40.

Arace, (Angl.) To raise, from the French Aracher, Evellere.

Arabe, In Arabo conjurare, i. e. To make Oath in the Church, or in some other Holy Place; for according to the Riparian Laws, all Oaths were made in the Church upon the Relicks of Saints.

Aratrum Terræ, As much as can be tilled with one Plough. — Hoc Manerium est 30. Aratrorum. Thorn. Anno 616. Aratura Terræ is the Service which the Tenant is to do for his Lord in Ploughing his Land.

Arbitrator, (Lat.) Is a private extraordinary Judge between Party and Party, chosen by their mutual Consents, to determine Controversies between them. West. Symb. Sect. 21. And Arbitrators are so called, because they have an arbitrary Power; for if they observe the Submission, and keep within due Bounds, their Sentences are definitive, from which their lies no Appeal. 1 Roll. Abr. 251. The Award of Arbitrators is definitive, and being chosen by the Parties, they are not tied to such Formalities of Law as Judges in other Cases are; and yet they have as great Power as other Judges to determine the Matters in Variance; but their Determination must be certain, and it is to be according to the express Condition of the Bond by which the Parties submit themselves to their Judgment. 1 Nelf. Abr. 234. Dyer 356. The Chancery will not give Relief against the Award of the Arbitrators, except it be for Corruption, &c. Chanc. Rep. 279. Arbitrators are to award what is equal between the Parties, and not on one Side only; and the Performance of it must be lawful and possible; also the Award must be final. 1 Inst. 206. 1 Roll. Abr. 242, &c. If the Arbitrators make an Award of Money to be paid to a Stranger, &c. unless the Parties have Benefit by it, it will be void. 2 Saund. 122. 1 Lill. 169. A Party is not to be made a Judge in his own Cause by Award. 1 Salk. 71. Where a Thing is to be done on Payment of Money, a Tender of the Money is as much as an actual Payment. Mod. Ca. 33. Action of Debt may be brought for Money adjudged to be paid by Arbitrators, declaring on the Award; and also Action of Debt upon the Bond for not performing the Award. Brownl. 55. Sometimes Matters are referred by the Judges at the Assizes to the three Foremen of the Jury, in the Nature of Arbitrators; and after their Award is made, the Plaintiff may have Attachment, &c. to oblige Performance. 1 Salk. 84. When there is but one Arbitrator, which happens where the Matter is referred to Two, and they cannot agree, but leave it to be determined by a third Person, it is called an Umpirage. 8 Rep. 98. But the Arbitrators are to refuse, and declare they will make no Award, before the Umpire shall proceed: Tho' an Umpire's Award shall be good where the Arbitrators make a void Award, which is no Award. 1 Lill. Abr. 170. Arbitrators are generally where the Parties think it more safe to refer the Matters in Variance, to the Determination of Friends, than to venture a Trial at Law. And the Civilians make a Difference between Arbiter and Arbitrator; an Arbiter is tied to proceed and judge according to Law mingled with Equity; but an Arbitrator is wholly at his own Discretion, without Solemnity of Process or Course of Judgment, to hear and determine the Controversy referred to him; so as it be Juxta Arbitrium boni viri. Cowel.

Arbitrament, (Arbitrium) Is the Sentence or Determination pronounced by Arbitrators; and published when they have heard all Parties. And Arbitrament is either general, of all Actions, Demands, Quarrels, &c. or Special, of some certain Matters in Controversy: It may be also Absolute, or Conditional. 8 Rep. 98. To every Arbitrament five Things are incident, 1. Matter of Controversy. 2. Submission. 3. Parties to the Submission. 4. Arbitrators. 5. Giving up the Arbitrament. Hardr. 44. Submissions to Arbitrament, are usually by Bond; and the Parties who bind themselves are obliged to take Notice of the Award, at their Peril. But Things relating to a Frechold;

A R

Freehold; Debts due on Bond, or on certain Contract; Criminal Offences, &c. are not arbitrable. Danv. Abr. 513. 9 Rep. 78. 1 Roll. Abr. 342, 244. Nullum Arbitrium is the usual Plea of the Defendant prosecuted on an Award. See Award.

Archbishop, (Archiepiscopus) Is the Chief of the Clergy in his Province, and is that Spiritual Secular Person, who hath supreme Power under the King in all Ecclesiastical Causes: And the Manner of his Creation and Consecration, by an Archbishop and two other Bishops, &c. You may find in the Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 20. An Archbishop is said to be introned, when a Bishop is said to be installed; and there are four Things to compleat a Bishop or Archbishop, as well as a Parson; First, Election, which resembles Presentation; the next is Confirmation, and this resembles Admission; next Consecration, which resembles Institution; and the last is Installation, resembled to Induction. 3 Salk. 72. Originally the Archbishop, was Bishop over all England, as Austin was. 1 Roll. Rep. 328. The Archbishop of Canterbury is now styled Metropolitanus & Primas totius Angliae; and the Archbishop of York styled Primas & Metropolitanus Angliae. They are called Archbishops in Respect of the Bishops under them; and Metropolitans, because they were consecrated at first in the Metropolis of the Province. 1 Inst. 94. Both the Archbishops have distinct Provinces, wherein they have suffragan Bishops of several Dioceses, with Jurisdiction under them. And each hath two concurrent Jurisdictions, one as Ordinary or the Bishop himself within his Diocese; the other as Superintendant throughout his whole Province of all Ecclesiastical Matters, to correct and supply the Defects of other Bishops. The Archbishop of Canterbury hath the Privilege to Crown all the Kings of England; and to have Prelates to be his Officers; as for Instance; the Bishop of London is his Provincial Dean, the Bishop of Winchester his Chancellor, the Bishop of Lincoln his Vice-Chancellor, the Bishop of Salisbury his Precentor, the Bishop of Worcester his Chaplain, &c. It is the Right of the Archbishop to call the Bishops and Clergy of his Province to Convocation, upon the King's Writ: He hath a Jurisdiction in Cases of Appeal, where there is a supposed Default of Justice in the Ordinary; and has a standing Jurisdiction over his Suffragans: He confirms the Election of Bishops, and afterwards consecrates them, &c. And he may appoint Co-adjutors to a Bishop that is grown infirm. He may confer Degrees of all Kinds; and censure and excommunicate, suspend or depose, for any just Cause, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 223. And he hath Power to grant Dispensations in any Case, formerly grant-

Archdeacon, (Archidiaconus) Is one that hath Ecclesiastical Dignity, and Jurisdiction over the Clergy and Laity next after the Bishop throughout the Diocese, or in some Part of it only. Archdeacons had antiently a superintendent Power over all the parochial Clergy in every Deanery in their Precincts; they being the Chiefs of the Deacons: Tho' they have no original Jurisdiction, but what they have got is from the Bishop, either by Prescription or Composition; and Sir Simon Degg tells us, that it appears an Archdeacon is a meer Substitute to the Bishop, and what Authority he hath is derived from him, his chief Office being to visit and enquire, and Episcopo Nuntiare, &c. In antient Times, Archdeacons were employ'd in servile Duties of collecting and distributing Alms and Offerings; but at length by a personal Attendance on the Bishops, and a Delegation to examine and report some Causes, and Commissions to visit the remoter Part of the Dioceses, they became as it were Overseers of the Church; and by Degrees advanced into considerable Dignity and Power. Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury, was the first Prelate in England who instituted an Archdeacon in his Diocese, which was about the Year 1075. And an Archdeacon is now allowed to be an Ordinary, as he hath a Part of the Episcopal Power lodged with him. He visits his Jurisdiction once every Year: And he hath a Court, where he may inflict Penance, suspend, or excommunicate Persons; prove Wills, grant Administrations, and hear Causes Ecclesiastical, &c. subject to appeal to the Bishop of the Diocese. It is one Part of the Office of an Archdeacon to examine Candidates for Holy Orders, and to induct Clerks within his Jurisdiction, upon Receipt of the Bishop's Mandate. 2 Cro. 556. 1 Lev. 193. Wood's Inst. 30.

Archies Court, (Curia de Arcubus) The Chief and most antient Consistory Court belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury for the Debating of Spiritual Causes. It is so called from the Church in London, commonly called St. Mary le Bow, (where it was formerly held) which Church is named Bow-Church from the Steeple which is raised by Pillars, built archwise, like so many bent Bows. Cowel. The Judge of this Court is styled the Dean of the Archies, or Official of the Archies Court: He hath extraordinary Jurisdiction in all Ecclesiastical Causes, except what belongs to the Prerogative Court; also all Manner of Appeals from Bishops, or their Chancellors or Commissaries, Deans and Chapters, Archdeacons, &c. first or last are directed hither: He hath ordinary Jurisdiction throughout the whole Province of Canterbury, in Case of Appeals; so that upon any Appeal made, he, without any farther Examination of the Cause, sends out his Citation to the Appellee, and his Inhibition to the Judge from whom the Appeal was made. Of this see more 4 Inst. 337. But he cannot cite any Person out of the Diocese of another, unless it be on Appeal, &c. 23 H. 8. c. 9. In another Sense the Dean of the Archies has a peculiar Jurisdiction of thirteen Parishes in London, called a Deanery, (being exempt from the Authority of the Bishop of London) of which the Parish of Bow is the Principal.

pal. The Persons concerned in this Court, are the Judge, Advocates, Registers, Proctors, &c. And the Foundation of a Suit in these Courts, is a Citation for the Defendant to appear; then the Libel is exhibited, which contains the Action; to which the Defendant must answer; whereupon the Suit is contested, Proofs are produced, and the Cause determined by the Judge, upon Hearing the Advocates on the Law and Fact; when follows the Sentence or Decree thereupon.

Archives, (Archiva, from Arca, a Chest) The Rolls, or any Place where antient Records, Charters and Evidences, belonging to the Crown and Kingdom, are kept; also the Chancery, Exchequer-Office, &c. And it hath been sometimes used for private Repositories in Libraries.

Arche, Is an old Word, signifying to divulge; from whence we derive the Word Reckon.

Arrestment, Surprise, Affrightment. — To the great Arrestment and Esterment of the Common Law. Rot. Parl. 21 Ed. 3.

Arrestan, The Edict of the King, commanding all his Tenants to come into the Army: If they refuse, then to be deprived of their Estates.

Arentare, To Rent out, or let at a certain Rent. — Richardus de Armestone Ballivus Manerii de Kingsford, malitiose & per violentiam dictos Religiosos de eadem piscaria ejecit, & ipsum Dominum suo Arentari fecit in 12 sol. quos idem Dominus per 6. annos recepit. *Consuetud. Argentum album, Silver Money, or Pieces of Bullion that antiently passed for Money. By Domesday Tenure, some Rents to the King were paid in Argento albo, common silver Pieces of Money; other Rents in Libris Urvis & Pensatis, in Metal of full Weight and Purity: In the next Age, that Rent which was paid in Money, was called Blanch-fearn; and afterwards White Rent; and what was paid in Provision was termed Black-Mail. Spelm. Gloss.

Argentum Dei, God's Money; i. e. Money given in Earnest upon the Making of any Bargain: Hence comes Arles, Earnest; and it is called Arles-penny in Lincolnshire and Yorkshire; where they likewise call Servants Vails Arles. — Adam de Holt vendit quintam partem Manerii de Berterton Henrico Scot, & cepit de predicto Henrico tres Denarios de Argento Dei pra manibus. Placit. apud Castr. 2 Ed. 3.

And in Walsingham, p. 507. Die Dominica in Vigilia Purificationis Edwardus juvenis suscepit Arma Militaria. The Word Arma in these Places signifieth only a Sword; but sometimes a Knight was made by giving him the whole Armour. — Lanfrancus Dorobernensis Episcopus eum lorica induit, & galeam capiti imposuit, eique & Regis filio

Militie cingulum in nomine Dei cinxit. Ordericus Vitalis, lib. 8. de Henrico, &c.

Arma Libera, A Sword and a Lance which were usually given to a Servant when he was made free. Leg. Will. cap. 65.

Arma moluta, Sharp Weapons that cut, opposed to such as are blunt, which only break or bruise. Bract. lib. 3. Arma Moluta plagam faciunt, sicut gladii & hujusmodi: Ligna vero & lapides, brusturas, Orbes & ictus, qui judicari non possunt ad plagam, ad hoc ut inde venire possit ad Duelum. They are called Arma emolita by Fleta, Lib. 1. cap. 33. par. 6.

Arma reversata: This was when a Man was convicted of Treason or Felony: Thus our Historian Knighton, speaking of Hugh Spenser, tells us, Primo vestierunt eum uno vestimento cum Armis suis reversatis. Lib. 3. p. 2546.

Armistice, Any Sort of Punishment decreed or imposed by the Judge. Malmsb. lib. 3. pag. 97. Walsingham, p. 430. At first it was to carry a Saddle at his Back in Token of Subjection, viz. Nudis vestigiis equestrem sellam ad satisfaciendum humeris ferret. Brompton says, that in the Year 1176. the King of Scots promised Hen. 2. at York, Lanceam & sellam suam super Altare Sancti Petri ad perpetuam hujus subjectionis memoriam offerre.

Armigeri, A Title of Dignity, belonging to such Gentlemen that bear Arms, who are next below a Knight. These are either by Curtsey; as Sons of Noblemen, eldest Sons of Knights, &c. Or by Creation, such as the King's Servants, &c. The Word Armigeri has also been applied to the higher Servants in Convents. Paroch. Antiq. 576. See Esquire.

Arms, (Arma) In the Understanding of Law, are extended to any Thing that a Man wears for his Defence, or takes into his Hands, or useth in Anger to strike or cast at another. Crompt. Just. 65. Arms are also what we call in Latin Insignia, Ensigns of Honour; as to the Original of which, it was to distinguish Commanders in War; for the antient defensive Armor being a Coat of Mail, &c. which covered the Persons, they could not be distinguish'd, and therefore a certain Badge was painted on their Shields, which was call'd Arms; but not made hereditary in Families till the Time of King Rich. 1. on his Expedition to regain Jerusalem from the Turks: And besides Shields with Arms, they had a silk Coat drawn over their Armour, and afterwards a stiff Coat, on which their Arms were painted all over, now the Herald's Coat of Arms. Sid. Rep. 352.

Arnalia, Arable Grounds. This Word is mentioned in Domesday, Tit. Essex.

Arnaldia, Arnoldia; A Sort of Disease that makes the Hair fall off, like the Alopecia, or like unto a Distemper in Foxes. — Deinde uterque Rex incidit in aegritudinem quam Arnaldiam vocant, in qua ipsi ad mortem usque laborantes capillos suos deposuerunt. Rog. Hovenden, p. 693.

Arpens, or Arpent, Signifies an Acre or Furlong of Ground: And according to the old French Account, in Domesday-Book, 100 Perches make an Arpent; eighteen Foot a Perch; and twelve Inches a Foot. The most ordinary Acre, call'd l'Arpent de France, is One hundred Perches Square: But some account it but Half an Acre. — Septem acras terrae & unum Arpentum quae me contingebant per Eschaetam. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Wormsley, fol. 7. Where Arpens seems to be some Quantity less less than an Acre. Arpentator is used for a Measurer or Surveyor of Land.

Armatio Pedum, Used in Pat. 1 Ed. 2. for the Arraying of Foot Soldiers.

Armatarii (Armatiores) Such Officers as had the Care of the Soldiers Armour, and whose Business it was to see them duly accoutred. Stat. 12 R. 2. c. 6. In several Reigns Commissioners have been appointed for this Purpose.

Arraign, (from the French Arranger, to set a Thing in Order) Hath the same Signification in Law: But the true Derivation is from the French Arraisonner, i. e. Ad rationem ponere, to call a Man to answer in Form of Law. A Prisoner is arraigned, when he is indicted and brought to Trial: And he is said to arraign a Writ, that fits and prepares it for Trial; to arraign the Assize, is to cause the Demandant to be called to make the Complaint, in such Manner as the Tenant may be obliged to answer. 1 Inst. 262. But no Man is properly arraigned but at the Suit of the King, upon an Indictment found against him, or other Record, wherewith he is to be charged: And this Arraignment is to take Care that the Prisoner do appear to be tried, and hold up his Hand at the Bar, for the Certainty of the Person, and plead a sufficient Plea to the Indictment. 1 Inst. 262, 263. The Prisoner is to hold up his Hand only in Treason and Felony; but this is only a Ceremony: If he owns that he is the Person, it is sufficient without it; and then upon his Arraignment his Fetters are to be taken off; and he is to be treated with all the Humanity imaginable. 2 Inst. 315. 3 Inst. 35. The Pleas upon Arraignment are either the General Issue, Not guilty; Plea in Abatement, or in Bar; and the Prisoner may demur to the Indictment; also he may confess the Fact, but then the Court has nothing more to do than to proceed to Judgment against him. If he stands mute, and doth not put himself upon Trial, he shall suffer the Penance Pain fort & dure, in Cases of Felony, &c. 3 Inst. 217. By the Common Law, if a Principal is acquitted, or is pardon'd, or dies, the Accessary shall not be arraigned. But vide Stat. 1 Ann. c. 9. and Word Accessary. For the Solemnity of the Arraignment and Trial of a Prisoner, see Dalt. chap. 185. p. 515.

Array, (Arraya, five Arraiamentum) An old Fr. Word signifying the Ranking or Setting forth of a Jury of Men empanelled upon a Cause. 18 H. 6. c. 14. From hence we say to Array a Panel. F. N. B. 157. That is, to set forth the Men empanelled one by another. To challenge the Array of the Panel, is at once to except against all the Persons array'd or empanell'd, in Respect of Partiality, &c. 1 Inst. 156. If the Sheriff be of Affinity to either of the Parties; or if any one or more of the Jurors are returned at the Denomination of either Party; or for any other Partiality, the Array shall be quashed. The Word Array also relates in a particular Manner to military Order, as to conduct Persons armed, &c. Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 3.

Arrearages, (Arrearagia) From the French Arriere retro, behind, is taken for Money unpaid at the due Time, as Rent behind; the Remainder due on an Account, or a Sum of Money remaining in the Hands of an Accountant. When Arrears of Rent are presumed in Law to be satisfied, vide Acceptance.

Arrestatus, One suspected of any Crime. — Si autem aliquis arrestatus fuerit de morte aliqujus

Arrenatus, Arraigned, accused. — Stephanus Rabaz, Vic. Leicest. arrenatus & ad rationem positus de hoc quod, &c. Rot. Parl. 21 Ed. 1.

Arrentation, (from the Spanish Arrendare) Is as much as Ad certum redditum dimittere; and it signifies the Licencing an Owner of Lands in the Forest, to enclose them with a low Hedge and small Ditch, according to the Assize of the Forest, under a yearly Rent. Saving the Arrentations is a saving Power to give such Licences for a yearly Rent.

Arrest, (Arrestum) Cometh of the French Word Arrester, to stop, or stay. It is a Restraint of a Man's Person, obliging him to be obedient to the Law: And is defined to be the Execution of the Command of some Court, or Officer of Justice. None shall be arrested for Debt, Trespass, &c. or other Cause of Action, but by Virtue of a Precept or Commandment out of some Court: But for Treason, Felony, or Breach of the Peace, any Man may arrest without Warrant or Precept. Terms de Ley 54. Persons present at the Committing of a Felony, must use their Endeavours to apprehend the Offender, under Penalty of Fine and Imprisonment. 3 Inst. 117. 4 Inst. 177. The King cannot command any one by Word of Mouth to be arrested; but he must do it by Writ, or Order of his Courts, according to Law: Nor may the King arrest any Man for Suspicion of Treason, or Felony, as his Subjects may; because if he doth wrong, the Party cannot have Action against him. 2 Inst. 186. After Presentment or Indictment found in Felony, &c. the first Process is a Capias, to arrest and imprison the Offender: And if the Offender cannot be taken, an Exigent is awarded in order to Outlawry. H. P. C. 209. By Magn. Chart. c. 9. None shall be restrained of his Liberty, but either by Order of a Court of Record, by lawful Warrant, or the King's Writ. 2 Inst. 46. 3 Inst. 209. When a Person is apprehended for Debt, &c. he is said to be arrested: And Writs express arrest by two several Words Capias and Attachias, to take and catch hold of a Man; for an Officer must actually lay hold of a Person, besides saying he Arrests him, or it will be no lawful Arrest. 1 Lill. Abr. 96. If a Bailiff be kept off from making an Arrest, he shall have an Action of Assault: And where the Person arrested makes Resistance, or assaults the Bailiff, he may justify Beating of him. If a Bailiff touches a Man, which is an Arrest, and he makes his Escape, it is a Rescous, and Attachment may be had against him. 1 Salk. 79. If a Bailiff lays hold of one by the Hand (whom he had a Warrant to arrest) as he holds it out at the Window; this is such a Taking of him, that the Bailiff may justify the Breaking open of the House to carry him away. 1 Vent. 306. When a Person has committed Treason, or Felony, &c. Doors may be broke open to arrest the Offender; but not in civil Cases, except it be in Pursuit of one arrested; or where a House is recovered by Real Action, to deliver Possession to the Person recovering. Plowd. 5 Rep. 91. An Arrest in the Night, as well as the Day, is lawful. 9 Rep. 66. And every one is bound by the Common Law to assist not only the Sheriff in the Execution of Writs, and making Arrests, &c. but also his Bailiff that hath his Warrant to do it. 2 Inst. 193. A Bailiff ought to shew his Warrant when the Party submits himself to the Arrest, if required. 6 Rep. 34. But it is said a sworn known Bailiff, need not shew his Warrant. 9 Rep. 99. Sheriffs are not to grant Warrants for Arrests, before the Receipt of the Writs; if they do, they shall forfeit 10 l. and Damages, and pay a Fine to the King. Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 5. If an Action is entered in one of the Compters of London, a City Serjeant may arrest the Party without the Sheriff's Warrant. 1 Lill. Abr. 94. And by the Custom of London, a Debtor may be arrested before the Money is due, to make him find Sureties; but not by the Common Law. 1 Nelf. Abr. 258. By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 7. No Writ, Process, Warrant, &c. (except in Cases of Treason, Felony, or for Breach of the Peace) shall be served on a Sunday; on Pain that the Person serving them shall be liable to the Suit of the Party grieved, and answer Damages, as if the same had been done without Writ: An Action of False Imprisonment lies for Arrest on a Sunday, and the Arrest is void. 1 Salk. 78. But a Person may be retaken on a Sunday, where arrested the Day before, &c. Mod. Ca. 231. And a Man may be taken on a Sunday on an Escape-Warrant; where he goes at large out of the Rules of the King's Bench or Fleet Prison, &c. Stat. 5 Ann. c. 9. Also Bail may take the Principal on a Sunday, and confine him 'till Monday, and then render him; tho' a Plaintiff may not arrest the Defendant on a Sunday. 1 Nelf. 258. If a wrong Person is arrested, or one for Felony, where no Felony is done, &c. it will be False Imprisonment, liable to Damages. Attornies, &c. for Vexation, maliciously causing any Person to be arrested, where there is no Cause of Suit, &c. the Prosecutors shall suffer six Months Imprisonment, and before discharged pay treble Damages, and forfeit 10 l. Stat. 8 Eliz. c. 2. The Bailiff's Fee by Statute for an Arrest is but four Pence; and the Sheriff's twenty Pence: And doing contrary incurs treble Damages to the Party grieved, and a Forfeiture of 40 l. by 23 H. 6. c. 10. No Bailiff, or other Officer, shall carry any Person under Arrest to any Tavern, Alehouse, &c. without his Consent; so as to charge him with any Beer, Ale, Wine, &c. but what he shall freely call for: Nor shall demand or receive more from him for the Arrest or Waiting, than by Law ought to be, until an Appearance procured, Bail found, &c. Nor take or exact any more for keeping such Person out of Prison, than what he shall of his own voluntary Accord truly give; nor take more for Lodging than what is reasonable, or shall be adjudged so by the next Justice of Peace. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 2. Peers of the Realm, Members of Parliament, &c. may not be arrested, unless it be in criminal Cases; but the Process against them is to be Summons, Distress infinite, &c. 12 W. 3. c. 3. Also Corporations and Companies must be made to appear by Distringas, and cannot be arrested. Finch. 353. 3 Salk. 46. Persons attending upon any Courts of Record, on Business there, are to be free from Arrests. 3 Inst. 141. A Clerk of the Court ought not to be arrested for any Thing which is not Criminal, because he is supposed to be always present in Court, to answer the Plaintiff. 1 Lill. 94. Arrests are not to be made within the Liberty of the King's Palace: Nor may the King's Servants be arrested in any Place, without Notice first given to the Lord Chamberlain, that he remove them, or make them pay their Debts. Embassadors Servants, &c. freed from Arrests; vide Ambassador. No Arrests are to be generally in Wales, the Counties Palatine, &c. by Writs issuing from Westminster-Hall. If a Debt be under 10 l. on Process out of a superior Court, or 40 s. in an inferior Court, the Defendant shall not be arrested, but be served with a Copy of the Process, &c. Stat. 12 Geo.

Arrest of Judgment. To move in Arrest of Judgment, is to shew Cause why Judgment should be staid, notwithstanding Verdict given; for in many Cases, tho' there be a Verdict, no Judgment can be had. And the Causes of Arrest of Judgment, are Want of Notice of Trial; where the Plaintiff before Trial treats the Jury; the Record differs from the Deed pleaded; for material Defect in Pleading; where Persons are misnamed; more is given and found by the Verdict, than laid in the Declaration; or the Declaration doth not lay the Thing with Certainty, &c. And here all Matters of Fact are to be made out by proper Affidavits. Comp. Attorn. 329, &c. Judgment may be arrested for good Cause in Criminal Cases as well as Civil; if the Indictment be insufficient, &c. 3 Inst. 210. and four Days are allow'd to move in Arrest of Judgment; and the Defendant hath all the Term wherein the Verdict was given to speak any Thing to arrest it, if the Plaintiff hath not given his four Days Rule, and sign'd his Judgment; after which he is put to his Writ of Error. 2 Lill. 93. On Motion in Arrest of Judgment, if the Court be divided two Judges against Two, the Plaintiff must have his Judgment; unless a Rule be made at first to stay all Proceedings, until the Court otherwise order, &c. 2 Lill. Abr. 118. See Jeofail and Judgment. Arrest of Enquest is to plead in Arrest of Taking the Enquest, upon the former Issue, and to shew Cause why an Enquest should not be taken. Bro. Tit. Replead.

Arrestandis bonis ne dissipentur, A Writ which lies for a Man whose Cattle or Goods are taken by another, who during the Contest doth or is like to make them away, not being of Ability to make Satisfaction. Reg. Orig. 126.

Arrestando ipsum qui mercantiam recepit, &c. Is a Writ that lieth for Apprehending a Person that hath taken the King's Prest-Money to serve in Wars, and hides himself when he should go. Reg. Orig. 24.

Arresto facto super bonis Mercatorum Alienigenorum, A Writ which lies for a Denizen against the Goods of Aliens found within this Kingdom, in Recompence of Goods taken from him in a foreign Country, after Denial of Restitution. Reg. Orig. 129. This the ancient Civilians called Clarigatio, but by the Moderns it is term'd Reprisalia.

Arrested, Arrestatus, quasi, ad rectum vocatus, Is where a Man is convened before a Judge, and charged with a Crime. Staundf. Pl. Co. 45. And it is sometimes used for Imputed or laid unto; as, no Folly may be arrested to one under Age. Littleton, cap. Remitter. Chaucer useth the Verb Arreteth; that is, lays Blame, as it is interpreted. Bracton says, Ad rectum habere Malefactorem, i. e. To have the Malefactor forth-coming, so as he may be charged, and put to his Trial. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 10. And in another Place, Rectatus de morte hominis, charged with the Death of a Man. From hence it may with some Reason seem, that that Word is the same with Rectum.

Arrura,

Arrura, — In the black Book of Hereford, De operationibus Arruræ, signifies Days Works of Ploughing; for antiently Customary Tenants were bound to plough certain Days for their Lord. Una Arrura, one Day's Work at the Plough: And in Wiltshire Earing is a Day's Ploughing. Paroch. Antiq. p. 401.

Arson, (from Ardeo to burn) Is House-burning, which is Felony at Common Law. 3 Inst. 66. It must be maliciously and voluntarily, and an actual Burning; not putting Fire only into a House, or any Part of it, without Burning: But if Part of the House is burn'd; or if the Fire doth burn, and then goeth out of it self, it is Felony. 2 Inst. 188. H. P. C. 85. The Burning of a Frame of a House, is not accounted House-burning, because the Frame of a House cannot come under the Word Domus, which is necessary in every Indictment for Arson. And it must be the House of another; for if a Man burns his own House only, tho' with Intention to burn others, it is not Felony, but a great Misdemeanor, punishable with Fine, Pillory, &c. If a House is fired by Negligence or Mischance, it cannot amount to Arson. 3 Inst. 67. H. P. C. 85. By Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 11. Burning of Houses, or Barns wherein any Corn is, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy. And the Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 7. makes it Felony to set Barns, Stables, Stacks of Corn, Hay, &c. on Fire in the Night-time, or any Outhouses or Buildings: But the Offender may be transported for seven Years. By 6 Anna, Servants thro' Negligence or Carelessness, setting on Fire any Dwelling house or Outhouse, shall forfeit 100 l. or be sent to the House of Correction, and there kept to hard Labour eighteen Months.

Arsum, The Trial of Money by Fire, after it was coined. In Domesday we read, Reddit 50 l. ad Arsuram, which is meant of lawful and approved Money, whose Alloy was tried by Fire.

Art and Part, Is a Term used in Scotland and the North of England; when one charged with a Crime, in committing the same was both a Contriver of, and acted his Part in it.

Arthel, A British Word and more truly written Arddel, signifying to Avouch; as if a Man were taken with stolen Goods in his Hands, he was to be allowed a lawful Arddel (or Vouchee) to clear him of the Felony: It was Part of the Law of Howel Dda; according to whose Laws every Tenant holding of any other than of the Prince or Lord of the Fee, paid a Fine pro defensione Regia, which was called Arian Arddel. The Privilege of Arddel occasioning a Delay and Exemption of Criminals from Justice, Provision was made against it by Statute 26 H. 8. c. 6.

Articuli Cleri, Articles of the Clergy, are Statutes containing certain Articles relating to the Church and Clergy, and Causes Ecclesiastical. 9 E. 2. and 14 E. 3.

Articulus, An Article, or Complaint, exhibited by Way of Libel, in a Court Christian. Sometimes the Religious bound themselves to obey the Ordinary, without such formal Process: As An. Dom. 1300. The Prior and Convent of Burcester submitted themselves to the Official of Lincoln, &c. — Quod possint eos & eorum Successores per omnem transmissam Ecclesiasticam ad omnium & singulorum premissorum observationem absque Articuli seu Libelli petitione, & quocunque strepitu judiciali compellere. Paroch. Antiq. p. 344.

Artillery in Wool, Iron, Steel, Brasses, or other Metal, &c. Persons contracting to go out of this Kingdom into a foreign Country; shall be fined not exceeding 100 l. and be imprison'd three Months: And Artificers going abroad, not returning on Warning given by our Embassadors, &c. shall be disabled to hold Lands by Descent or Devise, be incapable to take any Legacy, &c. and be deem'd Aliens. Stat. 5 Geo. c. 27.

Arundinetum, A Ground or Place where Reeds grow. 1 Inst. 4. And it is mentioned in the Book of Domesday.

Arvil-Supper, A Feast or Entertainment made at Funerals, in the North Part of England: Arvil-Bread is the Bread delivered to the Poor at Funeral Solemnities. Cowel. And Arvil, Arval, Arfal, are used for the Burial or Funeral Rites; as,

Come bring my Ferkin Tibb, I'll to the Arvil, Yon Man's dea Seuy Seoun, it makes me Marvil.
Yorkshire Dial. p. 58.

Asceterium, (Archisterium, Arcesterium, Acisterium, Alysterium, Arbitrium) Is a Greek Word, and signifies a Monastery. It often occurs in our old Histories. Du Cange.

Asath, or Alfath, Was a Custom of Purgation, used of old in Wales, by which the Party accused did clear himself by the Oaths of 300 Men. It is mentioned in antient MSS. and prevailed till the Time of Hen. 5. when it was abrogated. 1 H. 5. c. 6.

Assart, (Assartum) Fr. Assartir, to make plain. Assartum est quod redactum est ad Culturam. Fleta, lib. 4. cap. 21. And the Word Assartum is by Spelman derived from Exertum, to pull up by the Roots; for sometimes 'tis wrote Essart. Others derive it from Exaratum, or Exartum, which signifies to plough or cut up. Manwood, in his Forest Laws, says it is an Offence committed in the Forest, by pulling up the Woods by the Roots, that are Thickets and Coverts for the Deer, and making the Ground plain as arable Land: This is esteemed the greatest Trespass that can be done in the Forest to Vert or Venison, as it contains in it Waste and more; for whereas Waste of the Forest is but the Felling down the Coverts, which may grow up again, Assart is a Plucking them up by the Roots, and utterly destroying them, so that they can never afterwards spring up again. And this is confirmed out of the Red Book in the Exchequer, in these Words. —

Assarta vero dicuntur que apud Isidorum occisiones nuncupantur, quando Forestæ nemora vel Dumeta, pascuis & latibulis ferarum opportuna, succiduntur: Quibus succisis & radicitus avulsis, terra subvertitur & excolitur. — But this is no Offence if done with Licence; and a Man may by Writ of Ad quod damnum sue out a Licence to assart Ground in the Forest, and make it several for Tillage. Reg. Orig. 257. Hence Lands are called assarted: And formerly Assart Rents were paid to the Crown for Forest Lands assarted. Stat. 22 Car. 2. c. 6. Assartments seems to be used in the same Sense in Rot. Parl. Assartum hath been sometimes termed Disboscatio. Of Assart you may read more in Crompt. Jurisd. p. 203. And Charta de Foresta, Anno 9 H. 3. c. 4. Manwood, part 1. p. 171.

Assault, (Assultus) From the Fr. Verb Assayler, Signifies a violent Injury offered to a Man's Person, of a higher Nature than Battery; for it may be committed by offering a Blow, or by a terrifying terrifying Speech. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 1. cap. 3. The Feudists define Assault thus: Assultus est impetus in Personam aut locum, sive hoc pedibus fiat, vel equo aut machinis aut quacunque alia re assiliatur. Zafius de Feud. pag. 10. num. 38. And Assilire est vim adferre. Lib. Feud. 1. tit. 5. Sect. 1. Also the Lat. Assaltus is used in this Sense in the Laws of Edw. Conf. cap. 12. To strike a Man, tho' he be not hurt with the Blow, is an Assault: And to strike at a Person, notwithstanding he be neither hit nor hurt, hath been so adjudged. 22 Lib. Ass. pl. 60. For Assault doth not always necessarily imply a Hitting, or Blow; because in Trespass for Assault and Battery, a Man may be found guilty of the Assault, and excused of the Battery. 25 Ed. 3. c. 24. If a Person in Anger lift up or stretch forth his Arm, and offer to strike another; or menace any one with any Staff or Weapon, it is Trespass and Assault in Law: And if a Man threaten to beat another Person, or lie in wait to do it, if the other is hindered in his Business, and receives Loss thereby, Action lies for the Injury. Lamb. lib. 1. 22 Ass. pl. 60. Where a Man assaults any Person, beats, or doth him any Manner of Violence, either with Hand, Foot, or Weapon; or throws any Thing at him, Drink in his Face, &c. whereby he is hurt; it is such an Assault for which Action may be brought, and Damages recovered. Comp. Attorn. 133. But to lay Hands gently upon another, not in Anger, is no Foundation of an Action of Trespass and Assault: The Defendant may justify Molliter manus imposuit. A Man may justify an Assault in Defence of his Person, or Goods; or of his Wife, Father, Mother, or Master; or for the Maintenance of Justice. Bract. 9 E. 4. 35 Hen. 6. c. 51. And in Cases of Assault, for the Assault of the Wife, Child, or Servant, the Husband, Father, and Master, may have Action of Trespass. Where a Man is assaulted, and he hath no Witnesses to prove the same, or in other Cases, the Party assaulted may bring an Information in the Crown-Office; and not have common Action of Trespass. Vide Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18. which requires Recognizances to be taken to prosecute with Effect, &c. If any Person assault a Privy Councillor, in the Execution of his Office, it is Felony. Stat. 9 Ann. And Assaulting or Threatning a Counsellor at Law, or Attorney employ'd in a Cause against a Man; or a Juror giving Verdict against him; his Adversary for suing him, &c. is punishable by Fine and Imprisonment, for the Contempt. 1 Hawk. 58.

Assay of Weights and Measures, (from the Fr. Essay, i. e. a Proof or Trial) Is the Examination of Weights and Measures, by Clerks of Markets, &c. Reg. Orig. 279. — Ac Assisam & Assaiam Panis, Vini, & Cervisia. Paten. 37 H. 8. Tho. Marrow.

Assayer of the King, (Assayator Regis) An Officer of the Mint, for the Trial of Silver; he is indifferently appointed between the Master of the Mint and the Merchants that bring Silver thither for Exchange. Anno 2 Hen. 6. cap. 12. Vessels of Gold shall be assayed. 28 Ed. 1. c. 20. and 18 Car. 2. c. 5. — Mandatum est Will. Har- del Clerico, quod convocatis in presentia sua omnibus Monetariis Assayatoribus, Custodibus, Operariis & aliis Ministris de Cambiis Regis London. & Cantuar. per visum & Testimonium illorum provideat, quod tot & tales Operarii sint in predictis Cambiis, qui sufficiant ad Operationes Regias faciendas, ne Rex pro defectu hujusmodi ministrorum Damnum incurrat. Claus. 17 Hen. 3. m. 8.

Assaynare, To take Confessors or Fellow Judges.

— Henricus Dei Gratia Rex Angl. &c. Dilecto & fideli suo Nicholao de la Tour, salutem. Sciamus quod constituimus vos Justiciarium nostrum una cum hiis quos vobis duxeritis Assaynandos ad Assisam novae Disseisinæ capiendam. — Cartular. Abbat. Glastron. MS. f. 57.

Asscurare, (Asscurare) To make secure by Pledges, or any solemp Interposition of Faith. In the Charter of Peace between Hen. 2. and his Sons, this Word is mentioned. Hovenden, Anno 1174.

Assembly unlawful, From the Fr. Assembler, i. e. Aggregare, to flock together. It is the Meeting of Three or more Persons to do an unlawful Act, altho' they do it not: As to assault, or beat any Person; enter into Houses or Lands, &c. West. Symb. Part 2. Sect. 65. Their Meeting and Abiding together makes the Crime, where they do not execute their Intentions: If the Intention be to redress publick Grievances, and be executed, it is adjudged Treason. 3 Inst. 9. In the Reign of Ed. 6. A Law was made declaring it Treason for twelve Persons, or more, to assemble together to attempt to kill any of the King's Council, or to alter the Laws, &c. And that it should be Felony to attempt to destroy Parks, pull down Houses, &c. if they continued together an Hour after Proclamation made by a Justice of Peace, Mayor, or Sheriff: But this Law was soon repealed. Tho' it seems to have given Rise to the late Riot-Act; which ordains, that where twelve Persons, or more, unlawfully assembled, continue together an Hour after Proclamation to depart, they shall be guilty of Felony. Stat. 1 Geo. c. 6. See Riot.

Assent, or Consent. To a Legacy of Goods, the Assent of the Executor is necessary, before the Legatee may take the same; but to a Devise of Lands that are Freehold, it is not required. Co. Lit. 111. The Assent of an Executor to a Devise of a Legacy, or of any personal Thing, is so necessary, that if the Legatee or Devisee take the Thing without the Delivery and Assent of the Executor, he may have an Action of Trespass against them. Keilw. 128. 1 Nels. Abr. 260. The Common Law takes Notice of the Assent of the Executor to the Legacy, and doth give him Time to consider of the Value of the Goods, and State of the Debts of the Testator, that he may pay a Legacy with Safety; the Executor being to pay Debts before Legacies. Perk. 570. No Property can be transferred to the Legatee without the Assent of the Executor: But if the Executor doth once assent to the Legacy, the Legatee hath such a Property vested in him that he may take it, tho' the Executor revokes his Assent afterwards. And there may be an Assent implied, as well as express; as if the Executor offers the Legatee Money for what is bequeathed him; or directs others to the Legatee to buy it, &c. Plowd. 543. 4 Rep. 28. When there are many Executors, the Assent of one to a Legacy is sufficient: And one Executor may take a Legacy without the Assent of his Co-Executors. Perk. 572. Assent may be before or after Probate of the Will. An Infant Executor, at the Age of seventeen Years, may assent to a Legacy: But it has been doubted, Whether an Administrator durante minori Aetate can assent. Cro. Eliz. 719. A Husband is to give Assent where his Wife is Executrix. A Court of Equity, or the Spiritual Court, may compel an Executor to assent to a Legacy. March 97. But an Assent to a void Devise, will be also void. Plowd. 525. Assent of Dean and Chapter in making Leases of Church Lands; vide Leases. Of the major Part of Corporations, in making By-Laws, vide By-Laws.

Assessors, Those that assess Publick Taxes; as two Inhabitants in every Parish were Assessors for the Royal Aid, to rate every Person according to the Value of his Estate, Anno 16 & 17 Car. 2. There are Assessments of Parish-Duties, for Repairing of Highways, &c. made and levied by Rate on the Inhabitants; as well as Assessments of Publick Taxes. Vide Assessors, &c.

Assets, (Fr. Asses, i. e. Satis) Signifies Goods enough to discharge that Burden which is cast upon the Executor or Heir, in satisfying the Debts and Legacies of the Testator or Ancestor. Bro. Tit. Assets. Assets are Real or Personal; where a Man hath Lands in Fee-simple, and dies seised thereof, the Lands which come to his Heir, are Assets Real: And where he dies possessed of any Personal Estate, the Goods which come to the Executors, are Assets Personal: Assets are also divided into Assets per Descent, and Assets inter mains; Assets by Descent is where a Person is bound in an Obligation, and dies seised of Lands which descend to the Heir, the Land shall be Assets, and the Heir shall be charged as far as the Land to him descended will extend: Assets inter mains is when a Man indebted makes Executors, and leaves them sufficient to pay his Debts and Legacies; or where some Commodity or Profit ariseth to them in Right of the Testator, which are called Assets in their Hands. Terms de Ley 56, 77. By the Common Law, if an Heir had sold or aliened the Lands which were Assets, before the Obligation of his Ancestor was put in Suit, he was to be discharged, and the Debt was lost: But by Statute, the Heir is made liable to the Value of the Land by him sold, in Action of Debt brought against him by the Obligee, who shall recover to the Value of the said Land, as if the Debt was the proper Debt of the Heir; but the Land which is sold or aliened bona fide before the Action brought, shall not be liable to Execution upon a Judgment recovered against the Heir in any such Action. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 14. Where a Man binds himself and his Heirs in a Bond, and dies leaving Issue two Sons, if the eldest Son enters on the Lands by Descent as Heir to the Father, and die without Issue, and then the youngest Son enters, he shall be charged with Assets as Heir to his Father. Dyer 368. Lands which come to the Heir by Purchase, shall not be Assets; for 'tis only Lands by Descent that shall be Assets. 1. Danv. Abr. 577. A Reversion in Fee depending upon an Estate-tail, is not Assets; because it lies in the Will of the Tenant in Tail to dock and bar it by Fine, &c. 6 Rep. 56. But after the Tail is spent, it is Assets. 3 Mod. 257. And a Reversion on an Estate for Life or Years is Assets. An Advowson is Assets; but not a Presentation to a Church actually void, which may not be sold. Co. Lit. 374. Lands of Cestuy que Trust shall be Assets by Descent. Stat. 29 Car. 2. And Lands by Descent in ancient Demesne shall be Assets in Debt. But a Copyhold Estate descending to an Heir, is not Assets: Nor is any Right to an Estate Assets, without Possession, &c. till recovered and reduced into Possession. Danv. 577. Leases are Assets to pay Debts, notwithstanding the Assent of the Executor to the Devise of them. 1 Lill. Abr. 99. Where an Executor of Lessee for Years receives the Profits of the Land, they are appropriated to the Use of the Lessor; but what is over and above the Rent shall be Assets. 1 Salk. 79. If an Executor surrenders a Term of Years, which he had as Executor, to him in Reversion; or if he purchases the Reversion, 'tis not extinct as to him, but shall still remain Assets in the Executor to satisfy Debts and Legacies. 1 Rep. 87. Equity of Redemption of an Estate mortgaged, and a Term for Years to attend the Inheritance, are Assets. 3 Leon. 32. Money decreed in a Court of Equity by Reason of Executorship; Money arising by Sale of Lands by Executors; and Damages recovered by Executors; also Interest of the Testator's Money lent by Executors, shall be Assets. 2 Chanc. Rep. 152. Those Goods and Chattels which belonged to the Testator at the Time of his Death, and which do come to the Hands of the Executor are Assets, to make the Executor chargeable to Creditors and Legatees. 6 Rep. 47. But such Things as are not valuable, shall not be Assets: And Debts, &c. when recovered by the Executor after the Death of the Testator, shall be accounted Assets; but not before recovered; for the Executor shall not be charged for a Debt, if he cannot recover it. Wood's Inst. 323. If an Obligee or Creditor is made Executor, the Debt is Assets; though he may pay himself before any other, in equal Degree. An Obligee or Creditor makes the Obligor or Debtor Executor, it is a Release of the Debt; and yet his Debt shall be Assets for so much to the other Creditors, if there is no Assets beside. 1 Inst. 264. 2 Roll. Abr. 920. A Release of a certain Debt due to the Testator, makes it Assets in the Executor's Hands; because it shall be intended he would not have made the Release, unless the Money had been paid to him. 1 Nelf. Abr. 262. Assets in the Hands of an Executor, is Assets in the Hands of others; and if one Executor hath Goods of the Testator in any Part of the World, he shall be charged in Respect of them. 6 Rep. 47. In Actions against Executors, the Jury must find Assets of what Value; for the Plaintiff shall recover only according to the Value of the Assets found. 1 Roll. Rep. 58. An Heir may plead Riens per Descent, but the Plaintiff may reply that he had Lands from his Ancestor; and special Matter may be given in Evidence, &c. Co. Lit. 5 Rep. 60.

Assewiare, To draw or drain Water from Marsh Grounds. — Quod ipsi Mariscum prædictum assewiare, & secundum Legem Marisci, Wallis includere & in culturam redigere. — Et Mariscum illum sic assewiatum, inclusum & in culturam redactum tenere. Mon. Ang. 2. Vol. f. 334. Assidere, or Assedare, To tax equally. Provisum est generaliter quod prædicta quadragesima hoc modo assideatur & colligatur. Mat. Paris. Anno 1232. Sometimes it hath been used to assign an annual Rent, to be paid out of a particular Farm, &c. As, Manerium Rex Stephanus dedit & assedit eis pro centum Marcis.

Assign, (Assignare) Hath two Significations; one General, as to set over a Right to another, or appoint a Deputy, &c. and the other Special, to set forth or point at, as we say to assign Error, assign false Judgment, false Verdict, Waste, &c. And in assigning of Error, it must be shewed where the Error is committed; in false Judgment, wherein the Judgment is unjust; in Waste, Waste, wherein especially the Waste is done. F. N. B. 19, 112. Reg. Orig. 72. Also Justices are said to be assigned to take Assises. Stat. 11 H. 6. cap. 2.

Assignee, (Assignatus) Is he that is deputed or appointed by another to do any Act, or perform any Business, or enjoy any Commodity. And Assignees may be by Deed, or in Law; Assignee by Deed is when a Lessee of a Term, &c. sells and assigns the same to another, that other is his Assignee by Deed: Assignee in Law is he whom the Law so makes, without any Appointment of the Person; as an Executor is Assignee in Law to the Testator. Dyer 6. But if there be Assignee in Deed, Assign in Law is not allowed. He is called Assignee, who hath the whole Estate of the Assignor; and an Assignee, though not named in a Condition, may pay the Money to save the Land; but he shall not receive any Money, unless he be named. 1 Inst. 215. Assignees may take Advantage of Forfeitures on Conditions, when they are incident to the Reversion, as for Rent, &c. 1 And. 82. And regularly every Assignee of the Land may take Advantage of inherent Covenants; also Assignees are bound by such Covenants, as a Covenant to repair, &c. altho' not named: But if it concerns a Thing not in Being at the Time of the Demise, as to make a new Edifice, &c. the Assignee is not bound, except he be named in express Words; nor is he when named, if the Thing to be done doth not concern the Thing demised; or in Contracts merely personal. 1 Cro. 552. 1 Roll. Abr. 915. Plowd. 284. An Assignee is he that possesses or enjoys a Thing in his own Right; and Deputy is he that does it in the Right of another. Perkins.

Assignment, Is the Setting over or Transferring the Interest a Man hath in any Thing to another. And Assignments may be made of Lands in Fee, for Life, or Years; of an Annuity, Rent-Charge, Judgment, Statute, &c. but as to Lands, they are usually of Leases and Estates for Years, &c. And no Estate of Freehold, or Term for Years, shall be assigned but by Deed in Writing signed by the Parties; except by Operation of Law. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. A Possibility, Right of Entry, Title for Condition broken, a Trust, or Thing in Action, cannot be granted or assigned over. 1 Inst. 214. A Lessee out of Possession cannot make any Assignment of his Term, off from the Land; but must first enter, and recontinue his Possession; or seal and deliver the Deed upon the Land, which puts the Assignee into actual Possession. Dalif. 81. If Lessee for Years assigns all his Term in his Lease to another, he cannot reserve a Rent in the Assignment; for he hath no Interest in the Thing by Reason of which the Rent reserved should be paid; and where there is no Reversion there can be no Distress: But Debt may lie upon it, as on a Contract. 1 Lill. Abr. 99. Lessee for Term of Years assigns over his Term and dies, his Executors shall not be charged for Rent due after his Decease. Noy's Max. 71. Where the Executor of a Lessee assigns the Term, Debt will not lie against him for Rent incurred after the Assignment; because there is neither Privy of Contract, nor Estate between the Lessor and the Executor: But if the Lessee himself assigns his Lease, the Privy of Contract remains between him and the Lessor, although the Privy of Estate is gone by the Assignment, and he shall be chargeable during his Life; but after his Death, the Privy of Contract is likewise determined. 3 Rep. 24. 1 Nels. Abr. 271. Although a Lessee make an Assignment over of his Term, yet Debt lies against him by the Lessor or his Heir, (not having accepted Rent from the Assignee): But where a Lessee assigns his Term, and the Lessor his Reversion, the Privy is determined, and Debt doth not lie for the Reversioner against the first Lessee. Moor, cap. 472. And as the Rent issues out of the Land, the Assignee generally who has the Land, and is privy in Estate, is Debtor in Respect thereof. 3 Rep. 32. If an Assignment is made by an Assignee, the first Assignee is not suable for the Rent; for if he be accepted by the Lessor, the Admission of one Assignee is the Admission of Twenty. Comp. Attorn. 491. In case of Action of Debt for Rent by an Assignee of a Reversion, the Defendant may plead that before any Rent became due, he assigned the Term to another; but he must set forth in his Plea that he gave Notice to the Plaintiff of the Assignment made. Raym. 163. A Lessee covenanted for himself and his Assigns to rebuild a House before such a Time, which he did not do, but after the Time expired he assigned the Term; adjudged that this Covenant will not bind the Assignee, because it was broken before the Assignment. 1 Salk. 199. Where Tenant for Years assigns his Estate, no Consideration is necessary; for the Tenure being subject to Payment of Rent, &c. is sufficient to vest an Estate in the Assignee: In other Cases some Consideration must be paid. 1 Mod. 263. The Words required in Assignments, are grant, assign and set over; which may amount to a Grant, Feoffment, Lease, Release, Confirmation, &c. 1 Inst. 301. In these Deeds, the Assignor is to covenant to save harmless from former Grants, &c. That he is Owner of the Land; and hath Power to assign; that the Assignee shall quietly enjoy, and to make further Assurance; and the Assignee covenants to pay the Rent, and perform the Covenants, &c. though the last Covenants are usually omitted. Bonds, &c. are assigned by Power of Attorney to receive and sue in the Assignor's Name: But Bills of Exchange are assignable by Indorsement, and the Assignees may recover in their own Names by Stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9.

An Assignment of Chambers in an Inn of Court.

THIS Indenture made the Day, &c. in the Year of our Lord, &c. Between A. B. of, &c. Esq; of the one Part, and C. D. of, &c. Gent. of the other Part: Whereas in and by a certain Writing made and dated, &c. at Lincoln's Inn, the Benchers of the said Inn did order that the said A. B. should have a Lease of All that Chamber up one Pair of Stairs, Number, &c. belonging to Lincoln's Inn aforesaid, for the Term of Twenty-one Years, to commence at, &c. under the yearly Rent of, &c. as by the said recited Writing or Order may more fully appear. And whereas in Pursuance of the said Order, a Lease of the said Chamber hath been since made and granted to the said A. B. for the said Term of Twenty-one Years, &c. Now this Indenture witnesseth, That the said A. B. for and in Consideration of the Sum of Two hundred Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, to him in Hand paid by the said C. D. at and before the Sealing and Delivery hereof, the Receipt whereof he doth hereby acknowledge, Hath granted, bargained, sold, assigned and set over; and by these Presents doth grant, bargain, sell, assign and set set over unto the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, All that the Chamber aforesaid with the Appurtenances, and all the Estate, Right, Title, Interest, Property, Claim and Demand whatsoever of him the said A. B. of, in and to the same, or any Part thereof: To have and to hold the said Chamber, with the Appurtenances, to the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, from henceforth, for and during all the Rest and Residue of the said Term of Twenty-one Years, therein to come and unexpired. And the said A. B. doth by these Presents, for himself, his Executors and Administrators, covenant and grant to and with the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, in manner following; (that is to say) that he the said A. B. hath good Right, full Power and lawful Authority, to grant and assign the said Chamber and Premises above mentioned, in Manner and Form aforesaid: And that the same is free and clear of all former Grants, Assignments, Incumbrances, Arrears of Rent, and other Duties payable to the said Society of Lincoln's Inn, or any the Officers or Ministers thereof, or otherwise howsoever: And also that he the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, shall and lawfully may at all Times hereafter, during the Rest and Residue now to come and unexpired of the said Term of Twenty-one Years, peaceably and quietly have, hold, occupy, possess and enjoy the said Chamber and Premises above mentioned, and hereby granted and assigned, without any Let, Suit, Trouble, Eviction, Ejection, Claim or Demand, of or by the said A. B. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, or any other Person or Persons whatsoever: And further, that he the said A. B. his Executors and Administrators, shall and will from Time to Time, and at all Times hereafter upon the reasonable Request, and at the Costs and Charges of the said C. D. make, do and execute, or cause to be made, done and executed, all and every such further Acts and Assurances, for the better Assigning and Assigning of the said Chamber and Premises to the said C. D. as by him the said C. D. or his Counsel, learned in the Law, shall be reasonably devised, advised or required. In Witness whereof the Parties abovenamed have hereunto put their Hands and Seals, the Day and Year above-written.

Form of an Assignment of a Bond.

TO all People to whom these Presents shall come, Greeting: Whereas A. B. of, &c. in and by one Bond or Obligation, bearing Date, &c. became bound to C. D. of, &c. in the penal Sum of, &c. conditioned for the Payment of, &c. and Interest at a Day long since past, as by the said Bond and Condition thereof may appear: And whereas there now remains due to the said C. D. for Principal and Interest on the said Bond, the Sum of, &c. Now know ye, That the said C. D. for and in Consideration of the said Sum of, &c. of lawful British Money to him in Hand paid by E. F. of, &c. the Receipt whereof the said C. D. doth hereby acknowledge; he the said C. D. hath assigned and set over, and by these Presents doth assign and set over unto the said E. F. the said recited Bond or Obligation, and the Money thereupon due and owing, and all his Right and Interest of, in and to the same. And the said C. D. for the Consideration aforesaid, hath made, constituted and appointed; and by these Presents doth make, constitute and appoint the said E. F. his Executors and Administrators, his true and lawful Attorney and Attornies irrevocable, for him and in his Name, and in the Name and Names of his Executors and Administrators, but for the sole and proper Use and Benefit of the said E. F. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, to ask, require, demand and receive of the said A. B. his Heirs, Executors and Administrators, the Money due on the said Bond; and on Non-payment thereof, he the said A. B. his Heirs, Executors and Administrators, to sue for, and recover and receive the same; and on Payment thereof to deliver up and cancel the said Bond, and give sufficient Releases and Discharges therefore, and one or more Attorney or Attornies under him to constitute; and whatsoever the said E. F. or his Attorney or Attornies, shall lawfully do in the Premises, the said C. D. doth hereby allow and confirm. And the said C. D. doth covenant with the said E. F. that he the said C. D. hath not received, nor will receive the said Money due on the said Bond, or any Part thereof; neither shall or will release or discharge the same, or any Part thereof; but will own and allow of all lawful Proceedings for Recovery thereof, he the said E. F. saving the said C. D. harmless, of and from any Costs that may happen to him thereby. In Witness, &c.

Assimulare, To put together. 'Tis mentioned in Leg. H. 1. cap. 8. — De Via Regia, viz. Tanta vero debet esse, ut inibi duo carri sibi possint obviari & bubulci de longo stumbli sui possint Assimulare, &c.

Assisa Cadere. This Word signifies to be non-suited; as when there is such a plain and legal Insufficiency, that the Complainant can proceed no further on it. Fleta, lib. 4. cap. 15. Bracton, lib. 2. cap. 7.

Assisa cadit in Juratam, Is where the Thing in Controversy is so doubtful, that it must necessarily be tried by a Jury. Fleta, lib. 4. c. 15.

Assisa continuanda. A Writ directed to the Justices of Assise for the Continuation of a Cause, where certain Records alledged cannot be produced in Time by the Party that has Occasion to use them. Reg. Orig. 217.

Assisa propoganda, Is a Writ directed to the Justices assigned to take Assises, for the Stay of Proceedings, by Reason of the Party's being employed in the King's Business. Reg. Orig. 208.

Assise, (Fr. Assis) According to our ancient Books is defined to be an Assembly of Knights, and other substantial Men, with the Justice, in a certain Place, and at a certain Time appointed. Custom. Normand. cap. 24. This Word is properly derived from the Latin Verb Assideo, to sit together; and is also taken for the Court, Place, or Time, when and where the Writs and Process of Assise are handled or taken. And in this Signification, Assise is General; as when the Justices go their several Circuits with Commissions to take all Assises: Or Special, where a special Commission is granted to certain Persons, (formerly oftentimes done) for taking an Assise upon one or two Disseisins only. Bract. lib. 3. Concerning the General Assise, all the Counties of England are divided into six Circuits, and two Judges are assign'd by the King's Commission to every Circuit, who hold their Assises twice a Year in every County, (except Middlesex, where the King's Courts of Records do sit, and where his Courts for his Counties-Palatine are held) and have five several Commissions. 1. Of Oyer and Terminer, directed to them and many other Gentlemen of the County, by which they are empowered to try Treasons, Felonies, &c. and this is the largest Commission they have. 2. Of Gaol-delivery, directed to the Judges and the Clerk of Assise associate, which gives them Power to try every Prisoner in the Gaol committed for any Offence whatsoever, ever, but none but Prisoners in the Gaol ; so that one Way or other they rid the Gaol of all the Prisoners in it. 3. Of Affise, directed to themselves only and the Clerk of Affise, to take Affises, and do Right upon Writs of Affise brought before them by such as are wrongfully thrust out of their Lands and Possessions: Which Writs were heretofore frequent, but now Men's Possessions are sooner recovered by Ejectments, &c. 4. Of Nisi prius, directed to the Judges and Clerk of Affise, by which Civil Causes grown to Issue in the Courts above, are try'd in the Vacation by a Jury of twelve Men of the County where the Cause of Action arises ; and on Return of the Verdict of the Jury to the Court above, the Judges there give Judgment. The Chief Justices, &c. or in their Absence two other Justices, may try Causes upon Writs of Nisi prius in the King's Bench, and Common Pleas, &c. for the County of Middlesex, in the Term-Time, or four Days after. Stat. 18 Eliz. cap. 12. 5. A Commission of the Peace, in every County of the Circuits ; and all Justices of the Peace of the County are bound to be present at the Affises ; and Sheriffs are also to give their Attendance on the Judges, or they shall be fined. Bacon's Elem. 15, 16, &c. There is a Commission of the Peace Oyer and Terminer and Gaol-delivery of Newgate, held several Times in a Year, for the City of London and County of Middlesex, at Justice-Hall in the Old-Baily, where the Lord Mayor is the Chief Judge. In Wales there are but two Circuits, North and South Wales ; for each of which the King appoints two Persons learned in the Laws to be Judges. Stat. 18 Eliz. cap. 8. If Justices sit by Force of a Commission, and do not adjourn the Commission, it is determined. 4 Inst. 265. The Constitution of the Justices of Affise, was begun by Hen. 2. tho' somewhat different from what they now are. And by Magna Charta Justices shall be sent through every County once a Year, who with the Knights of the respective Shires, shall take Affises of Novel Disseisin, &c. in their proper Shires, and what cannot be determined there, shall be ended by them in some other Place in their Circuit ; and if it be too difficult for them, it shall be referred to the Justices of the Bench, there to be ended. 9 Hen. 3. cap. 12. Justices of Affise, &c. are to hold their Sessions in the chief Towns of the County ; and their Records are to be sent into the Exchequer. 6 R. 2. 9 Ed. 3. The Word Affise is also used for a Fury, where Affises of Novel Disseisin are tried : The Panels of Affises shall be arrayed, and a Copy indented delivered by the Sheriff, &c. to the Plaintiffs and Defendants six Days before the Sessions, &c. if demanded, on Pain of 40 l. by Stat. 6 H. 6. cap. 2. And Affise is taken for a Writ, for Recovery of Possession of Things immoveable, whereof any one and his Ancestors have been disseised. Likewise in another Sense, it signifies an Ordinance or Statute. Reg. Orig. 279. The Writs of Affise are the four sorts following :

Affise of Novel Disseisin, (Affisa Nova Disseisina) Lies where Tenant in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Term of Life, is put out and disseised of his Lands, or Tenements, Rents, Common of Pasture, Common Way, of an Office, Toll, &c. Glanv. lib. 10. Reg. Orig. 197. An Affise is to be arraigned in French, and first the Plaintiff's Counsel prays the Court that the Defendant may be called ; whereupon he is called, and if the Defendant appears, then his Counsel demand Oyer of the Writ of Affise, and the Return of it ; which is granted ; and then he prays Leave to imparl to a short Time after, and the Jury is adjourned to that Day : At the Day given by the Court, the Defendant is again called, and upon his Appearance, he pleads to the Affise in Latin ; and upon this an Issue is joined between the Parties, and the Jurors are sworn to try the Issue, the Counsel proceeding to give them their Evidence : After the Trial, the Court gives Judgment, and the Plaintiff recovering is to have Writ of Seisin, &c. 1 Lill. Abr. 105, 106. The Trial on Affise is Festinum Remedium, and there is no such quick Dispatch in other civil Actions ; and in this Action, the Land, Damages and Costs are recovered. The Jurors that are to try the Affise, are called Recognitors of the Affise ; and they are to view the Thing in Demand : By Writ of Affise, the Sheriff is commanded, Quod faciat duodecim liberos & legales homines de vicineto, &c. Videre tenementum illud, & nomina eorum imbrevari, & quod summoveat eos per bonas summonitiones, quod sint coram Jusciariis, &c. parati inde facere recognitionem, &c. In an Affise, the Plaintiff must prove his Title, then his Seisin and Disseisin : But Seisin of Part of a Rent, is sufficient to have Affise of the Whole ; and if a Man which hath Title to enter, set his Foot upon the Land and is ousted, that is a sufficient Seisin. Comp. Attorn. 267. Seisin of an Office may be alleged by taking Money for the Business done, and the Place where the Officer sat be put in View. Dyer 114. An Affise must be of an actual Freehold ; not a Freehold in Law. If the Tenant pleads an ill Bar, the Plaintiff is not bound to answer it, but may make a Title at large, and pray the Affise, &c. 1 Danv. Abr. 583. In Affise, the Defendant shall not essoin, nor cast a Protection, or pray in Aid of any but the King, vouch any Stranger, or Party to the Writ, unless he enter presently into the Warranty. 8 Rep. 50. The Plaint need not be so certain in Affise as in other Writs ; the Judgment being to recover per Visum Recognitorum ; and if the Plaintiff be but so certain as the Recognitors may put the Demandant in Possession, it is sufficient. Dyer 84. The Demandant in an Affise may abridge his Plaint at any Time after the Jury are charged, before Verdict. 1 Danv. 580. For Proceedings in Writ of Affise of Novel Disseisin ; see 2 Plowd. 411, 412. If Lessee for Years, or Tenant at Will, be ousted, the Lessor, or he in Remainder, may have Affise, because the Freehold was in him at the Time of the Disseisin. Kel. 109. Affise lies for Tithes, by Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 7. Cro. Eliz. 559. And also for Estovers, to be taken in the Woods of another. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 16. But it lies not for an Annuity, Pension, &c. In some Cases an Affise will lie, where Ejectment will not ; for Instance de uro Crofto, because it may be put in View to the Jury. 2 Bulst. 214. Ejectment will not lie de Piscaria, by Reason the Sheriff cannot deliver Possession of it ; but an Affise will lie for it, as it may be viewed by the Recognitors. Cro. Car. 354. Affise will lie sometimes where Trespass Vi & armis doth not ; as where a Lord enters and distrains his Tenant so often, when nothing is due, that the Tenant is disturbed in manuring his Lands ; in such Case, he may have Affise de sovent fois Distress, but he cannot have Trespass Vi & armis against his Lord. 3 Rep. 47. 1 Nelf. Abr. 276. Where an Affise concerns the King and his Prerogative, the Judges may be prohibited to proceed therein, by Writ De non ulterius Prosequendo Rege inconsulto. Ibid. 277. The Court of Common Pleas or King's Bench may hold Plea of Affises of Land in the County of Middlesex, by Writ out of Chancery. 1 Lill. Abr. 105. And in Cities and Corporations an Affise of fresh Force lies for Recovery of Possession of Lands, within forty Days after the Disseisin, as the ordinary Affise in the County. F. N. B. 7.

Affise of Mort d'Ancestor, (Affisa Mortis Antecessoris) Is a Writ that lieth where a Man's Father, Mother, Brother, Sister, Uncle, Aunt, &c. died seised of Lands, Tenements, Rents, &c. that were held in Fee, and after their Deaths a Stranger abateth. Reg. Orig. 223. It is good as well against the Abator, as any other in Possession of the Land, &c. But it lies not against Brothers or Sisters, &c. where there is Privy of Blood between the Person prosecuting and them. Co. Lit. 242. And it must be brought within the Time limited by the Statute of Limitations, or the Right may be lost by Negligence. If the Ancestor were seised, the Day that he died, of any Lands, or other Estate in Fee-simple, although that a Stranger entereth and disseiseth him of that Land the Day that he dieth, so that he dieth not seised of the said Land; yet the Person who is his Heir shall have the Affise of Mort d'ancestor, because the Writ doth not suppose that the Ancestor died seised; but saith, Parati Sacramento recogn. Si. W. B. Pater, &c. fuit seistus die quo obiit, &c. And the same is sufficient, although he dieth not seised. New. Nat. Br. 433. If a Man go beyond Sea in Pilgrimage, and dieth there; or if he enter into Religion, &c. his Heir shall have a Writ of Affise of Mort d'ancestor, and it sufficeth that the Ancestor was seised the Day he went out of the Land, although it was not the Day of his Death. Ibid. 434, 435. By the Statute of Gloucester, if Tenant by the Curtesy alien his Wife's Inheritance, and dieth, the Heir of the Wife shall have an Affise of Mort d'ancestor, if he have not Affets by Descent from the Tenant by the Curtesy; and the same shall be as well where the Wife was not seised of the Land the Day of her Death, as where she was seised thereof. 6 Ed. 1. A Warden of a College, &c. shall have Affise of Mort d'ancestor, &c. of Rent where his Predecessor was seised. And a Man may have Affise of Mort d'ancestor of several Rents, against several Persons in several Counties; having in the End of the Writ several Summons against the Tenants.

Affise of Darrein Presentment, (Affisa ultima Presentationis) A Writ lying where a Man and his Ancestors have presented a Clerk to a Church, and after, the Church being void, a Stranger presents his Clerk to the same Church, whereby the Person having Right is disturb'd. Reg. Orig. 30. And a Man shall have Affise of Darrein Presentment, although he nor his Ancestors do present to the last Avoidance: As if Tenant for Life or Years, or in Dower, or by the Curtesy, suffer an Usurpation into a Church, &c. and die, he in Reversion who is Heir unto the Ancestor who last presented, shall have Affise of Darrein Presentment, if he be disturbed: But if a Man present, and then grant the Advowson unto another for Life, and he suffer one Usurpation, or two, or three Usurpations; now at the next Avoidance, he in the Reversion shall not have an Affise of Darrein Presentment, if he be disturbed to present. 10 Ed. 3. In this Case he is put to his Writ of Right. If a Disturber present to an Advowson, and the Patron bring an Affise of Darrein Presentment, and pendent the Writ, the Incumbent dieth, if the Disturber presenteth again and dies, yet the Patron shall have an Affise of Darrein Presentment upon the first Disturbance against the Heir of the Disturber, by Journeys Accounts. New. Nat. Br. 71. Affise of Darrein Presentment doth not lie for one Coparcener against the other. Mich. 15 Ed. 3. The Church is never litigious between Parceners; for if they cannot agree, the Ordinary ought to admit the Presentee of the Eldest: Contra of Jointenants.

Affise de utrum, (Affisa Utrum) lieth for a Parson against a Layman, or for a Layman against a Parson, for Lands or Tenements doubtful, whether they be Lay-fee or free Alms. Bract. lib. 4.

These are the four Kinds of Writs of Affise, used in Actions possessory; and are called Petit Affises, in respect of the Grand Affise: For the Law of Fees is grounded upon two Rights, one of Possession, the other of Property; and as the Grand Affise serves for the Right of Property, so the Petit Affise serveth for the Right of Possession. Horn's Mirr. At the Common Law there are but two Forms of Writs of Affise, viz. Affise de Libero Tenemento, and Affise de Communia Pastura. 8 Rep. 45. And the Reason why they are termed Affises, is for that they not only settle the Possession, but are executed at a certain Time and Place; and they were in antient Times most commonly tried by special Courts appointed for that Purpose. The Affises of Novel Disseisin, &c. and De Communia Pastura, were instituted by H. 2. in the Place of Duels: And therefore Glanville tells us, That Magna Affisa est Regale beneficium, clementia principis de Consilio procerum populis indultum, a quo vita hominum & Status integritati tam salubriter consultitur, ut in jure, quod quis in Libero Soli tenemento possidet, retinendo, Duelli casum homines declinare possunt ambiguum, &c. Glanv. lib. 2. cap. 7.

Affise of the Forest, (Affisa de Foresta) Is a Statute touching Orders to be observed in the King's Forest. Manwood 35. The Charta de Foresta, ordaining Courts of Swainmore to be held for Forests, &c. is the 9 Hen. 3. cap. 1. The Statute of View of Frank-Pledge Anno 18. 1. is also called the Affise of the King: And the Statute of Bread and Ale 51 Hen. 3. is termed the Affise of Bread and Ale. And these are so called, because they set down and appoint a certain Measure, or Order, in the Things they contain. There is further an Affise of Nuisance, Affisa Nocuenti, where a Man maketh a Nuisance to the Freehold of another, to redress the same. And besides Littleton's Division of Affises, there are others mentioned by other Writers, viz. Affise at Large, brought by an Infant to enquire of a Disseisin, and whether his Ancestor were of full Age, good Memory, &c. when he made the Deed pleaded, whereby he claims his Right. Affise in Point of Affise, (Affisa in modum Affise) which is when the Tenant as it were setting Foot to Foot with the Demandant, without any Thing further pleads directly to the Writ, no Wrong, no Disseisin. Affise out of the Point of Affise, is when the Tenant pleadeth something by Exception; as a Foreign Release, or Foreign Matter triable in a Foreign County; which must be tried by a Jury, before the principal Cause can proceed. Affise of Right of Damages is where the Tenant confesseth an Ouster, and referring it to a Demurrer in Law, whether it were rightly done or not, is adjudged to have done Wrong; whereupon the Demandant shall have a Writ of Affise to recover Damages. Bract. lib. 4. F. N. B. 105. Affises are likewise awarded by Default of Tenants, &c.

Affisors, (Affisores) Sunt qui Affisas condunt, aut Taxationes imponunt. — In Scotland (according to Skene) they are the same with our Jurors; and their Oath is this:

We shall leil suith say,
And na suith conceal, for nathing we may,
So far as we are charg'd upon this Affise,
Be God himself, and be our Part of Paradise,
And as we will answer to God, upon the dreadful Day of Dome.

Affize, Rented or farmed out for such an Affise, or certain assessed Rent in Money or Provisions. Terra Affisa was commonly opposed to Terra Dominica; this last being held in Demain, and occupied by the Lord, the other let out to inferior Tenants. So among the Lands of the Knights Templars, belonging to their Preceptory of Sandford, Com. Oxon. Apud Covele de dono Matildis Reginae habentur quatuor hidae, quarum dua sunt in Dominico, & dua Affisae ad hominibus apud, &c. — Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 141. From hence we have Redditus Affisus, the set or standing Rent. And hence comes the Word to assess or allot the Proportion and Rates in Taxes and Payments by Assessors.

Affthment, A Wiregeld, or Compensation, by a pecuniary Mulct: From the Preposition Ad, and the Sax. Sithe, Vice: Quod vice supplicii ad expiandum delictum solvitur.

Association, (Associatio) Is a Patent sent by the King, either at his own Motion, or at the Suit of a Party Plaintiff, to the Justices appointed to take Affises, or of Oyer and Terminer, &c. to have others associated unto them. And this is usual where a Justice of Affise dies; and a Writ is issued to the Justices alive to admit the Person associated: Also where a Justice is disabled, this is practised. F. N. B. 185. Reg. Orig. 201, 206, 223. The Clerk of the Affise is usually associate of Course; in other Cases, some learned Serjeants at Law are appointed. But it has been holden that an Association after another Association allowed and admitted, doth not lie; nor are the Justices then to admit other Association in that Writ afterwards, so long as that Writ and Commission stand in Force. Br. Affise 386. Mich. 32 H. 6. The King may make an Association unto the Sheriff upon a Writ of Redisseisin, as well as upon Affise of Novel Disseisin. And the King may make Association not only in Affises, but in Juries and Attaints. New Nat. Br. 416, 417. There is also an Association of Parliament; as the Parliament of King William entered into a solemn Association to defend his Majesty's Person and Government against Plots and Conspiracies.

Affoil, (Absolvere) To deliver from Excommunication. Staundf. Pl. Cr. 72. — The Defendant should remain in Prison 'till the Plaintiff was affoiled; that is, delivered from his Excommunication. And in Stat. 1 Hen. 4. c. 10. Mention being made of K. Edw. 3. it is added whom God affoil.

Assumpsit, (from the Lat. Assumo) Is taken for a voluntary Promise, by which a Man assumes or takes upon him to perform or pay any Thing to another: It comprehends any verbal Promise, made upon Consideration; and the Civilians express it diversly, according to the Nature of the Promise, calling it sometimes Pactum, sometimes Promissionem, or Constitutum, &c. Terms de Ley 60. When one becomes legally indebted to another for Goods sold, the Law implies a Promise that he will pay this Debt; and if it be not paid, Indebitatus Assumpsit lies. 1 Danv. Abr. 26. And Indebitatus Assumpsit lies for Goods sold and delivered to a Stranger ad requisitionem of the Defendant. Ibid. 27. But on Indebitatus Assumpsit for Goods sold, you must prove a Price agreed on, otherwise the Action will not lie; Though this is helped by laying a Quantum Meruit with the Indebitatus Assumpsit, wherein if you fail in Proof of the Price agreed, you may recover cover the Value. Wood. Inst. 536. And in Actions on Promise, it is usual to lay the Action divers Ways; and for Goods sold and delivered, there are generally three Narr's, viz. Indebitatus Assumpsit, quantum valebant, and Infirmul Computassent, so as to be sure to hit on one of the Promises. Pract. Attorn. 72. Where Action is brought upon a Contract, if the Plaintiff mistakes the Sum agreed upon, he fails in his Action; but if he brings it upon the Promise in Law, arising from the Debt, there though he mistakes the Sum he shall recover. Aleyn. 29. Every Contract made between Parties, implies a mutual Promise for Performance: And yet an Action may be brought on a reciprocal Promise, by one against the other, although he who brings it hath not performed on his Side. Dyer 30, 75. Where an Assumpsit or Promise is the Ground of the Action, it must be precisely set forth; but in Actions upon mutual Promise, it is sufficient to say generally that the Defendant hath not performed his Part, without assigning of a Breach. 3 Lev. 319. He for whose Benefit a Promise is made, it is said, may have an Action for the Breach of this Promise, although the Promise was not made to him. 2 Lev. 210. If a Promise is made without Limitation of Time for its Performance, reasonable Time shall be allowed, if there be an immediate Consideration for it; and not Time during Life. 1 Lill. Abr. 112. On Promise to deliver a Thing such a Day, the Party is bound to do it without Request. 1 Lev. 284. But if a Promise be to do any Thing upon Request, the Request is necessary to entitle the Action, on which it shall arise. 1 Lev. 48. In every Action upon Assumpsit, there ought to be a Consideration, Promise, and Breach of Promise. 1 Leon. c. 405. Where a Promise begins upon a Consideration, it cannot be discharged by Words, without some other Consideration. Cro. Jac. 620. Consideration that if a Person will forbear to sue another upon a Bond, &c. may be a good Consideration to pay the Debt, on Promise to do it. Ibid. 683. Two Persons go to an Innkeeper, one hires an Horse, and the other promises that if the Innkeeper will deliver the Horse, he will see it forthcoming; this Promise for another, is not good without Note in Writing: But the Person is chargeable upon the special Bailment, and so good without a Note. 1 Lill. 118. There may be Action on a Non Assumpsit, when the Law obliged a Person to agree or act; as against a Victualler, for refusing to entertain his Guests. 1 Vent. 72, 333. Assumpsit lies not for Rent usually reserved on Leases; but if a Man promise to pay, without a Lease, so much a Week as long as A. B. &c. permits him to enjoy a Warehouse, &c. which is a special Cause of Promise, Action may lie. 2 Cro. 592. And if one receive my Rent on Pretence of Title, Assumpsit lies; as it does also for the Receipt of Profits of an Office, &c. 2 Mod. 260. If a Man receives Money for the Use of another Person, Assumpsit may be had against him as Bailiff or Receiver, which supplies the Place of Action of Account. And where Money was deposited on a Wage, an Indebitatus lay for Money received to a Man's Use. Shoeb. 117. And special Indebitatus Assumpsit, as where one having promised to pay if he won, the other promised to pay if he won, lay for Money won at Gaming, before the Statute 9 Ann. which prohibits Gaming, &c. 1 Danv. 28. If where a Promise is made, one Part of it is against Law, and another Part of it lawful, that is Ground sufficient for Assumpsit. 4 Rep. 94. Vide Action upon the Case.

Assumption, The Day of the Death of a Saint, so called, Quia ejus anima in cælum assumitur. Du Cange.

*Tandem clara dies, Reginae adsumptio cælis,
Regi parentis adest.* —

Astrarius Hæres, (from Astre, the Hearth of a Chimney) Is where the Ancestor by Conveyance hath set his Heir apparent and his Family in a House in his Life-time. — Dicitur ille cui Antecessor in vita sua per Chartam Hereditatem restituit. 1 Inst. 8.

Astrum, A House or Place of Habitation, also from Astre. — Preceptum fuit vicecom. quod replegiat corpus Williel. J. quod Ricard' de S. Valennio cepit & captum tenuit, Qui Richardus venit & advocat captionem ut de Villano suo, & quod cepit ipsum in Astro suo in quo Natus fuit, &c. Placit. Hillar. 18 Ed. 1.

Ategar, A Weapon among the Saxons, which seems to have been a Hand-dart, from the Sax. Aeton to fling or throw, and Gar a Weapon. Spelman.

Atthe, (Adaa) A Privilege of administering an Oath, in some Cases of Right and Property; from the Sax. Ath, Othe, Furamentum. It is mentioned among the Privileges granted by Hen. 2. to the Monks of Glastenbury. Carrular. Abbat. Glaston. M. S. fol. 14, 37.

Atia. See Odio & Atia, a Writ of Enquiry whether a Person be committed to Prison on just Cause of Suspicion.

Atilia, Utensils, or Country Implements: Remaneant duo equi caretarii cum carecta & triginta sex boves cum quatuor carucis & atiliis. Blount.

Atrium, Is taken for a Court before the House, and sometimes a Church-yard.

Attach, (Attachiare, from the Fr. Attacher) Signifies to take or apprehend by Commandment of a Writ or Precept. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 1. cap. 16. It differs from Arrest, in that he which arresteth a Man carrieth him to a Person of higher Power to be forthwith disposed of; but he that attacheth keepeth the Party attached, and presents him in Court at the Day assigned; as appears by these Words of the Writ, Præcipimus tibi quod Attachias talem & habeas eum coram nobis, &c. Another Difference there is, that Arrest is only upon the Body of a Man; whereas an Attachment is oftentimes upon his Goods. Kitch. 279. A Capias taketh hold of immoveable Things, as Lands or Tenements, and properly belongs to Real Actions: But Attachment hath Place rather in Personal Actions. Bract. lib. 4. Attachiamantum est Districcio Personalis, & Cape Magnum Districcio Realis. Fleta, lib. 5. cap. 24. And the Difference between a common Attachment and Distress, is that the Attachment reacheth not the Lands as Distress doth; and the Distress toucheth not the Body, as an Attachment doth. Glanv. lib. 10. For Attachment in the most common Use of the Word, is an Apprehension of a Man by his Body, to bring him to answer the Action of the Plaintiff. Attachment out of Chancery may be had of Course upon Affidavit made that the Defendant was served with a Subpœna, and appeared not; or upon Non-performance of any Order or Decree; also after the Return of this Attachment, that the Defendant Non est Inventus, &c. Attachment with Proclamation issues against him, &c. West. Symh. And for Contempts, when a Party appears, he must upon his Oath answer Interrogatories exhibited against him; and if he be found Guilty shall be fined. Generally an Attachment doth lie for any Contempt done against the Court at Westminster: But the Court of B. R. will not grant Attachment against one for disobeying an Order made by Justices of Assize, or a Judge at his Chamber, except it be entered and made a Rule of Court; for it is no Contempt to the Court, but to the Judge that made the Order. 1 Lill. Abr. 121. Attachment lies against Attornies for Injustice, and base Dealings by their Clients, in delaying Suits, &c. as well as for Contempts to the Court. 2 Hawk. 144. Against Sheriffs making false Returns of Writs; and against Bailiffs for Frauds in Arrests, and exceeding their Power, &c. Attachment may be had. For Contempts against the King's Writ; taking them out without Right; using them in a vexatious Manner; altering the Teste, or filling them up after sealed, &c. Attachment lies. And for Contempts of an enormous Kind, in not obeying Writs, &c. Attachments may be issued against Peers. 2 Hawk. 152, 153. But in some Cases, the Court doth not usually grant Attachments against Persons for Misdemeanors, but will send a Tipstaff for them, if they live near the Town. 21 Car. B. R. For persuading Jurors not to appear on a Trial, Attachment lies against the Party; for obstructing the Proceedings of the Court. 1 Lil. 121. The Court of B. R. may award Attachments against any Inferior Courts usurping a Jurisdiction; or acting contrary to Justice. Salk. 207. Tho' 'tis usual first to send out a Prohibition. Attachment lies for Proceeding in an inferior Court, after a Habeas Corpus issued, and a Superedeas to stay Proceedings. 21 Car. B. R. And Attachment may be granted against Justices of Peace, for proceeding on an Indictment after a Certiorari delivered to them to remove the Indictment. 1 Lill. 121. But it doth not lie against a Corporation. Attachment lies against a Lord that refuses to hold his Court, after a Writ issued to him for that Purpose, so that his Tenant cannot have Right done him. New Nat. Br. 6, 27. Attachment of Privilege is where a Man by Virtue of his Privilege calls another to that Court whereto he himself belongs, and in Respect thereof is privileged, there to answer some Action: Or it is a Power to apprehend a Man in a Place privileged. Book Entr. 431. Corporation Courts have sometimes Power by Charter to issue Attachments; and some Courts-Baron grant Attachments of Debt. Kitch. 79. Foreign Attachment is an Attachment of the Goods of Foreigners, found in some Liberty, to satisfy their Creditors within such Liberty. Calth. Rep. 66. And by the Custom of some Places, as London, &c. a Man may attach Money or Goods in the Hands of a Stranger. But a Foreign Attachment cannot be had when a Suit is depending in any of the Courts at Westminster; which makes the Matter not to be meddled with by any other Court. Cro. Eliz. 691. And nothing is attachable but for a certain and due Debt: Though by the Custom of London Money may be attached before due, as a Debt; but not levied before due. Sid. 327. 1 Nelf. Abr. 282, 283. Besides these Attachments, there is Attachment of the Forest issuing out of the Courts of the Forest, against Offenders against the Vert and Venison; and this Attachment is either by the Body, Goods, Pledges and Mainprise, &c. Manwood 90, 93.

Foreign Attachments in London, upon Complaints of Debt, are made after this Manner: A. oweth B. 100 l. and C. is indebted to A. 100 l. B. enters an Action against A. of 200 l. and by Virtue of that Action a Serjeant attacheth 100 l. in the Hands of C. as the Money of A. to the Use of B. which is returned upon that Action. The Attachment being made and returned by the Serjeant, the Plaintiff is immediately to see an Attorney before the next Court holden for the Compter; or the Defendant may then put in Bail to the Attachment, and nonsuit the Plaintiff: Four Court-Days must pass before the Plaintiff can cause C. the Garnishee, in whose Hands the Money was attached, to shew Cause why B. should not condemn the 100 l. attached in the Hands of C. as the Money of A. the Defendant in the Action (though not in the Attachment) to the Use of B. the Plaintiff: And the Garnishee C. may appear in Court by his Attorney, wage his Law, and plead that he hath no Money in his Hands of the Defendant's, or other special Matter; but the Plaintiff may hinder his Waging of Law, by producing two sufficient Citizens to swear that the Garnishee hath either Money or Goods in his Hands of A. at the Time of the Attachment, of which Affidavit is to be made before the Lord Mayor; and being filed may be pleaded by Way of Estoppel: Then the Plaintiff must put in Bail, that if the Defendant come within a Year and a Day into Court, and he can discharge himself of the Money condemned in Court, and that he owed nothing to the Plaintiff at the Time in the Plaintiff mentioned, the said Money shall be forth-coming, &c. If the Garnishee fail to appear by his Attorney, being warned by the Officer to come into Court to shew Cause as aforesaid, he is taken by Default for Want of Appearing, and Judgment given against him for the Goods and Money attached in his Hands, and he is without Remedy either at Common Law or in Equity; for if taken in Execution, he must pay the Money condemned, though he hath not one Penny, or go to Prison; But the Garnishee appearing to shew Cause why the Money or Goods attached in his Hands ought not to be condemned to the Use of the Plaintiff; having fee'd an Attorney, may plead as aforesaid, that he hath no Money or Goods in his Hands of the Parties against whom the Attachment is made, and it will then be try'd by a Jury, and Judgment awarded, &c. But after Trial, Bail may be put in, whereby the Attachment shall be dissolved, but the Garnishee, &c. and his Security will then be liable to what Debt the Plaintiff shall make out to be due, upon the Action: And an Attachment is never thoroughly perfected, till there is Bail and Satisfaction upon Record.

Attachiamenta Bonozum, A Distress taken upon Goods or Chattels, where a Man is sued for Personal Estate or Debt, by the legal Attachiators or Bailiffs, as Security to answer an Action. There is likewise Attachiamenta de Spinis & Bosco, a Privilege granted to the Officers of a Forest, to take to their own Use, Thorns, Brush, and Wind-fall, within their Precincts. — John Fitz Nygel Forester of Bernwood, A. D. 1230. Debet habere Feodum in Bosco Domini Regis; videlicet Attachamentum de Spinis de Bosco suo, & de Bosco qui vento profuitur. Kenner's Paroch. Antiq. pag. 209.

Attaint,

Attaint, (Attinta) Is Writ that lieth after Judgment against a Jury that have given false Verdict in any Court of Record, in an Action Real or Personal, where the Debt or Damages amount to above 40*s.* it is called Attaint, because the Party that obtains it, endeavours thereby to stain or taint the Credit of the Jury with Perjury, by whose Verdict he is grieved: And if the Verdict be found false, then the Punishment by the Common Law was, that the Jurors Meadows should be ploughed up, their Houses broke down, Woods grubbed up, and all their Lands and Tenements be forfeited to the Crown: But if it passed against him that brought the Attaint, then he was to be imprisoned and ransomed at the King's Will. Glanv. lib. 2. By the Statute 23 H. 8. c. 3. the Severity of the Common Law is mitigated, where a Petty Jury is attainted; And now there is a Pecuniary Penalty appointed; and also Fine and Ransom at the Discretion of the Court. Co. Lit. 294. The Grand Jury is to try the Verdict of the Petty Jury on the Attaint. In the Courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas, and the Court of Hustings of London, Attaint may be brought; and the Plaintiff setting aside the Verdict, shall have Restitution, &c. But if the first Verdict be affirmed, the Plaintiff shall be imprisoned and fined. 11 H. 7. c. 21. The Plaintiff in Attaint, may not produce more Witnesses, nor give farther Matter in Evidence, than what was deposed in the first Action; but the Defendant in Attaint, may give new Matter in Evidence to enforce the first Verdict, and the Plaintiff shall have Time to disprove it. Dyer 59. 1 Nelf. Abr. 288. Attaint lies where a Jury gives Verdict contrary to Evidence; and where a Judge declares the Law erroneously, Judgment may be reversed; but in this Case the Jury shall be excused. Vaugh. 145. Attaint lies not for that which is not given in Evidence. Bra. Attaint. 82. It lies not upon an Inquest of Office, &c. Co. Lit. 355. And no Attaint lies where the King is sole Party, and the Jury find for him. 4 Leon. 46. A Nonsuit in Attaint is peremptory: And no Supersedeas is grantable upon Attaint. Co. Lit. 227. Also if the Party for whom the Jury found the false Verdict die before the Writ of Attaint brought, the Action is gone. And instead of Attaint, where the Verdict is supposed to be given against Evidence, it is now usual to have new Trials granted. But an Issue found by Verdict shall be always intended true until reversed by Attaint, according to our old Books. Co. Lit. 227.

Attainted, (Attintus) Is used particularly for such as are found guilty of some Crime, and especially of Treason or Felony. A Man is attainted by Appearance; or by Process: Attainder on Appearance is by Confession, or Verdict, &c. Confession, when the Prisoner upon his Indictment being asked whether Guilty or Not guilty, answers Guilty, without putting himself upon his Country; (and formerly Confession was allowed before the Coroner in Sanctuary, whereupon the Offender was to abjure the Realm, and this was called Attainder by Abjuration) Attainder by Verdict is when the Prisoner at the Bar pleadeth Not guilty, and is found guilty by the Verdict of the Jury of Life and Death. And Attainder by Process, (otherwise termed Attainder by Default or Outlawry) is when the Party flieth, and is not found, until he have been five Times publicly called or proclaimed in the County, on the last whereof he is outlawed upon this Default. Staundf. Pl. Co. 44, 122, 182. Also Persons may be attainted by Act of Parliament. Attainder of a Criminal is larger than Conviction; a Man is convicted when he is found guilty by Verdict, or confesses the Crime, before Judgment had; but not attainted till Judgment is also passed upon him. 1 Inst. 390. A Person attainted of High Treason, forfeits all his Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments; and his Children cannot be Heirs to him, or any other Ancestor, and if he were noble before, his Posterity are rendered base and ignoble, and this Corruption of Blood cannot be taken off but by Act of Parliament. Co. Lit. 391. But if one commits Treason, and dies before Attainder, he forfeits nothing. And one slain in open Rebellion, shall forfeit nothing, if he be not attainted by Parliament. 3 Inst. 12. And collateral Blood may inherit on an Attainder, though the lineal Blood is barred. In Treason for counterfeiting the Coin, though by Statute Corruption of Blood is saved, yet the Lands of the Offender are forfeited immediately to the King, it being a distinct Penalty from Corruption of Blood. 1 Salk. 85. And as on Attainder there is a Forfeiture of Estate, its not descending is one Consequence of Corruption of Blood. Salk. ibid. Attainders may be reversed or falsified, (i. e. proved to be false) by Writ of Error, or by Plea; if by Writ of Error, it must be by the King's Leave, &c. And when by Plea, it may be a Denying the Treason, Pleading a Pardon by Act of Parliament, &c. 3 Inst. 232. By a King's Taking the Crown upon him, all Attainders of his Person are ipso facto purged, without any Reversal. 1 Inst. 43. Wood 17.

Attainder, (Attinta and Attintura) Is when a Man hath committed Treason or Felony, and after Conviction Sentence is passed on him: Or where a Person is attainted of Treason, and condemned by Parliament. Acts of Attainder of Criminals have been passed in several Reigns, on the Discovery of Plots and Rebellions, from the Reign of King Charles II. when an Act was made for the Attainder of several Persons guilty of the Murder of King Charles I. to this Time; among which, that for attainting Sir John Fenwick, for conspiring against King William, is the most remarkable; it being made to attaint and convict him of High Treason on the Oath of one Witness, just after a Law had been enacted, that no Person should be tried or attainted of High Treason where Corruption of Blood is incurred, but by the Oath of two lawful Witnesses, unless the Party confess, stand Mute, &c. Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 3. But in the Case of Sir John Fenwick, there was something extraordinary; for he was indicted of Treason, on the Oaths of two Witnesses; though but one only could be produced against him on his Trial. The 8 W. 3. c. 5. requires Sir Geo. Barclay, Major General Holmes, and other Persons to surrender themselves to the Lord Chief Justice, or Secretaries of State; or to be attainted. By the 13 W. 3. The pretended Prince of Wales is under Attainder of Treason, &c. And by 1 Geo. c. 16. The late Duke of Ormond and others are attainted. And besides these Acts of Attainder; we have lately had Bills for inflicting Pains and Penalties, as those against the late Bishop of Rochester, &c. Stat. 10 Geo. In passing Bills of Attainder, no Evidence is necessary. See Evidence.

Attal Barfin. The Inhabitants and Miners of Cornwall call an old deserted Mine, that is given over, over, by this Name of Attal Savisin, i. e. the Leavings of the Sarafins, or Sassins, or Saxons. Cowel.

Atregia, (from the Lat. Atregendo) A little House. 'Tis mentioned in Eitelwerd, lib. 4. Hist. Angl. c. 3. — Pellunt ingenuos passim, Atregias figunt in oppido.

Attendant, (Attendens) Signifies one that owes a Duty or Service to another, or in some sort depends on him. Where a Wife is endowed of Lands by a Guardian, &c. she shall be attendant on the Guardian, and on the Heir at his full Age. Terms de Ley 63.

Attermining, (from the Fr. attermine) Is used for a Time or Term granted for Payment of a Debt. — Also such as will purchase Attermining their Debrs. shall be sent into the Exchequer. Ordinatio de Libertatibus perquirendis, ann. 27 Ed. 1. And in the Statute Westm. 2. it seems to signify the Purchasing or Gaining a longer Time for Payment of a Debt. — Atterminent querentes usque in proximum Parliamentum. West. 2. c. 4.

Attile, (Attilium, Attilamentum) The Rigging or Furniture of a Ship. This Word is mentioned in Fleta, lib. 1. c. 25. Batellus, (i. e. the Boat) cum omni onere & Attilamento.

Attornare Veni, To attorn or turn over Money and Goods, viz. to assign or appropriate them to some particular Use and Service. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. p. 283.

Attornato faciendo vel recipiendo, A Writ to command a Sheriff or Steward of a County-Court, or Hundred-Court, to receive and admit an Attorney, to appear for the Person that oweth Suit of Court. F. N. B. 156. Every Person that owes Suit to the County-Court, Court-Baron, &c. may make an Attorney to do his Suit. Stat. 20 H. 3. cap. 10.

Attorney, (Attornatus) Is he that is appointed by another Man to do any Thing in his Absence. Westm. Symb. Crompt. Furisd. 105. In ancient Times those of Authority in Courts, had it in their Power whether they would suffer Men to appear or sue by any other but themselves; and the King's Writs were to be obtained for the Admission of Attornies: But since that, Attornies have been allowed by several Statutes. As by 20 H. 3. 27 E. 1. &c. Attornies may be made in such Pleas whereon Appeal lieth not: In Criminal Cases, there will be no Attornies admitted. Stat. 6 E. 1. An Infant ought not to appear by Attorney, but by Guardian; for he cannot make an Attorney, but the Court may assign him a Guardian. 1 Lill. Abr. 138. Infants after they come to full Age, may sue by Attorney, though admitted before by Guardian, &c. In Action against Baron and Feme, the Feme being within Age, she must appear by Guardian: But if they bring an Action, the Husband shall make Attorney for both. 1 Danv. Abr. 602. And it is said, that where Baron and Feme are sued, though the Wife cannot make Attorney, the Husband may do it for both of them. 2 Sand. 213. One non Compos Mentis being within Age is to appear by Guardian; but after he is of Age, he must do it by Attorney. 1 Inst. 135. An Idiot is not to appear by Attorney, but in proper Person. A Corporation cannot appear otherwise than by Attorney, who is made by Deed under the Seal of the Corporation. Plowd. 91.

Attornies at Law, Are those Persons as take upon them the Business of other Men, by whom they are retained. In Respect of the several Courts, there are Attornies at large; and Attornies special, belonging to this or that Court only. An Attorney may be Solicitor in other Courts, by a special Retainer: One may be Attorney on Record, and another do the Business; and there are Attornies who manage Business out of the Courts, &c. Anno 4. Hen. 4. it was enacted that the Justices should examine Attornies, and remove the unskilful; and Attornies shall swear to execute their Offices truly, &c. The Stat. 33 H. 6, 7. was made to restrain the Number of Attornies. And by 3 Fac. 1. cap. 7. Attornies, &c. shall not be allowed any Fees laid out for Counsel, or otherwise, unless they have Tickets thereof signed by them that receive such Fees; and they shall give in true Bills to their Clients of all the Charges of Suits, under their Hands, before the Clients shall be charged with the Payment thereof; if they delay their Clients Suits for Gain; or demand more than their due Fees and Disbursements, the Clients shall recover Costs and treble Damages; and they shall be for ever after disabled to be Attornies: None shall be admitted Attornies in Courts of Record, but such as have been brought up in the said Courts, or are well practised and skilled, and of an honest Disposition; and no Attorney shall suffer any other to follow a Suit in his Name, on Pain of forfeiting 20 l. to be divided between the King and the Party grieved. Attornies, &c. are to take the Oaths to the Government, under Penalties and Disability to Practice. 13 W. 3. c. 6. By a late Order of all the Judges, Attornies are to be admitted of some Inn of Court of Chancery, (except Housekeepers in London and Westminster, &c.) And none shall be sworn an Attorney until he is thus admitted: No Attorney shall put himself out of the Society he is admitted of, till he is admitted of some other Society, and deliver a Certificate thereof. And all Attornies are to be in Commons the Times ordered by the Society to which they belong; and offending therein, shall be put out of the Roll of Attornies. Ordin. Mich. 3 Anne. Attachments have been granted against those who have disobeyed this Order, in not being admitted of some Inn of Court, &c. after Service of the Order. And Attornies, &c. may be committed for doing any Thing against the express Rules of the Court, having Notice of such Rules: As they may also for any ill Practices. By Stat. 12 Geo. c. 29. If any who hath been convicted of Forgery, Perjury, &c. shall practice as an Attorney or Solicitor in any Suit or Action in any Court, the Judge where such Action shall be brought, hath Power to transport the Offender for seven Years, by such Ways, and under such Penalties as Felons. Attornies of Courts, &c. shall not receive or procure any blank Warrant for Arrests from any Sheriff, without Writ first delivered, on Pain of severe Punishment, Expulsion, &c. And no Attorney shall make out a Writ with a Clause ac etiam Bille, &c. where Special Bail is not required by Law. Pasch. 15. Car. 2. Attornies are to enter and file Warrants of Attorney in every Suit on Pain of 10 l. and Imprisonment. Stat. 32 H. 8. And the Plaintiff's Attorney is to file his Warrant, the Term he declares, and the Defendant his the Term he appears. 4 & 5 Ann. Action upon the Case lies for a Client against his Attorney, if he appear for him without a Warrant; or if he plead a Plea for him, for which he hath not his Warrant. 1 Lill. Abr. 140. But if an Attorney appear without Warrant, and Judgment is had against his Client, the Judgment shall stand, if the Attorney be responsible.

ponsible : Contra, if the Attorney be not responsible. 1 Salk. 88. Action lies against an Attorney for suffering Judgment against his Client by Nil dicit, when he had given him a Warrant to plead the General Issue : But this is understood where it is done by Covin. 1 Danv. Abr. 185. If an Attorney makes Default in a Plea of Land, by which the Party loses his Land, he may have a Writ of Deceit against the Attorney, and recover all in Damages. Ibid. But Action lies not against an Attorney retained in a Suit, though he knows the Plaintiff hath no Cause of Action ; he only acting as a Servant in Way of his Profession. 4 Inst. 117. 1 Mod. 209. He who is Attorney at one Time, is Attorney at all Times, pending the Plea. 1 Danv. 609. And the Plaintiff or Defendant may not change his Attorney, while the Suit is depending, without Leave of the Court, which would reflect on the Credit of Attornies ; nor until his Fees are paid. Mich. 14 Car. A Cause is to proceed notwithstanding the Death of an Attorney therein, and not be delayed on that Account : If an Attorney dieth, the Plaintiff or Defendant may be required to make a new Attorney. 2 Keb. 275. An Attorney, Solicitor, &c. having Fees due to him, may detain Writings until his just Fees are paid : But if there be no Fees due to him, the Court on Motion will compel the Delivery of them, without forcing the Party to an Action. 1 Lill. 148. The Court will make a Rule for Delivery of Writings when they come to the Attorney's Hands by Way of his Business ; and when they come to him any other Manner, the Party must bring his Action. 1 Salk. 87. Attornies have the Privilege to sue and be sued only in the Court of Westminster, where they practice : They are not obliged to put in Special Bail, when Defendants ; but when they are Plaintiffs, they may insist upon Special Bail in all Cases. 1 Ventr. 299. Wood's Inst. 450. And they shall not be chosen into Offices, against their Wills. See Privilege.

Attorney of the Dutchy Court of Lancaster, (Attornatus Curie Ducatus Lancastriae) Is the second Officer in that Court ; and seems for his Skill in Law to be there placed as Affessor to the Chancellor of that Court, being for the most Part some Honourable Person, and chosen for some especial Trust reposed in him, to deal between the King and his Tenants. Cowel.

Attorney General, Is a Great Officer under the King, made by Letters Patent. It is his Place to exhibit Informations, and prosecute for the Crown, in Matters Criminal ; and to file Bills in the Exchequer, for any Thing concerning the King in Inheritance or Profits ; and others may bring Bills against the King's Attorney. His proper Place in Court, upon any special Matters of a Criminal Nature, wherein his Attendance is required, is under the Judges, on the Left-hand of the Clerk of the Crown : But this is only upon solemn and extraordinary Occasions ; for usually he does not sit there, but within the Bar in the Face of the Court. Mich. 22 Car. B. R.

Attornment, (Attornamentum, from the Fr. Tourner) Signifies the Tenant's Acknowledgment of a new Lord, on the Sale of Lands, &c. As where there is Tenant for Life, and he in Reversion grants his Right to another ; it is necessary the Tenant for Life agree thereto, which is called Attornment. It gives no Interest, but only perfects the Grant of another : And Tenant in Tail is not compellable to attorn, on the Reversion being granted, he having an Estate of Inheritance. 1 Inst. 316, 319. This Attornment is in Deed, or in Law ; voluntary and compulsory ; and may be made, as set down by Littleton, in these Words, viz. I attorn to you by Force of the Grant, or I agree to the Grant, or I become your Tenant, &c. Or by any Words or Act which import an Assent to the Grant. Litt. 551. 1 Danv. 623. It may be made by Payment of a Penny Rent, &c. to the Grantee ; which is an Acknowledgment of his being his Landlord. 1 Inst. 309. Where an Estate is granted to one for Life, Remainder to another in Fee, Attornment to Tenant for Life is good to him in Remainder. 1 Inst. 312. By Feoffment of a Manor, the Services do not pass without Attornment. 1 Danv. Abr. 612. But if a Person comes to an Estate by Recovery ; or where a Fine is levied of Lands ; or Deeds of Bargain and Sale inrolled, according to the Statute, there needs no Attornment, they being in by the Statute 27 H. 8. c. 10. And if a Reversion be devised by Will to another, the Estate passeth without Attornment. 8 H. 6. This was a large Head in our Common Law ; but now much of this Learning is out of Use : And by a late Statute, it is enacted, That all Grants and Conveyances of Manors, Lands, Rents, Reversions, &c. by Fine, or otherwise, shall be good without the Attornment of the Tenants of such Lands, or of the particular Tenant upon whose Estate any such Reversion, &c. shall be expectant or depending : But Notice must be given of the Grant, to the Tenant ; before which he shall not be prejudiced by Payment of any Rent to the Grantor, or for Breach of the Condition for Non-payment. Stat. 4 & 5 Anna.

Ubage, or Avifage, A Rent or Payment by Tenants of the Manor of Writtel in Essex, upon St. Leonard's Day, 6 November, for the Privilege of Pannage in the Lord's Woods, viz. For every Pig under a Year old, an Half-penny ; for every yearling Pig, one Penny ; and for every Hog above a Year old two-pence.

Avantward, The Van-guard, or Front in an Army — Cum exercitus in hostem pergit, ipsi per Consuetudinem faciunt Avant-warde, & in Reversione Redre-warde. Domesday.

Avantagium, Profit or Advantage — Walterus Cantuar. Archiep. ad feodi-firmam tradidit Johanni de B. terras in, &c. cum omnibus suis utilitatibus ac Avantagiis inde provenientes. Regist. Eccl. Christi Cantuar. M. S. ann. 11 Ed. 2.

Auctionarii, Auxionarii, Sellers, Regrators, or Retailers. Placit. Parl. 18 Ed. 1. But more properly Brokers.

Audience Court, (Curia Audiencie Cantuariensis) Is a Court belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, having the same Authority with the Court of Arches, though inferior to it in Dignity and Antiquity. It is held in the Archbishop's Palace ; and in former Times, the Archbishops were wont to try and determine a great many Ecclesiastical Causes in their own Palaces, but before they pronounced their definitive Sentence, they committed the Matter to be argued by Men learned in the Law, whom they named their Auditors ; and so in Time it grew to one special Man, who at this Day is called Causarum negotiorumque audientiae Cantuariensis Auditor Officialis. And to the Office of Auditor was formerly joined the Chancery of the Archbishop, which meddled not with any Point of contentious Jurisdiction ; that is Deciding ding of Causes between Party and Party, but only such as are of Office, and especially as are voluntaria Jurisdictionis, as the Granting the Custody of Spiritualities, during the Vacancy of Bishopricks, Institutions to Benefices, Dispensations, &c. but this is now distinguished from the Audience. The Auditor of this Court anciently by special Commission was Vicar General to the Archbishop, in which Capacity he executed Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of every Diocese becoming vacant within the Province of Canterbury. 4 Inst. 337.

Audiendo & terminando, A Writ, or rather a Commission directed to certain Persons, when any Insurrection or Great Riot is committed in any Place, for the Appealing and Punishment thereof. F. N. B. 110. See Oyer and Terminer.

Audita Querela, Is a Writ that lies where a Man hath any Thing to plead, but hath not a Day in Court to plead it: It is usually brought where one is bound in a Statute-Merchant, Statute-Staple, or Recognisance, or Judgment is given against him for Debt, and his Body in Execution thereupon, at the Complaint of the Party, upon Suggestion of some just Cause why Execution should not be granted, as a Release, or other Exception. This Writ is granted by the Lord Chancellor to the Justices of either Bench, willing them to grant Summons to the County where the Creditor lives for his Appearance before them at a certain Day. F. N. B. 102. To Writs of Execution the Defendant cannot plead; so that if there be any Matter since the Judgment, to discharge him of the Execution, he is to have Audita Querela; upon which, the Justices shall hear the Complaint, and do Right. Audita Querela cannot be brought on a Release, until Judgment is entered of Record. 1 Mod. 111. On a Statute, the Conusor or his Heir may bring Audita Querela, before Execution is sued out; but this may not be done by a Stranger to the Statute, or a Purchaser of the Land. 1 Danv. Abr. 630. 3 Rep. 13. This Writ lies not after Judgment upon a Matter which the Party might have pleaded before. Cro. El. 35. A bare Surmise is not sufficient to avoid a Judgment: But generally some Specialty must be shewn. Cro. Jac. 579. Upon a Release or other Deed pleaded, no Superfedeas will be granted till the Plaintiff in the Audita Querela hath brought his Witnesses into Court to prove the Deed: And if Execution be executed before, Bail is to be put in by Allowance of the Court. 1 Lill. Abr. 151. On Allowance of Audita Querela, Bail must be given in Court; unless in Cases of Necessity, when it may be put in before two Judges. Palm. 422. And by Bail the Party is in Custody of the Law, and if he make not out his Audita Querela, he must render his Body in Execution again, or pay the Debt for which he is in Execution, or else his Bail must pay it. If after Judgment against Bail, the Judgment against the Principal is reversed, or the Money paid by the Principal; the Bail may have Audita Querela. Cro. Jac. 645. 8 Rep. 143. If one taken in Execution be set at Liberty by the Plaintiff, and afterwards taken again and detained in Prison upon the same Execution, he may bring Audita Querela to be enlarged; for by the first Enlargement by the Plaintiff the Execution is discharged, and an Execution once discharged is ever discharged, and supposeth a Satisfaction. 1 Lill. 151. Where a Plaintiff in Audita Querela gets Judgment, he shall have Restitution of his Goods, though taken in Execution before the Writ brought. Sid. 74. If an Audita Querela is founded on a Record, or the Person bringing it is in Custody, the Process upon it is a Sive facias; but if founded on Matter of Fact, or the Party is at large, then the Process is a Venire. 1 Salk. 92. If a Man be nonsuited in an Audita Querela, he may have a new Writ. F. N. B. 104. Where Lands are extended on a Statute, &c. before the Time, Audita Querela lieth. 22, 46 E. 3. And in some Cases after a Judgment, the Court will relieve the Party on Motion, without Audita Querela. 1 Salk. 93.

Auditor, (Lat.) Is an Officer of the King, or some other great Person, who examines yearly the Accounts of all Under-Officers, and make up a general Book, which shews the Difference between their Receipts and Charge, and their several Allowances, commonly called Allocations: As the Auditors of the Exchequer, take the Accounts of those Receivers who collect the Revenues. 4 Inst. 106. Receivers General of Fee-Farm Rents, &c. are also termed Auditors, and hold their Audits for adjusting the Accounts of the said Rents at certain Times and Places appointed. And there are Auditors assigned by the Court to audit and settle Accounts in Actions of Account, and other Cases, who are proper Judges of the Cause, and Pleas are made before them, &c. 1 Brownl. 24.

Auditor of the Receipts, An Officer of the Exchequer, that files the Tellers Bills, and having made an Entry of them, gives the Lord Treasurer, &c. weekly a Certificate of the Money received: He makes Debentures to the Tellers, before they pay any Money; and takes their Accounts: He also keeps the Black Book of Receipts, and the Treasurer's Key of the Treasury, and seeth every Teller's Money locked up in the Treasury. 4 Inst. 107.

Auditors of the Imprest, Are Officers in the Exchequer who have the Charge of auditing the Great Accounts of the King's Custom, Naval and Military Expences, of the Mint, &c. and any Money imprest to Men for his Majesty's Service. Pract. Excheq. 83.

Auditor, Is the same with Audientes, i. e. the Catechumens, or those who were newly instructed in the Mysteries of the Christian Religion before they were admitted to Baptism; and Auditorium is that Place in the Church where they stood to hear, and be instructed. 'Tis what we now call Navis Ecclesie: And in the Primitive Times, the Church was so strict in keeping the People together in that Place, that the Person who went from thence in Sermon Time was excommunicated. Blount.

Avenage (from the Lat. Avena) A certain Quantity of Oats paid by a Tenant to his Landlord as a Rent, or in lieu of some other Duties.

Avenor, (Avenarius, from the Fr. Avoine, i. e. Oats) Is an Officer belonging to the King's Stables, that provides Oats for his Horses: He is mentioned 13 Car. 2. c. 8.

Adventure, Adventures or Trials of Skill at Arms, and signifies Military Exercises on Horseback — Affisa de Armis 36 Hen. 3. Brady's Append. Hist. Eng. 250. And 'tis mentioned in Addit. Mat. Paris. p. 149. Quod nulli convenient ad tournandum, vel burbandum nec ad alias quasunque Aventuras.

Adventure (properly Adventure) A Mischance causing the Death of a Man: As where a Person son is suddenly drowned, or is killed by any Accident, without Felony. 1 Inst. 391. Adventure also signifies a Thing sent to Sea, the Adventure whereof the Person sending it stands to out and home. Lex Mercat.

Abera, (quasi Overa, from the Fr. Oeuvre and ouvrage, velut Operagium) Signifies a Day's Work of a Plough-man, formerly valued at 8 d. it is found in Domesday. 4 Inst. 269.

Average, (Averagium) Is said to signify Service which the Tenant owes to his Lord by Horse or Carriage: But it is more commonly used for a Contribution that Merchants and others make towards their Losses, who have their Goods cast into the Sea for the Safeguard of the Ship, or of the other Goods and Lives of those Persons that are in the Ship, during a Tempest. It is in this Sense called Average, because it is proportioned and allotted after the Rate of every Man's Goods carried. Stat. 32 H. 8. 14 Car. 2. By the Laws of the Sea, in a Storm, when there is an extreme Necessity, the Goods, Wares, Guns, or whatsoever else is on Board the Ship, may (by consulting the Mariners) be thrown over Board by the Master, for the Preservation of the Ship; and it shall be made good by Average and Contribution. Stat. 49 Ed. 3. But if the Master takes in more Goods than he ought, without Leave of the Owners and Freightors, and a Storm ariseth at Sea, and Part of the Freightors Goods are thrown over-board, the remaining Goods are not subject to the Average; but the Master is to make good the Loss out of his own Estate: And if the Ship's Gear or Apparel be lost by Storm, the same is not within the Average. Leg. Rhod. If Goods are cast over-board before Half the Voyage is performed, they are to be estimated at the Price they cost: But if they are ejected afterwards, then at the Price as the rest are sold at the Port of Arrival. Leg. Oleron. Where Goods are given to Pirates by way of Composition to save the Rest, there shall be Average, by the Civil Law. Moor 297. — Average is likewise a small Duty, paid to Masters of Ships, when Goods are sent in another Man's Ship, for their Care of the Goods, over and above the Freight — Paying so much Freight for the said Goods, with Primage and Average accustomed. Words in Bills of Lading.

Average of Corn Fields, The Stubble or Remainder of Straw and Grass left in Corn Fields after the Harvest is carried in. It is a Word used in the North, for what in Kent is called the Gratten, and in other Parts the Roughings, &c.

Aber Ton, Is a reserved Rent in Corn, paid by Farmers and Tenants to Religious Houses: And signifies by Somner Corn drawn to the Lord's Granary, by the working Cattle of the Tenant. This Custom is supposed to be owing to the Saxon Cyric Sceat, Church Seed, a Measure of Corn brought to the Priest annually on St. Martin's Day, as an Oblation for the First Fruits of the Earth: Under which Title, the Religious had Corn Rent paid yearly; as appears by an Inquisition of the Estate of the Abbey of Glastenbury. A. D. 1201.

Aber Land, Seems to have been such Lands as the Tenants did plough and manure, cum Averis suis, for the proper Use of a Monastery, or the Lords of the Soil. Mon. Angl.

Aber Penny, (or Average Penny) Money paid towards the King's Averages or Carriages, or to be freed thereof. — Aver penny hoc est, quietum esse de diversis Denariis pro Averagiis Domini Regis. Rastal.

Aberia, Cattle: Spelman deduces the Word from the Fr. Ovre, Work, as if chiefly working Cattle: But it seems to be more probably from Avoir to have or possess; the Word sometimes including all Personal Estate, as Catalla did all Goods and Chattels. This Word is used for Oxen or Horses of the Plough; and in a general Sense any Cattle. — Homines per Averia sua, viz. Equos & Boves, & Affros graviter distrinxit W. Thorm. in Ed. 2. 'Tis used in the same Sense in W. 2. c. 18. Averia Elongata; see Elongata.

Averius Captis in Withernam, A Writ for the taking of Cattle to his Use, who hath Cattle unlawfully distrained by another, and driven out of the County where they were taken, so that they cannot be replevied by the Sheriff. Reg. Orig. 82. If the Cattle are put into any strong Place in the same County, the Sheriff may take the Posse Comitatus, and break into it, to make the Replevin. 1 P. & M. But when they are driven out of the County, he hath no Authority to pursue them.

Averment, (Verificatio, from the Fr. Aoverer, i. e. Verificare, Testari) Is an Offer of the Defendant to make good or justify an Exception pleaded in Abatement or Bar of the Plaintiff's Action: And it signifies the Act, as well as the Offer of justifying the Exception; and not only the Form, but the Matter thereof. Co. Lit. 362. Averment is either General, or Particular; General, which concludes every Plea, &c. or is in Bar of a Replication, or other Pleadings, containing Matter Affirmative, and ought to be with these Words; Et hoc paratus est verificare, &c. Particular Averment is when the Life of Tenant for Life, or of Tenant in Tail, &c. is averred. Ibid. The Use of Averment being to ascertain what is alleged doubtfully, Deeds may sometimes be made good by Averment, where a Person is not certainly named; but when the Deed it self is void for Incertainty, it cannot be made good by Averment. 5 Rep. 155. Averment cannot be made against a Record, which imports in it self an uncontrollable Verity. 1 Inst. 26. Nor shall it be admitted against a Will concerning Lands, which ought to be in Writing. 5 Rep. 68. An Averment shall not be allowed where the Intent of the Testator cannot be collected out of the Words of the Will. 4 Rep. 44. One may not aver a Thing contrary to the Condition of an Obligation, which is supposed to be made upon good Deliberation, and before Witnesses, and therefore not to be contradicted by a bare Averment. 1 Lit. Abr. 156. If an Heir is sued on the Bond of his Ancestor, it must be averred that the Heirs of the Obligor were expressly bound. 2 Saund. 136. Another Consideration than mentioned in a Deed, may be averred, where it is not repugnant or contrary to the Deed. 3 Dyer 146. Where one Thing is to be done in Consideration of another, there must be an Averment of Performance of Promise: But where there is Promise against Promise, there needs no Averment, for each Party hath his Action. 1 Lev. 87. A Person may aver he is not the same Person on Appeal of Death, in Favour of Life. 1 Nelf. Abr. 305. But Pleas merely in the Negative, shall not be averred, because they cannot be proved. Nor shall what is against Presumption of Law; or any Thing Thing apparent to the Court. 1 Inst. 362, 373. And by Statute, no Exception or Advantage shall be taken upon a Demurrer, for Want of Averment of hoc paratus est verificare, &c. except the same be specially set down for Cause of Demurrer. 4 & 5 Ann.

Averrare, To carry Goods in a Waggon, or upon loaded Horses, a Duty required of some customary Tenants. — Debent fruges Domini metere, prata falcare, & carriare & Averrare. Cartular. Glaston. M. S. f. 4.

Augea, A Cistern for Water — Episcopus B. concedit Civibus W. unum caput pro conductu aquatico cum Augeis fupspiralibus, & cateris Machinis, sub & super terraneis. A. D. 1451. Reg. Eccl. Well. M. S.

Augmentation, (Augmentatio) The Name of a Court erected 27 H. 8. for determining Suits and Controversies relating to Monasteries and Abbey Lands. The Intent of this Court was, that the King might be justly dealt with touching the Profits of such Religious Houses, as were given to him by Act of Parliament. It took its Name from the Augmentation of the Revenues of the Crown, by the Suppression of Religious Houses: And the Office of Augmentation, which hath many curious Records, remains to this Day, though the Court has been long since dissolved. Terms de Ley 68.

Avifamentum, Advice, Counsel — De Avifamento & consensu Concilii nostri Concessimus, &c. was the common Form of our Kings Grants.

Aula, i. e. A Court-Baron. Aula ibidem tent. die, &c. Aula Ecclesiæ is that which is now termed Navis Ecclesiæ: In medio Aula majoris Ecclesiæ decenter sepultus est. Eadm. lib. 6. p. 141.

Almone, (Fr. Almofne, Alms) Tenure in Almone is where Lands are given in Alms to some Church, or Religious House, upon Condition that a Service or Prayers shall be offered at certain Times for the Repose of the Donor's Soul. It is also called Tenure by Divine Service. Brit. 164. Vide Frankalmoign.

Auncel-Weight, (quasi, Hand-Sale Weight, or from Ansa, the Handle of the Ballance) An ancient manner of Weighing, by the hanging of Scales or Hooks at each End of a Beam or Staff, which by lifting up in the Middle with one's Finger or Hand, discovered the Equality or Difference between the Weight at one End and the Thing weighed at the other. This Weighing being subject to great Deceit, was prohibited by several Statutes, and the even Ballance committed in its stead. 34 Ed. 3. 8 Hen. 6. 22 Car. 2. &c. But notwithstanding it is still used in some Parts of England; and by some judged to be Meat sold by poising in the Hand, without putting it into the Ballance. What we now call the Stilliards, a Sort of Hand-weighing among Butchers, being a small Beam with a Weight at one End, (which shews the Pounds by certain Notches) seems to be near the same with the Auncel-Weight.

Aunciatus, A Word signifying Antiquated — Sicut Charta eorum aunciata est & Libertas anterior. Brompton lib. 2. cap. 24. par. 6.

Avoidance, In the general Signification is when a Benefice is void of an Incumbent; in which Sense it is opposed to Plenarty. Avoidances are either in Fact, as by Death of the Incumbent; or in Law: And may be by Cession, Plurality, Deprivation, Resignation, &c. In the first Case, the Patron must take Notice of the Avoidance at his Peril, so as to present within six Months to prevent Lapse to the Bishop; but in the last Case of Avoidances by Law, the Ordinary must give Notice to the Patron, before he can have Title to present by Lapse. Dyer 327. There are several Avoidances by Act of Parliament, wherein there must be a judicial Sentence pronounced to make the Living void. If a Man hath one Benefice with Cure, &c. and take another with Cure, without any Dispensation to hold two Benefices, in such Case the first is void by the Act 21 H. 8. c. 13. if it was above the Value of 8 l. during an Avoidance, it is said that the House and Glebe of the Benefice are in Abeyance: But by the Stat. 28 H. 8. cap. 11. The Profits arising during the Avoidance are given to the next Incumbent, towards Payment of the First-fruits; but the Ordinary may receive the Profits to provide for the Service of the Church, and shall be allowed the Charges of supplying the Cure, &c. for which Purpose the Church-wardens of the Parish are usually appointed. The next Avoidance of a Church may be granted by Deed, where the Church is full: If a Grant be made of the next Avoidance when it shall happen, and the Church is void at that Time, this will make the Grant void as to that very Avoidance, but it may be good for the next Turn after that. A Grant of the next Avoidance is no more than a Chattel, and goes to Executors. Right. Clerg. 68.

Avoirdupois, or Averdupois, (Fr. Avoir du Poids, i. e. Habere pondus, aut just esse ponderis) Signifies a Weight different from that which is called Troy-Weight, which contains but twelve Ounces in the Pound, whereas this hath sixteen Ounces: And in this Respect it is probably so called, because it is of greater Weight than the other. It also signifieth such Merchandizes as are weighed by this Weight; and is mentioned in divers Statutes, as 9 Ed. 3. 27 Ed. 3. c. 10. 2 R. 2. c. 1. Averium Ponderis, full Weight, or Averdupois. Cart. 3. Ed. 2.

Avowee, He to whom the Right of Advowson of any Church appertaineth, so that he may present in his own Name. Britt. c. 29. See Advowee.

Avowry, (Fr. Advouerie) Is where one takes a Distress for Rent or other Thing, and the Party on whom taken sues a Replevin, then the Taker shall justify his Plea for what Cause he took it, and if in his own Right, he must shew the same, and avow the Taking; but if he took it in Right of another, when he hath shewed the Cause, he must make Cognizance of the Taking as Bailiff or Servant to the Person in whose Right he took it. Terms de Ley 70. If in a Replevin a Man justifies the Taking of Cattle in his own Right, he must say bene avoat captionem averiorum, &c. which is called an Avowry: And where he justifies in the Right of another Person, then he says bene cognovit captionem, &c. which is called a Cognifance. 2 Lill. 454. The Avowry must contain sufficient Matter for Judgment to have Return: So much Certainty is not required in an Avowry, as in a Declaration; and the Avowant is not obliged to alledge Seisin within the Statute of Limitations. Nor shall a Lord be required to avow on any Person in certain; but he must alledge Seisin by the Hands of some Tenant within forty Years. 21 Hen. 8. c. 19. 1 Inst. 268. In Avowry Seisin in Law is sufficient, so that where a Tenant hath done Homage or Fealty, it is a good Seisin of all other Services to make an Avowry, though the Lord, &c. had not Seisin of them within 60 Years. 32 H. 8. c. 2. 4 Rep. 9. A Man may may distrain and avow for Rent due from a Copyholder to a Lord of a Manor; and also for Heriots, Homage, Fealty, &c. so likewise for an Amercement in a Court-Leet. 1 Nelf. Abr. 315. If a Person make an Avowry for two Causes, and can maintain his Avowry, but for one of them, it is a good Avowry. And if an Avowry be made for Rent, and it appears that Part of it is not due, yet the Avowry is good for the Residue. An Avowry may be made upon two several Titles of Land, though it be but for one Rent, for one Rent may depend upon several Titles. 1 Lill. Abr. 157. Saund. 285. If a Man takes a Distress for Rent reserved upon a Lease for Years, and afterwards accepts a Surrender of the Lands, he may nevertheless avow, because he is to have the Rent notwithstanding the Surrender. 1 Danv. Abr. 652. Where Tenant in Tail aliens in Fee, the Donor may avow upon him, the Reversion being in him, whereunto the Rent is incident. Ibid. 650. If there be Tenant for Life, Remainder in Fee, the Tenant for Life may compel the Lord to avow upon him: But where there is Tenant in Tail, with such Remainder, and the Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment, the Feoffee may not compel the Lord to avow upon him. 1 Inst. 268. If the Tenant enfeoffs another, the Lord ought to avow upon the Feoffor for the Arrearages before the Feoffment, and not upon the Feoffee. 1 Danv. 650. And where the Tenant makes a Feoffment in Fee, the Lord may avow upon him before Notice. The Lord may avow upon a Disseisor. 20 H. 6. And if a Man's Tenant is disseised, he may be compelled to avow, by such Tenant or his Heir. A Defendant in Replevin may avow, or justify; but if he justifies he can't have a Return. 3 Lev. 204. The Defendant need not aver his Avowry with an honoratus est, &c. And the Avowant shall recover his Damages and Costs, by 21 H. 8. c. 19. By which Statute it is enacted, That if in any Replegiare for Rents, &c. the Avowry, Cognizance or Justification be found for the Defendant, or the Plaintiff be Nonsuit, &c. the Defendant shall recover such Damages and Costs as the Plaintiff should have had, if he had recovered. And by 17 Car. 2. c. 7. When a Plaintiff shall be Nonsuit before Issue in any Suit of Replevin, &c. removed or depending in any of the Courts at Westminster, the Defendant making Suggestion in the Nature of an Avowry for Rent, the Court on Prayer shall award a Writ to inquire of the Sum in Arrear, and the Value of the Distress, &c. Upon Return whereof the Defendant shall recover the Arrears, if the Distress amounts to that Value, or else the Value of the Distress with Costs; and where the Distress is not found to the Value of the Arrears, the Party may distrain for the Residue. The Learning of Avowries is abridged by the Stat. 21 H. 8. and the Intricacies of Process in Replevin, &c. much remedied in Cases of Distresses for Rents by the 17 Car. 2. and 4 & 5 Ann.

Aures, A Punishment by the Saxon Laws of cutting off the Ears, inflicted on those who robbed Churches, or were guilty of any other Theft. Fleta lib. 1. cap. 38. par. 10. And this Punishment also extended to many other Crimes as well as Theft. Upton de Militari Officio pag. 140.

Auscultare. Formerly Persons were appointed in Monasteries to hear the Monks read, and direct them how, and in what Manner they should do it with a graceful Tone or Accent, to make an Impression on their Hearers, which was required before they were admitted to read publicly in the Church, and this was called Auscultare, viz. to read or recite a Lesson. — Quiunque Lecturus vel cantaturus est aliquid in Monasterio, si necesse habeat ab eo, (viz. Cantore) priusquam incipiat, debet Auscultare. Lanfrancus in Decretis pro ordine Benedicti. c. 5.

Austurcus and Osturcus, A Goshawk; from whence we usually call a Faulconer, who keeps that Kind of Hawks, an Ostringer. In ancient Deeds there have been reserved as a Rent to the Lord. Unum Austurcum.

Auter Mout, Is where Persons sue, or are sued in another's Right; as Executors, Administrators, &c.

Auterfoits acquit, Is a Plea by a Criminal, that he was heretofore acquitted of the same Treason, or Felony. For one shall not be brought into Danger of his Life, for the same Offence, more than once. 3 Inst. 213. There is also Plea of Auterfoits convict, and Auterfoits attain; that he was heretofore convicted, or attainted, of the same Felony. In Appeal of Death, Auterfoits acquit, or Auterfoits attain, upon Indictment of the same Death, is no Plea. H. P. C. 244. But in other Cases where a Person is attainted, it is to no Purpose that he should be attainted a second Time. And Conviction of Manslaughter, where Clergy is admitted thereon, will bar any subsequent Prosecution for the same Death. 2 Hawk. P. C. 377.

Autumn, Is the Decline of the Summer. Some computed the Years by Autumns; but the English-Saxons by Winters: Tacitus says, that the ancient Germans knew the other Divisions of the Year, but did not know what was meant by Autumn; and Linwood tells us, when the several Seasons of the Year begin, in these Lines

Dat Clemens Hiemem, dat Petrus ver Cathedratus, Æstuat Urbanus, Autumat Bartholomæus.

Autumnalis, Those Fruits of the Earth which are ripe in Autumn or Harvest.

Auxilium ad filium Militem faciendum & filiam Martandum, A Writ formerly directed to the Sheriff of every County where the King or other Lord had any Tenants, to levy of them an Aid towards the Knighting of a Son, and the Marrying of a Daughter. F. N. B. 82. See Aid.

Auxilium Curie, A Precept or Order of Court for the Citing or Convening of one Party, at the Suit and Request of another, to warrant some Thing. — Vocat inde ad Warrantiam Johanne Sutton de Dudley Chevalier, & Isabellam Uxorem, ut habet eos hic in Octabis S. Michaelis, per Auxilium Curie. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 477.

Auxilium facere alicui in Curia Regis. To be another's Friend and Solicitor in the King's Court; an Office undertaken by some Courtiers for their Dependents in the Country — Sciant presentes & futuri, quod Ego Bernadus de S. Walerico concessi Rogero de Berkley & heredibus suis Auxilium & Consilium meum in Curia Domini mei Regis Anglie. Paroch. Antiq. 126.

Murtium Regis, The King's Aid; or Money levied for the King's Use, and the Publick Service, as where Taxes are granted by Parliament.

Murtium vicecomiti. A customary Aid or Duty anciently payable to Sheriffs, out of certain Manors, for the better Support of their Offices. Prior de Kime Com. Linc. tenet duas carucatas terre in Thorpe per servitium xl. denariorum per annum, ad Auxilium Vicecomitis. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 245: An Exemption from this Duty was sometimes granted by the King: And the Manor of Stretton in Warwickshire was freed from it by Charter. 14 H. 3. M. 4.

Await, Seems to signify what we now call Waylaying, or lying in Wait to execute some Mischief. Stat. 13 R. 2. c. 1. It is ordained, that no Charter of Pardon shall be allowed before any Justice for the Death of a Man slain by Await, or Malice prepensed, &c.

Award, (from the Fr. Agarder) Is the Judgment and Arbitration of one or more Persons, at the Request of two Parties who are at Variance, for ending the Matter in Dispute without publick Authority: And may be called an Award, because it is imposed on both Parties to be observed by them. Distum, quod ad custodiendum seu observandum partibus imponitur. Spelm. An Award may be by Word, or in Writing; but is usually in Writing; and must be exactly according to the Submission. If an Award be according to the Submission by Bond, though it is void in Law, if it be not observed, the Obligation will be forfeited. 1 Danv. Abr. 515. Where Arbitrators award a Thing against Law, it is void. If more is awarded than submitted, the Award will be void: But when an Award seems to extend to more than in the Submission, the Words de & super premissis restrain it to the Thing submitted. Cro. Eliz. 861. On a general Submission, the Award may be Part of what is submitted, without the Residue, and be good. 1 Danv. 536. An award may be void in some Part, and good in another Part, if it makes an End of all the Differences submitted. 2 Saundf. 293. And if an Award be good in Part, and void in Part, the good shall be performed. 10 Rep. 31. An Award without a Deed of Submission, will be a good Bar of a Trespass. Danv. 548. But Submissions by Infants shall not be binding. By Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. cap. 13. Submissions to Awards, by Agreement of the Parties, may be made a Rule of any of his Majesty's Courts of Record; and on a Rule of Court thereupon, the Parties shall be finally concluded by such Arbitrament: And in Case of Disobedience thereto, the Party refusing to perform the same shall be subject to the Penalties of contemning a Rule of Court, &c. unless it appears on Oath that such Award was unduly procured, when it shall be set aside: But this Statute extends only to personal Matters, for which there is no other Remedy but by personal Action, or by Suit in Equity. Attachment lies for Non-performance of an Award made a Rule of Court; after personal Demand of Performance. 1 Salk. 83. Vide Arbitrator. Arbitrament.

Form of an Award on a Submission.

TO all People to whom this present Writing indented of Award, shall come, Greeting: Whereas there are several Accounts depending, and divers Controversies and Disputes have lately arisen between A. B. of, &c. Gent. and C. D. of, &c. all which Controversies and Disputes are chiefly touching and concerning, &c. And whereas for the putting an End to the said Differences and Disputes, they the said A. B. and C. D. by their several Bonds or Obligations bearing Date, &c. are become bound each to the other of them in the penal Sum of, &c. to stand to, and abide the Award and final Determination of us E. F. G. H. &c. so as the said Award be made in Writing, and ready to be delivered to the Parties in Difference on or before, &c. next, as by the said Obligations, and the Conditions thereof may appear. Now know ye, That we the said Arbitrators, whose Names are hereunto subscribed, and Seals affixed, taking upon us the Burthen of the said Award, and having fully examined and duly considered the Proofs and Allegations of both the said Parties, do for the settling Amity and Friendship between them, make and publish this our Award, by and between the said Parties in manner following, that is to say, Imprimis, We do Award and Order, that all Actions, Suits, Quarrels, and Controversies whatsoever had, moved, arisen or depending between the said Parties in Law or Equity for any manner of Cause whatsoever, touching the said, &c. to the Day of the Date hereof, shall cease and be no further prosecuted, and that each of the said Parties shall pay and bear his own Costs and Charges, in any wise relating to, or concerning the same Premises. And we do also Award and Order that the said A. B. shall pay, or cause to be paid to the said C. D. the Sum of, &c. within the Space of, &c. And also at his own Costs and Charges do, &c. And further we do Award and Order that the said C. D. shall pay, or cause to be paid to the said A. B. the Sum of, &c. on or before, &c. or give sufficient Security for the same to the said A. B. &c. And we do Award and Order that, &c. And lastly, we do Award and Order that the said A. B. and C. D. on the Receipt of the several Sums, &c. above-mentioned shall in due Form of Law execute each to the other of them general Releases sufficient for the Releasing by each to the other of them, his Executors and Administrators, of all Actions, Suits, Arrests, Quarrels, Controversies and Demands whatsoever touching or concerning the Premises aforesaid, or any Matter or Thing thereunto relating from the Beginning of the World until the Day of, &c. last. In Witness, &c.

Awm, or Aume, (Teut. Ohm, i. e. cadus vel mnsura) A Measure of Rhenish Wine, containing forty Gallons: It is mentioned in the Statute 1 Jas. 1. cap. 33. and 12 Car. 2. cap. 4. This Word is otherwise called Awame, as you may read in a very old printed Book—The Rood of Rhenish Wine of Dordrecht is ten Awames, and every Awame is fifty Gallons. The Rood of Antwerp is fourteen Awames, and every Awame is thirty-five Gallons. And by this Account it contains different Quantities in several Countries.

Are and Axen, Comes from the Saxon Verb Axian, to demand, and from hence we have our English Word Ask. In Somersetshire, and some other Counties of England, in the Country Dialect the Word Axe is make Use of for Ask.

Apel and Besaiel, A Writ that lies for an Heir dispossessed of his Inheritance left by his Grandfather, or Great Grandfather, &c. See Aile.

Bachelor, (Baccalaureus, from the Fr. Bachelier, viz. Tyro, a Learner:) In the Universities there are Bachelors of Arts, &c. which is the first Degree taken by Students, before they come to greater Dignity; and those that are called Bachelors of the Companies of London, are such of each Company, as are springing towards the Estate of those that are employed in Council, but as yet are Inferiors; for every of the twelve Companies consists of a Master, two Wardens, the Livery, (which are Assistants in Matters of Council, or such as the Assistants are chosen out of) and the Bachelors. The Word Bachelor is used 13 R. 2. and signifies the same with Knight-Bachelor, and 3 E. 4. c. 5. it is a simple Knight, and not Knight Banneret, or Knight of the Bath. Anno 28 E. 3. a Petition was recorded in the Tower, beginning thus: A nostre Seigneur le Roy monstrent votre Simple Bachelor, Johan de Bures, &c. Bachelor was antiently attributed to the Lord Admiral of England, if he were under a Baron. In Pat. 8 R. 2. we read of a Bacalaris Regis: And touching the further Etymology of this Word, Baccalaurei (teste Renano) a Bacillo nominati sunt, quia primi studii Autoritatem qua per exhibitionem baculi concedebatur jam consecuti fuissent, &c.

Backberinde, (Sax.) Signifieth bearing upon the Back, or about a Man. Bracton useth it for a Sign or Circumstance of Theft apparent, which the Civilians call Furtum manifestum; for dividing Furtum into Manifestum & non Manifestum, he defineth the former thus; Furtum vero Manifestum est, ubi latro deprehensus est seistus de aliquo latrocinio scil. Handhabend & Backberind, & insecutus fuerit per aliquem cujus res illa fuerit. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 32. Manwood remarks it as one of the four Circumstances or Cases, wherein a Forester may arrest the Body of an Offender against Vert or Venison in the Forest: By the Assise of the Forest of Lancaster (says he) taken with the Manner, is when one is found in the King's Forest in any of these four Degrees, Stable-stand, Dog-draw, Back-bear, and Bloody-hand. *Manw. 2. part. Badger, (from the Fr. Bagage, a Bundle, and thence is derived Bagagier, a Carrier of Goods) Signifies with us one that buys Corn or Victuals in one Place, and carries them to another to sell and make Profit by them: And such a one is exempted in the Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 14. from the Punishment of an Ingrosser within that Statute. But by 5 Eliz. c. 12. Badgers are to be licensed by the Justices of Peace in the Sessions; whose Licences will be in Force for one Year, and no longer, and the Persons to whom granted must enter into a Recognizance that they will not by Colour of their Licences forestal, or do any Thing contrary to the Statutes made against Forestallers, Ingrossers and Regrators. If any Person shall act as a Badger without Licence, he is to forfeit 5*l.* one Moiety to the King, and the other to the Prosecutor, leviable by Warrant from Justices of Peace, &c.

Bajardour, (Lat. Bajulator) A Bearer of any Weight or Burden. — Offerebant duos Incisores in sua lapidina, & cariagium petre usque ad Navim, & de Navi usque duos Bajardours Servituros ad Ecclesiam. Petr. Bles. Contin. Hiſt. Croyland. p. 120.

Bail, Ballium, (from the Fr. Bail, i. e. a Guardian or Gaoler, Bailler, tradere) Is used in our Common Law for the Freeing or Setting at Liberty of one arrested or imprisoned upon any Action, either Civil or Criminal, on Surety taken for his Appearance at a Day and Place certain. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 8. The Reason why it is called Bail, is because by this Means the Party restrained is delivered into the Hands of those that bind themselves for his forth-coming: And the End of Bail is to satisfy the Condemnation and Costs, or render the Defendant to Prison. There is both Common and Special Bail; Common Bail is in Actions of small Concernment, being called Common, because any Sureties in that Case are taken; whereas in Causes of greater Weight, as Actions upon Bond, or Specialty, &c. where the Debt amounts to 10*l.* Special Bail or Surety must be taken, as Subsidy-Men at least, and they according to the Value. 4 Inst. 179. By a late Statute, none shall be held to Special Bail on Process out of any Superior Court, where the Cause of Action doth not amount to 10*l.* or upwards; nor out of any Inferior Court where it doth not amount to 40*s.* Affidavit is to be made of the Cause of Action, and the Sum specified in the Affidavit indorsed on the Back of the Writ; for which Sum Bail shall be taken, and no more;

And

And if there be no such Affidavit, the Defendant shall not be arrested by his Body, &c. Stat. 12 Geo. c. 29. To make out Common Bail-Pieces; in the Margin you put the County, as Midd. ss. Then you write the Name of the Defendant, and underneath of his Bail, viz: A. B. de Paroch. in Com. prad. Gen. Traditur in Ballium super Cep. Corp. Johan. Doe de Lond. Yeom. & Richardo Roe de eod. Yeom. And in the Margin, at the Bottom, you put the Name of the Attorney, as Edwards Attorn. and on the Right-hand at Bottom, Ad sectam C. D. Herein you are to observe, that the Sureties John Doe and Richard Roe are taken of Course: And in Special Bail, the Bail and their Additions are to be inserted instead of John Doe, &c. which is all the Difference from Common Bail. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. These Bail-pieces are written on a small square Piece of Parchment, with the Corners cut off at bottom, in Court-hand: And if Common, they are to be filed in the Office with the Clerk of the Common Bails, within six Days after the End of the Term the Attorney appears. And Special Bail, which is taken before a Judge, or by Commissioners in the Country, when accepted, is to be filed; after twenty Days Notice given of putting in Special Bail before a Judge, on a Cepi Corpus, if there be no Exception, the Bail shall be filed in four Days. 1 Lill. Abr. 174. Upon a Cepi Corpus twenty Days are allow'd to except against the Bail: So on a Writ of Error; and you need not give Notice, but you cannot take out Execution without giving a four Days Rule to put in better Bail: In all other Cases, Notice must be given. Upon a Habeas Corpus, eight and twenty Days are appointed to except against the Bail, and after that, if it be not excepted against, it shall be filed in four Days. 1 Salk. 98. The Exception to Bail put in before a Judge, must be entered in the Bail-Book, at the Judge's Chamber, at the Side of the Bail there put in, after this Manner: I do except against this Bail, A. B. Attorn. pro Quer. And if there be no such Exception, the Defendant's Attorney may take the Bail-piece away from the Judge's Chamber and file it. After the Roll is mark'd in before a Judge, Common Bail may not be filed; but where the Roll is not thus mark'd, or where the Cause of Action is not expressed in the Writ, Common Bail is to be entered. Bail is not properly such until it is filed, when it is of Record: But it shall be accounted good, till the same is questioned and disallowed. When Cognizors of Bail are questioned, they are to justify themselves in open Court, by Oath of their Abilities; or before one of the Judges of the Court; or by Affidavit before Commissioners as took the Bail: And the Court may adjudge Bail sufficient, when the Plaintiff will not accept of it. Also the Court on Motion, or a Judge at his Chamber will order a common Appearance to be taken, when Special Bail is not required, on Affidavit made of the Debt due, &c. The Putting in of a Declaration, and the Acceptance of it by the Defendant's Attorney with the Privy of the Plaintiff's Attorney, is an Acceptance of the Bail. When a Sheriff hath taken good Bail of the Defendant, he will on a Rule return a Cepi, and assign the Bail-Bond to the Plaintiff, which may be done by Indorsement without Stamp, so as it be stamp'd before Action brought thereupon; and then the Defendant and Bail may be arrested on the Bond, by the Plaintiff in his own Name. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. But if the Plaintiff take an Assignment of the Bail-Bond, tho' the Bail is insufficient, the Court will not amerce the Sheriff. 1 Salk. 99. By the antient Course, a Bail-Bond could not be put in Suit 'till a Rule was had to amerce the Sheriff, for not having the Body at the Return of the Writ; and the Course now is, to stay Proceedings on the Bail-Bond, if there is no Return of a Cepi Corpus. Mod. Ca. 229. 3 Salk. 57. In Case the Defendant doth not find Common or Special Bail, the Attorney for the Plaintiff is to call on the Sheriff for his Return of the Writ; on Default whereof, a Rule being made for it, the Sheriff shall be amerced, or summoned before a Judge to shew Cause, &c. And if on a Cepi Corpus no Bail is returned, a Rule will be made out to bring in the Defendant's Body. Tho' a Defendant, with Leave of the Court, may deposit Money in Court instead of Bail; and in such Case the Plaintiff shall be ordered to waive other Bail. Lill. Abr. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. Bail to the Action is to be taken before none but a Judge of the Court; but for Appearance, may be before any Officer. Sheriffs, &c. are to let to Bail Persons by them arrested by Force of any Writ, in any Personal Action, &c. upon reasonable Sureties, having sufficient within the County to keep their Days in such Place, &c. as the Writs require. Stat. 23 H. 6. c. 10. and the Statute 1 W. & M. provides against excessive Bail. No Defendant arrested by Process shall be compelled to put in Bail for a greater Sum than contained in the Writ or Process; and if any Plaintiff shall declare against a Defendant upon any Bail by him put in for a greater Sum than is expressed in the Process upon which the Defendant was arrested, then that Bail shall not be liable to the Action. 1 Lill. 181. But it is said Bail are liable to all Actions of the Plaintiff the same Term wherein he shall declare against the Defendant. If more Damages, &c. are recovered than mentioned in the Plaint, or than the Sum wherein the Bail is bound, the Bail will not be liable. 1 Salk. 102. So where a Declaration is laid in another County, when the Original is sued out in London, and Bail put in there upon it. 3 Lev. 235. In Actions of Battery, Trespass, Slander, &c. tho' the Plaintiff is like to recover large Damages, Special Bail is not to be had, unless by Order of Court: Nor is it required in Actions of Account, or of Covenant, except it be to pay Money; or against Heirs or Executors, &c. for the Debt of the Testator, unless they have wasted the Testator's Goods. 1 Danv. Abr. 681. In Actions where Damages are uncertain, Bail is to be at the Discretion of the Court: On a dangerous Assault and Battery, upon Affidavit of Special Damages, a Judge's Hand may be procured for Allowance of an Ac etiam in the Writ: And in Action of Scandalum Magnatum the Court on Motion hath ordered Special Bail. Raym. 74. Special Bail is ordered, by Rule of Court, in all Causes of Removal, whether by Habeas Corpus, Writ of Privilege, Certiorari, &c. except where the Defendant is sued as Executor or Administrator: And a Caveat is to be entered with the Judges for good Bail. Where a Cause is removed out of an Inferior Court by Habeas Corpus, if the Bail below offer themselves to be Bail above, they shall be taken, not being excepted against below; unless the Cause comes out of London. 1 Salk. 97. If a Cause removed from an Inferior Court, be remanded back by Procedendo the same Term, the original Bail in the Inferior Court are chargechargeable; but not if remanded in another Term. 2 Cro. 363. One in Execution in Custody of the Marshal of B. R. is not compellable to find Bail, if another Action be brought against him: But if he be in the Prison of the Fleet in Execution, on Action brought in B. R. he must be removed into the Custody of the Marshal of that Court, or put in Bail to the Action. Trin. 24 Car. B. R. One taken in Execution, is not bailable by Law; except an Audita Querela be brought. But where a Writ of Error is brought and allow'd, if the Defendant be not in Execution, there shall not be Execution awarded against him, at the Request of the Bail, tho' he be present in Court. 1 Nelf. Abr. 331. The Bail ought not to join with the Principal, nor the Principal with the Bail, in a Writ of Error to reverse the Judgment against either. 1 Cro. 295. The Bail upon a Writ of Error cannot render the Party in their Discharge; because they are bound that the Party shall prosecute the Writ of Error with Effect, and pay the Money if Judgment be affirmed. 1 Lill. Abr. 173. Before a Scire facias taken out against the Bail, the Principal may render his Body in Discharge of the Bail: And if the Bail bring in the Principal before the Return of the second Sci. fac. against them; they shall be discharged. 1 Roll. Abr. 250. 1 Lill. 471. On a Capias ad satisfaciendum against the Defendant returned Non est Inventus, Scire facias to issue against the Bail. Where a Defendant renders his Body in Discharge of the Bail, the Plaintiff is by the Rules of the Court to make his Choice of Proceeding in Execution, whether he will charge Body, Goods, or Lands. 1 Lill. 183. And 'tis said, if the Principal after Judgment renders himself in Discharge of his Bail, it is still at the Election of the Plaintiff to take out Execution either against him or his Bail. 1 Nelf. Abr. 329. There must be an Exoneretur entered, to discharge the Bail. If the Defendant dies before a Capias ad satisfaci. against him returned and filed, the Bail will be discharged. 1 Lill. 177. On the Death of the Principal, 'tis impossible for the Bail to bring in his Body: And the Bail may stand engaged that the Principal shall render himself, which must be intended upon Process awarded against him in his Life-time. 1 Nelf. 328. A Bail cannot be a Witness for the Defendant at the Trial; but the Court, on Motion, will discharge the Bail, upon giving other sufficient Bail. Wood's Inst. 582. In the Court of Common Pleas, when the Plaintiff hath obtained Judgment where Special Bail is given, the Plaintiff may take the Defendant in Execution, or prosecute the Bail. And Part of the Debt may be levied on the Defendant's Goods, and the Remainder on the Bail: But if the Plaintiff take the Defendant's Body in Execution, he may not then meddle with the Bail. Infit. Leg. 91, 229. Execution may be had against the Bail, if the Defendant does not plead: And some of our Books say, that Lands of Bail are bound from the Time of the Recognizance, &c. entered into; and others that they are not but from the Time of the Recovery of the Judgment against the Principal. Cro. 272, 449: If a Defendant puts in Bail by a wrong Name, the Proceedings shall nevertheless be good. 1 Nelf. 333. But if Bail be taken off the File, the Plaintiff is without Remedy; for it cannot be amended. Cro. El. 223. The Judges of the Courts at Westminster have Power by Statute to appoint Commissioners in every County to take Recogni-zances of Bail, in Causes depending in their Courts; and to make such Rules for justifying the Bail as they shall think fit, &c. Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. Writs which hold the Defendant to Bail, ought to have the Cause of Action expressed: And where the Cause of Action is not expressed in Writs, &c. Bail are to enter into Bond for the Defendant's Appearance in a Sum not above 40 l. And on Appearance by Attorney, the Bail shall be acquitted. 13 Car. 2. c. 2. When a Man is taken on a Capias out of C. B. he shall not be released 'till he give Bond to appear, &c.

As to Bail for Crimes, at Common Law Bail was allow'd for all Offences, except Murder. 2 Inst. 190. And if the Party accused could find sufficient Sureties, he was not to be committed to Prison; for all Persons might be bailed 'till convicted of the Offence. 2 Inst. 186. But by Statute it was after enacted, that in Case of Homicide the Offender should not be bailed: And by our Statutes, Murderers, Outlaws, House-burners, Thieves openly defamed, &c. are not bailable; but where Persons are guilty of Larceny, are Accessaries to Felony, or guilty of light Suspicion, they may be admitted to Bail. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 15. This Statute doth not extend to the Judges of B. R. &c. only to Sheriffs and other inferior Officers. H. P. C. 98, 99. By the Common Law the Sheriff might bail Persons arrested on Suspicion of Felony, or for other Offence bailable; but he hath lost this Power by the Statute 1 Ed. 4. c. 2. Justices of the Peace may let to Bail Persons suspected of Felony, or others bailable, until the next Sessions: But where Persons are arrested for Manslaughter or Felony, being bailable by Law, they are not to be let to Bail by Justices of Peace but in open Sessions, or where two Justices (Quorum unus) are present; and the same is to be certified with the Examination of the Offender, and the Accusers bound over to prosecute, &c. 3 H. 7. 1 & 2 P. & M. If a Person be dangerously wounded, the Offender may be bailed 'till the Person is dead; but 'tis usual to have Assurance from some skilful Surgeon, that the Party is like to do well. 2 Inst. 186. A Man arrested and imprisoned for Felony, being bailable, shall be bailed before it appears whether he is guilty or not; but when convicted, or if on Examination, he confesseth the Felony, he cannot be bailed. 4 Inst. 178. For where in Manslaughter, Felony, &c. it is certainly known that the Party did it, he ought not to be bailed. To refuse Bail where any one is bailable; or to admit any to Bail Bail who ought not by Law to be admitted, is punishable by Fine, &c. 2 Inst. 191. H. P. C. 97. If where a Felony is committed one is brought before a Justice on Suspicion, the Person suspected is to be bailed, or committed to Prison; but if there is no Felony done, he may be discharged. H. P. C. 98, 106. The Court of B. R. bails in all Cases, and may bail Murder, &c. If a Man is found guilty of Murder by the Coroner's Inquest, yet B. R. may bail him; for they may examine into the Depositions taken by the Coroner. 1 Salk. 104. But if a Criminal be indicted of Murder, the Court will not bail him, tho' upon Affidavits of Evidence which might discharge the Prosecution: Nor when a Person is found guilty by the Grand Jury, because they cannot have Notice of what Evidence was before the Jury, which by their Oath they are obliged to conceal. 1 Salk. 104. The Courts of Common Pleas and Exchequer, in Term-time, and the Chancery in the Term or Vacation, may bail Persons by the Habeas Corpus Act, but not such as are committed for Treason or Felony specially expressed in the Warrant of Commitment; unless it be where a Sessions is past from the Time of Commitment of the Prisoner, without any Prosecution, when he may be bailed. But B. R. will not admit a Person to Bail on the Habeas Corpus Statute, on Commitment for Treason or Felony, without four Sureties. The Court of B. R. may bail Persons committed by the King's Special Command, or by the Privy Council, on the like Circumstances on which it will grant Bail on other Commitments: This is where the Crime is specified in the Warrant of Commitment; and wherever any Commitment by the Privy Council hath not expressed with some Certainty the Crime alledged against the Party, it has been usual to admit him to Bail on his Habeas Corpus. 2 Hawk. P. C. 107, 109. See Stat. 16 Car. I. c. 10. Formerly Persons committed for Treason, &c. by the King's Command, or Order of Council, were not to be delivered without Trial, &c. Upon a Commitment of either House of Parliament, when it stands indifferent on the Return of the Habeas Corpus, whether it be legal, or not, the Court of B. R. ought not to bail a Prisoner; but when it appears to be illegal, they may do it, as well as on an unwarrantable Commitment of the King and Council. 2 Hawk. 110. And a Person committed for a Contempt, by Order of either House of Parliament, may be discharged by B. R. after a Dissolution or Prorogation, which determine all Orders of Parliament: Also 'tis said on an Impeachment, when the Parliament is not Sitting, and the Party has been long in Prison, B. R. may bail him. The Court of B. R. hath bailed Persons committed to the Fleet-Prison by the Lord Chancellor, when the Crime of Commitment hath not been mentioned, or being mentioned in general Terms, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 111. And B. R. having the Control of all inferior Courts, may at their Discretion bail any Person unjustly committed by any of those Courts. In admitting a Person to Bail in the Court of B. R. for Felony, &c. a several Recognizance is entered into to the King in a certain Sum from each of the Bail, that the Prisoner shall appear at a certain Day, &c. And also that the Bail shall be liable for the Default of such Appearance, &c. Body for Body. And it is at the Discretion of Justices of Peace, in admitting any Person to Bail for Felony, to take the Recognizance in a certain Sum, or Body for Body. But where a Person is bailed by any Court, &c. for a Crime of an inferior Nature, the Recognizance ought to be only in a certain Sum of Money, and not Body for Body. 2 Hawk. 115. And the Bail are to be bound in double the Sum of the Criminal. Where Persons are bound Body for Body, if the Offender doth not appear, whereby the Recognizance is forfeited, the Bail are not liable to such Punishment to which the Principal would be adjudged if found guilty, but only to be fined, &c. Wood's Inst. 618. If Bail suspect the Prisoner will fly, they may carry him before a Justice to find new Sureties; or to be committed in their Discharge. 10 Rep. 99.

Bailiff, (Ballivus) From the Fr. Word Bailiff, that is Praefectus Provincia, and as the Name, so the Office it self was answerable to that of France; where there are eight Parliaments, which are high Courts from whence there lies no Appeal, and within the Precincts of the several Parts of that Kingdom which belong to each Parliament there are several Provinces to which Justice is ministred by certain Officers called Bailiffs: And in England we have several Counties in which Justice hath been administred to the Inhabitants by the Officer whom we now call Sheriff or Viscount, (one of which Names descends from the Saxons, the other from the Normans); and tho' the Sheriff is not called Bailiff, yet 'tis probable that was one of his Names also, because the County is often called Balliva: As in the Return of a Writ, where the Person is not arrested, the Sheriff saith, Infratominatus A. B. non est Inventus in Balliva mea, &c. Kitch. Ret. Brev. fol. 285. And in the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 28. and 14 Ed. 3. cap. 9. the Word Bailiff seems to comprise as well Sheriffs, as Bailiffs of Hundreds. As the Realm is divided into Counties, so every County is divided into Hundreds; within which in antient Times the People had Justice ministred to them by the several Officers of every Hundred, which were the Bailiffs, as those Officers do in France and Normandy, being chief Officers of Justice within their Precincts. Custum. of Norm. cap. 1. And it appears by Bracton, (lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 34.) that Bailiffs of Hundreds might hold Plea of Appeal and Approvers: But since that Time the Hundred-Courts, except certain Franchises, are by the Statute 14 Ed. 3. swallowed in the County-Courts; and now the Bailiff's Name and Office is grown into Contempt, they being only Officers to serve Writs, &c. within their Liberties. But in other Respects the Name is still in good Esteem; for the Chief Magistrates in divers Towns, are called Bailiffs: And sometimes the Persons to whom the King's Castles are committed are termed Bailiffs, as the Bailiff of Dover-Castle, &c. Of the ordinary Bailiffs there are several Sorts, viz. Bailiffs of Liberties; Sheriffs Bailiffs; Bailiffs of Lords of Manors; Bailiffs of Husbandry, &c. Bailiffs of Liberties are those Bailiffs who are appointed by every Lord within his Liberty, to execute Process and do such Offices therein, as the Bailiff Errant doth at large in the County; but Bailiffs errant or itinerant, to go up and down the County to serve Process, are out of Use. These Bailiffs of Liberties cannot arrest a Man without a Warrant from the Sheriff of the County: And yet the Sheriff cannot enter the Liberty himself, at the Suit of a Subject, (unless it be on a Quo minus, or Capias utlagatum) without a Clause in his Writ, Non amittas mittas propter aliquam Libertatem, &c. If the Sheriff, &c. enters the Liberty without such Power, the Lord of the Liberty may have an Action against him; tho' the Execution of the Writ may stand good. 1 Ventr. 406. 2 Inst. 453. Sheriff's Bailiffs are such who are Servants to Sheriffs of Counties to execute Writs, Warrants, &c. Formerly Bailiffs of Hundreds were the Officers to execute Writs; but now it is done by Special Bailiffs, put in with them by the Sheriff. A Bailiff of a Liberty is an Officer which the Court takes Notice of; tho' a Sheriff's Bailiff is not an Officer of the Court, but only the Sheriff himself. Pasch. 23 Car. 1. B. R. The Arrest of the Sheriff's Bailiff is the Arrest of the Sheriff; and if any Rescous be made of any Person arrested, it shall be adjudg'd done to the Sheriff: Also if the Bailiff permit a Prisoner to escape, Action may be brought against the Sheriff. 1 Inst. 61, 168. Sheriffs are answerable for Misdemeanors of their Bailiffs; and are to have Remedy over against them. 2 Inst. 19. And the Court of B. R. will punish Bailiffs that misbehave themselves in executing Process, &c. Bailiffs of Lords of Manors are those that collect their Rents, and levy their Fines and Amercements. But such a Bailiff cannot distrain for an Amercement without a Special Warrant from the Lord or his Steward. Cro. El. 698. He cannot give Licence to commit a Trespass; as to cut down Trees, &c. tho' he may licence one to go over Land, being a Trespass to the Possession only, the Profits whereof are at his Disposal. Cro. Jac. 337, 377. A Bailiff may himself, or command another to take Cattle Damage-feasant upon the Land. 1 Danv. Abr. 685. And yet Amends cannot be tendered to the Bailiff, for he may not accept of Amends, nor deliver the Distress when once taken. 5 Rep. 76. These Bailiffs may do any Thing for the Benefit of their Masters, and it shall stand good 'till the Master disagrees; but they can do nothing to the Prejudice of their Masters. Litt. Rep. 70. Bailiffs of Courts-Baron summon those Courts, and execute the Process thereof; they present all Poundbreaches, Cattle strayed, &c. Bailiffs of Husbandry are belonging to private Men of good Estates, and have the Disposal of the Under-Servants, every Man to his Labour; they also fell Trees, repair Houses, Hedges, &c. and gather up the Profits of the Land for their Lord and Master, for which they render Accounts yearly, &c. Besides these, there are also Bailiffs of the Forest, of which you may read Manwood, Part 1. pag. 113.

Bailiwick, (Balliva) Is not only taken for the County; but signifies generally that Liberty which is exempted from the Sheriff of the County, over which the Lord of the Liberty appointeth a Bailiff with such Powers within his Precinct as an Under-Sheriff exerciseth under the Sheriff of the County; such as the Bailiff of Westminster, &c. Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 12. Wood's Inst. 206.

Bailment, (from Bailor, to deliver) Is a Delivery of Things to another, sometimes to be delivered back to the Bailor that delivered them, sometimes to the Use of the Bailee to whom delivered, and sometimes to a third Person. This Delivery is called a Bailment; which may be simple, as to keep for my Use; or conditional, to be redelivered when Money is paid, &c. Upon Bailment or Delivery of Goods, these Things are to be observed: If they are delivered to a Man to be safely kept, and after these Goods are stolen from him, as he undertook to keep them safely, this shall not excuse him; but if he undertook to keep them as his own, he shall be excused. 1 Inst. 89. 4 Rep. 83. 1 Roll. Abr. 338. If where Goods are delivered to one as a Pledge, they are stolen from him, Action lieth not against him; because he hath a Property in them, and therefore ought to keep them no otherwise than as his own. Co. Lit. 89. A Man leaves a Chest locked up with another to be kept, and doth not make known to him what is therein; if the Chest and Goods in it are stolen, the Person who receiv'd them shall not be charged for the same, for he was not trusted with them. Ibid. And what is said as to Stealing, is to be understood of all other inevitable Accidents: But it is necessary for a Man that receives Goods to be kept, to receive them in a special Manner, viz. To be kept as his own, or at the Peril of the Owner. 1 Litt. Abr. 193, 194. The Case of a Carrier, Inn-keeper, &c. is different; for as they have their Hire, and thereby implicitly undertake the safe Delivery of the Goods entrusted with them, they shall answer the Value if they are stolen from them. 1 Roll. Abr. 338.

Bairman, A poor insolvent Debtor left bare and naked. — Bairman qui debet fieri, jurabit in Curia quod nihil habet ultra 5. solidos & 5. denarios. Stat. Will. Reg. Scot. cap. 17.

Balkanifer, or Baldakinifer, i. e. A Standard-Bearer; 'tis mentioned in Matt. Paris. Anno 1237. — Ea die Balkanifer, qui ut alii, qui ceciderunt, cruentissimam de se reliquit hostibus victoriam, &c.

Bale, (Fr.) A Pack, or certain Quantity of Goods or Merchandize; as a Bale of Silk, Cloth, &c. This Word is used in the Statute 16 R. 2. and is still in Use.

Balenger, By the Stat. 28 H. 6. cap. 5. seems to have been a Kind of Barge, or Water Vessel. But elsewhere it rather signifies a Man of War, — Tandem pene solus fugiens in Balingario. Walsingham in R. 2. Hostes armaverunt quinque vasa bellica qualia Balingarias appellamus. Ibid.

Baleuga, A Territory or Precinct. — Cum tali Libertate, quod per totam Baleugam possit capere forisfactum suum. Charta Hen. 2. See Bannum & Banleuga.

Balistarius, A Balister or Cross-bow Man. Gerrard de la Warr is recorded to have been Balistarius Domini Regis, &c. 28 & 29 Hen. 3.

Balivo amobendo, A Writ to remove a Bailiff from his Office, for Want of sufficient Land in the Bailiwick. Reg. Orig. 78. For if a Sheriff chuse one to be Bailiff of a Hundred; or if the Lord of a Liberty elect one to be Bailiff of the Liberty, who hath not Land sufficient in the County to answer the King and his People, according to the Statute of Westm. 2. then this Writ shall be sent to the Sheriff to discharge such Bailiff, and chuse another in his Place.

Ballance of Trade, A Computation of the Value of all Commodities which we buy from Foreigners, and on the other Side the Value of our own native Products, with the Overplus of foreign Goods which we export into neighbouring Kingdoms; and the Difference or Excess between the one Side and the other of such Account or Computation, is called the Ballance of Trade: Which Excess can be answered by Us in nothing but our Coin or Bullion. The Overplus of Goods brought from our Colonies in America, and other foreign Parts, with which we supply our Neighbours, bours, is computed in Time of Peace at least to ballance our Trade.

Ballare, Signifies Scopis expurgare. 'Tis mentioned in Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 87.

Ballum, A Sort of Fortrefs or Bulwark. — Eam Civitatem cum exteriori Ballio castri Bellatorum suorum insultibus occupavit. Matt. Westm. Anno 1265.

Ban, or Bans, (Bannum, from the Brit. Ban, i. e. Clamor) Is a Proclamation, or publick Notice given of any Thing; any publick Summons or Edict, whereby a Thing is commanded or forbidden. It is a Word ordinary among the Feudists; and there is both Bannus and Bannum, which signify Two several Things. This Word Bans we use here in England, especially in publishing matrimonial Contracts, which is done in the Church before Marriage, to the End that if any Man can speak against the Intention of the Parties, either in Respect of Kindred, Precontract, or for other just Cause, they may take their Exception in Time, before the Marriage is consummated: And in the Canon Law, Bannæ sunt Proclamationes sponsi & sponse in Ecclesiis fieri solita. But there may be a Faculty or Licence for the Marriage, and then this Ceremony may be omitted; and Ministers are not to celebrate Matrimony between any Persons without a Licence, except the Bans have been first published three several Times, upon Pain of Suspension, &c. Can. 62. See the Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 35.

Bancalt, A Covering of Ease and Ornament for a Bench, or other Seat; it is mentioned in several Places in the Monasticon, Tom. 1. pag. 222. Septem Scamnorum tegmina vulgo Bancalia, &c.

Bane, (from the Sax. Bana, a Murderer) Signifies the Destruction or Overthrow of any Thing: As, I will be the Bane of such a Man, is a common Saying; so when a Person receives a mortal Injury by any Thing, we say, it was his Bane: And he who is the Cause of another Man's Death, is said to be Le Bane, i. e. Malcfactor. Braff. lib. 2. tract. 8. cap. 1.

Baneret, (Banerettus, Eques Vexillarius, or Miles Vexilliferus) Sir Tho. Smith, in his Repub. Angl. cap. 18. says, is a Knight made in the Field, with the Ceremony of cutting off the Point of his Standard, and making it as it were a Banner; and accounted so honourable, that they are allowed to display their Arms in the King's Army as Barons do, and may bear Arms with Supporters. Camden, in his Britan. fol. 109. hath these Words, Baneretti, cum Vassalorum nomen jam desierat, a Baronibus secundi erant; quibus inditum nomen a Vexillo; Concessum illis erat Militaris Virtutis ergo quadrato Vexillo (perinde ac Barones) uti, unde & Equites Vexillarii a nonnullis vocantur, &c. 'Tis said that they were antiently called by Summons to Parliament: And that they are next to the Barons in Dignity, appears by the Statute 14 R. 2. c. 11. and 5 R. 2. Stat. 2. cap. 4. William de la Pole was created Baneret by K. Edward the Third, by Letters Patent, Anno Regni sui 13. And those Banerets who are created sub vexillis Regiis, in exercitu Regali, in aperto Bello, & ipso Rege personaliter presente, explicatis, take Place of all Barons; as we may learn by the Letters Patents for Creation of Barons. 4 Inst. 6. Some maintain that Knights Banerets ought to be made in a Civil War: But Hen. 7. made divers Banerets upon the Cornish Commotion, in the Year 1495. See Selden's Titles of Honour, f. 799.

Banishment, (Fr. Bannissement) Exilium, Abjuratio, is a Forfaking or Quitting of the Realm; and a Kind of Civil Death, inflicted on an Offender for some Crime. There are two Kinds of it, one voluntary and upon Oath, whereof you may read Abjuration; and the other upon Compulsion, for some Offence. Staundf. Pl. Cr. f. 117. By Magna Charta, None shall be outlawed or banished his Country, but by lawful Judgment of his Peers, or according to the Law of the Land. 9 Hen. 3. c. 29. And by the Common Law, no Person shall be banish'd, but by Authority of Parliament; or in Case of Abjuration for Felony, &c. but this is taken away by Statute. 3 Inst. 115. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 28. See Abjuration.

Bank, (Lat. Bancus, Fr. Banque) In our Common Law, is usually taken for a Seat or Bench of Judgment; as Bank le Roy, the King's Bench, Bank de Common Plees, the Bench of Common Pleas, or the Common Bench; called also in Latin Bancus Regis, and Bancus Communium Placitorum. Crompt. Just. 67, 91. Fus Banci, or the Privilege of the Bench, was antiently allowed only to the King's Judges, qui summam administrant justitiam; for inferior Courts were not allowed that Privilege. There is another Sort of Bank, which signifies a Place where a great Sum of Money is let out to Use, returned by Exchange, or otherwise disposed of to Profit: And a Bank of England establish'd by Parliament, with Funds for maintaining thereof, appropriated to such Persons as were Subscribers; and the Capital Stock, which is enlarged by divers Statutes, is exempted from Taxes, accounted a Personal Estate assignable over, not subject to Forfeiture; and the Company make Dividends of the Profits half-yearly, &c. The Funds are redeemable by the Parliament, on paying the Money borrowed. Vide the Statutes 5 & 6, and 8 & 9 W. 3. and 7 Anna, &c. See 1 Geo. c. 12. and 3 Geo. c. 8.

Bankers, The mony'd Goldsmiths first got the Name of Bankers in the Reign of K. Charles the Second, as by the Words of an Act of Parliament, Anno 22 & 23 Car. 2. appears, — Whereas several Persons, being Goldsmiths, and others, by taking up or borrowing great Sums of Money, and lending out the same again for extraordinary Hire and Profit, have gain'd and acquir'd to themselves the Reputation and Name of Bankers, &c. thus runs the Statute: But Bankers of late are those Goldsmiths and private Persons in whose Hands Money is lodged and deposited, to be drawn out again as the Owners have Occasion for it; and the Bankers, instead of lending abroad the Money thus deposited, usually traffick with it in Exchange-Alley on the Stocks, &c. oftentimes to their great Advantage, they being generally Men of great Estates.

Bankrupt, (Bancus ruptus) Is so called, because when the Bank or Stock is broken or exhausted, the Owner is said to be a Bankrupt. And this Word Bankrupt is derived from the Fr. Banqueroute, which signifies a Breaking or Failing in the World: Banque in French is as much as Mensa in Latin, and route is the same as Vestigium; and this Term is said to be taken originally from the Roman Mensarii, which were set in publick Places, and when a Tradesman slipp'd away, with an Intention to deceive his Creditors, he left only some Vestigia or Signs of his Table or Shop behind him. Cowel. But a Bankrupt with us signifieth generally either Man or Woman that living by Buying and Selling hath gotten other other Men's Goods into his or her Hands, and hideth himself in Places unknown, or in his own House, in order to deceive and defraud his Creditors. 4 Inst. 277. And by Statute 1 Fac. 1. cap. 15. a Bankrupt is thus described, viz. All and every Person who shall use the Trade of Merchandize, by Way of Bargaining, Exchange, Bartering, or otherwise in Gross, or by Seeking his or her Living by Buying and Selling, who shall depart his House, or absent himself, or suffer himself to be arrested for any Debt, or other Thing not grown due, for Money delivered, Wares sold, or other good Consideration; or shall suffer himself to be outlawed, or go to Prison, or fraudulently procure himself to be arrested, or his Money or Goods attached; or make any fraudulent Conveyance of his Lands, Goods, or Chattels, whereby his Creditors may be defeated in the Recovery of their just Debts; or being arrested for Debt, shall lie in Prison six Months, or more, upon such Arrest or Detention, shall be adjudged a Bankrupt. The 21 Fac. 1. c. 19. hath other Descriptions of a Bankrupt; but they are declared void by a late Statute. It is not Buying and Selling of Land, but of Personal Things, that will make a Man liable to be a Bankrupt; nor is it Buying only, or Selling only, but both Buying and Selling. Every one that gets his Living by Buying and Selling in Trade and Merchandize, may come under the Denomination of a Bankrupt, upon his Failing therein. But Adventurers in the East-India Company, Members of the Bank of England, of the South-Sea Company, and of other Societies, shall not be adjudged Bankrupts, in Respect of their Stock, &c. Also no Person concerned as Receiver General of Taxes, &c. shall be a Bankrupt: And Farmers, Graziers, &c. are excepted out of the Statutes; as Buying and Selling is not their only or principal Means of Livelihood. 14 Car. 2. 9 & 10 W. 3. 7 Annæ, &c. An Inn-keeper is not within the Statutes, for tho' he buys Provision to be spent in his House, yet he doth not properly sell it, but utters it to his Guests at no certain Price. Cro. Car. 395. And a Taylor is not within the Statutes of Bankrupts, because he lives by Making of Garments, and not by Buying and Selling. A Shoemaker hath been adjudged within the Statutes, as he lives by his Credit in buying Leather, and Selling it again in Shoes, &c. And Carpenters in London, Weavers, Dyers, Tanners, Bakers, Brewers, Vintners, &c. may be Bankrupts: But Handicraftsmen, Husbandmen, Labourers, &c. are not within the Statutes. Cro. Car. 21. Cro. Fac. 585. 3 Mod. 330. A Feme sole Merchant in London may be a Bankrupt. If a Merchant gives over his Trade, and some Years after becomes nonsolvent for Money he owed while a Merchant, he is a Bankrupt: But if it be for new Debts, or old Debts continued on new Security, it is otherwise. 1 Ventr. 5. 29. If after a plain Act of Bankruptcy, one goes abroad and is a great Dealer, yet this will not purge the first Act of Bankruptcy; tho' if he pays off or compounds with his Creditors, he is become a new Man. Trin. 2 Ann. 1 Salk. 110. A Man born in England goes over to Ireland, and there trades and buys Goods in England, and sells them in Ireland, and being indebted in England becomes Bankrupt, adjudg'd a Bankrupt in England. Raym. 375. A Gentleman of the Temple went to Lisbon, and traded to England and broke; it was adjudged he was a Bankrupt by Reason of his Trading hither and back again, which gain'd him Credit here, tho' he was out of the Realm. Salk. 110. Where there are two Partners in Trade, and one breaks, you shall not charge the other with the Whole; but the Estate belonging to the joint Trade ought to be divided, &c. Mod. Rep. 45. Acts discharging Bankrupts, shall not discharge any Partner in Trade, or one jointly bound with the Bankrupt. 1 Danv. Abr. 686. A Merchant Trader indebted, keeps in another Man's House, or on Ship-board, adjudged a Keeping in his House: But a Withdrawing must be on Purpose to defraud Creditors; and if a Man goes sometimes at large, so as he may be met with one Time or other, it will excuse him. The Commissioners of Bankrupt have the Power to adjudge a Man a Bankrupt; yet in an Action the Jury must find whether he was so, or not. 1 Danv. 687. He that is a Bankrupt to one Creditor, is accounted in Law a Bankrupt to all the Creditors; and being once adjudged so, is always so to the Rest of the Creditors. 22 Car. 1. B. R. Commissioners may commit a Bankrupt refusing to be examined, &c. till he submit himself to be examined. 1 Salk. 151. But the Commissioners are not to commit a Bankrupt for not discovering his Estate, without Examining him on Interrogatories. 1 Lill. Abr. 202. They are to examine the Bankrupt upon Interrogatories; and they have Power to examine others, as to what they know of any Person's carrying away any Part of the Bankrupt's Estate. 5 Mod. 309. Commissioners of Bankrupt have Power to sell, grant, and assign, but they cannot bring an Action; for their Assignees must bring all Actions. 1 Mod. 30. The Creditors have a Right to the Bankrupt's Goods, by the Act of Bankruptcy, and thereby they are bound: Tho' until Assignment by the Commissioners, the Property is not transferred out of the Bankrupt. 1 Salk. 108. The Commissioners are to sell all the Bankrupt's Lands in Fee, for Life, or Years, &c. and it will be binding against the Bankrupt and his Issue, &c. 1 Lill. Abr. 204. They may sell all entailed Lands in Possession, Reversion, or Remainder, except entailed in the Crown, of the Gift of the King; and this shall bind the Issue in Tail, and all others, which a Common Recovery might cut off. Ibid. 205. But Sales of the Bankrupt's Lands by Commissioners, are to be by Deed inrolled. If a Bankrupt grant his Lands or Goods in the Names of other Persons, the Commissioners notwithstanding may make Sale of them: But not Lands, &c. conveyed Bona fide before the Party became a Bankrupt. Wood's Inst. 310. And no Purchase of Lands shall be impeached, unless the Commission of Bankrupt be sued out within five Years after a Man becomes Bankrupt. Lands held by a Bankrupt in Jointenancy, may be sold as to the Moiety: Also Lands which a Person hath in Right of his Wife, (but not her Dower) Lands devised to a Bankrupt, the Commissioners may sell. The Commissioners have Power to sell Lands mortgaged, on Tender and Payment of the Mortgage-Money. 2 Rep. 25. And Assignees of the Commissioners have the Benefit of Covenants of Re-entry, &c. on Lands. If a Bankrupt commits Felony, it is said his Land shall not escheat, but the Commissioners may sell it: And his Creditors shall have his Goods, not the King. Stone 126, 130. All the Goods and Chattels of the Bankrupt, which he was possessed of at the Time of his becoming Bankrupt, may be sold by the Commissioners; and notwithstanding the Bankrupt sell them in Market overt. Sale of Goods by a Bankrupt, after an Act of Bankruptcy, may be avoided by the Commissioners of Bankruptcy; and they may bring Trover for the Goods, or Debt, or Assumpsit for the Value, &c. 3 Salk. 60. Offices of Inheritance may be sold; but not Offices of Trust, annexed to the Person for Life. Assignees may bring Actions for Debts due to the Bankrupt in their own Names, &c. But if the Commission be not taken out within six Years, directed by Law for suing of Debts, and the Assignment made within that Time, a Defendant in an Action may plead the Statute of Limitations: If the Commission be taken out in six Years, the Statute preserves the Debt, being to relieve Creditors against Fraud, &c. 1 Saund. 37. When Money is obtained by Judgment in Action of Debt, and the Plaintiff becomes Bankrupt, and a Commission of Bankruptcy is taken out against him, tho' the Sheriff may bring the Money into Court, it shall be delivered to the Plaintiff, and not the Assignee of the Commission; unless he take out a Scire facias against the Defendant, in order to try the Bankruptcy. 1 Ventr. 193. A Plaintiff that hath a Defendant's Body in Execution, who becomes Bankrupt, shall not come in to be relieved by the Statutes: But if the Plaintiff recover Damages, &c. against the Defendant, and hath Judgment, and then the Defendant becomes Bankrupt, the Plaintiff is a Creditor, for it is a Debt due to him, and Action of Debt lies on the Judgment. 1 Cro. 166. If a Debtor to a Bankrupt pays him his Debt voluntarily, he must pay it over again; but 'tis otherwise in Case of Payment by Compulsion of Law. 2 Ventr. 258. Where one trusts a Bankrupt after he becomes such, he shall not be relieved as a Creditor. Sureties or Bail, when they have paid the Debt, may come in as Creditors: But Mortgagees, or Persons that have a Pledge of the Bankrupt's Goods, having Security for their Debts in their Hands, are not Creditors within the Statutes. Those that attach Goods of the Bankrupt, are to come in as Creditors. If an Executor becomes Bankrupt, a Legatee is to be Creditor. And Aliens as well as Denizens may come in as Creditors; for all Statutes concerning Bankrupts extend to Aliens, who shall be subject to the Laws against Bankrupts, &c. Hob. 287. Stat. 21 Fac. 1. The Commissioners, after Sale of the Bankrupt's Estate, are to make Distribution among the Creditors contributing to the Commission, first making the Bankrupt his Allowance, &c. And in the Distribution of the Bankrupt's Estate, no Respect is to be had to Debts upon Judgment, Recognizances, or Specialties, beyond other Debts. After four Months, and Distribution made, no Creditor can come in to disturb it; but he may come in for the Residue, of which no Distribution is made. 1 Danv. 693. And the Court of Chancery hath sometimes allowed Creditors to come in after Distribution, upon particular Circumstances which have happened; and the Lord Chancellor order'd the Execution of the Commission to be suspended. Chan. Rep. 307. If Commissioners refuse to pay a Creditor his proportionable Part, he may bring Action of Debt, or be more properly relieved in Chancery: Where the Commissioners do not pursue the Acts of their Commission, the Party injured must bring his Action, and set forth the Finding of the Commissioners, that the Debtor is a Bankrupt. But if a Commission is not duly obtained against a Person, he may traverse, by Saying he is not a Bankrupt. 8 Rep. 121. By 1 Fac. 1. c. 15. In Actions against Commissioners, or others under them, executing any Matter by Force of the 13 Eliz. or that Statute, the Defendants may plead Not guilty, or justify that it was done by the Authority of those Acts, &c. without shewing forth the Commission; to which the Plaintiff may reply, that the Defendant did the Fact of his Wrong, &c. 1 Danv. 694. The Statutes concerning Bankrupts are 34 H. 8. 13 Eliz. 1 Fac. 1. 21 Fac. 1. 4 & 5 Ann. 5, 6 & 7 Geo. By the 34 H. 8. c. 4. The Lord Chancellor, Treasurer, &c. is to take Order with the Bankrupt's Body, Lands and Goods. The 13 Eliz. c. 7. gives Power to the Lord Chancellor, upon Complaint in Writing against a Bankrupt, to appoint Commissioners to sell the Bankrupt's Lands, as well Copy as Free, Annuities, Goods, Chattels, Debts, &c. By 1 Fac. 1. c. 15. Commissioners may assign Debts, &c. to the Creditors, and proceed to Execution, tho' the Bankrupt dies; Persons suspected to detain any of the Bankrupt's Estate may be arrested, and still refusing to deliver them, shall be committed; Creditors shall be received if they come in within four Months: And the Commissioners are to render the Bankrupt an Account, &c. The 21 Fac. 1. c. 19. inflicts a Punishment of Pillory on Bankrupts fraudulently concealing their Effects; and gives the Commissioners Power to break open the Bankrupt's House, Chests, &c. for Discovery of Goods; and another Person's Goods in the Bankrupt's Possession, as his own to sell, &c. shall be disposed of by the Commissioners. The 4 & 5 Ann. enacts, that Bankrupts are to surrender themselves to be examined in thirty Days, and discover and deliver up to the Commissioners all their Goods, Papers, and Estate, or suffer as Felons; but the Lord Chancellor may enlarge the Time to sixty Days. Upon the Certificate of the Commissioners, the Bankrupt is to be apprehended: And the Commissioners are to assign the Bankrupt's Effects to such Persons as shall be chosen by a major Part of the Creditors; who may compound with Debtors, &c. By the 5 Geo. c. 24. it is ordained, that Bankrupts, within thirty Days after Notice, (which is to be given in the Gazette) shall surrender themselves to the Commissioners, and conform to the Acts, or they will be guilty of Felony: Also their Concealing Goods to the Value of 20 l. is made Felony. The Commissioners are to call before them Persons as can give an Account of Acts of Bankruptcy: And Trustees for the Bankrupt, and others concealing his Estate, are to discover Trusts, &c. or forfeit 100 l. and double Value. But Persons discovering the Bankrupt's Estate are allow'd 3 l. per Cent. for such Discovery. There shall be three several Meetings appointed by the Commissioners; and the Commissioners are to certify to the Lord Chancellor, that the Bankrupt hath conform'd, and four Parts in Five in Number and Value, of the Creditors must sign the Bankrupt's Certificate. None are to vote for the Choice of Assignees, whose Debt doth not amount to 10 l. and no Commission shall issue, except the Debt of one Creditor petitioning amounts to 100 l. of two Creditors 150 l. or of three Creditors to 200 l. And Bond is to be given of 200 l. Penalty for proving the Party a Bankrupt. Bankrupts conforming are to have an Allowance of 5 l. per Cent. not exceeding 200 l. where their Estates pay 8 s. in the Pound, &c. The 6 Geo. c. 21. empowers any Judge

Judge of the Court wherein Judgment has been obtained against a Bankrupt, for any Debt owing before he became a Bankrupt, the Bankrupt being in Prison in Execution on such Judgment, to discharge such Bankrupt on producing his Certificate. And by 7 Geo. cap. 31. Persons having Bills, Notes, &c. upon Bankrupts, payable at a Day to come, shall be admitted to prove them as if due presently, and be entitled to a Dividend of the Bankrupt's Estate, allowing a Discount of 5 l. per Cent. and Bankrupts shall be discharged from such Notes: But no Creditor in Respect of such Debt shall join in any Petition for suing forth any Commission of Bankruptcy, till the Debt is actually due. In Order to the Taking out a Commission of Bankrupt, it is usual first for a Creditor to make Affidavit before a Master in Chancery, that the Party is indebted in a Sum sufficient to make him a Bankrupt; then to petition the Lord Chancellor for the Commission; give Bond to prove the Person a Bankrupt, &c. And next follows the Commission, directed to five Commissioners, (whereof two are to be Esquires of the Quorum): And when the Commission is executed, and the Party hath conformed to the Statutes, his Certificate is granted and allowed, &c. If where there are two Joint Traders, one of them becomes a Bankrupt, it shall not affect his Companion. 3 Salk. 61.

Affidavit of a Debt to make the Party a Bankrupt.

A. B. of, &c. maketh Oath that C. D. of, &c. is truly and justly indebted to him this Deponent (one of the Creditors) in the Sum of 100 l. and upwards; and that he is become a Bankrupt within the Meaning of one or some of the Statutes made against Bankrupts, as this Deponent believes.
Jurat' die, &c. coram, &c. A. B.

A Petition to the Lord Chancellor for a Commission.

Humbly Complaining, Sheweth unto your Lordship, your Orator A. B. of, &c. as well for himself, as all other the Creditors of C. D. of, &c. That whereas the said C. D. using and exercising the Trade of, &c. by Way of Bargaining, Selling, Exchanging and Bartering, &c. and seeking his Living by Buying and Selling, upon just and good Causes, for Wares and Merchandizes to him sold and delivered, and also for ready Money to him lent, &c. being indebted to your Orator in the Sum of 100 l. and upwards, of late, that is to say, on or about, &c. last past, to the Intent to defraud and hinder your said Orator, and other his Creditors of their just Debts and Duties to them due and owing, did become Bankrupt within the several Statutes made against Bankrupts, viz. within the Statute made in the Parliament begun and holden at Westminster, the Day, &c. in the thirteenth Year of the Reign of Queen Elizabeth concerning Bankrupts; and within the Statute made in the Parliament, begun and holden, &c. (here set forth all the Statutes of Bankrupts) or within some or one of them: In tender Consideration whereof, may it please your Lordship to grant unto your Orator his Majesty's most gracious Commission, to be directed to such and so many honest and discreet Persons, as to your Lordship shall seem meet, authorizing them thereby not only concerning the said Bankrupt, his Body, Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels, Debts and other Things whatsoever, but also concerning all other Persons, who by Concealment, Claim, or otherwise, do or shall offend touching the Premises, or any Part thereof, contrary to the true Intent and Meaning of the said Statutes, or any of them: And also to do and execute all and every Thing and Things whatsoever, as well for and towards Satisfaction and Payment of the said Creditors, as towards and for all other Intents and Purposes, according to the Direction and Provision of the said Statutes.

