TO THE READER.

THE great deſire which God hath beſtowed upon me for the advancement of Publique good; the kind aeceptance of my former Labors of this nature; and the cleer conviction of my Judgment, that the effect will be anſwerable to my aim and intentions, have been the impulſive cauſes of my publiſhing this Methodical Abridgment of both the Laws, as well that called Common, as the Statute-Law (now in force.) Wherein I have at once perform'd two things, viz. My utmoſt ability in collecting the diſperſed Caſes and particular Concluſions of Law under the general Entituling words, whether they be of the firſt, or ſecond intention: My commanded duty in faithfully rendring them into Engliſh, according to the deſcription of the Act of Parliament in that caſe provided.

In purſuance whereof to ſay there are no faults, would be an arrogancie, and an unpardonable ſin againſt that humility which I pretend to. Prolixity will be eaſily anſwered from the variety of the Subject which I have undertaken: And for the few miſtakes which I my ſelf, ſince the Impreſſion, have diſcovered; I doubt not but the candor of an ingenious Reader will find me an excuſe, from the perplexity which our Law (as it confuſedly lay) did groan under. My labor herein is now grown old, having been the induſtrious ſearch of thirty ſix years; though my intention for making them publique is of a much younger date; and not out of any pettiſh deſign of keeping the Law from the Vulgar, or irreligious hiding my talent in a napkin, but it had its reaſon from this, that I eſteem'd my ſelf the meaneſt of thoſe of my Profeſſion, and did modeſtly diſtruſt my own ſufficiencie for ſo great an undertaking, expecting ſtill when ſome more able able perſon would have befriended the World with ſo great a favor, as the orderly Deduction of our Laws from their Chaos into Methodical form. But weary with expectation, and not willing ſo great a good ſhould be wholly neglected, I have attempted to manifeſt my good will to my Country by this following Tract; of which I dare ſay the Reader will find a requital of his pains; for that it will at once both facilitate and direct his Intention, whether it be to know, or to act what the Law requires. Beſides, the difficulties of the Phraſe and Terms are here explained, as they occaſionally fall in under any Head; and Definitions of ſuch things as are the Subject of the Laws, are here ſet down, and with as much certainty as the Nil lege difficilius, &c. will admit.

For all which I deſire nothing of the Generality but good acceptance; and that thoſe whom God, Nature and Induſtry have furniſhed with exemplary abilities in our Profeſsion, would not wholly neglect the publike for their own private good; but either from my attempts contrive de novo ſomething of their own, in order to that end whereto I have expoſed mine, or that they would bring to perfection what I now offer; till when, I am ſure, their carping at me will not be rational: And if perchance they ſhall either new-mould or amend, yet whether what I have here endeavoured be not in the mean time uſeful, I ſhall leave to the indifferent Readers to determine.

Farewell.

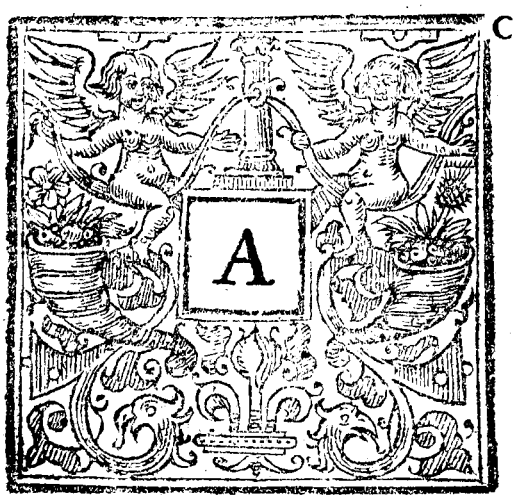
CHAP. I.

Of Acceptance.



ACCEPTANCE is the taking in good part or agreement unto ſome Act done, or ſomething given; which if he had not accepted of and received, he might have had and required ſome other thing, whereof he is now barred by Acceptance, or he might have avoided ſomething done, which he hath now affirmed by this: And this is of a Rent or other thing; and it is either expreſs or implied: And it is ſometimes of a Rent by an iſſue in tail after his anceſtors death, or by the ſucceſſor of a ſpiritual perſon after the death or departure of his predeceſſor, or by a wife after her husbands death, or by him in remainder, or by an Infant at his full age, or by an heir after his anceſtors death, or it may be by the party himſelf that made the eſtate. And ſometimes it is of a ſum of money or other thing either of the ſame nature, or of another nature; and by the taking of the Rent in ſuch caſes, the party that accepteth it is barred for his time to take any advantage of the eſtate, or him of whom he took the rent that was before voidable, and might by him have been avoided before the acceptance of the rent, but is now by this means affirmed: And in other caſes by ſuch acceptance he is eſtopped to do or have ſomething that before he might have done or had; as appeareth in the examples following. Terms Ley. Dyer 46.9.

Acceptance.

The Kinds.

Affirmance.

Whereſoever the acceptance of a rent by any ſhall bar him that doth accept and affirm the eſtate of him from whom it is accepted, there muſt be theſe conditions and qualities in the caſe. 1. There muſt be a privity either in Deed or in Law between the party giving and the party taking: And therefore if a diſſeiſin of any iſſue, &c. accept a rent, this ſhall not prejudice an iſſue. 2. There muſt continue in the taker a power of acceptance to, and at the time he muſt have the next eſtate: And therefore if the iſſue in tail before his acceptance have ſuffered a recovery of his Reverſion, and after accept the rent, this will not affirm the Leaſe againſt the Recoverer. 3. The Leaſe on which the Rent accepted is reſerved, muſt be a good Leaſe, and not void or determined by Re-entry; and therefore if a Leaſe be on condition for years that ſuch an act be not done, the eſtate ſhall ceaſe and become void, no acceptance of the Rent reſerved upon that Leaſe after will affirm the Leaſe: 4. The Leaſe muſt begin in the life-time of him that made it. 5. If there be any precedent Leaſe, the acceptance muſt

Sect. 1.

1. Where and in what caſe the acceptance of a rent is a bar.

must be after the end of that Leaſe: And therefore if one ſeiſed in Fee make a Leaſe for ten years rendring rent, and after make him an Eſtate tail, or to him and his wife, and then make another Leaſe, or himſelf and his wife of her land to the ſame party, and the iſſue or wife after his death accept the Rent during the ten years, this doth not affirm the ſecond Leaſe. 6. The acceptance of the Rent muſt be by one that hath right to the land at the time, and not before his right come: And therefore if the iſſue in tail before his anceſtors death accept the Rent, this is no bar to him after. 7. The accepted thing muſt be a Rent, and not a ſum in groſs, or an Annuity newly created: And therefore if one make an Eſtate, and therein the Feoffee, Leſſee, or Donee covenant to pay to the Feoffor, Donor, or Leſſor a ſum of mony yearly, or grant to him a new Annuity or Rent out of the Land, and the iſſue ſucceſſor &c. accept this, this is no bar nor affirmance of the Leaſe. 8. The Leaſe on which the Rent is reſerved muſt be by Indenture. Broo. 166. Dyer 46. 9. 11 H. 4. 15. 14 H. 8. 11. Dyer 27. Broo. 399. 879. Coo. 3. 64. 26 H. 1. 2. Broo. Acceptance 2. Dyer 91. 13.

1. By iſſue in tail, or his Feoffee.

If a Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and die, and his iſſue accept the Rent; this doth bar that iſſue that he cannot avoid the Leaſe, and doth affirm the Leaſe for his time: And if ſuch a Leſſee for years make a Leaſe of part of the land for all the term, and the iſſue accept the Rent of the Leſſee or Aſſignee, this is an affirmance of the Leaſe for ſo much of the land as the Leſſee or Aſſignee hath, and for the reſt alſo. 21 H. 7. 38. Dyer 30. & 95. Broo. 166. Coo. 3. on Walker's Caſe, 23.

If there be Tenant for life, the remainder in tail, and he in remainder make a Leaſe for years rendring rent, after the Tenant for life dyeth, and then the Tenant in tail dyeth, and after his death the iſſue in tail accept the Rent the next Rent-day; this doth not bar the iſſue and affirm the Leaſe. Dyer 279.

If Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for forty years to begin ten years after rendring rent, and dye, and after the iſſue in tail enter, and make a Feoffment before the ten years expire, and at the ten years end the Feoffee wave the poſſeſſion, and the Leſſee enter and pay the Rent at one of the days of payment, and the Feoffee accept it, this hath affirmed his Leaſe. Plow 437. Coo. ſuper Lit. 46. 6.

2. By the ſucceſſor of a ſpiritual perſon.

If a Biſhop, Abbot, Dean or Prebend by their common Seal had made a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and die, and the ſucceſſor accepted the Rent, this would affirm the Leaſe for his time. Dyer 46. 309. Coo. 3. 65. 2 H. 7. 38. 37 H. 6. 3, 4. Broo. 380. 322.

3. By a wife after husbands death.

If a husband and wife make a Feoffment in fee, Gift in tail, or Leaſe for years or life of the land of his wife rendring Rent, and die, and after his death the wife take the Rent, this expreſs acceptance doth affirm the eſtate, and bar the wife and her heirs of entry and action both for ever; and if ſhe diſtrain and avow for the Rent, or bring an Action of Waſte againſt ſuch a Leſſee; this is an implyed acceptance, and will bar her and hers alſo. So if the husband and wife make a Leaſe by Indenture rendring Rent, and the husband before the Rent-day die, and the wife before day take another husband, who at the day doth accept the Rent, and then dies; this acceptance by her husband is her acceptance, and will bar her for ever. 26 H. 8. 2. 15 Ed. 4. 18. Dyer 46. FNB. 192. 3 H. 6. 53. Broo. leaſe 3. 11. Dyer 159.

4. Of a Lord of a Manor, or he in remainder or reverſion.

If a Lord of a Manor grant a Copyhold eſtate for three lives, and after make a Leaſe for three lives rendring a Rent, and give Livery of Seiſin, and ſo diſſeiſe the Copyholder, and after the Lord granteth the Fee to the Copyholder, and he accept the Rent of the Tenant for life, this doth affirm the Leaſe. Dyer 30. 207.

If a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life rendring Rent, and after grant by Fine the Reverſion to the Diſſeiſee, and he accept the Rent of the Leſſee, it ſeems this is a bar. Dyer 30. 207.

If one make a Leaſe for years, (if the cloſe of the Condition be not, That then the Eſtate for years ſhall ceaſe or be void) rendring Rent, with clauſe of Re-entry for non-payment, and after non-payment and a legal demand made, the Leſſor doth accept the Rent at another day of payment; this doth bar the Re-entry and affirm the Leaſe: And if it be an Eſtate for life, or any Freehold that is granted rendring Rent, let

let the close of the Condition be how it will, until an actual entry, acceptance of the Rent will bar the Lessor, and affirm the Lease or Feoffment. Coo. 3. 64. Coo. super Lit. 211.

If a Tenant make a Feoffment by Collusion, and the Lord die, and his heir accept the services of the Tenant, by this he is barred to take advantage of the Collusion. FNB. 142. a.

5. By an Heir.

If a man seised of land in the right of his wife make a Lease for years not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. rendring Rent, and after their death the heir accept the Rent; now it seems by this he hath affirmed the Lease. Dyer 229.

6. By an Infant at full age.

If an Infant make a Lease for years rendring Rent, and at his full age accept the Rent, by this he hath affirmed the Lease and barred himself: And if it be a Lease for years, the remainder for years to a stranger, rendring Rent, and he accept the Rent of the first Lessee, this doth affirm it for the remainder also. So it seems if he accept the performance of other Covenants, this may affirm the Lease. And so it is of Copyhold land: If an Infant-Copyholder make a Lease for years rendring Rent, and at his full age accept the Rent, this shall bind him. Trin. 2 Car. B. R. Ashfield's Case. Plow. 545. 18 Ed 4. 14 H. 8.

Sect. 2.

II. Where and in what case the wife barreth not.

If lands be given to the husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the husband, and he lease for years rendring Rent and die, and the issue in tail accept the Rent during the life of the woman, this is no bar, nor affirmance of the Lease. Coo. 3. 64. Broo. Accept.

1. By issue in tail, or his Feoffee.

If the Tenant in tail make a Lease for twenty years rendring Rent, and the Lessee make a Lease of the land for ten years, and the Tenant in tail die, and his issue accept the Rent of the second Lessee; this is no bar to the issue, nor affirmance of the first or second Lease: but if the first Lessee pay it, it is good; so also if the second Lessee pay it as Bailiff to the first Lessee. Broo. 166.

If the Tenant in tail make a Lease for years not warranted by 32 H. 8. as if he make a Lease to begin after his death rendring Rent, and the issue accept the Rent, yet this doth not bar him. Dyer 279.

2. By the successor of a spiritual person.

If a Parson, Vicar or Prebend make a Lease for years rendring Rent, and the successor accept the Rent, this is no bar to him, nor affirmance of the Lease: So if that a Bishop had made a Lease for Tythes or the like, or any other void Lease, and his successor accept the Rent, yet this would not bind. Coo. 3. 65. Dyer 46. 37 H. 6. 34. Broo. 38. 321.

If a Bishop had made a voidable Lease to one, and after made a good Lease confirmed by the Dean and Chapter to another, and the successor had accepted the Rent upon the first Lease, this would not affirm this first Lease. Dyer 46. 9.

If a Bishop had made a voidable Lease and die, and his successor had accepted the Rent only due to the King in the time of the vacation of the Bishoprick, it seems this is no affirmation of the Lease. Sed quære of this Case. Hil. 18 Jac. B. R.

3. By a woman after her husbands death.

If the husband alone make a Feoffment in fee, Gift in tail, or Lease for life or years rendring Rent, and die, and the wife accept the Rent, this doth not bar the wife nor her heirs, nor affirm the Lease. So if the husband alone make a Lease for life rendring Rent, with a Letter of Attorney to his wife to give Livery, and she doth so (as it seems she may) and after his decease she accept the Rent, this is no bar. 26 H. 8. 2 and 15 Ed. 4. 18. Perk. sect. 199.

If husband and wife had at the Common-Law before the Statute of 32 H. 8. made a Lease for years by parol, rendring Rent to them, and the husband had dyed, and the wife had accepted the Rent, yet she might have avoided the Lease, unless it were by Indenture. Dyer 91. b.

If husband and wife by Indenture enfeoffs A. of the land of the wife, and A. in the same Indenture covenants and grants to pay to them yearly during their lives forty shillings, the husband dyeth, the wife accepts the Rent; this shall not bar the wife. 26 H. 8. 2 a.

If the husband and wife make a Lease by parol, rendring Rent, and she accept the Rent after his death, this will not bar her. Plow. 431. per Bromley.

4. By a Lord of a Manor, or by him in remainder or reverſion.

If one have title to have a Writ of Eſcheat, and he after accept the Rent of the Tenant, he is not barred of this advantage: For if the Lord accept the Rent by the hands of the Heir or Feoffee of the Diſſeiſor, that is in upon a Title of diſcent or feoffment after the Eſcheat accrued, this is no bar: but if he avow for the Rent in a Court of Record, or accept homage or fealty of the Tenant that is in by diſſeiſin; by this he is barred. Coo. ſuper Lit. 268.

If a Leaſe be made upon a Collateral Condition, or Condition to do ſome Collateral thing, as not to alien, or the like; and after the Condition broken, he in Reverſion not having notice thereof doth accept the Rent; this is no bar nor affirmance of the Leaſe. Coo. 3. 64.

If a Tenant in tail be the Remainder in tail, and the firſt Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent and die without iſſue, and he in Remainder accept the Rent; this is no bar. Ceſſante ſtatu primitivo, ceſſat derivativus; (the primitive eſtate ceaſing, the derivative alſo ceaſeth.) Broo. 370.

If a Copiholder makes waſte, by which a forfeiture accrues to the Lord, and afterwards the Lord accepts the Rent, this ſhall not conclude him of his entry by book, becauſe by the forfeiture the Eſtate was meerly void, H. 28. q. And yet ſee the Caſe, if a Copiholder enfeoffe a ſtranger to his own uſe by Livery in fee, and after pay the Rent to the Lord as before, this is a continuance of the Eſtate. Arden and Banmore's Caſe, in Cromp. Jur. f. 214. b.

5. By an heir.

If one make a Leaſe at will and die, and after his death the heir accept the Rent, this doth not bar him nor affirm the eſtate: for Acceptance cannot make good a Leaſe determined by the Leſſors death, no more then a Leaſe determined by Entry. 14 H. 8. 11.

If Leſſee for life or Tenant in dower make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and die, and the heir accept the Rent, this is no bar to the heir. 2 H. 4, 5. 11 H. 4. 15.

Sect. 3.

III. Where and in what caſe the acceptance of another thing is a bar, and where not.

If the husband and wife make a partition of his wives land, and it be not equal, and he die, and after his death ſhe doth enter into and agree to that unequal part; this will affirm the Partition, and bind her for ever. 2 Ed. 3. cui in vita 17. Coo. ſuper Lit. 170.

If the husband be ſeiſed of three Manors of equal value, and chargeth one of them with a Rent and dyeth, and ſhe accept this Manor charged for her dower; in this caſe ſhe is barred, and muſt hold the Manor charged with the Rent; but if ſhe had taken the proviſion the Law made by Writ of Dower, there ſhe ſhall have a third part of all diſcharged. Coo. ſuper Lit. 173. 18 H. 6. 27. 26 Ed. 3. Dower 133.

1. To a woman after her husbands death.

If a woman accept of a Rent or other land, or part of the ſame land whereof ſhe is to be endowed, or a Jointure made to her after marriage, by theſe means ſhe may be barred of her Dower; for which ſee more in Dower. Dyer 266. 317. Coo. 4. 25 26. 7. 40.

2. To a Feoffor, Leſſor, &c.

If one make a Feoffment or Leaſe on condition that the Feoffee or Leſſee ſhall do ſome act, as make a Leaſe for life or the like to the Feoffor or Leſſor, and he do ſome other thing, as make a Leaſe for years or the like, and the other accept it; now by this he is barred to take any advantage for the breach of the Condition; but if the Act to be done were to a ſtranger, and he accept another thing for it contra, it is otherwiſe. Coo. 3. 64.

3. To an Infant.

If an Infant that is a Parcener make a diviſion, and it be unequal, and at her full age ſhe accept of it, and enter upon the part allotted her, by this ſhe hath affirmed the partition and barred herſelf. Coo. ſuper Lit. & Lit. 4. 171.

4. To the Lord of a Manor.

If there be Lord, and the Tenant enfeoffe his heir within age, or a ſtranger, and the Lord receive homage of the heir, or accept the ſervices of the Feoffee, and after the father die: Now in this caſe he is barred of the Wardſhip by his acceptance, and cannot aver the Colluſion. FNB. 142. Fi Gard 33. Broo. 121.

5. To an Obligee.

If one be bound in an Obligation, with Condition that the Obliger or a ſtranger ſhall pay to the Obligee a ſum of money at a day and place certain, and the Obliger or ſtranger pay, and the Obligee accept a leſs ſum before the day at any place or at the time in any other place then the place appointed, or the Obliger or ſtranger give, and Obligee accept any other thing, as a horſe or the like in recompence, in ſatisfaction, be it before or at the day; by this he is barred to take any advantage upon the obligation, and this is held to be a good performance of the Condition: But the giving and taking of a leſs ſum for a greater at the time and place of payment, nor the giving of a horſe or the like, if it be by a ſtranger to the Condition; and the Acceptance by the Obligee in this caſe is no bar to the Obligee, nor performance of the Condition. So if a Condition be to make an Eſtate of Twenty pounds per annum, or to deliver twenty Quarters of Corn, and he make an Eſtate of Ten pounds per annum, or deliver ten Quarters of Corn, and the Obligee accept this at the time and place of delivery, it ſeems this is no bar; (but if the Obligee make a Deed of Receipt of leſs, this by way of Releaſe may be a bar.) And if a Condition of an Obligation be to do any Collateral thing, as to account, make a Feoffment or Leaſe, or grant a Rent, or the like, the giving and taking of money or any other thing in recompence and ſatisfaction will not bar. And if the Condition of the Obligation be to pay money to a ſtranger, and the Obliger give, and the ſtranger accept a horſe or other thing in recompence, yet this is no bar to the Obligee, nor good performance of the Condition: And if it be to pay money to the party himſelf, and he give, and the Obligee accept a horſe or the like in ſatisfaction of part of the debt, and ſay not for what part, this is void for incertainty. Perk. ſect. 751. 753. Coo. 5. 117. Dyer 1. *Broo. CHAP. II.

Of Actions in generall.

AN Action is nothing elſe but the right of proſecuting in Judgment of that which is due to one; or it is the lawfull demand of ones right; or (as others define it) the Form of a Suit given by Law to recover a thing. But this is ſometimes taken alſo for the power or ability a man hath to ſue, as at other times it is taken for the execution of this power, the Suit it ſelf; and this is the proper ſenſe of the word. Coo. ſuper Lit. fol. 284, 285.

1. Action, what.

Of Actions, ſome do concern the Pleas that were called the Pleas of the Crown, Placita Coronæ or Criminalia, (i.) Pleas of the Crown or Criminal, (of which we ſhall not ſpeak at all here;) and others do concern Common Pleas, called Placita Communia ſeu Civilia: Theſe are either Real, Perſonal, or Mixt.

The kinds of Actions.

The Real Action is ſuch a one wherein Frank-tenement or Inheritance is to be recovered; or ſuch an Action whereby the Demandant claimeth title to any Lands or Tenements, Rents or Common in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for term of life.

And this again is either Poſſeſſorie, (i.e.) of a mans own poſſeſſion; or Anceſtrel, (i.e.) of the ſeiſin and poſſeſſion of his anceſtor. And this laſt is either Droiturel, when nothing doth deſcend from the anceſtor but a naked right; or Poſſeſſorie, i.e. when the anceſtor doth die in poſſeſſion, and the land it ſelf doth deſcend.

The Perſonal Action is ſuch an Action, as is in the perſonality only, whereby a man claimeth debt, or goods, or chattels, or damages for wrong done to his perſon; or when ſome perſonal thing, as a debt or ſum of money or damages is to be recovered. And this is again ſo perſonal, that it cannot be brought by or againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator: So are all the Actions that are founded on ſome wrong done by

Action personal. or to the perſon of another, and for which a man ſhall recover damages only; as Actions of Treſpaſs, Treſpaſs upon the Caſe for miſdoing, Debt upon an Eſcape, Waſte and Covenant grounded on a perſonal Covenant for a thing to be done by the perſon of the Covenanter, and the like: In all which Caſes, upon the death of the party by or to whom it is done and made, the Action doth die and is gone, and neither Executors or Adminiſtrators can ſue or be ſued in it. Or it is ſuch a perſonal action as doth continue to and againſt Executors and Adminiſtrators, as all other actions do. March Rep. 9. pl. 23. 13 pl. 33.

Popular. And this perſonal action is alſo either Popular, (i. e.) given to any man that will ſue, as upon a Statute; or it is Particular, (i. e.) ſuch an action as is given to one, or ſome men in certain.

The Mixt action is ſuch an action, as wherein not only the thing it ſelf being a real thing in demand is to be recovered, but alſo damages for the wrong, as in Aſſiſe, Waſte, Quare impedit, and the like.

Demandant and Tenant: Plaintiff and Defendant. He that ſueth in an action Real for title of land, is called a Demandant; and he that is ſued, is called a Tenant: but he that ſueth an action Perſonal, is called Plaintiff; and he that is ſued, is called Defendant.

In every action and the proceedings thereupon three things are to be done. 1. The Cauſe or matter of fact muſt be ſhewed, and this the parties muſt do. 2. The Law muſt be ſhewed, and Judgment given according to the Law upon the matter of fact appearing in the Caſe; and this the Judges muſt do. 3. The Execution of the Judgment given by the Judges; and this the Officers of the Court muſt do. Plow. 36.

Proceſs, what. The whole proceeding of a Suit from the original to the end, is called the Proceſs: it is ſometimes taken for the proceedings from the original to the Judgment: but moſt properly it ſignifieth nothing but the Writs and Precepts that iſſue out in all actions Criminal and Civil.

Sect. 1. 2. A Writ, what. A Writ is a Precept in the name of the Lord Protector, &c. written in parchment and ſealed with the Great Seal. Wherein there is, 1. The Salutation. 2. The matter or cauſe of the Complaint briefly ſet down, called Breve, quia rem breviter enarrat, for that it doth tell the matter in ſhort. 3. The Concluſion, wherein are, 1. The Teſt, which in the Chancery is the Lord Protector himſelf, in other Courts the Chief Juſtice of the Court as a witneſs. 2. The place. 3. The time or the date. Theſe Writs admit of many diviſions and diſtinctions; ſome be Criminal, and ſome Civil or Common. Of Criminal, ſome be againſt the perſon to have Judgment of death, as Writs of Appeal of death, Robbery, Rape, &c. And ſome to have Judgment of Damage to the party, Fine to the King, and Impriſonment, as Writs of Appeal of Maihme, &c. Theſe Civil or Common actions alſo admit many diviſions and diſtinctions; for theſe are alſo Real, Perſonal, and Mixt. But ſometimes they come open, and ſometimes incloſed in the Seal; and hence perhaps they are ſaid to be open or patent, and cloſe. But ſome of them are ſaid to be Brevia amicabilia, ſome Brevia adverſaria. Amicabilia are Writs of Entry for the paſſing of a Common Reovery, and a Writ of Covenant for the paſſing of a Fine. Adverſaria, are all other Writs, which are either Original, (i.e.) the foundation of the Action, as Diſtreſs, &c. Mean, (i.e.) between the Original and the Judgment, as Capias, Exigent, &c. Judicial, (i.e.) tending to the execution of the Judgment given, as Elegit, Fieri facias, Levari facias, Habere facias ſeiſinam, or poſſeſſionem, &c. Original Writs have ſome of them a certain form and rule; others are to be framed according to the Caſe. Original Writs are ſome of them Real, ſome Perſonal, ſome Mixt. Summons, is a Writ to the Sheriff to cite or warn one to appear at a certain day, and it muſt be by certain ſummoners in the Tenants land, not by his goods, Rent or Common; and if it be againſt an heir, it muſt be in the land that did deſcend; and if it be to recover the Freehold, it muſt be in the ſame land: Elſe making default, he may at the Grand Cape wage his law of Non-ſummons; but if he appear, it matters not where he was ſummoned. Coo.6.54. 37 H.6.26. 3. Summons, what.

It is when a Suit is put without a day by the demiſe of the King; then this Writ ſhall go out, or a Reattachment as the caſe is, and as the firſt action was, to revive the ſuit: And this is either general, when it is one man for all ſuits; or ſpecial, when it is for one man for one ſuit only. 5 *H.7.40. A Capias is a Writ to take the body of a man; and of theſe there be divers ſpecies: as before Judgment, a Capias ad reſpondendum; after Judgment, a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, Capias pro fine, Cap. and others. That before Judgment is called Cap. ad reſp. And if the Sheriff return upon that, Non eſt inventus, &c. then the Proceſs is Alias capias, Pluries, and Exigent: which Exigent muſt be five times proclaimed, and the party not appearing is outlawed. Capias, what: The kinds. Alias capias. Pluries capias.

Exigent, It is a Writ, and lieth where a man doth ſue an Action perſonal, and the Defendant cannot be found, nor hath any thing within the County whereby he may be attached or diſtrained; then this Writ ſhall go forth to the Sheriff to make Proclamations at five Counties every one after another, that he appear, or elſe that he ſhall be outlawed; and if he be, then all his goods and chattels be forfeit. And this goeth forth in ſome caſes before Judgment, and in ſome after Judgment. Before Judgment in a perſonal action it cannot be had till there have been three Capias's ad reſpondendum one after another, with a Non eſt inventus returned. But one upon a Capias upon an Indictment of Felony, and then the Exigent doth iſſue after the firſt Capias. If the Exigent be returned not fully ſerved, without any folly in the Plaintiff, as where the Defendant after demand at two Counties rendreth himſelf in Court, and upon Mainpriſe found hath a Superſedeas, and yet appeareth not at the day: but otherwiſe it is upon a Superſedeas by another perſon bearing the ſame name, or in caſe where no more Counties but four can be holden, between the delivery of the Writ to the Sheriff and the Retorn, the Plaintiff bringing a new Exigent before any other County holden, but elſe not, ſhall have the benefit of the former Counties: and therefore it is called an Exigent allocato Comitatu, or allocato Huſtingo, if it be in London. 22 Ed. 3. 11. 38 Ed. 3. 1. 14 Ed. 3. 1. 17 Ed. 3. 43. *Fitz. 4. Who may bring Actions, and againſt whom they maybe brought or not, and how.

Infant.
Lunatick.
Prochein-Amy.
Guardian.
Diſability.
Executor.
Husband and wife.

For anſwer to this Queſtion, it is to be known, 1. That Ideots, Mad-men, and ſuch as be deaf and dumb, or any other man, woman or child, (except perſons diſabled by Law) being wronged, may bring the proper Action appointed for remedy in that caſe; and all, or any of theſe wronging others,may be ſued: And if an Ideot ſue or be ſued, he muſt do it in perſon; an Infant muſt ſue by Prochein-amy, and being ſued muſt defend by Guardian. But ſome men there are that are diſabled to ſue; and this diſability is either for a time only, or perpetually: And it is alſo either abſolute, or ſecundum quid, and quoad only; as a man outlawed cannot ſue in his own right, but he may ſue in anothers right as Executor; a Feme-covert cannot ſue but with her husband. There are ſix manner of men (ſaith Littleton) who if they ſue, Judgment may be demanded whether they ſhall be anſwered, &c. Or there are ſix kinds of diſabilities of the perſon diſabling him to ſue, ſo long as the diſability doth continue. *Lit ſect.*196. Cook upon it. 1. The Villain might not have ſued his Lord in his own right, right, but as Executor he might have ſued him. (2.) A man outlawed in any Action, or upon any Indictment, cannot ſue any man in his own right whilſt he doth ſo continue; and yet a perſon outlawed may ſue in anothers right, as Executor or Adminiſtrator to another: So in his own right the perſon outlawed may bring a Writ of Error to reverſe that Outlawry, or an Attaint. Lit. ſect. 197. & Coo. upon it. (3.) An Alienee that was born out of the liegeance of the Lord Protector, in a ſtrange Country, under a ſtrange Prince, could not ſue; if he be ſubject to a King that is an enemy, he cannot ſue in any action; or if he be ſubject to a friend, he may not have a Real or Mixt action: but this impediment may be by Act of Parliament, or the Lord Protector's Letters-patents removed, and the party hereby be put in a capacity to ſue. Lit. ſect. 198. & Cook upon it. (4.) He that hath a Judgment given againſt him upon a Writ of Præmunire facias, ſo long as the Judgment is in force, may not ſue another. Lit. ſect. 199. & Cook upon it. (5.) Where a man is entred and profeſſed in any Order of Religion, as Monk, Frier, or the like, ſo long as he continues ſo, and is not dearraigned, he is diſabled to ſue. Lit. ſect. 200. & Cook upon it. (6.) A man Excommunicate, till he is abſolved, cannot ſue in any action. And theſe diſabilities hold for Suits in Courts of Equity alſo. But it ſeems that any of theſe diſabled perſons may ſue in Anter droit, (i.e) in anothers right, as being Executor or Adminiſtrator to another, they may ſue ſo far as is needful to the performance of that truſt. Dyer 275. 371. 187. 227. F.N.B. 36. 26 *H.*8. 1. Cook 8. 68. 3 *H.*6. 39. 23. 44 *Ed.*3. 27. 16 *Ed.*4. 4. 21 *H.*6. 30. Dyer 77. Cook upon Lit. fol. 124, 125, &c. So he that is attainted of Treaſon or Felony, or a convict Recuſant, or abjured the Realm, is diſabled to ſue for the time he continues in that eſtate. But in all thoſe caſes the diſability being removed, the Præmunire or Attainder being pardoned, or Outlawry reverſed, Excommunicate perſon abſolved, &c. the party may ſue again as before. 29 Aſſ. 47. 7 *H.*4. 39. Cook upon Lit. 128, 129. And in all theſe caſes, the Defendant when he doth firſt appear, ere he make any delay, Eſſoin, or otherwiſe anſwer, muſt take exception to the Plaintiffs ability, and ſhew his diſability, and demand Judgment of the Court, and pray that the Writ may abate; for if he make any Anſwer, the Exception comes too late.

And yet it hath been ſaid, that in all Actions wherein nothing but damages are to be recovered, and the husband alone may releaſe it, he may ſue alone, or join his wife with him, as where ſhe is beat or ſlandered; but it is ſafe to ſue in both their names. If ſhe being ſole, make a Bond or Aſſumpſit now after marriage, they muſt both of them be ſued upon it, Dyer 355. But if they both during the Coverture make an Obligation, the husband alone may be ſued, 43 Ed. 3. 10. And if one be poſſeſſed of the Wardſhip of certain land, either in his wives right, or jointly with her, the Writ of Dower ſhall be brought againſt the husband alone, Coo. 1. p. 39. And in all caſes where they are both ſued, albeit the husband may anſwer alone, yet the wife ſhall never be forced to anſwer without the husband, 34 H. 6. 29. 40 Ed. 3. 34. 2 R. 3. 15. 41 Ed. 3. 22. See in Waſte.

Covenant. 3. In caſes where the Covenantees have, or are to have ſeveral intereſts or eſtates, there when the Covenant is made to and with the Covenantees, & cum quolibet eorum, aut altero eorum, (i. e.) with either of them, and to either of them, in this caſe theſe words make the Covenant ſeveral. As if one by Indenture demiſe Black-acre to A. and White-acre to B. and Green-acre to C. and Covenant with them and either of them, or Covenant with them and every of them, that he is lawful Owner of all theſe acres; in this caſe the Covenant is ſeveral: but if he demiſe to them the three acres together, and covenant in this manner, the Covenant is joint, and not ſeveral. And if A. and B. do covenant jointly and ſeverally, in this caſe the Covenant may be joint or ſeveral, and the Covenanters may be ſued either the one way or the other at the election of the Covenantee, Coo. 5. 19. Dyer 338. Broo. Conveiunt. 49. Six Merchants covenant with the Owners of a ſhip ſeparatim; this word makes the Covenant ſeveral. Coo. 5. 23.

Sect. 6. Obligation. 4 If two, three, or more bind themſelves in an Obligation thus, Obligamus nos, i. We bind us, and ſay no more; the Obligation is, and ſhall be taken to be joint only, and not ſeveral. But if it be thus: Obligamus nos & utrumq; noſtrum; or, obligamus nos & unumquemq; noſtrum; or, obligamus nos & quemlibet noſtrum; or, obligamus nos & alterum noſtrum; We bind us & either [or every] of us: In all theſe caſes the obligation is both joint & ſeveral; ſo as in theſe caſes the obligee may ſue all the obligers together, or all of them apart at his pleaſure; but it ſeems he may not ſue ſome of them, and ſpare the reſt, but he muſt ſue them all together, or all apart by ſeveral Precipes; and in this caſe he may have ſeveral Judgments & ſeveral Executions againſt the Obligers, and take all their bodies in execution, but he ſhall have ſatisfaction but once, or from one of them only: for after he hath been ſatisfied by one, the reſt ſhall be diſcharged. But in the firſt caſe, where the Obligation is joint and not ſeveral, the Obligee muſt ſue all the Obligers together; for he cannot ſue one alone with effect, without the reſt, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes; as where one of the Obligers alone doth ſeal the Deed, or where all of them do ſeal, but one of them is an Infant, a woman Covert, a Monk, or the like, or where one of them is dead; for in theſe caſes, one or ſome of them may be charged without the reſt: But otherwiſe the Plaintiff cannot proceed in his ſuit againſt one, or ſome of them, without the reſt, except the Defendant give him advantage. For howſoever the ſuit be well begun, (for when one or ſome of them alone is, or are ſued, it ſhall not be intended that the reſt are living, until it be ſhewed by the other party;) yet the Defendant is not bound to anſwer, unleſs the reſt be ſued alſo. And therefore in this caſe, he or they that is or are ſued alone, are thus to Abatement. take advantage of it, viz. To ſhew the matter to the Court, and to plead in abatement of the Writ: For if he appear and ſhew it not, but plead Non eſt factum, or the like to the Obligation, the Jury muſt find againſt him, and he will be charged with the whole debt: And ſo alſo if one appear, and the other make default and is outlawed, it ſeems he that doth appear muſt anſwer all. Hil. 19. Eliz. B. R. Adjudg.

5. If a Bond or Promiſe be made by two or more, not one or any of them may be ſued without the reſt whilſt they live, M. 7. Jac. B R. Coo 9. 53. And if a promiſe be made made to two or more, no one of them can ſue whilſt the reſt live, but they muſt ſue all together:

Executors.

6. If an erroneous Judgment be againſt many, regularly, they muſt all join in a Writ of Error, or Attaint. Coo 5.25. 11.43. And if there be many Executors, and ſome accept, and ſome refuſe, if they bring any action, they muſt all be named in the Writ: and yet if one Executor have goods in his poſſeſſion, and he alone ſell them, perhaps for this Contract he may bring an action for the money in his own name; ſo alſo if the goods be taken out of his poſſeſſion alone, it is ſaid he alone may ſue for them. But the ſafeſt way in theſe Caſes, is to ſue in the names of all the Executors; for, the poſſeſſion of one of them, is ſaid to be the poſſeſſion of all of them. If many do commit a Treſpaſs to me, I may ſue all, ſome or any one of them at my choice; and the Recovery againſt one, will diſcharge and bar me againſt all the reſt.

Perſonal action.

7. Where the wrong and action given for relief is ſaid to be perſonal, there no action lieth for or againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator; for the Rule in this is, An Action perſonal dieth with the perſon. And therefore if A. beat B. or ſuffer an eſcape, (which is a wrong to B.) he being a Sheriff, or do waſte in the lands of B. or enter into the lands of B. and A. or B. die, here the action is gone for ever; and ſo in all caſes where the wrong is ex maleficio. But where it is ex contractu, that it ariſe by way of Contract, there the Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have action: As if one deliver goods to another man, and he die, his Executor ſhall be charged: And albeit a man hath received profit, if the action be perſonal, yet in moſt caſes he ſhall not be chargeable in Equity. Plow. 181, 183. Dyer 14, 169, 322. *Coo.*9,84. 11,80. See Executors. Brownl. 2 *part.*9.

8. A Creditor may ſue the Executors or the Heir, which he will; or he may ſue both, if he will; but he can have but one Execution with ſatisfaction, Brow. 2 *par.*97. See Enfant, Husband and wife, Ability.

9. If two retain an Attorney, and both die, the Executor of the Survivor only ſhall be charged for the Fees; for a Perſonal contract doth ſurvive of both parties, otherwiſe of Real contracts, as Warrantie. Brown. 2 par. 99.

10. If one Covenant with A. B. and C. to pay A. 10l. and he die; in this caſe, B. and C. not the Executor of A. muſt ſue, Brownl. 2 part, 207.

For anſwer to this queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

5. Where the Plaintiff may bring one Action or other at his choice.

1. If the Sheriff have one in execution for my debt, and ſuffer him to eſcape, I may (for my relief herein) have an action of Debt, or an action upon the Caſe. So if I ſell my goods to one upon an Executory contract for money, I may have either of theſe actions for the money. *Coo.*4.92.

Debt.

Action upon the Caſe.

2. If an Officer take Toll of me, who ought to go quit of Toll, I may have a general action of Treſpaſs, or an action of the Caſe againſt him at my choice: So if one diſtrain my goods that are not diſtrainable by Law, I may have either of theſe actions againſt him, *Coo.*4.94.

Treſpaſs.

3. If one diſtrain me or my Tenants to come to his Leet, who have a Leet my ſelf the place, I may bring an action of Treſpaſs, or Treſpaſs on the Caſe againſt him, *Coo.*4.94. And albeit it be in ſuch caſe wherein I may have an Aſſiſe for my relief in the diſturbance, yet I may have an action of the Caſe alſo at my choice, *Coo.*9.5.

4. If I be Executor of a Leſſee for years, and be ouſted by the Leſſor himſelf, I may have for my relief herein an action of the Caſe, Ejectione firmæ, or action of Treſpaſs at my choice, *Coo.*4.95.

5. If one contract with me for good conſideration, to deliver to me twenty buſhels of Corn a year, every year during my life, and he fail to perform with me one year, for this I may have an action of the Caſe; but no action of Debt will lie upon this Contract till all the days be paſt, that is, till my death; after which my Executor or Adminiſtrator may have an action of Debt, *Coo.*4.94. So likewiſe if a ſum of money be given in marriage to be paid at ſeveral days, no action of Debt will lie until all the days be paſt; but an action of the Caſe will lie upon every failer, *Coo.*4.94.

Detinue.

6. If one find my goods, or I deliver them to him, and he having them in his cuſtody convert them, I may at my choice have an action of Detinue, or an action of the Caſe upon the Trover and Converſion, Dyer 121,22. If I deliver to one money open

open (not in a bag or box ſealed) to keep to my uſe; in this caſe for my relief, I may have an action of Debt or Account, but not an action of Detinue, Dyer 22. If I be a Brewer, and buy Corn of a man to ſerve my turn, to be delivered me at ſuch a time and place, and he fail me, whereby I am forced to buy elſwhere; in this caſe I may have an action of Debt, or an action of the Caſe, at my choice, but not an action of Detinue, Dyer 22.

Maſter and Servant.

7. If a ſervant buy goods for his maſter, and give a Note of the Receipt of them to his maſters uſe, and undertake by his Note to pay the money at a day, but this Note is not ſealed; in this caſe an action of Debt doth not, but an action of the Caſe doth lie againſt the ſervant, Dyer 230.

Sect. 7.

8. If I (being a Sollicitor) retained for J.S. do retain an Attorney for him to ſue, and I do aſſume to pay him his Fees; in this caſe he may have an action of Debt, or an action of the Caſe againſt me (at his choice) for his Fees. Adjudg. Hil. 16 Jac. Bradfords caſe. 33 *H.*6.8. 17 *Ed.*4,5. But if I retain the Attorney for J.S. and ſay no more, in this caſe (it ſeems) he can have neither of theſe actions againſt me. And yet if I ſay to him, Be Attorney for J.S. and if he pay you not, I will; in this caſe he hath an action of the Caſe only. And if I ſay, Be his Attorney, and I will pay you; in this caſe I may be charged in both theſe actions at his pleaſure. 43 Eliz. Simpſon's Caſe.

9. If one grant me a Rent out of his land, with clauſe of Diſtreſs, I may diſtrain, or bring an Annuity at my choice: But if the Grant be not for him and his heirs, I may not have an Annuity againſt his heir, Dyer 344.

If one have a Judgment for Debt in any Court of Record, whilſt this is in force, the Plaintiff cannot have a new action upon the firſt Cauſe; but he muſt ſue Execution upon the Judgment. For which he may have a Fieri facias, Cap. ad ſat. or Elegit, at his choice: Or he may outlaw him after Judgment, if he pleaſe: Or the Plaintiff may bring a new action of Debt upon the Judgment, *Coo.*6,45: 5,88. And albeit the Record be removed out of one Court into another, yet within the year the Plaintiff may take out his Execution at his pleaſure. If one have a Judgment to recover an Annuity, he hath no remedy for the recovery of this, but by ſuing out a Scire facias on this Judgment, *Coo.*6.45. See Election.

6. Within what time Actions muſt be brought, or not.

All actions of Treſpaſs Quare clauſum fregit, actions of Treſpaſs, action ſur Trover, Detinue and Replevin for taking away Goods and Cattel, all actions of Account, other then Accounts which concern the Trade of Merchandiſe between Merchant and Merchant, their Factors and Servants; all actions of Debt grounded upon any Lending or Contract without Eſpecialty, and for arrearages of Rent; all actions of the Caſe, other then for Slander, which ſhall be ſued, muſt be commenced and ſued within ſix years after the cauſe of ſuch action or ſuit accrued, if the Plaintiff be then of full age, diſcovert, compos mentis, at liberty out of priſon, and in England; otherwiſe within that time after he become ſo; and not after.

All actions of Treſpaſs for Aſſault, Menace, Battery, Wounding, and Impriſonment, within four years after the Cauſe, and not after.

All actions of the Caſe for words, within two years next after the words ſpoken, and not after.

But if in a former action, a Judgment being given or arreſted, or the Defendant outlawed, and the Outlawry reverſed, a new action may be brought within a year of the reverſal or arreſt of Judgment or Outlawry, 21 *Jac.*16.

For the opening whereof take theſe things. 1: Where one is indebted to another for Wares, and the Debt is gone in time, and after they account together, and he is found ſo much in debt; in this he may bring an action upon this account, notwithſtanding this Statute; *March.*106.*pl.*182. 2. A Truſt is not within this Statute, and therefore no lapſe of time herein ſhall take away remedy in Equity: But in other ordinary caſes, where he is barred in Law by the time, he is barred in Equity alſo, *Mar.*129. *pl.*207. 3. The time muſt be accounted from the time that the Plaintiff hath compleat cauſe of action, and not from the time of the promiſe; as if one promiſe to pay upon requeſt, or when one is married, or returned from Rome, or the like, *Hughs, Rep.*437.

All

All Actions, Bills, Informations which ſhall be brought for any forfeiture upon a penal Law, then made or to be made, whereby the forfeiture was given to the Lord Protector only, was to be brought within two years after the offence done, and not afterwards.

And all others, except the Statutes of Tillage, which gave the benefit to the King and Proſecutor, was to be brought by the Proſecutor within a year after the offence done; and in his default, and for the King, within two years, and not after; and where by any Statute it is appointed to be brought in ſhorter time, there it muſt be brought in ſhorter time: Stat. 31 Eliz. 5. See more in Limitation.

7. Where, and in what place Actions muſt be brought.

All real and mixt actions, as Waſte, Ejectione firmæ, &c. muſt be brought in the County where the land lieth, and cannot be laid in any other place, for they are local. So all actions of Treſpaſs; for Treſpaſſes which are local (as Quare clauſum fregit) muſt be brought in the County where the land lieth, and the ſame place muſt be ſet down in the Declaration wherein the wrong was done: But (by the Common-Law) all perſonal actions (that are not Local in their own nature, as Quare clauſum fregit is) and briefly, all tranſitory actions may be brought in any County where the Plaintiff pleaſeth; and the Plaintiff by his Declaration may ſuppoſe it to be done in any place or County. And ſo was it held by Juſtice Dodridg, Hil. 16: Jac. B. R. But by the Statute of 6 R. 2. chap. 2. the title whereof is this, [Writs of Debt, Account, &c. ſhall be commenced in the Counties where the Contracts were made;] and the Act it ſelf is thus, [To the intent that Writs of Debt and Account, and all other ſuch Actions, be from henceforth taken in their Counties, and directed to the Sheriffs of the Counties where the Contracts of the ſame Actions did riſe: It is ordained, That if from henceforth in Pleas upon the ſame Writs it be declared, That the Contract thereof was made in another County then is contained in the Original Writ, that then incontinently the ſame Writ ſhall be utterly abated.]

The Defendant in Debt upon a Bond, pleads this Statute of 6 R. 2. and that the Bond was not made in L. as in the Writ is alleaged, and prays that the Plaintiff being preſent in Court, may be examined upon it; who thereupon was examined in Court upon his oath, who confeſſed upon his oath that it was made at H. in the County of C. whereupon it was adjudged, that the Plaintiff ſhould take nothing by his Writ, &c. 9 H. 5. R 109. Old book of Entries, 183. Cromp. Jur. Courts, 101. B. F. N. B. 116. Yet nevertheleſs the Law is held to be, and the practice is at this day, That one may lay a Tranſitory Action, as Debt, Detinue, Annuity, or Account, &c. in what place he pleaſeth; and ſo the Plaintiff uſeth to do. And accordingly it was held by Juſtice Dodridge, Hil. 16. B. R. for (ſaid he) the Statute was never put in ure. And ſo it is held in Coo. upon Lit. 282. Perk. Grant 80: Broo. ch. 451. Kitch. 180. 136. That in an Action brought for Tranſitory things, as beating a man, or the like; the wrong being done in one Town, the Plaintiff may alleage it to be not only in another Town, but alſo in another County; and the Jury upon Not guilty pleaded are bound to find for the Plaintiff. And in theſe caſes, if the Plaintiff lay the thing to be done in another place, the Defendant may not traverſe it, and ſay it was done in another place, and not the place ſet down in the Declaration, unleſs there be ſpecial cauſe of Juſtification, which doth extend to the place: As if a Conſtable of a Town in another County arreſt a man for the breaking of the Peace, and the Action being laid in another County, there he may traverſe the County, but withall he muſt add, And all other places ſaving the Town whereof he is Conſtable. So for taking of goods, damage feſant in another County, Coo. upon Lit. 283, 282. A Leaſe for years was made of land in London, and the Leſſor brought debt for the Rent againſt the Aſſignee in Middleſex; this is not well brought, by the opinion of the whole Court. Debt for Rent upon privity of Contract, may be brought in any County: but if it be upon privity of Eſtate, as by the Grantee of the Reverſion, or againſt the Aſſignee of the Leſſee, it muſt be brought in the County where the land is, Hughs Rep. 335. But if an Action be brought againſt an Officer, as Juſtice of Peace, Conſtable, Churchwarden, Surveyor of High-ways, or the like, for any thing done about his Office, it muſt be laid in the County where the fact was committed, or upon Trial it will go againſt the Plaintiff, 21 Jac. 12. Ord. 3. March, 1654.

Sect. 9.

The

The like is the Law upon an Action brought againſt a man for doing any thing under any Ordinance of Parliament. Ord. 2 Decemb. 1646. Coo. 2 par. Inſt. 231. For the place where Criminal Actions may be laid and tryed, See Stat. 17 *H.*8.4. 28 *H.*8.15. 33 *H.*8.12.23. 2 & 3 *Ed.*6.24. 2 *H.*5.5. 11 *H.*7.9. 9 *H.*5.7. and the new Law, 20 *Septemb.*1649.

For anſwer hereunto, take theſe things:

8. Where the Plaintiff may join ſeveral cauſes of wrong in one Action; and where Plaintiffs or Defendants may be joined in Action, or not.

1. In Perſonal actions one may comprehend ſeveral cauſes or wrongs in one Action or Writ, ſo as they be of one nature, and againſt one perſon: as Debt and Detinue may be joined together; and one may bring one Action of Treſpaſs for ~~divers~~ ſeveral Treſpaſſes done in divers places, and at divers times. So for divers Treſpaſſes one after another in the ſame place, the Plaintiff may have relief by one Writ with a Continuando, (that is) that divers times continuing from ſuch a time to ſuch a time he did Treſpaſs him, Coo. upon Lit. 257. *FNB.*91: And yet it hath been ſaid that this cannot be, except the Plaintiff make a regreſs after his firſt entry, Baron Henden at Glouceſter-Aſſizes, 17 Car.

2. So one Action of the Caſe may be brought for divers Aſſumpſit's; and ſo may one Action of Waſte be brought for divers Waſtes, done upon divers lands, granted by divers Leaſes. But if the cauſes and wrongs be of divers natures, as Debt and Treſpaſs, and the like, albeit they be againſt one perſon, yet they cannot be joined together in one action, *Coo.*8.87. 3 *H.*4.13. 11 *H.*6.18.

3. So likewiſe in Real actions which are founded upon a wrong or deforcement, and doth not comprehend any Title in them, there the Demandant may demand in one Writ or Action divers lands and tenements which came to him by divers titles; as where divers Manors deſcend to me from divers anceſtors, and I am diſſeiſed or deforced of them, I may have one Writ of Right or Entry into the nature of an Aſſiſe, or an Aſſiſe, and comprehend all theſe Rights in the ſame Writ. But if I bring a Writ of Entry ſur diſſeiſin, made to my Mother and my Aunt, Copartners in Fee-ſimple, the Writ ſhall abate, becauſe the Title is by ſeveral Anceſtors, *Coo.*8.87.

4. The Plaintiff brought an Action of Debt for 3*l.* 18*s.* againſt the Defendant and his wife, and declared for 39*s.* upon a Contract of the wives, dum ſola fuit; and 39*s.* upon an In ſimul computaverunt, with the husband only, and after iſſue: Nil debet found for the Plaintiff, Judgment was ſtaid for Error, Hobard 258.

5. So if the Defendant be by one Writ ſued for one thing as Executor, by reaſon of the buying of the Teſtator, and for other things of his own buying; and declare, That upon an account the Executor being found in debt to him theſe ſums, promiſed him payment; this is not good in one Action, for the Defendant is to be charged in two manners, *Hob fol.*120. *pl.*115. And yet in Hobards Reports, *fol.*8. an Action of the Caſe was brought for ſlander about Murther, and a Conſpiracie to take away his life for it, in one Writ; and in a Writ of Error brought, wherein divers other Exceptions were moved, no Exception was taken to this; it ſeems therefore to be good.

6. Two or more Plaintiffs may not ſue in one Action for ſeveral Cauſes, though of the ſame kind: And therefore two cannot join in one Writ to ſue upon two Bonds for Debt due to them, or to ſue one man for Treſpaſſes. But if two or more have cauſe to have one Action, as if one Bond or Aſſumpſit be made to two or more, in this caſe they may and muſt ſue all together. And if two men have more lands or goods together in joint-tenancie, and thereby wronged in it, regularly they muſt ſue jointly in one Action for it; and if they be Tenants in Common of lands, in a Perſonal action, as for a Treſpaſs or the like wrong, they muſt ſue jointly; but in a Real action they muſt ſue apart, *Cook upon Lit.*195,196,198.

7. Nor can one man ſue ſeveral Defendants in one Writ, in Actions of the ſame nature, as for ſeveral Treſpaſſes; but if one Treſpaſs be done by divers, the Plaintiff may make it joint or ſeveral, as he pleaſeth. *Coo. upon Lit.*331,332. And yet two that join in a Treſpaſs, do ſo make one Treſpaſſor, that one of them is anſwerable for his fellow; and if they be ſued in one Action, they may ſever in Pleas and Iſſues, yet one Jury muſt aſſeſs damages for all, and there ſhall be but one ſatisfaction, and a Releaſe

Releaſe to one will diſcharge them all; and as to the damages, he that is no party to the iſſues ſhall have an Attaint as well as his fellows: And if they be ſued in ſeveral actions, though the Plaintiff may make choice of the beſt damages, yet if he take one ſatisfaction, he can take no more; and if he go about to take ſatisfaction twice, an Audita Querela lieth. Hob. Rep. 91. See before 3. See more in Brownlow's Rep. fol. 20.

For this take theſe things.

Sect. 9. 9. Where an Action may be barred by a former Action had for the ſame thing, or not.

1. When one is barred in any perſonal action by Judgment upon Demurrer, or upon Confeſſion, or upon Verdict; this is a bar to him for the ſame thing in any other action for ever. Expedit reipublicæ ut ſit finis litium. 2. And in actions real where a man is ſo barred in any action, by this he ſhall be barred in the like action, or any action, or any action of the ſame nature. But in this caſe the party againſt whom the Recovery is, may notwithſtanding have an action real of a higher nature, Coo. 6:7. And therefore it is a good plea in Treſpaſs to ſay, that the Plaintiff in another action hath recovered againſt him for the ſame cauſe. So a Recovery againſt another, if it be for the ſame thing, and execution made, which gives ſatisfaction. Trin. 3. Jac. B.R. Brown and Wotton. 3. But a Recovery or Bar in an action popular by Covin, ſhall be no Bar to an action ſued with good faith, Stat. 4. H. 7. ch. 20. 4. A Bar in one Ejectione firme is a Bar in another brought for the ſame Ejectment, but not for a new Ejectment, March 59. pl. 91:

10. Remedy for him who is cauſeleſly vexed.

1. If one do malitiouſly vex another, and cauſe him to be arreſted or attached at the ſuit of one, where there is none ſuch, or without his conſent, he ſhall be impriſoned ſix moneths without Bail, and not enlarged till he have ſatisfied the party grieved his treble damages, and 10*l.* forfeiture, Stat. 8. Eliz. 2. See Accuſation: 2. If one be twice arreſted for the ſame cauſe, this is a miſdemeanor puniſhable in the Plaintiff, Goldsb. 30. pl. 5.

The Proceedings of Law in Actions, and the Terms concerning Pleading, are theſe which follow.

Circuit of Action, what it is.

Circuit of Action, is a Term of Law ſignifying a longer courſe of proceeding to recover the thing ſued for, then is needful. See for this more in the Terms of the Law.

Appearance, what it is.

Appearance, is where a Tenant or Defendant in any Action doth appear and ſhew himſelf in perſon or by Attorney in the Court where the Action is ſued, to anſwer the Action and defend the Suit. And the not appearing by the Tenant or Defendant at the day he ought to appear, is called a Default.

Default, what.

Saver of Default, what.

Saving of a Default is, where ſomething is or may be ſaid or done to ſave the default of another that ought to appear in any Action; or when a man cometh after his default, and ſheweth good cauſe why he did it.

Eſſoin, what.

Eſſoin is, where an Action is brought, and the Plaintiff or Defendant cannot well appear at the time he is to appear in Court, for ſome ſpecial cauſe, ſickneſs or the like, allowed to him by Law for a good excuſe; and this doth ſave his default for this time.

Fourcher, what.

Fourcher doth ſignifie a ſhifting, delay, or put-off by a Plaintiff or Demandant in a Suit.

Departure in deſpight of the Court, what.

Departure in deſpight of the Court, is when the Tenant or Defendant doth appear to the Action brought againſt him, and hath a day over in the ſame Term, or is called after, though he had no day given him, ſo that it be in the ſame Term, and he do not then appear, but make default.

Count or Declaration, what.

The Declaration or Count is the ſhewing in writing of the grief and complaint of the Plaintiff or Demandant againſt the Tenant or Defendant, wherein he ſuppoſeth to have received wrong.

Continuance, what. Darrein Continuance, what. Dies datus. Ex aſſenſu partium.

Continuance of a Suit, is the putting of it off from time to time by the Plaintiff or Demandant, to give it a being: And the laſt day given for this prorogation is called Darrein Continuance; when the further day is given by the Court, it is called Dies datus; and when it is by the agreement of the parties, it is called Ex aſſenſu partium.

Continuando. Continuando, is a Term uſed in an action of Treſpaſs, whereby the Plaintiff doth ſuppoſe the Treſpaſs to be continued from ſuch a time to ſuch a time.

Adjournment, what it is. Adjournment, is when any Court is diſſolved, and aſſigned to be kept at another day or place.

Imparlance, what it is. Imparlance is the deſire of the Defendant in the Suit after the Declaration put into the Court, and the Courts Order thereupon, that the Defendant ſhall have a longer day to anſwer the matter. And this is alſo by the conſent of the parties.

Journeys Account. And this alſo is by ſometimes Journies account, which is a kind of continuance of a Suit begun and interrupted.

Diſcontinuance, what it is. Diſcontinuance of a Suit, is the interruption or breaking of a Suit; which being done, the Plaintiff is without a day, and muſt begin his Suit again.

Miſcontinuance, what it is. Miſcontinuance of a Suit, is where a Suit is continued, but not well continued: By this alſo the Suit is determined, and the Plaintiff is put to begin anew.

Retraxit, what it is. Retraxit, is where the Plaintiff in a Suit comes in perſon into the Court alone, or with the Defendant, and ſaith he will proceed no further: This now is peremptory, and a perpetual bar to him.

Nonſuit, what it is. Nonſuit, is where the Jury is ready to appear, or to give up their verdict, or when the parties have demurred in Judgment, and have a day given them further; and at that time the Plaintiff being called, doth wilfully make default and renounce his ſuit. This is always after appearance.

Sect. 10. Abridgment of a Plaint or Demand, or Plea. Abridgment of a Plaint, Plea or Demand, is a form in pleading, whereby the Demandant-Plaintiff is put to, and doth abridg or aſcertain his demand. But of this and of all the reſt of the particulars before named, ſee the Firſt Part of the Marrow of the Law, Chap 58.

Pleading, what. Pleading, taken largely, doth ſignifie all the ſayings of the parties to a Suit, after the Declaration put in; that is, all that is contained in the Bar, Replication, Rejoinder, Surrejoinder, &c. But more properly and ſtrictly, it is taken for the Anſwer or Defence of the Defendant to the Declaration of the Plaintiff. And ſome kind of Pleas are called Exceptions: And when the Plea is ſuch an Anſwer, as it doth deſtroy the Action of the Plaintiff for ever, then it is called a Bar.

Plea or Defence. Exception. Bar, what it is.

Abatement of a Writ or Plaint, what. Abatement of a Writ or Plaint is, where a Writ, Plaint, or Avowry is brought, wherein there are any of the Cauſes of Abatement; then the Defendant finding fault with it, and taking Exception againſt it in time, may by Pleading or Motion deſtroy it, and put the Plaintiff to begin his Suit again.

Nihil dicit, what. Nihil dicit, is a failing to put in Anſwer to the Declaration of the Plaintiff by the day aſſigned: which if a man do, Judgment will be given againſt him for ſaying nothing to the contrary.

Non ſum informatus, what. Non ſum informatus, is a formal Anſwer put in of courſe by an Attorney in defence of his Clients ſuit, by which he leaveth the ſame undefended, and ſo Judgment paſſeth againſt him.

Nihil debet, what. Nihil debet, is a general Anſwer uſed to an action of Debt without a Specialty, whereby the Defendant doth ſay, that he doth owe nothing to the Plaintiff.

Not guilty, what Not guilty, is a kind of Plea uſed to actions of Treſpaſs and ſuch like actions, whereby the Defendant doth abſolutely deny the thing wherewith he is charged.

Riens arere, what. Riens arere, is a kind of Plea uſed to an action of Debt upon arrearages of Account, whereby the Defendant doth alleage that there is nothing behind.

Faint action or pleading, what. A Faint Action is, when the Writ is true, and yet the Plaintiff by Law can recover nothing by it. And a Faint Plea is a covenous kind of Plea to deceive a third perſon.

Bewpleader, what it is. Bewpleader is a Writ in the nature of a Prohibition, to forbid the Sheriff to do ſomething he had been uſed to do. But it is now out of uſe.

Dilatory plea, what. A Dilatory Plea is a Plea that makes a delay and put-off in the matter, and is not to the matter.

Colour, what. A Colour is a fained matter, which the Defendant in an action of Treſpaſs or Aſſiſe uſeth in his Plea, by which he giveth the Plaintiff a ſhew of good matter, though in truth he have none; and the end of it is to bring the matter to be tried by the Judges, and not by the Jury.

A Forrein plea, it ſeems, is ſuch a plea as is not triable in the County where it is made. Forein plea, what it is.

A Double plea, is where the Defendant in an action pleadeth a plea wherein there are two matters, either of which is a ſufficient bar to the action of it ſelf. Double plea, what it is.

Modo & forma, are words of art in pleading, when the Defendant in his Anſwer denieth the thing laid to his charge to be done in manner and form as is declared. Modo & forma, what it is.

Negativa pregnans, is where the Defendant to an action pleadeth ſuch a negative plea, which includeth in it an affirmative plea alſo. Negativa pregnans, what.

Proteſtation is a form uſed in pleading, when one will not directly affirm or deny any thing which is alleaged by another or by himſelf; or a defence and ſafeguard to the party which maketh it, from being concluded by the act he is about to do, that iſſue cannot be joyned upon it. Proteſtation, what.

Que eſt meſme, or which is the ſelf-ſame thing; It is a word of art uſed in an Action for a direct Juſtification of the very act complained of by the Plaintiff as a wrong. Que eſt meſme, what.

Monſtrance is a form of pleading, when one makes uſe of a Deed in a Court as Plaintiff or Defendant, that he ſaith he is ready to ſhew the Deed, for it muſt be ſhewed forth in Court, Monſtrance de fait.

Que eſtate, it ſignifieth a plea whereby a man intitling another man to lands, &c. he ſaith, that the ſame eſtate that the other hath, he himſelf hath from him. Que eſtate, what.

Action of the Writ, is a kind of pleading whereby one ſheweth ſome matter whereby he ſheweth the Plaintiff hath no cauſe to have that Writ which he hath brought, and yet it may be he may have another Writ or action for the ſame matter. Action of the Writ, what.

Uncore priſt, or yet ready; it is a form of pleading uſed by a Defendant in an action being ſued for a debt due at a day paſt, to ſave the forfeiture of a Bond; ſaying, That he tendred the money at the time and place, and there was none to receive it; and that he is now alſo ready to pay the ſame. Uncore priſt, what.

Traverſe ſignifieth ſometimes to deny, and ſo it is uſed in pleading; and then it is made by the words [without that:] and ſometimes it ſignifieth to overthrow or undoe: So a Traverſe of an Indictment, is to deny the point of an Indictment. Traverſe, or Sans ceo, what.

Confeſs and avoid, is a form of pleading, when the Defendant doth by his anſwer confeſs the effect of the Plaintiffs charge, but by ſome new matter he doth avoid it and put it from himſelf. Sect. 11. Confeſs and Avoid, what.

Concluſion of a Plea, is the latter part of the pleading in the Declaration, Bar, or Replication, which is and muſt be apt according to the precedent matter: As if the Suit be upon a Deed, and he hath pleaded in avoidance of it, then he demand the Judgment of the Court if it be his Deed; and if it he hath pleaded in diſcharge of the Debt, then he demands Judgment if he may have that action, and if one plead in abatement of a Writ or bar of an Action, he doth conclude, And this he is ready to aver. This is called an Averment. Concluſion of a Plea, what. Judgment ſi fait Judgment ſi action. Averment, what Replication is, where the Defendant in the Action maketh an Anſwer, and the Plaintiff thereupon maketh an Anſwer to his Anſwer. Replication, what.

Departure from a plea or matter, is where a man pleadeth a plea in bar, and the Plaintiff doth reply to it, and he after in his Rejoinder pleadeth or ſheweth another matter contrary or not purſuing to his firſt matter: Departure from his plea, what.

Variance is, where one part of the pleading doth not agree with another part thereof. Variance, what.

De ſon tort demeſne, or, Of his own wrong; are words of art uſed by way of Reply to a plea of the Defendant, whereby he doth charge the other party to do the thing otherwiſe then as he hath ſet forth. De ſon tort demeſne, what.

Rejoinder is, where after the Plaintiff in the Action hath replied to the Anſwer of the Defendant, the Defendant doth again make Anſwer to the Plaintiff. And if now after this the Plaintiff ſhall anſwer again to the Defendant, this is called a Surrejoinder. Rejoinder, what Surrejoinder, what.

Jeofaile is, where the parties to any Suit in pleading have proceeded ſo far that they have joined iſſue, which ſhall be tried, or is tried by a Jury: And now it doth appear that there is ſome fault in it, and they cannot go on ſafely; this being ſhewed to the Court, it ſhall be ſtayed. Jeofaile, what.

Sect. 12.
Peremptorie, what.
Repleader, what.
Novel Assignment, what.
Interpleader, what.

A Peremptorie is an art in pleading that is final, without hope of renewing. FNB. 35.

Repleader is, where the pleading in any part of it is bad, and by order of the Court or consent of the parties he is to plead again.

Novel assignment, is a form of pleading in an action of Trespass, whereby a man doth assign more certainty in the place then he did before.

Interpleader is the discussing of a point incidently falling out in the pleading, before the principal cause can have an end.

Counterplea, what.

Counterplea is a kind of Replication against a praying in Aid, desired by or offered to a particular Tenant in defence of a Suit.

Resceipt, what.

A Resceipt is, where an Action is brought against a Tenant for life or years, and he in the Reversion comes into the Court and prays to be admitted to join in defence of the Title.

Demurrer, what

Demurrer is a kind of pause upon a point of difficulty in Law arising in the pleading, wherein they can go no further till the Judges have determined it. But of this, and all the rest before, See more in the First Part of the Marrow of the Law, Chap. 58.

For the several kinds of Actions, see them in their proper places. And for the rest of the Proceedings in Actions, see Error, Trial, Judgment, and other Titles.

CHAP. III.

Of an Action of the Case in general.

Action of the Case, what it is.

AN Action of the Case is a Writ brought against one for an offence done without force; as, for not keeping promise, for breaking trust, for slanderous words, deceit, or the like misdemeanor: And is called an Action of the Case, because the whole Case (so much as is in the Declaration, (save only the time and place) is set down in the Writ; and there is no other Action given in the Case, save only in some few Cases where the Plaintiff hath his choice to bring this, or some other Action.

How many kinds of it there be.

This Action is sometimes about Words, (that is) if another speak that to, or of me, by which I am any way damnified. And sometimes it is about Deeds, and then it is either for not doing what a man ought to do, either by his own undertaking, or the requiring of Law; or it is for doing something he should not do; or it is for doing something otherwise then he should do. That for Defamation, is either of Great men, called Scandalum Magnatum; or it is of ordinary men. That for Deeds, is either upon an Assumpsit or Promise, upon a Nusance, upon a Trover and Conversion, upon a Deceit, upon a Conspiracie; or it is upon some other Non-feasance, or Mis-feasance. Amongst Slanders and Defamations also, some tend to the disgrace of the person of another, some to the disgrace of the Title of his Land. Those against the person also do some of them tend to the peril of his life, some to his prejudice in his livelihood and estate, and some to his reproach in his name only. Cook 4. 92, &c. Dyer 8. 72.

Sect. 1.

We shall begin with Actions for Words; and we will say a little to the Scandal of great men. But first of all we will give you certain general Rules that concern all sorts of Defamation, or the Slander of all sorts of men.

A Defamation also may be by Deeds, as by bringing an Action, or the like.

Of an Action of the Case for Slanderous words.

WE shall first give you in sundry Rules, the general Doctrine of Actions of the Case touching Slanders; and these like the Veins in the Body, run through the Body of all the Cases hereafter following, wherein the words are, or are not Actionable, as they fall within these Rules. And then we shall give you the Cases themselves, as examples answering to these Rules. The Rules are these. General Rules touching this Action.

1. In these Actions for words, the Law doth much heed how the words do sound, and are esteemed amongst the men of the place where they are spoken, whether they be odious in the estimation of men or not. And for this purpose, it is held, that words may be actionable in one Countrey, that being spoken in another Countrey, are not actionable; and this I take to be the most sure and best touchstone of all actionable words.

2. The sense of the words in these Cases, is much looked upon by the Law; and for the finding out thereof, the occasion, subject matter, and coherence of the Discourse must be weighed; Sensus verborum sumendus ex causa dicendi, Coo. 4. 16. Words that of themselves will bear an Action, yet sometimes being considered causa dicendi, (i.) By the occasion of the speech, will not bear Action. March Rep. f 20. And they are to be taken as they are spoken Conjunctim & uno halitu. New Book of Enteries, F 22. 6.

3. All scandalous words which touch or concern a man in his life, as to say, He is a Traytor, Thief, or the like; or which touch him in his Liberty, as heretofore to have said of one, He was Villain to J. S. or which concern a man in Member in any corporal punishment, as to say, A man hath stoln sixpence, (which is petit Larceny) or the like: Or which scandal a man in his office, or place of trust, as to say to a Judge or Justice of Peace, He is a corrupt Judge or Justice of Peace, or the like; or which slander a man in his calling or trade, by which he gets his living, as to say to an Attorney, You are a cheating knave; of a Tradesman that lives by buying and selling, He is a Bankrupt, or the like; or which tend to the loss of a mans preferment, as to say to a man about to be preferred to a Benefice, That he is an Heretick: Or of a Woman like to have a Husband, That she is a whore, or the like, if by this means they lose their preferment; or which charge a man to have any dangerous disease, by reason of which he ought to separate himself, or be separate by the Law from the society of men, as to say a man hath the French Pox, or the Plague, or the like: Or which tend to the slandering of a mans title, as to say, He hath no estate in his Mannor, when he is about, and hath need to sell it, or the like: Or which tend to a mans disinheritance, as to say to an Heir to Land, He is a Bastard, or the like: Or which tend any way to a mans particular damage. All such words are Actionable, Coo. 4. 13, 14, &c. Coo. 10. 130. Dyer 26. 72. This general Rule for the clearing of it doth admit of many Extensions, and many Exceptions and Limitations, which we shall lay down in the Rules that follow: And first of the Extensions.

4. Many words (though of themselves they be not Actionable) yet being equivalent to words that are Actionable, may bear an Action. Pasche 15 Car. B R. agreed; for they may prima facie, sound from the mouth of the speaker, in the ears of the hearer, as bad as any Actionable words.

5. It matters not how the words (if they be Actionable) be published or divulged, whether by writing or speech; for the Action is maintenable in both Cases. A man might have been charged in this Action for a slander, by a Bill in the Star-Chamber, and so he may be now by a malicious Indictment, Coo. 4 14, 15.

6. It is all one, as to the maintenance of the Action, if the words be spoken or written to the person slandered before his face, or of him behinde his back. Old Book of Enteries, Coo 4. 14, 15. and Hobb. Pl. 292.

7. Nor is it material, whether they be spoken in the second or third person; for the Action is alike maintenable in both Cases, Coo. 4. 14, 15, 16.

8. Nor is it material, in what Language they are written or spoken, if the hearers do, or may attain to understand it, Hobb. Rep. Pl. 165, 236, 351, 236.

9. Nor

9. Nor is it material, whether the words be uttered by way of affirmation, as A. is a thief; or hearſay, or report, as J. S. ſaith, A. is a thief, and J. S. did never ſay it; or by way of Interrogation, as, Haſt thou been at London to change the money thou didſt ſteal from me? Or by way of negation, when it doth imply an affirmation, as you are no thief, or the like; for in all theſe Caſes they are Actionable. Paſche 15 Car. Appletons Caſe, B. R. Hill. 4 Jac. B. R. Lady Morriſons Caſe. See March. Rep. f. 7. Pl. 18. One ſaid, That he would prove that J. S. had ſtoln his Books; or ſay, I will prove he hath ſtoln my Books, and I will have him before a Juſtice; it ſeems either of theſe Speeches are Actionable. March. f. 19. Pl. 44. It lieth for words ſpoken thus, Haſt thou been at London to change the money thou didſt ſteal from me. It is ſaid it lieth for ſaying to one, I dreamed this night that J. S. did ſteal a horſe, March. Rep: f. 58. Pl. 9. But I much doubt the laſt Caſe: It lieth for ſaying, I do verily think J. S. to be a horſe-ſtealer, Goldsb. 186. So for words ſpoken thus, A Woman told me, that ſhe heard ſay that J. S. &c. Goldsb. 139. Pl. 43.

10. Nor is it material, whether they be uttered by way of earneſt, or ſeemingly onely in jeſt, but with a minde to ſlander; for the Action will lie in both Caſes.

11. Nor is it material, whether the man that uttereth them, be ſober, or drunk with Wine, or Paſſion; for the Action lieth alike in both Caſes.

12. Nor is it material, whether the words be delivered in one or more ſentences or ſpeeches.

13. Nor is it material, how the words be uttered, either directly or indirectly, and obliquely; for the Action doth lie alike in both Caſes.

14. The ſlander that doth concern a mans life, liberty, member, or any corporal puniſhment, his office, truſt, calling, or that charge him with a foul Diſeaſe, to cauſe a ſeparation; theſe Actions are maintenable, without averring in the Action any particular damage come to the Plaintiff by the ſlander. Averment.

15. This Action may lie for words, though the words in a proper ſpeech cannot be true; as if a Woman ſay to me, Thou haſt ſtoln my goods; for ſhe hath no goods, but what is her Husbands adjudge, M. 9 Jac.

16. If a man ſpeak againſt another, words that are not in themſelves Actionable as that he is a Rogue, Knave, Cozener, Fornicator, or the like; yet if the Party can make it appear by proof, he had any ſpecial loſs hereby, he may perhaps have an Action for theſe words: But then he muſt make a ſpecial Averment in his Action of his loſs. Thus much of the Rules of Extenſion: Now to the Rules of Limitation or Exception. Averment.

17. When words in themſelves Actionable, are ſpoken too generally, ſo that they are uncertain, they will not then bear an action; as to ſay, A man deſerves to be hanged, M. 4 Jac. B. R. He ſeeks my life, or the like. Coo. 4. 15. Hobb. Rep. Pl. 196. 332. 3. Sect. 2.

18. Words not poſitively affirmative, will not bear an action; as, I fear you will be charged with Felony, &c. Hobb. Rep. Pl. 381. Or, Arreſted for Felony. Hobb. Pl. 286 or the like. Hobb. Rep. Pl. 381.

19. Words of a double and indifferent meaning, when one of the ſenſes is good, will not bear action; for, Verba accipienda ſunt in mitiori ſenſu; as if one ſay of another, He did burn my Barn, Coo. 4. 20. For it may be a Barn without Corn; or, He hath the Pox; For it may be the ordinary, not the French Pox, Coo. 4. 17. For theſe actions are not to be maintained by a ſtrained conſtruction upon mens words, but where the words do clearly import a ſlander. But if the common ordinary and violent ſenſe, and intent, be the worſt, that ſenſe ſhall be taken, as A. had the uſe of her body, this is to be taken in the worſt ſenſe, Hill. 4 Jac. B. R. Hobb. Rep. Pl. 350. 236.

20. Words of a doubtful meaning, that have no clear and certain Intendment, eſpecially if they be inſenſible, will not bear an action; as to call one filching fellow, Coo. 4. 15. Or to ſay, He ſmells of a murder, Hobb. Rep. Pl. 350. or the like. And yet if they have a bad Intendment in the Countrey where they are ſpoken with an Averment thereof, they may be Actionable, Hobb. Rep. Pl. 394. 323.

21. Actionable words may be qualified, and made unactionable by ſubſequent words; words; as, Thou art a Thief, [for] thou haſt ſtollen a Tree, my Apples, or Corn, or the like. But if he ſay, Thou haſt ſtollen my Wood out of my Barton, Corn out of my Barn, or the like; theſe words are actionable. Hob. Rep. pl. 97. pl. 406. Coo. 4. 19. Hob. Rep. pl. 381. 406.

22. Words that do not import an act, but an intent or inclination to a thing, are not actionable, Coo. 4 19. To ſay, He is a Thieviſh fellow; He had a mind to have killed me, Coo. 4. 16. And yet if that intent be an offence puniſhable, as an intent of Treaſon is, the words are actionable. And therefore adjective words, as to ſay, a man is a Thieviſh, or Traiterous, or Seditious fellow, are not actionable: and yet if they be ſuch as import an act done, as Perjured Knave; or the like ſlander in a mans Office, as to a Judge, Corrupt Judge, Bribing Knave; or ſlander to a mans Trade, as to a Tradeſman, He is a Bankrupt fellow, or Bankruptly fellow, or the like, theſe words are actionable.

23. Words that are impoſſible, are not actionable; as to ſay, He is perjured, and that may be proved by ſtakes, &c. Coo 4. 19. My Mare doth piſs as good drink as J. S. (being a Brewer) makes. Mich. 15 Car. B.R. or the like.

24. When it doth appear in the action brought, that the words ſpoken are no damage to the Plaintiff, no action will lie upon them: as when he ſaith, Thou haſt killed my wife, or kinſman; and the Record ſhews him or her to be alive, Coo. 4. 16. Hob. Rep pl. 11. But if it appear not upon Record, ſome ſay the Plaintiff muſt aver it, or his action is not well laid; others ſay the Defendant muſt ſet it forth, and this is the ſafe way, and for this there ſeems to be better reaſon, Hob. Rep. pl. 11. March Rep. 110 pl. 189.

25. Words that are uncertain in themſelves, will not bear action, as to ſay, Thou haſt taken away the money of J. S. for it may be done without Felony, Hob. Rep. pl. 11. Thou haſt taken away my money, Hob. pl. 136. and theſe cannot be made certain by an Innuendo. But to ſay, Thou didſt kill a woman great with child, innuendo A. uxor eujuſdam Defunct. was ruled good, Mich. 2. Ja. B.R. And A. ſued B. for ſaying, My Brother (innuendo the Plaintiff) is perjured; and upon Not guilty pleaded, and Verdict for the Plaintiff, it was adjudged good, for theſe words are certain in themſelves: not like to this, One of my brothers is perjured. Wiſeman's Caſe, Mich. 3. Ja. B.R. See for the Innuendo, Brownl. 1. par. 7: 13. 9. 10. Innuendo.

26. When the perſon charged is uncertain, no action will lie; as if one without any other ſpeech precedent, ſay, One of the ſervants of J. S. is a Thief, and he have divers ſervants, or the like, Coo. 4. 17. Hob Rep. pl. 351. and yet words ſomewhat uncertain at firſt, by an Averment and the Verdict of a Jury may be made certain, in caſe where they are ſpoken of one man in certain, as, My brother is perjured, and averred it was meant of him, and the Jury found it ſo, M. 3. Ja. B.R. Wiſeman's Caſe. Hob Rep pl. 350. So likewiſe when the thing charged is uncertain, no action can lie for the words, Hob. Rep. pl 145. 119. Coo. 4. 25. To ſay, This boy is a thief, of J. S. then preſent, is certain enough, Brownl. 1. par. 2. If two men ſpeak together of J. Syms and W. Syms, and one of them ſaid, Theſe Symſes make Half-Crown peeces; this is certain and actionable: Otherwiſe it is if he ſay, The Symſes, &c. for this is incertain, Hughs Rep. 391. So if there be divers Defendants in a Suit, and he ſay, Theſe Defendants did, &c.

27. When there be actionable words ſpoken amongſt others, but upon the whole diſcourſe it appeareth the party did not intend them in a ſlanderous ſenſe, theſe words are not actionable. As if their dialogue be about killing of Hares, and one ſaith, He killed ſix in one day, and thereupon the other ſaid, He is a Murderer; theſe words here will not bear an action. So if one ſay to another, Thou art a Traitor, for I truſted thee to buy Land for me, and thou boughteſt it for thy ſelf: Or, Thou art a Thief, for thou robbedſt my Orchard of my Apples. And if in this caſe the party ſue upon thoſe ſingle words, and name not the reſt, the Defendant may in his plea ſhew all the words ſpecially, or he may plead Non culp. modo & forma, and give the ſpecial matter in evidence; or he may traverſe theſe words, and juſtifie the ſpeaking of the words as they were, or he may upon the evidence have the words found ſpecially, as he ſhall ſee cauſe, Coo. 4. 13. or he may plead Not guilty to a part, and juſtifie the reſt. N. B. of Entries, f. 24. a. 25. a. 26. a. 27. a.

28. The

28. The words ſpoken, though actionable, muſt be ſpoken in the hearing of ſome body, or elſe the action will not lie; the Writ doth ſay ſo, In præſentia quamplurimorum ligeor. &c. Hob. Rep. pl. 63. And (as ſome ſay) they muſt be ſpoken in a language that the hearers do underſtand; and therefore if they be ſpoken in Welſh, that no action will lie, unleſs one of the hearers do underſtand Welſh: and ſome Judgments are on this ſide, and others hold the contrary, and (in my opinion) upon better reaſon; for a man may call another Thief in Latine or Welſh, in the hearing of ſuch as underſtand it not, but they may remember the word and ask the meaning, and ſo a man may be grievouſly ſlandered without remedy. And yet it is held, if a man ſend or give a ſlanderous Letter to the party ſlandered, or ſpeak ſuch words in one mans ear only in private, both theſe are actionable, Hil. 38 Eliz. Cromp. Jur. 13. Hob. Rep. pl. 63. 276.

29. The Charge muſt be falſe, for the Writ is Falſo & malitioſe, and ſo it muſt be, or it is not actionable; for if the thing that he is charged with by the words be true, the Defendant may juſtifie it; but he muſt ſee he do not plead Not guilty, but make a ſpecial Juſtification.

30 The words muſt be ſpoken purpoſely; and therefore it is conſiderable here, quo animo they are ſpoken: for the Writ is malitioſe, and ſo it muſt be, or the words are not actionable. And therefore it is held, that if a Miniſter preaching, recite a Hiſtory; or a Lawyer pleading, do innocently and pertinently ſpeak words whereby a man is charged with a crime, and it proye falſe, this is not actionable: So if one adviſe his friend to forbear the company of T. S. for he hath the Pox, &c. this is not actionable, 40 & 41 Eliz. C. B. And yet if ſuch men ſhall make this but a cloak of their malice, contra: and circumſtances will clear it with what mind he did it, Mic. 31 Jac. Brook's Caſe. Hob. Rep. pl. 399.

31. If the ground of the damage do not appear in the action, no action will lie; as to ſay a man did Cozen by falſe weights, and do not ſay he is a Tradeſman, or getteth his living by buying and ſelling, M. 17. Car. B. R.

32. When it doth not appear that he that ſpake the words had notice of the ground or occaſion of the offence, no action will lie: as, A. hath Thieves in his houſe; for he may not know it.

33. If this ſlander be in a courſe of Juſtice, and be not malitious and touch a mans life, it is not actionable, Kelw. 26. And therefore it lieth not againſt a man for ſuing a Writ of Forgery of Falſe Deeds, or exhibiting Articles againſt a man for his good Behaviour, Coo. 4. Nor doth it lie againſt a man for putting in Articles againſt a Maſter of Chancery or Juſtice of Peace, to have the good Behaviour, though the things be falſe. But if he begin there, and give over there, and then begin elſwhere out of courſe, it is otherwiſe, Brownl. 1 par. 3, 4. 2 par. 100. It had lien againſt a man for ſlanderous matters (wherein the Court had not juriſdiction) put in a Bill in Star-chamber, Brownl. 2 par. 100. Hughs 444. But herein let the party take heed he go not out of the Rode of Juſtice, nor ſay more herein then is neceſſary. For if a Robbery be done, and common report is that J. S. hath done it, he may arreſt him; but if he ſay he hath done it, this is actionable: So if he tell abroad in Taverns the ſame thing, here he may be made liable to action by it, March. 76. pl. 119. Hob. Rep pl. 105, 238, 381, 71, 112. So one may indict another for ſuch a thing: But if I indict a man for Felony upon ground, this is juſtifiable; if I ſay he hath done the Felony, and it be not ſo, or I will ſpeak of it in an Ale-houſe, I may be charged in this action for a ſlander; and I cannot juſtifie the ſpeaking of ſlanderous words upon a fame, arreſt, impriſonment, no nor upon Indictment; for if I juſtifie, I muſt prove he is guilty of it. And yet if there be malice, and a conſpiracie in a courſe of Juſtice to take away my life, here I may have an action of the Caſe for the ſlander and vexation. As if two or more conſpire to indict me for a Felony, and I be on a Trial legitimo modo acquietatus, I may have a Writ of Conſpiracie againſt the Indictors. And if any man procure me falſly and maliciouſly to be indicted, arreſted, and impriſoned, though I be not acquitted, I may have an action of the Caſe, Paſch. 3 Jac. B. R. Roll. 372. Hob. R. pl. 11. But if upon the Trial there do appear any probable cauſe for the Indictment and proſecution, this action will not lie, Hob. Rep. pl. 350.

34. Where

34. Where any thing is the cauſe or ground of action, or tends neceſſarily to the maintenance of it, this thing muſt be averred to be, or not to be, as the caſe requires, or the action will not lie: As if one ſay, My ſon ſtole his Hens; in his ſuit he muſt aver he is my ſon, Mich. 14 Car. B.R. If I ſay, He that dwels in the next houſe to I.S. one R.L. did rob me; if he ſue, he muſt aver he dwels in the next houſe to I.S. Paſch. 7 Jac. Clark's Caſe. So if I ſay, Pritchard's man robbed me; if he ſue, he muſt aver he is Pritchard's man. See Cook 4. 16. Hob. Rep. f. 8. Averment.

35. If the words in themſelves be incertain, and will not bear an action, as to ſay, One of my Brothers is perjured; they may not be made actionable by averment, or an Innuendo, as words of a double ſenſe; by an Innuendo he meant the worſt ſenſe, as Pox, Innuendo the French Pox, Coo. 4. 17. 20. So to make incertain words certain, He took my money with a ſtrong hand, innuendo Felonicè, M. 15 Car. B.R. He forged a Writing, innuendo ſuch a Deed, Hob. Rep. pl. 4. 48. The office of this word is only to contain and deſign the ſame perſon which was named incertain before, as thus: Two are ſpeaking together of B. and one of them ſaith, He is a Thief; there B. in his Count may ſhew, that there was a ſpeech of him betwixt thoſe two, and that one of them ſaid of him, He (innuendo the Plaintiff) is a Thief; or elſe to declare the matter or ſenſe of the words themſelves, which was certainly expreſſed before, as thus: A. and B. ſpeaking of C. A. ſaid, that C. was a Traitor, to whom B. ſaid, that he was ſo too; in this caſe if A. bring an Action for theſe words, he may ſhew in his Count that there was a ſpeech betwixt him and the Defendant of C. and that the Plaintiff ſaid to the Defendant, that C. was a Traitor: and that the Defendant ſaid then to the Plaintiff, that he (Innuendo the Plaintiff) was ſo too, [Innuendo, a Traitor] in both theſe caſes the Innuendo is good, becauſe it doth its office in deſigning of the perſon, as alſo in declaring of the matter or ſenſe of the words which was certain before, Mich. 20. Jac. B.R. But an Innuendo cannot make a perſon certain, which was incertain before, nor alter the matter or ſenſe of the words themſelves, Coo 4. 17. See more; Brownl. 1 par. 7, 9, 10, 13. 2 par. 34, 272, 273. It lieth not for ſaying, He hath ſtollen 40 ſtaure of Lead (meaning Laad in ſtaure) from the Minſter; for it ſhall be intended parcel of the Minſter, Brownl. 2 par. 84. Innuendo.

Out of all which it appears, that in all Caſes where this Action will lie for words, the words muſt have theſe qualities in them.

1. They muſt be particular. 2. They muſt expreſs or imply an affirmation. 3. Sufficient certainty both in the perſons, and thing charged. 4. They muſt be plain. 5. The thing muſt be directly, and in plain terms, and not by inference or argument applied to the perſon charged. 6. The things charged muſt be ſuch as (if true) were againſt ſome Law, and the party may be puniſhed for them, or he muſt have ſome ſpecial prejudice by the words which he muſt aver. 7. The charge muſt be out of a courſe of Juſtice. 8. The words muſt be ſenſible and plain. 9. They muſt be ſpoken in the hearing of ſome body. 10. And in a Tongue that ſome of the hearers do or may underſtand. 11. The thing charged by the words muſt be falſe. 12. The words muſt be ſpoken maliciouſly, and purpoſely to ſlander. 13. The thing charged to be done, muſt be poſſible.

Scandalum Magnatum, is a wrong done to ſome eminent perſon of the Land, as Duke, Earl, Baron, Chancellor, Treaſurer, Privy-Seal, Juſtice of the one Bench, or of the other, by falſe news, or falſe meſſages, whereby debates and diſcords between them, or any ſcandal to their perſons may ariſe, Stat. 2 R. 2. chap. 5. Weſtm. 1. chap. 34. Scandalum Magnatum, what it is.

In this caſe the party defamed may have his Action in the name of the Keepers of the Liberties, and his own, upon the Stat. of 2 R. 2. And hereby he ſhall recover damages for the wrong, and the party ſhall alſo be otherwiſe puniſhed. And if the Slander be divulged in the nature of a Libel, it is puniſhable by Indictment; and great Fines are impoſed for this offence, for that the reproach of ſuch perſons is the reproach of the State it ſelf, and of the Commonwealth. Coo. 5. 125. Old book of Entr. 593. Cromp. Jur. 35. 19. 13.

It matters not in what manner the words or reports be publiſhed, whether by ſpeech or writing reported from another, or ſpoken by ones ſelf; or by hanging up a writing in any open place: for publication may be by writing as well as by ſpeech, Cromp. Jur. 13.

Where and for what words or deeds a man may have this Action of Scandalum Magnatum, or not.

For the manner.

But if by any of theſe ways ſuch perſons had been ſlandered by theſe, or ſuch like words as follow, they might have been relieved by this means. And this action did lie for theſe words: You maintain ſedition againſt the Kings proceedings; or, You uphold and countenance them that do ſo, Coo. 4. 13. Or, You are a Traitor to your Prince, or Rebel againſt him, Sur. Monteagles Caſe, M. 9 Jac. B. R. Or You are a baſe Lord, and a paultry Lord, and keep none but Rogues and Raſcals like your ſelf. E. of Lincoln's Caſe, Trin. 5. Jac. B. R. Or, It is your grief that you are a Subject. Countee of Salop's Caſe, M. 40 & 41 Eliz. B. R. Or, You charged them that tranſport, or import Merchandizes to, or from ſuch a place, that they ſhould not pay Cuſtom for it, nor ſuffer the Cuſtomers to ſearch them, Old Book of Entries, 593. Or, You have no more conſcience then a Dog; ſo you have goods, you care not how you come by them, Duke of Buckingham's Caſe, M. 4. H. 8. Rot. 659. Or to a Chief Juſtice, You are a corrupt Judge, Cromp. Jur. 35. Or, You ſaid you would winde my guts about your neck, Lord Abergavinie's Caſe, Cromp. Jur. 13. So alſo it is thought of theſe words, You are uſed to do things againſt Law, to impound the Subjects beaſts, and keep them in a Caſtle that they cannot be replieved; or, You have ſent Commiſſioners to ſpoil the Country. And generally any words which being ſpoken to an ordinary man will give him an Action, being ſpoken to ſuch an eminent perſon, will give him this Action. But if a man do bring a Suit in a Legal way, or do Legally proceed by Indictment or otherwiſe for any miſdemeanor; as if a man ſue a Writ of Forger of Falſe Deeds againſt a Peer of the Realm, or cauſe him to be indicted for a Crime, it is doubted whether for theſe acts this Action be given, Dyer 285. Kelw. 27. Cromp. Jur. 35. Yet for a Conſpiracie to indict theſe perſons, they have remedy as other men have.

It hath been adjudged that theſe Statutes do extend to Extrajudicial, and not to Judicial ſayings or doings. And therefore a man may not be puniſhed for an Appeal of Murder, Robbery, &c. brought againſt a Peer, nor for affirming it to Councel, and the like, though the thing be falſe: For it is a Maxim in Law, That a man ſhall not be puniſhed for ſuing of Writs in the Kings Court, be it for right or wrong. And therefore to have charged a man with any thing falſly in the Star-chamber, proper to the Court, while it ſtood, was not actionable: But to have charged one with a Felony there falſly, was actionable, Coo. 2 par. Inſt. 228.

Where and what words will bear an Action or not, for others; and how.

For the manner of ſpeaking.

It will lie for words ſpoken thus, I will juſtifie that Barns is a Thief. Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Barns Caſe. Adjudg.

It will lie for ſpeaking words thus, What, I. S. that Thief? Nelſon's Caſe, Paſch. 15 Jac. B. R. and Hardwick's Caſe, 40 Eliz. Co. B. So, Have you brought my horſe you have ſtoln? Main's Caſe Adjudg Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. or, The twenty pounds you ſtole from me? So for theſe words, Thou waſt in the Tower for High-treaſon. Cur. 9 Jac. B. R. But this Caſe others doubt.

Sect. 4.

It is ſaid it lieth for this, I did dream this night that you ſtole a horſe. But this ſeems to be a ſtrange Caſe, and not ſo much as to report ſuch a thing as is falſe. So it lieth for ſaying, I think in my conſcience A. is a Thief. Adjudg. Hob. Rep. 152. For ſaying, Did not you kill I. S. It will lie for ſaying, That I. S. told me that A. was a thief, when I. S. never told him ſo M 9 Jac. B. R. Adjudg. But it doth not lie for ſaying, A. reported that B. did ſteal a horſe, if it be true he did report it; but then it muſt be ſo alleaged in pleading, per Juſt. Tanfield Hil. 4 Jac. B. R.

Averment.

And it is ſaid it will not lie for this, Will you not leave your ſtealing! It lieth for ſaying thus, Haſt thou been at London to change the money thou didſt ſteal from me? Mich. 15 Car B R. It lieth for calling one Thief in Welſh, or any other unknown language; but then it is ſaid it muſt be averred in the Action, that one at leaſt of the hearers did underſtand it; And it is ſaid it hath been adjudged in the Exchequer-Chamber, that otherwiſe it will not lie. But I wiſh it may be well weighed; for they that hear the words, may carry them, and get the meaning from another that can interpret them; and ſo a man may be grievouſly ſlandered without remedy: And it is all one in reaſon, not to know the men, as not to know the tongue: But if one ſlander a meer ſtranger, that one of the hearers do not, perhaps never ſhall know, is not this actionable? It is doubted of words ſpoken thus, I am perſwaded thou wouldſt, if thou couldſt, kill the King. If I.S. and my ſelf be ſpeaking together of one Fox, and I ſay thus, Go tell him he is a Thief, and I will juſtifie it, though I.S. never tell him ſo, M.9.Jac.B.R. Foxes Caſe.

I did tell Mr. Carus, That I am neither Traitor to my Prince nor Rebel to my Country, as I.S. is, and theſe words are ſpoken to Corel; the words are actionable, though never ſpoken to Carus, nor to any but to Corel himſelf. Curia, Mich. 9. Jac.

The Declaration was, That the Defendant dixit de præfato the Plaintiff, Thou, innuendo &c. haſt ſtoln, &c. and it was adjudged good: For, dixit de præfato, is all one with dixit ad præfatum, and theſe words may be ſpoken in his abſence, Stoner's Caſe, Paſch.5 Jac. B.R. and Dickenſon's Caſe adjudged M.20. Book. b. Eadem ratione, to ſay to ones face, He is a Thief. Words in the ſecond perſon, the party not preſent, Actionable.

If one exhibite Articles in writing to a Juſtice of Peace, and write thus, I.H. (who was the Informer) doth charge K: (who is the Plaintiff) that he did commit Burglary in breaking of my houſe, and ſtealing of my goods: an Action will lie for this, though he change the perſon, adjudg. Paſche 9 Jac. Pets Caſe, B.R.

If a Miniſter in a Certificate to his Ordinary, where he was of duty to certifie ſome other matter, had inſerted a ſlander, an Action will lie for this, Reads Caſe, M.7. Jac. B.R.

To write a Letter in private ſealed to the party ſlandered, unleſs he deliver it to his own hands, is (as it ſeems) actionable; ſo to ſpeak it but in one mans hearing, and bid him keep counſel, M.9.Jac. B.R. Hob. Rep. pl 63.

It lieth for ſaying, You are no Thief, Paſch.15 Car. but it muſt be intended ironically. It will not lie for ſaying, that I have Articles againſt you for Felony, Adjudg. B.R. Nor for this, I have matter enough againſt I.S. about the death of I.S. Nor, as it ſeems, for this, I.S. hath found Felony in I.S. and can prove it. See Hob. Rep. pl.3.395. Quære the laſt Caſe.

It will lie for ſaying, I will prove that you have ſtollen my books or my horſe, Paſche 15 Car. B.R. So, I can prove you a thief, and ten men will juſtifie it, Paſche 5 Jac. B.R. So, It will be proved by many vehement preſumptions, that I.S. was a plotter of the death of I.R. Paſche 7 Jac B.R. It is ſaid it lieth for this, I.S. is a Felon: To which a ſtander by ſaid, Take heed what you ſay: To which he ſaid, Is not he a Felon that doth conceal Felons, or ſteal trees? Hil. 17 Jac. Newland's Caſe, or takes my goods upon Execution? à Fortiori, if the laſt words be firſt, they are actionable.

And as it is in theſe caſes where the charge is of Felony, ſo it will be where the charge is of a leſſer offence as to the manner of the ſpeech.

It will not lie for ſaying, One of you three, or one of the company (where be more then one) or one of you two (where two be together) is a Thief, Adjudg. Harris Caſe. Or one of the ſervants of I.S. if I.S. have more then one ſervant, or one of my brothers, where I have more then one, Coo.4 17. Or one that is near to I.S. or about I.S. or mine adverſary, hath done a Felony, or other Act: For any of theſe words, no Action will lie.

For this is altogether incertain in the party charged to commit the offence, and an Averment will not help here, Hob. Rep. 375. pl. 351. And the Defendant in theſe caſes may do well in avoidance of the Action, to ſet forth that there were more in the company. Incertainty.

It will not lie for theſe words, One I.S. ſtole the horſe that was loſt. M.7 Jac. B.R. Reads Caſe. So, Stiles ſtole my horſe, omitting the Chriſtian name: But this laſt may by an Innuendo be made good. And yet ſome circumſtances may make ſuch words certain and actionable, as Mich.3 Jac. B.R. as if the precedent conference were about one man incertain, or the like.

Wiſeman ſued his brother for ſaying, My brother [innuendo the Plaintiff] is perjured: Upon Not guilty, it was found for the Plaintiff, and Judgment given. And this difference taken where the words are incertain, as in the Caſes before. But where they are certain in themſelves, ſo that it may appear that the ſpeaker intended a perſon certain, they may be made certain, as before.

It hath been adjudged also to lie for these words, Thou didst kill a Woman great with childe, Innuendo J. uxorem cujusdam R. S. defunct. Here the offence, and person committing it, are certain, Mich. 2 Jac. B. R.

Foxcroft sued Lacy, and declared, That a talk was between Walter and Gwin about a suit wherein the Plaintiff and others were Defendants, and therein the Defendant Lacy spoke these words, These Defendants (Innuendo the Plaintiff, and the others) are those that did help to murther I. S. [meaning J. S. deceased] who was murthered by one T. G. who was hanged for it: This was adjudged to be Actionable, for words may be certain by reference, Id certum quod certum reddi potest, Hob. Rep. pl. 119.

If one say to a Woman, Your Husband is a thief; or to a man, Your Wife is a thief, this is certain enough, and Actionable: But if he say your Brother, or your son, Contra, unless the Plaintiff aver he hath but one brother, or one son, which is himself, Trin. 14. Jac. B. R. per Dodridge.

Sect. 5. So likewise it will not lie, when there is an uncertainty in the thing charged; as in these cases for saying, Thou art a false thief, rogue, or some such like thing, Brook Action of the Case, 112. To declare for calling one Thief, or Verba similia, is not good; but to declare for calling one Thief, and to say further, Ac eadem verba sæpius repetivit, it seems good, H. 41. Eliz. C. B. Goldsb. 55. pl. 11.

It is said it was adjudged not to lie for these words, Thou wast whipt about Taunton, or burnt in the hand or shoulder, for stealing sheep, Hills Case, Mich. 8 Car. B R. So it will not lie for saying, Thou art a healer of Felons, or didst strain my Mare, Averment. without Averment that the words have such a meaning in the Country, Cook 4. 25.

It is said it lieth not for saying, Thou hast cozened all my kinred; 18 Eliz. B. R. It lieth not for saying, Who ever is the falsest thief in the County of Salop, what ever he hath stoln, J. S. is falser then he. But these words are Actionable with Averment, that there are Felons within that County, Haselwoods Case, Pasche 1 Jac. B. R. Rol. 107.

It lieth for saying, Thou stollest a piece from me, Appletons Case adjudged.

No Action will lie for a slander by Indictment, though false, 27 Ass. pl. 12. nor for a false Affidavit in the Chancery, by which one is imprisoned, Trin. 41 Eliz. B. R. Heires Case; nor against J. S. for taking a false Oath, by which bad Bail is taken instead of good Bail, Trin 41 Eliz. B. R. Nor for preferring Articles in the Sessions, though false, Cook 4. 15. Nor for Articles exhibited before a Master of the Chancery, for to have the good behavior for prosecuting a legal course in the Country, though it be false and unjust, yet this Action will not lie. But the Party is to be punished in the same Court for the misdemeanor, Trin. 19 Jac. B. R. Hunters Case. But if things be inserted, those Judges have not the Conusance of contra, Cook 4. 14. And if one Indict another, or charge him legally for a Felony where none is, nor any reason to charge him, here an Action will lie, Trin. 14 Jac. B. R. Dennis Case. But all these Actions must be malitiose indictavit. For a slanderous complaint put into a Member of the Parliaments hands it seems is not Actionable, Trin. 21 Jac. It lieth against the Husband and Wife, for the Wives saying; Thou hast stoln me two Cocks, [Innuendo, &c.] These words are Actionable, and shall be taken for two Cocks, and the Innuendo, and me, void, M. 9 Jac. B. R.

For the matter of the words which hazard a mans life. This Action lieth for calling a man Traitor, Buggerer, Sodomite, Robber, Murderer, Felon, Thief, Sacriledger, House Robber, 30 Ass. 19. 27. H. 7. 14. 21. Cook 10. 130. 4. 15. 16. &c. 27 H. 8. 14. 22. Dyer 26. 19. 236. Newlands Case. Church-Robber. Trin. 7 Jac. B. R. Beringtons Case. And so for saying, A man hath committed Treason, Buggery, Sodomy, Burglary, Robbery, Murder, Sacriledge, or Felony. Pets Case.

It lieth not in our Law (as it seems) for calling a man Heretick, unless he have some special loss by it. 27 H. 8. 14. Sed Quere. Hob. Rep. in pl. 276. f. 297.

It did lie for saying, There is no King in England, Trin. 37 Eliz. Mayes Case adjudged. B. R.

It lieth for saying, Thou hast spoken words that are high Treason. Atwards Case.

Or,

Or, Thou wouldſt kill the King and all his Subjects, if thou couldſt. This was adjudged. Sydenhams Caſe, *Hob. Rep. pl.*152.

It is ſaid it doth lie for this, Thou art no true Subject, Sir William Walgraves Caſe, M. 32, 33 Eliz. Cook, B. R. Or, I am a true Subject, but thou ſerveſt one who is none at all. Sed Quere at this; for it is ſaid that it lieth not for ſaying, Thou art no true Subject to the King. Smiths Caſe. 5 Jac. B. R.

It doth lie for ſaying, Thou art an enemy to the State. Chambers Caſe. 38 Eliz. B. R.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou waſt partaker with the Rebels in the North, in their Rebellion. But not for ſaying, Thou waſt partaker with the Rebels in the North, and no more.

It lieth not for ſaying, Thou haſt coyned Gold, and art a Coyner of Gold. Nor for ſaying, He did make Half-crown peeces, and did carry a Cloak-bag full of clippings. For theſe words are altogether uncertain, Hughs, Rep. 391. 375.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou haſt killed J. S. or murdered J. S. or poyſoned J. S. If he be revera dead, when the words are ſpoken. *New Book of Entries, f.*25. Yet ſee *Brownl.*2. *part.*219.

And here ſome ſay, That the Plaintiff that doth ſue, muſt aver in his Declaration that he is dead. But it is ſaid to be adjudged to lie for ſaying, Thou haſt poyſoned J. S. albeit he be not dead. But this is clear, That if it appear by any part of the Record, that the Party ſuppoſed to be killed, is alive, as if the words be, Thou haſt killed my Wife, the Action will not lie; and if the Plaintiff do not ſhew him to be dead (as it ſeems by the better Opinion he need not) then it concerns the Defendant to ſhew it in avoidance of the Action, Cook 4. 16. 14. New Book of Entries, f. 24.

It lieth for ſaying, She hath ſacrificed a childe, to the intent to kill my Mother. Lock verſus Lock. But it will not lie for this, He ſmells of the murder lately done. Dyer 317. Yet to ſay, He is infected with the murder lately done, may be Actionable.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou haſt poyſoned J. S. If he be dead, adjudged, Bumfords Caſe, Paſche 7 Jac. Cook. B. R. But againſt this Judgment, Miles Caſe; and the reaſon thereof in Hob. Rep. pl. 11. is objected, That he doth not ſay he did it ex ſcientia wittingly: Hereupon, *March, f.*36. concludes it will not lie. This Reaſon will ſhake other Caſes out of queſtion, as, Thou art a murderer, or, haſt murdered J. S. or, haſt killed J. S. For it may be with giving Phyſick, or otherwiſe, againſt his will, or in doing Juſtice, &c. For there is a Homicide lawful and juſtifiable. But this is the common acceptance of the word, That he killed him voluntarily, and unlawfully, and therefore I think without queſtion Actionable, See more, Brownl. 2. *part,*299.

It will not lie for ſaying, Thou haſt killed J. S. Brownl. 2. *part.*118.

It lieth for ſaying, He took my Wife by the hand and ſaid, Thou and I will be married ſhortly; after that he diſpatched his Wife out of the way.

It lieth for this, I will call him in queſtion for killing my Aunt, and I doubt not but I ſhall prove it. Adjudged. 39 Eliz. Webs Caſe. A. told me, She poyſoned her firſt Husband, adjudged to lie for this. Megs Caſe.

This Action will lie for calling one Witch, and ſo it hath been often adjudged, as in Lewis Caſe. M. 13 Jac. And Rogers Caſe. Trin. 39 Eliz. and Hil 4 Jac. B. R. And yet ſome Judgments have been given on the other ſide and it hath been doubted. Hob. Rep. pl. 155. becauſe there is a good and a bad Witch. But I think it is at this day unqueſtionable, and that Reaſon of little weight; for the word imports a foul charge; both of them uſe unlawful means, and have too much familiarity with the Devil. So it will lie for this, The Devil appears to thee every night in the likeneſs of a man, and thou conferreſt with him, and he giveth thee what thou askeſt; and therefore thou haſt ſo much money. Adjudged, Hob. Rep. pl. 137. 155. So for this, Thou haſt bewitched J. S. to death. So it will lie alſo (as it ſeems) for calling one Conjurer; for the Witch and Conjurer both deal with the Devil; the Witch by agreement, the Conjurer by Prayers, and ſuch like powerful means. Sect. 6.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou art a Witch and Inchanter, and haſt bewitched Strongs children. But not for this, Thou haſt bewitched children, that they are waſted and deſtroyed. Brownl. 1. *part.*7.

So

So it will lie for saying, Thou doest confer with an Evil spirit. But it will not lie for calling one Inchanter or Sorcerer; for the former have personal conference with the Devil, but these meddle with medicines, and ceremonial forms of words called charms without apparitions. It hath been said also, that this Action will lie for calling one Hag: but this is doubted by others, unless he can aver that in the language of the place it doth signifie Witch.

This Action will not lie for these words, *Thou seekest my life, Coo.*4.16. Nor for these, Thou didst write a Letter to one, [or hire one] *or give one counsel to kill me, Coo.*4 16. or wouldest have killed [or robbed] *me, Trin.*4. Jac. B. R. Tanfields Case. Or, Thou wentest about to poyson a child, Eatons Case. And yet it is said to be resolved in the Exchequer-Chamber in one Passeys Case, That it will lie for these last words, *March. fol.*12. And then for all such like words as in the Cases before, which do carry in their sound a foul slander, and of something done. And it is agreed on all sides, that it will lie for these words, Thou didst lie in wait to rob [or to murder] *me, Pasch.*5. Jac. B. R. So for this, Thou didst procure one to lie in wait to murder me; Adjudged.

And that in all Cases where the words import an intent, joyned with any overt act or attempt, that these words are actionable; for then the thing is punishable by the Good Behavior or Indictment. And I find it adjudged to lie for these words, Thou hiredst a Rogue to come with thee to my house to murther me, Sutton's *Case, Trin.*33 Eliz. B:R. And it was said to be adjudged for this, Thou hast sent one to kill me. And yet it will not lie for this, Thou hast procured a perjured Knave to seek my blood, 32 Eliz. Sir Edw Hastings Case.

It is said to be adjudged to lie for this, He sought my innocent blood, Sir Edward Hartberies Case, B.R. But this is doubted; for it lieth not for saying, Thou seekest my life, Hexts *Case, Coo.*4. Nor for this, Thou hast procured one to seek my blood, 32 Eliz. B.R. Sir Edw. Hastings Case.

It will not lie for these words, Thou wast the cause of the death of I.S. Adjudg. B.R: Prows Case. Nor for this, Thou art a blood-sucker, and seekest my blood, Helliards Case, *M.*37. 38 Eliz. B.R. But it lieth for this, He is a manslayer, and hath lain in wait to kill, 28 Eliz. B.R. adjudg.

It is said it lieth not for this, He is a Felon, for he knoweth of a murder and concealeth it. Nor for this (as is said) I.S. gave W.S money to shift him away assoon as he had killed R.T. Parrants Case, B.R. But I must beg leave to suspect both these Cases, for the words are very scandalous; and I have seen the Report of a Case where it is said to be adjudged to lie for these words, *Thou art a concealer of Felons, and hast shewed such favor to a horse-stealer. that he and the horse is conveyed away, and I can hang thee if I will. Boudman vers. Tooker, Pasch.*7 Jac. B.R. And I have seen a Report, that it lieth for these words, Thou art a concealer of Felonies, Pendants Case. If I. had consented to C.. I.S. had been dispatched out of the way: Adjudged to lie for this, as is said, Cardinals Case.

It is said it lieth for these words, Thou wast arraigned at Warwick-Assizes for stealing a horse, and didst make good friends, or else thou hadst been hanged, M 8 Car. B.R. And for this, He was in the Gaol at Norwich for robbing one on the High-way, Sprat and Hains Case.

And yet in *Hob. Rep. pl.*196. it was agreed not to lie for these words, Thou wast in Warwick-Gaol for stealing a horse Nor will an Action lie for these words, Thou hast been indicted for Felony, or thou wast impeached for Felony, or, thou wast arrested, imprisoned, [or in Gaol] and arraigned for stealing a horse: For this may befall an honest innocent man, and these Cases do differ a little from the first Case, *Hob. Rep. pl.*209,289. Nay, it is said that it hath been resolved by two Judges, it will not lie for these words, Thou hast been in Gaol for coyning, and hast been burned in the hand for it, Trin. Jac. B.R. But I cannot receive it without doubting of it. See Brownl. 1 par. 16.

Innuendo. It will lie for saying, *Thou didst burn a barn full of corn, Coo.*4.14. But it will not lie for saying, Thou didst burn a barn: Nor may one say, *Innuendo a barn full of corn. Idem new Book of Entries, f.*25. Adjudg.

It

It will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a breaker of houſes, M.9. Jac. Slaughters Caſe.

It will lie for ſaying, Thou art infected of Robbery lately done, Dyer 317. and, thou doeſt ſmell of it. Or for ſaying, I was robbed and you were privy thereunto, and had part of the money, *Goldsb.*137. *pl.*42. So it will lie for ſaying, You were in priſon in a gaol for ſtealing of Mr. Piggots beaſts, Goldsb. 130.*pl.*26.

It will lie for ſaying, Thou haſt ſtollen my two Cocks (or Hens) or Horſe, or any other goods, *Trin.*5 Jac.B.R. Benſers Caſe adjudg. So it lieth for this, Thou didſt ſteal my horſe and waſt in gaol for it, *Hob.Rep pl.*196. So it lieth for ſaying, Thou art a Steal-gown, and the firſt gown that thou didſt wear thou didſt ſteal, Adjudg. New book of Entries, *f.*23.

It lieth for laying, Thou haſt robbed the Church of S. and taken away the lead thereof, Paſch. 5 Jac. B. R. But not for ſaying, Thou haſt robbed the Church, without more.

It lieth for ſaying, He ſhould have been hanged for a Rape, and it coſt him dear, *M.*39.40. Eliz.B.R. Redferns Caſe.

It hath been thought by ſome, that it lieth for theſe words, Thou didſt like of thoſe who do maintain ſedition againſt the King, *Coo.*4.13. Sed quære.

It lieth for ſaying, He hath ſtollen a horſe, and it will be proved by twenty witneſſes, Adjudg. Hares Caſe. But it will not lie for theſe words, He hath ſtollen a Mare; or, I.S. is forſworn, Adludg. *Paſch.*17 Jac.B.R. Barhams Caſe. For this is an incertain charge.

It will not lie for theſe words, It is in my power to hang thee, 17 Jac.B.R. Pridhams Caſe. Nor for theſe words, Thou haſt deſerved hanging, *Mich.*4 Jac.B.R. and Paſche 38 Eliz. Hollands Caſe. Nor for theſe words, If thou hadſt had thy right, thou hadſt been hanged for breaking of the houſe of I.S. Brownl. 1 part, 3. See Brownl. 2 part, 280.

It ſeems it lieth for this, *I ſtole a Mare, and you knowing the ſame, conveyed her to D. to the houſe of I.S. Goldsb.*132.*pl.*28.

It will not lie for theſe words, Hugh Hall hath received the three parcels of cloth from the thief again that he did ſteal from him, when there was a felony done. Goldsb. 119.*pl.*2.

This Action will lie for theſe words, There is not a purſe cut within twenty miles, but I.S. knows of it, and hath a ſhare in it, Balls Caſe. And yet the contrary is ſaid to be adjudged.

It lies for theſe words, I was rob'd, and thou waſt privy to it, and hadſt part of the mony, Adj.38 El.Redfords Caſe. And it is ſaid to be reſolved to lie for theſe words, A. hath half my goods, and ſhall be hanged for it, 8 Jac. B.R. Long and Kings Caſe. But this I cannot receive for Law: For it is ſaid to be adjudged that it will not lie for theſe words, I. had forty pounds worth of Plate, and A. hath it, and will be hanged for it, *Trin.*12. Jac. Kings Caſe. Nor will it lie for theſe words, J.S. was robbed of twenty pounds, and A. had it, and will be hanged for it, By two Judges, *Paſch.*9. Jac. Foord verſ. King. Nor will it lie for theſe words, I. was robbed, and A. received part of the goods ſtollen, and I. could hang him for it, Newlins Caſe, *P.*7. Jac. And yet all theſe words import a more certain and foul ſlander then the firſt words do, I. heard it ſpoken that I.S. was one of them that was at Purnels Robbery, and that four of them went to his houſe the next morning, Adjudged to lie, 40.41. Eliz. R.B. Reads Caſe: yet ſome doubt of this.

It is ſaid to be agreed, that an Action will lie for theſe words, A. did ſet on me, and took my purſe from me, (not ſaying) in the high-way. And for this, Thou didſt ſet on me in the high-way, and took'ſt my purſe from me, Adjudg. Stoners Caſe, *M.*10. Iac. B.R. And for this, Thou didſt meet me on the high-way and askedſt my purſe, and I gave thee five ſhillings for fear, Bonds Caſe. And yet it is ſaid to be reſolved not to lie for theſe words, Thou tookeſt away my purſe in the high-way, and I will ſwear it. Quære, for I ſee little or no difference between this and the laſt Caſe; the words carry as bad a report as the former words do. But it ſeems to be agreed that no Action will lie for theſe words, Thou didſt take away my money; nor for theſe words, Thou didſt Sect. 7.

didſt beat me, and take away my money: Nor for this, Thou didſt take away my money with a ſtrong hand, March. f.59. pl.91. Or, thou didſt take away my purſe, and twenty ſhillings in it, Hob. Rep. pl.268. Adjudged, Mich.36.37 Eliz. Cook, B R. Lynes Caſe. It will lie for ſaying, He hath robbed J. S. notwithſtanding J. S. were never robbed per Cur. M. 9 Jac. B. R.

It is ſaid to be adjudged not to lie for theſe words, I have an action againſt J S. who hath ſtoln by the High-way ſide, Denizens Caſe. 36, 37 Eliz B R. This ſeems to me ſomewhat a hard Caſe; and yet *Hob Rep. pl.*382. hath a Caſe ſomewhat like, I have matter enough againſt him, for J. S. hath found forgery againſt him, and can prove it. The Reaſon ſeems to be taken from the manner, not the matter of the Speech.

It hath been judged to lie, for theſe words, *There is many an honeſter man hanged. And there was a robbery committed, whereof I think him to be one; and I verily think him to be a horſe-ſtealer, Goldsb.*136. *pl.*127.

It lieth for ſaying, *Thou haſt ſtoln my goods, and I will have thy Neck, Brownl.*2. *part.*230.

It is ſaid alſo, it will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a cut-purſe, Trin. 17 Jac. B.R. For he may be a Glover: So that it will not lie for theſe words, Thou art a cunning cut-purſe knave; and this is ſaid to be adjudged, Trevillians Caſe, B. R. Theſe Caſes ſeem hard to me; for the common and neceſſary intendment of the words, is in the worſt ſenſe; and to call a man Cut-purſe (me thinks) is actionable. And it is ſaid to lie for this, Thou didſt pick five ſhillings out of my Pocket, adjudged, Drumers Caſe. So it will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a Coyner of money, or, haſt coyned money, Trin. 17 Jac. B.R. For it may be his Trade. Nor for theſe words, Thou getteſt money every day by coyning Gold, M. 19 Jac. B. R. Burnels Caſe.

It will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a prigging pilfering-fellow, and haſt pilfered away my Goods from my Wife and children, adjudged Carter's Caſe. M. 37, 38 Eliz. B. R. Nor for this, Thou art a filching fellow, and haſt filched away Ten pounds from me, adjudged, *Hob Rep. pl.*323. Nor will it lie for ſaying, Thou art a healer of Felons, Averment. or, Thou haſt ſtrained my Mare; without a ſpecial Averment, that it hath ſuch a meaning in the place, that it doth import a ſcandal. *Brownl.*1. *part.*13.

It will lie for theſe words, Whoever is a falſe thief in Gloceſterſhire, J. S. is Averment. falſer then he. But in this Caſe there muſt be an Averment, that there is a falſe thief there, Hazelwoods Caſe. M. 2 Jac. B. R. But it lieth not for theſe words, I can finde in the Pariſh a falſer knave then B. who was indicted for Felony; and this knave is I. S. in Hazelwoods Caſe.

It will not lie for ſaying Thou art a ſeditious knave, or, a thieviſh knave, or, a trayterous knave, Cook 4.19. And yet it hath been ſaid, it was agreed to lie for calling one Trayterous knave, Hil. 32 Q. Ward and Thorns Caſe. But it will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a rebellious knave; for this may be upon a Writ of Rebellion in the Chancery.

This Action will not lie for ſaying, Thou maintaineſt a rebellious knave, or [rebellious perſons] Nor for this, Thou art a maintainer of thieves abroad and at home, and doſt maintain J. S. in ſuch a Caſtle. And yet it is ſaid, it doth lie for theſe words, Thou art a maintainer of thieves in thy houſe. And clearly to ſay, Thou maintaineſt thieves in thy houſe, to rob thy Neighbors.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou doſt harbor and maintain Rebels and Traitors, Goldsb. 48. *pl.*7. But not for ſaying, Thou didſt ſteal by the High-way ſide, Brownl. 1. part. 143. And yet it will not lie for ſaying, Thou keepeſt none but thieves, [or, cut-purſes] in thy houſe, and haſt their goods, M. 17 Jac. B. R. Nor will it lie for this, Thou art a favorer of thieves, Dyer 75. Nor for this, Thou keepeſt men which rob on the High-way [or which, rob me,] for all this may be unawares. Nor as it ſeems for this, Thou keepeſt men with intent to rob me. But it will lie for theſe words, Thou harboreſt, and maintaineſt traytors, conveyeſt them out of the Realm, and maintaineſt them with money there. Paſche, 29 Eliz. Goldsb. 48. pl. 7. Accord. So it ſeems it will lie for this, Thou haſt been a ſetter of thieves to rob me, or, haſt hired one to rob me: If I be robbed, this is Actionable, Hil. 13 Jac. B. R. So to ſay, Thou haſt received thieves, knowing knowing them to be ſo. Matthews Caſe. But to ſay, Thou art a receiver of thieves, contra.

This Action will lie for theſe words, Thou haſt houlſtred [or, received] goods that were ſtoln, knowing them to be ſtoln; but unleſs it be added, ex ſcientia, it ſeems they are not Actionable, M. 17 Car. B. R. Haws Caſe, adjudged. But if the manner of receipt ſpoken of, were ſuch as is not Felony; the Defendant muſt ſhew how it was for the clearing of himſelf, March, f. 16. And yet if one ſay, J. S. hath ſtoln a horſe, and his ſon is conſenting to it; it ſeems the ſon cannot have this Action for theſe words, Trin. 14 Jac. Lewkners Caſe.

It hath been ſaid, it will not lie for ſaying, Thou haſt ſtoln away my Corn; be- Sect. 8. cauſe it doth not appear, whether the Corn were ſevered, Trin. 37 Eliz. And yet divers Judgments are recorded to be to the contrary, as this, Hil. 14. B. R. for ſaying, Thou didſt ſteal my Corn, and carry it into the Market, Glovers Caſe. Paſche, 7 Jac. B. R. and Paſche, 40 Eliz. Cook B. R. Thou art a falſe knave, and didſt ſteal my Corn, Harris Caſe. Thou art a Corn-ſtealer, 39 Eliz. Cook, B. R. For ſaying, Thou art a thief, and haſt ſtoln my Corn. Adjudged, Kelham and Mandes Caſe, B. R. 2 Jac. Alſo it is ſaid to be adjudged to lie for this, He hath ſtoln my Wood, 5 Jac. B. R. Litchfields Caſe. March. Rep. 211. pl. 248.

It lieth for this, Male did ſteal my Corn out of my Barn, Hil. 14 Jac. Cook, B. R. adjudged. So for ſaying, Thou art a thief, and haſt ſtoln the Town-beam; meaning the Town of Wickham. But not for ſaying, Thou art a thief, and haſt ſtoln a Tree, or, haſt ſtoln my Maiden-head, Brownl. 2. part. 3. Trin. 18 Car. B. R. And for this, He hath felonioufly taken my Wood, Paſche, 38 Eliz. Cook, B. R. For this muſt be underſtood of Wood cut: But if he ſay, He hath ſtoln my Tree, or, my Trees, contra; Arbor dum creſcit, lignum dum creſcere neſcit, Trin. 4 Jac. B. R. Rot. 1366. Accord. March. 211. pl. 280. Accord. Brownl. 2. part. 280. But it ſeems all theſe Judgments are not approved by the Court of Common Pleas: For there it hath been oft agreed, this this Action will not lie, for ſaying, Thou art a thief, for [or, and] thou haſt ſtoln my Trees, or, Apples out of my ground, or, Corn out of my field, or, an Acre of my Corn, or, twenty load of my Furzes, Hob. Rep. pl. 106. pl. 97, 98, 473. 406. Nor for this, Thou haſt robbed my Hop-ground, or, ſtoln my Apples out of my Orchard, [or] and it will be proved by ſtealing of my Apples in my Orchard, Co. 4. 19. So it will not lie for theſe words, Thou art a thief, for thou tookeſt away my Cattle upon an Execution, and I will hang thee, Mich. 7 Jac. Wilks Caſe. And yet ſome do put a difference between [and] and [for,] and ſay, That for this thou art a thief, and haſt ſtoln my Trees or Apples, &c. it ſhall lie. But all agree, that it lieth not for theſe words, Thou art a thief, for thou haſt ſtoln, &c. It was ſaid to be adjudged, that it will not lie for this, Thou haſt robbed me, and taken away my evidence. It will lie for this, Thou haſt ſtoln my Cock, Brownl. 1. part. 1. And yet this is but Petit Larceny. It will not lie for ſaying, Thou art drunk, and I never held up my hand at the Bar as thou haſt done. Nor to ſay, Thou waſt araigned for Felony, or, didſt hold up thy hand for Felony, Bro. 2. p. 273.

It is ſaid to be adjudged to lie for theſe words, A. is an arrant thief, and he hath ſtoln my Apple Trees, M. 7 Jac. B. R. Eyres Caſe. But it was moved in Arreſt of this Judgment, and in Mynors Caſe, M. 4 Jac. B. R. This difference was agreed there, and it was ſaid, It had been often adjudged there accordingly; and it ſeems that Court is of this opinion ſtill. But the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas are utterly againſt it, and will by no means admit of this difference: And therefore they judge the Action to lie alike in both Caſes, Hob. Rep. pl. 406. 98. 17. 20. But all agree it will lie without queſtion, for ſaying, Thou haſt ſtoln my Apples out of my Loft, or, thou haſt ſtoln the Corn out of my Barn, or, thou haſt ſtoln my Wood, [or, Furzes] out of my Barton, Hob. pl. 258. Hil. 37 Eliz. B. R. Caſtlemains Caſe.

It lieth not for this, Thou art a thief, for thou haſt cut off the ear-mark of my ſheep, and ſet on thine own, 29 Eliz. B. R.

It lieth for ſaying, Bear witneſs, I arreſt you for Felony, Per curiam, M. 17 Jac. B. R. Serles Caſe. So for ſaying, If I could finde J. S. I doubt not but within two days to arreſt H. of ſuſpition of Felony, Adjudg. Herles Caſe. Coo. 4. 15. And it is ſaid it hath been ruled to lie for theſe words, I charge you with Felony, and I charge the Con- ſtable to take you, M.5.Iac.B.R. Alſo it hath been ſaid to be adjudged to lie for theſe words, Bring me to the Conſtables houſe, for I am robbed, and I will bring him to the houſe of I.S. to arreſt him, for he ſetteth them to rob me from time to time, Adjudg.B.B. And yet in other places we find it affirmed and ruled, that it will not lie for ſaying, I charge you for Felony for taking money out of the pocket of I.S. Nor for theſe words, I arreſt you for Felony; or, I charge you with Felony, *Hob.Rep. pl.*381,394,286,38. and elſwhere. See Brownl. 1 part, 18.

And to reconcile theſe, I take the difference to be this. If I do arreſt a man for a ſuſpition, and in the arreſt uſe theſe words when there is cauſe, this is in the due way of Juſtice, and not actionable. But if I uſe theſe words without any juſt cauſe, or where I do not proceed in a courſe of Juſtice, but before or after the arreſt, or otherwiſe ſpeak any of the ſaid words, they are actionable, *Hob Rep.pl.*258.

Which concern a man in his Office or place of truſt.

It is ſaid that this Action will lie for any Officer, againſt him that ſhall ſay, He hath no skill in his Office. But for a manual Tradeſman, it will not lie for theſe words, He hath no skill in his Trade. Sed quære of this laſt, *Hil.*16.*Iac.*B.R. It will lie for ſaying to any Officer, You are an Extortioner; or, you have extorted twenty ſhillings above your due Fees, Coo.10.61.

Judge, Juſtice.

It will lie for ſaying to a Judge or Juſtice of Peace, You are a corrupt man (or Judg) or Juſtice of Peace; or, You deal corruptly, or you take bribes, or you do not miniſter true juſtice, or you are a falſe Judge or a falſe Juſtice of Peace, Coo.4.16.Broo.112. But it will not lie for theſe words, If any man will give him bribes, Sheep or Capons, he will take them. Adjudg.*Paſch.*35*Eliz.*B.R. Sir Chr.Helliards Caſe.

It will lie for ſaying to a Judge or Juſtice of Peace, You are an Ambodexter, or you take money on both ſides, *M.*2.Iac.B.R. Dawtreys Caſe. Or, You cover (or hide) Felonies, Dyer 72. and Stuckleys Caſe, *P.*7.Iac.B.R. Or, You are a common Barreter, or you are a common Champertor, or you are a common maintainer of Suits, *Hob.pl.*188, 145. So for ſaying, You took money of a Felon brought before you, to let him eſcape, *Paſch.*37.*Eliz.B.R. Rot.*147. Adjudg. Cottons Caſe; and *Trin.*36.Eliz. Staffords Caſe, B.R. See Brownl. 1 part, 11.

It lieth for ſaying, I was like to be killed at his houſe; he enticed me into his ſtable to ſee his horſes, and there he inſtigated I.S. to beat me, *M.*2.Iac.B.R.

It doth lie for ſaying of a Juſtice of Peace, He hath done me wrong in returning the Recogniſance for I.S. in twenty pounds, whereas it was taken but for ten pounds, Paſch. 4 Jac.B.R.

Some think it will lie for theſe words, He can hear but with one ear, Cholmleys Caſe. And for theſe words, He doth maintain the worſt people againſt Gods Law. 35 Eliz. Butlers Caſe, adjudged.

It will not lie for ſaying to a Juſtice of Peace, or Judge, ſpeaking of the Tenants of his Manors, and his taking of Fines; When your Tenant took his Land, you cozened him of his Fine, and dealt corruptly, and I will make you appear where you dare not ſhew your face for your baſe dealing, Trin: 4 Iac. And if the diſcourſe be about health, and one ſay, He is a corrupt man, *M.*7.Iac.Co.B. So if the talk be about his Eſtate, and one ſays, He is a Bankrupt. Or, if the diſcourſe be about his Uſury, or his fraud in an Executorſhip, and thereupon one ſaith, He is a corrupt man, or a falſe man, or the like. And therefore in ſuch like Caſes, if the Plaintiff ſet forth part of the words only, it will concern the Defendant to ſet forth the whole matter in avoidance of the Suit, *Coo.*4.14. And yet if the words be ſpoken indefinitely, without any ſuch reference as in the Caſes before, they will be actionable. *Sermo relatus ad perſonam, intelligi debet de conditione perſonæ. Hob.Rep.pl.*351.

Sect. 9.

It will not lie for ſaying to a Juſtice of a Peace, You are an Uſurer, or you have not dealt honeſtly about a Will, Co 4.16. New Book of Entries, *fol.*22. Nor for ſaying, He hath gotten all he hath by ſwearing and forſwearing. Adjudg. N. B. of Entries, *f.*21.

Preacher.

This Action will lie for ſpeaking theſe words to a Preacher, *You have made a ſeditious Sermon, and moved the people to ſedition. Coo.*4.19. and Philips Caſe, Paſch. 24 Eliz. B. R. But it will not lie for ſaying to him, Thou art an Adulterer, or, thou haſt had two children by J. S. and I will cauſe thee to be deprived for it, adjudged, Parrets Caſe, M. 38, 39 Eliz.

It

It will lie for saying to a Sheriff, or any such like Officer, Thou art an Extortioner, or, Thou hast by colour of thy Office, extorted twenty shillings above thy due Fees, Co. 10. 61. And Stanleys Case, Pasche, 14 Jac. Co. B.R. And Jones Case, 38, 39 Eliz. Sheriff.

It lieth for saying to a Serjeant or Barrester, You are a dishoneſt man in your profeſſion, or, you have undone many men, adjudged. Trin. 37 Eliz. Or, You did diſcloſe my counſel to my adverſary, or, you are a couzening knave, and ſhewed a counterfeit [or forged] Deed, knowing it to be ſo, M. 39, 40 Eliz. M. 20 Jac. Curia. But it will not lie for saying, You ſhewed a counterfeit [or forged] Deed, without more. It will lie for saying, He giveth bad counſel, or, he is no Lawyer, or, he is an ignorant man in the Law, or, he hath no skill in the Law, M. 8 Car. B R. in Cawdreys Case. Alſo it lieth for this, He is the ſimpleſt Lawyer towards the Law, adjudged, 39, 40 Eliz. B. R. Or, He hath no more Law then an Ape: But to say, He hath as much Law as an Ape, is not actionable; and yet see the Case after, contrarily adjudged, Goldsb. 126. pl. 17. And yet it will not lie for these words, He is no Schollar, or, Thou waſt never any Schollar (or to speak to a Schollar.) He hath no learning, or, he is an ignorant man; in general, without reference to his office. Nor will it lie for saying, Thou art a drunken fellow, or, thou art an Aſs, in Cawdreys Case. It will lie for saying to him these words, Thou a Barreſter! a Barreſter! thou waſt put from the Bar, adjudged, Paſche 8 Jac. Cook. B. R. Beſtlies Case. So it will lie for these words, Thou a Counſellor! thou art a concealer of the Law, adjudged, Trin. 2 Jac. B. R. Coxes Case. It will lie for saying to a Barreſter, You are a bribing knave, or, you are a corrupt man, or, you are a common Barrater, or, you are a common Champertor, or, you are a common maintainer of ſuits, Hob. Rep. pl. 188. 145. pl. 17. Cook 4. 16. It lieth for saying, He hath the falling ſickneſs, by Tanfield Juſtice, Hil. 4 Jac. B. R. So it will lie for these words, He was of my Counſel, and revealed the ſecrets of my cauſe, Snags Case, Trin. 13 Eliz. B. R. New Book of Entries, f. 22. And yet it seems it will not lie for this, Go to him, he will deceive you, adjudged, March. Rep. 146. pl. 217. Brownl. Rep. 1. part. 11. To say to a Lawyer, Thou art a paltry Lawyer, and haſt as much Law as a Jackanapes, Goldsb. 126. pl. 17. Lawyer.

It will not lie for these words to a Lawyer, Thou haſt nothing but what thou haſt gotten by ſwearing and forſwearing. New Book of Entries, f. 22. Nor for saying, Thou art a Bankrupt, March. Rep. f. 8.

It will lie for saying of an Attorney, He is an extortioner, Hil. 40 Eliz. Cook B.R. Stanleys Case; or, he is a bribing knave, Cook 4. 16. Hob. Rep. pl. 17. adjudged; or, he is a corrupt man, and doth deal corruptly, Cook 4. 15. or, his credit is faln, he dealeth on both ſides, M. 42, 43 Eliz. Cook, B. R. Kings Case; or, he is an ambodexter, or, he taketh money on both ſides [or on both hands] in ſuits, M. 2 Jac. Dautreys Case, B. R. But it will not lie for saying of him, He is a common maintainer of ſuits, Hob. Rep. pl. 45. It lieth for saying of him, He is a falſe practiſer, per 3. Juſtices, Paſche, 17 Jac. Moors Case; or, he is a cozening knave; or, he is a knave, adjudged. Yardlies Case, 18 Eliz. B. R. And yet, Forging knave, hath been doubted, Paſche 17 Jac. B. R. Moors Case; I know not upon what reaſon. It hath been adjudged to lie, in Smails Case, Brownl. . part. 16. And it is said it will not lie for these words, Thou art a falſe couzening knave, and haſt couzened my two kinſmen of their Land, and deſerveſt the Pillory, 26 Eliz. B. R. Nor for saying, He couzened J. S. out of his Land, adjudged. It lieth for saying, You are a dishoneſt man in your profeſſion. It lieth for saying, Thou art a common Barrater, Hob. Rep. pl. 188. Or, thou art a common Champertor, Hob. Rep. pl. 183. 145. 351. Or, thou art a Champertor, Boxes Case. M. 14 Jac. Cook, B. R. Or, thou art the ſimpleſt [or fooliſheſt] Attorney, towards the Law, M. 39, 40 Eliz. Cook. B. R. Martins Case, adjudged; or, thou haſt no skill in thy Office. But it will not lie for saying, Thou haſt no skill in Husbandry, or the like, this is not actionable. It will lie for these words, Thou didſt diſcloſe thy Clients counſel to his adverſary, Trin. 17 Car. Cook, B.R. Sanderſons Case; or, thou art a ſuborning knave; or, thou art an extorting knave, and didſt ſuborn one to be forſworn before the Lord Chief Juſtice, 20 Jac. If a Suit be between R. and B. and B. say to R. J. S. your Attorney is a bribing knave, and hath twenty pound of you to couzen me; this is actionable, adjudged, M. 1 Jac. Cook, B. R. Yardlies Case. But it will not lie for Attorney.

ſaying to an Attorney, Thou art a uſurer, or, thou haſt plaid the knave with me about a Will, Cook 4. 16. And it is ſaid it will not lie for this, My Father was not pecked over the Bar as thy Father was, Trin. 41 Eliz. Cook, B.R And yet it is ſaid it will lie for ſaying, Thou waſt pecked over the Bar, quere, what difference. Nor will it lie for this, He was or will be pecked over the Bar, Trin. 41 Eliz. Knightlies Caſe, Cook, B. R. Hob. Rep. pl. 145. Nor for this, I think thou art no Attorney, but an Attorneys Clerk; and if thou be, I ſhall have thee pecked over the Bar the next Term, and thy Ears nailed to the Pillory, *Hob. Rep pl.*159. Paſche, 7 Jac. Cook, B. R. Trotmans Caſe; for theſe words are of an uncertain ſenſe. It is ſaid it will not lie for ſaying of him, He gets his living by falſe Writs, adjudged, B. R. Nor if one ſpeak of going to him, if another ſay, Go not to him, for he will couzen [or deceive] you, Paſche, 18 Jac. Ratcliffs Caſe.

It lieth for this, Brown is a good Attorney, but that he will play on both ſides, Brownl. 1. *part.*5.

It ſeems it lieth for this, Thou haſt couzened J. S. of his Fee, I will ſue thee for it in the Star-Chamber; for thou didſt not come for J. S. Brownl. 1. part. 3. 15. 16. 6. 7. 2. *part.*253.

It lieth alſo for this, Is he your Attorney, he is the fooliſheſt and ſimpleſt Attorney towards the Law: And if he do not overthrow your cauſe, I will give you my ears. He is a fool and an aſs, and ſo I will prove him, 126. *pl.*21.

Receiver. It lieth for ſaying of the Receiver of the Court of Wards, Maſter Receiver hath couzened the King, and delt falſly with him, Trin. 17 Jac. Sir Miles Fleetwoods Caſe, Auditor. Hob. Rep. pl 351. So to call an Auditor of the Court of Wards Frauditor, is actionable in Sir Miles Fleetwoods Caſe.

Conſtable. It lieth for ſaying to a Conſtable, Thou hideſt or covereſt Felonies, or favoreſt Felons, Stucklies Caſe, Paſche, 7 Jac. B. R. and Bondmans Caſe.

Sect. 10. Phyſitian. It lieth for ſaying of a Phyſitian, He hath no learning or skill in Phyſick, M. 8 Car. B. R. in Cawdreys Caſe. And yet to ſay, He is an aſs, or hath no learning, or is no Schollar, in general, it ſeems is not actionable. But it will lie to ſay of a Doctor of Phyſick, He is a Mountebank, an Emperick, and a baſe fellow, adjudged, Paſche, 12 *Car. B. R. Hughs Rep.*441.

Major. It lieth not for ſaying to a Major, Thou haſt couzened all thy brethren, 8 Car. B. R. Major of Tivertons Caſe, for the words are too general and incertain to uphold an Action.

Jury-man. It lieth for ſaying to a common Jury-man, Thou art a common Jury-man, and haſt been the death and the overthrow of a hundred men, by thy falſe and ſubtil means, adjudged, Paſche, 7 Jac. Cook, B. R. Peters Caſe. With Averment that he was a Jury-man.

Overſeers of the poor. It is thought it will lie for ſaying of Overſeers of the poor, That they have couzened the poor of their money, 9 Jac. B. R. yet this ſome doubt. But it ſeemes clearly, it will lie for ſaying, They have couzened the poor of their bread.

Commiſſioner. It lieth for ſaying of a Commiſſioner, That he hath a Commiſſion to hear and end a difference between A. and B. Thou art a corrupt man, and haſt taken bribes of A. to defraud equity and juſtice, adjudged, Paſche, 3 Jac. B. R. Sir George Mores Caſe. So to ſay of him, That he put out Depoſitions taken, and put in ſome not taken, adjudged, Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Sir Nich. Parkers Caſe. So for ſaying, He hath returned Depoſitions that were not taken, 40, 41 Eliz. B. R. Fiſhes Caſe; and whether he be nominated by the Court or Parties, it is all one in the Caſe.

Arbitrator. It lieth not for ſaying of an Arbitrator, He hath taken bribes, or, he is corrupt.

Weigher of Corn. But it will lie for ſaying to one appointed to be a common weigher in a Market or Fair, that did weigh Corn between us, He hath taken bribes to make falſe weights.

Steward. It lieth for ſaying of a Steward in a Leet, He hath added a preſentment, which the Jury never made, M. 4 Jac. B. R. Carrs Caſe, eſpecially if he keep many Courts.

Bailiff. It will not lie for a Bailiff that had the ſelling of his Maſters Corn for three years, for ſaying, Thou art a conzening knave, and haſt couzened thy Maſter in ſelling by falſe meaſure, *Hob. pl.*93. But if he did continue in his office, and theſe words did make his Maſter put him away, contra.

It will not lie for ſaying of a Scrivener, That he made falſe writings. Scrivener.

It lieth for ſaying of a Mathematical Meaſurer or Surveyor that is learned, and doth it by Art, or any ſuch Officer, He hath no skill in his trade, or, he is a cheater or couzener in his trade But to ſay ſo of one that doth meaſure by the Poll onely, contrà, Hil. 16 Jac. B. R. Loudons Caſe. Meaſurer of Land.

Out of all this, it appeareth, That where ever this Action is maintainable for any Defamation in a mans Office, the words muſt be ſpoken, either generally without any reference, and ſo may be referred to his Office, or with reference to his Office; for if they be ſpoken of any other ſubject then his Office, they will not be actionable, Agree. 16 Jac. B. R. in Loudons Caſe. And the party that ſues for the ſlander, muſt ſhew in his Declaration, that he was ſuch an Officer at the time of the words ſpoken, otherwiſe the action is not maintainable. And it is not ſufficient to ſay he had been ſuch an Officer before the time of the ſpeaking of the words; but he need not ſhew that the hearers did know him to be ſuch an officer, Hob. Rep. pl. 104. 93. 351. yet if the words be ambiguous, but there is a pregnant violence in them to lead the hearers and Court, to take them in the worſt ſenſe, they muſt be taken ſo, as in the Caſe of Sir Miles Fleetwood, Hob. Rep. pl. 35.

It lieth upon this ground alſo, againſt them that ſlander a Lawyer, or an Attorney with ignorance or unfaithfulneſs in the Caſes before ſet down. Which concern a man in his Trade or Calling, whereby he gets his living.

It will lie for ſaying to a Victualler or Inn-holder, He hath the Pox, or any other infectious diſeaſe in his houſe; if he loſe his gueſts thereby, non aliter, Co. 4. 17. Trin. 9 Jac. Ladlams Caſe. So for ſaying, He keeps a houſe of common Baudry, curia, Hil. 4 Jac. B. R. Thornes Caſe. M. 39, 40 Eliz. And for this it ſeems it will lie without that conſequence, and without Averment thereof. So this Action will lie for ſaying of any Tradeſman that gets his living by buying and ſelling, or did ſo of late, and hath given it over a little while, as a Merchant, Shoomaker, Mercer, or the like Tradeſman that uſeth buying and ſelling. He is a bankrupt, and I will drive him out of the Country for a bankrupt; M. 9 Jac. B. R. Dayes Caſe, adjudged. Or, he will be a bankrupt very ſhortly, Co. 4. 19. Dyer 72. Longs Caſe. M. 7 Jac. Co. B. R. Seleys Caſe. Paſche, 12 Jac. B. R. Or, he is a bankrupt, and fled beyond the Sea for money, Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Trulocks Caſe. Or, I will prove that he hath been a bankrupt, and hath agreed with his creditors for five ſhillings a pound. Edmunds Caſe. Hil. 3 Jac. B. R. Rot. 855. Or, he is broken, Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Johnſons Caſe. But it will not lie for ſaying, I will ſue out a Commiſſion of Bankrupt againſt J. S. Nor will it lie for calling a Gentleman, or one that is no Tradeſman, Bankrupt. Fincheſley 186. Nor for ſaying to a Tradeſman, Thou art a branded Rogue, and a Rogue by the Statute, M. 19 Jac. B. R. Harriſons Caſe, unleſs he can aver any ſpecial loſs by it. Nor will it lie for theſe words of a Merchant, Doth he ow you money? get it quickly and take heed how you truſt him, Trin. 36 Eliz. Vaſpicks Caſe. Nor for this, He is a falſe knave, and keepeth a falſe debt book, for he chargeth me unjuſtly with what I never received, adjudged. Hil. 37 Eliz. B. R. Brooks Caſe. Nor for ſaying, He is a couzening knave, Paſche, 15 Car. B. R. And yet in theſe two laſt Caſes, if the ſpeeches be with reference to his Trade, Quere. It will not lie to ſay of a Tradeſman, He is not worth a groat; no, nor albeit he aver that in the Country, it means that he is a Bankrupt, Paſche, 15 Car. B. R. Axes Caſe; for his credit may be good, and he not worth a groat.

It will not lie for ſaying to a Merchant, He is a couzening knave, March. Rep. f. 8. pl. 19. But ſee more in Brownl. 1. part. 4. 16.

It will lie for ſaying to a Goldſmith, Thou art a couzening knave, for thou haſt ſold me a Saphir for a Diamond, Hil. 32 Eliz. B. R. But if one ſay to a Taylor, Thou art a couzening knave, becauſe thou haſt ſold me a chain for Gold, where it is half Copper, and thou art a couzening knave upon record, and haſt been impriſoned for couzening; no Action will lie for theſe words, 32 Eliz. B. R.

It will not lie for calling Rogue or Cozener, nor for ſaying, He is a cozening Rogue, and hath cozened R.W. of thirty pound, and goeth about to do the like to me, Brownl. 2 part, 190.

It doth not lie to ſay of a Carrier, He is a common Barreter. Hob. Rep. pl. 183. 188.

It

It lieth for saying of a Journeyman-Shomaker, Do not meddle with him, for he will undo you, or he will cut you out of doors; with an Averment that this word [cut] doth intend in the Country [undo.] *Pasc.*15 Car. B.R.

It lieth for saying of a servant, He doth defraud, cozen, or cheat his master, or will undo him, if by this he have any special damage, otherwise not: But in the first case there must be an Averment of damage in particular. *March, f.*1.

It lieth for saying of a Brewer, He sels naughty Beer, M. 15 Car. B.R. Or, My Mare doth pis as good Beer as he doth brew, if he can aver a loss by the words. Dykes Case, *March.*60.

It lieth for saying to a Brasier, Thou didst cozen I.S. in a Brass pot, Adjudg. Pasc. 7 Jac. B.R. So by the same reason to say to any Tradesman, He did cheat a man in trading. So to say of a Farmer, Badger, or any man that sels by weight and measure, He sels by false weights and measures, or he did keep false measures, by which he did cozen the Country. But it lieth not for saying, He had (or he kept) false weights or measures in his house, *Hob pl.*93. Pasch. Co. B. 17 Car. Payns Case But to say this of a Bailiff that sold his masters Corn for a while, and hath given over. it seems it will not lie. But to say of a Tradesman, He doth sell by false weights or measures, will bear an Action, March Rep 119. *pl.*197.

It lieth for saying, that he kept a false bushel by which he did cheat and cozen the poor, if he shew he were a Farmer, and did sell his Corn, and that by these words he lost his Customers, March 116. *pl.*192.

It lieth for saying to one that had oversight of a Gentlemans Farm, and sold his Corn, for these words; *Thou art a cozening Knave, and thou hast cozened me in selling false measure in my Barley, and the Country is bound to curse thee for selling with false measures, and I will prove it; and thou hast changed my Barley which I bought of thee. B.R. Rep.*1 *par.*4. So for this, Thou didst keep and sell by false weights, and in 240 bestowing thy weights were false two ounces, and I will prove it, *Brownl.*1 part, 42.

To say of a woman Inkeeper, She is a pocky unwholsom woman, doth wear a skarf to hide her blanches in her neck, it is a pocky household, may happily bear an action, M. 9 Jac. Ludmans Case.

Sect. II. Out of all which it is to be observed, that where-ever this Action lieth for a slander to a man in his Trade, the words must be spoken either generally, and so may be referred to it, or must be relative words, as Bankrupt or the like, or with expres reference to it; for if they be spoken of any other thing, they will not bear an action: And the party that sues must set forth in his Declaration, that he was such a Tradesman in particular; and it is not enough to say, he got his living by buying and selling, but he must say he is a Merchant, Mercer, or the like, and that he was so a little before or at the time of the words spoken, else no action will lie, Hil. 7 Car. B.R. Collins Case, adjudged *M.*17 Car. Co. B. But if the count be that he have been of that Trade for twenty years last past, and lay the words to be spoken within that time, it is good. But if he say that he hath been of that Trade for divers years last past, contra. Hil. 17 Jac. B.R. Johnsons Case. *Hob. Rep. pl.*1. 6.93.

Averment: In all these Cases there must be a special averment of some loss by the words spoken, *Pasc.*15 Car. B.R. Axes Case. But others upon better reason and authority hold the contrary. But all agree it to be best to alleage some special damage, if the Case will bear it. *March, f.*96.

Which tend to a mans disinheritance. It lieth for saying of a lawful Heir to Land, before or after his fathers death, He is a Bastard. And this will lie, though the words were spoken before or after he hath the land in possession, and though he be not about to sell the land, and though he have no loss by the speaking of the words, *Co.*4.17 *M.*20. Jac. B. Elborows Case: for by this the title of his Land may be called in question. But if the party speaking claim as next heir to the Land, he may justifie it, and it will not bear an action, *Trin.*25 Eliz. B.R. Banisters Case. Co. idem. And if the Plaintiff omit this, the Defendant may set it forth by way of bar. To say a man is his Villain, will not bear action now, as it seems, because Villenage is gone.

Which charge a man with an infectious disease. It lieth for this, He hath the French pox, or is infected with the French pox, or is laid with the pox, or the pox doth haunt him twice a year, *Co.*4.17. and Ludlams Case, *M.*2 Jac.

M. 2 Jac. per Fenner and Williams Juſtices. So, Thou haſt caught the French pox, and carried it to thy wife, Hob. Rep. pl. 290. So for ſaying, Thou art a pocky Whore, and the pox hath eaten out the bottom of thy belly, that thy guts are ready to fall out, M 7 Jac. Co.B. Miles Caſe. Trin. 15 Jac. B.R. Milwards Caſe. So it ſeems it will lie for ſaying, Thou haſt the great pox, 20 Jac. B.R. or the plague. So it lieth for ſaying, Thou art a leprous knave, not fit for company, or thou art a leper, Trin. 4 Jac. B.R. Rot. 1051. But it will not lie for ſaying, One hath the Falling-ſickneſs, Hil. 4 Jac. B.R. or the Pox, Co. 4. 17. Nor for this, Hang him, he is full of the Pox, Co. 4. 17. It will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a pocky Whore, 44, 45 Eliz. Adjudg. Curia. M. 7 Jac. Co.B. Nor will it lie for this, That pocky Drab doth wear a ſcarf about her neck to hide her blanches, I will not eat with her for ten pounds; by three Judges, Trin. 9 Jac. Ludmans Caſe. Nor for this, Thou haſt lien in Fullers tub, Chapels Caſe. Nor will it lie for theſe words with this Averment, That none do lie there but ſuch as have the French pox, Adjudg: M. 44, & 45 Eliz. Boddin and Jones Caſe. Nor for this, Thou art a pocky Drab, doeſt wear a ſcarf about thy neck to hide thy blanches; you are a pocky houſhold, and I will not eat with you for twenty Nobles. And yet if they were ſpeaking of the French pox, and the party ſpeak theſe words, it is dangerous, M. 9 Iac. Nor for this, He hath been in Fowlers tub, (meaning a Chyrurgeons tub, wherein none were but ſuch as had the pox) I will not ſay of the pox, but he lay in the tub that time that Lagmans wife was laid of the pox, and his hair fals from his head, and he is a pilled and a Raſcal-knave, and a Villain, and no Chriſtian, and thinks there is neither heaven nor hell, Goldsb. 135. pl 34.

If I have Land, and have need, and am about to ſell it, and another ſay, It is his Land, and I have no right to it, or I have no Title to it, or I have no good Eſtate of it, or that I can make no good Eſtate of it; and hereby my Chapman doth deſiſt and fall off, I may have this Action: And albeit he or ſome other have a colourable Eſtate, yet if he have not a good Title in Law to it, this will bear an Action, Co. 4. 18. New book of Entries, 28. As if two have Leaſes of the ſame Land, and he hath the latter which is not good, and he ſay, The Land is his, and the others Eſtate is not good; this is actionable. Mildmays Caſe, Adjudg. 6 Eliz. Co. B. Co. 1. 177. Which ſlander a mans title of his land.

If I be about to ſell my Land, and another ſaith, I know one that hath a Leaſe of the Land, and he will not part from it at any rate; this is actionable, Adjudg. M. 37, 38 Eliz. B.R. Pennymans Caſe. M. 20 Iac. B.R. Elborrows Caſe. The Plaintiff ſet forth he had much Land by Inheritance, and the Defendant intending to impeach his Title, ſaid, His wife ſhall not ſit above mine, for her husband is a baſtard, innuendo the Plaintiff; It was adjudged to lie without any Averment. So it will lie for ſaying, Your father is a baſtard, 6 Eliz. Co. B. So, Thou art an Alien, 15 Jac. B.R. adjudged. And yet in caſe where I claim an Eſtate, if I ſay ſo, That I have a title, and the title of the other is not good; theſe words may be juſtified, and are not actionable, Co 4. 18. But there muſt be a ſpecial Averment of ſome loſs; and therefore he muſt ſhew that he was the Heir, and the other intending to impeach his Title, or that there was a communication for a ſale: For ſome hold, that if there were only an intent of ſale in the Owner, and no progreſs, no Action will lie for the ſlander of the Title, Co. New book of Entries, f. 35. M. 18 Jac. Sleeds Caſe. Yet ſome Judges have held it will lie without any Averment; for it may cauſe the King or Lord to ſearch for the Title, and bring a loſs in time to come. Sect. 12.

If one be heir to his father or brother, who intend to ſettle their land upon him, and another ſay, He is a Baſtard, and thereupon they give away the land from him, this will bear Action, adjudged, Hughs Rep. 451.

If a woman be like to have a husband, or a man a wife, and one ſay of him or her, He (or ſhe) had a baſtard, or ſhe is incontinent, or lay with I. S. or I. S. had the uſe of her body, and he or ſhe loſe their match thereby; this Action will lie for this ſlander, Co. 4. 16. Hil. 4 Jac. B.R. Dame Harriſons Caſe. M. 8 Car. B.R. So if a Widower be like to have a Maid or Widow, and one ſay to her, I wonder you will have him, for he was like to ſtarve his laſt wife, and would not allow her neceſſaries; and by this he loſe her. Adjudged. Which tend to hinder a mans preferment.

If a Divine be to be preſented to a Benefice, and one ſay to him, He is an Heretick, or a Baſtard, or excommunicate; and hereby he loſe his preferment, he may have this Action for this Slander, Co. 4. 16.

If a Lawyer ſtand for an Office, as for a Stewardſhip, or the like, and being in ſpeech about him, one ſaith to another, He is an ignorant man, unfit for this place; and thereby he loſeth the place, this Action lieth for this Slander, Sanderſons Caſe, 17 Car. Co. B. R.

And ſo by the ſame reaſon, if any common ſervant be like to have a ſervice, and by ſome ſlanderous ſpeeches he loſeth his ſervice; it ſeems he may have this Action for his relief. Agreed. M. 15 Car. B.R. But in all theſe Caſes, there muſt be a ſpecial Averment of the loſs of the preferment; otherwiſe the Action is not maintainable.

Averment:

Which doth tend to the hurt of a man in his Liberty, or to bring any corporal, or mony puniſhment on a man.

I finde in the Judgments and Opinions of men upon this point, very great contradiction alſo; and ſo much difficulty and uncertainty in the Law in theſe Caſes, that it is hard to give you any Rules on which you may relie herein.

Some ſay an Action will lie for any words which may induce any corporal or pecuniary puniſhment; others, the contrary. We ſhall ſay this onely in the Slanders within this degree, and the next that follow, it is good to obſerve how the words do ſound, and what the thing ſaid, if true, would produce. For if the words do ſound Scandalous, or if the thing charged were true, it would bring any ſharp puniſhment, eſpecially to the body, there (for the moſt part) the words will bear Action; we ſay (for the moſt part) for it is not always ſo. But on the other ſide, if the words do not ſound foul, as to ſay, You built a Cottage, did ſtrike in the Church, or the like; or the puniſhment of the thing charged would be but light, As to be bound to the good behavior, or the like; or none at all, there (for the moſt part) it will not lie. And yet in this Caſe alſo, ſometimes it will lie, Co. 4. 17. Kitch. 173. Co. 4. 19. Dyer 285. 37. But if any ſpecial loſs happen to the Party, by the ſpeaking of the words there, though the words in themſelves be not Actionable, yet they may be Actionable in reſpect of the loſs, M. 17 Car. B.R. As if one had ſaid, Thou ſpeakeſt againſt the Book of Common-Prayer, and thereby he was vexed in the Spiritual Court, Co. 4. 17. March Rep. f. 114. pl. 115.

It is held ſomewhat confidently, the Action will lie in all the Caſes, and for any of the words following, (viz.) Thou haſt bewitched my cattle, [my milk] my beer, or any of my goods, M. 18 Jac. B.R. Sturdens Caſe. But it will not lie for ſaying, Thou haſt bewitched my ware, that I can catch no fiſh.

But it lieth not for this, Thou art a Sorcerer or Inchanter, Brownl. 1. part. 8. 9. 14. 2. part. 276.

It hath been agreed, that ſince the Statute of 1 Jac. an Action will lie for calling one Witch generally. It hath been ſaid, it will not lie for ſaying, Thou art a Witch, and haſt bewitched my childe; for the words ſhall be taken mitiori ſenſu, of another bewitching. See Quere of this, Hughs 341.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou haſt a Baſtard, Co. 4. 17. So for ſaying, Thou didſt ſteal ſixpence, Hob. Rep. pl. 258. So for ſaying, Thou didſt hire one [or ſend one] to my houſe to kill me, Trin. 33 Eliz. B. R. Suttons Caſe, adjudged. Or, Thou didſt lie in wait to kill [or to rob] me, Paſche, 5 Jac. B. R. Or, Thou ſoughteſt the life of J. S. if he be dead, adjudged, Mich. 7 Jac. Weblins Caſe. So for ſaying of a Woman, She is a Baud and a Whore, and keepeth a houſe of Baudry, Dame Bartlets Caſe. Trin. 38 Eliz. B. R. And Morgans Caſe, Trin. 16 Car. B. R. adjudged, and many others. See March. 212. pl. 249.

It is ſaid it will lie for this, Thou didſt report money was faln, Fincheſley 185.

It will lie for any of theſe ſpeeches, Thou art a forger of falſe Deeds [or writings, or thou haſt forged a Feoffment,] Bond, Leaſe, or Releaſe, Dyer 285. 37. Paſche, 39 *Eliz. B.R. S. adjudged, Paſche, 7 Car. B. R. Mackeniſts Caſe. Or, Thou haſt ſued out a Writ againſt me, and got a counterfeit Warrant of thine own making, adjudged, M. 20 Jac. B. R. Stones Caſe. Or, Thou cameſt with a counterfeit Commiſſion, when he had a good Commiſſion, Yorks Caſe. Or, Thou haſt forged a Re- a Record in Abergavein Court, M. 7 Car. Co. B.R. adjudged. For this is puniſhable by the Common-Law, though not by the Statute. But not for ſaying, Thou art a forging knave, Goldsb. 25. *pl.*5.

It is held ſomewhat confidently, That it will not lie in all the Caſes, or for any of the words following, Thou art an Extortioner, or thou art a peace breaker, common Quarreller, ſuſpected to be a common Pilferer, common Rioter, a common Libeller, or thou art a common Champertor, or thou art a common maintainer of Suits, thou art a Recuſant, or men cannot have their Cattle go in the Common, but J. S. killeth them with dogs, Dyer 118. Thou haſt robbed my Orchard, thou haſt ſpoken againſt the Book of Common-Prayer, or thou haſt ſet up an unlawful Cottage againſt the Statute, thou haſt made a forcible entry into Land, or thou didſt ſtrike a man in a Church with a Weapon, thou art a Foreſtaller, Regrator, or Ingroſſer.

It would have lien, when villenage was here, for ſaying, Thou art a vilain to J. S. 2 Ed. 4. 5.

It lieth for any of theſe ſpeeches, I will prove thee [or I can prove thee] perjured, M. 7 Jac. B. R. Roberts Caſe. Or, Thou waſt perjured in the Star-Chamber, or, thou waſt committed for perjury there, Co. 4 19. Hob. Rep. pl. 107. 15. Or, Thou perjured beaſt, adjudged. 18 Jac. B.R. Benſons Caſe. Or, Thou art perjured, or waſt perjured, adjudged. M. 25 Eliz. B. R.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou art a perjured man, 25 Eliz. B. R. adjudged. It will not lie for theſe words, Thou haſt got thy living by ſwearing and forſwearing, adjudged. M. 9 Jac. B. R. So, Thou haſt taken a falſe oath [or, haſt forſworn thy ſelf] in the Kings-Bench Court, the Leet of S. or any other Court of Record, Hariſons Caſe, B. R. As, Thou tookeſt a falſe Oath in the Biſhops Court at Exceſter, or in the Leet of S. or in the Quarter-Seſſions at Gloceſter. 38 Eliz. Adjudged. Caſtlemains Caſe. *Co.*4. 15. Hob. Rep. pl. 346. 360. One ſaid, Thou art forſworn and haſt taken a falſe oath at Hereford Aſſizes againſt John at ſtile. The opinion of the Court in this Caſe, was, That the Action would not lie: Otherwiſe, if he had ſaid, Thou art forſworn, and haſt taken a falſe Oath at the Aſſizes againſt ſuch a one, with Averment That he was ſworn in the cauſe, March. Rep. f. 7. pl. 17.

It lieth for ſaying, It is a main-ſworn man, Brownl. 1. part. 9, 10, 11, 14, 15.

So it lieth for ſaying, You have cauſed J. S. to perjure himſelf, adjudged. Brownl. 1. part. 2. See Part. 2. 49.

If one ſay of a witneſs preſently after a tryal, He hath now forſworn himſelf, adjudged; it lieth for this, *Hughs Rep.*445.

It lieth for this ſaying, He was forſworn in Chancery, and the Lord Keeper committed him for it, adjudged. *Hughs Rep.*444. But not for ſaying, He is a proper witneſs, he will ſwear any thing. But the words muſt import the perjury was committed in a Court of Record and judicially there. And if the words will not bear, it cannot be ſtrained by an Innuendo to it. As if the words be, Thou waſt forſworn, the Plaintiff cannot make them Actionable by an Innuendo, in the Quarter-Seſſions of S. and in the ſervice of the Court, Trin. 19 Jac. B.R. And 48 Eliz. B.R. So it will not lie for ſaying, Thou waſt forſworn at Horſley Court, Innuendo the Court Leet there, for it may be the Court Baron there. And yet it is ſaid, the contrary hath been adjudged. So neither will it lie for ſaying, Thou waſt forſworn in the Kings-Bench; for it may be the Priſon ſo called, not the Court, M. 42 Eliz.

It lieth for ſaying, Thou haſt procured one to commit perjury, or, thou art a procurer of perjury. 25 Eliz. B. R. Or, thou haſt ſuborned one to come ten miles to be perjured, and given him money to do it, Harris Caſe. Paſche, 5 Jac. B.R. But if the words import he did it not, contrà.

It lieth for charging one ſworn in a Court upon a Voyer dire, as well as upon an Iſſue that he was forſworn; for this perjury is puniſhable by the Common Law, M. 7 Car. Cawdreys Caſe. So it is thought of theſe words, You were forſworn in your Anſwer in the Court of Requeſt; for this is puniſhable by the Pillory. So it is ſaid, it lieth for this, He hath delivered an untruth in a material thing in the Star-Chamber. Sed Quere. But not for ſaying, He hath delivered an untruth in his anſwer in the Chancery, 38, 39 Eliz. Browns Caſe.

Sect. 13. It will lie for ſaying, Thou art a forſworn fellow; for by thy falſe oath thou haſt hanged as true a man as thy ſelf, Adjudg Rats Caſe, and 39 Eliz. Brooks Caſe. So for ſaying, I. S. is mean ſworn, with an Averment that it doth ſignifie perjured in the place where the words were ſpoken. Adjudged, B. R.

We have ſhewed before, that it lieth for ſaying, Thou waſt forſworn in the Leet at W. [or in Hereford-Aſſizes, or in the Quarter-Seſſions at Glouceſter,] and that is out of queſtion. But it is ſaid by ſome, it will not lie for ſaying, Thou waſt forſworn at the Leet at W. or at Hereford-Aſſizes, or at the Quarter-Seſſions at Glouceſter; for it may be in ordinary diſcourſe, and extrajudicially; and a Judgment is cited, M. 38, 39 Eliz. B. R. Willis Caſe, to be given accordingly: Yet I cannot but doubt it, for the vulgar acceptance is alike in both caſes; and there is a Record of a Judgment on this ſide againſt the other Judgment, 38, 39 Eliz Cockins Caſe. And Hil. 1 Jac. B. R. it was ruled to lie for this, Thou haſt taken a falſe oath in the Quarter-Seſſions at Glouceſter. If I ſay to one coming out of a Court where he was ſworn, Thou haſt forſworn thy ſelf, it is ſaid to be actionable, Harriſens Caſe. And yet it is ſaid, if I ſay to a man giving his oath in a Court, You are forſworn, and ſay not, in your teſtimony in this cauſe, or the like, this is doubted, M. 7 Car. B. R. Cawdreys Caſe. This diſtinction ſeems to me a very nice one. Quære bien. It lieth not for ſaying, Thou art a falſe forſworn man, 25 Eliz. B. R.

It is ſaid it lieth not for ſaying, Thou art a common Swearer, or thou art a common haunter of Ale-houſes, or thou art a common fighter, or thou art a Sabbath-breaker, or thou art a common Whoremonger, or thou art a common Whore, or thou art a Whore, a Whoremaſter, or a Bawd, or thou art a Harlot, or thou art a common breaker of the Peace, or a common Affrayer, or thou art an Adulterer, or thou art a Fornicator, or thou didſt lie with I. S. or I. S. doth lie with thee, [or uſe thy body] M. 39 Eliz. B. R. Or thou art a Queen, or thou art a Thieviſh whore, Adjudg. Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Nor for this, Thou art the Hackney-whore of I. S. Bodins Caſe. Or, thou waſt rid up and down ſtairs, M. 9 Jac. B. R. And yet for many of theſe one may be bound to the good behavior, and for others of them puniſhed by Fine or great penalty. See March. 2. part 5. It lieth for ſaying to a woman, She keeps a Bawdy-houſe, or houſe of Bawdry. But it lieth not for ſaying, She is a Bawd or Whore, albeit ſhe be married. And yet in London by a ſpecial cuſtom it lieth for theſe words, Trin. 17 Car. B. R. March f. 107. Brownl. 1 part, 162.

It lieth not for ſaying, Thou art a falſe forſworn Knave, or thou haſt forſworn thy ſelf, M. 7 Jac. B. R. Nor for this, Thou haſt but one Manner, and thou haſt got it by ſwearing and forſwearing, Co. 4. 15. Nor for ſaying, He was detected for perjury in the Star-chamber, Co. 4. 16. Nor for this, Thou art a perjured Knave, that is to be proved by a ſtake parting the land of A. and B. Co. 4. 19. So if in a cauſe depending betwixt A. and B. in the Kings Bench, certain Affidavits being openly read in the Court, the Defendant ſaith openly, There is not a word true in them, as I can prove by twenty witneſſes; this is not actionable, Paſch. 15 Car. B. R. Moltons Caſe. March Rep. f. 20. pl. 45.

It lieth not for ſaying, I have matter enough againſt him; for I. S. hath found forgery againſt him, and can prove it, Adjudg Hob. Rep pl. 395. Nor for this, Thou haſt forged a Writing, Hob. Rep. pl. 3. Nor for this, Thou getteſt thy living by falſe Writs, Adjudged. Nor for ſaying, Thou haſt made a falſe Bond (or a falſe Deed) Paſch. 39 Eliz. B. R. Nor for this, Thou art a Varlet, and haſt ſuppreſſed thy brothers will to deceive others of Legacies, Trin. 17 Jac. B. R. Godfreys Caſe. Nor for this, This is the writing of I. S. he hath forged this Warrant; Hob. Rep. pl. 3. For theſe words in theſe Caſes are too general and incertain to bear an Action. So if one ſay to another, Whereas I. S. had made and ſealed to him a Bill for 10*l. thou didſt ſhew me the Bill releaſed, and after ſealed, thou didſt forge that ſeal*; no Action will lie for this, Hob. Rep. pl. 48. Nor for this, Thou haſt made the Great Seal. Nor for this, Thou haſt made falſe Records, and doeſt verifie them. Adjudged.

It is very much doubted whether the Action will lie, or not lie, in all the Caſes, or for any of the words following; Thou art a common Drunkard, a common Rioter. And for this it is yet ſaid, it hath been ruled, it will lie, M. 8 Car. B. R. Stones Caſe. Or,

Thou

Thou art a common Night-walker, or thou art a common Eves-dropper, or thou art a common Barretor, or a common Hedg-breaker; for, for these a man may be bound to the good behavior.

But most men incline that these words are not actionable, Thou art a branded Rogue, M. 19 Jac. B R Harrisons Case. And yet the better opinion was, that it will not lie for this, Thou hast bought Titles, Hares Case. Thou hast hired one to rob me; or thou art a setter of thieves to rob me; or, thou keepest men with intent to rob me; or, thou keepest men to rob me, Hil. 13 Jac. B R. But if I be robbed, these are dangerous words. But to say, Thou keepest men which do rob me, or which have robbed me, contrà.

And yet it is held, that for most of these words in this last rank, if they be spoken in reference to mens Trades, &c. or if any special loss can be averred to come to the party by the speaking of them, that then they may be actionable. Co. 4. 15, 17, 20 M. 19 Jac. B.R. Harrisons Case.

It is held somwhat clearly, it will lie for this, If one say to a Lord of a Mannor, Thou art a couzening knave, and keepest couzening Courts to couzen men of their Fines, 4 Jac. B. R. Which tend to a mans disgrace and reproach only.

It is held somewhat clearly, it will not lie for these words, and in these Cases following: Thou art a Varlet; or, thou art a Rogue; or, thou art a Rascal; or, thou art of evil name; or, thou art a Villain; or, thou art a Slanderer; or, thou art a Cheater; or, thou art a cheating Knave; or, thou art a Pillory-Knave; or, thou art a cozening Knave, a Vermine of the earth, a false brother, 25 Eliz. B.R. Or, thou art a false fellow; or, thou art a Lyar; or, thou art a Conspirator; or, thou art a Railer; or, thou art a sower of discord; or, thou art a Malefactor; or, thou art a Miscreant; or, thou art a Drunken fellow; or, thou art a Bastard; or, thou art an Heretick; or, thou art a Schismatick; or, thou art an Hypocrite of the Church; or, thou didst famish thy last wife with thy wretchedness; or, thou art an Extortioner. It will not lie for saying, Thou art a cozening Knave, and hast cozened me of a hundred pounds, and I will make thee stand on the Pillory for it, Adjudg. 30 Eliz. B.R. Nor for this, (unless it be of a Goldsmith) I will prove thee a Cozener, for selling me a Saphir for a Diamond, Brownl. 2 part. 100. Nor for this, Thou getteſt thy living by cozening, or, thou hast cozened I.S. in buying Saddles for him, Pasch. 27 Car. B.R. Nor for this, Thou hast cozened me and all my kindred, 18 Eliz. B.R. Nor for this, Thou art a false Knave, and hast cozened me and my two kinsmen, Adjudg. 26 Eliz. B.R. Nor for this, Thou hast cozened all the Town of Coventry, Adjudged. So it lieth not for saying, He is a very bad fellow, for he made I. S. drunken in the night, and cozened him of a thousand marks, Goldsb. 125. pl. 12. It lieth not for saying of any man, He is a Papist, and hath a Pardon from the Pope, and can help you to such a one, if he will. Or thus, He is an arrant Papist, and, it were well if all such were hanged for they would have the Crown from the Kings head, if they durst, Brownl. 2 part, 166. To say, a man is a Recusant, or received a Recusant-Priest, or hath committed a Riot, or the like words, that, if true, would bring one in question and danger upon a penal Law; with Averment of special damage by them, will bear Action, otherwise not. See March. f. 114, 115. and Brownl. 1 par. 9, 11, 12. It will not lie for saying, Thou art a Papist, and hadst a Pardon from the Pope, Brownl. 2 par. 166. It will not lie for saying, Thou art a Hornsby, and a Cuckoldly knave, Trin. 9 Jac. Palmers Case. Nor for this, Thou hast cozened the Earl of Hartford of as much as thou art worth, Trin. 9 Jac B.R. Tucks Case, Curia.

It is very doubtful whether it will, or will not lie in these following Cases; Thou didst hold up thy hand at the Bar, or thou hast deserved hanging, M. 4 Jac. B.R. It is in my power to hang thee, 7 Jac. B.R. Thou didst deserve hanging, Trin. 16 Car. B.R. Or, Thou deservedst the pillory, or hast deserved to have thine ears nailed to the pillory, Pasch. 37 Eliz. B.R.

To me there seems great reason, that these five last should bear an Action; for they necessarily imply the doing of such a thing as hath deserved it: yet the current Opinion and Cases go the other way.

And yet it is held for many, if not for any of these words, if any special loss can be averred to come to the Plaintiff by them, that he may have this Action for the speaking of them; also many of these words having reference to a man in his Office or Trade, are actionable, *Co.*4. 15, 17, 20. M. 19 Jac. B.R. Harrisons Case.

Of an Averment in this Action, and where and what Averment is necessary, and what other thing must be shewed in the Declaration to maintain the Action, or not.

It matters not whether the Plaintiff set forth all the circumstantial words as they were spoken, so as he set forth the very words truly. As if he set forth the talk be, Will you be present at such a Trial between A. and B. and in truth it was between R. and B. (or the like) and he say, I'll warrant you B. dare not be there, for he is broken. Hil. 17 Jac. B.R. Johnsons Case.

An Action will lie for these words, I will justifie that Barns is accessary to the Burglary for which C. D. was hanged, without averring that he was hanged for such a Burglary, Trin 9 Jac. B.R. Adjudg. Barns and Hunts Case.

If an Action be brought for saying words, as, Thou hast strained my Mare, art meansworn, or the like, there must be an Averment that the words have such a meaning in that Country; but this is confidently denied by others. See in March. f. 18. The safe way is to aver it.

Sect. 14. If an Action be brought for saying, A man hath killed I. S. and he sue for this slander, it need not be averred, that the party said to be killed is dead, Adjudg. *B.R. Co.*4. 16. Hob. Rep. p. 11. And this seems to me clear Law, yet hath been much opposed, March. Rep. 109. pl 187.

If the slander be upon a Report, it must be averred that there was no such Report, Hil. 4 Jac. B.R. Lady Morrisons Case; and Pasch. 42 Eliz. Co. B. Morleys Case, adjudged.

If an Action be brought for saying, Thou wast in the gaol at S. for robbing, &c. he needs not aver that he was not in gaol, but this is the best pleading. Sprat and Hayns Case. To call one Bankrupt, if one bring Action, he must aver he is a Tradesman.

By the better opinion, this Action will lie for a slander in another tongue, or by a strange word, without averment of the meaning of the words, Hob. Rep. pl. 165, 268. March. f. 18. But an Averment of special damage is not necessary, in case where the words touch or concern a mans life, liberty, or member, or any corporal punishment, or which scandal a man in his Office or Trade, or which charge him with any great infectious disease, by reason of which he must be separate from humane society. But if they be in scandal of a mans Title, or in other cases, there must be an allegation of particular damage; yet the best way in all these Cases is to alleage some special damage, if the Case will bear it.

If any words be spoken (in themselves not actionable) of a young woman or man, charging them with Incontinencie or otherwise, by which they lose their match; or of any man, by which he loseth an office, service, or preferment he stands for; his loss of the match, or office, &c. must be specially averred, or else it is not good, Pasc. 15 Car. B.R. Axes Case, Sandersons Case, Trin. 17 Car. Co. B.

So if any words of passion only, not actionable, be spoken; as to say, A man is forsworn, he is a Rogue, Villain, or the like; if any Action be brought upon them, it must be maintained by a special Averment of loss, *Co.*4. 15.

There are other words which concern matter meerly spiritual, and determinable in the Ecclesiastical Court only; as for calling a man a Bastard, a Heretick, a Schismatick, an Advouterer, a Fornicator; for calling of a woman a Whore, or charging her with any particular act of Incontinencie, or the like. Yet in these Cases, with an Averment of a particular damage, an Action will lie at the Common-Law, as it is adjudged in Anne Davis Case, *Co.*4. 17. a. & f. 20. a. 27 H. 8. 14. Regist. f. 54.

By Popham Chief Justice, If one say of a woman that is an Inholder, That she hath a great infectious disease, by which she loses her Guests, an Action will lie. This must be taken with an Averment of that particular damage; otherwise an Action will not lie, unless the disease be such for which she ought to separate herself, or to be separated by the Law from common society, *Co.*4. 17.

Axe and Moods Case cited before; The Plaintiff being a Dyer brought an Action for these words, Thou art not worth a groat; Adjudged that the words were not actionable, because that many a man in his beginning is not worth a groat, and yet hath good credit with the world, Pasch. 15. Car. B.R. But in this Case it was agreed, that if the Plaintiff had averred specially that he was thereby damnified, and had lost his credit, credit, ſo that none would truſt him, with ſuch an averment the Action would have layen.

The brother of the Defendant ſpake theſe words to the Plaintiff, Thou thief, thou Gaol-whelp, thou haſt ſtollen a peece of ſilver from my maſter: and hereupon the Defendant ſpake theſe words, That which my brother ſpake is true, I will juſtifie it. And in this caſe it was agreed, that Action will not lie for them, without averment that he had notice of his brothers words. Brownl. 2 par. 100.

In the Caſe of the Foreman of a Shoomakers ſhop, cited before, for theſe words, It is no matter who hath him, for he will cut him out of doors; the Plaintiff averred, that the common acceptation of theſe words inter Calcearios is, that he will begger his Maſter and make him run away, and ſhewed a ſpecial damage by the ſpeaking theſe words, and it was adjudged that the Action would lie, which I conceive was only for the particular damage: For to ſay of a Servant, That he doth cheat, cozen, or defraud his Maſter, or that he will beggar his Maſter, or the like, will not bear an Action without an averment of a particular damage. M. 15 Car. B.R.

And in this caſe it was ſaid by the Court, that for ſome words an Action will lie without an averment of any particular damage, as for calling of a man Thief, Traitor, and the like: And ſome words will not bear an Action without an averment of a particular damage; as if a man ſhall ſay of another, That he kept his wife baſely, and ſtarved her, theſe words of themſelves will not bear an action; but if the party of whom they were ſpoken were to be married to another, and by theſe words is hindred, in ſuch caſe, with an averment of the particular damage, an action will lie.

So likewiſe in the Caſe of Dicks and Fenne, which I cited before, where one ſaid of the Plaintiff, being a Brewer, That he would give a peck of mault to his Mare and lead her to the water to drink, and ſhe ſhould piſs as good Beer as the Plaintiff brewed: It was reſolved that the words themſelves were not actionable, becauſe of the impoſſibility of them; but it was agreed by the Court, that if there had been a ſpecial damage alleaged, as loſs of cuſtom, or the like, the action would have layen, M. 15 Car. B. R.

Haws Caſe cited likewiſe before; one ſaid of him, that he had ſpoken againſt the Book of Common-Prayer, and ſaid, That it was not fit to be read in the Church; for which he brought his action, and ſhewed how that by reaſon of the ſpeaking of theſe words by the Defendant, he was cited into the Eccleſiaſtical Court, and had paid and expended ſeveral ſums, &c. Adjudged that the words themſelves were not actionable, becauſe if they had been true, they charge him only with an offence againſt a penal Law, which doth not inflict corporal puniſhment, but for non-payment of penalty, M. 17 Car. B.R. But it was reſolved, that for the particular damage the action would lie. See Brownl. 1 par. 10. 13. 2 par. 100. 129.

That in all Caſes for words, where there is any thing that is the cauſe or ground of the Action, or tends neceſſarily to the maintenance of it, in ſuch Caſe the Action will not lie, without that thing be expreſly averred to be, or not to be, as the Caſe requireth, Haſlewood and Garrets Caſe cited before; Whoſoever is he that is falſeſt Thief, and ſtrongeſt in the County of Salop, whatſoever he hath ſtollen, or whatſoever he hath done, Thomas Haſlewood is falſer then he: Reſolved that the words were actionable, with an averment that there were Felons within the County of Salop; but fault of ſuch averment, the Judgment given in the Common-Pleas was reverſed in this Court. Paſch. Jac. B.R.

Note Reader, if there were no Felons in that County, (which will rather be intended, if it be not averred that there were ſome) then the ſpeaking of the words could be no ſlander to the Plaintiff, and ſo no action can lie. Hob. Rep. 39. Blands Caſe cited before: He brought an action againſt A. B. for ſaying, That he was indicted for Felony at a Seſſions holden, &c. and did not aver that he was not indicted; and after a Verdict for the Plaintiff, Judgment was ſtayed, becauſe there was no averment, ut ſupra. Note, if he were indicted, which he doth tacitely admit, yet no cauſe of Action, for the words in themſelves are not actionable, Hob. pl. 2 9.

Johnſon againſt Dyer; the Defendant having communicated with the Father of the Plaintiff, ſaid to him, I will take my oath that your ſon ſtole my Hens; and the Plaintiff did not aver that he was his Son, or that he had but one Son, and therefore adjudged, that the Action would not lie in this Case, if he were not his son, then no cause of action, M. 15 Car. B.R.

Plaintiff

Sect. 15. One Clark said that he had a son in Nottinghamshire who had his Chest picked and one hundred pounds taken out of it, in one Locksmiths house, and I thank God I have found the thief who it is, it is one that dwelleth in the next house, called Robert Kingston. Upon which, Kingston brought an action, and had a verdict, and it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, because that he did not aver that he dwelt in the next house, Pasche 7 Jac. B. R. Crook. One said that Pritchards man robbed him, who brought an action, and did not aver that he was Pritchards man, and therefore it was held that the action would not lie, and the Justices in this case would not give Judgment.

Non constat in this Case, that the Plaintiff was the party of whom the words were spoken; for there might be another of the same name dwelling elswhere; and therefore he ought to aver that he dwelt in the next house, that he may be certainly intended to be the same person of whom the words were spoken. See Brownl. 7. part. 13. 2. part. 100.

What shall be said a good bar or plea in this Action.

The Defendant may plead not guilty; or if the Plaintiff sue upon some of the words, when all together, are not actionable, the Defendant must set them forth at large, (Co. 4. 13. 19.) as he spake them, and traverse, or justifie, or plead not guilty to the rest of the words, as the Case is. Co. New Book of Entries, f. 24. a. 25. a. 26. Or, if the words be true, and he be able to prove it, he may justifie the speaking of them; as if I say J. S. was perjured, I may shew he was so in the Star-chamber; or he is a thief, I may shew he was attainted of Petit Larceny.

Justification. It is not a good Justification for calling one Murderer, to say there was a murther done, and the Plaintiff was indicted for it, or that the common fame was he did it. Dyer 236. Broo. 127. New Book of Entries, 26, 27. Nor can one justifie for charging one with a Felony after he hath a pardon, Hob. Rep. pl. 106. 71. To say a man was indicted for Felony at S. it may be justified, if it be true, Hob. Rep. pl. 289. but the words are not actionable. So in a charge of Perjury, it is not a good justification to say, he swore such a thing in a Court falsly, unless he adde this, knowing it to be false. M. 38, 39 Eliz. B. R. Willis Case. See Brownl. 1. part. 10. 11. 14. 13. 2. part. 49. 272.

If one call a man Thief, he may justifie it, for that he stole a sheep, Hob. Rep. f. 258. 27 H. 8. 22. If J. S. say to another, J. S. is a Thief to J. S. and to me, and in an Action brought by him, I justifie for a Felony done to me onely, this is not sufficient, for the charge is of a double Felony, and the justification to a single Felony, M. 21 Jac. B.R. See Brownl. 1. part. 2. 5. 7. 13. 2. part. 100.

Where the Verdict of the Jury will maintain the Declaration and the Action, or not.

That where the words that are found, do not agree with the Declaration in the substantial and essential form, that in such case they do not warrant the Declaration: But if they do agree in the substantial and essential form, though they agree not in every word, yet they do well warrant the Declaration, and by consequence maintain the Action.

Sydenham against Man, for these words, If Sir John Sydenham might have his will, he would kill all the true Subjects in England, and the King too; and he is a maintainer of Papistry, and Rebellious persons. The Defendant pleaded other words, and traversed the speaking of the words Modo & forma, &c. The Jury found that he spoke these words, (viz.) I think in my Conscience that if Sir John Sydenham might have his will, he would kill, &c. and finde all the subsequent words before alledged. In this Case, it was resolved against the Defendant, Hob. Rep. pl. 252. pl. 213. But this Case notwithstanding is doubted by some.

Fenner against Mutton, in an Action upon the Case for words, which were thus, Nicholas Fenner procured eight or ten of his neighbors to perjure themselves; the Defendant pleaded not guilty; and the Jury finde that the Defendant said, That Nicholas Fenner had caused eight or ten of his neighbors to perjure themselves, M. 4 Jac. B.R. This was doubted by Tanfield Justice, and by him held not a sufficient Verdict to maintain the words.

Chipsam

Chipſam againſt Jeek for theſe words; Chipſam is a Thief, for he hath ſtollen a Lamb from A. and Geeſe from B and killed them in my ground. Iſſue was joined whether the Defendant ſpake the words modo & forma, &c. the Jury find that the Defendant ſaid, That the Plaintiff was a Thief, for he hath ſtollen a Lamb from A. and killed it in my ground; but they find he ſpake nothing of the Geeſe: yet it was reſolved, that the finding of the Jury did well warrant the Declaration of the Plaintiff. Hil. 3 Jac. B. R.

Norman and Symons Caſe, the Plaintiff brought an Action for words, and declared that they were ſpoken falſo & malitioſe; the Jury find the words ſpoken falſo & injurioſe, and it was adjudged that the Action would not lie, becauſe the finding of the Jury doth not warrant the Declaration in the ſubſtantial form of it. Trin. 7 Car. B. R.

Burgis brought an Action for theſe words, Burgis is a maintainer of Thieves, and a ſtrong Thief himſelf: Iſſue was joined whether the Defendant ſpake the words modo & forma, and the Jury found all the words except the word [ſtrong] and in this Caſe the Plaintiff had Judgment, 6 E. 6. *Dyer f.*75. 21. Here we may obſerve, that though every word alleaged in the Declaration be not found, yet the eſſential and ſubſtantial form of the words being found, that is ſufficient to maintain the Declaration. This, I ſay, you may obſerve, not only by this Caſe, but the Caſes alſo before put.

Barber brought an Action againſt Hawley for theſe words, John Barber and his children be falſe Thieves, men cannot have their Cattel going upon the Common, but they will kill them and eat them, &c. Iſſue was joined whether the Defendant ſpake the words modo & forma, and the Jury found that he ſpake theſe words, viz. Men cannot have their Cattel going upon the Common, but John Barber and his children will kill them with Barbers dogs; in this Caſe it was adjudged for the Defendant.

The Action is brought for ſaying, I know him to be a Thief; and the Defendant pleaded other words abſque hoc, and the Jury find he ſay, I think him to be a Thief; this is not ſufficient. See *Hob. Rep. pl.*213.

If one ſay to another of a woman paſſing by, She is a Witch, and hath bewitched my child [innuendo the Plaintiff] and Verdict is given for the Plaintiff, now it is out of queſtion. Paſch. 18 Jac. B R. Roberts Caſe.

If the Declaration ſay, that the Defendant ſpake of the Plaintiff theſe words, Eyres [innuendo the Plaintiff] is a Thief, and Verdict be given hereupon for the Plaintiff, this is good and made certain. Eyres Caſe, adjudged M. 7 Jac. B. R.

If one bring this Action for divers words, whereof ſome are, and ſome are not actionable, and the Jury aſſeſs damages for all together, this is Error and cauſe to arreſt the Judgment. But if it appear they do diſtinguiſh them, then it is well, 25 Eliz. B. R. Out of all this take notice, it is good policie, when one lays his Action for words, to ſuppoſe the Action for divers ſlanders, as for words ſpoken at ſeveral times and ſeveral ways; that in one of the Charges the Plaintiff may be ſure to hit the very words, or the ſubſtance thereof. Sect. 16.

Of an Action of the Caſe upon an Aſſumpſit.

AN Aſſumpſit is nothing but a voluntary promiſe made by word of mouth only, by which a man doth aſſume or take upon him to do or pay any thing to another. New Terms of the Law. Aſſumpſit, what it is.

If it be in Writing and by a Deed, it is of another conſideration; we meddle not with this. But an Aſſumpſit ſeemeth to differ from an Agreement, but as the Genus and Species: For an Aſſumpſit is but a ſpecial kind of agreement, and every Executory Contract hath an Aſſumpſit in it, Co. 4. 44.

There are two conſiderable parts of it; the Conſideration of the Aſſumpſit, and the Aſſumpſit or Promiſe it ſelf.

This Action of the Caſe upon an Aſſumpſit (as the Contract) is either expreſs, as when one for good cauſe doth promiſe that himſelf or ſome other ſhall pay money, make a Houſe, ſeal a Bond, make a Leaſe, or the like: Or implied, and ſupplied by the

the Law, as in every Executory contract there is an Assumpsit implied. Co. 5. 19. 4. 94. 49. Plow. 308.

They that are expreſs, are alſo abſolute or conditional: And theſe are alſo ſome of them, ſuch as have a conſideration called Quid pro quo in them; and ſome of them are without conſideration called a bare or naked promiſe, which is where a man bargaineth or ſelleth his lands or goods, or promiſeth to give one money or a horſe to build a houſe, or do any thing by a day, and there is no recompence appointed to him for the doing thereof; this is void, and no Action lieth for the not doing thereof; for the rule is, Ex nudo pacto non oritur actio. Alſo theſe Aſſumpſits are either Real, or Perſonal.

Every Promiſe muſt have a Conſideration; and that muſt be of ſome benefit to him that makes it, or diſadvantage to him to whom it is made. March. 202. pl. 243.

What ſhall be ſaid a good implied Aſſumpſit, or Aſſumpſit in Law, on which an Action will lie, or not.

If I intreat one to be bound for me, there is in this an implicite Aſſumpſit that I ſhall ſave him harmleſs; and upon this if he be moleſted, he may have this Action. 2 Car. per Juſt. Richardſon at Northampton-Aſſizes; for the Aſſumpſit is implied.

If any goods beſides money be delivered to one to deliver over to another, or to the uſe of another, or to be imployed to any other purpoſe, or on condition that if he do ſuch a thing, he ſhall keep them; in all theſe and ſuch like caſes, ſome think there is an Aſſumpſit implied, upon which this Action will lie in caſe of breach of the truſt. Dyer 21, 22, &c.

If I bid one do work for me, and do not promiſe any thing, the Law makes it, and he muſt ſay it was worth ſo much, and that which he deſerves is recoverable in this Action. Trin. 8 Car.

Every Executory Contract doth imply an Aſſumpſit: So every Debt that is not upon a Specialty (or for Rent upon a Leaſe) but which may be turned into Damage, as upon an Account, or upon a Buying or an Agreement, hath an implied Promiſe, and the Plaintiff may ſay that the Defendant did promiſe to pay it, and make the Debt the Conſideration. See divers Caſes infra.

An Executor cannot be charged in account for any Receit or Occupation by the deceaſed, nor in debt upon the Contract of the deceaſed; but an action of the Caſe it is thought will lie in the firſt, and it is clear will lie in the laſt Caſe, upon the implicite Contract. Co. 4. 8. 94. 133. As if one receive my money to account, and he and I caſt it up and agree in certain what is due, and then he die; in this caſe it ſeems I may have this Action againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator, albeit I cannot have an Account. Hil. 13 Jac. per Ch. Juſtice.

A bare ſubmiſſion to an Award without any expreſs promiſe, is ſufficient to yield this Action upon the Aſſumpſit in Law. Adjudged. Neals Caſe, M. 37, 38 Eliz. B.R. and in Trin. 18 Jac. B.R. Brooms Caſe. And ſo in divers other Caſes.

What ſhall be ſaid a good expreſs Aſſumpſit, on which this Action will lie, or not. For the manner.

As touching this point, the manner and the matter is conſiderable. As to the manner, it matters not in what form of words the Aſſumpſit is made, ſo the ſenſe be clear; and therefore if one promiſe me twenty pounds when I have done a work, or to do a work, or if I do a work, or ſo as I do a work, all theſe are good Aſſumpſits, Plow. 5. 305. So if one promiſe me twenty pounds, if I marry his daughter, or with the marriage of his daughter, theſe are good, Plow. 305. Or if you will ſatisfie me, I will do ſuch a work.

Sect. 17. Matter. Aſſumpſit imperfect.

As to the matter, it is conſiderable together, or apart. Together; and as to this, this muſt be known. 1. That the whole agreement muſt be conſummate. If A. and B. agree, that A. ſhall lend B. twenty pounds for a time, and for this that B. ſhall morgage to A. ſuch Land upon requeſt; and after A. upon requeſt of B. deliver wares to C. for part of this twenty pounds, and hereupon B. doth promiſe to accept it for part of the mony, or to redeliver it to A upon requeſt, this Contract is perfect and good to give action, Old book of Entries, f. 4. So if A. owe B. one hundred pounds, and C. being a Clothworker to A. having clothes of his in his houſe, and they three agree that B. ſhall have theſe clothes for his money, and that C. ſhall deliver them, this is good, and sufficient. Adjudged. So one possessed of a Field of Corn, agreeth with another, that he shall have all the Corn there for Twenty pounds, to be paid him at Michaelmas next, Co. 4. 92. But if the agreement be onely in inchoation and not perfect, no action will lie upon it. And therefore if two speak together about an agreement, and they in the midst of their discourse break off, and say they will talk further of it to morrow, no Action can be brought upon any of the conference of this day. See Contract, chap. 15. sect. 4.

If two be in Speech about marriage between their Children, and one say to the other, I intend to give my daughter One hundred pounds to him that shall marry her with my consent, this is imperfect. 2. It must be sensible and certain.

If an agreement be between me and another, that for Ten pounds paid he shall give me a Horse, or a Watch such a day; this is good and certain enough, Fitz. Debt. 89 So if the agreement be that he for good cause shall make good such a house, this is good, and shall be taken for repair of it, M. 2 Jac. B. R. So if the agreement be about a horse for Twenty shillings in hand, and Ten pounds more to be paid at the death or marriage of the buyer, for which he shall become bound with sufficient surety by their writing obligatory, that for this, the seller will deliver the horse upon request; this is certain enough and good, Hob. Rep. pl. 79. But if the agreement be such as cannot be made certain and sensible, it is void. And therefore if the agreement be, to save harmless, and not for what, or against whom, this is void. So if it be agreed between A. and B. that A. shall keep B. without damage against J. S. for ten pounds, in which the Obligee is bound to the Obligor; or, if the Assumpsit be, that A. shall pay to B. his part of the sum of moneys that shall be levied for the trying of the customs of M. These are all insensible and void, on which no Action will lie. See Co. 10. 102. 76. Dyer 356. 3. It must agree. If one in consideration that I have given and delivered to him one horse, and have promised unto him, that upon twenty pounds paid to me, I will deliver him such an Indenture, and he assume to pay me this twenty pound at Michaelmas; this is not repugnant, but good to give Action for the Twenty pound at Michaelmas, if not paid, Co. 5. 37. But if the agreement be repugnant and contrary to it self, it is void. If it be agreed between A. and B. that A. shall do such a work, and B. shall give so much for it, but A. shall not sue for the money: this is void, and will not binde on either side before the work be done. But after the work is done, it may perhaps bear an Action, Quere, 7 H. 6. 44. 21 H. 7. 24. 3.

Assumpsit insensible and incertain.

In the matter considerable apart, there are three things to be considered. 1. The persons to the Assumpsit, and for or against whom this action doth lie. 2. The cause or consideration of it. 3. The promise it self.

As touching the persons to the Assumpsit, these things are to be known. 1. The persons that do promise, must be able in Law to Contract; otherwise the promise will not binde; and therefore regularly the Assumpsits of Infants, Women that have Husbands, and such like, do not binde; yet generally promises made to them are good. But see how and more of this point in Contract before. 2. A promise to the Wife is all one as if it were to the Husband; and therefore, if one say to my Wife, that if I will let A. out of prison, being there in execution for a debt owing to me, that if the prisoner pay it not to me by such a day, he will pay it; in this Case I alone without my Wife may sue him, 27 H. 8. 24. 3. If a promise be made to my Servant to my use, I may have an Action upon it, and suppose it to be made to my self, M. 36, 37 Eliz. B. R. Jordans Case. But of this, and of Contracts made by, or with Servants, for their Masters, enough already hath been spoken. But otherwise it is of Contracts made with a Stranger to my use; and therefore if there be Mother, Son, or Daughter, and the Mother having a Joynture on her Sons Land, the Son in consideration that his Mother doth surrender, doth assume with her to pay the Daughter One hundred pounds at a day; in this Case the Daughter (at least in a Court of Law) cannot sue for this Hundred pound, but the Mother must sue for it. And yet it is thought the Daughter may sue in a Court of Equity for it, Adjudged. Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. If one in consideration that I have paid him Ten pounds, assume to a stranger to assure me an Acre of Land, no Action will lie for me at Common Law upon this. But in a Court of Equity, happily I may have relief, Jolleys Case.

Executor. Pasche, 9 Jac. B. R. by three Judges. 4. This Action lieth for an Executor or Administrator, upon a promise to the deceased. And if a man promise to pay money, or to pay that which is in the nature of a debt, or where the ground is a true debt, and he die before it be done, the Executor or Administrator shall be charged with it. Hob. Rep. pl. 278. Co. 9. 68. Plow. 182. But otherwise it is when it is to do some Collateral thing, as to build a house, or the like; or when it is to pay money in consideration of some Collateral thing, as in consideration of the enlargement of a man out of prison, or the like. And upon this difference it hath been oft adjudged, Trin. 3 Jac. B. R. yet see Co. 10. 77. That for the Assumpsit of the Testator to pay a debt or perform a duty, an Action of the Case lieth against the Executors, New Book of Entries, f. 1, 2.

Assumpsit by two or more to a person incertain. 5. If an Assumpsit be made by two or more, they must be sued together, and one of them cannot be sued alone, as long as the rest live. But if one of them die, the rest may be sued alone, M. 7 Jac. B. R. Curia.

If another and I be speaking about marriage between his Daughter and my Son, and in conference I use these words, That I shall give him One hundred pounds that shall marry my Daughter with my consent: No Action will lie upon this, though he do after marry my Daughter with my consent, Pasche, 3 Jac. B. R. Goldsmith ver. Weston.

In respect of the cause or consideration. To make the cause or consideration of an Assumpsit good, it must have all these qualities. 1. It must be valuable, that is, it must import some gain to him that makes the promise, or (at the least) some loss to him to whom it is made, or both. But the proportion of the value is not considerable; for a peny, or pint of Wine, will as much engage a promise of One hundred pound, as more. Hob. Rep. pl. 6, 7. Trin. 7 Jac. B. R. Friends Case. Co. 10. 102; 76. But in that Case the Jury will probably give damage accordingly, as the cause is. And the Law is all one in this, when the Contract is in a writing, or a writing sealed and not delivered: But if it be in a writing sealed and delivered as a Bond or Bill, there the consideration is not at all material. Fitz. Debt. 126. Broo. Action of the Case, 40. But if there be two parts of the consideration, and one part is valuable, and the other not, it is good. But in a Non-Assumpsit both parts must be proved, or the Action will fail, M. 4 Jac. B. R. Lees Case; but care must be had in giving of damages. See Brownl. 2 part. 274.

Sid. 18. If A. delivered to B. the eighth of May, One hundred French Crowns, and delivered also as many the ninth of May, and B. in consideration thereof did then and there assume to deliver six shillings in silver for every Crown upon a Non-Assumpsit, verdict for the Plaintiff, and entire damages, the Judgment was reversed; for the Assumpsit goeth onely to that which was last delivered. M. 42, 43 Eliz. Pilsworth and Seals Case.

2. The consideration must be lawful; for if the consideration moving the promise, be either Malum in se, or, malum prohibitum, it is void. And yet if part of the promise be lawful, and part unlawful, there it may be good. Dyer 359. Co. 10. 102.

3. If the consideration be Executory, there it must be duly performed, 9 H. 7. 13. otherwise the action will not lie. And therefore if one promise to me, so I will help him to gather his Tithe-Hay and Corn, he will pay me Ten pounds: If I help him to gather his Hay onely, I cannot recover the Ten pounds, M. 7 Jac. B R. 8 H. 7. 13. See Brownl. 1. part. 8. 2. part. 137, 138, 279.

All these things are valuable and good considerations, money paid, or any valuable thing done, paid, or delivered, to suffer a Tenant at will to hold the Land longer, M. 9 Jac. B. R. Coventries Case. Loan of money, New Book of Entries, f. 1, 2. To marry ones childe or friend, New Book of Entries, f. 2. To Ear Land, Solicite Suits, to deliver one in prison on an Execution for debt, out of prison; to forbear a Suit for a certain time, to make, or give up, or release an estate or interest into Land, Plow. 30. Kelw. 69. 77. To stand to an Award to be made, not to trouble a man upon a Judgment I have against him, Hoseboots Case; to become bound as a surety with another, M. 9 Jac. B. R. to keep goods safe committed to him, Old Book of Entries, f. 9. To marry my Daughter or Kinswoman, or (as it seems) any other at the request of him that makes the promise. To make an Obligation; and finally, any thing which which for the matter of it may be good in a Promiſe, may be good in a Conſideration. See for theſe things more, Brownl. 1 par. 41. 2 par. 274, 279.

In conſideration that a ſtranger ſhall ſurrender a Leaſe to me at the requeſt of the Plaintiff, and that the Plaintiff ſhall cancel an Indenture, is a good conſideration, if it be done to produce an Action, Paſch. 9 Jac. B.R. Collins Caſe.

If A. be indebted to me, and for payment thereof deliver me goods, and C. in conſideration that I will deliver him the goods, doth promiſe to pay me the money; this is a good promiſe. Brownl. 1 part, 3.

Tenant at will of Land ſowed ſurrendreth to him in Reverſion, and for this he promiſeth; it ſeems this is no good conſideration: but if he be a Tenant for any Term of years, it is otherwiſe. Brownl. 1 par. 6.

If A. owe to B. fourſcore pounds, and A. in conſideration that I will be bound with him for the money to B. promiſe to enter into a Bond of one hundred pounds to me, and I become bound with him, this is a good conſideration to give an action upon his breach of promiſe. Adjudg. M. 9 Jac. B.R. Knevats Caſe. So alſo a promiſe to do any ſuch thing, may be a good conſideration of another promiſe; for one promiſe may be a good conſideration of another promiſe, if they be made together at one time, for otherwiſe they are both void. Hob. Rep. 16. 116. M. 2 Jac. Co. B. Somes Caſe, and M. 4 Jac. B.R. Cadels Caſe. Brownl. 1 par. 10.

If one for forty ſhillings paid, aſſume to deliver me forty quarters of corn at ſuch a time and place for ten pounds to be then paid, this is good; and if I bring the money at the time and place, I may ſue for the corn; if he bring the corn, he may ſue for the money. Plow. 182. Coo. 4. 93. Goods, or a promiſe of goods may be a good conſideration for goods, or a promiſe for goods, as well as money. Fitz. Debt. 68. But if there be none of this in the Caſe, it is but Nudum pactum ex quo non oritur actio. One doth promiſe me in conſideration that I will not enter a Caveat againſt the Probate of the Will of I. S. that he will pay me ten pounds, this is a good conſideration, whether I have any cauſe to do ſo or not. Adjudged in the Exchequer-Chamber.

If A. and B. be bound in a Bond jointly and ſeverally to pay money, and in truth A. is principal, and A. ſaith to B. Pay the money to the Obligee, and I will repay you; this is a good promiſe, and if B. do pay it, he may recover it again by this action. Adjudg. 9 Car. B R.

If I have a Judgment againſt a man for twenty pounds, and I promiſe him that if he will pay me the money, I will give him five pounds, this is a good conſideration to bind the promiſe; for it will coſt me charge and pains to recover it. Trin. 38. Eliz. Dixon verſus Adams. So if one take away my goods wrongfully, and I promiſe him, ſo he will let me have mine own goods, to give him ten pounds. Adjudg. Pool & Clipſons Caſe, temp. Car. R.

If one ſay to me, that if I will depoſe before the Maior of A the truth of that which I do affirm, he will pay me twenty pounds, this is good; and if I do voluntarily depoſe it before the Maior, I may recover the money by this action. Hil. 38 El. Co. B.

If A. owe to B. twenty pounds, and C. ſay to A. Pay him his twenty pounds, and I will pay it to you again; this is a good conſideration to make good the promiſe. Adjudg. M. 7 Car. B.R.

If one have a Judgment againſt me for one hundred pounds, and he promiſe me, ſo I will pay him fifty pounds, he will acknowledg ſatisfaction or releaſe the execution of the hundred pounds by a day; this is a good conſideration to give an Action, if it be not done. Adjudg. Cook & Harvies Caſe, and M. 38 Eliz. Co. B. Reynolds & Pynhams Caſe.

If one have goods delivered to him in pawn, and another deſire him to deliver the goods pawned to him, and he will pay him the debt for which they were pawned, this is a good conſideration: and the certainty of the goods need not be ſhewed in the count, as in caſe where goods are demanded or damage for them. Brownl. 2 part, 274. So a conſideration to go to Weſtminſter, to cure a poor man, or marry a poor woman, are good conſiderations.

If I be bound in a Bond of 20*l.* to pay 10*l.* by a day, and fail at the day, and after the Obligee bid me pay twelve pounds to I. S. and he will deliver me up the Bond by a day, this is good to give an Action if he do not deliver it. Harveys Caſe, 4 Jac.

If one that hath my Goods, promiſe me, ſo that I will let him have them for a moneth, that he will deliver them to me; this is a good conſideration to uphold an Action againſt him, if he do not deliver them, Paſche, 37 Eliz. Co. B.R. May verſ. Alvers.

Theſe alſo are good conſiderations, That upon account between them, the Defendant was found ſo much in debt to the Plaintiff, Hob. Rep. pl. 117. So that he was in debt to him, and in conſideration of forbearance promiſed to pay it, Co. 10. 77.

The Plaintiff declared, That the Defendant in an Account between them, was found in arrerages; and in conſideration that the Plaintiff would defer the day of the paiment of his debt, for a little time, he did aſſume to pay it; it was judged good, Goldsb. 48. pl. 6.

An Action was brought by Richard Body againſt A. and declared, That whereas K. Rawly was indebted to Body, and the ſaid A. indebted to R. in Fifty pound, in conſideration that the ſaid K. R. allocavit eidem A. Fourteen pound, & promiſit ei ad exonerandum eundem A, Fourteen pound, parcel. predict. Fifty pound; the Defendant did aſſume to pay the Fourteen pound. It was adjudged a good conſideration, Goldsb. 49. pl. 8.

If the Executor or Adminiſtrator of one that did ow me money, in conſideration thereof, and that he hath aſſets in his hands, aſſume to pay me ſuch a day; this is a good conſideration to make the promiſe actionable, eſpecially if I give any time for it. But if there were no debt originally due, or no aſſets in their hands to pay it, ſome ſay no Action will lie, Co. 9. 93, 94. But Juſtice Hutton at Sarum Aſſizes, 21 Jac. held the Action will lie, though there be no aſſets, and without giving time; and ſo was it held in Barns Caſe, Paſche, 9 Jac. B. R. per cur.

If an Executor ow me Five pounds for the Teſtator, and buy of me Six Barrels of Beer, and in conſideration hereof, promiſe to pay me for both; this is a good conſideration for both, to charge him De bonis propriis, Trin. 37 Eliz. Co. B. R. Wheelers Caſe.

If A. ow B. One hundred pounds, and C. being a Clothworker to A. have clothes of his in his houſe, and they three agree that B. ſhall have theſe clothes for his money, and C. promiſe to deliver them; this is a good conſideration to binde C. to deliver them, for hereby he ſhall be diſcharged againſt A, adjudged. Trin. 2 Jac. B. R. Warder verſus Chapman.

If I demand Ten pounds of another, and he promiſe me, that if I can prove it to be a true debt, he will pay me; if I prove it as I may in the ſame Suit for it; this will be a good conſideration, adjudged. M. 18 Jac. Stat. verſ. Mary, Co. 11. 59. 10 Ed. 4. 11.

If a Scrivener promiſe me in conſideration, that I will let him have the putting out of my money, that he will take good ſecurity for it; this is a good conſideration, and makes a good Aſſumpſit, M. 7 Jac. B. R. Kellingworths Caſe.

If I deliver one Ten pounds to redeliver to me again, and he do not ſo, it ſeems I cannot have this Action for my relief, but I may have an Action of Account; but if there be a promiſe to redeliver it, perhaps this Action will lie, Hil. 37 Eliz. Co. B. R. Howdels Caſe.

If one in conſideration of a Leaſe for years made by me, promiſe to pay me a ſum of money; for this money I may have this action. But if for this he promiſe to pay me a yearly rent during the Leaſe, it ſeems I cannot have an Action of the Caſe, but my proper remedy is an Action of Debt, Lit. Brook, Sect. 452. Fitz. Debt. 129. Morgans Caſe, M. 18 Jac. B.R. And yet if I promiſe another the Herbage of my Ground for a year, and he promiſe me Twenty ſhillings for it, either of us may have this Action againſt the other, adjudged, M. 17 Jac. B. R. Sir George Marſhals Caſe.

If one promiſe me in conſideration, he is indebted to me, ſo much rent reſerved on a Leaſe for Land, that he will pay me by a day; this is not a good conſideration; other-

otherwiſe it is if it be for herbage, or for the forbearance of a Rent reſerved on a Leaſe of Land, 14 Jac. B.R. Sir George Marſhals Caſe, adjudged. Hill. 9 Car. B.R. Bret and Heaths Caſe.

If one in conſideration of Land ſold to him by me, promiſe me Twenty pounds at a day certain; or I ſell my Land for Twenty pounds to be paid me on a day certain; in theſe caſes I may have this Action for the money, though the Land be not aſſured; for he may compel me in Chancery to aſſure it, 3 H. 7. 14. 2 H. 7. 12.

If I promiſe in conſideration of a ſurrender to be made to me of ſuch Land to pay Ten pounds, and a ſurrender is made, but it is not a good ſurrender in Law; this is no good conſideration to raiſe the Action, Hill. 37 Eliz. B.R. Sleigh verſ. Bateman.

If I buy Land, Trees, or Corn of a man for money, and he promiſe to make my aſſurance, or deliver the Trees or Corn by a day, and do not, or ſell it to another, I may have this Action, 21 H. 7. 41. Dyer. 22. Co. 10, 130. Old Book of Entries, 6.

If I be ſeiſed of Copyhold Land in Fee, and am in debt to J. S. One hundred pounds, and lying very ſick, I make W. L. my Executor, and declaring my minde to be to ſurrender it to the uſe of my Executor, to enable him the better to pay the debt, and L. S. (heir to the Copyhold) perſwades me not to ſurrender, but to let the Land diſcend to him, and he aſſume to pay the Hundred pound to J. S. This is a good conſideration to give this Action to the Executor, Hil. 9 Jac. Grayes Caſe. Sect. 19.

If I promiſe to one in conſideration, he will be bound for my Friend, I will ſave him harmleſs; this is a good conſideration to give an Action, M. 9 Jac. B.R. Somerſhals Caſe.

If I promiſe to one in conſideration, he will lay down his own money to pay for cloth bought by J. S. for me, that I will pay it him again; this is good, Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Moors Caſe.

If one in conſideration of a Pint of Wine promiſe to aſſure me Land by a day, and do not; this is a good conſideration to give this Action upon the Aſſumpſit, adjudged, Friends Caſe. Trin. 7 Jac. B.R.

If I requeſt one to ſolicite a buſineſs for me, and after he hath done, promiſe him Ten pounds for it; this is a good promiſe, and not naked: For the requeſt, and the merits are joyned together; but if it be a meer voluntary courteſie, it is otherwiſe, Hob. Rep. pl. 128. 72. Dyer. 355. And it hath been ſaid to be adjudged to lie in this Caſe, when I do requeſt B. to bail my ſervant, and after I ſay to him, In conſideration that you have at my requeſt bailed my ſervant, I will pay you Ten pounds ſuch a day; that this is good. See Brownl. 1. part. 7, 8. 73.

If one be about to buy goods or borrow money of me, and another before the ſale or loan, tell me, That if the buyer or borrower pay not, he will; or if he bid me deliver the things, and if the buyer pay me not, he will pay me on requeſt; theſe are good conſiderations. But otherwiſe it is when the promiſe comes after the borrowing or buying, 12 H. 8. 12. 44 Edw. 3. 21. But here muſt be a Demand before the Suit begin. Demand.

But if I promiſe to another Twenty pounds, becauſe he is my Kinſman or acquaintance; this is not good, it is but Nudum pactum onely, Plow. 309. 302. Nudum pactum.

If one on the Eighth of May deliver me Ten pounds, and I do the Ninth of May, promiſe him in conſideration hereof to repay the Ten pounds; this is no good conſideration. But if it were at the ſame time, it were good, M. 42, 43 Eliz. Pilſworths Caſe. So if I ſell one all my Lands or Goods, and nothing appointed by the agreement what I ſhall have for it; it is good, and I ſhall have the worth of it.

If one buy a horſe or ſome other thing of me for money, and no money is paid, nor earneſt given, nor day ſet for payment, nor the thing delivered; in theſe Caſes no Action will lie for the money, or the thing ſold, but I may ſell it to another; it is Nudum pactum, Plow. 309. 302. So if I promiſe to pay one money, to give him a horſe, build a houſe, or the like; and nothing, and no recompence appointed to me for doing it; theſe are void promiſes, upon which no Action will lie.

If I promiſe in conſideration of ſomething paſt, as becauſe he hath builded a houſe, quitted me a Treſpaſs, or hath let my friend have Wares, that I will pay him money, money, or do any thing elſe; this is Nudum pactum, Plow 5. 202. yet ſee Brownl. 8. 9. So if I ſay to another to whom J. S. doth ow money, If he do not pay you, I will pay you; this is Nudum pactum, Do. & St. 105. 12 H. 8. 12. Dyer. 21. 27. This hath been often adjudged. So if one promiſe me, if I will deliver him One hundred Crowns, he will deliver them to me again. But if he do deliver me Twenty Crowns, and in conſideration thereof, I did at the time promiſe to redeliver them; this is a good promiſe, adjudged.

If I without other cauſe promiſe to give one Twenty pounds towards his loſſes by fire, or to build his houſe anew: Theſe Aſſumpſits are not good to give an Action, 17 Ed. 4. 4. Plow. 308. So if J. S. ow me money, and another ſay, That he will be my pay-maſter, and pray me to take him debtor for it; this is not good. Fitz. Debt. 126. If one promiſe me Twenty pounds, becauſe I have built him an houſe, or, if one ow me Twenty pounds, and another come to me, and pray me to take him debtor for it; or, if he ſay, if the other do not pay it at Michaelmas, he will: Theſe are not good conſiderations to raiſe Actions, 9 Edw. 5. 14. 44 Edw. 3. 21.

If I promiſe to one ſo [or, if] he will marry my Daughter, [Kinſwoman, or Servant] that I will give him [or pay him] Twenty pounds, or, if I promiſe Twenty pounds with my Daughter in marriage; in all theſe Caſes the party may have this Action for this money, Plow. 307. Fitz prohib. 3. Do. & St. 104. So alſo it is ſaid, That if one promiſe me One hundred pounds in conſideration that I have married his Kinſwoman; that this is good to give an Action, becauſe the conſideration doth continue, M. 8 Car. B. R. per curiam, and in M. 4 Car. B. R. it is ſaid to be ſo adjudged. But againſt this it is ſaid to be adjudged in the Exchequer Chamber inter Sandil & Jenny, That if I entreat one to marry my Daughter, and after the marriage, ſay, That in conſideration he hath at my requeſt married my Daughter, that I will pay him Ten pounds ſuch a day, this Action will not lie; yet the former Judgment ſeems moſt to agree with the Caſes before, and with Reaſon. So if I promiſe to a Woman, that if ſhe will marry with my Son, I will give her to her marriage, the one half of all my goods; this is good and actionable. See Brownl. 1. part. 18.

If a Bail pay the debt, and hereupon the Plaintiff promiſe to deliver to him the principal Obligation, and a Letter of Attorney to ſue the principal; this is no good conſideration to raiſe an Action, adjudged in the Exchequer Chamber, 38, 39 Eliz. Dixon verſ. Adams.

If I promiſe to a Woman, having a Husband who hath a Daughter and Heir to Land, That if ſhe will give her conſent I ſhall have her Daughter, I will pay her Ten pounds: This is a good conſideration, adjudged. Hob. Rep. pl. 10.

If I promiſe Twenty pounds to a man in conſideration he will not beat me: This is no good conſideration to make the Aſſumpſit Actionable, 21 Jac.

One did declare, that in conſideration that he had ſold a horſe to him, that he would pay him Five pounds, it is ſaid to be adjudged in the Exchequer Chamber good, albeit it had implied time paſt, Paſche, 8 Jac. Co. B. R. Mary Andrews Caſe.

If the Obligor pay the money to the Obligee after the day, and thereupon the Obligee promiſe to deliver the Bond, and do not, no Action will lie; for the conſideration is not good, nor hath the Obligor any remedy but in a Court of Equity.

Forbearance. If A ow to me Ten buſhels of Corn, and deliver them to B to deliver to me, and B. pray me to forbear it till Michaelmas, and he will pay me the Corn, or the worth of it; this is a good conſideration and Aſſumpſit, M. 18 Jac. B. R. Jacksons Caſe.

If I be in debt to J. S. and I deliver goods to B. to pay the debt to J. S. and J. S. require the debt of B. who doth deſire him to forbear it three weeks, and he will pay him; this is a good Aſſumpſit to give an Action Williams Caſe. M. 7 Jac. B. R. But he ſhall recover damage onely for Forbearance; for the debt is recoverable ſtill as it was before, M. 4 Jac. Lees Caſe, B. R.

If A. and B. be bound joyntly and ſeverally to C who releaſeth to A. and after B. and C. being talking together of the debt, B. in conſideration that C. would forbear him him till ſuch a day promiſed to pay it; this is no good promiſe, for by the Releaſe to one the other is diſcharged, and the debt gone, no good conſideration therefore. *March.*201. *pl.*243.

If I have a Writ againſt I.S. and I.S. knowing of it doth pray me to forbear to go any further on that Writ, and he will pay me twenty pounds; this is a good conſideration, *Hob.Rep. pl.*278. and he need not ſhew any cauſe of the firſt action. But if the conſideration be to forbear, and ſay not how long this is no good conſideration, Yardlies Caſe, *Hob.Rep.pl.*287. But if one owe me money, and he himſelf or another on his behalf promiſe me that ſo I will forbear him [or not ſue him] till ſuch a day, or not go forwards in my ſuit begun againſt him till ſuch a day, that he will pay me; this is a good conſideration to give an Action. *Co.*9.93.94. *New Book of Entries, f.*8.10.47. Sir Moyl Finches Caſe, M. 4 Jac. B.R. But if re vera no debt were originally due, ſome doubt whether the Action will lie or not: And ſo if the Promiſe were by an Executor that hath no Aſſets in his hands. *Co.*9.90.94.

If one owe money to me, and he promiſe me that in conſideration that I will agree to give further day for the mony he owes me for ſix moneths, he will ſecure it to me; this is no good conſideration; for he may agree to give day, and ſue after. M. 7 Jac. B.R.

If one be bound by obligation to me to pay I.S. money on ſuch a day, and the Obligor promiſe I.S. that if he will forbear him till ſuch a day, he will then pay it, this is no good conſideration, for I.S. had not cauſe of ſuit, per Juſtice Bridgman. So if an Infant buy wares or other unneceſſary apparel, and when he comes to full age in conſideration that he had a good bargain, he doth promiſe if the other will forbear him a moneth, he will pay him; this is no good conſideration. *Adjudg.*30 Eliz. Withipoles Caſe. Sect. 20.

If one promiſe to build me an houſe, make me an eſtate or any other thing, and there is nothing given or promiſed by me for it; this is no good Aſſumpſit, but a Nudum pactum. And where one doth promiſe to do a work by a day, and it is not agreed what he ſhall have for his pains, or when, or if it be agreed, no part of the money is paid; he cannot ſue for the not doing of the work, nor the workman for his money till he have done the work. But if there be a mutual promiſe of work, and of recompence for the work, they may have mutual actions on both ſides, 3 H 6.36. Dyer 21. *Plow.*5.

If I promiſe money to a Phyſitian to cure another poor man, or to a Labourer to mend a high way, theſe are good conſiderations in Aſſumpſits on which this Action will lie in reſpect of the nature of the works. Do. & St. 105. Plow. 35: 17 *Ed.*4:5: Hob. Rep. pl 278. and if the day of payment be come, they may ſue for it before the work be done.

If a Priſoner promiſe the Sheriff in conſideration he will let him eſcape, he will ſave him harmleſs, or pay him ten pounds, the conſideration is naught, and the promiſe void: So if one promiſe me ten pounds if I will maintain him in ſuch a ſuit, this is naught, *Co.*10.76.102. Dyer 356. But if one be in debt to me, and deliver me goods in pledg for the debt, and a ſtranger promiſe to pay me the debt if I will deliver the pledg; this is a lawful and good conſideration. Levets Caſe, adjudged. Unlawful.

If one promiſe to me in conſideration I will ſeal a Releaſe to I S. he will pay me ten pounds, and after at his requeſt I ſeal it to I. D. in this caſe I cannot bring this Action for the money, becauſe I have not purſued the conſideration. Trin. 4 Jac. B.R. Cranfield verſ. Green. Not purſued.

To make the promiſe or Aſſumpſit it ſelf good, it muſt have all theſe qualities. As to the promiſe it ſelf.

1. The thing promiſed muſt be ſuch a thing as is lawful: For if the thing promiſed be that which is either evil in it ſelf, as to kill a man, or a prohibited evil, as to foreſtal Corn, or the like, it is no good Aſſumpſit, let the conſideration be never ſo good, Dyer 356. *Co.*10.102.

2. The thing promiſed muſt be poſſible to be done; for if one promiſe to do a thing impoſſible, as to go to Rome within three days, or the like, this is not good.

3. There

3. There must be certainty in it; for if a promise be of a thing altogether incertain, it is altogether void.

4. It must be serious and weighty; for if it be frivolous and idle, it is void.

A promise to do any lawful thing, as to deliver or to give Corn or other goods, Plow. 182. Fitz. det. 68. To ear Land, make a house, make or release an estate in land, Plow. 308. Kelw. 69. 77. Finches ley 49. To save a man harmless from a Bond entred into, or the like engagement, M. 9 Jac. B.R. To stand to an award, Co. 5. 78. To keep goods safe, Old B of Entries, f. 4. That goods shall come safe to Dale, Co 6. 47. From the Lessor to the Lessee at will of a house, not to out him, but to suffer him to enjoy it till such a time. From a Creditor that hath a Judgment for his money, that upon payment thereof he will acknowledg satisfaction, or deliver up the Bond, Trin. 38 Eliz. B.R. To marry a daughter or kinswoman. To pay an Annuity of ten pounds a year for life, Pasc. 9 Jac. B.R. Collins Case. Not to molest one upon a Judgment, M. 9 Jac. B.R. To save the Lessor harmless and without loss by reason of his inhabitation in his house, M. 9 Jac. B.R. That an Attorney shall retain a Rent he is to pay to his Client for Fees due from his Client to him, M. 9 Jac. B.R. Jarvais Case. To deliver up a Bond to stand to the award of I. S. or pay twenty pounds, New B. of Entries, f. 3. And finally, whatsoever (for the matter of it) is good in the consideration, will be good in the promise.

If one lay his Action in consideration of ten pounds lent by him to the Defendant, that he assumed to pay the same to the Plaintiff; this is good. Brownl. 2 part, 40.

If one having made me a Lease for years, assume that I shall quietly hold it without the let of any person whatsoever, this is a good promise; and disturbance with or without Title, is a breach of it to give Action. Dyer 328.

If one in consideration that I will be bound for his appearance, he being arrested on a Recognizance, promise me to appear at the day, and do not, I may have this Action against him, Adjudg. Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Rolls Case. And it will not excuse him that a Certiorari came to remove the Record; for I must appear notwithstanding.

If one sell me Land for money, and promise to make me an Assurance of it, or put me in possession of it, upon request, by a day, and do not, I may have this Action, Old B. of Entries, f. 5. and recover damages. And if I will, I may wave this, and compel him to make me an Assurance of the Land in Chancery, per three Justices. Pasch. 9 Jac. B. R. Jolleys Case.

