Right is ſaid to be of Entry, or of Action: For when a man is put out of his Land by Diſſeiſin, Diſcontinuance, or Ejectment, and layeth claim to it, he hath ſometimes a Right to an Action, the which he may have to recover it, and ſometimes he may enter and take it, ſometimes he may do either, ſometimes he hath an action, but cannot enter, ſometimes may enter, but cannot have any Action, ſometimes he is barred of Entry and Action both, and without remedy.

Droit of Entry, of Action.

There is Jus proprietatis, a Right of Ownerſhip, and a Right of Poſſeſſion: As if a man be diſſeiſed of Land, the Diſſeiſee hath the Right of Property, the Diſſeiſor the Right of Poſſeſſion: And if the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Diſſeiſor, he hath both.

There is a Right, firſt, of Recovering, ſecondly, of Entring, thirdly, of Having, fourthly, of Retaining, fifthly, of Receiving, ſixthly, of poſſeſſing, Co. 8. Altham's Caſe, *Co.*2. 56.

This Right alſo is Preſent, or Future, when the Right one hath, is to be had hereafter.

A

A Pretenſed Right is where one is in Poſſeſſion of Lands, and another who is out of Poſſeſſion claimeth it. Pretenſed Right, what.

As concerning Right and Wrong, theſe general Rules are to be known. General Rules concerning Right and Wrong.

1. Right doth ſometimes ſleep, but it never dies, trodden down it may be, but it can never be trodden out; ſo much favor it hath in Law, Co. upon Littl. Sect. 478.

2. When twoare in poſſeſſion by divers Titles, the Law doth judg the poſſeſſion in him that hath the Right, in favor of Right, Littl. Sect. 158.

3. When due Rights do concur in one perſon, it is as good and effectual, and ſhall work, as if it were in divers perſons, Co. upon Littl. 278, &c.

4. In Rights the moſt ancient ſhall be preferred, Idem.

5. Rights do help them that do watch, and not them that do ſleep, Plow. 372.

6. Any man may be prejudiced in his Right by his delay, Idem.

7. The Law doth wrong to no man.

8. To him that doth agree to the thing, there can be no wrong.

9. Men are ſo to uſe their own Right, as thereby not to hurt another man.

10. None may have advantage, or take benefit by his own wrong, 13 H. 7. 1.

11. No man ſhall be twice puniſhed for any wrong.

In ſome caſes to recover a mans Right to Land, he hath an Aſſize which is given to a man for his Land, where he is diſſeiſed of the Freehold, as being Tenant in Fee-ſimple, Tail, or for life; and ſo if he be Tenant by Elegit or Statute: And if a man be diſſeiſed, aud then recover by this Writ, and after is diſſeiſed again by the ſame Diſſeiſor; then he may have a Writ of Rediſſeiſin. And if one recover by Aſſize of Mort-danceſter, &c. and then be again diſſeiſed, he may have a Writ called a Poſtdiſſeiſin. Aſſize, what. Rediſſeiſin. Poſtdiſſeiſin.

The party put out of Land may alſo have remedy by a Writ of Right, which is a Writ of the higheſt nature of all others: And wherein if a man have Judgment, and no Claim be made within a year and a day after; by this all perſons are barred for ever, F.N.B. 1. Writ of Right, what.

And this is either Open or Paten (that is) not incloſed within the Seal; or it is Cloſe, (that is) incloſed within the Seal. Patent or Open, or Cloſe, what.

And in London by their Cuſtom they have a Writ of Right, in this caſe much of this nature, Co. ſuper Littl. 158, 159. See Proces. Droit in London, what.

Eviction is, where one is caſt out of ſomething, whereof he had the poſſeſſion and property. And this may be either lawful or unlawful; and lawful either by Act of Law, which doth no man wrong, or by the Act of the party: And this alſo may be either Peaceable or Forcible. Eviction, what.

Forcible Entry into Lands, is a violent Actual Entry into Lands, Houſes, &c. by any perſon weaponed, whether he offer violence or hear of hurt to any there, or furiouſly drive out any out of the poſſeſſion thereof. And the Forcible Detainer is a Violent Act of reſiſtance, by a ſtrong hand of men, weaponed with harneſs or other action of fear in the ſame place or elſwhere, by which the lawful Entry of the Juſtice, or other is hindred. But as to this, ſee Forcible Entry. Forcible Entry, Forcible Detainer, what.

CHAP. LXXII.

Of Drunkenneſs, Dyers, and Dying.

FOr Dyers and Dying, theſe things are to be known.

1. That no man is to Dye any Cloths, Kerſies, or other things with Logwood, but the ſame is to be burned, 23 Eliz. 9. 39 Eliz. 11.

2. The Dyer muſt fix a Seal of Lead to his Cloth, 29 Eliz. 9.

3. No perſon that Dyeth Worſteeds, Stamins, or Sayes, is to Kalender them, 25 H. 8. 5.

4. In what manner Woollen-cloth, and Wools ſhall be uſed in the Dying; and with what Stuff they ſhall be died, 25 H. 8. 5.

Of Drunkenneſs and Alehouſes.

Sect. 1 Who muſt take Licences.

AS to Drunkenneſs, Alehouſes, and Alehouſe-keepers, theſe things are to be known.

1. That none may keep any common Alehouſe or common Victualling houſe, or uſe commonly to ſell Ale, Beer, Cider, or Perry, that is not licenced in open Seſſions, or by two Juſtices of the Peace, Quorum Unus, 5, 6 Ed. 6. 25.

Taverns, Inholders.

2. That Taverns keeping Victualling, Inn-keepers, and Victuallers, are within the Statutes, as well as Alehouſe-keepers; ſo that if they offend by ſuffering Tipling, or ſelling leſs for a peny, or two pence, then the Statute appoints; they are to be puniſhed as Alehouſe-keepers are. And they are to be bound for keeping of good order, as well as Alehouſe-keepers: And the Juſtices of Peace may require them to take Licences, and enter into Recognizance to keep good order; or elſe commit them as Alehouſe-keepers. And all thoſe Inns which were erected ſince 5 Ed. 6. and not Inns before, muſt have Licences, and be bound as well as others, Cromp. Jur. p. 77. Dalt. J. P. ch. f. 37. 1 Car. 4.

Commitment. Recognizances.

3. The Juſtices when they Licence Ale-ſelling to a man, muſt take Bond and Surety of him againſt the uſing of unlawful Games, and for the keeping of good order, which they muſt certifie at the next Quarter Seſſions. Subpœna three pound ſix ſhillings eight pence.

4. When they commit any man three days for ſelling without Licence, they muſt ere they deliver him, take Bond with two Sureties, that he ſhall not offend again. And this Recognizance, Diſcharge, and Offence, they muſt certifie at the next Quarter Seſſions: And this Certificate will be a ſufficient Conviction in Law, to make him liable to the twenty ſhillings fine upon the 5 Ed. 6. 25.

5. If two Juſtices of the Peace, diſcharge an Alehouſe-keeper of ſelling of Ale, and two others after, out of Seſſions, allow him again, it ſeems the firſt two may commit him. So if he be Convicted of any of the Offences in the Statutes, by which he is diſabled, and is, or is not ſuppreſſed for it: If he be licenced within three years after, the Licence is void, and he to be puniſhed as one unlicenſed. And he that is Convict for ſelling leſs then the Aſſize, for ſuffering Tipling, or that doth Tiple, or is Drunk, is diſabled to ſell again for three years; and being put down by two Juſtices, he cannot he licenſed, but in open Seſſions, Dalt. J. P. ch. 7. 1 Jac. 9. 4 Jac. 5. 21 Jac. 7.

Feme Covert.

6. If a Woman that hath a Husband, ſell againſt her Husbands will, they may be both puniſhed, in purſe, and ſhe, if the Juſtice think fit, may be impriſoned till ſhe finde Sureties for the Good-behavior, and that ſhe will not ſell again, Dalt. J. P. chap. 7. Good-behavior.