And your Orator shall ever pray, &c.

A Bond to the Lord Chancellor on granting the Commission.

Overint universi per presentes me A. B. de, &c. teneri & firmiter obligari prebonorabili Petro Dom. King Baron. de, &c. Domino Cancellario Magn. Britann. in Ducent. libris bonæ & legalis Monete hujus Regni Solvend. eidem Domino Cancellario aut suo certo Attornato Executoribus Administratoribus vel Assignatis suis ad quam quidem solutionem bene & fideliter faciend. obligo me Hæredes Executores & Administratores meos firmiter per presentes Sigillo meo Sigillat. Dat. Die, &c. Anno Regni Dom. Georgii, &c. Annoq. Dom. &c.

The Condition of this Obligation is such, That if the above bound A. B. do and shall before the major Part of the Commissioners to be appointed in a Commission of Bankrupt against C. D. of, &c. prove that the said C. D. is justly indebted unto the said A. B. in the Sum of 100 l. And in like Manner prove that the said C. D. is become a Bankrupt within some or one of the Statutes made against Bankrupts; then this Obligation to be void, or else to remain, &c.

Form of a Commission of Bankrupt.

George by the Grace of God, King of Great Britain, &c. To our Trusty and well-beloved G. C. H. S. H. B. J. T. J. C. &c. Greeting: Whereas we are informed that C. D. of, &c. using and exercising the Trade of, &c. by Way of Bargaining, Exchange, Bartery, &c. seeking his Living by Buying and Selling, did about six Months since become Bankrupt within the several Statutes made against Bankrupts, to the Intent to defraud and hinder A. B. of, &c. and other his Creditors of their just Debts and Duties to them due and owing: We therefore minding the due Execution as well of the Statute touching Orders for Bankrupts made in the Parliament, begun and holden at Westminster, the Day, &c. in the thirteenth Year of the Reign of Elizabeth Queen of England made and provided, as of the Statute made in the Parliament, begun and holden at Westminster, the Day, &c. in the first Year of King James of England, &c. intituled, An Act, &c. And also of the Statute made in the Parliament, begun and holden, &c. in the twenty-first Year of the said King James of England, &c. And also of the Statute made in the Parliament, holden, &c. in the fourth Year of the Reign of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, &c. And also of the Statute made, &c. in the fifth Year of our Reign, &c. Upon Trust of and in the Wisdom and Fidelity which we have conceived in you, do by these Presents assign, appoint, constitute and ordain you our special Commissioners for the Purpose aforesaid, giving full Power and Authority unto you, or four or three of you to proceed according to the said Statutes, and every or any of them, not only concerning the said Bankrupt, his Body, Lands and Tenements, Goods, Chattels, Debts, and other Things whatsoever; but also concerning all other Persons, who by Concealment, Claim or otherwise do or shall offend touching the Premises, misses, or any Part thereof, contrary to the Intent and Meaning of the said Statutes, or any of them : And to do and execute all and every Thing and Things whatsoever, as well for and towards Satisfaction and Payment of the said Creditors, as towards and for all other Intents and Purposes, according to the Ordinances and Provisions of the same Statutes ; willing and commanding you four or three of you to proceed to the Execution of this our Commission, according to the true Intent and Meaning of the said Statutes, with all Diligence and Effect. Witness our self at Westminster, the Day, &c. in the, &c. Year of our Reign.

Form of a Bankrupt's Certificate.

To the Right Honourable Peter Lord King, Lord Chancellor of Great Britain.

WE G. C. H. S. H. B. &c. the major Part of the Commissioners assigned and authorized in and by a Commission of Bankrupt awarded against C. D. of, &c. bearing Date at Westminster, the Day of, &c. last past, having begun to execute the said Commission, and found that the said C. D. became a Bankrupt before the Date and Suing out of the said Commission, within the true Intent and Meaning of one or some of the Statutes made against Bankrupts, do humbly certify to your Lordship that the said C. D. did on, &c. surrender himself to us, and submit himself to be examined on Oath before us, from Time to Time, and in all Things to conform himself to an Act made in the fourth and fifth Years of her late Majesty Queen Anne, intituled, An Act to prevent Frauds frequently committed by Bankrupts, &c. And to the several other Statutes made against Bankrupts : Whereupon and for the better Discovery of the said Bankrupt's Estate, and putting in Execution the said Acts, We the said G. C. H. S. H. B. &c. have had several Meetings for the Examination of the said C. D. and caused due Notice to be published in the Gazette of the Time and Place when and where we intended to finish his said Examination, to the Intent that the Creditors of the said C. D. might be heard against the Making this present Certificate, and also admitted to prove their Debts : And several Creditors having proved their Debts, and none shewn any Cause against the Making of this Certificate : We do therefore further certify to your Lordship, that the said C. D. hath upon such Examination made a Discovery of his Estate and Effects, and in all Things conformed himself according to the Direction of the said late Acts ; and that there doth not appear to us any Reason to doubt the Truth of such Discovery, or that the same is not a full Discovery of all the Estate and Effects of the said C. D. And the rather, for that the Persons who have signed this Certificate, testifying their Consents to the same, are full four Parts in Five, in Number and Value, of the Creditors of the said C. D. who have duly proved their said Debts. Witness our Hands and Seals, &c.

Bargain and Sale, Is an Instrument whereby the Property of Lands or Tenements is for valuable Consideration granted and transferred from one Person to another : It is called a Real Contract, upon a valuable Consideration, for passing of Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, by Deed indented and inrolled. 2 Inst. 612. Accomp. Conv. 1 Vol. 62. And it is also where a Recompence is given by both the Parties to the Bargain ; as if one bargains and sells his Land to another for Money ; here the Land is a Recompence to him for the Money, and the Money a Recompence to the other for the Land. 1 Lill. Abr. 206. Bargains and Sales of Lands are to be in Writing indented, and inrolled in one of the Courts at Westminster, or in the County where the Lands lie, before the Custos Rotulorum, Justices of the Peace, &c. And the Inrollment shall be made within six Months after the Date of the Deeds. Stat. 27 H. 8. cap. 16. But this Statute extends to Bargains and Sales of Inheritance and Freehold only ; and not to Bargains and Sales for Years, &c. for they are good though not inrolled, nor by Deed indented, &c. 2 Rep. 36. Houses and Lands in London, and any City, &c. are exempted out of the Statute of Inrollments. 2 Inst. 676. 1 Nels. Abr. 342. If two Bargains and Sales are made of the same Land to two several Persons, and the last Deed is first inrolled ; if afterwards the first Deed is also inrolled within six Months, the first Buyer shall have the Land ; for when the Deed is inrolled, the Bargainee is seised of the Land from the Delivery of the Deed, and the Inrollment shall relate to it. Wood's Inst. 259. Neither the Death of the Bargainor or Bargainee, before the Inrollment of the Deed of Bargain and Sale, will hinder the Passing of the Estate to the Bargainee : But the Estate of Freehold is in the Bargainor, until the Deed is inrolled ; so that the Bargainee cannot bring any Action of Trespass pass before Entry had ; though 'tis said he may surrender, assign, alien, &c. 2 Cro. 52. 1 Inst. 147. A Bargainee shall have Rent which incurs after the Bargain and Sale, and before the Inrollment. Sid. 310. Upon the Inrollment of the Deed, the Estate settles ab initio, by the Stat. 27 H. 8. And the Statute of Inrollments says, that it shall not vest, except the Deed be inrolled ; and when it is inrolled, the Estate vests presently, by the Statute of Uses. 1 Danv. Abr. 696. Every Deed may be inrolled at Common Law, for its Security. If several seal a Deed of Bargain and Sale, and but one acknowledge it, and thereupon the Deed is inrolled ; this is a good Inrollment within the Statute. Style 462. None can make a Bargain and Sale of Lands that hath not the actual Possession thereof at the Time of the Sale ; if he hath not the actual Possession, the Deed must be sealed upon the Land, to make it good. 2 Inst. 672. 1 Lill. 209. Bargain and Sale of Lands, passes the Freehold, and likewise Reversions and Remainders, without Livery and Seisin. 8 Rep. 93. But a Bargain and Sale of Lands for Money, may not be made to one Man, to the Use of another, but only to the Bargainee. A Man bargains and sells his Land for Money by Deed inrolled to another, to hold to the Bargainee in Fee, to the Use of the Bargainor for Life, &c. or to the Use of any other, this Limitation of the Uses is void, and it shall be to the Use of the Bargainee in Fee, because the Consideration and Sale implies the Use to be to him only. Benl. Rep. 61. There must be a good Consideration given, or at least said to be given for Lands in these Deeds ; and for a competent Sum of Money, is a good Consideration ; but not the general Words for divers Considerations, &c. Mod. Ca. 777. Where Money is mentioned to be paid in a Bargain and Sale, and in Truth no Money is paid, some of our Books tell us this may be a good Bargain and Sale ; because no Averment will lie against that which is expressly affirmed by the Deed, except it comes to be questioned whether fraudulent or no, upon the Statute against fraudulent Deeds. Dyer 90. If no Consideration of Money is expressed in a Deed of Bargain and Sale, it may be supplied by an Averment that it was made for Money. And after a Verdict on a Trial, it shall be intended that Evidence was given at the Trial of Money paid. 1 Ventr. 108. If Lands are bargained and sold for Money only, the Deed is to be inrolled according to the Statute ; but if it be in Consideration of Money, and natural Affection, &c. the Estate will pass without it. 2 Inst. 672. 1 Lev. 56. All Things, for the most Part, that are grantable by Deed in any other Way, are grantable by Bargain and Sale ; and Lands, Rents, Advowsons, Tithes, &c. may be granted by it, in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, &c. 1 Rep. 176. 11 Rep. 25. But if Tenant for Life bargains and sells his Land by Deed inrolled, it will be a Forfeiture of his Estate. 4 Leon. 251. The very Words Bargain and Sell are not of absolute Necessity in this Deed ; for other Words equivalent will suffice, as if a Man seized of Land in Fee by the Words Alien or Grant, sell the same to another, the Deed being made in Consideration of Money, and indented and inrolled, will be an effectual Bargain and Sale. 9 Rep. 94. 7 Rep. 40. And the Words Demise and Grant, in Consideration of Money paid, amount to a Bargain and Sale. Warranty and Covenants may be inserted in a Bargain and Sale ; but the Deed is good without any such Addition. In pleading these Deeds, the Deed it self must be shewn under Seal. 1 Inst. 225. And it must be set forth that the Inrollment was within six Months, or secundum formam Statuti, &c.

Form of a Bargain and Sale of Lands.

Barkary,

Barkary, (Barkaria, corticulus) A Tan-house, or Place to keep Bark in for the Use of Tanners. New Book Entr. Tit. Assise Corp. Polit. 2.

Baron, (Baro) Is a French Word, and hath divers Significations here in England. First it is taken for a Degree of Nobility next to a Viscount. Bracton lib. 1. cap. 8. says, they are called Barones, quasi robur Belli. In which Signification it agrees with other Nations, where Baronia are as much as Provincia: So that Barons are such as have the Government of Provinces, as their Fee holden of the King, some having greater, and others less Authority within their Territories. It is probable, that of Old in this Kingdom, all those were called Barons that had such Seigniories or Lordships as we now call Courts-Baron; as they are at this Day called Seigneurs in France, who have any such Manor or Lordship: And soon after the Conquest, all such came to Parliament, and sat as Peers in the Lords House. But when by Experience it appeared that the Parliament was too much thronged by these Barons, who were very numerous, it was in the Reign of King John ordained that none but the Barones Majores should come to Parliament, who for their extraordinary Wisdom, Interest or Quality, should be summoned by Writ. After this, Men observing the Estate of Nobility to be but casual, and depending merely upon the King's Will, they obtained of the King Letters Patent of this Dignity to them and their Heirs Male, who were called Barons by Letters Patent, or by Creation, whose Posterity are now by Inheritance those Barons that are called Lords of the Parliament; of which Kind the King may create at his Pleasure. Nevertheless there are still Barons by Writ, as well as Barons by Letters Patent: And those Barons who were first by Writ, may now justly also be called Barons by Prescription, for that they and their Ancestors have continued Barons beyond the Memory of Man. The Calling up by Writ is at this Day seldom practised, unless it be to summon the Son of some Lord to Parliament, in the Life-time of his Ancestor; for Creation by Letters Patent is almost altogether in Use. 2 Inst. 48. The Original of Barons by Writ, Camden refers to King Hen. 3. and Barons by Letters Patent, or Creation, commenced 11 Rich. 2. Camd. Britain. p. 109. To these are added a third Kind of Baron, called Barons by Tenure, which are some of our antient Barons; and likewise the Bishops, who by Virtue of Baronies annexed to their Bishopricks, always had Place in the Lords House of Parliament, as Barons by Succession. Seager of Honour, lib. 4. cap. 13. There are also Barons by Office; as the Barons of the Exchequer, Barons of the Cinque Ports, &c. of which you may read under their proper Heads. In antient Records, the Word Baron included all the Nobility of England, because regularly all Noblemen were Barons, though they had a higher Dignity; and therefore the Charter of King Ed. 1. which is an Exposition of what relates to Barons in Magna Charta, concludes Testibus Archiepiscopis, Episcopis, Baronibus, &c. And the Great Council of the Nobility, when they consisted of besides Earls, and Barons, Dukes, Marquesses, &c. were all comprehended under the Name De la Councell de Baronage. Glanv. cap. 4. These Barons have given them two Ensigns to remind them of their Duties; first a long Robe of Scarlet, in Respect whereof they are accounted De Magno Concilio Regis; and secondly, they are girt with a Sword, that they should ever be ready to defend their King and Country. 2 Inst. 5. A Baron is Vir Notabilis & Principalis: And the Chief Burgeesses of London were in former Times Barons, before there was a Lord Mayor, as appears by the City Seal, and their ancient Charters.

— Henricus 3. Rex. Sciatis nos concessisse & hac presenti Charta nostra confirmasse Baronibus nostris de Civitate nostra London quod Eligant sibi Mayor de seipsis singulis annis, &c. Spelm. Gloss. The Earl Palatines and Marches of England, had antiently their Barons under them; but no Barons but those as held immediately of the King, were Peers of the Realm. 'Tis certain the King's Tenants were called Barons; as we may find in Mat. Paris. and other Writers: And in Days of old, all Men were stiled Barons; but this, I take it, was only a Term in our Law, not a Title of Nobility.

Barony, (Baronia) Is that Honour and Territory which gives Title to a Baron: And under this Notion are comprehended not only the Fees and Lands of Temporal Barons, but of Bishops also who have two Estates; one as they are spiritual Persons, by Reason of their spiritual Revenues and Promotions; the other grew from the Bounty of our English Kings, whereby they have Baronies and Lands added to their spiritual Livings and Preferments. The Baronies belonging to Bishops are by some called Regalia, because ex sola liberalitate Regum eis olim concessa & a Regibus in feudum tenentur. Blount. Barony, Bracton says, (lib. 2. cap. 34.) is a Right indivisible; and therefore, if an Inheritance be to be divided among Coparceners, though some capital Messuages may be divided, yet si capitale Messuagium sit caput Comitatus vel caput Baronie, they may not be parcelled. In some Cases a Barony may be aliened, or entailed, and the Honour pass accordingly. In antient Times thirteen Knights-Fees and a Quarter made a Tenure per Baroniam, which amounted to 400 Marks per Annum.

Baronet, (Baronetus) Is a Dignity or Degree of Honour, which hath Precedency before all Knights, as Knights of the Bath, Knights-Bachelors, &c. except Bannerets, made Sub vexillis Regis in exercitu Regali, in aperto Bello, & ipso Rege personaliter presente. This Order of Baronets was instituted by King James 1. in the Year 1611. with such Precedency as aforesaid, and other Privileges, &c. Their Number at first was but two Hundred; but now they are without Limitation: They are created by Patent, with an Habendum sibi & Hæredibus masculis, &c. And their Dignity on its first Institution, was a Kind of purchased Honour, by Men of great Estates qualified for Titles.

Baron and feme, Are Husband and Wife, by our Law; and they are adjudged but one Person: Bracton saith, Vir & Uxor sunt quasi unica persona, quia caro una & sanguis unus. Bract. lib. 5. fol. 416. A Wife cannot be a Witness against or for her Husband, nor he against or for her, (except in Case of High Treason) because they are due animæ in una Carne. 1 Nels. Abr. 349. At Common Law a Man could neither in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, limit an Estate to his Wife; but by Stat. 27 H. 8. A Man may covenant with other Persons to stand seised to the Use of his Wife; or may make any other Conveyance to her Use; but he may not covenant with his Wife to stand seised to her Use, for for they are one Person in Law. A Man may devise Lands by Will to his Wife, because the Devise doth not take Effect till after his Death. Co. Lit. 112. Agreements between Baron and Feme before Marriage, are by the Marriage generally extinguished: But if a Person, in Consideration of Marriage, promise to leave his Wife worth so much at his Death, this being no Duty in the Life-time of the Husband, is not extinguished by the Marriage. Cro. Jac. 571, 623. A Wife cannot devise Lands to her Husband: For a Feme Covert cannot make a Will, as she is so entirely under the Power of her Husband, that what she doth cannot be called her Will. Nelf. Abr. 347. A Wife is sub Potestate viri, and therefore her Acts shall not bind her, unless she levy a Fine, &c. when she is examined in Private whether she doth it freely or by Compulsion of the Husband: If Baron and Feme levy a Fine, this will bar the Feme: And where the Feme is examined by Writ, she shall be bound; else not. 1 Lant. Abr. 708. Therefore where Baron and Feme acknowledge a Deed to be inrolled, or a Statute, &c. this will not bind the Feme, because she is not examined by Writ. A Wife is disabled to make Contradictions, &c. 3 Inst. 110. And if a married Woman enters into Bond as Feme sole, if she is sued as Feme sole, she may plead Non est factum, and the Coverture will avoid her Bond. 1 Lill. Abr. 217. By Marriage, the Husband hath Power over his Wife's Person; and he may correct his Wife. Dalt. 284. But if he threaten to kill her, &c. she may make him find Surety of the Peace. F. N. B. 80. He hath likewise Power over the Wife's Estate; and if she have Fee, he gaineth a Freehold in her Right; he also gaineth her Chattels Real, as Terms for Years, &c. and all Chattels Personal, in Possession of the Wife, are the Husband's: But where the Wife is out of Possession, or is possessed only as Executrix, or the Chattels are Debts and Things in Action, if they are not recovered by him and his Wife, the Husband shall not have them. 1 Inst. 299, 351. Though Money charged on Lands, is not in Nature of a Chose in Action, but of Rent, and is given to the Husband by the Inter-marriage. 1 Chan. Rep. 189. If Lands be given to a Man, and such a Woman who shall be his Wife, the Man shall have the Whole: But if a Feoffment be made to the Use of the Feoffee, and his Wife that shall be, the Wife he afterwards marries shall take jointly with him. 1 Rep. 101. If Baron and Feme are Jointenants for Years, the Baron may dispose of the Whole: And if the Baron hath a Term in the Right of his Feme, he may grant over the Whole. 1 Danv. 702. But he cannot dispose of it by Will, if he doth not survive her. 1 Inst. 46, 184. And as the Husband surviving the Wife, shall enjoy her Term, against her Executors: So if the Wife survive her Husband, she shall have her Term for Years, or other Chattels Real again, if the Husband hath not alter'd the Property. 1 Inst. 351. And if the Husband charges the Chattel Real of his Wife with a Rent, &c. if he survives him, it will not bind her; for she shall hold it discharg'd, as she comes in Paramount to the Charge. A Husband possessed of a Term in his Wife's Right, may make a Lease for Years of the Land, rendering Rent to his Executors or Assigns, to commence after his Death. 1 Nelf. Abr. 344. But if a Lease be conveyed by a Feme sole in Trust for the Use of her self, if she afterwards marries, it cannot be disposed of by the Husband: If she dies, he shall not have it, but the Executors of the Wife. Mar. b. 44. A Husband cannot alien the Wife's Lands, but by Fine wherein she joins; if he doth, she may recover them after his Death by Cui in vita. And by Statute, where a Husband makes Leases of his Wife's Lands, for twenty-one Years, &c. she is to be made a Party, and the Rent reserved to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Wife, &c. This is of Leases of Lands of the Wife's Inheritance. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 28. If a Feme having a Rent for Life takes Husband, the Baron shall have Action of Debt for the Rent incurred during the Coverture, after the Death of the Feme. 1 Danv. 719. And Arrears due in the Life-time of the Husband, after his Death, shall survive to the Wife, if she outlives him, and her Administrators after her Death. 2 Lutw. 1151. A Feme Lessee for Life, rendering Rent, takes Husband and dies, the Baron shall be charged in Action of Debt, for the Rent which was grown due during the Coverture, because he took the Profits out of which the Rent ought to issue. Keilw. 125. Raym. 6. But if such a Feme Lessee takes Baron and dies, 'tis said the Baron shall not be charged for Waste during the Coverture; for he was never Lessee. 1 Danv. 718. The Baron may have an Action alone upon the Stat. 5 R. 2. for Entering into the Land of the Feme; Trespass and taking Charters of the Inheritance of the Feme; Quare Impedit, &c. But for personal Torts, they must join, though the Baron is to have the Damages. 1 Danv. 709. 1 Roll. Rep. 360. The Husband is to join in Actions for Battery to the Wife: And a Wife may not bring any Action for Wrong to her, without her Husband; though when they join in Action, Damage is to be laid only to the Husband. 1 Inst. 326, 132. For an Injury done to the Wife alone, Action cannot be maintained by the Husband alone, without her; but for a Loss and Injury done to the Husband, in depriving him of the Conversation and Service of his Wife, he alone may bring an Action; and these Actions are laid for Assault, and detaining the Wife, Per quod Consortium amisit, &c. 2 Cro. 538. For taking any Thing from the Wife, the Husband only is to bring the Action, who has the Property; for the Wife hath not the Property. In all Cases where the Feme shall not have the Thing recovered but the Husband only, he alone is to bring the Action. 1 Roll. Rep. 360. And where an Action will survive to the Wife, and she may recover Damages, she must join with the Husband in the Action. 2 Mod. 269. For a Promise or personal Duty to the Wife, the Baron only may bring the Action: And the Husband is entitled to the Fruits of his Wife's Labour, for which he may bring Quantum Meruit. 1 Lill. Abr. 227. 1 Salk. 114. Baron and Feme ought to join in Actions for Debt due to the Feme before Coverture. By the Custom of London, a Feme Covert trading there, may sue and be sued as a Feme sole Merchant. 2 Inst. 236. And where a Husband is an Alien Enemy, the Wife may be charged as a Feme sole. 1 Salk. 116. A Man must answer for the Trespases of his Wife; and if a Feme Covert slander any Person, &c. the Husband and Wife must be sued for it; and Execution is to be awarded against him. 11 Rep. 62. But a Wife for her own Crime, may be indicted without her Husband; and she may sue and be sued without her Husband, in the Spiritual Court.

9 Rep. 72. 2 Roll. Abr. 298. A Feme sole indebted takes Husband; it is then the Debt of the Husband and Wife, and both are to be sued for it; but the Husband is not liable after the Death of the Wife, unless there be a Judgment against both during the Coverture. 1 Roll. Abr. 351. Where there is Judgment against a Feme sole, who marries and dies, the Baron shall not be charged therewith. 3 Mod. 186. Though if the Judgment be had upon Sive facias against Baron and Feme, and then the Feme dies, he shall be charged. In Action brought against a Feme sole, if pending the Action she marries, this shall not abate the Action; but the Plaintiff may proceed to Judgment and Execution against her, according as the Action was commenced. 1 Lill. 217. Trin. 12 W. 3. B. R. And if a Habeas Corpus be brought to remove the Cause, the Plaintiff is to move for a Procedendo on the Return of the Habeas Corpus. And the Court of B. R. may refuse it, where brought to abate a just Action. 1 Salk. 8. But if a Feme sole gives a Warrant of Attorney to confess Judgment, and before entered she marries, it is a Countermand of the Warrant, and Judgment shall not be had against Husband and Wife, to charge him. 1 Salk. 399. When Baron and Feme are sued, the Husband must make an Attorney for himself and Wife. 2 Saurd. If a Wife be arrested, she shall be discharged on Common Bail, let the Cause of Action be what it will: But if Baron and Feme be arrested, the Husband shall not be discharged, unless he give Bail for his Wife as well as himself. Mod. Caf. 17. Both Husband and Wife may be taken in Execution. 1 Nelf. Abr. 365. The Baron in an Account shall not be charged by the Receipt of his Wife, except it came to his Use. 1 Danv. 707. For Goods sold to a Wife, to the Use of the Husband, the Husband shall be charged, and be obliged to pay for the same. S.d. 425. If a Woman buys Things for her necessary Apparel, tho' without the Consent of the Husband, yet her Husband shall be bound to pay for it. Brownl. 47. And if the Wife buys any Thing for her self, Children, or Family, and the Baron does any Act precedent or subsequent whereby he shews his Consent, he may be charged thereupon. 1 Sid. 120. The Husband is obliged to maintain his Wife in Necessaries: But they must be according to his Degree and Estate, to charge the Husband; and Necessaries may be suitable to a Husband's Degree of Quality, but not to his Estate; also they may be Necessaries, but not ex Necessitate to charge her Husband. 1 Mod. 129. 1 Nelf. Abr. 354. Though a Wife is very lewd, if she cohabits with her Husband, he is chargeable for all Necessaries for her, because he took her for better for worse; and so he is if he runs away from her, or turns her away: But if she goes away from her Husband, then as soon as such Separation is notorious, whoever gives her Credit doth it at his Peril, and the Husband is not liable, unless he take her again. 1 Salk. 119. Where there is a Separation by Consent, and the Wife hath a separate Allowance, those who trust her do it upon her own Credit, where 'tis notorious. Ibid. 116. If a Husband makes his Wife an Allowance for Clothes, &c. which is constantly paid her, 'tis said he shall not be charged. 1 Sid. 109. And if he forbids particular Persons not to trust her, he will not be chargeable to them: But a Prohibition in general, by putting her in the News-Papers, is no legal Notice not to trust her. 1 Ventr. 42. Although a Wife may use the Goods of her Husband, yet she may not dispose of them: But if she takes them away, it is not Felony, for she cannot by our Law steal the Goods of the Husband; but if she delivers them to an Adulterer, and he receives them, it will be Felony in him. 3 Inst. 308, 310. If Baron and Feme are divorced Causa Adulterii, which is a Divorce a Mensa & Thoro, they continue Baron and Feme: But 'tis otherwise in Divorce a Vinculo Matrimonii, which dissolves the Marriage. A Man within the Age of Fourteen, (his Age of Consent to marry) takes a Woman to Wife, they are Baron and Feme, so that he may have Trespass de muliere abducta cum bonis viri, &c.

Bar, {Lat. Barra, Fr. Barre or Barriere) In a legal Sense is a Plea or peremptory Exception of a Defendant, sufficient to destroy the Plaintiff's Action. And it is divided into Bar to common Intendment, and Bar Special, Bar Temporary, and Perpetual: Bar to a common Intendment is an Ordinary or General Bar, which usually disableth the Declaration of the Plaintiff: Bar Special is that which is more than Ordinary, and falls out upon some special Circumstances of the Fact, as to the Case in Hand. Terms de Ley 77. Bar Temporary is such a Bar that is good for the Present, but may afterwards fail: And Bar Perpetual is that which overthrows the Action of the Plaintiff for ever. Plowd. 26. But a Plea in Bar, not giving a full Answer to all the Matter contained in the Plaintiff's Declaration, is not good. 1 Lill. Abr. 211. If one be barred by Plea to the Writ, or to the Action of the Writ, he may have the same Writ again, or his right Action: But if the Plea in Bar be to the Action it self, and the Plaintiff is barred by Judgment, &c. it is a Bar for ever in Personal Actions. 6 Rep. 7. And a Recovery in Debt is a good Bar to Action on the Case for the same Thing: Also a Recovery on Assumpsit in Case, is a good Bar in Debt, &c. Cro. Jac. 110. 4 Rep. 94. In all Actions Personal, as Debt, Account, &c. a Bar is perpetual, and in such Case the Party hath no Remedy, but by Writ of Error or Attaint; but if a Man is barred in a Real Action by Judgment, yet he may have an Action of as high a Nature, because it concerns his Inheritance; as for Instance, if he is barred in a Formedon in Descender, yet he may have a Formedon in the Remainder, &c. 6 Rep. 7. Bar to a common Intent is good: And if an Executor be sued for his Testator's Debt, and he pleadeth that he had no Goods left in his Hands, at the Day the Writ was taken out against him, this is a good Bar to a common Intendment, till it is shewn that there are Goods: But if the Plaintiff can shew by Way of Replication that more Goods have fallen into his Hands since that Time, then except the Defendant alledge a better Bar, he shall be condemned in the Action. Plowd. 26. Kitch. 215. Bro. Tit. Barre. There is a Bar Material, and Bar at Large: Bar Material may be also called Special Bar, as when one in Stay of the Plaintiff's Action, pleadeth some particular Matter, as a Descent from him that was Owner of the Land, &c. a Feoffment made by the Ancestor of the Plaintiff, or the like: A Bar at Large is, when the Defendant by Way of Exception, doth not traverse the Plaintiff's Title, by Pleading, nor confess, or avoid it, but only makes to himself a Title in his Bar. Kitch. 68. 5 H. 7. 29. This Word Bar is likewise used for for the Place where Serjeants and Counsellors at Law stand to plead the Causes in Court; and Prisoners are brought to answer their Indictments, &c. whence our Lawyers, that are called to the Bar, are termed Barristers. 24 H. 8. cap. 24.

Barrister, or Barrister, (Barristerius) Is a Counsellor learned in the Law admitted to plead at the Bar, and there to take upon him the Protection and Defence of Clients. They are termed Jurisconsulti; and in other Countries called Licenciati in Jure: And anciently Barristers at Law were called Apprentices of the Law, in Lat. Apprenticii Juris Nobiliores. Fortesc. The Time before any ought to be called to the Bar, by the ancient Orders, was eight Years, now reduced to seven; and the Exercises done by them (if they were not called Ex gratia) was twelve Grand Moors, performed in the Inns of Chancery in the Time of the Grand Readings, and twenty-four Petty Moors in the Term-Times, before the Readers of the respective Inns: And a Barrister newly called is to attend the six next long Vacations the Exercise of the House, viz. in Lent and Summer, and is thereupon for those three Years stiled a Vacation Barrister. Also they are called Utter-Barristers, i. e. Pleaders Ouster the Bar, to distinguish them from Benchers, or those who have been Readers, who are sometimes admitted to plead within the Bar, as the King, Queen, or Prince's Counsel are. Barristers who constantly attend the King's Bench, &c. are to have the Privilege of being sued in Transitory Actions in the County of Middlesex: But it hath been questioned whether an Action of Debt doth lie for their Fees, unless it be upon special Retainer; for a Counsellor's Fee is Honorarium quiddam, not Mercenarium, as that of an Attorney or Solicitor. 2 Inst. 213, 214, &c. Wood's Inst. 448.

Barrator, or Barretor, (Lat. Barrator, Fr. Barrateur) Is a common Mover of Suits and Quarrels, either in Courts, or elsewhere in the Country, and is himself never quiet, but at Variance with one or other. Lambert derives the Word Barretor from the Lat. Balatro, a vile Knave; but the proper Derivation is from the Fr. Barrateur, i. e. a Deceiver, and this agrees with the Description of a common Barretor in my Lord's Coke's Reports, viz. That he is a common Mover and Maintainer of Suits in Disturbance of the Peace, and in taking and detaining the Possession of Houses and Lands, or Goods by false Inventions, &c. And therefore it was adjudged, that the Indictment against him ought to be in these Words, viz. That he is Communis Malefactor, calumniator & seminator litium & discordiarum inter vicinos suos, & pacis Regis perturbator, &c. And there it is said that a common Barretor is the most dangerous Oppressor in the Law; for he oppresseth the Innocent by Colour of Law, which was made to protect them from Oppression. 8 Rep. 37. No one can be a Barrator in Respect of one Act only; for every Indictment for such Crime must charge the Defendant with being Communis Barrator, and conclude Contra Pacem, &c. And it hath been holden, that a Man shall not be adjudged a Barrator for bringing any Number of Suits in his own Right, tho' they are vexatious; especially if there be any Colour for them: For if they prove false, he shall pay the Defendant Costs. 1 Roll. Abr. 355. 3 Mod. 98. A Barrister at Law entertaining a Person in his House, and bringing several Actions in his Name, where nothing was due, was found guilty of Barretry. 3 Mod. 97. An Attorney is in no Danger of being convicted of Barretry, in Respect of his maintaining another in a groundless Action, to the Commencing whereof he was no way Privy. Ibid. A common Solicitor who solicits Suits, is a common Barrator, and may be indicted thereof, because it is no Profession in Law. 1 Danv. Abr. 725. Barretors are punished by Fine and Imprisonment, bound to the good Behaviour, &c. And belonging to the Profession of the Law, they ought to be further punished by Disability to practice. 34 Ed. 3. c. 1. Hawk. P. C. 244.

Barrel, (Barillum) Is a Measure of Wine, Ale, Oil, &c. Of Wine it contains the eighth Part of a Tun, the fourth Part of a Pipe, and the Moiety of a Hogshead, that is thirty-one Gallons and a Half. 1 R. 3. c. 13. Of Beer, it contains thirty-six Gallons; and of Ale, thirty-two Gallons. Anno 23 H. 8. c. 4. and 12 Car. 2. c. 23. It is declared that the Assise of Herring-Barrels is thirty-two Gallons Wine Measure, which is about twenty-eight Gallons of old Standard, well packed, and containing in every Barrel usually a Thousand full Herrings. Anno 13 El. c. 11. The Eel Barrel contains thirty Gallons. 2 H. 6. c. 13.

Barriers, (Fr. Barrieres) Signifies that which the French call Feu de Barres, i. e. Palæstra, a Martial Exercise of Men, armed and fighting together with short Swords within certain Bars or Rails, which separated them from the Spectators: It is now disused here in England. There are likewise Barrier Towns, or Places of Defence on the Frontiers of Kingdoms.

Barter, (from the Fr. Barator, Circumvenire) Signifieth in our Books to exchange one Commodity for another, or truck Wares for Wares. Anno 1 R. 3. c. 9. And the Reason may be, because they that exchange in this Manner, do endeavour for the most Part one to over-reach and circumvent the other.

Barton, Is a Word used in Devonshire, for the Demesne Lands of a Manor; sometimes for the Manor-House it self; and in some Places for Outhouses, and Fold-Yards. In the Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 12. Barton Lands, and Demesne Lands, are used as Synonyma's. See Berton.

Bas Chevaliers, Low or inferior Knights by Tenure of a bare Military Fee, as distinguished from Bancrets the Chief or Superior Knights: Hence we call our simple Knights, viz. Knights-Bachelors, Bas Chevaliers. In France they call the Suburbs the Bas ville, or the inferior Town. Kennet's Gloss. to Paroch. Antiq.

Base Court, (Fr. Cour Basse) Is any inferior Court, that is not of Record, as the Court-Baron, &c. Kitch. fol. 95, 96.

Base Estate, (Fr. Bas Estat) Is that Estate which Base Tenants have in their Lands. And Base Tenants, according to Lambert, are those who perform villanous Services to their Lords, Kitch. fol. 41. makes Base Tenure and Frank Tenure to be Contraries, and puts Copyholders in the Number of Base Tenants; where it may be gathered that every Base Tenant holds at the Will of the Lord: But there is a Difference between a Base Estate and Villenage; for to hold in pure Villenage is to do all that the Lord will command him; and if a Copyholder have but a Base Estate, he not holding by the Performance of every Commandment of his Lord, cannot be said to hold in Villenage: And Copyholders are by the Customs of Mancrs, and Continuance of Time, grown out of that extream Servitude wherein they were at first created.

Base Fee, Is a Tenure in Fee at the Will of the Lord, distinguished from Socage free Tenure. Bassa Tenura, or Base Tenure, is a holding by Villenage, or other customary Service, opposed to Alta Tenura, the higher Tenure in Capite, or by Military Service, &c. — Manerium de Cheping Farendon cum pertinentiis est de antiquo Dominico corone Domini Regis, unde omnia prædicta tenementa sunt parcella, & de Bassa Tenura ejusdem manerii. Conſuetud. Domus de Farendon, M. S. 44.

Basels (Baseli) A Kind of Coin abolished by King Hen. 2. Anno 1158. Holinshed's Chron. p. 67.

Baselard, or Basillard, In the Stat. 12 Ri. 2. c. 6. Signifies a Weapon, which Mr. Speight in his Exposition upon Chaucer, calls Pugionem vel fcam, a Poniard; Arrepto Basillardo transfixit, &c. Cum alio Basillardo penetravit latera ejus, &c. Knighton, lib. 5. pag. 2731.

Basileus, A Word mentioned in several of our Historians signifying King, and seems peculiar to the Kings of England. Monasticon, Tom. 1. pag. 65. Ego Edgar totius Angliæ Basileus Confirmavi. — In many Places of the Monasticon this Word occurs; and also in Ingulphus, Malmesbury, Mat. Paris, Hovenden, &c.

Basnetum, A Basnet, or Helmet. By Inqu. 22 Ed. 3. After the Death of Laurence de Hastings Earl of Pembroke it was found thus — Quod quidam Manerium, (i. e. de Aston Cantlore) per se tenetur de Domino Rege in Capite, per servitium interveniendi unum Hominem peditem, cum Arcu sine chorda, cum uno Basneto, sive Cappa, per xl. dies sumptibus suis propriis, quotiens fuerit guerra in Wallia.

Basinet, A Skin with which the Soldiers covered themselves. Blount.

Bastard, (Bastardus) From the Brit. Bastaerd, i. e. Nothus or Spurius, is one that is born of any Woman not married, so that his Father is not known by the Order of Law, and therefore is called Filius Populi, the Child of the People.

Cui Pater est Populus, pater est sibi nullus & omnis: Cui Pater est Populus, non habet ipse Patrem.

The learned Spelman very rationally derives the opprobrious Name of Bastard from the Norman Bas, and Saxon Steort, Rife or Original; as a Person of a base and vile Birth: Such Bastards cannot inherit Land as Heir to his Father; nor can any Person inherit Land as Heir to him, but one that is Heir of his Body. Litt. Sect. 401. Bastard is Terminus a quo, he is the first of his Family; for he hath no Relation of which the Law takes any Notice; but this must be understood as to Civil Purposes, there being a Relation as to Moral Purposes, and therefore he cannot marry his own Mother, or Bastard Sister. 3 Salk. 66, 67. If a Woman be with Child by a Man, who afterwards marries her, and then the Child is born, this Child is no Bastard: But if a Man hath Issue by a Woman before Marriage, and after they marry, the Issue is a Bastard by our Law; but Legitimate by the Civil Law. 2 Inst. 96, 97. If a Man marries a Woman grossly big with Child by another, and within three Days after she is delivered, in our Law the Issue is no Bastard; but it is a Bastard by the Spiritual Law. 1 Danv. Abr. 729. And where a Child is born within a Day after Marriage between Parties of full Age, if there be no apparent Impossibility that the Husband should be the Father of it, the Child is not a Bastard, but supposed to be the Child of the Husband. 1 Roll. Abr. 358. But if the Husband be but eight or nine Years of Age, or if he be within the Age of fourteen, the Issue is a Bastard: So where a Husband is Gelt, or hath lost his Genitals, &c. which shews an Impossibility to get a Child, the Issue of his Wife though born within Marriage, is a Bastard. 1 Inst. 244. 1 Danv. 278. But by the Law of the Land, a Person cannot be a Bastard who is born after Espousals, unless it be by special Matter. If a Woman elope from her Husband, so as he be within the four Seas, her Issue shall not be a Bastard by our Law, though by the Spiritual Law he shall: And if the Wife continues in Adultery, and hath Issue, this is a Bastard in our Law. 1 Danv. 730. By the Common Law, if the Husband be infra quatuor maria, so that by Intendment he may converse with his Wife, and the Wife hath Issue, the Child will not be a Bastard: But he is a Bastard who is born of a Woman when her Husband, at and from the Time of the Begetting to the Birth, is extra quatuor maria. 1 Inst. 244. 2 Salk. 483. If a Woman hath Issue, the Husband being over Sea so long before the Birth of the Issue, which his Wife hath in his Absence, that the Issue cannot be his, this is a Bastard. 1 Danv. 729. If the Husband be only over in Ireland, it is otherwise. A Divorce causa Pracontractus, causa Affinitatis, causa Frigiditatis, &c. bastardizes the Issue; not for Cause subsequent to the Marriage: But if the Man and Woman continue Husband and Wife for all their Lives, the Issue cannot be a Bastard by Divorce after their Death. 1 Danv. Where a Woman on Divorce a Mensa & Thoro, lives in Adultery with another, her Children by such other are Bastards; for Children born in Adultery, are born out of the Limits of Matrimony. Though if Husband and Wife consent to live separate, the Children born after such Separation shall be taken to be Legitimate, because the Access of the Husband shall be presumed; but if it be found there was no Access, then they are Bastards. 1 Salk. 122. If a Woman hath a Child forty Weeks and eight Days after the Death of her Husband it shall be Legitimate; the Law having appointed no exact certain Time for Birth of Legitimate Issues. 1 Danv. 726. 1 Lill. Abr. 236. If a Man or Woman marry a second Wife or Husband, the first being living, and have Issue by such second Wife or Husband, the Issue is a Bastard. 39 Ed. 3. cap. 14. &c. Before the Statute 2 & 3 Ed. 6. cap. 21. One was adjudged a Bastard, Quia filius sacerdotis. He that gets a Bastard in the Hundred of Middleton, in the County of Kent, forfeits all his Goods and Chattels to the King. M. S. de temp. Ed. 3. By Statute, the two next Justices of Peace (one being of the Quorum) are to make Orders for punishing the Mother and Father of a Bastard Child, and for Relief of the Parish where born: And by Order of the Justices, the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor may seize Goods, &c. of the Father and Mother to discharge the Parish: Also Justices of the Peace have Power to send lewd Women having Bastards to the House of Correction, for one Year, &c. But Persons able to keep them, are not within the Statute. It is adjudged Murder to conceal the Death of a Bastard Child when born, unless there be Proof to the contrary, that it was still-born. 18 Eliz. cap. 3. 13 & 14 Car. 2, 7. and 21 Jac. 1. If any one conspire to charge another to be the Father of a Bastard Child, he may be indicted and punished, with publick Whipping, &c. It is only in the Power of the King and Parliament to make a Bastard Legitimate. Dav. Rep. 37.

Bastardy, (Bastardia) Signifies a Defect of Birth, objected to one born out of Wedlock. The Stat. 9 H. 6. cap. 11. And Kitch. fol. 64. mention Bastardy General and Special; the Difference whereof is, that Bastardy General is a Certificate from the Bishop of the Diocese to the King's Justices, after Inquiry made, that the Party enquired of is a Bastard, or not a Bastard, upon some Question of Inheritance: Bastardy Special is a Suit commenced in the King's Court, against him that calls another Bastard, so termed, because Bastardy is the Principal Case in Trial, and no Inheritance contended for. And by this it appears that in both these Significations, Bastardy is an Examination or Trial, whether a Man's Birth be defective or legitimate. Bastardy is of Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction; but it must be intended General Bastardy, as whether he that is charged with Bastardy were born in lawful Matrimony, and his Father and Mother were ever joined in lawful Marriage, which is triable by the Bishop's Certificate: Special Bastardy, as whether the Defendant was born before Marriage, &c. where the Matrimony is confessed; and where an Action is brought for calling a Man Bastard, &c. is triable in the Temporal Courts, by the Country. 1 Inst. 134. 1 Nels. Abr. 367. Hob. 117. The Question of Bastardy ought to be first moved in the Temporal Courts; and after Issue joined thereupon, the same is transmitted by Writ to the Ecclesiastical Court, to be examined and certified. Dav. Rep. 52. But the Judges shall not award a Writ to the Ordinary to certify whether a Person be Bastard or not, till Proclamation is issued for all Persons having Interest therein to make their Objections before the Ordinary against the Party; and any Certificate of the Ordinary concerning Bastardy without such Proclamation shall be void. Stat. 9. H. 6. A Certificate by the Bishop duly made, the Law gives entire Credit to: And if a Man be certified a Bastard by the Ordinary, he shall be perpetually bound, because it is the highest Trial thereof. Doctor and Student 68. But if a Person be certified to be a Bastard, this doth not bind before Judgment in the Action between him and the other Party; neither doth it bind if the Plaintiff be after nonsuited. 18 E. 3. 34. 1 Danv. Abr. 733. A Bastard is a good Name of Purchase; for Bastards having gotten Names by Reputation, may purchase by such Names to them and their Heirs: And a Limitation to them when in esse, and known, is good; but not before they are born. Likewise a Remainder may be made to such by the Name of Son of the reputed Father; though not by the Name of Issue, which must be lawful, nor may a Use be raised to such a reputed Son; but a Man may devise all his Estate by Will to a Bastard, by his reputed Name. 1 Inst. 3. 6 Rep. 65. Dyer 374.

Baston, (Fr.) A Staff, or Club; and by our Statutes it signifies one of the Warden of the Fleet's Servants or Officers, who attends the King's Courts with a red Staff for taking such into Custody who are committed by the Court. 1 R. 2. c. 12. 5 Eliz. c. 23. See Tipstaff.

Basus, Per Basum tolnetum capere, To take Toll by Strike, and not by Heap; per basum, being opposed to in cumulo vel cantello——Tolnetus ad molendinum fit secundum consuetudinem regni; mensura per quas tolnetus capi debet sint concordantes mensuris Domini Regis, & capiatur tolnetus per Basum, & nichil in cumulo vel cantello——Consuetud. Domus de Farendon M. S. f. 42.

Batable Ground, Is taken for the Land that lay between England and Scotland, heretofore in Question, when they were distinct Kingdoms, to which it belonged. Anno 23 H. 8. c. 6. and 32 H. 8. c. 6. It seems to mean as if we should say, litigious or Debatable Ground, i. e. Land about which there is Debate; and by that Name Skene calls Ground that is in Debate or Controversy. Camb. Britan. Tit. Cumberland.

Battoria, A Felling Mill. 'Tis mentioned in the Monasticon, Tom. 2. pag. 832. Usque ad stagnum Molendini ipsius Willielmi cum Batitoria & agardino suo ubique, &c.

Battel (Fr. Bataille) Signifies a Trial by Combat, which was anciently allowed of in our Laws, where the Defendant in Appeal of Murder or Felony may fight with the Appellant, and make Proof thereby whether he be culpable or innocent of the Crime. Glaro. lib. 14. c. 1. When an Appellee of Felony wages Battel, he pleads that he is Not guilty, and that he is ready to defend the same by his Body, and then flings down his Glove; and if the Appellant will join Battel, he replies, That he is ready to make good his Appeal by his Body upon the Body of the Appellee, and takes up the Glove: And then the Appellee lays his right Hand on the Book, and with his left Hand takes the Appellant by the Right, and swears thus: Hear this thou who callest thy self John by the Name of Baptism, that I who call my self Thomas by the Name of Baptism, did not feloniously Murder thy Father W. by Name on the Day and Year of, &c. at B. as you surmise, nor am any Way guilty of the said Felony; so help me God. And then he shall kiss the Book, and say; And this I will defend against thee by my Body, as this Court shall award. Then the Appellant lays his right Hand on the Book, and with his left Hand takes the Appellee by the Right, and swears to this Effect: Hear this thou who callest thy self Thomas by the Name of Baptism, that thou didst feloniously on the Day, and in the Year, &c. at B. Murder my Father W. by Name; so help me God. And then he shall kiss the Book, and say; And this I will prove against thee by my Body, as this Court shall award. This being done, the Court shall appoint a Day and Place for the Battel, and in the mean while the Appellee shall be kept in Custody of the Marshal, and the Appellant find Sureties to be ready to fight at the Time and Place, unless he be an Approver, in which Case he shall also be kept by the Marshal: And the Night before the Day of Battel, both Parties shall be arraigned by the Marshal, and shall be brought into the Field before the Justices of the Court wherethe Appeal is depending, at the Rising of the Sun, bare headed, and bare legged from the Knees downwards, and bare in the Arms to the Elbows, armed only with Bastons an Ell long, and four cornered Targets, and before they engage, they shall both make Oath, That they have neither eat nor drunk, nor done any Thing else by which the Law of God may be depressed, and the Law of the Devil exalted: And then after Proclamation for Silence under Pain of Imprisonment, they shall begin the Combat, wherein if the Appellee be so far vanquished that he cannot or will not fight fight any longer, he may be adjudged to be hanged immediately; but if he can maintain the Fight till the Stars appear, he shall have Judgment to be quit of the Appeal: And if the Appellant become a crying Coward, the Appellee shall recover his Damages, and may plead his Acquittal in Bar of a subsequent Indictment or Appeal; and the Appellant shall for his Perjury lose his Liberam legem. If an Appellant become blind by the A& of God after he has waged Battel, the Court will discharge him of the Battel; and in such Case it is said that the Appellee shall go free. This Trial by Battel is at the Defendant's Choice; but if the Plaintiff be under an apparent Disability of fighting, as under Age, maimed, &c. he may counterplead the Wager of Battel, and compel the Defendant to put himself upon his Country: Also any Plaintiff may counterplead a Wager of Battel, by alledging such Matters against the Defendant as induce a violent Presumption of Guilt; as in Appeal of Death, that he was found lying upon the deceased with a bloody Knife in his Hand, &c. for here the Law will not oblige the Plaintiff to make good his Accusation in so extraordinary a Manner, when in all Appearance he may prove it in the ordinary Way. It is a good Counterplea of Battel that the Defendant hath been indicted for the same Fact; when if Appeal be brought, the Defendant shall not wage Battel. And if a Peer of the Realm bring an Appeal, the Defendant shall not be admitted to wage Battel, by Reason of the Dignity of the Appellant. 2 Hawk. P. C. 426, 427. This Trial by Battel is before the Constable and Marshal; but with all its Ceremonies is now disused. See Glanv. lib. 14. Bracton lib. 3. Britton cap. 22. Smith de Rep. Angl. lib. 2. Co. Lit. 294, &c. Vide Combat.

Battery, (from the Fr. Batre to strike, or Sax. Batte, a Club) Is any Injury done to another in a violent Manner; as by striking or beating of a Man, pushing, jolting, filliping upon the Nose, &c. The Civilians call it Injuriam Personalem, &c. And it is also defined by our Law to be a Trespass committed by one Man upon another Vi & Armis, & contra Pacem, &c. This Offence is punishable by Action and Indictment; on Action for the Injury at the Suit of the Party, the Offender shall render Damages, &c. And on Indictment at the Suit of the King, for a Breach of the Peace, he shall be fined according to the Heinousness of the Offence. Dalt. 282. 1 Hawk. P. C. 134. For here the Person offending is subject to a twofold Punishment, viz. a Fine to the King, and Damages to the Party; though it is usual only to bring an Action for Damages, which in Battery and Maihem the Court may increase upon View of the Record and the Person. 2 Roll. Abr. 572. But a Man may beat another who first assaults him, in his own Defence, and justify in an Action by Special Pleading, or that the Battery was occasioned by his own Assault; or the Defendant may give that in Evidence upon Not guilty to an Indictment: And the Record of the Conviction of the Offender by Indictment, may serve afterwards for Evidence in Action of Trespas for the same Assault and Battery. Terms de Ley 81, 82. 2 Roll. Abr. 546. A Man may lawfully beat a Person, to defend his Goods or Possession; but if in this Case he kills him, it will be Felony. 2 Inst. 316. And in other Cases the Beating of another, in a moderate Manner, is justifiable; as the Parent of his Child, a Master his Servant, or Apprentice, &c. See Assault.

Batus, (Lat. from the Sax. Bat, and the old Brit. Bad) a Boat, and Batellus A little Boat—Concessit etiam eidem Hugo Wake pro se & Hared. suis, quod predictus Abbas & successores sui & Ecclesia sua de Croyland habeant tres Batellos in Har-nolt, &c. Chart. Ed. 1. 20 Julii 18 Regni. Hence we have an old Word Batswain, for such as we now call Boatswain of a Ship.

Baubella, (Baubles) A Word mention'd in Hovedon, in R. 1. and signifies Jewels or precious Stones. — Tres partes Theauri sui & omnia Baubella sua divisit.

Baudekin, (Baldicum, and Baldeckinum) Cloth of Bandeikin, or Gold; or Tissue upon which Figures in Silk, &c. were imbroidered. Anno 4 H. 8. 6. Erat pannus auro rigidus, plumatoque opere intextus: But some Writers account it only Cloth of Silk.

Bawdy-House, (Lupanar, Fornix) A House of ill Fame, kept for the Resort and Commerce of lewd People of both Sexes. The Keeping of a Bawdy-House comes under the Cognizance of the Temporal Law, as a Common Nuisance, not only in Respect of its endangering the Publick Peace, by drawing together dissolute and debauched Persons, and promoting Quarrels, but also in Respect of its Tendency to corrupt the Manners of the People, by an open Profession of Lewdness. 3 Inst. 205. 1 Hawk. P. C. 196. Those who keep Bawdy-Houses are punishable with Fine and Imprisonment; and also such infamous Punishment, as Pillory, &c. as the Court in Discretion shall inflict: A Lodger who keeps only a single Room for the Use of Bawdry, is indictable for keeping a Bawdy-House. 1 Salk. 382. Persons resorting to a Bawdy-House, are punishable, and they may be bound to the good Behaviour, &c. But if one be indicted for keeping or frequenting a Bawdy-House, it must be expressly alledged to be such a House, and that the Party knew it; and not by Suspicion only. Poph. 208. A Constable upon Information, that a Man and Woman are gone to a lewd House, or about to commit Fornication or Adultery, may if he finds them together, carry them before a Justice of Peace without any Warrant, and the Justice may bind them over to the Sessions. Dalt. 214. Constables in these Cases may call others to their Assistance, enter Bawdy-Houses, and arrest the Offenders for a Breach of the Peace: In London they may carry them to Prison; and by the Custom of the City, Whores and Bawds may be carted. 3 Inst. 206. It was always held infamous to keep a Bawdy-House; yet some of our Historians mention Bawdy-Houses, publickly allowed here in former Times till the Reign of H. 8. and assign the Number to be 18 thus allowed on the Bankside in Southwark. Mod. Just. 227. See Stews and Brothel-Houses.

Form of an Indictment for keeping a Bawdy-House.

Bay,

Bay, or Pen, Is a Pond-Head made up of a great Height, to keep in Water for the Supply of a Mill, &c. so that the Wheel of the Mill may be driven by the Water coming thence through a Passage or Floodgate. A Harbour where Ships ride at Sea near some Port, is also called a Bay: And this Word is mentioned anno 27 Eliz. c. 19. Buchanan in his History of Scotland, writes it Bei, and expounds it by Sinus Maris.

Beacon, (from the Sax. Beacer, i. e. signum) A Signal well known; being a Fire maintained on some Eminence near the Coasts of the Sea, to prevent Invasions, &c. 4 Inst. 148. 8 Eliz. c. 13. Hence Beaconage (Beaconagium) Money paid towards the Maintenance of Beacons; and we still use the Word Beckon to give Notice unto. See Stat. 5 H. 4. &c.

Bead, or Bede (Sax. Bead, Oratio) A Prayer; so that to say over Beads, is to say over one's Prayers. They were most in Use before Printing, when poor Persons could not go to the Charge of a Manuscript Book: Though they are still used in many Parts of the World, where the Roman Catholick Religion prevails. They are not allowed to be brought into England, or any superstitious Things, to be used here, under the Penalty of a Præmunire, by Statute 13 El. c. 2.

Beam, Is that Part of the Head of a Stag where the Horns grow, from the Sax. Beam, i. e. Arbor; because they grown out of the Head as Branches out of a Tree. Beam is likewise used for a common Balance of Weights in Cities and Towns.

Bearers, Signifies such as bear down or oppress others, and is said to be all one with Maintainers — Justices of Assize shall inquire of, hear and determine Maintainers, Bearers, and Conspirators, &c. Stat. 4 Ed. 3. c. 11.

Beasts of Chase (Ferae Campestres) Are five, viz. The Buck, Doe, Fox, Marten and Roe. Manu. part 1. pag. 342. Beasts of the Forests, (Ferae Silvestres) otherwise called Beasts of Venery, are the Hart, Hind, Boar and Wolf. Ibid. par. 2. cap. 4. Beasts and Fowls of the Warren are the Hare, Coney, Pheasant, and Partridge. Ibid. Reg. Orig. 95, 86. &c. Co. Litt. 233.

Beau-pleader, (Pulchre Placitando, Fr. Beauplaider, i. e. to plead fairly) Is a Writ upon the Statute of Marlbridge, 52 Hen. 3. cap. 11. whereby it is enacted, That neither in the Circuit of Justices, nor in Counties, Hundreds, or Courts-Baron, any Fines shall be taken for Fair Pleading, viz. for not Pleading fairly or aptly to the Purpose; upon which Statute, this Writ was ordained, directed to the Sheriff, Bailiff, or him who shall demand such Fine, and it is a Prohibition not to do it; whereupon an Alias, and Pluries, and Attachment may be had, &c. but then the Party ought to be distrained for the Fine; for if the Sheriff or other Officer demand such Fine, and do not distrain for the same; then he cannot have a Writ of Attachment for such Demand made, because he is not damnified by the Demand. New Nat. Br. 596, 597. Beau-pleader is as well in Respect of vicious Pleading, as of the fair Pleading, by way of Amendment. 2 Inst. 122.

Bedel, (Be.ellus Sax. Bydel) A Cryer or Messenger of a Court, that cites Men to appear and answer: And it is an inferior Officer of a Parish or Liberty, very well known in London, and the Suburbs. There are likewise University Bedles, and Church Bedels; now called Summoners and Apparators: And Manwood in his Forest Law, saith there are Forest Beadles, that make all manner of Garnishments for the Courts of the Forest, and all Proclamations, and also execute the Process of the Forest, like unto Bailiffs Errant of a Sheriff in his County. — Edgarus interdicit omnibus Ministris, id est, vicomitibus, Bedellis & Balivis, &c. Ne introeant fines & limites disti Marisci. Ingulph. Hist. Croyl.

Bedelary, (Bedelaria) Is the same to a Bedel, as Bailiwick to a Bailiff. Lit. lib. 3. c. 5. — Will. filius Adæ tenet Bedelariam Hundredi de Macclesfield, &c. Ex Rot. Antiq.

Bederepe, alias Bidrepe (Sax.) Is a Service which some Tenants were anciently bound to perform, viz. To reap their Landlord's Corn at Harvest, as some yet are tied to give them one, two, or three Days Work, when commanded. This customary Service of inferior Tenants, was called in the Latin Præcaria, Bedrepium, &c. — Debent venire in Autumno ad Præariam quæ vocatur a le Bederepe. Plac. in Craft. Pur. 10 H. 3. Rot. 8. Surrey. See Magna Præcaria.

Bedeweri, Those which we now call Banditi, profligate and excommunicated Persons. The Word is mentioned in Mat. Paris. ann. 1258.

Beggars, Pretending to be blind, lame, &c. found begging in the Streets, are to be removed by the Constables, and refusing to be removed, shall be whipped, &c. Stat. 12 Ann. See Rogue.

Welgæ, The Inhabitants of Somersetshire, Wiltshire, and Hampshire. Blount.

Benefice, (Beneficium) Is generally taken for any Ecclesiastical Living or Promotion; and Benefices are divided into elective and donative: So also it is used in the Canon Law. 3 Inst. 155. Duarenus de Beneficiis, lib. 2. cap. 3. All Church Preferments, Dignities, &c. are Benefices; but they must be given for Life, not for Years, or at Will. Deaneries, Prebendaries, &c. are Benefices with Cure of Souls, though not comprehended as such within the Statute 21 H. 8. cap. 13. of Residency: But according to a more strict and proper Acceptation, Benefices are only Rectories, and Vicarages. Beneficia were formerly Portions of Land, &c. given by Lords to their Followers, for their Maintenance; but afterwards as these Tenures became Perpetual and Hereditary, they left their Name of Beneficia to the Livings of the Clergy, and retained to themselves the Names of Feuds: And Beneficium was an Estate in Land at first granted for Life only, so called, because it was held ex mero Beneficio of the Donor; and the Tenants were bound to swear Fealty to the Lord, and to serve him in the Wars, those Estates being commonly given to Military Men: But at Length by the Consent of the Donor, or his Heirs, they were continued for the Lives of the Sons of the Possessors, and by Degrees past into an Inheritance; and sometimes such Benefices were given to Bishops, and Abbots, subject to the like Services, viz. to provide Men to serve in the Wars; and when they as well as the Laity had obtained a Property of these Lands, they were called Regalia when given by the King; and on the Death of a Bishop, &c. returned to the King till another was chosen. Selm. of Feuds, cap. 2. Blount. Verb. Beneficium. Lands were anciently held in Beneficio; and then granted in Alodium perpetuo jure, &c.

Beneficio primo Ecclesiastico habendo, A Writ directed from the King to the Chancellor, to bestow the Benefice that shall first fall in the King's Gift.

Gift, above or under such a Value, upon such a particular Person. Reg. Orig. 307.

Benerch, An ancient Service which the Tenant rendered to his Lord with his Plough and Cart. Lamb. Itin. p. 222. Co. Lit. 86.

Benevolence, (Benevolentia) Is used in the Chronicles and Statutes of this Realm for a voluntary Gratuity, given by the Subjects to the King. Stow's Annals pag. 701. And Stow saith, that it grew from Edward the Fourth's Days: You may find it also Anno 11 Hen. 7. cap. 10. yielded to that Prince in regard of his great Expences in Wars, and otherwise. 12 Rep. 119. And by Act of Parliament 13 Car. 2. cap. 4. it was given to his Majesty K. Cha. 2. but with a Proviso that it should not be drawn into future Example: So that all Supplies of this Nature are now by way of Taxes. In other Nations Benevolences are given sometimes to Lords of the Fee, by their Tenants, &c. Cassan. de Consuet. Burg. p. 134, 136.

Beria, Berie, Berry, A large open Field; and those Cities and Town in England which end with that Word, are built in plain and open Places, and do not derive their Names from Boroughs as Sir Hen. Spelman imagines. Most of our Glossographers in the Names of Places have confounded the Word Berie, with that of Bury, and Borough, as if the Appellative of ancient Towns; whereas the true Sense of the Word Berie is a flat wide Campaign, as is proved from sufficient Authorities by the learned Du Fresne, who observes that Beria Sancti Edmundi mentioned by Mat. Paris. sub an. 1174. is not to be taken for the Town, but for the adjoining Plain. To this may be added that many flat and wide Meads, and other open Grounds, are called by the Name of Beries, and acras terre ad unam Bercariam faciendam.——

Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 599. Bercarium is taken for a Shepherd: And Bercaria is said to be abbreviated from Barbicaria, from Berbex; hence comes Berbicus a Ram, Berbica an Ewe, Caro Berbicina, Mutton: Cowel.

Berefellarii: There were seven Churchmen so called, anciently belonging to the Church of St. John of Beverley——Sed quia eorum turpe nomen Berefellarium patens risui remanebat, dictos septem de cetero non Berefellarios sed Personas volumus nuncupari. Pat. 21 R. 2. par. 3. m. 10. per Inspex.

Berefreit, Berefreid, A large wooden Tower. Simeon Dunelm. ann. 1123.

Berewicha, or Berwica, Villages or Hamlets belonging to some Town or Manor. This Word often occurs in Domesday: Iste sunt Berewicha ejusdem Manerii——

Berghmaster, (from the Sax. Berg a Hill, Mons, quasi Master of the Mountain) Is a chief Officer among the Derbyshire Miners, who also executes the Office of a Coroner——Furatores dicunt, quod in Principio quando Mineratores veniunt in Campum Mineras quarentes, inventa Minera, veniunt ad Balicium, qui dicitur Berghmayster, & petunt ab eo duas Metas, &c.——Esc. de An. 16 Ed. 1. num. 34. in Turri London. The Germans call a Mountaineer, or Miner, a Bergman: And Berghmaster, is vulgarly called Barmaster, and Barmer.

Berghmote or Berghmote, Comes from the Sax. Berg, a Hill, and Gemote an Assembly; and is as much as to say an Assembly or Court upon a Hill, which is held in Derbyshire for deciding Pleas and Controversies among the Miners——Furatores etiam dicunt quod Placita del Berghmote debent teneri de tribus septimanis in tres septimanas super Mineram de Pecco. Esc. 16 Ed. 1. And on this Court of Berghmote, Mr. Manlove in his Treatise of the Customs of the Miners, hath a Copy of Verses, with References to Statutes, &c.

Beryfields: The spacious Meadow between Oxford and Isley was in the Reign of King Athelstan called Bery. B. Twine M. S. As is now the largest Pasture Ground in Quarendon in the County of Buckingham, known by the Name of Beryfield. And though these Meads have been interpreted Demefne or Manor Meadows, yet were they truly any flat open Meadows, that lay adjoining to any Vill or Farm.

Berra, A plain open Heath. Berras assartare, to grub up such barren Heaths.

Bernet, Incendium, comes from the Sax. Byran, to burn: It is one of those Crimes which by the Laws of H. 1. cap. 13. Emendari non possunt. Sometimes it is used to signify any capital Offence. Leges Canuti apud Brompt. cap. 90. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 12, 47.

Bereithatch, In the Court-Rolls of the Manor of Chuton in Somerſetſhire is taken for Litter for Horſes.

Berſa, (Fr. Bers) A Limit or Bound — Paſturam duorum Taurorum per totam Berſam in foreſta noſtra de Chipenham, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 210. A Park Pale.

Berſart, (Germ. Berſen, to ſhoot) Berſare in foreſta mea ad tres Arcus. Chart. Ranulf. Comit. Ceſtr. ann. 1218. viz. To hunt or ſhoot with three Arrows in my Foreſt. Berſarii were properly thoſe that hunted the Wolf.

Berſelet, (Berſeleta) A Hound. — Ad Berſandum in foreſta cum novem arcubus & ſex Berſeletis. Chart. Rog. de Quincy.

Berton, or Barton, (Bertona) Is that Part of a Country Farm where the Barns and other inferior Offices ſtand, and wherein the Cattle are foddered, and other Buſineſs is managed. See Clauf. 32 Ed. 1. m. 17. It alſo ſignifieth a Farm, diſtinct from a Manor: In ſome Parts of the Weſt of England, they call a great Farm a Berton, and a ſmall Farm a Living — Bertonarii were ſuch as we now call Farmers or Tenants of Bertons; Husbandmen, that held Lands at the Will of the Lord — Cum Bertona terris & tenementis, que Bertonarii modo tenent ad voluntatem. Chart. Johan. Epiſc. Exon 24 Dec. ann. 1337.

Bery, or Bury, The Vill or Seat of Habitation of a Nobleman; a Dwelling or Manſion-Houſe, being the chief of a Manor, ſtill ſo called in ſome Places; as in Herefordſhire there is Stocktonbury, &c. And it is made out in the Name of Places, as St. Edmunds-bury, &c. It was anciently taken for a Sanctuary.

Befaille, (Fr. Bifayeu, Proavus) The Father of the Grandfather: And in the Common Law it ſignifies a Writ that lies where the great Grandfather was ſeiſed the Day that he died of any Lands or Tenements in Fee-ſimple; and after his Death a Stranger entereth the ſame Day upon him, and keeps out the Heir. F. N. B. 222.

Befca, (from the Fr. Befcher, fodere, to dig) A Spade or Shovel. — In communi Paſtura turbas, cum una ſola Befca, fodient & nihil dabunt. Prior. Lew. Cuſtumar. de Hecham pag. 15. Hence perhaps, una Befcata terra incluſa — Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. f. 642. may ſignify a Piece of Land uſually turned up with a Spade, as Gardiners fit and prepare their Grounds; or may be taken for as much Land as one Man can dig with a Spade in a Day.

Beſtials, (Fr. Beſtials) Beasts or Cattle of any Sort: Anno 4 Ed. 3. cap. 3. it is written Beſtail; and is generally uſed for all Kind of Cattle, tho' it has been refrained to thoſe purveyed for the King's Proviſion. 12 Car. 2. cap. 4.

Beverches, Bed-works, or Cuſtomary Services, done at bidding of the Lord by his inferior Tenants — Inter ſervitia Cuſtumaria Tenentium in Blebury, de Dominio Abbatis & Conventus Reading . . . predictus Abbas habebit de eis duas precarias carrucarum per Annum, que vocantur Beverches, & cum qualibet carruca duos homines qualibet die ad Prandium Abbatis. Cartular. Reading. M. S. fol. 223.

Bewared, An old Saxon Word ſignifying expended; for before the Britons and Saxons had Plenty of Money, they traded wholly in Exchange of Wares.

Bidall, or Bidale, (Precaria potaria, from the Sax. Biddan, to pray or ſuppligate) Is the Invitation of Friends to drink Ale at the Houſe of ſome poor Man, who thereby hopes a charitable Contribution for his Relief: It is ſtill in Uſe in the Weſt of England; and is mentioned 26 H. 8. c. 6. And ſomething like this ſeems to be what we commonly call House warming, when Perſons are invited and viſited in this Manner on their firſt beginning Houſe-keeping.

Bidding of the Beads, Bidding from the Sax. Biddan, To pray or deſire; and Bead from the Sax. Bead a Prayer; was anciently an Invitation or Warning given by the Pariſh-Prieſt to his Pariſhioners at ſome ſpecial Times to come to Prayers, either for the Soul of ſome Friend departed, or upon ſome other particular Occaſion. And at this Day our Miniſters, on the Sunday preceding any Feſtival or Holiday in the following Week, give Notice of them, and deſire and exhort their Pariſhioners to obſerve them as they ought; which is required by our Canons. See Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 26.

Bidentes, Two Yearlings, or Sheep of the ſecond Year — Will. Longſpe A. D. 1234. granted to the Prior and Canons of Burceſter, Paſturam ad quinquaginta Bidentes, cum Dominicis Bidentibus meis ibidem paſcendis. Paroch. Antiq. p. 216.

Biga, Bigata; A Cart, or Chariot drawn with two Horſes, coupled Side to Side; but it is ſaid to be properly a Cart with two Wheels, ſometimes drawn by one Horſe, and in our ancient Records it is uſed for any Cart, Wain, or Waggon. — Et quod eant cum Bigis & Carris cum cæteris phaleris ſuper Tenementum ſuum, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. fol. 256.

Bigamus, Is a Perſon that hath married two or more Wives, ſucceſſively after each other, or a Widow; for the Canoniſts account a Man that hath married a Widow, to have been twice married. It is mentioned in the Statutes, 18 Ed. 3. cap. 2. 1 Ed. 6. cap. 12. And 2 Inſt. 273.

Bigamy, (Bigamia) Signifies a double Marriage, or Marriage of two Wives; it is uſed in our Law, for an Impediment to be a Clerk, by Reaſon he hath been twice married. 4 Ed. 1. cap. 5. Which ſeems to be grounded upon the Words of St. Paul to Timothy, Epiſt. 1. cap. 5. verſ. 2. Oportet ergo Episcopum irreprehensibilem eſſe & unius uxoris virum: Upon which, it is ſaid the Canoniſts have founded their Doctrine, that he that hath been twice married, may not be a Clerk; ſo that they do not only exclude ſuch from Holy Orders; but alſo deny them all Privileges, that belong to Clerks: But this Law is aboliſhed by 1 Ed. 6. and ſee the Stat. 18 Eliz. cap. 7. The Statute called the Statute de Bigamis, is the 4 Ed. 1. and the 1 Fac. 1. cap. 11. calls it Bigamy, where a Perſon marries a ſecond Wife, &c. the firſt being living, which is Felony; but this is properly Polygamy, and not Bigamy, which laſt is not where a Perſon hath two Wives together, but where he hath two Wives one after another. 2 Inſt. 273.

Bigot, Is a Compound of ſeveral old Engliſh Words, and ſignifies an obſtinate Perſon; or one that is wedded to an Opinion, in Matters of Religion, &c. It is recorded that when Rollo the firſt Duke of Normandy reſuſed to Kiſs the King's Foot, unleſs he held it ought to him, it being a Ceremony required in Token of Subjection for that Dukedom, with which the King inveſted him; thoſe who were preſent taking Notice of the Duke's Reſuſal, adviſed him to comply with the King's Deſire, who answered them Ne ſe Bigot, whereupon he was in Deriſion called Bigot, and the Normans are ſo called to this Day.

Billancius deferendis, A Writ directed to a Corporation, for the carrying of Weights to such a Haven, there to weigh the Wool that Persons by our ancient Laws were licensed to transport. Reg. Orig. 270.

Bilinguis, Signifies generally a double tongued Man; or one that can speak two Languages: But it is used in our Law for a Jury that passeth between an Englishman and a Foreigner, whereof Part ought to be English, and Part Strangers. Though this is properly a Jury e medietate Linguae. 28 Ed. 3: c. 13.

Bill, (Billa) Is diversly used: In Law Proceedings, it is a Declaration in Writing, expressing either the Wrong the Complainant hath suffered by the Party complained of, or else some Fault committed against some Law or Statute of the Realm: And this Bill is sometimes addressed to the Lord Chancellor of England, especially for unconscionable Wrongs done to the Complainant; and sometimes to others having Jurisdiction, according as the Law directs. It contains the Fact complained of, the Damage thereby sustained, and Petition of Process against the Defendant for Redress: And it is used as well in Criminal, as Civil Matters. In Criminal Cases, when a Grand Jury upon a Presentment or Indictment find the same to be true, they indorse on it Billa vera; and thereupon the Offender is said to stand indicted of the Crime, and is bound to make Answer unto it: And if the Crime touch the Life of the Person indicted, it is then referred to the Jury of Life and Death, viz. the Petty Jury, by whom if he be found guilty, then he shall stand convicted of the Crime, and is by the Judge condemned to Death. Terms de Ley 86. 3 Inst. 30. See Ignoramus and Indictment.

Bill is also a common Engagement for Money given by one Man to another: These Bills are sometimes with a Penalty, and then they are called Penal Bills; and sometimes without a Penalty, though the latter is most frequently used. A Bill is likewise defined to be a Writing, wherein one Man is bound to another, to pay a Sum of Money on a Day that is Future, or presently on Demand, according to the Agreement of the Parties at the Time it is entered into, and the Dealings between them: And is divided into several Sorts, as a Bill that is single, a Bill that is Penal, &c. Where there is a Bill of 100*l.* to be paid on Demand, it is a Duty presently, and there needs no actual Demand. Cro. Eliz. 548. And in other Cases a single Obligation or Bill, upon the Scaling and Delivery, is Debitum in presenti, though Solvendum in futuro. On a collateral Promise to pay Money on Demand, there must be a special Demand; but between the Parties it is a Debt, and said to be sufficiently demanded by the Action. It is otherwise where the Money is to be paid to a third Person; or where there is a Penalty. 3 Keb. 176. If a Person acknowledge himself by Bill obligatory to be indebted to another in the Sum of 50*l.* and by the same Bill binds him and his Heirs in 100*l.* and says not to whom he is bound, it shall be intended he is bound to the Person to whom the Bill is made. Roll. Abr. 148. A Bill obligatory written in a Book, with the Party's Hand and Seal to it, is good. Cro. Eliz. 613. And if a Man makes a Bill thus: *I do owe and promise to pay to A. B. 50*l.* &c. for Payment whereof, I bind my self to C. D. &c.* another Person; it is good by the Words of the first Part, and the Words obligatory to another Person are void. A Man says by his Deed: *Memorandum, That I A. B. have received of C. D. the Sum of 20*l.* which I Promise to pay to E. F. In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my Seal, &c.* Or if the Bill be, *I shall pay to C. D. 20*l.* In Witness, &c.* and the same be sealed: Or if it runs as follows, *I owe to C. D. 20*l.* to be paid at, &c.* Or, *I had of C. D. 20*l.* &c. to be repaid him again: Or, I A. B. do bind my self to C. D. that he shall receive 20*l.* &c.* All these are said to be obligatory. 2 Roll. 146. 22 E. 4. c. 22.

Form of a single Bill for Money.

K Now all Men by these presents, That I A. B. of, &c. do owe and am indebted to C. D. of, &c. the Sum of Fifty Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, which I Promise to pay unto the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, at and upon the first Day of October next ensuing the Date of these Presents. In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my Hand and Seal the 10th Day of August, Anno Domini 1726.

A Penal Bill for Payment of Money.

K Now all Men by these Presents, That I A. B. of, &c. do owe unto C. D. of, &c. the Sum of One hundred Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, to be paid unto the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, on, &c. next ensuing the Date hereof; for which Payment well and truly to be made, I bind my self, my Heirs, Executors and Administrators, to the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns in Two hundred Pounds of like lawful Money firmly by these Presents. In Witness, &c.

Bill of Exchange, Is a Security among Merchants given for Money, and by the Credit of the Drawer generally passeth as Money: These Bills are drawn either payable at Sight; at so many Days, Weeks, or Months; one or two Usances, &c. And the Space of one Month from the Date of the Bill is called Usance, and two or three Months double or treble Usance. There is an Inland Bill of Exchange, and a Foreign Bill; an Inland Bill has been said to be only in the Nature of a Letter, but an Outland Bill is more regarded in the Eye of the Law, because it is for the Advantage of Commerce with other Countries, which makes it of a more publick Concern: And a Foreign Bill being refused to be accepted, by the Law of Merchants Action lies against the Drawer; and if the Person to whom directed subscribes the Bill, it is Assumpsit to pay it. 1 Roll. Abr. 6. 1 Ventr. 152. 2 Cro. 307. Every Indorser of a Bill is liable as the first Drawer; the Indorser is answerable, because the Indorsement is in Nature of a new Bill. 1 Salk. 125. But by the Custom of Merchants, the Indorsee is to receive the Money of the first Drawer if he can; and if he cannot, then the Indorser is to answer. The Indorser of a Bill is not liable to pay it, till Endeavour has been used to find the Drawer. Salk. 126. But an Indorser is not discharged without actual Payment of the Bill; unless there be some Neglect or Default in the Indorsee, as where he doth not endeavour to receive the Money in convenient Time, and then the first Drawer becomes insolvent. Ibid. 132. An Indorser charges himself in the same Manner as if he had originally drawn the Bill: And a Plaintiff need not prove the the Drawer's Hand, as the Indorfor is a new Drawer; but he must prove that he demanded the Money of the Drawer or Drawee, or that he sought and could not find them, in convenient Time, which is three Days after the Indorsement, &c. 1 Salk. 127. A blank Indorsement doth not transfer the Property of a Bill of Exchange; tho' the Person to whom indorsed may fill up the Indorsement, so as to charge the Indorfor; for where one indorses his Name on a Bill, the Indorsee may make what Use of it he pleases, by Way of Assignment, Acquittance, &c. Ibid. 126. A Bill of Exchange payable to a Person, or Bearer, is not assignable to enable the Indorsee to bring an Action, if the Drawer refuse Payment: But by Bill to a Person, or Order, an express Power is given to the Party to assign, and the Indorsee may maintain an Action: And the first is a good Bill between Indorfor and Indorsee. Ibid. 125. Where a Bill is drawn payable to A. B. or Bearer, an Assignee must sue in the Name of him to whom it was made payable, and not in his own Name; otherwise a Stranger finding the Bill, might recover: If it be made payable to A. B. or Order, there an Assignee may sue in his own Name, because the Order must be made by Indorsement, &c. Also the latter is within the Custom of Merchants and may be negotiated and assign'd by Custom; but the former is not. 3 Salk. 67. If a Bank-Bill payable to A. B. or Bearer be lost, and it is found by a Stranger, Payment to him would indemnify the Bank; yet A. B. may have Trover against the Finder, tho' not against his Assignee for valuable Consideration, which creates a Property. 3 Salk. 71. When a Bill of Exchange is accepted, it is a good Ground for a Special Action upon the Case, but it doth not make a Debt, &c. 3 Show. 1. Indebitatus Assumpsit will not lie against the Acceptor of a Bill of Exchange, because his Acceptance is a collateral Engagement; tho' it will lie against the Drawer. 1 Salk. 23. A general Indebitatus Assumpsit will not lie on a Bill of Exchange, for Want of a Consideration; and therefore there must be a Special Action upon the Custom of Merchants, or a general Indebitatus Assumpsit against the Drawer for Money by him received to the Plaintiff's Use. Ibid. 125. A Bill once accepted, cannot be revoked by the Party that accepted it, tho' immediately after and before the Bill becomes due, he hath Advice that the Drawer is broke. The Servant of a Merchant cannot accept a Bill of Exchange for his Master, without plain Evidence that he hath Authority to do it; as where the Master allows the Payment of Bills drawn by his Servant, &c. Lex Mercat. 265. Mod. Ca. 36. But another Person may accept the Bill for the Honour of the Drawer; and if he pays the Money in Default of the Party, he is to make a Protest with Declaration that he hath paid the same for the Drawer's Honour. If one Merchant having a right Understanding with another, says, Leave your Bill with me, and I will accept it, by the Custom of Merchants it obliges him as effectually as if he had signed it. If a Bill be accepted, and the Person who accepted the same happens to die before the Time of Payment, there must be a Demand made of his Executors or Administrators; and on Non-payment, a Protest is to be made, altho' the Money becomes due before there can be Administration, &c. A Bill may be accepted for Part, the Party on whom drawn having no more Effects in his Hands; and there may be a Protest for the Residue. And Acceptance of a Bill after the Time of Payment is past, it is said amounts to a Promise to pay the Money. If a Man be not to be found, or being found, is not to be met with afterwards, it is Cause sufficient for a Protest: Which is a Sort of Summons to a Person to accept or pay a Bill, with Protestation against the Refuser for Exchange, Interest, and all Charges, Damages and Losses that may be sustained or occasioned by such Refusal. Lex Mercat. Before the Statute 9 W. 3. if a Bill was Foreign, one could not resort to the Drawer to charge him for Non-acceptance or Non-payment, without a Protest, and reasonable Notice thereof; but in Case of an Inland Bill it was otherwise. The Protest was ordered for the Benefit of the Drawer, to give Notice that the Bill is not accepted, &c. tho' it is to subject to answer. Mod. Ca. 80.

Form of a Protest of a Bill of Exchange.

K Now all Men, That I A. B. on the Day, &c. at the usual Place of Abode of C. D. have demanded Payment of the Bill of which the above is a Copy, which the said C. D. did not pay, wherefore I the said A. B. do hereby protest the said Bill. Dated, &c.

In Drawing Bills of Exchange, the Signing of one Partner in Merchandize for Self and Company, obliges the others. A Gentleman travelling for Education, &c. draws a Bill of Exchange, this is negotiating the Bill, and makes him a Merchant, &c. Show. 127. A Bill of Exchange directed to one to pay so much for Value received, shall be a good Discharge of the Debt, if the Bill be not return'd back to the Drawer in Time, altho' it be not paid; for Keeping the Bill long, is Evidence that he agreed to take the Merchant as Debtor. Ibid. 126. If a Man pays a Bill of Exchange before due, and the Person to whom paid fails before the Time of Payment, he shall be obliged to pay it again to the Deliverer; because the Drawer might have countermanded the same, or ordered the Bill to be made payable to another Person. Interest upon a Bill of Exchange commences from the Time of Demand. If a Possessor of a Bill of Exchange by any Accident loses it, he must cause Intimation to be made by a Notary Publick before Witnesses, that the Bill is lost or mislaid, requiring that Payment be not made of the same to any Person without his Privy. And if any Bill of Exchange drawn in, or dated at and from any Place of this Kingdom, shall be lost, the Drawer of the Bill shall give another Bill of the same Tenor, Security being given to indemnify him in Case the Bill so lost be found again. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 17. There are not only Bills of Exchange, but Bills of Credit between Merchants, the Forms whereof are as follow:

250 l. Sterling. London, 10 August, 1726.

A double Usance pay this my first Bill of Exchange to Mr. C. D. Merchant, or Order, the Sum of Two hundred and fifty Pounds Sterling, for the the Value here received of the said C. D. And place it to Account, as by Advice from,

Yours, &c. A. B.

To Mr. E. F. Merchant, in Amsterdam.

Form of a Bill of Credit.

THis present Writing witnesseth, That I A. B. of London, Merchant, do undertake, to and with C. D. of, &c. Merchant, his Executors and Administrators, that if he the said C. D. do deliver, or cause to be delivered unto E. F. of, &c. or to his Use, any Sum or Sums of Money amounting to the Sum of, &c. of lawful British Money, and shall take a Bill under the Hand and Seal of the said E. F. confessing and shewing the Certainty thereof; that then I, my Executors or Administrators having the same Bill delivered to me or them, shall and will immediately, upon the Receipt of the same, pay, or cause to be paid unto the said C. D. his Executors or Assigns, all such Sums of Money as shall be contained in the said Bill, at, &c. For which Payment in Manner and Form aforesaid, I bind my self, my Executors, Administrators and Assigns by these Presents. In Witness, &c.

By the Statute 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 17. All Bills of Exchange dated at, or from any Place in England, of the Sum of 5 l. or upwards, upon any Person in London, or other trading City, Town or Place, drawn payable at a certain Time after the Date thereof, and in which Bills the Value shall be expressed to be received, may, after their Acceptance in Writing, and the Expiration of three Days after the same shall be due, be protested by a Notary Publick, or if there be none such, by any other substantial Person of the Place before Two Witnesses, on a Refusal or Neglect of Payment; which Protest shall be made under a Copy of the said Bill, and shall be notified within fourteen Days after to the Party from whom the Bills were received, who (upon producing the said Protest) is to repay the Bills with Interest and Charges from the Protesting: And in Default of such Protest, or Notice to be given as aforesaid, the Person failing shall be liable to all Costs, Damages and Interest thereupon. And by 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9. All Notes sign'd by any Person, &c. whereby such Person shall promise to pay any other Person or Order, &c. any Sum of Money; the Money mentioned in such Note shall be due and payable to the Person to whom made; and the Note shall be assignable over as inland Bills of Exchange; whereupon the Person to whom such Note is payable or assign'd, may maintain an Action for the same, against the Person who sign'd, or any who indorsed the Note, as in Cases of inland Bills, and recover Damages and Costs of Suit, &c. If the Party on whom any Inland Bill of Exchange shall be drawn, refuses to accept it by Under-writing under his Hand, the Person to whom payable is to cause such Bill to be protested, as foreign Bills: But no Acceptance shall charge any Person, unless the Bill be under-written or indorsed; and if it be not so under-written or indorsed, no Drawer shall be obliged to pay Costs, Damages, or Interest thereon, unless Protest be made for Non-acceptance, and within fourteen Days after the same be sent, or Notice thereof given to the Party from whom the Bill is received, or left in Writing at his usual Place of Residence. The Bill being accepted, and not paid within three Days after due,

B I

Protest must be made, and Notice given as aforesaid, to charge the Drawer, &c. Tho' no Protest shall be necessary, except the Value shall be expressed to be received in such Bill; and the Bill be drawn for 20 l. at least. And there is a Proviso in the Act, that nothing therein shall discharge any Remedy any Person may have against the Drawer, Acceptor or Indorser of any Bill. A Paper Bill or Note, is no Payment where there was an original and precedent Debt due, but shall be intended to be taken upon Condition that the Money be paid in convenient Time; but the Taking a Note in Writing for Goods sold, may amount to Payment of the Money, because 'tis Part of the original Contract. Mich. 2 Ann. 3 Salk. 118.

A Note for Payment of Money.

I Promise to pay to Mr. C. D. or Order, the Sum of One hundred Pounds (Value received) within twenty-one Days after Date hereof, or on Demand, &c. Witness my Hand this twentieth Day of August, 1728.

Bill of Store, Is a Kind of Licence granted at the Custom-house to Merchants, to carry such Stores and Provisions as are necessary for their Voyage, Custom-free. Bill of Sufferance is a Licence granted to a Merchant, to suffer him to trade from one English Port to another, without paying Custom. An. 14 Car. 2. c. 11.

Billets of Gold, (Fr. Billot) Are Wedges or Ingots of Gold, mentioned in the Statute 27 E. 3. c. 14. Billot, Billo and Billionis, is said to be Bullion of Gold or Silver, in the Mass, before it is coined. Billets are also small Wood for Fuel, for regulating the Assize whereof there are several Statutes, 43 Eliz. &c. See the 9 Ann. c. 15.

Billus, A Stick or Staff, which in former Times was the only Weapon for Servants. — Si quis in servum transeat, in signum hujus transactionis Billum vel Strubulum vel deinceps ad hunc modum Servitutis arma suscipiat, & in manum Domini mittat. Leg. H. 1. c. 78.

Binnarium, Binna, Benna. Stews or Water penn'd up for Feeding and preserving of Fish. — Expense in Pise ad instaurandum Binnarium empto XII s. Confectud. Dom. de Farend. M. S. f. 29. Vide Stat. 3 Ed. 1.

Biohanetus, One who deserves to come to an untimely End. Ordericus Vitalis, writing of the Death of William Rufus, who was shot by Walter Tyrrell, tells us, that the Bishops considering his wicked Life, and bad Exit, adjudg'd him Eclesiastica veluti Biohanetum absolutione indignum. Lib. 10. p. 782.

Birritum, A thin Cap fitted close to the Shape of the Head: And is also used for the Cap or Coif of a Judge, or Serjeant at Law. Spelm.

Bisacutus, An iron Weapon double-edged, so as to cut on both Sides. Fecit eidem unam plagam mortalem de quadam Bisacuta. Fleta, Lib. 1. cap. 33.

Bisantium, Besantine, or Besant, An ancient Coin so called, because first coined by the Western Emperors at Bizantium or Constantinople. It was of two Sorts, Gold and Silver, both which were current in England: Chaucer represents the Gold Besantine to have been equivalent to a Ducket; Ducket; and the Silver Besantine was computed generally at two Shillings. In some old Leases of Land, there have been reserved by Way of Rent, unum Bisantium, vel duos solidos.

Bico, At a Session of Sewers held at Wigenhale in Norfolk, 9 Ed. 3. it was decreed, That if any one should not repair his Proportion of the Banks, Ditches and Causeys by a Day assign'd, XII d. for every Perch unrepair'd should be levied upon him, which is called a Bilaw: And if he should not by a second Day given him, accomplish the same, then he should pay for every Perch 2 s. which is called Bi-scot. Hist. of Imbanking and Draining, f. 254.

Bishop, (Episcopus) Is the Chief of the Clergy in his Diocese, and the Archbishop's Suffragan or Assistant. — He is elected by the King's Conseil d'Esclire, or Licence to elect the Person named by the King, directed to the Dean and Chapter; and if they fail to make Election in twenty Days, they incur the Penalty of a Premunire, and the King may nominate, &c. by Letters Patent. The Dean and Chapter having made their Election, certify it to the King and the Archbishop, &c. And then the King gives the Royal Assent under the Great Seal directed to the Archbishop, commanding him to confirm and consecrate the Bishop elect: And on Confirmation a Bishop hath Jurisdiction in his Diocese, but he hath not a Right to his Temporalties till Consecration. A Bishop hath his Consistory-Court to hear Ecclesiastical Causes, and to visit the Clergy, &c. He consecrates Churches, ordains, admits, and institutes Priests; confirms, suspends, excommunicates, grants Licenses for Marriage, makes Probate of Wills, &c. 1 Inst. 96. 2 Roll. Abr. 230. He hath his Archdeacon, Dean and Chapter, Chancellor and Vicar General, &c. to assist him: May grant Leases for three Lives, or twenty one Years, of Lands usually letten, reserving the accustomed yearly Rents. Stat. 32 H. 8. And make concurrent Leases for twenty-one Years, upon Leases for the like Term, with Confirmation of Dean and Chapter. Bishops are Barons and Lords of Parliament.

Bissa, (Fr. Biche) Cerva Major, a Hind. — Decimam venationis nostra, scil. de Cervis, Bissis, damis, porcis & lais. Mon. Angl. Vol. 1. f. 648.

Bisextile, (Bisextilis) Leap-Year, so called, because the sixth Day before the Calends of March is twice reckon'd, viz. on the 24th and 25th of February; so that the Bisextile Year hath one Day more than the others, and happens every fourth Year; being first invented by Julius Caesar, to make the Year agree with the Course of the Sun. And to prevent all Doubt and Ambiguity that might arise thereupon, it is enacted by the Statute De anno Bisextili, 21 H. 3. That the Day increasing in the Leap-Year, and the Day next before, shall be accounted but one Day. Brit. 209. Dyer 17.

Bisus, Bisius, Mica Bifa, Panis Bisius, (Fr. Pain bis) Brown-bread, a brown Loaf. Cowel.

Black-Mail, (Fr. Maille, a Link of Mail, or small Piece of Metal or Money) Signifies in the North of England, in the Counties of Cumberland, Northumberland, &c. a certain Rent of Money, Corn, or other Thing antiently paid to Persons inhabiting upon or near the Borders, being Men of Name and Power, ally'd with certain Robbers within the said Counties; to be freed and protected from the Devastations of those Robbers. Anno 43 Eliz. c. 13. These Robbers were called Moss Troopers, and several Statutes have been made against them. The 9 Ed. 3. c. 4. mentions Black Money. And Black-Rents are the same with Black-Mail; being Rents formerly paid in Provisions and Flesh.

Blacks of Waltham, A Set of desperate Deerslayers. See Waltham-blacks.

Black-Rod, The Gentleman Usher of the Black-Rod, is chief Gentleman Usher to the King: He belongs to the Garter, and hath his Name from the Black Rod, on the Top whereof sits a Lion in Gold, which he carrieth in his Hand. He is called in the Black-book, fol. 255. Lat. r. Virga nigra, & Hostiarius; and in other Places Viroi bajulus. His Duty is Ad portandam Virgam coram Domino Rege, ad Festum Sancti Georgii infra Castrum de Windfore: And he hath the Keeping of the Chapter-house Door, when a Chapter of the Order of the Garter is sitting; and in the Time of Parliament, he attends on the House of Peers. His Habit is like to that of the Register of the Order, and Garter King at Arms; but this he wears only at the solemn Times of the Festival of St. George, and on the Holding of Chapters. The Black Rod he bears, is instead of a Mace, and hath the same Authority; and this Officer hath antiently been made by Letters Patent under the Great Seal, he having great Power; for to his Custody all Peers, called in Question for any Crime, are first committed.

Bladarius, A Cornmonger, Meal Man, or Corn-Chandler. It is used in our Records for such a Retailer of Corn. Pat. 1 Ed. 3. par. 3. m. 13.

Blade, (Bladum). Spelman says, Nostro foro, de segete tantum intelligitur, presertim etiam in herba. But in the Saxon it signifies more generally Fruit, Corn, Hemp, Flax, Herbs, &c. Will. de Moben released to his Brother all the Manor of T. — Salvo instauro suo & Blado, &c. excepting his Stock and Corn on the Ground. Hence Bladier is taken for an Ingrosser of Corn or Grain.

Blanch Firmes, In antient Times the Crown-Rents were many Times reserved in Libris Albis, or Blanch Firmes: In which Case the Buyer was holden Dealbare firmam, viz. his base Money or Coin, worse than Standard, was molten down in the Exchequer, and reduced to the Fineness of Standard Silver; or instead thereof, he paid to the King 12 d. in the Pound, by Way of Addition. Lowndes's Essay upon Coin, p. 5. Blank-Farm, Blount says, was a White Farm; that is, where the Rent was paid in Silver, and not in Cattle. Blanks, a Kind of White Money coin'd by Hen 5. in those Parts of France which were then subject to England, the Value whereof was 8 d. Stow's Annals, pag. 586. These were forbidden to be current in this Realm. 2 Hen. 6. c. 9.

Blanhornum, A little Bell, or rather Ticinium — Pecoris ticinium, & Canis oppa & Blanhornum, horum trium singulum est unum solidum valens. Leg. Adestan. cap. 8.

Blank-Bar, Is used for the same with what we call a Common Bar, and is the Name of a Plea in Bar, which in an Action of Trespass is put in to oblige the Plaintiff to assign the certain Place where where the Trespass was committed. It is most in Practice in C. B. for in the Court of B. R. the Place is usually ascertained in the Declaration.

Blasphemy, Is a Word used to signify an Incendiary. Blount.

Blasphemy, (Blasphemia) Is an Injury offered to God, by Denying that which is due and belonging to him, or attributing to him what is not agreeable to his Nature. Lyndw. c. i. And Blasphemies of God, as Denying his Being, or Providence, and all contumelious Reproaches of Jesus Christ, &c. are Offences by the Common Law, punish'd by Fine, Imprisonment, Pillory, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 87. And by Statute, if any one shall by Writing, Speaking, &c. deny any of the Persons in the Trinity to be God; assert there are more Gods than one, &c. he shall be incapable of any Office; and for the second Offence, be disabled to sue any Action, to be Executor, &c. and suffer three Years Imprisonment: But retracting Opinions in open Court, discharges the Penalties for the first Offence. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 32.

Ble, Signifies Sight, Colour, &c. And Blee is taken for Corn: As at Boughton under the Blee, &c.

Blench, A Sort of Tenure of Land; as to hold Land in Blench, is by Payment of a Sugar Loaf, a Couple of Capons, a Bever-Hat, &c. if the same be demanded in the Name of Blench, i. e. Nomine Albe fime.

Bleta, (Fr. Bleche) Pete, or combustible Earth, dug up and dry'd for Burning. — Minister & Fratres de Knaresborough, petunt quod ipsi & eorum Tenentes fodiant Turbas & Bletas, in Foresta de Knaresborough. Rot. Parl. 35 E. 1.

Blinks, Boughs broken down from Trees, and thrown in a Way where Deer are likely to pass.

Blissen, Corruptly called Blossom, is when a Ram goes to the Ewe, from the Teuton. Bletz, the Bowels; or from Bletzen to accommodate.

Bloated Fish or Herring, Are those which are Half dried. Anno 18 Car. 2. cap. 2.

Blodous, (Sax. Blod) Deep red Colour; from whence comes Bloat and bloated, w. Sanguine and high coloured, which in Kent is called a Bloufeng Colour, and a Blouse is there a red-fac'd Wench. The Prior of Burcester, A. D. 1425. gave his Liveries of this Colour. Paroch. Antiq. p. 576.

Bloodwit, or Bloudwit, (compounded of the Sax. Blod, i. e. Sanguis and Wyte, an old English Word signifying Misericordia) Is often used in ancient Charters of Liberties for an Amercement for Bloodshed. Skene writes it Bloudveit, and says Veit in English is Injuria; and that Bloudveit is an Amerciament or Unlaw (as the Scotch call it) for Wrong or Injury, as Bloodshed is: For he that hath Bloodveit granted him, hath free Liberty to take all Amerciaments of Courts for Effusion of Blood. Fleta saith, Quod significat quietantiam Misericordie pro Effusione sanguinis. Lib. 1. cap. 47. And according to some Writers, Blodwite was a customary Fine paid as a Composition and Attone-ment for shedding or drawing of Blood; for which the Place was answerable, if the Party were not discovered: And therefore a Privilege or Exemption from this Fine or Penalty, was granted by the King, or supreme Lord, as a special Favour. So K. Henry II. granted to all Tenants within the Honour of Wallingford, Ut quieti sent de Hidagio, & Blodewite, &c. — Paroch. Antiq. p. 114.

Blood-hand, Is one of the four Kinds of Circumstances by which an Offender is supposed to have killed Deer in the King's Forest: And it is where a Trespasser is apprehended in the Forest, with his Hands or other Parts Bloody, tho he be not found chasing or hunting of the Deer. Manwood. In Scotland, in such like Crimes, they say taken in the Fact, or with the Red-hand. See Backberind.

Blubber, Is Whale Oil, before it is thoroughly boiled and brought to Perfection. It is mentioned Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 18.

Book-board, or Book board, (Librorum torreum) A Place where Books, Evidences or Writings are kept.

Bookland, (Sax. quasi Bookland) A Possession or Inheritance held by Evidence in Writing. Bookland vero ea possidendi transferendique lege coerceretur, ut nec dari licuit nec vendi, sed heredibus r. linquenda erat, in scriptis aliter permitteretur; Terra inde Hæreditaria nuncupata. LL. Aluredi, cap. 36. Bookland signifies Deed-Land; and it commonly carried with it the absolute Property of the Land, wherefore it was preserved in Writing, and possessed by the Thanes or nobler Sort, as Prædium, nobile, liberum & immune a servitibus vulgaribus & servilibus, and was the same as Allodium, descendable unto all the Sons, according to the common Course of Nations, and of Nature, and therefore called Gavel-kind; devisable also by Will, and thereupon termed Terra Testamentales. Spelm. of Feuds. This was one of the Titles which the English-Saxons had to their Lands, and was always in Writing. There was but one more, and that was Folkland, i. e. Terra Popularis, which passed from one to another without any Writing. See Charterland.

Boia, Chains, or Fetters, properly what we call Bernicles. Quidam a dolore capitis liberatus est, adjungens gene sue Boias, quibus S. Britstanus ligatus fuit. Hist. Elien. apud Whartoni Angl. Sac. part. 1. pag. 618.

Bolhagium, or Boldagium, A little House or Cottage. Blount.

Bolt, A Bolt of Silk or Stuff, seems to have been a long narrow Piece. In the Accounts of the Priory of Burcester A. D. 1425. it is mentioned. Paroch. Antiq. p. 574.

Bolting, Is a Term of Art used in our Inns of Court, whereby is intended a private arguing of Cases. The Manner of it at Grays Inn is thus: An Ancient and two Barristers sit as Judges, three Students bring each a Case, out of which the Judges chuse one to be argued, which done, the Students first argue it, and after them the Barristers. It is inferior to Mooting, and may be derived from the Sax. Bolt, a House, because done privately in the House for Instruction. In Lincolns Inn, Mondays and Wednesdays are the Bolting Days, in Vacation-Time; and Tuesdays and Thursdays the Moot-Days.

Bona fide. That we say is done Bona fide, which is done really, with a good Faith, without any Fraud or Deceit. Stat. 13 El. c. 5. 12 Car. 2. cap. 18. &c.

Bona gestura, Good Abearing, or good Behaviour — Et si per furorem vel aliquos manutentores renuerit invenire sufficientem securitatem de sua Bona gestura erga Balivos & Comburgenses, &c. a prædicto Burgo ejiciatur. M. S. Codex de LL. Statutis tis & Consuetud. Burgi villæ Montgomer. fol. 15.

Bonaght, or Bonaghty, Was an Exaction in Ireland, imposed on the People at the Will of the Lord, for Relief of the Knights called Bonaghti who served in the Wars. Antiq. Hibern. p. 60.

Bona Notabilia. Where a Person dies having at the Time of his Death Goods in any other Diocese, besides his Goods in the Diocese where he dieth, amounting to the Value of 5 l. at least, he is said to have Bona Notabilia, and then Probate of his Will, or Granting Administration belongs to the Archbishop of the Province: But this doth not prejudice those Dioceses where, by Composition or Custom, Bona Notabilia are rated at a greater Sum. Can. 92, 93. Perkins, Sect. 489. And in the City of London Bona Notabilia are 10 l. by Composition. 4 Inst. 335. Where one hath a Debt upon Specialty, &c. in another Diocese, he hath Bona Notabilia. 1 Roll. Abr. 908. But if a Person happens to die in another Diocese, than that wherein he lives, on a Journey, what he hath about him above the Value of 5 l. &c. shall not be Bona Notabilia. Can. 93. There must be several Administrations, where a Person dies leaving Bona Notabilia in each Province of Canterbury and York; for Administration granted in one Province, doth not extend to Goods in the other, because the Archbishops have distinct supreme Jurisdictions; but then there must be Bona Notabilia in several Dioceses in each Province. Dyer 305. 2 Lev. 86. Where a Man dies in one Diocese, without any Goods, and leaves to the Value of 5 l. in another Diocese, the Archbishop of that Province may grant Administration, as he hath a general Jurisdiction there; though such Administration is voidable by Sentence. Cro. Eliz. 457. But where a Bishop grants Administration, and there are Bona Notabilia, such Administration is merely void, for he had no Jurisdiction out of his Diocese. 5 Rep. 30. 1 Nels. Abr. 381.

Bona Patria, An Assise of Country-men or good Neighbours: It is sometimes called Assisa bona Patriæ, when twelve or more Men are chosen out of any Part of the Country to pass upon an Assise; otherwise called Juratores, because they are to swear judicially in the Presence of the Party, &c. according to the Practice of Scotland. Skene. Sec. Assisors.

Bona Peritura, Goods that are perishable. The Stat. 13 E. 1. c. 4. which enacts, That where any Thing escapes alive out of a Ship cast away, the Ship shall not be adjudged Wreck, but the Cargo shall be saved and kept by the View of the Sheriff, &c. in the Hands of those of the Town where the same was found, so that if any one within a Year and a Day can make Proof that the Goods are his, they shall be restored to him, &c. Ordains that if the Goods within the Ship be Bona Peritura, such Things as will not endure for a Year and a Day, the Sheriff shall sell them, and deliver the Money received to answer it.

Boncha, A Bunch; is derived from the old Lat. Bonna or Buuna, a rising Bank, for the Bound of Fields: And hence Bown is used in Norfolk, for Swelling or Rising up in a Bunch, or Tumour, &c.

Bond, Is a Deed in Writing obligatory, whereby one doth bind himself to another, to pay a Sum of Money, or do some other Act: It contains an Obligation, with a Penalty, &c. And a Condition, which expressly mentions what Money is to be paid, or other Thing to be performed, and the limited Time for the Performance thereof; for which the Obligation is peremptorily binding. It may be made upon Parchment or Paper, tho' it is usually on Paper; and be either in the first or third Person; and the Condition may be either in the same Deed, or in another, and sometimes it is included within, and sometimes indorsed upon the Obligation: But it is commonly at the Foot of the Obligation. Bro. Obl. 67. A Memorandum on the Back of a Bond may restrain the same, by way of Exception. Moor 675. The Condition of a Bond must be to do a Thing lawful; and Bonds not to use Trades, till or sow Ground, &c. are unlawful, for they are against the Good of the Publick and the Liberty of a Freeman; and therefore void: And a Condition of a Bond to do any Act Malum in se, as to kill a Person, &c. is void; so also Bonds made by Duress; by Infants, Feme Coverts, &c. And if a Woman through Threats, Flattery, &c. be prevailed upon to enter into a Bond, she may be relieved in Chancery. 11 Rep. 53. If an Infant seal a Bond, and be sued thereon, he is not to plead Non est factum, but must avoid the Bond by special Pleading, for this Bond is only voidable, and not in it self void. 5 Rep. 119. But if a Bond be made by a Feme Covert, she may plead her Coverture, and conclude Non est factum, &c. her Bond being void. 10 Rep. 119. If a Bond depends upon some other Deed, and the Deed becomes void, the Bond is also void. A Bond made with Condition not to give Evidence against a Felon, &c. is void; but the Defendant must plead the Special Matter. 1 Leon. Condition of a Bond to indemnify a Person from any legal Prosecution, is against Law, and void, 1 Lutw. 667. And if a Sheriff takes a Bond as a Reward for doing of a Thing, it is void. 3 Salk. 75. Conditions of Bonds are to be not only lawful, but possible; and when the Matter or Thing to be done, or not to be done by a Condition, is unlawful or impossible, or the Condition it self repugnant, insensible or uncertain, the Condition is void, and in some Cases the Obligation also. 10 Rep. 120. But sometimes an Obligation may be single, to pay the Money, where the Condition is impossible, repugnant, &c. 2 Mod. 285. If a Thing be possible at the Time of entering into the Bond, and afterwards becomes impossible by the Act of God, the Act of the Law, or of the Obligee, it is become void; as if a Man be bound to appear next Term, and dies before, &c. the Obligation is saved. And when a Condition is doubtful, it is always taken most favourably for the Obligor, and against the Obligee; but so as a reasonable Construction be made as near as can be according to the Intention of the Parties. Dyer 51. If no Time is limited in a Bond for Payment of the Money, it is due presently, and payable on Demand. 1 Brownl. 53. But the Judges have sometimes appointed a convenient Time for Payment, having Regard to the Distance of Place, and the Time wherein the Thing may be performed. And if a Condition be made impossible in Respect to Time, as to make Payment of Money on the thirtieth of February, &c. it shall be paid presently; and here the Obligation stands single. Jones 140. Though if the Act be to be done at a certain Place, where the Obligor is to go to Rome, &c. And he is to do the sole Act without Limitation of Time, he hath Time during Life to perform the same; But if the Concurrence of the Obligor and Obligee is requisite, it may be hastened by Request of the Obligee,

6 Rep. 30. 1 Roll. Abr. 437. If no Place is mentioned for Performance of a Condition, the Obligor is obliged to find out the Person of the Obligee, if he be in England, and tender the Money, otherwise the Bond will be forfeited: But where a Place is appointed, he need seek no further. 1 Inst. 210. Lit. 340. And if where no Place is limited for Payment of Money due on a Bond, the Obligor at or after the Day of Payment meets with the Obligee, and tenders him the Money, but he goes away to prevent it, the Obligor shall be excused. 8 Ed. 4. The Obligor, or his Servant, &c. may tender the Money to save the Forfeiture of the Bond, and it shall be a good Performance of the Condition, if made to the Obligee, though refused by him: But if the Obligor be afterwards sued, he must plead that he is still ready to pay it, and tender the Money in Court. Co. Lit. 208. Where the Condition of a Bond is for Payment of Money, it may be performed by giving any other Thing in Satisfaction, because the Value of Money is certain, and therefore may be satisfied by a collateral Thing, if he accepts it; but where the Condition is to do a collateral Thing, there 'tis otherwise, and paying Money is no good Satisfaction. 3 Bulst. 148. One Bond cannot be given in Satisfaction of another; but this is where given by the Obligor himself, for it may be by others. 1 Mod. 221. If a Bond be to pay Money on such a Time, &c. It is no Plea for the Obligor to say that he did pay it; but he must shew at what Time, or else it may be taken that the Performance was after the Time limited. Noy's Max. 15. If a Bond be of twenty Years Standing, and no Demand be proved thereon, or good Cause of so long Forbearance shewn to the Court, upon pleading Solvit ad Diem, it shall be intended paid. Mod. Ca. 22. Payment of Money, without Acquittance, is an ill Plea to Action of Debt upon a single Bill; but 'tis otherwise upon a Bond with Condition. Dyer 25. If several Days are mentioned for Payment of Money on a Bond, the Obligation is not forfeit, nor can be sued until all the Days are past: But in some Cases, the Obligee may prosecute for the Money due by the Bond presently, though it be not forfeit; and by special wording, the Condition, the Obligee may be able to sue the Penalty on the first Default. 1 Inst. 292. In a Bond where several are bound severally, the Obligee is at his Election to sue all the Obligors together, or all of them apart, and have several Judgments and Executions; but he shall have Satisfaction but once, for if it be of one only, that shall discharge the Rest. But if an Obligation be joint, and not several, all the Obligors must be sued that are bound; and if one be prosecuted, he is not obliged to answer, unless the rest are sued likewise. Dyer 19, 310. Where two or more are bound in a joint Bond, and only one is sued, he must plead in Abatement, that two more sealed the Bond, &c. and aver that they are living, and so pray Judgment de Billa, &c. And not demur to the Declaration. Sid. 420. If a Bond is made to three, to pay Money to one of them, they must all join in the Action, because they are but as one Obligee. Yelv. 177. An Heir is not bound, unless he be named expressly in the Bond; but the Executors, and Administrators are. And if an Obligation be made to Man, his Heirs or Successors, the Executors and Administrators shall have the Advantage of it, and not the Heir or Successor, by Reason it is a Chattel. Dyer 14, 271. A Declaration need not be according to the Letter of the Bond, where there is any Omission, &c. but according to the Operation of Law upon it. Mod. Ca. 228. In Bonds to save Harmless, the Defendant being prosecuted is to plead non Damnificatus, &c. A Bond may be from one to one, one to two, three, or more Persons; or from two or more Persons to one, two, three &c. And may be to pay Money, make a Release, surrender an Estate, for quiet Enjoyment, to perform a Will, stand to an Award, save Harmless, &c. And the Name of the Obligor subscribed, 'tis said, is sufficient, though there is a Blank for his Christian Name in the Bond. 2 Cro. 261. But where another Christian Name is in the Bond, and the Bond signed by the right Name, though the Jury find it to be his Deed, the Obligee cannot have Judgment; for the Name subscribed is no Part of the Obligation. 2 Cro. 558. 1 Mod. 107. In these Cases, though there be a Verdict, there shall not be Judgment. If a Bond has no Date, or a false Date, if it be sealed and delivered, it is good. A Plaintiff may suggest a Date in a Bond, where there is none, or it is impossible, &c. where the Parties and Sum are sufficiently expressed. 5 Mod. 282. A Bond dated on the same Day on which a Release is made of all Things usque Diem datus, &c. is not thereby discharged. 2 Roll. Rep. 255. A Person shall not be charged by a Bond, though signed and sealed, without Delivery, or Words, or other Thing, amounting to a Delivery. 1 Leon. 140. A Bond may be good, though it contains false Latin, or false English, if the Intent appears: If Johannes is put for Johannem, Ostogesimo for Ostaginta, Septunginta for Septinginta, Trigintate for Triginta, Wiginti for Viginti, &c. these Mistakes do not make the Bond void, where the Condition is to pay Money. 2 Roll. Abr. 146. Moor 864. Quinginta Libris hath been adjudged the same with Quinquaginta. Cro. Car. 301. And so Quinquagesimis. 2 Cro. 29. Sexgintis for Sexcentis is ill; because Sexgintis is no Latin Word: But Sexigint for Sexaginta, or Sexingent for Sexcent is good. 2 Bulst. 24. By the Condition of a Bond, the Intent of what Sum was in the Obligation, may be more easily known, and explained. 2 Roll. 146. And the Condition of the Bond may be recorded, and then the Plaintiff demur, &c. 1 Lutw. 422. Likewise the Condition of Bonds may expound to whom an Obligor is bound to pay Money; as if A. binds himself to B. to be paid to A. whereas it should be to B. which Obligation is good, and the Solvendum void. 1 Inst. 108, 209. Interlineation in a Bond in a Place not material, will not make the Bond void; but if it be altered in a Part material, it shall be void. 1 Nels. Abr. 391. And a Bond may be void by Rasure, &c. As where the Date, &c. is rased after Delivery; which goes through the Whole. 5 Rep. 23. If the Words at the End of the Condition, That then this Obligation to be void, are omitted, the Condition will be void; but not the Obligation: But if the Words or else shall stand in Force be left out, it has no Effect to hurt either the Condition or the Obligation.

Form of a Bond for Payment of Money.

N Overint universi per presentes me Johannem A. de, &c. in Com. &c. Gen. teneri & firmiter Obligari Willielmo B. de, &c. Gen. in centum libris bone & legalis Monete Magnæ Britannię solvend. eid. Willielmo Willielmo B. aut suo certo Attornat. Executoribus Administratores vel Assignat. suis ad quam quidem solutionem bene & fidelit. faciend. Obligo me Heredes Executors & Administratores meos firmiter per presentes sigillo meo sigillat. Dat. sexto die Junii Anno Regni Dom. Georgii Dei Gratia Magnæ Britannix, Francix & Hibernix Regis fidei Defensor, &c. Duodecimo, annoque Dom. 1726.

The Condition of this Obligation is such, That if the above bound J. A. his Heirs, Executors or Administrators, do and shall well and truly pay, or cause to be paid unto the above named W. B. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns the full Sum of Fifty-two Pounds and ten Shillings of lawful Money of Great Britain, on or before the sixth Day of December next ensuing the Date hereof, then this Obligation shall be void, otherwise it shall remain in full Force and Virtue.

In this Condition, the Interest is added to the Principal; instead of which, you may say, if the said J. A. &c. do pay the said W. B. &c. the full Sum of Fifty Pounds, with Interest for the same after the Rate of five Pounds per Centum per Ann. (or with lawful Interest) on the Day, &c.

Bondage, and Bondmen. Bondage is Slavery; and Bondmen in Domesday are called Servi, but rendered different from Villani——Et de toto Tenemento, quod de ipso tenet in Bondagio in foca de Nortone cum pertin. Mon. Angl. 2. par. fol. 609. Bonda is said to be a Master of a Family. See Nativus.

Bonis non Amovendis, A Writ directed to the Sheriff of London, &c. where a Writ of Error is brought, to charge them that the Person against whom Judgment is obtained, be not suffered to remove his Goods, till the Error is tried and determined. Reg. Orig. 131.

Book of Bates, A small Book, declaring the Value of Goods that pay Custom of Poundage. 12 Car. 2.

Booting or Boting Corn, Rent-Corn anciently so called. The Tenants of the Manor of Haddenham in Com. Bucks, formerly paid Booting Corn to the Prior of Rochester. Antiq. of Purveyance, fol. 418. It is thought to be so called, as being paid by the Tenants by Way of Bote, or Boot, viz. as a Compensation to the Lord for his making them Leases, &c.

Bonagium, The Tenure called Bordlands. See Ordin. Just. Itin. in insula de Jersey

Bordaria, a Cottage, from the Sax. Bord, Domus.——Cum 18 Servis, 16 Villanis, 10 Bordis, & 60 Acris prati, &c.

Bordarii, or Bordbanni. These Words often occur in Domesday, and some think they mean Boors, Husbandmen, or Cottagers. In the Domesday Inquisition they were distinct from the Servi and Villani; and seemed to be those of a less servile Condition, who had a Bord or Cottage, with a small Parcel of Land allowed to them, on Condition they should supply the Lord with Poultry and Eggs, and other small Provisions for his Board or Entertainment. Some derive the Word Bordarii from the old Gall. Bords, the Limits or extreme Parts of any Extent; as the Borders of a Country, and the Borderers Inhabitants in those Parts.——Dicuntur Bordarii, vel quod in tuguriis (que Cottagia vocant) habitabant; seu villarum limitibus, quasi Borderers. Spelm.

Bord-halfpeny, Signifies a small Toll, by Custom paid to the Lord of the Town for setting up Boards, Tables, Booths, &c. in Fairs or Markets; It is derived from three Saxon Words, Bræd, i. e. Board, helve, in Behalf of, and penning, a Toll; which in the Whole makes a Toll for, or in Behalf of Boards.

Bordlands, The Demesnes which Lords keep in their Hands for the Maintenance of their Board or Table. Et Dominicum quod quis habet ad mensam suam & proprie, sicut sunt Bordlands, i. e. Dominicum ad mensam. Bract. lib. 4. Tract. 3. c. 9. Which Possession was anciently termed Bordage: And the Bordarii were such as held those Lands which we now call Demain Lands.

Bordlode, Was a Service required of Tenants to carry Timber out of the Woods of the Lord to his House: Or it is said to be the Quantity of Food or Provision, which the Bordary, or Bordmen paid for their Bord-Lands. The old Scots had the Term of Burd, and Meet-burd for Viſuals, and Provisions; and Burden-sack, for a Sack full of Provender: From whence 'tis probable comes our Burden at first.

Bord-service, A Tenure of Bord-lands; by which some Lands in the Manor of Fulham in Com. Mid. and elsewhere, are held of the Bishop of London, and the Tenants do now pay Six-pence per Acre in lieu of finding Provision, anciently for their Lord's Board or Table. Blount.

Borgbrych, Borg-bryce, or Burgh-brych, (Sax.) A Breach or Violation of Suretyship, Pledge-breach, or of mutual Fidelity.

Borough, (Fr. Burg, Lat. Burgus, Sax. Borhoe) Signifies a Corporate Town, which is not a City; and also such a Town or Place as sends Burgesſes to Parliament, the Number whereof you may find in Crompt. Jurisd. f. 24. Verſegan ſaith, that Burg or Burgh, whereof we take our Borough, metaphorically ſignifies a Town having a Wall, or ſome Kind of Incloſure about it: And all Places that in old Time had among our Anceſtors the Name of Borough, were one Way or other fenced or fortified. Lit. Seſſ. 164. But ſometimes it is uſed for Villa inſignior, or a Country-Town of more than ordinary Note, not walled. Linwood upon the Provincial, (ut ſingula de ſenſibus) ſays to this Effect, Aliqui interpretantur Burgum eſſe Caſtrum, vel locum ubi ſunt crebra caſtra, vel dicitur Burgus ubi ſunt per limites habitacula plura conſtituta: But he afterwards defines it thus, Burgus dicitur poteſt villa quæcunque alia a Civitate in qua eſt Univerſitas approbata. A Borough is a Place of Safety, Protection and Privilege, according to Somner; and in the Reign of King Hen. 2. Burghs had ſo great Privileges, that if a Bondman or Servant remained in a Borough a Year and a Day, he was by that Reſidence made a Freeman. Glanville. And why theſe were called Free Burghs, and the Tradeſmen in them Free Burgeſſes, was from a Freedom to buy and ſell, without Diſturbance, exempt from Toll, &c. granted by Charter: And Parliament Burghs are ſaid to be either by Charter, or Towns holden of the King in ancient Demeſne. Brady. It is conjectured that Burhoe or Borough, was alſo formerly taken for thoſe Companies conſiſting of ten Families, which were to be Pledges for one another; and we are told by ſome Writers that it is a Street or Row of Houſes cloſe to one another. Bract. lib. 3. Tract. 2. cap. 10. Lamb. Duty of Conſt. p. 8.

Boroughholders, or Burtholders, quasi Borhoe-calders, Are the ſame Officers with Borough-heads, or Head-Boroughs; who (according to Lambert) were the Head Men, or Chief Pledges of Boroughs, chosen by the rest to speak and act in their Names in those Things that concerned them. See Headborough.

Borough English, (Sax. Borhoe Englife) Is a customary Descent of Lands, in some ancient Boroughs, and Copyhold Manors, that Estates shall descend to the youngest Son; or if the Owner hath no Issue, to his younger Brother, as in Edmunton, &c. Kitch. 102. And the Reason of this Custom (Littleton says) is because the youngest is presumed in Law to be least able to provide for himself. Lit. 165. This Custom goes with the Land, and guides the Descent to the youngest Son, although there be a Devise to the contrary. 2 Lev. 138. If a Man seised in Fee of Lands in Borough English, make a Feoffment to the Use of himself and the Heirs Males of his Body, according to the Course of the Common Law, and afterwards died seised having Issue two Sons, the youngest Son shall have the Lands by Virtue of the Custom, notwithstanding the Feoffment. Dyer 179. If a Copyhold in Borough English be surrendered to the Use of a Person and his Heirs, the Right will descend to the youngest Son, according to the Custom. 1 Mod. 102. And a youngest Son shall inherit an Estate in Tail in Borough English. Noy 106. But an Heir at Common Law shall take Advantage of a Condition annexed to Borough English Land; tho' the youngest Son shall be intitled to all Actions in Right of the Land, &c. 1 Nels. Abr. 396. And the eldest Son shall have Tithes arising out of Land Borough English, for Tithes do not arise naturally from the Land, but by the Industry of Man; and of Common Right Tithes are not Inheritances descendable to an Heir, but come in Succession from one Clergyman to another. Ibid. 347. Borough English Land being descendable to the youngest Son, if a younger Son dies without Issue Male leaving a Daughter, such Daughter shall inherit Jure representationis, before any other Son; because by the Custom the youngest Son is put in the Place of the Eldest, and at Common Law the Issue of the Eldest is preferred Jure representationis. 1 Salk. 243. But where a youngest Son dies without any Issue, the eldest Son or Brother is Heir to him. 1 Lill. Abr. 239. Though it hath been adjudged that where a Man hath several Brothers, the youngest may inherit Lands in Borough English: Yet it is said where the Custom is that Land shall go to the youngest Son, it doth not give it to the youngest Uncle, for Customs shall be taken strictly. Dyer 179. 4 Leon. 384.

Borough Goods devisable. In the Statute of Aston Burnel 11 Ed. 1. there are these Words: As before the Statutes of 32 & 34 Hen. 8. no Lands were devisable at the Common Law, but in ancient Baronies; so at the Making of the Statute of Aston Burnel, it was doubted whether Goods were devisable but in ancient Boroughs: For by the Writ De Rationabili parte bonorum, anciently the Goods of a Man were partible between his Wife and Children. By the Common Law Lands could not be devised from the Heir; and here it seems as if Goods were also not devisable from the Wife and Children, before the Statute 11 Ed. 1.

Boftage, (Bofcagium) Is that Food which Wood and Trees yield to Cattle, as Mast, &c. from the Ital. Bofco, Silva: But Manwood observes, to be quit de Bofcagio, is to be discharged of paying any Duty of Wind-fall Wood in the Forest.

Bofcaria, Wood-Houfes from Bofcus; or Ox-Houfes from Bos — Ut ipfe poffunt Domos & Bofcaria fatis competentia adificare. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. fol. 302.

Bofcus, An ancient Word used in our Law, fignifying all Manner of Wood: The Italians make Use of Bofco in the same Sense; as the French do Bois. Bofcus is divided into High Wood or Timber, Haut bois, and Coppice or Under-Woods, Sub bois: But the High Wood is properly called Saltus; and in Fleta we read it Maeremium. — Cum una Carecta de mortuo Bofco. Pat. 10 H. 6.

Bofimus, A certain rustical Pipe, mentioned in ancient Tenures. By Inquisition after the Death of Laurence Hastings Earl of Pembroke, 22 E. 3. The Manor of Afton Cantlow in Com. Warw. is returned to be held of the King in Capite by these Words; Quod quidem manerium per se tenetur de Domino Rege in Capite per servitium inveniendi unum hominem Peditem, cum quodam Arcu sine Corda, cum uno Bosinno sine cappa, &c. Ex Record. Tur. Lond.

Boftar, An Ox-Stall. This Word occurs in Mat. Paris. Anno 1234. And in Ingulphus. — Fecit tum borrea, Bofcaria, ovilia, &c.

Bot, (Sax.) Signifies a Compensation, Remittance, or Amends: Hence comes Manbote, Compensation or Amends for a Man slain, &c. In King Ina's Laws is declared what Rate was ordained for Expiation of this Offence, according to the Quality of the Person slain. Lamb. cap. 96. From hence likewise we have our common Phrase To Boot, i. e. Compensationis gratia. There are House-bote, Plough-bote, &c. Privileges to Tenants in cutting of Wood, &c. on the Lands leased. Vide those Words, and Skene verbo Bote.

Botelless, sine remedio. In the Charter of H. 1. to Tho. Archbishop of York, it is said, that no Judgment or Sum of Money shall acquit him that commits Sacrilege; but he is in English called Botelless, viz. without Emendation. Lib. Albus penes Cap. de Suthnet. Int. Plac. Trin. 12 Ed. 2. Ebor. 48. We retain the Word still in common Speech; as it is Bootless to attempt such a Thing; that it is in vain to attempt it.

Botellaria, A Buttery or Cellar, in which the Butts and Bottles of Wine, and other Liquors are repositied. — Veniet ad Palatium Regis, & ibit in Botellarium, & extrahet a quocunque vase in dicta Botellaria invento, vinum quantum viderit necessarium pro factura unius picberi claretti. Anno 31 Ed. 1.

Botha, A Booth, Stall, or Standing in a Fair or Market. — Et duas mensuras liberas ad Bothas suas faciendas. Mon. Angl. 2 par. fol. 132.

Bothagium, Boothage, or customary dues paid to the Lord of the Manor or Soil, for the pitching and standing of Booths in Fairs or Markets. — Picagium, Stallagium, Bothagium & Tollagium. &c. de novo Mercato infra villam de Burcester, Com. Oxon. Paroch. Antiq. p. 680.

Bothna, or Buthna, Seems to be a Park where Cattle are inclosed and fed. Hector Boetius lib. 7. cap. 123. Bothena also signifies a Barony, Lordship, &c. And Domini Bothena are Lords of the Barony, Manor, &c. Skene.

Botiler of the King, (Pincerna Regis) Is an Officer that provides the King's Wines, who (according to Fleta) may by Virtue of his Office take out of every Ship laden with Sale Wines, Unum dolium eligere in prora navis ad opus Regis, & aliud in puppe, & pro qualibet pecia reddere tantum 20. solid. Mercatori. Si autem plura inde habere voluerit, bene licebit, dum tamen pretium fide dignorum iudicio pro Rege apponatur. Flcta, Lib. 2. cap. 21. Stat. 43 Ed. 3. cap. 3.

Bottomry, (Fœnus Nauticum) Is when the Master of a Ship borrows Money upon the Keel or Bottom of his Ship, and binds the Ship it self; that if the Money be not paid by the Day assigned, the Creditor shall have the Ship. But it is generally where a Person lends Money to a Merchant, who wants it to traffick, and is to be paid a greater Sum at the Return of the Ship, standing to the Hazard of the Voyage; in Regard to which, though the Interest be greater than five per Cent, or what is allowed by Law, it is not Usury. For Money lent to Sea is allowed a larger Interest than Money advanced on Land, by Reason 'tis furnished at the Hazard of the Lender, and if the Ship perishes, the Lender shares in the Loss; so that there is no real Security, as in Case of Lands, &c. And the Greater the Danger is, the greater may be the Profit reasonably required for the Money advanced. Lex Mercat. 122. Money lent on Bottomry is either on the bare Ship, (the usual Way) or upon the Person of the Borrower, and sometimes upon both: The first is where a Man takes up Money, and obliges himself, that if such a Ship shall arrive at such a Port, then to repay perhaps in long Voyages near double the Sum lent; but if the Ship happens to miscarry, then nothing. But when Money is lent at Interest, it is delivered at the Peril of the Borrower, and the Profit of this is merely the Price of the Loan; whereas the Profit of the other, is a Reward for the Danger and Adventure of the Sea, which the Lender takes upon himself, and makes the Interest lawful. Sea Laws 206, 207. Then there is usura Marina, joining the advanced Money, and the Danger of the Sea together; and this is obligatory sometimes to the Borrower's Ship, Goods and Person. Where Bonds or Bills of Bottomry are sealed, and the Money is paid, if the Ship receives Injury by Storm, Fire, &c. before the Beginning of the Voyage, then the Person borrowing only runs the Hazard, unless it be otherwise provided; as that if the Ship shall not arrive at such a Place, at such a Time, &c. there the Contract hath its Beginning from the Time of the Sealing: But if the Condition be, that if such a Ship shall sail from London to any Port abroad, and shall not arrive there, &c. then, &c. there the Contingency hath not its Beginning till the Departure. A Master of a Ship may not take up Money on Bottomry, in Places where his Owners reside, except he be a Part-Owner, and then he may only take up so much as his Part will answer in the Ship; for if he exceeds that, his own Estate is liable to make Satisfaction; but when a Master is in a strange Country, where there are no Owners, nor any Goods of theirs, nor of his own; and for Want of Money he cannot perform his Voyage, there he may take up Money upon Bottomry, and all the Owners are chargeable thereto; but this is understood where Money cannot be procured by Exchange, or any other Means: And in the first Case the Owners are liable by their Vessel, tho' not in their Persons; but they have their Remedy against the Master of the Ship. Leg. Oleron. l. 4. Some Masters of Ships who had insured or taken up Money upon Bottomry to a greater Value than their Adventure, having made it a Practice to cast away and destroy the Ships under their Charge; by Stat. 10 Car. 2. cap. 6. it is made Felony, and the Offenders shall suffer Death. Vide 1 Ann.

Form of a Bill of Bottomry.

TO all People to whom these Presents shall come, I A. B. of, &c. Owner and Master of the Ship called, &c. of the Burthen of two hundred Tons, now riding at, &c. and bound for, &c. in the West-Indies, send Greeting: Whereas I the said A. B. am at this Time necessitated to take up upon the Adventure of the said Ship, called, &c. the Sum of 100 l. for setting forth the said Ship to Sea, and furnishing her with Provisions for the said Voyage, which C. D. of, &c. Merchant, hath on Request lent unto me, and supplied me with at the Rate of 20 l. for the said 100 l. during the said Voyage: Now know ye, that I the said A. B. do by these Presents, for me, my Executors and Administrators, covenant and grant to and with the said C. D. that the said Ship shall with the first fair Wind after the Day, &c. depart from the River of Thames, and shall as Wind and Weather, shall serve, proceed in her Voyage to, &c. in the West-Indies; and having there tarried until, &c. and the Opportunity of a Convoy, or being sooner dispatched (which shall first happen) shall return from thence, and shall as Wind and Weather shall serve, directly sail back to the River of Thames to finish her said Voyage: And I the said A. B. in Consideration of the said Sum of 100 l. to me in Hand paid by the said C. D. at and before the Sealing and Delivery of these Presents, do hereby bind my self, my Heirs, Executors and Administrators, my Goods and Chattels, and particularly the said Ship, with the Freight, Tackle, and Apparel of the same, to pay unto the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, the Sum of 120 l. of lawful British Money, within one and twenty Days next after the Return and safe Arrival of the said Ship, in the said River of Thames, from the said intended Voyage: And I the said A. B. do for me, my Executors and Administrators, covenant and grant, to and with the said C. D. his Executors and Administrators by these Presents, That I the said A. B. at the Time of the Sealing and Delivery of these Presents, am true and lawful Owner and Master of the said Ship, and have Power and Authority to charge and engage the said Ship as aforesaid; and that the said Ship shall at all Times after the said Voyage, be liable and chargeable for the Payment of the said 120 l. according to the true Intent and Meaning of these Presents: And lastly, it is hereby declared and agreed, by and between the said Parties to these Presents, that in Case the said Ship shall be lost, miscarry, or be cast away before her next Arrival in the said River of Thames, from the said intended Voyage, that then the said Payment of the said 120 l. shall not be demanded, or be recoverable by the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, but shall cease and determine, and the Loss thereby be wholly born and sustained by the said C. D. his Executors and Administrators: And that then and from thenceforth every Act, Matter and Thing herein contained on the Part and Behalf of the said A. B. shall be void, any Thing herein contained to the contrary notwithstanding. In Witnesses, &c.

Bovata Terra, An Oxgate of Land, being as much as one Ox can plough. — Cujus singula Bovata sunt quindecim acra terra. Mon. Angl. par. 3. fol. 91. See Oxgang.

Bouche of Court, Commonly called Budge of Court, was a certain Allowance of Provision from the King, to his Knights and Servants, that attended him in any military Expedition. The French Avoir bouche a Court is to have an Allowance at Court, of Meat and Drink: From Bouche, a Mouth. But sometimes it extended only to Bread, Beer, and Wine. And this was anciently in Use as well in the Houses of Noblemen, as in the King's Court, as appears by the following Indenture. — *Ceste Endenture fait parentre Lui Nobles Hommes Monsieur Tho. Beauchamp, Comte de Warwick, d'une part, & Monsieur Johan. Russell de Strengesham Chevalier, de autre part, tesmoigne que le dit Johan. est, &c. Et Avera pur la pees, &c. Bracetu, A Hound: Brachetus is in Fr. Brachet. Braco Canis sagax, indagator Leporum: So as Braco was properly the large Fleet Hound; and Brachetus, the smaller Hound; and Bracheta the Bitch in that Kind. — Concedo eis duos Leporarios & quatuor Bracetos ad Leporem capiendum. Monastic. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 283. — Et duos Leporarios & quatuor Brachetas ad capiend. Leporem & Vulpem. Chart. 11 Ed. 2.

Bratinum, A Brewing: The whole Quantity of Ale brewed at one Time, for which Tolsester was paid in some Manors. Bracina a Brew-house. M. S. penes Will. Dugdale, Mil.

Brandr, A Liquor well known, made chiefly in France, and extracted from the Lees of Wine.

In the Stat. 20 Car. 2. cap. 1. upon an Argument in the Exchequer Anno 1668. whether Brandy were a Strong-water or Spirit, it was resolved to be a Spirit: But in the Year 1669. by a Grand Committee of the whole House of Commons, it was voted to be a Strong-water perfectly made. See the Stat. 22 Car. 2. cap. 4.

Brasfiare, To brew. Cujusunque Uxor Brasfiabat intus & extra Civitatem Heref. dabat 10. Denarios. Domesday. Brasfiatrix, a She-Brewer. Siqua Brasfiatrix brasfaverit Cervisiam, &c. Reg. Priorat. de Thurgarton. M. S.

Brasium, Signifies Malt: In the antient Statutes Brasfiator is taken for a Brewer, from the Fr. Brasseur; and at this Day is used for a Maltster or Malt-maker. It was resolved 18 Ed. 2. Quod venditio Brasii non est venditio victualium, nec debet puniri sicut venditio Panis, Vini & Cervisia, & hujusmodi contra formam Statuti. To make Malt, was a Service paid by some Tenants to their Lords. — In Manevio de Pidington quilibet virgatarius preparabit Domino unum quarterium Brasii per Annum, si Dominus inveniet Boscum ad siccandum. Paroch. Antiq. p. 496.

Brass, Is to be sold in open Fairs and Markets, on Pain of 10*l.* and to be worked according to the Goodness of Metal wrought in London, or be forfeited; and Searchers of Brass and Pewter are to be appointed in every City, &c. Stat. 19 Hen. 7. cap. 6. Brass and Pewter Wares, &c. are not to be sent out of the Realm, upon Pain of Forfeiture, &c. 25 & 33 Hen. 8. 2 & 3 Ed. 6.

Breach of Promise, (Violatio fidei) A Breaking or Violating a Man's Word: And Breach signifies where a Person commits any Breach of the Condition of a Bond, or his Covenant, &c. entered into, on Action upon which the Breach must be assigned. In Debt on Bond, conditioned to give Account of Goods, &c. a Breach must be alledged, or the Plaintiff will have no Cause of Action. 1 Saund. 102. And when a Breach is assigned it must not be general, but must be particular; as in Action of Covenant for not repairing of Houses, the Breach ought to be assigned particularly, what is the Want of Reparation: If one covenants he was seised, and Breach is assigned that he was not seised, it must be set forth who is seised, &c. Cro. Jac. 369. But on mutual Promise for one to do an Act, and in Consideration thereof another to do some Act, as to sell Goods, &c. for so much Money, a general Breach that the Defendant hath not performed his Part, is well assigned. 3 Lev. 319. If the Condition of a Bond consists of several Parts, the Defendant in Pleading is to shew that he hath performed the several Matters contained in the Condition: But where a Covenant consists of several Parts in the Affirmative, Performance generally is a good Plea. Sid. 215. In Case of a Bond for Performance of an Award, if the Defendant pleads any Matter by which he admits a Non-performance, and excuses it, the Plaintiff in his Replication must shew the Award, and assign the Breach, that the Court may see an Award was made, and judge whether it was good or not; for if it should be of a void Part thereof, it need not be performed. 1 Salk. 138. Breaches assigned ought to be according to the very Words of the Condition or Covenant; when they may be well enough though too general. 1 Lutw. 326. Where a Thing is to be done by a Person or his Assigns, the Breach is to be

be that it was done neither by the one or the other. 5 Mod. 133. If a Person is to tender a Conveyance, &c. to another, his Heirs or Assigns, Breach assigned that the Defendant did not tender a Conveyance to the Plaintiff, without the Words his Heirs or Assigns, is good: But if the Tender be to be made by the Plaintiff, his Heirs, &c. and not to him, it is otherwise. 1 Salk. 139. Where a Lessee for Years is to leave all the Timber on the Land, which was growing there at the Time of the Lease, and he cuts down the Trees, though he leaves the Timber on the Land at the End of his Lease, this is a Breach of Covenant: For in Contracts the Intention of Parties is chiefly to be considered. Raym. 464. If Lands are only excepted out of a Lease, and a Person is disturbed in enjoying them by the Lessee, this is no Breach of Covenant; though it is said it might be otherwise if a Way, Common, &c. be excepted. Moor 553. Where one brings an Action for a Covenant broken, he ought to assign the Breach of it in such a Manner, that the Defendant may take an Issue. 1 Lill. Abr. 240. If several Breaches are assigned, and the Defendant demurs upon the whole Declaration, the Plaintiff shall have Judgment for all that are well assigned, for they are as several Actions. Cro. Jac. 557. Where a Declaration assigns no particular Breach of Covenant, it is cured by Verdict; though ill upon Demurrer. 1 Ventr. 114, 126. Formerly a Plaintiff could assign but one Breach in Action of Debt upon a Bond for Performance of Covenants, tho' several Things were broken; for one Breach being proved, was a Forfeiture of the Bond: But in Action of Covenant, as many Breaches might be assigned as the Plaintiff would, because the Plaintiff might have a particular Damage upon each Covenant broken; and a several Issue must be taken upon every Breach. 1 Nelf. Abr. 406. And now by Statute, in Action on Bond for Performance of Covenants, the Plaintiff may assign as many Breaches as he pleases, and the Jury shall assess Damages and Costs for such Covenants as are proved to be broken. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 10. And where Judgment shall be given for the Plaintiff in such Action on a Demurrer, Nil dicit, &c. he may suggest on the Roll as many Breaches as he thinks fit; upon which a Writ of Enquiry shall go, &c. And if before Execution executed, the Defendant brings the Costs and Damages into Court, Execution shall be stayed; and the Plaintiff shall acknowledge Satisfaction, if the Execution be executed: But the Judgment shall still stand as a Security to answer the future Breach of any Covenant in the Deed; for which the Plaintiff or his Executors, &c. may have a Scire facias upon such Judgment against the Defendant. Stat. Ibid.

Bread of Treet, or Trite, (Panis Tritici) Is Bread mentioned in the Statute 51 Hen. 3. of Assise of Bread and Ale; wherein is particularized Wafel Bread, Cocket Bread, and Bread of Treet, which answer to the three Sorts of Bread now in Use, called White, Wheaten, and Household Bread. In religious Houses they heretofore distinguished Bread by these several Names, Panis Armigerorum, Panis Conventualis, Panis Puerorum, & Panis Famulorum. Antiq. Not.

Breach, (From the Fr. Breche) A Breach or Decay. In some ancient Deeds there have been Covenants for repairing Muros & Breccas, portas & Fossata, &c. — De Brecca Aquæ inter Wool- wich & Greenwich supervidend. Pat. 16 Ric. 2. Brede, A Word used by Brañon for Broad; as too large and too brede, is proverbially too long and too broad. Brañ. lib. 3. tract. 2. c. 15. There is also a Sax. Word Brede, signifying Deceit. Leg. Canut. cap. 44.

Bredwite, (Sax. Bread and Wite) A Fine or Penalty, imposed for Defaults in the Assise of Bread: To be exempt from which, was a special Privilege granted to the Tenants of the Honour of Wallingford by King Hen. 2. Paroch. Antiq. 114.

Brehon. In Ireland the Judges and Lawyers were antiently stiled Brehones; and thereupon the Irish Law called the Brehon-Law. 4 Inst. 358.

Breisna, Whether-Sheep. — Concedo Deo & Monachis 30. Breisnas singulis Annis. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. cap. 406.

Brenagium, A Payment in Bran, which Tenants antiently made to feed their Lords Hounds. Blount.

Bretoysse, or Bretois, The Law of the Marches of Wales, in Practice among the ancient Britains. — Ego Henricus de Penebrugge dedi omnibus liberis Burgensibus meis Burgi mei de Penebrugge omnes Libertates & liberas consuetudines secundum Legem de Bretoysse, &c. Pat. sine dat. Here Legem de Bretoysse is said to signify Legem Marchiarum; for Penebrugge, now called Pembridge, is a Town in Heresfordshire which borders upon Wales.

Breve, Is any Writ by which a Man is summoned or attached to answer an Action, or whereby any Thing is commanded to be done in the King's Courts, in Order to Justice, &c. It is called Breve from the Brevity of it; and is directed either to the Chancellor, Judges, Sheriffs, or other Officers, whose various Forms you may see in the Register. — Breve, quia breviter & paucis Verbis intentionem proferentis exponit & explanat, &c. Brañ. lib. 5. Tract. 5. c. 17. Not only Writs, but Letters Patent of the King, or Licences to make a Collection for any publick or private Loss sustained by the Subject, are commonly stiled Breve or Briefs. See Skene de verb. Breve. Vide Writ.

Breve perquirere, To purchase a Writ or Licence of Trial, in the King's Courts, by the Plaintiff, qui Breve perquisivit: And hence comes the Usage of paying 6 s. 8 d. Fine to the King, where the Debt is 40 l. and of 10 s. where the Debt is 100 l. &c. in Suits and Trials for Money due upon Bond.

Breve de Recto, A Writ of Right, or Licence for a Person ejected out of an Estate, to sue for the Possession of it when detained from him. Vide Recto.

Brevibus & Rotulis liberandis, A Writ or Mandat to a Sheriff to deliver unto his Successor the County, and the Appurtenances, with the Rolls, Briefs, Remembrances, and all other Things belonging to that Office. Reg. Orig. fol. 295.

Brewers, Are to put their Drink in Vessels mark'd by a Cooper, or forfeit 3 s. 4 d. a Barrel; and not selling it at reasonable Rates appointed by Justices, incur a Forfeiture of 3 s. 6 d. for every Barrel, Kilderkin 3 s. 4 d. &c. by Stat. 23 H. 8. cap. 4. And Brewers are to make an Entry at the Excise-Office once a Week of Liquors brewed, under Penalties, &c. 12 & 15 Car. 2. 7 & 8 W. 3. See Excise.

Bribery, (from the Fr. Briber, to devour or eat greedily) Is a high Offence, where a Person in in a judicial Place takes any Fee, Gift, Reward, or Brocage, for doing his Office, but of the King only. 3 Inst. 145. But taken largely it signifies the Receiving, or Offering, any undue Reward, to or by any Person concerned in the Administration of publick Justice, whether Judge, Officer, &c. to act contrary to his Duty: And sometimes it signifies the Taking or giving a Reward for a publick Office. 3 Inst. 149. Hob. 9. A Bribe of Money though small, the Fault is great; and Judges Servants, may be punished for receiving Bribes. And if a Judge refuses a Bribe offered him, the Offerer is punishable. Fortescue, cap. 51. Bribery in judicial or ministerial Officers, is punished by Fine and Imprisonment. Before the Statute 23 Ed. 3. Bribery in a Judge was looked upon as so heinous an Offence, that it was sometimes punished as High Treason; and it is at this Day punishable, with Forfeiture of Office, Fine and Imprisonment. In the Reign of King Jam. 1. the Earl of M. Lord Treasurer of England, being impeached by the Commons, for refusing to hear Petitions referred to him by the King, till he had received great Bribes, &c. was by Sentence of the Lords, deprived of all his Offices, and disabled to hold any for the Future, or to sit in Parliament; also he was fined fifty thousand Pounds, and imprisoned during the King's Pleasure. 1 Hawk. P. C. 170. In the eleventh Year of King George, the Lord Chancellor M—— had a milder Punishment: He was impeached by the Commons, with great Zeal, for Bribery, in selling the Places of Masters in Chancery, for exorbitant Sums, and other corrupt Practices, tending to the great Loss and Ruin of the Suitors of that Court; and the Charge being made good against him, being before deposed of his Office, he was sentenced by the Lords to pay a Fine of Thirty thousand Pounds, and imprisoned till it was paid. Vide the Trial. By Statute, the Chancellor, Treasurer, Justices of both Benches, Barons of the Exchequer, &c. shall be sworn not to ordain or nominate any Person in any Office, for any Gift, Brocage, &c. 12 R. 2. cap. 2. And the Sale of Offices concerning the Administration of publick Justice, &c. is prohibited on Pain of Forfeiture and Disability, &c. By 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 16. In the Construction of the last mentioned Statute, it has been resolved that the Offices of the Ecclesiastical Courts, are within the Meaning of that Act, as well as the Offices in the Courts of Common Law; and it has been adjudged, that one who contracts for an Office, contrary to the Purport of the said Statute 5 & 6 Ed. 6. is so disabled to hold the same, that he cannot be restored to a Capacity of holding it by any Grant or Dispensation whatsoever. Cro. Jac. 269, 386. Hawk. P. C. 171. Officers of the Customs, &c. taking any Bribe, or Reward, whereby the Crown shall be defrauded, shall forfeit 100*l.* and be rendered incapable of any Office. Stat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 11. But there is a saving Clause for the first Offence, acknowledging it in two Months. No Person setting up for Member of Parliament, shall after the Teste of the Writ of Election, or after any Place becomes vacant, give any Bribe of Money, Meat, Drink, Gift, Reward, &c. in order to be elected, on Pain of Disability to serve in Parliament. 7 W. 3. cap. 4.

Bribeur, (Fr. Br. beur) A Beggar; and seems to signify, in some of our old Statutes, one that pilfers other Men's Goods. 28 Ed. 2. cap. 1.

Bitolls; An Engine mentioned in Blount, by which Walls were beat down.

Bridge; (Pons) A Building of Stone or Wood erected across a River; for the common Ease and Benefit of Travellers. At Common Law those who are bound to repair publick Bridges, must make them of such Height and Strength, as shall be answerable to the Course of the Water; and they are not Trespassers if they enter on any Land adjoining to repair them, or lay the Materials necessary for the Repairs thereon. Dalt. cap. 16. Common Bridges being built for the common Ease of the People, of common Right ought to be repaired by the County; but a particular Person, Town, &c. may be bound to repair them by Tenure, or Prescription. 6 Mod. 307. And if a Man erects a Bridge for his own Use, and the People travel over it as a common Bridge, he shall notwithstanding repair it: Though a Person shall not be bound to repair a Bridge, built by himself for the common Good and publick Convenience, but the County must repair it. 2 Inst. 701. 1 Salk. 359. Where Inhabitants of a County are indicted for not repairing a Bridge, they must set forth who ought to repair the same, and traverse that they ought. 1 Ventr. 256. A Vill may be indicted for a Neglect in not repairing of a Bridge; and the Justices of Peace in their Sessions may impose a Fine for Defaults. And any particular Inhabitant of a County, or Tenant of Land charged to Repairs of a Bridge, may be made Defendants to an Indictment for not repairing it, and be liable to pay the Fine assessed by the Court for the Default of the Repairs; who are to have their Remedy at Law for a Contribution from those who are bound to bear a proportionable Share of the Charge. 6 Mod. 307. If a Manor is held by Tenure of repairing a Bridge, or Highway, which Manor afterwards comes into several Hands, in such Case every Tenant of any Parcel of the Demesnes and Services, (not ancient Copyholders, &c.) is liable to the whole Charge, but shall have Contribution of the Rest; and this though the Lord may agree with the Purchasers to discharge them of such Repairs, which only binds the Lord, and doth not alter the Remedy which the Publick hath. 1 Dant. Abr. 744. 1 Salk. 358. Indictments for not repairing of Bridges, will not lie but in the Case of Common Bridges on Highways; tho' it hath been adjudged they will lie for a Bridge on a common Footway. Mod. Ca. 256. Not keeping up a Ferry, or not permitting Persons to pass over it, being a common Passage for all the King's People, is indictable, as well as not keeping up Bridges. 1 Salk. 12. All Householders dwelling in any County or Town, whether they occupy Lands or not; and all Persons who have Land in their own Possession, whether they dwell in the same County or not, are liable to be taxed as Inhabitants, towards the Repairs of a publick Bridge, by the Statute 22 H. 8. cap. 5. Where it cannot be discovered who ought to repair a Bridge, it must be presented by the Grand Jury in Quarter-Sessions; and after their Inquiry, and the Order of Sessions upon it, the Justices may send for the Constables of every Parish, to appear at a fixed Time and Place, to make a Tax upon every Inhabitant, &c. But it has been usual, in the Levying of Money for Repairs of Bridges, to charge every Hundred with a Sum in Gross, and to send such Charge to the High Con-

Constables of each Hundred, who send their Warrants to the Petty Constables, to gather it, by Virtue whereof they assess the Inhabitants in particular Sums, according to a fixed Rate, and collect it; and then they pay the same to the High Constables, who bring it to the Sessions. This Method of raising Money, though it be contrary to the Statute 22 Hen. 8. has been observed some Years past; but by the 1 Ann. c. 18. Justices in Sessions, upon Presentment made, are to assess every Town, Parish, &c. in Proportion towards the Repairs of a Bridge; and the Money assessed is to be levied by the Constables of such Parishes, &c. and being demanded, and not paid in ten Days, the Inhabitants shall be distrained; and when the Tax is levied, the Constables are to pay it to the High Constable of the Hundred; who is to pay the same to such Persons as the Justices shall appoint, to be employed according to the Order of the Justices, towards repairing of the Bridge: And the Justices may allow any Person concerned in the Execution of the Act 3 d. per Pound out of the Money collected. All Matters relating to the Repairing and Amending of Bridges, are to be determined in the County where they lie, and no Presentment or Indictment shall be removed by Certiorari. And by this Statute, the Evidence of the Inhabitants of those Places where the Bridges are in Decay, shall be admitted at any Trial upon an Information or Indictment, &c. No Persons are compellable to make a new Bridge but by Act of Parliament: And the Inhabitants of the whole County cannot of their own Authority change a Bridge from one Place to another. If a Man has Toll for Men and Cattle passing over a Bridge, he is to repair it; and Toll may be paid in these Cases, by Prescription, or Statute. Indictments of Bridges out of Repair must say, that the Bridge is Pons Publicus & communis, situs in Alta Regia via super flumen, &c.

Brief, (Brevi) An Abridgment of the Client's Case, made out for the Instruction of Counsel, on a Trial at Law; wherein the Case of both Plaintiff and Defendant is to be briefly but fully stated, the Proofs must be placed in due Order, and proper Answers made to whatever may be objected against the Client's Cause, by the opposite Side; and herein great Care is requisite, that nothing be omitted to endanger the Cause. Form of a Brief, see Pract. Solic. pag. 311.

Brig, (Fr. Brigue) Debate, or Contention. — Et posuit terram illam in Brigam & intricavit terram, scilicet, per diversa fraudulenta Feoffamenta; Ideo committitur Marefc. Ebor. Hill. 18 Ed. 3. Rot. 28.

Brigandine, (Fr. in Lat. Lorica) Is a Coat of Mail, or antient Armour, consisting of many jointed and scale-like Plates, very pliant and easy for the Body. This Word is mentioned in 4 & 5 P. & M. cap. 2. And some confound it with Haubergeon; and others with Brigantine, which is very different from it, being a long but low built Vessel, swift in sailing, used at Sea.

Brigantes, A Word used for Yorkshire, Lancashire, Bishoprick of Durham, Westmorland and Cumberland. Blount.

Brig-bote, or Brug-bote, Signifies to be freed from the Reparation of Bridges. It is compounded of the Sax. Brig, a Bridge, and Bote, which is a Yielding of Amends, or Supplying a Defect: But this is more properly Bruck bote, from the Germ. Bruck, i. e. a Bridge, and Bote a Compensation; and it is used for the Liberty or Exemption of being free from Tribute or Contribution towards the Mending or Re-edifying of Bridges. Flota, lib. 1. cap. 47. Selden's Titles of Honour, fol. 622.

Broccage, (Broccagium) The Wages or Hire of a Broker; which is also termed Brokerage. 12 R. 2. c. 2. and 11 H. 4. — Ex Broccagio, vel alio sinistro pacto. Rot. Stat. 31 Ed. 3.

Broccella. This Word, as interpreted by Dr. Thoresen, signifieth a Wood; and it is said to be a Thicket or Covert of Bushes, and Brush-wood, from the obsolete Lat. Brusca, terra Bruscosa, & Brocia, Fr. Broce, Brocelle: And hence is our Broome of Wood, and Brousing of Cattle. — Dedi unam Brocellam vocat. &c. Reg. de Thurgaton. M. S.

Brocha, (From the Fr. Broche) An Awl, or large Packing Needle, the Use whereof is very well known. A Spit in some Parts of England is called a Broche; and from this Word comes to pierce or broach a Barrel. That it was an Iron Instrument, you may learn from the following Authority. — Henricus de Havering tenet Manerium de Norton in Com. Essex, per Serjeantiam inveniendi unum hominem, cum uno equo, &c. & uno sacco de corio, & una Brochia ferrea. Anno 13 Ed. 1.

Brochia, A great Can or Pitcher. Bract. lib. 2. tract. 1. cap. 6. Where it seems that he intends Saccus to carry dry, and Brochia liquid Things.

Brodehalpenny, or Broadhalspenny. See Bord-halspenny.

Brokers, (Broccatores, Broccarii & Auxionarii) Are those that contrive, make and conclude Bargains and Contracts between Merchants and Trademen, in Matters of Money and Merchandize, for which they have a Fee or Reward. These are Exchange Brokers; and by the Statute 10 R. 2. cap. 1. they are called Brooggers; also Brooggers of Corn is used in a Proclamation of Queen Elizabeth for Badgers. Baker's Chron. fol. 411. The Original of the Word is from a Trader broken, and that from the Sax. Broc, which signifies Misfortune, which is often the true Reason of a Man's Breaking; so that the Broker came from one who was a broken Trader by Misfortune, and none but such were formerly admitted to that Employment; and they were to be Freemen of the City of London, and allowed and approved by the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, for their Ability and Honesty. By the Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 20. they are to be licensed in London by the Lord Mayor, who gives them an Oath, and takes Bond for the faithful Execution of their Offices: And if any Persons shall act as Brokers, without being thus licensed and admitted, they shall forfeit the Sum of 500 l. Also the like Penalty is inflicted on lawful Brokers selling Shares of Stock not authorized by Act of Parliament. Stat. 6 Geo. cap. 18. There are likewise Pawn-Brokers, who commonly keep Shops, and let out Money to poor necessitous People upon Pawns, for the most Part on Extortion; but these are more properly Pawn-takers, and are not of that Antiquity or Credit as the former; nor do the Statutes allow them to be Brokers, though now commonly so called. These Brokers often deal in stolen Goods, as they buy them cheap, and are a great Nuisance: Notwithstanding there is a Law declaring that wrongful Sale of Goods stolen, &c. to and by Brokers, shall not alter the Property; and if they do not not discover such Goods at the Request of the Owner, they are to forfeit double Value. 1 Fac. 1. cap. 21. Brokers generally stay no longer than a Year for their Money lent on Pawns, at the End whereof they sell the Goods if not redeemed; and the Reason of exorbitant Interest being taken by Brokers, is the Want of Witnesses to prove the Contract, or other Proof of the Money taken but the Party's own Evidence. See Pawn.

Brok, An old Sword or Dagger. — Furati dicunt super sacramentum, quod Johannes de Monemne Miles per Robertum Armigerum suum, percussit Adam Gilbert Capellanum de Wilton, in gutture quodam Gladio, qui dicitur Brok, per quod propinquior erat Morti, &c. Rot. Parl. 35 E. 1.

Brofus, Bruised or injured with Blows, Wounds, or other Casualty. Cowel.

Brothel-houses, Lewd Places or Stews, being the common Habitations of Prostitutes. King Hen. 8. by Proclamation, in the 37th Year of his Reign, suppressed all the Stews or Brothel-houses, which had long continued on the Bank-side in Southwark, contrary to the Law of God and of the Land. 3 Inst. 205. A Brothelman was a loose idle Fellow; and a Feme Bordelier or Brothelier, a common Whore. Borel-man is a Contraction of Brothelman; and hence Borel-folks, Drunkards and Epicures, which the Scotch now call Bureil folk. Chaucer. See Bawdy-house.

Buere. This the Latines call Erica, and signifies Heath-Ground. Domesday. And Brueria, Briars, Thorns, or Heath, from the Sax. Brær, Briar. — Humphry Duke of Gloucester grants the Forester of Shotore and Stowode, tantum de Arboribus & Brueriis, quantum pro vestura indiguerit, habeat. Paroch. Antiq. 620.

Buillus, Brogillus, A Wood or Grove; Fr. Breil, Breuil, a Thicket or Clump of Trees in a Park or Forest. Hence the Abby of Bruer, in the Forest of Wichwood in Com. Oxon: And Bruel or Brehul, a Hunting Seat of our antient Kings in the Forest of Bernwood, Com. Bucks.

Builletus, A small Copice or Wood. — De dimis Willielmo B. Licentiam claudendi duos Bruilletos, qui sunt extra regardam Foresta nostra quorum unus est inter Swinburn & Eftorbrig. Cart. Ric. 1. Bruella seems likewise to signify a little Wood, or heathy Ground. — In Dominicis Boscis Domini Episcopi, scil. in Bruellis ex parte australi Regii itineris. Reg. Priorat. de Wermley, fol. 24.

Bruscia, Sometimes signifies a Wood: And in Mon. Angl. Charta nostra confirmamus centum acras tam de terra quam de Bruscia de Manerio de Riveria. Monast. Tom. 1. pag. 773.

Bucklarium, A Buckler. — Et quod Malefactores noctanter cum Gladiis & Bucklariis, ac aliis Armis, &c. Claus. 26 Ed. 1. m. 8. intus.

Buckfall, A Toil to take Deer; which by the Statute 19 H. 7. is not to be kept by any Person that hath not a Park of his own, under Penalties. There is a Privilege of being quit of Buckfalls. — Et sint quieti de Chevagio, Hondpeny, Buckfall, &c. & de omnibus Misericordiis, &c. Privileg. de Semplingham. See 4 Inst. 306.

Buckwheat, Is the same with French Wheat, and well known in many Counties of this Kingdom: In Essex it is called Brank; and in Worcestershire, Crap. It is mentioned in the Statute 15 Car. 2. cap. 5.

Bucinus, A military Weapon for a Footman.

— Petrus de Chetwood tenet — per Ser-jantiam inveniend. unum hominem peditem, cum una lancea, & uno Bucino ferro, &c. Tenures, pag. 74.

Buggery, or Sodomy, comes from the Italian Buggerare, to bugger; and is defined to be Carnalis copula contra Naturam, & hoc vel per confusionem Specierum, sc. a Man or Woman with a brute Beast; vel Sexuum, a Man with a Man, or Man with a Woman. 12 Rep. 36. This Sin against God, Nature, and the Law, 'tis said was brought into England by the Lombards. Rot. Parl. 50 Ed. 3. numb. 58. Stat. 25 H. 8. cap. 6. And in antient Times, according to some Authors, it was punished with Burning, though others say with burying alive: But at this Day it is Felony excluded Clergy, and punished as other Felonies. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 6. and 5 Eliz. 17. And it is Felony both in the Agent and Patient consenting, except the Person on whom committed be a Boy under the Age of Discretion; when 'tis Felony only in the Agent. For many Years past, the Crime of Buggery has been greatly practised in this Kingdom, without any exemplary Punishments of the Committers of it; till Anno 12 Geo. a great Number of these Wretches were detected of the most abominable Practices, and three of them put to Death; which seasonable Justice seems to have given a Check to the before growing Evil. In every Indictment for this Offence, there must be the Words, Rem habuit veneream & carnaliter cognovit, &c. and of Consequence some Kind of Penetration and Emission must be proved; but any the least Degree is sufficient. 1 Hawk. 6. This Sin is excepted out of our Acts of general Pardon.

Bull, (Bulla) A Brief or Mandate of the Pope or Bishop of Rome, from the Lead, or sometimes Gold Seal affixed thereto; which Mat. Paris, Anno 1237. thus describes: In Bulla Domini Papae Stat Imago Pauli a dextris Crucis in medio Bullae figurata, & Petri a Sinistris. These Decrees of the Pope are often mentioned in our Statutes, as 25 Ed. 3. 28 H. 8. cap. 16. 1 & 2 R. & M. c. 8. and 13 Eliz. cap. 2. And have been heretofore used, and of Force in this Land: But by the Statute 28 Hen. 8. it was enacted, That all Bulls, Briefs and Dispensations had or obtained from the Bishop of Rome, should be void. And by 13 & 23 Eliz. If any Person shall obtain from Rome any Bull or Writing to absolve or reconcile such as shall forsake their due Allegiance, or shall give or receive Absolution by Colour of such Bull, or use or publish such Bull, &c. it is made High Treason.

Bullion, (Fr. Billon) the Ore or Metal whereof Gold is made; and signifies with us Gold or Silver in Billet. Anno 9 Ed. 3. cap. 2.

Bultel, Is the Bran or Refuse of Meal after dressed by the Baker; also the Bag wherein it is dressed is called a Bulter or rather Boulter. The Word is mentioned in the Statute de Assisa panis & Cervisie, Anno 51 Hen. 3. Hence comes Bulted or Boulterd Bread, being the coarsest Bread.

Burcheta, (From the Fr. Berche) A Kind of Gun used in Forests.

Burifer Regis, Purse-bearer, or Keeper of the King's Privy Purse. Pat. 17 H. 8.

Burdare, To jest or trifle. — Quod nulli veniant ad turniandum vel Burdandum, nec ad alias quascunque Aventuras, &c. Mat. Paris, Addit. pag. 149.

Burgage, (Burgagium) An antient Tenure proper to Boroughs, whereby the Inhabitants by Custom hold their Lands or Tenements of the King, or other Lord of the Borough, at a certain yearly Rent. Old Tenures. It is a Kind of Socage Tenure, and signifieth the Service whereby the Borough is holden, 1 Inst. 109. Swinburn ranks it inter ignobiles Tenuras. And 37 H. 8. c. 20. Item non Utimur facere fidelitatem vel Servitium forinsecum Dominis Feodorum pro terris & Tenementis nostris, nisi tantummodo redditus nostros de eisdem terris ex-euntes; quia tenemus terras & tenementa nostra per Servitium Burgagii, ita quod non habemus Medium inter nos & Dominum Regem. M. S. Codex de L. L. Statutis & Consuetud. Burgi-villæ Montgomer. à temp. Hen. 2. — Antiently a Dwelling-house in a Borough Town, was called a Burgage. — Sciant Quod Ego Editha, &c. Dedi. — In liberam, puram & perpetuam Eleemosynam totum illud Burgagium cum Edificiis & pertin. suis quod jacet in Villa Leominstr. Ex libro Chartarum Priorat. Leom.

Burgagium liberum, Was when Tenants having paid their Rent to the Superior Lord, they were free from other Services.

Burgh, A small walled Town, or Place of Privilege, &c. See Borough.

Burg-bote, (from Burg, Castellum and Bote, Compensatio) Is a Tribute or Contribution towards the Building or Repairing of Castles, or Walls of a Borough or City: From which divers had Exemption by the antient Charters of the Saxon Kings. Rastal. Burgh-bote significat quietantiam Reparationis murorum Civitatis vel Burgi. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47.

Burgesses, (Burgarii & Burgeses) Are properly Men of Trade, or the Inhabitants of a Borough or walled Town; but we usually apply this Name to the Magistrates of such a Town, as the Bailiff and Burgesses of Leominster, &c. In Germany, and other Countries, they confound Burgess and Citizen; but we distinguish them, as appears by the Stat. 5 R. 2. cap. 4. where the Classes of the Commonwealth are thus enumerated, Count, Baron, Banneret, Chevalier de Countee; Citizein de Citee; Burgess de Burgh. See Co. Lit. 80. We now also call those Burgesses, who serve in Parliament, for any Borough or Corporation: And no Man is qualified to be a Burgess in Parliament, that hath not an Estate of 300 l. a Year, clear of all Incumbrances. Stat. 9 Ann. cap. 7. Vide Borough.

Burghbreche, A Fine imposed on the Community of a Town, for the Breach of Peace, &c. Angli omnes decemvirali olim fidejussione pacem Regiam stipulati sunt, quod autem in hanc Commissum est, Burghbrech dicitur, &c. Leg. Canuti, cap. 55. Burghbrech est Latio Libertatis aut Septi. Gallice, blefmure de Courte ou de clofe. Polychron, lib. 1. cap. 50.

Burgheristhe, or Burgheriche, Is a Word used in Domesday, signifying Violatio Pacis in Villa. — Iste consuetudines pertinent ad Taunton Burgheristh. Latrones, Pacis infractio, Hanifare, Denarii de Hund. & Denarii S. Petri, &c. M. S. Cambdeni, penes Will. Dugdale Armig. Quere. Blount.

Burghmote, A Court of a Borough. — Et habeatur in Anno ter Burgesmotus, &c. nisi sapius sit, & interfit Episcopus & Aldermannus, & doceant ibi Dei rectum & Saculi. L. L. Canuti, M. S. cap. 44.

Burghware, (quasi Burgivir) A Citizen or Burgess. — Willielmus Rex Salut. Willielmum Epif- copum, & Godfredum Portgrefum, & omnem Burghware infra London. Charta Willielmi sen. Londinensibus concessa.

Burglary, (Burglaria, from the Sax. Burgh, Domus, or Arx, & Laron, furtum) Is where a Man breaketh and entereth the House of another, wherein some Person is, in the Night-time, to the Intent to commit some Felony, whether the Intention be executed or not. 4 Co. 39. In the natural Signification Burglary is nothing but the Robbing of a House; but our Law restrains it to Robbing a House by Night, or Breaking in with an Intent to rob, or do some other Felony: And the like Offence committed by Day is called House-breaking, to distinguish it from Burglary. It is an Offence excluded the Benefit of Clergy, and may be committed a great many Ways: And if a Man hath two Houses, and resides sometimes in one of the Houses, and sometimes in the other, if the House he doth not inhabit is broken in the Night, it is Burglary. Poph. 52. If Thieves pretend Business to get into a House by Night, and thereupon the Owner of the House opens his Door, and they enter and rob the House, this is Burglary. Kel. 42. Also if a Person be within a House, and steal Goods, and then open the House on the Inside, and go out with the Goods, this is Burglary, tho' the Thief do not break the House. 3 Inst. 64. If a Thief unlocks a Door, or draws the Latch of a Room, to rob, &c. If one comes down a Chimney, open a Window, break a Hole in the Wall, &c. all these are a Breaking: And if the Thief set his Foot over the Threshold of the Door of the House, or put his Hand, Pistol, &c. within the Door or Window, it is an Entry sufficient to make it Burglary. H. P. C. 80, 81. Though the House is to be a Mansion-house, and the Out-houses adjoining to the Mansion-house are Part thereof, wherein this Crime may be committed; but not a Barn, Stable, &c. at any Distance from the House. 4 Rep. 40. Part of a House divided from the Rest, having a Door of its own to the Street, this is a Mansion-house of him who hires it. Kel. 84. A Chamber in an Inn of Court, where one usually lodges is a Mansion-house; for every one hath a several Property there. But a Chamber where any Person doth lodge as an Inmate, cannot be called his Mansion; tho' if a Burglary be committed in his Lodgings, the Indictment may lay the Offence to be in the Mansion-house of him that let them. 3 Inst. 65. Kel. 83. If the Owner of the House breaks into the Rooms of his Lodgers, and steals their Goods, it cannot be Burglary to break into his own House; but it is Felony to steal their Goods. Wood's Inst. 378. When several come with a Design to commit Burglary, and one does it while the Rest watch near the House, here the Act of one is by Interpretation the Act of all of them. Ibid. 377. Taking away Goods from a Dwelling-house, where any Person is therein; and breaking any Shop, Warehouse, &c. and taking away Goods to the Value of 5 s. though no Person be therein, is Burglary, by Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 9. 10 & 11 W. 3. cap. 23. And a Reward of 40 l. is given by Statute for apprehending a Burglar, and prosecuting him to Conviction. 5 Ann. cap. 31. The Indictment for Burglary must set forth that Fregit & Intrauit Domum Mansionalem, &c.

Buri, A Word signifying Husbandmen. — In Upton sunt 18 Villani, 11 Bordarii, & duo Buri, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. p. 183.

Burneta, Cloth made of dy'd Wool. A Burnet Colour must be dyed; but Brunus Color may be made with Wool without Dying, which we call Medleys or Russets. Differentia inter Brunum Colorem & Burnetam; Brunus enim color potest fieri ex lana absque tinctura, viz. Russelum: Burnetum vero requirit tincturam & artificium hominis quoad colorem. Lyndewood. Thus much is mentioned because this Word is sometimes wrote Bruneta.

Burrochium, A Burrock, or small Wear over a River, where Wheels are laid for the taking of Fish.

Burfa, A Purse. Reddendo inde ad Bursam Abbatibus vid. ad Festum Sancti Michaelis, &c. Ex lib. Chart. Priorat. Leominstr.

Bursaria, The Bursery, or Exchequer of Collegiate and Conventual Bodies, or Place of Receiving and Paying, and accounting by the Bursarii, or Bursers. A. D. 1277. Computaverunt Patres Radulphus de Meriton, & Stephanus de Oxon. de Bursaria Domus Bercestre coram Auditoribus. Paroch. Antiq. pag. 288. But the Word Bursarii did not only signify the Bursars of a Convent or College; but formerly Stipendiary Scholars were called by the Name of Bursarii, as they lived on the Burse or Fund, or publick Stock of the University. At Paris, and among the Cistercian Monks, they were particularly termed by this Name: And — In ea Universitate (scil. Oxon.) sunt clava Collegia a Regibus, Reginis, Episcopis, & Principibus fundata, & ex Stipendiis eorum Scholastici plurimi utuntur, quos Parisiis Bursarios vocamus. Johan. Major, Gest. Scot. lib. 1. cap. 5.

Burse, (Bursa, cambium, Basilica) An Exchange or Place of Meeting of Merchants.

Busones Comitatus: They are mentioned in Bracton. — Iusticiarii vocatis ad se quatuor vel sex, vel pluribus de Majoribus comitatus, qui dicuntur Busones Comitatus. & ad quorum nutum dependent vota aliorum, &c. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. c. 1. Mr. Blount says Busones is used for Barones.

Busia, An old Word signifying a great Ship. Blount's Dict.

Bussellus, A Bushel; from Buxa, Butta, Buttis, a standing Measure: And hence Butticella, Butticellus, Bussellus, a less Measure. Some derive it from the old Fr. Bouts, Leather Containers of Wine; whence comes our Leather Boots, Budget and Bottles. Sax. Bytta was used for Leather Bottles, and from thence they were called Byttes. Kenet's Gloss.

Busca and Bussus, Busca and Buscus, &c. The same with Bruscia and Brusula.

Butt, (Butticum) A Measure of Wine, &c. well known among Merchants, and containing 126 Gallons of Malmsey Wine, by Stat. 1 R. 3. cap. 13.

Butter and Cheese. Justices of Peace in Sessions may restrain Retailing Butter and Cheese; which is to be sold in open Shop, &c. under Penalties. Stat. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. cap. 21. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 22. Corrupt Butter is not to be mix'd with good, &c. on Pain to forfeit double Value, &c. and Repacking Butter for Sale, incurs the like Forfeiture. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 26. Butter and Cheese may be transported; and Buyers of Butter are to set their Marks on Casks, &c. 22 Car. cap. 13. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 7.

Butts, The Place where Archers meet with their Bows and Arrows to shoot at a Mark, which we call Shooting at the Butts. Also Butts are the Ends or short Pieces of Land in arable Ridges and Furrows: Buttum terræ, a Butt of Land. — Dedi decem acras & unum Buttum terræ, &c. Cart. M. de Sibbeford, penes Will. Dugdale, Mil. See Abbuttave.

Bye. Words ending in Bye or Bee, signify a Dwelling Place or Habitation, from the Saxon Bye.

By-Laws, (Bilagines, from the Goth. By, pagus, and Lagen, Lex.) Are Laws made obiter, or by the By; such as Orders and Constitutions of Corporations, for the Governing of their Members; of Courts-Leet and Courts-Baron; Commoners or Inhabitants in Villages, &c. made by common Assent, for the Good of those that make them, in particular Cases whereunto the publick Law doth not extend; so that they bind farther than the Common or Statute Law. Guilds and Fraternities of Trades, by Letters Patent of Incorporation, may likewise make By-Laws, for the better Regulation of Trade among themselves, or with others. Kitch. 45, 79. 6 Rep. 63. In Scotland these Laws are called Laws of Birlaw or Burlaw; which are made by Neighbours elected by common Consent in the Birlaw Courts, wherein Knowledge is taken of Complaints betwixt Neighbour and Neighbour; which Men so chosen are Judges and Arbitrators, and stiled Birlaw-men: And Birlaw or Burlaw, according to Skene, are Leges Rusticorum, Laws made by Husbandmen, or Townships, concerning Neighbourhood amongst them. Skene, p. 33. The Inhabitants of a Town, without any Custom, may make Ordinances or By-Laws for repairing of a Church, or Highway, or any such Thing which is for the general Good of the Publick; and in such Cases the greater Part shall bind all: But if it be for their own private Profit, as for the well Ordering of their Common, or the like, they cannot make By-Laws without a Custom to warrant it; and if there be a Custom, the greater Part shall not bind the Rest in these Cases, unless it be warranted by the Custom. 5 Rep. 63. Every City and Town Corporate, have Power to make By-Laws, for the better Government of the Body Politick. Hob. 211. 5 Mod. 429. But a Corporation cannot make a By-Law to bind Strangers which are not of their Body, or to extend to Places out of the Jurisdiction of the Makers: Nor may By-Laws be made in the Form of Acts of Parliament. 1 Nelf. Abr. 411. Also By-Laws may not be made to restrain a Person from setting up his Trade, it being against the

the Common Law to restrain Men from Trades. A By-Law that no Person who is not a Freeman of a Corporation shall set up a Trade under a Penalty, hath been adjudged void and against Law; as it excludes those who have served Apprenticeships in the Corporation, who by Law may use Trades. 1 Lutw. 562. A By-Law by a Corporation may inflict a Penalty, recoverable by Distress, or Action of Debt, and be good. 1 Danv. Abr. 738. But 'tis said it cannot be made under a certain Penalty to be levied by Distress, and Sale of the Offender's Goods. 2 Ventr. 182. For a By-Law may not be made on Pain of Forfeiture of Goods: Nor may it inflict Imprisonment, being contrary to Magna Charta. 2 Inst. 54. A By-Law may be good to disfranchise a Freeman for Contempt to a Mayor, &c. but not to imprison. Moor 411. Where By-Laws are good, Notice of them is not necessary, because they are presumed for the better Government and Benefit of all Persons living in those particular Limits where made; and therefore all Persons therein are bound to take Notice of them. 1 Lutw. 404. The Freeholders in a Court-Leet, may make By-Laws relating to the Publick Good, which shall bind every one within the Leet. 2 Danv. 457. And a Court-Baron may make By-Laws, by Custom, and add a Penalty for the Non-performance of them. But all By-Laws are to be reasonable; and ought to be for the common Benefit, and not private Profit of any particular Persons; and must be consonant to the Publick Laws and Statutes, as subordinate to them. Goldsb. 79. And by Stat. 19 H. 7. c. 7. By-Laws made by Corporations, are to be approv'd by the Lord Chancellor, or Chief Justices, if against the Publick Good, &c. on Pain of 40*l.* Vide the Statute.

Calcetum, Calcea, A Causey or common hard Way, maintain'd and repair'd with Stones and Rubbish; from the Lat. Calx, Chalk, Fr. Chaux, whence their Chaussee and our Causeway, or Path raised with Earth, and pay'd with Chalk-stones, or Gravel. Calcearum operationes were the Work and Labour done by the adjoining Tenants: And Calcagium, was the Tax or Contribution paid by the neighbouring Inhabitants towards the Making and Repairing such common Roads; from which some Persons were especially exempted by Royal Charter. Kennet's Gloss.

Calends, (Calende) Among the Romans was the first Day of every Month, being spoken of it by it self; or the very Day of the New Moon, which usually happen together: And if Fridie, the Day before, be added to it, then it is the last Day of the foregoing Month; as Fridie Calend. Septemb. is the last Day of August. If any Number be placed with it, it signifies that Day in the former Month, which comes so much before the Month named; as the tenth Calends of October is the 20th Day of September, for if one reckon backwards, beginning at October, that 20th Day of September, makes the 10th Day before October. In March, May, July, and October, the Calends begin at the sixteenth Day, but in other Months at the Fourteenth; which Calends must ever bear the Name of the Month following, and be numbered backwards from the first Day of the said following Months. Distum de Kenelworth is dated the Day before the Calends of November, An. 1256. In the Dates of Deeds, the Day of the Month, by Nones, Ides, or Calends, is sufficient. 2 Inst. 675. See Hopton's Concordance, pag. 69. And see Ides.

Canon, Is a Law or Ordinance of the Church; and the Greek Word Canon, from whence is deriv'd the Canon-Law, signifies a Rule, because it leads a Man straight, neither Drawing him from one Side or other, but rather correcting him. The Canon Law consists partly of certain Rules taken out of the Scripture; partly of the Writings of the antient Fathers of the Church; partly of the Ordinances of general and provincial Councils; and partly of the Decrees of the Popes in former Ages. And it is contained in two principal Parts, the Decrees and the Decretals: The Decrees are Ecclesiastical Constitutions made by the Pope and Cardinals, and were first gathered by Ivo Bishop of Carnat, who lived about the Year 1114, but afterwards perfected by Gratian, a Benedictine Monk, in the Year 1149, and allowed by Pope Eugenius to be read in Schools and alledged for Law. They are the most Antient, as having their Beginning from the Time of Constantine the Great, the first Christian Emperor of Rome. The Decretals are Canonical Epistles written by the Pope, or by the Pope and Cardinals, at the Suit of some or more Persons for the Ordering and Determining of some Matter of Controversy, and have the Authority of a Law; and of these there are three Volumes, the First whereof was compiled by Raymundus Barcinus, Chaplain to Gregory the Ninth, and at his Command, about the Year 1231. The second Volume is the Work of Boniface the Eighth, collected in the Year 1298. And the third Volume, called the Clementines, was made by Pope Clement the Fifth, and published by him in the Council of Vienna, about the Year 1308. And to these may be added some novel Constitutions of John the 22d, and some other Bishops of Rome. As the Decrees set out the Origin of the Canon Law, and the Rights, Dignities and Degrees of Ecclesiastical Persons, with their Manner of Election, Ordination, &c. So the Decretals contain the Law to be used in the Ecclesiastical Courts; and the first Title in every of them, is the Title of the Blessed Trinity, and of the Catholick Faith, which is followed with Constitutions and Customs, Judgments and Determinations in such Matters and Causes as are liable to Ecclesiastical Cognizance, the Lives and Conversation of the Clergy, of Marrimony and Divorces, Inquisition of criminal Matters, Purgation, Penance, Excommunication, &c. But some of the Titles of the Canon Law are now out of Use, and belong to the Common Law: And others are introduc'd, such as Trials of Wills, Bastardy, Defamation, &c. Yet Trials of Tithes were antiently in all Cases had by the Ecclesiastical Law; tho' at this Time the Law only takes Place in some particular Cases. Thus much for the Canon Law in General; and as to the Canon Laws of this Kingdom, by the Statute 25 H. 8. c. 19. it is declared, that all Canons not repugnant to the King's Prerogative, nor to the Laws, Statutes, and Customs of the Realm, shall be used and executed. By this Statute, Canons made in Convocation, are to be confirm'd by the King, and have the Royal Assent: And it has been adjudg'd that Canons made in Convocation, and and confirmed by the King, do bind as firmly in all Ecclesiastical Causes, as Acts of Parliament do in other Cases; for by the Common Law, every Bishop in his Diocese, and each Archbishop in his Province, and the Convocation may make Canons, which shall be binding within their Jurisdictions. The Convocation for the Province of Canterbury was held at London, Anno 1603, in the first Year of the Reign of King James I. by the King's Writ, and they had a Licence under the Great Seal, to consult and agree to such Canons as they should think fit; whereupon they made several Canons concerning the Government of the Church, Religion, the Clergy, &c. which had the Royal Assent, and were ratified and confirmed by that King, for him, his Heirs and Successors, pursuant to the Statute 25 Hen. 8. which Canons thus warranted by Act of Parliament, are the Laws of the Land to this Day. See my Treatise of Laws, p. 402, &c. 1 Nels. Abr. 416. The general Canon Law is no farther in Force in this Kingdom than it hath been receiv'd, and is consistent with the Common or Statute Law.

Canon Religioforum, A Book wherein the Religious of Convents had a fair Transcript of the Rules of their Order, which were frequently read among them as their local Statutes; and this Book was therefore called Regula and Canon. The publick Books of the Religious were the Four following: 1. Missale, which contained all their Offices of Devotion. 2. Martyrologium, a Register of their peculiar Saints and Martyrs, with the Place and Time of Passion. 3. Canon or Regula, the Institution and Rules of their Order. 4. Necrologium or Obituarium, in which they entered the Death of their Founders and Benefactors, to observe the Days of Commemoration of them. Kennet's Gloss.

Cantel, (Cantellum) Seems to signify the same with what we now call Lump, as to buy by Measure, or by the Lump: But according to Blount it is, that which is added above Measure. —

Nullum genus bladi vendatur per cumulum seu Cantellum, præter Avenam, Brasium & farinam. Stat. de Pistor. cap. 9. It also signifies a Piece of any Thing, as a Cantel of Bread, and the like.

Cantred, (Cantredus) A British Word from Cant, or Cantre, which in the British Tongue signifies Centum, and Tret, a Town or Village, is in Wales an hundred Villages: For the Welsh divide their Counties into Cantreds, as the English do into Hundreds. This Word is used 28 H. 8. c. 3.

Capacity, (Capacitas) An Ability, or Fitness to receive: And in Law it is where a Man or Body Politick, is able to give or take Lands, or other Things, or to sue Actions. Our Law allows the King two Capacities, a Natural and a Politick: In the First, he may purchase Lands to him and his Heirs; in the latter, to him and his Successors. An Alien born hath sufficient Capacity to sue in any Personal Actions, and is capable of Personal Estate; but he is not capable of Lands of Inheritance; and in a Real Action, it is a good Plea of the Defendant to say, the Plaintiff is an Alien born, and pray if he shall be answered. Dyer 3. Persons attainted of Treason or Felony, Idiot, Lunatics, Infants, Feme Coverts without their Husbands, &c. are not capable to make any Deed of Gift, Grant, or Conveyance, unless it be in some special Cases. But all other Persons, void of Impediments, are capable of making Grants and Conveyances, sue and be sued, being twenty-one Years of Age; and at Fourteen, their Age of Discretion, they are capable by Law to marry, be a Witness, &c. 1 Inst. 171, 172.

Cape, (Lat.) Is a Writ judicial, touching Plea of Lands or Tenements; so termed, as most Writs are, of that Word in it, which carries the chief Intention or End thereof: And this Writ is divided into Cape Magnum, and Cape Parvum, both of which take hold of Things immoveable.

Cape Magnum, or the Grand Cape, Is a Writ that lies before Appearance, to summon the Tenant to answer the Default, and also over to the Demandant: And in the Old Nat. Brev. it is defined to be; where a Man hath brought a Præcipe quod reddat of a Thing touching Plea of Land, and the Tenant makes Default at the Day to him given in the Original Writ, then this Writ shall go for the King to take the Land into his Hands; and if the Tenant come not at the Day given him thereby, he loseth his Land, &c. See Reg. Jud. fol. 1. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 3. cap. 1.

Cape Parvum, or Petit Cape, Is where the Tenant is summoned in Plea of Land, and comes at the Summons, and his Appearance is recorded; if at the Day given him he prays the View, and having it granted, makes Default; then shall issue this Writ for the King, &c. Old Nat. Br. 162. The Difference between the Grand Cape and Petit Cape is, that the Grand Cape is awarded upon the Tenant's not Appearing or Demanding the View in such Real Actions, where the original Writ does not mention the Particulars demanded; and the Petit Cape is after Appearance or View granted: And whereas the Grand Cape summons the Tenant to answer the Default, and also over to the Demandant; Petit Cape summons the Tenant to answer the Default only: And therefore it is called Petit Cape; tho' some say it hath its Name, not because it is of small Force, but by Reason it consists of few Words. Blount.

Cape ad valentiam. This is a Species of Cape Magnum, and is where I am impleaded of Lands, and vouch to warrant another, against whom the Summons ad Warrantizandum hath been awarded, and he comes not at the Day given; then, if the Demandant recover against me, I shall have this Writ against the Vouchee, and recover so much in Value of the Lands of the Vouchee, if he hath so much; if not, I shall have Execution of such Lands and Tenements as descend to him in Fee; or, if he purchase afterwards, I shall have against him a Resummons; and if he can say nothing, I shall recover the Value: And this Writ lies before Appearance. Old Nat. Br. 161.

Capella. Before the Word Chapel was restrain'd to an Oratory, or depending Place of Divine Worship, it was used for any Sort of Chest, Cabinet, or other Repository of precious Things, especially of Religious Reliques. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. p. 580.

Capella de floribus, A Chaplet or Garland of Flowers for the Head. Cowel.

Capella Lineata, A Head-piece lined. — Abbas de Nevele tenet in Com. Lincoln, per Servitium reddendi Domino Regi unam Capellam lineatam de Syndone, &c. — Tenures, p. 64.

Capellus, A Cap, Bonnet, or other Covering for the Head. — Capite discooperto, sine Capello, cum una Garlanda de Latitudine, &c. Tenures, p. 32. — Capellus ferreus, An Helmet, or iron Head-piece, Quicumq; laicus habuerit in Catallis ad valentiam valentiam decem Marcatorum habeat Halbergellum & Capellum ferri & lanceam. Hoveden, pag. 61. — Capellus Militis is likewise an Helmet or military Head-piece. Consuetud. Domus de Farendon. M. S. f. 21.