If one sell me a horse for ten pounds, on condition that I pay him this ten pounds in corn; in this case I must pay him in corn, or he may for his remedy have this Action. Fitz. Det. 68.

If one be arrested at my suit for a debt, and make an obligation for the money to pay it at a day to come, but do not deliver, but in consideration of his enlargement promise to seal it upon request; this is good to produce an Action. Pasch. 9 Jac. B.R. Bassets Case.

To save harmless. If one in consideration I will be bound for him promise to save me harmless, this is a good Assumpsit; and if I be any way troubled, I may sue him upon it by this Action, Somertons Case. So for any thing else that I do at his request, Boynton versus Vaughan, P. 19 Jac. B.R Old book of Entries, f. 11.

If A. promise K. a woman, that if she marry his kinsman and outlive him, that A. will pay her twenty pounds, and she do so, this Action will lie. Hob. Rep. pl. 179.

If one promise for good consideration to pay me Ten pounds, or give me a ground such a day, this is certain enough and good; and if one of them be not done at the day, this Action lieth; and before the day, he that is to do it hath the election; but after the day, he to whom it is to be done. Fitz. Det. 89. 9 Ed. 4. 39.

If a Chyrurgeon for good cause warrant or promise to cure a man, or warrant the cure, or a Farrier a horse, and do not the cure, though he be not negligent, this Action will lie against him: And if he undertake the cure only, and make no warranty, and be negligent, an Action of the Case lieth. Plow. 305. Doct. & Stu. 105. 17 Ed. 4. 25. 5.

If

If a Terre-tenant of Land promiſe to me in conſideration, that I do aſſign to him a Statute I have chargable upon his Land, by way of diſcharge, that he will pay me twenty pounds; this is a good conſideration to produce this Action. But if the aſſignment of it were to be to a ſtranger by the conſideration, Contra. Adjudged, Paſche, 38 Eliz. Perrow. verſ. Gray.

If my debtor who hath Statutes from other men, deliver them to me towards my ſatisfaction, and die, and one that is neither his Executor or Adminiſtrator requeſt me to deliver him the Statutes, and he will pay me the debts; this is conſideration good enough, Hob. Rep. pl.7.

If one promiſe to me in conſideration that I will make him a Leaſe [generally] that he will pay me ten pounds, this is no good promiſe: For the conſideration is void; for the Leaſe may be a Leaſe at will, and he may avoid it as ſoon as he makes it, Paſche, 39 Eliz. C. B. Burkins Caſe, adjudged. So if the conſideration be to forbear a Suit, and ſay not how long. So if the conſideration be to relinquiſh my Suit; for I may relinquiſh it, and begin it again preſently, Paſche, 39 Eliz. in Lurkins Caſe. Sect. 21. Certainty.

If a promiſe be to pay money, and ſay not when, it is good enough, and muſt be paid preſently. So if a promiſe be to make a Leaſe for years, and ſay not when it ſhall begin; this is good, and ſhall begin preſently, Co. 10. 76. 102.

If one promiſe to make good a houſe; this is good, and ſhall be taken to repair it, M. 21 Jac. B. R. Keyts Caſe.

If one ow me money, and another for good cauſe promiſe to make it good to me, this is good, M. 21 Jac. B. R. Keyts Caſe.

If one promiſe me all that he can recover in ſuch a ſuite, or upon a compoſition upon ſuch a Bond, this is good, Trin. 19 Jac. B. R. Morris Caſe. And all theſe are certain enough. So if one promiſe to content me for my work, M. 17 Jac. B. R. Griffins Caſe. So if one promiſe to give me a childes part, this is good; or ſo much as he ſhall give with any childe, this is good; for it may be made good by Averment. Id certum eſt quod certum reddi poteſt; for if he give one hundred pounds by his will to another childe, I may recover one hundred pounds of his Executor. Trin. 17. Jac. B R. Bolles Caſe.

If one ow me twenty pounds by Bill, and I promiſe, to deliver him the Bill, and he promiſe to bring me two ſufficient Sureties, and give Bond for the money by a day, this is a good promiſe on both ſides: For a promiſe is a good conſideration of a promiſe. But if the promiſe be conditional, contra. M. 38, 39 Eliz. Gowers Caſe, adjudged. See Brownl. 1. part. 11. And therefore if the agreement between me, and J. S. be, that if he deliver twenty broad clothes, or if he make me an aſſurance of ſuch a piece of Land, I will pay him one hundred pounds, in theſe Caſes I cannot be ſued for the money, till I have the things. So if I promiſe to make new pales, if I may have the old pales, 37 H. 6. 42. 27 H. 8. 34. Perk. Sect. 713. Dyer. 76. 14 H. 8. 20.

If a Leſſee for years aſſign his Leaſe, on condition that the purchaſer ſhall get the good will of the Leſſor, and pay the Leſſee ſo much as J. S. ſhall arbitrate; in this Caſe when he hath gotten his favor, and J. S. hath arbitrated, he may have this Action for the money, 14 H. 8. 20. Brownl. 1. part. 14.

If one in conſideration that he doth ow me five pounds Rent, on a Leaſe of a Ground for a year, or a Bond, promiſe to pay it to me upon requeſt, it ſeems this is not a good conſideration, Hob. Rep. pl. 365. For it is real and certain, and I have debt for my Rent and Bond, and may not have two Remedies. And yet if one, in conſideration he doth ow me five pounds on a Contract, promiſe to pay me ſuch a day, this is good, adjudged. So if one indebted to me on a Bond, or for a Rent, promiſe in conſideration of forbearance of the debt to pay it; in this caſe the promiſe may be good.

If one promiſe to pay, or do a thing which is unlawful, the Aſſumpſit is void. And therefore if one promiſe to do that which to do is maintenance, it is void. But if a Solicitor ſue upon a promiſe for money for ſoliciting a Suit, this is good; for it is lawful, and may be without maintenance, Hob. Rep. pl. 72. Dyer 356. But to promiſe Againſt Law.

miſe to do any thing of that nature which is not maintenance, or a lawful maintenance, is good.

If a Sheriff for ten pounds, promiſe the priſoner that he ſhall eſcape; this promiſe is not good, nor will it give an Action, Co. 10. 76. 102. Dyer 356.

If A. be ſued on a Bond, and I become bail for him, and Judgment and Execution is had againſt me, and the Plaintiff doth promiſe me, ſo as I will pay him, he will aſſign me the Bond and the Debt, and make me a Letter of Attorney to ſue for it in my own name; this is not a good promiſe, for it is againſt Law, being Champerty, adjudged. Dixons Caſe, Trin. 38 Eliz. B. R.

If A. and B. be Mercers, and they agree that A. ſhall ſell to B. all his Mercery Wares, and take his ſhop of him, in conſideration whereof, A. doth promiſe that he will not ſet up his Trade in the ſame Town; this is a good Aſſumpſit. But if one be bound not to uſe his Trade at all; this is not good, March. 77. pl. 121. See more Covenant Conditions in the Titles. But a Bond not to uſe his Trade in ſuch a Town, is not good.

If one promiſe an Officer more to do his duty then his juſt Fees, which to take is Extortion, this promiſe is void, Hil. 22 Jac.

If I owa man One hundred pounds, and promiſe to him, in conſideration he will forbear me ſix moneths, I will give him One hundred pounds; this is naught, though part of it be lawful; for the exceſs is uſury, Trin. 20 Jac. B. R.

If I arreſt a man, to the end he ſhould engage himſelf to me for money, where none is due, and he do ſo being in priſon, ſo that it be made by Dureſs of impriſonment; this is not good. But an engagement for a due debt by a priſoner for his liberty, is not againſt Law, Paſche, 9 Jac. B. R.

Incertain. If I promiſe one, ſo he marry my Daughter, to give him as much as I ſhall give with any other Childe; this is good: And if by my laſt Will, I give One hundred pounds to another Childe, he may ſue my Executor for a Hundred pound. Gloceſter Aſſizes, 6 Car. Whitlocks Juſtice.

Impoſſible. A promiſe to do an impoſſible thing, as to go to Rome in three days, or the like, it ſeems is void, and not Obligatory.

Frivolous. If one give me twelve pence, and I promiſe to him in conſideration thereof, that if I do not cauſe him to be whipt to morrow about the Croſs in Gloceſter, I will give him five pounds, and he is not whipt; yet no Action will lie for this five pounds upon this frivolous promiſe. See more in Bargain, and Sale; and Contract.

How the pleading in this Action muſt be. What Averment or Allegation is neceſſary in the Declaration, or not.

If one promiſe to pay me ten pound, in conſideration of ſomething to be done by me in futuro; if I ſue for the ten pound, I muſt ſet forth and aver that I have done this thing; and till it be done, no Action can be brought for the promiſe: As if I promiſe to another, in conſideration he will forbear his debt till ſuch a day, I will pay him; I muſt aver that I did forbear him till the day: For if in this caſe he ſue for his debt within the time, the Aſſumpſit and Action upon the promiſe is gone, Hob. Rep. pl. 128. Otherwiſe it is where one promiſe is the conſideration of another, there nothing but the promiſe is to be ſhewed to maintain the Action, Curia, M. 4 Jac. B. R. Hil. 38 Eliz. B. R. Thorntons Caſe. Hob. Rep. pl. 7. 27. 8 H. 8. 34.

If one for good cauſe promiſe to do a thing to me in conſideration of another thing to be done by me at ſuch a time, or in ſuch a place; if he ſue upon the promiſe, he muſt aver he did the thing in the conſideration at that time and place, Brownl. part. 1. 21. 2. part. 137, 138.

If all or part of the conſideration of a promiſe be to ſtand to the arbitrement of J. S. or to make a ſurrender, in a ſuing for this promiſe, he muſt ſet forth that he hath performed the award, or made a ſurrender; for it is not ſufficient to ſay, Quod fuit paratus ſtare, &c. or, Quod fuit paratus curſum reddere, M. 9 Jac. B. R. Hoſe-boots Caſe.

If one ſue upon a promiſe for a Childes part, as much as he ſhall give with any Childe, in the Declaration he muſt ſhew how much he did give with a Childe in certain, or it is not good, Trin. 17 Jac. B. R.

If one ſue upon a promiſe to ſatisfie one [or to content one] for a work done, he muſt muſt ſay in the Declaration how much he deſerved for the work, or it is not good. M. 17 Jac. B.R.

If I ſell a thing without a price, I muſt in ſuing for it aver it to be worth ſo much.

If one promiſe to deliver me twenty of his ſheep before his flock is ſhorne, if I ſue for this, I muſt aver that the flock is ſhorne, for he hath time to do it till that time. M. 9 Jac. B.B. Cadels Caſe. Sect. 22.

A Tenant at will of a houſe, in conſideration that the Leſſor would ſuffer him to continue in the houſe till ſuch a time, doth aſſume to keep the Leſſor free and indempnified from all loſs and detriment by reaſon of his inhabitation in the houſe, and that for every farthing-worth of hurt he will ſatisfie him two pence, and his ſervant by his negligence ſuffers the houſe to be burnt; this Action will lie, albeit the maſter dwell not there; but in his count he muſt aver how many farthings it came to, and demand two pence for every farthing in a groſs ſum. M. 9 Jac. B. R. Coventries Caſe. Demand.

If an Executor be ſued upon the Aſſumpſit of the Teſtator, the Plaintiff needs not to aver that he hath Aſſets, but it muſt come on the other ſide to be averred if it be not ſo. Coo. 9. 90.

The Plaintiff declared that the Defendant, in conſideration that the Plaintiff would be bound for his ſon, aſſumed to ſave him harmleſs from all ſuch obligations as he at the requeſt of his ſon ſhould enter into for him, and ſhewed that he was bound for him ſuch a day &c. to &c. which obligation he was forced to ſatisfie. And this was adjudged to be a good pleading, though he did not lay any requeſt or notice, for he was not bound to give notice to the father. M. 9 Jac. B. R. inter Somerſhal & Barnaby. Notice.

The Plaintiff declared that I.S. emiſſet equum at ſuch a price, and the Defendant ad tunc & ibidem ratione præmiſſarum did aſſume to pay the money; this was adjudged to be naught, for the ſale did precede the conſideration. Paſch. 9 Jac. B.R. Farmers Caſe.

The Plaintiff declared, quod cum the Defendant was in debt to the Plaintiff in Twenty pounds for meat, drink and lodging for himſelf and two others, that he did ſuch a day aſſume to pay it to him; this is no good conſideration. Curia, Steedmans Caſe. A. Executor of B. declared againſt C. upon a promiſe made to B. that C. would repay to A. all ſuch ſums of money as he ſhould lay out of his own money for cloth bought and delivered to the uſe of C. This is a good Conſideration to raiſe an Action, without averring that the cloth did come to his uſe, Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Moors Caſe. A. ſued B. and declared that B. was indebted to him Ten pounds for Wheat, Agiſtments and Wares had of the Plaintiff, and in conſideration thereof did aſſume to pay the ſame to the Plaintiff; it was adjudged good and certain enough. But this were not good in an Action of Debt upon the very Contract, for that muſt be more certain, Hob. Rep. pl. 8. But to declare thus, That whereas the Defendant was indebted to the Plaintiff Ten pounds, he promiſed to pay it to him, is not ſufficient; for it may be for Rents on Leaſes, or Debts on Eſpecialty, for which no Action will lie upon a new promiſe, Idem. And yet upon the conſideration of forbearance of a Debt due for Rent, or on a Bond, this Action will ariſe well enough. Adjudg.

If the Plaintiff ſaith that he had a Writ out in ſuch a Term againſt the Defendant for Fifty pounds, and the Defendant knowing of it prayed him to go no further on that Writ, and he would pay him the Fifty pounds on requeſt; this is ſufficient without ſhewing the cauſe of the debt. Hob Rep. pl. 278.

A. declared againſt B. that he accounted with the Defendant for divers ſums of money due to the Plaintiff from the Defendant, and upon the Account the Defendant was found in arrear Ten pounds, and in conſideration thereof did promiſe to pay the money at a day; this was adjudged good, notwithſtanding he did not ſhew for what the money was due, whether for Wares, money lent, &c. Hob. Rep. pl. 16.

A. declared againſt B. that in conſideration that he had given him time for three moneths for a Debt of Ten pounds that he owed him, that he would pay the Ten pounds after verdict; it was adjudged good enough, albeit he did not ſhew for what the Debt was, Hob. Rep. pl. 31. Sir Moyl Finches Caſe. M. 4 Jac. B. R. Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Deans Caſe. But where it is grounded on an Indebitatus Aſſumpſit, in which Caſe the Debt it ſelf is the conſideration of the promiſe, there the Caſe muſt be averred; for a general count in an Action upon the Caſe, Quod cum indebitatus fuit, in ſuch a ſum ſuper ſe aſſumpſit, without ſhewing the cauſe of the Debt, is inſufficient; but where there is another conſideration, Contra, as here the Forbearance, often adjudged, Hob. Rep. pl. 32. Co. 10. 77. Fuller and Thorns Caſe, Paſche, 14 Jac. B. R. accord.

If one declare againſt an Executor, that whereas the Teſtator was in debt to the Plaintiff Ten pound, the Executor in conſideration thereof aſſume to pay it without ſhewing the cauſe; this is not good, M. Jac. B R. Ingrams Caſe; yet ſee the New Book of Entries, f. 2. And yet if in theſe Caſes the Defendant ſhall in pleading aver there was no cauſe at firſt, Quere.

If A. in conſideration that B. is indebted to C. Ten pound, aſſume in conſideration that if C. will forbear it till Michaelmas, that if B. pay it not, he will; this is good without averment of the firſt cauſe, Hil. 14 Jac. B.R. A. declares againſt B. that he bought of B. a horſe for Twenty ſhillings, paid in hand, and for Eleven pound more to be paid at the death or marriage of A. for which he ſhould become bound with ſufficient Surety by their writing Obligatory. B. in conſideration hereof promiſed to deliver the horſe on requeſt; avers that he offered to become bound to him, but doth not ſet forth in what ſum, nor with what ſurety, nor that he did offer to deliver it, being ſealed; and for theſe cauſes after verdict, the Judgment was ſtaid, Hob. Rep. pl. 79. 96.

In an Action of the Caſe upon an Aſſumpſit, if the conſideration be Executory, then the Declaration muſt have time and place where it was made, and after it muſt be averred in facto, when it was performed accordingly. But if it be by way of Reciprocal agreement, then he may ſay, That in conſideration he hath promiſed to do for the Defendant, the Defendant hath promiſed to do another thing for him; there need no ſuch ſetting down of time, &c. and Averment. Brownl. 2. part. 137.

An Action is maintenable againſt an Executor upon the Aſſumpſit of the Teſtator, without Averment of Aſſets above, for Debts by Eſpecialty, Brownl. 2. part. 138.

Requeſt or Demand. Notice.

If I promiſe for good cauſe to pay Ten pound to J. S. when he ſhall purchaſe White-Acre, he muſt give me notice ere he can ſue. But if it be when a ſtranger ſhall purchaſe White-Acre, it ſeems otherwiſe: For this is as much in the knowledge of the Promiſor, as the Promiſee, Brownl. 1. part. 9, 10, 13. 46. 64.

If one promiſe for good cauſe to ſave me harmleſs from ſuch an Engagement, and I be ſued I am not bound before I ſue him, to give him notice of it, nor to alleage it in the Count, adjudged, M. 9 Jac. B.R. Somerſhals Caſe. But if he have promiſed to deliver goods to me upon requeſt, I muſt make an Actual requeſt ere I can ſue for the goods, 13 Car. B. R. But if I deliver goods to redeliver upon requeſt, here it ſeems no requeſt is needful. But when the thing promiſed to be done, doth lie as much in the knowledge of the Promiſor, as of the Promiſee, as the death or marriage of a ſtranger, there generally no notice need to be given, Co. 7. 29.

If I promiſe for good cauſe to pay a man Ten pound, and ſay not when I ſhall pay it, no demand in this Caſe is needful to be made. If a promiſe be laid in conſideration of a marriage to be had with J. S. that the Defendant, if the Womans portion ſhall not amount to Four hundred pound, will make it up ſo much upon requeſt, the Plaintiff muſt aver a requeſt in his Declaration: But it ſeems he need not prove it upon a Non Aſſumpſit pleaded. Gloceſter Aſſizes, 17 Car. per Baron Henden.

If a Suit be going on to Tryal, and the Defendant in conſideration that the Plaintiff ſhall not go to trial, and give him a note of the charge, promiſe to pay him at his firſt coming to Gloceſter: In this Caſe if he ſue, he muſt aver not onely the forbearance of proceeding, and the giving of the note of charges, but the giving of notice of his firſt coming to Gloceſter, Hob. Rep. pl. 63.

Sect. 23. If I have Ten quarters of Corn, and I ſell one quarter to J. S. to pay me half a year year hence, after the rate as I ſell the reſt, I muſt give him notice how I ſell the reſt, or I cannot ſue: And this giving of notice muſt be averred in my Action, Hob. Rep. pl. 56. otherwiſe it is of an Award.

If I promiſe on good conſideration to pay Ten pound on demand, it ſeems here no demand is needful. But if the promiſe be to do a Collateral thing, as if I promiſe to pay Ten pound lent to another, if he do not pay it himſelf at Michaelmas upon demand; in this Caſe he muſt demand it ere he can ſue for it: Therefore in his Declaration he muſt ſet it forth ſo, 12 H. 8. 12. 17 Jac. B.R.

If I promiſe money to the marriage of my Daughter or Kinſwoman, in this Caſe it ſeems no notice is needful, unleſs the promiſe be penal; as if you marry her, and I do not pay you Twenty pound in three weeks, I will pay you Forty pound: Here the Forty pound muſt be demanded: So alſo if I promiſe a Woman, that if ſhe will marry with my Son, I will give her the one half of my Lands and Goods; in this Caſe it ſeems there muſt be notice given before a Suit be begun, Old Book of Entries, f. 4. New Book of Entries, f. 2. So alſo if I promiſe a man Twenty pound when he marrieth any Woman whatſoever; in this Caſe alſo he muſt give me notice ere he can ſue for the money.

If one be arreſted for my Debt, and he make an Obligation to me for his delivery to pay the money at a day to come, but doth not deliver it as his deed, and doth promiſe to deliver it upon requeſt; in this Caſe I muſt make a requeſt. And therefore if I make no requeſt till the day of payment be paſt, I am remedileſs at Law, and muſt flie to the Court of Equity, Paſche, 9 Jac. B. R. Baſſets Caſe by two Judges.

The Plaintiff declared, that in conſideration he would die divers Cloths which he counted to Sixty, that the Defendant did promiſe to pay him for every Cloth Ten ſhillings, and avers he did Dye them all, being Fifty nine Cloths, and that the money came to ſo much: So that Fifty nine was put for Sixty, but after verdict adjudged good, Hob. Rep. pl. 120. What Errors in pleading are fatal or not.

The Plaintiff declared, that he had ſold to the Defendant ſo many Oats as according to the rate of Fifteen ſhillings nine pence for every quarter, and ſhall amount to Fifty two pound to be delivered at ſuch a time, and that the ſaid Oats after ſuch a rate came to Ninety ſix quarters and ſix buſhels, which the Defendant hath not delivered, &c. Which money the Plaintiff was to pay at a day certain: After verdict it was adjudged good, notwithſtanding the miſtake; for the Ninety ſix quarters of Oats after the rate came to Fifty two pound three quarters, Hob. Rep. pl. 114. But generally in all ſpecial Actions of the Caſe upon a promiſe, if any ſubſtantial variance be between the laying of the Action, and the Evidence, it will be fatal: Wherefore it is policy in the Plaintiff in all theſe Caſes, to ſuppoſe ſeveral promiſes as neer the matter as he can frame, that he may be ſure in one of them to hit the very promiſe it ſelf, or at leaſt the ſubſtance thereof.

No Traverſe can be of conſideration executed alone; but a conſideration executory may be traverſed alone, Hob. Rep. pl. 128. Traverſe.

If the Leſſor aſſume to his Leſſee on good conſideration, that he ſhall hold the Land without the let of any perſon whatſoever; this ſhall be taken a let by one that hath no title, as well as by one that hath a title, and either of them will be a breach, and give an Action, Dyer 328. Gambles Caſe, M. 7 Jac. B. R. How an Aſſumpſit ſhall be taken; and what ſhall be ſaid to be a breach of it, or not.

If I promiſe to another, to whom I ow money, to pay him at Michaelmas, in conſideration that he will give me day till then, and he arreſt me in the mean time; this doth not take away the Action, otherwiſe it is, if it be in conſideration, that he will not ſue till Michaelmas, Goldsb. 146. pl. 65.

If my Tenant at Will of my houſe, promiſe upon good cauſe to ſave me harmleſs and indemnified from all loſs and harm, by reaſon of his Inhabitation in the ſaid houſe, and by the neglect of his ſervant, the houſe is burnt; this is a breach to give an Action, Coventries Caſe.

If I promiſe to J. S. that his goods ſhall come ſafe to Dale, and they be arreſted by the way; this is a breach of the promiſe, and Actionable, Co. 6. 47.

If one for good cauſe promiſe to make a Feoffment of Land by a day, and before the the day he Enfeoff another, or grant a Rent-charge out of it; this is a breach of the promiſe. So if he promiſe me Trees out of a Wood, and before the time he ſell them away. So if he promiſe me the delivery of a horſe, and before the day he ſell him to another, Dyer. 22. 21 *H.*7. 41. Co. 10. 130. *Kelw.*77. 20 *H.*6. 34. F.N.B. 99. k. And albeit he make the Feoffment, yet this is no good performance, *Old Book of Entries, f.*7. 3 *H.*7. 14. *Fitz.*8. B.

If one promiſe to deliver Wares, and he deliver falſe and ſophiſticated Wares; this is a breach of the promiſe. So if he promiſe to make a Surrender of an Eſtate, and he make a Surrender that is not good; this is no performance, but a breach, Dyer. 75. 23, 24. Hill. 37 Eliz. B.R. Sleighs Caſe.

Election. If a promiſe be to do one of two things by a day, till the day be paſt, he that made the promiſe hath the Election. But after the day, he to whom it is made, hath the Election, 9 *Ed.*4. 39. Co. 9. 94. 6.

If it be part of the agreement to give a Bond with Sureties, and ſay not what Sureties, nor in what ſum, the Court muſt judge what Sureties, and what ſum, Hob. Rep. pl. 79.

If for good cauſe the promiſe be to pay money, and no time ſet, it ſhall be preſently; and if it be to make a Leaſe for years, and no time ſet when it ſhall begin, it ſhall begin preſently, *Co.*10. 77. *Co.*6. 33. But if one promiſe to deliver me goods, or make me a Leaſe, or the like, and no time is ſet; in this Caſe he ſhall have all his life time to do it, except I haſten it by requeſt.

If one promiſe for Ten pound paid him in hand, to build me a houſe; this is a conditional promiſe, and the money muſt be paid ere the promiſe will have virtue to produce an Action, and is not like as where one promiſes to build a houſe, and the other doth promiſe Ten pound, there they are reciprocal, and they have equal remedy.

Sect. 24. If one binde himſelf by promiſe to pay money yearly or quarterly at ſeveral days, upon the breach of the promiſe one day, this Action will lie; but an Action of Debt will not lie upon the Contract till all the days are paſt, 11 H. 6.18. Broo. 108. Dyer 113. *Co.*4.94.

Of an Action upon the Caſe for a Nuſance.

What it is. A Nuſance is where any thing is done by a man upon his own ground, or elſwhere to the unlawful hurt and annoyance of another that is his Neighbor, in his Free-lands, or otherwiſe. And this is either common, when it is or may be a grievance to many, or ſpecial when it is onely or eſpecially a hurt to ſome few, or particular when it is or may be a hurt onely to one particular man, Old N.B. 108, 109. F.N.B 193.

How many kindes there are.

What ſhall be ſaid a Nuſance, or not; for which, this Action of the Caſe may be had, or not. A Nuſance may be by ſtopping or annoying a mans Water, Way, Light, or Air, by building, diverting, ſtopping, digging, or the like; for remedy whereof the party grieved may have this Action. And therefore if a man ſet up a houſe upon a new Foundation ſo near to my houſe, that thereby he ſtop up my Windows, and take away my light and proſpect, I may have this Action: But if his building be upon an old Foundation, and where there was a houſe before, no Action will lie for this, Cujus eſt ſolum, ejus eſt uſque ad Cœlum, New Book of Entries, f. 19, 20. *Co.*9. 55. 5. 10. Hughs Caſe. So if a man do over-build my houſe, ſo that his Houſe-eves do drop upon my houſe, and cauſe it to periſh, or trouble my dwelling, I may have this Action, 22 *H.*6. 14. And yet in Trin. 42 Q. Inter Nicholſon & Bradſhaw, Leſſee for years of a Shop, brought an Action againſt one that was Tenant at Will of a Kitchin over the Shop, for ſuffering it to decay, and to ſpoil the Wares of his Shop, and after a Judgment for the Plaintiff, it was reverſed. See Brownl. 1, *part.*4.

The erecting of a Die-houſe, Pig-ſtye, Houſe of Office, Brew-houſe, or Chimney, may be a Nuſance to the Neighborhood; for which, he that is hurt, may have his Action, Paſche, 5 Jac. B.R.

If

If I have a building beneath, and another man hath a building above me, and I ſuffer mine to decay, ſo as to hazard his, or he ſuffereth his to decay ſo, as to harm mine; in this Caſe each of us may have this Action againſt the other, Old Book of Entries, f. 3. Kelw. 48, If one ſet up a Pig-ſtye under my houſe, and keep Pigs in it, or a Houſe of Office, Lime-kiln, or Brew-houſe, and uſe it ſo near my houſe, that the ſmell thereof doth annoy me, and hazard my health, or the ſmoke of the Brew-houſe or Lime-kiln deſtroy or hurt my Trees: In theſe Caſes, and for theſe Wrongs, I may have this Remedy, Co. 5. 73. 101. M. 8 Jac. Adjudged. Aldreds Caſe. The building of a Brew-houſe, or the keeping of a Chandlers, or a Butchers ſhop by my Neighbor, in a place inconvenient, to the offence of my Garden or Houſe, may be a Nuſance; for which I may have this Action, Trin. 13 Car. B. R. But if ſuch a man do ſet up his Trade by me, though this be offenſive to me, yet I cannot have this Action, per Cook and Warberton Juſtices, M. 8 Jac. And Paſche, 5 Jac. B.R. If a man have a houſe very near mine, and he ſuffer it to decay, and fall, and throw down ſome of mine; it ſeems I may have this Action for this, Co. upon Lit. f. 56.

If I have a private way to my houſe or ground, and a man ſtop it or mar it, that I cannot have it in all or part; this is ſuch a wrong, as for which I may have this Action, Co. 5. 73. F.N.B. 184. But if the wrong be to the Common High-ways; this Action will not lie, but it muſt be puniſhed in a Leet, or ſome other Court. And yet if a Nuſance be done to a Common High-way, whereby I have more ſpecial loſs then another; as if he dig a pit, or lay a block there, and my horſe ſtumble, and I fall and have hurt by it; for this I may have this Action, Co. ſuper Lit. 56. Co. 9. 55. Exod. 21. 33. Paſche, 5 Jac. B.R. Penhams Caſe. 27 H. 8. 26. About ways.

No Action of the Caſe will lie for a Nuſance to a High-way, that is to be repaired by a Pariſh; for then every Pariſh might have it. But if one man by Preſcription be bound to keep, and any man do mar it by any ſpecial Nuſance, he may have this Action, March. 136, 137.

A man being drunk rode along a High-way, which was One hundred and ſixty foot in breadth, and in ſome green parcels of the way there were laid pieces of Timber for the uſe of the houſes thereabouts, and the drunken mans horſe ſtumbled at one of theſe, and fell, and hurt him, and he brought this Action, and the Defendant preſcribed to lay his Timber there; and yet it was adjudged againſt him, as Juſtice Bridgman ſaid at the Marches of Wales in my hearing: It lieth againſt one for ſtopping of my way totaliter, ſo that I cannot uſe my Common, Paſche, 13 Eliz. See Brownl. 1. part. 4, 6. 142. 197. 208. 231. 2. part. 55.

If I have a Water-courſe or Conduit belonging to my houſe or ground, and another man ſtop or mar it by Liming, Tanning, or the like, in part or in all, I may have this Action, New Book of Entries, 18. Co. 5. 73. F.N.B 184. 14 H. 8. pl. ult. But if the water be a common water, and belong no more to me then to others: In this Caſe I may not have this Remedy, but ſome other; and yet if in this caſe I have any ſpecial prejudice by the thing done, it ſeems I may have this Action, as well as in the Caſe before of a Nuſance upon the High-way. In Waters.

If any one ſet up any Houſe of Office, Lime-kiln, Tan-houſe, or lay any filth ſo near my dwelling, that it corrupteth the Air, and be dangerous and grievous to me, and my Family: I may have this Action, New Book of Entries, f. 18, 19. In Air.

If the Commoner be outed or diſturbed in the Common, by drowning, or planting Coneys upon it, or the like, ſo that there is not enough left for him, and he cannot take it according as he ought and hath been uſed to have it, he may have this Action: But if it be ſo ſmall a Treſpaſs that it doth not hurt his Common, but he hath enough beſides; no Action will lie for this, Co. 9. 112, 113. 8. 79. 4. 39. Dyer 316. In Common.

If a man by building, &c. ſtop up my antient Lights of my Houſe, to my prejudice, I may have this Action for my relief, New Book of Entries, f. 19. In Lights.

If I have a Mill upon a River, and another man ſetteth up a Mill upon the ſame River, whereby I loſe part of my Cuſtom, I cannot have this Action againſt him for this. And yet if he ſet up a Mill where I by an ancient cuſtom have the grinding of all the Griſt, and none ought to have a Mill but my ſelf; or, if thereby my Water be ſtopt or turned, that it doth not come ſo freely as formerly; in theſe Caſes In ſetting a Mill.

I may perhaps have this Remedy: So if any do break down the Sluces, or throw down the Banks that the Water do not come as formerly, Old Book of Entries, f. 10.

In ſetting up a Market. If one levy a new Market without authority, Ad nocumentum of my Antient Market, I may have this Action, M. 41, 42 Eliz. Co. B. R. Mayns and the City of Londons Caſe.

Wood-pile. If my Neighbor ſet up a Wood-pile againſt my houſe, upon his own ground, whereby my light or proſpect is hurt, I may have this Action, Co. 9. 55.

School. If a Schoolmaſter keep School ſo near to my Study, being a Lawyer, that the Scholars diſturb my Study, I may not have this Action, Curia, M. 8 Jac.

Pigeon-houſe. So if any man ſet up a Pigeon-houſe that doth hurt by his Pigeons in the Neighborhood, Co. 5. Hill. 39 Eliz. Co. B. R.

Coneys. So if a man plant his own ground with Coneys, and they do Treſpaſs to his Neighbors, whether it be a free Warren, or not; there is no Remedy for the party grieved, but to kill the Coneys upon his own ground, which he may lawfully do, adjudged. Hill. 39 Eliz Co. B. R.

School. If I have a School, and another Schoolmaſter ſet up a School by me, I cannot have an Action for this, 11 H. 6. 64. 47. 22 H. 6. 14, 15.

Sect. 25. If the Nuſance be by ſtopping a Way, Water-courſe, or Conduit, or hurting of a Common, and it be wholly ſtopt, or the Common wholly taken away, and he whoſe way, &c. it is, be a Free-holder of the thing to which it doth belong; it is ſaid in this Caſe he is to have ſome other Remedy. But if he have onely a Leaſe for years, or a Copyhold eſtate of that to which it doth belong, and it be wholly ſtopt or taken away, or he be a Free-holder, and it be ſtopt or let in part onely: In theſe Caſes the proper Remedy is by this Action, Co. 5. 73. 101. 9. 113. F. N. B. 184. See more in Nuſance.

Of an Action upon the Caſe upon a Trover and Converſion.

What it is. THis Action is a kinde of Action of the Caſe, which a man hath againſt another, that having gotten any of his Goods, doth refuſe to deliver them upon demand, New Terms of the Law.

In what caſe it doth lie, or not, For the perſons. It will lie againſt any man that hath had my Goods, and converted them; as if my horſe have been ſold by twenty men, I may bring this Action againſt either of them: And it will lie againſt any one that hath the poſſeſſion of the Goods, though he have them by borrowing onely. Experientia, 17 Car. per Baron Henden.

For the nature of the thing. This Action will not lie for Wood-growing, M. 20 Jac. B. R. Nor for things that are feræ naturæ; nor for any part of a Free-hold; as for Lead upon the houſe, while it is ſo, but after it is taken off, if it be converted, it will lie for it; nor as is generally held for money at large, as for Ten pound in money; but it will lie for money in a Bag or Cheſt, or for ſo many peeces of Gold of Twenty ſhillings a peece, or ſo many peeces of Silver in certain: And it will lie for any other Goods animate, as Oxen, Horſes, Hens, and the like; or inanimate, as Rings, Carpets, Woods or Trees, cut down, and the like: So for things that are feræ naturæ, as Deer, Hawks, and the like, after they are reclaimed.

For the Caſe. If another man get into his hands any ſuch Goods, living or dead, being my Goods, by finding, or otherwiſe, in any Caſe whatſoever, where he hath not a right in property or poſſeſsion to the thing, and he waſte it or convey it away, ſell it, or otherwiſe convert it to his own uſe, or keep it from me; I may have Remedy by this Action. And therefore if I loſe my Goods, and another man finde them; as if he take up my Hawk that is eſcaped, or my Horſe or Beaſt that was ſtraid away; or if a man who is Executor to another, have my Goods that were in the keeping of the Teſtator, come to him amongſt the Teſtators Goods, or a Felon leave my Goods within a Mannor, and the Lords Bailiffs ſeize them, not being waved; or if a man ride my Horſe to an Inn, and the Inn-keeper keep my Horſe from me: In theſe and all ſuch like Caſes, I may have this Action for my Remedy, 12 Ed. 4. 8. 12 H. 8. 3. 9. 7 H. 4. 3. Dyer 306. Co. 2. 25. 5. 27. 109. Old Book of Entries, f. 4. Litt. Broo. Sect. 174. 198. 382. 405. Fincheſley 181. 186. Brownl. 1. part. 44.

If

If a man that is a Suitor to a woman, give her in the wooing-time gifts, and they do not go on, but break off, and ſhe refuſe to redeliver theſe goods, it ſeems he may have remedy by this Action for the goods. Womans Lawyer, f. 71. ſect. 32. Dame Fitz Caſe, M. 7 Jac. B. R.

But this Action will not lie in theſe Caſes following, viz. 1. When he that brings the Action hath neither right to, or property in, nor hath had a poſſeſſion in the thing ſued for; and if he bring the Action upon a poſſeſſion, he muſt ſhew that he was once in the actual poſſeſſion of it. 2. Where the party that hath the goods, hath them by delivery with a Truſt; as where I deliver my goods to a Carrier to carry for me, and he doth keep or convey, and diſpoſe them another way. Wormwalls Caſe, M. 9 Jac. But another kind of Action of the Caſe doth lie in this caſe. 3. Nor where the party that hath the goods hath a good property in them by ſale, gift, or otherwiſe, as being ſeized for a Hariot, or the like. N. book of Entries, 39. 41. Co. 8. 15. Broo. 405. 193. Broo. Diſtreſs. 198. 4. Nor where the party that hath the goods, hath the lawful poſſeſſion of them; as where another man doth bring my horſe into an Inne, and there refuſeth to pay for his meat, and the Inne-keeper detaineth him for his meat, as he lawfully may do till he be paid; or where goods are duly ſeized as a Waif or Eſtray, or the like. N. book of Entries, f. 10. 41, &c. Co. 8. 147. Hill. 14 Jac. B. R. Adjudg. Robſons Caſe. 2. Nor as it ſeems for a bare finding or receipt of goods, and a poſſeſſion only without any converſion. And therefore if one deliver another mans goods to me, and I do not convert them, it ſeems this Action will not lie; it ſeems then that the converſion is traverſable. Dyer 121. Finches ley 186. per Baron Henden at Glouceſter-Aſſizes, 17 Car.

And as to Converſion, theſe things are to be known. 1. To do a lawful act, as diſtrain and impound Cattel, is no converſion; but to work them, is a converſion, Brownl. 1 par. 5. 2. To deny the things upon demand, is a converſion; but without Requeſt there can be no converſion, and ſo no action. The Court, Brownl. 1 par. 152. pl. 79.

What muſt be proved or averred to make good this Action.

To maintain and bear up this Action, theſe things are neceſſary to be averred or prove d in the Caſe. 1. The Plaintiffs right to the thing. 2. That the Defendant hath or had it. 3. A demand of the goods, and denial; for how elſe ſhall a man that finds goods, know the owner, and to whom to deliver them? By Serjeant Turner at Lent-Aſſizes at Glouceſter, 23 Car. 4. Some ſay there muſt be a Converſion; and in Trin 44 Eliz. in Com. B. it was adjudged, that if A. deliver a Chain of gold to B. and A. demand it, and B. deny it, and ſay he ſhall not have it till he can recover it, that this was no Converſion. But I take it, the contrary is held and practiſed at this day; and Baron Henden at Glouc. Aſſizes, 17 Car. ruled it, That a demand and a denial is a Converſion; and whatever is ſuch an act for which Treſpaſs will lie, is a Converſion to give this Action of the Caſe on a Trover. 5. And theſe things muſt be ſet forth in the Declaration; but the time of the Converſion is not needful to be ſet forth in the Declaration. M. 37, 38 Eliz. Co. B. Earl of Rutlands Caſe. Goldsb. 152. pl. 79. For pleading in this, See Brownl. 1 part, 8, 9, 12, 16, 17.

Of an Action of the Caſe for a Conſpiracie or Confederacie.

What it is.

A Conſpiracie ſtrictly taken, is, where two or more perſons do purpoſely and maliciouſly conſpire and labour together falſly and unjuſtly, and without any ground at all to indict another for ſome Treaſon, Felony, or other offence, and after he which is ſo indicted is upon that indictment after a lawful Trial purged and acquitted. In this caſe, and for this wrong, as he may have other remedy, ſo he may have remedy by an Action of the Caſe, wherein the Plaintiff ſhall recover damages according to his hurt. Co. 9. 56. FNB. 114, 115, 116.

Where and in what caſe this Action will lie for a Conſpiracie, or not, and how.

If two or more falſly and maliciouſly conſpire to indict or appeal another of any offence againſt any Law, and after he that is ſo indicted is acquitted, a Writ of Conſpiracie lies. FNB 114, 115, 116. Co. 5. 56. And in all Caſes where the practice and procurement is ſuch by one perſon, that if there were more joyned with him, a Writ of Conſpiracie would lie, there a general Action of the Caſe will lie. FNB. 116. L.

Sect. 26. If one man only falſly and maliciouſly cauſe another to be indicted for Felony, Barretry, or the like, who is thereupon acquitted, an Action of the Caſe in the nature of a Writ of Conſpiracie lieth. This hath been often adjudged; and in this caſe the Plaintiff that brings the Action, muſt be ſure to make it good that it be falſe and ma licious; for the malice is the ground of the Action: For if upon the Trial it doth appear, that either it was forced in a courſe of Juſtice, or there was probabilis cauſa for the indictment and proſecution, no Action will lie. March. f. 130. 41, 42 Eliz. Co.B.Sheringtons Caſe. And in this caſe the Plaintiff need not ſay that he was legitimo modo acqnietatus, as he muſt in a Writ of Conſpiracie. *P.*3 Jac.B.R. Marſhams Caſe. And if a man do procure another to be arreſted, brought before Juſtices, examined or impriſoned for a Felony, with a plot to vex and diſgrace him albeit he be not indicted for the Felony, it ſeems for this only he may have this Action of the Caſe, *Co.*9.56,57. *Co.*4. 14,15. F.N.B. 116,114. And in theſe caſes, and for theſe wrongs, it is better to bring this Action of the Caſe, then to bring a Writ of Conſpiracie, which is a ſpecial Action in the nature of an Action of the Caſe. For in all Caſes where a Writ of Conſpiracie lieth, there muſt be theſe things incident to the Caſe.

1. There muſt be two or more in the plot, for this Writ of Conſpiracie will not lie againſt one, nor againſt a man and his wife (who are but one in Law) unleſs the Writ be that they ſimul cum others did it. And hence it is, that if this Suit be begun againſt divers, and all but one are diſcharged of it to all intents, as being acquit by Verdict, hereby he is diſcharged alſo. F.N.B 114, 116. 18 *Ed.*4. 1. *Br. Conſpir.*21. But if the Writ be brought againſt two, and the one of them is attainted, and the other doth bar the Plaintiff by a Demur in Law, or one doth appear and plead, and his plea is found againſt him; in theſe caſes the other is not diſcharged, but the Plaintiff ſhall recover, though the other be not attainted. And yet in this caſe perhaps he may refuſe to anſwer without the other; or if all the Conſpirators but one be dead, there the Writ may be had againſt him alone. F. N. B. 116, 115. 40 Ed. 3. 19. 38 *E.*3.3. 35 *H.*6.14. 24 *H.*6.25.

2. The party that brings this Action of Conſpiracie muſt be indicted, arraigned, and acquitted; for it will not lie for a plot or preparation without an execution: Non efficit conatus niſi ſequatur effectus. Co 9.56. F.N.B. 114.

3. The proceeding and proſecution muſt be voluntary. And therefore neither this Action, nor an Action of the Caſe in general will lie againſt ſuch men as do proſecute by conſtraint or compulſion; as when men are obliged to it by oath or office, as Juſtices of Peace, or Jurors ſworn to preſent ſuch offences, or Witneſſes called to teſtifie their knowledg of ſuch things, or one doth come into a Court voluntarily and diſcover a Felon; for all this is juſtifiable. 27 Aſſ. pl. 12 *Ed.*4. 18. 21 *Ed.*3. 17. 7 *H.*4.31. 35 *H.*6.14. 20 *H.*6.5. *F.N.B.*115. l. Broo.Conſpir 4.4.

4. The proceeding muſt be malicious. And therefore if one man do proſecute another upon good ground, as when a Felony is done, and there is ſome cauſe of ſuſpition of that perſon more then another, either by the common fame or otherwiſe; as when a man is robbed, and the next Village upon a Hue and Cry doth make purſuit, and take a man they ſuſpect, and thereupon the party robbed doth indict that man, and he is acquitted; or a Coroner after a murder, ſitting ſuper viſum corporis, cannot find out the murder, and then enquiring of the firſt finders of the body, they preſent that I.S. killed him, and thereupon I.S. is indicted and acquitted; theſe proceedings are not puniſhable by any Action. Broo. Conſpir. 4. Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. Wall verſ. Hill.

5. The charge and accuſation muſt be falſe. And therefore if the Conſpiracie be ſuppoſed to indict a man for murder, and upon his arraignment it is found he killed the man, but the killing was lawful per infortunium or ſe defendendo, this Writ will not lie. *Fitz.Conſpir.*21. *Stamf.lib.*3.*ch.*12.

6. The party indicted or appealed muſt be legitimo modo acquietatus, (viz.) he muſt be acquitted upon his Trial by the Petty-Jury, after Indictment found by the Grand-Jury; or if he bring an Appeal, be Non-ſuit, or the like. And therefore if the acquittal be by a general or particular Pardon, or he is diſcharged by the inſufficiencie ficiencie of the Indictment, or the party be indicted, and an Ignoramus be found upon the Bill; in all theſe caſes this Writ of Conſpiracie will not lie, 9 Ed. 4. 12. F.N.B. 114. Co. 4.45. And yet the laſt Caſe is doubted of ſome, and the contrary is ſaid to be twice adjudged in 41 Eliz. B.R. and 20 Jac. See 19 R. 2. tit. Brief. 926. See Brownl. 1 par 9.

What matter ſhall be ſaid a good bar or plea in this action, or not.

It is a good Plea in Bar to this Action, that there hath been an Accord made between the parties, and the ſame is executed, 21 H. 6. 28. So it is a good Plea to ſhew, that the Indictment or Acquital was erroneous, albeit the party indicted did not take advantage of it, Co. 9.26. 9 E. 4.12. So it is a good Plea to ſay, That there is no ſuch Record as the Plaintiff ſets forth, 9 H. 6. 26. So any of the things before may be pleaded, That that which was done, was done by compulſion and ex officio, as by Jurors and Witneſſes, or the like, 20 H. 6.5. But it is no good Plea to ſay for one, that another is dead, hanging the Writ, 18 Ed. 4.1. Nor to ſay, that the Plaintiff was guilty of the Felony whereof he is ſo acquitted: Nor to ſay that the Record is, that the Plaintiff and divers others are indicted beſides the Plaintiff, 9 Ed. 4. 23. See Conſpiracie.

Of an Action of the Caſe for a Diſceipt.

What it is.

DIſceipt is ſaid to be a Writ, either Original, when it is brought againſt a man for ſome deceit he hath uſed or done; or Judicial, where upon ſome Writ directed to the Sheriff, he doth make a falſe Retorn, and thereby the Defendant doth loſe his Land: In both caſes he may have an Action of the Caſe for his relief; and in the laſt caſe, the act unduly done will be avoided alſo. New Terms of the Law, 154. F.N.B. 95.

What ſhall be ſaid to be a Diſceipt for which and where this Action lieth, or not. Againſt an Attorney.

If a man make his Attorney in a real Action brought againſt him, and the Attorney by agreement ſuffer Judgment to be given, and the Land be loſt, his Client may have this Action for his remedy. F.N.B. 95. Co. 6.9. Old book of Entries, 2. So if he uſe any falſhood or deceit whatſoever, ſue me for another, or another appear or plead for me without warrant, or if my Attorney in a ſuit for or againſt me ſhall do any thing without warrant, and I be hurt thereby, I may have this Action againſt him, Co. 7.1,2. Dyer 361.13 F.N.B. 98.k. So if the Attorney for Plaintiff or Defendant do any way do againſt or beſides his office, Idem, 20 H. 6.25. 15 H. 7.14. Old book of Entries, 2.

If I appoint my Attorney to take an obligation for me in my own name, and he take it to himſelf and in his own name, I may have this action againſt him, 20 H. 6. 4.25. 3 H. 7.14. Br. 117. So if it be to buy a Leaſe, and he buy it for himſelf, 3 H. 7. 14. 7. 20 H. 6.25.

If my Attorney or Counſellor diſcover my Conveyances or other ſecrets which I have ſhewed to him, to my prejudice, I may have this remedy againſt him, 11 H 6.18. Broo. 108. Or procure himſelf to be retained for the other ſide, Old book of Entries, f. 2. But if another that is not a Lawyer diſcover my Evidences I have ſhewed to him, contra. 11 H. 6.18.

Againſt a Sheriff.

If any miſchief come to me in any ſuit between me and another, by the falſe Retorn of a Sheriff, I may have my remedy by this action, Co. ſuper Lit. 259. Co. 6.9. F.N.B. 97,98. Co 9.32. Dyer 353. March Rep. f. 99. pl. 169. But if a Judgment be had by default againſt me, being all that time in priſon, and I be ſummoned according to Law, I cannot have this action, Co. ſuper Lit. 259.

In perſonating another man.

If in a ſuit or action, another perſon will come in Court, and pretend he is the party to the ſuit, and ſo let Judgment be had, or ſome other prejudice be done to the party himſelf, he may have this remedy againſt him that doth it. As for example, if one purchaſe a Writ out of the Chancery in my name, and upon that Writ a Fine is to be paid to the King; or if I have cauſe to bring an action, and another bring it in my name, and let Judgment go againſt me by Nonſuit, or the like; or if one acknowledg a Judgment, levy a Fine, ſuffer a Recovery in my name, and all this is done without my leave or privity; in all theſe caſes this action lieth for remedy, F. N. B. 96, 97, 100. 19 H. 6.44. F.N.B. So for any other thing a man ſhall do in my name, and for me in a Court, without my agreement, Idem. March, Rep. fol. 48. *pl.*76.

If a Writ be brought againſt two as Executors, and one of them is no Executor, and he that is Executor confeſs the Action, the other that is hurt hereby may have Remedy by this Action, F. N. B. 98. 9 *Ed.*4. 15.

If one acknowledge a Statute, Recognizance, or enter into a Bail in my name, if I be hereby damnified, I may have reparations by this Writ, 19 *H.*6. 44. *F.N.B.*100.

By Forgery. If any man forge a Deed in my name, and it be given in Evidence, or made uſe of againſt me, and I receive any hurt by it, I may have my Remedy by this Action, 5 *Ed.*4. 126. 116. F. N. B. 99. k. But for a forging onely this Action will not lie the ſame.

If one that is not the true Executor or Adminiſtrator get a Statute made to the Teſtator, and come into the Chancery, and ſhew the Teſtament proved, or the Letters of Adminiſtration, and ſo getteth out Writs and hath Execution, the true Executor may have this Writ againſt this counterfeit one. So if he do in the life time of the Counſee ſuppoſing him to be dead, 2 *R.*3. 8.

Sect. 27. Delays in Suits. If a man in a Suit will procure a protection for a year, and do not purſue it accordingly, but remove the ſuit, or do any ſuch act, which by matter Ex poſt facto ſhall appear to be but to make delay, the party grieved may have this Action for his relief, F. N. B. 97. 20 *H.*6. 1c. Co. 5.34. So if he get a Writ of Priviledge as a ſervant to one of the Clerks in Chancery, when in truth he is not ſo, 11 H. 6. 8. So if the Eſſoyner caſt an Eſſoyn, and warrant it not at the day, the Demandant that is hereby delaid, may have this Remedy, *Bro. Diſceit.*40.

If I enter into a Statute to pay money by a day, and pay it, and after another get the Statute and ſue it againſt me, I may have this Action againſt him that doth it, F. N. B. 100. So if any man ſue me in anothers name without his privity, I may ſue him in this Action, Fitz. Action on the Caſe 3. F. N. B. 100. 96, 97.

If one procure another to ſue and vex me without cauſe, I may have this Remedy againſt the procurer, F. N. B. 98. 116.

If one counterfeit a Letter in my name, and deliver him to my ſervant, and the effect of it is to perſwade him to deliver the counterfeiter money, and my ſervant doth deliver it; in this Caſe I may for my relief have this Action againſt the counterfeiter, adjudged. Trin. 7 Jac. B. R. Tracies Caſe.

If a Tenant in antient Demeſn levy a Fine of his Land at Common Law, it ſeems the Lord may have this Action, *Plow.*370. F. N. B. 98, 99.

In Play. If one that doth play with me, doth uſe falſe Dice and couzen me of my money thereby; I may have this action againſt him, Co. 11. 87. F. N. B. 95. New Book of Entries, 8.

In a Contract or Bargain. If a man ſell me any living or dead thing, as Cattle, Cloth, or the like, and at the time of the ſale he doth warrant it to me good and right, and it be otherwiſe, I may have this Action for my Remedy; and this will lie, albeit I have not paid all the money for the thing bought, Kelw. 89. 9 *H.*7. 22. 5 *H.*7. 41. F. N. B. 94. Old N. B. 50. And if the ſeller ſay he will warrant it, but doth not ſay to me yet this a good warranty, Paſche, 3 Jac. B. R. Curia. Old Book of Entries, 9.

Upon a Warranty.

If one ſell me any Land, or make me a Leaſe of that wherein he hath no right, I may perhaps have this Action, Goldsb. 123. pl. 8.

If one ſell me Clothes, and warrant them to be of a certain length, and they be not ſo; I may have remedy by this Action, F. N. B. 98. 11 *Ed.*4. 2.

If one ſell me a Horſe, and warrant him ſound, wind, and limb, and he hath ſome ſecret diſeaſe known to the ſeller, and not viſible to the buyer; as if he be ſhoulder-ſhot, or the like; this Action lieth for this, adjudged. Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. 11 *Ed.*4. 6. 13 *H.*4. 1. But it is held by ſome it will not lie upon a warranty, when the fault is ſuch as the ſeller did not know of it, F N. B. 94. But the Books are general, and it ſeems the Law is otherwiſe: So it is ſaid, it will not lie upon the warranty, when the fault is apparent that the buyer may diſcern it by one of his five ſenſes: As when the ſeller doth warrant the Clothes to be Red, and the buyer having ſeen them and they be Blue; or he doth warrant a Horſe to be ſound, and he hath a ſplint, ſpavy, oyl, or is lame, 13 *H.*4. 2. 7 *H.*4. 14. 5 *H.*7. 41. 20 *H.*6. 37. 31 *H.*6. 11. So when when the warranty doth extend to a thing to come, as that a Horſe ſhall carry a man thirty miles a day, Fincheſley 188. So when the warranty is made after the thing is ſold, and is no part of the Contract, and yet ſuch a warranty Ex poſt facto, if it be by Deed, may amount to a Covenant, 5 H. 7. 41. 11 Ed. 4. 6. F. N. B. 98. Paſche, 3 Jac. B R, Goldſmiths Caſe. Covenant.

If one ſell me corrupt Victual or Wine, as if he mix Wine and Water, or the like, without any warranty, I may have this Action againſt him for his Deceit, Kelw. 91. 11 Ed. 4. 6. But if one ſell corrupt or falſe and ſophiſticated Wares, it ſeems no Action of the Caſe will lie upon this ſale without a warranty be made, Dyer 75, 76. yet ſee Kelw. 89. 7 H. 4. 10. 13 H. 4. 2. 9 H. 6. 52 11 H. 6. 22. 19 H. 6. 49. F. N. B. 88. So if one ſell me an Horſe which is unſound, and I know him to be unſound, without warranty I cannot ſue him for this, F. N. B. 94. 31 H. 6. Statham action, Sur. le Caſe. pl. ult. 7 R. 2. Monſtrance de faite 160. So if one ſell corrupt Wine or Victuals, if the buyer or his ſervant taſte it before-hand, and like and accept it; in this Caſe this Action will not lie, 7 H. 4. 16. 13 H. 4. 2. Without a Warranty.

If one be about to ſell me a Leaſe, and I tell him that J. S. bid me a hundred pound for it, and thereupon he giving credit to my report, is moved to give me one hundred pound for it, and J. S. did never bid me a hundred pound for it; he cannot have this Action againſt me for this falſity, for it was his Error to believe it, adjudged. B. R. 41 Eliz. Taylors Caſe.

If one ſell me Land or Goods that are none of his own to ſell, and it is after taken away from me; or I be moleſted about it by the right owner, I may be relieved by this Action, Co. 4. 18. 42. Aſſ. 8. Bro. Action of the Caſe, 85. Fitz. 4.

If one ſell me Land, and agree to make me an Eſtate by a day, and before the day he doth make it away, or ſome Eſtate out of it, or charge upon it to another, and then doth make the Eſtate to me, I may have this Action for my relief, 3 H. 7. 14. F. N. B. 98. 20 H. 6. 34. 2 H. 7. 12.

The Plaintiff declared that he ſued D. The Defendant in an Action of the Caſe for words, and upon not guilty, the Defendant to take away the Plaintiffs credit, gave evidence, that he was a common lyer, and ſo recorded in the Star-Chamber; by reaſon whereof, the Jury gave very ſmall damage, &c. It ſeemed to the Court not actionable, Brownl. 1. part. 2.

If one convey his Land to J. S. to that intent, that J. S. ſhall convey it to J. D. to whom the Feoffor had ſold it, and J. S. refuſe to convey it to him, and ſell it to another: In this Caſe, the firſt owner of the Land may bring this Action againſt J. S. for his breach of Truſt, Hughs, Rep. 64.

As for Deceit in breaking of promiſes, we have ſpoken to it before in an Action of the Caſe upon an Aſſumpſit. See Deceipt.

Where an Action of the Caſe will lie for other miſdoings, or not-doings, or not.

THis Action of the Caſe lieth for wilful or negligent Miſ-feaſances or Non-feaſances in all the Caſes following, (viz.)

If one ſtop a Ditch or River, or ſet up Flood-gates, ſo as to make the Water overflow and drown my ground adjoyning to it, or ſtop or divert a Water-courſe running to my Mill or Houſe; ſo that I cannot have that benefit by it I was uſed to have; I may have this Action for my Remedy, Co. 4. 86. Dyer 248. 320. Co. 9. 50. F. N. B. 88, 89. 21 H. 7. 20. F. N. B. 92. But if a man ſtop or divert Water to amend a mans Banks or Mills, having by a cuſtom ſuch a liberty and power; this is juſtifiable, and will not bear an Action, 39 H. 6. 32. Bro. 77.

If one do procure another falſly and maliciouſly to indite me for any offence, or cauſe me to be arreſted, impriſoned, bound over, or arraigned for an offence, without any colour or cauſe of ſuſpition, I may have this Action againſt him for my relief, M. 4 Jac. B. R. Marſhams Caſe, adjudged. Trin. 17 Jac. B. R. Olivers Caſe. M. 7 Jac. B. R. Gambels Caſe: See for this in an Action of the Caſe for a Conſpiracy. Yet I have ſeen the report of a Caſe, that this Action will not lie, but where the party Indictment.

party indicted is acquitted upon a Trial, M. 5 Jac. B. R. Myn verſus Tailor: But the contrary is practiſed every day; and therefore I cannot receive that for Law.

If one put ſuch things in the water as do occaſion the drowning of my ſhip, I may have this Action againſt him, F.N.B. 92. If my ſheep be paſſing over Severn, and one of the paſſengers force one of them into the water, and all the reſt follow and are drowned, I may have this Action; but whether I ſhall have damages for all, or one only, the Jury muſt well conſider of it.

If one put Cats into my Warren amongſt my Conies, it ſeems I may have this Action againſt him, Old book of Entries, f. 13. Mich. 2 Jac. B. R. by two Juſtices.

Sect. 28. Hindring my Execution. If one hinder me of my Execution, as if a Sheriff come to another mans houſe where the goods of the Defendant are, and the door of the houſe being open, another man, not the owner of the houſe, ſhut the door and keep him out, or the owner of the houſe or any other man convey away the goods, and ſo prevent the Execution; this Action will lie for this, Adjudg. Hil. 20 Jac. B. R. Woods Caſe: New Book of Entries, f. 13. But if it be his own houſe, or to defend his own goods againſt the Execution, he may juſtifie it, Co. 5. 91.

Executor. If I have a Judgment againſt an Executor, and he do ſecretly and fraudulently make away his goods to prevent Execution, I may have this Action againſt him, M. 2 Car. B.R. Curia. If an Officer be coming to arreſt a man, or attach his goods at my ſuit, and another man convey away the goods or the perſon, ſo that he cannot do the work, I may have this Action againſt him, F.N.B. 102. 21 *H.*7. 40. 18 Ed. 3. 3. If a man be arreſted at my ſuit, and another man reſcue him, and ſo he get away, in this caſe I may have this remedy and recover the debt in damage from him, Hil. 20 Jac. B. R. nullo contradicente, & 7 Jac. B. R. Hawks Caſe.

Removing a Diſtreſs. If another mans cattel be on my ground damage feſant, and a ſtranger of his own head remove them, ſo as I cannot diſtrain them damage feſant, I may (as it ſeems) have this Action, Finches ley 200. Co. 5. 91. So if I be coming to diſtrain my Tenant for my Rent, and he hearing thereof drive away the cattel and prevent my diſtreſs, Hil. 20 Jac. per Juſt Haughton.

If I have provided wood for a ſpecial purpoſe, as to make Iron, or the like, and a ſtranger take it away, I may have remedy for this Action, New book of Entries, 36, 37.

Abuſing a Diſtreſs. If one diſtrain my Kine great with Calf, and by driving they loſe their Calfs, I may have this Action, F.N.B. 86. Brownl. 1 part, 12.

Burning a Houſe. If my neighbor, his ſervant or any other that ſhall come into his houſe by his good will and agreement, ſhall wilfully, or through negligence fire his, and thereby my houſe, I may have relief by this Action, 2 *H.*4. 18. Exod. 22. 6. Old book Entries. f. 8. But if my neighbor without negligence, and againſt his will, and thereby my houſe is burnt, contra. 2 *H.*4. 18. See Brownl. 1 part, 197.

Menaeing. If one threaten me, my wife, ſervants or children, that he or ſome other ſhall do us ſome hurt, and do afterwards lie in wait to do it, and by this means we be ſo put in fear that we dare not follow our buſineſs, as if my ſervant by this means dare not go abroad about his work, or depart away out of my ſervice, and I have hereby any particular loſs, I may have remedy by this Action. But for a bare threatening, without ſome doing or endeavor, as lying in wait, or the like, no Action will lie, Co. 7. 1. Kelw. 40. 9 *H.*7. 7.

Dog killing Cattel. If another man hath a dog that hath been uſed to kill cattel, and the owner of the dog hath had notice given him thereof, and this dog happen to kill my cattel, I may have this action againſt the maſter of the dog, Dyer 25. Co. 4. 18. Exod. 21. 29, 35. 36 H 6. 6. So there muſt be three things in the Caſe to bear up the action. 1. The dog muſt be uſed to bite. 2. The owner muſt have notice of it. 3. It muſt be his dog when he doth it, Paſc. 9 Jac. B.R. Londars Caſe. And it was held by Baron Denham, and accordingly he gave direction to a Jury, That if A. have ſuch a dog, and B. take him out with A. without his privity, and then he kill my cattel, that I may ſue A. for this.

If

If one remove a meer-ſtone, and I be hurt by it, I may have this Action againſt him that did it, Old Book of Entries, f. 9. Removing bounds.

If one ſtop Water, and put it out of his old courſe, and by that means it ſurround my ground to my hurt, I may have this Action, New Book of Entries, f. 18. Nuſance.

If one take out an Execution upon a Record in any Court, when he knoweth the Record is removed by a Writ of Error into another Court; it ſeems I may have this Action, Trin. 39 Eliz. Co. B.R. Willis verſ. Stroud. Abuſe of Iuſtice.

If one caſt a falſe Protection, the party delaid hereby, may have this Action, Trin. 19 Jac. B R. 21 *Ed.*4.

If one ſue me in a Court that hath not juriſdiction of my perſon, or ſue me for a thing whereof that Court hath not juriſdiction; for this unjuſt vexation, I may have this Remedy: As if one ſue me in the Admiralty or Spiritual Court for a thing not triable there, or ſue me in the Kings-Marſhalſey, when neither of us are of the Kings houſe; in theſe Caſes this Action lieth: But if one ſue me in an improper or unjuſt Action, this Action will not lie for this; for here I ſhall have coſts in the ſame Suit for my relief, *Co.*10.76. Stat. 2 *H.*4. 11. Fitz. Eſtoppell. 18. 10 *H.*6. 13. Trin. 3 Jac. B. R. Dame Waterhouſe Caſe. And yet if one ſue me for Tithes, where I ought not to pay Tithes, which is forbidden by the Statute of 32 *Eliz.*7. I may not have this Action for this, adjudged. Patridge Caſe. But if one take a falſe Oath againſt me in a proper Court, whether he come in by or without Proces, and I be prejudiced by it, I cannot have this Action againſt him, M. 38, 39 Eliz. Co. B. R. Adjudged. Damports Caſe. M. 18 Jac. B. R. Eyers Caſe. *Co.*4. 14. For it is in an ordinary courſe of Juſtice, and an Act of the Court. Suits in improper Courts or Counties. False Oath.

If one ſue me in anothers name, without his privity, though it be upon a juſt cauſe, I may have this Action againſt him; and if I have any ſpecial loſs by it, recover damages accordingly, *March. Rep. f.*48. *pl.*76. For this is Maintenance. For Maintenance.

Where one that is not of a Jury, cauſeth himſelf to be ſworn in the name of one returned of the Jury, and gives his verdict; either party may have this Action againſt him, *March. Rep. f.*81. *pl.*132.

If one hinder the Parſon that he cannot have his Tythe; he may have this Action, Co. 2 part. Inſt 650.

If one indict another, or ſue an appeal againſt another, in another County, then that wherein he dwells; this Action lieth againſt him for this wrong, Stat. 8 *H.*6. *ch.*10. 6 *H.*6. *ch.*1. Kelw. 21. So if one ſue me in a Forreign County, and there ſecretly purſue me to an Out-lawry, I having no notice of it; this Action lieth for my relief, *New Book of Entries, f.*42.

If a Prohibition be delivered to a man, to ſtay a Suit he hath againſt me in a Court, and he proceed in that Suit notwithſtanding, I may have this Action, F. N. B. 92.

If a man have a Judgment, and have levied goods to pay the Debt upon an Execution, and the Sheriff return that they are in his hands for default of buyers, and the Plaintiff knowing hereof, ſues out a new Execution which the Sheriff doth execute; no Action will lie againſt the Plaintiff for this, Paſche, 17 Jac. Co. B. R. Watrer verſ. Freeman. So if one be to pay me money at Michaelmas on a Bond, and pay it, and after I ſue the Bond, he cannot have this Action againſt me, Paſche, 17 Jac. B.R. per Ch. Juſtice.

If a Guardian be to ſue for an Infant, and do it not as he ſhould, the Infant may have remedy by this Action, Dyer 361. *Kelw.*135. *Broo.*118.

If I be bound to appear in a Court at a day, and before or againſt the day, one cauſe me to be arreſted of purpoſe and malice to prevent my appearance, and to cauſe a forfeiture of my Bond; in this Caſe I may have this Action for my relief, 7 *H.*6. 45. Fitz 4.

If a Leſſee for life do make a Leaſe for years, and this Leſſee for years doth commit waſte, for which the Leſſee for life is puniſhed; in this Caſe he ſhall have this Action againſt the Leſſee for years, and recover as much as the Leſſor doth or may recover of him, Paſche, 38 Eliz B.R. Germies Caſe. So if Leſſee for years of a houſe, Leaſe it for part of the time, and that time expire, the Leſſee continue in poſſeſſion, Between Leſſor and Leſſee, or Lord and Copiholders.

poſſeſſion, and pull down part of the houſe, the firſt Leſſee may have this Action, adjudged, Trin. 6 Car. B.R. If the Leſſee will not ſuffer his Leſſor to come into the houſe to ſee if any Waſte be done in it, the Leſſor may have remedy by this Action, Hil.20 Jac.B.R. adjudged. See Brownl. 1 part,197,329,370.

If the Lord cut down the Copiholders trees without his leave, though he leave the ſhrouds behind him, yet this Action lieth for the Copiholder againſt the Lord, M. 3 Jac. B.R. Croſs verſ. Abbot, unleſs the Lord be by cuſtom to have the trees, & Trin. 17 Jac. per Juſt. Haughton.

If a Lord cut down a tree whereof the Tenant is to have the lops, Brownl. 1 part, 197,231. See more in 142, 197, 208. 2 part, 55, 331, 332. So of a Copiholder, where the Lord doth cut down all the trees, that he cannot have fireboot, &c. Brownl. 1 part, 231.

If I deliver to another cloth to keep, and he keep it negligently; I may have this Action or Detinue againſt him, 2 H. 7. Brownl. 1 part, 152.

If I be a Baker, and buy Corn of another to deliver me ſuch a day, and he do not deliver it, I may have this Action or Debt for it, by 20 H. 7. Brownl. 1 part, 79.

If a Tenant at will of a houſe, or his ſervant, or his Leſſee at will, which is his ſervant, do voluntarily burn the houſe, the firſt Leſſor may have remedy by this action, M. 17 Jac. B.R. per Ch. Juſtice. But if he ſuffer the houſe by negligence to be burnt, or the trees negligently to be cut down, no action will lie for this, Co 5.13. But in the firſt Caſe it ſeems the proper remedy is to be againſt the Tenant at will by a geral action of Treſpaſs, and not by this action; for if he burn, pull down the houſe, or cut trees, the Will is determined, Dyer 122. 15 Ed. 4.20. Lit. f. 15.

If the Leſſor put out the Executors of the Leſſee out of their term, they may have this action, Co. 4.18. F.N.B. 92.

Diſturbance in way, Iſle-office, &c. If I be hindred in all or part of my Common, private way, or private water, Walk or Foldage, which time out of mind by preſcription or otherwiſe I have good right unto, I may have remedy by this action, New book of Entries, f. 9, 11, 14. Co. 5.76. 13 H. 7. 26. Co. 1 part, Inſt. 56. So if the inhabitants of my Pariſh have by preſcription a watering place, and it be diſturbed, every one of us may have this action, Finches Ley,187. 27 H. 8. 27. See Brownl. 1 part, 197, 231.

If one incloſe Land which ſhould lie open in a Manor, in which the Commoners have Common, or eat up the Common ſo that the Commoners have not ſufficient, every Commoner may have this action againſt the Diſturber, Co. 9. 113, 11, 54. F.N.B. 145. 21 H. 7. 40.

Sect. 29. If I have an Office, and another diſturb me in it, that I cannot uſe it, this action is given me for my relief, 6 Ed 4. 9. Broo. 94. Co. 9. 50. F. N. B. 94. So if one hinder me in my Fair or Market, that I cannot have the Toll, or diſtrain one to come to his Leet that ought to come to my Leet, I may have this action, *Old B. of Entries, f.*5, *New B. of Entries, f.*10. 11 *H.*4.64.

If I and my anceſtors time out of mind have had an Iſle in a Church for ſeats, and funeral of ſuch as die in my houſe, as belonging to my houſe, and the Parſon or any other diſturb me, I may have this remedy, New B. of Entries, f. 9.

If one grant me to have hay and ſtraw in his houſe for my two Kine all the winter long during my life, and I be diſturbed of it, it ſeems this Action lieth, Fitz. 17.

If a Statute forbid a thing without a penalty, and it be broken, and I have any ſpecial loſs by it, it is thought I may have relief by this Action, F. N. B. 90. Trin. 3 Jac. B.R.

Eſcape. If a Priſoner eſcape by the Gaolers means, either wilfully or negligently, I may have remedy againſt the Gaoler; and if he go againſt the Gaolers will, and he be forced in this Action to make me amends, he may have this Action againſt the Priſoner for his counter-remedy, 7 *H.*4.14. *Broo.*34.

For ſpoiling my goods. If I deliver Goods to W. and he deliver them over to I.S. to my uſe, and I.S. do impair them, I may have this remedy againſt I.S. 12 Ed 4.13. *Broo.*96.

If one cancel my Deed, or mar my Goods delivered to him, I may have this Action; and I may have this Action for marring my Deed, albeit the Deed be naught, Old B. of Entries, f. 7. *Broo.*382. M. 9 Jac. B.R. Conſtables Caſe.

If

If one have my Cattel to keep, and they die by Gods hand, this Action lieth not, nor albeit he promiſe to keep them ſafe, per Juſt. Bridgman. But if one have my Cattel to keep, and ſuffer them to die by his negligence, I may have this remedy, 2 *H.*7.11. Dyer 12. *Co.*5.14.

If I pledg my goods for money to another, and at the time of paiment of the money I tender the money, and require my pledg, and he will not deliver it, I may have this Action againſt him, *Old B. of Entries, f.*8. *F.N.B.*86. And if they periſh by his default, I may have this Action; but if they periſh by accident without any default of his, I can have no Action for this, *D. & St.*129. Pledge.

If one that findeth my goods doth loſe them, or ſuffer them to be impaired by his default, I may have this Action againſt him. But if they be left in a houſe which by chance is burned or falleth, or they be delivered to another to keep who doth run away with them, in theſe caſes it ſeems the Finder is not chargeable for them. But if one find my goods, and they be afterwards hurt or loſt by caſualty without any default of his, no action will lie for this, *D. & St.*38.129.

If one for hire borrow my horſe to ride to London, and he ride him further, or ride him out of the way, or forwards and backwards, and forwards again, in and upon the right way; in all theſe Caſes I may for this have this action, and eſpecially there where the horſe is hurt. So if the borrower ride him exceſſively, ſo as to hurt him. So if the borrower put him into an old rotten houſe ready to fall, and the houſe fall down and kill him. So if any one borrow or hire my goods to uſe to one purpoſe, and he uſe it to another; in all theſe caſes this action is given to me for my relief, 12 *E.*4. 8,13. 21 *E.*4. 79. D. & St. 129,128. *Co.*8.146. 2 *H.*7.11. But if one that doth borrow my horſe, by hard riding make him very weary only, ſo that he will do no work in a good while after; or if a horſe ſo borrowed die ſuddenly without any default in the borrower, in doing that for which he was hired; or if he put him in a ſtrange houſe which doth caſually fall and kill him, in all theſe caſes no action will lie, D. & St. 128,129. *Exod.*22.14,15. 40 *Ed.*3.6. If one lend me a horſe for hire for a time, and he take him from me within the time, I may have this action againſt him, *F.N.B.*86. See *Brownl.*1 part, 8, 9, 17. Upon a Loan.

If I be Executor to a man, and the goods be in another mans houſe, and I come in time convenient to fetch them away, and he do actually diſturb me, ſo that I cannot have them, I may have this action againſt him. *M.*7 Jac B.R.

If one take my beaſts or goods from me, and another take them by force from him, I may have this action againſt the ſecond taker, 12 *E.*4.12.

If I be to have Corn I have ſowed upon another mans Land, and be diſturbed in it, I may have this action. Finches Ley 187. For a diſturbance and detainer.

If I buy Corn of one, and pay him part of the money, and leave it with him, and pray him to keep it till ſuch a time, and he convert it to his own uſe, I may have remedy by this action; and if the Corn were in bags, I may have alſo a Detinue for it, *Kelw.*77. Detinue.

If I leave my goods with one to keep, or I leave them with him, and he take them into his cuſtody without any words, and the goods be loſt or waſted, I may recover the worth of them in this action, albeit he be to have nothing for keeping them: But if when he doth receive them, he receive them with a ſpecial caution and agreement, that he tell the owner he will not anſwer for them, or he will keep them as his own, or keep them as well as he can; in theſe caſes no action will lie unleſs there be an Aſſumpſit, and good conſideration for it in the Caſe, Co 4. 83. 5.13. Exod. 22. 9, 10, 11. Kelw. 77. 12 E. 4. 15. 2 H. 7. 11. Co. ſuper Lit. 89. Old book of Entries, 3, 9. Bailment.

If a Gaoler uſe me (being his priſoner) extreamly, I may have remedy by this action, *F.N.B.*93. Gaoler.

If a Ferriman undertake to carry any thing for me over the water, and by his default it doth take hurt or is ſpoiled in or after the carriage, I may have this remedy againſt him, Adjudg. Partridges Caſe. Ferriman.

If a common Carrier (although he be but newly a Carrier, or carry but for ſome perſons only, if he carry for money) take any thing for me to carry, and do hurt or Carrier.

impair it himſelf, or ſuffer it to be hurt by his apparent negligence, as if he over-load his horſe, and by that means he fall into the water, and ſo it is marred; or he drive his horſes by night, or out of the way, and is thereby robbed, I may have this Action for my relief. And yet a Carrier by a ſpecial agreement in the undertaking of the carriage may avoid the Action. If therefore when he takes them to carry, he ſaith, and agreeth that he will not anſwer them if they are loſt, he ſhall not be charged, as in caſe where he undertaketh them generally, D. & St. 139. 28. Fitz. 14, 15.

Servant. If my Bailiff that doth keep my Cattel, kill them, or cut down my Trees, or my Butler break my Hamper, or the like; I may have remedy by this Action againſt them, 18 *Ed.*4. 20. 27. *Broo.*99. Or rather by a general Action of Treſpaſs, for by this the privity and truſt is determined, *Co.*5. 13. If my Plough-man that hath the charge of my Plough, drive ſo hard as to kill or harm it, I may have this Action againſt him, 7 *H.*4. 14. Broo. 34. If I put a confidence in a man, albeit he come to my goods by my delivery, yet if he be negligent, I may have this Action. As if my Shepherd that I do truſt with my Sheep, keep them ſo careleſly, that they be drowned; or turn ſhabby by his neglect, I ſhall have remedy by this Action, 2 H. 7. 1. Co. 5. 14. If one undertake to do a work for me, as to ſet plants, or the like, and do it deceitfully, I may have remedy by this Action, *Old Book of Entries, f.*13.

Smith. If a Smith refuſe to ſhooe my horſe, being requeſted, or clie him in his ſhooing of him, ſo that I looſe the uſe of him for a time, I may have this Action againſt him, 14 *H.*7. 21. *Kelw.*40 F.N.B. 94.

Tailor. So if a Tailor ſpoil my Garment in the making of it, or a Barber ſhave me with an unwholſome Razor, ſo that my face is hurt, or cut my face with any Razor, I may ſue him in this Action. And ſo for other men that undertake to do work of their calling, and do it amiſs, F.N.B. 94. 7 H 6. 5. *Old Book of Entries f.*2. 46 Ed 3. 19.

Sect. 30. Inn-keeper. If an Inn-keeper refuſe to lodg me, or herbage my horſe when he hath room and may do it, I may have this Action againſt him, and the Conſtable of the Town may (if he will) compel him to receive me, unleſs he can give good reaſons for his refuſal, as that his houſe is full, or I have the plague, or the like, 14 H 7. 22. *Kelw.*50. Dyer 258. 5 *Ed.*4 2. Paſche, 7 Jac. Curia. But it ſeems he may refuſe the horſe or goods of any man that will not lie there himſelf, Paſche, 7 Jac. B. R. Walbrooks Caſe. If I looſe any thing out of an Inn, or common Hoſtry, I may have this Action for my relief againſt the Inn-keeper or Hoſtler; and this Action will lie, albeit the Inn-keeper did at the firſt refuſe me, and albeit the goods loſt were never delivered to the hoſt, or he were never charged with it, and albeit his houſe be full of gueſts, and albeit I kept the Key of my Chamber-door my ſelf, and leave open the door my ſelf, and albeit I be robbed by my Chamber-fellow, if the Inn-keeper placed him with me, Co. 8. 32. F.N.B. 95. Dyer 58. But in all Caſes where this Action is maintainable, theſe things muſt be in the Caſe. 1. The thing muſt be loſt. 2. The perſon to be charged muſt be a common Hoſt, he muſt be one that doth receive ſuch, Co. 8. 32. For if one leave his horſe with one that is no common Inn-holder, and it be loſt, he ſhall not anſwer it, Dyer 266. 158. And yet if he have but newly ſet up, he ſhall be chargable. 3. The party that loſt the goods muſt be a ſtranger or traveller, and therefore if it be a friend or neighbor that hath loſt it, he ſhall not have this Action, *Co.*8. 32. 4. The thing loſt muſt be gone out of the Inn, the Houſe, or the Stable; and therefore if the owner bid the Hoſtler put his horſe to graſs, and it be loſt there, the owner muſt bear it; but if the Hoſt of his own head, put him out to graſs, and he be loſt, the Hoſt muſt bear it, *Co.*8. 32 5. It muſt be loſt by the negligence of the Hoſtler, or his Servants, as in the Caſes laſt before: If the Hoſt or his man put the gueſts horſe to graſs, without the privity of the gueſt: If a horſe die in the ſtable without any default of the Hoſt or his man, they are not chargable, Paſche, 12 Jac. Co. B.R. Whitakers Caſe. So if the gueſt be robbed by his own ſervant, or his Chamber-fellow of his own choice, no Action will lie for this, *Co.*8. 32. It muſt therefore appear that the goods came into his hands. 6. The party that doth looſe muſt be a gueſt to the houſe, at the time of the loſs; for if he be a friend invited to lodg all night by the Inn-keeper, he is not chargable for this loſs, Paſche, 7 Jac. B. R. Walbrooks Caſe. 7. The goods muſt be loſt whileſt the owner is there; for if one leave his his dead goods with the Inn-holder, and he do not lie there himſelf, and the goods are ſtole, the Hoſt ſhall not anſwer them, Idem. And yet if it be a horſe or living thing which is left, by which the Inn-keeper gets, he muſt anſwer it. But if a man leave other goods, as Hats, or the like, and the Hoſt ſaith he will keep them ſafe, and the gueſt come not in many days, and theſe be loſt, he ſhall not be charged. But if the gueſt go away in the morning, and come at night, Contra, adjudged. Brownl. 1. part. 254. And Inn-holders.

If an Officer take Toll of me, where none is due, for my relief herein I may have this Action; F.N.B. 94. Officer.

If an Officer of a Court get a priviledge for one, ſuppoſing him to be his ſervant who is not ſo, and is ſued by me, and thereby my ſuit is delayed, I may have this Action againſt him, 31 Ed. 4. 22. It is ſaid by ſome, that if a publick Officer whoſe Fee is tendred to him or recoverable by Law, do refuſe to execute his Office, that he is liable to this Action. And therefore if a Sergeant at Law, refuſe to give advice to, or an Attorney to be retained by me, that I may have this Action againſt him; otherwiſe it is of a Barreſter, for he cannot ſue for his Fee: Of this opinion was Juſtice Bridgman, 17 Car. If a Sheriff, Bailiff, or any ſuch like Officer do miſdemean himſelf in not doing, or neglect, or miſdoing his office, the party hurt by this, may have this Action, eſpecially, if he give him or tender him his Fees before-hand to do it, as if he refuſe a Writ, or have a Writ or Warrant to Arreſt a man, and may do it, and doth it not, the Plaintiff in the Action may have this remedy, Co. 9. 60. 5. 89. Plow. 48. So if the Sheriff refuſe to retorn a Writ, or make a falſe retorn of a Writ, the party grieved by it may have this Action, 41 Aſſize, pl 12. 21 Ed. 3. 43. 10 H. 7. 23. Old Book of Entries, f. 11. March Rep f. 99. pl. 169. So if an Officer make a falſe Certificate, he that is hurt by it may have this Action, Co. 11. 94. Or if the Sheriff refuſe to receive a Writ againſt one he hath in execution, the Plaintiff may have this Action, 41 Aſſ. pl. 12. Co. 5. 87. So if the Sheriff have a Writ againſt a man at my Suit, and I ſhew him the man, and he do not Arreſt him, I ſhall have this Action, and albeit it be on the Sabbath day when I do ſhew him to him, yet he is bound then to Arreſt him, Paſche, 18 *Jac. Smith ſued the Sheriff of London for not putting his name to the Return of a Venire facias, by which the Judgment was reverſed for Error, and the Plaintiff recovered damages by this Action, Brownl. 1. part. 3. 12. 50.

If the Sheriff do Out-law a man, and do not proclaim him according to the Statute, 10 H. 7. 23. Broo. 122. Or if he retorn a man of a Jury that hath a Charter of Exemption, and hath given notice thereof to the Sheriff; in theſe Caſes this Action lieth, 18 H. 8. 5. If the Sheriff or his Bailiff enter upon any Franchiſe or Liberty to execute Writs, I may have this Action, but the Arreſt is good, and no falſe impriſonment lieth upon it, F.N.B. 95. Falſe Impriſonment.

If the Sheriff ſuffer a man arreſted upon an Execution to Eſcape, the Plaintiff in the firſt Action, may have this Action for his relief, 15 Ed. 4. 32. Co. 4. 95. March. Rep. f. 1. So if the priſoner be reſcued, otherwiſe it is, if it be on a mean Proces. If the Sheriff proceed in his Court after the Cauſe is removed into another Court, this Action lieth, F.N.B. 99. If the Sheriff or his Bailiff attach goods, and deliver them back again, the Plaintiff in the firſt Suit may have this Action for his remedy, F.N.B. 92. If an Eſcheater had retorned any other thing then what was found by the Jury, 9 H. 6. 66. Fitz. 6. So if an Ordinary or other Officer doth ſo, the party grieved may have this Action in theſe caſes. But all this (as it ſeems) is to be underſtood of Miniſterial Acts onely; for if they refuſe to do, or do amiſs, or do not their duty in Judicial Acts; it is ſaid this Action will not lie, 12 H 6. 3. 2 R. 3. 9, 10. 12 H. 6. 3. And this difference was agreed by the Court, M. 22 Jac. B.R. Sed quære, and ſtudy the reaſon of this diverſity. See more of this before in an Action of the Caſe for a Deceit. Eſcape.

If there be a Charge upon any man by reaſon of his Tenure of Houſe or Land, to repair any Bank, Bridge, Gutter, or private way, or the like, and he doth it not, and hereby I have a ſpecial prejudice, I may have remedy by this Action, Old Book of Entries, f. 10. Or if one be bound to repair the Sea or Severn Banks, and he neglect it, Repair.

and hereby my ground is drowned; I may have this Action, Trin. 20 Jac. B. R. But in this Case if the decay be by an extraordinary inundation or accident, no Action lieth for this, Co. 10. 139.

Suit to a Court. If one that ought to do Suit to my Court, or grinde at Mill, pay Toll in my Fair or Market, or to egist my Land with his Cattel, doth refuse to do it; this Action lieth for my Remedy, 7 H. 4. 9. 44. 21 H. 7. 16. 22 H. 6. 14. Brownl. 1: part. 204.

For not repairing. If a Lessor do not repair the decays of the housing, having notice, where he is bound to do it, or pay Subsidies, and such things as by Law he ought to do, but suffer it to fall upon the Lessee, or he be prejudiced by it; he may have remedy by this Action, 21 H. 7. 12. 22 H. 6. 14.

For damage-feasant. If one tack Cattel with me till Michaelmas, and the owner suffer them to stay longer, and do not take them away, I may have this Action against him for this injury, 45 Ed. 3. 6. 21 H. 7.

If one buy my Hay in my Meadow, and do not take it away in time, but suffer it to lie so long as to mar the Grass, I may have this remedy, Fitz. 48. So if I set out the Parsons Tithes duly, and give the Parson notice of it, and he do not take it away out of my house or ground in a reasonable time, but suffer it there to my prejudice, I may have this Action for my relief, Stucklies Case, Co. B. R. 45 Ed. 3. 6. M. 20 Jac. Denhams Case.

For disceipt. If I retain a man to purchase Land for me, and he do it not, but do his endeavor to do it, no Action lieth for it: But if he purchase it for himself, for this I may have this Action, 11 H. 6. 18. 3 H. 7. 14. 17.

For detaining writings. If I buy Land, and a stranger hath some of the Writings that doth concern the Land, and the vender and I request the Writings, and he will not deliver them, it is thought I may bring this Action, Old Book of Entries, f. 5.

Sect. 31. Mounds. If one be bound by prescription to make his Hedg next to my ground, and do it not, and thereby other mens Cattel come into my ground, or I am otherwise damnified, I may have this Action for my relief against him that should make the Hedg, Trin. 20 Jac. B. R. And so for any such like thing which a man is bound to do, as to help Wares out of the Sea with a Crane, or the like, Old Book of Entries, fol. 3.

Against a Parson for not keeping a Bull. If the Parson of the Parish be bound by the Custom to keep a common Bull or Boar, and do not, and any of the Parishioners have any loss thereby, he may be righted by this Action, adjudged. Trin. 36 Eliz. Yaldings Case. Fitz. 5 c.

For not saying Divine Service. If one ought to say Divine Service in my private Chappel, and do it not; I may have this Action, Co. 5. 73. 22 H. 6. 46. But if it be to be said to a whole Parish, no Action will lie for the neglect or omission, Co. 5. 73.

Upon a Robbery against a Hundred. If I be robbed in my travel, I may recover damages for my loss of the Hundred wherein I am robbed, by an Action in the nature of an Action of Trespass on the Case, upon the Statutes of 13 Ed. 1. 1, 2. 28 Ed. 3. 11. 27 Eliz. 13. But for the further opening hereof these things are to be known.

Where ever this Action is maintainable, there must be these things in the Case:

1. The party robbed, must with all the speed he can, give notice thereof to, and make Hue and Cry at the next Village (be it in the same or another Hundred, or Countrey) and to some of the Inhabitants dwelling in or near the place where the thing is done. And herein it is most safe for him to give notice to the Inhabitants on that side, which way the Theeves do flie, and to give notice to many of the Neighborhood; and yet see Goldsb. 56. 62. the contrary.

2. He must bring his Action for it within a year after the Robbery done, and yet not within forty days after the Robbery done.

3. He must within twenty days next before the Action brought, and Test of the Original Writ, be examined upon Oath before one of the next Justices of Peace of the County, in or neer the Hundred, whether he knoweth any of the parties that robbed him; and if he doth know any of them, then before the Action brought, he must be bound by Recognizance before that Justice effectually to prosecute them.

4. The Robbery must be done in the day time, for if it be done after the night is come; and before the day, no Action will lie for it. And yet ſee Goldsb. 56. pl. 10. 61. 70.

5. The Robbery muſt be on the High-way, for it lieth not for a Robbery upon me in my Houſe.

6. The Felons muſt be fled, for if any of them be apprehended, although it be by the party robbed himſelf, the Action fails, but purſute without taking will not excuſe the Hundred.

7. It muſt be a Robbery on the perſon; for if a man have tied his Horſe to a Hedg, and be gone aſide to untruſs-a-point, and the while the Thief take away his Cloak-bag, or a Carrier be behinde his Horſes, and not near them, and his packs be robbed before he come; no Action will lie for this.

And as to this point theſe things are further to be known.

1. That if my Servant or Carrier be robbed of my money or goods, I may ſue, but the Servant or Carrier muſt be examined upon Oath; and if he will not be examined, I have no remedy; and in theſe Caſes a man may be a witneſs in his own cauſe, but a man muſt make a very clear proof that he or a Carrier had ſo much money, or ſuch goods.

2. In caſe of the Carrier, if he be robbed of my goods, either he or I may ſue, unleſs the caſe be ſuch as he is not anſwerable, as where he doth take the goods upon a ſpecial agreement to keep them as his own, &c.

3. If one of the Robbers be not taken within forty days, it ſeems the Hundred is chargable.

4. If it be done between two Hundreds, both the Hundreds and Franchiſes within them ſhall be charged with it.

5. If it light upon any perſons in particular, they muſt help by way of contribution from the reſt, by the help of the Juſtices of Peace.

6. If any default have been in the following of the Hue and Cry by any other Hundred, the Hundred charged with the Robbery, may recover half their damage again of the Hundred in default, Co. 7. 7. Plow. 128. 27 Eliz. 13. Trin. 21 Jac. Francis Forſters Caſe, Dyer 370. 13 Ed. 1. 2. 28 Ed. 3. 11.

7. If the man be robbed of the Maſters money, the Maſter may ſue.

8. Though the party robbed, be negligent to purſue, and refuſe to lend his horſe to make Hue and Cry, this will not hinder him of his Action, ſo convenient notice be given.

9. Albeit, the party robbed do not know the Theeves at the time, and take his Oath ſo, and after he come to know them, and ſay ſo; yet this doth not take away his Action.

10. Notice given in the Hundred, five miles from the place where he is robbed, is ſufficient.

11. Notice at one Town, and Hue and Cry at another, is good. March. Rep. 10. pl. 28.

12. All that live in the Hundred at the time of Execution, ſhall be contributary to the ſame.

13. A Servant to, or a Receiver of anothers money, may alſo ſue the Hundred, as well as the Maſter. Goldsb. 24. pl. 3. See Brownl. 1. part. 155.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

Of an Account.

Sect. 1. What it is.

IT is a Writ lying where a Bailiff of a Lord, Receiver, Guardian, or other hath received money, or other things of me, or of another for me, for which he ought to render an account, and he doth refuſe to do it; by this means he may be compelled to account, and I may recover not only mine own, but damages alſo if there be cauſe, Co. ſuper Lit. 172. F.N.B. 116.

Bailiff, what.

By Bailiff here we underſtand a Servant that hath the adminiſtration or charge of lands, goods or chattels, to make the beſt benefit for the owner.

And againſt him this Action doth lie, which he hath, or might have made by his induſtry, his reaſonable charges allowed, Co ſuper Lit. 171. Co. 4. 30.

Receiver, what

By Receiver here we underſtand him that receiveth money or other things to the uſe of another to render an account, Co. ſuper Lit. 171.

Sect. 2. How the Accountant ſhall be charged. For the manner.

In this Action the Plaintiff muſt take great care that he charge the Defendant aright: For he muſt be charged (except it be in caſe of the Keepers of the Liberties) as Bailiff, Receiver, or Guardian; for otherwiſe as Apprentice, Surveyor, Comptroller, Reeve or Hayward, he cannot be charged; and therein he muſt be charged as he is. For if he be a Bailiff, the Writ muſt charge him as Bailiff; if a Receiver, the Writ muſt ſay ſo; if both, the Writ or Action muſt ſo charge him, Co. ſuper Lit. 172. When the things of which a man doth receive the profits (whether it be Lands or Goods) be incertain, as a Manor, Hundred, or the like, that may be improved, there he ſhall be charged as Bailiff: But where the things (be it profits of Courts, Forfeitures, Iſſues, Fines or Amerciaments) be certain, there he ſhall be charged as Receiver, 9 Ed. 4. 40.

If an Heir do ſue his Guardian in Soccage, for the Profits of his Lands taken before his age of fourteen years, he muſt charge him as Guardian; but if he ſue him for any of the Profits after his age of fourteen years, there he muſt charge him as Bailiff; and if he ſue a ſtranger that doth intermeddle with his Land, he muſt charge him as Guardian, Lit. ſect. 124. F.N.B. 118.

If I deliver another Wares to ſell, and he ſell them to divers perſons and receive the money; in this caſe it ſeems he is to be charged as Bailiff, not as Receiver, 4 H. 6. 27. Broo Account, 18, 53.

For the matter.

Where a Bailiff doth make a Deputy, yet the Writ muſt be againſt the Bailiff himſelf, F.N.B. 19 b.

The Bailiff ſhall be charged for the Profits which he hath, or might by his induſtry and care have reaſonably made and raiſed, his reaſonable charges and expences deducted, Co. ſuper Lit. 172.

Sect. 3. The method and proceeding in this Action.

In the Suit upon this Writ, if the Defendant cannot avoid it by Plea, Judgment is firſt given, that the Defendant muſt account; and thereupon Auditors are appointed and aſſigned by the Court to hear and examine the accounts of the party, what he hath received, and what he hath laid out; and that being done, to preſent it to the Court; and thereupon there is another Judgment entred, That the Plaintiff ſhall recover this money of the Defendant.

And if the Accomptant be found in arrearages before the Auditors, they may award him to priſon till agreement made with the party. And in this account they muſt allow him his reaſonable allowances and expences: And if the Auditors refuſe ſo to do, or charge him with more then he hath received, then (for his relief) his next friend may have a Writ out of the Chancery, called Ex parte talis, which is directed to the Sheriff to bring his body into the Exchequer before the Barons there, with four Mainpernors, there to account before them at a certain day, and to warn the

the Lord to appear at that day; or if the Plaintiff pleaſe, he may wave this courſe, and bring a new Action of Debt for the arrearages found upon the Account, or he may keep him in Priſon upon their Commitment, till he have paid or agreed. But if when the Defendant doth firſt appear, he deny he is his Bailiff or Receiver, then this Iſſue muſt firſt be tryed; and if it be found againſt the Defendant, the Judgment is, Quod computet: and if after that he will not appear, a Scire facias is to be had; and if he come not, a Capias ad computandum, and upon that an Exigent. And if the Defendant appear not upon the firſt Writ, the Plaintiff may have a Capias, and Proceſs of Outlawry, or he may have a Monſtravit, which is an old Writ (now out of uſe) and doth lie where the Bailiff or Receiver hath no Lands whereby to be diſtrained, and doth lie hid, then this Writ was granted to take his body, and this was uſed before any Proceſs of Outlawry was given in the Caſe; but after the firſt Judgment, a Capias ad computandum only lieth Stat. 13 E. 1. Weſt. cap. 11. F.N.B. 117. Plow. 393. Co. 11. 40. Stat. 52 H. 3. 24. Marlb. c. 23.

Capias ad computandum, where it lieth. Monſtravit, what it is.

The Ward may have this Writ againſt his Guardian in Soccage, Lit. 124. F.N.B. 118. Sect. 4. Who may have this Writ, or not.

One Merchant may have it againſt another Merchant, where they occupie their merchandizes and Trade together, F.N.B. 117. Alſo one Joint-Tenant, or Tenant in common, in caſe where he doth make his companion his Bailiff of his part, may have this Action againſt him: But if one Joint-Tenant, or Tenant of goods in common, deliver them to a ſtranger, he alone muſt have the Action, Co. 11. 89. F.N.B. 118.

If a ſtranger take the profits of my wives Land during marriage, and I die; my Executor, and not my wife, ſhall have this Action for the profits, F.N.B. 119.

If I deliver one money to keep till after my death, and then to diſpoſe for my ſoul, my Executor cannot recover it by this Action; for as to this money, he is my Executor.

Sect. 5. Againſt whom this Action may be brought or not.

It lieth (as before) againſt a Guardian, Joint-Tenant, Tenant in common, Merchant: But it doth not lie againſt a Joint-Tenant, or Tenant in common, by his companion, unleſs he be made Bailiff for the profits, &c. Co. ſuper Lit. 272.

It lieth againſt a man or woman Guardian, Bailiff, or Receiver, Co. 11. 89. F.N.B. 119.

Joint-Tenant. Tenant in Common. Baron & feme.

It lieth againſt the husband, for the Receipt of his wife; againſt the wife and husband, for the Receipt of the wife whilſt ſhe was ſole; but it lieth not againſt a wife without her husband, 4 E. 4. 25. Broo. Account, 68. 82. Dyer 202. 28. It lieth againſt a Body-Politique, as againſt any man, 19 H. 6. 5. It doth lie againſt a Servant that hath a command to receive for his Maſter, 19 H. 6. 5. It lieth againſt the Keeper of a Park that hath the charge of the Deer, as Bailiff of his Park, 10 H 7. 6. Alſo it lieth againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator, or any other that medleth with the Lands of the King in his caſe; but in the caſe of a common perſon it doth not lie againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator, Lit. 28. Co. 11. 84. 90. Nor doth this Action lie againſt an Infant as Bailiff or Receiver, Lit. 28. Co. upon it, 172. Nor againſt a Diſſeiſor for the profits of the Land, Co. 11. 89. upon Lit. 72. Nor againſt a Pariſh-Prieſt for Offerings, without ſome agreement, F.N.B. 119. Nor againſt a Surveyor, Apprentice, Comptrollor, Reeve or Hayward, unleſs he can be charged as Bailiff or Receiver.

Executors. Infant. Biſhop.

Sect. 6. Where and in what caſe the Action lieth, or nor, but ſome other Action, or none at all. Againſt a Guardian.

The Heir may have this Action againſt his Guardian in Soccage, to compel him to render the profits of the Land to him; but he cannot ſue him till he be fourteen years old. And if a ſtranger that is not a Prochein-Amy, enter upon the Lands of ſuch an Heir before his age of fourteen years, as Guardian to him, in this caſe he may ſue him alſo, and charge him as Guardian in Soccage; and in this caſe it ſeems he may ſue him before he is fourteen years old. But if a ſtranger enter upon an Infants Land without any ſuch pretence, the Infant is to be relieved by an Action of Treſpaſs, and not by this Action, Lit. ſect. 124. Co. upon it, 89. F.N.B. 118. Dyer 130. 21. Doct. & St. 13.

Againſt a Bailiff.

If a man will enter upon my Land upon any pretence to my uſe, and take the profits of it as for me, I may have this Writ, and charge him to account for it. So if a man will take up my Rents as my Bailiff, being ſo appointed by me, I may have this Writ, and charge him to account for them. But if one enter ſo upon my Land before I enter into it, and have the poſſeſſion of it, in this caſe it ſeems this Writ will not lie, Co. ſuper Lit. 89, 90. Dyer 277.

If a Tenant by Elegit of my Land, do make waſte upon the Land, and have received more then his due money, I may call him to an account by this Writ, 12 E. 3. 3. And if there be two Joint-Tenants, or Tenants in common of Land, and the one of them doth make the other his Bailiff of his Moity, and he will not anſwer him the profits, he may by this Writ compel him to it, Co. ſuper Lit. 172. F.N.B. 118.

Againſt a Receiver.

Property.

Countermand.

Detinue.

If I deliver to another Money, Corn or Wares to account for, or to imploy to any purpoſe, as to pay over, to beſtow, or the Wares to give to the poor; or on condition, that if he do ſuch a thing he ſhall have it, otherwiſe that he ſhall redeliver it: In all theſe caſes until the thing be done, the property is in me, and I may countermand it; and if it be not done, and the thing not reſtored to me, I may recover it by this Action, Dyer 21. 57. Plowden 92. F.N.B. 118. But in the caſe of Money, if it be in a bag ſealed, or box locked, the proper remedy is by Detinue, Broo. Acc. 52. If one receive Money of another to my uſe, or to pay over to me, and he do not pay it to me, I may have this Action againſt him, and ſo may he that delivered the money to him, Dyer 22. 57. 18 Ed. 4. 23.

Sheriff.

If a Sheriff levie money on a Fieri facias for me, and do not pay it to me, I have this Action to recover it, 13 H. 7. 1. & Curia in Co. Banco. March. f. 13. pl. 33.

Election.

Debt.

If I make a Bill under my hand and ſeal, that I received Twenty pounds of I S. to beſtow on Wares, and I do not beſtow it accordingly, in this caſe whilſt I live he may have this Action, or an Action of Debt againſt me at his choice; but after my death, he hath no remedy againſt my Executors but by Action of Debt, Dyer 20. 21.

If I deliver to another Goods or Money beyond Sea, to be delivered to me here again in England at a certain place, and he deliver it not, I may be relieved by this Action, F.N.B. 118. 9.

Executors.

Legacy.

If one deviſe that his Executors ſhall ſell his Land, and out of the profits thereof ſhall give ſuch a ſum to me; in this caſe and ſuch like, where the money is to iſſue out of the Land, I may have remedy by this Writ, and I need not ſue for it as for a Legacie, Dyer 151. & per three Juſtices.

If the Mortgagee after the paiment of the money by the Mortgager deliver him the money again, the Mortgagee may recover it by this Action, Adjudged, Mich. 4 Eliz.

If one take upon him to receive my Rents without my agreement, and do not pay them to me, I may recover them by this Action, 4 H. 7. 6. Brook Account 65.

Election.

Detinue.

If one deliver goods to deliver to me an Infant at my full age, in this caſe when I am of age I may recover them of him in this Action, or a Detinue, at my choice, Fitz. Detinue, 53.

Prerogative.

If two Joint-Merchants occupie their ſtocks, goods and merchandizes in common, to their common profit, one of them may have this Writ againſt the other; but then they muſt be both of them named Merchants in the Writ, Co. ſuper Lit. 172. And a man could not have touched the Kings lands, or medled with his goods, but he was liable to be queſtioned by this Remedy, and to be called to an account in the Exchequer, though not by this Writ, Co. 11. 91.

Privity.

But this action of Account lieth not in theſe following Caſes. 1. Where the party to be ſued claimeth the thing to his own uſe. 2. Where there is no privity between the parties, neither ex proviſione legis, called Privity in Law, as in the caſe of a Guardian, nor in Deed, by the conſent of the party; as when Goods are delivered to a ſtranger, and not to my uſe, or to be delivered over to me, there is no agreement between the parties: But in the Kings caſe, the Law will ſupply a privity. 3. When he that delivereth the things, hath taken an Obligation for ſecurity of the things delivered. 4. Where the party that hath the things, hath only a bare overſight of them, as a Bailiff of a Plough, Shepherd of Sheep, or the like, Co. 11. 93. Dyer 114. & 20. 277. Brook Account 81. 29. Co. upon Lit. 272.

If one by wrong enter into my Land, and take the profits thereof, I cannot bring this Action againſt him, Co upon Lit. 172.

So if I be a Parſon, and a ſtranger take away my Tythes after Severance, I may not have this Action againſt him, but ſome other for lack of privity: By the better Opinion, M. 14 Q. Com. B.

So if a Term of years be Deviſed to another for life, the Remainder to J. S. and the firſt Deviſee is Executor, and he enter, and make his Executor, and die, and he enter and take the profits; in this Caſe J. S. cannot bring this Action for his relief, Dyer 277.

If a man give me goods by his Will, and his Executor will not deliver them, I cannot recover them by this Action, Co. 11. 89.

So neither if Goods of the Teſtator be kept from an Executor, he cannot recover them by this Action, Co. 11. 89. And if I deliver another any live or dead Goods to his own uſe, or to any ſuch purpoſe, it ſeems I may not have this Action; but if he keep it, or take it away, I may have an Action of Detinue, and if he harm it, an Action of the Caſe: But if they be delivered to be ſold, and the moſt be made of them, there this Action lieth, Dyer 120. 22. 6 Ed. 4. 1. F.N.B. 118. B.

Detinue.

Action of the Caſe.

If a man deliver Ten pound to Merchandize, no Account doth lie for the Ten pound, for this is certain; but for the profits thereof, which is uncertain, it doth lie. So it doth not lie for the arrears of a Leaſe for years, or at will, becauſe it is certain; for uncertain things lie onely in Account, Brook Account 81. 8 H. 5. 3.

The Auditors are ſuch as are appointed by the Court to hear, and examine the Accounts of a Bailiff or Receiver, that is ſued upon this Writ in the ſame Court; and theſe are either upon the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 11. and then they are Judges of Record, but then there muſt be two at the leaſt; or one may be an Auditor at the Common Law; and when there is but one, he is ſuch an Auditor, Co. 10. 103. 2 H. 6. 41. 10 H. 6. 24.

Auditors, what they are, and their power.

Such as are Auditors within the Statute, may commit the Accountant to priſon if he be found in arrearages, and do not pay it, but then they muſt do it preſently, and cannot do it afterward; but if the Lord be arrear to his Bailiff, they cannot commit him to priſon; for he doth remain ſtill at the Common Law; yet if the Lord be found in debt to his Bailiff, or one be in debt to his Receiver, they ſhall have their Remedy againſt them, or their Executors after their death, Co. 10. 103. 27 H. 6. 8. 10 H. 6. 24 25. Plow. 17.

A Bailiff ſhall have Allowances upon his Account, but a Receiver ſhall have none. If therefore the Bailiff diſburſe any thing for his Maſter belonging to his Office, as pay his quit Rent, or the like; or if he be robbed, or ſuffer loſs by other means without any default in him, it ſhall be allowed him upon his Account; but if he pay his Maſters debts, or lay out any thing elſe, not appertaining to his Office; this will not be allowed him, Co. upon Litt. 172. 14 H. 7. 14. Plow. 14.

A Guardian alſo ſhall have an Allowance, as a Bailiff ſhall have, but not a Receiver; and therefore he is not bound to Trade with the money received, Brook Account 66.

Some Pleas are in Bar of the Account, and ſome in diſcharge before Auditors; and ſome Pleas will be allowed before Auditors that will not be allowed in Bar of the Account. As to the Account, the Defendant may plead, Ne unques ſon Receiver ou Bailiff pur Account Render; or that he was ſued for the ſame cauſe, and adjudged to Account, and Error brought upon the firſt Judgment in another Court, where it is depending, and the like, Dyer 21. Co. 11. 8. 9 Ed. 4. 50. And as to his diſcharge before Auditors, he may plead (if he be not a Receiver) he was robbed, or his diſburſements, or that he hath fully accounted with the Plaintiff himſelf, or the like, Co 4. 84. 5 Ed 4. 5. And if a new Action of Debt be brought for the arrearages found againſt the Bailiff or Receiver (as it may) the Defendant may plead Nil debet, or wage his Law, Co. 6. 53. Stat. 5 H. 4. 8.

Sect. 8. Pleas in Account, and what may be pleaded, or not.

Sect. 9. The Judgments in an Account.

There are two Judgments upon this Writ: The firſt is, Quod computet, which is interlocutory; the laſt is, Quod querens recuperet verſus defendentem, ſo much as he is found in arrearages, & damna occaſione interplacitationis.

The firſt is to account only, and upon this the Defendant may be outlawed: And then before Outlawry, if he appear and enter into account, and be found in arrearages, the Plaintiff ſhall have a definitive Judgment for the arrearages; and after the firſt Judgment, no abatement can be for any cauſe, but a Diſcontinuance or Nonſuit may be.

The firſt Judgment is but an Award of the Court, like to a Writ to enquire of Damages, and not like to a final Judgment, for there the Action is clearly determined. And theſe two Judgments depend one upon another: For if Judgment be to Account, and the Plaintiff die before he hath accounted, the Executor cannot go on in that ſuit, but he muſt begin again; and no Writ of Error will lie upon the firſt, till after the ſecond Judgment, Co. 11.40. *Broo. CHAP. V.

Of Acts, and Agent, and Patient.

General Rules touching Acts.

1. WHere many join in an Act, and ſome of them might not lawfully do it, it ſhall be ſaid the Act of him only that might lawfully do it, and not of the reſt. As if a Patron that doth ſuffer an uſurpation by ſix moneths, grant an Annuity to I.S. till he do promote him to a Benefice, and after he and the Uſurper preſent him to that Benefice, this is the act of the Uſurper in Law, and therefore the Annuity is not determined. So if the Diſſeiſee, and the Heir of the Diſſeiſor that is in by deſcent, make a Feoffment by one Deed, and give Livery, this ſhall be ſaid the Feoffment of the Heir only, and the Confirmation of the Diſſeiſee, Dyer 192. Littleton.

Eſcrow.

2. The Law regardeth Deeds and Acts more then Words; and therefore if mens deeds and words be repugnant, the Law will operate upon the deeds, and reject the words. As if one make a Deed, and deliver it to the party himſelf as an Eſcrow till certain Conditions, this ſhall take effect preſently by the delivery, *Co.*3.26.

3. The Law doth more favor and delight in ſubſtantial Acts, then circumſtantial: As in pleading, if one plead a Fine levied by a husband and wife, he need not ſhew how the wife was examined, nor before whom it was acknowledged, nor ſuch like circumſtances, Plow. 10.

4. The Law doth not require unneceſſary circumſtances: As that Proceſs ſhould be ſent out to command one to appear in Court, that is always preſent in Court, 2 *H.*6.1.

Political / Natural capacity.

5. A man cannot do an Act to himſelf, and be both Agent and Patient, unleſs it be a man that hath a double capacity. Therefore a man cannot preſent himſelf to a Benefice, nor make himſelf an Officer, nor be both Judge, and party to be judged; nor being a Sheriff, ſummon or warn himſelf, nor ſue himſelf. But a Dean and Chapter in the politique capacity, may enfeoff the ſame Dean in his natural capacity, And a man may by way of Retainer do an Act to himſelf; as if he diſſeiſe one of Land out of which he hath a Rent-charge, he may pay himſelf, 13 *H.*8.1, 2. 14 *H.*8.13. Dyer 188. 8 *H.*6.29. *Lit.*147.

6. A man ſhall not be ſuffered to do any thing againſt his own Act.

7. Every mans Act ſhall be expounded moſt ſtrongly againſt him that doth it, Plow. 140.

8. When any Act is to be done by agreement between parties, and it is not expreſſed between them by whom, but it is left doubtfully, it ſhall be done by him that hath moſt skill. As if the Condition of an Obligation be, That the Obligee ſhall bring to the Obligors ſhop, being a Tailor, three Yards of Cloth (which ſhall be ſhapen) and the Obligor ſhall make the Obligee a Gown of it; the Obligor, that is, the Tailor, muſt ſhape it, 9 E. 4. 4. Condition of an Obligation.

9. All perſonal Acts muſt be done by the perſon himſelf, and cannot be done by another, 22 E. 4. 34.

10. The Law favoreth all Acts that are done in the right of another; and therefore a man outlawed or excommunicate may ſue as Executor, 21 H. 6. 30. Executor. Outlawed perſon. Excommunicate perſon.

11. The Law hath much regard to the Original of every Act; therefore it is, that a woman Covert, when ſhe hath but the beginning of a title of Dower by marriage, may bar it by Fine, Co. 10. 49. Fine.

12. The Act of GOD ſhall prejudice no man. Neceſſitas non habet legem, Neceſſity hath no law. Act of God.

13. All the Acts of Law are very equal and juſt. Æquior eſt diſpoſitio legis quàm hominis, 2 H. 7. 5. Dyer 29. F.N B. 34. Act of Law.

14. Acts of Law are of more efficacie then the Acts of the party. Fortior eſt diſpoſitio legis quàm hominis, Co. 8. 78. 185. 6. 40. The diſpoſition of Law is of more force then that of a man.

15. Acts of Law are more eſteemed then Acts of men; and therefore Parceners that come to the Land by Act of Law, were enabled by the Common-Law to make partition, but not Joint-Tenants, or Tenants in Common, 49 E. 3. 15. Parceners. Partition.

16. The Law favoreth things executed, more then Acts executory.

17. The execution of all executory things, hath at all times retroſpect to the original cauſe, and it all maketh but one Act, though it be done at ſeveral times. Cauſa & origo eſt materia negotii, Co. 1. 99.

18. Acts done between perſons, ſhall not prejudice a ſtranger that is not party nor privy to ſuch Act. Res inter alios actæ nemini nocere debent, Co. 6. 16. (1.) Things among others ought not to prejudice any man; as if a Tenant by an entire ſervice aliens part of the Land, the ſervices ſhall be multiplied, 6 Rep. 1. (2.) No Incumbent ſhall be removed by the Stat. Weſtm. 2. by 2 Imp. an Aſſiſe of Darrein-preſentment purchaſed within ſix moneths, unleſs the Incumbent be named in the Writ, 6 Rep. 51. (3.) If a Leſſee grant a Rent-charge to a ſtranger, and after this ſurrenders to his Leſſor, though by the Surrender the Term be extinct, yet this ſhall not hurt the Eſtranger, but that he ſhall have his Rent, 8 Rep. 14. (4.) So if A. having a Rent-charge, acknowledgeth a Recognizance to B. and afterwards A. releaſeth the Rent to the Fore-tenant, yet B may extend this Rent, 7 Rep. Lit. 39. (5.) So if A. enfeoff B. upon Condition to be void upon paiment of one hundred pounds to the heirs of B. B. enfeoff C. and dieth; then it is agreed between A. and the heir of B. that A. ſhall pay but Thirty two pounds, but yet that One hundred pounds ſhall be paid, and all that ſhall be repaid except Thirty two pounds, whereupon ſuch paiment and repaiment is made, this is no performance of the Condition; for the Eſtate of a third perſon ſhall not be diveſted by Covenous paiments between other parties, 5 Rep. 96. Extinguiſhment Surrender. Condition per forme.

19. If A. make a Leaſe to B. ſaying Render Rent generally, this Rent ſhall go to A. and his heirs; but if he ſaith Render Rent to A. this ſhall not go to the heir, Dyer 45. So if A. enfeoff B. with Warrantie generally, this Warrant ſhall go to the heir of B. But if he ſaith with Warrant to B. this Warrant ſhall not go to the heir of B. Dyer 45. Reſervation expound.

20. Compulſorie Acts are more favored in Law then voluntary Acts; and therefore if an Adminiſtrator pay Debts, or diſcharge Funerals, this ſhall be good and bind the Executors. In debt for Boarding, the Defendant may make his Law: But if it be by a Gaoler againſt a Priſoner, the Priſoner cannot wage his Law, becauſe he is com- *Compulſorie Acts. Executors. Gaoler. compellable to find the Priſoner. Acts that men are forced by neceſſity and compulſion to do, are not regarded: And therefore if a man be made, his hand be held and forced to kill another, this is no offence, *Plow.*19. If a man do an Act per dures, it is void and ſhall not bind him, Idem. For, Neceſſity doth yield and give place to the Laws of God and man, *Mat.*12. *Exod.*29 1 *King.ch.*21.

Accuſation.

FOr falſe Accuſations and Surmiſes to vex men unjuſtly by Suits in Courts or otherwiſe, theſe things are to be known.

1. No man is to be condemned without due Trial, Mag. Char. 29.
2. Nor to be vexed upon any Accuſation, but according to the Law of the Land, 5 *Ed.*3 9. 28 *Ed.*3.3.

CHAP. VI.

Of an Advowſon.

Sect. 1. Advowſon, or Avowſon, what it is.

Patron, what he is.

AN Advowſon is the Reverſion of a Spiritual Living, or the Right that a man hath to him, and his Heirs for ever, to preſent a Clerk to the Ordinary for a Parſonage, or a Spiritual Benefice, when it becometh void. It is called alſo a Patronage, for he that doth preſent the Clerk, is called the Patron; for he by our Law is called a Patron, that hath the gift of ſuch a Living or Benefice, or one that hath the Advowſon of a Parſonage, Vicarage, Free Chappel, or other Spiritual Promotion: And this Advowſon is either Incident or Appendant, and ſo it doth belong to ſome Manor or Land, or Engroſs, when one hath it alone, and not by reaſon of any other thing. And he that is preſented to ſuch a Parſonage, is called a Parſon, and the Living a Parſonage; if to a Vicarage, a Vicar, and the Living a Vicarage; and both theſe are the preſent Incumbents of theſe Spiritual Livings. The Vicar is one that hath a Spiritual Promotion or Living, called a Vicarage, which was a certain portion of a Parſonage, to be allowed to the Miniſter for his maintenance, and was brought in when Diſappropriations began to be made; and both theſe Livings are ſometimes (but very improperly) called the Church; and ſo both theſe perſons in relation to the Patron, are ſaid to be, and are called his Clerk. And this grew at firſt by this means, becauſe he that had this gift or power, or his Anceſtors, or thoſe whoſe Eſtate he had, did at firſt build the Church, or elſe endowed it with ſome part of the Revenues belonging to it, or elſe the Church was ſet upon his ground, *Plow.*495. Dyer 48. *Co.*1.102. 4.37. 6.39. Litt. 119, 120. But it is now of that nature, as a mans other Inheritance, for he may give or grant it by Will or Deed, in Fee for life or years, as he may do any other thing he hath, *Co.*5.56. 15 *H.*7. 8. Or he may preſent a Miniſter to it for once, and then he may grant the next Avoidance (that is) power to another, to preſent to the Church, when it ſhall next become void, Co. upon Litt. 120. And Voidance is the want of an Incumbent on the Benefice,

Sect. 2.

And here we are to know before we go further, That ſome of theſe Spiritual Livings (as they are called) are changed into another nature, which are thoſe we now call Impropriations or Appropriations; which is ſaid to be the improper taking of Spiritual Benefits by Temporal or Secular men; and is ſaid to be where any Body-corporate or private, hath the right of a Parſonage or Spiritual Benefice in themſelves, and power alſo to take the profits thereof to their own uſe, appointing onely, and allowing a Vicar there to ſerve the Cure. And this at firſt was tollerated onely to Spiritual perſons, ſuch as were able to adminiſter holy things, and for their help to hoſpitality; and at laſt went further, to what we finde at this day; and theſe were made firſt by the Pope, the King and Ordinary; and when the Pope was caſt out, by the King and Ordinary: And at this time, and by this means, Vicars and Vicarages came in; for then a certain portion of the Parſonage was allowed and ſet apart from the reſt, to maintain the Vicar, who was to ſerve the Cure, and the Prior, Prioreſſes, &c. they had the reſt. See Agreement, Numb. 5. Plow. 495. And this might have been, and ſo may yet be diſſolved, and again become Propriate; as if it did belong to a Corporation, which is now diſſolved; or the Advowſon be recovered by an antient Title before the Appropriation; in theſe Caſes the Appropriation is gone: So that, now at this day, we have Lay Parſons and Parſonages (as they are called) and ſo are theſe Impropriators and Impropriations, which are of the nature of other Lay Inheritances. Thoſe that had theſe at firſt were called Proprietaries, and Spiritual Parſonages and Parſons, both theſe Parſons are called in our Law Incumbents; and theſe alſo, eſpecially ſuch as have the Church by Impropriation, are called Parſon Imparſonee, and are ſaid to be perpetually appropriate, Co. 11. 10. Plow. 49. 6. But we in this place ſhall ſpeak onely of the Spiritual Parſon and Parſonage. As touching which theſe things are to be known.

1. Every Church Living is to be had and obtained by Preſentation, Collation, Donation, or Election; and he that comes into any Parſonage or Vicarage at this day, muſt come into it by one of theſe means. And in ſome places there is a Nomination alſo (that is) a power that ſome man hath to name a Clerk to the Patron for the Benefice, when it is void; and then he to whom he is named, muſt have preſented him to the Ordinary; and if he had been lett of this, he might have had his Quare impedit, Dyer 327. 48. Preſentation is the Patrons gift or commendation of the Clerk elected to his Parſonage or Vicarage, by writing to the Biſhop; and this man the Biſhop did uſe to examine and allow, by taking of a Record of his name, which was called Admiſſion; and thereupon he did give him Inſtitution by theſe words, Inſtituo, &c: I appoint thee to ſuch a Benefice, &c. And then after this, the Archdeacon was wont to put the Miniſter into Poſſeſſion, by delivering to him the Ring of the Church door, ringing of the Bells, &c. And until this was done, he was not compleat Incumbent. Articuli Cleri, ch. 13. 14 H. 7. 28. Dyer 326. Co. 5. 58. 4. 79. But the Clerk being thus inducted, and in poſſeſſion ſix moneths, this is a Plenarty, and gives ſuch a Title to that Preſentation, that will bar all others in a Quare impedit, 21 Eliz. 4. 34. Kelw. 88. Co. 4. 79. 7. 38. upon Littl. 344 But this is not to be done at this day. The Collation to a Benefice, was where the Biſhop himſelf did give a Benefice that was of his own gift, by right of Patronage, or that came to him by Lapſe, Stat. 25 Ed. 3. 6. 1 Ed. 4. The Donative is where a Benefice is meerly given and collated by the Patron, without any Preſentation to the Ordinary; and with this, the Biſhop had nothing to do, but the Patron might have diſpoſed it at his pleaſure; and by this way now, moſt Clergy men come into their Livings, *Brownl. 3. The Parſon, Patron, and Ordinary, by Common Law, in reference to diverſe Acts and Conſiderations of Law, are Relatives; and they three together might have done any thing with the Parſonage or Vicarage; but now the Law is altered herein, for neither the Clerk Incumbent himſelf, nor he with the Patron and Ordinary, can do any thing to conclude, or hurt his Succeſſor, *Co.*2.44. 8 *Ed.*4.14.

Quare impedit, what it is.

If I have ſuch an Advowſon, and the Parſon Incumbent dieth, and another preſenteth upon me, or before me, and hindreth me, that I cannot take the Fruit of my Preſentment, I may have a Quare impedit for my relief. See for this F. N. B. Plow. 84 Co 10. 130. But if my Clerk be preſented, and in poſſeſſion of the Benefice, and then he is put out; in this Caſe I muſt be relieved by a Writ called an Aſſiſe of Darreine Preſentment, F. N. B. 36. And both theſe are to recover the Preſentment for this time onely. For if the Right of the Advowſon be in queſtion, it muſt be recovered by a Writ of Right of Advowſon; which is, where one hath an Advowſon in Fee, and right to preſent after the death of a Parſon to a Church, and he bring no Quare impedit, nor Darreine Preſentment, but ſuffereth a ſtranger to uſurpe (that is) to preſent his Clerk, and ſuffer this Clerk to be inſtituted and inducted: In this Caſe he muſt have this Writ of Right of Advowſon, *F. If two Clerks had claimed by two or more Patrons, and it was in queſtion who was the right Patron, and whoſe Clerk ſhall be admitted, this Writ in the nature of a Commiſſion was granted to enquire thereof.

Spoliation, what it is.

If any difference had been between two Parſons or two Incumbents claiming under one Patron, and the Right of Patronage not in queſtion, this was to be decided in the Spiritual Court, and was called Spoliation, *F N.B.*36,37.

If the Incumbent alien the Land or any of it, his Succeſſor may have a Juris utrum, *F.N B.*50.

Brief ab eveſque what it is.

Quare non admiſit, what it is.

This was a Judicial Writ that did lie where one had recovered a Preſentation by a Quare impedit or Aſſiſe of Darrein-preſentment to the Biſhop, to command him to admit his Clerk that had recovered it: And if in this caſe the Biſhop had refuſed, he might have had another Judicial Writ called a Quare non admiſit.

Sect. 4.

Ne admittas, what it is.

This is a Judicial Writ directed to the Ordinary, and may be ſued out by the Plaintiff or Defendant, to command the Ordinary that he do not admit the Clerk of the other party till the plea be determined, F.N.B. 37.

Quare incumbravit, what it is.

This is a Judicial Writ againſt the Ordinary for one that ſueth a Ne admittas, and doth after recover in a Quare impedit, or Aſſiſe de Darrein-preſentment, though it be after the ſix moneths, F.N.B. 48.

Vi laica removenda.

If debate be between two Parſons for a Church, and one of them entreth with a greater power of Lay-men and keepeth the other out by force; in this caſe, upon a Certificate of the Biſhop to the Lord Chancellor, he might have this Writ to remove the force, F.N.B.

Commendam, what it is.

This is a Benefice which being void is commended to the care of ſome ſufficient Clerk, until it can be otherwiſe provided for of a Paſtor: And of this, he that hath it is only to have the cuſtody and profits for the time, and is revocable at pleaſure.

Union or Conſolidation, what it is.

Where the Churches be ſmall, they have had a way to put two of them together, which hath been done by this means. 1. The King did give licence to do it. 2. The Patrons of the Churches having the Fee-ſimple thereof, and of full age, did conſent thereunto. 3. The Incumbents of both Churches, and thoſe of full age, did conſent thereunto. 4. The Ordinary did agree to it. And this was called Union or Conſolidation. See for this Stat. 37 *H.*8. *ch.*21. 1 *E.*6. *ch.*9. 6 *H.*7.12. 38 *H.*6.21. And there is a way now for uniting of ſmall Pariſhes and their Churches. See it in the Service of God.

The Incumbent of a Church might have reſigned or left his Parſonage or Vicarage to the Ordinary which did admit him; and this is called a Reſignation, and is like a Surrender, Plow. 498. Reſignation, what it is.

The Incumbent was ſometimes for ſome offence deprived and put out of his Benefice; and this was called a Deprivation. See for this, Co. 11, 98. Stat. 13 Eliz. ch. 12. 39 Eliz ch. 8. Deprivation, what it is.

The Benefice might have been in ſome caſes by the Ordinary ſequeſtred from the Incumbent, and ſo might the profits have been alſo ſequeſtred by him after his death for the profit of his ſucceſſor, Stat. 28 H. 8. ch. 11. IT is where any Action is brought by, or againſt an Infant; there upon motion to the Court or plea, by the Infant in the one caſe, or other party, or a ſtranger in ſome caſes, or ſometimes by the Court it ſelf ex officio, the Suit ſhall be ſtayed until the full age of the Demandant or Tenant, Broo. Age in toto. Finch. 360. Co 6. 5. Age-Prier.

In moſt caſes where the Heir is ſued for the Land he hath by Diſcent, or for ſomething out of, or concerning that Land wherein he is by Diſcent, and he be an Infant, there upon prayer made he ſhall have his Age allowed him; as in a Cui in vita, a Writ of Cuſtoms and Services, a Ceſſavit, when the Infant hath the Tenancie by Diſcent; a Writ of Det. brought upon an Eſpecialty, as for an Obligation, Statute, or for a Nomine pœne; a Writ of Error, if he be Tenant; a Writ of Ayel, if the Action were founded on his own wrong; a Writ of Formedon in Diſcender, Co. 6. 5. 9. 85. 3 H 6 46. Co. ſuper Lit. 290. Fitz. Age. Br. Joyntenancie 27. Merton cap. 5. Where Age ſhall be granted to him or them who pray for the nonage of the Defendant or Tenant.

But in ſuch Actions where the Infant is ſuppoſed to come to the Land by his own wrong, as if he be a Diſſeiſor; and in ſuch Actions as are found upon the Infants own wrong, as in a Ceſſavit of his own ceſſing; and in a Per quæ ſervitia againſt an Infant that hath the Tenancie by diſcent; and in a Formedon brought againſt the heirs of one that had an eſtate for the life of another granted to him and his heirs, where he is heir by ſpecial occupancie only; and in a Nuper obiit, when he claimeth as heir from the ſame Anceſtor; and in a Partitione facienda, where they are both in poſſeſſion; and in an Attaint; and in a Writ of Entry ſur diſſeiſon to the Anceſtor, if it be freſhly purſued; Where not.

purſued; and in a Cui in vita, or Sur cui in vita, againſt the Vouchee, being Heir to the Husband within age; (a) and in a Writ of Dower, or an Appeal; (b) and in a Writ of Execution ſued againſt his Lands, upon a Judgment had againſt his Father: In all theſe caſes he ſhall not have his Age allowed him, neither ſhall the Suit ſtay for that cauſe. And ſo it is for perſonal actions; an Infant may be ſued for a Treſpaſs, and in divers other caſes, for which ſee Enfant; and the Suit ſhall not ſtay for his Nonage, *Co.*9.85. *St.*3.*Ed*1.46. Dyer 137. *Co.ſup.Lit.*239. Co. 6.4. Dyer 321.9 *H.*6.6. 10 *H.*4.5. 9 *H.*6.46. *Weſt.*4.46. *(a) Adj. Where Age ſhall be granted, and ſuit ſtay for the Nonage of the Plaintiff or Demandant.

In all caſes where it may be preſumed to be in favor to, and for the benefit of the Infant; leſt for want of the right and full underſtanding of his Caſe, and the truth of the matter, he be prejudiced of the right deſcended to him, though but a bare Right deſcend: As in all real actions Aunceſtrel of the poſſeſſion of his Anceſtor; and in all caſes where a bare right in Fee-ſimple deſcendeth from any Anceſtor to an Infant, (which right was once in poſſeſſion) there in any action Aunceſtrel brought by the Infant, the Tenant without pleading any Plea may pray the Suit may ſtay, as in a Writ of Right, as Heir to his Anceſtor, and lay the Eſplees to be taken in his Anceſtor: So in a Formedon in the Reverter as Heir to the Donor: So if an Infant alien within age, and his Heir being an Infant ſue a Dum fuit infra ætatem: So if the Heir within age bring a Non compos mentis, the Tenant may pray it may ſtay. And in all actions Aunceſtrel poſſeſſory, as Coſenage, Beſayl, Ayle, &c. where the Anceſtor dies ſeiſed, the Tenant cannot without pleading pray the Suit may ſtay. And in Waſte, or Quid Juris clamat brought by an Infant, the Tenant plead a Leaſe, without Impeachment del waſte, and offer to attorn ſaving his priviledg, and pray the Suit may ſtay, it ſhall ſtay, Co 6.3 985. & ſuper Lit. 64. Glouc. cap. 2.

In all caſes where it cannot be preſumed to be for the benefit of the Heir within age to have the ſuit to ſtay: As where the Anceſtor died ſeiſed, and the Land deſcended to the Infant, and he hath entred and took the profits, here the ſuit ſhall not ſtay. And therefore in all real actions poſſeſſory, generally the ſuit ſhall not ſtay for the nonage of the Plaintiff or Demandant: As in a Writ of Entry ſur diſſeiſon, of a Diſſeiſon made to the Infant himſelf; in a Writ of Right upon a Deforcement to the Infant himſelf, of the Land he had by diſcent; in Eſcheat, Ceſſavit, Droit ſur Diſclaimer, Meſne, in Formedon in Diſcender, unleſs ſomething be pleaded againſt him, to which he cannot be party to try it within age: In a Writ of Entry ſur Diſſeiſon to the Anceſtor, if freſh ſuit be made to the Anceſtor; and after the Writ brought, the Anceſtor died before Trial could be had. See *Infant. Co.*6.3.9.85. *Weſtm:*1. 46:

Diverſity of Ages.

A man hath by Common-Law for ſeveral purpoſes divers Ages aſſigned to him, viz. Twelve years, at which age he may take the Oath of Allegiance in the Torn or Leet. Fourteen years, at which age he may conſent to marriage then, or agree to a marriage before; at which age alſo he being an Heir in Soccage may chooſe his Guardian, and at this age he is counted to be of diſcretion. Fifteen years, at which age the Lord ſhall have aid to make his ſon Knight. Under Twenty one, to be in Ward to the Lord by Knights ſervice; under Fourteen, to be in Ward to Guardian in Soccage; at Fourteen, to be out of Ward of the Guardian in Soccage, and then he may chooſe his Guardian; at Twenty one, to be out of Ward of Guardian in Chivalry. So alſo hath a woman divers Ages aſſigned to her, viz. Seven years, at which age the Lord her Father ſhall have aid of his Tenants to marry his daughter: Nine years, at which age a woman may deſerve and have a Dower: Twelve years, at which age ſhe may conſent to a marriage then, or agree to a marriage before: Until Fourteen to be in Ward, and then to be out of Ward: Fourteen years, at which age, if ſhe attained thereunto in the life of her Anceſtor, ſhe ſhall be out of Ward: Sixteen years, to tender her marriage, if ſhe were under the age of Fourteen at the death of her Anceſtor; and at, or after Sixteen years, ſhe is paſt the Lords tender of a husband: At ſeven years of age, not before, ſhe may promiſe marriage to a huſband. See the *Womans Lawyer, f.*52. *Co. ſuper Lit.*78. 34 *Ed.*1. *Stat.*3. Dyer 162, 213. *Co.*7.43. 6.67 *Lit.*204. 3 *H.*7.1. 21 H. 7.31. Lit. ſect. 259. 35 *H.*6.40. But at this day the Law is much changed in ſome of theſe things: For as to Wardſhips of men and women Heirs, they are quite taken away: And the age of a man to conſent to marriage, is ſixteen years, and the age of a Woman is fourteen years; and before this time they cannot agree to marriage, Act. Aug. 1 Ed. 6. 14.

Alſo there be divers ages aſſigned to Men and Women both: As for the committing of Felony, any age of diſcretion which is in ſome ſooner, in ſome longer; and of this the Judge ſhall enquire and judge. Seventeen years, at which age they may take upon them an Executorſhip, or be an Adminiſtrator. Eighteen years, at which age they may make a Teſtament, and make Executors for Goods and Chattels. Twenty and one, which is the full age of Male and Female, and then, and not till then, they may make all manner of Contracts, alienate their Lands and Goods, and in ſome places by ſpecial Cuſtoms ſooner. See Cuſtom, Co. ſuper Littl. 171. Doct. & Stu. f. 113.

Two Juſtices of the Peace in the County, or the head Officer and two Burgeſſes in Cities, &c. may appoint any woman of the age of twelve years, and under forty being unmarried, and out of ſervice, to ſerve and be retained by year, week, or day in ſuch ſort, and for ſuch wages as they ſhall think meet; and if ſhe refuſe, they may commit her to priſon till ſhe ſhall be bound to ſerve, Stat. 5 Eliz. 4.

Counter-plea of Age.

It is when one bringeth an Action, and the Tenant or Defendant either for his non-age, or the non-age of the Plaintiff or Demandant prayeth, that the Suit may ſtay; and thereupon the other replieth, and ſheweth cauſe why it ſhould not ſtay; this reply is called a Counter-plea of the Age, Terms Ley. Counter-plea. See more in Infant and Weſtm. 1. cap. 46. Stat. Gloc. 2. Weſtm. 2. 10.

CHAP. VIII.

Of Agreement.

Agreement.

AGreement is the coupling or knitting together of two or more mindes in any thing already done, or to be done. And Diſagreement is the contrary to this, when their mindes are not united, Plow. 6. Terms Ley.

Aſſent and Diſagreement.

Agreement or Diſagreement is diverſly diſtinguiſhed. For it is either real (i.) that which doth concern Lands; or perſonal, (i.) that which doth concern other matters: And theſe are alſo either General or Special: And both theſe are alſo Expreſs or Implied; alſo Verbal or Actual; and alſo Executed or Executory. That which is Executed is either Precedent, as when goods are ſold for money, and the money is paid; or when the Husband doth agree his Wife ſhall make a Will, and ſhe doth ſo, or elſe it is Subſequent. As when one doth diſſeiſe another to my uſe, and after I agree to it; or the Executor doth aſſent to a Legacy given, or the Leſſee agree to the Grant of the Reverſion. That which is Executory, is alſo either grounded on certainty, as when the Agreement is to pay ten pounds for ten buſhels of Barley at Michaelmas; or elſe it is grounded on uncertainty, as where I do agree with another at a price for all his Wood, if I like it when I ſee it. Plow. 6. Perk. 45. Co. 3. 26. Stat. 25 Ed 3. 3. 44 Ed 3. 37. 18 Ed. 4. 15. Stat. 26 H. 8. 3. 14 H. 8. 24.

1. The efficacy and operation of Agreement and Diſagreement.

Agreements of the parties in many caſes will change the courſe of the Law, as the Rule is, Modus & conventio vincunt legem; as though a Leſſee for life or years be to have Houſeboot, &c. and be not to cut Timber by Law, yet by agreement he may be abridged of the one, or granted the other: Alſo this will help faults and errors in Proces and proceedings of Law, Juxta illud, Conſenſus tollit errorem, (i.) Conſent taketh away Error. Alſo diſagreement will make a nullity of a thing that before had eſſence; as if a Deed be made to a Feme Covert, and the Husband do after diſagree to it, Co. 4. 62. 64. 5. 36. 40. Co. 5. 119.

2. What act ſhall be ſaid to be a good Agreement for the benefit or prejudice of them which agree.

Action on the Caſe.

Aſſent to a Deviſe.

Agreement to an Eſtate.

Deed.

If one promiſe to my Wife, that if I releaſe J. S. out of Execution, who is at my Suit; that if J. S. do not pay me the money by ſuch a day, he will; and when I hear of it, I do enlarge him, this is an actual or implied agreement, on which I may ground an Action, 27 H. 8. 24.

If one Deviſe a Term to A. for life, the Remainder to B. for all the Term, and make A. his Executor and die: And after A. the Executor comes to B. and intreats him to releaſe all his intereſt in the Term to A. and he doth ſo, and A. doth accept it: This is an actual aſſent to the Deviſe, Co. 10. 52.

If an Eſtate were made in Fee-ſimple or tail to a man and his wife, and he die (i.) and he have not diſagreed to it, now this is an agreement in Law, and veſteth the Eſtate in her, and if ſhe after his death enter into the Land, and take the profits: This is an actual agreement, and good to binde her, though ſhe ſay never a word, or do it never ſo ſecretly, Co. 3. 26. & 4. 4.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant Enfeoff the Lord and a Stranger, and give livery to the ſtranger in the name of both, and after the Lord doth enter and take the profits: This is a good agreement in the Lord, Co. 3. 26. 10 Ed. 4. 12.

If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife in tail, and after the Statute of 32 H. 8. the Husband alien the Land to the uſe of him and his Heirs, and after Deviſe it to his Wife for life, and die, and after his life ſhe doth enter, claiming onely the eſtate for life: This is a good agreement to bar her of taking or claiming any other eſtate. But if the agreement had been by word onely, it had been nothing worth, Co. 3. 26. Dyer, 51.

An Agreement as an Attornment, or the like may be good in the abſence of the party for whom it is, Co 2. 69.

Husband and Wife.

If the Husband and Wife ſell the Land of the Wife for money by word, and after they two levy a Fine to the Vendee and his Heirs: This will binde the Wife without any writing to prove her aſſent or agreement, Co. 2. 57.

Infant.

If an Infant a Parcener that hath made diviſion, do after at his full age take the profits of the part allotted to him: This is a good agreement affirming the diviſion, but the taking of the profits of a moyety doth not ſo, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 171.

What not.

If an Infant under the age of conſent for Marriage endow his Wife ad oſtium Eccleſiæ without Deed, and after when he is of age of conſent agree to it, yet this agreement will not make the Endowment good, Perk. 438.

If an Eſtate be made in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail to a man and his Wife, and the Husband die, and the Wife before her Entry ſay ſhe doth agree to her Eſtate, or uſe the like words; yet this will not binde her where ſhe doth demand Dower in a Court of Record, but that ſhe may there wave it, Co. 3. 26.

Deed.

If an Obligation be made to my uſe, and being tendred to me, I refuſe it, and after again I agree to it, and will accept it: Now this agreement after will not make the Obligation that was void by my refuſal good again, Co. 5. 119.

3. When the Agreement of any perſon is requiſite for the perfection of any thing done.

If a Deviſe be made of any Goods or Chattels, the agreement of the Executor is neceſſary, and the Legatee cannot take the thing deviſed without the aſſent of the Executor, but he will be a Treſpaſſer in ſo doing to the Executor. Vide Teſtament. Co. 10. 47. Plow. 540.

If a Reverſion be granted of an Eſtate for life or years, or a Rent in being; in moſt caſes it is needful the Tenant for life or years, or the Ter-tenant do agree, elſe the grant is not good, Vide Attornment. Plow. 25.

If J. S. Diſſeiſe another to my uſe, I am no Diſſeiſor, nor have any Free-hold till I agree to the Diſſeiſon, but he is the Tenant till then: And after I have agreed to it, I am the Tenant and ſeiſed of the Free-hold, 12 Ed. 4. 9. Perk. 47.

Tenant in Tail.

If a Tenant in Tail make an exchange and die, and the Land taken in exchange, deſcend to his iſſue; in this Caſe the agreement of the Iſſue is requiſit, for the exchange is not good till then, 14 H. 6. 2.

Husband and Wife.

If a Feme Covert make a Teſtament, the Husband muſt agree to it, elſe it is not good, Co. 4. 51.

If

If a Feme Covert be an Executrix, ſhe cannot releaſe any Debt or Duty to the Teſtator, without the aſſent of the Husband, *Co.*5. 27.

If any Eſtate in Poſſeſſion or Remainder, or Reverſion by Deviſe, or act executed for life, in Fee, or otherwiſe be made to me, I muſt agree to it, until it be in me, for I may refuſe it, *Doct. & Stu.*119. b.

If a Releaſe, Obligation, or Deed be made to me, and delivered to another to my uſe, here there is no need of any agreement to make the Deed good or veſt the things in me: But if I diſagree to it, by this I make the Deed void, *Co.*3. 26. Dyer 167. *Br.*5. *Co.*5. 119. Deed Delivery, where not.

If an Eſtate be made to a Woman Covert, there needs no agreement of the Husband to veſt the Eſtate in him, 3 *H.*7. 9. Woman Covert.

If a Woman hath a Right or Title of Entry into any Land, and ſhe take a Husband, and he enter, here needs no agreement of the Wife to veſt the Freehold in her: So if an Infant have a Right or Title of Entry, and a ſtranger enter to his uſe, the Eſtate is in him without agreement, *Perk.*46,47.

If the Husband and Wife levy a Fine of the Land of the Wife, and the Husband alone declare the uſe; this will binde the Wife, and her agreement to the limitation of the uſes is not needful, *Perk.*2.57. Husband and Wife.

If a Feoffment be made to a Woman Covert, her Husband being beyond the Sea, and when he returns, being not content with the Feoffment, he will not ſuffer his Wife to take the profits, nor to continue the Seiſon, but doth himſelf, and alſo cauſeth her to relinquiſh the occupation: Now hereby he ſhall be diſcharged of damages, for the time after his relinquiſhment, if the Feoffor were a Diſſeiſor, Perk. 14. 4. What act ſhall be ſaid to be a Diſagreement for the benefit or prejudice of him which diſagreeth.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant by Deed Infeoff the Lord and a ſtranger; and give livery to the ſtranger in the name of both, and after the Lord enter; and diſtrain for the Seigniory: This Act doth amount to a diſagreement of the Feoffment, and doth diveſt the Frank Tenant out of the Lord, Coo. 3. 26. 12 *Ed.*4. 12. Deed.

If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife in Tail, and after the Statute of 32 H. 8. the Husband Alien to the uſe of him and his Heirs, and then Deviſe the Land to his Wife for life; and after his death ſhe enter claiming for life onely: This is a diſagreement to the Eſtate Tail, Co. 3.26. Dyer 351. Sect. 2. Husband and Wife.

If a Woman Covert have a Joynture made to her after marriage, and after her Husbands death, ſhe brings a Writ of Dower for her Thirds: This is a diſagreement to the Joynture Co 4.5.

If an Infant marry Infra annos Nubiles, and after before any agreement when he is of age of conſent, he marry another; this is a good Diſagreement, without any words of Diſagreement at all. And it ſeems that Diſagreement, though it be not before the Ordinary is good, and they may not marry elſwhere, but the Ordinary may puniſh it, Robinſons Caſe, Curia. 7 *Jac. Broo. Gard.*124. *Co. ſuper Littl. fol.*79. a. b. Infant.

If one Deviſe Land to his Heir in Tail, the Remainder over to a ſtranger, and the Heir enter and diſagree to the Deviſe, and ſay he will have it in Fee, yet he ſhall have but an Eſtate Tail onely, *Plow.*545. *Perk.*569. What not.

If one agree to give me Twenty pounds for a parcel of Wood, if he like it when he ſee it, and when he ſee it, he do like it: Now he cannot afterwards diſagree to it, to make void the Contract again, 18 Ed. 4. 15. Contract.

If Tenant in Precipe agree not in the Countrey: This is not ſufficient to bar the Freehold, 12 H. 4. 21. Br. Surrender 28. 11 *H.*4. 62. 6 Aſſ. p. 2. Kelw. 116. b. 8. *Rep.*61. 6 Encounter. 27 *Aſſ. p.*37. Br. Surrender 28. 6 *Aſſ. p.*2. Precipe

If Lands be given to a Husband and Wife in Tail, or in Fee, and the Husband dieth, and the Wife doth afterwards diſagree to the Eſtate by words in the Countrey, and ſaith ſhe will not have it, or the like: This Verbal Wayver in the Country, will not deveſt the Franck Tenement out of her, but ſhe may enter when ſhe will after, notwithſtanding, unleſs it be in caſe where ſhe will demand Dower of by the Statute, 27 *H.*8. 10. *Co.*3. 6. Verbal Waiver

If an Eſtate were made to a Man and his Wife, and he die, and the Lord ſuppoſing the Deed.

the Husband to die ſole-ſeized, aſſign the Wife her Dower by word; which ſhe accepted, yet ſhe hath the free-hold of the whole in her; and this agreement ſhall not prejudice her, Co 3. 26.

Sect. 3.

If a Feoffment were made to four, and Livery is made to three, in the name of the reſt, and the fourth when he ſeeth the Deed ſaith, That he will not agree to it, nor have any thing in the Land; yet this Diſagreement will not diveſt the Freehold, for his Diſagreement muſt be in a Court of Record. So if a Feoffment be made to the Lord, and a ſtranger by the Tenant, and the Lord by word diſagree to it: This is no diſagreement to diveſt the Eſtate, Co. 3. 26 10 Ed. 4. 12.

5. Where and in what Caſe the Diſagreement of any perſon is neceſſary for the diveſting of any intereſt, or property.

If an Obligation be made to me, and delivered to my uſe, now if I will avoid it, I muſt diſagree to it when I hear of it. So if a Deed of Gift be made to me of Goods, if I will avoid it, I muſt diſagree to it; and by this the property will be diveſted: So if any Eſtate or an Obligation be made to a Feme Covert, if her Husband will avoid it, he muſt diſagree to it, for it is in him till diſagreement: So if any Eſtate be made to the Husband and Wife, during the Coverture, and ſhe would avoid it after his death; ſhe muſt diſagree to it, then, for till then it ſhall be in her. If an Infant be married Infra annos nubiles, and he would avoid it after, it muſt be by Diſagreement, Co. 3. 26, 27. Dyer 167. & 49. Perk. 43. Co. 5. 119. 3 H 6. 59. Broo. 6. Co. 6. 22. Perk 438.

If the Husband and Wife levy a Fine of the Land of the Wife, and the Husband alone declare the uſes, if the Wife will avoid this or alter the limitation, ſhe muſt diſagree to that Declaration, and make her Diſagreement to appear, Co. 2. 57.

6. Where and in what Caſe after Agreement, one may diſagree, where otherwiſe.

Regularly where a man hath once diſagreed to the party himſelf, unto whom the Agreement or Diſagreement is to be made; he can never after agree. But if perſons married within age of conſent do afterwards before that age, by word or writing under their hands, or before their Parents diſagree or marry others; yet after their years of conſent, they may agree again, and make the marriage good. But after Diſagreement at age of conſent, no new Agreement without a new marriage ſhall make it good, 27 H. 8. Robinſons Caſe. Curia, p. 7 Jac. Co. B. Co. ſuper Litt. f. 79.

Compoſition.

This is applied to a ſpecial kinde of Agreement, made either between Coparceners (which may be made without writing) as to preſent to a Benefice by Turn, or the like. But it cannot be between Tenants in Common without writing, for in a Q. Impedit, the Compoſition muſt be ſhewed; but if once every one have had his Turn according to the Compoſition, then after the Compoſition need not be ſhewed: Or it may be heretofore between the Parſon, and one of his Pariſh, to be diſcharged of paying Tyths for ſomething agreed on, or between the Parſon and Vicar, called ſometimes an Indowment, Dyer 29. 194. Co. 2, 38, 44, 46, 47. Co. 6. 6.

7. How it ſhall be taken.

In the Compoſition between the Parſon and Vicar, uſage is much regarded; for though the Compoſition be, that the Vicar ſhould have Garba, yet if he have never had but Hay, he ſhall have no more now. Smiths Caſe, adjudged. If the Compoſition be, that the Parſon ſhall have all the Tyth-Corn, and the Vicar all other Tythes; and one ſow his arable Land with Saffron, the Vicar ſhall have it. Vicar de Farnhams Caſe, Tr. I. Jac. Co. B. It is commonly held, That if the Vicar be to have the Tyths of all the Crofts in ſuch a place, that yet he ſhall not have the Tyths of the Crofts, parcel of the Parſonage; and if he be to have the Tyths of all the Dove-houſes of the place, yet he ſhall not have the Tyths of the Dove-houſes belonging to the Parſonage. If the Vicar by the Endowment, be to have the Tythe Hay of all the Meadows in ſuch a place, yet he ſhall not hereby have any more but the Tyths of thoſe that were Meadows at the time of the Endowment, and not of thoſe grounds that were made Meadow ſince the Endowment.

By Baron Draham a difference was taken, where an Endowment is local, as where the Vicar doth claim to have all the Tyths in ſuch grounds, and he hath always had the Tythe of that place; and it hath never been ſowed, and he have no Tyths, but the ſmall Tyths of the reſt of the Pariſh by the Endowment; yet if it be new ſowed, he ſhall have the Tythe of the Corn: But if he be to have the ſmall Tyths generally, and he hath always had Tyths in ſuch a place, and it was never ſowed, and now it is ſowed with Corn; in this Caſe he ſhall not have the Corn. 8 Car. & Sarum Aſſiſes.

Of Aid.

AId is a Subſidy or yielding of help by one to another, unto whom he oweth it, and whoſe caſe calleth for it: And ſometimes it is from an Inferior to a Superior, and ſometimes from a Superior to an Inferior, and ſometimes from one equal to another, Terms Ley Aid. Finch. 80. Aid, what.

From the Inferior to the Superior. 1. From the Subjects to the Supreme Governor, when he hath need, and that Aid is called Subſidy or Cuſtom, &c. (for which, ſee Subſidy.) 2. From the Tenant that holdeth in Soccage to the Lord; and that for two purpoſes, Firſt, To make his Son Knight, which he may do at fifteen years of age, and then he is to have this Aid. Secondly, To marry his Eldeſt Daughter, which he is to have when ſhe is of the age of ſeven years (to wit) of him that holdeth Lands in Soccage to the value of Twenty pound per annum, Twenty ſhillings & ſic pro rat': Which if the Tenant will not pay, the Supreme Governor or other Lord, may at his Election, either diſtrain him for it, or have a Writ to recover it. But Aid annexed to a Tenure in Capite, or in Knights Service, is gone by the late Order. Stat. 14 Ed. 3. 1. Co. ſuper Lit. fol. 91. 162. 25 Ed. 3. 11. F.N.B. 82. Co. 11. 44. CHAP. X.

Of Alleageance.

Allegeance, what it is.

IT is a true and faithful Obedience of the Subject to his Soveraign. And this is incident to every Subject, that assoon as they be born, they do by Birth-right ow this Obedience to the Soveraign Magistrate: Hence the Subjects are called Liege People. Co. 7. 4. 6. 5.

How many kindes of it there be.

And there are four kinde of Ligeances. The first is Natural, Absolute, Pure, and Indefinite: And this is that which is originally due by Nature and Birth-right, which is called Alta Ligeantia; and the Subject that oweth it is Subditus natus. See the excellent Learning of this matter, Co. 7. Calvins Case.

The second is Acquisit, which is not by Nature, but by Acquisition, as by Denization; and this is either absolute, as the common Denizations be to them and their Heirs, without any limitation or restraint. Secondly, Limitted, as when the King had granted Letters of Denization to an Alien, and to the Heirs-Males of his body. Thirdly, It may be granted upon condition: And this may be effected three manner of ways, 1. By Parliament; 2. By Letters Pattents which is the usual manner; 3. By Conqueſt.

The third is Local, which is made by the Law, and is when an Alien, which is in Amity, cometh into England; becaufe as long as he is here, he is within the Supreme Magistrates Protection; therefore he oweth unto him a Local Obedience at it to the oath of allegiance Look

The fourth is a Legal Obedience, which is called Legal, becaufe the Laws of the Realm have prescribed the order and form of it, which is the Oath of Allegeance, which is commonly to be taken in the Tourn, Leet, or by every man that is above the age of twelve years, Co. ſuper Litt. 68. 8. 172. b.

The effect of this Allegeance.

And by vertue hereof, they are bound to the Commandment of the Supreme Magistrate, to go any where within the Realm with him, for the defence thereof, without wages, but not out of the Realm without wages: For every Subject is bound hereby to defend him and his Realm, F. N. B. 85. F. Ptotection 100. 18 Ed 3. 8. Cromp. Jur. f 84.

Supremacy.

And that which is repugnant, and an enemy to this Allegeance, is the acknowledging and submitting to any Foreign usurped Authority, such as was the Popes sometimes here in England. All the Kings Liege people therefore, were to acknowledge and submit to the Kings Supremacy; and to oblige them hereunto, was the Oath of Supremacy Devised, which was as followeth.

Oath of Supremacy.

I. A. B. Do utterly teſtifie and declare in my Conſcience, That the Queens Highneſs is the onely Supreme Governor of this Realm, and of all other Her Highneſs Dominions and Countreys, as well in all Spiritual as Eccleſiaſtical things or cauſes, as Temporal. And that no Foreign Prince, Perſon, Prelate, State, or Potentate, hath or ought to have any Juriſdiction, Power, Superiority, Preheminence or Authority Eccleſiaſtical or Spiritual, within this Realm. And therefore I do utterly renounce and forſake all Foreign Juriſdiction, Powers, Superiorities, and Authorities; and do promiſe, That from henceforth I ſhall bear Faith and true Allegeance to the Queens Highneſs, Her Heirs and Lawful Succeſſors; and to my power, ſhall aſſiſt and defend all Juriſdictions, Priviledges, Preheminences, and Authorities, granted or belonging to the the Queens Highneſs, Her Heirs, and Succeſſors, or united and annexed to the Imperial Crown of this Realm. So help me God, and by the Contents of this Book, Stat. 1 Eliz. cap. 1.

But this Oath, and the Oath of Allegeance, as to a King, are now taken away, and not to be impoſed upon any body, in any Caſe. See the Act of Parliament, 9 Febr. 1648.

CHAP. XI.

Of an Alien.

Alien, what.

AN Alien is a Subject born out of the Legeance of our Supreme Magiſtrate, and within the Legeance of another King. And ſuch a one is either Amy, i. one of ſuch a Nation, as between whom and us there is no War, as now the French and Dutch; or elſe he is enemy, which is one of ſuch a Nation, as between whom and us there is open War. And he alſo is either perpetuus; as all Infidels, betwixt whom and us Chriſtians there is a perpetual War: Or pro tempore, as ſometimes the Spaniſh, and ſometimes the French, &c. Or ſpecialiter permiſſus, as when an enemy is ſuffered by the Supreme Magiſtrates ſafe conduct to paſs into the Country: And ſuch an Alien-enemy may be, though he be born within this Country; as the Iſſues of enemies born here that hold a Foite, or of other Alien-enemies born here, Terms Ley, Co. 7. 17, 18.

Who ſhall be ſaid an Alien born, or not.

He ſhall be ſaid an Alien that is within the definition aforeſaid. But if an Alien Amy come into England here, and have Iſſue; his Iſſue is no Alien. So if an Engliſhman go beyond Sea by Licenſe, and have Iſſue there; his iſſue is no Alien. So if one be born under our Dominions, in any other Country, as Scotland, or the like; he is no Alien; and therefore in theſe Caſes, ſuch Iſſues may inherit Land, and have all other benefits of any other Heir born in England. But if one be once an Alien, no continuance of him here in England, though it be from his Childhood, and though he be ſworn in the Kings Leet will make him a Denizen, Co. 7. 6. Stat. 25 Ed. 3. Stat. 42 Ed. 3. 10. Finches Ley, f. 84.

The capacity of an Alienée to purchaſe Lands, or gain Goods, or Chattels, and to bring Actions And what thing he may take or enjoy to his own uſe or not.

An Alien that is Amy, whether he be an Infidel baptized, or any other, though he be not made Denizen, may by the Common Law, acquire, get, and have by Gift, Trade, or any other lawful ways or means, any Treaſure or Perſonal Goods, as well as an Engliſhman. And if he be a Merchant he may take a Leaſe of a Houſe, and it ſhall be good for that ſpecial purpoſe, but not to his Executors or Adminiſtrators; or being any other, he may take a Houſe for his Habitation; and for theſe things he is capable of, he may have any Action, and the Plea of Alienée ſhall be no bar to him. But he is not capable of, neither can he have or enjoy any Eſtate of any Lands or Tenements, or any Chattels real, by deſcent, purchaſe, or otherwiſe; neither can he have a Benefice, if he be a Spiritual man, until he be made Denizen. And if he have any ſuch Eſtate, the Lord Protector will have it by his Prerogative. Neither can he have any Action real, or mixt, or perſonal, concerning Land, but in every ſuch Action, the Tenant or Defendant may plead that he was born in ſuch a place, which is not within the Kings Ligeance, and demand Judgment, if he ſhall be anſwered: Neither can ſuch Aliens ſerve in Juries here Co. 7. 1. 16. Plow. 483. Co 9. 141. Dyer 2. 283. Co ſuper F. 1. Stat. 7 R. 2. cap. 12 Terms Ley.

Alien-Friend.

Alien-Enemy.

But he that is an Alien-Enemy, ſo long as he remains ſo, is not capable of any ſuch benefit that an Alien-Amy is capable of: For if he have any goods, any man may ſeiſe them, and the Lord Protector ſhall have all his Specialties, and any man may kill him by Martial law, Co. 7. 17. Dyer 2. 12 H. 8. 4. And if he do any offence here, he he ſhall be executed by that Law, Trin. 41 Eliz. Co. B. And he is held to be an Alien-Enemy, that is ſubject to one between whom and us is open war; and not the ſubject of ſuch a King as hath denied to traffique with us, or hath done to us ſome diſcourteſie. But Ambaſſadors of any King, friend or enemy, have a privilege to come here. See more for Alien, the Statutes of 1 *H.*6. cap 3.8. 14 & 15 *H.*8. *cap.*2. 32 H 8.16.

Denizen, what.

A Denizen is one that hath been an Alien, and doth after become a Subject here; and this may be either by Act of Parliament, or by Letters-Patents: And by this he may be made Denizen in Fee ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life; and it may be conditional, or abſolute, as other things be granted; and then ſuch a Denizen is capable of all other privileges and benefits, for Eſtates of Lands and Chattels real, that a Natural born Subject is capable of, ſave only of Lands by diſcent, which no Alien can be capable of until he be Naturalized, (i) endowed with all the privileges of a natural Subject, which cannot be but by Act of Parliament: But he may have Land by purchaſe; and if he die without heir, it ſhall go to the Lord, and not to the King by Eſcheat, Co. 7.6,7. 3 *H.*6.55. Broo. 22 *H.*8.8. *Co. ſuper Lit. f.*1. CHAP. XII.

Of an Alienation, Alimony, Apparel, and Ambodexter.

Sect. 1. Alienation, what.

ALienation is nothing elſe but Alienum facere, to make a thing another mans, or to put a thing from one man to another: And if it be of Land, as it is moſt commonly underſtood, it is but the tranſmutation of the poſſeſſion: Which may be either by Deed, as by Covenant, Fine, Feoffment, or Recovery; or by Law, as by Deſcent or Eſcheat, *Terms ley. Co.*6.27. & ſuper Lit. f 118. And in ſome caſes a man hath power of himſelf ſo to do; and in ſome caſes he cannot do it without the licence and aſſent of another: As one that had held of the King in capite, could not have aliened it without the Kings licence: So if any man will now alien Lands in Fee-ſimple to a Houſe of Religion, or to a Body Incorporate, he muſt have the Lord Protectors, and the Lords licence of whom the Land is holden, firſt, or elſe he will forfeit the Land aliened. See Mortmaine, Stat. 1. Ed. 3. cap. 12. 15 R. 2. cap. 5.

Licence of Alienation, when it is required, or not.

If the Lands that had been alienated from one man to another had been of the Kings in capite, or if any Honor in capite or in Serjeanty by Knights ſervice, or Soccage in chief; in theſe caſes the Kings licenſe muſt firſt have been had, and a Fine paid to him before the Alienation had been made, whether it had been Lands Rent, Meſualty, Advowſon, or a Reverſion that had been ſo alienated, if there be any Eſtate of Freehold that is aliened, to the end that the King might ſtill be ſure of his Tenant; as in theſe caſes following.

1. If there be three Joint-Tenants, and one releaſe to one of his Companions; hereupon a Licenſe muſt be had, and a Fine paid.

2. If any Eſtate be made of ſuch Land in Fee-ſimple, Tail, or for Life.

3. If a Partition had been in the Chancery by the Kings Tenants, and it had not been equal, and after they had altered it.

4. If a Fine or Recovery had been of Land to divers uſes, and eſtates of Freehold had been created by this means, there muſt have been a Licenſe; and ſo muſt it have been, though the uſes and eſtates had been with power of revocation or alteration; but in that caſe if the uſes had been after revoked, there had not needed a new licenſe.

But

But the Tenure in Capite being now gone, no Licence is requiſite upon ſuch an Alienation. See Broo. 27. 18. 17. 33. 45 Ed. 3. 62. 3 H. 4. 8. Br. 4. 33 H. 6. 4. 11 H. 4. 33. 43 Ed. 3. 6. Co. 6. 27. Alſo when Lands are aliened in Mortmain, the Lord Protectors Licence muſt firſt be had, elſe the Lands are forfeit. But Licence for Alienation of Capite-Land, is taken away by Parliament, Order 24 of Febr. 1645.

But of the Lands held of the King in Burgage-tenure, or of any Honor of his, and not in Capite, there the Tenant might have aliened without any Licence. So alſo though the Lands be held of him in Capite, or otherwiſe as above, if it be in theſe caſes following.

1. When by the Alienation no Freehold is made, but there is only a Leaſe for years made.
2. When there is in the caſe but a bare Releaſe of a Right by way of extinguiſhment, as when it is by a Fine ſur Releaſe, &c.
3. Where there be three Joint-Tenants, and one releaſe to the other two.
4. Where there is only a Rent granted out of ſuch Land by the Tenant.
5. When there is a new Declaration of Uſes only, Stamf. Pr. fol 33. Broo. 296. Co. 6. 27.

Theſe Licences ſo had from the King as before, muſt have been purſued, elſe the Licence would not help them that did alien: And therefore if the Licence had been to alien the third part, and he had aliened the whole, this Licence was void for all. So if the Licence be to alien the Manor of Dale, with all his Lands and Tenements in Dale; and he alien by Fine a certain number of acres (as he muſt in Fine) this Licence will not help him. So if the Licence be to alien the Manor of Dale rendring Five pounds rent, and he alien the Manor excepting twelve acres rendring Five pounds rent, this variance maketh the Licence inſufficient for this Alienation. And then in all theſe caſes it is an Alienation without Licence, 4 Ed. 6. 6. Br. 30. 23. Sect. 2. Licenſe purſue, or not.

But if the Licence be to alien to I. S. and W. S. and the Conveyanee is made to them to divers uſes, this is a good Licence, and the Licence need not mention the uſes of a Deed, Fine, or Recovery. So if a Licence be to purchaſe Lands or Tenements, and he purchaſe an Advowſon, this is a good Licence; for an Advowſon is a Tenement, Co. 6. 27. Br. 35.

Upon this Licence had from the King, the party was to pay a Fine or ſum of money to the King, viz. upon the Alienation of ſuch Land as was held of him, or any Honor of his in capite, the third part of the yearly value; and for a Licence to alien in Mortmain, the value of three years profit, which is by compoſition to be paid preſently before the Licence be granted, Stamf. Pr. cap. 27. 8 Ed. 4. 4. Br. 82. 205. Co. 9. 107. 2. 80. But if there had been an Alienation without Licence by the Kings Tenant, where a Licence ought to have been had, there (though the alienation be good) yet the party muſt ſue out his Pardon from the King, and the King muſt have recompence for this wrong done him, which was a Fine only, which is the value of the Land for the year; and for this the King might have ſeiſed the Land and kept it till he were ſatisfied for his wrong, and till he had ſued out his pardon for it: But heretofore the Land it ſelf was held to be forfeited, Co. ſuper Lit. f. 43. 1 Ed. 3. 12. Co. 6 27. But now all Fines, Licences, Seiſures, and Pardons for Alienation and Charges incident thereunto, are taken away by Parliament Order. For reſtraint of Alienation, r. Conditions repugnant. Fine for Alienation, what.

Of Alimony.

FOr Alimony, which is maintenance for a Woman caſt off by her Husband, this was recoverable by the Woman againſt her Husband in the Spiritual Court; but now there is no Court will relieve her but the Chancery. See Chancery. Alimony.

Of Apparel.

Apparel. THe Statute that was made in 24 H. 3. againſt exceſs of Apparel is now repealed; ſo that there is now no Common or Statute-Law touching Apparel, but that every one may wear what he will, 21 Jac. 25.

Hats and Caps. None may make or work any Felt or Hat of or with any foreign wooll or ſtuff, unleſs he have been firſt Apprentice or Covenant-ſervant to ſuch myſterie of Felt or Hat-making ſeven years at the leaſt, ſub pœna of Five pounds a moneth, and the loſs of all the Hats made while he doth ſo work, Stat. 8 Eliz. cap. 11; & 1 Jac. cap. 17.

None ſhall make or ſell any Cap or other thing, or Felts, but only Hats, nor any Cap of any woollen cloth not knit. None ſhall dye any Cap with Bark or Swarf, but only with Copperas and Gall, or with Wood and Madder.

None ſhall thick or full any Cap in any Mill, until the ſame be firſt well ſcoured and cloſed upon the back, and half thicked at the leaſt in the Foot-ſtock.

No Hat-maker ſhall take above two Apprentices at a time, and them not under ſeven years. See for Hat-makers in Norwich, 33 H. 8. cap. 16. 1 Ed. 6. cap. 6. 5 Ed 6. cap 7.

Of Ambodexter.

AN Ambodexter is (by our Law) one that being a Juror taketh money to ſay his Verdict of the one ſide, and of the other. For this offence he is to be fined ten times ſo much as he takes, and impriſoned, and never to ſerve on a Jury again, 38 Ed 3 12. 5 Ed. 3. 10.

CHAP. XIII.

Of an Appeal.

Appeal, what. THis word hath two ſignifications: For ſometimes it doth intend an accuſation or ſuit given to one for ſome wrong done to him, or his friend, againſt the wrong-doer: Of which read Offences. And ſometimes it is uſed in our Law, as it is in the Civil Law, for the removing of a cauſe in any Eccleſiaſtical Court from an inferior Judg to a ſuperior, when the Plaintiff or Defendant refuſeth the Judg, and deſireth to have his Cauſe tryed in the higher Court before the ſuperior Judg; and then he is ſaid to appeal, as Paul did from Feſtus to Cæſar the Emperor: And he that doth ſo appeal, is called an Appealant, 24 H. 8. 12. 1 Eliz. 1. Co. ſuper Lit.

Appealant.

In what caſes Appeal may be had or not, and how and before whom.

In all cauſes Teſtamentary, cauſes of Matrimony and Divorces, Tythes, Oblations and Obventions, the party grieved that had cauſe to ſue, provoke or procure any Appeal, might ſo do: But he muſt have it within this Realm, and not elſwhere; and in this manner, viz. Firſt from the Archdeacon or his Official, if the matter be there begun, to the Biſhop Dioceſan of the ſame See; and if it be begun before the Biſhop Dioceſan or his Commiſſary, then from them within fifteen days after the ſentence given, to the Archbiſhop of that Province, and there it muſt definitively have been ordered without any further Appeal. And that for lack of Juſtice at or in any of the Courts of the Archbiſhops, or in any of the Kings Dominions, the party grieved might have appealed to the King in Chancery, and there by ſpecial Commiſſioners called the Delegates appointed by the King, the matter ſhould have been determined without further Appeal. And if any ſuch cauſe or matter had in any wiſe touched or concerned the King, the party grieved might have Appeal from any of the ſaid Courts to the Upper-Houſe of Convocation, there to be ended without further Appeal, 24 H. 8. 12. 25 H. 8. 19. 1 Eliz. 1. 32 H. 8. 6. But in no caſe may a man attempt or labor to have an Appeal to the Pope, or Rome, or any other perſon or place out of the Realm, without great danger: For which ſee Præmunire, 24 H. 8. 12.

But in caſe of privation of a Preſident of a College, or any ſuch like matter which is a meer temporal thing, and as by Patron, no Appeal lieth upon theſe Statutes. As if the Preſident of Magdalen-College in Oxford had been deprived by the Biſhop of Wincheſter the Viſitor, he could not have had an Appeal to the Delegates; for this is out of the Statutes: But it may be he might have had an Aſſiſe, Dyer 209. P. 20.

And in all caſes, he that doth ſue an Appeal, muſt purſue the order of theſe Statutes, or his Appeal ſhall be diſallowed, and he ſhall have no benefit by it, Dyer 240. P. 46.

If a Suit begin before the Admiral touching any Civil or Marine matter, the party grieved may appeal from the ſentence of the Admiral into the Chancery before the King, and he is to delegate Commiſſioners to end it without further Appeal, 8 Eliz. 5. 25 H. 8. 19.

CHAP. XIV.

Of Apportionment.

Apportionment.

IT is the dividing into parts of ſome thing divideable (and not entire and whole) by reaſon of the diviſion or alteration of ſome other things out of which that did come, or on which it hath dependance, or otherwiſe; as Rents, Commons, Conditions, Contracts, Obligations, Suits of Court, Debts, Covenants, Authorities, Damages: About which all the Queſtions touching Apportionment are moved, Terms ley. Co. ſuper Lit. 147.

And theſe things divided or altered which cauſe this Apportionment, are ſo divided or altered ſometimes by the act of God alone, and ſometimes by the act of God and Law together, and ſometimes by the act of Law alone, and ſometimes by the act of the Law and the party together, and ſometimes by the act of the party alone: And by theſe means ſuch Rents Commons, &c. that did iſſue out of them, or depend upon them, be ſometimes extinct, and ſometimes ſuſpended, and ſometimes apportioned, and ſometimes continue entire and unaltered, as in the Examples following, Co. 10. 128.

1. The act of God and Law together.
2. The act of the Law alone.
3. The act of the Law and party together.
4. The act of the party alone.

Rents and Services ſeverable, Commons, Conditions annexed for Eſtates, may be apportioned. But Conditions of Obligations, Contracts, Suit of Court, and Services entire are not apportionable. So Aſſumpſits, March 101. pl. 172. 57 pl. 61.

2. What things are apportionable, and what not.

A Rent-charge ſhall be apportioned by act of Law, and by act of Law when it is mixed with the act of the party, but not by the act of the party, Co. ſuper Lit. 49. & 150.

If I let a flock of Sheep, Horſes, or Land to one for years rendring Rent, and part of the Sheep be killed, Houſes burnt, or Land drowned by the act of God, if ſo be it be without any negligence or default in the Leſſee; here the Rent ſhall be apportioned with reſpect to ſo much as is gone, Dyer 56.

3. Where and in what caſe Apportionment may be on Rent or other Services.

If a Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent at Eaſter, and before the Feaſt part of the Land be evicted, and the Leſſor live till after Eaſter, and then die; here the Rent ſhall be apportioned, and ſo much abated as is of the Land evicted, Co. 10. 126.

If I let Lands or Goods for years rendring Rent, and during the Term a ſtranger recover part of the Lands or Goods by a good Title; in this Case the Rent shall be abated and apportioned, having respect to what is recovered: As if I be seized of two Acres of Land, one in Fee, and the other in Tail: And I make a gift in Tail, Lease for life or years of both, rendring Rent, and after my death the Issue in Tail avoideth the Gift or Lease for the one Acre, here the Rent shall be apportioned. Co. 10. 128. Dyer 81. 67. 212. 38. 56. 7 *H.*7. 4. Co. super Lit. 148.

If I be seized of two Acres of Land, the one in Borough-English, the other in Gavel-kinde, for years, rendring Rent, and have Issue two sons and die, and the Land go betwixt them (as it must) in this Case the Rent shall be divided between them, Dyer 46.

If a Lessee for years or life do surrender part of his Land, or do commit Wast, or make a Feoffment of part of his Land, and the Lessor recover the place wasted, or enter on the Land aliened for a Forfeiture (as he may) or if he enter upon part upon the breach of a Condition: In this Case the Rent shall be apportioned, and he shall pay but pro rata. of the Land is left in his hands, Dyer 45. Co. super Lit. 148. 214.

If my Father purchase part of the Land, out of which I have a Rent-charge, and dye, and that part of the Land descend upon me; in this Case the Rent shall be apportioned, and I shall recover a part of the Rent still, according to the value of the Land: And so it is if the Tenant of the Land make a Gift in tail of part of the Land to my Father, and this descend to me; and so it is also if my Father be Grantee of a Rent in Fee, and I purchase part of the Land charged, and my Father dieth, and the Rent descend to me; and so it is also if the Grantee grant the Rent to the Tenant of the Land and a stranger, the Rent shall be apportioned, and is extinct but for a Moyety, and the Grantee shall have a part of it of the stranger still. And in all Cases where any part of the Land descend to him that hath the Rent-charge, the Rent shall be apportioned. See Co. super Litt. 149. f. Lit. Sect. 224. 34 *H.*6. 41. Plow. 419. Co. super Lit. 149.

If a man have Issue two Daughters, and grant a Rent-charge out of his Land to one of them, and dieth, the Rent shall be apportioned: And so if the Grantee in this Case enfeoff another of her part of the Land, yet the one half of the Rent remaineth out of her Sisters part, and after partition shall be revived: So if one have a Son and Daughter, by one Venter, and a Daughter by another, and grant a Rent-charge to his Son in Fee, and he die, and the Rent come to his Sister, and after the Land come between them, Co super Lit. 225. 7 *H.*6. 3. 34 Ass. p. 15.

If one seised in Fee of Land, take a Wife, and make a Feoffment, and the Feoffee grant a Rent-charge to the Husband and Wife, and after the Husband die, and the Wife is endowed of part of the Land, out of which the Rent doth go: Now two parts of the Rent shall continue and be apportioned, and the third part extinct, Co. 9. 135. 20 Ass. p. 10.

One having a Rent-charge of Twenty shillings, grants Ten shillings, part thereof, to a stranger; this is a good Grant, and thereby the Rent is apportioned, 9 H. 6. B. 13. A.

One having a Rent-charge of Twenty pounds, releaseth to the Ter-tenant five pounds parcel thereof; this is good. Old Tenures 10 B.

A. doth lease to B. for life, rendring a Rent, and doth after release part of the Rent; this is good. 9 Ed. 3. 8. Br. Release 83.

Rent-seck which was once Rent-service, is apportionable.

If two Daughters, and Heirs be, and one is full age, and the other not, the Services shall be apportioned, and the Lord shall have the Moyety still, 7 H. 6. 3. Br. Entring 17.

If one have a Rent-service of Money, or Corn, or Pepper, &c. Issuing out of Land and purchase part of it in Fee, the whole Rent is not extinct, but shall be apportioned juxta valorem terræ; and so also it is of other Services if they be dividable, but if they be entire and they be valuable as a horse, or the like, then they be gone and extinct; But if it be Homage or Fealty, that doth continue: And if parcel of the Land held by such entire Service come to the Lord by descent; if the Service be be Suit-ſervice that are annual, that they are extinct alſo; and if they be yearly and valuable as a Horſe, or the like, that they ſhall be multiplied, and not apportioned in neither Caſe: So if the Service be pro bono publico, yet they ſhall not be apportioned, but continue entire ſtill. Co. ſuper Litt. 143. 149. Co. 9. 135. Co. ſuper Lit. 149.

If one Leaſe three Acres, rendring three ſhillings Rent, and a ſtranger buy the Fee of one of them, or the Leſſor Deviſe by Will the Fee of one of them, now the Rent ſhall be divided, and the Purchaſor ſhall have ſeven pence of the Rent. So if the Tenant make a Feoffment of parcel of the Land, out of which Rent is to go to a ſtranger: So if the Leſſee or his Aſſignee grant or ſurrender one Acre to the Leſſor; in this Caſe the Rent ſhall be divided, and the Leſſee ſhall pay leſs Rent by ſo much. And this is true, though it be in Caſe of the King, that the Reverſion is his, Co. ſuper Litt. f. 149. 148. 147. Dyer f. 4. & 5.

If there be Leſſee for years, rendring Rent, and he aſſign his Term to the Wife of the Leſſor, and a ſtranger, the Rent ſhall be apportioned, and the ſtranger ſhall pay half during the life of the Wife, Plow. 10.

If one make a Leaſe of two Acres, rendring Rent two ſhillings, on condition, that if he do ſuch an Act, he ſhall have the Fee; now if the Contingent happen, and that he have the Fee of one, then the Rent ſhall be apportioned, Co. ſuper Littl. 148.

If the Gardein in Chivalry entreth into the Land of his Ward within age, now is the Seigniory ſuſpended: But if the Wife of the Tenant be endowed of a third part of the Tenancy; in this Caſe the Rent ſhall be apportioned, and ſhe ſhall pay to the Lord a third part of the Rent. Fitz. Dower 138. Co. ſuper Lit. 148.

If the Tenant give a part of the Tenancy to the Father of the Lord in Tail, the Father dieth, and this deſcends to the Lord; in this Caſe the Rent or Service ſhall be apportioned, and ſo is the Law of a Rent-charge, Co. ſuper Littl. 148.

If two Joynt-tenants or Co-parceners be of a Seigniory, and one of them Diſſeiſe the Tenant of the Land, the Service ſhall be divided, and the other Joynt-tenant or Co-parcener ſhall diſtrain for his or her Moyety, Co. ſuper Litt 148.

Condition.

Where Land to which a Condition is annexed, is divided by Act in Law, as where part is recovered by an elder title, or part doth deſcend, there the Condition ſhall be apportioned, and ſhall remain to the reſidue, Dyer 309. Co. 5. 59.

If one be ſeiſed of two Acres of Land of ſeveral natures (i.) the one in Fee-ſimple, the other of the Cuſtom of Burrough-Engliſh, and make an Eſtate of them both together on condition, and die, and one Acre deſcend to one Heir, and another to another Heir; in this Caſe the Condition ſhall be apportioned, and both the Heirs ſhall take advantage of it, Co. 4. 120. Dyer 309.

4. How and in what a Condition may be apportioned.

If a Leaſe be made on Condition, and the Leſſee do Alien part of the Land leaſed in Fee, or commit waſte, and ſo commit a Forfeiture, and the Leſſor enter, or recover it from him; in this Caſe the Condition ſhall be apportioned, and remains with the reſidue: For a Condition may be apportioned by Act of Law, but not by the act of the party, Co 4. 120.

Of a Common.

If one purchaſe part of the Land out of which another hath Common Appendant; in this Caſe the Common ſhall be apportioned, Co. 8. 79. 4. 37. Dyer 339.

Apportionment in Common Appendant and Appurtenant.

If one have Common Appendant or Appurtenant to Land, and he fell away part of it; in this Caſe the Purchaſer ſhall have Common pro rata, and there ſhall be an Apportionment, Co 8. 79. 4. 37.

If he out of whoſe Land the Common is taken, do purchaſe part of the Land, to which the Common is appendant, yet the Commoner ſhall have an Apportionment for the reſidue, Co 4. 37, 38.

If one have Common in certain in twenty Acres of Land, and ten of thoſe deſcend to the Commoner; in this Caſe the Common ſhall be apportioned, and he ſhall have Common in the reſidue: But if he have Common ſans number, then he ſhall have Common ſo ſtill, Co. ſuper Lit 149.

Two

Of Warranty, how it may be apportioned by Act of the Law. not by act of parties

Two Joynt-tenants with warranty, the one makes a Feoffment the warranty is not divideable, 29 Ed. 3. 70.

If two Joynt-tenants with warranty make partition by writ, the warranty remains by force of the Statute, 31 H. 8. For a warranty may be apportioned by Act of Law, but not by act of the party, 38 Ed. 3. 20. 48 Ed 3. 17. 6 Rep. 12. b.

Of Execution.

If Execution be ſued of Lands upon a Statute, and after the Inheritance of part of thoſe Lands deſcend to the Conuſee, all the Execution is avoided, and there ſhall be no Apportionment; but if the deſcent had been before Execution, Contra. Co. ſuper Litt. f. 150.

Of an Annuity.

A. grants an annuity of ten pounds a year to B. B. grants to C. five pounds parcel of the ſaid annuity of ten pounds, A. ſhall be liable to pay five pounds to C. F. N. B. 152.

5. How Apportionment ſhall be made. Where and in what Caſe not.

Rent ſhall be apportioned to the value of the Land purchaſed, and not according to the quantity, 18 Ed. 2. Avowry 218. Adjudged.

If one grant to another a Penſion of twenty pounds yearly, whiles he doth keep him company, to be paid ſuch a day, and before the day the Grantor die; in this Caſe there ſhall be no Apportionment, but the whole Rent is gone, Co 10. 128.

Of Rent-charge purchaſe part during ſuſpenſion

If I have a Rent-charge iſſuing out of Land, and purchaſe part of the Land, the whole Rent is extinct, and ſhall not be apportioned, but by Agreement of the parties it may be received again: So if I enter upon part of the Land, the Rent ſhall be ſuſpended, and not apportioned, Co. ſuper Litt. fol. 147. Deſſ. lib. 2. cap. 16. 7 H. 6. 26. Bro. 3.

If there be Lord and Tenant of Twenty Acres of Land by fealty, and twenty ſhillings Rent; if the Tenant make a gift in Tail, a Leaſe for life or years, of parcel thereof to the Lord, in this Caſe the Rent ſhall not be apportioned but is all ſuſpended: But if the Lord purchaſe part in Fee of the Tenant, the Rent ſhall be apportioned, Co. ſuper Lit. 148.

If the Leſſor enter upon part of the Land of his Leſſee for life or years, and Diſſeiſe or out him, the Rent is ſuſpended for the whole, and ſhall not be apportioned for any part, 4 H. 7. 6. Co. ſuper Litt. 148.

If one have a Rent-charge out of Twelve Acres, and releaſe the Rent out of one of the Acres, the Rent ſhall not be apportioned and be chargeable upon the reſt, 34 Aſſ. p. 15.

If a Tenant Infeoff his Lord, and another in Fee, the Rent ſhall not be apportioned, but is all extinct, 7 H. 6. 3.

If one hold his Land of his Lord by the Service, to render to the Lord yearly at ſuch a Feaſt, a Horſe, a Golden Spur, a Clove, a Gilliflower; If in this Caſe the Lord purchaſe parcel of the Land, the whole Service is gone, and there ſhall be no Apportionment; and ſo alſo is the Law, where parcel of the Land held by ſuch entire Service come to the Lord by Deſcent, there ſhall be no Apportionment; for in ſome caſes the Service doth remain entire, and in ſome caſes it is extinct, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 149. Co. 8. 105.

If Tenants in Tail, or for life Leaſe part of the Land to others for years, there ſhall be no Apportionment, but the Tenant in Tail, or Leſſee for life ſhall be ſtill charged with the whole Rent, 22 Aſſ. p. 52.

If one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and after the Leſſee aſſign over part of the thing leaſed, it ſeems here ſhall be no Apportionment of the Rent, Dyer fol. 45.

If one grant a Rent-charge out of two Acres, and after the Grantee recovereth one of the Acres by title Paramont, againſt the Grantor; in this Caſe there ſhall be no Apportionment of the Rent: For if it were true, the whole Rent ſhall iſſue out of the other Acre; if otherwiſe that it were fained, it is all extinct, Doct. & Stu. l. 2. c. 17. Co. ſuper Lit. 148.

If A. Enfeoff B. of one Acre in Fee on Condition, and B. being ſeiſed of another Acre in Fee, grant a Rent out of both to the Feoffer, and A. re-enter for the Condition broken; here ſhall be no Apportionment, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 148.

If

If one make a Leaſe for years or life, rendring Rent at Michaelmas, or twelve days after; and before the laſt day of payment of the Rent, the Land is evicted from the Leſſee; in this caſe ſhall be no Apportionment, for Rent ſhall never be apportioned in reſpect of time. And ſo it ſeems if a Leaſe be for the life of the Leſſee, on condition he ſhall pay Twenty pounds a year at Michaelmas, and he die before Michaelmas, that the whole Rent ſhall not be apportioned. And ſo if a Tenant for life make a Leaſe for years, rendring Rent at Michaelmas, and the Tenant for life dieth, here Rent ſhall not be apportioned, but is all loſt, Co. 10. 128. Opinio Bridgman Juſt. Co 10. 128.

If I let a flock of Sheep, or Houſes, or Land to one for years rendring Rent, and part of the Flock, Houſes, or Land be ſpoiled by the act of God, and default or negligence of the Leſſee together, here ſhall be no apportionment, but the whole Rent ſhall continue ſtill, Dyer 56.

If three Joint-tenants hold by an entire yearly Rent, as of a Horſe, or of a grain of Wheat, and the Tenant ceaſe by two years, and the Lord recover two parts of the land againſt two of them, and the third do ſave his part by tendring his Rent, and giving ſurety, &c. In this caſe the Rent ſhall not be apportioned, but is all extinct, F. N. B. 209. Co. ſuper Lit. 149.

If a Leaſe be made on Condition that the Leſſee ſhall not alien the land or any part of it without the licence of the Leſſor, and he licence him to alien part; now the Condition is gone of the whole, and ſhall not be apportioned, and he may after alien the reſt without licence, Co. 4. 120. Co 8. 79. Co. ſuper Lit. 215.

If one leaſe three Acres for years or life, rendring Rent upon a Condition, and after ſell the Reverſion of one of theſe Acres; now in this caſe there ſhall be no Apportionment of the Condition, but it is deſtroyed in all. So alſo if the Leſſee let or ſurrender part of the land to the Leſſor. So if the Leſſor enter upon part of the land wrongfully, the Condition is not to be apportioned, but is ſuſpended in all, Co. 4 120. Co. 5. 54. Dyer 308.

If two Joint-tenants be with Warranty, and they make partition without Writ, the Warranty is deſtroyed, Co. 6. 12.

If I have Common appurtenant to Land, and purchaſe part of the Land, the Common ſhall not be apportioned, but is all gone and extinct, Co. 4. 38. 38. 79.

If A. hath Common of Paſture ſans number in twenty Acres of Land, and ten of thoſe Acres deſcend to A. the Common ſhall not be apportioned, but doth remain entire: And ſo it is of Common of Eſtovers, of Turbary, of Piſchary, &c. Co. ſuper Lit. 149.

If Lands be held by ſuit of Court, and it deſcend to Daughters, the ſervice ſhall not be divided, but the eldeſt ſhall do all, and the reſt ſhall contribute; and if the Lord purchaſe part of the Land, the whole is extinct, 40 Ed. 3 Br. 2.

If a Leaſe for years be made, rendring Rent at four days in the year; this Rent is not ſo entire, but it may be divided, and after the firſt day is paſt, the Leſſor may bring an action of Debt for that Quarters Rent. So alſo if one be to pay money by the Condition of an Obligation or Recognizance, or by a Covenant at ſeveral days; after a Failer the firſt day, the Obligation, Recognizance, or Covenant may be ſued. But upon a ſingle Obligation, or a Contract or promiſe to pay money at ſeveral days, there no Action can be brought for the Debt, until all the days be incurred, and the Debt ſhall not be apportioned, Co. 10. 128. Lit. f. 117. F. N. B. 267. Dyer 103.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay Four pounds at a day, and at the day the Obligor pay Three pounds, now the Condition ſhall not be divided, but the Obligation is all forfeit as if he had paid no part of it, 20 H. 6. 23. Br. 1.

If one promiſe me Three ſhillings a week for his Diet and Lodging, and I find him Diet, but not Lodging; this Debt ſhall not be divided, neither can I bring an action of Debt for the Diet, by or upon this Contract, 9 Ed 4. 1. Br. 2.

If one promiſe to ſerve me a year for Ten pounds, and before the year be expired he he depart out of my ſervice or die, or I diſcharge him, and he agree to it; now in this caſe the money ſhall not be divided, and therefore he hath no remedy for any part of his money: But if the money were to be paid quarterly, and he overlive the quarter, then he ſhall have the Quarteridg.

If I have land in the right of my Wife, and I ſell twenty Trees upon that land for twenty pounds, and the Vendee cut ſome of them, and my Wife die before the reſt be cut; now in this caſe the debt ſhall not be divided, neither can I ſue for any part of the twenty pounds, but am without remedy, 10 *Ed.*4 18. 10 *H.*6.25. 3 *Ed.*4.6. *Br.*25.

If a Leſſee covenant to pay the Rent, and after ſurrender part of the Land, or be evicted out of part by title Paramount; it ſeems the Rent ſhall not be apportioned, and that the whole muſt be paid ſtill, Hil. 7 Jac. B. Regis. See more in Contract, in Extinguiſhment.

7. Contribution. It is where a burthen or charge is to be laid, or ſomewhat had from divers, and one ought to bear it as well as another: But if it is wholly laid upon one, in this caſe Equality. the Law (that delighteth in equality) will give him relief againſt the reſt, Co. 2. 25. 11 H. 7. 12.

If one bind him and his heirs by a Specialty, and die, and his Land deſcend to divers heirs, here they ſhall be equally charged. So likewiſe upon a Warranty where his Land doth after go to divers perſons as heirs, they muſt all be vouched, Co. ſuper Lit. 143.

So if one have entred into a Statute, and ſold his Land after to divers, and the Statute is extended upon one, he ſhall have Contribution againſt the reſt: Ipſæ etenim leges cupiunt ut jure regantur.

If one hold three Manors by Knights ſervice of divers Lords all of equal value, he cannot deviſe two Manors, and leave the third to deſcend; but he muſt leave a third part of each Manor to deſcend for the benefit of every Lord, *Co.*2.25.

If a Lord of a Manor would approve Common, he cannot take it all out of one Village, and leave it in another, according to the Statute, but he muſt leave it in the ſame, *Co.*2.25.

Sect. 5. In theſe and ſuch like caſes therefore the Law willeth, that there ſhall be a Contribution. And to give relief in ſome of theſe Cauſes, are the Writs of Contributione facienda, & de onerando pro rata portionis: which Writs are of great affinity, the one ſeeming to be the Genus of the other. (See more for Apportionment, in Contracts, ſect. 7. Rent, ſect: Common, ſect. 5. Condition, numb. 15. Services, ſect. 6. Debt.)

Contributione facienda. De onerando pro rata portionis. The firſt being defined to be, A Writ that lieth in caſe where more are bound to one thing, and one is put to the whole burden. And the laſt, A Writ that lieth where one is diſtrained for a Rent that ought to be paid by others proportionally with him. So that it ſeems the firſt doth lie in moſt or all caſes where the latter doth lie, but not *è contra. Terms of the Law, F.N.B.*234.

Where the firſt lieth or not, and where Contribution ſhall be made or not. If Tenants in common or Joint-tenants hold a Mill (pro indiviſo) and equally take the profits thereof, the Mill falling to decay, and one or more of them refuſing to contribute towards the reparation thereof, the reſt ſhall have this Writ to compel them, *Fitz. N.B.*162. *Marlb. cap.*3.

If there be three Coparceners of land that have ſuit to the Lords Court, and the eldeſt perform the whole, then may ſhe have this Writ to compel the other two to a Contribution of the Charge, or to one of them, if one only refuſe. Wens.

Where one only ſuit is required for land, and that land being ſold to divers, ſuit is required of them all or ſome of them by diſtreſs, as intirely as if all were ſtill in one; here he may have remedy againſt the reſt, *Old N.B. f.*143.

If many are infeoffed of any land, for which ſuit ought to be done, &c. Now if they agree among themſelves, that one of them ſhall make the ſuit, and the reſt ſhall be contributory, and the one doth the ſervice, and the reſt do refuſe to contribute; in this caſe he may have this Writ, and therein he muſt make mention of the agreement; and if there be no agreement, and one be charged for the reſt with all the ſervice, he may have this remedy, *Lit.*162.c.

If

If a Charge come upon a Hundred or Tything, and it be laid upon one alone, it ſeems he may have his remedy by this Writ, Fitz. Avarie 191. New Terms of the Law, 99. b.

If Dower of the Tenant voucheth the Heir in Ward to three ſeveral Lords, each of them ſhall be equally charged, Co. 3. 14. a.

If two, four, or more men be ſeverally ſeiſed of Land, and they all joyn in a Recogniſance, in this Caſe. If the Conuſee extend the Land of any of the Conuſers allone, he may have Contribution; for all ought to be equally charged, and not one alone without the reſt, Idem Co. 3. 14. a.

If Judgment be given againſt two Diſſeiſors in Aſſiſe for the Land and damages, and one Diſſeiſor dieth, the Execution ſhall not lie onely on the ſurviving Diſſeiſor, but the Heir and the Diſſeiſor ſhall be equally charged, and Execution ought not to be Awarded againſt the ſurviving Diſſeiſor, Idem Co. 3. 13. b.

See more of this in Statute, Numb. Where the Land of one is charged by a Statute, he ſhall have Contribution againſt the reſt. But if two be bound in an Obligation, and one of them be charged with the whole, the other ſhall not have Contribution, unleſs it be by ſpecial cuſtom as in London, Old Book of Entries, fol. 261. 126.

If a man hold ten Plough-Land, and by Fealty, and twenty ſhillings Rent of the King, and the Tenant let one Plough-Land to one man, another to another in Fee, and ſo the reſidue to others, and the Kings Officers diſtrain one of them for all therein, now he may have this remedy againſt all the reſt. So if the Kings Tenant have aliened to divers, and hath ſome of the Land in his own hands, and he be diſtrained for all; if he did alien by the Kings Licenſe, he ſhall have remedy againſt the reſt, F. N. B. 235. a.

And if a man that holdeth one hundred Acres of Land ought to repair a Bridge, by reaſon of his Tenure of theſe one hundred Acres, now if he alien in Fee twenty of theſe Acres to one, and twenty to another man, and after one of them alone is diſtrained to repair this Bridge, upon a Preſentment made of it; in this Caſe he may have a ſpecial Writ, directed to the Kings Officers, that they ſhall not diſtrain him, but according to the rate of the Land he hath, *Fitz. CHAP. XV.

Of Arbitrement.

Arbitrement. IT is an Award, Determination, or Judgment, which one or more doth make at the requeſt or agreement of two or more, for and upon ſome Debt, Treſpaſs, or Controverſie between them; for the ending and deciding of which, the parties have choſen and authoriſed them as Judg or Judges. It is a Judgment given by ſuch as are elected by the parties unto the Controverſie, for the ending and pacifying of the ſaid Controverſie according to the Compromiſe and Submiſſion, and agreeable to Reaſon and Conſcience. And therefore they are called Arbitrators, Judges indifferently choſen by the parties that have power to give a definitive ſentence in the matters of difference; and this Award or Sentence is called a Judgment.

Arbitrators.

This doth differ from an Accord herein onely, that this is made by the parties themſelves, and that by the mediation of Friends.

The difference and agreement between Arbitrement and an Accord.

2. This is no Plea to an Action upon the things accorded, if the thing awarded be not done, for there be means to compel the doing of it; but that is a good Plea to any Action brought upon any thing put in Arbitrement, though the thing awarded be not done; if there be means to compel him to it, that was awarded to do it, 19 H.6. 37. Plow. 11. Kelw. 121. Dyer 75.

Umpire, what. An Umpire is the ſame in effect with an Arbitrator: Judex honorarius, non à lege datus, ſed ab iis qui litigant electus qui totius rei habet poteſtatem ad arbitrandum non ex lege & ſtricto jure, ſed prout ipſe æquum eſſe exiſtimet. And he is by the parties to order the matter, if the Arbitrators cannot agree, or do not make the Award by the time ſet.

Submiſſion or Compromiſe, what. A Submiſſion or Compromiſe, Compromiſſum eſt ſimultanea illa partium promiſſio, qua ſua ſponte ad alicujus boni viri arbitrium ſuam remittunt Controverſiam: And this is ſometimes in writing (which alſo may be made by the parties reciprocally, or to the Arbitrator) as by Obligation, Recognizance, Covenant, &c. or by word onely, and both theſe are ſometimes abſolute, and ſometimes conditional, as if the Award be made by a day, &c. and ſometimes general of all matters, and ſometimes particular of ſome one or more matters. And this is alſo expreſs, or implied: For in an Obligation or Aſſumpſit to abide an Award is an implied ſubmiſſion, and upon a bare ſubmiſſion, an Action may be brought if the Award be not performed, if it be to pay money, &c. Co. 10. 131. 5. 78. 20 H.6. 18. Brown and Dennigers Caſe. Trin. 18 Jac. Cyprian Salters Caſe, p. 9.

Sect. 1. 1. The fruit and effect of Arbitrement. The fruit and effect of an Arbitrement is this; That if it be a good and binding Arbitrement, and any thing be given or awarded for any wrong done in recompence, and it be either paid or performed; or if it be ſuch a thing for which the party to whom it is awarded, hath means to come by it, or ſome thing in amends for not performance of it, as where there is an Obligation or Aſſumpſit to perform it, it is an Extinguiſhment of the wrong and controverſie thereabout; ſo that the cauſes of Suit before, Tranſeunt in rem judicatam, inſomuch, That if the party ſue again for any of thoſe matters, whereupon the Award hath been made; that Award being pleaded to it, will be a bar to him in his Suit: As if he ſay, That they ſubmitted to the Award of J. S. for that matter alone, or that with others; and that J. S. awarded him to pay ſo much money ſuch a day, and that the day of payment is not yet come, (for an Arbitrement that one of the parties ſhall pay money, doth give an Action for the money:) Or if it be paſt, then that he paid, or at leaſt tendred the money at the day (for ſo he muſt ſay.) But if the party pay not the money, then is the other party reſtored to his firſt Action; yet ſo as it is at his election, to have an Action upon the Award, or to ſue upon the firſt cauſes; but if payment be made, the firſt wrong is altogether determined by the Award. And if the Submiſſion be by Obligation, and the Award be, that one ſhall pay the other money, the party may have an Action upon the Obligation, or upon the Award at his choice, 21 Ed. 4. 41. 33 H.6. But if there were a Submiſſion, and no Award, or an Award that is not good in Law, which is all one with no Award, or there be onely a bare Submiſſion without Bond or Aſſumpſit, and the Award be to do ſuch a thing as for which the party to whom it ſhould be done hath no remedy, being a collateral thing as to make a Feoffment, &c. or any thing elſe but payment of money: In theſe Caſes the party ſhall not be barred in any Suit upon the matters put into Compromiſe; neither will any Action lie for the not performance of ſuch an Award. Ex nuda ſubmiſſione non eritur actio: But if the Submiſsion be by Obligation, or an Aſſumpſit, and a Collateral Act be awarded to be done, and it be not done, the Obligation is forfeit, or the money promiſed to be paid by Aſſumpſit, if it were not performed, may be recovered, 6 H.7. 1. 11. Plow. 6. 49 Ed. 3. 3. 20 H.6. 41. 9 Ed. 4. 51. 6 H.7. 11. 8 H.6. 25. Dyer 75. Co. 5. 78. 5 Ed. 4. 7. 16 Ed. 4. 9. 9 Ed. 4. 51. 20 H.6. 12. 40. 5 Ed. 4. 7. 8 H.6. 25. 16 Ed. 4. 8. 49 Ed. 3. 3. 33 H. 6. 2. 4 H.6. 1. 21 H.7. 28. 9 Ed. 4. 44. Plow. 6. 5 Ed. 4. 47. 19 H.6. 38. 19 H.6. 38. 20 H.6. 9. 5 Ed. 4. 7. 9 Ed. 4. 44. Co. 5. Samons Caſe.

The

The Award of a Perſonal Chattel, as if an Award be that J. S. one of the parties ſhall have a Horſe in queſtion between them, doth alter the property, and give it to J. S. ſo that J. S. may have an Action of Detinue for it: And ſo alſo it ſeems it doth of a Chattel real; but in real matters which concern Free-hold, an Arbitrement can neither give a Title, nor binde a Right, Dyer 183. 21 H.7. 29. 14 H. 4. 19.

An Arbitrement can give no Title concerning Free-hold, nor bind a Right.

But if the Award that is made be faulty in any of the particulars following, or there be never any Award made, then for not performing ſuch a part of the Award, as is not good; no Action will lie upon the Obligation or Aſſumpſit to perform it, neither doth the Award in that Caſe where it is defective produce any effect; for no Action will lie upon it, Co. 10. 131. Hains verſus Honywood, M. 4 Jac.

The Husband may ſubmit himſelf to an Award for himſelf and his Wife, for the Goods and Chattels he hath in the Right, and by reaſon of his Wife; and this will binde the Wife, 21 *H.*7.29. 13 *H.*4. 12. 10 *H.*6.14.

What perſons may ſubmit to an Award, and what ſhall be ſaid to be good Submiſſion in any Body's Law, and what not.

If an Infant binde himſelf to perform an Award by Bond, the Bond is void. So if a ſtranger binde himſelf, that an Infant ſhall perform an Award: the Bond is void, March. 111. pl. 189. & 141. pl. 215. For an Infant cannot ſubmit to an Award, nor any body for him, March. 111. pl. 189.

If divers have done a wrong to one, and one of theſe, and he to whom the wrong is done may ſubmit to the Award, and if an Award be made, the others that were no parties to the Submiſſion, may take advantage of it to extinguiſh the wrong, 7 *H.*4. 31. 20 *H.*6. 12.

A Submiſſion to an Award by a Deputy, as if the one party himſelf, and a Deputy for, and in the name of the other ſubmit to an Award; this is a good Submiſsion, and the Award that ſhall be made upon it will be good, Dyer 270.

If divers be parties to the Submiſsion, and one ſubmit at one time, and another at another time, it ſeems this is not a good Submiſſion; but they muſt ſubmit all at one time, 4 Juſt. Bridg.

If the Submiſſion be of all Actions, Cauſes of Action are not contained within this, Co. ſuper Littl. 285.

But if the Submiſſion be of one thing, within it may be included any thing incident to that thing; and of it an Arbitrement may be made within this Submiſſion, 8 *H.*6. 18. 19 *Ed.*4. 1. 5 *H.*7. 22.

How a Submiſſion ſhall be expounded.

If the Submiſſion be by Obligation with Condition to perform the Award, ſo as it be delivered utrique eorum before a day: Now by this it muſt be delivered to each of the parties, elſe it is not ſufficient, Br. Condition, 46.

Though a Submiſſion be by word or writing, and be naked, or cloathed and joyned with an undertaking by Obligation or Aſſumpſit, yet before the Award be made, it may be countermanded, and the Arbitrators diſcharged of the work, but with theſe differences.

Countermand of a Submiſſion, where it may be, and where it ſhall be good, and where not.

1. That where there is a naked Submiſſion by word, that may be revoked by word; but if it be in writing, the countermand muſt be by writing, for it muſt be eodem modo, as the Submiſſion is.

2. If the Submiſſion be naked, and either of the parties countermand it, and diſcharge the Arbitrators, the other hath no remedy againſt him: But if he undertake by Eſpecialty, or Aſſumpſit to abide the Award of J. S. and do countermand, and revoke it; though the Revocation be good, yet he is ſubject to Suit on the Eſpecialty or Promiſe, for he hath broken his promiſe.

3. In both, and all theſe Caſes, where the party will have his Submiſsion revoked, he muſt give notice of his minde therein to the Arbitrators. But if there be two or more of the one ſide that do ſubmit to the Award, one of them cannot revoke the Submiſſion without the reſt, eſpecially if it be by Deed, *Co.*8. 81. Fitz. Arbitr. 21. *Co.*5. 78. 21 H. 6. 30. 5 Ed 4. 3. 8 Ed. 4. 10. 8 Ed. 4. 12. 10. 28 H. 6. 6. 21 *H.*6. 30.

5. The duty of Arbitrators, and how they ought to demean themſelves.

When the parties have ſubmitted themſelves, the Arbitrators may either refuſe to meddle with it, or accept the burthen of it: And if they will accept it, the parties are to notifie their Controverſies to them, or elſe they are not to take any notice of it

(but they cannot enjoyn any oath to Witneſſes, and yet may take any evidence that any man will voluntarily by oath confirm) after they have underſtood the cauſe, and heard the parties and matters fully, they muſt make their Award Secundum allegata & probata, and they muſt do this themſelves; for they cannot transfer their power to another, or make Deputies, (for an Award ſo made will not be good) becauſe they are Judges of the matter by conſent. After they have made the Award, if by the Submiſſion it be provided for, that it ſhall be publiſhed or notified, then it muſt be done, and ſo done as the Submiſſion is; as if the condition be, that it ſhall be by writing themſo: if to all the parties, then ſo it muſt be, and till then it is no good Award. But if it be left to the diſcretion of the Arbitrators, and no order be taken by the Submiſſion for the publication of it, the Arbitrators are not bound (but in honeſty) to notifie it, and the parties are bound to take notice of it; but if one be to do a thing that depends upon another thing firſt to be done by the other party, he muſt have notice of this, 8 Edw. 4. 10. 47 Edw. 3. 21. Co. 5. Samons Caſe, 8 98. 8 Ed. 4. 11. 8 Ed. 4. 21. 1 H. 7. 5. Plow. 218. Co. 4. 82. 5. 103. 8. 82. 8 Ed. 4. 21. 20 Ed. 4. 8.

If the Submiſſion be, that the Award ſhall be delivered to the party, &c. before a day if he deſire it, if he deſire it not, he muſt take notice of it at his peril, 8 Ed. 4. 18, 21.

If divers of the one ſide, and divers of the other, ſubmit themſelves to the Award of divers, the Arbitrators may make an Award for matters between them joyntly, and for matters between them ſeverally; and they may make an Award between ſome of the one part, and ſome of the other, and not meddle with the reſt, unleſs the Submiſſion be ſo, as they muſt meddle with all or none: For an Arbitrator may proteſt againſt medling with ſome parcel, and make an Award of the reſt, if the Submiſsion will warrant it, and an Award made of that parcel which is within the Submiſsion, is good, 2 R. 3. 18. 21 H. 7. 29. Plow. 289. 22 Ed. 4. 22. 19 H. 6. 6.

6. What Matters are Arbitrable, and what not.

The moſt proper matters for Arbitrements, are perſonal wrongs, and uncertain duties, as Treſpaſſes, and the like: But moſt things may be referred to Arbitrement, as differences about Land, and Eſtates therein: Chattels real or perſonal, choſes in Action, Reckonings, Accompts, and the like. Dyer 183. Co. 5. 78.

Sect. 3.

But Arbitrators cannot diſpoſe of Land by their Judgment (as the Chancery and a Judgment at the Common Law can do) yet they may Award, that one party ſhall enjoy it, and the other not diſturb him; or, that the one ſhall give the other a Bond for quiet enjoying, or the like. And if there be any Eſpecialty or Aſſumpſit, to perform the Award, and he do not; he may ſue upon it. Freehold is not arbitrable. 9 H. 6. 60. B Kelw. 99. b. 21 Ed. 3. 26. 14 H. 4. 18, 19, 24. Br. Abridgement, 5. 30. 8. Rep. 137. a. 3 Ed. 3. Waſte 5. And for Chattels they may diſpoſe them, and give the property or intereſt to one or another as they pleaſe.

1. Debts due for expence about buſineſs are arbitrable. 2. So alſo it ſeems is a Debt on a Contract or damage certain, being joyned with Treſpaſs, or other things uncertain; and all theſe are arbitrable, before any ſuit begin or after. A debt on a Contract alone ſeems alſo to be arbitrable. See Co. 8. Baſpolis Caſe, f. 97. (1) Adjudge Sower verſus Bradford, 37 Eliz. Co. B. (2) Finches Ley 181.

And therefore if a man demand five pound for divers buſineſſes that he hath done for another; this is a matter arbitrable, adjudged. Trin. 37 Eliz. B. R. inter Sower & Bradfield.

Some Books ſay in ſome of theſe Caſes, the Submiſſion muſt be in writing, or elſe the Matters are not Arbitrable. Quere, how and what is meant by that.

But Debts certain due by Bond, or Bill, or Covenant, or on a ſimple Contract alone which is certain, are not arbitrable: Nor Debts upon arrearages of account before Auditors; nor things that are not in Rerum natura, at the time of the Submiſsion, though they after happen; nor Freeholds, Annuities, Waſte, Detainment of Charters, or the like; yet ſo as before on Penalties or Aſſumpſits, to perform ſuch Awards they be bound, or elſe muſt pay the money, 43 Ed 3. 16. Dyer 51. 6 H. 4. 6. 4 H. 6. 17. 10 H. 7. 4. 9 H. 6. 60. 14 H. 4. 18. Co. 5. Samons Caſe.

But matters of Commonwealth, or of Marriage, it ſeems are not arbitrable at all, Weſt. Symb. f. 146.

In every Arbitrement theſe five things are requiſite as incidents, Dyer 217. 19 Ed 4. 1. Co. 10. 137. 10 H. 7. 4.

7. Incidents to an Arbitrement.

1. Matter of Controverſie, and that muſt be Arbitrable.
2. A good Submiſſion of the parties to the Award.
3. Parties to the Submiſſion.
4. Arbitrators.
5. An Award; and if either of theſe be wanting, it can be no good Award.

Where and in what Caſes Arbitrements ſhall be void, and for what cauſes.

Obſerve therefore, for the defects and faults of Arbitrements whereby they loſe their force and become void; ſome of them are in ſomething going before the Award it ſelf, and ſome of them in the Award it ſelf, and ſome of them in ſomething coming after the Award it ſelf, or ex poſt facto.

Before: As where either the perſons are not able to ſubmit, as Feme-Coverts, or the like; or have not ſubmitted, as when the Award concerneth ſtrangers, not privities nor parties, or the things referred, are not things that lie in Arbitrement, and there is no collateral ſecurity to bind the parties to perform it; or the ſubmiſſion be not legal; or being legal, it is determined by revocation before the Award made, Co. 4. 1. Kelw. 99. Co. 5. 78. 8. 98. 10. 131. 17 Ed. 4. 5. 12 H. 7. 5. 19 H. 6. 36. 13 H. 4. 12. 8 Ed. 4. 10. 20 Ed 4. 8.

The common faults of Arbitrements.

In the Award it ſelf: As when either the Arbitrators purſue not the Authority given, by the ſubmiſſion; or they award ſomewhat to be done to, or by a ſtranger; or the Award is incertain, or there is an apparent wrong, and they give no ſhew of ſatisfaction; or the Award is made all for one ſide, and nothing for the other, and it imply ſome wrong to him done alſo; or they award a thing the party hath no means to come by; or the Award is not final and definitive; or the Award is of a thing impoſſible or unlawful, or of a thing apparently unreaſonable, or it is imperfect or inſenſible.

After: When ſome due circumſtance is not obſerved after; as publication or notice of the Award, according to the ſubmiſſion, or the like. For all or any of theſe cauſes, an Award may become void. As for examples:

Before the Arbitrement.

If one ſue for a Debt upon a Record or Specialty, and this be put to Arbitrement; and an Award is, that he ſhall pay all or ſome part of it: This is no good Award, for the matter is not arbitrable. See the Anſwer of this Queſtion, in the four firſt Queſtions before: What perſons may ſubmit. Countermand. The duty of Arbitrators. Matters Arbitrable. 10 H. 7. 4.

In the Arbitrement it ſelf for uncertainty.

If there be divers Treſpaſſes referred to Arbitrement, and the Award is, that the one ſhall make the other amends, and ſay not what; this is a void Award, 8 Ed. 4. 11 39 H. 6. 9.

If an Award be, that one of the parties ſhall enter into an Obligation with Condition to do any thing, and ſay not of what ſum the Obligation ſhall be, or that one ſhall give a Releaſe to the other, and ſay not what Releaſe, Co. 5. Samons Caſe. See March 18. pl 42.

For want of privity in ſuch, by whom or to whom to be performed.

If the Husband only do ſubmit, and the Award be, that he and his Wife ſhall do, have or take any thing; the Award as to the Wife is void, and ſo is it if it were of a ſtranger, any other beſides his Wife. As an Award, that one of the parties and the Arbitrator, or any ſtranger ſhall do an act, is void as to the Arbitrator: So an Award, that the party and his wife ſhall enjoy the Land in queſtion, or that either party ſhall make a Feoffment, or pay money to a ſtranger, is ſo void as to the ſtranger, that for not doing theſe things by or to the ſtranger, no Action will lie. An Arbitrement, that one of the parties ſhall do a thing wherein the Aſſiſtants of others that are ſtrangers, and whom he hath no means to compel thereunto, is not good for ſo much as concerneth ſuch ſtranger. An Award, that each party ſhall pay Five ſhillings for writing the Award to the Clerk; and it was agreed void, Brownl. 2 par. 100. Co. 10. 131. Kelw. 45. 18 Ed. 4. 28. Co. 5. 78. 19 Ed. 4. 1. 28 H. 6. 13. Trin. 9 Jac. Tydderlies Caſe, Banco Regis. 17 Ed. 4. 15. 5. 18 Ed 4. 22. 19 Ed. 4. 1.

When a ſtranger is by the Award to do ſomething, this is void for this cauſe alſo, becauſe because it is out of the Submiſſion. See the laſt Diviſion. 19 Ed. 4. 1.

For that which is not contained in the Submiſſion, or in purſuance of the authority.

The Arbitrement that is made of a thing that is not contained within the Submiſſion, is void: As if the Submiſſion be for all Actions perſonal, and the Award be made of and about Actions real; & ſic è contra. So if the Submiſſion be on a Condition (which is uſual) as when the Condition is to ſtand to an Award, ſo as it is to be made by a day certain, or be in writing, or under Seal, and delivered by a day, and the Arbitrators make it after the day, or do it not ſo as before, this Award is void. So if the Submiſſion be for all matters between them until the tenth of May, and they award that a Releaſe ſhall be given of all Actions until the twentieth of May, this is a void Award. So if A. on the one ſide, and three others of the other ſide ſubmit to Arbitrement for all actions and demands between them, and the Award be made of ſome matters between them three of the one ſide only, this is not good. (2.) So if the Submiſſion be of all cauſes depending between them ab initio mundi, &c. and the Award be of all cauſes à principio, omitting depending, this is void. So if a Submiſſion be to four, and three of them make the Award. But if the Condition of an Obligation to ſtand to Award, be to ſtand to the Award of four, ſo as the Award of the ſaid Arbitrators or any three of them be made &c. In this caſe an Award made by any three of them is good. So if the Submiſſion be of divers particulars, with a Condition: For as an Award be made of the premiſſes, &c. if all the differences, or ſome be made known, and they do not make an Award of as much as is notified. But if the Condition were for all matters, or between divers perſons; and ſome matters only, or all between ſome of the perſons only are notified, an Award of them alone is good. And if the Submiſſion be of divers things in particular, without any ſuch conditional reſtraint or concluſion, an Arbitrement upon any of them is good Vide plus ſupra & infra, 7 H. 6. 40. 19 H. 6. 36. 36 H 6. 11. Pl. 306. 9 Ed. 4. 44. 8 H. 6. 18. p. 9 *Jac. If the Submiſſion be by Deed, and a time ſet, and the Arbitrators meet and prorogue it to a time after the day, and then do it. this is not good; but if it were without Deed, it ſeems otherwiſe. And if they make an Award one day, and after before the time make another; or make part one day, and part another, before the time ſet; or part before the day, or part after: In theſe caſes, without a new Submiſſion, theſe Awards are not good. But if they meet and agree only, and at another day within the time make the Award, this is good, 49 Ed. 3. 9. 22 H. 6. 52. 33 H. 6. 28. 39 H. 6. 12. 8 Ed 4. 10. 19 Ed. 4. 1.

Sect. 5.

For that it is not ſatisfactory.

If the Arbitrement do not import ſatisfaction of the wrong that is put in Compromiſe, it is not good. As for Examples:

If the differences be about arrearages of Account, and this be referred, and the Award is, that the party in arrearages ſhall account: So if the Award be, that becauſe one of the parties had the goods of the other, that he ſhall redeliver them. But if by that redelivery, the party to whom may have ſome ſpecial benefit, then the Award is good enough. So an Arbitrement, that one party ſhall have one part of the thing in queſtion, and the other the other part, (c) if it be Debt in queſtion, and the Award be, he ſhall pay part of the debt. (7) So if an Award be, that one that is ſuppoſed to have done a treſpaſs, ſhall do his Law, and then be quit and diſcharged. (8) So if the Award be, that in recompence of the wrong, the parties ſhall entermarry. (9) So if the Award be, that one of the parties ſhall do ſuch an act ſuch a day, and the day be paſt before the Award finiſhed, Fitz. (2) Arbit. 27. (3) 12 H. 7. 15. 45 Ed. 3. 16. For that it is made of one part only.

An Arbitrement, that one ſhall pay money to the other, and then the other ſhall releaſe all Actions, is good.

If between the Garniſher and the Plaintiff in a Detinue, the Award be that the Garniſher ſhall go quit of all quarrels and ſuits, had by the Plaintiff againſt him, and nothing be ſaid for the quarrels of the Garniſher had againſt the Plaintiff. So if all matters be referred between two, and the Award be, that the one party ſhall go quit of all Actions, that the other hath againſt him, and ſay nothing of the Actions he hath againſt the other; theſe are not good Awards. And yet if a man demand five pound of B. for buſineſſes he hath done for him, and this be referred to Arbitrement, and the Arbitrator Award that B. ſhall pay to A. four pound in full ſatisfaction of the ſame debt, and no more; this is a good Award. Sower verſus Bradfield, adjudged. Trin. 37 *Eliz. Not definitive or final, or by words.

An Award, that if one of them will wage his Law, he is not guilty of the Treſpaſs, that then he ſhall go quite, and the other ſhall releaſe to him, is not good: So if the Award be, that the parties ſhall abide the Award of others, or of the Arbitrators themſelves at another time, or ſhall do as another ſhall ſet down, or the like: So alſo if an Award be, that the Plaintiff ſhall be Non-ſuit, it ſeems this is not good, for he may then begin again, 46 *Ed.*3 17. *Co.*5. 78. 47 Ed. 3. 20. Plow. 11. 19 *H.*6. 36.

An Award, that either of the parties ſhall releaſe to the other all Actions till the day of the Award, is unreasonable and void; for then the Obligation or Assumpsit will be released also, that was made to perform the Award: So divers before for their unreasonableness in other particulars, are void, H. 6. 10. 21 *H.*7. 28.

Impossible. An Award that the one shall release to the other such a Suit he hath against him, when as in truth he hath no such Suit in being, 20 *Ed.*4. 38.

Against the Law. An Award that one shall rob another, or disseise him of his Free-hold, or the like, are void.

Incertain, or imperfect. If a Submission be of al. the Lands descended, and the Award is of White-acre and Black-acre, an Averment may be, that this is all the Land descended; and by this the Award may be good. per Just. Berkley, 11 Car. R. B.

After the Award, or by Matter, ex post facto. If the Submission be made with Condition, so that the same Award be notified to the parties, or some of them by a day, and the Arbitrement be well made; but it is not after published or delivered according to the tenor of the Condition, then is the Arbitrement void, and the Publication must be as the Condition is: If by such a time, or under Seal, &c. then it will not be good, unless it be so done: But if the Condition were so, that it be delivered to the parties before a day petentibus hoc, here they are not bound to deliver it till it be desired: If the Submission be by divers of both sides, Proviso it be delivered to the parties, or one of them: If he deliver it not to some, or one of them, the Award is void; but if he deliver it to any, or either of the one, or the other side, it is a good Award. So if the Submission be by two, so that the Award be delivered to either, or utrique eorum before Michaelmas, and it be delivered but to one, it is not good. See this question before above in the Negative question. 8 *Ed.*4. 21. 11. 1 *H.*7. 5. Dyer 218. 37 H. 8. Br. Cond. 46.

Where not. Before the Award.

Privity. An Award that a thing shall be done by the advice of a stranger that is not party, or privy to the Award, is good enough, 8 *Ed.*4. 11. 14 Ed. 4. 1.

An Arbitrement that the party shall do a Judicial act, is good, though it cannot be done without the help of strangers, 19 *H.*6. 38. 19 *Ed.*4. 5. 5 *H.*7. 22.

Sect. 7.

Being contained in the Submission or Pursuance of the Authority. If the Submission be of things personal, and the Award is, that one of the parties shall do an act, that is, of a thing real in satisfaction of the personal wrong, & sic è contra: So if the Submission be of one thing, and the Arbitrement of any thing incident to, or depending necessarily upon that thing, it is good. So if the Submission be of all Actions real and personal, and the Award be onely of matters personal, or of the matters real, it is a good Award; for so much especially, if no other matters were notified to them. But in that case, if the words or manner of the Submission be Conditional, that the Award must be of all matters or none, there it may be otherwise: So if the Submission were of the Right, Title, and possession of Land, and the Award be made of the possession onely, and nothing said of the Right; yet it is good for so much. So if A. on their side, and three others on the other side, do submit to the Award of W. and he do Award some matters that are between the three and A. joyntly; or matters that are between any of the three and A. this is a good Award: So if a Submission be of all Suits, and the Award be, that the one shall release to the other all Suits, Debt, &c. except one Obligation in particular; this is a good Award: So if there be divers Suits and Controversies about Tythe, and other matters between two, and they submit these to Arbitrement, and he Award that all Controversies between them shall cease, and the one shall pay to the other twenty pounds in recompence of all wrongs; this is a good Award for the Tythe, adjudged. Ingram versus Web, Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. And if the difference is between a thing severable, and a thing entire, as the making of a Release in the Case Supra; for there if the Award exceed the Submission, it is void for all: So if A. and B. 1 Maii submit themselves to J. S. for all matters from the beginning of the world unto the date of the Submission; and in June following they make an Award, that A. shall pay to B. ten pounds, &c. and that B. shall make him a general Release, and that this shall be an end of all matters between them from the beginning of the world, until the date of the Award; this is a good Award, adjudged; but if other matters be shewed in pleading to be between the parties, between the date of the Submission, and the date of the Award, Contra. 9 Ed. 4. 44. 8 *H.*6. 18. 9 *H.*7. 15. 7 *H.*6. 40. 36 H. 6. 11. *Co.*8. 98. Dyer 216. 19 *H.*6. 6. Br. 2 *R.*3 18.

If an Award be, that he that hath done the wrong, ſhall give the other a Quart of Wine, or ever ſo little recompence for the ſatisfaction of the wrong, it is good enough: So where divers of the one party, and the other ſubmit, and the Award is, that one of the one ſide, ſhall pay to another of the other party ſo much, and give nothing to, or from any of the reſt; this is good enough: So an Award, for that the wrongs are equal from either party to the other, therefore either of them ſhall go quit againſt the other; ſo if it be that either of them ſhall releaſe to the other; ſo if it be, that either party ſhall go quit againſt the other; and the one ſhall pay the other ſo much, becauſe his wrongs he did were more; ſo if two have ſuits each againſt other, and they be referred, and the Award is, that they ſhall each of them be Nonſuit, or diſcontinue their ſuits, and not ſue again for thoſe matters, or enter a Retraxit, are good, 43 Edw. 3. 33. 9 Edw. 4. 44. 22 Edw. 4. 25. 19 Hen. 7. 37. *Fitz. An Arbitrement, that one ſhall releaſe to the other all his right in the Land in queſtion, is good; if it appear by the Award, that he to whom the Releaſe was made, were in poſſeſſion of the Land, 9 Ed. 4. 44. 21 Ed. 4. 40.

If the Controverſie referred, be about a debt of ten pounds due by a Contract, and the Award is, that he ſhall pay forty ſhillings coſts, it is good; for hereby he is diſcharged of the debt that doth pay it. So if divers Treſpaſſes done by one of the parties be referred, and the Award be, that he that hath done the Treſpaſs, ſhall pay ten pounds for the Treſpaſſes, and ſay nothing of the other, this is good; for hereby the other is diſcharged of any Action for thoſe Treſpaſſes: So if the Award be, that whereas one of them hath received twenty ſhillings of the other, and hath done him divers Treſpaſſes, as alſo the other hath done to him divers Treſpaſſes, that the one therefore ſhall pay to the other his twenty ſhillings, and that they ſhall go quit one againſt another: So where divers matters be of both ſides, when the Award is, that they ſhall be friends, and all Controverſies and Matters ſhall ceaſe, and the one ſhall pay the other twelve pence: So if there be divers of both ſides, and the Award is, that one, or ſome onely ſhall pay to one, or ſome onely of the other ſide, Co. 8. 98. 22 Ed. 4 25. 20 H. 6. 19, 12. Goles Caſe, 7 H. 4. 31. M. 8 Jac. 20 H. 6. 18. 10 H. 6. 4. 19 H. 6. 6. If an Award be, that one ſhall levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, enter a Retraxit by Nonſuit, or diſcontinue his Action, or make defaults in a precipe quod reddat: In all theſe Caſes, though the concurrence of the Acts of others be neceſſary, yet it ſeems the Awards be good, 5 H. 7. 22. Means to make or obtain the thing.

If a ſtranger had drawn an Award before, and the Award be, that the parties ſhall perform that Award, it is good. 8 Ed. 4. 10. 39 H. 6. 10.