7. He

7. He that is not licenſed, may be puniſhed by 5 Ed.6. 25: or by the 3 Car. 3. But he cannot be puniſhed upon both, that is, if he be committed and pay his twenty ſhillings, he cannot be ſent to Bridewel. If he be ſent thither, he is not to be committed to Gaol, and pay twenty ſhillings; and yet he that is unlicenſed, may be puniſhed for ſuffering Tipling, or breaking the Aſſize, as thoſe that are licenſed may be, Dalt. J. P. ch.7.

8. The Traveller and other neceſſarily accompanying him, and invited by him, during his neceſſary abode in the Alehouſe, Handicraftmen, Workmen, and Laborers, that are there for an hour at dinner time; and ſuch as do ſojourn and lodg there, and ſuch as are licenſed by two Juſtices of the Peace, are not to be accounted Tiplers within the Statute: But all other men living in the ſame place, or elſwhere, except the ſtranger himſelf, are to be accounted Tiplers, Dalt. J. P. ch.7. 1 Car. 4 *Jac.*5. 1 Jac.9.

9. Brewers may not ſell more Ale or Beer to unlicenſed Alehouſe-keepers, then what will ſerve for their own uſe, 4 *Jac.*4.

10. Selling of Ale at Fairs, is not againſt the Statute of 5 Ed.6. 25. 3 *Car.*3.

11. All the Forfeiture of all theſe offences upon 4 *Jac.*7. 3 Car. 3. 21 Jac.9. are given to the poor of the place, where the Offence is done; and ſo is the one half upon the Statute of 4 Jac. 4. and muſt be delivered to the Church-wardens, who muſt account for it: But the twenty ſhillings on the Statute of 5,6 Ed 6. doth go to the Lord Protector.

12. It is held fit to hear the parties offending in theſe caſes, before the Forfeitures be levied in, Dalt. J. P. ch.7.

13: If any Alehouſe-keeper ſhall be lawfully convicted of any offence againſt any breach of 1 Jac.9. 4 Jac. 5. He is for the ſpace of three years next after the Conviction, to be utterly diſabled to keep any ſuch Alehouſe, 7 *Jac.*10.

14. A man convicted the third for his ſelling Ale or Beer of his own Brewing, and not compounding with the Commiſſioners of Exciſe, is to be puniſhed as an unlicenſed Alehouſe-keeper, and to be for ever diſabled to keep ſuch a common Houſe, Act. 14 Aug. 1649.

15. If a man be puniſhed on the 5,6 Ed. 6. that is committed and hath entred into Bond, and hath paid twenty ſhillings, he cannot be puniſhed on 3 Car.

16. He that is drunk, is for the firſt offence to pay five ſhillings, or be put in the Stocks ſix hours; for the ſecond offence, to be bound to the Good-behavior.

17. He that is Convict of Tipling, is to pay three ſhillings four pence, or be in the Stocks four hours.

18. The Innkeeper, &c. that ſuffers Tipling, is to pay ten ſhillings, or go to Gaol, till he pay it.

19. If he ſell leſs then meaſure, he muſt pay twenty ſhillings, or go to Gaol, till he pay it.

See more of theſe things in my Book of Juſtice of Peace.

CHAP. LXXIII.

Of Election.

THere is an Election of Things and of Perſons. That of things is where one hath a liberty or free choice, to have or do one thing or another, as he pleaſeth; and is by Dyer 281. thus defined, Electio eſt interna, libera, & ſpontanea ſeparatio unius rei ab alia ſine compulſione, conſiſtens in animo & voluntate: As if one be bound to pay a pound of Pepper, or a pound of Raiſons, he may do which he will; and if one give me one of his Horſes in his Stable, and ſay not which, I may take which I will, Dyer 281. 18: 21 H.7. 29. Election, what.

If

2. In what caſe an Election is given, or not.

If one for money make a Leaſe by the words Demiſe, Grant, Bargain, and Sell; the Leſſee may take it by way of Bargain and Sale, or Demiſe at Common Law at his pleaſure, Co. 236. Dyer 30. ſee Deed.

So if a Husband and Wife be joyntly ſeiſed of a Manor, out of which another hath a Rent-charge, and he do Releaſe, give and grant this Rent to the Husband alone; he may uſe this as a Releaſe, or a Grant, as will be moſt for his advantage at his own pleaſure: See more of this Dyer 251. 116. 302. Dyer 319. 109. Co. 4. 71. 6. 36. 19 H. 6. 45. 44 Ed. 3. 31. 22 H. 6. 42. 10 Ed. 4. 3. Plow. 156. 433. Co. upon Littl. 301, 302, ſee Grant.

Rent. Charge. If one grant a Rent-charge, the Grantee may chuſe either for to diſtrain for it, and ſo charge the Land, or to bring an Action, and ſo charge the perſon of the Grantor, or his Heirs, &c. and where this Election is given, and where not, ſee Co. 3. 29. 236. 448. 658. 724. Dyer 65. 140. 344. Littl. 48. ſee Rent.

Contract. If one be to pay one of two things for Rent, or by a Contract, or Obligation, he that is to pay it, may pay which he will at his choice, 1 Rich. 3. 2. 9 Ed. 4. 36. Co. 2. 37. 994. 21 H. 7. 19. See Obligation and Contract, 7 Ed. 4. 26. 9 Ed. 4. 48. 5 H. 7. 33. 7 H 6. 7.

If one give me one of his Horſes, I may take which I will, and the Law gives me Election to make the gift good, Dyer 23. 21 H. 7. 19. Dyer 91.

Rent. Aſſignee. If one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and the Leſſee aſſign over his Term; the Leſſor may ſue the Leſſee, or his Aſſignee for the Rent, at his pleaſure, Co. 3. 23. 14 H. 7. 4. and Rent.

If a Tenant that held by Knights-ſervice be dead, his Heir within age, the Lord may either ſeize the Wardſhip, or wave it, and demand his Services; ſo alſo it ſeems he may accept or refuſe any of his Services at his pleaſure, Dyer 285. 39. Co. 2. 68. ſee Services.

Action. In ſome caſes when one hath cauſe of Action, he may bring one Action or another at pleaſure, Co. 2. 37. 61. 493. 5. 38. 6. 44. 9. 51. 72. Kelw. 61. 92. Dyer 20. 50, 51. 21 Hen. 7. 30, 37. Dyer 121. 140. 230. 344. 27 Hen. 8. ſee Action.

Dower. In what caſes a Woman may at her Election have Joyntor, or Dower, or both; and in what caſes not, ſee Dower.

In what caſes one may ſue one or another at his pleaſure, ſee Dyer 204. 207. 10 H. 7. 8. 22 H. 6. 4. and Action.

Leaſe. In what caſes by Acceptance, one hath Election to affirm or avoid a Leaſe, ſee Acceptance and Leaſes.

Executor. And know that a man hath Election in divers other caſes: As if one be a Legatee or Executor, to take as one or other. Cum multis aliis, Plow. 520.

But if a Leaſe be made to Commence after the death, Surrender, forfeiture of a former Leſſee of the Land; this Leſſee hath not any Election here, but his Leaſe ſhall begin, after the firſt of theſe Contingents when it hapneth, Co. 2. 36.

Deed. If one ſell Land to me by Bargain and Sale, and before Inrollment levy a Fine to me of the Land: Now I have not Election here to take by either, but I muſt take by the Fine, and the Inrollment afterwards will not relate to this purpoſe, Co. 4. 72.

Grant. Note. If one ſell to me two Acres of a great Wood of one thouſand Acres, and give me Livery of Seiſin in part of the Wood; it ſeems this is void, and I have no Election given to me now to help it, becauſe after the Livery it is too late, Dyer 281.

If one grant to me and my Heirs a Rent-charge, but doth not ſay in his Grant proſe & haredibus ſuis, and he die: Now here I muſt charge the Land, and I have not any Election given me to charge the perſon, becauſe the perſon of the Heir is not chargable, Co. 10. 128. Plow. 344. See more Infant, Contract.