Capias, Is a Writ or Process of two Sorts; one whereof is called Capias ad Respondendum, before Judgment, where an Original is sued out, &c. to take the Defendant and make him answer the Plaintiff: And the other, a Writ of Execution, after Judgment, being of divers Kinds, as Capias ad Satisfaciendum, Capias Utlagatum, &c. The Capias ad Respondendum in C. B. is drawn from the Præcipe, which serves both for the Original and Capias, and the Return of the Original is the Teste of the Capias. If a Capias be special, in Debt, Covenant, &c. the Cause of Action must be recited at large, and you are to set forth the Substance of your intended Declaration, as you are also in your Original. The usual Course is to take out the Capias, and sue out the Original after, altho' it is supposed to be sued out before, because the Original cannot be so speedily sued out at all Times: And where the Cause of Action is for Debt, and requires Bail, the best Way is to make out an Ac etiam Capias, the Original to which is only a bare Claiſum fregit, and when you come to Judgment, you may file a new Original to warrant such Judgment. If a Capias be special, by Præcipe quod reddat, &c. And there is any Mistake in the Name, alias dictus, or Sum, it may be pleaded in Abatement, and a new Original afterwards will not cure it; but you are forc'd to discontinue your Action, paying Costs, and to begin de novo. There may be an Alias and a Pluries Capias, bearing Teste from the Return of each other, if the Defendant be not taken on the first Writ. See Pract. Solic. p. 290.

The Words Si ut Alias, and Sicut Pluries, distinguish the Alias and Pluries from the Capias.

Capias ad Satisfaciendum, Is a judicial Writ which issues out of the Record of a Judgment, where there is a Recovery in the Courts at Westminster of Debt, Damages, &c. And by this Writ the Sheriff is commanded to take the Body of the Defendant in Execution, and him safely to keep, so that he hath his Body in Court at the Return of the Writ, to satisfy the Plaintiff his Debt and Damages. And it is said the Sheriff cannot upon this Writ take the Money, and discharge the Prisoner; because the Writ is Quod Capias the Defendant, & eum salvo custod. ita quod Habeas Corpus ejus die, &c. coram Domino Rege apud Westm. ad satisfaciendum the Plaintiff, &c. 1 Lill. Abr. 249. It is usual to take out this Writ, where the Defendant hath no Lands nor Goods, whereof the Debt recovered may be levied. And where the Body is taken upon a Ca. sa. and the Writ is returned and filed, it is an absolute and perfect Execution against the Defendant, and no other Execution can be against his Lands and Goods: But this is unless the Defendant escape, or die in Execution, &c. for where a Person dies in Execution, his Lands and Goods are liable to satisfy the Judgment, by Statute 21 Jac. 1. c. 24. A Capias ad satisfaciendum lieth not against a Peer; nor against Executors or Administrators; but where a Devastavit is return'd by the Sheriff, &c. 1 Lill. 250. Where the Defendant cannot be taken upon a Capias in the County where the Action is laid, there may issue a Testatum Ca. sa. into another County; and so of the other Writs.

Capias Utlagatum, Is a Writ that lies against a Person who is outlawed in any Action, by which the Sheriff apprehends the Party outlawed, for not appearing upon the Exigent, and keeps him in safe Custody till the Day of Return, and then presents him to the Court, there to be ordered for his Contempt; who, in the Common Pleas, was in former Times to be committed to the Fleet, there to remain 'till he had sued out the King's Pardon, and appeared to the Action. And by a special Capias Utlagatum in the same Writ, the Sheriff is commanded, and may seize all the Defendant's Lands, Goods and Chattels, for the Contempt to the King; and the Plaintiff, (after an Inquisition taken thereupon, and return'd into the Exchequer) may have the Lands extended, and a Grant of the Goods, &c. whereby to compel the Defendant to appear; which, when he shall do, if he reverse the Outlawry, the same shall be restored to him. Old Nat. Br. 154. A Defendant may appear in Person, and reverse an Outlawry: And in B. R. one may appear by Attorney, &c. Also when a Person is taken upon a Capias Utlagatum, the Sheriff is to take an Attorney's Engagement to appear for him, where Special Bail is not required; and his Bond with Sureties to appear, where 'tis required. Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18. This Writ is either general, against the Body; or, as I have before observ'd, it is Special, against Body, Lands and Goods. See Outlawry.

Capias pzo Fine, Is where one who is fined to the King for some Offence committed against a Sta-a Statute, does not discharge the Fine according to the Judgment: Whereupon his Body is to be taken by this Writ, and committed to Prison until he pay the Fine. It is also used in other Cases, for not making out some Pleas in Civil Actions. 3 Rep. 12. By the Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. Capiatur Fines are taken away in several Cases. See Fines for Offences.

Capias in Withernam, Is a Writ lying for Cattle in Withernam; which is, where a Distress taken is driven out of the County, &c. so that the Sheriff cannot make Deliverance in Replevin, when this Writ issues to the Sheriff to take as many Beasts of the Distrainer, &c. Reg. Orig. 82, 83. Vide Withernam.

Capitale, Signifies a Thing which is stolen, or the Value of it. Leg. H. 1. cap. 59.

Capitale vivens, Hath been used for live Cattle. — Reddam de meo proprio decimas Deo, tam in Vivente Capitali, quam in mortuis fructibus terræ. Leg. Athelstan.

Capite, (from Caput, i. e. Rex, unde tenere in Capite, est Tenere de Rege, omnium terrarum Capite) An ancient Tenure, whereby a Man held Lands of the King immediately as of his Crown, whether by Knights Service, or Socage. This Tenure was likewise called, Tenure holding of the Person of the King: And a Person might hold of the King, and not in Capite; that is, not immediately of the Crown, but by Means of some Honour, Castle, or Manor belonging to it: According to Kitchen, one might hold of the King by Knights Service, and not in Capite; because it might be held of some Honour in the King's Hands, descended to him from his Ancestors, and not immediately of the King, as of his Crown. Kitch. 129. Dyer 44. F. N. B. 5. The very ancient Tenure in Capite, was of two Sorts; the one Principal and General, and the other Special or Subaltern; the Principal and General was of the King as Caput Regni, & Caput Generalissimum omnium Feodorum, the Fountain whence all Feuds and Tenures have their main Original: The Special was of a particular Subject, as Caput Feudi, seu terra illius, so called from his being the First that granted the Land in such Manner of Tenure, from whence he was stiled Capitalis Dominus, &c. But Tenure in Capite is now abolished; and by Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. All Tenures are turned into free and common Socage: So that Tenures hereafter to be created by the King are to be in free and common Socage only, and not by Capite, Knights-Service, &c. Blount.

Capitulum, A Word used to signify what we now call Poll-Money.

Capitulum, A Covering for the Head. 'Tis mentioned in the Statute 1 Hen. 4. and other old Statutes, which prescribe what Dresses shall be wore by all Degrees of Persons.

Capitula Agri, The Head-lands, Lands that lie at the Head or upper End of the Lands or Furrows. — Canonici (Burcester) concesserunt hominibus de Wrechwike duas acras prati pro Capitibus suarum crostarum tenus Rivulum versus Molendinum, &c. Kenner's Paroch. Antiq. p. 137.

Capitula Ruralia, Assemblies or Chapters, held by Rural Deans and Parochial Clergy within the Precinct of every distinct Deanery; which at first were every three Weeks, afterwards once a Month, and more solemnly once a Quarter. Coovel.

Caption, (Captio) Is when a Commission is executed, the Commissioners subscribe their Names to a Certificate, declaring when and where the Commission was executed; which in Law is called a Caption. And these Captions relate chiefly to Business of three Kinds, i. e. to Commissions to take Fines of Lands, to take Answers in Chancery, and Depositions of Witnesses: On the Taking of a Fine it is thus; Capt. & Cogn. die & anno, &c. apud, &c. And on the Back, Executio istius Comm. patet in quadam Schedul. eidem Com. Annex. On the Taking of an Answer in Chancery, the Caption is as follows; Capt. fuit hac Respons. super sacram. supranominat. Def. Willielmi B. die & anno, &c. apud, &c. coram nobis, &c. And on the Back, Executio istius Com. &c. On the taking Depositions of Witnesses, only the Execution on the Back is indorsed; as Executio istius Com. in quad. Schedul. &c. The Caption being included in the Title of the Depositions. Sometimes it is usual to add to the Caption, Virtut. Commi'con. Dom. Regis nobis & al. directi, &c.

Capture, (Captura) The Taking of a Prey, an Arrest, or Seizure: And it particularly relates to Prizes taken by Privateers, in Time of War, which are to be divided between the Captors, &c. Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 14. and 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 25.

Caput Baronie, Is the Castle or Chief Seat of a Nobleman; which descends to the eldest Daughter, if there be no Son, and must not be divided among the Daughters like unto Lands, &c.

Caput Anni, New Year's Day, upon which of old was observ'd the Festum Stultorum.

Caput Jejunii, In our Records is used for Asb-Wednesday, being the Head, or first Day of the Beginning of the Quadragesimal, or Lent-Fast.

Caput loci, The Head or upper End of any Place; ad Caput Villæ, at the End of the Town.

Caputagium, Some think this Word signifies Head or Poll Money, or the Payment of it: But it is rather what we otherwise call Chevagium, or Chevage.

Car and Char, The Names of Places beginning with Car and Char signify a City, from the Brit. Caer, viz. Civitas, as Carlisle, &c.

Caravanna, A Caravan, or joint Company of Travellers in the Eastern Countries, for mutual Conduct and Defence. — Egressa Caravanna nostra de Joppa versus exercitum veniebat onusta victualibus & aliis clientis necessariis. Gaufrid. Vine-saut. Richardi Regis Iter Hierosol. lib. 5. cap. 52.

Caristia, Dearth, Scarcity, Dearthness. — Rex Majori & Vic. London, Salutem. Querela Archiepiscoporum, Comitum, — quod de Bobus, Vaccis, multonibus, &c. Magna & quasi intollerabilis est Caristia hiis diebus sub. &c. Pat. 8 Ed. 1.

Caritas, Ad Caritatem, Poculum Caritatis. A Grace-Cup; or an extraordinary Allowance of Wine, or other Liquor, wherein the Religious at Festivals drank in Commemoration of their Founders and Benefactors. Cartular. Abbat. Glasston. M. S. f. 29.

Clark,

Clark, A Quantity of Wool, whereof Thirty make a Sarpler. Stat. 27 H. 6. cap. 2.

Carnarium, A Charnel-house, or Repository for the Bones of the Dead. — In Carnario sub-tus Capellum, &c. Offa humana, &c. humata de Licentia Sacrista qui pro tempore fuerit, qui. disti Carnarii clavem & custodiam habebit specialem, ut usq; ad Resurrectionem generalem honestius conserventur, a carnibus integre denudata reponi volumus & observari.

— Cartular. Foundationis Capelle Sancti Johannis in occid. parte Eccl. Norwic. per Joh. Norwic. Episc. Dat. 4 O&A. 1316.

Carno. This Word hath been used for an Immunity or Privilege, as appears in Cromp. Jurisd. fol. 191.

Carpemeals, Cloth made in the northern Parts of England, of a coarse Kind, mentioned in 7 Jac. cap. 16.

Carrat, A Weight of four Grains in Diamonds, &c. And this Word 'tis said was formerly used for any Weight or Burden.

Carreta, or Carretta, Was antiently taken for a Carriage, Cart, or Wane-Load; as Carreta fœni is used in an old Charter for a Load of Hay. Kennet's Gloss.

Carrels, Closets, or Apartments for Privacy and Retirement. — Three Pews or Carrels, where every one of the old Monks, after they had dined, did resort, and there study. — Davies Mon. of Durham, p. 31.

Carrick or Carrack, (Carrucha) A Ship of great Burden, so called of the Italian Word Carico or Carco, which signifies a Burden or Charge: It is mentioned in the Statutes 2 R. 2. c. 4. and 1 Jac. c. 33. They were not only used in Trade, but also in War, as Walsingh. in H. 5. f. 394. viz. Galli conduxerant classem magnarum navium Carricarum, &c. qua Regnum Angliæ molestant.

Carrier, (Gestator) Is a Person that carries Goods for others, for his Hire, which makes him answerable: And Justices of Peace have Power to assess the Price of Carriage of Goods yearly at their Easter Sessions; and if any Carrier shall take above the Rates and Prices so assess'd, he shall forfeit 5 l. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 12. A common Carrier having the Charge and Carriage of Goods, is to answer for the same, or the Value to the Owner. Co. Lit. 78. And where Goods are delivered to a Carrier, and he is robbed of them, he shall be charged, and answer for them, because of the Hire. 1 Roll. Abr. 338. One brought a Box to a Carrier, in which there was a large Sum of Money, and the Carrier demanding of the Owner what was in it, he answered, it was filled with Silks, and such like Goods, upon which the Carrier took it, and was robbed; and adjudged, that the Carrier was liable to make it good: But a Special Acceptance, as provided there is no Charge of Money, would have excused the Carrier. 1 Ventr. 238. 4 Rep. 83. If a common Carrier loses Goods he is intrusted to carry, a Special Action on the Case lies against him, on the Custom of the Realm; and not Trover: And so of a common Carrier by Boat. 1 Roll. Abr. 6. Noy 114. If he be not a common Carrier, and takes Hire, he may be charged on a Special Assumpsit; for where Hire is taken, a Promise is implied. Cro. Jac. 262. A common Carrier may have Action of Trover or Trespass for Goods taken out of his Possession by a Stranger; he having a Special Property in the Goods, and being liable to make Satisfaction for them to the Owner: And where Goods are stolen from a Carrier, he may bring an Indictment against the Felon as for his own Goods, tho' he has only the possessory, and not the absolute Property; and the Owner may likewise prefer an Indictment against the Felon. Kel. 39. If a Carrier is robb'd of Goods, also either he or the Owner may bring an Action against the Hundred, to make it good. 2 Saund. 380. Where a Carrier entrusted with Goods, opens the Pack, and takes away and disposes of Part of the Goods, this shewing an Intent of Stealing them, will make him guilty of Felony. H. P. C. 61. And it is the same if the Carrier receives Goods to carry them to a certain Place, and carrieth them to some other Place, and not to the Place agreed. 3 Inst. 367. If a Carrier, after he hath brought Goods to the Place appointed take them away privately, he is guilty of Felony; for the Possession which he received from the Owner being determined, his second Taking is in all Respects the same as if he were a meer Stranger. 1 Hawk. P. C. 90. See Larceny, &c.

Caruca, (Fr. Charrue) A Plough; from the old Gallic Carr, which signifies a Plough, and is the present Irish Word for any Sort of wheel'd Carriage: Hence Charl, and Carl, a Ploughman or Rustick. Vide Karle.

Carucage, (Carucagium) A Tribute impos'd on every Plough, for the Publick Service: And as Hidage was a Taxation by Hides of Land, so Carucage was by Carucates of Land. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. fol. 294.

Carucate, or Carve of Land (Carucata Terra) A Plough-Land; which in a Deed of Thomas de Arden, 19 Edw. 2. is declared to be One hundred Acres, by which the Subjects have sometimes been taxed; whereupon the Tribute so levied was called Carvagium, or Carucagium. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 26. But Skene says, it is as great a Portion of Land as may be tilled in a Year and a Day by one Plough; which also is called Hilda, or Hida terra, a Word used in the old British Laws. And now by Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3. a Ploughland, which may contain Houses, Mills, Pasture, Meadow, Wood, &c. is 50 l. per Annum: This was ordained in^o regard to charging Persons for the Reparation of Highways, who are chargeable in sending out Teams, &c. by the Ploughland. Littleton, in his Chapter of Tenure in Socage, saith that Soca idem est quod Carucata, a Soke or Ploughland are all one. Stow says, King Hen. 3. took Carvage, that is, two Marks of Silver of every Knight's Fee, towards the Marriage of his Sister Isabella to the Emperor. Stow's Annals, pag. 271. And Rastal, in his Exposition of Words, tells us, Carvage is to be quit, if the King shall tax all the Lands by Carves; that is, a Privilege whereby a Man is exempted from Carvage. The Word Carve is mentioned in the Statute 28 Ed. 1. of Wards and Reliefs, and in Magna Charta, cap. 5. And Anno 1200. Facta est Pax inter Johannem Regem Angliæ & P. Regem Franciæ, &c. Et mutuavit Regi Franciæ 30 Milia Marcarum, pro quibus collectum est Carvagium in Anglia scil. 111 s. pro quolibet aratro. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Dunstable in Bibl. Cotton. See Co. Litt. 69. and Kennet's Gloss.

Carucatarius, He that held Land in Carvage or Plough-Tenure. Paroch. Antiq. p. 354.

Cassatum and Cassata, By the Saxons called Hide; by Bede, Familia, is a House with Land sufficient to maintain one Family: Rex Angl. Ethelred.

red. de 310. Cassatis, unum trierem, &c. Hoveden Anno 1008. And Hen. Huntingdon, mentioning the same Thing, instead of Cassata writes Hilda.

Cashtite, A Saxon Word signifying a Mulct. Blount.

Cassidile, Is a little Sack, Purse, or Pocket. — Protulit in Cassidili toxicum mellitum. Mat. Westm.

Cask, Is an uncertain Quantity of Goods; and of Sugar contains from eight to eleven hundred Weight.

Castel, or Castle, (Castellum) Is well known to be a Fortrefs in a Town, and with us a principal Mansion of a Nobleman. In the Time of Hen. 2. there were in England 1115 Castles; and every Castle contains a Manor, so that the Constable of a Castle is the Constable of a Manor. 2 Inst. 31. But during the Civil Wars in this Kingdom, these Castles were demolished, so that there is generally only the Ruins or Remains of them at this Day.

Castellain, (Castellanus) The Lord-Owner, or Captain of a Castle, and sometimes the Constable of a Castle or fortified House. Bract. lib. 5. tract. 2. cap. 16. 3 Ed. 1. c. 7. It hath likewise been taken for him that hath the Custody of one of the King's Mansion-Houses, called by the Lombards Curties, in English Courts, tho' they are not Castles or Places of Defence. 2 Inst. 31. And Manwood in his Forest-Laws, says there is an Officer of the Forest called Castellanus.

Castellarium, Castellarii, The Precinct or Jurisdiction of a Castle. — Et unum Toftum juxta Castellarium. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. fol. 402.

Castellozum Operatio, Castlework, or Service and Labour done by inferior Tenants, for the Building and Upholding of Castles of Defence; toward which some gave their personal Assistance, and others paid their Contribution. This was one of the three necessary Charges, to which all Lands among our Saxon Ancestors were expressly Subject. — Liberi ab omni servitio, excepta trinoda necessitate, Pontis, & Arcis constructione, & expeditione contra hostem. — And after the Conquest an Immunity from this Burden was sometimes granted: As King Hen. 2. granted to the Tenants within the Honour of Wallingford, — Ut quieti sint de Operationibus Castellorum. Paroch. Antiq. p. 114. It was unlawful to build any Castle without Leave of the King; which was called Castellatio: Hec mittant hominem in Misericordia Regis, viz. Infractio pacis, Infidelitas & proditio, despectus de eo, Castellatio sine Licentia. Du Fresne.

Castleward, (Castelgardum, vel Wardum Castri) An Imposition laid upon such Persons as dwell within a certain Compass of any Castle, towards the Maintenance of such as watch and ward the Castle, Magn. Chart. c. 20. 32 H. 8. c. 48. It is used sometimes for the Circuit it self, which is inhabited by those which are subject to this Service. Castle-guard Rents were Rents paid by Persons dwelling within the Liberty of any Castle, for the Maintaining of Watch and Ward in the same. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2.

Caster, and Chester: The Names of Places ending in these Words, are derived from the Lat. Castrum; for this Termination at the End, was given by the Romans to those Places where they built Castles.

Castor, and Castritius, A Weather Sheep. — Acras Terra & Pasturam ad ducentas Oves, octo Castritios, & sexdecim Boves, &c. Mon. Angl. p. 88.

Casu Confimili, Is a Writ of Entry, granted where Tenant by the Curtesy, or Tenant for Life, aliens in Fee or in Tail, or for another's Life: And is brought by him in Reversion against the Party to whom such Tenant so aliens to his Prejudice, and in the Tenant's Life-time. It takes its Name from this; that the Clerks of the Chancery did, by their common Assent, frame it to the Likeness of the Writ called In Casu Proviso, according to the Authority given them by the Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 24. Which Statute, as often as there happens a new Case in Chancery something like a former, yet not specially fitted by any Writ, authorizes them to frame a new Form answerable to the new Case, and as like the former as they may. 7 Rep. 4. See Fitz. Nat. Br. fol. 206.

Casu Proviso, A Writ of Entry given by the Statute of Gloucester, cap. 7. where a Tenant in Dower aliens in Fee, or for Life, &c. and lies for him in Reversion against the Alienee. Fitz. N. B. 205.

Cattle, Shall be bought in open Fair or Market, and not sold again in the same Market or Pain of Forfeiture. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. c. 19. No Cattle may be imported, dead or alive, but shall be liable to Forfeiture, &c. But Horses, Cows, Swine, &c. may be transported, paying the Duties. 18 Car. 2. c. 2. 22 Car. 2. c. 13. Factors, &c. selling Cattle for others, shall not buy Cattle, other than Swine or Calves, in eighty Miles of London, under Penalties; and Drovers of Cattle to be licensed by Justices of Peace, &c. 22 & 23 Car. 2. 1 Jac. 2.

Caveat, A Kind of Process in the Spiritual Court to stop the Institution of a Clerk to a Benefice, or Probate of a Will, &c. When a Caveat is entered against an Institution, if the Bishop afterwards institutes a Clerk, it is void; a Caveat being a Superfedeas: But a Caveat has been adjudged void when entered in the Life-time of the Incumbent. A Caveat entered against a Will, &c. stands in Force for three Months; and this is for the Caution of the Ordinary, that he do no Wrong: Though 'tis said the Temporal Courts do not regard these Sorts of Caveats. 1 Roll. Rep. 191. 1 Nels. Abr. 416, 417.

Cavers, Offenders relating to the Mines in Derbyshire, who are punishable in the Berghmote or Miner's Court.

Caulceis, Anno 6 Hen. 6. cap. 5. Cauceis. 1 Ed. 4. c. 1. Ways pitched with Flint, or other Stones. See Calcetum.

Caurfines, (Caurfini) Were Italians that came into England about the Year 1235, terming themselves the Pope's Merchants, but driving no other Trade than letting out Money; and having great Banks in England, they differed little from Jews, save (as History says) that they were rather more merciless to their Debtors. Some will have them called Caurfines, quasi, Causa urfina, bearish and cruel in their Causes; others Caurfini, or Corfina, as coming from the Isle of Corfica: But Cowel says, they have their Name from Caorsum, Caorfi, a Town in Lombardy, where they first practised their Arts of Usury and Extortion; from whence spreading themselves, they carried their cursed Trade through most Parts of Europe, and were a common Plague to every Nation where they came. The then Bishop of London excommunicated them: And King Hen. 3. banished them from this Kingdom in the Year 1240. But being the Pope's Solicitors and Money Changers, they were permitted to return in the Year 1250. Tho' in a very short Time after they were driven out of the Kingdom again for their intolerable Practices and Exactions. Mat. Paris. pag. 403.

Causa Matrimonii pralocuti, Is a Writ which lies where a Woman gives Lands to a Man in Fee-simple, &c. to the Intent he shall marry her, and he refuseth to do it in any reasonable Time, being thereunto required. Reg. Orig. 66. If a Woman makes a Feoffment to a Stranger of Land in Fee, to the Intent to enfeoff her, and one who shall be her Husband; if the Marriage doth not take Effect, she shall have the Writ of Causa Matrimonii pralocuti against the Stranger, notwithstanding the Deed of Feoffment be absolute. New Nat. Br. 456. A Woman enfeoffed a Man upon Condition that he should take her to Wife, and he had a Wife at the Time of the Feoffment; and afterwards the Woman for not performing the Condition, entered again into the Land, and her Entry was adjudged lawful, tho' upon a second Feoffee. Lib. Ass. Anno 40 Ed. 3

And the Husband and Wife may sue the Writ Causa Matrimonii pralocuti against another who ought to have married her. But if a Man give Lands to a Woman to the Intent to marry him, altho' the Woman will not marry him, &c. he shall not have his Remedy by Writ Causa Matrimonii pralocuti. New Nat. Br. 455.

Causam nobis significes, A Writ directed to a Mayor of a Town, &c. who was by the King's Writ commanded to give Seisin of Lands to the King's Grantee, on his delaying to do it, requiring him to shew Cause why he so delays the Performance of his Duty. 4 Rep.

Cautione admittenda, Is a Writ that lies against a Bishop, who holds an excommunicated Person in Prison for Contempt, notwithstanding he offers sufficient Caution or Security to obey the Orders and Commandment of Holy Church for the Future. Reg. Orig. 66. And if a Man be excommunicated, and taken by a Writ Significavit, and after offers Caution to the Bishop to obey the Church, and the Bishop refuseth it; the Party may sue out this Writ to the Sheriff to go against the Bishop, and to warn him to take Caution, &c. But if the Bishop stand in Doubt whether the Sheriff will deliver him by that Writ, the Bishop may purchase another Writ, directed to the Sheriff reciting the Case, and in the End thereof; Tibi precipimus, quod ipsum A. B. a Prisona predict. nisi in presentia tua cautionem pignorat. ad minus eidem Episc. de satisfaciend. obtulerit, nullatenus deliberes absque mandato nostro, seu ipsius Episcopi, in hac parte speciali, &c. When the Bishop hath taken Caution, he is to certify the same into the Chancery, and thereupon the Party shall have a Writ unto the Sheriff to deliver him. New Nat. Br. 142.

Ceapgilde A Word derived from the Sax. Ceap, Signifying Pecus, Cattle; and Gild, i. e. solutio; and hence it is, solutio Pecudis: From this Saxon Word Gild, 'tis very probable we have our common English Word Yield; as Yield, or Pay. Cowel.

Celer Lecti, The Top, Head, or Tetter of a Bed.—Dedit ad Cameram Prioris unum Lectum, cum celere & Curtenis blodei coloris. Hist. Elie. apud Whartoni Angl. Sac. par. 1. p. 673.

Cennings, Was Notice given by the Buyer to the Seller, that the Thing sold was claimed by another, that he might appear and justify the Sale: It is mentioned in the Laws of Athelstan apud Brompton. cap. 4.

Censaria, A Farm, or House and Land, let ad Censam, at a standing Rent: It comes from the Fr. Cense, which Signifies a Farm.—Henricus Sturmy tenet Maneria in Com. Wilts. per servitium vitium custodiendi ballivam totius Foreste de Saver-nake, & censariam, que vocatur la ferme in Fore-sta predicta. Temp. Ed. 3. Tenures p. 88.

Censarii, Farmers.—Ibi sunt nunc 14 Censarii, habentes septem Carucatas. Blount.

Censure, A Custom called by this Name (from the Lat. Census which has been expounded to be a Kind of personal Money, paid for every Poll) observed in divers Manors in Cornwall and Devon, where all Persons residing therein above the Age of sixteen are cited to swear Fealty to the Lord, and to pay 11 d. per Poll, and 1 d. per ann. ever after; and these thus sworn are called Censers.—Item erat quaedam Custuma que vocatur Censure proveniens de illis qui manent in Burgo de Lestreythiel. Survey of the Dutchy of Cornwall.

Ceola, A large Ship. The Word is mention'd in Malmesbury. Lib. 1. c. 1.

Cepi Corpus, Is a Return made by the Sheriff, upon a Capias, or other Process to the like Purpose, that he hath taken the Body of the Party. F. N. B. 26.

Ceppagium. The Stumps or Roots of Trees which remain in the Ground after the Trees are felled.—Qui forestarii ceperint coopertiones, Ceppagia & Escheatas quercuum sive aliarum arborum, &c. Fleta lib. 2. cap. 41.

Certificando de recognitione Stapule, Is a Writ directed to the Mayor of the Staple, &c. commanding him to certify to the Lord Chancellor of a Statute-Staple taken before him, where the Party himself detains it, and refuseth to bring in the same. Reg. Orig. 152. There is the like Writ to certify a Statute-Merchant; and in divers other Cases. Ibid. 148, 151, &c.

Certificate, Is a Writing made in any Court to give Notice to another Court of any Thing done therein, which is usually by way of Transcript, &c. And sometimes it is made by an Officer of the same Court, where Matters are referred to him, or a Rule of Court is obtained for it; containing the Tenor and Effect of what is done.

Certification of Affise of Novel Disseisin, (Certificatio Affise nove Disseisine, &c.) Is a Writ granted for the Re-examining of a Matter passed by Affise before any Justices: And this is used where a Man appearing by his Bailiff to an Affise brought by another, hath lost the Day; and having something more to plead for himself, which the Bailiff did not, or might not plead for him, desires a farther Examination of the Cause, either before the same Justices, or others, and obtains Letters Patent to them to that Effect; whereupon, he brings a Writ to the Sheriff to call both the Party for whom the Affise passed, and the Jury that was impanelled on the same, before the said Justices at a certain Day and Place, when the same is to be examined: And it is called a Certificate, because therein Mention is made to the Sheriff, that upon the Party's complaint of the defective Examination, as to the Affise passed, the King hath directed his Letters Patent to the Justices for the better Certifying of themselves, whether all Points of the said Affise were duly examined. Reg. Orig. 200. F. N. B. 181. Braeton. lib. 4. cap. 13. Horn's Mirr. lib. 3.

Certiorari, Is a Writ issuing out of the Chancery to an inferior Court, to call up the Records of a Cause there depending, that Justice may be done therein, upon Complaint that the Party who seeks the said Writ hath received hard Usage, or is not like to have an indifferent Trial in the said Court. F. N. B. fol. 242. This Writ is either returnable in the King's Bench, and then hath these Words, Nobis mittatis; or in the Common Bench, and then Justiciariis nostris de Banco; or in the Chancery, and then hath in Cancellaria nostra, &c. A Certiorari issues sometimes out of Chancery, and sometimes out of the King's Bench; and lies where the King would be certified of any Record, in any Court of Record; and the King may send such Writ to any of the said Courts, to certify such Record before him in Banco, or in the Chancery, or before such other Justices, where the King pleases to have the same certified. F. N. B. 245. Certiorari lies to the Court of Wales, and to the Cinque Ports, Counties Palatines, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 287. Indictments from inferior Courts, and Proceedings of the Quarter-Sessions of the Peace, &c. may be removed into B. R. by Certiorari. And on a Certiorari the very Record must be returned, and not a Transcript of it; for if so, then the Record will still remain in the inferior Court. Though in C. B. they return the Transcript, as the Record it self, which it is in Judgment of Law. 2 Salk. 565. Where a Certiorari is by Law grantable for an Indictment, at the Suit of the King, the Court is bound to award it, for it is the King's Prerogative to sue in what Court he pleases: But it is at the Discretion of the Court to grant it or not at the Prayer of the Defendant. And the Court will not grant it for the Removal of an Indictment before Justices of Gaol-Delivery, without some special Cause; or where there is much Difficulty in the Case, that the Judge desires it may be determined in B. R. &c. Also Indictments of Perjury, Forgery, or for heinous Misdemeanors, the Court will not grant a Certiorari to remove at the Instance of the Defendant. 2 Hawk. P. C. 287. Where Issue is joined in the Court below, it is a good Objection against Granting a Certiorari. And if a Person doth not make use of this Writ till the Jury are sworn, he loses the Benefit of it. Mod. ca. 16. After Conviction, a Certiorari may not be had to remove an Indictment, &c. Unless there be special Cause; as if the Judge below is doubtful what Judgment is proper to be given, when it may: And after Conviction, &c. it lies in such Cases where Writ of Error will not lie. 1 Salk. 149. The Court on Motion in an extraordinary Case will grant a Certiorari to remove a Judgment given in an inferior Court; but this is done where the Ordinary Way of taking out Execution is hindered in the inferior Court. 1 Lill. Abr. 253. In common Cases a Certiorari will not lie to remove a Cause out of an inferior Court, after Verdict. It is never sued out after a Writ of Error, but where Diminution is alleged: And when the King in Demand doth not exceed 5 l. a Certiorari shall not be had, but a Writ of Error or Attaint. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 23. A Certiorari is to be granted on Matter of Law only: And in many Cases there must be a Judge's Hand for it. 1 Lill. 252. Certiorari's to remove Indictments, &c. are to be signed by a Judge: And to remove Orders, the Fiat for making out the Writ, must be signed by a Judge. 1 Salk. 150. In Vacation Time a Certiorari may be granted by any of the Judges of B. R. and Security is to be found before it is allowed. By Statute no Certiorari is to be granted out of B. R. to remove an Indictment before Justices of Peace at the Sessions, before Trial, unless Motion be made in open Court, and the Party indicted find Security by two Persons in 20 l. each to plead to the Indictment in B. R. &c. And if the Defendant prosecuting the Certiorari be convicted, the Court of B. R. shall order Costs to the Prosecutor of the Indictment. Stat. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 11. If on Certiorari to remove an Indictment, the Party do not find Manucaptors in the Sum of 20 l. to plead to the Indictment, and try it, according to the Statute, it is no Superfedeas. Mod. ca. 33. And a Procedendo may be granted where Bail is not put in before a Judge, on a Certiorari. It has been ruled that a Certiorari ought not to be granted to remove any Order of Justices, where an Appeal lies to the Sessions, before the Matter is determined on the Appeal. 1 Salk. 147. Certiorari lies to Justices of Peace, &c. even in Cases where they are impowered by Statute finally to hear and determine. 1 Mod. 44. But Things may not be removed from before Justices of Peace, which cannot be proceeded in by the Court where removed; as in Case of refusing to take the Oaths, &c. which is to be certified and inquired into according to the Statute. 1 Salk. 145. And where the Court which awards the Certiorari cannot hold Plea upon the Record, there but a Tenor of the Record shall be certified, because otherwise if the Record it self was removed into B. R. as it cannot be sent back, there would be a Failure of Right afterwards. 1 Danv. Abr. 792. But a Record sent by Certiorari into B. R. may be sent after by Mittimus into C. B. Ibid. 789. And a Record in B. R. may be certified into Chancery, and from thence be sent by Mittimus to an inferior Court, where an Action of Debt is brought in the inferior Court, and the Defendant pleads that the Plaintiff hath recovered in B. R. and the Plaintiff replies Nul tiel Record, &c. 1 Saund. 97, 99. If a Certiorari be prayed to remove an Indictment out of London, or Middlesex, three Days Notice must be given the other Side, or the Certiorari shall not be granted. Raym. 74. A Certiorari to remove an Indictment is good, although it bear Date before the Taking of the Indictment to be removed by it. 1 Lill. 253. The Court of B. R. will grant a new Certiorari to affirm a Judgment, &c. Though generally one Person can have but one Certiorari. Cro. Jac. 369. Returns of Certiorari's are to be under Seal: And the Person to whom a Certiorari is directed, may make what Return he pleases, and the Court will not stop the Filing of it, on Affidavits of its Falsity, except where the Publick Good requires it: The Remedy for a false Return, is Action on the Case, at the Suit of the Party injured; and Information, &c. at the Suit of the King. 2 Hawk. P. C. 295. A Certiorari being once delivered, makes all subsequent Proceedings on the Record erroneous; whether the Proceedings are before or after its Return. It is said the Lord Chancellor, or any Judge of the Courts of Record at Westminster, may bring a Record to one another, without a Certiorari; but not a Judge of an inferior Court, &c. 1 Nels. 417, 418.

Cert-Money, (quasi certain Money) Is Head-Money, paid yearly by the Residents of several Manors to the Lords thereof, for the certain keeping of the Leet; and sometimes to the Hundred: As the Manor of Hook in Dorsetshire, pays Cert-Money to the Hundred of Egerdon. In ancient Records this is called Certum Let &c. See Common Fine.

Cervisarii. The Saxons had a Duty called Drinclean, that his Retributio Potus, payable by their Tenants; and such Tenants were in Domesday called Cervisarii, from Cervisia, Ale, their chief Drink: Though Cervisarius vulgarly signifies a Beer or Ale Brewer.

Cerura, A Mound, Fence, or Inclosure. — Willielmus de Lucy Miles, dedit Thomæ Ministro Domus de Thelesford, licentiam Domos & portas levare, adificare, & cum Ceruris & Muris, &c. Cart. priorat. de Thelesford M. S.

Cessavit, Is a Writ that lies in divers Cases, upon this general Ground, that he against whom it is brought, hath for two Years neglected to perform such Service, or to pay such Rent, as he is tied to by his Tenure, and hath not upon his Lands or Tenements sufficient Goods or Cattle to be distrained. F. N. B. 280. And if a Tenant for Years of Land at certain Rent, suffers the Rent to be behind 2 Years, and there is no such Distress to be had upon the Land; then the Landlord shall recover the Land: But if the Tenant come into Court before Judgment given, and tender the Arrearages and Damages, and find Security that he shall cease no more in Payment of the Rent, then the Tenant shall not lose his Land. Terms de Ley 107. By Statute, if a Fee-Farmer cease to pay his Rent two Years, the Lessor may have a Cessavit, and recover the Land: And in this Case, the Heir of the Demandant may maintain a Cessavit against the Heir or Assign of the Tenant. 6 Ed. 1. cap. 4. But in other Cases, the Heir may not bring this Writ for Cessure in the Time of his Ancestor: And it lies not but for annual Service, Rent and such like; not for Homage or Fealty. If a Man cease to pay his Rent and Services for two Years, and inclose the Land, so as the Lord cannot distrain, if he lay not open the Gates or Hedges of the Land which make the Inclosure, the Lords shall have a Cessavit, although the Tenant hath sufficient Cattle upon the Land to be distrained for the Rent: For the Land ought to be open, and likewise there should be sufficient to distrain for the Rent, &c. And where the Tenant suffereth the Land to lie fresh, not occupied for two Years together, it is said this Writ will lie. New Nat. Br. 463, 464. The Lord shall have a Writ of Cessavit against Tenant for Life, where the Remainder is over in Fee to another: But the Donor of an Estate-Tail shall not have a Cessavit against the Tenant in Tail: Though if a Man make a Gift in Tail, the Remainder over in Fee to another, or to the Heirs of the Tenant in Tail, there the Lord of whom the Lands are holden immediate, shall have a Cessavit against the Tenant in Tail, because that he is Tenant to him, &c. Ibid. If the Lord distrains pendant his Writ of Cessavit against his Tenant, the Writ shall abate.

Cessavit de Cantaria, Lies where a Man gives Land to a House of Religion, &c. to say Divine Service, provide Alms for the Poor, &c. If the said Services be not done in two Years, the Donor or his Heirs shall have this Writ against him that holds the Land thus given, after such Cessure. See the Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 41.

Cesse, Signifies an Assessment, or Tax, and is mentioned in the Stat. 22 Hen. 8. cap. 3. Cesse or Ceasse, in Ireland, is an Exaction of Provision or Victuals, at a certain Rate, for Soldiers in Garrison. Antiq. Hibernia.

Cession, (Cessio) A Ceasing, Yielding up, or Giving over. And is when an Ecclesiastical Person is created Bishop, or a Parson of a Parsonage takes takes another Benefice, without Dispensation, or otherwise not qualified, &c. In both Cases their first Benefices are become void, and are in the Law said to be void by Cession: And to those Benefices that the Person had who was created Bishop, the King shall present for that Time, whoever is Patron of them; and in the other Case the Patron may present. Cowel. Not only a Benefice with Cure, may be said to be void by Cession, when the Incumbent thereof accepts of another Benefice, but also when such Incumbent is made a Bishop, for thereby all his Ecclesiastical Preferments which he had before, whether with, or without Cure, are actually void. Vaugh. 19. But it is not the Election of any one to be a Bishop, and Confirmation thereof, that doth void his former Preferments, until Consecration be also had: And by Dispensation of Retainer, a Bishop may retain some, or all of those Preferments he was intitled to before he was Bishop. Dyer 235. The Cession on Promotion of a Bishop, not making an Avoidance in the common Way, and it being by the King's Means that the Livings are void, whose Presentation in such a Case is only as it were an Exchange of one Life for another, intitles the King to present to those Livings, and as he is Supream Patron. Cession makes a Living void, without any Resignation, Deprivation, &c.

Cessor, (Lat.) A Loiterer, or idle Fellow: But more particularly used for him who ceaseth, or neglects so long to perform a Duty, as he thereby incurs the Danger of the Law. Old Nat. Br. 136.

Cessure, or Cesser, Is used for ceasing, giving over, or departing from. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 1.

Cestui que Trust, Is he who hath a Trust in Lands or Tenements, committed to him for the Benefit of another. Anno 12 Car. 2. cap. 30. And Lands of Cestui que Trust may be delivered in Execution, where any Person is seised in Trust for another. 29 Car. 2. If the Person intrusted doth not perform his Trust, he is compellable in the Chancery, &c.

Cestui que Use, (Fr. Cestui a l'usage de qui) Signifies him to whose Use any other Man is enfeoffed of any Lands or Tenements. 1 Rep. 133. Feoffees to Uses were formerly deemed Owners of the Lands; but now the Possession is adjudged in Cestui que Use, and without any Entry he may bring Assise, &c. Stat. 27 H. 8. Cro. El. 46. See Use.

Cestui que Vie, Is he for whose Life any Lands or Tenements are granted. Perk. 97. And if Tenant for Term of another's Life dieth, while Cestui que Vie is living; now, by the Common Law, he that first entereth, shall hold the Land as Occupant during such other Person's Life. 1 Inst. 41, 388. But this is prevented by making Leases for the Lives of others to the Lessees, their Heirs or Executors, during the Life of Cestui que Vie, &c. And the Statute 29 Car. 2. cap. 3. charges such Lands for Debr. See Occupant.

Chace, Is a Station of Game, more extended than a Park, and less than a Forest: And is sometimes taken for the Liberty of hunting within such a District. Cowel. And according to Blount it hath another Signification, i. e. The Way through which Cattle are drove to Pasture, commonly called in some Places a Drove-Way; Ut si quis omnino viam obstruat vel Chaceam per quam ingredi solet pastura, Bracon lib. 4. c. 44. Vide Chase.

Chaceare ad Lepores, vel vulpes; To hunt Hare or Fox.—Licet, &c. Chaceare ad Lepores & vulpes in Manerio suo de Donham. Cartular. Abbat. Glaston. M. S. 87.

Charurus (from the Fr. Chasseur) A Horse for the Chase, or a Hunter; or rather a Hound or Dog for the Chase, a Courser: It is mentioned in Rot. 7 Johan.

Chafe, From the Fr. Chaufier to heat, whence our Chafing-Dish.

Chafewar. An Officer in Chancery, that fitteth the Wax for sealing of the Writs, and such other Instruments as are there made to be issued out; So in France, Calefactores ceræ sunt, qui Regis literis in Cancellaria cera imprimunt. Corasius.

Chaffers, Seem to signify Wares or Merchandize; and we yet use Chaffering for buying and selling, though I take it to be generally a Kind of bartering of one Thing for another; it is mentioned in the Stat. 3 Ed. 4. c. 4.

Chaldon or Chalder of Coals, contains thirty-six Bushels heaped up, according to the Bushel sealed for that Purpose at Guildhall, London. Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. c. 2.

Chalking. The Merchants of the Staple require to be eased of divers new Impositions, as Chalking, Ironage, Wharfage, &c. Rot. Parl. 50 Ed. 3.

Challenge, Calumnia (from the Fr. Chalenger) Is used in the Law for an Exception to Jurors who are returned to pass on a Trial. And this Challenge to Jurors is either made to the Array, or to the Polls: To the Array is, when Exception is taken to the whole Number impanelled; and to the Polls is, when some one or more are excepted against, as not indifferent. Challenge to Jurors is also divided into Challenge Principal or Peremptory, and Challenge per Cause, i. e. upon Cause or Reason: Challenge Principal or Peremptory, is that which the Law allows without Cause alledged, or further Examination; as a Prisoner at the Bar, arraigned for Felony, may challenge peremptorily the Number allowed him by Law, one after another, alledging no Cause, but his own Dislike, and they shall be put off, and new taken in their Places. But yet there is a Difference between Challenge Principal and Challenge Peremptory; this being used only in Matters Criminal, and barely without Cause alledged; whereas that is in Civil Actions for the most Part, and by assigning some such Cause of Exception, as being found true the Law allows. Staundf. P. C. 124, 157. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 4. cap. 14. In Treason, and Petit Treason, the Number of thirty-five Jurors may be peremptorily challenged, without shewing any Cause, in Favour of Life; and in Murder and Felony. 20. And more may be challenged shewing Cause. 1 Inst. 155. 22 H. 8. c. 14. 1 P. & M. 10. A Person indicted of Treason may challenge thirty-five of those returned on the Panel of Jurors to try him, without Cause shewn; and if two or more are to be tried, they may challenge so many each, but then they are to be tried singly, or all may challenge that Number in the Whole, and be tried jointly. 3 Salk. 81. By the Stat. 3 H. 7. cap. 14. In Treason for compassing to kill the King, &c. no Challenge shall be allowed, but for Malice. If a Prisoner challenge peremptorily more than allowed, he is to be dealt with as one standing Mute, &c. And some Statutes which take away the Benefit of Clergy from Felons, exclude those their

their Clergy who peremptorily challenge more than twenty, whereby they are liable to Judgment of Death. 2 Hawk. P. C. 414. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 9. But if the Offence be within the Benefit of the Clergy, the Challenge shall be over ruled, and the Party put upon his Trial. The King cannot challenge peremptorily in Murther, &c. without shewing Cause. Moor 595. And by Stat. 33 E. 1. if those who prosecute for the King challenge a Juror, they shall assign the Cause, and if they alledge not a good Cause, the Inquest shall be taken. All Peremptory Challenges are to be taken by the Party himself; and where there are divers Challenges, they must be taken all at once. But there can be no Challenge till the Jury is full; and then the Array is to be challenged before one of them is sworn. Hob. 235. Where the King is Party, if the other Side challenge a Juror above the Number allowed by Law, he ought to shew the Cause of his Challenge immediately. 1 Bust. 191. A Defendant shall shew all Causes of Challenge, before the King shall shew any. 2 Hawk. 413. And the King ought not to shew his Cause of Challenge before all the Jurors are called over; for if there are enough besides those challenged, there will be no Occasion to shew any Cause why he challenged the Rest: But if there are not enough, then he must shew the Cause of his Challenge. Raym. 473. There may be a Principal Cause of Challenge to the Array, and a Challenge to the Favour: A Principal Cause of Challenge is in Respect of Partiality or Default of the Sheriff, &c. and not in Respect of the Persons returned; and this Partiality in the Sheriff, may be by Reason of Kindred, or Affinity to the Plaintiff or Defendant; or if one of the Jury is returned at the Nomination of the Plaintiff or Defendant; if a Knight be not returned, when a Peer is Party, &c. 1 Inst. 156, 157. Challenge to the Favour is where the Plaintiff or Defendant is Tenant to the Sheriff, or if the Sheriff's Son hath married the Daughter of the Party, &c. and is also when either Party cannot take any Principal Challenge, but sheweth Cause of Favour; and Causes of Favour are infinite. But where the King is Party, one shall not challenge the Array for Favour, though the King may do it. Wood's Inst. 592. Where Challenge is to the Favour, by Reason of Kindred to the Sheriff, you may shew how Kin, and then the Challenge is good. 1 Nelf. Abr. 423. If one of the Parties is of Affinity to a Juror, the Juror hath married the Plaintiff's Daughter, &c. if a Juror hath given a Verdict before in the Cause, Matter or Title; if one labours a Juror to give his Verdict; if after he is returned, a Juror eats and drinks at the Charge of either Party; if the Plaintiff, &c. be his Master, or the Juror hath any Interest in the Thing demanded, &c. these are Challenges to the Favour. 2 Roll. Abr. 636. Hob. 294. If the Juror is convicted and attainted of Treason, Felony, Perjury, adjudged to the Pillory, or other Punishment whereby he becomes infamous, or is outlawed, or excommunicate; these are all Principal Challenges: But in these Cases and all others, he that challengeth, must shew the Record if he will have it take Place as a Principal Challenge; otherwise he must conclude to the Favour, unless it be a Record of the same Court. 1 Inst. 157. A Person under Prosecution for any Crime, may before indicted, challenge any of the Grand Jury, as being outlawed, &c. or returned at the Instance of the Prosecutor, or not returned by the proper Officer, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 215. As a Peer ought not to be sworn on Juries, he may be challenged: But a Peer of the Realm tried for Treason or Felony, shall not challenge any of his Peers. Trials per pais 130. A Juror may be challenged for Defect, as well as for any Crime; as Defect of Birth, where he is an Alien born; of Age, because a Minor; or of Estate, for Want of ten Pounds per Annum Freehold, &c. in the same County, or a Talesman five Pounds a Year, by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. 24. In Corporation Towns Freemen worth forty Pounds in Goods, are qualified to be Jurors for trying of Felonies. Stat. 23 H. 8. But on Trials in London for High Treason, every Juror ought to have such Freehold, &c. as required by 4 & 5 W. & M. A Principal Challenge, being found true, is sufficient without leaving it to the Triers: But if some of a Jury are challenged for Favour, they shall be tried by the rest of the Jury, whether indifferent. 1 Inst. 158. And where a Challenge is made to the Array, the Court appoints two Triers, who are sworn, and then the Cause of Favour is shewed to them, which may be called the Issue they are to try; and if 'tis proved, then they give their Verdict that they are not indifferently impanelled, and this is entered of Record: But if the Favour is not proved, then they say that the Jury was indifferently impanelled, and so the Trial goes on without making any Entry of the Matter. 1 Bulstr. 114. If the Array of the whole Jury is challenged, the Counsel for the Party is to read the Challenge in French; and deliver it to the Secondary, who reads it in Latin. 1 Lill. Abr. 260. If one take a Principal challenge against a Juror, he cannot afterwards challenge that Juror for Favour, and wave his former Challenge: But a Challenge may be made to the Polls, after made to the Array. Wood 592. A new Jury is to be impanelled by the Coroner, where the Array is qualified for Partiality, &c. of the Sheriff. If there be Cause of Challenge against the Sheriff, the Process is to be directed to the Coroners; and if there is Cause of Challenge against them, the Court will appoint certain Elisors, against whose Return no Challenge can be taken to the Array; though it may to the Polls. Trials per pais 15. If a Plaintiff or Defendant have Action of Battery, &c. against the Sheriff, or the Sheriff against them, it is Cause of Challenge: And if either of the Parties have Action of Debt against the Sheriff; or if the Sheriff hath any Parcel of Land depending on the same Title as the Parties; or if he, or his Bailiffs who returned the Jury be under the Distress of either Party, &c. These are good Causes of Challenge. Ibid. 154. Where one of the Jurors hath a Suit in Law depending with the Plaintiff, 'tis good Challenge. Stile 129. An Action depending betwixt either of the Parties and a Juror, implying Malice, is Cause of Challenge: And a Juror may be challenged for holding Lands by the same Title as the Defendant. 2 Leon. 40. If a Person owes Suit of Court, &c. to a Lord of a Hundred who is Plaintiff, it is a Principal Challenge, as he is within the Distress of the Plaintiff. Dyer 176. But it is no Challenge that a Person is in Debt to a Party. 1 Nelf. Abr. 426. A Juror returned by a wrong Name, may be challenged and withdrawn: And if a Juror declares the Right of either of the Parties, &c. it is said to be Cause of Challenge: But it hath been ruled that it is not sufficient Cause of Challenge, that a Juror delivered his Opinion touching the Title of the Land in Question; because his Opinion may be altered on hearing the Evidence. Pasch. 23 Car. B.R. to say of a Person to be tried for any Crime, that he is Guilty, or will be hanged, &c. is good Cause of Challenge; but the Prisoner must prove it by Witnesses, and not out of the Mouth of the Jurymen, who may not be examined: And though a Jurymen may be asked upon a Voir dire whether he hath any Interest in the Cause, or whether he hath a Freehold, &c. Yet a Jurymen, or a Witness, shall not be examined, whether he hath been convict of Felony, or guilty of any Crime, &c. which would make a Man discover that of himself which tends to make him infamous, and the Answer might charge him with a Misdemeanor. 1 Salk. 153. Default of Hundredors is Cause of Challenge by the Common Law; but by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. cap. 16. every Venire facias for Trial of Issues in any Court of Record, shall be awarded of the Body of the proper County; though this extends only to Civil Causes, and not to Appeals of Felony, Indictments, &c. In a Writ of Right, four Knights were returned; they must appear with their Swords, or it will be good Cause of Challenge. Moor 67. If one Challenge a Juror, and the Challenge is entered, he cannot afterwards have him sworn on the Jury. And if the Defendant do not appear at the Trial when called, he loseth his Challenge to the Jurors, though he afterwards appear. 1 Lill. Abr. 259. When the Jury appear at a Trial, before the Secondary calls them to be sworn, he bids the Plaintiff and Defendant to attend their Challenges, viz. Gardes vofres Challenges, &c.

Chamberdeains, or Chamber-Dacons, Were certain poor Irish Scholars, cloathed in mean Habit, and living under no Rule; banished England by Statute 1 Hen. 5. cap. 7. 8.

Chamberer, (Fr. Chambriere) Is a Word used for a Chamber-Maid: It is mentioned 33 Hen. 8. cap. 21.

Chamberlain, (Camerarius) Is variously used in our Laws, Statutes, and Chronicles: As first Lord Great Chamberlain of England, to whose Office belongs the Government of the Palace at Westminster, and upon all solemn Occasions the Keys of Westminster-hall, and the Court of Requests are delivered to him: He disposes of the Sword of State to be carried before the King when he comes to the Parliament, and goes on the right Hand of the Sword next to the King's Person: He has the Care of providing all Things in the House of Lords in Time of Parliament; to him belongs Livery and Lodging in the King's Court, &c. And the Gentleman Usher of the Black Rod, Yeoman Usher, &c. are under his Authority. The Lord Chamberlain of the Household has the Oversight and Government of all Officers belonging to the King's Chamber, (except the Bed-Chamber, which is under the Groom of the Stole) and also of the Wardrobe; of Artificers retained in the King's Service, Messengers, Comedians, Revels, Musick, &c. The Serjeants at Arms are likewise under his Inspection; and the King's Chaplains, Physicians, Apothecaries, Surgeons, Barbers, &c. And he hath under him a Vice-Chamberlain, both being always Privy Counsellors. There were formerly Chamberlains of the King's Courts. 7 E. 6. c. 1. And there are Chamberlains of the Exchequer, who keep a Controllment of the Pells of Receipts and Exits, and have in their Custody the Leagues and Treaties with foreign Princes, many ancient Records, the two famous Books of Antiquity called Domesday, and the Black Book of the Exchequer; and the Standards of Money, and Weights, and Measures are kept by them. There are also Under Chamberlains of the Exchequer, who make Searches for all Records in the Treasury; and are concerned in making out the Tallies, &c. The Officer of Chamberlain of the Exchequer is mentioned in the Statute 34 & 35 H. 8. cap. 16. Besides these we read of a Chamberlain of North Wales. Stow pag. 641. A Chamberlain of Chester, to whom it belongs to receive the Rents and Revenues of that City; and when there is no Prince of Wales, and Earl of Chester, he hath the Receiving and Returning of all Writs coming thither out of any of the King's Courts. The Chamberlain of London, who is commonly the Receiver of the City Rents, payable into the Chamber; and hath great Authority in making and determining Rights of Freemen, concerning Apprentices, Orphans, &c.

Chambers of the King, (Regie Camere) The Havens or Ports of the Kingdom are so called in our ancient Records. Mare Claus. f. 242.

Chambrze depinct, Anciently St. Edward's Chamber, now called the Painted Chamber.

Champarty, or Champerty, (from the Fr. Champ, a Field, and Parti divided, or the Lat. Campus, and Partitio, because the Parties in Champerty agree to divide the Thing in Question) Signifies a Bargain with the Plaintiff or Defendant in any Suit, to have Part of the Land, Debt, or other Thing sued for, if the Party that undertakes it prevails therein. 1 Inst. 368. This seems to have been an ancient Grievance in our Nation; for notwithstanding the several Statutes of 3 E. 1. c. 25. 13 Ed. 1. c. 49. 28 Ed. 1. c. 11. and 33 Ed. 1. &c. and a Form of a Writ framed to them, yet the 4 Ed. 3. cap. 11. and 33 Hen. 8. enacted, That whereas a former Statute provided Redress for this Evil in the King's Bench only, from henceforth it should be lawful for Justices of the Common Pleas, Justices of Assize, and Justices of Peace in their Quarter-Sessions, to inquire, hear and determine this and such like Cases, as well at the Suit of the King, as of the Party: And this Offence is punishable by Common Law and Statute; the Statute 33 Ed. 1. makes the Offenders liable to three Years Imprisonment, and a Fine at the King's Pleasure. By the Statute 28 E. 1. c. 11. it is ordained, that no Officer, nor any other, shall take upon him any Business in Suit, to have Part of the Thing in Plea; nor none upon any Covenant, shall give up his Right to another; and if any do, and be convicted thereof, the Taker shall forfeit to the King so much of his Lands and Goods as amounts to the Value of the Part purchased, &c. for such Maintenance. In the Construction of these Statutes, it hath been adjudged, that under the Word Covenant, all Kinds of Promises and Contracts are included, whether by Writing, or Parol: That Rent granted out of Land in Variance, is within the Statutes of Champerty. And Grants of Part of the Thing in Suit made merely in Consideration of the Maintenance, are within the Meaning of the Statute; but not such as are made in Consideration of a precedent honest Debt, which is agreed to be satisfied with the Thing in Demand when recovered. F. N. B. 172. 2 Inst. 209. 2 Roll. Abr. 113. It is said not to be material, whether he who brings a Writ of Champerty, did in Truth suffer suffer any Damage by it; or whether the Plea wherein it is alledged be determined or not. 1 Hawk. 257. A Conveyance executed hanging a Plea, in Pursuance of a Bargain made before, is not within the Statutes against Champerty: And if a Man purchase Land of a Party, pending the Writ, if it be Bona fide, and not to maintain, it is not Champerty. E. N. B. 172. 2 Roll. Abr. 113. But it hath been held, that the Purchase of Land while a Suit of Equity concerning it is depending, is within the Purview of the Statute 28 E. 1. Moor 655. A Lease for Life, or Years, or a voluntary Gift of Land, is within the Statutes of Champerty; but not a Surrender made by a Lessee to his Lessor: Or a Conveyance relating to Lands in Suit, made by a Father to his Son, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 258. The Giving of Part of the Land in Suit, after the End of it, to a Counsellor for his Wages, is not Champerty, if there be no precedent Bargain relating to such Gift: But if it had been agreed between the Counsellor and his Client before the Action brought, that he should have Part for his Wages, then it would be Champerty. Bro. Champert. 3. And it is dangerous to meddle with any such Gift, since it carries with it a strong Presumption of Champerty. 2 Inst. 564. If any Attorney follow a Cause to be paid in gross, when the Thing in Suit is recovered, it hath been adjudged that this is Champerty. Hob. 117. Every Champerty implicth Maintenance; but every Maintenance is not Champerty, for Champerty is but a Species of Maintenance. Cromp. Jur. 39. 2 Inst. 208.

Champertors, According to the Statute, are they who move Pleas or Suits, or cause them to be moved, either by their own Procurement, or by others, and sue them at their proper Costs, to have Part of the Land in Variance, or Part of the Gains. 33 Ed. 1. — Champertors, vel Campi Participes, sunt qui per se, vel per alios placita movent, vel movere faciunt, & ea suis sumptibus persequuntur ad Campi partem, vel pro parte lucri habenda. Stat. 2. Artic. super Chart. 11.

Champion, (Campio) Is taken in the Law not only for him that fights a Combat in his own Cause, but also for him that doth it in the Place or Quarrel of another. Bract. lib. 3. Tract. 2. c. 21. And in Sir Edward Bishe's Notes on Upton, fol. 36. you will find that Henry de Ferneberg for 30 Marks Fee, did by Charter covenant to be Champion to Roger Abbot of Glastonbury. An. 42 H. 3. These Champions, mentioned in our Law Books and Histories, were usually hired; and any one might hire them, except Parricides, and those who were accused of very great Offences: Before they came into the Field, they shaved their Heads, and made Oath that they believed the Persons who hired them, were in the Right, and that they would defend their Cause to the utmost of their Power; which was always done on Foot, and with no other Weapon than a Stick or Club, and a Shield: And before they engaged, they always made an Offering to the Church, that God might assist them in the Battel. When the Battel was over, the Punishment of a Champion overcome, and likewise the Person for whom he fought, was various: If it was the Champion of a Woman, she was burnt, and the Champion hanged: If it was of a Man, and not for a Capital Crime, he not only made Satisfaction, but had his right Hand cut off; and the Man was to be close confined in Prison till the Battel was over. Bract. lib. 2. c. 35. And Hottonian de verbis feudalibis, defines it thus; Campio est Certator pro alio datus in Duello, a Campo dictus, qui circus erat decertantibus definitus: And therefore this Fighting is called Campfight. See Combat.

Champion of the King, (Campio Regis) Is an ancient Officer, whose Office it is at the Coronation of our Kings, when the King is at Dinner, to ride armed Cap-a-pe into Westminster-hall, and by the Proclamation of a Herald make a Challenge, That if any Man shall deny the King's Title to the Crown, he is there ready to defend it in single Combat, &c. Which being done, the King drinks to him, and sends him a gilt Cup, with a Cover, full of Wine, which the Champion drinks, and hath the Cup for his Fee. This Office, ever since the Coronation of King Rich. II. when Baldwin Freville exhibited his Petition for it, was adjudged from him to Sir John Dymocke his Competitor, (both claiming from Marmion) and hath ever since continued in the Family of the Dymockes; who hold the Manor of Scrivelsby in Lincolnshire, Hereditary from the Marmions, by Grand Serjeanty, viz. That the Lord thereof shall be the King's Champion, as abovesaid. Accordingly Sir Edward Dymocke performed this Office at the Coronation of King Charles II.

Chantelloz, (Cancellarius) Was at first only a chief Notary or Scribe under the Emperor, and was called Cancellarius, because he sat infra Cancellis, to avoid the Crowd of the People. This Word is by some derived from Cancellis, and by others from Chancellis, an inclosed or separated Place, or Chancel, encompassed with Bars, to defend the Judges, and other Officers from the Press of the Publick. And Cancellarius originally, as Lupanus thinks, signified only the Registers in Court; Grapharios, scil. qui conscribendis & excipiendis Judicium actis dant operam: But this Name and Office is of late Times greatly advanced, not only in this, but in other Kingdoms; for he is the chief Administrator of Justice, next to the Sovereign, who anciently heard equitable Causes himself. All other Justices in this Kingdom are tied to the strict Rules of the Law, in their Judgments; but the Chancellor hath the King's absolute Power to moderate the written Law, governing his Judgment by the Law of Nature and Conscience, and ordering all Things juxta equum & bonum: And having the King's Power in these Matters, he hath been called the Keeper of the King's Conscience. According to a late Treatise, the Chancellor originally presided over a Political College of Secretaries, for the Writing of Treaties, Grants, and other Publick Business; and that the Court of Equity under the old Constitution was held before the King and his Counsel in the Palace, where one Supreme Court for Business of every Kind was kept: And at first the Chancellor became a Judge to hear and determine Petitions to the King, which were referred to him; and in the End as Business increased, the People intitled their Suits to the Chancellor, and not the King: And thus the Chancellor's equitable Power had by Degrees Commencement by Prescription. Hist. Chanc. p. 3, 10, 44, &c. Staundford says, the Chancellor hath two Powers; one absolute, the other ordinary; meaning, that though by his Ordinary Power, in some Cases; he must observe the Form of Proceeding as other inferior Judges, yet in his absolute Power he is not limited by the Law, but by Conscience and Equity, according to the Circumstances of Things. And tho' Polydore Virgil, in in his History of England, makes William the First, called the Conqueror, the Founder of our Chancellors; yet our Antiquary Mr. Dugdale has shewn that there were many Chancellors of England long before that Time, which are mentioned in his Origines Juridicales, and Catalogues of Chancellors; and Sir Edward Coke in his fourth Institute saith, it is certain, That both the British and Saxon Kings had their Chancellors, whose great Authorities under their Kings, were in all Probability drawn from the reasonable Customs of neighbouring Nations, and the Civil Law. He that bears this Chief Magistracy, is stiled the Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, which is the highest Honour of the long Robe; being made so Per traditionem magni sigilli sibi per Dominum Regem, and by taking his Oath: And a Chancellor may be made so at Will, by Patent, but 'tis said not for Life, for being an ancient Office, it ought to be granted as has been accustomed. 4 Inst. 87. But Sir Edward Hyde, afterwards Earl of Clarendon, had a Patent to be Lord Chancellor for Life; though he was dismissed from that Office, and the Patent declared void. 1 Sid. 338. By the Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 18. The Lord Chancellor and Keeper have one and the same Power; and therefore since that Statute, there cannot be a Lord Chancellor, and Lord Keeper at one and the same Time; before there might, and hath been. 4 Inst. 78. K. Hen. 5. had two Great Seals, one of Gold, which he delivered to the Bishop of Durham, and made him Lord Chancellor, and another of Silver, which he delivered to the Bishop of London to keep; but at this Day there being but one Great Seal, there cannot be a Lord Chancellor, and Lord Keeper at once, and because they are but one Office, as is declared by 5 Eliz. and the Taking away the Seal determines the Office. 1 Sid. 338. But the Lord Bridgeman was Lord Keeper, and Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, at the same Time; which Offices were held not to be inconsistent. Ibid. By 1 W. & M. cap. 21. Commissioners appointed to execute the Office of Lord Chancellor, may exercise all the Authority, Jurisdiction, and Execution of Laws, which the Lord Chancellor, or Lord Keeper, of Right ought to use and execute, &c. since which Statute, this High Office hath been several Times in Commission; tho' generally only on the Dismission of a Chancellor, till another was appointed. The Lord Chancellor, now there is no Lord High Steward, is accounted the first Officer of the Kingdom; and he not only keeps the King's Great Seal, but all Patents, Commissions, Warrants, &c. from the King, are perused by him before signed: And he has the Disposal of all Ecclesiastical Benefices in the Gift of the Crown under 20 l. a Year in the King's Books, which has occasioned this Office to be formerly possessed by a Clergyman. He by his Oath swears well and truly to serve the King, and to do Right to all manner of People, &c. In this judicial Capacity, he hath divers Assistants and Officers, viz. The Master of the Rolls, the Masters in Chancery, &c. And in Matters of Difficulty, he calls one or more of the Chief Justices, and Judges to assist him in making his Decrees; though in such Cases they only give their Advice and Opinion, and have no Share of the Judicial Authority. As to the Master of the Rolls, he hath Judicial Power; and is an Assistant to the Lord Chancellor when present, and his Deputy when absent, but he has certain Causes assigned him to hear and decree, which he usually doth on certain Days appointed at the Chapel of the Rolls, being assisted by one or more Masters in Chancery: He is by Virtue of his Office, chief of the Masters in Chancery, and chief Clerk of the Petty-Bag Office. The twelve Masters in Chancery, sit in Court, and take Notice of such References as are made to them, to be reported to the Court, relating to Matters of Practice, the State of the Proceedings, Accounts, &c. And they also take Affidavits, acknowledge Deeds and Recognizances, &c. The Six Clerks in Chancery, transact and file all Proceedings by Bill and Answer; and also issue out some Patents that pass the Great Seal; which Business is done by their Under-Clerks, each of which has a Seat there, and whereof every Six Clerk has a certain Number in his Office, usually about ten. The Curstors of the Court, four and twenty in Number, make out all original Writs in Chancery, which are returnable in C. B. &c. and among these the Business of the several Counties is severally distributed. The Register is a Place of great Importance in this Court, and he hath several Deputies under him to take Cognizance of all Orders and Decrees, and enter and draw them up, &c. The Master of the Subpoena Office issues out all Writs of Subpoena. The Examiners are Officers in this Court, who take the Depositions of Witnesses, and are to examine them, and make out Copies of the Depositions. The Clerk of Affidavits files all Affidavits used in Court, without which they will not be admitted. The Clerk of the Rolls sits constantly in the Rolls to make Searches for Deeds, Offices, &c. and to make out Copies. The Clerks of the Petty-Bag Office, in Number three, have great Variety of Business that goes through their Hands; in making out Writs of Summons to Parliament, Conge d'Esliors for Bishops, Patents for Customs, &c. Liberates upon Extents of Statutes-Staple; and Recovery of Recognizances forfeited, &c. And the Clerks of this Office have several Clerks under them. The Usher of the Chancery hath the Receiving and Custody of all Money ordered to be deposited in Court, and payeth it back again by Order: But this Business hath been of late assumed by the Masters in Chancery. And Anno 12 Geo. A new Officer was appointed by Act of Parliament, called Accountant General, to receive the Money lodged in Court, in the Place of the Masters, and this Officer is to convey the Money to the Bank, to be there kept for the Suitors of the Court. Then there is a Serjeant at Arms, to whom Persons standing in Contempt are brought up by his Substitutes as Prisoners. A Warden of the Fleet, who receives such Prisoners as stand committed by the Court, &c. And besides these Officers, there is a Clerk of the Crown in Chancery; Clerk and Controller of the Hanaper; Clerk for Inrolling Letters Patent, &c. not employed in Proceedings of Equity, but concerned in making out Commissions, Patents, Pardons, &c. under the Great Seal, and collecting the Fees thereof: A Clerk of the Faculties, for Dispensations, Licenses, &c. Clerk of the Presentations, for Benefices of the Crown in the Chancellor's Gift; Clerk of Appeals, on Appeals from the Courts of the Archbishop, to the Court of Chancery: And divers other Officers, who are constituted by the Chancellor's Commission.

Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster, A great Officer, whose Office is principally to determine Controversies between the King and his Tenants of the Dutchy Land, and otherwise to direct all the King's Affairs belonging to that Court. The Chancellor is the chief Judge of the Dutchy Court, who, in difficult Points of Law is usually assisted by two Judges of the Common Law, out of one Court or other, to decide the Matter in Question: This Court is held in Westminster-Hall, and was formerly much used in Relation to Suits, between Tenants of Dutchy Lands, and against Accountants and others for the Rents and Profits of the said Lands. Under the Chancellor of the Dutchy, are an Attorney of the Court, one Chief Clerk or Register, and several Auditors, &c. This Officer is mentioned in the Stat. 3 Ed. 6. cap. 1. and 5 Ibid. c. 26.

Chancellor of the Exchequer, Is likewise a great Officer, who 'tis thought by many to have been originally appointed for the qualifying Extremities in the Exchequer: He sometimes sits in Court, and in the Exchequer-Chamber; and with the Judges of the Court, orders Things to the King's best Benefit. He hath by the Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 39. Power with others, to compound for the Forfeitures upon Penal Statutes, Bonds and Recognizances entered into to the King: He hath also great Authority in the Management of the Royal Revenue, &c. which seems of late to be his chief Business, being commonly the first Commissioner of the Treasury. And tho' the Court of Equity in the Exchequer-Chamber, was intended to be holden before the Treasurer, Chancellor, and Barons; it is usually before the Barons only. When there is a Lord Treasurer, the Chancellor of the Exchequer is Under-Treasurer.

Chancellor of the Order of the Garter, Stow's Annals, pag. 706. Chancellor of the Universities, see 9 Hen. 5. c. 8. Chancellor of the Diocese, 32 H. 8. c. 15. Chancellor in Cathedral Churches: His Office is thus described in the Monasticon, and the Statutes of Litchfield, viz. — Lectiones legendas in Ecclesia per se vel per suum Vicarium auscultare, male legentes emendare, Scholas conferre, sigilla ad causas conferre, literas capituli facere & consignare, libros servare, quotiescunq; voluerit predicationes in Ecclesia vel extra Ecclesiam predicare, & cui voluerit predicationis Officium assignare. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. p. 24. 339.

Chancery, (Cancellaria) Is the highest Court of Judicature in this Kingdom next to the Parliament, and of very antient Institution. The Jurisdiction of this Court is of two Kinds; ordinary, or legal; and extraordinary, or absolute. The ordinary Jurisdiction is that wherein the Lord Chancellor in his Proceedings and Judgments is bound to observe the Order and Method of the Common Law; and in such Cases the Proceedings are usually in Latin, and filed or inrolled in the Petty-Bag Office: And the extraordinary or unlimited Power, is that Jurisdiction which this Court exercises in Cases of Equity, wherein Relief is to be had by Way of English Bill and Answer. The Ordinary Court holds Plea of Recognizances acknowledged in the Chancery, Writs of Scire facias for Repeal of Letters Patent, Writs of Partition, &c. and also of all Personal Actions, by or against any Officer of the Court; and by Acts of Parliament of several Offences and Causes: All original Writs; Commissions of Bankrupts; of Charitable Uses; of Ideots, and Lunacy, &c. issue out of this Court, for which it is always open; and sometimes a Superfedeas or Writ of Privilege, hath been here granted to discharge a Person out of Prison: One from hence may have an Habeas Corpus, Prohibition, &c. in the Vacation, which are to be had out of the other Courts only in Term-time; and here a Subpoena may be had to force Witnesses to appear in other Courts, when they have no Power to call them. 4 Inst. 79. 1 Danv. Abr. 776. But in prosecuting Causes, if the Parties descend to Issue, this Court cannot try it by Jury; but the Lord Chancellor delivers the Record into the King's Bench to be tried there, and for that Purpose both Courts are accounted but one; and after Trial had, it is to be remanded into the Chancery, and there Judgment given: But if there be a Demurrer in Law, it shall be argued and adjudged in this Court. Upon a Judgment given in this Court, a Writ of Error lies returnable in B. R. 4 Inst. 80. The Extraordinary Court, or Court of Equity, proceeds by the Rules of Equity and Conscience, and moderates the Rigour of the Common Law, considering the Intention rather than the Words of the Law: It gives Relief for and against Infants, notwithstanding their Minority: And for and against married Women, notwithstanding their Coverture: In some Cases a Woman may sue her Husband for Maintenance; she may sue him when he is beyond Sea, &c. and be compelled to answer without her Husband: All Frauds and Deceits, for which there is no Redress at Common Law: All Breaches of Trust and Confidences; and Accidents, as to relieve Obligors, Mortgagors, &c. against Penalties and Forfeitures, where the Intention was to pay the Debt, are here remedied: For in Chancery a Forfeiture, &c. shall not bind, where a Thing may be done after, or Compensation made for it. 1 Danv. 752. 2 Ventr. 352. 1 Roll. Abr. 373. Also this Court will give Relief against the Extremity of unreasonable Engagements, entered into without Consideration; oblige Creditors that are unreasonable, to compound with an unfortunate Debtor: Make Executors, &c. give Security and pay Interest for Money that is to lie long in their Hands; and where Money is devised to a Child at such an Age, it hath been adjudged that it shall have the Interest in the mean Time. 2 Ventr. 346. Here Executors may sue one another, or one Executor alone be sued without the Rest: Order may be made for Performance of a Will: It may be decreed who shall have the Tuition of a Child: This Court may confirm Title to Lands, though one hath lost his Writings: Render Conveyances defective thro' Fraud or Mistake, good and perfect; but not Defects in a voluntary Conveyance, unless where intended as a Provision for younger Children. 2 Ventr. 365. In Chancery, Copyholders may be relieved against the ill Usage of their Lords: Inclosures of Lands that are Common be decreed; and this Court may decree Money or Lands given to Charitable Uses; Things in Action, upon Assignment on Consideration: Oblige Men to account with each other: Avoid the Bar of Actions, by the Statute of Limitations, &c. for Debts thus barred, are still Debts in Equity, and the Duty remains. 1 Danv. Abr. 749, 750, &c. 1 Salk. 154. But in all Cases, where the Plaintiff can have his Remedy at Law, he ought not to be relieved in Chancery: And a Thing which may be tried by a Jury, is not triable in this Court. Danv. 763. Also long Leases, as for 1000 Years; naked Promises; verbal Agreements not executed; Estates derived under conceal'd Titles, &c. have been refused Relief in this Court:

And

And Mortgages are not relievable in Equity after twenty Years, where no Demand has been made, or Interest paid, or there are not other particular Circumstances, &c. 2 Ventr. 340. This Court will not retain a Suit for any Thing under 10 l. Value, except it be in Cases of Charity; nor for Lands, &c. under 40 s. per Annum: And refuses Relief in Suits where the Substance of them tends to the Overthrow of an Act of Parliament, or any fundamental Point of the Common Law. If a Man loses his Obligation, he shall not be relieved for his Debt, being against a Maxim in Law. 1 Danv. 754. And an Executor in a Court of Equity ought not to be compelled to pay Legacies before Bonds, &c. for this is against the Common Law: So in many other Cases. Ibid. 756. And where a Man by his own Act destroys his Remedy at Law, he shall not be relieved in Equity: But in Case of an apparent Fraud, or in a dubious Case in Law, of which the Party could not have Conscience, Relief may be had in Equity against a Statute. Ibid. 755, 759. Defendants may not be regularly relieved in Chancery, after Judgment at Law; tho' there have been Decrees made in such Cases: But on Persons being committed for Non-performance, they have been discharged by Habeas Corpus. Cro. Eliz. 220. 1 Roll. Rep. 252. 1 Nels. Abr. 432. A Bill in Chancery at Westminster may be brought, after a Decree in the Chancery at Chester, &c. 3 Bulst. 118. If there be an Order that one shall stand committed to the Fleet, for Breach of a Decree, in Pursuance of the Order there ought to be a Writ awarded for Taking and Imprisoning him. 1 Danv. 776. It is common to give Relief in Chancery, tho' there is an Agreement between the Parties that there shall be no Relief in Law or Equity. 1 Mod. 141, 305. But tho' the Power of this Court is so great; and it may restrain other Courts that exceed their Jurisdiction, and remove Suits to it self by Certiorari, yet it is no Court of Record, and therefore 'tis said can bind the Person only, and not the Estate of the Defendant. 4 Inst. 84. And if the Party will not obey the Decree, he must be committed 'till he does. 1 Danv. 749. If a Portion be given to a Woman, provided she marries not without Consent of a certain Person, altho' she marries without such Consent, she shall be relieved in Chancery, and have her Portion: But if the Portion, on such Marriage, had been limited over to another, it would be otherwise. 1 Danv. Abr. 752. 1 Mod. 300. If a Father, on the Marriage of his Son, take a Bond of the Son that he shall pay him so much, &c. this is void in Equity, being adjudged by Coercion while he is under the Awe of the Father. 1 Salk. 158. Also where a Son, without Privity of the Father, treating the Match, gives Bond to return any Part of the Portion, in Equity it is void. Ibid. 156. A Man is not bound to discover the Consideration of a Bond generally given, which in it self implies a Consideration. Hard. 200. If a Factor to a Merchant hath Money in his Hands, it shall be accounted his own, for Equity cannot follow Money; but it may Goods, to make them the Merchant's, which may be known, tho' Money cannot. 1 Salk. 260. Money articulated to be laid out in Land, shall be taken as Land in Equity, and descend to the Heir. Ibid. 154. Personal Estate in the Hands of Executors shall be applied in Discharge of the Heir, where there is sufficient Assets to pay the Debts and Legacies. 1 Danv. 770. There shall be no

Bill in Equity against an Executor to discover Assets, before a Suit commenced at Law. Harp. 115. Where Trustees convert Money rais'd out of Land for Payment of Debts, to their own Use, the Heir shall have the Land discharg'd, which hath born its Burden, and the Trustees are liable to the Debts in Equity. 1 Salk. 153. If Lease for Years, without Impeachment of Waste, about the End of his Term cuts down Timber-Trees, the Court of Chancery by Injunction may stop the Cutting down of the Trees, it being against the Publick Good to destroy Timber. 1 Roll. Abr. 380. And Tenant after Possibility of Issue extinct, or for Life, dispendible of Waste, may be stopp'd in Equity from Pulling down Houses, &c. 1 Danv. 761. Where a Party hath Law and Equity on his Side, it will prevail against Equity only. Ibid. 773. The King cannot create a Court of Equity at this Day, but the same must be done by Act of Parliament. 4 Inst. 84. By Statute, the Court of Chancery is to follow the King. 28 Ed. 1. c. 5. And whosoever shall find himself grieved with any Statute, he shall have his Remedy in the Chancery. 36 Ed. 3. c. 9. No Subpoena or other Process of Appearance, shall issue out of Chancery, &c. 'till after a Bill is filed, (except Bills for Injunctions to stay Waste, or Suits at Law commenced) and a Certificate thereof brought to the Subpoena Office. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. And for preventing vexatious Suits, it is enacted, That upon the Plaintiff's Dismissing his own Bill, or the Defendant's Dismissing the same for Want of Prosecution, the Plaintiff shall pay to the Defendant full Costs, &c. Stat. Ibid. Persons in Remainder, or Reversion of any Estate, after the Death of another, upon making Affidavit in the Court of Chancery, that they have Cause to believe such other Person dead, and such Death concealed by the Guardian, Trustees or others, may move the Lord Chancellor to order such Guardian, Trustees, &c. to produce the Person suspected to be concealed; and if he be not produc'd, he shall be taken to be dead, and those in Reversion, &c. may enter upon the Estate. And if such Person be abroad, a Commission may be issued for his being viewed by Commissioners. Stat. 6 Ann. c. 18. Infants under the Age of twenty-one Years, seized of Estates in Trust, or by Way of Mortgage, are enabled by Statute to make Conveyances thereof; or they may be compelled thereto, by Order of the Court of Chancery, &c. upon Petition and Hearing the Parties concern'd. 7 Ann. c. 9. See the Stat. 13 Car. 2. relating to the Masters in Chancery, and their Fees, &c.

The Proceedings in Chancery, Are first to file the Bill of Complaint, signed by some Counsel, setting forth the Fraud or Injury done, or Wrong sustained, and praying Relief: After the Bill is filed, Process of Subpoena issues to compel the Defendant to appear; and when the Defendant appears, he puts in his Answer to the Bill of Complaint, if there be no Cause for Plea to the Jurisdiction of the Court, in Disability of the Person, or in Bar, &c. Then the Plaintiff brings his Replication, unless he files Exceptions against the Answer as insufficient, referring it to a Master to report, whether it be sufficient or not; to which report Exceptions may be also made. The Answer, Replication, and Rejoinder, &c. being settled, and the Parties come to Issue, Witnesses are to be examined upon Interrogatories, either in Court or by Commission in the County, wherein the Parties usually join; and when the Plaintiff and Defendant have examined their Witnesses, Publication is to be made of the Depositions, and the Cause is to be set down for Hearing, after which follows the Decree. If the Plaintiff dismisseth his own Bill, or the Defendant dismisseth it by Reason of Want of Prosecution, as I have already observed, or if the Decree is in Behalf of the Defendant; the Bill is dismissed with Costs, to be taxed by a Master. If the Defendant doth not appear, on being served with the Process of Subpœna, in order to answer, upon Affidavit of the Service of the Writ, an Attachment will issue out against him; and if a Non est inventus is returned, an Attachment with Proclamation goes forth against him; and if he stands further out in Contempt, then a Commission of Rebellion may be issued, for apprehending him, and bringing him to the Fleet Prison, in the Execution whereof the Persons to whom directed may justify breaking open Doors. If the Defendant stands further in Contempt, a Serjeant at Arms is to be sent out to take him; and if he cannot be taken, a Sequestration of his Land may be obtained 'till he appears. And if a Decree, when made, be not obeyed, being served upon the Party under the Seal of the Court, all the afore-mentioned Processes of Contempt will issue out against him, for his Imprisonment 'till he yields Obedience to it. If a Bill in Chancery be exhibited against a Peer, the Course is for the Lord Chancellor to write a Letter to him, and if he doth not put in his Answer, then a Subpœna issues, and then an Order to shew Cause why a Sequestration should not go forth; and if he still stands out, then a Sequestration shall be had; for there can be no Process of Contempt against his Person. Where there is any Error in a Decree in Matter of Law, there may be a Bill of Review, which is in Nature of a Writ of Error; or an Appeal to the House of Lords. A Party grieved with a Decree in Chancery, on Petition to the King, it hath been adjudged that the Matter may be referred by the King to the Judges, who may reverse the Decree, &c. 3 Bulst. 116. But it is now usual to Appeal to the House of Lords, which Appeals are to be signed by two noted Counsels, and exhibited by Way of Petition; and after Counsel heard on both Sides, the Lords will affirm or reverse the Decree of the Chancery, and finally determine the Cause by a Majority of Votes, &c. If a Bill be brought where the Lord Chancellor is Party to the Suit, it must be directed to the King's Majesty; for no Man may be both Judge and Party in a Cause.

Form of a Bill in Chancery.

To the Right Honourable, &c. Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain.

Humbly Complaining sheweth unto your Lordship, your Orator A. B. of, &c. That whereas about, &c. Years last past, T. B. of, &c. did grant to L. M. all that Messuage, &c. And afterwards, that is to say, on, &c. he the said L. M. by his Deed bearing Date, &c. under his Hand and Seal, in Consideration of the Sum of, &c. to him paid, did bargain, sell, assign and set over the said Premises, &c. unto J. D. of, &c. which said J. D. not long after, viz. on, &c. did, in Consideration of, &c. by your Orator to him in Hand paid, bargain, sell, assign, transfer and set over unto your Orator, all and singular the said Premises above-mentioned, and every Part thereof; upon which Bargain, Sale, and Assignment of the said Premises so made as aforesaid, your Orator well hoped to have peaceably and quietly entered into the said Premises, and to have held, occupied and enjoyed the same accordingly; But now so it is, may it please your Lordship, That one L. E. of, &c. pretending to have a Lease for divers Years yet to come, of Part of the said Premises made unto him by the said T. D. &c. long before any such Sale or Assignment made thereof to your Orator as aforesaid, hath kept, and doth still keep your Orator out of the Possession of the said Premises, upon which Lease be the said L. E. pretends a certain yearly Rent is reserved to the said J. D. his Executors or Assigns, which Rent, if any be, your Orator hath heard is, &c. And which your Orator, by Reason of the lawful Conveyance to him made, as aforesaid, ought in Equity and good Conscience, to have and enjoy during such Term as the said L. E. shall hold and enjoy the Premises aforesaid, by Reason of the said Lease which he so pretendeth to have; but forasmuch as your Orator doth not certainly know whether the said L. E. hath any such Lease, or if he hath any such Lease, what Date the same beareth, nor what Term the said L. E. hath therein unexpired, nor what Rent is thereby reserved, or what Covenants are therein contained: And for that the said L. E. doth not only Use and Occupy the said Premises to his own Profit and Advantage, without Yielding or Paying any Rent therefore to your Orator, but doth also utterly refuse to shew his said Lease, whereby he pretendeth to claim the Premises aforesaid, either to your Orator, or to any other Person; and for that the said L. E. in Confederacy with, &c. giveth out, &c. All which Actings and Doings of the said L. E. &c. are contrary to all Right, Equity, and Good Conscience, and tend to the manifest Wrong, Injury, and Oppression of your Orator: In tender Consideration whereof, and forasmuch as your Orator is Remediless save in this honourable Court, and for that your Orator cannot by the ordinary Course of the Common Law enter into the Premises, nor commence any Action against the said L. E. either for the Recovery of the said Land, or the Rent aforesaid, or to enforce the said L. E. to produce or shew to your Orator such Writings as he hath for the Holding and Occupying the Premises aforesaid; but is altogether destitute of the Means to obtain or have a Sight of the same, but by the Assistance of this Honourable Court: To the End therefore that the said L. E. may be obliged upon his Oath to discover what Right he hath to the Premises, or any Part thereof; and what Rent or Rents he hath paid for the same, and to whom; and that he may also set forth in his Answer upon Oath, a true Copy of such Lease or other Writings, whereby he claimeth the Premises aforesaid, or any Part thereof; and that the said L. E. may truly and directly Answer all the Matters and Things herein before contained, as fully and perfectly as if the same had been here again repeated and interrogated, and may particularly set forth upon Oath, whether, &c. And may come to account for, and pay, &c. And that your Orator may be relieved in the Premises according to Equity and Good Conscience.

May it please your Lordship, the Premises considered, to grant to your Orator his Majesty's Writ or Writs of Subpœna to be directed to the said L. E. and other his Confederates when discovered, thereby commanding them and every of them at a certain Day, and under a certain Pain therein limited, personally to be and appear pear before your Lordship in this Honourable Court, then and there to Answer all and singular the Premises, and to stand to, perform and abide such Order and Decree therein, as to your Lordship shall seem meet.

And your Orator shall ever pray, &c.

Form of an Answer in Chancery.

The Answer of L. E. Defendant to the Bill of Complaint of A. B. Complainant.

THis Defendant now, and at all Times hereafter, saving to himself all Manner of Benefit and Advantage of Exception to the many Uncertainties, Insufficiencies and Imperfections in the said Complainant's Bill of Complaint contained; for Answer thereunto, or unto so much thereof as this Defendant is advised is any Ways material for him to make Answer unto, he answereth and saith, That the said J. D. named in the Complainant's said Bill, was possessed for divers Years yet to come of the said Messuage or Tenement, Lands and Hereditaments in the said Bill mentioned, called, &c. by Virtue of a Lease thereof made by, &c. in the said Bill named unto the said J. D. long before, &c. mentioned in the said Bill of Complaint; and the said J. D. so being thereof possessed, had in such Manner as in the said Complainant's Bill is supposed, made a lawful Demise of the said Messuage and Lands unto the said Defendant for Years to come; upon which Lease the said J. D. reserved an yearly Rent of, &c. to be paid during the Continuance of the said Lease, by Force of which Lease the Defendant entered into the said Lands, &c. and was and is yet lawfully possessed thereof accordingly, and ever since hath and yet doth enjoy the same by Virtue of the said Lease and Demise, and is thereby to have and enjoy the same during the Continuance of the said Lease, of which there are at this Time about, &c. Years to come, and unexpired; and saith, that the Plaintiff is a Person altogether unknown to this Defendant, being one he this Defendant never had any Dealings or Correspondence with; and therefore the Defendant cannot but admire at this Suit commenced by the said Complainant against this Defendant touching the Premises: And this Defendant saith that he humbly conceives and is advised, that he, this Defendant, is for the Payment of his Rent chargeable, and ought by the Law to pay the Rent so reserved unto the said J. D. and not the said Complainant, which said J. D. this Defendant doth verily think is his lawful Landlord, during the said Term of Years yet to come, and not the Complainant, who is altogether a Stranger to this Defendant; and saith, that the said Complainant never at any Time heretofore demanded any Rent for the said Messuage, or Tenement and Lands that this Defendant hath and occupieth by Virtue of the said Lease for Years; and also saith, &c. and therefore the said Defendant is the more surprized at this Suit brought against him by the said Complainant touching the Premises, whereby this Defendant is wrongfully vexed and sued without any just Cause; without that there is any such Bargain and Sale made by, &c. as in the said Bill is set forth, or that the said, &c. bargained and sold the Premises to the Complainant; or that the said Complainant ought to have and enjoy the said Premises to the Knowledge of this Defendant; and this Defendant denies all Combination in the Bill charged; without that, that there is any other Matter or Thing in the Complainant's said Bill of Complaint contained, material or effectual for this Defendant to make Answer unto, and not herein and hereby sufficiently answered unto, confessed or avoided, traversed or denied, is true, to the Knowledge and Belief of this Defendant; all which Matters and Things this Defendant is ready to aver and prove as this Honourable Court shall Award; and humbly prays to be hence dismissed with his reasonable Costs and Charges in this Behalf wrongfully sustained.

Form of a Replication to an Answer.

The Replication of A. B. Complainant, to the Answer of L. E. Defendant, put into the said Repliant's Bill of Complaint.

THE said Repliant, saving to himself all Advantages of Exception to the Defendant's said Answer, for Replication thereunto saith, That all and every the Matters and Things in and by his said Bill of Complaint already said, he will justify, maintain and prove to be good, certain, and sufficient in the Law, to be answered unto in such Manner as the same are therein and thereby set forth and declared; and that the Answer of the said Defendant is untrue and insufficient in the Law to be by this Repliant replied unto, for divers manifest Imperfections and Uncertainties therein contained; the Benefit of Exception whereunto being now and at all Times saved to this Repliant: This Repliant for farther Replication saith, That, &c. and that the Matters contained in the said Bill of Complaint are altogether relievable in this Honourable Court, &c. Without that, that any other Matter or Thing in the said Defendant's Answer contained, material or effectual in the Law to be replied unto, and herein and hereby not well and sufficiently replied unto, confessed, or avoided, traversed or denied, is true; all which Matters and Things this Repliant is ready to aver, maintain and prove, as this Honourable Court shall Award; and humbly prays, as in and by his said Bill he hath already prayed.

A Rejoinder to a Replication in Chancery.

The Rejoinder of L. E. Defendant to the Replication of A. B. Complainant.

THE said Defendant, now, and at all Times hereafter, saving and reserving to himself all Manner of Benefit and Advantage of Exception to the Uncertainty and Insufficiency of the said Replication; for Rejoinder saith, That the Defendant's said Answer is true, certain, and sufficient in the Law to be replied unto; and saith, as in and by his said Answer he hath already said, and doth and will aver and maintain all and every Thing and Things therein to be true and certain, in such Manner as therein is alledged and expressed; and this Defendant also saith, That the said Replication of the said Complainant is uncertain and insufficient in the Law to be rejoined unto by the said Defendant, for divers Defects and Imperfections therein contained; and for that, &c. and without that, that, &c. in the said Replication material or effectual in the Law to be rejoined unto, &c. All which Matters this Defendant is ready to aver and prove, as this Honourable Court shall Award: And therefore prays, as before in his said Answer he hath prayed.

Form of a Decree in Chancery.

WHereas heretofore, that is to say, about, &c. Term, which was in the Year, &c. A. B. Complainant did exhibit his Bill of Complaint into this High and Honourable Court of Chancery, against L. E. Defendant, thereby setting forth, &c. (Here recite the Bill briefly) for Relief wherein, &c. the Complainant plainant humbly prayed the Aid and Assistance of this Honourable Court, and that Process of Subpoena might be awarded against the said Defendant to compel him to appear and answer the said Bill; which being granted, and the Defendant served therewith, he appeared accordingly, and answered the said Bill; and by his said Answer confessed and set forth, &c. (Here recite the Substance of the Answer) To which Answer the Complainant replied, and the Defendant rejoined, and so the Parties being at Issue, divers Witnesses were examined in the Cause, and their Depositions duly taken and published, according to the usual Course of this Court, as by the said Bill, Answer, Replication, Deposition of Witnesses, and other Proceedings remaining upon Record in this Honourable Court may more at large appear; and the said Cause thus standing in Court the Day of, &c. was by this Court appointed for the Hearing thereof, on which Day the same coming to be heard and debated accordingly in Presence of Counsel learned on both Sides, the Substance of the Complainant's Bill and the Defendant's Answer appeared to be as is herein before recited and set forth; whereupon, and upon Debate of the Matter, and Hearing what could be alledged on all Sides, this Court doth think fit, and accordingly it is this present Day, that is to say, the Day, &c. in the Year, &c. by the Right Honourable, &c. Lord High Chancellor of Great Britain, &c. ordered, adjudged, and decreed, that, &c. And that, &c.

Chancemedley, (from the Fr. Chance, Lapsus, and Mesler, Miscere) Signifies the casual Killing of a Man, not without the Killer's Fault, tho' without any Evil Intent; and is where a Person is doing a lawful Act, and a Person is killed by Chance thereby: For if the Act be unlawful, it is Felony: If a Person casts a Stone, which happens to hit one whereof he dies: Or shoots an Arrow in a Highway, and another that passeth by is kill'd therewith: Or if a Workman, in throwing down Rubbish from a House, after Warning to take Care, kills a Person: Or a Schoolmaster in Correcting his Scholar, a Master his Servant, or an Officer in Whipping a Criminal, in a reasonable Manner, happens to occasion his Death; it is Chancemedley and Misadventure. 3 Inst. 56. Dalt. 351. But if a Man throws Stones in a Highway, where Persons usually pass: Or shoot an Arrow, &c. in a Market-place, among a great many People: Or if a Workman cast down Rubbish from a House, in Cities and Towns, where People are continually passing: Or a Schoolmaster, Master, &c. correct his Servant or Scholar, &c. exceeding the Bounds of Moderation, it is Manslaughter; and if with an improper Instrument of Correction, as with a Sword or iron Bar, or by a Kicking, Stamping, &c. in a cruel Manner, it is Murder. Terms de Ley 113. H. P. C. 58. 31, &c. Kel. 40, 65, 113.

If a Man whips his Horse in the Street to make him gallop, and the Horse runs over a Child and kills it, it is Manslaughter: But if another whip the Horse, 'tis Manslaughter in him, and Chancemedley in the Rider. H. P. C. 58, 59. And if two are Fighting, and a third Person coming to part them is kill'd by one of them, without any evil Intent, yet this is Murder in him; and not Manslaughter by Chancemedley. or Misadventure: And if they were met with premeditated Malice, the one intending to kill the other, then it is Murder in both. Terms de Ley 113. In Chancemedley the Offender forfeits his Goods; but hath a Pardon of Course. Stat. 6 E. 1. c. 9.

Changer, An Officer belonging to the King's Mint, whose Office consists chiefly in exchanging Coin for Bullion brought in by Merchants or others: It is written, after the old Way, Chaunger. Stat. 2 Hen. 6. cap. 12.

Chanter, (Cantator) A Singer in the Choir of a Cathedral Church; and is usually applied to the Chief of the Singers. This Word is mentioned in 13 Eliz. cap. 10. At St. David's Cathedral in Wales, the Chanter is next to the Bishop; for there is no Dean. Camb. Britan.

Chantry, or Chauntry, (Cantaria) Is a little Church, Chapel, or particular Altar, in some Cathedral Church, &c. endowed with Lands, or other Revenues, for the Maintenance of one or more Priests, daily to Sing Mass, and officiate Divine Service for the Souls of the Donors, and such others as they appointed. Stat. 37 Hen. 8. c. 4. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. and 15 Car. 2. c. 9. Of these Chantries Mention is made of forty seven belonging to St. Paul's Church in London, by Dugdale, in his History of that Church. I find in an ancient M. S. this Record — Sciant, &c. quod Ego Reginaldus Seuard dedi Willielmo Crumpe Capellano Cantariæ beate Mariæ de Yarpol, unam parcellam pasture, &c. Dat. apud Leominstre die Martis prox. post. Festum Sancti Hillarii, Anno 7 Hen. 5.

Chapel, (Capella, Fr. Chapelle) Is either adjoining to a Church, for performing Divine Service; or separate from the Mother-Church, where the Parish is wide, which is commonly called a Chapel of Ease. And Chapels of Ease are built for the Ease of those Parishioners who dwell far from the Parochial Church; they are for their Ease in Prayer and Preaching only, for the Sacraments and Burials ought to be performed in the Parochial Church. 2 Roll. Abr. 340. — Ad Capellam non pertinet Baptisterium neque Sepultura. Selden of Tithes, p. 265. These Chapels are serv'd by inferior Curates, provided at the Charge of the Rector, &c. And the Curates are therefore removable at the Pleasure of the Rector or Vicar. But Chapels of Ease may be Parochial, and have a Right to Sacraments and Burials, and to a distinct Minister, by Custom, tho' subject in some Respects to the Mother-Church: And Parochial Chapels differ only in Name from Parish Churches, but they are small, and the Inhabitants within the District are few. In some Places Chapels of Ease are endowed with Lands or Tithes, and in other Places by voluntary Contributions; and in some few Districts there are Chapels which baptize and administer the Sacraments, and have Chapelwardens; but these Chapels are not exempted from the Visitation of the Ordinary, nor the Parishioners who resort thither from contributing to the Repairs of the Mother-Church, especially if they bury there; for the Chapel generally belongs to, and is as it were a Part of the Mother-Church, Church, and the Parishioners are obliged to go to the Mother-Church, but not to the Chapel. 2 Roll. Abr. 289. And hence it is said, that the Offerings made to any Chapel, are to be rendered to the Mother-Church; unless there be a Custom that the Chaplain shall have them. Publick Chapels, annex'd to Parish Churches, are to be repaired by the Parishioners, as the Church is; if any other Persons be not bound to do it. 2 Inst. 489. Besides the afore-mentioned Chapels, there are Free Chapels; perpetually maintained and provided with a Minister, without Charge to the Rector or Parish; or that are free and exempt from all ordinary Jurisdiction; and these are where some Lands or Rents are charitably bestowed on them. Stat. 37 Hen. 8. c. 4. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. Then there are Private Chapels built by Noblemen, and others, for private Worship, in or near their own Houses, maintain'd at the Charge of those noble Persons to whom they belong, and provided with Chaplains and Stipends by them; which may be erected without Leave of the Bishop, and need not be consecrated, though they antiently were so, nor are they subject to the Jurisdiction of the Ordinary. And also Chapels in the Universities, belonging to particular Colleges, which tho' they are consecrated, and Sacraments are administered there, yet they are not liable to the Visitation of the Bishop, but of the Founder. 2 Inst. 363.

Chapeltry, (Capellania) Is the same Thing to a Chapel, as a Parish to a Church; being the Precinct and Limits thereof: It is mentioned in the Statute 14 Car. 2. c. 9.

Chaperon, (Fr.) A Hood or Bonnet, antiently worn by the Knights of the Garter, as Part of the Habit of that noble Order: But in Heraldry, it is the little Escutcheon fixed in the Forehead of the Horses that draw a Hearse at a Funeral. See Stat. 1 R. 2. c. 17.

Chapters, (Lat. Capitula, Fr. Chapitres, i. e. Chapters of a Book) Signifies in our Common Law a Summary of such Matters as are to be enquired of, or presented before Justices in Eyre, Justices of Assize, or of Peace, in their Sessions. Briton, cap. 3. useth the Word in this Signification: And Chapters are now most commonly called Articles, and are delivered by the Mouth of the Justice in his Charge to the Inquest; whereas, in antient Time, (as appears by Bracton and Briton) they were, after an Exhortation given by the Justices for the good Observation of the Laws and the King's Peace, first read in open Court, and then delivered in Writing to the Grand Inquest, for their better Observance; and the Grand Jury were to answer upon their Oaths to the Articles thus delivered them, and not put the Judges to long and learned Charges to little or no Purpose, for Want of Remembling the same, as they now do, when they think their Duty well enough perform'd, if they only Present those few of many Misdemeanors which are brought before them by Way of Indictment. It is to be wished that this Order of delivering written Articles to Grand Juries were still observed, whereby Crimes would be more effectually punished; and in some inferior Courts, as the Court-Leet, &c. in several Parts of England, it is usual at this Day for Stewards of those Courts to deliver their Charges in Writing to the Juries sworn to enquire of Offences. Horne, in his Mirror of Justices, expresses what these Articles were wont to contain, Lib. 3. cap. Des Articles in Eyre. And an Example of Articles of this Kind, you may find in the Book of Assises, fol. 138.

Chaplain, (Capellanus) Is most commonly taken for one that is depending upon the King, or other noble Person, to instruct him and his Family, and say Divine Service in his House, where there is usually a private Chapel for that Purpose. The King, Queen, Prince, Princess, &c. may retain as many Chaplains as they please; and the King's Chaplains may hold any Number of Benefices of the King's Gift, as the King shall think fit to bestow upon them. An Archbishop may retain eight Chaplains; a Duke or a Bishop, Six; Marquis or Earl, Five; Viscount, Four; Baron, Knight of the Garter, or Lord Chancellor, Three: A Dutchesse, Marchioness, Countess, Baroness, the Treasurer, and Controller of the King's House, the King's Secretary, Dean of the Chapel, Almoner, and Master of the Rolls, each of them Two; the Chief Justice of the King's Bench, &c. One; all which may purchase a License or Dispensation, and take two Benefices with Cure of Souls. Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 13. Also every Judge of the King's Bench, Common Pleas, the Chancellor and Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and the King's Attorney and Solicitor General, may each of them have one Chaplain, attendant on his Person, having one Benefice with Cure, who may be non-resident on the same. By Statute 25 H. 8. c. 16. And the Groom of the Stole, Treasurer of the King's Chamber, and Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster, may retain each one Chaplain. Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 28. If a Nobleman hath his full Number of Chaplains allow'd by Law, and retains one more, who has Dispensation to hold Plurality of Livings, it is not good. 1 Cro. 723. A Person retaining a Chaplain, must not only be capable thereof at the Time of Granting the Instrument of Retainer, but he must continue capable of Qualifying 'till his Chaplain is advanced: And therefore if a Duke, Earl, &c. retain a Chaplain, and die; or if such a noble Person be attainted of Treason; or if an Officer qualified to retain a Chaplain, is removed from his Office, the Retainer is determined: But where the Chaplain hath taken a second Benefice before his Lord dieth, or is attainted, &c. the Retainer is in Force to qualify him to enjoy the Benefices. And if a Woman that is noble by Marriage, afterwards marries one under the Degree of Nobility, her Power to retain Chaplains will be determined: Tho' 'tis otherwise where a Woman is Noble by Descent, if she marry under Degree of Nobility, for in such Case her Retainer before or after Marriage is good. A Baroness, &c. during the Coverture, may not retain Chaplains; if she doth, the Lord, her Husband, may discharge them, as likewise her former Chaplains, before their Advancement. 4 Rep. 118. A Chaplain must be retained by Letters testimonial, under Hand and Seal, or he is not a Chaplain within the Statute; so that it is not enough for a Spiritual Person to be retained by Word only to be a Chaplain, by such Person as may qualify by the Statute to hold Livings, &c. altho' he abide and serve as Chaplain in the Family. And where a Nobleman hath retained and thus qualified his Number of Chaplains, if he dismisses them from their Attendance upon any Displeasure, after they are preferred, yet they are his Chaplains at large, and may hold their Livings during their Lives; and such Nobleman, tho' he may retain further Chaplains in his Family, mily, meerly as Chaplains, he cannot qualify any others to hold Pluralities whilst the First are living: For if a Nobleman could discharge his Chaplain when advanced, to qualify another in his Place, and qualify other Chaplains during the Lives of Chaplains discharged, by those Means he might advance as many Chaplains as he would, whereby the Statute would be evaded. 4 Rep. 90.

Form of a Retainer of a Nobleman's Chaplain.

Chapter, (Capitulum) Is a Congregation of Clergymen under the Dean in a Cathedral Church: Congregationem Clericorum in Ecclesia Cathedrali, Conventuali, Regulari vel Collegiata: And in another Sense, Locum in quo fiunt communes tractatus Collegiatorum. This Collegiate Company is metaphorically termed Capitulum, signifying a little Head, it being a Kind of Head, not only to govern the Diocese in the Vacation of the Bishoprick, but also in many Things to advise and assist the Bishop when the See is full, for which, with the Dean, they form a Council. 1 Inst. 103. The Chapter consists of Prebends or Canons, which are some of the chief Men of the Church, and therefore are called Capita Ecclesiae: They are a Spiritual Congregation aggregate, which they cannot surrender without Leave of the Bishop, because he hath an Interest in them; they, with the Dean, have Power to confirm the Bishop's Grants; during the Vacancy of an Archbishoprick, they are Guardians of the Spiritualities, and as such have Authority by the Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 21. to grant Dispensations; likewise as a Corporation they have Power to make Leases, &c. When the Dean and Chapter confirm Grants of the Bishop, the Dean joins with the Chapter, and there must be the Consent of the major Part; which Consent is to be expressed by their Fixing of their Seal to the Deed, in one Place, and at one Time, either in the Chapter-House, or some other Place; and this Consent is the Will of many joined together. Dyer 233. Chapters as well as Deans are antient and new; and were either translated or founded by K. H. 8. A Chapter is not capable to take by Purchase or Gift, without the Dean, who is the Head of the Body: But there may be a Chapter without a Dean, as the Chapter of the Collegiate Church of Southwell; and Grants by or to them are as effectual as other Grants by Dean and Chapter. Tho' where there are Chapters without a Dean, they are not properly Chapters: And the Chapter in a Collegiate Church, where there is no Episcopop See, as at Westminster and Windsor, is more properly called a College. The Bishop hath a Power of Visiting the Dean and Chapter: But the Dean and Chapter have nothing to do with what the Bishop transacts as Ordinary: 3 Rep. 75. Tho' the Bishop and Chapter are but one Body, yet their Possessions are for the most Part divided; as the Bishop hath his Part in Right of his Bishoprick; the Dean hath a Part in Right of his Deanery; and each Prebendary hath a certain Part in Right of his Prebend; and each too is incorporate by himself. And Deans and Chapters have some of them Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in several Parishes, (besides that Authority they have within their own Body) executed by their Officials; also temporal Jurisdiction in several Manors belonging to them, in the same Manner as Bishops, where their Stewards keep Court, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 229. It has been observed, that tho' the Chapter have distinct Parcels of the Bishop's Estate assigned for their Maintenance, the Bishop hath little more than a Power over them in his Visitations, and is scarce allowed to nominate Half of those to their Prebends, who were originally of his Family: But of common Right it is said he is their Patron. Roll. Ibid.

Charre of Lead, Is a Quantity of Lead consisting of thirty Pigs, each Pig containing six Stone wanting two Pounds, and every Stone being twelve Pounds. — La Charre de Plumbo constat ex 30. foinellis, & qualibet foinella continet 6. Petras, exceptis duabus libris, & qualibet Petra constat ex 12. libris. Assisa de Ponderibus, Rob. 3. R. Scot. cap. 22.

Charta, A Word taken not only for a Charter or Deed in Writing for the Holding an Estate; but also a Statute of Privilege. See Magna Charta.

Charte, A Card or Plan which Mariners use at Sea, mentioned 14 Car. 2. c. 33.

Chartel, (Fr. Cartel) A Letter of Defiance, or Challenge to a single Combat; in Use heretofore to decide difficult Controversies at Law, which could not otherwise be determined. Blount.

Charter, (Lat. Charta, Fr. Chartres, i.e. Instrumenta) Is taken in our Law for written Evidence of Things done between Man and Man: Whereof Bracton, lib. 2. cap. 26. says thus, Fiunt aliquando Donationes in Scriptis, sicut in Chartis, ad perpetuam rei memoriam, propter brevem hominum vitam, &c. And Briton in his 39th Chapter divides Charters into those of the King, and those of private Persons. Charters of the King are those whereby the King passeth any Grant to any Person or Body Politick; as a Charter of Exemption of Privilege, &c. Charter of Pardon, whereby a Man is forgiven a Felony; or other Offence committed against the King's Crown and Dignity; and of these there are several Sorts, viz. Charta Pardonationis Utlagarum, Charta Pardonationis se Defendendo, &c. and others mentioned in Reg. Writs 287, 288, &c. Charter of the Forest, wherein the Laws of the Forest are comprised, such as the Charter of Canutus, &c. Kitch. 314. Fleta, lib. 3. cap. 14. Charters of Private Persons are Deeds and Instruments for the Conveyance of Lands, &c.

Charterer. In Cheshire, a Freeholder is called by this Name. Sir P. Ley's Antiq. fol. 356.

Charter=

Charter-land, (Terra per Chartam) Is such as a Man holds by Charter, that is by Evidence in Writing, otherwise called Freehold. Anno 19 Hen. 7. cap. 13. This in the Time of the Saxons was called Bockland, which was held (according to Lambard) with more commodious and easy Conditions than Folkland was, i. e. Land held without Writing; because that was Hereditaria, libera atque immunis; whereas, Fundus sine scripto censum pensitabat annuum, atque officiorum quadam servitute est obligatus: Priorem viri plerumque nobiles, atque ingenui; posteriorem Rustici fere & pagani possidebant: Illam nos vulgo Freehold & per Chartam; hanc ad voluntatem Domini appellamus. Lamb.

Charter-party, (Lat. Charta partita, Fr. Chartere parti, i. e. a Deed or Writing divided) Is what among Merchants and Sea-faring Men, we commonly call a Pair of Indentures, containing the Covenants and Agreements made between them, touching their Merchandize and maritime Affairs. 2 Inst. 673. And Charter-parties of Affreightment settle Agreements, as to the Cargo of Ships, and bind the Master to deliver the Goods in good Condition at the Place of Discharge, according to Agreement; and the Master sometimes obliges himself, Ship, Tackle and Furniture for Performance. The Common Law contrives Charter-parties as near as may be according to the Intention of them, and not according to the literal Sense of Traders, or those that merchandize by Sea; but they must be regularly pleaded. In Covenant by Charter-party that the Ship shall return within the River of Thames by a certain Time, Dangers of the Sea excepted, and after in the Voyage, and within the Time of the Return, the Ship was taken upon the Sea by Pirates, so that the Master could not return at the Time mentioned in the Agreement; it was adjudged that this Impediment was within the Exception of the Charter-party, which extends as well to any Danger upon the Sea by Pirates and Men of War, as Dangers of the Sea by Shipwreck, Tempest, &c. Stile 132. 2 Roll. Abr. 248. A Ship is freighted at so much per Month that she shall be out, covenanted to be paid after her Arrival at the Port of London; the Ship is cast away coming up from the Downs, but the Lading is all preserved, the Freight shall in this Case be paid; for the Money becomes due monthly by the Contract, and the Place mentioned is only to ascertain where the Money is to be paid, and the Ship is entitled to Wages like a Mariner that serves by the Month, who if he dies in the Voyage, his Executors are to be answered pro rata. Molloy de Fur. Maritim. 260. If a Part-owner of a Ship refuse to join with the other Owners in setting out the Ship, he shall not be entitled to his Share of the Freight; but by the Course of the Admiralty, the other Owners ought to give Security if the Ship perish in the Voyage, to make good to the Owner standing out his Share of the Ship. Sir Lionel Jenkins, in a Case of this Nature, certified that by the Law Marine and Course of the Admiralty, the Plaintiff was to have no Share of the Freight; and that it was so in all Places, for otherwise they would be no Navigation. Lex Mer. at. 100. See Freight.

Form of a Charter-party of Affreightment.

THIS Charter-party indented, made, &c. between A. B. of, &c. Mariner, Master and Owner of the good Ship or Vessel called, &c. now riding at Anchor at, &c. of the Burthen of two hundred Tons, or thereabouts, of the one Part, and C. D. of, &c. Merchant of the other Part, Witnesseth, That the said A. B. for the Considerations hereinafter mentioned, Hath granted and to Freight letten; and by these Presents doth grant and to Freight let unto the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, the whole Tonnage of the Hold, Stern-sheets and Half-deck of the said Ship or Vessel, called, &c. from the Port of London, to, &c. in a Voyage to be made with the said Ship, in Manner hereafter mentioned; (that is to say) to sail with the first fair Wind and Weather that shall happen after, &c. next from the said Port of London, with the Goods and Merchandize of the said C. D. his Factors or Assigns on Board to, &c. aforesaid, (the Dangers of the Sea excepted) and there unlade and make Discharge of the said Goods and Merchandizes: And also shall there take into and aboard the said Ship again, the Goods and Merchandizes of the said C. D. his Factors or Assigns, and shall then return to the Port of London with the said Goods, in the Space of, &c. limited for the End of the said Voyage. In Consideration whereof the said C. D. for himself, his Executors and Administrators, doth covenant, promise and grant to and with the said A. B. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, by these Presents, that he the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators, Factors or Assigns, shall and will well and truly pay or cause to be paid unto the said A. B. his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, for the Freight of the said Ship and Goods, the Sum of, &c. or so much per Ton, within twenty-one Days after the said Ship's Arrival, and Goods returned and discharged at the Port of London aforesaid, for the End of the said Voyage: And also shall and will pay for Demorage, (if any shall be by the Default of him the said C. D. his Factors or Assigns) the Sum of, &c. per Day, daily and every Day, as the same shall grow due: And the said A. B. for himself, his Executors and Administrators, doth covenant, promise and grant, to and with the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, by these Presents, that the said Ship or Vessel shall be ready at the Port of London, to take in Goods by the said C. D. on or before, &c. next coming: And the said C. D. for himself, his, &c. doth covenant and promise, within ten Days after the said Ship or Vessel shall be thus ready to have his Goods put on Board the said Ship, to proceed on in the said Voyage: And also on the Arrival of the said Ship at, &c. within, &c. Days, to have his Goods ready to put on Board the said Ship, to return on the said Voyage: And the said A. B. for himself, his Executors and Administrators, doth farther covenant and grant to and with the said C. D. his Executors, Administrators and Assigns, that the said Ship or Vessel now is, and at all Times during the said Voyage, shall be to the best Endeavours of him the said A. B. his Executors and Administrators, and at his and their own proper Costs and Charges, in all Things made and kept stiff, staunch, strong, well apparelled, furnished and provided, as well with Men and Mariners, sufficient and able to sail, guide and govern the said Ship, as with all Manner of Rigging, Boats, Tackle, Apparel, Furniture, Provision and Appurtenances, fitting and necessary for the said Men and Mariners, and for the said Ship during the Voyage aforesaid. In Witness, &c.

Chartis Reddendis, Is a Writ which lies against him that hath Charters of Feoffment entrusted to his Keeping, and refuseth to deliver them. Reg. Orig. 159.

Chasse, (Fr. Chasse) In its general Signification is a great Quantity of woody Ground lying open, pen, and privileged for wild Beasts, and wild Fowl: And the Beasts of Chafe properly extend to the Buck, Doe, Fox, &c. and in a common and legal Sense to all the Beasts of the Forest. 1 Inst. 233. But if one have a Chafe within a Forest, and he kill or hunt any Stag or red Deer, or other Beasts of the Forest, he is finable. 1 Jones's Rep. 278. A Chafe is of a middle Nature, between a Forest and Park, being commonly less than a Forest, and not endowed with so many Liberties, as the Courts of Attachment, Swainmote, and Justice-Seat; tho' of a larger Compass, and stored with greater Diversity both of Keepers, and wild Beasts or Game, than a Park. A Chafe differs from a Forest in this, because it may be in the Hands of a Subject, which a Forest in its proper and true Nature cannot; and from a Park, in that it is not enclosed, and hath a greater Compass, and more Variety of Game, and Officers likewise. Crompton in his Jurisd. fol. 148. says, A Forest cannot be in the Hands of a Subject, but it forthwith loseth its Name, and becomes a Chafe: But Fol. 197. he says, A Subject may be Lord and Owner of a Forest, which though it seems a Contradiction, yet both Sayings are in some Sort true: For the King may give or alienate a Forest to a Subject, so as when it is once in the Subject, it loseth the true Property of a Forest, because the Courts called the Justice-Seat, Swainmote, &c. do forthwith vanish, none being able to make a Lord Chief Justice in Eyre of the Forest, but the King; yet it may be granted in so large a Manner, as there may be Attachment, Swainmote, and a Court equivalent to a Justice-Seat. Manwood, Part 2. c. 3, 4. A Forest and a Chafe have different Offices and Laws: Every Forest is a Chafe, & quiddam amplius; but every Chafe is not a Forest. A Chafe is ad Communem Legem, and is not to be guided by the Forest Laws; and it is the same of Parks. 4 Inst. 314. A Man may have a free Chafe as belonging to his Manor in his own Woods, as well as a Warren and a Park in his own Grounds; for a Chafe, Warren and Park are collateral Inheritances, and not issuing out of the Soil; and therefore if a Person hath a Chafe in other Men's Grounds, and after purchaseth the Grounds, the Chafe remaineth. Ibid. 318. If a Man have Freehold in a free Chafe, he may cut his Timber and Wood growing upon it, without View or Licence of any; though it is not so of a Forest: But if he cut so much that there is not sufficient for Covert, and to maintain the Game, he shall be punished at the Suit of the King. And so if a common Person hath a Chafe in another's Soil, the Owner of the Soil cannot destroy all the Covert, but ought to leave sufficient thereof, and also Broweswood as hath been accustomed. 11 Rep. 22. And it has been adjudged, that within such a Chafe, the Owner of the Soil by Prescription may have Common for his Sheep, and Warren for his Conies; but he cannot surcharge with more than has been usual, nor make Coney-Burrows in other Places than has been used. Ibid. If a free Chafe be enclosed, it is said to be a good Cause of Seizure into the King's Hands. It is not lawful to make a Chafe, Park or Warren, without Licence from the King under the Broad Seal.

Chasor, An hunting Horse. — Dederunt mihi unum Chasorem, &c. Leg. Will. 1. cap. 22. And in another Chapter it is written Cacorem.

Chattels or Catalls, (Catalla) Comprehend all Goods moveable and immoveable, except such as are in Nature of Freehold, or Parcel of it. The Normans call moveable Goods only Chattels; but this Word by the Common Law extends to all moveable and immoveable Goods: And the Civilians denominate not only what we call Chattels, but also Land, all under Bona. But no Estate of Inheritance or Freehold, can be termed in our Law Goods and Chattels; though a Lease for Years, may pass as Goods. Chattels are either Personal or Real: Personal, as Gold, Silver, Plate, Jewels, Household-Stuff, Cattle, Corn sown on the Ground, &c. and these are called Personal in two Respects, one because they belong immediately to the Person of a Man, and the other, for that being any Way injuriously withheld from us, we have no Means to recover them but Personal Action. Chattels Real are such as either appertain not immediately to the Person, but to some other Thing by Way of Dependency, as a Box with Charters of Land, &c. or such as are issuing out of some immoveable Thing to a Person, as a Lease, or Rent for Term of Years: And Chattels Real concern the Realty, Lands and Tenements, Leases for Years, Interest in Advowsons, in Statutes-Merchant, &c. And also include Corn cut, Trees cut, &c. 1 Inst. 118. Noy's Max. 49. But Deeds relating to a Freehold, Obligations, &c. which are Things in Action, are not reckoned under such Goods and Chattels; though if Writings are pawned, they may be Chattels: And Money hath not been accounted Goods or Chattels; nor are Hawks or Hounds such, being fera Natura. 8 Rep. 33. Terms de Ley 103. Kitch. 32. Personal Estate is usually taken for Money, Goods, Bonds, Leases for Years, &c. And Chattels Personal are not only moveable and immoveable, but some are animate, as Horses, &c. and others inanimate, as Beds, &c. A Collar of SS. Garter of Gold, Buttons, &c. belonging to the Dress of a Knight of the Garter, are not Jewels to pass by that Name in Personal Estate, but Ensigns of Honour. Dyer 59. The Law will not suffer the Devise of a Personal Chattel, with a Remainder over; but a Devise of a Chattel Real, with Remainder over, hath been in some Cases adjudged good in Equity. 2 And. 185. The Use of Personal Things, such as Plate, Jewels, &c. may be given to one, and the Remainder to another; and in that Case the Property is vested in the last Devisee. Owen 33. But a Devise of the Use of Money, has been adjudged a Devise of the Money itself; and so a Devise of the Use of Books, Medals, &c. and Limitations over have been declared void. 2 Chan. Rep. 167. 1 Chan. Rep. 129. Chattels Personal are immediately upon the Death of the Testator, in the actual Possession of the Executor, as the Law will adjudge, though they are at never so great a Distance from him: Chattels Real, as Leases for Years of Houses, Lands, &c. are not in the Possession of the Executor till he makes an Entry, or hath recovered the same, except there be a Lease for Years of Tithes, where no Entry can be made. 1 Nels. Abr. 437. An Owner of Chattels is said to be possessed of them, as of Freehold the Term is that a Person is seised.

Chaumpert, A Kind of Tenure mentioned Pat. 35 Edw. 3. To the Hospital of Bowes in the Isle of Guernsey. Blount.

Chaunter, A Singer in a Cathedral. See Chanter.

Cherch-Roll, Is a Roll or Book containing the Names of such as are Attendants and in Pay to the King, or other great Personages, as their Household Servants. Stat. 19 Car. 2. cap. 1. It is otherwise called the Chequer-Roll, and seems to take its Etymology from the Exchequer. 24 Hen. 8. c. 13.

Chelindra, A Sort of Ship. — Ohligavit se Imperator ad 100 Chelindras & 50 Galeas ducendas ultra mare. Mat. Paris, Anno 1238.

Cherisetum, Any customary Oblation paid (at first in Lieu of Church-seed or Corn) to the Parish Priest or Appropriators. Cowel.

Chest, An uncertain Quantity of Merchandize, Wine, &c.

Chebage, (Chevagium, from the Fr. Chef, i. e. Caput) Is a Tribute or Sum of Money formerly paid by such as held Lands in Villenage to their Lords in Acknowledgment, and was a Kind of Head or Poll Money. Of which Bracton, lib. 1. cap. 10. says thus; Chevagium dicitur recognitio in signum Subjectionis & Domini de Capite suo. Lambard writes this Word Chivage; but it is more properly, Chiefage: That it is taken for a Sum of Money we learn by a Charter of Hen. 3. And antiently the Jews, whilst they were admitted to live in England, paid Chebage or Poll-Money to the King, as appears by Pat. 8 Edw. 1. par. 1. It seems also to be used for a Sum of Money, yearly given to a Man of Power for his Protection, as a Chief Head or Leader: But the Lord Coke says, that in this Signification, it is a great Misprision for a Subject to take Sums of Money, or other Gifts yearly of any in Name of Chebage, because they take upon them to be their Chief Heads or Leaders. Co. Lit. 140.

Chebantia, A Loan or Advance of Money upon Credit: Fr. Chavarice, Goods, Stock. — Idem Prioratus pene destructus, & possessiones sue ad plurimos terminos pro plurimis Chevanciis alienate existunt. Mon. Ang. Tom. 1. pag. 629.

Chevisance, (from the Fr. Chevir, i. e. Venir a chief de quelque chose, to come to the Head or End of a Business) Signifies an Agreement or Composition made; an End or Order set down between a Creditor and Debtor; or sometimes an indirect Gain, in Point of Usury, &c. In our Statutes it is often mentioned, and most commonly used for an unlawful Bargain or Contract. Stat. 37 Hen. 8. c. 9. 13 Eliz. cap. 5. & 8. 21 Jac. 1. c. 17. and 12 Car. 2. c. 13.

Chebitæ and Chevisæ, Heads of ploughed Lands. Novem Aras Terræ cum Cheviscis ad ipsas pertinentibus. Mon. Ang. Tom. 2. f. 116.

Chief Pledge, (Plegius vel vas Capitalis) mentioned 20 Hen. 6. cap. 8. See Borough-head and Borough-holder.

Childwit, (Sax.) Is a Fine or Penalty of a Bond-Woman unlawfully begotten with Child: Prior habeat Gersumam de Nativa sua imprægnata sine Licentia maritandi. Ex Reg. Priorat. de Cokeford. Cowel says, it signifieth a Power to take a Fine of your Bond-Woman gotten with Child without your Consent: And within the Manor of Writtel in Com. Essex, every reputed Father of a base Child, pays to the Lord for a Fine 3 s. 4 d. where it seems to extend as well to Free as Bond Women; and the Custom is there called Childwit to this Day.

Chimin, (Fr. Chemin, i. e. Via) In Law Phrase is a Way; which is of two Sorts: The King's Highway, and a private Way. The King's Highway, (Chiminus Regius) is that in which the King's Subjects, and all others under his Protection, have free Liberty to pass, though the Property of the Soil where the Way lies, belongeth to some private Person. A Private Way is that in which one Man or more have Liberty to pass through the Ground of another, by Prescription or Charter; and this is divided into Chimin in gross and Chimin appendant. Chimin in gross is where a Person holds a Way principally and solely in it self; Chimin appendant is that Way which a Man hath as appurtenant to some other Thing: As if he rent a Close or Pasture, with Covenant for Ingress and Egress, through some other Ground in which otherwise he might not pass. Kitb. 117. Co. Lit. 56. A Man may covenant for a Way thro' another Person's Ground, for himself and his Heirs, &c. so as to make Chimin in gross as it were Personal: And by purchasing a Way through the Ground of another, for such as do or shall dwell in such an House for ever, or be Owners of such a Manor, &c. Chimin appendant may be made as it were Real; but this is according to the Terms of the Civilians. Cowel. It is said a Way may not be claimed by Prescription as appendant or appurtenant to an House, because it is only an Easement and no Interest; but a Person may prescribe for a Way from his House through a certain Close, &c. to Church, though he himself hath Lands next adjoining to his said House, through which of Necessity he must first pass; for the general Prescription shall be applied only to the Lands of others. Yelv. 159. 1 Danv. Abr. 785. See Highways.

Chiminage, (Chiminagium) Is a Toll due by Custom for having a Way through a Forest; and in ancient Records it is sometimes called Pedagium. Crompt. Jurisd. 189. Co. Lit. 56. — Tellonium quod in Forestis exigebant Forestarii a Plaustris & Equis. oneris causa eo venientibus. Chart. Forest, cap. 14. Et nullus Forestarius qui non sit Forestarius de Feodo, &c. capiat Chiminagium, &c.

Chimney-Money, Otherwise called Hearth-Money, was a Duty to the Crown on Houses. By Statute 14 Car. 2. cap. 2. Every Fire-Hearth and Stove of every Dwelling and other House within England and Wales, (except such as pay not to Church and Poor) shall be chargeable with 2 s. per Annum, payable at Michaelmas and Lady-day, to the King and his Heirs, and Successors, &c. which Payment was commonly called Chimney-Money. This Tax being much complained of, as burthensome to the People, hath been long since taken off, and others imposed in its Stead; among which that on Windows of Houses, laid 7 & 8 W. 3. has by some Persons been esteemed almost equally grievous. See Euage.

Chipp, Cheap, Chipping, Signifies the Place to be a Market-Town, as Chippenham, &c. Blount.

Chimmingabel, or Cheapingavel, Toll for Buying and Selling.

Chirgemot, Chirch gemot, (Sax.) Forum Ecclesiasticum. — Quousque Chirgemot Discordantes inveniet, vel amore congreget, vel sequestret Judicio. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 8. 4 Inst. 321.

Chirograph, (Chirographum, or Scriptum Chirographatum) Any publick Instrument of Gift or Conveyance, attested by the Subscription and Crosses of Witnesses, was in the Time of the Saxons called Chirographum; which being somewhat changed in Form and Manner by the Normans, was by them stiled Charta: In following Times, to prevent Frauds and Concealments, they made their Deeds of mutual Covenant in a Script and Rescript, or in a Part and Counter-part; and in the Middle between the two Copies, they drew the Capital Letters of the Alphabet, and then talliated or cut asunder in an indented Manner, the Sheet or Skin of Parchment; which being delivered to the two Parties concerned, were proved authentick by matching with and answering to one another: And when this prudent Custom had for some Time prevailed, then the Word Chirographum was appropriated to such bipartite Writings or Indentures. Anciently when they made a Chirograph or Deed, which required a Counterpart, they ingrossed it twice upon one Piece of Parchment contrariwise, leaving a Space between, in which they wrote in great Letters the Word Chirograph; and then cut the Parchment in two, sometimes even and sometimes with Indenture, through the Middle of the Word, concluding the Deed with — In cujus rei Testimonium utraque pars mutuo scriptis presentibus, fide media sigillum suum fecit apponi. This was afterwards called Dividenda, because the Parchment was so divided or cut: And 'tis said the first Use of these Chirographs was in Henry the Third's Time. Chirograph was of Old used for a Fine; the Manner of Ingrossing whereof, and cutting the Parchment in two Pieces, is still observed in the Chirographer's Office: But as to Deeds, that was formerly called a Chirograph, which was subscribed by the proper Hand-Writing of the Vendor or Debtor, and delivered to the Vendee or Creditor: And it differed from Syngraphus, which was in this Manner, viz. Both Parties, as well the Creditor as Debtor, wrote their Names, &c. and the Sum of Money borrowed, on Paper, &c. and the Word Syngraphus in Capital Letters in the Middle; which Letters were cut in the Middle, and one Part given to each Party, that upon comparing them (if any Dispute should arise) they might put an End to the Difference. The Chirographs of Deeds have sometimes concluded thus: — Et in hujus rei Testimonium huic scripto in modum Chirographi confecto vicissim sigilla nostra apposuimus. The Chirographs were called Charta Devise, Scripta per Chirographum Divisa, Charta per Alphabetum Divisa; as the Chirographs of all Fines are at this Time. Kennet's Antiq. 177. Mon. Ang. Tom. 2. p. 94.

Chirographer of Fines, (Chirographus Finium & Concordiarum, of the Greek Χειρογραφον, a Compound of Χειρ, Manus, a Hand, and γραφω, Scribo, to write, a Writing of a Man's Hand) Signifies that Officer in the Common Pleas which ingrosseth Fines acknowledged in that Court into a perpetual Record, after they are examined and passed in the other Offices, and that writes and delivers the Indentures of them to the Party. And this Officer makes out two Indentures, one for the Buyer, another for the Seller; and also makes one other indented Piece, containing the Effect of the Fine, which he delivers to the Custos Brevium, which is called the Foot of the Fine. The Chirographer likewise, or his Deputy, proclaims all the Fines in the Court every Term, according to the Statute, and endorses the Proclamation upon the Backside of the Foot thereof; and always keeps the Writ of Covenant, and Note of the Fine. Stat. 2 Hen. 3. cap. 8. 23 Eliz. c. 3. 2 Inst. 468.

Chivalry, (Servitium Militare) Comes from the

Fr. Chevalier, i. e. Equus; and in our Law is used for a Tenure of Lands by Knights-Service, whereby the Tenant was bound to perform a Service in War unto the King, or the mesne Lord of whom he held by that Tenure. And Chivalry is either General or Special; General, where it was only in the Feoffment that the Tenant held per servitium militare, without any Specification of Serjeanty, Escuage, &c. Special, when it was declared particularly by what Kind of Knight-Service the Court was held. For the better Understanding of this Tenure, it has been observed, that there is no Land but is holden mediately or immediately of the Crown by some Service; and therefore all our Freeholds that are to us and our Heirs, are called Feuda or Feoda, Fees, as proceeding from the King, for some small yearly Rent, and the Performance of such Services as were originally laid upon the Land at the Donation thereof; for as the King gave to the great Nobles, his immediate Tenants, large Possessions for ever, to hold of him for this or that Service or Rent, so they in Time parcelled out to such others as they liked the same Lands, for Rents and Services as they thought good: And these Services were by Littleton divided into two Sorts, Chivalry and Socage; the First whereof was martial and military, the other rustical; Chivalry therefore was a Tenure of Service, whereby the Tenant was obliged to perform some noble or military Office unto his Lord, being of two Kinds, either Regal, that is held only of the King, or common, where held of a common Person: That which might be held only of the King, was called Servitium or Serjeantia, and was again divided into Grand and Petit Serjeanty; the Grand Serjeanty was where one held Lands of the King by Service, which he ought to do in his own Person, as to bear the King's Banner or Spear, to lead his Host, or to find a Man at Arms to fight, &c. Petit Serjeanty was when a Man held Lands of the King, to yield him annually some small Thing towards his Wars, as a Sword, Dagger, Bow, &c. Chivalry that might be holden of a common Person, was termed Scutagium, Escuage, that is Service of the Shield, which was either uncertain, or certain; Escuage uncertain was likewise two-fold, first, where the Tenant was bound to follow his Lord, going in Person to the King's Wars, either himself or sending a sufficient Man in his Place, there to be maintained at his Cost so long as was agreed upon between the Lord and his first Tenant, at the Granting of the Fee; and the Days of such Service seem to have been rated by the Quantity of Land so holden, as if it extended to a whole Knights-Fee, then the Tenant was to follow his Lord forty Days; and if but to Half a Knights-Fee, then twenty Days; if a fourth Part, then ten Days, &c. and the other Kind of this Escuage was called Castleward, where the Tenant was obliged by himself or some other, to defend a Castle, as often as it should come to his Turn; and these were called Escuage uncertain, because it was uncertain how often a Man should be called to follow his Lord to the Wars, or to defend a Castle, and what his Charge would be therein. Escuage certain was where the Tenant was set at a certain Sum of Money to be paid in Lieu of such Service; as that a Man should pay yearly for every Knights-Fee twenty Shillings, for Half a Knights-Fee ten Shillings, or some like Rate; and this Service, because it is drawn to a certain Rent, groweth to be of a mixt Nature, not merely Socage, and yet Socage in Effect, being now neither Personal Service nor uncertain. Littleton. The Tenure called Chivalry had other Conditions annexed to it: But there is a great Alteration made in these Things by the Statute 12 Car. 2. cap. 24. which enacts that Tenures by Knights-Service of the King, or any other Person, in Capite, &c. and the Fruits and Consequences thereof happened, or which shall or may happen or arise thereupon, or thereby, are taken away and discharged; and all Tenures shall be construed and adjudged to be free and common Socage, &c.

Ser-

Chocagium, The same with Ceppagium; Stumps of Trees, &c. In Picardy they are called Choques, with us Chucks, vulgo Chips.

Chopchurch, (Ecclesiastiarum Permutatio) Is a Word used in a Statute of King Hen. 6. by the Sense of which, it was in those Days a Kind of Trade, and by the Judges declared to be lawful: But Broke in his Abridgment says, it was only permissible by Law: It was without Doubt a Nick-name given to those that used to change Benefices; as to chop and change is a common Expression. 9 H. 6. cap. 65. Vide Litera missa omnibus Episcopis, &c. contra Choppe-Churches, Anno 1391. Spelm. de Conc. vol. 2. pag. 642.

Choral, (Choralis) Signifies any Person that by Virtue of any of the Orders of the Clergy, was in ancient Time admitted to sit and serve God in the Choir; which in Latin is Chorus: And Mr. Dugdale in his History of St. Paul's Church says, that there were formerly six Vicars Choral belonging to that Church.

Chorepiscopi, Suffragan or Rural Bishops, anciently delegated by the Prime Diocesan; their Authority was restrained by some Councils, and their Office by Degrees abolished; after whom the Rural Deans were so commissioned to exercise Episcopal Jurisdiction, till inhibited by Pope Alexander the Third. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 639.

Chose, (Fr.) A Thing, as a Thing in Action, &c. It is used in the Common Law with divers Epithets; as Chose Local, Chose Transitory, and Chose in Action. Chose Local is such a Thing as is annexed to a Place: And Chose Transitory is that Thing which is moveable, and may be taken away, or carried from Place to Place. Chose in Action is a Thing incorporeal, and only a Right; as an Annuity, Obligation for Debt, &c. And generally all Causes of Suit for any Debt or Duty, Trespas or Wrong, are to be accounted Choses in Action: And it seems Chose in Action may be also called Chose in Suspence, because it hath no real Existence or Being, nor can properly be said to be in our Possession. Bro. Tit. Chose in Action. When a Man may bring an Action for some Duty, viz. Debt upon Bond, or for Rent; or Action of Covenant, or Trespas for Goods taken away, or such like; these are Chose in Action: And as they are Things whereof a Person is not possessed, but is put to his Action for Recovery of them, they are therefore called Choses in Action. 1 Lill. Abr. 264. A Chose in Action cannot be transferred over; nor is it devisable: Nor can a Chose in Action be a Satisfaction, as one Bond cannot be pleaded to be given in Satisfaction for another; but in Equity Choses in Action may be assignable; and the King's Grant of a Chose in Action is good. Cro. Jac. 170, 371. Chanc. Rep. 169. When Bonds are assigned, it is done with Power of Attorney to receive and sue in the Assignor's Name; so that though in this Case a Chose in Action is said to be assignable over, yet it amounts to little more than a Letter of Attorney to sue for the Debt. Wood's Inst. 282. A Chose in Action, as an Obligation, &c. is not within the Statute 21 Hen. 8. concerning Larceny by Servants, in going away with or imbeziling their Master's Goods, to the Value of 40 s. And generally these are of no Use to any but the Owner. 1 Hawk. P. C. 92, 93.

Chrism, A Confection of Oil and Balsam consecrated by the Bishop, and used in the Papish Ceremonies of Baptism, Confirmation, and sometimes Ordination.

Chrismal, Chrismal, Chrism, The Face-Cloth, or Piece of Linen laid over the Child's Head at Baptism, which in ancient Times was a Perquisite due to the Parish Priest. — Mulieres sequentes debent offerre Chrismalia Infantum, nec Chrismalia debent alienari, nec in aliquos usus mitti debent, nisi in usus Ecclesie. Statut. Ægid. Episc. Salisbur. An. 1256.

Chrismatis denarii, Chrism-Pence, Money paid to the Diocesan, or his Suffragan, by the Parochial Clergy, for the Chrism consecrated by them about Easter, for the Holy Uses of the Year ensuing. This customary Payment being made in Lent near Easter, was in some Places called Quadragesimals, and in others Paschals and Easter-Pence. The Bishops Exaction of it was condemned by Pope Pius 11. for Simony and Extortion; and thereupon the Custom was released by some of our English Bishops: As Robert Bishop of Lincoln, by express Charter. — Sciatis nos remississe Clericis omnibus infra Episcopatum Lincolnensem Paschalem consuetudinem quam Chrismatis denarios vocant. — Cartular. Mon. de Berdeny. M. S. Cotton.

Christianitatis Curia, The Court Christian, or Ecclesiastical Judicature. See Court Christian.

Church, (Ecclesia) Is a Place or Building consecrated to God and Religion, or an Assembly of People met together for religious Worship; and if it hath Administration of the Sacraments and Sepulture, it is in Law adjudged a Church. If the King founds a Church, he may exempt it from the Ordinary's Jurisdiction; but 'tis otherwise in case of a Subject. The Manner of founding Churches in ancient Times was, after the Founders had made their Applications to the Bishop of the Diocese, and had his License; the Bishop or his Commissioners set up a Cross, and set forth the Church-yard where the Church was to be built; and then the Founders might proceed in the Building of the Church, and when the Church was finished, the Bishop was to consecrate it, and then and not before the Sacraments were to be administered in it. Stillingsfleet's Ecclesiast. Cases. But by the Common Law and Custom of this Realm, any Person who is a good Christian, may build a Church without Licence from the Bishop, so as it be not prejudicial to any ancient Churches; though the Law takes no Notice of it as a Church, till consecrated by the Bishop, which is the Reason why Church and no Church, &c. is to be tried and certified by the Bishop. And in some Cases, though a Church has been consecrated, it must be consecrated again; as in case any Murder, Adultery, or Fornication be committed in it, whereby it is defiled; or if the Church be destroyed by Fire, &c. The ancient Ceremonies in consecrating the Ground on which the Church was intended to be built, built, and of the Church it self after it was built, were thus : When the Materials were provided for Building, the Bishop came in his Robes to the Place, &c. and having prayed, he then perfumed the Ground with Incense, and the People sung a Collect in Praise of that Saint to whom the Church was dedicated ; then the Corner-Stone was brought to the Bishop, which he crossed, and laid for the Foundation : And a great Feast was made on that Day, or on the Saint's Day to which it was dedicated ; but the Form of Consecration was left to the Discretion of the Bishop, as it is at this Day. Some Bishops, who have consecrated Churches, on entring into them, have pronounced the Place to be holy, In the Name of the Father, &c. then with their Retinue of grave Divines, &c. went round the Church, repeating the Hundredth Psalm, and a Form of Prayer, concluding, We consecrate this Church, and set it apart to Thee, O Lord Christ, as Holy Ground, &c. After which, turning to the Communion Table, and having bowed to it several Times, they pronounced Blessings on all those who should be Benefactors, and Curses against those who should prophane that Place : And then a Sermon hath been preached, and the Sacrament administered with more than common Ceremony of Bowing, Kneeling, &c. A Church in general consists of three principal Parts, that is the Belfry or Steeple, the Body of the Church with the Isles, and the Chancel : And not only the Freehold of the whole Church, but of the Church-yard, are in the Parson or Rector ; and the Parson may have an Action of Trespass against any one that shall commit any Trespass in the Church or Church-yard ; as in breaking of Seats annexed to the Church, or the Windows, taking away the Leads, or any of the Materials of the Church, cutting the Trees in the Church-yard, &c. The Property of the Bells, Books, and other Ornaments, and of the Goods of the Church, is in the Parishioners ; but in the Custody of the Church-wardens, who may maintain Action of Trespass against such as shall wrongfully take them away. 1 Roll. Rep. 255. If a Man erect a Pew in a Church, or hang up a Bell, &c. therein, they thereby become Church Goods, though not expressly given to the Church ; and he may not afterwards remove them. Stat. 10 Hen. 4. The Parson only is to give Licence to bury in the Church ; but for defacing a Monument in a Church, &c. the Builder or Heir of the Deceased may have an Action. 2 Cro. 367. And a Man may be indicted for digging up the Graves of Persons buried, and taking away their burial Dresses, &c. The Property whereof remains in the Party who was the Owner when used, and 'tis said an Offender was found guilty of Felony in this Case, but had his Clergy. Co. Lit. 113. Though the Parson hath the Freehold of the Church, he hath not the Fee-simple, which is always in Abeyance ; but in some Respects a Parson hath a Fee-simple qualified. Litt. 644, 645. The Use of the Body of the Church, and the Seats fixed to the Freehold, is common to all the Parishioners that pay to the Repairs thereof. The Chancel of the Church is to be repaired by the Parson, unless there be a Custom to the contrary ; and for these Repairs, the Parson may cut down Trees in the Church-yard, but not otherwise. 35 Ed. 1. The Church-wardens are to see that the Body of the Church and Steeple are in Repair ; but not any Isle, &c. which any Person claims by Prescription, to him or his House : Concerning which Repairs the Canons require every Person who hath Authority to hold Ecclesiastical Visitations, to view their Churches within their Jurisdiction once in three Years, either in Person, or cause it to be done ; and they are to certify the Defects to the Ordinary, and the Names of those who ought to repair them ; and these Repairs must be done by the Church-wardens, at the Charge of the Parishioners. Can. 86. 1 Mod. 236. By the Common Law, Parishioners of every Parish are bound to repair the Church : But by the Canon Law, the Parson is obliged to do it, and so it is in foreign Countries. 1 Salk. 164. In London, the Parishioners repair both the Church and the Chancel. The Spiritual Court may compel the Parishioners to repair the Church, and excommunicate every one of them till it be repaired ; but those that are willing to contribute shall be absolved till the greater Part agree to a Tax, when the Excommunication is to be taken off ; but the Spiritual Court cannot assess them towards it. 1 Mod. 194. 1 Ventr. 367. For though this Court hath Power to oblige the Parishioners to repair by Ecclesiastical Censures, yet they cannot appoint in what Sum, or set a Rate, for that must be settled by the Church-wardens, &c. 2 Mod. 8. Where a Church is so much out of Repair, that 'tis necessary to pull it down, in such Case upon a general Warning to the Parishioners, the major Part meeting may make a Rate for pulling it down, and rebuilding it on the old Foundation, and it shall be good ; and if any Parishioner refuse to pay his Proportion, they may libel against him in the Ecclesiastical Court. 2 Mod. 222. And it is said if a Church be down, and the Parish is encreased, that the greater Part of the Parish may raise a Tax for the necessary Inlarging it as well as the Repairing thereof. 1 Mod. 237. But in some of our Books we find that if a Church falls down, the Parishioners are not obliged to rebuild it ; tho' they ought to keep it in due Repair. 1 Ventr. 35. In a Case where Church-wardens made a Rate for Repairs of the Church, it was adjudged that the Parishioners ought to assess the Rate, and they are bound to repair the Church. 1 Salk. 165. Church Rates for Repairs, are to be made by the Church-wardens and the major Part of the Parishioners, which shall bind the others, after a general Notice given ; and if the Parishioners refuse or neglect to meet, upon such Notice ; or if on Meeting they refuse to make a Rate, then the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor may make a Rate, and levy it upon the Inhabitants, being first confirmed by the Ordinary or Archdeacon. And Rates for repairing of Churches, &c. are of Ecclesiastical Cognizance ; and to be recovered in the Ecclesiastical Court : Also if a Parish is unequally rated, those who are grieved must plead it in the Spiritual Court, being sued there. 1 Ventr. 367. 2 Roll. Abr. 291. These Rates must be made upon the whole Parish, and not upon a particular Person ; and the Charge is in Respect of the Land, upon every Occupier, &c. If the Owner lives in another Parish, he shall be rated for Repairs in the Parish where the Lands lie, and not where he liveth ; for tho' the Charge is upon the Person, yet 'tis in Regard of his Lands : If he let the same by Lease, then he shall be charged in Respect of the Rent reserved, and the Farmer shall make up the Rest. One that hath Lands in a Village,

Village, but doth not inhabit there, is to contribute to the Repairs of the Parish Church. For Church Ornaments, Utensils, &c. the Charge is upon the Personal Estates of the Parishioners; and for this Reason Persons must be charged for these where they live: But tho' generally Lands ought not to be taxed for Ornaments, yet by special Custom, both Lands and Houses may be liable to it. 2 Inst. 489. Cro. Eliz. 843. Hetley 131. It has been resolved that no Man shall be charged for his Land to contribute to the Church Reckonings, if he do not reside in the same Parish. Moor 554. The Communion Tables are to be kept in Repair in Churches, and covered in Time of Divine Service with a Carpet, &c. And the Ten Commandments to be set up at the East-End of every Church or Chapel, and other chosen Sentences of Scripture upon the Walls. And at the common Charge shall be provided a strong Chest with a Hole in the upper Part thereof, having three Keys, of which one shall be kept in the Custody of the Parson, and the other two by the Church-wardens severally; which Chest is to be fixed in a proper Place in the Church, to collect the Alms for the Poor; and the Alms shall be quarterly distributed to the Poor, in the Presence of the Chief of the Parish. Can. 82, 83. By Statute, Churches not above six Pounds a Year in the King's Books, by Assent of the Ordinary, Patron and Incumbent, may be united: And in Cities and Corporations, &c. Churches may be united by the Bishop, Patrons, and Chief Magistrates, unless the Income exceeds 100 l. per Ann. and then the Parishioners are to consent, &c. 37 H. 8. cap. 21. 17 Car. 2. Fifty new Churches are to be built in or near London and Westminster, for the Building whereof a Duty is granted upon Coals, and Commissioners appointed to purchase Lands, ascertain Bounds, &c. The Rectors of which Churches shall be appointed by the Crown, and the first Church-wardens and Vestrymen, &c. are to be elected by the Commissioners. 9 Ann. cap. 22. A Minister by Ordination of Priesthood receives Authority to preach in the Church, though he is nevertheless to have a Licence from the Bishop of the Diocese, &c. If a Layman be admitted and instituted to a Benefice, and doth administer the Sacraments, marry, &c. these Acts performed by him during the Time he continues Parson in Fact, are good. 3 Cro. 775. Ministers are to declare their Assent to the Thirty-nine Articles of Religion, &c. and are bound to read Morning and Evening Prayers, on every Holiday, on the 5th of November, the 30th of January, and the 29th of May, as on the Lord's Day. And if any Minister shall use any Form of Church Service but such as in the Book of Common Prayer, &c. he shall forfeit a Year's Profit of his Living, and suffer six Months Imprisonment for the first Offence; and for the second Offence to be deprived, &c. Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2. And if a Parson in reading Prayers, stand or sit when he is appointed to kneel, or kneel when he should stand, &c. he is punishable by this Statute. If any Persons deprave the Book of Common Prayer, &c. they shall be imprisoned six Months, and forfeit 100 Marks. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 4. Every Person is to repair to his Parish Church every Sunday on Pain of forfeiting 1 s. for every Offence; and being present at any Form of Prayer used contrary to the Book of Common Prayer, is punished with six Months Imprisonment, &c.

1 Eliz. cap. 2. 23 Eliz. cap. 1. Persons above sixteen Years of Age, who absent from the Church above a Month, are to forfeit 20 l. per Month, &c. But Protestant Dissenters are exempted from Penalties, by 1 W. & M. And a Person is not so bound to go to his Parish Church, but upon reasonable Excuse he may go to another; of which Excuse the Spiritual Courts are Judges. 2 Roll. Rep. 438, 455. No Man shall cover his Head in the Church, in Time of Divine Service, except he have some Infirmary, and then with a Cap; and all Persons are to kneel and stand, &c. as directed by the Common Prayer during Service. Can. 18. No ill Language is to be used, or Noise made in Churches or Church yards; and Persons striking others there, are to be excommunicated, and lose one of their Ears: And a Man may not lawfully return Blows in his own Defence in these Cases. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 4. Disturbing Ministers officiating Divine Service, incurs three Months Imprisonment; and a Forfeiture of 20 l. By 1 M. cap. 3. and 1 W. & M. Any Person may be indicted for indecent or irreverent Behaviour in the Church; and those that offend against the Acts of Uniformity, are punishable either by Indictment upon the Statutes, or by the Ordinary, &c.

Church-wardens, (Ecclesie Guardiani) Are ancient Officers chosen yearly in Easter Week, by the Minister and Parishioners of every Parish, to look and take Care of the Church and Churchyard, and the Things belonging to the same. They are to be chose by the joint Consent of the Parishioners and Minister; and by Custom the Minister may chuse one, and the Parishioners another; or by Custom the Parishioners alone may elect both, though it be against the Canon. 1 Ventr. 267. They are to be sworn into their Offices by the Archdeacon; and if the Archdeacon refuseth to swear a Church-warden, a Mandamus shall issue to compel him. 3 Cro. 551. As the Parishioners chuse Church-wardens, who have a Trust reposed in them by the Parish as Temporal Officers, they are the proper Judges of their Ability to serve, and not the Archdeacon who swears them. 5 Mod. 325. They are a Corporation to sue and be sued for the Goods of the Church; and they may purchase Goods, but not Lands, except it be in London, by Custom. And they may have Appeal of Robbery for stealing the Goods of the Church. 1 Roll. Abr. 393. Cro. Eliz. 179. But Church-wardens cannot release to the Prejudice of the Church: Nor can they dispose of the Church Goods, without the Consent of the Vestry. If they waste the Goods of the Church, the new Church-wardens may have Actions against them, or call them to account before the Ordinary; though the Parishioners cannot have an Action against them for wasting the Church Goods, for they must make new Church-wardens, who must prosecute the former, &c. 1 Danv. Abr. 788. 1 Cro. 145. Bro. Account 1. The Church-wardens are to take Care of the Repairs of the Church; and if they erect, or add any Thing new to the same, they must have the Consent of the Parishioners or Vestry; and if in the Church, the Licence of the Ordinary. 2 Inst. 489. 1 Ventr. 367. They have with Consent of the Minister, the Placing the Parishioners in the Seats of the Body of the Church, Appointing Gallery-keepers, &c. reserving to the Ordinary a Power to correct the same: And in London, by Custom, the Church-wardens have this Authority in themselves. Particular Persons may prescribe to have a Seat, as belonging to them by Reason of their Estates, as being an ancient Messuage, &c. and the Seats having been constantly repaired by them: Also one may prescribe to an Isle in the Church, to sit and bury there, always repairing the same. 3 Inst. 202. 2 Cro. 366. If the Ordinary displaces a Person claiming a Seat in a Church by Prescription, a Prohibition shall be granted, &c. 12 Rep. 106. Church-wardens are to see that all the Parishioners duly resort to their Parish Church, and there continue during the Time of Divine Service: They are not to permit any to stand idle, walk, or make any Noise in the Church, or to contend for Places, &c. they may apprehend those who disturb the Minister, &c. and justify the Appealing any Disorder in the Church or Church-yard; they are to chastise disorderly Boys, and take off the Hats of those who would irreverently keep them on. 1 Saund. 13. Further they must search Ale-houses on Sundays, that there be no Persons therein, during the Divine Service; and execute Warrants against such who profane the Lord's Day, &c. Also levy Penalties on Persons not coming to Church, against Profaners of the Sabbath in Pastimes, Tipling, &c. and for Drunkenness, Cursing and Swearing, &c. by divers Statutes. And they are to present to the Ordinary, &c. all Things presentable by the Ecclesiastical Laws, which relate to the Church, the Parson and Parishioners; what relates to the Church is chiefly of Repairs; and of the Parson and Parishioners their Duty, the first in reading Prayers, Preaching, administering the Sacraments, &c. and the last, in coming to Church, and duly attending the Worship of God: They must likewise present Crimes and Offences, such as Drunkenness, Incest, Blasphemy, &c. and by Statute Popish Recusants: And if they refuse to make Presentments, the Parsons or Vicars, &c. may present to the Bishop all Crimes committed in their Parishes. 3 Cro. 291. 1 Ventr. 114. At the End of the Year, the Church-wardens are to yield just Accounts to the Minister and Parishioners, and deliver what remains in their Hands to the Parishioners, or to the new Church-wardens: In case they refuse, they may be presented at the next Visitation, or the new Officers may by Process call them to Account before the Ordinary, or sue them by Writ of Account at Common Law. And if all the Parish have allowed their Accounts of the Church Goods, the Ordinary may nevertheless call them to Account before him too, and punish them if he find Cause; but in laying out their Money, they are punishable for Fraud only, not Indiscretion. If their Receipts fall short of their Disbursements, the succeeding Church-wardens must pay them the Ballance, and place it to their Account. 1 Roll. Abr. 121. Can. 89, 109, &c. Disputes arising about Church-wardens Accounts, are to be decided before the Ordinary: And for Disbursements of any Sum not exceeding 40 s. the Church-wardens Oath alone is a sufficient Proof; but for all Sums above, Receipts are to be produced, &c. Beside their ordinary Power, the Church-wardens have the Care of the Benefice during its Vacancy; and as soon as there is any Avoidance, they are to apply to the Chancellor of the Diocese for a Sequestration; which being granted, they are to manage all the Profits and Expences of the Benefice for him that succeeds, plough and sow his Glebes, gather in Tithes, thrash out and sell Corn, repair Houses, &c. and they are to see that the Church be duly served by a Curate approved by the Bishop, whom they are to pay out of the Profits of the Benefice. 2 Inst. 489. And they are to join with the Overseers of the Poor, in making Rates for Relief of the Poor, setting up Trades for employing them, placing out poor Apprentices, settling poor Persons, &c. And in the Execution of their whole Office, by Statutes 43 Eliz. 14 Car. 2. 3 & 4 W. & M. &c. It is their Duty to collect the Charity Money upon Briefs, which are to be read in Churches, and the Sums collected, &c. to be indorsed on the Briefs in Words at Length, and signed by the Minister and Church-wardens; after which, they shall be delivered with the Money collected to the Persons undertaking them, in a certain Time, under the Penalty of 20 l. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. They are to sign Certificates of receiving the Sacrament, by Persons to qualify them to bear Offices, &c. And in London and within the Bills of Mortality, they must fix Fire-Cocks, keep Engines, &c. in their Parishes, under the Penalty of 10 l. For the Maintenance whereof, the Parish is to be assessed. Stat. 6 & 7 Ann. There may be select Vestries elected in Parishes to make Rates, and take the Church-wardens Accounts, &c. But those that do not pay to any Church Rates have no Votes, except the Parson or Vicar. See Church.

Church-Reeve, Is the same with Church-warden, (Reve in the Sax. being as much as Guardian in the French) the Guardian or Overseer of the Church: As Shire-Reeve is the Guardian of the Shire, &c. though afterwards it became a Name of Office: The Word is now out of Use, but is mentioned by Chaucer on the Jurisdiction of Archdeacons, viz.

Of Church-Reves, and of Testaments,
Of Contracts, and of Lack of Sacraments.

Churcheslet, or Chirchset, A Saxon Word used in Domesday, which is interpreted Quasi semen Ecclesia, Corn paid to the Church. Eleta says, it signifies a certain Measure of Wheat, which in Times past every Man on St. Martin's Day gave to Holy Church, as well in the Times of the Britains as of the English; yet many great Persons after the Coming of the Romans, gave that Contribution according to the ancient Law of Moses, in the Name of First-Fruits; as in the Writ of King Canutus sent to the Pope is particularly contained, in which they call that Contribution Chirch-fed, as one would say Church-feed. Selden's Hist. Tithes, pag. 216.

Church-scot, Customary Oblations paid to the Parish Priest; from which Duty the Religious sometimes purchased an Exemption. Cowel.

Churle, Ceorle, Carl, Was in the Saxon Time a Tenant at Will; of free Condition, who held some Land of the Thanes, on Conditions of Rents and Services: Which Ceorles were of two Sorts; one that hired the Lord's Out-Land or tenementary Estate, like our Farmers; the other that tilled and manured the Inland or Demesnes, (yielding Work and not Rent) and were thereupon called his Sockmen or Ploughmen. Spelm.

Cinque Ports, (Quinque Portus) Are those special Havens that lie towards France, and therefore have been thought by our Kings to be such as ought to be vigilantly guarded and preserved against against Invasion: In which Respect they have an especial Governor called Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, and divers Privileges granted them, as a peculiar Jurisdiction; their Warden having not only the Authority of an Admiral among them, but sending out Writs in his own Name, &c. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 48. 4 Inst. 222. Camden tells us, that Kent is accounted the Key of England; and that William, called the Conqueror, was the first who made a Constable of Dover Castle, and Warden of the Cinque Ports, which he did to bring that Country under a stricter Subjection to his Government; but King John was the first who granted the Privileges to those Ports, which they still enjoy: However it was upon Condition that they should provide a certain Number of Ships at their own Charge for forty Days, as often as the King should have Occasion for them in the Wars, he being then under a Necessity of having a Navy for passing into Normandy, to recover that Dukedom which he had lost. And this Service the Barons of the Cinque Ports acknowledged and performed, upon the King's Summons, attending with their Ships the Time limited at their proper Costs, and staying as long after as the King pleased at his own Charge. Somner of Rom. Ports in Kent. The Cinque Ports, as we now account them, are Dover, Sandwich, Rumney, Winchelsea and Rye; and to these we may add Hythe and Hastings, which are reckoned as Part or Members of the Cinque Ports: Tho' by the first Institution, it is said that Winchelsea and Rye, were added as Members, and that the others were the Cinque Ports; there are also several other Towns adjoining that have the Privileges of the Ports. These Cinque Ports have certain Franchises; and the King's Writs do not run there: But on a Judgment in any of the King's Courts, if the Defendant hath no Lands or Goods but in the Ports; the Plaintiff may get the Record certified into Chancery, and from thence sent by Mittimus to the Lord Warden, to make Execution. 4 Inst. 223. 3 Leon. 3. The Constable of Dover Castle, is Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports: And there are several Courts within the Cinque Ports; one before the said Constable, others within the Ports themselves, before the Mayors and Jurats; another which is called Curia quinque Portuum apud Shepway: There is also a Court of Chancery in the Cinque Ports, to decide Matters of Equity; but no original Writs issue thence. 1 Danv. Abr. 793. The Jurisdiction of the Cinque Ports is general, as well to Personal, as Real and mix'd Actions. And if any erroneous Judgment is given in the Cinque Ports before any of the Mayors and Jurats, Writ of Error lies not in B. R. but it shall be redressed, according to the Custom, by Bill in Nature of a Writ of Error, coram Domino Custode seu Guardiano quinque Portuum apud Curiam suam, &c. And in these Cases the Mayor and Jurats may be fined, and the Mayor removed, &c. 4 Inst. 224. Crompt. Jurisd. 138. Though in the Cinque Ports the King's Writs do not run, yet they are not Fura Regalia, like Counties Palatine, but are Parcel of the County of Kent: So that if a Writ be brought against one for Land within the Cinque Ports, and he appears and pleads to it, and Judgment is given against him in the Common Pleas, this Judgment shall bind him; for the Land is not exempted out of the County, and the Tenant may waive the Benefit of his Privilege. Wood's Inst. 519. The Cinque Ports cannot award

Process of Outlawry. Cro. Eliz. 910. And a Quo Minus lies to the Cinque Ports. Ibid. 911. If a Man is imprisoned at Dover by the Lord Warden, an Habeas Corpus may be issued; for the Privilege that the King's Writ lies not there is intended between Party and Party, and there can be no such Privilege against the King; and an Habeas Corpus is a Prerogative Writ, by which the King commands an Account of the Liberty of the Subject. Cro. Jac. 543. 1 Nelf. Abr. 447. Certiorari lies to the Cinque Ports to remove Indictments, and the Jurisdiction that Brev. Dom. Regis non currit there, is only in Civil Causes between Party and Party: But this has been held to extend only to Indictments before the Mayors; Barons, &c. as Justices of Peace, on late Statutes, &c. Cro. Car. 252, 253. 2 Hawk. P. C. 286, 287.

Cippus, A Pair of Stocks. — Habeant, necnon Cippos & conclusoria in singulis Villis, ad Correctionem Delinquentium. Mon. Ang. Par. 2. fol. 349.

Circada, A Tribute anciently paid to the Bishop or Archdeacon for visiting the Churches. Du Fresne.

Circuit, or Circuitry of Action, (Circuitus Actionis) Is a longer Course of Proceeding to recover a Thing sued for than is needful: As if a Person grant a Rent-charge of 10*l.* per Annum out of his Manor of B. and after the Grantee disseiseth the Grantor of the same Manor, who brings an Assise, and recovers the Land, and 20*l.* Damages; which being paid, the Grantee brings his Action for 10*l.* of his Rent due during the Time of the Disseisin, which he must have had if no Disseisin had been: This is called Circuitry of Action, because as the Grantor was to receive 20*l.* Damages, and pay 10*l.* Rent, he might have received but 10*l.* only for Damages, and the Grantee might have kept the other 10*l.* in his Hands by Way of Retainer for his Rent, and so saved his Action, which appears to be needless. Terms de Ley 128. This Example shews that an Action may be rightfully brought for a Debt or Duty, and yet be wrong; for that it might have been as well otherwise answered and determined.

Circumspecte Agatis, Is the Title of a Statute made Ann. 13 Edw. 1. relating to Prohibitions, prescribing certain Cases to the Judges wherein the King's Prohibition lies not. 2 Inst. 487.

Circumstantibus, By-Standers; and signifies in our Law the Supply or making up the Number of Furors, if any impanelled appear not, or appearing are challenged by either Party, by adding to them so many of those that are present or standing by that are qualified as will serve the Turn. Stat. 35 H. 8. cap. 6. The Act of Supplying is usually called a Tales de Circumstantibus. See Tales.

Citation, (Citatio) A Summons to appear, applied particularly to Process in the Spiritual Court. The Ecclesiastical Courts proceed according to the Course of the Civil and Canon Laws, by Citation, Libel, &c. A Person is not generally to be cited to appear out of the Diocese where he lives, unless it be by the Archbishop, in Default of the Ordinary, where the Ordinary dinary is Party to the Suit, in Cases of Appeal, &c. And by Law a Defendant may be sued where he lives, though 'tis for substracting Tithes in another Diocese; but it has been made a Quare as to local Tithes. 1 Nelf. 449. By the Stat. 23 Hen. 8. cap. 9. Every Archbishop may cite any Person dwelling in any Bishop's Diocese within his Province for Heresy, &c. if the Bishop or other Ordinary consents; or if the Bishop or Ordinary, or Judge, do not his Duty in punishing the Offence. Where Persons are cited out of their Diocese, and live out of the Jurisdiction of the Bishop, a Prohibition or Consultation may be granted: But where Persons live in the Diocese, if when they are cited they do not appear, they are to be excommunicated, &c.

Citatio ad instantiam Partis, Is mentioned in 22 & 23 Car. 2. for laying Impositions on Proceedings at Law.

City, (Civitas) By Cowel is a Town Corporate, which hath a Bishop and Cathedral Church, which is called Civitas, Oppidum and Urbs; Civitas, in Regard it is governed by Justice and Order of Magistracy; Oppidum, for that it contains a great Number of Inhabitants; and Urbs, because it is in due Form begirt about with Walls. But Crompton in his Jurisdictions, where he reckons up the Cities, leaveth out Ely, although it hath a Bishop and Cathedral Church; and puts in Westminster, though it hath at present no Bishop: And Sir Edward Coke makes Cambridge a City, yet there is no Mention that it ever was an Episcopal Sec. Indeed it appears by the Stat. 35 H. 8. cap. 10. that there was a Bishop of Westminster; since which, by 27 Eliz. cap. 5. it is termed a City, or Borough: And notwithstanding what the Lord Coke observes of Cambridge, by the Stat. 11 H. 7. cap. 4. Cambridge is called only a Town. Kingdoms have been said to contain so many Cities as they have Seats of Archbishops and Bishops: But according to Blount, City is a Word which hath obtained since the Conquest; for in the Time of the Saxons there were no Cities, but all great Towns were called Burghs, and even London was then stiled Lunden-Burgh; as the Capital of Scotland is now called Edinburgh. And long after the Conquest the Word City is used promiscuously with Burgh, as in the Charter of Leicester 'tis called both Civitas and Burgus; which shews that those Writers were mistaken, that tell us every City was or is a Bishop's See: And tho' the Word City signifies with us such a Town Corporate as hath usually a Bishop and Cathedral Church; yet 'tis not always so.

Civil Law, Is defined to be that Law which every particular Nation, Common-wealth or City, has established peculiarly for it self: Jus Civile est, quod quisque Populus sibi constituit. But more strictly the Civil Law is that which the old Romans used, compiled from the Laws of Nature and of Nations. The twelve Tables were also the Foundation of this Law; which for its great Wisdom is as it were the Common Law, or the Foundation of it, in all well-governed Kingdoms, a very few only excepted; and no other Laws are esteemed comparable to it for its Equity. The Civil Law is either written or unwritten; and the written Law is Publick or Private: Publick, which immediately regards the State of the Common-wealth, as the Enacting and Execution of Laws; Consultations about War and Peace, Establishment of Things relating to Religion, &c. Private, that more immediately has Respect to the Concerns of every particular Person. The unwritten Law is Custom introduced by the tacit Consent of the People only, without any particular Establishment: The Authority of it is great, and it is equal with a written Law, if it be wholly uninterrupted, and of a long Continuance. The whole Civil Law is contained in four Books or Tomes, 1. The Code. 2. The Pandects or Digests. 3. The Institutes. 4. The Novels or Authenticks. The Code is divided into twelve Books, and was the first Book of the Civil Law which the Emperor Justinian ordered to be collected: It was published in the Year 529 and contains the Constitutions, &c. of fifty-six Emperors, and their wise Councils. The first Book of it treats of Religion, Priests, &c. Other Books are upon Trade, Merchandize, the Exchequer, &c. The Digest or Pandects, was collected from the Works and Commentaries of the ancient Lawyers, some whereof lived before the Coming of our Saviour: This Tome is divided into fifty Books; and upon a more particular Division, the whole Digest is divided into seven Parts: The first Part contains the Elements of the Law, as what is Justice, Right, &c. The second Part treats of Judges and Judgment: The third Part, of personal Actions, &c. The fourth Part, of Contracts, Pawns and Pledges: The fifth Part, of Wills, Testaments, &c. The sixth Part, of the Possession of Goods: The seventh Part of Obligations, Crimes, Punishments, &c. The Institutes, contain a System of the whole Body of Law, and are an Epitome of the Digest divided into four Books; but sometimes they correct the Digest: They are called Institutes, because they are of Instruction, and shew an easy Way to the obtaining a Knowledge of the Civil Law: But they are not so distinct and comprehensive as they might be, nor so useful at this Time as they were at first. The Novels or Authenticks were published at several Times without any Method: They are termed Novels as they are new Laws, and Authenticks being authentically translated from the Greek into the Latin Tongue; and the whole Volume is divided into nine Collations, Constitutions or Sections, and they again into 168 Novels, which also are distributed into certain Chapters: The first Collation relates to Heirs, Executors, &c. The second, the State of the Church: The third is against Bawds: The fourth concerns Marriages, &c. The fifth forbids the Alienation of the Possessions of the Church: The sixth shews the Legitimacy of Children, &c. The seventh determines who shall be Witnesses: The eighth ordains Wills to be good, though imperfect, &c. And the ninth contains Matter of Succession in Goods, &c. To these Tomes of the Civil Law we may add the Book of Feuds, which contains the Customs and Services that the Subject or Vassal doth to his Prince or Lord, for such Lands or Fees as he holdeth of him. The Constitutions of the Emperor, are either by a Rescript, which is the Letter of the Emperor in Answer to particular Persons who enquire the Law of him; or by Edict, which the Emperor establishes of his own Accord, that it may be generally observed by every Subject; or by Decree, which the Emperor pronounces between Plaintiff and Defendant, upon hearing a particular Cause. The Power of issuing forth Rescripts, Edicts and Decrees, was given to the Prince by the Lex Regia, wherein the People of Rome

Rome wholly submitted themselves to the Government of one Person, viz. Julius Caesar, after the Defeat of Pompey, &c. And by this Submission, the Prince could not only make Laws, but was esteemed above all coercive Power of them. The Matters wherein the whole Civil Law is exercised, relate either to Persons in the Commonwealth; or the Things belonging or not belonging to them; or the Actions whereby Men claim such Things as are due to them by the Law, &c. The Civil Law is allowed in this Kingdom in the two Universities, for the Training up of Students, &c. In Matters of foreign Treaties between Princes; marine Affairs Civil and Criminal; in the Ordering of Martial Causes; the Judgments of Ensigns and Arms; Rights of Honour, &c. Vide my Treatise of Laws, p. 243, 396.

Clades, Clida, Cleta, Cleia, from the Brit. Clie, and the Irish Clia, A Wattle or Hurdle; and a Hurdle for penning or folding of Sheep, is still in some Counties of England called a Cley. Paroch. Antiq. p. 575.

Claretum, A Liquor made of Wine and Honey, clarified or made clear by Decoction, &c. which the Germans, French and English called Hippocras: And it was from this, the Red Wines of France were called Claret. — Ad hac etiam in tanta abundantia vinum hic videas, & ficeram, Pigmentum, & Claretum, mustum & medonem. Girald. Cambr. apud Wharton. Angl. Sac. Par. 2. p. 480.

Claim, (Clameum) Is a Challenge of Interest in any Thing that is in the Possession of another, or at least out of a Man's own; as Claim by Charter, by Descent, &c. Where any Thing is wrongfully detained from a Person, this Claim is to be made; and the Party making it, may thereby avoid Descents of Lands, Disseisins, &c. and preserve his Title which otherwise would be in Danger of being lost. Co. Lit. 250. A Man which hath present Right or Title to enter, must make a Claim; and in case of Reversions, &c. one may make a Claim where he hath Right, but cannot enter on the Lands: When a Person dares not make an Entry on Land, for Fear of being beaten or other Injury, he may approach as near as he can to the Land, and claim the same; and it shall be sufficient to vest the Seisin in him. 1 Inst. 25. If a Fine is levied of Lands, Strangers to it are to enter and make a Claim within five Years, or be barred: Infants after their Age, Feme Coverts after the Death of their Husbands, &c. have the like Time, by Stat. 1 R. 3. cap. 7. If a Disseisor levy a Fine, and the Disseisee enters his Claim in the Record of the Foot of the Fine, this is not such a Claim as shall avoid the Statute. 4 Hen. 7. cap. 24. 1 Lill. Abr. 270. See the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. and Continual Claim.

Claim of Liberty, Is a Suit or Petition to the King in the Court of Exchequer, to have Liberties and Franchises confirmed there by the King's Attorney General. Co. Ent. 93.

Clamea admittenda in Jure per Attornatum, A Writ by which the King commands the Justices in Eyre to admit a Person's Claim by Attorney who is employed in the King's Service, and cannot come in his own Person. Reg. Orig. 19.

Clap-board, Is Board cut in order to make Cask or Vessels; it is mentioned 35 Eliz. c. 11.

Clarigarius Armozum, An Herald at Arms. Blount.

Claris, A Trumpet. Statimque clangebant Clariones & Tuba. Knighton, Anno 1346.

Classarius, A Seaman, or Soldier serving at Sea. — Omnesque ejus Capitaneos, Milites & Classarios, &c. Chart. Carol. 5. Imperator. Thomæ Comit. furr. dat. in Urbe Londinensi, 8 Junii 1522.

Claud, (Brit.) A Ditch: Claudere, to enclose, or turn open Fields into Enclosures. — Dedi & concessi totam culturam ad Claudendum & faciendum quicquid inde dictis Canonicis placuerit. Paroch. Antiq. 236.

Claves Insulæ, Is a Term used in the Isle of Man, where all ambiguous and weighty Cases are referred to twelve Persons, whom they call Claves Insulæ; i. e. the Keys of the Island.

Clavia. In the Inquisition of Serjeanties in the 12th and 13th Years of King John, within the Counties of Essex and Hertford; Boydin Aylet tenet quatuor libr. terre in Bradwell, per manum Willielmi de Done per Serjeantiam Claviæ, viz. By the Serjeancy of the Club or Mace. Brady's Append. Introduct. to Eng. Hist. 22.

Clavigeratus, A Treasurer of a Church. — Aliter Willielmus Wallingford Clavigeratus. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 184.

Clause Rolls, (Rotuli Clausi) Contain all such Matters of Record as were committed to close Writs: These Rolls are preserved in the Tower.

Claustura, Brushwood for Hedges and Fences, or an Inclosure. King Hen. 3. gave to the Prior and Canons of Chetwode, quinque carucatus Chauteræ ad predicta terra Clausturam sustinendam. Paroch. Antiq. 247. This Sort of Wood is in many Parts of England called Teenage, from Sax. Tynan, to enclose or shut; whence to tine the Door, is understood to shut the Door; but this Word hath another vulgar Signification, as to tine a Candle, &c.

Clausum fregit, Signifies in our Law as much as Action of Trespass; and it is a Writ so called, because the Defendant is summoned thereby to answer Quare Clausum fregit of the Plaintiff, that is why he did such a Trespass. It is the Course of the Common Pleas, to declare in Actions (especially upon an Assumpsit or the like) upon a Quare Clausum fregit, as they do on a Latitat in the King's Bench. 2 Ventr. 192, 259. But by the Lord Clarendon's Orders in Chancery, Curstors of that Court are not to make Writs of Clausum fregit, &c. in London, without special Warrant from the Lord Chancellor, or Master of the Rolls, unless it appear by Affidavit that the same is the proper Cause of Action, &c. In C. B. a Pone in Trespass, (and here the Proceedings are by Præcipe or Pone) is made out thus: Wilts ff. Si A. B. fec. &c. tunc Pone C. D. nuper de, &c. de Placito quare Vi & Armis Clausum & Domum ipsius A. fregit & alia Enormia ei intulit, Ad grave Dampn. ipsius A. Et contra pacem, &c. This is delivered to the Filizer of the County to draw out the Capias, &c. And Debt may be added to it, viz. Pone, &c. C. D. nuper de, &c. in Com. tuo Clausum freg. apud, &c. Ac etiam in Debito pro 50 l. &c.

Clergy, (Clerus) Is taken for the whole Number of those who are De Clero Domini, of our Lord's Lot or Share, as the Tribe of Levi was in Judea; and are separate from the Noise and Bustle of the World, that they may have Leisure to spend their Time in heavenly Meditation and Prayer. And sometimes Clergy is used for a Plea to an Indictment of Felony, &c. being an ancient Privilege of the Church, where a Priest or one in Orders is arraigned of Felony, before a secular Judge, who may pray his Clergy; which is as much as if he prayed to be delivered to his Ordinary, to purge himself of the Offence objected against him. Staufd. P. C. lib. 2. c. 41: Anciently the Clergy strongly insisted that by the Law of God, their Persons were so sacred that they could not, without a Violation of that Law, be convened before, and much less be punished by any secular Judge; but it hath been observed that this is not warranted by Scripture: Though all Persons in Holy Orders have this Privilege from the Canon Law. 2 Hawk. P. C. 337. As to the Clergy in general, they are Regular or Secular: Those are Regular, which live under certain Rules, and are of some religious Order, and are called Men of Religion, or the Religious: Such are all Abbots, Priors, Monks, &c. The Secular, are those who live not under any certain Rules of the Religious Orders; as Bishops, Deans, Parsons, Vicars, &c. And although the Clergy claim an Exemption from all secular Jurisdiction, yet Mat. Paris tells us, that soon after William the First had conquered Harold, he subjected the Bishopricks and Abbeyes who held per Baroniam (and who till then were exempted from all secular Service) that they should be no longer free from military Service; and for that Purpose he in an arbitrary Manner registred how many Soldiers every Bishoprick and Abbey should provide, and send to him and his Successors in Time of War; and having placed these Registers of Ecclesiastical Servitude in his Treasury, those who were aggrieved, departed out of the Realm: But the Clergy were not till then exempted from secular Service; because by the Laws of King Edgar they were bound to obey the secular Magistrate in three Cases, viz. Upon any Expedition of the Wars, and to contribute to the Building and Repairing of Bridges, and of Castles for the Defence of the Kingdom. 'Tis probable that by Expedition to the Wars, it was not at that Time intended they should personally serve, but contribute towards the Charge: One they must do; as appears by the Petition to the King, Anno 1267, viz. Ut omnes Clerici tenentes per Baroniam vel feudum laicum, personaliter armati procederent contra Regios Adversarios, vel tantum servitium in Expeditione Regis invenirent, quantum pertineret ad tantam terram vel Tenementum. But their Answer was, That they ought not to fight with the Military, but with the Spiritual Sword, that is with Prayers and Tears; that they were to maintain Peace, and not War; and that their Baronies were founded in Charity, for which Reason they ought not to perform any military Service.

Blount. That the Clergy had greater Privileges and Exemptions at Common Law than the Laity is certain; for they are confirmed to them by Magna Charta, and other ancient Statutes: But these Privileges are in a great Measure lost, the Clergy being included under general Words in later Statutes; so that Clergymen are liable to all publick Charges imposed by Act of Parliament, where they are not particularly excepted. Indeed they are not at this Day to undergo temporal Offices, as the Office of Sheriff, Constable, &c. (though they are sometimes in the Commission of the Peace, in which Commission they may either act as Justices, or not act at their Pleasure) nor are they to serve on Juries, or obliged to appear at Turns and Leets; or to be pressed to serve in the Wars in Person, although by Statutes they are compellable to contribute to the Charge of a War, and to Musters of the Militia: Their Bodies are not to be taken upon Statutes Merchant or Staple, &c. for the Writ to take the Body of the Conusor is Si laicus sit; and if the Sheriff or any other Officer arrest a Clergyman upon any such Process, it is said an Action of false Imprisonment lies against him that does it, or the Clergyman arrested may have a Superfedeas out of the Chancery. In Action of Trespass, Account, &c. against a Person in Holy Orders, wherein Process of Capias lies, if the Sheriff return that the Defendant is Clericus Beneficiatus nullum habens Laicum feudum ubi Summoneri potest; in this Case the Plaintiff cannot have a Capias to arrest his Body; but the Writ ought to issue to the Bishop to compel him to appear, &c. But on Execution had against such Clergyman, a Sequestration shall be had of the Profits of his Benefice. Clergymen may not be arrested in the Church, or Church-yard, while attending on Divine Service, &c. upon Pain of Imprisonment, and Ransom at the King's Pleasure, and likewise to make Agreement with the Party: And he that beats a Clergyman, may be obliged to do Penance in the Spiritual Court. But these are all the Privileges remaining on civil Accounts: Though by the Common Law, they were to be free from the Payment of Tolls, in all Fairs and Markets, as well for all the Goods gotten upon their Church Livings, as for all Goods and Merchandizes by them bought to be spent upon their Rectories; and they had several other Exemptions, &c. These Privileges, for the most Part, have been allowed the Clergy, that they might with the more Freedom attend the Service of God and Religion, and be respected as they ought; and therefore they are not to undertake any secular Business, by which they may be diverted from their Duty, or be brought into Contempt. They are used like other Men in criminal Cases; except as to Burning in the Hand for Felony, from which upon producing of their Orders, or the Ordinary's Certificate they ought to be freed: And though they have had the Privilege of the Clergy for a Felony, yet they may again have their Clergy, and so cannot a Layman. But see Stat. 28 H. 8. c. 1. In ancient Times Clergymen convicted of Crimes, were delivered over to the Ordinary, to be punished by the Ecclesiastical Laws; but this Privilege is long since abolished, nor was it ever allowed in Treason or Sacrilege. Wood's Inst. 24. Parson's Counc. 145, &c. 2 Inst. 4, 58, &c.

Benefit of Clergy, I have already said is an ancient Privilege of the Church, where one in Orders ders claimed to be delivered to his Ordinary to purge himself of a Felony. And this Purgation was to be by his own Oath affirming his Innocency, and the Oaths of twelve Compurgators as to their Belief of it, before a Jury of twelve Clerks: If the Clerk failed in his Purgation, he was deprived of his Character, whereby he became a meer Layman, or he was to be kept in Prison till a Pardon was obtained. But if he purged himself, he was set at Liberty. Sometimes the Delivery to the Ordinary was without Purgation, as upon Attainder by Confession of the Felony, or by Verdict, where the Felony was notorious, and then the Clerk was to be degraded, or kept in Prison by the Ordinary, &c. though in these Cases the Ordinaries would frequently proceed to Purgation. But Purgation is now taken away by Stat. 18. Eliz. cap. 7. Which enacts that where an Offender is admitted to his Clergy, after Burning in the Hand, he shall not be delivered to his Ordinary, but shall be enlarged by the Court, &c. And the Benefit of Clergy, and Burning in the Hand, comes in the Place of Purgation at Common Law. In ancient Times in the King's Courts where Felonies were determined, the Bishop or his Deputy were to attend to inform the Court whether the Felon could read as a Clerk or not; but the Court was still to judge of his Sufficiency. Since the Stat. 18 Eliz. Every Man to whom Benefit of Clergy is granted, hath been put to read at the Bar after found guilty, and convicted of the Felony, and so burnt in the Hand, and set free for the first Time, if the Ordinary's Commissioner or Deputy standing by did say, — Legit ut Clericus; or otherwise he was to be hanged. But Reading at last, as well as Purgation, is wholly laid aside; for by the 5 Ann. c. 6. if any Person convicted of such Felony, for which he ought to have the Benefit of the Clergy, doth pray the Benefit of this Act, he shall not be required to read, but shall be punished as a Clerk convicted. A Lord of Parliament shall have the Benefit of his Clergy, though he cannot read, without Burning in the Hand, for the first Time only; And the King may Pardon the Burning of the Hand in others; which is not so much in Nature of a Punishment, as a Mark to notify that the Person may have his Clergy but once. The Privilege of Clergy is said to have its Beginning from an Encroachment of the Pope upon the temporal Power, in Behalf of the Clergy, whom he endeavoured to exempt from the Jurisdiction of lay Judges in case of Life and Member; which the temporal Courts would not yield to, but only in Part: And first they would indict Clerks for Felony, as well as others, and proceed thereon until the Ordinary did demand them; and if the Ordinary would not demand them, the King's Courts proceeded to Conviction, Attainder and Execution; and if the Ordinary did claim Clerks before Conviction, then an Inquisition was taken, whether the Party was guilty or not; and if acquitted, was discharged, but if found Guilty, then delivered to the Ordinary, &c. The Privilege so restrained was confirmed and established by the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 2. And allowed by divers Acts of Parliament since that Time: And though at first the Clergy never intended that any should have that Privilege, but those who were in Holy Orders, yet afterwards they extended it to those who were not strictly in Orders, but were Assistants to them in doing Divine Offices. As to Laymen being admitted to this Privilege, it hath been observed that in those Days few were bred to Literature, but those who were actually in Orders, or educated for that Purpose; and therefore the Way of Trial whether one was a Clerk or no, was by reading, of which the Court was Judge; for if he could not read, the Court would not deliver him as a Clerk, tho' the Ordinary did claim him; and if he did read, he should be allowed as a Clerk, though the Ordinary refused him: And Reading being the Way of Trial, whether a Man were a Clerk or not, without further Examination into any other Qualification, by an equitable Construction of the Statutes that established and extended this Privilege, all Persons that so approved themselves by reading, were allowed to be Clerks. Linwood 92, 100. Kel. 180. It appears by our Books that Laymen that could read ever had the Privilege of Clergy since the 25 Ed. 3. which Allowance never was condemned in Parliament, or complained of as a Grievance, but rather approved of: And by the Stat. 18 Eliz. every Person as well Lay as Spiritual, hath a Right to the Benefit of that Statute, for the first Offence, in the same Manner as Clergymen. Ibid. Though it was anciently the usual Method for the Ordinary to demand the Criminal as his Clerk, before the Court allowed him the Benefit of his Clergy; yet there was no Necessity for such Demand, but the Court might without it admit a Person to the Benefit of Clergy, on sufficient Evidence of his being a Clerk, as upon producing Letters of Orders, or reading as a Clerk, &c. except he appeared to have been guilty of Sacrilege, or of breaking of Prison of the Ordinary, in which Cases it is said to have been at the Discretion of the Ordinary, whether he should have his Clergy or not: And as there is no Necessity that the Ordinary should demand the Benefit of the Clergy for a Clerk; so neither is there any that the Prisoner himself should demand it, where it sufficiently appears to the Court that he hath a Right to it, in Respect of his being in Orders, &c. In which Case; if the Prisoner does not demand it, it is left to the Discretion of the Judge, whether he will allow it him or not. 2 Hawk. P. C. 359. Those who demand the Benefit of Clergy, are to plead, and put themselves upon Trial; but after a Clerk hath put himself upon Trial, and the Inquest are charged with him, some Writers tell us that he may, if he desire it, be admitted to his Clergy before the Jury come back; and shall not forfeit his Goods, unless they find him Guilty. Ibid. 358. This Claim of Clergy might formerly be made upon Arraignment, or as soon as the Prisoner was brought to the Bar: Afterwards it could not be claimed till after Conviction, because it is for the Advantage of the King as to the Forfeiture of the Lands and Goods of the Criminal Convict, and for the Advantage of the Party himself to make his Challenges to the Inquest; and perhaps he may be acquitted, and then he will not need this Privilege: After Conviction, it may be allowed as a Favour, though the Party does not claim it; yet others say that the Criminal must claim it. 2 Inst. 164, 633. At Common Law, if the Party had not demanded his Clergy before Conviction, he lost it: But in the Time of H. 6. an Alteration was made in the Method of allowing Clergy, viz. That the Party indicted or appealed, was to answer to the Felony, and after Conviction, upon his Demand the Judge to allow him his Clergy; which Course has been ever since observed. Kel. 100. Clergy may be demanded after Judgment given against gainst a Person; whether of Death, &c. And even under the Gallows, if there be a proper Judge there who has Power to allow it. 2 Hawk. 357. Clergy is never allowed by the Civil Law; so that Pirates, &c. shall not have Clergy. 1 Nelf. Abr. 449. The Common Law did not deny Clergy but in certain Cases; as in High Treason or Sacrilege, where a Person was convicted of Heresy; was a Turk, Jew, or Infidel, &c. Also Women, were not allowed it; but this is altered by Stat. 3 W. & M. By Statutes, Clergy is denied in a great many Felonies; though it is allowed in all Cases where not expressly taken away: And where Clergy is expressly taken away by any Statute, the Offence must be laid in the Indictment to be against that very Statute, and the Words of it, or the Offender shall have his Clergy. Kêl. 104. H. P. C. 231.