If the Arbitrators meet, and commune one day of the Award, and make it after another day at a new meeting, within the time given them, this is good; but they cannot meet, and make a part of the Award one day, and meet after, and make the other part another day; it ſeems this is not good, 39 H. 6. 12. 8 Ed. 4. 10. 19 Ed. 4. 1. 3 H. 4. 1.

Award that the parties ſhall be bound, or ſhall make aſſurance by advice of Council, or that an Action ſhall be ſued between the parties by advice of A. is good. 18 Ed. 4. 22, 23. 8 E. 4. 1, 4.

If the Arbitrement be, that the party that hath done the wrong ſhall pay a greater ſum in value then the wrong is that he hath done; this Award is good. 8 Ed. 4. 21. Reaſonable.

An Arbitrement, that one ſhall give the other a thing he hath not, is good, if it be to be had, and he muſt provide it. 19 Ed. 4. 1. 9 H. 7. 16.

An Arbitrement, that one of them ſhall give ſecurity for the performance of a thing to be done, is reaſonable and good, 8 H. 6. 18. 19 H. 4. 1.

An Award that the one party ſhall pay to the other ten pounds, and releaſe to him all Treſpaſſes, and that the other ſhall releaſe to him again is good, yet he cannot compel him to releaſe; but he may ſue him or the Bond, or Aſſumpſit, 20 H. 6. 18. Sect. 8.

After the Award, or for Matter, ex post facto.

If one be bound to ſtand to the Award of four of all Actions, &c. So that the ſame be made in writing, and delivered ſuch a day by the Arbitrators, or any three or two of them: If any two of them deliver it, it is good enough, Sallars Caſe.

If the Submiſſion be with Condition, ſo that the Award be delivered before ſuch a day, and the Arbitrators deliver it by word of mouth, it is a good Award; but if the Condition had been, that it ſhould have been delivered in writings, Contra. And if in this Caſe the Award be made in one County, and delivered in another, yet it is good enough, Dyer 218. 5 H. 7. 7.

If the Submiſſion be by divers on both ſides, with Condition that the Award be delivered to the parties, or one of them. If the Arbitrators deliver it to both, or all of one ſide, or to one of either ſide, it is good enough, Dyer 218.

If the Submiſſion be with Condition, that the Award be delivered before Michaelmas; if it be delivered the laſt day before after Sun-ſet, it is good enough, adjudged. Parkers Caſe. M. 37, 38 Eliz. Co. B.

8. The Expoſition of an Award, and how it ſhall be taken.

Though an Arbitrement be a Judgment, yet it is not like to other Judgments that are taken more ſtrictly; for this ſhall be taken according to the intent of the Arbitrators, if the intent will ſtand with Law, elſe the parties ſhall perform it according to theſe words; in ſuch ſenſe as they will agree with Law, 17 Ed. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 39. 19 H. 6. 36.

If an Award be, that one ſhall pay to the other twenty pound at Michaelmas next coming, provided, that for ſecurity the Extents and Leaſes ſhall remain in force: And if he pay not the twenty pounds at the day, nor put in ſecurity ſuch as the Plaintiff ſhall like of, then the Leaſes and Extents ſhall remain in force. This is an abſolute Award for the money, and the words (nor put in ſecurity) ſhall refer onely to the ſaving of the Leaſes, adjudged. Dightons Caſe. M. 2 Jac. B. Regis.

How an Award ſhall be performed.

The parties are bound to do all that they can to perform their Award, and it muſt not be done in part onely, but part may be at one, and part at another time, 21 Ed. 4. 39. 8 Ed. 4. 10. 6 H. 7.

If the Award be, that the one ſhall pay to the other ten pound for all wrongs, and then that the other ſhall releaſe all Actions, &c. Now in this caſe the other ſhall not be bound to releaſe, till the other pay him the money; and ſo in all like caſes, when another is to do an act before the party is to do his act; if the other do it not, he is excuſed. But if the Arbitrement be, that one ſhall pay money, and that the other ſhall releaſe without any ſuch reference of time, then or the like; either muſt perform his part at his peril, 21 Hen. 7. 28. 10, 36 Hen. 6. 15. 5 Edw. 4. 7. 21 H. 7. 28.

If no time be ſet by the Award for the doing of a thing, the party ſhall have a reaſonable time to do it, 20 Ed. 4. 8. 21 Ed. 4. 41.

If a thing be ordered to be done, which may be done two ways, in one whereof the concurrence of a ſtranger is neceſſary, in the other it may be done by the party himſelf; it ſhall be done that way in which the party may do it himſelf, 21 Edw. 4. 40.

If an Award be that one ſhall make and ſeal a Bond or Releaſe, &c. He that is to do it, muſt get it made, and muſt ſeal it at his peril, Brown and Donugors Caſe, Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. Co. 5. 77. In Margent.

Requeſt.

The Defendant was to pay to the Plaintiff upon Award eight pounds or three pounds, and coſts of Suit expended in ſuch an Action, between the Plaintiff and Defendant, as ſhould appear by a note under the Attorneys hand of the Plaintiff, &c. In this Caſe the Plaintiff is not bound to cauſe his Attorney to give notice thereof, or make tender of the note to the Defendant, but he ought to ſeek the Attorney, and requeſt it, March. 108. pl. 186. & 156. pl. 225.

If Arbitrators Award one party to pay to the other money, and ſay not what day, he muſt pay it without demand at his peril, Goldsb. 63.

9. Where an Arbitrement is a good plea, and where not.

Arbitrement is a good plea in all Actions perſonal, though the Submiſſion be not by Deed; ſo alſo to all Actions that are grounded on an Eſpecialty, when no certain duty doth accrew by the Deed tempore confectionis; but a wrong and a default ſubſequent, together with the Deed, gives Action to recover damages, as upon a Covenant to repair; or that he hath power to Leaſe a Term, and ſuch like. Co. 6. 44. 14 Ed. 4. 18. Co. 9. 60.

It is a good plea alſo, in an Action of Debt on a Leaſe for years, or on a Contract; alſo in an Account of a Receipt per auter mayne; alſo in a Forger de faux faits; alſo in a Raviſhment de gard; alſo in mixt Actions, if the Submiſſion be by Deed: And in all ſuch Actions, wherein an Accord with ſatisfaction is a good plea; alſo it is ſaid an Arbitrement is a good plea in an Action upon the Statute of Laborers; alſo in a Writ of Annuity, if the Submiſſion be by Deed, Broo. Arbitr. Dyer 75. 26. 19 H. 6. 36. 14 H. 4. 24. 6 H. 4. 6. Fitz. Arb.

But in Debt upon an Eſpecialty, or Arrearages of Account before Auditors, or in a Controverſie grounded on matter of Record: In all real and mixt Actions, Arbitrement is no good plea, Co. b. 44. B. R.

How an Arbitrement may be pleaded.

He that pleadeth an Arbitrement, muſt ſhew that he hath performed his part, and how, and wherein; or that he tendred, and the other refuſed, for this will excuſe, or ſay he is ready to perform it: And if divers things be to be done on the one part, in ſome of which the Award is void, and thereupon other things are to be done by the other ſide; if he ſhew he hath performed the Award, ſo far forth as it is good, the other muſt perform his part; and he that will ſue upon an Award, muſt ſay he hath done all that is to be done on his part, and wherein in particular the other hath broken the Award, Co. 10. 131. 7 H. 4. 31.

10. Accord and Concord. What Agreement ſhall be an Accord and what ſhall be a ſufficient Accord and good Bar in Action.

It is ſometimes taken for an agreement between two or more, that intend the levying of a fine of Lands one to another, how and what manner the Lands ſhall be paſſed (for which ſee Fine.) But here it is taken for an Agreement between two or more, to ſatisfie and make amends to another for [illegible] offence done to him; which being performed accordingly, though he give not the [illegible] part of the damage, it is a Bar in any Action brought for the ſame offence: And this is either Abſolute and Executed, or Executory. That which is executed, is ſuch an Accord as is performed according to the Agreement. Executory is that which is not yet done, but agreed onely to be done, Plow. 5, 6. Dyer 356. 39.

The Qualities of a good Accord.

To the making of a good Accord that may be a Bar in an Action for any wrong done, theſe things muſt concur.

1 The thing given and received, muſt be valuable, and ſatisfactory, a charge to the giver, and a benefit to the receiver.

2 It muſt be perfectly and compleatly finiſhed and executed, and ſatisfaction made according to the Agreement before any Action brought.

3 It muſt be in the life time of him that did the wrong.

4 The party to whom the wrong is done, muſt accept the Amends according to the Agreement; for it ſeems notwithſtanding the Accord, he may refuſe it, and Tender of Amends without an Acceptance thereof is no plea in any Action, but being accepted is: For as wrongs and injuries cauſe diſcord and variance, and beget Suits; ſo by an Accord between the parties, this may be recompenced, and this recompence begetteth peace. Dyer 356. 6 H. 7. 11. Fitz. Accord. 4. Dyer 75. 17 Ed 4. 2. Co. 9 79. 5 Ed 4. 7. Old Books of Entries, f. 6. Dyer 356.

In a forger of falſe Deeds, If the Defendant give to the Plaintiff a Pottle of Wine in ſatisfaction of the Treſpaſs, and he agree to it; this is a good Accord, and a Bar in the Action, 19 H. 6. 29. Fitz. Bar. 26.

If divers do a Treſpaſs, and one make a good Accord, this will diſcharge, and be a Bar to all the reſt, Co. 9. 79.

If a ſtranger, as one of the Parents or Friends of the Treſpaſſor, give the Amends in recompence: It ſeems this is as good, as if the party himſelf did give it. Barre 165.

In Detinue for a Cheſt and Charters therein, by the delivery of the Plaintiff: The Defendant pleads an Accord, that he ſhould keep the Cheſt until the Plaintiff come to Briſtol, and there it ſhall be opened: And if any Deeds be there that do concern a houſe, of which the Plaintiff had Enfeoffed the Defendant, that he ſhall keep it ſtill, and ſaith, That he never came to Briſtol, and it was awarded a good Concord. But Quere. Fitz. Accord. 2. 7 Ed 4. 23.

If one be amerced for a private Nuſans or Treſpaſs done to the Lord in his Leet, and he receive the Amercement, though it be Extortion, and he could not have recovered it; yet it ſeems, if he after bring an Action for this Nuſans, this acceptance of the Amercement may be pleaded in bar, Fitz. Bar. 187. 222. Br. Treſpaſs, 195. 61, 66.

Sect. 10. What not. For default of the value.

If one plead, that whereas there were divers Treſpaſſes committed by each of them, one upon another, and by mediation of Friends, they agreed one ſhould go quite againſt the other; this is no Plea, neither will it bar in the Suit: So in an Entry on the Statute of Richard, That the Plaintiff ſhall re-enter, and have his Land in peace, and that he ſhall deliver him the writings that he hath, that do concern the Land, Dyer 356. 16 Ed. 4. 8. 9 Ed. 4. 19. Fitz. Accord. 3.

So if it be in Treſpaſs for Goods taking, and the Defendant plead an Accord made, that he ſhould have his Goods again, 9 Ed. 4. 19. 30 H. 6. 4.

So if it be, that the Defendant ſhould do his endeavor to make the Plaintiff, and another who was at odds with him, agreed; or (as it ſeems) to ſhew that he did make an Accord between him and the ſtranger, unleſs he ſhew withal, that he was at ſome charge to do it, Fitz. Accord.

For default of Execution.

If the Defendant plead an Accord, that he muſt make Windows, and pay ten pounds at a day to come; and he ſet forth, that he hath made the Windows, but he doth not ſet forth that he hath paid the ten pounds; this is no bar; 6 Hen. 7. 10.

In Treſpaſs, the Defendant pleaded an Accord to pay ſix pence to the Plaintiff, and to give him counſel when he ſhall require it; this is no good plea, 17 Ed. 4. 2.

Tender of money without payment, is no good plea in bar of any Action, Old N. B f. 122.

If the Accord be between the parties, and be executed by the Heir or Executor of the Treſpaſſor; this is no bar where any Action may lie againſt the Executor, Dyer 356.

For other cauſe.

In a Writ of falſe Impriſonment, the Defendant ſaith, That it was agreed between the Plaintiff and him that he ſhould bring the Defendant to ſuch a place, which is the ſame impriſonment, and it ſeems this was no good plea, Fitz. Bar. 14.

11. In what Actions Accord ſhall be a good plea.

In all Actions wherein an Arbitrement is a good plea in Bar, an Accord executed is a good Bar: As in all perſonal Actions founded on a wrong, wherein damages onely are to be recovered; as in Actions of Treſpaſs, and upon the Caſe, Sur Aſſumpſit, or otherwiſe, Attaints, Appeal of Maytime, Covenants to repay, or the like: Maintenance, Conſpiracy, Waſte in the Tenuit, Forger of Faits, Raviſhment of Gard, Debt upon a Contract: In all Actions alſo wherein Chattels real or perſonal are to be recovered, as Ejectione Firmæ, Quare ejecit infra terminum. Waſte againſt a Leſſee for year, Detinue of Goods or Charters, which concern Freehold; and in all Actions wherein the wrong is ſuppoſed to be Vi et armis, and wherein Capias & Exigent doth lie at Common Law, Co. 6. 44. Dyer 76. Old Book of Entries, fol. 6. 19 H. 6. 52. per Curiam, Trin. 7 Jac. B. Regis, Co 4. 1. 13 H. 7. 20. Co. 9. 78. 6. 44. 40 Ed 3. 25. 35 H. 6 6. Brownl. 2. part. 128.

In all Actions real for any Freehold or Inheritance, or mixt, as Aſsiſe or Waſte in the Tenet; this is no Bar (but in ſome Caſes where certain Statutes make it a Bar, as in a Joynture) and therefore an Accord with ſatisfaction is no plea in thoſe Actions: So likewiſe in all Actions founded on a Record, or a Specialty, as an Obligation, or Debt on a Leaſe for years, or in an Account before Auditors, but where it is founded partly on a Record or Specialty, and partly on a Deed; there it will lie as in Attaint, and ſome of the Caſes above, Co. 9. 79. 4. 16, 44. 13 H. 7. 29. 10 H. 7. 4. 13 Ed. 4. 5. See Liver. Condition 181. Debt. 122.

Where an Accord or Agreement, to take one thing for another, ſhall binde, where not.

If one be bound in a Statute or an Obligation to do a Collateral Act, as to make a Feoffment, Account, or the like; here an Accord with Execution for any other thing as money, or the like, is no plea to ſave the Forfeiture of the Obligation: But if the Condition of the Deed, by the Original Contract of the parties, be to pay money, there by agreement between the parties, any other thing may be given in ſatisfaction of it, whether the money in the Condition be a Collateral ſum, or parcel of the Obligation, Dyer 1. Co. 9. 79. 12 H. 4. 23. 9 H. 7. 4. See Agreement, Acceptance.

If

If one be bound in two hundred quarters of Corn, in condition to pay twenty pounds, the Obligor may by agreement between them pay him a Horſe for it: But if the condition were to pay fifty quarters of Corn, he cannot give money, or any other thing in ſatisfaction of it by an Accord to ſave the Obligation, Co. 7. 9.

Of Artificers, Tradeſmen, and Arrow-heads.

THeſe are ſuch, whoſe Calling and Imployment is, and doth conſiſt eſpecially or chiefly of their bodily labor. As the Calling of Tanners, Shoo-makers, Girdlers, Sadlers, Cord-wainers, Laborers, Butchers, Brewers, Bakers, Glaſiers, Lime-burners, Brick-makers, Tile-makers, Plummers, and ſuch like, which are called Crafts, Feats, Trades, Myſteries; or Occupations, which are oppoſed to thoſe Imployments, wherein the minde is chiefly occupied; as the Imployment of a Divine, Lawyer, Phyſitian, and the like, which are called Profeſſions, Stat 2, 3 Ed 6. 15.

Conſpiracy de Artificers.

No Butchers, Brewers, Bakers, Cooks, Poulterers, Coſtermongers, or Fruiterers, ſhall conſpire, promiſe, or ſwear, that they ſhall not ſell their Victuals but at certain prices, Stat. 2, 3 Ed 6. 15.

No Artificers, Workmen, or Laborers, ſhall ſo conſpire, promiſe, or ſwear, not to do any work but at certain prices; nor to do that another hath begun or not to do more then ſo much work by the day, or not to work but at certain hours, Stat. 2, 3 Ed. 6. 15.

The puniſhment of this.

He that tranſgreſſeth either of theſe Branches, ſhall ſuffer for the firſt offence ten pounds; or if he pay not that within ſix days after conviction, twenty days impriſonment, to be kept with Bread and Water: For the ſecond offence twenty pound, if he pay it within ſix days after conviction, or elſe the puniſhment of the Pillory. And for the third offence forty pound, if he pay it within ſix days after conviction, or elſe the puniſhment of the Pillory, and the loſs of one of his Ears and to be ever after taken infamous, for his ſayings or depoſitions. And if it be the Company or Society of Victualers that offend herein, and the greater part of them be preſent at, or do conſent to the conſpiracy, their Corporation ſhall thereby be diſſolved.

Who may puniſh this.

All Juſtices of Aſſiſe, and Peace, Majors, Bailiffs, and tewards of Leets, may hear, and upon proof, by witneſs or confeſſion, puniſh theſe offences, Idem.

Where Tradeſmen may work, or not.

Such as have been Apprentices, and may exerciſe their Trades in one place, may work in any place, unleſs the Orders and Ordinances of the place (as in divers Corporations they do) hinder them. And if thoſe extend onely, and will reſtrain (as it ſeems) to ſuch as are dwelling within the Corporation, and not ſtrangers; for ſtrangers cannot be let to work there, if any man will retain and hire them. See the Statutes of the 2, 3 Ed. 6. & 3, 4 Ed. 6. 10.

Of Arrow-heads.

1 ALl Heads for Arrows, and Quarrels, muſt be well boiled or brazed, and hardned at the points with Steel, in pain to forfeit them, be impriſoned and be fined at the Kings pleaſure.

2 Theſe Arrow-heads muſt be marked with the proper mark of the Maker:

Of Aſſets.

Sect. 1. Aſſets, what.

ASſets is in two kindes, either Intermains, which is where one dieth indebted, and maketh his Executors: Or dieth inteſtate, and the Executors or Adminiſtrators have ſufficient in Goods or Chattels, or other profit, to pay his debts, or ſome part thereof. Theſe Goods or Chattels are called Aſſets Intermains, (i. e.) Enough in their hands; and they ſhall be chargable for ſo much as they have come to their hands by any Creditor, or Legatee: And if they waſte it, or loſe it; or pay Debts or Legacies, in any other order then the Law doth ſet down, they muſt anſwer it out of their own Eſtate, *Terms Ley, Co.*6. 46. Dyer 271. Or it is by Deſcent, and that is alſo in two kindes, 1. Where a man bindeth himſelf and his Heirs, by ſome eſpecialty or writing to do ſomething, and die leaving Land in Fee-ſimple, to deſcend to his Heir: In this caſe he ſhall be charged for his Land, to perform this as far as the Land will extend upon a Suit. And if he take not care in his pleading, he may be charged for his own Land, that he hath by any other means. 2. It is where a Man hath Land in Tail, or in the Right of his Wife, and alieneth the ſame with Warranty, leaving as much other Land in Fee-ſimple to deſcend to his Heir. Now this will be a Bar to the Iſſue in a Formedon, or a Sur cui in vita, whereby elſe they would have recovered the ſame Land, Broo. 199. 42 Ed. 3. 10. Co. 5. 34. 8. 52. In both theſe caſes, this is ſaid Aſſets per Deſcent in the Heir, Quod tantundem valet.

Sect. 2. Quotuplex.

Aſſets therefore is either Intermains, or by Deſcent. Intermains alſo is in fait. i. e. When one hath enough indeed in his hands; or in Law, i. e. When though he hath it not indeed, yet the Law doth charge him as if he had it. By Deſcent is either to charge him on a Deed, or to Bar him in an Action, Stat. 33 H. 8. 19.

Where and what ſhall be ſaid Aſſets to an Heir, to bar him in an Action, or not.

That Aſſets that muſt make a Lineal Warranty, a Bar muſt have ſix qualities.

1. It muſt be Aſſets, i. of equal value or more at the time of the Deſcent.
2. It muſt be by Deſcent, and not by purchaſe or gift.
3. It muſt be Aſſets in Fee-ſimple, and not in Tail, or for another mans life.
4. It muſt Deſcend to him as Heir from the ſame Anceſtor that made the Warranty.
5. It muſt be of other Lands or Tenements, Rents or Services valuable, or other profits iſſuing out of Lands or Tenements, and not Perſonal Inheritances, as Annuities, or the Reverſion of the ſame Land, or the like.
6. It muſt be in Eſtate or Intereſt, and not in uſe or right of Actions, or right of Entries; for they are not Aſſets, until they be brought into poſſeſſion; and when it hath all theſe qualities, it is a Bar, though the Iſſue have done the ſame away by Alienation: But then the Iſſue of the Iſſue ſhall not be barred. But if the firſt Iſſue were barred in a Formedon, and then after alien the Aſſets, then the Iſſue of the Iſſue is bound alſo, Co. ſuper Littl. 374. 4 Ed. 3. Gard. 63. Fitz. Aſſets 4. 43 Ed. 3. 9. 7 H. 6. 3. 11 H. 4. 20. 24 Ed. 3. 47. Co. ſuper Littl. 384. Perk. Sect. 270. Dyer 139. Plow. 110. Co. 3. 78. 10. 38.

If a Rent in Fee-ſimple iſſuing out of the Land of the Heir, deſcend to him whereby it is extinct; yet this is Aſſets. And for this purpoſe, in Judgment of Law, hath continuance. And therefore, if the Father be Tenant in Tail, and ſeized of a Rent-charge, iſſuing out of the Lands of the Son in Fee, and diſcontinue the Land tailed with a Warranty; this Rent deſcending ſhall be ſaid Aſſets, Fitz. Aſſets 5. Co. 3. 31. Fitz. Recovery in value 17. Co. ſuper Littl. 374. Perk. Sect. 270.

A Seigniory in Free-Almoigne is no Aſſets, becauſe it is not valuable; and ſo alſo of a Seigniory of Homage and Fealty. Fitz Meſne 7. Regiſter 293. Co. idem.

An

An Advowſon is Aſſets, and it ſhall be recovered after the rate of twelve pence for every pound or mark the Church is worth, Co. ſuper Littl. 374.

If the Tenant in Tail maketh a Leaſe for life, or gift in Tail rendring Rent, and the Reverſion deſcend; this is no Aſſets to bar. Non poteſt adduci exceptio ejuſdem rei, cujus petitur diſſolutio, Fitz. Gar. 35. Co. ſuper Littl. 384. 20 Ed 3. 221.

All the Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, that do deſcend to the Heir immediately from his Anceſtor, that made the Specialty in poſſeſſion, or in Reverſion after any Eſtate for life or years, ſhall be Aſſets in the hands of the Heir; but no Execution ſhall be of the Reverſion, till the Tenant for life be dead: Alſo Rents and Services that are valuable, and Tyths and an Advowſon are Aſſets, Dyer 373. Perk. 348. Co. ſuper Littl. 374. D. & St. 111. a. Trin. 42. Q. C. B.

Where and what ſhall be ſaid Aſſets to an Heir, to charge him in an Eſpecialty, or not.

If a Manor deſcend to the Heir, and after a Tenancy Eſcheat; this Tenancy ſhall be Aſſets, becauſe it comes in lieu of the Services, 6 H. 4. 1.

If the Heir enter into Land for a Condition broken, this Land ſhall be Aſſets in his hands. And if one ſeized of Land in Fee, make a Leaſe for years on Condition, That if his Heirs pay ten pound, the Leaſe ſhall be void, and the Heir do after pay the ten pound; it ſeems, that not onely the Reverſion after the Leaſe, but the whole Eſtate of the Land ſhall be Aſſets in the Heirs hands, Broo. Aſſets 8. Opinio Bridgman Juſt. Co. ſuper Littl. 159.

If one and the ſame man have an Eſtate Tail in Land, and the Reverſion after; this Reverſion in his Heir by deſcent, ſhall be Aſſets. So if an Eſtate be made to A. for life, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of A. this is a Fee-ſimple in A. and therefore will be Aſſets in the Heir of A. Co. 6. 42. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 54. Finches Ley 73.

But a Copihold of Inheritance of Land, or a Freehold deſcendable, ſhall not be Aſſets to charge an Heir in Debt, upon a Bond made by the Anceſtor, Co. 4. 42. 10. 98.

Perſonal Inheritances, as Annuities, and the like, or ſuch as are not valuable, as Services in Frank-Almoigne, or of Homage and Fealty, though they do deſcend in Fee-ſimple, are not Aſſets in the Heir. So neither is a Reverſion of Land after an Eſtate Tail in another perſon, any Aſſets in the Heir, Co. ſuper Littl. 374. Broo. Aſſets 26. D. & St. 76. Co. 6. 42.

An Eſtate Tail that comes to the Heir by deſcent, is no Aſſets to charge him upon any Eſpecialty of any of his Anceſtors, Dyer 124.

The Lands and Tenements in Fee-ſimple deſcended, are not Aſſets neither, if they be bona fide, aliened and ſold away before the Writ purchaſed againſt the Heir, upon the Eſpecialty, though the Heir do after repurchaſe them again before the Writ brought, Dyer 124. Broo. 27.

What ſhall be Aſſets in the hands of Executors or Adminiſtrators. See Executors. And ſee more of this here in Heyre Devaſtavit, Extinguiſhment and Warranty.

Of Aſſignees, Aſſiſe of Bread, &c: Attachment and Attaint.

Aſſignee, what the kindes.

THe word Aſſignee, doth ſometimes ſignifie the perſon to whom a thing given or granted, ſhall be afterwards granted or conveyed by him that hath the thing. And ſometimes the perſon to whom a thing is to be done, that is not done at the firſt. And in both theſe ſenſes, they are either in Fait or Deed, which are thoſe Aſſignees that are indeed appointed to receive the thing; or in Law, which are ſuch as are named by Law, to have or do the thing as Executors. For the knowledge whereof take theſe Caſes.

1 If one Covenant to do a thing to J. S. or his Aſſignees, or to J. S. and his Aſſignees by a day, and before the day J. S. die; in this Caſe it muſt be done to his Aſſigns, if he before the day name any Aſſignee, otherwiſe it muſt be done to his Executor or Adminiſtrator, which is an Aſſignee in Law, 27 *H.*8. 2.

2 If one make a Leaſe for years, and grant that the Leſſee and his Aſſignees, ſhall have twenty load of Wood yearly; in this Caſe he to whom the Leaſe is aſſigned is Aſſignee. So if one make a Feoffment of Land to J. S. and warrant the Land to him, his Heirs, and Aſſigns, and he aſſign over the Land; in this Caſe the Aſſignee may take the benefit of it, and vouch upon the Warranty. So if I ſell a Horſe on condition, that if I pay forty ſhillings to the Vendee, or his Aſſigns; in this Caſe his Aſſignee is he to whom he ſhall ſell the Horſe.

3 Where I am bound with condition to make a Feoffment to one and his Aſſigns; in this Caſe the Aſſigns are ſuch as he ſhall name to me, and to them muſt I make this Feoffment. See for theſe things, Plow. 287, 288. Co. upon Littl. 210. *Perk. Sect.*100.

4 Grantees of Reverſions ſhall have like advantage againſt Farmers and Leſſees (by Action onely) for any Covenant in the Deed, as the Leſſors their Heirs or Succeſſors might. What Aſſignees ſhall take advantage by this, ſee *Covenant. Numb.*8.

5 What Aſſignees may take advantage of a Warranty, is to be ſeen in Warranty. *Numb.*12.

6 The Remedy of Entry, in caſe a man be put out of his Land, taken in Exchange, doth not go to an Aſſignee. See for this in Eſchange, *Numb.*2.

7 A Feme ſole conveys a Term in Truſt, and marries, and then the Husband aſſigns it away; in this Caſe, the Truſt doth paſs, but not the Eſtate. March. 88. pl. 141.

Of the Aſſiſe of Bread, and other things.

Aſſiſe of things, what

ASſiſe, this word hath many ſignifications in our Law; but in this place it ſignifieth nothing, but the ſetting down and regulating of the price, and quantity of Bread, and Beer, and other things to be ſold.

For the Aſſiſe of Bread and Beer, ſee Stat. 51 *H.*3: *Ordinance of Brewers, cap.*2, 5,6. Two Statutes, *Incerti temporis, Crumpt. Jur.*225. 12 *Ed. cap.*6. 3 *H.*8. 8. See Clerk of the Market.

And for the Aſſiſe of Fuel, 43 Eliz. 14. 7 Ed 6. 7. See Quantity. For Paper, Parchment, Tile, Timber, Leather, Lead, Hops, Beef, Cheeſe and Butter, Herrings, Salmons, Eels, Wool, Hemp, Sugar, Spice, Iron, Glaſs, Linnen-cloth, how it ſhall be meaſured and accounted, ſee Dalt. Juſt. of Peace, 185. See *cap.*29.

Of an Attachment.

TO attach, in our Law, is to take hold by commandment or Writ of a mans perſon or goods: If it be applied to the perſon, it doth not differ at all from an Arreſt. So an Attachment is ſometimes to take the perſon of a man, and ſometimes to take his goods, and ſometimes to take both together. In the one ſenſe it is ſaid, a man may attach a Cow, or that a man may be attached by a Cow, or by an hundred Sheep. Attachment and Attach, what.

There is an Attachment of Privilege; and it is in two caſes: Either to give power to arreſt a man in a place privileged; Or it is to arreſt a man by virtue of his Office and Privilege to come into that Court to which he himſelf belongeth, and in reſpect of which he is privileged. And there is an Attachment to arreſt a mans perſon for ſome Contempt to a Court, or other miſdemeanor. For which ſee Contempt. Attachment of priviledg, what.

There is a Proceſs alſo called a Forein Attachment, which is uſed to attach the goods of Foreiners found within any Liberty, for a Debt due to another man. Alſo there is an Attachment uſed in the Forreſt-Courts; and there is a Reattachment, which is a ſecond Attachment of him that was formerly attached, and diſmiſſed the Court without day. Forein Attachment, what. Reattachment, what.

Of an Attaint.

IT is a Writ that is given to relieve a man that is hurt by a falſe Verdict. As if in a Civil cauſe, after another be pleaded to Iſſue, a Jury of twelve men, thereupon impannelled, give a Verdict againſt their Evidence given unto them therein, ſhew themſelves to be partial, and thereupon Judgment is given; then the party that is hurt and grieved by the Judgment, may have this Writ againſt the other party, (whether he be Plaintiff or Defendant in the firſt ſuit) and againſt the Jurors or ſuch of them as be then living; and then it ſhall be tried by twenty four ſufficient Gentlemen of the Countrey, whereof twelve at the leaſt muſt be of the Hundred where the Land lieth, whether the Verdict be true or falſe, after the ſame Evidence was given which was given to the Petit Jury, (for no more, nor no other Evidence may be given to this laſt Jury then was given to the firſt;) and if it be well done, or ſo much as is well, ſhall be affirmed. But howſoever, if the grand Jury newly choſen do affirm it, though it be falſe, the party hath no remedy. And if the twelve Jurors be found guilty, then Judgment ſhall be given that the firſt Judgment ſhall be reverſed, and the party reſtored to what was given from him thereby; That the party for whom the firſt Verdict was given, ſhall be fined and impriſoned; That the Jurors for the firſt Verdict ſhall forfeit each of them twenty pounds apiece, if the matter were above forty pounds; if under, then one pound: And then are they called Attainted, and accounted as perjured and defamed, and they for ever diſabled to ſerve in any Jury, or give in Evidence in any Cauſe in any Court of Record again. But if the Petty-Jury be acquitted by the Grand-Jury, and they do adjudg as the firſt, then ſhall the Plaintiff in the Attaint not only loſe the Land, and be fined, impriſoned and ranſomed at the Kings pleaſure, but alſo pay damages to the parties moleſted; and although the matter be never ſo falſe, yet is there no remedy after this in Chancery nor elſwhere, Cromp. Jur. 49. And if it be the Plaintiff in the firſt Action that brings the Attaint, and he have Reſtitution, then he hath his Title and Action as before. Forteſcue, cap. 26. Broo. 242. 18 Ed. 4. 9 *Broo. Theſe Writs are ſeldom put in ure: For, Gentlemen will hardly be drawn to appear to this end; and when they do, unleſs the corruption be very apparent, they will not attaint them: and if they do, the Judg is not willing to give ſentence, but deferreth; and then if the parties agree, or die, the Attaint ceaſeth.

This word hath alſo another ſignification; for when a Judgment is given againſt any man in Treaſon or Felony, then he is ſaid to be attaint or attainted. For which ſee Attainder.

What perſons may have an Attaint, and where not, and againſt whom.

Any one that is hurt by the falſe Verdict, whether he be party to the firſt Suit, or not, may have this Writ; and if the Verdict were about a matter of Land, then this remedy runneth commonly with the Land, ſo that any party or privy ſhall have it; as an Heir or Executor, or he in Reverſion on a Recovery againſt the Tenant for life or years, Dyer 1. Co. 11. 5. 18. Kelw. 119. Co. 3. 4. Stat. 9 R. 2. 3. Co. ſuper Lit. 294.

If a Treſpaſs be done by divers, and one have pleaded to Iſſue upon a Declaration againſt him, and the Jury upon the Trial have aſſeſſed unreaſonable Coſts; the other Treſpaſſers may bring an Attaint, for they be bound by thoſe Damages, Co. 11. 5. F.N.B 10. Co. 10. 119.

If Treſpaſs be againſt two, and Damages exceſſive, they may join in Attaint, Co 11. 43.

But ſuch a one as is neither party nor privy to the Suit, may not have this Writ; neither can the King, or an Informer have this Writ, Kelw. 119. Plow. 439. Broo 479.

Where it lieth, and where not.

And this Writ lieth againſt parties or privies, Heirs, Executors, and any other for the moſt part that hath the thing that was recovered by the firſt Judgment, Dyer 2. 1.

It lieth in all real, perſonal, and mixt Actions, in caſe where any material falſhood is found, though there be ſome truth found with it. As in real Actions, where in a Writ of Entry the demand is of twenty acres, when he ſhould have but ten, and the queſtion be about the quantity, and they find he diſſeiſed him of twenty acres: If they find a man guilty of many Treſpaſſes, when he is guilty but of one; or give exceſſive Damages in a Treſpaſs, or the like. But it lieth not on a falſe Verdict given upon an Enqueſt of Office; nor for any falſhood found, when the thing found is out of their charge and impertinent to the iſſue; nor upon any falſhood in a Writ of Right; nor upon any thing found in a Quare impedit de plenitudine ex cujus præſentatione, ſi tempus ſemeſtre tranſierit, and about the value of the Church by the year, Co. 644. Weſtm. 1. 37. 1 Ed. 3. 6. 28 Ed. 3. 8. Dyer 30. Co. 11. 6. 10. 119. 11. 13. Dyer 134. Kelw. 119.

Pleas in Attaint.

There be divers Pleas may be pleaded to this Writ, as a Releaſe, Arbitrement, Accord, and the like; alſo, That all the Jurors be dead but one. CHAP. XIX.

Of Attorny.

AN Attorny is a ſubſtitute or ſervant that is ſet or appointed in the turn, ſtead, or place of another, to do any buſineſs for him. And he is of two ſorts. 1. Publique and by Record, as are the conſtant and general Attornies at Law, in the Courts of Record. Qui vicem gerit Clientis apud Judicem, whoſe Warrant from his Maſter is, Ponit loco ſuo talem Attornalium ſnum. He alſo is general, or ſpecial. And the other is an Attorney that is private or by Deed, is ſuch a one as is made and appointed now and then for any particular buſineſs, and upon any ſpecial occaſion, who are ſo then only at that time, and in that thing. And in both theſe caſes, when any thing is done by another as an Attorny, it is as if he did it by himſelf: Qui per alterum facit, per ſeipſum facit. Co ſuper Lit f. 51, 52. Stat. 7 R. 2 cap 14. 7 H. 4. 13. See for ſuch Attornies, Stat. 4 H. 4. 19. 18 Weſtm. 2. 10. 33 H. 6. 7. 3 Jac. 7.

Attorny.

Warrant of a publique Attorny.

The private Attorney is commonly made and appointed by Letters, or a Deed of Attorny, which is uſually called a Warrant of Attorny, which is a Writing or Inſtrument, authorizing the Attorney to do that for him that doth make him his Attorny, that he would have him to do. And their duty then is to purſue their Authority; from which if they vary, they make all they do void and of no effect. For which ſee Authority, & infra.

Sect. 1. The making and office of a private Attorny.

The publique Attorney is to be made, appointed, and ſworn by the Judges of the Courts wherein they be Attornies, and they ought to chooſe and appoint none but men of Learning and Virtue, and ſuch as have been brought up in the ſame Court, or otherwiſe well practiſed in ſolliciting Cauſes, and have approved themſelves able and honeſt therein; and for miſdemeanors, they may remove, or otherwiſe puniſh them by their diſcretion. And then he is choſen by the Client, who makes his choice amongſt the Attornies made by the Court, of which he will, and he may make his Attorny in general, for all matters to do and receive for him; or ſpecial, in one or ſome particular matters or things. Stat. 4 H. 4. cap. 18. 3 Jac. 7. 7 R. 2. 14. 7 H. 4. 12.

Warrant of a private Attorny.

By the Common-Law, all that were commanded to appear by the Kings Writ, were to appear in perſon, and then after appearance the Judges were uſed to allow them an Attorny: But if the Judges and Court were not ſuch as did not hold plea by Writ, they could not allow him without a Writ of Attornato faciendo; and the Juſtices in Courts of Record and elſe, would not ſuffer any to appear by Attorny, whether he were Plaintiff or Defendant, Co. 8. 56. F. N. B. 26, 27. Stat. 20. H. 3. 10.

Where and in what caſes one may have and retain a publique Attorny, and where not without a Writ out of the Chancery, or other allowance.

But at this day in moſt caſes where one doth ſue, or is ſued, he may make his Attorny without Writ of Allowance from the King; as in Debt, Treſpaſs, Formedon, Account, Appeal of Murther, or Death, in Suits in a Hundred, Tything, County, Wapentake, or Court of the Lord; in a Plea to the return of a Reſcous by the Sheriff, Dyer 361. 5 H. 4. 8. Glou. cap. 3. Merton capio, Weſt. 2. cap. 10. 3 H. 7. 1. Dyer 212.

In an Information or Suit upon a Penal Statute, the Defendant being a Denizen may appear by Attorny of the Court, and ſhall not be compelled to put in Bail, Dyer 346. 9. 29 Eliz. 5.

Denizen upon information upon penal Stat. may appear By Attorney

In a Writ of Aſſiſe, Attaints, & juris utrum, after the Tenants have once appeared, he may make his Attorny to ſue for him if he will, 3 Ed. 1. 41.

Aſſize

If any perſon be outlawed or waved, and is ſo impotent as he is not able to come in perſon to reverſe it; this being examined and found by the Judges, they may in their diſcretion allow him an Attorny; but not in the caſe of a Writ of Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, 7 H. 4. 13.

In Pleas of Treſpaſs in the County-Court, where an Appeal lieth not; the Defendant may make an Attorny, 6 Ed. 1. 8.

Any of the Petit-Jury, Defendants in Attaint, may appear and anſwer by Attorny, 23 H. 8. 3.

But in a Præmunire, the party may not appear by Attorny, without a ſpecial Writ, notwithſtanding he be a Lord of the Parliament, Stat. 14 H. 4. cap. 14. 9 Ed. 4. 2.

It ſeems that by this Writ which is called Attornato faciendo, the King may command the Juſtices to allow an Attorny to the party, Plaintiff or Defendant, in any Action or Cauſe; and the Juſtices muſt allow him, as in a Quid juris clamat, againſt a woman great with child, or any impotent perſon; or in priſon, the Defendants may have a Writ to allow of an Attorny directed to the Judg, F.N.B. 25. l. Dyer 175. Dyer 135. p 15.

By a Writ out of the Chancery, or other allowance.

They which ſhall depart the Realm with the Kings licence, upon requeſt to the Chancellor, he with advice of the Juſtices may grant to them to make their General-Attornies to make anſwer, do and receive for them in any caſe or matter, Stat. 7. R. 2. cap 14.

Every Free-man which oweth Suit to the County, Tythings, Hundred, and Wapentage, or to the Court of his Lord, may freely make his Attorny to do thoſe ſuits for him: And this muſt be allowed him upon a Writ of Attornato faciendo, 20 H. 3. 10. Fitz. Attorn. 106. F.N.B. 156.

Sect. 2.

But in Writs of Entry and Right, the Juſtices will not admit of any Attorny on the Tenants ſide unleſs he come in and acknowledg him before ſome Juſtice, or have a Writ out of the Chancery to teſtifie it, F.N.B. 26.

And a Retraxit cannot be entred in a Court by an Attorny, but the party muſt appear in perſon and do it, Co. 8. 58.

Where and what things may be done by Attorny.

Moſt things that a man may do by himſelf, he may do by another: as, make a Feoffment or Leaſe, or the like; make Livery of Seiſin, Entry, Claim, Demand of Rent, or the like, or pay money: One may receive money, take Livery of Seiſin, take a Deed, take a Copihold-eſtate by an Attorny; alſo one may revoke an Adminiſtration, ſurrender a Copihold-eſtate, ſue for Debts, and ſuch like by Attorny, Co. 9. 75. Dyer 283. Br. 89. Co. ſuper Lit. & Lit. ſect. 153. 14 H. 4. 1.

What by a naked authority cannot be done by an Attorny.

But if one have a naked authority only, coupled with a confidence, as Executors that have power to ſell Land have, he cannot do this by Deputy or Attorny. So if one have only a particular power and authority in reſpect of ſome ſpecial intereſt; as if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in tail, and the Tenant for life hath power to make a Leaſe for one and twenty years, this cannot be done by Attorny: So if there be a ſpecial cuſtom in a Manor, that the Tenants may ſurrender to any two of the Tenants out of Court, this cannot be done by Attorny, unleſs the Cuſtom will warrant it, Co. 9. 75, 76.

What perſonal things cannot be done by Attorny.

Alſo there be ſome perſonal things that cannot be done by Attorny, but muſt be done by ones ſelf; as the doing of Homage, Fealty, Suit of Court, or the like, 7 H. 4. 19. Co. ſuper Lit. Co. 9. 75.

None but ſuch as are honeſt and skilful, and have been accuſtomed to ſollicite, or have been trained up in the practice of the Courts where they are to be Attornies, ought to be admitted by the Judges into that Office; and any one of thoſe Attornies that are allowed by the Court, may be Attorny for his Client, whom the Client will chooſe, 4 H. 4. 18. 3 Jac. 7.

No Steward, Bailiff, or Miniſter of Lords of Franchiſes which have Retorns of Writs, ſhall be Attorny within the Franchiſe or Bailiwick in any Plea, whereof he is or ſhall be Officer or Miniſter, 4 H. 4. 19.

Any perſon almoſt may be a private Attorny, or do a thing for another, yea, ſuch as might not do ſuch a thing for themſelves; as an Infant, Feme-Covert, perſon Attaint, Excommunicate, Outlawed, a Vilain, an Alien. A Feme-Covert may be an Attorny to deliver Seiſon to her Husband, & ſic è contra: And he in Remainder mainder may be an Attorny to deliver Seiſon to the Leſſee for life, Co. ſuper Lit. fol. 52.

The duty and office of an Attorny.

They muſt demean themſelves honeſtly and juſtly according to their Office and Oath, not moving nor exciting men to Suits, eſpecially forein and untrue ones, for ſmall treſpaſſes and little offences, and ſmall Debts, whoſe Actions are triable in Courts-Baron, 4 *H.*4.18. 3 *Jac.*7. 39 *H.*6.7.

Publique.

If he have given any Fee to any Serjeant or Counſellor at Law, or any ſum of money to Clerk or Officer, in any Court of Record at Weſtminſter for Copies, he muſt have a Ticket ſubſcribed with the hand and name of the ſame Serjeant, Counſellor, Clerk or Officer, witneſſing how much he hath received, and at what time; and he muſt give a true Bill to his Client, or ſome for him, of all other charges concerning the Suits, which they have for them ſubſcribed with his own hand and name, before ſuch time as he ſhall charge his Client with any of theſe ſame Fees or Charges, 3 *Jac.*7.

He muſt enter his Warrant of Attorny on Record, the ſame Term the Exigent is awarded, under pain of Forty ſhillings for every time: And the ſame Term he pleads to iſſue being for the Debt, or before, or elſe he is to forfeit ten pounds, and be further puniſhed by the diſcretion of the Judges of the Court, Stat. 18 *H.*6 9. 32 *H.*8.30. 18 Eliz. 13.

And they muſt not make any ſuit in a forein County, nor willingly begin untrue and forein ſuits, 39 *H.*6 cap. ult.

They muſt not willingly delay their Clients ſuits for gains, nor demand in their Bils any other ſums of money or allowance on his Accounts of any money which he hath not laid out or diſburſed; and if he do, his Client may have an Action againſt him, and ſhall recover treble damages, and the Attorny ſhall be put out of his Office for ever, 3 *Jac.*7.

Sect. 3.

They muſt not admit any other to follow any Suit in their name: If they do, each of them, the Attorney and Sollicitor, forfeit twenty pounds apeece, and the Attorny is to be put out of his Office for ever, Stat. 3 *Jac.*7.

They muſt not be Under-Sheriffs, Sheriffs Clerks, nor Receivers, nor Sheriffs Bailiffs whilſt they be Attornies; and therefore if they take upon them any ſuch Office, they muſt ceaſe that while and diſcontinue the practice of an Attorny, Stat. 1 *H.*5.4.

Private.

If a private Attorny do any thing, he muſt do it in the name of his Maſter for whom he doth it, and not in his own name: As if he have power to make Leaſes for years, it muſt be done in his name from whom he hath his power, unleſs there be ſome neceſſity to the contrary; as where an Executor hath power to ſell Lands, they muſt do it in their own names; or it be in ſome ſpecial caſe, as where the Authority is ſo given, that he may do it by himſelf or a Deputy: But if the Authority be indefinite, and he do the thing in his own name, all is void that he doth, Co 9. 76. Curia, Underhils Caſe, *M.*7 Jac. B. Regis.

The power and authority.

Alſo ſuch Attornies muſt take care to purſue the Authority given them, expreſſed by the Deed and implied by the Law, Co. lib. Inſtit. 1 par. fol. 52. See for this, Feoffment.

Publique.

He may bring an Action of Debt for the Charges expended, and his Fees againſt his Client; or if he be dead, againſt his Executor or Adminiſtrator: But he muſt then firſt give a Note of the Charges to his Client, in manner as is above ſet forth, Stat. 3 *Jac.*7.

They may not meddle in the Sheriffs office, and execute the office, or practiſe as Attornies at one time, Stat. 1 *H.*5 4.

Private.

Such an Attorny cannot do more then his Maſter: Derivativa poteſtas non poteſt eſſe major primitiva. And therefore the Attorny of one that is diſſeiſed cannot make a Claim of from the Land, if the Diſſeiſee himſelf durſt to have gone to the Land. The Bailiff of a Diſſeiſor ſhall not ſay, that the Plaintiff never had any thing in the Land, for the Maſter himſelf might not ſay ſo, 24 *Aſſ. p.*4. 2 Ed 4.16.

The

Warrant of Attorny. Publique.

The Warrant for the publique Attorny is, Ponit loco ſuo talem Attornatum ſuum: And this ought to be entred carefully by the Attorny. See the Statutes ſupra el ſtat. 18 *H.*6.9. el 32 *H.*8.30.

The Husband may make an Attorny for his Wife, and ſhe cannot diſavow him, 33 *H.*6.43

Private.

The Warrant of the private Attorny is made by an Inſtrument or Writing, ut ſupra.

The Principal in an Obligation may give a Warrant of Attorny for the reſt for appearance; and this is as good as if the reſt did give Warrant for themſelves, Dyer 361.

CHAP. XX.

Of an Attornment.

1. What.

AN Attornment is the agreement of the Tenant to the grant of the Seigniory, or of a Rent, or the agreement of the Donee in tail, or Tenant for life or years, to a grant of a Reverſion, or of a Remainder made to another. As where the Lord, or one that hath a Rent out of Land, doth grant over his Seigniory or his Rent to another; or one that hath a Reverſion or a Remainder after an eſtate for life or years, doth ſell or give the ſame away to another: In theſe caſes the Tenant of the Land muſt have notice of this ſale or gift, and of the alteration of the party to whom he muſt attend in his ſervices, and he muſt give his conſent to the ſame gift or grant, or elſe generally the ſame is not good. And this yielding of conſent is called an Attornment; and it is either actual, or verbal, or actual and verbal both. Co. ſuper Lit. 309. Terms of the Law. Plow. 25. Lit. ſect. 551.

2. The kinds.

That which is actual, is either implied and in Law, or expreſſed and in Fait. Of all which there are divers Examples hereafter following.

3. The effect of it.

The end, effect or fruit of this Agreement, is to perfect a Grant, and to make a good Conveyance of an Eſtate: For where this is needful, no Rent nor Reverſion will paſs without it; neither can the Grantee of the Seigniory, Rent or Reverſion, bring any action of Waſte for waſte done in the Land, nor diſtrain for any Rent or Service upon the Land before this is done. But this is but a bare aſſent, and therefore it ſhall not nor will enure or work to paſs any Intereſt, to make a bad Grant good, to enfranchiſe a Vilain, nor to give a man a Tenancie by diſſeiſin, intruſion, or abatement, neither ſhall it work by the way Eſtoppel. And therefore if a man gain a Rent iſſuing out of Land by Coherſion of Diſtreſs or otherwiſe, and the Tenant of the Land attorn to him, this will not amend his eſtate. But otherwiſe a Grant and the Attornment of the Tenant do as effectually paſs the Freehold and Inheritance of the Reverſion of Land, as a Feoffment and Livery of Seiſin of Land doth paſs the Poſſeſſion of Land. Lit. ſect 551. Co. ſuper Lit. 302. Lit. Bro. ſect. 267. 129. 379. 39 *H.*6.24. Co. ſuper Lit. 323. 315. Lit. ſect. 6. 8.

4. Where and in what caſes the Attornment of the Tenant is neceſſary, or not; and how, and to what intents.

In moſt caſes where the Grantee hath means to compel the Tenant to attorn, there the attornment of the Tenant is at leaſt to ſome purpoſes needful. For howſoever it be true, that if a Seigniory, Rent, Services, Reverſion, or Remainder be granted by Fine, in this caſe the Rent, Seigniory, &c. doth paſs, ſo as the Grantee may enter for a Forfeiture upon the alienation of the Tenant being Tenant for life, years, by Statute or Elegit, or upon an Eſcheat of the Tenant; or ſeiſe a Ward or Heriot, if it happen before any Attornment be made. And if the Reverſion of a Leaſe for years be granted by Fine, and the Leſſee be ouſted, and the Leſſor diſſeiſed, the Conuſee may have an Aſſiſe; and therefore as to all theſe purpoſes the Attornment ment of the Tenant is not needful. But the Grantee, his Heir, or Aſſignee cannot diſtrain the Tenant for Rent, or bring any Action that doth lie in privity between him and the Tenant, as Waſte upon a waſte done by the Tenant, Writ of Entry ad communem legem, or in caſu proviſo, or in conſimili caſu upon the alienation of the Tenant, Eſcheat upon the dying of the Tenant without Heirs, or Ward upon the death of the Tenant his Heir within age, or Writ of Cuſtoms and Services, until he have the attornment of the Tenant; and therefore as to all theſe purpoſes the attornment of the Tenant is neceſſary. And hence it is that the Conuſee of a Fine hath means appointed him by the Law to compel the Tenant to attorn; for in caſe where the Lord doth grant his Seigniory to another, and the Tenant will not attorn, the Conuſee, before the Fine be ingroſſed, may have a Writ called a Per quæ ſervitia, and thereby compel him to attorn. And in caſe where a man doth grant a Rent to another, and the Tenant of the Land out of which the Rent doth iſſue will not attorn, the Conuſee of the Rent may have a Writ called Quem redditum reddit, and thereby compel him to attorn. And in caſe where a man doth grant a Reverſion or a Remainder of his Tenant for life to another, and the Tenant will not attorn, the Conuſee of the Reverſion or Remainder may have a Writ called a Quid juris clamat, and thereby compel the Tenant for life to attorn. And if the Conuſee of the Fine die in theſe caſes before he have the attornment of the Tenant, his Heir, albeit he come to the thing deſcended by act of Law, yet ſhall be in no better caſe then his anceſtor was. And if the Conuſee of a Fine, by which he hath a Reverſion granted to him, before he hath gotten the attornment of the Tenant, bargain and ſell the Reverſion by Deed indented and inrolled, the Bargainee ſhall be in no better caſe then the Bargainor was. And if a Reverſion be granted by Fine, and the Conuſee before attornment enter and make a Feoffment, and the Leſſee reenter; in this caſe the Feoffee cannot diſtrain for the Rent. And yet if there be Lord, Meſne and Tenant, and the Meſne grant the Services of his Tenant by Fine to another in Fee, and after the Grantee die without Heir, and by this means the Services of the Meſne eſcheat; in this caſe the Lord may diſtrain for them without any attornment of the Tenant, Lit. ſect. 579, 580, 581. Co. 6. 68. Co. ſuper Lit. 309, 314, 320. Old. N. B. 170. Co. ſuper Lit. 252. Idem. Idem. Co. ſuper Lit. 310. Co. ſuper Lit. 321. Co. 6. 68. Lit ſect. 584, 583.

Per quæ ſervitia.

Quem redditum reddit.

Quid juris clamat.

In theſe following caſes, Attornment in Law or in Deed is abſolutely and to all intents neceſſary, viz. Where one doth make a Leaſe for life or years to one, and after doth grant the Reverſion or Remainder after the ſame Leaſe ended to another by Deed in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years; in this caſe the Leſſee for life or years muſt attorn. So where the Lord doth grant his Seigniory, or the Services of his Tenant by Deed in Fee-ſimple, or otherwiſe in Fee tail, for life or years to a ſtranger; in this caſe the Tenant muſt attorn. So where the Lord of a Manor doth make a Feoffment of his Manor; in this caſe the Services of the Tenants will not paſs without their attornment. So if another man have a Rent-ſervice, Rent-charge, or Rent-ſeck iſſuing out of my Land, and he doth grant this Rent to a ſtranger; in this caſe I muſt attorn to this grant to the ſtranger. And if in theſe caſes the Tenant do not attorn, the grant of the Reverſion &c. is meerly void. Co. 2. 66. Lit. ſect. 551, 567, 571. Co. ſuper Lit. 316. Lit. ſect. 551. Co. ſuper Lit. 315. Perk. ſect. 636. Co. 6. 68. Doct. & Stu. 55. Lit. ſect. 553. Co. ſuper Lit. 312. Lit ſect. 572.

If a Reverſion be granted after an Eſtate of a Tenant by Statute-Merchant, Staple, or Elegit, or after an Eſtate that any one hath until debts be paid, or the like; in theſe caſes theſe Tenants muſt attorn, or this grant will not be good, Co. ſuper Lit. 315.

If one make a Leaſe for years of Land rendring Rent, and after he doth grant the Reverſion to another for years, to begin after the death of the Grantor; in this caſe it is needful that the Leſſee for years in poſſeſſion do attorn to make this grant good: But if one make a Leaſe of his Land to one for Ten years, and after make a Leaſe of it to another, To have and to hold from the end of the ſaid term of Ten years for the term of Twenty years; in this caſe it ſeems it is not needful that the firſt Leſſee do attorn, but that the grant is good enough without it, Co. 2. 35. Lit. Br. ſect. 198. Dyer 307. Co. ſuper Lit. 312. Lit. Br. ſect. 151. 379. Br. Attor. 59. Dyer 26. Lit. Br. 349.

If

If one make a Leaſe to another for twenty years, and he make a Leaſe over to a third for ten years rendring a Rent, and then doth grant the Reverſion to a ſtranger; in this caſe it is needful that the Leſſee for ten years do attorn: But if the Leaſe for ten years be made without any reſervation of Rent, contra. For it is a rule, That where there is no Tenure, Attendancie, Remainder, Rent or Service to be paid or done, there Attornment is not neceſſary. And hence it is, that where one doth grant Common of Paſture appendant or appurtenant, or Eſtovers out of Land, that there needs no Attornment of the Tenant to make this Grant good. And if a Rent or Common be granted to one for life, and after the Reverſion of it be granted to another; that in this caſe there need no Attornment to make this ſecond Grant good. And if one make a Leaſe to one for ten years, and then make a Leaſe to another for twenty years; in this caſe the ſecond Leaſe is good for the ten years to come after the firſt ten years ended, without any Attornment of the firſt Leſſee. And ſo it was agreed in M. 37, 38 Eliz. B.R.

If a Lord exchange the ſervices of his Tenant with another for Land; in this caſe the Attornment of the Tenant by whom the Service is to be done, is neceſſary to perfect this Exchange, Perk. ſect. 249, 259.

If there be Lord and Tenant in Fee-ſimple, and the Tenant doth make a Leaſe to another man of the Tenancie for life, and the Lord doth grant the Seigniory to the Tenant for life in fee; in this caſe the Tenant in Reverſion muſt attorn to the Tenant for life upon this Grant of the Reverſion, or the Grant is not good, Lit. ſect. 562.

If I be ſeiſed of a Reverſion after an Eſtate for years, and I grant it to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after to the uſe of another and his heirs in Fee, and after I grant my Reverſion for life to another; in this caſe it is needful that the Tenant for years attorn to this Grant, Hil. 8. Jac.

If a Leaſe be made to I. S. for his life, and afterwards another Leaſe is made of the ſame Land to I.D. for his life; in this caſe it ſeems that I. S. muſt attorn to this ſecond Grant, or that the Grant will not be good, Dyer 118.

An Eſtate of a Seigniory cannot be gained by a Diſſeiſin, Abatement, or Intruſion without an Attornment. And therefore if one diſſeiſe another of a Manor which is part in Demeſne, and part in Seruices, the Services are not gained until the Tenants attorn, Lit. ſect. 587.

In all caſes for the moſt part where there is no means provided by Law to compel the Tenant to attorn, there their Attornment in Law or in Deed is not neceſſary, unleſs there be ſome ſpecial default in the Grantee. Quod remedio deſtituitur, ipſa re valet ſi culpa abſit, Co. 6. 68. Lit. ſect. 580, 583, 586. Co. ſuper Lit. 321. 314.

And therefore an Attornment is not neceſſary in theſe caſes following, viz. Where one doth grant a Rent, Reverſion, Remainder, Service, or Seigniory to another by way of Deviſe by a laſt Will and Teſtament, or by Letters-Patents from the King, or where ſuch things are granted by matter of Record from a Subject to the King, F.N.B. 121. m.

So when the thing granted doth paſs by way of uſe, and doth veſt by force of the Statute of Uſes: As if one that is ſeiſed of Land in Fee, doth make a Leaſe of it for life or years to I.S. and after levieth a Fine, or doth covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of the Reverſion of this Land, (or of the Land it ſelf, which is all one) to the uſe of another, or doth bargain and ſell the Reverſion in Fee, or for years; in theſe caſes the Tenant need not to attorn, Co. 6. 68. ſuper Lit. 321. 2. 35.

But if A. grant a Reverſion to B. to the uſe of C. and the Deed is not inrolled, or the uſe ariſe not upon conſideration of blood, &c. in this caſe if the Tenant do do not attorn, the Reverſion will not paſs. Agreed in the Court of Wards, Hil. 18 Jac.

If one by a Common Recovery ſuffered, grant a Reverſion to the uſe of himſelf, his wife, or children; in this caſe there needs no attornment of the Tenant by the Statute of 7 H. 8. 4. Calvins Caſe, Paſch. 7 Jac. B.R.

So where one doth come to any ſuch thing by title or Seigniory paramount, as by Eſcheat, Surrender, or Forfeiture, or by Deſcent; in all theſe caſes, and the reſt before, before, the Attornment of the Tenant is to no purpoſe, neither to paſs the thing as to the Eſtate, nor to make a privity to diſtrain or bring action of Debt. And therefore if there be Lord, Meſne and Tenant, and the Meſne grant the ſervices of his Tenant by Fine to another in Fee, and after the Grantee dieth without heir; in this caſe the ſervices of the Meſnalty ſhall come to the Lord paramount, and he may diſtrain for them, or bring any Action that lieth in privity for them without any Attornment. So if Leſſee for life of a Manor ſurrender his Eſtate to the Leſſor, there needs no Attornment of the Tenants of the Manor to make this Eſtate to paſs. So if the Reverſion of a Tenant for life be granted to another in Fee, and the Grantee die without heir, ſo that the Reverſion eſcheat; in this caſe the Lord may diſtrain or bring any action of Waſte, &c. without any attornment. So if a Reverſion deſcend to an heir from his anceſtor; in this caſe it will veſt in the heir without attornment, and attornment in this caſe is not neceſſary. So if the Conuſee of a Statute Merchant extend a Seigniory or Rent for debt, the Seigniory or Rent ſhall be veſted in him without any attornment of the Tenant, Littl. ſect. 583. 5 H. 7. 18, 19. Co. ſuper Littl. 321.

So in all caſes when the thing doth move by act of Law: As if a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, be aſſigned for Dower, or granted by Elegit for the moyetie upon the Execution, Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 33. 2 par. 291. And ſo alſo it is where a Manor or Reverſion of Copiholds is granted, the attornment of the Copiholder is not neceſſary, Brownl. 1 par. 179.

If a Copiholder in Fee make a Leaſe for years by licence of the Lord rendring Rent, and after ſurrender the Reverſion to the uſe of I. S. in this caſe it ſeems an attornment of the Tenant is not needful, but I. S. ſhall have the Rent without any attornment, Per tres Juſt. Trin. 4 Jac. B.R.

If one grant the Reverſion of Copihold lands for life or years, or grant the Seigniory of Copihold lands of inheritance; in theſe caſes there needs no attornment of the Tenants to make the grants good. And ſo alſo is the Law for an Eſtate at will by the Common Law, Curia M. 37, & 38 Eliz. B.R. Co. 2. 35. ſuper Lit. 311.

If a Leaſe be made to one for life, the Remainder to another in tail, the Remainder over to the right heirs of the Tenant for life, and the Tenant for life doth grant his Remainder in Fee; in this caſe there needs no Attornment of the Tenant in tail, but the Remainder will paſs by the Deed preſently without any Attorment at all, Lit. ſect. 578.

If one leaſe for life the Remainder for life, and after the Leſſor releaſe all his right in the Land to him in Remainder for life; in this caſe there needs no Attornment of the Leſſee for life to perfect this Releaſe, Lit. ſect. 575.

If two Joint-tenants or more make a Leaſe for life rendring Rent, and one of them doth releaſe the Rent to the other; in this caſe there needs no Attornment to make the Rent to paſs, Lit. ſect. 574.

In all caſes where the Grant is in the Perſonalty, there needs no Attornment. And therefore in Grants of Annuities which do charge the Perſon of the Grantor only, and not his Land, there needs no Attornment; and in all caſes where there is an Attornment in Law, there needs no Attornment in Deed. Agreed in Curnocks Caſe, M. 3 Jac. Co. B.

Tenant for life muſt attorn upon a Fine levied by Tenant in tail, Goldsb. 5. pl. 9.

If there be Lord, Meſne, and Tenant, and the Lord grant the Fee of the Seigniory; in this caſe the Meſne, and not the Tenant muſt attorn, Lit. ſect. 555.

If one make a Leaſe for life, and then grant the Reverſion for life, and the Leſſee attorn, and after the Lord grant the Seigniory; in this caſe it ſeems the Grantee, and not the firſt Leſſee for life muſt attorn, Co. ſuper Lit. 319.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant make a Gift in tail, or Leaſe for life of the Land, and after the Lord grant the ſervices to a ſtranger; in this caſe the Tenant for himſelf, and not the Tenant in tail or for life muſt attorn: For it is a Maxim in Law, That no man ſhall attorn to any Grant of any Seigniory, Rent, Service, Reverſion, or Remainder, but he that is immediately privy to the Grantor.

5. By whom an attornment may and muſt be made, or not.

But to the Grant of a Rent-ſeck or Rent-charge, iſſuing out of ſuch Land as before, the Under-Tenant in Tail, or for life, and not immediate Tenant himſelf muſt attorn, Littl. Sect. 554, 556. Co. ſuper Littl. 311.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee, and the Lord grant the Services to a ſtranger: In this Caſe the Tenant for life, and not him in Remainder, muſt attorn, Littl. Sect. 556.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Tail, and he in the Reverſion after their Eſtates doth grant his Reverſion to a ſtranger: In this Caſe, if either of them need to attorn, it muſt be the Tenant for life, Idem.

Husband and Wife.

If a Woman that hath a Husband be to attorn, the Husband may and muſt do it for her, and the Attornment of the Husband for the Wife, whether it be expreſſed or implied, will binde the Wife, Co. ſuper Littl. 312. Littl. Sect. 558.

If one make a Leaſe for years of Land, the Remainder for life, and after the Leſſor doth grant the Reverſion: In this Caſe, the Tenant for life or years, either of them may attorn, Littl. Sect. 571. Co. ſuper Littl. 316, 317.

If a Rent-charge be iſſuing out of Land, and the Tenant be diſſeiſed of the Land; in this Caſe the Diſſeiſor muſt attorn. But in caſe of the grant of a Rent-ſervice, the Diſſeiſee may attorn if he will; for the privity is between the Lord, and the Diſſeiſee onely, Co. ſuper Littl. 312.

If a man make a Leaſe for life to J. S. of Land, and after grant a Rent-charge out of it to J. D. and after he grant over this Rent to another; in this Caſe the Leſſor, and not J. S. muſt attorn, Idem.

The Tenant in Dower, after ſhe hath aſſigned over her Eſtate, and not the Aſſignee muſt attorn to the grant of the Reverſion; and yet ſome hold that the Aſſignee alſo may attorn. The ſame Law is alſo of the Tenant by the courteſie; but it is not ſo in other Caſes; for if the Reverſion of Leſſee for life be granted, and Leſſee for life aſſign over his Eſtate, the Aſsignee and not the Leſſee muſt attorn, Co. ſuper Littl. 316. 8 Ed. 4. 10.

If Leſſee for life aſsign over his Eſtate upon Condition, and then the Reverſion is granted; in this Caſe the Aſsignee, and not the Leſſee for life, muſt attorn, Co. ſuper Littl. 316.

If a Tenant in Fee-ſimple, that ought to attorn to a grant of a Seigniory, or Rent, die before he make an Attornment, his Heir muſt attorn, and an Attornment made by him is good. So if he grant away his Land before he make Attornment, his Grantee may attorn, and an Attornment made by him, will be good enough, Co. ſuper Littl. 315. Perk. Sect. 231.

If a Lord of a Manor, make a Leaſe of his Manor for life or years, and the Free-holders and others do attorn to the Leſſee, and after he grant away the Reverſion of the Manor to a ſtranger; in this Caſe the Leſſee for life or years muſt attorn, and this will binde all the Free-holders, Co. ſuper Littl. 311.

If there be Lord and Tenant by Homage, Fealty, and Rent, and the Tenant is diſſeiſed, and then the Lord granteth the Rent to another; in this Caſe the Diſſeiſor and not the Diſſeiſee muſt attorn; but if he grant the whole Seigniory, the Diſſeiſee may attorn, Idem.

Infant. Non compos mentis.

A voluntary Attornment where it is needful, may be made by an Infant, or one that is deaf and dumb, (who may do it by ſigns.) But one that is non compos mentis, cannot make an Attornment, Brownl. 2. part. 84. 1. part. 46. Co. ſuper Littl. 315.

6. To whom an Attornment may and muſt be made; or not.

The Attornment muſt always be made to the Grantee of the Reverſion, Rent, &c. according to the Grant, whether the Attornment be expreſs or implied. But if divers do take by the Grant, the Attornment may be made to one of them, and this ſhall avail the reſt; as if a Reverſion or a Rent be granted to two or more, and the Tenant attorn to one of them; this is good to veſt and ſettle the thing granted in them, all according to the Grant. And if a Leaſe be made by Deed of a Reverſion to A. for life, the Remainder in Fee to B. and the Tenant attorn to A; this is a good Attornment to ſettle the Remainder in B. But if the Tenant attorn to B. during the life of A, this is not good for A; howbeit if the Tenant for life die before the the Attornment be made; in this caſe the Attornment may be made, and this ſhall be ſufficient to perfect the Grant of the Remainder to B. Co. ſuper Littl. 310, 312. 20 H. 6. 7.

If I grant a Reverſion to one man, and before the Attornment of the Tenant had to perfect the Grant, he doth ſell this Reverſion to a third man; in this caſe the Tenant may attorn to the ſecond Grantee, and this will make the grant good to him. But if the Attornment be made to both the Grantees, it is void for Incertainty, Co. 6. 68. 11 H. 7. 12.

An Attornment may as well be made to Ceſtuy que uſe of a Reverſion, as to the Grantee of the Reverſion himſelf. And it ſeems it muſt be made to him, and not to the Grantee of the Reverſion. For it was agreed in the Court of Wards, Hil. 18 Jac. That if a Reverſion be granted to B. to the uſe of C. that the Attornment muſt be made to C. and not to B. who is but an Inſtrument, Co. ſuper Littl. 310. Hardings Caſe.

7. When and at what time the Attornment muſt be made.

In all Caſes regularly where Attornment is neceſſary, it muſt be made in the life time of the parties Grantor and Grantee, or Exchangor or Exchangee, for if either of them die before the Attornment be made, the grant or exchange is void. And therefore if a Manor be granted, and Livery of Seiſin be given upon the Demeſns thereof, and one of the Tenants die before Attornment be made by him, his Tenement will not paſs, and the Grant, as to that part, will be void; for in this caſe all the Tenants, but Tenants at will, muſt attorn. And albeit the Grant of the Reverſion be to begin at a day to come, and after the death of either of the parties; yet muſt the Attornment be made in the life time of the parties, or otherwiſe the Grant will not be good. And yet an Attornment may be made after the death of the Tenant by his Heir, and after the Conveyance of the Tenant by his Aſſignee, Co. 1. 151. ſuper Littl. 310. Littl. Sect. 551. Perk. Sect. 263. 231. Co. ſuper Lit. 315. 2. 35.

If a Leaſe be made of a Reverſion, to begin at a day to come; in this caſe the Attornment may be made before or after the day, ſo it be made in the life time of the parties, Co. 2. 35.

If one grant his Reverſion of White-acre or Black-acre, and the Tenant attorn to the Grant, before the Grantee have made his Election, which Acre he will have: this is a good Attornment, Co. ſuper Littl. 310.

If a man grant his Reverſion by Deed to one, and after and before the Tenant do attorn, he levy a fine or make a Feoffment of the Land to another; in this caſe it ſeems the Attornment after comes too late: But if the fine or Feoffment be but of part of the Land granted before in Reverſion; in this caſe the firſt Grant after Attornment, ſhall be good for the reſidue. And if a Woman ſole grant a Reverſion, and after and before Attornment ſhe marry with a ſtranger, and after the Tenant attorn; in this Caſe the Attornment comes too late, for the marriage is a Countermand of it. And if a Reverſion of an Eſtate for life or years be granted, and the Grantor before Attornment doth confirm the eſtate of the Tenant for life or years, and ſo change the Eſtate, and after the Tenant attorn; in this caſe the Attornment comes too late, Co. ſuper Littl. 309, 310. 8. 82. 4. 61. Kelw. 163.

8. The manner of making an Attornment. And what ſhall be ſaid a good Attornment; or nor.

To the making of a good Attornment, where it is needful divers things are required.

1. It muſt be made by the perſon that ought to make it.
2. It muſt be made to the perſon that ought to take it.
3. It muſt be made in time convenient.
4. If it be an expreſs Attornment, the Tenant muſt firſt have notice of the Grant of the Reverſion, Rent, &c. to which he muſt attorn; but otherwiſe it is of an Attornment in Law, for there notice in all caſes is not neceſſary.
5. And it muſt be done in that manner the Law doth preſcribe.

And for this it is to be known, that it may be made by words or by Deeds, and without any writing, or by Deed or Writing (and this is the ſafeſt way to do it.) And any words written or ſpoken by the Tenant, that do import an aſſent and Agreement to the Grant of the Reverſion, Rent, &c. in ſuch manner as the ſame is made after notice given to him of the Grant, whether it be in the preſence or the abſence of the Grantee of the Reverſion, Rent, &c. will make a good Attornment in Deed. And therefore, if the Tenant after knowledge of the Grant, uſe theſe words following, or any others to the like effect, to the Grantee, viz. I do attorn, or turn Tenant to you according to the Grant; or, I become your Tenant; or, I agree to the Grant; or, I am well content with the Grant; or, God ſend you joy of it: Theſe are good expreſs Attornments, Co. ſuper Littl. 309, 310, 315. Littl. Sect. 551. Plow. 344.

And if the Tenant after knowledge of the Grant, pay, do, or deliver all, or any part of the Rent, or Service, before, or at the time when the ſame is due, to the Grantee, or give a peny, or farthing, an Ox, or a Knife, or any ſuch like thing, or any other valuable thing, in the name of Attornment, or in the name of Seiſin of the Rent; this is a good expreſs Attornment, and that Attornment which is made by words and Deed, or ſign both, is the beſt; for that doth leave a more deep impreſſion in the minde of the Witneſſes. But if one have a Rent-charge iſſuing out of my Land, and he grant it to a ſtranger, and I give him an Ox to put him in poſſeſſion of the Rent; it ſeems this is no good Attornment. See Brownl. 2. part. 51. Littl. Sect. 563. 551. 513. Co. ſuper Littl. 315. 49 Ed 3. 15.

If a man grant his Reverſion of my living to J. S. and his Bailiff that doth uſe to gather his Rents, ſaith to me, That J. S hath bought it, and I muſt hereafter pay my Rent to him, and I tell him I am glad of it; this is a good Attornment. And that albeit it be in the abſence of J. S. M. 2 Car. In the Court of Wards. Co. ſuper Lit. 310.

And it is not material whether the ſtranger know of the Grant or not, ſo the Tenant know of it. And an Attornment made to the Lords Steward in the Court in the abſence of the Lord is a good Attornment. For it is ſufficient if the Tenant have notice, that he attorn to the grant in the preſence of any whomſoever. Tenant for life was, the Remainder in Tail, he in the Remainder granted his Remainder; the Tenant for life having notice of the Grant, ſaith to a ſtranger in his abſence, That is the party, I am well pleaſed that the Grant is made to him; it was adjudged to be good. Curia B. R. Hil. 11 Car. B. R. Hiltons Caſe.

If a Reverſion be granted to one for life, and after the ſame Reverſion be granted to him for years, and the Tenant attorn to both the Grants at once; this Attornment is void for Incertainty. So if one grant his Seigniory to J. S. Biſhop of London, and his Heirs, by one Deed, and grant the ſame to J. S. Biſhop of London, and his Succeſſors by another Deed, and the Tenant attorn to both Grants at once; this Attornment is void for Incertainty. So if a Reverſion be granted to two ſeveral perſons, by ſeveral Deeds, and the Tenant attorn to both the Grants at one time; this Attornment is void for Incertainty, and neither of the Grants are perfected by the Attornment in theſe Caſes. The implied Attornment which alſo doth amount to an expreſs Attornment is made divers manner of ways. For if the Tenant after notice of the Grant of the Reverſion pay his Rent to the Grantee, or ſurrender his Eſtate to the Grantee, or pray in aid of the Grantee, or accept a Grant of the Reverſion or Remainder from him that hath it; this is a good Attornment in Law. But if the Tenant after the Grant of the Reverſion, not having notice of the Grant, pay his Rent to the Grantee as a Receiver, Bailiff, &c. this is no good Attornment. And therefore if the Bailiff of a Manor ſhall purchaſe the Manor, or the Reverſion of one of the Tenements and the Tenant not knowing of this purchaſe, pay his Rent to him as he was wont to do; this is no good Attornment in Law. So if a man ſeiſed of a Seigniory levy a fine of it, and then taketh back an Eſtate in Fee, and the Tenant having no notice of all this, doth pay his Rent to the Conuſor as he was wont to do; this is no good Attornment in Law, to perfect either of theſe Grants, Co. ſuper Littl 310. 11 H. 7. 12. 14 H 8. 15. 34 H. 6. 41. Co. ſuper Lit. 312. Calvins Caſe, Adjudged. Paſche, 7 Jac. B. R. Co. ſuper Littl. 309. Co. 2. 67. Dyer 302.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant let the Land to a Woman for life, the the Remainder in Fee, and the Woman doth take a Husband, after the Lord doth grant the Services to the Husband in Fee; in this case this Acceptance of the Deed by him that ought to attorn, is a good Attornment in Law. So if in this case the Tenant Lease to a man for life, the Remainder over, and the Lord grant the Services to the Tenant for life, and he accept thereof; this is a good Attornment in Law, Littl. Sect. 558, 560, &c.

If the Lord by Deed grant his Seigniory to the Tenant of the Land, and to a stranger, and the Tenant doth accept of this Deed; this is a good Attornment in Law, to extinguish a moyety, and to vest the other moyety in the other Grantee. So if one make a Lease to J. S. for life, and after confirm his Estate, the Remainder over to J. D. and the Lessee for life, doth accept of the Deed of this Confirmation and Grant; this is a good Attornment in Law, and doth vest the Remainder in J. D. Co. super Littl. 313. Co. super Littl. Sect 573.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant take a Wife, and after the Lord doth grant the Services to the Wife, and her Heirs, and the Husband doth accept of the Deed of this Grant; this is a good Attornment in Law, Littl. Sect 559.

If the Conusee of a Fine of Services sue a Scire facias to have Execution of the Services, and hath Judgment to recover; this is a good Attornment in Law, Littl. Sect. 564.

If a Woman grant a Reversion to a man in Fee, and after marry with the Grantee; this is a good Attornment in Law to perfect this Grant made to the Husband, Co. super Lit. 310.

If a Lord grant his Seigniory, and there be twenty manner of Services, and the Tenant with what intent soever it be, pay or perform in Deed any parcel of the Services to the Grantee; this is a good Attornment in Law for all the Services, Littl. Sect. 563.

If I be seised of Land in Fee, and make a Lease for life or years of it, or it be extended by a Statute or Elegit, and then I make a Feoffment of this Land, and give Livery of Seisin upon it, and so put out the Tenant, and after the Tenant (or one of the Tenants, if there be many) re-enter; this is a good Attornment in Law. And so also it seems is the Law, if the Lessee for life recover in an Assise. But if a man make a Lease for life, and then the Lessor grant the Reversion for life, and the Lessee attorn, and after the Lessor enter and make a Feoffment in Fee, and so disseise the Lessee for life, and then the Lessee re-enter; this is no good Attornment in Law by the Grantee for life. And if the Conusee of a Reversion by fine disseise the Lessee for life, and make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Lessee re-enter; this is no good Attornment in Law to the Feoffee to enable him to distrain, &c. Littl. Sect. 576, 577. Co. super Littl. 319. Dyer 212. Co. 6. 68 5. 113.

If one grant the Reversion of a Lease of a term of years and before any Attornment made, the Lessee for years doth grant his term to the Grantee of the Reversion; in this case this is no good Attornment in Law to make the Reversion to pass, Hil. 8 Jac.

If one have Land, and a Rent issuing out of other Land, both in one County, and he grant both by Deed, and give Livery of Seisin of the Land, in the name both of the Land and of the Rent; this is no good Attornment in Law to make the Grant of the Rent good, Perk. Sect 231.

If Lessee for life or yeers, subscribe his name as a witness to the sealing and delivery of the Grant of the Reversion made by the Lessor to a stranger; this is no good Attornment in Law, for he may do this, and not have notice: But if he have notice of the Grant, and then put his hand to it; this is an Attornment, Curia. B. R. Hil. 11 Car. So was it held in Brokenbury and Martials Case. 5 Eliz.

If a Reversion be granted of two Acres, or for forty years, or if Services be granted, and the Tenant doth attorn for one Acre, or for part of the forty years, or for part of the Services; this shall extend to all, and is a good Attornment for both the Acres, all the forty years, and all the Services. And that albeit the Tenant say expresly, it shall be good but for a part, and not for the whole; and so also it is of an Attornment in Law. And therefore if the Grantee by fine of Services sue a Attornment to part of the Grant good for the whole.

Scire

Scire facias, to have Execution of any part of the Services, and have Judgment to recover any part, or a Leſſee of three Acres ſurrender one of them to the Grantee of the Reverſion of all the three Acres; this is a good Attornment for the whole. But if one attorn for part of the Land, or for part of the Services in caſe of the Grant of a Reverſion of Land, or the Grant of Services, and have no notice of the Grant of any more; this Attornment is not good for any part, but void for all, Co. 2. 68. ſuper Littl. 297, 314, 309. Littl. Sect. 564.

Attornment to one good to others.

If a Seigniory, Reverſion, or the like, be granted to two or more, and the Tenant after notice thereof, doth attorn to one of them; this is a good Attornment to perfect the Grant to both or all of them. But if one die before Attornment, and the Tenant attorn to the Survivor or Survivors; this ſhall not avail the Heir of him that is dead, but it is good to perfect the Grant to the Survivor or Survivors, to whom it is made, Co. ſuper Littl. 297. 2. 68. 67.

If a Reverſion be granted to Husband and Wife, and the Tenant attorn to the Wife in the abſence of the Husband; this is a good Attornment to perfect the Grant to them both. But if a Reverſion be granted to two men, and the Tenant have notice onely of a Grant made to one of them, and he attorn to him onely; this Attornment is void, and not good to perfect the Grant to either of them, Calvins Caſe. Paſche, 7 Jac. B. R. Co. 2. 68.

Attornment by one good for others.

If two Joynt-tenants be for life, or years, and the Reverſion of their Eſtate is granted to a ſtranger, and one of them attorn to the Grant of the Reverſion; this is a good Attornment for both of them. The like Law is for Tenants in common. Co. 2. 66, 67. Littl. Sect. 566. But if A, B, C and D, be Leſſees for years, and C and D be outlawed, ſo as they forfeit their parts to the King, and the King become Tenant in common with A and B. and after the Reverſion is granted to a ſtranger, and A, B, C and D attorn; this is no good Attornment to perfect the Grant of the Reverſion; for C and D cannot attorn, and the Attornment of A and B for the King and themſelves, is not good, 6 Car. In the Lord Brook's Caſe in the Court of Wards.

9. Who ſhall be compelled to attorn; or not; and where.

Attornment made by the Husband, is good for the Wife; whereof ſee before at Numb. 5.

In all Caſes for the moſt part where Attornment is needful, the Tenant whether he be Tenant in Fee-ſimple, for life, years, by Statute, Elegit, or as Executor until Debts be paid, ſhall be compelled to attorn. And albeit the Tenant be an Infant, and come to the Land by purchaſe or deſcent, yet may he be compelled to attorn, but then in this caſe his Attornment ſhall not prejudice him; for when he is of full age he may diſclaim, or ſay he doth hold by leſs Services. Co. 6. 68. 9 84. ſuper Littl. 315.

If there be Tenant in Tail of a Reverſion, and he grant this over to a ſtranger; in this caſe the Tenant in poſſeſſion may be compelled to attorn. But if the Reverſion upon the Eſtate of the Tenant in Tail, or upon the Eſtate of the Tenant in Tail, after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct be granted, ſuch a Tenant may not be compelled to attorn; and yet ſuch a Tenant may attorn gratis if he will. And the Aſſignee of the Eſtate of ſuch a Tenant in Tail after poſſibility, &c. is compellable to attorn. And if one make a gift in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Seigniory, or a Rent-charge iſſuing out of the Land, is granted in Fee by Fine; in this caſe the Tenant in Tail may be compelled to attorn, Co. ſuper Littl. 316, 318.

In all caſes, for the moſt part, where Attornment is not needful, there is no means to compel the Tenant to attorn. And therefore the Tenant cannot be compelled to attorn to him that comes to a Reverſion or Remainder by Eſcheat, Forfeiture, &c. Co. 6. 68. ſuper Littl. 318.

If one grant his Reverſion of Land in Mortmain without a Licence, the Tenant may not be compelled to attorn, until there be a Licence had from the King, Co. ſuper Littl. 318. 3. 86.

Alſo it is a general rule, that when the Grant by Fine is defeaſible, there the Tenant ſhall not be compelled to attorn. As if an Infant levy a Fine, this is defeaſible by Writ of Error during his minority, and therefore the Tenant ſhall not be compelled pelled to attorn. So if the Land be holden in ancient Demeſn, and he in the Reverſion levieth a Fine of the Reverſion at the Common Law; the Tenant ſhall not be compelled to attorn, becauſe the Eſtate that paſſeth is reverſable by a Writ of Deceit, Co. ſuper Littl. 318. 3. 86.

10. How an Attornment ſhall enure and be taken.

If the Grant be abſolute, and the Attornment be on condition; yet this ſhall enure according to the Grant. So if the Attornment be but to part of the things, or part of the time granted; this ſhall enure to perfect the Grant for all. So if the Attornment be made but to one of the Grantees, it ſhall enure to the reſt. So if the Attornment be made to the particular Tenant, it ſhall enure to him in the Remainder to perfect his Eſtate alſo, Co. ſuper Littl. 309, 310. 297. See before.

If the Eſtate of the Tenant be with a priviledge annexed, as without impeachment of waſte, or the like, and the Tenant attorn generally without any ſaving of his priviledge, if the Attornment be gratis and voluntary, whether it be an Attornment in Law, or in Deed; this ſhall not enure to extinguiſh his privilege: But if the Attornment be made by the Compulſion of a Writ in this manner, and without this ſaving, he hath loſt his privilege for ever, Co. ſuper Littl. 320.

If a Reverſion, &c. be granted to two ſeveral men one after another, and he that hath the latter Grant, get the Attornment of the Tenant to his Grant, before the other; in this caſe this ſhall enure to perfect the latter, and the firſt Grant now cannot be made good, Co. ſuper Littl. 310.

If a Reverſion be granted to a Man and Woman unmarried, and before Attornment made they entermary, and then the Tenant attorn; in this caſe they ſhall have the Eſtate by Moyeties, Idem.

11. How an Attornment ſhall relate.

An Attornment as to the Party-Grantor ſhall have relation to the time of the Grant, to make the thing to paſs out of the Grantor ab initio, albeit it be made many years after the Grant; and therefore all acts done by him, after the time of the Grant, and before the Attornment to the prejudice of his own Grant, as granting of Rents, entring into Statutes, or the like, are void, as to the Land to charge it: And hence it is, that if a Reverſion be granted to an Alien, and before the Attornment of the Tenant, he is made Denizen; in this caſe the King upon Office found, ſhall have the Land; and yet it ſhall not ſo relate as to make the Tenants chargable to the Grantee for any mean Arrearages, or for any waſte in the Lands, from the time of the Grant to the time of the Attornment. But in reſpect of a ſtranger it ſhall not relate at all. And therefore if two Deeds be of a Reverſion at ſeveral times, and he whoſe Deed was made laſt, gets Attornment firſt, the Reverſion doth paſs to him; and though the other get Attornment afterwards, yet this will not help him by relation; and albeit the former grant of the Reverſion be in Fee, and the latter for life onely, yet the Law will be all one in both caſes. Idem.

CHAP. XXI.

Of Audita Querela.

Audita Querela.

IT is a Writ lying where one is bound in a Statute-Merchant, Staple, or Recognizance, or where Judgment is given only for Debt or Damages, or the party in Execution, and he hath a Releaſe or ſome other ſufficient Diſcharge for all or part of the duty, but hath no day in Court to plead it, nor means to make uſe of it, then he may have this Writ to relieve himſelf, Co. ſuper Lit. 290. Dyer 56. Finches Caſe, 14 Fitz. 23.

And this ſometimes is to be brought againſt the Proſecutor himſelf, and ſometimes againſt him and others that ought to bear part of the burthen with him, Kelw. 25. Br. 38.

If it be brought before Execution by the party or his Heir or Executor, the party may have a Superſedeas to ſtay Execution upon a Surmiſe of good cauſe for the Audita Querela, and upon Bail given to proſecute and ſtand to the Judgment of the Court: But when the party is in priſon, it ſeems there is no Bail put in till the Conuſee anſwer in the Audita Querela: But after Execution done, it ſeems no Superſedeas lieth. And the Proceſs beſides are before Execution, a Venire facias with an Alias; and then if he come not in, it ſeems that the party that is in priſon, upon motion may be diſcharged: And a Diſtringas; and upon a default after appearance and a Plea pleaded, a Diſtringas ad audiendum Judicium; for by ſuch default Judgment ſhall be given againſt him: And after Execution, the Proceſs is a Scire facias, when the party is in priſon on a Cap. ſat. But when he cometh in gratis, contra. Dyer 339. 22 H. 6. 56. 2 H. 7. 12. 25 H. 6. 34. 43 Ed. 3. 28. 12 H. 4. 6. 15. 15 Ed. 4. 5. Fitz. 5. 6, 7.

It ſeems alſo that a ſtranger, as he that is a Purchaſor of Land of a Cognizon of a Statute, ſhall not have a Superſedeas. See Fitz. 8. 19.

And if one Purchaſor ſue to have Contribution of another, and that other have a Diſcharge by Releaſe, a Scire facias ſhall go againſt the Cognizor that made the Releaſe, to try that Deed, Fitz. 19.

And in caſe where a man puts in Bail, he ſhall not be diſcharged of his Bail, but muſt continue it, until the Suit by the Audita Querela be determined; for though the Plaintiff preſent not after the appearance of the Debt, yet the party muſt continue in priſon or ſtand upon Bail, Fitz. Aud. Qu. 2.

If a man be Nonſuit in one Audita Querela, yet he may have another; but he ſhall have no Superſedeas to ſtay Execution in the ſecond, as he may in the firſt, Fitz. 11.

Againſt whom it lieth.

This Writ lieth againſt the Ter-tenant, without naming him Party or Privy, F. N. B. 104. c. 12 H. 4. 16.

If an Obligee have Judgment againſt an Heir of the Obligor, and his Land in extent, and the Obligee aſſign his Eſtate to a ſtranger, and after the Heir get a Releaſe from the Obligee of this Judgment, he may have this Writ againſt the Aſſignee, Adjudg Flower and Elgars Caſe, Paſch. 7. Car. B. R. Co. 4. 430. 3. 44.

In what caſe this Writ lieth to avoid a Judgment or Execution.

In all Caſes where this remedy is given, there are theſe three Incidents in the Caſe.

1. There is a charge and burthen come, or coming upon him that is to have it;
2. It is ſuch as by Law he ought to be diſcharged of in all or in part.
3. It is in ſuch a caſe where he hath no other remedy to relieve himſelf. As in all theſe Examples following:

Sect. 1.

(a) If a Judgment be againſt me, or Judgment and Execution, and the Plaintiff make me a Releaſe in Fact, and I be releaſed in Law, ſo as the ſame or any part of it is releaſed, and yet he ſueth Execution. (b) So if a Widow of a Copiholder in Fee,

Fee, that claimeth Dower by the Cuſtom of a Manor, recover the ſame in the Lords Court, and Fifty pounds in damages, where in truth there is no ſuch cuſtom, and the recovery is erroneous; the party grieved may have this remedy to prevent Execution, and to be reſtored to his damages if they be taken, (a) 36 *H.*6 24. *Plow.*72. Dyer 286. 20 *H.*7.30. *Co.*8.152. Dyer 50. (b) *Co.*4.30.

So if Executors have ſued and recovered by Judgment, after the Teſtament is revoked and annulled, in this caſe the party againſt whom the Judgment is, may get it certified by the Biſhop, and then have an Audita Querela againſt the Executors, *Co.*8.144. Dyer 203. *p.*73.

So if one be in Execution, and the Sheriff or the Plaintiff deliver him out and ſet him at liberty, and after take and impriſon him again, he may have this remedy; for by this the Debt is diſcharged, *Co.*8.21.

So if one have a Judgment againſt a Sheriff upon an Eſcape, and after the firſt Judgment, from the Execution whereof the Eſcape was, is reverſed for Error, the Sheriff may have relief by this Writ; but till it be reverſed, though there be Action, he cannot. So if the party be taken after the Judgment reverſed, *Co.*8.142.

So if in a Detinue for a Statute, the Defendant prays Garniſhment, and the Plaintiff recover againſt the Garniſhee by an Erroneous Judgment, and thereupon the Defendant deliver the Statute to the Plaintiff, and he hath Execution after the Garniſhee reverſe the Iudgment; it ſeems though Execution cannot be avoided, yet the party may have this Writ, Co. 5. 90.

So if one have a Judgment againſt two Joint-treſpaſſors, and one is taken, and he is ſatisfied by him, and after ſue to have Execution of the other, he may be relieved by this Writ, Trin. 3 Jac. B. Regis.

So if one have Judgment againſt two, and one is taken in Execution, and releaſed or diſcharged by the party, the other ſhall have the advantage thereof, Monk againſt Brown, P. 40 Q. Com. B.

If he that is in Execution purchaſe a Manor, to which the Plaintiff is a Vilain regardant, wherein there is a Diſcharge in Law, he may have this Writ, Fitz. 19.

If an Obligee have a Judgment and Land extended of the Heir, and aſſign it over, and after the Aſſignment releaſe to the Heir; in this caſe he may have this remedy againſt the Aſſignee, Flowers Caſe, *P.*7 Car. B. R. Adjudg. M. 36. & 37 Ed. 2. Co. B.

If the Conuſee of a Statute or Recognizance purchaſe part of the Land the Conuſor had at the time or after, and another another part, and the Conuſee ſue the Execution on the other Purchaſor, he ſhall have this Writ to diſcharge him altogether; for in this caſe he ſhall not have Contribution, or any part of him, Charnock verſ. Sir Tho. Gerrard.

If after the Scire facias ſued upon the Statute, the Conuſor get a Releaſe from the Conuſee of all or part of the Debt, and yet he go on to ſue Execution; the Conuſor may have this remedy: For if it be before the Scire facias ſued that he had the Releaſe, he might have pleaded it, Finch 114. Dyer 50. *p.*6.

If one enter into a Statute that hath ſome defect in him, and is not good, and yet the Conuſee ſue Execution, the Conuſor hath this remedy.

Or the ſame be voidable by ſome Law, as if the ſame were made upon an Uſurious Contract, or the like.

Or there were a Defeaſance upon it, which have been kept, and he notwithſtanding hath ſued Execution upon it.

Or the Statute were delivered up (which is a Releaſe in Law) and the Conuſee happen to come by him again, and ſue upon him, Dyer 35. Corſlet verſ. Sir Rowland Lacy, *P.*7 Jac. B. Regis. Dyer 297. Br. Co. 31. 43 *Aſſ. p.*18. Br. 29. 22 *Aſſ. p.*44.

If the Conuſor after Execution tender the money due upon the Statute to the Conuſee, and he refuſe it; or part were paid at the day, and he tender the reſt in Court, Fitz.4. & in toto.

If a Conuſee on a Statute after Execution of Body and Land, purchaſe parcel of the Land of the Cognizor, or part of it deſcend to him, he may have this Writ to diſcharge his Body of Execution, Plow.72.

If the Statute were delivered to a ſtranger to keep till certain condition, and he deliver him the Conuſee, or he recover him by Covin from him, before the Conditions performed, he may have this Writ, Fitz.15,16.

If the Statute were entred in per dures, it ſeems by this it may be avoided by an Audita Querela, Fitz.927.

If one binde himſelf and his Heirs by an Eſpecialty, and the party Obligee ſue the Heirs, and recover of them, and then after ſue the Executors for the ſame cauſe; or E converſo after he hath recovered againſt the Executors, ſue the Heirs; the Heir or Executor may have this Remedy, for he cannot plead it in Bar. So if a Leſſee Covenant for him and his Aſſigns to repair the Houſes, or otherwiſe; and after he hath aſſigned away his Eſtate, he remains liable to an Action of Covenant ſtill; ſo as the Leſſor may ſue either: If he ſue and recover againſt one, and then ſue the other, he may have this Remedy, Plow.439. Dyer Broo.74.

If divers be bound by an Obligation or other Eſpecialty, Conjunctim & diviſim, and the Obligee hath Judgment and Execution, and is ſatisfied the debt of one, and yet after ſue another: Now this other in this caſe may be relieved by this means, Co.5.87.

So if in the interim between the Verdict and Judgment, the parties have put themſelves into Arbitrement for the Suit, or the Defendant hath gotten a Releaſe from the Plaintiff, and yet the Plaintiff ſueth Execution notwithſtanding, for after the Verdict he cannot plead it; but there it ſeems Judgment muſt be given before the Writ brought, 21 H.7.33. 11 H.7.10. Fitz.7.13,

So if one have had once Judgment and Execution for a thing, and then ſue for the ſame cauſe, and recover again, Br. 25. 9 Ed.4.50.

So if one take any Goods from me by any delivery, and another take them from him; if one of us ſue him, and recover for them (as we may both) and then the other ſue, he ſhall be relieved by his, 5 H.7. 15. Dyer 232.

For Nonage. If an Infant have entred into a Statute, he may avoid it whiles he is in his minority by this means, but after he cannot: And the courſe to avoid it, is, when he is in priſon, for ſome of his Friends to have this Writ to the Juſtices, and thereupon a Writ to the Sheriff to bring the Infant into the Court to be ſeen by the Judges; and then if they adjudg him within age, he ſhall be diſcharged out of priſon, after Proces ſent to warn the Conuſee to come into the Court, Fitz. 26.

To have Contributions. If one alone be charged, or about to be charged upon a Judgment, Statute, or Recognizance, and others ought to contribute, or bear part of the burthen, he may have relief by this Writ. As if one enter into a Statute, and after ſell his Land to divers Purchaſors: Or a Judgment be had againſt a man, who doth leave his Land to divers Heirs; or one binde him and his Heirs by an Eſpecialty, and leave his Land to deſcend to divers Heirs: If one of the Purchaſors in the firſt caſe, or one of the Heirs in the laſt caſes be charged alone, he may have this Writ againſt the reſt. And if any one of them have a Releaſe, or other good diſcharge, this (as it ſeems) will diſcharge all the reſt. See more in Contribution and Statute. 48 Ed.3.5. Fitz.38. Co.3. 44.12. Co. 6.13. Fitz.3. Au. Querela.

Where not. If one have ſuch a Releaſe of the Judgment, or Duty, as by Law is not ſufficient to bar the Execution; in this caſe he ſhall have no benefit by this Writ. The ſame Law is if it be to diſcharge a Statute, Broo.37.

To avoid a Judgment or Execution. If one have good matter of diſcharge, and have a day and time to plead it in Bar, and do not, as when a Scire Facias is ſued out upon a Judgment, and the party have then a Releaſe, or other matter of diſcharge, and do not plead it; now he ſhall not afterwards have any relief by this Writ: But if he had no warning of the Scire facias, then he may have this Writ, as when the Sheriff returns him Nichil. Finch 114. Fitz.25.

If

If a Priſoner eſcape againſt the will of the Sheriff and party, and the Sheriff take him again, he cannot have this Writ, for the taking is lawful, Co. 3. 44. 8. 141.

If one have a Judgment againſt a Sheriff upon an Eſcape, and there be Error in the Proceeding of the Suit wherein the Judgment is, but the Judgment is not reverſed, yet the party can have no remedy by this Writ, until the Judgment be reverſed for Error, Co. 8. 142. Sect. 3.

If one be outlawed after Judgment, and impriſonment upon a Capias Utlagatum, and the Sheriff doth let him go at liberty, and the Plaintiff taketh out another Capias Utlagat againſt him, upon which the Sheriff doth return Non eſt inventus, and the Defendant finds Error in the Exigent, upon which by ſentence of the Court it is annulled: After the Plaintiff takes Execution of the firſt Judgment, in this caſe the party cannot have this Writ; but if the Exigent had been well awarded, contra. Co. 8. 142.

If an Adminiſtration be granted to one, and he ſueth a Debtor, and hath Judgment, and after another covenouſly ſueth out an Adminiſtration to him and the firſt Adminiſtrator, and he alone releaſeth to the Debtor, yet he ſhall not diſcharge himſelf by this Writ, for the Releaſe was not good, Dyer 339. Co. 6. 19.

If a Conuſee purchaſe part of the Land of the Conuſor before Execution, and after ſue Execution, the Conuſor ſhall have no remedy by this Writ, for the Statute is not hereby diſcharged, Plow. 72. To avoid a Statute.

If the Sheriff in Execution of a Statute deliver the Lands of a ſtranger in Execution, as ſome of the Lands which were in the hands of the Cognizor the time the Statute was made, or after: Now he ſhall not have relief by this Writ, but by an Aſſiſe, Fitz. Aud. Qu. 6.

If a Conuſor of a Statute ſurmiſe, or that the Conuſee and he have agreed, and that the Conuſee hath delivered him the Statute for an Acquittance, and becauſe he hath him not to ſhew cancell'd, the Conuſee or the Corporalis hath counterfeited the Statute, and ſo doth ſue Execution; this is no good cauſe to maintain the ſuit: But if he had the Statute to ſhew cancelled, then it ſeems this ſuit were maintainable, Fitz. 9. 10. 22.

If one that is ſued by the King get a Charter of Pardon, or any Releaſe in the mean betwixt the Verdict and the Judgment, and after the Judgment is had, he cannot have relief by this Writ, but he may plead it after Judgment, 11 H. 7. 10. To prevent a Judgment.

After a ſuit is begun, and ſo far gone, as there is no time to plead, it ſeems no Audita Querela lieth until the Judgment be given, Fitz. 13.

If an Infant have entred into a Statute, and be ſued upon it after he is of full age, he ſhall not then have any remedy by this Writ, Dyer 231. For Nonage.

If one after he hath entred into a Statute or a Recogniſance, do convey away ſome of his Land to divers perſons, but keep ſome in his hands, and the Conuſee ſue Execution only upon the Land that he hath in his hands againſt him, or his Heir after his death; in this caſe neither he nor his Heir ſhall have this Writ to have Contribution of the Purchaſors: But if Execution had been ſued upon one of the Purchaſors, he might have had him againſt the reſt. See more in Statute, Co. 2. 91. Dyer 322. To have Contribution.

CHAP. XXII.

Of an Averment.

Averment, what it is.

AVerment in this place is taken for an affirmation or denial of ſomething that doth not appear, which one doth offer to prove, and being allowed to him ſhall be put to Trial, Terms of the Law.

Sect. 1. In what caſe an Averment may be had, and how, or not, upon or againſt a Deed.

For anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. That any Averment may be had upon a Deed in writing, to alter, qualifie, or abridg the operation of it, if there be any apt words in the Deed whereupon to ground it. As if a Deed be to A. the ſon of B. and he hath two ſons of that name, or a Grant be of the Manor of S. and he have two Manors of that name; in theſe caſes an Averment will lie, which Son, or which Manor was intended by the Deed. But no ſuch Averment can be againſt the words of a Deed. And therefore if the Eſtate limited by Deed were to I. S. and his heirs, you ſhall not be admitted to ſay the meaning of it was, that it ſhould be to him and the heirs of his body. So one may not aver upon a general Releaſe, that it was intended it ſhould reach only to ſome particular: And yet if the firſt words be general, and joined to particular words, and reſtrained all to a particular, contra. So when a Deed is ſaid to be delivered in one place, you may not be admitted to ſay it was delivered in another place: And when a Deed doth expreſs a Conſideration, you may not aver that there was no Conſideration given. (a) So if a Leaſe be made without impeachment of waſte, you may not aver that it was intended or agreed that he ſhould not do waſte, Co. 8. 155. 5. 68. Clarks Caſe, 155. Plow. 7. 31 H. 6. Dyer 169. (a) M. 8 Jac. Curia.

Of another conſideration.

2. A man may aver a Conſideration upon a Deed that is beſides, but not that is againſt the expreſs Conſideration of the Deed, Co. 1. 176. 11. 24. Dyer 146.

Sect. 2. Of another uſe.

3. No Averment lieth of another uſe againſt, or beſides the expreſs uſes of the Deed. But where there is no uſe expreſſed, or where uſes are expreſſed, but they are doubtfully and incertainly expreſſed; in this caſe an Averment ſhall be admitted, and may ſerve for addition or explication. So alſo it will be admitted to reconcile a Fine, and the Indentures to lead the uſes thereof, Co. 2. 75.

addition or explication

4. When a Deed is utterly and altogether ſo uncertain, that it is void for incertainty, no Averment ſhall be admitted to make it good. And therefore it is, that a limitation of an Eſtate of Land by Deed to two perſons & hæredibus, (i.) to the heirs, and doth not ſay to their heirs, or to the heirs of one of them, is void. And ſo is a grant of goods to one of the ſons of I. S. and he have divers ſons, no Averment ſhall be admitted which of the ſons is meant, Co. 8. 155. 11 Ed. 4. 2. 22 H. 6. 15.

void for incertainty not averment will make it good

5. If an Eſtate be made to a woman that hath a husband, before or after the marriage, by Deed or Fine for her life; in this caſe it may be averred to be made for her Jointure, albeit there be another Conſideration expreſſed, Dyer 146. Co. 4 4.

Jointure

6. If a peece of ground be antiently called by one name, and it is of late turned to Tillage and called by another name, and it be granted to me by this new name; in this caſe an Averment ſhall be admitted, That it is all one thing; and this will make it good, Dyer 37. 44.

For this Averment againſt, or upon a Record, theſe things are to be known.

Sect. 3. Upon or againſt a Record.

1. That no Averment ſhall be admitted of any thing that is againſt or beſides a Record, or any thing that is within it. And therefore if a Recogniſance taken before a Juſtice of Peace do mention that it was taken at Dale, you may not aver that it was taken at Sale, and not at Dale, though it be true that it was ſo. For this cauſe a man ſhall not be ſuffered to ſay, a Verdict is falſe. But ſuch an Averment as may ſtand with the Record, may be admitted. And therefore if a Fine and Inrolment be both in one Term, an Averment, That the Fine was before the Inrollment ſhall be received, *Co.*10. 92. *Plow.*493. Dyer 311. Plow. 434. 2. An Averment lieth of Uſes upon a Fine, or Common Recovery. So if a Fine be levied to A. the ſon of B. and he hath two ſons of this name; or a Fine be levied of the Manor of D. and he that doth levy it, hath two Manors of that name; an Averment lieth, which Son or Manor is intended, *Co.*8. 155. Uſes.

in

2. Where a Fine is levied upon a Grant, and render, no other uſe can be Averred, but what is expreſſed within the Fine, Dyer 311.

3. Hence it is, that no Averment may be received againſt ſuch Certificates, as are a Definitive Tryal of the thing certified; as when the Biſhop did certifie Excommunication, Baſtardy, or lawful Marriage, &c. Broo. 332. *Coo:*7. 14. 9 31. But an Averment doth lie, and ſhall be received againſt a Certificate, which is onely to give Information, and in the nature of a Tryal. So it will lie againſt a Certificate, upon a Commiſſion out of any Court. So it may be received againſt the Certificate of Commiſſioners that affirm a Man to be a Bankrupt, *Co.*7. 14. 8. 121. Againſt a Certificate.

4. The ſame Law is for a Retorn, if it be ſuch a Retorn as is a Definitive Tryal of the thing retorned, no Averment lieth againſt it. As the Retorn of a Sheriff upon his Writs, the Retorn of the Major, Aldermen, and Sheriffs of London, upon a Writ of Habeas Corpus ſent to them, and the like. But if it be ſuch a Retorn as is not Definitive, as upon a Reſcous, or the like; in theſe caſes an Averment may be had, and upon this it may go to Tryal. So alſo if it be a Retorn to endanger a mans life, or his Inheritance; an Averment may be had againſt it, Dyer 348, 177. So alſo it lieth againſt the Retorns of the Bailiffs of Franchiſes, ſo that the Lords be not prejudiced in their Franchiſes thereby, Stat. 1 Edw. 3. 3. Goldsb. 139. 129. pl. 23. Upon a Retorn.

For the Averment againſt a Will, or Adminiſtration, or againſt, or upon any thing within it; theſe things are to be known. Sect. 4. Upon, or againſt a Will, or Adminiſtration:

1. That an Averment lieth againſt a Teſtament, or Letters of Adminiſtration, although they be under Seal of the Court; and it ſhall be tryed by the Country.

2. Any Averment may be upon a Will, or any part of it that may help to expound a Will; and of ſuch a thing as may ſtand with the Will, and may be collected out of the words thereof. As if a Man have two Sons of one name, and one of them long abſent, and thought to be dead being the eldeſt; and he give his Land to his Son, in general, and the eldeſt is alive; in this caſe an Averment doth lie, That it was intended to the yongeſt, and not to the eldeſt Son; and upon a Tryal the Jury may finde it ſo, *Co.*8. 31, 41. *Plow.*277. Dyer 244.

3. But an Averment will not lie of any thing that is againſt, or beſides that which is expreſſed in the Will; nor of any thing that cannot be gathered to be the minde of him that made the Will, by the words thereof; nor of any thing that doth not cohere with the Will, eſpecially if the Deviſe be about Lands. And therefore if one Deviſe to A. and the Heirs of his body, the Remainder to B. and the Heirs Males of his body, on condition, that he or they, or any of them ſhall not Alien, &c. In this caſe no Averment ſhall be taken to prove by Witneſſes, that it was the intent of the Deviſor to include A. within this Condition, by the words, He or they, &c. So neither can an Averment be taken, that the intent was to give it to another, beſides the Deviſee, *Co.*5. 68. 4. 4:

An Averment may be had againſt any part of the Rolls, or Records of County Courts, Hundred Courts, or Courts Baron; as that there is no ſuch Record, or it is not ſo as it is certified, 34 *H.*6. 42. 9 *Ed.*4. 4. Sect. 5. Againſt Court Rolls, or upon it.

If the matter contained in an Award, and the matter contained in the Submiſſion, do not agree; it will hardly be ſupplied by Averment, Dyer 242. 52. Upon an Award.

No Averment or Proof is to be admitted againſt Common Preſumption of Law; as that when any Acquittance is made of the laſt Rent, that yet there was more Rent then behinde, Co. upon Littl. 373. Nor againſt common Reaſon, as that Land doth belong to a Meſſuage, *&c. Plow.*170. Againſt Common Preſumption, or Reaſon.

An Averment may be of an uſe upon any Feoffment, Fine, or Common Recovery. See for this and the reſt, more in my Book of *Common Aſſurances, Chap.*3. Numb. 4. Of an Uſe upon a Conveyance.

Chap.

Chap. 10. Numb. 5. Chap. 14. Numb. 4. Chap. 23. Numb. 5, 6. Chap. 24. Numb. 4, 5, 6.

Where Averment is neceſſary, or not.

If the Defeaſance of a Recogniſance be dated before the Recogniſance; if in this caſe uſe be made of it, it muſt be averred to be delivered, at or after the time of the Recogniſance entred into, Perk. chap. 147.

The Executor of a Grantee of a Rent, or Reverſion, Expectant upon an Eſtate for life, cannot Avow his deſires without Averment; that the Arrearages incurred after the death of the Tenant for life, Adjudged.

But things that are apparant, or neceſſarily intendable by Law, need not be Averred. Manifeſta non probatione indigent, quod conſtat clare non debet verificare. Co. 11. 25. Plow. 8.

See more of Averment in Actions of the Caſe, throughout; in Contract, throughout.

CHAP. XXIII.

Of Anceſtors.

Sect. 1.

Anceſtors, what.

ANceſtors are our Forefathers, or Predeceſſors that went before us, who in relation to them, are called their Succeſſors. But this word in the Law, hath ſpecial relation to ſuch a Succeſſor as is an Heir alſo to his Predeceſſor, and is eſpecially applied to Inheritances that diſcend from one man to another.

Action-Auncestrel, what.

An Action-Aunceſtrel, is ſuch an Action as is brought when as a ſtranger hath entred upon him after the dying, ſeiſed of his Anceſtor.

Aile, what.

It is a Writ which lieth where Land deſcendeth from the Grand-father to his Nephsw, the Son or Daughter of the Son of the Grand-father, the Father being dead, before any Entry made by him; and one that hath no right abateth, (i.) Entreth, then the Heir may have againſt him this Writ, New Terms of Law.

Beſaile, what.

It is a Writ that lieth where Land deſcendeth from a Great Grand-father, or Grand-mother, and a ſtranger entreth firſt, and keepeth out the Heir, then he may have againſt him this Writ, F. N. B. 231.

Coſinage, what.

It is a Writ, and lieth where the Great Grand-father, the Grand-fathers Father, or other Couſin dieth, ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple, and a ſtranger abateth, (i.) Entreth into the Lands, then the Heir may have againſt him, or his Heir (if he be dead) or his Alienee, or againſt whomſoever after, that cometh to the Lands, Terms Ley.

Sect. 2.

Mort-Dauncester, what.

It is a Writ, and lieth where the Father, Mother, Brother, Siſter, Uncle, or Aunt die, ſeiſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, and a ſtranger entreth into before the Heir, then he may have this Writ, Terms of the Law.

Nuper obiit, what.

It is a Writ, and lieth where a Man hath many Heirs, either Daughters that be Parceners, or Sons in Gavelkinde, and dieth, ſeiſed, and one entreth into all, and keepeth the other out; in this caſe, he or they, that be kept out, may have this Writ againſt the Coheir that is in, Terms of the Law.

Rationabili Parte, what.

Rationabili Parte is a Writ, and lieth where an Anceſtor was once ſeiſed, and made a Leaſe for life, and dieth, and after the Leſſee for life dieth; ſo that the Anceſtor did not die, ſeiſed of the poſſeſſion, but of the Reverſion, and one of the Heirs entreth into all, and keepeth out the reſt, then he or they that are kept out, may have this Writ. Terms of the Law. See more hereof in my ſecond Part of the Marrow of the Law, Pag. 192.

CHAP.

CHAP. XXIV.

Of Ancient Demeſn.

Ancient Demeſn is a certain Tenure, or holding of Land in the nature of Soccage of divers Manors within this Countrey, which are entred in Doomſday Book in the Exchequer, under the Title of Terra Regis. Terms of the Law. Ancient Demeſn, what.

Burrow Engliſh is a kinde of Tenure in the nature of Soccage, whereby ſome Burroughs of the Kingdom, do hold of the King or ſome other great Lord, paying onely a certain Rent, F.N.B. 6. Burrow Engliſh, what.

Gavelkinde is a Tenure, and holding of certain Land in Kent, in the nature of Soccage, where by their Cuſtom they have many Privileges that men elſwhere have not. Terms of the Law. See for theſe three things in my Second Part of the Marrow of the Law, pag 19. Gavelkinde, what.

This came from Gavelkinde, and it is a ſpecial and ancient kinde of Ceſſavit uſed in Kent, where the Cuſtom of Gavelkinde is. By which the Tenant forfeits his Lands to the Lord, of whom they were held, if he with-hold his Services. Fitz. Ceſſavit. 60. Gavelet, what.

This is a Writ, lying where the Lord diſtraineth a Tenant in Ancient Demeſn, for other Services then are due, then he may have this Writ to prohibite him, F.N.B. 14. Monſtraverunt, what.

CHAP. XXV.

Of Avowry.

Avowry is where one doth diſtrain another for Rent, or other cauſe, and the party diſtrained, ſueth a Replevin againſt the taker, and then he doth in his Plea the lawful taking of them, ſhew why he took them; this is called an Avowry, Co. 9. 135. Weſtm 2. 2. Sect. 1. Avowry, what.

Replevin is, where a man diſtraineth another mans Goods and Chattels, then the party diſtrained upon giving ſecurity to the Sheriff, or his Deputy, that he will purſue the Action and retorn the Beaſts again, if the taking ſhall be judged lawful, may have this Writ to the Sheriff. And if it be in a Franchiſe, the Sheriff may ſend to the Bailiff of the Franchiſe to do it, Terms of the Law, Co. upon Littl. 145. See Stat. Marlb. 21. Weſtm. 2. 2. Replevin, what.

Gage Deliverance is, where one hath ſued a Replevin, and yet hath not the Goods delivered, and the other avoweth: Now he may ſhew this in pleading, That the Defendant is ſtill poſſeſſed of the Goods, and pray, that he may put in pledges for the Deliverance, which when they come to Iſſue, or Demurrer ſhall be granted him, and then a Writ ſhall go to the Sheriff to deliver them. But where the Avowant doth claim property in them; this is not grantable. Terms of the Law. Finch. 120. Gage Deliverance, what.

Retorno Habendo is, a Writ that lieth after a Replevin is brought, the Plaintiff maketh default, being non-ſuit, before Declaration, or the like, or Judgment is given againſt him; then he that diſtrained the Beaſts, may have this Writ, and thereby have the Beaſts delivered to him again. Terms of the Law. Dyer 41. Retorno Habendo, what.

Withernam is, a Writ lying where one doth diſtrain, or the owner after the Diſtreſs taken, Withernam, what.

Sect. 2. taken, doth Eſloyn the Cattle, or carrieth them out of the County, or keep them in ſome Caſtle; ſo that the Sheriff cannot make a Replevin or Retorno Habendo (as the Caſe is.) In this Caſe the party grieved, may have this Writ to the Sheriff, commanding him to take ſo much of the parties own Goods who hath done this, inſtead of them. And he may take the Poſſe Comitatus, and break it, and replieve them. F. N. B. 73.

Second Deliverance and Retorn Irrepleviſable, what.

This Second Deliverance is, a Writ lying where one doth remove a Plaint out of the County-Court or Court-Baron, by Pone or Recordare, into the Common-Bench, and after the Plaintiff in the Replevin is non-ſuited before any Avowry made; this notwithſtanding the party that diſtrained, may have again the ſame Diſtreſs by this Writ, which is onely to revive the firſt Suit, and the Defendant cannot have a Recaption in this caſe, for a double Diſtreſs; and after this Writ had, and tryal thereupon, or that the Plaintiff be again Non-ſuit before Declaration Retorn Irrepreviſable, muſt be awarded to the Avowant.

Recaption, what.

Recaption is a Writ lying where a man is diſtrained for any Service, and hanging this Suit, he is diſtrained again for the ſame cauſe; in this caſe, albeit it be for Services due, after the firſt Diſtreſs, yet he cannot diſtrain again till the firſt Suit ended, and if he do, the party grieved hath this Remedy.

Proprietate Probanda, what.

Proprietate Probanda is a Writ lying where the Sheriff is coming to make a Replevin, by Writ or without Writ, before or after Gager de Deliverance, and the party who diſtraineth, doth claim ſome property in them; ſo that the Sheriff can go no further in the Replevin, till this point be decided, which muſt be by this Writ. But for all this, and the reſt within this Chapter, See in my Book of the Marrow of the Law, 1 Part. Chap. 35. And ſee Diſtreſs in this Book.

CHAP. XXVI.

Of Authority.

1. Authority.

IT is a power to do ſomething; and this power in ſome Caſes is by the Common Law: As power is given to a man to enter orderly into an Ale-houſe or Inn; to demoliſh Houſes in a City, to prevent the increaſe of a Fire, or to fortifie it in a time of Siege. And in ſome Caſes it is by the Statute Laws; as power is given to a Tenant in Tail, or in right of his Wife, to make Leaſes for three lives, or one & twenty years: So power is given to a Tenant in Capite to Deviſe two parts in three parts of his Capite Lands, Dyer 36. 12 Ed. 4 8. Perk 191. Co. 1. 111. 173. Plow. 290. a. So to Arreſt in divers Caſes; for which ſee Impriſonment.

This power alſo is ſometimes given by one man to another. And this is ſometimes by word, and ſometimes by writing; that which is by writing, is either by Precept, Writ, Warrant, Commiſſion, Letter of Attorney, Proviſo in a Deed to make Leaſes, revoke Uſes, or the like. See the Examples.

2. The Nature of it.

The nature of this is ſuch, 1. That it is not grantable over by him that hath it. 2. It muſt be ſtrictly purſued. 3. It dieth with the parties, and doth not go to Executors; for which, ſee the Caſes beneath, Co. 81. 46.

3. Licence.

This hath much affinity with the former; for it is defined to be, A leave and liberty to do, or commit ſomething that otherwiſe ought not to be done; or omit ſomething that otherwiſe ought to be done, but now by this means is become lawful and juſtifiable, and may be pleaded in defence and excuſe of the Commiſſion or Omiſſion, if the party be queſtioned for it. And it is diſtinguiſhed and regulated much like to the former, and therefore the Rules and Caſes of one, are in many caſes appliable to the other; this therefore is alſo ſometimes ſaid to be given by the Law:

As

As for a Traveller to enter into an Inn or Ale-houſe; a Leſſor to enter into the Houſe leaſed, to view the Reparations and Decays; and ſometimes it is given by the party, by one man to another; and that ſometimes in writing, and ſometimes by word onely.

And both theſe ways it is ſometimes general, and ſometimes ſpecial. There ſeems then no real difference between Authority and it, but that they may be (as they ſeem to be) confounded and taken one for another: Howſoever, Licence is moſt commonly applied to an act done, that otherwiſe had been unlawful; and by this the party that did it, is excuſed, but Authority to acts that are lawful, which thereby are juſtified by the doer; and this in ſome caſes is more compulſory then the other. Bro. Treſpaſs 97. Co. 11. 11. 9 Ed. 4. 4. Bro. Licence 79. Fitz. Treſpaſs 92.

Diſpenſation.

The Licences that are had from the Lord Protector, eſpecially thoſe that are to privilege a man from the danger of a Penal Law, are called Diſpenſation; for a Diſpenſation is a kinde of Licence to tranſgreſs, or exemption from the danger of a Penal Law, which the Lord Protector in ſome ſpecial caſes, to avoid inconvenience, by his Prerogative doth and may give or grant to ſome perſon. Alſo the Licences of Eccleſiaſtical Perſons that were ſomewhat of this nature, and they had it by a derivative Prerogative from the King, were ſometimes called by this name. But the moſt proper and peculiar term to ſet forth this kinde of Diſpenſation is a Faculty, which is defined to be a privilege or eſpecial Power or Licence granted unto a man by favor, indulgence, and diſpenſation to do that which by the Law otherwiſe he could not do: As to eat fleſh upon the days prohibited; to hold two or more Benefices, or the like. And that Diſpenſation which is granted to a Clerk, that being uncapable, is made capable, and de facto admitted to it, is called a Perinde valere, which name it had from the words which make the faculty as effectual to the party diſpenſed with, at the time of the Admiſſion: And for the granting of theſe Faculties, there was a ſpecial Officer appointed under the Arch-Biſhop of Canterbury called the Maſter of the Faculties, Co. 11. 86, 88. Stat. 25 H. 8. 21.

Perinde valere.

Maſter of the Faculties.

An Authority given by the Sheriff to his Bailiffs to arreſt, is good, though it be an Authority derived out of an Authority. An Authority or Power however ſet up, if it be unlawful, is not good. And therefore in 16, 17 Car. 11. it is enacted, That no new Court that hath the like, that the High Commiſſion pretended to have, ſhall be hereafter erected. And that all ſuch Juriſdictions, and all Acts, Sentences, and Decrees made by colour thereof, ſhall be utterly void.

A Verbal Authority from a Juſtice of Peace to any man, to apprehend another to finde Sureties for the Peace, when he is there preſent, and doth break the Peace before him, is good.

What Authority ſhall be ſaid to be good.

The King in ſome caſes may authoriſe a man to do a thing, which is Malum prohibitum onely, and not Malum in ſe, 1 H. 7. 3. 3 H. 7. 15. 11 H. 7. 11, 12. vide infra.

malum prohibitum, malum in ſe

Where a Juſtice of Peace by word, commands one being preſent to arreſt another, which is alſo in his preſence, this is good, and is reputed as an arreſt made by the Juſtice himſelf, 14 H. 7, 8, 9.

Arreſt.

In Caſe of Ryotors, a Juſtice of Peace may by word, command his ſervants to arreſt them in the abſence of the Juſtice, 14 H. 7. 9, 10.

Grant.

A man that hath his Authority by Record, cannot grant it over without writing, unleſs it be to arreſt a perſon that is preſent; as in the caſes before, 10 H. 7. 17.

Sect. 1.

An Authority given by a Bailiff to another Bailiff to arreſt a man, is not good: So if one have a power to make Leaſes, and grant it to another, this is not good: For regularly, neither Licences nor Authorities are grantable over. Poulton de Pace 19.

What not.

A Verbal Authority onely from a Sheriff to arreſt a man, is not good. 9 Rep. 69. Whether it be to a Bailiff errant, or other ſpecial Bailiff. Fitz. Faun. Impriſonment 3. Kelw. 86. 14 H. 7, 8, 9.

A Verbal Authority onely from a Juſtice of Peace to arreſt a man that is abſent, is not good. Wodden verſus Booker, M. 13 Jac.

A Verbal Authority onely to ſurrender the Leaſe for years, is not good, though he deliver him the Leaſe alſo. Sleigh verſus Bateman, Hil. 17. Eliz. B. R.

To make or take Livery of Seiſin.

A Verbal Authority to deliver Seiſin, is not good without writing: Neither is an Authority in writing, to deliver Seiſin after the death of either of the parties good, for it is againſt Law, Co. ſuper Littl. 52.

An Authority given to another to do that which he himſelf cannot do, is not good. Quod per me non poſſum, non per alium. Co. 11. 87.

A Verbal Authority by a Juſtice of Peace to a Gaoler, whereby a Priſoner is ſent to Gaol, it ſeems is not good. It is ſafe for Juſtices of Peace to ſend their Warrant in writing, and therein to inſert the cauſe of the commitment. Wodden, vide Baker.

An Award that the parties ſhall obey the Arbitrement of an other, is void; for power cannot be aſsigned, 8 Ed. 4. 19.

A Verbal Authority to receive Seiſin, is not good without Deed, Co. ſuper Littl. 48.

Arreſt.

If a Capias be directed to the Sheriff to arreſt a man which doth dwell within a Franchiſe, the Bailiff of the Franchiſe cannot arreſt him without a Warrant from the Sheriff in writing, Vide Commandment infra.

6. When an Authority is well purſued, or not.

Although it be a rule of Law, that every Authority that is given by Act of Law, or act of the party, muſt be ſtrictly purſued, or elſe it is ſaid to be done without Authority; yet when more is done, or when it is done by more perſons then be in the Authority; in many caſes it is good enough, and it ſhall be ſaid a ſufficient purſuit of the Authority notwithſtanding: As whereby the Statute of 32 H. 8. the Tenant in Capite hath power to Deviſe two parts in three parts of his Land; yet if he Deviſe all, it is good for two parts. An Aſsignment of Debt was to the Queen, provided, That if the Lord Treaſurer, or the Barons of the Exchequer, or any two of them do revoke, &c. And after three Barons do revoke it, this is good. Omne majus continet minus, Plow. 393.

If a greater number of perſons do a thing then are appointed by a Statute (unleſs the Statute do purpoſely reſtrain the number) it ſeems it is well enough done, as where more do ſit in the Star-chamber, then are mentioned in the Statute of 3 H. 7. 1. Quando plus fit quam fieri debet, videtur & id fieri quod fieri debetur.

Power to make Leaſes.

If a Statute give power to make Leaſes, ſo as they do not exceed three lives, or twenty one years (as the Statute of 32 H. 8. is.) In this caſe, if one Leaſe for two lives, or for ninety nine years, if three lives ſo long live, this is a good purſuit of the Authority: But if the word of the Statute be, that they ſhall make Leaſes for three lives, or twenty one years; in this caſe, a Leaſe for twenty years, or two lives is not good, Co. 6. 33, 35. 8. 70.

If one make a Leaſe for life, and a Letter of Attorney to deliver the poſſeſsion to the Leſſee, and the Attorney deliver poſſeſsion to the Attorney of the Leſſee; this is a good purſuit of his Authority. Finches 66.

If a Deed be made of two Acres, and a Letter of Attorney to deliver Seiſin in both Secundum formam chartæ, and the Attorney enter into one Acre onely, and give Seiſin Secundum formam chartæ; this is a good purſuit of the power, and a good Livery for both, and that though he did not deliver it to one in the name of both: So when a Feoffment is to two or three, and the Warrant to give Livery ſo, and he do it to one Secundum formam chartæ; this is good to both, and yet the abſent party may wave the Livery, Co. ſuper Littl. 52.

If one Deviſe his Land to his Executors to be ſold, and one of them die, the ſurviving Executor may ſell it, Co. ſuper Littl. 181.

If a Venire Facias be ſent to four Coroners, to impannel and retorn a Jury, and one of them die, and the Survivors execute it, it is good. Idem.

If the Sheriff upon a Writ make a Warrant to four Bailiffs joyntly, or ſeverally to arreſt, and two or three of them arreſt the party; this is a good purſuit of the Authority, Paſc. 45 Eliz. B. R. King and Hobbs.

Sect. 2. To Claim.

If one give another an Authority to make a claim, and he come to any part of the Land, and there make claim, &c. in the name of his Maſter, &c. this is good. So if the Maſter ſay to his Servant, that he dares not come to the Land, or any part of

of it, to make his claim, &c. And that he dare approach no neerer to the Land, then ſuch a place called Dale, and command his Servant to go to that place, and there make his claim for him; this is good, although it may be the Servant durſt to have gone further. So if a man be ſick, and not able to go out of doors, and have cauſe to enter, and he command his Servant to go to the Land, and make his claim for him; and the Servant fearing, &c. dareth not go to the Land, but goeth as near as he can or dare, and there claimeth for his Maſter; this is good. Impotentia excuſat legem. Littl. Sect. 433, 434.

And for the moſt part it is true, where a man doth that which he is authoriſed to do, and more; there it is good for that which he had Authority to do, and void for the reſt, Co. ſuper Littl. 252.

And therefore if a Letter of Attorney be to make Livery to one, and he make Livery to two; it is good to him to whom the Warrant extends, and void to the other, Perk. 39. a. To make Livery of Seiſin.

So if it be to make Livery of Warrant, and he makes Livery of Warrant, and Bargain; it is good for Warrant. Ibid.

If a Letter of Attorney be to deliver Seiſin to two, and one of them dieth, and he makes Livery to the other; it is good to him for the whole, Ibid.

If a Letter of Attorney be thus. I make A. and B. my Attorney and Attorneys for me, and in my name to enter on the Land, and there to deliver the writing as my Deed, ratifying and confirming whatſoever my Attorneys, or either of them, ſhall do concerning the premiſſes, and one of the Attorneys doth, and it was held good by two Judges in 11 Car. B. R.

Regularly when a man doth leſs then the Commandment or Authority committed to him, there (the Authority being not purſued) the Act is void, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial Caſes, ſupra. So where he doth it otherwiſe, then his Authority doth direct him; and therefore an Authority cannot be apportioned: As where the Statute of 32 Eliz. 34. doth give a man power, that is ſeiſed of Soccage and Capite Land, to Deviſe or diſpoſe two parts for the benefit of his Wife, &c. And a man being ſeiſed of two Acres of Capite Land, and one in Soccage, diſpoſe his two Acres to ſuch purpoſes: Now he cannot Deviſe the other Acre at his death, and if he do, it is void. Co. ſuper Littl. 258. Co 3. 34 2. 26. Apportionment. When not.

So likewiſe is the Law for the power of Commiſſioners upon the Statute, 13 El. 7.

If two Attorneys have a joynt power to do any thing, and one alone doth it in the name of the other, and him; this is not good. As if a Letter of Attorney be made to two joyntly to take Livery of Seiſin, and one of them doth take it; this is void. Co. 5. 94, 95. & ſuper Littl. 49. b.

If an Authority be given to three, to do any thing joyntly or ſeverally, and two of them do it in the abſence of the third; Norths Caſe, M. 4 Jac. B. R. Or one of them and a ſtranger do it; this is not good, Co. 5. 90. Dyer 61.

If one willeth that A, B. and C. his Feoffees ſhall ſell his Land; and one of them die, and the Survivors ſell it; or if he willeth it ſhall be ſold by the advice of A. and A. die, and they ſell it without advice; this is not good. Dyer 177. 190. 214.

If in the Star-Chamber, the Chancellor, Treaſurer, and Gardian of the Privy-Seal, or two of them, had not taken with them a Temporal Lord, a Biſhop, and the two Chief Juſtices, according to the Statute of 3 H. 7. 1. Their Judgments had not been good, 3 H. 7. 1. 8 H. 7. p. ultimo. 16. 233.

If one Auditor commit a man that is an Accomptant to priſon, upon the Statute of Weſtm. 2. cap. 12. This is not good nor warrantable, Plow. 394.

If a Commiſſion be to eight perſons joyntly to hear and determine, ſeven of them cannot do it, Ibid.

If a Warrant be to an Attorney to deliver Seiſin generally, and he do it in view; this is no purſuit of the Authority, and therefore void, Co. ſuper Littl. 52.

If a Writ be to the Sheriffs of London to do any thing, and one of them be dead, the other cannot execute it.

If any Authority be to deliver Seiſin to V. or S. and to make Livery to V. and S. This is not good, nor purſuant of the Authority, 11 H. 7. 13. Feoffments, B. 6. 43.

If I command one to make a Feoffement in my name in Latine, according to a Copy ſhewed him, and he make it in Engliſh or French; this is not good, 10 H. 7. 9.

Felony. If one Sheriff be commanded to hang a man, and he behead him; this is not good, but Felony in the Sheriff, 35 H. 6. 38.

A. is diſſeiſed of Bargain and Warrant, A. makes a Warrant of Attorney to B. to enter in both, and to make, Livery there, if B. enters in Bargain onely, and make Livery Secund. Form. Chart. It is a void Livery, Co. ſuper Littl. 52. a.

If a Letter of Attorney be to make Liveries after the death of a ſtranger, and he makes Livery in his life, it is void, 40 Aſſ. p. 38.

If a Letter of Attorney be to deliver Seiſin to H. upon condition, and the Attorney deliver it abſolute, this is void, 11 H. 4. 3. a.

If a Letter of Attorney be abſolute, and the Attorney delivers Seiſin upon condition, this is naught, 12 Aſſ. p. 24. Adjudged.

7. Where an Authority is revocable, and when it ſhall be ſaid to be determined, and when not.

All Authorities for the moſt part are revocable, and may determine by the Act of God, (i.) the death of him that gives it, or the death of him to whom it is given; or the Act of the party that doth give, (i.) when he doth actually revoke it himſelf before the thing be done. And therefore if an Authority be given to two or more joyntly to do a thing, and one of them die, nay in this caſe the Authority is determined. And if I deliver money, or other thing to J. S. to deliver over, or to give away, and before it be done, I forbid him to deliver; in this caſe his Authority is determined, Dyer 190. Co. 5. 90. Dyer 190.

But if there be an intereſt coupled with the Authority, there it will not, nor can be countermanded by any ſuch Act of God, or the party: As where one doth Deviſe his Land to his Executors, until his ſon be of full age, and that they ſhall ſell it; in this caſe they, or ſome of them die, yet the reſt may ſell it, and ſo in all like caſes.

If one make two Executors, and Deviſe that his Land ſhall be ſold by his Executors, and one of them die, it ſeems the other cannot ſell; otherwiſe it is where an intereſt is deviſed alſo.

If one make a Letter of Attorney to two to give Livery, and one of them die, the other cannot do it; no more then where an Office of Stewardſhip is granted to two men, can one of them execute it, Goldsb. 2. pl. 4.

So where an Authority is once executed, it cannot afterwards be revoked by any means Dyer 210. 24. Perk. 105. Co. 5. 90. b.

An Authority alſo may determine by other Accidents: As if an Adminiſtration be granted to me during the minority of four Infants, and one of them become of full age, it ſeems in this caſe the Authority is determined, Co. 5. 9.

Sect. 3. Notice. Countermand.

See more of this point in Countermand; and note that always in caſe of Countermand of Authority, there muſt be notice, otherwiſe the Countermand is not good. And therefore if a Factor, Attorney, or the like, or any other Arbitrator or Commiſſioner, have a Countermand made them, whereof they have no notice; this doth not determine their Authority, Co. ſuper Littl. 55. b. Co. 8. 82. 21 H. 6. 29.

1. Commiſſion.

It is the Warrant or Letters Patents from the Lord Protector, teſtifying, that one or many have ſome Authority in a matter of Truſt committed to their charge: As to hear and determine any Cauſe or Cauſes, to examine Witneſſes, Purvey, and take up proviſion for him, or the like. And they that are thus truſted, and in Authority, by vertue of this Commiſſion, are called Commiſſioners, Terms of the Law, 11 H. 4. cap. 28.

Quotuplex.

8. Where Commiſſions are grantable, and what things may be done by Commiſſion, or not. By Common Law.

And ſome of theſe are to hear and determine offences, and other matters, and require no Retorn. And ſome are to enquire, or examine, and to certifie what is found, and they muſt be retorned. And ſome are to ſeiſe Lands, Goods, &c. Stat. 4 H. 4. cap. 9.

By the Common Law, Commiſſions are grantable in divers caſes, and almoſt in any caſe by thoſe Courts, that proceed by that courſe of Examination of matters by Commiſſions: Alſo all the great Officers, Judicial and Miniſterial of the Realm, are made by Commiſſion. By this means, are and may Treaſons, Felonies, and other offences be examined, diſcovered, heard and determined. By this means may be, and are Oaths, Conuſance of Fines, Offices found, Subſidies and Fifteenths be taxed, and many other things be done as occaſion ſhall require, as to examine Witneſſes, take Anſwers, and the like, Bro. Commiſ. in toto, Stat. 35 H. 8. 2. 2 & 3. Pl. & M. 1. 10 R. 2. 1.

But Commiſſions may not be granted againſt Law, as to take and impriſon mens bodies, to enter upon their Lands, or take their Goods without order of Law, and if any ſuch be granted, they are void, and do create no Authority, Bro. Commiſſion. 3. 15. Juſt. 6.

By Statute Laws alſo, Commiſſions are grantable in divers caſes, and divers things may and are to be done by Commiſſion. As the finding of Offices after the death of the Kings Tenant, Stat. 1 H. 8. 8. By Statute Law.

Alſo a Commiſſion may be had to grant Licences, and Faculties in ſome caſes, 25 H. 8. 21.

Alſo Commiſſions may, and muſt be had to determine Appeals from the Admirals Court, 25 H. 8. 19.

Alſo to hear and determine Offences done upon the Sea, 28 H. 8. 15.

Alſo Commiſſions are grantable, and have been made and had. To enquire and compound for firſt Fruits. No Commiſſions ſhall be granted by Temporal Judges, to enquire of the proceedings by Spiritual Judges, Stat. 18 Ed. 3. 6.

All the Commiſſions for the great Offices of the Realm, are made by the Lord Protector under the Great Seal of England. So all Commiſſions of Oyer and Terminer of the great Offences by the Common Law. And ſo all other Commiſſions to examine Witneſſes, take the Cognizance of a Fine, or to do any other matter for the furtherance of Juſtice in any matter whatſoever comes in the Lord Protectors name, though it be grantable by the Court, where the matter is depending Ex Officio. Sect. 4.

All the Commiſſions come in the Lord Protectors name: The Commiſſions for finding of Offices come out of the Chancery: The Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, for the Lands within the Dutchy, under the Seal of the Dutchy: The Lord Chancellor under the great Seal of England doth grant Commiſſion for charitable Uſes. The Lord Chancelor of England doth grant the Commiſſion out of the Chancery to enquire of the money gathered for the Poor; ſo alſo he doth that for the policy of Aſſurance: The Commiſſion againſt Purveyors is granted, as other Commiſſions are, out of the Chancery; and ſo alſo is the next about Riot: The Commiſſion againſt Servants for goods of their Maſters imbezeled, is granted by the Lord Chancellor, with the advice of one of the chief Juſtices, and chief Baron, or two of them: The Commiſſion for granting of Faculties is granted as other Commiſſions are granted; ſo likewiſe the Commiſſion to determine Appeals: In all the three caſes of the tryall of Offenders, the Commiſſion is granted by the Lord Protector, as other Commiſſions are: The Commiſſion to examine the Accompts of his Officers, it ſeems is to come out of the Exchequer: And the Commiſſion for ſafe Conducts is granted by him and the Admirall. See the Stat. before Co. 9. 71. a.

10 To whom they may, and muſt be granted, or not. And who may be Commiſſioners.

The Commiſſions for the great Offices, and for Oyer and Terminer of Officers, are grantable to any perſon that is not diſabled by ſome ſpeciall Law, to whom it pleaſe the Lord Protector: And other Commiſsions out of the Courts in their ordinary proceedings, are grantable to whomſoever the Courts will appoint, Stat. 3. Jac. 5. See Stat. 42 Ed 3. 4.

Any may be Commiſſioners, unleſs by ſome Statute they be reſtrained. In caſe of finding of Offices, none may be Commiſſioners, but ſuch as have forty Marks per Annum of Land: In the Commiſſion for charitable Uſes, the Biſhop of the Dioceſs if there be any, and his Chancellor, and other ſufficient perſons whom the Lord Chancellor ſhall name, ſo that there be four at leaſt: In that for the enquiry of Money gathered for ſtocks to ſet the Poor on work, whomſoever the Lord Keeper will name may be Commiſſioners: In that for the policy of Aſſurances, the Judg of the Admiralty, the Recorder of London, two Doctors of the Civill Law, two common Lawyers and eight grave Merchants, or any five of them, muſt be Commiſsioners, and may execute it: In the Commiſſion againſt Purveyors, one of the Lord Protectors houſe, and two others ſufficient men, ſhall be Commiſſioners, and any two of them, and they may execute it: In the Commiſsion to enquire of the Riot, &c. any may be Commiſsioners whom the Lord Protector or his Chancellor will appoint: The Commiſſion or writ againſt Servants is to the Sheriff of the County: In the Commiſsion for granting of Faculties, two ſpirituall Prelats or others the Lord Protector ſhall name, muſt be Commiſsioners: In the Commiſsion for tryall of Appeals, there muſt be ſuch Commiſsioners as the Lord Protector will name: In the Commiſsion for tryall of Offenders: in the firſt caſe it muſt be to the Admirall, his Lieutenant or Deputy, and three or four ſuch as the Lord Chancellor ſhall name: And in the ſecond and third caſe, to ſuch perſons as the Lord Protector ſhall appoint: The Commiſsion to examine the accompts of Accomptants, is grantable to whom the Lord Protector, or his Barons of the Exchequer will name: And the commiſsion for ſafe Conducts, may, and muſt be granted to the Conſervator of the Truce, and to two men learned in the Law, See the ſtatutes before.

All Commiſsions to enquire of Articles, ſhall be made to the Juſtices of the one Bench or the other, or Juſtices of Aſsiſe, or of the place, and other worthy men of the Country, ſtat. 42 Ed. 3. 4.

In every Commiſsion of the peace for Gaol-delivery, there muſt be two men of the Law of the County-Commiſsioners to deliver the priſoners, ſtat. 17. R. 2. 10.

11. The power authority and duty of ſuch Commiſſioners ſo made. Charitable Uſes.

The power of Commiſsioners is to do what by their Commiſsion they are commanded to do, and therein alſo is included authority to doe all that without which that other thing cannot be done: And their duty is firſt to receive the Commiſsion, and then to execute it; and therein to purſue the authority and direction of the Commiſſion, and faithfully to perform the effect of it; and then to make a due and a true Certificate or Return thereof when the Commiſsion doth ſo require: But if the Commiſsion be againſt Law, the Commiſsioners are not bound to accept or obey it; vide ſupra. And if they doe any thing they have not authority for by their Commiſſion, it is void, and for ſo much it is as if no ſuch Commiſſion were, Coo. ſuper Littl. 157 b. Coo. 2. 25.

The authority of Commiſsioners by ſtatute Laws, is ſuch as the ſtatutes give them, and their duty ſuch as the Statutes preſcribe: As in the caſe of finding of Offices, they are to ſit in open places, and let every man to give evidence that will: In the caſe of charitable Uſes, they muſt by a Jury, and all other ways they can, having the parties and witneſſes before them, labour to ſearch out the matter, and ſet down Orders for the employment of the Gift, and certifie their doings in Chancery; and if any be grieved by their Order, he muſt complain there: In the laſt caſe of charitable Uſes, they may compell by Attachment of their Goods or Bodies, any to accompt, they ſhall ſuſpect to have any ſuch Sums in their hands, and force them to pay to them what they finde by ſale of their Goods, or impriſonment of their Bodies. In the caſe of Aſſurances between Merchants, they may hear and determine the matters, and for that purpoſe call, and compell the parties and their witneſſes before them, and impriſon them who will not obey their Orders; and if any be grieved by their Order, he muſt complain in Chancery: In the caſe againſt Purveyors, they may and muſt examine their doings, and puniſh their faults: In the caſe of the Riot and neglect of Officers, they are ſpeedily to enquire of the Riot, and of the neglect of the Juſtices or other Officers in their duties, and to certifie the ſame into the Chancery: In the commiſsion againſt Servants for imbezeling, the Sheriff is to make open proclamation according to the direction of the ſame Commiſsion, and to return the ſame: In the Commiſsion for granting of Faculties, they may and muſt grant Faculties under their Seal, in ſuch manner and order as the Archbiſhop ought to grant them: In the caſe of Appeals, they are to hear, and definitively to determine them: In the caſe of Tryall of Offenders, the Commiſsioners are to proceed againſt the Offenders by Indictment, arraignment, and ſuch an Order of Tryall as by Law in ordinary caſes is uſed: In the Commiſsion for to examine the accompts of Officers, they muſt enquire, and certifie to the Court the Receipts and Disburſements: In the commiſsion of ſafe Conducts, the Commiſsioners may, and muſt hear and puniſh all Offences great and ſmall, done againſt the Truce and ſafe conducts upon the main Sea, out of the body of any county. See the ſtatutes before. Sect. 5.

Commiſsioners in divers caſes have power to make Bargains, Sales, Feoffments, and Leaſes of other mens Lands, and their acts therein are good and binding. For which ſee ſtat. 13 Eliz. 7. 2 & 3 Phil. & M. cap. 1. 1 Ed. 6. 14. 23 H. 8. 2. 5 34 H. 8. 4. 43 Eliz. 2. 3. 4.

The faults of Commiſsioners in generall, are the omiſsion or commiſsion of any thing againſt their duty ſet down before: 12. Their faults and puniſhments.

1. To refuſe a Commiſsion being ſent unto, and offered them, unleſs it be in caſe where a man is authorized by a ſpeciall Law to refuſe it, as the ſtatute of 1 H. 8. 8.

2. To do any thing againſt or beſides the contents thereof, or to neglect to doe any thing commanded and required by it.

3. Not to retorn or certifie it when it is executed, and where the nature of it is ſuch as it doth require a Retorn, Co. 2. 17. 25. 8 Co. 9. 77. ſtat. 7 H. 4. 11. ſo was it held in 2 Jac. B. R. ſtat. 4 H. 4. 9. 1 H. 8. 8. 7 H. 4. 11.

If a Commiſsioner to examine witneſſes, will not ſuffer a witneſs to declare the whole Truth of matter pertinent to the queſtion, and purſuing the Interrogatory; or if after he begin to examine, he have ſecret conference with the party, and take new direction from him: or before publication diſcover to either party any thing which is depoſed on either ſide: or take gifts to encline to either ſide; or retorn not the true Depoſitions: or make not return of them at all: All theſe, and ſuch like, are miſdemeanors puniſhable, Co. 9 71. 40 A. St. 33. F. N. B. 110. Moors caſe, 2 Jac. B. R. Depoſition. Examination.

And for all theſe defaults and miſdemeanors in Commiſsioners, where by the Law there is no certain puniſhment ſet down, the Offenders were puniſhed by Fine and Impriſonment in the Starchamber; or in ſome caſes in the ſame Court out of which the commiſsion did iſſue: And where they do exceed their authority, in moſt caſes they they may be puniſhed, ſo as if no ſuch commiſsion were made, Coo. 9. ſtat. 4 H. 4. 9. Moor verſus Foſter.

For Actions of Treſpaſs, or ſome other Action (as the caſe is) may be brought againſt the Commiſſioners, and ſuch as act under them, as if no ſuch Commiſſion had been granted. So men have been ſued, that have acted under the Commiſsion of Bankrupts, under the Commiſsion to Juſtices, to hear and end matters of Tithes, if they keep not within their compaſs, and act in an Arbitrary way.

But where any Statute doth ſet down any certain puniſhment, there the offender muſt bear that alſo: As a Commiſsioner to finde an Office, if he have not forty Marks per annum of Land, loſeth twenty pound. And if he ſit in ſecret places, or hinder the free giving of evidence, he loſeth forty pound, and ſo of others. 2 Jac. B. R. Stat. 1 H. 8. 8. 25 H. 8. 10.

13. When a Commiſſion ſhall be ſaid to be determined, or not. By a new Commiſſion.

A Commiſsion that is well made and granted, may determine and become void by divers means and ways: As ſometimes by the granting of a new Commiſsion, and that may be when it granted to the ſame perſons; or when it is granted to others: As if a Juſtice of the Common Pleas be made Juſtice of the Upper Bench, though it be but for one time, and he ſurrender it the morrow after, the former Commiſsion is determined: But if ſuch a Juſtice be made Chief Baron, Juſtice of Oyer and Terminer, or of Gaol-delivery; this doth not determine the Patent. Littl. Broo. Sect. 498. Stat. 13 Eliz. 9.

If the Lord Protector grant to a Major and Communalty, and their Succeſſors, to be Juſtices in ſuch a place, and after grant to others to be Juſtices there; or if the latter Commiſsion be granted to ſuch as are dead, or it be void for any other cauſe; in theſe caſes the former Commiſsion doth continue: But if the latter Commiſsion be granted but to one, and the firſt to four; or it be onely hac vice, it doth determine the former Commiſsion, Litt. Broo. Sect. 569.

If a Commiſsion of Oyer and Terminer be granted to ſome perſons, and after a Commiſsion of Gaol-delivery is granted to others, this latter doth not determine the former, for theſe may ſtand together; but when the latter is contrary to the former, the former is determined. As if there be a Commiſsion of the Peace, is granted to ſome, and after another Commiſsion of the Peace granted to others; this doth determine the former: But in all theſe, and ſuch like caſes, there muſt be notice, Litt. Broo. Sect. 474. 509. and Broo. Commiſſion 2. See Notice.

Notice.

By Superſedeas.

If a Commiſsion be granted to ſome perſons to do a thing, and before execution, another doth come to countermand this; this is a Superſedeas to the firſt, if there be notice given of it, and whatſoever the Commiſsioners do upon the firſt, is void. And it ſeems the Lord Protector may determine an Authority given by a Commiſsion under the Great Seal by a Privy Seal. Alſo he may at his pleaſure by a Writ of Superſedeas out of the Chancery, determine any ſuch Commiſsion, and diſcharge the Commiſsioners, Broo. Commiſ. 13. Juſt. 24. Stat. 13 R. 2. 2. 23 H. 8. 5.

By death of the King.

By the death of the King, all Commiſsions and Patents of Officers, who were made onely by Patent, and had but a naked Authority, did determine, and were at an end; but ſuch Officers as are made by Writ, and ſuch as are ſo by grant: As if the King had granted to a Major and Commmunalty, and their Succeſſors to be Juſtices; it ſeems theſe Patents do not determine, for in the laſt caſe it is not revocable. 4 Ed. 4. 44. Littl. Broo. 509.

By default of Adjournment.

If the Juſtices ſit by Commiſsion, and do not adjourn it, the Commiſsion is determined, Littl. Broo. Sect. 509.

By acceptance of a Dignity.

If one be the Lord Protectors Steward by Commiſsion, to keep his Courts, and after be made Juſtice; this doth not determine his firſt Patent: Yet if a man be Foreſter by Patent, and after be made Juſtice of the ſame Foreſt; this latter Patent doth determine the former. Broo. Offices 47.

If the Lord Protectors Remembrancer in the Exchequer be made of the Barons there; it ſeems this doth not determine his Patent before, Dyer 197. 47.

Sect. 6.

But if a Commiſsion of the Peace be granted to J. N. and others, or J. N. be Juſtice of the Bank, and after he is made Knight; this doth not determine the Commiſsion, nor his Authority, or Office in either caſe: So if a man learned in the Law, be be put in Commiſſion, and after he is made Serjeant at Law; yet he doth remain in his Authority. Littl. Brook, Sect. 295. 509.

If any being Juſtices of Gaol-delivery, Aſſize, or the Peace, or be in any other of the Lord Protectors Commiſſions and fortune to be advanced to the dignity of Duke, Archbiſhop, Marqueſs, Vicount, Baron, Biſhop, Knight, Juſtice of the one Bench, or of the other, Serjeant at Law, or Sheriff, their former Commiſſion ſhall continue notwithſtanding. 1 Ed. 6. 7. Dyer 205. & 209.

For other Commiſſioners, (i.) all the Officers of the Realm, and others. See Officers, Courts, Purveyors, Bankrupts, Fines, and other Titles.

This word is diverſly applied, for ſometimes it is applied to the Mandat of the Lord Protector, as in 14 Ed. 3. 14. The Juſtices ſhall not delay to do right and Law for any Commandment that ſhall come to them from the King, unde the Great or Privy Seal, but ſhall proceed notwithſtanding By which Mandat, the King of his meer motion caſteth a man into priſon, and ſometimes to the Mandat of Juſtices: And this is either abſolute (i.) when of their own Authority, Wiſdom, and Diſcretion, they commit any man to priſon for a puniſhment; or Ordinary, when they commit one rather to be ſafely kept then for puniſhment; and in this laſt caſe the party committed is bailable. But this word doth moſt commonly ſignifie the offence of him that willeth another man to do any thing contrary to Law, as Murther, Theft &c. And is alſo frequently applied to any Commandment whatſoever; and ſo in many caſes it ſerveth to give and make an Authority. Crompt. Jur. 91. 6. Terms of the Law. Stamf. Pleas of the Crown. f 72, 73.

14 Commandment or Mandat.

To make a Commandment good to Warrant the doing, or excuſe the not doing of a thing; theſe things muſt concur.

15. Where a Commandment ſhall be ſaid to be good or not, and how. In reſpect of the manner.

1. He that doth it muſt have power in the thing.

2. The thing commanded to be done muſt be lawful.

3. The Commandment muſt be given in that manner, and order that Law requireth, 2 H. 7. 14.

A Verbal Commandment in moſt caſes is ſufficient, and as good as a Commandment in writing, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes: As where it is given and made by a Corporation (for which ſee Corporation) or where the Sheriff doth make Warrant to a Bailiff of a Franchiſe, or other Bailiffs to arreſt a man: And ſome ſuch other ſpecial caſes, whereof ſee ſome in Authority, *ſupra: Fa. Verbal Commandment

In reſpect of the matter commanded, or perſon commanding, &c. To excuſe the doing of ſomething, otherwiſe unlawful.

Any thing (for the moſt part) that a man may do by himſelf, he may do by another, and therefore the Commandment to do ſuch a thing is good, and may be obeyed without danger: As to enter into or claim Land, ſeize Goods, demand Rent, or the like: Arreſting of mens Bodies, attaching of their Goods, or the like, and this Commandment will excuſe them: But if the thing commanded be unlawful, as when one doth command another to kill a man, or to ſeize another mans Goods: Theſe are unlawful, and therefore ſuch Commandments will not countenance ſuch actions. And therefore if one doth command another to kill a man, or diſſeiſe a man, or do a Treſpaſs, both he that gives, and he that obeyeth the Commandment, ſhall be puniſhed as all alike guilty. (See Paticeps Criminis.) See Dyer 102. 83. 173. 15. Kelw. 89. 2 H. 7. 14. Doct. & Stu. 18.

By Magiſtrates and Officers that have power, a man may be commanded to arreſt mens Bodies, Goods, &c. As if the Sheriff in doing of Execution commandeth me to help him; or an Officer to help keep the Peace; or a Juſtice of Peace to arreſt Ryoters, or the like; theſe are good Commandments, and theſe all men muſt obey, or expect puniſhment for their refuſal: And if I command my ſervant to impound another mans Cattle, or drive them out of my Ground, I may command another to cut down my Trees upon mine own ground; theſe are good Commandments, and may be obeyed without danger of puniſhment; for this Commandment ſhall excuſe, Fitz. Faun. Impr. 3. Treſpaſs 253. Avowry 260. Broo Treſpaſs 53.

after I refuſe, and another doth adminiſter, yet the Commandment is good, and will excuſe him againſt the Adminiſtrator. Fitz. Adminiſtr. 2. If I have cauſe to enter into, or make any Claim to any Lands, I may command any other to do it: And in this caſe, and ſuch like of things done by another, the rule is, Qui per alium facit per ſeipſum facit. And in the caſe of Entry, any man where the Entry is lawful, may of his own head, in the behalf of him that hath right of Entry, although he be an Infant that hath the cauſe of Entry, without any Commandment enter for him. 10 *H.*7. 12. 9.

Infant.

The Commandment of an Infant in moſt caſes is void, but he may at full age agree to a thing done before, which is tantamount, for the Rule is, Omnis ratibitio mandatum æquiparat: If he in Reverſion command the Tenant for life to dig Clay or Gravel in the Land of the Tenant: This will not warrant nor excuſe him, if I bring an Action of Waſte for it. Perk. 3. 2 H 7. 14.

If I ſuſpect a man for Felony, and command another to arreſt him; it ſeems this is not good, unleſs I be a Juſtice of Peace. See Falſe Impriſonment. Br. Falſe Impr. 14.

Sect. 7.

If I command one to take the Goods of J. S. and J. S. die, and make me his Executor; in this caſe I may ſue him for the taking of theſe goods, and my Commandment will not excuſe him: So that as in the caſe before, matter Ex poſt facto would not make a good Commandment void; ſo here it doth not make void Commandment good, 2 *H.*7. 14.

And ſo generally where an Authority had by a Commandment is good, there the Commandment is good, Et ſic è contra. See Authority, ſupra

To excuſe the not doing of ſome thing that otherwiſe ought to be done, or the like.

If a Leaſe be made of a Houſe on Condition, that the Leſſee ſhall not ſuffer any Woman great with childe to abide in the houſe ſix moneths after warning given: Now if the Leſſor contrary to this Condition, command the Leſſee to ſuffer her there, he is not to obey it; for though he do it by his Commandment, yet it will uot excuſe him: So if one be bound to me in an Obligation, with Condition to pay me money at a place and day, and I command him not to go there, to pay the money, if he do not, he forfeiteth his Obligation; but if I in this laſt caſe, or the Leſſor in the firſt caſe, uſe any violence to keep him from coming thither, or to keep the Woman in this houſe, this will excuſe. Fitz. Bar 162. Covenant 31. Kelw. 60. If one be bound to pay me Rent on his Leaſe, and I command him to repair, and lay out ſome of the money, yet he muſt pay me the whole Rent, and this Commandment will not excuſe him. But Fitz. Bar 65. Fitz. Bar 45. If one be bound in an Obligation with Condition to pay me money at the day, and I command him he ſhall not pay it to me; or that he ſhall keep it for money I ow him, it is ſaid this will excuſe him, and will be a good Plea in Bar to an Action upon the Obligation: So if I command him to pay it to another, to whom I ow money, ſome ſay this will excuſe. But then I muſt plead payment to him by the hands of that other. Kelw. 60 b. Perk. 145. Broo. Condition 181.

16. Where he that doth a thing by Commandment of a Judg or Officer ſhall be excuſed, though the thing be wrongful, or not.

Where a Court hath Juriſdiction of the Cauſe, and doth proceed inverſo ordine, or erroneouſly, there the party that doth ſue, and the Officer that doth execute the Proces or Precept is excuſed: As if a Capias come out of the Common Pleas, and there is no Original; or a Sheriff ſend a Precept to a Bailiff, and hath no Writ; or a Juſtice of Peace make a Warrant to arreſt a man that is not indicted. But if the Court have no Juriſdiction of the matter, and all the proceeding is Coram non judice; here the Precept will not excuſe, but it is as if there were no Proces: And ſo it is if there be an Appeal of death in the Common Pleas, or a Capias come out of a Court Baron, or the like. Co. 10. 76. Plow. 394. Kelw. 66.

Juriſdiction.

Quotuplex.

It is the lawful power and authority to execute and miniſter Laws; or the extent of the Authority of every Court. And this is either Eccleſiaſtical (i.) that which is limited to certain Spiritual and particular caſes, and the Court wherein theſe cauſes are handled, is called Forum Eccleſiaſticum which is governed for the moſt part by the Civil and Canon Laws; or elſe it is Secular and general, and the Court wherein theſe cauſes are handled is called Forum Seculare, which is governed by the Common and General Law of the Realm. And for the deciding of all Controverſies, and diſtribution of Juſtice within the Realm, the Law hath provided theſe two diſtinct Juriſdictions, which it doth take care alſo to preſerve and keep diſtinct and entire; and therefore it taketh order, they ſhall keep their bounds, and that one ſhall not incroach croach upon another. It doth not therefore permit the Temporal or Secular Courts to meddle with Spiritual matters; nor the Spiritual Courts to meddle with Temporal matters. If the Temporal Court meddle with Spiritual matters, as matter of Divorce, or Marriage, or the like, the Defendant in the ſuit may in ſome caſes in the beginning of the ſuit, take exception thereunto, and deſire of the Court that he may not be ſuffered to proceed in that matter which is not within their Juriſdiction, and thereupon it ſhall be ſtaid; or if it go further, the proceeding is afterwards avoided as erroneous. And if the Spiritual Court meddle with Temporal matters, the party grieved may have a Prohibition out of the Secular Court, and by that means ſtop their proceeding there; for which look Prohibition. And in ſome caſes, both the party that doth prefer the Suit, and the Judge of the Court that doth receive and allow it, be in danger of a Premunire; for which, ſee Premunire. Co. ſuper Lit. 96. a. b. 44 Ed. 3. 5. Crompt. Jur 100. Fitz. & Broo. Juriſdiction in toto. 18 Ed. 3. 6. Co. 10. 76. Doct. & Stu. cap. 55. & cap. 31. 5 Ed. 4. 6.

The Secular Courts have alſo their limits which they muſt not paſs. And therefore if a Suit be begun in one Court, the Conuſance whereof doth properly belong to another; the party ſued by exception in time may abate the ſuit and ſtay the proceeding there. And in ſome caſes although he do not ſo, yet is the proceeding erroneous, and may be afterward for error avoided. And in ſome caſes one of theſe Courts do by Writs or Commandments in the nature of Prohibitions, ſtop the proceeding in another. See Broo. & Fitz. Juriſdiction in toto. Stat. 13 Rich. 2. 2.

And in ſome caſes it doth fall out, that albeit, the Court have Juriſdiction of the matter, yet by reaſon of ſome Plea the Defendant hath pleaded, it is ouſted of the Juriſdiction, and cannot proceed. As if in the Court of a Corporation, the Defendant plead a Forein Plea that cannot be tried there. See Court and Officers.

Licence, what.

A Licence is much of the nature of Authority, and the Rules of both, have much affinity.

18. The nature of a Licence, and how it ſhall be taken.

For as of Authority, ſo of Licence: There is a Licence in Deed, and a Licence in Law. The Law gives one leave to go into an Inn for his refreſhing. If a Butcher buy a Calf, the Law gives him leave to take him out of the Cloſe where he is, but not to drive the Cow out of the Cloſe. By Baron Denham at Gloceſter Aſſiſes, 1654. And therefore for this he muſt have Licenſe by Deed, or he will be a Treſpaſſer. 1. For Regularly a Licence is not grantable, nor tranſmiſſible, it is a thing of a perſonal nature, it doth for the moſt part die with the perſon. 2. It is ſubject to Revocation, eſpecially if it be in matter of pleaſure. 3. It muſt be ſtrictly purſued, eſpecially if it be in matter of pleaſure; for if I Licence one to hunt in my Park, walk in my Orchard, or eat at my Table, he muſt not bring any other with him: But if it be in matter of profit, it is more largely. And therefore if one Licence me to go over his ground with my Plough, or to cut down a Tree in his ground; in this caſe I may take as many with my Plough, as is needful, and as many to cut and take away the Tree as is requiſit. And if a man exceed in a Licence given by Law, he is a Treſpaſſer ab initio, and ſo ſhall be puniſhed, but not ſo in caſe of a Licence given by one man to another, for there he ſhall be puniſhed for the exceeding onely. Co. 8. 146. 22 Eliz. 447. 21 Ed. 4. 75. Broo. Licence, 25. 13 H. 7. 13.

19. What things may be done by Licence, and what not, By Diſpenſation.

It is a general Rule, that the King by his Prerogative may diſpence with a Penal Law when the forfeiture is popular, or given to the King alone, Propter impoſſibilitatem prævidendi de omnibus particularibus; but this is limitted to Malum prohibitum onely, and doth not extend to that which is Malum in ſe. In all ſuch caſes therefore, and where the Statute it ſelf doth not take this Prerogative from the King, and conclude him to grant any ſuch Licence; the Lord Protector by a grant with a non obſtante, may make that lawful to a man by his Licence, that otherwiſe were unlawful and a Treſpaſs. Hence it is that the King may Licence a man to coyn money without offence, and he that hath ſuch a Licence, may then do it lawfully. So alſo to tranſport Corn, Wool, &c. albeit Tranſportation be in general prohibited. See Tranſportation. Co. 11. 86, 88. Dyer 54. 17. 11 H. 7. 11. b. See divers preſidents in Writ 362, &c. Sect. 2. Phil. and Mary, 5. Eliz. 5 Eliz. 6. Ph. & M. 14.

The Lord Protector alſo may grant a Licence to do any thing, which by the expreſs Sect. 8.

words of any Statute he is enabled to do. As he may Licence any of his own Chaplains to have plurality of Benefices of his own gift, and to be Non reſident, &c. by the tatute of 21 *H.*8. 13.

The Lord Protector may alſo Licence the doing of Acts prohibited by the Common Law, as to depart out of the Realm, &c. 176. *p.*30.

Or an Officer to neglect his Office, &c. *Co.*9. 102.

malum in se

But if the thing be malum in ſe, for the doing or not doing, whereof the Licence is granted; as if it be to kill a man, or to do a Nuſance, or to break a Recogniſance for the Peace, or the like; this will not ſerve to excuſe the doer thereof from blame, or free him from puniſhment, 11 *H.*7.11. *Co.*11. 88.

malum prohibitum

So if the thing be but malum prohibitum onely, yet if the King be reſtrained by the Statute it ſelf, and there be expreſs words therein, that his diſpenſation ſhall not be granted; or if it be, that it ſhall be void; in this caſe the Lord Protectors Licence will not help: And ſo it is in the Statute of 33 *H.*8.6. againſt Shooting. See the Statutes.

Egyptians &c

And of 1 Eliz. 2. Phil. & Mary 4 againſt Egyptians; and of 21 *H.*8. 13. againſt plurality of Benefices; and of 1 *Jac.*22. againſt Tanners, &c. In all which caſes, no Licence or Diſpenſation will help any breach or tranſgreſſion of any branch of the ſaid Statutes.

Void exemption

So if the Lord Protector diſpence with the breach of a Statute before it is made, this is void. As if he grant a Licence to tranſport Bell-mettal, notwithſtanding any Statute hereafter to be made, and a Statute be after made, this Licence will not diſpence with, nor excuſe the breach of the Law; but if it be in a thing that doth concern the King alone, As if he grant a man ſhall be free from all Cuſtoms and Taxes, &c. this may be a good Exemption, Dyer 52. 1.

good exemption

By Faculty.

A man may have a Licence to eat fleſh on days prohibited, to hold two or more Eccleſiaſtical Livings, the Son to ſucceed the Father in a Benefice, or any ſuch like thing as this; and in ſuch caſes where they have been uſed to be granted, and which is not contrary nor repugnant to the Word of God. Stat. 21 *Jac.*13. 25 *H.*8. 21. 3 *Eliz.*5. 1 *Jac.*27.

But a man may not have a Licence to do any thing which is malum in ſe, or contrary to the Word of God; as to commit Adultery, live in Inceſt, break a lawful Oath, and the like, ſuch as the Pope did heretofore grant: But all ſuch Licences are void; nor to allow any thing expreſly reſtrained by any Statute: As to diſpence with any other Pluralities of Benefices, and non reſidence, then ſuch as is tolerated by the Statute of 21 *H.*8.13.

By Licence a man that is a houſholder, and hath lived three years in the County, may be a Drover of Cattle, Badger, Lader, Carrier, Buyer, Seller, or Tranſporter of Corn, Grain, Butter or Cheeſe; and by apt and ſpecial words in ſuch a Licence, may buy any Corn out of an open Fair or Market to ſell again, and buy Cattle where they have uſed, and ſell them again forty miles from thence, or more, at any Fair or Market, at reaſonable rates: But without Licence no man may do ſo. Stat. 5, 6 *Ed.*6. 14. 5 *Eliz.*12.

By Licence, Knights of the Parliament or Burgeſſes, may depart, but not otherwiſe, by the Statute of 6 *H.*6. 13.

By Licence, a Soldier may depart from his Captain, but not otherwiſe; for then it is Felony, by Statute of 18 *H.*6. 19.

By Licence, poor people of any place, may travel to Bathe or Buxton, but without ſuch Licence they may not by Statute, 39 Eliz. 4.

Seamen

So alſo by a Teſtimonial and a Licence of the Juſtice of Peace, next to the place where a Sea-faring man landeth, that hath ſuffered Ship-wrack, he may beg the next way way home, keeping the way and time ſet him by the Juſtice of Peace, 39 Eliz. cap. 4.

But no Licence to beg in any other caſe, unleſs they be made by the King himſelf, will excuſe Soldiers, Marriners, or any going to the Bath or Buxton to beg: Neither may Tinkers, or petty Chapmen be licenced to wander up and down, and uſe their Trade in the Country, by Statutes of 39 Eliz. 4. 5, 6 Ed. 6. 21. 22 H. 8. 12. 2, 3 Phil. & Mary, 5.

By Licence any man may ſell Ale as a common Ale or Beer-ſeller, and not otherwiſe, by Statutes of 5, 6 Ed. 6. 25. 4 Jac. 4.

Any man that may juſtifie the ſhooting in a Gun, by the Statute of 33 H 8. 6. may by Licence in writing, authoriſe his Servant to carry ſuch a Gun to be amended. So a Maſter may Licence and allow his Servant to play at any unlawful game, with him and in his company without danger of the Statute of 33 H. 8. 9. 20. What a man muſt plead in ſome Caſes of Licence, and how.

And regularly by the Common Law, I may by Licence of another man do, or not do any thing to or touching his Body, Lands, or Goods; for the doing or not doing whereof, he might otherwiſe have an Action of Treſpaſs of the Caſe, Waſte, or the like againſt me; as impriſon his Body, Wife, or Servant, ſuffer Eſcapes, kill his Cattle, break his Houſe, ride his Horſe, impound his Cattle, or go over his Ground with Horſes, Wayns, Carts, or otherwiſe, kill his Game in his Park, or the like, depart out of his Service, and the like; and this Licence will excuſe me, if he ſue me for it: But then I muſt take heed I plead it, and do not plead not guilty. Broo. Licence in toto. Co. 11. 48. Fitz. Bar. 81, 89. 253.

By Licence of the Lord a Copiholder may alien for longer time then one year, although ſuch alienation without Licence would be a Forfeiture of his Eſtate. See Copihold.

But if the Omiſſion or Commiſſion be Malum in ſe, prejudicial to the Commonwealth, or to others, or a thing out of my power; in theſe caſes Licence will not excuſe, nor make the thing lawful. And therefore if a man Licence me to kill him, or cut off his arm, or a Lord will Licence a Parſon that is bound by Tenure to ſay Divine Service, not to ſay it, a Steward that is bound to keep Law-day not to keep it; it ſeems all theſe Licences are void: So if my Parker Licence one to kill my Game, or my Shepherd Licence one to kill my ſheep, or I having a Reverſion of Land, Licence a ſtranger to take the Profits, or cut down the Trees, this is void; for this is more then I can do my ſelf. Broo. Licence 20. Fitz. Bar. 83. Curia, M. 18 Jac. B. R. Sect. 9.

See much of this queſtion in the laſt Diviſion. And when the Kings Tenant that holdeth of him in Capite would alien, he muſt have the Kings Licence. See Alienation. 21. Where a Licence is neceſſary, and where not.

A Licence from the Biſhop, or one of the Univerſities, was needful for him that would Preach, or teach School.

He that would make a Warren, muſt have the Lord Protectors Licence for it.

An Appropriation cannot be made without Licence. See Advowſon.

An Alienation in Mortmain, cannot be without Licence from the Lord Protector. See Mortmain.

A Biſhop could not be choſen without the Kings Licence, called Conge Deeſlier.

An Elect Suffragan Biſhop could take no profit of, or have any juriſdiction by his See, but ſuch as had been given him by Licence of the Archbiſhop, or Biſhop of the Dioceſs. See Suffragan. 26 H. 8. 14.

In caſes of Diſpenſation with Penal Laws, none but the Lord Protector may grant the Licence: And he may not give liberty or power to another to diſpence with others, or to give Licence or Toleration to do or uſe any thing againſt any Statute or Common Law, or make any Warrant for ſuch Diſpenſation, or compound for the Forfeiture of any Penal Law; neither may he grant or promiſe the benefit of any Forfeiture that ſhall be due upon any Statute, before Judgment be thereupon had, and if he do, all ſuch Grants ſhall be void, 21 Jac. 3. 22. Who may give or grant the Licence, and who not. Diſpenſation.

In all caſes where the Archbiſhop or any other Biſhop, might have granted Licences, it ſeems the Lord Protector himſelf may do the ſame immediatly: But the Archbiſhop Faculties.

biſhop of Canterbury, or his lawful Deputy, or Commiſſary: And in ſome caſe where he did deny him, ſome other Biſhop might; and in this caſe the party may, and if the cauſe be great, muſt have the confirmation of the Lord Protectors Broad Seal, 25 *H.*8. 21. 28 *H.*8. 16.

And in caſe of neceſſity of ſickneſs, the Biſhop of the Dioceſs, or Parſon or Vicar of the Pariſh, may give Licence for the eating of any fleſh beſides Beef, Veal, Mutton, or Bacon; but unleſs it be in caſe of neceſſity, the Licence is not good, 5 Eliz. 5. 1 *Jac.*27.

But neither the Pope, or any other may give or grant any ſuch Diſpenſations; neither may any ſue for them from the Pope, under a great penalty. See Premunire and Treaſon. 25 *H.*8.21.

Other Licences. The Licence for Butter and Cheeſe, muſt be made and had from the Lord Chancellor: The Licence to practice Phyſick and Surgery from the Biſhop of London, or Dean of Pauls, with the advice of three of the Doctors of Phyſick there: The Licence for the continuance of a Cottage from the Juſtices of the Seſſions; the Licence for Drovers, and the reſt, muſt be by the general and open Seſſions, and three Juſtices hands to it; the Licences of Knights and Burgeſſes of the Parliament, muſt be from the Parliament, and muſt be enrolled there; the Licence of the Soldier muſt be from the Captain; the Licence of the poor that travel to Bath or Buxton, muſt be by the two next Juſtices; the Licence of the Seafaring-man to beg who hath ſuffered Shipwrack, muſt be by the next Juſtice of the place where he landed; the Licence to ſell Ale or Beer, muſt be by the open Seſſions of the Peace, or by two Juſtices of the Peace, whereof one muſt be of the Quorum: And the reſt of the Licences muſt be made by the perſons before ſet down. See the Statutes before.

The Licences to excuſe at Common Law, muſt be made from the party himſelf, whom the thing doth concern, or ſome other under him: For if my Wife or Servant do by my appointment, Licence a man to do any ſuch thing, it is as good as if I did it, and ſhall be pleaded as my Licence: As if I bid my Tenant give the Hawks there to whom he will, and he Licence a ſtranger to take them, this is a good Licence: And my Bailiff may Licence one to ride my Horſe, milk his Kine he hath in cuſtody, or the like. But none other perſon may give any ſuch Licence in any of theſe caſes. *Fitz. Bar.*36. 10 *Ed.*4.4. 12 *H.*7.25. Fitz. Treſp. 125.

23. How and in what manner the Licence ſhall be made. The Lord Protectors Licence or Diſpenſation is, and muſt be always by Patent under one of his Seals, Dyer 54. 17.

The Archbiſhop muſt have granted his Faculties under his Hand and Seal by writing, and in ſome caſes (as before) the Kings Confirmation was requiſit. So if any Biſhop had granted any Licences, it muſt be in writing under their Hand and Seal. See the Statutes and Caſes above.

If the Licence be made and given by a Corporation, it muſt be in writing, and cannot be by word onely. See the Statutes.

If it be made upon a Statute, it muſt be according to the Statute: As that which the Maſter doth give his Servant for the carriage of a Gun, muſt be in writing: But that which is given to the Servant, to Licence him to play at unlawful games with his Maſter, may be by word. All the reſt of the Licences upon all the Statutes it ſeems muſt be in writing.

And in all the caſes at Common Law of Omiſſion and Commiſſion, for the moſt part a Verbal Licence without any writing, is ſufficient. Co. 9. 99. Fitz. Bar. 30. 89.

Sect. 10. But if a Licence be to take Common, as if I have Common Apprender in another mans Ground, and I Licence another man to take this; or if a Licence be claimed, as annexed to an Eſtate of Inheritance, it muſt be by Deed, and cannot be by word; or if it be to have a thing for life, as if I claim a Licence from a man to go over his Ground, during our lives; it ſeems this is not good without writing. 22 *H.*6. 52. Dyer 281. 19.

24. When a Licence ſhall be ſaid to be purſued, and when not. The Licence in Law is then purſued, when we do as much as the Law doth authoriſe, and no more: As for a man to go into an Inn, and there to behave himſelf orderly; for him that hath a Reverſion to go into his Land, and view it, and be gone; gone, &c. But if a man that goeth into an Inn or Tavern, ſhall then take away a Bowl with him, or break the windows, or the like: Or the Leſſor that comes to view the reparations of the houſe ſhall break the windows, or ſtay there all night: Or one that diſtraineth Cattel, Kine, or Oxen, ſhall milk the Kine, or labor the Oxen: Or if it be Corn, if he threſh it out: Or if a Commoner that hath power to take his Common, ſhall cut down the Trees upon the Common: Or a Purveyor that taketh Cattel by vertue of his Commiſſion, ſhall afterwards ſell them; in all theſe caſes he doth exceed the power or leave the Law doth give him, and therefore the Law doth judg all that he doth unlawful, Bro. Licence 17. Co. 8.146. Perk. ſect. 190. Licence in Law

The Licence of the party is then purſued, when he that hath it doth what he had Licence to do, and no more, and in ſome caſes when he doth leſs then that. As if the Lord licence his Tenant to alien for twenty years, and he alien for three years, this is good. But if a Lord licence his Tenant to alien from Michaelmaſs laſt for twenty one years, and he alien it from Chriſtmaſs next for twenty one years, this is an exceeding of the Licence, and a forfeiture of his Eſtate. Bro. Licence in toto. M. 37 Eliz. 38 Eliz. Adjudg. Trin. 36 Eliz. Co. B. Jackſons Caſe, 13 H. 7.13. Licence in deed by the Party.

If I licence a Nobleman to walk in my Garden, or hunt in my Park, and he come there with a reaſonable company of Attendants, this is no exceeding, but a purſuit of the Licence. So if I licence a man to go with his Plough over my Cloſe, or to cut down a Tree, there he may take a reaſonable company to do it. So if I licence a man to take two Horſes out of my Stable, and he do take but one, this is a good purſuit.

So if I licence any man to kill a Buck in my Park, and he take a reaſonable company to do it, this is a good purſuit of the Licence.

But if I licence another to ride my horſe three miles, and he ride him four miles: Or I licence him to take my black or white horſe, and he take both: Or I licence an ordinary mean man to hunt in my Park, and he take other company with him: Or I licence a man to go into my houſe to fetch ſomewhat there, and he takes away ſomewhat elſe, or breaks the windows, or the like: Or I licence one to go into my Cloſe, and deliver the Cattel there to I. S. and I. S. go into the Cloſe alſo: In all the firſt caſes it is an exceeding in them that had the Licence, and in the laſt by I. S. And therefore they are all puniſhable accordingly for the exceeding only, Bro. Licence 17. Fitz. Treſpaſs 139.242. 18 Ed. 4.14. Action.

All Licences for the moſt part (be they made by King or ſubject, word, or deed) are revocable, ſo that if either the party doth countermand it, or either of the parties dye, it is determined. But herein there are differences taken between Licences of pleaſure, and Licences of profit; and Licences for a time certain, and Licences for a time uncertain. For generally all Licences of pleaſure onely, as to hunt or walk, &c. are revocable, and by any act whereby an Authority is countermanded, will be determined; and ſo likewiſe if it be a Licence of profit, as to dig clay in my ground, or to take the profits of my ground, if there be no certainty in the time of the granting of the Licence, or if it be granted onely during his pleaſure that doth grant it, this will alſo determine as the former. But if the Licence be of matter of profit, or be mixed therewith, and be for a time certain, then no countermand in Deed or Law will determine it, for then in many caſes it doth amount to a Leaſe for a time certain, which cannot be recalled, neither will death determine it. If a Licence therefore be made in writing to go over a mans ground during both their lives, it ſeems this is not revocable, Broo. Licence, 7.9.15. Per Inſt. Glom. 9. Jac. 25. Where a Licence is revocable, and when it ſhall be ſaid to be determined, or not.

If the King grant Licence to Alien land held of him, and after dye before it be done, it ſeems the Licence is determined; but if he grant Licence to Alien in Mortmain, or grant a Licence to a man to go beyond Sea, and ſtay there for a certain time ſet down in the licence, or to ſtay there for all his life, or the like; in theſe caſes, the death of the King will not determine the licence. But in other caſes the Kings Licence may be determined by the act of God, or the King himſelf, as other mens: Dyer 92.p. 17. 54 p. 27. 92.p. 17. 217.p. 22. 176.p. 30. Diſpenſation. Treſpaſſes.

If I Licence a man to cut down Trees, or to do any other thing that may be done by Other Licences by Licence, and before it be done, I forbid him to do it, or he die, or I die, or if I be a Woman, I take a Husband; in theſe caſes the Licence is determined. But if I give a man leave to come into my houſe (as rigore juris, I muſt, if his coming into my houſe, be lawful;) and when he is in, I bid him go forth, if it be ſuch a tempeſt, or there be any ſuch caſe that he cannot go forth without danger, he may ſtay a little while, and ſo long he may juſtifie as the neceſſity doth laſt. 39 H. 6.7. 20 *Ed.*4.4. 13 *H.*7.13.

So if I Licence one to leave a Rick of Hay in my Cloſe, until he can conveniently take him away, and after I ſell the Cloſe to a ſtranger; this is a determination of the Licence, and the Purchaſer may put in his Cattle, and eat it up if it be not fenced, without giving him notice, Adjudged. Hill. 17 Jac. B R. Shirel Wibs Caſe.

And in all theſe caſes where the Licence is determined, the act is done without Licence, and then the party that doth it, is an offender, and may be puniſhed as if ſuch Licence had never been made.

But if an Eſtate be made for life, or years, or condition, that the Leſſee ſhall not Alien without Licence of the Leſſor in writing, and he by his Deed in writing do grant a Licence to Alien, and after die, or revoke it by his own act before the Alienation; yet this is not determined, neither is this Licence revocable, for it differeth from all the caſes before; and this Licence is of another nature.

CHAP. XXVII.

Of Badgers and Drovers.

Badgers and Drovers.

BAdgers are thoſe that buy Corn or Victual in one place, to carry into another. And Drovers are thoſe that buy Cattle in one place, to ſell in another place. Touching whom theſe things are to be known.

1. None may be a common Badger or Drover, or take that courſe that is not a married man and houſholder thirty years old, or above; and being ſo, that is not licenced, in pain of five pounds.

2. This Licence muſt be in open Seſſions of that County, where he dwelt three years before, under the Hands and Seals of three Juſtices, at leaſt, (one of the Quorum) And this Licence ſhall be in force but for one year, from the date of it; and all other Licences are void.

3. The Juſtices may, if they will, take Recognizances of them, that they ſhall not foreſtal, ingroſs, &c. See Chap. 40.

4. But a Badger duly licenced, may notwithſtanding, 5 *Ed.*6.14. againſt ingroſſing, &c. ſell and deliver, in open Fair or Market, within one moneth after the buying thereof, to any Victualler or other perſon, for the proviſion of their Houſes, all ſuch Corn, Butter, or Cheeſe, as any ſuch perſon ſhall buy of them.

5. And yet unleſs he hath ſpecial words in his Licence ſo to do, he may not buy Corn out of a Market or Fair.

6. But they muſt take heed of foreſtalling, &c. in their buying and ſelling. Drovers alſo may buy Cattle in ſuch places where they have uſed to buy Cattle, and ſell the ſame again. See the Statutes of 5 *Eliz.*12. 13 *Eliz.*25.

7. If a Drover go with his Cattle on the Lords day, he loſeth twenty ſhillings. 1 Car. 1.

CHAP. XXVIII.

Of Bailment and Delivery.

Sect. 1. 1. Bailment.

IT is the delivering of things to another, whether Writings, Goods, or Stuff, either to be redelivered to him that delivered it, or to be kept by the other, to his uſe, or to be delivered over to a ſtranger, Terms Ley. Perk. 712.

And this is ſometimes upon Condition (i.) to be redelivered when money is paid, and ſomething is done, and then it is a Pledge; and ſometimes it is ſimple without any Condition, then called a Simple Bailment, (i.) when one receiveth them to keep for another; whether it be for the Bailor to redeliver him again (in which caſe he may retake them without requeſt) or for a ſtranger to deliver them over to him (in which caſe before the delivery over, the Bailor may countermand and require the Goods again; and if the Bailee refuſe to deliver them, he may have an Account, for the property is not altered.) And this Delivery is alſo ſometimes to imploy, as when he hath the things delivered to uſe to anothers profit, as to ſell, Meliori modo quo poterit. In which caſe, if he ſell it for twelve pence, though it be worth a hundred pounds, and he might have had more, yet is the Bailor without Remedy, 5 H. 7. 18. Finches Ley en Anglois, 179. 1 Ed. 5. 2. 41 Ed. 3. 2. Co. ſuper Littl. 286.

Note, that whereſoever I may have a Detinue for Goods, I may juſtifie the taking of them where I finde them: Sheaves of Corn to B. to deliver over to C.B. threſheth them, A. may ſeize the Corn threſhed, as it was reſolved in 38 R. B. Roy; for B. by his threſhing may not alter the property of A. Littl. Sect. 498.

2. Detinue, what.

It is a Writ that lieth where a man hath Goods or Cattle of mine, either by finding, or by my Delivery to him, to keep or deliver over, and he doth refuſe to redeliver them, or to deliver them over according to appointment, and detaineth, or hath loſt or miſ-imployed them; then by this Writ I may recover the thing it ſelf, if it be to be had, or if not, damages for the thing and the detaining, 14 Ed. 3. 2. F. N. B. 138. Co. ſuper Littl. 286.

The Judgment thereupon.

In this Action the thing demanded muſt be ſo certain, as it may be known and diſtinguiſhed from others; for the Judgment is to recover the thing in kinde detained, with damage for the Detainer; or if the thing cannot be had, then damages both for the thing and Detainer alſo; or if it be to be had, it is at the election of the Plaintiff, to have the thing it ſelf, or damages for it, 18 Edw. 4. 23. Kelw. 64. 3 Hen. 6. 43. 39 Hen. 6 44. Dyer 331. 22.

3. Where, and for what things it lieth, & where not.

This Writ lieth for any perſonal Goods or Cattle that is valuable, and whereof and wherein one may have a property: As for Cattle, Cloath, Houſhold-ſtuff, Money in Bags or Cheſts, Corn in Sacks, Charters or Writings, Loads of Wood, Tuns of Oyl, or the like, Dyer 22. 1 Rich. 3. 2.

But it lieth not for Money out of a Bag, or Cheſt, or Corn out of a Sack, becauſe it cannot be diſtinguiſhed, 12 H. 8. 5.

In all Caſes where this Writ may be had, theſe things muſt be in the Caſe:

1: The thing muſt be of that nature, as for which this Writ may be had, vide ſupra.

Where and in what caſe it lieth, and may be brought.

2. He that brings this Writ, muſt have right to, or a property in, the thing demanded, at the time of the Writ brought, or be chargable over for it to ſome other.

3. The thing demanded muſt have been once in the cuſtody of him that is to be charged.

4. This cuſtody and poſſeſſion muſt continue, and not be removed by an Act of Law, as of Seiſure, or the like, Co. 11. 89. 27 H. 8 33.

If I deliver Goods to one, to deliver to J. S. and before they are delivered to J. S. I do

For Goods and Chattels.

I do forbid the delivery of them, and require them, and he refuſe to deliver them to me, I may have this Action, 1 *Ed.*5. 5. 5 *H.*7. 18.

If Goods be delivered to one to my uſe, or to be delivered over to me, and the party do refuſe to deliver them to me accordingly; I may have this Remedy, 5 *H.*7. 18. F. N. B. 38. 21 *Ed.*45.

If Goods belong to me by Cuſtom, as a Harriot, Heirlooms, or as rationabilis pars bonorum, and they be withheld or eſſoined from me, after the death of my Tenant or Anceſtor, I may recover them by this Writ. Kelw. 184. 8 *H.*7. 10. Plow. 90. 39 *Ed.*3. 6,9.

If I buy Cloth, or other Goods of one upon a good Contract, and he keep it from me, and will not deliver it; I may have this Writ. Dyer 30. 203.

If a Woman have Goods as Executrix, and her Husband continue the poſſeſſion and die, and his Executor keep the Goods, ſhe may have this Writ againſt him and recover them. Dyer 331.

If I deliver one my Goods as Pledge, and at the day the money is tendred, or thing done, and yet the party refuſe to re-deliver it to me; in this caſe I may recover it by this Writ. *Co.*4. 84. 29 *Aſſ. p.*28.

If I leave my Goods with another man to keep, and he take them into his houſe, although he be to have no recompence for the keeping of them, yet he muſt anſwer them; and I may recover them by this Writ. *Co.*4. 84. 29 Aſſ p. 28.

If one finde my Goods and have them in his cuſtody, I may recover them by this Writ. 39 *H.*6. 2. 12 *Ed.*4. 8. 27 *H.*8. 13.

If I deliver my Goods to J. S. and he deliver them to W. S. it ſeems I may have this Writ againſt either of them, and recover them. 12 *Ed.*4. 8.

If Goods be given in free marriage to a man and woman, who are after divorced; in this caſe after the Divorce, ſhe may recover the Goods by this Writ. F. N. B. 139.

If I deliver one a Box of money to keep faſt locked, or otherwiſe made faſt; or deliver or lend a man my Horſe to ride, or deliver a Tailor my Cloth to make a Garment, or deliver Goods to a Common Carrier, or my Horſe to a Common Hoſtler. And the party break the Box, and uſe the money, or ride my Horſe further, and do not re-deliver him, or the Tailor ſpoil, ſell, or mar my Cloth, or the Carrier loſe, or ſpoil my Goods, or the Common Hoſtler abuſe or detain my Horſe. In all theſe caſes for the Detainer I may have this Writ; and for any voluntary abuſe done to the thing delivered, an Action of the caſe alſo. *Co.*4. 95. 18 *Ed.*4. 23. D. & St. 102. 2 *H.*7. 11. 12 *Ed.*4. 8.

For Charters.

If a man keep my Charters from me which concern the Inheritance of my Land, if I know the certainty of them, and what Land they concern; or if they be in a Bag ſealed, or a Cheſt locked, though I know not the certainty of them, I may recover them by this Writ: And herein it is policy, if I can, to declare of one Charter in ſpecial, for then the Defendant, ſhall not wage his Law. 41 *Ed.*3. 2. 8 *H.*6. 18. 3 *H.*6. 19. 9 *H.*6. 18. Co. Juper Littl. 286. Co. 1. 2. 4 *H.*7. 7.

As if Lands be given to me, and J. S. and my Heirs, and he die, and another get the Deed, I may have this Writ againſt him: So if one be out-lawed that is an Obligee, the King may have this Writ for the Obligation. So if the Tenant in Tail give away the Deed of Intail, and die, his Iſſue by this Writ ſhall recover the Deed. 38, 39 Eliz. 2. B. R. Kelw. 8. Socks Caſe.

Where and in what caſe not.

If I deliver one Money, or Coyn, or any ſuch like thing, which cannot be known nor diſcerned from other of the ſame kinde, and it be not in a Bag, Box, or Cheſt; this Writ lieth not in this caſe, but rather an Account. Dyer 22. 29. 12 H. 8. 3. 6 *Ed.*4. 11.

For Goods and Chattels.

If one take my Goods or Cattle by wrong as a Treſpaſſor, or diſtrain them for Rent, or for Damage-feaſant, I cannot have this Writ for this. *Co.*11. 89. Broo. Detinue 24.

Sect. 2.

If one deliver Goods to me, and I bid him take his Goods again, and he refuſe to do ſo, and thereupon I diſtrain them Damage-feaſant, he cannot have this Writ againſt me. 43 *Ed.*3. 21.

If

If a man take Cattle of mine upon his Paſture, and there they die or be ſtoln; in this caſe I ſhall not have this Writ: But the opinion of Juſtice Hutton at Sarum Aſſizes, 21 Jac. was, That if they be ſtoln, the owner of the Paſture muſt anſwer them; of which I muſt doubt, Quere therefore. See Co. 8. in Caleis Caſe, by Juſt. Bridgm. 7 Car.

If a man take any Goods of mine in a ſpecial manner (i.) to keep as he keepeth his own, or the beſt he can, or if they be loſt that it ſhall be at my peril, and they be ſtoln from him, he ſhall not anſwer them, neither doth this Writ lie; or if he bring this Writ, the Defendant may plead this in Bar, Co. 4. 84. 3 H. 7. 4.

If I finde Goods, and I ſell them, or they be ſtoln from me before Action brought, there it ſeems this Writ will not lie, but that an Action of the Caſe, Trover and Converſion will lie, 27 H. 8. 13.

If I deliver one a Coffer locked, and ſomething be taken out of it, if I keep the Key my ſelf, I ſhall not have this Writ; but if the whole Coffer be taken away, there it ſeems I ſhall have this Writ, at leaſt for the Coffer, Co. 4. 83.

If a Bailiff of a Sheriff diſtrain a mans Beaſts in Withernam, and after do deliver them to the party from whom he took them, or otherwiſe; this Writ lieth not for him for whom they were diſtrained, Broo. Condition 34.

If the nature of the Goods be altered, as if it be Leather and made into Shoos, or if Parchment and Paper, and made into Writings; no Detinue will lie for it, Per Juſt. Fenner, M. 38 Eliz.

If a Woman great with Childe by her deceaſed Husband, keep the Charters from his Daughter and Heir, that do concern the Land, whilſt ſhe is ſo with Childe; this Writ lieth not againſt her, 41 Ed. 3. 11.

If two Executors be, and one deliver an Obligation to the Debtor, and die, the other doth ſurvive, cannot recover it again by this Writ: So if a Tenant in Fee-ſimple give away his Deed, his Heir cannot recover him by this Writ. So it ſeems if one Leſſee for years, give away his Leaſe, that his Companion is remedileſs, and yet nothing doth paſs by the gift of the Leaſe, M. 38, 39 Eliz. B. R. Relſock verſ. Nicolſon.

4. Where, and what matters are Pleas good in Bar to this Action, or not.

It is a good Plea in Bar to ſay, That the things were delivered to be delivered over to another, and that he did deliver them accordingly, if there were no Countermands; and ſo it ſeems it is, though the delivery over were after this Writ was brought. 5 H. 7. 18. F. N. B. 138. 12 Ed. 4. 8.

If the Detinue be brought for a Horſe lent, it is a good Plea to ſay, That the Horſe was ſick of divers diſeaſes at the time of the delivery, and that he died thereof before any requeſt was made for re-delivery. 21 Ed. 4. 55.

It is a good Plea to ſay, That he delivered or offered to deliver the thing for which the Suit is, before the Writ brought. 12 Ed. 4. 8.

It is a good plea to ſay, That after the party delivered the Goods, he gave them to the party to whom they were delivered. 21 Ed. 4. 55. 12 Ed. 4. 8.

It is a good plea to ſay, That after the Goods taken and delivered, the party that delivered them was out-lawed, and the Goods ſeiſed for the King, or that they were taken in Execution. 12 Ed 4 8.

If the Writ be againſt a Tailor, it is a good plea to ſay, That the party would not pay him for making his Garment. If againſt an Hoſtler, to ſay, That he would not pay for his Horſe-meat, for they may juſtifie the detaining till payment. 5 Ed 4. 2.

If the Writ be for Goods that were pledged, and that the party would not deliver; it is a good plea to ſay, They were ſtoln before the money tendred, or the time of redemption: But if the money were tendred at the time, and the party refuſed to deliver them, and after they are ſtoln; this is no good Plea. Co. 4. 24. 20 Aſſ. p. 8.

If the Writ be brought for Goods found, it is a good Plea to ſay, he delivered away the Goods before the Writ brought, and hath not the poſſeſſion of them, 27 H. 8. 21.

If the Action be brought for goods delivered, to be re-delivered, or delivered over to another; it is a good plea to ſay, He took charge of them ſpecially (i) to keep as his own, &c. vide ſupra, and that they were afterwards ſtoln: So if he take Sect. 3.

Garniſhment. It is where a Detinue is brought for Charters, and the Defendant ſaith, they were delivered to him by the Plaintiff, and another upon certain Conditions; and therefore he prayeth that the other may be warned to plead with the Plaintiff, and ſhew whether the Conditions be performed, yea or no: And hereupon a Scire facias ſhall go forth of the Court, to warn him to come into the Court for this purpoſe; and this is called Garniſhment: And when he cometh, he ſhall plead with the Plaintiff, and this is called Enter Pleader: And then upon the Enter Pleader, if the Garniſh cannot bar the Plaintiff, the Judgment ſhall be given againſt the ſaid Defendant for the Deeds, and againſt the Garniſhee for the damages, and ſo ſhall the Execution be likewiſe; and if the Garniſhee made Default, the Plaintiff ſhall recover the Writings againſt the Defendant, but no damages, and a Diſtreſs ſhall go forth againſt the Defendant to require him to deliver the Writing; and if Judgment be given againſt the Plaintiff, the Garniſhee ſhall recover Damages: This word alſo is taken in another ſenſe; for which ſee 2 *Ed.*3. 17. *Terms Ley. 6. Where and how a man ſhall be charged for another mans Goods delivered to him, or not.

If a man lend me Money, Corn, or ſuch like thing, he cannot expect the ſame again, but the like, or ſo much: But if one lend me a Horſe, or the like, he muſt have the ſame again reſtored; and if the thing be uſed to any other purpoſe, or otherwiſe then to that end, for which I borrowed it, he may have an Action of the Caſe againſt me for it, though the thing be never the worſe: But if the thing borrowed be loſt (though it be not by any neglect of mine) as if I be robbed of it, or it be impaired or deſtroyed by my neglect, albeit I do put it to no more ſervice then I borrowed it for: As if I put a Horſe I have borrowed in an old rotten houſe ready to fall, and it doth fall and kill him; in theſe caſes I muſt make them good: But if ſuch Goods delivered to me, periſh by the act of God in the right uſe of them; as if I put a Horſe I have borrowed in a ſtrong houſe, and it fall and kill him, or it die by a diſeaſe, or by the default of the Owner, without any neglect of mine; in this caſe I ſhall not be charged with them. And if any man deliver me his Goods to keep, and I take them, I muſt anſwer for them, and ſee them ſafely reſtored; and if they be ſtoln, or as it ſeems burnt or drowned by inevitable Accidents, albeit I do neither undertake to keep them ſafe, nor promiſe to reſtore them: And if a man deliver Goods to a Carrier for hire, and he be robbed of them, yet he muſt anſwer the Goods: But if a man deliver Goods as a pledg, and they be ſtoln before tender of the Money; he that had them for a pledg, ſhall not anſwer for them, but after tender of the Money he ſhall, 5 *Germ. lib.*2. *c.*38. 2 *H.*7. 11. 2 Ed. 4. 5. *Co.*4. 38. Co. ſuper Littl. 89 a. 29 *Aſſ. p.*28.

Of Bakers, Brewers and Victualers.

IN London the Fiſhers, Butchers, Poulterers, be they Aliens or Denizons, may ſell to whom they will: But the Major and Aldermen may redreſs the faults of them, as they do of the Bakers, Brewers, and Vintners. And all Vintners, Victuallers, Fiſhers, and others that come with Victuals to the City of London, ſhall be under the Governance and Rule of the Major and Aldermen there. 31 Ed. 3. 10. 7 Rich. 2. 11. 6 Rich. 2. 10.

Victuallers ſhall have reaſonable gains according to the diſcretion and limitation of the Juſtices, and no more. 13 Rich. 2. 8.

Butchers, Fiſhers, Regrators, Hoſtilers, Brewers, Bakers, and all others that ſell Victuals, ſhall ſell their Victuals at a reaſonable price, as the prices of the time go; and having reſpect to the diſtance and place, whence the ſame came, under pain to forfeit double ſo much as he taketh exceſſively. And Majors and Head-officers muſt enquire and puniſh it; and if they be negligent, they ſhall be puniſhed by the Juſtices. 23 Ed. 3. 6.

The Aſſiſe of Bread and Beer, (i.) that proportion and rate of payment for it which is reaſonable, and ſet down, is to be kept, and the breakers thereof to be puniſhed by the Common Law; and he that doth break it, is to be puniſhed; and when the Law appointeth a corporal puniſhment, it muſt not be changed for a fine or ſum of money. And Majors and ſuch Head-officers of Towns, &c. are to look to ſearch and view, and puniſh the breach thereof, 51 H. 3. 51. 13 Rich. 2. 8. 12 Ed. 4. 8.

Hoſtilers or Inn-holders that dwell in any City Corporate or Market Town, where is a Common Baker that doth ſell, and hath ſerved the Trade ſeven years, ſhall not make Horſ-bread in their Hoſtern without; but Bakers muſt make it, and the Aſſiſe muſt be kept, the weight reaſonable. And the prices of their Hay, Horſ-bread, and Provender, ſhall be reaſonable, having reſpect to the places adjoyning; and they muſt take nothing for their Litter, under pain to ſuffer the firſt time a fine, ſecondly, a moneths impriſonment, thirdly, Pillory, and fourthly, to be forejudged for keeping an Inn. And Majors, Juſtices, and Stewards of Leets, may hear and puniſh theſe offences, 21 Jac. 21.

Upon Complaint of Inhanſing of prices of Victuals, the Lords, Chancellor of England, Treaſurer, Preſident of the Kings Councel, Privy Seal, Steward, Chamberlain; and all other Lords of the Kings Council, the Treaſurer, and Comptroller of the Kings Houſe, the Chancellor of the Dutchy of Lancaſter, the Kings Juſtices of either Bench, the Chancellor, Chamberlains, under Treaſurer, and Barons of the Exchequer, or ſeven of them at the leaſt, whereof one of the firſt four Lords to be one, may ſet down prices how it ſhall be ſold, in groſs, or by retail, and to ſet forth Proclamation thereof in the Kings Name, under ſuch pains as they think fit; and he that ſhall not ſubmit thereunto, ſhall forfeit the penalty appointed by the Proclamation, 23 H. 8. 4. Rates for Proviſion.

Alſo Juſtices of Peace, Majors, Bailiffs, and ſuch Officers may Tax and Rate as they have been uſed to do. And if Brewers ſell their Ale or Beer at other Rates, then they ſet down, they forfeit for every Barrel ſix ſhillings, half a Barrel three ſhillings four pence, Firkin two ſhillings, &c. 23 H. 8. 4. Juſtices of Peace. Rates for Beer and Ale.

No Brewer of Ale or Beer to ſell, ſhall uſe the Trade of a Cooper, or making Veſſels, but the ſame ſhall be made by Coopers, under pain to forfeit three ſhillings four pence for every Veſſel ſo by him made. The Coopers alſo that make Barrels for Ale and Beer muſt make them of Seaſonable Wood, and mark them, and of ſuch Contents, Contents, and ſell them at the prices in the Statute of the three and twentieth of Henry the Eighth, cap. 4.

If Victuallers, as Butchers, Bakers, Fiſhers, &c. ſell any Victuals that is corrupt or unwholſome for mans body, or Bakers and Brewers ſell at unreaſonable prices, or keep not the Aſſiſe, they are puniſhable in the Leet for it. And if a Victualler refuſe to ſell his Victuals, being offered ready money for it, as much as he demands; this (it ſeems) is puniſhable there alſo. See Leet.

No Hoſtler, Brewer, or other Victualler, may take other mens Goods, under colour of Letters Patents for Purveyance, when it is for their own advantage. See 28 *H.*6. 20. 2, 3 Phil. & Mary, 6. Purveyors and Patents.

Victuallers may buy Butter and Cheeſe, and ſell it again in their houſes, notwithſtanding the Statute of 3 *Ed.*6. 21. for Brewers. 31 *Eliz.*2,8.

CHAP. XXX.

Of a Bankrupt.

Sect. 1. Bankrupt, what it is.

A Bankrupt is ſuch a one that doth uſe the Trade of Merchandiſe by way of Bargaining, Exchange, Bartry, the Viſance, or otherwiſe ingroſs, or by ſeeking his living by buying and ſelling, or that makes a Trade of buying and ſelling, and gets his living thereby, or one that doth uſe the Trade of a Scrivener, receiving other mens Money or Eſtate into his hands or cuſtody; if he ſhall depart the Realm, begin to keep his houſe, or otherwiſe abſent himſelf, or take ſanctuary, or ſuffer himſelf to be arreſted willingly for any debt, or other thing not grown, or due for Money delivered, or Wares ſold, or any other juſt or lawful cauſe, or good conſideration or purpoſe; or if any ſuffer himſelf to be Out-lawed, or yield himſelf to priſon, or depart from his dwelling houſe, to the intent or purpoſe to defraud or hinder his Creditors of their due debt, or willingly or fraudulently procure himſelf to be arreſted, or his Goods, Money, or Chattels, to be attached or ſequeſtred, or make any fraudulent Grant or Conveyance of his Lands, Rents, Goods, or Chattels, to the intent, or whereby Creditors may be defeated or delayed the Recovery of their Debts: Or ſhall by himſelf or others, by his procurement, get any Protection, other then ſuch as are lawfully protected by Privilege of Parliament, or ſhall prefer to the Lord Protector, or any of his Courts, any Petition or Bills againſt their Creditors, to deſire or endeavor to compel them to take leſs then their juſt and principal Debts, or to get longer time of payment then is upon the original Contract; or being indebted to any one a hundred pounds or more, ſhall not pay or compound for the ſame within ſix moneths after it ſhall be due, and the party arreſted, or within ſix moneths after an original Writ brought, and notice thereof given to him, or left at the houſe where he laſt dwelt, or being arreſted for debt, ſhall lie in priſon two moneths or more for that, or any other arreſt or detention of priſon for debt; or being arreſted for the ſum of one hundred pounds or more, juſt debt, ſhall after eſcape out of priſon, or get out by putting in common or hired bail, he ſhall be accounted a Bankrupt. And the Lord Chancellor may grant a Commiſſion for the ſale of ſuch a perſons Lands and Goods, and the commitment of his perſon to priſon, and to ſee the Debts paid as far as the Eſtate will go.

And for the farther opening and clearing of theſe Statutes, theſe things are to be known,

1. A Brewer that brews his own Beer, and utters it to his own gueſts in his houſe, is no Bankrupt: So a Farmer that doth buy and ſell Cattle, is not a Bankrupt; nor is he that doth buy and ſell Land within the ſenſe of the Statute. So neither is an Inn-holder as an Inn-holder, but happily if an Inn-holder buy and ſell all that he ſpends, and hath it not of his own, he may be within the Statute.

2. It

2. It is ſaid, That he that liveth by buying or by ſelling, and not by both, ſhall not be accounted within the Statute.

3. It is ſaid, That every buying and ſelling, will not bring a man within this Statute. But he that ſhall be reputed a Bankrupt within this Statute, muſt be ſuch a one as doth get the greateſt part of his living by it, and doth live chiefly or altogether by it. Sect. 2.

4. Such Creditors onely as do come in and make known their Debts to the Commiſſioners, and not ſuch as ſhall obſtinately refuſe, or careleſly neglect, ſhall have benefit by theſe Statutes, Vigilantibus & non dormientibus ſubveniunt Jura Co. 2. 26. And yet if certain Creditors ſue a Commiſſion forth, and after within four moneths, or more, and before the diſtribution. Other Creditors come in and make known their Debts, and tender their parts of the charge; they muſt be admitted to have a part with the reſt of the Creditors.

5. But if any diſtribution be made of any part of the Eſtate, the Creditors that come after this is done, come too late. Rugles Caſe. Hobb. Rep. pl. 374.

6. Any ſale of Lands or Goods by the Bankrupt, before his trading, is without queſtion good; ſo before he becomes in debt. And ſo alſo (it ſeems) it is for all that he doth, before he begins to appear a Bankrupt; otherwiſe all that ever he hath done is avoidable; and who ſhall Trade in ſafety with any man? Criſps Caſe. March. Rep. f. 34.

7. Copihold-Land may be ſold; and if a man purchaſe Land after the time of his trading, and his being in debt fraudulently in the name of his Wife, or his Children; this will be liable to Sale. But if it be purchaſed before he becomes a Merchant, it ſeems otherwiſe; and therefore the caſe was this, A. purchaſed Copihold to him and his Son for their lives, the Remainder to his Wife in Fee, and after this becomes a Merchant and a Bankrupt; it was adjudged that this Land cannot be ſold. Criſps Caſe.

8. If a man be a Merchant, and not in debt, and he purchaſe for another, or give to another, and there be no fraud in it to deceive the Creditors; this is good. March Rep. f. 34.

9. If the Commiſſioners do not make an equal diſtribution to all that do come in and make known their debts, and deſire relief; all their doings will be as without authority, and void. Co. 2. 26. And the party grieved may upon a queſtion in Law, alleage, That he is not Bankrupt, albeit the Commiſſioners have found him ſo; and upon a traverſe it ſhall be tried.

CHAP. XXXI.

Of Bargain and Sale, and of Contracts.

1. Bargain and Sale, what.

THis word Bargain and Sale, doth ſignifie the transferring of the property of a thing from one to another, upon valuable Conſideration. And herein onely it doth differ from a Gift; that this may be without a Conſideration, or Cauſe at all, and that hath always ſome meritorious Cauſe moving it, and cannot be without it. This word alſo is ſometimes applied to the Aſſurance or Conveyance, whereby this is done, and made, which is called a Deed of Bargain and Sale; for this may be done with writing, or without writing. Terms of the Law. Plow. 301.

The kindes.

And ſometimes this is, and may be of Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments; and to this the term is moſt properly applied: And then it is ſaid to be, where a Recompence is given by both parties to the Bargain. As where one doth Bargain, and ſell his Land to another for money; in this caſe the Land is a Recompence to the one for the money, and the money to the other for the Land. And this now alſo is become one of the Common Aſſurances of the Nation; ſo that ſuch an Aſſurance may now be averred to be fraudulent within the ſtatute of 27 Eliz. as well as any other Aſſurance. A Rent may be reſerved upon it, or a Condition made by it, as well as by any other kinde of Aſſurance. And ſometimes this is, and may be of movable things, as Trees, Corn, Graſs, Oxen, Kine, Houſhold-ſtuff, and the like, the property whereof is, and may be altered by this kinde of Conveyance, as well as by Gift or Grant.

Fraud.

Perſonall

Contract, what.

And this kinde of Bargain and Sale, is that which is commonly called a Contract: Which largely taken, is an Agreement between two or more concerning ſomething to be done, whereby both parties are bound each to other, or one is bound to the other. But ſtrictly it is; the Buying and Selling of ſome perſonal Goods, whereby the property is altered. Plow. 301. Co. 2. 35, 54.

Bargainor.
Bargainee.

And in the Caſes of Bargain and Sale, he that doth ſell is called the Bargainor, and he to whom the Sale is made, is called the Bargainee.

The kindes of Contracts.

Theſe Contracts are of divers kindes; for ſome of them are in Fait or Expreſs, and ſome of them are in Law, or implied thoſe in Fait, are ſome of them Abſolute, and ſome Conditional. And both theſe alſo are ſometimes in writing (of which ſee in Leaſes, Obligations, and Covenants,) and ſometimes by word onely: And theſe alſo are ſometimes accompanied or clad with a Conſideration, and have Quid pro quo in them, which is the material cauſe of the Contract, when ſome Recompence in Fait or in Law is given, which maketh it binding, and actionable. And ſuch a Contract is defined to be a Covenant or Agreement with a lawful Cauſe or Conſideration; for an Agreement concerning perſonal things, is a mutual aſſent of the parties, and ought to be executed with a Recompence, or otherwiſe to be ſo certain as to give Action, or other remedy for Recompence. And ſometimes they are alone, and without conſideration, and then if it be by proof, and not in writing under Hand and Seal, it is defined to be Nudum pactum, a naked Covenant, (i.) When there is no Conſideration or Cauſe, but the Covenant it ſelf, Ex quo non oritur actio, out of which no Action ariſeth. They are alſo real (i.) When they are about, and concerning Land: As when a Leaſe is made of Land for years, for Money, or Rent, or I covenant to make a Leaſe of my Manor for twenty pounds to be paid me. And ſometimes perſonal, (i.) When they are of, and about a perſonal thing: As when one doth ſell an Horſe for money. They are alſo executed as an Accord with ſatisfaction (which ſee in Accord) or they are executory; as when ſomething is to be done or paid at a day to come; and this is an Aſſumpſit. For which ſee more in Aſſumpſit. Finch. 451. Dyer 336. 27 H. 8. 15. Plow. 30, 140. 30. 8. Co. 4. 44.

Plow. 138. Br. 458. Pl. 1. Dyer 30. 14 H. 8. 19. Some of them also are simple and absolute; some conditional and with reference.

Those that are Contracts in Law, or implied, are such as do not arise from the special Agreement of the parties, but are made by the Act and operation of Law. As where an Ostler giveth my horse meat, or a Tailor maketh my garment; that the one shall be paid for his meat, and the other for his work: And therefore the one may keep the horse, and the other the garment, till they be paid, if they will; or deliver him, and bring his Action. So where another findeth my goods, he is chargeable to me by reason of his possession. So he that receiveth money to my use, or to deliver over to me, is chargeable as a Receiver. So if one entreth into an Infants or anothers land, and take the profits, he is chargeable as Bailiff. So if a Liberate be delivered to the Clerk of the Hamper who hath Assets in his hands, an Action of Debt lieth against him. So it doth upon every Judgment. So if a man come into an Inne or Tavern, and call for Victual, Wine or Beer: And in this case some hold, the Inn-keeper or Taverner may detain the body of the man until he pay his shot, (But I much doubt this.) And so it was agreed in Trin. 3 Jac. B.R. Finches Ley, f. 180. Sect. 1. Imployed

The effect of this is to transfer the Property; and this it will as effectually do, as any other kind of Conveyance whatsoever. And therefore the Bargainee of a Reversion, howsoever he may not have benefit of a Condition upon the demand of a Rent, without giving notice of the Bargain and Sale to the Lessee: And howsoever if a Conusee by a Fine of a Reversion, before Attornment of the Tenant, bargain and sell the Reversion to B. that B. cannot distrain for this Rent, until he can get an Attornment of the Tenant; yet the Bargainee shall have benefit of a Condition as an Assignee within the Statute of 32 H. 8. And it seems he may vouch by force of a Warranty annexed to the Estate of the Land, because he is in partly in the Per, and partly in the Post; Co. 8. 94. 5. 113. 3. 62. 4. The effect of it. Assignee. Condition. Distress.

All things (for the most part) that are grantable by any other way from one man to another, are grantable, and may be transferred by way of Bargain and Sale from one to another. And therefore Lands, Rents, Advowsons, Commons, Tythes, Profits of Courts, and the like, may be granted by way of Bargain and Sale in Fee-simple, Fee-tail for life or years. And all manner of Goods and Chattels, as Leases for years, Wardships, Cattel, Corn, Houshold-stuff, Wood, Trees, Merchandizes, and the like, are grantable by way of Bargain and Sale. But it seems Estovers and such like things de novo, and that have not essence before, are not grantable by way of Bargain and Sale, as they are by way of Grant or Lease; and therefore that a Bargain and Sale of such things is void, 6 Jac. B.R. Adjudged, 21 H. 6. 23. 5. Of what things a Bargain and Sale may be, or not.

If one do bargain and sell his Land to me for money, to have and to hold to me generally, and do not say to me and my heirs; by this I have but an Estate for life, and no more, Co. 1. 87. and upon Lit. 10. Dyer 169. 6. How a Bargain and Sale shall be taken. Of Lands.

If one in Consideration of Ten pounds paid by me, doth bargain and sell his Land to me and my heirs, To have and to hold to me to the use of the Bargainor for life, the Remainder in tail to me, the Remainder to the right heirs of the Bargainor, this Habendum in this case is void, and I and my heirs shall have the Land for ever, Dyer 155. Use.

If one in Consideration of Ten pounds sell me Land for the Term of Twenty years, and doth not say when this Term shall begin; in this case it shall begin presently. See more in Exposition of Deeds, Chap. 63. in toto. Co. 6. 33.

If any Estate of Freehold or Inheritance be made of Land by way of Bargain and Sale, the same must be made by a Writing or Deed indented, and cannot be made by word of mouth only, as a Lease for years, whether it be created de novo, or be in esse before, may be. But Lands in London, by a special Proviso within the Statute, may be bargained and sold by word of mouth without any writing. The Brother was Tenant in tail, the Remainder to his Sister in tail; the Brother by Deed, which was indented in parchment, but made in the first person, and no mention of Indenting in the Deed, and was inrolled within the three moneths, and after Livery of Seisin 6. What shall be said a good Bargain and Sale, and what things are requisite to make such a Bargain and Sale, or not. Of Lands.

was made, it was adjudged a good Bargain and Sale, and that the Land ſhould paſs ſo, and not by way of Feoffment, and therefore no Diſcontinuance to the Sifter, Stat. 27 H. 8. 16. Co. 8. 94. 7. 40. 2. 36. Brownl. 2 part, 291.

Diſcontinuance.

2. The very words Bargain and Sell, are not neceſſary to a good Bargain and Sale; for words equivalent will ſuffice to make Land paſs by way of Bargain and Sale. And therefore if a man ſeiſed of Land in Fee, do by Deed indented, and by the words Alien or Grant, ſell them to another; or if ſuch a man Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of his Land to the uſe of another, and theſe Deeds are made in Conſideration of money, and the Deeds be after enrolled; theſe will amount to good Bargains and Sales. And if a man by a Deed indented and inrolled, in Conſideration of Ten pounds paid to him, by the words Demiſe and Grant, paſs his Lands to another for Twenty years, this is a good Bargain and Sale, Co. 8. 94. 7. 40. 2. 36. Brownlow, 2 part, 29.

3. There muſt be ſome good Conſideration given, or at leaſt ſaid to be given for the Land. And therefore if A. [for divers good Conſiderations,] or [in Conſideration that the Bargainee is bound for the Bargainor, and for divers other good cauſes,] or [for divers great and valuable Conſiderations] bargain and ſell his Land by Deed indented and enrolled to B. and his heirs, Nihil operatur, it worketh nothing. But if in theſe caſes in truth there be money, or other good Conſideration given, albeit it be not expreſſed upon the Deed, the Bargainemay aver it, and being proved, the Bargain will be good. And if the Deed make mention of money paid, as in Conſideration of an Hundred pounds, or the like, and in truth no money is paid, yet the Bargain and Sale is good; and no Averment will lie againſt this, which is expreſly affirmed by the Deed. And if the Deed mention and ſay, [for a certain ſum of money,] or [for a certain competent ſum of money,] theſe are good Conſiderations.

Averment.

4. There needs no Livery of Seiſin or Attornment in this caſe: And therefore if one bargain and ſell a Reverſion by Deed indented and enrolled for good Conſideration, the Reverſion will paſs without any Attornment of the Tenant. And if it be only a Leaſe for years of a Reverſion that is granted, there needs no Attornment nor Inrolment. And ſo it was adjudged in Smalmans Caſe, Hil. 7 Jac Brownl. 2 part, 291. Where the Caſe was: A man made a Leaſe for life rendring Rent, and after the Leſſor by Indenture, for Fifty pounds, demiſed and granted the Reverſion, To have from the day of the date for Ninety nine years, rendring a Rent alſo, which was leſs then the firſt Rent: It was agreed good by way of Bargain and Sale, and that the Reverſion and Rent did paſs without Attornment.

Livery of ſeiſin. Attornment.

And in caſe of a Bargain and Sale, the Bargainee is in actual poſſeſſion before any Entry, ſo that the Leſſee may attorn to the Grant of the Reverſion, as hath been Ruled in Mittons Caſe, Mich. 18 Jac. in Cur. Ward, by the two Chief Juſtices and the whole Court. And yet I think he hath not ſuch a Poſſeſſion, as to bring any Poſſeſſory Action for Treſpaſs, or the like, until an actual Entry. For where the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uſes provides, that the Actual Poſſeſſion ſhall be adjudged according to the Uſe; yet it ought to have a Circumſtance which is requiſite by the Common-Law, viz. an Actual Entry indeed. But there muſt be an Inrolment of the Deed in caſe where any Freehold doth paſs: For it is provided, That no Lands except in ſome Corporations only) ſhall paſs from one to another by any Deed whereby any Eſtate of Inheritance or Freehold ſhall be made or take effect, in any perſon or perſons, to be made by reaſon only of any Bargain and Sale thereof, except the ſame be made and done by Writing indented, ſealed and enrolled in one of the four Courts, (the Chancery, Kings Bench, Common-Pleas, or Exchequer,) or elſe within the ſame County or Counties where the Lands ſo bargained and ſold do lie, before the Cuſtos Rotulorum, and two Juſtices of the Peace, and the Clerk of the Peace of the ſame County or Counties, or two of them at leaſt, whereof the Clerk of the Peace to be one: And the ſame Inrolment to be within ſix moneths next after the ſame Writing or Deed is dated.

Treſpaſs.

7. Inrolment, where neceſſary, and how it muſt be done.

And this Statute was made in the ſame Parliament, wherein the Law of transferring of Uſes into Poſſeſſion was made, to the end that mens Lands might not ſuddenly and privately paſs upon payment of a little money in an Alehouſe, or the like. And herein theſe things muſt be obſerved.

and

1. The Inrolment upon ſuch a Deed, as to make this Eſtate to paſs, muſt be in Parchment; for an Inrolment in Paper is not good.

2. The Deed inrolled muſt be Indented; for if it be but Poll, the Eſtate will not paſs.

3. It muſt be inrolled within ſix moneths of the Purchaſe or Sale. And this Account muſt be, 1. From the date, and not from the time of the delivery of the Deed. 2. After twenty eight days to the moneth, and no more. 3. The day of the date to be taken excluſive, and for none of the days of the ſix moneths. And yet if a Deed be inrolled the ſame day it bears date, it is good. 4. If it be inrolled any part of the laſt day of the ſix moneths, it is ſufficient. And thus the Deed may be inrolled within the ſix moneths, Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 33. albeit either of the parties die within the time. And if the Deed be not thus inrolled, it is of no force at all. So that if one bargain and ſell his Land to me, and the Trees upon it; in this caſe albeit the Trees might have been ſold alone by Deed without Inrolment, yet now being not inrolled, becauſe the Sale is not good for the Land, it ſhall not be good for the Trees alſo. And no ſubſequent Act will help in this caſe: For if one by words of Bargain and Sell only, without any other words in the Deed, grant a Reverſion, and the Deed be not inrolled, and after the Tenant doth attorn; hereby nothing doth paſs, neither ſhall it enure as a Confirmation. But yet this muſt be noted, That in ſome caſes where a Deed will not enure by way of Bargain and Sale for ſome of the cauſes aforeſaid, it may enure to ſome other purpoſes, Dyer 90. Co. 7. 40. 8. 94. 5. 112. St. 27 H. 8. 16. Co. 5. 1.

But a Bargain and Sale may be made of Goods and Chattels without any ſuch ſolemnity as before: For it may be by word, as well as by writing; with, or without any words of Bargain and Sell, as well as by thoſe words; by a Deed poll, as well as by a Deed indented; and that without any Inrolment at all, and without any delivery of any part of the things ſold, or of any piece of money (as the manner is) in the name of Seiſin. Of Goods and Chattels.

But in this caſe alſo ſome reſpect is to be had unto the cauſe and conſideration of the Bargain, as well as in the caſe of the Bargain and Sale of Lands For howſoever perhaps in the caſe of a Grant or Bargain, and Sale of Goods or Chattels by Deed in writing, the Conſideration is not material; and that if a man do by his Deed under his hand and ſeal bargain and ſell Timber-trees or any other thing, without any Conſideration at all, the ſame may paſs well enough: Yet if the Contract be by word, or by Writing ſealed and not delivered, if there be no Conſideration, or no good Conſideration of it, it is of no effect at all. And therefore if a man by word of mouth ſell to me his Horſe, or any other thing, and I give him, or promiſe him nothing for it, this is void, and will not alter the property of the thing ſold. But if one ſell me an Horſe, or any other thing for money, or any other valuable Conſideration, and the ſame thing is to be delivered to me at a day certain, and by our Agreement a day is ſet for the payment of the money, or all or part of the money is paid in hand, or I give Earneſt money (albeit it be but a penny) to the Seller, or I take the thing bought by Agreement into my poſſeſſion, where no money is paid, Earneſt given, or day ſet for the payment: In all theſe caſes there is a good Bargain and Sale of the thing, to alter the property thereof; and in the firſt caſe I may have an Action for the thing, and the Seller for his money; in the ſecond caſe I may ſue for, and recover the thing bought; in the third I may ſue for the thing bought, and the Seller for the reſidue of the money; in the fourth caſe, where Earneſt is given, we may have reciprocal remedies one againſt another; and in the laſt caſe, the Seller may ſue for his money. Property altered.

If A. ſell Cloth to B. for ten ſhillings, and B. takes away the Cloth againſt the will of A. in this caſe A. ſhall have an Action of Treſpaſs againſt B. And if A. ſell Cloth to B. for ten ſhillings, in his election to make it a Bargain, or not, and if he will he may keep his Cloth till the other pay him; and if A. ſay nothing, but doth ſuffer B. to take it away, he may make it a Bargain if he will, and bring an Action of Debt for his money. If I offer money for a thing in a Market or Fair, and the Seller agree to take my Offer; and whiles I am telling the money as faſt as I can, he doth ſell the thing to another; or when I have bought it, we agree that he ſhall keep it until I can go home to my houſe to fetch the money; in both theſe caſes, eſpecially in the firſt, the Bargains are good, ſo as the Seller may not ſell them afterwards to another; and upon the payment and tender, and refuſal of the money agreed upon, I may take or recover the things, Dyer 218. Co. 11. 48. Plow. 308. Dyer 29. 30. 14 H. 8. 19. 9 H. 7. 21. 10 H. 7. 6. 21 H. 7. 6. Plow. 432.

8. How Contracts about Goods or Chattels ſhall be taken.

In theſe Contracts the Law doth not ſo much reſpect the form of words, as the ſubſtance of the Agreement, and the minds of the parties, Kelw. 87. 27 H. 8. 14. And therefore,

If one ſell Tods or Pounds, Buſhels, Yards, Ells, or Pearches of any thing, it ſhall be accounted, meaſured and reckoned according to the Cuſtom of the Country and place, and not of the Statutes, or of any other Country, Plow. 140. 41.