3. Where Election is neceſſary, and in what time it ought to be made, or not.

If one be to have one of two things, by one title of Gift, Grant, or the like, and the Gift or Grant, is ſo uncertain at the firſt, that nothing paſſeth till Election be made; and the Election doth precede the property or intereſt of the Feoffee or Grantee

Grantee (as in ſuch caſes it doth) there Election is very neceſſary; for till then no intereſt or property is in the Feoffee or Grantee, neither can he grant it over.

And it muſt be done alſo in this caſe, in the life time of the party, that is to chuſe for his Heirs, Executors, or Adminiſtrators cannot chuſe, *Co.*2: 35, 36, 37.

Grant.

And if the Election be not in his life time, the Gift or Grant will be void: As if one make a Feoffment to another of White-acre or Black-acre, or of a Houſe and ten Acres of a great Wood of his of one thouſand Acres, or one give one of his Horſes: in all theſe caſes, till Election be made nothing paſſeth, and after the death of the Vendee or Donee, no Election can be made, Dyer 281.

Where an Election is given to ſeveral perſons, there Election is neceſſary, and nothing doth paſs till Election be made: As if one Leaſe two Acres for life, the Remainder of one to J. S. and of the other to J. N. till one of them chuſe, it ſeems nothing paſſeth; and therefore Election muſt be during life, *Co.*2. 36.

But if one be to have one thing onely, but by two ſeveral Titles, or in two ſeveral degrees or manners, and the eſtate paſſeth preſently (as in that caſe it doth) there Election is not ſo neceſſary, becauſe the thing is grantable before Election; and in this caſe Election may be made by the Heirs or Executors, after the death of the party: As in the caſes of a Grant of a Rent-charge, and of a Leaſe made by the words, Demiſe, Grant, Bargain, and Sell, there the Grantee or Leſſee, or his Executors or Adminiſtrators, may at any time make their Election, *Co.*2. 35, 36. Dyer 91. 70.

What thing is elegible, or not.

If one grant me ten load of Wood, in his Wood, to take at my Election, and he or a ſtranger cut down Wood; now I may not take that cut down, but I muſt ſerve my ſelf elſwhere in the Wood, *Co.*5. 25.

4. What perſon ſhall make the Election, or not.

In all caſes where an Election is given of two or more ſeveral things, he that is the firſt agent, and to do the firſt act, ſhall have the Election: As if one grant a Rent of Money or Robe, or a Leaſe be made, rendring a Rent or Robe, the Grantor or Leſſee before the day of payment hath the Election, and may pay which he will.

Grant.

So if one promiſe, or enter into obligation, with condition to do one of two or more things, the party, obligor, or promiſing hath the Election: But if he fail payment of his Rent at the day or performance of his promiſe, then the other party may ſue for one or the other, for then he hath the Election. But if the Grantee bring an Annuity for the Rent-charge, he muſt bring it for both, elſe he will loſe his own Election, *Co.*2.37. 9 *Ed.*4.3. 13 *Ed.*4 4. 5 *Ed.*4.6. *Kelw.*700. *Co.*10.128. *Co.*9. 94. Dyer 18. 21 *H.*7. 19.

Officer.

If a Warrant come from a Juſtice to an Officer, to require him to bring a perſon before him, or ſome other Juſtice, the Officer, not the offendor, ſhall chuſe to which Juſtice he will go, *Co.*5.59.

Gift.

If one give to me one of his Horſes in his Stable, I ſhall have the Election, and may take which I will: But if he ſay he will give me one of his Horſes, in the words of the future-tenſe; there it ſeems, I cannot chuſe, but he hath the Election; 21 *H.*7.19.

Condition of Obligation.

If one be bound in an Obligation, with a Condition, to pay fifteen pound at Eaſter next, or before at the requeſt of the Obligee, it ſeems here the Obligee ſhall have the Election: But if the Bond be with Condition, that the Obligor ſhall pay fifteen pound before Eaſter, at the requeſt of the Obligee, or at the ſaid Feaſt of Eaſter, here it ſeems the Obligor ſhall have the Election, Dyer 108.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to deliver up the Obligations that be in his hand, or to ſeal to the Obligee ſuch a Releaſe as he ſhall deviſe, before Michaelmas next; the Obligor muſt do one of them at his peril, and the Obligor hath no Election in this caſe, but the Obligee may tender a Releaſe, if he will. Goldsb. 142. pl. 55.

If one grant to another twenty Loads of Hazle, or twenty Loads of Maple, to be taken in his Wood of D; there the Grantee ſhall have the Election, 2 *H.*7. 23. Co. ſuper Littl. 146.

And

And when the thing granted, is of a thing Annual, and to have continuance, there the Election doth remain to the Grantor, when the Law doth give him the Election, as well after the day as before; as when one grants the Annuity of twenty ſhillings, or a Robe at Eaſter, but when it is to be performed Unicâ vice onely, contrà: And therefore if one contract with me to pay me twenty ſhillings, or a Robe at Eaſter, if he fail, I may ſue for either.

5. What Act ſhall amount to an Election, and be good and binding, or not. Services. Dower.

If an Election be given to divers perſons, and one of them make a choice; this ſhall binde all the reſt, though they agree not to it, Co. 2. 36. Co. ſuper Littl. 146.

If two be Joyntenants of a Manor, and a Wardſhip happen, and one of them ſeize the Ward; this will binde the other, and he cannot after wave him, and demand his Services, Co. 2. 63.

If a Rent-charge be granted to a man and his heirs, and the wife of the Grantee brings a Writ of Dower againſt the Heir, and the Heir to prevent the wife of Dower, claims it to be an Annuity, and not a Rent-charge; this is no good Election, and therefore ſhe ſhall recover her Dower; and after this Endowment, the Heir cannot have Annuity for the two parts, for he muſt have all as a Rent-charge, Co. ſuper Littl. 444.

6. By what means an Election may be gone, or not.

If two things paſs by one Gift or Grant, altogether uncertain at the firſt, and the Feoffee or Donee die before Election; this Election is gone, and the Grant void: As in the caſe of the Feoffment of one of two Acres, and of the Wood, and the gift of one of his horſes, Co. 2. 36, 37. Dyer 281.

If one have an Election to pay one of two things at a day, and he do not pay it at the day, then his Election is gone to the other, as in the caſe above, Kelw. 78. Dennis caſe, Trin. 8 Jac. B.R. And if after the Election given to the Grantee, he brings a Writ of Annuities for one onely, and have Judgment for that one; his Election is gone, and he can never demand the other, Co. 2. 36, 37.

If one enfeoff another of two Acres, to have the one for life, and the other in tail, and before Election the Feoffee make a Feoffment of both: Now his Election is gone, and the Feoffor may enter upon which he will for Forfeiture, Co. 2. 37.

If one grant a Rent-charge, and after the Grantee diſtrain and avow for it in a Court of Record, or bring an Annuity, and have a Judgment in it; in theſe caſes his Election is gone: So if the Grantee of the Rent, before Election, purchaſe the Land, or releaſe all Annuities, it ſeems his Election is gone, Dyer 344. 140. But in caſes where the Gift or Grant is of one thing, but by ſeveral Titles, or in a divers manner: As in the caſe of Leaſe that hath words of Bargain and Demiſe alſo; or of a Grant of a Rent; the alteration of the eſtate of him in Reverſion, or the death of either of the parties will not determine the Election: And if in the firſt caſe the Leſſee enter generally, and do not declare how he will take it; this is no Determination of his Election, Co. 3. 37.

If a Term be given to the Executor, and he enter generally, and do not declare how, whether as Legatory, or as Executor; this is no Determination of his Election, but he may afterwards make his Election well enough, Co. 2. 37.

Rent.

If a Leſſee for years be of Land, determinable upon the death of J. S. and he grant a Rent-charge out of his Land, and before the Election of the Grantee how to take this Rent J. S. die; ſo that now the Land cannot be charged; yet the Grantee his Election is not ſo gone, but he may charge the Grantor in an Annuity, Co. 2. 36.