Clergy is taken away by Statutes, in the following Cases: Petit Treason, Murder, Robbing of Churches, Dwelling-Houses, or burning of Dwelling-Houses, Barns, &c. 23 Hen. 8. c. 1. 1 Ed. 6. &c. Cluta, (Fr. Clous) Shoes, clouted Shoes; and most commonly Horse-Shoes: It also signifies the Strakes of Iron with which Cart-Wheels are shod. Consuetud. Dom. de Farend. M. S. f. 16. Hence Clutarium, or Cluarium, a Forge, or Smith's Shop, where the Clous or Iron-Shoes are made or apply'd. — Tenuit duas Carucas Terræ de Domino Rege, in Capite per tale servitium deferendo Palefridum Domini Regis super quatuor pedes de Cluario Domini Regis quotiescunque ad Manerium suum de Manfield venerit, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 598.

Coach, (Currus) A Convenience well known; and for the regulating of Hackney Coaches in London, there are several Statutes. By 9 Ann. Eight hundred Hackney Coaches, and Two hundred Chairs, are allowed in London and Westminster; which are to be licensed by Commissioners, and pay a Duty to the Crown: And if any Person drive a Hackney Coach without License, he shall forfeit 5l. and a Chair 40s. Coachmen and Chairmen, giving abusive Language, or demanding more than their Fare, &c. a Justice of Peace may Order them to pay not exceeding 20s. to the Poor, and not being able to pay it, send them to the House of Correction; and Persons not paying Coachmen their Fare, or cutting or defacing Coaches, &c. a Justice will order to make Satisfaction, and on Refusal, may bind them over to the Quarter-Sessions: The 1 Geo. ordains that where Coachmen refuse to go at, or exact more for their Hire than is limited by the Act, they shall forfeit not exceeding 3l. nor under 10s. and the Commissioners have Power to determine it. The Fare of Hackney Coachmen in London, or within ten Miles thereof, is 10s. per Day, allowing 12 Hours to the Day; and by the Hour not above 1s. 6d. for the First, and 1s. for every Hour after: And none are obliged to pay above 1s. for the Use of any Hackney Coach for any Distance, not mentioned in the Act, which is not above one Mile and four Furlongs; nor above 1s. 6d. for any Distance not exceeding two Miles: The Fare of a Hackney Chair is 1s. for any Distance not exceeding a Mile; and 1s. 6d. for any Distance not exceeding a Mile and four Furlongs. There are several Places and Distances mentioned in the Act for the Extent of the respective Fares; and other Distances measured and rated by the Commissioners, in Pursuance of the Statutes. Coachmen are to have Numbers to their Coaches on Tin-Plates, or shall forfeit 5l. and refusing any Person to take the Number of their Coaches, or giving a wrong Number, incurs the Forfeiture of a Sum not exceeding 40s. none but licensed Coaches are to ply at Funerals for Hire, under the Penalty of 5l. Drivers of Hackney Coaches, are to give Way to Persons of Quality, and Gentlemen's Coaches, on the Penalty of 10s. On Sundays, there are only One hundred and seventy-five Coaches to ply; which are to be appointed by the Commissioners. And there are several Standings of Coaches, at the most noted Parts of the Town; ordered by the Commissioners to be in the Middle of Streets, &c. Vide 9 Ann. c. 23. 1 Geo. c. 57.

Coals. The Sack of Coal is to contain four Bushels of clean Coals: And Sea Coals brought into the River Thames, and sold, shall be after the Rate of thirty-six Bushels to the Chaldron; and One hundred and twelve Pounds the Hundred, &c. The Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen in London, and Justices of the Peace of the several Counties, or three of them, are empowered to set the Price of all Coals to be sold, by Retail; and if any Person shall refuse to sell for such Prices, they may appoint Officers to enter any Wharfs or Places where Coals are kept, and cause the Coals to be sold at the Prices appointed. 7 Ed. 6. c. 7.

6. c. 7. 16 & 17 Car. 2. ca. 2. Commissioners are ordained for Measuring and Marking the Keels of Boats, &c. for Coals : And there are several Statutes which lay a Duty on Coals ; and relating to the Colliery at New-Castle, &c. 30 Car. 2. 6 & 7 W. 3. 9 & 10 W. 3. 8 & 9 Ann. &c.

Cocherings, An Exaction or Tribute in Ireland, now reduced to chief Rents. See Bonaght.

Cocket, (Cockettum) Is a Seal belonging to the King's Custom-House : Also a Scroll of Parchment sealed and delivered by the Officers of the Custom-House to Merchants, as a Warrant that their Merchandizes are customed ; which Parchment is otherwise called Littere de Cocketto, or Littere Testimoniales de Cocketto. 11 H. 6. Reg. Orig. 192, 179. So it is used, 5 & 6 Ed. 6. ca. 14, &c. The Word Cockettum or Cocket, is likewise taken for the Custom-House or Office where Goods to be transported were first entered, and paid their Custom, and had a Cocket or Certificate of Discharge : And Cockettata Lana is Wool duly entered and cocketted, or authorized to be transported. Cowel. Cocket is likewise used for a Sort of Measure, as we may read in Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 9. Panis vero integer quadrantalibus frumenti ponderabit unum Cocket & dimidium : And it is made Use of for a Distinction of Bread, in the Statute of Bread and Ale. 51 H. 3. Where Mention is made of Wastel-Bread, Cocket-Bread, Bread of Treet, and Bread of Common Wheat ; the Wastel-Bread being what we call now the finest Bread, or French Bread ; the Cocket-Bread, the second Sort of white Bread ; Bread of Treet, and of common Wheat, Brown, or Household Bread, &c.

Cocletus, A Boat-man, Cockswain or Coxon. Cowel.

Cocula, Coculum, A Cogue, or little drinking Cup, in Form of a small Boat, used especially at Sea ; and still retained in a Cogue of Brandy. These drinking Cups are also used in Taverns to drink new Sherry, and other white Wines, which look foul in a Glass.

Codicil, (Codicillus, from Codex a Book, a Writing) Is a Schedule or Supplement to a Will, where any Thing is omitted, which the Testator would add, or he would explain, alter, or retract what he hath done ; and it is the same with a Testament, but that it is without an Executor : And one may leave behind him only one Testament, but as many Codicils as he pleases. West. Symb. p. 636. A Codicil is taken as Part of the Will ; and the Codicils ought to be annexed to the Testament, and the Executor is to see that they are all performed : If the Will or Codicils are kept from the Executor, he may force the Party detaining them to deliver them up by the Ecclesiastical Law, and recover them in the Spiritual Court. Some Writers conferring a Testament, and a Codicil together, call a Testament a great Will, and a Codicil a little one.

Coffra, A Coffer, Chest or Trunk. — Custos Collegii, &c. & Ministri ejusdem non sunt dotati quacunq; dote temporalis seu Spiritualis, vivente fundatore ejusdem ; sed fuerunt stipendarii capientes certam summam pecunie de Cofris dicti fundatoris. Munimenta Hospit. SS. Trinit. de Pontefracto, M. S. fol. 50.

Cofferer of the King's Household, Is a Principal Officer of the King's House next under the Controller, who in the Counting-House, and elsewhere, hath a special Charge and Oversight of other Officers of the Household, to all which he pays their Wages : This Officer passes his Accounts in the Exchequer, and is mentioned in 39 Eliz. c. 7.

Cogs, (Cogones) A Kind of Boats or Vessels, used in the Rivers Ouse and Umler. Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 18.

Coggie, A small fishing Boat, upon the Coasts of Yorkshire : It is also called a little Cogge, from the old Teuton. Kogge a Ship ; whence the Lat. Coggo, Cogga, &c. Anno 1066. Preparatis Cogonibus, Galleis, & aliis navibus, &c. Mar. Paris. And hence the old Lat. Cogcio, a wandering and begging Seaman ; and the Cogiones, Cogmen, or Boatmen, who after Shipwreck or Losses by Sea, travelled about to defraud the People by begging and stealing, are restrained by many civil and good Laws. Du Fresne.

Cognitione, A Writ of Cofenage. See Cofenage.

Cognisance, (Fr. Conusance, Lat. Cognitio) Is used diversly in our Law : Sometimes it is an Acknowledgment of a Fine, or Confession of a Thing done ; and there is Cognisance of taking a Disseisin : Sometimes it is the Hearing of a Matter judicially, as to take Cognisance of a Cause : And sometimes it signifies a Jurisdiction, as Cognisance of Pleas is a Power to call a Cause or Plea out of another Court ; which none can but the King, or by Charter. This Cognisance of Pleas is a Privilege granted by the King to a City or Town, to hold Plea of all Contracts, &c. within the Liberty of the Franchise ; and when any Man is impleaded for such Matters in the Courts of Westminster, the Mayor, &c. of such Franchise may ask Cognisance of the Plea, and demand that it shall be determined before them : But if the Courts at Westminster be possessed of the Plea before Cognisance is demanded, it is then too late. Terms de Ley 178, 179. — Cognisance also signifieth the Badge of a Waterman or Servant, which is usually the Giver's Crest, whereby he is known to belong to this or that Nobleman or Gentleman.

Cognisor, and Cognissee, Cognisor, Is he that passeth or acknowledgeth a Fine of Lands or Tenements to another ; and Cognissee is he to whom the Fine of the said Lands, &c. is acknowledged. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 5.

Cognitiones, Ensigns or Arms, or rather a military Coat painted with Arms. — Cum viderunt Hostes Christi armis, vexillis & Cognitionibus picturatis, &c. Mat. Paris. 1250.

Cognitionibus Mittendis, Is a Writ to one of the King's Justices of the Common Pleas, or other that hath Power to take a Fine, who having taken the Fine defers to certify it, commanding him to certify the same. Reg. Orig. 68.

Cognovit Actionem, Is where a Defendant acknowledges or confesses the Plaintiff's Cause against him to be just and true, and after Issue suffers Judgment to be entered against him without Trial.

Cogware, Is said to be a Sort of coarse Cloaths, made in divers Part of England, of which Mention is made in the 13 R. 2. c. 10.

Cohuagium, A Tribute paid by those who meet promiscuously in a Market or Fair ; Cohua signifying a promiscuous Multitude of Men in a Fair or Market. — Quieti ab omni Theloneo, Passagio, Pontagio, Cohuagio, Pallagio, &c. Du Cange.

Coif, (Coifa) A Title given to Serjeants at Law ; who are called Serjeants of the Coif, from the Lawn Coif they wear on their Heads under their Caps, when they are created. The Use of it was anciently to cover Tonsuram Clericalem, otherwise called Corona Clericalis; because the Crown of the Head was close shaved, and a Border of Hair left round the lower Part, which made it to look like a Crown. Blount.

Coin, (Cuna, Pecunia) Seems to come from the Fr. Coign, i. e. Angulus, a Corner; whence it has been held, that the ancientest Sort of Coin was square with Corners, and not round as it now is: It is any Sort of Money coined. Crompt. Jurisd. 220. Coin is a Word collective, which contains in it all manner of the several Stamps and Species of Money in any Kingdom: And this is one of the Royal Prerogatives belonging to every Sovereign Prince, that he alone in his own Dominions may order and dispose the Quantity and Value, and Fashion of his Coin. But the Coin of one King is not current in the Kingdom of another, unless it be at great Loss; though our King by his Prerogative may make any Foreign Coin lawful Money of England at his Pleasure, by Proclamation. Terms de Ley 136. If a Man binds himself by Bond to pay One hundred Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, and the Person bound, the Obligor, pays the Obligee the Money in French, Spanish, or other Coin, made current either by Act of Parliament, or the King's Proclamation, the Obligation will be well performed. 1 Inst. 207. But 'tis said a Payment in Farthings, is not a good Payment. 2 Inst. 517. When a Person has accepted of Money in Payment from another, and put the same into his Purse, it is at his Peril after his Allowance; and he shall not then take Exception to it, notwithstanding he presently reviews it. Terms de Ley. By Statute, any Person may break or deface Pieces of Silver Money suspected to be counterfeit or diminished, otherwise than by wearing: But if such Pieces on breaking, &c. are found to be good Coin, it will be at the Breaker's Peril, who shall stand to the Loss of it. 9 & 10 W. 3. ca. 21. Coins of Gold and Silver are to pass notwithstanding some of them are cracked, or worn; but not if they are clipt. 19 H. 7. cap. 5. Counterfeiting, Impairing, or Clipping of the King's Coin, is made High Treason. 25 Ed. 3. 14. and 18 Eliz. cap. 7. It is also High Treason to make any Stamp, Dye, Mould, &c. for coining, except by Persons imployed in the Mint, &c. Conveying such out of the Mint, is the same; and so is Colouring Metal resembling Coin of Gold or Silver, marking it on the Edges, &c. And if any Persons mix blanch'd Copper with Silver, to make it heavier, and look like Gold, or receive, or pay counterfeit mill'd Money, it is Felony. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 26. The Statutes which ordain mill'd Money to be made, give Liberty to any Person to refuse hammer'd Silver Coin, as not being the lawful Coin of this Kingdom. 9 W. 3. c. 2. Counterfeiting of the Coin extends only to Gold and Silver Coin; for the Coining of Farthings or Half-pence, or Pieces to go for such, of Copper, incurs a Penalty of 5 l. for every Pound-weight, by Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. cap. 33. Persons apprehending Money-Coiners, Clippers, &c. are to have 40 l. Reward; and a guilty Person discovering two others, to be pardoned, &c. 6 & 7 W. 3. In the seventh Year of King William III. an Act was made for calling in all the old Coin of the Kingdom, and to melt it down and recoin it; the Deficiencies whereof were to be made good at the publick Charge: And in every Hundred-weight coined, 40 l. was to be Shillings, and 10 l. Six-pences, under certain Penalties. Persons bringing Plate to the Mint to be coined, were to have the same Weight of Money delivered out, as an Encouragement; and Receivers General of Taxes, &c. were to receive Money at a large Rate per Ounce. Our Guineas have been raised and fallen, as Money has been Scarce or Plenty, several Times by Statute: And anno 3 Geo. on a Scarcity of Silver Coin, for Remedy, Guineas were sunk to 21 s. at which they now pass by Proclamation. See Money.

Coinage, (Cunagium) Is the Stamping and Making of Money, by the King's Authority. And there is a Duty of 10 s. per Ton on Wine, Beer, and Brandy imported, called the Coinage-Duty, granted for the Expence of the King's Coinage, not exceeding 3000 l. per ann. Stat. 18 Car. 2. c. 5. See 1 Geo. c. 43. 9 Geo. c. 19.

Coliberty, (Coliberti) Were Tenants in free Socage; and particularly such Villains as were manumitted or made Freemen. Domesday. But they had not an absolute Freedom; for though they were better than Servants, yet they had superior Lords to whom they paid certain Duties, and in that Respect they might be called Servants, though they were of middle Condition between Freemen and Servants. — Libertate carens Colibertus dicitur esse. Du Cange. They are thought to be the same with Colonus.

Collateral, (Collateralis) From the Lat. Leterale, Sideways, or that which hangeth by the Side, not direct: As Collateral Assurance is that which is made over and above the Deed it self: Collateral Security, is where a Deed is made of other Lands, besides those granted by the Deed of Mortgage: And if a Man covenants with another, and enters into Bond for Performance of his Covenant, the Bond is a Collateral Assurance; because it is external, and without the Nature and Essence of the Covenant. If a Man hath Liberty to pitch Booths or Standings, for a Fair or Market in another Person's Ground; it is Collateral to the Ground. The private Woods of a common Person, within a Forest, may not be cut without the King's License; it being a Prerogative Collateral to the Soil. And to be subject to the Feeding of the King's Deer, is Collateral to the Soil of a Forest. Crompt. Jurisd. 185. Mauwood p. 66.

Collateral Discent, and Collateral Warranty; See Discent and Warranty.

Collation of a Benefice, (Collatio Beneficii) Signifies the Bestowing of a Benefice by the Bishop, when he hath Right of Patronage. And it differs from Institution in this, that Institution is performed by the Bishop upon the Presentation of another, and Collation is his own Act of Presentation; and it differeth from Presentation, as it is the Giving of the Church to the Parson, and Presentation is the Giving or Offering of the Parson to the Church. But Collation supplies the Place of Presentation and Institution, and amounts to the same as Institution, where the Bishop is both Patron and Ordinary. 1 Lill. Abr. 273. Anciently the Right of Presentation to all Churches, was in the Bishop; and now if the Patron neglects to present to a Church, then this Right returns to the Bishop by Collation: And if the Bishop neglects to collate within six Months after the Lapse of the Patron, then the Archbishop hath a Right to do it; and if the Archbishop neglects, then it devolves to the King; the one as Superior, to supply the Defects of Bishops, the other as Supreme, to reform all Defects of Government. As a Bishop may neglect to collate, so it may happen that he may make his Collation without Title; but such a wrongful Collation doth not put the true Patron out of Possession; for after the Collatee of the Bishop is instituted and inducted, he may present this Clerk: And Collation in this Case, shall be intended only as a provisional Incumbency to perform Divine Service 'till Presentment is made by the true Patron. 1 Inst. 344. By Collation the Church is not full; and a right Patron may bring his Writ at any Time to remove the Person collated; except his Right be likewise to collate, when Plenary by Collation may be pleaded. Wood's Inst. 159. Where a Bishop gives a Benefice as Patron, he collates to it Jure Pleno; and when by Lapse, he doth it Jure devoluto.

Collatione facta uni post Mortem alterius, Is a Writ directed to the Justices of the Common Pleas, commanding them to issue their Writ to the Bishop, for the Admission of a Clerk in the Place of another presented by the King; who died during the Suit between the King and the Bishop's Clerk: For Judgment once passed for the King's Clerk, and he dying before Admission, the King may bestow his Presentation on another. Reg. Orig. 31.

Collatione Heremitagii, A Writ whereby the King conferred the Keeping of an Hermitage upon a Clerk. Reg. Orig. 303, 308.

Collation of Seals. This was when upon the same appending Ribbon or Label, one Seal was set on the Back or Reverse of the other. —

Ad majorem securitatem Premissorum, Sigillum discreti viri Officialis Domini Batho-Well. Episcopi filio medio per modum Collationis, sigillo meo apponi procuravi. Carrular. Abbat. Glaston. M. S. 105.

Collegiate Church, Is that which consists of a Dean and secular Canons; or more largely, it is a Church built and endowed for a Society, or Body Corporate, of a Dean or other President, and secular Priests, as Canons or Prebendaries in the said Church. There were many of these Societies distinguished from the Religious or Regulars, before the Reformation: And some are establish'd at this Time; as Westminster, Windsor, Winchester, Southwell, Manchester, &c.

Collusion, (Collusio) Is a deceitful Agreement or Compact between Two, or more, for the One to bring an Action against the other, to some evil Purpose, as to defraud a third Person of his Right, &c. The Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 32. gives the Writ Quale jus, and Enquiry in such Cases: And there are several other Statutes relating to Deeds, made by Collusion and Fraud. The Cases particularly mentioned by the Statute of Westm. 2. are of Quare Impedit, Affise, &c. which any Corporation brings against another, with Intent to recover the Land or Advowson, for which the Writ is brought in Mortmain, &c. Vide the Statute.

Colonus, An Husbandman or Villager, who was bound to pay yearly a certain Tribute, or at certain Times in the Year to plough some Part of the Lord's Land; and from hence comes the Word Clown; who is called by the Dutch Boor.

Colour, (Color) Signifies a probable Plea, but what is in Fact false; and hath this End, to draw the Trial of the Cause from the Jury to the Judges: And therefore Colour ought to be Matter in Law, or doubtful to the Jury. This Colour is used in Affises, or Action of Trespas; and every Colour ought to have these Qualities following: 1. It ought to be doubtful to the Lay-Gents, as in Case of a Deed of Feoffment pleaded, and it is a Doubt whether the Land passeth by the Feoffment, without Livery, or no. 2. Colour ought to have Continuance, tho' it wants Effect. 3. It should be such Colour, that if it were effectual, would maintain the Nature of the Action; as in Affise, to give Colour of Freehold, &c. 10 Rep. 88, 91. Colour ought to be such a Thing, which is a good Colour of Title, and yet it is not any Title. Cro. Jac. 122. The Reason of giving Colour in Trespas is, for that the Defendant's Plea may not amount to the general Issue. If a Man justifies his Entry for such a Cause as binds the Plaintiff or his Heirs for ever, he shall not give any Colour: But if he pleads a Descent in Bar, he must give Colour, because this binds the Possession, and not the Right; so that when the Matter of the Plea bars the Plaintiff of his Right, no Colour must be given. When the Defendant entitles himself by the Plaintiff; where a Person pleads to the Writ, or to the Action of the Writ; he who justifies for Tithes; or where the Defendant justifies as Servant; in all these Cases no Colour ought to be given. 10 Rep. 91. Lutw. 1343. Where the Defendant doth not make a Special Title to himself, or any other, he ought to give Colour to the Plaintiff. Cro. El. 76. In Trespas for Taking and Carrying away twenty Loads of Wood, &c. the Defendant says, that A. B. was possessed of them, ut de bonis propriis, and that the Plaintiff claiming them by Colour of a Deed after made, took them, and the Defendant retook them; and adjudged that the Colour given to the Plaintiff, makes a good Title to him, and confesseth the Interest in him. 1 Lil. Abr. 275. Colour is for this Cause, viz. Where the Defendant justifies by Title in Trespas or Affise, if he do not give the Plaintiff Colour, his Plea amounteth only to Not guilty; for if the Defendant hath Title, he is not Guilty. 1 Rep. 79, 108. Terms de Ley 140.

Colour of Office, (Color Officii) Signifies an Act evilly done by the Countenance of an Office; and is always taken in the worst Sense, being grounded upon Corruption, to which the Office is as a Shadow and Colour. Plewd. Comment. 64. See Extortion.

Colpices, (Colpicium, Colpiciis) Young Poles, which being cut down, make Leavers or Lifters; and in Warwickshire they are called Colpices to this Day. Blount.

Colpo, A small Wax-Candle, à Copo de Cere: We read in Hoveden, that when the King of Scots came to the English Court, as long as he staid there, he had every Day, De Liberatione triginta sol. & duodecim vassellos Dominicos, & quadraginta grossos longos Colpones de Dominica Candela Regis, &c. Anno 1194.

Combarones, The Fellow Barons, or Commonalty of the Cinque Ports: King Hen. 3. grants to the Barons, or Freemen of the Port of Feverham, quietantiam de omni Thelonio, & Consuetudine, sicut ipsi & antecessores sui, & Combarones sui de Quinque Portibus eam melius & plenius habuerunt tempore Regis Edwardi. Placit. temp. Ed. 1. & Ed. 2. M. S. penes Dom. Fountain. The Title of Barons of the Cinque Ports is now restrained from the common Inhabitants, to distinguish their Representatives in Parliament; and the Word

Combaron

Combaron is used for a Fellow Member, the Baron and his Combaron.

Comba terræ, or Cumba terra, from Sax. Cumbe, Brit. Kum, Engl. Comb, A Valley or low Piece of Ground or Place between two Hills; which is still so called in Devonshire and Cornwall: Hence many Villages in other Parts of England have their Names of Comb, as Wickcomb, &c. from their Situation. Kenet's Gloss.

Combat, (Fr.) Is taken with us for a formal Trial between the Champions, of a doubtful Cause or Quarrel, by the Sword or Bastons. The last Trial by Combat in this Kingdom was Anno 6 Car. 1. between Donald Lord Rey, Appellant, and David Ramsey Esq; Defendant, both Scotchmen, before Robert Earl of Lindsey, Lord High Constable, Thomas Earl of Arundel, Earl Marshal, with other Lords; when after the Court had met several Times in the Painted Chamber, and Bill, Answer, and Replication were put in by the Parties, and Counsel heard, with other Formalities, it was at last referred to the King's Will and Pleasure, who was inclined to favour Ramsey. Co. Lit. 294. Orig. Juridical. fol. 65. See Battel.

Combinations To do unlawful Acts, are punishable before the unlawful Act is executed; this is to prevent the Consequence of Combinations, and Conspiracies, &c. 9 Rep. 57. See Confederacy.

Combustio Pecuniæ, The antient Way of Trying mix'd and corrupt Money, by melting it down upon Payments into the Exchequer. In the Time of King Hen. 2. a Constitution was made called the Trial by Combustion; the Practice of which differed little or nothing from the present Method of assaying Silver. But whether this Examination of Money by Combustion, was to reduce an Equation of Money only of Sterling, viz. a due Proportion of Alloy with Copper; or to reduce it to fine pure Silver without Alloy, doth not appear. On making the Constitution of Trial, it was considered, that tho' the Money did answer Numero & Pondere, it might be deficient in Value; because mix'd with Copper or Brass, &c. Vide Lownde's Essay upon Coin, p. 5.

Comitatus, A County. Ingulpbus tells us, That England was first divided into Counties by K. Alfred; and Counties into Hundreds, and these again into Tithings: And Fortescue writes, that Regnum Angliæ per Comitatus ut Regnum Franciæ per Ballivatus distinguitur. Sometimes it is taken for a Territory or Jurisdiction of a particular Place, as in Mat. Paris. anno 1234. Infra Metas illas continentur quadam prædia & etiam Civitates & Castra, quas Comitatus suo assignare præsumunt. And in Charta H. 2. apud Hoveden: Castellum de Nottingham cum Comitatu, &c. And, De firmis mortuis & debitis, de quibus non est spes, fiat unus Rotulus, & intituletur Comitatus, & legatur singulis Annis super Computum Vicecomitum. Claus. 12 Ed. 1. See County.

Comitatu Commissio, Is a Writ or Commission whereby a Sheriff is authorized to take upon him the Charge of the County. Reg. Orig. 295.

Comitatu & Castro Commissio, A Writ by which the Charge of a County, together with the Keeping of a Castle, is committed to the Sheriff. Reg. Orig. Ibid.

Comitiva, A Companion or Fellow Traveller; 'tis mentioned in Brompton, Regn. H. 2. And sometimes it signifies a Troop or Company of Robbers; as in Walsingham, Anno 1366. Interpellave- runt auxilium Regis Angliæ contra Magnæ Comitivas, &c.

Commandry, (Præceptoría) Was any Manor or Chief Mesuage, with Lands and Tenements thereunto appertaining, which belong'd to the Priory of St. John of Jerusalem in England; and he who had the Government of such a Manor or House was stiled the Commander, who could not dispose of it but to the Use of the Priory; and only taking thence his own Sustenance, according to his Degree. New Eagle in Lincolnshire was and still is called the Commandry of Eagle, and did antiently belong to the said Priory of St. John: So Selbach in Pembrokeshire, and Shingay in Cambridgeshire, were Commandries in the Time of the Knights Templars, says Camden: And these in many Places of England are termed Temples; as Temple Bruere, in the County of Lincoln, Temple Newsum in Yorkshire, &c. because they formerly belonged to the said Templars. Stat. 26 Hen. 8. c. 2. The Manors and Lands belonging to the Priory of St. John of Jerusalem, were given to King Hen. 8. by the Stat. 32 H. 8. about the Time of the Dissolution of Abbies and Monasteries; so that the Name only of these Commandries remains, the Power being long since extinct.

Commandment, (Præceptum) Is diversly taken; as the Commandment of the King, when upon his own Motion, he casts any Man into Prison. Commandment of the Justices, Absolute or Ordinary; Absolute, where upon their own Authority they commit a Person for Contempt, &c. to Prison, as a Punishment; Ordinary is when they commit one rather for safe Custody, than for any Punishment: And a Man committed upon such an ordinary Commandment, is replevifable. Staundf. P. C. 72, 73. Persons committed to Prison by the Special Command of the King, were not formerly replevifable, or bailable by the Court of King's Bench; but at this Day the Law is otherwise declared and settled, as appears under Bail. 2 Hawk. P. C. 96. Commandment is also used for the Offence of him that willet another Man to transgress the Law, or to do any Thing contrary to it: And it likewise signifies the Act of a Servant, in any lawful Business, by the express Authority of the Master. In the most common Signification, Commandment is taken where one willet another Person to do any unlawful Act; as Murder, Theft, or the like: Which the Civilians call Mandatum. Bract. lib. 3. c. 19. He that commandeth any one to do an unlawful Act, is Accessary to it and all the Consequences, if it be executed in the same Manner as commanded: But if the Commander revoke the Command; or if the Execution varies from it, or in the Nature of the Offence, in such Case he will not be Accessary. 3 Inst. 51, 57. 2 Inst. 182. If a Man command another to commit a Felony on a particular Person, and he doth it on another, as to kill A. and he kills B. or to burn the House of A. and he burn the House of B. or to steal one Thing, and he steals another; or to commit a Felony of one Kind, and he commits another; it is said that the Commander is not an Accessary, because the Act done varies in Substance from that which was commanded. H. P. C. 217. Plovd. 475. But where a Person commands or advises another to kill such a one in the Night, and he kills him in the Day; or to kill him in the Fields, and he kills him in the Town; or to poison him, and he stabs or shoots him; these Acts being the same Felony in Substance with that which was intended, and varying only in Circumstances, in Respect to Time, Place, &c. the Commander is as much an Accessary as if there had been no Variance at all between the Command and the Execution of it. 2 Hawk. 316. If I command a Man to rob another, and he kills him in the Attempt, tho' he doth not rob him, I am guilty of the Murder, it being the direct and immediate Effect of an Act done in Execution of my Command to commit a Felony. And if the Command be to beat a Person, and the Person commanded beat him in such a Manner that he dies thereof, I am an Accessary before to the Felony; because it happened in the Execution of a Command, which tended to endanger the Life of the other. Also it is said, that if one command another to burn the House of a certain Person, and he by Burning it burn likewise the House of another, the Commander is equally Accessary to the subsequent Felony, as to that which was directly commanded. Ibid. 315, 316. To Command or Counsel any one to commit Burglary, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. In Forcible Entries, &c. an Infant or Feme Covert may be guilty in Respect of actual Violence done by them in Person; but not in Regard to what shall be done by others at their Command, because all such Commands of theirs are void. Co. Litt. 357. 1 Hawk. 147. In Trespas, &c. the Master shall be charged criminal-ly for the Act of the Servant, done by his Command: But Servants, &c. shall not be excused for committing any Crime, when they act by Command of their Masters; who have no Authority over them to give such Command. Doct. & Stud. c. 42. H. P. C. 66. Kel. 13. And if a Master commands his Servant to distrain, and he abuses the Distress, the Servant shall answer it to the Party injured, &c. Kitch. 372.

Commarchio, The Confines of the Land; from whence probably comes the Word Marches. — Imprimis de nostris Landimeris, Commarchionibus. Du Cange.

Commendam, (Ecclesia Commendata, vel Custodia Ecclesie alicui commissa) Is the Holding of a Benefice or Church-Living, which being void, is commended to the Charge and Care of some sufficient Clerk, to be supplied until it may be conveniently provided of a Pastor: And he to whom the Church is commended, hath the Profits thereof only for a certain Time, and the Nature of the Church is not changed thereby, but is as a Thing deposited in his Hands in Trust, who hath nothing but the Custody of it, which may be revoked. When a Parson is made Bishop, there is a Cession or Voidance of his Benefice by the Promotion; but if the King by Special Dispensation gives him Power to retain his Benefice, notwithstanding his Promotion, he shall continue Parson, and is said to hold it in Commendam. Hob. 144. Litch. 236. As the King is the Means of Avoidances on Promotions to Dignities, and the Presentations thereon belong to him, he often on the Creation of Bishops grants them Licenses to hold their Benefices in Commendam; but this is usually where the Bishopricks are small, for the better Support of the Dignity of the Bishop promoted: And it must be always before Consecration; for afterwards it comes too late, because the Benefice is then absolutely void. A Commendam, founded on the Statute 25 H. 8. is a Dispensation from the supreme Power, to hold or take an Ecclesiastical Living contra jus Positivum: And there are several Sorts of Commendams; as a Commendam Semestris, which is for the Benefit of the Church without any Regard to the Commendatory, being only a provisional Act of the Ordinary, for Supplying the Vacation of six Months, in which Time the Patron is to present his Clerk, and is but a Sequestration of the Cure and Fruits until such Time as the Clerk is presented: A Commendam Retinere, which is for a Bishop to retain Benefices, on his Preferment; and these Commendams are granted on the King's Mandate to the Archbishop, expressing his Consent, which continues the Incumbency, so that there is no Occasion for Institution. A Commendam Recipere is to take a Benefice de Novo in the Bishop's own Gift, or in the Gift of some other Patron, whose Consent must be obtained. Dyer 228. 3 Lev. 381. Hob. 143. Dav. 79. A Commendam may be Temporary, for Six or Twelve Months; Two or Three Years, &c. or it may be perpetual, i. e. for Life, when it is equal to a Presentation, without Institution or Induction. But all Dispensations beyond Six Months, were only permissive at first, and granted to Persons of Merit: The Commendam Retinere is for one or two Years, &c. and sometimes for Three or Six Years, and doth not alter the Estate which the Incumbent had before: A Commendam Retinere, as long as the Commendatory should live and continue Bishop, hath been held good. Vaugh. 18. The Commendam Recipere must be for Life, as other Parsons and Vicars enjoy their Benefices; and as a Patron cannot Present to a full Church, so neither can a Commendam Recipere be made to a Church that is then full. Show. 414. A Benefice cannot be commended by Parts, any more than it may be presented unto by Parts; as that one shall have the Glebe, another the Tithes, &c. Nor can a Commendatory have a Juris Utrum, or take to him and his Successors, sue or be sued, in a Writ of Annuity, &c. But a Commenda perpetua may be admitted to do it. 11 H. 4. Compl. Incumb. 360. A Dispensation Recipere & Retinere, &c. to a Parson is not good after Institution, when the Church is full. 1 Nelf. Abr. 454.

Commendatory, (Commendatarius) Is he that hath a Church-Living or Preferment in Commendam.

Commendatory Letters, Are such as are Writ by one Bishop to another, in Behalf of any of his Clergy, or others of his Diocese, travelling thither, that they may be received among the Faithful; or that the Clerk may be promoted, or Necessaries administered, &c. several Forms of these Letters may be seen in our Historians, as in Bede, lib. 2. c. 18.

Commendatus, One that Lives under the Protection of a Great Man. Spelm. Commendati Homines were Persons who by voluntary Homage put themselves under the Protection of any superior Lord: For ancient Homage was either Prædial, due for some Tenure; or Personal, which was by Compulsion, as a Sign of necessary Subjection; or voluntary, with a Desire of Protection: And those who by voluntary Homage put themselves under the Protection of any Men of Power, were sometimes called Homines ejus Commendati, and sometimes only Commendati, as often occurs in Domesday. Commendati dimidii were those who depended on two several Lords, and were to pay one Half of their Homage to each: And Sub-Commendati were such, as like Under-Tenants, were under the Command of those that were were themselves depending on a superior Lord. Also there were Dimidii sub-commendati, who bore a double Relation to such depending Lords. Domesday. This Phrase seems to be still in Use, in the usual Compliment, Commend me to such a Friend, &c. Spelm. of Feuds, cap. 20.

Commerce, (Commercium) Traffick, Trade or Merchandize in Buying and Selling of Goods. See Merchant.

Commiffary, (Commissarius) Is a Title in the Ecclesiastical Law, belonging to one that exerciseth Spiritual Jurisdiction, in Places of a Diocese which are so far from the Episcopal City, as the Chancellor cannot call the People to the Bishop's Principal Consistory Court, without their too great Inconvenience. This Commiffary was ordain'd to supply the Bishop's Jurisdiction and Office in the Out-places of the Diocese; or in such Parishes as are Peculiar to the Bishop, and exempted from the Jurisdiction of the Archdeacon: For where, either by Prescription or Composition, Archdeacons have Jurisdiction within their Archdeaconries, as in most Places they have, this Commiffary is superfluous and oftentimes vexatious, and ought not to be; yet in such Cases a Commiffary is sometimes appointed by the Bishop, he taking Prestation-Money of the Archdeacon yearly pro exteriori Jurisdictione, as it is ordinarily called. But this is held to be a Wrong to Archdeacons and the poorer Sort of People. 4 Inst. 338. Cowel.

Commission, (Commissio) Is taken for the Warrant or Letters Patent, which all Men exercising Jurisdiction either ordinary or extraordinary, have to authorize them to hear or determine any Cause or Action: As the Commission of the Judges, &c. Commission is with us as much as Delegatio with the Civilians: And this Word is sometimes extended farther than to Matters of Judgment, as the Commission of Purveyance, &c. There was formerly a High Commission Court, which was founded on 1 Eliz. c. 1. but it was abolished by Act of Parliament 17 Car. 1. c. 11. and by 13 Car. 2. c. 2. Of Commissions you may see divers in the Table of the Reg. of Writs.

Commission of Anticipation, Was a Commission under the Great Seal to collect a Tax or Subsidy before the Day. 15 H. 8.

Commission of Association, Is a Commission to associate Two or more learned Persons with the Justices in the several Circuits and Counties of Wales. 18 Eliz. c. 9.

Commission of Bankrupts. Where any Person is become a Bankrupt within any of the Statutes against Bankrupts, on Security given to prove the Party a Bankrupt, &c. this Commission issues from the Lord Chancellor to certain Commissioners appointed to take Order with the Bankrupt's Lands and Goods, for the Satisfaction of the Creditors. Stat. 34 H. 8. 13 Eliz. c. 7. 1 Jac. 1, &c.

Commission of Charitable Uses, Goes out of the Chancery to the Bishop and others, where any Lands given to Charitable Uses are misemploy'd, or there is any Fraud or Disputes concerning them, to enquire of and redress the Abuse, &c. 43 Eliz. c. 4.

Commission of Delegates, Is a Commission under the Great Seal to certain Persons, to sit upon an Appeal to the King in the Court of Chancery, where any Sentence is given in any Ecclesiastical Cause by the Archbishop. Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 19.

Commission to enquire of Faults against the Law, Was an antient Commission set forth on extraordinary Occasions and Corruptions.

Commission of Lunacy, A Commission out of Chancery to enquire whether a Person represented to be Lunatick be so or not, that if Lunatick the King may have the Care of his Estate, &c. 17 Ed. 2. c. 10.

Commission of Rebellion, Otherwise called a Writ of Rebellion, issues when a Man after Proclamation made by the Sheriff, upon a Process out of the Chancery, on Pain of his Allegiance to Present himself to the Court by a Day assign'd, makes Default in his Appearance: And this Commission is directed to certain Persons, to the End they, Three, Two, or one of them apprehend the Party, or cause him to be apprehended as a Rebel and Contemner of the King's Laws, wherefoever found within the Kingdom, and bring or cause him to be brought to the Court on a Day therein assigned: This Writ or Commission goes forth after an Attachment return'd Non est inventus, &c. Terms de Ley 144.

Commission of Sewers, Is directed to certain Persons to see Drains and Ditches well kept and maintained in the Marthy and Fenny Parts of England, for the better Conveyance of the Water into the Sea, and preserving the Grass upon the Land. Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 5. 13 Eliz. c. 9.

Commission of Treaty with Foreign Princes, Is where Leagues and Treaties are made and transacted between States and Kingdoms, by their Embassadors and Ministers, for the mutual Advantage of the Kingdoms in Alliance.

Commission to take up Men for War, Was a Commission to press or force Men into the King's Service.

Commissioner, (Commissionarius) Is he that hath a Commission, as Letters Patent, or other lawful Warrant, to execute any Publick Office, &c. As Commissioners of the Treasury, of the Customs, Wine-Licences, Alienations, &c. of which there is an infinite Number.

Committee, Are they to whom the Consideration or Ordering of any Matter is referred, by some Court, or by Consent of Parties to whom it belongs: As in Parliament, a Bill is either consented to and passed, or denied, or neither, but referred to the Consideration of certain Persons appointed by the House farther to examine it, who are thereupon called a Committee. And when a Parliament is called, and the Speaker and Members have taken the Oaths, and the standing Orders of the House are read, Committees are appointed to sit on certain Days, viz. The Committees of Privileges and Elections, of Religion, of Grievances, of Courts of Justice, and of Trade; which are the standing Committees. But tho' they are appointed by every new Parliament, they do not all of them act, only the Committee of Privileges; and this being not of the whole House, is first called in the Speaker's Chamber, from whence it is adjourned into the House, every one of the House having a Vote therein, tho' not named, which makes the same usually very numerous: And any Member may be present at any select Committee; but is not to vote unless he be named. The Chairman of the Grand Committee, who is always some leading Member, sits in the Clerk's Place at the Table, and writes the Votes for and against the Matter referred to them; and if the Number be equal, he

he has a casting Voice, otherwise he hath no Vote in the Committee; and after the Chairman hath put the Question for Reporting to the House, if that be carried, he leaves the Chair, and the Speaker being called to his Chair, (who quits it in the Beginning, and the Mace is laid under the Table) he is to go down to the Bar, and so bring up his Report to the Table. After a Bill is read a second Time in the House of Commons, the Question is put, whether it shall be committed to a Committee of the Whole House, or a Private Committee; and the Committees meet in the Speaker's Chamber, and report their Opinion of the Bill with the Amendments, &c. And if there be any Exceptions against the Amendments reported, the Bill may be recommitted: Eight Persons make a Committee, which may be adjourned by Five, &c. Lex Constitutionis 147, 150. There is a Committee of the King, mentioned in West's Symb. Tit. Chancery, Sect. 144. And this hath been used, tho' improperly, for the Widow of the King's Tenant being dead, who is called the Committee of the King, that is, one committed by the antient Law of the Land to the King's Care and Protection. Kitch. fol. 160. See Parliament.

Commitment, Is the Sending of a Person to Prison by Warrant or Order who hath been guilty of any Crime or Offence; and it may be by the King and Council, by the Judges of the Law, Justices of Peace, and other Magistrates, who have Authority by the Laws and Statutes of the Realm to do it, which must be exactly pursued. Every Commitment to Prison ought generally to be made by Warrant under the Hand and Seal of him that commits the Party; and the Cause of Commitment to be expressed in the Warrant, &c. See Bail, Imprisonment.

Commoigne, (Fr.) A Word signifying a Fellow Monk, that Lives in the same Convent. 3 Inst. 15.

Commonalty, (Populus, Plebs, Communitas.) In Art. super Chartas, 28 Ed. 1. c. 1. Tout le Commune d'Engleterre signifies all the People of England. 2 Inst. 539. But this Word is generally used for the middle Sort of the King's Subjects, such of the Commons as are raised beyond the ordinary Sort, and coming to have the Managing of Offices, by that Means are one Degree under Burgeses, which are superior to them in Order and Authority; and in Companies incorporated, they are said to consist of Masters, Wardens, and Commonalty, the first Two being the Chief, and the others such as are usually called of the Livery. The ordinary People, and Freeholders, or at best Knights and Gentlemen, under the Degree of Barons, have been of late Years called Communitas Regni, or Tota terra Communitas; but antiently the Barons and Tenants in Capite, or military Men, were the Community of the Kingdom; and those only were reputed as such in our most antient Histories and Records. Brady's Gloss. to his Introduct. to Engl. Hist.

Common, (Communia, i. e. Quod ad omnes pertinet) Signifies that Soil whereof the Use is common to this or that Town or Lordship: Or it is a Profit that a Man hath in the Land of another Person, usually in Common with others; or a Right which a Person hath to put his Cattle to pasture into Ground that is not his Own. And there is not only Common of Pasture, but also Common of Fishing, Common of Estovers, Common of Turbary, &c. Common of Pasture is divided into Common in Gross, Common Appendant, Common Appurtenant, and Common per Cause de Vicinage. Common in Gross is a Liberty to have Common, without any Land or Tenement in another Person's Land, granted by Deed to a Man and his Heirs, or for Life, &c. F. N. B. 31, 37. 4 Rep. 50. Common Appendant is a Right belonging to a Man's arable Land, of putting Beasts commonable into another's Ground. And Common Appurtenant is belonging to an Estate for all Manner of Beasts commonable or not commonable. 4 Rep. 37. Plowd. 161. Common Appendant and Appurtenant are in a Manner confounded, as appears by Fitzherbert; and are there defined to be a Liberty of Common appertaining to or depending on a Freehold; which Common must be taken with Beasts commonable, as Horses, Oxen, Kine, and Sheep; and not of Goats, Hogs, and Geese. But some make this Difference, that Common Appurtenant may be severed from the Land whereto it pertains; but not Common Appendant, which, according to Sir Edward Coke, had this Beginning: When a Lord enfeofed another of arable Land, to hold of him in Socage, the Feoffee to maintain the Service of his Plough, had at first, by the Curtesy or Permission of the Lord, Common in his Wastes for necessary Beasts to ear and compost his Land, and that for two Causes; one, for that it was tacitly implied in the Feoffment, by Reason the Feoffee could not till or compost his Land without Cattle, and Cattle could not be sustained without Pasture; so by Consequence the Feoffee had, as a Thing necessary and incident, Common in the Waste and Lands of the Lord: And this may be collected from the antient Books and Statutes: And the second Reason of this Common was, for the Maintenance and Advantage of Tillage, which is much regarded and favoured by the Law. F. N. B. 180. 4 Rep. 37. Common per Cause de Vicinage, Common by Reason of Neighbourhood, is a Liberty that the Tenants of one Lord in one Town have to common with the Tenants of another Lord in another Town: It is where the Tenants of two Lords have used Time out of Mind to have Common promiscuously in both Lordships, lying together and open to one another. 8 Rep. 78. And those that challenge this Kind of Common, which is usually called Intercommoning, may not put their Cattle in the Common of the other Lord, for then they are distrainable; but they may turn them into their own Fields, and if they stray into the Neighbour-Common, they must be suffered. Terms de Ley 146. The Inhabitants of one Town or Lordship may not put in as many Beasts as they will, but with Regard to the Freehold of the Inhabitants of the other; for otherwise it were no good Neighbourhood, upon which all this depends. Ibid. If one Lord encloses the Common, the other Town cannot then common; but tho' the Common of Vicinage is gone, Common Appendant remains. 7 Rep. 5. 4 Rep. 38. Every Common per Cause de Vicinage is a Common Appendant. 1 Danv. Abr. 799. Common Appendant is only to antient arable Land; not to a House, Meadow, Pasture, &c. It is against the Nature of Common Appendant, to be appendant to Meadow or Pasture: But if in the Beginning Land be arable, and of late a House hath been built on some Part of the Land, and some Acres are employ'd to Meadow and Pasture, in such Case it is appendant; tho' it must be pleaded as appendant to the Land, and not to the House, Pasture, &c. 1 Nelf. Abr. 457. Common Appendant is of Common Right; but it is not Common Appendant, unless it has been appendant Time out of Mind. 1 Danv. 746. It may be upon Condition; be for all the Year, or for a certain Time; or for a certain Number of Beasts, &c. by Usage: Tho' it ought to be for such Cattle as plough and compost the Land, to which it is appendant. Ibid. 797. Magna Averia are Horses, Oxen, &c. all Manner of Cattle except Sheep and Yearlings. 2 Roll. Rep. 173. Common Appendant may be to Common in a Field after the Corn is sever'd, 'till the Ground is resown: So it may be to have Common in a Meadow after the Hay is carried off the same 'till Candlemas, &c. Yelv. 185. This Common, which is in its Nature without Number, by Custom may be limited as to the Beasts: Common Appurtenant ought always to be for those Levant and Couchant, and may be Sans Number. Plowd. 161. A Man may prescribe to have Common Appurtenant for all Manner of Cattle, at every Season in the Year. 25 Aff. 8. Common by Prescription for all Manner of commonable Cattle as belonging to a Tenement, &c. must be for Cattle Levant and Couchant upon the Land, (which is so many as the Land will maintain) or it will not be good: And if a Person grants common sans Number, the Grantee cannot put in so many Cattle, but that the Grantor may have sufficient Common in the same Land. 1 Danv. Abr. 798, 799. He who hath Common Appendant or Appurtenant, can keep but a Number of Cattle proportionable to his Land; for he can common with no more than the Lands to which his Common belongs is able to maintain. 3 Salk. 93. Common Appurtenant may be to a House, Pasture, &c. tho' Common Appendant cannot; but it ought to be prescribed for, as against Common Right: And un*commonable* Cattle, as Hogs, Goats, &c. are appurtenant: This Common may be created by Grant at this Day; so may not Common appendant. 1 Inst. 122. 1 Roll. Abr. 398. If a Man grant Common to another in Land wherein he hath nothing, if he afterwards purchases the Land, this shall be a good Common appurtenant: And it is not necessary that he should have the Land at the Time of the Grant. 1 Danv. 800. If A. hath Common in the Lands of B. as appurtenant to a Messuage, and after B. enfeoffs A. of the said Lands, whereby the Common is extinguished; and then A. leases to B. the said Messuage and Lands, with all Commons, &c. Occupat vel usitat cum pred. Messuagio, this is a good Grant of a new Common for the Time. Cro. Eliz. 570. Where a Person purchases Part of the Land wherein he hath Common, the whole Common is extinct and gone. Cro. Eliz. 594. If several Persons are severally seised of several Parts of a Common, and a Commoner purchases the Inheritance of one Part, his entire Common is extinct. 1 And. 159. When a Man hath Common Appendant for a certain Number of Cattle, and to a certain Parcel of Land, if he sell Part of it, the Common is not extinguished: But 'tis otherwise in Common Appurtenant. 1 Nels. 460. Common Appurtenant for a certain Number of Beasts may be granted over. 1 Danv. 802. A Man may use Common Appurtenant to his Manor with Cattle which are for his Household; tho' it is said he cannot use it with Cattle which are to sell. Ibid. Lords of Manors may depasture in Commons where their Tenants put in Cattle; and a Prescription to exclude the Lord is against Law. 1 Inst. 122. The Commoner cannot use Common but with his own proper Cattle: But if he hath not any Cattle to manure the Land, he may borrow other Cattle to manure it, and use the Common with them; for by the Loan, they are in a Manner made his own Cattle. 1 Danv. 798. Grantee of Common Appurtenant, for a certain Number of Cattle, cannot common with the Cattle of a Stranger: He that hath Common in Grofs, may put in the Cattle of a Stranger, and use the Common with such Cattle. Ibid. 803. Common Appendant or Appurtenant can't be made Common in Grofs: And Approvement extends not to Common in Grofs. 2 Inst. 86. The Lord may agist the Cattle of a Stranger in the Common, by Prescription: And he may licence a Stranger to put in his Cattle, if he leaves sufficient Room for the Commoners. 1 Danv. 795. 2 Mod. 6. Also the Lord may surcharge, &c. an Overplus of the Common: And if, where there is not an Overplus, the Lord surcharges the Common, the Commoners are not to distrain his Beasts; but must commence an Action against the Lord. F. N. B. 125. But it is said, if the Lord of the Soil put in Cattle into a Close, contrary to Custom, when it ought to lie fresh, a Commoner may take the Cattle Damage-feasant: Otherwise it is a general Rule that he cannot distrain the Cattle of the Lord. 1 Danv. 807. A Commoner may distrain Beasts put into the Common by a Stranger, or every Commoner may bring Action of the Case, where Damage is received. 9 Rep. 112. But one Commoner cannot distrain the Cattle of another Commoner, tho' he may those of a Stranger, who hath no Right to the Common. 2 Lutw. 1238. The Lord may distrain where the Common is surcharged; and bring Action of Trespas for any Trespas done in the Common. 9 Rep. 113. Where a Commoner surcharges the Common, the other Commoners may have a Writ of Admeasurement; and Admeasurement is to be according to the Quality and Quantity of the Freehold, and for all the Cattle which are upon the Land. It lies only by one Commoner against another; and not against a Commoner sans Number; nor against the Lord, in which Case there must be an Affise. 1 Danv. 809. If a Man be disseised of his Common, he shall have an Affise. New Nat. Br. 399. If any Commoner incloses, or builds on the Common, every Commoner may have an Action for the Damage. Where Turf is taken away from the Common, the Lord only is to bring the Action: But 'tis said the Commoners may have an Action for the Trespas, by entering on the Common, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 89, 398. 2 Leon. 201. A Commoner cannot dig Clay on the Common, which destroys the Grass, and carrying it away doth Damage to the Ground; so that the other Commoners can't enjoy the Common in tam amplo modo as they ought. Godb. 344. Also a Commoner may not cut Bushes, dig Trenches, &c. in the Common, without a Custom to do it. 1 Nels. 462. If he makes any Thing de novo, he is a Trespasser: He can do nothing to impair the Common; but may reform a Thing abused, fill up Holes, dig down Mole-hills, &c. for Improvement. 1 Brownl. 208. A Lord may make a Pond on the Common: But the Lord cannot dig Pits for Gravel or Coal; the Statutes of Approvement being only by Inclosure. 3 Inst. 204. 1 Sid. 106. If the Lord make a Warren on the Common, the Commoners may not kill the Conies; but are to bring their Action, for they may not be their own Judges. 1 Roll. 90, 405. The Property of the Soil in the Common is entirely in the Lord; but the Use of it, jointly in him and the the Commoners. No Commoner can take the Grass that grows on the Common, otherwise than by depasturing it; nor can he meddle with the Soil: But if the Owner of the Soil set up a Hedge on the Common, the Commoner may throw it down. 15 H. 7. A Commoner may abate Hedges erected on a Common; for tho' the Lord hath an Interest in the Soil, by abating the Hedges, the Commoner doth not meddle with it. 2 Mod. 65. By Statute, Lords may approve against their Tenants, viz. inclose Part of the Waste, &c. and thereby discharge it from being Common, leaving Common sufficient; and Neighbours as well as Tenants claiming Common of Pasture, shall be bound by it. 20 H. 3. c. 4. If the Lord encloses on the Common, and leaves not Common sufficient, the Commoners may not only break down the Inclosures; but may put in their Cattle, although the Lord ploughs and sows the Land. 2 Inst. 88. 1 Roll. Abr. 406. Upon Agreement between two Commoners to enclose a Common, a Party having Interest not privy to the Agreement, will not be bound, but one or Two wilful Persons shall not hinder the publick Good. Chanc. Rep. 48. Commons must be driven yearly; infected Horses, and Stone-Horses under Size, &c. are not to be put into Commons, by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 13. New erected Cottages, tho' they have four Acres of Ground laid to them, ought not to have Common in the Waste. 2 Inst. 740. In Law Proceedings, where there are two distinct Commons, the two Titles must be shewn: Cattle are to be alledged commonable; and Common ought to be in Lands commonable. And the Place is to be set forth where the Messuage and Lands lie, &c. to which the Common belongs. 1 Nelf. Abr. 462, 463.

Common of Estovers, Is a Right of taking Wood out of another Man's Woods; for House-bote, Plough-bote, and Hay-bote. What Botes are necessary, Tenants may take, notwithstanding no Mention be made thereof in their Leases: But if the Tenant take more House-bote than is needful, he may be punished for Waste. Terms de Ley 387, 396. Tenants for Life may take upon the Land demised reasonable Estovers, unless restrained by Special Covenant: And every Tenant for Years hath three Kinds of Estovers incident to his Estate. 1 Inst. 41. When a House having Estovers appendant or appurtenant, is blown down by Wind, if the Owner rebuilds it in the same Place and Manner as before, his Estovers shall continue: So if he alters the Rooms and Chambers, without making new Chimneys; but if he erect any new Chimneys, he will not be allowed to spend any Estovers in such new Chimneys. 4 Rep. 87. 4 Leon. 383. In all Cases where the Alterations to a House do no Prejudice to the Tertenant or Owner of the Land or Wood, the Estovers will remain. 4 Rep. 87.

Common of Piscary, Is a Liberty of Fishing in another Man's Water. Common of Piscary to exclude the Owner of the Soil, is contrary to Law: But a Person by Prescription may have a separate Right of Fishing in such Water, and the Owner of the Soil be excluded; for a Man may grant the Water, without passing the Soil. And if one grant Separalem Piscariam, neither the Soil nor the Water pass, but only a Right of Fishing. 1 Inst. 4, 122, 164. 5 Rep. 34. No Person shall fish in any River without the Owner's Consent, under Penalties. And Nets, Angles, &c. shall be seized and destroy'd, by Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 25. Fish are not to be taken or sold under certain Sizes. 1 Geo. c. 16. See Fish and Fishing.

Common of Turbary, Is a License to dig Turf upon the Ground of another, or in the Lord's Waste. This Common is appendant or appurtenant to an House, not to Land; for Turfs are to be burnt in the House: And it may be in Gross; but it does not give any Right to the Land, Trees, or Mines. It cannot exclude the Owner of the Soil. 1 Inst. 4. 4 Rep. 37.

There's Common or Liberty of digging Coals, Gravel, Sand, &c. as well as Turf.

Common Bench, (Bancus Communis, from the Sax. Banc, Bank, and thence metaphorically a Bench, high Seat or Tribunal). The Court of Common Pleas was antiently called Common Bench, because Communia Placita inter subditos ex jure nostro, quod Commune vocant, in hoc disceptantur: That is, the Pleas or Controversies between common Persons are there tried and determined. Camb. Britan. 113. In Law-Books and References the Court of Common Pleas is writ C. B. from Communi Banco. And the Justices of that Court are stiled Jusficiarii de Banco. See Common Pleas.

Common Day in Plea of Land, Signifies an ordinary Day in Court, as Ostabis Hillarii, Quindena Pasche, &c. It is mentioned in 13 R. 2. Stat. 1. c. 17. And in the Statute 51 Hen. 3. concerning general Days in Bank.

Common Fine, (Finis Communis) Is a small Sum of Money, which the Reliants within the Liberty of some Lects pay to the Lords, called in divers Places Head-Silver or Head-pence, in others Cert-Money; and was first granted to the Lord, towards the Charge of his Purchase of the Court-Lect, whereby the Reliants have the Ease to do their Suit within their own Manors, and are not compellable to go to the Sheriff's Turn: In the Manor of Sheaphead in the County of Leicester, every Reliant pays 1d. per Poll to the Lord at the Court held after Michaelmas, which is there called Common Fine. For this Common Fine the Lord may distrain; but he cannot do it without a Prescription. 11 Rep. 44. There is also Common Fine of the County. — Quod Communes Misericordie, vel Fines Comitatum amerciatorum in Finibus itinerum Jusficiariorum, &c. Fleta, lib. 7. c. 48. See Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 18.

Commons House of Parliament, Is the Lower House of Parliament, so called, because the Commons of the Realm, that is, the Knights, Citizens, and Burgeesses return'd to Parliament, representing the whole Body of the Commons, do sit there. Crompt. Jurisd. See Parliament.

Common Intendment, Is common Meaning or Understanding, according to the Subject Matter, not strain'd to any extraordinary or foreign Sense: Bar to Common Intendment is an ordinary or general Bar, which commonly disables the Plaintiff's Declaration. There are several Cases in the Law where Common Intendment, and Intendment take Place: And of Common Intendment, a Will shall not be suppos'd to be made by Collusion. Co. Lit. 78.

Common Law, (Lex Communis) Is taken for the Law of this Kingdom, simply, without any other Laws; for such Laws as were generally holden before any Statute was enacted in Parliament to alter them: And for the King's Courts of Justice, called the Common Law Courts. The Common Law is grounded upon the general Customs of the Realm; and includes in it, the Law of Nature, or of Reason, the Law of God, and the Principles and Maxims of the Law: It is founded upon Reason; and is said to be the Perfection of Reason, acquired by long Study, Observation and Experience, and refined by Learned Men in all Ages. And it is the common Birth-right, that the Subject hath for the Safe-guard and Defence, not only of his Goods, Lands, and Revenues; but of his Wife and Children, Body, Fame, and Life also. Co. Lit. 97, 142. Treatise of Laws, p. 2. See my Common Law Common-plac'd, p. 110. As to the Rise of the Common Law, this Account is given by some antient Writers: After the Decay of the Roman Empire, three Sorts of the German People invaded the Britons, viz. the Saxons, the Angles, and the Jutes; from the last sprung the Kentish Men, and the Inhabitants of the Isle of Wight; from the Saxons came the People called East, South and West Saxons; and from the Angles, the East-Angles, Mercians and Northumbrians: These People having different Customs, they inclined to the different Laws by which their Ancestors were governed; but the Customs of the West-Saxons and Mercians, who dwelt in the Midland Counties, being preferred before the rest, were for that Reason called Jus Anglorum; and by these Laws those People were govern'd for many Ages: But the East-Saxons having afterwards been subdued by the Danes, their Customs were introduc'd, and a third Law was substituted, which was called Dane-Lage; as the other was stiled West-Saxon Lage, &c. At length the Danes being overcome by the Normans, William called the Conqueror, upon Consideration of all those Laws and Customs, abrogated some, and establish'd others; to which he added some of his own Country Laws, which he judg'd most to conduce to the Preservation of the Peace: And this is what we now call the Common Law. But tho' we usually Date the Common Law from hence, this was not the Original of the Common Law; for Ethelbert, the first Christian King of this Nation, made the first Saxon Laws, which were published by the Advice of some Wise Men of his Council: And King Alfred, who lived 300 Years afterwards, being the first sole Monarch after the Heptarchy, collected all the Saxon Laws into one Book, and commanded them to be observed thro' the whole Kingdom, which before only affected certain Parts thereof; and it was therefore properly called the Common Law, because it was Common to the whole Nation; and soon after it was called the Folk Right, i. e. the People's Right. Alfred was stiled Anglicarum Legum Conditor: And when the Danes had introduc'd their Laws, on the Conquest of the Kingdom, they were afterwards destroy'd; and Edward the Confessor out of former Laws compos'd a Body of the Common Law; wherefore he is called by our Historians Anglicarum Legum Restitutor. Blount. In the Reign of Edw. 1. Britton wrote his learned Book of the Common Law of this Realm, which was done by the King's Command, and runs in his Name, answerable to the Institutions of the Civil Law which Justinian assumes to himself, tho' compos'd by others. Staundf. Prerog. 6, 21. This Britton is mentioned by Gavin to be Bishop of Hereford. Bracton, a great Lawyer, in the Time of Hen. 3. wrote a very learned Treatise of the Common Law of England, held in great Estimation; and is said to be Lord Chief Justice of the Kingdom. And the famous and learned Glanvil, Lord Chief Justice in the Reign of Hen. 2. writ a Book of the Common Law, which is said to be the most antient Composition extant on that Subject. Besides these, in the Time of King Ed. 4. the renowned Lawyer Littleton wrote his excellent Book of English Tenures. In King James the First's Reign, the great Oracle of the Law, Sir Edward Coke, published his learned and laborious Institutes of our Law, and Commentaries on Littleton. About the same Time likewise Dr. Cowel, a Civilian, wrote a short Institute of our Laws. And in the Reign of King George, Dr. Tho. Wood, a Civilian and Common Lawyer, and at last Divine, wrote an Institute of the Laws of England, which is something after the Manner of the Institutes of the Civil Law.

Common Pleas, (Communia Placita) Is one of the King's Courts now constantly held in Westminster-Hall; but in antient Time moveable, as appears by Magna Charta, c. 11. Gwyn, in the Preface of his Readings, says, That 'till Hen. 3. granted the Great Charter there were but two Courts, called the King's Courts, viz. The King's Bench and the Exchequer, which was then stiled Curia Domini Regis, and Aula Regis, because they followed the Court or King; and that upon the Grant of that Charter, the Court of Common Pleas was erected and settled in one certain Place, i. e. Westminster-Hall; and after that, all the Writs ran Quod sit coram Justiciariis meis apud Westm. whereas before, the Party was required by them to appear, Coram me vel Justiciariis meis, without any Addition of Place, &c. as he observes out of the Writings of Glanvil and Bracton. But Sir Edw. Coke is of Opinion, in his Preface to the eighth Report, that the Court of Common Pleas was constituted before the Conquest; and was not created by Magna Charta, at which Time there were Justiciarii de Banco, &c. Tho' before this Act, Common Pleas might have been held in Banco Regis; and all original Writs were returnable there. Writs returnable in this Court, are now coram Justiciariis nostris apud Westm. But Writs returnable in B. R. are, coram nobis ubicunque fuerimus in Anglia. The Jurisdiction of this Court is general, and extends it self throughout England: It holds Plea of all Civil Causes at Common Law, between Subject and Subject, in Actions real, personal, and mix'd; and it seems to have been the only Court for Real Causes. In personal and mix'd Actions it hath a concurrent Jurisdiction with the King's Bench: But it hath no Cognizance of Pleas of the Crown; and Common Pleas are all Pleas that are not such. This Court cannot regularly hold Plea in any Action, real or personal, &c. but by Writ out of Chancery returnable here; except it be by Bill for or against an Officer, or other privileged Person of the Court. All Actions belonging to this Court, come hither either by Original, as Arrests and Outlawries; or by Privilege or Attachment, for or against privileged Persons; or out of inferior Courts, not of Record, by Pone, Recordare, Accedas ad Curiam, Writ of False Judgment, &c. Actions Popular, and Actions Penal, as of Debt, &c. upon any Statute, are cognizable by this Court: And besides having Jurisdiction for Punishment of its Officers and Ministers; the Court of Common Pleas may grant Prohibitions to keep Temporal and Ecclesiastical Courts within due Bounds. 4 Inst. 99, 100, 118. In this Court are four Judges, created by Letters Patent; of whom the Chief Justice is a Lord by his Office: The Seal of the Court is committed to the Custody of the Chief Justice. The other Officers of the Common Pleas are, are, the Custos Brevium, three Prothonotaries and their Secondaries, the Clerk of the Warrants, Clerk of the Effoins, fourteen Filizers, four Exigents, a Clerk of the Furies, the Chirographer, Clerk of the King's Silver, the Clerk of the Treasury, Clerk of the Seal, of Outlawries, and the Clerk of the Involment of Fines and Recoveries, Clerk of the Errors, &c. The Custos Brevium is the Chief Clerk in this Court, who receives and keeps all Writs returnable therein; and all Records of Nisi Prius, which are delivered to him by the Clerks of the Assise of every Circuit, &c. and he files the Rolls together, and carries them into the Treasury of Records: He also makes out Exemptions, and Copies of all Writs and Records, &c. The Prothonotaries enter and enrol all Declarations, Pleadings, Judgments, &c. and they make out all judicial Writs, Writs of Execution, Writs of Privilege, Procedendo's, &c. The Secondaries are Assistants to the Prothonotaries in the Execution of their Offices; and they take Minutes, and draw up all Orders and Rules of Court. The Filizers, who have the several Counties of England divided among them, make out all mesne Process, as Capias, Alias, Pluries, &c. between the Original Writ, and the Declaration; and they make all Writs of View &c. The Exigents, appointed for several Counties, make out all Exigents and Proclamations in order to Outlawry. For the Clerk of the Effoins, the Furies, Warrants, and other Clerks of this Court, vide verb. Clerk, &c. And to the above Officers may be added, a Proclamator of the Court; a Keeper of the Court; Cryer; and Tipstiffs; besides the Warden of the Fleet. There are also Attornies of this Court, whose Number is unlimited; and none may plead at the Bar of the Court, or sign any special Pleadings, but Serjeants at Law.

Common Prayer, (Preces Publice) Is the Liturgy or Prayers used in our Church. It is the particular Duty of Clergymen every Sunday, &c. to use the publick Form of Prayer prescribed by the Book of Common Prayer: And if any Incumbent be Resident upon his Living, as he ought to be, and keep a Curate, he is obliged by the Act of Uniformity once every Month at least, to read the Common Prayers of the Church, according as they are directed by the Book of Common Prayer, in his Parish Church, in his own Person, or he shall forfeit 5*l.* for every Time he fails therein. Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 4. Also by that Statute the Book of Common Prayer is to be provided in every Parish, under the Penalty of 3*l.* a Month: And the Common Prayer is to be read before every Lecture; the Whole appointed for the Day, with all the Circumstances, and Ceremonies, &c. And by one of the Canons of the Church, Ministers before all Sermons, are to move the People to join in a short Prayer, for the Catholic Church; and the whole Congregation of Christian People, &c. for the King and Royal Family; the Ministers of God's Word, Nobility, Magistrates, and whole Commons of the Realm, &c. and conclude with the Lord's Prayer. Can. 55. Refusing to use the Common Prayer; or using any other open Prayers, &c. is punishable by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 2. See Church.

Commorance, (Commorantia, from Commoro) An Abiding, Dwelling or Continuing in any Place; as an Inhabitant of a House in a Vill, &c. And Commorancy for a certain Time, may make a Settlement in a Parish. Dalt. See Poor.

Commonth, or Comoth, (Comortha) From the Brit. Cymmorth, i. e. Subsidium; a Contribution which was gathered at Marriages, and when young Priests said or sung their first Masses, &c. 4 Hen. 4. cap. 27. But the 26 H. 8. cap. 6. prohibits the Levying any such in Wales, or the Marches, &c.

Commote, In Wales is Half a Cantred or Hundred, containing fifty Villages. Stat. Wallie. 12 Ed. 1. Wales was anciently divided into three Provinces; North-Wales, South-Wales and West-Wales; and each of these were again subdivided into Cantreds, and every Cantred into Commotes. Dodrige's Hist. Wal. f. l. 2. And Brecknockshire is found to have three Cantreds, and eight Commotes. Commote also signifies a great Seigniorship or Lordship, and may include one or divers Manors. Co. Lit. 5.

Communance. The Commoners, or Tenants and Inhabitants, who had the Right of Common, or Commoning in open Fields, &c. were formerly called the Communance. Cowel.

Commune Concilium Regni Angliæ, The Common Council of the King and People assembled in Parliament.

Communia placita non tenenda in Scaccario, Is a Writ directed to the Treasurer and Barons of the Exchequer, forbidding them to hold Plea between common Persons in that Court, where neither of the Parties belong to the same. Reg. Orig. 187.

Communi Custodia, A Writ which anciently lay for the Lord, whose Tenant holding by Knights-Service died, and left his eldest Son under Age, against a Stranger that entered the Land, and obtained the Ward of the Body. F. N. B. 89. Reg. Orig. 161. Since the Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. hath taken away Wardships, this Writ is become of no Use.

Communication, (Communicatio) A Taking, Consultation or Conferring with, where there is only a Discourse between two or more, without coming to any Agreement. Blount.

Companage, (Fr.) Is all Kind of Food, except Bread and Drink: And the learned Spelman interprets it to be Quicquid cibi cum pane sumitur. In the Manor of Feskerton in the County of Nottingham, some Tenants when they performed their Boons or Work-days to their Lords, had three Boon Loaves with Companage allowed them. Reg. de Thurgarton cited in Antiq. Nottingham.

Companion of the Garter, Is one of the Knights of that most noble Order; at the Head of which is the King, as Sovereign. 24 Hen. 8. cap. 13.

Compellatibum, An Adversary or Accuser. — Episcopus in Compellativum adlegationem docere ne quis alium perperam cogat jurejurando vel in Ordalio. Leg. Athelstan.

Compertorium, A judicial Inquest in the Civil Law, made by Delegates, or Commissioners to find out and relate the Truth of a Cause. Paroch. Antiq. 575.

Composition, (Compositio) An Agreement or Contract between a Parson, Patron and Ordinary, &c. for Money or other Thing in Lieu of Tithes. Land may be exempted from the Payment of Tithes, where Compositions have been made: And Real Compositions for Tithes are to be made by the concurrent Consent of the Parson, Patron and Ordinary. Real Compositions are distindistinguished from Personal Contracts; for a Composition called a Personal Contract is only an Agreement between the Parson and Parishioners, to pay so much instead of Tithes; and though such an Agreement is confirmed by the Ordinary, yet that doth not make it a Real Composition, because he ought to be a Party to the Deed of Composition. March's Rep. 87. The Compositions for Tithes made by the Consent of the Parson, Patron and Ordinary, by Virtue of 13 Eliz. cap. 10. shall not bind the Successor unless made for 21 Years, or three Lives, as in case of Leases of Ecclesiastical Corporations, &c. Compositions were at first for a valuable Consideration, so that tho' in Process of Time upon the Increase of the Value of the Lands, such Compositions do not amount to the Value of the Tithes, yet Custom prevails, and from hence arises what we call a Modus decimandi. Hob. 297. The Word Composition hath likewise another Meaning, i. e. Decisio Litis.

Compositio Mensurarum, Is the Title of an ancient Ordinance for Measures, not printed, mentioned in the Statute 23 H. 8. c. 4.

Comprint, Intends a surreptitious Printing of another Bookfeller's Copy, to make Gain thereby, which is contrary to the Stat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 33. and other Statutes.

Compromise, (Compromissum) Is defined to be a mutual Promise of two or more Parties at Difference, to refer the Ending of their Controversy to Arbitrators: And West says it is the Faculty or Power of pronouncing Sentence between Persons at Variance, given to Arbitrators by the Parties private Consent, without publick Authority. West's Symb. Sect. 1. Matters compromised, are also Matters of Law referred, or made an End of.

Compurgator, One that by Oath justifies another's Innocence. See Oath.

Computation, (Computatio) Is the true Account and Construction of Time; and to the End neither Party to an Agreement, &c. may do Wrong to the other, nor the Determination of Time be left at large, it is to be taken according to the just Judgment of the Law. A Deed dated the 20th Day of August, to hold from the Day of the Date, shall be construed to begin on the 21st Day of August: But if in the Habendum it be to hold from the Making, or from thenceforth, it shall begin on the Day delivered. 1 Inst. 46. 5 Rep. 1. If an Indenture of Lease dated the 4th Day of July, made for three Years from thenceforth, be delivered at four of the Clock in the Afternoon of the said 4th Day of July, the Lease shall end the 3d Day of July in the third Year: And the Law in this Computation rejects all Fractions or Divisions of the Day. Blount. But some have held that Rent is not due on the Day limited to be paid, till the Middle of the Day, and after Noon; in case a Tenant for Life dies at such a critical Juncture, &c. See Day and Month.

Computation of Miles, Is according to the English Manner, allowing 5280 Feet, or 1760 Yards to each Mile; and the same shall be reckoned not by strait Lines, as a Bird or Arrow may fly, but according to the nearest and most usual Way. Cro. Eliz. 212.

Comptur, (Lat.) Is a Writ to compel a Bailiff, Receiver or Accountant, to yield up his Accounts: It is founded on the Statute of Westm. 2. cap. 12. And also lies against Guardians, &c. Reg. Orig. 135.

Concealers, (Concelatores, so called à concelando, as Mons à movendo, by an Antiphrasis) Are such as find out concealed Lands, i. e. such Lands as are privily kept from the King by common Persons, having nothing to shew for their Title or Estate therein. 39 Eliz. c. 22. There are Concealers of Crimes; and Concealing Treason, &c. when Misprision, see Misprision.

Concessi, A Word of frequent Use in Conveyances, creating a Covenant in Law; as Dedi makes a Warranty. Co. Lit. 384.

Concionatores, Common Council-Men, Free-men called to the Hall or Assembly, as most worthy. — Quodam tempore cum convenissent Concionatores apud London, &c. Histor. Elien. Edit. Gale, cap. 46.

Conclusion, (Conclusio) Is when a Man by his own Act upon Record hath charged himself with a Duty or other Thing, or confessed any Matter whereby he shall be concluded: As if a Sheriff returns that he hath taken the Body upon a Capias, and hath not the Body in Court at the Day of the Return of the Writ; by the Return, the Sheriff is concluded from Plea of Escape, &c. Terms de Ley 153. And in another Sense this Word Conclusion signifies the End of any Plea, Replication, &c. and every Plea ought to have its proper Conclusion; as a Plea to the Writ is to conclude to the Writ; a Plea in Bar, to conclude to the Action, &c. Conclusion of Plea in Bar shall be, Et hoc paratus est verificare: Of other Pleas, Et de hoc ponit se super Patriam. Kitch. 219, 220.

Concord, (Concordia) Is an Agreement made between two or more, upon a Trespass committed; and is divided into Concord executory, and Concord executed: And according to Plowden, one binds not, as being imperfect, but the other is absolute, and ties the Party. Though by some Opinions, Agreements executory are perfect, and bind no less than Agreements executed. Plowd. 5, 6, 8. These Concords and Agreements are by Way of Satisfaction for the Trespass, &c. Concord is also an Agreement between Parties, who intend the Levying of a Fine of Lands one to the other, how and in what Manner the Lands shall pass: It is the Foundation and Substance of the Fine, taken and acknowledged by the Party before one of the Judges of C. B. or by Commissioners in the Country, and begins thus: Et est Concordia talis scilicet quod prad. A. B. recogn. Tenementa prad. cum pertin' esse jus ipsius C. D. ut ill. qua idem C. D. h'et de Dono prad. A. B. Et ill. remisit. Et quiet. clam. de se & Hared. suis prasat. C. & Hared. suis imperpetuum, &c.

Concubaria, A Fold, Pen or Place, where Cattle lie together. Cowel.

Concubinage, (Concubinatus) In common Acceptation is the Keeping of a Whore or Concubine: But in a legal Sense, it is used as an Exception against her that sueth for Dower, alledging thereby that she was not a Wife lawfully married to the Party, in whose Lands she seeks to be endowed, but his Concubine. Britt. cap. 107. Braff. lib. 4. tract. 6. cap. 8. There was a Concubinage allowed in Scripture to the Patriarchs, secundum legem Matrimonii, &c. Blount.

Conders, (from the Fr. Conduire, to conduct) Are such as stand upon high Places, near the Sea-Coast, at the Time of Herring-Fishing, to make Signs with Boughs, &c. to the Fishermen at Sea, which Way the Shole of Herrings passeth; for this may be better discovered by such as stand stand upon some high Cliff on the Shore, by Reason of a Kind of blue Colour which the Herrings cause in the Water, than by those that are in the Ships or Boats for Fishing. These are otherwise called Huers and Balkers, Directors and Guiders, as appears by the Stat. 1 Jac. c. 23.

Condis, A Ridge of Land. — Quandam parcellam cujusdam Condis juxta Campum ipsorum. Du Cange.

Condition, (Conditio) Is a Restraint or Bridle annexed to a Thing, so that by the Non-performance, the Party to it shall receive Prejudice and Loss; and by the Performance, Commodity and Advantage: Or it is a Restriction of Men's Acts, qualifying or suspending the same, and making them uncertain whether they shall take Effect or not; also 'tis defined to be what is referred to an uncertain Chance, which may happen or not happen. West's Symb. part 1. lib. 2. sect. 156. And of Conditions there are divers Kinds, viz. Conditions in Deed, and in Law; Conditions Precedent, and Subsequent; Conditions Inherent, and Collateral, &c. A Condition in Deed is that which is knit by express Words to a Feoffment, Lease, or other Grant; as if a Man makes a Lease of Lands to another, reserving a Rent to be paid at such a Feast, upon Condition if the Lessee fail in Payment at the Day, then it shall be lawful for the Lessor to enter. Condition in Law is when a Person grants to another an Office, as that of a Park, Steward, Bailiff, &c. for Term of Life; here though there be no Condition expressed in the Grant, yet the Law makes one, which is if the Grantee do not justly execute all Things belonging to the Office, it shall be lawful for the Grantor to enter and discharge him of his Office. Litt. lib. 3. cap. 5. These Conditions are also called Condition expressed, and Condition implied. Condition Precedent is when a Lease or Estate is granted to one for Life, upon Condition that if the Lessee pay to the Lessor a certain Sum at such a Day, then he shall have Fee-simple: In this Case the Condition precedes the Estate in Fee, and on Performance thereof gains the Fee-simple. Condition Subsequent is when a Man grants to another his Manor of Dale, &c. in Fee, upon Condition that the Grantee shall pay to him at such a Day such a certain Sum, or that his Estate shall cease; here the Condition is subsequent and following the Estate, and upon the Performance thereof continues and preserves the same: So that a Condition Precedent doth get and gain the Thing or Estate made upon Condition, by the Performance of it; as a Condition Subsequent keeps and continues the Estate, by the Performance of the Condition. 1 Inst. 201, 325. Terms de Ley 156. If one agree to do such an Act, and for the Doing thereof the other shall pay so much Money; here the Doing the Act is a Condition Precedent to the Payment of the Money, and the Party shall not be compelled to pay till the Act is done: But where a Day is appointed for the Payment of Money, which Day happens before the Thing contracted for can be performed, there the Money may be recovered before the Thing is done; for here it appears that the Party did not intend to make the Performance of the Thing a Condition Precedent. 3 Salk. 95. Inherent Conditions are such as descend to the Heir, with the Land granted, &c. And Collateral Condition is that which is annexed to any collateral Act. Conditions are likewise Affirmative, which consist of doing; Negative, and consist of not doing: Some are Compulsory, and some Copulative, and others Disjunctive. Conditions may be to any Estate, whether in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years. They run with the Estate, and bind in whosoever's Hands they come. Litt. Rep. 128. But a Condition may not be made but on the Part of the Lessor, Donor, &c. For no Man may annex a Condition to an Estate, but he that doth create the Estate itself. Conditions are good to enlarge or limit Estates: And there are four Incidents, which Conditions to create and increase an Estate ought to have. 1. They should have a particular Estate, as a Foundation whereupon the Increase of the greater Estate, shall be built. 2. Such particular Estate shall continue in the Lessee or Grantee, until the Increase happens. 3. It must vest at the Time the Contingency happens, or it shall never vest. 4. The particular Estate and Increase must take Effect by the same Deed, or by several Deeds delivered at the same Time. 8 Rep. 75. Conditions to create Estates shall be favourably construed: But Conditions which tend to destroy, or restrain an Estate, shall be taken strictly. A Feoffment upon Condition, that the Feoffee shall not alien, is void: But a Condition in a Feoffment not to alien for a particular Time, or to a particular Person, may be good. Hob. 13, 261. And if a Condition is that Tenant in Tail, shall not alien in Fee, &c. or Tenant for Life or Years, not alien during the Term, these Conditions are good: Where the Reversion of an Estate is in the Donor, he may restrain an Alienation by Condition. 10 Rep. 39. 1 Inst. 222. A Liberty inseparable from an Estate, cannot be restrained; and therefore a Condition that a Tenant in Tail shall not levy a Fine, within the Stat. 4 H. 7. or suffer a Recovery; or not make a Lease, within the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. is void and repugnant. But if the Condition restrain levying a Fine at Common Law, it may be good. 2 Danv. Abr. 22. A Gift in Tail, or in Fee, upon Condition that a Feme shall not be endowed; or Baron be Tenant by the Curtesy, is repugnant and void. So is a Condition in a Lease, &c. that the Lessee shall not take the Profits: And where a Man grants a Rent-charge out of Land, provided it shall not charge the Land. Co. Litt. 146. Conditions repugnant to the Estate, impossible, &c. are void. And if they go before the Estate, the the Estate and Condition are void: If to follow it, the Estate is absolute, and the Condition void. 1 Inst. 206. 9 Rep. 128. But if at the Time of entering into a Condition, a Thing be possible to be done, and become afterwards impossible by the Act of God, the Estate of a Feoffee (created by Livery) shall not be avoided. 2 Mod. 204. A Feoffment in Fee is made upon Condition, that the Feoffee shall within a Year go to Rome, &c. If the Feoffee dies before the Year ended, yet the Estate of the Feoffee is become absolute; for the Estate once vested by the Livery, shall not be devested without Default in the Feoffee. Ibid. Where a Condition is of two Parts, one possible, and the other not so, it is a good Condition for performing that Part which is possible. Cro. Eliz. 780. Though if a Condition is of two Parts disjunctive, and one of them becomes impossible by the Act of God, the Person bound is not obliged to perform the other Part. 5 Rep. 22. If a Condition be in the Copulative, and is not possible to be performed, it may be taken in the Disjunctive. 1 Danv. Abr. 73. Where an Estate is to be wholly created upon a Condition impossible to be performed, ed, there the Estate shall never come in esse. 1 Leon. cap. 311. If a Woman makes a Feoffment to a Man that is married, upon Condition that he shall marry her; 'tis said this Condition is not impossible, for the Man's Wife may die, and then he may marry her. 2 Danv. 25. A Reversion may be granted in Tail upon Condition, that if the Grantee pays so much, he shall have Fee. 8 Rep. 73. But if a Man grants Land, &c. for Years, upon Condition that if the Lessee pay 20 s. within one Year, that he shall have it for Life; and that if he after the Year pay 20 s. he shall have Fee: Though both Sums are paid, he shall have but an Estate for Life; the Estate for Life, at the Time of the Grant, being only in Contingency, and a Possibility cannot increase upon a Possibility, nor can the Fee increase upon the Estate for Years. 8 Rep. 75. If a Lease be made to two, with Condition to have Fee, and one dies, the Survivor may perform the Condition, and have the Fee; but if they make Partition, the Condition is destroyed. 8 Rep. 75, 76. If a Feoffee grant the Reversion of Part of the Land, upon a Lease for Years, on which a Rent upon Condition is reserved, all the Condition is confounded and gone; though if the Lessee assign Part, the Condition remains, for he cannot discharge the Estate of the Condition. 2 Danv. Abr. 119. A Man makes a Feoffment upon Condition, and after levies a Fine to a Stranger, the Condition is gone. Ibid. 120. Condition that a Lessee shall not do Waste; if the Lessee permits the House to fall for Want of Reparation, it is doing Waste, and the Condition is broke. Ibid. 46. If a Feoffee upon Condition to infeoff another, infeoff a Stranger; or if it be to reinfeoff the Feoffor, and he grant the Land to another Person, upon Condition to perform the Condition, the Condition is broke, because the Feoffee hath disabled himself to do it: So where such Feoffee upon Condition to reinfeoff, &c. takes a Wife, that the Land is subject to the Dower of the Wife; and so if the Land is recovered, and Execution sued out by another, the Condition is broke. Co. Litt. 221. 1 Danv. 79. If a Condition be performed in Substance and Effect, it is "good although it differs in Words; as where it is to deliver Letters Patent, and the Party bound having lost them, delivers an Exemplification, &c. 2 Danv. 40. Tho' Payment of the Money before the Day, is Payment at the Day, in Performance of a Condition; yet a Feoffor, &c. cannot re-enter, and re-vest his old Estate by Force of the Condition, till the Day whereon the Condition gives him Power to re-enter. Ibid. 121. If a Man seised of Land in Right of his Wife, make a Feoffment in Fee on Condition, and dies; if the Heir of the Feoffor enters for the Condition broken, and defeats the Feoffment, his Estate vanishes, and presently it is vested in the Wife. Co. Litt. 202. And if a Person seised of Land, as Heir on the Part of his Mother, makes a Feoffment on Condition, and dieth; though the Heir on the Part of the Father, who is Heir at Common Law, may enter for the Condition broken, the Heir of the Part of the Mother shall enter upon him, and enjoy the Land. Ibid. 12. Where there is a Condition in a Feoffment or Lease, that if no Distress can be found, the Feoffor, &c. shall re-enter; if the Place is not open to the Distress, as if there be only a Cupboard in the House which is locked, &c. it is all one as if there were no Distress there, and the Feoffor, &c. may enter. 2 Danv.

46. Where a Rent is to be paid upon Condition at a certain Day, the Lessor cannot enter for the Condition broke, before Demand of the Rent. Ibid. 98. And the Lessor ought to demand the Rent at the Day, or the Condition shall not be broke by the Nonpayment of the Rent. A Re-entry may be given on a Feoffment, &c. though none be reserved. If one make a Lease for Life, or Feoffment upon Condition, that if the Feoffee or Lessee does such an Act, the Estate shall be void: Now although the Estate cannot be void before Entry, this is a good Condition, and shall give an Entry to the Lessor, &c. by Implication. 1 Roll. Abr. 408. A Lease for Life on Condition, being a Freehold, cannot cease without Entry; but if it be a Lease for Years, the Lease is void ipso facto, on Breach of the Condition, without Entry. 1 Inst. 214. If a Lease for Years is that on Breach of the Condition, the Term shall cease, the Term is ended without Entry; but where the Words are that the Lease shall be void, it is otherwise. Cro. Car. 511. 3 Rep. 64. Regularly where one will take Advantage of a Condition, if he may enter, he must do it; and if he cannot enter, he must make a Claim. Co. Litt. 218. No one can reserve the Power or Benefit of Re-entry, on Breach of a Condition, to any other but himself, his Heirs, Executors, &c. Parties and Privies, in Right and Representation: Privies in Law, Grantees of Reversions, &c. are to have no Advantage by it. But by Statute 32 Hen. 8. Grantees of Reversions may take Advantage against Lessees, &c. by Action. 1 Inst. 214, 215. Plowd. 175. Tenants by the Curtesy, Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, Tenant in Dower, for Life, or Years, &c. hold their Estates subject to a Condition in Law, not to grant a greater Estate than they have, nor to commit Waste, &c. 1 Inst. 233. Estates made to Infants, and Feme Coverts, upon Condition, shall bind them, because the Charge is on the Land. 2 Danv. 30. A Release of all a Man's Right, may be upon Condition: A Lessee may surrender upon Condition; a Contract may be upon Condition, &c. But a Parson cannot resign upon Condition, any more than be admitted upon Condition. A Condition cannot be released on Condition; nor may a Condition be reserved without Deed in Writing indented; though a Condition on the Back of a Lease, before the Execution thereof, may be good. 2 Danv. 11, 12. 9 Rep. 85. A Condition that would take away the whole Effect of a Grant, is void; and so it is if it be contrary to the express Words of it. A Condition against Law, is void; but what may be prohibited by Law, may be prohibited by Deed. 1 Inst. 223, 206. He that taketh an Estate in Remainder, is bound by Condition in a Deed, though he doth not seal it. No Person shall defeat any Estate of Freehold upon Condition, without shewing the Condition; of Chattels he may without it. Lit. 374. A Condition may be apportioned by Act of the Law, or the Lessee. 4 Rep. 120. But a Man cannot by his own Act divide, or apportion a Condition, which goes to the Destruction of an Estate. 1 Nelf. Abr. 474. A Condition in a Will is a Thing odious in Law, which shall not be created without sufficient Words. 2 Leon. 40. A Devise to the Heir at Law, provided he pay to A. B. 20 l. is a void Condition, because there is no Person to take Advantage of the Nonperformance. 1 Lutw. 797. A Devise to one, paying to another so much Money generally, makes a Condition in a Will.

Will. Conditional Devises, as well of Lands as of Goods, are allowed by our Law; and not being performed, the Heir or Executors, shall take Advantage of them. 1 Nelf. 467. Sub Conditione is the most proper Word to make a Condition. Proviso is as good a Word, when not dependant upon another Sentence; but in some Cases, the Word Proviso may make no Condition, but be only a Qualification, or Explication of a Covenant. 2 Danv. 1, 2. And neither the Word Proviso, nor any other, makes a Condition, unless it is restrictive. Plowd. 34. 1 Nelf. 466. A Grant to one, to the Intent he shall do so and so, is no Condition, but a Trust and Confidence. Dyer 138. Some Words in a Lease do not make a Condition but a Covenant, upon which the Lessor may bring his Action. A Lease being the Deed of Lessor and Lessee, every Word is spoken by both; and a Condition may be therein, though it sounds in Covenant. 1 Nelf. 464. A Covenant not to grant, sell, &c. may be a Condition; and Covenant that paying the Rent, the Lessee should enjoy the Land, is conditional. 2 Danv. 2, 6. Where Words are indefinite, and proper to defeat an Estate, they shall be taken to have the Force of a Condition. Palm. 503. Conditions regularly follow the Habendum in a Deed; but are good in Law, in any other Place. 2 Rep. 70.

Cone and Key. A Woman at the Age of fourteen or fifteen Years, might take the Charge of her House, and receive Cone and Key: Cone or Colne in the Sax. signifying Computus, and Key, clavis; so that she was then held to be of competent Years, when she was able to keep the Accounts and Keys of the House. — Fœmina in tali ætate potest disponere Domui suæ & habere Cone and Key. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 37. And there is something to the same Purpose in Glanv. lib. 7. c. 9.

Confederacy, (Confœderatio) Is when two or more combine together to do any Damage or Injury to another, or to do any unlawful Act. And false Confederacy between divers Persons shall be punished, though nothing be put in Execution: But this Confederacy punishable by Law before it is executed, ought to have these Incidents; first, it must be declared by some Matter of Prosecution, as by making of Bonds, or promises the one to the other; secondly, it should be malicious, as for unjust Revenge; thirdly, it ought to be false against an Innocent; and lastly, it is to be out of Court voluntarily. Terms de Ley 158. Where a Writ of Conspiracy doth not lie, the Confederacy is punishable. 27 Affis. pl. 44. And Enquiry shall be made of Conspirators and Confederators, which bind themselves together, &c.

Confession, (Confessio) Is where a Prisoner indicted of Treason or Felony, and brought to the Bar to be arraigned; and his Indictment being read to him, the Court demands what he can say thereto; then either he confesses the Offence, and the Indictment to be true, or pleads Not guilty, &c. Confession may be made in two Kinds, and to two several Ends: The one is, that the Criminal may confess the Offence whereof he is indicted openly in the Court, before the Judge, and submit himself to the Censure and Judgment of the Law; which Confession is the most certain Answer, and best Satisfaction that may be given to the Judge to condemn the Offender; so that it proceeds freely of his own Accord, without any Threats or Extremity used; for if the Confession arise from any of these Causes, it ought not to be recorded: As a Woman indicted for the felonious Taking of a Thing from another, being thereof arraigned, confessed the Felony, and said that she did it by Commandment of her Husband; the Judges in Pity would not record her Confession, but caused her to plead Not guilty to the Felony; whereupon the Jury found that she did the Fact by Compulsion of her Husband, against her Will, for which Cause she was discharged. 27 Affis. pl. 50. The other Kind of Confession is, when the Prisoner confesses the Indictment to be true, and that he hath committed the Offence whereof he is indicted, and then becomes an Approver or Accuser of others, who have committed the same Offence whereof he is indicted, or other Offences with him; and then prays the Judge to have a Coroner assigned him, to whom he may make Relation of those Offences, and the full Circumstances thereof. There is also a third Sort of Confession, formerly made by an Offender in Felony, not in Court before the Judge, as the other two are, but before a Coroner in a Church, or other privileged Place, upon which the Offender by the ancient Law of the Land was to abjure the Realm. 3 Inst. 129. Confession is likewise a Plea in Civil Cases, where the Defendant confesses the Plaintiff's Action to be good. Finch 387. And there is a Confession indirectly implied, as well as directly expressed in Criminal Cases; as if the Defendant in a Case not capital, doth not directly own himself guilty of the Crime, but by submitting to a Fine, owns his Guilt; whereupon the Judge may accept of his Submission to the King's Mercy. Lamb. lib. 4. c. 9. By this indirect Confession, the Defendant shall not be barred to plead Not guilty to an Action for the same Fact: The Entry of it is, that the Defendant posuit se in gratiam Regis, &c. And of the direct Confession, quod Cognovit Indictamentum, &c. And this last Confession carries with it so strong a Presumption of Guilt, that being entered on Record, in Indictment of Trespas, it estops the Defendant to plead Not guilty to an Action brought afterwards against him for the same Matter: But such Entry of a Confession of an Indictment of a capital Crime, 'tis said will not estop a Defendant to plead Not guilty to an Appeal, it being in case of Life. And where a Person upon his Arraignment actually confesses himself guilty, or unadvisedly discloses the special Manner of the Fact, supposing that it doth not amount to Felony, where it doth; yet the Judges upon probable Circumstances, that such Confession may proceed from Fear, Duress, or from Weakness or Ignorance, may refuse such Confession, and suffer the Party to plead Not guilty. 2 Hawk. 333. A Confession may be received, and the Plea of Not guilty be withdrawn, though recorded. Kel. 11. The Confession of the Defendant, whether taken upon an Examination before Justices of Peace, in Pursuance of the 1 & 2 P. & M. 13. or 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 10. upon a Bailment, or Commitment for Felony; or taken by the Common Law, upon an Examination before a Secretary of State, or other Magistrate, for Treason, or other Crimes, is allowed to be given in Evidence against the Party confessing; but not against others. Also two Witnesses of a Confession of High Treason, upon an Examination before a Justice of Peace, were sufficient to convict the Person so confessing, within the Meaning of 1 Ed. 6. cap. 12. and 5 & 6 Ed. 6. cap. 11. which required two Witnesses in High Treason, unless the Offender should willingly confess, &c.

But the 7 W. 3. cap. 3. requires two Witnesses, except the Party shall willingly without Violence confess, &c. in open Court. 2 Hawk. P. C. 429. It has been held that where-ever a Man's Confession is made Use of against him, it must all be taken together, and not by Parcels. Ibid. And no Confession shall, before final Judgment, deprive the Defendant of the Privilege of taking Exceptions in Arrest of Judgment, to Faults apparent in the Record. 333. A Demurrer amounts to a Confession of the Indictment as laid so far, that if the Indictment be good, Judgment and Execution shall go against the Prisoner. Bra. 86. S. P. C. 150. H. P. C. 246. And in criminal Cases not capital, if the Defendant demur to an Indictment, &c. whether in Abatement, or otherwise, the Court will not give Judgment against him to answer over, but final Judgment. 2 Hawk. 334. Where a Prisoner confesses the Fact, the Court has nothing more to do than to proceed to Judgment against him. And Confessus in Judio pro Judicato Habetur. 11 Rep. 30. 4 Inst. 66.

Confessor, (Lat. Confessor, Confessionarius) Hath Relation to private Confession of Sins, in Order to Absolution: And the Priest, who received the auricular Confession, had the Title of Confessor; though improperly, for he is rather the Confessee, being the Person to whom the Confession is made. This Receiving the Confession of a Penitent, was in old English to Shreve or Shrive; whence comes our Eng. Beshrieved, 'or looking like a confessed or shrieved Person, on whom was imposed some uneasy Penance. The most solemn Time of Confessing was the Day before Lent, which from thence is still called Shrove-Tuesday. Cowel.

Confirmation, (Confirmatio, from the Verb Confirmare, quod est firmum facere) Is a Conveyance of an Estate, or Right in esse, from one Man to another, whereby a voidable Estate is made sure and unavoidable; or a particular Estate is increased, or a Possession made perfect. And it is a Strengthening of an Estate formerly made, which is voidable, though not presently void: As for Example; A Bishop granteth his Chancellorship by Patent, for Term of the Patentee's Life; this is no void Grant, but voidable by the Bishop's Death, except it be strengthened by the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter. Confirmation, aut est perficiens, crescens, aut diminuens: Perficiens, as if Feoffee upon Condition make a Feoffment, and the Feoffor confirm the Estate of the second Feoffee: Crescens doth always enlarge the Estate of a Tenant; as Tenant for Years, to hold for Life, &c. Diminuens, as when the Lord of whom the Land is holden, confirms the Estate of his Tenant, to hold by a less Rent. 9 Rep. 142. In Confirmations, the Confirmer must have a larger Estate in the Land, than the Confirmer, and be in Possession of the Estate or Right. 1 Inst. 295, 301. Leases for Years may be confirmed for Part of the Term, or Part of the Land, &c. But it is otherwise of an Estate of Freehold, which being entire, cannot be confirmed for Part of the Estate. 5 Rep. 81. A Freehold for Life, and Term for Years, it is said cannot stand together of the same Land, in the same Person. 1 Nels. Abr. 480. If a Feme Lessee for Years marries, and the Lessee confirms the Estate of Husband and Wife, to hold for their Lives, by such a Confirmation, the Term will be drowned; and the Husband and Wife be Jointenants for their Lives. Co. Lit. 300. But if the Feme were Lessee for Life, then by the Confirmation to Husband and Wife for their Lives, the Husband holdeth only in Right of his Wife for her Life; but shall take a Remainder for his Life. Ibid. 299. Confirmation to Lessee for Life, and a Stranger, to hold for their Lives, is void; for there is no Privity: But 'tis otherwise if for Years. 2 Danv. Abr. 141. If Tenant for Life grant a Rent-charge, &c. to one and his Heirs, he in Reversion is to confirm it, otherwise 'tis good only for Life of Tenant for Life. Litt. 529. A Tenant for Life, and Remainder-man in Fee, join in a Lease, this shall be taken to be the Lease of Tenant for Life, during his Life, and Confirmation of him in Remainder: But after the Death of Tenant for Life, it is the Lease of him in Remainder, and Confirmation of Tenant for Life. 6 Rep. 15. 1 Nels. Abr. 481. If Lessee for Years, without Impeachment of Waste, accepts a Confirmation of his Estate for Life; by this he hath lost the Privilege annexed to his Estate for Years. 8 Rep. 76. Acceptance of Rent in some Cases makes a Confirmation of a Lease: And if a Man leases for Life, reserving Rent upon a Condition of Re-entry; if after the Condition is broke, by Nonpayment of the Rent, the Lessor distrains for the said Rent, this Act shall be a Confirmation of the Lease, so as he cannot enter. 2 Danv. 128, 129. What a Person may defeat by his Entry, he may make good by his Confirmation. Co. Lit. 300. But none can confirm, unless he hath a Right at the Time of the Grant; he that hath but a Right in Reversion, cannot enlarge the Estate of a Lessee. 2 Danv. 140, 141. And where a Person hath but Interesse termini, he hath no Estate in him, upon which a Confirmation may enure. Co. Lit. 296. A Confirmation is to bind the Right of him who makes it; but not alter the Nature of the Estate of him to whom made; it shall not discharge a Condition. Poph. 51. If A. enfeoffs B. upon Condition, and after A. confirms the Estate of B. yet the Condition remains: Though if B. had enfeoffed C. so that the Estate of C. had been only subject to the Condition in another Deed, and after A. had confirmed the Estate of C. this would have extinguished the Condition, which was annexed to the Estate of B. 1 Rep. 147. Confirmations may make a voidable or defeasible Estate good; but cannot work upon an Estate that is void in Law. Co. Lit. 295. A Confirmation of Letters Patent, which are void as they are against Law, is a void Confirmation. 1 L. H. 44r. 295. If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant having Issue is attainted of Felony; if the King pardons him, and the Lord confirms his Estate, and the Tenant dies, his Issue shall not inherit, but the Lord shall have it against his own Confirmation: For that could not enable him to take by Descent, who by the Attainder of his Father was disabled. 9 Rep. 141. Grants and Leases of Bishops not warranted by the Stat. 32 H. 8. must be confirmed by Dean and Chapter: And Grants and Leases of Parsons, &c. by Patron and Ordinary. 1 Inst. 297, 300, 301. Bishops may grant Leases of their Church-Lands for three Lives, or 21 Years, having the Qualities required by 32 H. 8. and concurrent Leases for 21 Years, with Confirmation of Dean and Chapter. If a Prebend leases Parcel of his Prebendary, and the Bishop, who is Patron, confirms it; this shall not bind the succeeding Bishop, without Confirmation of Dean and Chapter, because the Patronage is Parcel of the Possessions of the Bishoprick; but it shall bind the present Bishop, &c. 2 Danv. 139. If a Parson grants a Rent, the Confirmation of the Patron and Bishop, is sufficient without the Dean and Chapter, and shall be good against the Successor Bishop. Ibid. 140. The Dean of Wells may pass his Possessions, with the Assent of the Chapter, without any Confirmation of the Bishop. Ibid. 135. Leases of Bishops are affirmed, ex assensu & consensu Decani & totius Capituli. A Confirmation is in Nature of a Release: And in this Deed, it is good to recite the Estate of the Tenant, as of him that is to confirm it; and to mention the Consideration: The Words Ratify and Confirm, are commonly made Use of; but Words Give, Grant, Demise, &c. by Implication of Law, may enure as a Confirmation. 1 Inst. 295. West. Symb. 1. pag. 457.

CONFISCATE, From the Lat. Confiscare, and that from Fiscus, which signifies metonymically the Emperor's Treasure: And as the Romans say such Goods as are forfeited to the Emperor's Treasury for any Offence are Bona Confiscata; so we say of those that are forfeited to our King's Exchequer. And the Title to have these Goods is given to the King by the Law, when they are not claimed by some other: As if a Man be indicted for stealing the Goods of another Person, when they are in Truth his own proper Goods, and when the Goods are brought in Court against him, and he is asked what he says to the said Goods, if he disclaims them, he shall lose the Goods, although that afterwards he be acquitted of the Felony, and the King shall have them as confiscated; but it is otherwise if he do not disclaim them. The Law is the same where Goods are found in the Possession of a Felon, if he disavows them, and afterwards is attainted of other Goods, and not of them; for there the Goods which he disavows, are confiscate to the King; but had he been attainted of the same Goods, they should have been said to be forfeited and not confiscate. So if an Appeal of Robbery be brought, and the Plaintiff leaves out some of his Goods, he shall not be received to enlarge his Appeal; and forasmuch as there is none to have the Goods so left out, the King shall have them as confiscate, according to the Rule, Quod non capit Christus, capit Fiscus. Staund. P. C. lib. 3. cap. 24. Goods confiscated are such as are arrested and seised for the King's Use: But Confiscare and Forisfacere are said to be Synonyma; and Bona Confiscata are Bona Forisfacta. 3 Inst. 227.

CONTOUMITY to the Church of England. See Stat. 35 Eliz. &c. and Recusant.

CONFRATRIE, (Confraternitas) A Fraternity, Brotherhood, or Society; as the Confratrie de St. George, or Les Chevaliers de la bleu Gartier, the Honourable Society of the Knights of the Garter.

CONFRERES, (Confratres) Brethren in a Religious House; Fellows of one and the same Society. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 24.

CONGEABLE, (from the Fr. Conge, i. e. Leave, Licence or Permission) Signifies in our Law as much as lawful, or lawfully done, or done with Leave or Permission: As Entry Congeable, &c. Litt. Sect. 420.

CONGE D'ACORDER, (Fr.) Leave to accord or agree, mentioned in the Statute of Fines 18 Ed. 1. in these Words. — When the Original Writ is delivered in the Presence of the Parties before Justices, a Pleader shall say this, Sir Justice Conge d'Acorder; and the Justice shall say to him, what saith Sir R. and name one of the Parties, &c.

CONGE D'ESLIRE, (Fr. i. e. Leave to choose) Is the King's Licence or Permission sent to a Dean and Chapter to proceed to the Election of a Bishop, when any Bishoprick becomes vacant. According to Gwin, in his Preface to his Readings, the King of England, as Sovereign Patron of all Bishopricks, and other Ecclesiastical Benefices, had of ancient Time free Appointment of all Church Dignities, when ever they became void, investing them first per Baculum & Annulum, and afterwards by his Letters Patent; and in Process of Time, he made the Election over to others, under certain Forms and Conditions; as, that they should at every Vacation, before they chuse, demand of the King Conge d'Eslire; that is, Leave to proceed to Election, and then after the Election, to crave his Royal Assent, &c. And he affirms that King John was the First that granted this; which was afterwards confirmed by Stat. Westm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 1. And by Articuli Cleri, 25 Ed. 3. cap. 1. All the Prelacies in England were conferred at the Pleasure of the King, and the Persons invested by the King's Delivery of a Staff and Ring, till Archbishop Anselm denied this Royal Prerogative; and prevailed with Pope Paschal to abrogate this Custom by a solemn Canon: After which, the first Bishop who came in by a regular Election, was Roger Bishop of Salisbury, Anno 3 H. 1. By Statute, no Man is to be presented to the See of Rome for the Dignity of a Bishop, &c. but Election is to be by the King's Conge d'Eslire or Licence, to elect the Person named by the King; which the Dean and Chapter must do in twenty Days, or they will incur a Pramunire: And if they fail to make Election, the King is to nominate, &c. by Letters Patent. 25 H. 8. cap. 20. The 1 Ed. 6. c. 2. ousted the Writ of Conge d'Eslire, and empowered the King to collate to an Archbishoprick or Bishoprick, absolutely by Letters Patent. But this Statute was repealed by 1 M. cap. 2. though the Election by Conge d'Eslire as now made, seems to be little more than Form.

CONGIDON, Signifies Joint-Payment; or one who is a Companion with another in such a Payment: It is mentioned in Leg. Ine, c. 23.

CONGIUS, An ancient Measure, containing about a Gallon and a Pint. — Et reddat quinque Congios cera, & unum Ydromelli, &c. Charta Edmundi Regis, Anno 946.

CONINGERIA, A Coney-Borough, or Warren of Conies. — Item dicunt, quod idem Dominus potest capere in duabus Coningeriis quas habet infra, &c. 100. Cuniculos per Annum, & valet quilibet Cuniculus 2 d. Inquis. Anno 47 H. 3.

CONJURATION, Is an Oath; and Conjuratus, the same with Conjurator, viz. one who is bound by the same Oath. Conjurare is where several affirm a Thing by Oath. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 207.

CONJURATION, (Conjuratio) Signifies a Plot or Compact, made by Persons combining by Oath, to do any publick Harm: But it is more especially used for the having personal Conference with the Devil, or some evil Spirit, to know any Secret, or effect any Purpose. The Difference between Conjuratio and Witchcraft is, that the one endeavours by Prayers and Invocations to compel the Devil to say or do what he commands him; the other deals rather by friendly and voluntary Conference, or Agreement with the Devil or Familiar, to have his Desires served, in Lieu of Blood, or other Gift offered. And both these differ from Enchantment or Sorcery; because they they are personal Conferences with the Devil, and these are as it were but Medicines and ceremonial Fornis of Words, usually called Charms, without Apparition. Cowel. Hawkins, in his Pleas of the Crown, lib. 1. pa. 5. says that Conjurers are those who by Force of certain Magick Words, endeavour to raise the Devil, and oblige him to execute their Commands: Witches are such who by way of Conference bargain with an evil Spirit, to do what they desire of him: And Sorcerers, are those who by the Use of certain superstitious Words, or by the Means of Images, &c. are said to produce strange Effects above the ordinary Course of Nature. All these were anciently punished in the same Manner as Hereticks, by the Writ de Heretico comburendo, after a Sentence in the Ecclesiastical Court: And they might be condemned to the Pillory, &c. upon an Indictment at Common Law. 3 Inst. 44. H. P. C. 38. But by Stat. 1 Fac. 1. c. 12. These Offenders are divided into two Degrees; and those in the first Degree, and their Accessaries before, shall suffer as Felons, without Benefit of Clergy: And of these, there are the four following Species. 1. Such as shall use any Invocation or Conjurat[i]on of any evil Spirit. 2. That consult, covenant with, entertain, employ, or reward any evil Spirit, to any Intent. 3. As take up any dead Person's Body, or any Part thereof, to be used in any manner of Witchcraft. 4. Or that exercise any Witchcraft, Inchantment, Charm or Sorcery, whereby any Person shall be killed, destroyed, consumed, or lamed in his Body, or any Part thereof. And if a Spirit doth not actually appear, upon Invocation, &c. Or if a dead Person, or Part of it, be taken up to be used, and not actually used; these are within the Statute: But one must actually effect the Mischief, to be within the Clause of killing, laming, &c. 3 Inst. 45. H. P. C. 6, 7. Those in the second Degree shall for the first Offence, suffer a Year's Imprisonment, and the Pillory; and for the Second, be adjudged Felons, excluded Clergy: And these Offenders are divided into the following Kinds. Such as take upon them by Witchcraft, Charm, &c. to tell where Treasure, or Things lost or stolen, may be found; or to do any Thing to the Intent to provoke any Person to unlawful Love; or to hurt any Person in his Body; or whereby any Cattle or Goods, of any Person, shall be destroyed or impaired, &c. But those who take upon them to do the Last, are not within the Act, unless they actually accomplish it. 3 Inst. 46. Stat. 1 Fac. 1. c. 12.

Conquest, Countries got by, what Laws to have for Government. See King.

Conservator, (Lat.) A Protector, Preserver, or Maintainer; or a standing Arbitrator, chosen and appointed as a Guarantee to compose and adjust Differences that should arise between two Parties, &c. Paroch. Antiq. p. 513.

Conservator of the Peace, (Conservator vel Custos Pacis) Is he that hath an especial Charge to see King's Peace kept: And of these Conservators Lambard saith, That before the Reign of King Ed. 3. who first created Justices of Peace, there were divers Persons that by the Common Law had Interest in keeping the Peace; some whereof had that Charge by Tenure, as holding Lands of the King by this Service, &c. And others as incident to their Offices which they bore, and so included in the same, that they were nevertheless called by the Name of their Office only: Also some had it simply, as of it self, and were thereof named Custodes Pacis, Wardens or Conservators of the Peace. The Chamberlain of Chester is a Conservator of the Peace in that County, by Virtue of his Office. 4 Inst. 212. Sheriffs of Counties at Common Law are Conservators of the Peace; and Constables, by the Common Law were Conservators, but some say these were only subordinate to the Conservators of the Peace, as they are now to the Justices.

Conservator of the Truce and Safe Conducts, (Conservator Induciarum & saluorum Regis Conductuum) Was an Officer appointed by the King's Letters Patent, whose Charge was to inquire of all Offences done against the King's Truce and Safe Conducts upon the main Sea, out of the Liberties of the Cinque Ports, as the Admirals customably were wont to do, and such other Things as are declared 3 Hem. 5. c. 6. See also the Statute 4 H. 5. c. 7.

There was anciently a Conservator of the Privileges of the Hospitalers and Templers. West. 2. ca. 43. And the Corporation of the Great Level of the Fens consists of a Governor, six Bailiffs, twenty Conservators, and Commonalty. Stat. 15 Car. 2. cap. 17.

Consideratio Curiae, Is often mentioned in Law Pleadings, and where Matters are determined by the Court. Idem Consideratum est per Curiam, i. e. 'Tis adjudged by the Court; for Consideratio Curiae is the Judgment of the Court. In the Entry of a Judgment for Debt, it concludes thus: Ideo Consideratum est per Cur. quod præd. A. recuperet versus præfat. B. Debitum suum, necnon, &c. pro Damnis suis, &c. quam pro Mis. & Custag. &c. Et præd. B. in mia. &c.

Consideration, (Consideratio) Is the material Cause, or Quid pro quo, of any Contract, without which it will not be effectual or binding. This Consideration is either expressed, as if a Man bargains to give so much for a Thing bought; or implied, where a Person comes to an Inn, and there staying eats and drinks, and takes Lodging for himself and Horse, the Law presumes he intends to pay for both, though there be no express Contract for it; and therefore if he discharge not the House, the Host may stay his Horse. Also there is a Consideration of Nature and Blood; and valuable Consideration in Deeds and Conveyances: But if a Man be indebted to divers others, and in Consideration of natural Affection, gives all his Goods to his Son, or other Relation, this shall be construed a fraudulent Gift, within the Stat. 13 Eliz. cap. 5. because that Act intends a valuable Consideration. Terms de Ley 165, 166. Considerations of natural Love, Affection, Marriage, &c. are good to raise Uses to a Man's Family: If the Uses are limited to a Stranger, then it must be for valuable Consideration, not for Love, Affection, &c. 1 Inst. 271. 1 Rep. 176. A Sale can never be without a valuable Consideration: Tho' the Law establishes free Gifts without Consideration. Noy's Max. 87. Hob. 230. One may sell his Freedom and Privilege, for a Consideration; for by the Consideration it is intended he hath a full Recompence for it, by Reason of his own Contract: And a Man may, upon a valuable Consideration, restrain himself by Contract from using his Trade, in such a particular Place. 1 Lill. Abr. 297, 298. A Consideration ought to be Matter of Profit and Benefit to him to whom it is done; by Reason of the Charge or Trouble of him who doth it. Cro. Car. 8. Considerations altogether past; as if a Person hath disbursed several Sums for another, without his Request, and afterwards such other say, that in Consideration he hath paid the said Sums for him, he promises to pay them: This is no Consideration, because it was executed before. But it will be otherwise, if the Sums were paid, at the Request of the other. Moor 220. Cro. El. 282. It is a Rule, that every Thing which is a Ground for Equity, is a sufficient Consideration. Latch. 21. A Consideration that is void in Part, is void in the Whole: And if two Considerations be alledged, and one of them is found false by the Jury, the Action fails. Hob. 126. Cro. El. 848. But if there be a double Consideration, for the Grounding of a Promise, for the Breach whereof an Action is brought; tho' one of the Considerations be not good, yet if the other be good, and the Promise broken, the Action will lie upon that Breach: For one Consideration is enough to support the Promise. 1 Lill. 297. A Consideration must be lawful, to ground an Assumpsit. 2 Lev. 161. Where Considerations are valuable, and consist of two or more Parts, there the Performance of every Part ought to be shewn. Cro. El. 579. If a Deed expresses a Consideration of Money, on a Purchase, it is said this will be no Proof on a Trial that the Money was actually paid; but it is to be made out by Proof of Witnesses. Stile's Rep. 169. In case a Deed of Feoffment be made of Lands; or a Fine and Recovery be passed, and no Consideration is expressed in the Deed, &c. for the doing thereof, it shall be intended by the Law, that it was made in Trust, for the Use of the Feoffor or Conusor; for it shall be presumed he would not part with his Land without a Consideration, and yet the Deed shall be construed to operate something, and that which is most reasonable. 1 Lill. Abr. 299.

Rea-

Consign, Is a Word used by Merchants, where Goods are assigned or delivered over to a Factor, &c.

Consilium, (Dies Consilii) Was a Time allowed for the accused to make his Defence, and answer the Charge of the Accuser. — In aliis quarant Accusatus Consilium, & habeat ab amicis & paribus suis, quod nullo jure debet defendi, &c. Leg. H. 1. c. 46. It is now used for a speedy Day appointed to argue a Demurrer; which the Court grants after the Demurrer joined on reading the Record of the Cause, &c.

Consistor, A Magistrate, so called: Testibus Rogero de Gant, Willielmo Consistore Cestrie, &c. Blount.

Consistory, (Consistorium) Signifies as much as Prætorium, or Tribunal: It is commonly used for a Council-House of Ecclesiastical Persons, or Place of Justice in the Court Christian or Spiritual Court; a Session or Assembly of Prelates. And every Archbishop and Bishop of every Diocese, hath a Consistory Court, held before his Chancellor, or Commissary in his Cathedral Church, or other convenient Place of his Diocese, for Ecclesiastical Causes. 4 Inst. 338. The Bishop's Chancellor is the Judge of this Court, supposed to be skilled in the Civil and Canon Law: And in Places of the Diocese far remote from the Bishop's Consistory, the Bishop appoints a Commissary, (Commissarius Foraneus) to judge in all Causes within a certain District, and a Register to enter his Decrees, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 286. Sel-den's Hist. of Tithes, 413, 414.

Consolidation, (Consolidatio) Is used for the uniting of two Benefices into one. Stat. 37 Hen. 8. cap. 21. Which Union is to be by the Assent of the Ordinary, Patron, and Incumbent, &c. and to be of small Churches, lying near together. Vide Church. This Word is taken from the Civil Law, where it signifies properly an Uniting of the Possession, Occupancy or Profit of Lands, &c. with the Property. Cowel. See Extinguishment.

Conspiracy, (Conspiratio) Is used for an Agreement of two or more Persons falsely to indict one, or to procure him to be indicted of Felony; who after Acquittal, shall have Writ of Conspiracy: And Writ of Conspiracy lies for him that is indicted of a Trespass, and acquitted, though it was not Felony: Also upon an Indictment for a Riot. 5 Mod. 405. Where a Man is falsely indicted of any Crime, which may prejudice his Fame or Reputation; or though it doth not import Slander, if it endangers his Liberty; or if the Indictment be injurious to his Property, &c. Writ of Conspiracy lieth. 3 Salk. 97. Conspiracy to maintain Suits and Quarrels, is punishable by Statute: So is Conspiracy of Victuallers, to sell their Victuals, at certain Prices: And of Labourers, Artificers &c. concerning their Work or Wages. Stat. 23 E. 1. c. 10. 37 H. 8. c. 23. 2 & 3 E. 6. c. 15. Not only Writ of Conspiracy, which is a civil Action at the Suit of the Party; but also Action of the Case, in the Nature of a Writ of Conspiracy, doth lie for a false and malicious Accusation of any Crime, whether Capital, or not Capital, even of High Treason; and though the Bill of Indictment is found Ignoramus, or it does not go so far as an Indictment, &c. And the same Damages may be recovered in such Action, as in a Writ of Conspiracy, where the Party is lawfully acquitted by Verdict. 1 Roll. Abr. 111, 112. 9 Rep. 56. If one falsely and maliciously procure another to be arrested and brought before a Justice of Peace to be examined concerning a Felony, &c. on purpose to vex and disgrace him, and put him to Charge and Trouble, although he is not indicted for the same, yet he may have an Action of the Case; in which he need not aver that he was lawfully acquitted, as he ought to do in a Writ of Conspiracy: But he must aver that the Accusation was Falso & Malitiose, which Words are necessary in the Declaration; and it must appear that there was no Ground for it. And as Action on the Case may be prosecuted against one Person, where the Writ of Conspiracy or Indictment doth not lie but against two, this Action is most commonly brought. 1 Danv. Abr. 208, 213. 2 Inst. 562, 638. Conspirators may be indicted at the Suit of the King; and at the Common Law, one may prefer an Indictment against Conspirators, tho' they only conspire together, and nothing is executed: Though the Conspiracy ought to be declared by some Act, as by Promise to stand by one another, &c. But a bare Conspiracy will not maintain a Writ of Conspiracy, at the Suit of the Party grieved, because he is not damaged by it; though it is a Ground for an Indictment. 9 Rep. 56. 2 Roll. Abr. 77. If the Defendants can shew any Foundation or probable Cause of Suspicion, they shall be discharged: And if a Man hath good Cause of Suspicion, that a Person is guilty of Felony, and causes him to be indicted, in Prosecution of Justice, notwithstanding standing there be no Felony committed, Action of Conspiracy will not lie: But 'tis otherwise if the Prosecutor imposes the Crime of Felony, where no Felony was committed. 1 Roll. Abr. 115. and Rep. 438. An Action lies not against a Justice of Peace, who sends out his Warrant upon a false Accusation; but it lies if he make it out without any Accusation. 1 Leon. 187. Conspiracies ought to be out of Court; for if a Prosecution be ordered in a Course of Justice, and Witnesses appear against a Party, &c. there shall be no Punishment: And if Persons, acted only as Jurors in a criminal Matter; or Judges in open Court, there is no Ground for Prosecution. S. P. C. 173. 12 Rep. 24. If all the Defendants but one are acquitted on Indictment for Conspiracy, that one must be acquitted also; because one Person alone cannot be indicted for this Crime: And Husband and Wife being but one Person, may not be indicted. 2 Roll. Abr. 708. The Acquittal of one Person is the Acquittal of another upon Indictment of Conspiracy. 3 Mcd. 220. Tho' where one is found guilty, according to the Opinion of the Lord Chief Justice Hale; if the other doth not come in upon Process, or if he dies pending the Suit, Judgment shall be had against the other. 1 Vent. 234. Writ of Conspiracy was brought against two Persons, and one found Not guilty; the other shall not have Judgment: But in Action on the Case, it had been good. Cro. Eliz. 701. If the Parties are found guilty of the Conspiracy, upon an Indictment of Felony, at the King's Suit; the Judgment is, that they shall lose their Frank Law; (which disables them to be put upon any Jury, to be sworn as Witnesses, or to appear in Person in any of the King's Courts) and that their Lands, Goods and Chattels be seized as forfeited, and their Bodies committed to Prison; which is called a villanous Judgment. 3 Inst. 143, 222. Cromp. Just. 156. The Matter of the Conspiracy ought to touch a Man's Life, where this Judgment is imposed. 1 Hawk. P. C. 193. For conspiring to charge a Person with poisoning another, &c. one of the Parties was fined 1000*l.* and some others had Judgment of the Pillory, and to be burnt in the Cheek with the Letters F. and C. to signify False Conspirators. Moor 816. Fine and Imprisonment is the usual Punishment at this Day on Indictment for Conspiracy: And on Writ of Conspiracy, &c. the Party shall be fined, and render Damages.

Conspirators, (Conspiratores) By 33 E. 1. are defined to be those that do bind themselves by Oath, Covenant, or other Alliance, that every of them shall aid the other falsely and maliciously to indict Persons; or falsely to move or maintain Pleas, &c. And such as retain Men in the Country, with Liveries or Fees, to maintain their malicious Enterprizes; which extends as well to the Takers, as the Givers; and Stewards and Bailiffs of great Lords, which by their Office or Power, undertake to bear and maintain Quarrels, Pleas or Debates, that concern other Parties than such as relate to the Estate of their Lords or themselves. 2 Inst. 384, 562. From this Description of Conspirators, in several of our old Law Books, Conspiracy is taken generally, and confounded with Maintenance and Champerty. Besides these, there are Conspirators in Treason; by plotting against the Government, &c. See Treason.

Conspirations, Is a Writ that lies against Conspirators. Reg. Orig. 134. F. N. B. 114, Constable, (Constabularius) Is a Saxon Word, compounded of Coning, i. e. King and Staple, which signify the Stay or Hold of the King. This Word is diversly used in our Law; first, for the Lord Constable of England, whose Power was anciently so extensive, that some Time since that Office hath been thought too great for any Subject; unless at a Coronation to compleat the Grandeur of that Ceremony, and for the ancient Trials by Combat, &c. In the first Year of Henry the Fourth, the Lord North was made Lord Constable for Life: And this Office being formerly of Inheritance, by Tenure of certain Manors, the Line of the Bobuns, Earls of Hereford and Essex, enjoyed it in Right of the Manors of Harlefield, Newnam, and Whitenhurst, and afterwards it came to the Staffords, and Dukes of Buckingham, as Heirs general of them; but Edward Duke of Buckingham being attainted of High Treason ann. 13 Hen. 8. this Office became forfeited to the Crown, and since that Time it was never granted but pro hac vice, to be exercised at a Coronation, &c. The Power and Jurisdiction of the Lord High Constable, was the same with the Earl Marshal, and he sat as Judge having Precedence of the Earl Marshal in the Marshal's Court: But the Constable of England is by some of our Books also called Marshal; who takes Cognizance of all Matters of War and Arms, and had originally several Courts under him; but has now only the Marshalsea; and his Office is in Force both in Time of Peace and War, so that though the Lord Constable had the Precedency, yet the Court held before them was called the Marshal's Court. See my Lex Constitutionis, p. 175, 176. Of this Officer or Magistrate, Gwyn saith to this Effect; The Court of the Constable and Marshal determineth Contracts touching Deeds of Arms out of the Realm upon Land, and handleth Things concerning War within the Realm, as Combats Blazons of Armory, &c. which cannot be determined by the Common Law; and in these Matters is commonly guided by the Civil Law. By Statute, the Constable of England hath Cognizance of Things concerning Arms and Wars, which cannot be discussed by the Common Law: And when a Plea is commenced before the Constable and Marshal, which may be tried at the Common Law, the Party grieved shall have a Privy Seal to cause the Constable and Marshal to cease, until it be decided by the King's Council whether it may be tried there or at the Common Law. 13 R. 2. c. 2. The Constable and Marshal shall not have Cognizance of Pleas or Suits that ought to be tried at Common Law. Stat. 8 R. 2. c. 5. Appeals of Things done out of the Realm, are to be tried by the Constable and Marshal of England. 1 H. 4. c. 14. And if a Man be wounded on the High Sea, and die of the same Wound in a foreign Country, though this be done in the Seas belonging to England, yet it cannot be inquired of by the Common Law, because it is not within any of the Counties of the Realm: Neither can the Admiral hear and determine this Murder; for though the Stroke was within his Jurisdiction, the Death was Infra Corpus Comitatus, whereof he cannot Inquire: Nor is it within the Statute 28 H. 8. because the Murder was not committed on the Sea. But by 13 R. 2. the Constable and Marshal may hear and determine the same. 3 Inst. 48. The Office of Constable of England is said to consist in the Care of the Com-

Common Peace of the Land, in Deeds of Arms, and Matters of War: And there is a Constable of the Tower; a Constable of Dover Castle and of divers other Castles; but these are more properly called Castellanes. Out of the High Magistracy of the Constable of England (says Lambard) were drawn those inferior Constables, which we call Constables of Hundreds and Franchises; and the Statute of Winchester 13 E. 1. appoints for Conservation of the Peace, and view of Armor, two Constables in every Hundred and Franchise, who in Latin are called Constabularii Capitales, High Constables; because Continuance of Time, and increase of People and Offences, hath under these made others necessary in every Town, called Petty Constables, in Latin Sub-Constabularii, which are of like Nature, but of inferior Authority to the other. And there are other Officers whose Duty is much the same with Constables, as Headboroughs, Tithingmen, &c. And of these the Petty Constable seems to be the principal Officer, but in his Absence or where there is no Petty Constable, their Duty is the same. It has been held that both High Constables, and Petty Constables, were Officers at Common Law, before the Statute of Winton. 13 E. 1. cap. 6. And that by the Common Law they might arrest Persons for a Breach of the Peace, and carry them before a Justice to find Sureties for their good Behaviour, &c. But my Lord Coke says, That they were created by 13 Ed. 1. and their Duty was thereby limited, though subsequent Statutes have enlarged their Power; but being created by Act of Parliament, they have no more Authority than the Act that created them, or some other Acts have given them, and cannot prescribe as Officers by the Common Law may. 4 Inst. 267. 2 Danv. Abr. 148. Anciently High and Petty Constables were appointed by the Sheriff in his Tourn, and sworn there, as well as in the Leet: And by the Common Law, they ought to be chosen in the Turn or Leet. Dalt. cap. 28. 4 Inst. 267. Of common Right, a Constable is to be chosen by the Jury in the Leet; and if he be present, and refuse to be sworn, the Steward may fine him: If he be absent, he shall be sworn before the Justices of Peace; and if such Constable refuse to be sworn, the Homage must present his Refusal at the next Court, and then he shall be amerced. 1 Salk. 175. A High Constable may be chosen at a Court-Leet by the Steward, on Presentment of the Jury, where Custom warrants it; but where such Courts are not kept, or that there is a Neglect in chusing him, the Justices at their Quarter-Sessions may chuse and swear a High Constable; and this is the usual Way observed at this Time. Mich. 21 Car. 1. Mod. Justice 133. And he may be sworn out of Sessions, by Warrant from thence; and be elected out of the Session, by the greater Number of Justices in the Division. Ibid. If one that is elected to the Office of Constable, refuse to take the Oath to serve in that Office, the Court of B. R. may send forth a Writ of Mandamus to compel him to do it. 1 Lill. Abr. 303. The Justices of Peace may appoint a Constable in such Place where there was never any before. 1 Mod. 13. If Constables, Headboroughs, &c. die, or go out of the Parish, two Justices of Peace are to swear new ones till the Lord of the Manor hold a Court-Leet, or till the next Quarter-Sessions, who shall approve of them, or appoint others: And if any of them continue above a Year, the Justices of Peace may discharge them, and put in others till the Lord of the Manor holds a Court. By Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. cap. 12. A Constable's Oath runs thus: 'You shall well and truly serve our Sovereign Lord the King, and the Lord of this Leet (if sworn in a Court-Leet) in the Office of Constable, in and for the Hundred of, &c. or Parish of, &c. for the Year ensuing, or until you shall be thereof discharged according to due Course of Law: You shall well and truly do and execute all Things belonging to the said Office, according to the best of our Knowledge, So help you God.' Formerly the Oath of a Constable was very long, he being sworn to several Articles, which included his particular Duty. High Constables are now generally chosen and sworn by the Justices of Peace in their Sessions: And Petty Constables, who are their Assistants, in each Town, Parish or Vill, the Choice of them properly belongs to the Court-Leet; but at this Day they are usually elected by the Parishioners, and sworn by a Justice of Peace, who on just Cause may remove them. 4 Inst. 267. These Constables are appointed yearly; and are to be Men of Honesty, Knowledge and Ability; not Infants, Lunatics, &c. And if they refuse to serve, they may be bound over to the Sessions, and indicted, and fined and imprisoned. 8 Rep. 41. 5 Mod. 96. But Physicians, Apothecaries, &c. are excused by Statute from bearing the Office of Constable, or other Parish Offices: Also Attornies, and Officers of the Courts at Westminster, Barristers at Law, Aldermen of London, &c. are privileged from serving the Office of Constable: And if a Gentleman of Quality be chose Constable, where there are sufficient Persons beside, and no special Custom concerning it, tis said such Persons may be relieved in B. R. 2 Hawk. P. C. 63, 64. A Constable may make a Deputy; but the Constable is answerable, and his Deputy must be sworn. Sid. 355. Dissenters chosen to the Office of Constables, &c. scrupling to take the Oaths, may execute the Office by Deputy, who shall comply with the Law in this Behalf. 1 W. & M. cap. 18. Constables may appoint a Deputy, or Person to execute a Warrant when by Reason of Sickness, &c. they cannot do it themselves. A Woman made Constable, by Virtue of a Custom that the Inhabitants of a Town shall serve by Turns, on Account of their Estates or Houses, may procure another to serve for her, and the Custom is good. 2 Hawk. P. C. 63. The High Constable has the Direction of the Petty Constables, Headboroughs, and Tithingmen, within his Hundred: His Duty is to keep the Peace; and apprehend Felons, Rioters, &c. to make Hue and Cry after Felons; and take Care that the Watch be duly kept in his Hundred; and that the Statutes for punishing Rogues and Vagrants, be put in Execution. He ought to prevent unlawful Games; Tipling, and Drunkenness; Bloodshed, Affrays, &c. He is to execute Precepts and Warrants, directed to him by Justices of the Peace, and make Returns to the Sessions of the Justices to all the Articles contained in his Oath, or that concern his Office: And he is also to cause the Petty Constables to make their Returns. He is to return all Victuallers and Alehouse-keepers that are unlicensed; and all such Persons as entertain Idlers, who are likely to be a Charge to the Parish. He must likewise present the Faults of Petty Constables, Headboroughs, &c. who neglect to apprehend Rogues, Vagrants, and idle Persons, Whores, Night-

Night-walkers, Mothers of Bastard Children who are likely to be chargeable to the Parish, &c. And also all Defects of Highways and Bridges, and the Names of those who ought to repair them; Scavengers who neglect their Duty; and all common Nuisances in Streets and Highways; Bakers who sell Bread under Weight; Brewers selling Beer to unlicensed Alehouses; Foreftallers, Regrators, Ingrossers, &c. And at every Quarter-Sessions they are to pay to the Treasurer of the County, all such Money as hath been levied and received by them, of the Church-wardens, &c. for the Relief of Prisons and Hospitals. Dalt. ca. 28. Lamb. 125. The Duty and Authority of Petty Constables, in their several Towns, Tithings, and Boroughs, are much the same as the High Constable hath in his Hundred: They are to keep the Peace in the Absence of the High Constable, and assist him in making Presentments at the Assizes and Quarter-Sessions, of every Thing that is amiss: As Conservators of the Peace, they may command Affrayers to keep the Peace, and depart, &c. And may break into a House to see the Peace kept; make fresh Pursuit into another County, &c. They may command all Persons to assist them, to prevent a Breach of the Peace; justify Beating another if assaulted; and if they happen to be killed, doing their Duty, it will be taken to be premeditated Murder. They may, without Warrant from a Justice of Peace, take into Custody any Persons whom they see committing a Felony or Breach of the Peace; but if it be out of their Sight, as where a Person is seized by another, &c. they may not do it without Warrant from a Justice. And a Constable cannot detain a Man at his Pleasure; but only stay him to bring him before a Justice, to be examined, &c. Dalt. c. 1, 8. Lamb. 125. H. P. C. 135, 92. 1 Lill. Abr. 304. 1 Leon. 307. Constables may justify the Detaining of an Offender for a Day, without Warrant; the Justice then not having an Opportunity to examine him. Moor 408. If one abuses a Constable in the Execution of his Office, he cannot commit him to Prison, there to remain till punished for the Offence; but must carry him before a Justice, who may commit him, &c. 2 Darr. Abr. 149. Petty Constables are to execute Warrants of Justices, and not dispute it where the Justice hath Jurisdiction, and the Warrant is lawful: And being sworn Officers, they need not shew their Warrants when they come to arrest any one. 10 Rep. 76. If any Justice sends his Warrant to a Constable, &c. to bring a Person before him to answer all such Matters as shall be objected against him by another, and doth not set forth the special Matter in the Warrant, the Warrant is unlawful, because it doth not give the Offender Time and Opportunity to find Sureties: And the Constable, if he executes it, is liable to Action of false Imprisonment. 2 Inst. 591. So if a Justice of Peace sends a Warrant to a Constable to take up one for Slander, &c. the Justice having no Jurisdiction in such Cases, the Constable ought not to execute it. The Constable is the proper Officer to a Justice of Peace, and bound to execute his lawful Warrants; and therefore where a Statute authorizes a Justice to convict a Person of any Crime, and to levy the Penalty, &c. without saying to whom such Warrant shall be directed, the Constable is the Officer to execute the Warrant, and must obey it. 5 Mod. 130. 1 Salk. 381. If a Warrant be directed to a Constable by Name, commanding him to execute it, though he is not compellable to go out of his own Parish, yet he may if he will, and execute it in any Place in the County, and shall be justified by the Warrant for so doing; but if the Warrant be directed to all Constables, &c. generally, no Constable can execute the same out of his Precinct. 1 Salk. 175. 3 Salk. 99. It is at the Election of a Constable to carry an Offender before any other Justice than him who issued the Warrant; if the Warrant be not special, to bring the Offender before the Justice that granted it. 5 Rep. 59. Constables, Headboroughs, &c. out of Purse in their Offices, they and the Inhabitants may tax all Persons chargeable by the 43 El. c. 2. as every Occupier of Land, &c. which Rate being confirmed by two Justices, the Constables may levy it by Distress and Sale of Goods. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. A Constable by Warrant from a Justice of Peace, may sell the Goods of an Offender apprehended, to discharge the Expence of carrying him to Prison: If the Offender hath no Goods, then the Town where he was apprehended must be at the Expence; and the Constable, with three or four of the Principal Inhabitants, may impose a Tax on every Inhabitant, &c. which being allowed by a Justice, the Constable by his Warrant may levy it: And if the Inhabitants refuse to make a Tax, two Justices may by Warrant compel them to it. 3 Fac. 1. c. 10. Constables sued may plead the General Issue, and give the special Matter in Evidence, for any Thing done in their Offices. 21 Fac. 1. c. 15. And if a Constable doth not his Duty, he may be indicted and fined by the Justices of Peace.

The particular Duty of Constables, is further as follows: They are not only to command Affrayers to depart, but call others to their Assistance to suppress Affrays; and they may put Affrayers in the Stocks, till they can convey them before a Justice, &c. Dalt. 33. Lamb. 135, 141. Constables are to levy the Penalties of Persons keeping Ale-houses without License, selling less than Measure, &c. or forfeit 40 s. &c. 1 Fac. 1. They are to stop Persons as go or ride unlawfully armed, in Terror of the People; take away their Arms, and carry them before a Justice of Peace. Dalt. 338. A Constable may with others called to his Assistance enter Bawdy-Houses, and arrest Persons with lewd Women, for Breach of the Peace. Mich. 13 Hen. 7. The Constable and two most able Inhabitants in the Parish, are to make an Assessment for the Repairs of Bridges, to be allowed by Justices. 22 H. 8. High Constables may hear and determine Complaints of Clothiers, and their work People: Search for and seize Ropes, Engins, &c. for the stretching of Cloth. 4 Ed. 4. 39 Eliz. Constables, Headborough, &c. are to levy the Fines imposed on those who shall be present at unlawful Conventicles; and by Virtue of a Justice's Warrant may enter such Places, break open Doors upon their being refused Entrance, and take into Custody Persons unlawfully assembled, &c. 22 Car. 2. They are to be assisting to all Persons appointed by the King for the Collecting and Management of the Customs. 14 Car. 2. The Penalties on Deer-stealers are to be levied by Constables, by Virtue of a Justice's Warrant: And the Penalties are 20 l. for hunting Deer in any Place enclosed; and 30 l. for each Deer killed, &c. 13 Car. 2. Constables are to assist Landlords in taking Distresses for Rent in Arrear; and in the Appraisement of the Goods Sale, &c. if the same are not replevied in five Days.

Days. 2 W. & M. They are to levy the Penalty of 5 s. on Drunkards, for the Use of the Poor; or shall forfeit 10 s. 4. Fac. 1. Constables are to attend Officers of the Excise, and enter with them Brew-houses, private Houses, &c. for Discovery of Frauds: And by Warrant from Justices, they are to levy the Penalties on Offenders against any Law of Excise, by Distress, &c. 12 Car. 2. and 7 & 8 W. 3. A Constable permitting a Felon to escape, before arrested, is guilty of a Misdemeanor, for which he may be indicted and fined, and if the Felon be actually in Custody, and then he voluntarily permits him to escape, 'tis Felony in the Constable; but if the Escape be involuntary, it is only fineable: A Constable may discharge any Person arrested on Suspicion of Felony, where no Felony is actually committed. Dalt. 272. Cro. Eliz. 202, 752. Constables ex Officio are to apprehend Felons, call others to their Assistance therein, and apprehend Persons upon Suspicion, and carry them before a Justice, &c. A Constable may justify Breaking open a House, to take a Felon; and if the Felon fly, he is to make an Inventory of his Goods, send Hue and Cry after him, &c. Dalt. 289, 340. 27 Eliz. Constables must levy the Penalty of 10 s. for fishing in a River, without the Owner's Consent; and search for unlawful Nets, Engines, &c. 22 & 23 Car. 2. They are to give Assistance to Justices of Peace, in removing forcible Entries, &c. or shall be committed and fined 5 R. 2. Constables are to carry Higlers, Chapmen, Victuallers, &c. before a Justice, who have in their Custody any Hare, or other Game; and by a Justice's Warrant are to search suspected Houses for Game, &c. They may carry Persons, not qualified to kill Game, before a Justice, for keeping Greyhounds, setting Dogs, &c. 4 & 5 W. & M. 5 Ann. 3 Geo. They are to make a Search monthly for Gaming-Houses, where unlawful Games shall be kept; and they may commit the Masters of such Houses, and the Gamesters found therein: Though it is best to carry them before a Justice of Peace: And Constables neglecting their Duties in this particular, forfeit 40 s. 33 H. 8. cap. 14. If Gaolers refuse to receive a Felon, the Constable may either secure the Prisoner in his own House, or carry him back to the Town where apprehended: And to defray the Charge of carrying him to Gaol, &c. Constables have Power to sell the Offender's Goods, &c. 10 H. 4. Dalt. 340. 3 Fac. 1. Constables are to whip Hedgebreakers, Robbers of Orchards, &c. for not making Satisfaction ordered by a Justice: They may apprehend Persons suspected of Hedgebreaking, or of having in their Possession any Underwood, Poles, Gates, Stiles, &c. and carry them before a Justice, &c. 43 El. 15 Car. 2. To be aiding and assisting in putting the Acts in Executing relating to the Repairing of the Highways; under the Penalty of 40 s. And they are to return Lists of Persons qualified for the Office of Surveyor, to the Justices in their Sessions on the 3d of January yearly, under the Penalty of 20 s. 22 Car. 2. 3 & 4 W. & M. Constables are to be assisting in driving of Commons, Forests, &c. of Horses and Cattle; on Pain of 40 s. 32 H. 8. They are to make Hue and Cry after Offenders where a Felony is committed: To call upon the Parishioners to assist in the Pursuit; and if the Criminal be not found in the Precinct of the first Constable, he is to give Notice to the next Constable, and he to the next, who are to do as the First, and continue the Pursuit from

Town to Town, and County to County, &c. 13 Ed. 1. 27 Eliz. Pursuers of the Hue and Cry may search suspected Houses, and arrest suspicious Persons. Constables must give in to the Justices at Michaelmas Sessions yearly, a List of Persons qualified to serve on Juries; and neglecting to return Lists, incurs a Forfeiture of 5 l. 7 & 8 W. 3. In the Time of Harvest, a Constable may set Labourers, Artificers, and ordinary Tradesmen on Work, and put those in the Stocks who refuse. 5 Eliz. Constables are to give their Assistance in collecting the Land-Tax, and taking of Distresses, &c. when refused Payment. 2 W. & M. They have Power to search for bad Malt, and if they find any bad mingled with good, they may with the Advice of a Justice cause the same to be sold at reasonable Rates. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. Constables are to search and examine if any Persons use other Measures than such as are Winchester Measure, and agreeable to the Standard. 22 Car. 2. By Warrant from the Lieutenantcy, Constables are to commit Persons to Gaol, refusing to provide Arms for Horse and Foot Soldiers, for the Militia, if no Distress can be taken. 13 & 14 Car. 2. They may command Persons infected with the Plague, to keep within their Houses, &c. And are to levy Money appointed by Justices, for Relief of poor Persons infected. 1 Fac. 1. Constables shall present Popish Recusants, within their Liberties, &c. And neglecting, to forfeit 20 s. 35 El. 7 Fac. 1. They are likewise at the Quarter-Sessions to make Presentment of all Things against the Peace, and belonging to their Offices, &c. Constables are to suppress Riots, and they may ex Officio commit Offenders, &c. 17 R. 2. And by 1 Geo. Rioting, where twelve Rioters continue together an Hour after Proclamation, is made Felony. They are to make a Tax, by Warrant from two Justices, on the Inhabitants of their Parishes, where a Robbery on the Highway is committed in the Hundred. 17 Eliz. Constables and two Householders of Towns, Parishes, &c. by an old Law were to give Testimonials to Servants; Servants not procuring such were not to be retained, but punished as Vagrants. 5 El. Constables, &c. are to quarter Soldiers in Inns, Ale-houses, Victualling-Houses, &c. Refusing to billet Soldiers, they are to be fined not exceeding 40 s. nor less than 10 s. and receiving any Reward to excuse Quarterage; or if Victuallers, &c. refuse Soldiers quartered, they shall forfeit not above 5 l. nor under 40 s. 1 Geo. cap. 3, 34. 7 Geo. c. 6. Persons suspected of Desertion, may be taken up by Constables, and carried before a Justice: And 20 s. Reward is given for taking up a Deserter. They are to levy the Penalty of 5 s. on Persons resorting to Wrestling, Dancing, or other Sports on a Sunday; and also on Persons doing any worldly Labour on that Day, &c. 1 Car. 1. 29 Car. 2. To levy the Penalty for profane Swearing; which is 1 s. for a Servant, Labourer, &c. and 2 s. for others; and as the Crime is repeated, the Penalty is to be doubled. 6 & 7 W. 3. By Warrant from two Justices, Constables, &c. are to levy small Tithes, refused Payment, by Distress and Sale. 10 & 11 W. 3. Constables, upon Information, are to destroy Tobacco planted contrary to the Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. or be liable to a Forfeiture of 5 s. for every Rod not destroyed. Constables, &c. are to apprehend Vagrants, and carry them before a Justice; and to convey them by the Justice's Pass and Certificate, to their Place of Birth or Settlement, &c. being paid paid the Allowances mentioned in the Certificates: They are to cause Beggars, &c. to be whipped, on Complaint of two Inhabitants; and if they neglect it, shall forfeit 10 s. and failing in their Duties in other Respects, to forfeit 20 s. 12 Ann. c. 23.

Constables of London, (which City is divided into twenty-six Wards, and every Ward into the like Number of Precincts, over each whereof is a Constable) are nominated by the Inhabitants of each Precinct on St. Thomas's Day, and confirmed, or otherwise at the Court of Wardmote; and after they are confirmed, they are sworn in their Offices at a Court of Aldermen, on the next Monday after Twelfth Day. The Substance of their Oath is, to keep the King's Peace to the utmost of their Power; to arrest Affrayers, Rioters, and such as make Contests to the Breach of the Peace, and carry them to the House of Correction or Counter of one of the Sheriffs; and in case of Resistance, to make Outcry on them, and pursue them from Street to Street, and from Ward to Ward, till they are arrested: To search for common Nuisances, in their respective Wards, being required by Scavengers, &c. and upon Request to assist the Beadle and Raker in collecting their Salaries and Quarterage; to present to the Lord Mayor and Ministers of the City, Defaults relating to the Ordinances of the City; to certify once a Month into the Mayor's Court, the Names and Surnames of all Freemen deceased; and also of the Children of such Freemen, being Orphans: And by the Articles of the Wardmote Inquest, Constables are to certify the Name, Surname, Place of Dwelling, Possession and Trade of every Person, who shall newly come to inhabit in their Precincts, and to keep a Roll thereof; in order to which, they are to make Inquiry at least once a Month into what Persons are come to lodge and sojourn there; and if they find by their own Confessions, or the Record of the Aldermen's Books, that such new Comers are ejected from any other Ward for bad living, or any Misdemeanor, and refuse to find Sureties for their good Behaviour, Warning is to be given to them and their Landlords, that they depart; and on Refusal, they may be imprisoned, and the Landlords fined a Year's Rent agreed for by such new Comers. Calth. Rep. 129, 138. Constables of London in each Ward are to attend the Watch by Turns, and go the Rounds; and with the Beadles every Night are to warn such Persons as are to serve upon the Watch in their several Precincts; and if they refuse to appear, the Constable may hire others in his stead, and they shall pay him according to the Custom of the City: But the Common Council appoint the Watchmen. Watchmen are to apprehend Night-walkers, Vagabonds, Persons going armed, &c. and may arrest Strangers in the Night, and carry them before the Constable to be examined, and finding Cause of Suspicion secure them till the Morning; and whether they are Horsemen or Footmen, or Drivers of Carriages, or that shall carry Burthens, the Watch may stay them till the Morning, unless they can render a good Account of themselves, their Company, and Carriage, &c. and Constables, &c. are to be aiding and assisting to the Watch; and the Watchmen are to obey their Orders, in conveying Offenders to the Compter, which is the common Prison for Offenders for the Breach of the Peace, till they are examined, and punished by the Lord Mayor, &c. But Constables ought to be careful whom they send to the Compter, for fear of Actions for false Imprisonment; Prosecution for Damages, &c. If any will not obey the Arrest of the Watch, they may make Hue and Cry after them; and for such Arrest of a Stranger, (especially one suspected) none is liable to Punishment. Dalt. 240. Constables are to certify to the Lord Mayor, and Common Council of the City, the Names of all such Persons as shall interrupt them in the Discharge of their Offices: And a Constable of London has Power to execute Warrants, &c. throughout the whole City, upon Occasion. Such as are chosen into the Office, are obliged to Place the King's Arms, and the Arms of the City over their Doors; and if they reside in Alleys, at the End of such Alleys, towards the Street; to signify that a Constable lives there, and that they may be the more easily found when wanted. See Comp. Parish-Officer, p. 7, 8, &c.

Constat, (Lat.) Is the Name of a Certificate, which the Clerk of the Pipe, and Auditors of the Exchequer, make at the Request of any Person who intends to plead or move in that Court, for Discharge of any Thing: And the Effect of it is the Certifying what does Constare upon Record, touching the Matter in Question. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. c. 4. and 13 El. c. 6. Constat is held to be superior to a Certificate, which may err or fail in its Contents, whereas this cannot, it having nothing but what is evident upon Record. The Exemplification under the great Seal, of the Inrolment of any Letters Patent, is called a Constat. Co. Lit. 225.

Consuetudinarius, A Ritual or Book, containing the Rites and Forms of Divine Offices, or the Customs of Abbeys and Monasteries: 'Tis mentioned in Brompton.

Consuetudinibus & Servitiis, Is a Writ of Right Close, which lies against the Tenant that desorceth his Lord of the Rent or Service due to him. Reg. Orig. 159. F. N. B. 151. When the Writ is brought by the Party in the Right only, he shall count of the Seisin of his Ancestor, and the Writ be in the Debet; but when he counts of his own Seisin, then the Writ is in the Debet & solet, &c. And if the Party say in the Writ ut in Redditibus & Arveragiis, these Words prove that the Demandant himself was seised of the Services; and then if he count in such Writ of Seisin of his Ancestors, and not of his own Seisin, the Writ shall abate: So that if he will bring a Writ of Customs and Services of the Seisin of his Ancestors, he ought to leave these Words ut in Redditibus, &c. out of the Writ. Where a Person brings a Writ of Customs and Services against any Tenant, and by his Count demands Homage, the Writ ought to make special Mention thereof; as ut in Homagio, &c. or the Writ will abate. New Nat. Br. 338. If the Writ be brought against Tenant for Life, where the Remainder is over in Fee, there the Tenant may pray in Aid of him in the Remainder, &c. The Writ, which is returnable in the Common Pleas, runs thus:

REX Vic. &c. Prac. A. quod, &c. faciat B. Consuetud. & Servic. quod ei facer. debet de Libero Tenemento suo, quod de eo tenet in, &c. Ut in Redditibus, Arveragiis, & aliis; vel sic, in Homag. releviis & al. vel sic, in feftis, Cur. &c. Nisi, &c.

Consulta Ecclesia, A Church full, or provided for, according to Cowel.

Consultation, (Consultatio) Is a Writ whereby a Cause being removed by Prohibition from the Ecclesiastical Court, to the King's Court, is returned thither again: For if the Judges of the King's Court, upon comparing the Libel with the Suggestion of the Party, find the Suggestion false, or not proved, and therefore the Cause to be wrongfully called from the Ecclesiastical Court, then upon this Consultation or Deliberation they Decree it to be returned; whereupon the Writ in this Case obtained is called a Consultation. Reg. Orig. 44, &c. Statute of Writ of Consultations, 24 Ed. 1. This Writ is in Nature of a Procedendo; but properly a Consultation ought not to be granted, but in Case where a Man cannot recover at the Common Law, in the King's Courts. New Nat. Br. 119. Causes of which the Ecclesiastical or Spiritual Courts, have Jurisdiction, are of Administrations, Admissions of Clerks, Adultery, Appeals in Ecclesiastical Causes, Apostacy, General Bastardy, Blasphemy, Solicitation of Chastity, Church Repairs, Dilapidations and Church Repairs, Celebration of Divine Service, Divorces, Fornication, Heresy, Incest, Institution of Clerks, Marriage Rites, Oblations, Obventions, Ordinations, Commutation of Penance, Penfions, Procurations, Schism, Simony, Tithes, Probate of Wills, &c. and where a Suit is in the Ecclesiastical Court, for any of these Causes, or the like, and not mixed with any temporal Thing; if a Suggestion is made for a Prohibition, a Consultation shall be awarded. 5 Rep. 9. To move for a Prohibition in another Court, after Motion in the Chancery, &c. for a Prohibition on the same Libel, which is granted, is merely vexatious, for which a Consultation shall be had. Cro. Eliz. 277. Where a Consultation is granted upon the Right of the Thing in Question, there a new Prohibition shall never be granted on the same Libel; but where granted upon any Default of the Prohibition, in Form, &c. there a Prohibition may be granted upon the same Libel again. 1 Nelf. Abr. 485. A Consultation must be pursuant to the Libel, &c. Vide Prohibition.

Consul, (Lat.) In our Law Books signifies an Earl. Bract. lib. 1. cap. 8. tells us that as Comes is derived from Comitatu, so Consul is derived from Consulendo; and in the Laws of Edward the Confessor, Mention is made of Vicecomites and Viceconsules. Blount. Consuls among the Romans, were chief Officers of which two were yearly chosen, to govern the City of Rome: But this Government of Rome, has long since be abrogated. Our Consuls abroad take Care of the Affairs and Interest of Merchants, in foreign Kingdoms where they are appointed by the King; as at Lisbon, &c.

Contempt, (Contemptus) Is a Disobedience to the Rules and Orders of a Court, which hath Power to punish such Offence: And one may be imprisoned for a Contempt done in Court; but not for a Contempt out of Court, or a private Abuse. Cro. Eliz. 689. Attachment also lies against one for Contempt to the Court, to bring in the Offender to answer on Interrogatories, &c. and if he cannot acquit himself, he shall be fined. 1 Lill. 305. See Attachment.

Contentment, (Contentementum) Is said to signify a Man's Countenance or Credit, which he hath together with, and by Reason of his Freehold: In which Sense, it is used in the Statute of 1 Ed. 3, and other Statutes: And Spelman in his Glossary says, Contentementum est Estimatio & Conditionis forma, qua quis in Repub. subsistit. But Contentment is more properly that which is necessary for the Support and Maintenance of Men, according to their several Qualities, Conditions or States of Life: And seems to be Freehold Land, which lieth to a Man's Tenement, or Dwelling-House, that is in his own Occupation. For by Magna Charta, cap. 14. it is enacted, that a Freeman shall not be amerced, but secundum magnitudinem delicti, salvo sibi Contentamento suo; & Mercator eodem modo, salva Merchandisa; & vilanus salvo Wainagio; that is, as Glanvil tells us, he should be amerced, secundum quantitatem feodorum suorum, & secundum facultates, ne nimis gravari inde videantur vel suum Contentementum amittere. Lib. 9. c. 8.

Contingent Use, Is a Use limited in a Conveyance of Land, which may, or may not happen to vest, according to the Contingency expressed in the Limitation of such Use: A Use in Contingency is such which by Possibility may happen in Possession, Reversion or Remainder. 1 Rep. 121. A Contingent Remainder is where an Estate is limited to take Place in futuro, upon an uncertain Event; as where a particular Estate which doth support a Remainder, may or may not determine before the Remainder may commence. 10 Rep. 85. A Remainder Contingent is said to be an Estate vested; but on such Remainder in executory Devises, the Estate descends till the Contingency happens, and nothing is vested till then. 1 Ventr. 189.

Continual Claim, Is a Claim made from Time to Time, within every Year and Day, to Land, or other Thing, which in some Respect we cannot attain without Danger: As if a Person be disseised of Land, into which though he hath a Right of Entry, he dare not enter for fear of Beating, &c. it behoves him to hold on his Right of Entry at his best Opportunity, by approaching as near it as he can once a Year, as long as he lives, and to save the Right of Entry to his Heir. Lit. lib. 3. c. 7. Continual Claim is where 'tis made, and repeated yearly, so as to be within a Year and a Day before the Death of him that hath the Lands; and if after he dies seized, so that his Heir is in by Descent, yet he that makes the Claim may enter, &c. but if no Claim be made, then the Entry of the Person disseised, &c. is taken away. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 33. Though by the Statute, the Disseisor is to have peaceable Possession five Years, without Entry or Continual Claim, for a Discent on his Death, to take away the Entry of the Disseisee, or his Heir: After the five Years, the Disseisee is to make Continual Claim, as before the Statute. The Feoffee of a Disseisor, Abators, &c. are out of the Statute.

Continuance, Is the Continuing of a Cause in Court, by an Entry upon the Records there for that Purpose. There is a Continuance of the Affise, &c. and Continuance of a Writ or Action, is from one Term to another, in Case where the Sheriff hath not returned a former Writ, issued out in the said Action. Kitch. 262. Continuances and Essoins are amendable upon the Roll, at any Time before Judgment: They are the Acts of the Court, and at Common Law they may amend their own Acts before Judgment, though in another Term; but their Judgments are only amendable in the same Term wherein they are given. 3 Lep. 431. Upon an Original, a Term or two or three Terms, may be mesne between the Tette and the Return; and this shall be a good Continuance; for the Defendant is not at any Prejudice by it, and the Plaintiff may give a Day to the Defendant beyond the common Day if he will: But a Continuance by Capias ought to be made from Term to Term, and there cannot be any mesne Term, because the Defendant ought not to stay so long in Prison. 2 Danv. Abr. 150. If a Man recovers upon Demurrer, or by Default, &c. and a Writ of Inquiry of Damages is awarded, there ought to be Continuances between the first and second Judgment, otherwise it will be a Discontinuance; for the First is but an Award, and not compleat till the second Judgment upon the Return of the Writ of Inquiry of Damages. Ibid. 153. If the Plaintiff be nonsuit, by which the Defendant is to recover Costs; if the Plaintiff will not enter his Continuances, on Purpose to save the Costs, the Defendant shall be suffered to enter them. Cro. Jac. 316, 317. The Course of the Court of King's Bench is to enter no Continuance upon the Roll, till after Issue or Demurrer; and then to enter the Continuance of all upon the Back, before Judgment: And if it is not entered, it is Error. Trin. 16 Jac. B. R. Vide Discontinuance.

Continuando, Is a Word used in a special Declaration of Trespass, when the Plaintiff would recover Damages for several Trespases in the same Action: And to avoid Multiplicity of Suits, a Man may in one Action of Trespases recover Damages for many Trespases, laying the First to be done with a Continuando to the whole Time, in which the Rest of the Trespases were done; which is in this Form, Continuando Transgressionem predictam, &c. a predicto die, &c. usque talem Diem, including the last Trespases. Terms de Ley 173. In Trespases with a Continuando of divers Things, tho' of some of those Things there could be no Continuando; yet it shall be good for those Things for which the Continuando could be, and not for the others: But if the Continuando had been particularly of such Things whereof a Continuando could not be, then it had been naught. 3 Lev. 94. Every Day's Trespases is said to be a several Trespases; tho' a Continuando may not be of Men's continuing a Trespases Day and Night, for some Time together; for Mankind must take some Rest: Where Cattle do Trespases upon Ground, they are continually trespassing Night and Day, and therefore the Continuando in that Case is good. 1 Lill. Abr. 307. Trespases for Breaking an House with a Continuando, is good; and until a Re-entry is made, the Continuation of the Possession is a Continuing of the Trespases. Lutw. 1312. It is usual in Practice to lay the Continuando for longer Time than you can prove; but Damages shall be given only for what can be proved. 2 Mod. 253.

Contraband Goods, (from Contra, and the Ital. Bando, an Edict or Proclamation) Are those which are prohibited by Act of Parliament, or the King's Proclamation to be imported into, or exported out of this into any other Nation: As during the late War with France, French Wines, &c. were prohibited by Statute to be imported here from thence: And Wool, &c. is not to be exported from hence to other Kingdoms. Stat. 27 E. 3. c. 3. 13 & 14 Car. 2. 7 & 8 W. 3. &c.

Contracatus, A Criminal, or one prosecuted for a Crime: This Word is mentioned in Leg. H. 1. c. 61.

Contract, (Contractus) Is a Covenant or Agreement between Two or more Persons, with a lawful Consideration or Cause. West. Symb. As if a Man sells his Horse or other Thing to another, for a Sum of Money; or covenants, in Consideration of 20 l. to make him a Lease of a Farm, &c. these are good Contracts, because there is a Quid pro quo, or one Thing for another: But if a Person make a Promise to me, that I shall have 20 s. and that he will be Debtor to me therefore, and after I Demand the 20 s. and he will not give it me, yet I shall never have any Action to recover this 20 s. because this Promise was no Contract, but a bare Promise, or Nudum Pactum; tho' if any Thing were given for the 20 s. if it were but to the Value of a Penny, then it had been a good Contract. Cowel. Every Contract doth imply in it self an Assumpsit in Law, to perform the same; for a Contract would be to no Purpose, if there were not Means to enforce the Performance thereof. 1 Lill. Abr. 308. Where an Action is brought upon a Contract, and the Plaintiff mistakes the Sum agreed upon, he will fail in his Action: But if he brings his Action on the Promise in Law, which arises from the Debt, there, although he mistakes the Sum, he shall recover. Aleyn 29. There is a Diversity where a Day of Payment is limited on a Contract, and where not; for where it is limited, the Contract is good presently, and an Action lies upon it, without Payment; but in the other not: If a Man buys twenty Yards of Cloth, &c. the Contract is void if he do not pay the Money presently; but if Day of Payment be given, there the One may have an Action for the Money, and the other Trover for the Cloth. Dyer 30, 293. Where a Seller says to a Buyer, he will sell his Horse for so much, and the Buyer says he will give it; if he presently tell out the Money, it is a Contract; but if he do not, it is no Contract. Noy's Max. 87. Hob. 41. The Property of any Thing sold is in the Buyer immediately by the Contract; tho' regularly it must be delivered to the Buyer, before the Seller can bring his Action for the Money. Noy 88. Contracts, not to be performed in a Year, are to be in Writing, signed by the Party, &c. or no Action may be brought on them: But if no Day is set, or the Time is uncertain, they may be good without it. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. And by the same Statute, no Contract for the Sale of Goods for 10 l. or upwards, shall be good, unless the Buyer receive Part of the Goods sold; or gives something in Earnest to bind the Contract; or some Note thereof be made in Writing, signed by the Person charged with the Contract, &c. A Contract made and entered into upon good Consideration, may for good Considerations be dissolved. See Sale. Usurious Contracts, vide Usury.

Contrafaction, (Contrafactio) A Counterfeiting; as Contrafactio sigilli Regis, Counterfeiting the King's Seal. Blount.

Contra formam Collationis, Is a Writ that lay where a Man had given Lands in perpetual Alms, to any late Houses of Religion, as to an Abbot and Convent, or to the Warden or Master of any Hospital and his Convent, to find certain poor Men with Necessaries, and do Divine Service, &c. If they aliened the Land, to the Dishonour of the House and Church, then the Donor, or his Heirs, should bring this Writ to recover the Lands. It was had against the Abbot, or his Successor; not against the Alienee, tho' he were Tenant of the Land: And was founded upon the Statute Statute of Westm. 2. c. 1. Reg. Orig. 238. Fitzh. N. B. 210.

Contra formam feoffamenti, A Writ that lies for the Heir of a Tenant infeoffed of certain Lands or Tenements, by Charter of Feoffment from a Lord, to make certain Services and Suits to his Court, who is afterwards distrained for more Services than are mentioned in the Charter. Reg. Orig. 176. Old Nat. Br. 162.

Contra formam Statuti, Is the usual Conclusion of every Indictment, &c. laid on an Offence created by Statute.

Contramandatio Placiti, Signifies a Respite or giving a Defendant further Time to answer; or a Countermand of what was formerly ordered. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 59.

Contramandatum, Is a lawful Excuse which the Defendant in a Suit by Attorney alledgeth for himself, to shew that the Plaintiff hath no Cause of Complaint. Blount.

Contrapositio, A Plea or Answer. — Si quis in Placito per Justitiam posito sui vel suorum causam injustis Conterminationibus vel Contrapositionibus differet, hanc perdat. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 34.

Contrarietatis. In the Reign of King Edw. 2. Thomas Earl of Lancaster taking Part with the Bavons against the King, it was not thought fit, in Respect of their great Power, to call them Rebels or Traitors, but Contrarietatis: And hence we have a Record of those Times, called Rotulum Contrarietatum.

Contratenere, To with-hold. Si quis Decimas contratenear. Leg. Alfredi apud Brompton, c. 9.

Contribules, Contribunales, Kindred or Cousins. Lamb. pag. 75.

Contribution, (Contributio) Is where every one pays his Share, or contributes his Part to any Thing. One Parcener shall have Contribution against another; one Heir have Contribution against another Heir, in equal Degree: And one Purchaser have Contribution against another. Also Coparceners in a Statute shall be equally charged, and not one of them solely extended. 3 Rep. 12, 13, &c. If Lands are mortgaged, and then devised to one Person for Life, with Remainder to another in Fee; both Devisees shall make Contribution to the Payment of the Mortgage-Money: And it has been adjudged in Chancery, that Tenant for Life shall pay one Third, and he in Remainder two Thirds. 1 Chanc. Cas. 224, 271. Where Goods are cast into the Sea, for the Safeguard of a Ship, or other Goods, &c. aboard, in a Tempest; there is a Contribution among Merchants, towards the Loss of the Owners. 32 H. 8. c. 14. And where a Robbery is committed on the Highway, and Damages are recovered against one or a few Persons, in Action against the Hundred, the Rest of the Inhabitants shall make Contribution to the same. 27 Eliz. c. 13.

Contributione facienda, Is a Writ that lieth where there are Tenants in Common, that are bound to one Thing, and one is put to the whole Burden; or who jointly hold a Mill pro Indiviso, and take the Profits equally, and the Mill falling into Decay, one of them will not repair the Mill; now the other shall have a Writ to compel him to contribute to the Reparations. And if there be three Coparceners of Land, that owe Suit to the Lord's Court, and the eldest performs the Whole; then may she have this Writ to compel the other to make their Contribution. And also where one Suit is required for Land, and that Land being sold to divers Persons, Suit is required of them all, or some of them by Distress, as entirely as if all were still in one. Reg. Orig. 176. F. N. B. 162.

Form of the Writ of Contributione facienda.

REX Vic. &c. Si A. fecerit, &c. tunc Summ. &c. B. & C. quod sint apud, &c. ostens. quare cum iidem A. B. & C. quoddam molendinum in, &c. pro indiviso teneant, & ipsi exitus inde provenient. pro equali portione percipiant, & ad Reparationem & sustentat. ejusdem Molendini teneantur, ac iidem B. & C. licet Proportionem de exit. illis ipsi. contingen. percipiant, reparationi & sustentationi predict. molendini contribuere contradicunt, in ipsius A. damnum, &c. Et habeas, &c.

Controller, (Fr. Contrerolleur, Lat. Contravotulator) Is an Overseer or Officer relating to Publick Accounts, &c. And we have divers Officers of this Name; as Controller of the King's Household; of the Navy; of the Customs; of the Excise; of the Mint, &c. And in our Courts, there is the Controller of the Hamper; of the Pipe; and of the Pell, &c. The Office of Controller of the Household is to control the Accounts of the Green Cloth; and he sits with the Lord-Steward and other Officers in the Counting-house, for daily taking the Accounts of all Expences of the Household. The Controller of the Navy controls the Payments of Wages; examines and audits Accounts; and inquires into Rates of Stores for Shipping, &c. Controllers of the Customs and Excise, their Office is to control the Accounts of those Revenues: And the Controller of the Mint controls the Payment of Wages, and Accounts relating to the same. Controller of the Hamper is an Officer in the Chancery attending the Lord Chancellor daily in Term-time, and upon Seal-Days; whose Office is to take all Things sealed from the Clerk of the Hamper, inclos'd in Bags of Leather, and to note the just Number and Effect of all Things so received, and enter the same in a Book, with all the Duties appertaining to his Majesty, and other Officers for the same. The Controller of the Pipe is an Officer of Exchequer, who writes out Summons twice every Year to the Sheriffs to levy the Farms and Debts of the Pipe; and keeps a Controlment of the Pipe, &c. Controller of the Pell is also an Officer of the Exchequer; of which Sort there are Two, who are the Chamberlains Clerks, that do or should keep a Controlment of the Pell, of Receipts and Goings out: And this Officer was originally such as took Notes of other Officers Accounts or Receipts, to the Intent to discover if they dealt amiss, and was ordained for the Prince's better Security. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 18. Stat. 12 Ed. 3. c. 3. This last seems to be the original Use and Design of all Controllers.

Controber, (Fr. Controveur) Signifies in our Law one that of his own Head devises or invents false News. 2 Inst. 227.

Condenable, (Fr.) Agreeable. Stat. 27 Ed. 3. c. 21. See Covenable.

Convent, (Conventus) Signifies the Fraternity of an Abbey or Priory; as Societas doth the Number of Fellows in a College. Bract. lib. 2. c. 35.

Conventicle, (Conventiculum) A private Assembly or Meeting for the Exercise of Religion; first attributed in Disgrace to the Meetings of Wickliff in this Nation, above Two hundred Years since; and now applied to the illegal Meetings of the Nonconformists: It is mentioned in the Statutes tutes 2 Hen. 4. c. 15. 1 Hen. 6. c. 3. and 16 Car. 2. c. 4. which Statute was made to prevent and suppress Conventicles: And by 22 Car. 2. c. 1. It is enacted, That if any Persons of the Age of sixteen Years, Subjects of this Kingdom, shall be present at any Conventicle, where there are Five or more assembled, they shall be fined 5 s. for the first Offence, and 10 s. for the Second; and Persons Preaching incur a Penalty of 20 l. Also suffering a Meeting to be held in a House, &c. is liable to 20 l. Penalty. Justices of Peace have Power to enter such Houses, and seise Persons assembled, &c. And if they neglect their Duty, they shall forfeit 100 l. But the 1 W. & M. c. 18. ordains, that Protestant Dissenters shall be exempted from Penalties: Tho', if they meet in a House, with the Doors lock'd, barr'd, or bolted, such Dissenters shall have no Benefit from 1 W. & M. See Herefy.

Conventio, Is a Word used in antient and modern Law-Pleadings, for an Agreement or Covenant: As A. B. queritur, &c. de C. D. &c. pro eo quod non teneat Conventionem, &c. There is a pleasant Record of the Court of the Manor of Hatfield, in Com. Ebor. held Anno 11 Edw. 3. which runs thus: Robertus R. qui optulit se versus Johannem J. de eo quod non teneat Conventionem inter eos factam, & unde queritur, quod certo die & anno apud, &c. convenit inter predictum Robertum & Johannem, quod predictus Johannes vendidit predicto Roberto Diabolum ligatum in quodam ligamine pro iii d. ob. & predictus Robertus tradidit predicto Johanni quoddam obulum-earles (i. Earnest-Money) per quod Proprietas dicti Diaboli commoratur in Persona dicti Roberti ad habend. deliberationem dicti Diaboli, infra quartam diem prox. sequent. Ad quam diem idem Robertus venit ad prefatum Johannem, & petit deliberationem dicti Diaboli, secundum Conventionem inter eos factam; idem Johannes predictum Diabolum deliberare noluit, nec adhuc vult, &c. ad grave dampnum ipsius Roberti ix sol. Et inde producit secutam, &c. Et predictus Johannes venit, &c. Et non dedit Conventionem predictam. Et quia videtur Curie quod tale Placitum non jacet inter Christianos, Ideo partes predicti adjournantur usque in Infernum, ad audiendum Judicium suum, & utraque Pars in Misericordia, &c.

Conventione, Is a Writ that lies for the Breach of a any Covenant in Writing, whether Real or Personal: And it is called a Writ of Covenant. Reg. Orig. 185. F. N. B. 145.

Convention, Is properly where a Parliament is assembled, but no Act is passed, or Bill sign'd, &c. See Parliament.

Convention Parliament. On the Abdication of King James II. Anno 1689. The Assembly of the States of the Kingdom, to take Care of their Rights and Liberties, and who settled King William and Queen Mary on the Throne, was called the Convention: And the Lords and Commons thus convened were declared the two Houses of Parliament, notwithstanding the Want of any Writ of Summons, &c. Stat. 1 W. & M.

Conventuals, Are those Religious Men who are united together in a Convent or Religious House. Cowel.

Conventual Church, Is a Church that consists of Regular Clerks, professing some Order of Religion; or of Dean and Chapter, or other Society of Spiritual Men.

Conversos. The Jews here in England were formerly called Conversos, because they were converted to the Christian Religion. King Hen. 3.

built an House for them in London, and allowed them a competent Provision or Subsistence for their Lives; and this House was called Domus Conversorum. But by Reason of the vast Expences of the Wars, and the Increase of these Converts, they became a Burthen to the Crown; so that they were placed in Abbeys and Monasteries, for their Support and Maintenance: And the Jews being afterwards banished, K. Edw. 3. in the 51st Year of his Reign, gave this House which had been used for the converted Jews, for the Keeping of the Rolls; and it is said to be the same which is at this Time enjoyed by the Master of the Rolls. Blount.

Conveyance, Is a Deed which passes Land from one Man to another. Conveyance by Feoffment, and Livery, was the general Conveyance at Common Law; and if there was a Tenant in Possession, so that Livery could not be made; then was the Reversion granted, and the Tenant always attorned: Also upon the same Reason, a Lease and Release was held to be a good Conveyance, to pass an Estate; but the Lessee was to be in actual Possession, before the Release. And by the Common Law, when an Estate did not pass by Feoffment, the Vendor made a Lease for Years, and the Lessee actually entered; and the Lessor granted the Reversion to another, and the Lessee attorn'd: Afterwards, when an Inheritance was to be granted, then likewise was a Lease for Years usually made, and the Lessee entered (as before) and then the Lessor released to him: But after the Statute of Uses, it became an Opinion, that if a Lease for Years was made upon a valuable Consideration, a Release might operate upon it without an actual Entry of the Lessee; because the Statute did execute the Lease, and raised an Use presently to the Lessee: And Serjeant Moor was the First who practised this Way. 2 Mod. 251, 252. The most common Conveyances now in Use are Deeds of Gift, Bargain and Sale, Lease and Release, Fines and Recoveries, Settlements to Uses, &c. A Son did give and grant Lands to his Mother, and her Heirs; tho' this was a defective Conveyance at Common Law, yet it was adjudged good by Way of Use, to support the Intention of the Donor, and therefore by these Words an Use did arise to the Mother by Way of Covenant to stand seised. 2 Lev. 225. A Feoffment, without Livery and Seisin, will not enure as a Grant; but where made in Consideration of a Marriage, &c. it has been adjudged, that it did enure as a Covenant to stand seised. 2 Lev. 213. Tenant in Fee, in Consideration of Marriage, covenanted, granted, and agreed, all that Messuage, to the Use of himself for Life, then to his Wife for Life for her Jointure, then to their first Son in Tail Male, &c. Now by these Words it appeared, that the Husband intended some Benefit for his Wife, wherefore the Court supplied other Words to make the Conveyance sensible. 1 Lutw. 782. The Words Give and Grant, &c. are Words proper for a Conveyance at Common Law; but it has been held, that tho' some Books warrant that Conveyances shall operate according to the Words, yet of late the Judges have a greater Consideration of the Passing the Estate, than the Manner by which 'tis passed. 2 Lutw. 1209. A Conveyance cannot be fraudulent in Part, and good as to the Rest: For if it be fraudulent and void in Part, it is void in all, and it cannot be divided. 1 Lill. Abr. 311. Fraudulent Conveyances to deceive Creditors; defraud Purchasers, &c.

Ec. are void, by Stat. 50 Ed. 3. c. 6. 13 Eliz. c. 5. 27 Eliz. c. 4. Vide Deeds. See my Accomplish'd Conveyancer, Vol. 1. Edit. 2.

Convict, (Convictus) Is he that is found guilty of an Offence by Verdict of a Jury. Staundf. P. C. 186. Crompton saith, That Conviction is either when a Man is outlawed, or appeareth and confesseth, or is found guilty by the Inquest: And when a Statute excludes from Clergy Persons found guilty of Felony, Ec. it extends to those who are convicted by Confession. Crompt. Just. 9. The Law implies a Conviction, before Punishment, though not mentioned in a Statute: And where any Statute makes a second Offence Felony, or subject to a heavier Punishment than the First, it is always implied that such second Offence ought to be committed after a Conviction for the First. 1 Hawk. P. C. 13, 107. Judgment amounts to Conviction; tho' it doth not follow that every one who is convicted, is adjudged. Ibid. 14. A Conviction at the King's Suit, may be pleaded to a Suit by an Informer, on a Penal Statute; because while in Force it makes the Party liable to the Forfeiture, and no one ought to be punished twice for the same Offence: But Conviction may not be pleaded to a new Suit by the King. Ibid. 18. A Person convicted or attainted of one Felony, may be prosecuted for another, to bring Accessories to Punishment, Ec. Fitz. Coro. 379. On a Joint Indictment or Information, some of the Defendants may be acquitted, and others convicted. 2 Hawk. 240. Persons convicted of Felony by Verdict, Ec. are not to be admitted to Bail, unless there be some special Motive for granting it; as where a Man is not the same Person, Ec. for Bail ought to be before Trial, when it stands indifferent whether the Party be guilty, or not. Ibid. 99, 114. Conviction of Felony, and other Crimes, disables a Man to be a Juror, Witness, Ec. By our Books, Conviction and Attainder are often confounded.

Convict Recusant, Is one that hath been legally presented, indicted, and convicted, for refusing to come to Church to hear the Common Prayer, according to the Statutes of 1 Eliz. c. 2. 23 Eliz. c. 1. and 3 Jac. 1. c. 4.

Convivium, Signifies the same Thing among the Laity, as Procuratio doth with the Clergy, viz. When the Tenant, by Reason of his Tenure is bound to provide Meat and Drink for his Lord once or oftner in the Year. Blount.

Convocation, (Convocatio) Is the Assembly of all the Clergy, to consult of Ecclesiastical Matters in Time of Parliament: And as there are two Houses of Parliament, so there are two Houses of Convocation; the one called the Higher or Upper House, where the Archbishops and all the Bishops sit severally by themselves; and the other the Lower House of Convocation, where all the Rest of the Clergy sit, i. e. All Deans and Archdeacons, one Proctor for every Chapter, and two Proctors for all the Clergy of each Diocese, making in the whole Number One hundred and sixty-six Persons. Each Convocation House hath a Prolocutor, chosen from among themselves, and that of the Lower House is presented to the Bishops, Ec. The Archbishop of Canterbury is the President of the Convocation, and prorogues and dissolves it by Mandate from the King. The Convocation exercises Jurisdiction in making of Canons, with the King's Assent: For by the Stat. 25 H. 8. the Convocation is not only to be assembled by the King's Writ; but the Canons are to have the Royal Assent: They have the Examining and Censuring of heretical and schismatical Books, and Persons, Ec. But Appeal lies to the King in Chancery, or to his Delegates. 4 Inst. 322. 2 Roll. Abr. 225. The Clergy called to the Convocation, and their Servants, Ec. have the same Privileges as Members of Parliament. Stat. 8 H. 6. c. 1.

Conusance of Pleas, A Privilege that a City or Town hath to hold Pleas. See Cognisance.

Conusant, (Fr. Connoissant) Knowing or Understanding: As if the Son be Conusant, and agree to the Feoffment, Ec. Co. Litt. 159.

Coopers, Shall mark their Vessels with their own Marks, on Pain of 3 s. 4 d. Forfeiture; and the Contents of Vessels are appointed to be observ'd under like Penalty: Also Coopers are to sell their Vessels at such Rates as shall be ordained by Justices, Mayors, Ec. 23 H. 8. c. 4. 8 Eliz. c. 9.

Coopertio, The Head or Branches of a Tree cut down; tho' Coopertio Arborum is rather the Bark of Timber-Trees felled, and the Chumps and broken Wood. Coewel.

Coopertura, A Thicket or Covert of Wood. Chart. de Foresta, c. 12.

Coparceners, (Participes) Otherwise called Parceners, are such as have equal Portion in the Inheritance of an Ancestor; and by Law are the Issue Female, which, in Default of Heirs Male, come in Equality to the Lands of their Ancestor. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 30. They are to make Partition of the Lands; which ought to be equal, and to be made by Coparceners of full Age, Ec. And if the Estate of a Coparcener be in Part evicted, the Partition shall be avoided in the Whole. Lit. 243: 1 Inst. 173. 1 Rep. 87. The Crown of England is not subject to Coparcenary; and there is no Coparcenary in Dignities; Ec. Co. Litt. 27. Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 22. Vide Parceners.

Copartnership, Is a Deed of Covenants between Merchants, or others, for carrying on a joint Trade, Ec.

Cope, Is a Custom or Tribute due to the King or Lord of the Soil, out of the Lead Mines in some Part of Derbyshire; of which Manlove saith thus:

*Egrefs and Regrefs to the King's Highway,
The Miners have; and Lot and Cope they Pay:
The thirteenth Dish of Oar within their Mine,
To the Lord, for Lote they pay at measuring Time;
Six-pence a Load for Cope the Lord demands,
And that is paid to the Berghmaster's Hands, &c.*

Agreeable to this you may find in Sir John Pettus's Fodina Regales, where he treats on this Subject. This Word, by Domesday-Book, as Mr. Haggar hath interpreted it, signifies a Hill: And Cope is taken for the supreme Cover, as the Cope of Heaven. Also it is the upper Garment of a Priest.

Copp, (Copia) Is in a legal Sense the Transcript of an original Writing; as the Copy of a Patent, of a Charter, Deed, Ec. A Clause out of a Patent, taken from the Chapel of the Rolls, cannot be given in Evidence; but you must have a true Copy of the whole Charter examined: It is the same of a Record. And if upon a Trial, you will give Part of a Copy of an Office in Evidence to prove a Deed, which Deed is to prove the Party's Title to the Land in Question that gives it in Evidence; if that Part of the Office given in Evidence, be not so much of it as doth any Ways concern the Lands in Question, the Court Court will not admit of it: For the Court will have a Copy of the Whole given, or no Part of it shall be admitted. 1 Lill. Abr. 312, 313. Where a Deed is inrolled, Certifying an attested Copy is Proof of the Inrolment; and such Copy may be given in Evidence. 3 Lev. 387. A common Deed cannot be prov'd by a Copy or Counterpart, when the Original may be procured. 10 Rep. 92. A Copy of a Will of Lands, or the Probate, is not sufficient; but the Will must be shewn as Evidence. 2 Roll. Abr. 74. Sometimes Copies of Court-Rolls have been admitted as Evidence. See Evidence.

Copia Libelli deliberanda, Is a Writ that lies where a Man cannot get a Copy of a Libel at the Hands of a Judge Ecclesiastical, to have the same delivered to him. Reg. Orig. 51.

Coppa, A Cop of Grass, Hay, or Corn, divided into titheable Portions; as the tenth Cock, &c. Du Fresne seems to understand this Word to signify only the Cutting down of Corn; whereas in Strictness it denotes the Gathering or laying up the Corn in Copes or Heaps, as the Method is for Barley and Oats, &c. not bound up, that it may be the more fairly and justly tithed: In Kent they still retain the Word. A Cop or Cap of Hay, Straw, &c. Thorn in Chron.