If the Bargain were for Twenty Pieces, and ſay not of what, it ſhall be expounded of Twenty pieces of Gold of Twenty ſhillings a piece, by common intendment. If a Contract be made for Twenty Barrels of Ale, or for Ten Pottles or Cups of Wine; the Buyer ſhall not have the Barrels alſo in the firſt, nor the Pottles or Cups in the next caſe: But if the Bargain were for Firkins of Wine, there it ſeems he ſhall have the Firkins alſo. If it were for an Hogſhead of Wine, he ſhall have the Hogſhead, Com. 86. a. Bro. Contract 4. 27 H. 8. 276.

If one agree with another to make him a Leaſe for years indefinitely, and ſay not when it ſhall begin, it ſhall begin preſently, Co. 6. 33.

If one for Ten pounds promiſe to make good ſuch an Houſe by a day, this is a good Contract, and it ſhall be taken that he ſhall repair it. So if one owe me Twenty pounds, and I ſay I will ſee him, and I. S. prayeth me to forbear till Michaelmas, and he will make it good to me, Ket. verſ. Michel. M. 21 Jac. B. R.

If one ſell all his Trees in ſuch a Wood, and it is agreed that the Vendee ſhall not cut them until Michaelmas, and in the interim Hawks do breed in the Wood, it ſeems the Vendor, and not the Vendee ſhall have the Hawks, 27 Aſſ. 29. Co. 11. 58. q. Semble, deeall contrary.

If one leaſe Land excepting the Trees, and Herons or Hawks breed in the Trees; now in this caſe the Leſſor ſhall have them, not the Leſſee, and ſo alſo the Acorns of the Trees, 14 H. 8. 1: Kitch. 264.

9. How Contracts in Writing ſhall be taken.

In Contracts and Agreements that are in Writing under hand and ſeal, as Bills, Bonds or Covenants, the Cauſe or Conſideration is not material; for whether it be with, or without Conſideration, it bindeth the party, and an Action may be brought upon it, (unleſs it be in caſe of Bargain and Sale of Land, as before) As if a Carpenter by Writing delivered under his hand and ſeal, promiſe to build an Houſe, or to pay another Twenty pounds, although there be no Conſideration for it. (a) But if it be a Writing under his hand only, and not ſealed and delivered, it bindeth no more then a bare verbal promiſe: So alſo if it be ſealed, and not delivered, Plow. 308, 309. 11 H. 8. 4. 33. Dyer 90. 336. 21 H. 7. 43. Fitz. Debt 126. Plow. 309. Br. Act. ſur le caſe, 40. (a) Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. per Curiam.

10. Where it is, what makes a perfect Parol-Contract, upon which an Action may riſe, or the Property of the thing be altered. Communication.

Theſe things only ſeem to be neceſſary to the making of a good and binding Contract, ſuch an one as to produce an Action.

1. That the perſon contracting be not diſabled for Infancie, Coverture, or the like.

2. That there be a good Conſideration, (called) Quid pro quo, in the Agreement.

3. That the Contract be conſummate and perfected: For if there be only a parly, and no perfect agreement, that is no ſuch Contract as on which to ground an Action, and it is called a Communication. But if it be about the Sale of any thing to alter Propriety, a fourth thing is requiſite, That the Seller have an ownerſhip in the things ſold, or power to ſell them; or elſe that they be truly and without Covin ſold in a Market overt. For which ſee Property. Co. 5. 83. Plow. 302. 479. Dyer 98. For the opening whereof, take theſe Caſes following.

If

If I make a Leaſe for years to another, and he in conſideration hereof promiſe to pay me a ſum of money in groſs, or a Rent by the year; this is a good Contract, upon the failer of performance whereof I may have this Action; and for the Rent, I may have an Action of debt every year, Lit. Br. ſect. 452. Fitz. Debt. 129.

If I ſell a man my Land for Twenty pounds to be paid me on a day certain; in this caſe after the day, if the money be not paid, I may have an Action for the money, though the Land be not aſſured, for he may compel me to make an Aſſurance, 3 *H.*7. 14. 2 *H.*7.12.

If one in conſideration of a Pint of Wine promiſe to aſſure me of Land by a day, and do not, I may have Action, and that this is a good Conſideration: But in this caſe it is probable the Jury will give but ſmall damages. Adjudg. Friends Caſe, Trin. 7. Jac. B.R.

If A. be in debt to me, and deliver goods to B. to pay it, I require it of B. and he pray me to forbear it three weeks, and he will pay me; this is a good Contract, on which an Action will lie. Williams Caſe, M. 7 Jac. B. R.

If I promiſe to one, if he will marry my daughter, kinſwoman or ſervant, that I will pay or give him Twenty pounds, or Twenty pounds with my daughter in marriage, and he do ſo; now he may recover this Twenty pounds on this Agreement, and ſue for his money in the Temporal Court. And this is done daily, notwithſtanding all the Opinions to the contrary. Plow. 305. Fitz. Prohib. 2. 22 Aſſ. p. 70. 45 *Ed.*3. 24. 14 *Ed.*4 6. 15 Ed 4.32. 17 Ed 4.5. Sect. 4.

If I promiſe money to a Phyſitian to cure a poor man, or to a Labourer to amend an High-way; this is a binding Contract, on which Action will lie in reſpect of the nature of the works. 17 *Ed.*4.55. Doct. & St. 105. *Plow.*305.

If a Ter-tenant of Land promiſe to do a thing to me that have a Recogniſance, wherewith his Land is chargeable, in conſideration that I do aſſign to him the Statute by way of diſcharge; this is a good Contract and Conſideration on which Action lieth. But if the Aſſignment of it were to a ſtranger, that were not good, for it is Maintenance. Adjudg. Paſch. 38 Eliz. Fitz. Barrow verſ. Green. Maintenance.

If one be in Debt to me Twenty pounds by Bill, and I promiſe to deliver him the Bill, and he promiſe me to bring two ſufficient Sureties, and give Bond for the money by a day; he may ſue me, and I him, and there needs no Averment of the performance of the one ſide to enable the ſuit: And ſo in all ſuch like reciprocal Promiſes. But if the Promiſe were conditional, contra, Adjudg. M. 38, & 39. Eliz. Gower verſ. Capper. Averment.

If I buy an Horſe of another for Corn, it is a good Contract, and I muſt pay ſo much Corn as is agreed upon, and not money. Fitz. Debt 68.

If one promiſe to me Ten pounds, when I have done ſuch a work; now this is a good Contract, and when I have done the work, I may ſue for the money, Plow. 5. 44 *Ed.*3.22.

If a Contract be to pay for a thing Five pounds, or a Gown ſuch a day, this is good; and if one be not paid at the day, an Action may be had: And before, and at the day, he that is to pay hath election; but after he to whom it is to be paid, 9 *Ed.*4.39. Fitz. Debt 89. See Election. Election.

If a man take my money, and promiſe in conſideration thereof to build me an Houſe by ſuch a day, this is a good Contract, and I may ſue for breach of it, *Kelw.*69.

If I be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and make a Leaſe thereof for life, and after in conſideration of a certain ſum of money demiſe and grant the ſame Land to another for Fifty years, to begin preſently; this is a good Contract, and Bargain and Sale to paſs the Reverſion and the Rent, *Co.*8.94. 2.35.

If one make a Leaſe for years in conſideration of a Rent, there is in this Quid pro quo, and the Conſideration is good on both ſides to raiſe an Action, *Kelw.*69.

If I lend one money, and thereupon he enfeoff me of Land, and by Agreement I am to have the profits of the Land till he pay me my money; this is a good Contract, and it ſeems I can bring no Action for the money whiles I have the Land, Fitz. Debt 100.

If

If I agree with another to give him ſo much for his Horſe as I.S. ſhall judg him to be worth; when he hath judged it, the Contract is compleat, and an Action will lie upon it; and the Buyer ſhall have a reaſonable time to demand the Judgment of I.S. and if I.S. die before Judgment, the Contract is determined, Plow 6. 14 *H.*8. 19. But then it ſeems the Horſe muſt be delivered, or money paid, ere the Property will alter, or Action lie for the money.

So if an Agreement be, that the Buyer ſhall go and ſee the thing, and if he like it ſhall give ſo much for it; and he, when he ſeeth it, doth once declare his liking of it, and thereby his Bargain is perfect, he cannot afterwards diſagree to it; and then Actions will ariſe on both ſides, 18 *Ed.*4. 16. And if he once diſlike it, hereby the Contract is determined, 18 *Ed.*4. 16.

If the Contract be to pay part of the money preſently, and the reſt at a day to come, and the Seller give him time till that day to refuſe it; in this caſe, if he agree before the day, the Contract is compleat, and reciprocal Actions will lie for the things and money, Dyer 99.

If the Agreement be, that he ſhall ſee the thing; and if he like it when he hath ſeen it, for ſo much money he ſhall have it; in this caſe when he hath paid the money, and agreed to have it at the rate, the Contract is perfect, and Action will lie, 17 Ed. 4. 1.

If a Contract be made for Twenty Buſhels of Corn at a price, and that the Buyer ſhall pay for them as he doth fetch them; this is a good Contract, and the party muſt pay for it as he doth fetch it, or the Seller may refuſe to deliver it, Dyer 30.

If the Contract be to have for Cattel ſold Ten pounds, if the Vendor do ſuch a thing, elſe Twenty pounds; this is a good Contract and certain enough, and Actions will lie accordingly, Perk. ſect. 712. 714.

If I ſell one Wares for Twenty pounds, to be paid when they are delivered; this is a good Contract; and when they are delivered, and not before, the Action will riſe, Fitz. Debt 56.

Sect. 5. If I ſell a thing to another, and no price is agreed upon, and he take the thing into his hands, yet the Contract it ſeems is good; and if it be Wine, or any ſuch like thing, the certain price whereof is known and ſet by Law, the Seller may ſue for ſo much money in certain. But in other caſes he muſt in his Action ſurmiſe that he promiſed to pay as much as it was worth, and aver it was worth ſo much in certain, Trin. 3 Jac. R.R.

Incertainty.

Parſon. Retainer. If a Parſon agree with me, I ſhall keep my own Tythes this year; if this be after I have ſown my Corn, this Contract is good. So ſome ſay, if a Parſon contract with me by word for the keeping back of my own Tythes for three or four years, this is a good Bargain by way of Retainer: But if we agree for the Tythes of another man, though but for one year, it is not good but by a Deed, Brownl. 2 par. 11. But ſome hold, that if the Contract be before the Corn is ſowed, or for more years then one, that this is not good. And this ſeems to be agreed, and to be good Law; That a Contract made by word of mouth with a Pariſhioner, for the keeping back of his Tythes for ſo many years as he ſhall be Parſon, is not good: And the Contract with the Pariſhioner is not good but by way of Retainer, Brownl. 2 part, 11. & 17.

If one bargain and ſell his Land, and the Trees upon it, but the Deed is not inrolled, and the Land doth not paſs, in this caſe the Trees will not paſs neither, Co. 11. 48. If a Tenant in Fee-ſimple for good conſideration ſell his Trees upon the Land, the Sale is good, and the Buyer may cut and take them away, although the Seller be dead. But otherwiſe it is of a Tenant in Tail; for there the Buyer muſt cut them in the life-time of the Seller, or he cannot take them after his death, Co. 11. 50. Perk. ſect. 58.

If I ſell my Horſe to one firſt, on condition that he pay me Five pounds at a day, and before the day I ſell him to another; this ſecond Contract, it ſeems, is void, albeit I be not paid my money, and I do afterwards ſeiſe my Horſe again, Plow. 432.

If

If a Contract be for any thing at a price, but withall it is agreed that the thing muſt be delivered to the Buyer at ſuch a time and place; this is a good Contract to alter Property, if it be delivered accordingly, Fitz. jurans defaite, 144. And ſo if it be to give ſo much as I.S. ſhall ſet down, when he doth ſet down, and the thing is delivered, the Property is altered, 14 *H.*8.20. So if it be that he ſhall ſee it, and if he like it, and take it away, he ſhall give ſo much, and he take it away. And ſo in all ſuch like caſes the Law is alike, 18 Ed 4.16. Dyer 99.

If two lay money on a Wager, and put it into the third mans hands, he that wins it may have it, and he that loſeth it hath no remedy for his money again. Agreed at Sarum-Aſſizes, 9 Car. And if a Contract be about a Horſe-race, if it be certain, it may be good and binding: But the Law doth not favour ſuch vain ſports, nor the Contracts that are made about them. By Baron Thorp, at Glouceſter-Aſſizes, 1654.

If one owe me Twenty pounds, and I buy of him Goods to the value of Five pounds, and it is agreed he ſhall keep up this Five pounds towards his Twenty pounds; it is ſaid this is no good Contract, nor pleadable in bar, if he ſue me for the Five pounds, Fitz. Debt 56. Quære.

If one promiſe me that I ſhall retain a Rent I owe him, for money he is to pay me; it ſeems I cannot plead this in bar to the Rent, but I may bring my Action upon the Promiſe, if there be Conſideration for it, M. 9 Jac. B.R. Jarvis Caſe.

If the Contract be to pay part of the money preſently, and the reſt at a day, and the Seller gives him leave to refuſe until ſuch a day: Now if he agree before the day, the Contract is compleat, and reciprocal Actions lie for the things and the money, Dyer 99.

If an Agreement be made in this manner between I.S. and my ſelf, That if he deliver me Twenty pounds worth of Clothes, or aſſure me ſuch a piece of Land, that I ſhall pay him Twenty pounds: Now this is good, and after the performance of the Condition (though not before) he may have an Action for the money. So in the like caſes: As if I promiſe to make new Pales, ſo I may have the old, 33 H. 6. 43. 27 H. 8. 34. Perk. ſect. 713.

If a Leſſee for years leaſe over his Land, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall get the favor of the Leſſor, and pay ſo much as I.S. ſhall arbitrate: This is a good Contract; and when he hath gotten his favor, and the other hath arbitrated how much, the Contract is perfect and binding, 15 *Ed.*4 2. Dyer 76. 14 *H.*8.20.

If the Agreement be, that the Buyer ſhall go and ſee the thing, and if he like it he ſhall give thus much for it, This is good; and when he ſeeth it, and doth once declare his liking, the Bargain is perfect, he cannot diſlike it, 18 Ed 4.16.

If one ſell Cattel upon condition, that if the Vendor do ſuch a thing, he ſhall have Twenty pounds for them, elſe but Ten pounds; this is a good Contract, and the ſame will be more or leſs, as the Condition is, or is not performed, Perk. ſect. 712. 714.

If I buy Wares of one for Twenty pounds, to be paid to him when he delivers it me, it is a good Contract; but if he never deliver it, I ſhall never pay for it, Fitz. Debt 56.

If I lend one money, and thereupon he enfeoff me of Land, and by Agreement I am to take the profits of the Land until he pay the money; this is a good Contract, and it ſeems I cannot recover the money whilſt I have the Land, Fitz. Debt 100.

If a Contract be for an Horſe at a price, but withall that the Seller ſhall bring and deliver him at ſuch a place, This is a good Contract; but this muſt be done alſo, or the Action will not riſe, Fitz. 144.

A Contract may be bad and void, either for ſome defect in the Cauſe and Conſideration, or for default in the Promiſe it ſelf. In the Cauſe, when either there is none, or no good Conſideration, (i.) when there is no benefit to the party to whom, nor prejudice, loſs or trouble to the party by whom the Contract is made; for then it is but Nudum pactum, a naked Covenant. Or when the Cauſe and Conſideration is unlawful.

2. In

1. In the Promiſe it ſelf it may be defective, either for uncertainty, (i.) when it is either altogether uncertain, or elſe ſo uncertain, as it cannot by any means be made certain. Or when it is imperfect, (i.) when it is only in inchoation, and but a Communication only, and not perfect and compleat. Or it may become void by matter Ex poſt facto. In either of theſe a Contract may become void, as in the Examples following. Co. 10. 102, 76. Dyer 356. 17 Ed. 4. 4. 9 H. 7. 21. 10 H. 7. 6.

Nudum pactum.

If I promiſe to pay another Twenty pounds, becauſe he is my Kinſman or Acquaintance; he can have no Action upon this, for it is Nudum pactum only, Plow. 309. 302. So if I contract with my Son, that becauſe he is of my blood, I will give him Ten pounds; this is Nudum pactum.

If one buy of me an Houſe, or other thing for money, and no money is paid, nor Earneſt given, nor day ſet for payment, nor the thing is delivered; here no Action lieth for the money, or the thing ſold, but I may ſell it to another if I will, for it is but Nudum pactum, a naked Covenant, Plow. 309. 302. 11 H. 4. 33.

If one promiſe to give or do to another ſomewhat for that which is paſt, as becauſe he hath builded an Houſe, or becauſe he hath let his Friend have Wares, or becauſe his Friend doth owe the other money, That if he do not pay him, he will; this is but Nudum pactum. This hath been often adjudged, Doct. & Stu. 105.

If I promiſe to one, That in conſideration he will deliver me Twenty crowns, I will deliver them to him again; this is a Promiſe upon which no Action will lie, unleſs he had delivered them to me firſt, and thereupon I had promiſed to redeliver them. Adjudg.

If I promiſe to one without any cauſe to give him Twenty pounds to make his Houſe anew, or towards his loſſes by fire, or the like; this is ſuch a Promiſe as will not yield an Action, 17 Ed 4. 4. Plow. 308.

If I. S. owe me Ten pounds, and another comes to me and tels me he will be my Pay-maſter for the Ten pounds, and pray me to take him for Debtor, and nothing is given by me for this; now no Action will lie for this, Fitz. Debt 126.

If I promiſe to another, in conſideration that he will make me a Leaſe generally, to do ſuch a thing; this is but Nudum pactum; for he may make me a Leaſe at will, that may end as ſoon as it begins; Paſch. 39 Eliz. Co. B. Lurkings Caſe, Adjudg.

If one promiſe to me in conſideration that I will relinquiſh my Suit, to do ſuch a thing; this is no good Conſideration, for he may relinquiſh it, and begin again, Paſch. 39 Eliz.

malum in ſe malum prohibitum

If the Cauſe of the Promiſe be to do an unlawful thing, as either that which is malum in ſe, or malum prohibitum, (i.) Evil in it ſelf, or evil forbidden, there the Contract is void: But if part of the Conſideration be lawful, and part unlawful, there it may be good: But if it tend wholly to Maintenance, or the like, it is all naught, Co. 12. 102. Dyer. Onleys Caſe, Churches Caſe, Paſch. 7 Jac. B. R.

If I come into the Market, and ask the price of any thing, and the Seller ſet a price, and I go home to my houſe to fetch the money as faſt as I can, and he ſell it the while; now in this caſe I have no Action for this, neither was the Property changed, for the Sale was not perfect, 14 H. 19.

If one bargain and ſell his Land, and the Trees upon it; but the Deed is not inrolled, and ſo the Land doth not paſs, nor the Trees will not paſs neither, Co. 11. 48.

If I ſell and deliver my Horſe to one firſt, on condition that he may pay me Five pounds at a day for him, and before the day I ſell him to another; this ſecond Contract, it ſeems, is void, although I have not my money paid, and I ſue him again, Plow. 432.

If I prize Wares, and the Tradeſman ſay ſo much; now the Bargain is not perfect until the money be paid, unleſs a day be agreed, it is imperfect and void until then, 17 Ed. 4. 1.

If the Promiſe be to do a thing either malum in ſe, or to do a malum prohibitum, (i.) Evil in it ſelf, or Evil forbidden, (although the Conſideration be good) or to do

do any thing contrary to Law, it is void and will not bind, no more then where the Conſideration is naught; for Law will not work with ſuch unlawful Contracts. (See more in Obligations and Covenants.) Alſo a Contract that is Uſurious, is againſt Law and void. See for this Uſury. Co. 10. 102. Dyer 356.

A Biſhop hath the Firſt-fruits of the Clergy within his Dioceſs; and if a Parſon pay him part, and promiſe him the reſt by a day, but doth not pay it; the Biſhop can have no Action, becauſe the thing is meerly ſpiritual, Co. on Lit. 162. b.

Sect. 7. Biſhopp Parſon

If an Agreement be between another and me for ten pounds for ſuch a parcel of Wood, if he like it when he ſeeth it, and he when he ſeeth it doth diſlike it; now by this the Contract is become void, and he cannot after by his liking make the Agreement good, 18 Ed. 4. 16.

If an Agreement be between me and another, that one ſhall go and ſee my Corn in ſuch a place, and if he like it when he hath ſeen it, for ſo much money, that he ſhall have it: Now the Contract is not perfect, until he hath paid the money and agreed to take it at the rate. See more of theſe matters in Aſſumpſits, 17 Ed. 4. 1. and Agreement and Properties.

If one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and the Leſſee be evicted by title Paramount, the Contract is diſcharged, and he ſhall pay no Rent: So if the Leſſor had nothing in the Lands at the time of the Leaſe, the Leſſee may plead it and avoid the Rent, Bro. ſect. 52. 135. Lit. ſect. 8.

11. Where a Title Paramount Contract is extinct or determined, or not.

If one ſell an Horſe or other Wares for money to be paid at a day, and before the day the true Owner thereof take his Horſe or Goods, the Debt is not diſcharged, but the Seller may have an Action to recover the money notwithſtanding, Finches Ley, f. 45. Co. 3. 22. a. 18 Ed. 4. 6 a.

If one have a Debt due to him by a Contract, and he do after take an Obligation for it, or any part of it; now hereby the whole Contract is determined. So if he ſue upon the Contract, and recover and get a Judgment, the Contract is determined, ſo if he ſue upon the Contract, and recover, and get a Judgment; the Contract is determined, 3 H. 4. 17. Co. 5. 45. 9 Ed. 4. 54. Dyer 21. F. N. B. 121.

If I be an Artiſt, and one promiſe me Ten pounds to teach him in ſuch an Art ſeven years, and I die before the money paid or ſeven years expired; now the Debt is gone, 21 Ed. 3. 11. But if I take a Writing indented only, or indented and ſealed alſo, of a Contract made to me, but it is not delivered and made an Eſpecialty, this doth not determine the Contract. So if a Debt on a Contract be due to me, and I take an Obligation from a ſtranger (and not from the party) for it; this doth not determine the Contract. So I take an Obligation from the party, and it be void, or it become void by matter ex poſt facto, this will not determine the Contract, Dyer 130. Fitz. Debt 68. 3 H. 4. 17. 21 H. 7. 5.

If I contract with I. S. that if he lay me into my Cellar three Tuns of Wine before Michaelmas, that I will bring into his Garner twenty Quarters of Wheat before Chriſtmas, and before the days they agree to diſſolve the Contract, this doth determine it; but after the firſt day of the two days is come, it cannot be diſſolved, but it may be releaſed by word or deed. And ſo of all ſuch like Contracts.

If one promiſe me Eight pounds to teach him in my Art ſeven years, and he pay me the money, or give ſecurity to pay it by a day, and I die before, yet the money muſt be paid, and it ſeems the other hath no remedy, 21 Ed. 3. 41. See more in Apportionment, ſect. 4.

12. Where a divisible Contract may be divided, or not.

A Contract cannot in any caſe be apportioned, but either the duty muſt be all paid, or all loſt. As if a Leaſe be made yielding Rent, and the Leſſor enter upon part of the Land leaſed, the whole Rent is ſuſpended. And if a ſtranger enter by title Paramount upon a part of the Land only, the whole Rent ſhall remain, 9 Ed. 4. 1. Bro. 52.

Sect. 8. Husband &c.

If the Husband ſell the Trees upon his Wives Land, and the Vendee take part of them, and after before he take the reſt ſhe die: Now though he cannot take the reſt of the Trees, yet he muſt pay all the money upon the Contract. But if a day were ſet to cut them, and not before, and ſhe die before the day, there if he had cut part of the Trees, he ſhould not pay any of the money, 18 Ed. 4. 6. Bro. Contract 26.

If one make a Leaſe for years, and ſell Goods, all by one Contract, for one ſum of money, and the Goods be took away from him before the money be paid, yet the Buyer muſt pay all the money. So if one ſell two Horſes for Ten pounds, and one Horſe is the Horſe of another mans, and he take his own again, he muſt pay the whole Ten pounds, (but he may have remedy againſt the Seller.) *Et ſic fuit opinio Juſt. Dodd. Tr.*14 Jac. B.R. 7 H. 7. 4. Bro. Contract, ſect. 52. 135. Lit. Bro. 12 *H.*8. 13. 9 *Ed.*4. 1.

If an Abbot had made a Contract for Goods, and part of the Goods had come to the uſe of the Houſe, and part not, yet the Succeſſor was chargeable with all, 38 *H.*6. 28. a.

If a Bond be made to ſecure money lawfully lent, and money upon Uſury, it is void for all. See more in *Apportionment, numb.*4.

13. Where one ſhall be charged or bound by the act of another, and where not. Husband and Wife.

If a Feme-covert do ſell the Goods of her Husband by authority precedent from him, or if he do afterwards agree to it, or it ſeems if he do not diſagree to it in his life-time; this ſhall bind the Husband. Qui tacet, conſentire videtur. So if ſhe buy any thing by any authority general or ſpecial, or without any authority, if it be for her neceſſary Apparel, the Husband ſhall be charged, (Vide Baron & Feme.) But if ſhe buy Goods for her Husband, or to his uſe, without his authority general or ſpecial, he ſhall not be charged for it (although it be ſpent in his houſe,) unleſs he do afterwards agree to it, 27 H 8. 25. 21 H. 7. 40. 20 H 6. 22. Old N. B. 62. So where ſhe is uſed to buy and ſell for the Husband, or the things ſold be things fit for the Wife to ſell, as Butter, Cheeſe, Milk, Eggs, and the like, the Contract is good.

Servant.

If I give my Servant authority to buy for me, or he be my common Baily and buy for me, I ſhall be charged, though they never come to my uſe, and though I never have notice of it, 21 *H.*7. 4. *F.N.B.*120 g. See Maſter and Servant.

If a Purveyor, Clerk of the Market, or other that taketh up for the King, buy any thing for the King; after he hath made his Accompt to the King and is allowed, he may be ſued and charged for it, but not before, unleſs he made a promiſe to pay for it, for then he may be charged before his Accompt, 11 *H.*4. 28. 2 *H.*4. 28.

14. What ſhall be ſaid a good Bar in Debt upon a Contract, and what not.

If a Servant buy for his Maſter, and promiſe to pay the Seller, and do not, the Seller may charge him in an Action of the Caſe; and if he had an authority from his Maſter, he may charge him in an Action of Debt. Arbitrement is a good Bar in Debt upon a Contract, 4 *H.*6. 17. 6.

So a Bond made by the Debtor to the Creditor for the Debt, or any part of it; for by this all the Contract is determined, Dyer 21. *b. S. N. Br.*121. *M.*3 *H.*4. 17. b. 11 *H.*4. 79. b. 9 *E.*4. 50. b. 29 *H.*8. Br. Contract 29. 21 H. 7. 5. b. 6 Rep. 45. a. Otherwiſe if the Bond were made by a ſtranger, 29 *H.*8. *Br. Contr.*29. *Goldsb.*155. *pl.*84.

A Judgment had upon the Contract, is a good Bar in Debt upon the Contract, although Execution be not done, Dyer 21. b. 39 *H.*6. 34 b. 9 *Ed.*4. 54.

To an Action of Debt upon a Contract, payment is a good Plea, 41 Ed. 3. 7. a. by Thorp. Br. Debt 29. 9 H. 6. 9. b. by Paſton. But yet by 1 H. 5. 6. b. per Cur: 40 Ed. 3. 24. b. 41 Ed. 3. 7. a. by Candiſh. 46 Ed. 3. 6. a. Payment is no good Plea in ſuch caſe, without ſhewing an Acquittance.

And Martin in 9 *H.*6. 9. b. ſaith accordingly, becauſe (ſaith he) he may wage his Law.

If the Plaintiff hath brought an Action of Debt upon the Contract, and hath been barred by Wager of Law, and now he brings an Action of the Caſe for the ſame Debt, the Defendant may plead this, and bar the Plaintiff, Fitz. tit. Action ſur le Caſe, 105.

If I be bound to you to pay you a certain ſum of money, and a ſtranger deliver you a Horſe by my aſſent for the debt, this is no ſatisfaction. So if I be indebted on a ſimple Contract, and a ſtranger make an Obligation for this debt, this doth not determine the Contract, *Brownl.*57. *pl.*14.

CHAP. XXXII.

Of a Barretor.

A Barretor or Common Barretor, is a Common Mover or a Common Stirrer up or Maintainer of Suits, Quarrels or Parts, either in the Courts or out of the Courts in the Country. And in the Courts, either of Record, or not of Record, as the Country Court, Hundred Court, or other ſuch like Courts: And out of Courts it is three ways. Barretor, what.

1. In diſturbing of the Peace; ſecondly, in taking or detaining of poſſeſſions of Houſes, Lands, or Goods in queſtion, either by force, or ſubtilty, and deceit, and uſually in the ſuppreſſion of right, and truth. Thirdly, by falſe Inventing, and ſerving of Calumnies, Rumors, and Reports, to make Diſcord, and Debate between Neighbors.

The puniſhment of ſuch a perſon may be by Articles or Information upon Oath before one, or more Juſtices of the Peace; and hereupon he may be bound to the Good-behavior, or he may be indicted for it at an Aſſizes, or Seſſions, and there fined for it at the diſcretion of the Judges, or Juſtices of the Peace, before whom he is found guilty of it. And for this ſee Co. 8. 36, 37. and Littl. 308. Weſtm. 2. 36. And my Book of Juſtice of Peäce. The puniſhment of it.

CHAP. XXXIII.

Of Baſtardy.

A Baſtard is one that is born of any Woman, ſo as his Father is not known by order of Law, and he is called Filius populi: Co. 8. 102. 6. 65: Super Littl. 244. Baſtardy.

Cui Pater eſt populus, Pater eſt ſibi nullus, & omnis:
Cui Pater eſt populus non habet ipſe Patrem.

Mulier is one lawfully begotten and born: And this word is uſed always in compariſon with, or oppoſition to a Baſtard, to ſhew the difference between them: For, Filius natus vel filia nata ex juſta uxore appellatur in legibus Angliæ filius mulieratus, ſeu filia mulierata. Co. ſuper Littl. 243. b. Mulier.

If a Woman have a Childe before the Eſpouſals (by whomſoever it be) it is a Baſtard, for that is born out of lawful marriage: And if the Childe be begotten by him that doth afterwards marry her; yet it is in Judgment of the common Law a Baſtard, but this the Church doth hold legitimate. Stat. 20 H. 3. 9. 1 H. 6. 3: Co. Super Littl. 244. Where, and what Iſſue ſhall be counted a Baſtard.

If one marry his Coſin, Infra gradus maritagii, and have iſſue by her, and after they be divorced in their life time, their Iſſue is a Baſtard. 48 Ed. 4. 28. Broo. Sect. 48.

If a Man or Woman marry a ſecond Wife or Husband, the firſt being living, and have Iſſue by that ſecond Wife, or Husband, ſuch Iſſue is a Baſtard. 39 Ed. 3. 14. 7 H. 4. 9. 18 Ed. 4. 26. Where not.

If one marry a Woman, and die before night that he lie with his Wife, and ſhe have a Childe after, it ſeems it ſhall be accounted his Childe, and Legitimate. See the Engliſh Lawyer. 117.

If a Woman elope with a ſtranger in Avowtry, and hath a Childe, her Husband being infra quatuor mariat; this is legitimate, and ſhall inherit his Land when he dies, 44 *Ed.*3. 10. 7 *H.*4. 10.

No Deviſe made after the death of the Father and Mother, can make the Iſſues Baſtards. Broo. Baſtard 23. 39 *Ed.*3. 32.

If a Woman elope from her Husband, and live in Avowtry, her Husband being beyond the Sea, that he cannot come at her, and ſhe have Iſſue in this time, it ſeems this is a Baſtard: But by the Common Law, if the Husband be within the four Seas (i.) within the juriſdiction of the King of England; if the Wife have Iſſue, no proof is to be admitted to prove the Childe a Baſtard, unleſs there be an apparant impoſſibility in the Husband of Procreation, as if he be but eight years old, or under the age of Procreation; for in that caſe, ſuch Iſſue is a Baſtard, albeit he be born within marriage, 43 *Ed.*3. 19. 7 *H.*4. 9. 7 *H.*5. 9. 44 Ed 3. 10. 1 *H.*6. 7. 19 *H.*6. 17. Coo. ſuper Littl. 244.

If a Childe be born within the uſual time, which is within the tenth Solary moneth, (accounting the moneth thirty days) after a mans death; it ſhall be reputed a Mulier, and the Childe of him that is dead; but if not, it ſhall be reputed a Baſtard, unleſs the Woman be married to another Husband; but the moſt natural time is eight and twenty days, nine Solary moneths and ten days; which is forty weeks, but ſome come ſooner, and ſome ſtay longer, as occaſions be; and therefore it is held by the Doctors of Phyſick, that any day in the tenth Solary moneth, the firſt or laſt, is natural enough. But the breeding and travail is ſometimes longer or ſhorter, according to the weakneſs or ſtrength of the Mother, or Childe, or other matters, Coo. ſuper Littl. 123. Arſops caſe, M. 17 Jac. R. B.

This Caſe was: The Husband died the three and twentieth day of March, after his death his Wife (being known a leud Woman) was in travail five weeks, and in the midſt of her travail, was turned out of doors, ſo that ſhe was not delivered until the fifth day of January, which was one and forty weeks, yet was adjudged that this Childe was legitimate, Arſop verſus Botrel, M. 17 Jac. B. R.

But if the Iſſue be born within a moneth, or a day, after marriage, between parties of full, lawful age; the Childe is a legitimate Iſſue, and no Baſtard, albeit it be apparant it was anothers Childe, and not his that married the Woman; and he muſt Father him; for whoſe is the Cow, his is the Calfe, 18 *Ed.*4. 28. Co. ſuper Litt. 244. If a marriage be infra gradus maritagii, and they have Children, and one of them die, and after a nullity and divorce is made of the ſaid marriage, yet the Iſſue between them are no Baſtards, but Muliers, 39 *Ed.*3. 32. Broo. ſect. 48.

If a Divorce be well made of a former marriage, cauſa precontractus, and either of the parties marry again, and upon this ſecond marriage have Children; theſe Children are legitimate, and not Baſtards, *Co.*4. 29.

All Children that are born beyond Sea, whoſe Parents at the time of their birth be of the Faith and Legiance of the King of England, ſhall be legitimate, and have the ſame advantages as others born within the Realm, 25 Ed. 3. de natis ultra mare: Dyer 224.

A Baſtard the Elder and Mulier. Where poſſeſſion of the Elder Iſſue which is a Baſtard, dying ſeiſed, makes his Son his Heir, where not, and although the yonger Son occupy the Land with the elder.

If one have a Son or a Daughter by a Woman before marriage (which is a Baſtard) and after he marrieth the Woman, and they have another Son or Daughter (which is a Mulier) and the Father die ſeiſed of Land, the ſecond Son or Daughter ſhall have this Land, and not the Baſtard; and if the Baſtard enter upon it, the Mulier may out him: But if the Baſtard ſhall enter firſt, claiming as Heir to his Father, and ſhall occupy the Land all his life-time without any entry, or continual claim made by the Mulier all the life-time of the Baſtard, and he have Iſſue and die ſeiſed of ſuch Eſtate in Fee, and the Land diſcend to his Iſſue, and his Iſſue entreth, &c. In this Caſe the Mulier which is lineal, as alſo the Collateral Heir is remedileſs, and the Iſſue of ſuch Baſtard ſhall have it, notwithſtanding the Mulier be an Infant, or Feme Covert, and notwithſtanding the Iſſue of the Mulier enter before the Iſſue of the Baſtard; and notwithſtanding the Iſſue of the Baſtard endow the Wife of the Baſtard, and notwithſtanding the Baſtard after his entry, enter into Religion, and thereupon the diſcent be, and notwithſtanding the diſcent be of Rents, Services, Reverſions, expectant upon upon Eſtates in Tail; whereupon Rents are reſerved, Littl. Sect. 399, 340. Co. ſuper Co. 17 Ed. 3. 15. 20 Ed. 3. 16. 14 H. 4. 9.

But if the Mulier do make continual claim during the Baſtards liſe; or if the Mulier do once enter, and be after diſſeiſed by the Baſtard, or if the Baſtard die without Iſſue, and the Land Eſcheat, or if the entry of the Baſtard were by a ſtranger, without any commandment, precedent, or aſſent ſubſequent of the Baſtard; in theſe caſes the Mulier is not barred. Co. ſuper Littl. 243, 244.

If one have Iſſue two Daughters, and one is a Baſtard, and the other is a Mulier, and they enter and occupy together all their lives, and the Baſtard die ſeiſed; the Law will adjudge the moyety in her Heir, Co. ſuper Littl. 214.

A Baſtard may purchaſe Land, or buy and ſell Goods or Chattels, as another man may: Alſo he is capable of Land by Deviſe from his Father, or any other, by that name whereby he is commonly called, Perk. Sect. 48. 505.

What things a Baſtard ſhall have, and of what he is capable, where not.

But he cannot inherit Land as Heir to his Father, neither can any inherit Land as Heir to him, but one that is Heir of his body; but it will rather Eſcheat, Littl. Sect. 401. Fitz. B. 20.

If he be a Baſtard born in Adultery or Inceſt, it ſeems he is not capable of any benefit from ſuch Inceſtuous Parents, more then for neceſſaries onely, Swinb. in Wills.

What acts a Baſtard may do, or not do.

It ſeems he may do all Acts as give, or grant, or ſell his Lands, Goods, or Chattels, by act executed in his life, or by his Will at his death, as any other man may, by the name whereby he is commonly called; but he cannot bring a Writ of Detinue, or the like, as Heir to any man, Perk. Sect. 16. Co. 6. 65. 35 H. 6. 9.

Baſtardy is pleaded and alledged ſometimes generally (i.) when one ſaith that another is a Baſtard, but ſheweth not how, or ſpecially (i.) when he doth ſhew how: In the firſt caſe it was to be tryed by the Certificate of the Biſhop, albeit the Iſſue were born beyond the Sea; and this had bard the parties, and all others: But if the Biſhop had certified he is a Mulier, this was examinable and traverſable. In the ſecond caſe, when it is pleaded, it is to be tried by the Country, not by the Biſhop. For which, ſee the Statutes of 9 H. 6. 11. 40 Ed. 3. 39. Plow. 4. 25 Ed. 3. de natis ultra mare.

Pleading and tryal of Baſtardy.

What perſon ſhall be reputed the Father of a Childe.

If one marry a Virgin with Childe, and it be born during the Eſpouſals, he muſt Father it, let it be whoſe it will: And if ſhe be a Widow, and with Childe viſibly by her firſt Husband at the time of his death, and take another Husband, and be delivered during the next Eſpouſals; in this caſe it ſhall be reputed the Childe of the former Husband: But if ſhe were ſo privily with Childe at the time of her latter marriage, as it cannot be diſcerned, it ſhall be reputed the Childe of her latter Husband, if by poſſibility of nature, it may be ſo, 21 Ed. 3. 19.

If A. marry B. and die, and within ten days after his death ſhe do marry C. and hath Iſſue D. eleven days after the uſual time of forty weeks, from the death of A. this ſhall be reputed the Childe of C. and not of A. So it ſeems if the Childe come eleven days before the uſual time, it ſhall be reputed the Childe of C. not of A. 18 Ed. 1. Com. Bedf. Caſe, R. 13. B. R.

The puniſhment of Baſtardy.

Baſtardy is an offence againſt the Spiritual Law, and therefore was puniſhable in the Spiritual Court: It is alſo offence againſt the Common Law, and puniſhable in the Temporal Courts; and two Juſtices of Peace, whereof one to be of Quorum that are next to the place where the Baſtard is born, may examine the matter, and puniſh the parties offending according to their diſcretion: And if it be a Baſtard that may charge the Pariſh, the Juſtices may ſend the Mother to the Houſe of Correction: As alſo for the keeping of the Baſtard to diſcharge the Pariſh where it is born, and to charge the Mother and reputed Father: And if they refuſe to obey the Order made by ſuch Juſtices, or to give good bail to perform the ſaid Order, or to appear at the next quarter ſeſſions, they are to ſend them to Gaol, there to abide without bail or Mainpriſe. 18 Eliz. 3. 7 Jac. 4. 3 Car. 4.

It is murder in a Woman to conceal the death of her Baſtard unleſs ſhe prove by one witneſs (at leaſt) that it was ſtill born. 21 Jac. 17. See Juſtices Office in my Book.

CHAP. XXXIV.

Of Books, Images, and Printers.

Importation.

IN this, theſe things are to be known.

1. That none may buy to ſell again any Books Printed, ready bound in Boards, Leather, or Parchment from any place beyond Sea; nor buy of any but Denizens, Printed Books brought from beyond Sea by Retail, but in Groſs onely.

2. The Lord Chancellor, Lord Treaſurer, and the two Chief Juſtices, or any two of them may ſet the prices of Books. 25 *H.*8. 15.

3. No Imported Books ſhall be Landed any where, but in London Port. Act. 20 Sept. 1649. 7 Jan. 1652.

4. None may bring in here any Scandalous or Seditious Book under pain of five pound. Ibid.

5. None may bring in from beyond Sea any Engliſh Bible, Pſalms, or Book, or part of any Book formerly Printed here; nor Binde, Stich, or put to ſale any ſuch Book, upon pain of loſs, and forfeiture thereof, and of ten ſhillings a Book. Ibid.

Popiſh Books and Images.

6. None may bring from beyond Sea, nor Print, Sell, or Buy any Popiſh Primmers, Ladies Pſalters, Manuels, Roſaries, Popiſh Catechiſms, Miſſals, Breviaries, Portals, Legends, and Lives of Saints, Printed or Written in any Language: Nor any other Superſtitious Books written in the Engliſh Tongue. But Popiſh Books and Images muſt be taken away. And Juſtices may ſearch the Houſes of Popiſh Recuſants for them. 3 Jac. 5.

Directory, Common-Prayer Book.

7. The Book of Common Prayer may not now be uſed, but the Directory muſt be uſed in Church Service. See the *Ordinance, Aug.*23. 1645.

8. All Primmers uſed in the times of the Kings, are to be ſuppreſſed, Act July 24. 1651.

9. None may demiſe, or let, or being within his diſpoſe, ſuffer to be held or uſed, any Houſe, Vault, Cellar, or other Room whatſoever, for a Printing-houſe; but before he let it, he muſt give notice thereof to the Maſter or Wardens of the Stationers for the time being thereof, Sub pena five pound. This they muſt enter into their Regiſter Book, Sub pena five pound.

10. No Joyner, Carpenter, or other, ſhall make any Printing-Preſs, Rolling-Preſs. Nor any Smith forging Iron-work for a Printing-Preſs; nor any Founder caſt any Printing Letters for another; nor any perſon Import from any part beyond Sea, into this Country, any Printing-Preſs, or any ſuch Letters, but he muſt firſt acquaint the Maſter and Wardens of the Company, for whom the ſame work is to be done, under pain of five pound. This the Maſter and Wardens muſt enter in their Regiſter Book, under pain of five pound.

11. No Printers nor Printing, ſhall be but in London, and in the two Univerſities, York, and Finsbury, under pain of twenty pound, and to have all their Printing-Preſſes, Letters, and Materials defaced, and be for ever diſabled to be a Maſter Printer, and owner of a Printing-Preſs.

12. None may Print, but ſuch as have ſerved ſeven years with ſome lawful Printer in England.

13. Then he muſt uſe the Trade in his own houſe, not elſwhere, under pain of forty pound.

14. They muſt in every thing they Print, in the Title-page of each Book, prefix the Authors own name, with his quality and place of Reſidence, or at leaſt the Licenſers names, where Licenſes are required; and his own name and place of Reſidence at length, under pain to forfeit for the firſt offence ten pound, and to have all the the Printing Materials defaced; and for the ſecond offence, to be diſabled from any more Exerciſe of his Trade of Printing.

15. None ſhall Print or Reprint out of the two Univerſities, any Book, or part of any Book legally granted to the ſaid Company of Stationers, for the relief of their poor, without the Licenſe and conſent of the Maſter, Wardens, and Aſſiſtants of their Companies.

16. None ſhall Print or Reprint any Book or Books, or part of Book or Books, which ſhall be duly entred in the Regiſter Book of the Company, for any particular Member of the ſaid Company, without the Licenſe and conſent of the owners thereof.

17. None may counterfeit the Name, Mark, or Title of any Book, belonging to the ſaid Company, or particular Members.

18. Nor ſhall any perſon Binde, Stitch, or put to ſale any ſuch Book or Books, upon pain of forfeiture of the ſum of ſix ſhillings and eight pence, for every Book Printed, Stitched, Bound, or put to ſale contrary hereunto.

19. None may ſell News-Books without leave of Parliament, or ſome appointed by them.

20. To Print, publiſh, or utter, or cauſe to be Written, Printed, publiſhed or uttered any Scandalous or Libellous Books, Pamphlets, Papers or Pictures, under pain of ten pound, or impriſonment forty days, or until he pay the money. The Printer to forfeit five pound, and be impriſoned twenty days until he pay it; to have his Preſs and Implements of Imprinting, broken and ſeiſed. The Book-ſeller and Stationer forty ſhillings, or be ſo impriſoned ten days, or pay the money; and he that buyeth it, and doth not within four and twenty hours give notice of it, and of the party that ſold it, to a Juſtice of Peace, under pain of twenty ſhillings.

21. Such Haukers and Sellers, and the like, as go with Scandalous News in Ballads, and the like, are to forfeit the Books and Ballads, and be by the Conſtable carried to the Houſe of Correction to be whipt as Common Rogues, and the Keepers muſt take them and whip them; or if no Houſe of Correction be, then to the Conſtable of the place to be whipt there by him as a Rogue.

22. That no Drifats, Packs, Maunds, Cheſts, or Fardels of Books, be permitted by the Officers of the Exciſe or Cuſtoms, to be opened or conveyed away, before notice given to, and view made by the Maſter and Wardens of the Company, or ſuch as they ſhall appoint, ſo they do it within eight and forty hours after notice given (the Lords day and days of Humiliation excepted) Sub pena five pound. And this the Officers muſt do, under pain of five pound to be forfeit by them. See Act July 24. 1651. 20 Sept. 1649. 22 Nov. 1650. 5 Jan. 1652.

Of Boatmen and Bargmen.

FOr this theſe things muſt be known.

1. Overſeers of them are to be in Thames, between Graveſend and London.

2. They muſt order Watermen, ſet down their names, and overſee their Boats.

3. Allow one of two that Row in Boats.

4. No ſingleman, but one that hath been in ſervice, is to be a Waterman.

5. Their Boats muſt be of ſuch a length and breadth.

6. They may not take more for their Fare, then is ſet down.

7. No man hinder their paſſage on Severns, or require money of them for their paſſage.

8. The Watermen may take Apprentices, or Servants.

9. They may not Tranſport Offenders into, or out of Wales, or Corn to the Ships. 2, 3 Phil. & Mary 16. 9 *H.*6. 5. 23 *H.*8. 12. 19 *H.*7. 18. 1 *Jac.*16. 1, 2 Phil. & Mary 5.

CHAP. XXXVI.

Of Braſs, Latten, Copper, Pewter, Bell-Mettal and Burning.

Braſs, Pewter, Latten, Copper, and Bell-Mettal Tranſportation.

FOr this thing all theſe things are to be known.

1. None may carry away, or convey by Water, or otherwiſe, any Braſs, Latten, Copper, Bell-Mettal, Panmettal, Gun-Mettal, nor Shroff-Mettal beyond Sea, under pain to forfeit the double value thereof; neither may it be carried by Sea from one part of the Land to another, before the party hath given Bond to the Cuſtomer of the place, where it is carried by Sea, to diſcharge it at that place within the Realm, where he pretendeth to carry it. See the Statutes of 23 *H.*8. 7. 2, 3 *Ed.*6. 37.

Making a Merchandiſing of it.

2. No Pewterer, or Braſier, may ſell or change any Pewter or Braſs, new or old, at any place, but in open Fairs or Markets, or in their own dwelling Houſes, unleſs the Buyers deſire it; otherwiſe Sub pena ten pound for every default. Stat. 19 *H.*7. 6.

3. All Pewter and Braſs Veſſels, caſt and wrought, muſt be of good Mettal, ſuch as they are bound to caſt in London, under pain to forfeit that which is not ſo caſt; and the Ware that is hollow muſt be made after the Aſſize they are bound unto in the City of London; and the maker of the Ware muſt ſet his mark upon it, under pain to forfeit the Ware, that is otherwiſe. 5 *H.*8. 7. 25 *H.*8. 9.

4. None may uſe any falſe Beams or Weights about the ſelling and buying of Pewter and Braſs, Sub pena twenty ſhillings. And if the party cannot pay the money, he muſt be put in Stocks and on the Pillory. Ibid.

5. Majors and Juſtices, may and muſt appoint a ſearcher in every place to look to theſe things. Ibid.

5. None may buy or take by Exchange for other Wares, any Wares made of Tin, as Platters, Diſhes, Sawcers, Pots, Baſons, Flagons, Goblets, Salts, Salt-ſellers, Spoons, under pain to forfeit the ſame, and the value thereof alſo. 25 *H.*8. 9.

7. No

7. No ſtranger born may work any Pewter or Tin, neither may a Pewterer teach his Trade in a foreign Country. See the Statutes at large, 33 *H.*8.7. 2 & 3 *Ed.*6.37: 4 *H.*8.7. 19 *H.*7.6.

Of Burning.

FOr Burning, theſe things are to be known.

1. It is Felony to burn a Dwelling-houſe, or a Barn full of Corn, or any Outhouſe adjoining to ſuch Houſe or Barn. See Brown. But to burn a Frame of an Houſe, is not Felony now, 37 *H.*8.6.

2. To burn any Heaps of Wood prepared for Coals, Billet, or Talwood, is not Felony, but a great Treſpaſs, for which a man ſhall pay treble damages to the party wronged, and forfeit Ten pounds to the Lord Protector, 37 *H.*8.6.

3. If my Neighbor, his Servant, or any other that ſhall come into his houſe by his good will and agreement, ſhall wilfully or through negligence burn his houſe, and thereby my houſe is burnt, I may have relief againſt him for this loſs by Action of the Caſe: But if it be by Gods hand, and without negligence, it is otherwiſe, 2 *H.*4. 18. Brownl. 1 part, 197.

CHAP. XXXVII.

Of Butchers.

FOr Butchers, theſe things are to be known:

Butchers. Buying and ſelling of Cattel.

1. No Butcher or other may buy any Cattel in a Market or Fair, and ſell them again alive in the ſame Market or Fair during the time thereof, under pain to forfeit the double value thereof: Neither may they buy any Oxen, Steers, Runts, Kine, Heifers, Calves or Sheep, and ſell the ſame again alive under pain of forfeiture of the Cattle, *St.*3. & 4. Ed. 6. *c.*10. 3 *Car. ch.*4.

2. Butchers muſt kill no Beaſts within any walled Town, or Cambridg, 4 *H.*7. 3.

3. But there is now no Law in force to reſtrain Butchers from killing a Calf weaned before two years of age, or from buying Cattel out of an open Fair or Market, or from killing of Calves between the tenth day of January and the firſt of May; for thoſe Statutes are ended.

4. If he ſels Swines fleſh mezeled, or dead of the Murrain: For the firſt offence amerced; the ſecond, Pillory; third, Impriſonment and Fine, &c. See St. 24 *H.*8.9. 1 *Jac.*22. 21 *Jac.*8. 31 *Ed.*1. Stat. of Bakers and Brewers. See Cattel.

CHAP. XXXVIII.

Of Butter and Cheeſe, and Cable-Ropes.

Butter and Cheeſe.

AS to this, theſe things are to be known.

1. None but Victuallers and Inholders, for their Houſe-proviſion, may buy to ſell again any Butter or Cheeſe, unleſs he ſell the ſame again by Retail, i. a Weight of Cheeſe, or a Barrel of Butter, or a leſs Quantity, in open Shop, Fair or Market, and not in groſs, under pain to forfeit the double value thereof, Stat. 3 & 4 Ed. 6. Chap. 11. 21. 14.

2. None may get into his hands any Butter or Cheeſe to ſell again, by unlawful ingroſſing, 5 Ed 6. 21. Jac. 22.

3 But the Traders of Butter and Cheeſe, Cheeſemongers and Tallow-chandlers that have been ſeven years of the Trade, within the City of London and the Liberties thereof, may notwithſtanding the ſaid Statutes buy and ſell again in open Shop, Fair or Market, 21 Jac. 22.

4. None may tranſport Butter and Cheeſe. See Tranſportation. St. 2 & 3 P. & M. 5.

5. A Weight of Cheeſe ſhall be 32 Cloves, and every Clove 7*l.* 9 H. 6. 8. See more in Stat. 10 H. 6. 3. 21 Jac. 22. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. 14.

Of Cable, Ropes and Halters.

Cables, Ropes and Halters.

None may make Cables, Halters, or other kind of Cordage of any old or overworn ſtuff, which ſhall contain above ſeven inches in compaſs; nor Tar any Cordage of ſuch old and overworn ſtuff, being of leſs aſſiſe, and after ſell the ſame, 35 Eliz. 8.

No great Cables, Halters, Ropes, and other Tackling for Ships ſhall be made within five miles of Burport in the County of Dorſet, nor Hemp ſold which ſhall grow within five miles of that Town, in any place, but in the Town it ſelf, Stat. 21 H. 8. ch. 12.

CHAP. XXXIX.

Of Capacity and Incapacity.

Capacity, or Ability. Perſonable.

Diſability, or Non-ability.

IT is an aptneſs or power to do, or have and receive, or retain ſomething: As where one is able to give or grant, have or take Lands; or to ſue, or be ſued. And the perſon that is ſo capable, is ſaid to be perſonable, inabled to grant, give, or take a thing granted or given. And this is oppoſed to Diſability or Non-ability: which being taken largely, is defined to be an Incapacity, Incapability, or Impotencie of ſome perſons for ſome cauſes, to have and enjoy ſome benefit, or do ſome act which another might have or do. As where one is not able, or not able but after ſuch a manner to give or grant, have or take Lands; or to ſue, or to be ſued.

abſolute diſability

And in this ſenſe Diſability is ſometimes Abſolute; as of an Infant, Man attainted of Treaſon or Felony, or the like, who are utterly diſabled by any way or means to make any Conveyance of their Lands, but that it may be avoided by ſome body. So the the ſon of ſuch a perſon attaint is utterly diſabled by any means to inherit any Land from that father. And ſometimes it is ſecundum quid only; as that of a Feme-covert, who cannot give or grant but by Fine, and is only diſabled to give or grant by Deed: And that of the King, who is diſabled to give or grant, or take or receive any thing but by matter of Record: And that of a Clergy-man that hath a Benefice of Eight pounds per annum in the Kings Books, who is uncapable of another, unleſs he be firſt qualified according to the Statute.

It is alſo diſtinguiſhed into Diſability particular or perſonal, and temporal, as that which reacheth not unto any other perſon, and is but for a time only: And perpetual or univerſal, as that which reacheth to others, and is for ever. And this is cauſed ſometimes by the act of God, as in caſe of the non-ability of an Ideot, and the like; and ſometimes by the act of the Law, as in caſe of the diſability of an Alien or a Monk: And ſometimes by the act of the party, as when he is attaint of Felony or Treaſon: And ſometimes by the act of a ſtranger, as in caſe of the diſability of an Heir by the Attainder of the Anceſtor, Terms of the Law, Kitch. fol. 214. Plow. 27. Fitz. N.B. 35. Co. 11. 77. 4. 127. 7 H. 7. 7. 26 H. 8. 1. Co. 8, 10. St. 33 H. 8. c. 29. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 13. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 3.

But Diſability is taken ſometimes more ſtrictly, for an Exception taken againſt the Plaintiff or Demandant upon ſome cauſe why he cannot commence ſome Suit in Law, and the Defendant ſaith that the Plaintiff is not able to ſue an Action, and demandeth Judgment if he ſhall be anſwered. And this is alſo ſometimes Abſolute, and ſometimes ſecundum quid only. And briefly there are ſix cauſes of this Non-ability: As if he be, 1. An Outlaw. 2. Condemned in a Premunire. 3. Profeſſed in Religion. 4. Excommunicate. 5. A Vilain. 6. An Alien. But in the laſt caſe the diſability is only in real actions, and not in perſonal actions, F.N.B. 35, 95. Terms of the Law.

Note, perſons capable are of two ſorts:

1. Perſons natural created of God, as J.S. and J.D. &c.

2. Perſons incorporate or politique, created by the policie of man: And theſe be of two ſorts. 1. Sole. 2. Aggregate of many. And theſe alſo are of perſons capable, as Mayor and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter: Or of perſons uncapable, as Prior and Covent, &c. And ſome men have capacity to take, but not to hold; and ſome to take and hold, or not to hold at the election of them or others; and ſome to take and to hold both; and ſome neither to take nor hold; and ſome ſpecially diſabled to take ſome particular thing, Co. ſuper Lit. f 2.

Sect. 2.
Where a man ſhall be ſaid to be able to do or receive a thing or not, but he ſhall be ſaid to be diſabled or uncapable, and how.

If an Alien purchaſe Land in fee for life or years, after Office found, the King will have it, for the Alien is not capable of it to retain it, though he be able to purchaſe it: But ſuch a perſon is capable of having and retaining both, a houſe for his habitation; and therefore he may purchaſe and hold ſuch a thing. See for this Alien. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 2.

If a man commit Felony or Treaſon, and be attainted thereof, and after Attainder he ſell any of his Lands or Goods, this is void, for he is diſabled: And if he do it before Attainder, any ſale of his Goods or Chattels is good againſt all men; but if he make any ſale of his Lands, that may be avoided by the King or Lord to whom it doth belong by the forfeiture, but it is good againſt all others. And if a man commit Felony, and after purchaſe Land, and then is attainted; now though he were not diſabled to purchaſe, yet he is to hold, for the Lord will have it by Eſcheat. And if a man be attainted of Felony, yet he hath capacity to purchaſe to him and his heirs, though he cannot hold it, for in this caſe the King ſhall have it preſently. See Creon. Co. ſuper Lit. 2. 49 Aſſiſ. 2. 49 Ed 3. 11.

A Felon. Attainted.

A ſole Corporation.

A ſole Corporation, or Aggregate of many, either Eccleſiaſtical or Temporal, may grant or give away that they have in moſt caſes, as perſons Natural may; but they have not capacity to hold and retain Lands, as ſuch perſons may, without ſpecial licence from the King: And yet ſuch Corporations may purchaſe; but after they have purchaſed Lands, the Lord may enter and have it. See Mortmain. Co. ſuper Lit. 2. b.

Vilains. Vilains and Bondmen may do and receive as other men, ſave only againſt the Lords; for if they purchaſe Lands, or buy Goods, their Lords will have them. See Vilains. Co. idem.

Infants or Minors. An Infant or Minor, one under the age of Twenty one years, cannot give or grant away any thing they have, but it will be void or voidable. But ſuch a one, without the conſent of any other, hath capacity to purchaſe, and at his full age he may agree to it, or diſagree, and wave it without any cauſe ſhewed. See more of this in Infant. Co. idem.

Ideots. An Ideot, or man of non-ſane memory, cannot give or grant away any thing he hath, but it will be void or voidable: But ſuch a one hath capacity to purchaſe without conſent of any other, and himſelf cannot wave it; but if he die in his madneſs, or after his memory recovered, without agreement thereunto, his Heir may wave it without any cauſe ſhewed. See more in Ideot. Co. idem.

Hermaphrodites. An Hermaphrodite may give or grant, take or purchaſe as another perſon may do, according to that ſex which prevaileth, Co. idem, & 3.

A Baſtard. A Baſtard may grant or give, purchaſe or take, as another perſon may do, after he hath gotten a name by reputation, by that name ſo gotten. See more in Baſtard. But if a Leaſe be to A.B. for life, the Remainder to the eldeſt Iſſue-male of I.S. and the Heirs males of his body, and I.S. have a Baſtard, this Iſſue is not capable within this limitation. Co. idem & 3.

Perſons deformed, &c. Perſons deformed, having humane ſhape. Lepers, Deaf, Dumb, and Blind men, it ſeems may take and give as other perſons may. See more in Fait. Co. 3.

Grants void by incapacity of the Grantees. No perſon but one qualified and fitted is capable of an Office: And therefore if the King grant an Office that doth concern the Adminiſtration of Juſtice or the Kings Revenue, or if he grant a Judicial Office to one in Reverſion, or a Stewardſhip be granted to an Infant; theſe Grants are void, for they are or may be incapable, Co. 3 b.

Some are capable of things to ſpecial purpoſe to give or grant, and not to uſe; ſo the King is capable of an Office, Idem.

Such as buy Offices or Benefices, are uncapable thereof. See Offices, Advowſons, and Simony.

Where a man ſhall be ſaid to be able to ſue or to be ſued, and where not, but he ſhall be ſaid to be diſabled, and how. Women covert may ſue or be ſued, but their husbands muſt be joined with them. See Baron and Feme.

Ideots, and men of Non-ſane-memory, may ſue or be ſued; alſo ſuch as be deaf and dumb.

Infants alſo may ſue or be ſued, and are not diſabled: But if he ſue, he muſt ſue by Prochein amy; if he defend, it muſt be by his Guardian.

A Vilain. A Vilain is diſabled to ſue his Lord in any real or perſonal Action; but he may ſue any other beſides his Lord, Co. ſuper Lit. 127 b.

A perſon outlawed. An Outlawed perſon is diſabled to ſue any Action againſt any man in any Court of Law or Equity; but it ſeems any man may ſue him, Co. idem 128.

An Alien-Enemy and Amy. An Alien-Enemy is diſabled to ſue any Action real or perſonal: An Alien-Amy to ſue any real Action; but a perſonal Action he may ſue, Co. idem.

Attaint in Premunire. A man that is attainted in a Premunire, may not ſue in any Action, Co. ſuper Lit. 129.

A man profeſſed in Religion. A man that is profeſſed in Religion, cannot ſue or be ſued, Idem 232.

A perſon excommunicate. A man that is Excommunicate, is diſabled to ſue in any Court any Action whatſoever, unleſs the Excommunication were by the Defendant himſelf, Idem 134.

A man that is convict Recuſant, is diſabled to ſue whiles he doth ſo continue. See more in Stat. 3 Car. 2. and of Recuſants.

Sect. 3. How long ſuch Diſabilities ſhall continue. But note, that all theſe Diſabilities continue only whiles the ſame Impediment doth continue. For after Infranchiſement of the Vilain, Reverſal or Pardon of the Outlawry, Pardon in the Premunire, Dearraignment of the party Profeſſed, and Abſolution of the Excommunication, the Diſability is gone, and the party may ſue as another man: Alſo during that time he may ſue in the right of another, as an Executor or Adminiſtrator; ſo the Vilain may ſue his Lord, and the reſt in the caſes before. And therefore a Mayor and Commonalty in their Politique capacity may have an

Actio n

Action, though the Mayor be outlawed, Co. ſuper Lit. 128. 12 Ed. 4. 12.

And in a Writ of Error to reverſe an Outlawry, Utlary in that Suit or any other ſhall not diſable him in that caſe, Co. Idem.

Alſo Outlawries in Cheſter and Durham are not Diſabilities to ſue at the Court at London: See more in other places.

CHAP. XL.

Of Captives, Caſtle, and Cattel.

FOr Redemption of Captives, and preventing their taking in time to come, See the Act, March 26. 1650. 16 & 17 Car. 24.

of a Caſtle.

Caſtle, what.

A Caſtle doth ſometimes ſignifie a ſtrong Houſe or place of defence; and ſometimes it doth ſignifie one or more Manors, Co. upon Lit. 5. For this,

1. What Purveyance, and in what manner ſhall be made to victual a Caſtle. See Stat. 9 H. 3. 19. 3 Ed. 1. 7.

2. What is to be, and by whom, for the erecting, maintenance and uſing of ſeveral Caſtles, Fortreſſes and Bulwarks, See Stat. 4 H. 8. 1, 2 Ed. 6. 16. 2 & 3 P. & M. 1. 28 Ed. 1. 7. 4 H. 4. 31. 33. 13 R. 2. 15.

Caſtlelain was ſometimes taken for the Owner or Captain of a Caſtle, who ſometimes alſo was called the Conſtable of the Caſtle. Caſtlelain, what Caſtle-guard is a Tenure or Impoſition laid upon ſuch as do dwell neer a Caſtle, towards the maintenance of ſuch as keep Watch in the Caſtle, which was a kind of Knights ſervice. For this, Caſtle-guard, what.

1. Who ſhall be bound to this Tenure, and for what time he may be diſcharged thereof, See Stat. 9 H. 3. 20.

2. The Tenants of the Caſtle of Dover that hold by this Tenure, are to pay their Rents at the Exchequer yearly, Stat. 33 H. 8, 18. See Weſtm. 17 Ed. 3.

Of Cattel.

FOr Cattel, theſe things are to be known.

1. None may buy any Cattel, and ſell them again alive, until he have fed them five weeks in his own houſe or ground, or where he hath Common, under pain to loſe the double value thereof, Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. 14.

2. None may buy any Cattel but in open Fair or Market, nor may he ſell the ſame again any where in the ſame Fair or Market, under pain to forfeit the double value thereof, 3 & 4 Ed. 6. 19.

3. Any perſon may buy Oxen, Steers, Runts, Kine, Heifers or Calves, for their proviſion for Houſhold, Teem, or Dairy, or otherwiſe, in any Fair or elſwhere as they pleaſe, 3 & 4 Ed. 6. 19.

4. Spiritual perſons may not buy Cattel to ſell again, but in ſome ſpecial caſes, 21 H. 8. 13.

5. Drovers that buy and ſell Cattel, muſt be licenſed, and how. See Chap. 27. b.

6. Any man may keep upon his own Lands or Liberties of Foldage that he hath, any Eſtate in uſe, or poſſeſſion of Inheritance, or for life, as many Sheep as he will. But Farmers and Renters of great Farms may not have or keep at one time above Two thouſand Sheep, (120. to be accounted to the Hundred) of all ſorts, beſides Lambs Sheep.

Lambs under a year old, under pain to forfeit Three ſhillings four pence for every Sheep, unleſs it be Sheep for the proviſion and expences of their houſes: Or where one is made Executor, or is married to a Wife, where the Teſtator hath left, or Wife had more then Two thouſand Sheep; and there they muſt diſpoſe of the overplus by the ſpace of a year: Or where Sheep are given to a Child by Will, and the Will is, they ſhall be kept for him, 25 H. 8. 13. See in the Statute an Order for the Fold-courſes in Norfolk and Suffolk.

7. He that doth keep above an hundred and twenty Sheep the moſt of the year upon his own ſeveral incloſed grounds, (and not upon Commons fit for Milch-Kine) ſhall, ſo long as he ſhall keep and feed them, for every ſixty Sheep keep and feed yearly one Milch-Cow, and for every Hundred and twenty Sheep ſhall raiſe yearly one Calf, under pain to loſe Twenty ſhillings for every moneth he ſhall not keep ſuch Cows, and for not raiſing every year a Calf, Stat. 2 & 3 Ph. & M. ch. 3.

8. And he that ſhall keep and feed upon his Paſtures above twenty Oxen, Runts, Shrubs, Heifers, or Kine, ſhall for every ten Beaſts keep and feed yearly one Milch-Cow, and for every twenty ſo kept ſhall raiſe yearly a Calf, under the pain aforeſaid. But the Sheep and Cattel men keep for proviſion of their houſes, are not to be reckoned amongſt the number.

9. The Statute of 2 & 3 Ph. & M. 3. ſhall alſo extend to Grounds, which ſince the ſaid Act have been or ſhall be made ſeveral, St. 7 Jac. 7.

CHAP. XLI.

Of Cauſes and Effects, Certainty and Incertainty.

Cauſes and Effects.

THE Law in moſt caſes hath much reſpect to the cauſe, original, and foundation of things; and in ſome caſes none at all. As if one whiles that he is a ſervant have an intent to kill his Maſter, and after depart out of his ſervice, and then kill him, this is Petty-treaſon by Relation. So if a man de non ſane memorie give himſelf a deadly wound, and after come to himſelf again, and die by that wound, he ſhall not be a Felo de ſe. So if a Covenant be to make a man a Leaſe for years, and the Covenantee die before the Leaſe be made, and then the Leaſe is made to his Executors, this ſhall be accounted Aſſets. Cauſa & origo eſt materia negotii. And for this cauſe it is, that an Outlawry in Felony, is a Forfeiture of a mans Land: And ſo it is not in Treſpaſs; for albeit the not appearing be the next cauſe of both, yet in the firſt cauſe they do differ, Co. 1. 99. Plow. 292. Co. 2. 91.

Felo de ſe.

Aſſets.

Tythe.

If Timber-trees that are not titheable become rotten and dry, non portans fructum nec folia in æſtate, nec exiſtens macie minus; yet their privilege doth remain, and they are Tythe-free ſtill. So if an Eſtate in tail become an Eſtate in tail after poſſibility of iſſue extinct, yet many of the Privileges annexed to the firſt Eſtate remain ſtill. And hence appeareth, that effects do ſometimes continue when their cauſes are gone. But for the moſt part theſe Rules hold, Sublata cauſa tollitur effectus, & ceſſante cauſa ceſſabit effectus: As when a Guardian in Soccage dieth, the Wardſhip of the Infant ſhall ceaſe, and not go to his Executor; So if one give Land or Goods with his Daughter or Kinſwoman in Marriage, and after they are divorced, now ſhe ſhall have all the Goods again that are not ſpent. So if one enter into Religion, and make his Executors, and after be arraigned, he ſhall have the Goods again that remain.

Gardeine.

Husband and Wife.

Office.

If the King grant an Office at will, and alſo Forty pounds Fee to him for his life, pro Officio illo: In this caſe if he put him out of the Office, the Fee ſhall ceaſe.

If a Rent be granted for a Way, ſtop the Way, and the Rent ſhall be ſtopped.

If

If an Annuity be granted pro conſilio, or pro ſervitio impendendo; if the Counſel or the Service be withdrawn, the Annuity is determined.

It is not a principal challenge to a Juror, that he hath married with the Mother of the party, if ſhe be dead without iſſue; for the cauſe of favor is removed. Challenge.

If one give a man a wound the firſt of May, and the King the ſecond of May pardon to him all Felonies and miſdemeanors, and the third day of May the party dyed of this ſtroke; by this Pardon the Felony is diſcharged. But yet, Sublata una cauſa, ſi alia remanet, non tollitur effectus. Pardon.

In caſe of Soccage-Tenure, whereas in times paſt the Tenants did uſe to ear the Demeans of the Lord with their Ploughs, the which ſervice was afterward changed into an Annual Rent by conſent of the Lord and Tenants; in this caſe notwithſtanding the Lord do alien his Demeſns, and have no Land to plow, yet the Tenants ſhall pay their Rents yearly to the Lord.

Where one doth hold by Rent for Caſtle-guard, although the Caſtle fall, yet the Rent doth remain. And albeit the Religious Houſes be diſſolved and ſuppreſſed, yet the money that is paid in lieu of Proxies by the Owners of thoſe Houſes remain, Co. 11.81.48,49. 1.98. Plo. 293. Dyer 13. Co. ſuper Lit. 204 208. 5 Ed. 4.8. Dyer 76. 9 Ed 4 20. 15 Ed. 4. 14. Dyer 2. Davis Rep. 1. 13 Ed. 4.10. 14 H. 7.2. & l. 101. Davis Rep. 3. Co. 4.88.

So if there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant alien in Mortmain, and then the Lord grant the ſeigniory to a ſtranger, and the Tenant attorn; in this caſe the Grantor ſhall not enter for the Mortmain (albeit it be within the year,) becauſe the Seigniory in reſpect of which the Entry is given, is out of him, Perk. ſ. 20. Waſte. Mortmain.

Of Certainty and Incertainty.

CErtainty is the plain, cleer, and diſtinct ſetting down of things, and is ſaid to be the mother of Repoſe; and is oppoſed to Incertainty, (i) when a thing is ſo ambiguouſly and doubtfully ſet down, as one cannot tell how to take or underſtand it; and this is ſaid to be the mother of Contention. And this Certainty is of three ſorts. Certainty and Incertainty.

1. To a common intent; and that is ſufficient in a Bar in pleading, which doth defend the party and excuſe him; and this is ſufficient in Deeds.

2. To a certain intent in general; and this is required in all Counts, Declarations, Replications, and Pleadings of the Plaintiff, and Indictments to convince the Defendant.

3. To a certain intent in every particular: And this the Law doth altogether reject; for Nimia ſubtilitas in jure reprobatur, & talis certitudo certitudinem confundit, Co. 5 121. Plow. 25.

The Queſtions of Certainty and Incertainty grow upon Records; as Writs, Counts, Pleas, Replications, Verdicts, Offices, Returns, Fines, Recoveries, and ſuch like: And Writings; as Feoffments, Gifts, Grants, Leaſes, Wills, and the like, and Tenures, Warranties, and other things. But in all theſe things this Rule is admitted; Id certum eſt, quod certum reddi poteſt. And therefore if one leaſe his Land in W. rendring Rent for every Acre twelve pence; this is a good Render enough, for this may be made certain. So if one hold his Land of his Lord, to ſheer all the Sheep depaſturing in the Lords Manor, this is a good Tenure, for here is a certainty in an uncertainty, Plow. 6. 7 Ed. 3.8. Co. ſuper Lit 96.

A convenient Certainty is required in Writs, Declarations and Pleadings, and eſpecially in Writs, more then is in Writings: For if a Writ be abated for Incertainty, the Plaintiff may have another Writ; but if his Deed be avoided for Incertainty, he cannot have a new Deed at his pleaſure, Co. 11 25. Co. 5. 121. Dyer 84. When, and what Certainties requiſite; and where Uncertainty will hurt or defeat.

If the King grant by Patent Cognizans de Pleas, and ſay not ubi, nor coram quo, this is it ſeems void for Incertainty, Br. Patent 100. In Record.

If

In a Verdict. If an Action of Debt be brought againſt Executors and they plead they have fully adminiſtred, &c. and the Jury find they have enough in their hands, and ſay not to what value; this Verdict is void and inſufficient for Incertainty, 40 Ed. 3. 15. Co. 9 74. b.

In Writings. Writings are ſometimes void for Incertainty in all, ſometimes in part only; and ſometimes not, but the Incertainty may be holpen and made certain by Averment or other means. And this Incertainty is ſometimes in perſons, and ſometimes in things; as in a Grant, in the perſon of the Grantor, or Grantee. In the thing granted, either in reſpect of the place where it is, the quantity or quality of the thing, or name whereby it is called; ſometimes in the eſtate, ſometimes in the time, ſometimes in the manner. As if I.S. by the name of I. (without any Sir-name) do grant, or give, or take by this name, this is void by Incertainty: So if the party be named by his Sir-name only, without any Chriſtian name. So if a Grant be, To the Church-wardens of S. without any more; or, to God, to Church, or Poor, or to three or four of a Pariſh, not naming them; or to one of the ſons of I. S. and he hath many ſons; or to him that ſhall be the firſt ſon of I.S. and he hath then no ſon; or to the Monks of ſuch an Abbey; or to I.S. or I.D. in the disjunctive: All Grants made after this faſhion are void for Incertainty, Perk. ſect. 39. &c. Plow. 6. Co. 8. 155. Perk. ſect 54, 55, 56. See Deed.

If I grant to one ſo much Wood in ſuch a place, as I can ſpare, or can be ſpared; or if I have a Wood of an hundred acres, and grant to one ten acres of it, and do not ſay where, or what part of the Wood: Or if I have a Manor, and grant the ten acres out of the Manor, but do not ſay where: Or if twenty Tenants hold of me by the Rent of twelve pence apeece, and I grant ten ſhillings to perceive out of theſe Tenements, or ten ſhillings parcel of the twenty ſhillings: Or if I grant a Corody or Eſtovers, and ſay not where, nor what in certain; or if I grant Land, and ſay not in what County nor Pariſh: In all theſe, and ſuch like caſes, the Grant will be void for Incertainty, Dyer 91 281. 9 H. 6. 12. 9 Ed. 4. 11. Finches Ley 13.

If I give a Horſe to I.D. being preſent, and ſay to him, I.S. take this, and his name is I.D. this is a good gift, notwithſtanding this miſtake and miſcalling. But ſo it had not been, if I had delivered it to a ſtranger to the uſe of I. S. when I meant I.D. So if I ſay to I.S. Here I give you the Ring with the Ruby, and deliver it with my hand, and the Ring bear a Diamond, and no Ruby; this is a good gift. And ſo had it been by word or writing, without the delivery of the thing it ſelf, if I give the Ring with the Ruby, and have none ſuch, but one with a Diamond. But I doubt this laſt Caſe.

If I grant to two men & haredibus, and do not ſay [to their heirs:] And if I be poſſeſſed of a Term of years, and grant all the reſidue of my Term which ſhall be to come at my death: In all theſe caſes it is void for Incertainty, Co. 1. 55. Kelw. 108. Plow. 520. Bro. 417.

3. When not, but may be holpen by Averment or Election. It is not neceſſary one ſhould ſet down the Certainty of a thing in pleading, when either it is not poſſible ſo to do, or it is a thing out of his knowledg, or unto which he is a ſtranger that doth plead it, or of which in common preſumption he can have no certainty, Plow 128. Co. 4. 89.

If a Fine be levied to I.S. the ſon of W.S. and he have two ſons of that name; this may be holpen by Averment, and is good enough.

In Writings. If the King by his Letters-Patents grant to another all the Manors and Advowſons that did belong to the Priory of H. or all the Manors and Advowſons that were I.S. which were attaint, &c. Theſe be good Grants, although it be not ſet down in what County it lie, 22 H. 6. 20. Co 9. 47.

If the Duke of Buckingham by that name be Grantor or Grantee in a Grant, this is good and certain enough, without any Chriſtian or Sirname, Perk ſect. 36.

If the name of the Father be I.S. and the name of the Son I.S. alſo, and one of them grant by the name of I.S. without any addition or diſtinction, this is good enough, Perk ſect 37.

If an Abbot had granted by the name of his Foundation, this had been good.

If a Grant be to the Biſhop of Worceſter, without any more, this is good enough, Perk ſect 45.

If

If one grant to the firſt ſon of J. S. without any more addition, and J. S. have two ſons, this is good enough, Perk. ſect. 54.

If an Eſtate be granted to J. S. the Remainder to him that ſhall come the next morning to Pauls: If J. S. the Grantee do live til then, and one do come there that is capable, this is a good Remainder, and certain enough. So if the Remainder hath been limited to him that J. S. ſhall name within three days, if he do name, this is made certain, Perk. ſect. 36.

If a Leaſe be made to a husband and Wife for One and twenty years, the Remainder to the Survivor of them for One and twenty years: Or a Gift in Tail be made to the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Survivor of them; this is good enough, Co. 1 c. 51.

If one grant his Manors of A. and B. and ſay not in what County or Pariſh; or leaſe all his Land in the Pariſh of A. and ſay not in what County; or leaſe or grant all his Land deſcended to him from his Father, with more; or grant another a Robe, or a Rent of Twenty ſhillings, or one of his Horſes in his Stable (having many there) or Twenty Loads of Aſh, or of Oak in ſuch a Wood; theſe Grants are good enoug, and may be made certain by Election. So if one grant to another ſo many Trees in his Wood as J. S. ſhall ſay may be ſpared, Co. 9. 47. Plow. 191. Co. 2. 37. Dyer 91.

If I make a Leaſe to another for ſo many years as J. S. ſhall name, this is good, after he hath named. So if I make a Leaſe to begin after the Surrender, Forfeiture or other determination of a former Leaſe, this is certain enough. So if I make a Feoffment to one of Two acres of Land, Habendum the one for life, the other in tail, this is good enough, Plow. 6. Co. 6. 36. 8. 56. Co. 2. 37.

If one bind himſelf in an Obligation to pay me all ſuch money as his Brother oweth me; this is certain enough, for that by Reference and Averment it may be made certain, Morgan verſ. Johnſon, B. R. P. 39 Eliz. See Deed.

CHAP. XLII.

Of the Chancery.

Sect. 1. Conſcience or Equity, what it is.

Conſcience or Equity (as our Law takes it) is ſaid to be Tacitum animi infallibileque facti noſtri judicium, à communi juſtitiæ formula quam Deus inſculpſit omnibus hominibus productum, per quod accuſatur res mala, & defenditur bona. And this being aided and aſſiſted by the Laws of God, Nature, Nations, Reaſon, and our Country, is the Rule by which they go and proceed in their Courts of Equity, to allay, qualifie, and temper the rigor, ſeverity and ſharpneſs of the Common-Law in ſome ſpecial caſes: Wherein, if it be ſtrictly obſerved, it will fall out to be ſummum jus, and conſequently ſumma injuria.

In theſe caſes there are Courts of Equity appointed; and amongſt theſe eſpecially the Chancery, which is the chief Court, Weſt. Symb. lib. 2. Doct. & Stu. in toto.

Sect. 2. Chancery, what it is.

The Chancery is defined to be, A Court of Equity or Conſcience, moderating the rigor of other Courts that are more ſtrictly bound to the Letter of the Law, 3 Ed. 4. 15. 19 Ed. 4. 2. In this Court the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper was, now the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal are chief Judges: And herein they,

and in their abſence, the Maſter of the Rolls, do make Orders and Decrees. And under theſe there are many other Officers belonging to this Court; as the twelve Maſters in ordinary, which are Aſſiſtants, the ſix Clerks, Examiners, Serjeant at Arms, and others: Theſe Commiſſioners keep the Great Seal, and ſeal all Writs and Patents, Plowden, fol. 213. Crompton, Juriſdiction of Courts.

Sect. 3. Of the power of this Court in the general.

This Court is ſaid to have a twofold power. Ordinary, as in caſes of Traverſe, Endowment of a woman, Scire fácias, to repeal Patents, and the like; and herein the Court is limited and confined to the Rules of the Common-Law, Cary's Rep. 50. 71. And Extraordinary and unlimited, which is in caſes of Equity, wherein relief is to be had by a Suit here in a way of Bill and Anſwer: And it is by the power of this Court, that Commiſſions of Charitable Uſes, Bankrupts, and Sewers are iſſued forth: Alſo here in ſome ſpecial caſes, a Superſedeas or Subpœna, or Privilege is granted to diſcharge a man out of Priſon: A Subpœna may be had to force Witneſſes to appear in other Courts, that have no power to call them in to teſtifie their knowledg; as in London, when the man lives within its Juriſdiction, Car. Rep. 37. 43, 44. So here ſometimes, and in ſome caſes, Commiſſions have been granted to examine Waſtes; To prove a Child legitimate; To ſet out meet ways for paſſages; To prove Cuſtoms; To examine Witneſſes in perpetuam rei memoriam, Tot. in toto. Car. Rep. in toto.

Caſes of Equity

By way of Bill and Anſwer it will give relief in many caſes againſt, beſides, and beyond the Rules of the Common-Law, in ſuch like caſes as theſe: As to enforce others to contribute to a Charge by the Common-Law put upon one alone, to the which others ought in Equity to contribute a part, Tot. 41. To relieve one againſt a man that hath falſified and broken his Truſt with him. To relieve one againſt a man that holds him to extremity, upon an Engagement: As when the Engagement is unreaſonable, diſhoneſt, impoſſible, diſcharged, voluntary, and without any conſideration; gotten by practice, fraud or force, or the like. To relieve one againſt the extremity of a Forfeiture, Tot. 26, 27. To enforce the performance of an Agreement, to which by Law a man cannot be compelled, Tot. 4 69. To have the Tuition of a Child that doth belong to him, Car. Rep. 96, 97. To force an Enrolment of a Deed, if need be, Car. Rep. 97. To recover a liberty of common Fiſhing, or the like; and upon every Interruption, and an Affidavit thereof, an Attachment may be had, Car. Rep. 104. To reſtrain other Courts that take upon them a greater Juriſdiction then they have, and to remove the Suit into this Court, which may be by a Certiorare, Car. Rep. 60. 56. 48. 65. 68. 73. 74. 82. 84. 85. 89 90. 92. 95. 96. 97 99. 102. 109. 137. To ſtay the proceedings of other Courts, when they are unjuſt, Car. Rep. 73. To enforce obedience to the Decrees of the Provincial Councils, Court of Requeſts, and ſome other Courts, when by contumacie they are diſobeyed. To reduce the general Cuſtoms of a Manor to a certainty between the Lord and Tenants, or the Tenants themſelves, Car. Rep. 21. To recover and ſettle Land or Money given to charitable or pious uſes, and miſ-imployed, Tot. 27, 28. To force a man to give his wife Alimony, (i.) Maintenance, Tot. 93, 94. To force Creditors to take a reaſonable Compoſition of their Debtor, he being diſabled, Tot. 47. To aſcertain and ſtint Common, Tot. 36, 37. To aſcertain and ſet out a way, Tot. 23. To aſcertain, to diſtinguiſh a mans Land when it is compounded and confounded with another mans, Car. Rep. 16. eſpecially when it is to pay Debts, or the like, 14 Jac. So when Free-land or Copihold-land are confounded, it will diſtinguiſh; or if it be loſt, give a recompence for it, Pickerings Caſe, 5 Car. To aſcertain the Fines of Copiholders, Tot. 49. To force an Action to be tryed in any County, Tot. 1. To force Executors or others that have money in their hands, there to lie long to give ſecurity or intereſt for it, Tot. 6. To examine the Probate of a Will, eſpecially if the Will concern Land, Tot. 139. To recover a Legacie, or force the performance of a Will, Tot. 24. To recover Tythes in Kind, or money for it in ſome caſes, Tot. 68. 184 185. To recover ones Land, Debt or Duty, although he have loſt Conveyance or Writing, by which he ſhould make his Title to it, or otherwiſe be without remedy at Law for it, Tot. 81. 6. To force a man that hath taken money for Land, aſſured by defective Conveyance, to make theſame perfect and good, Tot. 14. 3. 42.

To

To force a Tenant to attorn to perfect an Aſſurance. To force a man to prove payment of money, agreed and acknowledged to be given upon a Sale of Land, Tot. 15. Dyer 59. And in theſe and ſuch like caſes this Court doth always, or for the moſt part give relief.

Alſo in ſome other ſpecial caſes this Court doth exerciſe a power: As to prevent a Diſinheritance of an Heir, or reſtore it, *Tot.*42.81. Avoid an Extinguiſhment or Suſpenſion of Rent or Common, Cromp. Jur. 49, 50. *Tot.*42.188.137. Prevent an Occupancie, Hunts Caſe, 17 *Jac Tot.*187. Avoid the Bar of an Action, by the Statute of 21 Jac. of Limitation, *Tot.*53.179. Order an Executor to pay a Debt out of courſe, *Tot.*53. Make Incloſures of Land and Grounds that are common: Give relief againſt the turning of a Water-courſe from a Mill, ſo as there be any ſpecial circumſtance in the caſe, otherwiſe it is very ſhie and tender of making Orders in them. But if the ſubſtance of the Suit by Bill and Anſwer, be to overthrow an Act of Parliament made for publique peace and repoſe; or to overthrow a fundamental point of the Common-Law; or to overthrow and take from other Courts their peculiar Juriſdiction, or the like: In ſuch caſes regularly this Court doth not give relief, *Tot.*47. *Cromp. Jur.*45. So likewiſe if it be ſuch a caſe as wherein the Plaintiff hath his remedy at Common-Law for the very ſame thing, he ſhall not be relieved here. But if one promiſe to aſſure me Land for twenty pounds, I may either ſue at Law for damages, or here for the Land it ſelf So for a Nuſance, where the Law gives me damages, I may ſue here to have the Nuſance removed, or the thing it ſelf reſtored, 21 *H.*7.41. Cary's Caſe,20.53.11. And yet there may be ſome ſpecial circumſtances in the caſe which may make the Court retain it, Cary's Rep. 71. If the Suit be grounded on a Will Nuncupative, Leaſe-parol, or long Leaſe, to avoid Wardſhip, or to eſtabliſh Perpetuities, or to defeat Purchaſers, or for Brokage or Rewards to make Marriages, or for Bargain at Play or Wagers, for Eargains for Offices againſt the Statute of 2 *Ed.*6. or upon Contracts for Uſury or Simony; or if it be for Land not worth Forty ſhillings a year,or for any thing elſe under the value of Ten pounds; theſe are regularly diſallowed here: And ſometimes upon notice taken hereof by the Court, upon Motion or upon Affidavit only, before the Cauſe comes to hearing, it is diſmiſſed: But if not, when it comes to hearing it is diſmiſſed, Cary's Rep. 7, 8. 27. 24. 76. Yet circumſtances may make theſe retainable; as if the Suit for ſo ſmall a matter be for the Poor of a Pariſh, or the like, *Cary's Rep.*103.

Statute of Limitation

Nuſance

poor

And in theſe caſes the matter being heard upon the Bill and Anſwer, and the proofs of Witneſſes, the Judges are (without any regard to form or miſpleading, ſo as the truth viis & modis may be diſcovered) to ſentence it according to Equity and Conſcience. But we ſhall deſcend to particular illuſtrations hereof.

All perſons able in Law to ſue or be ſued, may ſue, or be ſued here: And for this ſee Chap. 3.

Sect. 4. By and againſt what perſons, and in what Caſes relief may be had in Equity, or not. 1. In reſpect of the perſons for or againſt whom it is to be had. Infant.

Relief may be, and is often given againſt,or for an Infant in this Court. As touching which matter theſe things are to be known Firſt, as to Suits againſt an Infant,

1. An Infant was compelled to anſwer to a Bill in this Court, Hares Caſe *H.*3 Jac. and Mores Caſe, 11 Car. Tot. 108,109,95,97. And being but twelve years old, was bound by a Decree here, 37 Eliz. Wadhams Caſe; and upon a Review decreed again, Cromwels Caſe, M. 7 *Car. Tot.*70. And was committed to the Fleet for diſobeying a Decree, 12 *Eliz. Tot.*108.139.

2. The Court may alſo, if it pleaſeth, appoint an Infant defendant a Guardian to defend his Suit, *Cary's Rep.*38.

3. A Copihold was ſurrendred to the uſe of an Infant, to the Infant, to pay an Annuity to another at his full age, which he refuſed: It was decreed he ſhould pay it and the arrears thereof, Sawyers Caſe, 9 *Eliz. Tot.*107.

4. Young purchaſed Lands in the name of Maſon, in truſt for himſelf and his heirs, and dies, not declaring any determination of this Truſt, procures Maſon to convey it to him, being of Kin; he conveys it to Infants; C. ſues here as next heir, and the Court agrees, that if the benefit of the Truſt did belong to C. that it ſhall be decreed to him during the Minority, and then that the Infants ſhall convey it, *Cary's Rep.*30.

Tailed Land. 5. A mother conveyed her Leaſe to her ſon in truſt, and after the ſon conveyed it to his children Infants; and it was decreed againſt the father and children, becauſe done without any conſideration, Tothill 98.

6. The Lord Morley, between the date and ſealing of the Conveyance of Land ſold, paſſed it to an Infant; and it was decreed againſt the Infant and him both, 36 Eliz. Lady Ruſſels Caſe, Cary 30. 81.

7. The Father being Tenant in Tail, ſels his intailed Land, and leaves as much Free land to deſcend to an Infant; the Court ordered, when he comes of age, to pay the money given for the Land, according to his Fathers Will, or elſe that the Purchaſor ſhall have the Free-land, Tothill 184.

8. It ſeems he may be here compelled to give a Diſcharge of money due to, and received by him, Rayners Caſe, 13 Car. Tothill 109.

9. One made an Infant Executor, to prevent the payment of his Debts; and he was ordered by the Court to pay them notwithſtanding, M. 9 Jac. Tothill 108.

Agreement. 10. An Infant in ſome ſpecial caſes may here be concluded by his Agreement: But regularly, if an Infant be twenty years of age, and make a Contract never ſo much to his advantage, the Court will not conclude him; nor will the Court decree againſt him by his conſent, or the conſent of his Parents, but in ſome ſpecial caſes upon the merit of the Cauſe, M. 8 Car. in Chancery, Tothill 109. 95. As a father was about to convey ſome of his Land to his younger ſon, and his eldeſt ſon promiſed to give the younger ſon an hundred pounds to forbear it; in this caſe the eldeſt ſon being an Infant, was ordered to ſtand to it. See Stiles Caſe, 2 Car. Tothill 95.

11. A Surrender was made of a Copihold by an Infant, to the uſe of J. S. for money paid, and no help could be had here, Hughs Caſe: Tothill 180.

12. If I take Bonds for my money in my childrens name that are Infants, I may releaſe the Debts, and this Court will allow it, and forbid any Suit upon them, Simonds Caſe: Tothill 26.

For an Infant. Secondly, As to Suits by or for an Infant. 1. He ſhall have the ſame Relief upon a Breach of Truſt, Fraud, or the like, in this Court, as another man may have, notwithſtanding his Minority, Tothill 108. 2. He may ſue by himſelf, or by his Prochein-Amy or Guardian, as the Court will give leave and order, Woods Caſe, Hil. 2. Car. Tothill 9.

Husband and Wife, Woman-covert. Relief may be, and is often given here againſt, or for a woman that hath a husband; as touching which theſe things are to be known. Firſt, as to Suits againſt her,

Sect. 5. Againſt her. Anſwer. Decree, Commitment. 1. She ſhall be compelled to anſwer with, or without her husband. Batſons Caſe, 14 Car. Mores Caſe, 11 Car. and M. 5 Car. Palmers Caſe, Caryes Rep. 100. 101. Tothill 95, 96. eſpecially if he be out of the Land, Tothill 97. 140. And ſhe will be bound by the Decree of this Court, Weſt deans Caſe, Tothill 93. and may be committed till ſhe do obey it, Stywards Caſe, Tothill 92. Weſt-deans Caſe, Tothill 93.

2. The husband ſold Lands and Debts which were due to the wife before coverture, and took Wares for it; he dyed, ſhe ſurvived, and he releaſed the Debts; it was ordered againſt her, Tothill 91.

3. The husband and wife were ordered to levy a Fine, and perfect Aſſurances, Tothill 93. 6. The husband was ordered to give ſecurity, that the wife ſhould releaſe her right to Land, Tothill 92.

Agreement. 4. An Agreement in ſome caſes will here be ordered to conclude her, Stiles Caſe, Hil. 2 Car. Tothill 97. 95. where the merit of the cauſe requireth it. As if a man have two Tenements of his wives Land, and they agree with the Tenant, That if he will ſurrender one, he ſhall have three lives in the other; and he doth ſo, and the husband die; the wife was ordered to make it good, Irelands Caſe, 37 Eliz. Tothill 91. But regularly it is otherwiſe: And therefore where ſhe hath Land with other Co-heirs, and ſhe with the conſent of her husband agree to take One thouſand pounds to releaſe her right; the Judges did certifie, ſhe was not to be concluded, Trin. 7 Jac. Dockwrays Caſe, Tothill 98. Yet, 10 Jac. Randals Caſe was, That a ſingle woman did agree, and after her marriage ſubſcribed her name with her husband to a latter Agreement, and was concluded by this latter by the Courts Order, Tothill 96. But in Slaters Caſe, 37 Eliz. Tothill 92. ſhe and her husband did article to forgo her

Jointure

Jointure for other recompence; and a Decree was made thereupon (but without her consent) in her husbands life-time; and after his death the Court would not bind her to this Agreement, Tothill 92.

Truſt barred. Fine.

5. A Leaſe of Land was made to friends to her uſe, to begin after her husbands, and they two levy a Fine of the Lands; this will bar them in Equity, Trin. 15 Car. Liſters Caſe, Tothill 84.9: A. made over his Leaſe for years to the uſe of C. his wife; after he and his wife ſold the Land, and levied a Fine of it to D. The Court ordered, that the Purchaſor ſhould enjoy the Land againſt the wife after her husbands death, 2 Car. One was ſeiſed of Land to the uſe of a Feme-ſole, who after took a husband, and the husband ſold the Land; the wife had the money, and ſhe and her husband deſired the Feoffee in truſt to convey it, and he doth ſo: Yet it ſeems this Court will not bar her of the Land after her husbands death. The Court ordered the husband and wife to levy a Fine of mortgaged Lands ſetled in her, Lord Griffins Caſe, 4 Car. To bring in Evidences, Kings-College Caſe, 4 Eliz. Forbid her to make Waſte, Tothill 92. 10. One did convey Land to the husband in truſt, and he took the profit, and left it with his wife, and ſhe marry again: They two were ſued here, and yet neither as Executor nor Adminiſtrator to a firſt husband, Arklands Caſe. Tothill 106.

For a woman.

As to Suits by and for her,

Alimony.

1. In ſome caſes ſhe may ſue her husband, as for Alimony and Maintenance, where they be parted: But ordinarily in other caſes ſhe may not ſue her husband, nor her husband ſue her, Simpſons Caſe, Tot. 94. 97.

2. She hath been allowed to ſue without her husband, and without his privity, eſpecially he being beyond the Sea, Tot. 95. 94. 97. The woman and her husband agreeing to part upon difference, and he giving her a ſum of money for her livelihood, which was put into a friends hand for her; ſhe was allowed to ſue alone for this without her husband, Cary's Rep. 87.

Deviſe by her husband.

3. She was admitted to ſue here for a Duty releaſed by her husband gone beyond Sea, Farewels Caſe, 32 Eliz. and Bakers Caſe, 5 Car. Tot. 95. As for her Jewels, 13. Earl of Derby's Caſe, Tot. 96. And yet ſhe having goods ſhe pretended to be her Paraphonalia, the husband deviſed them, and it was here allowed to be good, and ſhe remedileſs, Davenports Caſe, 5 Car. Tot. 79.

Paraphonalia

4. If a woman had goods at the marriage, and the husband doth uſe and diſpoſe them all his life-time, and then giveth them away, or make an Executor; this Court it ſeems will give her no relief, albeit he leave never ſo great an eſtate beſides; unleſs they be goods ſet apart and preſerved for her livelyhood, by ſome agreement, or the like. Tothil. 55.

Deviſe by her

5. A woman divorced from her husband Cauſa frigiditatis, ſued here for her portion her father being alive, and recovered it, Barrows caſe Tot. 81.

Wife deviſe by will

6. The wife being parted from the husband, and having an eſtate to her ſelf, was allowed by the Court to deviſe it by her will, M. 15. Car. Tot 97. Georges caſe.

Truſt how ordered between husband and wife.

7. If a feme ſole, being poſſeſſed of a term, granted it over, or a term be granted by another to her own uſe, and then ſhe taketh a husband, and dyeth; in this caſe the Court ruled it to go to the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the wife, and not to the ſurviving husband. Paſch. 32 Eliz. Withnams caſe in Chancery, Coo. upon Litt. 351. Where the caſe was, A being poſſeſſed of a term, granted upon a marriage to be had between him and K S, to J. S her brother, to her uſe; and after marriage A dyeth; and ſhe marrieth again, and then ſhe dyed; J. S the brother took out Adminiſtration of her goods, and got the Leaſe, and the ſecond husband ſued him in this Court for the Leaſe, but the Court would not relieve him, Withnam verſ. Waterhouſe.

8. A. being poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years, granted it to B. and C. to the uſe of A. and his wife; and after A. granted away all his Intereſt to a ſtranger, and the Court would not order it againſt the wife, Dyer 369. Cromp. Jur. 65.

9. A. conveyed her Leaſe for years to Leſſees in truſt, to the uſe of her daughters and children lineally: A. had a daughter by one husband, who had iſſue, and it dyed, and the husband alſo; then ſhe marries again; then the Leſſees in truſt convey the Leaſe to the mother and her ſecond husband, and diſcharges the truſt; ſhe gives it to her her husband, and the heir ſued for it: It was ordered, that the husband, and not the heir ſhould have it, Baskerviles Caſe, Tot. 95.

10. A widow being about to marry, to prevent her husbands diſpoſal of the Land, conveys it to friends in truſt, who with the husband do ſell it for valuable conſideration, and ſhe ſued here: Decreed that the Purchaſor ſhould reconvey it to her, but ſhould firſt deduct all his diſburſments, Fitzjames Caſe, Tot. 43.

A Feme-ſole. A ſingle woman, widow or maid, may ſue and be ſued here as another body; wherein take theſe Caſes.

Dower. 1. A widow of a Tenant in capite ſued here for her Dower, and had a Commiſſion to ſet it out, Wilds Caſe, 25 Eliz. Tot. 82.

2. But no woman ſhall recover Dower of a Truſt here, M. 2 Car. Kemps Caſe, Tot. 99.

3. When ſhe cannot tell who is Tenant to the Land, ſhe may ſue, albeit her Writ of Dower lieth at Law to diſcover the Tenant, to know againſt whom to bring her Action, Tot. 99.

4. A. convey Land to B. and his heirs, to the uſe of him and his heirs in truſt, for C. and his heirs, (B. having then a wife) B. die, and his wife ſued for Dower of the Land: C. ſued againſt her for relief here, but it was denied; yet the wife of C. ſhould not have had Dower in this caſe, for a woman ſhall have no Dower of a Truſt. Herns Caſe, Tot. 99. So A. delivers B. Five hundred pounds to put to uſe for him, and B. doth buy Land with it, and makes A. believe it is for him and in his name, but it was in his own name: A. it ſeems ſatisfied herewith, B. dieth, and his wife ſueth to be endowed of the Land; and the Court could give A. no relief againſt this Suit, Trin. 6 Car. In the Court of Requeſts, if a woman-Executrix ſubject to a Devaſtavit, marry a husband, if he have not to ſatisfie, he ſhall be impriſoned by order here, Cary's Rep. 24. A Copiholder, it ſeems, may not be ſued for the Land without the Lord, Cary's Rep. 57.

Heir. An heir alſo here in ſome caſes ſhall ſue and be ſued further then the Law bindeth him; as in theſe caſes.

1. An heir of an Eſtate in Tail having Lands in Fee deſcended from the Anceſtor, in lieu thereof is bound by Decree to repay the Purchaſe-money, or let the Purchaſor have the Free-land, Pierces Caſe, 8 Jac. Tot. 184. The mother and ſon bought tailed Land of Hearl, Anceſtor to the Plaintiff; ſome of the money due on a Bond which is loſt: The Court thought fit to charge the mother and the ſon, becauſe of the Land in their poſſeſſion, Hil. 1 Jac. Cary's Rep. 25.

2. A dumb man was ordered to anſwer here, 14 Car. Tot. 40. And yet 22 Eliz. a man both ſenſleſs and dumb, was ordered not to anſwer, Tot. 92. It is then to be ordered according to his capacity.

3. The father ſold his intailed Land, and ſuffered a Recovery, but had little for them; it ſeems the Heir may compel the Purchaſor here to give the worth, Tot. 182.

Agreement: 4. The father articuled for Land, the ſon no party, but conſented to it, and it was agreed againſt him, Pools Caſe, Trin. 4 Jac. Tot. 69.

5. A Deed not enrolled was decreed againſt the Heir of the Land, Tot. 55.

6. The father conceiving his Land to be Freehold, gave part of it to a younger ſon, and it fell out there was an old ſleeping Deed of Intail; and yet it was ordered the younger ſon ſhould have it, Pountneys Caſe, Tot. 54.

Executors. Executors may charge or be charged in Equity further than the Law doth charge: wherein firſt as to Suits or Acts by them, take theſe things.

For them. 1. Here they may ſue one another, Tot. 8.

2. One of them may ſue an Executor of an Executor, if he have gotten the Eſtate into his hands, Brereton's Caſe, 6 Jac. Tot. 87.

3. Two Executors be, one doth diſagree; the act of the other ſhall bind in Equity, as it doth in Law, Bacons Caſe, Tot. 87.

Againſt them. Secondly, as to Suits againſt them, take theſe things.

1. One Executor alone without the reſt may be ſued here; but he ſhall be charged for no more then he hath, Harbuge Caſe, 35 Eliz. Tot. 86.

2. An

6. He may here be ordered to pay a Debt by Word, before a Debt due by Specialty, Tot. 53.

One Jointenant, or Tenant in common, may here have relief againſt another. See infra. Tenants in Common.

The father may have relief againſt his own ſon, in caſe of breach of Truſt for a Leaſe, Paſch. 1597. Domers Caſe. The Caſes wherein relief is to be had in this Court, follow. Jointenants.

A Uſe or Truſt was, and ſtill is, either of Land, or of Goods; and both theſe are either expreſs or implied. Sect. 6. Upon a Truſt or Confidence: Of Lands.

A Uſe or Ttuſt of Land, was a Truſt repoſed in another, that he ſhould ſuffer him that did truſt, to take the profit of it, and he that was truſted was to diſpoſe the Land according to the direction of him that truſted him. As when a Feoffment was made to J.S. and his heirs, to the uſe of W.S. and his heirs; heretofore I.S. had the eſtate and property of the Land, but W.S. had, or was to have the profits in honeſty and equity. So if one had agreed with W.S. for a piece of Land for twenty pounds paid, and had no aſſurance; yet the equity of the Land was in the Contractor.

The uſe of Goods is, when one man hath them in truſt for another. The uſe of Goods or Lands expreſſed is, when the Truſt or Uſe is expreſſed between the parties, upon the making of the Eſtate implied, when it is not declared upon the Agreement, but left to the conſtruction of Law: As if I bargain and ſell my Land, levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, or ſuffer a Recovery of my Land without money, and no Uſe expreſſed, this in Law is to my own uſe; but if it be for money, it ſhall be to the uſe of the Bargainee, Conuſee, Recoverer or Feoffee: And if it be without conſideration, that I conveyed my Land by Feoffment to J.S. to have and to hold to him and his heirs, to the uſe of his heirs; in this caſe J.S. and his heirs hath the Uſe in Law, Co. 1.121: ſuper Lit. 271, 272. D. & St. 95. Co. 2.58.9.11. Dyer 18.146.

A Uſe at the Common-Law, before the Statute was made, was, and where that Statute doth not take place, is nothing but a meer Confidence and Truſt collateral to, and diſtinct from the Land annexed in privity of Eſtate, and to the Perſon touching the Land to this purpoſe, that Ceſtuy que uſe ſhould take the profit of the Land, and the Feoffee or Ter-tenant that was truſted ſhould make Eſtates and otherwiſe diſpoſe of the Land, as the Ceſtuy que uſe in his life or at his death by his laſt Will and Teſtament ſhould direct and appoint: And if he made no diſpoſition, then that it ſhould go to the Heir. So that the Feoffee had the Freehold, or the ſole property of the thing in him, and Ceſtuy que uſe had neither jus in re, nor jus ad rem; (for if he, againſt the will of the Feoffee, had entred into the Land, he had been a Treſpaſſer) but a bare confidence or truſt, for which the Ceſtuy que uſe had no remedy but in Chancery upon breach of the truſt, and there to have the Feoffee impriſoned until he perform the truſt according to the Order of the Court. And theſe Uſes to ſome purpoſes were reputed in Law as Chattels, and therefore were deviſable by Will; and to ſome purpoſe, as Hereditaments, and a kind of Inheritance, of which there was a poſſeſſio fratris, &c. And to ſome purpoſes neither Chattels nor Hereditaments, for they were not eſteemed Aſſets in the Heir or Executor. The nature of it.

And to every of theſe Uſes there were two inſeparable incidents: Confidence in the Perſon, and Privity in the Eſtate, expreſſed by the parties, or implied by the Law. And when either of theſe failed, the Uſe was either gone for ever, or ſuſpended for a time at the leaſt. And therefore if the Feoffee to Uſe upon good conſideration had enfeoffed another of the Land that had notice of the Uſe, the Uſe had been gone for ever; becauſe howſoever here was a Privity of Eſtate, yet here was no Confidence in the Perſon. But if the Feoffment had been without Conſideration to ſuch a one; Incidents of it.

in this caſe the Uſe had remained ſtill, becauſe the Law did imply a notice. So alſo it ſeems the Law was, when it was made in conſideration of Marriage only. And if a Diſſeiſor, Abator, or Intrudor had come to the poſſeſſion of the Land whereof the Uſe was, albeit he had notice of the Uſe, yet the Uſe was ſuſpended during their poſſeſſion, and they ſhould not have been ſeiſed to Uſe as the Feoffee was; for they come not to the Land in the per, but in the poſt. And if a Lord by Eſcheat, Lord of a Vilain, or one that had entred for Mortmain, or that had recovered in a Ceſſavit, &c. had come to ſuch Land, and had notice of the Uſe, the Uſe had been gone for ever; for theſe came to the Land in the poſt, and above the Uſe: And the Tenant in Dower and by the Courteſie ſhould not be ſeiſed to Uſes in being; for all theſe wanted Privity of Eſtate. And if there had been Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee to the uſe of another, and the Tenant for life had made a Feoffment in Fee to one that had notice of the Uſes, this ſecond Feoffee ſhould not have ſtood ſeiſed to the firſt Uſes. So if the Husband had made a Feoffment in Fee of the Land of his Wife upon Conſideration, and without any Uſe expreſſed; the Wife ſhould not have had a Subpœna, becauſe the Feoffee was not in Privity of Eſtate of the Wife. And if Ceſtuy que uſe for life or in tail, the Remainder in Tail, with divers Remainders over in Uſe, had made a Feoffment to one that had Notice, he ſhould not have been ſeiſed to the firſt Uſes, cauſa quæ ſupra.

But to open this a little further, we are to know, that by the ſtatute of 27 H. 8. 10. the Uſe or Truſt, and the Poſſeſſion of Lands for the moſt part, are now at this day united: And in all ſuch caſes where they are united, and the Uſe executed by that Statute, the Chancery doth not meddle, but ſend men to Law. And ſuch is this, where one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, doth convey it to the uſe of one and his heirs, or heirs of his body, or for life, or to the uſe of one of his Executors and Adminiſtrators for years.

But there are ſome Uſes and Truſts ſtill that are not executed by the Statute; and theſe remain as they were before, and are in the conuſance and order of the Chancery: As where Lands are conveyed without Conſideration in Fee-ſimple, after this manner; That the Feoffee and his Heirs ſhall take the profits, and deliver them to the Feoffor and his Heirs; or that the Feoffee ſhall account and give the profits to the Feoffor; or that the Feoffee ſhall convey the Land to the Feoffor or to his Heir at his age of twenty one years: Or where it is conveyed to J. S. and his Heirs, on confidence that J. S. ſhall alien it to whom the Feoffor, or to whom W. S. ſhall appoint, or the like: Or where the Lands be conveyed to certain Uſes expreſſed, and there to other ſecret Uſes agreed upon between the parties: So where Land is conveyed without Conſideration to one and his Heirs, without expreſſing any Uſe or Intent; this is to the uſe of the Feoffor; who may diſpoſe of it as he pleaſeth. But if it be to any intent certain, as to take back an Eſtate with Remainders to others, &c. here he cannot change it.

Where Leaſes for years in being before, are granted over in uſe or in truſt: As a Leſſee for years of Land grants it over to A. and B. and their Aſſigns, to the uſe of the Grantor and his Wife, for the term of their two lives; Or if one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and he bargain or ſell it, or make a Leaſe of it to another in truſt, and for the benefit of a third perſon: Theſe and ſuch like Uſes and Truſts are not within, nor executed by the Statute, but they remain as they were before the Statute. For, all the State is in the party truſted; and the Grantor, or he to whoſe uſe the Grant is, hath nothing but a Uſe, for which he hath his remedy only in Chancery, where all theſe matters are determinable. For it is a rule, That as the Queſtions of Uſes and Truſts that are within the Statute, are to be decided and ruled by the Judges of the Common-Law; ſo all other Queſtions of Uſes and Truſts that are out of the Statute, are to be ruled and decided by the Judges of the Chancery, Co. 1. 134. Dyer 369, 356. Cromp. Jur. 65. 58, 59. And the Judges in Chancery, in ruling theſe Uſes, do proceed much after the Rules they went by in the regulating of Uſes at the Common-Law, before the Statute. It is needful then we give you a taſte of theſe.

For this then, we are to know, that before the Statute theſe were the Laws of Uſes.

1. The

1. The Feoffor was to take the profits of the Land; and he might have diſpoſed it in his life time, or at his death to whomſoever he pleaſed; and his friends in truſt were to ſettle it accordingly, or be enforced to it by Subpœna in this Court: And if he did not diſpoſe it, the uſe was to go to his Heirs; and if he had died without Heir or diſpoſition, it ſeems the Feoffees ſhould have had the Land.

2. If the firſt Feoffee had conveyed it to a ſecond Feoffee to the ſame uſe, or to a ſecond Feoffee that had notice of the uſes; in theſe caſes the ſecond Feoffee had it to the ſame uſes. But if the Feoffee had ſold it bona fide, or conveyed the Land to one that had no notice of the uſes; in theſe caſes the uſe had been gone, and he to whoſe uſe it was, remedileſs for the Land.

3. A Bruit of a truſt, or ones ſaying there was a truſt to another, I being about to buy the Land, becauſe he would not have me buy it, it ſeems is not ſufficient: But a Suit about it, and proof of it in Chancery, is ſufficient notice to him that ſhall buy it.

4. If the ceſtuy que uſe had appointed the Land to be ſold by his Feoffees, to pay his Debts, the Creditors might have compelled the Feoffee to ſell it; If he in his life time, or by Will at his death, had appointed them to convey it to J. S; J. S. might have compelled them to it, and ſo their Heirs.

5. The Feoffees (if any occaſion had been) were to bring or defend any Action for the Land, and to plead ſuch Pleas as the Feoffors ſh ould appoint, or be inforced in Chancery to it.

6. If the Feoffee die, and the Land deſcend to his heir, the party to whoſe uſe, as it ſeems, had no remedy againſt him.

7. If the Feoffee or Donee to uſe, ſell to one that knows of the uſe, the Subpœna ſhall go againſt them both, otherwiſe againſt the party truſted onely, who muſt make a recompence for the breach of truſt, if the Land be gone. And ſo where the party truſted had releaſed to a Treſpaſſor that knew of the truſt; or a Statute or Bond was made to A. to the uſe of B. and A. releaſe to the Obligor privy to the truſt; the Subpœna ſhall be againſt them both, albeit ſome hold the contrary.

8. The Feoffor could not have diſpoſed it, or medled with the profits in Law, without the Feoffees leave.

9. If ceſtuy que uſe had been attainted of Felony, the Lord could not have remedy by Subpœna for his Eſcheat.

10 If the ceſtuy que uſe had made no diſpoſal, or had been barred by the corruption of Blood, it ſeems the Feoffee might have rerained the Land for ever to his own uſe.

11. The Feoffees of the Feoffor, deſired it were to do any Act with the Land for the good of the Feoffor, and if he require him to make any Eſtate to another, he muſt have done it: And if the Feoffor had appointed them to convey to A. for life, the Remainder to B; if A. had refuſed, he muſt have conveyed to B. the Remainder, for B. might have compelled him thereunto in Chancery: But ſuch Requeſts were to be made in writing, and could not be made by a Meſſage, or upon deſire by word onely.

12. If one had had four Feoffees of his Land in truſt, and had ſold it to J. S. and told two of them, that his Will was that all four of them ſhould convey it to J. S. and they two notified his Will to the other two; the firſt two did Enfeoff J. S. the other two refuſed, as they might, without ſomewhat under his hand to prove his Will: The Feoffor after ſold the Land to another, and required the other two Feoffees to Enfeoff it; it was ſaid this ſecond ſale was the beſt. The Feoffees in truſt might have given allowance to neceſſary Officers, as Stewards, Bailiffs, and Receivers, and had allowance thereof upon their Account, but could not grant Annuities to their Council, &c.

13. The Equity and uſe of the Land, being to go according to Conſcience, the Subpœna for Relief herein in this Court is given accordingly.

Theſe were the general Rules by which Uſes at Common-Law were guided, and much after this are uſes not executed by the Statute, and Truſts of Lands and Goods ordered and guided at this day, as may partly appear in the caſes following.

1. Of Inheritance and Freehold.
2. Of Chattels.
3. Of Goods.

2. In reſpect of the Caſe. Caſes of Uſes and Truſts out of the Statute of Uſes, and otherwiſe under the Survey and Order of this Court onely.

Of Inheritance and Freeholds.

If I without conſideration Enfeoff one, and his Heirs of Land, to the intent that he ſhall take the profits thereof and deliver to me and my Heirs: Or to the intent he ſhall account to me and my Heirs for the profit thereof; or to the intent he ſhall re-convey it to me and my Heirs; or to my Heir at Twenty one years old; or to the intent that he ſhall alienate it to J. S. and his Heirs, or to whom I ſhall appoint; or I convey it to certain uſes expreſſed: But there are other ſecret uſes agreed upon between us. In all theſe and ſuch like caſes, which are out of the Statute of Uſes, this Court, if any complaint be, will order the parties truſted to perform the truſt.

Sect. 7. Of Eſtates of Freehold.

But for the opening hereof further, take theſe caſes

Firſt, If I without any conſideration bargain and ſell my Land by Indenture to one and his Heirs, to the uſe of another and his Heirs (which is a uſe upon a uſe) it ſeems this Court will order this. But if it were in conſideration of money by him paid; here it ſeems the expreſs uſe is void, both in Law and Equity. And if a Woman in conſideration of Four hundred pounds paid her by her ſon bargain and ſell her Land by Indenture to him and his Heirs, to the uſe of her ſelf for life, and after of the Heirs of her ſon; in which caſe by Law, the Fee-ſimple is to the ſon preſently, and the uſe for life to the Mother void; nor is there (as it ſeems) any relief for her in this Court in a way of Equity, becauſe of the conſideration paid: But if there were no conſideration given, Contra, Dyer 169. 55. Cromp. Jur. 55. 155. Tothil 188. 99. And yet if I Enfeoff A. in Fee of my Land, without any conſideration to the uſe of A. and his Heirs, upon truſt that he ſhall alien it to whom I ſhall appoint, and I do make no appointment: In this caſe A. ſhall hold it to him and his Heirs for ever, diſcharged of truſt, Cromp. Jur. 58, 59. And if I Enfeoff B. and his Heirs to the uſe of B. and his Heirs, in truſt for C. and his Heirs; it ſeems C. may be relieved here.

Secondly, If I deliver one money to buy Land for me, and he buy it for himſelf; I ſhall here recover the Land bought, or the money I delivered to him, Cromp. Jur. 48. So if I deliver one money to put out for me, and he buy Land with it in his own name, and tells me it is for me, and in my name, and I agree to it; the Court will order me the Land. If I give one money to purchaſe Land therewith to him and his Heirs, and to ſuffer one to take the profits thereof during my life, and he keepeth the profits from me; I ſhall be relieved here.

Thirdly, If I purchaſe Land with my money, and buy it in mine own, and a friends name, to prevent my Wife of Dower out of it, and my friend being requeſted, refuſeth to releaſe his right in the Land to me; I may compel him to it in this Court, Cromp. Jur. 54, 55. Caſtlings caſe. Fitz. Account 23. Youngs caſe.

The Defendant confeſſed the truſt was ordered upon notice to convey it accordingly at the Plaintiffs charge, Caries Rep. 67.

Sale to pay a mans debts.

Fourthly, A voluntary conveyance was made to friends in truſt, to the uſe of the mans own children, with a Remainder over; the Feoffor being indebted much money, the Court enabled him to ſell part of it to pay his Debts, Grants caſe, Tothil 42.

Jointenancy.

Fifthly, If Land be conveyed to A. and his Heirs, in truſt for B. and C. and their Heirs, and B. by his will deviſeth his part of it; in this caſe the Court would not decree this Deviſe; but held that the truſt was to go joyntly as the Intereſt in Law doth, 6 Car. in Chancery.

So a man grants an Eſtate in truſt to friends, to the uſe of three Daughters and their Heirs; The Court ordered all to the Survivor, Barrows caſe, 10 Car. Tothil 84.

Sixthly,

Sixthly, A. enfeoffed B. in Truſt, and after he by Deed in which A. is a party, makes a bargain and ſale to J. S. to the uſe of A. for life, the Remainder to W. S. in Tail, the Remainder to J. S. in Tail, but is not enrolled; A. dies, W. S. dieth without iſſue, B. giveth out Speeches to J. S. that he hath no eſtate in the Land, and that if he will have any made good, it muſt be by him; whereupon J. S. being afraid, accepted of an Eſtate for his own life onely from him; And after ſued in Chancery to have the Eſtate in Tail, executed according to the Truſt; and it was denied, and ſaid he had concluded himſelf, and that otherwiſe B. ſhould have been ordered to execute the State, M. S. Car. Southwels caſe in Chancery. Imperfect Deed. Acceptance. Covenant

Seventhly, If one Enfeoff me of Land, to the end, that I ſhall Enfeoff J. S. thereof, and I convey it away to another without his privity; if he do afterwards agree to this, it ſeems he is remedileſs, Tothil 186, 187.

Eighthly, If one that hath Land in Truſt, convey it to one that hath notice of it, and he convey it to one that had no notice of it: In this caſe it ſeems he that had no notice is ſeiſed to the firſt uſes, Tothil 186. Pills caſe.

Ninthly, If one convey his Land to friends in Truſt, and after ſell the Inheritance, The Truſt in Equity goes to the Purchaſor, Decreed, Tothil 44. 10. A. intending to purchaſe a long Leaſe of B. and the Reverſion of C. be, to avoid latter incumbrances, purchaſed the Leaſe in a friends name, and the Reverſion in his own name, and after made a Feoffment of the Land, with Livery of Seiſin, to the uſe of himſelf, for life, and after of his firſt ſon, and then he granted his term (which was in his friend) to a ſecond ſon; in this caſe the Court would not ſettle the uſe of the Leaſe upon the ſecond ſon; but ſeemed it ſhould go with the Inheritance, otherwiſe Purchaſers ſhall never be ſecured.

Tenthly, If a man had been Enfeoffed to the uſe of a woman ſole, who taketh a husband, and they both for money had ſold this Land to B. and the money had been paid to the wife, and ſhe and her husband had prayed the Feoffee to make the Eſtate to B. after her husband died; the wife in this caſe had Relief here, for it was Decreed that all ſhe did was for fear of her husband, 7 Ed. 4. 14. Fitz. Subpœna 6. So then now, if a Feoffment be made to one and his Heirs, to the uſe of him and his Heirs, in Truſt, for a woman ſole; Equity it ſeems will rule it after the ſame Rule.

Eleventhly, If one ſell his Land to B. for Twenty pound at this day, and this is with confidence that it ſhall be to the uſe of A; in this caſe A. ſhall have no Remedy here, becauſe there is an expreſs conſideration, Dyer 109. And yet if the Land be worth more then the money given by a great deal, it ſeems to me reaſonable, that for the overplus the Chancery ſhould order it according to the intent: But Regularly it ſeemeth ſuch a conſideration in an Indenture is not examinable, unleſs there be ſome fraud in it.

Twelfthly, If Land be mortgaged to A. and B. and A. onely pay the money, and the intention is, that B. ſhall take nothing; in this caſe B. ſhall be compelled to Releaſe to A. 27 Eliz. in Caries Rep.

Thirteenthly, If one purchaſe Land for me with my own money in his name in Truſt, that I may enjoy it during my life, and after that it ſhall go to a charitable uſe, and I after Repeal it and give it by Will to another, the charitable uſe it ſeems, is gone in Equity, Littletons caſe, Caries Rep. 29. If I make a Feoffment to the uſe of my Will, I may diſpoſe this at my pleaſure afterwards: But if it be to uſes according to Articles annexed, it is otherwiſe, Caries Rep. 29. A Copihold was ſurrendred to the uſe of J. S. to the intent, that he ſhould pay an Annuity to a third perſon, the which he refuſed; the Court ordered him to pay it, with all the Arears. Tothil 107. If I purchaſe Lands in the name of another and his Heirs, and die without declaring the uſe, and of my kin procure him to convey the Land to him and his heirs, and he convey it to others, and my next heir ſue, and the benefit of the truſt is made appear to belong to him; the Court will order it to him, Caries Rep.

If I be ſeized of Land in Fee, and convey it to J. S. and his heirs to the uſe of W. S. his Executors and Adminiſtrators for Twenty years, or for any other number of years; in this caſe the uſe will be executed within the Statute. But in caſe where Of Chattels real, and Terms of years.

where I be poſſeſſed of a Term of years in being, and grant it to friends, to any uſes and purpoſes in truſt; this is out of the Statute of Uſes, or orderable in Chancery onely: Where, if the truſt be broken, I muſt have remedy. But for the further opening hereof, take theſe caſes.

First, One poſſeſſed of a Term in years, conveys it to Friends in truſt, to the uſe A. for life, and after of the Heirs-males of his body; in this caſe, the Court Reſolved and Ordered, That A. ſo long as he hath an Heir, may diſpoſe it; and that an Intail of a truſt of, or out of a Chattel, is not good: But a Remainder, in Tail of a Truſt, may be ordered in Equity, the Judges agreeing to it, Tattons Caſe, 7 Jac. Tothil 83.

Executors. The General Truſt of an Executor, is to pay Debts and Legacies, and for the ſurpluſage, to account to the ordinary ad pios uſus: But if he have any ſpecial Gift in the Will, then he may have it to a ſpecial uſe. But for the truſt of Executors, ſee in other Sections, Caryes Rep. 21. Henry Earl of Darby conveyed certain Leaſed Lands in truſt to Doughty his Servant, for payment of his Debts; and upon mediation of an end of Controverſies between the Daughter of Ferdinand, Eldeſt Son of Henry Earl, and William his Yonger Son, now Earl. It was Ordered and Agreed, That William the now Earl ſhould pay all his Fathers Debts; whereupon Doughty conveyed theſe Leaſes to William, and after the Creditors ſued him in Chancery, but had no relief, and were ordered to purſue their Remedy againſt Earl William, Hill. 1 Jac. Caryes Rep. 25. The Suit was to be relieved on a Leaſe made to the Defendant in truſt, to the uſe of the Plaintiff; the which appearing, it was ordered, That the Plaintiff ſhould enjoy the Land againſt the Defendant, and all claiming under him that had notice of the truſt, and if the Leaſe were ſold to ſuch as had no notice of the truſt, then that the Defendant ſhall pay to the Plaintiff ſo much money as the Leaſe was worth, Rook ver. Staples, 21 Eliz. Caryes Rep. 76. The Plaintiffs wife conveyed away her Eſtate to the Defendant her Son, before marriage, and after the Defendant conveyed it to his children: In this caſe the Court conceiving it to be done without any conſideration, did Decree it for the Plaintiff, againſt the Defendant and his Children, Povyes Caſe, Tothil 98. A Widow being about to marry, to prevent her Husbands diſpoſal of her Leaſes, made them over to Friends in truſt, after marriage he and they for good conſideration ſold them; his wife after his death ſued here, and had relief for them againſt the Purchaſor, but diſburſements were allowed. Fitz-James caſe, Tothil 43. A Feme-ſole was poſſeſſed of a Term to her uſe onely, and ſhe took a husband, and then died; the Court ordered it to the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the wife againſt the husband, Paſche, 32 Eliz. Withnams caſe. So A. being poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years granted it to B. and C. to the uſe of A. and his wife, and during the marriage A. granted away all the Intereſt to a ſtranger; the Court would not order it againſt the wife, Dyer 69. Cromp. Jur. 65. A. being poſſeſſed of a Term, granted it upon a marriage to be had between him and K. S. to J. S. her Brother, to her uſe, and after marriage A. dieth, and ſhe marrieth again, and then ſhe died, J. S. took out an Adminiſtration and got the Leaſe; the ſecond husband ſued for it here, but could not be relieved, Co. upon Littl. 351. See before Sect. 5.

Of Chattels Perſonal or Goods. If I deliver Money or Goods, or cauſe a Statute, Bond, or other Eſpecialty, to be made to another, to my uſe, or to any purpoſes or intents in truſt, and he perform not the truſt: I may compel him to it, or to give me recompence for the breach of the truſt here; and therefore if he diſpoſe the Money or Goods to his own, or any other uſe then I appointed, or will not diſpoſe it according to my minde, or releaſe or diſcharge the duty; my remedy is by Subpœna in this Court: And if in theſe caſes, the Goods or Money be taken from him, or he have any injury in them, he muſt ſue for Remedy, and I may compel him to it here, 7 Ed. 4. 14, 29. 11 Ed. 4. 8. Cromp. Jur. 43. 62, 65. Broo. Feoffment 60. for the opening whereof, take theſe caſes.

First, If I deliver Money or Goods upon any conſideration to B. and C. for a marriage-portion for K. and to deliver to her at her day of marriage, and I do after countermand the Delivery, or B. and C. will not deliver them to her; it ſeems ſhe may inforce them to it here: But if the Delivery be voluntary and without any inducement and conſideration, Contra, Dyer 44. Cromp. Jur. 54. Dyer 49.

Secondly,

Secondly, Two hundred marks were delivered to A. to keep, and to deliver to B. to keep, and to be delivered to A. when he ſhall require it, and after the death of the owner, to deliver it to his Executors or Adminiſtrators: A. delivers it to B. and takes Bond for it, and then he makes an Executor, and dieth: In this caſe the Executor may in this Court compel A. to ſue B. for this Money, if he refuſe to do it.

Thirdly, If an Obligation be made to another to my uſe, and it be forfeit, and he will not ſue; I or my Executor may compel him to it in this Court, Broo. Conſcience 10. 2 Ed. 4. 2.

Fourthly, If a Statute be made to A. and B. to the uſe of A. alone, and the Conuſor get a Releaſe of it from B. alone; in this caſe A. ſhall have Remedy here againſt them both, as ſome ſay againſt B. onely, and not againſt the Conuſor, as others ſay, 11 Ed. 4. 8. 5 Ed. 4. 7. Caryes Rep. 14, 15.

There is now by the new Ordinance for the Regulation of the Chancery, Provided, That no Relief be given here upon any Truſt or Agreement, made or declared after the Five and twentieth of March, 1655. Concerning Lands, or any other thing in the Realty, unleſs it be contained in writing, and ſo averred in the Bill, ſave in caſes where the poſſeſſion hath gone along with the party claiming the Truſt. Article 44.

Upon a Bargain, Agreement or Promiſe; and how it ſhall be taken and performed.

Sect. 8. About Land.

One may here have Relief againſt a man upon his Promiſe and Agreement, further then by the Law he can have: For opening whereof, know theſe things.

Firſt, If I for Money purchaſe and contract for Land, with, or without writing, and have paid all, or any conſiderable part of the Money, or have given ſecurity for it, or am any way engaged to pay the money, or it be by way of Exchange for other Land, the which he hath entred upon; but I have no aſſurance of the Land: I may here compel the ſeller, or if he be dead, his Heir, or Executor, or Deviſee, if he did deviſe it, that hath the Land, to aſſure the Land according to Agreement. And if the ſeller ſell away the Land to another, that had notice of the firſt Contract with me, I may have my Subpœna againſt them both, 24 H. 7. 41. Cromp. Jur. 44, 45. Tothil 24.

Secondly, Articles of Agreement were briefly drawn between two, and their hands to it, for the ſale and aſſurance of Land for Money; the ſeller refuſed, and upon complaint here, was ordered to make the Aſſurance according to the Agreement; the manner of the Aſſurance referred to a Maſter of the Chancery, Chivars caſe. Hill. 4 Car.

Thirdly, A Suit was here upon a Parol-Agreement, to execute an Aſſurance of Land upon a Marriage-Agreement, the caſe being thus: A. ſuitor to B. the Brother of A. comes to B and tells her, That if ſhe will marry his Brother, he will aſſure her of Twenty pounds a year Land for her Joynture, and ſhe did marry him, and after he refuſed: It was Decreed in this Court and the Court of Requeſts both, That he ſhall be compelled to it.

Fourthly, It was ſaid by Glanvile, that heretofore the Chancery did not uſe to Decree Parol-Agreements for Aſſurance of Land; but it is now otherwiſe, for where there is any execution of it by payment of all, or any conſiderable part of the Money for the Land, there it doth Decree it: And where the Agreement is for ſelling Land by writing, albeit it be not ſealed, or any earneſt given, or money paid; yet this Court doth uſe to Order the Party to aſſure the Land accordingly. Otherwiſe it is where the Agreement is for any other thing but Land. And in 19 Jac. in Briggs caſe, B. R. a Prohibition in this caſe was denied to the Council of the Marches of Wales, upon a Suit there to have Land aſſured upon an Agreement, becauſe however it be, he hath Remedy at Law by Action of the Caſe; yet this is for damages onely, and cannot force him to aſſure the Land: And in all caſes Regularly, where Articles are under Hand and Seal, for the aſſuring of Land for Money, the Court here doth uſe to Order it to be done according to the Agreement.

Fifthly, But it ſeems the Law is not in all points, as Maſter Glanvile before ſaid; for in Hill. 9 Car. In the Exchequer, one ſued by Engliſh Bill upon a Parol-Agreement, to have Land aſſured, and ſhewed, That he had provided Two thouſand thouſand pounds, the purchaſe Money, to his great loſs, &c. and the other refuſed it, and to aſſure the Land; in this caſe, the Court would not Decree the Aſſurance of the Land, but Decreed he ſhould pay the Plaintiff damages for his loſs. So in 13 Car. Olivers caſe, The Agreement was to convey the Land as Council ſhould adviſe, the Paper-book drawn, agreed, and to be ingroſſed, and then the ſeller refuſed to proceed; in this caſe, the Court would not Decree it to be done, becauſe no Articles nor Money paid, but a bare Parol-Agreement. And yet ſome ſpecial circumſtance may make this binding; and therefore a Verbal-Agreement between Lord and Tenant, becauſe the Tenant was an Ancient Tenant, and hath been at charge in building, was Decreed, Kings and Hunts caſes, Tothil 65, 66.

Sixthly, A. Covenant with B. upon the marriage of his Daughter, to levy a Fine of the Land to D. and the Daughter being dead, and ſome Money unpaid, A. ſold away the Land to others; in this caſe, he was Ordered for a Hundred Marks, to make the Eſtate good, Tothill 47, 48. Mich. 8 Car. Pages caſe.

Notice. Seventhly, A Suit was in this Court upon a Parol-Agreement to aſſure Land, and the Agreement was Eighteen years before, and the Suit was againſt Purchaſors that came in upon valuable conſideration (to wit) the buying in of Mortgages, and paying of Debts and Fines and Proclamations, and Five years time without Claim were paſt; in this caſe, albeit it did appear, that the Purchaſor had notice of the Agreement, yet it was diſmiſſed by the Court to the Law; and in theſe and ſuch like caſes, where an Action lieth at Law, the Purchaſor, or Party to whom the Promiſe is made, may uſe that and wave his Remedy in Chancery, 21 H. 7. 43.

Nudum pactum. Eightly, If I and another man make an Agreement about any thing by word onely, and it hath quid pro quo in it, and I have no witneſs to prove it, I may ſue him here, and put him to anſwer it upon his Oath: But upon a nudum pactum there is no more Remedy to be had in Chancery, then is at the Common-Law, 8 Ed. 4. 4. D. & St. 12. 154.

Ninthly, If it be agreed by Indenture of Feoffment of Land between me and another, That the Feoffee ſhall pay Ten pounds to a ſtranger by a day, or Ten pound a year; otherwiſe, that the ſtranger and his Heir ſhall enter on the Land; or that the Land ſhall be conveyed to a ſtranger, or the like: in theſe caſes the ſtranger for not payment, cannot enter by Law. But ſome ſay the Feoffee may be compelled in this Court to execute the Eſtate according to the Agreement, D. & St. 94. But if by Agreement there be a condition to give a Re-entry to a ſtranger; this is not good in Law, nor will this Court execute it, for it is againſt a principle of Law, Cromp. Jur. 50. D. & St. 100, 101. Cromp. Jur. 49. Nor is the Feoffer when he doth enter, bound in conſcience to give the Land to the ſtranger.

Tenthly, If I by Deed poll, and not by Indenture, make a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for life, the Remainder over in Fee rendring a Rent; this Reſervation is not good in Law: But I ſhall have Remedy upon the Equity of my caſe in this Court, D. & St. 2. 19.

Eleventhly, A Bill was preferred here, ſuppoſing Ten ſhillings paid, and Two thouſand pounds to be paid for Land, to have the Lands aſſured, and upon a Demurrer it was over-ruled, becauſe it may be to prepare for an Action of the Caſe: But it ſeems in this Caſe the Court would not decree the Aſſurance, Trin. 38 Eliz. Williams caſe, Tothil 72.

Twelfthly, If any Agreement have been made by writing for the aſſuring of Land, or any thing elſe, and the writings are loſt; the party grieved muſt have his Remedy in this Court.

Thirteenthly, If I make a Leaſe of Mills for years, excepting the profits thereof for my life; this exception is not held good in Law; yet it is thought I may have it allowed in Equity, becauſe of the intent, Cromp. Jur. 64.

Fourteenthly, If a woman ſole take a conſideration for a Leaſe of Twenty one years, and then marry, and ſhe and the husband make the Leaſe promiſed; after the Leſſee doth ſurrender, and take a new Leaſe for another Twenty one years; the husband dies: In this caſe the wife is not to enjoy the reſt of the firſt Leaſe, becauſe cauſe the Surrender was voluntary, Caries Rep: 21.

Fifteenthly, One for Seven thouſand pounds, whereof not a peny was paid, and yet an acquittance given thereof by the Feoffor, enfeoffed one in Fee of his Land, but took the profits thereof all his life; in this caſe the Feoffee ſhall not have this Land in Equity; and if he do go about to take it, the Feoffor ſhall be relieved here againſt him, Dyer 169. Cromp. Jur. 153.

Sixteenthly, The Cuſtoms of a Mannor were in queſtion between Lord and Tenants, and Tenant and Tenant, and a general Agreement made by Deed indented and enrolled here, and a Bill to eſtabliſh it, and nothing could be found but the Deed: And yet the Court would not alter it, albeit it was objected the Lord was at the time of Agreement Tenant in Tail, and ſome of the Tenants Infants and Femecoverts, Caries Rep. 22.

Seventeenthly, If one enter into a Statute to J. S. who doth afterwards by Indenture of Agreement, promiſe and agree with the Conuſee, that in caſe the Conuſor did fail of payment, execution ſhould be done upon ſome certain Land onely: In this caſe, if after he ſhall ſue execution upon any other Lands, the party grieved may have relief here, and compel him to perform his Agreement, and have an Injunction alſo if he deſire it, Pulverteſts Caſe, Caries Reports 37. Injunction.

Eighteenthly, The Plaintiff ſued to be relieved on a promiſe for a Leaſe of Lands and to ſtop a way; and exception was taken to the Bill becauſe the Defendant had Remedy at Law and not allowed. So to remove a Nuſance or the like; for at Common Law nothing can be recovered but damages; but this Court may order the thing it ſelf to be done, Caries Rep. 20. 53.

Nineteenthly, The Plaintiffs Bill was, that he leaſed a houſe to the Defendant, and did Covenant to repair it, and then the Defendant did Covenant to keep it ſo, and that the Defendant, as well to make the Plaintiff break his Covenant, as to free himſelf from his Covenant, did interrupt and threaten the workmen ſo, that they durſt not go on, and ſo the houſes are decayed, and the Plaintiff without remedy; the Defendant demurred, pretending the Plaintiff had remedy by Law; but was overruled and put to anſwer, Caries Rep. 59.

Twentithly, A Bill was brought upon a Promiſe by word, for leave to dry clothes in a Garden, and was diſmiſſed for the ſmallneſs of the thing, 21 Eliz. Hambies Caſe, Caries Rep. 76.

One and twentithly, The Bill prayed Relief againſt the Defendant as Brother and Heir, for that the Plaintiff had paid to his deceaſed Brother Thirty four pounds for a Leaſe, and he died before it was made, and therefore deſired his Leaſe or the money, and was Relieved, Caries Rep. 77.

Two and twentithly, One Joyn-tenant promiſed the other, lying on his death-bed, he would not take advantage of the ſurvivorſhip, but ſuffer him to diſpoſe of it by his Will, by which he deviſed part for the payment of his Debts, and the Survivor was ordered to make the Eſtate accordingly, Caries Report 81. Jointenant.

Twentithirdly, The Plaintiff bought of the Defendant the Reverſion of a Copihold, which he could not enjoy, as was confeſſed by the Defendants Anſwer; Ordered by the Court to ſhew cauſe why he ſhould not repay the money back again, which he had received on the bargain, Caries Rep. 93.

Twentifourthly, Upon the hearing of the Cauſe, it appeared that the Suit was to be relieved upon a Promiſe made by the Defendant to the Plaintiff, to ſurrender a Leaſe upon the payment of a hundred marks; and becauſe the matter was meet for the Common-Law, it was diſmiſſed, Caries Rep. 95. 97.

Twentififtly, Bailiffs of a Town promiſed a Leaſe; the Court upon this, would not give Relief againſt any of their Succeſſors, but againſt the ſame perſons, as common perſons, upon the promiſe, Caries Rep. 103. Bayliffs of a town

What Agreement made by an Infant, or a Woman-covert will binde here. See before Sect. 4.

Sect. 9. Upon a Miſpriſion in a Conveyance of Land or other Deed.

If any miſtake be in a Deed, that it be not made according to the intent and agreement of the party; it may be holpen here. For the opening whereof take theſe Caſes.

1. If part of the Land bought and ſold, be left out of the Deed, or the word Heirs, being in Fee-ſimple, or the like, be omitted; and the conveyance be made upon good conſideration; this Court will rectifie it. See after for this, Caries Rep. 16, 17. Dean and Chapter of Briſtow made a Leaſe, miſtaking the name of the Corporation; and the Court held that for Leaſes made for reaſonable time, and upon good conſideration, there ſhould Relief be given here, Caries Rep. 32. The Leſſee in the Leaſe, was not named in the Premiſſes of the Leaſe, but in the Habendum onely; Decreed to be good: And being referred to the two chief Juſtices and chief Baron, was by them certified to be good in Law, Butlers caſe, 22 Eliz. Caries Rep. 88.

2. A man by Bill here ſuppoſed, that he had conveyed more Land by the Deed, then was intended and agreed; in this caſe, becauſe it appeared the Defendant was a Purchaſor upon unvaluable conſideration, the Court would not relieve the Plaintiff, Cliffords caſe, 4 Jac. in Chancery. And yet ſee a caſe where more Lands paſſed by a Fine, then was intended, and the party relieved here by the Judges conſent, Caries Rep. 20.

Grant of a Term.

3. But if one poſſeſſed of a Term, grant it to one for life or in tail, and after to another for life or in Tail; in theſe caſes, where by Law it ſeems the firſt will take all; no relief ſhall be neither in Law, nor in Equity to him in Remainder: But if it were a Deviſe, after this manner it would go in Law and Equity according to the intent, Cromp. Jur. 64. Plow. 520. 539. Dyer 74. 253. 277. Co. 8. 95. 10. 47. So if I have a Term of years and grant ſo much thereof as ſhall be to come at my death; it ſeems this grant is void in Law and Equity. But if it had been by Will thus deviſed, relief might have been in Equity at the leaſt, Cromp. Jur. 63.

Intail of a Term.

Deviſe.

4. Miſtakes in the making of a Bond, in either of the parties names, may be holpen here, Colſtons caſe, Tothil 27.

Bond

Power to make Leaſes.

5. If a Power be reſerved to make Leaſes by a Covenant without a Tranſmutation of poſſeſſion; no help can be here, becauſe it is void in Law: And if it be upon a Change of poſſeſſion, and the Power be not preciſely followed; that is doubtful, and rather more ſtrong againſt help; for then the Eſtate works, and the power gone, and upon Wills no help, Caries Rep.

6. If one be bound to me for money, and the ſame day after the ſealing of the Bond, I give him a Releaſe for other things, and by miſtake, whereby this Bond alſo is releaſed: In this caſe I may be relieved here, and ſhall recover the money notwithſtanding, Tops caſe, Tothil 27.

7. Haddon the Husband was ordered to procure his Wife to levy a Fine, and to enter into a new Bond of Five hundred pounds, becauſe the old Bond was worth nothing, by the miſtake of the Writer, 10 Jac. Tothil 140. See more Section 8. before.

But now by the new Ordinance for the Regulation of the Chancery, it is provided, That no Relief ſhall be there upon any Averment of any other intention of the Parties, to a Deed made after the Five and twentieth day of March, 1655. other then what doth appear in the Deed it ſelf. Article 45.

Sect. 10. Upon a Defective Aſſurance of Land, to enforce the perfecting of it.

If a Conveyance for Land be defective, and the Eſtate not well executed to the Purchaſor, according to the intent of the Parties, for lack of words ſufficient in the Deed, or for lack of Livery of Seiſin, Attornment, Inrollment, or the like; and there were a good conſideration given for the Land: In theſe caſes the Purchaſer may compel the party, in whoſe power it is to perfect the Eſtate, to do it; and this he muſt do in this Court, D. & St. 85. Plow. 302. Tothil 44. 48. 182, 183. 138.

For the further opening whereof, take theſe Caſes.

1. If I for money ſell Land to one, and the word Heirs is left out in the Habendum, I ſhall be compelled to amend it; and ſo when leſs is granted then was intended; and ſo for any other miſtakes, Caries Rep. 16, 17. A Meſſuage was demiſed cum pertinentiis only: And becauſe ſundry Lands had been occupied therewith for the ſame Rent, and by Leaſe of the ſame words; the Lord Chancellor Bromley and the Judges ordered it ſhould all paſs, though perhaps they will not paſs in Law by theſe words. But it ſeems in ſuch like caſes it is very conſiderable in Equity, what the value of the Land is, and what money is given: For if the Houſe with the Appurtenances be ſufficient for the money, unleſs the intent of the parties were to grant the whole, it ſeems to me reaſonable that no Extent ſhould be made further then the Law makes.

2. The Anceſtor takes money for a Leaſe, and dies before it is made; the Heir muſt make it good, or repay the money, Car. Rep. 77.

3. If I buy a Rent de novo for money, and take a Grant of it by Word without Deed, (which is not good) I may compel him here to make me a Deed of it, Doct. & Stu. 86.

4. If one for money ſell me Land by Deed, but Livery of Seiſin is omitted; I may compel him afterwards to do it by the help of this Court. And if one for money ſell me Land in two Counties, and have given me Livery only of the Land in one County; this Court will order him to make Livery in the Land in the other County; or pay back part of the money, Cromp Jur. 49. D. & St. 37. Car. Rep. 17.

5. So regularly, if a Conveyance be imperfect for lack of Attornment of the Tenant, the Tenant ſhall be compelled to attorn by the power of this Court. And ſo it was in H. 3 Car. A. was Leſſee for twenty one years, and leaſed to B. for ten years, rendring Rent: A. without the privity of B. did grant the Reverſion to C. and B. refuſed to attorn, and C. thereupon ſued B. in Chancery, to compel him to attorn; and in this caſe it was decreed by the Maſter of the Rolls, with the aſſent of the Maſters of the Chancery, That he ſhould attorn and pay the arrearages; Juſtice Whitlock, then Aſſiſtant, being utterly againſt it; and of his opinion were the two Chief Juſtices, Chief Baron, and Juſtice Dodridg: But they all agreed, the parties themſelves to the Aſſurance may be compelled to make Livery. And it hath been often denied here to compel him to attorn, who is at liberty by Law; eſpecially where the party quarrelleth at the Tenants Eſtate, or entreth into part of the Land, or hath covenanted for recompence in caſe of Not-attornment, Car. Rep. 4. Higham contra Lad. The party before Livery of Seiſin, and before Aſſurance perfected, ordered to be perfected, Paſc. 7 Car. Tot. 129.

6. But in all theſe caſes, if the Conveyance be made without any good conſideration, this Court will not give relief. And therefore if a Rent be granted without Deed, and nothing is given for it; or a Reverſion is granted, and nothing is given for it; the Grantor cannot be enforced to perfect it, Cromp. Jur. 49. Doct. & Stu. 37.

7. An Eſtate was made by Covenant, not good by Law, and ordered here to be made good, Princes Caſe, 40 Eliz. Tot. 85.

8. A Deed not enrolled was decreed againſt the Heir of the Land, but agreed it ſhould not bind any other Eſtate challenged by Survivorſhip or otherwiſe, Pawles Caſe, 14 Car. Tot. 55.

9. The Defendant would have avoided an Eſtate for lack of Livery of Seiſin, and the party grieved complained here; and it appearing he had quietly enjoyed it twenty five years, it was decreed he ſhould quietly enjoy it without Livery of Seiſin, Bydens Caſe, 17 Jac. Tot. 54.

10. A. demiſed a Manor, excepting the Court-Baron and Perquiſites, &c. which Exception in Law is void. If the Leſſee in this caſe refuſe to do ſuit to the Court, the Chancery will compel it, becauſe of the intent, Car. Rep.

If I contract for goods, and have any wrong in it, that the party doth not perform with me; if I give quid pro quo, that there be a good conſideration in it, I may have remedy here: But if there be no conſideration in it, contra. Wherein take theſe Caſes.

Upon a Promiſe about Goods or Debts. Nudum pactum.

1. If one promiſe me Ten pounds for a Treſpaſs he hath done to me, no remedy is given me for this in Law, nor here in Equity, D. & St. l. 2. c. 24.

2. So if one promiſe, without good conſideration, to make me a Watch, I cannot compel him to it here, Cromp. Jur. 49.

3. The ſon made a general and voluntary promiſe, without any conſideration, no advancement coming to him by his father, to pay his fathers Debts; and upon a Suit here it was diſmiſſed, Alexanders Caſe, 7 Car.

4. The Obligee agreed with the Obligor to give him day for the Debt, and he ſue him or a Surety before the day; in this caſe he may be relieved here, and it ſeems by Injunction, 9 Ed. 4. 41.

Injunction. Sect. 11. Upon an extremity uſed on a Mortgage or Statute, Bond or other Engagement.

If one that hath any Engagement of me by Feoffment, Mortgage, Statute, Obligation or otherwiſe, take me upon any advantage upon any ſtrict condition or agreement, and uſe extremity towards me; I may be relieved in this Court, where he will be compelled to accept of Reaſon. For the opening whereof take theſe Caſes following.

In a forfeiture of Land. Mortgage.

1. If I make a Feoffment to another, upon a Condition to be done by me, and I do not perform it, and thereby loſe the Land, I am remedileſs in Chancery, D. & St. l. 3. ch. 33. But if I convey Land to another only as a Mortgage, and for a Security for money he doth lend me; in this caſe, albeit the time of Redemption be paſt, yet upon the paying of the money, intereſt and damage, I may have my Land again, at any time, by Decree of this Court, D. & St. l. 3. ch. 33. And in 8 Car. in Chancery, between Coxwell and Gardner, Sir Robert Rich ſaid, that it was the conſtant courſe of this Court, That if A. mortgage Land to B. for a Hundred pounds, and the Land is more worth, and it be forfeit; that A. notwithſtanding this may aſſign it to C. to ſatisfie this debt, or mortgage it to another to ſatisfie this debt, or deviſe it to his children: And in theſe caſes C. the ſecond Mortgagee, or children, ſhall by Order here, upon payment of the money, intereſt and charge to B. his Executor, &c. have it decreed againſt them. Experientia, Higates Caſe, 14 Car. Tot. 78.

2. And yet when it hath continued long, as twenty years or upwards, this Court will not eaſily give back the Land. And if the Mortgager make a Feoffment of it to a ſtranger, and ſo extinguiſh the Condition, unleſs it be to the end to pay the debt, the Feoffee perhaps may not have this advantage, Car. Rep. 53. And in 39 Eliz. Crowthers Caſe, Tot. 79. the Plaintiff being Heir to Lands in Tail, and likewiſe deviſed to him by his mothers father, and theſe being mortgaged, and redeemed by a ſtranger, having ſold it again, with the conſent of the father and mother, could not be relieved here.

Heir to Land entailed.

But now by the new Ordinance for the Regulating of the Chancery, there are ſome Alterations made: For thereby it is provided, (i.) from and after the ſaid five and twentieth day of March, One thouſand ſix hundred fifty and five, no Relief ſhall be given in Chancery on a Mortgage after three years forfeiture, or unleſs the Suit be commenced within one year after the Entry and poſſeſſion of the Mortgagee continued, except upon ſome new Agreement between the parties themſelves in Writing, and except in caſes of Infancy, Coverture, Non ſanæ memoriæ, or beyond Seas: In which caſes the perſons concerned ſhall commence their Suits within two years after the Diſability removed, or in default thereof ſhall be debarred from any Relief afterwards. And in caſe of ſuch new Agreement, the like Rule to be obſerved, after the time by ſuch new Agreement limited ſhall be expired, Art. 49.

In caſe of Mortgages to be made from and after the five and twentieth day of March aforeſaid, where the Mortgagee is in poſſeſſion by Recovery at Law or otherwiſe, he ſhall not (except by ſpecial Agreement in writing) be put to accompt for the yearly profits accrued after ſuch his Entry, before the Suit for Redemption be commenced; but the ſame ſhall belong to, and be retained by him without accompt, if by his Anſwer, or at the Hearing, he ſhall elect to take the ſame in ſatisfaction of the Intereſt of his money whiles he had the poſſeſſion, except the Mortgager ſhall rather elect to be concluded by the Mortgagees Examinations upon Interrogatories concerning the profits by him received, Art. 50.

That ſuch Mortgagee, before the Mortgager be admitted to redeem, ſhall be paid his whole Principal money with damages, and his full Coſts incurred before his his entry, and alſo after the Suit commenced, to be taxed by the chief Clerks upon a Bill of Coſts; wherein, and in all other caſes of Mortgages to be made from and after the time aforeſaid, the Mortgagee ſhall be charged (in caſe the Lands be let to Tenants) with no more then what he did, or might fairly have received without fraud or his own wilful default: And where the Lands are unlet, and kept in his own hands, with no more than four fifth parts of the true yearly value. But if after ſuch Entry any caſual profits by Fines upon Copiholds, Wood-ſales, or otherwiſe ſhall be received by the Mortgagee above the yearly Revenue of the Lands mortgaged, then the ſame ſhall go in abatement of Principal and Intereſt due before ſuch Entry. Provided, that where in the caſes aforeſaid an Account ſhall be, all lawful Taxes and neceſſary Diſburſements and Allowance ſhall be allowed to the Mortgagee, Art. 51.

That where upon a Bill exhibited by a Mortgagee to enforce Redemption, or to have the Eſtate abſolute, a Decree paſſeth, and is ſigned and enrolled, the time thereby limited for the payment of the Mortgage-money with damages ſhall not be enlarged without conſent of parties in writing, Art. 52.

That no Injunction be granted to ſtay the Mortgagee from his Suit at Law till the final hearing of the Cauſe, except it be only to reſtrain the Mortgagee from the making of Waſte upon the mortgaged Land, Art. 30.

3. A Purchaſor of Land, bona fide, ſubject to a Recognizance, and the Heirs of the Recognizor or Obligor ſhall have relief againſt a Penalty alſo.

4. A Copiholder in Fee ſurrendred to the uſe of one and his heirs, upon condition of Redemption; after this he writes down his Debts, and doth will part of his Land ſhall be ſold to pay his Debts: After his death one of the Creditors doth pay the money at the day of Mortgage; yet the Surrender was enrolled, and another Creditor ſued him and the Heir here, and had a Decree that the Land ſhould be ſold to pay the Debts, and if any remained it ſhould go to the Heir, 4 Eliz. Car. Rep. 7.

5. A. ſold Land to B. that was his Heirs, and mortgaged other Land, to the end the Heir ſhould aſſure it when he came of age, before when B. dyed without any Heir known: In this caſe the Mortgager, to avoid danger, had relief here; where it was ordered, the Heir ſhould convey the Land to two of the Six Clerks, there to remain till the Heir be known, Cuttings Caſe, Car. Rep. 29.

So Leſſee for years rendring Rent, and two men ſtrive for the Reverſion; upon a Bill againſt them, and payment of his money Court according to his Leaſe, he had an Injunction to forbid them both to trouble him, Car. Rep. 46, 47. But regularly this Court doth give relief againſt them that take advantage upon any ſtrict Condition, for undoing the Eſtate of another in Lands, upon a ſmall or trifling default.

6. If the Conuſee of a Statute extend the Land in the hands of one of the Purchaſors, and ſpare all the reſt, he may be compelled to do it on all, Car. Rep. 111, 112.

7. If one grant a Rent-charge out of all his Land, and after ſell it by parcels to divers perſons, and the Grantee force one only to pay it; he may here be relieved, and force the reſt to contribute, and the Grantee to take no more of him then his proportion: But then he muſt make all that are chargeable with the Rent Defendants, and put them to ſhew cauſe, if they can, why they ſhould not contribute, Car. Rep. 2. 23. 92. Contribution.

8. When the Conuſee upon a Statute, or Plaintiff on a Judgment, hath received ſatisfaction; the Plaintiff or Conuſor, his Heirs, Executors or Adminiſtrators, or a Purchaſor charged or chargeable by it, may force him, his Executors or Adminiſtrators, if he be dead, to acknowledg ſatisfaction on the Judgment, or to deliver it up. And if Statutes be very ancient, this Court will force the Owners of them to deliver them up without ſatisfaction. And ſo the Court will force the delivery up of old Bonds, Tot. 178, 179. Car. Rep. 45, 46. Statutes. Judgment.

9. If a man have received the money due from me upon a Statute, and yet the Statute lies againſt me; in this caſe it hath been ſaid, I ſhall not have remedy here, becauſe it is a Record againſt which no Averment lieth. But it ſeems the practice is otherwiſe, and there is as much Equity for this as in caſe of another Engagement, Cromp. Jur. 43. 22 Ed. 4. 6. D. & St. 23. l. 1. c. 12.

The Plaintiff had an Execution for Three hundred pounds, and was ordered here to take it out only for One hundred pounds, Car. Rep 51.

Obligations. Bills. If I have paid my money on an Obligation with a Condition after the day, or a ſingle Obligation at the day and according to Law, and have no Acquittance for it; or have at or after the day, or otherwiſe ſatisfied it, and he hath accepted it and is ſatisfied, and yet he keeps the Bond, &c. and refuſeth to give me a Diſcharge: In theſe caſes I, or my Executors &c. after my death, may enforce him, his Executors &c. after his death, in this Court to diſcharge it, and deliver up the Engagement, 22 Ed. 4. 6. 7 H. 7. 11. Caryes Rep. 74. 11 H. 7. 14. Tothill 26, 27.

10. If I have forfeited a Bond, and am in danger to have a great Penalty recovered of me thereby, I ſhall have relief here: As in caſe where one doth his beſt to pay money at the day, and by being robbed, or ſome other miſchance is let, and he tenders it in a ſhort time after: So where part of the money is paid, and yet the whole Engagement lieth, and the party that hath it doth refuſe to deliver it up, or to receive the reſt of his money, being tendred ſhortly after the day, or acknowledg what is paid, &c. Car. Rep. 1. 22 Ed. 4. 6. D. & St. 23. Cromp. Jur. 43. So where the Bond is to do any thing elſe, and the thing is done, and Condition performed, Car. Rep. 45, 46. So where one hath a double Security of me for a ſingle Debt, as a Bond and Goods in pawn, or the like; I ſhall here force him that hath it to deliver up one of them, Cromp. Jur. 43. 16 Ed. 4. 9. Tot. 26, 27.

11. If I be bound as a Surety with another for a Debt, the which he hath paid, or he hath paid part of it, and hath a further day given him for the reſt, or by agreement hath a further day, or he is releaſed of the Debt, or the Creditor hath agreed with him to take ſome other ſatisfaction: In all theſe and ſuch like caſes I may have advantage of this, and be relieved in Chancery, 6 Ed. 4. 41. Cromp. Jur. 44.

12. If my Scrivener that doth uſe to put out and receive my money, receive my money at the day, I having the Bond, and will not deliver it up, I may compel him in this Court, Hunts Caſe, Hil. 22 Jac. Tot. 175.

13. If one enter into a Bond, or any other Engagement for money unlawfully gotten, as at Dice or Cards or to procure a Marriage, or on a Simoniacal Contract, or upon a Cheating Contract, or the like; here is the place to be relieved againſt it, and have it took up or cancelled, Tot. 24, 23.

So if I have given an Engagement for that which is nothing worth, neither gain to me, or loſs to him; as for Debts, things in Action not recoverable, or the like, Cromp. Jur. 45. 44. Car. Rep. 17. 37 H. 6. 12. Tot 23. 26. 27.

A. had a ſon he intended to preſent to the Church of Dale, and he being ſickly preſented C. for the preſent, taking Bond of him of Six hundred pounds to reſign upon requeſt: C. is inſtituted and inducted; after the ſon of A. becomes healthy, and C. is required to reſign; he refuſed; his Bond is ſued, and coming into this Court for relief, it was denied to him, and the Bond agreed to be good in Law and Equity, Trin. 6 Car. Wood and Berries Caſe in Chancery, Tot. 26, 27. But if one make a Bond not to marry without conſent of his friends, it ſeems this is not good, and the Obligor will be relieved here, Tot. 26, 27.

14. One Harris and J. S. two young men, needing money, came to one King to borrow One hundred pounds of him; who would not lend them money, but told them he had a Cabinet which he would lend them, and this coſt him but One hundred and eleven pounds; and this he lent them, and took a Bond of them to pay him Four hundred pounds for it five years after if King did live ſo long: Harris died, King died; the Executor of King ſued the Bond againſt the other young man, who complained here, and it was decreed that the Executor ſhould recover but One hundred and eleven pounds upon this Bond, and no Coſts nor Damages, that the

Suits

Suits in Law ſhould be ſtayed, and the Bond delivered up to be cancelled, 6 Car. in Chancery.

15. If I have entred into an Engagement, and had a Releaſe of it upon good cauſe, and have loſt it, I ſhall have remedy here: But it ſeemeth otherwiſe, if the Debt be by matter of Record, 22 Ed. 4. 6. D. & St. l. 1. c. 12.

It hath been ſaid, if money be paid on a ſingle Obligation, and the Obligor hath no Acquittance for his money, that he ſhall not be relieved here, Car. Rep. 17. But I take it, the uſe of the Court is otherwiſe at this day, and that the Obligee ſhall be here forced to deliver up the Bill.

16. If money be paid upon the Redemption of a Mortgage by Indenture without taking any Acquittance, it ſeems the Mortgagee muſt bring in the Indenture to be cancelled here, Car Rep 17.

17. The Plaintiff and his Father were bound to the Defendant in Five hundred pounds, to ſtand to the Award of the Lord Chief Juſtice; who ordered, That the Plaintiff who had the Reverſion in fee, and the Father who had the Eſtate for life, ſhould make ſuch Aſſurance as the Defendant ſhould reaſonably deviſe: The Defendant tendred an Aſſurance to the Father to be ſealed, who being old and blind deſired time to adviſe with his friend: The Plaintiff ſealed, and his Father afterward did offer to ſeal; and then the Defendant ſaid he did not care for his ſeal, but he put the Bond in ſuit upon the Fathers refuſal, and it was ſtaid by Order of this Court, Car. Rep. 105.

But it is now provided by the new Ordinance for the regulating of this Court, That no Relief ſhall be here againſt a Bond for paiment of money only, and entred into after the Five and twentieth day of March, One thouſand ſix hundred fifty five, Art. 43.

Nor may any Injunction be had in any caſe, but by Motion in open Court, and upon the merits of the cauſe. But the Defendants taking of a Commiſſion, or ſitting of an Attachment, is not ſufficient ground for an Injunction, Art. 27.

Injunction.

And if in any of theſe caſes, the party to whom ſuch Engagement is made, make uſe of it in any Court by way of Suit againſt him that entred into it, he may in this Court by Injunction ſtay his Suit there, and ſhall have the matter ordered here as in Equity is fit to be done, Tothill 23. Sucklins Caſe, 11 Car. 24.

Sect. 12. Againſt the extremity of a Forfeiture in other caſes.

For the clearing of this Point, ſee it in theſe following Caſes.

1. If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder over, and the Tenant for life doth give way to the ſuffering of a Common-Recovery, which rigore juris is a Forfeiture of his Eſtate; in this caſe he may be relieved here, as was done in Staffords Caſe, 10 Car. Tot. 184.

Of Lands.

2. If I convey my Land on Condition to be done by me, unleſs it be in the caſe of a Mortgage before, and I fail, I am remedileſs. So if I be a Leſſee for life or years, and make a Feoffment of the Land, and forfeit it; in theſe caſes if the Lord take advantage of it, there is no help for me in Chancery. So if I do commit Waſte, and the Land be recovered from me, D. & St. 176. 20 H. 6. 3. 21 H. 7. 7. 10 Ed. 4. 6. 4 H. 6. 24.

3. Hil. 9 Car. In Sir Edward Hungerfords and Wilſons Caſe in Chancery, it was held, That a Leſſee ſhall have relief in Equity, or the Grantee of the Reverſion againſt the Leſſor that doth enter for a Forfeiture on the Land for not payment of the Rent: And yet if the Leaſe whereby the Rent is reſerved be a diſhoneſt Leaſe, as gotten of the King by a falſe Surmiſe, or the like, contra. Car Rep. 32.

4. If a Leſſee for years of Land, upon a Condition of Forfeiture for not payment of Rent, make divers Under-Leaſes, and after by Agreement between him and the Leſſor he makes a Forfeiture, and the Leſſor enter, and then makes a new Leaſe to the Leſſee for years; in this caſe the Under-Leſſees and Tenants may have relief here againſt the Leſſor and Leſſee upon this practice, Cromp. Jur. 64, 65.

5. If a Lord enter upon a Copiholder for a Forfeiture by the Copiholder, it it ſeems the Copiholder is remedileſs in Law and Equity both, Co. 4. 24.

And yet a Copiholder within age was admitted, and his cuſtody committed to the Mother; and her Under-tenant did waſte, and being preſented, the Lord ſeiſed it for the forfeiture, and held it many years, and died, and his Heir held it; and yet the Copiholder had an Order for it here till it were recovered by Law, Littons Caſe, *M.*41,42. 42 *Eliz. Car. Rep.*6.

And ſo where a Copiholder took Timber without leave of the Lord, and imployed it upon the Copihold, albeit this rigore juris be a forfeiture, yet the Copiholder was holpen in this Court, *Tot.*46.

The Father committed a Forfeiture, the Son was admitted; this was not allowed as a diſpenſation with the Forfeiture, in Equity, as was ſaid; and yet agreed, That if the Lord had ſeiſed a Heriot after the Fathers death, that this had been a diſpenſation with the Forfeiture in Equity. Smiths Caſe, Clarks Caſe, *Tot.*45.

6. An Eſtate in Tail was here ordered to be cut off, contrary to a Proviſo in a Deed, only to make a Jointure, and then the Remainder to be ſetled as before, and that no forfeiture ſhould be hereby, Baylies Caſe, 38 *Eliz. Tot.*82.

Of Goods.

7. If my goods be taken as Felons goods, upon a forfeiture for Felony, or as a Waif, Eſtray, Deodand or Wreck; or be forfeit upon an Attachment, by my not appearing in a Court; in theſe caſes there is no relief to be had in Equity for me. So upon an Outlawry in any Action, albeit it be upon an unjuſt cauſe, and I have no notice of it, yet I am remedileſs: But if there be any undue practice in it, haply I may have ſome remedy againſt the Plaintiff in this Court, *D. & St. l.*2. *c.*3. 20 *H.*6.3. 21 *H.*7.7. 35 *H.*6.27.

Sect. 13. Againſt the injuries of other Courts of Juſtice.

If any other Courts of Juſtice, by their over-nice and ſtrict obſervation of the Rules of Law, do me injury, I ſhall have relief here. For which know theſe things.

Judgment.

1. If there be any extremity uſed upon a Judgment had againſt me in another Court for money or Land, this Court may not vacate the Judgment, but may order the Perſons as it ſhall ſee cauſe in Equity And ſo was it reſolved notwithſtanding the Statute of 4 *H.*4.23. upon a ſpecial Debate by the Kings command, 14 Jac. But in caſes tending to overthrow of Judgments had in other Courts, this Court neither may, nor will examine or revoke them: For if ſo, there will be no end, and this will render them invalid, 37 Ed. 3. 14. Dyer 20. 27 *H.*8.15. *D. & St. lib.*1. *ch.*18. Car. Rep. 74, 75.

2. If one make an Obligation in one County, and the Obligee ſue in another, and there recover it; it is ſaid the Defendant may have the Plaintiff here, and ſhew that by that he loſt the advantage of pleading ſome truth, by which he might have avoided the ſuit, 9 *Ed.*4.15. *Cromp. Jur.*42.

3. If two Copartners bring a Q. impedit, and one count falſe, by Covin between him and the Defendant; I having damage thereby, may ſue them both here, 6 *Ed.*4. 10. *Cromp. Jur.*43.

4. If a Fine be reverſed in a Court, by inſpection and proof of Witneſſes, for Nonage, and in truth he is of full age, it ſeems relief may be here: And if the Conuſor after Reverſal ſell the Land to another, the Subpœna will lie againſt Buyer and Seller both, Dyer 261.301. *Cromp. Jur.*66.

5. If one have Land in antient Demeſn in execution upon a Statute, and do after recover it there by a fained Recovery, the party grieved that cannot falſifie there, may be relieved here, *Cromp Jur.*45.6.

6. If a Suit be againſt me in any other Court, upon an unreaſonable Engagement, I may have relief here by Injunction. See Sect. 12. before, and Injunction at Sect.

7. If a Fine or a Recovery be paſſed in the proper Court, and thereby a juſt Claim paſt, little hope of Relief is here, unleſs there be ſome notorious practice in it; for in theſe caſes the Court is very tender.

8. If another Court entertain a Suit for Tythes not tytheable, Prohibition lieth here, *F.N.B.*41.

The

The Heir entring into his Fathers houſe, had of his goods worth five ſhillings, and the Defendant ſued a Bond of Five hundred pounds againſt the Heir, as Executor of his own wrong: And proving he ſold or gave away the goods, a Verdict paſſed for the whole Five hundred pounds; which appearing by the Certificate of the Juſtices of Aſſiſe, an Injunction was granted to ſtay all Proceedings in this Action, and to forbid any new Action, till the Court have determined the matter, Car. Rep. 49.

The Plaintiff had a Judgment for Three hundred pounds, and was ordered to take Execution but for Two hundred pounds, Car. Rep. 52. A Debt upon a ſingle Bill ſatisfied, and the Bill not delivered, was ſued, and Execution gotten, and the party relieved here, 21 Eliz. Owens Caſe, Car. Rep. 74.

If one ſue here to be diſcharged of a Legacie, and after the Defendant did ſue for it in the Spiritual Court, this Court granted an Injunction, Car. Rep. 73. Legacy

If one man do unduly get a Judgment in the name of another, Relief may be had here, Car. Rep. 76. And ſo in all ſuch like caſes, where any conſiderable circumſtance of Equity is in the caſe; otherwiſe it will be diſmiſſed, Car. Rep. 76.

The Plaintiff deſired relief againſt an Obligation of One hundred pounds, with an inſenſible Condition put in Suit; for that the Plaintiff being deſired by the Defendant to ſeal a Releaſe, he deſired time only to be adviſed thereof, which the Defendant would not yield to, but hath put the Bond in ſuit, though no ways damnified, and now is ready to ſeal it, and an Injunction was granted, Car. Rep. 78. Injunction.

If one ſue for Tythes of Land not tytheable, it ſeems relief may be had here, Car. Rep. 79. Tythes

A drunken man ſued for words ſpoken in his drink, ſought for remedy here, but could have none: Qui peccat ebrius, luat ſobrius. Car. Rep. 93.

The Plaintiff ſought to be relieved upon an Obligation of Three hundred pounds, which he entred into to make a Jointure to his wife, in conſideration of One hundred ſeventy four pounds promiſed to him by the Defendant in marriage, which was never paid to him: In this caſe an Injunction was ordered, Car. Rep. 112.

The Defendant pleaded Non eſt factum to a Bond of Four hundred pounds, and it paſſed with the Defendant. The Plaintiff preferred his Bill, ſuppoſed he had promiſed payment after the Verdict, and it was received, 35 Eliz. Suttons Caſe, Tot. 137. Non eſt factum

But now by the new Ordinance, no Injunction is to be granted in any of theſe caſes before the Hearing of the Cauſe, to ſtay any Suit at Law; but upon matter confeſſed in the Defendants Anſwer, matter of Record, or in Writing under hand and ſeal produced in Court, Art. 28. Nor may any Injunction be granted after Plea pleaded at Law, or Rules given, to ſtop a Trial at Law, or any Pleadings or Proceedings preparatory to a Trial, Art. 29.

Sect. 14. Upon the hard dealing of the Landlord againſt the Tenant a Copyholder.

If the Lord of a Copihold-Manor deny to do right to his Tenant a Copiholder, according to the cuſtom of the Mannor; the Tenant may compel him to it by the help of this Court. Wherein take theſe things.

1. If the Copiholder will put out his Tenant, that payeth and doth his ſervices; or if he ſurrender in Court to the uſe of another, and the Lord refuſe to admit him to whoſe uſe the ſurrender was made; or will not keep Court for the benefit of his Copiholder; or exact uncertain Fines, they being certain; a Subpæna lieth.

2. So if he will not admit him upon a Deſcent.

3. So if he be ouſted of his Copihold, and the Lord will not hold a Court whereat he may ſue for his Right.

4. So in caſe of a falſe Judgment, upon a Petition to the Lord to redreſs it.

5. So to compel him to grant a Licence to let it.

6. A woman Copiholder for life, the Reverſion is granted to two for their lives, cum poſt mortem vel forisfacturam of the woman it ſhall happen, and ſhe take a huſband that doth ſurrender to the firſt in Reverſion, who is admitted and dieth; and after the next deſireth admittance, and could not have it, but the Lord entreth as an Occupant, as he might, and the husband and wife were willing to ſurrender to him in Reverſion for life; and the Lord refuſing to keep a Court, or leave the poſſeſſion, was ordered to do both in this Court, Tot. 3. 44, 45. Car. 3. Dyer 264. Fitz. Subpæna 21. Kitch. 82, 89. F. N. B. 12. Cromp. Jur. 51, 53.

7. Lands

7. Lands that had gone for Copihold of Inheritance, allowed here till they be recovered by Law, *Tot.*44,45.

8. A Copihold granted by the Lord at a Court held out of the Manor, made good againſt the Lord by Decree of this Court, *Tot.*45. Marks Caſe.

9. Mich. Eliz. in Chancery, the Defendant would not admit the Plaintiff this Copihold, under pretence that he had forfeited it by cutting Trees; but he was ordered to do it, becauſe he could not prove the cutting was by his directions, Tailors Caſe, *Tot.*140.

10. The reaſonableneſs of a Fine upon a Surrender ſhall be judged here; a years value of the Land was allowed good, *Car. Rep.*54.

11. The Court compelled the Lord to admit his Tenant, a Copiholder, to ſue at Law without any forfeiture, *Tot.*3. And yet ſee before *Sect.*12.

12. But if the Lord enter upon a Copiholder for a Forfeiture by breach of the Cuſtom, no relief is to be had here in this caſe, *Co.*4.24. *F.N.B.*12.

13. *Stone verſ. Whitmore, Hil.*1649. The Plaintiff ſued the Defendant to compel him, being Lord, to take the Plaintiffs Fine, which he pretended was certain, and to admit him; the Defendant demurred, becauſe it did belong to Law; but it was overruled, and the Lord ordered to keep Court and ſet the Fine, and then that a Trial be at Law, but the Coſts ſuſpended till the Trial were paſt: For the Plaintiff had no means in Law to compel the Lord to keep Court, &c.

14. A cuſtom to pay an incertain Fine at every alienation of the Lord, will not be admitted here; otherwiſe it may be to pay it at the death of the Lord. But a cuſtom to pay Fine incertain at the death or alienation of a Copiholder, may be good, and will be allowed here, *Car. Rep.*7.

15. But this Court doth not order for all Tenants in general, nor for any longer time than the preſent, except it be by agreement between the Lord and Tenants, which if reaſonable is here decreed, *Car. Rep.*27.

Sect. 15. For the Surety againſt the principal Debtor or Creditor.

For this, take theſe Caſes.

1. If I be Surety for another to pay money, or to do any other thing, and he doth it not, but ſuffer me to be damnified by it: In this caſe I may here, if I have no remedy at Law, compel him to diſcharge me, *D. & St. lib.*1.

2. If I be bound with A. B. to pay money at a day, and he is bound to ſave me harmleſs, and at the day I pay the money, and then ſue my Counterbond, he may avoid this Suit at Common-Law; but in this Court I may compel him to pay me the money again, *M.*31,32 *Eliz. Cromp.*43,44. in Chancery.

3. If the principal Debtor and the Creditor will by agreement without my privity that am the Surety, continue the Debt after the firſt day of payment, when I do ſuppoſe it to be paid; in this caſe the Court will compel the Creditor to take his relief of him, and diſcharge me, my Heirs, Executors, &c. Miles Caſe, 5 Car. Hares Caſe, 10 Jac. Sanders Caſe, 10 *Jac. Tot.*181.

4. If the principal Debtor have Lands deſcended, and his Heir have conveyed them in truſt, I may here compel the ſale of them to pay the Debts, *Tot.*182.

5. If he aſſign Debts, which be things in Action, to me, I may recover them here, *Tot.*182.

Sect. 16. Upon a Deteiner of my Lands, Deeds or Goods, to diſcover and recover them.

If a man hold my Land from me, I may ſue him here, and ſuppoſe he doth keep my Evidences from me alſo, and put him to ſet forth by what title he doth claim it; wherein are theſe things.

1. If I have occaſion to bring an Action for the Land, and cannot tell the Tenant, I may ſue the Occupier here, and he muſt ſhew what he or any other claimeth to his knowledg, that I may know who to ſue; yet ſome doubt of this. The Defendant held over his Term; the Court put him to ſhew what time his Leaſe was, M. 6 *Car. Tot.*183.

So the Conuſee of a Statute did here force the Leſſee for years to ſet down all the particulars of his Leaſe, to ſee whether it were extendible or not, 11 *Car. Tot.*183. *Tot.*20. Creſwels Caſe, *Tot.*99. *Car. Rep.*16.

If one detain from me my Evidences, and they be not in any Box or Cheſt locked, and I know not the certain Contents of them, ſo as to bring an Action at Law for them, them, I may recover them here. For explanation, take theſe Caſes.

1. Wrights Caſe, circa 28 Eliz. in Chancery one did exhibit his Bill for Evidences of Land, and made himſelf a title to the Land, and the Defendant made himſelf a title alſo, and juſtified the detaining of them; and it was referred to a Tryal at Law for the title, and ordered, That he ſhould have the Evidences with whom the Verdict paſſed, Cromp. Jur. 44. Caries Rep. 16.

2. If the Heir happen to get Writings, that by Law do belong to him, but in Intereſt to the Executor; or the Executor get writings that by Law do belong to him, but in Intereſt to the Heir, as Bonds or Statutes for the ſecuring of the Land of the Heir, or the like: In theſe caſes they may enforce the delivery of them here, Broo. Oblig. 18. 68. Chattel 6.

3. If one be bound in a Bond to me for money, and he hath gotten the Bond; I may ſue here for the Bond, and for the money without the Bond, Weſt.

If one have any other goods of mine, and I cannot tell what they be, I may ſue for them, to Diſcover and Recover them in this Court, 39 H. 6. 16. And if I have loſt my goods, and cannot tell who hath them; I may here ſuppoſe any man to have them, and put him to diſcover on his Oath, whether they have or know of them; and albeit the caſe be ſuch that I may by a Suit at Common Law recover them, yet I may here in this Court, for preparation to that Suit force the poſſeſſor to make, and ſet down an Inventory of them, Cromp. Jur. 45. If Lands be given by one Deed ſeverally to two men, he that hath the Deed ſhall be compelled here to ſhew it, for the defence of the others Title, 9 Ed 4. 41. If the King had granted to me all the goods of A attainted by Felony, and I know not the certainty of them; yet I may compel any man that hath them, to make an Inventory of them in this Court, 36 H. 6. 26. where Deeds do concern as well the Defence of the Title of the Tenant for life, as of him that poſſeſſeth the Deeds, being to him in Reverſion or Remainder; in this caſe it is uſual for this Court to order them to be brought into the Court, Caries Rep. 19. So in ſuch like caſes, where the Land is yet in queſtion, or the Court hath not determined who ſhall have it, Caries Rep. 52. 18 Eliz. The Plaintiff ſued for Tokens he had delivered to the Defendant, when he was a Suitor to her; ſhe confeſſed part of them in her hand, which the Court forced her to deliver forthwith; and for the reſt, that the Plaintiff left them againſt her will, and ſhe delivered them to a friend of the Plaintiffs that dealt between them; and for that, ordered that he take his Remedy againſt the friend, Caries Rep. 55. Where the Court doth ſee cauſe, it will force the Defendant to bring the Writings in Court, by a Ducens tecum, Caries Reports 67. 43. 52. 53.

For this, take theſe caſes.

1. This Court would not change an Eſtate in Fee, depending on an Eſtate in Tail, Tothil 84. Sect. 17. About an Eſtate in Tail.

2. An Eſtate in Tail was Ordered to be cut off, againſt the Proviſo of a Deed, onely to make a Wife a Joynture, and to ſettle the reſt as it was before, Bailies caſe, 38 Eliz. Tothil 82.

A. deceaſed, late Father to the Plaintiff, did give the Land Intailed to the Father of the Defendant, reſerving forty pound Rent to him and his Heirs, after granted twenty five pound, part of the Rent, to the Plaintiffs for their lives; the Defendants Father did Attorn and pay the Rent to the Plaintiffs, till two years before his death, after the Iſſue in Tail refuſed, but was ordered here, Caries Rep. 92.

A Father being Tenant in Tail of Land, ſells this Land, and leaves as much free Land to diſcend to his Heir in Tail; in this caſe it was ordered that the Heir ſhall repay the money paid by the Purchaſor, according to the Fathers Will, or elſe the Plaintiff ſhall have the Fee-ſimple, Ruled, Pearces caſe, Tothil 183, 184.

In this Court a man ſhall have Relief for the recovery of his Land, Debt, or Duty, where by Law he hath none. For the knowledge whereof take theſe things. Sect. 18. About the way of Recovery of Land, a Debt, or Duty.

1. If I have a good Title to Land, but have loſt my conveyance, I may recover my Land in this Court, Caries Rep. 24. Goſlets caſe. The Plaintiff ſued to have his Leaſe, and ſuppoſed it to end at Lady-day, 1604. had it Decreed; and after, finding the Leaſe, it did not end till 1605. after he moved he might continue the Land till 1605; but it would not be granted without a new Bill, Caries Rep. 25.

Rent. 2. If I have a good title to Rent, but no means to gain it, as if it be a Seck, and I have had no Seiſin of it, or another Rent, and I have not had any Attornment of the Tenant, or the Rent is by ſome accident without any recompence for it diſcharged, or the like, I may recover it here. So if it hath been uſually paid, but I can ſhew no Deed of it, Tothil 171, 172. 77. 173. And yet ſome ſay in the caſe of lack of Seiſin of a Rent, I ſhall have no remedy here, Co. upon Littl. 159. So the Lord Keeper and Judges, M. 1596. Caries Rep. 5. But a man poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years Deviſed a Rent out of it, without clauſe of diſtreſs, and made his Wife Executrix, ſhe married, and ſhe and her Husband ſold the Leaſe; in this caſe the Court Ordered the Recompence to be made by the Executor, and would not charge the Land, 9 Jac. Wats caſe, Tothil 77.

Executor.

Eſpecialty loſt. 3. If one ow me money on an Eſpecialty, and I have loſt it, or cannot come at it, yet if I can prove it, I may recover my money here, Caries Rep. 25.

Error 4. If I ſue for, and recover a Debt at Common-Law, and for Error it is Reverſed in the Exchequer-chamber, I may after notwithſtanding recover it here. Cuttings caſe, 40 Eliz. Caries Rep. 8.

Limitation. 5. In ſome caſes, albeit I be gone in point of time by the Statute of Limitation, 21 Jac. by not ſuing for it in time; yet I ſhall have relief here, eſpecially when it hath been demanded within the time; or when it is given and directed to be paid by Will, Tothil 178. 179. 53.

Elegit 6. An Elegit being returned and filed, and the time thereof elapſed, and yet the Plaintiff unſatisfied his Debt; he was relieved here, and the Elegit revived, Tothil 179.

Extent 7. This Court will order the Lands extended to be delivered to the Plaintiff in execution, and at the value it is found, Tothil 178.

8. If the King had given Forfeit-goods to A. he might have recovered it here, 39 H. 6. 26.

9. But if Lands be extended by a Jury much under value, and there be no practiſe in the caſe, it ſeems no remedy is to be had here; for the Debtor may help himſelf by payment of the money, Cromp. Jur. 55. 15 H. 7. Dupleys caſe. And if a Defendant hath waged his Law in an Action, and thereby the Plaintiff is barred, or a Grand Jury in an Attaint do finde with the Petit Jury, though never ſo much againſt Truth, and a man have twenty witneſſes to diſprove it, this Court will not give Relief, D. & St. 31. Cromp. Jur. 49.

Bar in Action Final.

For this obſerve theſe caſes.

Sect. 19. About a Deviſe and how it ſhall be taken and performed in Equity.

1. The meaning of a Will is to be performed, and will be ordered here, Cobs caſe, Tothil 141.

2. An Averment of a Will not allowed by Law, will be received here, to have the intent performed, Tothil 188, 189.

3. Lands Deviſed to two, to be equally divided betwixt them and their Heirs, Agreed and Ordered here to be a Tenancy in Common, and the Survivor denied to have all, Tothil 79.

4. Doctor Ford, by his Will deviſed his Land to his Wife in theſe words, (Non per viam fidei Comiſſa) for which his Son might ſue her; but hoping that if his Son grew thrifty, that at her death ſhe would leave the Remnant of theſe Leaſes to him; ſhe married Greyſal, and before marriage he did write to her that ſhe ſhould diſpoſe theſe Leaſes at her death, after marriage he ſells the Leaſes; the Son ſues here, but had no relief, Caries Rep. 22, 23.

The Plaintiffs Father, ſeiſed of Land in Fee, by a Nuncupative Will deviſed three hundred pound out of his Land, to be paid to raiſe portions, two hours before his death, and becauſe the Father had diſ-inherited him of other Land, the Court freed him of this payment, 13 Jac. Samburns caſe, Tothil 184.

The Plaintiffs Father did fully reſolve that he ſhould have the Leaſe, make a kinde of Deviſe of it to him, divers times ſay that he had given it to him, the Defendant that had the Leaſe, ſay and proteſt, as he was a Chriſtian man, he ſhould have it, offered an Agreement, and to give him two hundred pound for the Leaſe; it was Decreed he ſhould have it, Redmans caſe, 28 Eliz. Tothil 69. A Deviſe void in Law, by reaſon of a miſ-recital of a Grant, and lack of Attornment, Decreed here to be good, Bacons caſe, Tothil 79. A breach of a condition upon a Deviſe, was here holpen againſt the Heir, Serjeants caſe, 39 Eliz. Tothil 77. If there be a great overplus of Eſtate, and no diſpoſal thereof by the Will; this Court doth Order it to the Teſtators Kinſfolk, and to charitable uſes, Breretons caſe, 6 Jac. Tothil 87. A Deviſe of money to a woman, if ſhe would be divorced from her husband, was decreed good, without Divorce, Tenants caſe, 6 Jac. Tothil 78. If one poſſeſſed of a a term, Deviſe it to another beſides the Executor, and he have not Aſſets to pay debts and ſell it, there is no relief to be had here: But if he have enough beſides, and yet ſell it, the Legatee ſhall have relief here againſt him; and if the buyer did know of the Deviſe, the Subpœna ſhall go againſt them both, but the Court will not avoid the ſale; before the ſale haply the Court will not avoid the ſale, but before the ſale happily the Court will prohibit it, Plow 539. 519. See more in Section nine before. If A. and B. be bound joyntly and ſeverally to C. in a Bond of a hundred pound, and C. gives to A. all the debts he owed him; C. died, and his Executor ſued A. for the debts. A complained for relief here; in this caſe the Lord Keeper doubted upon the manner of the Deviſe onely, being clear, that if the debt had been from A. alone, he would have relieved him, 6 Car. in Chancery. If one give his Leaſes to his wife, thus hoping that if his Son be towardly ſhe will leave them to him, but not that he may ſue her, and before her ſecond marriage he promiſed to leave them to him; yet after the marriage he ſold them, and no remedy could be had here, Caries Rep. 23.

A Legacy was recoverable here; but by the new Ordinance it is provided, it ſhall be ſued for at Common Law. Enquire how and where, and what the practice and experience is.

On this, obſerve theſe caſes.

Firſt, If Leſſee for years Demiſeth parcel of the term to another, and after, covinouſly, forfeit his Leaſe for a condition broken, and then take back the Land or Leaſe again; in this caſe the Leſſee of parcel ſhall be relieved here, 1 Ed. 4. 4. Cromp. 64, 65. Caries Rep. 18. See Section 12. before. Upon a Fraudulent practice to avoid a Leaſe.

Secondly, If one enter into a Statute in my name, it ſeems I cannot avoid it here, but I ſhall have remedy by a Writ of Deceipt; but if he be of my name alſo, I may againſt this avoid it by Plea, Caries Rep. 22.

If, before the Statutes of Fraud, the Debtor had made a Deed of Gift of his Goods, to defraud his Creditors, and continued the poſſeſſion of them, and took Sanctuary and died there, his Executors having the Goods might be chargable here, 16 Ed. 4. 9. Caries Rep. 18. To avoid a Debt.

If one buy Goods of me for money, and after, being a begger, and purpoſing to defeat me of my Debt, gives the Goods to one J. S. but uſeth them all his life time and dies, and then his wife kept them; ſhe married, and her husband kept them; in this caſe J. it ſeems may here ſue the husband and wife upon this Covin: For they cannot be charged by Law as Executors of their own wrong, becauſe the Goods were the Goods of J. S. in Law, 16 Ed. 4. 9 Cromp. Jur. 62, 63.

2. If one ſue for Land, and the Defendant, hanging the Suit, make ſecret conveyances of the Land; this Court will order him to diſcharge the Land thereof, Tothil 108.

3. If a Scrivener appointed to draw a Deed of a Farm, and all the Land belonging to it, makes it of purpoſe of the Farm cum pertinentiis, and after gets a Grant of it himſelf, to avoid the Deed; this Court will avoid this, Harbins caſe, Tothil 99. To avoid a Convey. nce.

4. If I be a ſimple man, and another cunningly procures me to convey my Land to him for nothing; albeit he ſell it to Purchaſors, and a diſcent be caſt, yet this Court will order the reaſſuring of the Land, Lewis caſe, Tothil 42, 43. To get a man's Land from him.

5. If Goods be given to defraud Creditors, in ſuch a caſe as the gift be not avoidable by the Statutes, poſſibly the Party may be relieved here, 16 Edw. 4. 9.

Fraud upon Fraud.

6. If a Debtor will colude with ſome of his friends to deceive his Creditors, and his Friends break their truſt with him; it ſeems this Court will not give relief in this caſe, Fallere fallentem non eſt fraus; and yet ſometimes the Court, in this caſe hath ordered the Goods, ſo conveyed by Fraud to the Creditors, Caries Rep. 13.

7. If a copy of Court-Roll be indirectly entred, the party wronged may have Relief here; and albeit the Homage finde the Copy true, yet this will not hinder Relief, Caries Rep. 55. If one ſell Land, and before the Aſſurance made, convey it to another that knoweth of the ſale, it will be holpen here. So if he convey it to another that hath notice, Caries Rep. 82. So if he convey it to any of his children, Tothil 107.

Upon falſhood in Fellowſhip.

If two Executors be, and one of them releaſe the Debts (as he may) and there be not enough beſides to perform the Will; in this caſe the other Executor may ſue him in Chancery; and if there be covin between him and the Debtor, the Subpœna may be had againſt them both, 4 H. 7. 4. Cromp. Jur. 106. 11 Ed. 4. 2.

Sect. 20.

Executor.

Uſe.

And if one be bound to two in an Obligation, to the uſe of one of the two onely, and the other releaſe the Debt (as he may by Law) he to whoſe uſe it is, may have relief here, and againſt them both, if the Debtor were privy to it, 7 H. 7. 11. If two have any Commodity of Land or Goods together as Jointenants, or the like, and one of them take, or ſell all from the other: In this caſe, if it be in caſe where he hath no remedy by Law, as in ſome caſes of Merchants that are Partners, and in ſome others; the party grieved may have remedy here, D. & St. 12. 175. Cromp. Jur. 49. And yet in Caries Rep. 21. it is ſaid, That if one Jointenant take all the profits, the other ſhall have no remedy, except there be an Agreement or Promiſe of Account. If two Copartners or Jointenants joyn in a Q. Impedit, and the one of them plead covinouſly; this Court will compel him to joyn with the other in the Plea or Preſentment. So if Lands be given ſeverally, by one Deed to two men; he which hath the Deed, ſhall be compelled to ſhew it for the defence of the others title, 9 Ed. 4. 41. Caries Rep. 15.

Jointenants.

Executors.

One Executor ſued another, ſuppoſing that divers Goods were left with them to be delivered to children at their full age; and the truſt and charge being joynt, which may ſurvive, he deſires they may give Bond one to the other, that they, or if they die, their Executors ſhall pay the children their Portions when they come of age; and it was thought fit to be decreed, Caries Rep. 79. Two are made Executors to the uſe of children, one of them gets the Eſtate into his hands, makes a Teſtament, and gives in Legacies as much as this, and all the reſt of his Eſtate, and dies; his Executor was ordered here, firſt of all, out of all the Eſtate, to ſatisfie this Eſtate of the firſt Teſtator, Wray Chief Juſtice caſe, Caries Rep. 86, 87.

Sect. 21.

To have Prohibition to ſtop an injury.

Waſte.

In ſome caſes where an injury is done to me, the which is continued and increaſed, I may ſtay it here by a prohibition; as in caſe of ſome Waſtes, by cutting down of Woods, or ploughing up of Grounds; wherein take theſe things.

Firſt, A Prohibition was granted here to ſtay the ploughing of ancient Paſtures by the Tenant thereof, Tothil 52.

Leaſe without impeachment of Waſte.

Secondly, The Leſſee of an Eſtate diſpuniſhable of Waſte, was here prohibited to deſtroy the houſes, Morgans caſe, Tothil 92. At another time to do Waſte in Woods and Houſes, Kings caſe, 4 Car. Tothil 82. And the Leſſee of ſuch a Tenant was here forbidden to do Waſte, 11 Jac. Tothil 82. And a Biſhop made a Leaſe before the firſt of Queen Elizabeth, without impeachment of Waſte, which was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter. And the Leſſee cut Timber, and it being moved here, the Lord Keeper ſaid, becauſe the Biſhop was puniſhable for Waſte; therefore he would forbid it, otherwiſe not. But he did not forbid the ſale of what was cut, Trin. 6 Car. The Biſhop of Sarums caſe.

Timber.

Thirdly, Leſſee for life the Remainder for life, the Remainder in Fee and the firſt Leſſee for life doth Waſte; in this caſe, albeit he in Remainder in Fee hath no remedy by the Common-Law; yet he ſhall have a Prohibition to reſtrain him from doing more Waſte, Cromp. Jur. 48, 49. Caries Rep. 20, 26. Tenant in Tail

after

after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, ſhall not be reſtrained, Doct. & Stud. Lib. 2. chap. 3.

Fourthly, Birch-Trees in ſome Countries agreed to be Timber-Trees, and here forbidden to be cut down, 8 Jac. Tothil 86.

Fifthly, If the Leſſee of a Copiholder dig Gravel, or cut Trees, or the like, which is not Waſte in the Copiholder; yet he may be reſtrained, Caries Rep. 63.

Sixthly, Two houſes adjoyning being upheld by one main Wall ſtanding upon the Freehold of either party, and one of them hath neceſſary Rooms ſtanding upon the others Kitchen, and he went about to pull down his under Rooms, which would be the ruine of the upper Rooms; an Injunction was granted to ſtay it till examination of the matter, Caries Rep. 90.

Sect. 22. About an Inclosure.

This Court doth order Incloſures of Common Grounds, when it is for common good; wherein take theſe caſes.

1. It hath ordered Colledges, and the Perſon of a Church to agree hereunto, Tothil.

2. Becauſe Lands have been incloſed thirty years together by conſent of moſt of the Pariſh; it was ordered ſo to continue, Pigots caſe, 4 Jac. And yet in 2 Car. in Ingrams caſe, the Court would not binde a man that did not agree to it.

3. M. 22 Jac. Trigs caſe. The Court would not decree an Incloſure, becauſe it was a Depopulation, and the Plaintiff refuſed to give the Defendant amends for his common.

4. If any prejudice be to the High-ways, or any converſion of Tillage into Paſture, or ſuch like publick prejudice by the Incloſure; this Court will not order it, Tothil 109, 110, 111.

5. The Defendant once agreeing after diſagreed, was ordered to ſtand to his firſt Agreement, Foxes caſe, 13 Car.

Deeds how to be proved here.

A Releaſe was pretended to be loſt, and it was depoſed it had been ſeen; but this not allowed for proof, unleſs he would ſwear, that he had ſeen it ſealed and delivered; it is not ſufficient to ſay he ſaw it after it was a Deed: And no Deed is to be allowed here, unleſs it be produced, or the Execution thereof proved, Caries Rep. 31.

Sect. 23. Accompt.

A Bill was brought againſt Executors to the Father, who was Guardian in Soccage for the profits of the Land which he had received of his Wives Childes Land, and the Plaintiff did aver they had Aſſets, and the Defendants demurred, becauſe they were not privy to the Account, but were ordered to anſwer, Caries Rep 54. The Suit was for certain Rents, Fines, and Woodſales, received by the Defendants Teſtator during the Plaintiffs minority, and it appeared, That if the Plaintiff had made good proof he had been relieved: A Commiſſion was therefore awarded by conſent, Caries Rep. 114. And yet in the caſe of Fleetwood, 21 Eliz. it was ordered, That if the Plaintiff did charge the Defendant by the Bill, for the Iſſues and Profits meerly by way of Account, then that the Defendants ſhould not anſwer: But if they were charged by way of promiſe, then that they ſhould anſwer, Caries Rep. 114. But it ſeems the practice is otherwiſe. This Court regularly will not make a void Award good: But ſome uſe it will make of it for Evidence and Advice, eſpecially when an Award is final and reaſonable, as to all the matters in difference between them; and ſometimes it will Decree the very things themſelves contained in the Award; and then eſpecially, when the parties hands are to it, ſhewing their Agreement to it, Tothil 16. And therefore a Suit being for Land about a Cuſtom, and both parties agreeing, that the Judges of Aſſize had made an Award in it; it was decreed, that both parties ſhould perform it, and that either party ſhall have Injunctions one againſt the other, Burtets caſe, 2 Eliz. Caries Rep. 47. and 19 Eliz. The Plaintiff ſued to have an Award made by certain Arbitrators indifferently choſen to be performed; for performance whereof, both parties were bound one to other: One part whereof was, That if any difference ſhould after ariſe, the ſame Arbitrators ſhould end it; and the Court ordered the Bill ſhould be retained, Barkers caſe, Caries Rep. 57. And 19 Eliz. there was a Suit to have an Award in writing, made by the Lord Chief Juſtice, and under his hand and the hands of the parties decreed; and the party was called by Proces, to ſhew why it ſhould not be ſo, Wakefields caſe, Caries Rep. 64.

Award.

And

And where an Award is good, there this Court will order the performance of it, and grant Injunction as occaſion ſhall be to ſtay Suits againſt the meaning thereof, Caries Rep. 106.

No Tenant by Elegit or Extent, ſhall be forced to account here for more then the extended value upon any Statute, Recogniſance, or Judgment, unleſs the Suit be begun within a year after the Extent be executed, and poſſeſſion delivered, and enjoyment thereupon accordingly, except in caſe of Infancy Coverture, Non ſane memorie, or being beyond Sea; and in theſe caſes within a year after the impediment removed. Ordinance for Regulating the Chancery, Art. 53.

Under value. A Suit was brought here, and becauſe it was for ſix pounds onely, it was diſmiſſed, Marbers caſe, 21 Eliz. Caries Rep. 83.

Another in the ſame year being for five pounds for Fiſh, was diſmiſſed, Richards caſe, Caries Rep. 100.

So another being for a Rent of ten ſhillings by the year onely, was diſmiſſed, Knightons caſe, 21 Eliz. Caries Rep. 80.

So alſo another the ſame year was diſmiſſed, becauſe the Land ſued for, was not worth forty ſhillings a year, Townlies caſe, Caries Rep. 74.

So another was diſcharged the ſame year, becauſe it appeared to be for nothing but a liberty to dry Cloaths upon a Parol-Agreement onely, Hambies caſe, Caries Rep. 76.

And in that year alſo was another Suit in this Court for a Hawk and certain Evidences, ſuppoſed to be in the hands of the Defendant, and the Court obſerving that the Evidences were put in for a colour onely, diſmiſſed it, Glaſiers caſe, Caries Rep. 82. And yet if it be under value, and for the poor of a Pariſh, the Court will hear it, Caries Rep. 103.

Jointenants. This Court will not order, That the Survivorſhip of Jointenants ſhall not hold place according to Law. And yet two Jointenants were, and one of them did promiſe the other upon his Death-Bed, not to take advantage of the Survivor, but to ſuffer it to go to the payment of the others Debts, and thereupon he Deviſed part of it to pay his Debts: And this was Decreed, and that the Survivor ſhould make the Eſtate accordingly. Springs caſe, 21 Eliz. Caries Rep. 81.

And in Mich. 7 Car. Two Joint-Purchaſors were, and one of them Deviſed his part for payment of his Debts, and it was ordered here, Mathers caſe, Tothil 79.

But if two Joyntenants be, and they cannot agree upon the Preſentment to a Church, but ſuffer a Lapſe; there is no remedy here, D. & St. L. 2. ch. 33.

Two Jointenants, Siſters, of a Leaſe for years, they marry, one of them dieth, the other claimeth the whole by Survivorſhip; and the Husband of her that is dead ſued here, and pretended, That there was ſome ſecret Act done in her life, by which the Joynture was ſevered, but the Court would not order the Defendant to Anſwer it, Caries Rep. 9.

Ne exeat Regno. If one have my money, and I perceive him going out of the Land, I may by Suit ſtay him here till he have given me ſecurity to pay me, upon the the Statute of the Fifth of Richard the Second, Ch. 2. Cromp. Jur. 64: Tothil 136.

This Court doth not give Remedy in Criminal things, nor in caſe of Miſdemeanor, as for Perjury, Forgery, or the like; and yet for Miſdemeanors done in this Court, it will give relief, and puniſh the offenders, as in caſe of Perjury in this Court, miſ-carriage of a Commiſſioner in examination of witneſſes, or any practice here by a Suit, examination of witneſſes or otherwiſe, Caries Rep. 56, 63, 68, 72, 75, 90, 99. 56. 68. Eſtoppel.

Every Eſtoppel in Law, is not an Eſtoppel in Conſcience. For, if a lawful Heir and her ſiſter, a Baſtard, had ſued out Livery together, the lawful Heir might have had Remedy here, D. & St. 34.

In theſe and ſuch other like caſes, where no ordinary Remedy is given by the Common Law, Relief may be had here, and no where elſe, by way of Bill and Anſwer: But in caſes where there is an ordinary and clear Remedy for any injury by the Common Law, this Court will not meddle with it, 39 H. 6. 26. 7 H. 7. 11. as in divers of the caſes before.

Ways. Commons.

And therefore in caſes of Titles of Commons, Ways, or upon Cuſtoms, Preſcriptions or the like, no Relief is to be had here. And yet in Wentworths caſe, 2 Eliz. A Fold, Courſe, or Common of Paſture, was Decreed, Caries Rep. 46.

Alſo in this Court one ſued for Common of Turbery and Paſture, and the Defendant Demurred, and was over-ruled, Caries Rep. 64.

Alſo in this Court one may ſet out or aſcertain a Common, or ſet out the Bounds of a Way, Caries Rep. 83. Tothil 48, 49.

Sect. 26. Cuſtoms.

A Bill allowed for a Title of Common, to examine Witneſſes, and upon Publication to go to Law, 39 Eliz. Throckmortons caſe.

Nor can one ſue in this Court for Debt upon a Bond or Bill, Treſpaſs, Slander, or the like, or to avoid a fraudulent Deed made to deceive Purchaſors or Creditors; nor ſue to prevent a Woman of her Dower, becauſe her Husband was de non ſane memorie at the time of the marriage; for in theſe caſes the Common Law giveth Remedy: Nor to have the penalty upon a Penal-Statute, by way of Information, 39 Eliz. Cowards caſe. Tothil 18. Caries Rep. 57. And yet ſome circumſtances, as lack of Witneſſes, or the like, may make theſe caſes fit for the Chancery, Tothil 10. 39 H. 6. 26. 7 H. 7. 11. Cromp. Jur. 65. 44. Tothil 189.

And this Court hath ſometimes Decreed theſe things, as 6 Eliz. there was a Decree that the Tenant ſhould pay his Rent, and do his ſervice, and the Arrears thereof, Caries Rep. 52.

And

And in cases tending to overthrow a Maxim or Fundamental point of the Common-Law, this Court is tender, and will not admit any suit in it. And therefore if a man de non sane memorie make a Deed, he himself shall not be received here to avoid his own Deed, Co. 4. 127.

To avoid a mans own Deed.

And yet a man may have relief here against his own Deed, be it Fine, Feoffment, Release or otherwise, in case where it was unduly procured by practice, fraud or force, or without any consideration at all, Tot. 42, 43. Cromp. Jur. 53. Dyer 169. See Sect. 8. before, Tot. 170, 171, 178.

Actio personalis.

If a man do a personal wrong, and die, the party wronged is remediless both in Law and Equity, Co. 4. 127. And hence it is, that if my Goods be sold in a Market overt, and the Property altered, I shall have no remedy in Equity, D. & St. 40. 7 H. 7. 12.

Sale of goods in a Market.

Fine by a Feme-covert. Sect. 27.

If a woman levy a Fine with fear, and by a kind of compulsion, and so is barred, she hath no remedy in Law or Conscience, D. & St. 5.

To have a Re-entry.

If a Lease be made rendring Rent with a clause of Re-entry, the Rent is behind, and the Lessor die before any demand made thereof; in this case his Heir may not enter in Law, nor will this Court enable him so to do, D. & St. c. 20. l. 1. And hence it is, that if a Tenant in tail after possibility of issue extinct commit waste, no remedy can be had against him here, no more than in Law, D. & St. 2. ch. 3. If a man have a Wife an Inheretrix, and her Father dyeth, and he maketh all the speed he can to make his Entry, but his Wife dyeth before he can do it; in this case he cannot be Tenant by the courtesie, but for this he is remediless in Law and Equity both, D. & St. l. 2. c. 15.

Waste.

Tenant by the Courtesie.

Heir.

If a father leave his son and heir a great Debt, and Assets in Land to pay it; he cannot avoid it in Law nor Equity, D. & St. l. 2. 49. And if a man make a Lease of Land to a man and his wife, rendring a greater Rent then the Land is worth, and the husband die, the wife may choose whether she will meddle with the Land. So if it come to Executors, they may refuse it if they have not Assets besides; and this Court will not compel them to occupy the Land and pay the Rent, D. & St. 121, 122. And yet in some of the cases of this nature, sometimes some circumstances make it properly examinable in this Court.

Husband and Wife.

Executors.

Sect. 28. Fine.

So also it is in cases tending to overthrow Acts of Parliament made for the publick good and general Repose of the People: In these cases this Court will not easily admit of a complaint. And hence it is, that regularly it doth not give relief to a man that is barred by a Fine with Proclamation, and no Claim or Common-Recovery, D. & St. 40. 155. 33. So that a woman that was a Feme-covert when she levied the Fine, cannot come here and say she did it for fear, D. & St. 155. Car. Rep. 5. And in this case also the case may be fit for Equity in some cases, as of a Fine levied by an Infant, or the like.

By the new Ordinance for Regulating of the Chancery, it is provided,

1. That no Decree be made here against an Act of Parliament. Art. 47.
2. That none shall sue here for a Legacie, Art. 48.
3. That no Relief be given here for that which a man may recover at Common-Law, unless it be to have the thing in kinde, where it cannot be had in Law, Art. 46.

in Specie

4. Nor may any Injunction be had now of course, but upon the merits of the cause, Art. 27.

Recovery.

A Devise was of the Heirs third part of Lands in capite, and the Court decreed it against the Heir: But it was afterward reversed as an erroneous Decree for the cause aforesaid, the Case appearing in the Decree it self, Pasch. 16 Jac. Sir Henry Roswels Case.

And in the cases of this nature also there do fall out some circumstances also which make them fit to be examinable in Equity, and in such cases they are received here. And therefore where an Act of Parliament hath been taken one way for a time, and after is taken another way, Relief may be in Equity for cases arising before the alteration.

And in all theſe, when a Plaintiff doth exhibit a Bill tending to any ſuch purpoſe as before, if it appear to be ſo in the Bill exhibited, the Defendant may demur to it and caſt it out of Court by diſmiſſion; if it appear to be ſo in the end of the Caſe when it comes to Trial, then the Court will caſt it out. And if in the interpleading by Bill and Anſwer they fall upon an Iſſue in Law, as Will or no Will, or the like, the Court doth uſually ſend it to Law to be tryed.

The manner and method of proceeding in ſuits by Bill and Anſwer in this Court.

In the Courts of the Common-Law, the Judges do proceed ſecundum poteſtatem ordinariam; but in this Court the Judges do proceed ſecundum poteſtatem abſolutam. And yet in this Court there is a twofold Power: Firſt, ordinary, which is in caſes of Traverſe, Recognizances, Partition, Scire facias, to repeal Patents, Extents, and the like; in all which they are to proceed according to the Rules of the Common-Law, and ſo it is a Court and Law. Secondly, They have another power that is more arbitrary and unlimited; and this is uſed by Bill and Anſwer: And in the exerciſe of this laſt power, the common method and proceſs is, firſt of all to call the Defendant in by a Subpœna, which is the firſt Writ, and is to require the Defendants appearance in this Court by a day, and under a pain, to make anſwer to the Complaint of the Plaintiff.

But for this and the Proceeding in this Court, See my Firſt Part of the Marrow of the Law, in fol. 656. unto the end of the Book. And ſee the new Ordinance of the Lord Protector and his Council, made the 22 of Auguſt 1654. and what Alterations be made thereby in the Proceedings and the Fees.

CHAP.

CHAP. XLIII.

Of Charge and Diſcharge.

1. Charge.

IT is an Act done by a man, binding him, or that which is his to the performance thereof, and making him, or it, or both ſubject thereunto. See Rent-charge.

Charge and Diſcharge.

Note, that Lands may be charged divers ways, as by Grants of Rent out of it, by Statutes, Judgments, Conditions, Warranties, and the like; and may be divers ways diſcharged again. For all which ſee much in other Titles. Lit. ſect. 648. & Co. ſuper Cro.

2. Where and in what caſe a charge ſhall be good in its Creation, and by what means Lands may be charged, and what Eſtates ſhall be liable to charge, and how long, where not.

And it is a Principle, That every Land in Fee-ſimple may be charged in Fee by one way or other, Lit. ſect. 648.

Where a Grant of Land will be good in reſpect of the parties, Grantor, Grantee, Thing granted, or the manner of the Grant, there a Charge upon the ſame Land will be good alſo: As if any Body Corporate or Politick, Dean and Chapter, Mayor or Commonalty, or the like, charge their Land by their Common-Seal, and common conſent, it is good. So if the Patron, or Parſon and Ordinary, or in time of Vacation the Patron and Ordinary charge the Land by their Grant, this would have bound the Land by the Common-Law: But in caſe where a Grant of the Land it ſelf would be void or voidable in reſpect of the parties, Grantor, Grantee, or thing granted, or the manner of the Grant, there a Charge upon the ſame Land will be void alſo, and the Land ſhall never be ſubject to it. As if an Infant, Feme-covert, Dean without his Chapter, Mayor without his Commonalty, or the like, grant a Rent out of their Land, this is void: But a Dean or Mayor in ſuch caſes may charge their own perſons, and their own Lands they have in their own right. So if one grant a Rent to a perſon uncapable; or if one by his Deed grant a Rent out of Land to which he hath no right nor poſſeſſion; or if he have the poſſeſſion, yet hath no right; or if he have right, yet hath no poſſeſſion, this will not charge the Land, albeit the party do after get a Right to it, or the Poſſeſſion and the Right come together, Perk. tit. Grants, 14 H. 8. 10. 5 H. 5. 8.

Sect. 1. Abeyance

Where the right of Fee-ſimple is perpetually by Judgment of Law in Abeyance, without any expectation to come in eſſe, there he that hath this qualified Fee concurrentibus his quæ in jure requiruntur, may charge the Land, and this Charge is good; as in the caſe of the Charge of Parſon, Patron and ordinary before the Statute. But where the Fee is in Abeyance, and may come in eſſe every hour, there it cannot be charged till it come: As if a Leaſe be made for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of I. S. the Fee-ſimple cannot be charged till I. S. be dead, Co. ſuper Lit. 343.

Lands intailed alſo may be charged in Fee, if the Eſtate-tail be cut off by Fine or Recovery: For if a Tenant in tail grant a Rent-charge, and after ſuffer Recovery, levy a Fine, or make a Feoffment, this Charge ſhall be always good againſt the Recoverer, Conuſee, or Feoffee: And ſo if he make a Leaſe. And ſo alſo in ſome caſes where the Eſtate doth continue: As if a Diſſeiſor make a Gift in tail, and the Donee in conſideration of a Releaſe by the Diſſeiſee of all his Right to the Donee, granteth a Rent-charge to the Diſſeiſee and his Heirs proportionable to the value of his Right, this will bind the Iſſue in tail. So if A. deviſe Land to B. and his Heirs of his body, the Remainder to C. on condition that B. ſhall grant a Rent-charge out of it to D. in Fee, and B. grant the Rent accordingly, this is good to bind the Eſtate-tail and the Remainder alſo, as was adjudged in Dutton & Iviane's Caſe, M. 15 Jac. B. R.

If a man have a moveable Inheritance, as in a great Meadow, two Acres by diviſion or election every year by Cuſtom, ſo that one year he hath it in one place, and another in another; this may be charged well enough, and the Charge will follow the Land, Co. ſuper Lit. fol 4 a. 343 b.

Donor & Donee

When all thoſe that have Intereſt in the Land joyn in the Grant of a Rent, ſo that the Grant is made Concurrentibus his quæ in jure requiruntur, the Grant is good for ever: As if at the Common-Law, Donor and Donee in tail had joyned in a Grant of a Rent, and the Donee die without Iſſue, the Donor ſhall hold the Land charged. So if the Mortgagor and Mortgagee join in the Grant of a Rent-charge, and after the Mortgagor enter for the Condition broken, yet the Rent doth continue. So if a Diſſeiſor or his Heir grant a Rent-charge, and the Diſſeiſee confirm it, this is now unavoidable when he doth recover the Land. So if Feoffee on Condition grant a Rent-charge in Fee, and the Feoffor confirm, and after the Condition is broken, and the Feoffor enter he cannot avoid the Rent. So if Leſſee for life charge the Land with a Rent in Fee, and the Leſſor confirm it, this is a good Rent for ever, albeit the Confirmation be made after the Tenant for life. So if Tenant for life on Condition grant a Rent-charge in Fee, Leſſor confirm the Grant, the Condition is broken, the Leſſor doth enter, Co. 1. 147. 149. 10. 49. Co. ſuper Lit. 300. 121. 301. 14 Aſſ. pl. 14. 14 Ed. 3 Aſſ. 109.

Mortgagor and Mortgagee.

Feoffor & Feoffee

Leſſor & Leſſee

If one have a Poſſeſſion and an ancient Right, and he grant a Rent-charge, this ſhall iſſue out of both. And therefore if Tenant in tail leaſe to A. for life, and after he grant a Rent-charge to B. A dies; he ſhall not avoid the Charge. So if A. Tenant in tail infeoff B on Condition to the uſe of A. in Fee; A. acknowledg a Statute, which by the Statute of 1 R. 3. c. 5. is extended, (A. having then but a Rent and a Condition;) the Condition is broken, by which the Feoffment is avoided, and he ſeiſed of the Intail again, yet A. ſhall not avoid the Extent. And ſo if he had granted a Rent-charge, Co. 2. 14. Co. 1. 147, 148. 11 H. 7. 21.

Rent charge

Remaind. or Reverſion

He that hath but a Remainder or Reverſion of Land, may charge it, and the Charge is good in reſpect of the Poſſibility, and the Diſtreſs ſhall faſten on the Land when it comes in Poſſeſſion, Co. 5. 2. 1. 62. and not before, Bro. Charge, 11. 30.

Reverſion expectant

And therefore he in the Reverſion expectant upon an Eſtate for life. may charge the Land. And if A. leaſe to B. for years, and after A. doth grant the Reverſion to C. rendring Rent; A. cannot diſtrain during the Term per Moyle, but per Danby & Nedham. If the Beaſts of C. come upon the Land, A. may diſtrain them; but Moyle al contra, but by him, if C. pay the Rent once to A. if it be a year after, A. may have an Aſſiſe. Bro. Diſtreſs 48. but after the Term is ended, A. may without queſtion diſtrain for all the Arrearages, Co 5. 2.

Heir

If A. leaſe to B. for life, and then grant a Rent-charge to C. A. die, B. being his heir, in this caſe B. ſhall hold the Land diſcharged during his life; but otherwiſe it is if he had purchaſed the Land, Per Nedham, 9 Ed. 4. 18.

Rent.

If A. leaſe to B. for life, A. charge the Land, A. doth diſſeiſe B. in this caſe A. ſhall forthwith hold the Land charged, 5 H. 5. 10.

If the Leſſor grant a Rent charge, and the Leſſee ſurrender, the Leſſor ſhall forthwith hold the Land charged, Bro. Charge 10.

If A. be Tenant by Elegit, and B. having the Reverſion doth grant a Rent-charge out of it, and after B. doth releaſe or confirm to A. for life; in this caſe A. ſhall hold it ſubject to this charge, 31 Aſſ. pl. 13.

A. being Tenant for life, the Remainder to B. in fee, or the Reverſion to him in fee, A. doth grant one Rent-charge out of the Land, and B. doth grant another Rent-charge, A. ſurrender: In this caſe B. ſhall hold the Land charged with both the Rents Co. 9. 107.

Seiſ. 12.

If one have divers Eſtates in Land, he may charge or grant them, Dyer 10.

Copyhold

If a Lord grant a Rent out of his Manor in which are Copiholds, and after one of the Copihold-eſtates fall into the Lords hand, and after this is granted away again according to the cuſtom; now it ſeems the Charge ſhall not light upon this which is ſo granted away, but upon the reſidue of the Manor. Yet ſee Dyer 271. Co. 4. 24. 64.

If one grant a Rent-charge out of Land that is in Leaſe for years or life, it will faſten faſten upon the Land as ſoon as by any means it come into the hands of the Grantor, and not before But it may be the perſon of the Grantor may be charged before: See before. And he that is in Poſſeſſion, and he that is in Reverſion or Remainder of the Land, may both charge the Land, but the charge of the Tenant in poſſeſſion ſhall be preferred, 5 *H.*5.8 *Co.*2.137. Dyer 10.

If one Jointenant grant a Rent-charge out of his Land he holdeth in Jointenancie, the beaſts of any of the other Jointenants ſhall not be diſtrained, neither ſhall they be charged hereby; but the beaſts of the Grantor may be diſtrained upon the Land: But if the Grantor ſurvive the reſt of his companions, all the Land is chargeable; but if he die before the reſt, all the Land is diſcharged. So if one Joint-tenant enter into a Statute, or ſuffer a Judgment, his part only ſhall be extended and ſubject to the charge whiles his companions live: But if he ſurvive, then all ſhall be in Execution, unleſs his companions did ſever the Jointure in their life-time; and if he die before his companions, yet the Execution is not diſcharged of his part, 7 *H.*6.1. Perk. ſ.183. 11 *H.*6.33. Bro. Charge 39. Execution 148. *Co. ſuper Lit.*184. 13 *H.*7.22. *F.N.B.*20.

If a Mayor alone, or a Dean alone, will charge the Land they have in common with the Corporation, none of the Corporation ſhall be charged, nor the Land, but the perſon of the Dean or Mayor himſelf.

If four be bound in a Statute or Recogniſance, and one die, the three that ſurvive ſhall not be charged with all, but thoſe three with the Heir of the fourth together equally, 29 *Aſſ. f.*37.

If two be bound jointly in an Obligation, and one die, or be outlawed, it ſeems the other ſhall be charged with the whole. So if two be Accountants, and one die, or be outlawed: So if two warrant Land, and the one hath nothing to render in value, it ſeems the other muſt anſwer all. But if two men make a Feoffment in fee with Warranty, and the one die, the Feoffee cannot charge the Survivor only, but the Heir of him that is dead alſo, *Bro. Jointe.*5.16.21. 9 *Ed.*4.24. *Co. ſuper Lit.*386. 3.14. 19 *H.*6.55.

If a man ſeiſed of Lands in fee, and poſſeſſed of a Term for many years, grant a Rent out of both for life, in tail, or in fee, with clauſe of Diſtreſs out of both, this Rent doth iſſue only out of the Freehold, and the Lands in Leaſe are only charged with a Diſtreſs: But if it had been granted only out of the Lands in Leaſe, then that Land had been charged during the Term, if the Grantee live ſo long, *Co. ſuper Lit.*147. *Co.*7.23.

If one have divers Eſtates in the Land, and grant or charge it, this ſhall go out of all his Eſtates. As if A. be Tenant for life, Remainder to B. in tail, Remainder to A. in fee, and A. grant a Rent-charge and die, B. dieth without iſſue, the Heir of A. ſhall be charged. So if A. be Tenant for life, Remainder to B. in tail, Remainder to A. in fee, and A. acknowledg a Statute and die, and B. die without iſſue, the Heir of A. ſhall be charged, as was held in Pethowſe and Cranes Caſe, *M.*36 Q. 37 Q. Co.B. So if A. be Tenant for life, Remainder to B. for life, Remainder to A. in fee, and A. makes a Feoffment; in this caſe all his Eſtates paſs, 24 *E.*3.70. Bro. Dove 55. So if A. Tenant in tail, the Remainder to him in tail, levy a Fine, all his Eſtates paſs and are barred, *Co. ſuper Lit.*372. So if A. be Tenant for life on condition to have fee, A. leaſe to B for years, A. perform the Condition, yet he ſhall not avoid the Leaſe for years. So of a Rent. But otherwiſe it is in caſe of the King, *Co.*7. *Parl.*2.14.

A man makes a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and after grants the Reverſion for life, to which Grant the Leſſee for years attorns; the Grantee acknowledgeth a Statute, and after ſurrenders his Eſtate; the Conuſee extends the Statute, and diſtrains for the Rent, and it was adjudged good, *Brownl. Rep.*2 *par.*97.

3. Where and in what caſe a Charge good in its creation ſhall after be defeated and determined, and the Land diſcharged.

Regularly, when the Eſtate is gone upon which the Charge is, the Charge is determined and defeated. As for examples:

If one be ſeiſed of Land, and take a wife, and after grant a Rent or Common out of the Land, or enter into a Statute, and it be extended during the Husbands life, and after he die, and the wife is endowed of a third part of the Land charged by ſuit; now by by this the Charge is determined as to that third part, and that part is diſcharged of it. But if one have three Manors, and charge them all, and die, and ſhe accept of one of them, ſhe ſhall hold two parts of it charged, Co ſuper Lit. 349. F.N B. 150. a. 17 Ed. 2.

If a man have a Term of years in Land in the right of his wife, and he grant a Rent-charge out of this Land and die; now by his death the Charge is determined, and the wife ſhall hold it diſcharged: But if he ſurvive his wife, the Charge is good during the Term, 9 *H.*6. 52. 7 *H.*6. 1. 9 *H.*6. 52.

By alteration of the Tenant of the Land to be charged.

If a Tenant in tail grant a Rent-charge out of the entailed Land, (unleſs it be in ſuch a ſpecial caſe as is above) and then die, the charge is determined, and the Iſſue ſhall hold it diſcharged: So ſhall the Donor alſo, if the Tenant die without iſſue, and the Land revert to him. And although the Iſſue after his entry make a Feoffment, and take back a new eſtate, yet the Charge doth not revive, 12 H. 4. 7. 44 Ed. 3. 21. 14. Aſſ. Brow. Charge 20.

If one deviſe that his Executors ſhall ſell his Land, and the Heir after his death enter and charge the Land, and then the Executors do ſell it; now the Charge is defeated, and the Vendee ſhall hold it diſcharged, 14 *H.*8. 10.

If a Feoffee or Leſſee on Condition charge the Land by a Grant or a Statute, and after the Condition is performed, and the Feoffor or Leſſor re-enter; now he ſhall avoid this Charge, for the Land is diſcharged of it, Perk. ſect. 840.

Sect. 3. If a Diſſeiſor charge the Land he hath by Diſſeiſon, and after the Diſſeiſee re-enter or recover the Land; now the Diſſeiſee ſhall hold it diſcharged, and is not ſubject to the Charge of the Diſſeiſor, Co. 11.

If a Leſſee for life or years make a Feoffment in fee, and ſo commit a forfeiture, and after the Feoffee charge the Land by Grant, Statute or otherwiſe, and then the Leſſor enter for the forfeiture: Now in this caſe the Charge is gone, and the Leſſor ſhall hold it diſcharged. So if a Leſſee do waſte and cauſe a forfeiture, and after the Waſte and before the Recovery of the Land charge it, and after the Leſſor recover it; the Leſſor ſhall avoid his Charge, Lit. ſect. 476. Perk. ſect. 844.

If the Husband charge the Land he hath in fee in the right of his wife, and after he and his wife levy a Fine of this Land; now the Conuſee of the Fine ſhall hold it diſcharged, and the Charge is determined, Co 1. 66.

If there be Tenant in tail in poſſeſſion, the Remainder in tail or in fee to I.S. and I.S. grant a Rent or otherwiſe do charge the Land, and after the Tenant in tail in poſſeſſion ſuffer a Recovery of the Land; now hereby all the charges by him in Remainder are defeated, Co. 1. 61.

By other matter Ex poſt facto.

If one charge his Land with a Rent, or Statute, and after make a gift of it in Tail, and the Tenant in Tail make a Feoffment of the Land to the Grantee of the Rent, or him that hath the Statute extended, and the Iſſue recover the Land in a Formedon: Now it ſeems this Iſſue may avoid this charge, becauſe it was once extinct. For the charge of Tenant in tail, See Eſtates 19 *H.*6. 45.

By Remitter.

If a Tenant in Tail maketh a Feoffment to his Heir inheritable by the Tail, being within age, and after being of full age (living his Anceſtor) he charge the Land, and after the Tenant in Tail dieth: Now the Land is hereby diſcharged, and he ſhall avoid his own Grant, becauſe he is Remitted: So if the Heir of the Diſſeiſſee do Diſſeiſe the Deſſeiſor, and grant a Rent charge, and then the diſſeiſed dieth; the Grantor ſhall avoid his own Grant for the ſame reaſon: So if the Father Diſſeiſe the Grandfather, and granteth a Rent charge, and dieth, now the Entry of the Grandfather is gone, if he die, the ſon ſhall avoid the charge by the Remitter. Littl. Sect. 660. Co. ſuper Cro.