If one give to a man two Acres of Land, to have one in Tail, and the other in Fee, and he make a Feoffment of both; in this caſe the Election is not gone, to the Heir in Tail; for he may bring a Formedon for either, Co. 2. 36.

If an Iſſue in Tail make a voidable Leaſe and die, and the Guardian of his Heir avoid him (as he may) yet, this notwithſtanding, the Election of the Heir at his full age remaineth, Co. 7. 7.

If one grant a Rent-charge in Fee, without the words pro ſe & haredibus ſuis, and the Grantee bring a Writ of an Annuity againſt the Heir, and after diſcontinue his Suit, yet he hath the ſame Election he had, and may diſtrain the Land, Dyer 344.

If

If a Grantee be in the diſ-junctive of two Annual things, and things of continuance; if the Election belong to the Grantor, and he fail of the day, his Election is not gone; otherwiſe it is of things that are to be performed unicâ vice onely: As if one grant by Copy, twenty Trees growing upon Black-acre, or White-acre to be cut down yearly by himſelf, and delivered to the Grantee ſuch a day, and the Grantor fail at the day, yet his Election is not gone, Co. of Copihold, 120.

In moſt of all theſe caſes before, when once a man hath made his Election, it is peremptory to him, and ſhall never after wave it, and chuſe again: So alſo after a Judgment for Debt or Damages, where a man hath an Election what execution to take; if he have taken Execution by Elegit, it ſeems he cannot afterwards take any other remedy for recovery of his Debt or Damages upon the Judgment, Dyer 229. 60.

7. Where an Election is peremptory, or not.

Where a Lord by Cuſtom may ſeiſe a Herriot, the beſt Beaſt, and he chuſeth one of the worſt; he is bound by this, and he ſhall not chuſe again. See more for this in Contracts, 16 *H.*7.4.

But where a man hath the Election of one Action of two, and he ſue, and the other appear, and after is non-ſute; this is no Determination of his Election, Co. upon *Littl.*146.

For Election of Perſons to any Office or place, theſe things are to be known.

8. Election of perſons.

1. Elections to Colledges, Churches, Hoſpitals, Schools, Halls, Benefices, Eccleſiaſtical Dignities, and Societies muſt be free.

2. So muſt the Admiſſions and Inſtitutions be into ſuch places, free.

3. None may by threats diſturb free Elections.

4. If any take any thing, or a promiſe of any thing to give his voice for an Election, it makes the Election void, and another may be choſen.

5. If a man take any thing, or a promiſe of any thing for reſigning a place, he that gives is hereby made uncapable of the place.

6. If any take any thing, or any promiſe of any thing for a Preſentation or Collation to a Benefice, by this he is made uncapable of it, ſee Simony.

7. So it is of Corrupt Exchanges and Reſignations, between Incumbents of their Benefices, if they be with cure of Souls, 31 *Eliz.*6. *Weſtm.*1. And Articuli Cleri, and Wingate, Abridgment of them: Fit: Election.

CHAP. LXXIV.

Of an Infant and Engagement.

BY an Infant, commonly and properly in our Law, is meant one that is in his Nonage, under the age of one and twenty years, whether Male or Female, Co. ſuper Littl. 171. But the word is ſometimes taken more largely: And the Law hath a great reſpect to Infants, to protect them from wrong, and to preſerve their eſtate; and therefore doth give them many Privileges, and Benefits above others; as in many caſes.

1. An Infant, what. Nonage.

Their Privileges.

Firſt, Not to be ſued, till they be of full age.

Secondly, Not to be bound by their Contract, or their other Acts, that may turn to their prejudice, but onely in ſome ſpecial caſes; for which ſee in Age. And wrongs done to them, are more ſeverely puniſhed then to others.

2. What acts done by an Infant ſhall binde him, and others, or not.

For the Anſwer of this Queſtion, take theſe things.

1. If the King be an Infant, yet moſt Acts that he doth, as King, are good, and will binde him and his Succeſſors, Co. 5. 27. Dyer 209.

2. If an Infant be the head of a Corporation, all Acts that he doth in that capacity, will binde him and his Succeſſors, as if he were of full age, 21 *Ed.*4.13. *Co.*5. 27. *Broo.*4 8.

3. If a Parſon, Prebend, or the like, had made any Leaſe of their Eccleſiaſtical Living, it ſeems it is good, and will binde them, as if they had been of age, Broo. 478.

4. If an Infant-male after fourteen years of age, and a Female after twelve years of age, Contract for marriage, or make any Will or Demiſe of their Goods and Chattels, it is good; and will binde them, as if they had been of full age: But by the new Act, the age of a Man to conſent, is ſixteen, and of a Woman fourteen, 35 *H.*6.41.

5. If he do any thing that by Law he is compellable to do, it is good and will binde him; as to Attorn to the Grantee of his Lord, or the like *Co.*10 43.

6. If an Infant after fourteen years of age, being a Patron, do preſent to an Advowſon the Church being void, or the like, it is good, and will binde him, Perk 15

Apprentice.

7. An Infant may in many caſes binde himſelf an Apprentice, and in ſuch caſes, his Covenants in ſuch an Indenture will binde him, 5 *Eliz.*4. 21 *Ed.*4.6. 21 *H.*6.31. 9 H 6.8.

8. All Acts done to an Infant, as Conveyances of Land, making of Obligations, or Statutes, or the like, the Infant may accept of it, and they are good to him, as if he were of full age, ſee Grants If Land be conveyed to him, he may agree to it at his full age, or diſagree and avoid it, and ſo may his Heirs before Agreement, Co. lib. Inſt 1 *part fol.*2 And therefore a Leaſe for years made to an Infant, rendring Rent, was adjudged good; and that an Action of Debt may lie againſt the Infant for the Rent, and yet this may be a prejudice. But if he do not enter and manure the Land, or take the profits, it is otherwiſe: For it is in his Election to make the Leaſe good, or not; for if he before the Rent day refuſe, and waive the Land, he ſhall not be charged with the Rent, but if the Rent be of greater value then the Land, and he ſhew it in pleading, he may perhaps avoid the Leaſe, Brownl. 1 part. 120.

Election.

Executor.

9. If an Infant be Executor, and do any thing according to the duty of an Executor, as ſue for, receive, or pay debts, and upon Receipt of a debt to make a Releaſe for it; all ſuch Acts are good, and will binde him, or others, as if he were of full age, *Co.*5. 27. Perk Sect 4. Broo. Executor 1 5. See Executor.

10. If an Infant Contract for neceſſary Food, Phyſick, or Apparel, or Schooling, or the Nurſing of his Lawful childe; ſuch a Contract will binde him, as if he were of full age, Co 9. 87. 13 Ed 4. . *Perk.*4, And a ſingle Bill given for ſuch money is good; but if the writing be with penalty, it is void, Co ſuper Littl. 172. M. 39, 40 Eliz. Agreed. And what is neceſſary, or not, ſhall be tried by the Judges, not by a Jury, Goldb 168. *pl.*99.

11. If a Feoffment be made to an Infant, and he make a Letter of Attorney to take Livery, this ſeems to be a good Warrant, *Perk.*48. Sect. 14 21 *H.*6.31.

12. If an Infant ſell a Horſe, or the like for money, and deliver him with his own hands, and after ſue for, and receive the money; this ſhould ſeem to make the Contract good, 18 *Ed.*4. 2. 21 H 7. 39. 26 H 8. 2. But that this oppugns a Rule of Law: Quæ malè ſunt inchoata, &c. Ergo quære. For no Acceptance will make a void Contract good.

13. If an Infant levy a Fine, he may declare uſes upon the Fine, and it will binde ſo long as the Fine is in force, *Co.*2.58.

14. If an Infant be Lord of a Mannor, and grant Copihold eſtates, according to the Cuſtom, it is good, and will binde him, *Co.*6.3. 8. 44.