Coppyhold, (Tenura per Copiam Rotuli Curie) Is a Tenure for which the Tenant hath nothing to shew but the Copy of the Rolls, made by the Steward of the Lord's Court; on such Tenant's being admitted to any Parcel of Land or Tenement belonging to the Manor. 4 Rep. 25. It is called Base Tenure, because held at the Will of the Lord: And Fitzherbert says, it was antiently Tenure in Villenage, and that Coppyhold is but a new Name. Some Coppyholds are held by the Verge in Ancient Demesne; and tho' they are by Copy, yet are they a Kind of Freehold; for if a Tenant of such a Coppyhold commit Felony, the King hath Annum Diem & Vastum, as in Case of Freeholders: Some other Coppyholds are such as the Tenants hold by common Tenure, called Meer Coppyhold, whose Land upon Felony committed, escheats to the Lord of the Manor. Kitch. 81. But Coppyhold Land cannot be made at this Day; for the Pillars of a Coppyhold Estate are, That it hath been demised Time out of Mind by Copy of Court-Roll; and that the Tenements are Parcel of or within the Manor. 1 Inst. 58. 4 Rep. 24. A Coppyhold Tenant had originally in Judgment of Law, but an Estate at Will; yet Custom so established his Estate, that by the Custom of the Manor it was descendible, and his Heirs inherited it: The Estate of the Coppyholder is not merely ad voluntatem Domini, but ad voluntatem Domini secundum consuetudinem Manerii; so that the Custom of the Manor is the Life of Coppyhold Estates; for without a Custom, or if Coppyholders break their Custom, they are subject to the Will of the Lord: And as a Coppyhold is created by Custom, so it is guided by Custom. 4 Rep. 21. A Coppyholder so long as he doth his Services, and doth not break the Custom of the Manor, cannot be ejected by the Lord; if he be, he shall have Trespass against him: But if the Coppyholder refuses to perform his Services, it is a Breach of the Custom, and Forfeiture of his Estate. Coppyholds descend according to the Rules and Maxims of the Common Law; but such customary Inheritances shall not be Assets, to charge the Heir in Action of Debt, &c. Ibid. Though a Lease for one Year of Coppyhold Lands, which is warranted by the Common Law, shall be Assets in the Hands of an Executor. 1 Vent. 163. Coppyholders hold their Estates free from Charges of Dower, being created by Custom which is paramount to Title of Dower. 4 Rep. 24. Coppyhold Inheritances have no collateral Qualities, which do not concern the Discent; as to make them Assets; or whereof a Wife may be endowed; a Husband be Tenant by the Curtesy, &c. But by particular Custom, there may be Dower and Tenancy by the Curtesy. Cro. El. 361. There may be an Estate-tail in Coppyhold Lands by Custom, with the Co-operation of the Statute W. 2. And as a Coppyhold may be entailed by Custom, so by Custom the Tail may be cut off by Surrender. 1 Inst. 60. A Coppyhold may be barred by a Recovery, by special Custom; and a Surrender may bar the Issue by Custom. A Fine and Recovery at Common Law, will not destroy a Coppyhold Estate; because Common Law Assurances do not work upon the Assurance of the Coppyhold: Tho' Coppyhold Lands are within the Stat. 4 H. 7. of Fines with Proclamations, and five Years Non-claim, and shall be barred. 1 Roll. Abr. 506. A Plaintiff may be made in the Court of the Manor, in the Nature of a Real Action, and a Recovery shall be had in that Plaintiff against Tenant in Tail, and such a Recovery shall be a Discontinuance to the Estate-tail. 1 Brownl. 121. And the suffering a Recovery by a Coppyholder Tenant for Life in the Lord's Court, is no Forfeiture, unless there is a particular Custom for it. 1 Nels. Abr. 507. Coppyholders may entail Coppyhold Lands, and bar the Entails and Remainders, by committing a Forfeiture, as making a Lease without License, &c. and then the Lord is to make three Proclamations, and seise the Coppyhold, after which the Lands are granted to the Coppyholder, and his Heirs, &c. This is the Manner in some Places; but it must be warranted by Custom. 2 Dane. Abr. 191. Sid. 314. Customs ought to be Time out of Memory; to be reasonable, &c. And a Custom in Deprivation or Bar of a Coppyhold Estate, shall be taken strictly: But when for Making and Maintaining it, shall be construed favourably. Comp. Cop. Sect. 33. Cro. El. 879. An unreasonable Custom, as for a Lord to exact exorbitant Fines; for a Coppyholder for Life to cut down and sell Timber-Trees, &c. is void. A Coppyholder for Life pleaded a Custom, that every Coppyholder for Life, might in the Presence of two other Coppyholders appoint who should have his Coppyhold after his Death, without any Surrender to his Use; and that the two Coppyholders might assess a Fine, so as not to be less than had been usually paid; and it was adjudged a good Custom. 4 Leon. 238. But a Custom to compel a Lord to make a Grant, is said to be against Law; tho' it may be good to admit a Tenant. Moor 788. By the Custom of some Manors, where Coppyhold Lands are granted to Two or more Persons for Lives, the Person first named in the Copy may surrender all the Lands. 1 Nels. Abr. 497. There are Customs Ratione loci, different from other Places: But tho' a Custom may be applied to a particular Place; yet 'tis against the Nature of a Custom of a Manor to apply it to one particular Tenant. 1 Nels. 504. 1 Lutw. 126. There are usually Custom-Rolls of Manors, exhibited on Oath by the Tenants, setting forth the Bounds of the Manor, the Royalties of the Lord, Services of the Coppyhold Tenants, the Tenures granted, whether for Life, &c. concerning Admittances, Surrenders, the

the Rights of the Copyholders, as to taking Timber for Repairs, Fire-wood, &c. Common belonging to the Tenants, of Payment of Rent, suing in the Court of the Manor, taking Heriots, &c. All which Customs are to be observed. Comp. Court-Keeper 21. When an Act of Parliament altereth the Service, Customs, Tenure, and Interest of Land, in Prejudice of the Lord or Tenant, there the general Words of such an Act shall not extend to Copyholds. 3 Rep. 7. Copyholders are not within the Statute 27 H. 8. Of Jointures; nor the 32 H. 8. Of Leases, Copyholds being in their Nature demisable only by Copy: They are not within the Statute of Uses; nor are Copyholds extendible in Execution: But Copyholds are within the Statute 18 E. 1. of Limitation of Actions; and the 13 Eliz. &c. against Bankrupts. The Lord shall have the Custody of the Lands of Ideots; &c. And a Copyholder is not within the Act 12 Car. 2. to dispose of the Custody and Guardianship of the Heir; for if there be a Custom for it, it belongs to the Lord of the Manor. 3 Lev. 395. 1 Nelf. Abr. 492. 522. Copyholders shall neither implead nor be impleaded for their Tenements by Writ, but by Plaint in the Lord's Court, held within the Manor: And if on such Plaint, erroneous Judgment be given, no Writ of False Judgment lies, but Petition to the Lord in Nature of a Writ of False Judgment, wherein Errors are to be assign'd, and Remedy given according to Law. Co. Litt. 65. Where a Man holds Copyhold Lands in Trust to surrender to another, &c. if he refuses to surrender to the other accordingly, he may be compelled by Bill exhibited in the Lord's Court, who, as Chancellor, has Power to do Right. 1 Leon. 2. A Copyholder may have a Formedon in Descender in the Lord's Court. Lessee of a Copyholder for Life for one Year, shall maintain an Ejectment: But Ejectment will not lie for a Copyhold, unless the Plaintiff declare on the Custom, upon a Lease, &c. 4 Rep. 26. Moor 679. A Manor is lost when there are no customary Tenants or Copyholders: And if a Copyhold comes into the Hands of the Lord in Fee, and the Lord leases it for one Year, or Half a Year, or for any certain Time, it can never be granted by Copy after: But if the Lord aliens the Manor, &c. his Alienee may regrant Land by Copy. If the Lord keeps the Copyhold for a long Time in his Hand, it is no Impediment but that he may after grant it again by Copy. 2 Danv. Abr. 176. 177. If a Copyholder in Fee accept of a Lease, Grant, or Confirmation of the same Land from the Lord, this determines his Copyhold Estate. 2 Cro. 16. Cro. Jac. 253. If a Copyholder bargains and sells his Copyhold to a Lessee for Years, &c. of the Manor, his Copyhold is extinguished. 2 Danv. 205. A Copyholder may grant his Estate to his Lord, by Bargain and Sale, Release, &c. for between Lord and Tenant the Conveyance need not be according to Custom. 1 Nelf. 504. A Copyholder in other Cases cannot alien by Deed: Tho' he that hath a Right only to a Copyhold, may release it by Deed. And if a Copyholder surrenders upon Condition, he may afterwards release the Condition by Deed. 2 Danv. 205. Cro. Jac. 36. Also one joint Copyholder may release to another, which will be good without any Admittance, &c. Ibid. The customary Grant of a Copyhold from Lord to Tenant is in this Form:

A Grant and Admittance by Copy of Court-Roll.

A Copyholder cannot convey or transfer his Copyhold Estate to another, otherwise than by Surrender; which is the Yielding up of the Land by the Tenant to the Lord, according to the Custom of the Manor, to the Use of him that is to have the Estate: Or it is in Order to a new Grant, and further Estate in the same: And these Surrenders are as follow:

As to Copyhold Grants; which are made either in Fee, or for three Lives, &c. the Lord of the Manor that hath a lawful Estate therein, whether he be Tenant for Life or Years, Tenant by Statute-Merchant, &c. or at Will, is Dominus pro tempore, and may grant Lands, Herbage of Lands, a Fair, Mill, Tithes, &c. and any Thing that concerns Lands, by Copy of Court-Roll, according to Custom; and such Grants shall bind those in Remainder: The Rents and Services reserved by them shall be annexed to the Manor, and attend the Owner thereof after their particular Estates are ended. 4 Rep. 23. 11 Rep. 18. And if a Lord of a Manor for the Time being, Lessee for Life, Years, &c. take a Surrender, and before Admittance he dieth, or the Years or Interest determine, tho' the next Lord comes in above the Lease for Life or Years, or other particular Interest, yet shall he be compelled to make Admittance according to the Surrender. Co. Litt. 59. But a Lord at Will, of a Copyhold Manor, cannot license a Copyhold Tenant to make a Lease for Years; tho' he may grant a Copyhold for Life according to the Custom: If a Lord for Life, gives License to a Tenant to make a Lease for Years, this Lease shall continue no longer than the Life of the Lord. 2 Danv. Abr. 202. If he that is Dominus pro tempore of the Manor admits one to a Copyhold, he dispenses with all precedent Forfeitures, not only as to himself, but also as to him in Reversion; for such Grant and Admittance amount to an Entry for the Forfeiture, and a new Grant; but a Lord by Tort cannot by such Admittance purge the Forfeiture as to the rightful Lord. 1 Lev. 26. Grants by Copy of Court-Roll by Infants, &c. will be binding: And if a Guardian in Socage grants a Copyhold in Reversion, according to the Custom of the Manor, this shall be a good Grant; for he is Dominus pro tempore. 2 Roll. Abr. 41. If Baron and Feme seised of a Manor in Right of the Feme grant a Copyhold, this shall bind the Feme notwithstanding her Coverture. 4 Rep. 23. An Executor may make Grants of Copyhold Estates, according to the Custom of the Manor, where a Devise is made that the Executor shall grant Copies for Payment of Debts. 2 Danv. 178. A Manor may be held by Copy of Court-Roll, and the Lord of such Manor grant Copies; and such customary Manor may pass by Surrender and Admittance, &c. A Customary Manor may be holden of another Manor, and such Customary Lord may grant Copies and hold Courts: But a Copyholder Lord of such a Manor cannot hold a Court-Baron to have Forfeitures, and hold Pleas in a Writ of Right, &c. 1 Nelf. Abr. 524. All Grants of Copyhold Estates are to be according to the Custom of the Manor; and Rents and Services Customary, must be reserved; for what Acts of the Lord in granting Copyholds are not confirmed by Custom, but only strengthened by the Power and Interest of the Lord, have no longer Duration than the Lord's Estate continueth. Comp. Court-Keeper 421. If by the Custom, a Copyhold may be granted for three Lives, and the Lord grants it to one for Life, Remainder to such Woman as he shall marry, and to the first Son of his Body; both these Remainders are void: And a Remainder limited upon a void Estate in the Creation, will be likewise void. But if by Custom it is demisable in Fee, a Surrender may be to the Use of one for Life, Remainder in Tail, Remainder in Fee. 2 Danv. Abr. 203. Cro. El. 373. The Lord of a Manor may himself grant a Copyhold Estate at any Place out of the Manor; but the Steward cannot grant a Copyhold at a Court held out of the Manor. 4 Rep. 26. Though the Steward may take Surrenders out of the Manor, as well as the Lord. 2 Danv. Abr. 181. A Steward is in Place of the Lord, and without a Command to the contrary may grant Lands by Copy, &c. But if a Lord command a Steward that he shall not grant such a Copy, if he grants it, it is void: And if the Steward diminishes the antient Rents and Services, the Grant will be void. Cro. Eliz. 699. Things of Necessity done by a Steward, who is but in reputed Authority, are good if they come in by Presentment of the Jury; as the Admittance of an Heir upon Presentment, &c. But Acts voluntary, as Grants of Copyholds, &c. are not good by such Steward. Ibid. If an Under-Steward hold a Court without any Disturbance of the Lord of the Manor, tho' he hath no Patent nor Deputation to hold it, yet it is good; because the Tenants are not to examine what Authority he hath, nor is he bound to give them any Account of it. Moor 110. A Deputy-Steward may authorize another to do a particular Act; but cannot make a Deputy to act in general. 1 Salk. 95. In Admittances, in Court upon voluntary Grants, the Lord is Proprietor; in Admittances upon Surrender, the Lord is not Proprietor of the Lands but only a necessary Instrument of Conveyance; and in Admittances by Descent, the Lord is a meer Instrument, not being necessary to strengthen the Heir's Title, but only to give the Lord his Fine. 4 Rep. 21, 22. The Heir of a Copyholder may enter, and bring Trespass, before Admittance, being in by Descent; and he may surrender before Admittance: But he is not a compleat Tenant to be sworn of the Homage, or to maintain a Plaint in the Lord's Court. And if the Heir do not come in and be admitted, on the Death of his Ancestor, where the same is presented and Proclamation made, he may forfeit his Estate. Cro. El. 90. 4 Rep. 22, 27. On Surrender of a Copyhold, the Surrenderer or Person making the same continues Tenant 'till the Admittance of the Surrenderee; and the Surrenderee may not enter upon the Lands, or Surrender before Admittance, for he hath no Estate 'till then; tho' 'tis otherwise of the Heir by Descent, who is in by Course of Law, and the Custom casts the Possession upon him.

him. Comp. Court-Keep. 436. A Surrender is not of any Effect until Admittance, and yet the Surrenderee cannot be defrauded of the Benefit of the Surrender; for the Surrenderor cannot pass away the Land to any other, or make it subject to any other Incumbrances; and if the Lord refuse the Surrenderee Admittance, he is compellable in Chancery. Comp. Cop. Sect. 39. A Grantee hath no Interest vested in him 'till he is admitted: But Admittance of a Copyholder for Life is an Admittance of him in Remainder, for they are but one Estate; and the Remainder-Man may, after the Death of Tenant for Life, surrender without Admittance. 3 Lev. 308. Cro. El. 504. Every Admittance upon a Descent or Surrender, may be pleaded as a Grant; and a Person may alledge the Admittance of his Ancestor as a Grant, and shew the Descent to him, and that he entered, &c. But he cannot plead that his Father was seised in Fee, &c. and that he died seised, and the Land descended to him. 2 Danv. 208. Admittance on Surrender must in all Respects agree with the Surrender; the Lord having only a customary Power to admit secundum formam & effectum sursumrestitutionis. 4 Rep. 26. If any are admitted otherwise, they shall be seised according to the Surrender: But where a voluntary Surrender is general, without saying to whose Use, a subsequent Admittance may explain it. 2 Danv. 187, 204. In voluntary Admittances, if the Lord admits any one contrary to Custom, it shall not bind his Heir or Successor. If a Copyholder surrender to the Use of another, and after the Lord having Knowledge of it, accepts the Rent of such other out of Court, this is an Admittance in Law: And any Act implying the Consent of the Lord to the Surrender, shall be adjudg'd a good Admittance. 1 Nelf. Abr. 493. If the Steward accept a Fine of a Copyholder, it amounts to an Admittance. 2 Danv. 189. But delivering a Copy is no Admittance. Where a Widow's Estate is created by Custom, that shall be an Admittance in Law: And her Estate arising out of that of her Husband's, his Admittance is the Admittance of her. Hutt. 18. And she who hath a Widow's Estate by the Custom of the Manor, upon the Death of her Husband, need not pay a Fine to the Lord for the Estate; for this is only a Branch of the Husband's. Hob. 181. When a Custom is, that the Wife of every Copyholder for Life shall have her Free-Bench, after the Death of the Baron, the Law casts the Estate upon the Wife, so that she shall have it before Admittance, &c. 2 Danv. 184. But if a Wife is entitled to her Free-Bench by Custom, and a Copyholder in Fee surrenders to the Use of another, and then dies, it has been adjudged that the Surrenderee should have the Land, and not the Wife; because the Wife's Title doth not commence till after the Death of her Husband; but the Plaintiff's Title begins by the Surrender, and the Admittance relates to that. 1 Inst. 59. 1 Salk. 185. Admittances are never by Attorney, for the Tenant ought to do Fealty: Though Surrenders are oftentimes by Attorney, 2 Danv. 189. A Copyholder in Fee may surrender in Court, by Letter of Attorney: But not out of Court, without a special Custom. 9 Rep. 75, 76. If one cannot come into Court to surrender in Person, the Lord may appoint a Special Steward to go to him, and take the Surrender. 1 Leon. 36. A Copyholder being in Ireland, the Steward of a Manor here made a Commission to one to receive a Surrender from him there, and it was held good. 2 Danv. 181. The Intent of Surrenders is, that the Lord may not be a Stranger to his Tenant, and the Alteration of the Estate. As a Copyholder cannot transfer his Estate to a Stranger by any other Conveyance than Surrender; so if one would exchange a Copyhold with another, both must surrender to each other's Use, and the Lord admit accordingly: And if any Person would devise a Copyhold Estate, he cannot do it by his Will; but he must surrender to the Use of his Last Will and Testament, and in his Will declare his Intent. Comp. Cop. Sect. 36, 39. Also where a Copyholder surrenders to the Use of his Will, the Lands do not pass by the Will, but by the Surrender; the Will being only declaratory of the Uses of the Surrender. 1 Bulst. 200. But in Case of a Will, the Chancery will supply the Defect of a Surrender, in the Behalf of Children, if not to disinherit the eldest Son; and for the Benefit of Creditors, where a Copyhold Estate is charged by Will with the Payment of Debts, tho' there be no Surrender to these Uses, it will be good in Equity. 4 Rep. 25. 1 Salk. 187. 3 Salk. 84. One Jointenant may surrender his Part in the Lands to the Use of his Will, &c. And where there are two Jointenants of a Copyhold in Fee, if one of them make a Surrender to the Use of his Will, and die, and the Devisee is admitted; the Surrender and Admittance shall bind the Survivor. 2 Cro. 100. A Surrender may not be to commence in futuro; as after the Death of the Surrenderor, &c. tho' Copyholds may be surrendered to the Use of a Man's Will. March 177. A Copyholder cannot surrender an Estate absolutely to another, and leave a particular Estate in himself. A Copyholder surrender'd to the Use of his Wife and younger Son, without mentioning what Estate; and adjudged that they had an Estate for Life. 4 Rep. 29. A Feme Covert may receive a Copyhold Estate by Surrender from her Husband, because she comes not in immediately by him, but by the Admittance of the Lord according to the Surrender. Ibid. A Feme Covert is to be secretly examined by the Steward, on her surrendering her Estate. Co. Lit. 59. An Infant surrendered his Copyhold, and afterwards entered at full Age, and it was held lawful, tho' the Surrenderee was admitted. Moor 597. By the general Custom of Copyhold Estates, Copyholders may surrender in Court, and need not alledge any particular Custom to warrant it: But where they surrender out of Court, into the Hands of the Lord by Customary Tenants, &c. Custom must be pleaded. 9 Rep. 75. 1 Roll. Abr. 500. And Surrenders out of Court are to be presented at the next Court; for it is not an effectual Surrender 'till presented in Court. Where a Copyholder in Fee surrenders out of Court, and dies before it is presented, yet the Surrender being presented at the next Court will stand good, and Cestui que Use shall be admitted: So if Cestui que Use dies before it is presented, his Heir shall be admitted. But if the Surrender be not presented at the next Court, it is void. Co. Litt. 62. 2 Danv. 188. If the Tenants by whose Hands the Surrender was made shall die, and this upon Proof is presented in Court, it is well enough. 4 Rep. 29. Tenants refusing to make Presentment, are compellable in the Lord's Court. And by Surrender of Copyhold Lands to the Use of a Mortgagee, the Lands are bound in Equity, tho' the Surrender be not presented at the next Court. 2 Salk. 449. When a Copyholder surrenders upon Condition, and this is presented absolutely, the Presentment is void; But where a conditional Surrender is presented, and the Steward omits entering the Condition, upon Proof thereof the Condition shall not be avoided; but the Rolls shall be amended. 4 Rep. 25. A Copyholder may surrender to the Use of another, reserving Rent with a Condition of Re-entry for Non-payment, and in Default of Payment may re-enter. Ibid. 21. If a Copyholder of Inheritance, takes a Lease for Years of his Copyhold Estate, this is a Surrender in Law of his Copyhold. Where there is Tenant for Life, and Remainder in Fee, he in Remainder may surrender his Estate, if there be no Custom to the contrary. 3 Leon. 329. If a Surrender is made with Remainders over, Case lies for him in Remainder against a Copyholder for Life, who commits Waste, &c. 3 Lev. 128. A Surrendree of a Reversion of a Copyhold, is an Affignee within the Equity of the Statute 32 H. 8. to bring Action of Debt or Covenant against a Lessee, &c. 1 Sal. 185. A Copyholder in Fee, surrenders to the Use of one for Life, with Remainder to another for Life, Remainder to another in Fee; as the particular Estates and Remainders make but one Estate, there is but one Fine due to the Lord. 2 Danv. 191. Fines are paid to the Lord on Admittances; and may be due on every Change of the Estate by Lord or Tenant: In case of a Surrender, the Lord may make what Fine he pleases; but Fines are to be reasonable: They are either certain, by Custom, or uncertain; a Fine certain is to be paid presently; but if it be uncertain, the Copyholder is to have Notice, and Time to pay it. The Lord may have Action of Debt for his Fine; or may distrain by Custom. 4 Rep. 27. 13 Rep. 2. A Heriot is a Duty to the Lord, rendered at the Death of the Tenant, or on a Surrender and Alienation of an Estate; and is the best Beast or Goods, found in the Possession of the Tenant deceased, or otherwise, according to Custom. And for Heriots, Reliefs, &c. the Lord may distrain, or bring Action of Debt. Plowd. 96. Relief is a certain Sum of Money which every Copyholder in Fee or Freeholder of a Manor pays to the Lord, on the Death of his Ancestor; and is generally a Year's Profits of the Land. Services signify any Duty whatsoever accruing unto the Lord; and are not only annual and accidental; but corporal, as Homage, Fealty, &c. Comp. Court-Keep. 7, 8, 9, &c.

Copyholds escheat, and are forfeited in many Cases: Escheat of a Copyhold Estate, is either where the Lands fall into the Hands of the Lord, for Want of an Heir to inherit them; or where the Copyholder commits Felony, &c. But before the Lord can enter on an Estate escheated, the Homage Jury ought to present it. Forfeitures proceeding from Treasons, Felonies, Alienation by Deed, &c. a Presentment of them must be also made in Court; that the Lord may have Notice of them. A Copyholder refusing to do Suit of Court, being sufficiently warned, is a Forfeiture of his Estate; unless he be prevented by Sickness, Inundations of Water, &c. If the Lord demandeth his Rent, and the Copyholder being present denies to pay it at the Time required, this is a Forfeiture; but if the Tenant be not upon the Ground when demanded, the Lord must continue his Demand upon the Land, so that by a continual Denial in Law, it may amount to a Denial in Fact: Tho' it is said there must be a Demand from the Person of the Copyholder, and a wilful Denial, to make a Forfeiture. A Copyholder not performing the Services due to his Lord; or if he sue a Replevin against the Lord, upon the Lord's lawful Distress for his Rent or Services, these are Forfeitures. If the Lord upon Admittance of a Copyholder, the Fine by the Custom of the Manor being certain, demandeth his Fine, and the Copyholder denieth to pay it upon Demand, this is a Forfeiture. Upon the Descent of any Copyhold of Inheritance, the Heir by the general Custom is tied, upon three solemn Proclamations, made at three several Courts, to come in and be admitted to his Copyhold; or if he faileth therein, this Failure worketh a Forfeiture; but if an Infant come not in to be admitted at three Proclamations, it is no Forfeiture: So of one beyond Sea, &c. An Ideot, Lunatick, &c. tho' able to take Copyholds, yet are they unable to forfeit them: And in Respect to others, Forfeitures may be mitigated by Custom, and the Copyholder only amerced. By Stat. 9 Geo. c. 29. On Default of Infants, and Feme Coverts appearing to be admitted Tenants to Copyhold Lands, the Lord or his Steward may name a Person to be Guardian or Attorney for them, and by such Guardian, &c. admit them: And if the usual Fine thereon be not paid in three Months, being demanded in Writing, the Lord may enter on the Copyhold, and receive the Rents, &c. till the Fine is paid with all Charges. And by this Statute, no Infant or Feme Covert shall forfeit any Copyhold Lands for their Neglect to come to Court to be admitted, or Refusal to pay any Fine. The general Custom of Copyholds allows a Copyholder to make a Lease for one Year of his Copyhold Estate, and no more, without incurring a Forfeiture: But a Copyholder may make a Lease for one Year, and covenant with the Lessee that after the End of that Year, he shall have the same for another Year, and so de anno in annum during the Space of seven Years, &c. and be no Forfeiture. Cro. Jac. 300. Tho' a Copyholder may not make a Lease to hold for one Year, and so from Year to Year during his Life, excepting one Day yearly, &c. which will be a Forfeiture, being a meer Evasion. A Woman who was a Copyholder in Fee married, her Husband made a Lease for Years, not warranted by the Custom, which was a Forfeiture; the Husband died; and adjudged that the Lord shall not take Advantage of this Forfeiture after his Death, but the Wife shall enjoy the Estate. Cro. Car. 7. Livery upon any Conveyance of a Copyhold Estate amounts to a Forfeiture. And yet if a Copyholder for Life surrender to another in Fee, this is no Forfeiture; for it passeth by Surrender to the Lord, and not by Livery. If Copyholder for Life cuts down Timber-Trees, it is a Forfeiture of his Copyhold: A Copyholder may take House-boot, Hedge-boot, and Plough-boot, upon his Copyhold, of common Right, as a Thing incident to the Grant; if he be not restrained by Custom to take them by the Assignment of the Lord or his Bailiff. Where a Copyholder for Life fells Timber-Trees, the Lord may take them, and the Estate is forfeited: But if Under-Lessee for Years of a Copyholder cut down Timber, this shall not be a Forfeiture of the Copyhold Estate, but the Lord is put to his Action of the Case against the Lessee. 1 Bulst. 150. Style 233. A Copyhold granted to Two for their Lives successively, where the Custom of the Manor is, that that they shall not fell Trees; if the first Copyholder for Life cut down Trees, &c. 'tis not only a Forfeiture of his own Estate for Life, but of him in Remainder. Moor 49. So if a Stranger cut down the Trees. But in other Cases, a Copyholder for Life committing Waste, shall not forfeit the Estate of him in Remainder. Cro. Eliz. 880. If Copyholder for Life, where the Remainder is over for Life, commits a Forfeiture by Waste, &c. he in Remainder shall not enter, but the Lord. 2 Danv. 198. A Copyholder committing Waste voluntary, or permissive, this is a Forfeiture: Voluntary, as if he pluck down any House, though built by himself; lop Trees, and sell them; plough up Meadow, whereby the Ground is made worse, &c. Permissive, if he suffer the Roof of the House to let in Rain, or the House to fall; or if he permit his Meadow Ground to be surrounded with Water, so that it becomes marshy, or his arable Land to be thus surrounded and become unprofitable, &c. These and the like are Forfeitures. See 2 Danv. Abr. 192, 193, 196, &c. 1 Nelf. Abr. 509, 510, &c. If a Feme Copyholder for Life takes Husband, who commits Waste, and dies, the Estate of the Feme is forfeited: But not if a Stranger commit the Waste, without the Assent of the Husband. 4 Rep. 37. Most Forfeitures are caused by Acts contrary to the Tenure: But a succeeding Lord of a Manor, shall not have any Advantage of a Forfeiture by Waste done by a Copyholder in the Time of his Predecessor. 2 Sid. 8. And if a present Lord doth any Thing whereby he acknowledges the Person to be his Tenant after Forfeiture, this Acknowledgment amounts to a Confirmation of his Estate. Coke's Cop. 61. Where Copyhold Lands are purchased in Fee, in Trust for an Alien, the Lands are not seizable by the King, nor is the Trust forfeited to him; for if the Lands were forfeited as purchased for such Alien, then the Lord of the Manor would lose his Fines, and Services, &c. Hardr. 436. See my Comp. Court-Keeper. 3d Edit. throughout, and Nelson's Lex Manerior. 2d Edit.

Cozaage, (Coragium) Is a Kind of extraordinary Imposition, growing upon some unusual Occasion, and seems to be of certain Measures of Corn: For Corus tritici is a Measure of Wheat. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 116. Numb. 6. Who in the same Chapter Numb. 8. hath these Words. — Sunt etiam quadam communes Prestationes, quæ servitia non dicuntur, nec de Consuetudine veniunt, nisi cum necessitas intervenerit, vel cum Rex venerit; sicut sunt Hidagia, Coraagia & Carvagia, &c. alia plura de necessitate, & ex consensu communi totius Regni introducta, &c. Blount.

Cozacle, A small Boat used by Fishermen on some Parts of the River Severn, made of an oval Form, of split Sally Twigs interwoven, and on that Part next the Water covered with Leather, in which one Man being seated in the Middle, will row himself swiftly with one Hand, while with the other he manages his Net or Fish-Tackle; and coming off the Water he will take the light Vessel on his Back, and carry it Home. This Boat is of the Nature of the Indian Canoos; though not of the same Form, or employed to the like Use.

Cozam non Judice, Is when a Cause is brought and determined in a Court, whereof the Judges have not any Jurisdiction; then it is said to be Coram non Judice, and void. 2 Cro. 351.

Corbel Stones, Are Stones wherein Images stand: The old English Corbel, was properly a Nich in the Wall of a Church, or other Structure, in which an Image was placed for Ornament or Superstition; and the Corbel Stones were the smooth polished Stones, laid for the Front and Outside of the Corbels or Niches. These Niches remain on the Outside of very many Churches and Steeples in England, though the little Statues and Reliques are most of them broken down. Paroch. Antiq. 575.

Cozd of Wood, Is a Quantity of Wood eight Foot long, four Foot broad, and four Foot high, ordained by Statute.

Cozdage, (Fr.) Is a general Appellation for all Stuff to make Ropes, and for all Kind of Ropes belonging to the Rigging of a Ship: It is mentioned in 15 Car. 2. c. 13.

Cozdiner, From the Fr. Cordouannier, a Shoemaker; we call him vulgarly a Cordwainer; and so this Word is used in divers Statutes, as 3 Hen. 8. c. 10. 5 H. 8. c. 7. 27 H. 8. c. 14. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 3. 1 Fac. 1. c. 22, &c. By which last Statute, the Masters and Wardens of the Cordwainers Company in London, and Mayors, &c. of Towns, are to appoint Searchers and Triers of Leather; and Leather is not to be sold before searched and sealed, &c.

Cozdubanarius, Also signifies a Shoe-maker. Corwel.

Cozetes, From the Brit. Cored, Pools, Ponds, &c. — Et cum suis Piscibus & Coretibz anguillarum & cum toto Territorio suo. Du Fresnoie.

Cozum forisfacere, Was where a Person was condemned to be whipp'd; which was anciently the Punishment of a Servant. Si quis Corium suum forisfaciat & ad Ecclesiam incurrat, sit ei verberatio condonata. Corium perdere, & Corio Carere, the same: And Corium redimere is to compound for a Whipping.

Cozn, As Wheat, Barley, Oats, &c. may be transported to States in Amity when they exceed not such and such Prizes, &c. Wheat 48 s. the Quarter, Barley 24 s. Oats 16 s. &c. by many Statutes; and it shall pay no Duty or Custom, but be entitled to a Premium or Encouragement for Exportation. 3 Car. 1. 12, 15 & 22 Car. 2. 2 W. & M. &c. But the Transportation of Corn to foreign Parts, was prohibited by 8 Ann. c. 2.

Coznage, (Cornagium, from the Lat. Cornu, a Horn) Was a Kind of Tenure in grand Serjeanty; the Service of which was to blow a Horn when any Invasion of the Scots was perceived: And by this Tenure many Persons held their Lands Northward, about the Wall commonly called the Pitts Wall. Cambd. Britan. 609. This old Service of Horn-blowing was afterwards paid in Money, and the Sheriffs accounted for it under the Title of Cornagium. — Memorandum quod cum vicecomes Cambriæ sederet compotum ad Scaccarium apud Salop, idem vicecomes fecit Tallagium sub nomine suo lx. lib. tam de Cornagio, quam de aliis debitis. Mem. in Scacc. 6 Ed. 1. Sir Edward Coke in his first Institute, pag. 107. says Cornage is also called in the old Books Horngeld; but they seem to differ much. See Horngeld, and Wardecorne.

Coznare, To blow in the Horn. — Faciat Cornare ne vedeatur furtive facere. Mat. Paris. pag. 181.

Cozodp,

Corody, (Corrodium) Signifies a Sum of Money, or Allowance of Meat, Drink, and Cloathing, due to the King from an Abbey, or other House of Religion, whereof he is Founder, towards the Sustainment of such a one of his Servants as he thinks fit to bestow it upon. The Difference between a Corody and Pension seems to be, that a Corody is allowed towards the Maintenance of any of the King's Servants in an Abbey: A Pension is given to one of the King's Chaplains, for his better Maintenance, till he may be provided of a Benefice: And of both these you may read Fitz. Nat. Br. fol. 250. where are set down all the Corodies and Pensions that our Abbeyes, when they were standing, were obliged to pay to the King. Corody is ancient in our Laws: And it is mentioned in Staundf. Prærog. 44. And by the Stat. of Westm. 2. c. 25. it is ordained that an Affise shall lie for a Corody. It is also apparent by 34 & 35 H. 8. cap. 26. that Corodies belonged sometimes to Bishops, and Noblemen, from Monasteries: And in the new Terms of Law, it is said that a Corody may be due to a common Person, by Grant from one to another; or of common Right, to him that is Founder of a Religious House, not holden in Frank-Almoine; for that Tenure was a Discharge of all Corodies in itself: By this Book it likewise appears, that a Corody is either certain or uncertain, and may be not only for Life or Years, but in Fee. Terms de Ley 182. 2 Inst. 630. In the Monasticon Anglicanum, there is recorded the following Grant of a Corody.

Form of a Grant of a Corody.

SCiant, &c. quod nos Radulphus Abbas Monasterii Sti. Johannis de Haghmon & ejusdem Loci Conventus, ad instantiam & speciale rogatum Excellentissimi & Reverendissimi Domini nostri Thomæ Comitis Arundellie & Surreie, Dedimus, &c. Roberto Lee unum Corrodium pro termino vite sue, essendo cum Abbate Monasterii prædicti Armigerum cum uno Garcione & duobus Equis; capiendo ibidem Esculentia & poculentia sufficientia pro seipso, sicut Armigeri Abbatis, qui pro tempore fuerint, capiunt & percipiunt; & pro Garcione suo, sicut Garciones Abbatis & Armigerorum suorum capiunt & percipiunt; capiendo etiam pro Equis suis sænum & præbendam. — Et quod idem Robertus habeat vesturam Armigerorum, &c. Dat. 3 Hen. 5. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. pag. 933.

Corodio Habendo, Is a Writ to exact a Corody of an Abbey or Religious House. Reg. Orig. 264.

Corona Mala, or Mala Corona. The Clergy, who abused their Character, were formerly so called. Blount.

Coronare filium, To make one's Son a Priest. Anciently Lords of Manors whose Tenants held by Villanage, did prohibit them Coronare Filios, lest such Lords should lose a Villain by their Entering into Holy Orders: For Ordination changed their Condition, and gave them Liberty to the Prejudice of the Lord, who could before claim them as his Natives or born Servants. — Homo Coronatus was one who had received the first Tonsure, as preparatory to superior Orders; and the Tonsure was in Form of a Corona, or Crown of Thorns. Cowel.

Coronatoze Eligendo, Is a Writ which lies after the Death or Discharge of any Coroner, directed to the Sheriff out of the Chancery, to call together the Freeholders of the County, for the Choice of a new Coroner; and to certify into the Chancery both the Election, and the Name of the Party elected; and also to give him his Oath, &c. Reg. Orig. 177. F. N. B. 163. There are generally four Coroners in a County, in some Counties fewer, and in some Counties but one, according as the Usage is; and if any of them dieth, or is discharged, then shall issue this Writ; which is in this Form: Rex Vic. &c. Quia A. B. nup. unus Coronatorum nostrorum in Com. tuo diem clausit extremum, ut accepimus; Tibi præcipimus, quod si ita est, tunc in pleno Com. tuo de assensu ejusdem Com. in loco ipsius A. B. Elegi fac. unum alium Coronatorem juxta formam Statuti inde editi & Provis. qui præfatio Sacrament. prout moris est, extunc ea fac. & conservet, que ad Officium Coronatoris pertinent in Com. prædict. & talem eum eligi fac. quo melius sciat & possit officio illi intendere, & nomen ejus nobis Scire fac. Teste, &c.

Coronatoze Exonerando, Is a Writ for the Discharge of a Coroner, for Negligence, or Insufficiency in the Discharge of his Duty: And where Coroners are so far engaged in any other publick Business, that they cannot attend the Office; or if they are disabled by old Age or Disease, to execute it; or have not sufficient Lands, &c. they may be discharged by this Writ. 2 Inst. 32. 2 Hawk. P. C. 44. But if any such Writ be grounded on an untrue Suggestion, the Coroner may procure a Commission from the Chancery to inquire thereof; and if the Suggestion be disproved, the King may make a Superfedeas to the Sheriff, that he do not remove the Coroner; or if he have removed him, that he suffer him to execute the Office. Reg. Orig. 177, 178. F. N. B. 164.

Coroner, (Coronator, à Corona) Is an ancient Officer of this Realm, Mention being made of him in King Athelstan's Charter to Beverley, Anno 925. and is so called, because he deals wholly for the King and Crown. This Officer by the Statute of Westm. cap. 10. ought to be a sufficient Person, that is the wisest and discreetest Knight, that best would and might attend upon such an Office: And there is a Writ in the Register, Nisi sit Miles, &c. whereby it appears it was good Cause to remove a Coroner chosen, if he were not a Knight, and had not an hundred Shillings Rent of Freehold. Coroners are to be Men of good Ability, and have Lands in Fee in the County where chosen, to answer all People: And if insufficient, the County shall answer for them. 2 Inst. 174. The Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench, is the Sovereign Coroner of the whole Kingdom in Person wheresoever he is. 4 Rep. 57. There are also special Coroners, within divers Liberties, as well as the ordinary Officers in every County; as the Coroner of the Verge, which is a certain Compass about the King's Court; who is likewise called Coroner of the King's House. Crompt. Jurisd. 102. And some Corporations and Colleges are licensed by Charter to appoint their Coroners within their own Precincts. 4 Inst. 271. The Office of Coroners especially concerns the Pleas of the Crown; and they are Conservators of the Peace in the County where elected. Their Authority is Judicial and Ministerial; Judicial, where one comes to a violent Death, and to take and enter Appeals of Murder, pronounce Judgment upon Outlawries, &c. And to enquire of Lands and Goods, and Escapes of Murderers, Treas-

Treasure Trove, Wreck of the Sea, Deodands, &c. The Ministerial Power is where Coroners execute the King's Writs, on Exception to the Sheriff, as being Party to a Suit, Kin to either of the Parties, on Default of the Sheriff, &c. 4 Inst. 271. 1 Plowd. 73. And the Authority of Coroners does not determine by the Demise of the King; as that of Judges, &c. doth, who act by the King's Commission. 2 Inst. 1-4. Where Coroners are impowered to act as Judges, as in Taking an Inquisition of Death, or receiving an Appeal of Felony, &c. The Act of one of them, is of the same Force as if they had all joined; but after one of them has proceeded to act, the Act of another of them will be void: And where they are authorized to act only ministerially, in the Execution of a Process directed to them upon the Incapacity of the Sheriff, their Acts are void if they do not all join. 2 Hawk. P. C. 52. Hob. 70. So that Coroners as Ministers must all join; but as Judges, they may divide. If the Sheriff is either Plaintiff, or Defendant, or one of the Cognisees, the Writ must be directed to the Coroner. Cro. Car. 300. But the Coroner is not the Officer of B. R. but where the Sheriff is improper; not where there is no Sheriff; for if the Sheriff die, the Coroner cannot execute the Writ. In Case of two Coroners, if one is challenged, the other may execute the Writ, &c. yet both make but one Officer: It is the same of two Sheriffs of a City, &c. 1 Salk. 144. A Venire facias shall go to the Coroner, where the Sheriff is a Party, or the Defendant is Servant to the Sheriff, &c. but it ought to be on principal Challenge to the Favour. Moor 470. On Defaults of Sheriffs, Coroners are to impanel Juries, and return Issues on Juries not appearing, &c. 2 H. 5. cap. 8. As the Sheriff in his Turn, might inquire of all Felonies by the Common Law, saving the Death of a Man; so the Coroner can inquire of no Felony but of the Death of a Person, and that super visum Corporis. 4 Inst. 271. By Magna Charta, cap. 17. no Sheriff, &c. or Coroner, shall hold Pleas of the Crown: But by Stat. Westm. 1. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 10. it is enacted, that Coroners shall lawfully attach and present Pleas of the Crown; and that Sheriffs shall have Counter-Rolls with the Coroners, as well of Appeals, as of Inquests, &c. Coroners before the Stat. Magn. Chart. might not only receive Accusations against Offenders, but might try them: But since that Statute, they cannot proceed so far; and Appeals before them, are removable into B. R. &c. by Certiorari, directed to the Coroners and Sheriff, &c. Though Process may be awarded by the Sheriff and Coroner, or the Coroner only, in the County-Court on Appeals, till the Exigent, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 51. By the Statute de Officio Coronatoris, 4 Ed. 1. The Coroner is to go to the Place where any Person is slain or suddenly dead, and shall by his Warrant to the Bailiffs, Constables, &c. summon a Jury out of the four or five neighbouring Towns, to make Inquiry upon View of the Body; and the Coroner and Jury are to inquire into the Manner of Killing, and all Circumstances that occasioned the Party's Death, who were present, whether the dead Person were known, where he lay the Night before, &c. Examine the Body, if there be any Signs of Strangling about the Neck, or of Cords about the Members, &c. Also all Wounds ought to be viewed, and Enquiry made with what Weapons, &c. And the Coroner may send his Warrant for Witnesses, and take their Examination in Writing; and if any appear guilty of the Murder, he shall enquire what Goods and Lands he hath, and then the dead Body is to be buried. A Coroner may likewise commit the Person to Prison who is by his Inquisition found Guilty of the Murder; and the Witnesses are to be bound by Recognizance to appear at the next Assizes, &c. When the Jury have brought in their Verdict, the Coroner is to enrol and return the Inquisition, whether it be brought in Murder, Manslaughter, &c. to the Justices of the next Gaol-delivery of the County, or certify it into B. R. where the Murderers shall be proceeded against. 2 Roll. Abr. 32. Upon an Inquisition taken before the Coroner, he must put into Writing the Effect of the Evidence given to the Jury before him; and bind the Evidence to appear, &c. which is to be certified to the Court with the Inquisition; and neglecting it shall be fined. 1 & 2 P. & M. cap. 13. 1 Litt. Abr. 327. Depositions of Witnesses before a Coroner, have been admitted as Evidence, the Witnesses being dead. 1 Lev. 180. The Word Murdravit is not necessary in a Coroner's Inquisition; though 'tis in an Indictment for killing another Person. 1 Salk. 377. It is not necessary that the Inquisition be taken in the Place where the Body was viewed. 2 Hawk. 48. But a Coroner has no Authority to take an Inquisition of Death without a View of the Body; and if the Inquest be taken by him without such View, it is void. 2 Lev. 140. The Coroner may in convenient Time take up a dead Body that hath been buried, in Order to view it; but if it be buried so long that he can discover nothing from the Viewing it; or if there be Danger of Infection, the Inquest ought not to be taken by the Coroner, but by Justices of Peace, by the Testimony of Witnesses; for none can take it on View, but the Coroner. Bro. Coron. 167, 173. If the Body is buried, the Town shall be amerced; as it shall be if the Body is suffered to lie so long that it stinks. 2 Danv. Abr. 209, &c. Where the Body hath lain for some Time, that it cannot be judged how it came by its Death, that must be recorded, that at the Coming of the Justices of Assize, the Town where, &c. may be amerced on Sight of the Coroner's Rolls. A Coroner may find any Nuisance by which the Death of a Man happens; and the Township shall be amerced on such Finding. 1 Nelf. Abr. 536. If one is slain in the Day, and the Murderer escapes, the Town where done shall be amerced, and the Coroner is to enquire thereof on View of the Body. 3 Hen. 7. cap. 1. A Coroner may take an Indictment upon View of the Body; as also an Appeal, within a Year after the Death of one slain. Wood's Inst. 491. But a Coroner super visum Corporis, cannot make an Inquisition of an Accusation after the Murder; tho he may of Accessories before the Fact. Moor 29. Coroners ought to sit and inquire on the Body of every Prisoner that dies in Prison: They have no Jurisdiction within the Verge of the King's Courts; nor of Offences committed on the open Sea, or between high and low Water Mark, when the Tide is in; though they have in Arms and Creeks of the Sea. 3 Inst. 134. If a Body is drowned, and cannot be found to be viewed, the Inquisition must be taken by Justices of Peace, on the Examination of Witnesses, &c. 5 Rep. 110. Where a Coroner's Inquest is quashed, he must make a new one super visum Corporis: And a Coroner may attend attend and amend his Inquisition, in Matters of Form : But if he misbehaves himself, and a Melius Inquirendum is granted upon it, that Inquisition must be taken by the Sheriffs or Commissioners, upon Affidavits, and not super visum Corporis, because none but a Coroner can take Inquisition super visum, &c. and he is not to be trusted again. 1 Salk. 190. 2 Danv. Abr. 210. If a Coroner hath been Guilty of any corrupt Practice, Bribery, &c. in taking the Inquisition, a Melius Inquirendum may be awarded for taking a new one by special Commissioners, &c. Coroners concealing Felonies, &c. are to be fined, and suffer one Year's Imprisonment. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 9. Also for Mismanagement in the Coroner, Filing the Inquisition may be stopped. 1 Mod. 82. A Coroner's Inquisition is not traversable : If it be found before the Coroner super visum Corporis, that one was Felo de se, the Executors or Administrators of the Deceased, it is said, cannot traverse it. 3 Inst. 55. But it has been held that the Inquest being moved into B. R. by Certiorari, may be there traversed by the Executor or Administrator of the Deceased. 2 Hawk. 54. And it hath been adjudged that the Inquisition of Felo de se is traversable ; though Fugam fecit is not. 2 Leon. 152. A Coroner's Inquisition being final, the Coroner ought to hear Council, and Evidence on both Sides. 2 Sid. 90, 101. By the Stat. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 10. Coroners shall demand or take nothing for doing their Office : And by the ancient Law of England, none having any Office concerning the Administration of Justice, could take any Fee or Reward for doing his Office ; and therefore this Statute was only in Affirmance of the Common Law. By 3 H. 7. cap. 1. upon an Inquisition taken on View of the Body, the Coroner shall have 13 s. 4 d. Fee of the Goods of the Murderer ; and if he be gone, out of the Amercement of the Town for the Escape. Though the 1 H. 8. cap. 7. enacts that where a Person is slain by Misadventure, the Coroner is to take no Fee, on Pain of 40 s. Justices of Assize and of Peace have Power to enquire of and punish Extortions of Coroners, and also their Defaults. Stat. Ibid.

Coroner of the King's Household, Hath an exempt Jurisdiction within the Verge, and the Coroner of the County cannot intermeddle within it ; as the Coroner of the King's House may not intermeddle within the County out of the Verge. 2 Hawk. 45. But if a Murder be committed within the Verge, and the King removes before any Indictment taken by the Coroner of the King's Household ; the Coroner of the County, and the Coroner of the King's House shall enquire of the same : And according to Sir Edw. Coke, the Coroner of the County might enquire thereof at the Common Law. 2 Hawk. 45. 2 Inst. 550. If the same Person be Coroner of the County, and also of the King's House, an Indictment of Death taken before him as Coroner, both of the King's House and of the County, is good. 4 Rep. 46. 3 Inst. 134. By the Stat. 33 H. 8. 12. Par. 1 & 3. It is ordained, That all Inquisitions upon the View of Persons slain, within any of the King's Palaces or Houses, or any other House or Houses wherein his Majesty shall happen to be abiding in his Royal Person, shall be taken by the Coroner for the Time being of the King's Household, without any Assisting of another Coroner of any Shire within this Realm, by the Oaths of Twelve or more of the Yeomen Officers of the King's Household, returned by the two Clerks Controllers, the Clerks of the Check, and the Clerks Marshal, or one of them, of the said Household, to whom the said Coroner of the Household shall direct his Precept ; and the said Coroner shall certify under his Seal, and the Seals of such Persons as shall be sworn before him, all such Inquisitions before the Master or Lord Steward of the Household ; who hath the Appointment of such Coroner, &c.

Coroner of London. The Coroners in London and Middlesex, and in other Cities, &c. may bail Felons and Prisoners in such Manner as hath been heretofore accustomed. 1 & 2 P. & M. cap. 13. Sect. 6. 1 Lill. Abr. 327. What anciently belonged to Coroners, you may read at large in Bracton, lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 5, 6, 7 & 8. Briton, c. 1. and Fleta, lib. 1. c. 18.

Corporal Oath, Is so called, because the Party swearing toucheth with his right Hand the Book of the new Testament. See Oath.

Corporation, (Corporatio) Is a Body Politick or Incorporate, so called, as the Persons are made into a Body, and of Capacity to take and grant, &c. or it is an Assembly and Joining together of many into one Fellowship and Brotherhood, whereof one is Head and Chief, and the Rest are the Body ; and this Head and Body knit together, make the Corporation : Also it is constituted of several Members like unto the natural Body, and framed by Fiction of Law to endure in perpetual Succession. And of Corporations some are Sole, some Aggregate ; Sole, when in one single Person, as the King, a Bishop, Dean, &c. Aggregate, which is the most usual, consisting of many Persons, as Mayors and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, &c. Likewise Corporations are Spiritual or Temporal ; Spiritual, of Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, Parsons, Vicars, &c. Temporal, as Mayor, Commonalty, Bailiffs and Burghesses, &c. And some Corporations are of a mixt Nature, composed of Spiritual and Temporal Persons, such as Heads of Colleges and Hospitals, &c. All Corporations are said to be Ecclesiastical or Lay : And Bodies Politick or Incorporate may commence and be established three Manner of Ways, viz. by Prescription, by Letters Patent, or by Act of Parliament ; but are most commonly by Patent, or Charter. 1 Inst. 250. 3 Inst. 202. 3 Rep. 73. There may be a Corporation without a Head : But where there is a Head, all Acts ought to be by and to the Head ; nor can they sue without such Head ; and if he dies, nothing can be done in the Vacancy. 10 Rep. 30, 32. 1 Inst. 264. If Land be given to a Mayor and Commonalty, for their Lives, they have an Estate by Intendment not determinable : So it is, if a Feoffment be made of Land to a Dean and Chapter, without Mention of Successors. In case of a sole Corporation, as Bishop, Dean, Parson, &c. no Chattel either in Action or Possession shall go in Succession ; but the Executors or Administrators of the Bishop, Parson, &c. shall have them : But it is otherwise of a Corporation aggregate, as a Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty, and the like ; for they in Judgment of Law never die. And yet the Case of the Chamberlain of London differs from all these ; his Successor may in his own Name have Execution of a Recognizance acknowledged to his Predecessor, for Orphanage Money ; and the Reason is, because the Corporation of the Chamberlain is by Custom, which hath enabled the Successor to take such Recognizances, Obligations, &c. that are made to his Predecessor. Terms de Ley 187, 188. Though a sole Corporation cannot take in Succession Goods and Chattels, &c. yet it may take a Fee-simple in Succession, by the Word Successors. 1 Inst. 8, 9, 46. And a sole Corporation by Custom, may be enabled to take a Chattel in Succession. Hob. 64. Aggregate Corporations may take not only Goods and Chattels, but Lands in Fee-simple, without the Word Successors, for the Reason aforementioned. 4 Inst. 249. Succession in a Body Politick is as Inheritance in a Body private. If a Lease for Years be made to a Bishop and his Successors, yet 'tis said his Executors shall have it in ante-droit; for regularly no Chattel can go in Succession in case of a sole Corporation, no more than if a Lease be made to a Man and his Heirs, it can go to his Heirs. 1 Inst. 46. In making aggregate Corporations, there must be, 1. Lawful Authority. 2. Proper Persons to be incorporated. 3. A Name of Incorporation. 4. A Place, without which no Corporation can be made. 5. Words sufficient in Law to make a Corporation. 10 Rep. 29, 123. 3 Rep. 73. The Words Incorpo, Fundo, &c. are not of Necessity to be used in making Corporations; but other Words equivalent are sufficient: And of ancient Time, the Inhabitants of a Town were incorporated, when the King granted to them to have Guildam Mercatoriam. 2 Danv. Abr. 214. He that gave the first Possessions to the Corporation, is the Founder. If the King grants Lands to the Inhabitants of B. Hereditibus & Successoribus suis, rendring a Rent for any Thing touching these Lands, this is a Corporation; though not to other Purposes. But if the King grants Lands Inhabitantibus de B. and they be not incorporated before, if no Rent be reserved to the King, the Grant is void. 2 Danv. 214. If the King grants Hominibus de Islington to be discharged of Toll, this is a good Corporation to this Intent; but not to purchase, &c. And by special Words the King may make a limited Corporation, or a Corporation for a special Purpose. Ibid. London is a Corporation by Prescription; but tho' a Corporation may be by Prescription, it shall be intended that it did originally derive its Authority by Grant from the King; for the King is the Head of the Common-wealth, and all the Common-wealth in Respect of him is but as one Corporation; and all other Corporations are but as Limbs of the greater Body. 1 Lill. Abr. 330. A Mayor and Commonalty or Corporation, cannot make another Corporation, or Commonalty. 1 Sid. 290. The City of London cannot make a Corporation, because that can only be created by the Crown; but London, or any other Corporation, may make a Fraternity. 1 Salk. 193. A Corporation is properly an Investing the People of the Place with the local Government thereof, and therefore their Laws shall be binding to Strangers; but a Fraternity is some People of a Place united together in Respect of a Mystery and Business into a Company, and their Laws and Ordinances cannot bind Strangers, for they have not a local Power. Salk. Ibid. No Masters and Wardens, &c. of any Mystery, or other Corporation, shall make any By-Laws or Ordinances in Diminution of the King's Prerogative, or against the common Profit of the People; except the same be approved by the Lord Chancellor, or Chief Justices, &c. on Pain of 40 l. And such Bodies Corporate shall not make any Acts or Ordinances, to restrain any Person to sue in the King's Courts for Remedy, &c. under the like Penalty. Stat. 19 H. 7. c. 7. Ordinances made by Corporations, to be observed on Pain of Imprisonment, or of Forfeiture of Goods, &c. are contrary to Magna Charta. 2 Inst. 47, 54. But Penalties may be inflicted by By-Laws, which may be recovered by Distress, on Action of Debt: And a Custom for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen of London, to commit a Citizen for not accepting of the Livery, &c. was held a good Custom, being for the good Government of the City. 5 Mod. 320. Corporations may not, by Bond or otherwise, restrain any Apprentice, &c. from keeping Shop in the Corporation, under the Penalty of 40 l. Stat. 28 H. 8. c. 5. When a Corporation is duly created, all Incidents, as to purchase and grant, sue and be sued, &c. are tacitly annexed to it: And altho' no Power to make Laws is given by a special Clause to a Corporation, yet it is included by Law in the very Act of Incorporating. 1 Inst. 264. A new Charter doth not merge or extinguish any of the ancient Privileges of the old Charter. And if an ancient Corporation is incorporated by a new Name, yet their new Body shall enjoy all the Privileges that the old Corporation had. Raym. 439. 4 Rep. 37. There are usually granted in Charters to Corporations, divers Franchises; as Felons Goods, Waifs, Elstrays, Treasure Trove, Deodands, Courts, and Cognisance of Pleas, Fairs, Markets, Assise of Bread and Beer, &c. 4 Rep. 65. Actions arising in Corporations, may be tried in the Corporation Courts; but if they try Actions which arise not within their Jurisdictions, and encroach upon the Common Law, they shall be punished for it. Lutw. 1571, 1572. The Corporation of the City of London is to answer for all particular Misdemeanors, which are committed in any of the Courts of Justice within the City; and for all other general Misdemeanors committed within the City: So 'tis conceived of all other Corporations. 1 Lill. Abr. 329. If a common Officer of a Town doth any Thing for their common Use, it is reasonable the Corporate Town be answerable for it. 1 Leon. 215. A Corporation may be dissolved, for it is created upon a Trust; and if that be broken, 'tis forfeited. 4 Mod. 58. Corporations are dissolved by Forfeiture of their Charter, Usurpation, Misuser, &c. upon the Writ Quo Warranto brought; by Surrender, or by Act of Parliament: And if they neglect to choose Officers, or make false Elections, &c. it is a Forfeiture of the Corporation. 4 Rep. 77. But by Stat. 11 Geo. c. 4. no Corporation shall be dissolved, for any Default to chuse a Mayor, &c. but the Electors are still to proceed to Election; and if no Election be made, the Court of King's Bench shall issue a Mandamus requiring the Electors to chuse such Mayor, &c. By 9 Ann. c. 20. where Persons intrude into the Office of Mayor, &c. of a Corporation, a Quo Warranto shall be brought against the Usurpers, who shall be ousted, and fined: Also none are to execute an Office in a Corporation for more than a Year. No Persons shall bear Office in any Corporation, &c. but such as have received the Sacrament of the Church, and taken the Oaths. Stat. 13 Car 2. c. 1. But see the Stat. 5 Geo. c. 6. confirming Officers in Corporations. In Acts done by Corporations, the Consent of the major Part shall be binding, by 33 H. 8. cap. 27. Grants of Corporations are to be by Deed, under their common Seal, and are good without Delivery; for the common Seal gives Perfection to Corporation Deeds. Dav. 44. An Obligation sealed with the common Seal of a Corporation, if the Mayor signs it, he is suable if the Corporation be dissolved: But if two of the Members sign it, the particular Persons are not bound by it. 2 Lev. 137. Raym. 152. A Release of a Mayor for any Sum of Money due to the Corporation, made in his own Name, is not good in Law. Terms de Ley. A Corporation which hath a Head, may make a personal Command without Writing; but a Corporation aggregate without a Head, cannot. Lutw. 1497. A Corporation aggregate may employ any one in ordinary Services, without Deed; though not to appear for them, in any Act which concerns their Interest or Title. 1 Ventr. 47, 48. Such a Corporation may appoint a Bailiff to take a Distress, without Deed or Warrant, 1 Salk. 191. but cannot without Deed command a Bailiff to enter into Lands for a Condition broken; for such Command without Deed is void. Cro. Eliz. 815. Though a Corporation cannot do an Act in pais without their common Seal, they may do an Act upon Record; and the Reason is, because they are estopped by the Record to say it is not their Act. 1 Salk. 192. A Promise to a Corporation is good without Deed. 2 Lev. 252. A Corporation cannot sue, or appear in Person, but by Attorney: They cannot commit Treason, or be outlawed, excommunicate, &c. They may not be Executors, or Administrators, be Jointenants, Trustees, &c. Nor shall the Members of a Corporation be regularly Witnesses for the Corporation. 10 Rep. 32. 11 Rep. 98. 1 Inst. 134. But they may be disfranchised, and then be Witnesses; tho' not surrender by Consent. Attachment doth not lie against a Corporation. Raym. 152. Corporations may have Power not only to infranchise Freemen, but to disfranchise a Member, and deprive him of his Freedom; if he doth any Act to the Prejudice of the Body, or contrary to his Oath, &c. Though for conspiring to do any Thing contrary to his Duty; or for Words of Contempt against the Chief Officers, he may not be disfranchised, but may be committed till he find Sureties for his good Behaviour. 11 Rep. 98. 5 Mod. 257. A Corporation cannot disfranchise for Breach of a By-Law. 1 Litt. 331. And one wrongfully disfranchised, may be restored, and have his Remedy by Mandamus, &c. in B. R. An Alderman, or Freeman of a Corporation, cannot be removed from his Freedom, or Place, without good Cause; and a Custom to remove them ad Libitum is void, because the Party hath a Freehold therein. Cro. Jac. 540. Head Officers of Corporations are to redress Abuses of Merchant Strangers, &c. or the Franchise shall be seised. Stat. 9 Eliz. 3. sect. 1. and have Authority in many Cases by Statute; for which see Mayors. No Strangers shall sell by Retail any Woollen or Linen Cloth, or Mercery Wares, in Corporate Towns, except at Fairs, on Pain of Forfeiture, &c. But such Persons may sell Wares by Wholesale, and Cloth of their own Making by Retail. 1 & 2 P. & M. c. 7. Bodies Politick Ecclesiastical may make Leases for three Lives, or twenty-one Years, under the Restrictions in the Acts. 1 & 13 Eliz. &c. If Land is given in Fee-simple to a Dean and Chapter, or to a Mayor and Commonalty, &c. and after such Body Politick or Incorporate is dissolved, the Donor shall have the Land again, and not the Lord by Escheat. 1 Inst. 13.

Corporal Inheritance, In Houses, Lands, &c. Vide Inheritance.

Corpus Christi Day, Is a Feast instituted in the Year 1264. in Honour of the blessed Sacrament: To which also a College in Oxford is dedicated. It is mentioned in the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 21.

Corpus cum Causa, Is a Writ issuing out of the Chancery, to remove both the Body and Record, touching the Cause of any Man lying in Execution upon a Judgment for Debt, into the King's Bench, &c. there to lie till he have satisfied the Judgment. F. N. B. 251. See Habeas Corpus.

Corrector of the Staple, Is a Clerk belonging to the Staple, that writeth and recordeth the Bargains of Merchants there made. 27 Ed. 3. Stat. 2. cap. 22 & 23.

Corredium and Conredium, The same with Corrodium. See Corrody.

Corruption of Blood, (Corruptio Sanguinis) Is an Infection growing to the State of Man, and to his Issue; and is where a Person is attainted of Treason or Felony, by Means whereof his Blood is said to be corrupted, and neither his Children, nor any of his Blood, can be Heirs to him or any other Ancestor: Also if he is of the Nobility, or a Gentleman, he and all his Posterity by the Attainder are rendered base and ignoble. But by Pardon of the King, the Children born afterwards may inherit the Land of their Ancestor, purchased at the Time of the Pardon, or after; and so cannot they, who were born before the Pardon. Terms de Ley 189. If a Man that hath Land in Right of his Wife hath Issue, and his Blood is corrupt by Attainder of Felony, and the King pardons him; in this Case if the Wife dies before him, he shall not be Tenant by the Curtesy, for the Corruption of the Blood of that Issue: Tho' it is otherwise, if he hath Issue after the Pardon; for then he should be Tenant by the Curtesy, although the Issue which he had before the Pardon be not inheritable. 13 Hen. 7. c. 17. A Son attainted of Treason or Felony in the Life of his Ancestor, obtains the King's Pardon before the Death of his Ancestor, he shall not be Heir to the said Ancestor; but the Land shall rather escheat to the Lord of the Fee by the Corruption of Blood. 26 Aff. pt. 2. 32 H. 8. But if a Man seised of Lands hath Issue two Sons, and the Eldest is attainted in the Life-time of his Father, and after the Father dies seised; the youngest Son shall inherit the Lands as Heir unto his Father, if the eldest Son leaves no Issue alive: Contra, if he hath Issue, which should have inherited but for the Attainder; then the Land shall escheat. 1 Inst. 8. 391. Dyer 48. 3 Inst. 211. If the Father of a Person attainted die seised of an Estate of Inheritance, during his Life, no younger Brother can be Heir; for the elder Brother tho' attainted, is still a Brother, and no other can be Heir to the Father while he is alive; but if he die before the Father, the younger Brother shall be Heir. 2 Hawk. P. C. 457. Corruption of Blood from an Attainder is so high that it cannot be absolutely salved but by Act of Parliament; for the King's Pardon doth not restore the Blood so as to make the Person attainted capable either of inheriting others, or being inherited himself by any one born before the Pardon. 1 Inst. 391, 392. 2 Hawk. 458. A Statute which saves the Corruption of Blood, impliedly saves the Descent of the Land to the Heir; and it prevents the Corruption of Blood so far: Also it saves the Wife's Dower, &c. But nevertheless the Land shall be forfeited for the Life of the Offender. 3 Inft. 47. 1 Hawk. 107. For Counterfeiting the Coin or Clipping, there is no Corruption of Blood. Stat. 5 Eliz. cap. 11. So on Attainder of Piracy, &c. Also in Felony by imbezling the King's Ordnance, Armour, &c. 22 Car. 2. And therefore it shall not make any Disinheritance of an Heir, &c. See Attainder.

Corpslet, (Fr. in Lat. Corpusculum) Signifies a little Body: And it is used with us for an Armour to cover the Body or Trunk of a Man, wherewith Pike-men commonly set in the Front and Flanks of the Battle were formerly armed, for the better Resistance of the Assaults of the Enemy, and the surer Guard of the Soldiers placed behind, who were more slightly armed for their speedier Advancing and Retreating to Fire. Stat. 4 & 5 P. & M. cap. 2.

Corpsesment, (From the Fr. Corps present) Is a Word signifying a Mortuary: And the Reason why it was thus termed seems to be, that where a Mortuary became due on the Death of any Man, the Best or second Beast was, according to Custom, offered or presented to the Priest, and carried with the Corps. — Ego Brianus de Brompton, &c. Volo Corpus meum sepeliri in Prioratu Majoris Malvernia inter Predecessores meos, & cum Corpore meo Palefridum meum, cum hernefo & Equum Summarium, cum lecto meo, &c. In Codice M.S. penes Gul. Dugdale, Mil. See Stat. 21 H. 8. c. 6. and Mortuary.

Corfined Bread, (Panis conjuratus) Ordeal Bread: It was a Kind of superstitious Trial used among the Saxons, to purge themselves of any Accusation, by taking a Piece of Barley Bread, and eating it with solemn Oaths and Execrations, that it might prove Poyson, or their last Morsel, if what they asserted or denied were not punctually true. These Pieces of Bread were first execrated by the Priest, and then offered to the suspected guilty Person, to be swallowed in Way of Purgation: For they believed a Person, if guilty, could not swallow a Morsel so accursed; or if he did, it would choak him. The Form was thus: We beseech Thee, O Lord, that he who is guilty of this Theft, when the Exorcised Bread is offered to him in Order to discover the Truth, that his Jaws may be shut, his Throat so narrow that he may not swallow, and that he may cast it out of his Mouth, and not eat it. Du Cange. The old Form, or Exorcismus panis hordeacei vel casei ad Probationem veri, is extant in Lindenbrogius, pag. 107. And the Laws of King Canute, cap. 6. — Si quis altari ministrantium accusetur, & amicis Destitutus sit, cum Sacramentales non habeat, vadat ad Judicium quod Anglice dicitur Corfined, & fiat sicut Deus velit, nisi super Sanctum Corpus Domini permittatur ut se Purget: From which it is conjectured, that Corfined Bread was originally the very sacramental Bread, consecrated and devoted by the Priest, and received with solemn Adjuration, and devout Expectance that it would prove Mortal to those who dared to swallow it with a Lie in their Mouth; till at length the Bishops and Clergy were afraid to prostitute the Communion Bread to such rash and conceited Utes, when to indulge the People in their superstitious Fancies, and idle Customs, they allowed them to practise the same judicial Rite, in eating some other Morsels of Bread, blest or cursd to the like Utes. It is recorded of the perfidious Godwyn Earl of Kent, in the Time of King Edward the Confessor, that, on his Abjuring the Murder of the King's Brother, by this Way of Trial, as a just Judgment of his solemn Perjury, the Bread stuck in his Throat, and choaked him. — Cum Godwinus Comes in mensa Regis de nece sui fratris impetretur, ille post multa Sacramenta, tandem per Buccellam deglutiendam abjuravit, & buccella gustata continuo suffocatus interiit. — Ingulph. This, with other barbarous Ways of Purgation, was by Degrees abolished: Though we have still some Remembrance of this superstitious Custom, in our usual Phrases of Adjuration; as, I will take the Sacrament upon it; — May this Bread be my Poyson; — or, May this Bit be my last, &c.

Courtis, (Curtis) A Court or Yard before a House. Blount.

Coxtularium, Curtilagium, Is also a Yard or Court adjoining to a Country Farm. Cartul. Glasston. M.S. f. 42.

Cozus, A certain Corn-Measure heaped up, from the Hebr. Cora, a Hill: Eight Bushels of Wheat in a Heap, making a Quarter, are of the Shape of a little Hill; and probably a Corus of Wheat was eight Bushels; for we read in Bracton, Decem Coros tritici sive decem Quarteria. Bract. lib. 2. c. 6.

Colces and Colcet, Are of the same Signification with Cottage.

Coloduna, An ancient Word for Custom or Tribute. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 562.

Cosenage, (Fr. Cousinage, i. e. Kindred, Cousinship) Is used for a Writ that lies where the Tresail, that is, the Father of the Besail or Great Grandfather, being seised of Lands and Tenements in Fee at his Death, and a Stranger enters upon the Heir and abates; then shall his Heir have this Writ of Cosenage. Britt. c. 89. F. N. B. 221. A Man shall not have a Writ of Cosenage of the Seisin of his Great Grandfather, but shall be put to his Writ of Besail: And if a Person may have a Writ of Aiel, he shall not bring a Writ of Cosenage. Also on the Death of an Uncle, Writ of Cosenage doth not lie, because Affise of Mort d'Ancestor may be had of his Seisin: And Cosenage lieth not between Privies in Blood, no more than Affise of Mort d'Ancestor, but the Party must bring Nuper Obiit. New. Nat. Br. 492.

Cosening, Is an Offence, where any Thing is done deceitfully, whether belonging to Contracts or not, which cannot be properly termed by any special Name. West. Symb. pag. 2. sect. 68.

Coshering. As there were many Privileges inherent by Right and Custom, allowed in the Feudal Laws; so were there several grievous Exactions imposed by the Lords on their Tenants, by a Sort of Prerogative or seigniorial Authority, as to lie and feast themselves and their Followers at their Tenant's House, which were called Coshering. Spelm. of Parliaments, M.S.

Cosmus, A Word mentioned by Blount for Clean.

Costs, As Expense Litis, recovered by the Plaintiff in a Suit, together with his Damages: And if the Plaintiff be nonsuit, or overthrown by lawful Trial in any Action, the Defendant shall have Costs. 4 Jac. 1. cap. 3. Also not only Nonsuits, Verdicts, &c. but putting off Trials, insufficient Pleas, &c. on their Amendment, are liable to Costs: But Costs ought not to be paid for the putting off a Trial, where no Fault was in the Party against whom it was moved; for Costs are only to be paid by such Persons which by their Occasion have caused the other Party to have been at extraordinary Charges: And Costs are not to be allowed for unreasonable Motions, but only for such as the Party was necessarily put into. 1 Lill. Abr. 335, 337. The Common Law doth not give Costs in any Case; but they are given by Statute. 2 Inst. 288. For the Defendant on a Writ of Error, brought to delay Execution, if Judgment be affirmed, Costs are allowed. 3 H. 7. c. 10. So in Actions of Waste; Debt upon the Statute for Tithes; in all Suits by Scire facias; for malicious Trespasses, &c. 13 Car. 2. cap. 2. And by some Statutes double and treble Costs, and Damages, are given: But in Personal Actions, Actions of Trespass, Assault and Battery, Actions on the Case for Words, &c. if the Debt or Damage amount not to 40 s. or the Judge do not certify that the Battery was sufficiently proved, &c. no more Costs shall be allowed than Damages. 43 Eliz. c. 6. 21 Jac. 1. c. 16. 22 & 23 Car. 2. Where several are made Defendants in Action of Trespass, Assault, &c. and one or more is acquitted, all of them shall have Costs; unless the Judge certify there was reasonable Cause for making them Defendants. 8 & 9 W. 3. cap. 11. No Costs shall be allowed the Defendant where the Suit is commenced for the Use of the King. 24 H. 8. cap. 8. And Costs are not awarded against Executors or Administrators. Ibid. Nor for or against one that sues in Forma Pauperis. But it has been adjudged that the King shall pay Costs for an Amendment; but not for going to Trial, &c. 1 Salk. 193. And if Executors bring an Action in their own Right, as for Conversion or Trespass, &c. in their own Time, and a Verdict pass against them, they shall pay Costs. 2 Danv. Abr. 224. Also if a Plaintiff being admitted in Forma Pauperis, be afterward nonsuited, the usual Course is to tax Costs, and if not paid, to punish the Plaintiff by Whipping; but it is in the Discretion of the Court to spare both. 2 Sid. 261. Where there is a Fault in the Original Writ, if a Plaintiff be afterwards Nonsuit, 'tis said he shall pay no Costs; because when the Original is abated, it is as if no Suit had been between the Parties. 1 Leon. 105. 1 Nelf. Abr. 547. If a Sum certain is given to a Stranger by Statute, as where 'tis given to the Prosecutor, he shall have no Costs, as he had no Right of Action till he commenced it; so in popular Actions, whether the Penalty is certain or not, there shall be no Costs. 1 Salk. 206. 1 Lutw. 201. Where Costs are allowed, it is not necessary that the Jury should give the Costs; but they may leave it to the Court to do it, who are best able to judge of what Costs are fitting to be given. 23 Car. B. R. It is the Course of the Court of B. R. to refer the Taxing of the Costs to the Secondary of the Office, and not to make any special Rules for such Matters; except it be in extraordinary Cases. 1 Lill. Abr. 338. Attachment lies where Costs are refused Payment: And where a Plaintiff is Nonsuit, Action of Debt may be brought for the Costs; also the Defendant may have a Capias ad satisfaciendum against him for the Costs. 1 Nelf. Abr. 550.

Where Costs are given after a Verdict, the Court will stop Proceedings in the same Court till they are paid, on Motion made: But where Costs are given for not going on to Trial, a Party may proceed, though they are not paid. Sid. 279. See Damages, &c.

Costs are allowed in Chancery, for Failing to make Answer to a Bill exhibited; or making an insufficient Answer: And if a first Answer be certified by a Master to be insufficient, the Defendant is to pay 40 s. Costs; 3 l. for a second insufficient Answer; 4 l. for a Third, &c. But if the Answer be reported good, the Plaintiff shall pay the Defendant 40 s. Costs. An Answer is not to be filed, (till when it is not reputed an Answer) until Costs for Contempt in not Answering are paid. Practif. Attorn. 1 Edit. p. 210, 212. If a Plaintiff in Chancery dismisses his own Bill, or the Defendant; or if a Decree be obtained for the Defendant, Costs are allowed by Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16.

Cot. In the old Saxon signifies Cottage, and so is still used in many Parts of England.

Cotarius, A Cottager: The Cotarii, or Cottagers, are mentioned in Domesday.

Cote and Cot. The Names of Places which begin or end with these Words or Syllables, have the Signification of a little House or Cottage: There are likewise Dove-Cotes, which are small Houses or Places for the Keeping of Doves or Pigeons. Game Law. 2 par. fol. 133, 135. See Pigeon-House.

Cotellus, Coteria, Both signify a small Cottage, House, or Homestead. Coovel.

Coterellus. Cotarius and Coterellus, according to Spelman and Du Fresne, are servile Tenants: But in Domesday and other ancient M.S. there appears a Distinction, as well in their Tenure and Quality, as in their Name. For the Cotarius had a free Socage-Tenure, and paid a stated Firm or Rent in Provisions or Money, with some occasional customary Services; whereas the Coterellus seems to have held in mere Villenage, and his Person, Issue and Goods, were disposable at the Pleasure of the Lord. — Edmund Earl of Cornwall, gave to the Bon-hommes of Ashrugge, his Manor of Chesterton and Ambrosden. — Una cum Villanis, Coterellis eorum Catallis, Servitiis, Seclis, & omnibus suis ubicunque pertinentibus. Paroch. Antiq. 310.

Cotestwold, Signifies Sheep-Cotes, and Sheep feeding on Hills: From the Sax. Cote and Wold, a Place where there is no Wood. Blunt.

Cot-gare, Is a Kind of refuse Wool, so clung or clotted together, that it cannot be pulled asunder. By Stat. 13 R. 2. cap. 9. it is provided, that neither Denizen or Foreigner shall make any other Refuse of Wools but Cot-gare and Villein.

Cotland or Cottethland, Land held by a Cottager, whether in Socage or Villenage. — Dimidia acra terra jacet ibidem inter Cotland, quam Johannes Goldering tenet, ex una parte, & Cotland quam Thomas Webbe tenet ex altera. Paroch. Antiq. 532.

Cotlanda and Cotlandum, The same with Cot-tagium. Mon. Ang. Tom. 1. pag. 325.

Cotstethla, Cotsteth, The little Seat or Mansion belonging to a small Farm. — Ego Thomas de C. Dedi Deo & Ecclesie Malmsbury unam Cotstethle in Culern, cum omnibus pertinentiis. Cartular. Malmsbur. M.S.

Cottethus, A Cottager, or Cottage-Holder, who by servile Tenure was bound to Work for the Lord. Corwel. Cotsetts are the meanest Sort of Men, now term'd Cottagers. And Cotseti are those who live in Cottages. — Villani vero vel Cotseti, vel Perdingi, vel qui sunt hujusmodi viles, vel inopes persone non sunt inter legum Judices numerandi. Leg. H. 1. c. 30.

Cottage, (Cotagium) Is properly a little House for Habitation, without Land belonging to it. Stat. 4 Ed. 1. But by a later Statute, the 31 El. c. 7. No Man may build a Cottage, unless he lay four Acres of Land to it; except it be in Market-Towns or Cities, or within a Mile of the Sea, or for the Habitation of Labourers in Mines, Sailors, Foresters, Shepherds, &c. and Cottages erected by Order of Justices of Peace, &c. for poor impotent People, are excepted out of the Statute. The four Acres of Land to make it a Cottage within this Law, are to be Freehold, and Land of Inheritance: And four Acres of Ground holden by Copy, or for Life or Lives, or for any Number of Years, will not be sufficient to make it lawful Cottage. 2 Inst. 737. Also the four Acres in Fee-simple, or Fee-Tail, must lie near the Cottage, and be occupied therewith, so long as the Cottage shall be inhabited. 2 Roll. Abr. 139. But this Statute doth not extend to Houses that are Copyhold. 1 Bull. 50. The Penalty of erecting Cottages contrary to the Statute, is 10 l. for every Erection, and 40 s. a Month for the Continuance of it; which is inquirable in the Leet, or the Offenders may be punished by Indictment at the Quarter-Sessions of the Peace, &c. and no Owner or Occupier of any Cottage shall suffer any Inmates, or more Families than one to inhabit therein, in Pain to forfeit to the Lord of the Leet 10 s. a Month: But in Cottages built for the Poor, more Families than one may be placed. Cottages are oftentimes erected on Waste at the Charge of Parishes, for poor impotent Persons, by the Church-wardens and Overseers of the Poor, having obtained Leave of the Lord of the Manor, in Writing under Hand and Seal; but then it must be confirmed by the Justices in Sessions. Mod. Just. 152. Cottagers of new erected Cottages within the Memory of Man, ought not to have Common in the Lord's Waste, though they have four Acres of Land laid to them. Wood's Inst. 445. Every Cottager, &c. is obliged to work towards the Repairs of the Highways, or to hire an able Labourer to work on the Days appointed by the Statute, on Pain of forfeiting 1 s. 6 d. per Day. Stat. 22 Car. 2.

Cotuca, Coat-Armour. Ad Arma profiliunt & Milites quidem super Armatura Cotucas induerant vocat. Quarteloy. Walsingh. 114.

Cotuchans, Boors or Husbandmen, of which Mention is made in Domesd.

Coucher, or Courcher, Signifies a Factor that continues abroad in some Place or Country for Traffick; as formerly in Gascon, for buying of Wines, &c. Stat. 37 Ed. 3. cap. 16. This Word is also used for the General Book wherein any Corporation, &c. register their particular Acts. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. c. 10.

Covenable, (Fr. Convenable, Lat. Rationabilis) Is what is convenient or suitable. — Every of the same three Sorts of Fish, &c. shall be good and covenable, as in old Time hath been used. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 2. Covenably endowed, that is indowed as is fitting. 4 H. 8. c. 12. See Plowd. 472.

Covenant, (Conventio) Is the Consent or Agreement of two or more Persons in one Thing, to do or not to do some Act or Thing, contracted between them. It seems to be as much as Pactum, or Conventum, with the Civilians; and Covenant is either in Fact, or in Law: In Fact is that which is expressly agreed between the Parties, and inserted in the Deed; and in Law, is that Covenant which in Law intends and implies, though it be not expressed in Words; as if a Lessor demise and grant to his Lessee a House or Lands, &c. for a certain Term, the Law will intend a Covenant on the Lessor's Part, that the Lessee shall during the Term quietly enjoy the same against all Incumbrances. 1 Inst. 384. There is also a Covenant Real, and Covenant Personal: A real Covenant is that whereby a Man ties himself to pass a Thing real, as Lands or Tenements; or to levy a Fine of Lands, &c. and Covenant Personal is where the same is merely Personal; as if a Person Covenants with another by Deed to build him a House, or to serve him, &c. F. N. B. 145. 5 Rep. 10. Covenants are likewise Inherent, which tend to the Support of the Thing granted; or are collateral to it; and are affirmative, or negative: executed, of what is already done, or executory. But a Covenant being generally to bind a Man, to do something in futuro, is for the most Part executory. 1 Ventr. 176. Dyer 112, 271. Further, Covenant is the Name of a Writ; for which see Conventione: And this Word is taken for the solemn League and Covenant; which hath a seditious Conspiracy, invented in Scotland, and voted illegal by Parliament, and Provision is made against it; by Stat. 14 Car. 2. cap. 4. All Covenants between Persons must be to do what is lawful, or they will not be binding: And if the Thing to be done be impossible, the Covenant is void. Dyer 112. But if a Man covenants to do a Thing before a certain Time; and it becomes impossible by the Act of God, this shall not excuse him, in as much as he hath bound himself precisely to do it. 2 Danv. Abr. 84. If a Person covenants expressly to repair a House, and it is burnt down by Lightning, or any other Accident, yet he ought to repair it; for it was in his Power to have provided against it by his Contract. Aleyn 26, 27, 1 Lill. Abr. 349. But he is not so bound by Covenant in Law. Where Houses are blown down by Tempest, the Law excuses the Lessee in Action of Waste; though in a Covenant to repair and uphold, it will not. 1 Plowd. 29. If a Lessee for Years, rendering Rent, covenants for him and his Assigns to repair the House, and after the Lessee Assigns over the Term, and the Lessor accepts the Rent from the Assignee, and then the Covenant is broken; notwithstanding Acceptance of Rent from the Assignee, Action of Covenant lies against the first Lessee, on his express Covenant to repair: And this Personal Covenant cannot be transferred by the Acceptance of the Rent. 2 Danv. Abr. 240. Action of Covenant likewise lies on Covenant for Payment of Rent against such a Lessee; but not Action of Debt, after Acceptance. 3 Rep. 24. There may be an Agreement and Covenant, only to be performed by the Parties themselves: There are some Covenants which none but the Party and his Heirs, may take Advantage of being such as concern the Inheritance, and descend to the Heir, as knit to the Estate: And Covenants in gross go to the Executors, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 320. 2 Danv. 235. But

But not only Parties to Deeds, but their Executors and Administrators, shall take Advantage of inherent Covenants, though not named; and every Assignee of the Land, may have the Benefit of such Covenants: Likewise Executors and Assigns, &c. are bound by them, although not named as a Covenant to repair, &c. 5 Rep. 16, 17. 1 Cro. 552. If a Man covenants with another to do any Thing, his Heir shall not be bound, unless he be expressly named: And yet where a Lessee covenants to repair, &c. the Heir shall have the Benefit of the Covenant, though not named, because it runs with the Land. 2 Levi 92. 5 Rep. 8. And Grantees of Reversions, have the like Remedy by Action of Covenant, &c. against Termors, as the Lessors and their Heirs, &c. by Stat. 32 H. 8. A Person covenants with another, to pay him Money at a Time to come, and doth not say to his Executors, &c. if the Covenantee die before the Day, yet his Executors or Administrators shall have the Money. Dyer 112, 257. And in every Case where the Testator is bound by a Covenant, the Executor shall be bound by it; if it be not determined by his Death. 48 Ed. 3. 2. 2 Danv. 232. Assignees shall not have an Action upon Breach of any Covenant, before their Time. Cro. Eliz. 863. Nor shall an Assignee be charged in a Writ of Covenant for any Breach, after the Death of the first Lessee; as it is personal to the Lessee himself. 2 Danv. 238. If A. seised of Land in Fee; conveys it to B. and covenants with B. his Heirs and Assigns, to make any other Assurance upon Request; and after B. conveys it to C. who conveys it to D. and then D. requires A. to make another Assurance, according to the Covenant; if he refuses, D. shall have Action of Covenant against him, as Assignee to B. Ibid. 236. A Lessor made a Lease of an House for Years, excepting two Rooms, and free Passage to them; the Lessee assigned the Term, and the Lessor brought Covenant against the Assignee for disturbing him in his Passage to those Rooms; and adjudged that the Action lies: For the Covenant goes with the Tenement, and binds the Assignee. 1 Salk. 196. If a Man leases for Years, and ousts the Lessee, he shall have Covenant against him, though there be no express Covenant in the Deed. 48 Ed. 3. 2. But if, where a Person leases Lands for Years, a Stranger enters before the Lessee, such Lessee shall not have an Action of Covenant upon this Ouster, because he was never a Lessee in Privy to have the Action. 2 Danv. 234. A Man grants a Watercourse, and afterwards stops it; for this voluntary Misfeasance, Covenant lies. 1 Saund. 322. Though where the Use of a Thing is demised, and it runs to Decay, so that the Lessee cannot have the Benefit of it, for this Nonfeasance no Action of Covenant lieth: Nor may Covenant be brought for a Thing which was not in esse, at the Making of the Lease. 2 Danv. 233. If one makes a Lease for Years, reserving a Rent, Action of Covenant lies for Non-payment of the Rent; for the Reddendum of the Rent is an Agreement for Payment of it, which will make a Covenant. Ibid. 230. Where there is any Agreement under Hand and Seal, Action of Covenant may be brought on it: And if a Man is Party to a Deed, his Agreement to pay, amounts to a Covenant, though formal Words are wanting. 2 Mod. 91, 269. Action of Covenant lies on a Deed indented, or Poll: Also on a Bond, it proving an Agreement. 2 Danv. 228. 1 Lill. Abr. 346. And if one Man covenants to pay another 20 l. at a Day; though he may have Action of Debt for the 20 l. yet 'tis said he may have a Writ of Covenant at his Election. 2 Danv. 229. It is agreed that A. B. shall pay to C. D. 100 l. for Lands in E. this is a mutual Covenant, whereon Action of Covenant may be brought if C. D. will not convey. 1 Sid. 423. But where there are mutual Covenants, and the one not to be performed before a Precedent Covenant, in such Case the Covenant is not suable till the other is perform'd: Though if the Covenants are distinct and mutual, several Actions may be brought by and against the Parties. 1 Lill. Abr. 350. 2 Mod. 74. If a Person covenants that he hath good Right to grant, &c. and he hath no Right, it is a Breach of Covenant, for which Action of Covenant lies. 2 Bull. 12. Where a Man covenants that he hath Power to grant, and that the Grantee, shall quietly enjoy from any claiming under him; these are distinct Covenants, for one goes to the Title, and the other to the Possession. 1 Mod. 101. A Covenant for the Lessee to enjoy against all Men; this extends not to tortious Acts and Entries, &c. for which the Lessee hath his proper Remedy against the Aggressors. Vaugh. 111, 123. Where there is a Covenant to save Harmless against a certain Person, there the Covenantor must save the Covenantee harmless against the Entry of that Person, be it by wrong or rightful Title: But if it be to save harmless against all Persons, the Entry and Ejection must be by lawful Title. Cro. Eliz. 213. Covenant that Lands shall continue of such a Value, notwithstanding any Act done, or to be done, extendeth only to the Time of the Covenant made; and not to the Time future. Ibid. 39, 479. A Covenant was enter'd into that Lands settled on a Woman for her Jointure, were of the Value of 100 l. per ann. and so should continue notwithstanding any Act done by the Covenantor; in Action of Covenant for that the Lands were not of that yearly Value, adjudged that the Action did not lie, except some Act done by the Covenantor was the Cause which made them not of that Value. Cro. Eliz. 43. 1 Nelf. Abr. 557. No Duty nor Cause of Action arises on a Covenant, till it is broken: And as to Breaches of Covenant, if a Person by his own Act disables himself to perform a Covenant, it is a Breach thereof. 5 Rep. 21. Though if a Lease, &c. is void, there can be no Covenant, nor any Breach. Yelv. 18, 19. If Covenants perpetual are once broken, and an Action is brought, and Recovery thereupon; upon a new Breach, a Scire facias shall be had on that Judgment, and the Plaintiff need not bring a new Writ of Covenant. Cro. Eliz. 5. Where the Intent of the Parties can be collected out of a Deed or Agreement, for the Doing, or not doing of the Thing, Covenant may be had thereupon. Chanc. Rep. 294. And in a Covenant the last Words, that are general, shall be expounded by the first Words, which are special and particular. Ventr. 218. Also a later Covenant cannot be pleaded in Bar to a former. Where a Covenant is to two jointly, one of them may not bring Action of Covenant, or plead alone, but both must join. 1 Nelf. 558. If a Man is bound to perform all the Covenants in an Indenture, and they are all in the Affirmative, he may plead Performance generally. Co. Lit. 303. Covenants in the Negative must be pleaded specially. Ibid. 330. When some Covenants are in the Negative, and some in the Affirmative, the Defendant is to plead specially to the Negative Covenants, nants, that he had not done the Thing, and Performance generally as to the Affirmative: And where the Negative Covenants are against Law, and the Affirmative agreeable to Law, Performance generally may be pleaded. Moor 856. If any of the Covenants are in the Disjunctive, so that 'tis in the Election of the Covenantor to perform the one, or the other, the Performance ought to be specially pleaded, that it may appear what Part hath been performed. Cro. Eliz. 23. 1 Nelf. 573. And commonly where an Act is to be done, according to a Covenant, he who pleads Performance, ought to do it specially. 1 Leon. 136. In Debt upon Bond for Performance of Covenants, one whereof for peaceable Enjoyment, and free from all Incumbrances, and another for farther Assurance, &c. the Defendant should plead specially, that the House was free from Incumbrances at the Time of the Conveyance made, and not charged at any Time since, and that no farther Assurance had been required, or such an Assurance which he had executed, &c. yet where a Defendant pleaded generally in this Case, it was held good. 1 Lutw. 603. Covenants are generally taken most strongly against the Covenantor, and for the Covenantee. Plowd. 287. But it is a Rule in Law, that where one Thing may have several Intendments, it shall be construed in the most favourable Manner for the Covenantor. 1 Lutw. 490. The common Use of Covenants is for assuring of Land; quiet Enjoyment free from Incumbrances; for Payment of Rent reserved; and concerning Repairs, &c. and in Deeds of Covenant, sometimes a Clause for Performance with a Penalty, is inserted in the Body of the Deed: Other Times, and more frequently Bonds for Performance, with a sufficient Penalty, are given separate; which last being sued, the Jury must find the Penalty; but on Covenant, only the Damages. Wood's Inst. 230. The Words of Covenanting are Covenant, Grant, Promise and Agree, &c. but there needs no great Exactness in Words to make a Covenant.

Covenant to stand seised to Uses, Is when a Man that hath a Wife, Children, Brother, or Kindred, doth by Covenant in Writing under Hand and Seal agree that for their or any of their Provision or Preferment, he and his Heirs will stand seised of Land to their Use, either in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life. The Use being created by the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. which conveyeth the Estate as the Uses directed; this Covenant to stand seised is become a Conveyance of the Land since the said Statute. The Considerations of these Deeds are natural Love and Affection, Marriage, &c. and the Law allows in such Cases Consideration of Blood and Marriage, to raise Uses, as well as Money and other valuable Consideration when a Use is to a Stranger. Plowd. 302. There are no Considerations now to raise Uses upon Covenants to stand seised, but natural Love and Affection, which is for Advancement of Blood; and Consideration of Marriage, which is the Joining of the Blood and Marriage together: Other Considerations, as Money, &c. for Land, tho' the Words in the Deeds are stand seised, yet they are Bargains and Sales, and without Inrolment they raise no Use. Carter 138. 1 Lill. Abr. 353. The usual Covenant to stand seised to Uses need not be by Deed indented and inrolled: And where a Man limits his Estate to the Use of his Wife for Life, this imports a sufficient Consideration in it self: Also if a Person covenant to stand seised to the Use of his Wife, Son, or Cousin, this will raise an Use without any express Words of Consideration, for sufficient Consideration appears. 7 Rep. 40. In case of a Covenant to stand seised, so much of the Use as the Owner doth not dispose of, remains still in him. 1 Ventr. 374. And where an Use is raised by way of Covenant, the Covenantor continues in Possession; and there the Uses limited, if they are according to Law, shall rise and draw the Possession out of him: But if they are not, the Possession shall remain in him until a lawful Use ariseth. 1 Leon. 197. 1 Mod. 159, 160.

Coberture, (Fr.) Any Thing that covers; as Apparel, a Coverlet, &c. but it is by our Law particularly apply'd to the State and Condition of a married Woman, who is sub potestate viri; and therefore disabled to contract with any to the Prejudice of her self or Husband, without his Consent and Privy, or his Allowance and Confirmation thereof. Brook. Vir est caput mulieris: Sine viro respondere non potest. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 24. And lib. 2. cap. 15. Omnia quæ sunt Uxoris, sunt ipsius viri, nec habet uxor potestatem sui, sed vir. And lib. 1. cap. 10. Uxores sunt sub virga viri. When a Woman is married, she is called a Feme Covert; and whatever is done concerning her, during the Marriage, is said to be during the Coberture: All Things that are the Wife's, are the Husband's; nor hath the Wife Power over her self, but the Husband: And if the Husband alien the Wife's Land, during the Coberture, she cannot gainsay it during his Life: But after his Death, she may recover by Cui in vita. Terms de Ley 195. See Baron and Feme.

Covin, (Covina) Is a deceitful Compact between two or more Persons to deceive or prejudice some others; as if Tenant for Life conspires with another, that he shall recover the Land which he the Tenant holds, in Prejudice of him in Reversion. Plowd. 546. If a Man that has a Right to certain Lands, by Covin causes another to oust the Tenant of the Land, to the Intent to recover it from him, and he recovers accordingly against him by Action tried, yet he shall not be remitted to his ancient Right, but is in of the Estate of him who was the Ouster: And an Assise lies against him. 2 Danv. Abr. 309. Land is aliened, pending a Writ of Debt, by Covin, to avoid the Extent thereof for the Debt; the Land so aliened shall be extended, when the Covin appears upon the Return of the Elegit by the Sheriff. Ibid. 311. If a Man makes a Deed of Gift of his Goods in his Life-time by Covin, to oust his Creditors of their Debts, after his Death the Vendee shall be charged for them. 13 H. 4. And if Goods are sold in Market overt by Covin, on Purpose to bar him that hath Right, this shall not bar him thereof. 2 Inst. 713.

Counsellor, (Consiliarius) Is a Person retained by a Client to plead his Cause in a Court of Judicature. A Counsellor at Law hath a Privilege to enforce any Thing which is informed him by his Client, if pertinent to the Matter, and is not to examine whether it be true or false; for it is at the Peril of him who informs him. Cro. Jac. 90. But after the Court hath delivered their Opinions of the Matter in Law depending before them, the Counsel at the Bar are not to urge any Thing further in that Cause. 1 Lill. Abr. 355. A Counsellor ought not to set his Hand to a frivolous Plea, to delay a Trial; which argues Ignorance, or foul Practice. Ibid. And as Counsellors have a special Privilege to practice the Law, they are punishable by Attachment, &c. for Misbehaviour. 2 Hawk. P. C. 157. No Recusant Convict, or Nonjuror, shall practice the Law, under Penalties, by Stat. 3 Fac. 1. cap. 5. 13 & 14 W. 3. cap. 6.

Counsel, Is not allowed a Prisoner upon a General Issue, on Indictment of Felony, &c. unless some doubtful Point of Law arise: The Court is the Prisoner's only Counsel; and the Behaviour of the Prisoner in his own Defence, is one Means of discovering the Truth. But in Appeals, and upon special Pleas, &c. the Prisoner shall have Counsel assigned him by the Court: Counsel is not to prompt the Prisoner in Matters of Fact. 2 Hawk. 400, 401. Provision is made for Counsel for Prisoners in Treason, by Stat. 7 W. 3.

Count, (Fr. Conte) Signifies the original Declaration of Complaint in a real Action: As Declaration is applied to personal, so Count is applied to real Causes. But Count and Declaration are oftentimes confounded, and made to signify the same Thing. F. N. B. 16, 60. The Word Libellus with the Civilians, comprehends both. In passing a Recovery at the Common Pleas Bar, a Serjeant at Law counts upon the Præcipe, &c. See Countors and Declaration.

Countee, (Fr. Comte à Comitando, as they accompany the King) Was the most eminent Dignity of a Subject, before the Conquest; and those who in ancient Time were created Countees, were Men of great Estate: For which Reason, and because the Law intends that they assist the King with their Counsel for the Publick Good, and preserve the Realm by their Valour, they had great Privileges. Of old the Countee was Præfectus, or Præpositus Comitatus, and had the Charge and Custody of the County; but this Authority the Sheriff now hath. 9 Rep. 46.

Countenance. This Word seems to be used for Credit or Estimation. Old Nat. Br. 111. And in the Stat. 1 Ed. 3. c. 4. See Contentement.

Counter, (Computatorium from the Lat. Computare) Is the Name of two Prisons in London, the Poultry Counter, and Woodstreet Counter, for the Use of the City, to confine Debtors, Peace-breakers, &c. wherein if any enter, he is like to account before he gets out. Cowel.

Counterfeits. Persons obtaining any Money, Goods, &c. by Counterfeit Letters or False Tokens, being convicted before Justices of Assize, or Justices of Peace, &c. are to suffer such Punishment as shall be thought fit, under Death; as Imprisonment, Pillory, &c. Stat. 33 H. 8. cap. 1. It was the Opinion of Sir Edward Coke, that upon this Statute the Offender could not be fined; and that only corporal Pains ought to be inflicted: But it hath been otherwise adjudged in Terrrey's Case, who by a false Note in the Name of another obtained into his Hands a Wedge of Silver, of the Value of Two hundred Pounds; and on Conviction thereof, was sentenced to stand in the Pillory, pay a Fine of Five hundred Pounds to the King, and be imprison'd during the King's Pleasure. Cro. Car. 407. The Obtaining of Money from one Man to another's Use, upon a false Pretence of having a Messuage and verbal Order to that Purpose, is not punishable by a criminal Prosecution; it depending on a bare naked Lie against which common Prudence and Caution may be a Security. 6 Mod. 105. 1 Hawk. P. C. 188. Counterfeiting the King's Seal, or Money, &c. which is Treason. Vide Treason: And Counterfeiting Exchequer Bills, Bank-Bills, Lottery Orders, &c. which are Felony. See Felony.

Countermand, Is where a Thing formerly executed, is afterward by some Act or Ceremony made void by the Party that first did it. And it is either actual by Deed, or implied: Actual, where a Power to execute any Authority, &c. is by a formal Writing for that very Purpose put off for a Time, or made void: And implied is where a Man makes his last Will and Testament, and thereby devises his Land to A. B. if he afterwards enfeoffs another of the same Land, here this Feoffment is a Countermand to the Will, without any express Words for the same, and the Will is void as to the Disposition of the Land: Also if a Woman seised of Land in Fee-simple, makes a Will, and deviseth the same to C. D. and his Heirs, if he survives her; and after she intermarries with the said C. D. there by taking him to Husband and Coverture, at the Time of her Death, the Will is countermanded. Terms de Ley. 198. But if a Woman makes a Lease at Will, and then marries, this Marriage is no Countermand to the Lease, without express Matter done by the Husband to determine the Will. There is a Countermand of Notice of Trial, &c. in Law Proceedings.

Counterplea, Is when the Tenant in any real Action, Tenant by Curtesy, &c. in his Answer and Plea, vouches any one to warrant his Title, or prays in Aid of another who hath a larger Estate; as of him in Reversion, &c. or where one that is a Stranger to the Action, comes and prays to be received to save his Estate; then that which the Demandant alledgeth against it, why it should not be admitted, is called a Counterplea: In which Sense it is used Stat. 25 E. 3. cap. 7. So that Counterplea is in Law a Replication to Aid Prier; and is called Counterplea to the Voucher: But when the Voucher is allowed, and the Vouchee comes and demands what Cause the Tenant hath to vouch him, and the Tenant shews his Cause, whereupon the Vouchee pleads any Thing to avoid the Warranty; that is termed a Counterplea of the Warranty. Terms de Ley 199. Stat. 3 E. 1. cap. 39.

Counter-Rolls, Are the Rolls which Sheriffs of Counties have with the Coroners of their Proceedings, as well of Appeals, as of Inquests, &c. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 10.

Countors, (Fr. Contours) Have been taken for such Serjeants at Law, which a Man retains to defend his Cause, and speak for him in any Court, for their Fees. Horn's Mirror, lib. 2. And as in the Court of C. B. none but Serjeants at Law may plead; they were anciently called Serjeant-Countors. 1 Inst. 17.

County, (Comitatus) Signifies the same with Shire, the one coming from the French, the other the Saxons; and contains a Circuit or Portion of the Realm, into which the whole Land is divided, for the better Government of it, and the more easy Administration of Justice: So that there is no Part of this Kingdom, that lies not within some County; and every County is governed by a yearly Officer whom we call a Sheriff. Fortescue cap. 24. Of these Counties, there are in England forty, besides twelve in Wales, making in all fifty-two: And four of them are of special Note, which are therefore termed Counties Palatine; as Lancaster, Chester, Durham, and Ely; and we read anciently of the Counties Palatine.

time of Pembroke and Hexam, but they have long since lost their Privileges. The chief Governors of the Counties Palatine, by special Charter from the King, heretofore did all Things touching the Administration of Justice as absolutely as the Prince himself in other Counties, only acknowledging him their Superior and Sovereign: But by the Stat. 27 Hen. 8. ca. 24. their Power is abridged. 4 Inst. 204. 221. The Counties Palatine are reckoned among the superior Courts: And are privileged as to Pleas, so as no Inhabitant of such Counties shall be compelled by any Writ to appear or answer out of the same; except for Error, and in Cases of Treason, &c. and the Counties Palatine of Chester and Durham, are by Prescription, where the King's Writs ought not to come, but under the Seal of the Counties Palatine; unless it be Writs of Proclamation. Crompt. Jurisd. 137. 1 Danv. Abr. 750. But Certiorari lies, out of B. R. to Justices of a County Palatine, &c. to remove Indictments, and Proceedings before them. 2 Hawk. P. C. 286. There is a Court of Chancery in the Counties Palatine of Lancaster and Durham, over which there are Chancellors; that of Lancaster called Chancellor of the Dutchy, &c. and there is a Court of Exchequer at Chester, of a mixt Nature, for Law and Equity, of which the Chamberlain of Chester is Judge. There is also a Chief Justice of Chester; and other Justices in the other Counties Palatine, to determine civil Actions, and Pleas of the Crown. The Bishops of Durham and Ely, have those Counties Palatine; and if any erroneous Judgment be given in the Courts of the Bishoprick of Durham, a Writ of Error shall be brought before the Bishop himself; and if he give an erroneous Judgment thereon, a Writ of Error shall be sued out returnable in B. R. 4 Inst. 218. Counties Palatine, with Fura Regalia, were probably erected at first, because they were adjacent to the Enemies Countries heretofore; as Lancaster and Durham to Scotland, and Chester to Wales; that the Inhabitants might have Administration of Justice at home, and remain there to secure the Country from Incurfions. 1 Ventr. 155. The King may make a County Palatine by his Letters Patent without Parliament. 4 Inst. 201. Besides these Counties, of both Sorts, there are Counties Corporate, Stat. 3 E. 4. ca. 5. And they are certain Cities, with Lands and Territories, having Liberties and Jurisdiction by Grant from the King: As the County of Middlesex annexed to the City of London by King Hen. 1. the County of the City of York, Anno 32 H. 8. The County of the City of Chester 42 Eliz. The County of the City of Bristol, Norwch, Worcester, &c. and the County of the Town of Kingston upon Hull; New-Castle, &c. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 1. Crompt. Just. 59. And County in another Signification, is used for the County-Court, kept by the Sheriff within his Charge, or by his Deputy. Stat. 2 Ed. 6. cap. 25. Bract. lib. 3. cap. 7. See Comitatus.

County-Court, (Curia Comitatus) Is by Lambard otherwise called Conventus, in his Explication of Saxon Words, and divided into two Sorts; one retaining the general Name, as the County-Court held every Month, by the Sheriff or his Deputy: The other called the Turn, held twice in every Year, viz. within a Month after Easter, and Michaelmas; of both which you may read in Crompt. Jurisd. fol. 241. Before the Courts at Westminster were erected, the County-Courts were the chief Courts of the Kingdom: And among the Laws of King Edgar it is ordained, that there be two County Courts kept in the Year, in which there shall be a Bishop and an Alderman, or Earl as Judges; one to Judge according to the Common Law, and the other according to the Ecclesiastical Law: But these united Powers of a Bishop and Earl, to try Causes, were separated by William the First, called the Conqueror, and soon after the Business of Ecclesiastical Cognizance was brought into its proper Courts, and the Common Law Business into the King's Bench. Blount. That the County Court in ancient Times had the Cognition of great Matters, appears by Glanvil lib. 1. cap. 2, 3, 4. by Bracton, and Britton, in divers Places, and by Fleta, lib. 2. c. 62. But the Power of this Court was much reduced by Magn. Chart. c. 17. And by 1 Ed. 4. cap. 1. It had formerly, and now hath the Determination of certain Trespasses, and Debts under 40 s. Brit. c. 27 & 28. And this Court holdeth not Plea of any Debt or Damage to the Value of 40 s. or above; nor of Trespass Vi & Armis, &c. But of Debt and other Actions personal above 40 s. the Sheriff may hold Plea by Force of a Writ of Fuſſices, which is in Nature of a Commission to him to do it. 4 Inst. 266. Here the Plaintiff takes out a Summons, and if the Defendant do not appear, an Attachment or Distingas is to be made out; but if the Defendant appears, the Plaintiff is to file his Declaration, and after the Defendant is to put in his answer or Plea; and the Plaintiff having joined issue, the Trial proceeds, &c. whereupon, if Verdict is given for the Plaintiff, Judgment is entered, and a Fieri facias may be awarded against the Defendant's Goods, which may be taken by Virtue thereof, and be appraised and sold to satisfy the Plaintiff: But if the Defendant hath no Goods, the Plaintiff is without Remedy in this Court; for no Capias lies therein, but an Action may be brought at Common Law, upon the Judgment entered. Greenwood of Courts pag. 22. No Sheriff is to enter in the County-Court, any Plaintiff in the Absence of the Plaintiff; nor above one Plaintiff for one Cause, on Pain of 40 s. the Defendant in the County-Court is to have lawful Summons; and two Justices of Peace are to view the Extreats of Sheriffs, before they issue them out of the County-Court, &c. by Stat. 11 Hen. 7. cap. 15. Causes are removed out of the County-Court, by Recordare, Pone, and Writ of False Judgment, into B. R. &c.

Counting-House of the King's Household, (Domus Computus Hospitii Regis) Is usually called the Green-Cloth; where sit the Lord Steward, and Treasurer of the King's House, the Comptroller, Master of the Household, Cofferer, and two Clerks of the Green-Cloth, &c. for daily taking the Accounts of all Expences of the Household, making Provisions, and ordering Payment for the same; and for the good Government of the King's Household Servants, and paying the Wages of those below Stairs. Stat. 39 Eliz. cap. 7.

Courracier, A French Word signifying a Horse-Courier. 2 Inst. 719.

Court, (Curia) Signifies the King's Palace, or Mansion; and is more especially the Place where Justice is judicially administered. Of Courts some are of Record, and some not, which are accounted Base Courts, in Comparison of the Rest: The Courts Superior are those at Westminster; then there are the Court of Admiralty, Courts Martial, Ecclesiastical, &c. A Court of Record is that Court which hath Power to hold Plea, according to the Courſe of the Common Law, of real, perſonal, and mixed Actions, where the Debt or Damage is 40 s. or above; as the King's Bench, Common Pleas, &c. A Court not of Record is where it cannot hold Plea of Debt or Damages amounting to 40 s. but of Pleas under that Sum; or where the Proceedings are not according to the Courſe of the Common Law, nor inrolled; as the County-Court, Hundred-Court, Court-Baron, &c. 1 Inf. 117, 260. 4 Rep. 52. 2 Roll. Abr. 574. Every Court of Record is the King's Court: And the Leet and Tourn are the King's Courts, and of Record. 2 Danv. Abr. 259. The Rolls of the ſuperior Courts of Record are of ſuch Authority, as no Proof will be admitted againſt them; and they are only triable by themſelves. 3 Inf. 71. But the County-Court, Court-Baron, &c. as they are no Courts of Record, the Proceedings therein may be denied, and tried by a Jury: And upon their Judgments, a Writ of Error lies not; but Writ of Faſe Judgment. 1 Inf. 117. At the Courts at Weſtmiſter, the Plaintiff need not ſhew at large in his Declaration, that the Cauſe of Action ariſes within their Jurisdiction, it being general: Inferior Courts are to ſhew it at large, becauſe they have particular Juridiſctions. 1 Lill. Abr. 371. Alſo nothing ſhall be intended to be within the Juridiſtion of an inferior Court, but what is expreſſly ſo alledged: And if Part of the Cauſe ariſes within the inferior Juridiſtion, and Part thereof without it, the inferior Court ought not to hold Plea. 1 Lev. 104. 2 Rep. 16. An inferior Court not of Record cannot impoſe a Fine, or impriſon: But the Courts of Record at Weſtmiſter may fine, impriſon, and amerce. 11 Rep. 43. The King being the Supreme Magiſtrate of the Kingdom, and intruſted with the executive Power of the Law, all Courts Superior and Inferior ought to derive their Authority from the Crown. Staund. 54. 2 Hawk. P. C. 2. Though the King himſelf cannot ſit in Judgment in any Court upon an Indiſtment, becauſe he is one of the Parties to the Suit. Hawk. Ibid. The King hath committed all his Power Judicial to one Court or other. 4 Inf. 71. And by Statute it is enacted, that all Perſons ſhall receive Juſtice in the King's Courts, and none take any Diſtreſs, &c. of his own Authority, without Award of the King's Courts. Stat. 52 H. 3. c. 1. The Court of B. R. regulates all the Courts of Law in the Kingdom, ſo that they do not exceed their Juridiſctions, nor alter their Forms, &c. 22 Car. B. R. And as the Court of King's Bench hath a general Superintendency over all Inferior Courts, it may award an Attachment againſt any ſuch Court, uſurping a Juridiſtion not belonging to it: But it is ſome times uſual firſt to award a Writ of Prohibition, and afterwards an Attachment, upon its continuing to proceed. 2 Hawk. 149, 150. If a Court having no Juridiſtion of a Cauſe depending therein, do nevertheless proceed, the Judgment in ſuch Court is coram non Judice, and void; and an Action lies againſt the Judges who give the Judgment, and any Officer that executes the Proceſs under them: Though where they have Authority, and give an ill Judgment, there the Party who executes the Proceſs, &c. upon the Judgment, ſhall be excuſed. 1 Lill. Abr. 370. Action on the Caſe lies againſt the Plaintiff in an Action for ſuing one in an Inferior Court, where the Cauſe of Action is out of its Juridiſtion. 1 Vent. 369. Striking in the Courts at Weſtmiſter, is puniſhed by cutting off the right Hand, and Forfeiture of Goods, &c. How Contempts to Courts are puniſhable by Fine and Impriſonment, &c. Vide Attachment: See more of Courts, under Judges.

Court of Admiralty, (Curia Admiralitatis) Was erected, as generally held, by King Ed. 3. for deciding Maritime Cauſes; and the Title of its Judge is, Suprema Curia Admiralitatis Angliæ Locum-tenens, Juxta ſive Præſidens. The Admiralty Court is not allowed to be a Court of Record, becauſe it proceeds by the Civil Law; and the Judge has no Power to take ſuch a Recognizance, as a Court of Record may. The Proceſs and Proceedings are in the Name of the Lord Admiral, and by Libel; and the Plaintiff and Defendant enter into a Stipulation, or Bail, for Appearance, and to abide the Sentence. 4 Inf. 134, 135. this Court hath Juridiſtion to determine all Maritime Cauſes; or Cauſes ariſing wholly upon the Sea; out of the Juridiſtion of a County. And a Judgment of a Thing done upon Land, is void. 1 Inf. 260. By the Cuſtom of the Admiralty, Goods may be attached in the Hands of a third Perſon in Cauſa civili & maritima. March. 204.

Court-Baron, (Curia Baronis) Is a Court which every Lord of a Manor, (who in ancient Times were called Barons) hath within his own Precinct. A Court-Baron is an inſeparable Incident to a Manor: And it muſt be held by Preſcription; for it cannot be created at this Day. 1 Inf. 58. 4 Inf. 268. A Court-Baron muſt be kept on ſome Part of the Manor: And is of two Natures. 1. By Common Law, which is the Barons or Freeholders Court, of which the Freeholders being Suitors are the Judges; and this cannot be a Court-Baron, without two Suitors at leaſt. 2. By Cuſtom, which is called the Customary Court: And concerns the Customary Tenants and Copyholders, whereof the Lord, or his Steward is Judge. The Court-Baron may be of this double Nature, or one may be without the other: But there can be no Court-Baron at Common Law without Freeholders; ſo there cannot be a Customary Court, without Copyholders or Customary Tenants. 4 Rep. 26. 6 Rep. 11, 12. 2 Inf. 119. The Freeholders Court, which hath Juridiſtion for trying of Actions of Debt, Treſpaſſes, &c. under 40 s. may be held every three Weeks; and is ſomething like a County-Court, and the Proceedings much the ſame: But on Recovery of Debt, they have not Power to make Execution, but are to diſtrain the Defendant's Goods, and retain them till Satisfaction is made. The other Court-Baron, for taking and paſſing of Eſtates, Surrenders, Admittances, &c. is held but once or twice in a Year, (uſually with the Court-Leet) unleſs it be on purpoſe to grant an Eſtate; and then it is holden as often as requiſite. In this Court, the Homage Jury are to inquire that their Lords do not loſe their Services, Duties, or Cuſtoms; but that the Tenants make their Suits of Court; pay their Rents, Heriots, &c. and keep their Lands and Tenements in Repair, &c. they are to preſent all common and private Nuſances, which may prejudice the Lord's Manor; and every publick Treſpaſs muſt be puniſhed in this Court, by Amercement, on preſenting the ſame. See my Compleat Court-Keeper. 3^d Edit.

Court of Chivalry, (Curia Militaris) Otherwiſe called the Marshal Court; the Judges of it are the Lord Conſtable of England, and the Earl Marshal: This Court is ſaid to be the Fountain of the Marshal Law, and the Earl Marshal hath both a judicial and miniſterial Power; for he is not only one of the Judges, but to see Execution done. 4 Inst. 123. See Constable.

Court Christian, (Curia Christianitatis) Is an Ecclesiastical Judicature, opposed to the Civil Court, or Lay Tribunal: And as in secular Courts, Human Laws are maintained, so in the Court Christian, the Laws of Christ should be the Rule. And therefore the Judges are Divines; as Archbishops, Bishops, Archdeacons, &c. 2 Inst. 488. Courts Christian are so called, because they handle Matters especially appertaining to Christianity; and were held heretofore by our Bishops from the Pope, as he challenged the Superiority in all Causes Spiritual: But since his Ejection, they hold them by the King's Authority, Virtute Magistratus sui, &c. and as the Appeal from these Courts did lie to Rome, now by the Statute 25 H. 8. cap. 19. it lies to the King in his Chancery. 4 Inst. These Courts were complained against long before the Reformation, the Bishops having extended their Jurisdiction so far, that they had left very little Business for the secular Judges; for they assumed an Authority over the Clergy, even in criminal Cases, though they had no legal Power, but only in the Execution of the Sentence of Degradation, &c. and took upon them to Judge in a great many other Things, that did not belong to them.

Court of Conscience, (Curia Conscientie) In the 9th Year of King Hen. 8. the Court of Conscience in London was erected; there was then made an Act of Common Council, that the Lord Mayor and Aldermen should assign monthly two Aldermen, and four discreet Commoners, to be Commissioners to sit in this Court twice a Week, to hear and determine all Matters brought before them between Party and Party, being Citizens and Freemen of London, in all Cases where the Debt or Damage was under 40 s. And this Act of Common Council is confirmed by the Stat. 1 Jac. 1. which impowers the Commissioners of this Court, to make such Orders between the Parties touching such Debts, as they shall find stand to Equity and good Conscience. Also the Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 15. further establishes this Court; the Course and Practice whereof is by Summons, to which the Parties appear; the Commissioners proceed summarily; examining the Witnesses of both Parties on Oath, and as they see Cause give Judgment. And if the Party summoned appear not, the Commissioners may commit him to the Compter Prison till he does; also the Commissioners have Power to commit a Person refusing to obey their Orders, &c. Vide Stat. 3 Jac. 1.

Court of Delegates, (Curia Delegatorum) Is so called, because the Judges are delegated, and sit by Force of the King's Commission, under the Great Seal, upon Appeals to the King, in three Cases. 1. When a Decree or Sentence is given in an Ecclesiastical Cause, by the Archbishop, or any of his Officials. 2. When any Decree or Sentence is given in any Ecclesiastical Cause in Places exempt, or Peculiars, belonging to the King, or an Archbishop. 3. When a Sentence is given in the Court of Admiralty in a civil and marine Cause, according to the Civil Law. 4 Inst. 339. Stat. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 19. If the Delegates in Ecclesiastical Causes are Spiritual Persons, they may proceed to Excommunication, &c. this is the highest Court for civil Affairs that concern the Church. See Appeal of Rome.

rity as supream Governor of the Church, for Matters which chiefly concern Religion. 4 Inst. 321. And the Laws and Constitutions whereby the Church of England is governed, are, 1. Divers immemorial Customs. 2. Our own Provincial Constitutions; and the Canons made in Convocations, especially those in the Year 1603. 3. Statutes or Acts of Parliament concerning the Affairs of Religion, or Causes of Ecclesiastical Cognizance; particularly the Rubricks in our Common Prayer-Book, founded upon the Statutes of Uniformity. 4. The Articles of Religion, drawn up in the Year 1562. and established by 13 Eliz. cap. 12. 5. And 'tis said, by the General Canon Law, where all others fail. See the 25 Hen. 8. c. 28. The Proceedings in the Ecclesiastical Courts are according to the Civil and Canon Laws; by Citation, Libel, Answer upon Oath, Proof by Witnesses, and Presumptions, &c. and after Sentence, for Contempt, by Excommunication: And if the Sentence is disliked, by Appeal. The Jurisdiction of these Courts, is voluntary; or contentious: And the Punishments inflicted by them, are Censures and Punishments pro salute Animæ, by way of Penance, &c. they are not Courts of Record. Vide Consultation and Prohibition.

Court of Hustings, (Curia Hustingi) Is the highest Court of Record, holden at Guildhall, for the City of London, before the Lord Mayor and Aldermen, the Sheriffs, and Recorder. 4 Inst. 247. This Court determines all Pleas real, personal, and mixt: And here all Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, Rents and Services, within the City of London, and Suburbs of the same, are pleadable in two Hustings; one called Hustings of Plea of Lands, and the other Hustings of Common Pleas. In the Hustings of Plea of Lands, are brought Writs of right Patent directed to the Sheriffs of London, on which Writs the Tenant shall have three Summons at the three Hustings next following; and after the three Summons, there shall be three Effoins at three other Hustings next ensuing; and at the next Hustings after the third Effoin, if the Tenant makes Default, Process shall be had against him by Grand Cape, or Petit Cape, &c. and if the Tenant appears, the Demandant is to declare in the Nature of what Writ he will; without making Protestation to sue in Nature of any Writ: Then the Tenant shall have the View, &c. and if the Parties plead to Judgment, the Judgment shall be given by the Recorder: But no Damages, by the Custom of the City, are recoverable in any such Writ of right Patent. Practif. Solic. 416, 417. In the Hustings of Common Pleas, are pleadable Writs Ex gravi Querela, Writs of Gavetlet, of Dowry, Waste, &c. also Writs of Exigent are taken out in the Hustings; and at the fifth Hustings the Outlawries are awarded, and Judgment pronounced by the Recorder. If an erroneous Judgment is given in the Hustings, the Party grieved may sue a Commission out of Chancery directed to certain Persons to examine the Record, and thereupon to do Right. 1 Roll. Abr. 745.

Court Leet, (Leta, Visus franci plegii) Is a Court of Record, ordained for punishing Offences against the Crown; and is said to be the most ancient Court of the Land. 2 Danv. Abr. 289. It inquires of all Offences under High Treason; but those which are to be punished with Loss of Life or Member, are only inquirable and presentable here, and to be certified over to the Justices of Assize. Stat. 1 Ed. 3. And this Court is called the View of Frank-Pledge, because the King is to be there certified by the View of the Steward, how many People are within every Leet, and have an Account of their good Manners and Government; and every Person of the Age of twelve Years, which hath remained there for a Year and a Day, may be sworn to be faithful to the King, and the People are to be kept in Peace, &c. Also every one, from the Age of twelve to sixty Years, that dwells within the Leet, is obliged to do Suit in this Court; except Peers, Clergymen, &c. unless they are under the Sheriff's Turn. 4 Inst. 261, 263, &c. A Leet is incident to a Hundred, as a Court-Baron to a Manor; for by Grant of a Hundred, a Leet passeth, and a Hundred cannot be without a Leet. Kitch. 70. Leets may be held by Charter or Prescription; but are commonly claimed by Prescription; and are to be kept twice in every Year, one Time within a Month after Easter, and the other within a Month after Michaelmas, at a certain Place within the Precinct: These are the usual Times of holding the Leet; but if it hath been a Custom to keep this Court at any other Time in the Year, it is good if due Warning be given. 1 Inst. 115. 2 Inst. 72. The Steward is the Judge of this Court, as the Sheriff is in the Turn: And he hath Power to elect Officers, as Constables, Tithingmen, &c. as well as punish Offenders. 6 Rep. 12. 2 Inst. 199. A Presentment in a Court-Leet, or Sheriff's Turn, after the Day of Presentment, subjects the Party to a Fine or Amerciament; and is not traversable, except it toucheth the Party's Freehold; as that one ought to cleanse the Highways &c. by Reason of his Tenure: Though such Presentment may be removed into B. R. by Certiorari, where it may be traversed. Dyer 13. 2 Inst. 52. Kitch. 86, 91, &c. A Court-Leet may fine, but not imprison: A Steward may impose a reasonable Fine, for a Contempt in Court; or commit those who make an Affray before him, in the Execution of his Office, or bind them to the Peace or Good Behaviour: But he may not grant Surety of the Peace, unless by Prescription. 8 Rep. 38. 1 Saund. 135. The usual Method of Punishment in the Court-Leet, is by Fine and Amerciament; the former assessed by the Steward, and the latter by the Jury: For both of which, the Lord may have an Action of Debt, or take a Distress, &c. Twelve Freeholders or Resiants, are to be of the Jury: And the particular Articles to be enquired into, by Statute, are, if all that owe Suit of Court are present; of Customs withdrawn; Purprestures in Lands, Woods, &c. of Houses set up, or beat down; Cottages erected contrary to Law, and other Annoyances; of Bounds taken away; Ways or Waters turn'd or stopp'd; of Thieves, and Hues and Cries not pursued; of Bloodshed, Escapes, Persons outlaw'd, Money Coiners, Treasure found; Affise of Bread and Ale, Persons keeping Ale-houses without Licence; False Weights and Measures, Unlawful Games, Offences relating to the Game; Offences of Tanners in selling insufficient Leather, of Foresters, &c. of Markets, Victuallers and Labourers, unlawful Fishing, idle Persons, &c. Stat. 18 Ed. 2. 14 & 15 H. 8. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 31 Eliz. 1 Fac. &c. All these Articles are drawn up in Form, and given in Charge by the Steward. The Lord of the Leet ought to have a Pillory and Tumbrel, &c. to punish Offenders by Statute; and for Want thereof, the Lord may be fined, or the Liberty seized. 2 Danv.

289. And all Towns in the Leet are to have Stocks in Repair; and the Town that hath none shall forfeit 5 l. Ibid. Stewards of Leets, &c. are not to receive Profits to their own Use, belonging to the Lord, on Pain of 40 l. Stat. 1 Fac. 1. c. 5. Vide my Compleat Court-Keeper.

Court of Marshalsea, (Curia Palatii) Is a Court of Record to hear and determine Causes between the Servants of the King's Household and others within the Verge; and hath Jurisdiction of all Matters within the Verge of the Court, and of Pleas of Trespass, where either Party is of the King's Family; and of all other Actions personal, wherein both Parties are the King's Servants; and this is the original Jurisdiction of the Court of Marshalsea: But the Curia Palatii, erected by K. Charles I. by Letters Patent, in the 6th Year of his Reign, and made a Court of Record, hath Power to try all Personal Actions, as Debt, Trespass, Slander, Trover, Actions on the Case, &c. between Party and Party, the Liberty whereof extends twelve Miles about Whitehall; which Jurisdiction hath since been confirmed by King Charles the Second. And the Judges of this Court, are the Steward of the King's Household, and Knight-Marshal for the Time being, and the Steward of the Court, or his Deputy, being always a Lawyer. Crompt. Jurisd. 102. Kitch. 199, &c. 2 Inst. 548. This Court is kept once a Week, in Southwark: And the Proceedings here are either by Capias or Attachment; which is to be served on the Defendant, by one of the Knight Marshal's Men, who takes Bond with Sureties for his Appearance at the next Court; upon which Appearance, he must give Bail, to answer the Condemnation of the Court; and the next Court after the Bail is taken, the Plaintiff is to declare, and set forth the Cause of his Action, and afterwards proceed to Issue and Trial by a Jury, according to the Custom of the Common Law Courts. If a Cause is considerable, it is usually removed into B. R. or C. B. by an Habeas Corpus cum causa: Otherwise Causes are here brought to Trial in four or five Court-Days. Prattif. Solic. 409, 410. This Marshalsea is that of the Household; not the King's Marshalsea, which belongs to the King's Bench.

Court Martial, (Curia Martialis) Is a Court for Punishing the Offences of Officers and Soldiers in Time of War. And it appears by our Books, that if any Person in Commission, in Time of Peace, put to Death any Man by Martial Law, it is against Magna Charta, and Murder. 3 Inst. 52. Tho' temporary Acts of Parliament have of late enabled our Kings to hold Courts Martial in Time of Peace, &c. By 4 & 5 W & M. c. 13. Desertion and Mutiny is punishable by a Court Martial: And the King, or the General of the Army, may grant Commissions to any Field-Officer, &c. to call a Court Martial, of thirteen at least Commission Officers, who are to take an Oath for trying truly; and Sentence of Death is not to be given unless Nine concur: And a Field-Officer is not to be tried by any under the Degree of a Captain. By a subsequent Act, Court Martials may be called within the Realm, for trying Offenders against the Laws of War out of the Realm; or a Deserter abroad may be sent back to his Regiment to be proceeded against. And an Acquittal or Conviction in a Court Martial, is a good Bar to an Indictment. Stat. 7 Ann. c. 4. Sec 1 Geo. c. 9. 7 Geo. c. 6. Court Martial at Sea, see Navy.

Court of Piepowders, (Curia Pedis pulverisati) Is a Court held in Fairs, to do Justice to Buyers and Sellers, and for Redress of Disorders committed in them: So called, because they are most usual in Summer, when the Suitors to the Court have dusty Feet; and from the Expedition in hearing Causes proper thereunto, before the Dust goes off the Feet of the Plaintiffs and Defendants. 4 Inst. 272. It is a Court of Record incident to every Fair and Market; and to be held only during the Time that the Fair is kept. Doff. & Stud. c. 5. As to the Jurisdiction, the Cause of Action for Contract, Slander, &c. must arise in the Fair or Market; and not before at any former Fair, nor after the Fair: It is to be for some Matter concerning the same Fair or Market; and be done, complained of, heard and determined the same Day. Also the Plaintiff must make Oath that the Contract, &c. was within the Jurisdiction and Time of the Fair. Stat. 17 Ed. 4. c. 2. 2 Inst. 220. The Steward before whom the Court is held, is the Judge: And the Trial is by Merchants and Traders in the Fair; and the Judgment against the Defendant shall be Quod Amerciatur. If the Steward proceeds contrary to the Statute 17 Ed. 4. he shall forfeit 5 l.

Court of Requests, (Curia Requisitionum) Was a Court of Equity, of the same Nature with the Court of Chancery, but inferior to it; principally instituted for the Relief of such Petitioners, as in conscionable Cases addressed themselves by Supplication to his Majesty. Of this Court, the Lord Privy Seal was Chief Judge, assisted by the Masters of Requests; and it had Beginning about the 9 Hen. 7. according to Sir Julius Caesar's Tractate on this Subject: Tho' Mr. Gwynn, in his Preface to his Readings, saith it began from a Commission first granted by King Hen. 8. This Court having assum'd great Power to it self, so that it became burdensome, Mich. Anno 40 & 41 Eliz. in the Court of Common Pleas, it was adjudged upon solemn Argument, that the Court of Requests was no Court of Judicature, &c. And by Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 1. c. 10. it was taken away. 4 Inst. 97.

Court of the Lord Steward of the King's House. The Lord Steward, or in his Absence, the Treasurer and Controller of the King's House, and Steward of the Marshalsea, may enquire of, hear and determine in this Court, all Treasons, Murders, Manlaughters, Bloodsheds, and other malicious Strikings, whereby Blood may be shed, in any of the Palaces and Houses of the King, or in any other House where his Royal Person shall abide. And this Jurisdiction was given by Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 12. 3 Inst. 140. But this Court was at first intended only to inquire of and punish Felonies, &c. by the King's Servants, against any Lord or other Person of the King's Council, &c. 3 H. 7. c. 14.

Court of Star-Chamber, (Curia Camera Stellata) A Court erected by 3 H. 7. c. 1. which ordained, That the Lord Chancellor, Treasurer, and Lord Privy Seal, calling a Bishop, and Lord of the King's Council, and the Two Chief Justices to their Assistance, on Bill or Information might make Process against Maintainors, Rioters, Persons unlawfully Assembling, and for other Misdemeanors, which through the Power and Countenance of such as did commit them lifted up their Heads above their Faults, and punish them as if the Offenders had been convicted at Law, by a Jury, &c. But this Act was repealed, and the Court dissolved, by Statute 17 Car. 1. c. 10.

Courts of the Universities. The Courts of the Universities of Oxford and Cambridge are of a particular Nature: They were granted by Charters, and confirmed by Authority of Parliament. See Stat. 13 Eliz. 4 Inst. 227. These Courts are called the Chancellor's Courts, and are kept by the Vice-Chancellors of the Universities: Their Jurisdiction extends to all Causes Ecclesiastical and Civil, (except for Maihem, Felony, and relating to Freehold) where a Scholar, Servant, or Minister of the Universities is one of the Parties to the Suit. The Causes are managed by Advocates and Proctors: And they proceed in a summary Way, according to the Practice of the Civil Law; and the Judges in their Sentences follow the Justice and Equity of the Civil Law, or the Laws, Statutes and Customs of the Universities, or the Laws of the Land, at their Discretion. 3 Cro. 73. If any erroneous Judgment be given in these Courts, Appeal lies to the Congregation; thence to the Convocation; and thence to the King in Chancery, by his Delegates. Wool's Inst. 526.

Courts of Wales, (Curia Principalitys Wallie) The Courts of the Principality of Wales, and their Jurisdiction, are settled by Acts of Parliament: And besides County-Courts, Hundred-Courts, Courts-Leet, &c. by 34 & 35 H. 8. c. 26. it is enacted, that there shall be a Court of Grand Sessions, kept twice in every Year in every of the twelve Counties of Wales; and the Justices of those Courts may hold Pleas for the Crown in as large a Manner as the King's Bench, &c. And also Pleas of Assises, and all other Pleas and Actions Real, Personal, &c. in as large a Manner as the Common Pleas, &c. And Errors in Judgments before any of the Justices in the Great Sessions, shall be redressed by Writ of Error out of the Chancery of England returnable in B. R. The Proceedings in these Courts are according to the Laws of England: And the King's Writs ought not to go into Wales; tho' a Quo Minus out of the Exchequer is often sent thither.

Court-Lands, (Terre Curtiles) Demains, or Lands kept in the Lord's Hands, to serve his Family. See Curtiles Terra.

Couthutlaugh, (from the Sax. Couth, i. e. Siens, and Utlough, exlex) Is a Person that willingly and knowingly receives a Man outlawed, and cherishes or conceals him: For which Offence he was, in antient Time, to undergo the same Punishment as the Outlaw himself. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 13.

Cows, One Milch Cow is to be kept to every ten Beasts, and sixty Sheep, by Farmers, &c. on Pain of 20 s. Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 3.

Crail, An Engine made use of to catch Fish. Blount.

Crannage, (Cranagium) Is a Liberty to use a Crane for drawing up of Goods and Wares of Burden from Ships and Vessels, at any Creek of the Sea or Wharf, unto the Land, and to make Profit of it: It also signifies the Money paid and taken for the same. Stat. 22 Car. 2. c. 11.

Crannok, or Crennoc, An antient Measure of Corn. — Quilibet debet flagellare dimid um Crannock

Crannock frumenti ad semen, & duos Buffellos frumenti, &c. in firma sua. Cartular. Abbat. Glatton. M.S. f. 39.

Crastino Santi Vincentii, The Morrow after the Feast of St. Vincent the Martyr, i. e. the 22d of January; which is the Date of the Statutes made at Merton, Anno 20 Hen. 3. There are likewise certain Return Days of Writs in Terms, in the Courts at Westminster, beginning with Crastino, &c. as Crastino Animarum, in Michaelmas-Term; Crastino Purificationis beatae Mariae Virginis, in Hillary-Term; Crastino Ascensionis Domini, in Easter-Term; and Crastino Sanctae Trinitatis, in Trinity-Term. Stat. 52 H. 8. 16 & 17 Car. 1.

Crabare, To impeach. Si Homicida divadietur ibi vel Cravetur, &c. Leg. H. 1. c. 30.

Cravent, or Craben, Was a Word of Obloquy, where in the antient Trial by Battel, the Victory should be proclaimed, and the Vanquished acknowledge his Fault, or pronounce the Word Cravent, in the Name of Recreantisse, &c. and thereupon Judgment was given forthwith; after which the Recreant should become infamous, &c. 2 Inst. 248. If the Appellant join'd Battel, and cry'd Cravent, he should lose Liberam Legem; but if the Appellee cry'd out Cravent, he was to be hanged. 3 Inst. 221.

Cramer, A Foreign Merchant; but generally taken for one who hath a Stall in a Fair or Market, &c.

Cransoz, Creditor, (of the Fr. Croyance) Signifies him that trusts another with any Debt, Money, or Wares: In which Sense it is used in Old Nat. Br. 66. and 38 Ed. 3. c. 5. See Fraud.

Craff, or Cress, (Crista) Any Imagery, or carved Work, to adorn the Head of Wainscot, &c. like our modern Cornice: But this Word is now apply'd by the Heralds to their Devices set over a Coat of Arms. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 573.

Creation-Money. This is mentioned in Stat. Car. 2. c. 1.

Creek, (Creca, Crecca) Is a Part of a Haven, where any Thing is landed from the Sea: So that it is observed, if when you are out of the main Sea within the Haven, you look round and see how many landing Places there are, so many Creeks may be said to belong to that Haven. It may be also said to be a Shore or Bank whereon the Water beats, running in a small Channel from any Part of the Sea; from the Lat. Crepidum. This Word is used in the Stat. 4 Hen. 4. c. 20. and 5 Eliz. c. 5.

Crementum Comitatus. The Sheriffs of Counties antiently answered in their Accounts for the Improvement of the King's Rents above the antient Vicontiel Rents, under the Title of Crementum Comitatus, or Firma de Cremento Comitatus. Hale's Sher. Acco. p. 36.

Crepare Oculum, To put out an Eye; which had a pecuniary Punishment annexed to it. — Si quis alii crepat Oculum solvat ei sexaginta solid. Leg. H. 1. c. 78.

Crestinus, Cretena, A sudden Stream or Torrent. Histor. Croyland contin. 485, 617.

Crocards, A Sort of old base Money. See Pollards.

Crois, The Crozier or Pastoral Staff, so called à similitudine Crucis, which Bishops, &c. had the Privilege to carry as the common Ensign of their Religious Office; and being invested in their Prelacies, by the Delivery of such a Crozier: Hence the Word Crocia did sometimes denote the Collation to, or Disposal of Bishopricks and Abbies, by the Donation of such Pastoral Staff: So as when the King granted large Jurisdictions, Exceptis Crociis, it is meant, except the Collation or Investiture of Episcopal Sees, &c. Addit. to Cowel.

Crociarius, The Crociary or Cross-bearer, who, like our Virger, went before the Prelate, and bore his Cross. — Robertus de Wycombe, Clericus Episcopi Dunelm. quem vulgo Crociarium ejus vocant. Liber de Miraculis Tho. Episc. Heref. M.S. Anno 1290.

Crocium A Mulct or Compensation for a Fault: Pretium Hominis occisi. Chart. K. Hen. 2. Du Cange.

Croft, (Sax. Croftum, and Crofta) A little Close adjoining to a Dwelling-house; and enclosed for Pasture or Arable, or any particular Use. In some antient Deeds Crusta occurs, as the Latin Word for a Croft; but cum Toftis & Croftis is most frequent. Ingulph. It seems to be derived from the old English Word Craeft, signifying Handy Craft; because such Grounds are usually manured and extraordinarily drest by the Hand and Skill of the Owner.

Crok, (Crocus) Turning up the Hair into Curls or Crops; whence comes Crook, crooked, &c. — Sciatis quod Potestatem vobis Dedimus sciendendi Capillos Clericorum nostrorum, longos crines habentium, & ad Crocos capillorum suorum deponendos, &c. Pat. 21 H. 3.

Crop, Crappa, The Seeds or Products of the Harvest in Corn, &c. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 82.

Crosses. By Stat. 15 Eliz. c. 2. Crosses, Beads, &c. used by the Roman Catholicicks, are prohibited to be brought into this Kingdom, on Pain of a Premunire, &c. And it was usual in former Times, for Men to erect Crosses on their Houses, by which they would claim the Privileges of the Templars, to defend themselves against their rightful Lords; but this was condemned by the Stat. Westm. 2. c. 37. It was likewise customary in those Days, to set up Crosses in Places where the Corps of any of the Nobility rested, as it was carried to be buried, that à Transseuntibus pro ejus animo deprecetur. Walsingh. Anno 1291. There were several of these Crosses erected over England, especially in Honour to the Resting-places of our Kings, on their Bodies being transmitted to any distant Place for Burial: But these Superstitions sunk in this Kingdom with the Romish Religion.

Crosses, or Croises, (Cruce Signati) Is used by Briton for Pilgrims, because they wear the Sign of the Cross upon their Garments. Of these and their Privileges, Bracton hath treated, lib. 5. par. 2. cap. 2. and par. 5. cap. 9. Under this Word are also signified the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem, created for the Defence of Pilgrims; and those Persons of the Nobility and Gentry of England, who in the Reigns of K. Hen. 2. Rich. 1. Hen. 3. and Edw. 1. Cruce Signati, took upon them the Croisado, dedicating and lifting themselves to the Wars, for the Recovery of Jerusalem and the Holy Land. Greg. Syntag. Lib. 15. cap. 13, 14.

Croy, Signifieth Marsh Land. — Et quia palustris bujus Croyland ipsum nomen indicat, nam crudam terram & cœnosam significat. Ingulphus, p. 853.

Crown, (Corona) Signifies the Possessions and Dignity of a King of any Kingdom. The Crown of England has from the Beginning been successive, by Right of Inheritance; but sometimes our Kings, for political Reasons, have conferred their their Principalities on whom they pleas'd, esteeming it lawful to appoint their Successors after them. For Edward the Confessor appointed the Crown, after his Decease, at several Times, to William called the Conqueror, and Edgar and Harold; and Harold, after the Decease of his Father, upon the Title left him, was crown'd by the Archbishop of York; but William of Normandy having slain Harold at the Battle of Hastings, he claimed the Kingdom as well by the Nomination of Edward the Confessor, as by Right of Conquest, and he was crown'd and enjoyed the Kingdom for his Time. Bac. Coron. 4, 27. And to come further down, we find that the Parliament, (which had the best Right) have asserted their Authority in these Cases: The Crowns of England and France were entailed on King Henry the Fourth, and his four Sons by Act of Parliament. Stat. 7 Hen. 4. c. 2. And the Parliament entailed the Crown on Henry the Sixth, and his Issue; also Richard the Third was recognized by Parliament. But the most extraordinary Instance of this Nature was, the Nomination and Appointment of King Henry the Eighth, to whom the Parliament granted Power by his Last Will and Testament to make Conditions and Limitations at his Pleasure, for settling the Inheritance of the Crown; and he by his Will ordained, that his Son Edward should succeed him, and he dying without Issue, his Daughter Mary, and for her Want of Issue, his Daughter Elizabeth to enjoy the Crown in Succession; with Remainders to such as the King by his Letters Patent, &c. should appoint. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 1. After the Death of King Hen. 8. his Son Edward the Sixth succeeded; and he was prevailed upon to appoint the Lady Jane, Daughter to the Duke of Suffolk, (who married K. Henry's Sister) a Protestant Lady, by his Letters Patent to succeed him: But this Appointment, soon after the Death of King Edward, was vacated by Queen Mary; the Lady Jane beheaded, and the Protestant Reform'd Religion eclipsed during her Reign; but it revived again and received Perfection, by her Successor the glorious Queen Elizabeth. By the Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1. the Parliament acknowledged the Queen to be right Heir to the Crown; and by this Act the Limitation of the Crown contained in 35 H. 8. is declared to stand and remain Law for ever. And when K. James the First came to the Crown, the Parliament made a Recognition, that upon Queen Elizabeth's Death, the Crown of England, and all the Kingdoms, Dominions, and Rights belonging to the same, did by lawful Birth-right and Succession descend to King James. Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 1. After this, I do not find that the Parliament intermeddled in settling the Succession of the Crown till the Abdication of King James the Second; when the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, and Commons, lawfully representing all the Estates of the People of the Realm, invited over William, Prince of Orange, and the Princess Mary, (eldest Daughter of King James II.) to take Care of their Rights and Liberties; whom they declared to be King and Queen of England. And by Stat. 1 W. & M. c. 2. reciting the Declaration of the Lords and Commons for securing the Liberties of the Kingdom, upon which the Prince and Princess of Orange accepted the Crown, the said Prince and Princess were recogniz'd King and Queen of England, &c. for their Lives, and the Life of the Survivor of them; and after their Deaths, the Crown was settled on the Heirs of the Body of the said Princess; and for Want of such Issue to the Princess Anne of Denmark, Sister to the Queen, and the Heirs of her Body. Also by 12 W. 3. c. 2. (after the Decease of Q. Mary without Issue) the Princess Sophia of Hanover, (Daughter of Elizabeth, eldest Daughter of King James the First) was declared next in Succession after King William, and the Princess Anne, and their Issue; and the Crown to remain to the Princess Sophia, and the Heirs of her Body being Protestants. By Virtue of which last Statute, his Majesty King George, eldest Son of the Princess Sophia, on the Death of her Majesty Queen Anne without Issue, the said Princess Sophia being likewise dead, came to the Possession of the Crown of these Realms: By these last Acts, Papists are rendered incapable to inherit the Crown of England; and subjects are absolved of their Allegiance to such; Persons coming to the Crown, are to join in the Communion of the Church of England. And this Nation is not to be engaged in a War for Defence of Dominions not belonging to the Crown. Persons endeavouring to deprive the next in Succession to the Crown from succeeding, and who attempt it by any Overt-act, are guilty of High Treason. Stat. 1 Ann. c. 2. And if any affirm by Writing, &c. that the King or Queen of England cannot make Laws by the Authority of Parliament to bind the Crown, they are guilty of Treason: And Preaching or Speaking it incur a Premunire. 4 Ann. c. 3. Affirming by Writing or Printing, that any other Person hath Right to the Crown, otherwise than according to the Stat. 1 W. & M. &c. is declared High Treason. Stat. Ibid. There is no Inter-regnum in this Kingdom; for when the Crown descends to the right Heir, he is Rex before Coronation, as there must always be a King in whose Name Laws are to be maintained and executed. Hill. 1 Jac. See Descent of the Crown and King.

Crown Office. This is an Office under the King's Bench, of which the King's Coroner or Attorney there is commonly Master. The Attorney General, and Clerk of the Crown, exhibit Informations in this Office, for Crimes and Misdemeanors; the one Ex Officio, and the other usually by Order of Court: And Information may be laid for Offences and Misdemeanors at Common Law, as for Batteries, Conspiracies, Libelling, Nusances, Contempts, Seditious Words, &c. wherein the Offender is liable to pay a Fine to the King. Finch. 340. Show. 109. By Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 18. The Clerk of the Crown in B. R. is not to receive or file any Information for Trespass, Battery, &c. without express Order of Court; nor to issue any Process, without taking a Recognizance in 20 l. Penalty to prosecute with Effect, &c. And if the Party appear, and the Plaintiff do not procure a Trial in a Year, or if Verdict pass for the Defendant, &c. the Court shall award the Defendant Costs: But this Act doth not extend to Informations in the Name of the King's Coroner or Attorney, &c. Where a Battery is committed privately, so that the Person receiving it can make no Proof thereof by Witnesses at Law; it is usual to bring an Information in this Office, where the Party may be a Witness for the King, it being his Suit. Informations in the Nature of Quo Warranto's brought by the Attorney General, against Corporations, &c. See Quo Warranto.

Crustum, Was a Garment of Purple, mixed with many Colours. — Duas Patenas argenteas

auro ornatas, cum duobus Urceolis & Cruſto aureo. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 210.

Crypta, A Chapel or Oratory under Ground: Egreſſo toto Conventu, accepta abſconſa ſi nox eſt vadit per Cryptam. Du Cange.

Duckingſtool, (Tumbrellum) Is an Engine invented for the Punishment of Scolds, and unquiet Women, by Ducking them in the Water, called in antient Time a Tumbrel; and ſometimes a Trebuchet. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 1. cap. 12. And Bracton writes this Word Tymbovella. In Domeſday it is called Cathedra Stercoris: And it was in Uſe even in our Saxons Time, by whom it was deſcribed to be Cathedra, in qua rixoſe Mulieres ſedentes aquis demergebantur. It was antiently alſo a Punishment inflicted upon Brewers and Bakers, tranſgreſſing the Laws; who were thereupon in ſuch a Stool immerged over Head and Ears in Stercore, ſome ſtinking Water. Some think it is a Corruption from Duckingſtool; others from Choakingſtool; quia hoc modo demerſa aquis ſere ſuffocantur. Blount.

Cude. A Cude Cloth is a Chryſom or Face-Cloth for a Child baptized. Vide Chriſmale.

Cudgeach, A Word ſignifying a Pledge or Surety.

Cui ante Divortium, Is a Writ that a Woman divorced from her Husband hath to recover her Lands and Tenements which ſhe had in Fee-ſimple, or in Tail, or for Life, from him to whom her Husband did alienate them during the Marriage, when ſhe could not gainsay it. Reg. Orig. 233. F. N. B. 240. And the Heir ſhall have a Sur cui ante Divortium, where the Wife dieth before the Action brought; as well as ſhe ſhall have a Sur cui in Vita: But of an Eſtate-tail, the Heir ſhall not have Sur cui in Vita ante Divortium, but ſhall be put to his Formedon in the Deſcender. New Nat. Br. 454.

Cui in Vita, Is a Writ of Entry, which a Widow hath againſt him to whom her Husband alienated her Lands or Tenements in his Life-time; which muſt contain in it, that during his Life ſhe could not withſtand it. Reg. Orig. 232. F. N. B. 193. If Husband and Wife be Jointenants before the Coverture, and the Husband alieneth all the Land, and dieth, ſhe ſhall have a Cui in Vita for a Moiety, and no more: But if they are joint Purchaſers, during the Coverture, and he alien all the Land, and dieth, his Wife ſhall have a Cui in Vita of the whole Land; becauſe that during the Coverture, as to Purchase, they are but one Perſon in Law. F. N. B. 187. And from this Reaſon, if Husband and Wife, and a third Perſon, purchaſe jointly, and the Husband alieneth all in Fee, and dieth, the Wife ſhall have a Cui in Vita of a Moiety. Ibid. Where the Husband and Wife exchange the Lands of the Wife for other Lands, if the Wife agree unto the Exchange after the Husband's Death, ſhe ſhall not have a Cui in Vita. Alſo if the Wife do accept of Parcel of the Land in Dower, of which ſhe hath a Cui in Vita, by that Acceptance ſhe ſhall be barred of the Reſidue. New Nat. Br. 430. If the Husband and Wife loſe by Default the Wife's Lands, after the Death of her Husband, ſhe ſhall have a Cui in Vita to recover thoſe Lands ſo loſt by Default. F. N. B. 187. By Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 3. Cui in Vita is given to the Wife where the deceased Husband loſt her Lands by Default, in his Life-time: And ſhe ſhall be admitted to defend her Right during his Life, if he come in before Judgment. Likewise if Tenant in Dower, by the Curteſy, or for Life, do make Default, &c. the Heirs and they to whom the Reverſion belongeth, ſhall be admitted to their Answer, if they come before Judgment: And if on Default Judgment happen to be given, ſuch Heirs, &c. ſhall have a Writ of Entry for Recovery of the ſame, after the Death of ſuch Tenants. The Form of the Writ Cui in Vita runs thus:

REX Vic. &c. Præcipe A. B. quod Juſte, &c. reddat C. D. qua fuit Uxor T. D. unum Meſſuagiu. cum pertin. in, &c. qd' clamat eſſe juſ & hered. ſuam. Et quod idem A. B. non habet ingreſſum niſi per præd. T. D. quondam virum ipſius C. qui illud ei Dimiſit, Cui ipſa in Vita ſua contradicere non potuit, &c.

Culagium, Is when a Ship is laid up in the Dock to be repaired. M. S. Arth. Trevor Arm. de Plac. Edw. 3.

Culpit, Is a Reply of a proper Officer in Behalf of the King, affirming a Criminal to be Guilty, after he hath pleaded Not guilty, without which the Iſſue to be tried is not joined: It is compounded of two Words, viz. Cul, and Prit; the one an Abbreviation of Culpabilis, and the other derived from the French Word Preſt, i. e. Ready; and 'tis as much as to ſay, That he is ready to prove the Offender guilty.

Cultura, This Word often occurs in old Writings, and ſignifies a Parcel of arable Land. Blount.

Culbertage, (Culvertagium) Is ſaid by ſome Perſons to be derived from Culum and Vertere, to turn Tail: And in this Senſe, ſub nomine Culvertagii, was taken to be on Pain of Cowardiſe, or being accounted Cowards. But, in the Opinion of others, it rather ſignifies ſome baſe Slavery, or the Conſiſcation of an Eſtate; being a Feudal Term for the Lands of the Vaſſal forfeited and eſchearing to the Lord: And ſub nomine Culvertagii, in this Signification, was under Pain of Conſiſcation. Matt. Pariſ. Anno 1212. It ſeems to be the ſame with Couvrir le feu, for when a Lord ſeiſes his Vaſſal's Eſtate as forfeited, he is ſaid Couvrir le feu, to coyer or put out his Fire. Du Cange.

Culward, and Culberd, Words uſed for a Coward, or Cowardiſe. Chart. Temp. Ed. 1.

Cuna Cerviſiæ, A Tub of Ale. Domeſday. But this Word is truly Curva, Fr. Curve, Angl. Keeve, whence comes Keeper, a Tub or Fat for Brewing. Cowel.

Cuneus, A Mint or Place to coin Money: Cuneum monetum ſignifies the King's Stamp for Coinage; and from the Word Cunæ, is derived Coin. See Coin.

Cuntey-Cuntey, Is a Kind of Trial, as appears by Bracton, in theſe Words; In Brevi de Reſto, negotium terminabitur per Cuntey-Cuntey, &c. which is taken to be the Ordinary Jury. Bract. lib. 4. traſt. 3. c. 18.

Curagulus, One who taketh Care of a Thing. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2.

Cura Monafterii, An Officer ſo called, who had the Charge of a Monaftery.

Curate, (Curatus) Is he who represents the Incumbent of a Church, Parſon or Vicar, and officiates Divine Service in his Stead: And in Caſe of Pluralities of Livings, or where a Clergyman is old and infirm, it is requiſite there ſhould be a Curate to perform the Cure of the Church. He is to be liſenced and admitted by the Biſhop of the Dioceſe, or by an Ordinary, having Episcopalian Jurisdiction: And when a Curate hath the Approbation bation of the Bishop, he usually appoints the Salary too, and in such Case, if it be not paid, the Curate hath a proper Remedy in the Ecclesiastical Court, by a Sequestration of the Profits of the Benefice; but if he hath no License from the Bishop, he is put to his Remedy at Common Law, where he must prove the Agreement, &c. Right Clerg. 127. By Statute, where Curates are licensed by the Bishop, they are to be appointed by him a Stipend not exceeding 50*l.* per Ann. nor less than 20*l.* a Year, according to the Value of the Livings, to be paid by the Rector or Vicar: And the same may be done on any Complaint made. Stat. 12 Ann. c. 2. One Person cannot be Curate in two Churches, unless such may satisfy the Law, by Reading both Morning and Evening Prayers at each Place: Nor can he serve one Cure on one Sunday, and another Cure on the next; for he must not neglect to read Morning and Evening Prayer in his Church every Lord's Day; if he doth he is liable to Punishment. Comp. Incumb. 572. But it is otherwise where a Church or Chapel is a Member of the Parish-Church; and where one Church is not able to maintain a Curate. Can. 48. A Curate having no fixed Estate in his Curacy; not being instituted and inducted, may be removed at Pleasure by the Bishop or Incumbent. Noy. But there are Perpetual Curates, as well as temporary, who are appointed where all the Tithes are inappropriate, and no Vicarage endow'd: These are not removable; and the Impropriators are obliged to find them, some whereof have certain Portions of Tithes settled on them. Stat. 29 Car. 2. Every Clergyman that officiates in a Church, (whether Incumbent or Substitute) is in our Liturgy called a Curate: Curates must subscribe the Declaration, according to the Act of Uniformity, or are liable to Imprisonment, &c.

Curfeu, (of the Fr. Couvir, i. e. Tegere, and Fen, Ignis) Signifies the Ringing of a Bell, or Evening Peal, by which William the First, called the Conqueror, commanded every Person to rake up or cover over his Fire, and put out his Light: And in many Places of England at this Day, where a Bell is customarily rung towards Bed-time, it is said to Ring Curfeu. Stow's Annals.

Curia. The Word was sometimes taken for the Persons, as feudatory and other customary Tenants, who did their Suit and Service at the Court of the Lord. Kennet's Paroch. Antiq. 139. And it was usual for the Kings of England, in ancient Times, to assemble the Bishops, Peers, and great Men of the Kingdom to some particular Place, at the chief Festivals in the Year; and this Assembly is called by our Historians Curia; because there they consulted about the weighty Affairs of the Nation. And it was therefore called Solemnis Curia, Augustalis Curia, Curia Publica, &c. See Court.

Curia advisare vult, Is a Deliberation which a Court of Judicature sometimes takes, where there is any Point of Difficulty, before they give Judgment in a Cause. New Book of Entries.

Curia claudenda, Is a Writ to compel another to make a Fence or Wall, which he ought to make between his Land and the Plaintiff's, on his refusing or deferring to do the same. Reg. Orig. 155. This Writ doth not lie but against him who hath a Close adjoining to the Plaintiff's Land, who is obliged to enclose it; and it lieth not but for him who hath a Freehold, &c. It may be sued before the Sheriff in the County-Court, or in the Common Pleas: And the Judgment is to recover the Inclosure and Damages. New Nat. Br. 282, 283.

Curia Domini, The Lord's House, Hall or Court, where all the Tenants attend at the Time of keeping Courts.

Curia Penticiarum, Is a Court held by the Sheriff of Chester, in the Place there called the Pentic or Pentice: And 'tis probable its being originally kept under a Pent-house, or open Shed cover'd with Boards, gave it its Denomination.

Curnock, A Measure containing four Bushels, or Half a Quarter of Corn. Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 12.

Curriculus, The Year, or Course of a Year: Actum est hoc annorum Dominice incarnationis quatuor quinquagenis & quinquies, quinis Lustris, & tribus Curriculis. This is the Year 1028; for four Times 50 makes 200, and five Times 200 makes 1000. Then five Lustra are twenty-five Years, and three Curriculi, three Years, making in all the very Year.

Curatores, (Clerici de Cursu) Clerks belonging to the Chancery, who make out original Writs; and are called Clerks of Course, in their Oath appointed 18 Ed. 3. There are of these Clerks twenty-four in Number, which make a Corporation of themselves; and to each Clerk is allotted a Division of certain Counties, in which they exercise their Functions. 2 Inst. 670.

Curtones terræ, Is taken for Ridges of Land. 14 Ed. 2.

Cursozæ, A Sort of light Ships, or swift Sailers: This Word is mentioned in Hoveden R. 1. Appliquerunt ibi Naves & Buscia 500. exceptis Galeis & Curforiis, &c.

Curtesy of England, (Jus Curialitatis Angliæ) Is where a Man taketh a Wife seized in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail general, or as Heiress in special Tail, and hath Issue by her, Male or Female, born alive, which by any Possibility may inherit, and the Wife dies; the Husband holds the Lands during his Life, and is called Tenens per Legem Angliæ, or Tenant by the Curtesy of England; because this Privilege is not allowed in any other Country, except Scotland, now belonging to England. And four Things are requisite to give an Estate by the Curtesy, viz. Marriage, Seisin of the Wife, Issue, and Death of the Wife. 1 Inst. 30. If Land descend to the Wife, after the Husband hath Issue by her; or if the Issue be dead at the Time of her Death, being born alive; the Husband shall be Tenant by the Curtesy. Also if a Child is born alive, 'tis not material whether 'tis baptised, or ever heard to cry, to make the Husband Tenant by the Curtesy; for if 'tis born alive, 'tis enough. 1 Nels. Abr. 578. But the Child must be such as by Possibility may inherit; and therefore if Land be given to a Woman, and the Heirs Male of her Body, and she takes Husband and hath Issue a Daughter, and dies; as this Issue cannot possibly inherit, the Husband shall not be Tenant by the Curtesy. Terms de Ley 206. If the Child is rip'd forth of the Mother's Belly, after her Death, tho' it be alive, it will not entitle Tenancy by the Curtesy; for this ought to begin by the Issue, and be consummate by the Death of the Wife; and the Estate of Tenant by the Curtesy should avoid the immediate Descent. Ibid. A Man shall not be Tenant by the Curtesy of a bare Right, Title, Use, Reversion, &c. expectant upon an Estate of Freehold, unless the particular Estate is determined during the Coverture; nor of a Seisin in Law: But if a Wife dies before a Rent becomes due; or in the Case of an Advowson, before the Church becomes void; the Husband shall be Tenant by the Curtsey, though the Wife had only a Seisin in Law; for in this Case no other Seisin could be attained. F. N. B. 149. 1 Inst. 29, 30, 40. There is no Tenancy by the Curtsey of Copyhold Lands, except there be a special Custom for it.

Curteyn, (Curtana) Was the Name of King Edward the Confessor's Sword, which is the first Sword carried before the King's of England at their Coronation: And it is said the Point of it is broken, as an Emblem of Mercy. Mat. Paris. in Hen. 3.

Curtilage, (Curtilagium, from the Fr. Cour, Court, and Sax. Leagh, locus) Is a Yard, Backside, or Piece of Ground lying near and belonging to a Dwelling-house. 4 Ed. 1. c. 1. 35 H. 8. c. 4. 39 Eliz. c. 10. 6 Rep. 64. — Mibi dici videtur Curtilagium à Curtillum & ago, scil. locus ubi Cuitis vel Curtilli negotium agitur. Spelm. And tho' it is said to be a Yard, or a Garden, belonging to a House; it seems to differ from a Garden, for we find, Cum quodam Gardino, & Curtilagio. 15 Ed. 1. n. 34.

Curtiles Terræ, Court-Lands. It is recorded, that among our Saxon Ancestors, the Thanes or Nobles who possess'd Bockland, or hereditary Lands, divided them into Inland and Outland: The Inland was, that which lay most convenient for the Lord's Mansion-house; and therefore the Lords kept that Part in their own Hands, for Support of their Families, and for Hospitality: Afterwards the Normans called these Lands Terras Dominicales, the Demains, or Lord's Lands: The Germans term'd them Terras Indominicatas, Lands in the Lord's own Use: And the Feudists, Terras Curtiles, Lands appropriate to the Court or House of the Lord. Spelm. of Feuds, c. 5.

Custantia, The same with Custagium, which signifies Costs.

Custode admittendo, and Custode amovendo, Writs for the Admitting or Removing of Guardians. Reg. Orig.

Custodes Libertatis Angliæ Authozitate Parliamenti, Was the Style in which Writs and all judicial Process did run during the Grand Rebellion, from the Murder of King Charles I. 'till the Usurper Oliver was declared Protector, &c. mentioned and declared traitorous, by Statute 12 Car. c. 3.

Custodiam dare, Was taken for a Gift or Grant for Life. Du Cange.

Custom, (Consuetudo) Is a Law not written, established by long Usage, and the Consent of our Ancestors. No Law can oblige a People without their Consent; so where-ever they consent and use a certain Rule or Method as a Law, such Rule, &c. gives it the Power of a Law; and if 'tis universal, then 'tis Common Law; if particular to this or that Place, then 'tis Custom. 3 Salk. 112. And as to the Rise of Customs, when a reasonable Act once done was found to be good and beneficial to the People, then did they use it often, and by frequent Repetition of the Act, it became a Custom; which being continued without Interruption Time out of Mind, it obtained the Force of a Law, to bind the particular Places, Persons, and Things concern'd therein. Thus a Custom had Beginning, and grew to Perfection: And a good Custom must be grounded on Antiquity, Continuance, Certainty, and Reason; son; Antiquity, for that it hath been Time out of Memory, or threescore Years, as limited by Statute; and Time out of Mind is where no Man then living hath heard or known any Proof to the contrary: If Two or more Witnesses can depose that they heard their Fathers say it was a Custom all their Time, and that their Fathers heard their Grandfathers say it was so also in their Time; it is enough for the Proof of a Custom. Blount. Davis Rep. 32. Continuance of a Custom ought to be without any Interruption Time out of Memory, for if it be discontinued within Time of Memory, the Custom is gone. Certainty, a Custom must be certain, because an uncertain Thing may not be continued Time out of Mind: And Custom must be reasonable, for unreasonable Things are unlawful. Customs have four inseparable Incidents: They are to have a reasonable Commencement; to be certain, and not ambiguous; to have uninterrupted Continuance; and not be against the King's Prerogative. And the two Pillars of Customs, are common Usage, and that they be Time out of Mind. Davis 32. 4 Leon. 384. A Custom contrary to the publick Good; or injurious to a Multitude, and beneficial only to some particular Persons, such Custom is repugnant to the Law of Reason, and consequently void. Dav. 1. Customs ought to be beneficial to all, but may be good where against the Interest of a particular Person, if for the publick Good. Dyer 60. A Custom is not unreasonable for being injurious to private Persons or Interests, so as it tends to the general Advantage of the People. 3 Salk. Customs must be construed according to vulgar Apprehension: And are to be taken strictly, being in Derogation of the Common Law. 2 Roll. Abr. 270. They are not good which are merely in the Negative; but if mix'd with an Affirmative, they may be good. 1 Roll. 565. A Custom which may be intended to have had lawful Beginning, is a good Custom; otherwise not: Nor will Continuance of Time make Malum in se good. 1 Lill. Abr. 375. Customs against common Right, and the Rule of Law, are held good. 8 Rep. 126. The Law takes Notice of Customs of Gavelkind, &c. which alter Descents from the Common Law, in Favour of all the Sons, &c. And Custom for an eldest Daughter to inherit, or a youngest Son, may be good: For these, though contrary to a particular Rule of Law, may have a reasonable Beginning. 1 Nelf. Abr. 579. And by Custom a Woman may be endowed of a Moiety of the Husband's Lands, &c. Also by Custom, an Infant may make a Feoffment at the Age of Fifteen. And Infants may bind themselves Apprentices, &c. 2 Danv. Abr. 438. Regularly a Man cannot alledge a Custom against a Statute, because that is the highest Matter of Record in Law: But a Custom may be alledged against a negative Statute, which is made in Affirmance of the Common Law. 1 Inst. 115. And Acts of Parliament do not always take away the Force of Customs. Custom pleaded against Custom is not good. 2 Danv. 436. A Custom is to be positively alledged, by Usage in Fact. Lutw. 1319. General Customs which are used throughout England, and are the Common Law, are to be determined by the Judges: But Particular Customs, such as are used in some certain Town, Borough, City, &c. shall be determined by Jury. Doct. & Stud. c. 7, 10. 1 Inst. 110. Consuetudo pro Lege servatur, &c. saith Bracton, lib. 3. c. 3. And Custom is said to be altera Lex.

Custom of London. The City of London hath divers particular Customs, different from any other Place. By the Custom of London, when a Citizen and Freeman dies, his Goods and Chattels shall be divided into three Parts; the Wife to have one Part; the Executors another, to discharge Legacies, &c. and the Children unprovided for the other third Part. 2 Danv. Abr. 311, 312. If a Freeman of London hath no Wife, but Children, the Half of his Personal Estate goes to them, and he may dispose of the other Moiety; so if he have a Wife and no Children, the Half belongs to her; but if he have both Wife and Children, then one third Part belongs to the Wife, another Third to the Children, and he may dispose of the other Third; and if he die Intestate, the remaining Third is to be distributed according to the Statute. 1 Nelf. 1139. But see Stat. 11 Geo. And where a Freeman dies, and leaves Orphan-Children under Age, unmarried, the Court of Orphans hath the Custody of their Bodies and Goods, by the Custom of London: It is also the same, tho' he dies, or the Children were born out of London. 1 Mod. 80. By the City Custom, Action on the Case lies for calling a married Woman Whore; for in London such Woman may be carted: And this reaches to all the Inhabitants within London. 2 Danv. 310. 1 Lill. 378. A Woman that useth a Trade in London, without her Husband, is chargeable without him as a Feme Sole Merchant: She shall plead as sole, and if condemned, be put in Prison 'till she pay the Debt; also the Bail for her are liable, if she absent her self; and the Husband shall not be charged. Privil. Londini. And if Action of Trespass be brought against a Man and his Wife, and the Wife only arrested, &c. by the Custom of London, the Plaintiff may proceed against the Wife. It is the Custom of the City of London, that where a Person is educated in one Trade, he may set up another. 1 Saund. 312. Where two Persons are bound as Sureties for another, and Recovery is had against one of them, he may have Contribution against the other, by the City Laws. 2 Danv. Abr. 310. By the Custom of London and Bristol, Action is maintainable upon a bare Promise to pay Money; this is in Regard to the ready Way in Bargaining and Commerce. 1 Lill. Abr. 378. There is a Foreign Attachment, by the Custom of London, of Money, &c. in the Hands of a third Person, where one Man owes another any Debt, &c. See Attachment. Trial of a Custom in London, must be by Certificate from the Mouth of the Recorder. 1 Lill. 375.

Custom of Merchants. Merchants giving Characters of Strangers to those who sell them Goods, are liable to the Debts of such Strangers for the Goods sold; by the Custom of Merchants. Lex Mercat. c. 10. fol. 69. If two Persons be found in arrear, upon an Account grounded on the Custom of Merchants, any one of them may be charged to pay the whole Sum, that both were found in arrear. 1 Lill. Abr. 376. And if Two joint Merchants occupy their Stock and Merchandize in Common, one of them naming himself a Merchant, shall have an Account against the other, and charge him as Receiver. Co. Lit. 172. By the Custom of Merchants, where a Merchant orders his Factor to buy Goods of a particular Person, there the Merchant is Debtor, and not the Factor: But 'tis otherwise where the Merchant orders his Factor to buy Goods generally, without saying of whom; here the Factor is Debtor, tho' the Goods come to the Use of the Merchant. 1 Lill. 376. The Custom of Merchants as to Bills of Exchange, that the Indorsee shall charge the first Drawer before the Indorsor, &c. See Bill of Exchange.

Customs, (Custuma) Are used for the Tribute or Toll that Merchants pay to the King, for carrying out and bringing in Merchandize. Stat. 14 Ed. 3. c. 21. They are Duties payable to the Crown for Goods exported and imported, and are due to the King of common Right; first, because the Subject hath Leave to depart the Kingdom, and to export the Commodities thereof; secondly, For the Interest which the King hath in the Sea, and as he is Guardian of, and maintains all the Ports, wherein the Commodities are exported or imported; and lastly, for that the King protects Merchants from Enemies and Pirates. Dyer 43. The Word Customs comprehends Magna & Antiqua Custuma, which is payable out of our own native Commodities, as for Wool, Woolfells, and Leather; and Parva Custuma, which are Customs payable by Merchants, Strangers and Denizens; and these began in the Reign of Edward I. when the Parliament granted him 3 d. in the Pound for all Merchandizes exported and imported. Ibid. 165. But that which is granted by Parliament, is properly called a Subsidy; and sometimes granted to the King for Life; and there are several Sorts of these Subsidies, as Tonnage, a Duty granted out of every Ton of Wine imported, which was first granted by Parliament to King Edward III. And Poundage, a Subsidy granted for all Goods exported and imported, except Wines, &c. and is usually the twentieth Part of the Value of the Goods, or 12 d. in the Pound, and this was first given to Hen. 6. for Life. 1 Nelf. Abr. 583, 584. In the Reign of Edw. 3. the Great Charter for free Traffick was confirmed: And Anno 6 E. 3. it was enacted, that no new Customs could be levied, nor antient increased, but by Authority of Parliament. 2 Inst. 60. But tho' the King cannot lay any Imposition on Merchandize without Consent of Parliament; yet by his Prerogative he may restrain Merchants from Trading without his Royal License. In the 14th Year of Ed. 3. it was enacted in Parliament, that a Mark should be paid as Custom for a Sack of Wool. Anno 4 H. 8. Collectors were appointed of the Subsidy of Cloth of Gold, Silver, Velvet, &c. And 1 Eliz. Duties were granted on Sweets, Wines, &c. And An. 12 Car. 2. The Subsidies of Tonnage and Poundage, &c. were granted to King Charles during his Life; as they have been since to his Royal Successors, down to his Majesty King Geo. And many and various are the Duties of Customs granted on foreign Goods and Merchandize, in the Reigns of King James 2. K. William, Queen Anne, and his present Majesty. Ships and Vessels outward-bound are not to take in any Goods, 'till the Vessel, &c. is entered with the Collector of the Customs; and before Departure, the Contents of the Lading is to be brought in under the Hands of the Laders, &c. Also when Ships arrive from beyond Sea, the Masters are to make a true Entry upon Oath, of the Lading, Goods, Ship, &c. under the Penalty of 100 l. And if any concealed Goods are found after Clearing, for which the Duties have not been paid, the Master of the Vessel shall likewise forfeit 100 l. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. Keepers of Wharfs, Keys, &c. landing or shipping Goods, without the Presence of some Officer of the Customs, shall forfeit 100 l. And resisting Officers of the Customs in the Execution of their Office, is liable to a Fine not exceeding 100 l. Stat. Ibid. But by 6 Geo. Where Officers of the Customs are hindered in the Execution of their Duty, by Persons armed to the Number of Eight, the Offenders are to be transported for seven Years. If any Goods are put into any Vessel to be carried beyond Sea; or be brought from beyond Sea, and unshipped to be landed, the Duties not being paid nor agreed for at the Custom-House; the same shall be forfeited, one Moiety to the King, the other to the Seisor, &c. And by late Statutes, Foreign Goods taken in at Sea, by any Coasting Vessel, &c. shall be forfeited, and treble Value. There is a Drawback allowed Merchants for some Goods and Merchandize; and they have Allowances of so much per Cent. &c. out of the Customs, where Goods are defective, or receive Damage, &c.

Customs and Services, Belonging to Tenure of Lands, are such as Tenants owe unto their Lord; which being withheld from the Lord, he may have a Writ of Customs and Services. See Consuetudinibus & Servitiis.

Custos Breuium, Is the Principal Clerk belonging to the Court of Common Pleas, whose Office is to receive and keep all the Writs returnable in that Court, and put them upon Files, every Return by it self; and to receive of the Prothonotaries all the Records of Nisi prius, called the Postea's; for they are first brought in by the Clerks of Assize of every Circuit to the Prothonotary, who entered the Issue in the Causes, to enter the Judgment: And four Days after the Return thereof, the Prothonotary enters the Verdict and Judgment thereupon, into the Rolls of the Court; whereupon he afterwards delivers them over to the Custos Breuium, who binds them into a Bundle. He makes Entry likewise of all Writs of Covenant, and the Concord upon every Fine; and maketh forth Exemplifications, and Copies of all Writs and Records in his Office, and of all Fines levied. The Fines after they are engrossed, are divided between the Custos Breuium and the Chirographer; the Chirographer always keeps the Writ of Covenant and the Note, and the Custos Breuium, the Concord and Foot of the Fine; upon which Foot of the Fine, the Chirographer causeth the Proclamations to be indorsed, when they are proclaimed. This Officer is made by the King's Letters Patent: And in the Court of King's Bench, there is also a Custos Breuium & Rotulorum, who fileth such Writs as are in that Court filed, and all Warrants of Attorney, &c. and whose Business it is to make out the Records of Nisi prius, &c.

Custos Placitorum Coronæ, An Officer which seems to be the same with him we now call Custos Rotulorum. Bract. lib. 2. c. 5.

Custos Rotulorum, Is he who hath the Custody of the Rolls or Records of the Sessions of the Peace, and also of the Commission of the Peace it self. He is always a Justice of the Peace of the Quorum in the County where appointed; and is usually some Person of Quality: But he is rather termed an Officer or Minister, than a Judge. Lamb. Eiren. lib. 4. cap. 3. p. 373. The Custos Rotulorum in every County is appointed by a Writing signed by the King's Hand, which shall be a Warrant to the Lord Chancellor to put him in Commission: And he may execute his Office by Deputy; and hath Power to appoint the Clerk of the Peace, &c. Stat. 37 Hen. 8. cap. 1. By Stat. 1 W. & M. c. 21. The Custos Rotulorum is to nominate and appoint the Clerk of the Peace; but not to sell the Place, on Pain of forfeiting the Office of Custos Rotulorum, and other Penalties, &c.

Custos of the Spiritualities, (Custos Spiritualitatis) Is he that exerciseth the Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction of a Diocese, during the Vacancy of any See; who with us in England, is the Archbishop by Prescription: But (according to Gwin) some Deans and Chapters challenge this Right by ancient Charters from the Kings of this Land. Coovel.

Custos of the Temporalities, (Custos Temporalium) The Person to whose Custody a vacant See or Abbey was committed by the King, as supreme Lord; who, as a Steward of the Goods and Profits, was to give an Account to the Escheator, and he into the Exchequer. His Trust continued till the Vacancy was supplied, and the Successor obtained the King's Writ De Restitutione Temporalium, which was usually after Consecration.

Cut-purse. If any Person clam & secrete and without the Knowledge of another, cut his Purse, or pick his Pocket, and steal from thence to the Value of 12 d. it is Felony excluded Clergy. 8 Eliz. 3 Inst. 68. See Felony.

Cuts, Flat-bottomed Boats, built low and commodiously, used in the Channel for transporting of Horses. Stow. Annal. p. 412.

Cutter of the Tallies, Is an Officer of the Exchequer, to whom it belongs to provide Wood for the Tallies, and to cut the Sum paid upon them, &c.

Cyclas, A long Garment, close upwards, and open or large below. Matt. Paris. Anno 1236. speaking of the Citizens of London, tells us, they were Sericis vestimentis ornati, Cycladibus anri textis circumdati.

Cynebote. This Word signifies the same with Cenegild. Blount.

Dagus or Deis, The chief or upper Table in a Monastery; from a Cloth called Dais, with which the Tables of Kings were covered.

Dakir. The Stat. 51 H. 3. De Compositione Ponderum & Mensurarum ascertains a Last of Hides to consist of twenty Dakirs, and every Dakir of ten Hides. See Dicker.

Dalmatica, A Garment with large open Sleeves, at first worn only by Bishops, tho' since made a Distinction of Degrees; so called, because it came originally from Dalmatia.

Dalus, Dailus, Daila, A certain Measure of Land. — Et totam Dailam Marisi tam de rossa quam de prato, &c. Mon. Ang. Tom. 2. p. 211. In some Places it is taken for a Ditch or Vale, whence comes Dale: The Dali prati have been esteemed such narrow Slips of Pasture, left between the ploughed Furrows in arable Land, which in some Parts of England are still called Doles: The old Brit. Dol, was a Vale; and the present Welsh use this Word for a low Meadow by the River Side. And this seems to be the original Name and Nature of Deal in Kent, where Cæsar landed, and fought the Britains: Cæsar ad Dole Bellum pugnavit. Nennius.

Damage,

Damage, (Dammum) Signifies generally any Hurt or Hinderance that a Man receives in his Estate: But particularly, a Part of what the Jurors are to inquire of and bring in, when an Action passeth for the Plaintiff: For after Verdict given of the principal Cause, the Jury are asked touching Costs and Damages, which comprehend a Recompence for what the Plaintiff hath suffered, by Means of the Wrong done him by the Defendant. Co. Litt. 257. This Word Damage is taken in the Law, in two several Significations, the one Properly and Generally, the other Relatively: Properly, as it is in Cases wherein Damages are founded upon the Statute of 2 Hen. 4. cap. 1. and 8 H. 6. c. 9. where Costs are included within the Word Damages, and taken as Damages: But when the Plaintiff declares for the Wrong done to him, to the Damage of such a Sum, this is to be taken relatively for the Wrong which passed before the Writ brought, and is assessed by Reason of the foregoing Trespass, and cannot extend to Costs of Suit, which are future and of another Nature. 10 Rep. 116, 117. Greater Costs may be given in some Cases, than the Damages laid in the Plaintiff's Declaration; for the Plaintiff's Declaration is only for the Damage done him by the Defendant: But the Costs are given in Respect of the Plaintiff's Suit to recover his Damages, which may be sometimes greater than the Damage. 1 Lill. Abr. 384. Where the Plaintiff shall have no more Costs than Damages, unless the Jury finds more than 40 s. in Actions of Trespass, on the Case, &c. See Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 6. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 16. In Action upon the Case, the Jury may find less Damages than the Plaintiff lays in his Declaration; though they cannot find more than is laid therein; if they do, it is Error: But Costs may be increased beyond the Sum mentioned in the Declaration for Damages: Also the Plaintiff may release Part of the Damages, upon entering up his Judgment. 10 Rep. 115. In Actions upon any Bond or penal Sum for Nonperformance of Covenants, the Jury shall assess Damages for those the Plaintiff should prove broken; and the Plaintiff may assign as many Breaches as he thinks fit. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 11. Damages are not to be given for that which is not contained in the Plaintiff's Declaration; and only for what is materially alledged. 1 Lill. 381. In personal and mix'd Actions, Damages were recovered at Common Law: But in real Actions, no Damages were recoverable, because none were demanded by the Court or Writ; whereas in Actions Personal, the Plaintiff counts Ad Dammum for the Injury; and if he recovers no Damages, he hath no Costs. 10 Rep. 111, 117. In a personal Action, the Plaintiff shall recover Damages only for the Tort done before the Action brought; and therein the Plaintiff counts for his Damage: In a real Action, he recovers his Damages pending the Writ; and therefore never counts for his Damage. 10 Rep. 117. By the Stat. of Glouc. 6 Ed. 1. cap. 1. Damages are given in real Actions, Assises of Novel Disseisin, Mort d'Ancestor, &c. and shall be recovered against the Alienee of a Disseisor, as well as against the Disseisor himself: And the Demandant shall have of the Tenant likewise Costs of Suit; but not Expences of Trouble and Loss of Time. 2 Inst. 288. If the Disseisor make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Disseisee dieth, the Heir of the Disseisee shall not recover Damages against the Alienee, because that Branch of the Stat. 6 Ed. 1. only provides for the Disseisee's Remedy against the Alienee, and not for his Heirs; though if a Person be disseised, and the Disseisee dies, his Heirs shall recover Damages against the Disseisor, from the Death of his Ancestor. 2 Inst. 286. And it is a Rule upon this Statute, that in none of the Writs or Actions therein mentioned, the Demandant shall recover Damages but from the Death of his next immediate Ancestor. Ibid. 288. For the Insufficiency of the Disseisor, the Tenant shall answer the Damages by this Act: And if the Disseisor be able to yield Part, and not the whole Damages, both the Disseisor and Tenant shall be charged; and Judgment is given against the Disseisor, and against the Tenant generally. 2 Inst. 284. 2 Danv. Abr. 448. When Damages double or treble are given in an Action newly created by Statute; if no Damages were formerly recoverable, there the Demandant or Tenant shall recover those Damages only, and shall not have Costs, being a new Creation in Recompence where there was none before: As upon the Stat. 1 & 2 P. & M. for driving of Distresses out of the Hundred, &c. whereby Damages are given, the Plaintiff shall recover no Costs, only his Damages, because this Action is newly given. But in an Action upon the Stat. 8 H. 6. of Forcible Entry, which giveth treble Damages, the Plaintiff shall recover his Damages and his Costs to the Treble, by Reason he was entitled to single Damages before by the Common Law; and the Statute, as Part of the Damages, encreases the Costs to treble; and when a Statute increases Damages, Costs shall likewise be increased. 2 Inst. 289. 10 Rep. 116. In some Cases, double, treble Damages, &c. are allowed: For not setting forth Tithes; Distresses wrongfully taken; Rescous, &c. Treble Damages are incurred by Statute. But if it be not found by the Jury that the Plaintiff hath sustained some Damage in Cases where treble Damages, &c. are inflicted by Law, no Damages can be awarded. 2 Danv. Abr. 449. No Damages could be recovered at the Common Law, but against the wrong Doer, and by him to whom the Wrong was done. 2 Inst. 284. Damages shall be recovered in Writ of Admeasurement of Dower; but not in Writ of Admeasurement of Pasture. 2 Danv. 457. In Writ of Partition, by one Coparcener against another, 'tis said no Damages shall be had: In a Formedon, no Damages shall be recovered; so in a Nuper Obiit, Writ of Account, Writ of Execution, &c. Ibid. 455, 456. Where Damages are awarded for Delay of Execution, and being kept out of the Money, they are usually assessed by allowing the Party what lawful Interest he might have. 1 Salk. 208. In real Actions, Damages are assessed by Writ of Enquiry: When the Jury find the Issue for the Plaintiff, they are to assess the Damages. And in Actions upon the Case, &c. where Damages are uncertain, it is left to the Jury to enquire of and tax them: In Debt, which appears certain to the Court what it is, the Damages assessed by the Jury are small, and the Master in B. R. taxeth the Costs; which is added thereto, and called Damages. 1 Lill. 390. When Judgment is given by Default, in Action of Debt, the Court is to assess the Damages, and not the Jury: So if Judgment by Nil dicit, in Action of Debt. And if on Demurrer for taking Goods, &c. it is adjudged for the Plaintiff, though Damages are found by Writ of Enquiry, the Court may increase or mitigate the Damages; because the

the Court might have awarded them without such Writ. 2 Danv. 452. In Batteries and Wounding, the Court may increase Damages given by the Jury, on View of the Wound, or upon Affidavits made thereof, &c. But it is said, the Courts at Westminster only can increase Damages in Action of Assault and Wounding on View, &c. and not Justices of Nisi Prius; though they may endorse the Evidence on the Posse, and on such Evidence the Damages may be increased in the Courts above. 3 Salk. 115. If Damages are too small, the Court hath Power to increase them: Or if the Jury assesses no Damages, where Verdict is found for the Plaintiff in Action of Debt on Bond, &c. the Court may tax the Damages; though 'tis otherwise in Action on the Case, &c. 2 Inst. 200. 2 Danv. 449. It has been holden that the Judges may increase, but not decrease Damages; and this is, because the Party may have an Attaint. 2 Danv. 452. But where excessive Damages have been given, or there hath been any Misdemeanor in executing a Writ of Enquiry; the Court hath sometimes relieved the Defendant by a new Writ of Enquiry. 2 Danv. 464. And where Damages are excessive, on Motion the Defendant may have a new Trial. Style 465. 1 Nelf. Abr. 587. In Battery, Imprisonment, and taking of Goods, against three Persons; one commits the Battery, another the Imprisonment, the Third takes the Goods, all at one Time, all are Guilty and to be charged in Damages. 3 Lev. 324. But if several Damages are given, the Plaintiff shall have Damages but of one of them, &c. 10 Rep. 66, 69. In Trespass against two, one comes and pleads Not guilty, and it is found against him; and afterwards another comes and pleads the like, and is found guilty by another Inquest; in this Case, the first Jury shall assess all the Damages for the Trespass. New Nat. Br. 236. Trespass against divers Defendants, they plead not Guilty severally, and the Jury finds them all Guilty: The Jury must assess the Damages jointly, for it is but one entire Trespass, and made joint by the Declaration: But if in Trespass against two, the Jury finds one Guilty of the Trespass at one Time, and the other guilty thereof at another Time, there several Damages may be assessed. Tho' if the Plaintiff himself confesses that they committed the Trespass severally, then the Writ shall abate. 11 Rep. 5. Damages may be several, where one Action of Trespass is brought for two several Trespases: And in Action on the Case, Damages are divisible, and may be apportioned according to the Wrong. 1 Saund. 268. Also in Action on the Case upon two Promises, entire Damages may be given; tho' it be insisted that Damages should be several upon each Promise. 1 Roll. Rep. 423. But if Action is brought for two several Causes of Action, one of which is not actionable, if entire Damages are given, the Verdict is void: Contra if the Damages are severed. And where Damages are entirely assessed, and they ought not to be given for some Part; no Judgment can be given on the Verdict. 10 Rep. 130.

Damages-cleer, (Damna Clericorum) Was a Fee assessed by the tenth Part in the Common Pleas, and of the twentieth Part in the King's Bench and Exchequer, out of all Damages, exceeding five Marks, recovered in those Courts, in Actions upon the Case, Covenant, Trespass, Battery, &c. wherein the Damages were uncertain; which the Plaintiff was obliged to pay to the Prothonotary, or the Chief Officer of the Court wherein recovered, before he could have Execution for the Damages: This was originally a Gratuity given to the Prothonotaries and their Clerks, for drawing special Writs and Pleadings; it is taken away by Stat. 17 Car. 2. c. 6.

Damage-fesant, or Faisant, Is when a Stranger's Beasts are found in another Person's Ground without his Leave or Licence, and there doing Damage, by Feeding or otherwise, to the Grass, Corn, Woods, &c. In which Case, the Tenant whom they damage, may distrain and impound them, as well by Night as in the Day, least the Beasts escape before taken; which may not be done for Rent, Services, &c. only in the Day-time. Stat. 51 Hen. 3. 1 Inst. 142. If a Man takes my Cattle, and puts them into the Land of another, the Tenant of the Land may take these Cattle Damage-fesant, tho' I who was the Owner, was not privy to the Cattle's being there Damage-fesant; and he may keep them against me till Satisfaction of the Damages. 2 Danv. Abr. 634. But if one comes to distrain Damage-fesant, and to seize the Cattle, and the Owner drives them out before they are taken, he cannot distrain them Damage-fesant, but is put to his Action of Trespass; for the Cattle ought to be actually upon the Land Damage-fesant, at the Time of the Distress. 1 Inst. 161. 9 Rep. 22. Beasts belonging to the Plough, or Beasts of Husbandry, Sheep, Horses joined to a Cart, and 'tis said a Horse with a Rider on it, may be distrained Damage-fesant, though not for Rent, &c. 1 Sid. 422, 440. But the Owner may tender Amends, before the Cattle are impounded; and then the Detainer is unlawful: Also if when impounded the Pound-Door is open, the Owner may take them out. 5 Rep. 76. A Greyhound may be taken Damage-fesant, running after Conies in a Warren: So a Man may take a Ferret that another hath brought into his Warren, and taken Conies with. If a Person brings Nets and Gins through my Warren, I cannot take them out of his Hands. 2 Danv. 633. But if Men are rowing upon my Water, and endeavouring with Nets to catch Fish in my several Piscary, I may take their Oars and Nets, and detain them as Damage-fesant, to stop their further Fishing; tho' I cannot cut their Nets. Cro. Car. 228.

Dam, A Boundary, or Confinement; as to dam up, or dam out: Infra Damnum suum, within the Bounds or Limits of his own Property or Jurisdiction. Bract. lib. 2. c. 37.

Damnum absque injuria. If one Man keeps a School in such a Place, another may do so likewise in the same Place, though he draw away the Scholars from the other School; and this is Damnum absque injuria; but he must not do any Thing to disturb the other School. 3 Salk. 10.

Dan. Anciently the better Sort of Men in this Kingdom had the Title of Dan; as the Spaniards Don, from the Lat. Dominus.

Danegelt or Dane-gelt, (Danegildum) Is compounded of the Words Dane and Gelt, the latter in Dutch signifying Money; and was a Tax or Tribute of 1 s. and after of 2 s. upon every Hide of Land through the Realm, laid upon our Ancestors the Saxons by the Danes, when they lorded it here. Cambr. Brit. 83, 142. According to some Accounts, this Tax was levied for clearing the Seas of Danish Pirates; which heretofore greatly annoyed our Coasts: But King Etheldred being much much distressed by the continual Invasions of the Danes, to procure his Peace, was compelled to charge his People with very heavy Payments, called Danegelt, which he paid to the Danes at several Times. Hoveden par. post. Annal. 344. Ingulph. 510. Selden's Mare Claus. 190. This Danegelt was released by St. Edward the Confessor; but levied again by William the First and Second: Then it was released again by King Henry the First, and finally by King Stephen. Blount. It is probable that this ancient Tax might be a Precedent for our Land-Tax of 3 s. and 4 s. in the Pound, when first granted.

Danelage, Was the Law of the Danes when they governed a third Part of this Kingdom. See Merchenlage.

Dapifer, (a Dapes ferendo) Was at first a Domestick Officer, like unto our Steward of the Household; or rather Clerk of the Kitchen: But by Degrees it was used for any fiduciary Servant, especially the Chief Steward or Head Bailiff of an Honour or Manor. There is Mention made in our ancient Records of Dapifer Regis; which is taken for Steward of the King's Household. Cowel.