4. Where and in what caſe, not but the charge ſhall remain notwithſtanding the Alteration of the Tenant.

If a Tenant in Tail charge the Land, and after levy a Fine or ſuffer a Recovery of the Land to his own uſe; this doth confirm the charge, and it ſhall continue: But if he ſell the Land away by Fine, or Recovery, it ſeems the Conuſee or Recoveror ſhall hold it diſcharged, Co 1. 61.

If Tenant for life charge the Land, and then Enfeoff him in Remainder; in this caſe he ſhall hold it charged during the life of the Tenant for life, and no longer; for this is a Surrender. Brow. Charge 6.

If

If a man have an Office of skill for his life, to which there is a houſe belonging, and he chargeth the houſe with a Rent during his life, and after he commit a forfeiture, yet the Charge ſhall continue during his life; for he that takes Land by advantage of a Condition in Law, muſt take it with his Charge, Co. ſuper Lit. 234.

If one have a Leaſe for years or life, of Land, and grant a Rent out of the Land, and after ſurrender his Eſtate, and determine them; yet the Charge ſhall continue as long as the Eſtates ſhould have endured, if they had not been ſurrendred, Dyer 10. Perk. ſect. 844. Co. 1.67.8.145.

If one make a Leaſe for years or life, and after grant a Leaſe out of the Land, and after the Leſſee for years ſurrender, the Leſſor cannot avoid this Charge: But now it will take effect preſently, otherwiſe it will not take effect until the Leaſe be determined, 5 H. 5.8. 38 Ed. 3.4.

If one Joint-tenant charge the Land, and after releaſe to his companion and die, the Survivor ſhall hold it charged: But if it had come to him by Survivorſhip, contra. Co. 6.76.

If a man ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple that hath a wife, make a Feoffment in fee on condition and die, and the Feoffee on condition endow the wife of a third part, and ſhe charge this, and after ſurrender or grant her Eſtate to the Feoffee on condition: Now he cannot avoid this, but muſt hold it charged during her life, Perk. ſect. 822.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in tail, Remainder in fee to the Tenant for life, and the Tenant for life charge the Land and die, and the Tenant in tail die without iſſue; now the Heir of the Tenant for life cannot avoid this Charge, but the Land will be charged, 5 Ed. 4.2.

If the Kings Tenant charge his Land, with or without the Kings licence, and after the Land come to the King by Attainder or Eſchear, or the like: Now in this caſe the King muſt hold it charged, and cannot avoid the Charge, 3 Aſſ. p. 1. ſtat. 2 Eliz. P. & M. cap. 8.

If Tenant for life charge the Land, and after make a Feoffment to a ſtranger, or doth Waſte whereby it is forfeit and recovered; here he in Reverſion muſt hold it charged during his life. And if the Leſſee grant one Rent, and he in Reverſion another; now he muſt hold the Land ſubject to, and charged with both Rents, but the Grant of the Leſſee for life ſhall be preferred, 50 Ed. 3.6. Co. 1.67. Dyer 10. Co. 9. 107. Co. 10.49.

If the Husband and Wife during the Coverture grant a Rent by Fine out of Land, and after his death ſhe is endowed with part of it; now ſhe muſt hold it charged with the Rent.

If there be Tenant in life, the Remainder in tail to B. the Remainder in tail to C. and Tenant for life, and B. levy a Fine ſur grant, and render of Rent to the Tenant for life, and after B. the firſt Tenant in tail die without iſſue, and the Land go to C. he muſt be charged ſtill with this Rent to the Tenant for life, Co. 1.76.

If Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for life, and he grant a Rent-charge out of the Reverſion, and after Tenant for life dieth, whereby the Grantor becometh Tenant in tail again, and the Reverſion defeated: Yet the Rent-charge is good and doth continue againſt him, but not againſt his iſſue, 11 H. 7. 21. Co. ſup. Lit. 349.

If aſſent be iſſuing out of a Mill or Houſe, and the Mill or Houſe fall, yet the Charge doth continue upon the Soil, 9 Ed. 4.20. Co. 1.113. 10.48.

In all caſes when any Executory thing is created by Deed, there ſomething by conſent of all perſons, parties to the creation of it, may be by their Deed defeated and diſcharged: And therefore by a defeaſance of all, the Covenant that doth create a future power of Revocation, as the power it ſelf created may be defeated. And therefore Warranties, Rents, Charges, Recognizances, Annuities, Covenants, Leaſes for years, Uſes at Common-Law, and ſuch like things, may by mutual conſent be avoided: And every right, title, and intereſt in præſenti or futuro, by the inquiry of all that have the right, may be barred and extinct. Taxes and Rates.

Taxes and Rates, are the appointing and ſetting down how much every one ſhall pay and be charged with, Stat. 43 *E. c.*3.

Maimed Soldiers and Mariners.

The Juſtices of the Peace at the Seſſions muſt ſet a Rate or Sum upon every Pariſh to be paid weekly, towards the relief of ſick, hurt and maimed Soldiers and Mariners; but no Pariſh muſt be rated above ten pence, nor under two pence weekly; and if there be fifty Pariſhes in the County, not above ſix pence a week: And this ſum ſo taxed ſhall be yearly aſſeſſed by the agreement of the Pariſhioners within themſelves, or in default thereof by the Churchwardens and Petty-Conſtables, or the more part of them, or in default thereof by the Juſtice of the Peace next to the Pariſh: And if the party taxed refuſe to pay the money taxed, the Churchwardens and Petty-Conſtables, or either of them, or in default of them the ſaid Juſtice may levy it by ſale of his goods. See more in Treaſurer:

The Churchwardens and Overſeers of every Pariſh, or the greater part of them, may by advice of two Juſtices raiſe weekly, by Taxation of every mans Land within the Pariſh, money, and charge men towards the Relief of the Poor: And every man muſt pay according to that Rate, or complain at Seſſions for relief, St. 43 *Eliz. c.*2. See more in Poor.

Priſoners of the Kings Bench and Marſhalſey.

The Juſtices of the Peace at the Seſſions muſt ſet down what muſt be paid by every County quarterly towards the Relief of the poor Priſoners in the Kings-Bench and Marſhalſey, and ſuch Hoſpitals and Alms-houſes as ſhall be in the ſaid Kings-Bench or Marſhalſey, and in the ſame County; and it muſt not be leſs then twenty ſhillings out of every County yearly to each of the ſaid Priſons. Which ſums ratably to be aſſeſſed upon every Pariſh, the Churchwardens of every Pariſh muſt collect and pay to the High-Conſtable of the Diviſion. So that it ſeems this Taxation muſt be made by agreement between the Pariſhioners amongſt themſelves; and that if any refuſe to pay, that upon complaint the Juſtices of the Peace at their Quarter-Seſſions may compel him: And if any be over-rated, that he muſt be relieved there, Stat. 43 Eliz. cap. 2.

Priſoners of the Common-Gaol.

The Juſtices of the Peace at their Quarter-Seſſions may rate and tax every Pariſh in the County weekly as they think fit, ſo as it exceed not three pence a week every Pariſh, towards proviſion for the Relief of Priſoners in the Common-Gaol. And every Sunday the Churchwardens muſt levy it, and pay it quarterly to the Head-Officers of every Hundred or place, to be paid in at the Quarter-Seſſions. And this alſo it ſeems muſt be taxed upon the Inhabitants by agreement amongſt themſelves, or elſe by Order of the Seſſions, St. 14 *Eliz. c.*5.

Chepſtow-Bridg.

Four Juſtices (whereof one of the Quorum) may tax the Counties of Glouceſter and Monmouth, according to their diſcretion, for and towards the Reparations of Chepſtow Bridg, and every Hundred muſt pay according to the Rate. But they muſt rate every man in particular by Agreement, or by Order of the Seſſions, St. 3 *Jac. cap.*23.

Such Juſtices alſo may rate the Inhabitants of any Towns or Villages neer unto any decayed Bridg on the High-ways, when it is not known who ought to repair it; and the perſons ſo taxed muſt pay it accordingly. See Stat. 22 *H.*8. *cap.*5.

Church.

The Rates for the Church are to be made by the Churchwardens, and the greater part of the Pariſh preſent, after ſolemn notice given in the Church, upon every Inhabitant and Occupier of Lands in the Town or place, for money towards the Reparation of the Church, and other matters belonging thereunto, and according to that Rate men muſt pay, or they will be compelled to it. See Churchwardens, Co. 5. 67.

Sewers.

How men ſhall be taxed and rated for the reparation of the Sea-banks, See Commiſſion of Sewers.

The Rates of Subſidies and Fifteenths are to be made according to the Statutes whereby they are granted, if they ſet down any Order of Taxing; otherwiſe according to the ancient uſe. See Subſidies, Stat. 9 *H.*4. *cap.*7. 1 *Ed.*3.6. See more of this in my Juſtice of Peace Book, *chap.*27. Subſidies and Fifteens.

CHAP. XLIV.

Of Charters.

Charters are Writings, Deeds, Evidences and Inſtruments made from the King or any other man to another, upon ſome Eſtate paſſed or conveyed between them of Lands or Tenements: ſhewing the place, name, and quantity of Lands; the Eſtate, Time, and manner of doing of it; the Parties to the Eſtate delivered and taken; the Witneſs preſent at the ſame Time, with other Circumſtances. The word Charter doth uſually ſignifie the Kings Patent; which ſee in Patents, Terms ley, Co. 1.1. 34 *H.*6.1.

And theſe are ſome of them called Principal, ſuch as do concern the Title of the Land, and are the chief ſtrength thereof; and others are ſaid to be Acceſſary, (i.) ſuch as concern the Poſſeſſion only, as Court-Rolls, and ſuch like, Co 1.1.

To whom they belong, and what perſons ſhall have them.

Charters are the ſinews and ſtrength of mens Inheritances: And therefore for the moſt part, he whoſe poſſeſſion is made by them, ſhall have them; and they are as Incidents or Concomitants to the Land, to go and paſs with it. As a man ſeiſed of Lands in Fee in Poſſeſſion or Reverſion, and hath divers Charters, Deeds and Evidences, ſome with Warranty, and ſome without, and maketh a Feoffment in Fee without Warranty: Now the Purchaſor ſhall have all the Charters, Deeds and Evidences, as incident to the Land, and though they be not granted by the Deed; Ratione Terræ, to the end he may the better defend the Land it ſelf, having no Warranty to recover in value, and the Feoffor being not bound to warrant, hath no uſe of them. So if there be a Warranty in the Deed, if there the Feoffor grant the Deeds, there the Purchaſor ſhall have them alſo. So alſo if the thing ſold be ſuch a thing as doth lie in Grant, as Common, Rent, &c. if the Sellor or Grantor doth never grant the Charters that do concern the Land, and although there be a Warranty in the Deed, yet the Purchaſor ſhall have all the Deeds that do concern the Land.

Warranty in Deed

But if that a man be ſeiſed of Land in Poſſeſſion or Reverſion, and have divers Charters, ſome containing Warranty, and ſome not, and he make a Feoffment of this Land, and warrant it to the Feoffee and his Heirs, ſo that he is bound to render in value, and there are no words of Grant of the Charters in the Deed: Now in this caſe, foraſmuch as the defence of the Title is at the Feoffors peril, therefore he ſhall keep all the principal Evidences that are material for the maintenance of the Title of the Land; as all the Deeds which comprehend Warranty, whereof he may take advantage, and ſuch as may ſerve him to deraign the Warranty paramount, and ſuch like. But ſuch as are acceſſory only, which concern the Poſſeſſion, and not the Title, thoſe the Feoffee ſhall have: As if A. enfeoff B. with Warranty, and B. enfeoff C. with Warranty, though C. may vouch A. upon the firſt Warranty, yet he ſhall not have the firſt Deed; and yet if in this caſe a ſtranger have them, the Feoffee may recover them againſt him. So if A. enfeoff B. with Warranty, and B. enfeoff C. by the word Dedi, (which implieth a Warranty for life of the Donor) B. ſhall keep the Charters during his life, but his Heir ſhall not keep them afterwards, Co. 1. 144. 3 *Ed.*3. 11 *Ed.*3.17. 19 *H.*6.65. 34 *H.*6. *Co.*11.50. 10 *Ed.*4.9. 18 *Ed.*4.14. 6 *H.*7.3. 6 *H.*7.33. Co. on *Lit. f.*6.

Eſcheat

If a Lord come to Land by Eſcheat, he ſhall have all the Charters belonging to the Land ſo eſcheated to him, *Co.*1.1. Such Charters as belong to the Anceſtor, the Heir ſhall have, though he hath no Land by deſcent, *Co.*1.1.

Heir

Joyntenants

If one make a Feoffment to two, and the Heirs of one of them, and deliver all the Charters and Deeds to him that hath the Fee-ſimple of the Land, and he happen to die before his Companion; now his Heir ſhall keep all the reſt of his Evidences, except the Deed of Feoffment, which the ſurviving Jointenant is to have, *Co.*1.2,3: 4 *H.*6.1.

Joyntenant

If two Jointenants be in by a defeaſible title, and a Releaſe is made to them, and one of them die; now the Survivor ſhall have that Releaſe, and all the reſt of the Writings, *Co.*1.2. 21 *H.*7.33. 6 *H.*7.3.

Joynt-feoffees

Diſſeiſors

If a Feoffment be made to two without Deed, and the Writings be delivered to one of them, now the other ſhall not have them from him. So if I releaſe to my two Joint-Feoffees, and I releaſe to them both, and deliver the Deed to one, the other, though he ſurvive, ſhall not have it.

If I releaſe to two Diſſeiſors, and deliver the Deed to one, the other ſurviving ſhall have it. If the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Diſſeiſor, and he make a Feoffment of the Land, the Feoffee ſhall have the Releaſe. But if a Feoffment be made to two without Deed, and the Evidences that do concern the Land are delivered to one, the other ſhall not have them, 34 *H.*6.1. 6 *H.*7.3.

CHAP. XLV.

Of Chattels.

1. Chattels, what.

The kinds.

CHattels or Cattals are all Poſſeſſions of Goods moveable and unmoveable, except ſuch as are in nature of a Freehold, or parcel of it. And theſe are either Real or immoveable, which are ſuch as do not immediately appertain to the Perſon, but either to ſome other thing by way of dependance, as a Box with Writings of Land, the Body of a Ward, the Fruit of a Tree, or the Tree it ſelf upon the Land, or are iſſuing out of things immoveable, and of a more real nature; as Leaſes for years, at will, Wardſhips, the Eſtates of Gardeins in Chivalry, which hold the Land for the double or ſingle value, the Eſtates of Tenants by Statute-Merchant, Staple or Elegit, and Grants of the next Advowſon: Or elſe they are perſonal and moveable, (i.) ſuch as are moved by others; as Money, Plate, Gold, Silver, Jewels, Utenſils, Houſhold-ſtuff, Debts, Wood cut, Corn Emblements, Hay, and the like: Or ſuch as move themſelves, as Cattel, and the like. And therefore called Perſonal, either becauſe they are ſuch as do immediately belong to the perſon of a man, as an Horſe, &c. or becauſe being deteined from a man, he hath no means to recover them but a Perſonal Action. And therefore are ſaid to be Moveable, becauſe one may move them, and make them to follow a man from one place to another. And all theſe one may deviſe by Will; or if he die, they ſhall go to his Executors or Adminiſtrators.

Sect. 1.

perſonall action

Perſonal Action. Deviſe. Executors.

Thing in Action.

Perſonal things alſo are either quick and living, as Beaſts, Fowl, and the like; or dead, as Money, Gold, Silver, or the like: The living alſo are either tame, or wild. Both theſe kinds of Chattels alſo are either in Poſſeſſion, as when one hath his Ward or his Goods in hand: Or in Action; which is, where one hath not the thing it ſelf, but an Action to recover it; and then it is called a Choſe in Action. *Terms ley, Stamf.pr.cap.*16. *Stat.*1 *Eliz. cap.*2. *Co. ſuper Lit.f.*42.118. *Plow.*192. Dyer 277.5. *Co.*465.3.12: *Perk.ſect.*60. *F.N.B.*128.

Chattels are not ſo much regarded in Law, as Inheritances and Freeholds; nor Chattels perſonal ſo much eſteemed as Chattels real: And therefore it is they will ſo eaſily veſt in a man, and deveſt again; and deveſt, and veſt again: For, De minimis non curat Lex, (i.) The Law regardeth not ſmall things. Hence it is that no Precipe will lie againſt a Leſſee for years, that hath only a Chattel, for the baſeneſs of his Eſtate, Co. 8. 95. Dyer 25. 163. 298. 30, Co 8. 171 Plow. 418. 2. How they are regarded in the Law.

If a Leaſe for years be made on Condition, that if ſuch an Act be done it ſhall be void; it will be made void without Re-entry, 24 Ed. 3. 54. 8 Ed. 43. Re-entry. Void.

A Traitor or Felon, after the offence done, and before conviction, may ſell any of his Chattels real or perſonal, bona fide, to maintain himſelf. And an Officer of the King that is an Accountant, may ſell any of his Chattels bona fide, after he is become an Accountant and Debtor to the King, and the Kings debt will not reach it. They will veſt in the King where they be forfeit, and the Kings Officer may ſeiſe them without any Office found. Felon. Accomptant.

If an Obligation be made to two, and one of them releaſe the whole Debt to the Obligor, the other is without remedy: But in caſe of Inheritances and Freeholds, the Law is otherwiſe.

Chattels will eaſily veſt and deveſt: As if one that doth hold Land in capite doth mortgage it, and the Mortgager die, his Heir being within age, and the King ſeiſe the Body and Land, and after the day the Mortgager redeem the Land and re-enter; now the Wardſhip is loſt again. So if he make a Feoffment to the uſe of the Feoffee and his heirs, until the Feoffor ſhall pay to the Feoffee or his heirs an Hundred pounds; and that upon, and from the day of payment of the Hundred pounds, the Feoffee and his Heirs ſhall ſtand and be thereof ſeiſed to the uſe of the Feoffor and his heirs, and that then and thenceforth the Feoffor ſhall re-enter, &c. and the Feoffee die, his heir within age, and after the money is paid, the Kings title to the Wardſhip is defeated, Dyer 369. a. Dyer 298. b. 3. Where a Chattel lawfully veſted, ſhall after be deveſted and defeated; where not.

A Wardſhip happened to the Biſhop of Durham, by a Tenure of him in capite; and before any ſeiſing by him of Body or Land, the Biſhoprick became void, and a new Biſhop is made: It is adjudged, that the Executors or Adminiſtrators of the Predeceſſor, as a Chattel-veſt, and not the King nor the ſucceeding Biſhop ſhall have this Wardſhip. But if a Biſhop ſeiſe a Ward after it happen, and die, his Executor ſhall have him, Dyer 277. 2 H. 4. 19. 7 H. 4. 41. 44 Ed. 3. 42. F. N. B. 143. e. Executor.

If one give his goods to his daughter in marriage, and after they are divorced, the wife ſhall have again the goods that are not ſpent, Dyer 13. a. Husband and Wife.

If a Waſte by a Guardian in Chivalry be found againſt him, whereby he loſe the Cuſtody of the Land by the Statute of Marlb. cap 4. yet the Marriage is not deveſt, but he may ſtill maintain a Forfeiture of Marriage. So if Entry be for Mortmain, a Ward veſt ſhall not be deveſt, but the Abbot ſhall have the Marriage, &c. Dyer 25. b.

The husband and wife are Joint-tenants of a Term for years, and the husband kill himſelf; now in this caſe all doth ſurvive unto the wife, until the Office be found for the King upon the forfeiture, and then it goeth all from her unto the King, Plow. 262. Forfeiture of a Felo de ſe.

If one recover by an erroneous Judgment, and preſent to a Benefice, or enter into the Perquiſites of a Vilain, and after the Judgment is reverſed by Writ of Error; theſe Collateral things that are executed, ſhall not be deveſted, Co. 8. 142. b.

If an erroneous Judgment be given in Debt, and the Sheriff by force of a Fieri facias ſell a Leaſe for years of the Defendants, and after the Judgment is reverſed for Error; now in this caſe the Term ſhall not be reſtored, but only the money made of it: But if the Execution be by Elegit, and upon it the Sheriff do by Inquiſition extend a Term of the Defendants, and deliver to the Plaintiff in the ſuit, and after the Judgment is reverſed; in this caſe he ſhall have reſtitution of the Term it ſelf, Co. 8. 142, 143. a. Adjudg. in Paſch 15 Jac. B. R. Buckhurſt and Mayo. Sheriff. Elegit. Reſtitution.

And if a Sheriff by force of a ſpecial Capias ut Lagatum, ſeiſe Goods, or Chattels, and ſell them, and after the Utlary is reverſed; here the party alſo ſhall be reſtored to all his Goods and Chattels in kinde, Co. 8. 143.

If the King do Knight a Ward, that is in cuſtody of his Guardian, by reaſon of a Tenure in Capite, or Knights ſervice; now hereby the Wardſhip of the Body is Deveſted, but he ſhall hold his Lands, and have the value of the marriage, Co. 6. 74, 75.

If a man be Out-lawed, and the King give away ſome of his Goods, and after the King pardon him, and reſtore him to his Goods. Now the Goods given between the Out-lawry, and the Pardon ſhall not be Deveſted, nor that Gift avoided by the Pardon, Broo. Reſtitution 18.

If a man die ſeized of Capite Land, and it deſcend to his Brother and Heir, an Infant, and the Lord ſeize the Ward, the Wife of the Tenant being privily with childe of a Son, and after the Son is born. Now the Brother ſhall be out of Ward, but if the Son die, then he ſhall be in Ward again. Broo. Gard. 119.

4. What things ſhall be reputed as Goods and Chattels, and the Executors ſhall have after the death of the Teſtator, and what Actions accrew to them for ſuch things.

If there be a Preſentment to a Church, happen to a Tenant in Tail, and he die before he preſent; now his Executor, not the Iſſue in Tail ſhall preſent, for the Chattel is not Deveſted: So if a Termer have a Preſentment, which doth happen during the Term, though he doth not preſent, yet he ſhall have it. If a Parſon, Vicar, Maſter of Hoſpital, or any Body Politick, be poſſeſſed of any Goods or Chattels, in their own right, and die; theſe are Chattels that ſhall go to their Executors or Adminiſtrators, nor to their Succeſſors, Co. 4. 65. Perk. Sect. 58.

If a Leaſe be made for years, or a Wardſhip, or the next Advowſon of a Church, or Covenant for payment of money, or the like be granted, or an Obligation made to me, and to my Heirs; yet in all theſe caſes I have this as a Chattel, and it ſhall go to my Executor, and not to my Heir. So if any ſuch thing be made, or granted to me and my Succeſſors, my Executors ſhall have it; and if the Heir or Succeſſor get the Deed, the Executor may recover him for them, *Littl. Charters.

If I have a Box, or Cheſt, or Trunk full of Writings at my death, and the ſame is open, not ſealed, or locked: Now this ſhall go as Goods to my Executor; but if it were ſealed or locked, as incident to the Writings, it would be the Heirs, whoſe the Writings be, 22 Ed. 4 7. 3 H. 7. 15.

If Charters be pledged to me for money, or granted to me, and I have no Land that they do concern, it ſeems this is in the nature of a Chattel, and my Executor, not my Heir, ſhall have them: But all ſuch Charters as concern my Inheritance, ſhall go with my Heir, and the Land it ſelf they do concern, 21 Ed. 4. 18, 19. 8 Ed. 4. 3. F.N.B. 137. *Bro. Trees.

If one ſeized of Land, make a Feoffment of it to me (excepting the Trees) and after Grant or Leaſe the Trees to me for years; or if one make me a Leaſe of Land for ten years, and after make me a Leaſe of the Trees for twenty years, to begin when the ten years are ended: In both theſe caſes, I have the Trees in the nature of a Chattel, and they ſhall go to my Executors after my death, Co. 4. 63.

Timber.

If there be a Leſſee for years, or life, of Land, whereon Timber doth grow, or Houſes be, and the Leſſor, Leſſee, or a ſtranger cut down any of the Timber, unleſs it be where the Leſſee doth cut where the Law doth allow him; in this caſe the Leſſor ſhall have this as a Chattel, which ſhall go to his Executor after his death: So alſo if the Houſes or Trees be proſtrate by the act of God, and if the Leaſe for years, or life, be a Leaſe made without impeachment of Waſte; in which caſe the Leſſee is to have the Timber and Trees in the caſes before, the Leſſee hath them as a Chattel, which ſhall go to his Executor, Co. 4. 63. 11. 81, 84.

If a man that hath the Fee-ſimple of Ground, whereon be Trees growing, ſell me all or ſome of the Trees, and I die, or he, and I before they be cut, or I ſell the Land, excepting the Trees; in the firſt caſe my Executor, in the laſt caſe his Executor ſhall have them in the nature of Chattels, albeit they be not cut down, Co. 11. 50. Perk. Sect. 58.

If

If one be poſſeſſed of a Term of Land, and Deviſe it to A. for life, the Remainder to B. for life, whereby B. hath onely a poſſibility; now if B. die, his Executor ſhall have this poſſibility in the nature of a Chattel, Co. 8. 55. 10. 47. Poſſibility.

So much of my Wives Apparel, as is neceſſary and convenient for her condition, and ſtate, as her Goods, ſhe may diſpoſe at her death, or take after my death; but the reſt, as my Goods, ſhall go to my Executor, 33 *H.*6. 31. Wife.

If a Feoffment, Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for life be made, by one rendring Rent, and the Rent is behinde, and I die; or a Rent be granted out of Land to me, in Fee for life, or years, and it be not paid to me in my life time, it ſhall go to my Executors in the nature of a Chattel. 32 *H.*8. 37. Dyer 375. *Co.*4. 48, 49. Sect. 3. Rent.

If a Rent be granted to me, my Heirs, and Executors, during the life of J. S. and for one half year after: Now this half years Rent, after my death, ſhall go as a Chattel to my Executor. Curia, M. 7 Jac. Co. B. Walls caſe. Vide 238

If one ſeized in Fee, make a Leaſe for years, rendring Rent, and deviſe this Rent to a ſtranger by years, and the Deviſee die; now it ſeems the Executors, and not the Heir of the Deviſee ſhall have it as a Chattel, Dyer 5, 6.

If one poſſeſſed of a Term, deviſe the Land to A. for life, the Remainder to B. Now this is a Chattel (though it be but a poſſibility) in B. which if he die, his Executor ſhall have it; but if it be a remote poſſibility, where an eſtate is to be reduced to a certainty by a contingent precedent, and it doth not reſt in the Teſtators life time, it is otherwiſe. Co. 8. 51. 10. 47. Prices caſe, Trin. 10 Jac. B. R. Poſſibility.

If any perſon that is Tenant for their own, or anothers life, make a Leaſe to me for one hundred years; this is a Chattel, which ſhall go to my Executors, and is in Judgment of Law, but a Leaſe for ſo many years, if he, for whoſe life it is held, do live ſo long, *Co.*7. 12.

Where by the Statute of Weſtm. 1. the Lord ſhall have the Wardſhip of his Heir-Female, being of the Age of fourteen years, at the time of the death of her Anceſtor for two years, if he die within the ſame two years, his Executors ſhall have it, 27 *H.*8 3. Co on Littl. 79. Ward

If a man make a Feoffment in Fee, upon condition, that the Feoffee ſhall pay an hundred pounds to the Feoffer, his Heirs, or Aſſigns (or his Heirs, Executors, or Adminiſtrators) at ſuch a time: Now in theſe caſes the Executor ſhall have this money as a Chattel, if it be paid by the Feoffee. Co. 5. 96, 97. Fitz. Condition 8.

If a man grant to me the two next preſentations of the Church of D. theſe are Chattels; and if I die, my Executors ſhall have them, 34 Hen. 6. 27. Broo. Chatt.

If a Parſon have an Annuity in Fee, in the right of his Church, and it is behinde, and the Parſon die, the Executors, and not the Succeſſor, ſhall have theſe Arrearages as a Chattel. F. N. B. 120.

If a man ſeized of Land, and poſſeſſed of a ſtock of Cattle, Leaſe it to others for years, and the Leſſees Covenant to pay an hundred pound by the year to the Leſſor, or his Wife, their Heirs, or Aſſigns, during the Term, and an hundred pound at a day, for a marriage portion of his daughter, and die; now the Wife, and after her death, her Executor, not the Heir of the Leſſor ſhall have this Rent, Dyer 275, 276.

If a man make a Leaſe for life, rendring Rent, and die; now the Executor, not the Heir ſhall have the Arrearages of Rent, due in the life time of the Teſtator, Dyer 375. *Co.*4. 50. Fitz. Executors 112. 98.

If there be in a Cheſt, or Box, wherein are Writings (which appertain to the Heir ut ſupra) Plate, or any other Goods; theſe do belong, and ſhall go to the Executor, and not to the Heir. Fitz. Execut. 111.

If a man finde Treaſure, the owner whereof is known, and he die before he have it, yet the Executor of him whoſe it is, ſhall have it. Fitz. Corone 446.

If I be Out-lawed, and my Goods forfeit, and die, and my Executor reverſe the Utlary for Error; now he ſhall have all theſe Chattels, and Goods that were ſo forfeit. Forfeiture.

If I being Guardian, do indow a Woman that hath title of Dower out of the Land, and after I die, my Executor ſhall have the ſervice due from the Woman, during the minority of the Infant. Fitz. Dower 138.

Fine on a Copiholder.

If I be Lord of a Mannor, and a Fine certain or uncertain be Aſſeſſed upon the admittance of a Tenant: This ſum of money aſſeſſed (as it ſeems) is a Chattel to me, which ſhall go to my Executors if I die.

If a man have a Judgment for Land, in a real or mixt Action, or damages, and die; now the Heir ſhall have execution of the Land, and the Executors ſhall recover the damages: So if a man recover damages for detaining of Charters, and die, the Heir ſhall have the Charters, but the Executors the damages; but the Executor ſhall not have Execution for the damage, before the Heir hath ſued a Scire facias for the Charters, Fitz. Executor. 32. 139.

The Executors ſhall have a raviſhment of Ward, for a Ward took away in the time of their Anceſtor, per Stat. of Ed 3. for Goods taken away in the life of the Teſtator; this is a Chattel therefore in them: So if the Teſtator had a Leaſe for years, or an Intereſt by Statute, or Elegit, and be ouſted and die, the Executor may have an Ejectione firme: So if the Teſtator bring an accompt, and the Defendant ſay Neunques ſon bailge, and it be found againſt him, and after Judgment the Plaintiff doth die; this Action ſhall ſurvive to the Executors: So if the Teſtator hath recovered any debt, or damages in any perſonal Action, this as a Chattel ſhall go to the Executor: So all cauſes of Action and Suits ſhall go to the Executor, and not to the Heir. Wherefore ſee more in Executor, the very ſame Queſtion in effect with this. Fitz. Execut. 52, 53, 59, 84, 117. & Accompt. 56.

5. Where not, but the Heir or ſome other ſhall have them.

Regularly all thoſe things which ſhall not be forfeit by Utlary in a perſonal Action, nor be attached in an Aſſize, nor diſtrained for Rent, are not reputed Chattels, neither ſhall go to the Executor, but to ſome other.

Heir.
Incidents.

Alſo whatſoever it will not be Felony to ſteal, as all the Incidents of an Houſe, as Glaſs of the Windows annexed to the Windows by Nails, or otherwiſe; all the Wainſcot about the Houſe, fixed by Nails, Screws or Irons put through the Poſts, or Walls, Tables Dormant, Furnaces of Lead and Braſs, and Fats in a Brew-houſe or Dye-houſe ſtanding, and faſtned to the Walls, or ſtanding and faſtned to the ground in the middle of the Houſe (though faſtned to no Wall) a Copper or Lead fixed to the Houſe; all the Doors without and within, whether they be ſet up at the charge of the Lord or Tenant, ſhall go with the Houſe to the Heir, or him that is to have the Houſe, and not to the Executor of the Tenant, as a Chattel.

Trees.

Alſo Trees ſtanding, and Graſs growing, is parcel of the Inheritance, and not as Chattel to go to the Executor or Adminiſtrator, 20 H. 7. 13. Kelw. 118. Co. 4. 63, 64. 21 H. 7. 26. 4 H. 7. 10. Kelw. 86. Dyer 273. b. Co. 4. 65.

Game of Parks.

Alſo Pales, Walls, and Stakes, Deer, Coneys, Pheaſants, Partridges, and the reſt of the Game of a Park, ſhall go with the reſt of the Park, as parcel of the Freehold, and Incident, and Concomitant thereunto, and not as a Chattel to the Executor. Co. 7. 14. 22 Ed. 4. 7 Hen. 7. 15. 10 H. 7. 6.

Fiſh.
Pigeons.

Alſo the Fiſh in the Pond are not reputed as Chattels, neither ſhall go to the Executor, but ſhall go with the Pond: So alſo the Pigeons of an Houſe ſhall go with the Houſe, Kelw. 118. 18 Ed. 48. Goldsb. 129. pl. 24.

If Land or Rent be granted to one and his Heirs, during the life of another; now after the death of the Grantee, his Heirs ſhall have this eſtate, and not his Executors as a Chattel, Litt. Sect. 739.

If one ſeized of Land, wherein are Trees in Fee, and make a Feoffment of it (excepting the Trees) and after ſell the Trees to the Feoffee abſolutely, or grant them to him and his Heirs; in this caſe the Trees are reunited, and parcel of the Inheritance, and are no Chattels, nor ſhall go to the Executors. And if a man ſeized in Fee of ſuch Land, make a Leaſe for life, or years (excepting the Trees) theſe Trees are no Chattels in the Leſſor, neither ſhall go to his Executors, but to him that hath the Land, Co 4. 63. & 11. 48.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee of a Tenancy, and the Lord grant his Seigniory for life, and after he in Remainder in Fee of the Tenancy die, his his Heir within age; and after the Lord die, and after the Tenant for life die: Now in this caſe the Heir of the Lord, and not his Executor ſhall have the Wardſhip, Co. 2. 93.

If the Kings Tenant by Knights ſervice in capite, be ſeized of a Mannor whereunto an Advowſon is appendant, and the Church become void, and the Tenant dieth, his Heir within age, the King that hath the Wardſhip, ſhall have the Preſentment, and not the Executor as a Chattel: But if the Land were holden of a common perſon, the Executor and not the Guardian ſhould have it, Co. upon Littl. 388.

If a Leaſe be made for years, rendring Rent at Michaelmas, or within ten days after, and the Leſſor, during the Term, happen to die after Michaelmas, before the ten days expired. Now in this caſe the Heir of the Leſſor, and not his Executor, ſhall have this laſt years Rent due at Michaelmas. Hill. 7 Jac. per totam curiam in B. R. & H. 9 Jac.

If any Office of Truſt, Judicial, or Miniſterial, being for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, or the like, be granted to me for years, or to me, my Executors, and Adminiſtrators for years; yet this is no Chattel, which my Executor, or Adminiſtrator, ſhall have after my death; for it is Perſonal, and dies with the perſon, Co. 9. 96, 97.

If one have a Wardſhip, as Guardian in Socage, and die, his Executors ſhall not have it, for it is perſonal, Plow. 293. Co. 3. 39.

If the Father have the Wardſhip of his Son, and Heir Apparant, Jure naturæ, this is no Chattel in him which his Executor ſhall have after his death; for the Cuſtody is inſeparably annexed to the perſon. As if there be Lord, and a Woman-Tenant by Knights ſervice, and the Tenant doth make a Leaſe for life, and after the Lord and Tenant do enter marry, and have Iſſue, between them a Son, and the Wife die, and after the Father doth die, the Son within age, his Executors ſhall not have this Ward by reaſon of the Seigniory, 33 H. 6. 55. Co. 3. 39.

In ſome caſes things that are in their nature but Chattels, yet ſhall not go to the Executors, as certain Jewels, &c. of the Kings of England, that ſhall not go to the Executors of the King, but ſucceeding Kings: So alſo if a King hath the Temporalties of a Biſhop, all Wardſhips, and preſent Actions, happning by reaſon thereof, ſhall go to the ſucceeding King, not to the Executor: Alſo by the Cuſtom of certain places, Heirbomes, and a reaſonable part of the Goods may go to others from the Executors, 11 Hen. 4. 5. Broo. Chattels 2. F. N. B. 122. Fitz. Debts 51, 52. 38. 60.

If a Major and Commonalty, Dean, and Chapter, or any other Corporation, have Goods or Chattels, in the Right of their Corporation; though they change not their nature thereby, yet they ſhall not go to the Executors, but to the Succeſſors in the Corporation: But if a Leaſe be made to a Biſhop, and his Succeſſors for years, his Executors, or Adminiſtrators, ſhall have it as a Chattel, but in auter droit; for Regularly no Chattel can go in ſucceſſion, in caſe of a ſole Corporation, Co. 4. 65. Co. upon Littl. 46. b.

If Goods be given to a Woman in marriage, and the Husband and the Wife, be after divorced; now in this caſe, though theſe Goods change not their nature; yet they, at leaſt thoſe that remain, ſhall come back to the Wife, and ſhall not be the Husbands any longer, or go to his Executor after his death. See Divorce. 26 H. 6. 7. Broo. Chattels 1.

If a man grant a Rent in Fee, and grant over that if the Rent be behinde, &c. That he ſhall forfeit twenty ſhillings nomine pœnæ to the Grantee, and his Heirs; now if this Rent be behinde, and he die, the Heir, not the Executor ſhall have and recover this Rent, and Penalty, and he may have an Action of Debt for it; but if an Annuity or Rent be granted to one for his life or years, and he die; his Executor ſhall have and ſue forth for them, and Arrearages incurred in his life time, F. N. B. 120. M. Fitz. Covenants 17. Fitz. Executors 99.

If a man make a Feoffment in Fee of Land, and the Feoffee Covenant to do ſomething to the Feoffor and his Heirs, Et quoties defectus fuerit &c. That he ſhall forfeit to him, and his Heirs, five pound. Now upon default, the Heir, and not not the Executor ſhall recover this penalty. Dyer fol. 24. a.

Relief. If a man ſeized of a Mannor in Fee, and have a Relief due to him upon the death of a Tenant, and he die before it be had, it ſeems the Heir, not the Executor ſhall have it; but if the Lord were onely ſeized of an eſtate for life, or had a Leaſe for years of the Mannor, Contra, ſee ſomewhat more in the Queſtion following, where Eſtate if Freehold, may be of a Chattel preſently. Dyer fol. 24.

6. Emblements, to whom they ſhall appertain, and who ſhall have them. Emblements ſtrictly are the profits of Land which hath been ſowed (which in ſome caſes, he that ſoweth the Land ſhall have, and in ſome caſes not) but the word is ſometimes uſed more largely for any profits that ariſe, and accrew naturally from the ground, as Graſs, Fruits of Trees, Hemp, Flax, and the like. Terms Ley. Kelw. 125. Co. upon Littl. 55.

If a Tenant in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail, ſow the Land, their Executors after their death, if they die before cutting, not their Heir ſhall have the Emblements. Merton, cap. 2. 37 H. 6. 25.

Husband and Wife. If one have Land in Fee-ſimple, or otherwiſe in his own or Wives right; or be eſtated in Land for years in the right of his Wife, and he ſow it with Corn, and die before it be reaped; in this caſe the Executor of the Husband, not the Wife, or Heir ſhall have it.

And ſo it ſeems of Planted Hops, Saffron, and Hemp, Quicquid plantatur ſolo, ſolo cedit. But Graſs, Apples, Pears, and other fruit upon the Trees, though ripe, and ready to be cut ſhall go to the Heir with the Land: But all theſe of both ſorts, if the Land in which they grow, be ſold away, and not excepted paſs with the Land. The Roots of Carrets, Turneps, Parſnips, and Skirrets, are diſputable. New Book of Executors

If a Diſſeiſor, or a Diſſeiſor of a Diſſeiſor, or a Feoffee, Donee, or Leſſee, of the firſt, or ſecond Diſſeiſor, ſow the Land, and cut and carry the Corn away, or cut and carry away the Graſs, or Trees, or gather, and carry away the Fruit, as Apples, Nuts, or the like; or give, or ſell away any of this, (unleſs it be in a Market or Fair, &c.) yet when the Diſſeiſee doth re-enter, he ſhall have it all again, and may take it whereſoever he doth finde it; for the property of it is ſtill in him, and if he die, his Executor may do the like; and if they be gone, or ſpent, the Diſſeiſee may have an Action of Treſpaſs for them, againſt the Diſſeiſor, but not againſt his Leſſee, Feoffee, or Donee, which come in by Title. Co. 11. 51. Dyer 31. 173. 12 H. 7. 25. Perk. Sect. 519. Co. 5. 83.

If a Tenant for his own or anothers life, ſow the Land, and after die, his Executors, and not him in Reverſion, ſhall have the Emblements: And ſo is the Law for any particular Tenant that hath an eſtate uncertain; but if a Tenant for years ſow the Land, and before that he hath cut, and ſevered the Emblements from the Land, his Term expireth, there the Leſſor, or he in Reverſion, and not the Leſſee, or his Executors ſhall have the Emblements: But if Leſſee for years of the Tenant for life, ſow the Land, and the Leſſee for life die before he can Reap, yet the Leſſee for years ſhall have the Crop. So if a man ſeized of Lands, in Fee hath Iſſue, a Daughter, and dieth, his Wife being enſevit, or with childe of a Son, and the Daughter ſoweth the grounds, and after the Son is born, yet the Daughter ſhall have the Emblements, 10 Aſſ. p. 6. Littl. Sect. 68. 7 H. 4. 13. Co. 5. 106. 7 Aſſ. p. 19. Dyer 310. 16 H. 6. 6.

If Tenant for life be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor ſow the Land, and the Tenant for life die; in this caſe the Executors of the Tenant for life, and not the Diſſeiſor, nor him in Reverſion, ſhall have the Corn, Leſſee for life, the Remainder for life, and the firſt Leſſee for life, make a Leaſe for years, and this Leſſee was put out of poſſeſſion by a ſtranger, who ſoweth the Land, and the firſt Leſſee for life died, and he in Remainder for life entred into the Land, and leaſed it to Sir H. R. In this caſe it ſeems not he, but the Leſſee for years of the firſt Leſſee for life muſt have the Corn. Goldsb. 143. pl. 60.

Husband and Wife. If a Woman Copiholder, during her Widowhood, according to the Cuſtom of the Mannor, ſoweth the Land, and before the ſeverance of the Emblements, ſhe taketh an Husband, the Lord ſhall have the Emblements: So if ſhe make a Leaſe for years, years, and the Leſſee ſow the Land, and then ſhe take an Husband, there the Lord, not the Leſſee, ſhall have the Emblements, though the Leſſees eſtate be determined by the act of a ſtranger, Co. 5. 106. and upon Littl. 55. b. Goldsb. 189. pl. 136.

If the Wife have a Leaſe for years of Land, as Executor to a former Husband, and her preſent Husband ſow it, and die; in this caſe, the Corn, at leaſt, ſo much as is more then the value of the Land, ſhall go to the Wife, not to the Executor of the Husband. New Book of the Executors.

If a Leaſe be made to the Husband and Wife, during the Coverture, and the Husband ſoweth the Land, and after they are divorced, cauſa præcontractus, the Husband not the Leſſee ſhall have the Emblements.

If one ſeiſed of Land, in the right of his Wife, in Fee, or for life be, and he, or his Leſſee for years ſow the Land; and before the Corn be cut, the Wife die, or the Husband die; now in the firſt caſe, the Husband, or his Executors, and the laſt the Leſſee, or his Executors, if he die, ſhall have the Emblements (a) But if the Husband and Wife be Joint-tenants of Land, and the Husband ſoweth the ground, and the Land doth ſurvive to the Wife; here it ſeems he ſhall have the Corn, and not the Executors of the Husband, but the Husband might have given or diſpoſed them. 7 Hen. 4. 17. 7 Aſſ. p. 19. Broo. Embl. 6. Co. upon Littl. 55. (a) Aſſ. 21. Dyer 316.

Where one doth enter into Land by a right Paramount, or the Leaſe, or Eſtate, doth determine by the act of the Leſſee, or by his means that did ſow the Land, or by the means of him, under whom he claims; in this caſe, though the eſtate of the Leſſee be uncertain, yet he ſhall not have the Emblements: As if one enter upon, or recover Land, ſaved by vertue of a condition in Law, or in Deed, as if the Leſſee for life, or years, do alien in Fee, or commit Waſte, and he recover the Land, or a Feoffment, or Leaſe be made on Condition, and the Condition be broken; or the Lord of a Copiholder enter for a forfeiture of the Tenant, or a Lord enter on his Villains Land, or the King, or Lord enter upon the Land of his Tenant after a Felony done for a forfeiture: In theſe and ſuch like caſes, he that entreth upon, or recovereth the Land, ſhall have all the Emblements that are there growing, and not cut upon the Land at the time of his Entry, or Recovery. So if a man recover Land by a Suit upon a Right, and be put in poſſeſſion by an Habere facias Seiſinam, or Habere facias Poſſeſſionem, he ſhall have all the Emblements that ſhall be then growing upon the Land. Fitz. Treſpaſs 254. 44 Ed. 3. 25. Co 5. 106. and upon Littl. 55. b. Co. 4. 21. Perk. Sect. 515. 40 Ed. 3 5. 19 H. 9. 45. Stamf. lib 3. 301. Co. 5. 111. Broo. Embl. 8.

And yet if a Feoffment be made upon Condition, and the Condition is broken, and the Feoffee before the entry of the Feoffor, cut the Corn ſowed on the ground, and after ſuch ſeverance Feoffer re-enter; in this caſe, not he but the Feoffee ſhall have the Emblements, but if he had entred before, he ſhould have had it: So if a Copiholder after forfeiture, and before entry of the Lord, cut the Corn, he ſhall have that which is cut, 5 H. . 17. Broo. Embl. 4.

If a man Leaſe Land at Will, and the Leſſee doth ſow the Land with Corn, or ſet Roots, or ſow Hemp, or Flax, or any yearly profit, and the Leſſor determined the Will, before it be ripe, and ouſt the Leſſee: Now in this caſe, the Leſſee ſhall have the Corn, and if he die, his Executor ſhall have it; but if the Leſſee himſelf determine the Will, he ſhall not have the Emblements, but the Leſſor: And if ſuch a Tenant at Will, plant yong Fruit Trees, or yong Oaks, Aſhes, Elms, &c. or ſow the grounds with Acorns, &c. he ſhall have no profits of theſe; for this doth not bring any yearly profit: So if he, or any other Tenant that ſhall have Emblements, do onely Ear and Dung the Land, they ſhall have no benefit by this, Co. 5. 116. and upon Littl. 55. 18 Ed. 4. 18. Littl. Sect. 68. Co. 5. 116.

If a Tenant by Statute-Merchant, ſoweth the ground, and then a ſudden, and caſual profit hapneth, by which he is ſatisfied, yet he ſhall have the Emblements, 44 Ed. 3. 15. Co. on Littl. f. 55. b.

If a Tenant at Sufferance be diſcharged, and notwithſtanding he continue in poſſeſſion, poſſeſſion, and ſow the Land, and the Lords Baily take the Rent at our Lady-day after, and payeth it to the Lord in a groſs ſum with other monies: Now it ſeems in this caſe the Tenant, and not the Lord ſhall have the Corn at Harveſt, Cromp. Jur. 215.

If a man under colour of a Feoffment or Leaſe, preſuming he hath a good eſtate, when in truth he hath none, ſow the Land; now in this caſe, neither he nor his Executor, but the Feoffor or Leſſor ſhall have the Emblements, Lees Caſe, 9 Jac.

Tenants in Common. If two be Tenants in Common, and one die, and his wife hold in Common, and ſow the Land, and die; the other Tenant in Common, or the Heir ſhall not have it, but the Executor of the woman, Perk. ſect. 523.

If a Leaſe be made to an Husband and Wife at will, and they be afterward divorced cauſa præcontractus, and the Land be ſowed before; now in this caſe the Husband, and not the Leſſor ſhall have the Emblements, Co. 5. 116.

Husband and wife. If a Tenant in Dower ſow her Land, and die before ſeverance of the Corn, the Heir ſhall not have it, but the Executor of the Wife: And if after the ſowing ſhe take an Husband, and he die before it be cut, his Executors ſhall not have it, but the Wife ſhall have it. If a Feme-ſole ſow her Land, and after marry, and he die before ſeverance, the Wife, not the Executor of the Husband ſhall have it, Bro. Embl. 26. St. 20 H. 3. c. 2. Perk. ſect. 522.

Parſon. If a Parſon die before the firſt day of May, when the Land is ſowed, and another Parſon is made, the Succeſſor ſhall not have the Tenths, but the Executors or Adminiſtrators of the firſt Parſon: But if he die before the Conception of the Virgin Mary, the Succeſſor ſhall have the Tenth of the Emblements. But now by the Statute of 28 H. 8. the Profits are to be ſequeſtred from the death of the Parſon, and to be delivered all to the Succeſſor; only the Corn ſowed upon the Glebe-land by the Predeceſſor, which he may diſpoſe by Will; and if he do not, it ſeems his Executor ſhall have it, Stat. 21 H. 6. cap. 30. 34 H. 6. 33. 35 H. 6. 39. 28 H. 8. 11.

Sect. 8. Forfeiture. If a man be outlawed in a Perſonal Action, the King, not the party or his Executors, if he die, ſhall have all the Emblements on his ground at the time of his Outlary. So if a man forfeit his Goods in caſe of Felony by flight, though he be after acquitted, or being convicted, the King will have all the Emblements at the time of the flight in the firſt caſe, and Felony done in the ſecond caſe, or at any time after (as it ſeems) until Conviction, or Acquittal, 5 H. 7. 16. Fitz. f. Corone, 344.

Tythe. If Corn be reaped, and the Tythe not ſet out, and the Inheritor of the Tythe die; it ſeems the Executor, not the Heir of the Inheritor ſhall have the Tythe, New Book of Executors.

Note. But note, That in all theſe caſes where a man hath right to Emblements, and dies, if he make any Deviſe of them, then they ſhall go according to his will and diſpoſing. See Teſtament. Dyer 316.

7. The remedy to recover the Emblements.

And in all theſe caſes before, he to whom the Law doth give the Emblements, may lawfully enter into and upon the Land or ground where they grow, and cut and carry them; and he is not put to his Action for them, nor bound to take them ere they be ready, or at one time; but the Law doth give him convenient entry of Ingreſs, Egreſs and Regreſs; and if he be diſturbed in this way, he may have his Action of the Caſe, and ſhall recover as much as he is damnified. Quando Lex aliquid alicui concedit, concedere videtur, & id ſine quo res ipſa eſſe non poteſt. And if a man that hath right to theſe Emblements have any Treſpaſs done to him in them, he may have an Action of Treſpaſs for it, Co. ſuper Lit. 56. Kelw. 125. Kelw. 160. a

Action.

If a man be poſſeſſed of a Term or Leaſe for years, and do by Will deviſe it to one for life, and after to another for life, or for the reſidue of the years, theſe Deviſes are good, and the Deviſees ſhall have it accordingly, and the Executor of him in Remainder after his death ſhall have this poſſibility as a Chattel; and he that hath the firſt Eſtate cannot bar him of the next, but not as a Freehold, for the quality of the Eſtate is not hereby changed. But if ſuch a Conveyance were by Deed, in this caſe caſe he to whom the firſt Eſtate were limited, would have all the whole Term; and they that are to come in the Remainder, would have nothing. So alſo ſuch a Deviſe by Will of a Chattel perſonal, will (as it ſeems) be void to him in Remainder. But Quære of this; and ſee Fitz. Deviſe contra, Co. 8. 95. 10. 47. Plow. 525. Dyer 358. Bro. Chat. 23.

But if a man be poſſeſſed of a Term, and do deviſe it to one and the heirs of his body, the Remainder to another; this Deviſe is void to him in Remainder, and the firſt Deviſee and his Executors ſhall have it all the time: And if he deviſe to one of his Heirs, the Deviſee hath no Freehold, but it ſhall go to his Executors as a Chattel, Co 10. 87. Walts and Gouldſtorous Caſe, M. 19 Jac. Co. B.

If a man be poſſeſſed of a Term or Leaſe for years of Land, and grant a Rent-charge out of it to J. S. for his life, or in fee, this is a good Grant, and the Land ſhall be charged during the Term only, Co. ſuper Lit. 147. b.

If one that hath a Leaſe for years enter into a Statute, and Execution be ſued thereupon, and the Sheriff extend the Leaſe, and deliver it to the Conuſee at a yearly value, as he may either ſell it outright, or extend it at a yearly value, which he will; this is no frank Tenement in the Conuſee, but a Chattel ſtill.

If a Termor grant all his Eſtate to A. to the uſe of himſelf and his wife for their lives; in this caſe neither the Termor or his wife hath any Freehold; for the Statute of 27. doth not execute the Poſſeſſion to this uſe: And therefore if he or his wife grant this to another, their Grant is void, for the whole intereſt in Law is in A. Dyer 369 a.

If a Leaſe be made to J. S. for Forty years, if he live ſo long; and if he ſhall die within the ſaid term, that his wife ſhall have the Reſidue of the term: Now this is no Freehold, and by the death of J. S. the Leaſe is ended, and therefore the Remainder to his wife is void, Dyer 253. b.

A man may have an Eſtate of Freehold or Inheritance in other things as well as Lands, Rents, Commons, and ſuch like; as in a Robe or Garment, Bread or Drink, or the like. See Corody, and Fitz. in Aſſiſe.

If Land or Rent be granted to one and his heirs during the life of J. S. in this caſe, after the death of the Grantee, his Heir, not his Executor ſhall have it, Lit. ſect. 739.

And regularly all other things which are not forfeited by an Outlary in a Perſonal Action, nor attachable in Aſſiſe, nor diſtrainable for Rent, nor the taking away whereof will be no Felony; they are not to be reckoned Chattels that ſhall go to the Executor, 20 H. 7. 13. Kelw. 118.

8. Thing in Action, what.

A Thing in Action, is, when a man hath Cauſe, or may bring an Action, or have other Remedy for ſomething due, or ſome wrong done to him. As a Right or Title of Entry into Land, which another hath; an Action of Debt upon an Obligation, or Annuity, or Rent, or Action of Covenant; or an Aſſiſe upon a Diſſeiſon, Ejectione firme upon an Ejectment; a Raviſhment of Ward, upon the detaining of a Ward; Treſpaſs of Goods taken away, Beating, or the like. And becauſe they are things whereof a man is not poſſeſſed, but for recovery of them is driven to his Action, they are called things in Action, or the Poſſibility of a thing. And this is either certain, (i.) when the demand is certain, as in caſe of Debt; or uncertain, (i.) when the demand is of a thing uncertain, as in Actions of Treſpaſs, and the like. And theſe Choſes in Action alſo are ſome of them Perſonal, as Debt, Damages, and the like; and ſome of them are mixt, as Wardſhips; and ſome are real, as Rights, Titles of Entry or Action, and the like, Terms ley, Finches ley, f. 25. Bro. Pat. 98.

The kinds.

9. The nature of it.

Theſe things in Action, or Cauſes of Suits, as Entries to continue ones Right, or upon a Title Poſſibilities, and the like, or of that nature, as that regularly they cannot be given nor granted, nor yet transferred from one Subject to another, by act of Law; as a Right of Action will not come to the Lord by Eſcheat. And if an Obligation had been made to a Villain, and the Lord ſeiſe him, he ſhall not have, nor can recover this Debt, but in the Villains name; nor yet be given or granted by act of the party from one man to another. And therefore if a man hath a Debt due by Eſpecialty or otherwiſe, he cannot grant or aſſign it to another, ſave only in ſome ſpecial caſes; but he may depute another to ſue it for him, and in his name, or by Agreement promiſe it to another when it is recovered; or he may grant, give, or aſſign the Eſpecialty it ſelf, and ſo deprive himſelf of the means to recover it, as hath been often adjudged. But ſuch things may be extinct by Releaſe, or Confirmation, &c. But this muſt be always between the parties themſelves: For, no ſtrangers, but parties themſelves and privies, (i.) Heirs, Succeſſors, Executors and Adminiſtrators can take advantage of them, unleſs it be in ſpecial caſes: As where a man is Executor, or where is a Grant of a Reverſion, (for which ſee the Statute 32 *H.*8. *cap.*8. & vide infra.) And this the Law doth provide to avoid multiplicity of Suits, and ſubverſion of Juſtice, which would follow, if theſe things were grantable one from another, 1 H. 6. 4. Co. 10. 48. 22 Aſſ. p. 37. Dyer 30. b. 39 H. 6. 26. 34 H. 6. 30. Fitz. Maint. 14: Plow. 185. b.

Extinguiſhment.

10. Where, and what things ſhall be reputed in the nature of things in Action, and not grantable.

Whatſoever comes under the definition of Action, (for which ſee Action) or is a Chattel only in Action, (for which ſee above) as all Cauſes of Suit for any Debt or Duty, Treſpaſs or Wrong, are to be accounted Choſes in Action. Alſo if I have a Judgment againſt another man for money, or a Statute for money; theſe are Choſes or Things in Action. So alſo if I have an Annuity to me in Fee, for life or years, it ſeems this is in nature of a Choſe in Action, and not grantable. But Quære. See Fitz. Grant 45. For it ſeems, an Annuity in Fee to me and my heirs, is grantable, Bro. Adjudg. 16. Co. 5. 89, 90.

If a man have an Advowſon, and the Church be void, the Preſentation to it is in the nature of a Choſe in Action, and cannot be granted by a common perſon, but might be in the caſe of the King. But in this caſe, if the Patron grant the next Preſentation when it ſhall be next void, the Grantee it ſeems ſhall have the next Avoidance after this, Bro. Choſe in Action. Dyer 296. Fitz. Grant 50. Dyer 26. a.

Alſo a Poſſibility of an Intereſt, or an Eſtate in a Term of years, is ſomewhat near in its nature to a Choſe in Action, and therefore is not grantable from one Subject to another; but this may be releaſed to Privies and Parties in the Eſtate, Co. 4. 66. a b. But if one ſell to me and my Aſſigns an hundred Load of wood in his Wood, to be taken by my Aſſignment; this is more then a thing in Action, for it is an Intereſt which I may grant over, and if he refuſe to aſſign it, I or my Aſſigns may take it without him. So if one ſell me his wood in ſuch a Wood, (except twenty of the beſt Trees) and that I ſhall cut it within two years; this is an Intereſt in me grantable over; and if he refuſe to chooſe his twenty Trees in reaſonable time after I have requeſted him, I may cut down the Wood, and leave him twenty Trees. So if one grant me reaſonable Eſtovers in his Wood, to be taken by the view and delivery of his Bailiff, this is an Intereſt; and if his Bailiff will not deliver it after requeſt, I may take it without him, Co. 5. 25. 5 Ed. 3. 64.

Grant.

Sect 10.

11. When, and what right of Title, Debt, Duty, or thing in Action, may be given or granted over

By the King.

All Choſes in Action perſonal that are certain, that were the Kings originally, or that did come to him by Forfeiture from others, as Annuity, Debt, Ward, or the like, might have been by ſpecial and apt words by his Prerogative granted to any Subject; and the Grantee might have ſued for the ſame in his own name, albeit there had been no words in the Patent to enable him ſo to do: And the courſe is to ſue for them in the Exchequer. Alſo the King might have granted the Preſentation of a Church, when it was void, Dyer 30. Fitz. Grant 16. Bro. Ch. in Act. 1. 33 H. 8. 39. The King might have granted his Obligations made to him, to his Heir or Executor, at his pleaſure. Alſo the King (as it ſeems) might have granted over his Rent, and his Condition of Re-entry for not payment, or any other real or mixt Choſe in Action, which another may not do, but where a Reverſion is granted within the Statute of 32 H. 8. And if the King be indebted to others, he might have aſſigned over all, or part of a Tenth, for the payment of it to thoſe he did owe it, or appoint it to be paid by his Cuſtomers, 2 H. 7. 8. per Huſſey. 1 H. 7. 8. Bro. Pat. 98. 5 Ed. 4. 8. Det. 38. 43. 62.

By a common perſon.

But a Common perſon regularly cannot give or grant any ſuch Choſe in Action, (unleſs it be to the King, which he may do by Deed not inrolled) and if he do, ſuch Gifts and Grants will be void. As if an Obligee give or grant his Debt and Obligation to another man; in this caſe he to whom it is given or granted, cannot have

nor

nor recover the Debt in his own name, but he may cancel the Obligation or deliver it up to the Obligor. So if a man hath a Right or Title of Entry into Land, he cannot give or grant this over to a ſtranger. As if a man diſſeiſe me of Land in Poſſeſſion or Reverſion, and I grant my Right of Entry into this Land to a ſtranger: Or if I make a Feoffment in Fee on Condition, that if I do ſuch a thing, I ſhall re-enter; this Condition or Title of Entry in the nature of a Choſe in Action, is not grantable over; but ſometimes a Condition incident to a Reverſion is grantable by the Statute of 32 *H.8. Co.*10.48. *Co.*5.89 90. 21 *H.*7.15. Fitz. Prerog. 10. 2 *H.*7.8. *Perk: ſect.*86.280. *Co.*2.56.a. 3.4.a.

If a man have the Wardſhip of an Infant, and he is contracted to another in his minority, and then he grant the Wardſhip, and after the Infant is married: Now in this caſe the Grantee ſhall have the Writ of Raviſhment of Guard; for this Grant was good, *Fitz Guard.*94.

If a man take away any of my Goods and Chattels from me as a Treſpaſſor; now it ſeems I cannot give or grant theſe Goods or Chattels to another, until I have deveſted the Property of them again in me by ſeiſure,&c. 2 *Ed.*4.*f.*15. 10 *H.*7.27.

The things in Action ſometimes are extinct and gone by the act of the party that hath right to them; and ſometimes they are only ſuſpended, and ſhall be again revived: As if the Ordinary commit the Adminiſtration of the Goods of the Debtee to the Debtor, the Debt is only ſuſpended. And therefore if the Adminiſtration be unduly granted, and after revoked and granted to another, the ſecond Adminiſtrator may recover this Debt of the firſt: And if there be not Aſſets beſides, this ſhould be accounted Aſſets in the hands of the firſt Adminiſtrator, whiles it doth continue. So if a Feme-ſole Executrix of a Debtee, take the Debtor to husband, this doth only ſuſpend the Debt; and if he die, the wife may ſue the Executors or Adminiſtrators of her husband, as ſhe might before, and that Debt alſo ſhall ſtill be reputed Aſſets in her hands. So if the Debtor makes the Debtee, or the Debtee the Debtor his Executor, and he do legally refuſe it, or if he make him and others Executors, and they all refuſe, then the Debt is revived again, *Co.*3.136. *Plow.*185. *Co.*8.136.9.37.

But if a Feme-ſole Debtee take her Debtor to husband, or if there be two Obligors in an Obligation, and the Obligee take one of them to husband; or if one be bound to a Feme-ſole and another in an Obligation, and ſhe take the Obligor to husband; or if the Debtor make the Debtee his Executor, or the Debtee and another his Executors, and they do take the Executorſhip upon them; or if the Debtee make the Debtor his Executor, or him and another his Executors, and the Debtor die before he take upon him the Executorſhip: In all theſe caſes the Debt or Action is extinct, and ſhall not revive. See *Suſpenſion. Co.*8.136. 21 *Ed.*4.3. *Plow.*184. 11 *H.*7.4. 21 *H.*7.24.

If a man diſſeiſe me of Land, and then I make him Leaſe for years of the Land: Or if I make him a Feoffment in Fee on Condition, and before the Condition performed, make a Leaſe of all or part of it to another; by this the right or title is ſuſpended: And if I make a Feoffment in Fee; in theſe caſes the right or title is extinct, and will never revive. So if the Diſſeiſee levy a Fine of the Land to a ſtranger, the right is extinct, and the Diſſeiſor ſhall hold the Land for ever, *Co.*4.52. *Co.*2.56.a.

When a man doth die, all theſe things called Choſes in Action ſhall go to his Executors as part of his Chattels. See in Chattels.

If an Obligation be made to two men, and one of them forfeit by Outlawry or otherwiſe, or had granted all to the King; in this caſe the King would have had the whole, and the other had loſt his part, 19 *H.*6.7. 22 *Aſſ. p.*37.

If a Villain eſcheat, the Lord ſhall have no Choſes in Action that were his: And if the King had had an Ideot, he ſhould not have had any Choſes in Action that were his hereby. And yet if a man had been outlawed, the King ſhould have had thereby the Forfeiture, or all Debts upon Eſpecialties, but not of Debts upon ſimple Contracts, 1 *H.*7.24. 50 *Aſſ. pl.*1.

12. Where a right or thing in Action once ſuſpended, ſhall be at another time revived, where not.

13. Who ſhall have things in Action.

CHAP.

CHAP. XLVI.

Of Claim and Coaches.

1. Claim.

Quotuplex.

IT is a challenge by any man of an Intereſt or Ownerſhip of a thing, that is in the poſſeſſion of another, or at leaſt out of his own, and this is either Actual or by Deed; as by Action (i.) when a man doth bring his Action for the thing he claimeth, or by Entry or Seiſure (i.) when one doth enter into, or ſeiſe the thing he doth ſo claim; or elſe it is verbal (i.) when one doth by words claim and challenge the thing that is ſo out of his poſſeſſion; and this is ſometimes to Lands and ſometimes to Goods or Chattels: Alſo ſome diſtinguiſh Claim into Expreſſed and Implied; for which ſee Infra, Co. ſuper Littl. 251. b. Terms Ley, Plow. 359. Littl. Sect. 442. & 419, 420.

Sect. 1. Continual Claim.

And continual Claim is a frequent Claim, or a Claim made once every year and day at the leaſt, unto ſome Land or other thing, by which means the Entry or Property of him that hath right is preſerved, and a miſchief prevented: So that this doth nothing differ from Claim, but that Claim is but once onely, and continual Claim is, and muſt be re-iterated and renewed once in every year at the leaſt; for in their effects and operations they both agree for the moſt part. Littl. Sect. 414. 429.

Claim entry

And note that by Claim in moſt caſes of Land, is underſtood a Claim with an Entry into ſome part of the Land, or at leaſt a near approach thereunto; for a Claim is ſo to be made of Land, viz. In and upon ſome part of the Land, or within view of it, unleſs it be in ſpecial caſes of fear, &c. And there it may be made in view, or afar off, as the cauſe of fear and danger is, Co. ſuper Littl. 254. a. b.

Aſſize

And note alſo that this Claim may be by an Action brought, as if the Diſſeiſee bring an Aſſize; this is a Claim for Lands: And if the Goods of a Villain be diſtrained before the Lord ſeize them, the Lord may have a Replevin, and by the bringing of this Action as by a Claim, the property of the Goods is veſted in the Lord. Co. ſuper Littl. 263. a.

2. The effects and operations of this Claim. As to Lands.

diſſeiſons diſcontinuans Remitter &c

The effect and operation of the Claim, is divers, and he that doth make it, hath thereby great advantage; for by it in ſome caſes he ſhall avoid a diſſent of Lands, and thereby in ſome other caſes, he ſhall have his Title, which otherwiſe would be loſt; and therefore ſuch Claims in Judgment of Law, amount to an Entry in Law, and will preſerve the right of Entry to him that maketh it, notwithſtanding there be any Diſſeiſons, Diſcontinuances, Remitters, or Diſſents by any Diſſeiſor, Intrudor, Abator, &c. or their Feoffee or Donee, within the year and day: As where a man hath Right and Title to enter into any Lands or Tenements, whereof another is ſeized in Fee, or Fee-tail: As if I be diſſeiſed, or my Tenant for life or years make a Feoffment in Fee, whereby he do forfeit his Land, and I having Title to enter, do make continual Claim, (i.) I claim the Land within the year and day before the death of the Diſſeiſor, or the Feoffee: In this caſe, I or my Heir, if I die, may enter notwithſtanding the Diſſent. Littl. cap. Continual Claim in toto.

Heir

Heir

King

But if the Diſſeiſor die ſeized, his Heir within age, and by office the King is intituled unto the Wardſhip of him; in this caſe I cannot enter upon the King, but muſt have other remedy. Fitz. Continual Claim 1, 5 Ed. 4. 4.

Aſſize Treſpaſs or forcible entry

And they both do defeat the eſtate unjuſtly gained, and put the party that claimeth in poſſeſſion ſo, that if the other occupy the thing, after he may have either an Aſſize againſt him, or an Action of Treſpaſs, or forcible Entry, as if he were in the Actual poſſeſſion of it: For ſuch a Claim being an Entry in Law, is as ſtrong and as forcible as an Entry in Deed, and that as well in the hands of one that hath the Land by Title, as by wrong; and therefore ſuch an Entry in Law will avoid a Warranty.

Warranty

But

But yet this continual Claim of the Diſſeiſee, ſhall veſt the poſſeſſion and ſeiſon in him onely for his own advantage, and not his diſadvantage: And therefore, if he bring an Aſſize, and hanging the Aſſize, he make his continual Claim otherwiſe; or by the bringing of the Writ which doth amount to a continual Claim in Law; this ſhall not abate the Aſſize, but he ſhall recover damages from the beginning: And as often as he which hath right of Entry, making ſuch Claim, and the other doth continue the occupation, ſo often he doth wrong and diſſeiſons to him, and ſo many Actions of Treſpaſs he may have, and recover his coſts and damages; or may have an Action upon the Statute of 5 R. 2. 7. In which caſe he ſhall recover damages for the firſt wrongful Entry, but not for the mean profits; or may have an Action on the Statute of 8 H 6. 9. In which caſe, without any Regreſs, he ſhall recover treble damages, as well for the mean occupation as for the firſt Entry, Co. ſuper Littl. 253, 254. 11 H. 6. 51. Littl. Sect. 430, 431. Co. ſuper Littl. 263. a. Littl. Sect. 430. Co. ſuper Littl. 257.

Sect. 2. 3. How an Eſtate may be forfeited by Claim.

This Claim doth ſometimes alſo produce a Forfeiture of Eſtate for an Eſtate may be forfeited by Claim in two ſorts. Either Expreſſed; as if Tenant for life will in Court of Record Claim Fee, or if Leſſee for years be ouſted, and he bring an Aſſize ut de libero tenemento: Or Implied; as if in a Writ of Right brought againſt him, he will take upon him to joyn the niſe upon the meer Right, which none but Tenant in Fee-ſimple ought to do: So if Leſſee for years looſe the Land in a Precipe, and bring a Writ of Error, for Error in Proces; this is a Forfeiture by Claim implied: Co. ſuper Littl. 251. b. Fitz. Judgment 237. Fines 120. 15 Ed. 4. 29. 2 H. 6. 9. 16 Aſſ. p. 16.

As to Goods and Chattels.

By the Claim of Goods the property is altered and removed from one to another; As if my Villain have Goods, which by Law are mine; now after I have made my Claim to them, and ſeized ſome part of them, the property ſhall be ſaid to be in me: So if the Wardſhip of a body belong to me, and I by words Claim the Ward being preſent; though I lay no hands on him, yet by this he ſhall be ſaid to be ſeized. And ſo in other caſes where Claim is neceſſary, by the Claim the Forfeiture of the Goods is prevented. Vide infra. Fitz. Replevin 43. 9 H. 6. 25. 42 Ed. 3. 18. Co. ſuper Littl. 118. b.

4. Where and in what caſe others may incloſe one againſt another, and where not.

If two Lords of two ſeveral Villages or Mannors have Waſtes or Fields adjoyning together parcel of their Mannors: And there is no incloſure or ſeparation between them, but the bounds and circuits of each Mannor are known, and there is in that Waſte or Field a Common, becauſe of Neighborhood, for the Tenants of both Mannors: In this caſe the Lords and Tenants of either Mannor may incloſe their own, and divide themſelves from the other ſide, and ſo make an end of their Inter-commoning without their conſent, although their ſide incloſed be the greateſt part. Co. 4. 38, 39. 9. 113. 7. 5.

In caſes where the owners of the Land have been uſed in a place to incloſe their own Land in the Field, and to relinquiſh and wave their Common in the reſt of the Field, and have kept out the Commoners; ſo that they have not taken any Common in the incloſed ground, there every man may incloſe his Land at his pleaſure: But where the reſt of the Commoners have been uſed to take their Common, and put in their Cattle in ſuch incloſed grounds, notwithſtanding the Incloſure from Harveſt till Sowing time; in this caſe no man may incloſe, although he would wave his Common in the Field beſides: And yet if in ſuch a caſe there be an ancient Incloſure taken out of the Field held always in ſeveralty; this may be kept incloſed always, Co. 7. 5.

If two men have Inter-common, the one in the ground of another, they may by Agreement incloſe and ſeclude one another; but one of them alone, cannot incloſe and ſeclude the other without his Agreement, although he wave and refuſe his Common in the ground of the other; neither when the one hath incloſed, may the other incloſe without mutual conſent: Alſo the owners of the Soil, and the Commoners altogether, by an unanimous Agreement, may incloſe any Commons whatſoever, Co. 7. 5. Broo. Common 47.

If

Feoffm^t of Waſte

If the Lord make a Feoffment of Parcel of his Waſte, it ſeems the Feoffee may incloſe it; and that this is a kinde of Improvement of the Lord; but then it muſt be in caſe where an Approvement is lawful: So if a Lord have a great Moor and Infeoff another, of a hundred Acres of the North-ſide thereof, the Feoffee may incloſe it, or the Lord may incloſe the reſidue, Fitz. Garanty de Charters 31. Dyer 372. p. 10.

If one have an ancient Sleight for Cattle in a Field upon his own Land, whereon he hath been uſed to keep them, and to drive out Cattle of other men that come within it; it ſeems in this caſe he may incloſe this Sleight. Per Juſt. Jones. 6 Car. Gloceſter Aſſizes.

Stat. of improvem^t

If the Lord have Common in the Soil of the Tenant held of him, the Tenant in this caſe may incloſe a part of his own Soil, ſo as he leave ſufficient, by the Statute of Improvement, although it ſpeak onely of Lords, Broo. Commons 22.

Sect. 3. 5. Where and in what caſe a Claim or Entry is requiſit, where not. To Lands.

In all caſes where a Right or Title of Entry is come to any man, and nothing doth hinder but he may enter into it, or make his Claim to it, there he muſt ſo do before he ſhall be ſaid to be in Actual poſſeſſion of it, or before he can grant it over: But where the party that hath right, is in poſſeſſion already, or where an Entry or Claim, cannot be made, Contrà. As if a man Diſſeiſe me of my Land, or I make a Feoffment in Fee of Land in poſſeſſion, upon Condition, and the Condition is broken; or my Tenant in Fee-ſimple do Alien in Mortmain; or my Tenant for life, do make a Feoffment in Fee, (in both which laſt caſes he doth forfeit his eſtate.) Now in all theſe caſes, I muſt either make an Actual Entry upon the Diſſeiſor, Feoffee, and Tenant; or I muſt make my Claim to the Land (which is tant amount) before the Law will adjudg me to be in Actual Poſſeſſion: And the ſame Law is where one doth grant an Advowſon, Rent, Common, Reverſion, or any ſuch like thing which doth lie in Grant, upon Condition, and after the Condition is broken: Now in this caſe alſo the Grantor muſt make his Claim to this thing, before it ſhall be ſaid to be in him. But if a Feoffment be made on a Collateral Condition, and the Feoffee make a Leaſe to the Feoffor, and after the Condition is broken; in this and ſuch like caſes where the party hath it in poſſeſſion, he need not make any Entry or Claim. Littl Sect. 436. Co. 1. 157.

Tenant in tail Claim Formedon

If a Tenant in Tail make a Feoffment, and diſcontinue the Eſtate-tail, and then die; in this caſe, the Iſſue of the Tenant in Tail muſt Claim, if he will prevent the inconvenience of a Diſcent; for after a dying ſeized of the Feoffee, the Iſſue cannot enter, but is put to his Formedon, Vide Diſcontinuance. See Littl. Sect. Diſcontinuance.

Seized in right of y^e wife

If a man ſeized of Land in the right of his Wife, and make a Feoffment in Fee on Condition, and the Husband dieth, and the Condition is broken, and the Heir enter, as he muſt; in this caſe the Wife need not Claim, nor enter to bring her Eſtate to her, for the Law doth veſt it in her, without any Claim. Co. ſuper Littl. 202. a. Co. 8. 43, 44.

Infants, Feme-Coverts, perſons de non ſane memorie, beyond the Sea, or in Priſon, whiles they ſo continue, need not make any Entry or Claim. Vide Infra.

Fine to expire

If a Fine be levied of my Land; in this caſe if I will prevent the Bar, I muſt make my Claim to this Land within five years after the Proclamations had, made or certified, or elſe I am barred of my Land for ever. For which, ſee Fines. 4 Hen. 7. cap. 24.

To Goods.

If a Lord have right to the Goods of his Tenant, becauſe he is Villain, he muſt claim or ſeize the Goods, ere he ſhall be ſaid to have the property: If I have right to the Wardſhip of a Body, I muſt lay hands on him, or claim him, ere I ſhall be ſaid to be ſeized of him. So if my Goods be taken as Waiffs, or Eſtray, or Wreck; in this caſe, I muſt claim them within a year and a day of the Seiſure, or elſe I ſhall loſe them for ever. Co. ſuper Littl. 118. b. Co. 5. 107.

Waiffs & Strays worke per must be reclaimed within a year & a day

After

After a Right or Title of Entry accrewed, it is good policy to make a mans Claim or Entry, as ſoon as he can. For if a Fine be levied of anothers Land according to the Statute of 4 H. 7. (as moſt Fines are at this day) he that hath right muſt enter or make his Claim within five years after his Right or Title accrewed; or elſe he is barred, not onely of his Right of Entry, but of his Right to the Land for ever. But if the Fine be a Fine at Common Law, and not with Proclamations; in that caſe, he that hath Right muſt make his Claim within a year and a day after the Fine levied, or elſe he is barred for ever. See Fines. Co. 9. 105. Dyer 3. 72. 224. Co. 5. 107. 8. 101.

If a Judgment were had in a Writ of Right and Execution thereupon, and another man hath right to the Land; now he muſt have made his Claim within a year and a day of the Judgment, or elſe he is barred for ever. Co. 5. 507. 8. 101.

If I be diſſeiſed of my Land, and thereby put to a Right of Entry: Now in this caſe, by the Common Law, I muſt make my Claim, or my Entry within a year and a day, (the day wherein the Claim was made being accounted one) of the diſſeiſon, or elſe if it happen the Diſſeiſor die ſeized in the interim: I am barred of my right of Entry, ſo if one abate, or intrude into my Land. Littl. Sect. 421. 426.

So alſo if I make a Feoffment in Fee on Condition, and the Condition being broken, ſo as I have Title to re-enter, I muſt enter within the year and day, elſe if the Feoffee die ſeized within that time, my Title of Entry is gone, and I am put to my Action to recover the Land. But now by the Statute of 32 H. 8. 33. in caſe of Diſſeiſon, a Diſſeiſor muſt be in five years quiet poſſeſſion before his dying ſeized can hurt the Deſſeiſor; and then it may, and therefore after that time the Diſſeiſor muſt make his continual Claim; but the Law for Abators and Intrudors, and the Feoffee of a Diſſeiſor is, as it was before, Co. ſuper Littl. 283. Plow. 47.

But if I make my Claim, and after the Diſſeiſor, or Feoffee, &c. of the Diſſeiſor die ſeized; this will not hurt me. Alſo if it happen that the Diſſeiſor, &c. do not die, in forty years after the Diſſeiſon. If I make my Claim before his death a year and a day, and he die within the year; this doth prevent the miſchief of his dying ſeized. Littl. Sect. 427.

If a Tenant Alien his Land in Mortmain, the Lord if he will take advantage of the Forfeiture, muſt make his Claim or Entry within a year and a day after the Alienation; otherwiſe he is barred of his Entry and Action for ever. Dyer 25.

Continual Claim muſt be made once every year; and once every year doth ſuffice what ever happen. And therefore, if he that hath right maketh Claim, and the Tenant dieth within the year and the day, this Claim, though it be but once made ſhall preſerve the Entry of him that maketh the Claim: And if the Anceſtor or Predeceſſor Claim, and the Diſſeiſor die, and then the Anceſtor or Predeceſſor dieth, now his Heir or Succeſſor may enter. But if the Anceſtor or Predeceſſor make a Continual Claim, and dieth, and the Son or Succeſſor make no Continual Claim, and within the year and day after the Claim made by the Anceſtor, the Diſſeiſor dieth; this ſhall take away the Entry of the Son or Succeſſor, for that the diſcent was caſt in his time. Co. ſuper Littl 250, 251. 22 H. 6. 37. 15 Ed. 4. 22.

If my Goods be ſeized as Waiffs, or Eſtray, or Wreck; in this caſe I muſt claim them within a year and a day of the ſeiſing of them firſt, or elſe I ſhall loſe them; but the Lord is not bound to this time for the Goods of his Villain, nor for the Body of his Ward. Co. 5. 107.

The party himſelf that hath right, either immediate or remote, may and muſt in moſt caſes make his Claim or Entry to the Land; and this he may do in perſon, or by his Servant or Deputy, for Qui per alterum facit, per ſeipſum facit. And therefore if the Maſter ſay to his Servant, that he dares not come to the Land, or any part of it, &c. and that he dareth go no nearer then ſuch a place; and command him to go thither, and make his Claim, and he do ſo; this is good, though the Servant do not fear at all. Littl. Sect. 432, 433. Co. ſuper Cro. 245. a.

If an Infant, or any Man of full age, have any Right of Entry into any Lands, any ſtranger in the name, and to the uſe of the Infant, or Man of full age may enter into the Lands, and this Regularly ſhall veſt the Lands in them without any Commandment, Sect. 5. To Lands.

If the caſe be ſo with a man that he dare not, being forbidden by authority to go abroad, or cannot being ſick, and not able to go to the Land; if in this caſe he command his ſervant to make a Claim for him, and the ſervant is afraid of beating, maiming, or death, and goeth as near the Land as he dareth, and there doth make Claim for his Maſter; this is good, and will ſuffice, for Impotentia excuſat legem: But if the Maſter in that caſe were in health, and might go to part of the Land himſelf, ſuch a Claim by his ſervant will not avail him. *Littl. Sect.*434.

Alſo in ſome caſes he that hath right, and cannot enter, yet may make this Claim: As he in Reverſion, after an eſtate for years (and as ſome hold after an eſtate for life) by Statute Merchant, Staple, or Elegit, may enter to make a Claim to prevent a deſcent, or to avoid a Collateral Warranty: But none but ſuch as have Right or Title of Entry, can make this Continual Claim, Co. ſuper Littl. 250, 251. b.

If a Fine be levied of my Land, any man may enter, or make claim for me, and to my uſe to avoid this Fine, by authority precedent from me; and without authority alſo, if I do afterwards agree to it within the five years, but not otherwiſe.

A Guardian for Education, or in Soccage may enter or make Claim in the name of the Infant that hath right without any Commandment Precedent, or Aſſent Subſequent, in reſpect of the privity, is between him and the Infant.

The Chapter in caſe of a Dean and Chapter, nor Cominalty in caſe of a Major and Cominalty, in the vacancy of the Dean or Major, cannot make any Claim; for they have not ability nor capacity to ſue or be ſued, and Entry and Continual Claim muſt always purſue the Action. Co. ſuper Littl. 263. b.

To Goods.

The party himſelf that hath right to the Goods or Chattels, or his Deputy or Servant, or any other in his behalf by his Precedent appointment, or Aſſent ſubſequent, may claim or ſeize Goods that he hath right unto, and it ſhall be good; for ſuch perſons may claim Land, à fortiori then, Goods. Vide ſupra.

8. In what place ſuch Claim ſhall be made, and when it is well done in ſuch place, or not.

He that is to make any Claim or Entry into Lands, if he be not afraid, is to go to the Land, or ſome part of it; and if by his Entry or Claim, he be to deveſt any eſtate that is in another, he muſt enter into ſome part of the Land; but if it be onely to bring him into actual poſſeſſion, and not to deveſt any eſtate in another, he may do it in view; but if he dare not come to, nor in view of the Land, he muſt come as neer it as he dare, and make his Claim there. 9 *H.*4. 5. 11 *H.*6. 51. Co. ſuper Littl. 252. 254.

To Lands.

If a man have cauſe to enter into any Lands or Tenements which are in divers Villages in one County, if he make his Entry into the Land within one Village in the name of all the reſt he hath right to enter into, within all the Villages of that County; this is good for all the reſt: But if it be in divers Counties, he muſt make divers Entries. But if three ſeveral men diſſeiſe me of three ſeveral Acres (though in the ſame County,) or if one man Diſſeiſe me of three Acres, and letteth it to three ſeveral men for life; or one Diſſeiſe me of one Acre at one time, and another Acre at another time; in all theſe caſes my Entry muſt be ſeveral, elſe it will ſerve onely for ſo much as I enter into: But if I infeoff another of one Acre of ground upon Condition, and after I infeoff him of another in the ſame County on Condition, and both Conditions are broken, an Entry into one in the name of both is not ſufficient; but an entry into one part in the name of all, ſubject to one Condition, is good; although there be divers parcels in divers Towns. And according to this patern (as it ſeems) a Claim muſt be made, 7 *Aſſ.*18. 12 Ed. 4. 10. 36 *H.*6. 27. Dyer 337. 11 *H.*7. 25.

But if it be ſo that the party in poſſeſſion do lie in wait, or have threatned to kill, beat, or maim the party that hath right if he come upon the Land; ſo that he is in fear fear of his life, and he doth not dare to go into any part of the Lands; there he may come as near it, within the view of it as he dare, and claim it; and this is good enough. Littl. Sect. 421.

If one have cauſe to claim or ſeize the body of a man or woman-childe for his Ward, it muſt be in his preſence by words, or elſe by laying hands upon him: But the Lord may claim his Villains Goods in any place where he findes them; and ſo may any man in any other caſe. 3 H. 4. 5. Fitz. Barr. 217. Doct. & Stud. fol. 139. To Goods.

If a man have Right or Title to enter into any Lands or Tenements, whereof another is ſeiſed in Fee, or in Fee-tail, if he which hath Title to enter, makes Continual Claim to the Lands or Tenements before the dying ſeiſed of him which holdeth them; then albeit ſuch Tenant dieth thereof ſeized, and the Lands do diſcend to his Heir, yet he that hath made this Claim, or his Heir if he die enter into the ſame Lands, and the force of the diſcent is hereby avoided. Littl. Sect. 414, 415. 9. Where the Continual Claim of him which hath Right or Title, ſhall avoid a deſcent. Where not. Sect. 6.

As if I be diſſeiſed, or my Tenant for life Alien in Fee, and I make Continual Claim to the Lands in the life of the Diſſeiſor, or Alienee, if after the Diſſeiſor or Alienee die ſeized, and the Land diſcend to his Heir, yet I may enter upon the poſſeſſion of the Heir, and avoid this diſcent: So if the Diſſeiſor, or Feoffee, &c. of the Diſſeiſor diſſeiſed, yet my right of Entry by this Claim is ſaved.

If there be Tenant for life; the Remainder for life, the Remainder in Fee, and the Tenant for life Alien in Fee, and he in Remainder for life, maketh continual claim before the dying ſeized of the Alienee, and after the Alienee die ſeized, and after he in Remainder for life die before any Entry by him made: Now in this caſe he in Remainder in Fee ſhall have benefit by the Claim of the Tenant for life, and he may enter upon the Heir of Alienee; and ſo may he in Reverſion alſo: And if two Joynt-tenants be diſſeiſed, and one of them do make continual Claim, and dieth, the Survivor ſhall have the benefit of this Claim: But if the Tenant for life doth make continual Claim; this will not avail him in the Remainder, unleſs the Diſſeiſor die in the life time of the Tenant for life. Littl. Sect. 416. & Co. ſuper Cro. 10. Where the Claim of one ſhall avail another. Where not.

The Claim of the Lord ſhall avail the Tenant that is a Copiholder, ſo likewiſe ſhall the Claim of the Copiholder avail the Lord: So the Claim of him in Reverſion or Remainder ſhall avail the particular Tenant, and the Claim of the particular Tenant avail him in Remainder or Reverſion: For which ſee more in *Fines. If an Infant be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor during the time of the Infancy die ſeized, this will not prejudice the Infant, although he made not his Claim in all that time, but he may enter when he comes to age: So if a Fine be levied of his Land, during his minority, and the proclamations and five years be paſſed, and in all this time, he hath made no Entry, nor Claim; this will not hurt him; for he ſhall have five years after he come to age to make his Claim. Vide Fines. Co. 8. 200. & Littl. Sect. 402. Al Infant.

If there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Tenant in Tail levy a Fine with Proclamations, he in the Remainder die, his Heir within age; and after the Tenant in Tail doth die without Iſſue; ſo that the Title doth accrew to the Infant, and five years incur, and yet he is within age: Now in this caſe he ſhall not be hurt by his non-claim in theſe five years, for he ſhall have five years after he come to his full age, Dyer 133. a.

If a man be diſſeiſed of Land he hath in the right of his Wife, and the Diſſeiſor die, during the Coverture, and no Claim is made by the Husband; now in this caſe the non-claim of the Husband ſhall not prejudice the Wife, though it do bar him; And if a Fine be levied of any Land, which is the Land of a Feme Covert, within the Statute of 4 H. 7. In this caſe, though the Husband make no Claim, during the Feme Covert.

Coverture, yet this ſhall not hurt the Wife, but ſhe ſhall have five years to make her Claim or Entry after the death of her Husband: But if the Wife, whiles ſhe was ſole (if ſhe were of full age) were diſſeiſed, and after take a Husband that doth not make his Claim or Entry, but ſuffer a diſcent; now this Laches of her Husband ſhall prejudice her, and bar her of Entry after his death. Co. 100. 9 H. 7. 24. 2 Ed. 4. 25. 7 Ed. 4. 7. *Littl. If a man de non ſane memorie, that hath not Intelligence and Reaſon, be diſſeiſed, have any Right or Title to enter into Land, and do not make his Claim, but ſuffer a dying ſeized, if all this be during the time of his diſtemper; this Laches of his ſhall not hurt him at all. See Non ſane memorie. Co. 8. 100.

If a man be impriſoned, and he be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor dieth ſeized, during the time the Diſſeiſee is in priſon, whereby the Tenements diſcend to the Heir of the Diſſeiſor; this Diſcent, or his Non-claim, will not hurt the Diſſeiſee which is in priſon: But if he were at large at the time of the diſſeiſon, or at any time after, before, or at the time of the dying ſeized of the Diſſeiſor, here is Non-claim will bar him. Plow. 360. Co. ſuper Littl. 259. a. 9 H. 7. 24.

If a Biſhop, Parſon, Vicar, Prebend, or Abbot die, and during the Vacancy, one enter into any of the Land belonging to the Biſhoprick, &c. and claim it to him and his Heirs, and die ſeized of that Eſtate, and it diſcend to his Heir during the Vacancy: Now this Diſcent and Laches will not hurt, but the Succeſſor may enter notwithſtanding. So if a uſurpation be had to a charge in time of Vacation, this ſhall not prejudice the ſucceſſor to put him out of poſſeſſion, but that at the next avoidance he ſhall preſent. Littl. Sect. 443. Co. ſuper Cro.

12. Diſclaimer.

It is where a man doth not challenge, but deny that which is his; or it is a plea containing an expreſs denial, or refuſal. And this is ſometimes in the Tenancy, ſometimes in the Seigniory, ſometimes in the Blood, ſometimes of Goods. As where the Lord diſtraineth his Tenant, and he ſueth a Replevin, and the Lord avoweth the taking of it, by reaſon that he holdeth of him, if the Tenant in this caſe ſay, That he diſclaimeth to hold of him; this is called a Diſclaimer. And hereupon the Lord may bring a Writ of Right Sur Diſclaimer, and if it be found againſt the Tenant, he loſeth his Land for ever, if the Diſclaimer be in a Court of Record, elſe he is to be amerced for it onely. So if a Precipe be brought againſt two men for Land, and one of the Tenants diſclaimeth, and ſaith that he is not Tenant thereof, nor doth claim any thing therein, for the manner of Diſclaim is ſuch. Nihil habet, nec habere clamat in terra illa, nec die impetrationis brevis originalis prædict' habuit nec clamavit, ſed aliquid in terra illa habere de advocat' & diſclamat'. Now by this he loſeth his part of the Land, and the other Tenant ſhall have the whole. And if there be but one Tenant, and he do ſo diſclaim, the Writ ſhall abate, and the Demandant may enter into the Land preſently, whether he have right or not. And in this caſe the Tenant hath no Remedy by Writ of Error, to avoid his own Diſclaimer, 13 H. 7. 27. 16 Hen. 7. 1. Weſtm. 2. 2. Co. 3. 26. F. N. B. 150. 13 H. 7. 27. Co. 8. 62.

Right of Diſclaimer.

Alſo the Lord may diſclaim of his Seigniory, and in this caſe if he do ſo in Court of Record, the Seigniory is extinct, and the Tenant ſhall hold of the Lord next Paramount, the Lord that did ſo diſclaim by the Services he held before. Littl. Sect. 146.

Of Blood.

Alſo we may diſclaim in the Blood, as in caſe where a Nuper obiit is brought by one Coparcener againſt another, the Tenant may claim by purchaſe, and diſclaim in the Blood; and it ſeems if this be found againſt him, he loſeth the benefit of the Blood and Diſcent. F. N. B. 197. 9.

Of Goods.

Alſo one may diſclaim his own Goods: As if a man be Indicted that he did felonioufly ouſly ſteal the Goods of another, where in truth they are his own proper Goods, and the Goods are brought in Court, and ſet before him, and being demanded what he ſaith to them, he doth diſclaim them; now hereby he hath loſt them to the King, as Goods confiſcate, although he be afterwards acquitted of the Felony. Fitz. Corone 355. Stamf. fol. 186. a.

Alſo there is a Diſclaimer of Eſtates, (which ſee more of in Wayver:) As if Lands be given to Husband and Wife in Fee, or in Tail, and the Husband dieth: Now the Wife cannot by any Verbal Wayver, or Diſclaimer in the Country. As if before any Entry made, ſhe ſaith ſhe doth altogether wave, and diſclaim the ſaid Eſtate, and will never take, nor accept thereof; yet the Freehold doth remain in her, and ſhe may enter when ſhe pleaſeth: So a Charter of Feoffment was made to four, and Seiſon delivered to three, in the name of all; and the fourth when he ſeeth the Deed, ſaith, He will not have, nor accept it, and diſclaimeth; yet the Freehold is in him, and he hath as much to do with the Land, as the reſt. Co. 3. 26. Of Coaches.

For Coaches, theſe things are to be known.

1. There ſhall not above Two hundred perſons within London, Weſtminſter, and ſix miles about the late Lines of Communication, keep Hackney Coaches and Horſes. Nor ſhall they have and uſe above Three hundred Hackney Coaches, nor above Six hundred Hackney Horſes.

2. The Stage Coaches that come to, and go from London, to or from the remote places of the Nation excepted.

3. That the Government of them be always in the Court of Aldermen, within the City of London.

4. This Court may make and ſet down Orders, and offer them to the Lord Protector and his Council, who may alter them as they ſee good, and then they ſhall be binding to them.

5. The Thirteen perſons named in the Ordinance, are to be Thirteen of the firſt Two hundred perſons, who ſhall keep Hackney Coaches, and Hackney Horſes.

6. Theſe Thirteen, or the greater part of them, were to name to the Court of Aldermen Two hundred perſons; out of which, the Court of Aldermen, if they thought fit, were to chuſe thereof.

7. Every one to be firſt admitted to keep a Hackney Coach, was to pay Forty ſhillings towards a common Stock, to bear up the Company.

CHAP. XLVII.

Of Colluſion or Covin.

Sect. 1.

1. Colluſion or Covin. What.

COlluſion is a crooked proceeding, or the deceitful and ſecret Aſſent and Agreement between two or more, to the prejudice or hurt of another.

Fraud or Diſceit.

It differeth nothing from Fraud, but in this, That Fraud may be by one, but Colluſion muſt be by two or more.

This Colluſion is either apparant, when it is, and ſheweth it ſelf in the face of the Act it ſelf; or elſe (which is moſt common) it is Secret, that is, when it is vailed over with the ſhews of honeſty, or done in the dark, that it cannot be eaſily eſpied, Co. 9. 109 Plow. 54. Co. on Littl. 3. 12. Sect. 678.

2. The effect or operation of it.

This Covin, although it doth inſinuate it ſelf into moſt of the Acts and Affairs of men, yet is it a thing the Law doth much abhor and oppoſe; and therefore it doth make void all Acts that are done by it, and not onely ſo, but all Acts that are dependant upon it, though otherwiſe in themſelves never ſo good, or much favored in the Law. Quod aliàs bonum & juſtum eſt; ſi per vim vel fraudem petatur, malum & injuſtum efficitur. Fraus & dolus nemini patrocinari debent. Co. upon Littl. 366. Co. 3. 78.

3. Wherein it is converſant. And what ſigns are of it.

Covin is commonly hatched, and converſant in and about Conveyances of Land, be they by Fine, Feoffment, Recovery, or otherwiſe, and then it is tending to defeat Purchaſors of their Lands, or Creditors of their Debts, or Lords of their Wardſhips and Services. Alſo it is uſed oft-times in and about Deeds of Gift of Goods. But it is ſometimes practiſed in Suits of Law, and Judgments had thereupon, in Letters Patents, in Preſentations, Adminiſtrations, Contracts, Releaſes, and almoſt in every thing.

And if the Fraud be in the Conveyance of Lands or Goods, there are ſome certain ſigns or marks, whereby the ſame may be deſcried and found out. As

1 When the Conveyance, or Deed of Gift, hath in it a power of Revocation or Alteration at the will of him that makes it.

2. When the party granting, giving, or ſelling, doth notwithſtanding the ſale, or gift, ſtill poſſeſs and uſe the thing given, or granted, as his own.

3. If the ſale or gift be made after Suits of Law be begun againſt him, or when he is about to ſell the thing to another.

4. When the thing is done in ſecret, Qui malè agit odit lucem. Et Dona clandeſtina ſemper inducunt ſuſpicionem.

5. Where there is any Expreſs, or any implied Truſt in the Caſe.

6. When the Deed doth contain ſome unuſual clauſes or flouriſhes of honeſty and truth in it. Clauſulæ inconſuetæ ſemper inducunt ſuſpicionem.

7. When the Deed is very general, Verſutus vadit in generalibus. 27 Eliz. 4. Dyer 294. Co. 3. 81. 6. 72. 10. 53.

Sect. 2.

4. What ſhall be accounted a Fraudulent Conveyance to deceive a Purchaſor, and void, or not.

All Fraudulent Conveyances of Land, or any Rent, or profit out of Land made by whomſoever, with intent to deceive any one that ſhall purchaſe the ſame Land, or any Rent, or profit out of it, for money or other good conſideration of the Fruit, and effect of their Purchaſe, ſhall be void as to ſuch Purchaſors; and all ſuch as come under their Eſtate, as to ſo much as they ſhall ſo convey, and he that ſhall knowingly avow ſuch a Conveyance, may be puniſhed for it. 27 Eliz. 4. But ſuch Conveyances as are made Bona fide, and upon good conſideration, are not to be accounted Fraudulent. Ibid.

For the further opening and clearing of this Statute, and the Law, in this point, theſe things are to be known.

1. The

1. The good Conveyance muſt be both Bona fide, and upon good conſideration, or elſe it is void, for Bona fide is oppoſed to ſuch as are made upon, or with any truſt Expreſſed or Implied: And good Conſideration is to diſtinguiſh from ſuch Conſiderations, as are not valuable, as Nature, Blood, and the like; for ſuch Purchaſors as come in upon any ſuch Conſideration, cannot avoid a former Conveyance as Fraudulent, Co. 3. 81.

2. If one convey Land with a preſent or future power of Revocation or Alteration at the will of him that doth convey it; this is Fraudulent as againſt him that ſhall after purchaſe the Land of him that made the firſt Conveyance. As if one convey Land to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to the uſe of divers of his Blood, with a future power to revoke it after the death of ſuch a one, or after ſuch a day, and before the day, he ſell the Land for valuable Conſideration; in this caſe, the firſt Conveyance is void as to the Purchaſor, and he may avoid it, Co. 3. 82.

3. If the Father make any Fraudulent conveyance, and after continue the occupation, and then the Land diſcend to the Son, and the Son ſell it for money, or other valuable conſideration; in this caſe the Purchaſor may avoid the Conveyance made by the Father, whether the Son were privy to it, or not. Co. 6. 62.

4. If a man have made an Eſtate with power of Revocation, and after with an intent to defraud a Purchaſor, levy a Fine, or make a Feoffment to a ſtranger, to extinct the power, and after ſell the Land for valuable conſideration; in this caſe the Purchaſor may avoid both the former Conveyances, as Fraudulent. Co. 3. 83.

5. If one had made the firſt Conveyance to the King, and after had ſold the Land for good conſideration to a common perſon; in this caſe the Purchaſor might have avoided the firſt Conveyance: Co. 11. 74.

6. If the firſt Conveyance be made by way of Bargain and Sale, yet if it be Fraudulent within the intent of this Statute; it is voidable by the Purchaſor. So it was ruled by the Lord Chief Juſtice Hide, in evidence to a Jury in London at Guild-hal. 3 Car.

7. If there be Grand-father, Father, and Son, and the Grand-father makes a Leaſe for a thouſand years to the Father, and the Father to prevent the drowning of the Leaſe by the diſcent of the Reverſion, aſſigned it to divers of his friends to the uſe of the Son, being an Infant, under pretence to pay Debts, the Grand-father dieth, the Father continueth the Occupation, and maketh Eſtates, and doth all Acts as owner of the Land, the Son paid no Debts, and Aſſignment, though divers perſons of good quality were named in it, yet it was delivered by the Father to one of the Aſſignees of mean Eſtate, and in private, and afterwards the Father ſold the Land for a valuable conſideration; in this caſe it was reſolved, That the Leaſe and Aſſignment both might be avoided by the Purchaſor, as Fraudulent, Co. 6. 72.

8. If a Feoffment be made of Lands held by Knights Service to J. S. upon condition, that he within a certain time ſhall Enfeoff J. D. And that this Feoffment to J. D. ſhall be to the uſe of the Wife of the firſt Feoffor, for her Joynture, &c. In this caſe the Feoffment ſhall be Fraudulent. Dolus circuitu non purgatur.

9. Albeit the Purchaſor when he buyes doth know of the Precedent former Conveyance, and go on with his Purchaſe, yet he may avoid the former Conveyance as Fraudulent. Co. 5. 60.

10. If there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Tail or in Fee, and he in Remainder in Tail or in Fee, ſell his Remainder by Deed, inrolled to the King; and after one buy the Land of the firſt Tenant in Tail, and he ſuffer a common Recovery; in this caſe the Purchaſor may avoid this ſale to the King, as Fraudulent. Co. 11. 74.

11. If there be a Leaſe for years, and the Leſſor make a Fraudulent Conveyance in in Fee, and then for good conſideration make another Leaſe to begin after the end of the former Leaſe; this may be a Fraudulent Leaſe. And he for publiſhing and avowing of this Leaſe (though it be during the firſt Leaſe) yet he may fall under the penalty of the Statute, and the party likely to be grieved, may have his Action. Cowel and Barton. M. 4. Jac.

12. If A. make a Leaſe for years to B. upon good conſideration, and after he make a Leaſe to C. of the ſame Land for the ſame time, and B. drives this Bargain, and is witneſs to this ſecond Leaſe, and doth not diſcover the Leaſe to him, nor is it excepted in the ſecond Leaſe; and this ſecond Leaſe is upon good conſideration alſo. In this caſe it was ſaid the firſt is Fraudulent. By two Juſtices. Hil. 18 Jac. B. R.

13. If one after marriage make a voluntary Conveyance of his Land for a Joynture or a maintenance of his Wife, and after ſell the Land for money; in this caſe the Conveyance made to, or for his Wife, ſhall be ſaid to be Fraudulent. And yet if a man upon a marriage before the marriage made, and in conſideration thereof convey Land to the uſe of his Wife, &c. In this caſe, without queſtion, the Conveyance is good, and ſhall not be avoided as Fraudulent, eſpecially if it be in conſideration of money alſo, as the common courſe is.

If one in conſideration of a marriage had, and money to be paid, convey his Land, and after ſell it for money; the firſt Conveyance will not be Fraudulent. So alſo it is thought when it is in conſideration of a marriage paſt, and money paid together. A. being to have fifteen hundred pounds with his Wife in marriage, in conſideration hereof did Covenant to aſſure Land for the benefit of his Wife, the fifteen hundred pounds is ſecured to A. they enter-marry, after A. having a Leaſe of the Mannor of S. for ſixty years, doth grant it to Friends to the uſe of himſelf for his life, after of his Wife for her life, and after of their Son; after this, he doth Mortgage to J. S. for money borrowed. This it ſeems was ruled not Fraudulent, during the life, and therefore much leſs after his death. H. 20 Jac. Peter Vanlores caſe.

And if the Joynture or Eſtate be made before the marriage, and this after the marriage is delivered up, and a new Eſtate for Joynture, &c. made in conſideration thereof of other Lands; this perhaps may be good alſo, and not judged to be Fraudulent. The opinion of ſome Learned Lawyers. Mich. 10 Car.

14. If one make a Leaſe by Covin or Fraud to one, and after make another Leaſe to another Bona fide, but without Fine or Rent; in this caſe, this ſecond Leſſee cannot avoid the firſt Leaſe, becauſe he is not a Purchaſor that comes in for money, Co. 3. 83. So if one make a Leaſe for thirty years without conſideration, and after marriage make it to his Wife in Joynture; this laſt will not avoid the firſt.

15. If one Covenant for the advancement of his Heirs Males, or for the like conſideration, to levy a Fine by a day, to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after of his Iſſue Male, &c. and before that day he make a Leaſe by Fraud for many years, and after levy the Fine accordingly; in this caſe they cannot avoid this Leaſe as Fraudulent within this Statute, for they come not in for money. Co. 3. 83.

16. If a man be ſomewhat fooliſh and given to waſte, be perſwaded to ſettle his Land upon ſome of his Friends, of purpoſe to maintain himſelf with it, and after ſome of his leud companions inveagle him, and get him for a ſmall ſum of money to convey it to them; in this caſe they ſhall never avoid this former Conveyance as Fraudulent, Co 3. 83.

17. If one that hath a Term of Land for ſixty years, if he live ſo long, make it away, and he forgo a Leaſe for ninety years abſolutely, and he by Indenture reciting the forged Leaſe for valuable conſideration, doth ſell the forged Leaſe, and all his intereſt into the Land to J. S. In this caſe J. S. is not ſuch a Purchaſor as within this Statute to avoid this precedent Leaſe. Co. Inſt. 1. part. pag. 3. Paſche, 12 Jac. Jones caſe.

18. If

18. If a man be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and he make a Feoffment for divers good Conſiderations to the uſe of himſelf and his wife, and the heirs on the body of his wife begotten, and after he ſels the Land to J. S. for money: In this caſe it ſeems the former Conveyance ſhall not be ſaid to be fraudulent to the Purchaſor, but the Eſtate-tail made thereby is good, except there be ſome circumſtances of fraud in it more then uſual.

19. A. ſeiſed of ~~the fifth~~ five parts of the Manor of D. and C. of the ſixth part, and M. comes to A. to buy this Manor of him; after M. tels A. My Council tels me, you cannot ſell, unleſs C. join with you: After this, C. grants a Rent-charge of Fifteen pounds a year out of the Manor, to S. her youngeſt ſon and his heirs of his body, for natural affection, he being then but three years old; with a Proviſo, That if B. (whom ſhe intended to marry) ſhall grant to S. T. the like Rent of Fifteen pounds, and for the like Eſtate out of Twenty pounds a year Land of B. then the Grant to be void: After A. doth buy the ſixth part of the Manor, of B. and C. his wife, (they being now intermarried together) and after A. B. and C. his wife join in a Grant to M. In this caſe it was agreed, that this Grant was not fraudulent: For it is the changing of an Eſtate, and at a great charge. Otherwiſe it were, if it were upon the tender of a pair of Gloves, or the like, M. 19 Jac. Co B. Millers Caſe. But no Purchaſor but he that comes in for money or good value, can take advantage of the fraud, for it doth bind all others: And the latter Conveyance muſt have a good, as well as valuable cauſe, M. 37. 38 Eliz. Uptons Caſe, Co. 3. 83.

Sect. 3. 5. What ſhall be accounted a fraudulent Conveyance, or an Act to defeat Creditors or others of their Debts or Duties, and therfore void; or not.

All Feoffments, Gifts, Grants, Alienations, Bargains and Conveyances of Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods and Chattels, or any Rent, Profit or Commodity out of Land. So all Bonds, Suits, Judgments, Executions made and entred into by Fraud or Colluſion of Truſt for him that made it or entred into it, or otherwiſe with intent to hinder, delay, or put by Creditors, or others of their juſt and lawful Actions, Suits, Debts, Accounts, Damages, Penalties, Forfeitures, Heriots, Mortuaries, or Reliefs ſhall be void as againſt them to whom ſuch Debt or Duty doth belong, and they may proceed to take their remedy, as if no ſuch thing had been done or made, Stat 3 H. 7. 4. 47 Ed. 3. 6. 2 R. 2. 3. 13 Eliz. 5. 50 Ed. 3. 6. And for the further opening of theſe Statutes, and the Law in this matter, theſe things are to be known.

1. By the antient Common-Law, he that had a former Right, Title, Intereſt or Demand, might avoid an Eſtate ſubſequent made by fraud. As if one ſell my Goods in a Market overt by Covin and fraud, I may avoid it: And if I have a Judgment for Debt or Damages againſt another, and in the mean between the Judgment and the Execution he give or ſell away his Goods by fraud, I may make Execution of them, 22 Aſſ. 44. Dyer 295. Co. 3. 83. Bro. Don 20.

2. But now by theſe Statutes, one that hath a ſubſequent right, and may avoid a precedent eſtate, right, &c. And therefore if one be indebted to A. Twenty pounds, and to B. Forty pounds, and be poſſeſſed of Goods to the value of Twenty pounds, and A. ſues him for this Twenty pounds, and hanging this Suit, the Debtor ſecretly makes a general Deed of Gift of all his Goods to B. in ſatisfaction of his Debt, and yet he himſelf doth continue the poſſeſſion and uſe of the goods as the Owner thereof, ſell and ſheer the Sheep &c. mark them in his own name, ~~and after A. getteth a Judgment and Execution in his own name,~~ and after A. getteth a Judgment and Execution in his Suit for his Twenty pounds; in this caſe A ſhall make Execution of theſe goods, as if no ſuch Deed of Gift had been made. So if in this caſe the Debtor had given all his goods to B. in ſatisfaction of his Debt before any Suit begun by A. upon any expreſs or implicite Truſt, as that he ſhould be favorable to him in reſpect of his poor eſtate, or the like; or that he ſhould ſuffer him to uſe his goods, and pay him as he can, or the like: In all theſe and ſuch like caſes, although the thing be done upon good conſideration; yet becauſe it is not done bona fide, becauſe there is a Truſt in the Caſe, therefore it ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent, Co. 3. 83.

3. If one in conſideration of natural affection give all his goods to his Child or Couſin, bona fide; this as to Creditors ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent. So if I, when Suits be againſt me, convey away my Land to my Children or Couſins, with a Proviſo viſo to avoid it at my pleaſure; this as to Creditors will be fraudulent, Co. 3. 80. Dyer 295.

4. If two be bound together in an Obligation, and the Principal having a Leaſe for years grants it over to his Surety, in conſideration he is bound with him, and after he enters into a Statute, or ſuffers a Judgment againſt him; in this caſe the Grant ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent, and ſubject to Execution. But if the Surety had been bound to ſave the Principal harmleſs, and he had paid the money for him, and delivered up his Counterbond, and for this he had made him this Aſſignment without any Truſt, this had been good, Wilſons Caſe, Paſch. 8 Jac. B R.

5. Where the Deed is made upon theſe terms, That if he can provide the money, he ſhall have his goods again; this ſhall be eſteemed fraudulent.

6. If one bind him and his heirs in an Obligation, and after make a fraudulent Conveyance to another to defeat the Debtee, and die; in this caſe the Obligee may ſue the Heir, and recover the Debt againſt him, Co. 5. 60.

7. If after a Commiſſion of Bankrupt be ſued out, the Debtor deliver or make over all his goods, or any part thereof to one of the Creditors in ſatisfaction of his Debt; this ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent, and the Commiſſioners may ſell them notwithſtanding.

8. If the fraudulent Deed be made by one to ſome of his friends, and they are not privy to it; yet it ſhall be accounted fraudulent, and ſhall be void as to Purchaſors or Creditors, Co 8. 131. Plow. 54.

9. If an Adminiſtrator do covinouſly give or ſell away the Goods, and after his Adminiſtration is revoked, and another granted to another; in this caſe the Creditors may ſue the firſt Adminiſtrator, and his Deed of Gift as to them ſhall be void, Co. 6. 18.

10. If a Recuſant or any other, with an intent to defeat the King or other Lord of his Forfeiture, make a Deed of Gift of his Goods and Chattels, after the offence is committed; this as to the Lord or King ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent, Stat. 13 Eliz. chap. 1.

11. If one ſue an Executor or Adminiſtrator for a Debt due from the deceaſed, and there is a Judgment had before that time againſt him at another mans ſuit, which is not ſatisfied, and he have not Aſſets in his hands more then to ſatisfie for the firſt Judgment; in this caſe if the firſt Judgment be bona fide, it is a Bar to the ſecond Suit. But if the firſt be fraudulent, as the Law will judg it to be, in caſe where either there was no, or not ſo much Debt rei veritate due from him that is dead, or the Executor or Adminiſtrator hath compounded for leſs, and the Judgment is left of purpoſe to bar other Creditors; this Judgment, as to the Plaintiff in this Suit, ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent, Co. 1. 132.

12. If one being indebted, and having goods, make a Deed of Gift of his goods to J. S. and then make him his Executor, ſuppoſing by this to keep his goods from being liable to his Debt; this ſhall be ſaid to be fraudulent and void as to Creditors, and J. S. will be charged as Executor for all the goods. So if one, when Judgment is given, or like to be given againſt him for a Debt, make away his Lands or Goods of purpoſe to avoid Execution: Or if one in priſon for divers Debts, procure himſelf to be indicted and attainted for ſome offence, to the intent to forfeit his Eſtate, have his Clergy, to defeat his Creditors; all theſe Acts will be made void as fraudulent.

13. If a man a little before his death convey away his Land, to the intent that a Warranty and Aſſets ſhould not bar his ſon for other Land; this may be avoided as fraudulent, Dyer 295.

14. If A. bona fide, and for valuable conſideration mortgage his Leaſe for Twenty one years to B. upon condition, that if he repay the money a year after to B. he ſhall re-enter; B. covenant with A. that he ſhall receive the profits till the time of payment, &c. A. doth not pay the money at the time: B. hoping that A. in time will pay him, doth not interrupt him, but ſuffer him to take the profits two or three years after; and in the interim a Judgment is had againſt A. upon a Bond, and Execution awarded: In this it was held, that this was no fraudulent; and being no fraudulent dulent Conveyance at the firſt making, it cannot become a fraudulent Conveyance by matter ex poſt facto. By both the Judges of Aſſiſe, in the Caſe of the Lady Lambeth, in Com. South. 5 Car.

15. Such Conveyances, Deeds of Gift, Contracts and Agreements as are made bona fide and upon good conſideration, are not to be accounted fraudulent, nor can they be avoided. And all ſuch Conveyances and Deeds as are void by theſe Statutes, are void as to Purchaſors and Creditors only, but good againſt them that make them, and all others, and as to all other purpoſes. And therefore it was adjudged, That if A. for Twenty pounds paid him grant all his Goods in a Schedule annexed to the Deed to be carried away upon demand, and covenant that he and his Executors ſhall deliver them upon demand, and the Executor is required to deliver them, that he ſhall not ſay, being ſued, that this Deed is fraudulent, Brownl. 1 part, 111. And any man that will, may by word or writing give, or he may ſell his Goods outright for money, at any time before Execution done; ſo that there be no Truſt in the caſe, that upon payment of the money, he ſhall have the Goods again, or the like; and this will be good againſt himſelf, his Executors, Adminiſtrators, or any to whom he ſhall after ſell or convey them, Stat. 3 H. 7. 4. 13 Eliz. ch. 15. Co. 3. 82. 59. 60. See more for this in my Book of Common Aſſurances, in Chap. of Deeds.

Sect. 4. 6. What ſhall be accounted a fraudulent Conveyance to defraud the Lord of his Wardſhip or other Duty; and void, or not.

If any Tenant holding Land of the King or other Lord in capite, or by Knights ſervice, make a Feoffment or other Conveyance to defeat the King or Lord of whom he holds his Land, of his Wardſhip, primer Seiſin, or other benefits of his Tenure reſerved to him by the Statute of 32 and 34 H. 8. of Wills, it will be void as to a third part as to the Lord, and he ſhall have the ſame benefit as he ſhould have had if no ſuch Conveyance had been made. And as to this, take theſe Caſes.

1. Therefore if ſuch a Tenant enfeoff his lineal or collateral Heir within age, or make a Leaſe for life, the Remainder to his Heir; or make a Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Fee to his Heir; or make a Feoffment to another and his Heir; or make a Feoffment on condition that he ſhall enfeoff back again his Heir at his full age; or make a Feoffment for the payment of his Debts, Preferment of his wife and children; or enfeoff one to the intent that he ſhall receive the profits till he have an Heir-male, and then to reinfeoff him; or deviſe all his Land by his Will in any ſuch ſort: This ſhall be eſteemed fraudulent, and will be void as to the Lord for a third part, Co. 6. 76. Plow. 49 Co. 8. 164. 9. 119. Dyer 36. Stat. Marlb. c. 6.

2. But in caſe the Tenant had left a full third part to deſcend to his Heir, he might have diſpoſed the reſt either by Act executed, or by Will before, or at his death how he had pleaſed, and no Averment of Fraud doth lie for more then a third part in any ſuch caſe: For a man might by thoſe Statutes have conveyed or deviſed two parts in three of his Land to or for his wife, children, or payment of his Debts, and the Lord ſhall have nothing out of that, but he muſt have what is due to him out of the third part that is left, Dyer 276. Co. 8. 104. And for Lands held by Soccage-tenure, every man may diſpoſe them at his pleaſure.

3. If one that holdeth his Land to pay a Heriot at his death, and he in conſideration of natural love enfeoff his ſon and heir; and the ſon, to prevent the Dower of his wife during his fathers life, makes a Leaſe for Forty years, if his father live ſo long; the father pays the Rent, and the ſon doth ſuit of Court for the Land, and after the father dieth: In this caſe the Conveyance ſhall not be adjudged fraudulent as to the Lord to deceive him of his Heriot, for it was done to another end, Brownl. Rep. 2 part, 287. Co. 10. 46. So if a man for fear of Debts convey his Land to friends with condition, that upon payment of Ten pounds they ſhall convey it to whomſoever he ſhall appoint, Co 1047. Dyer 268.

4. If one make a Feoffment of Land to two and their heirs for money, or other valuable conſideration, and this was of Land holden by this Tenure, this was not accounted fraudulent. So neither where one of the Joint-tenants make a Feoffment of his Moity to a ſtranger, Co. 8. 164.

5. If a Feoffment be made by Colluſion, and the Feoffee die, or make a Feoffment over bona fide to another before the death of the Anceſtor; this ſecond Feoffment is good, and the Colluſion is gone, Co. 1. 22. 2 94. Dyer.

6. For fraudulent Conveyances to deceive the King of Abbey-lands, See Stat. 35 *H.*8.13. 1 *Ed.*6.44.

Sect. 5. 7. In what caſes Judgments and Recoveries in Suits ſhall be void by Covin or not.

For this matter, take theſe Caſes following.

1. If a woman that hath a title of Dower to the Land of her husband, cauſe one to diſſeiſe the Tenant of the Land, with intent to ſue him, and after ſhe doth ſo, and recover her Dower againſt him; all this is void. And yet if a Diſſeiſor, Intrudor, or Abator do endow a woman that hath a lawful title of Dower, without any practice; this is good, and ſhall bind him that hath right, Co. 3. 77. 11 Ed. 4. 2. 7 *H.*7.11. 19 H. 8. 12. So if a Tenant in tail be ouſted of his Land, and may bring his Formedon, and he ſhall cauſe another to diſſeiſe the Tenant of the Land, and bring his Action and recover the Land againſt him; this is void, and ſhall be no Remitter to the Tenant in tail, *Plow.*54. *Co.*3.77. So in all caſes where a man hath a rightful and juſt cauſe of Action, and he of Covin and conſent doth raiſe up a Tenant by wrong againſt whom he may recover, this Covin doth ſuffocate the Right; ſo as the Recovery, though upon a good title, ſhall not bind nor reſtore the Demandant to his Right, 41 *Aſſ. pl.*28. 25 *Aſſ. pl.*1. 15 *Ed.*4.2.

2. If A. and B. Jointenants, be entitled to a real Action againſt the Heir of the Diſſeiſor, and A. cauſe the Heir to be diſſeiſed, againſt whom A. and B. recover and ſue Execution; in this caſe B. is remitted, and ſhall hold in common with A. for he was no party to the Covin, but A. is not remitted, Co. upon Lit. 357.

3. So it is ſaid, if an Attorney appear without Warrant, and ſuffer a Judgment againſt me by fraud between him and the Plaintiff in the Action, it is all void, Dyer 361.

Sect 6. 8. In what caſes Fines and Common Recoveries may be void by Covin, or not.

For anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

1. If a Copiholder or Leſſee for years levy a Fine of Covin, or make a Feoffment of Covin with intent to levy a Fine to bar him in Reverſion, this is all void; and though five years paſs without claim, yet is he not hurt by it, eſpecially where the Tenant doth pay the Rent, and do the Service ſtill as he was wont to do. But if a man purchaſe Land of B. by Feoffment, or by Bargain and Sale inrolled, and after finding that B. hath a defeaſible Title, and that C. hath the Right, and B. levieth or taketh a Fine with Proclamations, with an intent to bar the Right of C: this is good. So if one pretend Title to Land, and enter and diſſeiſe the Tenant, and after levy a Fine with intent to bar the Diſſeiſee; this is not fraudulent, but is good: And if the Diſſeiſee do not claim nor enter within the five years, he is barred, *Co.*3.79.

Common-Recovery.

2. If the King had given Lands in tail to any one in recompence of any ſervice done to him, or for other cauſe; and the Tenant in tail, while the Reverſion was in the King, had ſuffered a Common-Recovery; this had been eſteemed fraudulent and void, as againſt the King and his Succeſſors, Stat. 34 H. 8. 20. Co. 10. 48. 1. 15. Plow. 54.

3. If Lands be conveyed by a husband or any of his Anceſtors, to the wife for her life, or to her and her husband and their iſſue in tail, for the Jointure of the wife; and after the husbands death, the wife alone, or ſhe and another husband ſuffer a Common-Recovery of the Land; this ſhall be eſteemed fraudulent and void, by the Statute of 11 *H.*7. *c.*20.

4. If a Tenant for life ſuffer a Common-Recovery without the Aſſent of him in Reverſion, this is void by the Stat. 32 *H.*8.31. 14 *Eliz.*8. But if any Tenant in tail in Poſſeſſion or Remainder ſuffer a Common-Recovery by Agreement, (except in the caſe before where the Reverſion is in the King;) this is good, and cannot be falſified as done by fraud. And if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Tail, or in Fee, and the Tenant for life doth ſuffer a Common-Recovery, and vouch over him in the firſt Remainder in Tail; this is not fraudulent, but a Bar to the Eſtate tail, *Co.*10.49.

5. But in many caſes where there is a fraud in the firſt Conveyance to defeat Purchaſors, Creditors, &c: if the Grantee ſhall after bona fide grant it away to a third perſon; here perhaps the Colluſion may be gone, and this ſecond Grant may be good, 33 *H.*6.28. *Goldsb.*118. *pl.*2. *in Bro. Colluſ.*23. 39 H. 6. 19. 44 Ed. 3.46. 41 *Aſſ.*28. 15 *Ed.*4.4. *Co.*6.58. *Co.*8.132. *Plow.*51.

A Deed of Gift may be of Goods, with intent to defeat Succeſſors of Spiritual perſons of their remedy for Dilapidations; of which ſee St. 13 Eliz. 10. 14 Eliz. 11. 1 Jac. 25. Sect. 7. 9. Where other things done ſhall be ſaid to be done by Covin, and therefore void, or not. 1 Jac. 25 Dilapidations. 13 El. fo. 14. Property.

If one ſell another mans Goods in a Market overt or Fair, revera & bona fide; by this the Property is altered. But if this be by Covin and Agreement, and of purpoſe to alter the Property, it is otherwiſe, Co. 3. 83. Sale of Goods.

If the Husband ſell away his Wives goods of purpoſe to prevent her having them again after a Divorce, and they be divorced; in this caſe ſhe ſhall have all her goods ſhe had before the marriage, that are ſo covinouſly ſold away: But being ſold away bona fide, ſhe cannot avoid the Sale, 26 H. 8. 7.

Diſceipt, is a Writ that lieth againſt him that doth any thing deceitfully in the name of another, for him that receiveth harm thereby. And this is properly Diſceipt. But others do take it in a larger ſenſe, and ſay it is Original, where any Diſceipt is done to another, ſo that he hath not performed his Bargain. For which ſee much in my Firſt Part of the Marrow of the Law, Chap. 22. where many Caſes are put upon it. Or it is Judicial, when upon a Scire facias ſued out of a Record to warn a man to appear, the Sheriff doth return the party ſummoned, and it is not ſo, or he was not legally ſummoned, and hereby Judgment is given againſt him for the Land: For this the party grieved, in ſome caſes, ſhall recover damages againſt the Sheriff; and in ſome caſes alſo the Judgment ſhall be vacated, *F. If I make an Attorney for me in a Real Action, and the Attorney by agreement between him and the Plaintiff ſuffer me to loſe the Land, I may have this Action, F. N. B. 95. Sect. 9. Where it doth lie, or not.

So

So if in any Action againſt me, another perſon will come into Court and perſonate me, and hereby any miſchief come to me, I may have this remedy againſt him: As if he ſue out a Writ in my name, wherein a Fine is to be paid. So if one acknowledg a Judgment in my name, and I ſuffer any loſs hereby, I may be righted againſt him by this means, F.N.B. 96, 97.

So if one levy a Fine, ſuffer a Recovery, knowledg a Statute, Recogniſance, or Bail in my name, and I be hereby damnified, I may have this remedy, F.N.B. 100. So if a man in a Suit I have againſt him, get a Protection, or remove the Suit only to delay me, and without any cauſe; I may have this Writ, Co. 5. 34. F.N.B. 97. So if one forge any Deed in my name, and uſe it, or it be uſed againſt me, I may have this Writ, F.N.B. 99. Dyer 75. And ſo in many other caſes. As if my Attorney in a Suit do any thing in my name he hath no Warrant for: One procure another to ſue and vex one: I be bound to pay money on a Statute, and have paid it at the day, and another cauſeth the Statute to be extended without the will of the Conuſee. One promiſe to make me a Feoffment of Land by a day, and before the day he make it to another: Or promiſe me to deliver Wares, and he deliver falſe and ſophiſticated Wares; or ſell me Cloth, and warrant it of a certain length: Or another and my ſelf are ſued as Executors, whereas I only am Executor, and the other confeſs the Action; in all theſe caſes I may have remedy by this Writ, F.N.B. 98. Dyer 301. 75. 23, 24.

And if a Recovery be had in a Real Action by the falſe Retorn of the Sheriff, the party grieved or his Heir may have this Action againſt the Sheriff and the Demandant; and the Summoners, Vexors, and Pernors ſhall be examined; and if it be found, the party ſhall recover damages againſt the Sheriff, reverſe the Judgment, and have Reſtitution of the Land, Co. 6. 9. upon Lit. 259. Co. 8, 9. F.N.B. 97. So in a Scire facias to execute a Fine, if the Land be recovered on the Sheriffs falſe Retorn, the party grieved may avoid the Judgment by this Writ, F.N.B. 97. d. So if one ſue a Scire facias on a Recogniſance for Debt, and the Sheriff retorn Summons where none was, F.N.B. 97. 99. So if after a Recovery in an Annuity, ſuch a Retorn be on a Scire facias, and hereby the Annuity is recovered, the party grieved may have this Writ, F.N.B. 88. And if a Tenant in antient Demeſn levy a Fine of his Land, the Lord may avoid it by this Writ, Plow. 370. F.N.B. 98, 99. See Action of the Caſe, Chap. 4. Sect.

CHAP. XLVIII.

Of Common.

COmmon is that Soil, Water, or other thing, the uſe whereof is common to this or that Town, Lordſhip, or Perſon: Or it is the Right that a man hath to take of that which is anothers. And it is either of Paſture; of Turbary, (i.) of digging and taking Turfs; or of Fiſhing; or of Eſtovers, (i.) taking Wood; or it is of digging for Coals, Mines, and the like. And the Common of Paſture is divided into Common Appendant, Appurtenant, Engroſs, or by reaſon of Neighborhood: And ſome is certain, (i.) for ſo many Cattel, or the Cattel levant on ſuch a place; or incertain, which is for Cattel without number, Co. 8. 70. upon Lit. 122. 6. 60. 5. 60. 7. 5.

Common, what it is.

The kinds of it.

Turbary, what.

And whoſoever doth claim any Common, he muſt claim it in one of theſe kinds. For if a man will claim it in any other kind, as Ratione commorantiæ or reſidentiæ, (i.) by reaſon of dwelling or reſidence in a houſe, this is no good title. And that Common that may be claimed, is, and may be claimed in ſome caſes by Grant; but in moſt caſes a Title is made to it, and it is claimed by Preſcription or Cuſtom, Co. 4. 38.

Sect 1. 2. How a man may claim Common, and what kind of Common a man may claim or not; and and what Preſcription or Cuſtom for Common ſhall be good, or not.

But Copiholders may alleage a Cuſtom, That every cuſtomary Tenant of the Manor may have Common in the Lords Waſte. So alſo Inhabitants of a Village who are a Corporation, may alleage a Cuſtom to have Common in ſuch a place, as belonging to their antient houſes, Co. 6. 59. 60. Or Copiholders may preſcribe to have Common in the ground of another beſides the Lord; but then they muſt do it in the Lords name, Co. 4. 32.

One may make himſelf a title to have and enjoy ſolam veſturam terræ for a time, (i) from ſuch a day to ſuch a day, and ſo long to exclude the Owner himſelf to feed there: But a cuſtom or preſcription to exclude him always, is not good, Co. ſuper Lit. 122.

A Lord preſcribed, That time out of mind the Lord of the Manor had been uſed to have for himſelf, his Farmers and Tenants of the Manor, Common of Paſture in &c. for all his Sheep which are levant and couchant in and upon the Demeſn lands of W. which lie and are in A. aforeſaid, every year; and it was allowed for good, Duncombs Caſe, H. 9 Jac. Brownl. 1 par. 232.

One preſcribed that he was ſeiſed of a Meſſuage and certain Land in Dale, and that he, and thoſe whoſe eſtate he hath, for himſelf, his Farmers and Tenants, uſed to have Common in the Field or place called B. in S. when the ſaid Field called B. was freſh and not ſowed all that year, with their Cattel levant and couchant; and when the Field was ſown with corn, and the corn carried away, until it was ſown again; and allowed good.

One preſcribed to have Common in anothers ground, as belonging to his Meſſuage and Yard-land, thus: For ſix Horſes, Geldings or Mares, two Colts, ſix young Beaſts called Steers, or young Beaſts called Heifers, and two Mares called Breeders, in and upon the ſaid Meſſuage and Yard-land lying and riſing in manner following; that is to ſay, from the 1. of Auguſt until the 25. of February then next following, and good, Brownl. Rep. 2 par. 61.

A Cuſtom was alleaged, That the Lord had the place wholly to himſelf till Lammas, and after it was common to the Tenants, every one of which is to put in a certain number, and no more, and that then the Lord is to put in but a certain number; and it ſeems good, Brownl. 1 par. 187.

And generally for Common, a Cuſtom or Preſcription may be alleaged for Common, either for all ſorts of cattel, or for ſome kind of cattel only: And it may be for a certain number of cattel only, or it may be for the cattel levant and couchant

A Cuſtom or preſcription may be alleaged for on

on such a place, which is certain by consequence; or it may be without number. And it may be either for the whole year, or at some times only of the year: And it may be for more cattel at one time, and for fewer at another time, and the like. But for an Allegation of a Prescription of Common that shall be good and allowable, there must be these things in the case.

1. It must be such a Common as might have a reasonable commencement by agreement of parties or otherwise, Brownl. 2 *par.*64.

2. The Land wherein the Common is to be taken, and the Land to which the Common to be had doth belong, must be laid to be in a Parish and County in certain.

3. If it be Common appendant, it must be for cattel levant and couchant upon such Land; for if it be for all his cattel without restriction, it is not good.

4. It must not be belonging to a thing which began of late: And therefore Prescription of Common time out of mind, to a House built within time of memory, cannot be good, *Goldsb. Rep. p.*38. See for all these things, Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 180. 189. 198. 232. 2 *par.*47. 63. 222. 297. March: Rep 83. 37 H. 6. 34. 32 Ass. pl. 3. See more in the next Questions, to every kind of Common: And see more in my *Second Part of the Marrow of the Law, p.*296,297.

For this, take these Cases.

Sect 2. 3. How a Grant of Common shall be taken.

1. If one grant me Common ubicunque, where-ever the Beasts of the Grantor shall go: By this, if he occupy an hundred Acres with his Beasts, I may common in that hundred Acres with him at all times. But if the Grant be made to me of Common in his Land quandocunque, whensoever the Beasts of the Grantor shall go there; in this case I may not common in his ground, but at such times only as his Beasts are in the Common, and at no other time, 9 *H.*6.35. *Finch.*36.

2. If a Lord grant me Common out of all his Manor, this must be understood in all commonable places, and not in his Gardens, &c. and it must be understood of Common with commonable Beasts only, and not with Pigs, and such like things, 9 *H.*6.35. Fitz. Dower 123.

3. If one grant me a Messuage with Common appurtenant for ten Beasts; by this I cannot take Common without number, but for ten Beasts only, 9 *H.*6.35.

4. If one grant me Common for ten Beasts in his ground for three years, and I take no Common for the first two years; I may not by this put in thirty Beasts the third year, and take the three years profit together, but must put in ten Beasts only, 27 *H.*6.10.

5. If a Lord of the Manor of Dale, wherein is a great Waste, wherein the Farmers of every House have Common, grant a House with all the Commons thereunto belonging and therewith used; by this it seems the Grantee shall have usual Common in the Waste, Brownl. 2 par. 222.

6. If a Lord seised of a Moor of two hundred Acres, enfeoff me of fifty Acres of the North-side thereof; by this I have no Common in the rest, but we must divide and keep our cattel one from another, or we shall be Trespassors one to another, Dyer 372.

7. If one grant me Common in his ground without number, it seems I may put in as many cattel as I will, and so he may also; though some say I may not put in so many, as not to leave him enough for his own cattel, 12 *H.*8.2. See more, Sect. 6. *Brownl. Rep.*220.

8. If one grant me Common in his ground, he can do nothing to prejudice his own Grant: And therefore he cannot set a Rick there on the ground, nor drive my cattel from his Rick, Brownl. 1 par. 220.

Common Appendant, what.

Common appendant is, where a man hath Common for his commonable cattel, as Oxen, Horses, Sheep, Kine, and the like, only in the ground of another man, by reason of certain Land that hath been ancient errable Land, unto which that Common is so annexed, that it cannot by any means be severed from the same, but he that hath the one must have the other, *Co.*8.70. 4.37.

The nature of it.

This Common is of all other the best; for this is said to be of common right, and is evermore belonging to errable Land, or to the Land which was anciently errable Land,

Land; for it cannot be created at this day, nor can it belong to new Errable Land. But it may belong to a Mannor, Farm, or Yard-Land, which are things in Groſs (wherein there is Errable Land included) and then it doth in truth belong to the Errable onely.

The beginning of it.

This Common began when Lords did infeoff their Tenants of Errable Land, to hold by Tenure in Soccage; for in this caſe it was included in the Feoffment, That for the maintenance of their Plough, which they by their Tenure were bound to keep; and for the furtherance of Tillage (a thing much favored in Law) the Tenant was to have Common in the Lords great Waſtes for all his Commonable Beaſts, that did dung or dreſs his Land; for at the firſt, almoſt all the Ground that doth now lie incloſed in Meadows and Paſtures, did lie open in great Waſtes and Commons, and were in the hands of Lords of Mannors. Co. 4. 37. Mert. 4. Perk. 670.

Title to it.

One may preſcribe for this Common; or one may claim it without preſcription, thus, That he hath two Acres of Land, to which he hath Common Appendant, &c.

Sect. 3.

For the Anſwer of this Queſtion, theſe things muſt be known.

4. What ſhall be ſaid to be Common Appendant; or not, but ſome other Common.

1. If there be a Houſe built upon that which was antiently Errable, and part of it be turned into Meadow, and part into Paſture, the Common Appendant to it may be claimed and taken ſtill as Appendant; and he ſhall have Common for all the Beaſts that he doth keep upon that which was ancient Errable Land. Co. 4. 37.

2. It may belong to a Mannor, Farm, or Plough Land. Co. 4. 37.

3. It may be claimed to be taken in a Field, when it is not ſown to Corn onely. 37 H. 6. 34.

4. This Common is always for ſuch Beaſts, as either manure the Land, as Oxen or Horſes; or elſe for ſuch as marl and compaſt the Land, as Sheep and Kine. And therefore if the Common be claimed for any other Cattle, it cannot be this Common, but it muſt be ſome other. 37 H. 6. 34. 26 H. 8. 4.

Common Appurtenant.

5. In Pariſhes where their Lands in their Fields do lie intermixt, and any one of them do incloſe his Land, and the Inhabitants have uſed to have Common in this incloſed ground, after Harveſt, till Seed time again; in this caſe if the Common be for Beaſts onely that manure and marl the Land, then it is Common Appendant; but if it be for all manner of Beaſts, then it is Common Appurtenant, Co. 7. 5.

Common by cauſe of the Vicinage.

6. If there be two Villages adjoyning, and a great Field or Waſte between them, part of which doth belong to one Pariſh, and part to the other; and the Tenants of the one Pariſh do, have Common there with the Tenants of the other Pariſh; this is not a Common Appendant, but a Common becauſe of Neighborhood. Dyer 47. But if there be two Villages, and a third between them, and one Village hath Common with the third, and there are no Waſtes adjoyning; this it ſeems, ſhall be a Common Appendant, and not by cauſe of Vicinage. Dyer 47.

Shack. What it is.

7. Where the Lands of men do lie intermixed in little parcels in great Fields, and they do uſe to Common altogether promiſcuouſly, from Harveſt till the Field be ſown again; this which is like to their Shack in Norfolk, is a kinde of Common Appendant; and there if any man incloſe, and the reſt do then uſe to Common with him notwithſtanding; this is Common Appendant. Co. 7. 5.

Sect. 4.

5. Common Appurtenant What, and what ſhall be ſaid to be this Common; or not, but ſome other.

Common Appurtenant is, where a man hath Common for all manner of Beaſts in the Ground of another man. And this Common, a man may have or claim by Grant, or by Preſcription; for this Common a man may create at this day. Co. 8. 70. 6. 60. And therefore this Common differeth from Common Appendant in many things: For,

And how it differeth from Common Appendant.

1. Common Appendant cannot be created at this day; for when it began it grew by continuance, and muſt now be claimed by Preſcription, time out of minde, but Common Appurtenant may be newly granted.

2. That may be had by, and claimed for thoſe Cattle onely that manure and marl the Land; but this may be had and claimed by, and for all manner of Cattle.

Common Appendant.

3. That is to be claimed for, and taken by, ſo many Beaſts onely as will ſerve to marl and manure the Land, to which it is Appendant. But this may be claimed for, and taken by Beaſts without number.

4. That is to be claimed for, and taken with the Beasts onely, whiles they be Demurrant, Levant, and Couchant upon the Land, to which it is Appendant: But this may be claimed for, and taken by the Beasts of him that doth claim it, where ever they go or are kept.

5. That is to be claimed for, and by reason of ancient Errable Land onely. But this may be claimed for, or by reason of a House, or any other Land as Meadow or Pasture, or Errable Land newly made.

Apportionment. 6. That cannot be severed from the Land, to which it is Appendant by any act of God, act of Law, or act of the parties: But this may be severed from the House or Land, to which it is Appurtenant.

Admeasurement of Pasture. 7. That must be taken with a proportion, having respect to the Land to which it is dependant, as if it be Appendant to one Acre, he shall have Common for so much, as that one Acre will keep, and if he take more, the rest of the Commoners may have a Writ of Admeasurement of Pasture. But this may be taken by Beasts without number, and this Writ will not lie in this case of Common Appurtenant.

8. That must be taken with a mans own Beasts, and cannot be taken with the Beasts of another man. But if he have but a Special Property in the Cattle, it seems it is well enough. Co. 8. 70. 6. 60. 4. 38. 15 Ed. 4. 32. 10 Ed. 3. 56. 37 H. 6. 34. 9 Ed. 4. 3. 4 Ed. 4. 29. 22 H. 6. 43. 26 H. 8. 4. 5 H. 7. 7. F. N. B. 125. 4 H. 6. 13. 15 Ass. pl. 5. 18 Ed. 3. 30. 13 H. 7. 13. 15 H. 7. 10. 14 H. 6. 6.

6. Common in Gross. What shall be said to be this kinde of Common, or not.

Common in Gross is, where one claimeth to have Common for all manner of Beasts, or for some kindes of Beasts without number, or to a certain number of Cattle, by special Grant in writing, and not by reason of any Land. Terms Ley. Co. 4. 38.

Sect. 5. Appurtenant. How it may be taken.

If one that is Lord of a Mannor, wherein are divers Wastes, grant to another certain Lands within the Mannor and Common, within the Wastes of the Mannor, for all his Cattle; this is a Common in Gross, and not Appurtenant. But if the Grant be of Common for a certain number of Beasts, then it is Common Appurtenant. By three Judges, B. R. in Stamps case. And so this Common may be made at this day, for every man may grant to another what Common he will, upon his own Ground: And this Common, the Grantee may take with the Cattle of another body, if his Grant do not express that he must take it with his own Cattle, as if it be a Grant of Common for his Cattle, or for his Ten Beasts, or the like; for then he must take it with his own Beasts. 11 H. 6. 22. 36 Ass. pl. 5. But otherwise he may take it with any Beasts he will, that he hath for the present any Special Property in, for that purpose. 15 H. 7. 10. 14 H. 6. 6.

Common by cause of Vicinage.

Common by cause of Vicinage is, where the Tenants of two Lords, which be seized of two Villages or Towns, lying neer one another, and either of them have been used time out of minde, to inter-common and feed their Cattle of all sorts of Commonable Cattle together, and one with another.

The nature of it. Appendant. How it may be taken and used. Inclosure.

This Common is much of the nature of Common Appendant, for it cannot be created at this day, but one must have and claim it by Prescription. And the Commoner may not put in what he will, but according to the proportion of the Land, to which it is Appendant, and the quantity of the Common belonging to that Village, of which the Commoner is. And this Common by consent may be inclosed. Co. 4. 38. 7 Ed. 4. 26. Dyer 47.

Distres damage Feasant.

But this, the Commoners of one Village cannot put in their Beasts into the Common of the other Village, but they must put them in on their own side upon their own Common; and then if they go into the Common of the other Village that lieth open with their Common, they cannot distrain them damage Fesant, nor bring any Action, nor chase them out. And such a Commoner may put in what kinde of Cattle he will.

Estovers. What.

Common of Estovers is, where a man hath right to cut and take House-boot in anothers Wood to spend in his House: And this is sometimes Certain, and sometimes Incertain, and sometimes Appendant, sometimes in Gross. It may be by Grant,

Grant, or by Preſcription; but it is always belonging to a dwelling Houſe, and cannot be granted or ſevered from it, but he that hath the one muſt have the other, and it muſt belong to the old Houſe, not a new one; and the old Chimneys, not to new Chimneys. And this, if the Commoner be hindred of, as if the owner of the Wood cut down ſo much, that he doth not leave him enough, he may have a Quo Minus; if he have a Freehold, he ſhall have Remedy by Aſſize, otherwiſe by Action of the Caſe. And if the Commoner take too much, the owner of the Wood may ſue him in Treſpaſs. Co. 4. 37. 8. 46. F.N.B. 180. Bro Rep. 1. part. 221.

For Anſwer to all theſe Queſtions at once, take theſe things.

1. In theſe Caſes the Law doth much heed the Cuſtom of the place.

2. No Commoner may take away the Graſs upon the Common, otherwiſe then by the mouths of his Beaſts. 45 Ed. 3. 25. Nor can he meddle with the Soyl, no not to better it. 12 H. 8. 2. 22 Aſſ. 36. 13 H. 8. 16.

3. If I have Common in another mans Ground, I cannot ſhut him out, but he may Common with me. Co. upon Littl. 1. 22.

4. If one have two Tenements in two Villages, and Common Appendant to one of them; in this caſe he cannot take his Cattle that are upon the other Tenement, to eat up the Common Appendant to that Tenement. F.N.B. 125. 10 Ed. 3. 56.

5. He that hath Common in Groſs by Grant, as if a Grant be to him of Common for twenty Beaſts, may feed it with another mans Cattle; but if the Grant be for Common for his own Cattle onely, it is otherwiſe. 11 H. 6. 22.

6. If a Grant be to me of Common for Cattle, without number in a Cloſe, I may put in without ſtint; but if the Grant be of Common, for a certain number of Cattle, I can take no more then are named. 11 H. 6. 22.

7. He that hath Common Appendant, or becauſe of Neighborhood, may put in no more but a reaſonable number of Cattle, he muſt be ſtinted. 13 H. 7. 13. Co. 4. 38. 12 H. 8. 2.

8. If a Copiholder be to have Common, it muſt be onely for the Cattle that are Levant and Couchant upon his Copihold. 15 Ed. 4. 32. See more to this before Sect. 2. How the Grant of Common ſhall be taken.

9. For the power of the Commoner againſt them that diſturb him, take theſe things.

Firſt, If any Commoner that hath any Freehold in the Common be ouſted or hindred of his Common, totally by Incloſure, Treſpaſs, or the like, ſo that he cannot have it; he may have remedy by an Aſſize, be it the Lord, or any other that doth hinder him. But if the Impediment be ſuch, that he cannot have and enjoy his Common ſo beneficially, and ſo plentifully as he was wont to do; his proper Remedy is by Action of the Caſe. And if the Commoner be onely Leſſee for years, or a Copiholder, albeit the hindrance deprive him totally of his Common; yet he cannot have an Aſſize, but muſt have an Action of the Caſe. Or the Commoner may take the Beaſts of any man but the Lords, upon the Common damage Feſant. But all this is to be underſtood of ſuch a Treſpaſs, as that thereby the Commoner doth in all or part, loſe his Common: For if it be onely a little Treſpaſs, by cutting a Tree, digging a Turf, or the like, that is no hindrance to the Commoner in his Common, the Commoner can neither have Action, nor diſtrain damage Feſant. For the Anſwer to this Queſtion, we are to know theſe things.

1. That where one comes to as high, as good, and as durable eſtate in the Land, as he hath in the Common; there generally the Common is extinct: As if the Commoner purchaſe the Land wherein he hath Common, or it deſcend to him, and being extinct, it can never be after revived. Co. 4. 38. D. & St. 25. Dyer 45. Plow. 72. Goldsb. 3. pl 6.

2. If one that hath Common out of Land in Fee, and he get an eſtate for life or years onely; by this the Common is onely ſuſpended, and may be revived again when that eſtate is ended. Co. ſuper Littl. 310.

3. If one have Common Appendant, and purchaſe ſome of the Land out of which it comes in Fee; this is not gone, but ſhall continue, and be apportioned. But otherwiſe it is of Common Appurtenant. Brownl. 2. Rep. p. 287. Co 8. 79. 4. 38.

4. If a Commoner, Alien or Demiſe part of his Land, to which the Common doth belong; this doth not extinguiſh the Common, be it Common Appendant or Appurtenant: But it doth ſtill continue, and ſhall be apportioned. Co. 8. 79. Bro. Rep. 2 part. 297.

5. If one have Common Appendant in a great Waſte, belonging to his Tenement, and the Lord improve and incloſe part of it, leaving ſufficient, and after make a Feoffment of this to the Commoner; this doth not deſtroy his Common in the reſt of the Waſte, Dyer 339.

6. If a Copiholder claim Common by cuſtom in a great Waſte, and the Lord grant part of this Waſte to another, and then make a new eſtate of this Copihold; this Common in the Waſte granted away, is not gone, but the Copiholder will have Common there alſo. Co. 8. 64.

7. If he out of whoſe Land the Common is had, doth purchaſe part of the Land, to which the Common is Appendant; yet the Commoner hath not loſt his Common, but ſhall have pro rata for the Reſidue. Co. 4. 37, 38.

8. If one have Common in Certain, (i.) for ten Beaſts in twenty Acres of Land, and ten Acres of this Land doth deſcend to the Commoner; by this the Common is not gone, but ſhall be apportioned. But if the Common were Common Incertain, and without number, there ſhall be no Apportionment, but it ſhall be as it was before. Co. ſuper Littl. 149.

9. If there be Common Appurtenant to Copihold Land, and part of it be ſold away, away, and divided from the reſt, it ſeems by this the Common is gone; otherwiſe of Common Appendant. Brown. 1 part. 17.

Grant of Common.

10. A Copiholder is of a Meſuage, and two Acres of Land in Fee, and the Lord by Deed doth grant and confirm the Meſuage and Lands, with the Appurtenances to the Copiholder in Fee, and ſo deſtroy the Copihold; by this the Common is gone, and the Grant of the Land, with the Appurtenances, will not create it de novo. Brown. 1 part. p. 220.

So if a Copiholder be to have Common in the Land of another, beſides the Lord, and the Lord make him a Feoffment of his Copihold. But perhaps if in theſe Grants there be a Grant of all Commons belonging to it, or uſed with it, it may be continued. Brown. 1 part. 173. 2 part. 209, 210. See more in Suſpenſion.

Sect. 8. 10 Admeaſurement of Paſture. What.

Admeaſurement of Paſture, is a Writ lying where many have Common in the Ground of another man, and one of them doth ſurcharge the Common with more Beaſts then he ſhould keep, then any one of the Commoners, or all the reſt of the Commoners together, may have this Writ againſt him that doth oppreſs the reſt. Or one may ſue him that doth ſurcharge, and all the reſt of the Commoners; for all the Commoners muſt be Plaintiffs, or Defendants in the Suit, becauſe all muſt be Admeaſured. F. N. B. 123. 8 H. 6. 26. Old N. B. 72. And by this means it ſhall be enquired of, and hereupon an Order ſhall be ſet down, how they ſhall take their Common for after times. And if any one of them do break this Order, and overcharge again, the party grieved may bring another Writ called a Secunda ſuperoneratione. And thereby he ſhall recover damages, and the party that doth ſurcharge, ſhall loſe the value of the Beaſts, wherewith he doth ſurcharge more then his proportion, as forfeit to the King. Weſtm. 2. 8.

Of Common Law, Common-Weal, Concealment, and Confirmation.

Common Law. What.

THE Common Law is taken divers ways, ſometimes it is taken for the ancient Laws and Cuſtoms of the Realm, before any Statutes were made; and ſo it was nothing elſe but the common uſage and cuſtom of the Country, grounded upon the Law of God, and common Reaſon; and in this ſenſe it is diſtinguiſhed from the Statute Law. And ſometimes it is taken for the whole Common Law and Statute Law, together. And ſo it is diſtinguiſhed from the Civil Law, the Spiritual Law, and certain private Cuſtoms, or Cuſtomary Laws: And ſometimes it is taken for the Courts at Weſtminſter, and ſo it is diſtinguiſhed from the lower and baſe Courts in the Country. Terms Ley. Co. 9. 15. Dyer 54.

Of Common-Weal.

Common-Weal.

BY Common-Weal is underſtood in our Law, Bonum Publicum, or Common Good; and this is a thing the Law doth much eye: And therefore it doth rate many things to be done for Publick good, that otherwiſe might not be done. As in caſe of Fire, or Enemies, to prevent increaſe of miſchief by them, men may pull down Houſes, or do any other thing upon mens Houſes or Lands, and juſtifie it when it is done. To apprehend Felons, or prevent Murders, and the like, men may break Houſes or Doors. The Oxen of the Plough, Horſe that is under a man in travel, may not be diſtrained. And upon this ſcore it is, that all Monopolies are void, all Obligations, and Covenants, to reſtrain Tillage, or free Trade, are void; the Law will ſuffer a little wrong to go unpuniſhed, then ſuffer multiplicity of Actions, as knowing, *Expedit Reipublicæ ut ſit finis litium. Of Concealment and Concealers.

Concealment.

CONcealed Land was that Land which was concealed from the King, and ſecretly detained in the hands of common perſons that had nothing to ſhew for it. And Concealers were ſuch as did finde out ſuch Lands concealed, whereof the main Rule is this, That Land ſhall never be ſaid to be concealed, or unjuſtly detained from the King, where there is any Record extant, to inform him of his Title, or where he is, or may be acquainted with his Title by any reaſonable intendment; but for this, ſee Co. 10. Of Confirmation.

1. Confirmation: What.

A Confirmation is the Conveyance of an Eſtate or Right that one hath into Lands or Tenements to another that hath the poſſeſſion thereof, or ſome eſtate therein, whereby avoidable eſtate is made ſure, and unavoidable, or whereby a particular eſtate is increaſed and enlarged. And this albeit it may be made by other words, as by Dedi or Conceſſi, which are generall words, and ſerve to make a Grant, Feoffment, Leaſe, Releaſe &c. yet it is moſt commonly and properly made by theſe words Confirmaſſe, Ratificaſſe, & Approbaſſe, which do ſignifie Ratum & firmum facere & ſupplere omnem defectum. And he that makes the Confirmation is sometimes called the Confirmor, and he to whom it is made the Confirmee. Terms Ley Co. super Lit. 295.

is

Confirmor Confirmee.

There are two kinds of Confirmations, viz. a Confirmation implied, or in Law, which is when the Law by Construction makes a Confirmation of a Deed made to another purpose, and a Confirmation express or in Deed, which is when the Act Done or Deed made is intended for a Confirmation. And both these are always in writing. The latter is properly called a Deed or Instrument of Confirmation, and is made after this manner, Noveritis universi &c. me A de B ratificasse, approbasse & confirmasse C de D statum & possessionem quos habeo de & in uno Mesuagio & c. cum pertinen. in F &c. A Confirmation is also distinguished by his effects, for sometimes it doth tend and serve to confirm and make good a wrongfull and defeasible estate, or to make a Conditionall estate absolute. And then it is said to be confirmatio perficiens, And sometimes it doth Tend and Serve to increase and enlarge a rightfull estate, and so to passe an interest. And then it is called confirmatio crescens. And sometimes it doth tend and serve to diminish and abridge the services whereby the Tenant doth hold. And then it is called confirmatio diminuens. Co. super Lit. 295. Plow. 140. Lit. Sect 515. Co. 9. 142.

2 The Kinds

The nature and work of this where it doth find a foundation to work upon is, either to increase and enlarge the estate of him to whom it is made from a lesser to a greater, and to give him some new interest he had not before, or to Corroborate and perfect the estate that was imperfect before, or to change the quality of it from an estate upon Condition to an absolute estate or otherwise, for this a Confirmation will doe. In some Cases also it will extinguish Rights and Titles of Entry. But it will not make an estate good that is meerly void; nor add, nor take from an estate a descendible quality, and make a man capable of it that is uncapable in himself, or è contra. In some cases also it wil lessen and diminish rents or services. But it cannot ne will change the nature of the service into some other kind of service, nor increase it into a greater service. Co. 146. 147. Dier. 109. 7. H. 6. 7. Lit. Sect. 539. Co. 9. 142.

3. The nature and operation of it in generall.

If a Bishop, Dean, Archdeacon, Prebend, or the like, make any lease of the Land they have in the right of their Bishoprick, Deanery, Archdeanery, or Prebendship not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. and within the other Statutes, it seems this lease must be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter by their common seal, and if there be two Chapters, it must be confirmed by them both, or otherwise it is not good. But if the lease be such a lease as is warranted by the Statutes, the Bishop may make it without the confirmation of the King, the Patron, and Founder of Bishopricks, or the Dean and Chapter. And so also it seems of the rest. And a Corporation aggregate as Dean and Chapter, Master and Fellows, and the like, may grant without any confirmation of the Founder, and this grant will be good. If a Bishop, &c grant an ancient office belonging to his Bishoprick, albeit it be but for the life of the Grantee, yet it must be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, otherwise it is not good. If a Parson or Vicar had made any lease for longer time then his own life, it must have been confirmed by the Patron and Ordinary. But at this day albeit it be confirmed by the Patron and Ordinary, yet the lease is good for no longer then during the Parsons ordinary residencie, except it be impropried. Co. super Lit. 300 301. Co. 10. 62. 5. 3. Dier. 145. 273. 349. 338. 339. 61. Co. 10. 62. Dier. 52. stat. 13. El. ch. 20.

4 Where the Confirmation of some persons is needfull to perfect the grant of others Or not. And how it may be done.

If Tenant for life grant a Rent-charge to I. S. and his heirs; in this case he in reversion must Confirm it, otherwise the grant of the Rent will be good for no longer then the life of the Tenant for life. Co. 1. 147.

Where a man hath an interest in any Lands, Tenements, Rents, Commons, Felons-goods or the like, by grant of any of the Kings of the Realm, he need not have the Confirmation of any or of every succeeding King. Also it seems grants of Fairs, Markets, Warrens, and the like, made by one King, will be good in Law against his successors without any Confirmation. But all such as have any judiciall or Ministeriall Offices, Commissions and Authorities derived from the King, must have the Confirmation of every succeeding King, otherwise they may lose them. Co. 8. 167. Dier. 277. Dier. 327. *Lit. 5 What Confirmations may be made. And what shall be said a good expresse or implied confirmation. Or not. And by what words it may be made.

1. To Confirm, or alter the quality of the eſtate of him to whom it is made.

In every good Confirmation tending to confirm an eſtate or alter the quality of it, theſe things muſt concur.

1 There muſt be a good Confirmor, and a good Confirmee, and a thing to be Confirmed as in other Grants, and the Deed muſt be well ſealed, &c.

2. There muſt be a precedent Rightfull or Wrongfull eſtate in him to whom the Confirmation is made in his own or in anothers Right, or at leaſt he muſt have the poſſeſſion of the thing whereof the Confirmation is to be made that may be as a Foundation for the Confirmation to work upon. As if Feoffee on condition make a Feoffment over, and the Feoffer confirm his eſtate to him to whom the ſecond Feoffment is made and his heirs; this is a good Confirmation to make his eſtate abſolute. Co. 1. 146. 9. 142. 7. H. 6. 7. And if Leſſee for life make a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for years, and the firſt Leſſor confirm this ſecond eſtate; it ſeems this is a good Confirmation. Littleton ſection 516. And if one Diſſeiſe me of Land, I may after Confirm the eſtate of the Diſſeiſor, or of his heir if he be dead, or of his Feoffee if he have aliened it, and this will make his eſtate good for ever: And if the Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for Life, or years of it; I may Confirm the eſtate of the Leſſee, and this will make it good for the time. Co. 9. 142. 6. 15. Perk. ſect. 86. Lit. ſect. 518. 521. 11. H. 7. 29. 28. And if one make a Leaſe for Life abſolute, or a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for Life on Condition, or be Diſſeiſed of Land, and the Leſſee for Life, Feoffee, or Diſſeiſor doth grant a Rent out of the Land in Fee, and the Leſſor, Feoffer, or Diſſeiſee doth Confirm the eſtate of the Grantee; this doth make good the Grant for ever. Co. 1. 144. Lit. ſect. 527. 529. 11 H. 7. 28. Co. ſuper Lit. 300. Lit. ſect. 547. 11. H. 7. 28. And ſo alſo if the heire of a Diſſeiſor that is in by Deſcent Grant a Rent-charge, and the Diſſeiſee Confirmeth it; this is a good Confirmation. And if an Infant make a Leaſe for 20 years, and the Leſſee doth make a Leaſe to another for all or part of the time, and the Infant at his full age doth confirm this ſecond Leaſe; this is a good Confirmation, and doth perfect the Leaſe; for it is a Rule, That which I may defeat by my entry, I may Confirm by my deed. But if there be no precedent eſtate on which the confirmation may work, or the eſtate be ſuch an eſtate as is meerly void, then is the Confirmation void, and cannot take effect as a Confirmation: as for example, If a man aſſign Dower to a woman that hath nothing to do with it, or a Court that hath not power doth make Leaſes by Commiſſion, or an eſtate that was upon Condition is avoided by entry, or a Leſſee ſurrender, or a Diſſeiſee enter upon a Diſſeiſor, and afterwards he that hath the Rightfull eſtate Confirm their eſtates ſo defeated and gone; theſe Confirmations are void. Debile fundamentum fallit opus. Co. ſuper Lit. 295. 301. Dier. 263. And a Confirmation to him that hath nothing in the Land is void. And hence it is that if one Confirm all his eſtate that he hath granted to another, when in truth he hath granted none at all; this is void. And ſo alſo it is if there be an eſtate and no poſſeſſion: as if a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for years to begin at Michaelmas, and before the day the Diſſeiſee doth Confirme the eſtate of the Leſſee for years; it is ſaid, this is not a good Confirmation, ſed quære. 4. H. 7. 10. Dier 109.

Infant.

3 The Confirmor muſt have ſuch an eſtate and property in the thing whereof the Confirmation is made, as he may be thereby enabled to Confirm the eſtate of the Confirmee, as the Leſſors, Feoffers, and Diſſeiſees in the caſes before have, otherwiſe the Confirmation is void. 19, H. 6, 62. And therefore if the heir of the Diſſeiſee during the Life of the Diſſeiſee Confirm to the Diſſeiſor; this is no good Confirmation to perfect his eſtate, albeit the Diſſeiſee die, and the Right of the Land deſcend to his heir afterwards. Co. 9, 138. So if Lands be given to A. and B. his Wife and the heirs of their bodies iſſuing, the Remainder in Fee to A, and A levy a fine with Proclamations and die, and ſhe within five yeares doth enter and Claime, and after the Conuſee doth Confirm the eſtate made by the firſt gift to the Wife, To have and to hold according to the ſame; this Confirmation is to no purpoſe Co. 9. 138. So if Leſſee for Life make a Leaſe for thirty yeares, and after he in Reverſion and the Leſſee for Life Leaſe for ſixty yeares; in this caſe he cannot Confirme the Leaſe for thirty yeares, becauſe he hath granted it before for sixty yeares. Fitz. Confirmation 15. Lit. Sect. 523. Dier 263. And hence it is also that the Confirmation by one Jointenant of the estate of his companion worketh nothing, for their estates are equall, and each hath interest in the whole Land. And yet if one Jointenant confirme the whole Land to his companion, To have and to hold the Land to him and his heires; this shall amount to a Grant, and so will be good to pass his moity. Lit. sect. 543. Co. super Lit. 308. And hence it is also, that if a man grant a Rent-charge out of his Land to another for life, and then confirme his estate without any clause of distress (for by a clause of Distress a grant of a new Rent may be made) To have and to hold to him in Fee-simple, or Fee-taile; that this is void, for the Confirmor hath no reversion of the Rent in him. Jointenants.

ſixty

4. The precedent estate must continue untill the Confirmation come, as in all the cases of voidable estates made the confirmation must be before the estates be made void by entry, &c. or otherwise the confirmation will be void. And therefore if Lessee for life or yeares surrender, or the Disseisee enter upon the Disseisor, and after the Lessor or the Disseisee confirme the estate of the Lessee or Disseisor; this Confirmation comes too late. Co. 5. 15. Lit. sect 60.

5. The estate precedent and that which is to be Confirmed, must be lawfull and not prohibited by any act of Parliament. And therefore if a spirituall person, as Prebend, or the like, make a Lease not warranted by the Statutes; the Confirmation of the Deane and Chapter will not help nor amend it. And if Tenant in taile make avoidable Lease, and after confirme it himself, this is voidable still. Lit. sect. 531. 532. 10. Ed. 4. 3. Co. super Lit. 295. Dier. 116. Co. 1. 147. 5. 15.

6. There must be apt words of Confirmation in the Deed or Instrument. And herein note that albeit the words Confirmavi, ratificasse & approbasse, be the most significant & proper words to make this conveyance, yet such as are made by other generall words may make a good Confirmation. And therefore it is agreed, that a Deed made by the words Dedi, Concessi, or Demisi, may make a good Confirmation: And therefore that if the Disseisee, Coparcener, or Lessor make a Deed of the Land by the word Dedi, or Concessi to the Disseisor other Coparcener, or Lessee for life, and deliver the Deed; this is a good Confirmation without Livery of Seisin. Also if a Feoffment be made to A, to the use of B and his heires upon condition, and before the Condition broken, the Feoffor and B doe joine in the grant of a Rent-charge, and after the Condition is broken; in this case the Law doth interpret this a good Grant from B and a good Confirmation of the Feoffee without any words of Confirmation. So if Tenant for life doe grant a Rent to him in reversion, and he by Deed doth grant it to another and his heires in Fee; in this case the Law doth construe this a good Grant and a Confirmation also. Lit. sect. 519. Co. super Lit. 296. And in these cases of Confirmations of estates, if it be by the Disseisee to the Disseisor, it is good without any words of heires, as if the Disseisee confirme the estate of the Disseisor, or confirme the Land unto him, and say not, To him and his heirs; this is an effectuall Confirmation to him and his heires for ever. And if a Lessee for life or a Disseisor make a Lease for life, or yeares, &c. and he in the Reversion, or the Disseisee confirme their estates and not the Land, and without any Habendum or limitation of estate; this is good for so long as the estates do continue. Co. 1. 147. But it is most safe alwayes to expresse the estate, i. to say, To have and to hold the Land to him and his heires, or for life, &c. as the agreement is. If Lessee for life grant a Rent to one and his heires out of the Land, and the Lessor doth confirme the estate, or this Rent-charge this doth make the estate of Rent sure. And so also if he doe confirme the Rent, and say, To have and to hold to him and his heires; this is a good Confirmation. But if he confirm the Rent, To have and to hold to him in fee, without naming his heires, hereby his estate it not bettered. Lit sect. 531. 132. 10 Ed. 4. 3. Co super Lit. 295. Dper 116. Co. 1. 147. 5. 15. Livery of Seisin.

2. To enlarge the estate of him to whom it is made.

If the Lessor confirme the estate of his Lessee for life with this clause, To hold without impeachment of waste. this is a good Confirmation to change the quality of the estate so farre as to make it dispunishable of Waste. So if the Lord Paramount confirm the estate of the Mesn with clause of Acquital. And so if Lessee for years or for anothers life be without impeachment of waſt, and the Leſſor confirme to him for his own life, and omit that clauſe; hereby this priviledge is gone and the eſtate is become puniſhable for the waſt. Co. 9. 139. F. N. B. 136. Co. 8. 76. Dier. 10.

This kind of Confirmation Creſcens muſt have all the qualities of the former: and there muſt be alſo in this caſe a privity between the Confirmor and the Confirmee. Co. 9 142; ſuper Lit. 305. Dier 145. 296. Co. 6. 15. Lit. Sect. 533. 532. 523. Dier 263. And then it may enlarge the eſtate of him to whom it is made, as from an eſtate at will to an eſtate for yeares, or to a greater eſtate; from an eſtate for yeares to an eſtate for life, or to a greater eſtate; from an eſtate for life to an eſtate in Taile, or in Fee; and from an eſtate Taile to an eſtate in Fee; and theſe Confirmations are good. But in all theſe kind of Confirmations care muſt be had of the manner of penning them, and that in every ſuch Deed there be a limitation of the eſtate; i. That theſe words be inſerted, To have and to hold the Tenements, &c. to him and his heires, or to him and the heires of his body, or to him for terme of life, or yeares; as the agreement is; for if Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for yeeres, and then Leſſee for life, and be in Reverſion confirm the land, To have and to hold to him for life, or to him and his heires; theſe words will make the eſtate to increaſe. But if the Confirmation be made to the Leſſee for life or for yeares of his Terme or eſtate, and not of the Land; As when he doth confirm his eſtate, To have and to hold his Eſtate to him and his heires, this doth not increaſe the eſtate. And yet if he confirme the Land, To have and to hold the Land to him and his heires; this will increaſe the eſtate. Et ſic de ſimilibus. Littleton ſect. 524. 545. Plow. 540.

If the husband have an eſtate of Land for life or yeares in the right of his wife, or to them both for life, and a Confirmation to him alone, of his eſtate or of the Land To have and to hold the Land to him and his heires; this is a good conveyance of the Fee ſimple to him after the death of his wife. And if I let Land to a woman Sole for the Terme of her life, who taketh a husband, and after I doe confirme the eſtate of the husband and wife To have and to hold for Terme of their two lives; this is good, but it ſhall enure onely to enlarge his eſtate for Terme of his life if he ſurvive his wife. But if one leaſe to another for life, and after confirm the eſtate of the Leſſee to him and his wife for Terme of their two lives; this is void as to the wife. Co. ſuper Lit. 299. Plow. 160. Lit. ſect. 525. Fitz. Confirmation 7. 17.

If one Grant a Rent-charge out of his Land for life, and after the Grantor confirme the eſtate of the Grantee in the Rent without any clauſe of diſtreſſe To have and to hold to him in Fee ſimple or Fee taile; this Confirmation is not effectuall to enlarge the eſtate. But if a man be ſeiſed of an old Rent-charge or Rent-ſervice, and grant the ſame firſt for life, and after confirme the eſtate of the Grantee in Fee ſimple, or Fee taile; this is good and will enlarge the eſtate accordingly. Lit. ſect. 548. 549.

If Tenant for life grant a Rent out of the Land to one and his heirs during the life of the Leſſee for life, and after the leſſor confirme the Rent to the Grantee and his heires; it ſeemes the eſtate is not hereby enlarged, but when the Tenant for life doth die, the Rent ſhall ceaſe. Co. 1. 147.

This kind of Confirmation may be made by the ſame words as the former, viz. by the words, Give, Grant, or Demiſe. But neither of theſe may be made by the words, Surrender, Releaſe, Exchange or the like, for theſe are peculiar words deſtined to a ſpeciall end being proper and peculiar manner of conveyances. And yet if I that am a Leſſor do ſay to my Leſſee for yeeres by my deed, I will that you ſhall hold the Land for your life; this is a good Confirmation to increaſe the eſtate by this word volo only. So if I grant to my Leſſee for yeares, that he ſhall hold the Land for Terme of his life; this without any other words is a good Confirmation. Co. ſuper Lit. 301 Fitz. Confirmation 23.

3. To diminiſh or abridg the ſervices, &c.

By a Confirmation the Lord may confirme the eſtate of his Tenant which holdeth by Knights ſervice to hold in Socage, or to hold for a leſſe Rent, or to hold at common law where before he did hold in ancient demeſne, and ſuch a Confirmation is good. But ſuch a confirmation as is to hold by new ſervices, as a roſe for money or the like, is not good for that purpoſe. And in this caſe there muſt be alſo a privity; and therefore if there be Lord, Meſn and Tenant, and the Lord confirm the eſtate of the Tenant, to hold by leſs ſervices; this is void. And if the Lord confirm to his Tenant after he is diſſeiſed before his Entry, to hold by leſs ſervices; this is void. Co. 9 194. Littl. Sect. 538.

6 Where a Confirmation may be good for part of the Eſtate, or for part of the thing, or not.

A Confirmation may be by apt words in caſe of a Leaſe for years for part of the time, but in caſe of a Freehold it cannot be ſo. And ſo alſo it may extend to part of the thing before in eſtate; and therefore if a Diſſeiſor, Tenant in Tail, Husband of the Land, he hath in the right of his Wife, or Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years, and the Diſſeiſee, Iſſue in Tail, Wife, or Leſſor make a Confirmation of all the Land, for part of the time, or of part of the Land for all the time; this Confirmation is good. But if any ſuch perſon make a Leaſe for life, Gift in Tail, &c. the Diſſeiſee cannot confirm part of the eſtate, but he muſt confirm all; and therefore if he confirm his eſtate for one hour, it is a Confirmation of the whole eſtate. And ſo alſo if he confirm the Land to the Diſſeiſor himſelf but one hour, one week, one year, or for his life, &c. this is a good Confirmation of the eſtate for ever. And if it be a Leaſe for years that is confirmed, care muſt be had to the manner of the Confirmation; for if the Confirmation be of the eſtate or the term for one hour; this is a good Confirmation for the whole time: And therefore the Confirmation muſt be had of the Land, To have and to hold for part of the term; and being ſo made, it may be good for that time onely, and no longer. Co. 5. 81, 82. Littl. Sect. 519. Co. ſuper Littl. 297. Littl Sect. 520.

7. The force and vertue of it; and how it ſhall enure and be conſtrued and taken.

If I make a Feoffment on Condition, and before the Condition broken, I confirm the eſtate of the Feoffee abſolutely; this will not extinguiſh the Condition. And yet if the Condition be broken firſt, ſo as my Entry is lawful; in this caſe the Confirmation will extinguiſh the Condition. And if the Feoffee make a Feoffment over abſolutely to another, and I confirm the eſtate of the ſecond Feoffee, whether it be before or after the Condition broken; by this, the Condition is diſcharged. 11 H. 7. 29. Co 1. 146. 9. 142.

If the Lord confirm the eſtate of his Tenant in the Tenements, or one that hath a Rent, Common, or profit out of Land, confirm to the Terretenant his eſtate; in theſe caſes notwithſtanding this Confirmation, the Signiory, Rent, Common, &c. do continue, and this ſhall not enure to extinguiſh it. Littl. Sect. 535, 536, 537.

If the Diſſeiſee and a ſtranger diſſeiſe, the Heir of the Diſſeiſor, and the Diſſeiſee confirm the eſtate of his Companion; this ſhall not enure to extinguiſh the ſuſpended right of the Diſſeiſee, but when the Heir of the Diſſeiſor ſhall re-enter it ſhall be revived. And if the Grantee of a Rent-charge and a ſtranger diſſeiſe the Tenant of the Land, and the Grantee confirm the eſtate of his Companion; this ſhall not enure to the Rent, ſuſpended to extinguiſh it, but after the re-entry of the Tenant, the Rent ſhall be revived. Co. ſuper Littl. 298.

If a man hold his Land of me by Knights ſervice, Rent, ſuit of Court, &c. and I confirm his eſtate to hold of me by Knights ſervice onely, for all manner of ſervices and demands; in this caſe albeit this do abridge the ſervice, yet it ſhall not be conſtrued to take away Wardſhip, Relief, Aid, to marry my Daughter, and make my Son Knight, and the like. Co. ſuper Littl. 305.

If I have an eſtate in Land for my life, and he in the Reverſion doth confirm the eſtate to me, and my Wife, for the term of our lives; this ſhall enure onely as a Confirmation of my eſtate, and not ſo as to give any eſtate to my Wife. But if I have a Leaſe for life or years in right of my Wife, and he in the Reverſion do confirm the eſtate to me and my Wife, To have and to hold to us for our lives; this ſhall enure not onely to confirm the eſtate, but alſo to create an eſtate to me after my Wives death: And in the caſe of a Leaſe for years, it maketh our eſtate joynt, but in the caſe of a Leaſe for life, I ſhall take by way of enlargement of eſtate for my life after my Wives death. And if in this caſe the Confirmation be to me and my Wife, To have and to hold the Land to us two, and our Heirs; this ſhall enure to us in Fee-ſimple as Jointenants. See before.

If Land be let to Husband and Wife, To have and to hold the one moyety to the Husband for his life, and the other moyety to the Wife for her life, and the Leſſor confirm to them both their Eſtate in the Land, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs; in this caſe, as to the one moyety it doth enure onely to the Husband, and his Heirs, but as to the other moyety they ſhall be Jointenants. And yet if ſuch a Leaſe for life be made to two men by ſeveral moyeties, and the Leſſor confirm their Eſtates in the Land, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs; by this they are Tenants in Common of the Inheritance. Co ſuper Littl. 299.

If the Diſſeiſee confirm the Eſtate of the Diſſeiſor, To have and to hold to him, and his Heirs of his Body engendred, or, To have and to hold to him for term of his life; this ſhall enure to him as a Fee-ſimple, and ſhall confirm his eſtate for ever. Littl. Sect. 419.

If my Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life the Remainder over in Fee, and I confirm the Eſtate of the Tenant for life; this ſhall not enure to, nor avail him in Remainder. And if the Diſſeiſor make a Gift in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Tenant in Tail, and the Diſſeiſee confirm the eſtate of the Tenant in Tail; this ſhall not extend to the Fee-ſimple, no more then if the Diſſeiſor make a Gift in Tail the Remainder for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Tenant in Tail, and the Diſſeiſee confi m the eſtate of the Tenant in Tail; for this ſhall extend onely to the eſtate Tail, and not to the Remainder for life, or in Fee But if the Diſſeiſee in the firſt caſe confirm the eſtate of him in the Remainder; this ſhall enure to and avail the Tenant for life. And ſo if a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life, and keep the Reverſion, and after the Diſſeiſee doth confirm to the Diſſeiſor; this ſhall enure to the Tenant for life. And ſo if a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life to A. and B. and the Diſſeiſee confirm the eſtate of A; this ſhall enure to B. and make his eſtate good alſo in the other moyety. And ſo if there be two Diſſeiſors, and the Diſſeiſee confirm the eſtate of one of them, without ſaying more; this ſhall enure to them both. But if the Confirmation be of the Land, To have and to hold the Land to one; in this caſe it may enure to him alone. So if a Diſſeiſor enfeoff A. and B. and the Heirs of B. and the Diſſeiſee confirm the eſtate of B. albeit it be but for his life; yet this ſhall enure to both, and to the whole Fee-ſimple. Co. ſuper Littl. 298. 297.

If a Leaſe be made for life to A. the Remainder to B. for life, and the Leſſor confirm their eſtates in the Land, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs; this ſhall enure as to the one moyety to A. in Fee, after the death of B. and as to the other moyety in Fee to B. after the death of A. Co. ſuper Littl. 299.

If Lands be given to two men, and the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, and the Donor doth confirm their eſtates in the Land, To have and to hold the Land to them two, and their Heirs; it ſeems this ſhall enure to them as a joynt eſtate for their lives, and after for ſeveral Inheritances, Co. Idem.

If the Leſſee for life, or the Diſſeiſor doth make an abſolute Leaſe for years, and he in the Reverſion or the Diſſeiſee doth confirm the eſtate of the Leſſee for years; this makes the Leaſe good for all the time. So if the Diſſeiſor makes a Leaſe for life, and the Diſſeiſee doth confirm the eſtate of the Leſſee for life; this makes the eſtate good for the life. And if he in Reverſion confirm the eſtate of the Termor but one hour; this doth make it good for all the term. And if an eſtate for life, or in Fee, be confirmed but for one hour; it is a good Confirmation for all the eſtate. And if the Diſſeiſee confirm the eſtate of the Diſſeiſor, To have and to hold for one hour, year, or for life, or in tail; this is a good Confirmation for ever, and makes his eſtate unavoidable. And yet if the Diſſeiſee confirm the Land Habendum the Land for life, or in tail, &c. Contrà. Littl. Sect. 516, 521. 519, 520, 541. Co. 5. 79.

Note. If a voidable Leaſe be made for forty years, and the Leſſor confirm the term for twenty years; this is a good Confirmation of the whole term But if he confirm the Land for twenty years, it may be good for that time onely and no longer; wherein as in divers other caſes before obſerve, that the very words whereby the Confirmation is made are much to be heeded, for Parols ſont Plea. Dyer 52. 339. Co. 5. 81.

If

If Tenant in Tail, or for life of Land, letteth it for years, and after confirm the Land to the Leſſee for years, To have and to hold to the Leſſee, and his Heirs for ever; by this the Leſſee hath onely an eſtate for term of the life of the Tenant in Tail, or for life, and therein his Leaſe for years is extinct. Littl. Sect. 606, 607, 610.

If Tenant for life doth grant a Rent to another, and his Heirs, during the life of the Tenant for life, and the Leſſor confirm to the Grantee, and his Heirs; this ſhall be conſtrued to be an eſtate for life onely, and no enlargement of the eſtate. But if Tenant for life, Grant a Rent-charge in Fee, and the Leſſor confirm it; this ſhall be conſtrued to be a Confirmation of the Fee-ſimple. Co. 1. 147. ſuper Littl. 301.

CHAP. L.

Of Conſanguinity, Affinity, Conſideration, Conſpiracy, and Condition.

Conſanguinity, Affinity.

Conſanguinity is a kindred or joyning of perſons by Birth or Blood, and Affinity is a kindred or joyning of perſons by Marriage.

Next of Bloods

For the Expoſition of theſe words, and how they ſhall be taken in Expoſition of Deviſes, and in Diſceits; to whom Land ſhall diſcend, and in Heir who ſhall be Heir to another.

Of Conſideration.

Conſideration. What. The kindes of it.

Conſideration is deſcribed to be a cauſe or an occaſion meritorious, requiring a mutual recompence in Deed or in Law, or the material cauſe of a Contract, without which, no Contract is ſo to be binding in Law. And this is either valuable, as Money, Land, or Goods, or not valuable, as Natural love and affection, advancement of Blood, and the like; and both theſe are ſometimes Expreſſed, and ſometimes Implied. Expreſſed when the thing is agreed upon, and ſet down between the parties, and where one for Twenty pound doth bargain and ſell his Land, or where one doth ſell his Land for other Land in exchange, or where one doth give twenty ſhillings for a Horſe, or where one for twenty pound doth promiſe to do a thing: Or elſe it is implied, as where one doth come to an Inn, and call for proviſion for himſelf or his Horſe; in this caſe there is an Implied contract, and the Inn-keeper may either ſue him for it, or keep his Horſe, but not his perſon, till he pay as well, as if he had made an Expreſs agreement with him. So if one without expreſſing any conſideration, covenant to ſtand ſeized to the uſe of his Wife, Childe, Brother, or Couſin; in theſe caſes, by the naming of them to be of their Kin, there is an Implied conſideration, and thereupon the uſe will riſe, which without ſome valuable or invaluable conſideration will not riſe by Covenant. But for theſe things ſee Co. 3. 80 Dyer 366. and Contracts, Bargain and Sale, and Uſes, in my Books of the Marrow of the Law, and of Common Aſſurances.

Of Conſpiracy or Confederacy.

Sect. 1: 1. Conſpiracy or Confederacy. What.

THis word is always in our Law, taken in ill part. And largely it doth ſignifie any Agreement, Combination, or Confederacy between two or more to do ſome unlawful act: As where they do agree or binde themſelves by Oath, Covenant, or other Alliance, that every of them, ſhall bear, and aid the other, falſly and maliciouſly to indite, or falſly to move or maintain Pleas, and alſo ſuch as cauſe children within within age, to appeal men of Felony, whereby they are impriſoned and ſore grieved; and ſuch as retain men in the Countreys with Liveries or Fees, to maintain their malicious enterpriſes; and this extendeth as well to the takers, as to the givers: Alſo Stewards and Bailiffs of great Lords, who by their Seigniory, Office, or Power undertake to bear or maintain Quarrels, Pleas, or Debates, that concern other parties, then ſuch as touch the Eſtate of their Lords, or of themſelves; but in this ſenſe it is confounded with maintenance, and champerty. See Maintenance for this. 34 Ed. 1. 2. 4 Ed. 3. 11. 3 H. 7. 13. 1 H. 7. 3. 18 H. 6. 12.

And ſometimes, and moſt commonly, and ſo in this place, it is taken more ſtrictly, that is, where two or more perſons, do purpoſely and malitiouſly conſpire and labor together, to indite another falſly and unjuſtly, without any ground at all; for ſome Treaſon, Felony, or other offence; and after, he which is ſo indicted, is upon that indictment after a lawful tryal, purged and acquitted. Poulton de Pace 232. 28 Aſſ. pl. 12.

Judgment in it. In this caſe, and for this wrong, the party grieved may have the offenders indicted, and ſo puniſhed at the Suit of the Lord Protector. And therein if the partie be found guilty, their Judgement is, That they ſhall loſe their Frank or Free Law. (i.) That they ſhall not afterwards be put into Juries, or Aſſizes, nor be otherwiſe produced as witneſſes to teſtifie truth. And if they have any thing to do in the Lord Protectors Court, they muſt do it by Attorney, and ſhall not come themſelves within twelve miles of the Court, that their Lands, Goods, and Cattles, ſhall be ſeiſed into the Lord Protectors hands, their Houſes waſted, their Trees eradicated, and their Bodies taken and impriſoned, and this is called a Villanous Judgment. Or the party grieved, might have preferred his Bill into the Star-Chamber, and have puniſhed it there; or he may have his Writ of Conſpiracy at the Common Law, which is a ſpecial Action of the Caſe; and therein the Judgment ſhall be, that the Plaintiff ſhall recover his damages, and the Defendant ſhall be taken. 27 Aſſ. pl. 59. 43 Ed. 3. 33. 46 Aſſ. pl. 11. 24 Ed. 3. 34. F.N.B. 114, 115. Co. 9. 56.

Frank-law.

There are divers Confederacies, and Conſpiracies, to other purpoſes, whereby men are wronged, and for thoſe there is relief given by other means. F. N. B. 116.

Sect. 2. In all caſes where this Writ may be had, or this Action doth lie; there muſt be theſe Incidents in the caſe.

2. In what caſe this Writ of Confederacy, or general Action of the Caſe for Confederacy lieth, or not.

1. There muſt be two perſons or more in the plot and practiſe; for a Writ of Conſpiracy is not maintainable againſt one, unleſs the charge be, that he ſimul cum others did conſpire ours. And hence it is, that it will not lie againſt a man and his wife alone, unleſs ſome others be made Defendants with them; for they two are but one perſon in Law. And hence it is alſo, that although the Suit be begun againſt divers, yet if all of them but one, be diſcharged to all intents, as if all of them, but one, be acquitted by a Verdict, or by matter in Law, as if they plead they were Indictors, or any ſuch like matter in Bar, hereby that one is diſcharged alſo; and if the Writ be brought againſt two, and they plead not guilty, and one is found guilty, and the other not, hereby he is diſcharged alſo, and the Plaintiff cannot recover. But if the Writ be brought againſt two, and one of them is attainted, and the other doth Bar the Plaintiff by a Demurrer in Law, or one doth appeal, and plead, and his Plea is found againſt him; in this caſe the other is not diſcharged, but the Plaintiff ſhall recover, though the other be not attainted (and yet perhaps in this caſe, the one may refuſe to anſwer without the other.) So albeit one of the Conſpirators be dead, yet the Suit may be had againſt the other alone; and in all caſes, where the practiſe is ſuch by one perſon, that if there were more joyned with him, a Writ of Conſpiracy would lie, there a general Action of the Caſe will lie. F. N. B. 116. 114. 18 Ed. 4. 1. Broo. Conſpiracy 21. 24 Ed. 3. 34. 40 Ed. 3. 19. 38 Ed. 3. 3. 22 Aſſ. pl. 71. 28 Aſſ. pl. 12 11 H. 4. 62. 28 H. 6. 25. 24 Ed. 3. 34. 35 H. 6. 14.

2. The party that would have this Action, muſt be indicted, arraigned, and acquitted, and therefore a man cannot have this Action, nor a general Action upon his caſe, for a plot or preparation, onely to ſuch an act without an Execution; for in this caſe the Rule doth hold Non officit conatus niſi ſequatur effectus. And yet notwithſtanding ſuch a Confederacy in preparation onely, as where two or more, knit, unite, and binde themſelves to maintain each other in their matters, right or wrong, or to do any unlawful act (which implies no more but a falſe Accuſation) albeit the party be never indicted and acquitted; this is puniſhable by Indictment at the Aſſizes, or might have been by Bill in the Star-Chamber. Therefore Juſtices of Aſſize and Niſi prius, are to inquire of Conſpirators in their Circuits, and puniſh them. But then ſuch Confederacies as are ſo puniſhable by the Law, before they be executed, muſt have in them always theſe four Incidents. Accuſation.

Firſt, They muſt be overtly declared by ſome manner of proſecution, as giving of Bonds, or the like.

Secondly, They muſt be malitious as for ſome unjuſt revenge, &c.

Thirdly, They muſt be falſe againſt an Innocent.

Fourthly, They muſt be voluntarily out of Court, and not by reſtraint. If the parties proceed further therefore, as to cauſe the accuſed perſon to be apprehended, brought before Juſtices, examined, bound to appear, ſent to Gaol, Indicted, or if they give Evidences, retain Counſel, or the like, againſt the priſoner, although the Jury finde an Ignoramus upon the Indictment; this is much more puniſhable by Indictment or Bill, for Quando aliquid prohibetur & id per quod pervenitur ad illud. But if all this be done and no more, in that the party be not arraigned and tried by the Petti-Jury, and thereupon acquit, it ſeems he cannot have this Action, for the Writ is Et legitimo modo acquietatus. And yet Quære, for I have heard ſay, that it hath been adjudged on the contrary. See for this 19 R. 2. Co. 9. 50. F.N.B. 114. 6 Ed. 4. 1. 24 Ed 3. 34. 27 Aſſ pl. 59. 19 H. 6. 28. 21 H. 6. 26. 9 Ed 4. 12. 27 Aſſ. pl. 44. Articuli ſuper Chartas, c. 10. 4 Ed 3. 11. Co. 9. 56, 57.

3. The proceeding and proſecution muſt be voluntary, and therefore neither this Action, nor the general Action of the Caſe, will lie againſt him or them that ſhall proſecute any man after this manner, by conſtraint or compulſion; as when they are thereunto obliged by their Oaths, Duties, or Offices. Hence it is, that if a Juſtice of Peace doth any thing in open Seſſions, to diſcover or puniſh offenders, or Jurors ſworn upon an Enqueſt, to enquire of Felonies, do indict a man for Felony, or make known the Felony to their fellows, or move or ſet forward an Indictment againſt him whiles they ſtand ſworn, albeit ſome of them did conſpire before they were ſworn, or they be after diſcharged before their verdict given; or one come into a Court to diſcover a Felony voluntarily, or one is ſworn and doth give Evidence to the Enqueſt, unleſs he did before conſpire, falſly to give this Evidence, that no Action will lie for any of theſe things, for all theſe things are juſtifiable and not puniſhable in any Court. Therefore it ſeems to be a good Plea to this Action, for the Defendant to ſay he came to the Seſſions of the Peace, and informed a Juſtice of Peace, of the matter againſt the party, and that at the Juſtices requiring, he did put the Information in writing, for this any man may juſtifie, for therefore is Proclamation made, that any man ſhall inform the Court that will, that ſuch as will may do it. 27 Aſſ pl 12. 12 Ed. 4. 18. 21 Ed. 4. 67. 47 Ed 3. 17. 21 Ed. 1. 17. 17 H. 4. 31. 27 Aſſ. pl. 12. 36 Aſſ pl. 21.

4. The proceeding and proſecution muſt be malitious, and therefore if one man do proſecute another, upon good ground, as when a Felony is done, and there is ſome cauſe of ſuſpition of that perſon, either by the common fame, or otherwiſe; or when a man is robbed, and the next Village upon Hue and Cry make purſuite, and take a man they ſuſpect, and the party robbed doth indict him, and he is acquitted; or a Coroner after a murder, ſitting ſuper viſum corporis, cannot finde out the murderer, and then enquiring of the firſt finders of the body, they ſay that J. S. killed him, and after J. S. is indicted and acquitted. Theſe are no faults at all, neither are any of theſe puniſhable at all in any Court. Broo. Conſpiracy.

5. The charge and accuſation muſt be falſe, ſo the Writ muſt run, That the Defendants conſpired to indict the Plaintiff falſly and malitiouſly without any ground or cauſe. And hence it is, that if there be a conſpiracy to indict a man for murder, and upon his arraignment it is found he killed the man; but it was lawful, or per infortunium, or ſe defendendo; no action will lie for this. Bro. Conſpiracy. 22 Aſſ. pl. 77. Fitz. Conſp. 21, 24. Stanf 3. 12.

6. The

6. The party indicted muſt be legitimo modo acquietatus, he muſt be acquitted after an indictment found upon his tryal by the other Jury, or he muſt be non-ſuite, if he bring an Appeal in the ſuit. And hence it is, that if any conſpire to indict another man, and he is acquitted by the Kings general Pardon, or he is acquitted by the Kings particular Pardon (unleſs he wave that, and after plead not guilty, and then be acquitted) or he is diſcharged by the inſufficiency of the Indictment; or there be a general Pardon, and the party doth not take advantage of it, but doth plead, and is acquitted. In all theſe caſes, the parties that do proſecute, cannot be puniſhed, neither can the party grieved, have any Remedy; for in the caſes of the general Pardon, the Judges ought to have allowed it, and diſmiſſed the party without pleading of it. And hence it is alſo, that it hath been always held, that if the party be indicted for an offence: And hence it is alſo, that it hath been always held, that if the party be indicted for an offence by a conſpiracy, and the Jury upon Bill finde an Ignoramus, no Action lieth for this.

2. This Writ lieth as well where the Defendant is acquitted, or the Plaintiff is non-ſuit upon an Appeal. As where the Plaintiff was acquitted upon an Indictment: But if the Appeal be founded on an Indictment, and the Defendant be acquitted, or the Appellant be non-ſuit upon the Appeal, after Declaration, and the Defendant be arraigned and acquitted at the Kings ſuit, or the Plaintiff be non-ſuit upon the Appeal (Contra, (and yet ſee *F. 3. If a Conſpiracy be to indict one as Principal, and another as Acceſſory, and after he is non-ſuit in his Appeal, or the Principal is acquitted (which is an acquital of the Acceſſory) yet the Acceſſory may have this Action, as well as the Principal. But if the Principal had been out-lawed, had got his pardon, or had died before tryal. Contrà. F. N. B. 115. Bro. Conſpiracy 2. 34 H. 9. 33 *H.*6.2.

4. If the Indictment and acquital be before a Major, or a Bailiff, or any other that have power to deliver Goals, the party grieved may have this Writ. F. N. B. 115.

5. If the Conſpiracy be to indict a man for Treſpaſs, or any other offence, beſides Treaſon or Felony, the party grieved may have this Action againſt the Conſpirators. F.N.B. 116. Broo Conſpiracy 25. 3 *Aſſ. pl.*13.

6. If the Conſpiracy be to indict a man for any offence againſt any Statute Law, the party grieved may have this Action, as well as when it is for an offence againſt the Common Law. New Book Entries 126.

7 If any perſon ſhall be indicted or appealed of Felonie, Treaſon, or Treſpas in a Forrein Countie, Liberties, or Franchiſes, where the ſaid perſon did never dwell or converſe, after he is duly acquited by verdict, he may have an Action of the Caſe againſt the procurer of ſuch Indictment, and herein ſhall recover treble damages. Old Book of Entries. f. 126.

8 If any doe malitiouſly indict of Treaſons, or Felonies, ſuppoſing that in their ſaid Appeales and Indictments that the ſaid Treaſons or Felonies were committed in one certain place, where in truth there is no ſuch place in the Countie; the Indictments and Appeales and Proces thereupon ſhall be void, and the parties grieved may have this Writ againſt the Conſpirators. 9 H. 5. 1. 13 H. 6. 12.

9 If one of meer malice procure one to be falſely indicted at Aſſiſes for a pretended murther and he be acquited, the partie may have an Action of the Caſe. Hobbard Rep. 8. Miles caſe.

10 If Overſeers of the Poor or other Officers conſpire in an undue way, and by colour of their Office to oppreſſe a man and do ſo, this Action may lye for this.

Sect. 3. 3. What ſhall be a good Barr or Plea to this Action.

1 It is a good Bar or Plea to plead a Concord made between the Plaintiff and them. 21 H. 6. 28.

2 Any thing that will prove the Indictment or the Acquitall of the Plaintiff erroneous is a good Bar, although the partie indicted did take no advantage by it. *Co.*9.26. 9 Ed. 4. 12.

3 It is a good Plea to ſay that there is no ſuch Record, as the Plaintiff doth ſet forth. 9 H. 6. 26.

5. But if the Writ be brought againſt two, it is no good Plea for one of them to ſay, the other is dead hanging the Writ; for it may be found, that he and the other did conſpire, and then it is well enough, 18 *Ed.*4.1.

6. It is no good Plea to ſay, the Plaintiff was guilty of the Felony, after he is acquitted of it. 20 *H.*7. 11.

7. If twenty be indicted, and one of them doth briug a Writ of Conſpiracy, ſuppoſing that the Defendant conſpire to indict him; it is no good Plea, that the Record is, that he and others are indicted. 9 *Ed.*4.23.

Of a Condition.

A Condition is a kinde of Law or Bridle, annexed to ones act, ſtaying or ſuſpending the ſame, and making it uncertain, whether it ſhall take effect, or no. Or as others define it, It is modus an Equality annexed by him that eſtate intereſt or right to the Land, &c. whereby an eſtate, &c. may either be created, defeated or enlarged upon an incertain event. *Terms Ley. Co. ſuper Littl.*201. 1. Condition. What.

And this doth differ from a Limitation, which is the bounds or compaſs of an eſtate, or the time how long an eſtate ſhall continue. Limitation. What.

And this ſometimes is contained in a Teſtament or Will, and ſometimes in a Deed. And when it is in a Deed, it hath no proper place aſſigned it, but it may be in any part of the Deed; howbeit, for the moſt part it is placed next after the Habendum, or next after the Reſervation of the Rent. It is alſo ſometimes annexed to and depending upon eſtates; and ſometimes annexed to, and depending upon Recognizances, Statutes, Obligations, Contracts, and other things: Conditions are alſo contained in Acts of Parliament and Records. But of theſe we ſpeak not here in the enſuing matters, which are eſpecially to be applied to ſuch Conditions, as are uſually contained in Deeds and annexed to the realty, i. To eſtates in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years. 27 *H.*8. 16. Co 2.70.

And of theſe Conditions there are divers kindes. For ſome are in Deed or Expreſs, i. When the Condition is expreſſed by the party in legal terms, and by expreſs words in writing, or without writing, knit to the eſtate, as if I enfeoff a man of Land, rendring Rent at a day on condition, That if it be not paid, it ſhall be lawful for me to re-enter. And ſome are in Law or implied, i. When the Condition is tacitè created by the Law, without any words uſed by the party. *Co. ſuper Littl.*201. Plow. Colthirſts caſe. *Co.*8.43. 2. The Kindes.

The firſt ſort of Conditions alſo are ſome of them precedent or executed, i. When the Condition muſt be fulfilled ere the eſtate can take effect, as where an Agreement is between me and J. S. That if he pay me Ten pound at Michaelmas, he ſhall have ſuch a ground of mine for ten years; or I make a Leaſe of Land to J. S. for ten years, provided, That if he pay me Ten pounds at Michaelmas, he ſhall have the Land to him and his Heirs; and in theſe caſes by the performance of the Condition the eſtate is acquired.

And ſome of them are Subſequent and Executory, i. When the eſtate is executed, but the continuance thereof dependeth upon the breach or performance of the Condition, as where a Leaſe is made for years, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall pay ten pound to the Leſſor at Michaelmas, or elſe his Leaſe ſhall be void; and in this caſe, by the performance of the Condition, the eſtate is held and kept.

Theſe Conditions alſo are ſome of them in the Affirmative, i. That do conſiſt of doing, as providing that the Leſſee ſhall pay the Rent, or pay ten pound to the Leſſor, &c. And ſome in the Negative, i. that conſiſt of not doing, as provided, That the Leſſee ſhall not alien, &c. And ſome of them are in the Affirmative, which imply a Negative, as provided, That if the Rent be unpaid that the Leſſor ſhall re-enter which implieth a Negative, viz. not paid.

Conditions alſo are ſome of them Collateral, i. When the act to be done is a Collaterall act, as that the party ſhall pay 10 l. goe to Rome, or the like. And ſome are inherent. i. Such as are annexed to the Rent reſerved out of the Land whereof the eſtate is made. And ſome of them alſo are Reſtrictive and contain a reſtraint, as that the Leſſee ſhall not alien, or do waſt, or the like. And ſome are compulſory, as that the Leſſee ſhall pay to the Leſſor 10 l. ſuch a day, or his leaſe ſhall be void.

And ſome of them be ſingle. i. To doe one thing only. And ſome Copulative, i. To doe divers things. And ſome diſjunctive. i. when one thing of divers is required to be done. And ſome conditions make the eſtate whereunto they are annexed voidable only by entry or claime. And ſome of them make the eſtate void ipſo facto without entry or claime.

And ſometimes they tend to deſtroy eſtates, ſometimes to make, or to enlarge eſtates, and ſometimes neither to make nor deſtroy, but only to clogg eſtates, as where a Leaſe is made rendring Rent on a day, on condition if it be not paid that the Leſſor ſhall enter on the Land and keep it till the Rent be paid. And all theſe waies conditions may be lawfully made. Ineſſe poteſt donationi modus, conditio ſive Cauſa. Lit ſect. 327.

The conditions in Law or implied are either by Common Law, or by Statute Law. The firſt ſort are ſome of them founded on skill, as where an office is granted, there is a condition tacite implied, that if the Grantee doth not execute it faithfully according to the truſt, the Grantor may put him out. Co. 8. 44. 3. 65. Lit. 325. 378. F. N. B. 205.

And ſome are without skill, as where an eſtate is made for life or yeares of Land, there is this condition implied, that if the Leſſee doe waſt he ſhall forfeit the place waſted, or if the Leſſee make a Feoffment of the Land he ſhall forfeit his eſtate and the Leſſor ſhall enter.

And where an eſtate is made in Fee of Land; this condition is implied, that the Feoffee ſhall not alien it in Mortmaine.

And theſe conditions doe ſometimes give a recovery, and no entry, as in the caſe of waſt: And ſometimes they give an entry and no recovery, as in the caſe of Alienation in Mortmaine. In the caſe of exchange alſo there is a condition in Law, for which ſee Exchange. Co. 4. 121.

3 What things may be made and doneupon Condition. And to what things a Condition may be annexed, Or not. And how it may be made and annexed ther-unto.

It is a generall rule, That when a man hath a thing, he may condition with it as he will. Conditions in deed therefore may be annexed to things inheritable, to Frank Tenements, or to Chattels Reall and Perſonall: as for example, If a Feoffment in Fee, gift in Taile, or Leaſe for life be made of Lands or Tenements, or a grant be of a Rent, Common, or the like thing in Fee-ſimple, Fee-taile, or for life, theſe things may be done upon condition.

So a Leaſe for years of Land, or a grant of a Rent, &c. for years may be made upon condition. And a Leaſe may be made for five years on condition that if the Leſſee pay to the Leſſor within the firſt two years 10. markes, that then he ſhall have the Fee, otherwiſe but for five years. 21 H 7. 24. Perk. ſect. 707. 708, &c.

Alſo a Gardian in Chivalry may grant the wardſhip of the body and land or either of them on condition. A Tenant by ſtatute Marchant, Staple, or Elegit may grant their eſtates upon condition. The Lord may grant his Seigniory to his Tenant on condition. The Tenant for life may grant his eſtate to his Leſſor, or him in reverſion upon condition. The King may make letters Patents of denization to an Alien, or a Charter of pardon to a man for his life upon condition. Alſo releaſes and Confirmations may be made upon condition. And a ſubmiſſion to an award may be upon a condition. But an Inſtitution to a Benefice, or an induction may not be on a condition. An Atturnment, or an expreſs Manumiſſion of a villaine cannot be upon a condition ſubſequent, as it may be upon a condition precedent, And a condition cannot be releaſed upon a condition, as ſome hold. But the contrary is held by others cleerly, and that there is no difference between this and a releaſe of a right, Ideo quære. An award cannot be made on a condition as was held in Sherers caſe 35 Eliz. A Contract or ſale of a Chattel perſonall, as an oxe or the like, may be upon condition, as if A ſell his horſe to B that if A doe ſuch an act, then that B ſhall pay 5 l. at the day agreed upon, otherwiſe but 4 li,

So

So if I agree with a Phyſitian, that if he cure ſuch a diſeaſe, he ſhall have ſo much, and in this caſe he cannot have the money untill he have done the cure As where I promiſe a man 10 l. when he hath built ſuch a houſe, in this caſe he cannot have the money untill the houſe be built. Alſo retaining of ſervants, delivery of Charters and divers other things may be done upon condition.

And if an Executor aſſent to a Legacy upon a condition; the Aſſent is good, but the condition is void. Perk. ſect. 781 Co. ſuper Litt. 274. Perk. ſect. 724. Co. 8. 98. Dier. 242. Co. 2. 74. Co. ſuper Litt. 274. Perk. ſect. 712. 713. Co. 4. 28.

And conditions annexed to eſtates in all the caſes before, howſoever they are moſt frequently and falſely made by deed in writing, yet it ſeems ſuch conditions may be made and annexed to any eſtate of a thing grantable without deed without any writing at all; howſoever in ſome caſes it cannot be well pleaded nor uſed without a deed, for it is a Rule, That if a condition be pleaded in any action to defeat a Free old, the deed wherein the Condition is contained muſt be ſhewed, But of Chattels reall, as Leaſes for years and the like, or grants of Chattels perſonall, a man may plead that ſuch leaſes and grants were made upon condition, without ſhewing the deed. Litt. ſect. 365. Co. ſuper Lit. 161. 216. Doct. & Stu. 16. Perk. ſect. 715.

And in the firſt caſe alſo of a condition to avoid a freehold, it may be given in evidence to a Jury, and they may finde the matter at large as it is, and ſo the party may have advantage of the condition without ſhewing any deed of it. Alſo the pleading of a Feoffment in Fee on condition without deed and Reentry, is good if the party confeſs the condition. A condition may be annexed to a limitation of uſes, and thereby the ſame may be made void. See Vſe. Co. 5. 40. Co. 8. 90.

4. The nature of a condition in deed, and of a limitation.

The nature of an expreſs condition annexed to an eſtate in generall is this: That it cannot be made by, nor reſerved to a ſtranger, but it muſt be made by, nor reſerved to him that doth make the eſtate. And it cannot be granted over to another, except it be to and with the Land or thing unto which it is annexed and incident.

And ſo it is not grantable in all caſes; for the eſtates of both the parties are ſo ſuſpended by the condition, that neither of them alone can well make any eſtate, or charge, of or upon the Land; for the party that doth depart with the eſtate, and hath nothing but a poſſibility to have the thing again upon the performance or breach of the condition, cannot grant or charge the thing at all. Co. ſuper Litt. 186. Perk. ſect 818. Litt. Sect. 358. Dier. 6.

And if he that hath the eſtate, grant or charge it, it will be ſubject to the condition ſtill, for the condition doth alwaies attend and wait upon the eſtate or thing whereunto it is annexed: ſo that although the ſame doe paſs through the hands of an hundred men, yet is it ſubject to the condition ſtill; And albeit ſome of them be perſons priviledged in divers caſes, as the King, infants, and women covert, yet they alſo are bound by the condition. And a man that comes to the thing by wrong, as a Diſſeiſor of Land whereof there is an eſtate upon condition in being, ſhall hold the ſame ſubject to the condition alſo. Dier 298. Co. 8. 44. Perk. ſect. 818. 819.

And when the condition is broken or performed, &c. the whole eſtate ſhall be defeated: So that if there be a Leaſe for life made by deed and not by will, the remainder over in Fee, on condition that the Leſſee for life ſhall pay ten pound to the Leſſor; if the Leſſee pay not this ten pound, the eſtate in remainder is avoided alſo, Et ſic é converſo, unleſs by ſpeciall limitation it be otherwiſe provided, as if A grant by Indenture Land to B for life, the remainder to C in Fee, rendring Rent to A and his Heirs with condition that if the Rent be behind, to reenter and retain the Land during the life of B and no more, and A doth enter in the life time of B for non-payment; this doth not deſtroy the remainder. Dier 117. Co. 10. in Mary Portingtons caſe. ſuper Litt. 230. Litt. ſect 374. Perk ſect 564. f. 108. Litt. f. 224. Dier. 127. Co. ſuper Litt. 224.

And if Tenant for life and he in remainder joyn in a Feoffment on condition that if, &c. that then the Tenant for life ſhall reenter; this is good without deſeating the entire eſtate, for regularly a condition cannot avoid a part of an eſtate onely, and leave another part entire; neither can the eſtate be void as to one perſon, and good as to another, (except it be in caſe of a condition annexed to an eſtate limited by way of uſe, as in Frances caſe. Co. 8. 90.) And yet if A make a gift in tail to B, the remainder to B in Fee upon condition not to alien, and B doth alien; this doth defeat the eſtate taile onely, and not the remainder. Alſo the whole eſtate of the whole, and not of ſome part only, ſhall be avoided, except by agreement the condition be ſpecially reſtrained to ſome part, and the reentry given in that part only, as where a Feoffment is made of two acres, on condition that if ſuch a thing happen, the Feoffer ſhall enter into one of them. And further when he that hath right doth reenter by force of ſuch condition, he ſhall avoid all charges and incumbrances put upon the Land after the condition made, for he that doth enter into Land by force of ſuch a condition, muſt have it again in the ſame plight as it was when he parted with it. And finally, a condition for the moſt part will not determine the eſtate without entrie or claim. So that howſoever a limitation hath much affinity and agreement with a condition, and therefore it is ſometimes called a condition in Law, both of them doe determine an eſtate in being before, and a limitation cannot make an eſtate to be void as to one perſon, and good as to another, as if a gift be made in taile to one and his Heirs males, untill he doe ſuch a thing, and then his eſtate to ceaſe and goe to another: yet herein they differ. 1. A ſtranger may take advantage of an eſtate determined by limitation, and ſo he cannot upon a condition: 2, A limitation doth always determine the eſtate without entrie or claime, and ſo doth not a condition. ſee Brown. 1 part 31. Co. 4. 121. Dier. 127 Perk. ſect. 840. See Infra Litt. ſect 380, Co. 9. 128. 8. 17. 6. 41. Plow. 413. Co. 10. 50. Dier 300. Litt. ſect. 90.

§ When an eſtate ſhall be conditionall. And what words will make a condition. And what not. And how a condition may be known from a covenant, or limitation. Proviſo, Ita quod ſub conditione Si. Si contingat.

Conditions annexed to eſtates are ſometimes ſo placed and confounded amongſt covenants, ſometimes ſo ambiguouſly drawn, and at all times have in their drawing ſo much affinity with limitations, that it is hard to diſcern and diſtinguiſh them. Know therefore that for the moſt part Conditions have Conditionall words in their frontiſpice, and doe begin therewith, and that amongſt theſe words there are three words that are moſt proper, which in and of their own nature and efficacy without any addition of other words of reentry in the concluſion of the condition that doe make the eſtate Conditionall, as Proviſo, Ita quod, and ſub conditione. And therefore if A grant Lands to B, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, Provided that, or ſo as, or under this condition, that B doe pay to A Ten pound at Eaſter next; this is a good condition, and the eſtate is Conditionall without any more words. But there are other words as Si, ſi contingat, and the like, that will make an eſtate Conditionall alſo, but then they muſt have other words joined with them, and added to them in the cloſe of the condition as that then the Grantor ſhall reenter, or that then the eſtate ſhall be void, or the like. And therefore if A grant Lands to B, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, and if, or but if it happen the ſaid B doe not pay to A Ten pound at Eaſter, without more words, this is no good condition, but if theſe or ſuch like words be added, that then it ſhall be lawfull for A to reenter, then it will be a good condition. Co. 2. Lord Cromwels caſe. 10 Mary Portingtons caſe. Co. ſuper Litt. 204. 27 H. 8. 16. Litt. ſect. 328. 329. 330. 331.

But here note that theſe words Proviſo, Ita quod, and ſub conditione, albeit they be the moſt proper words to make conditions, yet doe they not always make the eſtate by the deed to be Conditionall, but ſometimes doe ſerve for other purpoſes; for the word Proviſo hath divers operations beſides; for ſometimes it doth ſerve for, and work a qualification or limitation, and ſometimes it doth ſerve to make and work a covenant onely. And then only (being inſerted amongſt the covenants of the deed) it doth make the eſtate Conditionall, when there are theſe things in the caſe. Co. ſuper Litt. 146. Co. 2. 70. Dier 152. 311. Litt. Bro. 256. Dier 6. 222. Plow. 136. 5 H. 7. 7. Perk. ſect. 732.

1. When

1. When the clauſe wherein it is, hath no dependance upon any other ſentence in the Deed, nor doth participate with it, but ſtands originally by and of it ſelf. 2. When it is compulſory to the Feoffee, Donee, &c. 3. When it comes on the part, and by the words of the Feoffor, Donor, Leſſor, &c. 4. When it is applied to the Eſtate, and not to ſome other matter, as if one grant a Manor with an Advowſon appendant, and after the Habendum and reſervation of Rent amongſt the Covenants, there is this clauſe inſerted, [Provided that the Grantee ſhall regrant the Advowſon for the life of the Grantor] this is a good Condition. And thus it may be alſo a Condition, and a Covenant: As if the words run thus; Provided always, and the Feoffee &c. doth covenant &c. that neither he nor his heirs ſhall do ſuch an act, this is both a Condition and a Covenant. But if the clauſe have dependance on another clauſe of the Deed, or be the words of the Feoffee, &c. to compel the Feoffor to do ſomething, then is it not a Condition, but a Covenant only: As if Covenant. there be in the Deed a Covenant, that the Leſſee ſhall ſcour the ditches; and then theſe words follow, [Provided that the Leſſor ſhall carry away the earth.] Or there is a Covenant, that the Leſſee ſhall repair the Houſes; and then theſe words follow, [Provided that the Leſſor provide Timber.] So if this clauſe be applied to ſome other thing, and not to the thing granted, then it is no Condition; as if a Leaſe of Land be made rendring Rent at B. Provided, that if ſuch a thing happen, it ſhall be paid at C. this doth not make the Eſtate conditional. Or a Leaſe is made for years without impeachment of Waſte, proviſo quod non proſternet domus voluntarie; in this caſe howſoever this doth make the privilege, yet doth it not make the Eſtate conditional. Or a Leaſe is made for years rendring Rent, provided that the Leſſor ſhall not diſtrain for the Rent; in this caſe this is a good Condition, but not annexed to the Eſtate. So if in a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Land, after the Habendum, there are theſe words, viz. upon theſe Conditions following, viz. That if the Vendor pay the Vendee twenty pounds at Eaſter, and enfeoff him of the Meadow called S. before Whitſontide, that the Bargain ſhall be void: Provided nevertheleſs, that the Bargainor ſhall hold the Land for 20 years without let of the Bargainee, it ſeems this Provided in this caſe doth not make a Condition. So if a Leaſe be made of a Houſe, and amongſt the Covenants theſe words are inſerted, [Provided alſo, that if the Leſſor will dwell upon it, or keep it in his hands, then the Leſſee, his Executors and Aſſigns doth covenant upon one years warning to remove and give place to the Leſſor, this Leaſe notwithſtanding;] it ſeems this is no Condition, but a Covenant only, Dyer 318. 27 H. 8. 15. Bro. Condition 7. If a Leaſe be made, provided that if the Rent be behind, without any more words; this is no good Condition, Curia Paſch. 14 Jac. Br. in the Caſe of Muddy. Co. ſuper Lit.

Proviſo, ſometimes makes a Condition: As if one leaſe Land, Provided that the Leſſee ſhall not alien without the aſſent of the Leſſor, under pain of Forfeiture. Sometimes it is taken for an Explanation: As if I have two Manors called Dale, and I leaſe to you the Manor of Dale, Provided that you ſhall not have my Manor of Dale in the occupation of I. S. Sometimes for a Covenant: As if one leaſe a Houſe, and the Leſſee covenant to keep it in Repair, provided that the Leſſor ſhall find great Timber. Sometimes for an Exception: As if I leaſe to you my Meſſuage in Dale, Provided that I will have ſuch a Chamber my ſelf. Sometimes for a Reſervation: As if I make a Leaſe rendring Rent at ſuch Feaſts as J. S. ſhall name, Provided that the Feaſt of S. Michael be one. Goldsb. 131 pl. 27. See more, Brownl. 1 par. 45. 170. 2 par. 150.

The word ſi alſo doth not always make a Condition; for ſometimes it makes a limitation, as when a Leaſe is made for years, if J. S. ſhall live ſo long.

There are other words alſo, that in the Kings Grant, in laſt Wills and Teſtaments, and other ſpecial caſes do make Conditions; as, ea intentione, ad effectum, propoſitum, intentionem, Paying, and the like. So that if one deviſe his Land to J. S. ea intentione, &c. that he ſhall pay to W. S. Ten pounds, or paying, or ſo as he pay to W. S. Ten pounds, or to ſell, &c. theſe are good Conditions. But theſe words regularly do not make a Condition when they are uſed in Deeds.

And

And therefore if one make a Feoffment in Fee ea intentione, ad effectum, &c. that the Feoffee ſhall do, or not do ſuch an act; theſe words do not make the Eſtate conditional, but it is abſolute notwithſtanding. And yet perhaps theſe words being conjoined with ſome others, may make a Condition; as if Lands be granted ea intentione quòd ſi defecerit, &c. tunc quod reintrabit, or the like. Co. ſuper Lit. 236. 237. Doct & Stu. 122. Dyer 138. Plow. 142. 7 *H.*4. 22. Co. ſuper Lit. 204. Co. 10. 42. Dyer 318. Doct. & St. 34. Idem 94. Dyer 6. 91. 63. 92.

Alſo Conditions are ſometimes made, eſpecially in Eſtates and Leaſes for years, without any of theſe formal words; when the apparent intent of the Leſſor is to make the Eſtate conditional, albeit the words be not uſed as the words of the Leſſor, but as the words of the Leſſee, or indefinitely of neither. And therefore it hath been ſaid, That if an Indenture be made between A. and B. thus: It is agreed and covenanted between the parties aforeſaid, that B. ſhall have the Land for years, and that he ſhall not alien it; that this Eſtate is conditional. But it ſeems this is not Law. But if this clauſe be inſerted amongſt other Covenants, viz. If the Leſſee hinder the Leſſor to fell, cut, and carry away the Trees upon the Lands deviſed, that the Leſſor may re-enter, and the Leaſe ſhall be void; this is a good Condition, and ſo it hath been adjudged in the caſe of Haward and Fulcher, Hil. 3 Car. B.R. And if a Leſſee for years do covenant in his Leaſe, that if he, his Executors or Aſſigns ſhall alien, that it ſhall be lawful for the Leſſor to re-enter; it ſeems this is a good Condition, and not a Covenant only. And if a Leaſe for years be made, and this clauſe is inſerted in the Deed: It is agreed between the parties, That if the Leſſee do not pay Ten pounds to the Leſſor at Eaſter, from thenceforth the Leaſe ſhall be void; this is a good Conditoin. And if a Leaſe be made with this clauſe inſerted in the Deed: It is agreed, That whoſoever ſhall have have the Eſtate or Intereſt, that he or they ſhall find Sureties within the year for the Rent, otherwiſe the Eſtate ſhall ceaſe; it ſeems this is a good Condition. Dyer 66. 65. Curia M 37, 38 Eliz. B.R. And if a Leaſe for years be made with this clauſe inſerted, And that it ſhall not be lawful for the Leſſee to alien without licence of the Leſſor, under pain of Forfeiture; this is a good Condition. And if a Leaſe for years be made of a Houſe, with this clauſe inſerted in the Deed, And the Leſſee ſhall continually dwell upon the ſame Houſe, upon pain of Forfeiture of the ſaid Term; this is a good Condition, Dyer 79. 27. Co. ſuper Lit. 204. Plow. 132. And if in a Leaſe for years, the Leſſee covenant to pay ſo much Rent, and then theſe words are inſerted; And if it ſhall happen the ſaid yearly Rent, &c. then the Leſſee doth covenant and grant, &c. that the Leaſe ſhall be void; it ſeems this is a good Condition, and ſo hath it ever been taken, as was ſaid by Juſt. Dodridg, Hil. 3 Car. And in all theſe caſes the Eſtate is conditional. But in caſes of Feoffments in Fee, Gifts in tail, and Leaſes for life, it ſeems words penned in this manner will not make Conditions; but that in theſe caſes the preciſe and formal words of a Condition are requiſite. And therefore that if a Feoffment be made by Deed, and therein is inſerted this clauſe; That it is agreed, or that the Feoffor doth covenant, that if the Feoffee do ſuch an act, that the Feoffor ſhall re-enter; this is no Condition, nor the Eſtate hereby made conditional. And yet ſee Perk. ſect. 744. Co. ſuper Lit. 204. Doct. & Stu. 94. Dyer 65. 138.

If one make a Leaſe for years on condition to pay Rent at four Feaſts; and after there is a clauſe in the Deed, And if the Rent ſhall be behind &c. that he ſhall diſtrain; this clauſe doth not take away the Condition, but the ſame doth continue, and the Eſtate is conditional ſtill, Dyer 348. See more in the next Queſtion.

In the making of Eſtates, the Cauſe is regarded: And in caſe of the Grant of Lands or Tenements, Cauſa doth ſometimes make a Condition; as if a woman give Lands to a man and his heirs, cauſa matrimonii prælocuti; in this caſe if ſhe either marry the man, or the man refuſe to marry her, ſhe ſhall have the Land again to her and her heirs. But on the other ſide, if a man give Land to a woman and to her heirs cauſa matrimonii prælocuti, though he marry her, or the woman refuſe, he ſhall not have the Lands again to him and his heirs. And in the caſe of a Grant executory, the word pro may make a Condition. Co. ſuper Lit. 204. 10. 42. Plow. 141. 9 Ed. 4. 19. 15 Ed. 4. 2. Dyer 6.

And

And therefore if a man grant me an Annuity pro una acra terre, or pro decimis, &c. or if he grant me an Annuity for a way, or a gutter through my ground, this is Conditionall, and if he be diſturbed in the way, acre of Land, Tithes, or Gutter, he may refuſe to pay the Annuity. So if an Annuity be granted to an Officer for the executing of his Office, or pro conſilio impendendo, if the Grantee doe not execute the Office, or give counſell, &c. the Annuity ſhall ceaſe. But if one grant me Tithes or an Annuity, and I grant an Annuity for theſe Tithes, or grant to give counſell for the Annuity; it ſeems the Grants that are in this manner are not Conditionall, but abſolute. So if I pro conſilio, &c. or pro una acra terre &c. make a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for life of another acre, theſe eſtates are not Conditional. And if one deviſe Land to be ſold by his Executors, and to be diſtributed for his ſoul; by this it ſeems the eſtate or power of the Executors is Conditionall. So if one deviſe his Land to find a Preacher or a Chaplain. But otherwiſe it ſeems it is of Land ſo conveyed by Deed in a mans life time. And if a Feoffment be made of Land ad erudiendum filium; ſome have ſaid this eſtate is Conditionall. Dier 7. 127 ſee Teſtament. Plow. 141. 142.

Annuity

Teſtament.

The moſt apt and proper words to make a limitation of an eſtate are Quamdiu, Dummodo, Dum, Quouſque, Si, and ſuch like. And therefore if A grant Lands to B, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, untill B goe to Rome. or untill he be promoted to a Benefice, or untill B pay to A, or A pay to B twenty pound, or ſo long as I. S, ſhall live, or if A grant Lands to B, To have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. if I. S and I. D. ſhall live ſo long. Or if A grant Lands to B, To have and to hold to him for the life of B, So that B, pay 20 pound to A at Eaſter following; theſe are not Conditionall, but limited to eſtates. So if A grant Lands to B To have and to hold to him for ſo long as he ſhall keep himſelf a Widower, or dum ſola fuit, or durante viduitate, if the Grantee be a Widow, theſe are good limited eſtates, but theſe words doe not make the eſtates to be Conditionall. Co. ſuper Litt. 234. 235. Co. 10. 42. Plow. 413. Litt. ſect. 90. Dier 290.

Limitation.

If the words in the cloſe or concluſion of a condition bee thus, that the Land ſhall return to the Feoffer; &c. or that he ſhall take it again and turn it to his own profit, or that the Land ſhall revert, or that the Feoffer ſhall recipere the Land; theſe are either of them good words in a condition to give a Reentry, as good as the word [reenter] and by theſe words the eſtate will be made Conditionall. Dier 125. Plow. 159. Perk ſect. 740.

The Tenant by the curteſie, the Tenant in Taile after the poſſibility of iſſue extinct the Tenant in Dower, the Tenant for life, the Tenant for years, by Statute, or Elegit, Gardian, &c. doe hold their eſtates ſubject to a condition in Law, ſo that if either of them Alien his Land in Fee, or claime a greater eſtate in a court of Record then his own, he doth forfeit his eſtate, and he in Remainder or Reverſion may enter, and if ſuch a Tenant doe waſt, he in Reverſion ſhall recover the place waſted. The Tenant in Fee-ſimple doth hold his eſtate ſubject to a condition in Law, ſo that if he Alien his Land in Mortmain, he doth forfeit it, and the Lord may enter upon him. So alſo he that doth take Land in exchange doth hold it under a condition in Law, viz, that if the Land he give in Exchange for that Land be recovered from him that hath it, that he ſhall enter upon his own Land again. Alſo every Officer that hath to doe in the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, all Keepers of Parks, Stewards. Beadles, Bailiffes, and ſuch like hold their Offices under a condition in Law; ſo that if they doe not duly execute it, and doe all that thereunto doth appertain, they may forfeit them, and the Grantor may put them out. In quo quis delinquit in eo eſt de jure puniendus. Co. ſuper Litt, 233. 234. Co. 8. 44.

6 What ſhall be ſaid a condition in Law. And when an eſtate ſhall be ſubject to ſuch a condition.

7 What ſhall be ſaid a good condition in a deed or limitation in his Originall creation. And what not.

To every good condition is required an externall form. i. Words to declare an intent in the party to have the eſtate Conditionall, as in the caſes before.

And an internall form, that is, ſuch matter as whereof a condition may be made.

1 For the manner, and frame, and order of making of it.

As

Grant of fee abſolute not be made conditionall a making of the day and before or afterwards to contrade annuity

As to things executed, the condition muſt be made and annexed to the eſtate at the time of the making of it, but as to things executory, it may be made afterwards. And if the condition be made in another deed, and not the ſame deed wherein the eſtate is made, if it bee delivered at the ſame time it is as good as if it were contained in the ſame deed. And therefore if a man make a Feoffment, Leaſe, or the like, by one deed abſolute, and at the ſame time make another deed of defeaſance or condition, and deliver both together, this is a good condition, and will make the eſtate Conditionall. But if the defeaſance be ſealed and delivered before, or after the Deed, contra. And therefore if one make an abſolute Feoffment in Fee, and before or after the ſealing or delivery of that Deed the Feoffer declare himſelf by Deed: or the Feoffer and Feoffee agree by deed that the eſtate made before, or to be made after, ſhall be Conditionall, yet this is not Conditionall. And yet if an Annuity be granted abſolutely by one Deed, and after the Grantee grant to the Grantor, that if the Grantor doe ſuch a thing, the Annuity ſhall ceaſe: in this caſe the Annuity is Conditionall. Perk. Sect. 717. Co. 1. 113. Plow. 133. Co. ſuper Litt. 146. 217. Co. 2. 71.