15. An Infant may not ſubmit to an Award, nor ſhall it binde him as another man; nor will any Bond or Aſſumpſit of his to ſtand to an Award, binde him, *March.*4. 112. *pl.*189. He may preſent to an Advowſon, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 172.

16. But all ſuch Gifts and Grants, Deeds, and Acts, as are done by an Infant, during his minority, as are or may be to the prejudice and hurt of the Infant, are void, or at leaſt voidable: And amongſt theſe Acts, moſt commonly thoſe things that paſs from him without Delivery of them by his own hands, are void; and thoſe that paſs by the Delivery of his own hands, are voidable, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 171. Perk. Sect. 12. F. N. B. 202. Brownl. 1 part. 120. 21 H. 6. 31. Sect. 2.

17. All Contracts made by him, though he be within a day of his age, and the bargain be never ſo much to his benefit, except it be for neceſſary Apparel as before, are void, and will not binde him; and in theſe caſes a man ſhall have no remedy in a Court of Conſcience, per Curiam, Plow. 364. Co 9. 37. 10 H. 6. 14. 11 H. 6. 39. 18 Ed. 4. 2. 21 H. 6. 31. 26 H. 8. 2. 21 H. 7. 39.

18. If an Infant deviſe Land by Will, it is void, Co. 6. 23. Dyer 143.

19. If an Infant be Executor and Releaſe Debts he hath not received, or do any other act contrary to the duty of an Executor, and prejudicial to himſelf, as pay Legacies before Debts, all ſuch Acts are void, Co. 5. 27.

20. If an Infant grant an Advowſon, or Rent, or Common, by Deed, it is void; and if the Grantee preſent, or diſtrain, or take the Common, the Infant hath the ſame advantages, as if no ſuch act had ever been made, 26 H. 8. 2. F. N. B. 102. Perk. Sect. 13. And yet an Infant may preſent to a Church for fear of Lapſe, Dyer 104.

21. All Bills, Bonds, Covenants, and the like, entred into by an Infant, may be avoided in pleading to any Action upon them, that he was within age, Co. 5. 19. 21 H. 6. 31.

22. If an Infant ſell a Horſe, or any other ſuch like thing for money, or elſe, and the Vendee take it of himſelf; in this caſe the Infant may have an Action of Treſpaſs for the taking: But if the Infant delivered the thing with his own hands, the Vendee is excuſed from any Action of Treſpaſs; yet the Contract is voidable at leaſt: And therefore the Infant may take his Horſe again, and cannot ſue for the money, but may ſue for his Horſe, if it be kept from him. If an Infant buy a Horſe, and give Earneſt, and the ſeller break with him, he may ſue him, becauſe of his Earneſt, which onely is recoverable in damages, and may be ſued for by Action of Accompt, Hobb. Rep. 96. 14 H 8. 29. 21 H. 7. 39. 22 H. 6. 3.

23. If an Infant make a Feoffment in Fee with a Warrant to give Livery of Seiſin to a ſtranger, and he do it accordingly, this is void, and the Feoffee when he doth enter as Diſſeiſor, and ſo the Infant may ſue him, or enter upon him: But if the Infant had given Livery of Seiſin, with his own hands, then had the eſtate been onely voidable; and the Feoffee not to be charged, as a Diſſeiſor or a Treſpaſſor, Co. 5. 119. 4. 125. 3. 422. Dyer 109. 36. 26 H. 8. 2. Littl. 400.

24. If an Infant make an Eſchange or a Partition, it ſeems this is voidable onely, for he may affirm it at his full age, F. N. B. 62. 18 Ed. 4. 2. 12 H. 4. 11.

25. So if an Infant make a Leaſe for years, rendring Rent, it ſeems this is voidable, onely becauſe the Infant at his full age, may accept the Rent, and make it good; which if the Leaſe were void, it ſeems he might not do; but if it be without any render of Rent, it ſeems to be void, 9 H. 7. 24. 18 Ed. 4. 2. Plow. 545. Co. 3. 65. It is ſaid that it hath been adjudged, That an Infant ſhall not be charged for Wares that he doth buy for his Trade, 14 H. 8. 29.

26. If an Infant levy a Fine, ſuffer a Recovery, enter into a Statute, or Recognizance, or Inrol any Deed, he may during his minority, avoid them; the firſt and ſecond by a Writ of Error, the third and fourth by an Audita Querela, and the laſt by Entry or Action: But after the Infant is of full age, theſe Acts are not to be avoided, 17 Aſſ. 17. F. N. B. 104. Co. 10. 43. Kelw. 19. Co. 1. 76. Co. 2. 57. Perk. 19.

27. If an Infant ſue or be ſued in any Court by Attorney, and Judgment be given for, or againſt him, it is Error; and for this the Judgment may be avoided, Co. 9. 76.

28. If an Infant Tenant in Tail make a Leaſe for years, within the Statute of 32 H. 8, Yet it is not good, though the Statute be general, M. 7 Jac. B. R.

29. An Infant is not bound by a Partition that is not equal, made by Agreement, or in Chancery, but if it were made by Writ, he were, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 171. See Crompt. Jur. f. 37. But a Releaſe may be by Decree in Chancery, in ſome caſes againſt an Infant, when no other remedy can be had. See Conſcience.

30. If the Guardian of an Infant ſuffer a Decree in Chancery againſt him, by conſent, it ſhall not binde him; by all the Judges at Reding, Term. But a Decree involuntary upon the merits of the cauſe, ſhall binde him. Out of all which, it appeareth that all Deeds, Gifts, Grants, &c. made by an Infant, which take not effect by Delivery of the Infant, be abſolutly void. But matters in Fact or writing, which take effect by hand and Delivery, are onely voidable by the Infant, or by them which have the Infants eſtate. And yet Acts that are apparently of neceſſity or profit to the Infant, or which can be no diſprofit to him, as for Meat, Drink, neceſſary Apparel, and Schooling, the Obligation or Covenant of an Infant, is good, Dyer 104.

See more in Agreement, Acceptance, Ability, Capacity, Teſtament, Numb. 4. Fine, Numb. 6,7,8. Grant, Numb. 2,3. Recovery, Numb. 3.

Sect. 3. 3. What perſons ſhall take advantage of a voidable Act done by an Infant, and when.

Privies in Blood inheritable, as Heir General, Heir Special, or as Heirs General and Special, ſhall have advantage of Infancy, Co. 8. Whittinghams caſe, fol. 42. As if an Infant, Tenant in Fee-ſimple, make a Feoffment and die; his Heir may enter or bring an Action.

So if Lands be given to one, and the Heirs-Males of his Body, and the Donee within age make a Feoffment in Fee; his Son as Heir General and Special, may enter or have Action. So alſo may the Heir Special, as in the caſe before, Co. ſuper Littl. 337. Co. 8. 42.

If the Donee have Iſſue two Sons, and the Elder hath Iſſue a Daughter; and the Donee die, and the Elder Son within age, make a Feoffment, and die without Iſſue-male, the yonger Son being now Special Heir per formam doni, may avoid the Feoffment of his Brother.

So if Lands be given to a Man, and the Heirs-Females of his Body, and the Donee having iſſue, a Son and a Daughter, makes a Feoffment within age, and die, the Daughter may enter or bring Action; ſo the Heir in Burrough-Engliſh. For in theſe laſt caſes, the Heir General cannot enter; for there is no right that doth deſcend to him.

So if a Tenant in Tail, within age, make a Feoffment in Fee, and is attainted of of Felony; in this caſe the iſſue may enter, and avoid the Feoffment. See more in Privies.

If the Husband being an Infant, make a Feoffment of his Wives Lands, and die, the Son and Heir may avoid it after his Mothers death, but before he cannot; but ſhe may avoid it, during her life, Co. 8 42.

Alſo Privies in eſtate in ſome ſpecial caſes, may take advantage of Infancy; as if two Joint-tenants within age, make a Feoffment in Fee, and one die; the Survivor may enter or bring an Action for the whole, Co. 4. 42.