Date of a Deed, Is the Description of the Time, viz. the Day, Month, Year of our Lord, Year of the Reign, &c. in which the Deed was made. 1 Inst. 6. But the ancient Deeds had no Dates, only of the Month and the Year; to signify that they were not made in Haste, or in the Space of a Day, but upon longer and more mature Deliberation. Blount. If in the Date of a Deed, the Year of the Lord is right, tho' the Year of the King's Reign be mistaken, it shall not hurt it. Cro. Jac. 261. A Deed was dated 30th March, 1701. without Anno Domini and Anno Regni; and it was adjudged that both the Year of the Lord and of the King, were implicitly in the Deed. 2 Salk. 658. A Deed is good, tho' it hath no Date of the Day or Place, or if the Date be mistaken, or though it hath an impossible Date, as the 30th of February, &c. But he that doth plead such a Deed, without any Date, or with an impossible Date, must set forth the Time when it was delivered. 2 Rep. 5. 1 Inst. 46. If no Date of a Deed be set forth, it shall be intended that it had none; and in such Case 'tis good from the Delivery; for every Deed or Writing hath a Date in Law, and that is the Day on which it is delivered: And a Deed is no Deed till the Delivery; and that is the Date of it. Mod. Ca. 244. 1 Nels. Abr. 595. An impossible Date of a Bond, &c. is no Date at all; but the Plaintiff must declare on the Bond as made at a certain Time: And if the express Date be insensible, the real Date is the Delivery. 2 Salk. 463. Where there is none, or an impossible Date, the Plaintiff may count of any Date. 1 Lill. Abr. 393. If there be a mistaken Date as to the King's Reign, &c. or a Date be impossible, &c. the Plaintiff may surmise a legal Date in the Declaration, whereupon the Defendant is to answer to the Deed, and not the Date. Yelv. 194. If a Deed bears Date at a Place out of the Realm, it may be averred that the Place mentioned in the Deed, is in some County in England; and here the Place is not traversable; without this the Deed cannot be tried. 1 Inst. 261. A Deed may be dated at one Time, and sealed and delivered at another: But every Deed shall be intended to be delivered on the same Day it bears Date, unless the contrary is proved. 2 Inst. 674. Tho' there can be no Delivery of a Deed before the Day of the Date; yet after there may. Yelv. 138. So that a Deed may be dated back on a Time past, but not at a Day to come. See Deed.

Dative or Datif, (Dativus) Signifies that may be given or disposed of at Will and Pleasure. Stat. 9 R. 2. c. 4.

Dabata terræ, Dawach, A Portion of Land so called in Scotland. Skene.

Day, (Dies) Is a certain Space of Time, containing twenty-four Hours; and if a Fact be done in the Night, you must say in Law Proceedings in Nocte ejusdem Diei. Dierum alii sunt Naturales, alii Artificiales: Dies Naturalis, constat de 24 horis, & continet Diem Solarem & Noctem, & est spaciū in quo sol progreditur ab Oriente in Occidentem, & ab occidente iterum in Orientem: Dies Artificialis, sive solaris, incipit in ortu solis & desinit in occasu. 1 Inst. 135. By this Description, the natural Day consists of twenty-four Hours, and contains the solar Day and the Night; And the artificial Day begins from the Rising of the Sun, and ends when it sets. Day in legal Understanding, is the Day of Appearance of the Parties, or Continuance of the Suit where a Day is given, &c. And there is a Day of Appearance in Court by the Writ, and by the Roll; by Writ, when the Sheriff returns the Writ; by the Roll, when he hath a Day by the Roll, and the Sheriff returns not the Writ, there the Defendant to save his Freehold, prevent Loss of Issues, Imprisonment, &c. may appear by the Day he hath by the Roll. 1 Inst. 135. In real Actions there are Dies communes, common Days; and in all Summons there must be fifteen Days after the Summons before the Appearance: Also before the Statute of Articuli super Chartas, in all Summons and Attachment in Plea of Land, there should be contained fifteen Days. 1 Inst. 134. As to Offences in B. R. if the Offence be committed in another County than where the Court sits, and the Indictment be removed by Certiorari, there must be fifteen Days between every Process and the Return thereof; but if it be committed in the same County where the Bench sits, they may sit de Die in Diem; but this they will very rarely do. Ibid. There is a Day called Dies speciales, as in an Affise in the King's Bench or Common Pleas, the Attachment need not be fifteen Days before the Appearance; otherwise it is before Justices assigned: But generally in Affises the Judges may give a special Day at their Pleasure; and are not bound to the common Days; and these Days they may give as well out of Term as within. There is also a Day of Grace, Dies Gratia, and generally this is granted by the Court at the Prayer of the Demandant or Plaintiff, in whose Delay it is: But it is never granted where the King is Party by Aid Prier of the Tenant or Defendant; nor where any Lord of Parliament or Peer of the Realm is Tenant or Defendant. And sometimes the Day that is quarto die post, is called Dies Gratia; for the very Day of Return is the Day in Law, and to that Day the Judgment hath Relation, but no
De

Default shall be recorded till the fourth Day be past; unless it be in a Writ of Right, where the Law alloweth no Day but the Day of the Return. 1 Inst. 135. There are several Return-Days in the Terms; and if either of them happen upon a Sunday, the Day following is taken instead of it: For Sunday is Dies non Juridicus; and so is Ascension-Day in Easter Term, St. John Baptist in Trinity Term, All-Saints and All Souls in Michaelmas Term, and the Purification of the Virgin Mary in Hillary Term. 2 Inst. 264. Days in Bank are Days set down by Statute, or Order of the Court, when Writs shall be returned, or when the Party shall appear upon the Writ served. Stat. 51 Hen. 3. 32 H. 8. c. 21. And by the Statute de Anno Bissextili 21 H. 3. the Day increasing in the Leap-Year, and the Day next going before, are to be accounted but one Day. It is said commonly that the Day of Nisi prius, and the Day in Bank, is all one Day; but this is to be understood as to Pleading, not to other Purposes. 1 Inst. 135. If a Defendant appears, and the Court gives a Day to another Term; at which Day he makes Default, no Judgment shall be given, but Process shall be awarded in this Case. 2 Danv. Abr. 476. But if after Issue found for the Plaintiff at the Nisi prius, if a Day be given in Banco, and the Defendant makes Default, Judgment shall be given against him. Ibid. 477. To be dismissed without Day, is to be finally dismissed the Court: And when the Justices before whom Causes were depending, do not come on the Day to which they were continued, whether such Absence be occasioned by Death or otherwise, they are said to be put without Day: But may be revived or re-continued by Re-summmons, Re-attachment, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 300. Also by the Common Law, all Proceedings upon any Indictment, &c. whereon no Judgment had been given, were determined by the Demise of the King, and nothing remained but the Indictment, Original Writ, &c. which were put without Day, till recontinued by Re-attachment to bring in the Defendants to plead de novo: But this is remedied by Stat. 4 & 5 W. 3. c. 18. and 1 Ann. c. 8. by which such Process, &c. are to continue in the same Force after the King's Demise, as they would have done if he had lived.

Day-light. In Respect to Day-light, before Sun-rising and after Sun-setting, is accounted Part of the Day by the Common Law; as to Robberies committed in the Day-time, when the Hundred is liable. 7 Rep. 6. The Law regularly rejects all Fractions and Divisions of a Day, for the Incertainty. 5 Rep. 1. 1 Inst. 135. See Computation.

Days-man. In the North of England, an Arbitrator or elected Judge is usually termed a Dies-man or Days-man: And Dr. Hammond saith, that the Word Day in all Idioms signifies Judgment.

Daveria, Dairy, from Day, Deie, Sax. Dag, was at first the Daily Yield of Milch-Cows, or Profit made of them. In Lorrain and Champaign they use the Word Dayer, for the Meeting of the Day labouring Women to give an Account of their daily Work, and receive the Wages of it. A Dairy in the North is called Milkness; as the Dairy-maid is in all Parts a Milk maid: She is termed Androchia by Fleta, lib. 2. cap. 87. — Comptus Henrici D. & Johanne uxoris sue de omnibus Exitibus & Proventibus de Dayri Domini Prioris de Burncestre. Paroch. Antiq. 548.

Daywre of Land. As much arable Land as could be ploughed up in one Day's Work; or one Journey, as the Farmers still call it. Hence any young Artificer who assists a Master Workman in Daily Labour, is called a Journey-man.

— Confirmavi Abbati & Conventui de Rading, tres Acres & sexdecim Daywre, de terra Arabili. Cartular. Rading. M.S. f. 90.

Deadly Feud, Is a Profession of an irreconcilable Hatred, till a Person is revenged even by the Death of his Enemy. It is mentioned in Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 13. And such Enmity and Revenge were allowed by the old Saxon Laws; for where any Man was killed, if a pecuniary Satisfaction was not made to the Kindred of the Slain, it was lawful for them to take up Arms against the Murderer, and revenge themselves on him: And this is called Deadly Feud; which 'tis conjectured was the Original of an Appeal. Blount. Vide Feud.

Dead Pledge, (Mortuum vadum) A Pledge of Lands or Goods. See Mortgage.

Deafforested. This Word signifies Discharged from being Forest; or that is freed and exempted from the Forest Laws. 17 Car. 1. cap. 16. — Johannes Dei Gratia, &c. Volumus & firmiter precipimus quod Foresta de Brewood & homines in illa manentes & heredes eorum sint Deafforestati imperpetuum, &c. Dat. 13 Martii Anno Regni nostri 5. — There is likewise used the Word Deawarrenata, as well as Deafforestata; which is when a Warren is diswarrened, or broke up and laid in Common. King Henry the Third, in a Charter to the Citizens of London, grants to them, — Quod tota Warrena de Stanes cum pertin. suis sit Dewarrenata & Deafforestata in perpetuum. Placit. temp. Ed. 1. and Ed. 2. M.S. fol. 144.

Dean, (Decanus, from the Greek Δέκα, Decem) Is an Ecclesiastical Governor or Dignitary, so called as he presides over ten Canons or Prebendaries at the least. And we call him a Dean, that is next under the Bishop, and Chief of the Chapter, ordinarily in a Cathedral Church; the Rest of the Society being called Capitulum, the Chapter. As there are two Foundations of Cathedral Churches in England, the Old and the New, the New erected by King Hen. 8. so there are two Means of creating these Deans: For those of the old Foundation, as the Dean of St. Pauls, York, &c. are exalted to their Dignity much like Bishops; the King first sending out his Conge d'Esire to the Chapter, and the Chapter then chusing, the King afterwards yielding his Royal Assent, and the Bishop confirming him, and giving his Mandate to instal him: Those of the new Foundation, whose Deaneries were translated from Priories and Convents, to Dean and Chapter, as the Deans of Canterbury, Durham, Ely, Norwich, Winchester, &c. are donative, and installed by a shorter Course, by Virtue of the King's Letters Patent, without either Election or Confirmation; and are visitable only by the Lord Chancellor, or by special Commission from the King: But the Letters Patent are presented to the Bishop for Institution, and a Mandate for Instalment goes forth. 1 Inst. 95. Davis 46, 47. There are some Cathedral Churches which never had a Dean; as that of St. David and Landaff, where the Bishop is Head of the Chapter, and in his Absence the Archdeacon: And there is also a Dean without a Chapter, such as the Dean of Battel in Suffex: Then there is is a Dean without a Jurisdiction, as the Dean of the Chapel Royal, &c. In which Sense this Word is applied to the Chief of certain peculiar Churches or Chapels. Nec Collegio alicui praefecti, nec Jurisdictione ulla Donati, nomine tamen velut honoris gratia insignes. Spelm. There are four Sorts of Deans; a Dean who hath a Chapter, such as the Dean of Canterbury, &c. a Dean without a Chapter, as the Dean of Bocking, who hath a Court and Jurisdiction to hold Plea of all Ecclesiastical Matters arising in several Parishes within his Peculiar; and who is constituted by Commission from the Archbishop of Canterbury, like to the Dean of the Archies. The Dean of Battel, which was founded by William the First, styled the Conqueror, hath Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction within the Liberty of Battel, and is presentable by the Duke of Montague, and instituted and inducted by the Bishop of Chichester; but not subject to his Visitation. And Rural Deans, who had first Jurisdiction over Deaneries, as every Diocese is divided into Archdeaconries and Deaneries; but afterwards their Power was diminished, and they were only the Bishops Substitutes to grant Letters of Administration, Probate of Wills, &c. And now their Office is wholly extinguished, for the Archdeacons and Chancellors of Bishops, execute the Authority which rural Deans had thro' all the Dioceses of England. 1 Nelf. Abr. 596, 597. There are likewise Deputy Deans; and Commendatory Deans, who cannot confirm any Grants, &c. But a Commendatory Dean may with the Chapter chuse a Bishop. And if a Dean be elected Bishop, and before Consecration doth obtain Dispensation to hold his Deanery in Commendam, such Dean may well confirm, &c. for his old Title remains, and therefore Confirmations and other Acts done by him as Dean, are good in Law. Latch. 237, 250. Palm. Rep. 460. A Dean and Chapter are the Bishop's Council, to assist him in the Affairs of Religion, &c. to consult in deciding difficult Controversies, and consent to every Grant which the Bishop shall make to bind his Successors, &c. Though they have nothing to do with what he doth as Ordinary. Dyer 233. A Dean that is solely seised of a distinct Possession, hath an absolute Fee in him as well as a Bishop. 1 Inst. 325. As a Deanery is a spiritual Dignity, a Man cannot be Dean and Prebendary in the same Church. Dyer 273. See Chapter.

Death of Persons. There is a natural Death of a Man, and a civil Death: Natural, where Nature it self expires and extinguishes; and Civil is where a Man is not actually dead, but is adjudged so by Law; as where he enters into Religion, &c. If any Person for whose Life any Estate hath been granted, remain beyond Sea, or be otherwise absent seven Years, and no Proof made of his being Living, such Person shall be accounted naturally dead; though if the Party be after proved living at the Time of Ejection of any Person, then the Tenant, &c. may re-enter, and recover the Profits. Stat. 19 Car. 2. c. 6. And Persons in Reversion, or Remainder, &c. after the Death of another, upon Affidavit that they have Cause to believe such other dead, may move the Lord Chancellor to order the Person to be produced; and if he be not produced, he shall be taken as dead; and those Claiming may enter, &c. 6 Ann. c. 18. In Law Proceedings, the Death of either Party, between the Verdict and Judgment, shall not be Error; so Judgment be entered in two Terms. 17 Car.

2. c. 8. Where on the Death of Parties to a Suit, the Writ, &c. shall abate, see 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 10. and Abatement: Death of Judges, &c. Vide Day.

De bene esse. To take or to do any Thing de bene esse, is in Law Signification to accept or allow it as well done for the Present; but when it comes to be more fully examined or tried, to stand or fall according to the Merit of the Thing in its Nature. As in Chancery, upon Motion to have one of the less principal Defendants in a Cause examined as a Witness, the Court (not then thoroughly examining the Justice of it, or not hearing what may be objected on the other Side) will often order such a Defendant to be examined de bene esse, viz. That his Depositions shall be taken, and allowed or suppressed at the Hearing of the Cause, upon the full Debate of the Matter, as the Court shall think fit; but in the Interim, they have a Well-being, or conditional Allowance. 3 Cro. 68. Where a Complainant's Witnesses are aged, or sick, or going beyond Sea, whereby the Plaintiff thinks he is in Danger of losing their Testimony, the Court of Chancery will order them to be examined de bene esse; so as to be valid, if the Plaintiff hath not an Opportunity of examining them afterwards; as if they die before Answer, or do not return, &c. In either of which Cases, the Depositions taken may be made Use of in the Court of Chancery, or at Law: But if the Parties be alive and well, or do return, &c. after Answer, these Depositions are not to be of Force, for the Witnesses must be re-examined. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. pag. 232.

Debenture, A Soldier's Debenture (Stipendia Debita) is in the Nature of a Bond or Bill, to charge the Government to pay the Soldier-Creditor, or his Assigns, the Sum due upon the auditing the Account of his Arrears: It was first ordained by an Act made during Oliver's Usurpation, Anno 1649. and is mentioned in the Act of Oblivion, 12 Car. 2. cap. 8. They use Debentures likewise in the Exchequer; and Debentures are usually given to the King's Servants, for the Payment of their Wages, Board-Wages, &c. Also there are Custom-house Debentures, &c.

Debet & Detinet, Are Latin Words used in the Bringing of Writs and Actions: And an Action shall be always in the Debet & Detinet, when he who makes a Bargain or Contract, or lends Money to another, or he to whom the Bond is made, bringeth the Action against him who is bounden, or Party to the Contract or Bargain, or unto the Lending of the Money, &c. But if a Man sells to another a Horse, &c. if he brings Debt for the Horse, the Writ must be in the Detinet only. New Nat. Br. 265. In Debt against Husband and Wife, for a Debt due from the Wife before Coverture, the Writ shall be in the Debet & Detinet: So in Debt against or for the Successors, in Respect of Obligations made to the Predecessor, &c. Ibid. If an Heir be to bring Debt, it shall be in the Detinet: And if a Man be bound to another, and makes his Executor and dies, if the Money due in the Time of the Testator be refused to be paid by the Executor, the Action must be brought against him only in the Detinet; and so in all Actions brought by Executors as Executors, though the Duty accrued in their own Time. But Debet & Detinet lies by an Executor on his own Contract: Also if Lessee for Years makes his Executor and dies, for Rent due after the Testator's Death, there the Action shall be in the Debet & Detinet. It is the like Law in Cases of Administrators, as it is not certain what shall be recovered, only according to the Assets. 5 Rep. 31. An Executor upon a Devastavit shall be charged in the Debet & Detinet, the Action being upon a Judgment. 1 Lill. Abr. 399. Debt against an Heir is to be in the Debet & Detinet, or it will be naught. In Action grounded on Privity of Contract, or Action of Escape, it must be brought in the Detinet. Cro. Jac. 545, 685. See Executor.

Debet & solet, Are also formal Words made Use of in Writs: And some Writs have these Words in them, which ought not to be omitted. Likewise according to the Diversity of the Case, both Debet and solet are used, or Debet alone: As a Quod permittat may be in the Debet & solet, or in the Debet only, as the Demandant claims. And if a Person sues to recover any Right, whereof his Ancestor was disseised by the Tenant or his Ancestor, then he useth the Word Debet alone in his Writ, because his Ancestor only was disseised, and the Custom discontinued: But if he sue for any Thing that is now first of all denied him, then he useth Debet & solet, by Reason his Ancestor before him, and he himself usually enjoyed the Thing sued for, until the present Refusal of the Tenant. Reg. Orig. 140. The Writ of Seffa Molendini is a Writ of Right, in the Debet & solet, &c. F. N. B. 98.

Debt, (Debitum) Is an Action which lieth where a Man oweth another a certain Sum of Money, by Obligation, or Bargain for a Thing sold, or by Contract, &c. and the Debtor will not pay the Debt, at the Day agreed; then the Creditor shall have Action of Debt against him for the same. And if Money be due upon any Specialty, Action of Debt only lies; for no other Action may be brought for it: If a Man contract to pay Money for a Thing which he hath bought; and the Seller takes Bond for the Money, the Contract is discharged, so that he shall not have Action of Debt upon the Contract, but on the Bond. New Nat. Br. 268. If a Man be bound by Bond to pay 20 l. in Manner following, viz. 10 l. at one Day, and 10 l. at another Day, Action of Debt will not lie till after the last Day, it being an entire Duty: But if one binds himself to pay A. B. 10 l. at one Day, and 10 l. at another, after the first Day Action of Debt lies for 10 l. being a several Duty. 2 Danv. Abr. 501. On a Bond, Debt lies against the Heir of an Obligor, who has Lands by Descent, if the Executors have not Sufficient; and the Obligee may bring his Action against the Heir or Executor, although the Executor have Assets. Anderf. 7. Action of Debt lies not against Executors, upon a simple Contract made by the Testator. 9 Rep. 87. But Debt lies for the Arrearages of an Account against Executors, of Receipts by the Testator. 2 Danv. 497. Before the Statute 32 H. 8. c. 37. the Heirs, or Executors, &c. of a Man seised of a Rent-service, Rent-charge, &c. in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, had no Remedy for the Arrearages incurred in the Life-time of the Owner of such Rents: But by that Statute, the Executors and Administrators of Tenants in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, of any Rent, shall have Action of Debt for all Arrearages of Rent due in the Life of the Testator. 1 Inst. 162. 2 Danv. 492. A Feme Sole seised of a Rent in Fee, &c. which is behind and unpaid, takes Husband, and the Rent is behind again, and then the Wife dieth; the Husband by the Common Law should not have the Arrearages before the Marriage, but for the Arrears becoming due during the Coverture, he might have Action of Debt. Now by the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. the Husband shall have the Arrears due before Marriage, and he hath a double Remedy for the same. 1 Inst. 162. At the Common Law, Debt lieth not for Rent upon a Lease for Life, (though it doth on a Lease for Years) but the Remedy is Assise, if the Plaintiff have Seisin, or by Distress. 3 Rep. 65. But by Stat. 8 Ann. cap. 17. any Person having Rent in Arrear upon any Lease for Life or Lives, may bring Action of Debt for such Rent, as where Rent is due on a Lease for Years. Action of Debt will lie against a Lessee, for Rent due after the Assignment of the Lease; for the personal Privity of Contract remains, notwithstanding the Privity of Estate is gone. 3 Rep. 22. But after the Death of the Lessee, it is then a real Contract, and runs with the Land. Cro. Eliz. 555. When a Lease is ended, the Duty in Respect of the Rent remains, and Debt lieth by Reason of Privity of Contract between Lessor and Lessee. 2 Cro. 227. 1 Nelf. Abr. 604. In some Cases, Action of Debt will lie, although there be no Contract betwixt the Party that brings the Action, and him against whom brought; for there may be a Duty created by Law, for which Action will lie. 2 Saund. 343, 366. Action of Debt lies against a Gaoler for permitting a Prisoner committed in Execution to escape; because thereupon the Law makes the Gaoler Debtor: But where the Party is not in Execution, there Action on the Case only lies for Damages suffered by the Escape. 1 Saund. 218. 1 Lill. Abr. 402. Debt lies against a Sheriff, for Money levied in Execution. 1 Lill. 403. If I agree with a Taylor for a certain Price to make me a Suit of Clothes, the Taylor may have a general Action of Debt against me for the Money; but if the Price is not agreed on, there lies Action of the Case only, or special Action of Debt upon the special Contract, which the Law may imply on a Quantum Meruit. Wood's Inst. 544. And Debt may be made Action on the Case, by proving Money lent, or Goods delivered, &c. whereupon Promise of Payment is implied in Law. A Man owes another a Sum of Money, and hath his Note under Hand, without Seal, Action of Debt on a Mutuuus lies; but the Defendant may wage his Law: An Action of the Case brought upon Promise of Payment, the Defendant cannot wage his Law. 4 Rep. 93. An Indebitatus generally is not good in Debt, without shewing for what indebted. Action of Debt lies upon a parol Contract, and so doth Action on the Case. 1 Lill. 403. If Goods or Money are delivered to a third Person for my Use, I may have Action of Debt or Account for them. 2 Danv. 404. Where Money is delivered to a Person, to be redelivered again, the Property is altered, and Debt lies: But where a Horse, or any Goods are thus delivered, there Detinue lies, because the Property is not altered; and the Thing is known, whereas Money is not. Owen 86. 1 Nelf. Abr. 603. Action of Debt lies against the Husband, for Goods which were delivered or sold to the Wife, if they come to the Use of the Husband. 1 Lill. 400. If one delivers Meat, Drink, or Clothes, to an Infant, and he promises to pay for them, Action of Debt or on the Case, will lie against the Infant. Tho'

Tho' Debt may not be brought on an Account stated with an Infant. And what is deliver'd, must be a-verr'd to be for the necessary Use of the Infant.
1 Lill. Abr. 401. An Attorney shall have Action of Debt against his Client, for Money, which he hath paid to any Person for the Client, for Costs of Suit, or unto his Counsel, &c. A Person may have Debt upon an Arbitrament; but not for Debt referr'd to Arbitration, which must be Action on the Case: Also Debt lies for Money recover'd upon a Judgment, &c. New Nat. Br. 267, 268, &c. If a Man recovers Debt or Damages in London, an Action brought there by the Custom of the City, which lies not at Common Law; when it is become a Debt by the Judgment, Action of Debt lies in the Courts at Westminster upon this Judgment. 2 Danv. 499. Action of Debt will lie for Breach of a By-Law; or for Amercement in a Court-Leet, &c. 1 Lill. 400. And Action of Debt is sometimes grounded on an Act of Parliament; as upon the 2 Ed. 6. cap. 13. for not setting out Tithes; the 27 Eliz. cap. 13. against the Hundred for a Robbery, &c. For Debt to a Bishop, Parson, &c. after his Death, his Executors shall have the Action: But of a Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty, &c. the Successors are intitled to the Action of Debt. F. N. B.
120. Action of Debt lieth on a Recognizance; so upon a Statute-Merchant, it being in the Nature of a Bond or Obligation: But it is otherwise in Case of a Statute-Staple. 2 Danv. 497. In Debt on single Bill, &c. the Defendant may plead Payment (before the Action brought) in Bar:
And pending an Action, on Bond, &c. the Defendant may bring in Principal Interest and Costs; and the Court shall give Judgment to di-charge the Defendant. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16.

Debt to the King. Under this Word Debitum, all Things due to the King are comprehended;
as all Rents, Fines, Issues, Amerciaments, and other Duties received or levied by the Sheriff; for Debt in the larger Sense, signifies whatever any Man owes. 2 Inst. 198. The King's Debt is to be satisfied before that of a Subject; and until his Debt be paid, he may protect the Debtor from the Arrest of others. 1 Inst. 130. But by Statute, notwithstanding the King's Protection, Creditors may proceed to Judgment against his Debtor, with a cesset Executio till the King's Debt be paid 25
Ed. 3. Lands, &c. of the King's Debtor and Accountant, may be sold as well after his Death, as in his Life-time: But if the Accountant or Debtor to the King had a Quietus during his Life, his Heir shall be discharged of the Debt. 27 Eliz.
cap. 3. By the Common Law, the King for his Debt had Execution of the Body, Lands, and Goods of the Debtor: But by Magna Charta ca. 8.
the King's Debt shall not be levied on Lands, where the Goods and Chattles of the Debtor are sufficient to levy the Debt; for in such Case, the Sheriff ought not to extend the Lands and Tenements of the King's Debtor, or of his Heir, &c.
2 Inst. 19. Also Pledges shall not be distrained, when the Principal is sufficient: Though in both Cases, it must be made appear to the Sheriff; in the one, that there are Goods and Chattles enough, and in the other, that the Sheriff may levy the King's Debt on the Principal. Ibid. Sheriffs having receiv'd the King's Debts, upon their next Account are to discharge the Debtors, on Pain to forfeit treble Value; and the Sheriffs are to give Tallies to the King's Debtors on Payment. Stat. 3 Ed. 1.

Debtors. By Statute 8 & 9 W. 3. ca. 18. Two Thirds in Number and Value of Creditors might make Compositions with Debtors, and bind all the rest; making Oath how their Debts became due, &c. But this Act was repealed by 9 & 10 W. 3.
And there have been several Statutes for discharging poor Insolvent Debtors out of Prison, where they have had no Estate or Effects to pay their Creditors, &c. See Prisoners.

Deceit, (Deceptio) Is a subtle Trick or Device, whereunto may be drawn all manner of Craft and Collusion, used to deceive and defraud another, by any Means whatsoever, which hath no other or more proper Name than Deceit to distinguish the Offence. West. Symb. Sect. 68. And there is a Writ called Breve Deceptione, that lies for one that receives Injury or Damage from him that doth any Thing deceitfully in the Name of another Person: Which Writ is either original, or judicial. Reg. Orig. 112. Old Nat. Br. 50.
Deceit is an Offence at Common Law, and by Statute: And all Practices of defrauding or endeavouring to defraud another of his Right, are punishable by Fine and Imprisonment; and if for Cheating, Pillory, &c. Serjeants, Counsellors, Attornies and others, doing any Manner of Deceit, are to be imprisoned a Year and a Day, &c.
Stat. 3 Ed. 1. cap. 29. If a Fine be levied by Deceit; or if one recover Land by Deceit, the Fine, and the Recovery, shall be void. 3 Rep. 77. And if a Man be Attorney for another in a real Action against the Demandant, and afterwards by Covin between the Attorney and the Demandant, the Attorney makes Default, by which the Land is lost, the Tenant who lost the Land shall have a Writ of Deceit against the Attorney. F. N. B. 96.
In a Præcipe quod reddat, if the Sheriff return the Tenant summoned, where he was not summoned, by which the Defendant loseth his Land by Default at the Grand Cape returned; the Tenant shall have a Writ of Deceit against him who recover'd, and against the Sheriff for his False Return; and by that Writ the Tenant shall be restored unto his Land again: Also the Sheriff shall be punished for his Falsity. Ibid. 97. If any one forge a Statute, &c. in my Name, and such a Capias thereupon, for which I am arrested; I shall have a Writ of Deceit against him that forged it, and against him who sued forth the Writ of Capias, &c. Ibid. And if a Person procure another to sue an Action against me to trouble me, I shall have a Writ of Deceit. There are many Frauds and De-ceits provided against by Statute, relating to Artificers, Bakers, Brewers, Vintners, false Weights and Measures, &c. which are liable to Penalties and Punishment in Proportion to the Offence committed. And Writ of Deceit lies in various Cases for not performing a Bargain; or not selling good Commodities, &c. 1 Inst. 357.
See Action on the Case.

Decem Tales, Is when a full Jury doth not appear at a Trial at Bar; then a Writ goes to the Sheriff Apponere Decem Tales, &c. whereby a supply is made of Jurymen to proceed in the Trial.

Decies tantum, Is a Writ that lies against a Furor, who hath taken Money of either Party for giving his Verdict; so called, because it is to recover ten Times as much as he took: And every Person that will may bring this Writ and recover the same, one Half whereof shall be to the Prosecutor, and the other to the King. This Writ alfolies against Embraceors that procure such an Inquest; who shall be further punished by Imprisonment for a Year. Reg. Orig. 188. F. N. B. 171. Stat. 38 Ed. 3. cap. 13. But Decies tantum doth not lie against the Embraceor, if he embrace and take no Money; for he ought to take Money, and also Embrace. Yet it lies against the Jurors, although they do not give a Verdict, if they take Money; and so, 'tis said, if they give a true Verdict, Decies tantum lieth, if they take Money. Dyer 95. New Nat. Br. 380.

Decimation, (Decimatio) The punishing every tenth Soldier by Lot, was termed Decimatio Legionis: It also signifies Tithing, or Paying a tenth Part. There was a Decimation during the Time of the Usurper 1655. which will not easily be forgotten.

Deciners, Decenniers, or Doziners, (Decennarii) Derived from the Fr. Dizeine, i. e. Decas, Ten; signify in our ancient Law; such as were wont to have the Oversight of the Friburghs, or Views of Frank-Pledge, for the Maintenance of the King's Peace; and the Limits or Compasses of their Jurisdiction, being the Circuit of the Frank-Pledge, was called Decenna, because it commonly consisted of ten Households; as every Person bound for himself and his Neighbours to keep the Peace, was stiled Decennier. Bract. lib. 3. Tract. 2. ca. 15. These seemed to have large Authority in the Time of the Saxons, taking Knowledge of Causes within their Circuits, and redressing Wrongs by way of Judgment, and compelling Men thereunto, as appears in the Laws of K. Edw. the Confessor, published by Lambard, Numb. 32. But of late Times, Decennier is not used for the chief Man of a Dozein; but he that is sworn to the King's Peace, and by Oath of Loyalty to his Prince, is settled in the Society of a Dozein. A Dozein seemed to extend so far as a Leet extendeth; because in Leets the Oath of Loyalty is administered by the Steward, and taken by all such as are twelve Years old, and upwards, dwelling within the Precinct of the Leet where they are sworn. F. N. B. 161. There are now no other Dozeins but Leets; and there is a great Diversity between the ancient and these modern Times, in this Point of Law and Government. 2 Inst. 73.

Declaration, (Declaratio, Narratio) Is a Shewing in Writing the Cause of Complaint of the Plaintiff in an Action against the Defendant, wherein the Party is supposed to have received some Wrong. And this ought to be plain and certain, because it impeacheth the Defendant, and compels him to answer hereunto: It must set forth the Plaintiff's and Defendant's Names, the Nature and Cause of the Action, the Manner thereof Time and Place, and the Damage received. 1 Inst. 17. A Count or Declaration ought to contain Demonstration, Declaration, and Conclusion: In Demonstration are included three Things; Quis queritur, contra quem, & pro qua Causa: In Declaration there ought to be comprised, Quomodo inter partes Actio accrevit, quando & qua die, anno & loco, & cui dabitur: And in the Conclusion should be averred and offered to prove the Suit and Damage, &c. sustained. Terms de Ley 222. A Declaration is an Exposition of the Writ, with the Addition of Time, Circumstances, &c. and must be true and clear, for the Court is not to take Things in it by Implication: But it is not necessary to set forth Matters of Fact, as in a Bill in Chancery, &c. because they are to be tried by a Jury. Wood's Inst. 582. A Declaration in English is not good: For it is required to be in Latin; and false Latin will not hurt a Declaration. Also where Words are significant, and have the Countenance of Latin, by adding an Anglice to them, they will be good. 10 Rep. 133. In Action of Debt, upon a Bond, the Plaintiff in his Declaration must alledge a Place where the Bond was made, because the Jury should come from that Place; and if this be omitted, the Declaration is ill. Dyer 15, 39. 1 Nelf. Abr. 619. In Action of Covenant, no more of the Deed need be mentioned in the Declaration, than the Covenant where the Breach is assigned: And if a Defendant pleads Non est factum to a Deed, he allows a Covenant therein to be broken, as laid in the Declaration, and makes the Declaration good, though the Breach be too generally assigned. 2 Cro. 369. In Slander there should be no more Inducement than is necessary: The like is to be observed in Actions upon general Statutes, concluding contra formam Statuti, &c. but in Declarations for Words, the Words spoke are to be laid expressly and positively; not with an hac verba vel consimilia, nor with a Quorum tenor sequitur, &c. Cro. Eliz. 645, 857. 5 Mod. 72. And where the Plaintiff declares on, and recites a Statute, he must recite it truly, and 'tis erroneous to misrecite it; though as to the Substance of the Declaration, the Plaintiff might have omitted to recite it all. 1 Nelf. 616. In Action on the Case upon Assumpsit, the Plaintiff is to declare upon the whole Promise made, and not on a Part of it; or on Trial he will be nonsuited. 1 Danv. Abr. 266, &c. If one declare upon an Obligation, with a hic in Curia Probat, he must on Oyer pray'd of it, shew the Obligation, or the Declaration will not be good. And a Plaintiff declaring as Executor or Administrator, ought to set forth the Probate of the Will, and Letters of Administration granted, with a Profert in Curia; or the Declaration will be naught. 2 Lill. Abr. 412. Where there are two Counts in a Declaration, for Things of the same Kind, and not averred to be different, it is not good; for the Defendant is twice charged, for the same Thing: But on Arrest of Judgment in such a Case, it was adjudged good after Verdict, and the Court will intend them to be the same. 1 Salk. 213. If a Declaration is bad, and the Defendant demurs, the Plaintiff may set it right in a second Action; but if the Defendant do not take Advantage of it, but pleads in Bar, and the Plaintiff proceeds to Issue thereon, if the Right is found for the Defendant, the Plaintiff is estopp'd by the Verdict from bringing a new Action: And so it is if he had demurred to the Plea in Bar. 1 Mod. 20, 207. Where a Declaration is defective, it is sometimes aided by the Statutes of Jeofails, &c. but they help only Matters of Form, not Matters of Substance; for Uncertainty in a Declaration, which is Matter of Substance, is not aided by Statute after Verdict, as in Case of Trespass for taking Fish, where their Number or Nature are not set forth. 5 Rep. 35. The Plaintiff after the Return of the Writ, hath two Terms to exhibit his Declaration against the Defendant, that Term being reckoned one wherein the Writ was returnable: And if no Declaration comes in before the Rising of the Court, the last Day of the second Term, on a Rule of Court given, the Plaintiff shall be nonsuited, and the Defendant sign a Non Pros. whereupon he shall have Costs: If the Defendant appears in Person, the Plaintiff is to declare clare in three Days after Appearance in B. R. And in other Courts which fit not De Die in Diem, at the next Court, by Stat. 8 Eliz. cap. 2. The Plaintiff's Attorney is to file his Warrant the Term wherein he declares. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. If one be in Custody of the Marshal of the Court, any Plaintiff may file a Declaration against him, and he is obliged to plead thereto; it is the same when he is out upon Bail, any other may declare against him: For when a Man is in Custody of the Law, he is bound to answer every one's Suit; and on Hab. Corp. a Stranger to the Writ by which the Prisoner is arrested, may take Notice of the Prisoner when he is turned over to the Marshal, though at the Suit of another, and declare against him, without taking out Process. 1 Lill. 413. By Statute, when a Defendant is taken or charged in Custody, upon any Writ out of the Courts at Westminster, or imprisoned for Want of Sureties for Appearance, the Plaintiff must declare against him before the End of the next Term, and cause a Copy to be deliver'd to the Prisoner or Gaoler; to which Declaration, the Prisoner is to plead, or the Plaintiff shall have Judgment. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 21. But if the Declaration be not enter'd, or left in the Office, before the End of the next Term; and Affidavit made thereof, and filed, before the End of twenty Days after, &c. the Prisoner, on entering his Appearance, shall be discharged by Superseas. 8 & 9 W. 3. If a Person is in Custody of the Marshal, &c. and a Plaintiff would charge him either with an Action, or Execution, (if in Term-time) he must file a Bill against him, and deliver a Declaration to the Turnkey, &c. and he shall lie in Custody two Terms, &c. but if in Vacation, the Plaintiff is to go to the Marshal's Book in the Office, and make an Entry quod Defenden. remaneat in Custodia ad festum A. B. &c. 1 Salk. 213. All Declarations are to be filed; for before filed, they are not of Record to warrant a Judgment: And if the Plaintiff's Attorney, cannot find the Defendant's Attorney to deliver him the Declaration, filing it in the Office, will be a good Delivery; and if the Defendant do not plead, Judgment shall be had against him. Pasch. 13 Car. B. R. On filing Declarations, Copies thereof are served on the Defendants, or their Attornies, &c. And by an Order of all the Judges, Anno 12 W. 3. the Plaintiff's Attorney is not obliged to deliver the Defendant's Attorney the original Declaration; but instead of it, is to deliver, a true Copy of the Declaration; upon Delivery or Tender whereof, the Defendant's Attorney shall pay for such Copy after the Rate of 4d. per Sheet, &c. and if any Person refuse to pay for the Copy tender'd, the said Copy is to be left in the Office, with the Clerk that keeps the Files of Declarations, and thereupon the Plaintiff's Attorney giving Rules to plead, may for Want of a Plea sign Judgment; and before any Plea shall be received, the Defendant's Attorney is to pay for the Copy of the Declaration. 1 Lill. 417. A Plaintiff's Attorney, may amend his Declaration in B. R. in Matter of Form, after the general Issue pleaded, before Entry thereof, without paying Costs, or giving Imparlance: But if he amend in Substance, he is to pay Costs, or give Imparlance: And if he amend in Substance, after a special Plea pleaded, though he would give Imparlance, he must pay Costs. 1 Lill. Abr. 409. A Mistake in a Declaration the Plaintiff may amend in C. B. on Notice before the Effoin-Day, and the Defendant shall have no Advantage of it: Also before Demurrer, or Issue joined, the Plaintiff may amend paying 13s. 4d. Costs; and force the Defendant to plead presently, or give him a further Imparlance without paying Costs: But after Demurrer, or Issue joined, and when the Pleadings are entered on the Roll, the Plaintiff cannot amend his Declaration; but is to enter a Discontinuance, and proceed de novo. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 147. On a Latitat in B. R. you may declare against the Defendant in as many Actions as you think fit; but you must have one Original, for every Action in C. B. The Declaration is grounded upon the Writ in the Common Pleas, and Bill of Middlesex in the King's Bench: And in C. B. it is usual to declare in Actions on Quare Clausum fregit, as is practised on a Latitat in B. R. 2 Ventr. 259. One may not regularly declare in B. R. against a Person that is not in Custodia Mareschalli, or hath not filed Bail; unless he be a privileged Person. 21 Car. B. R. If a Declaration begins, Queritur de Placito Transgr. pro eo quod, &c. it may be a Declaration in Case, or it will serve for either Trespas, or Case. Cro. Car. 325. The Plaintiff's Attorney is not obliged to set his Hand to his Declaration; for the Defendant's Attorney must receive it without, if he knows him to be the Attorney in the Cause.

Decretals, (Decretales) Are a Volume or Books of the Canon Law, so called, containing the Decrees of sundry Popes; or a Digest of the Canons of all the Councils that pertained to one Matter under one Head. See Canon Law.

Dedhana, Ded-bane, Sax. An actual Homicide, or Manslaughter. Leg. H. 1. c. 85.

Dedi, Is a Warranty in Law; as if it be said in a Deed or Conveyance, Hath Given, &c. to A. B. it is a Warranty to him and his Heirs. Co. Lit. 304.

Dedication Day, (Festum Dedicationis) The Feast of Dedication of Churches, or rather the Feast Day of the Saint and Patron of a Church; which was celebrated not only by the Inhabitants of the Place, but by those of all the neighbouring Villages, who usually came thither; and such Assemblies were allowed as lawful: It was usual for the People to feast and drink on those Days; and in many Parts of England, they still meet every Year

Year in Villages for this Purpose, which Days are called Feasts or Wakes.

Dedimus Potestatem, Is a Writ or Commission given to one or more private Persons, for the speeding some Act appertaining to a Judge, or some Court: And it is granted most commonly upon Suggestion, that the Party who is to do something before a Judge, or in Court, is so weak that he cannot travel; as where a Person lives in the Country, to take an Answer in Chancery; to examine Witnesses in a Cause depending in that Court; to levy a Fine in the Common Pleas, &c. F. N. B.

Dedimus Potestatem de Attoznato faciundo. As the Words of Writs do command the Defendant to appear, &c. anciently the Judges would not suffer the Parties to make Attornies in any Action or Suit, without the King's Writ of Dedimus Potestatem, to receive their Attornies: But now by Statutes, the Plaintiff or Defendant may make Attornies in Suits without such Writs. New Nat. Br. 55, 56.

Deed, (Factum) Is an Instrument in Parchment or Paper, but chiefly in Parchment, comprehending a Contract or Bargain, between Party and Party; or an Agreement of the Parties thereto, for the Matters therein contained: And it consists of three principal Points, Writing, Sealing, and Delivery; Writing, to express the Contents; Sealing, to testify the Consent of the Parties; and Delivery, to make it binding and perfect. Terms de Ley. Of Deeds there are two Sorts, Deeds indented, and Deeds Poll; which Names principally arise from the Form of them, the one being cut in and out at Top dentwise, and the other plain: And a Deed indented is defined to be a Deed consisting of two Parts, or more, for there are Deeds Tripartite, Quadripartite, Sextipartite, &c. in which it is expressed, that the Parties have to every Part thereof interchangeably set their several Seals; and for that it contains more Parts than one, each Part is indented, or cut one of them into the other, that thereby it may appear they belong to one Business or Contract. West. Symb. Sect. 47. A Deed Poll is a Deed testifying that only one of the Parties to the Agreement hath put his Seal to the same, where such Party is the Principal or only Person, whose Consent or Act is necessary to the Deed: And it is therefore a plain Deed, without indenting; and is used when the Vendor, for Example, only seals, and there is no need of the Vendee's Sealing a Counterpart, because the Nature of the Contract is such, as it requires no Covenant from the Vendee, &c. Co. Lit. 55. All Deeds are either indented, or Poll: The several Parts of Deeds by Indenture, are belonging to the Feoffor, Grantor, or Lessor, who have one; the Feoffee, Grantee, or Lessee, who have another; and some other Persons, as Trustees, &c. a Third, &c. and the Deed Poll, which is single, and of but one Part, is deliver'd to the Feoffee, or Grantee, &c. There are several Kinds of Deeds, by which Lands pass from one Man to another; as Deeds of Bargain and Sale, Feoffment, Lease and Release, Indentures to lead the Uses of Fines and Recoveries, Settlements, Leases, Assignments, Exchanges, Mortgages, &c. and Deeds have several formal Parts, viz. The Premises, Habendum, Reddendum, Condition, Covenants, Warranty, Date, Sealing, &c. the Premises set forth the proper Names of the Parties, with their Additions of Place and Quality, and comprehends the Certainty of the Lands or Tenements to be convey'd, with the Consideration of the Deed, as Money, natural Love, &c. the Premises also contain the Exceptions, if there be any out of the Land granted; as of Timber, Mines, &c. and in many Deeds there may be an Occasion of a Recital of former Deeds in the Premises, particularly in Assignments of Leases, Mortgages, &c. the Habendum names the Certainty of the Estate granted, as for what Time the Grantee is to have it, and to what Use: And it sometimes qualifies the Estate, so that the general Implication of it, which by Construction of Law passes in the Premises, by the Habendum may be controlled; but not if the Estate is express'd in the Premises. Likewise an Habendum may sometimes explain the Premises, to prevent Wrong; and sometimes the Premises are thereby enlarged. A Freehold cannot be granted by Deed with Habendum at a Day to come: And a Deed or Lease, Habendum from henceforth, includes the Day on which it was dated: But Habendum à Die Datus excludes it. The Reddendum is that Clause in the Deed, which reserveth some new Thing to the Grantor; as Rent, Suit, Service, &c. and is usually made by the Words Yielding, Paying, Doing, &c. A Lessor cannot reserve to any but himself, his Heirs, &c. nor can he reserve to himself Parcel of the annual Profits, as the Herbage of the Land, &c. for that would be repugnant to the Grant, it being a Part thereof. Conditions and Covenants in Deeds, are for the Holding, or not holding of the Estate granted on Performance of some Act: And a Condition relating to a real Estate, is a Quality annexed by him that hath the Estate, Interest or Right in the same, whereby the Estate granted may be defeated, enlarged, or created, upon an uncertain Event. Conditions are express'd by these Words, viz. upon Condition, provided, so that, &c. And provided always, and it is covenanted, &c. is a Condition, by Force of the Proviso, and a Covenant by Virtue of the other Words; tho' sometimes a Proviso shall amount to a Covenant, and sometimes be taken for a Limitation, Exception, Reservation, Explanation, &c. The Warranty in Deeds is to secure the Estate to the Grantee and his Heirs, &c. and is a Covenant real, annexed to the Lands granted, by which the Grantor and his Heirs are bound to warrant the same to the Grantee and his Heirs, and that they shall quietly hold and enjoy it; or upon Voucher, &c. the Grantor shall yield other Lands, to the Value of what shall be evicted, &c. Where a Feoffor grants away all his Estate in the Land, and is not bound to warrant the Title, but the Feoffee is to defend it at his Peril; the Feoffee shall have all the Deeds, as Incidents to the Land, although not granted in express Words: But where the Feoffor warrants the Land, it is otherwise, the Feoffor shall have them to defend the Title; and the Feoffee must trust to his Warranty, and have only such Deeds as concern the Possession, &c. It hath been adjudged, that what is written in a Deed after In Witness whereof, &c. is as well Part of the Deed, as what is written before. 1 Inst. 6, 47, 201, 365. Plowd. 152. Wood's Inst. 224, 225. &c. 1 Nels. Abr. 624, &c. Deeds of Bargain and Sale are to be enrolled by Stat. 27 Hen. 8. And all Deeds are to be registered in the Counties of York, and Middlesex. Stat. 2 & 6 & 7 Ann. A Deed may be good without all the orderly and formal Parts; but without Delivery by the Party himself, or his Attorney lawfully au-authorized, to the Party to whom made, or some other to his Use, it is no Deed: And the Delivery may be either absolute, or on Condition. 1 Inst. 35. 2 Rep. 5. If a Deed sealed lieth on the Table, and the Grantor saith to the Grantee, Take that as my Deed, or this will serve, &c. it is a good Delivery: But if it be thus left when sealed, &c. and the Party to whom made takes it up, this is no Delivery, without some Words. Thowhere Parties have come for that Purpose, and done every Thing but Delivery, it has been adjudged a good Delivery in Law. Cro. El. 7. 1 Leon. 140. A Deed sealed and delivered, 'tis said may be good without signing; for the Seal is the essential Part of the Deed: But 'tis usual to have Deeds signed; and there must be Witnesses to the Sealing and Delivery, who are to indorse or underwrite their Names thereon. 1 Inst. 7. 10 Rep. 93. If a Writing is not sealed, it cannot be a Deed: And if the Print of the Seal be utterly defaced, the Deed is insufficient, so that it cannot be pleaded; but it may be given in Evidence. 3 Inst. 169. 5 Rep. 23. If a Deed be read false to an illiterate Person, tho' he sign, seal, and deliver it, it shall not be his Deed, to bind him: But if he does not require the Deed to be read, and seal and deliver it, he is bound by the same. 2 Rep. 3. 2 Roll. Abr. 28. In Deeds the Consideration is a principal Thing to give them Effect: And the Foundation of Deeds ought always to be honest. False Latin, or false English, will not make a Deed void: But Rasure or Interlineation in a material Part, will render a Deed void, unless some Memorandum be made thereof on the Back of the Deed, testifying its being done before Sealing. 1 Roll. Rep. 40. If Words are blotted out in a Deed, by a Grantee or Lessee himself, although it be not in a Place material, it will make the Deed void. Dyer 261. And where an Estate cannot have its Essence without a Deed, there if the Deed is rased in any material Part, after the Delivery, it makes the Estate void: But if the Estate may have Essence without a Deed, then notwithstanding it is created by Deed, and that Deed is rased, it shall not destroy the Estate, but the Deed. 1 Nelf. Abr. 625. Where a Chose in Action is created by Deed, the Destruction of such Deed is the Destruction of the Duty it self; as in Case of a Bond, Bill, &c. but it is not so, where an Estate or Interest is created by a Deed. 3 Salk. 120. Deeds, if fraudulently made; when got by the Corrupt Agreement, as on usurious Contract; and when made by Force or Duress, &c. are void: So they are for Uncertainty; and by Reason of Infancy, Coverture, or other Disability in the Makers, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 28. 1 Inst. 253. 11 Rep. 27. If all the Parts of a Deed may by Law stand together, no one Part of the same shall make the whole void. And if a Deed by any Construction of Law, can be construed to have legal Operation, the Law will not make it utterly void, though it may not operate according to the Purport of the Deed: Also the Law will transpose and marshal Clauses in Deeds, to come at their true Meaning; but not to confound them. Where the Words of a Deed may have a double Intendment, one standing with Law, and the other contrary to it; the Intendment that standeth with Law shall be taken. 1 Lill. Abr. 421. 1 Inst. 42. 217. There are four Grounds for the Exposition of Deeds. 1. That they may be beneficial to the Taker. 2. That where the Words may be employ'd to some Intent, they shall never be void. 3. That the Words be construed according to the Intention of the Parties, and not otherwise; and the Intent of the Parties shall take Effect, if it may possibly stand with Law. 4. That they are to be consonant to the Rules of the Law. And Deeds are to have a reasonable Exposition, without Injury against the Grantor, to the greatest Advantage of the Grantee. They are to be expounded upon the Whole, so that all the Parts shall stand: And if the second Part contradicts the first, such second Part shall be void; but if the latter Part expounds or explains the former, which it may do, both of them shall stand together. Plowd. 160. Raym. 142. 6 Rep. 36. 1 Inst. 313. 1 Roll. Rep. 375. The first Deed of a Person, and last Will, stand in Force. In Deeds indented, all Parties are estopped, or concluded, so say any Thing against what is contained in the Deed. 1 Inst. 45. And where a Deed is by Indenture between Parties, none can have an Action upon that Deed, but he who is a Party to it; but where 'tis a Deed Poll, one may covenant with another who is not a Party to it, to do certain Acts, for the Non-performance whereof he may bring an Action. 2 Lev. 74. Where a Man justifies Title under a Deed, he must produce the Deed. 10 Rep. 88. If a Deed is alledged in Pleading, it must be shewed to the Court, that the Court may judge whether there are sufficient Words to make a good Contract: And when it is shewn to the Court, the Deed shall remain in Court all the Term, in the Hands of the Custos Brevium; but at the End of the Term, it shall be delivered to the Party. If the Deed is denied, it must remain in Court till the Plea is determined. Wood 235. A Deed set forth with a Proferat hic in Curia, remains in Court in Judgment of Law all that Term; and any Person may during that Time have Benefit by it, though he hath it not ready to shew. 5 Rep. 74. 1 Nelf. 625. Deeds sealed and delivered cannot be pleaded, &c. if not stamp'd according to Law. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 21. Every Deed that is pleaded, shall be intended to be a Deed Poll; except it be alledged to be indented: And if it begins, This Indenture made, &c. though it be not indented, it may be a good Deed Poll. 5 Rep. 20. A Deed Poll commonly begins thus: To all People to whom these Presents shall come, &c. Or Know all Men by these Presents, &c. See Accomplish'd Conveyance. Vol. 1. Edit. 2.

Deemsters, From the Sax. Dema, a Judge or Umpire, are a Kind of Judges in the Ile of Man, who without Process, or any Charge to the Parties decide all Controversies in that Island; and they are chosen from among themselves, Camd. Brit.

Deer-fold, A Park or Deer-fold; Sax. Deor, Fera, Fald, and Stabulum. Cowel.

Deer-hays, Are Engines, or great Nets made of Cords, to catch Deer; and no Person not having a Park, &c. of his own, shall keep any of these Nets, under the Penalty of 40*s.* a Month. Stat. 19 H. 7. cap. 11.

Deer-stealers. There are several Laws, for the Punishment of Deer-stealers; as by 3 Jac. 1. cap. 13. None shall kill or chase any Deer, &c. in any Park, or inclos'd Ground, on Pain of suffering three Months Imprisonment, and to pay treble Damages: And Persons not having 40*l.* per ann. in Lands, or worth 200*l.* in Goods, &c. are not to use any Gun, Bow, Dog, &c. to kill Deer; and their Guns, &c. may be taken from them. By the 13 Car. 2. cap. 10. It is ordained that that whoever shall course, kill, hunt, or take away any Red or Fallow Deer, from any Park, &c. shall be liable to a Penalty of 20*l.* and the Stat. 3 & 4 M. & M. c. 10. inflicts a Penalty of 20*l.* for unlawful Hunting and Courfing of any Deer; and 30*l.* for Taking, Wounding, or Killing, to be levied by Distress; which is to be divided into three Parts; one whereof to go to the Informer, another to the Poor, and the other to the Owner of the Deer; and if no Distress can be had, the Offenders shall be imprison'd a Year, and set on the Pillory, &c. Pulling down Pales or Walls of Parks, &c. where Deer are inclosed, by this Act is punished within three Months Imprisonment: And the Offences are determined by Justices of Peace of the County where committed: Also by 5 Geo. c. 15 & 28. Persons guilty of Deer-stealing, may be indicted thereof before a Judge of Gaol-Delivery, and in that Case, be transported to the Plantations for seven Years: And Persons otherwise convicted before they are discharged, are to enter into Bond of 50*l.* Penalty to the Person injured for future good Behaviour. Keepers of Parks, &c. killing Deer without Consent of the Owners, incur a Forfeiture of 50*l.* and others pulling down Walls and Fences of Parks, are liable to the Penalties inflicted by 3 & 4 W. & M. for killing of Deer. Thus stood our Laws till the great Insolencies of the Waltham Blacks made a further Provision necessary; when by Statute 9 Geo. ca. 22. it was enacted, That if any Persons armed with Swords, Fire-Arms, or other Weapons, and having their Faces black'd, or being otherwise disguised, shall appear in any Forest, Park, &c. and unlawfully hunt or kill any Deer; rob any Warren, &c. or shall set Fire to any House, or shoot at any Person in any Dwelling House, or other Place; or send any Letter, without a Name subscribed, or with a fictitious Name, demanding Money of any Person, &c. they shall be guilty of Felony without Benefit of Clergy: And 50*l.* Reward is given by this Statute, for the Apprehension of the Offenders. Before the Charta de Foresta 9 Hen. 3. to hunt the King's Deer, in any Forest or Park was Felony; but that Charter ordained that none should lose either Life or Member, for killing the King's Deer. 2 Roll. Rep. 120. So that we may observe there is some Agreement between our ancient Laws and modern Statutes. A Person was convicted upon the Statute of Deer-stealing, and it appearing by the Conviction, that the Deer were not in a Park inclosed, &c. upon Motion in B. R. the Conviction was quash'd. Mich. 9 W. 3. Mod. Inst. 161. A Conviction of Deer-stealing may be removed by Certiorari into B. R. but the Party doing it, is to give Bond of 60*l.* Penalty to the Justice of Peace before whom convicted, to pay the Forfeiture due by the Conviction, or render his Person in a Month after the Conviction confirmed. 5 Geo.

De essendo quietum de Tolonio, Is a Writ that lies for those who are by Privilege free from the Payment of Toll; on their being molested therein. F. N. B. 226.

De Errensis militum, A Writ commanding the Sheriff to levy the Expences of a Knight of the Shire, being 4*s.* per Diem, by Statute: And there is a like Writ De Expensis Civium & Burgensium, to levy 2*s.* per Diem, for the Expences of every Citizen and Burges of Parliament. Stat. 23 H. 6. c. 11. 4 Inst. 46.

De facto, Signifies a Thing actually done; that is done indeed. A King de facto is one that is in actual Possession of a Crown, and hath no lawful Right to the same; in which Sense, it is opposed to a King de Jure, who hath Right to a Crown, but is out of Possession. 3 Inst. 7.

Default, (Fr. Defaut) Is commonly taken for Non-Appearance in Court, at a Day assigned; tho' it extends to any Omission of that which we ought to do. Bract. lib. 5. Tract. 3. Co. Lit. 259. If a Plaintiff makes Default in Appearance in a Trial at Law, he will be nonsuited; and where a Defendant makes Default, Judgment shall be had against him by Default. In Action of Debt upon Bond, if the Defendant pleads a Release, and Issue is thereupon joined, if at the Trial the Defendant makes Default, the Plaintiff may pray Judgment by Default; because by the Plea the Duty is confessed, and therefore no Inquest need be taken by Default: But if the Defendant plead Non est factum, by that Plea the Duty is denied, and therefore if he make Default, Inquest must be taken by Default. In Trespass, if the Defendant plead a Release, and then make Default, the Plaintiff cannot pray Judgment by Default; but an Inquest is to be taken, because Damages are uncertain. 1 Salk. 216. Where Tenant in Tail, Tenant in Dower, by the Curtesy, or for Life, lose their Lands by Default, in a Præcipe quod Reddat brought against them; they are to have Remedy by the Writ Quod ei deforceat, &c. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 4. And in a Quod ei deforceat, where the Tenant joined Issue upon the meer Right, and the Jury appearing, the Demandant made Default; it was adjudged, that in such Case final Judgment shall be given: But if the Tenant had made Default, it would be otherwise, for then a Petit Cape must issue against him, because it may so happen that he may save his Default. 1 Nels. Abr. 627. By Default of a Defendant, he is said to be generally out of Court to all Purposes, but only that Judgment may be given against him: And no Judgment can be afterwards given for the Defendant. Ibid. 628. When two are to recover a personal Thing, the Default of one is the Default of the other: Contra, where they are to discharge themselves of a Personality; there the Default of the one is not the Default of the other. 6 Rep. 25. 1 Lill. Abr. 425. In an Action against two, if the Process be determined against one, and the other appears; he shall be put to answer, notwithstanding the Default of his Companion. 2 Danv. Abr. 480. Where the the Baron is to have a Corporal Punishment for a Default, there the Default of the Wife shall not be the Default of the Husband: But otherwise it is where the Husband is not to have any Corporal Punishment by the Default. Ibid. 472, 473. If a Defendant imparl to another Day in the same Term, and make Default at the Day, this is a Departure in Despite of the Court: And when the Defendant after Appearance, and being present in Court, upon Demand makes Departure, it is in Despite of the Court, and the Entry is, Et præd. Tenens, licet solemniter exactus, non revenit, sed in contemptum Curia re essit, &c. Defaultum fecit, &c. Co. Lit. 139. Before a Verdict is taken by Default, the Cryer of the Court calls the Defendant three Times, and if he doth not appear, the Plaintiff's Counsel prays, that the Inquest may be taken by Default: He is called three Times, to shew if he hath any Challenge to the Jurors; and if he doth not appear upon the Cryer's Calling, then the Caplatur per Default is indorsed on the Back of the Panel. 1 Lill. 425. Default, and Saver of Default, made a large Title in the old Books of Law.

Default of Jurors. If Jurors made Default in their Appearance for trying of Causes, they shall lose and forfeit Issues, unless they have any reasonable Excuse proved by Witnesses, in which Case the Justices may discharge the Issues for Default. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 6.

Defamation, (Defamatio) Is when a Person speaks scandalous Words of another, or of a Magistrate, &c. whereby they are injur'd in their Reputation; for which the Party offending, shall be punish'd according to the Nature and Quality of his Offence; sometimes by Action on the Case at Common Law, sometimes by Statute, and sometimes by the Ecclesiastical Laws. But Defamation is properly punishable by the Spiritual Courts; in which Courts, it ought to have three Incidents, viz. First, It is to concern Matter Spiritual, and determinable in the Ecclesiastical Courts; as for calling a Man Heretick, Schismatick, Adulterer, Fornicator, &c. Secondly, That it be a Matter Spiritual only; for if the Defamation concern any Thing determinable at the Common Law, the Ecclesiastical Judges shall not have Conusance thereof. And Thirdly, Although such Defamation be merely Spiritual, yet he that is defamed cannot sue for Damages in the Ecclesiastical Courts; but the Suit ought to be only for Punishment of the Fault, by way of Penance. Terms de Ley 224, 225. See Action of the Case for Words, also Prohibition.

Defeasance, (from the Fr. Defaire, to defeat) Signifies a Condition relating to a Deed, which being perform'd, the Deed is defeated, and render'd void, as if it never had been made. The Difference between a common Condition and a Defeasance is, that the Condition is annex'd to, or inserted in the Deed; and a Defeasance is usually a Deed by it self concluded and agreed on between the Parties, and having Relation to another Deed. To make a good Defeasance, it must be 1. by Deed, for there cannot be a Defeasance of a Deed without Deed; and a Writing under Hand doth not imply it to be a Deed. 2. It must recite the Deed it relates to, or at least the most material Part thereof. 3. It is to be made between the same Persons that were Parties to the first Deed. 4. It must be made at the Time, or after the first Deed, and not before. 5. It ought to be made of a Thing defeasible.

1 Inst. 236. 3 Lev. 234. Inheritances executed by Livery, such as Estates in Fee, for Life, &c. cannot be subject to Defeasance afterwards, but at the Time of making the Feoffment, &c. only: But executory Inheritances, such as Leafes for Years, Rents, Annuities, Conditions, Covenants, &c. may be defeated by Defeasance made after the Things granted: And it is the same of Obligations, Recognizances, Statutes, Judgments, &c. which are most commonly the Subject of Defeasance, and usually made after the Deed where-to they have Relation. Plowd. 137. 1 Rep. 113. If a Man acknowledge a Statute to another, and enters into a Defeasance, that if his Lands in the County of, &c. should be extended, the Statute should be void; the Defeasance will be good, and not repugnant, because it is by another Deed: But the Condition of a Bond not to sue the Obligation, is void for Repugnancy, being in the same Deed. Moor 1035. A Statute, &c. may be defeasanced on Condition of performing a Will, and paying Legacies, &c. to other Persons. 1 Cro. 837. If a Defeasance of a Statute be made, and after another Defeasance is made by the same Parties, the first Defeasance becomes void thereby, and the second only is in Force, as in a Will. 2 Danv. Abr. 481. Where a Statute is acknowledged to two Persons, and one of them makes a Defeasance, it is said to be a good Discharge. Ibid. 480. If Execution be sued out before the Time in a Defeasance is past, it shall be set aside in B. R. 1 Lill. 426. In a Defeasance of a Deed of Lands, the Person to whom made, covenants that on Payment of such a Sum, on such a Day, he will transfer and reconvey the Estate back again; and that the Maker shall enjoy till Default, &c. If of a Judgment, he covenants that on Payment of the Money, he will enter Satisfaction on Record: If of a Statute or Bond, that on Payment it shall be void, &c. Law of Securities 144, 146, 148, &c. Vide Mortgage.

Defence, (from the Lat. Defendere, to defend) In a legal Signification is applicable to a Plea, and is that which the Defendant ought to make immediately after the Count or Declaration, viz. That he defends all the Wrong, Force, and Damages, where and when he ought, &c. and by defending the Force and Wrong, he excuses himself of the Wrong surmised against him, and makes himself Party to the Plea; and by defending the Damage, he affirms the Plaintiff able to be answer'd unto: So that if he will shew any Disability in the Plaintiff, then he ought to omit the Defence of the Damage, and demand Judgment if the Party shall be answered unto: For the Residue of the Defence, the Defendant accepts the Power of the Court to hear and determine their Pleas. Terms de Ley 227. Defence is sometimes a full Defence, and that is where the Plea begins with these Words, Venit & Defendit vim & Injuriam quando, &c. and this is usual in personal Actions: But there is another Defence in real Actions, where the Plea begins, Venit & Dicit, &c. In every Præcipe, where Land is demanded, there the Defence must be Venit & Defendit jus suum, &c. As in a Writ of Intrusion, Writ of Formedon, &c. 1 Nelf. Abr. 629. A Defendant cannot plead any Plea, before he hath made a Defence; but this must not be intended absolutely, for in a Scire facias a Defence is never made. 3 Lev. 182.

Defend, (Defendere) In our ancient Laws and Statutes signifies to forbid: And there is a Statute intitled, Statutum de Defensione portandi Ar- ma, &c. 7 Ed. 1. In divers Parts of England, we commonly say God defend, instead of God forbid. Blount.

Defendant, (Defendens) Is the Party that is sued in a Personal Action; as Tenant is he that is sued in an Action Real.

Defendimus, Is an ordinary Word used in Grants and Donations; and hath this Force, that it binds the Donor and his Heirs to Defend the Donee, if any one go about to lay any Incumbrance on the Thing given, other than what is contain'd in the Deed of Donation. Bract. lib. 2. c. 16. See Warranty.

Defender of the Faith, (Fidei Defensor) Is a peculiar Title belonging to the King of England; as Catholicus, to the King of Spain; and Christianissimus, to the King of France, &c. These Titles were given by the Popes of Rome, and that of Defensor fidei was first conferred by Pope Leo the Tenth, on King Henry the Eighth, for Writing against Martin Luther, and the Bull for it bears Date Quinto Idus Octob. 1521. Lord Herbert's Hist. Hen. 8. 105. But the Pope, on King Henry's Suppressing the Houses of Religion, at the Time of the Reformation, not only depos'd him of his Title, but his Crown also; though in the 35 Year of his Reign, his Title, &c. was confirmed by Parliament; which hath continued to be used by all succeeding Kings to this Day. Lex Constitutionis 47, 48.

Defendere unica manu, Words signifying to Wage Law, and a Denial of the Accusation upon Oath. See Manus.

Defensa, A Park or Place fenced in for Deer, and defended as a Property for that Use and Service. — Idem Dux facit instaurare pradiatum Parcum de feris Defensæ Leicestrensis. H. Knyghton, sub ann. 1352.

Defensibiles. The Lords or Earls of the Marches, who were the Wardens or Defenders of their Country, had the Title of Defensives. Cowel.

Defenso. That Part of any open Field or Place that was allotted for Corn and Hay, and upon which there was no Common or Feeding, was anciently said to be in Defenso: So of any Meadow Ground that was laid in for Hay only. It was likewise the same of a Wood, where Part was inclosed and fenced up, to secure the Growth of the Underwood from the Injury of Cattle. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. p. 306.

Defensum, An Inclosure of Land, or any fenced Ground. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 114.

Definito, A Word used in ancient Times for a Visitor.

Deforcement, (Deforciammentum) Is where any one is cast out of his Lands or Possessions by Force: Or it is a With-holding Lands or Tenements by Force from the right Owner. Co. Lit. 331. A Deforceor is one that overcomes and casts forth by Force and Violence, and differs from Disseisor; first, because a Man may disseise another without Force; and next, for that a Person may deforce another, who never was in Possession; as if several have Right to Lands as common Heirs, and one entering keeps out the rest, the Law saith he deforceth and disseiseth them: And (according to Littleton) he who is enfeoffed by Tenant in Tail, and put in Possession, by keeping out the Heir of him in Reversion who hath Right to the Land, the Tenant in Tail being dead, doth only deforce the Heir, because he entered during the Life of Tenant in Tail, when the Heir had no present Right. Also a Deforceor differs from an Intruder, by Reason a Man is made an Intruder by a wrongful Entry only into Land void of a Possessor: And a Deforceor is he that holds out against the right Heir. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 1. Britt. cap. 33. Litt. 138. F. N. B. 118. As Force and Violence are opposite to the Peace and Justice of the Kingdom; and it is a Disgrace to the Law, that any Person should presume of his own Authority by Force and strong Hand to enter into the Possession of another, before the Law hath decided his Title therein; therefore divers Statutes have been made for Reformation of these Abuses, as among others the Stat. 5 R. 2. cap. 7. where the King defends any Entry into Lands or Tenements, but in Case where Entry is given by Law, &c. Poult. de Pace Reg. 34, 35. See Forcible Entry.

Deforciant, Mention'd in the Stat. 23 El. c. 3. is the same with a Deforceor.

Deforciantio, Is us'd for a Distress, or Holding of Goods for Satisfaction of a Debt. Paroch. Antiq. 293.

Degradation, (Degradatio) Is an Ecclesiastical Censure, whereby a Clergyman is devested of his Holy Orders. And there are two Sorts of degrading, by the Canon Law; one Summary, by Word only; the other Solemn, by stripping the Party degraded of those Ornaments and Rights, which are the Ensigns of his Order or Degree. Selden's Titles of Hon. 787. Degradation is otherwise called Deposition; and in former Times, the Degrading a Clerk was no more than a Displacing or Suspension from his Office: But the Canonists have since distinguish'd between a Deposition and a Degradation; the one being now used as a greater Punishment than the other, because the Bishop takes from the Criminal all the Badges of his Order, and afterwards delivers him to the secular Judge, where he cannot purge himself of the Offence, whereof he is convicted, &c. Du Cange. There is likewise a Degradation of a Lord, or a Knight, &c. at Common Law; when they are attainted of Treason; as Hill. 18 Ed. 2. Andrew Harcla, Earl of Carlisle, who was also a Knight, was degraded, and when Judgment of Treason was pronounced against him, his Sword was broken over his Head, and his Spurs hewn off his Heels, &c. And there is a Degrading by Act of Parliament; for by Stat. 13 Car. 2. cap. 15. William Lord Monson, Sir Henry Mildmay, and others, were degraded from all Titles of Honour, Dignities, and Preheminencies, and none of them to bear or use the Title of Lord, Knight, Esquire, or Gentleman, or any Coat of Arms for ever after, &c.

De Injuria sua propria, Absque tali causa, Are Words us'd in Replications, in Actions of Trespas, or on the Case for Words, &c. 1 Lill. Abr. 427. De Injuria sua propria is a good Plea in Trespas, &c. where it comes in Excuse of an Injury alledg'd to be done to the Person of the Plaintiff, or where a Defendant justifies in Defence of his Possession, if the Title doth not come in Question. 8 Rep. 86. When one justifies by Command or Authority deriv'd from another; or if a Defendant justifies by Authority at Common Law, as a Constable by Arrest for Breach of the Peace; or if he justifies by Act of Parliament, &c. De Injuria sua propria is a good Replication. Cr. Eliz. 539. 2 Salk. 628. See De son Tort Demesne.

Dei Judicium. The old Saxon Trial by Ordeal was so call'd; because they thought it an Appeal to God, for the Justice of a Cause, and verily believ'd that the Decision was according to the the Will and Pleasure of Divine Providence.

Domes.

Deis, The high Table of a Monastery. See Dagis.

Delatura, A Saxon Word signifying an Accusation: And sometimes it hath been taken for the Reward of an Informer. Leges H. 1. c. 64. Leges Ine 20 apud Brompton.

Delegates, Are Commissioners of Appeal, appointed by the King under the Great Seal; in Cases of Appeals from the Ecclesiastical Court, &c. by Stat. 25 Hen. 8. cap. 19. See Court of Delegates.

Delf, (from the Sax. Delpan, to dig, or delve) Is a Quarry or Mine, where Stone, or Coal, &c. are dug. Stat. 31 Eliz. cap. 7. We still retain the Word Delve for dig, in some Parts of this Kingdom.

Deliverance. When a Criminal is brought to Trial, and the Clerk in Court asks him whether he is Guilty, or Not Guilty, to which he replies Not guilty, and puts himself on God and his Country, the Clerk wishes him a Good Deliverance.

Delivery of Deeds, On executing them, to give them Perfection, &c. See Deed.

Demand, (Fr. Demande, Lat. Postulatum) Signifies a Calling upon a Man for any Thing due. And there are two Manner of Demands, the one in Deed, the other in Law: In Deed, as in a Præcipe quod Reddat, there is an express Demand: In Law, every Entry on Land, Distress for Rent, Taking of Goods, &c. which may be done without Words, is a Demand in Law. 8 Rep. 153. Mr. Nelson, in his Abridgment of the Law, Vol. 1. pag. 630. says, there are three Sorts of Demands; one in Writing, without speaking, and that is in every Præcipe; one without Writing, being a verbal Demand of the Person, who is to do or perform the Thing; and another made without either Word or Writing, which is a Demand in Law, in Cases of Entries on Lands, &c. And as Entry on Land, and Taking a Distress, are a Demand in Law of the Land and Rent; so the Bringing an Action of Debt for Money due on an Obligation, is a Demand in Law of the Debt. 1 Lill. 432. Debts, Claims, &c. are to be demanded and made in Time, by the Statute of Limitations. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 16. and other Statutes; or they will be lost by Law. Where there is a Duty, which the Law makes payable on Demand, no Demand need be made; but if there is no Duty till Demand, in such Case there must be a Demand to make the Duty. Trin. 3 Ann. 1 Lill. 432. Debt upon Bond, to be paid presently upon Demand, is a Duty presently, and requires no Demand. Cro. El. 548. And upon a Penalty, the Party need not make a Demand, as he must in the Case of a Nomine Pæne; for if a Man be bound to pay 20 l. on such a Day, and in Default thereof to pay 40 l. the 40 l. must be paid without Demand. 1 Mod. 89. If a Man leases Land by Indenture for Years, reserving a Rent payable at certain Days, and the Lessee covenants to pay the said Rent at the Days limited; the Lessor is intitled to his Rent, without Demand, for the Lessee is obliged to pay it at the Days, by Force of his Covenant. 2 Dav. Abr. 101. But if a Lessor makes a Lease rendring Rent, and the Lessee covenants to pay the Rent, being lawfully demanded, the Lessee is not bound to pay the Rent, without a Demand. Ibid 102. A Person makes a Lease for Life, or Years, reserving a Rent upon Condition, that if the Lessee doth not pay the Rent at the Day, that then without any Demand of the Lessor, it shall be lawful for the Lessor to re-enter; by this Special Agreement of the Parties, the Lessor may enter on Non-payment of the Rent, without any Demand. Ibid. 100. A Lease for Years, with Condition to be void, on Non-payment of the Rent, is not void unless the Rent be demanded, and an Entry made: And an Interest shall not be determined, without an actual Demand. Hob. 67, 331. 2 Mod. 264. A Demand is to be legal, and made in such Manner as the Law requires: If it be for Rent of a Messuage and Lands, it ought to be made at the Messuage, at the fore Door of the House, the most notorious Place: Where Lands and Wood are let together, the Rent is to be demanded on the Land, as the most worthy Thing, and on the most publick Part thereof: If Wood only be leased, the Demand must be at the Gate of the Wood, &c. 1 Inst. 201. Poph. 58. For Re-entry, the Demand is to be on the Day of Payment of the Rent, and it must be exactly observed: But a Demand at any Time after due, is sufficient to warrant a Distress. Dyer 51. If a Lessor in a Demand of Rent for Re-entry, demand one Penny more or less than due, or doth not shew the Certainty of the Rent, and the Day of Payment, and when due, the Demand will not be good: If the Demand be of all the Rent due generally, it is not good, without shewing what Rent, and for what Time, &c. 1 Leon. 425. Cro. Eliz. 209. In order to Re-entry for Non-payment of Rent on a Lease, the Lessor or some other Person by his Direction, is to go on the last Day of Payment, a little before Sun-set, and make the Demand thus: I do here Demand the Sum of 10 l. for Half a Year's Rent for this Messuage due and ending at, &c. and yet unpaid, &c. And after the Demand, continue at the Place till it be dark. He that would enter for a Condition broken, which tends to the Destruction of an Estate, must 1. demand the Rent. 2. Upon the Land, if there is no House. 3. If there is a House, at the fore Door; though it is not material whether any Person be in the House or no. 4. If the Appointment is at any other Place off from the Land, the Demand must be at that Place. 5. The Time of the Demand is to be certain, that the Tenant may be there, if he will, to pay the Rent: And the last Time of Demand of the Rent, must be such a convenient Time before the Sun-setting of the last Day of Payment, as the Money may be number'd. Also the Lessor or his sufficient Attorney is to remain upon the Land, the last Day on which the Rent due ought to be paid, until it be so dark that he cannot see to tell the Money: And if the Money thus demanded is not paid, this is a Denial in Law, tho' there are no Words of Denial; upon which a Re-entry may be made, &c. 1 Inst. 201, 202. 4 Rep. 73. A Demand ought to be in the Presence of Witnesses: And Demands are released by a Release of all Demands; which Discharges all Freeholds, Rights of Entry, Actions, &c. 8 Rep. 153.

Demandant, (Petens) All civil Actions are prosecuted either by Demands or Plaints, and the Pursuer is called Demandant, in Actions Real; and Plaintiff, in Personal Actions: In a Real Action, Lands, &c. are demanded. Co. Lit. 127.

Demesne, or Deman, (Dominicum, Domanium) Is a French Word otherwise written Domaine, and signifieth Patrimonium Domini. Demains, according to common Speech, are the Lord's chief Manor-Place, with the Lands thereto belonging; which he and his Ancestors have from Time to Time kept in their own manual Occupation, for the Maintenance of themselves and their Families: And all the Parts of a Manor, except what is in the Hands of Freeholders, are said to be Demains. Copyhold Lands are accounted Demains, because they that are the Tenants thereof are judged in Law to have no other Estate but at the Will of the Lord; so that it is still reputed to be in a Manner in the Lord's Hands: But this Word is oftentimes used for a Distinction between those Lands that the Lord of the Manor hath in his own Hands, or in the Hands of his Lessee demised at a Rack-Rent, and such other Land appertaining to the Manor which belongeth to Free or Copyholders. Bract. lib. 4. tract. 3. cap. 9. Fleta, lib. 5. cap. 5. As Demains are Lands in the Lord's Hands manually occupied, some have thought this Word derived from De manu; but it is from the Fr. Demaine, which is used for an Inheritance, and that comes from Dominium, because a Man has a more absolute Dominion over that which he keeps in his Hands, than of that which he lets to his Tenants. Blount. Dominium properly signifies the King's Lands in France, appertaining to him in Property: And in like Manner do we in some Sort use it here in England; for all Lands 'tis said are either mediately or immediately from the Crown; and when a Man in Pleading would signify his Land to be his Own, he saith, that he is seised thereof in his Demain, as of Fee; whereby is meant, that altho' his Land be to him and his Heirs, it depends upon a superior Lord, and is held by Rent or Service, &c. Litt. lib. 1. c. 1. From this it hath been observed, that Lands in the Hands of a common Person, cannot be true Demains: And certain it is, that Lands in the Possession of a Subject are called Demains in a different Sense from the Demain Lands of the Crown. For Demains or Domains in the Hands of a Subject, have their Derivation à Domo, because they are Lands in his Possession for the Maintaining of his House: But the Domains of the Crown are held of the King, who is absolute Lord, having proper Dominion; and not by any feudal Tenure of a superior Lord, as of Fee. Wood's Inst. 139. Demains is sometimes taken in a special Signification, as opposite to Frank-Fee: For Example; those Lands which were in the Possession of King Edward the Confessor, are called Ancient Demains, and all others Frank-Fee; and the Tenants which hold any of those Lands are called Tenants in Ancient Demain, and the others Tenants in Frank-Fee, &c. Kitch. 98. See Ancient Demesne.

Demise, (Demissio) Is applied to an Estate either in Fee, for Term of Life, or Years, but commonly the latter: It is used in Writs for any Estate. 2 Inst. 483. The King's Death is in Law termed the Demise of the King, to his Royal Successor of his Crown and Dignity, &c.

Demise and Redemise. The Conveyance by Demise and Redemise is where there are mutual Leases made from one to another on each Side of the same Land, or some Thing out of it; and is proper upon the Grant of a Rent-charge, &c.

Demurrer, (In Latin Demorare, from the Fr. Demourer) Is a Kind of Pause or Stop, put to any Action, upon a Point of Difficulty, which must be determined by the Court, before any farther Proceedings can be had therein: For in every Action the Controversy consists either in Fact or in Law; if in Fact, that is try'd by the Jury; but if in Law, the Judge with his Associates proceeds to Judgment; and whatever they conclude stands firm, without any Appeal. Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 13. This Demurrer is in our Records expressed in Latin by Moratur in Lege: And when any Action is brought, and the Defendant saith that the Plaintiff's Declaration is not sufficient for him to answer unto; or when the Defendant pleads, and the Plaintiff says, that it is not a sufficient Plea in Law, and the Defendant says, that it is a good Plea; and thereupon both Parties submit to the Judgment of the Court: This is a Moratur in Lege. 1 Lill. Abr. 435. So that a Demurrer is an Issue join'd upon Matter of Law, to be determined by the Judges; and is an Abiding in Point of Law, and a Referring to the Judgment of the Court, whether the Declaration or Plea of the adverse Party is sufficient in Law to be maintained. Finch. lib. 4. cap. 40. 1 Inst. 71. And a Demurrer may be to the Writ, Count, or Declaration, or to any Part of the Pleadings: Also a Demurrer may be to a Demurrer; as where the Demurrer is double, and he that demurs assigns one Error in Fact and another in Law, which is ill, and may be demurr'd unto on the other Side. 1 Lill. 438. Demurrers to Pleas, &c. are General, without shewing any particular Cause; or Special, where the Causes of Demurrer are particularly set down: And the Judgment of the Court is not to be pray'd upon an insufficient Declaration or Plea, otherwise than by Demurrer; when the Matter comes judicially before the Court. If in Pleadings, &c. a Matter is insufficiently alledged, that the Court cannot give certain Judgment upon it, a General Demurrer will suffice; and for Want of Substance, a General Demurrer is good: But for Want of Form, there must be a Special Demurrer, and the Causes specially assign'd. Practis. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 84. And as he that demurs generally, confesseth all Matters of Fact that are well and sufficiently pleaded; so he that makes a Special Demurrer, can take no Advantage of any other Matter of Form, but what is expressed in his Demurrer; tho' he may take Advantage of Matter of Substance, if the Demurrer be Special, and the Causes not set down. 10 Rep. 88. By Statute, Judges are to proceed to give Judgment in Actions, according to the Right of the Cause, after Demurrer join'd, without Regard to Defects of Proceedings, except such as are expressed with the Demurrer; but this not to extend to Indictments, &c. in criminal Prosecutions. Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 5. And by 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. the Causes of Demurrer are to be specially set down, or the Judges shall give Judgment without regarding any Imperfections in Writs, Declarations, Pleadings, &c. A Defendant is to demur where he may do it; for if the Defendant pleads in any Case, where he can demur, he shall not afterwards take Advantage in Arrest of Judgment, Writ of Error, &c. Plowd. 182. If any Special Matter is pleaded, which hath the Colour of a Plea, but amounts to the General Issue; 'tis no Cause of Demurrer. 5 Mod. 18. There cannot be a Demurrer in Abatement; and where a Defendant demurs in Abatement, the Court may give final Judgment: But it may be to a Plea in Abatement. 1 Salk. 220. 1 Nelf. Abr. 634. After the Plaintiff and Defendant have join'd Issue, which goes to the Whole, neither of them can demur, without Consent of the other: But one may demur to one Part of a Declaration, and plead plead to the other Part thereof, with a Quoad, &c. And where there is an Issue to Part of the Defendant's Plea, and a Demurrer to other Part of it, the Plaintiff before or after Judgment given on the Demurrer, may try the Issue; though 'tis usual to give Judgment on the Demurrer first. 1 Lill. Abr. 437. 1 Inst. 71. 1 Saund. 80. If a Defendant pleads to Part and demurs to Part; the Demurrer shall first be determined, and the Issue last; because upon the Trial of the Issue, the Jury may assess Damages as to both. Palm. 517. Where there is a Demurrer to Part, and Issue is joined to the other Part, and the Plaintiff hath Judgment on the Demurrer, he must enter a Non Prof. as to the Issue, otherwise he cannot proceed to a Writ of Enquiry upon the Demurrer. 1 Salk. 219. A Demurrer is to be signed, and argued on both Sides by Counsel; and if a Party be delay'd in his Proceedings by Demurrer, he may move the Court to appoint a short Day after to hear Counsel on the Demurrer; and the Court will grant it. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. After a Demurrer is join'd, the Plaintiff having enter'd it in the Roll, delivers the Roll to the Secondary, and makes a Motion for a Consilium or Day to argue it, which the Court grants of Course, on the Secondary's Reading the Record; then the Demurrer must be entered by the Plaintiff in the Court-Book with the Secondary, who on his Rule sets down the Day appointed for Argument, at least four Days before the Demurrer is argued: And Paper-Books are made and delivered to the Judges. The Demurrant argues first, and the Court will hear but two Counsel on a Day, viz. one of a Side, and seldom give Judgment the same Day; and if desired on either Side, (unless the Case be very plain) the Court will hear further Arguments the next Term. The whole Record is not be read, on opening the Demurrer; except the same be to the Declaration only: But where it appears to be for Delay, the whole Record will be heard by the Court, tho' there be a Plea, &c. And if it be found merely for Delay, Judgment shall be given presently. If the major Part of the Judges of the Court can't determine the Matter on the Demurrer, it is to be sent into the Exchequer-Chamber to be determined by all the Judges of England. 1 Inst. 71. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 154. Where the Court gives Judgment on the Demurrer in Debt for the Plaintiff in the Action, the Judgment is for the Plaintiff to recover his Debt, Costs and Damages: But if it be in Action of the Case, a Writ of Inquiry of Damages must be awarded, before Judgment on the Demurrer. If Judgment on the Demurrer is for the Defendant in the Action, the Judgment is, that the Plaintiff Nihil Capiat per Breve, or per Billam, and that the Defendant eat sine die. Wood's Inst. 603. The general Words of a Demurrer are, Quod Breve vel Nar. vel Placitum, &c. Materiaque in eodem content. minus sufficiens in Lege exist., &c. If a Demurrer be enter'd, it cannot be afterwards waved. 1 Lill. 435.

Demurrer to Evidence, Is where a Question of Law doth arise thereupon: As if the Plaintiff produces in Evidence, any Records, Deeds, Writings, &c. upon which a Question of Law arises, and the Demandant offers to demur upon it; and then the Plaintiff must join in Demurrer, or waive his Evidence. So if the Plaintiff brings Witnesses to prove a Fact, and a Matter of Law ariseth upon it; if the Defendant admits their Testimony to be true, there also the Defendant may demur in Law: And so may the Plaintiff demur upon the Defendant's Evidence. And in these Cases, the Counsel for the Plaintiff and Defendant agree the Matter of Fact in Dispute, and the Jury are discharg'd; and the Matter of Law is referred to the Judges to determine. But where Evidence is given for the King, in an Information or other Suit, and the Defendant offers to demur upon it, the King's Counsel are not obliged to join therein; but the Court ought to direct the Jury to find the Special Matter. And indeed because Juries of late usually find a doubtful Matter specially, Demurrers upon Evidence are now seldom used. 5 Rep. 104. 1 Inst. 72. 2 Inst. 426. If the Court doth not agree to a Demurrer on the Insufficiency of Evidence in a Civil Cause; they ought to seal a Bill of Exceptions, &c. 9 Rep. 13.

Demurrer to Indictments. When a Criminal joins Issue upon a Point of Law in an Indictment, allowing the Fact to be true, as laid in the Indictment or Appeal, this is a Demurrer in Law: And if the Indictment or Appeal proves good in Law, in the Opinion of the Judges, they proceed to Judgment and Execution, as if the Party had been convicted by Confession, or Verdict. And tho' by the Criminal's Demurrer he refuseth to put himself upon Trial by the Inquest, yet he shall not, as in other Cases, be put under the Pain fort & dure; for a Demurrer is allowed to be try'd by the Judges, and not by the Inquest. And he that is condemn'd on Demurrer, is said to be convict; for whoever is adjudged, is convicted by Law. 2 Inst. 178. H. P. C. 243. S. P. C. 150. 1 Hawk. P. C. 14. But see 2 Hawkins 334.

Demysanguis, Is the Half-Blood: Where a Man marries a Woman, and hath Issue by her a Son, and the Wife dying he marries another Woman, by whom he hath also a Son; now these two Sons, tho' they are called Brothers, are but Brothers of the Half-Blood, because they had not both one Father and Mother: And therefore by Law they cannot be Heirs to one another; for he that claims as Heir to another by Discent, must be of the Whole-Blood to him from whom he claimeth. Terms de Ley 234.

Den: The Names of Places ending in Den, as Biddenden, &c. signify the Situation to be in a Valley, or near Woods; from the Sax. Den, i. e. Vallis; Locus Sylvestris. Blount.

Den and Strond, Is a Liberty for Ships or Vessels to run or come a-shore: And K. Edw. 1. by Charter granted this Privilege to the Barons of the Cinque Ports. Placit. temp. Ed. 1.

Dena terræ, A hollow Place between two Hills; and the Word Dena is used for a little Portion of woody Ground, commonly called a Coppice. — Et una parva Dena Sylve. Domest.

Denarii, A general Term for any Sort of Pecunia numerata, or ready Money. Paroch. Antiq. 320.

Denarii de Caritate, Customary Oblations made to Cathedral Churches about the Time of Pentecost, when the Parish-Priests and many of their People went in Procession to visit their Mother-Church: This Custom was afterwards changed into a settled Duc, and usually charged upon the Parish-Priest; tho' at first it was but a Gift of Charity, or Present, to help maintain and adorn the Bishop's Sec. Cartular. Abbat. Glaston. M.S. f. 15.

Denarius, An English Penny: It is mentioned in the Stat. Edw. 1. De compositione mensurarum, &c.

Denarius Dei, God's Penny, or Earnest Money. — Ita quod neuter Mercatorum ab illo contractu possit discedere vel resiliere postquam Denarius Dei inter Principales Personas contrahentes datus fuerit & receptus. Carr. Ed. 1. This Earnest Money is call'd Denarius Dei, or God's Penny, because in former Times, the Piece of Money so given to bind the Contract, was given to God, i. e. To the Church, or the Poor.

Denarius S. Petri, An annual Payment of one Penny from every Family to the Pope, during the Time that the Roman Catholick Religion prevail'd in this Kingdom, paid on the Feast of St. Peter. Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 25. See Peter-Pence.

Denarius tertius Comitatus. Of the Fines and other Profits of the County-Courts, originally when those Courts had Superior Jurisdiction before other Courts were erected, two Parts were reserved to the King, and a Third Part or Penny to the Earl of the County; who either received it in Specie at the Assizes and Trials, or had an equivalent Composition for it out of the Exchequer. Paroch. Antiq. 418.

Denbera, A low Place for the Running and Feeding of Hogs, wherein they are penn'd; by some called a Swinecumb. Cowel.

Denizen, (Fr. Donaison) Is an alien enfranchised, and made a Subject by the King's Letters Patent; and is called Donaison, because his Legitimation proceeds ex donatione Regis, from the King's Gift. Such a one is enabled in many Respects, to do as the King's native Subjects do, to purchase and possess Lands, enjoy any Office or Dignity; and when he is thus enfranchised, he is said to be under the King's Protection, or Esse ad fidem Regis Anglie; before which Time he can possess nothing in England. But notwithstanding this, it is short of Naturalization; for a Stranger naturalized may inherit Lands by Descent, which a Denizen cannot: And in the Charter, whereby a Person is made a Denizen, there is commonly contained some Clause that expressly abridges him of that full Benefit which natural Subjects enjoy. Bract. lib. 5. tract. 5. cap. 25. 2 Inst. 741. When the King makes a Denizen by Letters Patent, he may purchase Lands, and his Issue born afterwards may inherit them; but those he had before shall not inherit them: And tho' a Denizen is enabled to purchase, he cannot inherit the Lands of his Ancestors; but as a Purchaser he may enjoy them; and he may take Lands by Devise. 1 Inst. 8. 11 Rep. 67. 5 Rep. 52. Aliens made Denizens are incapable of Offices in the Government, to be Members of Parliament, &c. by Stat. 12 W. 3. c. 2. 1 Geo. c. 4. It is so high a Prerogative, to make Aliens Subjects and Denizens, that the King cannot grant this Power over to any other. 7 Rep. Wood's Inst. 22.

Denshering of Land, Is the Casting Parings of Earth, Turf, and Stubble into Heaps, which when dried are burnt into Ashes, for a Compost on poor barren Land. This Method of Improvement is used on taking in and inclosing Common and Waste Ground; and in many Parts of England is called Burn-beating, but in Staffordshire and other Counties, they term it Denshering of Land.

De non Decimando, To be discharg'd of Tithes. See Modus Decimandi.

Dentrix, A Fish with many Teeth. Chart. H. 6. Monast. Ramsey.

Deodand, (Deo-dandum) Is a Thing given as it were to God, to appease his Wrath, where a Person comes to a violent Death by Mischance, not by any reasonable Creature; and is forfeited to the King, or Grantee of the Crown; and if to the King, his Almoner disposes of it by Sale, and the Money arising thereby he distributes to the Poor: Also if forfeited to the Lord of a Liberry, it ought to be thus distributed. 3 Inst. 57. 5 Rep. 110. 1 Nelf. 636. The Original of Deodands is said to come from the Notion of Purgatory; for when a Person came to a sudden and untimely Death, without having Time to be sorrieved by a Priest, and to have the Extream Unction administered to him, the Thing which had been the Occasion of his Death, became Deodand; that is was given to the Church, to be distributed in Charity, and to pray for the Soul of such deceased Person out of Purgatory. 1 Lill. 443. There are several Examples of Forfeitures in Cases of Deodands; as if a Man in Driving a Cart, falls so as the Cart-wheel runs over him, and presseth him to Death; the Cart-wheel, Cart, and Horses are forfeited to the Lord of the Liberty: For Omnia que movent ad mortem sunt Deodanda. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 5. But it hath been observ'd, that at this Day, if a Man be killed by the Wheel of a Cart drawn with Horses, the Jury find that only Deodand which was the immediate Cause of his Death, viz. the Wheel; which is then seized by the Lord of the Manor, and converted to his own Use. 1 Nelf. 636. If a Man riding over a River, is thrown off his Horse by the Violence of the Water, and drown'd, his Horse is not Deodand; for the Death was caused per Cursum Aquae. 2 Cro. 483. Where one under fourteen Years of Age, falls from a Cart, Horse, &c. they are not Deodand; but if a Horse strikes and kills such a Person, it is Deodand. 3 Inst. 57. And if a Person wounded by any Accident, as of a Cart, Horse, &c. die within a Year and a Day after, what did it is Deodand: So that if a Horse strikes a Man, and afterwards the Owner sells the Horse, and then the Party that was stricken dies of the Stroke; the Horse, notwithstanding the Sale, shall be forfeited as Deodand. Plowd. 260. 5 Rep. 110. If one falls out of a Vessel in Salt Water, the Vessel is not Deodand, and Accidents at Sea are frequently happening; but if one falls out of a Vessel in Fresh Water, it is said to be otherwise. Wood's Inst. 212. Things fix'd to the Freehold; as a Bell hanging in a Steeple, a Wheel of a Mill, &c. unless severed from the Freehold, cannot be Deodands. 2 Inst. 281. There is no Forfeiture of a Deodand, 'till the Matter is found of Record, by the Jury that finds the Death; who ought also to find and appraise the Deodand. 5 Rep. 110. 1 Inst. 114. After the Coroner's Inquisition, the Sheriff is answerable for the Value, where the Deodand belongs to the King; and he may levy the same on the Town, &c. wherefore the Inquest ought to find the Value of it. 1 Hawk. 67. Deodands were likewise the Goods and Chattels of Felo de se, &c. 1 Lill. 443.

Deonerando pro rata Portionis, Is a Writ that lies where a Person is distrained for Rent, that ought to be paid by others proportionably with him. F. N. B. 234.

Departure, Is a Word in our Law properly applied to a Defendant, who first Pleading one Thing

Thing in Bar of an Action, and being replied unto in his Rejoinder, he quits that and shews another Matter, contrary to, or not pursuing his first Plea, which is called a Departure from his Plea: Also where a Plaintiff in his Declaration sets forth one Thing, and after the Defendant hath pleaded, the Plaintiff in his Replication shews new Matter from his Declaration, this is a Departure; as in Coke's Institutes, The Defendant demurred, because it was a Departure from the Declaration. Plowd. 7, 8. 2 Inst. 147. But if a Plaintiff in his Replication depart from his Count, and the Defendant takes Issue upon it; if it be found for the Plaintiff, the Defendant shall take no Advantage of that Departure: Tho' it would have been otherwise, if he had demurred upon it. Raym. 86. 1 Lill. Abr. 444. If a Man plead a general Agreement in Bar, and in his Rejoinder alledge a special One, this is a Departure in Pleading: And if an Action is brought at Common Law, and the Plaintiff by his Replication would maintain it by Virtue of a Custom, &c. it hath been held a Departure. 1 Nelf. Abr. 638. Where Matter is omitted at first, it is a Departure to plead it afterwards. Ibid. If in Covenant, the Defendant pleads Performance; and after rejoins that the Plaintiff ousted him, it is a Departure from his Plea. Raym. 22. In Debt upon Bond for Performance of Covenants in a Lease, the Defendant pleaded Performance; and afterwards in his Rejoinder set forth that so much was paid in Money, and so much in Taxes, &c. upon Demurrer it was adjudged a Departure from the Plea; because he had pleaded Performance, and afterwards sets forth other Matter of Excuse, &c. 1 Salk. 221. Debt upon Bond for Performance of an Award, made for Payment of Money; if the Defendant plead Performance, and the Plaintiff having replied and assign'd a Breach in Non-payment, &c. the Defendant rejoins that he is ready to pay the Money at the Day, &c. this is a Departure from his Plea; for Performance is Payment of the Money, and Payment and ready to pay are different Issues. Sid. 10. 4 Leon. 79. In Debt upon Bond for Non-performance of an Award; the Defendant pleads that the Award was, that he should release all Suits to the Plaintiff, which he had done; the Plaintiff replies that such an Award was made, but that the Award was further, that the Defendant should pay to the Plaintiff such a Sum, &c. the Defendant rejoins that true it is, that by the Award he was to pay the Plaintiff, the said Sum, but that the Award was also, that the Plaintiff should release to the Defendant all Actions, &c. which he had not done; on Demurrer this was held a Departure from the Plea, being all new Matter. 2 Bulstr. 39. Godb. 155. 1 Nelf. 637. After Nullum fecerunt Arbitrium, the Defendant cannot plead that the Award is void; without being a Departure from the former Plea. And if where Nul tiel Award is pleaded; then the Award is set forth, and a Joinder that it was not tendered, it is a Departure. 1 Lev. 133. Lutw. 385. A Departure must be always from something which is material; or it will not be allowed: If in Trespass for taking Goods, the Plaintiff reply, that after the Taking, the Defendant converted them to his own Use, this being an Abuse makes a Trespass; and the Conversion is either Trover or Trespass at the Plaintiff's Election, so that by his Replication he may make it Trespass, and be no Departure. 1 Salk. 221, 222. In Circumstances of Time, &c.

laid as to Promises, the Plaintiff is not tied to a precise Day; for if the Defendant by his Plea force the Plaintiff to vary, it is no Departure from his Declaration. 1 Nelf. 640, 641. And if another Place be mentioned in the Replication, in Action of Debt; as this is a personal Thing, 'tis no Departure, because he who is indebted to another in one Place, is so in every Place. Sid. 228. A Departure being a Denial of what is before admitted, is a Saying and Unsayings, and for that one Issue cannot be joined upon it, 'tis naught for the Uncertainty. 1 Lill. 444.

Depopulation, (Depopulatio) Is a Wasting or Destruction; a Desolation or Unpeopling of any Place, by Fire, Sword, Pestilence, &c. 12 Rep. 30.

Depopulatores Agrozum. These were great Offenders, by the ancient Common Law; so called because by Prostrating and Ruining of Houses of Habitation of the King's People, they as it were depopulated Towns and Villages, leaving them without Inhabitants. Stat. 4 Hen. 4. cap. 2. 3 Inst. 204.

Deposition, (Depositio) Is the Testimony of a Witness, otherwise called a Deponent, put down in Writing by Way of Answer to Interrogatories exhibited for that Purpose, in Chancery, &c. Proof in the High Court of Chancery is by Depositions of Witnesses; and the Copies of such regularly taken and published, are read as Evidence at the Hearing: And Depositions taken in one Cause, may be used at the Hearing of another Cause, when they are between the same Parties, &c. without Motion; but in a Cause between other Parties, tho' touching the same Matters, this will not be allowed, without special Order of Court; neither will Depositions in other Courts be permitted to be read, without such Order. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 233, 234. Depositions in the Chancery, after a Cause is determined, may be given in Evidence in a Trial at Bar in B. R. in a Suit for the same Matter, between the same Parties, if the Party that deposed be dead; but not otherwise, for if he be living, he must appear in Person in Court to be examined, &c. 1 Lill. Abr. 445. And where Witnesses in a Cause are going to Sea, or long Journies, the Court of B. R. will give Leave to examine them on Interrogatories, at a Judge's Chamber, in the Presence of the Attornies on both Sides; which Depositions in such Case, shall be admitted to be good Evidence. Ibid. Depositions of Informers, &c. taken upon Oath before a Coroner, upon an Inquisition of Death, or before Justices of Peace on a Commitment or Bailment of Felony, may be given in Evidence at a Trial for the same Felony, if it be proved on Oath that the Informer is dead, or unable to travel, or kept away by the Procurement of the Prisoner; and Oath must be made that the Depositions are the same that were sworn before the Coroner or Justice, without any Alteration. 2 Hawk. P. C. 429. But Depositions taken before a Coroner, cannot be given in Evidence upon an Appeal for the same Death; because it is a different Prosecution from that wherein they were taken: And it has been adjudged, That the Evidence given by a Witness at one Trial, could not in the ordinary Course of Justice be made use of against against a Criminal, on the Death of such Witness, at another Trial. Ibid. 430. It was adjudged in the Earl of Strafford's Trial, that where Witnesses could not be produced, by Reason of Sickness, &c. their Depositions might be read, for or against the Prisoner on a Trial of High Treason; but not where they could be produced in Person: And that Depositions taken by a Witness before a Justice of Peace, might, at the Prisoner's Desire, be read at the Trial; in order to take off the Credit of the Witness, by shewing a Variance between such Depositions and the Evidence given in Court. Ibid. Deposition is used in the Law in another Sense, viz. To signify the Depriving a Person of some Dignity: And Deposition is also taken for Death; and Dies Depositionis, the Day of one's Death. Littleton's Dist.

Deprivation, (Deprivatio) Is a Depriving or Taking away; as when a Bishop, Parson, Vicar, &c. is deposed from his Preferment. And of Deprivations there are two Sorts, Deprivatio à Beneficio, and ab Officio; the Deprivation à Beneficio is when for some great Crime, &c. a Minister is wholly deprived of his Living: And Deprivation ab Officio is where a Minister is for ever deprived of his Orders, which is also called Deposition or Degradation; and is commonly for some heinous Offence meriting Death, and perform'd by the Bishop in a solemn Manner. Blount. Deprivation à Beneficio is an Act of the Spiritual Court, grounded upon some Crime or Defect in the Person depriv'd, by which he is discharged from his Spiritual Promotion or Benefice, upon sufficient Cause proved against him. 1 Nelf. Abr. 641. Deprivation may also be by a particular Clause in some Act of Parliament: The Deprivation of Bishops, &c. is declared lawful by Statute 39 Eliz. c. 8. And by the King's Commission, as he hath the Supremacy lodged in him, a Bishop may be depriv'd; for since a Bishop is vested with that Dignity by Commission from the King, 'tis reasonable he should be depriv'd, where there is just Cause, by the same Authority: But the Canons direct, that a Bishop shall be depriv'd in a Synod of the Province; or if that cannot be assembled, by the Archbishop, and twelve Bishops at least, not as his Assistants, but as Judges: Tho' I think this Canon was never received in England. Young Clergyman's Lawyer 105. It has been adjudg'd, that an Archbishop may deprive a Bishop, for Simony, &c. for he hath Power over his Suffragans, who may be punish'd in the Archbishop's Court for any Offence against their Duty. 1 Salk. Rep. 134. The Causes of Deprivation are many: If a Clerk obtain any Preferment in the Church, by simoniacal Contract; if he be an Excommunicate, a Drunkard, Fornicator, Adulterer, Infidel, Schismatick, or Heretick; or is guilty of Murder, Manslaughter, Perjury, Forgery, &c. If a Clerk be an Illiterate, and not able to perform the Duty of his Church; if he is a scandalous Person in his Life and Conversation; or Bastardy is objected against him; if one be a meer Layman, and not in Holy Orders; or is under Age, viz. the Age of twenty-three Years; be disobedient and incorrigible to his Ordinary; or a Nonconformist to the Canons; if a Parson refuse to use the Common Prayer, or preach in Derogation of it; do not administer the Sacraments, or read the Articles of Religion, &c. If any Parson, Vicar, &c. have one Benefice with Cure of Souls, and take Plurality, without a Faculty or Dispensation: Or if he commit Waste in the Houses and Lands of the Church, called Dilapidations; all these have been held good Causes for Deprivations of Priests. Degg's Parson's Counsellor 98, 99, &c. 3 Inst. 264. And refusing to use the Common Prayers of the Church; Plurality of Livings, &c. are Causes of Deprivation ipso facto, in which Case the Church shall be void, without any Sentence declaratory; and Avoidances by Act of Parliament need no declaratory Sentence: But in other Cases there must be a declaratory Sentence. Dyer 275. Where a Benefice is only voidable, but not void before Sentence of Deprivation, the Party must be cited to appear, there is to be a Libel against him, and a Time assign'd to answer it, and also Liberty for Advocates to plead, and after all a solemn Sentence pronounced: Tho' none of these Formalities are required, where the Living is made ipso facto void. Can. 122. If a Deprivation be for a Thing merely of Ecclesiastical Cognizance, no Appeal lies; but the Party hath his Remedy by a Commission of Review, which is granted by the King of meer Grace. 26 H. 8. Moor 781.

Deputy, (Deputatus) Is he that exercises an Office, &c. in another Man's Right; whose Forfeiture or Misdemeanor, shall cause him, whose Deputy he is, to lose his Office. The Common Law takes Notice of Deputies in many Cases, but it never takes Notice of Under-Deputies; for a Deputy is generally but a Person authorised, who cannot authorise another. 1 Lill. Abr. 446. A Man cannot make his Deputy in all Cases; except the Grant of the Office justify him in it; as where it is to one, to execute by Deputy, &c. Litt. 379. Judges cannot Act by Deputy, but are to hold their Courts in Person; for they may not transfer their Power to others, as the Judges of the Ecclesiastical Courts may. 2 Hawk. P. C. 3. But it has been adjudged, that Recordors may hold their Courts by Deputy. 1 Lev. 76. 1 Nelf. 643. A Steward of a Court may make a Deputy; and Acts of an Under-Steward's Deputy have been held good in some Cases. Cro. El. 534. A Sheriff may make a Deputy; it is incident to his Office, though no express Power is given by his Patent; and he hath equal Power with the High Sheriff. 9 Rep. 49. A Coroner ought not to execute his Office by Deputy, it being a judicial Office of Trust, and judicial Offices are annexed to the Person. 1 Lill. 446. The Office of Custos Breviarum and Chirographer in C. B. cannot be executed by Deputy. 1 Nelf. Abr. 664. If the Office of Parkerhip be granted to one, he may not grant this to another; because it is an Office of Trust and Confidence. Terms de Ley 239. A Bailiff of a Liberty may make a Deputy. Cro. Jac. 240. And a Constable may make a Deputy, who may execute the Warrants directed to the Constable, &c. 2 Danv. 482. But according to Hawkins, it ought to be where by Reason of Sickness, Absence, &c. the Constable cannot serve himself. 2 Hawk. P. C. 62. When an Office descends to an Infant, Ideot, &c. such may make a Deputy of Course. 9 Rep. 47. Where an Office is granted to a Man and his Heirs, he may make an Assignee of that Office; and by Consequence a Deputy. 9 Rep. A Deputy of an Office, hath no Interest therein, but doth all Things in his Master's Name, and his Master shall be answerable; but an Assignee hath an Interest in the Office, and doth all Things in his own Name, for whom his Grantor shall not answer, unless in Special Cases. Terms de Ley 239, 240. A superior Officer must must answer for his Deputy in Civil Actions, if he is not sufficient: But in criminal Cases it is otherwise, wherein Deputies are to answer for themselves. 2 Inst. 191, 466. Doct. & Stud. c. 42.

De quibus sur Disseisin, Is a Writ of Entry, mentioned in our Books treating of Writs. Fitzb. N. B. 191.

Deraign or Dereyn, (Disfranchare) Seems to be deriv'd literally from the Fr. Defrayer, i. e. To confound and disorder, or Defranger, to turn out of Course or displace; as Deraignment or Departure out of Religion. Stat. 31 H. 8. c. 6. And Deraignment and Discharge of their Profession. 33 H. 8. c. 29. Which is spoken of those religious Men that forsook their Orders or Profession; and so doth Kitchin use it, where he says the Lessee entered into Religion, and afterwards was deraigned, p. 152: In our Common Law this Word is used diversly; but generally to prove any Thing; viz. to deraign that Right, Deraign the Warranty, &c. Glanvil, lib. 2. cap. 6. F. N. B. 146. If a Man hath an Estate in Fee with Warranty, and enfeoffs a Stranger with Warranty, and dies; and the Feoffee vouches the Heir, the Heir shall deraign the first Warranty, &c. Plowd. 7. And Jointenants and Tenants in Common shall have Aid, to the Intent to deraign the Warranty paramount. 31 H. 8. c. 1. Some have asserted this Word to signify nothing but the Proof or making good of the Denial of a Fact. Bracton, lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 28. Britton applieth it to a Summons that may be challenged as defective, or not lawfully made, cap. 21. And Skene confounds it with our Waging and Making of Law. See Lex Deraisnia.

Derelict, (Derelictus) Is any Thing forsaken or left; or wilfully cast away. Derelict Lands left by the Sea belong to the King. 2 Nels. Abr. 903.

Descent of Lands, Tenements, &c. See Descent.

Description, (Descriptio) In Decds and Grants there must be a certain Description of the Lands granted, the Places where the Lands lie, and of the Persons to whom granted, &c. to make them good: But Wills are more favoured than Grants as to those Descriptions; and a wrong Description of the Person will not make a Devise void, if there be otherwise a sufficient Certainty what Person was intended by the Testator. 1 Nels. Abr. 647. If there are several Descriptions of one Person in a Will, they must all agree at the Time of the Will executed, in Name, Circumstances, &c. or the Devise to such is void. Ibid.

De son tort Demesne, Are certain Words of Form used in Actions of Trespass, &c. by Way of Replication to the Defendant's Plea: For Example, A. sues B. in Action of Trespass. B. answers for himself, that he did that which is alleged against him by the Command of C. his Master; to which A. replies, that B. did it De son tort Demesne, sans ceo que C. luy command, modo & forma, viz. That B. did it of his own Wrong, without that, that C. commanded him, in such Form, &c. When the Defendant in jure proprio, or as a Servant to another, claims any Interest in a Common, or to a Way, &c. De son tort generally is not good: But if the Defendant justifies as Servant, there it may be good, with a Traverse of the Commandment, it being material; for the general Replication De son Tort is properly when the Defendant's Plea consists merely of Matter of Excuse, and no Matter of Interest. 8 Rep. 67. 1 Lill. Abr. 428. There ought to be a Conclusion to the Country in a Replication of De son

Tort; because the Replication should make an Issue of it. 3 Lev. 65. But there cannot be Variety of Matter put in Issue; as Matter of Record and Matter of Fact, &c. 3 Lev. 65. 2 Leon. 108.

Despitus, Signifies in our antient Law-Books a contemptible Person. Fleta, lib. 4. cap. 5. par. 4.

Desubito, To weary a Person with continual Barkings, and then to bite; which is provided against by old Laws. — Si Canis hominem Desubitet, aut mordeat tacitus, in prima culpa reddantur sex sol. Leg. Alured. 26.

Detachiate, To seize or take into Custody another Person's Goods, &c. by Attachment or other Course of Law. Cowel.

Detinet, A Word used in Writs, &c. See Debet and Detinet.

Detinue, (Detinendo) In the Common Law is like Actio Depositum in the Civil Law, and is a Writ which lies against him, who having Goods or Chattels delivered to keep, refuseth to redeliver them. In this Action the Thing detained is to be recovered; but if one cannot recover the Thing it self, he shall recover Damages for the Thing, and also for the Detainer. Wood's Inst. 542. Detinue lies for any Thing certain and valuable wherein one may have a Property or Right; as for a Horse, Cow, Sheep, Hens, Dogs, Beds, Jewels, Plate, Cloth, Bags of Money, Sacks of Corn, &c. It must be laid so certain, as the Thing detained may be known and recovered; and therefore for Money out of a Bag, or Corn out of a Sack, &c. it lies not, for the Money or Corn cannot in this Case be known from other Money or Corn; so that the Parry must have an Action on the Case, &c. 1 Inst. 286. F. N. B. 138. Yet Detinue may be brought for a Piece of Gold, of the Price of 22 s. tho' not for 22 s. in Money; for here is a Demand of a certain particular Piece. 2 Danv. Abr. 510. A Man lends a Sum of Money to another, Detinue lies not for it, but Debt: But if A. bargains and sells Goods to B. upon Condition to be void if A. pays B. a certain Sum of Money at a Day; now if A. pays the Money, he may have Detinue against B. for the Goods, tho' they come not to the Hands of B. by Bailment, but by Bargain and Sale. Cro. Eliz. 867. 2 Danv. 510. If a Man delivers Goods to A. to deliver to B. B. may have Detinue, for the Property is in him: And where he delivers them to B. and after grants them to D. he shall not have Detinue after the Grant, but the Grantee shall have it. Yelv. 241. 1 Bulst. 69. When Goods are deliver'd to one, and he delivers them over to another, Action of Detinue may be had against the second Person; and if he delivers them to one that has a Right thereto, yet 'tis said he is chargeable: Also if a Person to whom a Thing is delivered dieth, Detinue lieth against his Executors, &c. or against any Person to whom the Thing comes. 2 Danv. Abr. 511. A Man may have a general Detinue against another that finds his Goods: Tho' if I deliver any Thing to A. to redeliver, and he loses it, if B. finds it and delivers it to C. who has Right to the same, he is not chargeable to me in Detinue, because he is not privy to my Delivery. 7 H. 6. 22. 9 H. 6. 58. In Actions of Detinue, the Thing must be once in the Possession of the Defendant; which Possession is not to be altered by Act of Law, as Seizure, &c. And the Nature of the Thing must continue, without Alteration, to entitle this Action. F. N. B. 138. To bring Detinue, the Plaintiff must set forth the Time and Thing delivered, to what Use the same was delivered, and the Time appointed for the Redelivery thereof. Practif. Solic. But Actions of Detinue are not so frequently brought as formerly; for Actions of Trover and Conversion are had in their Stead, where the Conversion changes the Detinue to Action of the Case; and thereby the tedious Proceedings as to Garnishment, &c. are now out of Use. 10 Rep. 57. 1 Inst. 286. Detinet is a necessary Word in the Writ of Detinue.

Detinue of Charters. A Man may have Detinue for Deeds and Charters concerning Land; but if they concern the Freehold, it must be in C. B. and no other Court. Action of Detinue lies for Charters which make the Title of Lands; and the Heir may have a Detinue of Charters, altho' he hath not the Land: And if my Father be disseised, and dieth, I shall have Detinue for the Charters, notwithstanding I have not the Land; but the Executors shall not have the Action for them. New Nat. Br. 308. Detinue was brought for a Deed, and the Plaintiff had a Verdict, that the Defendant detained the Deed, and the Jury gave 20 l. Damages, but did not find the Value of the Deed; and then there issued out a Distingas to deliver the Deed, or the Value, and afterwards a Writ of Inquiry was awarded for the Value; whereupon the Jury found a different Value from what the first Verdict found; and it was adjudg'd good. Raym. 124. 1 Nelf. Abr. 649. In Detinue of Charters, if the Issue be upon the Detinue, and it is found that the Defendant hath burnt the Charters, the Judgment shall not be to recover the Charters, which it appears cannot be had; but 'tis said it shall be for the Plaintiff to recover the Land in Damages. 2 Roll. Abr. 101. 2 Danv. Abr. 511. For Detaining of Deeds and Charters concerning the Inheritance of Lands, or an Indenture of Lease, the Defendant shall not wage his Law. 1 Inst. 295.

Detinue of Goods in Frank-marriage, Is on a Divorce betwixt a Man and his Wife; when, after the Divorce, the Wife shall have this Writ of Detinue for the Goods given with her in Marriage. M. 35 E. 1. New Nat. Br. 308.

Detractare, Is a Word signifying to be torn in Pieces with Horses. — Apostata, Sacrilegi, & hujusmodi, detractari debent & comburi. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 37.

Detunicare, To discover or lay open to the World. Matt. Westm. 1240.

Devadiatus, Is where an Offender is without Sureties or Pledges. Si homo in Villa delinquit & Devadiatus fuerit, nil inde habet Præpositus Regis. Domesd. tit. Sudrei.

Devastavit, or Devastaverunt bona Testatoris, Is a Writ that lies against Executors or Administrators, for paying Debts upon simple Contract, before Debts on Bonds and Specialties, &c. for in this Case they are as liable to Action as if they had squandered away the Goods of the Deceased, or converted them to their own Use; and are compellable to pay such Debts by Specialty out of their own Goods, to the Value of what they so paid illegally. Dyer 232. But if an Executor pays Debts upon simple Contract, before he hath any Notice of Bonds, it is no Devastavit; and regularly this Notice is by an Action commenced against him, for the Law doth not oblige him to take Notice of it himself, nor of a Judgment against his Testator, because he is not privy to Acts done either by or against him. 1 Mod. 175. 3 Lev. 115. Where an Executor, &c. payeth Legacies before Debts, and hath not sufficient to pay both, 'tis a Devastavit. Also where an Executor sells the Testator's Goods at an Undervalue, it is a Devastavit; but this is understood where the Sale is fraudulent, for if more Money could not be had, it is otherwise. Kelw. 59. 1 Nelf. Abr. 649. Executors keeping the Goods of the Deceased in their Hands, and not paying the Testator's Debts; or selling of them, and not paying of Debts, &c. or not observing the Law which directs them in the Management thereof; or doing any Thing by Negligence or Fraud, whereby the Estate of the Deceased is misemployed, are a Devastavit or Waste; and they shall be charged for so much De bonis propriis, as if for their own Debt. 8 Rep. 133. But the Fraud or Negligence of one Executor is not chargeable on the Rest, where there are several Executors. 1 Roll. Abr. 929. There are some Cases in the old Books, that where an Executor wastes the Goods of the Testator, and afterwards makes his Executor, and dies, leaving Assets, that an Action of Debt will not lie against the Executor of the wasting Executor, upon a Suggestion of a Devastavit or Waste by the first Executor; because 'tis a personal Wrong which died with him. 3 Leon. 241. But in this Case there is a Difference between a lawful Executor and an Executor de son Tort; for as an Executor de son Tort possesses himself of the Goods wrongfully, if he afterwards wastes them, and dies, leaving Assets, his Executor shall be charged upon the Suggestion of a Devastavit in his Testator, because he came wrongfully by the Goods, and therefore the Wrong shall not die with his Person. 2 Lev. 135. And before the Statute 30 Car. 2. c. 7. it has been decreed in Equity against the Executor of a lawful Executor, who had wasted the Goods, and died, that such Executor should be liable to make good to the Creditors of the Testator, so much as the first Executor had wasted, and so far as he had Assets of the said first Executor. 1 Ch. Rep. 257. By that Statute 'tis enacted, that if an Executor de son Tort wastes the Goods, and dies, his Executors shall be liable in the same Manner as their Testator would have been if he had been living. And it has been since adjudged, that a rightful Executor who wastes the Goods of the Testator, is in Effect an Executor de son Tort for abusing his Trust; and therefore his Executor or Administrator may be liable to a Devastavit. 3 Mod. 113. Debt lies against an Executor in the Debet and Detinet, where there is a Judgment against his Testator, upon a Suggestion only, that he had wasted the Goods; and this is a more expeditious Way than the old Method of Scire fac. Inquiry, which was issued to shew Cause why the Plaintiff should not have Execution against the Executor de Bonis propriis, and thereupon the Sheriff return'd a Devastavit, &c. 1 Lev. 147. 1 Nelf. 650. A Husband is to be charged for Waste done by his Wife Dum sola: But the Husband is not chargeable after the Death of a Wife Executrix, on Suggestion of a Devastavit in a Declaration against him. Cro. Car. 603. Lutw. 672. And it has been adjudged, that a Feme Covert Executor cannot do any Waste during the Coverture; tho' for Waste done by the Husband she shall be charged, if she survives him; but then it must be on a Judgment obtained against him, and not on a bare Suggestion of a Devastavit, &c. 2 Lev. 145. See Debet & Detinet.

Devenerunt,

Debenerunt, A Writ heretofore directed to the Escheator on the Death of the Heir of the King's Tenant, under Age and in Custody, commanding the Escheator that by the Oaths of good and lawful Men, he enquire what Lands and Tenements by the Death of the Tenant came to the King. Dyer 360. This Writ is now disused: But see Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 11. for preventing Frauds and Abuses in his Majesty's Customs.

Debest, (Devestire) Is opposite to invest; for as Invest signifies to deliver the Possession of any Thing to another; so Devest signifieth the Taking it away. Feud. lib. 1. cap. 7.

Debise, (from the Fr. Deviser, to divide or sort into Parcels) Is properly where a Man gives away any Lands or Tenements by Will in Writing. And he that gives away his Lands in this Manner, is called the Devisor; and he to whom the Lands are given, the Devisee. A Devise in Writing is, in Law Construction, no Deed; but an Instrument by which Lands are conveyed. And anciently where Lands were devisable, it was by Custom only; for at Common Law, in Favour of Heirs, no Lands or Tenements in Fee-simple were devisable by Will; nor could they be transferred from one to another but by solemn Livery and Seisin; Matter of Record, or sufficient Deed or Writing. 1 Inst. 111. 2 Inst. 386, &c. But now it is otherwise by Statute 32 Hen. 8. See Will.

Devoires of Calais, Were the Customs due to the King, for Merchandize brought into or carried out of Calais, when our Staple remained there. 2 R. 2. Stat. 1. c. 3. Devoir in French signifies a Duty, paying their Customs and Devoires to the King. Stat. 34 Ed. 1. c. 18.

Dextrarius. The Word Dextrarios, has been used for light Horses, or Horses for the great Saddle; from the Fr. Destrier, a Horse for Service. — *Willielmus de B. dedit Regi tres Dextrarios, quinque Chacuros, &c. pro habenda seiscina Castr. de Grosmunt, &c. Dickar or Dicker of Leather, Is a certain Quantity consisting of ten Hides, by which Leather is bought and sold: There are also Dickers of Iron, containing ten Bars to the Dicker. This Word is thought to come from the Greek Deca's, which signifies Ten. Domesd.

Dictor and Dictum: The one signifies an Arbitrator, and the other the Arbitrament. — Protulit Dictum suum & sententiam pro Rege Angliæ. Malmf. p. 384.

Dictum de Kenilworth, Was an Edict or Award, between King Henry the Third and his Barons and others, who had been in Arms against him; so called, because it was made at Kenilworth Castle in Warwickshire, Anno 51. Hen. 3. It contained a Composition of those who had forfeited their Estates in that Rebellion, which Composition was five Years Rent of the Lands and Estates forfeited.

Diem clausit extremum, Was a Writ issued out of the Court of Chancery to the Escheator of the County, upon the Death of any of the King's Tenants in Capite, to enquire by a Jury of what Lands he died seised, and of what Value, and who was the next Heir to him: And the same ought to be granted at the Suit of the next Heir, &c. for upon that, when the Heir came of Age, he was to sue Livery of his Lands out of the King's Hands. F. N. B. 251.

Dies. There are several Sorts of Days, i. e. Days natural, artificial and legal; and Sunday is not only Dies non Juridicus as to legal Proceedings, but also as to Contracts. 2 Inst. 264. See Day.

Dies datus, Is a Day or Time of Respite given to the Defendant in a Suit by the Court. Broke.

Dies Marchiæ, Was the Day of Congress or Meeting of the English and Scotch, appointed annually to be held on the Marches or Borders, to adjust all Differences between them, and preserve the Articles of Peace. — *Convenerunt ad Diem Marchiæ, & conventum fuit inter eos pro commodo pacis, &c. Dieu Son Ait, Are Words often used in our old Law: And it is a Maxim in Law, That the Ait of God shall prejudice no Man. Therefore, if a House be blown down by Tempest, Thunder or Lightning, the Lessee or Tenant for Life or Years, shall be excused in Waste: Likewise he hath by the Law a special Interest to take Timber, to build the House again for his Habitation. 4 Rep. 63. 11 Rep. 82. So when the Condition of a Bond consists of two Parts in the Disjunctive, and both are possible at the Time of the Obligation made, and afterwards one of them becomes impossible by the Ait of God, the Obligor is not bound to perform the other Part. 5 Rep. 22. Dignity, (Dignitas) Signifies Honour and Authority; Gravity, Reputation, &c. And Dignity may may be divided into Superior and Inferior: As the Titles of Duke, Earl, Baron, &c. are the highest Names of Dignity; and those of Baronet, Knight, Serjeant at Law, &c. the lowest. Nobility only can give so high a Name of Dignity, as to supply the Want of a Surname in legal Proceedings: And as the Omission of a Name of Dignity, may be pleaded in Abatement of a Writ, &c. so it may be where a Peer who has more than one Name of Dignity, is not named by the most Noble. 2 Hawk. P. C. 185, 230. No Temporal Dignity of any Foreign Nation can give a Man a higher Title here than that of Esquire. 2 Inst. 667. See Addition and Discent.

Dignity Ecclesiastical, (Dignitas Ecclesiastica) Is defined by the Canonists to be Administratio cum Jurisdictione & Potestate aliqua conjuncta; of which there are several Examples in Duarenus, de Sacris Eccles. &c. lib. 2. c. 6. Dignities Ecclesiastical are mentioned in the Stat. 26 H. 8. cap. 31 & 32. And of Church Dignities, Camden in his Britannia, p. 161. reckons in England 544.

Dignitaries, (Dignitarii) Are those who are advanced to any Dignity Ecclesiastical; as a Bishop, Dean, Archdeacon, Prebendary, &c. But there are simple Prebendaries, without Cure or Jurisdiction, which are not Dignitaries. 3 Inst. 155.

Dilapidation, (Dilapidatio) Is where an Incumbent on a Church Living, suffers the Parsonage House or Outhouses to fall down, or be in Decay, for Want of necessary Reparation: Or it is the Pulling down or Destroying any of the Houses or Buildings, belonging to a Spiritual Living, or destroying of the Woods, Trees, &c. appertaining to the same; for it is said to extend to the Committing or Suffering any wilful Waste, in or upon the Inheritance of the Church. Degg's Parf. Counf. 89. 'Tis the Interest of the Church in general to preserve what belongs to it for the Benefit of the Successors; and the old Canons, and our own provincial Constitutions, require the Clergy sufficiently to repair the Houses belonging to their Benefices; which if they neglect or refuse to do, the Bishop may sequester the Profits of the Benefice for that Purpose, &c. Right's Clerg. 143. And by the Canon Law, Dilapidations are made a Debt, which is to be satisfied out of the Profits of the Church; but the Common Law prefers Debt on Contract, &c. before Debt for Dilapidations. Hern. 136. The Prosecution in these Cases, may be brought either against the Incumbent himself, or against his Executors or Administrators; for the Executor or Administrator of him in whose Time it was done or suffered, must make Amends to the Successor: And if you proceed against the Incumbent, then it is proper in the Spiritual Court: Likewise you may proceed in the Spiritual Court against an Executor, or the Successor may have an Action of the Case or Debt at the Common Law, in which Action he shall recover Damages in Proportion to the Dilapidations. 1 Nelf. Abr. 656. By Statute, if any Parson, &c. shall make a Gift of his Goods and personal Estate, to defraud his Successor, as to Dilapidations, such Successor may have the same Remedy in the Spiritual Court against the Person to whom such Gift is made, as he might have against the Executors of the deceased Parson. 13 Eliz. cap. 10. And Money recovered for Dilapidations, is to be employed in the Reparations of the same Houses suffered to be in Decay; or the Party recovering shall forfeit double the Value of what he receives, to the King, by Stat. 14 Eliz. cap. 11. Where in our Books 'tis said, that Dilapidations are suable for only in the Ecclesiastical Court, that is to be intended where the Suit is grounded upon the Canon Law; for an Action of the Case might have been brought at the Common Law by the Successor against the Executors of the Dilapidator. Parf. Counf. 97, 98. If a Parson suffers Dilapidations, and afterwards takes another Benefice, whereby his former Benefice becomes void; his Successor may have an Action against him, and declare, that by the Custom of the Kingdom he ought to pay him Tantas Denarium summas quantas sufficient ad Reparandum, &c. 3 Lev. 268. In case a Parson comes to a Living, the Buildings whereof are in Decay by Dilapidations, and his Predecessor did not leave a sufficient personal Estate to repair them, so that he is without Remedy; he is to have the Defects surveyed by Workmen, and attested under their Hands in the Presence of Witnesses, which may be a Means to secure him from the Incumbrance brought upon him by the Fault of his Predecessor. Country Parf. Compan. 60.

Diminution, (Diminutio) Is where the Plaintiff or Defendant in a Writ of Error alledges to the Court that Part of the Record is omitted and remains in the inferior Court not certified; whereupon he prays that it may be certified by Certiorari. Co. Ent. 232, 242. Of course Diminution is to be certified on a Writ of Error; tho' if Issue be joined upon the Errors assigned, and the Matter is entered upon Record, which is made a Consilium, in this Case there must be a Rule of Court granted for a Certiorari to certify Diminution. 1 Lill. Abr. 255. Diminution cannot be alledged of a Thing which is fully certified; but in something that is wanting, as Want of an Original, or a Warrant of Attorney, &c. 2 Lev. 206. 1 Nelf. Abr. 658. And if on Diminution alledged, the Plaintiff in Errors certify one Original, &c. which is wrong; and the Defendant in Errors certifies another that is true; the true one shall stand. Cro. Jac. 597. Cro. Car. 91. After a Writ of Error brought, and the Defendant hath pleaded In nullo est Erratum, he cannot afterwards alledge Diminution; because by that Plea he affirmeth or alloweth the Record to be such as is certified upon the Writ of Error. Godb. 266. But in some Cases, Diminution hath been alledged, after In nullo est erratum pleaded, ex gratia Curie; though not ex rigore juris. Palm. 85. And there is an Instance that the Court in such a Case hath awarded a Certiorari, to inform their Conscience of the Truth of the Record in C. B. where the Defendant in Error had not joined In nullo est Erratum. 1 Nelf. 658.

Dimissory Letters, (Litteræ Dimissoriæ) Are such as are used where a Candidate for Holy Orders has a Title in one Diocese, and is to be ordained in another: The proper Diocesan sends his Letters Dimissory directed to some other ordaining Bishop, giving Leave that the Bearer may be ordained, and have such a Cure within his District. Corwel.

Diocese, (Diœcesis) Signifies the Circuit of every Bishop's Jurisdiction: For this Realm hath two Sorts of Divisions; one into Shires or Counties, in Respect to the Temporal State; and another into Dioceses, in Regard to the Ecclesiastical State, of which we reckon twenty-two in England, and four in Wales. 1 Inst. 94. Also the Kingdom is said to be divided in its Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction into two Provinces, of Canterbury and York; each of which Provinces is divided into Dioceses, and every Diocese into Archdeaconries, and Archdeaconries into Parishes, &c. Wood's Inst. 2.

Disability, (Disabilitas) Is when a Man is disabled, or made incapable to inherit any Lands, or take that Benefit, which otherwise he might have done: Which may happen four Ways; by the Act of an Ancestor, or of the Party himself, by the Act of God, or of the Law. 1. Disability by the Act of the Ancestor, is where the Ancestor is attainted of Treason, &c. which corrupts the Blood of his Children; so that they may not inherit his Estate. 2. Disability by the Act of the Party, is where a Man binds himself by Obligation, that upon Surrender of a Lease, he will grant a new Estate to the Lessee; and afterwards he grants over the Reversion to another, which puts it out of his Power to perform it. 3. Disability by the Act of God, is where a Person is Non sane Memoria, whereby he is incapable to make any Grant, &c. So that in all Cases where he passeth any Estate out of him, it may after his Death be made void; but it is a Maxim in Law, That a Man of full Age shall never be re-versed to disable his own Person. 4. Disability by the Act of the Law, is where a Man by the sole Act of the Law, without any Thing by him done, is rendered incapable of the Benefit of the Law; as an Alien born, &c. Terms de Ley, 256. 5 Rep. 21. 4 Rep. 123, 124. 8 Rep. 43. There are also other Disabilities, by the Common Law, and Statute Law; by the Common Law, Ideocy, Infancy and Coverture, as to Grants, &c. And by Statute in many Cases; as Papists are disabled to make any Presentation to a Church, &c. Officers not taking the Oaths, are incapable to hold Offices; Foreigners, though naturalized, to bear Offices in the Government, &c. 11 Rep. 77. Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. 1 & 3 Geo. See Capacity.

Disabvotare, Signifies to deny, or not to acknowledge a Thing: It is mentioned in Hengham Magna, cap. 4.

Disalt, According to Littleton, is to disable a Person. Litt. Tit. Discontinuance.

Disboscatio, A Turning Wood Ground into Arable or Pasture.

Discharge, (from Dis and Cargo) Is to unlade a Ship or Vessel by taking out the Cargo or Goods. — Et prædictus, &c. Carcare & Discharge fecit ibidem Merchandis & Denariis quascunque. Placit. Parl. 18 Ed. 1.

Disceit, A Writ or Action for Fraud and Deceit. See Deceit.

Discent, (Lat. Descensus, Fr. Descent) Is an Order or Means whereby Lands or Tenements are derived unto any Man from his Ancestors. And is either by Common Law, Custom or Statute: By Common Law, as where one hath Land of Inheritance in Fee-simple, and dieth without disposing thereof in his Life-time, and the Land goes to the eldest Son and Heir of Course, being cast upon him by Law. 1 Inst. 13, 237. Discent of Fee-simple by Custom, is sometimes to all the Sons, or to all the Brothers, where one Brother dieth without Issue; as in Gavelkind: Sometimes to the youngest Son, as in Borough English; and sometimes to the eldest Daughter, or the Youngest, &c. according to the Customs of particular Places. 1 Inst. 110, 140, 175. Litt. 210, 211. And Discent by Statute of Fee-tail, is as directed by the Manner of the Settlement or Limitation, pursuant to the Stat. Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 1. Discent as Common Law, is Lineal, or Collateral: Lineal is a Discent downwards in a right Line, from the Grandfather to the Father, the Father to the Son, Son to Grandson, &c. and the lineal Heirs shall first inherit. Collateral is a Discent which springeth out of the Side of the whole Blood, as another Branch thereof; such as the Grandfather's Brother, Father's Brother, and so downward. 1 Inst. 10, 11. Therefore if a Man purchaseth Lands in Fee-simple, and dies without Issue, for Default of the right Line, he which is next of Kin in the collateral Line of the whole Blood, though never so remote, comes in by Discent as Heir to him; for there is a next of Kin by Right of Representation, and by Right of Propinquity or Nearness of Blood. Litt. 2. 1 Ventr. 415. 3 Rep. 40. To have Land in Fee-simple by Discent, a Person must be Heir of the whole Blood; he is to be the next, and most worthy of Blood, to the Ancestor; and he ought to be Heir to him that was last actually seized. Where Lands descend to the Son from the Father, and he enters on the Lands, and dies seized thereof, without having any Issue, this Land will descend to the Heirs of the Part of the Father, who are of the whole Blood; and if there are none such, the Land shall escheat: So where Lands descend on the Part of the Mother. Litt. Sect. 4. 1 Inst. 13. And there is a Maxim in Law, that where Lands descend on the Part of the Father, the Heirs of the Mother shall never inherit; and where Lands descend on the Part of the Mother, the Heirs of the Father shall never inherit. 1 Inst. 14. But there is a Difference between Discents from Father and Mother to their Children, and Discents between Brothers and Sisters; for a Son or a Daughter need be only of the Blood of either the Father or Mother, which hath the Inheritance to inherit them: Though the Brothers and Sisters must be of the same Father and Mother, to inherit one another. Noy 68. The next and most worthy of Blood are the Male, and all Descendants from him, before the Females; and the Female on the Part of the Father, before the Male or Female of the Part of the Mother: And the elder Brother, and his Posterity, shall have Lands in Fee-simple, before any younger Brother: Also a Sister of the whole Blood shall be preferred and take before the younger Brother which is of the half Blood; but such a younger Brother, though he may not be Heir to a Brother, for Want of the whole Blood, yet he may be Heir to his Father, or his Uncle. 1 Inst. 14. 3 Rep. 41. As to being Heir to him last actually seized: If Tenant in Fee-simple hath a Son and a Daughter by one Woman or Venter, and a Son by another Venter, and dies seized, and the elder Son dies without Issue, before actual Seisin, the younger Brother as Heir to the Father shall have the Estate; but if the elder Brother had entered on the Lands, the Sister would would have it as Heir to him. 1 Inst. 11, 15. Lit. 8. None can inherit any Lands as Heir, but only the Blood of the first Purchaser; as if the Father make a Purchase, the Blood of the Mother shall not have the Estate: But if a Son purchases, and there is no Heir on the Side of the Father, the Land shall go to the Heirs on the Side of the Mother; for they are of the Blood of the Son the first Purchaser, and he had the Blood of both Father and Mother. Litt. 4. 1 Inst. 12. So that there is a Difference where the Son purchaseth Lands in Fee-simple, and where he cometh to them by Discent. If a Man hath Issue two Sons by divers Venters, the younger Brother of the half Blood shall not have Land purchased by the elder Brother, on his Dying without Issue; but the elder Brother's Uncle, or next Cousin shall have it. 1 Inst. 14. The elder Brother of the whole Blood shall have Land by Discent, purchased by a middle or younger Brother, if such die without Issue; (for as to *Discent*s between Brethren, the Eldest is the most worthy of Blood to inherit to them as well as to the Father). And if there be no Brother or Sister, the Uncle shall have it as Heir, and not the Father: And yet it may afterwards come to the Father, as Heir to the Uncle; likewise if the Father hath Issue another Son or Daughter, after the Discent to the Uncle, that Issue may enter upon the Uncle, and hold the Estate. Lit. 3. 3 Rep. 40. The Law takes no Notice of the Disability of the Father in case of Discent, but only of the immediate Relation of Brothers and Sisters, as to their Estates; so that the Inability of the Father doth not hinder the Discent between them: For Example; A Man had Issue a Son and a Daughter, and was attainted of Treason, and died; the Son purchased Lands, and died without Issue; and it was adjudged that notwithstanding the Attainder of the Father, the Daughter shall take by Discent from her Brother, because the Discent between them was immediate, and the Law doth not regard the Disability of the Father. 4 Leon. 5. 1 Nelf. Abr. 645. Inheritances may descend, but not ascend: And in the right Line, Children inherit their Ancestors without Limitation; but the Ancestors may not take from their Children, for the Father can never come to the Lands which his Son hath purchased by lineal Assent; tho' he may by collateral Assent, where the Son's Lands come to his Uncle, and then to the Father. In the collateral Line, the Uncle inherits the Nephew, and the Nephew the Uncle. Litt. 3. 3 Rep. 40. Vaugh. 244. Lands and Tenements in Fee-simple descend, first, to the eldest Son as Heir, and to his Issue; the Sons first, in Order of Birth; and for Want of Sons, to the Daughters equally, who inherit as one Heir; if the eldest Son hath no Issue, then to his next eldest Brother of the whole Blood, and his Heirs; and for Want of a Brother, to his Sister or Sisters of the whole Blood, and their Issue; if there be no Brother or Sister, to the Uncle and his Issue; and for Want of an Uncle, to an Aunt or Aunts, and their Issue; and if there be none such, then to Cousins, in the nearest Degree of Consanguinity. Bacon's Elem. And in case of Lands purchased by Brethren; after Uncles and Aunts, the Land shall descend to the Father, and the half Blood, and their Issue; (who come in after the Father, being of the whole Blood to him, tho' not to one another) and for Want of Uncle, Father, and half Blood, to the next of Kin in the collateral Line. Wood's Inst. 218. In Discent of Estates tail, half Blood is no Hindrance; because the Issue are in per formam Doni, and always of the whole Blood to the Donee. 3 Rep. 41. If one die seised of Land, in which another has Right to enter, and it descends to his Heir; such Discent shall take away the other's Right of Entry, and put him to his Action for Recovery thereof. Stat. 32 Hen. 8. c. 33. Co. Lit. 237. But a Discent of such Things as lie in Grant; as Advowsons, Rents, Commons in gross, &c. puts not him that hath Right to his Action. 1 Inst. 237. 2 Danv. Abr. 561. And a Discent shall not take away the Entry of an Infant; nor of a Feme Covert, where the Wrong was done to her during the Coverture. 2 Danv. 563. See Kindred.

Discent being created by Law, and the most ancient Title, an Heir is in by that, before a Grant, or Devise, &c. 'Tis a Rule in Law, that a Man cannot raise a Fee-simple to his own right Heirs, by the Name of Heirs, as a Purchase, either by Conveyance or Devise; for if he devise Lands to one who is Heir at Law, the Devise is void, and he shall take by Discent. Dyer 54, 126. And 'tis the same where the Lands will come to the Heir, either in a direct or collateral Line; or where the Heir comes to an Estate by Way of Limitation, when the Word Heirs is not a Word of Purchase. Ibid. A Father hath two Sons by several Venters, and devises his Land to his Wife for Life, and after her Decease to his eldest Son; though the Son doth not take the Estate presently on the Death of his Father, he shall be in by Discent, and not by Purchase, and the Devise shall be void as to him. Style 148. 1 Nelf. Abr. 645. A Man being seised of Lands which he had by the Mother's Side, devised them to his Heirs on the Part of his Mother; and it was adjudged that the Devisee shall take by Discent. 3 Lev. 127. And when the Heir takes that which his Ancestor would have taken if living, he shall take it by Discent, and not by Purchase. 2 Danv. 557. But generally where an Estate is devised to the Heir at Law, attended with a Charge, as to pay Money, Debts, &c. in such Case, he takes by Purchase, and not by Discent. Though Conditions to pay Money have been construed only a Charge in Equity; and that they do not alter the Discent at Common Law. 1 Lutw. 595; 1 Salk. 241. A Man can have Lands no other Way than by Discent or Purchase. And Discent is the worthiest Means whereby Land can be acquired.

Discent of Crown-Lands. All the Lands whereof the King is seised in jure Coronae, shall secundum jus Coronae attend upon and follow the Crown; so that to whomsoever the Crown descends, those Lands and Possessions descend also. And if the Heir to the Crown be attainted of Treason; yet shall the Crown descend to him, and without any Reversal the Attainder is avoided. Plowd. 247. Co. Lit. 15. The Dignity of the Crown of England, for Want of Heirs Male, is descendible immediately to the eldest Daughter, and her Posterity; and so it has been declared by Act of Parliament: And by Stat. 25 Hen. 2. cap. 22. Regnum non est Divisibile. The eldest Sister of a King, as well as the eldest Daughter, shall inherit all his Fee-simple Lands by Discent: And half Blood is no Impediment to the Discent of the Lands of the Crown. Co. Lit. 15, 165. But a Daughter of the whole Blood, shall not inherit where there is a Son of the half half Blood ; as where the King hath Issue a Son and a Daughter by one Venter, and a Son by another Venter, and purchases Lands, and dies ; afterwards the eldest Son enters and dies also without Issue, the Daughter shall not have these Lands, or any other Fee-simple Lands of the Crown, but they shall descend to the younger Brother. Plowd. 245. 34 H. 6. A Person coming to be King by Discent of the Part of his Mother, makes a Purchase to him and his Heirs, and dies without Issue, this Land shall descend to the Heir on the Part of the Mother ; contrary to the Case of a Subject, where the Heir on the Father's Side shall enjoy it. Ibid. Co. Litt. 16. As the whole Kingdom hath an Interest in the Discent of the Crown, the King cannot surrender or alien it, &c. See Crown.

Discent of Dignities. A Dignity also differs from common Inheritances, and goes not according to the Rules of the Common Law ; for it descends to the half Blood, and there is no Coparcenership in it, but the Eldest takes the Whole. Co. Litt. 27. The Dignity of Peccage is personal, annexed to the Blood, and so inseparable that it cannot be transferred to any Person, or surrendered even to the Crown ; it can move neither forward nor backward, but only downward to Posterity ; and nothing but Corruption of Blood, as if the Ancestor be attainted of Treason or Felony, can hinder the Discent to the right Heir. Lex Constitutionis, pag. 85.

Discharge, Is where a Man confined by some legal Writ or Authority, doth that which by Law he is required to do, whereupon he is released from the Matter for which he was confined. And if one be arrested by a Latitat out of B. R. and the Plaintiff do not file a Declaration against the Defendant in Prison in two Terms, he shall be discharged on common Bail. 1 Lill. Abr. 470. Also where a Defendant on Arrest is admitted to Bail, if the Bail bring in the Principal before the Return of the second Scire facias issued out against them, they shall be discharged. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. If an Obligee by his own Act, discharges one joint Obligor, where several are jointly bound ; it discharges the others. March 129. And a Man may discharge a Promise made to himself, but not by himself. Cro. Jac. 483. See Acquittal, and vide Habeas Corpus.

Disclaimer, (Disclamium, from the Fr. Clamer, with the Privative Dis) Is a Plea containing an express Denial, or Renouncing of a Thing ; as if a Tenant sue a Replevin, upon the Distress of the Lord, and the Lord avows the Taking, saying the Tenant holds of him as of his Lord, and that he distrained for the Rent not paid, or Service not performed : Now if the Tenant say he doth not hold of him, this is called a Disclaimer, and the Lord proving the Tenant to hold of him, on a Writ of Right brought, the Tenant shall lose his Land. Terms de Ley 263. And if a Writ of Præcipe be brought against two Persons for Land, and one of them the Tenant, saith that he is not Tenant, nor claims any Thing in the Lands ; this is a Disclaimer as to him, and the other shall have the whole Land. Ibid. Also when a Tenant hath disclaimed, upon Action brought against him, he shall not have Restitution on Writ of Error, &c. against his own Act ; but is barred of his Right to the Land disclaimed. 8 Rep. 62. But a verbal Disclaimer, shall not take Place against a Deed of Lands : Nor shall the Disclaimer of a Wife, during the Coverture, bar her Entry on his Lands. 3 Rep. 26. Baron and Feme may disclaim for the Wife ; though if the Husband hath nothing but in Right of his Wife, he cannot disclaim. 2 Danv. Abr. 569. Such Person as cannot lose the Thing perpetually in which he disclaims, shall not be permitted to disclaim : As a Bishop, &c. may not disclaim, for he cannot de-vest the Right out of the Church. Though in a Quo Warranto, at the Suit of the King, against a Bishop or others for Franchises and Liberties, if the Bishop, &c. disclaims them, this shall bind their Successors. Co. Litt. 102, 103. If a Man be vouched because of a Reversion upon a Lease made by himself, he cannot disclaim : But an Heir may disclaim, being vouched upon a Lease made by his Ancestor. 2 Danv. 569. A Person may not disclaim in the Principal, and not in the Incident ; as he that is vouched because of a Reversion, cannot disclaim in the Reversion, saving the Seigniority. 40 Ed. 3. 27. If the Lord disclaims his Seigniority, in a Court of Record, it is extinct ; and the Tenant shall hold of the Lord next paramount to the Lord disclaiming. Lit. Sect. 146. It is said not to be necessary, that the Writ of Right sur Disclaimer should be brought against the Person that disclaims ; for if it be only against him that is found Tenant of the Land, though he be a Stranger, it is not material. 2 Danv. 570. By Plea of Non-tenure, nothing is disowned but the Freehold, which may be good where the Tenant hath the Reversion in Fee, and not the Freehold ; but when such Tenant disclaims, or pleads Non-tenure and disclaims, the Demandant shall have the Whole, as the Whole is disclaimed. Ibid. Beside these Disclaimers by Tenants of Lands, there are Disclaimers in divers other Cases : For there is a Disclaimer of Blood, where a Person denies himself to be of the Blood or Kindred of another in his Plea. F. N. B. 102. And there is a Disclaimer of Goods, as well as Lands ; as if a Man disclaimeth Goods, on Arraignment of Felony, when he shall lose them, though he be cleared. Staundf. P. C. 186. In the Chancery, if a Defendant by his Answer renounces the having any Interest in the Thing in Question, this is likewise a Disclaimer. And there is a Deed of Disclaimer of Executorship of a Will, &c. where an Executor refuses, and throws up the same.

Form of a Disclaimer of Executorship.

THIS Indenture tripartite, made the Day, &c. Between A. B. of, &c. of the first Part, C. D. of, &c. of the second Part, and L. B. of, &c. of the third Part : Whereas T. B. late of, &c. duly made and published his last Will and Testament in Writing, bearing Date, &c. And thereby devised (amongst other Things) all that Messuage, &c. to the said L. B. and also gave and bequeathed, &c. and made the said A. B. and C. D. Executors and Trustees of his said Will, as in and by the said Will may more fully appear. And whereas the said T. B. soon after the Making and Publishing of the said Will, died : And the said A. B. hath refused to accept the said Executorship and Trust, and never acted therein, nor ever received any of the Rents and Profits of the said Messuage, or of the Goods and Chattels of the Testator T. B. But the said C. D. alone proved the said Will, and took upon him the Execution thereof. Now this Indenture witnesseth, That the said A. B. as a farther Declaration of his not acting in the Executorship aforesaid, and to free himself from the same, doth by these Presents renounce and disclaim the said Executorship, and all the Trusts reposed in him by the said recited Will: And doth also by these Presents remise and release unto the said C. D. his Executors and Administrators, all the Estate, Right, Title and Interest of him the said A. B. in and to the said Premises, by Virtue of the said recited Will, or otherwise howsoever. In Witnes, &c.

Discontinuance, (Discontinuatio, Derived from the Fr. Discontinuer, i. e. Cessare) Signifies an Interruption or Breaking off; and is twofold, Discontinuance of Possession, and Discontinuance of Process: The Effect of Discontinuance of Possession is, that a Man may not enter upon his own Lands or Tenements alienated, whatever his Right be to it, of his own Authority, but must bring his Writ, and seek to recover Possession by Law. Co. Lit. 325. F. N. B. 191. Where a Tenant in Tail, or a Man seised in Right of his Wife, &c. by Feoffment, Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life, by Fine or Livery, not warranted by the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. aliens the Estate; such Alienations are called Discontinuances: Whereby the Wife after her Husband's Death, and the Issue in Tail after the Death of Tenant in Tail, and those in Remainder and Reversion are driven to their Action, and cannot enter. 1 Inst. 325. But a Discontinuance taketh away an Entry only: And to every Discontinuance it is necessary there should be a Devetting or Displacing of the Estate, and turning the same to a Right; for if it be not turned to a Right, they that have the Estate cannot be driven to an Action. Co. Lit. 327. And an Estate-tail cannot be discontinued, but where he that makes the Discontinuance, was once seised by Force of the Intail, where the Estate-tail is executed; unless by Reason of a Warranty. Lit. Sect. 637, 641. Also if Tenant in Tail levies a Fine, &c. this is no Discontinuance, till the Fine is executed; because if he dies before Execution, the Issue may enter. Co. Lit. 33. 2 Danv. Abr. 572. A Discontinuance may be five Ways, viz. by Feoffment, Fine, Recovery, Release, and Confirmation with Warranty. 1 Rep. 44. A Grant without Livery; or a Grant in Fee without Warranty, are no Discontinuances: An Exchange will not make a Discontinuance; as if Tenant in Tail exchanges Land with another, that is not any Discontinuance, by Reason no Livery is requisite thereon. 2 Danv. 57. It is the same of a Bargain and Sale, &c. And an Alienation of such Things as lie in Grant, and not in Livery, works no Discontinuance; for such Grant does no Wrong either to the Issue in Tail, or him in Reversion or Remainder, because nothing passeth but during the Life of Tenant in Tail, which is lawful; and every Discontinuance worketh a Wrong. Co. Lit. 332. If Tenant in Tail of a Copyhold Estate, surrenders to another in Fee, this makes not any Discontinuance, (except there be a Custom for it) but the Heir in Tail may enter; though this hath been a great Question. 1 Leon. 95. 2 Danv. 571. If there be Tenant for Life Remainder in Tail, and Remainder in Tail, &c. And Tenant for Life, and he in the first Remainder in Tail levy a Fine, this is no Discontinuance of either of the Remainders. 1 Rep. 76. But if there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Tail, &c. And Tenant in Tail, enfeoffs him in Reversion in Fee: Or where there is Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, Reversion in Fee, and Tenant for Life enfeoffs the Reversioner; these are Discontinuances, because there is a mean or immediate Estate. 1 Rep. 140. Co. Lit. 335. 2 Danv. 575. If there be Tenant in Tail, Remainder to his right Heirs, and he makes a Feoffment in Fee, this is a Discontinuance; though such Tenant that made the Feoffment, hath the Fee in him. 2 Danv. 572. Where a Tenant in Tail of a Manor makes a Lease for Life, not warranted by Stat. 32 Hen. 8. of Part of the Demesnes, this is a Discontinuance of this Parcel; and 'tis said makes it no Parcel of the Manor. 2 Roll. Abr. 58. By Statute, a Husband is restrained from Alienation, and discontinuing of the Wife's Land, 32 Hen. 8. cap. 28. and a Wife Tenant in Tail with the Husband; or having an Estate in Dower, &c. from making any Discontinuance of the Lands of the Husband, after his Death. 11 H. 1. cap. 20. Likewise Ecclesiastical Persons, as Bishops, Deans, &c. from aliening or discontinuing their Estates. 13 Eliz. cap. 10. 1 Jac. 1. c. 3. And some Discontinuances at Common Law, are now made Bars as to the Issue in Tail; though still Discontinuances in some Cases, to him in Remainder, &c. such as Fines, with Proclamations by Statute. 4 Hen. 7. cap. 24. 32 H. 8. cap. 36. If the Husband levy a Fine with Proclamations, and dieth, the Wife must enter, or avoid the Estate of the Conufee within five Years, or she is barred for ever, by the Stat. 4 Hen. 7. For the Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 28. doth help the Discontinuance, but not the Bar. 1 Inst. 326. Husband and Wife Tenants in special Tail, the Husband alone levied a Fine to his own Use, and afterwards he devised the Land to his Wife for Life, the Remainder over, rendering Rent, &c. The Husband dies, the Wife enters and pays the Rent, and dies: In this Case it was adjudged, that the Fine had barred the Issue in Tail, but not the Wife. Dyer 351. The Entry of the Wife in this Case, was a Disagreement to the Estate of Inheritance, and an Agreement to the Estate for Life: But if the Wife had not waved the Inheritance, the Estate-tail as to the Wife had remained. 9 Rep. 135. If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Husband maketh a Feoffment in Fee, and dieth; the Wife is helped by the Statute 32 H. 8. and so is the Issue of both their Bodies. 1 Inst. 326. The Husband is Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to the Wife in Tail, the Husband makes a Feoffment in Fee; by this the Husband by the Common Law did not only discontinue his own Estate-tail, but his Wife's Remainder: But by the Statute 32 Hen. 8. after the Death of the Husband without Issue, the Wife may enter by the said Act. Though if the Husband hath Issue, and maketh a Feoffment in Fee of his Wife's Land, and his Wife dieth; the Heir of the Wife shall not enter during the Husband's Life, neither by the Common Law, nor by the Statute. Ibid. A Discontinuance may be defeated, where the Estate which worked it is defeated; as if a Husband make a Feoffment in Fee of the Wife's Land upon Condition; and after his Death, his Heir enters on the Feoffee for the Condition broken; now the Discontinuance is defeated, and the Feme may enter upon the Heir. 1 Inst. 336. The Titles of Discontinuance of Estates and Reverter, were formerly large Titles in our Books; but they are abridged by Statute.

As to Discontinuance of Process, it is when the Opportunity of Prosecution is lost for that Time, or the Plaintiff is dismissed the Court, &c. And every Suit, whether Civil or Criminal, and every Process therein, ought to be properly continued from Day to Day, &c. from its Commencement to its Conclusion; and the Suffering any Default or Gap herein, is called a Discontinuance: The Continuance of the Suit by improper Process, or by giving the Party an illegal Day, is properly a Miscontinuance. 2 Hawk. 298. Where an Action is long depending, and continued from one Term to another, the Continuances must be all entered, otherwise there will be a Discontinuance; whereupon a Writ of Error may be brought, &c. 1 Nels. Abr. 660. If the Plaintiff in a Suit doth nothing, it is a Discontinuance, and he must begin his Suit again: And where 'tis too late to amend a Declaration, &c. or the Plaintiff is advised to prosecute in another Court, he is to discontinue his Suit, and proceed de novo. Com. Law Com. Plac. 171. But a Discontinuance of an Action, is not perfect till it is entered on the Roll, when 'tis of Record. Cro. Car. 236. The Plaintiff cannot discontinue his Action after a Demurrer joined and entered; or after a Verdict, or a Writ of Enquiry, without Leave of the Court. Cro. Jac. 35. 1 Lill. Abr. 473. In Actions of Debt or Covenant, after a Demurrer joined, the Court will give Leave to discontinue, if there be an apparent Cause; as if the Plaintiff through his own Negligence, is in Danger of losing his Debt: But if the Demurrer be argued, then he shall not have Leave to discontinue; nor where he brings another Action for the same Cause, and this is pleaded in Abatement of the first Action. Sid. 84. It has been ruled, upon a Motion to discontinue, that the Court may give Leave after a special Verdict; which is not complete and final; but never after a general Verdict. 1 Salk. 178. 1 Nels. 663. An Appeal may as well be discontinued by the Defect of the Process or Proceeding in it, as it may be by the Insufficiency of the Original Writ, &c. For by such Defect, the Matter depending is as it were out of Court. 1 Lill. 473. Discontinuance of Process is helped at Common Law by Appearance. And by Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 30. all Discontinuances, Miscontinuances and Negligences therein, of Plaintiff or Defendant, are cured after Verdict. 2 Danv. 352. The Death of the King is not a Discontinuance of any Suit; and no Suit before Justices of Assize, or Justices of Peace, &c. will be discontinued by a new Commission. Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 3. 4 & 5 W. & M. &c. On the Discontinuance of Suits, it is usual to give the Defendant Costs. See Continuance.

Discontinuance of Plea, Is where divers Things should be pleaded to, and some are omitted; this is a Discontinuance. 1 Nels. Abr. 660, 661. If a Defendant's Plea begin with an Answer to Part, and answers no more, it is a Discontinuance; and the Plaintiff may take Judgment by Nil dicit, for what is not answered: But if the Plaintiff plead over, the whole Action is discontinued. 1 Salk. 139. Debt upon Bond of 500*l*. the Defendant as to 225*l*. Part of it, pleads Payment, &c. And upon Demurrer to this Plea, it was adjudged that there being no Answer to the Residue, 'tis a Discontinuance as to that, for which the Plaintiff ought to take Judgment by Nil dicit. 1 Salk. 180. Where no Answer is given to one Part, if the Plaintiff pleads thereto, he cannot have Judgment according to his Declaration; for which Reason, it may be a Discontinuance of the Whole. 1 Nels. 660. But this is helped after Verdict by 32 H. 8. c. 30.

Discretion, (Discretio) When any Thing is left to any Person to be done according to his Discretion, the Law intends it must be done with sound Discretion, and according to Law: And the Court of B. R. hath a Power to redress Things that are otherwise done, notwithstanding they are left to the Discretion of those that do them. 1 Lill. Abr. 477. Discretion is to discern between Right and Wrong; and therefore whoever hath Power to act at Discretion, is bound by the Rule of Reason and Law. 2 Inst. 56, 298. The Assessment of Fines on Offenders committing Affrays, &c. And the Binding of Persons to the good Behaviour, are at the Discretion of our Judges, and Justices of the Peace. 1 Hawk. P. C. 132, 138. And in many Cases, for Crimes not capital, the Judges have a discretionary Power in inflict corporal Punishment on the Offenders. 2 Hawk. 445. Infants, &c. under the Age of Discretion, are not punishable for Crimes; and Want of Discretion, is a good Exception against a Witness. Ibid. 434.

Disfranchise, Is to take away one's Freedom or Privilege: It is the contrary to Enfranchise. And Corporations have Power to disfranchise Members, for doing any Thing against their Oaths; but not for Contempts, &c. 11 Rep. 98. See Corporation.

Disinheriton, Is an old Word which signifies as much as Disinheriting; mentioned in the Stat. 20 Ed. 1. and 8 R. 2.

Disheritoz, One that disinheriteth, or puts another out of this Inheritance. Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 39.

Tithes, (Decima) Are Tithes, or the Tenth Part of all the Fruits of the Earth, and of Beasts, or Labour due to the Clergy. It signifies also the Tenth of all Spiritual Livings given to the Prince, which is called a Perpetual Dism. Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. cap. 35. And formerly this Word signified a Tax or Tribute levied of the Temporality. Holinsb. in Hen. 2. f. 111. The Laws of Dismes or Tithes; see Tithes.

Disparagement, In a legal Sense was used for matching an Heir in Marriage under his Degree, or against Decency. Co. Lit. 107. Magna Charta, cap. 6.

Dispauper, When any Person, by Reason of his Poverty, is admitted to sue in Forma pauperis; if afterwards, before the Suit is ended, the same Party have any Lands or personal Estate fallen to him, or be guilty of any Thing whereby he is liable to have this Privilege taken from him, then he is put out of the Capacity of suing in Forma pauperis, and is said to be dispaupered. See Forma Pauperis.

Dispensation. By the 25 H. 8. cap. 21. The Archbishop of Canterbury has Power of Dispensing in any Case, wherein Dispensations (not contrary to the Law of God) were formerly granted by the See of Rome; and may grant Dispensations to the King, as well as to his Subjects: But such Dispensations shall not be granted out of the Realm, &c. And during the Vacancy of the See of Canterbury, the Guardian of the Spiritualities may grant Dispensations. The Archbishop of Canterbury grants Dispensations, not only in his own Province, but in the Province of York; and the Archbishop of York, and other Bishops, dispence as they were wont to do, by the Common Law and Custom of the Realm. Wood's Inst. 26. Every Bishop of common Right has the Power of Institution into Benefices, and of Dispensing in common Cases, &c. Ibid. 305. Dispensations to hold Pluralities; See *Chaplain*s.

Dispensations of the King. If a Dispensation by the Archbishop of Canterbury, is to be in extraordinary Matters, or in a Case that is new, the King and his Council are to be consulted; and it ought to be confirmed under the Broad Seal. The King's Authority to grant Dispensations remains as it did at Common Law; notwithstanding the Stat. 25 H. 8. 1 Cro. 542, 601. The Dispensation of the King, &c. makes a Thing prohibited, lawful to be done by him who hath it: But Malum in se will not admit of a Dispensation. March 213. Where the Subject hath an immediate Interest in an Act of Parliament, the King cannot Dispense with it; but where the King is intrusted with the Management thereof, and the Subject by way of Consequence only, he may. March Rep. 214, 216. When an Offence wrongs none but the King; or if the Suit is only the King's for the Breach of a Penal Law, that is not to the Damage of a third Person, the King may dispense: But in case the Suit is the King's, for the Benefit of another, he cannot. Vaugh. 344, 334, 339, &c.

Dispensation by Non obstante. If any Statute tends to restrain some Prerogative incident to the Person of the King, as the Right of Pardoning, or of Commanding the Service of the Subject for the publick Weal, &c. which are inseparable from the King; by a Clause of Non obstante, he may dispense with it. 2 Hawk. 390. But as in the Reign of King James II. the dispensing Power was carried so high as to render the Execution of our necessary Laws in a Manner dependent on the Pleasure of the Prince; by Stat. 1 W. & M. Sess. 2. ca. 2. It is enacted, That no Dispensation by Non obstante of, or to any Statute, or any Part thereof, shall be allowed; but that the same shall be held void, and of none Effect, except a Dispensation be allowed in such Statute. The Dispensation by Non obstante was brought into this Kingdom by the Pope; and first used by Hen. 3. Pryn's Animadver. on 4 Inst. fol. 129.

Dispersonare, Is to scandalize or disparage. Blount.

Disseisin, (from the Fr. Disseisin) Signifies an unlawful Dispossessing a Man of his Right. As where a Person enters into Lands or Tenements, and his Entry is not lawful, and keeps him that hath the Estate from the Possession thereof. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 3. And Disseisin is of two Sorts; either Single Disseisin, committed without Force of Arms; or Disseisin by Force, but this latter is more properly Deforcement. Brit. cap. 42, 43. By Magna Charta, 9 Hen. 3. cap. 29. No Man is to be disseised, or put out of his Freehold, but by lawful Judgment of his Peers, or the Law: And by Statute, the Dying seised of any Disseisor of, or in any Lands, &c. having no Right therein, shall not be a Discent in Law, to take away an Entry of a Person having lawful Title of Entry; except the Disseisor hath had peaceable Possession five Years, without Entry or Claim by the Person having lawful Title. 32 H. 8. cap. 33. But if a Disseisor having expelled the right Owner, hath such peaceable Possession of the Lands five Years without Claim, and continues in Possession so as to die seised, and the Land descends to his Heirs, they have a Right to the Possession thereof till the Person that is Owner recovers at Law; and the Owner shall lose his Estate for ever, if he do not prosecute his Suit within the Time limited by the Statute of Limitations. Bac. Elem. And if a Disseisee levy a Fine of the Land whereof he is disseised, unto a Stranger, the Disseisor shall keep the Land for ever; for the Disseisee against his own Fine cannot claim, and the Conusee cannot enter, and the Right which the Disseisee had being extinct by the Fine, the Disseisor shall take Advantage of it. 2 Rep. 56. If a Feme Sole be seised of Lands in Fee, and is disseised, and then taketh Husband; in this Case, the Husband and Wife, as in Right of the Wife, have Right to enter, and yet the Dying seised of the Disseisor, shall take away the Entry of the Wife, after the Death of the Husband. 1 Inst. 246. If a Person disseises me, and during the Disseisin, he or his Servants cut down the Timber growing upon the Land, and afterwards I re enter into the Lands, I shall have Action of Trespas against him; for the Law, as to the Disseisor and his Servants, supposes the Freehold to have been always in me: But if the Disseisor be disseised, or if he makes a Feoffment, Gift in Tail, Lease for Life or Years, I shall not have Action against the second Disseisor, or against those who come in by Title: For all the mesne Profits shall be recovered against the Disseisor himself. 11 Rep. 51. Keilw. 1. Where a Man hath a House in Fee, &c. and locks it, and then departs; if another Person comes to his House and takes the Key of the Door, and says that he claims the House to himself in Fee, without any Entry into the House, this is a Disseisin of the House. 2 Danv. Abr. 624. If a Feoffor enters on the Land of the Feoffee, and makes a Lease for Years, &c. It is a Disseisin, tho' the Intent of the Parties to the Feoffment was that the Feoffee should make a Lease to the Feoffor for Life. 2 Rep. 59. But if a Feoffee enters before Livery, he is not a Disseisor. 2 Danv. 630. If Lessee for Years is ousted by his Lessor; this is said to be no Disseisin. Cro. Jac. 678. A Man enters on another's Lands, claiming a Lease for Years, who hath not, is a Disseisor: Though if a Man enters into the House of another by his Sufferance, without claiming any Thing, it will not be a Disseisin. 9 H. 6. 21, 31. 2 Danv. 625. If a Person enters on Lands by Virtue of a Grant or Lease, that is void in Law; he is a Disseisor. 2 Danv. 630. A Lessee at Will makes a Lease for Years, it is a Disseisin, at the Election of the Lessor at Will: Though it is the Disseisin of the Lessee at Will, not of the Lessee for Years. H. 7 Car. B. R. If a Man enters into the Land of an Infant, though by his Assent; this is a Disseisin to the Infant, at his Election. 11 Ed. 3. Aff. 87. And if a Person commands another to enter upon Lands, and make a Disseisin, the Commander is a Disseisor, as well as such other; unless the Command be conditional, when it may be otherwise. 22 Aff. 99. 2 Danv. 631. If a Man forces another to swear to surrender his Estate to him, and he doth so, it will be a Disseisin of the Estate. So forcibly hindering a Person from tilling his Land, is a Disseisin of the Land. 1 Inst. 161. But if one enter wrongfully into the Lands of another, and he accepts Rent from such Person, he shall not afterwards be taken for a Disseisor. Dyer 173. Where any Person is disturb'd from entering on Land; it is a Disseisin: A Denial of a Rent, when lawfully demanded, is a Disseisin of the Rent. 1 Inst. 153. Also hindering a Distress for Rent, by Force; or making Relicous of a Distress, are a Disseisin of the Rent. 2 Danv. 624, 625. An Infant, or Feme Covert, may be a Disseisor, but it must be by actual Entry on Lands, &c. A Feme Covert shall not be a Disseisor, by the Act of the Baron: If he disseises another to her Use, she is not a Disseisor; nor if the Wife agrees to it, during the Coverture: Though if after his Death, she agree to it, she is a Disseisor. Ibid. 626, 627. Assises that lie against Disseisors are called Writs of Disseisin; and there are several Writs of Entry sur Disseisin, of which some are in the Per, and others in le Poft, &c. But Writs of Assise on Disseins, are now disus'd; and the feigned Action of Ejectment introduc'd in their Place. See Assise of Novel Disseisin, and Entry.

Disseisor, Is he that disseiseth or puts another out of his Land, without order of Law: And a Disseisee, is he that is so put out. 4 H. 4. As the King in Judgment of Law can do no Wrong, he cannot be a Disseisor. 1 E. 5, 8. A Disseisor is to be fined and imprisoned; and the Disseisee restored to the Land, &c. by Stat. 20 H. 3. ca. 3. Where a Disseisor is disseised, it is called Disseisin upon Disseisin.

Disseisers, Are Separatists from the Church, and the Service and Worship thereof; relating to whom, and their Qualifications, by subscribing the Oaths, Declaration, &c. there are a great many Statutes, besides the Toleration Act: As Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 1. 23 Eliz. c. 1. 3 Fac. 1 c. 4. 13 Car. 2. c. 1. 17 Car. 2. c. 2. and 22 Car. 2. c. 1. 1 W. & M. c. 18. 10 Ann. c. 2. 1 Geo. c. 6, &c. See Church, Conventicles, &c.

Distress, (Districcio) Signifies most commonly any Thing which is taken and distrained for Rent behind, or other Duty: And by the Common Law, Distresses for Rent were not to be sold, but only detained for enforcing Payment of the Rent; but this is altered by Statute. A Man may take a Distress for Homage, Fealty, or any Services; for Fines and Amercements; and for Damage-Feasant, &c. and the Effect of it is to compel the Party either to replevy the Distress, and contest the Taking in Action of Trespass against the Distrainer; or, which is more usual, to compound and pay the Debt or Duty, for which he was distrained: There are likewise Distresses in Actions, compulsory to cause a Man to appear in Court: And of these there is a Distress Personal, of a Man's moveable Goods, and Profits of his Lands, &c. for Contempt in not appearing after summoned; and Distress Real, upon immoveable Goods. Distress is also divided into finite and infinite: Finite is that which is limited by Law, how often it shall be made to bring the Party to Trial of the Action, as once, twice, &c. And infinite is without Limitation, until the Party appears; which is likewise applicable to Jurors not appearing: Then it hath had a further Division into a Grand Distress and Ordinary Distress; the Former whereof extends to all the Goods and Chattels which the Party hath within the County. E. N. B. 904. Old Nat. Br. 43, 113. Brit. cap. 26. fol. 52. Of common Right a Person may distrain for Rents, and all manner of Services; and for Rent reserved upon a Gift in Tail, Lease for Life, Years, &c. though there be no Clause of Distress in the Deed, so as the Reversion be in himself: But on a Feoffment in Fee, a Distress may not be taken, unless expressly reserved in the Deed. 1 Inst. 57, 205. Doctor and Student cap. 9. If a Lessee for Years grant away all his Term to another, rendering Rent, he cannot distrain for this Rent; but Debt will lie for it as a Sum in gross. 2 Lev. 80. A Distress ought to be made of such Things whereof the Sheriff may make Replevin, and deliver again in as good Plight and Condition as they were at the Time of the Taking. 1 Inst. 47. And Distresses for Rent are to be reasonable, and not excessive; and not to be taken in the King's Highway, or the common Street, or in the ancient Fees of the Church. Stat. 51 H. 3. 52 H. 3. c. 15. 9 Ed. 2. And where a Distress is taken, it may be replevied in five Days; if it be not in that Time after taken, and Notice given, it is to be appraised and sold by the Person distraining, with the Under-Sheriff, Constable, &c. to satisfy the Debt, leaving the Overplus with the Sheriff, &c. for the Use of the Owner. Stat. 2 W. & M. cap. 5. All Distresses for Rent ought to be made on the Premises, by the Common Law: But by Statute, if any Tenant fraudulently removes Goods from off the Premises, the Landlord may in five Days seise such Goods wheresoever found, as a Distress for the Rent in Arrear; unless the Goods are sold for a valuable Consideration before the Seizure. 8 Ann. ca. 17. And whereas before that Statute, for Rent due the last Day of the Term, the Lessor could not distrain; because the Term ended before the Rent was due; (and the Lessee had the whole Day to pay it) and it was the same, where the Lessee held over his Term, for Rent incurred during the Term. Co. Lit. 47. Now by the Stat. 8 Ann. where Leases are expired, a Distress may be taken, provided it be done within six Months, and during the Landlord's Title, and Tenant's Possession. Distresses for Services are to be on the Land: But for an Amercement in a Leet, the Distress may be taken any where within the Hundred, as well out of the Land, as on it, wherever Cattle are of him that is amerced; for the Amercement charges only the Person; and for this a Distress may be taken in the high Street. 2 Danv. Abr. 644, 645. For Services a Distress cannot be taken but where the Services are certain; or may be reduced to a Certainty. Co. Lit. 96. A Distress for Rent cannot be made in the Night: Nor may Gates, &c. be broke open to make a Distress; or the Landlord enter into the Tenant's House for that Purpose, unless the Doors are open. 1 Inst. 142, 161. Distresses are to be of a Thing valuable, whereof some Body hath a Property; so that Things Fere Nature, as Dogs, Conies, &c. may not be distrain'd. 1 Roll. Abr. 664, 666. Also it is the same of Cattle of the Plough, Beasts of Husbandry, Sheep or Horses joined to a Cart, with a Rider upon it. 1 Ventr. 36. But it has been adjudged that Horses may be taken from a Cart loaded; though it has been a disputed Case, whether they could be separated. Sid. 422. Raym. 18. A Horse with a Rider upon his Back; or a Horse in an Inn, or put into a Common; an Ax in a Man's Hand, cutting down Wood; or any Thing a Person carries about him; Utenfils and Instruments of a Man's Trade or Profession, or the Books of a Scholar; Corn in a Mill, or Goods in a Market to be sold for the Use of the Publick; Materials in a Weaver's Shop, for making of Cloth; another Person's Garment in the House of a Taylor, &c. are not distrainable: Nor is any Thing that that is fixed to the Freehold of a House, as a Furnace, Doors, Windows, Boards, &c. 1 Sid. 422, 440. 1 Inst. 47. 2 Danv. Abr. 641. But Goods, Cattle, not of the Plough, &c. Sheaves of Corn; Corn in the Straw, or thrashed, and Carts with Corn, (but not Victuals) Hay in a Barn, or Ricks of Hay; Money in a Bag sealed, though not out of a Bag, &c. may be distrained for Rent: And so may Cattle or Goods driving to Market, if put into Pasture by the Way; and Beasts of a Stranger, in the Landlord's Ground, being Levant and Couchant, and having well rested themselves there. 1 Inst. 47. 1 Lutw. 214. Mod. 385. 2 W. & M. If a Driver of Cattle asks Leave of the Lessor to put his Cattle into Ground for a Night, and he gives Leave, as well as the Lessee; yet 'tis said he is not concluded from distraining them for Rent. 2 Ventr. 59. 2 Danv. 642. But the Goods of a Carrier are privileged, and cannot be distrained for Rent, though the Waggon wherein loaded is put into the Barn of a House, &c. on the Road. 1 Salk. 249. If the Fences of another Man's Ground be out of Repair, and the Neighbour's Cattle Escape there, and are Levant and Couchant, without any fresh Pursuit after them, they may be distrained for Rent; for the Land is Debtor for the Rent, and the Landlord must resort thither, and is not to inquire whose Cattle they are which he finds therein. 1 Roll. Rep. 124. 1 Nelf. Abr. 667. But if the Owner freshly pursues the Cattle, they are not distrainable; because they are supposed to be always in his View and Possession. If the Owner of the Cattle is to maintain the Fences, in such Case, if they escape into another's Ground, they may be distrained before Levant and Couchant, and notwithstanding fresh Pursuit. 1 Nelf. Ibid. Where a Landlord comes to distrain Cattle, which he sees on the Tenant's Ground, if the Tenant or any other to prevent the Distress, drives the Cattle off the Ground, the Landlord may make fresh Pursuit, and distrain them: But if before the Distress, the Owner of the Cattle renders his Rent, and a Distress is taken afterwards, it is wrongful. 1 Inst. 160. 2 Inst. 107. Two Distresses cannot be taken for one Rent, if there were sufficient Goods when the first Distress was made; but if there were not then a sufficient Distress, there may. Cro. El. 13. Lutw. 1536. But by Stat. 17 Car. 2. cap. 1. When the Value of Cattle distrained shall be found not to be of the Value of the Arrears of Rent, for which the Distress was taken, the Person distraining, his Executors, &c. may take further Distresses, for such Arrears. 1 Nelf. 670. A Distress of Cattle must be brought to the common Pound, or be kept in an open Place; and if they are put into a common Pound, the Owner is to take Notice of it at his Peril; but if in any other open Place, Notice is to be given the Owner, that he may feed them; and then if the Cattle die for Want of Food, the Tenant shall bear the Loss; and the Landlord may distrain again for his Rent. 5 Rep. 90. 1 Inst. 47, 96. Where one impounds Cattle distrained, he cannot justify the Tying them in the Pound; if he ties a Beast, and it is strangled, he must answer it in Damages. 1 Salk. 248. If the Person distraining put the Distress in a broken Pound, and the Distress escapes, he can have no Action for it: But 'tis otherwise if from another Pound, without his Default, when he may have Action of Trespass. Salk. Ibid. By Statute, no Distress of Cattle shall be driven out of the Hundred where taken to any Pound, except to a Pound overt in the same County, and not above three Miles distant; nor shall any Distress be impounded in several Places, under the Penalty of 5 l. and treble Damages. 1 P. & M. cap. 12. Cattle distrained may not be used, because by Law they are only as a Pledge; unless it be for the Owner's Benefit, by milking, &c. 2 Cro. 148. When a Distress is taken of Household Goods, or other dead Things, they are to be impounded in a House, or other Pound Covert, &c. And if the Distress is damaged, the Distrainer must answer it. Wood's Inst. 191. And they are to be removed immediately; except Corn or Hay, by Stat. 2 W. & M. cap. 5. If a Landlord doth not remove Goods immediately, but quits them till another Day, during which Time they are taken away, it is not a Rescous for want of Possession. Mod. cap. 215. 1 Nelf. 672. Where Goods are unlawfully distrained, the Owner may rescue them, before they are impounded; but not afterwards. 1 Inst. 47. If Lands lie in several Counties, a Distress may be made in one County, for the whole Rent. 1 Inst. 154. And if a Landlord comes into a House, and seizes upon some Goods as a Distress, in the Name of all the Goods in the House; this is a good Seizure of all. 6 Mod. 215. But if any Person shall distrain another, on Purpose to injure him, or put him to Expence, &c. he shall pay treble Damages. Stat. 13. And if any Distress and Sale shall be made where there is no Rent due, the Owner of the Goods distrained shall recover double the Value of the Goods, and full Costs. 2 W. & M. Also by the Common Law, if a Lord or other Person shall distrain several Times for his Service or Rent, when none is in Arrear, the Tenant may have an Affise de sovent Distress, &c. F. N. B. 176. See Recaption, Replevin, and Rescous.

Distress of the King. By the Common Law, no Subject can distrain out of his Fee or Scignior; unless Cattle are driven to a Place out of the Fee, to hinder the Lord's Distress, &c. But the King may distrain for Rent-Service, or Fee-Farm, in all the Lands of the Tenant, not only on Lands held of himself, but of others; where his Tenant is in actual Possession, and the Land manured with his own Beasts, &c. 2 Inst. 132. 2 Danv. Abr. 643.

Distress of a Town. If a Town be assessed to a certain Sum, a Distress may be taken in any Part, subject to the whole Duty. 2 Danv. 643.

District, (Districtus) A Territory, or Place of Jurisdiction; the Circuit wherein a Man may be compelled to appear, also the Place in which one hath the Power of distraining: And where we say Hors de son fee, out of the Fee; it has been used for Extra Districtum suum. Brit. c. 120.

Distringas, Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff, or other Officer, commanding him to distrain a Man for a Debt to the King, &c. Or for his Appearance at a Day. There is great Diversity of this Writ; which was sometimes of old called Constringas. F. N. B. 138.

Distringas Juratores, Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff, to distrain upon a Fury to appear; and return Issues on their Lands, &c. for Non-appearance. Where an Issue in Fact is joined to be tried by a Fury, which is returned by the Sheriff in a Panel upon a Venire facias for that Purpose; thereupon there goes forth a Writ of Disfringas Furator. to the Sheriff, commanding him to have their Bodies in Court, &c. at the Return of the Writ. 1 Lill. Abr. 483. And the Writ of Disfring. Fur. ought to be delivered to the Sheriff so timely, that he may warn the Fury to appear four Days before the Writ is returnable, if the Furors live within forty Miles of the Place of Trial; and eight Days, if they live farther off. Ibid. 484. There may be an Alias, or Pluries Disfringas Fur. where the Fury do not appear.

Dividend in the Exchequer, Is taken for one Part of an Indenture. Stat. 10 Ed. 1. c. 11.

Dividend in the University, Is that Part or Share which every one of the Fellows do justly and equally divide among themselves of their annual Stipend.

Dividend in Law Proceedings, A Dividing of Fees and Perquisites between Officers arising from Writs, &c. Practif. Solic.

Dividend of Merchants, Is where a just Share of Profits in Trade is assigned to any one.

Dividend in Stocks, A dividable proportionate Share of the Interest of Stocks, erected on publick Funds; as the South-Sea, India, Bank, and African Stocks, &c. Payable to the Adventurers Half-yearly.

Divisa, Hath various Significations: Sometimes it is used for a Device, Sentence or Decree: Sometimes for a Devise of a Portion or Parcel of Lands, &c. by Will: And sometimes it is taken for the Bounds or Limits of Division of a Parish, or Farm, &c. As Divisas perambulare, to walk the Bounds of a Parish; in which Sense, it has been extended to the Division between Countries, and given Name to Towns, as to the Devises, a Town in Wiltshire, situate on the Confines of the West Saxon, and Mercian Kingdoms. Leg. H. 2. cap. 9. Leg. Inæ c. 44. Leg. H. 1. c. 57. Cowel.

Divorce, (Divortium, a Divertendo) Is a Separation of two, de facto married together, made by Law: It is a Judgment Spiritual; and therefore if there be Occasion, it ought to be reversed in the Spiritual Court. Co. Lit. 235. And besides Sentence of Divorce; in the old Law, the Woman divorced was to have of her Husband a Writing called a Bill of Divorce, which was to this Effect, viz. I Promise that hereafter I will lay no Claim to Thee, &c. There are many Divorces mentioned in our Books; as Causa Pracontractus; Causa Frigiditatis; Causa Consanguinitatis; Causa Affinitatis; Causa Professionis, &c. But the usual Divorces are only of two Kinds, i. e. à Mensa & Thoro, from Bed and Board; and à Vinculo Matrimonii, from the very Bond of Marriage. A Divorce à Mensa & Thoro, dissolveth not the Marriage; for the Cause of it is subsequent to the Marriage, and supposes the Marriage to be lawful: This Divorce may be by Reason of Adultery in either of the Parties, for Cruelty of the Husband, &c. And as it doth not dissolve the Marriage, so it doth not debar the Woman of her Dower; or bastardize the Issue; or make void any Estate for the Life of Husband and Wife, &c. 1 Inst. 235. 3 Inst. 89. 7 Rep. 43. The Woman under Separation by this Divorce, must sue by her next Friend; and she may sue her Husband in her own Name for Alimony. Wood's Inst. 62. A Divorce à Vinculo Matrimonii, absolutely dissolves the Marriage, and makes it void from the Beginning, the Causes of it being precedent to the Marriage; as Pracontract with some other Person, Consanguinity or Affinity within the Levitical Degrees, Impotency, Impurity, &c. On this Divorce Dower is gone; and and if by Reason of Pracontract, Consanguinity, or Affinity, the Children begotten between them are Bastards. 1 Inst. 235. 2 Inst. 93, 687. But in these Divorces, the Wife 'tis said shall receive all again that she brought with her, because the Nullity of the Marriage arises through some Impediment; and the Goods of the Wife were given for her Advancement in Marriage, which now ceaseth: But this is where the Goods are not spent; and if the Husband give them away during the Coverture, without any Collusion, it shall bind her: If she knows her Goods unspent, she may bring Action of Detinue for them; and as for Money, &c. which cannot be known, she must sue in the Spiritual Court. Dyer 62. 1 Nelf. Abr. 675. Where Lands were formerly given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their Bodies in Frank-Marriage; if they had afterwards been divorced, the Wife was to have her whole Lands; and by Divorce an Estate-Tail of Baron and Feme, 'tis said may be extinct. Godb. 18. If a Marriage de facto be voidable by Divorce, yet if the Husband dies before any Divorce, the Wife de facto shall be endowed. 1 Inst. 33. Where a Sentence of Divorce is given in the Spiritual Court Contra Pracontractus, the Issue of that Marriage shall be Bastards, so long as the Sentence stands unrepealed; and no Proof shall be admitted at Common Law to the contrary. 1 Inst. 235. 1 Nelf. 674. And Issue of a second Marriage in such Case, may inherit until the Sentence is repealed. 2 Leon. 207. But it is not so where the Divorce is à Mensa & Thoro, for Adultery, &c. in which Case the Marriage still continues. Cro. Car. 462. And if after a Divorce à Mensa & Thoro, either of the Parties marry again, the other being Living, such Marriage is a meer Nullity; and by Sentence to confirm the first Contract, she and her first Husband become Husband Wife to all Intents, without any formal Divorce from the 2d. 2 Leon. 173. Also on this Divorce, as the Marriage continues, Marrying again while either Party is living, hath been held within the Statute 1 Fac. 1. of Felony, for having married a second Husband or Wife, the former being alive; where a Woman was divorced, and inhibited by the Sentence not to marry during her Husband's Life. Cro. Car. 333. 1 Nelf. 674. But on a Divorce à Vinculo Matrimonii, by Reason of Pracontract, &c. the Parties may marry again: And in Divorces for Adultery, several Acts of Parliament have allowed the Innocent Party to marry again. Sentence of Divorce must be given in the Spiritual Court, in the Life of the Parties, and not afterwards: But it may be repealed in the Spiritual Court, after the Death of the Parties. 1 Inst. 33, 244. 7 Rep. 44. 5 Rep. 98. A Divorce shall be try'd by the Bishop's Certificate; and not by a Jury.

Diurnalis, Signifies as much Land as can be ploughed in a Day, with one Ox; in some Author, it is Writ Diuturna. Blount Docket, or Dogget, Is a Brief in Writing on a small Piece of Paper or Parchment, containing the Effect of a greater Writing. 2 & 3 P. & M. cap. 6. West Symbol. par. 2. Sect. 106. And when Rolls of Judgments are brought into C. B. the Judgments are docketted, and entered on the Docket of that Term; so that upon any Occasion you may soon find out a Judgment, by searching these Dockets, if you know the Attorney's Name. Exemplifications of Decrees in Chancery are also docketted: And Attornies keep Docket-Books, where in in are entered Judgments, &c. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 155, 166.