Annuity

Vſe

A condition may be annexed to an eſtate by way of uſe, as if a Feoffment be made to a A, to the uſe of B, and his Heirs, on condition that B ſhall pay to the Feoffor twenty pound ſuch a day; this is a good condition. So if one Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of Lands to the uſe of B and his Heirs, on condition that if he pay him Ten pound, the uſe ſhall be void, or the like. Alſo a condition may be annexed to an eſtate created by Will, as if one deviſe Land to I. S. for his life, Provided that he pay ten pound yearly to I. D. this is a good condition. Whereof ſee in Teſtament. Co. 146. Hil. 40. Iac. B. R. Warners caſe: Co 1. 112. Albanies caſe. Dier 126. 348.

Rent

Rent may revive contra Land

A Rent, or any ſuch like thing may be granted on condition, that if ſuch a thing be or be not done, the Rent ſhall ceaſe for a time, and then revive again, and this condition is good. But in caſe of Land it is otherwiſe, for that cannot be granted after this manner. Alſo a condition to make an eſtate void for a part of the time is not good, And therefore if a Feoffment be on condition, that upon ſuch a contingent the Feoffer ſhall enter and have the Land for a time, or the eſtate ſhall be void for a part of the time; or make a Leaſe for Ten years, provided that upon ſuch a contingent it ſhall be void for five years; theſe conditions are not good: And yet if a Feoffment be made of two acres, provided that upon ſuch a contingent the eſtate ſhall be void as to one acre onely; this is a good condition. Co. 8. 17. 24 Ed. 3. 29. Co. 1. 86. Perk. ſect. 718. Co. 4. 121. Dier 6.

Upon a contingent void as to part of the Land but not part of the term

Stranger can have the advantage of A condition broken

A condition that a ſtranger, or the Heir of the Feoffor ſhall doe an act is good, as if a Feoffment be made to I. S on condition that I. D. ſhall pay to the Feoffor, Ten pound at Eaſter next; or if a Feoffment be made on condition that if the Heir of the Feoffor pay Twenty ſhillings to the Feoffee, that the Feoffor and his Heirs ſhall reenter. But a condition to give a ſtranger a reentry is void ſo far forth. And therefore if an eſtate be made upon condition, that upon ſuch a contingent a ſtranger ſhall enter, or the eſtate ſhall ceaſe, and another ſhall have it, howſoever this may be ſo drawn, as it may be a good condition to give him his Heirs, &c. that doth make the eſtate an entry, yet it cannot be good to give the eſtate or the entry to the ſtranger. So if a Feoffment be made on condition that upon ſuch a contingent the Feoffor and a ſtranger, ſhall enter; this is not good to give an entry to the ſtranger, but it is good to give the Feoffor a reentry. And yet by will a man may deviſe a Terme after this manner. Co. ſuper Litt. 214. Dect. & Stud. 94. 159. 100. Co. ſuper Litt. 379. Co. 1. 84. Dier. 33. 21 H. 7 11. Dier 4. Co. 8. 95.

Stranger advantage by will

Note Rent or rent to a Stranger

If a man Enfeoffe another, upon condition that he and his Heirs ſhall render to a ſtranger and his Heirs a yearely Rent of Twenty ſhillings, &c. and if he faile of payment thereof, that the Feoffer ſhall reenter, albeit this as a reſervation of Rent is meerly void, and the condition that doth call it a Rent, is meerly miſtaken, yet the condition is good, and ut res valeat, the words ſhall be taken contrary to their proper ſenſe. Co. ſuper Litt. 213.

If

If I infeoffe I S of land on condition that if I D give to him ten pound, or goe to Rome before ſuch a day &c. that then the feoffee ſhall pay to me ten pound &c. this is a good condition. Perk. Sect 798.

If a feoffment be made to one and his heirs, on condition that if the feoffee pay to the feoffor ten pound, hee ſhall have the fee of land; this is not a good condition.

But if he ſay further, And if he fail to pay that, the feoffor ſhall reenter, this is good. *Co ſuper Litt.*207.

If a gift in tail be made to a man and the heirs of his body, and if he die without heirs of his body, that then the donor and his heirs ſhall reenter; this is avoid condition, for when the iſſues fail, the eſtate is at an end. Co. ſuper Litt. Sect. 224.

A man makes a leaſe for years rendring Rent on Condition with a Covenant that the leſſee ſhall repair the houſe with other Covenants. And after he deviſeth the ſame land to the leſſee for more years rendring the like Rent and under the like Covenants as in the firſt leaſe the Remainder in fee to another; in this caſe there is no Condition made by the deviſe to give Entre to him in Remainder. *Goldsb.*74. *Pl.*1.

Conditions that are ſo penned, as they are inſenſible and altogether incertain are void. as if one make a leaſe on condition that if the rent be behinde to reſtrain, and if there bee not ſufficient, the ground to enter into the premiſſes; this condition is void for inſenſibility, and the eſtate is abſolute. Et ſic de ſimilibus. Muddy & Gardners caſe. Adjudge paſche 14. Jac. B. R. Co. 6. 41.

A condition to enlarge or encreaſe an eſtate may be good, as if a gift be made in tail, or a leaſe be made for life or years, on condition that if ſuch an act be done or not done, the leſſee ſhall have the land to him and his heirs, as if one make a leaſe for life to one, and if the leſſor die without heir of his body, then he doth grant the land to the leſſee and his heirs for ever. Or if land be granted to a man for 5 years, on condition that if the grantee pay to the grantor within the two firſt years ten pound, then that he ſhall have the fee-ſimple; otherwiſe that he ſhall have the land but for five years, and livery of ſeiſin be made according to the deed; this is a good condition, and by this upon the performance of the condition the fee-ſimple will paſſe. Co. 8. 75. Plow. 477. 481. Litt. Sect. 350. Perk Sect. 710. Plow. 135. 10. Aſſ. pl 15. Perk. Sect. 745. 707. Plow 25. Litt. Sect. 707. 350. Plow. 272. 482, 483. 45 H. 7. 4. See more in the Lord Staffords Caſe, Co. 8. 73.

So if one grant land for five years rendring rent, and that if the leſſee will hold it over to him and his heirs, that he ſhall pay twenty pound rent; this is a good condition, and if he pay the rent, he ſhall have the feeſimple. So if a man make a leaſe for years, and at the ſame time for the ſurety of the terme to the leſſee makes a feoffment to him upon condition that if he be diſturbed in his term, hee ſhall have the feeſimple of the land, and deliver both theſe deeds at one time, and give livery of ſeiſin accordingly; this is a good condition. So if a leaſe for life be made upon condition, that if the leſſor or his heirs pay to B or his heirs, ten pound at a certain day, that then the leſſor may reenter, and if he doe not pay it at that time, and the leſſee pay to the leſſor or his heirs ten pound at a certain day, after the former day, that then the leſſee ſhall have the land to him and his heirs for ever; this is a good condition. But in all caſes where theſe kind of conditions are good to make the increaſed eſtate good, there muſt be theſe things in the caſe.

1. There muſt be a precedent particular eſtate as an eſtate in tail for life, or years, for a foundation to erect the ſubſequent eſtate upon, and that firſt eſtate alſo muſt be certain and irrevocable, not upon contingency, or with power of revocation.

2. The privity muſt remain untill the time of the performance of the condition, for if the donee or leſſee doe grant away the firſt eſtate, the condition cannot afterwards be performed to effect and produce the encreaſing eſtate.

3. The ſubſequent eſtate muſt veſt eo inſtanti, when the contingency upon which the condition dependeth, ſhall happen or never.

4. The firſt and ſecond eſtate muſt take effect by one and the ſame deed, or elſe by two deeds delivered at the ſame time, for quæ incontinenti fiunt ineſſe videntur. 5. The condition upon which increaſe is, muſt be poſſible and lawfull, for upon an impoſſible condition it cannot, and upon an unlawfull condition it ſhall not increaſe: ſee Brownl. 2 part 224. 225. 249. 250.

If one make a Leaſe for life, provided that if the Leſſee die within ſixty years, that his executors ſhall have the Land for ſo many of the ſixty years as ſhall be to come at the time of his death; this is no good condition to make the eſtate to increaſe, but it may be a Covenant. And if a leaſe for years be made, on condition that if the Leſſor ſell the reverſion of the ſame land, the Leſſee ſhall have the Fee of it; this is no good condition to increaſe the eſtate. And a poſſibility cannot decreaſe upon a poſſibility, as a Leaſe for years to a Leaſe for life by one contingent, and the Leaſe for life to a Fee-ſimple by another. And if a Leaſe be made to a man and a woman for their lives, on condition that which of them two ſhall firſt mary that one ſhall have the Fee & they intermary; in this caſe neither of them ſhall have the Fee for incertainty. Co. 1. 155. Dier 150. Co. 1. 84. Co. 8. 75. Co ſuper Litt. 218.

Covenant.

To abridg an eſtate.

If a man make a Leaſe for life, and add this condition, that if the Leſſee within one year doe not pay twenty ſhillings, that he ſhall have but a Term of two years, and he doe not pay the 20 s. by this his Leaſe for life is gone, and he hath now but a Leaſe for two years. Co. ſuper Litt: 218. 50 Ed. 3. 27.

2. For the matter and ſubſtance of it.

If a Leaſe be made, on condition that if a ſtranger diſlike it, or be diſcontented with it, that the Leaſe ſhall be void; this is a good condition. 1 H. 8. 13.

If a Leaſe be made, on condition that if the Leſſee be outlawed, the Leaſe ſhall be void; it ſeems this is a good condition. Hil. 6 Jac. B. R. Curia.

Prerogative.

If a Feoffment be made, on condition that if the Feoffee commit treaſon; that the Feoffor ſhall reenter; in this caſe the condition is vain; for if the Feoffor enter, his entry is not lawfull, for the King is intitled, and his title ſhall be preferred. Trin 3 E. 6, per Curiam.

Teſtament. Uſe.

No condition or limitation, be it by act executed, limitation of a uſe, or by deviſe, or laſt Will, that doth contain in it matter repugnant, and tending to the utter ſubverſion of the eſtate, or matter that is againſt Law, or matter that is impoſſible to be done is good. And therefore in all ſuch caſes if the condition be ſubſequent, the eſtate is abſolute, and the condition void: And if the condition be to goe before the eſtate, the eſtate and the condition both are void. Co. 1. 83, 6. 43. Co. 9. 128.

Repugnant conditions. To reſtrain Alienation.

If a Feoffment or other conveyance be made of Land, or a grant of Rent, &c. in Fee-ſimple by deed or will, upon condition that the Feoffee or Grantee ſhall not alien to certain perſons, as to I. S. or to I. S. and W. S. this is a good condition, So if one make a Feoffment in Fee of Land, on condition that the Feoffee ſhall not alien it in Mortmain; this is a good condition. So if A be ſeiſed in Fee of black acre, and B doth infeoffe A of white acre in Fee, on condition that he ſhall not alien black acre; this is a good condition. But if the condition be that the Feoffee or Grantee ſhall not alien the thing granted to any perſon whatſoever, or that if he doe alien to any perſon, that he ſhall pay a fine to the Feoffor; theſe conditions are void in the caſe of a common perſon as repugnant to the eſtate. But in caſe of the King, ſuch conditions are good. And in the caſes of a common perſon alſo the alienation is good until it be avoided by the Feoffor. And in Paſc. 19 Jac. B. R. it was held by Juſt. Dodridge and Chamberlain, that if a Feoffment be on condition that if the Feoffee alien, he ſhall pay 10 l. to the Feoffor; that this is a good condition: but Ch. Juſt. and Juſt. Haughton held the contrary, for then this ſhall be a circumvention of the Law. If a gift had been made to an Abbot, and his ſucceſſors, on condition not to alien, this had been a good condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 223. Bragge and Tanners caſe. Doct. & St. 124.

Infant

If one make a Feoffment of Land to an infant, on condition he ſhall not alien to any perſon; this is a good condition during the minority of the infant, but not afterwards. In like manner as if one make a Feoffment to a husband and wife, on condition they ſhall not alien; this condition to ſome intent is good, i. to reſtrain alienation by Feoffment or deed, and to ſome intent repugnant and void, i. to reſtrain alienation by fine, for that is lawfull.

So

So if a gift be made in taile, on condition that the Tenant in tail may alien for the profit of his iſſues; this is a good condition. And ſo if Land be given in tail, upon condition that the Tenant in Tail or his Heirs ſhall not alien in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, nor for the Term of any others life, but for their own lives; this condition is good Co. ſuper Litt. 224. 10 H. 7. 11. 13 H. 7. 23. Co. 10. 30. Perk ſect. 739. 21 H. 6. 33.

But if Lands be given in tail on condition, that the Tenant in tail, or his Heirs in tail ſhall not ſuffer a common Recovery, levy a fine with Proclamations according to the Statutes of 4 H. 7. and 32 H. 8. to bar the iſſues, or on condition that he ſhall not make Copyhold eſtates of Copyhold Land, according to the cuſtome of the place, or make Leaſes according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. ca. 28. theſe conditions are held to be repugnant, and for that cauſe void. And yet ſee, for the laſt of theſe caſes the opinion in Co. ſuper Litt. 223. to be contrary, and that a condition to reſtrain the making of ſuch leaſes is good; for this power is not incident to the eſtate, but given to him collaterally by the Statute, and Quilibet poteſt renunciare juri pro ſe introducto. But tota curia in Mary Portingtons caſe is againſt him. If a man make a gift in tail to A the remainder to him and his Heirs, on condition that he ſhall not alien; this condition as to the eſtate tail is good, and void as to the other. And therefore if an alienation be, he ſhall defeat it only as to the eſtate tail. And if a man make a gift in Tail on condition that the Donee or his Heirs ſhall not alien; this is a good condition to ſome intents, and void to other; and therefore if he make a Feoffment in Fee, or any other eſtate by which the reverſion is diſcontinued tortiouſly, the Donor ſhall enter; otherwiſe if he ſuffer a common recovery. And a gift in tail, on condition that the Tenant in tail ſhall not make a Leaſe for his own life, is not a good condition, by Co. 6. 43. againſt Co. ſuper Litt. 223. If one ſeiſed in Fee of Land, and make a Leaſe of it for years or life, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not alien the Land leaſed, or any part thereof during the Term, or on condition that he ſhall not alien it, or any part of it, during the Term without licence of the Leſſor; theſe are good conditions. So if one be ſeiſed in Fee of a Manor, and he make a Leaſe of years of it to I. S. on condition that he ſhall not make voluntary eſtates by copy; this is a good condition. But in a Feoffment in Fee ſuch a condition is repugnant and void. And if one be poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years, or of a houſe, or of any other chattel reall or perſonall, and he give or ſell all his intereſt therein, upon condition that the Donee or Vendee ſhall not alien the ſame; this condition is void for repugnancy, and the gift or ſale is abſolute. Dier. 48. Co. 6. 43. Co. ſuper Litt. Idem Dier. 227. Co. 6. 43. Co. 6. 43. 4. 84. ſuper Litt. 223.

If one make a Feoffment of Land in Fee, on condition that the Feoffor ſhall retain the Land for twenty years without interruption; it ſeems this is a good condition and not repugnant. Co. 2. 72. Dier 318.

If I grant Land to another for life, if it ſhall pleaſe me ſo long to ſuffer him; it ſeems this condition is repugnant and void. Dier. 94.

If a Feoffment be made of Land in Fee, on condition that the Feoffee ſhall not enjoy the Land, or ſhall not take the profits of the Land, or on condition that the Heir of the Feoffee ſhall not inherit the Land, or condition that the Feoffee ſhall not doe waſt, or condition that his wife ſhall not be endowed; in all theſe and the like caſes the condition is void as repugnant to the eſtate. Co. 10. 39. ſuper Litt. 206. Plow. 77. 133. 21 H. 7. 8. 8 H. 7. 10. Perk Sect. 731.

If a gift in tail be made, on condition that the Donee or his iſſues ſhall not take the profits of the Land, or on condition that if the Donee die, his eſtate ſhall go unto another, or on condition that their Wives ſhall not be endowed, or on condition that they ſhall not do waſt, or on condition that warranty and aſſets or a collaterall warranty ſhall not bar the iſſues in tail; all theſe conditions are repugnant and void. Co. 6. 41. 184. ſuper Litt. 224.

If Lands be given or granted to two and their Heirs, on condition that the ſurvivor ſhall have the whole notwithſtanding partition, or on condition that the ſurvivor ſhall not have the whole albeit there be no ſeverance; theſe conditions are repugnant and void. Co. 1. 84.

If one make a Leaſe for life, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not doe fealty; this condition is not good. Perk. fol. 141:

If Lands be given to one and the Heirs males of his body, provided that if he die without Heirs, Females of his body, that the Donor ſhall reenter; this condition is repugnant and void, Co. Super Litt. 264.

If one have Land in poſſeſſion, or reverſion, and he grant a Rent out of it; on condition that the grant ſhall not charge the perſon of the Grantor; this is a good condition, and not repugnant. But if a man grant a bare Annuity, or grant a Rent charge, out of another mans Land with ſuch a condition, or if one grant a Rent charge, on condition that the Grantee ſhall not diſtrain nor charge the perſon of the Grantor, or if one grant a Rent out of Land, on condition that the Land ſhall not be charged with it; all theſe conditions are repugnant and void. So if two grant a Rent charge out of Land, provided that it ſhall not extend to one of them; this condition is repugnant and void. Co. ſuper Litt. 146. 10 H. 7. 8. Co. 6. 41. 5. H. 7. 7. 7 H. 6. 44. Perk. ſect. 732.

If a man ſeiſed in Fee of Land make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and after the Leſſee makes a Leaſe to the Leſſor of other Land, on condition that he ſhall not diſtrain for his Rent in the former Leaſe made to this Leſſee; this is a good condition, and not repugnant. Perk. ſect. 733.

If one make a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for life, with warranty, on condition that the Feoffee or Leſſee ſhall not vouch to warrant, nor recover in value, or if the leaſe be made without impeachment of waſt, on condition that if the Leſſee doe waſt the Leſſor ſhall reenter; theſe are good conditions and not repugnant. Perk. ſect. 734. Dier 47.

Conditions againſt Law.

All Conditions annexed to eſtates being compulſory, to compell a man to doe any thing that is in its nature good, or indifferent, or being reſtrictive, to reſtrain or forbid the doing of aay thing which in its nature is malum in ſe, as to kill a man, or the like, or malum prohibitum, being a thing forbidden by any Statute, or the like; all ſuch conditions are good, and may ſtand with the eſtates. But if the matter of the condition tend to provoke or further the doing of ſome unlawfull act, or to reſtrain or forbid a man the doing of his duty; the condition for the moſt part is void.

And therefore if Lands be given or granted to a man, upon condition, that he ſhall kill a man, or upon condition that he ſhall burn his neighbours houſe, or upon condition that he ſhall forſwear himſelf, or upon condition that he ſhall ſave and keep harmleſs the Grantor whatſoever he ſhall doe, or that if he doe not theſe things, the grant ſhall be void; this condition is void. Or if Lands be given or granted to an Officer, upon condition that he ſhall not duly execute his Office; this condition is againſt Law, and void: Et ſic de ſimilibus. So if a gift be made in tail, upon condition that the Donee ſhall diſcontinue, or one give or grant Land on condition that the Grantee ſhall be a foreſtaller againſt the Statutes; theſe and ſuch like conditions are void. And hereupon it is, that conditions annexed to Land, that the profits thereof ſhall be employed to ſuperſtitious uſes are void. And hence alſo it is that ſuch conditions as are againſt the Liberty of Law, as that a man ſhall not marry or the like, are void. And hence alſo ſuch as are againſt the publique good. And therefore it ſeems if one grant his Land to I. S. on condition that he (being a husbandman) ſhall not ſow his errable Land this condition is void. And in all theſe caſes if the condition be ſubſequent to the eſtate, the condition only is void, and the eſtate good and abſolute; if the condition be precedent, the condition and eſtate both are void, for an eſtate can neither commence nor encreaſe upon an unlawfull condition: ſee Brownl. 2 part 138. 139. *Co. Conditions impoſſible.

All conditions annexed to eſtates that contain in them matter at the time of making of them impoſſible to be done are void. Co. 6. 41. ſuper Litt. 207. 219. 206. Dier. 252. 262. Plow. 152. Perk. ſect. 935. 729. Plow. 272. 276. Co. 1. 84. ſuper Litt. 207.

And

And therefore if one give or grant land on condition, that a man ſhall go to Rome in three days, or condition that a man ſhal infeoffe a corporation, when there is none ſuch, or if one give lands in taile, on condition that the eſtate ſhall ceaſe, as if the tenant in tail bee dead, or if one grant lands, on condition that a man ſhall infeoffe his wife; all theſe and ſuch like conditions are void. And in theſe caſes alſo, if the condition be ſubſequent, the condition is void onely, and the eſtate is abſolute, and if the condition bee precedent, the condition and the eſtate both are void, for an eſtate can neither commence nor increaſe upon an impoſſible condition. And if the thing to be done by the condition be poſſible at the time of the making of the condition, and doe afterwards by the act of God become impoſſible; the condition is become void, and the eſtate abſolute; as if a feoffment be made, on condition that the feoffee ſhall before Eaſter following enfeoffe the feoffor, and the feoffee die before the day, or on condition that the feoffee ſhall appear in ſuch a Court before or at Eaſter, and he die before the time; in theſe caſes the condition is gone, and the eſtate is abſolute.

And the ſame Law is for the moſt part of Limitations, if they bee repugnant, impoſſible, or againſt Law, as is before ſhewed to be of Conditions. See more in the next diviſion following. Co. 6. 41: 1: 84.

It is a generall rule, That ſuch conditions annexed to eſtates as goe in defeaſance, and tend to the deſtruction of the eſtate being odious to the Law, are taken ſtrictly, and ſhall not bee extended beyond their words, unleſſe it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes. And therefore if a leaſe be made, on condition that if ſuch a thing bee not done, the leſſor [without any words of heirs, executors &c.] ſhall reenter and avoid it; in this caſe regularly the heir, executor &c. ſhall not take advantage of this condition. So if one make a leaſe for years of a houſe, on condition that if the leſſor ſhall be minded to dwell in the houſe, and ſhall give notice to the leſſee, that hee ſhall depart; in this caſe if the leſſor die, his heire, executor, &c. ſhall not have the like advantage and power as the leſſor himſelf, for the condition ſhall not be extended to them. And hence it is, that if a leaſe for years be made, on condition that the leſſee ſhall not alien without the licence of the leſſor; in this caſe the reſtraint ſhall continue only during the lives of the leſſor and the leſſee, and no longer. And yet this rule hath an exception, for if a man mortgage his land to W. upon condition that if the mortgagor and I. S. pay 20*s.* ſuch a day to the mortgagee, that then he ſhal reenter, and the mortgagor die before the day; in this caſe I. S. may pay the money and perform the condition. But otherwiſe it is whiles the mortgagor doth live, for in that time I. S. alone without him may not tender it, and if he do, this tender is no performance of the condition. And in caſe where a condition doth tend to create an eſtate, there it ſhall have the moſt favourable expoſition that may be, and therefore in that caſe albeit the words be not ſatisfied, yet if the intent be ſatisfied, it ſufficeth: And therefore if one make a feoffment in fee, on condition that the feoffee ſhall make an eſtate back again in tail to the feoffor and his wife before ſuch a day, and before that day the feoffor die; in this caſe the condition ſhall be performed as neer to the intent as may be; & therefore if the condition be, that he ſhall make the eſtate to them two Habendum to them and the heirs of their two bodies engendred, the remainder to the right heirs of the feoffor, the eſtate ſhall be made to the wife for life without impeachment of waſt, the remainder to the heirs of the body of the husband begotten on the wife. And if A. enfeoffe B. on condition that B. ſhall make an eſtate in frankmariage to C. with ſuch a one the daughter of the feoffor; in this caſe albeit an eſtate in frankmariage may not be made, yet an eſtate ſhall be made to them for their lives. *Et ſic de ſimilibus. 8. How a condition in deed or a limitation ſhall be taken and expounded. And how it muſt & ought to be performed.

1. In reſpect of perſons.

Not to alien.

To pay mony.

To make an eſtate.

2. In reſpect of time.

And in caſes where it is to be done before a time certain, it muſt be done before that time, or elſe the condition is broken. Co. ſuper Litt. 209. 208. 219. Co. 2. 79. 6. 31. Litt. 353: Plow. 30. Perk. Sect. 155. 779. 794. 787. 793, 789. 788. 38. Ed. 3. 11. Dier 311.

But in all caſes where no time is ſet for the doing of the thing contained in the condition, be it to pay money, make an eſtate, or the like, if the act to be done, bee to be done to the party that doth make the eſtate, or be to be done to him and a ſtranger, and be ſuch a thing as is for the benefit of him that doth make the eſtate, and for his benefit only, there regularly the party that is to doe the thing ſhall have time to doe it during his life, unleſſe the party, feoffor, &c, that doth make the firſt eſtate, whereunto the condition is annexed, doth haſten the doing thereof by requeſt: for if he requeſt the doing thereof and ſet no time, it muſt be done within a convenient time after that requeſt; and if he requeſt and prefix a time convenient when he doth deſire to have it done, it muſt be done at that time; and in theſe caſes the condition cannot be broken without a requeſt, ſo long as he to whom the eſtate upon condition is made be living. And therefore in this caſe it is not like to a condition made by a Wil, for if one deviſe his land to I S, ſo as he pay the twenty pound to I D, the Teſtator doth owe him, and no time is ſet for the payment thereof; in this caſe he muſt pay it as ſoon as it is demanded, or he doth forfeit the land, and the heir may enter. But if the thing to be done, be to be done to a ſtranger, and be for the profit and benefit of a ſtranger only: as if a feoffment be made, on condition that the feoffee ſhall mary the daughter of the feoffor, or on condition that the feoffee ſhall infeoffe a ſtranger, and no time is ſet for the doing hereof, in theſe caſes the feoffee ſhall not have time during his life to doe it, but he muſt do it in a reaſonable time, and that without any requeſt at all, or elſe he doth break the condition. And in ſome ſpeciall caſes when the act to be done is to be done to the party himſelf, the party ſhall not have time to doe it during his life, as if one grant land to I S, on condition that he ſhall grant an Advowſon to the grantor for his life, or on condition that he ſhall grant a rent charge to the grantor during his life, to be paid at Michaelmas and our Lady day; in theſe caſes the grant of the Advowſon muſt be before the Advowſon fall, and the grant of the rent muſt be before either of the daies of payment come, and that without requeſt, elſe the condition is broken. And if the condition be that if I S, do ſuch an act, that then the feoffee ſhall pay ten pound to the feoffor, elſe that the feoffor ſhall reenter, and no time is ſet when the feoffee muſt pay this ten pound; in this caſe it ſeems the payment muſt be as ſoon as the ſame act is done, and that without any requeſt at all. And in caſe where the feoffee &c. or a ſtranger be to doe an act, and he alone is to doe it, and it doth nothing concern the feoffor &c. as to goe to Rome, or the like, there the feoffee &c. or ſtranger ſhall have time during his life to doe the thing, and it cannot be haſtned by requeſt. Perk. Sect. 9. 798. Co. ſuper Litt. 209.

If lands be granted, on condition that the grantee ſhall make a leaſe for life of other lands to the grantor, the remainder to a ſtranger; in this caſe the feoffee ſhall have all the time of his life to doe it, if hee be not haſtned by requeſt. But if the condition be to make a gift in taile to a ſtranger, the remainder to the feoffor; in this caſe it muſt be done in time convenient without requeſt. Co. ſuper. Lit. 220. 222.

If the King licence his tenant to infeoffe A. and B, ſo as they give the land again to the feoffor, and the heirs males of his body, and he make a feoffment accordingly; in this caſe it muſt bee reconveyed before the death of the feoffor, or elſe the condition is broken.

If A. infeoffe B. of black acre, on condition that if C. infeoffe B. of white acre A. ſhall reenter; in this caſe C. ſhall have time to do this during his life, if B. doe not haſten it by requeſt. Co. ſuper Lit. 208.

If a leſſee grant his eſtate to a ſtranger, on condition that the grantee doe get the good will of the leſſor, and no time is ſet when he ſhall get his good will; it ſeems in this caſe he ſhall have time to get his good will during the terme, and that although he deny it at the firſt, yet if he grant it afterwards, that this is ſufficient. Perk. Sect. 795.

When

When a time is ſet in certain for the payment of mony, or the doing of any other thing generally; neither agent nor patient are bound to attend any other time. And if the thing be to be done on a day certaine, but no houre of the day is ſet down wherein the ſame ſhall be done; in this caſe they muſt attend ſuch a diſtance of time before the Sun ſet, as may be convenient to doe that work in. And if the condition be to pay money at a place certain, at any time during life; in this caſe the money may not be tendred at any time in the place, in the abſence of him that ſhould receive it, but he that is to pay it muſt give notice to the other party before-hand what time he will tender it, that the other may be ready to receive it. Or if at any time the parties hap to meet at the place, a payment or tender then at that place is ſufficient. And the ſame law is for the moſt part in conditions of obligations. *Lit. Obligation.

3. In reſpect of place.

In caſes where a place is ſet down for the doing of the thing contained in the condition, there it muſt always be done at that place, unleſſe by ſome agreement made between the parties, afterwards another place be appointed, otherwiſe the condition is not performed, and the parties are not bound to attend in any other place. But in caſes where there is no place ſet down for the doing of the thing contained in the condition, if the thing to be done be a corporall ſervice, as to pay money, or any ſuch like thing, the party that is to do it muſt at his perill ſeek out the perſon to whom it is to be done, if he be intra regnum Angliæ: but if he be not within the kingdome, he is not bound to ſeek him, and yet the condition is not broken. And if the thing to be done be either locall, i ſuch a thing as muſt be done in or at a place certain, as the making of a feoffment of land, payment of rent, or the like; in this caſe the thing muſt be done at that very place, and a tender of doing it in that place is a ſufficient performance of the condition; as for example, if a feoffment be made on condition that the feoffee ſhall pay to the feoffor twenty pound on Eaſter day at Dale; and the feoffee tender the twenty pound the ſame day at Sale: And albeit the feoffor be at Sale, and he tender the twenty pound to his perſon there the ſame day, yet this is no performance of the condition. And if a feoffment be made in mortgage, on condition for the payment of money at a day, and no place is ſet for the payment thereof, in this caſe the mortgagor muſt ſeek the mortgagee and tender it to his perſon at his perill: and tender of the money upon the land mortgaged, is not a ſufficient performance of the condition. And if a feoffment be made, on condition that the feoffee ſhall infeoffe the feoffor of white acre in Dale; in this caſe the feoffment, or the tender of it muſt be in Dale, and cannot be elſewhere, and a tender of it there is ſufficient to perform the condition. So if the condition be, that the feoffee ſhall in Eaſter Terme next acknowledge ſatisfaction upon a Judgement in the Kings Bench; this muſt be done there, and cannot be done elſewhere. So if a feoffment in fee bee made of white acre, rendring rent to the feoffor and his heirs, on condition that if the rent be not paid, the feoffment to be void, and no place is ſet for the payment of it; in this caſe the feoffee is not bound to tender his rent any where for the ſaving of the condition, but upon the land, and a tender there is ſufficient. And if a man make a feoffment in fee, without any reſervation of rent precedent in the deed, on condition that the feoffee and his heirs ſhall render a yearly rent of twenty ſhillings a year to the feoffor and his heirs, and if they fail, that the feoffor ſhall reenter; in this caſe alſo it ſeems the payment or tender muſt be upon the land. But if the condition be, that he ſhall render twenty ſhillings a year to a ſtranger, and his heirs; this is no rent, nor in the nature of a rent, and therefore in this caſe the feoffee muſt tender it to the perſon of the ſtranger where he can find him at the day, or elſe hee doth break the condition, and tender upon the ground is not ſufficient. But in theſe caſes if the nature of the thing to be done be ſuch as will not admit of ſuch a cariage from place to place to ſeek out the perſon of the feoffor &c. there albeit the thing to be done be corporall or tranſient, and not a locall thing, yet he that is to doe it ſhall not be bound to ſeek out the perſon of the other; as for example. If an eſtate be made, on condition that the grantee ſhall deliver twenty quarters of wheat, or twenty load of wood to the grantor at ſuch a time, and no place is ſet for the doing thereof; in this caſe the grantee is not

It is beſt therefore in all theſe caſes, and herein he that is to be the agent is to take care to have certainty of time and place ſet down in the condition for the doing of the thing that is to be done, and the more certain it is, the better it is for him.

4 In reſpect of other matters To pay mony.

If a Leaſe be made, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall pay to the Leſſor all ſuchſums of money as the Leſſor ſhall lay out in ſuch a buſineſs; in this caſe the Leſſor muſt firſt tender to the Leſſee a note of the charges before the Leſſee is bound to pay, and untill this be done the condition cannot be broken. And after a note is given alſo, he ſhall have ſome reaſonable time to provide the money. And if he tender him a note of more then in truth he doth lay out, the Leſſee if he know it, may pay ſo much as is laid out, and he may refuſe to pay any more. Per Juſt. Bridgeman.

To deliver houſhold ſtuffe, or pay money.

If a Feoffment be made, on condition that the Feoffee ſhall give ſo much houſhold ſtuffe to the Feoffor, or ſo much mony for it as it ſhall be rated at by two indifferent perſons to this end to be choſen; it ſeems in this caſe the election of the two men muſt be by the Feoffee: but if the words be by two perſons to be indifferently choſen, then the election ſhall be by both parties, for in the firſt caſe the word Indifferent doth goe to the praiſing, not to the perſons, Paſche 17. *Jac. To cleanſe ditches. To dwell in the houſe.

If a Feoffment be made of a ground, on condition that the Feoffee ſhall rake the ditches, in this caſe if the Feoffee doe it once, it is a ſufficient performance of the condition. And yet if a man grant a houſe for life, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall dwell and be reſident in the houſe during the ſaid Terme; in this caſe it is not ſufficient that he dwell in it once during the Terme, but muſt doe ſo all the Terme, or elſe the condition is broken. 27 H. 8, 1. *Plow. Annuity

If an Annuity be granted of Ten marks per Annum to a man, on condition, or till he be promoted to a benefice by the Grantor, and it is not ſaid of what value the benefice ſhall be, in this caſe it ſhall be taken for a benefice of as great value, and of as good an eſtate as the Annuity is, otherwiſe the Grantee may refuſe it, and yet his Annuity ſhall continue. Perk. ſect. 804.

~~To give goods~~ togiod goods

If a Feoffment be made on condition that the Feoffee ſhall give all his goods ſi quæ fuerint, or give all his Pikes in his pond ſi quæ fuerint; in this caſe the words ſhall be taken in the preſent tenſe, for the goods and Pikes that are at the time of the grant. But if a Feoffment be on condition that the Feoffee ſhall give all his goods in London ſi quæ fuerint, that did belong to *I. If one grant Land rendring Rent at the Feaſts of S. Michael and our Lady or within a Moneth after, on condition that if it be behind after the Feaſts and daies limited by the ſpace of eight weeks that the Leaſe ſhall be void; in this caſe the eight weeks ſhall be accounted from the Moneth which is the twenty eight day after the Feaſt. Dier 142.

Copulative

If the condition be made in the Copulative and conſiſt of divers parts, every part muſt be obſerved, or the condition will not be performed. But when it is made made in the disjunctive, if any part of it be obſerved it is a ſufficient performance of the condition. And therefore if a feoffement be made, on condition to reinfeoffe and pay twenty pound, and the feoffee do reinfeoffe but not pay the twenty pound; in this caſe the condition is broken. But if the condition be to reinfeoffe or pay twenty pound and the feoffee doe one of them; it is a good performance of the condition. And when it is made in the copulative and disjunctive both it ſhall be taken in the disjunctive only, as if a leaſe be made to A. and B. his wife, on condition that the ſaid A. and B. or any child between them ſhall ſo long live; this ſhall be taken in this ſenſe, if the husband wife or child ſhall ſo long live, ſo that the leaſe ſhall not be determined by the death of the husband or wife alone. If there be two proviſoes in two ſeverall indentures of conveyance of ſeverall Manors to A. and B. that if the feoffor pay or tender twenty ſhillings to A. and B. or the heirs of A. that the Conveyance ſhall be void, and A. die; in this caſe tender to B. is not ſufficient, and it muſt be made to the heir of A. and it muſt be twenty ſhillings for every proviſo: but otherwiſe it is of a collaterall act. 12.*H.*7.10.

If the words of a condition be thus, that upon ſuch a contingent the party ſhall enter and retaine the land untill the thing be done &c. in this caſe and by theſe words the eſtate is not determined, as it is by theſe words, [that the eſtate ſhall be void, or that the grantor ſhall reenter, or the like.] And in theſe words there is a difference alſo to be obſerved: for if the words be, that upon ſuch a contingent the eſtate ſhall ceaſe and be void, and it be a leaſe for years to which the condition is annexed, the eſtate is ipſo facto void without entry or claime, and can never be affirmed afterwards; but if the words of the cloſe of the condition be, that the feoffor, leſſor, &c. ſhall reenter, without any other words, albeit it be in a leaſe for years, yet the leaſe is not void untill he hath made an actuall reentry. But in both caſes if the eſtate to be avoided be an eſtate in fee, or for life, it is only voidable by the breach of the condition, and muſt be made void by entry or claime, and untill this be done the grantor can make no new eſtate of the land. But in the firſt caſe before the party ſhall retaine the land and take the profits of it in the nature of a pledge untill the thing be done agreed upon in the condition, and then the other party ſhall have the land againe. See more in the next queſtions. And in *Obligation Numb.*7. *Covenant Numb,*6. *Co.*3.64.ſuper Lit. 203,204 *Dier.*6.127:11.*H.*7.21.

9. When and how a Condition or limitation ſhall be ſaid to be performed; Or not

The words of a condition may be performed and not the intent, and the intent may be performed and not the words; and then for the moſt part a condition is performed when the intent and meaning of it is obſerved. And therefore if a feoffment be made, on condition that the feoffee or his heirs ſhall make an eſtate to the feoffor and his wife in taile before ſuch a day, and before the day the husband die, and then he make an eſtate as neere it as he may, viz. to the wife for life without impeachment of waſt and after to the heirs of the body of the husband; this is a good performance of the condition. And if the condition be that the grantee ſhall make a feoffment of land; and he make a leaſe of the land firſt, and then a releaſe to the leſſee and his heirs; this is tantamount and a good performance of the condition. *Co.*8.90. Litt.Sect 352. *Co.*3.64.282.2*H.*4.11.

1. When the act is to be don between the parties themſelves. To make an eſtate.

If a feoffment be made, on condition that if the feoffor or his heirs pay ten pound by a day the feoffment to be void, and the feoffor before the day doth commit treaſon and is executed and ſo dieth without heire, and after before the day the heire is reſtored, and he at the day doth pay the money; in this caſe this is a good performance notwithſtanding there was once a diſability. So as if heretofore one had made a feoffment, on condition to reinfeoffe by a day; and before the day the feoffee had entred into Religion, and then had been dearraigned, and at the day had made the feoffment; this had been a good performance of the condition. *Co. ſuper Litt.*222. *Perk. ſect.*802,803.

Mortgage.

If lands be mortgaged, (or which is al one) if a feoffement be made of lands on condition that if the mortgagor or feoffor pay ten pound to the feoffee ſuch a day that then the eſtate ſhall be void, and before the day the mortgagor or feoffor die; in this caſe the heire or executor of the feoffor, the Ordinary, the Gardian in Chivalry or Socage of the heire of the feoffor, or any other by either of their commandement precedent, or aſſent ſubſequent may pay this money at the day, and payment or tender of it by either of them at the day is a good performance of the condition. And ſo alſo it ſeemes is the law upon a deviſe of land to I. S. paying to I. D. twenty pound; if I. S. die his heire or executor may pay twenty pound, and this is a good performance of the condition. But in theſe caſes if a ſtranger of his owne head without any ſuch commandement or agreement pay the ten pound; this will be no good performance of the condition. And yet perhaps if the party that is to pay it be an Ideot; the payment or tender by any one in his behalfe ſhall be a good performance of the condition.

Teſtament.

no time limited heir must pay y^e money &c

And if a feoffment be made, on condition that if the feoffor pay ten pound to the feoffee that the eſtate ſhall be void, and no time is ſet for the payment of this money, and the feoffor die before any payment or tender made; in this caſe his heire cannot tender it and ſo perform the condition. Lit. Sect. 534. 537. 15. H. 7. 2. Co. ſuper Litt. 206. Litt. Bro. Sect. 125. Litt. Sect. 337.

feoffee &c to pay or feoffor &c pays good.

If a feoffment be made, on condition that if the feoffor and I. S. pay ten pound ſuch a day, the feoffment to be void, and the feoffor die before the day and I. S. alone pay it; this is a good performance of the condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 207. Bro. Condition 109.

If a feoffment be made, on condition that if the feoffor pay to the feoffee or his heirs ten pound ſuch a day, and before the day the feoffee doth grant the land away to another; in this caſe the money may be paid to the feoffee himſelf, or if he be dead to his heirs, and this payment is a good performance of the condition. And if the words of the condition be [That if he pay to the feoffee, his heirs or aſſignes &c.] in this caſe payment to either of them is a good performance of the condition; ſo as if in this caſe the feoffee make a feoffment over, it is in the election of the firſt feoffor to pay the money to the firſt or ſecond feoffee, and if the firſt feoffee die, to pay it to his heire or ſecond feoffee: But payment to an executor or adminiſtrator in this caſe is not a good performance. And yet if the words of the condition be, that if he pay to the feoffee [without words, heires, executors &c.] ten pound ſuch a day, in this caſe the payment may be made to the executor or adminiſtrator of the feoffee after his death, and ſuch a payment is a ſufficient performance of the condition: And if the words of the condition be [that if the feoffor pay to the feoffee, his heirs, executors or adminiſtrators &c.] in this caſe payment to either of them is a good performance of the condition. But payment to an aſſignee in this caſe is not good. And if the words be, that if he pay to the feoffee and his heirs &c. in this caſe payment to his executors or to his aſſignes is not a good performance of the condition. So that in all theſe caſes it ſeemes for the perſon to whom payment is to be made the words of the condition are preciſely to be purſued. Co. ſuper Litt. 210. 5. 96. Dier. 181. 101. Co. 6. 69. *Litt. To tender money.

If a feoffment be made, on condition that if the feoffor ſhall tender twelve pence to the feoffee ſuch a day the feoffment to be void, and afterwards the feoffee is diſſeiſed of the land, and after the feoffor doth tender the twelve pence to the feoffee at the day; this is a good performance of the condition. Paſ. 9. Jac. 5. Sir Richard Lees caſe.

If

If a feoffment be made to two men, on condition that they ſhall reinfeoffe the feoffor, or make a leaſe to him by a day, and before the day one of them die, and the ſurvivor doth reinfeoffe, or make the leaſe; this is a good performance of the condition. And ſo alſo it ſeemes the law is if both the feoffees be living, for by his owne acceptance it ſeemes he hath diſpenſed with the condition and ſo cannot enter for the breach of it. Dier. 69. 41. E. 3. 25. To reinfeoffe.

If a feoffment be made on condition that the feoffee ſhall infeoffe the feoffor of the Manor of Dale by ſuch a time, and before the time appointed the feoffee doth grant a rent charge out of the Manor to a ſtranger, and then at the time appointed makes a feoffment of the Manor according to the condition; in this caſe this is a good performance of the condition. But if in this caſe the feoffee before the time appointed grant away to a ſtranger twenty acres parcell of the Manor, and then doth make a feoffment of the Manor according to the condition; this is no good performance of the condition. And if a feoffment be made on condition that the feoffees or leſſees in truſt of ſuch land ſhall grant an Annuity out of it, and ſome of them only doe grant this Annuity; this is no good performance of the condition. Plow. 23. 3 H 7. 4. 21 H. 6. 101

If there be a feoffment made, upon condition that the feoffee ſhall make a leaſe of land to the feoffor for life, the remainder to I. S. in fee, and the feoffee make a leaſe to the feoffor for life, and after by another deed doth grant the reverſion to I. S. this is a good performance of the condition. 44 E. 3. 22, To make a leaſe.

If a feoffment be made upon condition that the feoffee ſhall purchaſe lands or tenements to the value of twenty pound per Annum, and he purchaſe a rent common, or any ſuch like thing to that value; this is a good performance of the condition. But if in this caſe the feoffee and another purchaſe ſo much land together jointly this is no good performance of the condition. So if the feoffee alone purchaſe lands to the value of twenty pound per Annum, and there is a rent iſſuing of it which muſt be deducted; this is no good performance. And yet in theſe caſes, if the ſtranger Jointenant releaſe to the feoffee all his right in the land, or the grantee of the rent releaſe to him the rent before the time of the performing of the condition the condition is well performed in both caſes. Tantum valet terra quantum vendi poteſt. To purchaſe lands.

And if one make a feoffment in fee, on condition that if the feoffee purchaſe land to the value of twenty ſhillings, the feoffment ſhall be void, and after the feoffee diſſeiſe another man of land to that value: it is ſaid that by this the condition is performed, Sed quere. And that if he recover ſo much land in value in an action: that this is no performance of the condition. Sed quere. For this ſeemes to me a better performance of the condition then the former. Perk. ſect. 807, 808. 21 H. 6. 28. Dier. 15. Perk. ſect. 812.

If lands be granted, on condition to pay money, and the money is tendred according to the condition, but either no body is ready to receive it, or it is refuſed: this is a good performance of the condition. And after a man hath once refuſed the money ſo tendred to him according to the condition, he hath no remedy in law to recover it except it be money lent upon a mortgage. Dier. 181. Lit. Sect. 334, 335. 338. Co. ſuper Lit. 209. ~~Termes of the law tit. Coine.~~ To pay mony. Tender.

And if the payment be made part of it with counterfeit Coine, and the party accept it and put it up, this is a good payment and conſequently a good performance of the condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 212. Fitz. Barre. 343. Acceptance.

And if at the day of payment the parties doe account together, and he to whom the money is to be paid being indebted to the other, that debt by agreement is allowed, and the reſidue is paid and accepted: this is a good performance of the condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 212.

So if the party that is to receive it accept and take new ſecurity by bond or ſtatute for the money: this is a good performance of the condition. Dier. 45. Co. 5. 96.

And ſo in moſt caſes, when by a condition a thing is to be done one way; and to be done to the party to the condition himſelf and not to a ſtranger, and he doth accept it another way: this is a good performance of the condition. Volenti non fit injuria. But if the thing to be done be to be to a ſtranger, and one that is no party to the condition, and it be done in any other manner, and he accept thereof: this is no performance of the condition. And ſo alſo if the time of doing the thing be paſt, as if one make a feoffment to me, on condition that if he pay me ten pound ſuch a day the feoffment ſhall be void, and he doth not pay me at the day, but doth die, and after by agreement between his heire and me he doth pay me the ten pound, and I receive and accept it, and thereupon I ſuffer him to enter and hold the land: in this caſe the condition is not performed, but I may enter upon him and out him notwithſtanding. Perk. Sect. 392.

If the mortgagor pay the money according to the condition, and after the mortgagee deliver it to the mortgagor as his own money, the condition is performed, and the mortgage diſcharged notwithſtanding. Adjudge Mich 40. & 41. Eliz. B. R. Powel verſus Bartholomew.

If a feoffment be made to I. S. on condition that if the feoffor pay to the executors or adminiſtrators of I. S ten pound the feoffment ſhall be void; and I. S, die, and the ten pound is paid to the executors of I S. according to the condition, but it is covinouſly done, i. there is a private agreement that the feoffor ſhall have all, or part of his money againe: this payment in this caſe is no good performance of the condition, but that payment that muſt be a performance of a condition in this caſe to fetch lands out of the hands of an heir muſt be reall, full and effectuall. Brownl. part. 64.

To get the good will of I. S,

If a leaſe be made, on condition that the leſſee ſhall get the good will of I. S. and the leſſor doth come to I. S. firſt and aske his good will, and he denie it him, and after when the leſſee doth aske it he doth grant it him; in this caſe the condition is performed. So if the condition be, that he ſhall get his good will by ſuch a day, and at the firſt being deſired he denieth it, but afterwards and before the day he doth grant it. And yet if no day be ſet, and he deſire his good will and I. S. denieth it and afterwards he doth get his good will; it ſeemes this is no performance of the condition. 14 H. 8. 17

If there be two things in the copulative to be done by the condition, both muſt be done, otherwiſe the condition will not be performed. Perk. ſect. 746, ſee before.

2. When the act is to be done by a ſtranger, to pay money.

If a feoffment be made, on condition that if the feoffor and I. S. pay ten pound at Michaelmas the feoffment ſhall be void, and before the day the feoffor die, and I. S. pay the money; this is a good performance of the condition. But if the feoffor beliving, contra. Co. ſuper Lit. 219.

3. When the act is to be done to a ſtranger. To make an eſtate. Tender.

If a feoffment be made on condition to make an eſtate to a ſtranger by a day, and before the day he die; in this caſe if an eſtate be made as neere the condition as may be, it is ſufficient. Plow. 133. Co. 3 64.

If a feoffment be made to I. S. on condition that he ſhall infeoffe I. D. and his heirs; and I. S. doth tender the feoffment to I. D. and he doth refuſe to take it; this is no performance of the condition in this caſe. But if it be to be done to the feoffor himſelf, contra. And ſo alſo it is, if the condition be to make an eſtate taile, or any leſſer eſtate to a ſtranger, and he tender it and the ſtranger refuſe it; this is no good performance of the condition. And if a feoffment be made, on condition to reinfeoffe the feoffor and his wife in tail the remainder to W. in fee, and he tender it to the wife only and not to him in remainder; this is no good performance of the condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 209. 19 H. 6. 67. Perk. ſect. 815, 816. 2 E. 4. 2. 19. H. 6. 67.

10. What act ſhal be a breach of a Condition in deed And when a condition indeed ſhall be ſaid to be broken. Or not.

And the ſame law for the moſt part is in conditions of obligations. See more in Obligations at Numb. 9.

If a feoffment be made, on condition that the feoffee ſhall not infeoffe I. S of the land, and the feoffee doth make a feoffment to I. S and I. D. this is a breach of the condition. And ſo alſo it is if the feoffee make a feoffment to I. D. to the intent that he ſhall alien to I. S Quando aliquid prohibetur fieri, directô prohibetur & per obliquum.

And

And yet if the Feoffee in the caſe before alien to I. D. and after he doth alien to I. S. this is no breach of the condition. And if the condition be, that the Feoffee ſhall not infeoffe I, S. and he die, and his Heir enfeoffe I. S. this is no breach of the condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 222. Dier. 45. 46. Not to alien.

If a Leaſe for years be made, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not aſſigne, or alien, the Term, or the Land during his life without the licence of the Leſſor, the Leſſee doth give it by his will without licence; this is a breach of the condition and forfeiture of the eſtate. But if he make an executor of his will only, this is no breach. And if the condition be that the Leſſee ſhall not alien, and he die, and his executor alien, this is no breach of the condition. And if the condition be that the Leſſee ſhall not alien, but to his children, and the Leſſee by will deviſe it to his executors; it ſeems this is a breach of the condition. So if he deviſe that A. his ſon ſhall have his Term after his wife, & doth make A his ſon his executor; it ſeemes this is a breach of the condition. But if he doe not make A his executor, contra. And in caſes of deviſe albeit the executors doe not aſſent yet the condition is broken, as in caſe where a reverſion is granted on condition that the Grantee ſhall not alien it, and he doth alien it, but no atturnement is to this grant; yet it ſeems this is a breach of the condition. And if a Leaſe for years be made, on condition that the Leſſee or his aſſignes ſhall not alien, and the Leſſee doth make his wife his Executrix, and ſhe doth take another husband, and he doth alien it; it ſeems this is a breach of the condition and a forfeiture of the eſtate. But if a leaſe be made on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not alien without the licence of the Leſſor, and after the Leſſor die, and the Leſſee aſſigne, or the Leſſee die and his executors or adminiſtrators aſſigne; this is no breach of the condition in either of theſe caſes. So if a Leaſe be made, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not alien the terme during his life, and he makes an executor, but doth not deviſe it to him; this is no breach of the condition. And if a Leaſe be made, on condition that the Leſſee his executors or aſſignes ſhall not alien the Terme to any perſons without the licence of the Leſſor but to the wife or one of the children of the Leſſee, and the Leſſee die, and his Executors alien to one of the children of the Leſſee and he alien to a ſtranger without licence; this is no breach of the condition. And if one make a Leaſe of a houſe and Land, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not parcell out the Land or any part of it from the houſe, and the Leſſee doth grant all his Terme in the houſe and part of the Land, and doth keep the reſt, and after doth Leaſe that part alſo; this is a breach of the condition. If a Leaſe be made to I. S. for years on condition, that if he ſhall deviſe other then for a year, that the Leſſor may reenter, and after he deviſe it by will; this is a Forfeiture, Gouldsb. 184. Dier 45. 65. Per 3. *Juſtices B. If a Leaſe be made of a houſe, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not ſuffer any woman great with child to harbour or lodge in the houſe ſix daies after notice given by the Leſſor, and the Leſſee doe ſuffer any ſuch perſon after notice given, albeit the Leſſor conſent to it; yet the condition is broken. But if the Leſſor doe nolens volens keep ſuch a woman there againſt the mind of the Leſſee; this is no breach of the condition. Co. 892. Not to ſuffer a woman with child in the houſe.

If a Leaſe be made on condition that if any waſt be done the Leſſor ſhall re-enter; in this caſe if the houſe fall by a tempeſt, this is no breach of the condition, for this is not waſt: but if it be uncovered by tempeſt, and the Tenant hath a convenient time to repair it, and doth not, but doth ſuffer the timber to periſh for want of covering; this is a breach of the condition and the Leſſor may enter and put out the Leſſee. And if a Leaſe be made, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not doe waſt, and he ſuffer waſt to be made in decay of the houſes, &c. it ſeems the condition is broken. Sed quære. 12 H. 4. 5. Bro. Condition. 40. Per Dier and Walſh Juſtices. Dier. 281. Not to doe waſt.

If a Leaſe be made, on condition that if the Leſſee be minded to ſell his eſtate the Leſſor ſhall have the firſt offer thereof, giving as much as another will give; in this caſe if the Leſſee doth not give notice when he is minded to ſell it, he doth Not to ſell till the Leſſor refuſe it to any other, doth break the condition : but if when he is minded to ſell he doth tell the Leſſor of his purpoſe and what he is offered for it, and the Leſſor doth either ſay he will not have it, or that he will not give ſo much for it, or doth not accept it, but doth delay, &c. and then the Leſſee doth ſell it to another: this is no breach of the condition, neither is he bound to wait upon him in this caſe. Dier 13.

To make an eſtate.

If a Feoffment be made, on condition that the Feoffee ſhall make a Feoffment in Fee, gift in taile, leaſe for life, or years of the Land to the Feoffor, or to a ſtranger by a day; and before the day the Feoffee doth diſable himſelf to doe it, either by making ſome eſtate of the ſame thing to ſome other perſon in taile, for life, years in preſent or future, or for one year, or by taking a wife whereby ſhe may be entitled to dower, or by ſuffering a recovery of the Land, or by granting of any Rent, Common, or the like, or by entring into any Statute, &c. or by ſuffering any Judgement to be had againſt him, or by doing any other ſuch like act, whereby he cannot convey the Land according to the condition in the ſame plight, quality and freedom it was at the time of the conveyance made : in either of theſe caſes the condition is ipſo facto broken. And albeit the Land be afterward diſcharged and the party againe enabled before the day to performe the condition, yet this will not ſalve the breach. And ſo alſo it is of a limitation. But when the condition is to be performed of the part of the Feoffor or Grantor, there diſability before the time will not hurt ſo as he be againe enabled at the time. And ſo alſo it is when the condition is to be performed of the part of the Feoffee, and there is no certain day ſet for the performance of the thing, for in this caſe albeit he be once diſabled, yet if he be afterwards again enabled, and doe it within the time that the Law doth give him to do it; in this caſe the condition is not broken. And ſo alſo it is, if the Feoffee be diſſeiſed, and during the diſſeiſin, he doe any ſuch act as before, in this caſe before his entry this is no breach of the condition, for till then the charge doth not bind the Land. And ſo likewiſe it is when the diſability doth proceed from another cauſe, as where one doth make a Feoffment on condition that the Feoffee ſhall re-enfeoffe before ſuch a day, and before the day the Feoffor diſſeiſe the Feoffee and keep him out till the day be paſt, or one doth make a Feoffment, on condition the Feoffee ſhall marry B. before ſuch a day, and before the day the Feoffor himſelf doth marry her ſo that the Feoffee cannot perform the condition; in theſe caſes the condition is not broken. Co. ſuper Litt. 221. 222. Co. 2. 58. Perk ſect. 80. 803. Litt. ſect. 355. Co. ſuper Litt. 206.

To employ the profits to charitable uſes.

If one make an eſtate of Lands (held in Capite) on condition that he to whom it is made ſhall employ the profits thereof to divers charitable uſes, and he die his Heir within age, by reaſon whereof the King hath the Land during the minority of the Heir, ſo that the profits cannot be employed; this is no breach of the condition. Trin. 13 Iac. Slade verſus Tompſon. B. R.

To reinfeoffe.

If one make a Feoffment of Land, on condition to reinfeoffe in convenient time, and the Feoffee doth not ſo, but doth make a Leaſe to another; this is a double breach of the condition. And the ſame Law is of a Deviſe by will in this manner. Co. 1. in Porters caſe.

To make an eſtate.

If a Feoffment be made, upon condition that the Feoffee ſhall make ſome eſtate to the Feoffor, or ſome other by a day, and the Feoffee before the day ſay to him to whom the eſtate is to be made, that he will never make the eſtate, notwithſtanding he doth make the eſtate before the day according to the condition; in this caſe it is ſaid the condition is broken. Sed quere of this, for it ſeemes if he really deny it before, and actually performe it at the day, that this is a good performance of the condition.

To ſuffer one to take his goods.

As if a Leaſe be made of a houſe, on condition that the Leſſee ſhal not diſturbe the Leſſor in the taking away of his goods out of the houſe, and when the party doth come or ſend to fetch them the Leſſee doth only forbid them; this in this caſe is no breach of the condition, and it was agreed in this caſe that words without ſome deeds, as ſhutting the dore againſt them, forcible reſiſtance or laying of hands upon them, or the like are no breach of ſuch a condition.

And

And if a Leaſe be made, on condition that the Leſſor ſhall be four times a year in the houſe demiſed without being ouſted by the Leſſee, and the Leſſee ſeeing him comming doth ſhut the dores or windows againſt him; this hath been thought to be no breach of this condition. Brownl. 2 part. 277. Perk. ſect. 796. Co. 8. 90. ſee the parable. Mat. 21. 28. To ſuffer one to come into a houſe.

If a Leaſe be made, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall pay yearly to the Leſſor during the Terme ten pound; in this caſe if he faile of payment once, the condition is broken and eſtate forfeit. So if one make a Feoffment in Fee of Land, on condition to pay ten pound yearly to I. S. if he faile once, the condition is broken. Dier 33. 3 H. 4. 8. To pay a yearly Rent or ſum.

If a Leaſe be made of a Manor in which are divers Copyholders, on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not moleſt, vex, or put out any Copyholder paying his duties and ſervices, in this caſe if the Leſſee enter upon, and put out any one Copyholder, this is a breach of the condition. But if he enter vi & armis upon a Copyholders Tenements, and there beat him only, or the like: this is no breach of the condition. Penner verſus Glover 37. & 38 El. Mich. B. R. per curiam. Not to moleſt Copyholders.

If there be a condition to pay Rent, and the Leſſee let part of the Land to other undertenants, or let all the Land to another for part of the time, and he undertake the Rent ſtill, and faile of payment: in this caſe the condition is broken and eſtate forfeit. But if there be any covin and practiſe in the caſe between the firſt Leſſor and the Leſſee, the undertenants may perhaps have relief in equity. Cromp. Jur. 65. To pay Rent. Equity.

If one make a Leaſe for years of Land, and then alſo make a Feoffment in Fee of the Lands on condition that if the Leſſee be diſturbed in his Terme that he ſhall have the Fee-ſimple, and he is diſturbed by the Feoffor or by his means; in this caſe the condition is broken and the Leſſee ſhall have the Fee-ſimple. But if the diſturbance be by a ſtranger and not by the Feoffor or by his means or conſent; this is no breach of the condition. Co. 8. 90. Not to diſturb

If a Leaſe be made on condition that the Leſſee ſhall not be outlawed, and he is outlawed without proclamation; it ſeems this is no breach of the condition, becauſe the outlawry is not good. Per 2 Juſtices H. 7 Jac. B. R. Not to be outlawed.

If a condition poſſible at the time of creation become after impoſſible in part by the act of God, and the party doe not performe that which is poſſible, the condition is broken. Litt. ſect. 352. Co. 2. 59.

If a man make a Leaſe for years on condition, and the Leſſee doth not know of it, and after the Leſſor doth by will give the Land to the Leſſee without condition, and the Leſſee doth ſuch an act as is a breach of the condition; in this caſe the condition is not broken, for the Leſſee muſt have notice of the condition ere he can break him. Co. 8. 92.

If a Leaſe be made rendring Rent, on condition, that if the Rent be not paid within twenty daies the Leſſor ſhall re-enter, and the Rent is not paid; in this caſe the condition is broken, but the Leſſor cannot enter untill he hath made a legall demand, and if he die before he doe it, his Heir ſhall never take advantage of that breach, but it is diſcharged for ever. Doct. and Stu. 35. 13 H. 4. 17. To pay Rent.

When an act is to be done in time convenient, or otherwiſe, and the party doe it not by the time appointed by Law; the condition is broken. Litt. ſect. 353. Plow. 30.

If one grant an Annuity pro conſilio impenſo & impendendo, and the grantor require adviſe, and the Grantee refuſe or neglect to give it: this is a breach of the condition and a forfeiture of the eſtate. And if the deed be, that he ſhall goe to ſuch a place, to give counſell and he require him to goe thither, and he refuſe it, this is a forfeiture of the eſtate. But if he refuſe to goe with him to another place, or give counſell to his adverſary being not required to give counſell to him, this is no breach of the condition nor forfeiture of his Annuity. And if one had heretofore deviſed his Land to be ſold by his executors, and to have been diſtributed for his ſoule, and the executors had not ſold it in time convenient, or had taken the profits to their own uſe: this had been a breach of the condition. To give adviſe

11. When a condition in Law ſhall be ſaid to be broken. Or not. Forfeiture.

Every particular eſtate hath a condition in Law Annexed to it, and therefore if Tenant for life in Dower, by the courteſie, or after poſſibility of iſſue extinct, Leſſee for years, Tenant by ſtatute merchant, elegit or the like make any abſolute or conditional eſtate of the Lands they hold in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life, and give livery of ſeiſin thereupon or levy a fine Sur conuſance de droit or ſuffer a recovery of the Land, or the like; this is a breach of the condition in Law and a forfeiture of their eſtate. Alſo if any ſuch Tenant (except tenant in taile after poſſibility of iſſue extinct) doe waſt in the Lands they doe ſo hold; this is a breach of the condition in Law, and a forfeiture of their eſtate in ſo much as the waſt is committed. But if an Infant or feme covert that hath ſuch an eſtate ſhall make any ſuch eſtate, &c. this is no breach of the condition in Law. And yet if ſuch a perſon doe waſt, this is a breach of the condition in Law. And ſo alſo if any ſuch perſon be an Officer and doe any thing which is a cauſe of forfeiture in another; this will be a forfeiture in him or her alſo. Co. 2. 15. 8. 44. ſuper Litt. 233.

If any keeper of a Park without warrant kill any Deer, fell or cut any wood and convert it to his own uſe, pull down the lodge or any houſe with the Park uſed for hay for the Deer, or the like; this is a breach of the condition in Law. So alſo if a keeper ſhall not look to the Game, but the Deer be killed by his default, and damage come to the Lord; by this alſo the condition is broken. But the not attending upon ſuch an Office for two or three dayes if the Lord have no ſpeciall loſs thereby, is no cauſe of forfeiture. Co. ſuper Litt. 223.

Offices that are for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, or of clarkſhip in any Court of Record, or concerning the Kings Treaſure, Revenue, Account, Alnage, Auditorſhip, &c. have alſo conditions in Law annexed to them, and therefore if ſuch Officers ſhall ſell their Offices or miſdemeane themſelves in their Offices, by this the condition in Law may be broken, and they may forfeit them. Co. ſuper Litt. 234.

12. Who may enter for a condition broken. And what perſons ſhall take advantage of a condition or a limitation. And what not.

As no man may create or annex a condition to an eſtate, but he that doth create the eſtate it ſelf, ſo neither can a man give or reſerve the power, title or benefit of re-entry and avoidance of an eſtate upon the breach of a condition to any other but to him or them, or at leaſt to one of them that doth make the eſtate, his or their Heirs, Executors or Adminiſtrators, &c. for it is a Rule of the common Law, That none may take advantage of a condition but parties and privies in Right and repreſentation, as Heirs, Executors, &c. of naturall perſons, and the ſucceſſors of politique perſons: and that neither Privies nor Aſſignees in Law, as Lords by Eſcheate, nor in deed, as Grantees of Reverſions, nor Privies in eſtate, as he to whom a remainder is limited, ſhall take benefit of entry or re-entry by force of a condition. Litt. Sect. 347. Plow. 175. Co. 3. 62. 347. 5. 56. Dier. 131. Co. ſuper. Litt. 214. 215. Doct. & Stud. 93. Perk. ſect. 830. 831. 833. 835. Plow. 488. 489.

And therefore if a man had made a Leaſe for life reſerving Rent, on condition that if the Rent be behind, the Leſſor, his Heirs and aſſignes ſhall re-enter, and after had granted the Reverſion to a ſtranger; this Grantee ſhould not by the common Law have had benefit by his condition. But if the Leſſor had died, his Heir or the Gardian in Chivalry or Socage of ſuch an Heir if he had been an Infant and in ward might have taken advantage by the condition. And if one had been poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years, and had granted his Terme upon condition and had died; his Executors or Adminiſtrators might have had advantage of this condition. Brownl. 1 part. 149. 2 part 56. 224. &c.

And at this day the Law is ſtill the ſame as touching Privies in blood, for an Heir ſhall take advantage of a condition, though no eſtate deſcend to him from the Anceſtor. And therefore if one be ſeiſed of Land of the part of his mother, and he make a Feoffment in Fee of it, on condition, and die, and the condition is broken; in this caſe the Heir of the part of the Father ſhall enter, but as ſoon as he hath entred, the Heir of the part of the mother ſhall enter upon him and enjoy the Land.

And

And if a man be ſeiſed of Land in the right of his wife, and he make a Feoffement in Fee of it, upon condition, and die; the Heire of the husband ſhall enter for the condition broken, but the wife ſhall have the Land. And ſo alſo is the Law as touching Privies in right and repreſentation, for Executors and Adminiſtrators ſhall take advantage of a condition now as heretofore. And ſo alſo ſhall the Succeſſors of a Deane and Chapter, Biſhop, Arch-deacon, Parſon, Prebend, or any body Politique or Corporate, Eccleſiaſticall or Temporall; theſe ſhall take advantage of conditions as heretofore they did. So alſo the Law is the ſame as touching Privies in Law, for they ſhall no more take advantage of a condition now then heretofore. But as touching Grantees of reverſions and Privies in eſtate, there is ſome alteration made of the Law, for by a new Law it is provided, That all perſons which ſhall have any Grant of the King of any reverſion of any lands &c. which pertained to Monaſteries &c. as alſo all other perſons being Grantees or aſſignees &c. to or by any other perſon or perſons, and their Heirs, Executors, Succeſſors and aſſignes, ſhall have like advantage againſt the Feoffees &c, by entry for not payment of Rent, or for doing Waſt, or for other Forfeiture &c. as the ſaid Leſſors or Grantors themſelves ought or might have had. Stat. 32. H. 8. Cap. 34.

And for the true underſtanding of the ſenſe of this Statute and the ancient Common Law further touching this point, 1. Theſe Diverſities muſt be obſerved to be taken before the Statute which take place ſtill. Co. ſuper Lit. 214. Plow. 27.

1. Between a condition that doth require a Reentry, and a limitation that doth ipſo facto determine the eſtate without Entry, for albeit a ſtranger might not take advantage of the firſt, yet he might take advantage of the laſt by the Common Law. And therefore if a man at this day make a Leaſe to another quouſque, or untill I. S. come from Rome; or if a man make a Leaſe to a woman quamdiu caſta vixerit, or if a man make a Leaſe to a widow ſi tandiu in pura viduitate viveret, or if a man make a Leaſe to another for one hundred years if he live ſo long, and then the leſſor doth grant the reverſion to a ſtranger; in all theſe and ſuch like caſes the grantee of the reverſion may take advantage of the limitation, for after the eſtate is ended by the limitation he may enter. Co. 10. 36. F. N. B. 201.

2. Between a condition annexed to a freehold and a condition annexed to a leaſe for years, for if before the Statute a man had made a gift in taile, or leaſe for life, on condition that if the donee or leſſee did not pay tenne pounds by ſuch a day the gift or leaſe ſhould be void or ceaſe; in this caſe the grantee of the reverſion could not by the common law have taken advantage of the condition, for it could not be void or ceaſe, but by entry which could not be tranſferred to another. But if a leaſe for years had been made on ſuch a condition; a grantee of the reverſion might by the common law have taken advantage of this condition, for the eſtate in this caſe was by the breach of the condition ipſo facto void without entrie. But now the grantee of the reverſion ſhall have advantage of the condition in both theſe caſes. Co. 3. 64, 65. Co. ſuper Lit. 214. 11 H. 7. 17. Plow. 136.

3. Between a condition in deed and a condition in law, for by the very common law not only the grantee of the reverſion, but alſo the Lord by Eſcheat, may either of them have advantage of a condition in law for any breach in his owne time. Co. ſuper Lit. 214.

2. Theſe Reſolutions and Judgements upon the Statute muſt be marked. 1. That the Statute is generall, and the grantee of the reverſion of every common perſon as well as the King may take advantage of conditions. 2. That the Statute doth extend to grants made to the ſucceſſor of the King aſwell as to the King, albeit he only be named in the Statute. 3. That he that comes to the reverſion by fine, feoffement, graut, limitation of uſe, common recovery, or bargaine and ſale, is ſuch a grantee as is within the intendment of the Statute. 4. That where the Statute doth ſpeak of feoffees &c. that it doth not extend to gifts in taile, and therefore if a gift in taile be upon condition, and after the donor doth grant the reverſion; this grantee ſhall never have any benefit of this condition. Co. ſuper Lit. 214. Co. 5. 13

Grantees of part

5. That where the Statute doth ſpeak of grantees and aſſignees of the reverſion; that hereby an aſſignee of part of the ſtate of the reverſion may take advantage of the condition, as if leſſee for life be, and the reverſion is granted for life &c. or if leſſee for years be &c. and the reverſion is granted for years &c. in theſe caſes the grantees of the reverſion ſhall have advantage of the conditions.

So if a leſſee for one hundred years make a leaſe for tenne years, rendring rent, with condition of reentry, and the firſt leſſee doth afterward grant his terme and eſtate to I S; in this caſe I S is ſuch a grantee and aſſignee of the reverſion as ſhall take advantage of the condition. Davie and Mathews caſe per & 2 Juſtices Trin. 14. Jac. B. R.

Grantees of grantees in infinitum

6. That as well mediate as immediate grantees i. The grantees of grantees in infinitum are intended within this Statute. Co. 5. 112. 113. Co. ſuper Litt. 214.

Grantee of part

7. That a grantee of part of the reverſion cannot take advantage of a condition by this Statute. And therefore if a leaſe be made of three acres reſerving rent upon condition, and the reverſion is granted of two of the three acres; in this caſe the rent ſhall bee apportioned, but the condition is deſtroyed except it be in the Kings caſe. And yet a condition may be apportioned by the act of law, or by the wrong of the leſſee. As if a leaſe be made of two acres (the one of the nature of Burrough Engliſh, and the other at the Common law) upon condition, and the leſſor having iſſue two ſons dieth; in this caſe each of them ſhall enter for the condition broken: And if the leſſee upon condition make a feoffment of part of the land, this doth not deſtroy the condition. There is therefore herein a difference between a condition that is compulſory, and a power of revocation that is voluntary: for he that hath ſuch a power may by his own act extinguiſh it in part, by levying a fine of part of the land or otherwiſe, and yet his power may remaine for the reſidue as in the caſe of a limitation; but in the caſe of a condition he cannot do ſo. Co. 5. 113. 114. Co. 8. 92.

Grantees of Reversion by fine or grant must have attornment

8. Such grantees as ſhall have advantage by this Statute, muſt be compleat grantees, and therefore grantees of reverſions by fine, or deed, muſt have atturnment ere they can take advantage of the condition. And yet if a reverſion be granted by fine to one that hath ~~an~~ no atturnment, and he grant it to another that hath atturnment; in this caſe the ſecond grantee ſhall take advantage of the condition, albeit the firſt grantee ſhall not. And the leſſee muſt have notice of the grant of the reverſion, ere he in reverſion can take any advantage of a condition. And therefore it is, that if the leſſor bargain and ſell the land by deed indented and inrolled (in which caſe there needs no atturnment); or if the leſſor make a feoffment of the land, and ſo out the leſſee, and the leſſee reenter (which is an atturnment in law); the grantee or feoffee in theſe caſes cannot take advantage of any condition before he hath given notice to the leſſee of this grant of the reverſion. Co. ſuper Litt. 214. Paſche. 7 Jac. Co. B. per 2 Juſtices.

Meerly by act of law

9. Such as come in meerly by act of law, or paramount, as the Lord of a Villain, the Lord by eſcheat, the Lord that doth enter for Mortmain, or the like, cannot take advantage of a condition within this Statute. And hence it ſeems it is that if the leſſee for forty yeares make a leaſe for thirty ſeven years on condition, and after ſurrender his eſtate to his leſſor, that the ſurrendree ſhall not have advantage of this condition. Co. ſuper Litt. 215. Dier. 309. Curia in Leeks caſe. Paſche 7 Jac. Co. B.

Collaterall

10. Albeit the words of the Statute be generall, yet grantees and aſſignees ſhall not take benefit of every forfeiture by force of a condition, nor yet of all conditions but onely of ſuch as are inherent. i. Such as are either incident to the reverſion, as for payment of rent, or for the benefit of the State, as for reſtraining of waſt, for cauſing of reparations, making of fences, ſkowring of ditches, preſerving of woods, and the like. And of conditions that are collaterall, ſuch grantees ſhall not take benefit. And therefore if the condition be for payment of a ſum of money in groſſe, to reſtraine alienation, for the delivery of corn, wood, or the like, the grantee of the reverſion of the land ſhall not have advantage of it by this Statute, for theſe remain as they were before the Statute at the Common law. Per Juſtice Bridgman.

11. Such

11. Such conditions as are on the part of the Leſſor, it ſeems are not within this Statute; And therefore if one make a Leaſe for years, on condition that if the Leſſor his Heirs or aſſignes, pay ten pound to the Leſſee at our Lady day, the Leaſe to be void, and the Leſſor doth grant the reverſion to a ſtranger before the day; it ſeems the Grantee ſhall not take advantage of this; but the condition is gone.

If one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent to him and his Heirs, on condition that if it be not paid within fourteen days, that he and his Heirs ſhall reenter, and the Rent is behind, and the Leſſor doth demand it, and then die; in this caſe the Heir may enter. But if he die before demand, the Heir cannot make a demand, and ſo take advantage of that breach of the condition, which was in the time of his Anceſtor. Doct. & St. 25. 13 H. 4. 17.

If a man be poſſeſſed of Land for twenty years in the right of his wife, and he make a Leaſe of it for ten years rendring Rent, with condition of reentry for default of payment, and after the husband die; in this caſe the wife ſhall have the Rent, but it ſeems ſhe ſhall not take advantage of the condition. Perk ſect. 834.

If a leaſe be made to I. S. on condition that if ſuch a thing be, or be not done that the Land ſhall remain to I. D. or that I. D. ſhall enter; in this caſe I. D. ſhall never take advantage of this condition, either by the Common Law or by this Statute. Co. 1. 85. ſuper Litt. 379. Dier. 127, 117.

13. Where entry or claim is needfull, to avoid an eſtate on condition. And where a man may take advantage of a condition without entry or claim. And where not.

Regularly where a man will take advantage of a condition, if he may enter, he muſt enter, and when he cannot enter, he muſt make a claim; for an eſtate of freehold or inheritance will not ceaſe without entry or claim. And he that is to have advantage by the condition, may wave his advantage if he will. And untill ſuch entrie or claim made, the party that ſhould enter can make no good eſtate of the thing to any other. But herein a difference is to be obſerved in the penning of a condition, and between a Leaſe for years and a Leaſe for life or a greater eſtate; for if a Leaſe for years be made, on condition that upon ſuch a contingent the eſtate ſhall ceaſe, or the Leaſe ſhall be void; in this caſe when the thing doth happen, the Leaſe is ipſo facto void without entry or claim. But otherwiſe it is of a Leaſe for life, albeit there be the ſame words in the condition. And if one make a Leaſe for years, on condition that if ſuch a thing be done, the Leſſor ſhall re-enter; in this caſe an entry is needfull to avoid the eſtate. Co. ſuper Litt. 218. 237.

If one make a Feoffment in Fee, gift in taile, or Leaſe for life, on condition that upon ſuch a contingent the eſtate ſhall be void; in this caſe there muſt be an entry made after the condition is broken to avoid the eſtate. So if one bargain and ſell his Land by deed indented and inrolled, with proviſo that if the bargainor pay &c. then the eſtate ſhall ceaſe and be void, and he doth pay the money; in this caſe the eſtate is not reveſted in the bargainor before an actuall re-entry is made. And ſo it is alſo if Lands be deviſed to a man and his Heirs, on condition that if the Deviſee doe not pay twenty pound at a day, his eſtate ſhall ceaſe and be void; in this caſe the eſtate is not void untill an actuall re-entry be made. And ſo alſo it is if a reverſion, Remainder, Advowſon, Rent, Common, or the like, be deviſed on ſuch a condition; in theſe caſes there muſt be a claim before the eſtate will be determined. And therefore if a man grant ſuch a thing to another and his Heirs, on condition that if the Grantor pay twenty pound on ſuch a day, the ſtate of the Grantee ſhall ceaſe or be void, and the grantor doth pay the mony according to the condition; in this caſe the ſtate is not reveſted in the Grantor before a claim made at the Church in caſe of an Advowſon, and in the other caſes upon the Land. But in caſe where a man cannot make an entry or claim, there the Law will not compell him to it. And therefore if one grant Land to another for five years, on condition that if he pay to the Grantor within the two firſt years forty marks, that then he ſhall have the Fee, otherwiſe but for tearm of five years, and livery of ſeiſin is made accordingly, and the Grantee doth not pay this mony; in this caſe after the two years are paſt, the freehold ſhall be in the Grantor without entry or claim, for as this caſe is, he cannot enter, but he muſt out the Leſſee of his term. So if I grant a Rent charge out of my Land upon condition; when the condition is broken, the Rent is extinct, and here needs no claim.

Rent.

14. When a condition broken ſhall make the eſtate, &c. void ab initio. And when not. And to what intents the Leſſor, Feoffer, &c. ſhall be adjudged by his reentry to be in of his firſt eſtate. And to what intents not.

So if a man make a Feoffment of Land to me in Fee, on condition that I ſhall pay him twenty pound ſuch a day, &c. and before the day I let the Land to him for years, rendring Rent, and after the condition is broken; in this caſe he may retain the Land without entry or claim, and the Rent is extinct. So if one covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf for life or otherwiſe, and then after to the uſe of others, with a proviſo of revocation &c. and after he doth revoke it; in this caſe all the eſtates are reveſted in him without entry or claim.

It is generally true that he that doth enter for a condition broken, doth make the eſtate void ab initio, and that he ſhall be in of his firſt eſtate in the ſame courſe and manner as it was when he departed with the poſſeſſion, and at the time of the making of the condition. Co. 4. 120. Perk. ſect. 840. Plow. 186. 482. 14 H. 8. 17.

And hence it is, that if there be any charge or incumbrance on the Land, as if Leſſee of Land upon condition grant a Rent charge out of the Land, or enter into a Statute or Recogniſance, and the Conuſee have the Land in Execution and this charge is after the condition is made; in this caſe when the condition is broken, and the party doth re-enter, he ſhall by relation avoid the Rent, ſtatute, and recogniſances, and hold the Land freed from them all. And if an eſtate be to paſs by way of increaſe, upon condition, or a Leaſe is to be made upon a condition precedent; when the condition is performed, the party ſhall hold his eſtate free from all after charges and clogs. Co ſuper Litt. 234. Perk. ſect 843. 844. Co. ſuper Litt. 233.

And if a man enter for breach of a condition in Law, he ſhall avoid all charges and acts done after that thing is done which doth produce the forfeiture, but he ſhall not avoid any thing done before that time; for he muſt take the thing as he findes it: as if a houſe or Land belong to an Officer in reſpect of his Office, and he grant a Rent out of it for his life, and then he doth Forfeit it: in this caſe the Rent ſhall continue. And if Leſſee for life of Land grant a Rent out of it, and then make a Feoffment in Fee of the Land; in this caſe the Rent ſhall continue and the Leſſor cannot avoid.

But if Leſſee for life of Land make a Feoffment in Fee of it, and then grant a Rent out of the Land; in this caſe the Leſſor ſhall avoid it. And if a Leſſee grant a Rent out of his Land, and then doe waſt, and the Leſſor recover the Land, he cannot avoid this Rent, but ſhall hold the Land charged with it. But if the Leſſee doe waſt firſt, and then he grant a Rent charge to a ſtranger out of the Land, and after the Leſſor recover the place waſted; in this caſe he ſhall hold the Land diſcharged. And if Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years and after enter upon the Leſſee for years, and make a Feoffment in Fee; this ſhall not avoid the Leaſe for years. Crompt Jur. 64 65.

And if a man make a Leaſe for years; rendring Rent with clauſe of entry for non payment and the Leſſee doth make under-leaſes of part of this Land, and after the Rent is unpaid, and the Leſſor doth enter; in this caſe he ſhall have all the Land, and avoid all the under leaſes.

But if there be any covinous practiſe in the caſe, the under-tenants may have remedy in Equity Co. 10. 41.

And if a Leaſe be made for life, the remainder in taile on condition; in this caſe if the condition be broken, both the eſtates be avoided. Et ſic de ſimilibus.

But this generall rule doth faile in divers particulars: as if a man be ſeiſed of Land in the right of his wife, and he maketh a Feoffment in Fee by deed indented, upon condition that the Feoffee ſhall deviſe the Land to the Feoffer for life, &c. and the husband dieth, and then the condition is broken; in this caſe the Heir of the husband ſhall enter, and yet he ſhall not have the eſtate of the Feoffer, for this doth preſently after his entry vaniſh away. Co. ſuper Litt. 202. Perk. ſect. 242. 842 843.

So if a Tenant in ſpeciall tail hath iſſue, and his wife dieth, and Tenant in taile maketh a Feoffment in Fee upon condition, the iſſue dieth, the condition is broken, and then the Feoffer doth reenter; in this caſe he ſhall have but an eſtate for life as Tenant in Tail after poſſibility of iſſue extinct.

So

So if a leſſee for life or years make a feoffment in fee on condition, and after doth enter for the condition broken; in this caſe he ſhall not be in the ſame courſe, for now his eſtate is ſubject to entry for forfeiture, though he be tenant for life ſtill. So if a diſſeiſor be of certain land, and he die ſeiſed thereof, and his heir is in by deſcent, and the diſſeiſee enter upon the heir, and infeoffe aſtranger upon condition, and the heir of the diſſeiſor doth enter upon the feoffee, and the diſſeiſee doth ſue a writ of entry ſur diſſeiſin, againſt the heir of the diſſeiſor, and doth recover and hath execution, and the feoffee on condition doth reenter, and after the condition is broken; in this caſe the feoffor is not in the ſame caſe, for now the diſſeiſor cannot enter upon him as he might before. And in ſome caſes the feoffor by his reentry ſhall be in his former eſtate, but not in reſpect of ſome collaterall qualities: as if tenant by homage Anceſtrell, make a feoffment of the land he doth ſo hold in fee, on condition, and entreth for the condition broken; in this caſe it ſhall never be held in homage Anceſtrel again. And ſo if a copyhold eſcheat be, and the Lord make a feoffment in fee upon condition, and entreth for the condition broken; in this caſe the cuſtome annexed to that land is gone. So if there be Lord and tenant by fealty and rent, and the Lord is in ſeiſin of the rent, and granteth his Seigniory to another and his heirs on condition, and the tenant doth atturn and payeth his rent to the grantee, the condition is broken; the Lord diſtraineth for his rent, and reſcous is made, in this caſe the former ſeiſin ſhall not enable him to have an aſſiſe without new ſeiſin. If there be Lord and tenant, and the Lord diſſeiſe the tenant of the tenancy, and thereof doth enfeoffe a ſtranger on condition, and after the condition is broken, and the Lord entr?, and the tenant doth enter upon him; in this caſe the Seigniory is not revived.

If tenant in tail make a feoffment in fee on condition, and dieth, and the iſſue in tail within age doth enter for the condition broken; in this caſe he ſhall be in firſt as tenant in fee ſimple, and heir to his father, and then ſhall be preſently remitted: but if he be of full age he ſhall not be remitted.

If one make a feoffment of white acre and black acre, on condition &c. and that he ſhall enter into black acre onely; in this caſe upon breach of the condition, he ſhall enter into that part onely. Co. ſuper Litt. 202, 203.

If the words of a condition be, That if ſuch a thing be not done, the feoffor or leſſor ſhall enter into the land, and take the profits thereof untill the thing be done, or to the like effect; in this caſe if the feoffor or leſſor enter upon the breach of the condition, hee doth not avoid the eſtate, or get any thing by his entry, but the poſſeſſion onely in the nature of a pledge, or a diſtreſſe untill the thing be done; And if the condition be for the payment of the rent, he ſhall hold the land untill he be paid the rent.

And if the words be (That the Feoffor, &c. ſhall enter and take the profits, untill thereof he be ſatisfied, or untill he be ſatisfied or paid the Rent) in the firſt caſe as ſoon as he is paid, either by receiving of the profits, or payment of the Rent behind, or both together; and in the laſt caſe as ſoon as he is paid the Rent by the Feoffee or Leſſee, the Feoffee or Leſſee may enter again into the land.

If a condition be poſſible in his creation, and after become impoſſible by the act of God, the condition is diſcharged and gone for ever, and the eſtate is abſolute. As if a feoffment be made to me, on condition that I ſhall reinfeoffe the feoffor before a day, or on condition that I ſhall appear at Weſtminſter in the Kings Bench ſuch a day, or on condition that I ſhall go to Paris about the affairs of the feoffor before ſuch a day, and before the day appointed it doth happen that I die; in all theſe caſes the condition is diſcharged. So if the condition of a feoffment be that if the feoffor or his heirs pay ten pound to the feoffee ſuch a day, and before the day the feoffor dieth without heire; in this caſe the condition is gone. And if the condition become impoſſible in part onely, then it is diſcharged for ſo much onely. ſee Goldsb. 181 Co. ſuper Lit. 207. 219. 15. H. 7. 13 Dier. 262.

If there be Lord and tenant, and the tenant doth enfeoffe a ſtranger on condition and the feoffee die without heir, ſo that the tenancy eſcheat; in this caſe the condition doth continue, and the Lord muſt hold it ſubject to the condition. Perk. Sect. 8. 9.

15. When and by what means a condition ſhall be diſchargedand extinguiſhed for ever, or ſuſpended for a time, or not.

1. By the act of God.

Conditions impoſſible.

Albeit

2. By the Act of Law.

Albeit a condition cannot be divided by the act of the parties, but it will be deſtroyed, yet it may be divided by the act of law; and therefore if a leaſe for years be made of two acres of land (the one of the nature of Burrough Engliſh, and the other at the Common law) on condition, and the leſſor having iſſue two ſons dieth, in this caſe albeit the condition be divided, yet it is not gone, but doth continue ſtill, and each of them may enter for the condition broken. But if one that hath a condition knit unto his reverſion, grant part of his reverſion to a ſtranger; the condition is deſtroyed in all, for it cannot be apportioned by the act of the parties, as it may by the act of the law, or the wrong of the leſſee. Co. ſuper Litt. 215. Co. 4. 120.

3. By the Act of the parties.

A condition may be deſtroyed in the very creation of it; as if one deviſe lands for life with expreſſe words of a condition, and not words of limitation, or words that may be ſo taken, the remainder over to a ſtranger; in this caſe the ſtranger cannot enter, neither is the remainder good, nor the condition effectuall. Co. 2. 59. the Lord Cromwels caſe, Dier, 309. Co. ſuper Litt. 265. 379. Co. 10. 41.

Or it may be diſcharged by matter ex poſt facto: as in the examples following. If one make a feoffment in fee of land upon condition, and after and before the condition broken, he doth make an abſolute feoffment, or levy a fine of all or part of the land to the feoffee, or any other; by this the condition is gone and diſcharged for ever. And yet if one grant a rent out of his land, upon condition, and after make a feoffment of this land, this doth not extinguiſh the condition. And if a fine in this caſe be levied in purſuance of a former agreement; as if one by Indenture bargain and ſell his land to another, and in the Indenture there is a covenant that all other aſſurances ſhall be to the uſe of the bargainee, according to the firſt agreement, and the bargaine and ſale hath a condition annexed that the bargainee ſhall make a feoffment of part of the land to the bargainor, and after the bargainor doth levy a fine to the bargainee in corroboration of the firſt bargain; in this caſe the condition is not extinct, but ſaved by the original agreement. And if one make a feoffment in fee of land upon condition, and after and before the condition broken, he doth make a leaſe for years onely of the land, or part of it to the feoffee or any other; by this the condition is ſuſpended for that time. And if the feoffor after a feoffment made of land upon condition, enter upon all or part of the land and be impleaded, and loſe it, by this the condition is gone for ever. Co. 2. 59. Perk, Sect. 819, 820. 163. Litt. Bro. Sect. 212. Co ſuper Litt 219.

And if he enter and hold the poſſeſſion onely, by this the condition is ſuſpended during his poſſeſſion, and if he hold the poſſeſſion ſo long that the feoffee cannot perform the condition, the condition is diſcharged for ever. And if one make a feoffment of land upon condition, and after and before the condition broken, the feoffee doth make a feoffment of all or part of the land to the feoffor, by this the condition is gone for ever. Co. 7. 144. 52. Litt. Bro. Sect. 212. 85. Co. ſuper Litt, 218.

And if the feoffee make a leaſe for life or yeares onely of part of the land; by this the condition is ſuſpended for that time. But if the feoffee make a feoffment in fee, leaſe for life, or years to a ſtranger; this is no extinguiſhment nor ſuſpenſion of the condition. And if the condition be to pay mony, or do any ſuch collaterall thing; if in this caſe the feoffee make a leaſe to the feoffor, this doth not ſuſpend the condition. Brownl. 2. part, 224. 225. 56.

Releaſe.

If the feoffor or leſſor releaſe to the feoffee or leſſee all conditions, or all demands in the land, or confirm the eſtate of the feoffee without condition &c. by either of theſe means the condition is deſtroyed and gone for ever. Perk. Sect. 823. Co. 1. 147. See Releaſe and confirmation.

If one make a leaſe for life or years of land on condition, and after grant the reverſion of part of this land; hereby the condition is deſtroyed for ever. And if he make a leaſe of part of it onely; by this the condition is ſuſpended. Co. 2. 59. Perk. Sect. 163. Co. 4. 119.

A condition may be extinct or ſuſpended by the intermarriage of the parties to the condition; as if a Feoffment be made by a woman on condition to pay ten pound, or on condition to infeoffe her by a day certain, and before the day they two do intermary, and the marriage doth continue untill after the day; in this caſe the condition is gone. And if the condition be to reenter for not payment of Rent; the condition ſhall be ſuſpended and no Rent be paid during the coverture. Perk. ſect. 763. 765. 764.

If a Leaſe be made for years, on condition that the Leſſee or his aſſignes ſhall not alien without the licence of the Leſſor, and the Leſſor licence the Leſſee alone to alien, or licence him to alien a part of the Land, or licence him to alien al the Land for a time, or if the leaſe be to three on ſuch a condition, and the Leſſor licence one of them to alien in all theſe caſes the condition is gone for ever. Co. 4. 119. 5. 34. 2. 59. 714. Dier 309.

If one had Enfeoffed me, on condition that I ſhould pay him ten pound at Eaſter, and before the time he had entred into Religion, and made me his executor, and had not been deraigned; in this caſe the condition had been gone for ever. Perk. ſect. 766.

If I be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and take a Wife, and during the marriage enfeoffe a ſtranger on condition and die, and the Feoffee endow my wife of her third part; in this caſe the condition is not deſtroied, and yet the third part is freed from the condition, but the reverſion of that third part is not freed from the condition. And if ſhee grant her eſtate again to the Feoffee, the condition is revived: So if there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant make a Feoffment in Fee upon condition, and the Feoffee is attainted of Felony, &c. ſo that the Tenancie doth eſcheate; in this caſe the condition is not gone, but the tenancy is charged with it. Perk. ſect. 822.

If a Feoffment, or Leaſe be made rendring Rent, on condition for not payment a reentry, and the Feoffer, or Leſſor after the breach of the condition doth diſtrain or bring an aſſiſe for the Rent, or doth accept the Rent at another day; hereby the condition is not deſtroied but it is diſcharged for that time, ſo that the Feoffor or Leſſor cannot take any advantage of that breach: and if the act to be done by the condition be a collaterall act, as not to alien, or the like; and the condition is broken, and the Feoffor not having notice thereof doth accept the Rent; in this caſe alſo and by this means the condition is not diſcharged, Co. 3. 64. ſuper Litt. 211.

If one diſſeiſe the Feoffee, or the heir of the Diſſeiſor, or any other that hath Lands by a juſt title, and thereof enfeoffe a ſtranger on condition, and the Land is lawfully recovered from him by him that hath the title; hereby the condition is deſtroied for ever. And if a Diſſeiſor make a Feoffment in Fee on condition, and after the Diſſeiſee doth enter upon the Feoffee on condition; this doth extinguiſh the condition. But if the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Feoffee on condition; this Releaſe doth not diſcharge the condition. But if a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life, and the Leſſee for life make a Feoffment in Fee on condition, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Feoffee of the Tenant for life, by this the condition in Law is deſtroied. And if the Feoffee upon condition make a Feoffment over without condition, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the ſecond Feoffee; by this the condition is deſtroyed, be the releaſe before the condition broken or after. And if Feoffee on condition make a Leaſe for life, and the Feoffor releaſe to the Feoffee on condition or Leſſee for life all conditions, or all demands to the Land; by this the condition is diſcharged. And if the Feoffee on condition make a Feoffment to another on condition, and after the firſt Feoffor doth enter for breach of the condition, hereby the ſecond Feoffment and the condition alſo is gone for ever. Litt. ſect. 476. 477. Co. ſuper Litt. 277. Perk. ſect. 823. 821.

4. By the Act of a ſtranger.

Releaſe.

If a man ſeiſed of Land in Fee let it to a ſtranger for years, and one that hath no right doth out the Leſſee, and thereof die ſeiſed, and his Heire is in by deſcent, and he doth make a Feoffment to a ſtranger upon condition, upon whom the Leſſee for years doth enter within the terme claiming his terme; in this caſe the Leſſee ſhall hold the land diſcharged of the condition. Perk. ſect. 820.

Of a Contempt, and Coopers.

Contempt, what.

THis word Contempt is uſed for a kind of Miſdemeanor, by doing what one is forbidden, or omitting to do what one is commanded: As where a Sheriff ſhall not obey the command of a Court in the Retorn of ſome Writ directed to him; and the third Refuſal by him herein, is eſteemed a Contempt. And a ſpecial miſcarriage alſo in the face of a Court is eſteemed a Contempt. This, however it be but in the nature of a Treſpaſs, yet it is ſometimes a greater, and ſometimes a leſſer offence; and accordingly the puniſhment is greater or leſs, ſometimes by Fine and Impriſonment both, and ſometimes by one of theſe, Co. 8. *co. Of Coopers.

Coopers.

AS to Coopers, theſe things only are here to be known.

1. That Juſtices and Head-Officers in Corporate-Towns muſt ſet the Prices for Ale, Beer, and Sope, Stat. 8 Eliz. ch 9.

2. Coopers muſt make their Veſſels of good Wood, and put their own Marks upon them, 23 H. 8. 4.

3. The Barrel he doth ſell for Beer, muſt contain thirty ſix Gallons; the Kilderkin for Beer, eighteen Gallons; the Firkin for Beer, nine Gallons of the Kings Standard-gallon. And for Ale, the Barrel thirty two Gallons, the Kilderkin ſixteen Gallons, and the Firkin eight Gallons.

Veſſels.

4. No Cooper muſt make any Veſſel of any other meaſure, unleſs he ſet down upon it a Mark of the certain Content of it.

5. The Cooper muſt alſo put his own Mark upon the Veſſels he ſels.

6. Sope-makers Veſſels muſt be according to the Content of the Statute.

7. In London, the Wardens of Coopers muſt ſearch to ſee if their Veſſels be ſo: And out of London, Head Officers of Corporations and Conſtables of Towns muſt ſearch and ſee to it.

8. No Veſſel thus made, muſt be after diminiſhed.

9. An Ale-Brewer or Beer-Brewer may keep a Cooper in his houſe to amend his Veſſels, St. 23 H. 8. c. 4.

9. Veſſels brought from beyond Sea muſt be gauged, if they be for Beer or Ale, 31 Eliz. 8. See Wingates Abridgment of the Statutes, Tit. Coopers.

CHAP. LII.

Of a Copiholder and a Copihold.

THe Copihold-Eſtate is that, for which a man hath nothing to ſhew but the Copy of the Rolls made by the Steward of the Lords Court. For the manner is, that the Steward doth write out a Remembrance of this (amongſt other things) That ſuch a one is admitted to ſuch an Eſtate; and this commonly is tranſcribed in Parchment, which Tranſcript is called the Court-Roll, the Copy whereof the Tenant hath under the Stewards hand: And this is all his Evidence, and he can make no title but by this Roll. 1. Copihold, what. Rolls of the Court, what.

The Copiholder is he which is admitted Tenant of any Lands within any Manor, which time out of mind by uſe and cuſtom of the Manor hath been demiſed and demiſable to ſuch as will take the ſame in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail for life, years, or at will (as the cuſtom is) according to the cuſtom of the ſaid Manor, by Copy of Court-Roll of the ſaid Manor, Weſt. 1 *Symb. l.*2. *ſect.*646. *Co.*4.25. *Lit.ſect.*13. Copiholder, what.

So that to make a Copihold eſtate, two things are requiſite.

1. It muſt be a parcel of a Manor. Sect. 1.

2. It muſt be demiſed or demiſable time out of mind, &c. And if either of theſe fail, the Copihold-tenure is gone. For this cauſe the Tenure cannot be made at this day, unleſs it be made by Act of Parliament, Stat. 35 H. 8.13. Co. 1 par. Inſt. fol. 58.

Theſe Tenants in moſt places are called Copiholders and Cuſtomary Tenants; but in ſome places they are called Tenants by the Verge, Baſe-tenants, or Bond-tenants, &c. and ſo are the Lands called Baſe-lands, Bond-land, &c. Tenants by the Verge.

The Grant of this Tenant is at the Will of the Lord. So the Tenant was antiently a Bondman, and his Tenure a Baſe-tenure: But time hath changed both, and now he and his Eſtate both are ſo far free, that if he pay his Rent, and do his Services according to the cuſtom of the place, the Lord cannot hurt him or his Eſtate, Co. 4. 29. And if he or any other evict him, he ſhall have relief againſt them. Whereof ſee afterwards.

If any of the Tenants will tranſfer or alien any of their Copihold-lands, it muſt be done by way of Surrender to the Lord or his Steward, or ſome of the Tenants according to the cuſtom of the place, to the uſe of ſuch perſon who is to have it for the time agreed upon between them; and then the party is to pay his Fine, and to have it from the Lord according to the Surrender, and to have it entred, and a Copy thereof according to the cuſtom of the place: And if the Lord after ſurrender refuſe to admit, or die, or his Eſtate end before admittance, he or his Succeſſor ſhall be compelled to make the admittance. And by Deed or otherwiſe ſuch a Tenant cannot alien his Land without committing a Forfeiture, no, not by way of Exchange with another Tenant. And if the Copiholder will deviſe it, he muſt ſurrender it to the uſe of his laſt Will, and declare his intent, Co. of *Copiholds, f.*35. 2. How the Copiholder may grant his Land. Surrender. Admiſſion. Alienation. Forfeiture. Exchange.

And for this the Tenant need not alleage a Cuſtom; for this is the Common-Law; ſo neither for a Surrender out of Court into the Lords hands. But to ſurrender to three of the Tenants, or to the Bailiff or Reeve out of the Court, to make this Surrender good, there muſt be a ſpecial Cuſtom alleaged for it, Co. 1 par. f. 59. And yet by a Deed of Releaſe he may extinguiſh his Right to a Copihold whereinto another is before admitted, and hath ſuch an Eſtate as upon which the Releaſe may enure. As if a Surrender be made out of Court to the uſe of J. S. and it is not duly preſented according to cuſtom, and therefore void; yet J. S. is admitted according, and after he that hath the right doth by Deed releaſe all his right to J. S. this will bar him, and make good the Eſtate. Contra, where the Eſtate to paſs by the Releaſe, Cuſtom. Releaſe.

doth paſs by way of Enlargement: As if a Copiholder by Licence leaſe for [illegible] and then doth releaſe to the Leſſee for years. But I may ſurrender my Reverſion [illegible] to the Lords hands, and he may grant it to the Leſſee, Co. of Copiholds, f. 300. So where no precedent Eſtate is by Admittance, as if one diſſeiſe the Copiholder, and the Copiholder releaſe to the Diſſeiſor, theſe Releaſes are void, Co. 4. 25.

One Copiholder being ouſted by another, cannot releaſe to him. If a Copiholder be ouſted, and the Lord admit him that ouſted him, by his Releaſe the Copiholder may extinguiſh his Right, Co. c. 114. And yet if a Surrender be made out of Court upon Condition, and preſented as abſolute, and ſo the Admittance is made, the Surrenderer by Releaſe may make it good, Co. of Copiholds, fol. 101. But if I. be ouſted, and the Lord admit him according to the cuſtom, I may releaſe to him. If a Copiholder doth bargain and ſell his Copihold-land to his Lord without any Surrender, it is ſaid this will paſs it: But if his Eſtate be an Eſtate of Inheritance, contra per curiam Mich. 2 Jac. B.R.

2. Conſidered according to the Common-Law.

Ejectione firmæ.

Theſe ſtates are in ſome caſes ruled according to the Common-Law, and in ſome caſes according to the Cuſtom. And therefore if ſuch a Copiholder be put out of his land by his Lord or any other, heretofore he had no remedy but in the Lords Court, or in Chancery: yet at this day he may have remedy againſt his Lord or any other by Ejectione firmæ, or Treſpaſs, or in Chancery, as a man that hath ſuch an Eſtate by Deed, Co. 4. 21. 29. 22, &c. And if he make a Leaſe rendring Rent, he may bring Debt for it; and if one cut his Trees, he may have an Action of Treſpaſs.

He ſhall be barred by a Fine and Non-claim in ſeven years, as another man ſhall be, Brownl. 1 par. 181.

If the Copiholder make a Leaſe for years by the Lords licence, he may after ſurrender the Reverſion after this Leaſe for years; for it is the Copiholders, not the Lords Leaſe. And yet perhaps if the Copiholder forfeit, the Leaſe may be made good, Hob. Rep. pl. 199.

Sect. 2. Eſtates in Fee-ſimple, Tail, or for life.

The ſame words which will make Eſtates in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail for life, &c. upon a Deed, will make Eſtates by Copy. And therefore if a Surrender be to the uſe of J. S. without limitation of any Eſtate, hereby J. S. ſhall have an Eſtate for his life only: And yet by cuſtom in ſome places it is otherwiſe.

322 And if a Copiholder in Fee ſurrender Habend. after his deceaſe to the uſe of his child in venter ſa mier, (i.) in the mothers womb, and the heirs of this child; and if it die before marriage or full age, then to the uſe of J. S. and his heirs: By this the father hath an Eſtate for life, and the limitation to the child is void, and ſo it ſeems is the Remainder alſo, Co. 4. 21, 22, &c. For a Freehold cannot commence in futuro, nor one Fee depend on another, Simpſons Caſe adjudged Mich. 13 *Jac. Freehold.

Diſcent.

And Deſcents of this Land, as well as the Creation of the Eſtate, ſhall be guided by the Rules of the Common-Law; except there be any ſpecial cuſtom in the place to the contrary, the eldeſt ſon ſhall inherit. Poſſeſſio fratris facit ſororem eſſe hæredem of the lands in a Fee-ſimple; otherwiſe it is the Iſſue of a Copiholder in tail: This land may be intailed by Cuſtom, Co. of Copiholds, f. 136. and the Iſſue ſhall have a Formedon in Diſcender. If one have iſſue a ſon and daughter by one venter, and a ſon by another, and the eldeſt purchaſe a Copihold in Fee, and die without iſſue, the daughter ſhall have the land, Co. of Copiholds, f. 143. But a Deſcent of a Copihold ſhall not take away an Entry, March. 6. pl. 13.

Entail. Cuſtom. Diſcent.

Eſcheat.

If one have a Copihold-eſtate to the heir of the mothers ſide, and he die without iſſue, it ſhall go to the heirs of the mothers ſide, and ſhall rather eſcheat then go to the heirs of the fathers ſide. But if I purchaſe Copihold-lands, and die without iſſue, and have no heirs of my fathers ſide, it ſhall go to the heirs of my mothers ſide. If there be father, uncle and ſon, and the ſon purchaſe this land and die, it ſhall go to the uncle, not to the father. So if there be three brothers, and the middle purchaſe this land and die without iſſue, the eldeſt ſhall have it. And if there be two Partners or Tenants in common of this land, and one die having iſſue, his Heir ſhall inherit, not the Survivor. Contra of Jointenants. Co. of Copiholds, ſect. 50. Calthrop, fol. 88, 89, 92, 93.

But

But in other things they differ from other Inheritances, and the Rules of the Common-Law. And therefore these Inheritances® (except there be a special Custom for it in the place) have not these Collateral qualities which concern not Descent, as other Inheritances have. For such land so descended shall not be accounted Assets in the Heirs hands to charge him upon any Obligation; the Wife shall not be endowed, the Husband not Tenant by the courtesie; Descent shall not take away Entry, Co. 4. 23. 3. Considered according to Custom. Assets. Dower. Courtesie.

A Surrender made by a Tenant in tail of this land, (admitting it may be entailed) or by a Husband of the Copihold he hath in the right of his wife, makes no Discontinuance, Co. idem of Copiholds, f. 144. Brownl. 1 par. 121. For as an Estate-tail may be created by Custom, so it may be barred or discontinued by Surrender by Custom, and so hath it been adjudged, 27 Eliz. for the Manor of North-hall in the County of Essex, Brownl. 2 par. 121. Tail. Discontinuance.

If the Lord enter into a Statute, or take a Wife, and after the Copihold become void, and in the Lords hand by Surrender, Forfeit or Escheat, whiles it is in his hands it is liable to this charge. But if he grant it de novo according to the Custom, the Copiholder shall hold his Estate discharged of both, Co. 8. 63. 4. 23. The true reason is, because when the Copiholder is once admitted, he is in by Custom, which is Paramount the Grant; therefore if the Lord grant a Rent-charge, and then grant the Copy, yet shall the Copiholder hold the land discharged of the Rent, as it seemeth, though then he be not his Tenant, 8 Rep. 63. b. Statute. Charge.

The Lord of a Manor where Copiholders are for life, grants a Rent-charge forth of the Manor; one Copihold escheats, and the Lord grants again the same by Copy; in this case it was judged that the Copiholder shall hold it discharged of the Rent, and so of Statutes, Recognizances, Dowers. But if the Grant were out of twenty Acres by name in the occupation of such a Copiholder, there perhaps in such a case the Copiholder may hold it charged, Brownl. 2 par. 208.

Copihold-land is not extendable upon a Statute-Staple; but upon the Statute of Bankrupts it is extendable, Brownl. 1 par. 34.

If the Feoffee of a Manor on Condition, before the Condition broken, make Copihold-Estates, they are good, Co. 4. 24. If the Copiholder acknowledg a Statute, and then surrender, the Land is not liable, Calth. f. 98. Condition.

If Tenant in tail (without a special custom) or Copiholder in the right of his wife surrender, this is no Discontinuance, Co. 4. 23. Dyer 263. So if the Lord make a Lease for years of the Manor, excepting all Woods and Underwoods, and the Lessee make Grants by Copy according to the custom; the Copiholder shall have wood in these Woods according to the custom, Co. 8. 107. So if the Copiholder be used to have Common of Pasture or Estovers in the Lords Wastes or Woods, and the Lord alien the Woods or Wastes to another in Fee, and after make a Copihold-estate according to the custom, the Copiholder will have Common there as hath been used, Co. 8. 63. The Copiholders have been used to lop for Repair and for Fire, and the Lord lease the Manor (excepting the Trees) for years; the Lessee makes an Estate according to Custom: In this case the Copiholder may cut the Trees as he hath used to do; and if the Lord cut down all the Trees, the Copiholder may have an Action of the Case. So if the Lord fell his Waste, and the Copiholder die, and the Lord grant a new Copy, this Copiholder will have Common there, Brownl. 1 par. 231. But in this case the Custom in pleading must be laid specially: Otherwise it is of a Lease for life by Deed. Discontinuance. Grant. Exception. Common. Estovers. Action of the Case.

Sect. 3. 4. What Grant of a Copihold estate shall be good, or not.

As long as a Copihold of Inheritance is in the Tenants hands, it is not liable to any Estate or Charge of the Lord, as Dower, Courtesie, Elegit, Statute, &c. But when it is in the Lords hands, it is liable, Co. 4. 22. But a Custom in this case may make it chargeable, Calth. 88, 89. 92, 93.

Divers things are requisite to make a good Grant of a Copihold-estate. As,

1. There must of necessity be a good Manor and Court continuing: For a Copihold-estate cannot be made without a Court, and a Court cannot be without a Manor; and then there must be a Custom for the allowance thereof, and this Custom must be of and in the same Manor. A Lord to give the Copihold; a Tenant of capacity

1. In respect of the Manor of the which the Land is parcel, and of the Court in which the Estate is granted.

capacity to take, and the thing to be granted, which muſt be grantable, and may be held according to the tenure. But for the opening of theſe things, it muſt be known touching a Manor,

1. That a Manor cannot be made at this day.

Manor deſtroyed. 2. Albeit it cannot be made at this day, yet it may be marred: For a Manor may be diſſolved many ways. As firſt, if the Court-Baron (which is incident to every Manor) be deſtroyed; for the Court and Manor ſtand and fall together. And therefore if all the Freeholders but one eſcheat to, or be purchaſed by the Lord, hereby the Manor is deſtroyed: For there muſt be two Freeholders at leaſt to ſupport the Court-Baron, and two Copiholders at leaſt to ſupport the Cuſtomary Court. So if the Lord ſuffer all his Copiholds but one to fall in his hand, or make a Feoffment of all but one, hereby the Manor is diſſolved.

Extinguiſhment

Court. But here this difference muſt be heeded; That there being (as we have ſhewed before) in every Manor where are Freeholders and Copiholders, two Courts: A Court of Freeholders, which is by Common-Law for the Trial of Actions wherein they are Judges; and a Court of Copiholders, which is for the ſurrendring and granting of Eſtates, and making Admittances, and wherein the Lord or his Steward is Judg; that one of theſe may ſtand without the other. And therefore if the Lord ſell the Reverſion of all his Copiholds in Fee to one man, this man hath a Manor and a Court to this purpoſe, and may do all touching Copihold-eſtates which the Seller might have done; and he that ſels may do all that belongs to the Freehold-Court, as he did before, Co. 4. 26. 6. 64. Co. 1 par. 58.

Judg.

So if the Lord make a Leaſe for years of all his Copihold-lands, it ſeems the Leſſee for the time of the Leaſe may keep Courts, and grant Eſtates. But if the Lord make a Feoffment or Leaſe of one, or of ſome of the Copiholds only, it ſeems this Feoffee or Leſſee cannot keep Courts; and therefore the Manor, as to this parcel, is deſtroyed.

If the Demeſns be once by the Act of the party ſevered from the Services in Fee-ſimple, or the Copiholds from the Manor, hereby the Manor is deſtroyed for ever, Co. 4. 26. 6. 24.

If one have a Manor, and grant the Moyety of it to another, hereby the Manor is deſtroyed, by Juſt. Jones opinion: Sed quære. So if the Lord ſell away the Inheritance of all the Copiholds to ſeveral perſons, hereby the Manor and Court of Copiholders are diſſolved.

By act of Law

And if the Severance be but for an inſtant, and without any tranſmutation of Poſſeſſion, yet the Manor is deſtroyed. But by Act of the Law a Manor may be divided: As when a Manor deſcends, and is divided between two Partners, that one have one part of the Demeſns and Services, and another the other part; each of them have a Manor and a Court.

Franchiſe loſt.

If one Manor held of another eſcheat, they are united, and continue both. And yet if a Court-Leet, Waif, Stray, Wreek, and the like be together by Preſcription, albeit the Manor be deſtroyed, yet the Leet, Waifs, &c. continue. Calthrop fol. 13.

lost waifs &c

Suſpenſion. 2. As a Manor may be diſſolved, ſo it may be ſuſpended for a time, and revived again: As if a Manor come to Parceners, and one upon the Diviſion hath all the Services, and the other all the Demeſns, and after one of them die without Iſſue, ſo that his part cometh to the other alſo; by this the Manor is revived again. Fortior eſt diſpoſitio legis quàm hominis, Co. 4. 26.

The Court muſt be kept on ſome part of that which is within the Manor; for if it be holden out of the Manor, it is void; except by Cuſtom, he having two Manors, have time out of mind kept one Court for both. Coke upon Littleton, fol. 58.

2. In reſpect of the Lord of the Manor and his Eſtate.

The ſecond thing required to the making of a good Grant by Copy of Copihold-Land, is, a good Lord; that is, the party that makes the Grant muſt be ſeiſed, that is, he muſt be in poſſeſſion in, and have a good right or title to the Manor, of part whereof the Eſtate is made. For the opening whereof, theſe things are to be known.

That

That any perſon who may be a good Grantor in a Deed, may be a good Grantee of a Copihold-Eſtate. For this any perſon, man or woman, that hath a lawful Eſtate in a Manor for a time, may be a good Lord to grant Copiholds, take Surrenders, make Eſtates and Admittances according to the Cuſtom of the Manor, notwithſtanding the diſability of his perſon, or exility of his eſtate. And therefore it is held, that a Lunatick or a man non compos mentis, an Infant, an Excommunicate perſon, a perſon outlawed in an Action perſonal; a Felon before his Attainder by Outlawry, Verdict or Confeſſion, being Lord of a Manor, may grant Copihold-Eſtates for any time according to the Cuſtom of the Manor, as another man may do, and Eſtates made by them are unavoidable. So a Villain Purchaſor of a Manor, and Alienee in Mortmain, may make Copihold-Eſtates till the Lord do make his Entry, Co. of Copiholds, f 89.

A Tenant in tail for life, years, in Dower, by the Courteſie, by Statute or Elegit of the Manor, may make Copihold-Eſtates, as well as a Tenant in Fee-ſimple. So may a Tenant at will of a Manor, by Copihold, or at Common-Law; and this of Copiholds in Reverſion, as well as Copiholds in Poſſeſſion. And therefore if a Tenant for life of a Manor grant a Copy in Reverſion according to Cuſtom, and die before the Copiholder; this is a good Copy in Reverſion againſt all the ſucceeding Lords. Adjudged 29 Eliz. B. R. Sir Peter Carews Caſe. Brownlow, 1 par 231.

If one ſeiſed of a Manor for life, wherein are Copiholds of Inheritance, and a Copiholder doth ſurrender to the uſe of a ſtranger in Fee, the Lord may grant and admit accordingly, and this will bind him in Reverſion. But if the Copihold be only grantable for lives, it is ſaid then, the Lord upon Surrender cannot grant more then for the life of the Grantor. But if the Lord of a Manor, for or during the Minority of a Ward, of which the Copihold is demiſable for three lives ſucceſſively, and not ſeverally; if there the Copiholder dieth, the Lord may grant it being void for three lives at his pleaſure, and this ſhall bind him in Reverſion, or his Heir at full age, Calthrop Read. 50. But quære of this.

If a Copiholder in Fee ſurrender to the uſe of the Lord for life, the Remainder to a ſtranger in Fee, or keepeth the Reverſion to himſelf, the Lord cannot grant this in Fee by Copy. Nemo poteſt plus juris in alium transferre, quàm ipſe habet.

So may a Feoffee or Leſſee of a Manor on Condition, till the Condition be broken. And yet a Leaſe for life by Deed in this caſe will be avoided: And it is held by ſome, that if a Leaſe be made for life on Condition, and the Leſſee after the Condition broken, and before Entry of the Leſſor, make Copihold-Eſtates, that theſe are good, becauſe this Leaſe is not void, but voidable at the pleaſure of the Leſſor; Co. of Copiholds 89.

If the Feoffor or Leſſor, after the Condition broken, keep Court and make Copihold-Eſtates, theſe are good; for the keeping of the Court is an Entry in Law, Calthrop Read. 94.

If a Feoffee of a Manor on Condition, enfeoff another of it, and the next day, or the ſame day after he hath the Manor, make Copihold-eſtates, they are good; for it ſufficeth if he be lawful Lord for the time. But if a Tenant for life of a Manor, make a Leaſe for years of it and dieth, and then the Leſſee for years maketh Copihold-Eſtates, theſe are voidable by the firſt Leſſor. So if a Leſſee for years of a Manor grant a Copihold in Reverſion, and before the Reverſion happen the Term is expired, the Grant is void; and ſo it is if the Leſſee ſurrender his Term, and before the Leaſe ſhould have ended, the Reverſion happen, yet the Grant is not good, Co. of Copiholds 88.

A Gardein in Chivalry that hath a Manor of the Wards, may make Copihold-Eſtates upon it. The Husband and Wife, within a Manor he hath in right of his Wife, but not the Wife alone, may make Copihold-Eſtates; nor may the Husband alone (as it ſeems) make Eſtates.

If the Husband and Wife in free marriage make Copihold-Eſtates, and they be afterwards divorced, the Eſtates made before the Divorce are good; ſo if the Wife be after divorced for Infancy.

If

Deviſee. If one ſeiſed in Fee of a Manor, by his Will in Writing deviſe, that his Executors ſhall ſell or make Copihold-eſtates according to the Cuſtom, for payment of his debts or the like, they may make good eſtates accordingly, Co. upon Lit. 58. And yet if the Lord deviſe that his friends ſhall keep Courts, or make Copiholds, and no more, this is not good, Calthrop, f. 95.

So if one die ſeiſed of a Manor, having a daughter, his wife privily with child of a ſon, the daughter may make Copihold-eſtates till the ſon is born.

Body-Politick. A Corporation, Biſhop or Prebend ſeiſed of a Manor, may make Copihold-eſtates.

Parſon. If a Parſon that hath a Manor after inſtitution, and before induction, make Copihold-eſtates, it ſeems theſe are not good: So if after induction he had not read the Articles, and he be after removed for this. But if he be deprived after for any crime, his Grants before are good, Co. of Copiholds, f. 89, 90.

Tenant by Statute. Tenant in Dower. If the Lord acknowledg a Statute, and after make a Copihold-eſtate, and then it is extended, this will not hurt the eſtate. So if the Lord take a wife, and then make Copihold-eſtates, and then dieth, the wifes Dower will not hurt the eſtate, though ſhe be endowed of the Manor. And yet if an Heir after the Lords death make Copihold-eſtates, and after the Manor is aſſigned to his wife, ſhe may happily avoid this, Co. of Copiholds, 84.

If the Lord make a Feoffment in Fee, Leaſe for life or years of all his Copiholds, the Feoffee or Leſſee may make Copihold-eſtates, take Surrenders, Admittances, &c. But if the Lord grant the Reverſion of one Copihold, neither he nor the Grantee, nor both of them together are able to grant any Copihold-eſtate of this land.

If the Lord releaſe all the Services of the Freeholders of the Manor, or all the Freeholds eſcheat, yet the Lord doth continue a good Lord, and able to make Copihold-eſtates of the Copihold-lands.

Diſſeiſor. Abator. In all caſes where the Lord may make Copihold-eſtates de novo, he may take Surrenders, and make Admittances. But in theſe caſes, and theſe perſons, a Diſſeiſor, Abator, or Intrudor in a Manor, the Heir or Feoffee of a Diſſeiſor, Grantee of a Tenant in tail, one that holdeth after his Eſtate is ended as a Feoffee or Leſſee upon Condition, after the Condition is broken; one that hath no Eſtate at all, or no good Eſtate, or the Copihold is deſtroyed; theſe cannot make any Copihold-eſtate by way of voluntary Grant, or take Surrenders and make new Grants accordingly. And yet it is thought, that a Diſſeiſor of a Manor, or any ſuch Lord that hath poſſeſſion only of a Manor, may make Admittances upon Deſcents, or do any ſuch like act, and that this will bind him that hath right, Co. 4. 27. 8. 63, 64. 1 par. 58. 74. Calthrop fol. 98. 94. 90. 91. Co. of Copiholds 36. 80. 87. Dyer 375.

Admittances. And yet if the Cuſtom be deſtroyed by granting away the Reverſion, or where there is one Copiholder only left; in this caſe he cannot make Admittances, or do any thing as Lord, Co. 4. 27.

Sect 3. 3. In reſpect of the Steward. To make a good Grant of Copihold-land, there muſt be a good Steward of the Court wherein the Eſtate is granted. And as touching this point, theſe things are to be known.

Ability. 1. Any man may be a Steward: And therefore if an Infant, Lunatick, Non compos mentis, Outlawed or Excommunicated perſon be made Steward, all Acts that he doth according to his Office are good.

2. He may be retained by word, as well as by Patent: Otherwiſe it is if it be a Stewardſhip of the Kings Court. And any colourable authority may be ſufficient to make a man a Steward to this purpoſe: Yea, it is held, that a Copihold granted by an Under-Steward without any authority from the Lord or High-Steward, is good, Co. 4. 3. of Copihold 126. 27. Calthrop f. 73.

Judg. 3. His authority is derived wholly from the Lord, whoſe perſon he doth repreſent; and under him in his abſence he is Judg of the Court.

4. He muſt do all in the Lords name: As if he take Surrenders, make Grants or Admittances, or give licence to alien where he hath ſpecial power from the Lord, or is enabled by ſpecial cuſtom ſo to do; he muſt do this in the Lords name, Co. of Copiholds 125.

5. The

5. The Steward cannot do ſo much as the Lord himſelf: For the Lord himſelf may make Grants or Admittances in what place he pleaſe without as well as within the Manor; but the Steward cannot do ſo without the Manor: And the Lord may give licence to his Tenant to alien his land by Deed; but it is doubted whether the Steward can ſo do or not in Court, without a ſpecial cuſtom of the place, or a ſpecial authority from the Lord to enable him thereto, Co. of Copiholds, *f.*124. Licence. Admittance.

6. This Office may be forfeit many ways. 1. By Abuſer; as if the Steward burn the Court-Rolls, or be corrupt in his Office, or the like. 2. Non-uſer; as when he is bound by his Patent to keep Courts at certain times in the year without requeſt, and the Lord be prejudiced by this omiſſion. 3. Refuſer; as if he be bound to keep Court upon demand, and do not, albeit the Lord have no prejudice by it, yet it is a Forfeiture, Co. of Copiholds, *f.*129. Forfeit.

7. The Steward may appoint an Under-ſteward. See for this, Co. of Copiholds, fol. 132. Under-ſteward.

Any one that may be a good Grantor in a Deed at Common-Law, may make a good Surrender or Grant of Copihold-land. And as to this point, theſe things are to be known. 4. In reſpect of the perſon that doth make the Grant or Surrender.

1. Any Body-Corporate or Politick, being Lord, may make a Grant; or being Tenant, may make a Surrender of Copihold-land:

2. Grants by Lords, and Surrenders by other Tenants, as Felons before Attainder, Baſtard, Hereticks, Lepers, deaf, dumb, or blind men, are good. Ability.

3. He that is not a good Grantor, cannot make a good Grant or Surrender of Copihold-land without a ſpecial Cuſtom to enable him thereunto. And hence it is, that Surrenders made by Infants, Aliens, Ideots, ſuch as are born deaf, dumb, or blind, and Women covert, Wives without Husbands, are not good. And yet it is held, that a Woman-covert being Jointenant with another, may ſurrender her own part to the uſe of her Husband. But I doubt much of this. *Co.*4.26,27. Co. 1 *par. f.*42. of *Copiholds f.*90. *Calthrop f.*93.

4. A Woman covert cannot ſurrender with her Husband, but ſhe muſt be firſt examined by the Lord or his Steward; and this cannot be by the Tenants, Calthrop 86, 87.

5. Such perſons as may grant or ſurrender, cannot grant more then they have. And therefore if the Copiholder be a Jointenant, he cannot grant but his own part: He that is Copiholder for life only, can ſurrender but for this life. And yet if there be two Jointenants of a Manor, and a Copihold eſcheat, and one of the Lords grant this Copihold alone; this is good to bind his Companion. Co. of Copiholds, fol. 91. Jointenants.

Any one that may be a good Grantee by Deed, may be a good Grantee by Copy, and a good Copiholder. And herein theſe things are to be known. 5. In reſpect of the perſon to whom, or to whoſe uſe it is made.

1. A Surrender or Grant of Copihold-land may be made to a Lunatick, Baſtard, man not of a ſound memory, perſon attaint of Felony, Major and Commonalty, Infant, Outlawed or Excommunicate perſon, Bondman or Feme-covert. But a Monk or Frier cannot be a Copiholder; and it is doubted whether an Alien born may be a good Copiholder, or not. *Perk. ſect.*52. Co. of Copiholds 97. *Calth. f.*52. Ability.

2. The Surrender to the uſe of a Feme-covert is good, till her Husband diſagree to it. Incertainty.

3. In caſe of an Infant or Feme-covert, as to the Lords ſervice; for the Infant, it muſt be done by the Gardein or Prochein-amy; and for the Wife, by the Husband. Infant.

4. The Lord ſhall retain the land of the Ideot or Lunatick, till he come to himſelf. So ſome ſay for the Infants lands till he be of age, *Calth. f.*52.65.

5. A Surrender may be of Copihold-land to the uſe of the Lord himſelf, and he may have a Copihold to his own uſe, Co. of Copiholds, *f.*94. Doubted by Calthrop, fol. 52.

6. The Husband may ſurrender to the uſe of his Wife, and by a ſpecial Cuſtom the Wife may ſurrender to the uſe of the Husband, Co. 4.21. 30. Of Copiholds, fol. 94. Husband and Wife.

7. One

Jointenant.

7. One Jointenant may ſurrender to the uſe of another Jointenant.

8. A Surrender may be of Copihold-land to the uſe of him that ſhall be Heir of J. S. or the next Child of J. S. or next Wife of J. S. or to him that J. S. ſhall name, is good; for nothing paſſeth till admittance. Otherwiſe it were of ſuch a Grant by Deed, Co. of Copiholds, f. 97, 98. Quære. And a Surrender to the uſe of the right heirs of J. S. being alive, is void.

9. A good Grantee may take by Attorney, Co. of Copihold, f. 95.

10. A Grant of Copihold-land may be to two or more, and they ſhall be Jointtenants, Kitch. f. 11.

6. In reſpect of the place where it is done.

The Lord of a Manor himſelf in perſon may make any Grant of Copihold-land, or take a Surrender, or make any Admittance hereof, or a Surrender or Deſcent in any place as well without as within the Manor, and as well without as within the Court. But the Steward muſt do it within the Manor, and in Court, or it is not good. And yet by a ſpecial Cuſtom of the place, a Surrender may be made to the Steward, or to ſome of the Tenants out of Court; and this is good.

7. In reſpect of the thing granted and ſurrendred.

The thing granted or ſurrendred, muſt be at the time of the thing done, parcel of the Manor. For the opening of which point, theſe things are to be known.

1. A Cuſtomary Manor which hath Copiholds within it, may be held of another Manor, and be granted by Copy as other Land may be, Co. 11. 18. So may Houſes, Lands, Meadows or Paſtures, and whatſoever doth concern them which is of perpetuity and parcel of the Manor, as a Common, Advowſon, or Fair appendant, the Veſture or Herbage of Land, Underwoods out of a great Wood, and that without the Soil, if they have been uſually demiſed for Copy. And if the thing granted be incertain, it may be made certain by Election, as in other caſes of Grants at Common-Law, Co. 1 par. Inſt. fol. 58. of Copiholds 117, 118. Co. 4. 31. 37. Idem 120.

But ſuch things as lie not in Tenure, as a Rent, Bailiwick, or Stewardſhip, Commons or Advowſons in groſs, which are incorporate Hereditaments, out of which no Rent can iſſue, are not grantable by Copy; ſo the Lords Demeſns never let by Copy, are not grantable by Copy. And yet if in this caſe the Lord grant them by Copy, he himſelf cannot avoid the Grant, but it will be good againſt him for his life. Quære how he ſhall plead it, as Grant by Copy, or by Leaſe-parol.

Sect. 6. Parcel of the Manor.

2. The thing granted muſt be at the time of the Grant made, parcel of the Manor; otherwiſe the Grant will not be good. And therefore if the Lord make a Leaſe for years of the Reverſion of one of his Copihold-Tenements, this Tenement during this Term is no part of the Manor, and therefore cannot be granted by Copy in the Lords Court. (Quære 1 Inſt. 325. a. Plow. Com. 103 b.) But this happily may be in time reunited to the Manor, and then grantable. But if a Feoffment be made with or without a Deed by the Lord of a Manor, of one Copihold-Tenement; by this the ſame is divided for ever from the Manor, and cannot be granted by Copy: And yet the Grant made before the ſeverance, is good. So if one grant his Manor, except one Acre, and after grant this Acre by Copy; this is not good, becauſe at the time of the Grant it was not parcel of the Manor, Co. ſuper Lit. 324, 325. Of Copihold 82. Dyer 281.

Demiſed or demiſable by Copy.

3. The thing granted muſt be demiſed, or demiſable time out of mind by Copy; (that is) it is either let by Copy at the preſent, or capable of being let by Copy; having been ſo let, and not by Leaſe, time out of mind. And if when it were laſt let, it was let by Copy, and be now come into the Lords hands, and he never let it for many years together by Deed or otherwiſe, this hindereth not but that it may be let by Copy.

And in this caſe it matters not how it came into the Lords hands, whether by Eſcheat or Forfeiture, or Surrender. And yet if the Lord purchaſe the Copihold of the Tenant, or it eſcheat, ſome have doubted if it be not extinct, and ſo not grantable again. (But upon little reaſon, as I conceive.) Calthrop, fol. 16. 86. 91. 90. Idem 55. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 58.

And

And if a Copiholder forfeit his Land by Waſte, and a Seiſure is awarded, but the Lord ſuffereth the Tenant to occupy the Land twenty years together, without receiving Rent, he may after grant it by Copy; but if after Seiſure awarded, a ſtranger, enter, diſſeiſe him, and make a Feoffment in Fee, and then the Lord re-enter, and grant it by Copy; this is not good by Calthrop, fol. 25. Quere for a diſſeiſing, and Feoffment, cannot alter the nature of the Land.

If a man will overthrow a Copihold Eſtate, under pretence that it hath been let by Indenture, or otherwiſe then by Copy, he muſt ſhew it to be within the time of mans memory: For if it hath been let by Copy for fifty or ſixty years, it will hardly be admitted to the contrary, Calthrop, fol. 19. 85.

The Heir of a Copiholder in Fee, hath before his Admiſſion, ſuch an Eſtate in the Land, that he may ſurrender it, or bring Treſpaſs; and if he die, his Heir ſhall have it by deſcent. Dyer 292. 302. Co. of Copihold. 4. 21.

8. In reſpect of the manner, and order of the Grant, and of Grants, Surrenders.

If a Copiholder ſurrender his Land, to the intent that a ſtranger may have a Rent out of it; this is not a good Copihold-Rent, by Calthrop, fol. 92.

No Copihold-Land can paſs from the Lord to his Tenant, nor from one Tenant to another, but by way of Grant, or Surrender in the Court of the Mannor, according to the cuſtom of the place; and as touching this point, theſe things are to be known.

Preſentments, and Admittances.

1. In ſome Grants a Surrender is ſufficient without Preſentment, or Admittance; in ſome an Admittance without a Surrender, or Preſentment; in ſome a Surrender and Admittance, are both neceſſary, and in ſome a Surrender Preſentment, and Admittance are all neceſſary. As if the Copi-holder Surrender to the Lords uſe, there needs no Admittance: And if a Lord make a voluntary Grant of a Copihold in his hands, no Surrender is needful, but Admittance onely. If the Copiholder ſurrender in Court to the uſe of a ſtranger; beſides the Surrender, Admittance is requiſit. And if the Surrender be made out of Court, to the Lord himſelf, which the general Cuſtom will Warrant, or into the hands of the Bailiff, or of two of the Tenants (which by ſpecial Cuſtom onely is warrantable.) In this caſe there muſt be, beſides the Surrender, a true Preſentment of the Surrender in Court, by the ſame perſons, into whoſe hands the Surrender was made, and an Admittance of the Lord, according to the effect of the Surrender, and Preſentment. Co. of Copihold. Sect. 38.

2. A Grant may be of Copihold-Land in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years, in Poſſeſſion or Reverſion, as the Cuſtom expreſly, or interpretatively will warrant it, Co. of Copihold. Sect. 47. But the Lord without a cuſtom, cannot grant a Copihold in Reverſion. 15 Car. B. R.

3. If the Lord having Copihold-Land in his hand, grant it by Deed, or Iſſue, to hold at Will, according to the Cuſtom of the Mannor; this is not good to make a Copihold-Eſtate. Calthrop, fol. 47.

Ancient Rent.

4. In all good Grants of Copihold-Eſtates, it ſeems the Antient-Rent muſt be reſerved, not onely in quantity, but in all beneficial qualities: And therefore it is held, That if the Antient-Rent were in Gold, and the new be in Silver; or the old were payable at four days, and the new be payable at two days: Theſe are not good Copihold Grants. But this it ſeems is to be underſtood of Copiholds of Inheritances, and Admittances into them. Co. of Copiholds, fol. 109, 110. Calthrop, fol. 88, 89, 81.

Sect. 7. Surrender.

A Surrender is the giving up of the Land by the Tenant to the Lord, according to the Cuſtom: And this is entred in this manner, Ad hanc curiam venit A de B. & ſurſum reddidit in eadem curia unum Meſuagium, & in manus domini ad uſum C. de D. & hæredum ſuorum (vel hæredum de corpore ſuo exeuntium,) vel pro termino vitæ ſuæ, &c. Et ſuper hoc venit prædictus C. de D. & cepit de domino in eadem curia Meſuagium prædictum, &c. Habendum & Tenendum ſibi & hæredibus ſuis (vel ſibi & hæredibus de corpore ſuo exeuntibus, vel ſibi ad terminum vitæ, &c.) ad voluntatem domini ſecundum conſuetudinem manerii, faciendo & reddendo inde redditus, ſervitia & conſuetudines, inde prius debita, & conſueta, & dat' domino pro fine, &c. & fecit domino fidelitatem, &c. Herein are many things to be known.

1. This may be Abſolute, or upon Condition; and it may be rendring Rent on condition of Re-entry for not payment. *Co.*4. 21, 30. And if he enter for the Condition broken, it is in him as at the firſt, without Admiſſion.

Cuſtom. 2. It may be to the Lord himſelf, or his Steward, or his Tenants, or his Reeve, or his Bailiff, as the cuſtom is. And it may be to the Lord out of Court, but it cannot be to the Steward out of Court, without a ſpecial Cuſtom to enable it. Mich. 37, 38 Eliz. Brights caſe.

3. It is in ſome Caſes neceſſary, and in ſome Caſes not. See for this afterwards.

4. When it is neceſſary, it muſt be made,

Firſt, By a Copiholder, and Admiſſion, otherwiſe it will not help.

Secondly, It muſt be made to the Lord, that can make Copihold-Eſtates, or ſome other to his uſe, as the Cuſtom is.

Thirdly, If it be out of Court, it muſt be preſented at the next Court according to Cuſtom.

Fourthly, The Lord muſt admit accordingly, or elſe (as ſome ſay) the Surrender is void. *Kitch.*82. 60. *Co.*4. 27. Co. 1 part. 61, 62. *Calthrop f.*97.

Words of Surrender. Fifthly, This cannot well be made by any other word, but by the word Surrender, and therefore if it paſs in the Court by the word, give, grant, bargain, or ſell; this will not paſs it, but the Heir of the Copiholder may avoid it. Co. of Copihold 103. And yet if a Copiholder come into the Court, and deſire the Lord to admit his Son into his Copihold; ſome think this is a good Surrender to the uſe of his Son. *Calthrop, fol.*57. But if the Tenant come to the Lord, and tell him that he is willing for his Sons preferment, that he ſhall have his Land preſently, and deſire the Lords agreement; who doth ſo, it is ſaid this is no good Surrender. And yet if the Homage do after preſent it for a Surrender, it is more queſtionable. Calthrop, f. 59. If a Copiholder in the preſence of other Copiholders of the Mannor, ſay, He is content to ſurrender his Copihold to the uſe of J. S. This is not a good Surrender. But if he ſay he doth ſurrender into the hands of the Lord, to the uſe of J. S. if the Lord will thereunto agree; this is a good Surrender, whether the Lord will or not. So if the Tenant reſign his Intereſt in the Court, into the Lords hands therewithal, for him to do what he will; it ſeems that this is a good Surrender. If the Copiholder ſay in the Court, he will be no longer Tenant to the Lord, and this be recorded; this is no Surrender. If a Copiholder for life, take a new Eſtate for life; this is a Surrender of his firſt Eſtate for life, but if the ſecond be by Deed. *Quere Calthrop, fol.*59.

Attorney. 5. A Surrender may be made of a Copihold, by Attorney, if there be no Cuſtom in the place againſt it; it is not of neceſſity that the Copiholder be preſent in Court. But if this power be by ſpecial Cuſtom, it cannot be done by Attorney: As if a Copiholder have a power to make a Leaſe for twenty years after his death; or an Infant Infant. have power to make a Leaſe at years of diſcretion, or a man may Surrender out of Court to the Tenants: Theſe things cannot be done by Attorney. Co. of Copihold, 93. *Co.*9. 76.

6. If a Copiholder in Fee, Surrender to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to the uſe of R. his Son for life, and after to the uſe of his laſt Will; this is a good Surrender, and the Eſtate may be made accordingly. *Co.*4. 23. But a Surrender after a mans death, to the uſe of a mans laſt Will, is not good. If a Copiholder in Fee, Surrender to the intent that the Lord ſhall re-grant to him for his life, the Remainder to his Wife, till his Son come to one and twenty years of age, and after to his Son in Tail; this is a good Surrender, and is to be executed accordingly. Dyer 251. And Jointenants. if two Joyntenants be, and one ſurrender his part out of Court, into the Lords hands to the uſe of his laſt Will, and by his Will deviſeth his part to a ſtranger in Fee, and die, and at the next Court this is preſented; this is a good Surrender, and by this the Joynture is ſevered, Co. 1 part. 59.

7. If a Surrender be to the Lord generally, without ſaying to whoſe uſe, it is good enough, Kytch. 81.

8. If the Copiholder Surrender to the uſe of another, and the Lord grant it to the Ceſtuy que uſe not naming the Surrender; this is good enough by *Calthrop, f.*99.

9. In

9. In a Surrender it matters not, whether the Partee to whoſe it be, be preciſely expreſſed, if by any circumſtance he may be known: And therefore a Surrender to the Archbiſhop of Canterbury, Major of London, next of his Kin, or next of his Blood, his Brother, his Siſter, or his Son may be good, and it may be made certain by Averment. So if it be to a mans Wife without warning of her, or to the high Sheriff of Norfolk: But a Surrender to the uſe of ones Couſin or Friend, is void for incertainty; ſo if it be to the uſe of three or four of Dale, or to the uſe of A. B. or C. D. Co. 4. 29. of Copihold 96. Incertainty.

10. The Surrender bindes the Land immediately, ſo as the Lord cannot avoid, or prevent the intention, nor prejudice him, that is to have it, by any act that he can do: And yet it is rather a manifeſting of the parties intention, then the paſſing of an Intereſt. For till Admittance, the Surrenderer is Tenant to the Land, and ſhall receive the profits to his own uſe, and he muſt perform the Services: And yet he cannot paſs the Land to any other, or make it ſubject to any incumbrance of his; nor hath the Grantee any intereſt to puniſh Treſpaſs, Surrender, &c. And yet he cannot be defeated of it; and he may compel the Lord to admit him, Co. 4. 26, 29. of Copihold, fol. 106. If I make a Surrender to the Lord Ea intentione, that he ſhall grant the Land to J. S. and the Lord refuſe to grant it accordingly; in this caſe I may re-enter upon the Lord: But J. S. hath no remedy, as in caſe where the Surrender is made to the uſe of J. S. by Calthrop. f. 61. Sect. 8. The operation of a Surrender.

11. A Surrender is not Countermandable by the Surrenderer; and yet if a Copiholder languiſhing in extremity, ſurrendreth his Land out of Court to the uſe of his Couſin, in conſideration of Blood, or to the uſe of his Son in conſideration of natural love, and after recover before Preſentment; happily this may be revoked. But if it be upon good conſideration, as for payment of debts, and for any ſum of money paid; though it be made out of Court, yet it is as binding, as if it were made in the Court. Co. of Copihold, f. 106. Countermand.

The Preſentment made out of Court, muſt be afterwards duly preſented at the Court, according to the Cuſtom of the Manor, in which theſe things are to be known. Preſentment.

1. This Preſentment is the Information of men, ſworn to the Lord or Steward, touching ſome things done out of Court.

2. This is either general, viz. of all things, and by the whole homage; or it is ſpecial, viz. by ſome Tenants, or of one, or ſome things onely.

3. This by the General Cuſtom, is to be made the next Court after the Surrender, but by the Cuſtom of ſome Manors, may be the ſecond or third Court after the Surrender; and if it be not then preſented according to the Cuſtom, it is void. Co. 1 part. 61, 62. Cuſtom.

4. This alſo muſt be made in all things according to the Surrender, otherwiſe it is not good: And therefore if the Surrender be Conditional, and the Preſentment abſolute, all is nought; and yet if the Surrender be rightly preſented, and the Entry of the Condition be omitted by the Steward, this upon proof may be holpen. Co. 1 part. 61, 62. of Copihold, f. 107.

5. No death will hurt the Preſentment, and therefore if the Surrenderer die, yet the Preſentment may be made after his death: And if he to whoſe uſe the Surrender is made, die before Preſentment, the Preſentment may be made thereof after his death; and thereupon his Heir ſhall be admitted. So if J. S. Surrender to the uſe of A. for life, the Remainder to B. and J. S. die, and A. die before the Preſentment made, and after the Preſentment is made; in this caſe he in Remainder ſhall be admitted. So if two Surrender to the uſe of two joyntly, and one of them die before Preſentment; in this caſe the other ſhall be admitted to the whole. So likewiſe if the Tenants that take the Surrender, die, the Lord may notwithſtanding upon the proof of it, take in the Tenant by Admittance. Co. 4. 39. of Copihold. Sect. 40. fol. 107. Co. 4. 28, 29. And yet if a Surrender be made to the Lord in the preſence of Tenants out of Court, and there the Lord doth grant it, but he dieth before this is preſented, or the Tenant admitted; this it ſeemeth is not good. Calthrop, fol. 46.

Admittance upon Grant or Surrender.

To the Perfection of the Copiholders Eſtate, admiſſion, as that without which no Eſtate paſſeth by the Surrender, is neceſſary; as touching which, theſe things are to be known.

1. This is the receiving of the Tenant into the Copihold by the Lord, or his Steward, according to the Cuſtom of the place; and it is thus entred, Ad hanc curiam J. S. petit admitti, &c. Quem dominus per ſeneſchallum admiſſit, & unde admiſſus eſt tenens. Co. of *Copihold, f.*125. *Calth. f.*62.

2. Some make it expreſs, and implied, (i.) by acceptance of Rent, *&c. Calth. f.*62. It is alſo either upon a voluntary Grant or Surrender, or upon a Deſcent. *Co.*1. 140.

3. It is a Judicial Act of the Lords, and in caſe of a voluntary Admittance, he is but an Inſtrument, and may be compelled according to the Cuſtom to do it; for he is not eſteemed as owner to any purpoſe, and therefore he cannot prejudice the Surrender in any caſe: And therefore as to this Act, the Lords Title to the Manor, whether he hath it by right or wrong, is not much conſiderable. Co. of *Copihold, f.*110.

4. This is neceſſary, for upon voluntary Grants and Surrenders, the Tenant hath nothing in the Land till Admittance, and upon Deſcents he is not perfect Tenant till his Admittance. Co. of *Copihold, f.*112, 113. Yet in this caſe of a Surrender to the Lords uſe, no Admittance is needful; and where there is an implicite Admittance, there needs no Expreſs Admittance: And where Tenant in poſſeſſion is admitted, he in the Remainder on the ſame Copy, need not to be admitted; and yet the Heirs of a Copartner muſt be admitted into a moyety, *Calth. f.*63, 64. And he that enters for a Condition broken, needs no Admittance. *Calth. f.*61. If a Copiholder for years, die, the Executor needs not be admitted, ſo neither the Husband of the Wife, Copiholder for years after her death, *Calth f.*95.

5. The Steward it is ſaid, may do it out of Court any where within the Manor, except there be any Cuſtom againſt it. *Kitch.*82. Co. of *Copihold, f.*123.

Sect. 9.

6. The Admiſſion muſt purſue the Surrender; yet in ſome caſes albeit it do differ from it, it is good enough; and therefore if the Surrender be to the uſe of J. S. for life, or to the uſe of J. S. generally, and the Lord doth admit him in Fee; this is a good Admittance for his life onely. And yet if the Surrender be on Condition, and the Lord omit the Condition, it is all void, Co. of *Copihold, f.*112. So if the Surrender be to the uſe of J. D. alone, and the new Grant and Admittance are to J. D. and J. B. This is good for J. D and void for J. B. Co. of *Copihold, f.*111, 112. So if the Surrender be reſerving ten ſhillings and the Admittance be reſerving twenty ſhillings, it is good for the ten ſhillings. But if the Surrender be reſerving twenty ſhillings, and the Admittance reſerving ten ſhillings, it is all naught; the contrary ſeems to be deduced from the caſe of Weſtwick, 4. Rep. 28. a, b. So if the Surrender be to the uſe of J. S. and the Lord admit J. G. and after admit J. S. It is ſaid in this caſe J. S. and J. G. ſhall have the Land together. But if the Surrender be to the uſe of J. S. alone, and the Lord admit J. G. alone; this is all void. *Co.*4. 28. of *Copihold, f.*111. If the Surrender be to the uſe of A. for life, the Remainder to B. and A is admitted; this is good for him in Remainder, *Co.*4. 23, 24.

Rent.

7. The Admiſſion muſt be according to the Cuſtom, yet if the Cuſtom will warrant the Womans eſtate durante viduitate onely, and the Lord admit for life, or the Lord admit not reſerving the Antient Rent in quantity or quality; this will not prejudice the Heir, but that he may avoid it. Co. of *Copihold, f.*109.

8. Admittance cannot make a bad Eſtate good, nor change the Cuſtom. Kitch. 82. 86. See more of this after at *Fine. Numb.*9. 10.

Upon a Deſcent.

The Heir of a Copiholder in Fee hath ſuch a Poſſeſſion, and is ſuch a Tenant before Admittance, that he may (paying the Lord his Fine, which may be afterwards) enter, take the profits, Surrender, or bring an Action of Treſpaſs; and if he die, the Heir ſhall have the Land, and there ſhall be a poſſeſſio fratris upon his Entry. And yet it hath been doubted, if a Copihold diſcend to a Feme-Covert, and the Husband take the profits, but ſuffer a Court day to paſs without Admittance, whether he ſhall be Tenant by the Courteſie, or not. Dyer 291, 292. *Calth.*60. But in Admittances upon a Grant, or Surrender; as if one Surrender to the Lord to the uſe of J. S. and the Lord grant it accordingly, it is otherwiſe; for there the Tenant hath nothing till Admit-

Admittance. But the Heir of a Copiholder ſhall not be ſworn of the Homage, nor bring a Plaint in the nature of an Aſſize, till Admittance. So that an Admittance in this caſe, is rather for the benefit of the Lord to help him to his Fine, then to ſtrengthen the Title of the Heir: But the Heir is in moſt places bound, under pain of Forfeiture of his Eſtate, or ſome other great penalty to be admitted, and therefore he muſt be admitted. Co. 4. 23. Dyer 291. Co. of Copihold, f 113, 114, 117. Calth. f. 62.

9. Upon every Admittance there is fealty due to the party admitting, by the party admitted; a thing inſeparable to the perſon, which cannot be done by deputy; and yet if the Lord will accept it, or diſpence with it altogether, it is will enough. Co. of Copihold, f. 95. 10. There is alſo a Fine due upon every Admittance: See after.

There is in moſt places a Ceremony uſed in the paſſing of the Lands; in ſome places there is the giving and taking of a Turff, and a Twig; in ſome places the giving and taking of a Glove; in ſome places the giving and taking of a Straw; in ſome places the giving and taking of the Hand; but in moſt places the Ceremony is by giving and taking of a Rod: And albeit the Grant, or Surrender may be good without this Ceremony, yet it is not ſafe to omit this. This the Copiholder that doth ſurrender, doth uſe to give to the Steward, or Bailiff, to deliver over to the party, to whoſe uſe the Surrender is made in the name of ſeiſing; and herein, Conſuetudo loci eſt obſervanda.

How Grants and Surrenders ſhall be taken.

1. If a Surrender be made to the Lord in general, without expreſſing to what uſe, it ſhall be taken to the Lords uſe, Kitch. 81.

2. The ſame conſtruction (for the moſt part) which the Law maketh upon words in a Deed, it will make upon a Copy; and therefore it is, that a Copihold Eſtate made to one, and his Heirs-males, or Heirs-females, is accounted a Fee-ſimple, though it be otherwiſe in the Kings Grant, Co. 4. 29. of Copihold, f. 139. So of a Grant to one & ſanguini ſuo hereditabili, or to a Major, or Commonalty, or other Corporation, where no eſtate is named. So if I Surrender to one and his Heirs, and he reciting this, doth ſurrender it to my uſe in the ſame manner as I ſurrendred to him. So if I ſurrender to J. S. as large an eſtate as he hath in the Manor of Dale, and he hath a Fee-ſimple in that Manor; in all theſe caſes, the Law will conſtrue it to be a Fee-ſimple, Co 4. 29. of Copihold, f. 139. Fee-ſimple.

If a Copihold be ſurrendred to a man & femini ſuo hereditabili de corpore, or to a man & heredibus ex ipſo procreatis, or to a man in frank-marriage with his Wife; in the firſt of theſe caſes, an Eſtate-Tail paſſeth without the word Heirs, in the ſecond without the word Body, and in the third without either, Co. 4. 29. of Copihold, f. 139. Fee-tail.

If a Copihold be granted to man in a Fee-ſimple, or to a man & ſanguini ſuo imperpetuum, or ſibi & aſſignatis ſuis imperpetuum, without the word Heirs, that is onely an Eſtate for life. So if ſuch a Grant had been to an Abbot, and his Heirs; ſo to J. S. and his Heirs, ſo long as J. D. ſhall live. And yet if the Grant be to J. S. and his Heirs, ſo long as ſuch a Tree ſhall grow in ſuch a ground, this ſhall be a Fee-ſimple. Co. as before. Sect. 10.

If this Land be granted to two men & heredibus without ſuis; by this no Inheritance is made, and they are Joyntenants for life onely; yet if it be granted to J. S. & heredibus without ſuis, hereby J. S. hath a Fee-ſimple, and not an Eſtate-tail. And if it be granted to a man & liberis, aut pueris ſuis de corpore; this is no Eſtate-tail for lack of the word Heirs. Co. as before. Joyntenants.

If the Grant be to a man, and the Iſſues-males of his Body; by this is made an Eſtate for life.

If this Land be granted to three habendum ſucceſſivè; by this they are Joyntenants, and ſhall take together, unleſs the Cuſtom (as in moſt places it doth) do otherwiſe conſtrue it. Co. as before.

If there be Copiholder for life, the Remainder to another in Fee, and the Copiholder for life, doth ſurrender to the uſe of another in Fee, and the Lord admit accordingly; by this there paſſeth an Eſtate for life onely. Co. of Copihold, f. 91. So if the Surrender be to the uſe of a ſtranger for life, and the Lord grant in Fee; this is good for life onely, Calth. f. 61. So if the Lord grant a Copihold for life, where an Eſtate in Fee is warrantable; and this Grantee doth ſurrender in Fee, to the uſe of a ſtranger, and the Lord admit him accordingly; by this it is ſaid the Fee doth not paſs, Co. of Copihold, f. 91. If the Surrender be to the uſe of the laſt Will, and the Surrender deviſeth it to two, and one of them onely is admitted according to the Will; by this both of them ſhall have it, Co. of Copihold, f. 98.

If one Copihold be between two Joyntenants in Fee, and one of them ſurrender his part out of Court to the Lord according to the Cuſtom, to the uſe of his laſt Will, by which he doth deviſe it to the uſe of a ſtranger in Fee, and dieth; and this is preſented at the next Court, hereby the Joynture is ſevered, and the Deviſee muſt be admitted to a moyety of the Lands, Co. ſuper Littl. 59.

Deſcent. If a Copiholder ſurrender to the uſe of his Wife for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband and Wife, the Wife dies, and the Husband doth ſurvive; in this caſe, if he hath no Iſſue by his Wife, his Heir ſhall have it, by the opinion of Calthrop, f. 82. And yet if the Wife hath Iſſue by another Husband, it is doubted, and it is ſaid, That the Husband and the Heirs ſhall have the Land; yet if the Husband had firſt two Sons, the Heirs of the Husband, and Heirs of the Wife, ſhall have the Land in Common after the deceaſe of the Wife, Calth. f. 83.

If Land be given for life, the Remainder to two men and their Heirs, in this caſe they cannot have one Heir; and therefore if the Tenant of life, die before them in Remainder, they ſhall be Joyntenants. But if neither of them be alive when the Tenant for life dies, then the Heirs of them in Remainder, ſhall hold in Common. Calth f. 84.

If a Copihold be ſurrendred to the uſe of J. S. and his Heirs, till he marry A. G. and then to the uſe of them two in ſpecial Tail; this is good, and ſhall enure accordingly. Calth f. 22.

If a Copiholder ſurrender to the uſe of a ſtranger, in conſideration that the ſtranger ſhall marry his Daughter before ſuch a day; in this caſe, if the marriage ſucceeds not, the ſtranger ſhall take nothing by the Surrender. But if the conſideration be, that the ſtranger ſhall pay ſuch a ſum of money, at ſuch a day; albeit the money be not paid, yet the Surrender is good. Calth. f. 37.

If the Copiholder in conſideration of twenty pound to be paid by J. S. doth make a Surrender of his Land to N. R. This Surrender ſhall be to the uſe of J. S. and not to the uſe of N. R. But if in the Copy the uſe be expreſſed to N. R. and no conſideration mentioned, the uſe expreſſed ſhall ſtand againſt any Conſideration to be averred. Calth. f. 37.

If a Copiholder ſurrender his Land to the uſe of J. S. ſo that J. S. pay twenty pound at ſuch a day, if he pleaſe; this is an abſolute, not a conditional Surrender, Calth. f. 39.

9. In reſpect of the payment of the Fine, and of a Fine. The payment of the Fine by the Tenant, is neceſſary to the continuance, but not to the creation of the Eſtate, for the Eſtate is made perfect without the Fine payment: But for the more full underſtanding hereof, theſe things are to be known.

1. A Fine is a ſum of money to be paid of Common-right to the Lord for an In-come into the Lands; and this is ſometimes by the change, or alteration of the Lord, and ſometimes by the change of the Tenant, the change of the Lord cannot produce a Fine, except it be by the act of God; but by the change of the Tenant, be it either by the act of God, or by the act of the party a Fine may be due.

2. This in ſome places is certain, and in other places incertain; and where it is certain, the Lord cannot increaſe it, and where it is incertain, yet it muſt be reaſonable.

Cuſtom. Admittances. 3. By general Cuſtom this is to be paid onely upon Admittances, but it may be alſo by ſpecial Cuſtom upon Licences granted to Demiſe by Indenture.

4. The Fine is to be paid upon Admittances, in theſe caſes following, viz. Where the Lord after a Copihold come into his hands, and he make a voluntary Admittance; and where a Copiholder doth Surrender to the uſe of a ſtranger, and the Lord doth admit admit him, to whoſe uſe the Surrender is made, and where a Copihold of Inheritance deſcendeth, and the Heir is to be admitted: So where the Wife is to come in as Tenant in Dower, or the Husband as Tenant by the Courteſie: And ſo alſo, where one doth enter as a general, or ſpecial Occupant. And ſo alſo where the Copihold-Lands of a Bankrupt are to be ſold upon the Statute of the 13 Eliz. 1. In all theſe caſes the Tenant is to be admitted and to pay a Fine. So alſo if a Copihold be ſurrendred to the uſe of one for life, the Remainder to the uſe of another, and the Tenant for life die, he in Remainder muſt pay Fine upon his Admittance; ſo where the habendum of the Grant is ſucceſſive, and one of them die, the next muſt be admitted, and pay Fine.

So if two Copartners or Tenants in Common be, and one die, and the whole deſcend to the other, there muſt be Fine upon the Admittance. But if there be two Joyntenants, and one of them die, and the other come to the whole by Survivorſhip, or one take a Wife, a Copiholder in Fee, or marry with the Termer of a Copiholder, or a Copiholder be diſſeiſed, or then enter upon the Diſſeiſor, or recover by Plaint in the nature of an Aſſize; or a Copiholder in Fee, ſurrender for life, reſerving the Reverſion, and the Leſſee for life dieth; or a Copihold be granted on Condition, and the Condition is broken, and the Granter re-entreth; or the Lord enter upon a Villain that hath purchaſed a Copihold; or the Bailiff is by Cuſtom to have the Wardſhip of an Infant: In all theſe caſes there needs no Admittance, and therefore no Fine is to be paid. Sect. 11.

And yet if a Copiholder die ſeized, and a ſtranger abateth, and the Heir recovereth by Plaint, in the nature of an Aſſize of Mort Danceſter; upon this Recovery an Admittance is to be made, and therefore a Fine is to be made. Co. of Copihold, Sect. 56. in toto. The reaſonableneſs or unreaſonableneſs of the Fine muſt be ſet down and determined by the Judges, and not by a Jury; and therefore if it be unreaſonable, it muſt be ſet forth in the pleading by the Tenant, Hobbard. pl. 179.

5. The Lord muſt demand his Fine, as he muſt his Rent, at the time, or after it doth become due before any forfeiture can be, Hobbard. pl. 180.

6. If the Lord uſe to take for his Fine, ſometimes two pence, ſometimes four pence, ſometimes ſix pence an Acre; this is ſo uncertain, that it ſhall be ſaid to be Arbitrary, Calthrop, f. 25.

The Steward of the Court muſt take care to Record, and Inrol all the Conveyance of Eſtates; for ſome have held, That if the Lord in open Court grant a Copihold-Eſtate, and no Entry is made hereof in the Court Rolls; that the Grant is not good, and that no Collateral proof will make it good. Calthrop. f. 47. But if the Tenant have no Copy, or loſe his Copy, the Roll of the Court is a good Evidence. And if theſe Rolls be loſt, it is thought clearly it may be ſupplied by proof, Calth. f. 47. 10. In reſpect of Entry in the Rolls of the Court.

And yet if By-laws be made and entred on the Rolls, and the Rolls be loſt, the By-laws are gone, otherwiſe it is of Cuſtoms and Priviledges, inrolled and loſt. Idem. By-Laws. Cuſtoms.

That the Grant made by Copy of Court Roll may be good, it muſt be made according to the Cuſtom of the Mannor, and that Cuſtom muſt be according to Law: but as touching Cuſtoms, theſe things are to be known. 11. In reſpect of Cuſtom, and of Cuſtoms.

1. A Cuſtom is a Law, or Right not written, which being eſtabliſhed by long uſe, and the conſent of our Anceſtors hath been, and is daily practiſed. Cuſtom. What.

2. Though Cuſtom, Preſcription, Uſage, and Limitation, be much of Affinity, and one of them be taken for another, yet they differ much: For

1. Cuſtom can have no beginning ſince mans memory, but Preſcription may. Preſcription.

2. Cuſtom toucheth many men in Common, that they by continuance of time have gotten a Right; and this is alleaged thus, That in ſuch a place is ſuch a Cuſtom, but Preſcription toucheth this or that man, when he by continuance of time hath obtained a Right againſt another man; and this is Perſonal, and alleaged in the name of ſome perſon in Certain, thus. That he and his Anceſtors, and thoſe whoſe Eſtates he hath time out of minde, &c.

3. Uſage

Vſage. 3. Uſage is the Efficient cauſe, or life of both, for both loſe their being, if Uſage fail. Calthrop. f. 17. Co. of Copihold, Sect. 33.

Limitation. 4. Limitation is where a Right may be obtained by reaſon of a Non-claim, by the ſpace of a certain number of years, differing in account of time from Cuſtom and Preſcription.

1. The meaſure whereof is ſo long, as mans memory cannot remember the contrary, that is, That no man alive hath heard, or knoweth any thing to the contrary. But Limitation hath a certain time of beginning and end.

2. Cuſtoms are either general, as which is part of the Common Law uſed in all places alike; or particular, which are uſed onely in ſome places; as in Kent, North-Wales, Gavelkinde, Burrough-Engliſh. And theſe again are either diſallowing what general Cuſtoms do allow: As that the Copiholder ſhall not ſell his Land to a ſtranger, and compel the Lord to admit him, till he hath firſt offered it to the next of blood, or the next of kin, or next neighbor ab oriente ſolis; who giving as much as the party to whom the ſurrender is made, ſhall have it: Or elſe they be ſuch as do allow what general Cuſtoms do diſallow. As for a Copiholder to let his Land by Deed for longer time then a year without Licence, which by the Cuſtom of ſome Mannors he may do. Conſuetudo ex certa cauſa rationabili uſitata privat Communem legem. Co. of Copihold. Sect. 33.

Sect. 12. 3. To know what Cuſtoms are good, and what not, theſe Rules muſt firſt be taken.

Firſt, Cuſtoms and Preſcriptions muſt be reaſonable, 2 Ed. 4. 24.

Secondly, They muſt be according to Common Right, 42 Ed. 3. 4.

Thirdly, They muſt be upon good conſideration, 5 Hen. 7. 9.

Fourthly, They muſt be compulſary, not voluntary, 42 Ed. 3. Avowry 66.

Fifthly, They muſt be certain. 13 Ed. 3. 4.

Sixthly, They muſt be beneficial to them that claim them, 31 Ed. 3. Preſcription 40. 28.

Seventhly, It cannot help a man to that which is gained onely by matter of Record.

Eightly, It cannot extend to a thing newly created.

Ninthly, They need not be uſed daily and hourly, but according to time and occaſion. Calthrop, f. 22. 21.

Tenthly, Non uſer, as if the Lord hath been uſed to have Work-days, and have not had them for twenty years together; this will not hurt the Cuſtom. Calthrop, f. 25.

Eleventhly, Cuſtom may oppoſe the Common Law, but not a Statute Law. Calthrop. f. 87.

Hence it is, that theſe following Cuſtoms are not allowed to be good, viz. That no Tenant ſhall uſe his Common by putting in of his Cattle in Campis ſeminatis, after ſeverance of the Corn, till the Lord put in his Cattle; for he may chuſe, if he will, to put in at all.

To have a Fine for a Treſpaſs, or other Cauſe. That if any mans Beaſts be taken Damage-Feſant on the Lords Demeans, he may keep them till the owner give him ſuch as he ſhall pleaſe; for this is to make him Judg in his own caſe: And if the Cuſtom be, that if the Copiholder Treſpaſs him, and it be preſented at Court, that this ſhall be a forfeiture is good. Calthrop. fol. 29.

That every Copiholder ſhall pay the Lord a certain ſum of money for every Court he keeps; or that he ſhall never keep a Court, till when it pleaſe him; for this Court being to do Juſtice, muſt be gratis. And yet ſuch a Cuſtom alleaged to be for the keeping of an extraordinary Court, is good.

That every ſtranger that ſhall make a pound breach, ſhall pay one pound; and yet it is held, that a Cuſtom laid, that every Tenant that ſhall make a pound breach, ſhall forfeit five pounds. Calthrop. f. 31.

That every one that rides through the Kings High-way, within the Mannor, muſt pay the Lord ſuch a ſum of money. And yet if it be, that every one that paſſeth over ſuch a Bridg within the Mannor, which the Lord doth maintain; it is good enough.

That

That every Copi-holder that doth marry, or ſhall marry his Daughter, ſhall pay ſo much to the Lord for a Fine; and yet where the Cuſtom doth admit the Husband Tenant by the Courteſie, and Wife to be Tenant in Dower, or to have Widows eſtate of the Copihold; that in theſe Caſes they ſhall pay a Fine, is a good Cuſtom.

That every Copi-holder ſhall hold his Land, without paying any Rent, or Service to his Lord. And yet it is held a good Cuſtom to preſcribe by Fealty, for all manner of Services is held good. Calthrop, f. 29. So a Cuſtom may be good to exempt one Tenant from that, which all the reſt of the Tenants do bear, and good. Calthrop, f. 77.

That every Copiholder ſhall give to the Lord, ſo much in the time of War, every moneth to bear his charges: And yet if it be that he ſhall pay ſo much to the Lord, for this purpoſe it is good; the reaſon of the difference is, becauſe a payment is Compulſory, a Gift voluntary. Incertainty.

That when one Copiholder dieth, another of the Copiholders (and ſay not which) ſhall hold the Land for the year following: And yet if it be, that if a Copiholder die without Heir, the eldeſt Tenant of that name within the Manor ſhall have the Land; this is good. Calthrop, f. 31.

A Cuſtom, that if any Copiholder commit Felony, and it be preſented by the Homage, that the Lord may take and ſeiſe the Land, was ruled good. Brownl. 2 part. 217. See a Cuſtom, That a married Wife, Copiholder, might ſurrender to the uſe of her laſt Will, and after might deviſe to her Husband, was adjudged good. 24 Eliz. Skegs caſe. Brown. 3 part. 218.

That the Lord ſhall have for his Fine, two pence Rent an Acre, and when he pleaſe, four pence an Acre: And yet happily if the Lord preſcribe to have two pence an Acre Rent, in time of peace, and four pence in time of War; this may be certain enough, and good. For Fine.

That a Copiholder ſhall cut down what Timber he pleaſeth, fire, pull down, or deſtroy the houſes, or let them fall; and yet happily a Cuſtom, that the Tenant ſhall have neceſſary Fire-boot, &c. That he may fell Under-woods and Shrouds; may be good. To do Waſte.

That every Tenant ſhall pay a Fine at every Alienation of the Lord: And yet if it be, that every Tenant ſhall pay a reaſonable Fine at the Lords death; or that a Fine ſhall be paid at every death, or alienation of the Tenant; or that the Lord ſhall admit without Fine; if the Uſage have been ſo. Calthrop, fol. 40. To pay a Fine.

That if the Copiholder do not repair, he ſhall be amerced, and it ſhall be levied by Diſtreſs, is a good Cuſtom; but that for this, he ſhall diſtrain any mans Cattle, beſides his own, upon the Land, is ſomewhat doubtful. March 161.

That the Copiholder may lop the Trees, growing upon his Copihold for neceſſary fire, and Reparations is good: And if he hath been uſed to do ſo, it is good, and he may do it without alleaging a ſpecial Cuſtom for it. Brownl. 1 part. 23 1. 87.

Theſe, and the like Cuſtoms as before are allowed to be good; but theſe following Cuſtoms are not diſallowed, viz.

That the Wife of a Copiholder ſhall during her life, or Widows Eſtate hold all the Land.

That the Tenant ſhall have Common in the Lords Waſtes.

That if he that hath Right, claim not the Land within a year, and a day after the Anceſtors death, he ſhall loſe it; and yet this will not binde an Infant. Sect. 13.

That the Lord may grant for one two or three lives in Reverſion.

That a Surrender may be made to the Bailiff, or Reeve, or two or more Tenants out of Court.

That the Surrender made by the Tenant in Tail, ſhall bar the Iſſue in Tail. To make Surrender.

That the Lord may keep his Court at another of the Manors.

That the Lords Steward, or Bailiff, may grant Copihold-Eſtates to the Tenants.

That a Feme-Covert may grant her Copihold-Eſtate to her Husband by Surrender.

That an Infant of years of diſcretion may Surrender.

That a new Tenant ſhall pay a Fine to the Lord, as he can agree upon his Admittance.

That Proclamation be made three Courts one after another; and if the Heir come not, and pay his Fine for Admittance, he ſhall loſe the Land. M. 7 Jac. B. R. Lyfords caſe.

That the Copiholder may let for longer time, then one year without Licenſe.

To Surrender out of Court. That an Inheritance ſhall paſs by Surrender in the Lords Court, without his leave, and be delivered over by the Bailiff to the Feoffee, according to the Deed to be inrolled in Court.

If the Lord preſcribe, that whoſoever take a Diſtreſs within his Manor, he muſt have him in his pound for a time; this is not good, for it is no benefit to him. But if he adde further, that the Lord is to have ſo much for the impounding, it is good.

To grant Copihold Eſtates. A Cuſtom to grant Copihold-Eſtates in Reverſion, is good; for without ſuch a Cuſtom, it ſeems Copiholds are not grantable in Reverſion. March 6. pl. 13.

Preſcription. The Lord may not preſcribe to have Felons Goods, Fugitives Goods, Deodands, becauſe they cannot be forfeit, till they appear of Record. But Waiffs, Eſtrayes, Wreck, and ſuch like things, may be gained to the Lord by Preſcription; for they may be gained by Uſage, without matter of Record.

That the Wife of the Copiholder ſhall be Tenant in Dower, Husband Tenant by the Courteſie (a quere may as well be made of this, as of Intailing Copiholds; ſince this Tenant by Elegit, &c. commenced by Statute, which is within the memory of man) or a ſtranger Tenant, by Statute merchant (and ſo no Cuſtom can be of it. Co. of Copihold Sect. 47.) or Staple of the Land in the hand of the Copiholder, are good Cuſtoms, Co. of Copihold, 136.

To make Leaſes. That the Tenant may make a Leaſe for twenty years after his death, is a good Cuſtom. Co. of Copihold. f. 93.

To pay Rent. That the Tenants ſhall pay the Lord every fourth year, the double Rent, and every ſixth year an half years Rent, is a good Cuſtom. So that when they ſow their Land, they ſhall pay their Rent in Corn, and when they feed it, in money, is a good Cuſtom. Calthrop, f. 25. Goldsb. pl. 8.

It is a good Cuſtom to Demiſe for longer time then a year, but without ſuch a Cuſtom, the Copiholder cannot let for longer time then for one year without Licence of the Lord, Brownl. 1 part. 133.

How they ſhall be taken. All Cuſtoms, eſpecially ſuch as are in derogation of the Common Law, are taken ſtrictly, but not literally. And therefore where a Cuſtom is, that a man may grant in Fee; by this he may grant in Tail, or for life: So where the Cuſtom is, that the Lord may grant for life, by this he may grant Durante viduitate cui licet quod majus, non debet quod minus eſt non licere, ſed non è converſo. But where the Cuſtom is, that the Wife of the firſt taker ſhall have her Widow-hood; by this the Wife of the ſecond ſhall not have it. Co. 4. 30. of Copihold, 70. 77.

To make Eſtates. If the Cuſtom be, that the Copihold-Land may be leaſed by the Lord, Vel ſupervisor', vel deputat' ſupervisor', the Lord cannot by this Teſtament, appoint, authoriſe one to keep Courts, and make Eſtates. Co. 4. 30. of Copihold, fol. 35.

To pay Money. If there be a Cuſtom, that for every houſe in the Manor two ſhillings Fine ſhall be paid. If the Tenant maketh one houſe into two houſes, or maketh a new houſe, no Fine ſhall be paid for theſe new houſes.

Common. So if I have Eſtovers Appendant to my houſe, and I build a new houſe, I ſhall not have Eſtovers to this new houſe. But if I onely change the Rooms, my Eſtovers do continue.

So it is of a Water-courſe to a Fulling-Mill, converted to a Corn-Mill, or of a Light in an Hall converted to a Parlor. Co. 4. 32. Littl. Sect. 74.

Proof of it. The proof of theſe Cuſtoms and due preſident, as to prove Leaſes, may be made for longer time then a year, to ſhew one Leaſe, is no proof of a Cuſtom.

In

In Cuſtom there is Uſer. Loſt.

1. When according to time and occaſion it is uſed.

2. Non Uſer; i. When for want of time and occaſion, through negligence, or forgetfulneſs, it is not uſed; this will not hurt the Cuſtom: And therefore if there be a Cuſtom that the Tenants ſhall do work for the Lord yearly, and it hath not been done for divers years; yet the Cuſtom remaineth, if any man living can remember it hath been done. And ſo it is, if one have a Market one day a week, and do not keep it.

3. If the Tenant uſe to pay the Lord when they ſowe their Land, Rent-Corn, and when they feed it, money, or to pay the Lord every fourth year a double Rent, and every ſixth year an half Rent; this is a good Interuſer. For payment of Rent.

4. Abuſer is where the Tenant doth put in other Cattle, or more Cattle in the Lords Soil then he ought; this doth not deſtroy the Cuſtom, but this is finable at the Lords Court. And ſo it is, if the Lord hath a Fair or Market one day of the week, and he keep it another day; this is not a forfeiture of the Cuſtom. And yet if he hath it two days, and keep it three days; this is held to be a Forfeiture. Calth. f. 43, 44. See more to this in the next Queſtion.

For the clearing of this point, theſe things are to be known. 5. When and how a Copihold ſhall be ſaid to be deſtroyed or ſuſpended.

1. The Copihold is deſtroyed and gone in all theſe caſes following. i. When the Copihold is either by act of Law, or act of the Lord, or the Copiholder, or Tenant, become not demiſable by Copy: As for example, If the Lord by Fine, or Feoffment, or otherwiſe, by Deed grant the Reverſion of one, or ſome of the Copihold Tenements, of the Manor in Fee, or for Leaſe to me; by this it is gone. And in this caſe alſo it is ſo gone, that no Acceptance of Rent, or Admittance of the Tenant, after will revive it. But if the Lord grant the Reverſion of all his Copihold Tenements; by this the Manor is not deſtroyed. Co. 4. 27. of Copihold, f. 176.

Or, if when the Copihold is come into the Lords hand, he do by Fine, Feoffment, or Recovery, paſs away the Fee, or make a Leaſe for life, or years of the Land, or ſuffer it to be extended on a Statute, or Elegit of his own acknowledgment; or if after it come into the Lords hands he die, and if it be afterward aſſigned to his Wife in Dower; by this in theſe caſes, the Cuſtom is deſtroyed for this Land. Co. 2. 17. Calth 91. Goldsb. 206. pl. 246.

If one that hath a Manor of Copiholds, doth grant away one Copihold for life; it ſeems the Cuſtom is gone for this Copihold, March. 206. pl. 246. So if the Lord by Deed do grant and confirm to the Copiholder, his Eſtate by Copy is gone, Brownl. 1 part. 220. Or if the Lord or his Leſſee of the Manor, doth make Leaſe of the Copihold to the Copiholder, or make a Feoffment abſolute or conditional to the Copiholder of the Copihold; the which he doth accept. If the Lord make a Leaſe for years to the Copiholder himſelf; this doth determine the Copihold. But if he make a Leaſe for years to another, and he aſſign it to the Copiholder, it is doubted. Goldsb. 34. 9. March 206. pl. 246. Goldsb. 34. pl. 9. Or if the Lord make a Leaſe of the Manor to the Tenant for life, the Remainder to a ſtranger; by either of theſe alſo it is gone, Dyer 114. Kitch. 82. Or (as ſome ſay) if the Copihold come into the Lords hand by Eſcheat, or the Lord purchaſe the Copihold; but this opinion is diſallowed. Calth. 90. 88. 91. But if the Lord grant part of the Copiholds onely, by this it is clear the Manor is gone, and Cuſtom deſtroyed. Adjudged, 29 Eliz. Calth. 99. And where the Copihold is extinguiſhed, the Land can never be afterward granted by Copy. If there be a Leaſe for years of the Manor, and one of the Copiholders doth purchaſe the Reverſion in Fee; by this the Copihold is deſtroyed, and the Leſſee of the Manor ſhall out the Copiholder, and have the Land for the time. Calth. f. 97. And yet if the Copiholder accept a Leaſe for years of the Manor, or marry with the Wife of the Lord; by this the Copihold is not extinct, but it is ſuſpended. And if a Copihold be in hand, and the Lord alien by Fine, or Feoffment, or make a Leaſe of the Manor for years; by this it is extinct. A. was ſeized of a Manor in which were Copiholds, and he took to Wife M. and died ſeized, and ſhe ſued for Dower by the name of a hundred Meſuages, and one hundred Acres of Land, &c. and was endowed accordingly of part of the Demeſns, and part of the Copihold Services; in this case it was adjudged, the Copihold was gone, at least, during her Estate, and that she could not grant Copihold Estates upon the Copihold Land: But perhaps if she had demanded and recovered by the name of a third part of a Manor, it had been otherwise, and she might have had a Manor. Goldsb. 37. pl. For the Grant of a Copihold cannot be without a Manor. And if a Copihold be granted to three for their lives, and the first of them take an Estate by Deed, with Livery of Seisin from the Lord; by this, the Copihold for that life is at least suspended. Dyer 30. *Co.*4. 31. But the Copihold is neither extinct, nor suspended in these following cases. viz.

Sect. 14. Where the Copihold is Surrendred, Forfeit, or doth Escheat into the Lords hands, and the Lord doth keep it in his own hands, or let it at Will onely; or the Tenant having Licence from the Lord, make a Lease to a stranger according to his Licence, or without Licence make a Lease to the Lord, *Co.*4. 30. So where the impediment is tortious, as if the Lord be disseised, and the Disseisor die seized; or the Land be recovered by false Verdict, or erroneous Judgment, and afterwards is recontinued. *Quod contra legem fit pro infecto habetur; non valet impedimentum, quod de jure non sortitur effectum. Co.*4. 31. of *Copihold, f.*178.

But in all the cases before where the Copihold is gone, by Grant of the Reversion, it is not so gone, but that the Tenant shall hold his Estate still, and subject to Forfeiture as before; and he must still perform the same services (suit of Court excepted) as before, and the Customs incident to the Land, as if it be Burrow-English or Gavelkinde continue still. But Fine upon Alienation and Admittance is gone, and the Tenant cannot now surrender or pass his Estate by any way, but by a Decree in Chancery; and this will binde the person onely. *Co.*4. 25. of Copihold, fol. 17. 6.

6 What Acts amount to the Forfeiture of a Copihold Estate, nd how.

Of Acts which amount to a Forfeiture, some are Forfeitures ipso facto & eo instanti, that they are done, such are offences apparent, and notorious; of which the Lord by common presumption, cannot but have notice: Some are no Forfeitures, till a Presentment be made thereof. Other Acts there are which are offences, but are not such as cause a Forfeiture; yet are they Finable to the Lord.

Of the first sort are these following Acts.

1. By not coming in to take his Land. Admission.

If by special Custom upon the descent of any Copihold of Inheritance, the Heir be bound upon three solemn Proclamations at three several Courts, to come in and be admitted into his Copihold, and he cometh not; this is a Forfeiture if he do not come, this is ipso facto a Forfeiture. Calthrop, f. 69. Co. of *Copihold, f.*164. And yet if a Copiholder enter before Admittance, this is no Forfeiture without a special Custom for it.

2. By denying of Suits of Court.

So if a Copiholder being sufficiently warned to appear at the Court Baron of the Manor, and he wilfully make default, having no excuse for his absence: And this absence is greater, if he do wilfully refuse to come; or being come to be sworn of the homage, or being sworn to present; or if he depart without Presentment; as if thirteen be sworn, and twelve present, and one refuse: But if a Copiholder be hindred by sickness, waters, debts, or the like; his default is no Forfeiture, but otherwise it is ipso facto, a Forfeiture. Dyer 211. 31. *Calth. f.*67. Dyer 233. 9. *H.*6. 44. So if he swear in Court, he is none of the Lords Copiholders, or being required to be sworn of the Homage, refuse it for that cause: This it seems is a Forfeiture, and that without Presentment.

So if the Steward shew a Roll, whereby the Tenant is proved a Copiholder, and the Tenant say he is a Freeholder, and shew a Deed to that purpose, and tear in pieces the Court Roll: this is such a Forfeiture. And yet if there be a doubt in it, and the Copiholder do his service with a Protestation, that it may be recorded, as it shall fall out; this is no Forfeiture, nor Finable. So if he speak unreverent words of the Lord in the Court, as if he say, he doth exact and extort unreasonable Fines, and undue Services that is onely Finable: So if he say, he will devise a means to be no longer his tenant; this is neither a Forfeiture, nor Finable.

3. By non-payment of the Fine.

Where the Fine upon Admittance is certain, if after Admittance it be upon demand denied, or not paid, or where the Fine is uncertain, and the Lord hath set a reasonable reaſonable Fine, and the Tenant doth not pay it in a reaſonable time after demand; in theſe caſes, it ſeems there is a Forfeiture: But it is no Forfeiture in him to deny the payment, if it be ſet unreaſonable. And of this point the Judges, not the Jewry ſhall be Judge; and yet of this alſo, ſome hold there muſt be a Preſentment, before there can be a Forfeiture. Co. 4. 27, 28. Calth. f. 67. Trin. 4 Jac. B. R. But no Forfeiture can be by this, without demand, made at, or after the time of the Fine ſet, ſo alſo of a Rent. Hobbard, Rep. pl. 179. Demand.

If a Copiholder ſue a Replevin againſt the Lord, diſtraining for his Rent, or Service; this is ſuch a Forfeiture. Co. of Copihold. f. 165. So if the Lord bring Treſpaſs againſt the Tenant, and he plead it his Freehold. 4. By bringing a Replevin.

And yet if the Copiholder doubting of the truth hereof, whether it be due or not, intreateth of the Lord, that the Jewry may enquire thereof; this is no Forfeiture. 5. By Pleading.

If a Copiholder for life ſuffers a recovery by Plaint in the Lords Court, as Copiholder of Inheritance; this is ſaid to be ſuch a Forfeiture. And yet if ſuch a Copiholder ſurrender in Fee; this is no Forfeiture. 6 By ſuffering a Recovery.

So if Copiholders in Fee, make Partition; this is no Forfeiture. Calthrop, fol. 98.

If the Lord demand his Rent of the Copiholder, and he deny to pay it, or he delay to pay it, without the Lords Agreement; or if the Lord come upon the Land, and there continue demanding of the Rent, and it is not paid; this is ſuch a Forfeiture: For the Copiholder knowing the time of payment, is to provide it againſt that time. And this alſo by a ſpecial Cuſtom may be a Forfeiture before the Admittance of the Tenant. Co. of Copihold, fol. 167. Mich. 7 Jac. B. R. But to demand it after the day, can be no Forfeiture. Brownl. 1 part. fol. 143. 7. By not paying Rent.

Waſte in a Copiholder is either voluntary or permiſſive. If a Copiholder commit voluntary Waſte, as if he pluck down any ancient built Houſe, or build a new Houſe, and then pull it down again, or Plough up Meadow-ground, ſo that the ground is thereby made worſe; or cut more Timber then there is need of, or being cut, doth miſ-imploy it, or doth not employ it in due time; or lop the Trees, and ſell the loppings; or cut down any Fruit-trees for fewel, having other Wood ſufficient; or behead Trees, or break the Boughs, ſo as the Bodies do thereby putrifie. All theſe things are Forfeitures, and yet the cutting and carrying away Shrouds, or Underwood is no Forfeiture, without a ſpecial Cuſtom to make it ſo. 8. By doing Waſte.

So if the Tenant hath a Grant of the Trees, or a Licence to cut down Trees; in this caſe it is no Forfeiture. But otherwiſe in theſe and ſuch like caſes without a ſpecial Cuſtom (which ruleth much herein) to enable the Act, it is a Forfeiture. 9 H. 4. 12. Calth. fol. 68. 36, 37 Eliz. Co. B. Co. 4. 27. of Copihold, fol. 168. Calth. 98. Co. 1. 63. And theſe things will be a Forfeiture, when they be done by the Leſſee at Will of a Copiholder, and the Copiholder ſhall have his Remedy over againſt the Tenant at Will, by Action of the Caſe. Sect. 15. to grant

So alſo it is for permiſſive Waſte, as if the Copiholder ſuffer his Houſe to decay, or fall for want of repair, or ſuffer his Meadows, or Lands by his ill Husbandry to be ſpoiled. And yet ſome are of another opinion in ſome of theſe caſes, for they hold that many of theſe are no Forfeitures, till there be a Preſentment of them. And herein they diſtinguiſh between voluntary and involuntary Acts, and Acts that lie in Non-feaſance, which they ſay muſt be preſented, and Acts that lie in Miſfeaſance, which needs no Preſentment. Calth. f. 68. 50.

Of the next ſort, whereof the Lord muſt have a Preſentment, before he can take advantage of the Forfeiture, are theſe things following, viz: 9. By committing of Treaſon, Felony, &c.

Where the Copiholder doth commit Treaſon, or Felony, and be therefore attaint, or be convict for Recuſancy, or be Out-lawed, or Excommunicated, or goeth about in any other Court to intitle the Lord to the Copihold.

Or if he alien his Copihold Land by Fine, Deed, or make a Leaſe of it without Licence of the Lord, and yet this Leaſe as to all others, but the Lord himſelf is good. 10. By making a Leaſe, Licence, &c.

But

But in caſe where the Cuſtom will warrant a Leaſe for a year, there it is no Forfeiture, whether it be by word, or writing; for without a Cuſtom of Enablement, it is held, that a Copiholder by the Common Law, cannot make a Leaſe for a year, 35 Eliz. 21. Trin. 3 Jac. Curia. Co. 4. 27. Littl. Sect. 74. If the Copiholder having a Licence to let for ten years, and he let for twenty years; this is a Forfeiture: Yet if the Copiholder for life ſurrender to the Lord, to the uſe of another in Fee, or make a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for life; but doth not make Livery or Seiſin upon it, or not make a good Livery upon it, or doth bargain and ſell the Land without enrolment of the Deed; neither of theſe is a Forfeiture. Trin. 36 Eliz. 2. Co. 4. 23. of Copihold. f. 169. Brownl. 1 part. 39.

So if the Copiholder have Copihold Lands, and other Lands in Dale, and he bargain and ſell all his Lands in Dale, and the Deed is enrolled, by this the Free-land onely paſſeth, ergo, this is no Forfeiture: But if he have no Free-land, there it is a Forfeiture. And all theſe offences are the greater when they are willingly done.

Of the third ſort of Offences, are theſe following, viz.

Where the Copiholder being of the Grand-Jury, doth indict the Lord, or give evidence againſt him; or being a Bailiff, if he arreſt him, or ſue him at Law (except it be in the caſe of a Replevin before,) neither of theſe acts is a Forfeiture, nor is it Finable. So neither if the Copiholder diſſeiſe the Lord of any other Land. Calth. f. 68, 91. So if the Copiholder abuſe the Lord in words, or abuſe the Lords Common with his Cattle, or rail upon another Copiholder in the Court, or uſe any ſuch like words, or Deeds of Contempt, that do not tend to the Lords diſ-inheritance: Theſe things are at the moſt but Finable. Calthrop, f. 45.

In anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

8. Who may Forfeit, and how.

1. A Copiholder of Non ſane memorie, an Ideot, or a Lunatick, cannot forfeit his Eſtate.

Infant.

2. An Infant under fourteen years of age, cannot forfeit; for he is till then to be in Ward to the next of Kin, or Bailiff, according to the Cuſtom of the place: Nor can he forfeit by any negligent, or ignorant offences as non-claimed, not coming to be admitted, not repairing, not malefaſans. Thus, if he bring a Replevin againſt the Lord, alien by Deed, or the like acts: But by a voluntary Waſte, or obſtinate denial of Rent, an Infant may commit a Forfeiture, and ſo he may by doing a Felony. Co. of Copihold, 172.

Feme-Covert.

3. A Feme-Covert cannot by any act ſhe can do alone forfeit her Eſtate; but her Husband, or ſhe with the conſent of her Husband, may; yet if a ſtranger with the Wives conſent, without the conſent of her Husband, commit a Waſte: This is not a Forfeiture. Co. 4. 27. of Copihold, f. 172, 173.

Guardian.

4. The Guardian of a Copiholder may forfeit his Wardſhip, but he cannot forfeit his Copihold. Co. of Copihold, f. 172, 173.

Cey que uſe.

5. Cey que uſe of a Copihold cannot forfeit it.

6. A Diſſeiſor of a Copihold cannot forfeit it.

7. He that doth forfeit, can forfeit but his own part; and therefore if there be two Joyntenants, and one of them commit a Forfeiture: Leaſe for life, the Remainder for life, or in Fee, and the firſt Tenant for life commit a Forfeiture, or purchaſe the Manor, and extinguiſh the Copihold, the Remainder is not hurt. If the Husband and Wife be Joynt-Copiholders of the purchaſe of the Husband, during Coverture; and he is attainted of Felony, and dieth, his Wife ſhall have all the Land: But if the purchaſe were before the marriage, then a Moyety is gone, Calth. f. 92, 97. So where the Eſtate is made to three ſucceſſive, and one of them doth commit a Forfeiture; this cannot hurt the Eſtate of the other two. So where a Copiholder in Fee, by Licence doth make a Leaſe for years by Deed, or without Licence by Copy, and either of theſe Leſſees commit Waſte: By this the Reverſion is not forfeit. Co. of Copihold f. 172.

8. If a Copihold be ſurrendred to the uſe of J. S. he cannot forfeit this before Admittance.

9. If one hath ſeveral Copies, the Forfeiture of one of them is not the Forfeiture of the other. Co. of Copihold, f. 174.

Regularly,

Regularly, None can take advantage of the Forfeiture, but he that is Lord of the Manor at the time of the Forfeiture; and therefore if the Copiholder make a Feoffment, and then the Lord doth alien the Manor; in this case, neither the Granter, nor the Grantee, can take advantage of the Forfeiture. And yet if there be Tenant for life of the Manor the Remainder in Fee, and a Copiholder commit a Forfeiture, and the Tenant for life of the Manor die before his Entry; in this case he in Remainder may enter. And he that was never Lord of the Manor, shall take advantage of the Forfeiture, as where the Lord make a Feoffment of the Copihold in Fee; in this case the Feoffee shall enter upon the Forfeiture. Co. 4. 24. of Copihold, 176.

9. Who shall take advantage of a Forfeiture, or not.

In case where a Copihold is forfeit, and the Lord hath notice of it, if he shall do any thing afterward, whereby he shall acknowledge the Copiholder to be his Tenant, as distrain upon the Land for Rent, admit him to be Tenant, or the like: By this the Lord is concluded to take advantage of the Forfeiture. And yet if the act done by the Copiholder be such an act as doth destroy the Copihold, as if he make a Feoffment of the Copihold, or the like; in this case no subsequent act of the Lord will help. Co. of Copihold, 176.

10. What Acts will confirm an Estate forfeit.

They are expressed in these following Statutes, Rich. 3. 4. A Copiholder that hath twenty six shillings and six pence per annum, may be a Juror as well as he that hath twenty shillings per annum of Freehold Land. 1 Ed. 6. 14. About Abby Land. 2 Ed. 6. 8. About Offices found, 1 M. 12. Now expired touching the assistance of Justices of Peace to suppress a Riot. 5 Eliz. 14. About Forgery to defraud a Copiholder. 13 Eliz. 7. About the Copihold of a Bankrupt. 14 Eliz. 6. About his Copihold that doth depart the Kingdom without leave. 35 Eliz. 2. About a Recusant. When the Statute doth alter the Service-Tenure, Interest of the Land, or other thing in prejudice of the Lord, Custom, or Manor, or of the Tenant there, the general words of Tenant, or the like, extend not to Copiholders: But when the act is for the good of the Commonwealth, and no prejudice may accrew, by reason of any alteration of the Interest, Service, or Custom of the Manor, there usually Copiholders, and Copiholds are included. Co. 3. 8. March 36. Brownl. 1 part. 34. For this cause it is judged, they are not intended in these following Statutes. viz. Westm 2. 1. of Intails. And yet by Custom such Lands may be intailed.

Sect. 16.

11. In what Statutes the Copihold and Copiholder is included, or not.

About Partition. 32 H. 8. 28. Of Leases made by Tenant in Tail, or Husband and Wife. 17 Ed. 2. 18. Of Ideots Lands. Merton 1. Of Damages. Co. 4. 30 Westm. 2. 3 31 H. 8. 13. And that of 32 H. 8. 9. Of Champerty. Co. 4. 26. 4 H. 7. 24. Of Fines. Co. 9. 105. See Bro. 2 part. 85, 86, 77, 78.

Customs.

For the better understanding hereof, these things are to be known.

1. For any thing which doth concern his Copihold, he cannot sue, or be sued in any real Action, or Actions favoring of the reality elswhere, but in the Lords Court. But he may bring an Action personal in any other Court, and the Lessee of a Copiholder may bring an Ejectione firme in any other Court. Co. of Copihold, 147.

12. How the Copiholder may sue, or be sued.

2. If the Lord out him he may have an Ejectione firme or Trespass against the Lord in any Court; but he cannot have an Assize against the Lord. Co. of Copihold. 146.

Ejectione firme.

3. A Copiholder of base Tenure in Antient Demesn, cannot have a Writ of Droit Close, or Monstraverunt, but Tenants, of Franck-tenure in Antient Demesns may. Co. of Copihold. 146.

4. If the Copiholder by Licence of the Lord make a Lease of the Land, and the Lessee cut down Timber, there being a custom that the Copiholder may cut down Timber; the Copiholder in this case must punish this in the Lords Court.

5. If a Wife dowable by custom, recover her Dower by plaint in the Lords Court and in the Action she recover damages also, she may not sue for these damages at the Common Law. Co. of Copihold, 146.

6. If a Copiholder make a Lease by Copy for years, or by Deed, with Licence rendring Rent, an Action of Debt; for this Rent may be brought in any other Court. Co. of Copihold, 146.

7. If

7. If a ſtranger cut down the Trees growing on the Copihold, an Action of Treſpaſs lieth againſt him; for this at Common Law. So if the Trees by Cuſtom belong to the Tenant, and the Lord doth cut them down. Co. of Copihold, 147.

8. If the Copiholder Surrender to the uſe of the Creditor in truſt to pay his Debts, and then to have the Land again, and he keep it; in this caſe this being proved by Examination of Witneſſes upon an Engliſh Bill, the Lord may reſeize and reſtore the Land. Calthrop, *f.*74.

9. If the Lord hath a great Waſte, and he grant a Rent out of it; the Grantee may diſtrain the Tenants, unleſs they can preſcribe to have Common there. Calthrop, *f.*97.

10. If the Steward, Bailiff, or Tenants, into whoſe hands the Surrender is made, refuſe to preſent, or admit the Tenant; in this caſe he is to ſue by Bill or Petition, to the Lord in his Court. And if the Lord there will not do him right, the Tenant may ſue him and them in Chancery, and there he ſhall have relief. Co. of Copihold, 180.

11. For the order of Proces in Suits in the Lords Court, inquire the Cuſtom of the place, and ſee Calthrop, *f.*75. 98.

13. Of a Licenſe to Alien.

For this theſe things are to be known.

1. That the Lord may Licence his Tenant to let by Deed for years, if there be a Cuſtom for it. And the Entry of this in the Court Rolls is thus, Ad hanc curiam J. S. petit licentiam domini demittendi, &c. Cui dominus licentiam dat, &c. And if it be by the Steward, Cui dominus per ſeneſchallum licentiavit. Co. of Copihold, 123, 125.

Cuſtom.

2. This Licence (it ſeemeth) is not grantable by the Steward, without a ſpecial Cuſtom to enable him to do it, or a ſpecial Warrant from the Lord to give him power ſo to do, Co. of Copihold, *f.*124.

3. If a Tenant for life of a Mannor, grant a Licence to a Copiholder to Alien, and the Lord die; in this caſe the Licence is good. Co. of Copihold, *f.*85.

CHAP. LIII.

Of Corn, and a Corrody.

Tranſportation.

FOr Corn theſe things are to be known.

1. None may tranſport any Corn, whatſoever, nor any Malt made thereof, nor any Beer, Butter, Cheeſe, Herring, or Wood, but for victualling of Ships, or the like, without the Kings Licence, except it be in ſome ſpecial caſes when Corn is very cheap, and from ſome Ports, and with ſome kinde of Ships onely, and by allowance, and direction of ſome great Officers.

Cuſtoms.

2. The King by his Proclamation may reſtrain the Tranſportation of it at his pleaſure.

3. The Kings Cuſtoms muſt be duly paid therein.

4. He that doth Tranſport, muſt Lade at one place. 1, 2 Phil. & Mar. 5, 13 Eliz. 13. 35 *Eliz.*7.

5. There is no Act now to forbid the importing of Corn, for that Stat. of 3 Ed. 4.3. is repealed by 21 Jac. 28.

6. None may buy Corn to ſell again without Licence. 5 *Eliz.*12.

7. He that ſhall buy Corn for the change of his Seed, muſt bring in as much other Corn to the ſame Marker. 5 *Ed.*6. 14. 13 Eliz. 25.

8. Corn when it is of a ſmall price may be ingroſſed and kept in Grainers, 15 Ed. 6.14. 13 *Eliz.*25.

Purveyors.

9. Purveyors muſt take Corn by meaſure ſtriked, and not without the owners conſent. See Purveyors.

Of a Corody.

A Corody was an Allowance of money, or meat or drink, due to the King from an Abbey or House of Religion of his own founding, towards the reasonable sustenance of one of his Servants, being put to his Pension, where he thought good to bestow it. But a Pension was taken for money given to one of the Kings Chaplains for his better maintenance in his service, until he can be better provided for by a Benefice. The Corody was given to one of the Kings servants that did live in the Abbey; the Pension was given to him that did attend on the King. Terms Law, F.N.B. 230. & Stat. 33, 34 *H.*8. ch. 19.

CHAP. LIV.

Of Costs and Damages.

COsts are the Expences laid out in the prosecuting of any Suit in Law, which is so much as the Court will allow him that is the Plaintiff or Defendant in the Action, and is to have it at the end of the Suit.

1. Costs, what it is.

For Answer to this Question, all these things must be known.

Sect. 1. Where Costs shall be recovered in Suit, or not.

1. Where a Plaintiff doth recover the thing sued for in any Personal Action, there he shall recover Costs of Suit also, Plow. 320. 9 *H.*6. 32.

2. Where a Plaintiff is Nonsuit after Appearance, or after Verdict given against him in an Action of Debt, Trespass, Detinue, Covenant, or upon the Case, the Defendant shall recover Costs against him, 23 *H.*8. 15. Dyer 32.

3. Whersoever a man shall recover Damages by the Common-Law, or by the Statutes of 6 Ed. 1. ch. 1. or Merton. 1. there he shall recover Costs also, Co. 10. 110.

4. Where an Act of Parliament doth give increase of Costs, there some Costs were recoverable before, Stat. 2 *H.*4. 1. 27 *H.*6. 10. 14 *H.*6. 13. 8 *Ed.*4. 13. F.N.B. 148.

5. In a Mortdaunceſter, Aile and Besaile, and Intrusion of his own doing, the Demandant shall recover Costs, Glouc. ch. 1.

6. In an Attaint, Costs shall be recovered, 11 H. 6. 4.

7. Where the Defendant sueth a Writ of Error, the Plaintiff shall recover Costs, 11 H. 7. 10.

8. Where a Verdict is found for the Defendant, the Plaintiff must pay Costs, albeit the Declaration be insufficient. So it hath been often adjudged, as two Judges said, Pasch. 19 Jac.

9. If an Executor avow for Arrearages of Rent upon St. 32 H. 8. and recover, it seems he shall recover Costs, Trin. 22 Jac. B.R.

10. In a Suit in Chancery, if the Bill prove false, or the Plaintiff delay his Suit, the Defendant will have Costs there, Bro. Conscience, 24.

11. But he that sueth, or is sued in forma Pauperis, a Plaintiff or Defendant that is admitted so to sue, shall neither recover nor pay Costs, neither party shall pay Costs, 22 *H.*8. 15. Bro. 452. Pasch. 7 Jac. B.R. Eslins Case.

12. If the Suit be in the Kings name, and it be Nonsuit, or Judgment is given against the King, after Verdict no Costs shall be recovered, Stat. 23 H. 8. *ch.*15. 24 *H.*8.8. 4 Jac. 3. 8 Eliz. 2. 43 Eliz. 6.

13. Where in any Suit double or treble Damages is given by any Statute, and no Damages was recoverable before, as in the case of Waste and Q. impedit, and some other Actions, there no Costs shall be recovered, *Co.*10.116. *Kelw.*26. 27 *H.*6.10. 2 *H.*4.7. Curia 7 Jac. Co.B.

14. In an Action of Debt for Ingrossing, where a great Sum of money is recovered, no Costs shall be recovered, *Co.*10.110. *Bro.*258.

15. In case where the Action brought doth not exceed Forty shillings, Debt or Damages, there no Costs shall be recovered in it, 43 Eliz. 6. 1 Jac. 25.

Executor or Administrator.

16. If an Executor or Administrator be Nonsuit, or Verdict pass against him in a Suit for any thing touching the Testament, he doth not pay Costs. But if he bring an Action for a thing done to himself, as for taking away Goods from himself, and the like, and he be Nonsuit, or Verdict pass against him, in this case he shall pay Costs. Experience. The Issue was, That the Plaintiff was not Executor, and the Jury found for the Defendant, and yet the Court would not give Costs to the Defendant, Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 79.

17. No Costs shall be recovered against an Executor or Administrator, upon the Statute of 8 Eliz. 2. nor upon the Statute of 4 *Jac.*2. By the Court, M. 6 Jac. B. R. See more of these things in *Brownl Rep. par.*66.79.107. *Westm.*2.5. *Marlb. ch.*17.6.4. And see more in Damages, *March f.*57. *pl.*88. *f.*61.*pl.*94.

For this, take these things following.

Sect. 2. What Costs shall be recovered, and how they shall be taxed.

1. That in an Action of the Case for slanderous words, if the Jury do give under Forty shillings Damages, then the Plaintiff shall recover no more Costs than the Jury hath given him in Damage, Stat. 21 *Jac. ch.*16.

2. If the Action be a Personal Action, and do not concern Land, or a Battery, and the Debt or Damages to be recovered do not come to Forty shillings, or above, the Costs must be no more than the Debt or Damages is, 43 *Eliz.*6 1 *Jac.*25.

3. Where Officers are sued for any thing about their Offices, and Verdict is given against the Plaintiff, or he is Nonsuit; there in some cases the Officer shall recover double, in some cases treble Costs. And for this see the several Statutes of 43 *Eliz. ch.*2. 7 Jac. 5. Ordinance. March 1654. See more for Costs, 11 *H.*6.4. 3 *H.*7.10. 19 *H.*7.20. 23 *H.*8.15. 24 *H.*8.8. 8 *Eliz.*2. 43 Eliz. 6. 4 Jac. 13. 21 Jac. 12. 3 *Jac.*15. Wingates Abridgment. And in all cases the Costs are to be taxed and set down by the Court wherein the Action is, and at the end of the Suit, and not before, *Co.*10.116. 110. Dyer 291.

Where the Costs may be increased or abridged, or not.

In some cases the Court may and doth abridg, and in some cases increase the Costs given by the Jury. And this the Court doth as it seeth cause: For if the Court doth apparently see the Jury hath given excessive Costs, upon Motion made, it will abate it: And if it perceive the other to put him to excessive Costs, as if after Issue tryed the other get an Injunction to stay the Suit, and he get it dissolved; in this case upon Motion to the Court, it will increase the Costs, 21 *Ed.*4.78.

Sect. 3. 3. Damages, what.

Damages taken largely, is a recompence for a wrong: But taken strictly, it signifieth a part of that which the Jurors are to enquire of passing for the Plaintiff or Demandant in any real or personal Action. For, after Verdict given of the principal Cause, they are then asked their consciences touching Cost and Damages, which is concerning the loss that the Plaintiff or Demandant hath suffered by means of that wrong done to him. So that Damna is either pro injuria illata, for the wrong done, or expensæ litis, for the charges laid out in the Suit. And this Damages for the wrong done, is always to be recovered from the Tenant or Defendant; but Costs may be recovered against the Defendant by the Plaintiff, or against the Plaintiff by the Defendant, Co. upon Lit. 257. 22 *H.*6.27.

Damna.

4. In what Action Damages shall be recovered, or not; and what Damages shall be recovered, and how taxed.

For answer to this, we are to know these things.

1. That regularly Damages are to be recovered in all Personal and in all Mixt Actions, and in such Real Actions wherein any Statute hath given Damage; otherwise not: For otherwise by the Common-Law no Damages are recoverable in any Real real Action. And for this, see Co. 10. 116. 106. 9. 74. Plow. 82. Stat. 6 Ed. 1. 1: Weſtm. 2. 35. 13 Ed. 1. 5. 1 Ed. 3. 6. 23 H. 8. 3. 11 H. 6. 4. Co. 4. 30. 71. Co. ſuper Lit. 32. 33. Dyer 284. 14 H. 25. 33 H 8. 39. 18 Eliz. 5. 27 Eliz. 10. 21 H. 8. 19. 7 H. 8. 4. 3 H 7. 18. Bro. Coſts, 29.

2. In ſome caſes ſingle Damages only are to be given, as in Dower; and regularly in all Actions. For which ſee Stat. 52 H 3. ch. 3. 20 H. 3. 1. 8 Eliz. 22. 13 Ed. 1. 36. 6 Ed. 1. 8. 6 H 4. 1 H 6. 11. 52 H. 3. 6. 3 Ed. 1. 24. 17 R. 2. 6. In ſome Caſes and Suits double Damages are to be recovered: And for this ſee Stat. 2 H. 4. ch 11. 34 Ed. 1. 27 Ed. 3 51. 8 Eliz. 14. 2 Ed. 6. 13. 23 H. 8. 9. 28 Ed. 1. 9. 12 Ed. 2. 5. 13 Ed. 1 26. 37 Ed. 3. 2. 1 R. 2. 9. And in ſome caſes treble Damages are to be recovered: And for this, ſee Stat. 36 Ed. 3. ch. 10. 8 H. 6. 9. 8 Eliz. 2. 3 Ed. 6. 3. 2 H. 4. 5.

3. A man ſhall never recover more Damages then he doth declare for in his Declaration, Co. 10 113. 13 H. 7. 16.

4. In Perſonal Actions, the Damages ſhall be only for the wrong done before the Writ brought: But in Real Actions the Plaintiff doth never count for Damages, for there he is to recover at the laſt for all the time, Co. 10. 116.

5. How a Jury may tax Coſts, and where it may divide the Coſts, or not, See Co. 11. 5. 10. 130. 18 H. 8. 1.

3. Where the Damages may be increaſed or abridged, or not.

In ſome caſes the Court may alſo increaſe Damages; and ſo the Court may in ſome caſes alſo abridg the Damages given by the Jury. But it muſt be in a caſe obvious to the Court; as for the Maim of a man (which is to be ſeen) when the Jury give ſmall damage. And ſo when every man that looks upon the wrong, and damage given for the wrong, they ſee it to be exceſſive; in this caſe the Judges do uſe to keep the Plaintiff from his Judgment, until he do releaſe the Exceſs of the Damages.

Writ to enquire of Damages, what.

The Writ to enquire of Damages, is a Writ that iſſueth forth after a Judgment had in Treſpaſs upon a Confeſſion or Default, to enquire by a Jury what Damages the Plaintiff hath ſuſtained by the Treſpaſs: And then upon that Inquiſition, the final Judgment is given for ſo much as the Jury ſhall find, and for Coſts of Suit. See more for this Coſts and Damages, St. 3 Jac. 15. 21 Jac. 16. 4 Jac. 3. 43 Eliz. 6. 23 H. 8. 15. 3 H. 7. 10.

CHAP. LV.

Of Cottages.

A Cottage is a little Houſe newly built, that hath not four Acres of Land to it: And he is a Cottager, that doth dwell in ſuch a Houſe.

1. Cottage.

A Houſe built ſince 31 Eliz. for habitation, or any Building or Houſing made for other purpoſe, that ſince that time hath been or ſhall be converted or ordained to be uſed as a Cottage for habitation or dwelling, where there is not aſſigned and laid to the ſame Cottage or Building four Acres of ground at the leaſt, to be accounted according to the Statute or Ordinance de terris menſurandis, lying neer to the ſaid Cottage, being his or her own Freehold and Inheritance that doth enter or convert the Cottage or Building, and to be continually occupied and manured therewith ſo long as the ſame Cottage ſhall be inhabited; is to be accounted a Cottage within the Statute. Wherein theſe things are to be known.

2. What ſhall be ſaid to be a Cottage, and how the parties that erect or continue it ſhall be puniſhed.

1. If a man convert that Building which before this Statute was one Dwelling-houſe, into two Dwelling-houſes; theſe are two Cottages puniſhable by this Statute. Sect. 1.

2. If one build a new Houſe upon an old Foundation, in the ſame quantity that the old was; this is no Cottage within this Statute.

3. If one build two diſtinct Cottages together, the one upon the old foundation, the other upon the new: That which is built upon the old foundation, is no Cottage; but that which is built upon the new foundation, is a Cottage.

4. If one build a Houſe upon an old and new foundation together, ſo that the entire Houſe doth ſtand upon both together; this is a Cottage within this Statute.

5. If a man have a Houſe, and one hundred Acres belonging to it, and he ſell the Houſe from the Land, or the Land from the Houſe, or ſell all the Land, and keep the Houſe; this is now become a Cottage within this Statute. And if a man erect a Houſe, and lay four Acres to it, and after take it away again; now this is become a Cottage within this Statute.

6. Any Houſe ordained or erected for habitation or dwelling in any City, Town-Corporate, antient Borough or Market-town, or for the neceſſary and convenient habitation of any Workmen in any Mineral works, Coal-mines, Quarries, or Delfs of Stone or Slate, in or about the making of Bricks, Tile, Lime, or Coals; ſo as the ſame Building be not above one mile diſtant from the place of the ſame Mineral or other Works, and be uſed only for the habitation of the ſaid Workmen, ſhall not be accounted a Cottage within this Statute.

7. Any Houſe made within a mile of the Sea, or upon the ſide of ſuch part of any Navigable River where the Admiral ought to have juriſdiction, ſo long as no other perſon ſhall dwell therein but a Sailer, or man of manual occupation, to or for making or furniſhing, or victualling of any Ship or Veſſel uſed to ſerve on the Sea; nor made in any Forreſt, Chaſe, Warren or Park, ſo long as no other perſon ſhall dwell therein but an Under-keeper or Warrener, for the keeping of the Deer or other Game of the Warren; nor any other Houſe made, ſo long as no other perſon do dwell therein but a common Herdſman or Shepherd, for keeping the Cattel or Sheep of the Town, or a poor, lame, ſick, aged or impotent perſon; is not to be accounted a Cottage puniſhable by this Statute. But no Cottage (by this Statute) made for a common Herdſman, for a common Shepherd (called a Sheep-coat) or a poor, lame, ſick, or impotent perſon, that was not made before the Statute, is excepted by the Statute; for it was meant only of ſuch as were then in being. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 737.

8. Any Cottage that ſhall be by Order of the Juſtice of Aſſize at the Aſſizes, or Juſtices of the Peace at the Quarter-Seſſions by their Order entred in open Aſſizes, or at Quarter-Seſſions for any juſt cauſe upon complaint to them, be decreed to continue for habitation, for ſo long time only as by ſuch Decree they are tolerated and limited, is not to be accounted a Cottage againſt this Statute.

9. And therefore if the Churchwardens and Overſeers of a Pariſh, or the greater part of them, by the leave of the Lord or Lords of the Manor, whereof any Waſte or Common within their Pariſh is or ſhall be parcel, and upon agreement before with him or them made in writing, under the hands and ſeals of the ſaid Lord and Lords, ſhall ſet up any Houſe in a fit place within the ſaid Waſte, at the charges of the Pariſh, for the habitation of the impotent Poor of the Pariſh, by Order of the Juſtices of Peace at their Quarter-Seſſions, is not a Cottage againſt this Law.

10. Four Acres by Copy for lives, or for any number of years, will not ſerve to lay to it.

11. This Statute doth not extend to Cottages erected, or Houſes converted to Cottages before the 29. day of March, 1589. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 737.

12. The forfeiture of him that ſhall erect any ſuch Cottage, or convert any Houſe into ſuch a Cottage, is Ten pounds: And the forfeiture of him that ſhall afterward willingly uphold and maintain any ſuch Houſe erected or converted, is Forty ſhillings for every moneth the ſame is continued; and theſe Forfeitures are to go to the King, Stat. 31 Eliz. chap. 7. Reſolved by the Judges 8 Car. B. R. Stat. 31 Eliz. per Juſtice Bridgman. Stat. 43 Eliz. chap. 2. Stat. 31 Eliz. Co. 2 part of his Inſt. 736.

2. Inmates or Under-tenants who they are, and how they ſhall be puniſhed, redreſſed or tolerated.

Inmates be thoſe that are admitted to dwell for their money, jointly within another man; though in ſeveral Rooms of his Manſion-houſe, paſſing in and out at one one door, and being not able to maintain themſelves, *Kitch.*45. Stat. 31 Eliz. 2. chap. 7.

There muſt not be an Inmate, or more Families or Houſholds then one, dwelling or inhabiting in any one Cottage erected, placed or ſuffered, Kitch. 45. Wherein theſe things are to be known. Sect. 2.

1. If one demiſe part of his Houſe in which he doth dwell, to a Gentleman that doth not keep his Table there, but goeth to Victualling-houſes for his Victuals, and yet he hath certain Rooms in the houſe; this is not an Inmate, *Kitch.*45.

2. If one keep his Daughter that is married, and her Husband, or his Son, by Covenant or otherwiſe, and he doth find them, and they have ſome Rooms in his Houſe; this is not an Inmate, *Kitch.*45.

2. If one keep his Daughter that is married, and her Husband, or his Son and his Wife, by Covenant or otherwiſe, and he doth find them, and they have ſome Rooms in his Houſe; theſe are not to be accounted Inmates, neither ſhall they have Common. But if theſe live in one Cottage, and they part the Houſe between them, and diet themſelves ſeverally, it ſeems they are Inmates, *Kitch.*45.

3. If one have a Houſe, and he let certain Rooms of it to another to dwell in with him, he is to be accounted an Inmate, and yet he ſhall not have Common in the Lords Waſtes and in the Fields, except he be of ability; for if he be a man of ability, he ſhall not be ſaid to be an Inmate in any caſe. But if one take one into his Houſe to Table, or ſojourn with him, and let him certain Rooms, he is not to be accounted an Inmate, neither ſhall he have Common, *Kitch.*45. ability

4. If the Inheritor of a Houſe demiſe a certain parcel of his Houſe in which he doth dwell, and ſever it from the other part, ſo that there are ſeveral doors into the High-ſtreet; it is now as two Houſes, and is not to be accounted an Inmate, but he ſhall not have Common. But if there be but one door out into the ſtreet for both the Families, then he that is taken in is to be accounted an Inmate, St. 43 *Eliz. chap.*2: But an Inmate within the meaning of this Statute muſt be one that is in a Cottage. 2. It extendeth to Cottages as well made before, as after the Statute. 3. And as well to Cottages that have four Acres of ground, or more laid to them, as thoſe that have not four Acres of ground laid to them, *Co.*2 *par. Inſt.*738.

5. Inmates may be placed by the Order of the Juſtices in their Quarter-Seſſions, with licence of the Lord of the Manor, in any Cottage built upon the Waſte of the ſame Manor for the impotent Poor, by the Churchwardens and Overſeers; and they are not to be puniſhed that do ſo place them.

6. It ſeems the Statute of 31 Eliz. as to Inmates, doth extend to Cities, Burroughs and Market-Towns; for it is put generally, and the Exception in the Statute doth go to the erection of Cottages, and not to Inmates; and ſo is the common practice.

7. The Forfeiture of every Owner or Occupier of any ſuch Cottage, placing or willingly ſuffering any ſuch Inmate or other Family then one, is Ten ſhillings for every moneth any ſuch Inmate ſhall ſo dwell in any ſuch Cottage. And this Forfeiture is to go to the Lord of the Leet where the Cottage is. The moneth ſhall be accounted by 28 days: Co. Book of Entries. 165 b. 3 10 £ moneſom

All the offences aforeſaid may be heard and determined by the Juſtices of the Aſſizes, and Juſtices of Peace in their open Seſſions, and by Lords within the Precincts of their Leets, and none others may do it; the Sheriff cannot do it. And they may award Execution for the levying of the ſaid Forfeitures, as cauſe ſhall require. The Lord hath election to ſue in any Court for the Forfeiture, or to diſtrain and ſell the Diſtreſs, and give back the overplus. And if he bring an Action at Common-Law, when he hath Judgment, he ſhall have Execution by Fieri facias, Elegit or Capias, as the words of the Statute are, Co. 2 par. Inſt. 738. And as touching the Forfeitures for Inmates, the Lord in his Leet may take the Preſentment of the Jury thereof, and afterward levy the ſame Forfeitures by Diſtreſs and Sale of Goods to his own uſe, *St.*31 *Eliz. c.*7. Co. 2 *par. Inſt.*738. 3 *H.*7.4.

CHAP. LVI.

Of a Covenant.

1 Covenant, what.

A Covenant is the Agreement or Conſent of two or more, by Deed in Writing ſealed and delivered, whereby either or one of the parties doth promiſe to other, that ſomething is done already, or ſhall be done afterwards. And he that makes the Covenant, is called the Covenantor; and he to whom it is made, the Covenantee. Terms of the Law. Plow. 308.

Covenantor. Covenantee.

2 The Kinds.

And this is either expreſs, or in Deed, i. when the Covenant is expreſſed in the Deed: As when A. by Deed doth covenant with B. to ſerve him for a year, and B. doth covenant with A. to pay him Ten pounds for this ſervice. Or it is implied or in Law, i. when the Deed doth not expreſs it, but the Law doth make and ſupply it. As when one doth make a Leaſe for years by the words [demiſe or grant] without any expreſs Covenant for quiet enjoying; in this caſe the Law doth intend and make ſuch a Covenant on the part of the Leſſor, which is, That the Leſſee ſhall quietly hold and enjoy the thing demiſed againſt all perſons, at leaſt having title under the Leſſor, and at leaſt during the Leſſors life and (as ſome think) during the whole Term. And hereupon an Action of Covenant may be brought againſt him in the Reverſion: So that if the Heir that is in by Deſcent put out the Termor of his Father, the Termor may have this Action againſt him Terms of the Law, tit. Covenant. Co. 4. 80. 5: 17. F.N.B. 145, 146. Dyer 338. 257.

Reall

A Covenant is alſo either real, i. that whereby a man doth bind himſelf to paſs a real thing, as Lands or Tenements: As a Covenant to levy a Fine of Land, in which caſe the Land is to be recovered; or when it doth run in the Realty ſo with the Land, that he that hath the one, hath or is ſubject to the other; and ſo a Warranty is called a real Covenant. Or it is perſonal, i. when it doth run in the Perſonalty, and not with the Land, but ſome perſon in particular ſhall have benefit by it, or be charged with it: As when a man doth covenant to do any perſonal thing, as build or repair a houſe, ſerve him, or the like. And theſe alſo are ſome of them ſaid to be inherent, i. ſuch as are converſant about the Land, as that the thing demiſed ſhall be quietly enjoyed, ſhall be kept in reparations, ſhall not be aliened, or if it be to be ſold, that the Leſſor ſhall have the firſt refuſal; to pay Rent, not to cut down Timber-trees, or do Waſte, to fence the Copices when they be new cut, to make further Aſſurance, or the like. And ſome of them are ſaid to be collateral, i. that are converſant about ſome collateral thing that doth nothing at all, or not ſo immediately concern the thing granted: As to pay a ſum of money in groſs, to build a houſe in another mans ground, to make a Feoffment or Leaſe of other Land, to give other Security to perform the Covenants, or to pay the Rent, or that the Leſſor ſhall diſtrain for the Rent in ſome other Land then that which is demiſed, or the like, theſe are collateral Covenants. There is alſo a Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of Land to Uſes, which is now become a kind of Conveyance of Land. For which read Uſes at large. Brownl. 1 par. 22, 23.

3. The uſe and operation of it.

The moſt frequent uſe of a Covenant, is to bind a man to do ſomething in futuro; and therefore it is for the moſt part executory: And if the Covenanter do not perform it, the Covenantee may have thereupon for his Relief an Action or Writ of Covenant againſt the Covenantor, ſo often as there is any Breach of the Covenant, Co. 1. 154. Lit. Bro. 309. 27 H. 8. 16. Plow. 308. F.N.B. 145.

A Writ or Action of Covenant what.

And this Writ of Covenant is therefore defined to be a Writ lying where a man is bound by a Covenant in a Deed, and hath broken it. And in this caſe commonly the party damnified ſhall recover Damages only for the Breach: And if he have a Judgment in an Action brought for one Breach, and after the Covenantor doth break the the Covenant again; in this caſe he may bring a new Action, and ſo for every Breach. But a Covenant doth ſometimes alſo make a tranſmutation of a Property and Poſſeſſion of things, as in caſe of a Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of Land to Uſes, for which ſee Uſe. And in caſe where one doth covenant, that another ſhall have a piece of Land for five years; this is a good Leaſe for five years, for which ſee Leaſe. And in caſe where one doth covenant with another, That if he pay him Ten pounds ſuch a day, he ſhall have all his Cattel in Dale, or his Leaſe for years he hath of the Manor of Dale; in this caſe it ſeems if he pay the money at the time, he ſhall have the Property of the Goods, and of the Leaſe for years. It is ſaid therefore, that in ſome caſes upon the Writ of Covenant, the party ſhall recover the Land it ſelf out of which he hath been ejected.

Uſe. Leaſe. Contract.

A Covenant may be in the Affirmative, or in the Negative. And it may be executed, i. that a thing is done already; or executory, i. that a thing ſhall be done hereafter: And theſe are all good. But if it be of a thing preſent, as if I covenant that my Horſe is yours; this is void. Plow. 330. 27 H. 8. 16,

4. What ſhall be ſaid a good Covenant in Deed, upon which an Action of Covenant may be had, and what not.

And theſe Covenants being made by a Deed poll, are as good and effectual as when they are made by a Deed indented, ſo as the party have the Deed to ſhew; for otherwiſe a common perſon cannot have an Action of Covenant; for it doth not lie upon a Verbal agreement, neither can it be grounded without a Writing, except it be by a ſpecial Cuſtom as in London, F.N.B. 145. g. Co. 3. 63. Ewers Caſe, 8 Jac.

1. In reſpect of the manner of making it.

And there needs not in this caſe formal and orderly words, as Covenant, Promiſe, and the like, to make a Covenant on which to ground an Action of Covenant. For a Covenant may be had by any other words, and upon any part of an Agreement in writing, in what words ſoever it be ſet down for any thing to be, or not to be done; the party to or with whom the Promiſe or Agreement is made, may have this Action upon the breach of the Agreement. Lit. Bro. ſect. 450. Co. 2. Lord Cromwels Caſe. Dyer 57. 110. 21 H. 7. 37. 40 E. 3. 5.

And therefore if theſe words be inſerted in a Deed amongſt other Covenants, [That the Leſſee ſhall repair, Provided always that the Leſſor ſhall allow Timber: Or that the Leſſee ſhall ſcour ditches, Provided always that the Leſſor do carry away the earth;] theſe are good Covenants on both ſides. And if a Leaſe be made of Houſes by Patent to J. S. for Twenty one years, and therein is inſerted this clauſe, [And that the ſaid J. S. and his Aſſigns ſhall repair the Houſes when they ſhall be decayed;] this is a good Covenant. Adjudg. Paſch. 14 Jac. B. R. Sir Thomas Bret verſ. Cumberland's Caſe.

And ſo alſo it is where theſe or the like words be inſerted amongſt other Covenants, [And that the Leſſee ſhall pay Ten ſhillings a year Rent, or that the Leſſee ſhall not alien;] theſe ſhall be ſaid to be Covenants, unleſs it be in ſuch caſes where there is ſome other means to inforce the doing of the thing; as if in caſe of the Rent there be a clauſe of Diſtreſs, Re-entry, or nomine pœnæ. Bro. Cov. 21. 26. & Co. & Dyer ubi ſupra.

And in all caſes regularly, where words that do begin the ſentence be conditional, and have the effect of a Condition, and do give another remedy, there they ſhall not be conſtrued to make a Covenant, as in the caſes of Condition before. And yet if words of Condition and words of Covenant be coupled together in the ſame ſentence, as [Provided always, and it is Covenanted, or the like;] in ſuch caſes the words may be conſtrued to make a Covenant and a Condition both. Covenant with two ſeverally is good, March 103. pl. 176.

If a man make a Leaſe for life by Indenture, and therein are inſerted theſe words; [It is provided, that if the Leſſee die within ſixty years, that then his Executors and Aſſigns ſhall have the Land until the ſixty years be ended, to be accounted from the date of the Indenture;] this, albeit it be not a good Leaſe, yet it is a good Covenant. Leaſe.

If a man make a Leaſe for years, and warrant it to the Leſſee, his Heirs and Aſſigns during the Term, or he that hath right to the Land confirm the Eſtate of the Leſſee for years with Warranty; in theſe caſes howbeit this be not a Warranty, nor in the nature of a Warranty, yet it ſhall be conſtrued a good Covenant in Law for the quietquiet enjoying of the thing, Bro. Covenant 38. Deſcent 50. 21 H. 7. 32.

If the Lord grant to his Tenant, that he will not diſtrain him in ſuch a part of his Land for his Rent; this ſhall be taken to be a good Covenant, by this word [grant.] Perk. ſect. 69.