But Privies in Eſtate generally, ſhall not take advantage of the Infancy of another: As if a Donee in Tail, within age, make a Feoffment in Fee, and die without iſſue; the Donor can neither enter, or bring an Action.

So if two Joint-tenants are in Fee within age, and the one make a Feoffment in Fee of his Moyety, and die, the Survivor cannot enter nor bring Action for his Companions part, but the Heir of the Joint-tenants that is dead, may, Co. 8. 43.

If a Tenant in Tail, being an Infant, make a Feoffment in Fee, and die without iſſue; neither the Donor, nor Colateral Heir of the Infant can enter or bring Action, Co. 3. 43.

If an Infant be Tenant for anothers life, and make a Feoffment in Fee, and he for whoſe life he hold it, dies; in this caſe the Infant, or his Heir, ſhall never enter, or bring Action, but he in Reverſion or Remainder ſhall, Co 8. 43.

Privies in Law, as Lord by Eſcheat, &c. ſhall never have any benefit by any ſuch avoidable Act of an Infant: As if a Feoffment be made, and Livery given by the hands hands of an Infant, and after he die without an Heir, or commit Felony, or the like: Now in theſe caſes the Feoffment is ~~an~~ avoidable by any body, Co. 8. 44.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

1. If an Infant after he is of the age of fourteen years or before, if he be of diſcretion (whereof the Juſtices muſt judg) commit Felony: He muſt ſuffer as another man, Malitia ſupplebit ætatem, Co 4. 127. Plow. 19.

2. If an Infant do any perſonal wrong, as Aſſault or Battery, or the like, it ſeems he ſhall be puniſhed, as another man: And ſo is the experience of our time, per Yelverton, Juſt. Paſch. 9 Jac. Co. 8. 44.

3. If an Infant be a Gaoler, and ſuffer an eſcape, he ſhall be puniſhed as another man, Co. 8. 44. Broo. Coverture 68.

4. If the Eſtate of the Infant be upon Condition to be performed by the Infant; and the Condition is broken, during his minority, the Land is loſt and the Infant is perpetually barred: As if a Feoffment or Leaſe be made to the Infant, or to his Anceſtor (whoſe Heir he is) upon Condition of Re-entry for non-payment of Rent, or the like; and the Rent is not paid, or the Condition broken, the Land is loſt, Co. 8. 44. 31 Aſſ. pl. 36. 36 H 6. 28.

5. So alſo in ſome caſes the Infant ſhall be barred, and bound by a Condition in Law, if it be ſuch a Condition, as is founded upon skill and confidence: As if Infants have an Office of Parkerſhip, or Stewardſhip (unto which the Law hath annexed this Condition, that they do diſcharge the duty of that Office) and they neglect their charge, or any way miſdemean themſelves. So if an Infant have Liberties or Franchiſes, and do any way abuſe or miſuſe, or diſuſe them; in theſe caſes, for ſuch cauſes as another man may forfeit ſuch Offices or Franchiſes, an Infant may forfeit it: See Forfeiture. The ſame Law is of a Woman Covert, Co. ſuper Littl. 233, 234.

6. If an Infant do actually Diſſeiſe another man of Land, he ſhall be puniſhed as a Diſſeiſor, Perk. Sect. 47.

7. If an Infant do commit Waſte or Leaſe, in payment of his ſervices, and the Lord or Revertioner recover the Land in an Action of Waſte, or a Ceſſavit (as he may) this ſhall binde the Infant for ever. And ſo in all caſes where a Statute doth give a Recovery upon a Condition in Law: But if ſuch an Infant at the time of his Anceſtors death, hath cauſe to enter into Land, and a Diſcent is caſt, during his Infancy; this will not bar him. And yet a dying ſeiſed of the King, and a Diſcent will bar an Infant, Co. 8. 44. Co. ſuper Littl. f. 245. 380. 246.

8. But when the Condition in Law is of that nature, as it is without any confidence or skill, and it be broken, it will not bar the Infant: As if the Infant be Tenant for life, in Dower, or by courteſie, and he make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Leſſor, or he in Revertion, enter for a Forfeiture, as he may; yet this will not bar the Infant, but he may after re-enter, Co. 8. 44. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 234.

9. So if an Infant alien in Mortmain, and the Lord enter; yet the Right of the Infant is not barred, but he may enter again upon the Lord. So in all caſes where a Statute doth give an Entry, but no Action or Recovery upon a Condition in Law. Co. 8. 44.

10. If an Infant make a Feoffment in Fee, and after his full age the Feoffee die ſeiſed, and the Land diſcend; this doth bar him of his Entry, Plow. 364. Perk. Sect. 407, 408.

But if the dying ſeiſed were during the minority of the Infant; it will not bar him of his Entry, Plow. 364.

11. If an Infant make default as another man in a real Action, it ſeems he ſhall not loſe his Land as another man ſhall in ſuch an Action. So if he be non-ſuted in any Action, he ſhall not be amerced as another man ſhall, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 172. 3 H. 6. 10. Dyer 338.

13. An Infant ſhall not be barred by Non-claim in five years upon a Fine, and yet

4. Where an Infant ſhall be puniſhed for his fault or neglect, or not.

yet if the five years begin in the time of the Anceſtor, there he ſhall be barred, Co. ſuper Littl. 380.

13. An Infant ſhall not be barred or hurt by time in caſes of Wreck, Waiff, Eſtray, or ſale in a Market Overt, as another man of full age ſhall be, Co. ſuper Lit. 380. Plow. 364. Co. 5. 108. Dyer 153. 164.

14. If an Uſurpation be made upon an Infant, to whom an Advowſon is deſcended by Preſentment, the Infant is not barred as another man, but he at his full age may have a Quare Impedit: And yet if he preſent not to a Church in ſix weeks, there will be a Lapſe, Co. ſuper Littl. 246.

15. If Tenant for life alien with Warranty, his Heir within age, and after die, his Heir within age; in this caſe the not-Entry of the Heir will not hurt him, nor the Warranty bar him. But if after the Alienation, he become of full age, before the death of the Tenant for life, there he will be barred. And in caſe where a Warranty doth diſcend upon an Infant or Feme-Covert, and their Entry is not lawful; in this caſe they will be barred, Co. ſuper Littl. 380.

16. If one make a Feoffment to another, rendring Rent: And it is agreed, That if the Rent be not paid, he ſhall pay double the Rent, and the Land come to an Infant, and he fail; it is ſaid he ſhall not be charged. But quere, for in caſe of a Condition, he ſhall forfeit as another man. See the Caſes before, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 47. 6. 50.

17. An Infant before he is one and twenty years old, cannot be charged in an Accompt; and therefore till then, he cannot be a Bailiff or a Receiver, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 172.

18. If an Infant have Title to enter for Mortmain, and he enter not within the year; this will not prejudice him.

What acts he may be compelled to do, or not.

An Infant-Tenant may be compelled to Attorn to the Grantee of the Seigniory, or of the Reverſion, Co. ſuper Littl. 315.

And if one make a Leaſe, rendring Rent to him, and he occupy the Land, he muſt pay the Rent, 21 H. 6. 31.

But an Infant cannot be compelled to ſerve in a Jury, Littl. 259.

And by Statute Laws, how bound.

What Statutes ſhall binde him, or not. See Plow. 364. 236. 359. 376. 372. Co. 8. 44. 100. 3. 91. Dyer 104. 133. Littl. 246.

But this is a Rule, That an Infant is bound by all Statute Laws, if they be not by name excepted.

5. Where an Infant may ſue or be ſued, and how.

An Infant Regularly may both ſue, and be ſued in all Perſonal Actions; and ſo alſo in all Real Actions, but where the Sute muſt ſtay for Nonage: For which ſee Age.

Procheine Amy, what.