Dogs, The Law takes Notice of a Greyhound, Mastiff Dog, Spaniel and Tumbrel; for Trover will lie for them. 1 Cro. 125. 2 Cro. 44. A Man hath a Property in a Mastiff: And where a Mastiff falls on another Dog, the Owner of that Dog cannot justify the Killing the Mastiff; unless there was no other to save his Dog, as that he could not take off the Mastiff, &c. 1 Saund. 84. 3 Salk. 139. The Owner of a Dog is bound to muzzle him if mischievous; but not otherwise. Ibid.

Dog-Days, (Dies caniculares) Are the hottest Time of the Year, by Reason the Sun is then in Leo: They are reckoned sixty-four in all, à tertio Idus Julii usque in Idus Septembris.

Dog-draw, Is a manifest Deprehension of an Offender against Venison in a Forest, when he is found drawing after a Deer by the Scent of a Hound, led in his Hand: Or where a Person hath wounded a Deer, or wild Beast, by shooting at him, or otherwise, and is caught with a Dog drawing after him to receive the same. Manwood, par. 2. cap. 18.

Dogger, A little Ship or Vessel; as a Dutch Dogger, &c. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. cap. 1.

Dogger-men, Fishermen that belong to Dogger-Ships. 25 H. 8. c. 2.

Doitain, or Doit, Was a base Coin of small Value, prohibited by the Stat. 3 H. 5. ca. 1. We still retain the Phrase, in the common Saying, when we would undervalue a Man, That he is not worth a Doit.

Do Law, (Facere Legem) Is the same with to make Law. Stat. 23 H. 6. c. 14.

Dole, (Dola) A Saxon Word signifying as much as Pars or Portio in the Latin; and anciently where a Meadow was divided into several Shares, it was called a Dole-Meadow. 4 Jac. cap. 11. See Dalus.

Dolefish, Seems to be the Share of Fish, which the Fishermen, yearly employ'd in the North Seas, do customarily receive for their Allowance. Stat. 35 H. 8. c. 7.

Dolg-bote, (Sax.) A Recompence or Amends, for a Scar or Wound. Sax. Dist. LL. Aluredi. Reg. c. 23.

Dollar, A Piece of foreign Coin, going for about 4s. 6d. Lex Mercat.

Dom-bot, (Sax.) Signifies Liber Judicialis, as appears by the Laws of K. Ed. 1. this 'tis conjectured was a Book of Statutes of the English Saxons, wherein the Laws of the ancient Saxon Kings were contained. Leg. Inæ, c. 29.

Dome, or Doom, (from the Sax. Dom) A Judgment, Sentence, or Decree. And several Words End in Dom; as Kingdom, Earldom, &c. from whence they may be applied to a Jurisdiction of a Lord, or a King. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. fol. 284. Also there is a Dome of a Church; such as St. Paul's, &c.

Domesday, (Liber Judiciarius, vel Censualis Anglie) Is a most ancient Record, made in the Time of William I. called the Conqueror, and now remaining in the Exchequer fair and legible, consisting of two Volumes, a Greater and a Less; the greater containing a Survey of all the Lands in England, except the Counties of Northumberland, Cumberland, Westmorland, Durham, and Part of Lancashire, which 'tis said were never surveyed, and excepting Essex, Suffolk, and Norfolk; which three last are comprehended in the lesser Volume. There is also a third Book, which differs from the others in Form more than Matter, made by the Command of the same King. And there's a fourth Book kept in the Exchequer which is called Domesday; and though a very large Volume, is only an Abridgment of the others. Likewise a fifth Book is kept in the Remembrancer's Office in the Exchequer, which has the Name of Domesday, and is the very same with the Fourth before-mentioned. Our Ancestors had many Dome-Books: K. Alfred had a Roll, which he called Domesday; and the Domesday Book made by Will. 1. referr'd to the Time of Edw. the Confessor, as that of K. Alfred did to the Time of Æthelred. The fourth Book of Domesday having many Pictures, and gilt Letters in the Beginning, relating to the Time of King Edward the Confessor, this led him who made Notes on Fitzherbert's Register into a Mistake in pa. 14. where he tells us, that Liber Domesday factus fuit tempore Regis Edwardi. The Book of Domesday was begun by five Justices, assigned for that Purpose in each County, in the Year 1081. and finished Anno 1086. And 'tis generally known, that the Question whether Lands are ancient Demesne, or not, is to be decided by the Domesday of Will. 1. from whence there is no Appeal: And 'tis a Book of that Authority, that even the Conqueror himself submitted some Cases wherein he was concerned to be determined by it. The Addition of Day to this Dome Book, was not meant with any Allusion to the final Day of Judgment as most Persons have conceited; but was to strengthen and confirm it, and signifieth the judicial decisive Record or Book of dooming Judgment and Justice. Hammond's Annot. Camden calls this Book Gulielmi Librum Censualium, the Tax-Book of King William; and it was further called Magna Rolla Winton. The Dean and Chapter of York have a Register stiled Domesday; so hath the Bishop of Worcester; and there is an ancient Roll in Chester Castle, called Domesday Roll. Blount.

Domes-men, Judges, or Men appointed to doom, and determine Suits and Controversies: Hence ag-deme, I Deem, or Judge. Vide Days-Man.

Domicellus, Is an old obsolete Latin Word, anciently given as an Appellation or Addition to the King's natural Sons in France, and sometimes to the eldest Sons of Noblemen there; from whence we borrow these Additions: As several natural Children of John of Gaunt Duke of Lancaster, are stiled Domicelli by the Charter of Legitimation. 20 R. 2. But according to Thorn, the Domicelli were only the better Sort of Servants in Monasteries. — Domicellus Abbatiss, & Domicelli & Servientes Monasterii, p. 1748, 1990.

Domigerium, Is a Word sometimes used for Danger; but otherwise, and perhaps more properly, it is taken for Power over another; sub Domigerio alicujus vel manu esse. Braët. lib. 4. Tract. 1. cap. 19.

Dominica in Ramis Palmarum, Palm-Sunday. Anno 23 Ed. 1.

Dominium, Signifies Right, or Regal Power. Paroch. Antiq. 498.

Dominus. This Word prefixed to a Man's Name, in ancient Times usually denoted him a Knight

Knight, or a Clergyman; and sometimes a Gentleman not a Knight, especially a Lord of a Manor.

Dono Reparanda, Is a Writ that lies for one against his Neighbour, by the Fall of whose House he fears Damage and Injury to his own. Reg. Orig. 153.

Domus Conversorum, Was an ancient House built or appointed by K. H. 3. for such Jews as were converted to the Christian Faith: But King Ed. 3. who expelled the Jews from this Kingdom, deputed the Place for the Custody of the Rolls and Records of the Chancery. See Rolls.

Domus Dei, The Hospital of Saint Julian in Southampton, so call'd. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. 440.

Donative, (Donativum) Is a Benefice merely given and collated by the Patron to a Man, without either Presentation to, or Institution by the Ordinary, or Induction by his Order. F. N. B. 35. And Donatives are so term'd, because they began only by the Foundation and Erection of the Donor. Clergym. Law. 120. The King might of ancient Time found a Church or Chapel, and exempt it from the Jurisdiction of the Ordinary: So he may by his Letters Patent give Licence to a common Person to found such a Church or Chapel, and make it Donative, not presentable; and that the Incumbent or Chaplain shall be deprived by the Founder and his Heirs, and not by the Bishop; which seems to be the Original of Donatives in England. Gwin's Readings. When the King founds a Church, &c. Donative, it is of Course exempted from the Ordinary's Jurisdiction, tho' no particular Exemption is mentioned, and the Lord Chancellor shall visit the same: And where the King grants a Licence to a common Person to found a Church or Chapel, it may be Donative, and exempted from the Jurisdiction of the Bishop, so as to be visited by the Founder, &c. 1 Inst. 134. 2 Roll. Abr. 230. The Resignation of a Donative must be to the Donor or Patron, and not to the Ordinary; and Donatives are not only free from all ordinary Jurisdiction, but the Patron and Incumbent may charge the Glebe to bind the Successor: And if the Clerk is disturb'd, the Patron may bring Quare Impedit, &c. 1 Inst. 344. Cro. Jac. 63. If the Patron of a Donative will not nominate a Clerk, there can be no Lapse: But the Bishop may compel such Patron to nominate a Clerk by Ecclesiastical Censures; for tho' the Church is exempt from the Power of the Ordinary, the Patron is not exempted: And the Clerk must be qualified like unto other Clerks of Churches, no Person being capable of a Donative, unless he be a Priest lawfully ordained, &c. Yelu. 61. Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 4. 1 Lill. 488. A parochial Church may be Donative, and exempt from the Ordinary's Jurisdiction. Godolph. 262. the Church of St. Mary le Bone in Middlesex is Donative, and the Incumbent being cited into the Spiritual Court, to take a Licence from the Bishop to preach, pretending that it was a Chapel, and that the Parson was a Stipendiary; it was ruled in the King's Bench that it was a Donative, and if the Bishop visit, the Court of B. R. will grant a Prohibition, 1 Mod. 90. 1 Nels. Abr. 676. If the Patron of a Donative, doth once present his Clerk to the Ordinary, and the Clerk is admitted, instituted and inducted, then the Donative ceaseth; and it becomes a Church presentative. 1 Inst. 344. But where a Donative is created by Letters Patent, by which Lands are settled upon the Parson and his Successors, and he is to come in by the Donation of the King, and his Successors; in this Case, tho' there may be a Presentation to the Donative, and the Incumbent come in by Institution and Induction, yet that will not destroy the Donative. 2 Salk. 541. All Bishopricks, being of the Foundation of the King; they were in ancient Time Donative. 3 Rep. 75. A Parson is put in Possession of a Donative by Gift in Writing of the following Form.

Form of a Donation of a Church.

TO all to whom these presents shall come, I the Right Honourable T. Lord B. Baron of, &c. send Greeting. Whereas the Church or free Chapel of, &c. in the Diocese of, &c. is now void, and of Right doth belong and appertain to my Gift. Know ye therefore, That I the said T. Lord B. in Consideration of the known Abilities, Learning and Honesty of T. D. Clerk of, &c. Have given and granted unto him the said T. D. the said Church or Chapel of, &c. aforesaid with all Rights, Benefits, Advantages and Appurtenances whatsoever to the same belonging; and by these presents I the said T. Lord B. do induct the said T. D. to the Possession of the said Church or Chapel, with all its Rights and Appurtenances. In Witness, &c.

Donor, and Donee. Donor is he who gives Lands or Tenements to another in Tail, &c. And the Person to whom given is the Donee.

Dorture, (Dormitorium) Is the common Room or Chamber, where all the Fryers or Religious of one Convent slept and lay all Night. Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 11.

Dote Assignanda, Is a Writ that lay for a Widow, where it was found by Office, that the King's Tenant was seised of Lands in Fee, or Fee-tail, at the Day of his Death, and that he held of the King in chief, &c. In which Case, the Widow came into the Chancery, and there made Oath, That she would not marry without the King's Leave; whereupon she had this Writ to the Escheator, to assign her Dower, &c. But it was usual to make the Assignment of the Dower in the Chancery, and to award a Writ to the Escheator to deliver the Lands assigned unto her. Stat. 15 Ed. 3. cap. 4. Reg. Orig. 297. F. N. B. 263. And these Widows are called in our Law the King's Widows.

Dote unde nihil habet, Is a Writ of Dower, that lies for the Widow against the Tenant who bought Land of her Husband in his Life-time, whereof he was solely seised in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, and of which she is dowable. F. N. B. 147.

Dotis Admensuratione, Admeasurement of Dower, where the Widow holds more than her Share, &c. See Admeasurement.

Double Plea, (Duplex placitum) Is where a Defendant alledgeth for himself two several Matters in Bar of the Plaintiff's Action, when one of them is sufficient, which shall not be admitted: As if a Man plead several Things, the one not depending upon the other, the Plea is accounted Double, and will not be allowed; but if they mutually depend on each other, and the Party may not have the last Plea without the first, then it shall be received. Kitch. 223. And where a Double Plea that is wrong is pleaded, if the Plaintiff reply thereto, and take Issue of one Matter; if that is found against him, he cannot afterwards plead in Arrest of Judgment; for by the Replication it is allowed to be good. 18 E. 4. 17. All Pleas ought ought to be single, that the Jury may not be troubled and perplexed with over many Things at once. Smith's Rep. Angl. lib. 2. cap. 13.

Double Quarrel, (Duplex Querela) Is a Complaint made by any Clerk, or other, to the Archbishop of the Province, against an inferior Ordinary, for delaying or refusing to do Justice in some Cause Ecclesiastical; as to give Sentence, institute a Clerk, &c. and seems to be termed a Double Quarrel, because it is most commonly made against both the Judge and him, at whose Suit Justice is denied or delayed: The Effect whereof is, That the Archbishop taking Notice of the Delay, directs his Letters under his authentical Seal to all Clerks of his Province, commanding them to admonish the Ordinary within a certain Number of Days to do the Justice required, or otherwise to appear before him, or his Official, and there alledge the Cause of his Delay: And to signify to the Ordinary that if he neither perform the Thing enjoin'd, nor appear and shew Cause against it, he himself in his Court of Audience will forthwith proceed to do the Justice that is due. Cowel.

Doubles, (Fr. from the Lat. Diploma) Signify the same with Letters Patent. Stat. 14 H. 6. c. 6.

Douzen Peers, Were twelve Peers assigned at the Instance of the Barons in the Reign of King Hen. 3. to be Privy Counsellors to the King, or rather Conservators of the Kingdom.

Dow, To give or endow, from the Latin Word Do.

Dowager, (Dotata, Dotissa) A Widow endow'd; applied to the Widows of Princes, Dukes, Earls, and other great Personages.

Dower, (Dotarium) Is a Portion which a Widow hath of the Lands of her Husband after his Decease, for the Sustainance of her self, and Education of her Children. 1 Inst. 30. And there were formerly five Kinds of Dower in this Kingdom.

1. Dower of the Common Law, which is a third Part of such Lands or Tenements whereof the Husband was sole seised in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, during the Coverture; and this the Widow is to enjoy during her Life. 2. Dower of Custom, which is that Part of the Husband's Estate to which the Widow is entitled after the Death of her Husband, by the Custom of any Manor or Place, so long as she lives Sole and Chast; and this is more than one third Part, for in some Places she shall have Half the Land, as by the Custom of Gavelkind; and in divers Manors the Widow shall have the Whole during her Life, which is called her Free-bench: But as Custom may enlarge; so it may abridge Dower, to a 4th Part. 1 Inst. 33. 3. Dower ad Ostim Ecclesie, made by the Husband himself immediately after the Marriage, who named such particular Lands of which his Wife should be endow'd; and in ancient Time it was taken that a Man could not by this Dower endow his Wife of more than a third Part, though of less he might: And as the Certainty of the Land was openly declared by the Husband, the Wife after his Death might enter into the Land of which she was endow'd without any other Assignment. 1 Inst. 34. Lit. Sect. 39. 4. Dower ex assensu Patris, which likewise was of certain Lands named by a Son who was the Husband, with the Consent of his Father, and always put in Writing as soon as the Son was married: And if a Woman thus endow'd, or Ad Ostim Ecclesie, after the Death of her Husband enter'd into the Land allotted her in Dower, and agreed thereto, she was concluded to claim any Dower by the Common Law. Lit. Sect. 41. 5. Dower de la plus Belle, which was where the Wife was endow'd with the fairest Part of her Husband's Estate; but of all these Writs of Dower, the two first are now only in Use. 1 Nelf. Abr. 679. By our Law, all the Goods and Chattles of the Wife are the Husband's; and if she be an Inheritrix, the Husband holds her Land during her Life; also if he hath Issue by her, for his own Life, by the Curtesy of England: And if he have any Land in Fee, whereof he is possessed during the Marriage, she is to have a third Part thereof for her Life as her Dower; though she bring nothing to the Husband, and whether she have Issue by him or not. Lit. 36. There are three Things to entitle Dower, viz. Marriage, Seisin, and Death of the Husband: And a Wife shall be endow'd of a Seisin in Law, as well as of a Seisin in Deed; as where Lands and Tenements descend to the Husband before Entry, he hath but a Seisin in Law, and yet the Wife shall be endow'd although it be not reduc'd to an actual Possession. 1 Inst. 31, 32, &c. And it is not necessary that Seisin should continue during the Coverture; for if the Husband aliens the Lands, &c. the Wife shall be nevertheless endow'd. Ibid. 32, 35. Where Lands are exchange'd by the Husband for other Lands, the Wife may be endow'd of which Lands she will, as the Husband was seisd of both; though she may not be endow'd of the Lands given and taken in Exchange. 1 Inst. 31. Where the Estate which the Husband hath during the Marriage is ended, there the Wife shall lose her Dower. New. Nat. Br. 333. But of an Estate-Tail in Lands determin'd, it is said a Woman shall be endow'd. 1 Inst. 31, 32. And if a Wife be endow'd of her third Part, and afterwards evicted by an elder Title; she shall have a new Writ of Dower, and be endow'd of the other Lands. 2 Danv. Abr. 670. Though this is where it is the immediate Estate descended to the Heir; and not when it is the Estate of an Alienee. 9 Rep. 17. The Wife is dowable where Lands were recover'd against the Husband by Default or Covin: And a Woman deforc'd of her Dower, shall recover Damages, viz. the Value of her Dower from her Husband's Death. 13 E. 1 20 H. 3. If Lands be granted to a Husband during the Life of another Person, and the Husband dies, his Wife shall not be endow'd. 1 Rep. 98. If a Man leases Land for Life, rendring Rent; his Wife shall not be endow'd of this Rent; for this is but an Estate for Life in the Rent, though it descends to the Heir. 2 Danv. 656. But she shall be endow'd of a Reversion, expectant on a Term of Years; and of a Rent reserv'd thereon. Lutw. 729. If the Husband hath only an Estate for Life, Remainder to another in Tail, though the Remainder over is to his Heirs, the Wife shall not be endow'd. 2 Danv. 656. But if there be only an intervening Estate for Years, it will be no Bar to Dower. Lutw. 729, &c. A Woman shall not be endow'd of the Goods of her Husband; nor of a Castle, or capital Messuage: But of all other Lands and Tenements she may. 1 Inst. 35. Where there are three Manors, one of them may be assigned to the Wife in Dower, in lieu of all three. Moor 12. The Sheriff may assign a Rent out of the Land in lieu of Dower; and her Acceptance of the Rent will bar Dower out of the same Land, but not out of other Lands. 2 And. 31. Dyer 91. 1 Nelf. Abr. 680. If during the Coverture, the Husband

Husband doth extinguish Rents by Release, &c. yet she shall be endowed of them; for as to her Dower, in the Eye of the Law, they have Continuance. 1 Inst. 32. If Land be assigned to a Woman for Years, in Recompence of Dower, this is no Bar of Dower; for this is not such an Estate therein as she should have. 2 Danv. 668. Where a Jointure is made of Lands after Marriage, the Wife may waive it, and demand her Dower: But 'tis otherwise if made before Marriage according to the Stat. 27 H. 8. And if Lands are given to the Husband and Wife in Tail, and after the Death of the Husband, the Wife disagrees, she may recover her Dower; for by her waiving her Estate, her Husband in Judgment of Law was sole seised ab initio. 3 Rep. 27. If Lands are improv'd, the Wife is to have one third according to the improv'd Value. 1 Inst. 32. And if the Ground deliver'd her be sow'd, she shall have the Corn. 2 Inst. 81. A Widow may have Judgment to recover her Dower, with a Cessat Executio, in case there be any Thing objected against precedent the Title of Dower, &c. till that is determin'd. 1 Nels. 684, 687. 1 Salk. 291. Judgment in Dower is to recover a third Part of Lands and Tenements per Metas & Bendas; but this may not be of a Mill, for if it were, neither of the Parties could use their Parts. 1 Lev. 182. When no Division can be made of what the Wife is dowable, Dower is to be assign'd in a special Manner; as of the third Presentation to a Church, the third Toll-Dish of a Mill; Common certain, a third Year; the third Part of the Profits of an Office, Fair, Market, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 678. And Dower is much favoured in Law, being for the Benefit of Widows: Wherefore the Wife of one Non Compos Mentis, of an Ideot, Outlaw, or one attainted of Felony, may be endow'd: But not of a Person attainted of Treason; nor the Wife of an Alien, Jew, &c. 1 Inst. 33, 37. Stat. 1 Ed. 6. cap. 12. 5 Ed. 6. cap. 11. At Common Law, Dower is assign'd by the Sheriff, by the King's Writ; or by the Heir, &c. by Agreement among themselves: And the Wife cannot enter otherwise into her Dower. 1 Bulst. 35. By the ancient Law of England, till Magna Charta, a Woman was to continue a whole Year in her Husband's House, for the Assignment of her Dower. 2 Inst. 17. By that Statute, a Widow shall immediately after her Husband's Death have her Marriage Inheritance; and remain in his chief House forty Days, within which Time Dower is to be assign'd her of the third Part of all his Lands, &c. 9 H. 3. If a Wife accept and enter no less Land than the third of the whole, on the Sheriff's Assignment, she is barr'd to demand more. Moor 679. If the Widow accepts of Dower of the Heir, against common Right, she shall hold it subject to the Charges of the Husband; but otherwise it is, if she be endow'd against common Right by the Sheriff. 2 Danv. 672. By Provision of Law, the Wife may take a third Part of the Husband's Lands, and hold them discharged. Ibid. If Dower be assigned a Woman on Condition, or with an Exception; the Condition and Exception are void. Cro. Eliz. 451. Detaining of Charters concerning the same Land of which the Widow demands her Dower, is a good Plea by the Heir in Delay of her Dower: But if she delivers up the Evidences, she shall have Judgment; though if she denies the Detainer, and it is found against her, she loses her Dower. Hob. 199.

9 Rep. 19. If a Wife levies a Fine with her Husband, she debars her self of her Dower: And if a common Recovery be had against the Husband and Wife, of the Husband's Lands, it shall bar the Wife of her Dower. 2 Rep. 74. Plowd. 514. Where a Woman releases her Right to him in Reversion, her Dower may be extinguish'd. 8 Rep. 151. If a Wife commits Treason or Felony; or if she elope from her Husband, and live with the Adulterer willingly, without being reconciled to the Husband, she shall lose and forfeit her Dower; but if the Husband be reconciled to her, and she lives with him again, she shall be endow'd. 2 Inst. 453. Dyer 106. And if after Elopement of the Wife, her Husband and she demean themselves as Husband and Wife, it is Evidence of Reconciliation. Dyer 196. If a Man grants his Wife with her Goods to another, and the Wife by Virtue of the Grant lives with the Grantee during the Life of the Husband, this shall forfeit her Dower; for she lived in Adultery, notwithstanding the Grant. 2 Inst. 435. 2 Danv. 662. If a Woman be of the Age of nine Years, at the Death of her Husband, she shall be endowed, of whatsoever Age he is; because after the Death of the Husband, the Marriage is adjudged lawful. 1 Inst. 33. The Wife is, as soon she can after the Decease of her Husband, to demand her Dower, lest she lose the Value from the Time of his Death: And in Action of Dower, the first Process is Summons to appear, on the Return whereof the Attorney for the Tenant or Defendant may enter with the Filizer that the Tenant appears, and prays View, &c. Then a Writ of View goes out, whereby the Sheriff is to shew the Tenant the Land in Question, upon the Return of which Writ of View, the Tenant's Attorney takes a Declaration, and puts in a Plea, the most general one is, Ne unques seisi, &c. viz. That the Husband was never seisd of any Estate whereof the Wife can be endowed; and when Issue is join'd, you must proceed to Trial as in other Actions: Upon Trial, the Jury are to give Damages for the mean Profits from the Death of the Husband (if he die seised) for which Execution shall be made out; and then you have a Writ to the Sheriff to give Possession of a third Part of the Lands. Pract. Solic. p. 335, 336.

As in great Estates Jointures of Lands are usually made in Lieu and Satisfaction of Dower, these Actions of Dower are not so frequently brought as they were formerly.

Dowry, (Dos Mulieris) Was in ancient Time applied to that which the Wife brings her Husband in Marriage; otherwise called Maritagium, or Marriage Goods: But these are termed more properly, Goods given in Marriage, and the Marriage Portion. 1 Inst. 31. This Word is often confounded with Dowet; tho' it hath a different Meaning from it.

Dowry Bill. Among the Jews, the Bridegroom at the Time of the Marriage, gave his Wife a Dowry Bill. Blount.

Drozin, A Territory or Jurisdiction, mentioned in the Stat. of View and Frank-pledge. 18 E. 2. See Deciners.

— Rex Anglia fixisset signum suum in medio, & tradidisset Draconem suum Petro de P. ad portandum, &c.—Rog. Hoved. sub ann. 1191.

Dragium, Drag; A coarser Sort of Bread-Corn: In Staffordshire, they use a Kind of Malt, made of Oats mixed with Barley, which they call Dreg or Drag Malt; and in Essex, &c. they have a Grain called Dreg. Tuffer's Husband. p. 32.

Dregs, Seem to be floating Pieces of Timber so joined together, that by swimming on the Water they may bear a Burden or Load of other Things down a River. 6 H. 6. c. 5.

Dzagere, Signifies any Harness belonging to Cart Horses, for drawing a Waggon, or other Carriage. Paroch. Antiq. p. 549.

Dzag-latches, Were Thieves and Robbers: Lambert in his Eiren. lib. 2. cap. 6. calls them Thieves, Wasters, and Robbersmen; Words grown out of Use. They are mentioned in 5 Ed. 3. cap. 14. & 7 R. 2. c. 5.

Dreit-Dreit, or Droit, Are Words signifying formerly a double Right. Bract. lib. 4. cap. 27. Co. Lit. 266.

Drenched, An old Word used where a Person was overcome, from the Germ. Tringen, i. e. Cogere.

Drenches, or Drenges, (Drengi) Were Tenants in Capite, says an ancient M.S. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. fol. 598. And according to Spelman, they are such as at the Coming of Will. I. called the Conqueror, being put out of their Estates, were afterwards restored thereunto; on their making it appear that they were Owners thereof, and neither in Auxilio, or Consilio against him. Spelm.

Drengage, (Drengagium) The Tenure by which the Drenches or Drenges held their Lands. Trin. 21 Ed. 3. Ebor. & Northumb. Rot. 191.

Drift of the Forest, (Agitatio Animalium in Foresta) Is a View or Examination of what Cattle are in the Forest, that it may be known whether it be surcharged or not; and whose the Beasts are, and whether they are commonable, &c. These Drifts are made at certain Times in the Year by the Officers of the Forest; when all the Cattle of the Forest are driven into some Pound or Place enclosed, for the Purposes afore-mentioned; and to the End it may be discovered whether any Cattle of Strangers be there, which ought not to common. Manw. par. 2. c. 15. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 13. 4 Inst. 309.

Dzinklean, (in some Records Potura Drinklean) Was a Contribution of Tenants, in the Time of the Saxons, towards a Potation or Ale, provided to entertain the Lord, or his Steward.

Drodenne, Signified with our Saxon Ancestors a Grove, or woody Place, where Cattle were kept; and the Keeper of them was called Drofman. Domesday.

Drofland or Dyfland, Another Saxon Word, signifying a Tribute or yearly Payment made by some Tenants to the King, or their Landlords, for driving their Cattle thro' a Manor to Fairs or Markets. Cowel.

Droit, Right, Is the highest Writ of all other real Writs whatsoever, and hath the greatest Respect, and the most assured and final Judgment; and therefore called a Writ of Right, and in the old Books Droit. Co. Lit. 158. There are divers of these Writs used in our Law, such as the following.

Droit de Abbotsen.

Droit de Dower.

Droit de Garde.

Droit Patent.

Droit Rationabili parte.

Droit sur Disclaimer.

Dromones, Dromos, Dromunda, Signified at first high Ships of great Burden, but afterwards those which we now call Men of War. Walsingh. Anno 1292. — Tres Majores Naves subsequenter, quos vulgo Dromones appellant—Mat Paris. sub ann. 1191.

Drunkenness, Is an Offence for which a Man may be punished in the Ecclesiastical Court, as well as by Justices of Peace by Statute: And by 4 Fac. 1. c. 5. And 21 Fac. 1. c. 7. If any Person shall be convicted of Drunkenness by the View of a Justice, Oath of one Witness, &c. he shall forfeit five Shillings for the first Offence, to be levied by Distress and Sale of his Goods; and for want of a Distress, shall sit in the Stocks six Hours: And for the second Offence, he is to be bound with two Sureties in ten Pounds each, to be of the good Behaviour, or be committed. For Drunkenness, Seamen may be punished by Fine, &c. as a Court Martial shall think fit, by Stat. 13 Car. 2. c. 9. And he who is guilty of any Crime thro' his own voluntary Drunkenness, shall be punished for it as much as if he had been sober. Co. Lit. 247. 1 Hawk. P. C. 2.

Dry Exchange, (Cambium Siccum) Is a Term invented in former Times for the Disguising and Covering of Usury; in which something was pretended to pass on both Sides, whereas in Truth nothing passed but on one Side, in which Respect it was called Dry. Stat. 3 H. 7. c. 5.

Duces tecum, Is a Writ commanding a Person to appear at a certain Day in the Court of Chancery, and to bring with him some Writings, Evidences, or other Things, which the Court would view. Reg. Orig.

Duces tecum licet Languidus, A Writ directed to the Sheriff, upon a Return that he cannot bring his Prisoner without Danger of Death, he being adeo Languidus; then the Court grants a Habeas Corpus in Nature of a Duces tecum licet Languidus. Book Entr.

Duel, (Duellum) In our antient Law is a Fight between Persons in a doubtful Case, for the Trial of the Truth. Fleta. But this Kind of Duel is difus'd; and what we now call a Duel is, a Fighting between Two upon some Quarrel precedent: Wherein, if a Person is killed, both the Principal and his Seconds are guilty of Murder, and whether such Seconds fight, or not. H. P. C. 47, 51. And 'tis said by some, that the Seconds of the Person kill'd are equally guilty, by Reason of the Encouragement which they gave by joining with him: But this is contradicted by others. 1 Hawk. 82. Wherever two Persons in cool Blood meet and fight upon a precedent Quarrel, and one of them is killed, the other is guilty of Murder, and cannot excuse himself by alledging that he was first struck by the Deceased, or that he had declined to meet him, was prevail'd upon to do it by his Importunity, or that it was not his Intent to kill, but only to vindicate his Reputation, &c. 1 Hawk. P. C. 81. If two Persons quarrel over Night, and appoint to fight the next Day; or quarrel in the Morning, and agree to fight in the Afternoon; or such a considerable Time after, by which it may be presumed the Blood was cooled; and then they meet and fight a Duel, and one kill the other, it is Murder. 3 Inst. 51. H. P. C. 48. Kely. 56. And when-ever it appears that he who kills another in a Duel or Fighting on a sudden Quarrel, was Master of his Temper at the Time, he is guilty of Murder; as if after the Quarrel he fall into another Discourse, and talk calmly thereon; or alledge that the Place where the Quarrel happens is not convenient for Fighting; or that his Shoes are too high, if he should fight at present, &c. Kel. 56. 1 Lev. 180. If one challenge another, who refuses to meet him, but tells him that he shall go the next Day to such a Place about Business, and then the Challenger meets him on the Road, and assaults the other; if the other in this Case kill him, it will be only Manslaughter; for here is no Acceptance of the Challenge or Agreement to fight: And if the Person challenged refuseth to meet the Challenger, but tells him that he wears a Sword, and is always ready to defend himself; if then the Challenger attack him, and is killed by the other, it is neither Murder nor Manslaughter, if necessary in his own Defence. Kel. 56. It is a very high Offence to challenge another, either by Word or Letter, to fight a Duel; or to be the Messenger of such a Challenge; or even barely to endeavour to provoke another to send a Challenge, or to fight; as by dispersing Letters for that Purpose, full of Reflections, &c. 1 Sid. 186. 3 Inst. 158. And Persons convicted of barely sending a Challenge, have been adjudged to pay a Fine of 100 l. to be imprisoned for a Month, and to make a publick Acknowledgment of their Offence, and to be bound to their Good Behaviour. 1 Hawk. P. C. 135, 138.

Duke, (Lat. Dux, Fr. Duc, à Ducendo) Signified among the antient Romans, Duxorem exercitus, such as led their Armies; since which they were called Duces, and were Governors of Provinces, &c. In some Nations, the Sovereigns of the Country are called by this Name; as the Duke of Savoy, &c. In England, the Title of Duke is the next Dignity to the Prince of Wales: And the first Duke we had in England was Edward the Black Prince, so fam'd in our English Histories for Heroick Actions; who was created Duke of Corn- wal in the 11th Year of King Edw. 3. After which there were more made in such Manner as their Titles descended to their Posterity; and during the late Reigns their Number hath been greatly increased. They are created with Solemnity, per Cincturam Gladii, Cappaque & Circuli aurei in Capite impositionem. Camd. Britan. p. 166.

Dum fuit infra ætatem, Is where an Infant maketh a Feoffment of his Lands; when he cometh of full Age, he may have this Writ to recover those Lands or Tenements which were so aliened: And within Age, he may enter into the Land and take it back again, and by his Entry he shall be remitted to his Ancestor's Right. New Nat. Br. 426. If the Husband and Wife alien the Wife's Land, during the Nonage of both of them, the Wife at her full Age after the Death of the Husband, shall have a Dum fuit infra ætatem. M. 14 E. 3.

Dum non fuit Compos Mentis, Is a Writ that lieth where a Man who is not of sound Memory aliens any Lands or Tenements, then he shall have this Writ against the Alienee. F. N. B. 202. And he shall alledge that he was not of Sane memoire when he made the Feoffment; but being visited with Infirmary, lost his Discretion for a Time, so as not to be capable of Making a Grant, &c. New Nat. Br. 449. But see Disability.

Dun, Down, In which Termination it hath varied into Don, signifies a Mountain or high open Place; so that the Names of those Towns which end in Dun or Don, as Ashdon, &c. were either built on Hills, or near them in open Places. Domesd.

Dunsetts, Those who dwell on Hills or Mountains. Sax.

Dunum, and Duna, A Down or Hill: And Dunnarium is used in the same Sense. Chart. dat. 29 Ed. 3. Penes Decan. & Cap. Eccl. Cath. Christi Oxon.

Duodena, A Jury of twelve Men. — Tunc Justiciar. convocata seorsim alia Duodena. Walsingh. 256.

Duodena manu, Twelve Witnesses to purge a Criminal of an Offence. See Jurare Duodecima Manu.

Duplex Querela, A Process Ecclesiastical; Double Quarrel.

Duplicate, Is used for second Letters Patent, granted by the Lord Chancellor in a Case wherein he had before done the same; which were therefore thought void. Crompt. Jurisd. fol. 215. But it is more commonly a Copy or Transcript of any Deed or Writing, Account, &c. or a second Letter, written and sent to the same Party and Purpose as a former, for Fear of Miscarriage of the First, or for other Reasons: This Word is mentioned in the Stat. 14 Car. 2. c. 10.

Durden, A Thicket of Wood in a Valley. Cowel.

Duress, (Duritia) Is where one is wrongfully imprisoned or restrained of his Liberty contrary to Law, 'till he seals a Bond or other Deed to another; or threatned to be killed, wounded, or beaten if he do not do it: And a Bond or Deed so obtained is void in Law. Broke, in his Abridgment, joins Duress and Minas together, i. e. Hardship and Threatnings: If one under a just Fear of being imprison'd, killed, &c. enters into a Bond to him that threatens him, it is Duress per Minas; and may be pleaded to avoid the Bond: But it must be a Threatning of Life or Member, or of Imprisonment; and not of a Battery only; or to take away Goods, &c. 1 Inst. 162, 253. 2 Inst. 483. But it has been adjudg'd, that if a Man makes a Deed by Durefs done to him by Taking of his Cattle, tho' there be no Durefs to his Person, yet this shall avoid the Deed. 2 Danv. Abr. 686. If a Person threaten another to make a Deed to a third Person, it is by Durefs, and void, as if such third Person had made the Threatning. 2 Inst. 482. 3 Inst. 92. 4 Inst. 97. And where a Man is imprisoned until he makes a Bond at another Place; if afterwards he doth it when at large, the Bond is by Durefs, and void: But if a Person be arrested upon an Action at the Suit of another, and the Cause of Action is not good, if he make a Bond to a Stranger, it is not Durefs; tho' if he make it to the Plaintiff, it is. 1 Lill. Abr. 494. If a Man be lawfully in Prison, and makes an Obligation against his Agreement and Will, he may avoid it by Durefs: But it is otherwise if he do it of his good Will. 43 E. 3. 10. 2 Danv. 686. A Man shall not avoid a Deed by Durefs to a Stranger: For it hath been held that none shall avoid his own Bond for the Imprisonment or Danger of any other than of himself only. Cro. Jac. 187. And yet a Son shall avoid his Deed by Durefs to the Father: And the Husband shall avoid a Deed made by Durefs to the Wife; though a Servant shall not avoid a Deed made by Durefs to his Master, or the Master the Deed sealed by Durefs of his Servant. 2 Danv. 686. If a Man is taken by Virtue of a Process issuing out of a Court that hath not Power to grant it; or is in Custody on a false Charge of Felony, &c. And for his Enlargement and Discharge gives Bond, &c. this may be avoided, as taken by Durefs. Cro. El. 646. 4 Inst. 97. Allen 92. A Statute-Merchant may be avoided by Audita Querela, because it was made by Durefs of Imprisonment. A Will shall be avoided by Durefs or Menace of Imprisonment. A Feoffment made by Durefs is voidable; but not void. But no Averment shall be taken against a Deed inrolled that it was made by Durefs. 1 Roll. Abr. 862. 2 Danv. 685. A Marriage had by Durefs is voidable: And by Statute, Obligations, Statutes, &c. obtained of Women by Force, to marry the Persons to whom made, or otherwise, unless for a just Debt, are declared void. 31 H. 6. c. 9. If a Person executes a Deed by Durefs, he cannot plead Non est factum, because it is his Deed; tho' he may avoid it by special Pleading, and Judgment Si assio, &c. 5 Rep. 119.

Dursley, Signifies Blows without Wounding or Bloodshed, vulgo Dry-blows. Blount.

Duffy Fatts, Duffy Foots, Pedlars or Traders who have no settled Habitation, and they have their Name from their Feet being cover'd with Dust, by their continual Travelling. See Piepowder Court.

Dutchy Court of Lancaster, Is a Court of the Dutchy Chamber of Lancaster held at Westminster before the Chancellor, for Matters concerning the Lands and Franchises of the Dutchy: And the Proceedings in this Court are by English Bill, as in Chancery. 4 Inst. 204. The Original of it was in Henry the Fourth's Days, who obtaining the Crown of England by deposing Rich. 2. and having the Dutchy of Lancaster by Descent, in Right of his Mother, was seized thereof as King, and not as Duke: But at length by Authority of Parliament he passed a Charter, whereby the Possessions, Liberties, &c. of the said Dutchy were severed from the Crown, and so left to Posterity. Of this Court

Gwin (in his Preface to his Readings) say thus: The Court of the Dutchy of Lancaster grew out of the Grant of King Edw. 3. who gave that Dutchy to his Son John of Gaunt, and endowed it with Royal Rights and Privileges; and for as much as it was afterwards extinct in the Person of King Hen. 4. by Reason of the Union thereof with the Crown, the same King (suspecting himself to be more rightfully Duke of Lancaster, than King of England) determined to save his Right in the Dutchy, whatever should befall the Kingdom; and therefore he separated the Dutchy from the Crown, and settled it in the natural Persons of himself and his Heirs, as if he had been no King: In which Estate it continued during the Reigns of Hen. 5. and Hen. 6. But when Edw. 4. recovered the Crown, and recontinued the Right of the House of York, he appropriated that Dutchy to the Crown again, yet so that he suffered the Court and Officers to remain as he found them; and in this Manner it came together with the Crown to Hen. 7. who approving the Policy of Hen. 4. and by whose Right he obtained the Kingdom, made a like Separation of the Dutchy, and so left it. It is now only a superior County Palatine. Vide Lancaster. Officers of this Court, See Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaster.

Duty. Any Thing that is known to be due by Law, and thereby recoverable, is a Duty before it is recovered; because the Party interested in the same hath a Power to recover it. 1 Lill. 495.

Dwindled, Signifies any Thing consumed; from whence comes the Word Dwindle.

Dyke-reebe, An Officer that hath the Care and Oversight of the Dykes and Drains in Fenny Countries; as of Dieping Fens, &c. mentioned in the Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. c. 11.

Dyge or Dirge, A mournful Ditty or Song over the Dead; from the Teutonick Dyrke Laudare, to praise and extol, whence it is a laudatory Song. Cowel.

Dytenum, A Ditty or Song. — Venire cum toto ac pleno Dyteno, to sing Harvest home. Paroch. Antiq. 320.

Ebalus, From the Sax. Eale, Cervisia, & Hus, Domus) An Ale-house: In the Laws of K. Alfred we often find this Word.

Calhozda, The Privilege of Affixing and Selling Ale and Beer: It is mentioned in a Charter of King Hen. 2. to the Abbot of Glastonbury.

Ealderman, Among the Saxons was as much as Earl with the Danes. Camd. Britan. 107. Also an Elder, Senator, &c. And at this Day, Ealdermen or Aldermen, are those who are associated to the Mayor or Chief Officer in the Common Council of a City or Borough Town. Stat. 24 Hen. 8. cap. 13. See Alderman.

Earl, (Sax. Eorle, Lat. Comes) This 'tis said was a great Title among the Saxons, and is the most Ancient of the English Peerage, there being no Title of Honour used by our present Nobility that was likewise in Use by the Saxons, except this of Earl; which was usually applied to the First in the Royal Line. Verstegan deriveth this Word from the Dutch Ear, i. e. Honor, and Ethel, which signifies Noble: But whencesoever it is derived, the Title Earl was at length given to those who were Associates to the King in his Councils and Martial Actions; and the Method of Investiture Investiture into that Dignity was Per Cincturam Gladii Comitatus, without any formal Charter of Creation. Dugdale's Warwicksh. 302. William the First, called the Conqueror, gave this Dignity in Fee to his Nobles, annexing it to this or that County or Province; and allotting them for the Maintenance of it a certain Portion of Money arising from the Prince's Profits, for the Pleadings and Forfeitures of the Provinces. Camd. And formerly one Earl had divers Shires under his Government, and had Lieutenants under him in every Shire, such as are now Sheriffs; as appears by divers of our old Statutes. Cowel. But about the Reign of King John, and ever since, our Kings have made Earls of Counties, &c. by Charter; and giving them no Authority over the County, nor any Part of the Profits arising out of it; only sometimes they have had an annual Fee out of the Exchequer, &c. An Earl, Comes was heretofore correlative with Comitatus; and antiently there was no Comes or Earl, but had a Shire or County for his Earldom; but of late Times the Number of Earls very much encreasing, several of them have chosen for their Titles some eminent Part of a County, considerable Town, Village, or their own Seats, &c. Then, besides these local Earls, there are some personal and honorary; and others nominal, who derive their Titles from the Names of their Families. Lex Constitutionis, p. 78. Their Place is next to a Marquess, and before a Viscount: And as in very antient Times those who were created Counts or Earls, were of the Blood Royal; our British Monarchs to this Day call them in all publick Writings, our most dear Cousin: They also originally did, and still may use the Style of Nos. See Countess.

Easement, (Affamentum, from the Fr. Aise, i. e. Commoditas) Is defined to be a Service or Convenience which one Neighbour hath of another by Charter or Prescription, without Profit; as a Way through his Land, a Sink, or such like. Kitch. 105. A Person may prescribe to an Easement in the Freehold of another, as belonging to some antient House, or to Land, &c. a Way over the Land of another; a Gate-way, Water-course, or Washing-place in another's Ground may be claimed by Prescription as Easements: But a confus'd Multitude cannot prescribe; though for an Easement they may plead Custom or Usage. Cro. Jac. 170. 3 Leon. 254. 3 Mod. 294. To alledge an Easement by Consuevit only is the best Way: And Things of Necessity shall not be extinguished by Unity of Possession; but a Way of Ease may be thus extinguished. 1 Lill. Abr. 496. See Prescription.

Easter, Was the Name of a Goddess which the Saxons worshipped in the Month of April; and so called, because she was the Goddess of the East. Blount. But in our Church it is the Feast of the Passover, in Commemoration of the Sufferings of our Saviour Christ.

Eastintus, (Sax. East-Tyne) Is an easterly Coast or Country, and hath been applied to the East-freet, East-side of a River, &c. — Si sit Estintus, & se sit Northintus amendet, &c. — Leg. K. Edw. 1.

Ebdomadarius, An Ebdomary or Officer appointed Weekly in Cathedral Churches, to supervise the regular Performance of Divine Service, and prescribe the particular Duties of each Person attending in the Choir, as to Reading, Singing, Praying, &c. To which Purpose the Ebdo- mary at the Beginning of his Week drew in Form a Bill or Writing of the respective Persons and their several Offices, called Tabula; whereupon the Persons there entered were stiled Intabulati: This is manifested in the Statutes of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul's, digested by Dr. Ralph Baldock, Dean of St. Paul's, Anno 1295. M.S. penes Joh. Episc. Norwic.

Eberemorth or Eberemozs, (Sax.) Bare, or down-right Murder. Leg. H. 1. c. 12.

Eberemurder, (Apertum Murdrum) Was one of those Crimes, which by King Henry the First's Laws, cap. 13. Emendari non possunt; hoc ex scelerum genere fuit nullo pretio expiabilem, &c. Spelm.

Ecclesia, (Lat.) Is commonly used for that Place where God is served, which is called a Church: But in Law Proceedings, according to Fitzherbert, this Word intends a Parsonage; for so he expresses it in a Question, whether a Benefice was Ecclesia, sive Capella, &c. F. N. B. 32. 2 Inst. 363.

Ecclesiæ Sculptura. The Image or Sculpture of a Church in antient Times, was often cut out or cast in Plate or other Metal, and preserved as a religious Treasure or Relique; and to perpetuate the Memory of some famous Churches. Mon. Angl. Tom. 3. p. 309.

Ecclesiastical Persons or Ecclesiasticks, (Ecclesiastici) Are Church-men, Persons whose Functions consist in performing the Service, and keeping up the Discipline of the Church. See Clergy.

Effoziammentum, (Afforciammentum) A Distress or Inquisition. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. pag. 280.

Effratoys, (Lat.) Breakers, applied to Burglars, that break open Houses to steal. — Qui furandi causa Domos effringunt, &c. M.S.

Effusio Sanguinis, The Mulk, Fine, or Penalty impos'd by the old English Laws for the Shedding of Blood; which the King granted to many Lords of Manors: And this Privilege, among others, was granted to the Abbot of Glastonbury. Cartular. Abbat. Glaston. M.S. fol. 87.

Egyptians, (Egyptiani) Commonly called Gipsies, are by our Laws and Statutes a counterfeit Kind of Rogues, who disguising themselves in strange Habits, smearing their Faces and Bodies, and framing to themselves a Canting unknown Language, wander up and down; and under Pretence of telling Fortunes, curing Diseases, and such like, abuse the ignorant common People, by Stealing and Pilfering from them every Thing that is not too heavy for their Carriage, and which they may go off with undiscover'd. There are several Statutes for suppressing these Impostors; as by Stat. 22 H. 8. c. 10. Egyptians coming into England are to depart the Realm in fifteen Days, or be imprisoned. And by 1 & 2 P. & M.

If

If any Person shall import any Egyptians into this Kingdom, he shall forfeit 40 l. And if the Egyptians remain in England above a Month, they shall be guilty of Felony. Also Conforting with Egyptians is made Felony by 5 Eliz. c. 20.

Eia, Ey, (from the Saxon Eig, Insula) An Island: So that where the Names of Places end in Ey, it denotes them an Island; as Ramsay is the Island of Rams; Sheppey the Island of Sheep; Hersey, the Island of Harts, &c. Mat. Paris. An. 833.

Ejecta, A Woman ravish'd or deflowered; or cast forth from the Virtuous: Ejectus, a Whoremonger. Blount.

Ejectione custodiæ, (Ejectment de Garde) Is a Writ which lieth against him that casteth out the Guardan from any Land during the Minority of the Heir. Reg. Orig. 162. F. N. B. 139. There are two other Writs not unlike this; the one termed Ravishment de Gard, and the other Droit de Gard.

Ejectione firmæ, or Ejectment, Is a Writ or Action that lies for the Lessee for Years, who is ejected before the Expiration of his Term, either by the Lessor or a Stranger: Also Ejectment may be brought by a Lessor against the Lessee, holding over his Term, &c. Reg. Orig. 227. And upon Ejectment for Non-payment of Rent, the Court order'd the Proceedings to be stayed on Payment of the Rent and Costs, and a new Lease to be made at the Defendant's Charge. 1 Lill. Abr. 501. In these Cases Ejectment is either an actual Ejectment, as when the Lessee is actually put out of Land let unto him; or it is an Ejectment by Implication of Law, viz. where such an Act is done by one which doth amount to an Ejectment, although he doth not really enter upon the Land let, and oust the Lessee. Ibid. 496. But Ejectment is now become an Action in the Place of many Real Actions, as Writs of Right, Formadons, &c. which were very difficult as well as tedious and chargeable: And this is the common Action for trying of Titles, and recovering of Lands, &c. illegally kept from the right Owner; tho' where Entry is taken away by Discents, Fines and Recoveries, Disseisins, &c. Ejectment may not be brought; so that all Titles cannot be tried by this Action. Wood's Inst. 547, 548. And the Action of Ejectione firmæ was never known to remove a Possession till the Reign of King Hen. 8. before which Time an Action of Trespas, Quare clausum fregit, &c. was made use of: Tho' in Action of Trespas, Damages were only to be recovered; whereas in Ejectione firmæ, the Thing or Term it self is recovered, as well as Damages. 3 Leon. 49. Ejectment ought to be brought for a Thing that is certain; as if it be of a Manor, Manerium de A. cum Pertinentiis; if of a Rectory, Rectoriæ de B. &c. And so many Messuages, Cottages, Acres of arable Land, Meadow, &c. cum pertin. in Paroch. &c. For Land must be distinguished, how much of one Sort, and how much of another, &c. Cro. El. 339. 3 Leon. 13. Ejectment lies of a Church, as De uno Domo, vocat. The Parish-Church of, &c. And a Church is a Messuage, by which Name it may be recovered; and the Declaration is to be served on the Parson who officiates Divine Service. 11 Rep. 25. 1 Salk. 256. It lies not of Tithes only; but may be of a Rectory, Chapel, &c. and the Tithes thereto belonging. 2 Danv. Abr. 752. And Ejectment will lie of so many Loads of Tithes-Corn, severed from the nine Parts, or where certainly expressed; tho' it will not lie for Tithes generally. 1 Nell. Abr. 688. It lies De uno Messuagio sive Burgagio; but not De uno Messuagio sive Tenemento, unless it have a Vocat A. &c. to make it good, because of the Uncertainty of the Word Tenement. 1 Sid. 295. 2 Danv. 753. It lieth De Domo, which hath convenient Certainty for the Sheriff to deliver Possession, &c. Cro. Jac. 654. It lies of a Cottage or Curtilage; of a Coal-mine, &c. but not of a Common, Piscary, &c. Cro. Jac. 150. For Under-wood it lies, tho' a Præcipe doth not. 2 Roll. Rep. 482, 483. But for uno Clauso, or una pecia Terræ, &c. without Certainty of the Acres, Nature, &c. it doth not lie. 11 Rep. 55. 4 Mod. 1. The Method of Proceeding in Ejectment is now made more easy than formerly; when a Lease was to be sealed and delivered on the Premises to the Lessee, &c. In ancient Times, the Ejector in Law was any Person that came upon any Part of the Land, &c. mentioned in the Lease of Ejectment, tho' he were there without any Intent to disturb the Lessee of the Possession, after the Sealing of the Ejectment Lease; and such Ejector was a good Ejector against whom an Action of Ejectione firmæ might be brought to try the Title of the Land in Question: But now the Law is altered, for there is no Occasion for a Lease to be made and sealed upon the Premises to the Lessee, who hath a Mind to try the Title, and to leave the Lessee in Possession to be ousted and ejected by the Tenants in Possession, &c. The usual Course at this Time is to draw a Declaration, and therein feign a Lease for Three, Five, or Seven Years, to him that would try the Title, and also feign a casual Ejector or Defendant in the Declaration, and then deliver the Declaration to the Ejector, who serves the same by Delivering a Copy thereof on the Tenant in Possession, or his Wife, (for a Delivery to a Son, or Servant, &c. is not good), and gives Notice in Writing at the Bottom for him to appear and defend his Title; which must be read to the Tenant; and the Person serving it is to tell him that if he do not procure some Attorney to appear for him and defend his Title, in Default thereof, that he (the Defendant) will suffer a Judgment to be had against him, whereby he (the Tenant) will be turn'd out of Possession: The Declaration being thus serv'd, the Tenant is to appear the Beginning of the next Term by his Attorney, and consent to a Rule to be made Defendant instead of the casual Ejector, and take upon him the Defence; wherein he may confess a Lease, Entry, and Ouster, and at the Trial stand upon the Title only: But if the Tenant in Possession doth not appear and enter into the afore-mentioned Rule in Time, after the Declaration serv'd; then on Affidavit made of the Service of the Declaration, with Notice to appear as aforesaid, the Court will order that Judgment be entered against the casual Ejector by Default; and the Tenant in Possession will by an Habere facias Possessionem upon such Judgment be turn'd out of Possession. 1 Lill. 499. If at the Trial the Defendant will not appear and confess Lease, Entry, and Ouster, it is usual to call him or his Attorney, and then call the Plaintiff and nonsuit him; and upon Return of the Posse, Judgment will be given against the casual Ejector. 1 Salk. 250. But in this Case, tho' the Plaintiff be nonsuit, he shall not pay any Costs; for the Rule for confessing Lease, Entry, and Ouster is to be carried to the Secondary, who taxes Costs upon it to be paid by the Defendant; dant; and if the same are not paid, the Court on Affidavit and Motion will grant an Attachment against the Defendant; but this is where the Defendant appears, and not where it goes wholly against him by Default. 1 Lill. 503, 504. If the Tenant doth appear, having by his Attorney filed common Bail, and entered into the Rule above-mentioned, he is made Defendant in the Declaration, and put into the same in the Place of the casual Ejector; and then the Defendant's Attorney must plead Non Cul. And the Plaintiff's Attorney draws up the Issue, a Copy whereof and of the Declaration is to be delivered to the Attorney for the Defendant; whereupon Notice is given of Trial: In Order to which the Venire, &c. is to be made out and return'd, and the Record made up by the Plaintiff's Attorney, beginning with the Declaration; which being sealed, the Breviate is to be prepared, in which, after a short Recital of the Declaration and Plea, the Plaintiff's Title is to be set forth from the Person last seised in Fee of the Premises, under whom the Lessor claims down to the Client, the Plaintiff proving the Deeds, &c. And after Trial the Proceedings are as in other Cases. And here it is to be observ'd, that if the Declaration is delivered the first or second Day of Easter or Michaelmas Terms, the Tenant must plead the same Term, or the Plaintiff will have Judgment; and this is by Reason of the Length of those Terms. Practif. Solic. 328, 329. The Plaintiff is not allowed to amend his Declaration in Ejectment after Delivery; he must stand by it, or deliver a new Declaration. As many Demises may be laid in a Declaration as shall be thought fit; and if the Plaintiff recovers upon one, it is sufficient for the Whole. 3 Lev. 117, 334. Where one brings Ejectment of Land in two Parishes, and the Whole lies in one, he shall recover: Also if a Person brings Ejectment of one Acre in B. and Part of it lies in A. he shall recover for such Part as lies in B. And if one having Title to a Part only of Lands, bringeth an Ejectment for the Whole, he shall recover his Part of the Lands. Plowd. 429. 3 Cro. 13. A Plaintiff shall recover only according to the Right which he hath at the Time of bringing his Action: And one who hath Title to the Land in Question, may on Motion be made a Defendant in the Action with the Tenant in Possession, to defend his Title; and a Landlord may be made a Defendant by the Tenant, with the Consent of such Landlord, &c. 1 Nels. Abr. 694. 1 Lill. 497, &c. As the Possession of the Land is primarily in Question, and to be recovered, that concerns the Tenant; and the Title of the Land, which is tried collaterally, that is concerning some other, who may be admitted to be a Defendant with a Tenant: But none other is to be admitted a Defendant, but he that hath been in Possession or receives the Rents, &c. When there is a Recovery in Ejectment by Verdict, Action may be brought to recover the mesne Profits of the Lands from the Time of the Defendant's Entry laid in the Declaration: And this Action may be brought either by the Plaintiff in Ejectment, or by the Lessor of the Plaintiff; tho' where the Plaintiff brings it, he need only at the Trial to produce his Possea of his Recovery; but where the Lessor brings it he must prove his Title over again, if it be insisted on by the other Side, otherwise he will be nonsuited. 1 Lill. 499. The Plaintiff in Ejectment is a meer nominal Person, and a Trustee for the Lessor; and if he release the Action, he may be committed for a Contempt; so likewise if he release an Action brought in his Name for the mesne Profits. 1 Salk. 260. It has been held a great Abuse, that nominal Lessees in Ejectment were Persons not in Being, or not known to the Defendant; and Attornies who have made such Lessees, have been order'd to pay Costs, and put to answer on Interrogatories, &c. Mod. Ca. 309. If a Man is made Plaintiff in Ejectment without his Knowledge, and the Plaintiff thereupon becomes nonsuit, after which Execution is sued out against him; if it appears by his Oath, that he was made Plaintiff without his Knowledge or Order, he shall be discharged. 34 Car. B. R. 5 Ann. 1 Lill. 500. In Ejectment, if it appears that the Plaintiff was ejected after the Lease made, it is sufficient; tho' no certain Day be alledged in which he was ejected, for the Day is not material, being before the Action brought. Cro. Jac. 311. But the Time of Entry of the Plaintiff must be shewn, that it may appear he was not a Disseisor, by Entering on the Lands before the Commencement of his Term, &c. Where Lands in the Lease and Declaration, &c. are different, and not exactly the same, or the Term is different from that in the Declaration, tho' the Plaintiff hath a Verdict, he cannot have Judgment. Yelv. 166. 2 Lutw. 963. If there be a Verdict and Judgment against the Plaintiff, he may bring another Action of Trespass and Ejectment for the Land, it being only to recover the Possession, &c. wherein Judgment is not final; and it is not like a Writ of Right, &c. where the Title alone is tried. Wood's Inst. 547. Trin. 23 Car. B. R. No Arrest is to be made in this Action, as usually prosecuted: But if there be no Tenant in Possession; as where a House or Land is empty, and the Person that was last in Possession is run away, so that you cannot find any Person to deliver the Declaration to, then the Process must be in the old Way, by Sealing a Lease upon the Ground; and an Original is to be sued out against the Person who ejected the Lessee, and then Ouster and Ejectment, &c. And herein Rules are to be given to plead; tho' there cannot be Judgment against the casual Ejector, without a Motion for that Purpose, after the Rules for Pleading are out. 1 Lill. 498. In Ejectment for empty Houses, a Lease was sealed on the Land, and a Declaration delivered to the casual Ejector, and Judgment and Execution had; yet because the Plaintiff did not move for a peremptory Rule to plead, the Judgment was set aside: And in this Case there must be an Affidavit of the Sealing the Lease and the Entry. 1 Salk. 255. 1 Nels. Abr.

Notice to the Tenant in Possession to appear, &c.

Mr. T. F.

YOU may perceive by the above Declaration, that I am sited as a casual Ejector for the Messuage and Lands therein contained, whereto I have no Title; if therefore you claim any Title to the same, or any Part thereof, you must appear the next Trinity-Term in his Majesty's Court of King's Bench at Westminster, by some Attorney of that Court, and make your Defence, otherwise Judgment will be had against me by Default, and you will be turn'd out of Possession; of which take this Notice from,

Your Friend

George D.

Affidavit of Service of the Declaration and Notice.

J. G. of, &c. maketh Oath, That he, this Deponent, on, &c. last past, did deliver to T. F. Tenant in Possession of the Messuage and Premises in Question, a true Copy of the Declaration in Ejectment hereto annexed; at the Foot of which Declaration is a Notice for the said T. F. to appear the then next and now present Trinity-Term, in this Court, and defend his Title, otherwise Judgment would be entered against him by Default; and this Deponent farther saith, That he told the said T. F. that if he did not appear and defend his Title the then next and now present Trinity-Term, he would be turn'd out of Possession.

Election, (Electio) Is when a Man is left to his own Free-will to take or do one Thing or another, which he pleases. And if it be given of several Things, he who is the first Agent, and ought to do the first Act, shall have the Election: As if a Person make a Lease, rendring Rent, or a Garment, &c. the Lessee shall have the Election, as being the first Agent, by Payment of the one, or Delivery of the other. Co. Litt. 144. And if A. covenant to pay B. a Pound of Pepper or Sugar before Easter; it is at the Election of A. at all Times before Easter, which of them he will pay: But if he pays it not before the said Feast, then afterwards it is at the Election of B. to demand and have which he pleaseth. Dyer 18. 5 Rep. 59. 11 Rep. 51. If I give to you one of my Horses in my Stable, there you shall have the Election; for you shall be the first Agent, by Taking or Seizure of one of them. Co. Litt. 145. Where Things granted are annual, and to have Continuance, the Election (where the Law gives it him) remains to the Grantor, as well after the Day as before: But 'tis otherwise when to be performed at once. Ibid. When nothing passes to the Feoffee or Grantee before Election to have the one Thing or the other, the Election ought to be made in the Life of the Parties; and the Heir or Executor cannot make the Election: But where an Estate or Interest passes immediately to the Feoffee, Donee, &c. there Election may be made by them, or their Heirs or Executors. 2 Rep. 36, 37. And when one and the same Thing passeth to the Donee or Grantee, and the Donee or Grantee hath Election in what Manner he will take it, there the Interest passeth immediately, and the Party, his Heirs, &c. may make Election when they will. Co. Litt. 145. 2 Danv. Abr. 761. Where the Election creates the Interest, nothing passes 'till Election; and where no Election can be made, no Interest will arise. Hob. 174. If the Election is given to several Persons, there the first Election made by any of the Persons shall stand: As if a Man leases two Acres to A. for Life, Remainder of one Acre to B. and of the other Acre to C. Now B. or C. may elect which of the Acres he will have, and the first Election by one binds the other. Co. Litt. 145. 2 Rep. 36. If a Man leases two Acres for Life, the Remainder of one in Fee to the same Person; and after licenses the Lessee to cut Trees in one Acre, this is an Election that he shall have the Fee in the other Acre. 2 Danv. 762. And an Election made by Tenant for Life, shall bind him in Remainder. Moor 102. A Person grants a Manor, except one Close called N. and there are two Closes called by that Name, one containing nine Acres, and the other but three Acres; the Grantee shall not in this Case chuse which of the said Closes he will have, but the Grantor shall have Election which Close shall pass. 1 Leon. 268. But if one grants an Acre of Land out of a Waste or Common, and doth not say in what Part, or how to be bounded, the Grantee may make his Election where he will.

will. 1 Leon. 30. If a Man hath three Daughters, and he covenants with another that he shall have one of them to dispose of in Marriage; it is at the Covenantor's Election which of his Daughters the Covenantee shall have, and after Request she is to be delivered to him. Moor 72. 2 Danv. 762. In Consideration that a Person had sold another certain Goods, he promis'd to deliver him the Value in such Pipes of Wine as he should chuse; the Plaintiff must make his Election before he brings his Action. Style 49. An Election which of two Things to be done, ought not to be made merely by bringing an Action; but before, that the Defendant may know which he is to do, and 'tis said he is not bound to tender either before the Plaintiff hath made his Choice which will be accepted. 1 Mod. 217. 1 Nels. Abr. 697. When a Condition of a Bond is, that the Obligor shall pay 30 l. or twenty Kine, at the Obligee's Election, within such a Time; the Obligee at his Peril is to make his Election within the Time limited. 1 Leon. 69. But in Debt upon Bond to pay 10 l. on such a Day, or four Cows, at the then Election of the Obligee, it was adjudged, that it was not enough for the Defendant to plead that he was always ready, &c. if the Obligee had made his Election; for he ought to tender both at the Day, by Reason the Word then relates to the Day of Payment. Moor 246. 1 Nels. 694, 695. If a Man hath an Election to do one of two Things, and he cannot by any Default of a Stranger, or of himself, or of the Obligee, or by the Act of God, do the One; he must at his Peril do the other. 1 Lill. Abr. 506. Where the Law allows a Man two Actions to recover his Right, it is at his Election to bring which he pleaseth: And where a Man's Act may work two Ways, both arising out of his Interest, he hath Election given him to use it either Way. Dyer 20. 2 Roll. Abr. 787. Action of Trespass upon the Case, or Action of Trespass Vi & Armis, may be brought against one that rescues a Prisoner, at the Election of the Party damnified by the Rescous. And an Action of the Case, or an Affise, lies against him that surcharges a Common, at the Election of him that is injured thereby. 1 Lill. 504, 505. Also for a Rent-charge out of Lands, there may be Writ of Annuity or Distress, at the Election of the Grantee; but after the Death of the Grantor, if the Heir be not charg'd, the Election to bring Annuity ceaseth. Dyer 344. A Man was indicted of Felony for Entering an House and taking away Money, and found guilty, and burnt in the Hand; after which, the Person who lost the Money brought an Action of Trespass against the other for Breaking his House, and Taking away his Money, and it was held that the Action would lie; for tho' it was at his Election at first, either to prefer an Indictment or bring an Action, yet by the Indictment he had made no Election, because that was not the Prosecution of the Party, but of the Crown. Style 347. If a Bargain and Sale be made of Lands which is inrolled, and at the same Time the Bargainor levies a Fine thereof to the Bargainee, he hath his Election to take by one or the other. 4 Rep. 72. A Wife hath her Election which to take, of a Jointure made after Marriage, or her Dower, on the Death of the Husband, and not before. Dyer 358. When a Lessor hath Election to charge the Lessee, or his Assignee, for Rent; if he accepts the Rent of the Assignee, he hath determined his Election. 3 Rep. 24. An Act becoming void will determine an Election. Hob. 152. There is no Election against the King in his Grants, &c. 1 Leon. 30.

Election of a Clerk of Statutes-Merchant, Is a Writ that lies for the Choice of a Clerk assign'd to take Bonds called Statutes-Merchant; and is granted out of the Chancery, upon Suggestion that the Clerk formerly assign'd is gone to dwell at another Place, or is under some Impediment to attend the Duty of his Office, or hath not Lands sufficient to answer his Transgressions if he should act amiss, &c. F. N. B. 164.

Election of Ecclesiastical Persons. There is to be a free Election for the Dignities of the Church by 9 Ed. 2. c. 14. And none shall disturb any Person from making free Election, on Pain of great Forfeiture. If any Persons that have a Voice in Elections, take any Reward for an Election in any Church, College, School, &c. the Election shall be void: And if any Persons of such Societies resign their Places to others for Reward, they incur a Forfeiture of double the Sum; the Party giving it, and the Party taking it is incapable of such Place. Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 6. Election of Bishops. Vide Bishops.

Election of a Verderor of the Forest, (Electione Viridariorum Forestæ) Is a Writ that lies for the Choice of a Verderor, where any of the Verderors of the Forest are dead, or removed from their Offices, &c. It is directed to the Sheriff; and, as appears by the ancient Writs of this Kind, the Verderor is to be elected by the Freeholders of the County in the same Manner as Coroners. New Nat. Br. 366.

Election of Members of Parliament, See Parliament.

Eleemosyna, Alms: Dare in puram & perpetuam Eleemosynam, to give in pure and perpetual Alms, or Frank-almoigne, as Lands were commonly given in ancient Times to Religious Uses. Cowel.

Eleemosyna Regis, or Eleemosyna carucarum pro Aratri, i. e. Eleemosyna Aratri, Is a Penny which King Æthelred ordered to be paid for every Plough in England, towards the Support of the Poor: It is called Eleemosyna Regis, because it was at first appointed by the King. Leg. Æthelred. cap. 1.

Eleemosynaria, The Place in a Religious House where the common Alms were repositd, and thence by the Almoner distributed to the Poor.

Eleemosynarius, The Almoner or peculiar Officer who received the Eleemosynary Rents and Gifts, and in due Method distributed them to pious and charitable Uses. There was such a chief Officer in all the Religious Houses: And the greatest of our English Bishops had antiently their Almoners, as now the King hath. Linwood's Provincial, lib. 1. tit. 12. See Almoner.

Eleemosynæ, Hath been used for the Possessions belonging to Churches. Blount.

Elegit, (From the Words in it, Elegit sibi Liberari) Is a Writ of Execution that lies for him who hath recovered Debt or Damages, or upon a Recognizance in any Court against one not able in his Goods to satisfy the same; directed to the Sheriff, commanding him to make Delivery of a Moiety of the Party's Lands, and all his Goods, Beasts of the Plough excepted; And the Creditor shall hold the said Moiety of the Land so delivered unto him, until his whole Debt and Damages are paid and satisfied; and during that Term he is Tenant by Elegit, Reg. Orig. 299. Co.

Lit. 289. This Writ is given by the Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 18. And by it the Plaintiff, &c. elects omnia bona & catalla of the Defendant, præter Boves & Afros de Caruca sua; and also a Moiety of all the Lands which the Defendant had at the Time of the Judgment recovered: But it ought to be sued within a Year and a Day after the Judgment; and Inquisition is to be made by a Jury summoned by the Sheriff of what Land the Defendant had, &c. F. N. B. 267. All Writs of Execution may be good, tho' not returned, except an Elegit; but that must be returned, because an Inquisition is to be taken upon it, and that the Court may judge of the Sufficiency thereof. 4 Rep. 65, 74. It has been ruled, that if more than a Moiety of the Lands is delivered on an Elegit by the Sheriff, the same is void for Whole. Sid. 91. 2 Salk. 563. And the Sheriff cannot sell any Thing but what is found in the Inquisition; and therefore if he sell a Term for Years, &c. misrecited in the Inquisition as to the Commencement thereof, the Sale is void. 4 Rep. 74. In Debt upon Bond, the Defendant before the Trial conveyed his Lands to another, &c. but he himself took the Profits; notwithstanding this Conveyance a Moiety of his Lands were extended on an Elegit. Dyer 294. 3 Rep. 78. If two Persons have each of them a Judgment against one Debtor, and he who hath the first Judgment brings an Elegit, and hath the Moiety of the Lands delivered to him in Execution; and then the other Judgment-Creditor sues out another Elegit, he shall have only a Moiety of that Moiety which was not extended by the first Judgment. Cro. Eliz. 483. But this is contrary to the Year-Book 10 Ed. 2. where 'twas held, that the entire Moiety left should be delivered in Execution. 1 Nelf. Abr. 698. When Lands are once taken in Execution on an Elegit, and the Writ is returned and filed, the Plaintiff shall have no other Execution. 1 Lev. 92. And if the Defendant hath Lands in more Counties than one, and the Plaintiff awards an Elegit to one County, and extends the Lands upon the Elegit, and afterwards files the Writ, he cannot after that sue out an Elegit into the other Counties: But he may immediately after Entry of the Judgment upon the Judgment-Roll award as many Elegits into as many Counties as he thinks fit, and execute all or any of them at his Pleasure. 1 Lill. Abr. 509. Cro. Jac. 246. And it has been held, that a Person may have several Elegits into several Counties, for the entire Sum recovered; or that he may divide his Execution, and have it for Part in one County and Part in another. Moor 24. A Man had Lands in Execution upon Elegit, and afterwards moved for a new Elegit, upon Proof that the Defendant had other Lands not known to the Creditor at the Time when the Execution was sued out; and it was adjudged, that if he had accepted of the First by the Delivery of the Sheriff, he could not afterwards have a new Elegit; but when the Sheriff returns the Writ, he may waive it, and then have a new Extent. Cro. Eliz. 310. 1 Nelf. Abr. 699. If the Defendant dies in Prison, so that there is no Execution with Satisfaction, the Plaintiff shall have an Elegit afterwards. 5 Rep. 86. And if all the Lands extended on an Elegit be evicted by better Title, the Plaintiff may take out a new Execution. 4 Rep. 66. Where an Elegit is sued upon a Judgment, the Levying of Goods for Part is no Impediment, but the Plaintiff may bring another Elegit pro Residuo, and take the Lands. 1 Lev. 92. Upon a Nihil returned upon an Elegit, there may be brought a Capias ad satisfaciend. or a Fieri facias. 1 Leon. 176. And an Elegit may be sued after a Fieri facias returned Nulla bona; and after a Capias satisfaciend. returned Non est Inventus. Hob. 57. If on Recovery by Writ of Debt a Fieri facias is sued out, and the Sheriff return Nulla bona; then the Plaintiff shall have a Capias or Elegit, &c. And if the Sheriff return, that the Defendant hath nothing whereof he may make Satisfaction, he shall be sent to the Prison of the Fleet, &c. there to remain 'till he have made Agreement with the Party: And if the Sheriff in such Case return Non est Inventus, then there shall go forth an Exigent against him. Terms de Ley 289. There is another Sort of Elegit upon adjudging Execution against Tertenants, whereon only a Moiety of the Lands against which Execution is awarded are extended by the Sheriff; and nothing is mentioned therein of any Goods and Chattels. Ibid. A Person in Execution was suffered to escape, and then he died; the Land which he had at the Time of the Judgment may be extended by Elegit upon a Scire facias brought against his Heir as Tertenant. Dyer 271. A Man may have an Assise of the Land which he hath in Execution by Elegit, if he be deforced thereof. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 18. And if Tenant by Elegit alien the Land in Fee, &c. he who hath Right shall have against him and the Alienee an Assise of Novel Disseisin. Ibid. At a Trial at Bar in C. B. the Court delivered for Law, that where Lands are actually extended and delivered upon an Elegit, a Fine levied on those Lands, and Nonclaim will bar the Interest of the Tenant by Elegit; and upon the Inquisition found, the Party is in Possession before actual Entry, for in such Case he may bring an Ejectment or Trespass, &c. 1 Mod. 217. If Tenant by Elegit, &c. be put out of Possession before he hath received Satisfaction for his Debt, by the Heir at Law, &c. he may have Action of Trespass, or re-enter and hold over 'till satisfied: But after Satisfaction received, the Defendant may enter on the Tenant by Elegit. 4 Rep. 28, 67. Tenants by Elegit, Statutes-Merchant, &c. are not punishable for Waste by Action of Waste; but the Party against whom Execution is sued is to have a Writ Venire facias ad computandum, &c. and there the Waste shall be recovered in the Debt: Tho' 'tis said there is an old Writ of Waste in the Register for him in Reversion against Tenant by Elegit committing Waste on Lands which he hath in Execution. 6 Rep. 37. New Nat. Br. 130. On Tenant by Elegit's Accounting, if the Money recovered by the Plaintiff is levied out of the Lands, the Defendant shall recover his Land; and if more be received by Waste, &c. he shall have Damages. Terms de Ley 288. See Extent, Execution.

Else-Arrows, Were Flint-Stones sharpened of each Side in Shape of Arrow-heads, made Use of in War by the ancient Britains; of which several have been found in England, and greater Plenty in Scotland, where 'tis said the common People imagine they dropt from the Clouds.

Elke, A Kind of Yew to make Bows of. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 9. Also the Name of a wild Beast, something like a Deer.

Eloin, (From the Fr. Esloigner) Signifies to remove or send a great Way off: In this Sense it is used by Statute; if such as be within Age be eloined, so that they cannot come to sue personally, their next Friends shall be admitted to sue for them. 13 Ed. 1. c. 15.

Elongata, Is a Return of the Sheriff that Cattle are not to be found, or removed so that he cannot make Deliverance, &c. in Replevin. 2 Lill. Abr. 454, 458.

Elopement, (Derived from the Belg. Ee, viz. Matrimonium, & Loopen, currere) Is where a married Woman, of her own Accord, goes away and departs from her Husband, and lives with an Adulterer. A Woman thus leaving her Husband, is said to elope; and in this Case, her Husband is not obliged to allow her any Alimony out of his Estate; nor shall he be chargeable for Necessaries for her, as Wearing Apparel, Diet, Lodging, &c. And where the same is notorious, whoever gives her Credit, doth it at his Peril: But on Elopement, the Putting a Wife in the Gazette, or other News-Papers, is no legal Notice to Persons in general not to trust her; though personal Notice to particular Persons given by the Husband, will be good not to be chargeable to them. 1 Roll. Abr. 350. 1 Ventr. 42. By Stat. 13 Ed. 1. c. 34. If the Wife goes away from the Husband, and tarrieth with the Adulterer, without returning, and being reconciled to her Husband, this continual Elopement forfeits her Dower; according to these old Verses:

Sponte Virum Mulier fugiens & Adultera facta, Dote sua careat, nisi sponso sponte retracta.

Action lies against the Adulterer for carrying away another Person's Wife, and detaining her; and large Damages are usually given in these Cases to the injured Husband.

Embargo, A Prohibition upon Shipping, not to go out of any Port, on a War breaking out, &c.

Emblements, (From the Fr. Emblavence de Bled, viz. Corn sprung or put above Ground) Signifies properly the Profits of Land sown: But the Word is sometimes used more largely, for any Products that arise naturally from the Ground, as Grass, Fruit, &c. In some Cases, he which sowed the Corn shall have the Emblements, and in others not: A Lessee at Will sows the Land, he shall have the Emblements; though if the Lessee determines the Will himself, he shall not have them, but the Lessor. 3 Rep. 116. If Lessee at Will sows the Land with Grain, or other Thing yielding annual Profit, and the Lessor enters before Severance; yet the Lessee shall have it: But where the Lessee plants young Fruit-Trees, or other Trees, or sows the Land with Acorns, &c. he shall not have these: And if such Tenant by good Husbandry make the Grass to grow in greater Abundance; or sow the Land with Hay-seed, by which Means it is increased, if the Lessor enters on the Lessee, the Lessee shall not have it, because Grass is the natural Profit of the Soil. Co. Lit. 55, 56. Where Tenant for Life sows the Land, and dies, his Executors shall have the Emblements, and not the Lessor, or him in Reversion; by Reason of the Uncertainty of the Estate. Cro. Eliz. 463. And if a Tenant for Life plants Hops, and dies before Severance, he in Reversion shall not have them, but the Executors of Tenant for Life. Cro. Car. 515. If Tenant for Years, if he so long live, sow the Ground, and die before Severance; the Executor of the Lessee shall have the Corn: And where Lessee for Life leases for Years, if the Lessee for Years sow the Land, and after Lessee for Life dies before Severance, the Executor of Lessee for Years shall have the Emblements. 2 Danv. Abr. 765. But if Tenant for Life sows his Lands with Corn, and afterwards grants over all his Estate and Right to another; if the Grantee dies before Severance, it is said his Executors shall not have the Corn, but he in the Reversion. Cro. Eliz. 464. If Tenant for Years sow Ground, and before the Corn is severed, his Term which is certain expires; the Lessor or he in Reversion shall have the Emblements; but he must first enter on the Lands. 1 Lill. Abr. 511. A Lessee for Life or Years sows the Land, and after surrenders, &c. before Severance, the Lessor shall have the Corn. 2 Danv. 764. If there be Lessee for Years upon Condition that if he commit Waste, &c. his Estate shall cease; if he sows the Ground with Corn, and after doth Waste, the Lessor shall have the Corn. Co. Lit. 55. And where a Lord enters on his Tenant for a Forfeiture, he shall have the Corn on the Ground. 4 Rep. 21. Where a Feme Copyholder for her Widowhood sows the Land, and before Severance takes Husband, so that her Estate is determined, the Lord shall have the Emblements. 1 Lill. 511. Though if such a Feme Copyholder durante viduitate, leases for one Year according to Custom, and the Lessee sows the Land, and afterwards the Copyholder takes Husband, the Lessee shall have the Corn. 2 Danv. 764. If a Feme Sole having Lands for Life, &c. sows the Land, and then marries, if the Husband die before Severance, the Feme shall have the Corn, and not the Husband's Executors. Ibid. 765. If a Husband hold Lands for Life in Right of his Wife, and sow the Land, and after she dies before Severance, he shall have the Emblements.

Dyer 316. 1 Nelf. Abr. 701. And where the Wife hath an Estate for Years, Life, or in Fee, and the Husband sows the Land and dieth, his Executors shall have the Corn. 1 Nelf. 702. But if the Husband and Wife are Jointenants, tho' the Husband sow the Land with Corn, and dies before Ripe, the Wife and not his Executor shall have the Corn, she being the surviving Jointenant. Co. Lit. 199. When a Widow is endowed of Lands sown, she shall have the Emblements, and not the Heir. 2 Inst. 81. A Tenant in Dower may dispose of Corn sown on the Ground; or it may go to her Executors, if she die before Severance. Stat. 20 Hen. 3. 2 Inst. 80, 81. And if a Parson sows his Glebe and dies, his Executors shall have the Corn: Likewise such Parson may by Will dispose thereof. 1 Roll. Abr. 655. Stat. 28 Hen. 8. cap. 11. If Tenant by Statute-Merchant sows the Land, and before Severance a casual Profit happens, by which he is satisfied, yet he shall have the Corn. Co. Lit. 55. Where Lands sown are delivered in Execution upon an Extent, the Person to whom delivered shall have the Corn on the Ground. 2 Leon. 54. And Judgment was given against a Person, and then he sowed the Land, and brought a Writ of Error to reverse the Judgment; but it was affirmed; and adjudged that the Recoveror should have the Corn. 2 Bulst. 213. If a Disseisor sows the Land, and afterwards cuts the Corn, but before 'tis carried away, the Disseefer enters; the Disseefer shall have the Corn. Dyer 31. 11 Rep. 52. If a Person seised in Fee of Land dies, having a Daughter and his Wife Priviment ensient with a Son; and the Daughter enters and sows the Land, and before Severance of the Corn the Son is born; in this Case the Daughter shall have the Corn, her Estate being lawful and defeated by the Act of God; and it is for the publick Good that the Land should be sowed. Co. Lit. 55. A Man seised in Fee sows Land, and then devises the Land by Will, and dies before Severance; the Devisee shall have the Corn, and not the Devisor's Executors. Winch. 52. Cro. El. 61. Where a Person devises his Land sown, and says nothing of the Corn, the Corn shall go with the Land to the Devisee: And when a Man seised of Land, sows it and dies without Will, it goes to the Executor, and not the Heir. 1 Lill. 512. A Devisee for Life dies, he in Remainder shall have the Emblements with the Land. Hob. 132. Tenant in Fee sows the Land, and devises it to A. for Life, Remainder to B. for Life, and dies; A. dies before Severance, B. in Remainder shall have the Corn, and not the Executor of the first Tenant for Life. Cro. Eliz. 61, 464. Where there is a Right to Emblements, Ingress, Egress and Regress are allowed by Law to enter, cut and carry them away, when the Estate is determined, &c. 1 Inst. 56.

Emblers de Gentz, (Fr.) A Stealing from the People: The Word occurs in our old Rolls of Parliament. — Whereas divers Murders, Emblers des Gentz, and Robberies are committed, &c. Rot. Parl. 21 Ed. 3. n. 62.

Embraceor, (Fr. Embrasour) Is he that when a Matter is in Trial between Party and Party, comes to the Bar with one of the Parties, having received some Reward so to do, and speaks in the Case; or privately labours the Jury, or stands in Court to survey or overlook them, whereby they are awed or influenced, or put in Fear or Doubt of the Matter. Stat. 19 H. 7. cap.

13. And the Penalty of this Offence is 20 l. and Imprisonment, at the Discretion of the Justices, by the said Statute: Also a Person may be punished by Fine, &c. on Indictment at Common Law, as well as by Action on the Statute. Com. Law Com. Plac'd 186. But Lawyers and Attornies, &c. may speak in the Case for their Clients, and not be Embraceors: Also the Plaintiff may labour the Jurors to appear in his own Cause; but a Stranger must not do it: For the bare Writing of a Letter to a Person, or parol Request for a Juror to appear, not by the Party himself, hath been held within the Statutes against Embracery and Maintenance. 1 Inst. 369. Hob. 294. 1 Saund. 301. And if the Party himself instruct a Juror, or promise any Reward for his Appearance, then the Party is likewise an Embraceor: And a Juror may be Guilty of Embracery, where he by indirect Practices gets himself sworn on the Tales, to serve on one Side. 1 Lill. 513. There are divers Statutes relating to this Offence and Maintenance, as 5 Ed. 3. c. 10. 34 Ed. 3. c. 8. 32 H. 8. c. 9, &c.

Embracery, Is the Act or Offence of Embraceors: And to attempt to influence a Jury, or any way incline them to be more favourable to the one Side than the other, by Promises, Threatnings, Money, Treats, &c. whether the Jurors on whom any such Attempt is made, give any Verdict or no, or whether the Verdict pass on his Side or not; this is Embracery. 1 Inst. 369. Noy's Rep. 102.

Embrizing Days, (From Ember, Cineres) So called either because our Ancestors, when they fasted sat in Ashes, or strewed them on their Heads, are those which the ancient Fathers called Quatuor Tempora jejunii, and are of great Antiquity in the Church: They are observed on Wednesday, Friday and Saturday next after Quadragesima Sunday, (or the first Sunday in Lent) after Whitsunday, Holyrood-day in September, and St. Lucy's Day about the Middle of December. These Days are mentioned by Briton, cap. 53. and other Writers; and particularly in the Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. cap. 19. And are still kept with great outward Zeal by the Roman Catholics: Our Almanacks call them the Ember Weeks.

Emendals, (Emenda) Is an old Word still made Use of in the Accounts of the Society of the Inner Temple; where so much in Emendals at the Foot of an Account, on the Balance thereof, signifies so much Money in the Bank or Stock of the Houses, for Reparation of Losses or other emergent Occasions: Quod in Restaurationem Damni tribuitur. Spelm.

Emendare, Emendam solvere, to make Amends for any Crime, or Trespas committed. Leg. Edw. Confess. cap. 35. Hence a capital Crime, not to be atton'd by Fine, was said to be inemendabile. Leg. Canut. p. 2.

Emendatio, Hath been used for the Power of Amending and Correcting Abuses, according to stated Rules and Measures: As Emendati Panni, the Power of looking to the Assise of Cloth, that it be of just Measure; Emendatio Panis & Cervisia, the Assising of Bread and Beer, &c. a Privilege granted to Lords of Manors, and executed by their Officers appointed in the Court-Leet, &c. Ad nos spectat Emendatio Panni & Panis & Cervisia, & quicquid Regis est, Excepto murthero & Latrocinio, &c. — Paroch. Antiq. 196.

Empanel A Jury. Ponere in Assisi & Juratis, &c. See Impanel.

Empe-

Emperor, (Imperator) The highest Ruler of large Kingdoms and Territories, a Title anciently given to renowned and victorious Generals of Armies, who acquired great Power and Dominion. And this Title, is not only given to the Emperor of Germany, as Emperor of the Romans; but was formerly belonging to the Kings of England, as appears by a Charter of King Edgar, viz. Ego Edgarus Anglorum Basileus, omniumque Regum Insularum Oceani qua Britanniam circumjacent, &c. Imperator & Dominus.

Encenia, (From Enceniare to begin a Thing) Is applied to the Dedication of Churches; which was always on a Sunday. Blount.

Enchefon, A French Word used in our Law Books and Statutes, signifying as much as Occasion, or the Cause or Reason wherefore any Thing is done. Stat. 5 Ed. 3. c. 3.

Endeavour. Where one who has the Use of his Reason, endeavours to commit a Felony, &c. he shall be punished by our Laws, but not to that Degree as if he had actually committed it: As if a Man assault another on the Highway, in order to a Robbery, but take Nothing from him, this is not punished as Felony, because the Felony was not accomplished; tho' as a Misdemeanor, it is liable to Fine and Imprisonment. 3 Inst. 68, 69, 161. 11 Rep. 98. Vide Intendment.

Endowment, Signifies the Bestowing or Affluring of Dower on a Woman: But it is sometimes used metaphorically for the Settling a Provision upon a Parson, on Building of a Church or Chapel; and the Severing a sufficient Portion of Tithes, &c. for a Vicar, towards his perpetual Maintenance, when the Benefice is appropriated. Stat. 15 R. 2. c. 6. 4 H. 4. c. 12.

Enemp, (Inimicus) Is properly an Alien or Foreigner, who in a publick Capacity and hostile Manner, invades any Kingdom or Country; and whether such Persons come hither by themselves, or in Company with English Traitors, they cannot be punished as Traitors, but shall be dealt with by martial Law. H. P. C. 10. 15. 1 Hawk. 35. But the Subjects of a Foreign Prince, coming into England, and living under the Protection of the King, if they take up Arms, &c. against the Government, they may be punished as Traitors, not as alien Enemies. 1 Hawk. ibid. Persons may bear Arms, notwithstanding the Stat. 2 Ed. 3. c. 3. against going or riding arm'd, to defend themselves against Enemies. Cromp. 64. If a Prisoner be rescued by Enemies, the Gaoler is not Guilty of an Escape; as he would have been if Subjects had made the Rescue, when he might have a legal Remedy against them. 2 Hawk. 130. Adhering to and Succouring the King's Enemies. See Treason.

Enfranchise, (Fr. Enfranchir) To make Free, or incorporate a Man in any Society, &c. It is also used where one is made a free Denizen, which is a Kind of Incorporation in the Commonwealth.

Enfranchisement, (Fr. from Franchise, i. e. Libertas) Is when a Person is incorporated into any Society or Body Politick, and signifies the Act of Incorporating. He that by Charter is made a Denizen or Freeman of England, is said to be enfranchised, and let into the general Liberties of the Subjects of the Kingdom: And he who is made a Citizen of London, or other City, or free Burgefs of any Town Corporate, as he is made Partaker of those Liberties that appertain to the Corporation, is in the common Sense of the Word a Person enfranchised. So a Villain was enfranchised, when he was made Free by his Lord; and rendered capable of the Benefits belonging to Freemen. And when a Man is enfranchised into the Freedom of any City or Borough, he hath a Freehold in his Freedom during Life; and may not for endeavouring any Thing only against the Corporation, lose and forfeit the same. 11 Rep. 91.

Englecery or Engleschire, (Engleceria) Is an old Word signifying the being an Englishman. When Canutus the Dane came to be King of England, he at the Request of the Nobility sent back his Army into Denmark, but kept some Danes behind to be a Guard to his Person; and he made a Law for the Preservation of his Danes, who were often privately made away by the English that if an Englishman killed a Dane, he should be tried for the Murder; or if he escaped, the Town or Hundred where the Fact was done was to be amerced sixty-six Marks to the King: So that after this Law whenever a Murder was committed, it was necessary to prove the Party slain to be an Englishman, that the Town might be exempted from the Amercement; which Proof was called Englecery or Engleschire: And whereas if a Person were privily slain, he was in ancient Time accounted Francigena, which Word comprehended every Alien, especially the Danes; It was therefore, that where any Person was murdered, he should be adjudged Francigena, unless Englecery were proved, and that it was made manifest he was an Englishman. The Manner of Proving the Person killed to be an Englishman, was by two Witnesses who knew the Father and Mother, before the Coroner, &c. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. c. 19. Fleta, lib. 1. c. 30. 7 Rep. 16. This Englecery, by Reason of the great Abuses and Trouble that afterwards were perceived to grow by it, was utterly taken away by Stat. 14 Ed. 3. c. 4.

Enhance, To raise the Price of Goods or Merchandize. See Forestaller.

Enpleet, Was anciently used for Implead. — They may enpleet and be enpleeted in all Courts. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. f. 412.

Entail, (Fr. Entaille, i. e. Incisus) Is Fee entailed, viz. abridged, limited, and tied to certain Conditions, at the Will of the Donor; where Lands are given to, or settled on others. See Fee and Tail.

Enterpleader, (Fr. Enterplaidier, Lat. Interplacitare) Signifies to discuss or try a Point incidentally happening as it were between, before the principal Cause can be determined. And Enterpleader is allowed that the Defendant may not be charged to two severally, where no Default is in him: As if one brings Detinue against the Defendant upon a Bailment of Goods, and another against him upon a Trover, there shall be Enterpleader, to ascertain who hath Right to his Action. 2 Dam. Abr. 779. If two bring several Detinues against A. B. for the same Thing, and the Defendant acknowledges the Action of one of them, without a Prayer of Enterpleader, they shall not interplead on the Request of the other; for the Enterpleader is given for the Security of the Defendant, that he may not be twice charged, and he hath waived that Benefit. 18 Ed. 3. 22. If one brings Detinue against B. and counts upon a Delivery to redeliver to him, and another brings Detinue against him also, and counts so likewise; if here be not any Privy of Bailment between them, yet they shall enterplead, to avoid the double ble Charge of the Defendant; and also because the Court cannot know to whom to deliver the Thing detained if both should recover. Br. Enterplead. 3. And upon such several Detinues, if the Defendant says that he found it, and traverses the Bailment, they shall enterplead; for then he is chargeable as well to the one as the other: So if he says that they delivered it jointly, absque hoc that they delivered it as they have counted: But it is otherwise if the Defendant doth not traverse the Bailment, because if there was a Bailment, he is chargeable only to the Bailor, and may plead in Bar against the others. 2 Danv. 782. Where two bring several Detinues for one Thing, and the Defendant prays that they may enterplead, and delivers the Thing to the Court, and before the Award of the Enterpleader, one discontinues his Suit, the other shall not have Judgment; but if he discontinue his Suit after the Enterpleader awarded, the other may have Judgment. 11 Hen. 6. 19. If a Recovery be had upon an Enterpleader, Judgment shall be given to recover the Thing demanded against the Defendant; and not against the Garnishee, in case of Garnishment, &c. 2 Danv. 783. When two have enterpleaded in Detinue, he that recovers shall recover Damage against the other. Br. Damag. 68. There was formerly Enterpleader relating to Delivery of Lands by the King, to the right Heir, where two Persons out of Wardship were found Heirs, &c. 7 Rep. 45. Staundf. Pver. cap. 19. Bro. Tit. Enterplead. And anciently the Head Enterpleader made a great Title in the Law.

Entiertie, (From the Fr. Entierete, Entireness) Is a Contradistinction in our Books to Moierie, denoting the Whole: And a Bond, Damages, &c. are said to be entire, when they cannot be divided or apportioned.

Entire Tenancy, Contrary to several Tenancy, and signifying a sole Possession in one Man; whereas the other signifies a joint or common Possession in more. Brook.

Entry, (Ingressus, Fr. Entree, i. e. Introitus) Signifies the Taking Possession of Lands or Tenements, where a Man hath Title of Entry: And it is also used for a Writ of Possession. These Writs of Entry concern the Right of Property, and are of divers Kinds, distinguished into four Degrees, according to which the Writs are varied. The first Degree is a Writ of Entry sur Disseisin, that lieth for the Dissee against a Disseisor, upon a Disseisin done by himself; and this is called a Writ of Entry in the Nature of an Assise. Second, A Writ of Entry sur Disseisin in le per, for the Heir by Discent, who is said to be in the Per as he comes in by his Ancestor; and so it is if a Disseisor make a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, &c. the Feoffee and Donee are in the Per by the Disseisor. Third, A Writ of Entry sur Disseisin in le Per & Cui, where the Feoffee of a Disseisor maketh a Feoffment over to another, when the Dissee shall have a Writ of Entry sur Disseisin, &c. of the Lands in which such other had no Right of Entry, but by the Feoffee of the Disseisor to whom the Disseisor demised the same, who unjustly and without Judgment disseised the Demandant. Fourth, A Writ of Entry sur Disseisin in le Post, which lieth when after a Disseisin the Land is removed from Hand to Hand beyond the Degrees, in case of a more remote Seisin, wherunto the other three Degrees do not extend. 1 Inst. 238. In these four Degrees are comprehended generally all Manner of Writs of Entry. And the Writ of Entry in le Post is so called, because the Words of the Writ are, Post Disseisinam quam B. injuste & sine Judicio fecit, &c. Briton observes that the Words In le Per, In le Per & Cui, and In le Post, signify nothing but divers Forms of this Writ, applied to the Case whereupon it is brought; and each Form taking its Name from the Words contained in the Writ. F. N. B. 193. But if any Writ of Entry be conceived out of the right Cause, so that one Form is brought for another, it is abatable. A Writ of Entry in the Per and Cui shall be maintained against none, but where the Tenant is in by Purchase or Discent; for if the Alienation or Discent be put out of the Degree, upon which no Writ may be made in the Per and Cui, then it shall be made in the Post. Terms de Ley 299. And there are five Things which put the Writ of Entry out of the Degrees, viz. Intrusion; Disseisin upon Disseisin; Succession where the Disseisor was a Person of Religion, and his Successor enters; Judgment, when a Person hath had Judgment to recover against the Disseisor; and Escheat, on the Disseisor's Dying without Heir, or committing Felony, &c. on which the Lord enters, &c. In all these Cases, the Dissee or his Heir, shall not have a Writ of Entry within the Degrees of the Per, but in the Post; because they are not in by Discent, or Purchase. Ibid. Degrees as to Entries are of two Sorts, either by Act in Law, as in Case of a Discent; or by Act of the Party, by lawful Conveyance; and by the Common Law, if the Lands were conveyed out of the Degrees, the Demandant was driven to his Writ of Right, in Respect of such long Possession, and so many Alterations in different Hands; wherefore by the Statute of Marlbridge, 52 H. 3. cap. 29. the Writ of Entry in le Post is given. But no Estate gain'd by Wrong doth make a Degree; so that Abatement, Intrusion, &c. work not a Degree; nor doth every Change by unlawful Title, or an Estate of Tenant by the Curtesy, by Judgment, &c. or of any others that come in the Post; though a Tenancy in Dower by Assignment of the Heir doth work a Degree, because she is in by her Husband; and so doth not Assignment of Dower by a Disseisor, by Reason she is in the Post. 1 Inst. 239. Entry on Lands is taken away by Discent on Disseisins, or Discontinuance, &c. But a Discent shall not take away the Entry of Lessee for Years, nor of Tenant by Elegit, &c. who have but a Chattel, and no Freehold; otherwise it is of an Estate for Life, or any higher Estate. 1 Inst. 249. Where a Disseisor dieth seised, and the Law casteth the Lands upon his Heir; this is a Discent which tolls an Entry at Common Law: By Statute, it is only where the Disseisor had peaceable Possession five Years; for if he had not Possession peaceably during that Time, the Discent to his Heir shall not take away an Entry. 32 H. 8. cap. 33. If a Disseisor leases for Years, and dies seised of the Reversion, the Entry of the Dissee is taken away, because he died seised of the Fee and Freehold: But if he had leased for Life, &c. the Entry of the Dissee would not be taken away. 1 Inst. 239. Where the Disseisor of an Infant dies seised, and after the Infant comes of Age, and the Heir of the Disseisor dies before Entry; though he died not seised of an actual Seisin, but a Seisin in Law; yet his Dying seised takes away the Entry of the Dissee.

seifed. Ibid. If a Disfeisor makes a Feoffment upon Condition, and the Feoffee dies seifed, and the Feoffor enters upon the Heir for the Breach of the Condition, the Disfeifed may enter upon him; for by the Entry of the Disfeisor, the Discent is utterly defeated. Lit. Sect. 409. The Title of Entry in a Feoffor, &c. that hath but a Condition, cannot be taken away by any Discent, because he has no Remedy by Action to recover the Land; so that if a Discent should take away his Entry, it would bar him of his Right for ever: And the Condition remains, and cannot be devested and put out of Possession, as Lands, &c. 1 Inst. 240. If a Man recovers Land, and after a Stranger to the Recovery dies seifed, this shall not take away the Entry of the Recoveror; as it was but a Title. 2 Danv. Abr. 561. But where a Person recovers against another, and enters and sues Execution, and after the Recoverer disfeifes him, and dies seifed; this Discent shall take away the Entry of the Recoveror, for the Recovery was executed. Ibid. If after Recovery against Tenant for Life, he dies, and he in Remainder enters before Execution, and dies seifed, the Entry of the Recoveror is not taken away. 1 Inst. 238. If a Man is disfeifed of Land whereunto a Common is appendant, the Disfeifed cannot use the Common till he enters on the Land to which the Common is appendant; for if the Disfeifed might enter, so might the Disfeisor, which would be a double Charge on the Common: But if a Person be disfeifed of a Manor, to which an Advowson is appendant, he may present to the Advowson before Entry on the Manor. 1 Inst. 122. A Disfeifed enters into the Land, and continues therein with the Disfeisor, and manures it with him, claiming nothing of his first Estate; or if the Disfeifed enters, and takes the Profits as Lessee, &c. of the Disfeisor, 'tis said these will be an Entry that will reduce the first Estate. 2 Danv. 790. And if the Disfeifed commands a Stranger to put in the Cattle of such Stranger in the Land to feed there; this is an Entry in Law on the Land. 1 Inst. 245. And if a Person enters by Command of him who hath Title, he by Virtue thereof may gain a Title to himself. 1 Nelf. Abr. 705. Where Entry may be made into Land, or any Thing, it shall not be in the Party before Entry: If Entry cannot be made, but only Claim, then it shall be in him by Claim; and when neither Entry nor Claim can be made, it shall be in him by Act of Law. 1 Plowd. 133. In case the Possession of Land is in no Man, but the Freehold in Law is in the Heir that enters, his general Entry into one Part reduces all into his actual Possession: But if an Entry is to devest an Estate, a general Entry into Parcel, is good only for that Part. 1 Inst. 15. If a Man disfeife me of one Acre at one Time, and another Acre at another Time in the same County, my Entry into one of them in the Name of both is good: Though it will not be good, if the Disfeisin be by two several Persons, or if the Acres lie in several Counties, when there ought to be several Entries and Actions. 1 Inst. 252. If he who hath Right of Entry into a Freehold, enters into Part of it, it shall be adjudged an Entry into all possessed by one Tenant; but if there be several Tenants possessed of the Freehold, there must be several Entries on the several Tenants. 1 Lill. Abr. 515, 516. Special Entry into a House with which Lands are occupied, claiming the Whole, is a good Entry as to the whole House and Lands Ibid. If a Husband enters to the Use of his Wife; or a Man enters to the Use of an Infant, or any other, where the Entry is lawful; this settles the Possession before Agreement of the Parties: But it is otherwise where a Person enters to the Use of one whose Entry is not lawful; for this vests nothing in him till Agreement, and then he shall be a Disfeisor. 2 Danv. 787. If two Jointenants are disfeifed, and the Disfeisor aliens, and one Jointenant enters upon the Alienee to the Use of both; this settles the Freehold in both of them. Ibid. 788. But if one Coparcener, &c. enters specially claiming the whole Land, she gains the Part of the Companion by Abatement; and it shall not settle any Possession in the other. 1 Inst. 243. The Heir is to enter into Lands descended to him, to entitle him to the Profits. 1 Inst. 214. If a younger Son enters on Lands in Fee, where the eldest Son dies having Issue; tho' many Discents are cast in his Line, yet the Heirs of the eldest Son may make an Entry on the Lands; but if the youngest Son convey away the Lands in Fee, and the Feoffee dies seifed, they may not enter; nor may they enter where the youngest Son disfeifes the Eldest, and dies seifed. 1 Inst. 237, 244. Lit. Sect. 397. Where Tenant in Tail hath Issue two Sons, and the Eldest dies, leaving his Wife previement enfeint of a Son, and the younger Brother enters, and then the Wife of the Eldest is delivered of a Son, he may enter upon the younger Brother. 2 Danv. 557. If a Bastard being the eldest Son, enters on Lands, and enjoys it during his Life; his Entry and Dying seifed may make a Title to his Heir against the lawful Children. 1 Inst. Ibid. An Estate of Freehold will not cease, without Entry or Claim: Also a Remainder of an Estate of Freehold cannot cease without Entry, &c. no more than an Estate of Freehold in Possession. Cro. El. 360. A Right of Entry preserves a Contingent Remainder. 2 Lev. 35. And a Grantee of a Reversion may enter for a Condition broken. Plow. 176. Where a Person will take Advantage of a Condition, he must either enter, or make a Claim: And for Condition broken, there must be actual Entry, to bring Ejectment for Recovery of the Estate; but where a Man is entitled to enter by Discent, or for Nonpayment of Money due on a Mortgage, &c. Entry and Ouster confessed in the Rule in Ejectment, without actual Entry, is sufficient to make the Lease to entitle the Action. 1 Lill. Abr. 516. When a Man hath Title to Land, and is out of Possession, he cannot make a Lease of it to a Tenant, but by Entering and Sealing the Lease on the Land; or empowering others by Letter of Attorney to do it. Dalif. Rep. 81. A Lessee must enter into Lands demised to him; and though the Lessor dies before the Lessee enters, yet he may enter: Also if the Lessee dies before Entry, his Executors or Administrators may enter. The Lessee may assign over his Term before Entry, having Interesse termini; but he may not take a Release to enlarge his Estate, or bring Trespass, &c. till actual Entry. Though if there be Words Bargain and Sell in a Lease, &c. for Consideration of Money, the Lessee or Bargaine is in Possession on Executing the Deed, to bring Trespass, make a Release, &c. Lit. 59, 454. 1 Inst. 46, 57, 270. If Tenant for Years holds over his Term, he is Tenant at Sufferance till the Entry of the Lessor. Where a Lessor enters on his Lessee

Lessee for Years, the Rent is suspended. 1 Leon. 110. And the Tenant is to continue in Possession of the whole Land, till the Rent become due. Style 243. But without Entry and Expulsion, the Lessee is not discharged of his Rent to the Lessor; unless it be where the Lessor is attainted of Treason, &c. that the Rent is to be paid to the King, who is in Possession without Entry. Sid. 399. 1 Nell. Abr. 706. A bare Entry on another, without an Expulsion, makes only a Seisin; so that the Law will adjudge him in Possession who hath the Right. 3 Salk. 135. If a Person who hath Title of Entry, finds an House open with no Body in it, and enters into it, and keeps Possession; this is no forcible Entry: Contra if any Body is in it. Common Law Com. Plac'd. 186. Where a Person is in a House with Goods, &c. the House may be entered when the Doors are open, to make Execution. Cro. Eliz. 759. But it must be averred that the Goods were in the House. Lutw. 1434, 1428. And a Man cannot enter into a House, the Doors being open, to demand a Debt, unless he aver that the Debtor is within the House at the same Time. Cro. El. 876. Entry may be made on a Tenant where Rent is in arrear, to take a Distress, &c. In Order to regain Possession of Lands by Entry, &c. the Manner of Entry is thus: If it be a House, and the Door is open, you go into it, and say these Words: — I do here enter, and take Possession of this House: But if the Door be shut, then set your Foot on the Groundsel, or against the Door, and say the before Words: And if it be Land, then go upon the Land, and say, I here enter and take Possession of this Land, &c. If another do it for you, he must say, I do here enter, &c. to the Use of A. B. And it is necessary to make it before Witnesses, and that a Memorandum be made of it. Lit. 385. 1 Inst. 237, 238. In Actions for Recovery of Lands, &c. Entry is to be made within twenty Years after the Title accrued. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. cap. 16. But where a Fine of Lands is passed, the Entry is to be in five Years. 1 R. 3. 4 Hen. 7. Also an Action is to be commenced in one Year after the Entry. 4 & 5 Ann. Demand how made of Rent, &c. to entitle Entry, see Demand. See also Claim.

Entry ad Communem Legem, Is the Writ of Entry which lies where Tenant for Term of Life, or for Term of another's Life, or by the Curtesy, &c. aliens and dies, when he in the Reversion shall have this Writ against whomsoever is in Possession of the Land. New Nat. Br. 461.

Entry ad terminum qui preterit, A Writ of Entry brought against a Tenant for Years, who holdeth over his Term, and thereby keeps out the Lessor: And if the Husband and Wife lease the Wife's Land for Years, and the Husband dieth, and the Termor holds over his Term, the Wife may have a Writ of Entry ad terminum qui preterit, &c. but she must count that she and her Husband leased the Land, &c. Also the Grantee in Reversion may have this Writ against the Lessee, or his Assignee, &c. New Nat. Br. 447, 448.

Entry in casu consimili, Is a Writ that lies where Tenant for Life, or Tenant by the Curtesy, aliens in Fee, &c. he in Reversion shall have this Writ, by Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 24. See Casu Consimili.

Entry in casu Probiso, Lies where Tenant in Dower aliens in Fee, or for Term of Life, or of another's Life; then he in the Reversion shall have this Writ, provided by the Stat. of Glouc. 6 Ed. 1. cap. 7. By which Statute it is enacted, That if a Woman alien her Dower in Fee, or for Life, the next Heir, &c. shall recover by Writ of Entry. And the Writ may be brought against the Tenant of the Freehold of the Land, on such Alienation, during the Life of the Tenant in Dower, &c. New Nat. Br. 456. These Writs of Entry may be all brought either in the Per, or in the Cui or Post.

Entry sine assensu Capitali, Is a Writ of Entry that lieth where a Bishop, Abbot, &c. aliens Lands or Tenements of the Church, without the Assent of the Chapter or Convent. F. N. B. 195.

Enure, Signifies in the Law to take Place, or be available; and is as much as effectum: As for Example; A Release made to Tenant for Life shall enure, and be of Force and Effect to him in the Reversion. Litt.

Eodordure, (From the Sax. Eodor, a Hedge, and Brice, ruptura) Hath been used for Hedge-breaking: In which Sense it is mentioned in the Laws of K. Alfred, cap. 45.

Eorle, Sax. for Earl, &c. though made Use of by the Danes for Baron. See Earl.

Epimania, A Word signifying Expences or Gifts. Blount.

Episcopalia, Synodals, or other customary Payments from the Clergy to their Bishop or Diocesan: Which were formerly collected by the rural Deans, and by them transmitted to the Bishop. — Episcopalia reddat, vel reddere faciatis de Ecclesiis Decanatus sui, &c. Mon. Angl. tom. 3, p. 61. These customary Payments have been otherwise called Onus Episcopale; and were remitted by special Privilege to free Churches and Chapels of the King's Foundation, which were exempt from Episcopal Jurisdiction. Kennet's Gloss.

Eques Auratus, (Lat.) Is taken for a Knight; because anciently none but Knights were allowed to beautify and gild their Armour with Gold: But this Word is rather used by the Heralds than Lawyers; for Eques Auratus is not a Word in our Law for Knight, but Miles, and formerly Chevalier. 4 Inst. 5.

Equilocus, An Equal; it is mentioned in Simoon Dunelm. Anno 882.

Equity, (Equitas, quasi Aequalitas) Is defined to be a Correction, or Qualification, of the Law generally made in that Part wherein it faileth, or is too severe. And likewise signifies the Extension of the Words of the Law to Cases unexpressed, yet having the same Reason; so that where one Thing is enacted by Statute, all other Things are enacted that are of the like Degree: For Example; The Statute of Glouc. gives Action of Waste against him that holds Lands for Life or Years; and by the Equity thereof, a Man shall have Action of Waste against a Tenant that holds but for one Year, or Half-year, which is without the Words of the Act, but within the Meaning of it; and the Words that enact the one, by Equity enact the other. Terms de Ley 303, 304. So that Equity is of two Kinds; the one doth abridge and take from the Letter of the Law, and the other enlarge and add thereto. Equitas est perfecta quadam Ratio, quae Jus scriptum Interpretatur & Emendat. 1 Inst. 24. And Statutes may be construed according to Equity; especially where they give Remedy for Wrong, or are for Expedition of Justice, &c. 1 Inst. 24, 54, 76.

76. 2 Inst. 106, 107, &c. Equity seems to be the Interpoling Law of Reason, exercised by the Lord Chancellor in extraordinary Matters, to do equal Justice, and by supplying the Defects of the Law, give Remedy in all Cases.

Equity of Redemption, on Mortgages. If where Money is due on a Mortgage, the Mortgagee is desirous to bar the Equity of Redemption, he may oblige the Mortgagor either to pay the Money, or be foreclosed of his Equity; which is done by Proceedings in the Court of Chancery. But the Chancery cannot shorten the Time of Payment of the Mortgage Money, where it is limited by express Covenant; tho' it may lengthen it: And then upon Nonpayment, the Practice is to foreclose the Equity of Redemption of the Mortgagor. 2 Ventr. 365. To foreclose the Equity, a Bill in Chancery is exhibited; to which an Answer is put in, and a Decree being obtained, a Master in Chancery is to certify what is due for Principal, Interest and Costs, which is to be paid at a Time prefixed by the Decree, whereupon the Premises is to be reconveyed to the Mortgagor; or in Default of Payment, the Mortgagor is ordered to be foreclosed from all Equity of Redemption, and to convey the Premises absolutely to the Mortgagee. Law of Securities, pag. 129, 133. A Fine and Non-claim will bar Equity of Redemption: But in a common Mortgage, a Covenant to refrain it shall not be regarded in Chancery. 2 Ventr. 365. Where Persons having once mortgaged Lands, mortgage the same a second Time, without discovering the first Mortgage, they forfeit their Equity of Redemption, and the second Mortgagee may redeem, &c. And it is the same if Persons borrowing Money, enter a Judgment, &c. for Security, and afterwards borrow more Money, and mortgage Lands to the second Lender, without giving Notice of the Judgment, or paying the same off in six Months, &c. by Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 16.

Equus Coopertus, A Horse equipp'd with Saddle and Furniture. — Inveniendū pro quolibet Feodo unum Equum Coopertum, vel duos Discooper- tos, &c. Inq. 16 Ed. 1. de Baronia de Dunham Massy.

Ermine, (From the Fr. Ermine) A Fur of great Value, much used in Robes of State.

Ern, The Names of Places ending in Ern, is said to signify a melancholy Situation; from the Sax. Ern, i. e. Locus Secretus.

Ernes. The loose scattered Ears of Corn, that are left on the Ground, after the Binding or Cocking of it: It is derived from the old Teuton. Ernde, Harvest; Ernden, to cut or mow Corn: Hence to ern is in some Places to glean. Kennet's Gloss.

Errant, (Itinerant) Is applied to Justices of the Circuit, and Bailiffs at large, &c. See Eyre.

Erraticum, A Waif or Stray; Erring or wandering Beast. Constit. Norman. A. D. 1080.

Error, (Fr. Erreur) Signifies an Error in Pleading, or Process, &c. whereupon the Writ which is brought for Remedy of this Oversight, is called a Writ of Error, in Lat. De Errore Corrigen- do. And a Writ of Error is a Writ which issues out of Chancery, and lies where any one is grieved by the Proceedings and Judgment in any Court of Record, having Power to hold Plea of Debt or Trespass above 40 s. It is returnable in the King's Bench; and if upon the Transcript of the Record into B. R. it appears to the Court that there is Error in the Record or Process, or in giving of Judgment, then the Judgment is reversed: But if there appear to be none, then is the Judgment affirmed with double Costs. 1 Lill. Abr. 518. This is borrowed from the French Practice, which is called Proposition de Erreur; and lies in great Diversity of Cases: Also there is a Writ of Error to reverse a Fine, &c. Erroneous Judgments given in the Court of B. R. were only reformed by the Parliament till the Stat. 27 Eliz. cap. 8. By that Statute, a Writ of Error lies out of the Chancery upon all Judgments given in the King's Bench, when the Suit is by Bill, (except the King is a Party to the Suit) returnable in the Exchequer Chamber, before the Judges of the Common Pleas, and Barons of the Exchequer, &c. who may examine the Errors and reverse or affirm the Judgment; other than for Errors concerning the Jurisdiction of the Court, or Want of Form in Writs, Pleadings, &c. and after the Errors are examined, and Judgment affirmed or reversed, the Record is sent back to the King's Bench, to proceed and award Execution: But if the Suit is by Original Writ; or on Qui tam, &c. where the King is Party, Writ of Error lies only to the Parliament. Stat. Ibid. To reverse a Judgment given in the Court of Common Pleas, the Writ of Error is made returnable in the King's Bench; and Error is not to be brought in Parliament: But where a Writ of Error is brought in B. R. upon a Judgment given in C. B. and the Judgment is reversed or affirmed in B. R. the Party grieved may have Writ of Error returnable in Parliament. 31 El. c. 1. 1 Lill. Abr. 519, 521. Erroneous Judgment in the Court of Exchequer is to be examined by the Lord Chancellor, &c. taking to them the Justices and such other sage Persons as they think fit; and if any Error be found, they shall correct the Rolls, and send them into the Exchequer, and make Execution, &c. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. cap. 12. Not only on Reversing or Affirming a Judgment, the Exchequer Chamber is to send back the Record into B. R. but also if the Plaintiff in the Writ of Error is Nonsuit, or if the Suit is discontinued in the Court of Exchequer Chamber, the Record shall be sent back; and the Court of Exchequer shall give Costs and Damages to the Plaintiff in the Original Action for his Delay, &c. though if the Plaintiff in Error was Plaintiff in the Original Action, there no Costs shall be given. 2 And. 122. 2 Nelf. Abr. 707. Writ of Error will not lie in the Exchequer Chamber upon a Judgment in B. R. but in Actions of Debt, Detinue, Trespass on the Case, Covenant and Ejectment; which are the Actions mentioned in the Stat. 27 Eliz. A Writ of Error lies not in the Exchequer Chamber on Judgment in Replevin in B. R. nor on Judgment in Action of Scandalum Magnatum. 2 Nelf. 708, 709. But on Judgment in Replevin in C. B. there may be Writ of Error brought in B. R. The Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 8. is only to relieve on the Merits of the Cause, as it stood on the first Judgment, and there can be no new Writ of Error after that Judgment is affirmed or reversed; so that if the Merits of the first Judgment be examined before a Scire facias brought, the Exchequer Chamber having executed their Power, can do nothing in it. 1 Salk. 263. Error doth not lie in the Exchequer Chamber upon a Judgment given on a Scire facias in B. R. 1 Lill. 530. The Exchequer Chamber doth not award a Scire facias ad Audiendum Errores; but Notice is given to the Parties concerned.

cerned. 1 Ventr. 34. Where a Writ of Error determines in the Exchequer Chamber, by Abatement or Discontinuance, the Judgment is not again in B. R. till a Remittitur is entered. 1 Salk. 261. The Court of Exchequer Chamber have not any Authority, but to reverse or affirm the Judgment, &c. for they cannot make Execution. Cro. Eliz. 108. But where Judgment is given for the Defendant, and the Plaintiff brings a Writ of Error; if the Judgment is reversed, the Court which reverses the Judgment shall give Judgment for the Plaintiff, as the other Court ought to have done. Telv. 117, 118. If erroneous Judgment be had by Consent of Parties, it may be reversed in the Exchequer Chamber; for Consent of Parties may not change the Law; but if the Consent is entered upon and made Part of the Record, it may be good. Hob. 5. Cro. El. 664. It has been held, that an Error in Fact cannot be assign'd in the Exchequer Chamber: But by some Authorities Errors in Fact may be assigned as Errors in Law. 2 Mod. 194. 2 Nelf. Abr. 708. Error de Record Quod coram vobis Residet lies in the Court of B. R. for Errors in Fact in the Judgment of the same Court; as Nonage of the Parties, Want of an Original, &c. which doth not proceed from the Error of the Judges, and this Writ is allowed without Bail: But a Writ of this Kind doth not lie for Error in Matter of Law, when it would be reversing their own Judgments. Cro. Jac. 254. And Errors in Fact may be corrected in C. B. the same Term, without this Writ, which lies not in the Exchequer Chamber. Ibid. 620. If Judgment is given in B. R. in Civil Actions, a Writ of Error will not lie in the same Court, but only for Errors in Fact triable by a Jury; but upon a Judgment in criminal Cases, Error will lie in B. R. whether the Error be in Fact or in Law; though it lies also in Parliament. 3 Salk. 147. Where a Judgment in C. B. is affirm'd upon a Writ of Error in B. R. and afterwards a Scire fac. is brought on that Judgment, and the Plaintiff hath Judgment thereon; no Writ of Error lieth in the Exchequer Chamber, because the Record was not in B. R. by Bill, but by Writ of Error. 1 Roll. Rep. 264. 3 Salk. 148. On Judgment given in the Court of King's Bench in Ireland, even after Error brought and determined there, Writ of Error may be sued in the King's Bench in England. 2 Nelf. 730. When Judgment is given in B. R. for the Plaintiff in Errors, there shall be only a Judicium Revocetur, &c. entered, with Costs: If for the Defendant in Errors, that the Plaintiff Nil capiat per Breve suum de Errore. A Writ of Error was brought on a Judgment in C. B. after a Trial at Bar, and Bills of Exception to the Evidence. Lutw. 905. The Chief Justice of B. R. &c. or the eldest Judge ought to allow a Writ of Error; which is in Judgment of Law a Supersedeas until the Errors are examined, and the Judgment affirmed or reversed. Cro. Jac. 534. A Plaintiff having erroneous Judgment may reverse it, as well as a Defendant; and a Judgment may be reversed, and new Judgment given for the Plaintiff. 1 Lev. 310. Also if a Judgment is reversed, the Plaintiff may bring a new Action for the same Cause. And Debt lies upon a Judgment in B. R. after the Writ of Error brought; which is only a Supersedeas to the Execution. 1 Lev. 153. Error lies not on an interlocutory Judgment; it must be a final Judgment after Verdict, &c. A Writ of Error may not be brought to reverse a Judgment by Default, before a Writ of Inquiry of Damages issues and is executed, that the Verdict of the Jury and interlocutory Judgment may be made a perfect final Judgment, upon which alone a Writ of Error must be brought. 1 Lill. 522. But on Judgment by Default in Ejectment, it lies before a Writ of Inquiry of Damages, and Judgment thereupon, because in this Case the Judgment already is perfect to recover the Term. Latch. 212. Where a Writ of Error is brought to reverse a Judgment in an inferior Court, tho' the Record is not certified as it ought, yet Execution cannot be sued; but on Certificate of the Neglect, &c. a Writ of Executione Judicii may be issued. 1 Lill. 526. And if a Writ of Error to reverse a Judgment be discontinued for Want of Prosecution; Execution cannot be had upon the Judgment, until the Discontinuance is certified from the Court where discontinued. Ibid. 518. The Want of a Bill in B. R. is Error upon a Judgment by Confession, or Default, (but not after a Verdict) because the Bill is the original Process there. Ibid. For Variance between the original Writ and Declaration; or Want of an Original, &c. And where Proceedings are so erroneous, as not to be amended, for Faults in Verdicts, Executions, &c. And where any Thing material is omitted in a Judgment, Writ of Error lies, and the Judgment shall be reversed: So where the Stiles of inferior Courts are wrong or insufficiently named, &c. their Judgments may be reversed. But where Faults are small, they sometimes pass as Vitium Clerici. 2 Nelf. Abr. 714, 715, 721, &c. 728. After In nullo est Erratum pleaded, the Party affirms the Record to be perfect, and he is foreclosed to say there is Error in it: Though the Court is not restrained from examining into it. 1 Salk. 270. A Writ of Error cannot be brought on any Record which is not a Judgment. 1 Salk. 145. In Writ of Error, when the Record comes into Court, if the Plaintiff all that Term do not assign his Errors; or if he do it, and omit to sue a Scire facias ad audiendum Errores, against the Defendant in Errors, returnable the same Term, or the next, all the Matter is discontinued; and the next Term a new Writ of Error is to be sued out upon the Record directed to the same Justices, &c. F. N. B. 20. If he that brings Writ of Error discontinues before the Defendant in the Writ of Error pleads to it, he may have a new Writ of Error; but if he discontinue after the Defendant hath pleaded In nullo est Erratum, he may not have a new Writ. 1 Lill. 522. Errors are to be assign'd in the Term, or the Writ of Error will be quashed. Ibid. 524. When the Record is in Court by Writ of Error, the Plaintiff in Errors is to assign his Errors; and shall have a Scire facias before the Record is entered: And the Manner of assigning Errors, according to the antient Practice is to put a Bill into the Court, and to say in the Bill, in hoc Erratum est, &c. shewing in certain in what Things. F. N. B. 20, 22. The Party bringing a Writ of Error is to cause the Roll where the Judgment is entered to be mark'd with the Word Error in the Margin, that the other Party may have Notice on the Record that the Writ of Error is brought; and this Marking of the Roll, on giving Notice thereof, is as it were a Supersedeas in it self to hinder Execution: Tho' a Supersedeas is to be made out, allowed with the Sheriff of the County: And the Plaintiff's Attorney is not obliged to search the Record, whether Writ of Error be brought, or not; but may may make out Execution upon the Judgment, if no Superfedeas be taken forth, or he have no Notice of the Writ of Error. Trin. 24 Car. B. R. The Assigning general Errors is to say, that the Declaration, &c. is not sufficient in Law; and that Judgment was given for the Plaintiff, where it ought to have been for the Defendant: And the Errors of a Judgment are now to be assigned on the Record, to appear with it to the Court. It must appear in the Record, that Judgment was given for a Matter out of the Jurisdiction of the Court, for the Plaintiff in Error to assign that for Error. 1 Lill. 523. That shall not be assigned for Error which might have been pleaded to the Action. Roll. Rep. 50, 88. And Judgment can't be reversed in Part, and stand good as to other Part; or be reversed as to one Party, and remain good against the Rest. But if there be Error in awarding Execution, the Execution only shall be reversed, and not the Judgment. Hob. 90. Any Person damnified by Error in a Record, or that may be supposed to be injured by it, may bring Writ of Error to reverse it, whether he be Party, or no; but Principal and Bail cannot join in a Writ of Error: And where there are several Defendants, if one of them release the Errors, he may be summoned and seivered, and the others may reverse the Judgment. 6 Rep. 26. Hob. 72. By Statute, he that brings Writ of Error to reverse a Judgment in a superior Court, in all Cases after a Verdict; and in all Actions of Debt, by Confession or Default; and Actions of Debt upon Bond for Payment of Money only, must put in good Sureties to prosecute his Writ of Error with Effect, and pay the Debt and Damages if Judgment be affirmed: But inferior Courts, as well upon Verdicts as other Judgments by Default, &c. have their Writs of Error allowed without putting in Bail, they being omitted in the Statute 3 Jac. 1. c. 8. If Bail be not put in, on Writ of Error brought upon a Judgment in the Courts at Westminster, the Writ of Error is no Superfedeas to the Execution; though such Writ is in Being until a Nolle prosequi is entered, or Judgment affirmed, &c. And it is the same where insufficient Bail is given, on Rule to put in better Bail, or justify those put in; which if the Plaintiff doth not do, Execution is ordered upon the Judgment, with a Non obstante to the Writ of Error, &c. Mich. 9 W. B. R. A Plaintiff in Error is, in the Time appointed by the Rule for that Purpose, to certify the Record into B. R. or the Court will grant a Nolle Prosequi on the Writ of Error. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. But the Court will not let the Plaintiff in Errors quash his own Writ of Error; tho' they may grant Leave to discontinue it. 5 Mod. 67. Where a Verdict is for a Defendant in Errors, and Judgment is affirm'd, Costs are allowed by Stat. 3 H. 7. c. 10. occasione dilationis Executionis. And by 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. Upon quashing Writs of Error, for Defect or Variance from the Record, &c. the Defendant is to have Costs as if Judgment were affirm'd. When a Writ of Error is not in dilatione Executionis, as where it is brought after the Execution is executed, the Plaintiff shall not have Damages and Costs. Cro. Jac. 636. No Person can reverse a Thing for Error, unless the Error be to his Prejudice. 5 Rep. 38. One in Remainder may have Writ of Error upon Judgment given against Tenant in Tail: But he in Reversion or Remainder shall not have Writ of Error, in the Lifetime of Tenant for Life, on Judgment given against such Tenant, because they cannot be Parties grieved in his Time. 2 Nelf. Abr. 712. Where a Plaintiff in Error dies, the Writ abates; but 'tis said not where the Defendant dies. Yelv. 112. By 30 Car. 2. c. 6. In Actions real, personal, and mix'd, the Death of either Party between Verdict and Judgment, shall not be alledged for Error. No Fine or Recovery, nor any Judgment in a Real Action, &c. shall be reversed for Error, except the Writ of Error be commenced within twenty Years, saving the Right of Infants, &c. 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 14. If there be not an Original; or not proper Writs of Covenant, or if there be any Fraud, &c. Writ of Error may be brought to make the Fine void. 1 Inst. 9. By Stat. 5 Geo. c. 13. it is enacted, That all Writs of Error, wherein there shall be any Variance from the original Record, or other Defect, may be amended by the Court, and made agreeable to the Record: And where any Verdict hath been given, in any Action, Suit, &c. in any of his Majesty's Courts at Westminster, or other Court of Record, the Judgment thereon shall not be stayed or reversed for any Defect or Fault in Form or Substance, in any Bill, Writ, &c. or for Variance in any such Writs from the Declaration or other Proceedings: But this is not to extend to any Appeal of Felony, or Process on Indictments, Informations, &c. See Judgment.

Error in the King's Bench is thus prosecuted: The Writ of Error must be first allowed with the Clerk of the Errors, and then the Proceedings are by Sci. fac. ad audiend. Errores against the Plaintiff in the Action, whereon Judgment was obtained; and the Writ of Error being received by the Sheriff to whom directed, he is to give Notice to the Plaintiff in Error to shew Cause why Execution should not be on the Judgment, and make a Return to that Purpose; then a Rule is to be given with the Secondary for the Plaintiff in Error to assign his Errors by such a Day, which if he shall not do before the Rule is out, the Plaintiff in the original Action may take out Execution against him. If the Plaintiff in Error assign Errors in the Record, then the Defendant must plead in nullo est Erratum, and thereupon enter the Cause with the Clerk of the Papers, for the Errors to be argued; and if some Part of the Record be not returned, a Certiorari must be pray'd to bring it into Court; and if Matters of Fact are alledged in Error, as Nonage, Death of the Plaintiff, &c. a proper Plea must be made thereto, and Issue thereupon taken and tried as in any other Issue: But if only Matters of Law are assign'd, the Errors are argued by Counsel on both Sides, and the Judgment is either reversed or affirmed. When a Judgment is reversed or affirmed in the Exchequer-Chamber, the Transcript of the Record thereof will be remitted back to this Court, to be entered up at the End of the Judgment here: And if such Judgment shall be affirm'd in the Exchequer Chamber, yet a Writ of Error may be brought thereupon returnable in Parliament. Practif. Solic. 252, 253. If you would bring a Writ of Error in Parliament to reverse a Judgment in B. R. there must be a Petition to the King for his Warrant, which Petition has the Allowance of the Attorney General, and then the King writes on the Top of it Fiat Justitia; whereupon a Writ of Errors is made out by the Clerk of the Errors, (who hath 4*l.* Fee, and the King's Warrant costs 5*l.*) And then the Lord Chief Justice of this Court carries the Record, and a Transcript thereof, up to the House of Lords in full Parliament, and after they are examined there, leaves the Transcript with the Lords, but brings back the Record: And this being done, the Attorney for the Defendant in Errors, gets some Lord to move that the Plaintiff in Errors may assign his Errors; but if for the Plaintiff, Motion is to be made that upon his Assigning Errors, the Defendant may appear and make his Defence, and Counsel be heard on both Sides: Then after the Judgment is either affirm'd or reversed, the Clerk of the Parliament remands the Transcript of the Record into B. R. with the Affirmation or Reversal thereof, to be entered upon the Record of the said Court, which Court, if affirm'd, awards Execution, &c. Dyer 385. Practis. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 117. A Writ of Error in Parliament is made returnable immediately; or on a Prorogation, ad proximum Parliamentum: And it doth not determine by a Prorogation. But if a Parliament is dissolved before the Errors are heard, it is otherwise: And on Motion, Execution hath been granted in B. R. on a Judgment in such a Case, the Record being never out of the Court. Raym. 5. 2 Nels. Abr. 731. To bring a Writ of Error in the King's Bench here in England to reverse a Judgment given in the King's Bench in Ireland, a Writ must be procured from the Curfitor, directed to the Chief Justice of the Court of B. R. in Ireland, requiring him to summon the Plaintiff in the Action there, to appear here in this Court, to answer the Errors; whereupon a Transcript of the Record is sent over, (not the Record it self of the Judgment which remains in Ireland): And when the Errors are argued, if the Judgment is reversed, there must go a Writ to the Chief Justice of Ireland to reverse it, commanding him to award Execution; so that the Judgment is not actually reversed here, but there. And where the Judgment in Ireland is affirmed here, there can be no Writ of Execution granted here; but on Affirmance of the Judgment, a Writ goes, reciting all the Proceedings, directed to the Judges of B. R. in Ireland, requiring them to issue Process of Execution. Cro. Car. 368. 1 Salk. 321.

Erthmioletum, An antient Word for a Meeting of the Neighbourhood to compromise Differences among themselves; which was customary in former Days: It is mentioned in Leg. H. 1. c. 57.

Esbranchatura, (From the Fr. Esbrancher) Cutting off Branches or Boughs in Forests, &c. Hoved. 784.

Escaldare, to Scald: Escaldare Porcos, Was one of our antient Tenures in Serjeanty; as appears by the Inquisition of the Serjeancies and Knights Fees in the 12th and 13th Years of King John, within the Counties of Essex and Hertford. Lib. Rub. Scaccar', M.S. 137.

Escambio, (derived from the Span. Cambiar, to change) Was a License granted to make over a Bill of Exchange to another beyond Sea: For by the Stat. 5 R. 2. c. 2. No Merchant ought to exchange or return Money beyond Sea, without the King's License. Reg. Orig. 194. See Exchange.

Escape, (Escapium, from the Fr. Eschapper, i. e. Effugere, to fly from) Signifies a violent or privy Evasion out of some lawful Restraint; as where a Person is arrested or imprisoned, and gets away before delivered by due Course of Law. Staundf. P. C. cap. 26, 27. And there are two Kinds of Escapes;

Escapes; voluntary and negligent: Voluntary is when one arrests another for Felony, or other Crime, and lets him go by Consent; in which Case the Party that permits the Escape is esteem'd guilty of the Crime committed, and must answer for it: Negligent Escape is when one is arrested, and afterwards escapes against the Will of him that arrested him, or had him in Custody; and is not pursued by fresh Suit, and taken again before the Party pursuing hath lost Sight of him. Crompt. Just. 36. And for these negligent Escapes, the Gaoler, &c. is to be fined. The Sheriff is not answerable for the Gaoler, only in Civil Cases; and none shall suffer capitally for the Crime of another, so that a principal Gaoler is only finable for a voluntary Escape suffered by his Deputy. 2 Hawk. P. C. 135. The Crime of the Prisoner escaping, for which the Gaoler is answerable, must be such as it was at the Time of the Escape; as where a Person is committed for dangerously Wounding another, it is Trespass only, and not Felony, 'till the Party wounded is dead: And he who suffers another to escape who was in Custody for Felony, cannot be arraigned for such Escape as for Felony, until the Principal is attainted; but he may be indicted and try'd for Imprison before the Attainder of the Principal: And in High Treason 'tis said the Escape is immediately punishable, whether the Party escaping be ever convicted, or not. 2 Hawk. Ibid. Where an Officer who hath the Custody of a Prisoner charged with and guilty of a capital Crime, doth knowingly give him his Liberty, with an Intent to save him from Trial, &c. he is guilty of a voluntary Escape. Cro. Car. 492. S. P. C. 32. One negligent Escape will not amount to a Forfeiture of a Gaoler's Office, as one voluntary one will; but many negligent Escapes will do it: And the Fine for suffering a negligent Escape of a Person attainted, was by the Common Law of Course 100 l. and in other Cases at the Discretion of the Court. 3 Lev. 288. 2 Lev. 81. A Gaoler cannot excuse himself by Killing a Prisoner in a Pursuit, as to the Fine, tho' he could not possibly retake him; but shall be fined for the negligent Escape, and because the publick Justice is not so well satisfied by such a Killing. 2 Hawk. 130. As voluntarily Permitting a Felon to escape out of Prison, is Felony; so is the Breaking of a Prison by a Prisoner and escaping: If one be committed only on Suspicion of Felony, if a Felony is done, it is Felony to break the Prison and escape: And if the Offence appears on Record, as when a Person is committed by the Court, or taken by Virtue of a Capias out of B. R. it is Felony to break the Prison and make an Escape, tho' the Party is innocent. But if any one by the General Authority which the Law gives him arrests an innocent Person, such Person may rescue himself. 2 Inst. 592. 3 Inst. 221. H. P. C. 109. And a Man must be committed to Prison by lawful Mittimus, or Breach of Prison and Escaping is not Felony. If a Party is committed for Treason, to break Prison and escape is but Felony; but if a Prisoner let out Traitors, it will be Treason. H. P. C. 109. 2 Inst. 590. Where one is imprisoned for Petit Larceny, or Killing a Man se Defendendo, &c. to break Prison and escape is not Felony: And if a Prison be set on Fire, not by the Privy of the Prisoner, he may break Prison for the Safety of his Life. 2 Inst. 590. A Gaoler refusing to receive a Person arrested by the Constable for Felony, whereby he is let go, is guilty of an Escape: But there must be an actual Arrest, which Arrest must be justifiable, to make an Escape; for if it be for a supposed Crime, where no Crime was committed, and the Party is neither indicted nor appealed, &c. it is no Escape to suffer a Person to go at large. Fitz. Coron. 224. Bro. Esca. 27, 28. If a private Person arrest another for Suspicion of Felony, he is to deliver him to a publick Officer who ought to have the Custody of him; or if he let him go otherwise, it will be an Escape. 2 Hawk. 138. And if no Officer will receive him, he is to deliver him to the Township where arrested; or get him bailed. Justices of Peace in their Sessions are empowered to inquire of Escapes of Persons arrested, and imprisoned for Felony. Stat. 1 R. 3. c. 3. To bail a Person not bailable by Law is a negligent Escape. Plowd. 476. In Civil Actions the Sheriff is answerable for the Escape of his Bailiff; as the Bailiff is his Servant: And Action of the Case lies against the Sheriff for an Escape upon mesne Process, because the Plaintiff is prejudiced in his Suit by it. Cro. El. 623, 625. 1 Danv. Abr. 183. But if he is arrested and rescued before brought to Gaol, the Sheriff is not chargeable. 2 Cro. 419. Tho' if a Defendant in Execution is rescued, the Sheriff is liable for the whole Debt; and is to have his Remedy against the Rescuer. Dyer 241. Where a Person is in Custody on mesne Process, and being outlawed after Judgment at the Suit of another, the Judgment-Creditor brings a Warrant on a Capias Utlagatum, and delivers it to the Sheriff's Officer, who hath him in Custody; if the Officer afterwards permits the Person to escape, though he refuse to execute the Warrant, the Sheriff is chargeable in Action of the Case. 5 Rep. 89. And a Sheriff shall not take Advantage of Error in suing out a proper Process where a Person is arrested, &c. As if a Ca. sa. issue after a Year and a Day, without suing out a Scire facias, this Error will not excuse the Sheriff in an Escape. 2 Cro. 288. 1 Salk. 273. But though a Sheriff may not take Advantage of an erroneous Process; yet he shall of a void Process, on which it is no Escape to let a Prisoner go. If a Prisoner escapes who was in Execution, his Creditor may retake him by Capias ad satisfac. or bring Action of Debt on the Judgment, or a Sci. fac. against him, &c. 1 Ventr. 269. 3 Salk. 160. A Prisoner taken in Execution makes a tortious Escape, the Party at whose Suit he was taken in Execution may have an Alias Ca. sa. to take him in Execution again; or Action on the Case against the Sheriff: But if the Sheriff voluntarily permit the Escape, Action of Debt is to be brought against the Sheriff: Though some of our Books tell us on such a voluntary Escape, the Plaintiff may have a new Execution. 1 Lill. Abr. 336. 1 Lev. 211. If a Man escapes, with the Consent of the Gaoler in a Civil Case, he cannot retake him. 3 Rep. 32. For 'tis said the Execution is discharged, so as the Party may not be taken again, or judg'd in Execution by Law. Hob. 202. And if he be allowed to go with a Keeper into another County, it is such an Escape and Discharge, that if he be there detained out of the Power of the Sheriff, it will be False Imprisonment. Plowd. 36. Dyer 166. But if a Person be permitted to escape by the Sheriff, he may be taken by the Party; for it may be the Sheriff is insufficient to answer. 1 Ventr. 4. If the Plaintiff permit the Prisoner to escape, he cannot afterwards retake him. And if the Body and Goods, &c. of a Conusor are taken taken in Execution upon a Statute-Merchant, if the Conussee agree that he shall go at large, it is a Discharge of the whole Execution, and the Conusor shall have his Lands again: Tho' if the Sheriff had permitted him to escape, the Execution on the Lands would not be discharged. 2 Nelf. Abr. 737. Where a Prisoner escapes from the Custody of the Gaoler, he may be retaken: And the Sheriff, &c. may pursue a Person escaping into that or any other County; and if he retakes the Prisoner on fresh Pursuit before Action brought, it shall excuse the Sheriff. 3 Rep. 44. It hath been adjudged no Escape to let a Prisoner go where the Sheriff hath the Prisoner in Custody, if it be before the Return of the Writ: 'Tis sufficient if the Officer have the Party at the Return of the Writ, &c. Moor 299. 1 Salk. 401. 2 Nelf. 739, 740. Yet it hath been held that where a Habeas Corpus is granted to bring a Person into Court, if the Sheriff on the Way let him go at large in the County, or carry him round about a great Way, &c. it will be an Escape. 1 Mod. 116. Fresh Pursuit, after a Year, Inquiry being made after the Prisoner in the mean Time, is good to retake a Prisoner escaping in Execution. 8 Jac. C. B. The Sheriff may have Action upon the Case against a Prisoner that escapes from him. Cro. El. 393. And an Escape in one Place is an Escape in all Places; for a Prisoner being once escaped, and at large, it shall be intended he is confined to no Place, so that for Escape Action may be brought against the Prisoner in any County. 1 Lill. Abr. 537. Action of Escape will not lie against the Executor or Administrator of a Sheriff, &c. for an Escape, because it was personal, and Movetur cum Persona: But it may be otherwise if there be a Judgment recovered against the Sheriff before he died. Dyer 322. A Prisoner in Execution should not be allowed to go out of the Gaol; for if he goes out, tho' he returns again, it is an Escape. 3 Rep. 43, 44. 1 Inst. 260. 2 Inst. 381. Persons in the King's Bench and Fleet Prisons, are to be actually detained within the said Prisons: And if they Escape, Action of Debt lies against the Warden, &c. Stat. 1 R. 2. c. 12. Keepers of Prisons suffering Prisoners to be out of the Rules, (except on Rule of Court, &c.) is an Escape; and Persons conniving at an Escape shall forfeit 500*l.* &c. by 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 26. Also this Statute ordains, that where any Prisoner in Execution escapes, the Creditor may have any other new Execution against him. By Stat. 5 Ann. c. 9. If any Person in Custody for not performing any Decree in Chancery, &c. escape, the Party for whom the Money is decreed may have the same Remedy against the Sheriff, as if the Prisoner had been in Custody on Execution. An old Sheriff omits turning over a Prisoner in Execution to the new Sheriff, is said to be an Escape; so where there are two Executions against a Man, and in the Indenture of Turning over Mention is made but of one, &c. 3 Rep. 71. See Sheriff.

Escape Warrant. If any Person committed or charged in Custody in the King's Bench or Fleet Prison, in Execution, or on mesne Process, &c. go at large: On Oath thereof before a Judge of the Court where the Action was brought, an Escape Warrant shall be granted, directed to all Sheriffs, &c. throughout England, to retake the Prisoner, and commit him to Gaol where taken, there to remain till the Debt is satisfied: And a Person may be taken of a Sunday upon an Escape Warrant. Stat. 1 Ann. c. 6. And the Judges of the respective Courts may grant Warrants, upon Oath to be made before Persons commissioned by them to take Affidavits in the Country, (such Oath being first filed) as they might do upon Oath made before themselves. 5 Ann. c. 9. A Sheriff ought not to receive a Person taken on Escape Warrant, &c. from any but an Officer; not from the Rabble, &c. which is illegal. Pasch. 3 Ann. 3 Salk. 149.

Escapio Quietus, Is on Escape of Beasts in a Forest; and he that by Charter is Quietus de Escapio is delivered from that Punishment which by the Laws of the Forest lieth upon those whose Beasts are found within the Land where forbidden. Crompt. Jurisd. 196.

Escapium, Hath been used for any Thing that comes by Chance or Accident. Cowel.

Escheat, (Eschaeta, from the Fr. Escheoir, i. e. Accidere) Signifies any Lands or Tenements that casually fall to a Lord within his Manor, by Way of Forfeiture; or by the Death of his Tenant, leaving no Heir general or special. Magn. Chart. c. 31. Escheat is also used sometimes for the Place or Circuit, in which the King, or other Lord, hath Escheats of his Tenants. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 2. And it is likewise applied to a Writ, which lies where the Tenant having an Estate in Fee-simple in any Lands or Tenements holden of a superior Lord, dies without Heir; in which Case the Lord brings this Writ against him that is in Possession of the Lands after the Death of his Tenant, and shall thereby recover the same in Lieu of his Services. F. N. B. 144. In our Law Escheats were of two Sorts: 1. Regal, Those Forfeitures which belong to our Kings by the antient Rights and Prerogative of the Crown. 2. Feodal, which accrue to every Lord of the Fee as well as the King, by Reason of his Seigniority. Where a Person commits Treason, his Estate shall escheat and be forfeited to the King: And when a Tenant in Fee-simple committeth Felony, and is attainted, the King shall have Year, Day, and Waste in his Lands, (or rather Year and Day in lieu of Waste) and afterwards it comes to the Lord by Escheat. But the Lord may compound with the King, and have the Estate presently. 3 Inst. 111. It has been holden, that a Saving against the Corruption of Blood in a Statute concerning Felony, doth by Consequence save the Land to the Heir, so as not to escheat, because the Escheat to the Lord for Felony is only pro defectu Tenentis, occasioned by the Corruption of Blood: But it hath been adjudged, that a Saving against the Corruption of Blood in a Statute concerning Treason, doth not save the Land to the Heir; for in Treason the Land goes to the King by Way of immediate Forfeiture. 3 Inst. 47. 1 Salk. 85. Inheritances of Things not lying in Tenure, as of Rents, Commons, &c. cannot escheat to the Lord, because there is no Tenure; nor descend, by Reason the Blood is corrupted: Tho' they are forfeited to the King by an Attainder of Treason, and the Profits of them shall be also forfeited to the King on an Attainder of Felony, during the Life of the Offender; and after his Death 'tis said the Inheritance shall be extinguished. 2 Hawk. P. C. 449. A Person is seized of Lands in Fee holden of a Lord, his Son is attainted of Treason, and the Father dieth, the Land shall escheat to the Lord, and not to the King;

King; who cannot have the Land, because the Son who was attainted never had any Thing to forfeit: But the King shall have the Escheat of all the Lands whereof the Person attainted of High Treason was seised, of whomsoever they were holden. 1 Inst. 13. Husband and Wife, Tenants in special Tail; the Husband is attainted of Treason and executed, leaving Issue; on the Death of the Wife the Lands shall escheat, because the Issue in Tail ought to make his Conveyance by Father and Mother, and from the Father he cannot by Reason of the Attainder. Dyer 322. If Tenant in Fee-simple is attainted of Treason, and executed, upon his Death the Fee is vested in the King, without Office found; yet he must bring a Scire facias against the Tenants: But Lands shall never escheat to a Lord of whom they are holden, until Office found. 3 Rep. 10. Escheat seldom happens to the Lord for Want of an Heir to an Estate; but when it doth, before the Lord enters, the Homage Jury of the Lord's Court ought to present it. 2 Inst. 36. Land shall escheat to the Lord where Heirs are born after Attainder of Felony. 3 Rep. 40. Tho' the King pardons a Felon before Conviction, the Lord shall not have his Lands by Escheat; for the Lord hath no Title before Attainder. Owen 87. 2 Nels. Abr. 744. If on Appeal of Death or other Felony, Process is awarded against the Party, and hanging the Process he conveyeth away the Land, and after is outlawed, the Conveyance is good to defeat the Lord of his Escheat: But if where a Person is indicted of Felony, hanging the Process against him, he conveys away his Land, and afterward is outlawed, the Conveyance shall not prevent the Lord of his Escheat. 1 Inst. 13. See Corruption of Blood.

Escheator, (Escheator) Was an Officer appointed by the Lord Treasurer in every County, to make Inquests of Titles by Escheat; which Inquests were to be taken by good and lawful Men of the County, impanelled by the Sheriff. Stat. 14 Ed. 3. c. 8. 34 Ed. 3. c. 13. 8 H. 6. c. 16. These Escheators found Offices after the Death of the King's Tenants, which held by Knights-Service, or otherwise of the King; and certified their Inquisitions into the Exchequer, and Fitzherbert called them Officers of Record. F. N. B. 100. No Escheator could continue in his Office above one Year: And whereas before the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 24. Escheators, Sheriffs, &c. would seise into the King's Hands the Freehold of the Subjects, and thereby disseise them, by this Act, it is provided that no Seizure can be made of Lands or Tenements into the King's Hands, before Office found. 2 Inst. 206. And no Lands can be granted before the King's Title is found by Inquisition. 18 H. 6. c. 6. The Office of Escheator is an antient Office, and was formerly of great Use to the Crown; but having its chief Dependence on the Court of Wards, which is taken away by Act of Parliament, it is now in a Manner out of Date. 4 Inst. 225. There was antiently an Officer called Escheator of the Jews. Clau. 4 Ed. 1. m. 7.

Escheccum, A Jury or Inquisition. Matt. Paris. Anno 1240.

Eschipare, To build or equip. — Naves bene Eschipatas bonis & probis Marinellis. Du Cange. See Eskippamentum.

Escrow, Is a Deed delivered to a third Person, to be the Deed of the Party making it, upon a future Condition, when such a Thing is perform'd; and then it is to be delivered to the Party to whom made. It is to be delivered to a Stranger, mentioning the Condition; and has Relation to the first Delivery. 2 Roll. Abr. 25, 26. 1 Inst. 31.

Escuage, (Scutagium, from the Fr. Escu, a Shield) Signifies a Kind of Knight's Service, called Service of the Shield, whereby the Tenant was bound to follow his Lord into the Wars at his own Charge. It is also sometimes taken for that Duty or Payment, which they who held Lands under this Tenure, were bound to make to the Lord, when they neither went to the Wars, nor provided any other in their Place; being in lieu of all Services. And sometimes Escuage signified a reasonable Aid, demanded and levied by the Lord of his Tenants who held in Knights Service, &c. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. F. N. B. 8. See Chivalry.

Escurare, To scour or cleanse. — Purgare vel Escurare totam Aquam Fossatorum, &c. Carta Tho. Episcop. B. W. dat. 29. Oct. 4 Ed. 4.

Esingæ, The Kings of Kent, so called from the first King Ochta, who was surnamed Ese: He was Grandfather of K. Ethelbert.

Eskeatores, (From the Fr. Escher) Robbers or Destroyers of other Men's Lands and Fortunes. — Furatores dicunt etiam quod Latrones, & Eskeatores de Terra de, &c. Intraverunt, &c. Placit. Parl. 20 Ed. 1.

Eskippamentum, Skippage, Tackle, or Ship Furniture: The Sea-port Towns were to provide certain Ships, Sumptibus propriis & duplici Eskippamento. Sir Rob. Cott.

Eskippeson, Shipping, or Passage by Sea. Humphry Earl of Bucks, in a Deed dated 13 Feb. 22 H. 6. covenants with Sir Philip Chetwind, his Lieutenant of the Castle of Calais, to give him Allowance for his Soldiers, Skippeson and Re-skippeson, viz. Passage and Re-passage by Ship.

Esneey, (Esneia, Dignitas primogeniti) Is a private Prerogative allow'd to the eldest Coparcener, where an Estate is descended to Daughters for Want of Heir Male, to chuse first after the Inheritance is divided. Fleta, lib. 5. cap. 10. Fus Esneia is Fus Primogenitura; in which Sense it may be extended to the eldest Son, and his Issue, holding first: In the Statute of Marlbridge, cap. 9. it is call'd, Initia pars Hereditatis. Co. Lit. 166.

Esperbarius, (Fr. Eservier) A Spar-Hawk. Chart. Forest. cap. 4. — Reddit. solut. Willielmo T. ad Manerium suum de, &c. pro omnibus serviciis unum Espervarium ad Festum, &c. Anno 35 H. 6.

Esplees, (Expletie, from Expleo) Are the Products which Ground or Land, &c. yield; as the Hay of the Meadows, the Herbage of the Pasture, Corn of the Arable, Rents, Services, &c. And of an Advowson, the Taking of Tithes in gross by the Parson; of Wood, the Selling of Wood; of an Orchard, the Fruit growing there; of a Mill, the Taking of Toll, &c. These and such like Issues are term'd Esplees. And it is observ'd, that in a Writ of Right of Land, Advowson, &c. the Demandant ought to alledge in his Count, that he or his Ancestors took the Esplees of the Thing in Demand; otherwise the Pleading will not be good. Terms de Ley 310. Sometimes this Word hath been applied to the Farm, or Lands, &c. themselves. — Dominus E. habebit omnia Expletias & Proficua de Corona emergentia. Plac. Parl. 30 Ed. 1.

Espousals, (Sponsalia) Are a Contract or mutual Promise between a Man and a Woman to marry marry each other; and where Marriages may be consummated, Esponsals go before them. Marriage or Matrimony is said to be an Esposual de presenti, and a Conjunction of Man and Woman in a constant Society. Wood's Inst. 57. See Matrimony.

Esquire, (From the Fr. Escu, and the Lat. Scutum, in Greek Σκῦτον) Which signifies an Hide of which Shields were antiently made, and afterwards covered: For here in the Time of the Saxons, the Shields had a Covering of Leather; so that an Esquire was originally he who attending a Knight in Time of War, did carry his Shield, whence he was called Escuier in French, and Scutifer or Armiger, i. e. Armour-bearer in Latin. Hotoman saith, that those which the French call Esquires, were a military Kind of Vassals, having Fus Scuti, viz. Liberty to bear a Shield, and in it the Ensigns of their Family, in Token of their Gentility or Dignity: But this Addition hath not of long Time had any Relation to the Office or Employment of the Person to whom it hath been attributed, as to carrying of Arms, &c. but been meerly a Title of Dignity, and next in Degree to a Knight. Those to whom this Title is now of Right due, are all the younger Sons of Noblemen, and the eldest Sons of such younger Sons; the eldest Sons of Knights, and their eldest Sons: The Officers of the King's Courts, and of the King's Household; Counsellors at Law; Justices of Peace, &c. But these latter are Esquires in Reputation; and he who is a Justice of Peace, has this Title only during the Time he is in Commission, and no longer, if he be not otherwise qualified to bear it. A Sheriff of a County being a superior Officer, retains the Title of Esquire during his Life; in Respect of the great Trust he hath in the Commonwealth. The chief of some antient Families are Esquires by Prescription; and in late Acts of Parliament for Poll-Money, many wealthy Persons (commonly reputed to be such) were rank'd among the Esquires of this Kingdom. Blount.

Esquires of the King, Are such who have the Title by Creation: These, when they are created, have put about their Necks a Collar of SS. and a Pair of Silver Spurs bestowed on them: And they were wont to bear before the Prince in War, a Shield or Launce. There are four Esquires of the King's Body, to attend on his Majesty's Person. Camd. 111.

Exendi quietum de Tolonio, A Writ to be quit of Toll, and lies for Citizens and Burgeses of any City or Town that by Charter or Prescription ought to be exempted from Toll, where the same is exacted of them. Reg. Orig. 258, Excoisors, Are Persons appointed by a Court of Law, to whom a Writ of Venire facias is directed to impanel a Jury, on Challenge to the Sheriff and Coroners; who return the Writ in their own Names, with a Panel of the Jurors Names. 15 E. 4. 24. pl. 4.

Excoim, (Excoimium, Fr. Excoine) Signifies an Excuse for him that is summoned to appear and Answer to an Action, or to perform Suit to a Court-Baron, &c. by Reason of Sickness and Infirmary, or other just Cause of Absence. And the Causes that serve to Excoim are divers, yet drawn chiefly to five Heads; 1. Excoim de ultra Mare, whereby the Defendant shall have forty Days. 2. De Terra Sancta, where the Defendant shall have a Year and a Day. 3. De malo veniendi, which is likewise called the Common Excoim. 4. De Malo Lefti, wherein the Defendant may by Writ be viewed by four Knights. 5. De servitio Regis. Bract. lib. 5. Britton, cap. 122. Fleta, lib. 6. After Issue joined in Dower, Quare Impedit, &c. one Excoim only shall be allowed. Stat. 52 H. 3. c. 13. And in Writs of Affise, Attaints, &c. after the Tenant hath appeared, he shall not be excoim'd; but the Inquest shall be taken by Default. 3 E. 1. c. 42. Excoim ultra Mare shall not be allow'd, if the Tenant be within the four Seas; but it shall be turned to a Default. c. 44. There is no Excoim permitted for an Appellant. 13 Ed. 1. Nor doth Excoim lie where any Judgment is given; or where the Party is distrained by his Lands; the Sheriff is commanded to make him appear; after the Party is seen in Court, &c. 12 E. 2. And Excoim de servitio Regis lieth not where the Party is a Woman; in a Writ of Dower; where the Party hath an Attorney in his Suit, &c. Ibid. Excoim is a Kind of Imparlance, or a Craving of a longer Time, that lies in real, personal, and mix'd Actions. 1 Inst. 138. And the Plaintiff as well as Defendant shall be excoim'd, to save his Default. 1 Lill. 540. The Excoim-Day in Court is regularly the first Day of the Term; but the fourth Day after is allow'd of Favour. 1 Lill. 540.

Excoim de Malo Mille, Is when the Defendant is in Court the first Day; but gone without Pleading, and being afterwards surprized by Sickness, &c. cannot attend, but sends two Excoimners, who openly protest in Court that he is detained by Sickness in such a Village that he cannot come, pro lucrari & pro perdere; and this will be admitted, for it lieth on the Plaintiff to prove whether the Excoim is true, or not.

Excoims and Proffers, Words used in the Statute 32 H. 8. cap. 21. See Profer.

Establishment of Dower, Is the Assurance or Settlement of Dower, made to the Wife by the Husband, on Marriage: And Assignment of Dower, signifies the Setting it out by the Heir afterwards, according to the Establishment. Brit. cap. 102, 103.

Estache, (From the Fr. Estacher, to fasten) Is used for a Bridge, or Stank of Stone and Timber. Cowel.

Estandard, or Standard, An Ensign for Horsemen in War. See Standard.

Estate, (Fr. Estat, Lat. Fus) Signifies that Title or Interest which a Man hath in Lands or Tenements, &c. And Estates are acquired divers Ways, viz. by Discent from a Father to the Son, &c. Conveyance, or Grant from one Man to another; by Gift or Purchase; Deed or Will: And a Fee-simple is the largest Estate that can be in Law. 1 Lill. 541. Estates are Real or Personal, &c.

Estoppel, (From the Fr. Estouper, i. e. Oppilare, obstipare) Is an Impediment or Bar of an Action arising from a Man's own Fact: Or where he is forbidden by Law to speak against his own Deed; for by his Act or Acceptance he may be estopp'd to alledge or plead the Truth. F. N. B. 142. Co. Lit. 352. If a Person is bound in an Obligation by the Name of A. B. and is afterwards sued by that Name on the Obligation; now he shall not be received to say in Abatement, that he is misnamed, but shall answer according to the Obligation, tho' it be wrong; and so far as he is the same Person that was bound, he is estopped and forbidden in Law to say contrary to his own Deed; and otherwise he might take Advantage of his own Wrong, which the Law will not suffer. Terms de Ley 314. If a Man enter into Bond, with with Condition to give to another all the Goods which were devised to him by his Father; in this Case the Obligor is estopped to plead that the Father made no Will, but he may plead that he had not any Goods devised to him by his Father. 2 Nelf. Abr. 751. In a Deed, all Parties are estopped to say any Thing against what is contained in it: It estops a Lessee, to say that the Lessor had Nothing in the Land, &c. And Parties and Privies are bound by Estoppel. Lit. 58. 1 Inst. 352. 4 Rep. 53. But in Estoppels, both Parties must be estopped; and therefore where an Infant, or Feme Covert, make a Lease, they are not estopped to say that 'tis not their Deed, because they are not bound by it; and as to them it is void. Cro. Eliz. 36. And though Estoppels conclude Parties to say the Truth; yet Jurors are not concluded, who are sworn ad veritatem de & super premissis dicendam: For they may find any Thing that is out of the Record; and are not estopped to find Truth in a special Verdict. 4 Rep. 53. Lutw. 570. The Recital of a Deed shall not estop a Person, unless it be of a particular Fact, or where it is material, when it may be Estoppel. Cro. Eliz. 362. And an Estoppel shall bind only the Heir, who claims the Right of him to whom the Estoppel was. 8 Rep. 53. Acceptance of Rent from a Disseisor by the Disseisee, may be an Estoppel: And a Widow accepting less than her Thirds for Dower, is Estoppel, &c. 2 Danv. Abr. 130, 671. Estoppels are to be pleaded, so as to conclude the Plea, and rely on the Estoppel; not demand Judgment Si actio, &c. 4 Rep. 53. Our Books mention three Kinds of Estoppel, viz. By Matter of Record, by Matter in Writing, and by Matter in Pais. Co. Lit. 352.

Estovers, (Fr. Estover, from the Verb Estoffer) Signifies to supply with Necessaries; and is generally used in the Law for Allowances of Wood made to Tenants, comprehending House-bote, Hedge-bote and Plough-bote, for Repairs, &c. And in some Manors, the Tenants pay a certain small annual Rent, for Estovers out of the Lords Woods. Westm. 2. cap. 25. 20 Car. 2. cap. 3. This Word hath been taken for Sustenance; as Bracton uses it, for that Sustenance or Allowance which a Man committed for Felony, is to have out of his Lands or Goods, for himself and his Family, during his Imprisonment. Bract. lib. 3. tract. 2. cap. 18. And the Stat. 6 Ed. 1. c. 3. applies it to an Allowance in Meat, Clothes, &c. In which Sense, it has been used for a Wife's Alimony. See Common of Estovers.

Estray, (Extrahura, from the old Fr. Estrayeur) Is any Beast that is not wild, found within a Lordship, and not own'd by any Man; Pecus quod elapsum à custode campos pererrat, ignoto Domino: In which Case if it be cried and proclaimed according to Law in the two next Market-Towns on two Market-Days, and is not claimed by the Owner within a Year and a Day, it belongs to the Lord of the Liberty. Brit. cap. 17. And Swans may be Estray, as well as Beasts; and are to be proclaimed, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 878. If the Beast stray to another Lordship within the Year, after it hath been an Estray, the first Lord cannot retake it, for until the Year and Day be past, and Proclamation made as aforesaid, he hath no Property; and therefore the Possession of the second Lord is good against him. Wood's Inst. 213. Cro. Eliz. 716. If the Cattle were never proclaimed, the Owner may take them at any Time: And where a Beast is proclaimed as the Law directs, if the Owner claims it in a Year and a Day, he shall have it again; but must pay the Lord for Keeping. 1 Roll. Abr. 879. Finch 177. An Owner may seize an Estray, without telling the Marks, or proving the Property, (which may be done at the Trial if contested) and tendering Amends generally is good in this Case, without shewing the particular Sum; because the Owner of the Estray is no Wrong-Doer, and knows not how long it has been in the Possession of the Lord, &c. which makes it different from Trespas, where a certain Sum must be tendered. 2 Salk. 686. A Beast Estray is not to be used in any Manner, except in case of Necessity; as to milk a Cow, or the like; but not to ride an Horse. Cro. Jac. 148. 1 Roll. 673. Estrays of the Forest are mentioned in the Statute of 27 Hen. 8. cap. 7. The King's Cattle cannot be Estrays, or forfeited, &c.

Estreit, (Extractum) Is used for the true Copy, or Note of some original Writing or Record, and especially of Fines, Amercements, &c. imposed in the Rolls of a Court, to be levied by the Bailiff or other Officer. F. N. B. 57, 76. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 8. Estreits relate to Fines, &c. for Crimes and Offences, Defaults and Negligences, of Parties in Suits and Officers, Non-appearance of Defendants and Jurors, &c. And all forfeited Recognizances are to be first estreated into the Exchequer, by Sheriffs of Counties; on which Process issues to levy the same to the Use of the King. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. cap. 22. Estreits are to be levied on the right Persons: And Sheriff's Estreits must be in two Parts, indented and sealed by the Sheriff, and two Justices of the Peace; who are to view them, and one of them is to remain with the Sheriff, and the other with the Justices. 11 Hen. 7. c. 15. Estreits of Fines, at the Quarter-Sessions, are to be made by the Justices; and to be double, one whereof is to be delivered to the Sheriff by Indenture. 14 R. 2. cap. 11. Fines, Post-Fines, Forfeitures, &c. must be estreated into the Exchequer twice a Year, on Pain of 50 l. And Officers are to deliver in their Returns of Estreits upon Oath. 22 & 23 Car. 2. 4 & 5 W. & M. 'Tis the Course of the Court of B. R. to send the Estreits twice a Year into the Exchequer, viz. on the last Day of the two issuable Terms; but in extraordinary Cases there may be a Rule to estreat them sooner. 1 Salk. 55. Amercements are not usually discharged on Motion, for there ought to be a Constat of the Estreit; though the Court may give Leave to the Sheriff to compound them. Ibid. 54. 1 Nelf. Abr. 207.

Estrepiement, (Estrepiementum, from the Fr. Estopier, Mutilare, or from the Lat. Extirpare) Is where any Spoil is made by Tenant for Life, upon any Lands or Woods, to the Prejudice of him in Reversion; and also signifies to make Land barren by continual Ploughing. Stat. 6 Ed. 1. cap. 13. It seems by the Derivation, that Estrepiement is the unreasonable Drawing away the Heart of the Ground, by Ploughing and Sowing it continually, without Manuring or other good Husbandry, whereby it is impaired: And yet Estopies signifying Mutilare, may no less be applied to the Cutting down Trees, or Lopping them farther than the Law allows. Cowel. In ancient Records, we often find Vastum & Estrepiementum.

mentum facere : And this Word is used for a Writ, which lies in two Cases ; the one, when a Person having an Action depending, as a Formedon, Writ of Right, &c. sues to prohibit the Tenant from making Waste, during the Suit ; the other is for the Demandant, who is adjudged to recover Seisin of the Land in Question, before Execution sued by the Writ Habere facias possessionem, to prevent Waste being made till he gets into Possession. Reg. Orig. 76. Reg. Judic. 33. F. N. B. 60, 61. The Writ of Estrepement lies properly where the Plaintiff in a real Action, shall not recover Damages by his Action ; and it as it were supplies Damages ; for Damages and Costs may be recovered for Waste, after Writ of Estrepement brought. A Writ of Estrepement was delivered to the Tenant in Formedon, who notwithstanding committed Waste, and thereupon the Demandant counted upon this Writ ; the Tenant pleaded Non fecit vastum contra Prohibitionem ; and it was found by Verdict that he did ; whereupon the Demandant the Plaintiff, had his Damages and Costs. Moor 100. This Writ may be sued out with the Original in the Action ; and in some Cases may be brought as well after, as before Judgment, where Execution is not had ; but is usually before Judgment. 2 Inst. 328. Where Tenants commit Waste in Houses assigned a Feme for Dower, on her bringing Action of Dower, Writ of Estrepement lies. 5 Rep. 115. It also lies in Cases of Disseisins : And where a Writ of Error is brought to reverse a common Recovery, whilst the Writ is depending, Estrepement may be awarded to the Tenant ; likewise on a Scire facias brought against the Tenants, in Reversal of a Recovery, it will lie. Cro. Eliz. 114. Moor 622. But pending a Writ of Partition between Coparceners, if the Tenant commit Waste, this Writ will not be granted ; because there is equal Interest between the Parties, and the Writ will not lie, but where the Interest of the Tenant is to be disproved. Goldsb. 50. 2 Nels. Abr. 754. Writ of Estrepement is directed to the Tenant and his Servants, or to the Sheriff : And if it be directed to the Tenant and his Servants, and they are duly served with it, if they afterwards commit Waste, they may be committed to Prison : But it is said not to be so, when directed to the Sheriff, because he may raise the Posse Comitatus to resist them who make Waste. Hob. 85. Though it hath been adjudged, that the Sheriff may likewise imprison Offenders, if he be put to it ; and that he may make a Warrant to others to do it. 5 Rep. 115. 2 Inst. 329. The Writ commands the Sheriff, Quod ad Messuagium, &c. Personaliter accedens totaliter ordinari faciat quod vastum seu Estrepementum de eodem messuagio contra statut. non fiat pendente Placito, &c. 2 Nels. 754. In the Chancery, on Filing of a Bill, and before Answer, the Court will grant an Injunction to stay Waste, &c. 1 Lill. 547.

Etheling or Ætheling, (Sax.) Signifies Noble ; and among the Eng. Saxons, it was the Title of the Prince, or King's eldest Son. Camd. See Adeling.

Evasion, (Evasio). Is a subtle Endeavouring to set aside Truth, or to escape the Punishment of the Law ; which will not be endured. If a Person says to another, that he will not strike him, but will give him a Pot of Ale to strike first ; and accordingly he strikes, the Returning of it is punishable ; and if the Person first striking be killed, it is Murder ; for no Man shall evade the Justice of the Law, by such a Pretence to cover his Malice. 1 Hawk. P. C. 81. No one may plead Ignorance of the Law to evade it, &c.

Evesdroppers, Are such Persons as stand under the Eves or Walls of a House, by Night or by Day, to hearken after News, and carry it to others, and thereby cause Strife and Contention in the Neighbourhood. Terms de Ley 317. They are punished in the Court Leet by Fine, by the Stat. Westm. c. 33.

Evection, (From Evinco, to overcome) Is a Recovery of Land, &c. by Law. If Land is evicted, before the Time of Payment of Rent on a Lease, no Rent shall be paid by the Lessee. 10 Rep. 128. Where Lands taken on Extent are evicted or recovered by better Title, the Plaintiff shall have a new Execution. 4 Rep. 66. If a Widow is evicted of her Dower or Thirds, she shall be endowed in the other Lands of the Heir. 2 Danv. Abr. 670. And if on an Exchange of Lands, either Party is evicted of the Lands given in Exchange, he may enter on his own Lands. 4 Rep. 121.

Evidence, (Evidentia) Is used in the Law for some Proof, by Testimony of Men on Oath, or by Writings or Records. It is called Evidence, because thereby the Point in Issue in a Cause to be tried, is to be made evident to the Jury ; for Probationes debent esse Evidentes & Perspicua. Co. Lit. 283. The Evidence to a Jury ought to be upon the Oaths of Witnesses ; or upon Matters of Record, or by Deeds proved, or other like authentic Matter. 1 Lill. Abr. 547. And Evidence containeth Testimony of Witnesses, and all other Proofs to be given and produced to a Jury for the Finding of any Issue joined between Parties. 1 Inst. 283. As to Proof by Witnesses, they cannot testify a Negative ; and the Common Law required no certain Number of Witnesses, though they are required by Statute in some Cases : The Testimony of one single Evidence is sufficient for the King in all Causes, except for Treason ; where there must be two Witnesses to the same Overt-Act, &c. In all other Criminal Matters, one Evidence is enough ; and to a Jury one Witness is sufficient. 3 Inst. 20. Mich. 23 Car. B. R. Stat. 7. W. 3. cap. 3. And sometimes violent Presumption will be admitted for Evidence, without Witnesses ; as where a Person is run through the Body in a House, and one is seen to come out of the House with a bloody Sword, &c. But on this the Court ought not to judge hastily. 1 Inst. 6, 373. And though presumptive and circumstantial Evidence may be sufficient in Felony ; it is not so in Treason. State Trials, Vol. 4. p. 307. The King cannot be a Witness under his Sign Manual, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 686. But it has been allowed he may, in Relation to a Promise made in Behalf of another. Hob. 213. A Peer produced as an Evidence, ought to be sworn. 3 Keb. 631. It is no Exception to an Evidence that he is a Judge, or a Juror, to try the Person ; for a Judge may give Evidence, going off from the Bench. 2 Hawk. P. C. 432. And a Juror may be an Evidence as to his particular Knowledge ; but then it must be on Examination in open Court, not before his Brother Jurors. 1 Lill. 552. Members of Corporations shall be admitted or refused to give Evidence in Actions brought by Corporations, as their Interest is small or great ; whereby it may be be judged whether they will be partial or not. 2 Lev. 231, 241. But they will not generally be admitted; though Inhabitants not free of the Corporation may be good Witnesses for the Corporation, as their Interest is not concerned; and Members may be disfranchised on these Occasions. Ibid. 236. In Actions against Church-wardens or Overseers of the Poor for Recovery of Money mispent on the Parish Account, the Evidence of the Parishioners, not receiving Alms, shall be allowed. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. cap. 11. And in Informations or Indictments for not repairing Highways and Bridges, the Evidence of the Inhabitants of the Town, Corporation, &c. where such Highways lie shall be admitted. 1 Ann. cap. 18. A Party interested in the Suit; or a Wife for or against her Husband, a Husband against the Wife, (except in Cases of Treason) may not be Witnesses. 4 Inst. 279. Yet it has been adjudged that a Wife may be admitted as an Evidence for the Husband on her being seduced to live with an Adulterer, against the Adulterer; and she may be a Witness to prove a Cheat upon her and her Husband. Sid. 431. Kinsmen, though never so near, Tenants, Servants, Masters, Attornies for their Clients, and all others that are not infamous, and which want not Understanding, or are not Parties in Interest, may give Evidence in a Cause; though the Credit of Servants is left to the Jury. 2 Roll. Abr. 685. 1 Ventr. 243. A Counsellor, Attorney, or Solicitor, is not to be examined as an Evidence against their Clients, because they are obliged to keep their Secrets; but they may be examined, as to any Thing of their own Knowledge before retained, not as Counsel or Attorney, &c. 1 Ventr. 97. If the Plaintiff makes one a Defendant in the Suit, on Purpose to impeach his Testimony, under a Pretence of his being a Party in Interest, he may nevertheless be examined de bene esse; and if the Plaintiff prove no Cause of Action against him, his Evidence shall be allowed in the Cause. 2 Lill. Abr. 701. One that hath a Legacy given him by Will, is not a good Witness to prove the Will; but if he release his Legacy, he may be a good Evidence. Ibid. 704. It is the same of a Deed, he that claims any Benefit by it, may not be an Evidence to prove that Deed, in Regard of his Interest: And a Person any Ways concerned in the same Title of Land in Question, will not be admitted as Evidence. Ibid. 705. But it has been held that an Heir apparent may be a Witness concerning a Title of Land; and yet a Remainder-man, who hath a present Interest, cannot. 1 Salk. 385. In criminal Cases, as of Robbery on the Highway, in Action against the Hundred; in Rapes of Women, or where a Woman is married by Force, &c. a Man or a Woman may be an Evidence in their own Cause. 1 Ventr. 243. And in private notorious Cheats, a Person may be an Evidence in his own Cause, where no Body else can be a Witness of the Circumstances of the Fact, but he that suffers. 1 Salk. 286. Upon an Information on the Statute against Usury, he that borrows the Money after he hath paid it, may be an Evidence; but not before. Raym. 191. An Alien Infidel, may not be an Evidence; but a Jew may, and be sworn on the Old Testament. 1 Inst. 6. A Quaker shall not be permitted to give Evidence in any criminal Cause: Though on other Occasions, his solemn Affirmation shall be accepted instead of an Oath. Stat. 7 & 8 W. 3.

cap. 34. Persons convicted of Felony, Perjury, &c. And if one by Judgment hath stood in the Pillory, or been whip'd; for this Infamy he shall not be admitted to give Evidence, whilst the Judgment is in Force: But the Record of Conviction must be produced on objecting against their Testimony; and the Witness shall not be asked any Question to accuse himself, tho' his Credit may be impeached by other Evidences, as to his Character in general, so as not to make Proof of particular Crimes, whereof he hath not been convicted. 3 Inst. 108, 219. 3 Lev. 426. If after a Man hath stood in the Pillory, &c. he be pardoned, he may be an Evidence: And notwithstanding Judgment of the Pillory infers Infamy at Common Law, by the Civil and Canon Law it imports no Infamy, unless the Cause for which the Person was convicted was infamous; and therefore such may be a good Witness to a Will, if not convicted of any infamous Act. 3 Lev. 426, 427. It has been held, that 'tis not standing in the Pillory, disables a Person to give Evidence; but standing there upon a Judgment for an infamous Crime, as Forgery, &c. If for a Libel, a Man may be a Witness. 5 Mod. 74. 3 Nels. Abr. 557. If a Man be convicted of Felony, and afterwards pardoned, he may be a good Evidence. Raym. 369. So where burnt in the Hand, which is quasi a Statute-Pardon: And 'tis said 'tis Burning in Hand restores the Offender to his Credit. Ibid. 330. A Person who was condemn'd to be hang'd for Burglary, but having a Pardon for Transportation, hath been allowed to be a good Evidence. 5 Mod. 18. A Person outlawed for Treason and pardoned, may be an Evidence. State Trials, Vol. 3. 585. Persons acquitted, or guilty of the same Crime, (while they remain unconvicted) may be Evidence against their Fellows. Kel. 17. But no Evidence ought to be given of what an Accomplice hath said, who is not in the same Indictment. State Trials, Vol. 2. 414. An Informer may be a Witness, tho' he is to have Part of the Forfeiture, where no other Witnesses can be had. Wood's Inst. 598. A Bail cannot be an Evidence for his Principal. State Tr. Vol. 3. 253. A Witness shall not be examined where his Evidence tends to clear or accuse himself of a Crime. Ibid. Vol. 1. 557. The Examination of a Witness ought not to be read, where the Evidence himself may be produced. Ibid. 526. A Witness shall not be cross examined till he hath gone through the Evidence on the Side wherein produced. Ibid. Vol. 2. 772. The Court is to examine the Witnesses, and not the Prisoner or Prosecutors. Ibid. Vol. 1. 143. An Evidence shall not be permitted to read his Evidence; but he may look on his Notes to refresh his Memory. Ibid. Vol. 4. 45. An Evidence may not recite his Evidence to the Jury, after gone from the Bar, and he hath given his Evidence in Court; if he doth, the Verdict may be set aside. Cro. Eliz. 159. One that is to be an Evidence at a Trial, ought not to be examined before the Trial, but by the Consent of both Parties, and a Rule of Court for that Purpose: But if a Witness is not able to attend the Trial, a Judge may excuse his Non-appearance, and certify his Examination. Also if a Person who gave Evidence in a former Trial be dead; upon Proof of his Death, any Person who heard him give Evidence, may be admitted to give the same Evidence between the same Parties; but a Copy of the Record of the Trial when the Evidence was given ought to be produced. 3 Inst. 2. Lill. Abr. 705. A Witness by Hearsay of a Stranger, shall not be allowed; except perhaps to confirm the Evidence of a Witness that spoke of his Knowledge. Wood's Inst. 644. And Evidence given at one Trial, has been held not to be Evidence at another Trial. State. Tr. Vol. 2. 308, 337. No Evidence is necessary in passing a Bill of Attainder, but private Satisfaction to every one's Conscience is sufficient. Ibid. Vol. 1. 676. But the same Evidence is requisite on an Impeachment in Parliament, as in private Courts. Ibid. Vol. 4. 311, 318. Members of either House of Parliament may be Witnesses on Impeachments. Ibid. Vol. 2. 632. Evidence cannot supply a Defect in the Charge against a Criminal. Ibid. Vol. 1. 720. No Evidence ought to be produced against a Man in a Trial for his Life, but what is given in his Presence. Ibid. Vol. 4. 277. And Evidence shall not be given against the Prisoner for any other Crime than that for what prosecuted. Ibid. Vol. 3. 947. A Prisoner may bring Evidence to prove that the Witnesses gave a different Testimony before a Justice of Peace, or at another Trial: But he may not call Witnesses to disprove what his own Evidences have sworn. Ibid. Vol. 2. 623, 792. And no Objection can be made to the Evidence after Verdict given. Vol. 4. 35. It is justifiable to maintain or subvert an Evidence; but not to give him any Reward. Ibid. Vol. 2. 470. A Witness shall not be examined to any Thing that does not relate to the Matter in Issue. Ibid. Vol. 2. 343. And where an Issue is not perfect, no Evidence can be applied, nor can the Justices proceed to Trial. Brownl. 2. 47, 435. If Evidence doth not warrant and maintain the same Thing that is in Issue, the Evidence is defective, and may be demurred upon; but proving the Substance is sufficient. Trials per pais, 425. Evidence may be given of Facts before and after the Time they are laid in the Indictment. And where a Place is laid only for a Venue in an Indictment or Appeal, (and not made Part of the Description of the Fact) Proof of the same Crime may be made at any other Place in the same County; and after a Crime hath been proved in the County where laid, Evidence may be given of other Instances of the same Crime in another County, to satisfy the Jury. 2 Hawk. P. C. 436. But where a certain Place is made Part of the Description of the Fact against the Defendant, the least Variation as to such Place between the Evidence and Indictment is fatal. Ibid. 435. It hath been also adjudged, that where an Indictment sets forth all the special Matter in Respect whereof the Law implies Malice, Variance between the Indictment and Evidence as to the Circumstances of the Fact doth not hurt; so that the Substance of the Matter be found by the Evidence. 2 Hawk. 438. An Evidence against the King in Treason, or Felony, for the Criminal, was not to be examined on Oath by the Common Law: But by Statute, Witnesses for a Prisoner are to be sworn, as in case for the King, and Process for their Appearance is to be taken out. 3 Inst. 79. Stat. 7 W. 3. 1 Ann. If a Witness serv'd with Process in a Civil Cause refuse to appear, being tendered reasonable Charges, and having no lawful Excuse, Action on the Case lies against him, whereon 10 l. Damages, and other Recompence to the Party shall be recovered; and a Feme Covert not appearing, Action may be brought against the Husband and her. Stat. 5 Eliz. cap. 9.

1 Leon. 112. In a criminal Cause, if a Witness refuse to appear and give Evidence, being served with Process, the Court will put off the Trial, and grant Attachment against him; and as refusing to give Evidence is a great Contempt, the Party may be committed and fined. 1 Salk. 278. Preventing Evidence to be given against a Criminal, is punishable by Fine and Imprisonment; and a Person was fined one Thousand Marks in such a Case. Hill. 1663. B. R. Persons dissuading a Witness from giving Evidence, &c. And Jurors or others disclosing Evidence given, are likewise Offences punished by Fine and Imprisonment. 1 Hawk. 59. The Defendant's Counsel is to conclude by Way of Answer to the Evidence given to the Jury by the Plaintiff's Counsel: But he who doth begin to maintain the Issue to be tried, ought to conclude and sum up the Evidence given, which is no more than to put the Jury in Mind how he hath proved his Cause. 1 Lill. 551.

Evidence by Records and Writings, Is where Acts of Parliament, Statutes, Judgments, Fines and Recoveries, Proceedings of Courts, and Deeds, &c. are admitted as Evidence. A General Act of Parliament may be given in Evidence, and need not be pleaded; and of these the printed Statute-Book is good Evidence: But in the Case of a private Act, a Copy of it is to be examined by the Records of Parliament, and it is to be pleaded. Trials per pais, 177, 232. The Statute of Limitations, &c. may be given in Evidence. 1 Salk. 278. On Non Assumpsit pleaded, the Defendant cannot give the Statute of Limitations in Evidence; but upon Nil Debet, the Statute may be given in Evidence. 3 Salk. 154. Journals and other Proceedings in the House of Commons have been held to be no Evidence. State Trials, Vol. 3. 470. But it is otherwise, Vol. 3. 800. A History of England, or printed Trial, may not be read as Evidence. 1 Lill. 557. An Exemplification of the Inrolment of Letters Patent under the Great Seal, may be pleaded in Evidence. 3 Inst. 173. Records and Inrolments prove themselves; and a Copy of a Record or Inrolment sworn to, may be given in Evidence. 1 Inst. 117, 262. A Transcript of a Record in another Court, may be given in Evidence to a Jury: But Part of it may not be given in Evidence, it must be the Copy of the Whole. 1 Lill. Abr. 551. A Fine or Recovery may be given in Evidence, without vouching the Roll of the Recovery; for the Part indented is the usual Evidence that there is such a Fine: But it is said the Fine ought to be shewed with the Proclamations under Seal. 10 Rep. 92. 2 Roll. Abr. 574. A Record of an inferior Court, hath been rejected in Evidence, and the Party put to prove what was done: And Proceedings of County-Courts, Courts-Barons, &c. may be tried by a Jury; for it hath been adjudged that they cannot be proved by the Rolls, but by Witnesses. Lit. 75. But Court-Rolls of a Court-Baron, when shewn are good Evidence; and in some Cases, Copies of the Court-Rolls have been allowed as Evidence; and in others not. Trials per pais, 178, 228. A Copy of Copyhold Lands may be given in Evidence, where the Rolls are lost. Mich. 15 Car. B. R. Inrolment of a Deed is proved on certifying it by an examined attested Copy; though Inrolment of a Deed which needs no Inrolment, or the Estate doth not pass by it, is only Evidence to some Purposes. 3 Lev. 387. An ancient Deed proves proves it self, where Possession has gone accordingly : But later Deeds must be proved by Witnesses. 1 Inst. 6. If all the Witnesses to a Deed are dead, continual and quiet Possession is presumptive Evidence of the Truth of it ; yet it may receive farther Credit by Comparison of Hands and Seals. Wood's Inst. 599. An old Deed proved to have been found among Deeds and Evidences of Land, may be given in Evidence to a Jury, though the Executing of it cannot be proved. Trin. 9 W. B. R. 3 Salk. 153. When Witnesses to a Deed are dead, their Hand-writing must be proved. 2 Inst. 118. And where there are several Witnesses to a Deed, and they are all dead but one, a Subpoena must be taken out against the living Man, and strict Enquiry made after him, and Affidavit is to be made that he cannot be found ; before the dead Men's Hands are to be proved. 1 Lill. 556. A Deed may be good Evidence, though the Seal is broken off : And where a Deed is burnt, &c. the Judges may allow it to be proved by Witnesses, that there was such a Deed, and this be given in Evidence. 1 Lev. 25. But the Court will not allow the Jury on a Trial at Bar, to carry Deeds, Writings or Books, with them out of Court, as Evidence to consider of, but such as are under Seal, and have been proved : Though by the Assent of Parties, or by the Assent of the Court without the Parties, they may be delivered to the Jurors. Cro. Eliz. 411. All Deeds or Writings under Seal, and given in Evidence, they may have ; and nothing which was not given in Evidence, for the Court gives their Direction to the Jury, upon the Evidence given in Court. 1 Lill. 313. A Deed though sealed and delivered, if not stamp'd according to Act of Parliament, cannot be pleaded or given in Evidence in any Court. Stat. 5 & 6 W. & M. cap. 21. A Deed cannot be proved by a Counterpart of it or Copy, if the Original is in Being, and may be had ; tho' it may when the Original cannot be procured. 1 Inst. 225. 10 Rep. 92. The Counterpart of an ancient Deed hath been allowed to be given in Evidence. Mod. Caf. 225. But it hath been held that the Counterpart of a Deed, without other Circumstances, is not sufficient Evidence ; unless in case of a Fine, when a Counterpart is good Evidence of it self. 1 Salk. 287. The Recital of a Deed is no Evidence without shewing the Deed ; or proving that there was such a Deed, and it is lost. 1 Inst. 352. Vaugh. 74. Recital of a Lease, in a Deed of Release, is good Evidence that there was such a Lease against the Relessor, and those claiming under him ; but not against others, except there be Proof that there was such a Lease. 1 Salk. 286. A Settlement set forth in a Bill in Chancery, and admitted in the Answer ; and where it was proved that the Deed was in the Possession of such a one, &c. hath been judged a good Evidence of the Deed of Settlement, where not to be found. 5 Mod. 384. The Probate of a Will, when it concerns personal Estate only, may be given in Evidence : But where Title of Lands is claimed under a Will, the Will must be shewn, not the Probate : Though if the Will be proved in the Chancery, Copies of the Proceedings there will be Evidence. 2 Roll. Abr. 678. Trials per pais, 234. A Bill in Chancery has been admitted as slight Evidence : An Answer in Chancery is Evidence against the Defendant himself, though not against others. 1 Ventr. 66. Trials per pais 167. But when a Party gives an Answer in Chancery in Evidence at a Trial, though he insist to read only such a Part of it ; yet the other Side may require to have the Whole read. 5 Mod. 10. As in case of a Writing permitted to be read to prove one Part of an Evidence, which may be read to prove any other Part of the Evidence given to the Jury. Depositions of Witnesses in Chancery between the same Parties, may be given in Evidence at Law, especially if the Witnesses are dead, and the Bill and Answer proved. Trials per pais 167, 207, 234. Regularly Depositions in Chancery of a Witness may not be given in Evidence, if he be alive ; unless he be in France, or in another Kingdom, not subject to the Dominion of our King. Ibid. 359. But Depositions in Chancery, after Answer, between the same Parties, may be read as Evidence, though the Witnesses are not dead, if they cannot be found on Search. Shower 3 3. 1 Salk. 278. Depositions in Chancery in perpetuum Rei memoriam, are not to be given in Evidence, so long as the Parties are living. 1 Salk. 286. And it hath been adjudged that these Depositions to perpetuate Testimony, on a Bill exhibited, are not to be admitted as Evidence at a Trial at Law, except an Answer be put in. Raym. 335. If Depositions are taken out of the Realm, he who makes them is supposed there still, and they shall be read as Evidence ; but if it appears he is in England, they cannot be read, but he must come in Person. 1 Lill. 555. Things done beyond Sea may be given in Evidence to a Jury ; and the Testimony of a publick Notary of Things done in a Foreign Country, may be good Evidence. 6 Rep. 47. Depositions in the Ecclesiastical Courts, may not be given in Evidence to a Jury at a Trial ; but a Sentence may in a Cause of Tithes, &c. And the Sentence of the Spiritual Court is conclusive Evidence in Causes within their Jurisdiction. 1 Salk. 290. 2 Nelf. 761. Depositions taken before Commissioners of Bankrupt, 'tis said shall not be used as Evidence at a Trial. Pasch. 18 Car. 2. B. R. Depositions before a Coroner, are admitted as Evidence, the Witnesses being dead. 1 Lev. 180. Likewise they have been admitted where a Witness hath gone beyond Sea. 2 Nelf. Abr. 760. The Confession of a Prisoner before a Magistrate, &c. may be given in Evidence against him : And the Examination of an Offender need not be on Oath, but must be subscribed by him, if he confesses the Fact ; and then be given in Evidence upon Oath by the Justices of the Peace who took the same. The Examination of Others must be on Oath, and proved by the Justice or his Clerk, &c. as to their Evidence, if they are dead, unable to travel, or kept away by the Prisoner. H. P. C. 19, 262. Kel. 18. 55. Wood's Inst. 647. The Examination of an Informer before a Justice, taken on Oath and subscribed, may be given in Evidence on a Trial, if he be dead, or not able to travel, &c. which is to be made out on Oath. 2 Hawk. P. C. 429. By Statute, Justices of Peace, Mayors, Constables, &c. may plead the general Issue, and give the special Matter in Evidence, for any Thing done in their Offices. 7 Jac. 1. cap. 5. A Verdict against one under whom either the Plaintiff or Defendant claims, may be given in Evidence against the Party to claiming ; but not if neither claim under it. Mich. 1656. B. R. In Ejectment where the Plaintiff hath Title to several Lands, and brings Action of Ejectment against several Defendants, if he

he recovers against one, he shall not give that Verdict in Evidence against the Rest. 3 Mod. 141. In a Court of Common Law, a Decree in Chancery is no Evidence. Affidavits are not Evidence. Letters may be produced as Evidence against a Man, in Treason, &c. Similitude of Hands sworn to, has been allowed as Evidence: But since the Attainder of Algernon Sidney, it hath not been admitted in any criminal Case. 2 Hawk. 451. Since no Witnesses are present when Goldsmith's Notes are given, such Notes are allowed as Evidence of the Receipt of Money, or other Thing. 1 Salk. 285. A Shop-Book is Evidence; but it may not be given in Evidence for Goods sold, &c. after one Year, before the Action brought; though this extends not to any Buying or Selling, or Trading between Tradesman and Tradesman. Stat. 7 Fac. 1. c. 2. To make these Books Evidence, there ought to be the Hand of the Person to the Books that delivered the Goods, which must be proved. 1 Salk. 285. A Church-Book some Writers say is not to be admitted as Evidence; though others say it may. 1 Cro. 411. 'Tis said Copies of Publick Books of Corporations, &c. shall be Evidence. 1 Lev. 25. 1 Lill. 551. But Books of Corporations not of Record, where Leases are entered, &c. the Originals are to be produced as Evidence. A Pedigree drawn by a Herald at Arms will not be admitted for Evidence, without shewing the Records or ancient Books from whence taken; for the Entries in the Herald's Office are no Records, but only circumstantial Evidence: But a Copy of an Inscription on a Gravestone, has been given in Evidence in such a Case. 2 Roll. Abr. 686, 687. An Almanack wherein the Father had writ the Day of the Nativity of his Son, was allowed as Evidence to prove the Nonage of the Son. Raym. 84. Matter in Law ought not to be given in Evidence at a Trial, but only Matters of Fact, unless it be in case of a special Verdict: Matter in Law is disputable, and reserved to be spoken to in Arrest of Judgment. Vaugh. 143, 147. In Debt the Defendant may give in Evidence that he paid Money on an Obligation before the Day, &c. 2 Nels. Abr. 755. And a Release may be given in Evidence, on Nil debet. 5 Mod. 18. But in Indebitatus Assumpsit the Plaintiff shall not give any Specialty in Evidence to prove his Debt, as a Bond, Indenture, &c. because he may bring Action of Debt upon that Specialty. Moor 340. Entry and Expulsion may be given in Evidence in Debt for Rent: Coverture may be given in Evidence to avoid a Deed, &c. Mod. Caf. 230. Usurious Contracts, &c. may be given in Evidence. 2 Nels. 756. Fraud may be given in Evidence, on the general Issue: And Tampering with Witnesses may be given in Evidence against a Party, &c. 5 Rep. 60. But many Things are to be pleaded; as Justifications without Title, in Trespasses, &c. and cannot be given in Evidence upon Not guilty. Trials per pais 404. See Copy, Depositions, &c.