2. In reſpect of the matter or ſubſtance of it.

A Covenant to do any thing that for the ſubſtance and matter of it is lawful, or not to do any thing that for the matter of it is unlawful, is good. As if the Grantor covenant, That he is ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of a good Eſtate of and in the thing he doth grant, and hath power to grant it: That the Grantee ſhall quietly enjoy it: That it is and ſhall be free from Incumbrances: That he will make further Aſſurance, if need be. That if the Grantee be evicted, he ſhall pay no Rent: That the Grantee ſhall pay Rent: That he ſhall diſcharge all dues, and ſave and keep harmleſs the Grantor. That he ſhall not alien the thing granted; or if he do, that the Grantor ſhall have the firſt refuſal thereof. That he ſhall not do Waſte. That he ſh all have Houſeboot, Hayboot. That the Grantor or Grantee ſhall repair the old Houſing, or build new. That he ſhall pay and diſcharge all Rents and payments iſſuing out of the Land. That he ſhall not fell Trees; or if he do, that he ſhall pay to the Grantor ſo much in money for every Tree. That if he fell any Underwood, he ſhall fence it. That he ſhall make an Eſtate of Land. That he ſhall be quit of any Suit, Service, or Payment. That he ſhall give ſufficient Security to J. S. for an Hundred pounds he doth owe him; and all theſe and the like Covenants are good, See Weſt. Symb. in his firſt Part toto, & infra Plow. 308. 302. 27 H. 8. 16. Dyer 13. 324. 253. 251. Fitz. Cov. 1.

And generally where a Condition for the matter of it is good, a Covenant comprehending the ſame matter, is good alſo. See Condition, numb. 7. But if the matter required to be, or not to be done by the Covenant, be for the ſubſtance thereof unlawful, then is the Covenant void, and doth not bind. See Conditions againſt the Law, numb. 7. Dyer 6. And therefore if one covenant to kill, or rob a man, or the like; this Covenant is void. So if one covenant that he will maintain another in his Suits, or that he will not appear in Inqueſts, or that he will break the Peace, or that he will foreſtall Corn, or the like; theſe Covenants are void. So if one be Tenant in Fee-ſimple of Land, and he covenant that he will not alien it; this Covenant is void. So if a man be a Tradeſman, and he covenant that he will not uſe or exerciſe his Trade; this Reſtraint, if it be abſolute and continual, is void; but if it be ſub modo only, as that he ſhall not uſe his Trade at one time, or in one City or Town only, this Covenant may be good. 18 Jac. B. R. Joilliff verſus Broad. Paſch. 19 Jac. B. R. Tanner verſus Brag.

Againſt Law.

So if a man be by Covenant reſtrained to ſow the Land which hath been uſed to be ſowed; and this be either abſolutely, or ſub modo, i. That if he ſow it, he ſhall pay thus much an Acre for it; theſe Covenants have been held to be void. Sed quære how the Law is now; for it ſeems the Statute of 39 Eliz. ch. 2. is diſcontinued. If A. owe money to B. and B. owe money to C. and B. doth make a Letter of Attorney to C. to ſue A. at his own charge, and B. doth covenant with C. that he will not releaſe the Debt to A. In this caſe, albeit this be Maintenance in C. to ſue at his own charge, yet this is a good Covenant, and not againſt Law. Hil. 20 Jac. Co. B. Maire verſus Stapleton.

So alſo if a Dean and Chapter, or the like, covenant to renue a Leaſe, contrary to the meaning of the Statute of 18 Eliz. ch. 11. it ſeems this is a good Covenant, Trin. 14 Jac. Co. B. Tailors Caſe.

Impoſſible.

And if the thing to be done by a Covenant, be in the nature of it impoſſible, the Covenant is void, 27 H. 8. 27. 4 H. 7. 4. And therefore it is, that if a man covenant to go to Rome in three days, or the like, the Covenant is void. So if a man covenant to make a Feoffment to his wife, this Covenant is void. But if a man covenant to make a good Eſtate of Land to her in Fee-ſimple, or otherwiſe, or to find her Maintenance, or to give her ſo much by the year; theſe are good Covenants. And generally, there where the matter being in a Condition, will make the Condition void, becauſe it is againſt Law; there it being in a Covenant, will make the Covenant void. See Condition, num. 7. Brownl. 2 par. 281.

If

If a Leſſor Covenant with his Leſſee, that he ſhall and may have Houſ-boot, Hay-boot, Plough-boot, &c. by the aſſignment of the Bailiff of the Leſſor; this is a good Covenant: And yet it ſeems it doth not reſtrain the power that the Leſſee hath by the Law, to take theſe things without Aſſignment. But if the Leſſee do Covenant that he will not cut any Timber, or Fuel, without the leave, or without the Aſſignment of the Leſſor; this is a good Covenant, and doth reſtrain him; for in this, and ſuch like caſes, the rule is, Modus & conventio vincunt legem. Dyer 19. 115.

If an Obligee Covenant with the Obligor, that he will not ſue him upon the Obligation until Eaſter following; this is a good Covenant, but no Releaſe or Suſpenſion of the Debt. Mich. 36, 37 Eliz. Co. B. R. Adjudge Deaux verſus Jefferies. 21 *H.*7. 23.

If there be Lord and Tenant of three Acres of Land, White-acre, and two others, and the Lord grant to the Tenant by Deed, that he will not diſtrain in White-acre for his Rent, or Services; this is a good Covenant, but doth not determine the Seigniory. Perk. Sect 69.

If one man grant a Mill within his Manor, and Covenant for him and his Heirs, that there ſhall be no other Mill ſet up within the Manor; it ſeems this is a good Covenant. Fitz. Covenant 5.

If one make a Leaſe, wherein are divers Covenants to be performed on the part of the Leſſee, and after the Leſſee doth Covenant, that if any of the Covenants be broken, that the Leſſor ſhall enter upon the Land demiſed, and hold it until the Leſſee make him amends for the damage done by the breach of the Covenant; it ſeems this is a good Covenant, and that the Leſſor may take advantage thereof accordingly. See more in Brownl. 1 part. 21. Fitz Covenant 3.

If a man ſeiſed of Land in Fee, Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of it to Uſes, and no Eſtate doth riſe by the Covenant; yet this may be good by way of Covenant, and give remedy to the Covenantee in an Action of Covenant. But with this difference. If the Covenant be future, as where one doth Covenant with another, that in conſideration of a marriage, his Lands ſhall deſcend, remain, or revert to his Son and Heir Apparent, and to the Heirs of his Body, on the Body of his Wife; in this caſe the Covenantee may have a Writ of Covenant upon the Covenant. For if a Covenant be preſent, as that a man and his Heirs ſhall from henceforth ſtand and be ſeiſed to ſuch and ſuch uſes, and the uſes will not ariſe by the Law in the caſe; in this caſe no Action of Covenant will lie upon this Covenant, for this Action will never lie upon any Covenant, but upon ſuch a Covenant, as is either to do a thing hereafter, or that a thing is or hath heretofore been done, and not when it is for a thing preſent, as when A. doth Covenant with B. that his black Horſe ſhall be for ever after the Horſe of B; this is no good Covenant to give the Horſe to B. or to give him an Action of Covenant for him, but A. may keep him ſtill notwithſtanding. Plow. 307, 308. 21 *H.*7. 18. 27 *H.*8. 16. Fincheſley 49.

If one Mortgage upon Condition to re-enter upon payment of an hundred pound at a day, and the Mortgagee doth Covenant that he will not take the profits of the Land, until default of payment; this is a good Covenant, and the Mortgagee therefore may not meddle with the profits, until the day of payment come. Agree, 8 Car.

If one make a Leaſe for years of Land, by the words [Demiſe or Grant,] and there is not contained in the Leaſe any expreſs Covenant for the quiet enjoying of the Land; in this caſe the Law doth ſupply a Covenant for the quiet enjoying of it againſt the Leſſor, and all that come in under him by title, during the term, and upon this the Leſſee, his Executors, Adminiſtrators, or Aſſigns, may have an Action of Covenant if he be diſturbed. But where there is an expreſs Covenant in the Deed for the quiet enjoying of the Land, there the Law will not make this implied Covenant. Expreſſum facit ceſſare tacitum.

5. What ſhall be ſaid a good Covenant in Law, upon which an Action of Covenant may be had, and what not. Warranty.

And therefore herein this is not like to the caſe, where a man doth make a Leaſe for life by the words of Dedi & conceſſi, or make a Leaſe for life by other words, Reſerving Rent; (in which caſes the Law doth create a Warranty againſt all men, during the life of the Leſſor:) For if in theſe caſes there

qualify y^e Warranty

be an Expreſs Warranty in the Deed, yet this doth not take away nor qualifie the implied Warranty, but the Leſſee may make uſe of which of them he will, if he be ouſted or evicted by one that hath an elder title. Brownl. 2 part. 212, 213, 214. Co. 4. 80. 5. 17. Trin. 3 *Jac. 6. How a Covenant in Deed or Law ſhall be taken and expounded, and how it ſhall be performed.

A Covenant in particular (being one part of a Deed) is ſubject to the general Rules of Expoſition of all parts of Deeds in general, as to be always taken moſt ſtrongly againſt the Covenantor, and moſt in advantage of the Covenantee. 2. To be taken according to the intent of the parties. 3. Ut res magis valeat, &c. 4. When no time is limited for the doing of the thing, it ſhall be done in reaſonable time, and the like. *Plow. Joynt and ſeveral.

In caſes where the Covenantees have, or are to have ſeveral Intereſts or Eſtates, there when the Covenant is made to, and with the Covenantees, Et cum quolibet eorum, aut altero eorum; in this caſe theſe words make the Covenant ſeveral: As if one by Indenture Demiſe Black-acre to A. and White-acre to B. and Green-acre to C. and Covenant with them and either of them, or Covenant with them, and every of them, that he is lawful owner of all theſe Acres; in this caſe the Covenant is ſeveral: But if he Demiſe to them the three Acres together, and Covenant in this manner; the Covenant is joynt and not ſeveral. And if A. and B. do Covenant joyntly, and ſeverally; in this caſe the Covenant may be joynt, or ſeveral, and the Covenantors may be ſued, either the one way or the other, at the Election of the Covenantee. Co. 5. 19. Dyer 338. *Bro. For quiet enjoying.

If one make a Leaſe of Land to another, and Covenant that he ſhall quietly enjoy it without the let of any perſon whatſoever, or without the let of any perſon whatſoever claiming by, or under the Leſſor; in both theſe caſes the Covenant ſhall be taken to extend to ſuch perſons as have title, or claim ſome Eſtate under the Leſſor; for if in the firſt caſe any perſon that hath no title, and in the ſecond caſe any perſon that ſhall claim under another, and hath title, or that ſhall claim under the Leſſor, claim, or enter, or otherwiſe diſturb the Leſſee; this is held to be no breach of the Covenant. Sed quere of the firſt caſe; for herein ſome conceive a difference between a Covenant in Deed, and a Covenant in Law: And that howſoever the Covenant in Law is extended onely to evictions by title, yet that the Covenant in Deed ſhall be extended further. And therefore that if A. make a Leaſe for years to B. and doth Covenant that B. ſhall quietly enjoy it, during the term, without the interruption of any perſon or perſons; that if a ſtranger in this caſe, that hath no right, doth interrupt B. that he may have an Action of Covenant; as when ſuch a promiſe is by word, an Action of the caſe will lie upon it. If one Covenant with another, to acquit him of all charges iſſuing out of the Land, and after by Parliament the tenth part of the value, not of the Iſſues of all Lands are given to the King; in this caſe it ſeems the Covenant ſhall not extend to this. But if the Parliament had given the tenth part exituum terræ; the Covenant would have extended to this as well as to Rents, Commons, and ſuch like things, wherewith the Land is charged. Brownl. 1 part. 19, 20, 21. To free from Incumbrances and Charges.

If A. Covenant with B. to make ſuch Aſſurance, or ſuch further Aſſurance of Land as the Counſel learned in the Law of B. ſhall adviſe; in this caſe albeit B. be learned in the Law himſelf, yet he may not deviſe this Aſſurance, but ſome other learned in the Law muſt adviſe, otherwiſe A. is not bound to make it. Co 5. 19. To make Aſſurances of Land.

And if A. Covenant with B. to make ſuch Aſſurance of Land by a day, as B. or his Heirs ſhall deviſe; in this caſe B or his Heirs muſt firſt deviſe the Aſſurance before A. is bound to do any thing. And therefore if one ſell Land for money, and the Vendee doth Covenant to make back to the Vendor and his Heirs, ſuch Aſſurance of the Land, as the Counſel of the Vendor ſhall deviſe within one year, provided, That if the Vendee make default in the Aſſurance, then if he do not pay twenty pound to the Vendor, that then the Vendee ſhall ſtand ſeized to the uſe of him and his Heirs, and the Vendor tender no Aſſurance, the twenty pound is not paid; in this caſe the Land is in the Vendee freed from the Covenant. And therefore in theſe and ſuch like caſes, where a man is to make ſuch Aſſurance, as A or his Heirs, at their Counſel ſhall deviſe: A. or his Heirs muſt take care, that in time they have an Aſſurance reaſonably drawn, and ready to be ſealed, and to tender it to him that is to ſeal it, for until then there can be no breach of Covenant. But if A. be bound to make a Feoffment, Leaſe, or other Aſſurance of Land to B. by a day; in this caſe B. need not to demand it, or tender the Aſſurance, for A. at his peril muſt do it, otherwiſe he doth break his Covenant. Co. 5. 19, 20. Dyer 361. And by Juſtice Bridgman.

And yet if in this caſe B. do get the Aſſurance drawn, and tender it to A. it ſeems A. is bound to ſeal it, or otherwiſe he doth break his Covenant. Trin. 20 Jac. B. R. Steed verſus Spike.

And if the caſe be ſo that A. is bound to make ſuch Aſſurance to B. by a day, at the coſts of B; in this caſe A. muſt do the firſt act, viz. notifie to B. what manner of Aſſurance he will make, that he may know what money to tender; and when the money is tendred, A muſt ſee that he do make the Aſſurance accordingly at his peril, and if he fail in either of theſe, the Covenant is broken. Brownl. 2 part. 283. Co. 5. 20, 22.

If A. be bound to make ſuch Aſſurance to B. as by the Counſel learned of B. upon requeſt made, ſhall be deviſed; in this caſe it is ſufficient if the adviſe be given to B. and that he do make it known to A. and it is not needful it be given to A. immediately. Co. 5. 20. And if A. Covenant with B. to make ſuch Aſſurance to B. as J. S. ſhall deviſe, and J. S. doth deviſe a reaſonable Deed of Bargain and Sale, and he tender it to A. to Seal; in this caſe A. is bound to Seal it preſently, and he ſhall not have time to adviſe with his Counſel upon the Deed; but if he be illiterate and cannot read the Deed, he may refuſe and delay to Seal it, until he can get ſome body to read it, which he muſt do as ſoon as he can. Dyer 338. Co. 2. 3. And if one be bound by Covenant to make an Aſſurance upon requeſt; the Covenantee muſt requeſt and tender an Aſſurance alſo, and he muſt tender ſuch a one alſo as is reaſonable, otherwiſe the Covenant will not be broken by the refuſal or neglect to do it; as if one be bound to make a Feoffment to A. upon requeſt; in this caſe A. muſt get a naked Deed of Feoffment drawn without Warranty or Covenants, and tender it. And if the Covenant be to make ſuch a Leaſe as the former; in this caſe the ſecond Leaſe muſt not differ from the former, & if it do, the party is not bound to Seal it. Experientia.

To repair the Houſes.

If one Covenant to keep and leave a houſe in the ſame, or as good plight as it was at the time of the making of the Leaſe; in this caſe the ordinary and natural decay of it, is no breach of the Covenant: But the Covenantor is hereby bound to do his beſt to keep it in the ſame plight, and therefore to keep it covered, &c. B. R. George verſus Lane.

That the Leſſee ſhall make Eſtates.

If one make a Leaſe for years of a Manor, and Covenant that the Leſſee ſhall make eſtates for life or years, and that they ſhall be good; in this caſe it ſeems this Covenant ſhall not be taken to enable the Leſſee to make eſtates for a longer time then his eſtate will bear. By Juſtice Bridgman.

That if the Leſſee ſell, the Leſſor ſhall have the firſt refuſal.

If the Leſſee Covenant with the Leſſor, That if the Leſſee be minded to ſell his eſtate, the Leſſor ſhall have the firſt refuſal; in this caſe when the Leſſee is minded to ſell, he need do no more but acquaint the Leſſor with his purpoſe, and know his minde, and if he do not anſwer him preſently, he may ſell it to whom he will: And if the Covenant be further, that the Leſſor ſhall give as much as another will, the Leſſee muſt tell him what another doth offer him, and ask him whether he will give ſo much; and if he refuſe or do not accept it preſently, the Leſſee may ſell to whom he will. Dyer 13.

To do one thing for another.

If one Covenant to ſerve me a year, and I covenant to pay him ten pound for it; in this caſe albeit he do not ſerve me, yet I muſt pay him the ten pound. But if I Covenant with him to pay him ten pound, if he ſerve me a year, contra; for in this caſe I am not bound to pay him the money, unleſs he ſerve me a year. So if one Covenant to make new Pales, ſo as he may have the old; in this caſe it ſeems he is not bound to make the new Pales, unleſs he may have the old Pales. So if one Covenant to pay money for ſervice, counſel, or the like, or Covenant to marry ones Daughter, or make an eſtate, and the Covenant is penned conditionally, and ſo as one thing is the cauſe of another, and it is not ſet down by mutual and reciprocal Covenants; in all theſe caſes, if the cauſe or condition be not obſerved, the Covenant ſhall not be performed. Co. ſuper Littl. 204. Dyer 371. Mich. 7 Jac. Co. B. R.

If

If one make a Leaſe for ten years, and Covenant that if the Leſſee pay him ten pound within the ten years, that he ſhall have the Fee-ſimple and the Leſſee ſurrender his eſtate within the time; in this caſe, if the Leſſee pay the money, the Leſſor is bound to make the Fee-ſimple to him. But if the words of the Covenant be, that if he pay him ten pound within the term, he ſhall have Fee, and the Leſſee ſurrender his term, and then pay the ten pound; in this caſe the Leſſor is not bound to make the Fee-ſimple, for it was not paid within the term. Co. 1. 144.

That the Leſſee ſhall have the Fee.

If one Covenant to do a thing to J. S. or his Aſſigns, or to J. S. and his Aſſigns by a day, and before the day J. S. die; in this caſe it muſt be done to his Aſſigns, if he before the day, name any Aſſignee; and if he do not, it muſt be done to his Executor or Adminiſtrator, which is an Aſſignee in Law. Aſſigns.

If one be ſeized of Land in Fee, or poſſeſſed of a term of years, and he doth alien it, and ſuppoſing he hath a good eſtate, he doth Covenant that he is lawfully ſeized or poſſeſſed, or that he hath a good eſtate, or that he is able to make ſuch an alienation, &c. And in truth he hath not, but ſome other hath an eſtate in it before; in this caſe the Covenant is broken, as ſoon as it is made. Dyer 303. Co. 9. 60.

7. When a Covenant in Deed or Law ſhall be ſaid to be broken, and when not, and how.

And if I bargain and ſell Land by Deed indented to B. and before the Deed is inrolled, I grant the ſame Land to C. and Covenant that I am ſeized of a good eſtate of it in Fee, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe the Covenant is broken. Adjudge Sir Peral Brocas caſe. 32 Eliz.

That the Covenantor is ſeized of a good Eſtate, &c.

If A. let Land to B. and Covenant that he ſhall quietly enjoy it without the let of any perſon whatſoever, and A. himſelf, or any other perſon that hath any title to the Land, by, or under him, as if he make a Leaſe of it, or grant a Rent out of it to another, or any other perſon that hath any title to the Land, albeit it be not by, or under A. as if A. were a Diſſeiſor, and the Diſſeiſee do enter or diſturb B; in all theſe caſes the Covenant is broken. And ſo alſo is the Law deemed to be by ſome in caſe of Covenant, in Deed for quiet enjoying, where a ſtranger or one that hath no title to the Land, doth enter or diſturb B. But otherwiſe it is in caſe of Covenant in Law for quiet enjoying; for in this caſe, if a ſtranger that hath no title to the Land, doth enter or diſturb the Leſſee; this is no breach of the Covenant in Law. And in all caſes where any perſon hath title, the Covenant is not broken until ſome Entry, or other actual diſturbance be made by him upon his title. Mich. 8 Jac. Lambs caſe. Dyer 328. *F. N. For quiet enjoying.

If a man make a Leaſe of Land, and after make a Feoffment of the ſame Land, and the Feoffee doth diſturb the Leſſee; in this caſe it hath been ſaid, this is a breach of the Covenant for quiet enjoying. Sed quere Brownl. 1 part. 20, 21, 22, 23 24. 78. 80, 81. 20 Jac. Bro. Covenant 7.

If a man purchaſe Land to him and his Wife, and his Heirs in Fee, and then make a Leaſe for years of it to J. S. and Covenant for him, his Executors and Aſſigns, that the Leſſee, his Executors and Aſſigns, ſhall quietly hold and enjoy the premiſſes, without the let of the Leſſor, his Heirs or Aſſigns, or any other perſon, by or through his or their means, title or procurement, and after the Leſſor doth die, and his Wife doth enter and diſturb; in this caſe, and by this means the Covenant is broken. Hil. 20 Jac. Adjudge B. R. Butler verſus Lady Swinerton.

And ſo it is alſo, if A. purchaſe Land of B. to have and to hold to A. for life, the Remainder to C. the ſon of A. in Tail, and after A. doth make a Leaſe of this Land to D. for years, and doth Covenant for the quiet enjoying as in the laſt caſe, and then he dieth, and then C. doth out the Leſſee; in this caſe this was held to be no breach of the Covenant. Swans caſe. M. 7, 8 Eliz.

So likewiſe if A. be ſeized of White-acre in Fee, and take to Wife B. and then make a Leaſe of it to C. with ſuch a Covenant as before, for the quiet enjoying, and then A. doth die, and after B. doth recover Dower; by this the Covenant is broken, and yet if the Mother of A. recover Dower, and out the Leſſee, contra. So alſo if a Tenant in Tail doth make a Leaſe with ſuch a Covenant, and his Iſſue doth diſturb the the Leſſee; this is no breach of the Covenant. And yet if the Leſſor be the cauſe of the Gift in Tail, or procure the diſturbance, this may be a breach of the Covenant. And ſo alſo it is where a man is ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and he doth make a Leaſe with ſuch a Covenant, and afterwards he doth die, and then his Heir is in Ward by reaſon of a Tenure, and hereby the Leſſee is diſturbed; it ſeems this is no breach of this Covenant. Dyer 42. 26 H 8. 3. *Fitz. If two make a Leaſe, and Covenant that the Leſſee ſhall enjoy the Land without the let of them, or any other, and one of them alone doth diſturb the Leſſee; this is a breach of the Covenant. Adjudge. Mich. 2 Car. B. R. Sanders caſe.

If a Leſſee grant and aſſign all the Land contained in his Leaſe to A. and doth Covenant with him, that he hath not done any act or thing by which the Grant or Aſſignment might be impaired, but that the Aſſignee his Executors, &c. may enjoy it againſt all perſons, and before this time the Wife of the Leſſor had recovered and had execution of a third part of this Land for her Dower; in this caſe this is no breach of the Covenant, for the words [but that, &c.] do refer to the former, and are not abſolute. Dyer 240.

If A. grant the Bailiwick of W. to B. for life, and B. aſſign it to C. for three years, and after to D. and C. doth Covenant with D. that he will not do or ſuffer to be done any act, during the ſaid three years, by which the Grant made by A. may be forfeit, but that after the three years ended, he may enjoy it in as ample manner as C. did, or might have done without any act by C. and after the three years ended, C. doth execute a Proces there, and thereby incroach upon the Office; this is no breach of the Covenant. Adjudge. Rich verſus Row. Paſche, 13 Jac. Co. B. R.

To free from Charges and Incumbrances.

If A. grant Land to B. and his Heirs, rendring ten pound Rent, and B. doth ſell the Land to C. and his Heirs, and doth Covenant with C. that from ſuch a day he ſhall enjoy it, diſcharged of all Incumbrances, and before that day a Common Recovery is had againſt C. in which A. is vouched, and this is to the uſe of C. and his Heirs, ſuppoſing hereby the Rent had been gone, which is not ſo; in this caſe the Covenant is broken, for this Rent is an Incumbrance. Brownl. 1 part. 20, 21. Curia, Hil. 20 *Jac. If a Leaſe be made of Land for years, and the Leſſee deviſe it to his Wife durante viduitate, and after to his Son, and he in Reverſion doth ſell the Fee to the Woman, during the Widowhood, and doth Covenant that the Land is diſcharged of all former Sales, Rights, Titles, Charges; in this caſe the Covenant is broken at the firſt by reaſon of the poſſibility of the Son Co. 10 52.

If A. grant White-acre to B. and Covenant that B. ſhall enjoy it againſt all Incumbrances, and C. doth diſturb him in the taking of Common there, and this is a Common which is againſt Common Right, and which he hath by Preſcription; in this caſe it ſeems this is a breach of the Covenant. But if it be of a Common that is of Common Right, Contra. 9 Eliz. Co. B. R.

To make Eſtates and Aſſurances.

If A. Covenant with B. before Eaſter to make him a good ſure Eſtate of Land, diſcharged of all former Bargains, Leaſes, and Incumbrances whatſoever. (Leaſes or Grants for life or years, reſerving the ancient Rent during the term onely excepted) and A. after this, and before the eſtate made, doth make a Grant of all or part of the Land, reſerving the old Rent; it ſeems this is no breach of the Covenant. Brownl. 1 part. 84. Dyer 139.

If one make a Leaſe to J. S. for years, and Covenant with him that upon the Surrender of that Leaſe, he will make him a new Leaſe, and the Leſſor before J. S. can make any Surrender, doth ſell away the Reverſion, or make a Leaſe to another of the Land, and ſo diſable himſelf; this is ipſo facto a breach of the Covenant, without any Surrender made by the Leſſee, which in this caſe is not needful. For, Lex neminem cogit ad vana & inutilia peragenda. So if one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee and Covenant to make a Feoffment of it to J. S. by a day upon a Requeſt, and the Covenantor before the day doth make a Feoffment of it to another, and then doth die before any Requeſt made to him; in this caſe the Covenant is broken. Co. 5. 21.

If A. Covenant with B. to make ſuch Aſſurance as B. or as the Counſel learned of B. ſhall deviſe, and B. tender ſuch an Aſſurance to A. to ſeal, and A. doth refuſe or delay to ſeal it; this is a breach of the Covenant. Dyer 338. Co. 2. 3.

If A. doth Covenant with B. C. D. and E. to make them a Feoffment ſuch a day, and they come to the Land at the time to take it, and A. doth not make the Feoffment; by this the Covenant is broken. And ſo alſo if B. and C. onely, or one of them doth come to the Land; for it may be made to any of them in the name of the reſt. But if none of them come to the Land, albeit the Feoffor never come there, it ſeems the Covenant is not broken. Bro. Covenant 3.

If A. Covenant with B. before Eaſter next, to aſſure his Houſe to him, and K. his Wife, during the life of J. S. and A. ſurrender his Houſe to the uſe of B. and ſuch as K. ſhall name at the Requeſt of B; in this caſe the Covenant is broken, for this is no performance of it. Curia, B. R.

If one Covenant to repair, ſuſtain, and amend a Houſe, and the Houſe is burnt by the negligence of the Covenantor, and not repaired again; this is a breach of this Covenant. And if the Leſſee Covenant for him and his Executors, to repair at his own coſts (the principal Timber not hurt or in decay for lack of reparations, or otherwiſe in default of the Leſſee or his Executors onely except) and he die, and afterwards the Houſe is burnt in default of the Executors; in this caſe the Covenant is broken, and the Executors may be charged. Dyer 324. To repair.

If one Covenant to leave a Wood in the ſame plight he findes it, and he cut down Trees; in this caſe the Covenant is broken preſently, for it is now become impoſſible to be performed by his own act: But if in this caſe ſome of the Trees be blowed down with the wind, or the like, by this the Covenant is not broken, for it is now become impoſſible to be done by the act of God, and in this caſe the Covenantor is not bound to ſupply it. And ſo likewiſe of a Covenant to repair Houſes, or if one Covenant to ſuſtain Houſes or Sea-banks, or Covenant to leave them in as good caſe as one doth finde them, and the Houſes be burnt, or thrown down by tempeſt, or the like, or the Banks be overthrown by a ſudden flood, or the like accident; in this caſe the Covenant is not broken by this accident onely; but if the Covenantor do not repair, and make up theſe things again in time convenient, the Covenant will be broken. And if Houſes be let to me for years, and I Covenant to leave them in as good plight as I finde them, and I throw down the Houſes; this is no breach of the Covenant for I may re-edifie them, and therefore no Action will lie upon this Covenant until the end of the term. *Fitz. Not to take Toll.

If a Corporation do Covenant not to take Toll, and their Common Officer appointed for that purpoſe doth take it; this is a breach of the Covenant. 43 Ed. 3. 17.

To build a Houſe.

If A. Covenant with B. to build a Houſe by a day, and B. doth forbid him, and thereupon he doth forbear to do it, and doth it not; in this caſe the Covenant is broken, for this will not excuſe him: But if he do by any actual impediment hinder him, or be the cauſe why the thing is not done, then the not doing of it is no breach of the Covenant. And therefore if a Leſſee Covenant to clenſe one of the Ditches in the Land demiſed, and the Leſſor enter upon the Land it ſelf, and keep out the Leſſee, and he doth not clenſe the Ditch by the time; by this the Covenant is broken: But if in this caſe the Leſſor do by force keep the Leſſee out of the Ditch or place it ſelf, Contra. 18 Edw. 4. 8. Kelw. 34. Trin. 36 *Eliz. 8. Who ſhall or may have advantage of a Covenant in Deed or Law, and bring a Writ of Covenant upon the breach of it, or not.

Any one that is party to the Deed, to whom the Covenant is made, may take advantage of the Covenant, but not a ſtranger; for if A. Covenant with B. to do an act to C. who is no party to the Deed, and he doth it not, B. and not C. muſt ſue him upon this breach.

If a Leaſe be made of Land to a Husband and Wife for years, and the Leſſor doth enter upon the Land, and put them both out, or the one of them after the death of the other; in this caſe both of them whiles they both live, and the ſurvivor after the death of one of them, may have this Action of Covenant upon the Covenant in Law.

So if a Wardſhip be granted to a Woman by Deed, and ſhe take a Husband and die, the Husband ſhall have advantage of this Covenant in Law made by the word [Grant] if he be diſturbed.

So if one by the words [Demiſe or Grant] Leaſe Land to a Woman-ſole for years, who taketh a Husband and dieth; in this caſe if the Husband be diſturbed he ſhall take advantage of this Covenant in Law. Co. 5. 17. Dyer 257. 47 Ed. 3. 12.

Heir.

Warranty

If a Feoffment be made in Fee, and the Feoffor doth Covenant to warrant the Land, or otherwiſe to the Feoffee and his Heirs; in this caſe the Heir of the Feoffee ſhall take advantage of this. As if A. Covenant with B. and his Heirs to infeoff B. and his Heirs of Land, and B. die before it be done; in this caſe his Heirs ſhall take advantage thereof.

And

And if A. B. and C. have Lands in Coparcenary, and they purchaſe other Lands in Fee, and they Covenant each to other his Heirs and Aſſigns to make ſuch Conveyance to the Heir of him that ſhall die firſt, of a third part as he ſhall deviſe; in this caſe the Heir, not the Executor, ſhall take advantage of the Covenant. Dyer 338.

Executors and Adminiſtrators.

Executors and Adminiſtrators ſhall take advantage of Inherent Covenants, albeit they be not named. And therefore if A. Covenant to do a thing to B. and do not name his Executors or Adminiſtrators, and it be not done; it ſeems the Executors or Adminiſtrators of B. may have an Action of Covenant for the not doing of it. As if one Covenant with J. S. to pay him money at Michaelmas, and do not ſay to his Executors, &c. and he die before the time; in this caſe his Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall take advantage of this Covenant, and may recover the money. Co. 5. 17. F.N.B. 145. Dyer 112. 271.

Aſſignees or Grantees.

Grantees of Reverſions ſhall have the like advantage againſt Fermors (by Action onely) for any Covenant or Agreement contained in their Leaſe, as the Leſſors, their Heirs or Succeſſors might. And ſo alſo ſhall Leſſees againſt Grantees of Reverſions (Recoveries in value except) by the Statute of 32 H. 8. 34. And herein (as in the caſes of a Condition before) a difference is taken between Covenants that are inherent, and Covenants that are collateral. For the Covenants whereof Grantees by this Statute ſhall take advantage, are inherent Covenants, (i.) Such Covenants as do concern the thing granted, and tend to the ſupportation of it: As where a Leſſee for life or years doth Covenant with his Leſſor and his Heirs, to keep the Houſes demiſed in good reparations, or the like, and after the Leſſor doth grant away the Reverſion of all, (Mich. 8 Jac. Primes caſe,) or part of the Houſes to J. S; in this caſe J. S. ſhall take advantage for any breach of the Covenant in his time, but not for any breach before the time the Reverſion was granted. But if the Leſſee doth Covenant with his Leſſor and his Heirs, to pay him a ſum of money, or make him a Feoffment, or the like, and then the Leſſor doth grant the Reverſion to J. S; in this caſe J. S. ſhall not take advantage of this Covenant: And yet the Executors or Adminiſtrators of the Leſſor ſhall take advantage of this Covenant. See Goldsb. 175. pl. 109. See Condition, Numb. 12. Co. 5. 18. 9 Jac. B. R. Wilborne and Beſtwichs caſe. Accord.

Regularly, every Aſſignee of the Land or thing Demiſed, ſhall take advantage of inherent Covenants, as if a Covenant be, to have Eſtovers to burn in the Houſe Demiſed, or to have Timber to repair, or if the Covenant be that the Leſſor or Leſſee ſhall repair, or the like. And therefore of theſe Aſſignees in Deed and in Law Aſſignees of Aſſignees in infinitum, ſhall take advantage. and Aſſignees of Executors or Adminiſtrators, Tenants by Statute, or Elegit, or after a ſale upon a Fieri Facias, a Husband in the Right of his Wife; any one of theſe, and any other that ſhall come lawfully to a term, unto which ſuch a Covenant is incident, albeit he be not named, yet may he take advantage of it. Co. 5. 17.

If a Leaſe for years be made to J. S. by the words [Demiſe or Grant] and the Leſſee aſſign this over to J. D; in this caſe J. D. may take advantage of the Covenant in Law, and bring an Action againſt the Leſſor, if he be diſturbed. Co. 4. 80. Dyer 257. Fitz. Covenant 30.

If a Leaſe for years be made of Land, and the Leſſor doth Covenant with the Leſſee and his Aſſigns to do, or not to do ſomething; in this caſe an Aſſignee by word, or an Aſſignee by Deed, may take advantage of this Covenant. Co. 3. 63. F.N.B. 145.

If two Coparcenors make Partition of Land, and the one of them doth Covenant with the other to acquite her, and her Heirs of a Suit that iſſued out of the Land, and the Covenantee doth alien her part to a ſtranger; in this caſe the Alienee ſhall have the ſame advantage for acquital of the Land as the Covenantee had.

So if A. be ſeiſed of the Manor of B. whereof a Chappel is parcel, and a Prior with the conſent of his Covent, had covenanted with A. and his Heirs, Lords of the Manor to celebrate Divine Service in the Chappel, and after A. had ſold the Manor; in this case the Vendee or Assignee of the Manor should have had the same advantage of the Covenant the Vendor had. But if the Lord had sold the Chappel, the Assignee of the Chappel should not take advantage of the Covenant. And if a Covenant be to say Divine Service in the Chappel of a stranger; in this case the Assignee of the Manor, in which the Chappel is, shall not take advantage of the Covenant. *Brownl. 2 part. 56. 207. 9. Who shall be bound and charged by a Covenant; and against whom a Writ of Covenant doth lie, and where, or not. Executors, Administrators.

Regularly, all those that do seal and deliver the Deed, and are named and bound by the express words of the Covenant, whether the Covenant be collateral or inherent, are bound by the Covenant contained in the Deed: And therefore if Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, be named in the Covenant, for the most part they are bound by the Covenant. And in all cases of Inherent Covenants also, where a man doth Covenant for himself onely, and doth not name his Executors and Administrators, or either of them; they are bound, and may be charged by the Covenant notwithstanding: And in some cases the Law is so also for collateral Covenants; and in most cases of Inherent Covenants that tend to the support of the thing granted, (in respect of which, it is presumed, the Lessor took the less for the Land) such as have the Land, albeit they be neither Executors nor Administrators, or either of them but Assignees, &c. shall be charged by the Covenant, though they be not named; for these Covenants are said to run with the Land. Co. 5. 16, 17, 18.

If a Feoffment or Lease be made to two, or to a man and his wife, and there are divers Covenants in the Deed to be performed on the part of the Feoffees or Lessees, and one of them doth not seal, or the wife doth, or doth not seal during the Coverture, and he or she that doth not seal, doth notwithstanding accept of the Estate, and occupy the Lands conveyed or demised; in these cases, as touching all Inherent Covenants, as for payment of Rent, and the accessaries thereof, as clauses of Distress, of Re-entry, of Nomine pœnæ, Reparations, and the like; they are bound by these Covenants as much as if they do seal the Deed. So if a Lease be made to A. for years or life, the Remainder to J. S. in Fee, and there is a Rent reserved, or there be divers Covenants on the part of the Grantees, and J. S. doth never seal the Deed or Counterpart; yet if in this case he accept the estate after the death of A. he must pay the Rent, and perform all the Covenants that are Inherent. So also if there be Covenants in the Kings Patent to be performed on the part of the Patentee. As if there be this clause in the Patent [And that J. S. (the Patentee) shall repair the House when it is decayed;] in this case the Patentee is bound by this Covenant, and all such like Covenants. But quere of collateral Covenants in the first cases, for therein it seems the Feoffee or Lessee is not bound: And yet it is said, That if an Indenture be made between A. of the one part, and B. and C. of the other part, and therein there is a Lease made by A. to B. and C. on certain Conditions, and B. and C. are bound to A by the Indenture in twenty pound, to perform the Conditions, and B. onely doth seal the Deed, and not C; yet in this case, if C. accept of the Estate he is bound by the Covenants, and one of them cannot be sued without the other, whiles they are both living. *Qui sentit commodum sentire debet & onus. Heirs.

If a man Covenant for him and his Heirs, to do any thing whatsoever; hereby his Heirs are bound: But otherwise, except the Heirs be bound by the Deed by express name, an Heir shall scarcely be bound or charged in any case by a Deed. And therefore it is, that if the Lessee for years be ousted by any other but the Heir himself, no Action of Covenant will lie against the Heir, unless there be an express Covenant wherein and whereby the Lessor and his Heirs are bound. But if he be ousted by the Heir himself, it seems an Action of the Covenant will lie against him: And yet if he be ousted by an elder title from the Lessor, Contra; for in this case the Heir shall not be charged. *Co. 5. 17. Executors, Administrators.

If a man do Covenant for himself onely, to pay money, build a House, for quiet enjoying, or the like, and he doth not say in the Covenant [His Executors

Deſcent Adminiſtrators, &c.] Yet hereby his Executors and Adminiſtrators are bound, and ſhall be charged. And yet if a Leſſee for years Covenant for himſelf, to repair the Houſes demiſed, omitting other words; it ſeems in this caſe he is bound to repair onely during his life, and the Executors or Adminiſtrators are not bound. So if a Leſſor Covenant for himſelf onely, to diſcharge the Leſſee of all quit Rents out of the Land; it ſeems this Covenant is onely perſonal, and ſhall binde the Covenantor onely during his life. But if in theſe caſes theſe words [during the Term] be added in the Covenant, as if a Leſſee Covenant for himſelf to repair the Houſes during the term, or the Leſſor Covenant for himſelf to diſcharge the Leſſee of all quit Rents, during the term; in theſe caſes it ſeems the Executors and Adminiſtrators alſo, will be charged after his death. 10 H 7. 10. Dyer 19. 14. *Bro. If a Leſſee be ouſted by one that hath title; it ſeems an Action of Covenant will lie for this ouſter againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator upon the Covenant in Law, if he were put out in the life time of the Leſſor, and not otherwiſe: For if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee to another, and the Tenant for life by the words [Demiſe or Grant] doth make a Leaſe for years and die, and after he in the Remainderdoth enter and put out the Leſſee for years; in this caſe he cannot upon this Covenant in Law, charge the Executors or Adminiſtrators of the Leſſor: But upon an expreſs Covenant for quiet enjoying he may. Dyer 257.

Aſſignees or Grantees.

In ſome caſes an Aſſignee ſhall be charged though he be not named, and in ſome caſes ſhall not be charged, though he be named; and in ſome caſes he ſhall be charged when he is named, as when the Covenant doth extend to a thing in eſſe, parcel of the Demiſe, there the thing to be done is Appurtenant and quodammodo annexed to the thing, and ſhall binde the Aſſignee, though he be not expreſly named, as a Covenant to repair, &c. But if the Covenant be annexed to a thing not in eſſe before, but de novo to be erected on the thing, as to ſet up a new Houſe, or the like; in this caſe it will not binde the Aſſignees, unleſs they be named in the Covenant And if the Covenant be to do a thing meerly collateral; in that caſe it will not binde the Aſſignees, albeit they be named expreſly. Alſo when a contract is perſonal onely, and a man doth binde himſelf and his Aſſigns, his Aſsigns ſhall not be bound hereby: As if one Demiſe Sheep, or other ſtock of Cattle, or any other perſonal Goods for any time, and the Leſſee doth Covenant for him and his Aſsigns, at the end of the Term, to deliver them in as good plight, as they were at the time of the Demiſe, or ſuch a price for them, and the Leſſee aſsign them; in this caſe this Covenant will not binde the Aſsignee: But the Executors and Adminiſtrators of the firſt Leſſee are bound hereby. So if one Demiſe a Houſe and Land, with a ſtock or ſum of money for years, rendring Rent, and the Leſſee doth Covenant for him and his Aſsigns to deliver the money at the end of the term; in this caſe an Aſsignee ſhall not be bound by this Covenant as the Executors and Adminiſtrators of the Leſſee ſhall. See more in Brownl. 1 part. 19, 20, &c. Co. 5. 16.

Executors.

If a Leſſee Covenant to repair the Houſes demiſed, or to diſcharge the Leſſor de omnibus oneribus circa terram, or the like; in theſe caſes, and ſuch like, albeit Aſsignees be not named in the Covenant, yet Aſsignees and Aſsignees of Aſsignees in infinitum, and all others that ſhall come to the Land by the Act of Law, or by the Act of the Parties, ſhall be bound and charged by this Covenant. Co. 5. 17. Dyer 27. Bro. Deſcent 50.

If a Leſſee Covenant for him and his Aſsigns to build a new Houſe upon the Land demiſed within ſeven years, and the Leſſee aſsign it over; in this caſe the Aſsignee is chargable. But if a man Covenant for him and his Aſsigns to make a Feoffment, Obligation, or the like, in this caſe the Aſsignee ſhall not be charged, albeit he be named. And if the Leſſee Covenant for himſelf, or for himſelf, his Executors and Adminiſtrators onely to build a new Houſe upon the Land demiſed, and the Leſſee aſsign over the Land; in this caſe the Aſsignee is not bound by this Covenant. See more in Conditions of Obligations. Co. 5. 17.

If a Leaſe be made rendring Rent, and if it be arrear that the Leſſee his Executors and Aſsigns ſhall forfeit three ſhillings four pence nomine pœnæ, and the Leſſee assign the term; in this case it seems the Assignee shall be charged with the nomine pœnæ. Goldsb. 127. pl. 125. Thins case. versus Cholmsley. Trin. 36 Eliz. Co. B. R.

Note. And in all the cases before where a Covenant is broken, an Action of Covenant may be brought. But herein note that howsoever in divers of the cases before Assignees are chargable upon a Covenant, yet the Lessee himself is not hereby discharged, but the Lessor or Grantee of the Reversion, hath Election to charge which of them he will. And therefore if a Lessee Covenant for him and his Assignees to repair, and the Lessee assign; in this case the Lessor may have his Action of Covenant against either of them. And if a Lessee Covenant for him, his Executors, Administrators, and Assigns, to repair the Houses demised; and he in Reversion doth grant away his Reversion, and the Lessee assign his estate; in this case albeit the Grantee of the Reversion, have accepted the Rent of the Assignee of the term, yet he may still have an Action of Covenant against the Executor of the Lessee upon this Covenant. So if a Patentee Covenant for him and his Assigns to repair, and he assign; the King may have his Action against either of them. Brownl. 1 part. 120, 121. Bro. Covenant 32. Hil. 16 Jac. B. R. Curia, Bret versus Cumberland.

If A. and B. do Covenant for themselves joyntly without more words; the Covenant is joynt, and one of them cannot be discharged without the other. But if they Covenant for themselves severally, the Covenant is several, and they may be sued apart. And if they Covenant joyntly and severally; then the Covenant is joynt and several, and they may be sued either way at the Election of the Covenantee. Co. 5. 23.

10. When a Covenant shall be said to be gone and discharged, and when not, and how.

Where the Deed it self wherein the Covenants are contained, or the Estate on which the Covenants as accessary to the Principal do depend, is gone and determined, there regularly the Covenants are gone also. And therefore if a Lease for life or years, be surrendred, whereby the Estate is gone, or a Deed become void by rasure, or the like, and there be Covenants contained in the Deed; by these means the Covenants are gone also. But this Surrender doth not discharge the breach of Covenant which was before the Surrender. For if a Parson Lease his Glebe for years, and after resign, whereby the Lease for years doth become void; in this case the Covenants of the Lease, as to the time before the Resignation shall be said to be in force still. Dyer 20. Co. 5. 23. 40 Eliz. 3. 27. Bro. Surrender 47. Covenant 42. Hil. 4 Jac. B. R. Moile versus Austin.

Where a Covenant is become impossible to be done by the act of God, as where one doth Covenant to serve another seven years, and he die before the seven years be expired; by this the Covenant is discharged. Co. 1. 98. Plow. 286.

Where there is an express Covenant in a Deed, for quiet enjoying, the implied Covenant is gone. Expressum facit cessare tacitum. Co. 4. 80.

Release. By a Release of all Covenants from the Covenantee the Covenant is discharged, so as the Release be by Deed, for a Covenant by Deed cannot be discharged by word. And therefore if A. by Deed Covenant with B. to build a House by a day, and B. doth wish him to let it alone; this is no discharge of the Covenant. 18 Eliz. 4. 8.

If the Lessor accept the Rent of the Lessee or his Assignee, after a Covenant broken; this doth not discharge the breach of the Covenant, but the Lessor may sue for it notwithstanding. Pasche, 6 Car. B. R. Adjudge Batchelors case.

If the Deed wherein the Covenant is, be by consent of both parties cancelled; this dischargeth the Covenants in time to come, but if any were broken before, he may sue for that. Brownl. 2 part. 167.

CHAP. LVII.

Of a Countermand, or Revocation.

A Countermand or Revocation, is the recalling and determining of ſome power or authority given, or thing before done: Or it is the commanding of ſome thing contrary to that which one had commanded before. And this is either in Law or implied, and ſo the making of a ſecond Will, and the granting of ſecond Letters of Adminiſtration, is a Revocation of the firſt Will, and Letters of Adminiſtration: Or it is expreſs and in fact, where a man doth indeed Countermand, and recal his act. And ſo it is either general, as when a man doth revoke all former Wills; or ſpecial, as where a man doth revoke his Will made ſuch a day. Or it may be general and ſpecial, as where a man doth revoke all former Wills, eſpecially his Will made ſuch a day. And in caſe where an Authority or Licence is revoked, it is as if it had not been given; and if he that had it, ſhall do any thing upon it, he may be puniſhed for it, as if no ſuch Authority at all had been given him. Broo. 330. 27 H 8. 26. 4 *H.*7. 14.

Countermand or Revocation. What. The kindes of it.

For this take theſe things.

1. That the King by his Prerogative might have revoked his Preſentment to an Advowſon before Induction, which a common perſon could not have done. And he may Countermand his Authority, Protection, and Commiſſion at his pleaſure. Dyer 348. 292. Regiſter 304, 305.

What acts are Revocable, or not. By the King.

2. A common perſon may Countermand his Licence, Power, Authority, or Command, before it be executed. And ſo (for the moſt part) he may do his Grant, if it be onely of a matter of eaſe, pleaſure, or truſt. And therefore if I Licence another to enter into my Houſe or Ground, or to take and uſe my Horſe for a time, or to take and deliver ſuch a thing to J. S. or I being a Juſtice of Peace, make a Warrant to J. S. to arreſt a man, or I command or licence one to take Deer for me, or to cut Wood for me, or the like; or I make a Letter of Attorney to make, or take Livery of Seiſin for me, or to ſue, or do any thing in my name; or I deliver another Goods or Money, to deliver over to another, or give to the poor, or to beſtow for a new years gift, or the like; or I make another my Factor, Proctor, or Attorney, or I aſsign Auditors to take an account, or I Grant to another to hunt in my Park, or to keep my Court; or if I command another to do any of theſe things: In all theſe caſes, before the thing be done, I may forbid the doing of it, and may recal the Power. So a mans Will is revocable at his pleaſure, notwithſtanding he ſay in it, it ſhall be his laſt Will, and not revocable, and notwithſtanding it be annexed to a Feoffment, and Livery, and Seiſin made upon it. So an Adminiſtration granted, may be revoked by him that makes it; ſo alſo it ſeems of an Attornment; and ſo it is ſaid of a Surrender of Copihold-land to uſes; that this in ſome caſes, is revocable. So a Submiſſion to an Award, is revocable alſo. Brownl. Rep. 2 part. 29. Dyer 22. Co. 4. 62. Dyer 49. 5 *H.*7. 18. 9 *Ed.*4. 4. 39 *H.*6. 7.

Sect. 1. By a common Perſon. Warrant to Arreſt. Will. Adminiſtration.

3. All theſe things being in their own nature revocable, are ſtill ſo, albeit they be made and done with irrevocable words; and though a man binde himſelf by Bond or Aſſumpſit not to revoke it, and yet he may be ſued upon the Aſſumpſit or Bond for revoking it. But a man cannot by any act he can do, make a Power or Authority, not revocable, which by Law, and in his own nature, is revocable. Co. 8. 82. 5 *Ed.*4. 3.

4. But a man cannot revoke an Intereſt, as if he hath made a Leaſe for years of his ground, or a Grant of his Horſe for four days, or Grant to another the keeping of his Park for two years. Or grant one the keeping of his Court, and ten pound yearly out of the Iſſues thereof, for a time certain; theſe things cannot be recalled. Dyer 348. 292. 49. 39 *H.*6. 7. 18 *Ed.*4. 8.

5. It

5. It is ſaid alſo, That if a thing be delivered, to be given to another in ſatisfaction of ſomething before done; that this is not revocable. Dyer 49. 22.

6. If one deliver a Deed to another, as an Eſcrow on certain Conditions performed, to take effect as his Deed; this is not countermandable. Perk. Sect. 141.

Surrender. 7. If a Copiholder, like to die, do Surrender to Tenants out of Court, according to cuſtom, to the uſe of his Wife or Children; and this is without any conſideration of money, &c. and he recover, it is ſaid before the Preſentment and Admittance; this is countermandable. But if it be to the uſe of a ſtranger, it is otherwiſe. Kitch. 82.

8. If two exchange Land by Deed, or without Deed, and neither of them enter, they may revoke or diſſolve the exchange by mutual conſent; but it muſt be diſſolved by Deed. 3 H. 7. 13. F.N.B. 36.

9. If I preſent a Clerk to an Advowſon, I cannot revoke it. 14 Ed. 4. 2.

10. If I grant a Reverſion, I cannot before Attornment revoke it: So it is in Nominations and Elections. If I enfeoff ſuch a one as J. D. ſhall name within a year, and he name J. D., yet before the Feoffment, and within the year, he may name another, and Countermand the firſt Nomination: But if I enfeoff J. S. to the uſe of ſuch a one as J. D. ſhall name within a year, and he name J. D. and he do name within the time; this is not revocable. 14 E. 4. 4. 2.

For anſwer to this, take theſe caſes.

3. What Act ſhall be ſaid to be a good Revocation of a thing revocable, or not. Of a will. Sect. 2. Woman-ſole marry.

1. By the making of a latter Will of Land in writing, a former Will is revoked; and this, albeit it make no mention of the former Will. And if the former Will be onely about Goods and Chattels, the latter Will, albeit it be but Verbal, will revoke a former Will made in writing. Co. 8. 90. Dyer 310. Co. 4. 60. If a Woman-ſole make a Will, and then take a Husband; this is a Countermand of her Will: But if in this caſe ſhe happen to out-live her Husband, and this Will continue, and no other Will is made, the Will perhaps will be revived, and good again. Co. 4. 62. If one make a Will of Land, and after he make a Feoffment of the Land, or a Bargain and Sale of it, but this Conveyance is defective for lack of Livery of Seiſin or Inrolment; yet this is a Countermand of the Will. And yet if I do onely Covenant, to make an eſtate of it, and do make no eſtate of it; it ſeems this is no Revocation of the Will. And if I make a Deviſe of my Land, and after make a Leaſe for years of it; it ſeems this is no Revocation, but the Will may ſtand good, for the Reverſion after the Leaſe for years ended. Dyer 74. 47; If one have a Leaſe for years, and give it by Will, and then Surrender it, and take a new Leaſe; this is a Countermand of the Deviſe, and if he die, the Deviſee ſhall not have this Leaſe. Goldsb. Rep. 93. If a man that is of ſound memory, make his Will, and after this he becomes not himſelf; this is no Revocation of the Will in Law, nor can he whiles he is in this caſe, make any expreſs Revocation of it. Co. 4. 61.

Non compos mentis.

Of an Attornment. 2. If a Feme-ſole make a Leaſe for life, rendring a Rent, and after ſhe ſell the Reverſion, and then before the Attornment of the Tenant ſhe marry; it is ſaid, That by this the Attornment of the Tenant is Countermanded, and that now it cannot be made. But if ſhe take to Husband the Grantee of the Reverſion, that this is no Countermand. 2 R. 2. 8.

Of a Submiſſion to an Arbitrement. 3. If a Woman-ſole ſubmit to an Arbitrement, and after ſhe marry, and after the marriage the Award is made; this Award is void: For by the marriage, the Submiſſion is countermanded in Law. And let the Award be never ſo much to her profit, it is void. White againſt Gifford, B. R. Adjudged.

Feme-covert. 4. A Woman-covert whiles her Husband lives, can make no good Countermand of any thing ſhe did, whiles ſhe was unmarried. Co. 4. 61.

5. The Countermand that is of force to revoke a Power regularly, muſt be made after the ſame manner was made; that is, if the Power be created by writing, it muſt be diſſolved in the ſame manner; in that caſe therefore, the Revocation muſt be by writing alſo.

Notice. 6. And regularly where there is an expreſs Revocation, there notice muſt be given of it, to him to whom the power is given, before he execute the power, otherwiſe it is not good: For if once the Power be executed, the Revocation comes too late; but in caſe of a Countermand in Law, there no notice is needful. And therefore if one make make a Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and before the Livery be made the Feoffor make a Leaſe or Feoffment to another; this is a good Countermand without Notice. Fortior eſt diſpoſitio Legis quàm hominis, (i.) The Diſpoſition of Law, is ſtronger then the diſpoſition of man. Vivions caſe. Brownl. 2 Rep. 290.

CHAP. LVIII.

Of Courts.

THis word Court did ſometimes ſignifie the Kings Houſe, where he did reſide and abide with his Houſhold: It doth alſo ſignifie a Tribunal or place where Juſtice is adminiſtred Judicially. And of theſe Courts there are many kindes. They were heretofore diſtinguiſhed into Courts Eccleſiaſtical, Chriſtian, or Spiritual, ſuch as did handle Spritual Matters; aad theſe were ſtiled the Convocation, the Subſcription, the High Commiſsion, the Prerogative, the Arches, the Audience, the Conſiſtory, the Courts of Faculties, of Peculiars, of the Archdeacon or his Commiſſary, of Delegates, and incidently of Appeals, of Commiſsioners of Review, and of the Conſervators of the Privileges of St. Johns of Jeruſalem; all which are now gone, and out of uſe, whereof you may read in Cook, in the Fourth Part of his Inſtitutes, from Page 321, to the end of the Book.

Sect. 16. Court. What. The kindes of it. Spiritual Courts.

And Courts Civil, which were ordained and uſed about Civil Matters; and theſe were very many; and of theſe there are ſome out of uſe, and others that are ſtill in Being, and of uſe. Thoſe Courts and Juriſdictions that are out of uſe and gone, are ſuch as theſe: The Council Table, the Courts of the High Steward of England, of the Star-Chamber wherein the Great Lords of the Council and the Judges were Judges, of Redreſs, of Delays, of Judgments in the Kings Great Courts, wherein were Judges, ſuch great Men as the King did appoint; a Court to enquire of, and certifie unlawful and true Accounts in the Exchequer, wherein were Judges, ſuch as the King did appoint; the Courts of General Surveyors of divers of the Kings Lands, &c. Of Chivalry before the Conſtable and Marſhal, of the Counting Houſe of the Kings Houſhold, wherein the great Officers about the King, were Judges; of the Lord Steward, Treaſurer, and Comptroller of the Kings Houſhold, concerning Felony, &c. Of Port-moots, kept in Haven Towns or Ports; about Beacons, Lighthouſes, Sea-marks, &c. about Ambaſſadors, Leagues, and Treaties, of Juſtices of Trailbaſton, of Court of Wards and Liveries, wherein the Maſter, Attorney, and Receiver General were Judges, of the Royal Franchiſe of Ely, of the County Palatine of Pembroke, of the Eſcheator and Commiſsioners for finding of Offices, and ſome others; theſe are in a manner quite gone.

But there are other Courts and Powers like to Courts, ſtill in Being, more or leſs, as the Parliament, the Council of the Lord Protector, the Kings Bench, now called the Upper Bench, the Chancery, the Common Pleas, the Exchequer, wherein is the Exchequer Chamber, the Firſt Fruits, Tenths, and Augmentation Courts, the Court of Admiralty, the Courts of the Juſtices of Aſsize, of the Juſtices of Niſi Prius, of the Juſtices of Oyer and Terminer of all ordinary ſorts, General and Special, and of Juſtices of Gaol-delivery; the Courts of the Juſtices of the Peace, and of Juſtices in Eyre; the Courts of the Marſhalſey, of Requeſts, of the Dutchy Chamber of the Cinque Ports; the Courts of the Counties Palatine, the Courts of the Citie of London, the chief whereof is called the Huſtings, the Courts of Weſtminſter and and Norwich, of the two Univerſities, of Wales of the North, of the Stanneries in Cornwal and Devonſhire; the Courts of the Foreſts, of the Iles of Man, &c. the Courts of the Tourn, of the Leet or view of Frank-pledg; the County Court, the Hundred Court, the Court Baron and Copihold Court, the Court of Ancient Demeſn, the Court of the Coroner, the Court of Pipowders, the Court of the Clerk of the Market; the Powers of the Commiſſioners of Sewers, of Bankrupts, and ſome others; all theſe are more or leſs of uſe amongſt us. And ſome of theſe are alſo of Record; and ſo they are all or moſt of them, except the County Court, Hundred Court, Court Baron, and Copihold Court, which are not of Record, and therefore called Baſe or Inferior Courts. Of all which, you may read in Co. 4 part of his Inſt. 1 part. 58. 260. 117. Cromp. Jur. of Courts throughout. And you muſt know that in ſtead of the Kings Privy Council, there is a Council of the Lord Protectors. And for their Election, Office, and Power, ſee the Act of Government, 16 December. 1653.

Sect. 2.

2 Parliament, What.

The Judges. Knights of the Shire.

The Parliament is the Supreme Court and Power of the Commonwealth, ordained by the Common Law, made up of a great Aſſembly, choſen by the people, called Knights, Citizens and Burgeſſes, who are the Judges there.

By the new Act of Government made, theſe things are ordained. 1. That a Parliament be called every three years. 2. That during five moneths, without their own conſent, it be not adjourned, prorogued, or diſſolved. 3. The numbers to be choſen for England, Scotland, and Ireland, are there ſet down. 4. The ſending of Writs, of Summons, and manner of proceeding thereupon, and in the Election of Members is there ſet down. 5. That ſixty of this Aſſembly do make a Parliament, and the Supreme Legiſlative Power is to reſt in the Lord Protector and them. 6. If they agree upon any Bills, and preſent them to the Lord Protector, and he do not within twenty days agree to them, they may paſs them for a Law, without his conſent, if they pleaſe. The Government, 16 December. 1653.

Their Juriſdiction and Power.

This Aſſembly by the ancient Common Law of the Nation, hath an abſolute Power over and above all other Courts, they are to debate and conclude Matters for the Commonwealth: This Court hath power to make, revoke, alter, or change any of Laws or Statutes of the Nation, to judge of Matters in Law, to try any one for his life, to reverſe the proceedings in any other Court, and to correct and reform all other miſchiefs, eſpecially ſuch as have no other ordinary remedy; and for which there is no Regular Redreſs in other Courts. And from hence there doth lie no Appeal; nor can any other Court examine any thing that is done in this Court. But for this Court, the Power thereof, the Qualifications and Privileges of the Members of the Aſſembly, the Proceedings therein, and the Officers belonging thereunto, and other matters concerning it, See *Crompt. The Star-Chamber was a Court to puniſh Riots, Frauds, Perjuries, Forgeries, and ſuch like offences, that had not ordinary remedy in other Courts, it was held in a Chamber at Weſtminſter, over which were many gilded Stars; it is now put down. You may read of it, in Crompt. Jur. Co. 4. part of his Inſt. It was diſſolved by 16 Car. 17. And ſo was the Orders of the Council Board.

Chancery, What.

The Chancery is a Court of Equity or Conſcience inſtituted by the Common Law. But for this, ſee a large Treatiſe in my Firſt Part of the Marrow of Law, cap. 59.

Court of Requeſts, What.

The Court of Requeſts alſo, being much of the ſame nature with the Chancery, is a Court of Equity, inſtituted for the help of ſuch Petitioners, as in caſes of Conſcience, did make their addreſs by ſupplication to the King, wherein the Lord Privy Seal and Maſters of Requeſts were Judges. They had to do onely in cauſes that were meerly Equitable, or one of the Parties did belong to the King, or one of the Parties was poor and oppreſſed by a rich Man, or where any ſpecial Matter was ſent unto them by the King, or where the thing did concern Colleges, Univerſities, or Hoſpitals. The Upper-Bench (formerly called the Kings Bench) is the moſt antient Court of the Nation, inſtituted by the Common-Law originally for the Pleas of the Crown, as Treaſons, Felonies, Miſpriſion, and the like: But now it dealeth not only in Criminal, but in Civil matters alſo, as Contracts, and the like. The Judges of this Court are the Lord Chief Juſtice, and three, four, or five other Judges as the Lord Protector ſhall appoint. But antiently the King himſelf did uſually ſit in it, and therefore it followed his perſon; but it is now kept at Weſtminſter-Hall. In this antiently Officers were ſworn, and the Oath of Allegiance was taken. And at this day all Criminal matters are here decided, and many Common pleas alſo; alſo all Breaches of the Peace, publick Annoyances and Offences againſt the Lord Protector and his people are to be redreſſed. The Court of the Exchequer is a Court inſtituted by the Common-Law, wherein all cauſes touching the Revenues of the Crown have been handled and decided. The Judges of this Court are the Lord Chief Baron, and three, four, or five other Barons, as the Lord Protector ſhall appoint: And their work and power is, to hear and decide all cauſes belonging to the Lord Protectors coffers, and to receive and pay all money due to and from him, which is called the Receipt of the Exchequer. This Officer only hath conuſance of Flotſam; which is, where a Ship is periſhed, and the Goods that were therein float upon the Sea. Jetſam, which is where the Goods are caſt into the Sea to ſave the Ship. And Lagan, which is where a Cork is tyed to the Goods, that it may be found again. But he hath not to do with Wreck, which is where a Ship is broken, the Paſſengers drowned, and not one of them eſcapeth to Land alive; and eſpecially if the Owner of the Goods be drowned. Co. 5. 106, 107.

What ſhall be ſaid to be Wreck, and what Flotſam, Jetſam, and Lagan, or not; and who ſhall have them.

For this, know theſe things.

1. Where-ever Goods ſhall be accounted Wreck, there are theſe things in the caſe. 1. There muſt be a Shipwrack; the Ship muſt be drowned. 2. The Goods muſt be caſt out upon the Land by the Sea, and not floting ſtill upon the Water; for then they are Flotſam: Nor caſt upon the Land by the Mariners for fear of a Tempeſt, or when the Ship is about to periſh. 3. All the living creatures muſt be dead; for if any Man, Dog or Cat eſcape alive to the Land, it is not Wreck. But in this caſe where Goods come ſo to Land, they muſt be laid up and preſerved, or ſold, if they be ſuch Goods as will not keep, by the Sheriff or other Officer; and the Goods, or if they be ſold, the Money made thereof, delivered to the Town to keep. And if the Owner of them come within a year and a day of the Seiſure thereof, and prove them to be his own, he muſt have them again: And ſo may his Executor or Adminiſtrator after his death. But ſomething muſt be allowed to them that have ſaved and kept them.

2. Whiles Goods remain in or upon the water, they are accounted Flotſham, Jetſam, or Lagan; but when they be caſt upon the Land, they be Wreck.

3. If the Ship periſh, and Owner be not known, and the Goods prove Flotſham, Jetſam, or Lagan; the Lord Protector, or any that hath any Kings grant, or may preſcribe for it, may have it, and take it by ſeiſure. And ſo likewiſe it is of Goods wrecked; any Lord may claim and have them by Patent, Cuſtom, or Preſcription; and if no ſuch Title can be made by any other, they will go to the Lord Protector. Co. 5. 106, 107. D. & St. 51. Plow. 466. Weſtm. 1. 14. *Bro. Sect. 4. The Courts of the Juſtices of Aſſiſe, Juſtices of Niſi prius, of Gaoldelivery, of Oyer and Terminer, what. The Judges. The Power.

All theſe four Courts are held by Commiſſion from the Lord Protector, and not by authority only of the Common-Law, or of any Act of Parliament. And in theſe Courts the Commiſſioners only are the Judges.

The Juſtices of Aſſiſe are to take Aſſiſes in the Country; and theſe have the power of the antient Juſtices in Eyre. The Juſtices of Niſi prius are to try Cauſes in the Country, or adjourn them to the next Term. The Juſtices of Gaol-delivery are to hear and determine all ſuch Cauſes as appertain to thoſe that for any offence are caſt into Gaol. The Juſtices of Oyer and Terminer are to hear and determine ſome notorious miſdemeanors in the Country.

And all theſe Courts, and the Court of the Juſtices of Peace, are commonly held at once, and by one and the ſame Commiſſion, by our Judges in their Circuits at our Meetings called the Great Aſſiſes. And theſe Commiſſions were deviſed, and are uſed for the eaſe of the People, that by this means they may have Juſtice neer home. And therefore it is at this day, that there are Six Circuits in this Nation; and the Judges go over all theſe Circuits twice a year, and uſe to ſtay three or four days in a place, and in that time do hear and diſpatch all the buſineſs of the place where they be, and give notice of the day before they come. And they come commonly with five Commiſſions; Oyer and Terminer, Gaol-delivery, Aſſiſe, Niſi prius, and Juſtices of the Peace. And by theſe Commiſſions they keep all theſe Courts together, where Trials are by Niſi prius, to the great eaſe of Juries and Parties, that otherwiſe muſt go to London with their Evidences and Witneſſes. And the Courts at Weſtminſter alſo alſo are much eaſed hereby. But in matters of great weight, and where the Title is intricate, the Judges are wont to retain thoſe Cauſes to be tryed at Weſtminſter. And in theſe Courts the Sheriff, and all the Juſtices of the Peace of the County are bound to attend, or the Judges may fine them for their default; and ſo they may for any other miſdemeanor in them. For the Power of theſe Courts and Judges, and their manner of Proceeding, See *Cromp. Sect. 5. Court of the Coroner, what. Iudg. Power.

The Court of the Coroner, is a Court inſtituted by the Common-Law, and kept before an Officer ſo called; whoſe office therein is, to enquire of every man that is ſlain, and cometh to an untimely end, by what means he came to his end; and to enquire of every circumſtance, and to enquire who they were that committed the fact; and to enquire what lands, goods and chattels the party had at the time of the fact committed, and to ſeiſe them to the uſe of the Lord Protector. The Court of the Eſcheator was inſtituted by Common-Law to be held by an Officer of that name, whoſe duty and office therein was, to enquire and find by Office after the death of the Kings Tenants, what had happened to him, and to return this Office into the Exchequer. Of the Sheriffs Turn, Leet, Law day, and View of Frank-pledg, what.

The Sheriffs Turn, Leet, Law-day, and view of Frank-pledge, are Courts of one nature, uſe and end. And for the better underſtanding of them, we are to know, that at firſt all Adminiſtration of Juſtice was in the King; and no Law was uſed, nor Juſtice adminiſtred, but what was before him. Afterwards when by the increaſe of people and cauſes, the burden grew too great for him; as the Kingdom was divided into Counties, ſo was the Adminiſtration of Juſtice divided into Courts, into the Kings-Bench, and other Courts; and amongſt other, Powers were given and Courts granted to every Sheriff within his County, who antiently were the greateſt men of the County. And this Officer for his help had two Courts: The one called the Turn, being a Court of Record inſtituted by the Common-Law for every County, wherein the Steward is Judg; and this is to reform publick grievances, and matters of the Crown. And to this Court all Lay-men above twelve years old, under the degree of Baron, were to appear and do ſervice, to be ſworn to the King, to ſerve Offices, and to hear and be inſtructed in the Laws, be bound to be of good abearing, and be viewed to ſee how they kept their Bonds. Here Breakers of the Peace were puniſhed, and publick Anoyances redreſſed: Here alſo Inne-keepers, Victuallers, Butchers, Fiſhmongers, and other Tradeſmen may be puniſhed for ſelling by unlawful Weights or Meaſure, or by exceſſive prices. And this Court at firſt was taken out of the Kings-Bench.

Turn.

Judge. Power.

The other Court which the Sheriff had, was called the County-Court; and this was erected for to give remedy in Civil actions between man and man, in any matter of wrong under Forty ſhillings. And by theſe two Courts the whole County was governed at the firſt. After this, by reaſon of a greater increaſe of people, and ſo of cauſes, and for eaſe of the people, derived other Leets or Law-days out of the Sheriffs Turn, and Hundred-Courts out of his County-Court, and granted to the Lords of Manors and Liberties much of that Power the Sheriff had, as we find it at this day. And ſo one man hath, and may have a Leet in another mans Land or Manor.

Leet or Law-day, or View of Frank-pledg.

So that by this we ſee, that a Leet is, where one hath by Grant from the King all that did belong to the Sheriffs Turn within a certain Precinct, as Hundred, Manor, or the like; wherein the Steward alone is Judg, and wherein he hath the ſame power within that Precinct, as the Sheriff had in his Turn over all the County. So that now the Sheriff is not to meddle within that Precinct, except in caſe where the other Stewards of Precincts do neglect their duties there, or when the Leet is forfeit (as it may be) into the Kings hands: And if the Sheriff do ſo, he is a Treſpaſſor. And if he warn to his Turn any of them that are under another Leet, they may be diſcharged by a ſpecial Writ for that purpoſe. Theſe Courts had conuſance of leſſer offences and cauſes: The greater offences and cauſes were heard and determined in the Kings-Bench, Common-Pleas, by the Judges there, and by the Judges in their Circuits in their Courts there. See for this, *Mag. Charta, ch.*35. Bro. Leet. Dyer 30. *Finches law, f.*241. Co 6.67. 9. in his Epiſt. Inſt 4 *par. ch.*54. Stat. 31 *Ed.*3.14.1. 1 *Ed.*3.17.4. 1 *Ed.*4.2. 28 *Ed.*3.9. 42 Ed 3.4. 11 *H.*7.15. 13 *Ed.*1 26. *Marl.*10. Weſtm. 2.32. 31 Ed 3.1. 19 *H.*7.24.

All

All theſe three Courts, the County-Court, the Hundred-Court, and the Court-Baron, are much of one nature, and much alike in all their Proceeding. The County-Court is for the whole County; the other for the Hundred; and the laſt for the Tenants of the Manor to which it is incident: For to every Manor there is a Court-Baron incident; and to every Sheriffs Office his County-Court is incident; and that ſo inſeparably, that the King could not by his Grant have divided them, or the profits thereof from the Sheriffs, albeit the Grant were made before the Sheriff were made. Sect. 6. County-Court, Hundred-Court, Court-Baron, what. Judges. Power.

The County-Court then is a Court not of Record, incident to the Sheriffs Office, for the hearing and determining of ſmall matters under Forty ſhillings, between party and party within the County. And in this Court the Sheriff is only a Regiſter, and no Judg; but the Freeholders of the County are Judges, and called Free-ſuitors. County-Court, what. Free ſuitors.

The Hundred-Court is derived out of this, and is of the ſame nature and extent of power within the Hundred, as the other is within the County: And in this Court alſo the Steward is but a Notary, the Freeholders of the Hundred are Judges. Hundred-Court, what.

The Court-Baron is the Court that every Lord of a Manor hath as incident to his Manor. And this is in ſome Manors double, i. The one is called the Copiholders Court, which is for Trial of the Titles of their Lands, and for the taking and paſſing of Eſtates, Surrenders, Admittances and Grants; and herein the Lord or his Steward is Judg. And the other Court, which is called the Freeholders Court, is only for the Trial of Actions, ſuch as are triable in the County or Hundred Court; wherein the Freeholders of the Manor are Judges. And for this ſee Manor and Copihold. Court-Baron, what.

To ſhew the Time and Place for keeping theſe Courts, Power and Juriſdiction thereof, and manner of Proceeding therein, by particulars, would of it ſelf fill a Book. CHAP. LIX.

Of the Offences and matters heretofore called of the Crown.

AS touching the matters heretofore called the matters of the Crown, and reduced in the Law to that Title and Head; they are the things that do concern Treaſon, Felony, and divers other offences, ſome by Common-Law, and ſome by Statute-Law: Of which ſome are greater, and ſome leſs. The firſt and greateſt offence is High-Treaſon. And this heretofore might have been done many ways: But now by certain new Laws it is ordained and declared, That theſe following Acts and Words, and none other ſhall be adjudged Treaſon, (that is to ſay;) Coron.

Sect. 1. High-Treaſon, what it is, and how it may be committed.

1. To compaſs or imagine the death of the Lord Protector for the time being.

2. Malitiouſly or adviſedly either by Writing, Printing, open Declaring, Teaching, Preaching, or otherwiſe publiſhing any of theſe things. That the Lord Protector and People in Parliament aſſembled, are not the Supreme Authority of this Commonwealth: Or that the exerciſe of the chief Magiſtracie, and adminiſtration of the Government over the Countries and Dominions of England, Scotland and Ireland, and the People thereof, is not in the Lord Protector aſſiſted with his Council; or that the ſaid Authority or Government is tyrannical, uſurped or unlawful: Or ſo declare, That there is any Parliament in being, or that hath continuance, or any Law in force for continuing the ſame.

3. To plot, contrive, or endeavor to ſtir up or raiſe Force againſt the Protector or the preſent Government, or for the ſubverſion or alteration of the ſame, and ſhall declare ſuch endeavor by any open Deed.

4. If any one (not an Officer or Member of the Army) ſhall plot, contrive or endeavor to ſtir up any Mutiny in any part of the Army, or to withdraw any Soldier or Officer from their obedience to their Superiors in the Army, or from the preſent Government.

5. If any ſhall procure, invite, aid or aſſiſt any Foreiners or Strangers to invade England, Scotland, or Ireland, or any the Dominions thereto belonging, or ſhall adhere to any Forces raiſed by the Enemies of this Commonwealth.

6. If any ſhall plot, contrive or endeavor the betraying, ſurrendring, or yielding up any City, Town, Fort, Magazine, Ship, Veſſel, or Forces by Sea or Land belonging to this Commonwealth.

7. If any ſhall counterfeit the Great Seal of England, or of Scotland or Ireland for the time being, uſed and appointed by authority of Parliament, or the Lord Protector with the conſent of the Council; or the Sign Manual, Privy Signet, or Privy Seal of the Lord Protector for the time being.

8. If any perſon ſhall proclaim, declare, publiſh, or any way promote any of the Iſſue of the late King, or any claiming by or under him or them, to be King or chief Magiſtrate of England, Scotland, or Ireland, or either of them, or of any of the Dominions to either of them belonging. Or ſhall keep or hold any Intelligence whatſoever by Letters, Meſſages, or otherwiſe, to or with Charls Stuart, or James Stuart, their Mother the late Queen, or any of them.

9. If any counterfeit the Money of this Commonwealth, or bring any falſe Money, either counterfeit, or other like to the Money of this Commonwealth, into this Land, (knowing it to be falſe) to the intent to merchandiſe, or otherwiſe: Or ſhall falſly forge or counterfeit any ſuch kind of Coin either of Gold or Silver, which is not the proper Coin of this Commonwealth, and yet is or ſhall be current within the ſame: Or ſhall bring from beyond Sea into any of the Dominions of this Commonwealth any ſuch falſe or counterfeit Coin, being current within this Common-

Commonwealth, (knowing it to be ſo) to the intent here to utter it by Merchandiſe or otherwiſe: Or ſhall impair, diminiſh, falſifie, clip, waſh, round, file, ſcale, or lighten for gain any of the Monies of this Commonwealth, or any of the Dominions of it, or the Coin or Monies of any other Dominions allowed or ſuffered to be current here.

10. If any maintain the Popes authority here, or procure any Inſtrument of Abſolution to the People here from their obedience, or of Reconciliation; or ſhall uſe any ſuch Inſtrument to ſuch purpoſe; or ſhall endeavor to abſolve or reconcile the People by any ſuch means from their obedience here to any other Prince, to be had or uſed here: Or if any ſhall be willingly ſo by any means withdrawn and reconciled, or promiſe obedience to any Foreign Power: Or if any Prieſt, Jeſuite, or other Religious perſon born here, and having taken Orders under the Pope, ſhall come into, be, and remain in any of the Dominions belonging to this Commonwealth.

11. That if the Lord Chancellor or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal do not ſend abroad the Writs of Summons for Parliaments, according to the Act of Government: Or if the Sheriffs and others ſhall not give notice thereof, and do their duty for the Election of Knights and Burgeſſes. All theſe Offences are Treaſon. Ord. 19 Jan. 1643. The Act of Government, Decemb. 16. 1653.

The puniſhment of it.

The puniſhment for this offence is; That the perſon duly convicted and attainted thereof, is to forfeit to the Supreme Magiſtrate all his Lands he hath in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail for life or years; all his Goods and Chattels, and his Life. If he be a man, he is to be drawn on a Hurdle to the place of Execution, and there to hang till he be half dead; then to be cut down, his Entrails and Privy-members to be cut and taken out of and from his Body, and burnt in his ſight, and his Head to be cut off, and his Body to be divided in four parts, and placed where the Lord Protector pleaſeth. But if it be a woman that is the Traitor, ſhe is to be drawn to the place of Execution, and burnt only. But for all theſe things, and the Trial of, and Proceeding againſt Traitors, you may read Stamford of the Pleas of the Crown. 6 Ed. 6. 11. Dyer 99. Bro. Corone throughout. Dyer 205. 300. Co. 3. 11. 1. 99. 7. 13. 8. 24. 5. 12.

The kinds and degrees of Felonies.

The next degree of offences, are Felonies. And theſe are ſome of them ſimple, and ſome of them relative. And ſome of them concern the Commonwealth, and are againſt it; and ſome more immediately againſt private perſons. Some of theſe alſo do touch the body, ſome the goods, and ſome the body and goods together, and ſome the goods only. That which doth concern the body only, is either by taking away the life thereof, which is called Homicide; or by abuſing it without death, as by cutting out the Tongue, Buggery, or the like.

Homicide is either of ones ſelf, or of another. That of another is either voluntary, or involuntary. That which is voluntary, is either diſpuniſhable by the Law, when it is commanded for Juſtice ſake; or allowed or excuſed for other cauſes, which be no Felonies. Or it is puniſhable: And that is ſometimes upon malice, which is Murder; or ſudden adventure, as by a ſudden falling out, and in hot blood; or without any premeditate malice, or in a mans own defence, or by a meer chance as Chancemedly. The offence of killing man is therefore greater or leſs, according to circumſtances in theſe and other particulars: For if a woman kill her Husband; Child, a Parent; or Servant, a Maſter; theſe are Petit-Treaſon. And of all theſe offences a man may be guilty ſimply, or by relation, when a man doth participate of the offence of another man by advice, counſel, or the like. Hence we have the diſtinction of a Principal offendor, and an Acceſſary thereunto.

The next offence in order, is Petit-Treaſon.

Sect. 2. Petit-Treaſon, what it is.

Petit-Treaſon is, where any Woman killeth her Husband; Man or Maid-ſervant, his or her Maſter or Miſtreſs; Son or Daughter, his or her Father and Mother; this is Petit-Treaſon. So if a Servant reſolve to kill his or her Maſter or Miſtreſs, and after, before it be done, he or ſhe be out of his or her ſervice; yet this is Petit-Treaſon. So if a Woman procure her Servant to kill her Husband, it is Petit-Treaſon againſt the Woman and her Servant: Otherwiſe it is in a ſtranger, if he do ſo.

So

So if the Servant hold the Candle, whiles another doth kill her Maſter, ſhe being in the Confederacy: And if one do ſuffer a priſoner for High Treaſon to eſcape, it ſeems it is Petit-Treaſon in him; theſe offences are Petit-Treaſon. For the which, a man ſhall loſe all his Fee-ſimple Lands, all his other Lands, Goods, and Chattels: And if it be a Man, he muſt be drawed and hanged; if a Woman, ſhe muſt be burned. Alſo ſome rank Sodomitry and Hereſie, under this offence, and Sorcery. See Finches Law, f. 219. Co. 3 part of his Inſtitutes, chap. 2. The puniſhment of it.

The next ſort of offences are Man-killings, or Homicides, of which there are divers kindes and degrees: Thefts alſo, of which there are many kindes.

Sect. 3. Homicide, what it is.

Man-killing or Homicide taken ſtrictly, is where one man killeth another; but taken largely, it is where a man is killed by any thing elſe. Stamf. lib. 1. chap. 12. Co. 3 part. Inſt. chap. 7, 8.

To make the killing of a man Felony, two things are requiſite. 1. That the party killed be in rerum naturâ. 2. That he die within a year and a day after the wound.

The kindes of it.

Man-killing or Homicide, is either by one or more; and it is either Spiritual or Corporal: Corporal Man-killing or Homicide, is ſaid to be either linguâ by tongue, or facto by deed. Corporal Man-killing or Homicide by the tongue, is, Firſt, Diſſuaſione, by diſſwaſion, by diſſwading a man from helping to ſave anothers life. Secondly, Præcepto, by precept or command; by commanding one to kill another. Thirdly, Defenſione vel tuitione, by defending or ſaving the murderer; by helping to pack away the murderer, or by keeping him from his tryal. Fourthly, Conſilio, by counſel, by counſelling one to kill another.

Corporal Man-killing or Homicide by fact, may be either, Firſt, Juſtitiâ, by Juſtice, which is alſo twofold; by Compulſive Juſtice, As when an Officer is commanded to execute an offender; or by Permiſſive Juſtice, as when a Felon reſiſteth the Officer, and will not be apprehended, and he kill the Felon. Secondly, Neceſſitate, by neceſſity, which is alſo two ways; either by way of offence, As when in caſe of War or Execution of Juſtice, or by way of Defence; as when one killeth another in defence of himſelf. Thirdly, Caſu, by chance, which may be done by men, or by other animate Creatures, or by inanimate things. By men two ways, either licitè, lawfully, as when one doth a lawful act, and unawares killeth a man thereby; or illicitè, unlawfully, as when by doing an unlawful act, one killeth another man unawares; as when one doth ſtrike at one, and kill another man. Fourthly, Voluntate, by will, or voluntarily, which may be alſo two ways; either conſultè, with deliberation, as when one man doth kill another of malice prepenſed; or inconſultè, without deliberation, as when one killeth another upon a ſudden affray.

For all which ſorts and kindes of Man-killings, ſome are lawful, and ſome not; and of thoſe which are unlawful, ſome are greater, and puniſhed with greater puniſhment; and ſome are leſs, and puniſhed with leſs puniſhment: For all which, ſee the ſeveral examples and caſes beneath.

For Anſwer of this Queſtion, take theſe following caſes.

Sect. 4. What Man-killing is lawful, or not.

1. If a man ſet upon me to rob me upon the High-way, I may kill him and juſtifie it.

2. So if he come to rob, burn, or burglarily to break my houſe, I or any of my Servants may kill him and juſtifie it.

3. So in a lawful War, a Soldier may kill as many of the enemies as he can, and juſtifie it.

4. So a Judge by Rules of Law, may adjudge a man to death, and the Officer appointed, according to that judgment may execute him, and juſtifie it.

5. So if a Traitor or Felon in purſuit, flie, or reſiſt, ſo that he cannot be apprehended, and the party appointed to take him, kill him, he may juſtifie it.

6. So if priſoners riotouſly reſiſt the Gaoler, ſo that he cannot otherwiſe ſuppreſs them, and he kill any of them, he may juſtifie it.

7. So where men riotouſly reſiſt the Juſtices, and they cannot otherwiſe ſuppreſs them, or keep the Peace.

8. So if a man out-lawed for Felony, be brought before the Judge, he may command him to be executed.

9. So if a Foreſter, Parker, or Warrener, do kill any that were doing hurt in their Foreſt, Park, or Warren, if they will not yield after they be required, or he cannot apprehend them; in this caſe he may juſtifie it, 21 Ed. 1.

10. So if one do kill anot her upon tryal by Combat, it is juſtifiable.

11. And in all theſe caſes a man need not ſue any pardon of courſe for his life; as in caſes of Man-killing, by defending himſelf, or by chance.

12. But one cannot juſtifie the killing of a man attainted in a Premunire, 5 Eliz. 1.

13. And if a man be adjudged to be hanged, and the Sheriff behead him, or execute him in any other manner; this is not juſtifiable by the Sheriff: So if any other that hath no Authority, will of his own head, execute ſuch a perſon; this is Felony in both theſe caſes, though it were the Judg himſelf that condemned him.

14. So if any man ſhall kill a man that is out-lawed or condemned for Felony, it is Felony in him.

15. So to kill any perſon attainted upon a Premunire.

16. So if one hath robbed anothers Houſe, and after he hath done, and is gone, the true man kill the Thief, this ſeems to be Felony.

17. So if one man kill another in an unlawful War, which is not undertaken by Authority of the Lord Protector, 35 H. 6. 58. Co. 5. 1. 22 Aſſ. 55. 21 H. 7. 39. 1 Jac. 8. 1 Mar. 12. 21 Ed. 1. Dyer 327. 37 H. 6. 21. 35 H. 6. 58. 5 Eliz. 1.

Murder, what it is. The puniſhment of it.

Murther is where one man doth kill another of malice prepenſed for gain or revenge; this is properly called Wilful murther, for which offence the murtherer ſhall forfeit and loſe all his Lands, Goods, and Chattels, and he himſelf muſt be hanged, Plow. 261. 52 H. 3. 26. Kelw. 136. Powlt. de pace 120. Co. 3 part. Inſt. 7, 8.

For the Anſwer to this, take theſe caſes.

Sect. 5. What Acts ſhall be ſaid Murder, or not, but ſome other offence.

1. If I bid another kill me, and he doth it, it is murder in him, Dyer 186.

2. If a Woman bid the Midwife kill the childe, aſſoon as it is born, and ſhe doth ſo; it is murder in them both, Dyer 186.

3. If one kill an Alien, if he be under the Kings Protection, it is murder.

4. If one have malice prepenſed, and I ſtrike the firſt blow, yet it is murder in him, if he kill me, Powlt. de pace 120.

5. If one do wilfully poyſon another, or lay poyſon for one, and another hap to take it, and be poyſoned; in both theſe caſes it is murder, 1 Ed. 6. 12. Plow. 474. Co. 11. 33.

6. If one ſtab or thruſt another, that had then no weapon drawn, nor then firſt ſtricken the party that did ſtab, and herewith the party die within ſix moneths; this is of the nature of wilful murder, 1 Jac. 6.

7. If one kill a Conſtable, Bailiff, or any other Officer as Watchman, or the like, or their aſſiſtants, or any other in their due execution of Juſtice: As in arreſting them upon Proces out of any Court, or by Warrant from any Juſtice of Peace, or in the keeping of the Kings peace, or the like; this act is murder, and ſo puniſhable, Powlt. de pace 121. Co. 9. 66. 68. 98. 4. 41.

8. If a Thief kill a true man, being about to rob him, becauſe he would not yield him his purſe, or becauſe he reſiſted him, it is murder, Co. 9. 67.

9. If one kill another without any cauſe, the Law will preſume there was malice, and therefore it is murder, Ibid.

10. If one do wilfully hold a man whiles another doth murder him, or ſtand by him and incourage and abet another, or commandeth another, or came with others of purpoſe to kill him, and ſtand by whiles another doth kill him; this is murder in all, Qui non ſunt immunes a culpâ non debent eſſe immunes a pœnâ, Co. 9. 67. Plow. 98. Co. 11. 5.

11. If one bear malice againſt A. and be about to aſſault him, and B. withſtand him, and he kill B. this is murder, though he did bear him no malice, Plow. 101.

12. If one that bears no malice, accept of a challenge from the other, and fight it ſedato animo, and he kill the challenger, this is murder. Morgan & Egerton, 9 Jac.

13. If two fall out at Weſtminſter by accident, and fight and be parted; and after they meet and appoint to fight the next day; and then either of them is killed, this is murder, and that notwithſtanding he that doth kill, ſhall ſay before the fight, that he bears him no malice. See Man-ſlaughter.

14. If

14. If the Maſter have malice, and tell his ſervants of it, and that his intention is to kill him he doth malice, and they go with him, and they do kill him; this is murder in all, both Maſter and Servants, Plow. 100.

15. If one lie in wait to kill one man, and miſtake him, and kill another; or ſhoot at one and miſs him, and kill another, this is murder, Plow. 101. 474.

16. If one carry any man that is ſick unto the cold, with intent to kill him, and he do die, this is murder, 2 Ed. 3. 18.

17. If J. S. of malice prepenſed, diſcharge a Piſtol at J. D. and miſs him, and throw down his Piſtol, and flie, and J. D. purſueth him to kill him, and he draw his Dagger and killeth J. D. this is murder: But if J. S. had faln down, his Dagger drawn, and J. D. fall by haſt upon his Dagger, J. D. is felo de ſe, and J. S. ſhall go quit, 44 Ed. 3. See Malb ch. 24.

18. The private making away or hiding of the Baſtard-childe by the Mother, unleſs ſhe can prove by one witneſs that it was born dead, is murder in her. 21 Jac. 27.

19. The killing of one in a Duel upon a challenge, is murder by the new Ordinance, June 24. 1654.

20. If one beat a Woman great with childe, and the childe is born alive, but one may ſee it to be bruiſed and dieth (as is conceived) by the bruiſes, this is murder, Goldsb. 176.

If one perſwade another to kill himſelf, and be preſent, when he doth, it is ſaid to be murder, ſed quære.

Man-ſlaughter, what it is.

It is where one doth kill another man, with felonious intent, upon ſudden quarrel without any premeditate malice: As if two meet together, and ſuddenly by accident fall out, and either at that time, or anon after, before the heat be paſt the one of them doth kill the other; this is Man-ſlaughter.

The puniſhment of it.

For which offence one ſhall forfeit and loſe all that he ſhall loſe for murder; but in this caſe he ſhall have the benefit of Clergy for his life, which if he demand before Judgment, and can read, he ſaveth his life and his Lands; but if he demandeth not the benefit of Clergy, until after Judgment, and then doth demand the benefit of the Clergy, and can read, yet he ſhall ſave his life onely: But in both caſes he doth forfeit his Goods and Chattels. See Clergy, Plow. Com. 162. Stamf. l. 1. ch 9. 43 Aſſ. 31. 3 H. 7. 1. 21 H. 7. 31. Plow. 99. Dyer 228. Plow. 100.

What Act ſhall be accounted Man-ſlaughter, and not Murder.

If one goeth with malice to kill a man, and another ſeeing them fighting, taketh his part that went with malice, and kill the man: Now though this be murder in the other, yet it is but Man-ſlaughter in him that took his part. So if the Maſter go with malice, and the Servants go and know nothing, and then they joyn with him in the aſſault, and murder, yet this is but Man-ſlaughter in the Servants.

If one arreſt another unlawfully, and the party arreſted, kill him, this is not murder but Man ſlaughter onely, unleſs the caſe be with ſtabbing within the Statute of 1 Jac. 6. Dyer 6. 26. Co. 9. 66.

If one that had no malice, accept a challenge from him that had malice, and fight preſently and kill him that had the malice this is but Man-ſlaughter. Dyer 60. 26. 9. 16. Co. 9. 66. Morgan & Egerton, 9 Jac.

If two fall out by accident at Weſtminſter, and they be then parted, and after they meet at Algate; or they appoint to meet at Iſlington the ſame day, and then one of them doth kill the other, this is but Man-ſlaughter. Sir Thomas Lucas mens caſe.

If one be much wounded by another, and he go and tell, or ſhew unto his Father or Brother, or ſome near Kinſman; whereupon he goeth preſently and fighteth with him that gave the wound and kill him, this is but Man-ſlaughter. Railies caſe, Hil. 9 Jac.

If there be a ſudden affray, and a confuſed multitude, and amongſt them one man is killed, and no man can tell how; this is Man-ſlaughter in them all.

If two be in an Inner-chamber faln out, and together by the ears, and a Brother of one of them ſtanding at the door, that cannot get in, cries unto his Brother to make him ſure, and preſently after he gives the other a mortal wound, this is Manſlaughter in him that ſtood at the door. All the Judges in Serjeants Inne, Trin. 10 Jac.

If one that is not an allowed Phyſitian, kill a man by his ignorance, and unskilfulneſs in giving him Phyſick, this is Man-ſlaughter, Stamf. l. 1. *f.*16.

Sect. 6. Felo de ſe. The puniſhment of it.

A felo de ſe is he that killeth himſelf, for which offence he is to loſe all his Goods and Chattels, Stamf. l. 1. *c.*11. *Plow.*262. *Co.*9. 129. *Plow.*258. But his Wife ſhall not loſe her Dower; nor his Blood be corrupted in this caſe, as in ſome other Felonies.

In what caſe a man ſhall be ſaid a Felo de ſe, or not.

If one man do ſtrike another to the ground, and then draweth his knife to kill him, and the other lying along, draweth his knife to defend himſelf, and the other is ſo haſty to kill him, that he falleth upon the knife that was drawn, and ſo killeth himſelf; he is in this caſe felo de ſe, 44 *Ed.*3.44.

If one ſhoot at J. S. to kill him, and thereby kill himſelf, it is ſaid, he is felo de ſe.

If a man that is mad ſometimes, and hath his lucida intervalla, whiles he is well, give himſelf his wound, and after become mad, yet he is felo de ſe. So if a man do kill himſelf in his drunkenneſs, he is felo de ſe. So if a villain had killed himſelf. *Co.*19. *Plow.*260, 261.

If a childe of a mad-man, whiles he is mad, before he cometh to himſelf, give himſelf a mortal wound, whereof he afterwards dieth, he is not felo de ſe, neither ſhall he forfeit any thing, 21 *H.*7.31. though he be of found memory before he die, 22 *Ed.*3. Corone 244. *Co.*9. 19. *Lib.*9. *Plow.*230.

Chancemedley, or by Miſadventure, what. The puniſhment of it.

It is when one man doth kill another, without any purpoſe or evil intent, by ſome miſchance. For which offence if a man be found guilty of it, he ſhall forfeit his Goods not loſe life nor Lands, and lie in priſon till he have his pardon, which he muſt have of Grace and Courſe from the Lord Protector. And it ſeems there is a difference between a meer chance, and a chance mixt with the wickedneſs or negligence of the party; for in the laſt caſes the offence will fall out to be more then Man-ſlaughter per infortunium, *Gloc. ch.*9. 24 *H.*8.5. 52 *H.*3.20. *Co.*5.91. 9.12. 26 *H.*8.5. 44 *Aſſ.*17. *Stamf.*1.7. *Marlb.*25. 6 *Ed.*1.4.

What ſhall be ſaid to be Chancemedley, or not but a greater offence.

If certain men ſet upon J. S. to kill him, and another being preſent doth labor to part them, and in his labor doth kill J. S. this per infortunium. See Exod. 21. 13, 14.

If one beat his childe or ſervant moderately, and in meaſure, the childe happen, or the ſervant chance to die thereby; this is but Chancemedly: But if his beating were immoderate the offence is greater. So if a Maſter in beating his Scholar kill him, *Kelw.*168. Powlton de pace 120.

If one kill another at Wreſtling, Fence, or ſhooting in Bowes and Arrows at Buts, or at length; this ſhall be ſaid per infortunium, *Kelw.*108. Fitz Corone 102. 354.

If one caſt a ſtone at a Bird or a Beaſt, and a Man coming by, is hit with the ſtone and killed by it; or one is felling a Tree, and part, or all of it falleth upon a body and killeth him; this is Chancemedly.

If one cut down any thing, or throw down any thing in or near a High-way, and when it falleth, calleth aloud to Travellers to look to themſelves; or where two men do run at Tilt, Juſt, or fight at Bariers together, and one kill the other; in all theſe and the like caſes, when the thing is lawful, and this fall out upon it, it ſhall be ſaid to be per infortunium, 12 *H.*7. 33.

When there is a malicious minde, and unlawful act joyned with the chance, as when one intend a man, and kill another; or when one doth caſt ſtones into a High-way, where men do uſually paſs, and not give warning; or ſhoot Arrows into a Market, or other place, where men do uſually reſort, or fight at Bariers, or run at Tilt or Juſts, without the Kings Command; and in theſe caſes a man is killed, this will be an offence of an higher nature, *Stamf. lib.*1. *ch.*8. Bro. 335.

Se defendendo, what. The puniſhment of it.

This offence is in the ſame degree with the former; and it is when the Aſſailant doth make an affray or offer force to the Defendant, and doth ſtrike him, and the Defendant doth flie ſo far as he can for ſaving of his life: So that he is come to a ſtrait, beyond the which, he cannot flie, and the Aſſailant doth continue his aſſault;

ſo that he cannot eſcape, and thereupon the Defendant doth ſtrike the Aſſailant and kill him; this is Homicide in his own defence. For which a man ſhall be puniſhed in all things as in Chance-medley, ſee before. And how a man may have his pardon. See Fitz Corone 116. 161. F. N. B. 246. Gloc. ch. 9. Fitz. Corone 284, 286, 287. Powlton de pace 119. 4 H. 7. 2, 16. 16 Ed 3. 116. 43 Aſſ. 3. 44 Aſſ. 17. Fitz Corone 305.

If one come and aſſault my Houſe in the day time onely to beat me (and not to rob) and I kill him, this ſhall be ſaid to be ſe defendendo: If one have a weapon in his hand, and run away till he can go no further, and the other run ſo haſtily upon him, that he runneth upon the others weapon which he holdeth out for the defence of himſelf, and ſo he is killed; yet this is Man-ſlaughter ſe defendendo, Gloc. ch. 9. What Act ſhall be ſaid to be Homicide ſe defendendo, or not but a greater offence.

But in this caſe there muſt be no malice before in him that doth kill, for if ſo, then though there were an inevitable neceſſity, yet it is murder. 2. Where there is no malice precedent, there muſt be a neceſſity inevitable at the time, elſe it will be Man-ſlaughter, Co. 5 91. Fitz Corone 387. Co. 9. 13. 4 H. 7. 2.

A man ſometimes comes to his death by anothers chance, as wel as by a mans hands, or other means; as by the fall of himſelf, or ſome other things upon him, or otherwiſe: And in theſe caſes there is ſomething forfeited to the King, which is called a Deodand. Which is defined to be a thing given to God, for the parification of his wrath, in a caſe of miſadventure, whereby any Chriſtian ſoul comes to a violent end, by unreaſonable, ſenſeleſs, or dead Creatures, ex Deo & danda; and the King, or his Patentee muſt have it, and it muſt be gotten by ſeiſure, and by his Amner, an Officer for the purpoſe. The things forfeited are to be ſold, and the price given to the poor, and diſtributed for the appeaſing of Gods wrath ſtirred up againſt the Earth and place for the ſhedding of innocent Blood thereupon; which ſeemeth to be grounded on Exod. 21. 28. Stamf. pl. Corone 1. 2. Fitz Corone 209. 340. Co. 3 part Inſt. 9. Deodand, what.

For the Anſwer of this Queſtion, take theſe things.

1. If a Horſe ſtrike a man that he die, the Horſe is a Deodand: If a Tree fall upon a man, and kill him, the Tree is a Deodand: If a Cart, or the like, go over a man by chance and kill him, the Cart-wheel, Cart, Loading, and Horſes, are all forfeit, Omnia quæ movent ad mortem ſunt Deodanda; and that whether it move primarily or ſecondarily, as principal or acceſſary: So therefore if a Board preſs againſt a Wall, and that Wall fall or kill a man, the Board is forfeit alſo, Kelw. 68. D. & St. 175. Dyer 78. Co. 5. 110. Fitz Corone 298. What ſhall be forfeit by ſuch a Man-killing, and ſhall be accounted a Deodand, or not.

2. If a man be Lopping, and the Hilt or Head of his Hatchet flie, and kill a man, the Head is forfeit as a Deodand. And if a man fall from a Horſe or Cart whiles it is going; the horſe in the firſt caſe; Cart and Horſes, and all are forfeit in the next caſe, Fitz Corone 389. 140. 397.

3. If one fall upon Timber, or the like, it ſeems that alſo is forfeit, yet ſee Fitz Corone 314.

4. If a Cart loaded, whiles the Horſes ſtand ſtill, fall upon a man and kill him, yet it ſeems they are all forfeit: So if one Horſe move onely, and overthrow the Cart, and kill a man: So if one fall againſt the Wheel of a Cart, it ſeems all is forfeit, if the Cart be going, Fitz Corone 326. 407.

5. If a Bell ringing fall from a Beam, the Bell and Beam are both forfeit, Fitz Corone 405.

6. If one come under the Wheel of a Mill, and the Mill go, and he is killed, all is forfeit; but if it had ſtood ſtill, the Wheel onely is forfeit, Fitz Corone 389.

7. If a Ship drown a man in freſh-water, the Ship is forfeit, but contra if it were in the Sea, but nothing in the Ship, in the firſt caſe, ſhall be forfeit: If one fall from a Horſe into the Water and be drowned, the Horſe ſhall be forfeit, Fitz Corone 401.

8. If one fall from a Rick or Hovel, and die, the Rick or Hovel ſhall be forfeit, Fitz Corone 314.

9. If any Bull, or Bear, or any other Beaſt, kill a man, it is forfeit, Fitz Corone 298.

10. How ſuch a Deodand ſhall be preſerved, Fitz Corone 289.

For

What Man-killing is diſpuniſhable.

For Anſwer to this, theſe things muſt be known.

1. If one lay Ratsbane for Rats, or more, without any evil intent, and one take thereof; and die; this is not puniſhable. So if one give his Wife a poyſoned Apple, and ſhe not knowing any thing, giveth it to her childe, and ſhe die; this is no offence in the Mother: So if one follow me to kill me, and I fall down and having a weapon, hold him up to defend my ſelf, and he running in haſte to ſtrike me, run upon my weapon and kill himſelf, this is no offence to me; and yet how near theſe caſes come to the caſes of Chancemedly, conſider well. So Homicides in doing Juſtice, are juſtifiable: So killing one as would rob or kill a man in the High-way, or his own houſe, are not puniſhable, 24 H. 8. 5. Plow. 474. Co. 9 13.

2. If one kill a childe in the Mothers Womb, there is no puniſhment for it: So if one give a man his deaths wound, and he die after the year and a day, there is no puniſhment for this, Exod. 21. 22. 22 Aſſ. 44. 3 Aſſ. pl. 2. Dyer 186. Fitz Corone 303.

Action of the caſe.

3. If one that is an allowed Phyſitian, kill his Patient, through ignorance or miſchance in the operation of his Phyſick, this is diſpuniſhable. And yet if by his unfeſance he hurt him, and he die not; Action of the Caſe will lie againſt him, Stamf. 16. Fitz Corone 163.

4. If an Infant under twelve years old (unleſs it appear that he had more then an ordinary wit at that age) or a mad-man, during his madneſs, kill a man, there is no puniſhment for this: So if a man that is both deaf and dumb, but contra it is of a drunken man, 3 H. 7. 2. Plow. 19. Co 4. 42. 125.

5. If one compel another to kill a man, as by holding his hand, or the like; this is not puniſhable at all in him, whoſe hand was held, Plow. 8.

6. It is no Felony for Foreſters to kill miſdoers, if they will not ſubmit themſelves, Stat. de maleſactoribus, 21 Ed. 1.

7. If one hath a Beaſt which he doth know, doth uſually hurt, and doth not look to him, but let him go abroad, and it kill a body; this is Felony in the owner, Exod. 21. 28. Fitz Corone 311.

What other Acts againſt the life of a man ſhall be accounted Felony, or not.

For Anſwer to this, theſe things are to be known.

1. If one kill a childe after birth, and before Baptiſm, it is Felony, Dyer 186.

2. If a Gaoler keep his priſoner more cruelly then he ought, ſo that he die thereby; this is Felony in the Gaoler, Stamf. 1. 16.

3. If one that is no Phyſitian allowed, do give Phyſick, and kill the man through his ignorance; this is Felony, Stamf. 2. 16.

4. If one cut out any mans tongue, or put out his eyes, this is Felony, 5 H. 4. 5. if it be done maliciouſly.

5. If one practiſe Conjuration, Inchantments, Charms, Witchcraft, Sorcery, or the like, where by any Man, Woman, or Childe, ſhall be killed or hurt, it is Felony, 1 Jac. 12.

6. If any one that hath the Plague upon him, and is commanded by the Magiſtrate to keep in, do notwithſtanding go abroad, it is Felony, 1 Jac. 31.

7. If any of the Kings ſworn ſervants had conſpired to kill any of the Lords of the Realm, or any of the Kings Council that were ſworn as the Steward, Treaſurer, or Comptroller, or the like, though they did not effect it, yet it was Felony, 3 H. 7. 14.

8. If one beat another grievouſly and leave him for dead, and after he recover; this is no Felony, Non officit conatus niſi ſequatur effectus, Fitz Corone 383.

Sect. 8. Felonies by Theft.

9. Thus far of Felonies by Homicide; now follow Felonies by Theft.

Theft, what it is.

Furtum eſt fraudulenta, illegitima & Felonica tractatio rei alienæ perſonalis & mobilis animo furandi invito illo cujus res illa fuerit. It is the felonious taking away of another mans movable Goods from againſt his will, and with a purpoſe to ſteal them. So that to make up this offence, three things are requiſit; Firſt, Animus furandi, it muſt be without pretence of Title, and this muſt be at the time, that the party doth come to the poſſeſſion of the Goods: Secondly, The thing ſtoln muſt be res aliena: Thirdly, it muſt be a perſonal thing, vide infrà, Stamf. 1. 20. 4 H. 7. 5.

This

This Theft is either a perſona hominis in præſentiâ ejus, or in abſentiâ ejus; and it is from his perſon ad terrorem, as Robbery or violent Theft; or elſe it is abſque terrore, as picking the Purſe: And that in his abſence, is either magna, when the thing ſtoln is above the value of twelve pence, or parva when the thing ſtoln is under the value of twelve pence, which is called Petit-Larceny, *Stamf. l.*1. *c.*20. 4 *H.*7. 5. Co. 3 *part Inſt. cap.*47. The kindes of it.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, take theſe things.

1. There are degrees in this.

2. The firſt and greateſt offence of this nature, is Burglary. What Acts ſhall be accounted Felony by Theft, or not.

3. Burglary is where one doth break and enter into the Houſe of another, wherein ſome Body is, or into the Out-houſe or Stable, adjoyning to the Houſe, wherein people be, in the night time, with an intent to rob or kill, or do ſome other Felony; in which caſe though he carry away nothing, nor kill any Body, yet it is Felony, 22 *Aſſ.*39. Dyer 99. 58. But all this muſt be underſtood in a time of peace. Broo. Corone 176. *Co.*11.32. 3 *H.*7. 12. Stamf. 30. Dyer 99. 58. But if one break a Houſe with intent to rob, and do not enter the Houſe, or break the Houſe in the day time, between Sun-riſing and Sun-ſet, and then rob; neither of theſe acts are Burglary, but it will be a leſſer offence, *Kelw.*75. Powlton de pace 120. Burglary, what.

4. If one with his family be upon occaſion out of doors in the night, and the whiles one break, and rob his houſe, this is Burglary, *Co.*4. 40.

5. If a Thief finde the door open, and come in by night, and rob a Houſe, and being frighted, break a door to eſcape, this is Burglary.

6. If one have two Houſes, and dwell ſometimes in one, and ſometimes in the other, and hath ſervants in both; and whiles his ſervants be abroad, his Houſe be broke, and he is robbed; this is Burglary. But both theſe caſes muſt be underſtood of Manſion-houſes.

7. If one of a mans own ſervants, let them in at the doors, or at the windows, yet it is Burglary in the Thieves, but Felony onely in the Servant. But to break a Cloſe, with an intent to rob, and to rob, or to break a Houſe, with an intent to beat a man, and to do it; is not this offence, but a leſſer offence, Dyer 99. Co 11. 32, 36. *Stamf.*30. Sect. 9. Robbery, what.

8. The next is Robbery, which is, where one doth take from anothers perſon, feloniouſly and violently any money, or other thing, though it be but to the value of one peny; yet if it be in this manner, it is Robbery and Felony, Fitz Corone 115. And whether he take it, or the party deliver it upon an aſſault for fear, it is all one, Dyer 224. 9 *Ed.*4. 26. And under this degree is the Cut-purſe offence.

9. If one threaten to kill a man, if he do not deliver his Purſe, and thereupon he give it to him, this is Robbery. Powlton de pace 128. Cutting a Purſe.

10. If one take a mans Goods, that lie before him, whether the owner will or no, or take a mans Horſe or Beaſt before his face, the owner reſiſting him; this is Robbery, as well as if he took it from his perſon, Powlton de pace 128.

11. If two or more do threaten a man to kill him, unleſs he will bring them money, and he do and they take it away, or threaten to kill him; if he do not ſwear to bring them money ſuch a day, and he do accordingly; this is Robbery, *Finch.*4. 44 *Ed.*3. 14. 4 *H.*4.3. See for Robberies, ſee *Weſtm.*1. 27 Eliz. 13.

12. If Thieves beſet a mans houſe, and the owner is afraid they will enter; and thereupon caſt them out money, and they go away with it, this is Robbery, 44 *Ed.*3.14. Felony by Theft.

13. If one bargain with a Carrier to carry certain Sales of Wares to a place, and he carry them to another place, and there take out the Wares, and ſteal them, this is Felony. So if one undertake to carry a Tun of Wine, and the Carrier open the Tun, and take out ſome of the Wine feloniouſly: So if one deliver one any Goods to carry to a place, and he carrieth them thither, and there ſtealeth them, this is Felony. So if one that hath the keeping of my money, or my Butler, or Horſman, carry or convey away my Money, Plate, or Horſe, this is Felony: So if my Shepherd ſteal away my Sheep; for in theſe caſes ſtill it is in the Maſters though they keep it, 13 *Ed.*4.9. 13 *Ed.*4.10. 21 *H.*4.14. 3 *H.*7. 12. 13 *Ed.*4.9. 27 Aſſ. 39. But if a man deliver Goods to his ſervant, or a Carrier, in other caſes, and he carry and keep them away from the owner; this will not be Felony, 13 *Ed.*4.9.

14. If

13. If I deliver my ſervant the Key of my Chamber, and he rob me; this is Felony, 13 *Ed.*4.9.

14. If a gueſt in a Tavern take away a Bowl, or any thing before him felloniouſly, it is felony: So if a gueſt take away any thing in his Chamber.

15. If I deliver mine own Goods to another to keep, and after I ſteal them away, it is felony in me. 7 *H.*6. 45. 5 *H.*7.18. So if I confederate with another to ſteal my Goods from my Baily. Goldsb. 186.

16. If one ſteal any of the Goods of any Church, or Chappel, or Corporation, it is felony. 7 *Ed.*4. 14. 9 *Ed.*4.33. Though it be in time of Vacation of a Governor.

17. If one ſteal Goods ſtoln before, it is felony. 13 *Ed.*4.3. 4 *H.*7.5. If one take out of their Neſt, in a Dove houſe, yong Pigeons, before they can flie: So ſuch yong Goſhawks, or Hierons in a Park or Ground, before they can flie: Fiſh out of a Pond or Trunk, where they may be taken out by hands without Nets; or Swans, Peacocks, Turkies, Geeſe, Capons, Ducks; a Stag, Hinde, Buck, or Doe marked and tame: To kill Sheep, and take away their Skins, or to pluck them, and take away their Wool; or to take away wilde Fowl where they be dead, is Felony. But to ſteal wilde ſavage Beaſts or Fowls, as wilde Deer or Coneys in a Warren, Pigeons, Hawks, or Doves flying abroad in a River, or the like; theſe acts are not Felony, 3 Ed. 1.20. 31 *H.*7. 6. 1 Ed 3.17. 18 *Ed.*4.8. 18 *H.*8.2. If Servants imbezzle their Maſters Goods at the time of his death, and afterwards being duly ſummoned by the Executors, will not appear, this is Felony, 31 *H.*6. 1. If two, three or more of them ſteal Goods to the value of twelve pence; this is Felony in all of them, Fitz Corone 404.

If any Servant above eighteen years old, that is not an Apprentice, do felonioufly depart with, imbezzle or convert to his own uſe, any Goods or Chattels of his Maſter or Miſtreſs, delivered to him by his Maſter or Miſtreſs, or any his fellow-ſervants, to the value of forty ſhillings or above, it is Felony, 21 *H.*8. 7. 5 *Eliz.*10. Dyer 5. But if I deliver my Servant a Bond for forty ſhillings, and he receive it, and then go away; this is no Felony. So if I deliver him Wares to ſell at a Fair, and he ſell them, and then go away with the money, this is no Felony, Dyer 5.

If I deliver a man Goods to keep, and after take him into my ſervice, and then he goeth away with my Goods; this is not Felony by this Statute, becauſe he was no ſervant at the time, 28 *H.*8. 2. So if I deliver Goods to the ſervant of J. S. to keep, and after die, and make J. S. my Executor; and before any new Commandment of J. S. to his ſervant to keep the ſame Goods, his ſervant goeth away with them; this alſo is out of the Statute. Sir Francis Bacon, *f.*34.

Sect. 10. Petit-Larcenie, what.

If one ſteal any thing (beſides the things excepted beneath) from another man, which the Jury upon the tryal of the Thief, ſhall finde to be above the value of twelve pence, it is Felony, though it be ſtoln at ſeveral times, Fitz Corone 455. But if the Jury finde it under twelve pence. See more of Burglary and Robbery. *Co.*3 *part Inſt. cap.*14.17. Or not above twelve pence in value, then it is but Petit-Larcenie, and not Felony; for which the offender is to forfeit his Goods, and be puniſhed otherwiſe, by whipping, binding to the Good-behavior, Impriſonment, or the like, at the diſcretion of the Judge: But he is not to be puniſhed with the loſs of his life, 27 *H.*8.22. *Bro.*515. Co. 3 part Inſt. 47. For Felonies by Theft, ſee 39 Eliz. 29. 27 *Eliz.*13. 7 *Rich.*2. 6. 18 *Ed.*3. 11. 5 Ed 3.14. Articuli ſuper Chart. 17 Stat. Wincheſter.

The puniſhment of it.

What taking of Goods is not accounted Felony.

To ſteal Apples, or Hops on the Trees, Corn ſtanding upon the Ground, or Wood growing, or the Lead or Tyle of a Church or Houſe, is not Felony: But if theſe things be taken away cut and ſevered from the Houſe or Land; in theſe caſes the taking of them away will be Felony, *Co.*4.14. 7. 18. 18 *H.*8.2. And if a Thief cut down a tree this day, and come to morrow and fetch him away, this perhaps may be Felony.

To take away Writings, or a Ward, or Goods that are Treaſure, Trove, Wreck, a Waiff, or Eſtray, is no Felony. 10 *Ed.*4.15. 12 *Aſſ.*32.

Husband and Wife.

If a Wife ſteal Goods by the Commandment or Compulſion of her Husband, this is not Felony in her. And if ſhe and her Husband do ſteal Goods together; this is no Felony in her, as Principal or Acceſſary: But if ſhe ſteal Goods without his privity, vity, or receive ſtoln Goods againſt his minde, and without his knowledge; this is Felony in her, but none in him, 27 Aſſ. pl. 40. Fitz Corone 160. 383. And if the Wife take away her Husbands Goods, and give them to another; this is no Felony in the Wife that gives, nor in the other that takes them, Fitz Corone 455.

If an Infant under ten years of age, do ſteal my Goods, it is ſaid this is not Felony. But it ſeems the courſe is to conſider of the ripeneſs of wit in the Felon, and according to that, to judg him, let him be of what years he will, Co. 4. 124. 35 H. 6. 11. The ſame Law is of Man-killing by an Infant; and yet if an Infant beat or wound me, he may be indicted and fined for this, or I may ſue him in Treſpaſs, and recover damages, 35 H. 6. Infant. Treſpaſs.

If an Idiot or Lunatick do ſteal any Goods, this is no Felony, Co. 4. 124. 35 H. 6. 11. So likewiſe it is of an Idiot, as to the point of murder. And yet if he beat or wound another, he may ſue him in Treſpaſs, and have damage for this, 35 H. 6. Lunatick. Treſpaſs.

If one ſteal Apes, Hounds, Grey-hounds, Poping-jays, Squirrels, or the like things of no value, this is no Felony, 18 H. 8. 2. 22 Aſſ. 95.

If one put his hand into anothers Pocket to take out his Purſe, and the Purſe doth hang ſtill to a Key faſtned to the Purſe in his Pocket, this is not Felony. And yet if one ſteal away Goods out of one part of a Houſe, and carry them away, and hide them in another part of the Houſe, this is Felony: By two Juſtices, M. 8 Jac.

If my Goods be ſtoln away from me, and I take them again by force, where I finde them, or by the delivery of the Felon; this is no Felony, nor puniſhable at all. For any man may chuſe whether he will proſecute a Felon for ſtealing his Goods, or not, till he be bound by Recogniſance: But if I take money for my Goods, eſpecially if I take more by a great deal, then the Goods be worth, or take money of the Felon, with agreement to conceal him, or the like; this is dangerous, and I may be fined for it; and yet it is clear, this is not Felony, by Juſtice Bridgman, Hil. 7 Car. But if I break the priſon, wherein a Felon is, and let him out, or reſcue him being apprehended, and he get away; or I have him in cuſtody, and ſuffer him purpoſely and willingly to eſcape; theſe things are Felony, and make me liable to the ſame offence and puniſhment, as he is liable to.

If Goods be taken out of a Church or Chappel felonioufly, this is a Felony, and a high degree of Felony, called Sacrilege. Sect. 11. Sacrilege, what.

By all which, we ſee that to the making up of this offence of Felony by Theft; there muſt go theſe things,

1. The taking muſt be of Goods or Chattels, perſonal and movable. For the ſtealing of Chattels real, as Charters of Land, an Infant in Ward, or the like, is not Felony: Nor is the taking of any thing therefore (upon this account) which is parcel of the Freehold, and unſevered, as Fruit of a Tree, Lead on a Houſe, or the like, Felony.

2. The party from whom they are taken, muſt have a property and a poſſeſſion in the things: And therefore is it, that the ſtealing of Goods, waiffed, wrecked, or ſtrayed, is no Felony. And hence it is, that the ſtealing of things of a wilde nature, as Doves abroad, Fiſh in the River, or the like, is no Felony.

3. The things taken, muſt be things of profit. And therefore it is not Felony to take away hunting, or any Dogs, Apes, Parrots, ſinging Birds, and the like.

4. The caſe muſt be ſo, that the Goods muſt not come to the party that hath them by the delivery of the owner: And therefore if a ſervant or Carrier, take away the Goods delivered, it is not Felony; and yet if a man have the uſe of them onely, as Plate in a Tavern; or one deliver Goods to carry to a Carrier, to be carried to one place, and he carry them to another, or after he hath carried them to the ſame place, then he carry them away; this may be Felony.

5. The things ſtoln muſt be taken away and removed out of the place; and yet if one ſtealing my Horſe be taken in the manner, with the Bridle about his head, &c. ſo that he cannot go away with him; it ſeems this is Felony.

Piracy is the robbing by Sea: And this is as penal to the offender, as the robbing by Land. See for this largely, Co. 2 part Inſt. cap. 49. Piracy.

Where it ſhall be tried, 28 H. 8. 15.

What other Acts, and not acts of Mankilling, or Theft, ſhall be ſaid to be Felony, or in the degree of Felony, or not.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, we are to know that a man may commit Felony, and be in danger to loſe his life in divers other caſes, and for divers other things; as in theſe caſes following.

1. If any man wilfully put out the Eyes, or cut out the Tongue of another man, this is Felony, 1 H 4. 5.

2. If one above fourteen years old, counterfeit himſelf an Egyptian, and ſo continue a moneth together in England; he is a Felon, 5 Eliz. 26.

3. If one multiply Gold or Silver, it is Felony, 5 H. 4. 4.

4. If one take up a Hawk, and do not proclaim him, and deliver him, when he is demanded, but deny him, 34 Ed. 3. 22.

5. If Maſons do make Congregations or Aſſemblies to ſubvert the Laws, it is Felony, 3 H. 6. 1.

6. A Soldier or Marriner may by miſ-behaving himſelf in a wandring life, become a Felon, 39 Eliz. 17. A man may be a Felon by forging of Evidences the ſecond time, 5 Eliz. 14.

7. To take away any Record whereby a Judgment is Reverſed, is Felony, 8 H. 6. 12.

8. It is Felony for a Rogue, baniſhed by the Juſtices to return again, 39 Eliz. 4.

9. Purveyors of the King in their Purveyance for him, may commit Felony in divers caſes, 28 Ed. 1, 2. 20 R. 2. 5. 25 Ed. 3. 15. 5 Ed. 3. 2. and others.

10. Felony may be done by robbing Parks, 3 Ed. 1. 20. 1 H. 7. 7.

11. To imbezzle or ſell the Kings Ordnance, or Armor, was Felony, 31 Eliz. 4

12. It is Felony to cut down any part of Powdike in Marſhland, 22 H. 8. 11. 2, 3 Ph. & Ma. 19.

13. It is Felony to take a man out of Cumberland, Weſtmerland, Northumberland, Durham, &c. priſoner, and carry him elſwhere, 43 Eliz. 13.

14. Soldiers and Marriners may divers ways commit Felony, 39 Eliz. 13. 18 H. 6. 19. 2 Ed. 6. 2. 5 Eliz. 5.

15. One may be a Felon by relieving or receiving a Jeſuit, 27 Eliz. 2.

16. If any Man or Woman commit Inceſt, or a Woman knowing her Husband to be living, or not having been three years abſent, or by common report reputed to be dead, be known by a man; this is Felony in them both. So if one lie with a Married-woman, knowing her to be ſo, it is Felony in them both. If any one be a Bawd and keep a Bawdy-houſe after one Conviction, the ſecond offence is Felony, Act, 10 May, 1645. 9 Aug. 1648.

17. If any man, not an Attorney, ſhall acknowledg any Judgment againſt any man, not being privy or conſenting to it: Or if any levy a Fine, ſuffer a Recovery, or acknowledg any Statute-Recogniſance, or Bail, in the name of any other perſon, not being privy or conſenting thereto; either of theſe Acts are Felony, 21 Jac. 7. 26.

18. If any man imbezzle, or raſe any part of a Record in any of the great Courts, whereby a Judgment is reverſed; or ſo corrected as that the Error is redreſſed, this is Felony, 8 H. 6. 12. 2 R. 3. 10. Bro. Corone 173. But if the Judg do ſo, it is Miſpriſion onely, Co. 11. 34. 8. 160.

19. If a Jailor uſe his priſoner ſo hardly, and thereby cauſe or compel his priſoner to be an Approver againſt his will; this is Felony, 14 Ed. 3. 9.

20. If one marry a ſecond Wife, his firſt Wife being living, and having been heard of within ſeven years, it is Felony, 1 Jac. 11.

We have done now with the Simple Felonies, and Principal Felons: And now we come to Relative Felonies, and to Acceſſaries. For a man by Participation with, may make himſelf guilty of another mans offence, divers ways; we have ſhewed before, That the breaking of a Priſon, and letting out of Felons is a Felony. So if one ſhall Reſcue a Felon apprehended, this is a Felony: See for this Reſcous in chap. So for a voluntary Eſcape, if one that hath a Felon in his cuſtody, ſuffer him wilfully to eſcape or turn him going, this is Felony; and if it be in an Officer, it is the worſe: But for the clearing of it, we ſhall handle the point of Principal and Acceſſary at large. Breaking of Priſon. Reſcue. Eſcape.

Theſe two words are Relative words, Principal doth ſignifie the chief actor of any villany, and the Acceſſary is he that hath his hand and conſent in it before or after, but is not preſent at it, called ſometimes an Abettor: And he is two manner of ways, either before the fact done, when he is one of the helping and moving cauſes of it, which may be by Provocation, Counſel, or Conſent; or after, when he laboreth to hinder the execution of Juſtice upon the offender for the fact; in both caſes the offence of the Acceſſary is equal in degree and quality with the offence of the Principal; and for both, he is to be puniſhed as the Principal is, Conſentientes agentes & inſtigantes pari pœnâ plectuntur, 46 Aſſ. 23. Stamf pl. Corone 44, 45, 46, &c. Co 7. 2. 1. Principal and Acceſſary, what. Abettor. The kindes of it.

Some alſo divide them again into Acceſſaries by the Common Law, and Acceſſaries by the Statute, (i.) Such as are made ſo by any Statute, are ſuch as abet, counſel, or receive any which commit, or have committed any offence made Felony by any Statute, albeit the Statute do not mention Acceſſaries, Stamf. pl. Corone, 1. 45.

For Anſwer to this, theſe things are to be known.

1. In Treaſons there can be no Acceſſaries before nor after, for all that have their hands in thoſe offences are called and eſteemed Principals. In what offences and caſes, there may be an Acceſſary, or not.

2. Alſo in Man-ſlaughter there can be no Acceſſaries before, but there may be Acceſſaries after; but in all other Felonies there may be Acceſſaries before and after.

4. In Maime, Forcible entry, Riots, Routs, and all Treſpaſſes, there can be no Acceſſaries before or after; but all are eſteemed Principals.

5. Alſo Acceſſaries may be in relation to offences by Statute Laws, albeit the Statute doth not mention Acceſſaries, Co. 4. 44. upon Littl. 57. Stamf. 1. 4. 5 H. 7. 10. Stamf. pl. Corone 45, 46, 47.

6. A man may be an Acceſſary to the ſtealing of his own Goods; as if he confederate with another to ſteal them from his Baily, to the intent to charge him, Goldsb. 18. pl. 128.

If one man do command, counſel, adviſe, procure, abet, allow or ſtir up, comfort, encourage, aid, conſent to, or hire another to do any Felony, and be not preſent himſelf when the other doth it, he is an Acceſſary before, Stamf. 1. 45. Co. 9. 112. 7. 2. 4, 5 Ph. & Ma 4. Kelw. 67. Plow 476. In what caſe a man ſhall be ſaid an Acceſſary before the offence, or not.

A man may be Acceſſary before, by provocation; and that may be, Firſt, by incenſing or allurement, of which, ſee examples in Scripture Job 2.9. 1 Kings 21. 25. Prov. 1. 10. Secondly, One may be Acceſſary by counſel, of which read 2 Sam. 13. 5. 16. 21. 2 Chron. 22. 3, 4. Thirdly, One may be Acceſſary by conſent, and this may be either overt, and that may be either by word or deed, of which ſee Acts 8. 1. 26. 10. 7. 56. Prov. 1. 14. Pſal. 50. 18. Or Covert, when one is of the confederacy, and ſtands by, and is ſilent. And by all theſe ways a man may be Acceſſary by our Law. As by theſe following caſes,

1. If one counſel a Woman to murther the childe in her body, and after the childe is born, and then ſhe doth murder him in the abſence of him that gave her the counſel, in this caſe he is an Acceſſary, Dyer 186. Plow. 475. 2. If I perſwade or command one to go and beat another man onely, and he do beat him, and kill him; by this I am made Acceſſary, not onely to the beating, but to the murther, Stamf. 1. 45. Co. 4. 75. 4. 44. 3. If one perſwade another to perſwade a third perſon to drink ſuch a potion, wherein is poyſon, knowing it to be ſo, and he doth ſo, and thereof the party die; the firſt perſwader is an Acceſſary, Co. 4. 44. Plow. 475, 476. 4. If one command or adviſe another to rob another, and he in robbing of him, kill him in fight; in this caſe the adviſer or commander is Acceſſary to this murther alſo. So if one command one to beat another, and with that beating he kill him. So if one command one to burn the Houſe of J. S. and by this means any other Houſes are burnt too, he is Acceſſary unto all; and ſo in all like caſes where other evil enſueth upon any evil thing, counſelled or adviſed, Co. 4. 44. Plow 475. 5. But if divers come to do a lawful buſineſs, and one kill a man without the conſent of the reſt, or one do a Felony; or if a man happen by chance into company where ſuch a murther or Felony is committed (being not of their company, nor confederacy, and having no ſuch purpoſe) and he do not let ſuch Felony, or do not raiſe Hue and Cry after it is done; by theſe things he doth not make himſelf Acceſſary, but he may be fined for theſe things: So if a Sheriff command his Bailiff to take a man, and the Bailiff do take the man and rob him, the Sheriff is not Acceſſary to this Robbery, Plow. 475. Stamf. 1. 45. 6. If one counſel or command one to kill a man, and he kill another; or to burn one mans Houſe, and he burn anothers; or to ſteal a Horſe, and he ſteal a Cowe; or to ſteal a black Horſe, and he ſteal a white Horſe; or to ſteal a Goldſmiths Plate from him, going to ſuch a Fair, and he go to his ſhop in Cheapſide, and rob him there, and break open his houſe to do it; here in theſe caſes the party ſhall not be Acceſſary, becauſe this is another Felony; and yet if one command a Felony, and it be done in another faſhion, time, place, or manner, then it was commanded onely; he may be Acceſſary to it, Plow. 475. As if one bid another to rob J. D. on Shooters-hill, and he doth it on Gads-hill, or to rob him one day, and he doth it another day, or to do it himſelf, and he doth it by another, or to kill him by poyſon, and he doth it by a Sword; in all theſe caſes he ſhall be an Acceſſary: But if he bid him kill J. S. and he kill J. D. it is otherwiſe; and it is ſaid if one command another to rob J. S. as he goeth to Turbridg Fair, and he rob him in his houſe, that by this he is not Acceſſary, Plow 475.

In what caſe a man ſhall be ſaid to be an Acceſſary after the offence, or not.

1. If one after a Felony is committed, and he hath knowledg of it, doth notwithſtanding receive and favor, aid, aſſiſt, hide, comfort, or help the Felon in his houſe, or elſwhere, and conceal him from them that ſearch after him; or help convey him away by aid of money, or other aſſiſtance, or hinder or endeavor to let his apprehenſion, reſcue him, or the like, he is Acceſſary after the offence, Stamf. 1. 46. 14 H. 7. 31. Plow. 476. But to know of a Felony onely, will not make a man acceſſary to it. 2. If one be out-lawed for Felony, or otherwiſe attainted by a Record, and a man do after receive him; in this caſe it ſeems he is an Acceſſary after, though he know not of the Felonie, becauſe it is upon Record, eſpecially if the out-lawry be in the ſame County, Fitz. Corone 377. Dyer 355. Stamf. 1. 46. 3. If one felonioufly receive another that is acceſſary to a Felony; this receiver is an Acceſſary, Stamf. 1. 43. So that one may be an Acceſſary to an Acceſſary. 4. If one give one money to help ſhift him out of the Country, after he hath told him of the Felony he hath committed; by this he makes himſelf Acceſſary, Stamf. 1. 46. Parrams caſe, B. R. M. 7 Jac.

M. 7 Jac. The Court, Fitz Corone 447. 5. If one receive another into his houſe, that flieth for a Felony, and ſhuts the door, ſo as the Country not thinking him to be there, he eſcape whiles no man followeth him, he is Acceſſary, Stamf. 1. 46. 6. But if a Woman do after her Husband hath committed a Felony conceal him, live with, aid, and comfort him, or the like; this is no Felony in her, neither is ſhe Acceſſary: But if ſhe ſerve any other man ſo, ſhe may be an Acceſſary, Stamf. 1. 19. Fitz Corone 183. 7. If one know of a Felony, and do not hinder it, or purſue the Felon, but he doth not conſent to it, nor is at it; this is not Felony. And if one after a Felony is committed, do help a man by his counſel, Letters, or the like, to help him out of his trouble, this will not make him an Acceſſary, Stamf. 1. 46. 8. If one do receive Goods which he doth know to be ſtoln, he is not (as it ſeems) by this Acceſſary to the Felony. But it is dangerous ſo to do, and eſpecially to buy ſuch Goods at a low rate: But if one purſue a Felon with Hue and Cry, and then take his Goods, and let him go; by this he may be made an Acceſſary to the offence, Stamf. 1. 46. If one receive his own Goods from the Thief, after they be ſtoln, if it be not with a purpoſe to conceal the offendor, or bear with him, or to help him to eſcape; this is not puniſhable at all, Halls caſe, 38 Eliz. B. R. But if one take money of the Felon not to give evidence againſt him; by this he may be Acceſſary. Wife.

Sect. 14.

In what caſe a man ſhall be eſteemed a Principal, and not an Acceſſary.

1. If many come together to do an unlawful act, as to rob or to do a riot, or the like, and one of them kill a man; in this caſe they are all Principal offendors, Bro. 237. Plow. 98. Kelw. 161. 2. If one do command, incite, or perſwade another to do a Felony, and be preſent himſelf at the doing of it, he ſhall be deemed a Principal, Co. 9. 112. 3. If one be preſent, and doth move others to kill (or though he incite not) yet if he come for that purpoſe, or to aid if need be; or hold a man while another doth kill him; or be of the confederacy or company, though he do nothing; in this caſe, if one offence be committed amongſt them, he that ſo doth ſhall be a Principal, and in equal degree in the offence, and may be arraigned as a Principal, Stamf. 1. 45. 13 H. 7. 10. Plow. 97. 4. If one ſtand at the door of a room, wherein two are fighting, and he bid one of them kill the other, and he do ſo, if the fact by him that doth kill him, be Man-ſlaughter, the offence is the ſame in him that provoked him, and they are both Principals, Plow. 97. 5. If one knowing there is poyſon in drink, perſwade another to drink it, and do tell him, it will do him good, and after he is gone, the other doth take it, he is a Principal, Co. 4. 44.

How the Acceſſary ſhall be proſecuted.

1. The Acceſſary ſhall not be arraigned, until the Principal be arraigned; and if there be many Principals, he ſhall not be arraigned till all the Principals be arraigned; and if he be found Acceſſary to any one of them, it is enough: But if he be charged as Acceſſary to one of the Principals, and the Principal be attainted by out-lawry, then the Acceſſary may be arraigned, Stamf. 1. 49. Plow. 98. Dyer 25. Co. 7. 2. 2. But a man may ſue the Acceſſary till exigent, and then it muſt ſtay till the Principal be attainted, Co. 9. 117. 3 Ed. 1. 14. Dyer 120. So if he appear he ſhall anſwer, but when he hath pleaded to iſſue, it ſhall ſtay till the Principal be tried: But if they both appear, they muſt anſwer together immediately one after another, 21 H. 7. 31. 3 H. 7. 12. Plow. 98. 3. And if a Principal before Attainder, or after Attainder, by Verdict or Confeſſion, and before Judgment die, or be pardoned, or hath his Clergy, the Acceſſary by this is diſcharged, 17 H. 4. 19. Co. 4. 43. 4. But after Attainder and Judgment given after Verdict, Confeſſion, or by Out-lawry, if the Principal get his Pardon or Clergy, yet the Acceſſary ſhall be arraigned, Acceſſarius ſequitur ſuum Principalem, & ubi non eſt Principalis ibi non eſt Acceſſarius, Stamf. 1. 50. 5. If the Attainder of the Principal be erroneous, or by Error in the Proces or Out-lawry, he being out of the Land, or the like, yet the Acceſſary may be attained and executed, till the firſt Attainder be reverſt; and if the Out-lawry be reverſed after the Acceſſary is executed, or the Principal plead, and be acquitted; the Heir of the Acceſſary ſhall have his Land again, which the Anceſtor did forfeit by the Attainder, Co. 9. 116. 6. But if the Principal be acquitted onely by reaſon of the inſufficiency of the Indictment, this doth not diſcharge the Acceſſary, Co. 4. 45. 7. If a man have been indicted as Acceſſary and acquitted, yet he may after be indicted, as Principal, Bro. 401.

8. If

8. If one be indicted for murder as Principal, and one for being Acceſſary before, and another after, and the Principal is convicted of Man-ſlaughter, or do confeſs it, and hath a pardon, or his Clergy before Judgment, both the Acceſſaries are diſcharged, 3 H 7.1. 7 *H.*4. 16. See Co. 3 *part Inſt.*64.

Abettors or Particeps criminis, what:

9. An Abettor or Particeps criminis (i.) A partaker in the crime is in divers caſes: He is ſaid to be an Abettor, that without juſt cauſe doth malicioufly procure one to ſue a falſe Appeal of Felony or Murder againſt another: But he is ſaid to be an Abettor in Murder or Felony, who doth command, procure, counſel, or encourage another to the doing of a Murder, or other Felonie; this is but an Acceſſary: But it is ſaid to be in ſome other caſes.

For the manner of proceeding againſt, and ſome other things concerning Murderers, and other Felons. The ſtate and condition of a Felon.

For the ſtate and condition of a Felon, theſe things are to be known:

1. He is capable to receive by way of Gift or Grant, any thing from others, before or after Attainder, as before.

2. He cannot give or grant away any of his Lands after the offence done, but his Goods he may ſell or give at any time before Attainder, and after he muſt live by them: But ſee for this, Diſability, Grant, Numb. 2, 3. Fine, Numb. 6, 8. And in the next Queſtion.

Sect 15. The Forfeiture and Puniſhment in caſe of Felony. And for condition of a perſon Attaint of Felony. An jour & Waſt.

The puniſhment of every Felon, Principal and Acceſſary; for a Felony by the Common Law, is to hang between Heaven and Earth (as unworthy of both) to loſe his Blood upwards, ſo that he cannot be Heir to another, being a Son of the Earth, to loſe his Blood downwards; for his Blood is corrupted, ſo that none can be Heir to him, to forfeit all his Goods and Chattels, and all his Lands: The which the King is to have for a year and a day, to the end he may eject his Family, raſe his Houſes, ſubvert his Trees, and Plough up his Meadows, and after the year the Lord of whom the Land is held, is to have it for ever, ut pœna ad paucos metus ad omnes perveniat: And the Wife is to loſe her Dower, and ſo it is for Felonies by Statute Law. But that in ſome caſes, and for ſome Felonies made by Statute Law, it is ſaid by the Law, there ſhall be no Corruption of Blood, nor loſs of Dower. The Statutes muſt therefore be ſeen; and according to this, the Judgment is given upon the trial of the Felon: But if the Felon upon his Arraignment, and upon his trial, ſhall not anſwer at all, or ſhall not anſwer directly, or ſhall challenge peremptorily above twenty: Or if he plead not guilty to the Indictment, and then will not put himſelf upon the Country; in all theſe caſes the Judgment is, That he be preſſed to death for his Contumacy; and this is called Judgment de paine fort & dure. And in this caſe, and by this means (except it be in the caſe of Treaſon) he ſaves his Land, but doth forfeit all his Goods and Chattels notwithſtanding, Co. 4. 124. Stamf. 3. 33, 34. 1 *Ed.*6. 12. 5, 6 *Ed.*6. 12. 21 Jac. 6. Weſtm. 1. 12. Co. 11. 30, 40. upon Littl. 380, 381.

Judgment de paine fort & dure, what.

How his Goods ſhall be diſpoſed.

But in this caſe, this is to be known, That the Goods of the Felon, till his Attainder, are his own, and he may give or ſell them as he pleaſe, and neither the Sheriff nor any other Officer, or other, can ſeiſe or diſpoſe them, nor are they till his Attainder to be removed out of his Houſe: But after once he is attainted by Verdict or Outlawry, the Townſhip muſt look to, and ſecure the Goods, Fitz Forf 32. Corone 347. See Seiſure. 22 *Aſſ. pl.*8. 31 *Ed.*3. 3. 1 R 3. 3. And how he may ſue or be ſued in this Condition, ſee Diſability; ſee more for Forfeiture, the old Statutes, Mag Charta 22. 17 *Ed.*2. 14, 16. De Catallis Felonum, 34 *Ed.*3. 12. 11 *H.*7. 1. 24 *H.*8. 5. Co. 3 *part. Clergy, what.

But in ſome caſes for Felony, the offendor ſhall have (if he deſire it) the benefit of the Book for his life, and this is called Clergy, which is defined to be a benefit that ſome offenders have in ſome caſes of Felony, confirmed by divers Acts of Parliament. And is thus, when a man is araigned of Felony before a Temporal Judg, and the priſoner prayeth his Clergy, viz. To have his Book; then the Judg doth command the Ordinary to try, if he can read as a Clerk in ſuch a Book and place thereof, as the Judg ſhall appoint appoint; and if the Ordinary ſhall certifie the Judg that he can read, then he is not to loſe his life, but is to be burnt in the hand onely, which was called Auſer in le maine. But if he could not read, and the Ordinary doth ſo certifie to the Judg, then he muſt be hanged: And if he pray his Clergy before Judgment given, (as he may) he is called a Clerk Convict, if after, he is called a Clerk Attaint. And this benefit of Clergy was at firſt given to Clergy men onely (for their ſcarcity to be found to be placed in Religious Houſes, and was allowable to them for all offences whatſoever, except Treaſon, and robbing of the Churches of their Ornaments: And then onely upon the requeſt of the Ordinary. But at this day it is grantable to all perſons, Laymen as well as Clergy-men, and that without any delivery of them to the Ordinary, which was the ancient courſe, for being found guilty, they are put to read at the Bar. Terms of the Law, Co. on Littl. 2. 11.

Auſer in le maine, what.

Clerk { Convict / Attaint

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, we are to know theſe things.

1. That a man cannot have his Clergy in caſes of High Treaſon, Petit Treaſon, nor in caſes of other Felonies, by Murder, Robbery, Sacrilege, burning of dwelling Houſes, or Barns of Corn, ſtealing of Horſes, Geldings, or Mares, Rape, taking away of Goods from the perſon of another privily, ſtabbing any perſon within the Statute of 1 Jac. 8. Where this is grantable, or not.

2. But in caſe of Acceſſary to ſtealing of Horſes and Mares, for Man-ſlaughter onely, and for ordinary Theft, and in all other Felonies not before named, this benefit is grantable.

3. This benefit is grantable but once, and therefore he that doth demand his Clergy, and hath it once, ſhall never have it the ſecond time, 4 H. 7. 13. 1 Ed. 6. 12. Sect. 16. Corruption of Blood, what.

The Corruption of Blood, which is part of the puniſhment for Treaſon, and other Felonies, is an infection of the Blood, growing to the eſtate of a man attainted, and his iſſue; ſo that as he cannot be Heir to any other above him, ſo can no other be Heir to him that is beneath him: And therefore it is that a Remainder to his right Heir can never take effect. And if the eldeſt ſon be attainted, during his fathers life, and then he over-live him, neither he nor his iſſue after him (if he die before) can inherit: So neither can the yonger Brother, but it will rather Eſcheat. But if the eldeſt ſon in this caſe die in his Fathers life, without any iſſue; in this caſe the yonger ſon may inherit as Heir to the Father, and the Corruption of Blood in the Brother will not hinder. By this Corruption of Blood, alſo the Nobleman and Gentleman doth loſe his Nobility and Gentility for ever, Crompt. Jur. 20. Co. upon Littl. 391. Brov. Co. 42. Dyer 48. 22 H. 6. 38.

Where it ſhall be, or not.

This puniſhment falls upon all Felonies by Common Law, but in caſes of Felony by Statute Law, the Statute doth uſually except it, and then it is prevented, it will be needful for the knowledg of this point to ſee the Statutes, by which the offence is made Treaſon, 25 H. 8. 6. 18 Eliz. 6.

Miſpriſon of Treaſon, or Felony, what.

Miſ-priſion may be either of Treaſon or Felony; and both theſe offences may be many ways. It is properly the Concealment of theſe offences, when one doth know of another man that hath committed the offence, and doth not diſcloſe it to a Magiſtrate; This if it be of a Treaſon, the offender doth thereby forfeit his Goods for ever, and the profits of his Lands, during his life, and his Body is to be impriſoned, during the Kings pleaſure. But if it be of a Felony onely, the offender is to be fined at

at the diſcretion of the Juſtices, and impriſoned till he pay it, or put in Sureties for it. For this ſee Crompt. Jur. 70. 76. D. & St. 163. Finches Law 23. Co. upon Littl. 287. Dyer 296. Stamf. 1. 38. Broo. 311. 429. 464. 1, 2 Ph. & Ma. 10. 43 H. 8. 12. Co. 3 part Inſt. 65.

Theſtboot, what. Theftboot is where the owner of the Goods ſtoln, doth not onely conceal the Felony, but taketh his Goods again of the Felon, or amends for the ſame, to favor and maintain him, or not to proſecute him: This is worſe then Concealment. See for it Co. 3 part. Inſt. 61.

There are divers other offences of a lower nature, as Extortion, Night-walking, Barretry, Fornication, Quarrelling, Libelling, Spreading of falſe news, getting money by counterfeiting Letters, and many others which we ſhall ſay ſomewhat to in their proper places.

The way to bring a man in queſtion for his life, in Treaſon or Felony, is by Indictment or Preſentment; and for ſome Felonies, there is a third way by Appeal. For leſſer offences alſo a man may be convict by Indictment or Preſentment.

Appeal, what. Appeal is a Plaint or Writ made by one man againſt another, of purpoſe to attaint him of ſome offence committed: As if one commit a Robbery, Murther, or Maim upon my perſon, my Wife, or my Heir, after my death, for killing me, or my ſelf in my life time, for robbing or maiming me, may have this Appeal within the year and day after the offence; and if the party be attainted, he muſt be executed, and the King cannot pardon it: But if he be acquitted, the Appealor will be fined, and impriſoned, and the party appealed, will recover damages. For this ſee Gloc. 9. 3 H. 7. 3. Weſtm. 2. 12. 28 Ed. 1. Co. 3 part Inſt. 57. 1 H. 4. 14. Stamf. 2. 6. Co. 9. 119. Co. 4 47, 48. upon Lit. 287. Plow. 476. Dyer 50. Broo. 383. 445. *Crompt. Sect. 17. Indictment, what. Indictment is a Bill or Declaration formally made, containing an accuſation of a man for ſome offence done by a Jury, to be found of purpoſe to put the offender to anſwer to it. And to this the offender muſt plead, and thereupon ſhall be tried by another Jury, whether he be guilty of the thing whereof he is indicted, or not. And this differeth little from a Preſentment.

Preſentment, what. Preſentment is defined to be an enquiry and finding of ſome offence that hath been done againſt the King: This ſometimes called an Indictment. They both differ from an Appeal in this, That this is always at the ſuit of the party, and the other two are at the ſuit of the King. But ſee for theſe things more in my Books of Juſtice of Peace, Co. upon Littl. 126. D. & St. 135. Dyer 284. And in many other places, Co. 2 part Inſt. 739. Co. 3 part Inſt. 62.

Arraignment, what. Arraignment is the next ſtep of proceeding againſt an offender after the Indictment is found, or Preſentment made, for then muſt he be brought to the Bar of Juſtice to be tried; and this is called an Arraignment. The manner whereof ſee in Sir Thomas Smiths Commonwealth, f. 89. After this is the Attainder, which is the Conviction of the offender of the crime, whereof he was not before convict. And this is either before his appearance, which is by outlawry, or after appearance; and this is by Verdict or Confeſſion. And thereupon Judgment of death followeth, except he can pray his Clergy, and then he preventeth the Judgment, and is called a Clerk Convict. His Judgment where he doth plead, is, That he ſhall hang by the neck till he be dead. But if upon his trial he ſtand mute, and will not anſwer at all, or not directly, or challenge above twenty peremptory; in this caſe the Judgment is, That he ſhall be preſſed to death, which is called Judgment de paine fort & dure, Co 4. 124. Stamf. 2. 33. Co. 3 part Inſt. 47. For the falſifying of an Attainder, ſee Co. 3 part Inſt. 104. And for Judgment and Execution, Co. 3 part Inſt. 101.

Attainder, what.

Judgment { of life / of paine fort & dure.

Ignoramus, what. Ignoramus is a word uſed by the Grand Enqueſt, charged with the enquiry of cauſes criminal, and written upon the Bill, whereby any crime is offered to their conſideration, when as they miſlike their evidence as defective and too weak to make good the Preſentment; then they uſe to write upon the back of the Bill, We are Ignorant, and then he is delivered without further anſwer; but if they do like it, then they ſay, A true Bill, and then cry, He ſtands indicted by it, and muſt anſwer to it, whether he be guilty, or not: And if he deny it, it muſt then be tried by another Jury, and as they finde it, ſo it muſt ſtand. See Indictment.

Hue

Hue and Cry, it ſignifieth the purſuit of one that hath committed Felony by the High-way ſide or elſwhere: For if the party robbed, or any of the company of him that is murthered or robbed, come to the Conſtable of the next place, and willeth him to raiſe Hue and Cry, and to make purſuit after the offender, and deſcribe him, and which way he is gone, as near as he can; the Conſtable muſt call upon the Pariſh, and they muſt ſeek preſently there for him: And if he be not to be found there, they muſt tell the Conſtable of the next Pariſh, and there they muſt ſearch likewiſe, and ſo in every Pariſh, until the offender be taken or purſued to the Sea ſide: And if Officers or others, be negligent herein, they may be puniſhed. And in ſome caſes if the offender be not taken, as in caſes of Robbery, the Hundred may be charged to the party grieved, and he may recover his money loſt of it. And ſuch as raiſe theſe Hues and Cries, muſt take care againſt whom they ſend them; for if they do it, without cauſe, they may be puniſhed for it, Co. 2 part of Inſt. 173. Freſh-Suit is ſuch a preſent and earneſt purſuit, and following of an offender, as never ceaſeth from the time of the offence committed, or eſpied, until he be apprehended. And where this is done by the party robbed, he ſhall have his Goods again; and when the offender is tried, the Judg, before whom he is tried, may give him a Warrant to take, and have his Goods again; whereas otherwiſe, if he fail to make this Freſh Purſuit, the King ſhall have the Goods ſtoln as forfeit to him. In both theſe caſes, whether he be guilty of the Felony, or not, he doth forfeit his Goods. See for this, Stamf. 3. 21. 3 Ed. 3. 35. 4 H. 7. 18. 5 H. 4. 32. 29 Ed. 3. 3. Co. 3 *part. To Abjure, is to forſwear the Realm for ever, and depart into a Forein Land: For where one had committed a Felony, and did flie to a Church, or other privileged place, before he was apprehended, he might have abjured, and ſo avoided the Trial of Law: And this may be for a time onely, and then is called Relegation. Abjuration or Exile, what. Relegation, what.

CHAP.

CHAP. LXI.

Of Cuſtom and Preſcription.

Sect. 1.

1. Cuſtom, what.

THis word Cuſtom is ſometimes uſed for the Tribute or Toll that Merchants pay to the King, for the carrying in and out of their Merchandiſes: But here it is taken for a Law or Rite not written, which being eſtabliſhed by long uſe, and the conſent of our Anceſtors hath been, and is daily practiſed, Co. 9. 75. Co. 1. 110. upon Littl. 58. 110. The word is taken in divers other ſenſes, Co. 2 part. Inſt. 58.

The kindes of it.

Cuſtoms within this Nation are innumerable; and of theſe ſome are general, and run all the Countrey over, and ſo they are but the Common Laws, which are but the Common Cuſtoms of the Countrey: And ſome are particular, uſed and applied onely to ſome Countries, as the Cuſtom of Gavelkind to Kent; others, ſome Cities and Burroughs, as the Cuſtom of Burrow-Engliſh, and the Cuſtoms of London, and other places; and others to Villages, Pariſhes, and Manors, Co. 1. 110. of Copiholds, 68, 69.

2. Preſcription, what.

Preſcription is, where a man claimeth any thing for that, he, his Anceſtors or Predeceſſors, or thoſe whoſe eſtate he hath, have had, or uſed any thing all the time, whereof no minde is to the contrary: And herein, the having, uſing, and enjoying of the thing, according to the thing, is needful to be ſhewed, Co. 4. 32. 9: 56. Terms of the Law. And ſo it is as good as a Grant; for it is Titulus ex uſu & tempore ſubſtantiam capiens ab authoritate Legis, Co. ſuper Littl. 113.

For Anſwer hereunto, theſe things are to be obſerved.

Wherein Cuſtom and Preſcription agree, and wherein they differ.

1. That Cuſtom, Preſcription, and Uſage, are couſin-germans, and much of one nature; and therefore Regularly, what is good in a Preſcription in one, is good in a Cuſtom in many: And ſo on the other ſide, what ever thing (for Subſtance) many men may claim by a Cuſtom, one man may claim and have by a Preſcription. For Preſcription is, where one man, time out of minde, hath right to have, and hath had ſomething of another: But Cuſtom is, where divers have time out of minde, a Right to have, and have had ſomething of another.

Preſcription.

Uſage:

2. Uſage is by continuance of time, the efficient cauſe of Cuſtom and Preſcription both; for there are two Eſſential parts of Cuſtom.

Firſt, Time out of minde.

Secondly, Uſage. viz. a peaceable Uſage without interruption, and to both long continuance is neceſſary.

3. But herein lieth the difference, between Cuſtom and Preſcription.

Firſt, That is and muſt always be alleaged to be in many perſons; and ſo it may be claimed by Copiholders or the Inhabitants of a place: This always in one perſon. That he and his Anceſtors, &c. And if all but one be dead, in the caſe of Cuſtom the Cuſtom is gone.

Secondly, That is always Local, claimed in the Land, as within a Country, City, Pariſh, Manor, or Neighborhood, and goeth with it: But this is perſonal, and goeth always with the perſon.

Thirdly, That needs not by common Intendment, a lawful Commencement; but is applied to things inſenſible, as the Cuſtom of Gavelkind and Burrow-Engliſh: But this muſt have a reaſonable Intendment by ſome Grant, Act, or Agreement.

4. Preſcription extends to Fee-ſimple; for Tenant for life, years, or in tail, cannot preſcribe in what eſtate: But Cuſtom doth extend to all Intereſts and Eſtates whatſoever, Brownl. Rep. 198. Co. 9. 56. Broo. 453. Co. 4. 32. Dyer 114. Co. ſuper Lit. 113. So that they agree in this, That both of them muſt have Poſſeſſion, Uſage, and Time, and the Poſſeſſion muſt be long, continual, and peaceable. They muſt be both preciſely proved by them that claim them; and they muſt be both of them alleaged leaged as they can be proved: But a Preſcription is of more force; for that as to Commons, Ways, Rents, Franchiſes, and the like, will give a man as good a Title, as a Grant will do, Plow. 322. Co. ſuper Littl. 114.

Sect. 2. For Anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

3. What Cuſtoms ſhall be ſaid to be good, and allowable, or not.

1. That a Cuſtom may be good for Subſtance, and bad for the manner of claiming of it.

2. That the Cuſtoms that are good and allowable, muſt have theſe Incidents: Firſt, They muſt be claimed, alleaged, and applied to ſome certain ſpecial Country, City, or place, as, within one County, a Hundred, Manor, Pariſh, City, Burrough, Hamlet, &c. For a Cuſtom alleaged or claimed, to be all England over, is not good. Secondly, They muſt be of long continuance, time out of minde, for a hundred years at leaſt: And therefore an Allegation or a Claim of any thing for any other time, is not good. Thirdly, They muſt be reaſonable according to Common Right, viz. It muſt have ſome appearance of conſideration, and lawful beginning in it; but in this the Law is not exact, for it is ſufficient in caſe of Cuſtom, that it be ex certa cauſa rationabili uſitata, though it cannot be well conceived how it began. But Cuſtoms that are againſt Reaſon, are uſurpations, and not to be admitted. Fourthly, They muſt be certain. Fifthly, They muſt be alleaged in the Affirmative, and not in the Negative.

3. The Cuſtoms that may be claimed, and good in one place, cannot be claimed, or good in another place, as Burrough-Engliſh cannot be claimed in Upland Towns, that are not Cities nor Burroughs: And yet ſuch Upland Towns may alleage a Cuſtom to have a way to their Churches, to make By-laws, or the like.

4. And being ſuch, they have the force of Laws, and may take away the force of other Laws that oppoſe them. For the Rule is in this, Conſuetudo pro Lege quandoque ſervatur in partibus ubi fuerit more utentium approbata, & vicem Legis obtinet; longævi enim temporis & conſuetudinis non eſt vilis authoritas. Longa poſſeſſio ſicut jus, parit jus poſſidendi, & tollit actionem veri domini. Co. ſuper Littl. 110. 113. 6. 60. Dyer 54. 35 H. 6. 25.

5. The Law doth allow for good Cuſtoms, theſe Cuſtoms that do follow, viz:

Common. That the Inhabitants of a Pariſh ſhall have Common in ſuch a Waſte of the Lords.

Modus decimandi. That the Inhabitants of a Pariſh ſhall pay no Tithe, but ſomething in lieu thereof.

Surrender. That if the Tenants of ſuch a Manor will alien his Lands, he muſt do it in the Lords Court by Surrender.

Herriot. That the Lord ſhall have the beſt Beaſt of his Tenant upon his death or Surrender, or elſe that the Lord ſhall enter and ſeize his Tenants Land.

That if any Tenant of ſuch a Manor do alien his Land by Deed or Will, that it muſt be preſented at the next Court of the Manor, or elſe that it be void.

Way. That every Inhabitant of Dale ſhall have a way to Church, Market, &c. over ſuch a ground.

Rent. That if the Freeholders do not pay their Rent, they ſhall loſe their Land.

Infant. That an Infant of ſixteen years old may Alien, or Deviſe his Land; that an Infant at any other age of diſcretion, under one and twenty years, may Alien or Deviſe his Land, ſo he name a certain age.

Woman Covert. That a Woman Covert and her Husband, may after examination of the Wife, by the Steward in the Lords Court make Surrender and diſpoſe of her Land; and that this ſhall binde as a Fine at Common Law.

Common. That one man may Ear and Sowe Land, and then that other men ſhall feed upon it, and have the Paſture of it.

Fiſhing at Sea. That Fiſhers on the Sea, and great Rivers, may go over any mans ground to fiſh.

Officers. That Pariſhioners ſhall chuſe their own Conſtables yearly.

Houſ-boot. That all the Tenants of a Manor, ſhall have and take ſufficient Houſ-boot in the Lords Woods.

Relief. That every Tenant of a Manor ſhall pay two ſhillings for a Relief when it happens.

Pound-breach. That if any of the Lords Tenants break the Pound, he ſhall pay three pounds to the Lord.

That a Jury may be amerced by another Jury, in a Leet for Concealment.

That

That if a ſtrangers Sheep do eat up of the Paſture of the Tenants by day, ſuch Tenants may Fold the ſame Sheep by night upon his Land. Foldage.

That none of the Inhabitants of ſuch a Village ſhall put in their Beaſts into ſuch a place, after the Corn is cut and carried, till Michaelmas. Common.

That the Tenants of the Manor ſhall chuſe their Bedle to be Collector of the Lords Rents. Officer.

That if one be in quiet poſſeſſion forty weeks, he ſhall not be outed, but by the Kings Writ.

That if a Tenant die that hath divers Houſes, which he holdeth of the Lord, that then the Lord ſhall have the beſt Beaſt for an Herriot, and the Parſon the next beſt Beaſt for a Mortuary. Herriot.

That the Heir of the deceaſed ſhall have Heirlooms, and that is the beſt of the Anceſtors goods, of every kinde ſome. Heirlooms.

That if any one finde any Royal fiſh, that he muſt bring him to ſuch a place, or elſe be preſented and amerced. Royal Fiſh.

That he that makes an Affray or Bloodſhed, within ſuch a place, ſhall loſe 20. s. Affray.

That ſuch as Ear Land, may turn the Plough upon the Head-Land of another.

That a Woman ſhall be barred of her Dower, if ſhe receive part of the money which was had for the Land ſold. Joynture or Dower.

That the owner of the ground ſhall have a Land-Bird out of an Eyrie of Cignets.

That a Woman ſhall have all or half her Husbands Land for her life, or Widows eſtate for her Dowre.

That the Lord of a Manor may amerce his Tenants, for doing Treſpaſs to him in his Leet or Court-Baron. Treſpaſs.

That if an Eſtray come into a Hundred, and any of the Reſiants therein eſloyn him, that the Lord may diſtrain him till he have brought it again, ſeems good. Eſloyning an Eſtray.

That men of ſuch a place, may not Deviſe their Land longer then for life; but it ſeems the Statutes have altered this. Sect. 3. Deviſe of Land.

That the Parſon of the Pariſh ſhall always keep a Bore and a Bull for the Pariſh, and every Pariſhioner that hath loſs by his Nonfeſant, may have an Action of the Caſe. Parſon of a Pariſh.

That a Copiholder for life, under a hundred pound, may name his Succeſſor to the Lord. Copiholder.

That every one that doth Land Goods to go by Sea, or carry Goods, and lay on ſuch a ground to be carried by Sea. Toll.

That every one that goeth over ſuch a ground ſhall pay a certain ſum of money for Toll. Wharffage.

That all that hold Land of the Lord of the Manor that hath a Griſt Mill, ſhall grinde at that Mill, and the Lord muſt grinde it. Grinde at a Mill.

That the Lord of a Manor may grant Copihold eſtates in Fee, tail, or for life, and in Poſſeſſion or Reverſion. Copihold Manor.

That the Copiholders may have Common in the Lords, or in anothers Soil. To grant Eſtates.

That the Inhabitants of Dale ſhall have Common in a great Waſte. Common.

That ſuch a Country or Hundred ſhall pay no Tithe. Tithe.

Theſe and ſuch like Cuſtoms as theſe, are good. Co. 9. 58. 6. 60. 4. 55. 5. 84. upon Littl. 139. 140. 110. 112. Hubbard Rep. 113. 129. 122. 229. 301. 313. 370. March. Rep. f. 3. 15. 16. 28. 54. 83. 91. Goldsb. Rep. f. 102, 103.

6. All theſe and ſuch like Cuſtoms that are good for the Subſtance and Matter, may be yet bad for the manner, if they be uncertain, or mixed with any other Cuſtom that is unreaſonable, and ſo entire, that they cannot be ſundred, may be bad for this, Brownl 2 part. f. 198.

7. The Cuſtoms of London, the Iſle of Man, of Halifax, of Kent, as Gavelkind, and of Towns, as Burrow-Engliſh, and the reſt, are allowed good, Hubb. Rep. f. 158. Brownl. Rep. f. 284. 217. 8 H. 6. 11. 3 H. 7. 9. March. Rep. f. 54, 55. Burrow-Engliſh. Gavelkind.

8. Thoſe Cuſtoms that are unreaſonable, and againſt Common Right, are void and diſallowed, as are theſe following.

That Fiſhers ſhall dig and fix ſtakes in other mens ground to tie their Nets. To fiſh.

That if one break the Pound, he ſhall forfeit three pound to the Lord, though he be a ſtranger. Pound breach.

That

Woman Covert. That a Woman Covert may devise her Land by Will.

Fraternity. That one Guild or Fraternity should make another.

Heriot. That the Lord of such a Manor shall have the best Beast of a stranger, Levant and Couchant on his Tenants ground at his Tenants death, if the Tenants have essoyned his best Beast.

Sell Wood. That the Lords Tenant may sell as much Wood as he will in the Lords Woods.

Distress. That a man may distrain anothers Cattle, Damage fesant in his ground, and keep them till the other give him what he will have.

Make Leases. That the Lords Bailiffs or Steward may make Leases of Freeholds.

Common. That the Inhabitants of a Village shall have Common in anothers ground, Ratione commorantiæ & residentiæ, in the Houses.

To make Leases. That all Leases, Devises, or Estates, made by him that hath the Fee-simple for above six years, are void.

To Amerce. So that if a Verdict in a Leet by a Petit-Jury be found false, by a Grand-Jury true, that the Petit-Jury shall be amerced.

To beat one. That one may beat another, that doth come upon his ground, or burn anothers House wherein his Goods are.

To retain Rent. That the Lessee shall retain his Rent, if the Lessor will not repair the Houses.

To be free from the Leet. That if men be sworn to the Constable, they shall be exempted from coming to any Leet.

Common. That no Commoner shall put in his Beasts into the Common, till the Lord put in his first.

To take away a Distress. That the Lords Bailiff may take the Beasts from the Kings Officers, distreined for the Kings debt, and put them three days in Pound, and then if the party agree, he may have them again.

To put Beasts in the Lords Pound. That every Tenant that doth distrain any Beasts Damage-fesant, shall put the Beasts in the Lords Pound, or else be amerced.

Estray. That if an Estray be unruly, he may be fettered.

To take the best Beast That the Lord shall have the best Beast of his Tenant, except it be as a Heriot.

To take Tithe. That all the Cattle of the Parish shall be cast together, and the Parson shall have the Tenth of the whole.

Copihold Manor. That a Copiholder for life shall sell all his Trees on his Copihold, seems not good; and yet this by a Custom in a Manor, some say is good, but not good by a Prescription.

That a man that dieth in one Parish, and is carried to be buried in another Parish, shall pay a certain sum to the Church-wardens of the Parish where he dies.

Tithe. That one Parish shall not pay Tithe, or any thing in lieu of it: But this Custom claimed for a Country, may be good.

All these and such like Customs as these are void, Co. upon Littl. 139, 140. Co. 5. 84. Dyer 199. 358 21 H. 7. 2. Co. 4. 6. Hubb. Rep. 471.

So that if any Tenant of the Manor shall marry his Daughter, without leave of the Lord, he shall pay a Fine to him, Co. upon Littl. 139.

To cut Grass to straw the Church. 8. It is a good Custom to alleage, that the Church-wardens or the Clerk, may cut Grass in the Soil of another, to straw the Church, March. Rep. f. 16.

To be discharged of Repair of a Church. 9. That the Inhabitants of such a place, that they have a Chappel at Ease, and use to Bury at the Mother Church, and have been used to repair part of the Wall of the Church, and for this to be discharged of the repair of the rest of the Church; or that they repair the Chappel of Ease, and therefore are discharged of the repair of the Church, are good Customs, March. Rep. f. 91. 150.

10. Custom, that none shall use the Trade of a Dier in such a Town, without leave of the Lord or his Bailiff: Or to have a Fair in his Town for ten days, and none in the next Town, during that time. That none shall Bake any Bread to sell in the Lords Bake-house. That all Ships laden and unladen in such a Haven, shall be unladen in such a place. These Customs have been allowed good, Co. 8. 125. 2 H. 4. 9. 4.

11. That

11. That the Steward of a Manor may make By-laws or Ordinances, for the well-ordering of the Common, and aſſeſs a penalty on the Breakers thereof, and diſtrain for it, is a good Cuſtom, March. Rep. f. 28. So a Cuſtom to make By-laws in, or out of a Court, by a Jury, or without a Jury by a Neighborhoods common conſent may be good. But ſee for this afterwards. To make By-laws.

12. Cuſtom, That none ſhall put in his Beaſts in the Common, till the Lord put in his: That none ſhall carry by Land but in his Coach, or by Water but in his Boat, theſe are not good; and yet a Cuſtom, That the Lord ſhall buy firſt in a Market or Fair, it ſeems is good: But a Cuſtom is good in many places, where a Preſcription will not be good. As a Preſcription, that a Copiholder of Inheritance may fell the Trees, is not good; but ſuch a Cuſtom amongſt Copiholders, is good: So if a Tenant that is a Freeholder, preſcribe to have Wind-falls, and all the Trees withered in the top; and if the Lord make them in Cole, to have ſo much in money; this is not good in a Preſcription in one perſon: But being alleaged as a Cuſtom, and to be burnt in the houſe, is good as Appendant, Brownl. 2 Rep. 198.

Out of all which may be collected, That no Cuſtom can be good that hath not theſe Properties in it,

1. It muſt be ſomewhat reaſonable and congruous, for Reaſon is ſaid to be the Father, and Congruence the Mother of it.

2. There muſt be uſage in the caſe, the thing claimed muſt be oft done before, for Cuſtom is ſaid to be Conſtitutio ex diverſis actionibus ſæpe iteratis; hence it is, that Uſage is ſaid to be the Nurſe of Cuſtom.

3. This Uſage muſt be time out of memory, for otherwiſe the other two will not ſerve, Brownl. 2 part. f. 198.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. That a Preſcription may be good for the matter of it, and yet void for the manner of it: Sect. 4. What Preſcriptions ſhall be allowed to be good, or not.

And for this, theſe things are to be known.

Firſt, A Tenant in Fee-ſimple may preſcribe in his own name, but a Tenant for life, years, by Elegit, or the like Tenant, cannot preſcribe in his own name, but muſt preſcribe in the name of him in Reverſion, Co. 6. 60.

Secondly, If a Copiholder preſcribe for any Rent, or profit to be taken out of the Land of another, and not out of the Manor, he cannot do it in his own name, but muſt do it in the Lords name, and he cannot preſcribe againſt the Lord: But he may alleage a Cuſtom within the Manor, for himſelf, againſt the Lord, Dyer 70. Co. 4. 32.

Thirdly, If one that is Lord of a Manor preſcribe in his own name, and the name of his Tenants at will, it ſeems it is not good, Broo. Preſcription 3.

Fourthly, If one preſcribe for himſelf, and all thoſe who had his Tenure before him, this is not good, Broo. Preſcription 15.

Fifthly, If one preſcribe that all the occupiers of a ground are to be charged with the fencing of it; this is not good, for it is too general: But he muſt ſay, All thoſe whoſe eſtate he hath, and he have been uſed, &c. And yet ſuch a Preſcription, That all thoſe that are occupiers for payment of money have been diſcharged of Tithes, M. 37, 38 Eliz. Co. B. Curia.

Sixthly, One that hath onely an office for life, it ſeems cannot preſcribe for profits thereunto appurtenant in him, and his predeceſſors, Dyer 10. 40.

Seventhly, One cannot Regularly preſcribe in the Negative, To pay no Toll, but he muſt ſay, They have been uſed to buy and ſell, without payment of Toll, Broo. Preſcription 17, 44.

Eightly, When the Preſcription is for ſuch a thing as may be Appendant or Regardant to a Manor, it may be in him that doth preſcribe, and thoſe whoſe eſtate he hath: But if the Preſcription be for ſuch things, as cannot be granted without a Fine or a Deed, as a Villain in Groſs, Hundred Rent, or the like, there it muſt be in him and his Anceſtors, whoſe Heir he is, Broo. Incident 39. 19 H. 6. 34. 12 H. 7. 8.

Ninthly, One cannot (as it ſeems) preſcribe for eight loads of Wood to be cut and and taken as appertaining to a Meſſuage: But one may preſcribe for Eſtovers to be imployed upon repair of the Meſſuage, or to be ſpent in it, Brownl Rep. 1 part. f. 35.

Tenthly, A Commoner (as it ſeems) may preſcribe thus, That he hath Libertatem venandi, the Coneys in the Common, &c. and this is good, M. 9 Jac. B. R.

Eleventhly, That the Lord of the Manor, for the time being, hath had and been uſed to have the beſt Beaſt, &c. Dyer 199.

Twelfthly, If it be for a way, through a private ground, he muſt ſay, Unde, à quo, ad quem & per quem, 39 *H.*6. 6. 28 *H.*6. 9. 20 Aſſ. 18.

Thirteenthly, If one preſcribe to be diſcharged of Tithes in kinde, for payment of about a peny an Acre of the Land, or for payment of not above one peny an Acre of Land; theſe Preſcriptions are void for incertainty, Allens caſe, M. 7 Jac. Co. B. By the Court.

2. Theſe Preſcriptions that follow, are inſtances and examples of good and bad, and they are particular, as they follow, viz.

For the Lord of a Manor. For the Lord of a Manor, To amerce his Tenants in his Leet or Court-Baron, if they do commit Treſpaſs againſt him, in the opinion of ſome; or to diſtrain for Amercements and Fines in a Leet or Court-Baron; or to have a free Warren in any of his Tenants grounds; or to have a Park belonging to his Manor, or twenty ſhillings Fine of all that do make an affray or bloodſhed within his Manor; or to have a Fine upon the Alienation of his Tenant; or to have a certain ſum of money of all the Reſciants within his Manor, pro certo Letæ; or ſo, and that he hath been uſed to diſtrain for it; or that all his Tenants muſt bake at his Bake-houſe, or grind at his Mill, and not elſwhere; or to have the folding of all the Sheep in the Village, within and without his Seigniory, and that none may Fold but him; or to have a Harriot after the death of every of his Tenants of his Manor for life, or years; theſe may be good Cuſtoms. But the Lord of a Manor may not preſcribe to have a Harriot of every one that doth die within the Manor, for a ſtranger may die there; this is not good. So to have three pound of any man-ſtranger or other that ſhall make a Pound breach: But to have it of his Tenants onely, may be good. So to have every mans Beaſts that come within the Manor, is not good. So to deliver the Beaſts that are diſtrained and take Bond; theſe and ſuch like are not good Preſcriptions, 12 *H.*4.8. Dyer 322. 14 *H.*4. 2. 3 *H.*6.13. Broo. Incidents 39. *Co.*6.77. 21 *H.*7.40. Co. 8.125. Broo. Preſcription 16. 9 *H.*6.44. 13 *H.*7.6. *D. & St.*55.

For a Parſon of a Pariſh. A Parſon of the Pariſh may preſcribe to a certain ſum of money for every one Buried in the Church: And a Parſon of a Pariſh may preſcribe for Tithes out of his Pariſh, but he cannot preſcribe for Tithes within his Pariſh, for that is due by the very Law without Preſcription, New Book of Entries, f. 9. Broo. 85. See my Book of Tithes.

For the Lord Chief Juſtice. The Chief Juſtices may preſcribe to diſpoſe the Offices incident to their Offices for the life of the Officer placed by them, and good, 22 Ed 4. 18.

For a Sheriff. The Sheriff cannot preſcribe to have of every one within his Leet twelve pence, for his good will or reward, nor a ſum of mony for holding of his Leet in ſuch a place.

For Fiſhers. Fiſhers may preſcribe to draw or dry their Nets upon the grounds adjoyning to the River, 8 *Ed.*4. 18. Dyer 267.

For any Man. Any Man may preſcribe for a Court, a Way, an Office, Rent, or ſum of money, Common, Eſtovers, a Waiff, an Eſtray, an Advowſon Appendant to a Manor, or Land to an Office, Wreck, Treaſure Trove, Market, Fair, Warren: But one cannot preſcribe to Land, or to the Goods of Felons, Outlawed perſons, or Fugitives, Ajour & Waſte, Deodands, or Conuſans of Pleas. And yet one may preſcribe Tenere placita in his own Court, and that ſhall be good, Plow. 322. *Co.*5.109. 9.27. 11.86. 1 *H.*7. 23. Littl. 40. D. & St. 24. Co. upon *Littl.*288. Brownl. Rep. 1 *part.*221. 213. 216. 35. 198. 217. 219. 2 *part.*329. 64. 101. 9 *March. Rep. f.*83. So any one may preſcribe in all ſuch like caſes as theſe. To have Toll of every Barge that ſhall paſs along ſuch a River, 21 *H.*7. 16. So that he onely hath the paſſage, and is to carry from ſuch a place to ſuch a place, and none others, Dyer 117. M. 5 Jac. Adjudg B. R. So that another muſt ſcoure the Ditches, and make the Mounds and Fences between him and me, Broo. Preſcription 16.

So

So that if a mans Beaſts may eſcape in the next ground, and be there Damage-feſant, and that they may not be taken Damage-feſant, if the ſtranger do make freſh purſuit after them, Bro. Preſcrip. 25. So to have a Rent out of anothers Land, and to diſtrain for it, is a good Preſcription, 19 *H.*6.34. 13 *Ed.*4.16. So to have a Leet or Court-Baron, and to diſtrain for Fines, Pains, and Amerciaments there, Bro. 34. So to ſtop or turn water, to repair his Mill or Banks, Bro. Preſcrip. 44. So to fold the Sheep at night, that do feed in his ground by day, 5 H. 7. 9. That the chief Pledg within the Leet ſhall pay him Ten ſhillings for all the Pledges, and that he ſhall have Contribution againſt the reſt of the Pledges, 9 H. 6. 44. So that he is Keeper of ſuch a Wood; and that every one that hath Common there, is to pay him Twelve pence a year; and he that hath a Gate, a Hen yearly, to look to it, 11 *H.*6. 10. Pre. Bro. 95. So to have a Penny of every one that doth go through his ground, 5 *H.*7.9.

But to have a ſum of money for going upon the High-way, is not good, unleſs it be to repair a Bridg there. So to have a Fair or Market, and ſet up a Booth in anothers Land, Bro. Preſcrip. 97, 98. So to have a ſum of money for Common, and to diſtrain for it being behind, Bro. Preſ. 1. So to have two Buſhels of Corn for ſuffering a Water-courſe to come to ſuch a Mill. Dyer 322. So to dig in a mans ſeveral ground next the Sea, to make Bulwarks againſt the Enemies, Dyer 60. So to pay a ſmall ſum of money in lieu of Tythes; or to be diſcharged of Tythes for a ſmall Tythe in lieu of payment of part, as the Tenth Fleece of Wooll in ſatisfaction of the Locks of Wooll, 36, 37 Eliz. Co. B. Jeſſops Caſe. So to pay a Buck and Doe for all the Tythes of a Park, or the Left-ſhoulder of every Deer, Mich. 4 Car. B. R. So to have an Iſle, or Seats in a Church, for repairing it. New Book of Entries. Modus decimandi.

3. Theſe Preſcriptions that follow, are particular Inſtances and Examples alſo of both kinds, but moſt of them bad. As, To be quit of Tythes in Dale, when every one there beſides him doth pay Tythes. For a Lay-man cannot preſcribe in Non decimando; but he may preſcribe in Modo decimandi. Alſo a Spiritual perſon, or his Farmer, may preſcribe in Non decimando. So to preſcribe to be diſcharged of Tythes in one place, becauſe he doth pay Tythe in another; or for one thing, becauſe he doth pay Tythe of another: As of Lambs, becauſe he payeth Tythe for Wooll; or of Cattel, becauſe he payeth Two pence for every Cow; theſe are not good, Co. 2.44. Fleetwoods Caſe, 7 Jac. Co. B. M. 5 Jac. B.R. So to preſcribe to have ſuch a Common in anothers Soil, as to exclude the Owner of the Soil all the year long, this is not good So for Eſtovers, or Fiſhing. And yet one may preſcribe for Solam Veſturam, and exclude the Owner for part of the year. So to preſcribe to Common without number, and not to ſay of Beaſts levant and couchant, or appurtenant to ſuch a thing, or to have Common appendant to Meadow or Paſture, or the like, it ſeems not good, Co. upon Lit. 122. See more in Common. Mar. Rep. 38. Brownl. Rep. 2. 45. 101. 65. Co. 4. 37. Sect. 5. For Tythe.

So a Preſcription to have a corporate or compounded thing to belong to a corporate thing, or an incorporate to an incorporate, are not good, Co. 4.37. Plow. 168, 26 *H.*8.4. Or one thing belong to another that by Law is not appendant, as Waſtes to a Leet, or Common to a Fair, or the like. Or for a thing not preſcribable, or againſt any Law, as to have Silva cædua, or the like: Or that is malum in ſe, as to be drunk, or the like: Or malum prohibitum, as to make a Pound-breach, or to lay Blocks in the High-way. Or to have one thing as belonging to another time out of mind, when the thing to which it doth belong is within the time of memory, as a Fee to an Office newly erect. All theſe Preſcriptions are naught, Co. 4.37. 9 *H.*6.44. 42 Ed. 3.4. Co. ſuper Lit. 115. Bro. Preſcrip. 2. Doct. & Stu 24. Co 11. 89: Dyer 10. 18.

So a Preſcription or Cuſtom, that an Infant may alien when he can meaſure a Yard of Cloth, is void for incertainty. So if one preſcribe to ſell the Beaſts he doth diſtrain Damage-feſant, or to keep them till the Owner of the Cattel pay him Three pounds, or to keep them until the Owner make him amends; or that he ſhall make himſelf amends, or the like: Theſe are not good Cuſtoms or Preſcriptions, Dyer 276. 8 *Ed.*4.18. Co. ſuper Lit. 140. 21 H. 7. So to preſcribe to do a thing one may do by Law, as diſtrain for Rent, Service, or the like, is void, Plow. 545. So if one do preſcribe againſt that which another hath by Preſcription; as to ſtop his Light or Way, or diſturb his Leet, or the like; this is not good, Co. 9.56. Bro. Preſcrip. 41: So to be diſcharged from ſervice to a Leet, becauſe he is Conſtable; from paying Tythe of one Land, becauſe he doth ſow, ſever, and pay the Tythe of other Land, and the like, are not good Preſcriptions.

And out of all theſe things may be collected,

1. That no Preſcription can be good, that hath not theſe properties in it. 1. That it be reaſonable for the thing to be had or taken; and in the creation, that it may be conceived how at the firſt it did begin. 2. That it be certain. 3. That it be lawful to be done, which is claimed.

5. How a Cuſtom or Preſcription ſhall be taken.

2. That which in many will be good or bad in a Cuſtom, that regularly in one will be good or bad in a Preſcription. For Cuſtoms and Preſcriptions both, they are for the moſt part taken and expounded ſtrictly, and muſt be ſtrictly purſued. And therefore if a Cuſtom be, that an Infant may make a Feoffment; he may not by this Cuſtom make a Leaſe and Releaſe, or declare his Will upon the Feoffment. And yet the Cuſtoms of London, and Gavelkind, are expounded favorably. Dyer 262.196. 11 H. 4. 29. 21 Ed. 4.24.

6. Where and how a Cuſtom or Preſcription may be deſtroyed and gone, or not. Cuſtom.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. Where the Cuſtom doth run with the Seigniory, as that the Tenant ſhall pay a Fine, Heriot, or the like to the Lord, or be his Collector of his Rents, or the like; there Unity of poſſeſſion in the Lord will extinguiſh it. But if the Cuſtom run with the Tenants in the Land, as the Cuſtoms of Gavelkind, and the like, there it is otherwiſe. 14 H. 4. 2.

2. For a Cuſtom of Common, how it may be extinct or ſuſpended by Unity of poſſeſſion or otherwiſe, See Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 181. 174. 120. 47. 2 par. 209, 210. 297.

3. How Copihold-Cuſtoms may be gone, See Co. of Copihold 77, 78, 79. and my Book of Copihold, fol. 148, 149. And ſee here Suſpenſion and Extinguiſhment.

Preſcription.

4. And a Preſcription may be determine divers ways alſo. As, 1. by a Grant; as if I have a Rent, Common, or the like profit out of anothers ground, and I take a Grant from him of it; this will determine it, 21 H 7 5. 2. By Unity of Poſſeſſion; as if I have Common out of anothers ground, and after I purchaſe the ground it ſelf, the Common is gone. See Extinguiſhment. 3. By alteration of the ſtate of things: As if I preſcribe to Eſtovers to ſpend in the Hall of my houſe, and after I convert this Hall into a Kitchin or Malt-houſe, it ſeems the Preſcription is gone. And yet if one have Eſtovers belonging to his houſe, and he alter any of the Rooms or Chambers, the Eſtovers doth continue ſtill. And if one have a Water-courſe by Preſcription to his Mill or Conduits, or Windows to his Houſe; and the Tucking-Mill is turned to a Griſt-Mill, or the Houſe be fallen or turned into a Barn; yet the Preſcription doth continue, Co. 4. 87, So if a Corporation that have a good Preſcription, change the name of their Corporation, yet the Preſcription doth continue, Dyer 270. Mich. 2 Jac. Agreed per Curiam. And if a man have been uſed to pay a Shoulder of a Buck for all manner of Tythes of his Park, and after it is diſparked and ſown to Corn, the Preſcription is gone, and Tythes muſt be paid in kind. But if ſome of the Park only be ſown, and the reſt remain a Park ſtill, it is otherwiſe. Shipdams Park, 37 Eliz. M. Brown. 1 par 31. 4. By alteration of the payment. If there be an antient Preſcription of payment, and of latter time the payment hath varied from the uſage, this will not hurt. Co. upon Lit. 114. by Baron Henden at Glouceſter-Aſſiſes, 17 Car. 5. By interruption in the paſſage; as if I have an antient Way to my houſe by Preſcription, and for twenty years together it hath been ſtopped, or I have had another Way ſet out for me which I have uſed, yet my Preſcription is not gone. So if one have a Modus Decimandi by Preſcription, and he hath of late for divers years paid Tythe in kind; this doth not determine the Preſcription. But otherwiſe it is when there is an Interruption of the Right, as in caſe of Extinguiſhment by Unity, Co. upon Lit. 114. See more in Tythes, Franchiſes, Rents, Copihold. Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 31, 32, 35: 2 par. 35:

By-laws

Sect. 6. By-laws, what.

By-laws are Orders made by the common consent of a Town, Parish, or Corporation, for the good of the place, and of them that make them, to tie them further then the publike Law doth bind. Of this sort are the Ordinances of the City of London, and of other Incorporations. Co. 6. 63. 5. 63. Kitch. 45.

What By-laws are good, or not; and who shall be bound by them, or not.

For the Answer of this, and the opening of this Learning, these things are to be known.

1. That the Inhabitants of a Village or Town, without any Custom or Prescription, may amongst themselves by common agreement, and out of, and without any Court, make any By-laws or Ordinances for the publike good, as the Repair of the the High-ways, Bridges, Church, or the like. And in this case the greater part, without Custom, shall bind the rest. But if it be for their own private profit, as for the well-ordering of their Commons, or the like; there without a Custom they cannot make By-laws. And if it be in such a case, the greater part cannot bind the lesser part, without a special Custom for it. Co. 5. 63. Hob. Rep. pl. 266. 44 Ed. 3. 19. Dyer 322. 21 H. 7. 20. 40. 11 H. 7. 13. 21 Ed. 4. 54. 8 Ed. 2. tit. Assise, 413.

2. Corporations by Prescription or Patent, may without question make Ordinances or Constitutions for publike good, without any Custom or Prescription. But if it be for any thing that concerns themselves only, some say they must have Custom or Prescription for it: Others say, by the very incorporating it is included and incident, as to sue and be sued, so to make By-laws for the better government of it self. And this I take to be the Law. Hob. Rep. f. 182. Co. 5. 63. Doct. & Stu. 74.

3. If a Lord of a Leet or Court-Baron claim a power to make By-laws in, or belonging to his Court, he must claim it by Prescription, and prove the usage by the making of those By-laws, and the punishment of offenders for the breaking of them. Brownl. Rep. 2 par. 180. Goldsb. Rep. f. 79.

4. In these cases where they have power, they may make an Order for a Rate to raise money to Repair, or the like: And they may appoint a common Officer to receive it, and give him power to distrain for it; who after demand may do it. Or they may make an Order, That such a man as is bound to repair, shall do it; or upon any man to do such a thing, and put a penalty on his head if he do it not, and appoint an Officer to levy it; and all this without any special Custom for it. And it is best to give the Penalty for not repairing of High-ways, to the Lord; and for not repairing of Churches, to the Churchwardens. 44 Ed. 3. 19. 11 H. 7. 14.

5. So by the very Common-Law, the Churchwardens with consent of the major part of a Parish, may tax the Inhabitants and all others that have Land in the Parish, towards the Repair of the Church; and they may make a By-law for the levying of it; and all this without any Custom alleaged for it. Co. 5. 66. 11 H. 7. 14. 21 H. 7. 20.

6. These Taxes and By-laws will not charge strangers, and those that dwell out of the Town, Village, or Precinct of the Leet, that hath not Land there; except it be in London, and some special places and cases for publike good. One Parish therefore cannot by a By-law bind another Parish. Co. 5. 63. Brownl. 2 par. 180. 22 H. 7. 40. 44 Ed. 3. 18.

7. By-laws made for a Parish, must be such as are for the common good of the Parish; or else they will not bind any body within, or without the Parish. And therefore such as are made for the good of the Lord of the Manor only, as that no man shall carry Hay on his Land; or for the good of one of the Parish only, as that no man shall break the Hedg of J. S. or the like; it seems these are not good. Goldsb. 79. pl. 13.

8. By-laws also that are against Common reason, or the Publike good, or the Fundamental Laws, are not good, or binding to any persons within or without the place, be it in a Corporation or elsewhere. And therefore a By-Law with a Penalty of Imprisonment, is adjudged void, Co. 5. 64. The Town of Newbury made a By-law, That none should exercise any Trade there, that had not been Apprentice there for seven years, and lived five years within the Town; was adjudged void, Hil.

14 Jac. B. R. The City of London made a By-law, That none there of ſuch a Trade ſhould take to his Apprentice the ſon of an Alien; and that the Obligations and Covenants for the binding of him ſhould be void. This will not make the Aſſurances void. Trin. 33 Eliz. 49. Degrel verſ. Powk's Caſe.

9. No By-law made by any Corporation againſt the Kings Prerogative, or the common profit of the people, is to be allowed or put in uſe, till it be allowed by the Lord Chancellor, Lord Treaſurer, or Chief Juſtices of either Benches, or three of them. Stat. 9 H. 7. 7. Co. 11. 53. Co. 63, 64.

10. When it is ſo allowed by them, if it be unreaſonable, or againſt Law, it may be afterwards diſallowed by the Judges, Co. 11. 54. See more, Stat. 33 H. 8. 27. 28 H. 8. 5. 19 H. 7. 7. See Ordinance. Brownl. 2 par. 284.

CHAP. LXII.

Of Debet and Solet, Detainer or Retainer, and Departure out of the Realm.

Debet and Solet, what.

Debet and Solet are certain formal words uſed in Writs, which are not to be omitted in them, that are uſed according to the diverſity of the caſe. As if one ſue to recover any Right whereof his Anceſtor was diſſeiſed by the Tenant or his Anceſtor, then Debet is uſed only in the Writ: But if he ſue for any thing that is now firſt of all denied, then he uſeth both theſe words. And ſo it is of Debet and Detinet. Regiſt. 140.

Detainer and Retainer.

Detainer or Retainer, is the keeping of a thing in the nature of a Pledg, till he ſatisfie a Duty. So an Inn-keeper may keep his Gueſts Horſe, till he be paid for his own and his Horſes meat: A Tailor the Garment made, till he be paid for the making of it: A Sheerman or Dyer the Cloth, till he be paid for ſheering or dying, as a Pledg only, Co. 8. 147. See Action of the Caſe, and Detinue, in my Firſt Part of the Marrow of the Law; and in Victuallers. Brownl. 2 part.

Departure out of the Realm.

It is ſaid by ſome, That if one depart out of the Realm without Licence, he doth forfeit his goods. But we find no ſuch Law at this day, nor any Reſtraint herein, but that men may go and come as they pleaſe, if there be no ſpecial Prohibition by the Lord Protector. But ſuch a Law there was, That none might go out of the Realm without the Kings leave, and ſome puniſhed in the Star Chamber for going without leave; which is repealed. But it is ſaid, if a Subject be out of the Land, and commanded home by the King, and he refuſe, that he may ſeiſe his goods. See for this, Stat. 5 R. 2. cap. 2. 7 R. 2. c. 14. 13 R. 2. c. 20. 21 Jac. 28. Cromp. Jur. 31. 84. 109. Dyer 375.

CHAP. LXIII.

Of a Deed.

A Deed is a Writing or Inſtrument written in paper or parchment, ſealed and delivered; to prove and teſtifie the Agreement of the Parties whoſe Deed it is, to the things contained in the Deed. Terms of the Law. Co. ſuper Lit. 35. A Deed, what.

All Deeds are either Indented, or Poll. The Deed indented (which is that which is called an Indenture) is, when the paper or parchment is cut and indented. And it is defined to be a Writing containing a Conveyance, Bargain, Contract, Covenant or matter of Agreement between two or more, and is indented in the top or ſide, anſwerable to another that likewiſe doth comprehend the ſelf-ſame matter. And this is ſo called, becauſe it is ſo indented; for albeit it be called an Indenture, and begin in theſe words, Hæc Indentura, &c. yet if it be not actually indented, it is no Indenture: And of the other ſide, if it be not ſo called, or theſe words be omitted, yet if it be indented, it is an Indenture. And this was antiently called Charta cyrographata vel communis, becauſe each party had his part. Terms of the Law. Co. ſuper Lit. 229, 143. 38 H. 6. 23. The kinds. Indenture. Deed-Poll.

The Deed-Poll is that which is plain without any indenting, when the parchment or paper is polled or cut even. And this was antiently called Charta de una parte: And this is ſingle, and but one; which the Feoffee, Grantee, or Leſſee for the moſt part hath.

The Deed indented is alſo ſometimes Bipartite, i. of two parts, when there are two parties, and two parts of the Deed. And then commonly the Feoffor, Grantor, or Leſſor hath the one part, and the Feoffee, Grantee, or Leſſee hath the other part. And ſometimes it is Tripartite, i. when there are three parties and three parts; and then commonly each party hath a part of the Indenture. And ſometimes it is Quadripartite, &c. And according to the parts, they do ſeal interchangeably one to another.

And amongſt theſe parts, the part ſealed by the Feoffor, Grantor, or Leſſor, is ſaid to be the Principal or Original; and the reſt are called but Acceſſary, Counterparts or Copies; and yet all of them in Law do make up but one entire Deed. Lit. ſect. 371, 372. Counterpart.

Theſe Deeds alſo are ſometimes in the Firſt perſon, as, Know ye that I A. B &c. And albeit it be an Indenture ſo made, yet it is good enough. And ſometimes they are made in the Third perſon; as, This Indenture witneſſeth that A. B. hath granted, &c. The Deed-Poll is uſually made in the Firſt perſon; but if it be made in the Third perſon, it is good enough. Bro. Oblig. 51. Co. ſuper Lit. 35, 36. Weſt. Symb. lib. 1. par. 1. ſect 46.

There are divers other diſtinctions of Deeds: For ſome are publike that do concern Countries, ſome of the Prince; and ſome are private between particular perſons, and thoſe private perſons or Subjects: And theſe only are intended here. And of theſe ſome are abſolute, and ſome conditional; ſome are inrolled, and ſome not inrolled; ſome concern the Realty, and ſome the Perſonalty; and ſome are mixt. And ſome of theſe alſo contain matter of Grant or Gift; amongſt which Feoffments, Gifts, Bargains and Sale, Grants and Leaſes are the chief. And ſome of them contain matter of Diſcharge, as Releaſes, Acquittances, and Defeaſances, and ſuch like: And ſome of them contain other matter, as Confirmations, and ſuch like. Or as others diſtinguiſh; ſome of them are conſtitutive and making, and ſome are remiſſory or liberatory. Sect. 1.

And

And the firſt ſort are ſome of them creating, (i.) ſuch whereby any Eſtate, Property or Obligation not having eſſence before, is newly raiſed and created; as the firſt Grant of a Rent, Common, Way, &c. Eſtate tail, for life, years, &c. And ſome of them are conveying, (i.) ſuch by which Eſtates, Properties, and the like, being already created, are conveyed to others; as Feoffments, Bargains and Sales, Grants over, or Aſſignments, Surrenders, and the like. Thoſe that are of the laſt ſort, are ſuch as do deſcribe and teſtifie ſome precedent Contract for a duty or fact to be paid, performed or done, releaſed or diſcharged: Of which ſort are all Acquittances, Releaſes, and other ſuch like matters of Diſcharge.

Note. But here by the way two things are to be obſerved.

1. That there may be, and are divers other kind of Deeds beſides thoſe which are named before: For every Agreement put in writing ſealed and delivered, becometh a Deed; and Attornments, Exchanges, Surrenders, Partitioners, Authorities, Commiſſions, Licences, Revocations, and the like, are uſually made, given, done and granted by Deed. And there are divers other Inſtruments concerning Merchants, and other affairs. If therefore any of theſe be done by Deed, ſuch a Deed is for the moſt part ſubject to the Rules of Deeds herein laid down. See Weſt. Sym. 1 part.

2. Albeit that Feoffments, Gifts, Bargains, Leaſes, Attornments, Exchanges, Surrenders, and ſuch like things, may in divers caſes be as well made and done without, as with a Deed: Yet if a man will make his Claim to any thing given or granted by ſuch Feoffment, Gift, &c. by Deed, the Deed muſt be ſuch a Deed as is a good and perfect Deed by the Rules herein after laid down.

3. The parts of a Deed. In every Deed or Writing there are two parts conſiderable: 1. The external or material part, i. the parchment or paper, wax and writing. 2. The internal or intellectual part, i. the ſenſe, force, virtue and operation of the words and matter therein contained. And in the writing, context or matter contained in divers Deeds, as Feoffments, Grants, Leaſes, and the like, there are certain formal or orderly parts which make up the whole; of which the Law doth take ſpecial notice; Co. ſuper Lit. 6. 229. 2, 3. As,

1. The Premiſſes; the office whereof is rightly to ſet down the name of the Feoffor, Grantor, Leſſor, &c. Feoffee, Grantee, Leſſee, &c. and to comprehend the certainty of the thing granted or leaſed. And herein in ſome Deeds there is alſo a Recital of ſome things; and in ſome Deeds an Exception of ſome part of the thing granted before by the Deed.

2. The Habendum; the office whereof is to name again the Feoffee, Leſſee, &c. and to ſet forth what Eſtate he ſhall have, and for what time he ſhall hold the thing given or granted.

3. There is ſet down and expreſſed upon what terms and conditions the Eſtate of the thing granted ſhall be held. And therefore there is ſometimes contained therein a Tenendum, to ſet forth by what Tenure the Grantee ſhall hold the Land granted. 2. A Reſervation or Reddendum, to ſet forth by what Rent he ſhall hold the Land. 3. A Condition. 4. A Warranty. 5. Covenants. 6. The Concluſion after this manner, In cujus rei teſtimonium, &c. Wherein is ſet forth the Date of the Deed, containing the day, moneth and year, and the ſtile of the King, or year of our Lord. And all theſe are ſometimes contained under the Premiſſes, and the Habendum.

4. The nature of a Deed indented, and a Deed-poll; with the difference that is between them. All the parts of a Deed indented, in Judgment of Law do make up but one Deed: and every part is of as great force as all the parts together; and they are eſteemed the mutual Deeds of either party, and either party may be bound by either part of the ſame. Plow. 134. 38 H. 6. 24, 25. Lit. ſect. 370. 9 H. 6. 35. 35 H. 6. 34.

And the words of the Indenture are the words of either party. And albeit they be ſpoken as the words of the one party only, yet they are not his words alone, but may be applied to the other party, if they do more properly belong to him: For, every word that is doubtful, ſhall be applied and expounded to be ſpoken by him to whom they will beſt agree according to the intent of the parties; and they ſhall not be taken more ſtrongly againſt one, or beneficially for the other, as the words of a Deed-Poll ſhall.

more

If therefore A. by Indenture enfeoff B. upon Condition, and then doth enter for the Condition broken; in this caſe it hath been held, that A. in his pleading may ſhew forth the Deed that he himſelf ſealed, and that this is ſufficient. 11 H. 7. 22. per Brian. And therefore alſo it is thought, that an Indenture made in the Firſt perſon, is as good in Law as an Indenture made in the Third perſon, when both parties have to this put to their Seals. For if in an Indenture made in the Third perſon, or in the Firſt perſon, mention be made that the Grantor only hath put to his Seal, and not the Grantee; then is the Indenture only the Deed of the Grantor: But when mention is made that the Grantee alſo hath put his Seal to the Indenture, it ſhall be ſaid to be the Deed of them both. Lit. ſect. 373.

And although both parts of the Indenture are but as one part; yet the Deed of the Grantor is as the Principal, and the other is but a Counterpart. And therefore if the Leſſor only ſeal, and not the Leſſee, yet it is as good as if both had ſealed: And if there be any difference between the Parts, the Counterparts ſhall be made to agree with the Principal, and it ſhall be deemed the miſpriſion of the Clerk. Finches Law, 109.

This Deed is the ſtrongeſt kind of Deed of the two; for this worketh an Eſtoppel, i. doth bar and conclude either party to ſay or except any thing againſt any thing contained in it. For if a Leaſe be by Indenture, both parties are concluded to ſay, that the Leſſor had nothing in the Land at the time of the Leaſe made: So that if the Leſſor hap to have the Land after by purchaſe or deſcent, the Leſſee may enter upon him by way of concluſion, and the Leſſee by Eſtoppel ſhall be forced to pay his Rent. But it is otherwiſe of a Deed-Poll; for this is commonly but of one Part, which is ſealed by the Feoffor, Leſſor, &c. only. And this ſhall be expounded to be the ſole Deed of the Feoffor, Leſſor, &c. and the words therein contained ſhall be ſaid to be his words, and ſhall bind him only, and be expounded altogether in advantage of the Feoffee, Leſſee, &c. and againſt the Feoffor, Leſſor, &c. and this doth not work any Eſtoppel againſt either party; Plow. 434. 421. But if a Deed be indented or poll, and there be therein reciprocal Covenants between them from one to another; albeit there be but one Part, yet if each of them ſeal it and deliver it the one to the other, this is good for both parties; and each of them that can get the Deed into his hand to ſhew or plead, may take advantage thereof againſt the other. And in this caſe the Deed is uſually kept by one indifferent between them both, Trin. 38 Eliz. Co. B. per Curiam. Co ſuper Lit. 143. Eſtoppel.

Note here firſt of all, that ſome Deeds are void from the beginning, and do never take effect; and amongſt theſe ſome are abſolutely void, and void againſt all perſons, and ſome are void only to ſome purpoſes and againſt ſome perſons. Some alſo that are not void from the beginning, are notwithſtanding voidable; and that ſometimes by the party himſelf that made them, or any others; and ſometimes by others, and not by himſelf. And ſome Deeds are good in their firſt creation, and well made at the firſt, but become void by ſome matter ex poſt facto. And this may be either by an Extrajudicial act, as Raſure, or the like; or by a Judicial act, i. when by the ſentence of a Court a Deed is damned, and made void, which is called a Vacate of the Deed. Sect. 2. 5. When and where a Deed ſhall be ſaid to be good and ſufficient; and when and where not, but void or voidable ab initio. A Vacate of a Deed.

To the making of every good Deed containing any Agreement, theſe things are requiſite. Things requiſite to make a Deed good.

1. Writing, i. That it be written in parchment or paper, and that the Agreement be legally and formally ſet down, and be ſufficient in Law for the compoſition and frame of the words. And this is called the Legal part, the Judgment whereof belongeth to the Judges of the Law.

2. That there be a perſon able to contract, and to be contracted with, and a thing to be contracted for; and that all theſe be ſet down by ſufficient names.

3. Reading, i. That if it be an illiterate man that is to ſeal the Deed, and he deſire to hear it read, that it be truly read, or the Contents thereof truly declared to him.

4. Sealing,

4. Sealing, i. That the Deed ſo written be ſealed by the party, or ſome other by his appointment, for a further teſtimony of his conſent thereunto. See infra.

5. Delivery, i. That the Deed ſo written and ſealed be delivered by the party, or ſome other by his appointment, as his Deed, Perk. ſect. 137, &c. And theſe laſt things being matters of fact, are to be tryed by Jurors. And then a Deed doth begin to take effect, when it is firſt delivered. And therefore if a Bond be made by J. S. and dated whiles he is an Infant, but delivered when he becomes of full age, it is good, Brownl. 1 par. 30, 31.

6. That the ground, foundation, end and purpoſe of making the Deed, be good and not againſt the Law. Otherwiſe in moſt of theſe caſes the Deed is void ab initio. Alſo in ſome caſes to perfect the Contract, and make the Conveyance of the thing intended to be paſſed thereby good, ſome other ceremonies or complements are requiſite, as Inrollment, Livery of Seiſin, Attornment; otherwiſe the Deed in part at leaſt becometh fruitleſs and vain. For a Deed may be void, either for that the Writing is not in parchment or paper; or being ſo, is not legally and formally drawn; or being ſo, there doth want a perſon able to give or make, or capable to have or take, or a thing to be contracted for: Or if ſo, for that it is not duly ſealed and delivered; or if ſo, for that it is not truly read at the time of the ſealing and delivery; or if ſo, for that it is made void by ſome ſpecial Law, as being made upon an Uſurious contract, by Dureſs, or the like. Or it may at leaſt in part loſe his force afterwards by neglect of Inrolment, Livery of Seiſin, or Attornment, in caſes where theſe things are requiſite.

1. In reſpect of the writing of it.

Every Deed well made muſt be written, i. The Agreement muſt be all written before the ſealing and delivery of it: For if a man ſeal and deliver an empty piece of paper and parchment, albeit he do therewithall give commandment that an Obligation or other matter ſhall be written in it, and this be done accordingly, yet this is no good Deed, Perk. ſect. 118. Co. ſuper Lit. 171.

2. This Writing muſt be in paper or parchment: For if an Agreement be written on a piece of Wood, Linnen, the Bark of a tree, a Stone, or the like, and this be ſealed and delivered; this is no good Deed, Co. ſuper Lit. 229. F. N. B. 122. Lit. 27 H. 6. 9. But it may be written in any language, or in any hand. And therefore it is held, that a Deed written in French or Latine, and in Text, Court, or Roman hand, is as good as a Deed written in Engliſh, and in a Secretary hand, Co. 2. 3. And albeit the writing be beſides the lines, or the lines be written crooked, yet this will not hurt the Deed, Perk. ſect. 123. And if there be any alteration, raſure, or interlining made in any part of the Deed before the delivery of it, this will not hurt the Deed, Perk. ſect. 155. Co. ſuper Lit. 225. But in ſuch caſes it is policie to make a Memorandum of it upon the back of the Deed, and to give the Witneſſes notice of it; for otherwiſe if it be in any place material, as in the name of the Grantor, Grantee, in the limiting of the Eſtate, or the like, and eſpecially if it be in a Deed-poll, the Deed is greatly ſuſpicious.

Sect. 3.

3. The matter written muſt be legal and orderly for manner and matter, i. There muſt be words ſufficient to ſet forth the Agreement, and bind the parties; for a Deed may be void and loſe its virtue in all or part, for repugnancie, incertainty, and divers other matters, (whereof ſee in expoſition of Deeds infra) Co. ſuper Lit. 225. But it is not material whether the Deed be in the firſt, or in the third perſon, ſo as the words be aptly applied, Fitz. Fait & Feoffments, 5. Dyer 6. For if a Deed-poll be in the third perſon, or an Obligation be in the third perſon, theſe are good Deeds, notwithſtanding the Statute of 38 E. 3. cap. 4. which is meant only of Obligations made beyond the Seas. So if the words of a Deed indented run in the firſt perſon, it is as good as if it were in the third perſon. Neither is it neceſſary that the Engliſh or Latine whereby it is made, be true or congruous; for falſe and incongruous Latine or Engliſh ſeldom or never hurteth a Deed: For the Rules are, Falſa orthographia non vitiat chartam; Falſa grammatica non vitiat conceſſionem. Neither is it neceſſary that every Deed have all the parts of a Deed before ſet down, as Premiſſes, Habendum, &c. For a Deed may be good without Habendum, Warranty, Reſervation, or Covenant. And a Deed is good, albeit theſe words in the cloſe thereof, thereof, In witneſs &c. be omitted; and albeit there be no mention made in the ſame that the Deed was ſealed and delivered, ſo as in truth it be duly ſealed and delivered, and it can be proved. Alſo a Deed is good, albeit it mention no time or place of date or making, or have a falſe date, i. be dated at one time, and delivered at another; and albeit it have an impoſſible date, as the 30. of February, or the like: For anti-ently until the time of *E.*2. and *E.*3. the Deeds had no date, becauſe the Law was then held to be, That if a Deed were dated before the time of memory, it was not pleadable, except it were of Record, but it might have been given in evidence. But he that doth plead ſuch a Deed without any date, or with ſuch an impoſſible date, muſt ſet forth the time when it was delivered. *Co.*2.5. Dyer 19. *Kelw.*70. *Co.*2.5.5. 117. Dyer 8. *Perk. ſect.*120. Co. ſuper Lit. 6. Date.

The ſecond thing required in every well made Deed is, That the perſon making it be able to give, grant, make, or do the thing contained in it: That the perſon to whom it is made, be capable of the thing to be given, granted, made or done thereby. For if it be made by, or to any ſuch perſons as are diſabled, as Infants, Aliens, Women covert, Perſons attainted of Treaſon or Felony, Ideots, and ſuch like, it will be void in all or part. But any perſon natural, male or female; or politique, as ſole Corporations, or Corporations aggregate of many, Eccleſiaſtical or Temporal, not diſabled by Law, may give or take by Deed. Alſo there muſt be ſome matter whereabout the Contract may be converſant: It is therefore ſaid, that in every Grant there muſt be Grantor, Grantee, and a Thing to be granted; and in every Obligation an Obligor, Obligee, and Thing to which the Obligor is bound. And ſo of Feoffments and other Deeds. Brownl. 1 par. 120. *Co.*11.73. Plow. 555. Perk ſect. 1.119. *Feoffments infra Numb.*12. See the Titles. 2. In reſpect of the perſons parties thereunto, and matter therein.

A Leaſe was made, and the Leſſee was not made or named in the Premiſſes of the Deed, but in the Habendum only; yet it was judged to be good by the two Chief Juſtices, *Car. Rep. f.*85. There muſt be a convenient Certainty in all theſe things, the Perſons and Things; otherwiſe the Deed will be void. See Grant.

The third thing required in every well made Deed, is, That if the party that is to ſeal it be a blind or an illiterate man, and deſire to hear it read, that it be ſo: For if ſuch a man be to ſeal a Deed, and he deſire to hear it, or to hear the contents of it read or declared to him firſt, and it be not done, and he afterwards ſeal and deliver it, this is no good Deed. So if upon or without any ſuch requeſt made by him that is to ſeal and deliver it, the party himſelf to whom it is made, or a ſtranger ſhall read the Deed, or declare the contents thereof falſly and otherwiſe then in truth it is, the Deed will be void, at leaſt for ſo much as is ſo miſread or miſdeclared. But if the party himſelf that is to ſeal and deliver it, before the ſealing and delivery thereof cauſe another that is a ſtranger covinouſly to read it, or to declare the contents thereof falſly to him, and otherwiſe then it is, of purpoſe to make the Deed void; this will not hurt the Deed. So if the party that is to ſeal the Deed can read himſelf, and doth not, or being an illiterate or a blind man doth not require to hear the Deed read, or the contents thereof declared; in theſe caſes albeit the Deed be contrary to his mind, yet it is good and unavoidable. *Co.*2.9.3. 11.27. 14 *H.*8.26. 3. In reſpect of the reading of it.

The fourth thing required in every well made Deed is, That it be ſealed. But this ſealing of Deeds in times paſt was not uſed. For the Saxons uſed only to ſubſcribe their Names, and to add the ſign of the Croſs, and to ſet down a great number of Witneſſes. And afterwards the Normans brought in with them the Sealing of Deeds but by degrees: For firſt the Kings and a few of the Nobility uſed it, and to ſeal with their Seals of Arms; afterwards all the Nobility uſed it, and then the Gentlemen; and about the time of *E.*3. all men began to uſe Sealing of Deeds, which hath been continued ever ſince, ſo that now it is of neceſſity; inſomuch that if a Deed be never ſo well written before, and delivered afterwards, yet if it be not ſealed between the writing and delivery, it is not a good Deed. But if a ſtranger ſeal it by the allowance or commandment precedent, or agreement ſubſequent of him that is to ſeal it before the delivery of it, it is as well as if the party to the Deed did ſeal it himſelf. *Terms of the Law. Fait. Co. ſuper Lit.*225. *Co.*2.4,5. *Perk ſect.*129. *Perk ſect.*130. 131. 134. 4. In reſpect of the ſealing of it.

And therefore if another man ſeale a deed of mine, and I take it up after it is ſealed and deliver it as my deed; this is ſaid to be a good agreement to, and allowance of the ſealing, and ſo a good deed. And if the party ſeale the deed with any Seale beſides his own, or with a ſtick or any ſuch like thing which doth make a print, it is good. And although it be a Corporation that doth make the deed, yet they may ſeale with any other ſeale beſides their common Seale and the deed never the worſe. And if there be 20. to ſeale one deed, and they ſeale all upon one peece of wax and with one Seale, yet if they make diſtinct and ſeverall prints; this is a very ſufficient ſealing & the deed is good enough. Perk. Sect. 130. 131. 132. Perk. Sect 134.

5. In reſpect of the delivery of it. And what ſhall be ſaid a good delivery or not.

The fifth thing required in every well made deed is: That there be a delivery of it. And for this it muſt be known, that delivery is either actuall, i. by doing ſomething and ſaying nothing, or elſe Verball, i. by ſaying ſomething and doing nothing, or it may be by both. And either of theſe may make a good delivery and a perfect deed: But by one or both of theſe it muſt be made, for otherwiſe albeit it be never ſo well ſealed and written, yet is the deed of no force. And though the party to whom it is made take it to himſelf, or hap to get it into his hands, yet will it do him no good nor him that made it any hurt untill it be delivered. And a deed may be delivered by the party himſelfe that doth make it, or by any other by his appointment or authority precedent or aſſent or agreement ſubſequent, for omnis ratihibitio mandato æquiparatur. Every Ratification is equivalent to a command, And when it is delivered by another that hath a good authority and doth purſue it, it is as good a deed as if it were delivered by the party himſelfe: but if he doe not purſue his authority then it is otherwiſe. And therefore if a deed or the contents thereof be read or declared to a man that is to ſeale him; and he (being illiterate) doth deliver him to a ſtranger, and bid him examine him, and if it be ſo as it was read to him, then to deliver him as his deed, otherwiſe to redeliver him to him againe that made it; in this caſe if the deed be in truth, otherwiſe then it was read, and yet notwithſtanding he to whom it was delivered doth deliver him to him, to whom it is made, this delivery ſhall not availe, neither is the deed by this delivery become a good deed. Co: 2. 4. 5. *Perk. 2 In reſpect of him to whom it is made.

And ſo alſo a deed may be delivered to the party himſelf to whom it is made or to any other by ſufficient authority from him: or it may be delivered to any ſtranger for and in the behalfe, and to the uſe of him to whom it is made without authority. But if it be delivered to a ſtranger without any ſuch declaration, intention or intimation unleſſe it be in caſe where it is delivered as an Eſcrow, it ſeems this is not a ſufficient delivery: And yet if an Obligation be made to the uſe of a third perſon expreſſed by the deed, and the obligor deliver it to him to whoſe uſe it is made, this is ſaid to be a good delivery. And albeit it be delivered before or after the day of the date of it, yet it is good enough: but if it be delivered before it be ſealed it is nothing worth. And where it is delivered before the date, yet in the pleading of it it muſt not be ſo ſet forth. Dyer. 167. *Perk. Sect. 4.

If I have ſealed my deed, and after I deliver it to him to whom it is made, or to ſome other by his appointment and ſay nothing, this is a good delivery. So if I take the deed in my hand and uſe theſe or the like words; Here take him, or this will ſerve, or I deliver this as my deed, or I deliver him you; theſe are deliveries. So if I make a deed of land to another, and being upon the land I deliver the deed to him in the name of Seiſin of the land; this is a good delivery. So if the deed be ſealed and lying in a window, or on a Table, and I uſe theſe or the like words, there he is, take it as my deed; this is a good delivery and doth perfect the deed, for as a deed may be delivered by words without deeds, ſo may it alſo be delivered by deeds without words. But if a man ſeale and acknowledge before a Major or other Officer appointed for that purpoſe a writing provided for a Statute or a recogniſance this acknowledgment before ſuch an Officer ſhall not amount to a delivery of the deed ſo as to make it a good obligation if it happen not to be a good Statute or Recogniſance. Co: 9. 137. Dyer: 192. 167. Co. ſuper Lit. 36. 49. 35. Aſſ. pl. 6. Adjudged Trin, 37: *El. The

The delivery of a deed as an Eſcrow is ſaid to be where one doth make and ſeale a deed and deliver it unto a ſtranger untill certaine conditions be performed, and then to be delivered to him to whom the deed is made to take effect as his deed. As an Eſcrow Quid.

And ſo a man may deliver a deed, and ſuch a delivery is good. But in this caſe two cautions muſt be heeded. 1. That the form of words uſed in the delivery of a deed in this manner be apt and proper. 2. That the deed be delivered to one that is a ſtranger to it, and not to the party himſelfe to whom it is made. The words therefore that are uſed in the delivery muſt be after this manner. I deliver this to you as an Eſcrow to deliver to the party as my deed, upon condition that he doe deliver you 20l. for me, or upon condition that he deliver up the old bond he hath of mine for the ſame mony, or as the caſe is. Or elſe it muſt be thus. I deliver this as an Eſcrow to you to keep untill ſuch a day &c. upon condition that if before this day he to whom the Eſcrow is made ſhall pay to me 10l. or give to me a horſe, or infeoffe me of the Manor of Dale, (or perform any other condition) that then you ſhall deliver this Eſcrow to him as my deed. 19. H. 8. Kelw. 88. 14 H. 8. 22. 14 H. 6. 42. Perk. Sect. 141. 140, 142. 138. 143. 144. Fitz. Feoffments & Fait. 4. 13, 15. Co 9. 137. ſuper Lit. 48. 36.

For if when I ſhall deliver the deed to the ſtranger, I ſhall uſe theſe or the like words. I deliver this to you as my deed, and that you ſhall deliver it to the party upon certain conditions: Or, I deliver this to you as my deed to deliver to him to whom it is made when he comes to London, in theſe caſes the deed doth take effect preſently and the party is not bound to perform any of the conditions. So it muſt bee delivered to a ſtranger, for if I ſeale my deed and deliver it to the party himſelfe to whom it is made as an Eſcrow upon certaine conditions &c. in this caſe let the form of words be what it will, the delivery is abſolute, and the deed ſhall take effect as his deed preſently, and the party is not bound to perform the conditions; for, Intraditionibus Chartarum non quod dictum ſed quod factum eſt inſpicitur, (i) the Law looks upon what is done. But in theſe firſt caſes before where the deed is delivered to a ſtranger, and apt words are uſed in the delivery thereof, it is of no more force until the conditions be performed then if I had made it and layd it by me and not delivered it at all, and therefore in that caſe albeit the party get it into his hands before the conditions be performed, yet he can make no uſe of it at all, neither will it do him any good.

But when the conditions are performed, and the deed is delivered over, then the deed ſhall take as much effect as if it were delivered immediatly to the party to whom it is made, and no act of God or man can hinder or prevent this effect then if the party that doth make it be not at the time of making thereof diſabled to make it.

He therefore that is truſted with the keeping and delivery of ſuch a writing ought not to deliver it before the conditions be performed, and when the conditions be performed he ought not to keep it but to deliver it to the party. For it may be made a queſtion whether the deed be perfect before he hath delivered it over to the party according to the authority given him. Howbeit it ſeems the delivery is good, for it is ſaid in this caſe that if either of the parties to the deed dye before the conditions be performed, and the conditions be after performed, that the deed is good, for there was traditio inchoata, delivery begun in the life time of the parties, & poſtea conſummata exiſtens, finiſhed by the performance of the conditions, it taketh his effect by the firſt delivery without any new or ſecond delivery, and the ſecond delivery is but the execution & conſummation of the firſt delivery. And therefore if an Infant, or woman covert deliver a deed as an Eſcrow to a ſtranger, and before the conditions are performed the Infant is become of full age, or the woman is become ſole, yet the deed in theſe caſes is not become good. And yet if a diſſeiſee make a deed purporting a leaſe for years, and deliver it to a ſtranger out of the land as an Eſcrow, and bid him enter into the land; and deliver it as his deed, and he do ſo, this is a good deed, and a good leaſe, ſo that to ſome purpoſes it hath relation to the time of the firſt delivery, and to ſome purpoſes not. Brownl. Rep. 1. part. 53. See Acts, Fitz. Fait & Feoffement 13. Idem. Co. 3. 35. Co. 5 84. 3. 36. Co. 3. 35, 36. Relation.

Double Delivery.

In caſe where a deed is meerly void and doth take no effect by his firſt delivery, as where a woman covert doth ſeale and deliver a deed, or the like, and ſhe after being ſole after her husbands death doth deliver the deed againe, in this caſe the deed is become good. So where a deed originally good doth becom void by matter ex poſt facto, as by breaking the Seale or the like, if the party to the deed ſeale and deliver it again; by this means the deed is become good again. But regularly there may not be two deliveries of a deed, for where the firſt delivery doth take any effect at all, the ſecond delivery is void. Brownl. 1. part. 104. Perk Sect. 154. 11 H. 6. 27.

And therefore it is held that if an Infant or a man by dureſſe of impriſonment do make ſeale and deliver a deed &c. (in which caſes the deed is not void but voidable) and after the Infant being of full age, or the man impriſoned being at large, doth deliver this deed again the ſecond time; this ſecond delivery is void: Debile fundamentum fallit opus. See Brownl. Rep. 30. But if an Infant within age doe write and ſeale and deliver when he is of full age this is good. So if a man be diſſeiſed and make a leaſe for years in writing and deliver the deed, and after deliver it upon the ground, this ſecond delivery is void, for the firſt delivery made it his deed; but if he had delivered it as an Eſcrow to be delivered as his deed upon the ground, this had been a good ſecond delivery. And by all this that hath been ſaid it appeareth, that the putting to or ſubſcribing of the parties name or mark to the deed he is to ſeale is not eſſentiall, for a deed may be good albeit the party that doth ſeale it doth never ſet his name or his mark to it, ſo as it be duly ſealed and delivered. But it is the beſt and ſureſt way notwithſtanding to have the name or mark of the party ſubſcribed, for by this means the deed may be the better proved when the witneſſes are dead. Perk. Sect. 154. Co. 5. 119. Co. ſuper Litt. 48. New Terms of the Law tit. Fait. 9. Jac Scots Caſe.

Subſcribing of the parties name or mark not neceſſarie.

Note.

Note here, that albeit a writing or Eſcrow that is not ſealed and delivered in manner as aforeſaid may not be uſed nor pleaded as a deed, yet it may ſerve and be uſed as an evidence and proofe of the agreement contained therein. And whatſoever may be done by word without any writing may much more and better be done by writing unſealed or ſealed, though it be not delivered as aforeſaid.

Sect. 5. 6. In reſpect of the ground & end of it.

And the laſt thing required in every well-made deed is, that it have a good foundation, and be to a good end, for albeit a deed have all the qualities of a good deed before required, viz. that it be well made, read, ſealed, and delivered, yet it may be void or at leaſt voidable for others cauſes, as when it is either unjuſtly gotten and obtained, or corruptly in purſuit and execution of ſome diſhoneſt agreement, or to a diſhoneſt end or purpoſe made. A deed therefore, whether it be a feoffment, gift, grant, leaſe, releaſe, confirmation or obligation that is made or obtained by manaſſe, or dureſſe, that is forced by feare of beating or Impriſonment, or made in purſuit of an uſurious contract or for that it was made fraudulently, or made againſt the ſtatute 23 H. 6. it may be voyd or voidable at leaſt. See the Titles and obligation. Co. 2. 9. Perk. Sect. 16. Dyer. 143. 45 E. 3. 6.

6 where a deed good in his creation may become void by matter ex poſt facto. And what wil make ſuch a deed void or not. 1. By Raſure.

If a deed that is well and ſufficiently made in his Creation ſhall be afterwards altered by raſure, interlining, addition, drawing a line through the words (though they be ſtill legible) or by writing new letters upon the old in any materiall place or part of it, as if it be in a deed of grant, in the name of the grantor, grantee, or in the thing granted or in the limitation of the eſtate, or if it be in an Obligation, when the word [Heires] ſhall be inſerted, or the ſumme increaſed, or in the date of either, or the like; be the ſame either by the party himſelf that hath the property of the deed or any other whomſoever, except it be by him that is bound by the deed; and be the ſame with or without the conſent of him to whom it is made or doth belong; in this caſe and by either of theſe meanes the deed hath loſt his force and is become void. Co. 11. 27. 5. 11. 9. Dyer 59. 261. Perk. Sect. 123. 135. Kelw. 162. Fitz Releaſe. 27. 14 H. 8. 25. Bro. Fait. 9.

And if the alteration be made by the party himſelf that oweth the deed, albeit it be in a place not materiall, and that it tend to the advantage of the other party and his owne diſadvantage, yet the deed is hereby become void.

But

But if the alteration be made by the party himſelf that is bound by the Deed in any materiall or immateriall part thereof, or a ſtranger without the privity or conſent of the owner of the Deed ſhall make any ſuch alteration in any part of a Deed not materiall, (as if it be a Deed of a grant containing a leaſe for years, and there be inſerted between [To have and to hold] and [for 30 years] theſe words [from henceforth :] Or if it be an obligation and there be inſerted between [Obligo me] and [per preſentes] theſe words [Executores meos] in both which caſes thoſe words are needleſs and without any fruit at all ; hereby the Deed is not hurt, but it remaineth good notwithſtanding. But if the alteration be before the delivery of the Deed, be it whatſoever or by whomſoever, it will not hurt the Deed. And herein it muſt be obſerved that then a raſure, &c. is moſt dangerous, and the Deed thereby moſt ſuſpitious when it is in a Deed Poll and there is but one part of the Deed ; and when the raſure or other alteration is in any materiall part of the Deed ; and when the alteration makes to the advantage of him that doth owe the Deed, and to the diſadvantage of the other that made it ; and when there doth appeare ſome other thing to be written before, and when there is no other part of the Deed, recitall, defeaſance, or other matter to which this may be compared, and that may make it appeare to be before the delivery ; and when there be other parts of the Deed or other matters whereunto this being compared doth not agree in that part wherein the alteration is, and when the Deed hath been in the ſmoke, or any ſuch like means hath been uſed to cover the alteration. And in theſe caſes the matter was anciently uſed to be tried by the Judges upon the view of the Deed ; but it is now uſed to be tried by Jurors, whether the raſure, or other alteration were before the delivery of the Deed or not. Perk. ſect. 123. 124. Bro. Fait 6. Perk. 129. 127. 128, Co. ſuper Litt. 225.

2. By breaking or defacing of the Seale.

And if after the ſealing, delivery and perfection of a Deed, the ſeale thereof happen to be broken off, or to be utterly defaced, ſo that no ſigne or print thereof can be ſeen, or it appeareth to have been broken off and it is glued, or the wax new heat and ſet on again ; or the labell of the Deed hath been broken off from the Deed and is ſewed on again ; or the Deed is new ſealed with other wax, be the ſame by whatſoever means, or whomſoever, unleſs it be by him and his means that is bound by the deed ; in theſe caſes and by either of theſe means the deed is become void. If A. B. and C. be bound joyntlie and ſeverally in a Bond, and the Seales of A. and B. are eaten off with Mice and Rats, it ſeems by this the Deed is become void as to all 3 of them. March 127. Pl. 204. But if any piece of the ſeale remain fixed to the Deed, and there be any print left upon that peece, the Deed doth continue good. And if after the ſeale of a Deed be broken off the party that ſealed it doe ſeale and deliver it de novo ; by this means it ſeems the Deed is become good again. Dier. 59. Co. 11. 28. 5, 23. Dier. 112. Perk ſect. 135. 136. Bro Oblig. 83.