But the Infant may not ſue or be ſued, as another man; and therefore in moſt caſes where the Infant will ſue, he muſt ſue by his procheine Amy, (i.) his next friend, which is ſaid to be one that appeareth in any Court for an Infant which ſueth any Action, and is allowed by the Court to aid the Infant in the purſuit of his Sute; and he is ſometimes called a Gardein.

And if an Infant be ſued in any Action, he cannot appear and defend it by Attorney, but it muſt be by a Guardian, which is one allowed by the Court to make defence for the Infant in that Sute. And this is commonly one of the Officers of the Court.

Guardian in Chivalry or Soccage.

And yet it ſeems, that an Infant in ſome ſpecial Caſes may ſue by Attorney; as where he is (a) Executor, or (b) Adminiſtrator, or in Waſte againſt his Guardian in Chivalry, for making Waſte in his Land, or an Accompt againſt his Guardian in Soccage, after the Infant is fourteen years old, (c) or in this caſe he may alſo, if he will ſue by his Guardian, F. N. B. 27. Littl. 123. Co. 4. 53. 124. 71. 8. 58. 9. 30. 21 Ed. 4. 78. Dyer 104. 262. 312. Weſtm. 2. ch. 15. 1. 47. (a) Mich. 7 Jac. Co. B. (b) Trin. 38 Eliz. Adjudg. Attorney.

Alſo if an Infant be ſued upon his Contract for neceſſary Apparel, or for an Aſſault

Aſſault or Battery, or the like, there he may ſue by his Attorney, as other men do, Co. 9. 87. F. N. B. 118. Co. 8. 44. 58. Dyer 239. 27 H. 8. 11. Co. 4. 124. Brownl. Rep. 1 part. 151.

If a dumb man bring an Action, he muſt ſue by Prochein Amy, 10 Ed. 3. 53. See Age.

Dumb man

This is a Writ lying where an Infant, within age, alieneth his Land, which he hath in Fee-ſimple, Fee-Tail, or for life; in this caſe, when he cometh of full age, he (or if he die, his Heir, when he comes of full age) may have this Writ to recover the Land again.

Dum fuit infra ætatem, what.

Or in this caſe, the Infant may enter upon the Land, before he is of full age, or after he is of age, if there be no Diſcent to hinder him: And when he doth enter, he is ſaid to be remitted, and put in, as of his firſt eſtate.

Diſcent.
Remitter.

And where this Writ will lie, may be gathered by what hath been ſaid before, F. N. B. 27.

This is where a Woman is with childe, at the time of her Husbands death, with ſuch a childe, That if he had been born, had been Heir to ſome of the Husbands Land.

Infant in the Mothers Womb, called En ventre ſa meere.

And this is ſometimes privily and unknown, and then ſhe is ſaid to be Priviment Enſeint: And ſometimes it is open and viſible, when ſhe doth notoriouſly appear ſo.

Priviment Enſeint, what.

This Infant is called a Poſthumus or Poſtnatus; and is one that the Law doth much favor and regard, as appeareth by that which doth follow in the next Queſtion.

Poſthumus.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

Sect. 6.

1. In all Caſes where the Daughter or Female-heir, or other perſon, Heir, cometh into Land by Diſcent, or in the nature of a Diſcent; there the Son, or more immediate Heir that ſhall be born after, ſhall out her, and have the Land. And therefore if one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and have but one Daughter, but his Wife is with childe of a Son, and he die, and the Daughter enter, and after the Son is born; in this caſe he may out the Daughter, and have the Land, and the Daughter can by no means prevent him of it. So where the Wife doth diſcontinue the Land, ſhe hath by her Husband, and ſo make a Forfeiture of it within 11 H 7. 20. And ſhe have at that time a Daughter, and is with childe of a Son by her deceaſed Husband, and the Daughter enter, the Son ſhall after out her. So if a Gift be in Tail to a Man and his Heirs-males of his Body, and the Donee die without iſſue having a Brother, that is next Heir per formam Doni, but the Wife of the Donee is Privily with childe of a Son, and the Brother enter; in this caſe, the Iſſue after he is born, ſhall have the Land, and put out his Uncle. So if a Tenant in Tail having iſſue two Sons, and the elder die in the life time of the Father, leaving his Wife with childe of a Son, and then the Tenant in Tail ſuffer a Recovery to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after his death to a ſtranger for twenty years, and after of the Heirs-males of the body of the Tenant in Tail, and after the Tenant in Tail die, and then the yongeſt Son enter, and after the Son of the eldeſt Brother is born; in this caſe he ſhall have the Land, and out his Uncle. So if a Son purchaſe Land, and die without Iſſue, and the Uncle, and after a Daughter is born, ſhe ſhall have the Land from him. So if there be Son and Daughter, and the Son purchaſe Land, and die without Iſſue, it ſhall go to the Daughter. But if there be a Son born, after he ſhall have the Land, and if he have another Daughter, ſhe ſhall be Copartner with her ſiſter. And if a Daughter have a Seigniory by Diſcent, and a Tenancy Eſcheat, and after a Son is born; in this caſe he ſhall have the Tenancy, and out her of it. Co. 3. 61. 9 H. 7. 25. Co. 1. Shellies caſe. *Broo. But in all caſes where the Daughter and Female-Heir, or other Heir cometh into the Land by Purchaſe, or in the nature of a Purchaſer, or the like, there the Son or other, more immediate or next Heir that ſhall be born after him, ſhall not ouſt him. As if Lands be given to one for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and *J. And a Daughter is the next Heir in being, but there is a Son in Utero matris, and the Daughter enter, the Son shall never out her. So in like manner, if an estate be made on Condition, that if the Feoffor or his Heirs pay twenty pound, that they shall have the Land again, and the Daughter pay the money, and after a Son is born, he shall never have the Land, Qui sentit onus sentire debet & commodum: But if the Condition were to be performed on the part of the Feoffee, or it were broken in the life time of the Ancestor; in these cases it seems the Son may enter afterwards, and put out the Daughter. If one by Will devise to J. S. and his Heirs, and the Devisee had then a Daughter, when the Devisor died, his Wife being privily with childe of a Son, and the Devisee dieth, and the Heir he doth enter; in this case the Son that is after born, shall not out her, but the daughter shall have the Land, Co. 3. 61. 9 H. 7. 24. 5 Ed. 4. 6. Co. 1. 95, 99. CHAP. LXXV.

Of Enheritance or Inheritance.

ENheritance or Inheritance is an Eſtate in perpetuity diſcendible to a man and his heirs. Enheritance or Inheritance, what.

And ſome do make three ſorts of Eſtates of Inheritance or Inheritances, which may be called Eſtates in Fee. The kinds.

The firſt is Fee-ſimple abſolute; and this is, where he hath Land to him and his heirs indefinitely without any limitation whatſoever of his Eſtate: This is an abſolute Eſtate in perpetuity, and this is moſt properly and aptly called Fee-ſimple.

Another kind of Inheritance or Fee-ſimple is, where one hath an Eſtate to him and his heirs ſo long as J. S. hath heirs of his body, or ſo long as he ſhall pay twenty ſhillings a year to the Grantor, or to J. S. or ſo long as Pauls Church ſhall ſtand: This is an Inheritance, but it is limited and determinable; for if J. S. fail of heirs of his body, the Rent be not paid, or Pauls Church fall or be taken away, this Inheritance is gone.

Another kind of Inheritance is, where a Donee in tail is attainted of Treaſon, ſo that he forfeits his Eſtate to the Lord Protector: He hath a Fee, but it ſhall be only for ſo long as the Tenant in tail hath iſſue of his body. So if Tenant in tail by Indenture of Bargain and Sale inrolled, bargain and ſell the Land to another and his heirs; this is a Fee-ſimple, but this is a baſe Fee, for this Inheritance is but during the life of the Tenant in tail: And in both theſe caſes there is a Fee-ſimple under a Fee-ſimple; for the abſolute and ſupreme Fee-ſimple is in the Donor. And yet this baſe Fee is ſuch a Fee as ſhall deſcend, as the Lord Protector or Bargainee may grant over to another: And ſo long as theſe Eſtates laſt, they ſhall be Aſſets in the Heir in Debt, or to render in value upon the Warranty of the Father, and the Wife ſhall be endowed out of it, Plow. 557. Co. 10. 96. See more of this in Eſtates, Chap.