Ewhize, (Sax. Ew, i. e. Conjugium, and Bryce, fractio) Adultery or Marriage-breaking: From this Saxon Word Ew, Marriage, we derive our present English Woo, to woo a Dame.

Ewe, (Ewva) A German Word signifying Law; it is mentioned in Leg. W. 1.

Exaction, Is defined to be a Wrong done by an Officer, or one in pretended Authority, by taking a Reward or Fee for that which the Law allows not. And the Difference between Exaction and Extortion, is this: Extortion is where an Officer extorts more than his Due, when something is due to him; and Exaction is when he wrests a Fee or Reward where none is due. Cowel.

Exactor Regis, The King's Exactor or Collector; sometimes taken for the Sheriff: But generally, Quicumque Publicas Pecunias, tributa, vestigia & res fisco debitas exigit, proprie nominatur Exactor Regis. Niger liber Scacc. par. 1. cap. ult.

Examination, (Examinatio) A Searching after, or Cognizance of a Magistrate. By Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. Justices of Peace are to examine Felons apprehended, and Witnesses, before the Felon is committed; and the Accusers must be bound over to appear and give Evidence at the next Assizes, &c. to which the Examinations are to be certified. Mod. Justice, 176, 177. See Evidence.

Examiners in the Chancery. (Examinatores) Are two Officers of that Court, that examine upon Oath, Witnesses produced by either Side, in London, or near it, on such Interrogatories as the Parties to any Suit exhibit for that Purpose: And sometimes the Parties themselves are, by particular Order, likewise examined by them: In the Country, Witnesses are examined by Commissioners, (usually Attornies not concerned in the Cause) on the Parties joining in Commission, &c.

Exannual Roll. In the old Way of exhibiting Sheriffs Accounts, the illeivable Fines and desperate Debts, were transcribed into a Roll under his Name; which was yearly read, to see what might be gotten. Hale's Sher. Acco. 67.

Exambiatores, A Word used anciently for Exchangers of Land: But Cowel supposes them to be such as we now call Brokers, that deal upon the Exchange between Merchants.

Exception, (Exceptio) In common Acceptation is a Stop or Stay to an Action; and is divided into Dilatory and Peremptory. Bract. lib. 5. tract. 5. It is of divers Kinds; in Law Proceedings, it is a Denial of a Matter alledged in Bar to the Action: And in Chancery it is what is alledged against the Sufficiency of an Answer, &c. The Counsel in a Cause are to take all their Exceptions to the Record at one Time; and before the Court hath delivered any Opinion therein. 1 Lill. Abr. 559. And on an Indictment for Treason, &c. Exception is to be taken for Misnaming, false Latin, &c. before any Evidence is given in Court; or the Indictment shall be good. Stat. 7 W. 3. cap. 3. Where by a general Pardon, any particular Crime is excepted; if a Person be attainted, &c. of that Offence, he shall have no Benefit of the Pardon. 6 Rep. 13. 2 Nels. Abr. 765. And when a Pardon is with an Exception as to Persons, the Party who pleads it ought to shew, that he is not any of the Parties excepted. 1 Lev. 26. A negative Expression may be taken to enure to the same Intent as an Exception; for an Exception in its Nature is but a Denial of what is taken to be good by the other Party, either in Point of Law or Pleading: And Exceptio in non Exceptis firmat regulam. 1 Lill. 559.

Excep-

Exception to Evidence, &c. If one of the Parties in a Suit, for the Insufficiency of the Evidence on the other Side, doth offer to demur upon the same, and the Court will not agree to it; then the Court ought upon Request to seal a Bill of Exceptions tendered to them in Writing, which upon a Writ of Error may be heard. 2 Inst. 246. And where a Suit is in any Court, if the Plaintiff or Defendant alledge any Exception to the Judge's Opinion, praying that the same be allowed; if the Judge refuseth it, then the Party making the Exception is to write it, and require the Judge to seal the same; which being done, and the Bill produced sealed in Court, the Judge that sealed it shall appear at a certain Day to confess or deny his Seal; and if the Seal be not denied, Proceedings are had to Judgment according to the Exception. Stat. 13 Ed. 1. cap. 31. 2 Inst. 1 Lill. Abr. 232. The Exceptions ought to be put in Writing sedente Curia, in the Presence of the Judge who tried the Cause, and signed by the Counsel on each Side; and then the Bill must be drawn up and tendered to the Judge that tried the Cause, to be sealed by him; and when signed, there goes out a Scire facias to the same Judge ad cognoscendum scriptum, and that is made Part of the Record, and the Return of the Judge with the Bill it self, must be entered on the Issue Roll; and if a Writ of Error be brought, it is to be returned as Part of the Record. 1 Nelf. Abr. 373. If a Bill of Exceptions is drawn up and tendered to the Judge for Sealing, and he refuses to do it, on Petition to the Lord Chancellor, he will grant a Writ for that Purpose. These Bills of Exception are to be brought before a Verdict given, and extend only to Civil Actions, not to Criminal. Sid. 85. 1 Salk. 288.

Exception in Deeds and Writings, Keeps the Thing from passing thereby, being a Saving out of the Deed, as if the same had not been granted: But it is to be a particular Thing out of a general One; as a Room out of an House, a Ground out of a Manor, Timber out of Land, &c. And it must not be of a Thing expressly granted in the Deed: Also it must be of what is severable from, and not inseparably incident to the Grant. 1 Inst. 47 1 Lev. 287. Cro. El. 244. Where an Exception goeth to the whole Thing granted or demised, the Exception is void. Cro. El. 6. A Man made a Lease of a Manor, excepting all Courts, &c. the Exception is void as to the Courts; for having leased the Manor, it cannot be such without Courts. Hob. 108. Moor 87c. A Lease was made of all a Man's Lands in L. excepting his Manor of H. and he had no Lands in L. but the said Manor; it was adjudged that the Manor passed, and that the Exception was void. Hob. 170. 2 Nelf. Abr. 764. A Lease of an House and Shops, except the Shops; tho' this may extend to other Shops, 'tis void as to the Shops belonging to the House demised, because 'tis repugnant to the Lease. Dyer 265. If an Exception crosses the Grant, or is repugnant to it, the same is void: And if there be a Saving or Exception out of an Exception, it may make a particular Thing as if never excepted; as if a Lease be made of a Rectory, excepting the Parsonage House, saving to the Lessee a Chamber; this Chamber not being excepted out of the Lease, shall pass by the Lease of the Rectory. Hob. 72, 170. Cro. Eliz. 372. Owen 20. An Exception must be always of a Thing in esse. Co. Lit. 47. Dyer 59. By Exception of Trees, the Soil is not excepted, but only sufficient Nutriment for the Trees: For the Lessee shall have the Pasture growing under them; though the Lessor shall have all the Benefit of the Trees, Malt, Fruit, &c. and the Trees are Parcel of the Inheritance. 11 Rep. 48, 50. 5 Rep. 11. But it has been adjudged, that by an Exception of Woods, Underwood and Coppices, that the Soil of the Coppices is excepted. Poph. 146. 2 Cro. 487. If a Lessee for Years, assigns over his Term, excepting the Trees, &c. the Exception is not good; because no one can have such a special Property in the Trees, but the Owner of the Land. 2 Nelf. 764. But where Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, excepting the Wood, &c. this may be a good Exception, although he hath not any Interest in it but as Lessee, in Regard he is chargeable in Waste, &c. and hath not granted his whole Term. Cro. Jac. 296. 1 Lill. Abr. 560. These Exceptions are commonly in Leases for Life and Years.

Exchange, (Excambium or Cambium) Signifies generally as much as Permutatio with the Civilians; as the King's Exchange, which is the Place appointed by the King for Exchange of Plate or Bullion for the King's Coin. These Places have been divers heretofore; but now there is only one, viz. the Mint in the Tower. Stat. 1 Hen. 6. cap. 4. By 9 Ed. 3. cap. 7. Exchanges are to be kept where the King pleases: And every Man may exchange Gold for Silver, or Silver for Gold, &c. but none shall take Profit of Money exchanged, but the King's Exchangers, on Pain of Forfeiture. 25 Ed. 3. cap. 12. Also none shall give or take any more for Exchange of Coin than the true Value, under the Penalty of Forfeiting the Money exchanged, or to be fined and imprisoned, &c. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 19. There is a Royal Exchange of Merchants in London: And Exchange among Merchants, is a Commerce of Money, or a Bartering or Exchanging of the Money of one City or Country for that of another: Money in this Sense, is either real or imaginary; Real, any real Species current in any Country at a certain Price, at which it passes by the Authority of the State, and of its own intrinsic Value: And, by imaginary Money, is understood all the Denominations made Use of to express any Sum of Money, which is not the just Value of any real Species. Lex Mercatoria, or Merch. Comp. 98. The Methods of Exchange for Money used in England ought to be par pro pari, according to Value for Value: And our Exchange is grounded on the Weight and Fineness of our own Money, and the Weight and Fineness of that of other Countries, according to their several Standards, proportionable in their Valuation; which being truly and justly made, reduces the Price of the Exchange of Money of any Nation or Country to a Certainty. But this Course of Exchange is of late abused; and Money is become a Merchandize, that rises and falls in its Price in Regard to the Plenty and Scarcity of it. Ibid. At London, all Exchanges are made upon the Pound Sterling of 20 s. In the Low Countries, France and Germany, upon the French Crown; Spain and Italy, &c. upon the Ducat; and at Florence, Venice, and other Places in the Streights, by the Dollar and Florin. See Bill of Exchange.

Exchanges were the Original and natural Way of Commerce, precedent to Buying; for there was no Buying till Money was invented; though in Exchanging, both Parties are as Buyers and Sellers, and both equally warrant. 3 Salk. 157.

Exchange of Lands, Is a mutual Grant of equal Interest in Lands or Tenements, the one in Exchange for the other: And is used peculiarly for that Compensation which the Warrantor must make to the Warrantee, Value for Value, if the Land warranted be recovered from the Warrantee. Bract. lib. 2. cap. 16. Accomp. Convo. 1 Vol. 170. Also there is a tacit Condition of Re-entry in this Deed, on the Lands given in Exchange, in Case of Evidition; and on the Warranty to vouch and recover over in Value, &c. For if either of the Parties is evicted, the Exchange is defeated. 4 Rep. 121. If A. B. give 5 Acres of Land in Exchange to C. D. for five other Acres, and afterwards C. D. is evicted of one Acre, in this Case all the Exchange is defeated; and C. D. may enter on his own again. 4 Rep. 121. Cro. El. 903. An Exchange may be made of Lands in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, &c. The Estates granted are to be equal, as Fee-simple for Fee-simple, &c. tho' the Lands need not be of equal Value, or of the like Nature: For a Rent in Fee issuing out of Land, may be exchanged for Land in Fee; but Annuities which charge the Person only, are not to be exchanged for Lands. Litt. 63, 64. 1 Inst. 50, 51. If an Exchange be made between Tenant for Life, and Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, the Exchange is good; because their Estates are equal. 11 Rep. 80. Moor 665. An Exchange made between Tenant in Tail, and another, of unequal Interest, may be good during his Life; but his Issue, when of full Age, shall avoid it. And Exchanges made by Infants; by Persons non sana Memoria; a Husband of the Wife's Land, &c. are not void, but voidable only, by the Infant at his full Age, the Heir of the Person non sana, and the Feme after the Death of the Husband. Perk. Sect. 277, 281. Jointenants and Tenants in Common, after they have made Partition, may exchange their Lands: And by this Deed, Freeholds pass without Livery and Seisin; but the Word Exchange is to be used, and it ought to be by Deed indented; and there must be Execution of the Exchange, by Entry on the Lands in the Life of the Parties, or the Exchange will be void. 1 Inst. 50. 1 Mod. 91. It is made by these Words, A. B. hath given, granted and confirmed to C. D. and his Heirs and Assigns for ever, all that Messuage, &c. In Exchange for, &c. And the said C. D. hath given and granted to the said A. B. and his Heirs and Assigns for ever, all that, &c. In Exchange for the said Messuage, &c. Accomp. Conveyanc. Vol. 1. pag. 358.

Exchange of Church Livings. Exchanges are now seldom used, except that Parsons sometimes Exchange their Churches, and resign them into the Bishop's Hands. And this is not a perfect Exchange till the Parties are inducted; for if either dies before they both are inducted, the Exchange is void. Wood's Inst. 284. If two Persons by one Instrument agree to exchange their Benefices, and in order thereto resign them into the Hands of the Ordinary, such Exchange being executed on both Parts, is good; and each may enjoy the other's Living: But the Patrons must present them again to each Living; and if they refuse to do it, or the Ordinary will not admit them respectively, then the Exchange is not executed; and in such Case either Clerk may return to his former Living, even tho' one of them should be admitted, instituted and inducted to the Benefice of the other; which is express'd in the Exchange

Exchequer, (Scaccarium, from the Fr. Eschequier, i. e. Abacus, tabula lusoria, or from the Germ. Schatz, viz. Tesaurus) Is an ancient Court of Record, wherein all Causes touching the Revenue and Rights of the Crown are heard and determined; and here the Revenues of the Crown are received. Camden in his Britan. p. 113. saith, This Court took its Name à Tabula ad quam affidebant, the Cloth which covered it being Party-coloured, or chequered: We had it from the Normans, as appears by the Grand Customary, cap. 56. where it is described to be an Assembly of High Justiciers, to whom it appertained to amend that which the inferior Justiciers had misdone, and unadvisedly judged, and to do right to all as from the Prince's Mouth. Some Persons think there was an Exchequer under the Anglo-Saxon Kings; but our best Historians are of Opinion, that it was erected by K. William the First, called The Conqueror, its Model being taken from the transmarine Exchequer, establish'd in Normandy long before that Time. Madox's Hist. Excheq. In the Reign of Henry the First, Son of William the First, there was an Exchequer, which has continued ever since: And the Judges of the Court were at that Time stiled Barones Scaccarii, and administered Justice to the Subjects. In ancient Times the Barons of the Exchequer dealt in Affairs relating to the State, or publick Service of Crown and Realm: And were greatly concern'd in the Preservation of the Prerogative, as well as the Revenue of the Crown; for at the Exchequer it was the Care of the Treasurer and Barons to see that the Rights of the Crown were no Way invaded. Lex Constitutionis 198. For the Authority and Dignity of the Court of Exchequer, antiently tiently it was held in the King's Palace; and the Acts thereof were not to be examined or controlled in any other of the King's Ordinary Courts of Justice: The Exchequer was the great Repository of Records, wherein the Records of the other Courts at Westminster, &c. were brought to be laid up in the Treasury there. And Writs of the Chancery were sometimes made forth at the Exchequer; Writs of Summons to assemble Parliaments, &c. Ibid. The Exchequer has been commonly held at Westminster, the usual Place of the King's Residence; but it hath been sometimes holden at other Places, as the King pleased; as at Winchester, &c. And in the Exchequer there are reckon'd seven Courts, viz. The Court of Pleas; the Court of Accounts; the Court of Receipts; the Court of the Exchequer-Chamber, (being the Assembly of all the Judges of England for difficult Matters in Law) the Court of Exchequer-Chamber for Errors in the Court of Exchequer; for Errors in the King's Bench; and the Court of Equity in the Exchequer-Chamber. 4 Inft. 119. But according to the usual Division for the Dispatch of all common Business, the Exchequer is divided into two Parts; one whereof is conversant especially in the judicial Hearing and Deciding all Causes pertaining to the Prince's Coffers, antiently called Scaccarium Computorum; the other is, the Receipt of the Exchequer, which is properly employ'd in the Receiving and Payment of Money. And it has been observ'd, that about the Time of the Conquest there was very little Money in Specie in the Realm; for then the Tenants or Knights Fees answered their Lords by military Services: And 'till the Reign of K. Hen. 1. the Rents or Farms due to the King were generally rendered in Provisions and Necessaries for his Household; but in this Reign the same were changed into Money, and afterwards in succeeding Times the Crown-Revenue was answered or paid into the Exchequer chiefly in Gold and Silver. Lex Constitutionis, p. 208. By Statute, all Sheriffs, Bailiffs, &c. are to account in the Exchequer before the Treasurer and Barons: And annual Rolls are to be made of the Profits of Counties, &c. Also Inquisitors shall be appointed in every County, of Debts due to the King. 51 H. 3. 10 E. 1. And all Fines of Counties for the whole Year are to be sent into the Exchequer. 15 Ed. 2. Officers of the Exchequer are without Delay to receive Money brought thither: And the Money in the Receipt is to be kept in Chests under three different Locks and Keys, kept by Three several Officers, &c. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 28. In the lower Part of the Exchequer, called the Receipt, the Debtors of the King, and their Debtors, the King's Tenants, and the Officers and Ministers of the Court, &c. are privileged to sue and implead one another, or any Stranger, and to be sued in the like Actions as are prosecuted in the King's Bench and Common Pleas. The judicial Part of the Exchequer is a Court both of Law and Equity; the Court of Common Law is held in the Office of Pleas, after the Course of the Common Law, coram Baronibus; and here the Plaintiff ought to be a Tenant or Debtor to the King, or some Way Accountant to him; and the leading Process is either a Writ of Subpoena, or Quo Minus, which goes into Wales, where no Process of the King's Bench or Common Pleas ought to run, except the Capias Utlagatum. The Court of Equity is holden in the Exchequer-

Chamber coram Thesaurario Cancellario & Baronibus, but usually before the Barons only, the Lord Chief Baron being the Chief Judge to hear and determine all Causes in Law or Equity; the Proceedings here are by English Bill and Answer agreeable to the Practice of the High Court of Chancery, but the Plaintiff must likewise set forth that he is Debtor to the King, tho' it is not material whether he be so, or not, it being only Matter of Form. In this Court the Clergy usually exhibit Bills, for Recovery of their Tithes, &c. And here the Attorney General brings Bills for any Matters concerning the King; and any Person grieved in any Cause prosecuted against him on Behalf of the King, may bring his Bill against the Attorney General to be relieved in Equity; in which Case the Plaintiff must attend the King's Attorney with a Copy of the Bill, and procure him to answer the same, and Mr. Attorney may call any that are interested in the Cause, or any Officer, or others, to instruct him in the Making of his Answer, so as the King be not prejudiced thereby, and his Answer is to be put in without Oath. 4 Inft. 109, 112, 118. The Practice and Proceedings generally in Use at the Exchequer Bar, relate for the most Part to the Two Remembrancers of the Court; and antiently there was very much Business, and very various in the King's Remembrancer's Office relating to Debtors, Farmers, Receivers, Accountants, &c. for Debts and Duties due to the Crown: And all penal Punishments, Intrusions, Forfeitures upon popular Actions, &c. are Matters cognizable by this Court. Practif. Attorn. Edit. 1. p. 292, 293. The Exchequer is said to be the last of the four Courts at Westminster; govern'd by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, the Lord Chief Baron, and Three other Barons, who are the Sovereign Auditors of England, and the Judges of the Court, and ever give Judgment in the Term-time only: There also sits in this Court a Puisne Baron, who administers the Oath of all High Sheriffs, Under-Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Auditors, Receivers, Collectors, Controllers, Surveyors, and Searchers of all the Customs in England. The Chancellor or Under-Treasurer hath the Custody of the Seal of this Court. The King's Attorney General is made privy to all Manner of Pleas that are not Ordinary and of Course, which rise upon the Process of the Court; and he puts into Court in his own Name, Informations of Concealments of Customs, Seizures, &c. And also for Intrusions, Wastes, Incroachments, &c. upon any of the King's Lands; or upon Penal Statutes, Forfeitures, &c. The Remembrancers keep the Records of the Court betwixt the King and his Subjects, and enter the Rules and Orders there made: One is called the King's Remembrancer, and the other the Lord Treasurer's Remembrancer; the Remembrancer for the King hath all Manner of Informations upon Penal Statutes sued in his Office only; and he calls to Account, in open Court, all the great Accountants of the Crown, Collectors of Customs, &c. he makes out Writs of Privilege, enters Judgments of Pleas; and all Matters upon English Bill are remaining in his Office. The Remembrancer for the Lord Treasurer makes out all Estreats; he sets down in his Book the Debts of all Sheriffs, and takes their foreign Accounts; and issues out Writs and Processes in many Cases, &c. And these Remembrancers have several Attornies in their Offices to do Business under them:

them: Who by Statute are not to issue out of the Remembrancer's Office, any Writs upon Supposition, but on just Grounds, &c. 7 Fac. 1. There are two Chamberlains that keep the Keys of the Treasury, where the Records do lie, with the Book of Domesday, &c. They may sit in Court if they please, but not intermeddle with any Thing; unless it be relating to Sheriffs, in the Pricking whereof they have a Vote. And besides the Chamberlains, there is a Clerk of the Pipe, in whose Custody are conveyed out of the King's and Treasurer's Remembrancers, &c. as Water through a Pipe, all Accounts and Debts due to the King. The Controller of the Pipe; which is said to be the Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Clerk of the Estreats, who receives the Estreats from the Remembrancer's Office, and writeth them out to be served for the King, &c. The Foreign Opposer, who opposeth all Sheriffs, &c. of their Green Wax, i. e. Fines, Issues, Amerciaments, Recognizances, &c. certified in Estreats annexed to the Writ under the Seal in Green Wax; and delivereth the same to the Clerk of the Estreats to be put in Process. The Auditors that take the Accounts of the King's Receivers, Collectors, &c. and perfect them. The four Tellers, whose Business is well known. The Clerk of the Pells, from his Parchment-Rolls, called Pellis Receptorum. The Clerk of the Nibils, who makes a Roll of such Sums as the Sheriff upon Process returns Nihil, &c. The Clerk of the Pleas, in whose Office all Officers and privileged Persons are to sue and be sued; and here are divers Under Clerks employed in Suits commenced or depending in this Court. Then there is a Clerk of the Summons; Under Chamberlains of the Exchequer; Secondaries in the Offices of the Remembrancers; Secondaries of the Pipe; the Usher of the Exchequer, Marshal, &c.

Exchequer Bills. By Statute 5 Ann. c. 13. The Lord Treasurer may cause Exchequer Bills to be made of any Sum not exceeding 1,500,000 l. for the Use of the War: And the Duties upon Houses were made chargeable with 4 l. 10 s. per Cent. per Annum to the Bank for circulating them. The Bank not paying the Bills, Actions to be brought against the Company, and the Money and Damages recovered: And if any Exchequer Bills be lost, upon Affidavit of it before a Baron of the Exchequer, and Certificate from such Baron, and Security given to pay the same if found, Duplicates are to be made out: Also when Bills are defac'd, new ones shall be delivered. Ibid. The King, or his Officers in the Exchequer, by former Statutes, might borrow Money upon the Credit of Bills, payable on Demand, with Interest after the Rate of 3 d. per Diem for every 100 l. Bill. 7 & 8 W. 3. c. 31. And by 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 20. an Interest of 5 d. a Day was allowed for every 100 l. But 12 W. 3. c. 1. lowered the Interest on these Bills to 4 d. a Day per Cent. And by 12 Ann. c. 11. it is sunk to 2 d. a Day. Forging Exchequer Bills, or the Indorsements thereon, is Felony. See Felony.

Excise, (From the Belg. Accüsse, Tributum) Is a Duty or Imposition laid upon Beer, Ale, and other Liquors, which had its Beginning in the Reign of King Charles the Second. The 12 Car. 2. c. 23. granted to the King an Excise on Beer, Ale, Cyder, Strong-waters, &c. And by subsequent Statutes, additional Duties have been granted on Low-Wines, Spirits, or Brandy drawn from Corn, &c. Also a Duty of Excise is laid upon Malt, and on Sweets, &c. which are annually continued. Brewers erecting any Back, Cooler, Copper, &c. without giving Notice, or keeping any private Store-houses: And Maltsters keeping any private Vessels for Steeping of Barley, or altering their Vessels, without giving Notice to the Officers of the Excise; in either Case, forfeit 50 l. and bribing a Gauger incurs the Penalty of 10 l. 15 Car. 2. c. 11. 2 W. & M. 4 W. & M. 7 & 8 W. 3. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 19. By 12 Car. 2. The Excise on Beer and Ale is granted for the Life of K. Charles the Second. By the 1 Fac. 2. c. 11. it is granted to King James for Life. By 2 W. & M. c. 3. it is granted to King William and Queen Mary during their Lives. By 1 Ann. c. 7. it is granted to Qu. Anne for her Life; and together with the Revenue of the Post Office, &c. made chargeable with 700,000 l. per Annum for the Support of the Household; and by 1 Geo. c. . it is granted to King George during his Life. Vide the Statutes.

Exclusa, Exclusagium, A Sluice for the Carrying off Water; and a Payment to the Lord for the Benefit of such a Sluice. Et de molendina in eodem Manerio cum Aquis Exclusagiis, &c. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 398, 587.

Excommungement, Is in Law French the same with Excommunication in English. Stat. 23 Hen. 8. c. 3.

Excommunication, (Excommunicatio) An Ecclesiastical Censure, by which a Person is excluded from the Communion of the Church, and from the Company of the Faithful. It hath been thus defined: Excommunicatio est nihil aliud quam Censura a Canone vel Judice Ecclesiastico prolata & inflicta privans legitima communione Sacramentorum & quandoq; hominum. And it is divided into Major and Minorem; Minor est, per quam quis à Sacramentorum participatione conscientia vel sententia arcetur: Major est, qua non solum à Sacramentorum, verum etiam Fidelium communione excludit, & ab omni actu Legitimo separat & dividit. Venatorius de sent. Excom'. The Form of an Excommunication was of old: Auctoritate Dei Patris omnipotentis & Filii & Spiritus Sancti, & Beate Dei Genetricis Marie, omniumque Sanctorum, Excommunicamus, Anathematizamus, & à limitibus Sanctæ Matris Ecclesiæ Sequestramus, &c. Leg. Will. 1. Anno 38 H. 3. Boniface Archbishop of Canterbury, and the other Bishops, with burning Tapers in their Hands in Westminster Hall before the King, and the other Estates of the Realm, denounced a Curse and Excommunication against the Breakers of the Liberty of the Church: And by Stat. 9 E. 3. Bishops may excommunicate not only all Perturbers of the Peace of the Church, but also Felons, and other Offenders, &c. And by the Ecclesiastical Laws, an excommunicated Person is not permitted to have Christian Burial. This Excommunication is generally for Contempt in not appearing, or not obeying a Decree, &c. and the Causes of it are many; as for Matters of Heresy, Refusing to receive the Sacrament, or to come to Church; Incontinency, Adultery, Simony, &c. It is published in the Church, and if the Offender do not submit in forty Days, then the Bishop is to certify the Excommunication into the Temporal Courts, setting forth specially the Cause of Excommunication, that the Judges may see whether the Ecclesiastical Court hath Cognizance of the Matter; and thereupon the Party may be taken and imprisoned by Virtue of the Writ Significavit or Capias Excommunicatum, and is to remain in Prison till he submits and is absolved; when the Bishop likewise likewise certifying the same, another Writ issues to the Sheriff to discharge him. 2 Inst. 189. 8 Rep. 68. 2 Nelf. Abr. 768. None but the Bishop is to certify Excommunication, unless the Bishop be beyond Sea, or in Remotis; or except the Certificate is by one that hath ordinary Jurisdiction, &c. And if the Ordinary excommunicates a Person for any Thing where he hath not Cognizance of the Cause, the Party may bring an Action against him, or the Ordinary 'tis said may be indicted. 1 Inst. 134. 2 Inst. 527. Wood's Inst. 508. In some Cases Persons incur Excommunication ipso facto by Act of Parliament; but they are to be first convicted of the Offence by Law, and the Conviction is transmitted to the Ordinary. Dyer 275. 1 Ventr. 146. It hath been adjudged that the Spiritual Court hath not Power to meddle with the Body of any Persons whatsoever, or to send Process to take them; for if a Person is excommunicate for Contempt, &c. they ought to certify it into the Chancery, whence 'tis sent into B. R. and thence issues Process. Cro. El. 741. An Offender excommunicated is disabled to do any judicial Act, as to sue any Action at Law, be a Witness, &c. tho' he may be sued: But every Excommunication doth not disable one; for if a Mayor and Commonalty bring an Action, an Excommunication of the Mayor shall not disable them, because they sue and answer by Attorney: And if a Bishop is Defendant, an Excommunication by that Bishop shall not disable the Plaintiff; and an Excommunication against an Appellant, while the Appeal is depending, is void. 1 Inst. 134. 4 Inst. 340. Wood 508. Popish Recusants convicted are disabled as Persons excommunicate, &c. Stat. 3 Jac. 1.

Excommunicato Capiendo; Is a Writ directed to the Sheriff for Apprehending him who stands obstinately excommunicated forty Days; for the Contempt of such a Person, not seeking Absolution, being certified or signified into the Chancery; this Writ issues for the Imprisoning him without Bail or Mainprize until he conforms. F. N. B. 62. By the Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 23. Writs de excommunicato Capiendo shall issue out of the Court of Chancery in Term-time, and be returnable in B. R. &c. And if the Sheriff return a Non est Inventus on the Writ, a Capias with Proclamations is to be granted for the Party to yield his Body to Gaol under the Penalty of 10*l.* And if he do not appear on the first Capias and Proclamation, a Second is to go forth, and he shall forfeit 20*l.* &c. But by this Statute, if in the Excommunicato Capiendo, the Party excommunicated hath not a sufficient Addition, as to his Place of Dwelling, &c. according to 1 H. 5. c. 6. Or if in the Significavit it is not contained, that the Excommunication proceeds upon a Cause or Contempt of some original Matter of Heresy, for refusing to have a Child baptized, to receive the Sacrament, to come to Divine Service, or for Error in Matters of Religion and Doctrine, for Incontinence, Usury, Simony, Perjury in the Ecclesiastical Courts, or Idolatry; he shall not incur the Penalties in this Act, for his Contempt in not rendring himself Prisoner upon the Capias, &c. So that the Statute doth not require the Capias with Proclamations, and the Penalties in other Cases, besides the ten Cases mentioned. 2 Inst. 661. And it has been adjudged where a Person has been excommunicated, and none of those Causes were contained in the Significavit, that the Person excommunicate should be discharged of the Penalties, but not of the Excommunication. 3 Mod. 89. It has also been held, that for any of the Causes expressed in the Statute, there ought to go a Capias with a Penalty, and be an Addition to the Writ; but in other Cases it was not necessary; and if the Capias was with a Penalty, the Court would not discharge the Party, but the Penalty only: But for Want of Addition, in Cases where that was required, the Party should be discharged upon Motion. 1 Salk. 294, 295.

Excommunicato deliberando, Is a Writ to the Sheriff for Delivery of an excommunicate Person out of Prison, upon Certificate from the Ordinary of his Conformity to the Jurisdiction Ecclesiastical. F. N. B. 63. Reg. Orig. 67. This Writ runs thus: Rex Vic. S. Salut. Cum A. B. & C. D. quos ad Denunciationem vener. Patris J. Winton Episcopi, tanquam Excommunicatos, & claves Contemneres per Corpora sua secundum Consuetud. &c. per te Justiciari praeceperimus, donec Sanctae Ecclesiae tam de Contemptu quam de Injur. ei illata ab eis fuerit forisfacti; jamque ab ipso Episcopo Absolution. beneficium in form. meruerunt obtiner. sicut idem Episc. per Literas suas Patentes nobis significavit: Tibi Praecipimus quod ipsos A. B. & C. D. a Prisona qua detinent. si ea occasione, & non alia, detinent. in eadem, sine dilatione deliberari facias, &c.

Excommunicato Recipiendo. Is a Writ whereby Persons excommunicated being for their Obstinacy committed to Prison, are unlawfully delivered, before they have given Caution to obey the Authority of the Church; by which it is commanded that they be sought after and imprisoned again. Reg. Orig. 67.

Execution, (Executio) Signifies the last Performance of an Act, as of a Judgment, &c. And is the Obtaining of Possession of any Thing recovered by Judgment of Law. Sir Edw. Coke, in his Reports, makes two Sorts of Executions; one final, another with a Quousque, tending to an End: An Execution final is that which makes Money of the Defendant's Goods, or extends his Lands, and delivers them to the Plaintiff, which he accepts in Satisfaction, and is the End of the Suit, and all that the King's Writ requires to be done: The other Writ with a Quousque, tho' it tendeth to an End, is not final; as in Case of a Capias ad Satisfaciendum, &c. which is not final; but the Body of the Party is to be taken, to the Intent to satisfy the Plaintiff, and his Imprisonment not being absolute, but until the Defendant do satisfy. 6 Rep. 87. A Man can have but one Execution; but it must be intended an Execution with Satisfaction, and the Body of the Defendant is no Satisfaction, only a Pledge for the Debt. 5 Rep. 86. When a Person dies in Execution, it is without Satisfaction; so that the Plaintiff may have a Fieri facias against the Goods, or Elegit against the Lands. Ibid. But where a Person was taken on a Capias Utlagatum, and died in Prison, the Plaintiff having chosen this Execution, which is the highest in Law; it has been held, that the Defendant dying, the Law will adjudge it a Satisfaction. Cro. El. 850. Though by Statute, if a Person in Execution dies, a new Execution shall issue against the Lands, &c. as if he had never been taken in Execution. 21 Jac. 1. c. 13. If an Execution be executed and filed, the Party can have no other Execution upon that Judgment; because there can be but one Execution with Satisfaction upon one Judgment. 1 Lill. Abr. 565. If the Execution be not return'd and filed, another Execution may be had: And if only Part of the Debt be levied on a Fieri facias, another Writ of Execution may be sued out for the Residue thereof. Ibid. But if you once charge the Body of the Defendant in Execution on a Capias satisfaciend. You may not have any other Execution against his Goods, &c. except the Defendant make an Escape, or is privileged, or die in Execution. Practif. Solic. 248. Though if one take out any Writs of Execution, and they take no Effect, he may have other Writs on their Failure. Hob. 57. If a Person taken by Ca. sa. escapes, the Plaintiff may have a new Execution. Cro. Car. 174. In Case any Prisoner committed in Execution shall escape, any Creditor, at whose Suit he stands charged, may retake him by a new Capias ad satisfaciend. or sue forth any other Kind of Execution, as if the Body of such Prisoner had never been taken in Execution. Stat. 8 & 9 W. 3. c. 27. Where two are bound jointly and severally, and Judgment is had against both of them, if one in Execution escape, the Creditor may take out Execution against the other: But if he go by License of the Creditor, then the other will be discharged. Cro. Car. 53. If one in Execution be delivered by Privilege of Parliament, when the Privilege ceases, the Plaintiff may sue out a new Execution against him. 1 Jac. 1. c. 13. If where two are bound jointly, they are sued severally, and several Judgments are had against them, as an Elegit is sued against one, and executed and return'd, and a Capias satisfaciend. against the other, he may bring Audita Querela: For there must be the same Kind of Process against both. Cro. Jac. 338. 2 Nelf. Abr. 772. A Defendant cannot plead to any Writ of Execution, (tho' he may in Bar of Execution to a Scire facias brought); but if he hath any Matter after Judgment to discharge him of the Execution, he is to have Audita Querela. 1 Inst. 290. If Husband and Wife are taken in Execution for the Debt of the Wife, the Wife shall be discharged; for the Husband being in Execution, the Wife shall not be so also, and because the Wife hath nothing liable to the Execution. 1 Lev. 51. The Execution of a Libervate is good without being return'd; and where a Man is taken upon a Ca. sa. the Execution is good, tho' the Writ is not return'd: And so in all Cases where no Inquest is to be taken, but only Lands deliver'd, or Seisin had, &c. which are only Matters of Fact. 4 Rep. 67. 5 Rep. 89. The Writs of Execution at Common Law were only a Fieri facias on the Goods and Chattels, and a Levari facias to levy the Debt or Damages upon the Land and Chattels: Afterwards a Capias ad satisfaciendum was given by the Statute 25 Ed. 3. c. 17. And an Elegit by Stat. Westm. 2. c. 18. which makes the Body liable, and the future Profit of Lands, &c. 1 Inst. 154. 2 Inst. 394. The Reason why by the Common Law, where a Subject had Execution for Debt or Damages, he could not have the Body of the Defendant, or his Lands in Execution, (unless it were in special Cases) was, that the Defendant's Body might be at Liberty, not only to follow his own Affairs and Business, but also to serve his King and Country; and taking away the Possession of his Lands, would hinder the following of his Husbandry and Tillage. 2 Inst. 394. Tho' neither the Body, nor Lands of the Debtor on a Judgment could be taken in Execution at Common Law, but only his Goods; yet in Action of Debt against an Heir, upon the Bond of his Ancestor, his Land which he had by Discent was subject to be taken in Execution.

3 Rep. 11. In Action of Debt against the Heir upon his Ancestor's Bond, there was Judgment by Nil dicit; and it was held that the Plaintiff should have Execution against the Heir, of any of his own Lands or Goods. Dyer 89, 149. Judgment was had against the Heir by Nil dicit, and a Scire facias being brought against him to have Execution, he pleaded Riens per Descent; it was adjudg'd that this Plea was too late after the Judgment by Nil dicit, and the Execution shall be on his own Lands. Dyer 344. But there is a Difference between a Scire facias and an Action of Debt brought against an Heir, upon a Bond of his Ancestor, in which the Heir is named. Poph. 193. On a Judgment for the Debt of an Ancestor, where the Heir hath made over Lands descended to him, Execution may be taken against such Heir to the Value of the Land, &c. for the Debt of his Ancestor, as if his own Debt. Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 14. If a Person have Judgment given against him for Debt or Damages, or be bound in a Recognizance and dieth, and his Heir be within Age, no Execution shall be sued of the Lands during the Minority; and against an Heir within Age, no Execution shall be sued upon a Statute Merchant or Staple, &c. 1 Inst. 290. There is an Execution on Body, Lands and Goods, upon Statutes Merchant, Staple and Recognizances. 1 Inst. 289. 2 Inst. 678. Writs of Execution bind the Property of Goods only from the Time of the Delivery of the Writs to the Sheriff; who upon Receipt thereof indorses the Day of the Month when received: But Land is bound from the Day of the Judgment. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. Cro. Car. 149. Sheriffs may deliver in Execution all Lands whereof others shall be seised in Trust for him against whom Execution is had, on a Statute, Judgment, &c. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. If there are Chattels sufficient, the Sheriff ought not to take the Lands; nor may Things fixed to the Freehold, Goods bought bona fide, Goods pawned, &c. be taken in Execution. 8 Rep. 143. The Sale of Goods for a valuable Consideration, after Judgment, and before Execution awarded, is good: And if Judgment be given against a Lessee for Years, and afterwards he selleth the Term before Execution, the Term assign'd bona fide is not liable; also if he assign by Fraud, and the Assignee sells it to another for a valuable Consideration, it is not liable to Execution in the Hands of the second Assignee. Godb. 161. 2 Nelf. Abr. 783. Where there is an Execution against Goods or Chattels, of a Tenant for Life, or Years, the Plaintiff before Removal of the Goods by the Execution is to pay the Landlord the Rent of the Land, &c. so as there be not above a Year due; and if more be due, paying a Year's Rent, the Plaintiff may proceed in his Execution, and the Sheriff shall levy the Rent paid as well as the Execution-Money. Stat. 8 Ann. c. 17. When a Judgment is signed, Execution may be taken out immediately upon it, and need not be delay'd till it is entered, it being a perfect Judgment of the Court before entered. Lit. 505. If Execution be not issued within a Year and a Day after Judgment, where there is no Fault in the Defendant, as if Writ of Error brought, &c. there must be a Scire facias to revive the Judgment; which in that Time may be had without moving the Court; but if it be of longer standing, the Court is to be moved for it. 1 Inst. 290. 2 Inst. 771. But if the Defendant be outlawed after Judgment, (as he may where he cannot be taken in Execution, or hath hath no Lands or Goods to pay the Debt, &c. when the Suit is commenc'd by Original) the Plaintiff need not renew the Judgment by Scire facias to obtain Execution after a Year. 1 Inst. 290. It hath been adjudg'd, that by the Common Law, if a Man was outlaw'd after Judgment in Debt, the Plaintiff was at the End of his Suit, and he could have no other Process after that personally; but was put to his new Original, &c. 2 Nelf. Abr. 772. If the Plaintiff do not proceed upon the Scire facias, he may bring an Action upon the Judgment: And after Judgment against the Defendant, in Action where special Bail hath been given, the Plaintiff may have Execution against the Defendant, or prosecute his Bail. Com. Law Com. plac'd 206. If one be arrested upon Process in B. R. and puts in Bail, and afterwards the Plaintiff recovers, and the Defendant renders not himself according to Law, in Safeguard of his Bail, the Plaintiff may at his Election take Execution against the Principal, or his Bail; but if he takes the Bail, he shall never afterwards meddle with the Principal: If Two be bail, altho' one be in Execution, the Plaintiff may take the other; tho' if the Principal be in Execution, he cannot take the Bail. Cro. Jac. 320. The Court cannot divide an Execution, which is entire and grounded on the Judgment. Mich. 24 Car. B. R. As an Execution is an intire Thing, he who begins must end it; a new Sheriff may distrain an old one to sell the Goods on a Distingas nuper Vicecom. and to bring the Money into Court, or sell and deliver the Money to the new Sheriff; and the Authority of the old Sheriff continues by Virtue of the first Writ, so that when he hath seized, he is compellable to return the Writ, and liable to answer the Value according to the Return; likewise by the Seizure the Property of the Goods, &c. is dejected out of the Defendant, and he is discharg'd, whereby no further Remedy can be had against him. 1 Salk. 322. 3 Salk. 159. If a Person be discharg'd on an Execution for Error in adjudicatione Executionis, he may be in Execution again; but not in other Cases. Litch. 192. By Release of all Suits, Execution is gone; for no one can have Execution without Prayer and Suit, but the King only, in whose Case the Judges ought to award Execution ex Officio, without any Suit: And a Release of all Executions, bars the King. By Release of all Debts or Duties, the Defendant is discharg'd of the Execution, because the Debt or Duty on which it is founded is discharged: But if the Body of a Man be taken in Execution, and the Plaintiff release all Actions, yet he shall remain in Execution. 1 Inst. 291. Though if where a Judgment is given in Action of Debt, and the Defendant taken in Execution, if the Plaintiff releaseth the Judgment, the Body shall be discharged of the Execution: And if the Plaintiff after Judgment releaseth all Demands, the Execution is discharg'd. Ibid. A Person in Execution shall not be delivered out of Prison, but by Writ of Superfedeas. 1 Lill. Abr. 565. And if a Sheriff proceeds after a Superfedeas to stay Execution on Goods, &c. it is a great Contempt; and a Writ of Restitution may be awarded. 2 Bulst. 194. It hath been resolv'd, that a Writ of Error is a Superfedeas from the Time of the Allowance: Tho' if a Writ of Execution be executed before the Writ of Error is allow'd, it may be return'd afterwards. 1 Salk. 321. No Execution shall be stay'd by any Writ of Error or Superfedeas, after Verdict and Judgment, in any Action upon the Case for Payment of Money, Covenant, Detinue, Trespass, &c. until Recognizance be entered into as directed by 3 Jac. 1. Stat. 13 Car. 2. c. 2. A Judgment was had against a Person at Bristol, and his Goods attach'd there; and the Court of B. R. being moved to stay the Execution, until a Writ of Error brought should be determined, they granted a Habeas Corpus, but nothing to stay the Execution. 1 Bulst. 268. All Judgments of Courts are to be executed in the peculiar Jurisdictions where given, and cannot be removed to be executed by the superior Courts. Cro. Car. 34. But if a Judgment given in another Court be affirm'd or revers'd for Error in B. R. because the Proceedings in the Court below are entered upon Record in the King's Bench, the Party shall have Execution in that Court: And so if a Judgment of Debt, &c. in the Common Pleas be affirm'd in B. R. on a Writ of Error. 5 Rep. 88. Though where the Record of a Judgment given in C. B. is remov'd into B. R. the Party cannot take out Execution upon it, without a Scire facias quare Executionem habere non debeat. 1 Lill. Abr. 562. And where a Writ of Error is brought in the Exchequer Chamber, to reverse a Judgment in B. R. if the Judgment is affirm'd there, yet that Court cannot make out Execution upon the Judgment affirm'd, but the Record must be transmitted back to the Court of King's Bench, where Execution must be done. 1 Lill. 565. Two recovered in Debt, and before Execution one of them died, and afterwards Execution was sued in both their Names; it was held no Error, and the Survivor may have Execution without a Scire facias. Noy 150. A Capias ad satisfaciend. may be executed upon a Prisoner in Prison for Felony; and if he be acquitted of the Felony, the Sheriff is to keep him. 1 Lill. Abr. 567. But where a Person is in Prison for criminal Matters, he ought not to be charged with a Civil Action, without Leave of the Court; yet if he be charged, he shall not be discharged. Raym. 58. A Ca. sa. will lie against a Man who is outlaw'd for Felony, and he may be taken in Execution at the Suit of a common Person. Owen 69. And if the Party was taken upon a Capias Utlagat. which is at the King's Suit, he shall be in Execution at the Suit of the Party, if he will. Moor 566. A Sheriff shall have his Fees for Executions, upon Writ of Capias satisfaciend. for the whole Debt; upon a Fieri fac. according to the Sum levied; and on an Elegit it is held by some, that he shall have Fees according to what is levied, and by others for the whole Debt recovered, because the Plaintiff may keep the Land 'till he is satisfied the intire Debt. 1 Salk. 331. In Personal Actions, Execution is either by Capias ad satisfaciend. or Fieri facias against the Body or Goods; or Elegit against the Lands, &c. In Real and Mix'd Actions, the Writs of Execution are Habeere facias Seisinam, to put the Party in Possession of his Freehold recovered by Judgment of Law; and Habere facias Possessionem, to put him in Possession of his Term, &c. 1 Inst. 289. 5 Rep. 86. Execution of a Fine is the Obtaining actual Possession of the Things contained in it, by Virtue thereof, which is by Entry into the Lands, or by Writ. West. Symb. par. 2. sect. 137. After Judgment issues Process of Execution; for it begins where the Action ends.

Execution of Criminals must be according to the Judgment; and the King cannot alter a Judgment from Hanging to Beheading, because no

Execution

Execution can be warranted unless it be pursuant to the Judgment. 3 Inst. 52, 211. H. P. C. 272. But there are antient Precedents, wherein Men condemn'd to be hang'd for Felony, have been beheaded by Force of a special Warrant from the King. Bract. 104. Staundf. 13. And the King may pardon Part of the Execution in Judgment for Treason, viz. all but Beheading. The Court may command Execution to be done without any Writ: Though sometimes Execution is commanded by Writ. 2 Hawk. P. C. 463. Judgment belongs to the Judge; but the Execution must be done by the Sheriff, &c. And an Execution cannot be lawfully made by any but the proper Officer; who may do it on the Precept of the Judge under his Seal: And if the Sheriff, or other Officer, alters the Execution, or any other executes the Offender, or if he is kill'd without Authority of Law, it is Felony. 2 Hawk. Ibid. Subsequent Justices have no Power by the Stat. 1 Ed. 6. c. 7. to award Execution of Persons condemn'd by former Judges; but if Judgment hath not been pass'd on the Offenders, the other Justices may give Judgment, and award Execution, &c. 2 Hawk. 27. Execution ought to be in the same County where the Criminal was tried and convicted; except the Record of the Attainder be removed into B. R. which may award Execution in the County wherein it sits. 3 Inst. 31, 211, 217. Where a Person attainted hath been afterwards at large, if on the Court's Demanding why Execution should not be had against him, he denies he is the same Person, it shall be tried by a Jury for that Purpose, and then he is to be executed. 2 Hawk. P. C. 463. If a Person, when attainted, stand mute to a Demand why Execution shall not go against him, the ordinary Execution, (and not Penance) shall be awarded. 2 Hawk. 462. In Case a Man condemn'd to die, come to Life after he is hang'd, as the Judgment is not executed 'till he is dead, he ought to be hung up again. Finch 389. The Body of a Traitor or Felon is forfeited to the King by the Execution; so that he may dispose of them as he pleases. The Execution of Persons under the Age of Discretion is usually respited, in order to a Pardon. 1 Hawk. 2.

Executione facienda in Withernamium, A Writ that lies for Taking his Cattle, who hath convey'd the Cattle of another out of the County, so that the Sheriff cannot replevy them. Reg. Orig. 82.

Executione Judicii, Is a Writ directed to the Judge of an inferior Court to do Execution upon a Judgment therein, or to return some reasonable Cause wherefore he delays the Execution. F. N. B. 20. If Execution be not done on the first Writ, an Alias shall issue, and a Pluries, with this Clause, vel Causam nobis significes quare, &c. And if upon this Writ Execution be not done, or some reasonable Cause return'd why it is delay'd, the Party shall have an Attachment against him who ought to have done the Execution returnable in B. R. or C. B. New Nat. Br. 43. If the Judgment be in a Court of Record, this Writ shall be directed to the Justices of the Court where the Judgment was given, and not unto the Officer of the Court; for if the Officer will not execute the Writs directed unto him, nor return them as he ought, the Judges of the Court may amerce him. Ibid. One may have a Writ de executione Judicii out of the Chancery to execute a Judgment in an inferior Court, although a Writ of Error be brought to remove the Record, and reverse the Judgment; if he that brings the Writ of Error do not take Care to have the Record transcribed, and the Writ of Error return'd up in due Time. 1 Lill. Abr. 562.

Executor, (Lat.) Is one that is appointed by a Man's Last Will and Testament, to have the Execution thereof after his Decease, and the Disposing of all the Testator's Substance according to the Tenor of the Will: He is as much as Heres designatus or Testamentarius in the Civil Law, as to Debts, Goods, and Chattels of his Testator. Terms de Ley 321, 322. An Executor may be appointed by exprefs Words, or Words that amount to a direct Appointment; as if the Testator declares by his Will, that a certain Person shall have his Goods to pay Debts, and otherwise dispose of, &c. And Executors may be made upon Condition; for a fix'd Time; or some Part of the Estate. Wood's Inst. 320. Where there is no Executor, there is properly no Will; and where there is no Will, there can be no Executor: But this is understood of Goods, for where Lands in Fee are devised, this is good, tho' no Executor be named; Executors having nothing to do with Land, which is not Testamentary but by Act of Parliament. Offic. Exec. 3, 4. Finch 167. All Persons capable of Making a Will, are capable of being Executors. 3 Cro. 9. And a Woman Covert may be an Executor, and do any lawful Act which another Executor may do; but she may not damage her Husband thereby, by Assenting to a Legacy before Debts are paid, &c. 5 Rep. 27. A Feme Covert Executrix cannot release a Debt of her Testator's, or give away the Goods she hath as Executrix, &c. without the Husband, but the Husband may do it, and yet the Goods which the Wife hath as Executrix are not devided out of her, as her own Goods are; nor if she dies, shall they go to the Husband, but to her Executors, or the next of Kin, being Administrator of her Testator. Offic. Exec. c. 17. Husband and Wife must be named in Actions brought for Goods which the Wife is entitled to as Executrix. Ibid. An Infant may be an Executor; though he cannot act 'till he is seventeen Years of Age, and until that Time Administration durante Minori etate is to be granted. 6 Rep. 67. 4 Inst. 335. If Two are Executors, one whereof is under Age, he of full Age may solely prove the Will, &c. 1 Lev. 181. A Man attainted of Felony cannot make Executors; because he hath forfeited all that he had: But a Person outlawed may make Executors; so may an excommunicate Person, &c. 1 Leon. 326. Cro. El. 577. A Popish Recusant convict cannot be an Executor. 9 Rep. 37. A Mayor and Commonalty may be Executors. 1 Roll. Abr. 915. And if the King is made Executor, he appoints others to take the Execution of the Will upon them, and to take Account. 5 Rep. 29. Where Executors are appointed, they may accept of, or refuse the Executorship; but they may not refuse after Acceptance, nor on the other Hand accept after Refusal. 9 Rep. 37. When a Will with Executors is made, the Ordinary may send out Process against the Executors to come in and prove it; and if they do not come in, they are to be excommunicated; but if they come in and refuse to take upon them the Execution of the Will, then the Ordinary is to commit Administration: And the the Refusal must be by some Act register'd in the Spiritual Court. Offic. Exec. If an Executor hath administred, he cannot refuse; but the Ordinary is to compel him to take upon him the Executorship. Offic. Exec. 38. Executors cannot refuse for a Time, but for ever; but they may have Time to advise upon it, and the Ordinary is to grant Letters ad Colligendum, not Administration. Cro. El. 92. An Executor refusing the Executorship, where Two are appointed, may not administer after the Death of his Companion, for then his Election is gone; and the Executor of the other Executor who proved the Will, may alone bring an Action for Money due to the first Testator, without joining him who refused. Dyer 160. If there are many Executors of a Will, and one of them only proves the Will, and takes upon him the Executorship, it is sufficient for all of them; but the rest may afterwards join with him, and intermeddle with the Testator's Estate: But if they all of them refuse the Executorship, none of them will ever after be admitted to prove the Will; the Ordinary in this Case grants Administration with the Will annex'd, and the Testator is in Law adjudg'd to die Intestate, and without Executor. 9 Rep. 37. 1 Inst. 113. Perk. 485. Where an Executor dies before Probate, it is the same; for such an Executor's Executor cannot prove the Will, because he is not named therein, and no one can prove a Will but he who is named Executor in it; but if the first Executor had proved the Will, then his Executor might have been Executor to the first Testator, there requiring no new Probate. 1 Salk. 299. An Executor of an Executor may be Executor to the first Testator, but he may take upon him the Executorship of his own Testator, and refuse to intermeddle with the Estate of the other: And if the first Executor refuses, or dies before Probate, his Executor shall not administer to the first Testator: Nor can an Executor of an Administrator take Administration of the Goods of his Intestate. Dyer 372. A Testator having thought the Executor appointed a proper Person to be entrusted with his Affairs, the Ordinary cannot adjudge him disabled or Incapax; but a Mandamus shall issue from B. R. for the Ordinary to grant Probate of the Will, and admit the Executor, if he refuse him: Neither can the Ordinary insist upon Security from the Executor, as the Testator hath thought him able and qualified. 1 Salk. 299. And altho' an Executor becomes Bankrupt, yet 'tis said the Ordinary cannot grant Administration to another: But if an Executor become Non Compos, the Spiritual Court may commit Administration for this natural Disability. 1 Salk. 307. If an Executor take Goods of the Testator's, and convert them to his own Use; or if he either receive, or pay Debts of the Testator, or give Bond for Payment; make Acquittances for them, or demand the Testator's Debts as Executor; or give away the Goods of the Testator, &c. these are an Administration, so that he cannot afterwards refuse the Executorship: And it has been held, that if the Wife of the Testator take more Apparel than is necessary, it is an Administration. Offic. Exec. 39. All Goods and Chattels which belong'd to the Testator at the Time of his Death, in any Part of the World, come to the Executor as Assets, and make him chargeable to Creditors and Legatees; and Debts, &c. recovered by the Executor, by Action after the Death of the Testator, are to be accounted as Assets; but not before recovered. 6 Rep. 47.

1 Inst. 374. If an Executor do never recover, or get in a Debt, he shall never be charged, provided he hath used his utmost Endeavours to recover it, and cannot do it. 1 Rep. 98. And where an Executorship is controverted in the Spiritual Court by another Executor who sets up another Will; an Injunction may be granted to the Testator's Debtors not to pay any Money 'till the Title to the Executorship is settled. Chanc. Rep. 75. Tho' a Plantation be an Estate of Inheritance, yet being in a foreign Country, it is a Chattel in the Hands of Executors to pay Debts. 1 Ventr. 358. The Executor is not only intitled to all personal Goods and Chattels of the Testator, of what Nature soever they are; but they are also accounted to be in his Possession, tho' they are not actually so; for he may maintain an Action against any one who detains them from him: He is likewise intitled to Things in Action; as Right of Execution on a Judgment, Bond, Statute, &c. 1 Inst. 209. If where a Person to whom Money is awarded by Arbitrators, dies before the Day of Payment, it shall be paid to his Executor. 2 Ventr. 249. 1 Danv. Abr. 549. If Goods of the Testator are kept from the Executor, he may sue for them in the Spiritual Court, or at Common Law; and if one seised of a Messuage in Fee, &c. hath Goods in the House, and makes a Will and Executors, and dies, the Executors may enter into the House, and carry away the Goods. Lit. 69. An Executor may in convenient Time after the Testator's Death, enter into the House descended to the Heir, for removing and carrying away the Goods; so as the Door be open, or the Key be in the Door. Offic. Exec. 8. He may take the Goods and Chattels to himself, or give Power to another to seize them for him. 9 Rep. 38. Executors having their Power wholly by the Will, may release an Action, Debt, or Duty, or do any Thing as Executors before Probate of the Will, so as afterwards they prove it; except it be bringing Actions for Debts, &c. But to maintain these they must shew the Testament prov'd, and the Probate is to be brought into Court before the Defendant will be bound to plead. Plowd. 277. 1 Inst. 292. 1 Roll. Abr. 917, 926. For the Goods of the Testator taken from them, or for Trespas upon the Land, &c. Executors may before the Will prov'd bring Actions of Trespas, Detinue, &c. And if they sell Cattle, or other Goods of the Testator, before the Will is prov'd, they may have Actions for the Money payable, before the same is proved: And an Executor may be sued for the Debts of the Testator before Probate of the Will, if he be Executor by his own Act of Administring, which makes him liable to Actions. Offic. Exec. 35. It has been ruled, that an Executor may commence an Action before Probate; but he cannot declare upon it, without producing in Court the Letters testamentary: He is not like an Administrator, who hath no Right till Administration committed; for his Right is the same before as after Probate of the Will, and the not Proving it is only an Impediment to the Action. 1 Salk. 303. Executors may maintain Action of Trover for Goods converted in the Life of the Testator. Cro. El. 377. And by Statute, Executors shall have the like Writs, Actions and Process, as the Testator might have had; and Trespas and Damages for Wrong done to the Testator: Also Executors of Executors shall have Actions of Debt, Account, &c. as the first Testator; and answer for Goods, &c. as the first Exe- cutors. 13 Ed. 1. 4 Ed. 3. c. 7. 25 Ed. 3. c. 5. The Word Executor is a Word collective; and doth comprehend in it the Executor of an Executor; for he is accountable for the first Testator's Goods, and is as it were his Executor for such Goods as remain unadministred by the first Executor. 1 Lill. Abr. 568. Formerly, if an Executor waited Goods, and left an Executor, and died, leaving Affets, his Executor should not be chargeable, because it was a personal Tort. 2 Lev. 110. But now it is otherwise by Statute 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 24. As the Law gives to Executors all Chattels, &c. of the Testator, so it subjects the Executors to every Person's Claim and Action, which he had against the Testator; for which Reason the Executor is said to be the Testator's Assignee, and to represent the Person of the Testator: But for personal Wrongs done by the Testator to the Person or Goods, &c. of another, the Executor doth not represent him; because Personal Actions die with the Person. 1 Inst. 209. 9 Rep. 89. No Action shall be brought against an Executor or Administrator to answer Damages out of his own Estate, upon any Promise to another, unless there be some Writing thereof signed by the Party to be charged therewith. Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. Nothing can be Debt in the Executor, which was not Debt in the Testator; and if a Man covenants that his Executor shall pay 10 l. no Action lies against him for it. Cro. El. 252. So a Promise to pay the Executor, when the Testator is not named, is not good. Cro. Fac. 570. But a Testator may bind his Executor as to his Goods, though he himself is not bound. Ibid. And an Executor may recover a Duty due to the Testator, tho' he be not named. Dyer 14. Action lies against an Executor upon a collateral Promise made and broke by the Testator. Cro. Fac. 663. Assumpsit lies upon a Contract of the Testator; and the Reason is the same upon a Promise, where the Testator had a valuable Consideration. Palm. 329. Tho' a Debt upon simple Contract of the Testator, cannot be recovered of the Executor by Action of Debt; yet it may by Assumpsit. 1 Lev. 200. Where the Testator might have waged his Law, his Executors shall not be charged. 9 Rep. 87. If two Persons are bound jointly, and one of them dies, the Survivor only shall be charged, and not the other's Executor. Pasch. 16 Car. 2. And when there are two Executors, if one of them dies, Debt is to be brought against the surviving Executor, and not the Survivor and the Executor of the Deceased: But in Equity, the Testator's Goods are liable in whomsoever's Hands they are. 1 Leon. 304. Chanc. Rep. 57. Bills in Equity for Debts without Specialty, have been allow'd to be brought against Executors, with an Averment that they had Affets; and no Difference has been made where the Party seeks for Relief either before or after a Judgment given against him at Law. Moor 556. Affets shall be always intended, 'till the Executors alledge the Want of them in Excuse. 9 Rep. 90, 94. If an Obligee makes the Obligor Executor, this is a Release in Law of the Debt; but it shall be Affets in his Hands, if there be not Affets beside to pay other Creditors. 8 Rep. 136. 2 Roll. Abr. 920. Where an Obligor is made Executor by the Obligee, by Administ'ring some of the Goods, he hath accepted the Executorship, and 'tis that which makes the Release; because by being Executor he is the Person who is to receive the Money due on the Bond, and he is likewise the Person to pay it; and the Rule is, that where the same Hand is to receive and pay, that amounts to an Extinguishment. 1 Salk. 305. But a Person who owed the Testator 400 l. was made Executor, where Debts, Legacies, and a residuary Estate were devised; and tho' it was insisted that the Debt was discharged by the Debtor's being made Executor, and that there was sufficient to pay the Debts and Legacies, yet it was decreed in Equity against the Executor, that he should pay the 400 l. to the Residuary Legatee. 1 Chanc. Rep. 292. It has been adjudg'd, that an Obligee making the Wife of an Obligor Executrix, had suspended the Action on the Bond so long as the Executorship continued; and that a Personal Action being suspended by the Act of the Party himself, is quite extinguished: This was in a Case where the Testator devised all his Goods to the Wife of the Obligor, and made her sole Executrix. Moor 855. Hutt. 128. If an Obligee is made Executor by the Obligor, the Debt is not released, but the Obligee may still sue for the Debt; unless he administers, when if he sues he must sue himself, which cannot be, and in this Case he may retain the Goods of the Obligor Testator in Satisfaction of his Debt. 2 Lev. 73. 2 Nelf. Abr. 785. If there be no Affets, the Obligee Executor may sue the Heir of the Obligor Testator in Action of Debt upon this Bond. 1 Salk. 304. 1 Lill. Abr. 575. If an Executor releases all Actions, Suits and Demands, it extends only to Demands in his own Right; not such as he hath as Executor. Show. 153. And where an Executor grants Omnia bona sua, though some are of Opinion that the Goods which he hath as Executor will pass; yet others hold the contrary. Noy 106. 4 Leon. 70. An Executor shall be charged with Rent in the Detinet, if he hath Affets; and if he continues the Possession, he shall be charged in the Debet and Detinet, in Respect of the Perception of the Profits, whether he hath Affets, or not. 1 Lev. 127. But an Executor is not suable in the Debet and Detinet for Part, and in the Detinet for the other Part; because they require several Judgments, viz. De bonis propriis for the Debet and Detinet, and De bonis Testatoris for the Detinet. 3 Lev. 74. If an Executor has a Term, and the Rent reserved is more than the Value of the Premises, in Action brought against him, he may plead the special Matter, viz. That he hath no Affets, and that the Land is of less Value than the Rent, and demand Judgment if he ought not to be charged in the Detinet tantum. 1 Salk. 297. It hath been held, that if an Executor alters the Property of Goods from the Testator to himself, by Paying a Debt to the Value; or by Paying the Rent of a Lease, and receiving the Profits or Part of the Profits equal to the Rent, the Goods and Profits received are his Own. Dyer 185, 187. 5 Rep. 31. Where a Man by Will devises that his Lands shall be sold for Payment of Debts, his Executors shall sell the Land, to whom it belongs to pay the Debts. 2 Leon. ca. 276. And if Lands are devised to Executors to be sold for Payment of the Testator's Debts, those Executors that act in the Executorship, or that will sell, may do it without the others. 1 Inst. 113. By Statute 21 H. 8. c. 4. Bargains and Sales of Lands, &c. devised to be sold by Executors, shall be as good, if made by such of the Executors only as take upon them the Execution of the Will, as if all the Executors had join'd in the Sale: If Lands are thus devised to pay Debts, a surviving Executor may sell them; but if the Devise be, that that the Executors shall sell the Land, and not of the Land to them to be sold, here being only an Authority, not an Interest, if one dies, the other cannot sell. 1 Lev. 203. When Lands are devised for paying Debts, Goods in the Hands of an Executor shall not be liable; though in Case of an Administrator it is otherwise. Ibid. Each Executor hath the Whole of the Testator's Goods and Chattels, and each may sell or give the Whole; (But one of them cannot assign or release his Interest to the other; if he doth, it will be void). If one Executor grant his Part of the Testator's Goods, all passeth, and nothing is left in the other; for that each hath the Whole, and there are no Parts or Moieties between Executors: Yet one Executor may demise or grant a Moiety of the Land, for the whole Term, and so may the other; and this Way they may settle in Friends trusted for them a Moiety for each. Offic. Exec. c. 9. One Executor cannot regularly sue another at Law; but he may have Relief in Equity: In the Eye of the Law all are but as one Executor, and most Acts done by or to any one of them, are esteem'd Acts done by or to all of them. 1 Roll. Abr. 918. If where one Executor is sued, he plead that there is another Executor, he ought to shew that he hath administr'd. 1 Lev. 161. He only that administers is to be sued in Actions against Executors; but Actions brought by Executors are to be in the Name of all of them, tho' some do not take upon them the Executorship. 1 Roll. 924. An Executor is not disabled by Outlawry, to sue for the Debts of the Testator: Special Bail is not required of Executors, &c. in any Action brought for the Testator's Debt: And Executors or Administrators are not liable to Costs. Stat. 24 H. 8. If an Executor brings a Writ of Error, tho' the Judgment is affirm'd, he shall not pay any Costs; because as he is Executor, it is in auter Droit: Also an Executor shall not put in Bail on a Writ of Error, Causa supra. Mich. 5 W. & M. Executors are excused from paying Costs, as being presumed to have no Knowledge of the Affairs of the Testator; and therefore they shall pay Costs for not going on to Trial, or where the Cause of Action arises to the Executor himself, &c. 1 Salk. 207. 3 Salk. 106. Where any Judgment after Verdict shall be had, by or in the Name of an Executor or Administrator, an Administrator de bonis non may sue forth a Scire facias, and take Execution upon such Judgment. Stat. 17 Car. 2. c. 8. Before this Statute it was not so; where an Executor, &c. died, for Want of Privy the Administrator was to begin again. 2 Nels. Abr. 789. If an Executor makes himself a Stranger to the Will of the Testator, pleads Ne unques Executor, or any false Plea, and it is found against him, Judgment shall be de bonis propriis. In other Cases, de bonis Testatoris. Cro. Jac. 447. If on a Sci. fac. against an Executor, the Sheriff return a Devastavit; the Plaintiff shall have Judgment and Execution de bonis propriis of the Defendant: And if Nulla bona be return'd, he may have either a Capias Satisfaciend. or an Elegit. 2 Nels. 791. Dyer 185. But one Executor shall not be charged with a Devastavit made by his Companion; for the Act of one shall charge the other no further than the Goods of the Testator in his Hands amount to. Cro. El. 318. An Executor sells the Goods, but doth not receive the Money they were sold for; it hath been held a Devastavit. 1 Lill. Abr. 573. If an Executor does any Waste, or misemploys the Estate of the Deceas'd, or doth any Thing by Negligence or Fraud, &c. it is a Devastavit, and he shall be charged for so much out of his own Goods. 8 Rep. 133.

The Duty and Office of an Executor is to bury the Testator in a decent Manner, according to his Rank and Quality, and with a due Regard to the Estate left after Debts are satisfied: For whatever an Executor lays out extravagantly in Funeral Charges, if there be not enough to pay Debts, he must bear it at his own Expence. Wood's Inst. 325. But all reasonable and necessary Funeral Charges must be allow'd before Debts and Legacies. 1 Roll. Abr. 926. The Executor is to make an Inventory of all the Goods and Chattels of the Deceas'd, with their Value, and of all Debts due to the Testator; and this Inventory ought to be made and apprais'd in the Presence of the Executor, by Two or more of the Creditors, or Two next of Kin to the Testator, or in their Default by Two or more of the Neighbours or Friends of the Deceas'd: And then the Executor must deliver the same upon Oath to the Ordinary. Doct. & Stud. c. 10. 21 H. 8. c. 5. Until the Inventory of the Testator's Goods is made and brought into the Office of the Ordinary, it shall be presumed that the Executor hath Assets to pay all the Debts of the Testator: The Inventory shews the Charge of the Executor, and his Account must be his Discharge, for so much as he can prove to be laid out in the Payments for Funeral Charges, making the Inventory, Probate of the Will, Debts and Legacies: This Account will discharge him of all Suits in the Spiritual Court; but will not discharge him of Suits at the Common Law, for there each particular must be again proved. Wood 328. An Executor is to pass his Account before the Ordinary, for the Goods and Chattels of the Testator; but the Ordinary may not call Executors to account ex Officio. 9 Rep. 39. 1 Jac. 1. c. 17. The Inventory of the Testator's Goods being made, or before if requisite, where there is enough to pay all Debts and Legacies, the Executor is to prove the Will before the Ordinary in common Form, by his own Oath, or by Witnesses, if required by those who have a Right to question it; and being exhibited in the Register's Office of the Ecclesiastical Court, a Copy in Parchment is delivered the Executor under the Ordinary's Seal, which is called the Probate. Perk. 486. 9 Rep. 37. 2 Inst. 488. One may prove a Will before the Ordinary, which contains Goods and Lands; tho' formerly a Prohibition was granted as to the Lands: And a Will of Freehold Land is to be proved by Witnesses in the Chancery. 1 Ventr. 207. 6 Rep. 23. The Proving of the Will is necessary for Goods and Chattels, to give the Executor Power to bring Actions, and confirm the Acts he did as Executor before: When this is done, the Executor is to pay all the Testator's Debts before any Legacies, in the Order following, viz. After the Funeral Charges, the King's Debt is to be preferr'd, then Debts on Judgments, and Statutes or Recognizances, on Mortgages, Rent upon Leases, &c. Bonds, Bills sealed, and other Specialties, Servants Wages, Debts on Notes, Shop-Books, &c. 1 Roll. Abr. 927. Plowd. 543. And if the Executor pays the Debts in any other Order, he is liable to the Payment of the Debts of a higher Degree, tho' out of his own Estate. Doct. & Stud. c. 10. Among Debts of equal Degree, the Execu- tor may pay himself first: And those Debts that are first sued for, are to be first paid: Where two Judgments are given against an Executor, the Judgment given first shall be first satisfied; but if the Judgments were given against the Testator, he who first sues Execution, shall be paid before the other. Noy Max. 104. 3 Leon. cap. 364. If no Suit is begun against the Executor, he may pay the whole Debt to any other Creditor in equal Degree, tho' there be nothing left to pay another any Part of his Debt. Wood's Inst. An Executor pays a Debt upon Bond before a Statute broken, and afterwards the Statute is broken, the Payment of the Debt upon Bond, is a good Plea against the Statute. Cro. Jac. 9. Pending a Bill in Equity against an Executor, he may pay any other Debt of a higher Nature, or of as high a Nature, where he has legal Assets: But where there is a final Decree against an Executor, if he pays a Bond it is a Mispayment; for a Decree is in Nature of a Judgment. 2 Salk. 507. If there are several Debts due on several Bonds from the Testator, his Executor may pay which Bond-Debt he pleases, except an Action of Debt is actually commenced against him upon one of those Bonds; and in such Case, if pending an Action, another Bond-Creditor brings another Action against him, before Judgment obtained by either of them, he may prefer which he will by confessing a Judgment to one and paying him, which Judgment he may plead in Bar to the other Action. Vaugh. 89. An Action was brought against an Executor, and pending that Action, he procured another to commence an Action against him for a just Debt owing by the Testator, and the other had Judgment first, which was allowed a good Plea to the first Action; and the Executor's Consent to pay one Creditor before another, shall never be intended to be by Covin, but on considering the Circumstances of the Creditors, &c. Sid. 21. Executors sometimes confess Judgment presently to a Friend for his Debt, for they are not bound to stand Suit; and plead dilatory Pleas to a Stranger's Debt, that the Friend may be first paid upon the Execution: And Executors may give Precedence as they please before Execution: But if Judgment for 100*l.* is suffered, and the Plaintiff compounds for 60*l.* the Judgment for the whole Sum shall not be allowed to keep off other Creditors. 8 Rep. 133. In Action of Debt against an Executor, he may plead a Judgment obtained against him by another ultra quoad he hath not Assets, which Judgment is in Force; though Judgments are not to be kept on Foot by Fraud. Sid. 230. 1 Ventr. 76. If an Executor sued by several Creditors, pleads Plene Administravit to all at the same Time; and that he hath no Assets prater to pay one or two, he will make himself liable to all the Debts: He should plead specially to one Creditor, shewing what Assets he hath, or pay him, and plead fully administered. 1 Lill. Abr. 574. On a Scire facias against an Executor, he cannot plead fully administered, but must plead specially that no Goods of the Testator came to his Hands, whereby he might discharge the Debt; for he may have fully administered, and yet be liable to the Debt, where Goods of the Testator's afterwards come to his Hands. 1 Lill. 568. Cro. Eliz. 575. In Sci. fac. against Executors, upon a Judgment of the Testator, they pleaded Plene Administravit, by paying Debts upon Bonds ante Notitiam; It was adjudged no Plea, for at their Peril they ought to take Notice of Debts upon Record, and pay them; and though the Recovery be in another County than that where the Testator lived: But where an Action is brought against Executors in another County than where they live, and they not knowing thereof, pay Debts upon Specialty, it is good. Cro. Eliz. 793. In pleading Debt by Bond against Executors, the Plaintiff should allege not only Goods left; but that there is no Debt upon Judgment, Statute, &c. 3 Lev. 218. If a Surety pay the Debt of his Principal, who is dead, 'tis said the Executor is not liable at Law to repay him, without a Promise; but he is liable in Equity. Sid. 89. 3 Salk. 96. A Debt devised by the Testator, is not to be paid by the Debtor to the Legatee, but to the Executor, who can give a sufficient Discharge for it, and is answerable to the Legatee if there be sufficient Assets. If an Executor pays out the Assets in Legacies, and afterwards Debts appear, of which he had no Notice, which he is obliged to pay; the Executor by Bill in Chancery may force the Legatees to refund. Chanc. Rep. 136, 149. One Legatee paid shall refund against another, and against a Creditor of the Testator, that can charge the Executor only in Equity: But if an Executor pays a Debt upon simple Contract, there shall be no Refunding to a Creditor of a higher Nature. 2 Ventr. 360. Executors are not bound to pay a Legacy, without Security to refund. Chanc. Rep. 149, 257. And if Sentence be given for a Legacy in the Ecclesiastical Court, a Prohibition lies, unless they take Security to refund. 2 Ventr. 358. If an Executor pay Legacies, and seven Years after Covenant is broken, for which Action is brought against the Executor; the Court inclined that it was a Devastavit, and that the Executor ought to have taken Security for his Indemnity upon Payment of the Legacies. Allen 38. But it has been adjudged, that a Covenant is no Duty till broken; and therefore since it is uncertain whether it will be broken or not, it shall be presumed it will not; and the Legacies being a present Duty shall be paid by the Executor, notwithstanding any Covenant not actually broken. Stile 37. 2 Nelf. Abr. 786. If one binds himself and his Executors in an Obligation, &c. to perform a certain Thing, and in his Will gives divers Legacies and dies, leaving Goods only sufficient to pay the Obligation when forfeited; this Obligation shall be no Bar to the Legacies, because it is uncertain whether the same may ever be forfeited: Though the Executor may therefore make a Delivery upon Condition, viz. to return the Legacies, if the Obligation become forfeit, and the Penalty be recovered. 1 Roll. Abr. 928. 2 Ventr. 358. The Executor is to pay the Legacies, after the Debts; and he may prefer a Legacy to himself, if nothing remains to discharge the other Legacies. Plowd. 545. Offic. Exec. 204. But Executors cannot in Equity pay their own Legacies first, where there is not enough to pay all of them; but shall have an equal Proportion with the rest of the Legatees. Chanc. Rep. 354. After the Executor hath his own Legacy, he may pay what Legacies he pleases first; or pay each Legatee a Part in Proportion, if there be not enough to pay every one his whole Legacy; and he is not bound to Order, as he is in the Payment of Debts due from the Testator. 2 Ventr. 358, 360. If there be a specific Legacy given of any Thing, as a Horse, Silver Cup, &c. it must be delivered before any other other Legacy, provided there be Assets. Offic. Exec. 317. And if there be enough to pay all the Legacies, after the Debts are satisfied, the Legacies shall all be paid; but if there is not sufficient to pay Debts or more, the Legatees must lose their Legacies: If there be any Remainder undisposed of after the Debts and Legacies paid, by the Common Law it is said to belong to the Executor, by Virtue of the Executorship. Plowd. 526. But this hath been understood where the Executor hath had no Legacy, or other Provision by the Will: And a Man made his Will, giving only a small Legacy for Mourning, and appointed an Executor, without disposing of the Residue of his personal Estate, after Debts and Legacies paid; and it was adjudged that the Remainder should not go to the Executor, but be distributed among the Relations of the Testator by an Administration: The Testator was esteemed to die Intestate as to that Residue, and thereupon Administration shall be granted quoad the Residue. 1 Lill. Abr. 579. Wood's Inst. 322. 4 Ann. in B. R. A Testator made one Executor who was no Relation to him, and gave him 50*l.* And the next of Kin exhibited a Bill in Chancery for the Residuum of the Estate; and it was determined that the Executor should not have the Residue, but the next of Kin to the Testator: But if the Executor had been nearly related to the Testator, it might be otherwise; though in such Case if there were other Relations, in equal Degree, poor and indigent, Equity would give the Residue among them. 3 Salk. 82. The Surplusage of an Estate, given to pay Debts, &c. after Debts, Legacies and Portions paid, hath been ordered by the Court of Chancery to go to the Heir. Chanc. Rep. 189. Overseers of a Will have nothing to do with the Execution of it, but are only to give Counsel and Advice to the Executors; and if they will not do their Duty, to complain of them to the Spiritual Court, &c.

Executor de son tort, Or Executor of his own Wrong, is he that takes upon him the Office of an Executor by Intrusion, not being so constituted by the Testator; or for Want thereof, appointed by the Ordinary to administer. Dyer 166. If an Executor of his own Wrong takes upon himself the Office of an Executor without any lawful Authority, he is chargeable to the rightful Executor, and to all the Creditors of the Testator, and likewise to the Legatees, so far as the Goods amount unto which he wrongfully possessed: And such an Executor is made by any Act of Acquisition, Transferring or Possessing himself of any of the Estate or Goods of the Deceased; but not by Acts of Necessity, Piety or Charity. 2 Nels. Abr. 793. Where a Person gets the Goods of the Intestate into his Hands, he is chargeable for them as Executor de son tort, until he gives Satisfaction for them to the true Administrator; or satisfies the true Debt of the Intestate to the Value. Cro. Eliz. 88. And such a one cannot retain for his own Debt, against another Creditor. 5 Rep. 31. For if an Executor of his own Wrong, to whom 20*l.* is owing, doth seize Goods to that Value intending to pay himself, it shall be Assets in his Hands to make him chargeable to any Creditor or Legatee. 5 Rep. 30. And by Statute, Persons obtaining any Goods or Debts of an Intestate by Fraud, or procuring Administration to be granted to a Stranger, &c. are chargeable as Executors in their own Wrong, to the Value of the Goods or Debts, &c. And Executors and Administrators of Executors in their own Wrong, shall be liable to pay the Debts of the Testator in like Manner as their Testator or Intestate. 43 Eliz. cap. 8. 30 Car. 2. cap. 7. If a Man who is neither Executor nor Administrator, acts as Executor; as when he takes into his Hands the Goods of the Deceased for his own Use, or alters the Property by Sale, &c. or delivers Goods of the Deceased to Creditors or Legatees, receives any Debt due to the Intestate, &c. he is Executor in his own Wrong, and shall answer as far as he acts. 5 Rep. 31, 32. 8 Rep. 135. 9 Rep. 39. But every Taking of the Goods of the Deceased, is not enough to make one chargeable; as if a Person take away his own Goods in the House of the Deceased, or use some of the Deceased's Goods in the necessary Occasions of his Family, bury the Deceased, and sell some of his Goods for that Purpose, &c. Dyer 166, 167. Noy's Max. 102. When there is a rightful Executor, and a Stranger possesses himself of the Testator's Goods, without doing any further Act as Executor, he is not an Executor de son tort: But where there is neither an Executor or Administrator, it is otherwise; for there the Creditors have no Person against whom they may bring any Action but him who hath possessed himself of the Goods. Dyer 105. Roll. Abr. 918. If there is a lawful Executor that hath proved the Will, or a legal Administration granted, before a Stranger intermeddles with the Goods, the Stranger cannot be an Executor of his own Wrong; but is a Trespasser against the Executor, &c. who is to have his Remedy against the Stranger, and the Creditors may have their Remedy against the lawful Executor. 5 Rep. 82. An Executor of his own Wrong, may be sued as Executor; and he shall be sued for Legacies, as well as a rightful Executor. Noy 13. Though an Executor de son tort cannot maintain any Suit or Action, because he cannot produce any Will to justify it: And he will be severely punished for a false Plea, for in such Case the Execution shall be awarded for the whole Debt, tho' he meddled with a Thing of very small Value. Noy 69. If a Plaintiff alleges that the Defendant administered of his own Wrong, and the Defendant demurs, it is a Confession of it to be true; and then an Action may be brought against the Defendant as Executor de son tort. 5 Mod. 136. 1 Salk. 298. An Executor of his own Wrong possesses himself of Goods, and afterwards Administration is granted him, he may by Virtue thereof retain Goods for his own Debt. 5 Rep. 30. And where a Man took Possession of an Intestate's Goods wrongfully, and sold them to another, and then took out Administration, it was adjudged that the Sale was good by Relation. Moor 126. But where an Executor de son tort delivered Goods to one to whom Administration was afterwards granted, it was held that if the Administration had been granted to himself, it would not have purged the Tort, much less where granted to another; for he having once made himself liable to an Action as Executor de son tort, he shall never after discharge himself by Matter ex post facto. Hob. 49. An Executor de son tort shall be allowed in Equity, all such Payments which a rightful Executor ought to have paid. 2 Chanc. Rep. 33. See more of Executors, under Administrators, Assets, Joint Executors, Wills, &c.

Executory, Is where an Estate in Fee created by Deed or Fine, is to be afterwards executed by Entry, Livery, Writ, &c. And Leases for Years, Rents, Annuities, Conditions, &c. are called called Inheritances Executory. Wood's Inst. 293. Estates executed are when they pass presently to the Person to whom conveyed, without any After-Act. 2 Inst. 513.

Executory Devise. If a particular Estate is limited, and the Inheritance passes out of the Donor, this is a Contingent Remainder; but where the Fee by a Devise is vested in any Person, and to be vested in another upon Contingency, this is an Executory Devise. Raym. 28. And in all Cases of Executory Devises, the Estates descend until the Contingencies happen. 1 Lutw. 798. A Remainder of a Fee may not be limited by the Rules of Law, after a Fee-simple; for when a Man hath parted with his whole Estate, there cannot remain any Thing for him to dispose of: But of late Times a Distinction hath been made between an absolute Fee-simple and a Fee-simple which depends upon a Contingency, or is conditionally limited; especially where such a Contingency may happen in the Course of a few Years, or of one or two Lives; and where such a Remainder is limited by Will, it is called an Executory Devise. 2 Nelf. Abr. 797. An Estate devised to a Son and his Heirs, upon Condition that if he did not pay the Legacies given by the Will within such a Time, that then the Lands should remain to the Legatees, &c. and their Heirs: This Limitation of a Fee in Remainder, after a Fee limited to the Son, being upon the Contingency of the Son's Failing in Payment of the Legacies, was adjudged good by Way of Executory Devise. Cro. El. 833. And where the Father devised his Lands to his youngest Son and his Heirs, and if he died without Issue, living the eldest Son, then to him and his Heirs; this was held a good Remainder in Fee to the eldest Brother, after the conditional Contingent Estate in Fee to the Youngest, as depending upon the Possibility that he might be alive when his youngest Brother died without Issue; and his Dying without Issue, was a collateral Determination of his Estate, whilst the other was living. Godb. 282. 2 Nelf. Abr. 798. There can be no Executory Devise after an Estate-tail generally limited, because that would tend to a Perpetuity; and a Contingency is too remote where a Man must expect a Fee upon another's Dying without Issue generally: But dying without Issue, living another, may happen in a little Time, because it depends upon one Life; and therefore a Devise of a Fee-simple to one, but to remain to another upon such a Contingency, is now held good by Executory Devise. 2 Cro. 695. Sometimes cross Remainders in Tail by Implication, have been pleaded against Executory Devises. Formerly where a Term of Years, which is but a Chattel, was devised to one; and that if he died, living another Person, it should remain to the other Person, during the Residue of the Term, such a Remainder was adjudged void: For a Devise of a Chattel to one for an Hour, was a Devise of it for ever. Dyer 74. But since it has been held, that a Remainder of a Term to one, after it was limited to another for Life, was good: In a Case where a Testator having a Term devised that his Wife should have the Lands for so many Years of the Term as she should live; and that after her Death, the Residue thereof should go to his Sons and his Assigns; and this was the first Case wherein an Executory Remainder of a Term for Years was adjudged good. Dyer 358, 253. Executory Devises, as to Terms for Years, are not extended beyond one Life, or Lives; they ought to arise within the Compass of one Life. 1 Salk. 229. Where there is an Executory Devise, there needs not any particular Estate to support it; and because the Person who is to take upon Contingency, hath not a present but a future Interest, his Estate cannot be barred by a common Recovery; and for that it was a Remainder not in Being when the Recovery was suffered, it has been adjudged it could not be barred by such a Recovery. 2 Nelf. Abr. 797, 798.

Exemplification of Letters Patent. Is a Copy or Transcript of Letters Patent, made from the Inrolment thereof, and sealed with the Great Seal of England; which Exemplifications are as effectual to be shewed or pleaded, as the Letters Patent themselves. But neither an Exemplification nor Constat was pleadable at Common Law, because they were only the Tenor of an Inrolment, and the Tenor of Record is not pleadable: Though by the Statutes of 6 R. 2. c. 4. 3 Ed. 6. and 13 Eliz. they are pleadable. 5 Rep. 53. One may exemplify a Patent under the Great Seal in Chancery; and also any Record or Judgment, in any of the Courts at Westminster, under the proper Seal of each Court; and such an Exemplification may be given in Evidence to a Jury, &c. 1 Lill. 583. A Rule made, or Writ filed, in any Court at Westminster, may be likewise exemplified in the Court where made or filed. 1651. C. B. But nothing but Matter of Record ought to be exemplified. 3 Inst. 173.

Exemplificatione. Is a Writ granted for the Exemplification of an original Record. Reg. Orig. 290.

Exemption. (Exemptio) Signifies a Privilege to be free from Service or Appearance; as Knights, Clergymen, &c. are exempted to appear at the County-Court by Statute; and Peers from being put upon Inquests. 6 Rep. 23. Also there is an Exemption from Tolls, Duties, &c. by the King's Letters Patent.

Exercitiale. Was anciently used for a Heriot: Exercitiale Vironis sive Baronis Regis, qui est proximus ei, quatuor Equi. Leg. Edw. Confess. 1.

Exfreolare. (From the Sax. Frede, Frih, Peace, and Fritbian) To break the Peace, or commit open Violence. Leg. Hen. 1. c. 31.

Ex grabi Querela. Is a Writ that lies for him to whom any Lands or Tenements in Fee are devised by Will, (within any City, Town or Borough, wherein Lands are devisable by Custom) and the Heir of the Devisor enters, and detains them from him. Rep. Orig. 244. Old. Nat. Br. 87. And if a Man devises such Lands or Tenements unto another in Tail, with Remainder over in Fee, if the Tenant in Tail enter, and is seised by Force of the Intail, and afterwards dieth without Issue; he in the Remainder shall have the Writ Ex gravi Querela to execute that Devise. New. Nat. Br. 441. Also where a Tenant in Tail dies without Issue of his Body, the Heir of the Donor, or he who hath the Reversion of the Land, shall have this Writ in the Nature of a Formedon in the Reverter. Ibid.

Exhenium or Exennium. A Gift or Present, and more properly a New-Year's Gift. — In Expensis Domini Regis & Exennii eidem factis apud, &c. lxxv. sol. — Ex Compot. Dom. de Farend. M.S.

Exhibit. (Exhibitum) A Word mentioned in the Statute 14 Car. 2. cap. 14. And where a Deed, or other Writing, is in a Suit in Chancery exhibited tized to be proved by Witnesses, and the Examiner or Commissioners appointed, certify on the Back of it, that the Deed or Writing was shew'd to the Witness, to prove it at the Time of his Examination, and by him sworn to; this is called an Exhibit in Law Proceedings.

Exhibitio, An Allowance for Meat and Drink, such as was customary among the religious Appropriators of Churches, who usually made it to the depending Vicar; and the Benefactions settled for the Maintaining of Scholars in the Universities, not depending on the Foundation, are called Exhibitions. Paroch. Antiq. 304.

Exigendaries of the Common Pleas, (Exigendarii de Banco Communis) Are otherwise called Exigentes, by Stat. 10 H. 6. c. 4.

Exigent, (Exigenda) Is a Writ that lies where the Defendant in an Action Personal cannot be found, nor any Thing of his, within the County, whereby to be attached or distrained; and is directed to the Sheriff, to proclaim and call him five County-Court Days, one after another, charging him to appear upon Pain of Outlawry: It is called Exigent, because it exacteth the Party, i. e. requires his Appearance or Forth-coming to answer the Law; and if he come not at the last Day's Proclamation, he is said to be Quinquies Exactus, and is outlawed. Cromp. Jurisd. 188. The Statutes requiring Proclamations on Exigents awarded in Civil Actions, are 6 Hen. 8. c. 4. and 31 Eliz. cap. 3. This Writ also lies in an Indictment of Felony, where the Party indicted cannot be found: And upon suing out an Exigent for a criminal Matter before Conviction, there shall be a Writ of Proclamation, &c. 3 Inst. 31. 4 & 5 W. & M. cap. 22. If a Person indicted of Felony absent so long that the Writ of Exigent is awarded, his Withdrawing will be deemed a Flight in Law, whereby he will be liable to forfeit his Goods; and though he renders himself upon the Exigent, after such Withdrawing, and is found Not guilty, 'tis said the Forfeiture shall stand. 5 Rep. 110. 3 Inst. 232. After a Capias directed to the Sheriff to take and imprison a Felon, &c. if he cannot be taken, an Exigent is awarded: And after a Judgment in a Civil Action, the Exigent is to go forth after the first Capias; but before Judgment there must be a Capias, Alias and Pluries. 4 Inst. 177. If the Defendant be in Prison, or beyond Sea, &c. he or his Executors may reverse the Award of the Exigent. See Outlawry.

Exigentarius, (Exigendarius) Is an Officer of the Court of Common Pleas; of which Officers there are four in Number: They make all Exigents and Proclamations, in Actions where Process of Outlawry doth lie; and also Writs of Superfedeas, as well as the Prothonotaries, upon such Exigents made out in their Offices. 18 Hen. 6. c. 9. But the Issuing Writs of Superfedeas is taken from them by an Officer in the same Court, constituted by Letters Patent by King Jam. 1.

Exilium, Signifies in Law Constrution, a Spoiling: And by the Statute of Marlbridge it seems to extend to the Injury done to Tenants, by altering their Tenure, ejecting them, &c. and this is the Sense that Fleta determines; who distinguishes between Vastum, Destitutio and Exilium; for he tells us that Vastum & Destitutio are almost the same, and are properly applied to Houses, Gardens or Woods; but Exilium is when Servants are enfranchised, and afterwards unlawfully turned out of their Tenements. — Vastum

— Venditionem vel Exilium non faciant de Domibus, Boscis, vel hominibus, &c. Stat. Marl. c. 25.

Exitus, Issue or Off-spring; and applied to the Issues, or yearly Rents and Profits of Lands. — Et sciat vicecomes, quod Redditus, Blada in grangia, & omnia mobilia, prater equitaturam, Indumenta & Utenilia Domorum, continentur sub nomine Exituum. Stat. Westm. 2. c. 43.

Exlegalitus, Is he who is prosecuted as an Outlaw. Leg. Edw. Confess. c. 38.

Ex mero motu, Are Words used in the King's Charters and Letters Patent, to signify that he grants them of his own Will and Motion, without Petition or Suggestion of any other: And the Intent and Effect of these Words, is to bar all Exceptions that might be taken to the Charters or Letters Patent, by alledging that the King in granting them was abused by false Suggestion. Kitch. 352.

Ex officio, Is so called from the Power a Person has by Virtue of an Office, to do certain Acts, without being applied to: As a Justice of Peace may not only grant Surety of the Peace, at the Complaint or Request of any Person, but he may demand and take it Ex officio at Discretion, &c. Dalt. 270. And by Stat. 1 Eliz. c. 1. the Queen by her Letters Patent may authorize any Persons exercising Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction, to administer an Oath ex officio, whereby a supposed Offender was compelled to confess, accuse, or clear himself of any criminal Matter, and thereby made liable to Censure or Punishment, &c. but the Branch of this Statute relating to the said Oath, is repealed by 17 Car. 1. c. 11.

Exoneratione facta, Was a Writ that lay for the King's Ward, to be freed from all Suit to the County-Court, Hundred-Court, Leet, &c. during the Wardship. F. N. B. 158.

Exoneratione facta ad Curiam Baron. A Writ of the same Nature, sued by the Guardian of the King's Ward, and directed to the Sheriff or Stewards of the Court, that they do not distrain him, &c. for not doing Suit of Court. New. Nat. Br. 352. And if the Sheriff distrain Tenants in ancient Demesne, to come to the Sheriff's Turn or Leet, they may have a Writ commanding the Sheriff to surcease, &c. Ibid. 359. Likewise if a Man have Lands in divers Places in the County, and he is constrained to come to the Leet where he is not dwelling, when he resides within the Precinct of another Leet, &c. then he shall have this Writ to the Sheriff to discharge him from coming to any other Court-Leet than in the Hundred where he dwelleth. Ibid. 357.

Expalmare, To strike any Person with the Palm of the Hand. Blount.

Ex parte, Of the one Part; as a Commission in Chancery Ex parte, is that which is taken out and executed by one Side or Party only, on the other Party's Neglecting or Refusing to join: When both Plaintiff and Defendant proceed, it is a Joint-Commission.

Ex parte satis, Is a Writ that lies for a Bailiff or Receiver, who having Auditors assigned to take his Account, cannot obtain of them reasonable Allowance, but is cast into Prison: And the Course in this Case is to sue this Writ out of the Chancery, directed to the Sheriff to take four Mainpernors to bring his Body before the Barons of the Exchequer at a certain Day, and to warn the Lord to appear at the same Time. F. N. B. 129.

Main-

Expectant, Having Relation to or depending upon; and this Word is used in the Law with Fee, as Fee-Expectant: If Land is given to a Man and his Wife, to hold to them and their Heirs; in this Case they have a Fee-simple: But if it be given to them and the Heirs of their Bodies, &c. they have a Fee-Expectant; and thus it is opposite to Fee-simple. Kitch. 153.

Expeditare, (Expeditare) In the Laws of the Forest, signifies to cut out the Ball of Dogs Forefeet, for the Preservation of the King's Game: But the Ball of the Foot of a Mastiff is not to be taken out, but the three Claws of the Forefoot on the right Side are to be cut off by the Skin. Crompt. Jurisd. 152. Manwood, cap. 16. This relates to every Man's Dog who lives near the Forest; and was formerly done once in every three Years: And if any Person keeps a great Dog not expeditated, he forfeits to the King 3 s. 4 d. 4 Inst. 308.

Expeditæ Arbores, Trees rooted up, or cut down to the Roots. — Inquiratur de Arboribus Expeditatis in Foresta. Fleta, lib. 2. c. 41.

Expeditores, Are the Persons appointed by Commissioners of Sewers, to pay, disburse or expend the Money collected by the Tax for the Repairs of Sewers, &c. when paid into their Hands by the Collectors, on the Reparations, Amendments and Reformatations ordered by the Commissioners; for which they are to render Accounts when thereunto required. Laws of Sewers, 87, 88. These Officers are mentioned in the Statute 37 Hen. 8. c. 11. and other Statutes: The Steward who supervises the Repair of the Banks and Water-courses in Rumney Marsh is called the Expeditior.

Expensæ Litis, Costs of Suit allowed a Plaintiff or Defendant recovering in his Action. See Costs.

Expensis militum non levandis, &c. Is an ancient Writ to prohibit the Sheriff from levying any Allowance for Knights of the Shire, upon those that hold Lands in ancient Demesne. Reg. Orig. 261. For there is a Writ De Expensis militum levandis, for levying Expences for Knights of the Parliament, &c. Reg. Orig. 191.

Expleses, The Rents or Profits of an Estate, &c. Vide Esplees.

Explozator, A Scout; also a Huntsman or Chaser. — In memoriam Henrici Croft Equitis aurati, Exploratoris in Hibernia Generalis, qui obiit Anno 1609.

Exportation, Is the Shipping or Carrying out the native Commodities of England for other Countries; mentioned in the Statutes relating to the Customs. See Importation.

Extend, (Extendere) Is to value the Lands or Tenements of one bound by a Statute, &c. who hath forfeited his Bond, at such an indifferent Rate, as by the yearly Rent the Creditor may in Time be paid his Debt. F. N. B. 131.

Extendi facias, A Writ of Extent, whereby the Value of Lands is commanded to be made and levied, &c. Reg. Orig.

Extent, (Extenta) Signifies a Writ or Commission to the Sheriff for the Valuing of Lands or Tenements; and sometimes the Act of the Sheriff or other Commissioner upon this Writ. Bro. 313. Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. cap. 5. And it hath been held more frequently to be the Estimate or Valuation of Lands, which when done to the utmost Value, is said to be the full Extent; whence come our extended Rents, or Rack-Rents. Cowel. And if one bound to the King by Specialty, or to others by Statute, Recognizance, &c. hath forfeited it; so that by the yearly Rent of the Debtor's Lands, the Creditor is to be paid his Debt; upon this the Creditor may sue a Writ to the Sheriff out of the Chancery to deliver him the Lands and Goods to the Value of the Debt, which is termed a Liberate. F. N. B. 131. This is after the Extent directed to the Sheriff to seise and value the Lands, &c. of the Debtor, to the utmost Extent. 4 Rep. 67. Lands and Goods are to be appraised and extended by the Inquest of twelve Men, and then delivered to the Creditor, in Order to the Satisfaction of his Debt: Every Extent ought to be by Inquisition and Verdict, by the Stat. Westm. 2. And the Sheriff without an Inquisition cannot execute the Writ. Cro. Jac. 569. The Body of the Cognisor, and all Lands and Tenements that were his at the Time of the Statute, &c. enter'd into, or afterwards, into whose Hands soever they come, are liable to the Extent. 2 Inst. 396. But Copyhold Lands are chargeable only during the Life of the Cognisor; and may not be extended by Elegit, so as to admit a Stranger to have Interest in the Lands held by Copy, without the Admittance of the Lord. Lands in ancient Demesne, Annuities, Rents, &c. are extendible. 1 Roll. Abr. 88. A Reversion of Lands, &c. may not be extended; but a Plaintiff had Judgment for his Debt and Damages de Reversione cum acciderit, and a special Elegit to extend the Moiety, &c. 2 Sid. 86. Dyer 373. An Advowson in gross, is not extendible on Elegit. &c. Stat. Westm. 2. cap. 18. An Office of Trust cannot be extended, because 'tis not assignable; and nothing shall be extended but what may be assigned over. Dyer 7. Though an Office is extendible in Equity. Chanc. Rep. 39. Goods and Chattels, as Leases for Years, Cattle, &c. in the Cognisor's own Hands, and not sold for valuable Consideration, are subject to the Extent. As the Lands are to be delivered to the Party at a reasonable yearly Value; so the Goods shall be delivered in Extent at a Price that is reasonable: And on a Scire facias ad computand. the Cognissee is to account according to the extended Value; not the real Value of the Land. Harv. 136. If the Extenders appraise and value the Lands too high, the Conussee at the Return of the Writ may pray that they may take and retain the Lands at the Rate appraised; and then 'tis said he may have Execution against their Lands for the Debt; but this may not be on Elegit. Cro. Jac. 12. It has been adjudged, that at the Return of the Writ, the Cognissee may refuse the Lands, &c. extended, if over-valued. Cro. Car. 148. The Cognisor cannot enter upon the Cognissee, when Satisfaction is received for the Debt, but is put to his Scire facias on an Extent: Though on an Elegit, the Defendant may enter, because the Land is only awarded, till the Debt which is certain is satisfied; whereas on Extent, the Land is to be held until the Debt, Damages and Costs, &c. are satisfied: And the Cognissee being in by Matter of Record, shall not be put out but by Matter of Record, viz. a Scire facias brought against him. 4 Rep. 67. Marsh's Rep. 207, 208. The Cognissee hath no absolute Property in Lands by the Ex- tent, till the Delivery upon the Liberate; but notwithstanding, by the very Extent they are in Custodia Legis for his Benefit. Cro. Car. 106, 148. No actual Seisin can be on an Extent; and a Cognisee of a Statute-staple, &c. cannot bring Ejectment before the Liberate; nor can the Sheriff upon the Liberate turn the Ter-tenant out of Possession, as he may upon a Hab. fac. Possessionem. 1 Ventr. 41. Where there is an Extent upon a Statute, and a Liberate thereupon, but it is not returned, yet it is good; though regularly when Inquisitions are taken, the Writ ought to be returned. 4 Rep. 67. 1 Lill. Abr. 592. The Sheriff may be charged to make a Return of his Writ, if he put the Cognisee in Possession of Part only; and so the Cognisee may have Possession of the Whole. 2 Nelf. Abr. 774. But if a Person suing out an Extent, die before the Return of the Writ, the Sheriff may not proceed in his Inquisition, &c. afterwards; for there must be a Prosecution de novo. 1 Cro. 325. After a full and perfect Execution had by Extent, return'd and of Record, there shall never be any Re-extent upon an Evidtion: But if the Extent be insufficient in Law, there may be a new Extent. Stat. 32 Hen. 8. cap. 5. 1 Inst. 290. If Part of the Lands are evicted, the Cognisee is to hold over the Residue of the Land till the Debt is satisfied. 4 Rep. 66. Where Lands are delivered in Extent, it is as if the Cognisee had taken a Lease thereof for Years, till the Debt is satisfied; and he shall never afterwards take out a new Execution: The Cognisee having accepted the Land upon the Liberate, the Law presumes the Debt to be satisfied. 1 Lutw. 429. An Extent was filed, and though it was discovered that Lands were omitted, the Court would not grant a Re-extent. Sid. 356. Lands or Goods, &c. are not to be sold on an Extent; but delivered.

Extinguishment, (From Extinguo) Signifies a Consolidation: For Example; If a Man hath an yearly Rent out of Lands, and afterwards purchases the Lands whereout it ariseth, so as he hath as good an Estate in the Land as the Rent; now both the Property and Rent are consolidated or united in one Possessor; and therefore the Rent is said to be extinguished. Also where a Person has a Lease for Years, and afterwards buys the Property; this is a Consolidation of the Property and Fruits, and is an Extinguishment of the Lease: But if a Man have an Estate in Land but for Life or Years, and hath a higher Estate as a Fee-simple in the Rent; the Rent is not extinguished, but in Suspence for a Time: for after the Term, the Rent shall revive. Terms de Ley 327. Extinguishment of a Rent is a Destroying of the Rent by Purchase of the Land; for no one can have a Rent going out of his own Land; though a Person must have as high an Estate in the Land, as in the Rent, or the Rent will not be extinct. 1 Inst. 147. If a Person hath a Rent-charge to him and his Heirs, issuing out of Lands, and he purchaseth any Part of the Land to him and his Heirs; as the Rent is entire and issuing out of every Part of the Land, the whole Rent-charge is extinguished: But it is not so where one hath a Rent-service, and purchases Part of the Land out of which it issues; Rent-service, being apportionable according to the Value of the Land, so that it shall only extinguish the Rent for the Land purchased. Litt. 222. 1 Inst. 145. And if the Grantee of a Rent-charge, purchases Parcel of the Lands, and the Grantor by his Deed granteth that he may distrain for the Rent in the Residue of the Land; this amounts to a new Grant. 1 Inst. 147. If a Man be seised of a Rent-charge in Fee, and grants it to another and his Heirs, and the Tenant attorns; the Grantor is without Remedy for the Rent in arrear before his Grant; and such Arrears become as it were extinct. Vaugh. 40. 1 Lill. Abr. 594. A. B. made a Lease for Years of Lands to another, and afterwards granted a Rent charge to C. D. who devised the said Rent to the said A. B. till 100*l.* should be levied; then to B. G. and died: Adjudged that by the Devise to A. B. the Rent was suspended, and that personal Thing once suspended by the Act of the Party, is extinguished for ever. Dyer 140. A Lease was granted to one for 100 Years, and the Lessee made a Lease for twenty Years, rendring Rent; afterwards the Lessee purchased the Reversion in Fee of the first Term, and it was held that he shall not have the Rent on his Lease, because that being incident to the Reversion of the first Term, is extinguished by the Reversion in Fee, both being in one Person. Moor 94. 2 Nelf. Abr. 821. When the Freehold cometh to the Term, the Estate for Years is extinct. Nelf. Ibid. 820. Where the Remainder of a Term is granted over to another, if the Party in Possession purchase the Fee-simple, though by this Means his Interest is extinguished; yet that shall not defeat the reversionary Interest. 10 Rep. 52. 2 Nelf. 820. A Fine, &c. of Lands, will extinguish a Term: And by Purchase of an Estate in Fee-simple, an Estate-tail in Land is extinct. 9 Rep. 139. Discent of Lands to the same Person who has a Term, will extinguish the Term. Moor 286. If a Copyholder takes a Lease of the Land held by Copyhold Tenure, his Copyhold is extinguished. Cro. Eliz. 7. And a Copyhold Estate is extinct whenever it becomes not demisable by Copy. Coke's Copyhold 62. When a Lessor enters tortiously upon the Lessee against his Consent, the Rent is extinguished. 2 Lev. 143. But it hath been adjudged that Rent is not extinct by the Entry of the Lessor, but only suspended; and revives by the Lessee's Re-entry. Dyer 361. If a Debtee makes the Debtor Executor, the Debt is extinct: And if a Feme Obligee take the Obligor to Husband, it amounteth to an Extinguishment. 1 Salk. 304. See Unity of Possession.

Extinguishment of Common. By purchasing Lands wherein a Person hath Common Appendant, the Common is extinguished. Cro. El. 594. A Release of Common in one Acre, is an Extinguishment of the whole Common. Show. Rep. 350. And where a Person hath Common of Vicinage, if he encloses any Part of the Land, all the Common is extinct. 1 Brownl. 174. If a Man hath a Highway appendant to Land, and afterwards purchaseth the Land wherein the Highway is, the Way is extinct.

Extinguishment of Liberties. If Liberties and Franchises granted by the King, come again to the Crown, they shall not be extinguished: But 'tis otherwise in the King's Grants of Felons Goods, Waifs, Strays, Wrecks, &c. 9 Rep. 25.

Extirpation, Is a Judicial Writ, either before or after Judgment, that lies against a Person who when a Verdict is found against him for Land, &c. doth maliciously overthrow any House, or extirpate any Trees upon it. Reg. Jud. 13, 56.

Extocare, To grub up Lands, and reduce them to Arable or Meadow. Mon. Ang. tom. 2. p. 71.

Extortion, (Extorsio, from Extorqueo to wrest away) Is an unlawful Taking by any Officer, &c. by Colour of his Office, of any Money, or valuable Thing, from a Person where none at all is due, or not so much is due, or before it is due. 1 Inst. 368. 10 Rep. 102. At the Common Law which was affirmed by the Statute of Westm. 1. cap. 26. it was Extortion for any Minister of the King, whose Office did any way concern the Administration and Execution of Justice, or the common Good of the Subject, to take any Reward for doing his Office, except what he received from the King: Though reasonable Fees for the Labour and Attendance of Officers of the Courts of Justice are not restrained by Statute, which are stated and settled by the respective Courts; and it has been thought expedient to allow these Officers to take certain immediate Fees in many Cases. 2 Inst. 209. 3 Inst. 149. 1 Hawk. P. C. 170, 171. The taking of Money by Virtue of an Office, implies the Act to be lawful; but to take any Money by Colour of an Office, implies an ill Action: And the Taking being for Expedition of Business, is judged by Colour of the Office. 2 Inst. 206. 1 Inst. 368. Also where an Officer is not allow'd by Law to take any Thing, and it would be Extortion to do it, a Promise to pay Money is void. 1 Roll. Abr. 16. There must be a positive Charge in Cases of Extortion, and that the Person charged with it took so much Extorsive or colore Officii; which Words are as essential as Proditorie or Felonice for Treason or Felony. 2 Salk. 680. Extortion by the Common Law is severely punished on Indictment by Fine and Imprisonment, and Removal of Officers from the Offices wherein committed: By Statute, Officers of Justices, &c. guilty of Extortion, are to render treble Value. 3 Ed. 1. c. 30. And there are divers Statutes for punishing Extortions of Sheriffs, Bailiffs, Gaolers, Clerks of the Assize, and of the Peace, Attornies and Solicitors, &c. 23 H. 6. 33. H. 8. 3 Fac. 1. 10 & 11 W. 3. Officers may be jointly indicted of Extortion, as they may be jointly guilty of the Offence. 1 Salk. 382. Against Attornies for Extortion, Action may be brought, and the Party grieved shall have treble Damages and Costs; but Information will not lie on the Statute 3 Fac. 1. c. 7. Sid. 434. 2 Nels. 822. If an Officer by terrifying another in his Office, take more than his ordinary Fees or Duties, he is guilty of Extortion; which may be compared to unlawful Usury, &c. And Crompton says, that Wrong done by any Man is a Trespass; but excessive Wrong is properly Extortion. Crompt. Just. 8. And Extortion has been deemed more odious than Robbery, because it carries an Appearance of Truth; and is often accompanied with Perjury in Officers, &c. by breaking their Oaths of Office. Extortion in a large Sense is taken for any Oppression by Power or Pretence of Right. 1 Hawk. P. C. 170.

Extracta Curia; The Issues or Profits of holding a Court, arising from the customary Fees, &c. Paroch. Antiq. 572.

Extracts Of Writings or Records, being Notes thereof. See Estrats.

Extrajudicial, Is when Judgment is pass'd in a Cause, not depending in that Court where given; or wherein the Judge has not Jurisdiction.

Extra-parochial, Signifies to be out of any Parish; and where any Thing is privileged and exempt from the Duties of a Parish. Stat. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 67. & Stat. 13 & 14 Car. 2. c. 12.

Extravagants, Are certain Constitutions of Popes, so called, because they are Extra Corpus Canonicum Gratiani, sive Extra Decretorum libros vagantur. Du Cange.

Extumæ, Reliques in Churches and Tombs. — Carular. Abbat. Glaston. M.S. f. 15.

Exuperare, To Overcome; and it sometimes signifies to Apprehend or Take, as, Exuperare vivum vel Mortuum. Leg. Edm. c. 2.

Ey, Insula, an Island; from which comes Eyet, a small Island or Islet, vulgarly called Eyght. Domesd.

Every Of Hawks. See Aery, Eyze, Vide Eire, and Justices in Eyre.

F.

F Is a Letter wherewith Felons, &c. are branded and mark'd with an hot Iron, on their being admitted to the Benefit of Clergy. See the Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 13.

Fabrick Lands, Are Lands given towards the Rebuilding or Repairing of Cathedrals and other Churches: For in ancient Time, almost every Person gave by his Will, more or less, to the Fabrick of the Cathedral or Parish-Church where he lived; and Lands thus given were called Fabrick Lands, being ad Fabricam reparandum: These Lands are mentioned in the Statute 12 Car. 2. c. 8.

Facta Armorum, Feats of Arms, Jests, Tournaments, &c. — Rex Ricardus in Angliam transiens Statuit Facta Armorum, quæ vulgo Torneamenta dicuntur, in Anglia exerceri. Hist. Joh. Brompton, in Ric. 1. p. 1261.

Facto, In Fact; as where any Thing is actually done, &c. See De facto.

Factor, Is a Merchant's Agent residing beyond the Seas, or in any remote Parts, constituted by Letter or Power of Attorney: And one Factor may be concerned for several Merchants, and they shall all run a joint Risque of his Actions. If the Principal give the Factor a general Commission to Act for the best, he may do for him as he thinks fit; but otherwise he may not. Tho' in Commissions at this Time, it is common to give the Factor Power in expresse Words to Dispose of the Merchandize, and deal therein as if it were his own; by which the Factor's Actions will be excused, tho' they occasion Loss to his Principal. Lex Mercat. 151. A bare Commission to a Factor to sell and dispose of Merchandize, is not a sufficient Power for the Factor to entrust any Person, or to give a farther Day of Payment than the Day of Sale of the Goods; for in this Case, on the Delivery of the one, he ought to receive the other: And by the general Power of doing as if it were his own, he may not trust out an unreasonable Time; viz. beyond one, two or three Months, &c. the usual Time allow'd for the Commodities dispos'd of; if he doth, he shall be answerable to his Principal out of his own Estate. 1 Bulst. 103. 7 Fac. 1. B. R. If a Factor buys Goods on Account of his Principal, where he is used so to do, the Contract of the Factor shall oblige the Principal to a Performance of the Bargain; and he is the proper Person to be prosecuted, on Non-performance: But if the Factor enters enters into a Charter-Party of Affreightment with a Master of a Ship, the Contract obliges him only; unless he lades aboard generally his Principal's Goods, when both the Principal and Lading become liable for the Freight, and not the Factor. Goldsb. 157. Goods remitted to a Factor, ought to be carefully preserv'd; yet if the Factor buy Goods for his Principal, and they receive Damage after in his Possession, thro' no Negligence of his, the Principal shall bear the Loss: And if a Factor be robb'd, he shall be discharg'd in Account brought against him by his Principal, 4 Rep. 83. He is accountable for all lawful Goods which shall come to his Hands: And if the Factor has Orders from his Principal not to sell any Goods but in such a manner, and he breaks those Orders, he is liable to the Loss or Damage that shall be received thereby: And where any Goods are bought or exchanged, without Orders, it is at the Merchant's Courtesy whether he will accept of them, or turn them on his Factor's Hands. Lex Mercat. 154, 155. When a Factor has bought or sold Goods pursuant to Orders, he is immediately to give Advice of it to his Principal; least the former Orders should be contradicted before the Time of his giving Notice, whereby his Reputation might possibly suffer: And where a Factor has made a considerable Profit for his Principal, he must take due Care in the Disposition of the same; for without Commission or particular Orders, he is answerable. Ibid. A Factor shall suffer for not observing of Orders; and no Factor acting for another Man's Account in Merchandize, can justify Receding from the Orders of his Principal, tho' there may be a Probability of Advantage by it: If he make any Composition with Creditors without Orders, he shall answer it to his Principal. Ibid. Factors ought to observe the Contents of all Letters from their Principals, or written to them by their Order; and to be very diligent and punctual in giving speedy and particular Answers: They should make it their Business to study the Nature, Value, Rise and Fall of Merchandizes, as well here at Home as Abroad, and also the proper Seasons of Buying and Selling, &c.

Factorage, Is the Wages or Allowance paid and made to a Factor by the Merchant. The Gain of Factorage is certain, however the Success proves to the Merchant; but the Commissions and Allowances vary according to the Customs and Distance of the Country, in the several Places where Factors are resident: In the West-Indies, the Commission runs at about 8 per Cent. but in France and Spain, &c. not above 2 per Cent. and in Holland but one and a half per Cent. Lex Mercat. 155.

Factum, A Man's own Fact, Act, or Feat; and particularly used in the Civil Law. See Fait.

Faculty, (Facultas) As restrained from the Original and active Sense, to a particular Understanding in Law, is used for a Privilege granted to a Man by Favour and Indulgence, to do that which by Law he ought not to do. And for the Granting of these, there is an especial Court under the Archbishop of Canterbury, called the Court of the Faculties; and the chief Officer thereof the Master of the Faculties; who has Power by the Stat. 25 H. 8. c. 21. to grant Dispensations, as to marry Persons without the Banes first ask'd, to eat Flesh on Days Prohibited, (and every Diocesan may make the like Grants) to Ordain a Deacon under Age, for a Son to succeed the Father in his Benefice, one to have two or more Benefices incompatible, &c. And in this Court are registred the Certificates of Bishops and Noblemen granted to their Chaplains, to qualify them for Pluralities and Non-Residence. 4 Inst. 337.

Fasting-Men, or Fastening-Men, In Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 100. are render'd to signify Vassals: But Cowel thinks they rather mean Pledges or Bondsmen; which by the Customs of the Saxons, were fast bound to answer for one another's peaceable Behaviour.

Fig, (From the Saxon Pece, intervallum) Is a Knot or Excreescency in Cloth; and in this Sense it is used in the Stat. 4 Ed. 4. c. 1.

Faggot, A Badge wore in the Times of Popery, by Persons who had recanted and abjured what the then Powers adjudg'd Heresy: Those poor Wretches that oppos'd the Doctrine of the Arbitrary Priesthood, were condemn'd not only to the Penance of carrying a Faggot, as an Emblem of what they had merited, to such an appointed Place of Solemnity; but for a more durable Mark of Infamy, they were to have the Sign of a Faggot embroidered on the Sleeve of their upper Garment: And if this Badge or Faggot was at any Time left off, it was often alledged as the Sign of Apostacy.

Faida, Malice or deadly Feud. Leg. H. 1. c. 88.

Failure of Record, Is when an Action is brought against a Man, who alledges in his Plea Matter of Record in Bar of the Action, and avers to prove it by the Record; but the Plaintiff saith, Nul tiel Record, viz. denies there is any such Record: Upon which, the Defendant hath Day given him by the Court to bring it in; and if he fails to do it, then he is said to fail of his Record, and the Plaintiff shall have Judgment to recover. Terms de Ley, 329. In Debt upon an Escape, the Plaintiff declared, that he had obtained a Judgment in an Inferior Court, upon which the Defendant was taken, and the Sheriff suffered him to escape; the Defendant pleaded Nul tiel Record, and being at Issue brought in the Record at the Day; by which it appear'd that there were several Variances in the Continuances and Process; but because the Plaintiff, Count, and Judgment certified, did agree with the Plaintiff's Declaration, it was held that those Variances made no Failure of Record. Hob. 179. 2. Nelf. Abr. 823. In Formedon for the Manor of Isfield; the Defendant pleaded in Bar a Common Recovery of the said Manor against the Donee in Tail, who replied Nul tiel Record, and the Defendant having brought in the Record, it appear'd that the Recovery was of the Manor of Iffield; and adjudg'd, that this being in a Common Recovery, shall be no Failure of Record for this small Variance, but shall be amended being the Misprision of the Clerk. 5 Rep. 46. And where a Fine with Proclamations was levied, and upon an Issue of Nul tiel Record, on which it was brought in at the Day, tho' the Year of the King was left out in the Proclamations made in one Term, as it was expressed in the Proclamations of the other two Terms, they were held to be right, and the Omission no Failure of Record. Dyer 234. If a Judgment, &c. be reversed for Error, Nul tiel Record may be pleaded. 8 Rep. 142. And where a Tenor only of a Record, &c. is brought in, it is a Failure of Record. Dyer 187. 2. Nelf. 824.

Faint-Action, (Fr. Feinte) A Feigned Action; such that altho' the Words of the Writ are true, yet for certain Causes the Plaintiff hath no Title to recover thereby: But a False Action is properly where the Words of the Writ are false. 1 Inst. 361.

Faint-Pleader, Is a fraudulent, false or collusive manner of Pleading, to the Deceit of a Third Person; against which, among other Things, was made the Statute 3 Ed. 1. c. 29.

Fair-Pleader, Or not Pleading fairly, &c. See Beaupleader.

Fair, (Fr. Feire, Lat. Nundina) A solemn or greater Sort of Market, granted to any Town by Privilege, for the more speedy and commodious Providing of such Things as the Subject needeth; and the Utterance of what Commodities we abound in above our own Uses and Occasions: And both our English and the French Word seems to come from Feria, because it is incident to a Fair that Persons shall be privileged from being molested or arrested in it, for any other Debt or Contract than what was contracted in the same, or at least was promis'd to be paid there. Stat. 17 Ed. 4. c. 2. and 1 R. 3. c. 6. It is generally kept once or twice in the Year; and a Mart is a great Fair holden every Year. 2 Inst. 221. The Court of Piepowder is incident to every Fair, &c. And there is a Toll usually paid in Fairs and Markets, on the Sale of Things tollable, and for Stallage, Picage, &c. But this is not incident to a Fair or Market, without special Grant; for where it is not granted, such a Fair or Market is accounted a Free Fair or Market. 2 Inst. 220. Cro. Eliz. 559. By the Statute 2 Ed. 3. c. 15. Fairs are not to be kept longer than they ought by the Lords thereof, on Pain of their being seised into the King's Hands, until such Lords have paid a Fine for the Offence; and Proclamation is to be made how long Fairs are to continue: Also no Merchant shall sell any Goods or Merchandize at a Fair after the Time of the Fair is ended, under the Penalty of forfeiting double the Value of the Goods sold, one fourth Part whereof to the Prosecutor, and the rest to the King. 5 Ed. 3. c. 5. Any Citizen of London may carry his Goods or Merchandize to any Fair or Market in England at his Pleasure: Whereas an Ordinance had been made by the Lord Mayor, Aldermen and Citizens, that no Citizen should go to any Fair or Market out of the said City. 3 H. 7. c. 9. Owners of Fairs and Markets are to appoint Toll-takers or Book-keepers, on Pain of 40 s. and they shall enter and give Account of Horses sold, &c. 2 & 3 P. & M. c. 7. and 31 Eliz. c. 12. See Market.

Fait, (Factum) Is in Law Signification a Deed or Writing, lawfully executed to bind the Parties thereto. Vide Deed.

Faitours (Fr.) In the Statute 7 R. 2. c. 5. is used for Evil Doers; and may be interpreted Idle Livers, from Faitardise, which signifieth a Kind of sleepy Disease, proceeding of too much Sluggishness: And in the said Statute it seems to be synonymous with Vagabond. Terms de Ley, 331.

Falang, A Jacket or Close Coat, Blount.

Falcatura, One Day's Mowing of Grass; a customary Service to the Lord by his inferior Tenants: Falcata was the Grass fresh mowed, and laid in Swathes; and Falcator, the servile Tenant performing the Labour. Kennet's Gloss.

Falco, A Falcon. — K. John, in the 14th Year of his Reign, granted to Owen Fitz-David, and others, Omnes accipitres & Falcones gentiles & spuriarios, &c. — Pat. 14 Joh.

Falda, A Sheep-fold — Et quod Oves sint levantes & cubantes in propria Falda, &c. Rot. Chart. 16 Hen. 3. m. 6.

Faldage, (Faldagium) Is a Privilege which several Lords anciently reserved to themselves, of setting up Folds for Sheep in any Fields within their Manors, for the better Manurance of the same; and this was usually done not only with their own, but their Tenant's Sheep, which they called Setta falda. This Faldage is term'd in some Places a Fold-Course; and in old Charters Faldoca, i. e. Libertas Faldæ, or Faldagii.

Faldata, A Flock or Fold of Sheep; as many as were usually folded in one Pen, or Fold. Cowel.

Faldæcurtus, A Sheep-Walk, or Feed for Sheep. 2 Ventr. Rep. 139.

Faldsey, Fald-fee, A Fee or Rent paid by some customary Tenants for Liberty to fold their Sheep upon their own Land.

Faldstoz, (Sax.) The highest Seat of a Bishop, enclos'd round with a Lettice. Blount.

Faldwoth, A Person of Age, that he may be reckoned of some Decennary. Du Fresne.

Faleræ, (Lat. Phalera) The Tackle and Furniture of a Cart or Wain. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. f. 256.

Falesta, A great Rock, Bank or Hill by the Sea-side. Domesd.

Fallow-land, Vide Warectum & Terra Warecta.

Fallum, Is a Sort of Land, as appears by the Monasticon Anglicanum. — De duobus acris & viginti Fallis in, &c. Mon. Tom. 2. 425.

False Claim, By the Forest Laws, is where a Man claims more than is his Due, and is amerced and punished for the same. A Person had a Grant by Charter of the Tenth of all the Venison in the Forest of Lancaster, viz. In Carne tantum, sed non in Corio; and because he made a False Claim, by alledging that he ought to have the Tenth of all Venison within the Forest, as well in Carne, as in Corio, therefore he was in Misericordia de Decima Venationis sue in Corio non percipiendo. Manwood, cap. 25. num. 3.

False Imprisonment, (Falsum Imprisonamentum) Is a Trespass committed against a Person, by Arresting and Imprisoning him without just Cause, contrary to Law; or where a Man is unlawfully detained, without legal Process: And it is also used for a Writ which is brought upon this Trespass. If a Person be any way unlawfully detain'd, it is False Imprisonment; and considerable Damages are recoverable in these Actions. 1 Inst. 124. The Law favours Liberty, and the Freedom of a Man from Imprisonment, so that False Imprisonment is a great Offence; and lawful Imprisonment is so far pitied, that by several Statutes, as well as by the Common Law, Defaults are saved on that Account. Wood's Inst. 16. The King cannot give any Power to imprison, where Imprisonment may not be awarded by the Common Law. 2 Brownl. 18. And if a Person is imprison'd on any By-Law of a Corporation, &c. it is False Imprisonment; because a By-Law to imprison is against Magna Charta, quod nullus Liber Homo Imprisonetur, &c. 5 Rep. 64. It is the same of a Custom to imprison Persons: But 'tis incident to a Court of Record to imprison. 2 Nelf. Abr. 827. If a Justice of Peace, &c. commits a Person without just Cause, it is False Imprisonment: And a Constable cannot imprison a Man at his Pleasure, to compel him to do any Thing required by Law; but is to carry him before a Justice. Ibid. 1 Leon. 327. If erroneous Process issues out of a Court that hath Jurisdiction of the Matter,

Matter, and the Bailiff or Officer executes it, whereby the Party is imprison'd, the Officer shall be excused in Action of False Imprisonment: But if the Court out of which the Process issues hath no Cognizance of the Cause, it is otherwise; for in such Case the Officer will not be excused. 10 Rep. 75. An Officer hath a Warrant upon a Capias ad Satisfaciend. against an Earl, or Countess, &c. who are privileged in their Persons, and he arrests them; 'tis said Action of False Imprisonment will not lie against the Officer, because he is not to examine the Judicial Act of the Court, but to obey. 6 Rep. 56. 10 Rep. 75. Where a Person is taken and imprison'd on a Process unduly obtain'd, Action of False Imprisonment may be brought by the Party imprison'd, against him at whose Suit he is imprison'd; but not against the Officer that executes it. 1 Lill. Abr. 595. If an Arrest is made by one who is no legal Officer, it is False Imprisonment, for which Action lies. 1 Inst. 69. Action of False Imprisonment lies against a Bailiff for arresting a Person without Warrant, tho' he afterwards receives a Warrant: And so it is if he arrest one after the Return of the Writ is past; for it is then without Writ. 2 Inst. 53. If a Warrant be granted to arrest or apprehend a Person, where there are several of the Name, and the Bailiff or other Officer arrests a wrong Person, he is liable to Action of False Imprisonment; and he is to take Notice of the right Party at his Peril. Dyer 244. Moor 457. A Man arrested of a Sunday may bring his Action of False Imprisonment; but one has been refused to be released in such a Case. 5 Mod. 95. When a Person is kept longer in Hold than he ought, tho' he was at first lawfully imprison'd, it is False Imprisonment: If a Bailiff demand more than his just Fees, when offer'd him, and keep a Person in Custody thereupon, it is False Imprisonment, and punishable: And if a Sheriff, or Gaoler, keeps a Prisoner in Gaol, after his Acquittal, for any Thing except for Fees, it is unlawful Imprisonment. 2 Inst. 482. Wood 16. Unlawful Imprisonment is sometimes called Duress of Imprisonment where one is wrongfully imprison'd 'till he seals a Bond, &c. 2 Inst. 482. A Man under Arrest, or in Stocks, &c. is said to be in Prison: And in a common Arrest, where lawful, the Officer may make any Place his Prison, because the Writ commands that Habeas Corpus ejus coram, &c. apud Westm. which is a general Authority. 1 Salk. 401. In criminal Cases, where a Man is falsely imprison'd, he may bring a Habeas Corpus, and upon Return of the Writ, setting forth the Cause of the Commitment, if it appears to be against Law, he shall be discharg'd; or he may be bailed, if it be doubtful, &c. 4 Inst. 182.

False Judgment, (Falsum Judicium) Is a Writ that lieth where False Judgment is given in the County-Court, Court-Baron, or other Courts not of Record. F. N. B. 17, 18. This Writ may be brought on a Judgment in a Plea, Real or Personal: And for Errors in the Proceedings of Inferior Courts; or where they proceed without having Jurisdiction, Writ of False Judgment lieth: Tho' the Plaintiff assign Errors in a Writ of False Judgment, he shall not say, In hoc Erratum est, &c. but unde queritur diversimodo sibi Falsum Judicium factum fuisse, Judicium in hoc, &c. Moor 73. 2 Nels. Abr. 829. If Writ of False Judgment abate for Default in the Writ, the Plaintiff shall not have a Scire facias ad audiend. Errores upon the Record certified; because it comes without an Original; but if the Plaintiff dies, and False Judgment is given in the Inferior Court, his Heir shall have a Sci. fac. ad audiend. Error. against him who recovered upon that Record, which is removed into C. B. And where the Plaintiff in a Writ of False Judgment is Nonsuit, it was formerly a Question, whether the other Party shall sue Execution upon this Record so removed against the Plaintiff, without suing out a Scire facias; but it has been adjudg'd that he may do it. Hill. 23. H. 6. New Nat. Br. 39. When a Record is removed into B. R. by Writ of False Judgment, if the Party alleges Variance between the Record removed, and that on which Judgment was given, the Trial shall be by those who were present in Court when the Record was made up. 2 Lutw. 957. A Man shall not have a Writ of False Judgment but in a Court where there are Suitors; for if there be no Suitors, there the Record cannot be certified by them, New Nat. Br. 40. A Tenant at Will, according to the Custom of the Manor, which is Tenant by Copy of Court-Roll, shall not have a Writ of False Judgment upon a Judgment given against him: But where False Judgment is given on a Writ of Justicies, directed to the Sheriff, the Party grieved shall have a Faux Judgment, altho' the Judgment be for Debt, or Trespass above the Sum of 40 s. Ibid. Upon False Judgment before Bailiffs, or others who hold Plea by Prescription, in every Sum in Debt by Bill before them, a Party shall not have Writ of False Judgment; but a Writ of Error thereupon. M. 4. E. 4. For Defaults of Tenants for Life, in Writs of Right, &c. Faux Judgment lies by him in Reversion: And this Writ may be brought against a Stranger to the Judgment, if he be Tenant of the Land. A Judgment shall be intended good till reversed by Writ of False Judgment, &c. See Accedas ad Curiam, and Attaint.

Falſe Latin, A Latin Word which is significant, tho' it be not good Latin, yet an Indictment, Declaration or Fine, shall not be made void by it: If the Word is not Latin, nor allowed by the Law, and it be in a material Point, it makes the whole vicious. 3 Rep. 121. Falſe Latin will not vitiate a Writ, Plea, Declaration, Grant or Decd. 2 Nels. 830. Vide Latin.

Falſe Tokens, As where Persons get Money or Goods into their Hands, by forg'd Letters, or other counterfeit Means, is punishable by Imprisonment, &c. by Statute 33 H. 8. c. 1. See Counterfeits.

Falſify, Seems to signify as much as to prove a Thing to be false. Perk. 383.

Falſifying a Record, A Person that purchases Land of another, who is afterwards outlawed of Felony, &c. may falseify the Record, not only as to the Time wherein the Felony is suppos'd to have been committed, but also as to the Point of the Offence: But where a Man is found guilty by Verdict, a Purchaser cannot falseify as to the Offence; tho' he may for the Time, where the Party is found guilty generally in the Indictment, &c. because the Time is not material upon Evidence. 2 Hawk. P. C. 459. And any Judgment given by Persons who had no good Commission to proceed against the Person condemn'd, may be falseified by shewing the Special Matter, without Writ of Error. Ibid. Also where a Man is attainted of Treason or Felony, if he be afterwards pardoned by Parliament, the Attainder may be falseify'd, by him or his Heir, without Plea. Ibid.

Falsifying a Recovery. Issue in Tail may falsify a Recovery suffered by Tenant for Life, &c. And it has been held, that a Person may falsify a Recovery had by the Issue in Tail, where an Estate-Tail is bound before by a Fine, 2 Nels. Abr. 831. But where there was Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, and Reversion in Fee, Tenant for Life suffer'd a common Recovery, in which he in Remainder was vouch'd, and the Uses were declared to him, who had the Remainder in Tail; it was adjudged, that by the Recovery all Remainders and Reversions were barred, and that they could not falsify this Recovery. 10 Rep. 43. He in Reversion suffered a common Recovery, and declared the Uses; his Heir shall not falsify it by pleading that his Father had nothing at the Time of the Recovery, because he is estopp'd to say he is not Tenant to the Præcipe. Godb. 189. An Infant brought an Assise in B. R. Pending which Action the Tenant brought an Assise against the Infant in C. B. for the same Land, and had Judgment by Default, which he pleaded in Bar to the Assise brought by the Infant; who set forth all this Matter in his Replication, and that the Demandant at the Time of the second Writ brought was Tenant of the Land, and prayed that he might falsify this Recovery; and it was held that he might, because he could not have Writ of Error, or Attaint. Godb. 271. 2 Cro. 264. It has been determined, that a Recovery is not so firm, but it may be falsified in Point of Recovery of the Thing it self, between the same Parties. Ibid.

Falsionarius, A Forger.—Et quod Falsionarios Chartam, &c. detegent. Hoveden 424.

Falso retorno Brebium, Is a Writ that lieth against the Sheriff who hath Execution of Process, for false Returning of Writs. Reg. Jud. 43.

Familia; Signifies all the Servants belonging to a particular Master; but in another Sense, it is taken for a Portion of Land, sufficient to maintain one Family: It is sometimes mentioned by our Writers to be a Hide of Land, which is also called a Manse; and sometimes Carucata or a Plough-land. Blount.

Fanaticks, Are Persons pretending to be Inspired, and being a general Name for Quakers, Anabaptists, and all other Sectaries, and factious Dissenters from the Church of England. Statute 13 Car. 2. c. 6.

Fanatio, (Mensis Fanationis) Is the Fawning Season, or Fence-Month in Forests. Kennet's Gloss.

Fannatum Frumentum, Wheat or Bread-Corn fann'd and clean'd up with a Wind-fan fit for Use. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 136.

Farandman, (Sax.) A Traveller or Merchant Stranger, to whom by the Laws of Scotland Justice ought to be done with all Expedition, that his Business or Journey be not hindered. Skene, cap. 140.

Fardel of Land, (Fardella terra) Is generally accounted the fourth Part of a Yard-Land; but according to Noy, (in his compleat Lawyer, pag. 57.) it is an eighth Part only, for there he says that two Fardels of Land make a Nook, and four Nooks a Yard-Land.

Farding-deal, (Quadrantata terra) Signifies the fourth Part of an Acre: And besides Quadrantata terra, we read of Obolata, Denariata, Solidata and Librata terra, which probably arise in Proportion of Quantity from the Farding-deal, as an Half-penny, Penny, Shilling, or Pound in Money, rise in Value; and then must Obolata be Half an Acre, Denariata an Acre, Solidata twelve Acres, and Librata terra twelve-score Acres of Land: But some hold Obolata to be but Half a Perch, and Denariata a Perch; and I find Viginti Libratas terra vel redditus. Reg. Orig. 94. 248. whereby it seems that Librata terra is so much as yields 20 s. per Annum. F. N. B. 87. Spelm. Gloss.

Fare, (Sax.) A Voyage or Passage by Water; but more commonly the Money paid for such Passage, in which Sense we now use it. 3 P. & M. c. 16.

Farinagium, Toll of Meal or Flower.—Et quod de cetero Molendinarius non capiat Farinagium, &c. Ordin. Insul. de Jersey 17 Edw. 2.

Farleu, Is Money paid by Tenants in the West of England in lieu of a Heriot: And in some Manors in Devonshire, Farleu is distinguished to be the best Goods; as Heriot is the best Beast, payable at the Death of a Tenant. Cowel.

Farlingarii, Are Whoremongers and Adulterers. Sax.

Farm, or Ferm, (Lat. Firma, From the Sax. Feorm, i. e. Food, and Feormian to feed or yield Viſuals) Signifies a large Messuage and Land, taken by Lease under a certain yearly Rent, payable by the Tenant; and in former Days about the Time of William the 1st, called the Conqueror, these Rents were reserved in Viſuals and other Necessaries arising from the Land; but afterwards in the Reign of King H. 1. were altered and converted into Money. Locare ad Firmam is sometimes taken for as much as to let or set to Farm; and the Reason of it may be in Respect of the firm or sure hold the Tenants thereof have above Tenants at Will. A Farm in Lancashire is called Ferm-bolt; in the North a Tack, and in Essex a Wike: And Ferm is taken in various Ways. Plowd. 195.

Farmer, Is he that tenants a Farm, or is Lessee thereof: Also generally every Lessee for Life, Years, or at Will, is called Farmer. Terms de Ley. As this Word implies no Mystery, except it be that of Husbandry, Husbandman is the proper Addition for a Farmer. 2 Hawk. 188. By Statute, no Parson or Spiritual Person may take Farms or Leases of Land, on Pain of forfeiting 10 l. per Month, &c. 21 H. 8. c. 13. And no Person whatsoever shall take above two Farms together, and they to be in the same Parish, under the Penalty of 3 s. 4 d. a Week. 25 H. 8.

Farthing, Was the fourth Part of a Saxon Penny, as it is now of the English Penny.

Farthing of Gold, (Quasi fourth Thing) A Coin used in ancient Times, containing in Value the fourth Part of a Noble, viz. 20 d. Silver, and in Weight the sixth Part of an Ounce of Gold. It is mentioned in the Stat. 9 H. 5. c. 7. where it is ordained, that there shall be good and just Weight of the Noble, Half-Noble, and Farthing of Gold, &c.

Farthing of Land, Seems to differ from Farding-deal; for it is a large Quantity of Land: In a Survey Book of the Manor of West Slapton in Com. Devon. is entered thus: A. B. holds six Farthings of Land at 126 l. per Annum.

Farundel of Land, The same with Farding-deal.

Fassus, (Fr. Faisseau) A Faggot of Wood. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. p. 238.

Fasting-Days, Are Days of Fasting and Humiliation, appointed to be observed by Publick Authority. There are six Days of Fasting enjoined by our Church, at certain Times in the Year, mentioned in ancient Statutes, particularly the 2 & 3 Ed. 6. c. 19. and 5 Eliz. c. 5. and by 12 Car. 2. c. 14. the 30th of January is ordained to be a Day of Fasting and Repentance, for the Murder of King Charles 1. Other Days of Fasting which are not fix'd, are occasionally appointed by the King's Proclamation. Tho' Abstinence from eating of Flesh is required on those Days, by our Laws, politically enacted, it is made penal to affirm that any Eating of Fish, or Forbearing of Flesh, is necessary to Salvation. 1 Hawk. P. C. 8. See Embring Days.

Fastermans, Among the Saxons were Pledges. Leg. Ed. Confess. cap. 38. Vide Festingmen.

Fat, or Uate, Is a large wooden Vessel used by Malsters and Brewers, for measuring of Malt with Expedition, containing eight Bushels or a Quarter. Stat. 1 H. 5. c. 10. and 11 H. 6. c. 8. It is also a leaden Vessel, or Pan, made use of by Brewers to run their Wort into; and by others for the making of Salt at Droitwich, in the County of Worcester.

Faufetum, A Faucet, Musical Pipe, or Flute; but Blount applies it to a shrill Singing. — Organum & de. entum Faufetum in divino Officio omnibus nostris, &c. interdicimus.

Fautores, Are Favourers or Supporters of Others; Abettors of Crimes, &c.

Feal. The Tenants by Knight's Service did swear to their Lords to be Feal and Leal, i. e. to be Faithful and Loyal. Spel. de Parliament. 59.

Fealty, (Fidelitas, Fr. Feaulte, i. e. Fides) Signifies an Oath taken at the Admittance of every Tenant, to be true to the Lord of whom he holds his Land: And he that holds Lands by the Oath of Fealty, has it in the freest manner; because all Persons that have Fee, hold per Fidem and fiduciam, that is, by Fealty at the least. Smith de Repub. Angl. lib. 3. cap. 8. This Fealty, which is used in other Nations, as well as England, at the first Creation of it bound the Tenant to Fidelity; the Breach whereof was the Loss of his Fee. It is usually mentioned with Homage, but differs from it; being an Obligation permanent, which binds for ever: And these differ in the Manner of the Solemnity; for the Oath of Homage, is taken by the Tenant kneeling; but that of Fealty is taken standing, and includes the six following Things, viz. 1. Incolume, that he do no bodily Injury to the Lord. 2. Tutum, that he do no secret Damage to him in his House, or any Thing which is for his Defence. 3. Honestum, that he do him no Injury in his Reputation. 4. Utile, that he do no Damage to him in his Possessions. 5. Facile; and, 6. Possibile, that he render it easy for the Lord to do any Good, and not make that impossible to be done which was before in his Power to do: All which is comprised in Leg. H. 1. c. 5. Fealty has likewise been divided into General and Special; General, to be perform'd by every Subject to his Prince; and Special, required only of such as in respect of their Fee, are tied by Oath to their Lords. Grand Custum. Normand. Fealty Special is with us perform'd either by Freemen, or by Villains. The Particulars of the Oath of Fealty, as it is used by the Feudists, is well express'd by Zafius, in his Traſtat. de Feudis, Part 7. Num. 15, 16. which is worthy comparing with the usual Oath taken here in England. By Stat. 17 Ed. 2. the Form of this Oath is appointed, and as now observ'd, it runs as follows, viz.

I A. B. will be to You my Lord C. True and Faithful, and bear to You Fealty and Faith for the Lands and Tenements which I hold of You; And I will truly do and perform the Customs and Services that I ought to do to You. So help me God. The Oath is administered by the Lord, or his Steward; the Tenant holding his Right-hand upon the Book, and repeating after the Lord, &c. the Words of the Oath; and then kissing the Book. Terms de Ley. This Oath is in some Manors neglected; but in Copyhold Manors, where Courts are kept, and Copyhold Estates granted, it is generally used: Lessees for Life, or Years, ought to do Fealty to their Lords, for the Lands they hold; and there can be no Tenure without some Service. Wood's Inst. 183. But a bare Tenant at Will, shall not do Fealty, because he hath no certain Estate; and the Matter of an Oath ought to be certain. Litt. 131, 132. 1 Inst. 93. Fealty is incident to all manner of Tenures, except Frankalmoin and Tenancy at Will. Ibid. Fidelitas est Fidei, obsequii & servitii ligamen, quo particulariter Vassalus Domino asringitur. Spelm.

Feasts, Anniversary Times of Feasting and Thanksgiving, as Christmas, Easter, Whitsuntide, &c. The four Feasts which our Laws especially take Notice of, are the Feasts of the Annunciation of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of the Nativity of St. John the Baptist, of St. Michael the Archangel, and of St. Thomas the Apostle; on which Quarterly Days, Rent on Leases is usually reserved to be paid. See the Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. 3 Jac. 1. c. 1. 12 Car. 2. c. 30.

Fees of Attornies and Officers, Are Considerations paid and allow'd them as a Reward and Remuneration for their Pains and Labour; and in respect to Officers, they are granted to excite them to Diligence in executing their Offices. They differ from Wages, which are paid to Servants for certain Work and Labour done in a certain Space; whereas Fees are disbursed, to Officers, &c. for the transacting of Business which occasionally occurs. If a Client when his Business in Court is dispatch'd, refuseth to pay the Officer his Court-Fees; the Court on Motion will grant an Attachment against him, on which he shall be committed until the Fees are paid. 1 Lil. Abr. 598. Ecclesiastical Courts have not Power to establish Fees; for tho' they may think them reasonable, that is not binding: Yet if a Person bring a Quantum Meruit for Fees, and the Jury find for him, then they become establish'd Fees. 1 Salk. 333. Action of Debt, or Case, lies for an Attorney for his Fees, against him that retain'd him in his Cause. Mich. 22 Car. B. R. And Attornies are not to be dismis'd by their Clients, till their Fees are paid. 1 Lil. 142. But Attornies are not to demand more than their just Fees; nor to be allow'd Fees to Counsel without Tickets, &c. Stat. 3 Jac. 1. c. 7. There were no Fees due to Sheriffs for executing their Offices, till the Stat. 19 Eliz. &c. which allows them Fees for executing Writs of Execution, &c. By the Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. c. 42 & 44. the ancient Fees of Officers of Courts of Justice were ordained: And by Statutes, not only the Fees of Sheriffs, but of Gaolers, Bailiffs, &c. are limited. See Extortion.

Fee-Estate, (Feodum, or Fendum) Fee, comes of the French Fief, i. e. Pradium beneficiarum, vel res clientelaris, or from the Sax. Feb, viz. Mercus, Stipendium, quasi dicitur status Beneficiarius; and is said to be that Estate which we hold by the Benefit

Benefit of another, and for which we do Service or pay Rent to the chief Lord: And is applied to all those Lands and Tenements which are held by perpetual Right, by an Acknowledgment of any Superiority to a higher Lord. The Writers on this Subject, divide all Lands wherein a Man hath a perpetual Estate to him and his Heirs, into Allodium and Feudum: Allodium they define to be every Man's Land, &c. which he possesseth merely in his own Right, without Acknowledgment of Service or Payment of any Rent to another; and this is a Property in the highest Degree: But Feudum is such Land as is held of another, for which Service is done or Rent is paid, as an Acknowledgment thereof. All the Land in England, except the Crown-Lands in the King's own Hands in Right of his Crown, are in the Nature of Feudum, or Fee; for tho' many have Lands by Descent from their Ancestors, and others have bought Land, it cannot come to an: either by Descent or Purchase, but with the Burden that was laid upon him who had Novel Fee, or first of all received it from his Lord; so that there is no Person hath Directum Dominium, i. e. the very Property or Demain in any Land but the King, in Right of his Crown: And notwithstanding he that hath Fee, hath jus perpetuum & utile Dominium, yet he owes a Duty for it, and therefore it is not simply his own; and he that can say most of his Estate, saith thus: I am seised of this or that Land or Tenement, in my Demain, as of Fee; seistus inde in Dominico meo ut de Feodo, which is as much as if he said, it is my Demain or proper Land to me and my Heirs for ever; but yet I hold it in Nature of a Benefit from and of another. Camb. Britan. 93. All that write of Feudis, hold that Feudatarius hath not an entire Property in his Fee: And as Fee cannot be without Faalty, sworn to a Superior, the Lands of the Crown are not properly Fee; for no Man may grant that our King or Crown oweth Faalty to any Superior on Earth. The Word Fee is sometimes used for the Compass or Circuit of a Lordship or Manor, as we say the Lord of the Fee, &c. as well as the particular Estate of the Tenant: And also for a perpetual Right incorporeal; as to have the Keeping of Prisons, &c. in Fee, Bract. Lib. 2. cap. 5. Old Nat. Br. 41. And when a Rent or Annuity is granted to one and his Heirs, it is a Fee Personal. 1 Inst. 1, 2. Fee is commonly divided into Fee Absolute, otherwise called Fee-Simple; and Fee Conditional, term'd otherwise Fee-Tail. Fee-Simple, (Feodum simplex) is where a Man hath Lands or Tenements, to hold to him and his Heirs for ever: Fee-Tail is an Estate whereof one is seised with Limitation, to him and the Heirs of his Body, &c. Litt. 14, 16. All Estates at the Common Law were Fee-Simple; and all other Estates and Interests are derived out of it, wherefore there must be a Fee-Simple at last in some Body. Litt. 647. To have Fee-Simple implies that it is without Limitation to what Heirs, but to Heirs generally: Tho' it may be limited by Act of Parliament. 4 Inst. 206. It is the Word Heirs makes the Inheritance, and a Man cannot have a greater Estate. Litt. 1. If Lands are given or granted to a Man and his Successors, this creates no Fee-Simple: But if such a Grant be made to a Corporation, it is a Fee-Simple; and in Case of a sole Corporation, as a Bishop, Parson, &c. a Fee-Simple is to them and their Successors. Wood 119. An Estate is granted to a Person, to hold to him for ever, or to him and his Assigns for ever, is only an Estate for Life; the word Heirs being wanting to make it Fee-Simple: But in Wills, which are more favour'd than Grants, the Fee-Simple and Inheritance may pass without the word Heirs. 1 Inst. 19. 9. And a Fee-Simple may be created by Deed of Feoffment; which would be an Estate-Tail by Will; as where Lands are given to another, and his Heirs Male, &c. without the word Body. Hob. 32. A Gift to a Man and his Children, and their Heirs, is a Fee-Simple to all that are living; tho' if Land is given to a Man and his Heir, in the singular Number, it is but an Estate for Life; and the Heir cannot take by Descent, he being but one, and therefore 'tis said shall take Nothing. 1 Inst. 8. Lit. Rep. 6. A Fee-Simple cannot come after a Fee-Simple; nor can a Remainder, it being an absolute Estate, and nothing can come after it. Dyer 33. A Fee-Simple determinable upon a Contingency, is a Fee to all Intents; tho' not so durable as absolute Fee. Vaugh. 273. In pleading Estates in Fee-Simple, they may be generally alleged; but the Commencement of Estates-Tail, and other particular Estates, must regularly be shewed. 1 Inst. 303. Tho' Fee-Simple is the most ample Estate of Inheritance, it is subject to many Incumbrances; as Judgments, Statutes, Mortgages, Fines, Jointures, Dower, &c. And there is a Fee-Simple Conditional, where the Estate is defeasible by not performing the Condition; and a Qualified Fee-Simple, which may be defeated by a Limitation, &c. This is called a Base Fee, upon which no Remainder or Reversion can be expectant. 1 Inst. 18. 10 Rep. 97. See Descent, Executory Devise, Wills.

Fee Expectant, (Feudum Expectativum.) See Expectant.

Fee-Farm, (Feudi Firma) Is when the Lord upon Creation of the Tenancy, reserves to himself and his Heirs, either the Rent for which it was before let to Farm or was reasonably worth, or at least a fourth Part of the Value; without Homage, Faalty or other Services, beyond what are especially comprised in the Feoffment. 2 Inst. 44. By Fitzherbert, a third Part of the yearly Value of the Land may be appointed for the Rent, where Lands are granted in Fee-Farm, &c. F. N. B. 210. Tho' Fee-Farm Rents seem to be more or less, according to the Conditions of the Purchase of the Land, out of which they are issuing. 1 Inst. 143. It is the Nature of Fee-Farm, that if the Rent be behind and unpaid for the Space of two Years, then the Feoffor or his Heirs may bring an Action to recover the Lands, &c. Brit. cap. 66. num. 4.

Fee-Farm Rents of the Crown. The Fee-Farm Rents remaining to the Kings of England from their ancient Demesnes, were many of them alienated from the Crown in the Reign of King Charles 2. And by Stat. 22 Car. 2. c. 6. the King was enabled by Letters Patents to grant Fee-Farm Rents due in Right of his Crown to Trustees, to make Sale thereof; and the Trustees were to convey the same by Bargain and Sale to Purchasers, &c. But it has been observ'd, that Men were so very doubtful of the Title to Alienations of this Nature, that whilst these Rents were exposed to Sale for ready Money, scarce any would deal for them, and they remain'd unfold; till what made Men earnest to buy them, was the Stop upon some of his Majesty's other Payments, which occasioned Persons to resort to this as the most eligible in that Conjunction: No Tenant in Tail, of any of the said Rents, is enabled to bar the Remainder. 22 & 23 Car. 2. c. 24. On the Taxing of Fee-Farm Rents, Receivers, &c. were to allow to the Persons paying them so much in the Pound as the Land-Tax amounts to. Stat. 9 & 10 W. 3. c. 18.

Tail,

Felagus, (Quasi Fide cum eo ligatus) A Companion, but particularly a Friend, who was bound in the Decennary for the good Behaviour of another. In the Laws of King Ina, it is said, if a Murderer could not be found, &c. the Parents of the Person slain should have six Marks, and the King forty; if he had no Parents, then the Lord should have it: Et si Dominus non haberet, Felagus ejus. LL. Inæ, cap. 15.

Feld, Is a Saxon Word, signifying Field; and in its Compound it signifies Wild, as Feld-Honey, is Wild Honey, &c. Blount.

Fele Homagers, Were Faithful Subjects, from the Sax. Fai, i. e. Fides.

Felo de se, One who lays violent Hands on himself, and is the Occasion of his own untimely Death. When a Person with Deliberation and direct Purpose kills himself, by Hanging, Drowning, Stabbing, &c. this is Felo de se; but the Person that commits this Felony, must be of the Age of Discretion, and Compos Mentis: And therefore if an Infant under 14 Years of Age, or a Lunatick during his Lunacy, or one distracted by a Disease, or an Ideot, kills himself, it is not Felony. 3 Inst. 54. Dalt. ch. 145. Also if a Person during the Time that he is Non Compos Mentis giveth himself a Mortal Wound, tho' he dieth thereof when he recovers his Memory; he is not Felo de se, because at the Time of the Stroke he was not Compos Mentis. Dalt. 342, 344. It is Felo de se where a Man maliciously attempts to kill another, and falls upon his Sword, &c. whereby he kills himself; but he must be the only Agent. 1 Hawk. P. C. 68. He who desires and periwades another Man to kill him, is not Felo de se; his Assent being void in Law, and the Person killing him a Murderer. Kelw. 136. A Felo de se shall forfeit all his Goods and Chattels, Real and Personal; but not until it is lawfully found by the Oath of twelve Men, before the Coroner super visum Corporis, that he is Felo de se. 3 Inst. 55. By the Return of the Inquisition, the Goods, &c. are vested in the King: Tho' it hath been said, that Goods of a Felo de se are forfeited before Inquisition, viz. immediately upon committing the Fact. 1 Lev. 8. But see 5 Rep. 110. where it is adjudged that they are not forfeited till it is found of Record. The Lands of Inheritance of a Felo de se are not forfeited, by Reason he was not attainted in his Life-time; nor is such a Person's Wife barred of Dower, or his Blood corrupted. 1 Hawk. 68. If a Judgment is obtain'd by a Plaintiff in any Action, and the Plaintiff hangs himself, so as to become Felo de se, the Debt is forfeited to the King. 1 Saund. 36. 2. Nelf. Abr. 840. Goods are forfeited to the King by a Felo de se, for the Loss of a Subject, and Breach of the Peace. 1 Plowd. 261. But these Forfeitures are oftentimes saved, by the Coroner's Jury finding their Verdict Lunacy; to which they are inclinable on a favourable Interpretation, that it is impossible for a Man in his Senses to do a Thing so contrary to Nature; but if this Argument be good, Self-Murder can be no Crime, because a Madman cannot be guilty of any Crime. 1 Hawk. 67. If a Person Felo de se is secretly made away with, that the Coroner can't view the Body;

Presentment is to be made of it by Justices of Peace, &c. to entitle the King to the Forfeiture of Goods. 5 Rep. 110. Where a Person is found Felo de se, who on Account of Lunacy, &c. ought not to be so; or where one is return'd Non Compos, when in Truth the Party is Felo de se, &c. if there be no Fault in the Coroner, or Incertainty in the Inquisition, a Melius Inquirendum will not be granted; but the Inquisition is traversable in B. R. 3 Mod. 238. 2 Nelf. Abr. 840. Altho' there can be no Melius Inquirendum. 'tis said the Court may order an Indictment to be against the Felo de se; and if that be found, his Goods shall be forfeited. 1 Lill. Abr. 601. A Pardon of Murder doth not pardon Felo de se; but a Pardon of all Felonies and Forfeitures doth: By Custom and Practice, the Bodies of Felo's de se's are buried in the Highway, &c.

Felons Goods. The Statute de Prærogativa Regis, 17 Ed. 2. c. 1. grants to the King, among other Things, the Goods of Felons and Fugitives. If the King grant to a Man and his Heirs Felons Goods, the Grantee cannot devise them, &c. on the Statute 32 H. 8. because they are not of an yearly Value; but where a Person is seized of a Manor, to which they are appendant, it is otherwise, for they will pass as appurtenant. 3 Rep. 32. A Person committed to Prison on Suspicion of Felony, having the Money taken from him which he had about him before Conviction, brought an Action of Trespass for seizing his Money, &c. on the Stat. 1 R. 3. c. 3. by which it is enacted, that no Person shall take the Goods of another, &c. Raym. 414. 2 Nelf. 839. See Flight.

Felony, (Felonia, Fr. Felonnie) As Sir Edward Coke tells us, is derived from the Latin word Fel, or from the old Sax. Fell, one signifying Gall, and the other Fiery; and his Reason is, because either of these Words are suitable to the Crime, which is always intended to be done with a bitter or fierce Mind: But the learned Spelman gives a different Account of the Derivation of this Word, that it comes from the Saxon word Feah, which signified a Reward or Estate, and the German Lon, which in English is Price; as this was formerly a Crime punished with the Price, viz. the Loss of Estate. Mod. Jusdice 179. And before the Reign of K. Hen. 1. Felonies were punished by Pecuniary Fines; for he was the first who ordered Felons to be hanged, about the Year 1108. The Judgment against a Man for Felony hath been the same since the Reign of this King, i. e. That he be hanged by the Neck till Dead; which is entered suspendatur per Collum, &c. There is another Derivation of the word Felony, from the Sax. Felen, i. e. Errare, delinquere, which seems to be most agreeable with the Offence. Blount. Felony was anciently every Capital Crime perpetrated with an evil Intention: All Capital Offences by the Common Law came generally under the Title of Felony; and could be express'd by no Word but Felony; which must of Necessity be laid in an Indictment of Felony. 1 Inst. 391. It is always accompanied with an evil Intention; and therefore shall not be imputed to any Misanimadversion: But the bare Intention to commit a Felony is so very Criminal, that at the Common Law it was punishable as Felony, where it mis'd of its Effect through some Accident; and as our Law now is, the Party may be severely fined for such an Intention. 1 Hawk. P. C. 65. Felony is included in High Treason. H. P. C. 11. We account count any Offence Felony; that is in Degree next Petit Treason; and at this Day Felony includes Petit Treason, Murder, Homicide, Sodomy, Rape, Burning of Houses, Burglary, Robbery, Breach of Prison, Rescous and Escape, after one is imprison'd or arrested for Felony, &c. It is either by the Common Law, or by Statutes: Felony by the Common Law is against the Life of a Man, as Murder, Manslaughter, Felo de se, Se Defendendo, &c. Against a Man's Goods, such as Larceny, and Robbery: Against his Habitation, as Burglary, Arson or House-burning; and against Publick Justice, as Breach of Prison. 3 Inst. 31. Piracy, Robbery, or Murder upon the Sea, are Felonies punishable by the Civil Law; and likewise by Statute: And Felonies by Statute, are very numerous. Mod. Just. 180. Also Felonies are of a Publick, or Private Nature; hurtful to the Commonwealth, or immediately hurtful to particular Persons, &c. Felony is distinguished from lighter Offences, in that the Punishment of it is Death; but not always, for Petit Larceny is Felony, and the Indictment against such an Offender must run, Felonice cepit, yet it is not punished by Death, tho' it be Loss of Goods: And of Felonies in general, there are two Sorts; one which for the first Offence is allowed Clergy, and another that is not; but Clergy is granted where it is not expressly taken away by Statute. Staundf. lib. 1. Felony is punished by Loss of Life, and of Lands, not entailed, Goods and Chattels; but the Statutes make a Difference in some Cases concerning Lands, as the 37 H. 8. c. 6. And Felony ordinarily works Corruption of Blood; unless a Statute making an Offence Felony, ordains it shall be otherwise, as some Statutes do. The Punishment of a Person for Felony, by our ancient Books, is, 1st, To lose his Life. 2dly, To lose his Blood, as to his Ancestry, and so as to have neither Heir nor Posterity. 3dly, To lose his Goods. 4thly, To lose his Lands; and the King shall have Annum Diem & Vastum, to the Intent that his Wife and Children be cast out of the House, his House pull'd down, and all that he had for his Comfort or Delight destroyed. 4 Rep. 124. A Felony by Statute incidentally implies, that the Offender shall be subject to the like Attainder and Forfeiture, &c. as is incident to a Felony at Common Law. 3 Inst. 47, 59, 90. And when Persons are to undergo Judgment of Life and Member for any Crime by Statute, it is Felony thereby, whether the word Felony be mentioned or not. 1 Hawk. 107. All Felonies are several, and cannot be joint; so that a Pardon of one Felon, cannot discharge another: But the Felony of one Man may be dependent upon that of another, and the Pardon of the one by a necessary Consequence enure to the Benefit of the other, as in Cases of Principal and Accessary, &c. 2 Hawk. P. C. 387, 380. Private Persons may arrest Felons, by their own Authority, or by Warrant from a Justice of Peace: And every private Person is bound to assist an Officer to take Felons, &c. 2 Hawk. 75. And if a Person be brought before a Justice upon Suspicion of Felony, where a Felony is committed, tho' it appears on Examination that he is not guilty, yet it is said he is not to be discharged without Trial. Lamb. 229. But one ought not to be arrested upon Suspicion of Felony, except there be probabilis Causa shewed for the Ground of the Suspicion. 1 Lill. Abr. 603. Officers may break open a House to take a Felon, or any Person justly suspected of Felony; and if an Officer hath a Warrant to take a Felon, who is killed in resisting, it is not Felony in the Officer; but if the Officer is killed, it is otherwise. Dalt. 289. Persons indicted of Felony, &c. where there are strong Presumptions and Circumstances of Guilt, are not replevisable; but for Larceny, &c. when Persons are committed who are of good Reputation, they may be bailed. 2 Hawk. 101. If one be committed to Prison for one Felony, the Justices of Gaol-Delivery may try him for another Felony for which he was not committed, by Virtue of their Commission, 1 Lill. 602. A Felon refusing to plead, and put himself upon his Trial, shall be put to the Penance of Paine fort & Dure, &c. If a Felon stands Mute by the Act of God, the Felony is to be enquired of by Jury, and whether the Prisoner be the same Person, and all other Matters in the same manner as if the Criminal had pleaded. 2 Hawk. 327. And it may be enquired of by Inquest of Office, whether he do so of Malice or by the Act of God. Ibid. Where a married Woman commits Felony, in Company with her Husband, it shall be presumed to be done by his Command, and she shall be excused. 3 Inst. 310. If a Person to whom Goods are delivered on a pretended Buying them, runs away with them, it is Felony; and a Guest stealing Plate set before him at an Inn, &c. is Felony, also Persons who have the Charge of Things, as a Servant of a Chamber, &c. may be guilty of Felony: And the least Removing of a Thing in Attempts of Felony, is Felony, tho' it be not carried off. 3 Inst. 308. Raym. 275. But Goods must not be of a base Nature, such as Dogs, &c. nor Fera Natura, as Deer, Hares, &c. except they be made tame, when it will be made Felony to steal them. If any Turkeys, Geese, Poultry, Fish in a Trunk, &c. are taken away, it is Felony. 3 Inst. 309, 310.

Felonies by Statute, Are the following, viz. To embezzle the King's Armour, Munition, Naval Stores, &c. to the Value of 20 s. is declared to be Felony; but not to cause Corruption of Blood, &c. And the Prosecution must be in a Year. 31 Eliz. c. 4. Acknowledging Bail in the Name of another Person, who is not Privy or Consenting, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy. 21 Jac. 1. c. 26. Bankrupts not surrendering to be examined, and not discovering their Estates, or removing or embezzling any Money or Effects to the Value of 20 l. are guilty of Felony: And their Goods and Estate shall be forfeited and divided to and among the Creditors. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 17. and 5 Geo. c. 24. Buggery with Man or Beast, is Felony without Benefit of Clergy; and the Act extends to Women as well as Men. 25 H. 8. See Clergy, Larceny, &c.

Feme Covert, Is a married Woman; who is also said to be Covert Baron. Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 3.

Fence, Is a Hedge, Ditch, or other Inclosure of Land, for the better Manurance and Improvement of the same. And Action of the Case lies, for not repairing of Fences, whereby Cattle comes into the Ground of another and do Damage. 1 Salk. 335. Also it is presentable in the Court-Baron, &c. Throwing down Fences, made on Title of Approvement, the adjoining Town shall make it good; where the Offenders are not known, or not indicted, &c. Stat. 13. Ed. 1. c. 46.

Fence-Month, (Mensis Prohibitionis, or Mensis Vetus) Is a Month wherein Female Deer in Forests, &c. do fawn, and therefore it is unlawful to hunt in Forests during that Time; which begins fifteen Days before Midsummer, and ends fifteen Days after it, being in all thirty Days. Manw. Part 2. cap. 13. Stat. 20 Car. 2. c. 3. Some ancient Foresters call this Month the Defence-Month, because then the Deer are to be defended from being disturbed, and the Interruptions of fear and Danger; as there are certain Defence-Months for Fish, particularly Salmon, as appears by the Stat. Westm. 2. c. 47, &c. Serjeant Fleetwood saith, that the Fence-Month hath been always kept with Watch and Ward, in every Bailiwick through the whole Forest, since the Time of Canutus. Fleetwood's Forest Laws, p. 5.

Fengeld, (Sax.) A Tax or Imposition exacted for the repelling of Enemies. — Pecunia vel Tributum ad arcendos Hostes erogatum. M.S. Antiq.

Fens, (Paludes) Are low marshy Grounds, or Lakes of Water; for the Draining whereof in this Kingdom, several Statutes have been enacted. The Stat. 4 Jac. 1. c. 8. & 13. makes Provision for draining and securing from Inundation the drown'd Grounds and Marshes of Lesnefs and Fants in Kent; and the Fens and low Grounds in the Isle of Ely. The 15 Car. 2. c. 17. appoints William, Earl of Bedford, and other Adventurers, a Corporation, for the draining of Bedford Level in Bedfordshire, consisting of a Governor, Bailiffs and Conservators, &c. who have Power to lay and levy Taxes within the great Level of the Fens; and also to erect Works within the same, for carrying the Water to the Sea, making Satisfaction to the Owners of Lands for Injury received; and throwing down any of the said Works, incurs treble Damages, &c. By 16 & 17 Car. 2. c. 11. Deeping Fens, &c. in Lincolnshire, are to be drained from Water; and Edward Earl of Manchester, and several others, are declared Undertakers thereof, on certain Trusts, with Power to erect Banks, Bridges, Drains, Locks, Sluices, &c. for Recovery of the said Fens; and Assessees of Lands held by the Adventurers under the Trusts, may hold Assemblies for making of By-Laws, for the Management of the Works of Draining; they may charge the Owners of the Land by an Acre Tax, &c. and on Default of Payment, sell the Defaulters Lands, &c.

Feod or Feud, Is said to be a Right which a Tenant or Vassal hath in Land, or some immoveable Thing of his Lord's, to use the same, and take the Profits thereof hereditarily; rendering unto the Lord such Feodal Duties and Services as belong to Military Tenure, &c. Spelm. of Tenures, cap. 1.

Feodal, (Feodalis, vel Feudalis) Of or belonging to the Fee. Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24.

Feodality, Fealty paid to the Lord by his Feodal Tenant — Fecit Feodalitatem suam, prout decet dicto Domino. Cartular. Rading, M.S.

Feodary or feudary, (Feudatarius) An Officer of the Court of Wards, appointed by the Master of that Court, by Virtue of the Statute 32 H. 8. c. 26. whose Business it was to be present with the Escheator in every County at the finding of Offices of Lands, and to give in Evidence for the King as well concerning the Value as the Tenure; and his Office was also to survey the Lands of the Ward, after the Office found, and to rate it. He did likewise assign the King's Widows their Dowers; and receive all the Rents of Wards Lands within his Circuit, which he answered to the Receiver of the Court. This Office seems to be wholly taken away by Stat. 12 Car. 2. cap. 24.

Feodary, Was the Tenant who held his Estate by Feodal Service: And Grantees, to whom Lands in Feud or Fee were granted by a superior Lord, were sometimes called Homagers; and in some Writings are term'd Vassals, Feuds and Feodataries. See Feuds.

Feoffment, (Feoffamentum, from the Gothick Word Feudum, and signifies Donationem Feudi) Is a Gift or Grant of any Manors, Messuages, Lands or Tenements, to another in Fee, to him and his Heirs for ever, by the Delivery of Seisin and Possession of the Thing given or granted: And in every Feoffment, the Giver or Grantor is called the Feoffor, and he that receives by Virtue thereof, is the Feoffee. Littleton says, the proper Difference between a Feoffor and a Donor, is, that the one gives in Fee-Simple; the other in Fee-Tail. Litt. lib. 1. cap. 6. Accompl. Conv. 1 Vol. 78. The Deed of Feoffment is our most ancient Conveyance of Lands: And in Records we often find Fees given to Knights under the Phrases of De veteri Feoffamento, and De novo Feoffamento; the first whereof were such Lands as were given or granted by K. Hen. 1. And the others, such as were granted after the Death of the said King, since the Beginning of the Reign of Hen. 2. At Common Law the usual Conveyance was by Feoffment, to which Livery and Seisin was necessary, the Possession being thereby given to the Feoffee; but if Livery and Seisin could not be made, by Reason there was a Tenant in Possession, the Reversion was granted, and the particular Tenant attorn'd. 1 Inst. 9. 49. And a Feoffment is said to excel the Conveyance by Fine and Recovery; it clearing all Disseisins, Abatements, Intrusions, and other wrongful Estates, which no other Conveyance doth: And for that it is so solemnly and publickly made, it has been of all other Conveyances the most observed. West. Symb. 235. Plowd. 554. It bars the Feoffor of all collateral Benefit, as Conditions, Powers of Revocation, Writs of Error, &c. and destroys contingent Uses. 1 Inst. 5. But a Feoffment may not be of such Things whereof Livery and Seisin

Seisin may not be made; for no Deed of Feoffment is good to pass an Estate without Livery of Seisin; and if either of the Parties die before Livery, the Feoffment is void. Plowd. 214, 219. Tho' where a Feme Feoffor made a Feoffment of Lands with Livery in View, and then married the Feoffee before the Livery was executed by actual Entry; it was adjudg'd the Livery might be executed after Marriage, the Feoffee having not only an Authority to enter, but an Interest passed by the Livery in View, and the Woman did all on her Part to be done. 1 Ventr. 186. There must be Livery of Seisin in all Feoffments, Gifts in Tail, &c. where a corporeal Inheritance or Freehold doth pass: And without Livery, the Deed is no Feoffment, Gift or Demise. Lit. 59. 8. Rep. 82. But a Freehold may pass without Livery by the Statute 27 H. 8. c. 10. By Force of which Statute, a Feoffment to the Use of the Feoffor, Feoffee, &c. supplies the Place of Livery and Seisin. Wood's Inst. 239. A Feoffment being a Common Law Conveyance, and executed by Livery, makes a Transmutation of Estate; but a Conveyance on the Statute of Uses, as a Covenant to stand seised, &c. makes only a Transmutation of Possession, and not of Estate. 2 Lev. 77. 1 Ventr. 378. Where a Man makes a Feoffment, without any Consideration; by that, the Estate and Possession passes, but not the Use, which shall descend to his Heir. 1 Leon. 182. A Feoffment in Fee is made to the Use of such Persons, and for such Estates, as the Feoffor shall appoint by his Will, or to the Use of his Last Will; by Operation of Law the Use vests in the Feoffor, and he is seised of a qualified Fee, viz. until he makes his Will, and declares the Uses; and after the Will is made it is only directory, for nothing passes by it but all by the Feoffment. 6 Rep. 18. Moor 567. A Feoffment in Fee, upon Condition, &c. was inrolled, but no Livery made; and it was adjudged no good Feoffment, but the Inrollment shall conclude the Person to say that it was not his Deed. Poph. 6. 2 Nels. Abr. 844. If a Bargain and Sale of Lands be not inrolled, and the Bargainor deliver Livery and Seisin of the Lands secundum formam Chartae, &c. it has been held a good Feoffment. 2 And. 68. A Feoffment in Fee made upon Condition not to alien, the Condition is void; but if Livery is had, the Feoffment is good against the Feoffor. 2 Cro. 596. Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment in Fee; the Inheritance of the Tail is not given to the Feoffee by the Feoffment, nor is he thereby Tenant in Tail; for none shall be Tenant in Tail but he only who is comprehended in the Gift made by the Donor: But it gives away all the immediate Estate the Feoffor had. Plowd. 562. Hob. 335. If Lessee for Life, and the Reversioner in Fee, make a Feoffment in Fee by Deed, each gives his Estate; the Lessee his by Livery, and the Fee from him in Remainder. 6 Rep. 15. & Lill. Abr. 609. A Feoffment was made Habendum to the Feoffee and his Heirs, after the Death of the Feoffor, and Livery was made; yet it was held to be a void Feoffment, for an Estate of Freehold in Lands cannot begin at a Day to come: But where a Lessor made a Lease for Lives, and granted the Reversion to another for Life, whose Estate for Life was to begin after the Death of the Survivor of the other Lessees for Life, this was adjudg'd a good Estate in Reversion for Life. Hob. 171. 2 Nels. Abr. 846. A Deed of Feffment is always applied to a corporeal and immoveable Thing:

And is made by the Words, have Granted, Bargained, Enfeoffed, &c. The Way of pleading a Feoffment is thus, viz. That A. B. was seised in Fee of the Place where, &c. and being so seised, Feoffavit quendam C. D. inter alia per nomina omnium, &c. habend. & tenend. &c. prefat. C. D. & heredibus suis in perpetuum ad solum opus & usum, &c. 3 Salk. 165.

Form of a Deed of Feoffment of Lands.

THIS Indenture made, &c. Between A. B. of &c. of the one Part, and C. D. of, &c. of the other Part, Witnesseth, That the said A. B. for and in Consideration of the Sum of Five hundred Pounds of lawful Money of Great Britain, to him in hand paid by the said C. D. the Receipt whereof the said A. B. doth hereby confess and acknowledge, and for other good Causes and Considerations him thereunto moving, he the said A. B. hath granted, bargained and sold, aliened, enfeoffed, released, and confirmed, and by these Presents doth grant, bargain, and sell, alien enfeoff, &c. unto the said C. Ferdfare, (Sax.) Is to be discharg'd from going to War. — Significat quietantiam eundi in exercitum. Fleta, lib. 1. cap. 47.

Ferdmit, (Sax. Fird, exercitus, & Wite pœna) Was used for being quit of Manslaughter; committed in the Army. Fleta, lib. 1. Though it is rather a Fine imposed on Persons for not going forth in a military Expedition; to which Duty all Persons who held Land, were in Necessity obliged: And a Neglect or Omission of this common Service to the Publick, was punished with a pecuniary Mulct called the Ferdwite. Cowel.

Ferial Days, (Dies FERIALES, Feriae,) According to the Latin Dictionary, are Holy-Days, or Days vacant from Labour. But in the Statute 27 H. 6. c. 5. Ferial Days are taken for working Days; all the Days of the Week, except Sunday: The Week-Days, as distinguish'd from Sunday, the Profane from the Sacred, were called Dies FERIALES, by a Charter dat. 28. Mart. 1448. — Ex Cartular. Eccl. Elyensis. M.S.

Ferling, (Ferlingus) The fourth Part of a Penny, &c. Assis. panis & Cervis. 51 H. 3.

Ferlingata terræ, A Quarter or fourth Part of a Yard-land. — Decem acra faciunt Ferlingatam, 4. Ferlingatæ faciunt Virgatam, & 4. Virgata faciunt Hidam, &c. In antient Records there is Mention of Ferlingus and Ferdingus terra. Mon. Angl. Tom. 2. f. 8. See Fardel of Land.

Ferm, (Firma) A House and Land let by Lease, &c. Vide Farm.

Fermay, (From the Sax. Feorme, Victus) Is an Hospital; and we read of Friars of the Fermay.

Fermisona, The Winter-Season of killing Deer; as Tempus Pinguedinis is the Summer Season. Quod idem Hugo & heredes sui de cetero quolibet anno possunt capere in predicto Parco de, &c. unam Damam in Fermisona inter Festum Sancti Martini & Purif. Beate Mariæ, Et unam Damam in Pinguedine inter Festum, &c. Fin. Concor. in Cur. Dom. Regis apud Litchfield coram Roger de Turkilby, &c. inter Hugonem de Acover Quer. & Will. de Aldethley Desfor. Penes Will. Dugdale, Mil'.

Fernigo, A Piece of waste Ground where Fern grows. Cartular. Abbat. Glasfon. M.S.

Ferramentum, Ferramenta, The iron Tools or Instruments of a Mill. — Et reparare Ferramenta ad tres Carucas, i. e. The iron Work of three Ploughs. Lib. Niger Heref.

Ferrandus, An iron Colour, particularly applied to Horses, which we at this Time call an Iron grey.

Ferrure, (Fr.) The Shoing of Horses. Blount.

Ferry, A Liberty by Prescription or the King's Grant, to have a Boat for Passage upon a River, for Carriage of Horses and Men for reasonable Toll: It is usually to cross a large River. Terms de Ley.

Ferspeken, To speak suddenly. — Nemo potest, &c. placitare sine eo, nec cogi debet Rectum ejus Ferspeken de omnibus causis, &c. Leg. H. 1. c. 61.

Festa in Cappis, Were some grand Holy-Days, in which the whole Choirs of Cathedrals wore Caps. Vitæ Abbat. S. Alban. pag. 80, 83.

Festingmen. The Saxon Festman signifies a Surety or Pledge; and to be free of Festingmen; was probably to be free of Frank-pledge, and not bound for any Man's Forth-coming, who should transgress the Law. Mon. Angl. Tom. 1. p. 123.

Festing-penny, Earnest given to Servants when hired or retained in Service, so called in some Northern Parts of England, from the Sax. Festnian, to fasten or confirm.

Festum, A Feast; Festum S. Michaelis, the Feast of St. Michael, &c. See Feasts.

Feud, (Feida) Signifies in the German Tongue Guerram, Lat. Bellum; and according to Lambard, Capitales Inimicitias: And Feud used in Scotland is a Combination of Kindred for Revenging the Death of any of their Blood against the Killer, and all his Race; or any other great Enemy. Skene.

Feudbote, A Recompence for Engaging in a Feud, and the Damages consequent; it having been the Custom in antient Times, for all the Kindred to engage in their Kinsman's Quarrel. Sax. Dict.

Feuds, (Feoda) Estates in Lands were originally at Will, and then they were called Munera; afterwards they were for Life, and then they were termed Beneficia, and for that Reason the Livings of Clergymen are so called at this Day; and afterwards they were made Hereditary, when they were called Feoda, and in our Law Fee-simple. Rel. Spel. 9. When Hugh Caput usurped the Kingdom of France, about the Year 947, to support himself in such Usurpation, he granted to the Nobility and Gentry, that whereas 'till then they enjoy'd their Honours for Life, or at Will only, they should from thenceforth hold them to them and their Heirs; which was imitated by William called The Conqueror, upon his Accession to the Crown of England, for 'till his Reign Feuds or Fees were not hereditary, but only for Life, or for some determinate Time. 3 Salk. 165.

Feudal and Feudary. See Feodal and Feodary.

Fiat, In our Law is a short Order or Warrant of some Judge for making out and allowing certain Processes, &c. If a Certiorari be taken out in Vacation, and tested of the precedent Term, the Fiat for it must be signed by a Judge of the Court, some Time before the Effoin-Day of the subsequent Term, otherwise it will be irregular: But it is said there is no Need for any Judge to sign the Writ of Certiorari it self; but only where it is required by Statute. 1 Salk. 150. 2 Hawk. 289.

Fiction of Law, (Fictio Juris) Is allow'd of in several Cases: The Seisin of the Conusee in a Fine is but a Fiction in Law; it being an invented Form of Conveyance only. 1 Lill. Abr. 610. And a Common Recovery is Fictio Juris, a formal Act or Devise by Consent, where a Man is desirous to cut off an Estate-tail, Remainders, &c. And it supposes a Recompence in Value to those that lost the Estate. 10 Rep. 42. By Fiction of Law, a Bond made beyond Sea, may be pleaded to be made in the Place where abroad in Islington in the County of Middlesex, &c. to try the same here; without which it cannot be done. 1 Inst. 261. And so it is in some other Cases; but the Law ought not to be satisfied with Fictions, where it may be otherwise really satisfied; and Fictions of of Law shall never be carried farther, than the Reasons which introduce them necessarily require. 1 Lil. 610. 2 Hawk. 320.

Fidem mentiri, Is when a Tenant doth not keep that Fealty which he hath sworn to the Lord. Leg. H. 1. c. 53.

Fief, Which we call Fee, is the contrary to Chattels: In Germany, certain Districts or Territories are called Fiefs; where there are Fiefs of the Empire.

Fieri facias, Is a judicial Writ, given by the Statute of Westm. 2. 13 Ed. 1. that lies where Judgment is had for Debt or Damages recovered in the King's Courts against any Man; by which Writ the Sheriff is commanded to levy the Debt and Damages of the Goods and Chattels of the Defendant, &c. Old Nat. Br. 152. This Writ must be sued out within a Year and a Day after the Judgment; or the Judgment must be revived by Scire facias: But if a Fieri facias be not executed, a second Fieri facias or Elegit may be sued out; and 'tis said some Years after, without a Scire facias, provided Continuances are entered from the first Fi. fa. which 'tis also held may be entered after the second Fi. fa. taken out, unless a Rule is made that Proceedings shall stay, &c. Sid. 59. 2 Nelf. Abr. 776. There may be a Testatum Fieri facias into another County, if the Defendant hath not Goods enough in the County where the Action is laid to satisfy the Execution; and the Fieri facias for the Ground of the Testatum, may be return'd of Course by the Attornies, as Originals are. 2 Salk. 589. If all the Money is not levied on a Fieri facias, the Writ must be return'd before a second Execution can be issued; because it is to be grounded on the first Writ, by reciting that all the Money was not levied. 1 Salk. 318. Where the Sheriff levies Goods by Fieri facias, and doth not return the Writ, and afterwards another Fieri facias is brought to levy the Money, the Defendant might plead this Matter. Godb. 171. And where the Sheriff sells Goods which he levied by Fieri facias, and doth not pay the Money, Action of Debt will lie against him, because the Defendant is discharged as to the Plaintiff, and the Sheriff is now become his Debtor in Law; and if the Sheriff die after he hath levied the Debt, the like Action will lie against his Executors, as it is a Duty when levied. March Rep. 13. Cro. Car. 387. If a Sheriff that hath seized Goods by Fieri facias is going out of his Office, he must deliver them to the new Sheriff, and return his Writ executed pro tanto; and he ought not to deliver them to the Owner, by Reason the Writ of Execution is warranted by a Record, and therefore the Discharge thereof must appear by Record. Yelv. 44. Upon a Fieri facias the Sheriff return'd, that he had levied Goods ad valentiam of the Debt; the Return being filed, a Motion was made that he might bring in the Money, which not being done, an Attachment was granted, and then the Sheriff appeared and prayed to amend the Return, for that the Goods were damaged by Lying, and he could not get Buyers; but it was adjudg'd that the Return shall not be altered, for he might have returned this at first by Way of Excuse; and having return'd that he had levied Goods ad valentiam, he shall pay the Money. Sid. 407. The Sheriff may sell the Goods on a Fieri facias, and take the Money; though he cannot take the Money upon a Capias sati faciend. that Writ not warranting him to do it. Lutw. 588. But the