3 By redelivery or cancelling of it.

And if a Deed be delivered up to the party that is bound by it to be cancelled and it be ſo : or if he that hath the Deed doth by agreement between him and the other cancell the Deed ; by either of theſe means the Deed is become void. But if an Obligee deliver up an Obligation to be cancelled, and the obligor doe not afterwards cancell him, but the obligee happen to get him again into his hands, and ſue the obligor upon him, the obligor hath not any plea to avoid him, for the Deed remains ſtill in force. Trin. 38 El. Co. B. Dier 112.

4 By diſagreement.

And if an Obligation be delivered as an Eſcrow to a ſtranger to be delivered to the obligee on certain conditions, or to a ſtranger to the uſe of the Obligee, and when this is after tendred to the Obligee he doth refuſe it and diſagree to it ; or if an Obligation be made to a feme covert, and her husband diſagree to it, in all theſe caſes the Deed is become void. And like Law is of other Deeds in divers ſuch like caſes, but the party bound by the Deed may not in theſe caſes plead non eſt factum to the Deed. And in theſe caſes when the party hath once by his agreement made the Deed good, he cannot afterwards by his diſagreement make it void : and when once by refuſall and diſagreement he hath made the Deed void, he cannot by agreement on acceptance afterwards make it good. Co. 3. 26. 5. 119. Dier 167.

Agreement.

5. By Judgement of a Court, Vacat of a Deed.

A Deed alſo good in his Originall Creation may be afterwards damned or avoided by ſentence and order of a Court, and this is uſually done in the Starr-Chamber and in the Chancery, and it is when it appeareth that the Deed was obtained by ſome fraud, force, circumvention or ſuch like practiſe, or when it doth appear to be forged, or the like, or otherwiſe; ſee Brownlows Rep. 1 part. 45. 51. Crom. Jur. 29. 40. Bro: Fait. 38.

7. When and where a Deed may be good in part and void in part. Or good againſt one perſon and void againſt another. Or not.

For the anſwer of this queſtion theſe differences muſt be obſerved. 1. When a Deed is void ab initio, and when it doth become void by matter ex poſt facto. 2. When the Deed which is void in part from the beginning is entire, and when it doth conſiſt of ſeverall clauſes: and when it doth conſiſt of ſeverall clauſes when the ſeverall clauſes are abſolute and diſtinct, and when they are ſeverall and yet the one hath dependency upon the other. For if any of the Covenants of an Indenture, or the conditons of an Obligation be againſt Law, and the reſt of the Covenants or conditions be good and Lawfull; in this caſe thoſe that are againſt Law and the Deed as to that part are void ab initio, and the reſt and the Deed as for that part are good ab initio. So if three diſtinct Obligations are written upon a peece of parchments, and the one of them only, read to the Obligor, and he being an illiterate man ſeale and deliver the Deed, in this caſe this is a good Deed for that which was read; and void for the reſt ab initio. But if an Obligation be for 20 l. and it be read to the Obligor an Obligation of 20 s. this is void for the whole ab initio. Co. 11. 27. 14 H. 8. 27. 28. 29.

If a Deed be read as containing the grant or gift of an eſtate taile, and a Letter of Atturney to give Livery of Seiſin, and in that ſenſe the party doth ſeale it, and in truth it is a Feoffment and conveyance of an eſtate in Fee-ſimple; in this caſe albeit the Letter of Atturney were truly read, yet becauſe it hath dependence on the eſtate, it is void for all. Co. 11. 27. Kelw. 70. 3 E. 30. 31.

If a man be indebted to me 20 l. on a Contract, and 100 l. on an Obligation, and he pay me this 20 l. and I am to make a releaſe for it, and the intendment of the releaſe is no more, and it is read to me being an illiterate man, but in truth it is a generall releaſe, in this caſe it ſeems it is good for ſo much as it is intended, and was declared void for the reſt. Co. 11. 28. Fitz. Feoffments & Faits. 57. 47 E. 3. 3.

If the condition of an obligation be altered by raſure, &c. the Obligation alſo is hereby become void, becauſe the condition and obligation are one Deed, but if the raſure, &c. be in the defeaſance of on Obligation, this will not make the Obligation void, Dier. 27.

If a Deed containe divers diſtinct and abſolute Covenants, and any of theſe Covenants be altered by Addition, Interlineation, Raſure or the like, by this means the whole Deed and not that part only is become void. 14 H. 8. 25. 26. Co. 11. 28,

If there be divers Grantors, Obligors, &c, named in a Deed and one of them only doe ſeale the Deed, this is a good Deed as againſt him that doth ſeale and void as to all the reſt that doe not ſeale. And if divers enter into Covenants by a Deed ſeverally, and the ſeale of one of them is broken from the Deed; in this caſe the Deed is good ſtill as to all the reſt, but void as to him. But if an Obligation, or the Covenants of a Deed be joynt and not ſeverall, or joint and ſeverall, and the ſeale of one of the Obligors or Covenantors is broken, or the Obligation or Covenants be altered by raſure or the like, hereby the whole Deed is become void. Co. 5. 23. 11. 28. 3 H. 7. 5.

And it is a Rule that if an Obligee by his Act or his own Lacheſſe diſcharge one of the Obligors, where they are ioyntlie and ſeverally bound, this doth diſcharge them all. March 126. pl. 206.

If I be bound in an Obligation to a Monk and I. S. this Deed is void as to the Monk, but good as to I. S. So if a Monk and I be bound to another; this is good as againſt me, but void as againſt the Monk. And ſo it is in caſe of a Grant. 14 H. 8 29. Perk. f. 2.

By a power of revocation or a condition a Deed may be made void in part and continue in his force for another part. And therefore it ſeems in the uſuall caſe where a Deed is made upon condition that if ſuch a thing be, or be not done, that the the Deed ſhall be void, or that theſe preſents ſhall be void; that in theſe caſes the whole Deed and all the Covenants therein contained are void; But if the frame of the condition be, that upon ſuch a thing to be or not to be done, it ſhall be lawfull for the Feoffor, Leſſor, &c. to re-enter, or that the demiſe ſhall be void, without more words; in theſe caſes the eſtate only and thoſe Covenants that are incident thereunto, as for quiet enjoying and the like, and the Deed as to that part only is void: and for other Covenants that are Collaterall and have no dependence upon the eſtate that the Deed doth remain in force and is good ſtill, for a man may grant two acres upon condition to re-enter into one of them. If it be intended that the whole Deed ſhall be void, the beſt way is to uſe theſe words[then theſe preſents and every thing therein contained ſhall be utterly void.] Co. 1. 173. Dier. 127. See in Leaks Numb. 13.

3 How and to what time a Deed ſhall have relation, and when it ſhall begin to take effect.

All Deeds doe take effect from, and therefore have relation to the time not of their date but of their delivery: and this is alwaies preſumed to be the time of their date unleſs the contrary doe appear. And hence it is, That if a Statute be acknowledged the 26. day of May, and the Conuſee make a releaſe of all demands dated the 25. day and deliver it the 27 day; that by this releaſe the Statute is diſcharged.

And if the defeaſance of a Statute doe beare date before, and the delivery of it be after the Statute; that the conuſor may ſhew this and take advantage of it in avoidance of the Statute. And that if a writing be dated in the minority of an Infant and be ſealed and delivered by him when he is of full age, that this is a good Deed and will bind him. And that if a releaſe be ſuppoſed to be made by a husband to barr a duty due to the Wife, and it be dated during the Coverture but in truth it is ſealed and delivered by the Husband before the Coverture, that this ſhall not barr the Wife: the time therefore of delivery of a Deed is materiall in all theſe and the like caſes, and this is alwayes to be tried by a Jury. And hence it is alſo, That if the next preſentation to a Church be granted to two ſeverall perſons by ſeverall Deeds of ſeverall dates, and the Deed that beareth the laſt date be firſt delivered; in this caſe he to whom this Deed is made ſhall have the Preſentation, and not the other whoſe Deed albeit it be dated firſt yet is delivered laſt. And hence it is alſo that if a Leaſe be made for years, to begin from henceforth, or á confectione preſentium, or á die confectionis; that this leaſe ſhall be ſaid to begin from the time of the firſt delivery and not from the time of the date. Co. 2. 4. 5. 5 H. 7. 26. Plow. 491. Dier 307. 315. Fits Feoffments & faits 87. 63. 95. *Fitz. Relation.

And where Deeds have a kind of double delivery, as in Caſe of a delivery as an Eſcrow, there they ſhall take effect from, and have relation to the time of the firſt delivery or not, utres valeat, for if relation may hurt and for ſome cauſe make void the Deed (as in ſome caſes it may) there it ſhall not relate. But if Relation may helpe it, as in caſe where a feme ſole deliver an Eſcrow and before the ſecond delivery ſhe is married or dieth, in this caſe if there were not a relation the Deed would be void, and therefore in this caſe it ſhall relate. And yet in Goldsb. 163. Gawdie Fennor and Popham Judges doubted of a Deed delivered by an Infant, and after the condition is performed in the time of his full age. And they affirme that a Deed delivered by a woman that hath a Husband as an Eſcrow to be delivered as her Deed, when her Husband is Dead and he die, and then it is delivered as her Deed, this is not good, for in both theſe caſes they ſay the firſt Act is void. So if one diſſeiſe me of two acres of Land in D. and I releaſe to him all my right in my Lands in D. and deliver it to an eſtranger as an Eſcrow, &c. untill a time and before that time he diſſeiſe me of another acre there; in this caſe this releaſe ſhall not by relation extend to this other acre to barr me of that alſo. But as to collaterall acts there ſhall be no relation at all in this caſe. And therefore if the Obligee releaſe before the ſecond delivery the releaſe is void and will not barr the party Obligee of the fruit of his Obligation. Co. 3. 35. 36. 18 H. 6. 9. 27 H. 6. 7. Plow. 344.

The expoſition of Deeds.

It is further to be obſerved that Deeds for the moſt part conſiſt of theſe things. viz. the Premiſſes, Habendum, Tenendum, Reddendum, or Reſervation, Condition, Warranty, & Covenant. And in the Premiſſes there is ſometimes a Recitall, & ſometimes times an Exception contained. But all theſe are not eſſential parts of a Deed; for a Deed may be good, albeit it it have not all theſe parts, or it be not ſo formal and orderly drawn and made.

1. Premiſſes, what. The Premiſſes of a Deed, is all the forepart of the Deed before the Habendum. And yet this word is ſometimes taken for the thing demiſed or granted by the Deed. And the office of this part of the Deed is rightly to name the Grantor and Grantee, and to comprehend the certainty of the thing granted, either by expreſs words, or by that which by reference may be reduced to a certainty; and the Exception, or thing to be excepted, if there be any. And in this part of the Deed is the Recital (if there be any in the Deed) for the moſt part contained. And herein alſo is ſometimes (though improperly) ſet down the Eſtate. Co. ſup Lit. 6, 7. 11. 51. 2. 55: Plo. 196.

2. Habendum, what. The Habendum of a Deed, is that part of a Deed which doth begin with, To have and to hold: And this doth properly ſucceed the Premiſſes. And the office hereof is to ſet down again the name of the Grantee, the Eſtate that is to be made and limited, or the time that the Grantee ſhall have in the thing granted or demiſed, and to what uſe. And herein alſo is ſometimes, though needleſly, ſet down again the thing granted. Co ſuper Lit. 6, 7, 10. 107.

3. Where a Deed is good, notwithſtanding ſome ſeeming fault in the Premiſſes or Habendum. But the Deed that doth uſually conſiſt of all theſe parts, may be good, notwithſtanding ſome of them be omitted, and it be not ſo formally made. For an Eſtate may be made by a Deed, without any Habendum at all: As if one give or grant Land to another and his Heirs, without any more words in the Deed: Or if one give or grant Land to another, and limit no Eſtate, without any Habendum in the Deed, and ſeal and deliver this Deed, and make Livery accordingly; in both theſe caſes the Deed is good; and in the firſt caſe an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple is made, and in the laſt caſe an Eſtate for life is made. And if the name of the Grantee be not contained in the Premiſſes, yet if it be in the Habendum, it may be good enough: As if one give or grant Land Habendum to B. and his Heirs, and he is not named in the Premiſſes, yet this is a good Deed to make an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple. Butlers Caſe, 22 Eliz. per two Chief Juſtices, accord. Gar. Rep. 85. And yet if the thing granted be only in the Habendum, and not in the Premiſſes of the Deed, the Deed will not paſs it. And therefore if a man grant Black-acre only in the Premiſſes of a Deed, Habendum Black-acre and White acre; White-acre will not paſs by this Deed, Plo. 152. Dyer 96 Perk. 251. But if the thing newly added be implied in the thing granted by the Premiſſes of the Deed, as being an Incident thereunto or otherwiſe; or it be the ſame thing, and expreſſed in other words only; in theſe caſes the Premiſſes and the Habendum may ſtand together. As if one grant a Manor, Habendum the Manor with the Advowſon appendant to the Manor; or if one grant a Reverſion of Land by the name of a Reverſion in the Premiſſes, Habendum the Land it ſelf; in both theſe caſes the Deed is good, and the Advowſon and Reverſion will paſs. So alſo if Livery of Seiſin be made of the thing newly added, in this caſe perhaps it may paſs by the Livery. And if the thing granted be left out in all, or part in the Habendum, yet the Grant is good. And therefore if one grant Land to A. Habend. to A. his Heirs &c. or if one grant White-acre and Black-acre to A. Habend. White-acre, and omit Black-acre; yet theſe Deeds are good, and all that is contained in the Premiſſes of the Deed doth paſs in both caſes. And if a Feoffment be made to one, Habendum to him and his heirs, without the word Aſſigns; this is a good Feoffment, and the Eſtate thereby made is aſſignable: As where a Leaſe is made to one, his Executors and Adminiſtrators, without the word Aſſigns, this is a good Leaſe and aſſignable. So if one grant Land to A. Habendum to him for 100 years, or Habendum to him and his Aſſigns for 100 years; theſe are as good Leaſes as the Leaſe that is made by theſe words, Habendum to A. his Executors, Adminiſtrators and Aſſigns for 100 years. So if a Leaſe of Land be made to A. Habendum the Land to him and his Heirs for 100 years; this is a good Habendum, and the word [Heirs] is void, and it ſhall go to his Executors, &c. As alſo where Land is granted to A. Habendum to him and his Succeſſors for 100 years; this is a good Leaſe, and the word [Succeſſors] void, for it ſhall go to Executors, &c. And if a Leaſe be made Habendum for years, and ſay not how many years; this is a good Habendum, and a Leaſe for two years. Lit. 1. Co. ſuper Lit. 46. Co. 6. 35. New Terms of the Law, tit. Aſſigns.

A Recitall is the ſetting down or report of ſomthing done before. 3. Recital. Quid

When a man is to take any new eſtate from the King of a thing whereof there is any eſtate in being, there the former eſtate if it be good and of record muſt be rehearſed and recited in the deed, or elſe the ſecond grant will not be good: but in caſe of a common Perſon there needs no ſuch recitall, neither when a man is to derive an eſtate out of a former, or aſſigne over a terme of years, is it needfull there ſhould be any recitall of the former eſtate in being: Co 1.45. Dier:77. 4. Where it is needfull; or not

If one recite or rehearſe an eſtate made for terme of years, and then after grant over that terme to another, and miſtake in the recitall; this miſtake may make all void. As if a Fieri facias come to a Sheriffe to levy a debt, and he by writing recite that the defendant hath a terme of years, and doth ſuppoſe it to begin 1. Maii, 2. Iac. when in truth it doth begin the 20. of Auguſt, and then ſell the ſame terme; in this caſe this ſale is void. But if he adde withall theſe words in the deed [And al the intereſt that the defendant had in the land] or if he make ſale of it for a certain number of years only; this grant may be good not withſtanding the miſrecitall: Co. 4.74. Sect. 8

5. Where miſrecitall will hurt a deed; or not.

If one recite a former leaſe to be made ſuch a day to I S and then make a new leaſe to begin after the end of the former leaſe, and miſtake the date of the old leaſe; in this caſe the deed is good notwithſtanding this miſtake: Dier:93.160.

If one grant a reverſion, and in reciting the leaſe in poſſeſſion miſtake the date of it only and recite all the reſt truly; this will not hurt the grant: No more then where a man doth recite that the leaſe came to him by forfeiture, and then doth grant it by fine: for in this caſe albeit it did not come to him by forfeiture but by ſurrender, yet this miſtake will not hurt. And yet in caſe of the King ſuch a miſrecital may make the grant void. 8 H.7.3. Fitz. Grant.

If I grant to I S all the lands in Dale which I purchaſed from I D or which came unto me by deſcent from I D, or I give all my goods to I S which I have as executor to I D. and in truth I have no ſuch lands or goods, but I had them by ſome other meanes or of ſome other; in theſe caſes and by this miſtake the deed is void. But if I grant to I S all my lands in Dale by name, as white acre, which I purchaſed of I D and in truth I did purchaſe them of another; in this caſe this miſtake will not hurt the deed. So if I grant 20. load of wood in Dale in the great wood which I had of the grant of my father, and in truth I had not of the grant of my father, but of the grant of another; in this caſe the grant is good. But of this matter ſee more in Grant, Numb: 4. part. 5. Dier. 50. 87. 376.

An Exception is a clauſe of a deed whereby the feoffor, donor, grantor, leſſor, &c. doth except ſomewhat out of that which he had granted before by the deed: And this doth moſt commonly and properly ſucceed the ſetting down of the things granted, and is made by one of theſe words Except, Preter, Salvo, Si non, or ſuch like. And hereby the thing excepted is exempted and doth not paſſe by the grant, neither is it parcell of the thing granted: as if a manor be granted excepting one acre thereof, hereby in Judgement of Law that acre is ſevered from the manor: But this may be in any part of the deed and ſo hath it bin reſolved. Hil. 17. Car. Plo. 361. 195: 6. Exception, Quid.

In every good Exception theſe things muſt alwaies concurre, 1: This Exception muſt be by apt words. 2. It muſt be of part of the thing granted and not of ſome other thing: 3. It muſt be of part of the thing only, and not of all, the greater part, or the effect of the thing granted. 4. It muſt be of ſuch a thing as is ſeverable from the thing which is granted, and not of an inſeparable incident: 5. It muſt be of ſuch a thing as he that doth except may have and doth properly belong to him. 6. It muſt be of a particular thing out of a generall, and not of a particular thing out of a particular thing or of a part of a certainty. 7. It muſt be certainly deſcribed and ſet downe. B R Fregunnels Caſe. Perk. ſect. 62. &c. Plow: 19. Co. ſuper Litt. 47. 7. what ſhall be ſaid a good exception; or not.

As for examples. If a man grant all his lands in Eſſex ſaving, beſides, or except his lands in Dale, or all his lands in Dale excepting one houſe, or one acre in certain; or one houſe excepting one chamber in certaine; theſe and ſuch like Exceptions are good. Plow. 195: Perk. ſect. 641.

And if one grant a manor excepting one Tenement (parcell of the manor) or excepting the ſervices of I S (who doth hold of the manor) or excepting one Cloſe or excepting one acre, or excepting the advowſon appendant, or excepting the woods, or excepting twenty acres of wood or excepting all the groſſe trees; theſe are good exceptions. Brownlo. 1 part. 141. Dier. 103. Plow. 104. 361. 67. Co. 8. 63. 11. 47. 5 11. Perk Sect. 642. 3 H: 6: 35:

And if one grant a meſuage and houſes thereunto belonging excepting the barne or excepting the dove-houſe; it ſeemes this is a good exception, for they may paſſe by the grant of a meſuage &c. And if one grant land excepting the Timber trees thereupon, or excepting the trees thereupon; or if a man ſell a wood excepting 20 of the beſt oakes, and ſhew which in certain; theſe are good exceptions: So if one have a manor wherein is a wood called the great wood, and he grant his manor excepting all the woods and underwoods that grow in the great wood and all the trees that grow elſewhere, this is a good exception. 14 H: 8. 1. Co. 8. 63. 5. 23. In the caſe of Haward & Fulcher. Hil: 3: Car: B: R: Co: 11: 64:

And if one grant a meſſuage and all the lands and tenements thereunto belonging excepting one cottage; this is a good exception: And if one grant a reverſion excepting the rent; this is a good exception of the rent and doth keep it from paſſing by the grant: So if a man have a rent charge out of land and he releaſe his right in the land except the rent; So if the Lord releaſe to his Tenant Salvo dominio ſuo, &c: theſe are good exceptions. And if one grant all his horſes except his white horſe; this is a good exception of the white horſe: Per Sect: 118: 644: Dier: 57: Plow. 361:

And if a man be ſeiſed of a manor, and leaſe it by deed indented for life exceptis & reſervatis quod bene liceat to the leſſor ſuccidere, dare, & vendere omnes groſſas arbors in dicto manerio creſcentes &c: it ſeems this is a good exception of the trees: But if the exception be of another thing then the thing granted. As if one grant a manor or land excepting 12:d or excepting the Tithes, or excepting one acre of ground which is no parcell of the manor or of the land before granted; or if one grant the land deſcended to him of the part of his father excepting the land deſcended to him of the part of his mother; theſe exceptions are void. Or if the exception be ſuch as it is repugnant to the grant and doth utterly ſubvert it and take away the fruit of it, as if one grant a manor or land to another excepting the profits thereof; or make a feoffment of a cloſe o fmeadow or paſture, reſerving or excepting the graſſe of it; or grant a manor excepting the ſervices; theſe are void exceptions. 2 H. 6. 45. Perk. Sect. 643. Perk Sect 639 Dier. 59. Plow. 361: 67. 370. Dier. 97. 264. Co. ſuper Lit. 47. Plow. 153. 103, 104-14 H. 8. 1. Doct. & ſtud. 98. Dier. 59. 263.

So if one grant his houſe, chambers, cellars, and ſhops, excepting his ſhops; it is ſaid this is no good exception. And by the like reaſon if one grant his meadow and paſture grounds except his meadow grounds, this exception is not good no more then if one grant two manors or two acres excepting one of them. And of this opinion was the Chiefe Juſtice in B. R. Hil. 3. Car. in the caſe of Haward and Fulcher.

And yet if a man make a leaſe for yeares of a Mill excepting the profits thereof during the life of the leſſor; it is ſaid, this hath been adjudged a good exception:

But I doubt of this caſe, for the exception of the profits of a thing is the exception of the thing it ſelfe. And a man cannot grant an eſtate and reſerve a part of the eſtate as make a feoffment in fee and reſerve a leaſe for life, or grant an Advowſon and reſerve the Preſentation for his life. Or if the exception be of an inſeparable incident and a thing that cannot be granted by it ſelfe and from another, as if a manor be granted excepting the Court Baron, or land be granted excepting the common appendant thereunto belonging; theſe exceptions are void. But exceptions of ſeverable incidents are good. Plow. 524. Dier. 264: Br. grant. 60. 38 H. 6. 38. Co ſuper Lit. 150. Co: 5. 12. Hil 9. Iac: B: R. per Curiam.

Or if the exception be of ſuch a thing as the grantor cannot have nor doth belong to him by law; as if a leſſee for years aſſigne over all his terme in the land excepting the Timber trees, earth or clay; this exception is not good. This difference hath been agreed.

But

But if leſſee for life make a leaſe for years, or leſſee for 21. years make a leaſe for 20. years; or tenant by the courteſie or in dower grant over their eſtate excepting the Timber trees; theſe are good exceptions. And if a leſſee for life or years open a Cole-mine and then aſſigne over his eſtate excepting the mine or the profits thereof; theſe are void exceptions. Or if the exception be of a particular thing out of a particular thing, as if one grant white acre and black acre excepting white acre or grant 20. acres of land by particular names excepting one acre of them; theſe exceptions are void.

Or if the exception be ſet downe incertainly, as if one grant a houſe excepting one chamber; or grant a manor excepting one acre, but doth not ſet forth which chamber or which acre it ſhall be; theſe exceptions are void. Co. ſuper Lit. 47. Plow. 53. Perk. Sect 643. 641.

Sect. 9

A Tenendum is a clauſe of the deed whereby the tenure was heretofore created. And this doth moſt commonly and properly ſucceed the Habendum, and was made by this word Tenendum per ſervicium &c. But ſithence the Statute of Quia emptores terrarum when the fee ſimple doth paſſe the tenure is alwaies of the chiefe Lord and is thus ſet forth, Tenendum de capitalibus dominis &c. And this clauſe at this day is for the moſt part omitted altogether. Co. ſuper Litt. 6 & Co. 9. 130. 8. Tenendum, what.

A Reſervation is a clauſe of a deed whereby the feoffor, donor, leſſor, grantor &c. doth reſerve ſome new thing to himſelfe out of that which he granted before. And this doth moſt commonly and properly ſucceed the Tenendum, and is made by one or more of theſe words Reddend', reſervand', ſolvend', faciend', inveniend', or ſuch like. This doth differ from an exception which is ever of part of the thing granted and of a thing in eſſe at the time, but this is of a thing newly created or reſerved out of a thing demiſed that was not in eſſe before; ſo that this doth alwaies reſerve that which was not before or abridge the tenure of that which was before. Co. 10. 107. Plow. 132. Co. ſuper Litt. 47. Perk. Sect. 625. 9. Reſervation or Reddendum, what.

In every good reſervation theſe things muſt alwaies concurre.

1. It muſt be by apt words. 2. It muſt be of ſome other thing iſſuing or comming out of the thing granted and not a part of the thing it ſelfe nor of ſome thing iſſuing out of another thing. 3. It muſt be of ſuch a thing whereunto the grantor may have reſort to diſtraine. 4. It muſt be made to one of the grantors and not to a ſtranger to the deed. As for examples, If a man grant land yeelding and paying money or ſome ſuch like thing yearly, this is a good reſervation. But if the grantee covenant to pay ſuch a ſumme of money, or to doe ſuch a thing yearly; this is no good reſervation, but a covenant to pay a ſumme of money in groſſe and not as a rent. If a leaſe be made for years rendering a reſt to the leſſor or his heirs, in the diſjunctive; or rendering a rent to the leſſor, without ſaying [and his heirs &c.] or rendring a rent during the ſaid term; and doth not ſay to whom; or rendering 10 l. to the leſſor and 5 l. to his heirs; all theſe reſervations are good. But if a leaſe be made rendering rent to the heires of the leſſor; this reſervation is void becauſe the rent is not reſerved to himſelfe firſt. Plow. 132. Perk. ſect. 626. Co. 8. 71. Plow. 132. Co. 5. 111. 8. 71. ſuper Litt. 214. 213. 99. 10. What ſhall be ſaid a good reſervation. And what not

Covenant.

If one grant land, yeelding for rent, money, corne, a horſe, ſpurres, a roſe, or any ſuch like things; this is a good reſervation: but if the reſervation be of the graſſe, or of the veſture of the land, or of a Common or other profit to be taken out of the land; theſe reſervations are void. If one grant a manor, meſuage, land, meadow, or paſture, or the veſture or herbage of land, meadow or paſture, rendring a rent; this is a good reſervation. Co. ſuper Litt 142. Co. ſuper Litt. 47. Co. 5. 3. Perk. Sect. 626.

But if one grant Tithes, rents, commons, advowſons, offices, a corody, mulcture of a Mill; a Faire, market, priviledge, or liberty, reſerving a rent; this reſervation is void: And yet ſuch a reſervation alſo in caſe of the King is good. And in caſe of a Subject alſo, if a leaſe be made by deed in writing of any ſuch thing for a terme of years reſerving a rent; this may be good by way of contract to produce an action of debt, though not as a rent to be diſtrained for: And thus by apt words an apt rent out of manors and ſuch like memorable things, or divers rents may be reſerved upon one grant: Co. 5. 55, Dier. 308, Co. ſuper Lit. 47. 164, 213.

Prerogative.

Debt

As if one grant the Manors of A. B. and C. rendring for A. 20s. for B 20s. and for C. 20s. theſe are good Rents and ſeverall. So if one grant the manors of A. B. and C. rendering 3 l. viz. for A 20 s. for B 20 s. and for C 20 s. this is a good reſervation, but in this caſe the rent is intire. Alſo one may reſerve one Rent one year and another Rent another year, as 10 s. one year, and 20 s. another year, or one may reſerve a Rent to be paid every ſecond or third year, and no Rent the other years; or one may reſerve one kinde of rent one year, and another kinde of rent another year; and theſe reſervations are good. Co. ſuper Lit. 225. 8 H. 7. 9. Bro. Fine 36. Reſervation 4.

And theſe reſervations may be by Fine as well as by Deed, or it may be in caſe where the Leſſor hath a reverſion of the land, or upon a partition to make an equality without any deed at all. But if it be upon an exchange to make an equality, it is not good except it be by deed. If two Joint tenants joine in the grant of their land by deed indented, and the rent is reſerved to one of them; this is a good reſervation and ſhall goe to him alone. But if it be by word or by deed Poll that the leaſe is made the rent ſhall goe to them both. And if a man poſſeſſed of a Terme joine his wife with him, and they both aſſign over this Terme by indenture rendring a rent to them two and the ſurvivor of them, and ſhee doth not ſeale the deed; in this caſe the reſervation as to the wife is void. And if the reſervation be of the rent to a ſtranger that is no party to the deed and to him only, this reſervation is void. And therefore if the father and his ſon and heire apparant by indenture leaſe his land for years to beginne after the fathers death rendering rent to the ſon, it is void. See Brownl. 1. part. 0, 31. 39. 80. Co. ſuper Litt. 214. 143. 47. Dier. 222. Adjudge Mich 8. Car. in Blands caſe. Hobarts Rep. 274. Oates & Fith Co. 3.

10. Condition, what. A Condition is a clauſe of reſtraint in a deed or a bridle annexed and joyned to an eſtate ſtaying and ſuſpending the ſame and making it incertaine whether it ſhall take effect or no.

11. Warranty, what. A Warranty is a clauſe or covenant made in a deed by the one party unto the other, whereby the feoffor, donor or leſſor doth for him and his heires grant to warrant and ſecure land granted to the feoffee, donee or leſſee and his heires during the eſtate.

12. Covenant, what. A Covenant is a clauſe of agreement contained in a deed whereby either party is bound to doe, performe or give ſomething to the other. And of all theſe ſee at large afterwards.

13. How & to what purpoſe a deed of grant in groſſe ſhall enure and be conſtrued and taken. In the Conſtruction of deeds it muſt be conſidered, 1. How a deed in the groſſe ſhall be taken and enure. 2. How it ſhall be taken and expounded in the ſeverall parts and pieces of it. And for the firſt theſe Rules are to be known. 1. If divers joine in a deed and ſome are able to make ſuch a deed and ſome are not, this ſhall be ſaid to be his deed alone that is able, as if divers joine in the grant of a thing by deed & one alone hath all the eſtate and the reſt have nothing in the thing granted; it ſhal be ſaid to be his grant alone that hath the eſtate. And ſo é converſo. If a deed be made to one that is uncapable and to others that are capable, in this caſe it ſhall enure only to him that is capable. 2. A deed that is intended and made to one purpoſe may enure to another, for if it will not take effect that way it is intended it may take effect another way. And therefore a deed made and intended for a releaſe may amount to a grant of a Reverſion, an Atturnement, or a Surrender, or é converſo. Ce. ſuper Lit. 302. Perk. Sect. 66. Dier. 251. Co: 2: 35: & ſuper Litt. 49:

And if a man have two ways to paſſe lands by the common law and he intendeth to paſſe them one way, and they will not paſſe that way; in this caſe ut res valeat it may paſſe the other way. As if a man be ſeiſed of two acres of land in fee, and letteth one of them for years, and after intending to paſſe them both by feoffment maketh a Charter of feoffment and maketh livery in the acre in poſſeſſion in the name of both the acres; in this caſe the acre in poſſeſſion only doth paſſe: but if the leſſee of the other acre atturne then the reverſion of that acre wil paſſe alſo. But where a man may paſſe lands by the Common law or by raiſing of a uſe and ſetling it by the Statute therein many caſes it is otherwiſe.

As if the father make a Charter of Feoffment to his ſon, and a letter of Atturney to make livery, and no livery is made; in this caſe no uſe ſhall ariſe to the ſon. So if a man in conſideration of marriage make a Feoffment with a letter of Atturney to give livery, and no livery is made; in this caſe no uſe will ariſe. And ſo was it held by Ch. Juſtice Popham B. R. for the intention of the parties doth work much in the raiſing and direction of uſes. And therefore it is ſaid that when a man doth intend to paſs land one way it ſhall never paſs another way contrary to his intent: as if one covenant for good conſiderations to levy a fine of Land to the uſe of I. S. and his Heirs, if no fine be levied, no uſe ſhall ariſe upon the covenant. If one by words of Bargain ſell, give and grant, make a Feoffment of his houſe for money, and intending to paſs it by way of Bargaine and ſale and Inrolment the Deed being made there being a Maſter of the Chancery in the houſe whereof the Feoffment is made, he doth acknowledge and deliver the Deed before him, in this caſe if the Deed be not inrolled the conveyance is void and that delivery ſhall not amount to a livery of ſeiſin. Dier 96. 19 Eliz. Thorold & Gordens caſe. Experientia.

to

And yet when the intent is apparent to paſs it one way or another there it may be good either way, as where one doth make a Feoffment in Fee with a Letter of Atturney to make livery, and in the ſame Deed doth covenant in caſe livery of ſeiſin be not had to perfect the Deed to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſes of the Feoffment, in this caſe albeit no livery of ſeiſin be made or atturnement had to perfect the Feoffment or grant, yet if it be in ſuch a caſe where there is a conſideration ſufficient to raiſe the uſes by the covenant, the uſes will ariſe by the covenant. 3. When a Deed may enure to divers purpoſes, he to whom the Deed is made ſhall have election which way to take it and he may take it that way as ſhall be moſt for his advantage. As if a Deed of grant be made by the words Dedi & conceſſi; this in Law may amount to a Grant, Feoffment, Gift, Leaſe, Releaſe, Confirmation or ſurrender, and it is in the choiſe of the Grantee to plead or uſe it the one way or the other. So if a Leaſe for years be made to me of Land for money by the words Demiſe, Grant, bargain and ſell; I may take and uſe this by way of bargain and ſale, or by way of demiſe at my pleaſure. So if one have a Rent out of Land whereof I and my wife are jointly ſeiſed, and he doth by his Deed releaſe, give and grant this Rent to me, in this caſe I may uſe this as a releaſe to extinguiſh the Rent, or as a grant of the Rent as it may make moſt for my advantage. Et ſic de ſimilibus. But where any inconvenience may grow by ſuch an election, there the Grantee ſhall not have an election but it ſhall enure as it may, as where a man may paſs Land by the common Law or by raiſing of uſe and ſetling it by the Statute there ſometimes it is ſo. And therefore if in the ſame caſe before, a Father make a Charter of Feoffment to his ſon and a Letter of Atturney to make livery, and no livery is made; hereby no uſe will ariſe to the ſon as it will in caſe of a covenant. And if a leaſe for years be made of a Manor by the words bargaine, ſell, demiſe and grant, and this is to begin at a day to come; in this caſe it muſt paſs entirely as a demiſe at the common Law or entirely as a bargaine and ſale, and the Leſſee hath not election to take or uſe it otherwiſe or to uſe it for part one way and for part another way. Co. Super Litt. 301, Dier. 251. Ci. 2. 36. Dier 30. 302. Dier 109. 319. Ce. 2. 35. 36.

4. It ſhall enure as much as may be according to the apparent intent of the parties. And therefore it is that if a Feoffment be made of a Manor with an advowſon appendant; or a bargaine and ſale of Land in poſſeſſion and Land in reverſion together be made and the Feoffment is not well executed for want of livery of ſeiſin or Atturnement, or the Deed of bargaine and ſale is not inrolled; in theſe caſes albeit the advowſon may paſs without livery or Atturnement and the reverſion without inrolment, yet becauſe the intent doth appeare to be that all ſhall paſs together, therefore neither the advowſon nor the reverſion will paſs by this Deed. Finches law. 58.

5 When a Deed is made it ſhall enure as it may, and ſo as it may have and take the moſt and beſt effect that may be according to reaſon, as if Tenant for life or years and he in remainder or reverſion in fee joine in a Feoffment by Deed; this ſhall enure in the firſt caſe as the leaſe of the Tenant for life and the confirmation of him in the remainder or reverſion, and in the laſt caſe as the Feoffment of him in the reverſion, &c. and the ſurrender of the Leſſee for years to the Feoffee and no forfeiture of the eſtate in the Leſſee for life. But

But if in this caſe the Feoffment be by word, it ſeems it ſhall enure firſt as a ſurrender of the eſtate of the Tenant for life and then the Feoffment of him in reverſion ut res valeat. And if A. be Tenant for life the remainder to B. for life the remainder to D. in taile the remainder to the right Heirs of B. and A. and B. joine in a Feoffement by Deed, in this caſe this is the Feoffment of A. and confirmation of B. but a forfeiture of both their eſtates whereof the Tenant in taile may take preſent advantage. If Tenant for life grant a rent charge to him in reverſion in Fee, and he by his Deed doth grant this rent over to another and his Heirs; this is a good grant and confirmation alſo to make the rent paſs to the ſecond Grantee in Fee ſimple. So if a Diſſeiſor makea Leaſe for life the remainder to the Diſſeiſee and the Diſſeiſee doth grant the remainder over; this is a good grant and confirmation alſo. If A doe bargaine and ſell his Land to B. by indenture, and before inrolment they doe both grant a rent charge to C. by Deed and after the indenture is inrolled: in this caſe after the Inrolment this ſhall be ſaid to be the grant of B. and the confirmation of A and if the Deed be not inrolled it ſhall be ſaid to be the grant of A. and confirmation of B. If one make a Charter of Feoffment of one acre of Land to A. and his Heirs, and another Deed of the ſame acre to A. and the Heirs of his body, and deliver ſeiſin according to the forme and effect of both Deeds; it ſeemes this ſhall enure by moities, viz. he ſhall have an eſtate taile in the one moity with the Fee-ſimple ex pectant and a Fee-ſimple in the other moity.

Forfeiture.

If two ſeveral Tenants of ſeverall Land joine in a leaſe for years by Deed indented; theſe be ſeverall leaſes and ſeverall confirmations from each of them from whom no intereſt paſſeth and doth not worke by way of Eſtoppell. If B. Tenant for life of C. and he in remainder or reverſion in Fee of the ſame Land joine in a Leaſe for life or years by Deed indented; this ſhall enure during the life of C. as the Leaſe of B: and the confirmation of him in reverſion or remainder, and after the Death of C. as the leaſe of him in reverſion or remainder and the confirmation of B without any Eſtoppell. Plow. 140. 59. Co. ſuper Litt. 302. Co. 5. 15. Co, ſuper Litt. 147. Co: ſuper Litt. 21. Co. ſuper Litt. 45.

Eſtoppell.

If Tenant in taile and he in reverſion grant a rent-charge in Fee, it ſhall be taken the grant of the Tenant in taile and the confirmation of him in reverſion, but when the Tenant in taile dieth without iſſue, it ſhall be taken the ſole grant of him in reverſion. If two Jointenants bee in Fee of an acre of Land and they leaſe it to a ſtranger for life, and the Leſſee grant his eſtate to one of the Leſſors; in this caſe it ſeemes it ſhall enure for a moity by way of grant, and for the other moity by way of Surrender: ſee Brownl. 1. part 141. 2. part 51. 52. 291. Perk. ſect. 80.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord grant his Seigniory to his Tenant and to a ſtranger, this ſhall enure for a Moitie to the Tenant by way of Extinguiſhment, and for the other moitie to the ſtranger by way of grant. If Tenant for life of the grant of a woman ſole grant his eſtate to the husband of the wife, this ſhall enure for the whole by way of grant, Perk. ſect. 81. Dier 140. Perk. ſect. 82 83.

Sect. 11.

If a Leaſe be made for life the remainder for life to a ſtranger and the Leſſee grant his eſtate to his Leſſor; this ſhall enure by way of grant. If there be Lord and two Joint-tenants in Fee, and the Lord grant his Seigniory to one of his Tenants in Fee, it ſeems this ſhall take effect for the whole by way of extinguiſhment, If there be Leſſee for life and the reverſion deſcend to two coparceners, and one of them take a husband and the Leſſee grant his eſtate to the husband and wife; this ſhall enure by way of grant for the whole. If the Diſſeiſee and the heire of the Diſſeiſor (being in by deſcent) make a Feoffement by one Deed and livery of ſeiſin thereupon; this is the Feoffment of the heire only and the confirmation of the Diſſeiſee. Co. ſuper Litt. 372. Co. 7. 14. 1. 147. 148. 5 E. 4. 2.

6. If one have divers eſtates in Land and he make any charge or grant upon or out of it; this ſhall iſſue out of all his eſtate. And if one have a poſſeſſion and an ancient right, and grant a rent charge out of the Land, or make a Leaſe of the Land; this ſhall iſſue out of both the eſtates and it ſhall enure from him having ſeverall eſtates as it ſhall enure from ſeverall perſons having the ſame eſtates, Per. ſ. 592

6. If one that hath a rent charge out of a manor by grant reciting his grant, grant the ſame rent to a Leſſee for life of the manor out of which the rent doth iſſue to have and pertaine to him and his Heirs, and ſurrender to him the Deed; this ſhall not enure to extinguiſh the Rent but by way of grant, of which the Heir of the Leſſee for life may take advantage if he doe not by granting away the rent, purchaſing the reverſion of the manor or making a Feoffment of the manor and thereby committing a forfeiture, or by ſome ſuch like means prejudice himſelf, for by theſe means the rent will be extinct and determined. If a Diſſeiſor grant a Rent to the Diſſeiſee, and he by his Deed doth grant it over to another; or the Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life or gift in tayle the remainder to the Diſſeiſee, and the Diſſeiſee doth grant over this remainder, and the Tenant atturne; theſe grants of the Diſſeiſee ſhall be taken for a grant and a confirmation alſo ne res pereat. If there be Lord and Tenant of white acre and two other acres, and the Lord grant by Deed to his Tenant that he will not diſtrain his Tenant in white acre for his ſervice; this grant ſhall not enure to determine the Seigniory in any part, but as a covenant, ſo that if he doe diſtraine in white acre, the Tenant may have an action of Covenant. If a man have a wood of 100 acres, and he grant it to another for life or years, and that he ſhall cut therein 4 or 5 acres every year; in this caſe albeit the wood be granted and the grant ſhall enure to paſs it, yet the Grantee can cut no more but 4 or 5 acres by the yeare. And yet the Grantor as this caſe is, cannot himſelf cut any of the wood during the time, as in caſe where a man doth grant to another that he ſhall cut every year 4 or 5 acres in ſuch a wood; for in this caſe the grantor may notwithſtanding cut as much as he will. And here note that in all the caſes before according to the conſtruction that the Law makes of the Deed ſo muſt the party that is to uſe it, ſet it forth and plead it, as when it ſhall euure as a leaſe then it muſt be pleaded as a Leaſe, &c: See more in Releaſe Numb. 9 Surrender Numb. 7 Confirmation Numb. 7. Co. ſuper Litt. 302. Perk ſect. 69. Mich. 37 & 38. *Eliz. 14. How a Deed or Grant ſhall be conſtrued and taken in all the parts and branches thereof, Generall Rules.

In the conſtruction of Deeds it muſt be obſerved that there are ſome generall rules that are appliable to all the parts of all kinds of Deeds, and ſome that are appliable only to ſome kind of Deeds and to ſome part of the Deed only. In the conſtruction therefore of all parts of all kinds of Deeds theſe rules are univerſally obſerved. Co. ſuper Litt. 313. Litt ſect. 563. Plow. 160. 154.

1. That the conſtruction be favourable and as neer to the minds and apparent intents of the parties as poſſibly it may be and law will permit. The interpretation of Deeds muſt be favourable for the ſimplicitie of lay men. And the words muſt follow the intent, and not the intent; the words, as if there be Lord and Tenant and the Tenant grant the Tenements to one man for Terme of his life the remainder to another in Fee, and the Lord grant the Services to the Tenant for life in Fee; in this caſe howbeit a grant may enure by way of releaſe, and a releaſe to the Tenant for life ſhall enure to him in remainder and is an extinguiſhment, yet becauſe this is contrary to the intent, it ſhall be taken for a ſuſpenſion only of the ſervices during the life of the Tenant for life, and the ſervices ſhall goe afterwards to his Heire. But if the intent of the parties be apparently againſt law then the conſtruction ſhall not apply the Deed to their intent, as if one give land ro another and his Heirs for 20 years; in this caſe the executor, and not the Heir, ſhall have this land after the death of him to whom it is given. So if one by Deed intending to give land to another, and his Heirs give the Land to him To have and to hold to him, or to him and his aſſigns for ever, without theſe words, [and his Heirs] this is but an eſtate for life at the moſt Doct. & Stud. 39 Litt. cap. 1 Plow. 161. 16 H. 8. 10. Dier. 15. Fitz. Barr. 237. Bro. Don. 14. 17 E. 3. 7. 46 E. 3. 17.

2. That the conſtruction be reaſonable and according to an indifferent and equall underſtanding, and therefore if I grant to another Common in all my Manor. this ſhall be expounded to extend to commonable places only, and not in my Gardens, Orchards, &c. And if I grant to one Eſtovers out of my Manor; he may not by this cut down my fruit-trees. And if one grant me (a Barreſter) a Fee pro conſilio; this ſhall be taken for counſell in Law only. And ſo in caſe of a Phyſitian. And if one grant to me to dig in all his Lands for tinne; I may not by this grant dig under his houſe. And if one grant me Common for all my beaſts; this ſhall be taken for all my commonable beaſts, and not for goats and the like. And if one grant me all his trees in his manor; by this I ſhall not have his apple trees. And if one leaſe to me his houſe and Land to the end that I may make profit thereof in the beſt manner: by this grant I may not proſtrate the houſe or make waſt:

3. That too much regard be not had to the native and proper definition, ſignifications and acceptance of words and ſentences to pervert the ſimple intentions of the parties, for a manor may paſs by the name of a meſuage, or a Knights Fee, if it be uſed ſo to be called, & ſic è converſo, on the other ſide a meſuage by the name of a manor a remainder may be granted by the name of a Reverter, a Reverſion by the name of a Remainder: for the Law is not nice in grants, and therefore it doth oftentimes tranſpoſe words contrary to their order to bring them to the intention of the parties: neither falſe Latine nor falſe Engliſh will make a Deed void when the intent of the parties doth plainly appear. It is therefore held that two negatives doe not make an affirmative when the apparent intent is contrary. Plow. 154. 170. 134 Dier 46. Co. ſuper Litt. 223. 146. 217. Co. 9. 48. 10. 143.

4 That the conſtruction be made upon the entire Deed, and that one part of it doth help to expound another, and that every word (if it may be) may take effect and none may be rejected, and that all the parts doe agree together and there be no diſcordance therein. If a man make a Feoffment of all his Land in D. with Common in omnibus terris ſuis; this Common ſhall be intended in the Lands granted in D. only, and not elſewhere, for it muſt be underſtood ſecundum ſubjectam materiam. The beſt expoſition is from the Coherence, and by that which doth goe before and follow after. It is an ill expoſition that doth corrupt the Text, according to the ſubject matter. Plow 160. 161.

5. That the conſtruction be ſuch as the whole Deed and every part of it may take effect and as much effect as may be to that purpoſe for which it is made, ſo as when the Deed cannot take effect according to the letter it be conſtrued ſo as it may take ſome effect or other; words muſt be underſtood with effect, and that the matter intended may have force. And therefore if an Annuity be granted pro conſilio impendendo, or a Feoffment made ad erudiendum filium, or ad ſolvendum 10s. theſe ſhall be conſtrued conditionall grants without any words of condition, for otherwiſe the party will be without remedy. Lit. ſect. 283. Finches Ley. 60 Plow. 160. 154.

6. That all the words of the Deed in conſtruction be taken moſt ſtrongly againſt him that doth ſpeake them and moſt in advantage of the other party, the words of Deeds are taken moſt ſtrongly againſt the ſpeaker. Co. ſuper Lit. 183. Finches Law 6. Sect. 12.

Forfeiture. And therefore if one ſeiſed of Land in Fee grant it to another, and ſay not for what time, this ſhall be taken an eſtate for life. But this is to be underſtood with this limetation, that no wrong be thereby done, for it is a Maxime in Law. Quod legis conſtructio non facit injuriam. The Law doth injurie to none. And therefore if Tenant for life grant the Land he doth hold for life to another, and doth not ſay for what time; this ſhall be taken an eſtate for his owne life, and not the life of the Grantee, for then it would be a forfeiture. So if one be ſeiſed of ſome Lands in Fee, and poſſeſſed of other Lands for years, all in one pariſh, and he grant all his Lands in that pariſh (without naming them) in Fee ſimple or for life; by this grant ſhall paſs no more but the Lands he hath in Fee ſimple. So if a man have a houſe wherewith there hath been Copyhold Land and other Land uſually occupied; and and he let this houſe and all his Land thereunto belonging; in this caſe and by this demiſe the Copy hold land doth not paſs; for in both theſe caſes then there would be a Forfeiture. But otherwiſe by theſe words all the Lands in both caſes would paſs. Co. ſuper Litt. 112.

7. That if there be two clauſes or parts of the Deed repugnant the one to the other, the firſt part ſhall be received, and the latter rejected, except there be ſome ſpeciall reaſon to the contrary, and therefore herein a Deed doth differ from a Will, for if there be two repugnant clauſes in a will, the firſt ſhall be rejected, and the latter received.

8. That that which is generally ſpoken be generally underſtood, unleſs it be qualified by ſome ſpeciall ſubſequent words, as it may be; for if one be ſeiſed of a manor

9. That if the words may have a double intendment and the one ſtandeth with law, and the other is againſt law, that it be taken in that ſence which is agreeable to law: and therefore if tenant in taile make a leaſe of land to B for term of life, and doe not mention for whoſe life it ſhall be; this ſhall be taken for the life of the leſſor and not for the life of the leſſee, as it ſhall be if ſuch a leaſe be made by tenant in fee ſimple. 9 Ed 4:4.

10. That things doubtfully ſet down be applied to him to whom they doe properly belong. As if I S make a feoffment to one of his own name, and there is a covenant in the deed that I S ſhall deliver the deeds, this ſhall be taken of I S the feoffor and not I S the feoffee. Co 9.48 10.143.

11. That ſuch a conſtruction be made of abbreviations as the deed may not loſe his force, as if one grant tot' ill' Maner' de D & C, if it be but one manor, the words ſhall be taken for totum illud Manerium, if two manors, then it ſhall be taken for tota illa maneria. And here note that moſt of all theſe rules run through all the caſes of expoſition hereafter following, *Fit.Grant.*41:*Plow.*317. *Co.*5.12.22.aſſ. Pl. 61. *Perk:Sect.*110.

Touching things granted theſe rules are firſt to be known.

1. When any thing is granted all the means to attaine it and all the fruits and effects of it are granted alſo and ſhall paſſe incluſive together with the thing by the grant of the thing it ſelfe without the words cum pertinentiis, or any ſuch like words. As by the grant of Conuſance of pleas is granted the Ordinary proceſſe to bring cauſes to judgment. By the grant of a ground is granted away to it. By the grant of Trees is granted withall power to cut them down and take them away, by the grant of Mines is granted power to digge them; and by the grant of fiſh in a mans pond is granted power to come upon the banks and fiſh for them.

The expoſition of the ſeverall parts of the deeds of grant. And howthe words and ſentences therein ſhall be taken.

1. In the premiſſes, and what doth paſs by the grant of a thing.

2 The incident, acceſſary, appendant, and regardant ſhall in moſt caſes paſſe by the grant of the principall without the words cum pertinentiis, but not è converſo, for the principall doth not paſſe by the grant of the incident &c: *Co.ſuper Litt:*152:*Lit. Sect:*572.229:*Co.*4.86,87:8 *H:*7.4:*Bro:Grant:*86.144.43 *Ed:*3.22.*Co.*10.64:*ſuper .Lit.*307.

And therefore by the grant of a reverſion without naming the rent the reverſion after an eſtate taile, for life, or years and the rent reſerved upon the eſtate will paſſe; ſo as the tenant atturne to the grant: but by the grant of the rent the reverſion will not paſſe. So by the grant of a manor, the Court Baron thereunto belonging will paſſe; by the grant of a houſe or ground, the wayes thereunto belonging doe paſſe, by the grant of errable land, the common appendant thereunto will paſſe; by the grant of Mills, the waters, flood-gates, and the like that are of neceſſary uſe to the Mills do paſſe; by the grant of a houſe, the eſtovers appendant thereunto will paſſe; by the grant of a manor, the advowſons appendant and villaines regardant thereunto paſſe; by the grant of a Faire, the Court of Pipowders will paſſe; by the grant of homage or rent, the fealty will paſſe; and by the grant of Eſcuage, homage and fealty will paſſe. But divers things that by continuall enjoyment with other things are only appendant to others, as warrens, leetes, waifes, eſtraies, and the like, theſe will not paſſe by the grant of thoſe other things; and therefore if one have a Warren in his land, and grant the land, by this the warren doth not paſſe. And yet if in theſe caſes he grant the land cum pertinentiis, or with all the profits, priviledges &c. thereunto belonging; by this grant perhaps theſe things may paſſe. And here know that a reverſion may be parcell or appendant to a thing in poſſeſſion, and paſſe by the grant of it, but a poſſeſſion cannot be parcell or appendant to a thing in reverſion. And therefore if one make a leaſe for life of a manor excepting 20 acres of it, and after grant the reverſion of the manor; by this grant the 20 acres will not paſſe. 38 *H.*6.38. *Co.*11.47:50. *Plow.*103. *Bro: Grant:*60.129, *Co.*1:7 28.

So if one be diſſeiſed of an acre parcell of a manor, or of common appendant to the manor and before an entry or recontinuance of the acre or common he grant the manor to a ſtranger; by this the acre of land or common will not paſſe: But otherwiſe it is in caſe where a leaſe for years only is made of parcell of a manor.

And if a leaſe be made for life of 20 acres parcell of a manor, and after the manor it ſelfe is granted; by this the reverſion of the 20 acres is granted and will paſſe alſo. See Brownlo: 1 part. 184. 185. 2 part. 193.

And if a man make a feoffment in fee of an acre of land parcell of a manor, and after repurchaſe it, and then grant the manor; this acre will not paſſe by this grant, for it is not united by the new purchaſe: But it is otherwiſe of trees, for if a man make a leaſe for life of a manor or other land excepting the trees, and after grant the reverſion of the manor or land to another; hereby the trees doe paſſe. And if a man make a feoffment in fee of a manor excepting the trees, and after the feoffee buy the trees, in this caſe the trees are united againe, ſo that if the feoffee ſell the manor, the trees ſhall paſſe with it. If I leaſe an acre of land to which an advowſon is appendant for terme of life reſerving the advowſon, and after doe grant the reverſion of that acre with the appurtenances, hereby the advowſon doth not paſſe. But if I grant the advowſon for terme of life reſerving the acre, and after grant the acre with the advowſon cum pertinentiis; by this the advowſon doth paſſe. If land be appendant to an office, there by grant of the office with the appurtenances the land will paſſe without livery of ſeiſin. And if an office be appendant to land, there by the grant of the one the other will paſſe. 3. That which is parcell or of the eſſence of a thing albeit at the time of the grant it be actually ſevered from it, doth paſſe by the grant of the thing it ſelfe. And therefore by the grant of a Mill, the milſtone doth paſſe albeit at the time of the grant it be actually ſevered from the Mill. So by the grant of a houſe, the dores, windows, locks, and keyes, doe paſſe as parcell of it, albeit at the time of the grant they be actually ſevered from the houſe. 4. By the grant of the land, or ground it ſelfe, all that is ſupra, as houſes, trees, and the like is granted, alſo all that is infra, as Mines, earth, clay, quarres, and the like. And by the grant of a houſe, the ground whereon it doth ſtand doth paſſe. 5. When any matter of intereſt or profit is granted, the grant ſhall be taken largely. But when any matter of eaſe or pleaſure only is granted, as a walk, or the like, the grant ſhall be taken ſtrictly. 6. When a man doth grant all his lands, or all his goods; by this grant doth paſſe not only what he is ſole ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of, but alſo what he is joyntly ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of with another. And ſo è converſo. If two men joyn together and grant all their lands, or all their goods; hereby doe paſſe not only all they have joyntly and together, but all thoſe they have ſole and apart. 7. Some words in deeds are large and have a generall extent, and ſome have a proper and particular application; the former ſort may containe the latter, as Dedi, or Conceſsi, may amount to a grant, a feoffment, a gift, a leaſe, a releaſe, a confirmation, a ſurrender: and it is in the election of the party to whom the deed is made, to uſe it to which of theſe purpoſes he will. And hence it is that if a Lord by the words of dedi & conceſſi grant to his tenant that doth hold of him his rent; or one that hath a rent charge out of land doth grant it to the tenant of the land; that in theſe caſes the rent is extinguiſhed albeit it be by way of grant. But a releaſe, ſurrender, confirmation &c. cannot amount to a grant &c. nor a ſurrender to a confirmation or a releaſe &c. becauſe theſe be proper and peculiar manner of conveyances and are deſtinated to a ſpeciall end. 14 *H.*8.25 Co. 11 50. 14 *H.*8. 1 Co ſuper Litt. 4. 12 *H.*7.25. Plow. 289. 19 *H.*6.4: Co. ſuper Litt. 301. Lit: Sect: 543: 544.

The terms wherby things are granted, expounded.

Amongſt words whereby things doe paſſe ſome are collective, compound, or generall comprehending many things, as hereditaments, lands, tenements, honors, Iſles, villages and the like including lands of ſeverall ſorts and qualities. And ſome words are ſimple or particular, as Meadow, Paſture, Wood, Moore and the like. Co. ſuper Litt. 5: 6 Co. 4. 88.

Hereditament.

The word [Hereditament] is of as large extent as any word, for whatſoever may be inherited, be it corporeall or incorporeall, reall, perſonall or mixt, is an hereditament. By the grant therefore of all hereditaments do paſſe honors, Iſles, Caſtl's, Seigniories, Manors, Meſuages, Lands, Meadows, Paſtures, Woods, Moores, Mariſhes, Furſes, Heaths, Reverſions, Commons, Rents, Vicarages, Advowſons in groſſe, and the like things which the grantor hath in fee ſimple at the time of the grant, whether he hath it by purchaſe or deſcent.

And

And the word [Tenement] is of large extent alſo, and it ſeemes doth comprehend as much as the former. And therefore by the grant of all Tenements will paſſe as much as by the grant of all Hereditaments. Co ſuper Litt:6; 16. Perk ſect. 114,115. 11 *H.*6.22. Bro.Grant,143 *Co.ſuper Litt.*6.*Perk ſect.*411. Tenement.

The word [Land] ſtrictly doth ſignifie nothing but erable land, but in a larger ſenſe it doth comprehend any ground, ſoile, or earth whatſoever. And therefore by the grant of all Lands, doth paſſe errable lands, meadowes, paſtures, woods, moores, waters, mariſhes, furſes, heath, and ſuch like, and the Caſtles, houſes, and buildings thereupon, but not rents, advowſons, and ſuch like things. Alſo by grant of any land in poſſeſſion the reverſion thereof will paſſe. And yet by the grant of a reverſion of land the land in poſſeſſion will not paſſe. *Co.ſuper Litt.*4 *Co.*4.891. *Perk. ſect.*114. *Co.*11.47.50.10.107. Land.

But here it muſt be obſerved that in caſes of grants and gifts of all hereditaments, tenements, or lands, conſideration is had of the eſtate of the grantor, for if a man be ſeiſed of ſome lands in fee, and have other lands for life, or years only, and all theſe are lying within one pariſh, and he grant all his lands, tenements, or hereditaments in this pariſh to another in fee ſimple, fee taile, or for life, and give livery of ſeiſin in the lands whereof he is ſeiſed in fee, in the name of all the reſt; by this doth paſſe no more but his lands whereof he is ſeiſed in fee, for otherwiſe it would be a forfeiture for thoſe lands. But if the livery of ſeiſin be made in any part of the lands he hath for life or yeares, then that part wherein the livery is made will paſſe and no more. And if the conveyance be by bargain and ſale and deed inrolled, then the lands whereof he is ſeiſed in fee ſimple and for life ſhall paſſe, and not the land he hath for a terme of years. And yet if in this caſe the grant be for yeares, then all the lands will paſſe, for then there will be no forfeiture in the caſe. Howbeit it is ſaid in Bro:Done 42. pro lege. That if a man give or grant all his lands and tenements in B, that by this leaſes for years doe not paſſe, and that theſe words doe intend franktenements at the leaſt: Edw:caſe Mich 9:Iac:curia 9 *H:*7:25:Bro:Grant:87:11. *H:*6,22. Note. Forfeiture. Forfeiture.

Theſe words [Honor, Iſle, and Commote] are compound words and of large extent. And therefore by the grant of them may paſſe one or more ſeigniories, manors and divers other lands. Alſo a Caſtel may containe one or more manors. And therefore by the grant of a Caſtel may paſſe one or more manors. And ſo ſometimes è converſo a Caſtle may paſſe by the grant of a manor. But by a Caſtle moſt commonly is ſignified no more but the houſe or building and the parcell of ground incloſed wherein it doth ſtand: Co ſuper. Litt. 5. *Plow.*169. Honor. Iſle. Commote. Caſtle,

This word [Village or Towne] is of large extent alſo. And by the grant of it a manor, land, meadow, and paſture, and divers ſuch like things may paſſe. Co.ſuper Litt 5. *Plow.*168. Town or vilag

This word [Manor] is a word of large extent and may comprehend many things: And therefore by the grant of a manor without the words of Cum pertinentiis doe paſſe demeſnes, rents, and ſervices, lands, meadowes, paſtures, woods, commons, advowſons appendant, villaines regardant, Courts Baron and perquiſites thereof that are in truth at the time of the grant parcell of the manor. *Co. ſuper Lit.*5.58. *Perk:Sect.*116.*Co.*5.11:Plow:168: *Dier:*233:14 *H:*8:1:9: *Iac:*B R:Dyer: 30:8 *H:*7:4:Baintons caſe: *M:*9: Manor.

But nothing that in truth is not parcell of the manor, albeit it bee ſo reputed, will paſſe by the grant of the manor, and therefore if one have a manor, and after purchaſe the lawday or a warren to it, and then he grant away the manor, hereby the lawday or warren will not paſſe. And yet if by union time out of mind they have gotten a reputation of appendancy, perhaps by the grant of the manor cum pertinentiis theſe things may paſſe: By the grant of a manor alſo divers towns may paſſe:

An Honour alſo may paſſe by this name: And ſo alſo may a Caſtle or a hundred: And one manor alſo that is parcell of another manor may paſſe by the grant of that manor whereof it is parcell: *Brownlo:*1:*part:*155:*Co:ſuper Litt.*5:26:*Aſſ:Plow:*54: 2 *E:*3:36:

The word [Knights-fee] is a compound word alſo and may comprehend many things. And therefore by the grant of this may paſſe land, meadow, and paſture as parcell of it. And ſometimes by this doth paſſe ſo much land as to make a Knights fee. And ſome ſay it doth containe eight hides of land. And it ſeems alſo that a manor may paſſe by this name if it be uſually called ſo. *Co.ſuper Lit.*5.*Plow:*168 17 *E.*3.

Grange. The word [Grange] is a compound word alſo, and by the grant of a Grange will paſſe a houſe or edifice: not only where corne is ſtored up like as in barns but neceſſary places for husbandry alſo, as ſtables for hay, and horſes, and ſtables and ſties for other cattle and a curtilage and the Cloſe wherein it ſtandeth at the leaſt. And where land, meadow and paſture &c. belonging to ſuch houſes are called all together by the name of a grange, there perhaps by this word the whole may paſſe. *Co ſuper Lit.*5: *Plow.*167.

Farme. The word [Farme or Ferme] called in Latine firma is alſo a compound word and doth comprehend many things And therefore by the grant of a Ferme will paſſe a meſſuage and much land, meadow, paſture, wood &c: thereunto belonging or therewith uſed, for this word doth properly ſignifie a capitall or principall meſuage and a great quantity of demeſnes thereunto appertaining. Alſo by the grant of all Farmes or all Fermsit ſeems leaſes for years doe paſſe. Co. ſuper. Litt. 5.*Plow.*195 Bro.Grants 155

Oxgange of land. Halfe a Plow land. This word is a collective word alſo, for by the grant of unam bovatam terre, or of one, or of an oxgange of Land may paſſe land, meadow and paſture, and it doth properly intend as much as an Oxe can till. And Iugum terre, or halfe a Plow land is as much as two Oxen can till, and by the grant of halfe a plow land may paſſe meadow, and paſture *Co ſuper Litt.*5.

A Plow land or a Hide of land. The words [Plow land, and a Hide of Land] are Synonyma and are collective words alſo. And therefore by the grant of Carucatam or Hidam terre, or of a Plow land, or of a hide of land may paſſe 100 acres of land; meadow and paſture, and the houſes thereupon, but it doth properly intend as much land as one plow can till in a yeare. *Co:ſuper Litt.*5.*Plow.*167.

A yard of land Halfe a yard land. This word [A yard-land] is alſo collective and doth comprehend many things, but it is not certaine for in ſome Countries it doth containe 20 acres, and in ſome Countries 24 acres, and in ſome Countries 30 acres, by the grant therefore of virgatam terre, or a yard land will paſſe that quantity of land meadow and paſture that is called by this name. And ſo by the grant of halfe a yard, or a quarter of a yard land. *Co:ſuper Litt.*5.

Fold courſe. The word [Fold courſe] is alſo compound, for by the grant of a fold courſe lands and tenements may paſſe: Et ſic de ſimilibus. And finally by the grant of any ſuch compound thing as before for the moſt part there doth paſſe thereby ſo much as in common reputation is accounted part of that thing and is uſually called by that name. *Co ſuper Litt:*6.*Plow:*167.

Parſonage Rectorie, Vicarage. By the grant of a Rectory or Parſonage will paſſe the houſe, the glebe, the tithes and offerings belonging to it. And by the grant of a Vicarage will paſſe as much as doth belong unto it, as the Vicarage houſe &c. 8 *H.*7.1.*Bro. Grant.*86.

Meſuage. Curtilage, Houſe. By the grant of a meſuage, or a meſuage with the appurtenances doth paſſe no more but the dwelling houſe, barne, dove-houſe, and buildings adjoining, orchard, garden, and curtilage. i. a little garden, yard, field, or peece of void ground lying neer and belonging to the meſuage; and houſes adjoyning to the dwelling houſe, and the cloſe upon which the dwelling houſe is built at the moſt. *Plow.*85:15 171.178:569.*Litt:Bro. And ſo much alſo may paſſe by the grant of a houſe; ſo that the quantity of an acre of ground or thereabouts in Orchard, Garden, and out-let may paſſe by either of theſe names, but more then this will not paſſe by the grant that is made in either of theſe words, albeit more have been occupied with it, and albeit more be intended to be paſſed by the grant. And therefore if there be a meſuage or dwelling houſe and divers acres of land thereunto belonging called all together by the name of Hedges:

And

And a grant is made by theſe words; of all that meſuage with the appurtenances commonly called by the name of Hedges; by this grant nothing ſhal paſs but the meſuage, Garden, and curtilage.

And yet if a manor or farme be commonly called by the name of a meſuage, thereby the grant of a meſuage the whole manor or ferme may paſs. And by the grant of a meſuage or houſe and all the Lands thereunto appertaining will paſs all the Land uſually occupied therewith. Alſo by the name of a meſuage a Chappell or a Hoſpitall may be granted. Brownl. 2 part. 53. See before: Litt. Bro. ſect. 185. 160. Bro. Leaſes 55. Plow. 170. 13 Aſſ. Pl. 2. Co ſuper Litt. 4.

Cottage.

By the grant of a Cottage doth paſs a little dwelling houſe that hath no land belonging to it.

Errable land, Meadow, Paſture.

By the grant of all a mans errable land there doth paſs no more but that kind of land. And by the grant of all a mans meadow ground, or all a mans meadows, doth paſs no more but that kind of ground: And by the grant of all a mans paſtures doth paſs no more but the Land or ground it ſelfe imployed to the feeding of beaſts, and alſo ſuch paſtures and feedings as he hath in another mans ſoile.

Wood. Trees

If a man have divers acres or peeces of Wood, and grant to another omnes boſcos ſuos, or all his woods, or all his woods growing in ſuch a place; by this grant doth paſs all the high-wood and under-wood, and not only the wood growing upon the land or ſoile, but the land or ſoile it ſelfe wherein it doth grow.

But in this caſe if the grantor have in the ſame place divers peeces of wood and divers cloſes wherein there are divers trees growing in the hedges; it ſeems in this caſe theſe trees in the hedges ſhall not paſs by this grant in theſe words, eſpecially if the caſe be ſo that the cutting of them will be a waſt. And yet if the grantor have no peeces or groves of wood in the place, nor trees but what are growing in the hedges and grounds, in this caſe it ſeems all the trees except the apple trees doe paſs, but not his hedges and hedg rowes. And in caſe where the trees only doe paſs, as where the grant is of all a mans trees, there ſhall paſs no more of the ſoile but ſo much as ſhall ſerve for the nutriment of the trees, and the owner of the ſoile ſhall have the graſs growing thereupon alſo.

If a man grant to another all his ſalable underwoods within his manor which have been uſually ſold by the owners of the manor with free entrie, egreſs and regreſs for felling, making and carrying the ſame away at all times convenient; in this caſe it ſeemes the ſoile doth not paſs, but the wood only. And yet if thoſe words with free entrie. &c. be omitted, contra. 14 H. 8. 1. Perk. ſect. 116. Co. 5 11. Br. Done 14. Co 5. 11. 11. 50. Curia. Hill. 16. Jac. B. R. Pinchcombs caſe.

If one deviſe, grant and to Terme let a farme with all maner of timber, wood, underwood and hedg rowes except the great oakes in ſuch a cloſe, to have and to hold the Farme for 21 years, in this caſe albeit there be the word Grant, and that the trees be not named againe in the Habendum, yet the other trees doe not paſs by this grant otherwiſe then in other leaſes, and if the Leſſee cut any Timber to fell, it is waſt in him Dier 374. Co. 11. 48.

Tofte.

A Tofte is a place where a meſuage hath ſtood; and by this name in a grant ſuch a thing will paſs.

Bruera Fraſſetum. Alnetum. Salicetum. Selda. Filicetum, Fraxinetum, Lupulicetum. Arundinetum. Roncaria. Iuncaria. Ruſcaria Mariſcus. Mora.

Bruera is a heath or heathy ground. Fraſſetum is a wood or peece of ground that is woody. Alnetum is a wood of Elders, or place where Elders grow. Salicetum a wood of willows or place where willows grow. Selda, a wood of ſallowes, willowes or withies, or place where ſuch things grow. Filicetum is a brakie ground or place where ſuch things grow. Fraxinetum, a wood of aſhes, or place where Aſhes grow. Lupulicetum, a hopyard or place where hops doe grow. Arundinetum, a place where reeds grow. Roncaria or Runcaria a place full of bryars or brambles. Iuncaria or Ioncaria or Iampna (which are all one) a place where ruſhes doe grow. Ruſcaria a place where kneeholme or butchers pricks or broom doth grow Mariſcus a fenne or mariſh ground. Mora, a more barren and unprofitable ground then a marſh.

And

Vacaria. Porcaria Stagnum. Gurges.

And by grant of theſe and ſuch like things, or of 20 acres of ſuch ground, theſe particular kinds only or ſo many acres thereof doe paſs. Vacaria, is a Dairie-houſe. Porcaria, a Swineſtie. Bercaria a Tann-houſe: and by theſe names theſe things will paſs. By the name of Stagnum or Pool, or Gurges a gulfe, the water, Land, and fiſh in the water will paſs. Co. ſuper Litt. 4. 5. Co. ſuper Litt. 5.

Stadium. Ferlingus. Quarentena terræ Selio terræ. Acre of Land, Rood of Land.

By the grant of Stadium, Ferlingus, or Quarentena terre doth paſs a furlong or furrow long, which anciently was the 8 part of a mile. By the name of Selio or porca terre doth paſs a ridge of land which is ſometimes longer and ſometimes ſhorter. By the grant of an acre of Land doth paſs ſo much as in an acre by meaſure in that Country by the Ordinary account and meaſure of the Country. By the grant of a Rood of Land doth paſs 10 pearches the 4 part of an acre. And by the grant of 6 foot in length and two foot in breadth, ſo much only doth paſs. And by theſe and ſuch like names land may be granted. Co Idem.

Mines.

By the grant of Mineras or Fodinas plumbi &c. or Mines of Lead, &c. the Land it ſelfe will paſs if livery of ſeiſin be made thereof, but otherwiſe it ſeems not, and then the Grantee hath by the grant a power to dig only granted unto him. Co. ſuper Litt. 6. Co 5. 12.

Trench.

If one grant to me to dig a Trench in his ground from ſuch a place to ſuch a place to convey water by a lead pipe, or otherwiſe; hereby alſo incluſive is granted a liberty at any time after to dig to amend it as occaſion ſhall be. Perk. ſect. 111.

Turfes.

If one grant to me to dig turfes in his land or ſoile and to carry them away at my will and pleaſure; by this is not granted the land it ſelfe, the houſes or trees thereupon or mines therein. Co. ſuper Litt. 4.

Common.

If one grant to another Common for all his beaſts in his Land; hereby is not granted Common for Goates, Pigges, and ſuch like beaſts and cattell that are not commonable. But if the grant be of common for all manner of beaſts contra. And if one grant to another common without number in his Land, the grantor is not hereby excluded to common there with the Grantee. Brownl. 1 part 53. Co. ſuper Lit. 4. Perk. ſect. 108. 109. Brownlows rep. 1 part in toto. 2. part. 53.

And if one grant to me common of paſture for 10 Kine in his Lands in Dale; by this grant I ſhall have common in his commonable grounds and lands only and not in any other lands. And if a man grant common of paſture to me for my beaſts ubicunque averia ſua ierint, and he occupie 100 acres of Land with his beaſts, and after he keep no beaſts: yet by this grant I may keep my beaſts in thoſe 100 acres. But if he grant to me Common, of paſture for my beaſts whereſoever his Cattle ſhall goe &c. by this grant I ſhall have no common but when the Grantor doth uſe his common with his Cattell, &c.

Eſtovers.

By the grant of Eſtovers will paſs houſe-boot, hay-boot, and plow-boot. But if a man grant to me Eſtovers out of his manor, I may not by this grant cut down any of the fruit trees within his manor. Perk. ſect. 116.

Way.

If Land be granted to me; hereby alſo implicitly is a way thereunto granted to me alſo. So that if one have 20 acres of Land and grant me one acre in the middeſt of it, hereby incluſive there is granted me a way to it. And yet if a man have two Cloſes and he uſe to goe over one of them for his eaſe to the other Cloſe by a new way; and after he grant the further Cloſe cum pertinentiis; by this grant the new way doth not paſs. 14 H. 8. Clar. caſe Trin. 5. Jac. B. R. Per Williams & Yelverton Juſtices. Mic. 3. Jac.

Foreſt, Park, Chaſe, Warren.

If a man have a Foreſt, Park, Chaſe, Vivarie, and Warren in his own ground, and he grant this Foreſt, Park, Chaſe, Vivarie or Warren; hereby not only the priviledge but the Land it ſelf doth paſs. But if the ground be anothers; or if it be his own and the grant be onely of the game, &c. in theſe caſes the Land or ſoil it ſelf will not paſs Co. ſuper Litt. 5. Rice & Wiſemans caſe. Mic. 9. Jac.

Fiſhing.

If a man be ſeiſed of a river, and by his Deed doth grant ſeparalem piſcariam, or aquam ſuam in the ſame, and maketh Livery ſecundum formam cartæ: by this grant doth paſs only a liberty to fiſh within the water, and not the ſoile nor the water it ſelfe: and therefore the grantor may take water ſtill, and if it be drie he may take the ſoile alſo. Co. ſuper Litt. 4. Fitz. Barre 237.

And

And if one grant all his fiſh in his pond; by this is granted a power to come and fiſh for them, but the Grantee may not hereby dig a trench, and let out the water to take the fiſh, albeit they may not be otherwiſe taken.

If one be ſeiſed of 20 acres of land, and he grant to another and his heirs the veſture, or the herbage of it, and maketh livery of ſeiſin in it ſecundum formam cartæ; by this grant doth paſs the corn, graſs, underwood, ſweepage, and the like; and for theſe things the Grantee may have an action of treſpaſs for any wrong done to him in them. But hereby the land it ſelf, the houſes, and great trees thereupon, and mines therein doe not paſs. And if one grant the herbage or veſture of a wood, hereby is granted the graſs and underwood onely, and not the timber or great trees. But if a man ſo ſeiſed of 20 acres of land, grant to another the profits of this land to have and to hold to him and his heirs, and maketh livery ſecundum formam cartæ; hereby the veſture, herbage, trees, mines, and all whatſoever parcell of that land doth paſs. Co. ſuper Litt. 4. Dier 285. Trin. 5. Jac. B. R. accord.

Veſture or Herbage of land.

Profits of lands.

If one grant to another all his Deeds, or all his muniments; hereby will paſs all his charters, Feoffments, Leaſes, Releaſes, Confirmations, Letters of Atturney and the like. 35 H. 6. 37.

Deeds.

If one give or grant to another Omnia bona, or all his goods; by this doth paſs all his moveable and immoveable, perſonall and reall goods as horſes and other beaſts, plate, jewels, and houſhold ſtuff, bowes, weapons, and ſuch like; and his money, and his corn growing on the ground, alſo all the obligations and bils that are made to him, and in his own name doe paſs by this, but not the debts due by ſuch obligations and bils. Co. ſuper Litt. 118: 39 H. 6. 25. Dier 59. Perk: ſect. 115. 12 H. 8. 4. *Bro. Goods.

And ſome ſay that leaſes and tearms of years of Houſes, Lands, Rents, Commons, &c. Rents charge for years, Wardſhips of Tenants in Capite, and by Knights ſervice, and the intereſts that a man hath by Statute Staple, Statute Merchant, or Elegit, doe paſs by this grant, but of this others doubt. And if a man give or grant to another omnia catalla ſua, or all his chattels; hereby doth paſs as much as by the grant of all his goods, and by this without queſtion leaſes for years, &c. doe paſs. But by neither of the grants doe paſs thoſe goods or chattels which the grantor hath by delivery in keeping for another, or the like. Neither doth any eſtate of inheritance or freehold, or the charters concerning any freehold paſs under theſe words. Neither doth any thing in action, as debts or the like, nor hawkes, hounds popinjays, or the like paſs by this grant. And yet if an Executor grant omnia bona & catalla ſua, all his goods, hereby the goods and chattels he hath as Executor as well as his other goods and chattels will paſs. And if one grant all his leaſes for years which he hath by any conveyances; hereby the leaſes for years which he hath as Executor as well as other leaſes for years will paſs. *Per ch. Juſt. B. Chattels, Sect. 15.

If one grant to another all his Utenſils; hereby will paſs all his houſhold ſtuffe, but not his plate, jewels, or any ſuch like thing. Dier 59.

Utenſils,

If a man be ſeiſed of land in Fee-ſimple or for life, and have an eſtate in it for years by Statute Merchant, Staple, Elegit, or the like: and he grant all his eſtate, or all his right, or all his title, or all his intereſt of and in the land; by this grant all his eſtate, and as much as he is able to grant doth paſs. And if Tenant for life of land, the remainder to the ſtranger in taile, the remainder to the right heirs of the Tenant for life doe grant by theſe words; hereby both his eſtates do paſs. And if a Tenant in tail grant all his eſtate in the land, hereby doth paſs as much as he can grant. And all theſe words alſo do cary and paſs reverſions as well as poſſeſſions. And if a man have a terme of years of Land, and he grant his term, hereby doth paſs the term of years, and all his eſtate and intereſt of the Land. Co. ſuper Litt. 345. Litt. ſect. 613. Plow. 161. Co. 1. 153.

Grant of all a mans eſtate, right, &c.

And note that by all theſe names theſe things may be granted, and that for ſuch things as are grantable without Deed, when they paſs by a verball grant in any of theſe words, the words ſhall have the ſame expoſition as they have in Deeds. Fitz. Brief. 581.

Note,

If

Certeintie and Incertein-tie, Miſnaming how it doth hurt or not.

If one grant all his goods in ſuch a place ſi quæ fuerint if any be there, by this grant nothing doth paſs, but the goods that are in ſuch a place at the time of the grant, and not any other goods that ſhall be there afterwards. H. 6.

If two men have goods in common, and have other goods ſeverally, and they give me all their goods, by this grant is given all their goods they have in common, and likewiſe all the goods they have in ſeveralty. Bro. Done 12.

If two Tenants in common, or others ſeverally ſeiſed of Land, join in the grant of a rent of twenty ſhillings, or a horſe, out of the Land whereof they are ſo ſeiſed: by this grant the Grantee ſhall have two twenty ſhillings or two horſes. Plow. 171. 140. Co. 10. 106.

If a man grant a Rent of ten pound to me, To have and to hold during my life and my wives life, and after the death of my wife a rent of three pound to me for my life; in this caſe if my wife die, I ſhall have both the rents. But if there be any words of reſtraint or determination of the firſt rent, it may be otherwiſe. Bro. Gr. 64.

If one be ſeiſed of a garden plot in the pariſh of Sale, and grant it to B. for ten years, which being expired he doth grant his garden plot to C. for twenty one years, and C. doth build a houſe upon part of it, and leaveth the other part in a garden plot ſtill, and after the twenty one years ended, the leſſor doth grant to D. totam illam peciam fundi ſive gardin' plott' nuper in tenura de B & nunc de C. lying in the pariſh of Sale, by this grant the houſe newly built, and the plot of garden doth paſs. *Adjudg. If one grant his Manor of Dale in Dale, which in truth doth extend into Dale and Sale; in this caſe no part of the Manor that doth lye in Sale ſhall paſs. So if one grant all his Tenements in Dale; hereby none of the Tenements in Sale will paſs. So if the Manor lie within the pariſhes of A. B. and C. and the grant is of the Manor of Dale, lying within the pariſhes of A. and B. by this grant no part of the Manor lying in C. will paſs. But if one ſeiſed of the Manors of A and B. in the County of C. grant thus, totum illud Manerium de A. & B. cum pertin' in' Com' C. or totum illud Manerium de A. cum B. in Com' C. by theſe grants in caſe of a common perſon both the Manors will paſs. *Bro. The Exception is always taken moſt in favour of the feoffee, leſſee &c. and againſt the feoffor, leſſor. And yet it is a rule, That what will paſſe by words in a grant, will be excepted by the ſame words in an exception. And it is another true rule, that when any thing is excepted, all things that are depending on it, and neceſſary for the obtaining of it, are excepted alſo: as if a leſſor excepr the trees, he may bring his champman to view them if hee deſire to ſell them, and he or the Vendee may cut them and take them away. And by ſuch an exception the Leſſor will have the boughs, fruit, hierons, and hawks; that breed in them &c. Co. 10. 106, 14 H. 8. 1. 11: 52.

If a man be ſeiſed of a fiſhing from ſuch a place to ſuch a place, and hath a Mill upon the water, and hee grant totam partem ſuam piſcariæ de D, quam diu terræ ſuæ ſe extendunt, ſalvo tamen ſtagno molendini, this exception doth not take away the fiſhing of the grantee in the mill pond, but it ſhall have relation only to the pool to repair the Mill Perk Sect. 646. *Fitz. If one be ſeiſed of a Manor and make a leaſe of it cum pertin' una cum columbar' ac reddit' tenentium, decimis garbarum, finibus, heriot' perquiſit' Cur' & aliis omnibus proficuis, Advocat' Eccleſiæ & Wrecc' except', in this the exception doth begin at Advocat,' Eccleſiæ, and doth except that which followeth, and no more. Dier. 58.

If one grant in fee excepting the trees, or any other thing to the grantor without ſaying [and to his heires;] by this exception the thing excepted is ſevered only for the life of the grantor, and then it ſhall paſſe with the reſt of the things granted. Dier. 264.

But if the thing be excepted indefinitely without saying [for the life of the grantor &c.] nor how long; this shall be taken to be an exception during the estate. Dyer. 264.

The Habendum as all other parts of a deed for the most part, shall be taken most strongly against the grantor and most in advantage of the grantee, yet so as withall it shall be construed as neer the intent of the parties as may be, as in all the cases following doth appear.

In the Habendum or limitation of the estate, and how that shall be taken. Fee simple. Sect. 16.

If land be given or granted to one habendum, or to have and to hold to him and his heires so long as he pay 20l yearly to I S and his heires, or so long as such a tree doth stand, or the like, this is a kind of feesimple, but it is limited and qualified and determinable upon this contingent. And yet this may become a pure fee-simple, for if land be granted to one and his heires untill I S pay 100l and I S die before he pay it, in this case the estate is become a pure fee-simple. Plow. 557.

If lands be given or granted to a man, to have and to hold to him and his heires, this is a fee-simple, pure, absolute and perpetuall; and this is made by these words [his heires] for it is a generall rule that these words [his heires] only make an estate in fee-simple in all feoffments and grants. But this rule hath many exceptions, for if feoffment of land be made to I S & haredibus, without the word [Suis] this is a fee-simple. Co: super Litt: 8. 9: Lit: 1. 27 H. 8: 5: *Perk. And yet if the grant be to I S and I D & haredibus, without this word [Suis] contrà, for this is only an estate for their lives. And if lands be given to a Bishop, Parson or the like, To have and to hold to him and his successors; this is a feesimple. And lands be given to a Maior and Communalty or other Corporation aggregate generally without the word Successors, or any other word, or if lands be given to such a Corporation for their lives, this is a fee-simple. But if lands be given to a Parson, or the like, To have and to hold ro him, without saying how long; or to have and to hold to him for life; by this he hath no more but an estate for life. And if lands be given to the King generally without any other words; this is a fee-simple. So if one grant deo & ecclesiæ de D; it is said this is a fee-simple in the Parson of D. So also of a grant Ecclesiæ de D: per Thirne Iust: So if a grant had beene to he Monkes of such a house, it had been a fee-simple in the house. Co. 6. 27: super Lit: 9: 15 Ed 4. 13. 9 H: 7. 11, 12 H. 8, 9 H. 4: 84. 33 H. 6: 20. *Co: super Litt. And in like manner it is in other cases; As if one recite that B hath enfeoffed him of white acre To have and to hold to him and his heires, and then he saith further, that as fully as B hath given white acre to him and his heirs he doth grant the same to C. by this C the grantee hath the fee-simple of this acre. And if one grant 2 acres to A and B to have and to hold the one to A and his heires and the other to B in forma predicta; by this B hath a fee simple in this other acre, for an estate in fee-simple, fee-taile, or for life, may be made by such words of reference. Also if a rent be granted betweene Pareeners for to make an equalitie of partition; and it bee granted generally and without any words of heires, yet this is a fee-simple. So where lands are given in Frankalmoigne. And so also it is in the cases of a release of right, a fine, and a recovery. See more in Brownlow. Rep. 1 part. 32. 169.

If one give or grant land to another, To have and to hold to him and his heires males, or to him and his heires females; in both these cases there is a fee-simple made, but otherwise it is when these words are in a Will, for then it is but an estate in taile only. 27 H. 8. 27. Lit. Sect. 31. Co. 11. 46.

If one grant land to one, to have and to hold to him and his right heires; by this he hath a fee-simple, And so it shall be taken if it be by fine. So if one grant land to I S for life, the remainder to the heires, or to the right heires of I S, this is a fee-simple: so if one make a feoffment in fee to the use of himselfe for life, and after his death to the use of his heires; this is a fee-simple. 33 H. 6. 5: Co. super Litt. 22. Co: 1. 95. 66.

If one grant land to I S. To have and to hold to him and the heires of I S, this is a fee-simple, and all one with a grant to I S and his heires.

If one grant land to the Wife of I S to have and to hold to her for life, and after to I S in taile, and after to the right heires of I S; by this I S hath a feeſimple. For years: when ſuch a Leaſe ſhall begin and how long it ſhall continue.

When no time is ſet down for the beginning of an eſtate then it ſhall begin preſently, otherwiſe it ſhall begin at the time expreſſed if it may ſtand with Law. If a Leaſe for years be made bearing date the 26 day of May, To have and to hold for 21 years from the date, or from the day of the date; in theſe caſes the Leaſe ſhall begin on the 27 day of May. But if the words be To have and to hold from henceforth, or from the making hereof, in theſe caſes the Leaſe ſhall begin on the day in which it is delivered. And if it be to begin à die confectionis, then it ſhall begin the next day after the delivery. And if it be To have and to hold for 21 years, without mentioning when it ſhall begin, it ſhall beg n from the delivery if there be no former Leaſe in being, and if there be, then it ſhall begin from the time of the ending of that Leaſe. If the Deed have a date which is void or impoſſible, as the 30 of February, or 40 of March, and the terme be limited to begin from the date, then it ſhall begin from the delivery. So if a man by his Deed recite a Leaſe which is not, or which is void, or miſrecite a Leaſe that is in eſſe in point materiall, and then ſay, To have and to hold from the end of the former Leaſe; this Leaſe ſhall begin in courſe of time at the time of the delivery of the Deed. Co. ſuper Litt. 46. Co. 5. 1. 2. 5. Dier 286. 307. Sect. 19.

If one make a Leaſe of Land to A, for 20 years, and then grant it to B, To have and to hold to him from the end of the firſt terme, &c. in this caſe this ſecond Leaſe ſhall begin as ſoon as the firſt Leaſe by what means ſoever ſhall end. But if the words of the ſecond Leaſe be To have and to hold to him from the end of the 20 years, in this caſe the ſecond Leaſe ſhall not begin untill the 20 years be expired. And if one make a Leaſe of white acre to A, for 10 years, and of black acre to B, for 20 years, and then reciting both the Leaſes doth make a Leaſe to C to begin after the former Leaſes; this ſhall be taken reſpective, and ſhall begin for white acre after the end of the 10 years, and for black acre after the end of 20 years. And if one make a Leaſe to two for 60 years, provided that if the Leſſees ſhall die within the term, that then preſently after the deceaſe of the laſt of them longeſt living the Leſſor ſhall reenter, and one of them die, and after the Leſſor doth make a Leaſe to another Habendum, &c. cum poſt ſive per mortem ſurſum redd' vel forisfacturam of the firſt ſurviving Leſſees acciderit vacare for 40. years; in this caſe this ſecond Leaſe ſhall begin after the death of the Leſſee ſurviving, reentry of the Leſſor, or the effluxion of time of the firſt Leaſe which of them ſhall firſt happen, and the Leſſee cannot at his election make it to begin at any other time. Co. 1. 154. Plow. 198. Co. 6. 36.

If a man make a Leaſe for 30 years, and 4 years after make another Leaſe, to another man in theſe words. Noveritis, &c. me A. de B. predictis 30 Annis finitis dediſſe & conceſſiſſe B. de C, &c. Habendum á die confectionis præſentium termino predicto finito uſque finem 21 Annorum: by this the ſecond terme ſhall begin at the end of the 30 years. And if one make a Leaſe to A for 20 years, and after make a Leaſe to B, to have and to hold to him from the end of the firſt terme for 20 years to be accompted from the date of the laſt Deed; in this caſe the ſecond Leaſe ſhall begin at the end of the firſt Leaſe, and theſe words [to be accompted, &c.] ſhall be rejected Dier 261. Craddocks caſe paſc. 7. Jac. Co. B.

If one make a Leaſe of Land to A, for 10 years, and after by indenture grant it to B to have and to hold to him from Michaelmas next for 10 years, and after the firſt Leſſee doth purchaſe the reverſion by which his terme is drowned; in this caſe the ſecond Leaſe ſhall begin preſently when Michaelmas is come. Dier. 112.

If two Jointenants be, and one of them grant the Land to I. S. to have and to hold to him for 20 years, if the Leſſor and his companion ſo long live; by this the Leaſe ſhall continue no longer then they both live together, and when either of them is dead the Leaſe is determined. And if one grant his Land to I. S. to have and to hold to him, his executors, &c. for the terme of 100 years if A, B, and C. live ſo long; and leave out theſe words [or either of them] in this caſe if either of them die the Leaſe is determined. But if the words be To have and to hold for 100 years if A, B, or C, [omitting or either of them] ſhall live ſo long, contra, If a Leaſe be made of Land to the husband and wife to have and to hold to them for 21 years if the husband and wife or any child between them ſhall ſo long live; this is a good Leaſe and ſhall continue for all their lives and for the life of the longeſt liver of them albeit the firſt words be in the copulative.

If a man make a Leaſe for years to 2. if they live ſo long; in this caſe if one of them dye; the Leaſe is at an end. If a Leaſe be made to A, and B, his wife for 21 years if he and ſhe or any child between them lawfully begotten ſhall ſo long live, and after marriage ſhe dye without iſſue, in this caſe the leaſe doth continue notwithſtanding her death, Brownl. 1 part. 180. 181. 2 part 292. Mich. 13. Jac. B. R. Co. 5. 9. Paſch 30. Eliz. Co. B.

If one poſſeſſed of Land for a Terme of years grant the ſame to another, To have and to hold to him, his executors and adminiſtrators, or to him and his aſſignes, or to him, without any more words: or if a man that is poſſeſſed of a terme grant his Leaſe to another, and doth not ſay for what time; it ſeemes in theſe caſes the whole terme is granted albeit no livery of ſeiſin be made. And in the firſt caſe if livery of ſeiſin be made, then it ſeems there doth paſs an eſtate for the life of the Grantee, and therefore that this is a forfeiture of the eſtate of the Leſſee for years whereof he in the reverſion may take advantage preſently. And if a Leſſee for years of Land grant a rent out of the Land generally without any limitation; this ſhall be conſtrued to enure for a grant of the rent ſo long as the eſtate of the Grantor doth continue. But if he grant a rent by expreſs words for the life of the Grantee: by this the Grantee ſhall have it for all the terme, if he live ſo long. Dier 307. 69. Plow. 520. 524, 525. 423. 424. Co. 7. 23.

If one grant Lands to I. S. To have and to hold to him for life reſerving the firſt ſeven years a roſe, & if he will hold the Land over that he ſhall pay a rent in money, and no livery of ſeiſin is made, by this it ſeems in certaine is made a Leaſe for ſeven years untill the condition be performed, and then alſo it ſeems it is a Leaſe for no longer time. And ſo perhaps it will be if livery of ſeiſin be made. Co. ſuper Lit. 218.

If one grant a rent of 5 l. per annum unto I, S. To have and to hold to him, &c. untill he ſhall receive 20 l. in this caſe he ſhall have a Leaſe for four years of this rent. But if Lands be granted to I, S, To have and to hold, &c. untill he ſhall receive 20 l. out of the profits of it, in this caſe if livery of ſeiſin be made, the Grantee hath an eſtate determinable upon the levying of the money, and if no livery be made he hath no eſtate at all but at will. Co. ſuper Litt. 42. Plow. 273.

If one make a Leaſe for life and ſay, that if the Leſſee within one year pay not 20 s, that he ſhall have but a term for 2 years; by this if he doth not pay the money he hath only a leaſe for 2 years, albeit livery of ſeiſin be made upon it. Co. ſuper Litt. 218.

If one make a Leaſe to I. S, To have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. for 10 years if I. D ſhall live ſo long, and I. D. is dead at the time when the leaſe is made; in this caſe I. S. hath an abſolute leaſe for 10 years. Co. 9. 63. 60.

If one grant lands to I, S, To have and to hold to him, his Executors, &c. for 3 years, and ſo from 3 years to 3 years during the life of I, S, or from 3 years to 3 years during the life of the leſſee; by this it ſeemes I, S. hath a leaſe for 6 years and no more. And if one grant lands to I, S, To hold for 3 years and after the end of thoſe 3 years for 3 other years, and after the end of thoſe 3 years for 3 other years during the life of the leſſor; by this it ſeems I. S, hath a leaſe for 9 years and no more. And yet if in theſe and ſuch like caſes where a leaſe is made from ſo many years to ſo many for the life of any perſon livery of ſeiſin be made upon this deed ſecundum formam chartæ; this perhaps may be an eſtate for life. Plow. 273. Co. ſuper Litt. 45. Dier 24.

If

If a Leaſe be made to a widow for 40 years under this condition, that if ſhe ſhall be ſo long ſole and dwell in the houſe, and ſhe lived ſole and in the houſe all her life: it was agreed that the leaſe did continue after her death, Gouldsb. 179.

If Lands be granted To have and to hold from our Lady day pro termino unius Anni, & ſic de uno Anno in unum Annum quamdiu ambabus partibus placuerit; by this the Grantee hath a Leaſe for 3 years only in certain, and afterwards a leaſe at will: And if lands be granted to have and to hold from the Nativity of Chriſt next pro termino unius Anni, et ſi in fine dict' unius Anni ambæ partes placerent, quod eadem præſens dimiſſio foret renovata, tunc habend' præmiſſa to the leſſee, &c. ab & poſt dictum feſtum Nativitatis Domini uſque terminum trium Annorum extunc prox' ſequen'; by this the Grantee hath a Leaſe in certain but for one year only; and if the parties agree again, a leaſe for 3 years. 14. H. 8. 10. Co. 6. 35. 10, 106.

Sect. 20.

If one make a leaſe to I. S, To have and to hold to him for years, and ſay not how many years; by this the leſſee hath a leaſe for 2 years and no more: Co. 6: 35. 21 H. 7: 38.

If one grant his land to I S To have and to hold to him untill I D ſhall come to 21 years of age; in this caſe if I D die before that time, the leaſe is ended: Co. 3. 19.

If a man poſſeſſed of a terme of years of land doth grant the land to another and his Heirs, this by conſtruction will amount to a good grant of his intereſt. Co. 1: 44: 7 H. 4. 42.

If lands be granted to husband and wife, and to I S To have and to hold to them and to the Heirs of the husband and I S; by this the wife hath only an eſtate for life in a moity with her husband, and the husband and I S have the fee-ſimple in Jointenancy to them and their heirs. Dyer 263.

Limitation of eſtates to divers perſons.

If lands be granted to two brothers, or two ſiſters, or to a brother or ſiſter, or to a father and ſon or any others, To have and to hold to them and the heirs of their bodies begotten: by this they have joint eſtates for their lives, ſo that the ſurvivor of them will have the whole for his life, and ſeverall inheritances i. eſtates in general taile by moieties in common one with another. And if lands be granted to two men and their wives and the heirs of their bodies begotten, in this caſe they have joint eſtates for life, and afterwards the one husband and wife ſhall have the one moity, and the other the other moiety in common. And if lands be granted to a man and two women To have and to hold to them and the heirs of their bodies; by this they have each of them an eſtate taile in common with the other. Co. 8. 87. 10. 50. ſuper Litt. 25: Dier 145.

If lands be granted to husband and wife To have and to hold to them and their heirs of their bodies iſſuing, or in any ſuch like manner, by this the wife hath an eſtate taile as far forth as the husband. But if it be granted to them To have and to hold to them and the heirs of the body of the husband, or to the husband and wife and the heirs of the husband which he ſhall have by his wife, or in any ſuch like manner: by this the wife hath only an eſtate for life, and the whole eſtate taile is in the husband. So via verſa, if lands be granted to husband and wife, and the heirs of the wife upon her body begotten by the husband: by this he hath an eſtate for his life only, and his wife the whole eſtate taile. And if lands be granted to the husband To have and to hold to him and the heirs of his body on the body of his wife begotten, or to have and to hold to him and the heirs of his body begotten on the wife he ſhall firſt mary, or to have and to hold to him and his wife he ſhall firſt mary, and the heirs of their bodies begotten: in theſe caſes the husbands have the whole eſtate, and the wives nothing at all. But otherwiſe it is it ſeems, when the eſtate is limited by way of uſe to a man and his wife that he ſhall afterwards mary, for by this it ſeems the wife ſhall take alſo. Lit. ſect. 27. 28. 29. Co. ſuper Lit. 26. Dier 340. Co: 1. 100.

Uſe.

If Lands be granted to A a married man, and to S a married wife and to the heirs of their bodies engendred: by this they have each of them an eſtate taile preſently executed, and whiles the wife of the husband and the husband of the wife live they ſhall hold it for their lives, and if they happen to die, and theſe to intermary and have iſſues, their iſſues ſhall have it according to the intaile: 15 H. 7. 10.

When the Habendum ſhall be ſaid to be repugnant and void. And when not, but ſhall controll, divide or expound the premiſſes.

If Lands be granted to A and B To have and to hold to A for life the remainder to B in Fee: by this A ſhall have the whole for his Life and B the Fee-ſimple afterwards. Dier 126. 56

As touching this matter theſe differences are to be taken. Between things that are granted and between the eſtates, When the things that are granted are ſuch as lye in grant and take effect by the delivery of the Deed only without any ceremony, or take effect by the ſame ceremonie, and when not but another ceremony is required to the perfection of the grant and eſtate. Co. 2. 23. 8. 56. Perk. ſect. 181. 14 H. 8. 14. Co. ſuper Litt. 183.

And when there is an expreſs eſtate made by the Deed in the Premiſſes thereof, and when but an implied eſtate only, as for examples. If one grant Land, Rent common, or any ſuch like thing to one and his Heirs by the Premiſſes of the Deed To have and to hold to him for life, or To have and to hold to him and to his aſſignes, without more words; in this caſe the Habendum is repugnant and void, and by this the Grantee ſhall have an eſtate in Fee-ſimple if livery of ſeiſin and attornment, as the caſe doth require be duly made, for otherwiſe no eſtate at all but at will, will paſs. So if a man grant a Rent, or any ſuch like thing that lieth in grant to one and his Heirs, To have and to hold to him for years: this is a void Habendum, and the Grantee ſhall have the Fee-ſimple. But if a man grant Land to another and his Heirs. To have and to hold, to him for a certain number of years; in this caſe whether he may make livery of ſeiſin or not it is a good Habendum; and by this the Grantee ſhall have an eſtate for ſo many years and no more. So if one grant Land, Rent, Common, or any ſuch like thing to one in the Premiſſes of the Deed without limitation of eſtate (which in judgement of Law is an implied eſtate for life) To have and to hold to him for a certain number of years, or at will; this Habendum is good and ſhall ſtand with the Premiſſes and qualifie it; and by this the Grantee ſhall have but a Leaſe for years, or at will, as the Habendum is. And if one grant Land by the Premiſſes of a Deed to one and his Heirs of his body To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; this Habendum ſhall ſtand, and this ſhall be taken an eſtate taile and a Fee-ſimple expectant. So vice verſa, If Land be granted to one and his Heirs To have and to hold to him and his Heirs of his body; this ſhall be conſtrued an eſtate taile and a Fee-ſimple expectant and ſo both ſhall ſtand together. Co. 8. 154. 21 H. 6. 7. Co. ſuper Lit. 20. Dier 126. & per curiam in Thurmans caſe. Paſc. 16. Jac. B. R. 21 H. 6. 7. If Lands be given to B and his Heirs To have and to hold to B and his Heirs, and if he die without Heirs of his body that it ſhall revert to the Donor, it ſeems this is a Fee-taile only and no Fee-ſimple expectant, Voluntas donatoris in charta doni ſui manifeſte expreſſa obſervanda eſt. Co. ſuper Lit. 21.

If a Leaſe for years be made of Land, and then the Leſſor by the premiſſes of the Deed granteth the Land to another To have and to hold the reverſion of the Land to him, &c. for life; this Habendum ſhall ſtand. So if by the Premiſſes of the Deed the reverſion be granted To have and to hold the Land it ſelf, this is good and both ſhall ſtand together, but nothing is granted in either caſe, but the reverſion Co. 10. 107. 108.

If the next Advowſon of a Church be granted to three to have and to hold to them and either of them jointly and ſeverally; this is joint, and the Habendum is void. And yet if one grant Land to two by the premiſſes of the Deed To have and to hold to one of them for life, the remainder to the other for life, this is not repugnant, but ſhall ſtand together and make the eſtates ſeverall and in remainder one after another. So if a Leaſe be made to two To have and to hold the one moity to the one, and the other moity to the other; by this they have ſeverall eſtates, Expreſſum facit ſemper ceſſare tacitum, Dier 304. Co. 5. 19. Co. 2. 55. ſuper Litt. 183. Dier 106. If a man have a Leaſe for years of Land, and he reciting this, by the Premiſſes of the Deed doth grant all his eſtate in the Land, To have and to hold the Land or the term after his death, or for part of the time only; in this caſe the Habendum is void and the whole eſtate doth paſs immediatly by the premiſſes. Dier 272. Plow. 520. If a Tenant for life ſurrender a moity of his Land and the Leſſor grant it all to a ſtranger To have and to hold the one moity for life and the other moity for 40 years, after the death of the tenant for life; this Habendum ſhall ſtand and enure according to the grant. Dier, 256.

If

If a man ſeiſed of land in fee make a leaſe for life of it to one, and after grant the reverſion of it to another to have and to hold the reverſion and the tenements aforeſaid cum poſt mortem forisfact' &c. vacare acciderit; in this caſe the Habendum and premiſſes may ſtand together: It is uſuall in the Habendum of a deed to ſet down to what uſe the party to whom the deed is made ſhall have the thing granted. But touching this and the matters that doe concern uſes ſee Vſe infra at large. And ſee alſo more for the Expoſition of Deeds in Teſtaments Numb:8. Grant Numb 4: Leaſes cap:14. Numb.4. And here note that parol-agreements & conveyances have the ſame conſtruction for the moſt part made upon them as are made before upon deeds. And therefore if a man by word of mouth without any writing grant all his lands in dale to I S to have and to hold to him for life, but doth not ſay for whoſe life; this ſhal have the ſame conſtruction as ſuch a grant made in writing hath. Curia paſ:7 Iac. Co. B. Note.

This is alwaies taken moſt in advantage of the feoffee, grantee, leſſee, &c. and againſt the feoffor, grantor, leſſor, &c; and yet ſo as the rent be paid during the time. Co.5.111.10:106.8.71. Co. ſuper Litt.47:213,214. Goldsb.148.

In the reſervation of Rent. And how that ſhall be taken. Sect. 21.

And therefore if the reſervation be only to the feoffor, grantor, &c. and the deed doe not ſay alſo [to his heires, executors &c.] this reſervation ſhall continue only for the life time of the grantor and ſhall determine with his death. And ſo alſo it is where the reſervation is to the feoffor or his heires, in the disjunctive, for in this caſe the rent ſhall continue only during the life of the grantor. And yet if one make a leaſe for years rendring yearly during the ſaid terme to the leſſor or his heirs or executors; this is a good reſervation during all the terme, by reaſon of theſe words [during the terme.] So if the feoffor, or leſſor be ſeiſed in fee, and make a feoffement in fee, or leaſe for life or years, rendring rent to the feoffor or leſſor or his executors or aſſignes; in this caſe the rent ſhall continue only for the life of the Leſſor. Plow. 171. 21 H. 7. 25. 27 H. 8. 19. Dier 45.

But if the reſervation be to the Feoffor, or Leſſor, his Heirs and aſſignes, in the copulative, or in the disjunctive to him or his Heirs, or to him and his ſucceſſors (if it be the leaſe of a Corporation) during the terme; then all the aſſignes of the reverſion ſhall enjoy it. And if the reſervation be thus, yeelding and paying ſo much rent (without any more words,) this ſhall be taken for all the time of the eſtate and ſhall goe to him in reverſion accordingly. And if the reſervation be, rendring ſo much rent during the ſaid terme, and doth not ſay to whom; in this caſe it ſhall be conſtrued to be to him that hath the reverſion, and accordingly it ſhall be paid and ſhall continue during the term. So held in the caſe of Bland M. 8. Car. B. R.

But if A be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and make a Leaſe for years of it rendring rent to A [without ſaying To his Heirs, &c.] during the ſaid terme; this rent ſhall continue only during the life of A and no longer. And yet if A be poſſeſſed of a terme only, and make an under-leaſe or aſſignement with ſuch a reſervation; Quere.

If the reſervation be thus. Yeelding and paying 20 s. during the ſaid terme, omitting the word [yearly] this ſhall be taken to be not once only but yearly during the terme, and accordingly it muſt be paid. And if a Leaſe be made for years, rendring in every middle of the yeare, quolibet medio Anni 20 l this ſhall be paid during the terme. 27 H. 8. 19. Paſ. 21. Iac. Hudſon & Brent B. R.

If one by Deed indented grant Lands to A, To have and to hold to him for life, the remainder to B, and the Heirs of his body, and for default of ſuch iſſue to remaine to D, in taile, or for life, yeelding therefore yearly, &c. in this caſe the reſervation ſhall extend to all the eſtates. Co. 10. 107.

If a Leaſe be made the 10 day of Auguſt, rendring rent at our Lady day and Michaelmas; in this caſe albeit our Lady day be firſt named, yet the firſt payment ſhall be at Michaelmas next after the making of the Deed. Dier 130. Co. 5. 111. ſuper Litt. 217.

If the reſervation be at Michaelmas or within 20 daies after: in this caſe the 20 day ſhall be taken excluſive. But if the rent be to be paid at Michaelmas or by the ſpace of 20 daies after, in this caſe the 20 day ſhall be taken incluſive. Per Williams & Yelverton Inſt. Ch. Inſt. contra 9 Iac. B. R.

If a leaſe be made in December, from the Nativity of Chriſt next for one yeare with this addition, Et ſi in fine dicti Anni ambæ partes agrearent quod eadem dimiſſio foret renovata tunc habend' & tenend' premiſſa dicto I S (the leſſee) ab & poſt dictum feſtum tunc proxim' ſequen. uſque finem trium Annorum. Reddendo inde Annuatim durante dicto termino dict. W: S: &c. in this caſe the reſervation ſhall relate to both the terms, and the rent ſhall be paid the firſt yeare although they doe not agree to renew the leaſe. *Co.*10.106.

If two Jointenants by deed poll, or by word make a leaſe for life reſerving a rent to one of them; this ſhall goe to them both. So if one of them be tenant for life and the other in fee, and they joine in a leaſe for life, or gift in taile reſerving a rent; the rent ſhall enure to them both. But if tenant for life and he in reverſion joine in a leaſe for life, or gift in taile by deed reſerving a rent, the rent ſhall enure to the tenant for life only during his life and after to him in reverſion. *Co: ſuper Litt.*214.

If two tenants in common make a leaſe of their land rendring 20 s. rent; this ſhal be but one 20s and not two 20 s. So if the leaſe be rendring a Hawke or a Horſe; by this they ſhall have but one Hawke, and one Horſe, and not two Hawkes or two Horſes, as it ſhall be in caſes where they doe joine in the grant of ſuch things out of their land. *Plow.*171:289: *Co:*10:106.

If one make a gift in taile of two acres of land, the one at the common law, and the other in Burrow Engliſh rendring an oxe to him and his heires, and the donee having two ſons die, and the eldeſt ſon doth inherite the one acre, and the youngeſt ſon doth inherit the other; in this caſe the donor and his heires ſhall have but one oxe &c. *Co.*10.106.

If one make a leaſe of land for years if the leſſee live ſo long, and after the leſſor by his deed indented doth grant the land to another to have and to hold the reverſion to the grantee for his life cum poſt mortem &c. aut aliter acciderit vacare reddend' inde Annuatim to the grantor and his heires cum reverſio predicta acciderit 9s. 4d. per Annum; in this caſe this reſervation of rent ſhall not begin before the reverſion happen in poſſeſſion. *Co.*10.107.168:

Of an Action of Debt.

THis word Debt is ſometimes taken for a ſum of money, or other thing which is owing or due from one man to another, whether by writing or otherwiſe; And ſometimes it is taken for the mean it ſelf to recover this thing, and then it is ſaid to be an Action given, or a Writ lying where any ſum of money or other thing is due to a man, upon, or by reaſon of a Judgement or Recovery in Law, Obligation, or other Eſpecialty, Account, Loan or Contract to be paid at a certain day, at which day he payeth it not, then he to whom it is due ſhall have this writ to recover it. New terms of the Law. F. N. B. 119. Ed. 4. 1. In this place it is taken ſometimes in the one, and ſometimes in the other ſignification and conſidered as the Debt of a Common perſon and as the Debt of the Lord Protector. What it is. Sect. 1.

The Action of Debt (whereever it lyeth) is ſometimes grounded on matter of record, as either on an act of Parliament, or a Judgement, Statute, or Recognizance, or the like. And ſometimes it is grounded on matter in fait: And that either in writing, as an Obligation, Bill, Covenant, or other eſpecialty, or elſe without writing, as an Arbitrement, Eſcape, Receipt, Paroll-contract, or the like. This Action may be had and brought in any of the common Law-Courts as the upper Bench, or Common pleas, or other Courts that have Juriſdiction. But if the Debt be under 40 s. the proper places to ſue for it is in the County, or Hundred-Court, or a Court-Baron. And if the Debt be under 40 s. and owing by one that doth live within the City of London, or the liberties thereof, untoſuch a one alſo, and be not grounded on a reall contract, the party is bound by a ſpeciall Law to ſue for it in the Court of Requeſts for the City of London, for if he ſue for ſuch a petty debt in any other Court, he ſhall pay the Defendant Coſts, and yet ſhall recover no coſts in his ſuit againſt the Defendant, F. N. B. 119. 3. Jac. ch. 15.

No Action of Debt or Treſpaſs or other perſonall Action may be brought in the Common-pleas, where the Debt or Damages doth not amount to 40 s. or upwards. Glouc. cap. 18. N. B. 61. But by joyning two Debts together for divers contracts together in one writ, the force of this Statute is avoided, See Cromp. Jur. 101.

The party himſelf to whom the Debt is originally due, whileſt he doth live, muſt bring the Action for it in his own name, and after his death his Executors or Adminiſtrators may and muſt have the Action where there is cauſe. And if the Executor be under age, the Adminiſtrator durante minori ætate. And if there be divers Executors who have taken upon them the Executorſhip, after the death of ſome or one of them, the ſurvivor or ſurvivors muſt have the Action: And when they are all dead, the Executor of the laſt ſurvivor: And ſo when there is but one Executor, and he doth accept and die, the Executor of the Executor, and ſo in infinitum ſhall have the Action. And if an Executor die inteſtate, there muſt be an Adminiſtrator made de bonis non adminiſtratis of the firſt Teſtator, and he muſt have the Action; But the Ordinary or Adminiſtrator of the goods of an Executor may not have this Action for a Debt due to the firſt Teſtator, unleſs withall he have an Adminiſtration de bonis non adminiſtratis of the Teſtator which is uſuall, Dyer 24. 20. Ed. 4. 20. Co. 3. 9. Dyer 471. Brownl. 2 part. 207. 2 By whom this Action may and muſt be brought, and who may bring it, and who not. Sect. 2. Executor.

An Heir may not nor muſt have this Action for a Debt due to his Anceſtor, nay not albeit it be due upon an Eſpecialty made to him and his Heirs, but the Executors muſt have the Debt and ſue the Action, F. N. B. 120. Heir.

The Executors or Adminiſtrators, not the ſucceſſors of a Biſhop, Parſon, Vicar, Maſter of Hoſpitall, or the like, muſt bring this Action for the Debt due to the predeceſſor.

But

Executor. But if a Debt be due to a Corporation aggregate, as Mayor and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, or the like, in their politique capacity, there the Succeſſor not the Executor muſt ſue for it. If there be divers Executors, and one of them ſell ſome of the goods (as he may if he will) in this caſe he alone may ſue in his own name for this. If one grant to me a Rent in Fee, and if it be arrear, to forfeit 40 s. to me and my Heirs, nomine pœnæ, and I die ; my Heir, not my Executor muſt have the Action for the penalty paſt, Co. 4. 65. Old, N. B. 62. 34 Ed. 2. 9. F. N. B. 120.

Heir.

Againſt whom it may or muſt be brought or not. Sect. 3. Executor. This Action may and muſt be brought againſt the party himſelf that doth originally owe the Debt, whilſt he is living. And after his death it may and muſt be brought againſt his Executor if he make any, and the Executor made do take on him the Executorſhip ; otherwiſe againſt the Adminiſtrator appointed by the Ordinary, or if he appoint none, againſt the Ordinary himſelf ; And if the Ordinary die poſſeſſed of the goods againſt the Executor of the Ordinary. And if the Executor die after he hath accepted the adminiſtration, then the Action muſt be brought againſt the Executor of the Executor ; and ſo in infinitum if any ſuch Executor be made. But if none ſuch be made, then againſt the Adminiſtrator de bonis non ad-adminiſtratis. And if the Adminiſtrator of the firſt inteſtate die inteſtate, alſo it may be brought againſt the Adminiſtrator of that Adminiſtrator, being Adminiſtrator de bonis non adminiſtratis. But it doth not lie againſt the Executor of an Adminiſtrator for the Debt of the inteſtate, F. N. B. 120. Dyer 271. 160. 174. 112. Co. 5. 9. Weſtm. 2 Cap. 19. Brownl 2 part 97.

Heir. It lyeth and may be had againſt an Heir upon an Eſpecialty made by his Anceſtor ; if thereby he hath bound himſelf and his Heirs, otherwiſe not.

Husband and Wife. It lieth and muſt be brought againſt the Husband and Wife for the Debt of the Wife, during the Coverture.

It lieth and may be had in ſome caſes upon a contract againſt an Infant : For which ſee Contract.

Heir. If one grant me a Rent-charge out of his Land, and the Rent is behind, and after the Grantor make a Feoffment of his Land to another, and then the Rent is behind again, and then the Feoffee makes a Feoffment of it to another, or makes a gift in tayl, Leaſe for life, or years, or at will, or makes a gift in tayl with the Remainder over in Fee, and then more Rent is behind. In theſe caſes if I or my Executor ſue for this Rent, I muſt bring my Action againſt every one of them for the Rent due in the time of his occupation of the Land only. So if the Land charged deſcend to the Heir of the Grantor, and from him to his Heir ; in this caſe every Heir ſhall be charged for the Rent due to his time., Qui ſentit commodum ſentire debet & onus Co. 7. 34. Stat. 32 H. 8. 37. Co. 4. 50. If I make a Leaſe for years to A and B rendring Rent: and A aſſign his part of the term to C and B die ; in this caſe I may have one Action of Debt againſt C and the Executors of B, and I am not bound to have ſeverall Actions. Curia Co. B. M. 4: Jac. Bayly & Burgeſſe de Ipſwicks Caſe.

Heir. An Action of Debt lieth not againſt the Heir of a Conuſor upon a Statute, nor againſt the Terre-Tenant, as it doth againſt the Conuſor himſelf, Co 3. 15.

Executors. It lieth not againſt the Executors or Adminiſtrators of a Leſſee for years, for a Rent reſerved on the Leaſe, where the Leſſee in his life time, or his Executors or Adminiſtrators after his death, have aſſigned over their whole tearm, Co. 3. 23.

If a Purveyor, Taker or Clark of the King, had contracted with me for any thing for the Kings houſe, in this caſe if he had been paid and allowed it from the King, I may ſue him, otherwiſe I muſt have ſued to the King for it, Broo. Det. 62.

Where this Action is brought for money due to a man in his own right, there he ſhall bring his Action in the Debet, i. the Writ ſhall run in this form ; it ſhall have both theſe words Debet & Detinet contained in it. But where the Action is brought for Rent, Corn, Cattel or Hens, or the like, reſerved on a Leaſe for years, or the Action is brought by or againſt Executors, there it ſhall be in the Detinet only i. it ſhall have this word only, and not Debet in the Writ. If one bind himſelf to me in a ſingle obligation, or by a verball Contract, to pay me money at ſeverall daies, as quarterly or otherwiſe ; or I make a Leaſe of perſonall perſonall things, rendring Rent at ſeverall daies; in theſe caſes I may not bring this Action for any part of this Debt, untill all the daies be incurred, and then I may bring it for all together: And therefore if one bind himſelf ſo by bill to pay me xx l. a year during my life, in this caſe no Action may be brought for this untill I am Dead, and then my Executors may recover it all. So if I ſell another a Horſe to pay me five pounds a year, untill a 100 l. be paid, this Action will not lie untill all the money be due but (it ſeemes) I may have an Action of the Caſe upon every failer. But if one be bound to pay me money after this manner, by Recogniſance, the Condition of an Obligation, a Covenant, or the reſervation of Rent upon a Leaſe made of a reall thing; in all theſe caſes I may have this Action upon every failer of payment, *F. Action of the Caſe.

5 Where and in what caſe this Action or Writ lieth & is maintainable, and in what manner and where not Sect. 6.

If an Act of Parliament give a Penalty or Forfeiture to any perſon, and this Action to recover it, there this Writ lieth, and the party may have it accordingly. As a Parſon may have this Action upon the Statute of 2 Ed. 6 againſt a Parochian for not ſetting out of his Tythes. So any man that is grieved by the falſe retorn of a Sheriff for a Knight of the Parliament, may have this Action and ſhall recover 100 l upon the Statute of 8 H. 6. cap 7. 1 H. 5. cap. 1. But where the Statute doth limit a time within which this Action muſt be brought, the Action cannot be had after that time, Plow. 78. 200. 113. 15. Ed. 4. 19. *Bro. Upon an Act of Parliament.

Upon a Judgment or other Record.

If I have a Judgement in any Court to recover any Debt, Damages or Coſts in any Action, Reall or Perſonall, againſt another man; before Execution be done, or the money paid, I may have this Action of Debt for the things ſo recovered, or ſo much of it as is unpaid and not levied by Execution, and recover it by that means, and refuſe to proceed or take my remedy on the Judgement. But then theſe three things muſt be in the caſe. Co. 5. 31. Dyer 21. 5. H. 7. 21. F. N. B. 122. 1 It muſt be a year after the Judgement be had, ere the Action be brought, 5 Ed. 4. 1. 20. H. 6. 11. 2 The Judgemeut muſt be of a thing certain; for if the demand be of a thing uncertain, as if one have a Judgement in an Action of Treſpaſs, or any ſuch like Action, before the damages be certain, no Action of Debt will lie for them, Couper verſ. Longworth. Hill. 40. Eliz. B R. 3 The Judgement muſt continue in force, for after it is actually reverſed, no Action will lie upon it; but untill then, albeit there be manifeſt error in it, I may have this Action well enough. But if a Woman the Wife of a Copyholder, recover her Dower by cuſtom of a Manor in the Lords Court of the Mannor and recover damages alſo; ſhe may not have this Action of Debt to recover theſe damages, Co. 4. inter le Copyhold Caſes. f. 30. 6. Brownl. 1 part 72.

If a man enter into a Statute Merchant or Statute Staple, or Recognizance to me, after it is certified by Mittimus, I may have a Writ of Debt upon it, and recover the Debt by this means, and refuſe to proceed upon the Statute or Recogniſance by any other means: or I may ſue Execution upon the Statute at my pleaſure. But if I once ſue Execution upon the Record, I cannot after have this Action of Debt, Co. 3. 15. Dyer 219. F. N. B. 222. Dyer 300. p. 34.

If I recover an Annuity in Fee againſt another, and after ſue a Scire facias upon this Judgement, and thereupon have Judgement to recover it with damages; in this caſe I may have this Action of Debt to recover theſe arrearages and damages, and wave my proceeding upon the Judgement. F. N. B. 122. Litt. Bro. ſect. 25.

If in account before Auditors the Bayliff be found indebted to his Lord, the Lord may have this Action againſt him for this Debt, and wave his proceedings in the Account, and then it ſeems the Bailiff muſt not be committed to Priſon, Dyer 21. 21 H. 6. 8.

If the Kings by their Patent had granted to me a ſum of money out of the Cuſtom of London, yearly for life or years, and hereupon I have a Writ of Liberate to the Cuſtomer to pay it, and this be delivered to him, and he have Aſſets at that time in his hands: if he refuſe to pay it me, I may have this Action to recover it: So if I had had a Taile out of the Exchequer to the Kings Collector, to receive a Debt due to me from the King, and I ſhew it to him, and he hath Aſſets at that time in his hands, and yet doth not pay me, I may have this Action to recover it, *F. If Upon a contract by ſpecialty, either in writing or otherwiſe.

If one doe by Obligation, Bill, Covenant, or other Writing, undertake or bind himſelf to pay me money or deliver me Corn or the like by a day, and do not perform it accordingly, I may have this Action againſt him, his Heirs or Executors, as the caſe is. And if it be by Covenant, I may at my choiſe have this Action, or an Action of Covenant to recover the thing F. N. B. 120. New Book of entries: 191. Plow. 439. Curia Hil: 7. Ja. Co. B.

For a penalty.

If one grant a Rent to me and my Heirs in Fee, and grant moreover that if it be unpaid a certain time, that he will forfeit, and pay to me and my Heirs 40 s. Nomine pœnæ; in this caſe if he fail to pay the Rent at the day, I or my Heirs after my death, may have this Action to recover this penalty, F. N. B: 120. Dyer 24.

If a man by his Deed bind himſelf to do and perform divers things by ſeverall Covenants, and by the ſame Deed binds himſelf in twenty pounds Nomine pœnæ to performe the ſame Covenants; in this caſe if he break any one of them, I may have this Action for the 20 l. 22. H. 6. 5. If one borrow my Horſe untill ſuch a day, and do promiſe me to reſtore him that day, or elſe pay me ten Pounds for him; in this caſe if he do not reſtore the Horſe, I may have this Action for the 10 l. *F: N. Executor.

But if A Covenant that his Executor ſhall within a year or ſuch a time after his death, pay 10 l. to B; in this caſe no Action of Debt will lie againſt the Executor, becauſe it did not lie againſt A himſelf, but an Action of Covenant will lie. So if the Covenant be conditionall, as that if A do not pay to B 10 l, A will pay it: So if it be in the disjunctive to do ſuch an Act, or pay 10 l: if it be not done, an Action of Covenant lieth, not of debt; but if both be to be done by the Covenanter (viz.,) 10 l. if not 5 l. ſuch a day, *Contra. For Rent.

Covenant.

If I being ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tayle, or for life, of land, or of any incorporeall inheritance, as Common Advowſon, Fairs, Markets or the like, make a leaſe for years of this to another, rendring Rent, and the Rent be unpaid at the time of paiment; in this caſe I during my life, and my Executors or Adminiſtrators after my death, may have this Action for theſe Arrearages againſt the Leſſee, or if he be dead, againſt his Executors or Adminiſtrators: and ſo alſo may my Heir or Executor, as the caſe is, after my death, have this Action for the Rent to come.

Heir.

And albeit the leaſe be on condition to re-enter for not-paiment of Rent, and I do re-enter by force of the ſame condition, yet I may have this Action for the Arrearages due before; and albeit the leſſee ſurrender his Eſtate to me, and I do accept it, yet I may have this Action for the Arrearages due before the ſurrender; and albeit the Leſſee for years aſſign over his Eſtate to a ſtranger; yet I that am the leſſor may have this Action for the rent to come againſt the leſſee, while he doth live, or the Aſſignee, at my choice: but if after the Aſſignment I grant away the reverſion, or die, or the Leſſee die; in all theſe caſes neither I nor the Grantee of this reverſion ſhall have this Action: and yet if in this caſe the Aſſignement had been but of part of the land, or of all the land, but for a part of the time only; here the Grantee of the reverſion may have this Action for the rent paſt or to come againſt the firſt leſſee, and after his death againſt his Executors or Adminiſtrators: And if I grant the reverſion to a ſtranger, and the leſſee or Tenant attorn, the Grantee of the reverſion ſhall have this Action for the rent that ſhall grow due after the grant, Co. 10. 127: 20. Ed. 4. 9, Co. ſuper Litt. 47. F. N. B. 120. Co. 3. 23. 65: F, N. B: 121. 5. H. 6. 34. A man makes a leaſe for years to *I. And if I be poſſeſſed of a Tearm of years only, and make a leaſe for all or part of my time to another rendring rent, I may bring an Action of Debt for this Rent upon this Contract. So alſo if I make a Leaſe to another of my Land, to hold at will only rendring Rent; I may have this Action for the Rent; and in all theſe caſes it is not materiall whether the Leaſe be in writing or no, unleſs it be in caſe of the demiſe of incorporeall things, as Commons, Advowſons or the like, which will not paſs without Deed, Litt. ſect. 72.

But

But if I have a Rent-ſervice, Rent-charge, or Rent-ſeck in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life; as if one make a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for mine own or anothers life to me, rendring Rent; or one grant a Rent in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life to me: In all theſe caſes, ſo long as this Rent doth continue, and I have any other remedy for it, I may not have this Action to recover the Arrearages by the Common-Law, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes. But if the Eſtate on which the Rent depended, or if the Rent it ſelf be ended, or the Land out of which it doth iſſue be come into another hand, ſo that all remedy doth now fail; in theſe caſes this Action will lie. See for this divers Examples afterwards, and the Statute of 32 *H.*8. *c.*37: which is, That the Executor or Adminiſtrator of him that hath Rent or Fee-farm, in Fee, in Tail, or for life, ſhall have this Action for this Rent againſt him that ought to pay it. So that now if one make a Leaſe for life rendring Rent, and the Rent is Arrear, and the Leſſor dieth, the Executors may have this Action during the life of the Tenant for life, Dyer 13.*p.*60. *Lit.*203. *Co ſuper Lit.*47. *Co.*4.50. 7.20. *Co.*7. 78,79. So if a Rent be granted to a man for his life, Habendum after the death of his wife, and he enter into a Statute to me, who after have an Extent, and the Rent delivered to me by a Liberate; in this caſe I may not have this Action for the Rent againſt the Terre-tenant ſo long as the Extent doth continue, but afterwards I may, Brownl. 1 par. 103. So if there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord demiſe his Manor or Seigniory to me for years, and the Rent of the Tenants is behind; I that am the Leſſee of the Seigniory cannot have this Action for the Rent during the Leaſe, but afterwards I may. So if Leſſee for life be of a Manor, and the Rents be Arrear, and the Tenant ſurrender his Eſtate, he ſhall have an Action of Debt for the Arrearages. So if the Tenant die, his Executors or Adminiſtrators ſhall have this Action, 9 *H.*7.17. *Co.*7.79. *F.N.B.*121.

If one have an Annuity or a Rent-charge for years, and it be behind during the Leaſe, and after it is ended; he may have this Action for it during the Leaſe, and after it is ended. Per three Juſtices, Paſch. 10 Car. at Serjeants-Inne. If a Parſon or Prebend, &c. have an Annuity, and the Annuity is behind, and the Parſon or Prebend reſign or die: In the firſt caſe he himſelf, and in the laſt caſe his Executors or Adminiſtrators ſhall have this Action for the Arrearages before. But as long as this Annuity, and the thing to which it belongs did continue, this Action will not lie for it, Co. 4. 48,49. F.N.B. 120, 121.

If the ſon be Lord, and the father Tenant by a certain Rent, and the Rent is Arrear, and the Tenant die, and the Tenancie deſcend to the ſon, ſo that the Rent is extinct; yet it ſeems the ſon may have this Action for the Arrearages by the Statute, Co. 4. 49. Quære. If my father grant a Rent-charge out of his Land to me his ſon in Fee, and the Rent is Arrear, and my father dieth, and the Land doth deſcend to me, (whereby the Rent is extinct:) In this caſe, if my father did not make his Election in his life-time by Diſtreſs and Avowry for this Rent, I may have this Action of Debt for the Arrearages incurred in his life-time againſt the Executors of my father, *Co.*4. 49. 45 *Ed.*3. tit.Executors, 71.

If one grant a Rent-charge to me out of his Land for his life, provided that it ſhall not charge his perſon, and then he die, ſo that this Land cannot now be charged becauſe the Eſtate is ended; in this caſe I may have this Action againſt the Executors or Adminiſtrators of this Grantor, notwithſtanding the Condition, Dyer 227. *Co. ſuper Lit.*146.39. If the Husband be ſeiſed of any Eſtate in any Rent or Farm in the right of his Wife, and he die, his Executors may have this Action for the Rent by the Statute of 32 *H.*8. *cap.*37.

If a Woman have a Rent for her life, and it is unpaid while ſhe is ſole, and after ſhe is married, and then it is Arrear again; in this caſe the Husband may have this Action for all theſe Arrearages before and after marriage, after the death of his wife. *Co.*4.51. *F.N.B.*12.

If I make a Leaſe to a Feme-covert for life, rendring Rent, and the Rent is Arrear, and ſhe die; in this caſe I may have this Action againſt the husband for the Rent during the coverture, and after his death againſt his Executors. So if a man grant a Rent-charge to me for life out of his Land, and the Rent is Arrear, and the Grantor make a Feoffment of this Land to another, and after the Feoffee make a Feoffment to another, and there is Rent behind again in both their times, and then I die; in this caſe I in my life-time, and after my death my Executor may have this Action for theſe Arrearages: But we muſt ſue every one ſeverally for the Rent due in his time, F.N.B. 121. 26 *E.*3.64. *Co.*7.39. *Co.*4.50. 11 *H.*4. *fol. ult. If a man promiſe me Twenty pounds to marry his daughter, and I do marry her, I may have this Action for this Debt, F.N.B. 120. See Brownl. 1 par. 20. 74. 34. See Contracts.

If I buy twenty Quarters of Corn of another, or make a Leaſe of years rendring unto me a Quarter of Wheat weekly; in theſe and ſuch like caſes I may have this Action for this Debt. And in divers other caſes where a Contract that is Executory is good, and there is a good Conſideration for it, this Action will lie upon it, F.N.B. 119. Dyer 22. 9 *H.*7.5. See for this more in Contract and Aſſumpſit.

Upon a Retainer. If another retain me to do any lawful work or ſervice for him, and I do it accordingly, and he refuſe to pay me for it, I may recover it by this Action. And if we do agree for a ſum in certain, or the Law do ſet down the certain wages for that work; as for a Serjeant his Fee for pleading, or an Attorney his Fee for profecuting of a cauſe, or the like; in ſuch caſes I muſt bring the Action for that certain ſum. But in other caſes where our Agreement is not ſo certain, as where I put my Cloth to a Tailor to make a garment, or the like; in theſe caſes I muſt bring my Action generally, and I ſhall recover as much as a Jury will give me, *F.N.B.*120. Old N.B. 62. *F.N.B.*121. *Co.*7.10. 8. 147. 12 Ed. 4. 9. A Barreſter cannot have this Action or any other for his Fees for giving of Counſel, as a Serjeant or Attorney may; and therefore he is not bound to give Advice before he have his Fees. So was the opinion of Mr. Juſtice Bridgman: & Curia in le Marches de Wales, 7 Car. Alſo in Trin. 8 Car. B.R. That a Sollicitor cannot have an Action for monies laid out upon any Suit, without an expreſs Retainer to lay out monies for him in ſuch a Suit, and an expreſs Promiſe to pay ſuch ſums, Brownl. 1 par. 73. 2 par. 99.

If a Sheriff, Gaoler, or other Officer that hath a man in Execution at my Suit for Debt or Damages, do after ſuffer him wilfully or negligently to eſcape, and do not take him again before I commence my Action; in this caſe I may have this Action againſt him that did ſuffer this Eſcape, and thereby ſhall recover as much of him as the Debt or Damage was. So if the Suit were for Treſpaſs, or for Debt upon a Deed, and the party deny his Deed, ſo that he is fined, and afterwards taken by a Capias pro fine within the year at the ſuit of the Keepers of the Liberty; if the parties that have taken him ſuffer him to eſcape, I may have this Action. But if the Arreſt be on a mean Proceſs, as Latitat, Capias, and the like; there this Action will not lie for the Debt of the Suit whereupon the Proceſs came, but an Action of the Caſe will lie: And if it be after Execution, yet it doth not lie for this Eſcape againſt the Executors or Adminiſtrators of him that ſuffered it, Plow. 35. Co. 3. 52. Dyer 278. *F.N.B.*121. Dyer 27. 21 *H.*7.23. Brownl. 1 par. 84. 119. Upon an Eſcape. Action of the Caſe.

If a Sheriff levy money upon a Fieri facias of another mans goods at my ſuit, I may bring this Action againſt him; or if he die, againſt his Executors for it. *March f.*13. *pl.*33.

See for Remedy againſt the Warden of the Fleet, if he take Bail of a Priſoner in by Judgment, or let him go at large. Stat. 1 R. 2. 12.

If one receive money of another to my uſe, or to deliver to me, or from me, to deliver to another, or to beſtow for me, and he doth not diſpoſe it accordingly; in all theſe caſes I may have this Action for the money, or I may have a Writ of Account, Dyer 21. 42 Ed. 3. 9. Broo. Condition 6. 38 *H.*6. 9. If the Lord levy Aid of his Tenants to make his Son Knight, or to marry his Daughter, and die before his Son or Daughter have received it; in this caſe the Son or Daughter may have this Action againſt the Executor of the Lord for it, and if he have not Aſſets, it lieth againſt his Heir, Brownl. 1 part 51. 82. Upon a Receipt.

If a Fine or Amercement be impoſed on a man in a Court Leet after any offence; or one do forfeit a ſum of money by the breach of a By-law; in theſe caſes and for this money, the Lord may have this Action of Debt, *Co.*8. 123. But a Lord of a Manor cannot have this Action for a Relief or Eſcuage due to him, but if he die his Executors may have this Action, for they have no other remedy; and it is as a flower faln from the ſtock; neither may the Lord have this Action for Aid to make his Son Knight, or marry his Daughter, nor for a ſum of money upon a pretence of an unreaſonable cuſtom, as to have thirty pound of every one that ſhall break the pound within his Lordſhip, or the like, Co. ſuper Littl. 47. 83. 7 H. 6. 13. Littl. Broo. Sect. 176. 21 *H.*7. 40. For a Fine or Amerciament. For a Relief.

If another and I do refer any differences between us to Arbitrement, and the Arbitrators Award the other to pay me ten pound, I may recover this money by this Action: But if we did enter into Obligation each to other, to ſtand to their Award, I cannot have this Action for the ten pound, and ſue him upon the Obligation alſo, F. N. B. 121. 33 H. 6. 2. But for the further opening of this, we muſt know this, Brownl. 1 part 55. 134. Upon an Award.

And as to this thing, theſe things are further to be known.

1. That Freemen of London, for Debts under forty ſhillings, have a ſpecial way to recover the ſame in the Court of Requeſts, St. 3 Jac. 15.

2. There is alſo a ſpecial way to recover Debts againſt them that make fraudulent Conveyances of their Eſtate to deceive their Creditors, and come not in upon Summons, by Stat. 2 *R.*2: parl. 2.3.

3. Remedy againſt the Priſoners in the Fleet, that to ſhift from others pretend debt to the King. See Stat. 1 R. 2. 12.

Sect. 8. What ſhall be ſaid a good Plea or Bar to this Action, and what not.

It is a good Plea to this Action grounded upon a Statute or Judgment, That the Plaintiff hath ſued out and made Execution upon the Judgment or Statute: But regularly no matter in fait, as Paiment or the like, is a good plea to this Action grounded on a Record, Dyer 299. *p.*34. 22 *Ed.*4.6. 6 *H.*4.6.

If the Action be grounded on a Real Contract, as if it be for Rent on a Leaſe of years, it is a good Plea in bar to the Action to plead any of the matters following, viz.

1. That the Leſſee was ejected out of the Land by a ſtranger that had title paramount, that entred and kept him out.

2. That the Leſſor entred upon all or part of the Land demiſed before the day of paiment of the Rent, and doth keep out the Leſſee always, ſo that he cannot take the profits; for if the Leſſee re-enter, this is no Plea.

3. That the Leſſor had nothing to do with the Land demiſed at the time of the making of the Leaſe; but if the Leaſe be by Deed indented, then this is no Plea.

4. That the Rent was paid at the day, and that there is nothing Arrear; and though the Leaſe be by Indenture, yet Paiment is a good Plea.

5. Or that the Plaintiff hath diſtrained for it, and recovered the money by that means, and ſo levy by Diſtreſs.

6. But it is no good Plea to ſay, That the Houſes demiſed were ſo ruinous, that the Leſſee could not dwell in them, and that the Leſſor by Covenant or Cuſtom ought to repair them, Dyer 299. p. 34. 22 Ed. 4.6. 6 *H.*4.6. Dyer 82. *Co. ſuper Lit. f.*47. Dyer 212. *p.*37. *Co.*3.22. 10.127. 37 H. 6. 10. Dyer 28. 27 *H.*6.10. Dyer 20.6.

If the Action be grounded on a Perſonal Contract in Writing, as upon an Obligation or other Eſpecialty, if it be ſingle, or with Condition to pay money at a day; it is a good Plea to ſay he paid or tendred, and the other refuſed the money at the day of paiment: Or that he hath performed the Condition of the Obligation; or that the Plaintiff ſued the ſame Obligation once before, ſuppoſing the Condition was broken, and was barred therein. But in caſe of a ſingle Bill, Paiment is no good plea, Co 5.43. Dyer 256.51. 1 *H.*7.14. So neither for a ſingle ſum in a Bill penal, 1 *H.*5.7. otherwiſe to the double ſum in a penal Bill, for there paiment of the ſingle ſum is a good Plea. And regularly no matter, unleſs it be in Writing, is a good Plea to an Action grounded on an Eſpecialty; as that the money was paid after the day, and the Obligation delivered up, and the Plaintiff came by him actually again. So Arbitrement or Accord with ſatisfaction, is no Plea, 21 *Ed.*4.41. Lit. ſect. 338. *Co.*1. 113. Lit. Bro. ſect. 106. 8 *H.*7.3. *Co.*5.43. Dyer 51. 1 *H.*7.17.

If it be a Debt on a Contract without Eſpecialty, in which Action wager of Law doth lie; it is a good Plea, That before this time the Plaintiff brought another Action for the ſame Debt, and the Defendant waged his Law and barred the Plaintiff therein: Or that the Plaintiff brought an Action of the Caſe for the ſame Debt before, and recovered the ſame therein; or that he oweth nothing, but hath paid the Plaintiff, *Co.*4.94. But in this caſe upon a Parol-Contract without Eſpecialty, it is no good Bar to ſay, That there is a Decree in Chancery, that the Plaintiff ſhall releaſe the Debt, and take no advantage of it: Or if it be for Goods ſold, That the ſame were taken from the Buyer by one that had right before the day of paiment, or that the Plaintiff agreed that the Defendant ſhall keep it for another Debt the Plaintiff did owe to him, or that a ſtranger hath made an Obligation to the Debtee for the ſame Debt, Fitz. Bar 75. Co. 3. 22. 28 H. 6. 4. And whether the Debt be grounded on an Eſpecialty or not, generally a good Releaſe of the Debt from the party to whom it is owing, his Executor or Adminiſtrator; or that the Defendant did give, and the Plaintiff accept ſomething elſe in recompence thereof, it is a good Plea in Bar. But to ſay that the Plaintiff upon a Juſticies had a Judgment for the ſame ſame Debt in the County-Court, it ſeems is no good Plea, unleſs Execution be done upon it. Or in an Action for Rent, or a Leaſe, to ſay, That he hath beſtowed it in Reparations by the commandment of the Leſſor, is no good Plea. Or to any Action of Debt, That he did grant the Debtee that he ſhould levy it upon his Land, *Co.*6.49. 9 *Ed.*4.50. 34 *H.*6.17. *Bro. Det.*29. Brownl. 1 par. 70, 71.

Sect. 9. Where and by what means a Debt ſhall be diſcharged or extinct, where not.

If the Debtor make the Debtee his Executor, and he accept it; or if the Debtor take the Debtee to husband or wife; or if two or more be bound in an Obligation to a Feme-ſole, and ſhe take one of them to husband; in all theſe caſes the Debt is gone and diſcharged, *Co.*8.136. *Plo.*364. 11 *H.*7.4. 21 *H.*7.29. *Brow.*1 *p.*71.76.109.

If a Judgment be had on an Eſpecialty, the Debt upon the Eſpecialty is gone: And if a Debt be upon a Contract, or Arrearages of Account, and after the Debtee take an Obligation from the Debtor for the money; in this caſe the Debt upon the Contract is gone; (But if the Obligation be made by a ſtranger, contra.) For ſo long as the Judgment is in force, or the Obligation in being, the Creditor cannot ſue upon the Obligation in the firſt caſe, or the Contract or Account in the laſt, F.N.B. 120. M. Dyer 21. Co. 6. 45. 28 H. 6.4. See Extinguiſhment, Releaſe, Apportionment. But if one promiſe to a woman, That if ſhe will marry him, he will leave her worth an Hundred pounds at his death if ſhe overlive him: In this caſe their ſubſequent marriage will not determine this Debt, but that after his death ſhe may recover it of his Executor, Smith verſ. Stafford, Paſch. 17 Jac. Co.B.

If a Debt be due to me on an Obligation, and I take a Statute for this Debt from the Obligor; this doth not determine the Debt due by the Obligation, but I may ſue upon either of them at my election; and if I ſue upon the Obligation, it is no good Bar to plead the Statute, *Co.*6.45. Brownl. 1 *par.*71,72,&c. For Debt againſt a Hundred on a Robbery, ſee it in *Chap.*3. So much for the Debt of a Common perſon.

Debt of the Lord Protector.

Now as touching the Debts due to the Lord Protector, theſe things are to be known. 1. That his Debts ariſe commonly by Rents, Recogniſances, Fines, Iſſues or Amerciaments, and as Iſſues upon Jurors, and Accompts of Officers. 2. Theſe are all called in by, and brought in to the Exchequer; for they are ſent from all other Courts, and certified in thither, and by authority thence called and fetch'd in. 3. This is done for the moſt part by the Sheriff and his Under-Officers. 4. It is done ſometimes by Diſtreſs only, ſometimes by Diſtreſs and Sale of Goods, ſometimes by Seiſure of Lands and Goods, and ſometimes by Sale of Goods and Lands. 5. The Lord Protector hath a large remedy to recover his Debts. (See for this Prerogative.) 6. Yet the Sheriff and his Officers have many charges upon them in this. For,

The duty of the Sheriff and his Officers in the Collection hereof.

1. They are not to levy any Debt of his upon Lands or Rents, ſo long as the Debtor hath Goods and Chattels to ſatisfie. 2. They are not to meddle with the Surety, ſo long as the Principal is ſufficient. 3. They are not to ſell the Diſtreſs taken for his Debt, within fifteen days. 4. If the party diſtrained can ſhew a Tally, and will give Security for his appearance in the Exchequer upon the next Accompt, they are to deliver the Diſtreſs. 5. They may not take any mans Cattel without good authority and Order from ſome Court. 6, Nor take ſuch Diſtreſſes as are forbidden, nor abuſe them after they are taken. See for this Diſtreſs. 7. The Sheriff having received any Debt, muſt upon demand of the Debtor, and without Fee, ſhew his Proceſs for the levying of it, and give a Tally to the Debtor thereof. 8. He muſt anſwer that any of his Servants imployed by him do receive. 9. He having received any Debt, muſt ſee that upon his next Accompt he do diſcharge the Debtor thereof. See for theſe things Mag. Charta 8. 18. Weſtm. 1. 19. Articuli ſuper chartas, 12. Stat. 13 Eliz. 4. 14 Eliz. 7. 27 Eliz. 3. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 18. CHAP. LXV.

Of Disability.

Disability and Nonability, what. The kinds.

DIsability (as we take it largely) is an incapacity, incapability, or impotencie of some persons for some causes to have and enjoy some benefit, or do some act, that another may have or do: As to give or convey Lands or Goods; to make a Will, and appoint an Executor; to have Land by discent, or to have and enjoy a Legacie, or any other Testamentory benefit; or to sue and bring Actions, or to have or enjoy dignities and honor. And this sometimes is absolute, as of an Infant, Monk, or other Religious person, or man attainted of Treason or Felony, who cannot by any means make any Conveyance or Gift of their Lands or Goods, but it will be avoidable. So the Heir of one attainted of Treason or Felony, is disabled to be Heir to his Ancestor. And sometimes this Disability is only secundum quid; as of a woman Covert, or man of Non-sane memory, who cannot convey or grant by Deed, nor be bound thereby: But if they do it by Fine or Recovery, (as they may) it is not avoidable. So the King cannot grant, nor take any thing but by matter of Record. A Bishop could not grant but for his life, without the Dean and Chapters Confirmation; nor the Parson or Vicar, without the Confirmation of the Patron and Ordinary, and the like. A man that hath one Benefice eight pounds in the Kings books, is incapable of another, unless he be first qualified according to the Statute.

Infant. Monk. Woman-covert. Ideot.

And this is sometimes personal or temporal only: As when by Act of Parliament one is disabled to have his dignity, or some other thing for his life only; or where a Monk is disabled to have lands or goods; in this case it reacheth not to any other. And sometimes it is perpetual, and shall extend and reach to the prejudice of others: As where one is attainted of Treason or Felony, this is an absolute and perpetual disability to any of his posterity to claim any Hereditament in Fee-simple, either as Heir to him, or to any other Ancestor paramount him, because the blood is corrupt by the Attainder. See more of this in Wills and Testaments, who may make an Execution, or give his Goods, and who may take, accept, and enjoy it. And some men are disabled in some particular things; as men that have no skill, to take upon them Offices they cannot execute: And no man is therefore capable of the Grant of a Judicial Office in Reversion, Co. lib. Inst. fol. 3. 1 par.

But Disability (as it is taken strictly and most properly) is an Exception taken against a Plaintiff by the Defendant in some Action, That the Plaintiff is not able to sue any Action against him, and for that he demandeth the Judgment of the Court whether he shall answer or no, and prayeth that the Writ may abate. And this Exception (for the most part) must be taken at the very first, before the Defendant have answered or delayed it by imparlance, or else it comes too late. And this Disability also is sometimes absolute, as of an Outlawed man that cannot sue by any means; or secundum quid, as of a woman Covert, who may sue, but it must be with her husband, for otherwise she is disabled to sue. See Husband and Wife, 26 H. 8. 1. 3 H. 6. 36. 44 Ed. 3. 27. 16 Ed. 4. 4.

Wife.

What are causes to disable a man to sue, or not.

If a man be condemned in a Præmunire, outlawed, excommunicated, or professed in Religion in any Abbey, Priory, or Friery; he can bring no Action real or personal in his own right, or as for himself; neither can he sue in any other Court of Equity, (but as Executor to another he may) so long as he remains so. But after the impediment removed, (i.) Pardon in the Præmunire or Outlawry, or Reversal of the Outlawry, Absolution in the Excommunication, or Dearraignment in case of Religious profession, he may bring any Action as before. See Co. upon Lit. fol. 12ª, 129, 130.

Person outlawed.

So

So a Villain in his own right could not ſue his Lord; but as Executor to another he might have ſued him, Co. ſuper Lit. 2. H. 6. 30. Executor.

So an Alienee cannot bring any real or mixt Action againſt any perſon; and an Alien-enemy cannot bring any Action real or perſonal at all: For which ſee Alien at large. Co. ſuper Lit. fol. 129. Alien.

A man attainted of Treaſon or Felony cannot ſue, Co. ſuper Lit. f. Nor can a perſon that is a convict Recuſant, ſue whiles he is ſo. Perſon attaint. Recuſant convict.

But there are divers Exceptions out of theſe general Rules: For every one of theſe in ſome ſpecial caſes may ſue; and in ſome caſes the Diſability is but for the time they are ſo, but in ſome it is perpetual. In ſome caſes the Writ doth abate, and the cauſe of Action is gone: As if he ſue for Debt on a Specialty, and is outlawed, then it is the Kings. In others the Writ doth not abate. See for this Co. ſuper Lit. 124. But if a man be outlawed, and bring a Writ of Error to reverſe that Outlawry, or any other Outlawry; theſe Outlawries in this caſe are no diſability to him. So in an Audita Querela brought by a Defendant in Priſon upon an Outlawry, that Outlawry is no diſability to him to ſue in this caſe; nor in a Writ of Error to reverſe the Outlawry. It is no diſability to the Mayor and Commonalty, that the Mayor is outlawed. An Outlawry in Cheſter or Durham is no diſability. Ideots, Mad-men, and ſuch as be deaf and dumb, be not diſabled to ſue: And when an Ideot doth ſue or defend, he muſt do it in perſon; but an Infant or Minor ſhall ſue by a Procheine-Amy, (i.) next Friend, and defend by Gardein, 29 Aſſ. 47. 7 H. 4. 39. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 128.

Many are not diſabled to purchaſe, that are diſabled to hold; as Aliens, and men that have committed Felony or Treaſon: But after Attainder in the laſt caſe, and Office found in the firſt, the King will have it from the Alien, the Lord from the Felon: And if he were attainted, yet he may purchaſe; but in that caſe the King will have it until he be pardoned, and after pardon he is capable: So of Corporations that purchaſe in Mortmain, 49 Aſſ. pl. 2. 49 Ed. 3. 11. What perſons are diſabled to purchaſe, or not.

A Monſter born within lawful matrimony, that hath not humane ſhape, cannot purchaſe, much leſs retain any thing: So neither can they that are civiliter mortui, as Monks, and the like. Monſter.

An Hermaphrodite may purchaſe according to the ſex which prevaileth: So may perſons deformed having humane ſhape, Ideots, Mad-men, Lepers, Deaf, Dumb, and Blind men, Minors, and all other reaſonable creatures, are able to purchaſe and retain Lands or Tenements. See more in Grants; and there alſo what perſons are diſabled to make Feoffments or Grants, Co lib. Inſt. 1 par. f. 42. Hermaphrodite.

CHAP. LXVI.

Of Diſcontinuance of Lands.

1. Diſcontinuance, what.

The kind of it.

Sect. 1.

DIſcontinuance is either of a Proceſs, or of a Poſſeſſion. Of a Proceſs or Suit; where by ſome negligence or default, or the like, a Plaintiff hath loſt his time in his Action, and for that cauſe his Suit is diſmiſſed the Court, and put without day; and then the party hath no remedy, but to begin his Suit again. Or of a Poſſeſſion; which may be either of Demeſn, or of Copihold-lands, Tenements, Rents, Commons, Advowſons, &c. And that is, when the party that is preſent Owner of the Land doth grant ſome larger or greater Eſtate then he hath, and thereby doth diveſt the Inheritance or Eſtate which ſhould or ought to have come to another: As when Tenant in Tail, for life or in fee, in the right of his wife, or Church, or houſe, do alien their Lands or Tenements they do ſo hold, for longer time then the Law doth enable them; this is called a Diſcontinuance. And in this laſt ſenſe it is here taken; and it is properly where he in Reverſion is ſo out, as he cannot enter. But it is taken for the diſplacing of a Reverſion, where the Entry is not gone, Lit. 140. Co. upon Lit. 325. Noy, ch. 27.

2. The fruit of it.

The fruits and operations of this are divers and contrary: For ſometimes by this the Entry of him that hath right is gone, and he is put to his Action: Sometimes an Entry and Action are given, and may be had preſently after the Diſcontinuance: And ſometimes the Entry and Action both are gone, and the party whoſe Eſtate is deveſted is perpetually eſtopped and debarred to require the ſame, as in the Examples ſubſcribed may appear, Co. 1. 84. Co. 10. 96.

3. What ſhall be ſaid a Diſcontinuance to take away and bar Entry, or not.

By Tenant in Tail.

If a Tenant in tail make a Feoffment in fee, Gift in tail, or Leaſe for any other life then his own, (not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. c. 28. ut infra) before or after he hath iſſue; this is a Diſcontinuance of the Eſtate-tail, and takes away Entry; and puts the Iſſue, if it be to go to him after the death of the Tenant in tail, to his Writ of Formedon in Diſcender; and if it be to go to him in Remainder, it puts him to his Formedon in Remainder; and if it be to revert, it puts him to his Formedon in Reverter. Co. 1. 84. Plow. 137. Dyer 12. Lit. fol. 140. See Co. 3. 89.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in tail, and the Tenant for life levy a Fine to his own uſe, and after the Tenant for life and he in Remainder join in a Feoffment by Letter of Attorney; this is Diſcontinuance of the Eſtate-tail, and the Fee. Dyer 324.

If a Tenant in tail leaſe for years, and after make a Feoffment with Letter of Attorney, and the Attorney come to the houſe in the abſence of the Leſſee, and command the Servant of the Leſſee to come forth of the houſe, and he doth ſo, and the Leſſee doth after agree to it; this is a Diſcontinuance. Dyer 363.

Sect. 2.

If the Tenant in tail be diſſeiſed, and after releaſe with Warranty to the Diſſeiſee, this is a Diſcontinuance. So if one releaſe or confirm to the Tenant for life, Lit. 135. Co. 144. 3 H. 4. 9.

If a Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for the life of the Leſſee, and after grant the Reverſion, and the Leſſee attorn, and after the Leſſee for life die during the life of the Tenant in tail, and then the Grantee of the Reverſion enter; this is a Diſcontinuance. So in this caſe, if the Tenant for life after Attornment had aliened in Fee, and the Grantee of the Reverſion had entred for a Forfeiture, Lit. f. 134. 139.

If a man be Tenant in tail of an Advowſon in groſs, and another preſent by uſurpation, and the ſix moneths do paſs, and then the Uſurper do grant the Advowſons to a ſtranger in Fee, this is a Diſcontinuance quodammodo: For a Releaſe with Warranty to the Grantee, will bar the Iſſue, 21 H. 7. 40.

If

If there be Tenant in tail, the Remainder in tail, the Remainder in fee, and the Tenant in tail make a Feoffment to him in Remainder in fee; this is a Diſcontinuance of the middle Remainder in tail, Co. 1. Chudleighs Caſe.

If there be Tenant in tail, the Remainder in fee, and the Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for life, and after grant the Reverſion in fee to another, and the Leſſee attorn, and after the Grantee of the Reverſion die without heir, and the Reverſion eſcheat, and after the Tenant for life die, ſo that the Reverſion is executed; this is a Diſcontinuance, Co. 1.

If a Tenant in tail endow his Mother, and ſhe grant the Land to A. and B. for lives, and die, and after the Tenant in tail confirm their Eſtates with Warranty; it ſeems this is a Diſcontinuance, 3 H. 4. 9.

If a Tenant in tail of a Rent or Advowſon in groſs grant it away in fee, and a Collateral Anceſtor releaſe with Warranty to the Grantee; this is a Diſcontinuance, Finches ly, 193.

If one that holdeth Lands in the right of his Wife, alien them for longer time then his own, and his Wives lives together; this is a Diſcontinuance, and by the Common-Law ſhe was driven to her Writ of Cui in vita. But now ſhe may enter after her Husbands death, by the Statute of 32 H. 8. By the Huſband in right of his Wife.

If the Husband and Wife be Joint-purchaſers, and he make a Feoffment with Livery of the Land; this is a Diſcontinuance, though the Wife do ſtand upon the Land and diſagree to it, 21 Aſſ. p. 25.

If any Spiritual perſons, as Biſhops, Deans and Chapters, Maſters of Hoſpital, or the like, that have Lands in the right of their Churches or Houſes in fee, alien ſuch Lands for longer time then their own lives; this is a Diſcontinuance, and their Succeſſors are put to their Action to recover the Land, 21 Ed. 4. 76. 4 H. 7. 24. 32 H. 8. Lit. 146. 145. 144. By a Spiritual perſon.

All Fines and Recoveries levied and ſuffered by the Tenant in tail to bar the Eſtate tail, are Diſcontinuances; in which a man ſhall have no remedy, unleſs it be in caſe where the Reverſion is in the King. And for this ſee Fines and Recoveries, Co. 10. 96. See 3. 4. What ſhall be ſaid a Diſcontinuance that taketh away Entry and Action alſo, or not.

All Leaſes alſo for lives or years made by Tenant in tail, or in fee in the right of their Wives, or Churches, or Houſes warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. 28. are Diſcontinuances for the time, for the avoiding of which there is no remedy by Entry or Action. See Leaſes. But no Fine, Feoffment, or other Act by the Husband only of any Land being the Inheritance or Freehold of the Wife, ſhall be a Diſcontinuance, or prejudicial to the Wife, or ſuch as have intereſt after her death, (Leaſes within the compaſs of 32 H. 3. c. 28. excepted before-mentioned in the Statute) within which Law a Common-Recovery is: See Co. ſuper Lit. 326. Stat. 32 H. 8: ch. 28.

If Lands be given to Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of their two bodies, and the Husband maketh a Feoffment in fee and dieth, the Wife is holpen and her iſſue by this Statute. So if a Woman Tenant in tail take a Husband, and the Husband make the Feoffment, and the Wife before entry die without iſſue, he in Reverſion or Remainder may enter.

An Eſtate is in tail to the Husband, the Remainder in tail to the Wife, the Huſband maketh a Feoffment; now in this caſe the Wife may enter. See more in Co. upon Lit. 326. Womans Law. f. 144.

For the moſt part, ſuch Conveyances as are without Livery of Seiſin, and do contain no Warranty, ſhall not make any Diſcontinuance, Brook 313. 5. What ſhall not be ſaid a Diſcontinuance to take away and bar Entry.

If a Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for life of the Leſſee, and after grant the Reverſion, and the Leſſee for life attorn, and then the Tenant in tail die before the death of the Tenant for life, and after the Tenant for life die; this is no Diſcontinuance, but the Iſſue or he that hath right may enter upon the Grantee of the Reverſion, Co. ſuper Lit. 173. Lit. fol. 139. By Tenant in tail.

If a Tenant in tail bargain and ſell his Lands by Deed indented and inrolled; this is no Diſcontinuance. And if the Tenant in tail do after levy a Fine with Proclamation and Warranty to the Bargainee; yet this is no Diſcontinuance: And if after the Conuſee in the Fine make a Feoffment in Fee, yet this is no Diſcontinuance, but he in Remainder or Reverſion may enter, Co. 10. 96. Co. 146. 48.

If a Tenant in tail grant totum Statum ſuum to one, and the Grantee make a Feoffment in Fee, this is no Diſcontinuance, Co. 10. 96.

Sect. 4. If a Tenant in tail grant any thing out of Land, as Common, Rent, or the like; this is no Diſcontinuance. So if a Tenant in tail of a Rent, Common, Advowſon, or the like, grant it in Fee without Warranty, this is no Diſcontinuance; and if it be with Warranty, it is at the pleaſure of the Iſſue, Lit. fol. 138. Finches Ley, 193.

If a Tenant in tail within age make a Feoffment in Fee, it ſeems this is no Diſcontinuance during his minority, becauſe it is avoidable, Lit. f. 149.

If one make a Leaſe for life, the Remainder in tail, and he in Remainder grant his Remainder by Deed, and the Tenant for life attorn; this is no Diſcontinuance, Lit. 138.

If a Tenant in tail make a Releaſe or Confirmation without Warranty, to a Diſſeiſor, Leſſee for life or years, or make another Conveyance which doth not paſs the Land, this is no Diſcontinuance. Lit. ſect. 598. 606. 509. Co. 3. 85. Plow. 556. 13 H. 7. 10.

If a Tenant in tail make a Feoffment to his Donor, and there be no Remainder between; this is no Diſcontinuance. Dyer 12. Lit. f. 140.

If a Feoffment be made by the firſt Tenant in tail, to him in the next Remainder in tail, this is no Diſcontinuance.

If a man have iſſue a ſon by one wife, and after have another wife, and have a ſon by her, and Lands are given to him and his ſecond wife in tail, and after the wife die, and the husband is diſſeiſed, and he releaſe with Warranty; this is no Diſcontinuance to the younger ſon, but he may enter notwithſtanding, Lit. f. 136.

If a Tenant in tail make a Feoffment in fee upon Condition, and the Condition is broken; the Iſſue may enter notwithſtanding this Diſcontinuance, Littleton chap. 632.

If a Leaſe be made for life, the Remainder in tail, and he in the Remainder in tail diſſeiſe the Tenant for life, and maketh a Feoffment in fee, and die without iſſue, and then the Tenant for life dieth; this is no Diſcontinuance to him in Reverſion, Lit. f. 146. See in Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 36.

If a Tenant in tail grant all his Eſtate to another, and give Livery of Seiſin, this is no Diſcontinuance. So if he grant totum Statum ſuum to one, that doth afterwards make a Feoffment in fee; this is no Diſcontinuance to take away the Entry of him in Remainder or Reverſion, Lit. f. 145. 137. Co. 146. 10. 97.

Sect. 5. If a Tenant in tail give the Land to one in tail, the Remainder in fee, and the Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for life, and after grant the Reverſion to one in fee, and the Tenant for life attorn, and after the Grantee of the Reverſion die without heir, and the Reverſion come to the Lord as Eſcheat; if the Tenant for life die, and the Lord enter in the life of the Tenant in tail, and after the Tenant in tail die; this is no Diſcontinuance to the Iſſue in tail, Littleton fol. 143.

If a Tenant in tail have iſſue two Sons, and the elder diſſeiſe his Father, and make a Feoffment in fee without clauſe of Warranty, and die without iſſue, and then the Father die; this is no Diſcontinuance to the younger Son.

So if a Grandfather be Tenant in tail, and he be diſſeiſed by the Father, who makes a Feoffment and dies, and after the Grandfather dies; this is no Diſcontinuance, Lit. f. 142.

If

If Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for life, and the Tenant in tail have Iſſue and die, and the Reverſion deſcend to his Iſſue, and after the Iſſue grant his Reverſion in Fee, and the Tenant for life attorn and die, and the Grantee of the Reverſion enter during the life of the Iſſue, after the Iſſue die, and hath Iſſue; this is no diſcontinuance, Lit. fol. 142.

If Tenant in tail make a Leaſe for his life and give Livery, or a Leaſe for years, and after releaſe to the Leſſee for life or years all his eſtate and right in the Land; this is no Diſcontinuance. So if he confirm to ſuch a Leſſee, Lit. 138.

If a Tenant in tail leaſe for years, and after grant the Reverſion to one and his Heirs, and the Leſſee for years attorn; this is no Diſcontinuance to him in Remainder or Reverſion, or to the Iſſue, if any be. Co. 1. 144. Lit f 136.

If a Tenant in tail deviſe his Land by Will, this is no diſcontinuance. See for this the Statute for Wills, & Co. 10. 96. 27 H. 8. 20. Dyer.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in tail, the Remainder in tail, and the Tenant for life and he in the firſt Remainder levy a Fine; this is no Diſcontinuance of the ſecond Remainder. So if they two join in a Feoffment, 13 H. 7. 14. Co. 1. 76.

If there be a Tenant in tail, the Reverſion or Remainder in the King, and the Tenant in tail make a Feoffment or ſuffer a Recovery, this is no Diſcontinuance. Stat. 34 H. 8. c. 20.

Sect. 6. By the Huſband in right of his Wife.

If the Husband alone levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, Releaſe, or Confirmation with Warranty or any other Conveyances of the Land of his Wife, other then ſuch as are warranted by the Statutes; this is no ſuch Diſcontinuance, but that the Wife, or he that hath the next right after the Husbands death, may enter. Stat. 32 H. 8. ch. 28. Co. ſup Lit. 326. See there the expoſition of this Statute. Lit. 136. Bro. 122. 15 Ed. 4. 5.

If the Husband and Wife have Land in Fee or Fee-tail jointly, and the Husband alone convey it away; in this caſe the Wife, her Heirs, or he that hath the next right after the death of the Husband may enter, and this Diſcontinuance may not hinder, per les Stat. 32 H. 8 28. Co. 8. 72.

By a Spiritual perſon.

If the Husband and Wife purchaſe Land in Fee and make a Leaſe, and after the Husband alone releaſe to the Leſſee and his heirs; this doth not make a Diſcontinuance. So for any other act of the Husband alone, or of him and her together by Deed, Co. ſuper Lit. 326. Bro. Releaſe 81. But by a Fine, and five years after the Husbands death, the Wife is barred.

If a Parſon or Vicar alien in Fee, this is no Diſcontinuance to the Succeſſor, but he may enter. Lit. 143.

If a Spiritual perſon be diſſeiſed, and he releaſe to the Diſſeiſor with Warranty, this is no Diſcontinuance to the Succeſſor.

If a Spiritual perſon grant a Reverſion, Rent, or Common, or the like thing that lieth in Grant; this is no Diſcontinuance.

If a Dean alone had aliened the Land he hath in the right of him and his Chapiter, this is no Diſcontinuance, Lit. f. 145, 146.

6. What ſhall be ſaid ſuch a Diſcontinuance as to make a Forfeiture, or not.

If any Woman that hath any Eſtate in tail, for life, or in dower, by the purchaſe-money or means of her deceaſed Husband or any of his Anceſtors, made to her before or after her marriage, do after his death whiles ſhe is ſole, or with any other Husband after taken, alien ſuch Land by Fine, Feoffment, Recovery, Releaſe, or Confirmation with Warranty, and ſo diſcontinue the courſe intended; this is not good. And the Heir, or he to whom the next right is to come after the Woman, may enter preſently to the Land, as for a Forfeiture, by the Statute of 11 H. 7. chap. 20.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder for life, the Remainder in tail, and the two Tenants for life alien in Fee by Feoffment, or the ſecond Tenant join in the Livery of Seiſin; this is a Diſcontinuance cauſing a Forfeiture. See more in Forfeiture, Co. 1. 76, 77. Dyer 339.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in tail to the King, the Remainder in tail to another, and the Tenant for life makes a Feoffment in Fee; this is a Forfeiture, and to that purpoſe is a Diſcontinuance. But theſe acts are void only as to the Heir, &c. but are good againſt the parties and all others, Co. 1.76: 3.59.

Forfeiture.

If there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Tenant for life make a Feoffment to him in Remainder in Fee; this is ſuch a Diſcontinuance of the Eſtate-tail, as produceth a Forfeiture, Co. 3.59.

If two Joint-tenants in Fee of a Manor intermarry, and after levy a Fine of it to a ſtranger, which doth render it to them in tail, and they have iſſue three daughters; the husband die, the wife take a ſecond husband, and they levy a Fine and take back an Eſtate in ſpecial tail, and the wife die without iſſue by the ſecond husband: This firſt Eſtate-tail is within the Statute of 11 H. 7. for one moyetie, but not for the other. Curia, Laughter verſ. Humphrey, Mich. 3 Eliz. Co. B. See more in Co. 3.51.

Husband and Wife.

If a man ſeiſed in right of his wife, and his wife levy a Fine, and the Conuſee grant and render to the husband and wife in ſpecial tail, the Remainder to the right heirs of the wife; they have iſſue, and the husband dieth; ſhe taketh another husband, and they two levy a Fine, and die: This is not a Forfeiture within the Statute of 11 H. 7: *Co. ſup. CHAP. LXVII.

Of Diſſeiſin, Abatement, Intruſion and Deforcement, Rediſſeiſin.

Diſſeiſin, what: Diſſeiſor, Diſſeiſee.

Aſſiſe.

DIſſeiſin is, where a man entreth into the Lands or Tenements of another, and putteth him out where his Entry is not lawful; this is a Diſſeiſin, and he that doth ſo is called a Diſſeiſor, and he to whom it is done is called a Diſſeiſee; and for his relief he may have an Aſſiſe: But by this Entry he getteth the Freehold, and may hold it againſt all men but him that hath right and his heirs, Co. ſuper Lit. 154.

Abatement, what.

Abatement into Lands or Tenements, is, where a man dieth ſeiſed of Lands or Tenements, and one that hath no right entreth into the ſame before the Heir maketh his Entry; this is called an Abatement, and he is called an Abator that doth ſo enter; and then is he lawful Owner againſt all men but the right Heir. Terms of the Law.

Intruſion or Extruſion, what.

Intruſion is an unlawful Entry into Lands or Tenements by one that hath no right, whiles it is void of a Poſſeſſor, after an Eſtate for life or years is ended. Terms of the Law. It is ſometimes taken for a Writ brought againſt an Intrudor.

Deforcement, what. Deforceors.

Deforcement is the putting and holding out of a man from Land that hath right to it by deſcent or purchaſe, by the putting it by Intruſion, Abatement or Diſſeiſin, Co. ſuper Lit. 277. And he that ſo doth, is a Deforceor.

For theſe things, this only is to be known.

1. That if an Abator or Diſſeiſor have quiet poſſeſſion for five years next after the Diſſeiſin, and ſo live and die in the poſſeſſion, and the Land deſcend to his Heir, he hath gained the right of poſſeſſion to the Land againſt him that hath right, till he recover it by a fit real Action at the Common-Law.

2. If he ſue not this Action within threeſcore years after the Diſſeiſin or Abatement, the right Owner hath loſt his right by that negligence.

3. If

3: If it be a Formedon he is to bring, he muſt bring it within twenty years of his right to the Action accrued, if there be no impediment of Infancie, &c. If ſo, then within twenty years of the Impediment removed. Stat. 21 Jac. 16.

4. If one have divers Children, and the elder being a Baſtard doth enter into the Land and enjoyeth it quietly during his life, and dieth thereof ſo ſeiſed; his Heirs ſhall hold the Land againſt all the lawful Children and their Iſſues, Stat. 21 Jac. 16.

Rediſſeiſon, is a Writ lying where one is diſſeiſed and recovereth in an Aſſiſe, and after is diſſeiſed again by the ſame Diſſeiſor; then he may have this Writ to the Sheriff, and if this be found againſt the Diſſeiſor, he is to be ſent to Gaol. Rediſſeiſon, what.

CHAP. LXVIII.

Of a Diſtreſs.

DIſtreſs is either finite, which is where it is limited by Law, how oft it ſhall be made to bring the party to Trial, once, or twice: Or infinite, which is without limitation, which is until the party appear: Alſo it is the great Diſtreſs, which is of all the Goods and Chattels one hath in the County, which it ſeems is the infinite Diſtreſs: Or it is an ordinary Diſtreſs: Old N.B. 43. 113. F.N.B. 126. Britton ch. 6. 52. 2 H. 3. ch. 7. 9. 12. Old N.B. 71. 1. Diſtreſs, what it is.

It is alſo ſaid to be Real, i. when Land is diſtrained upon a grand Cape, or petit Cape. And ſometimes (and moſt commonly) it is ſaid to be Perſonal; and that is where any moveable things are diſtrained: And of this kind of Diſtreſs is this following diſcourſe.

A Diſtreſs then thus taken, is, where one doth take and diſtrain the Beaſts, Cattel, or other things of another man in ſome ground or place, for Debt, Rent, or other duty behind, or for wrong or damage done. Which thing ſo taken, is by the Taker to be kept in Pound, until the party that diſtrained be ſatisfied his Debt, Rent, or Duty, or it be fetched forth by an Order of Law.

So that the end of this taking of the Diſtreſs, is, that by this means the party diſtrained may be enforced either to pay or perform the Debt, Rent or Duty, or elſe to anſwer the party diſtraining in a courſe of Law: For after the Diſtreſs is put in Pound, the Proprietor hath no means lawfully to come by it, but by agreement with the party, or by a Replevin, by which means the thing will come in queſtion. (And in ſome ſpecial caſes alſo, the things diſtrained may be ſold for the paiment of the Debt, and ſatisfaction of the party.) Final cauſe of it. Replevin.

And after the Diſtreſs is in Pound, it is ſaid then to be in Cuſtodia Legis; ſo that now the Owner of it hath no abſolute propriety in it: And therefore he cannot give, ſell or forfeit it, neither can it be taken in Execution; but it muſt lie as a Pledg to be a means to help the party to his Debt or Duty, and cannot be took away to other purpoſe. And therefore if the party commit Felony after, or ſuffer Execution againſt him, the Goods ſhall not be forfeit nor took by the King, or upon the Execution, unleſs the King or Plaintiff will ſatisfie the Duty to the Diſtrainer, Co. ſup. Lit. 196. Finches law, 135. The nature of it.

The power to diſtrain, is ſometimes incident to the duty, and of common right, as to a Rent. Service, or an Amerciament in a Leet, ſometimes is by Preſcription, and ſometimes by agreement of parties. Sed quacunque via, it is to the end, and in the nature aforeſaid. Sect. 1.

Note that all that is here ſaid after, muſt be underſtood of the Diſtreſs of a common perſon; for the King hath a Prerogative above all other men. Which ſee in Prerogative.

For

3. What ſhall be ſaid a lawful Diſtreſs, and lawfully taken, or not. In reſpect of the perſon diſtraining.

For this, theſe things are to be known.

1. If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, demiſe it to one on Condition to pay to his Wife Three pounds Rent yearly, and if it be behind, that ſhe ſhall diſtrain for it; it ſeems by this Will ſhe is enabled to diſtrain, Dyer 34. 8.

2. If one make any Eſtate of Land in Fee, in Tail, for life or years, rendring Rent; or grant, and reſerve by the Deed, by apt words, a power to diſtrain upon Non-paiment; there he may diſtrain by that power, Bro. Diſtreſs 70. 11 H. 6.

3. Where a man hath power to diſtrain, he may appoint his Servant or Bailiff to do it, and he may do it by vertue thereof, Co. 48.

4. If there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty and Three pence rent, and the Lord die, and his Wife be endowed of the Thirds of the Seigniory; here ſhe may ſtrain for one Penny, and the Heir for Two pence notwithſtanding. So if a Rent be divided amongſt Partners, each of them may diſtrain for his part, Bro. 45.

5. If there be many Joint-tenants, and one only take the Beaſts of a ſtranger Damage-feſant upon the ground, it ſeems good, Bro. Charge 39. 11 H. 6. 33.

6. Any Commoner may diſtrain the Beaſts of a ſtranger Damage-feſant upon the Common. See Common, F.N.B. 128. Co. 9. 112. 8. 78.

7. If a Lord that hath a great Common-Moor, enfeoff another of part of it, and the Feoffee do not incloſe it, but ſuffer his Beaſts to come into the reſt of the Moor, the Lord may diſtrain them, Dyer 372.

8. He that hath but a Poſſeſſion, and no Title, may juſtifie the taking of a Diſtreſs Damage-feſant, Plow. 431. 546.

9. But if one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and the Term is expired, the Rent being behind, and the Leſſor diſtrain after for it, this Diſtreſs is unlawful: For regularly one may not diſtrain for a Rent, after an Eſtate is ended upon which it is reſerved; but he muſt have another remedy, 14 H. 4. 31. Doct. & Stu. lib. 1.

10. If one have three Daughters, and grant a Rent-charge in Fee to one of his Daughters, and after ſhe die, and it deſcend to her Child, and after deſcend amongſt the two Daughters and this Child, (as it muſt equally) ſhe cannot diſtrain for any part till partition, nor after partition but for a third part, 34 Aſſ. 15. 22 H. 6. 58.

11. None but known and ſworn Bailiffs may diſtrain for the King, Weſtm. 2. 36 See more for this, Rent, Debt, and Weſtm. 2. 37. Brownl. 1 par. 82. 187.

Sect. 2. In reſpect of the perſon diſtrained.

For anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

1. If a Rent be demiſed by Will out of Land to B. for the life of C. and the Deviſor die, and after his Heir make a Leaſe of the Land to B. for life, the Remainder to C. in Fee, and the Rent is behind in the life of B. and he dieth: Now he may be diſtrained for this Rent and all the Arrearages, Co. 5. 118.

2. If one put his Beaſts to Paſture for Twelve pence by the week with another man, and after he gives him notice that he will not tack there any longer; then may the Owner of the Ground diſtrain them Damage-feſant: And he may be diſtrained in this caſe, though he be not a Tenant, and his Cattel were in lawfully at firſt, 43 Ed. 3. 21.

3. So where a Leſſee holds in poſſeſſion after his Eſtate ended, Kelw. 96.

4. A Commoner may be diſtrained by one of his Fellow-Commoners for Surcharger, or the like, Co. 7. 23.

5. If one have the ſixth part of a Ground in common with another, and grant a Rent-charge out of it, and after he and the other levy a Fine of the whole to a ſtranger: Now it ſeems the Grantee may diſtrain the ſtrangers Cattel for all the Rent before and after the Fine; and yet before the Fine levied, he could only have diſtrained the Beaſts of the Grantor, and not of the other Tenant in Common, M. 18 Jac. B.R.

6. If A. and B. be Tenants in Common, and A. leaſe his moyetie to C. for years rendring Rent, and C. leaſe it to B. and the Rent is behind; here A. may diſtrain the Cattel of B. his fellow in Common, Co. 7. 23. M. 18 Jac. B.R. Sir H. Snelgars Caſe.

7. The

7. The Executor or Adminiſtator of him which had Rent or Fee-farm for life, in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, may diſtrain the Tenant that ſhould pay it. So may the Husband after the death of his Wife, his Executor or Adminiſtrator. So may he that hath Rent for anothers life, Stat. 32 H. 8.

None may diſtrain one that is out of his Fee and Juriſdiction, to come to his Court, Marl. chap. 2.

9. If one ſeiſed of Land in fee take a wife, and after grant a Rent-charge in fee and die; the Grantor cannot diſtrain upon that Land the Wife hath in Dower, F.N.B. 150. Bro: Diſtreſs 72.

10. If the King be entitled to Lands by Office that be charged with a Rent, yet the thing cannot be diſtrained for the ſame, though the Rent is not loſt, St. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. ch. 8. 13 Ed. 4. 5.

11. If one grant a Reverſion rendring Rent, the Grantee cannot be diſtrained during the particular Eſtates, neither can the particular Tenant be charged with this Rent; but after the preſent Eſtate determined, the Grantee may diſtrain for all the Arrearages, 10 Ed. 4. 4.

12. If one Joint-tenant make a Gift in tail of the Land rendring Rent, and the Rent be Arrear, he cannot diſtrain the Beaſts of the other Joint-tenant for this Rent, 33 H. 6. 35.

13. So if one Joint-tenant grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, the Cattel of his Companion cannot be diſtrained by the Grantee, 35 H. 6. 39.

14. Tenant in Dower ſhall not be diſtrained for Debt due to the King by the Husband in his life-time, in the Lands which ſhe holdeth in Dower, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 par. 31.

15. None may diſtrain a Forreigner in any City, Town, Market, or Fair, for any Debt whereof he is not Debtor or Pledg; and if he do, he ſhall deliver the Diſtreſs under pain of grievous Amerciament, Weſtm. 2. 13.

For anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

Sect. 3. In reſpect of the cauſe of the Diſtreſs.

1. One may diſtrain without clauſe of Diſtreſs for Rent-ſervice, be it Money, Homage, Eſcuage, Fealty, Suit of Court, Reliefs, Horſe, Roſe, or the like. Co. ſup. Lit. 150.

2. If any Freeholder refuſe to pay his Rent, the Lord may diſtrain. Co. of Copihold.

Rent.

3. One may diſtrain for a Rent reſerved on a Leaſe for life or years, or at will, ſo long as he have the Reverſion in him: The Leſſor or Donor may diſtrain of common right, without any clauſe of Diſtreſs in the Deed, D. & S. f. 21.

4. One may diſtrain for an Amerciament in a Hundred-Court, or Court-Baron, if one have a ſpecial Cuſtom for it, Noy 51. F.N.B. 100. h.

5. One may diſtrain for an Amerciament or Fine in a Leet, or the Penalty of a By-law, of common right. 11 H. 7. 151. Dyer 322. Co. 11. 44. 21 H. 7. 40. Br. 1 p. 183.

Damage-feſant, what.

6. One may diſtrain for Damage-feſant, i. where the Goods of another man be upon his ground cumbring the ground, or the Cattel of another man, without lawful authority or licence of the Owner of the ground, and there do feed, tread, or otherwiſe ſpoil the Corn, Graſs, Wood, or other things; here the Owner of the ground may diſtrain them and put them in Pound as ſoon as ever they do come in, if he will, and that though the Owner do purſue them preſently to fetch them out: And this is called a Diſtraining for Damage-feſant, Terms ley 119. 7 H. 7. 1. Bro. 304. 399. Kelw. 96. 22 H. 6. 37. Brownl. 2 par. 101.

7. One may diſtrain for the Kings debt, or for Fifteenths in a Parliament, Iſſues to come into the Exchequer to account, and the like, and for Iſſues returned upon the heads of Jurors, 5 H. 7. 1. 16 Ed. 4. 10. F.N.B. 239.

8. One may diſtrain upon an Attachment of a County-Court, Hundred-Court, Court-Baron, or the like.

9. If a Rent be appointed to one Copartner from the other upon partition, for the making of an Equality, he may diſtrain for it of common right, 33 H. 6. 53. 11 H. 4. 3.

10. The Lord may diſtrain his Tenant for Aid for the marriage of his Daughter, F.N.B. 82.

11. If

11. If a Townſhip be amerced, and they tax every man, and appoint one to levy; he may diſtrain for it, D. & S. f. 74.

12. One may diſtrain for Fees for Knights of the Parliament, where they be due, 11 H. 4. 2.

13. If any Freeholder refuſe to do corporal ſervice, as Homage or Fealty, or to amend the High-ways, repair decayed Bridges, or the like tending to the profit of the publike; or to diſcharge the office of a Carver, Butler, Brewer, or the like; or pale the Lords Parks, tile or thatch his houſes, or the like, which by Tenure he oweth; the Lord may diſtrain, Co. of Copihold 49. See Diſtreſs.

14. No man may diſtrain within his Fee or elſwhere of his own head for revenge, or ſuch like cauſe; but in caſe where Diſtreſs is given, and then by order of Law, Marl. ch. 1. 2. 3.

Rent-ſork

15. A man cannot diſtrain for Rent-ſeck: As if one leaſe for twenty years, and the Leſſee leaſe over for ten years rendring Rent, and after grant away this Rent, this Rent cannot be diſtrained for. See Rent-ſeck, 2 Ed. 4. 11. Nor for any incertain ſervice the Lord cannot diſtrain, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes, Lit. Co upon it, 97.

16. One may not diſtrain for an Amercement in a Court-Baron, without a cuſtom or preſcription for it, Co. 5. 5.

17. One may not diſtrain for Debt on an Obligation or Contract, nor for Account, nor Arrearages of Account, nor for Treſpaſs, but as before. See Stat. 3 Ed. 1. c. 23. D. & S. 15.

18. The Lord cannot diſtrain for the ſervice in Frankalmoin where it is incertain; but where it is certain, he may, Lit. Frankalm:

So neither can the Lord diſtrain for any Services whatſoever that are incertain, and cannot be reduced to certainty, Co. upon Lit. f. 96. 142.

19. None may diſtrain any to come to his Court that is not of his Fee, nor upon whom he hath no juriſdiction, Marl. 2.

20. None may procure any to diſtrain another to make him appear at the County-Court, or any other inferior Court, of purpoſe to vex him and put him to charge and trouble; in pain to fine to the King, and to pay the party grieved treble damages, Weſtm. 2. 36.

For anſwer to this queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

Sect. 4. In reſpect of the ownerſhip of the thing diſtrained. Levant and couchant.

1. A Lord may diſtrain any thing of his Tenants upon the place out of which the Rent is to come, as ſoon as ever it is there; and alſo the Beaſts or Goods of any other mans after they have been levant and couchant, i. ſome reaſonable time; as if they be living Cattel, that they have fed and lien down, D. & S. 15. Terms ley. 10 H. 7. 21. Dyer 317. 1 H. 7. 1.

2. And if a ſtranger will put in his Beaſts or Goods into the Tenants ground wilfully and treſpaſs him, then the Lord may diſtrain it preſently before it have been levant and couchant, 15 H. 7. 17. 1 H. 7. 1. So it ſeems where the ſtranger is to pay the duty as Lord Meſne and Tenant, and the Meſnes goods come upon the Tenancie, 15 H. 7. 17.

Damage-feſant.

3. A man may diſtrain for Damage-feſant any mans goods, and it matters not who is Owner of them, nor by whom they are put on his ground, if they be doing him treſpaſs, 1 H. 7. 1.

4. So for Iſſues, a man may diſtrain any mans Cattel upon his ground upon whom the Iſſues are returned; that is, if he take them in the nature of a Diſtreſs only to impound, &c. there he may take any mans Beaſts levant and couchant: But if they be to be taken and ſold for Iſſues loſt upon a Warrant out of the Exchequer to levy them upon the Lands of him that loſt them, the Sheriff cannot do ſo, Goldsb. 140. pl. 50. 5 H. 7. 1.

5. A. hath a Cloſe adjoining to the Cloſe of B. A. leaſeth his Cloſe to C. for ſixty years; C. leaſeth it to D. for ten years, rendring Rent which is Arrear: D. being to make the Bounds between theſe Cloſes, ſuffers the Bounds to be ill, whereby the Cattel of B. come into the Cloſe of D. Now in this caſe C. may diſtrain them, and B. may have his remedy againſt him, Court in B. R.

6. If

6. If any be fined in a Leet or Court-Baron, or amerced, and he have other Beaſts in his ground, they may not be taken and diſtrained for this, as in the Caſe of Rent, 12 *H.*7. 15. 41 *Ed.*3. 26.

7. It ſeems that for Rent, one may not diſtrain the Cattle of a ſtranger, upon the ground, before they have been Levant and Couchant; but in caſe where the ſtranger doth wilfully put them into the ground of the Tenant: And that if they come in by Eſcape, they are not diſtrainable till they have been Levant and Couchant. Yet (me thinks) if they get in by default of the owner, as if the bound be his, and he let them lie open; in this caſe the Lord may diſtrain them aſſoon as ever they come in. See 22 *Hen.*6. 37. Broo. Diſtreſs 21. Dyer 317. Doct. & Stud. 15. 15 *Hen.*7. 17. 22 *Ed.*4. 49.

8. It ſeems to me alſo, That if a mans Beaſts be in his own ground, and the Tenant that ought to make the Cloſure ſuffer it to lie open, ſo that my Cattle come in his ground; that theſe are not diſtrainable when they are Levant and Couchant: But there muſt be either a default or conſent in the owner, that his Cattle ſhall be there, elſe they are not diſtrainable, Dyer 317. 15 *H.*7. 17.

9. Such things as the taking of them may be prejudicial to the Commonwealth, are not diſtrainable; as Cloth in a Tailors ſhop, in a Weavers or Fullers houſe, 10 *H.*7. 21.

10. The Goods of a ſtranger that are diſtrainable in their nature, yet may not be diſtrained, when they are in the cuſtody of the owner; as if a man ride his Horſe, or have him in his hand, in the place where the Diſtreſs may be taken, or one bring his Horſe to the Houſe to fetch things, and tie him while he is loading: In theſe caſes theſe things are not diſtrainable, Adjudg Reads caſe, 39 Eliz. C.B.

For the clearing of this point, take theſe things.

Sect. 5. In reſpect of the quality and nature of the Diſtreſs.

1. One may diſtrain any thing Damage-feſant, Shocks of Corn, or any thing elſe forbidden, to be diſtrained in other caſes, 22 *Ed.*4. 47. 15 *H.*7. 13. 21 *H.*7. 39.

2. One may diſtrain for other cauſes, all manner of Cattle, Oxen, Sheep, &c. all manner of Houſholdſtuff and movables, as Beds, Bedſteds, Peuter, Braſs; alſo a Wain laden, and the Oxen, though laden with ſuch things as otherwiſe are not diſtrainable; as a load of Corn in Shocks or Sheaves, and almoſt all Chattels perſonal are diſtrainable; a Fold of Sheep, &c. is diſtrainable, 20 *Ed.*4. 3. 2 *H.*4. 15. 21 *H.*7. 9. Dyer 281. 22 *Ed.*4. 51.

3. Alſo Windows, Doors, Mill-ſtones, and the like, when they are laid aſide, and are parted from the Freehold, and no more to be uſed with it, are diſtrainable, 14 *H.*8. 25.

4. Such things as whereof the Sheriff cannot tell how to make Replevin, and deliver them in as good plight as they were in the taking, are not diſtrainable for Rent, as dead Victuals, Fleſh, or the like, that will corrupt: So Sheaves and Shocks of Corn, are not diſtrainable; but for Damage-feſant, theſe may be diſtrained, Co. Inſt. 142 f. 41.

5. Such as cannot be diſtinguiſhed from others of the ſame kinde, as Money or Corn out of a Bag or Box, Sheaves or Shocks of Corn which is not in a Cart or Wain, Tithes, or the like, are not diſtrainable, 11 *H.*7. 15. Kelw. 126. 2 *H.*4. 15. 7 *H.*7. 11. 22 *Ed.*4. 47, 51. 11 *H.*4. 40. 9 *H.*6. 9. 13 *Ed.*4. 6.

6. Such things as are fixed to a Freehold, and parcel of it, are not diſtrainable, as Doors, Hinges, Windows, Milſtones uſed in a Mill, Furnaces, Fats faſtned to the houſe; Pales, Stancks, Gates, Evidences, and the like, 14 H. 8. 25. 21 *H.*7. 26.

7. Such neceſſary Tools and Inſtruments as are neceſſary to keep men in their Callings; and for their livelihood, as a Carpenters Ax, as a Smiths-Anvil, or the like, are not diſtrainable, 14 *H.*8. 25.

8. Such things as are for mens preſent neceſſity, as a Horſe when a man is riding, or the like, are not diſtrainable, 6 R. 2. Broo. Diſtreſs 16.

9. Such things as tend to the Common good, as a Draught, or Plough laden, Mens Plough Cattel, or Flock of Sheep, if they have others enough in the place, where Diſtreſs is to be taken, at the very time when a man comes to diſtrain, are not to be diſtrained, no not for the King, Dyer 312. But for Damage-feſant, theſe may be diſtrained, 51 H. 3. And in the other caſe the Diſtreſs muſt be there at the very time, for before or after is nothing in it. F. N. B. 174. 22 Ed. 1. Diſtreſs 61. Co. lib. 1 part 147. 2 part. 133.

10. The Inſtruments of a mans profeſſion, as the Books of Scholar, and the like, are not to be diſtrained.

11. Such things as are diſtrained already, and are in Pound as a Diſtreſs, cannot be diſtrained again, whiles they are in Pound, 22 Ed. 4. 11. Bro. Diſtreſs 75.

goods in fair or market

12. Such things as are for the Commonwealth, or tend thereunto; as a Milſtone, when it is off from the Mill to be Pecked and Beaten. Things in a Common Hoſtery, or that are brought into a Fair or Market to be ſold, are not diſtrainable. Vide infra & ſupra, 14 H 8. 25.

valuable ppty

13. Such things whereof no valuable property is in any body, as Dogs, Does, Bucks, Coneys, and things that are Feræ naturæ, are not diſtrainable, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, 47.

14. Fetters upon a Horſe Leg, may be diſtrained with the Horſe, March. f. 91. pl. 149.

Powltry & Jewells &c. armor

15. Nor (as it ſeems) Powltry, or Fiſh, Veſſels, or Apparel, diſtrainable, nor Armor, nor Jewels, Co. 2 part, Inſt. 133.

Sect. 6. In reſpect of the quantity of the Diſtreſs.

The Diſtreſs muſt be reaſonable ſomewhat proportionable to the cauſe and duty, for which it is taken, and yet if the cauſe be ſo as one cannot take a Diſtreſs of leſs value, and the thing be after a ſort intire; as in the Diſtreſs of a Cart with his carriage, or with the Horſes or Oxen annexed to them there (it ſeems) though there be a great deal of inequality, as if one take two Chariots of Corn for twenty ſhillings Rent, it may not be unreaſonable, Marlb. 4. 22 Ed. 4. 15. 20 Ed. 4. 3. 41 Ed. 3. 26. So (it ſeems) one may diſtrain a flock of ſheep for two ſhillings, becauſe they are intire, 41 Ed. 3. 26. Broo.

the pigg of

One may take any Diſtreſs for quantity, if he diſtrain for Homage, Fealty, Expences of Knights in Parliament, or the like; for in theſe caſes, no Diſtreſs ſhall be ſaid to be exceſſive. Co. 4. 8. Diſtreſs 89. 27 Aſſ. 51. 28 Aſſ. 50. But ſuch Diſtreſſes as either are exceſſive for magnitude, as if one take two Sheep for two pence, or two Oxen for ſixteen pence, or the like, or elſe for multitude; as when one diſtrains very often for one cauſe, theſe are unlawful Diſtreſſes, for which the diſtrainer ſhall be puniſhed, Exceſſus in re qualibet in jure reprobatur. If the Lord diſtrain two or three Oxen for twelve pence, or the like ſmall ſum, and the owner Replieve, and the Lord avow for twelve pence; in this caſe he ſhall be fined upon his own ſhewing, or the party may have his action upon the Statute. But if he take a Horſe or Ox for a peny, where no other Diſtreſs is to be had, it is not exceſſive; but if there were a Sheep or Pig to be taken, there it is exceſſive and puniſhable, Co. 2 part. Inſt. 107. 51 H. 3. Marlb. 4. Co. 11. 44. 4. 8. 11. 4. Marlb. 4. F. N. B. 174. 45 Ed. 3. 26. But Horſes traced ſhall be ſaid to be but one Diſtreſs, March. f. 91. pl. 149.

In reſpect of the time of taking the Diſtreſs.

For Damage-feſant a man may diſtrain in any part of the day or night; and for other cauſes, as Rent, Amercement, and the like, any part of the night or day, 35 H. 6. 10. Co. ſuper Littl. 142. Noy 51. If one make a Leaſe, rendring Rent at Michaelmas, provided, That if it be behinde twenty days after he ſhall diſtrain; now it ſeems, by this he cannot diſtrain till the twenty days be paſt, 1 Juſt. Haughton, Tem. 14 Jac. nullo contra dicente. But the opinion of ſome is otherwiſe where Diſtreſs is incident, and the words are Affirmative, Co ſuper Littl. 204. That he may diſtrain at any time after the day, Co. 9. 66. But one cannot diſtrain for any cauſe but Damage-feſant by night, Co. 9. En Mackallies Caſe, Super Littl. 142. If a Diſtreſs be got out of Pound (it ſeems) the party may not diſtrain them again, unleſs he do it preſently after they are gone out, 9 Ed. 4. 2. If one diſtrain for Rent before, or at the day it is due, it is unlawful, 21 H. 6. 4. Brownl. 1 part. 176. If one have diſtrained once, and in the Sute the Seigniory is in queſtion, he cannot diſtrain again till this be decided, 7 H. 4. 4.

The Leſſor cannot diſtrain for the Rent due the laſt day of the Term, and therefore the beſt way is to reſerve the laſt half years Rent at Midſummer, and then he may diſtrain between that Feaſt, and the Feaſt of Michaelmas, Co. Inſt. 1 part. 47.

Though

Though generally a man cannot diſtrain for Rent out of his Fee and Seigniory, (i.) The ground or place out of which it doth iſſue; and if he do, the party grieved may either have Treſpaſs, ſue upon the Statute, or by Indictment; yet if he be coming to diſtrain, and the owner or another perceiving it, drive the Cattle or carry the thing out of the ground into another mans ground, or into another place: He that diſtrained them, may purſue them or it preſently, and upon his freſh purſuit may take and diſtrain them, or it, in any other place, Plow. 38. 33 *H.*6. 18. So (it ſeems) is the Law where one have diſtrained, and another drive them away; he may either take them again, or have a Writ of Reſcous at his Election. And yet if the Cattle, of themſelves, go out of the Tenancy without Inchaſement before the Lord can diſtrain them; there he cannot diſtrain them, though he have the view within his Fee, Co. 2 part. Inſt. 131. Dyer 44. 25. 33 *H.*6. 53. 11 *H.*7. 5. 21 *H.*7. 40. *Co.*9. 22. & ſuper Littl. 160, 161. 3 *H.*6. 53.

Sect. 7. In reſpect of the place of taking the Diſtreſs.

So if an Officer in a baſe Court take a Diſtreſs, or be coming to diſtrain, and another ſeeing it, drive the Beaſts out of the Hundred; (it ſeems) the Officer having them in his view upon freſh purſuit may take them out of the Hundred or Liberty, 3 *H.*6. 18. 33 *H.*6. 53.

For Iſſues a man may diſtrain in his Land upon whom the Iſſues were put, though he have ſold it away, or it be another mans Land, 5 *H.*7. Broo. Diſtreſs 40.

For a Fine or an Amercement, or a Pain forfeited in a Leet, or any other ſuch like Court, one may diſtrain in any place within the Juriſdiction, and Precinct of that Court as well without as within the ground of him that is fined, amerced, or pained, 11 *H.*4. 89.

One may diſtrain in a Common, as before is ſhewed.

If one grant a Rent out of a Manor, or Rent be otherwiſe iſſuing out of a Manor, one may diſtrain upon the Demeans, 12 *Aſſ.*4. 8.

If the Rent be iſſuing out of a Houſe and Land, one may diſtrain upon the Land, or in the Houſe, either if the doors be open that he may get in; but he cannot open the doors, *Co.*5. 91 92. 38 *H.*6. 26.

If one grant a Rent of one ground, and grant withal by that Deed or another, that the Grantee ſhall diſtrain for that Rent in any of his grounds in that Pariſh; in this caſe, though the Rent iſſue out of that ground onely, yet the Grantee may diſtrain in any ground of his within the Pariſh, *Co.*7. 23. 9 *H.*6. 9.

A Collector of Fifteenths may diſtrain in any place within the Village, where the man doth dwell that is to be diſtrained, 16 *Ed.*4. 16. 16 *Ed.*4. 10.

For Herriot Service, the Lord cannot diſtrain out of his Fee, no more then for a Rent: But he may ſeize a Herriot-Cuſtom out of his Fee, Goldsb. 97. pl. 14.

If one be diſtraining a Diſtreſs to Pound, and the Beaſts eſcape into another mans ground by the way that lieth overt (it ſeems) here he may follow them, and take them away to pound, 35 *H.*6. 10.

If one diſtrain Beaſts, and put them in the Pound, and after the owner take them out, the diſtrainer may take them in any place, and put them in Pound again, or have a Parco fracto at his Election, 34 *H.*6. 16. 7 *Ed.*4. 5.

If a Leaſe be made to be for ten years, rendring Rent, and after the Leſſor doth grant the Reverſion to C. for twenty years, and B. attorns, and the Rent is behinde, C. licences a ſtranger to put in his Cattle, yet he may diſtrain them, for his Licence is void, having no poſſeſſion: But if a Leſſor drive the Cattle of the Leſſee upon the Land, he cannot then afterwards diſtrain them, 5 Chr. Heydens caſe.

For the moſt part one may not diſtrain for any Rent, or other duty upon any place, but upon that out of which the Rent doth iſſue, *Marlb. cap.*2. *cap.*15. except it be by the Tenants own grant, 9 *H.*6. 9. But the King may diſtrain out of the place, any where in the High-way, Common, Street, or elſwhere, Marlb. 15.

One may not diſtrain for Damage-feſant in any place, but in the place or ground where the damage is done, F. N. B. 904. Plow. 38. *Co.*9. 22. though the party drive them out in his ſight, Co. ſuper Littl. 161. 9 *H.*6. 9. Brownl. 1 part. 87. 148, 149.

One may not take a Diſtreſs in the High-way or Common, Street, Marlb. 15.

9 H.6.9. Nor in the ancient Fees of the Church, unleſs it be for the King, Art. Cler.9. And if he do ſo, the party grieved may have remedy by Action upon this Statute: But a Herriot Cuſtom the Lord may ſeize in the High-way, for that is not a Diſtreſs but a Seiſure. But otherwiſe it is of Herriot Service, for he cannot diſtrain for this there. Co. 1 part. Inſt. Sect 69. 2 *part. fol.*122. But if the Lord coming to diſtrain, and ſee the Beaſts within his Fee, and the Tenant before he can diſtrain, drive them into the Highway; in this caſe the Lord may take them in the Highway.

One may not diſtrain Goods in a Fair or Market; nor Horſes in an Inn or Common Hoſtery, 7 H.7. 21. 21 *Ed.*4. 361., 22 *Ed.*4.49. But if the Diſtreſs in driving, fall into any ſuch place, the Diſtrainor may follow it thither, and take it thence; and ſo he may if it go into the Houſe of the owner of the Diſtreſs, if he follow them preſently, 22 *Ed.*4. 36. 9 Ed 4.2.

One may not diſtrain in the ancient Fees or Lands of the Church; but of thoſe that have been newly purchaſed, he may. Articuli Cleri. cap.9. 9 *Ed.*2.9.

One may not diſtrain Cloth at a Weavers, Fullers, Taylors, Sheermans; a Horſe at a Smiths being ſhooing, 10 H.7. 21. 22 *Ed.*4. 49. Co. lib. Inſt. part. fol. 47.

One may not diſtrain in a Sanctuary, *Co.*5. 92. 27 Aſſ. 35.

If a Diſtreſs eſcape out of Pound, he cannot take it again, unleſs he take him preſently, *Co. ſuper Littl.*142.

If a Rent be iſſuing out of Manor, it cannot be diſtrained for, upon the Tenants, that had their eſtates before the Creation of the Rent, 12 *Aſſ.*40.

Rent. One may not diſtrain men out of his Fee, to enforce them to come to his Court, upon whom he hath no Juriſdiction or Bailiwick, *Weſtm.*1.16.

A common perſon, though he be the Grantee of the King, cannot juſtifie the taking of a Diſtreſs for a Rent or Seigniory out of the Land whence the Rent doth iſſue, and in the Land holden of him, 9 *H.*6.9.

A Horſe cannot be diſtrained whiles the owner or other is riding on him; nor an Ax while he is in a mans hand, cutting of Wood, or the like; nor Goods that are in cuſtody of the Law, that are taken Damage-feſant: The Lord may not break the Gates or Hedges, to come in to diſtrain, *Co. lib. Inſt. f.*47. 161. Brownl. 1 part. 31.

If the Lord coming to diſtrain, and have not ſight of the Cattle within his Fee, and the Tenant had driven them away purpoſely; or if after he had ſight of them, the Cattle of themſelves go out of his Fee; or if the Tenant after view, for any other cauſe, and that the Lord might not diſtrain them, do remove them; in all theſe caſes the Diſtreſs by the Lord is not lawful, *Co. ſuper Littl.*461.

And in all theſe caſes of Diſtreſs taken unlawfully for time, place, &c. an Action will lie for the party grieved, againſt the wrong doer; albeit the party diſtrained, do agree or ſue Replevin, or the like: And if it be for Rent, and he pay the Rent; yet doth not purge the offence, Co. 2 *part. Inſt.*133:

Sect. 8. 4. How a Diſtreſs ſhall be uſed, when it is taken.

The party that doth diſtrain Goods or Cattles, may not ſell them (but in ſome ſpecial caſes hereafter ſet down) neither may he uſe them as his own; for in ſo doing, he ſhall make himſelf a Treſpaſſor; nor may he eſloyn them that they cannot be replieved, if he do, the owner may have Treſpaſs for it. But he muſt put the Diſtreſs altogether in ſome one lawful Pound (if one Pound will hold them) within the County and Hundred, where the Diſtreſs is taken, or elſe within ſome Pound overt within three miles of the place where the Diſtreſs is taken. And if the thing diſtrained be living and quick, and be put in any Pound overt within the ſame County, where the owner may poſſibly and lawfully come to it, without doing Treſpaſs to any man; and there, if it be live Cattle, they be ſuffered to periſh for want of meat; in this caſe the owner ſhall anſwer them, and the party may diſtrain again. But if he put them in a Pound cloſe, where the owner cannot come to them, either becauſe it is impoſſible as if they be in a Fort, or unlawful, becauſe they be in anothers ground; or if he drive them out of the County, or the Kings Writ come to deliver them, and he refuſe to deliver them or reſiſteth the Kings Writ; or if the Diſtreſs were for Damage-feſant, and before the impounding, the diſtrained perſon offer ſufficient amends for the Treſpaſs, and the other refuſe; and after this the Cattle be ſuffered to periſh for want of meat; or if the Diſtreſs be of a thing that will corrupt, as an inanimate thing, and put in a Pound cloſe; in all theſe caſes, he that doth diſtrain, and not the owner muſt anſwer them.

to ...

If there be a clauſe in a Deed, that the party ſhall diſtrain and keep the Diſtreſs till he be ſatisfied; yet it ſeems he may not work the Diſtreſs; and if the words be, That he ſhall diſtrain without Gage or Pledg, yet it ſeems the Diſtreſs muſt be impounded, and may be replieved, Co. 8. 146. 9. 146. Co. 2 part. Inſt. 141. D. & St. 112. 22 Ed. 4. 47. 28 Ed. 6. 5. 30 Aſſ. 38. Marlb. 4. Dyer 281. Broo. Diſtreſs 72. Plow. 6. 8. Kelw. 71. 9 Ed. 4. 2. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. f. 47. Weſtm. 1. 16, 17. Brownl. 1 part. 145.

And if one diſtrain a Cow, yet he may not milk her, but let him put her in an overt place or Pound: And albeit he have the Cattle upon a Retorn Irreprieviſable, yet he cannot work them, M. 7 Jac. Levets Caſe.

And if the party diſtraining, do put an animate thing diſtrained into a Pound-cloſe, he muſt feed it at his peril, and yet he ſhall have no ſatisfaction for it. And if the Diſtreſs be the Utenſils of a Houſe, or the like, which may take harm by Reſt, or Weather, or be ſtoln away; in theſe caſes he muſt put them in a Houſe or other Pound-cloſe, within three miles in the ſame County: For if he put them in a Pound overt, he muſt anſwer them if any hurt come to them, Co. ſuper Littl. 1 part. f. 47. Marlb 1, 2, 3, 4. Noy 53.

One took a wilde Colt as an Eſtray, and becauſe he could not keep him in Pound, otherwiſe he did croſs-fetter him there, and for this the owner brought an Action of Treſpaſs: But the Chief Baron directed the Jury to finde againſt the Plaintiff; and he held it lawful in this caſe, but not otherwiſe, at Sarum Aſſize, 19 Jac.

If the party that diſtrained, put them in Pound out of the County, that the Sheriff cannot make a Replevin; in this caſe the party may have the Writ called Withernam; and if he put them in a Fort or Caſtle in the ſame County, that the Sheriff cannot Replieve them, then the Sheriff may take Poſſe comitatus, and demoliſh it, if he cannot otherwiſe do it, Weſtm. 1. 17.

If the Diſtrainer will of his own accord give the Cattle meat in a Pound overt, he cannot require it of the owner, nor keep the Beaſts till he have it; but if the owner did promiſe to pay him for it, he may have an Action upon that promiſe, 21 Ed. 4. 53. Diſtreſs 53. 5 Jac. Bagſhaws caſe, B R.

If one have Land in one County, of a Manor in another County; the Lord of the Manor there, if he diſtrain, may bring the Diſtreſs to the Pound in his own Manor, though it be in another County, notwithſtanding the Statutes of Marlb. 3. 1 H. 6. 3. 22 Ed. 4. 11.

If one diſtrain Beaſts for the King, he muſt put the Diſtreſs in Pound, and if the owner doth give them meat himſelf, he ſhall pay nothing for the keeping of them, and they may not be ſold within fifteen days after the taking; and if the party ſhew an Acquittance or Tail out of the Exchequer, or under the Sheriffs hands, and offer to put in Bail, to anſwer it in the Exchequer, upon the next Accompt day; then they muſt deliver the Beaſts again, 21 Ed. 1.

If one diſtrain for an Amercement or Fine in a Leet, he that diſtrained may ſell the Diſtreſs, and pay himſelf with the money, Co. 8. Granſheys caſe.

If Beaſts be unruly in the Pound, and will leap over the Diſtrainor (as it ſeems) in this caſe, it cannot binde them to the Pound, nor fetter them, 27 Aſſ. 64. Broo. Treſpaſs 250.

A Diſtreſs taken for the King, may not be ſold within fifteen days; and upon ſhewing a Tally, and giving Security to appear in the Exchequer upon the next Accompt, the Sheriff is to go no further, but to attach the party to be there that day. De Diſtrictione Scaccarii.

It is a Writ lying where one, or his Servant, doth diſtrain for Rent-ſervices, or Damage-feſant, Fifteenths, or for an Amercement, or the like, and being about to impound them, another taketh them from him, and will not ſuffer him to impound them; then he from whom this Diſtreſs is taken away, may have this Writ againſt him him that taketh them away, and ſhall recover his damages, Terms Ley 279. F.N.B. 101, 102. Co. ſuper Littl. 160.

Sect. 9. 5. Reſcous, what.

There is a Reſcous of a perſon alſo, which is when a man attached or arreſted, is reſcued by himſelf or another; for which ſee Reſcous, F.N.B. 102. and Retorn of the Sheriff: For in that caſe one may have this Writ alſo, If he break or be taken away from under a lawful Arreſt: And this Writ ſometimes muſt be brought in his name that doth diſtrain, ſometimes in his name for whom the Diſtreſs is taken. See F.N.B. 101, 102.

How this Writ is to be brought.

Where this writ lieth, or not.

If one diſtrain Beaſts Damage-feſant, and drive them along the Highway, and going to Pound, they enter into the Houſe of the owner, and he withholdeth them, and will not ſuffer the Diſtrainor to have them to Pound; then he may have this Action againſt him. For this is a Reſcous in Law, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 161. 315.

If a Lord be coming to diſtrain, and the owner drive away the Cattle, and the Lord diſtrain them upon a preſent purſuit (as he may) and the party will not let the Lord have them, but drive them away; in this caſe the Lord may have this Writ, 44 Ed. 3. 20.

If a Lord diſtrain his Tenant without cauſe, and unjuſtly, and a Reſcous be made upon him, it ſeems he may have this Writ of Reſcous, F.N.B. 102. 40 Ed. 3. 32. But in another caſe, where it is not between Lord and Tenant, it will not lye.

If any be coming to diſtrain onely, and the owner drive out the Beaſts before, or they go out themſelves, ſo as he is not poſſeſſed of the Diſtreſs; in this caſe this Writ will not lie againſt the owner, or any other, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 160. And ſo alſo it ſeems it is in all caſes where the Diſtreſs is unlawful in time or place, &c. See before Milloyal Diſtreſs, 2 H. 4. 15, 22. 44 Ed. 3. 20. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 160, 161.

6. Pound, what.

A Pound is a place of ſtrength, wherein Cattle diſtrained, are put for the time, till they be replieved or redeemed. And this is either

The kindes.

Overt, which is ſuch a place, as to which the owner may poſſibly and lawfully come to give his Cattle diſtrained, meat or drink: And this is either publick or common, as the Pounds in every Townſhip, Lordſhip, or Village, or elſe private and particular; as any Court, Backſide, Yard, or Ground where the Beaſts may be without doing Treſpaſs; and whither the owner may come without treſpaſſing any man to give them meat and drink.

Or elſe Cloſe, which is ſuch a place, as to which the owner of the Diſtreſs may not either lawfully or poſſibly come to give his Cattle meat and drink, as in another mans houſe or ground, or in a Court or Houſe invironed with high Walls, or cloſed. But Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 47. makes the Pound-overt to be the Pinfold, made for that purpoſe, or his own Cloſe, or the Cloſe of another by his conſent; and the Pound-cloſe is, when it is ſome part of the houſe of the owner, New Terms Law 154. 9 Ed. 4. 2. Broo. 246. 20 H. 7. 1. Diſtreſs 112. Dyer 288. 21 H. 7. 39. 5 H. 7. 9. Noy 55. 52, 53.

The owner may give his Beaſts meat in the Pound, though taken for the Kings Debt, 51 H. 3. without giving any thing for their keeping.

7. Aſſiſe de ſovent faits Diſtreſſe, what.

It is a Writ where one hath cauſe to diſtrain, and he doth it ſo often for the ſame cauſe; as that the Tenant is grieved thereby, and is not able to manure his Land; then the party ſhall have remedy by this Writ, for in this Suit he ſhall have Judgment to hold his Land free, Abſque multiplici Diſtrictione. But when the cauſe of taking is for Homage, Fealty, Suit of Court, or other like Corporal Services, though a man do ſo diſtrain, yet this Writ doth not lie, Co. 4. 8. 11. 44.

8. Parco Fracto, what.

Parco Fracto is a Writ lying where a Diſtreſs is taken out of Pound, after he is impounded, either by the party diſtrained, or ſome other; then in this caſe the party for for whom the Diſtreſs was taken, may have this Writ againſt him that took it out, and ſhall recover his damages, and then he may alſo diſtrain the Cattle again, whereſoever he finde them, or for this the party may be puniſhed, as for a Pound breach in a Leet. See Leet, F. N. B. 100. 20 H. 7. 1. 34 H. 6. 18. Co. Inſt. 1 part f. 4. 7. Broo. 402.

Diſtrain again. V. Leet

And this Action lieth, though the Cattle were impounded, unjuſtly, and without cauſe; as if one offer ſufficient amends before impounding for the Treſpaſs, and the party refuſe it, and after the owner take the Beaſts out of the Pound; this Writ lieth. Where it lieth, or not.

And if one that hath a Replevin, or other colour, take upon him to take out the Cattle; and in truth his Authority is not good, this Action lieth. So if a man that hath authority, break the Pound, before he demand the Beaſts of the Keeper of the Pound, and he refuſe or interrupt him in the taking of them, D. & St. 112.

And whether the Diſtreſs were taken Damage-feſant or for Rent, or Services, and whether they were taken out of a Common-Pound, or other private pound; ſo it be a lawful one, it is all one.

But if one diſtrain Cattle Damage-feſant, and put them in Pound, and the owner that had right there of Common, make freſh Suit, and finde the door unlocked, he may juſtifie the taking of them away in this Writ, Co. Inſtitut. 1 part. fol. 47.

CHAP. LXIX.

Of Diviſion of Places.

IN Diviſion, the Law doth look upon Things and Places.

Sect. 1. Provinces.

For the Diviſion of Things, ſee Apportionment. And for Diviſion of Places, it had one Diviſion in Relation to the Spiritual Juriſdiction by Provinces, &c. and Dioceſſes, now gone, and Pariſhes; and another in Relation to the Civil Juriſdiction. For ſo it looks upon the whole Country, as divided into Counties, Hundreds, Cities, Towns, Pariſhes, or Villages, and Hamlets, and Burroughs.

Province, what.

The Provinces were the Circuits of the Juriſdictions of the Archbiſhops of York and Canterbury.

Dioceſs, what.

The Dioceſſes of the other Biſhops, the Circuit of their Juriſdiction.

Pariſh, what.

The Pariſh is a multitude of Neighbors, gathered together, and belonging to one Church, and under the charge of one Miniſter. And Pariſh Churches were thoſe that were inſtituted for the Service of God, for the people dwelling within a certain compaſs of Ground near it: Of which were in England, in the time of Henry the Eighth, 4500 or near thereabouts.

County or Shire.

A County is a certain Circuit, or part of the Country, into which the whole was divided for the better Government thereof; ſo as there is no part of the Country, but is in ſome County. And every County is governed by an Officer yearly choſen, called the Sheriff. And in England there are One and forty Counties, and in Wales Twelve Counties. And ſome Cities are Counties of themſelves, or with a little addition of places near them, as Gloceſter, and ſome others of the Cities, as Cambridge, Ely, Weſtminſter; and others are not ſo, but are within other Counties. Co. upon Littl. 109, 110.

Hundred, what. A Hundred is a certain circuit or part of a County, into which, the whole County for the better Government thereof, is divided, which at firſt were (as ſome ſay) an Hundred Towns; or (as others more probably affirm) becauſe they were made up of Ten Tithings, which were a Hundred houſholds of men, over which they had Juriſdiction, and over their Pledges, dwelling happily in two or three or more Pariſhes, Burroughs, or Towns, lying and adjoyning near together for the better Adminiſtration of Juſtices in their own diſtinct and proper Courts; and for the better Government of the whole Hundred, that they might not run out diſorderly into one anothers Hundreds, Laths, or Tithing, wherein they did not dwell; or ſo called, becauſe every Hundred did finde the King a hundred able men for his Wars. Sir Tho. Smiths Commonwealth. Terms of the Law.

Ville or Village, what. A Village and a Tithing, it ſeems to me, were in the conſideration of Law, one thing. By a Village is meant a little Neighborhood and company of Houſes and Houſholders compact together in one place.

Tithing, what. A Tithing did at firſt ſignifie the number or company of ten men, with their Families caſt or knit together in a Society, all of them being bound to the King for the peaceable and good behavior each of other, whereof one was chief, and an Officer, called Tithingman, and in ſome places by other names.

Tithing-man.

And of theſe Villages or Tithings, there are in many places many belonging to one Pariſh: There are more Towns in England then Pariſhes, for there is about Eight thouſand eight hundred and three Towns, and but Four thouſand five hundred Pariſhes.

Town, Burrough, City, what. And in Law, Towns, Cities, Burroughs, and Hamlets, ſeem to be included: And therefore ſome give one definition to a Tithing, and a Town, and a Burrough, and ſay, That they were heretofore taken for thoſe companies of ten Families, which were one anothers Pledg.

Every Burrough is a Town, but not every Town a Burrough: For a Burrough is an ancient Town holden of the King, or any other Lord, which ſendeth Burgeſſes to the Parliament. And of theſe Burroughs, ſome be Incorporate, and ſome not; and ſome be Walled, and ſome not.

So every City is a Town or Ville, but every Town is not a City: For a City is defined to be a Burrough Incorporate, which hath or have had a Biſhop, and though the Biſhoprick be diſſolved, yet the City remaineth; and with us, Town and City are commonly taken one for the other: There are ſeven and twenty Cities in England, and ſome of them are Counties, and ſome are not. And though Towns or Burroughs be decayed, ſo as no houſes remain, yet they are called ſo ſtill, and the Burrough doth ſend Burgeſſes to the Parliament. And ſome ſay it cannot properly be called a Town that had not a Church, the Celebration of Divine Service, Sacraments, and Burials, Co. upon Littl. f. 109, 110, 113.

Hamlet, what. A Hamlet is taken for a little Village, or that which was ſo and is now become, being depopulate, and but a Farm or entire Seat of one man: And of theſe Villages and Pariſhes are made up, for there may be many of them in one Pariſh, Town, or Village.

There are alſo in moſt Counties, ſome places that are not now known to be within any of thoſe Diviſions, Finches Ley 84. 2 R. 3. 1. Co. upon Littl. the ſame, Co. 11. 26.

There are ſome other Diviſions by Wards, and otherwiſe uſed in ſome great Towns and Cities.

CHAP. LXX.

Of Drapery, Cloth, Clothing, and Dogs.

THe Law takes great care of the making of Cloth of all ſorts. And therefore provideth and ordereth, Sect. 1: Cloth and Clothiers.

Firſt, Who ſhall make Cloth, and that all may not do it. For this ſee 4, 5 Phil. & Ma. 5. 25 *H.*8. 18. 1 *Eliz.*14: 27 *Eliz.*23: 18 Eliz. 15. 1 *R.*3. 9. 4 *Jac.*2.

Secondly, What Materials of Wool, Yarn, and Thrums, and other Stuff of all ſorts, ſhall be put in the Cloth; and that no bad Stuff be intermingled in it: For this ſee 35 Eliz. 10. 31 *Ed.*3. 8. 13 *R.*2. 9. 28 *Ed*3. 2. 37 *H.*8. 18. 23 *H.*8. 17. 6 *H.*8. 9. 7 *Ed.*4. 9. 8 *H.*5: 2. 4 *Jac.*2. 27 *Eliz.*18. 43 *Eliz.*12. 31 *Ed.*3: 2, 3. 5, 6 *Ed.*6. 7. 23 Eliz. 5. 33 H. 6. 16. 1 Ed. 6. 16. 5 Ed. 6. 7. 8 *H.*6. 23. 2, 3 *Ph. & Ma.*16. Wooll, Yarn, and Thrums.

Thirdly, That it be duly ordered and prepared in the making by Weavers, Spinners, Dyers, Dreſſers, &c. And that no unlawful devices by Gig-mills or Tentors, be uſed in it: For this ſee 6 *H.*8. 9. 3 Ed. 6. 2. 5 *Ed.*6. 6, 22. 4, 5 *Ph. & Ma.*5. 23 H. 8.3. 5 *Ed.*6. 6. 43 Eliz. 10. 39 Eliz. 20. 8 *Eliz.*7. 14 *Eliz.*12. 23 Eliz. 9. And that they be fit men to do it: See for this 2, 3 *Ph. & Ma.*11. 4, 5 *Ph. & Ma.*5. And that they be duly paid for their work by the Clothier: See for this 8 *Eliz.*7. 14 *Eliz.*12. Gig-mills, Iron-cards, Pickards.

Fourthly, That the Cloth have his due weight, length, bredth, and meaſure: See for this 6 *H.*8. 9. 3 Ed. 6. 2. For the Cloth of Ray, 2 *Ed.*3. 14: 47 *Ed.*3. 1: 7 *H.*4. 10. 13 *H.*4. 4. And thoſe Clothes that are not of thoſe Weights and Meaſures, &c. are not to be ſold, 6 *H.*8. 9. 3 *Ed.*6. 2. Worſteed.

Fifthly, The Clothier muſt put his Mark and Seal upon his Cloth, and for this ſee the Statutes of 3 Jac. 17. 39 Eliz. 20. 5 Ed. 6. 6. 27 H. 8. 12. 5 H. 8. 2. 25 *H.*8. 18. 6 *H.*8. 8. 7 Jac. 16.

Sixthly, There are Officers appointed to look to theſe things, and to view, and ſearch the Cloth, as the Aulnegeor, who is an Officer of the Lord Protectors; that is, by himſelf or his Deputy, to look to the Aſſize of all the Woollen-cloth that is made: And he hath two Seals for that purpoſe appointed him. And for him and his Office, ſee the Statutes of 25 *Ed.*3. 2. 27 *Ed.*3. 4. 3 *Ed.*6. 6. 8 *Eliz.*12. 13 *R.*2. 11. Aulnegeor, what.

Seventhly, If there be fault in the Clothier, he is to be puniſhed, and make amends for bad Clothe, 4 *Ed.*6.6. 4,5 *Ph. & Ma.*1. 21 *Jac.*18. 4 *Jac.*2. 43 Eliz. 10. 35 *Eliz.*7.9. 5 *Ed.*6.6.

Weavers, Spinners, &c.

Eighthly, The Weavers, Spinners, Carders, Dyers, Dreſſers, Rowers, Raiſers, Shearers, and the reſt, are to be careful of their part of the work, or be puniſhed, 7 *Jac.*7. 4 *Jac.*2. 35 *Eliz.*10. 6 *H.*8.9.

Ninthly, For Tranſportation and Importation of Cloth, 7 Ed. 4.3. 5 *Ed.*6.6. 1 *R.*3.8. 3 *H.*7.11. 11 *Ed.*3.3. 4 *Ed.*4.1.

See more of theſe things in my Book of Juſtice of Peace, in the Chapter of Clothiers, and in Wingates Abridgment of the Statutes.

Of Dogs.

FOr Dogs, theſe ſpecial things are to be known.

1. If a man keep a Dog that doth uſe to kill Sheep or bite Cattle, and he hath notice given him hereof, and after this the Dog doth hurt to any man herein, the Maſter muſt anſwer for it: See for this Action upon the Caſe.

2. No Felony can be by ſtealing Hounds, Spaniels, Grey-hounds, or the like Dogs. But for a Blood-hound, or Maſtiff, perhaps it may be otherwiſe. And for Dogs of Pleaſure, the owner may bring an Action of Treſpaſs for them, againſt him that ſhall take them away; for in theſe a man hath a property, and they are valuable to him. See Treſpaſs, Property.

Of Droit & Tort, or, Right and Wrong.

Sect. 1. Droit or Right, what.

DRoit, called in Latine Jus, in Engliſh Right: This in a general ſignification doth ſignifie and include a Right, for the which a Writ of Right doth lie; but alſo any Title or Claim to Land, by force of a Condition, Mortmain, or the like; for the which, no Action but an Entry is given by the Law. And this ſeems to be oppoſed to Tort. Right is moſt properly where the eſtate is turned to a Right; but it doth ſometimes include the eſtate in Eſſe, Co. on *Littl. ch.*8.

Tort or Wrong, what.