Diſcent ſignifieth in our Common-Law, an order or means whereby Lands or Tenements are derived unto any man from his Anceſtors. And this is ſometimes Lineal, as when the diſcent is conveyed in the whole line of the ſame blood, as Grandfather, Father and Son, and ſo downward, Old N. B. 201. Lit. 1. And ſometimes it is Collateral; which is, when it is out in another branch above of the whole blood, as Grandfathers brother, Fathers brother, and ſo downwards. And by this means the Property of Land is gotten and transferred from one to another. And for the guiding of theſe Diſcents, there be three general Rules. Diſcent, what. Lineal. Collateral.

1. The eldeſt Male ſhall firſt inherit; and if it come to Females, then they being all in equal degree of neerneſs, ſhall inherit all together. Sect. 1.

2. That no Brother or Siſter of the half blood ſhall inherit to Brother or Siſter, but to the Parents. Half Blood

3. Land purchaſed by the party himſelf dead, is to go to the Heirs on the Fathers ſide; and if he have none, then of the Mothers ſide: But of Lands diſcended it is otherwiſe. Co. upon Lit. 1. 13. 237. 238. 164. D. & S. 17. Purchaſe

For anſwer to this, theſe things are to be known. That the Law of Inheritances preferreth the firſt Child; amongſt the Children, the Male before the Female; and amongſt Males, the firſt-born. If there be no Children, then the Brother; if no Brother, then Siſters; if neither Brother nor Siſters, then Uncles; and for lack of Uncles, Aunts; if none of them, then Couſins in the neereſt degree of Conſanguinity. So that if a man die ſeiſed of Lands or Tenements in Fee-ſimple, and do not diſpoſe them after his death, and appointeth that they ſhall deſcend in this manner as followeth. 3. To what perſons Land ſhall deſcend after the death of the Anceſtor.

1. If there be any lineal Heir, it ſhall deſcend to him: And for want of ſuch, if there be any collateral Heir, it ſhall deſcend to him: And for want of either, it ſhall eſcheat to the Lord. Linea recta ſemper præfertur tranſverſali. Noy 26, 27. D. & S. 17.

Parceners.

2. If there be any ſons, it ſhall go to the ſons before the daughters: And if there be many ſons, it ſhall go to the eldeſt before any of the younger; for the Rule is, Detur digniori. And if there be no ſons, it ſhall go to all the daughters, who then are called Parceners. If a man have neither ſon nor daughter, then it ſhall go to the next Couſins Males lineal of the whole blood, (if any be;) and for want of Males to the Females. And if there be no lineal Couſins, then it ſhall go to the next Couſin Male collateral of the whole blood; and for want of Male, to the Female, (Numb. 27. v. 3, 6, 7, 8.) But by ſpecial Cuſtoms in ſome places, Lands ſhall go to all the ſons or next Heirs males; and in ſome places to the youngeſt ſon. See Gavelkind, & Burrow-Engliſh.

4. But if the Land come to the Son by deſcent, it ſhall never go to the Heirs of the Mothers ſide: For if there want Heirs of the Fathers ſide to take it, it ſhall eſcheat to the Lord; and ſo on the other ſide, if it come by diſcent from the Mother, Lit. c. 4. 12 Ed. 4. 14. 39 Ed. 3. 30. 1 Ed. 4. 14. Co. 3. 14.

5. If there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Father die before the Grandfather, and after the Grandfather die ſeiſed; the Land ſhall go to the ſon or daughter of the Father, if he have any, and not to any of the other children of the Father or Grandfather: And this Heir is called Hæres juris repræſentationis, becauſe he doth repreſent his Fathers perſon. But if in this caſe the Father die without any Child, it ſhall go to the next eldeſt Brother; or for want of a Brother, to the Siſters of the Father, Bro. 303.

7. If a ſon purchaſe Land and die, and have no other Heir but his fathers brother, he ſhall have it: But if after his father have any ſon or daughter born, that ſon or daughter ſhall have it, Co. upon Lit. 10. 12.

8. If a man ſeiſed of Land as Heir of the part of his Mother, make a Feoffment and take back an Eſtate to him and his Heirs; this is a new Purchaſe, and if he die without iſſue, the Heir of the part of the Father ſhall firſt inherit it, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 par. f. 12.

11. If there be two Sons or Daughters by two women, and the elder purchaſe Land and die without iſſue, or his iſſue die without iſſue; in this caſe the Land ſhall go to his or her Uncle, or the Kinſman of the entire blood, and not to the other Brother or Siſter, but ſhall rather eſcheat to the Lord; for none can have Lands in Fee-ſimple as Heir to another, unleſs he be Heir of the whole blood. But in this caſe if the eldeſt Son die before he enter or is actually ſeiſed of the Land, there the Brother by the other woman ſhall be Heir, Lit. c. 6. 37 Aſſ. 15. Dyer 291. Lit. c. 4.

12. If a man have iſſue only a Daughter, and die and leave his wife with child of a Son, and after the Son is born: Now in this caſe the Land ſhall go to the Son after his birth, but till then it is to go to the Daughter, Perk. c. 521. 9 H. 6. 23.

13. If a woman Covert an Inheretrix of Land die ſeiſed, and have iſſue by her husband, and the iſſue die without any iſſue; now one of the next of kin to the Mother ſhall have this Land, and not any of the other Children of the Father. So if the Land came by the husband, and he have iſſue by his wife and die, and after ſhe have iſſues by another husband, and the iſſue of the firſt husband die without iſſue: In this caſe ſome of his next Kin ſhall have the Land, not any of the other Children of the woman by other husbands, Lit. c. 4.

14. If there be two Brothers, and one of them hath one Son only, and no Daughter, and the Son doth die ſeiſed of Land in Fee: Now this Land ſhall go to the Uncle, and not to the Father; becauſe it is a Principle of Law, That Land cannot lineally aſcend. But if the Uncle after he is actually ſeiſed of it die without iſſue, then it may go to the Father as Heir to his Brother: But if he had not been actually ſeiſed, then it could not have gone to his Brother, Co. 3. 39. Littl. ch. 3. Co. 3. 14.

15. If there be a Son and Daughter by one woman, and a Son by another, and the eldeſt Son purchaſe Land and die ſeiſed of it; his whole Siſter, and not his half Brother ſhall have it: So alſo ſhall ſhe have the Land that came to the eldeſt Son by diſcent from their Father, if her Brother be actually ſeiſed of it by an Entry himſelf, or by another, a Leſſee for years, or a Gardein, (as he may) if the Land were leaſed, and the Leſſee enjoy it, or the Gardein enter.

16. But if their Father die ſeiſed, and the elder Brother die alſo before he be actually ſeiſed of the Land; in this caſe the Land ſhall go to the younger Brother, and not to the Siſter: For it is Poſſeſſio fratris, quæ facit ſororem eſſe hæredem. As if Land, Common, Rent, Advowſon, or the like deſcend, and the elder Brother die before Entry, Claim, receiving the Rent, or Preſentment to the Advowſon; in theſe caſes it ſhall go to the younger Brother, as Heir to his Father, Co. 3. 43. See the Womans Lawyer, f. 10, 11. & F.N.B. 36.

17. If there be two Sons by divers women, and the elder is ſeiſed in Fee and die without iſſue, and the Land go to the Uncle, (as it muſt ut ſupra) and after the Uncle die ſeiſed of it without iſſue; here the younger Brother may have the Land as Heir to the Uncle, though he might not have it as Heir to the Brother. But then the Uncle muſt be ſeiſed of it; for he muſt make himſelf Heir to him that was laſt ſeiſed of it, and that was his Half-Brother, to whom he cannot be Heir, Co. 3. 42, 43.

18. If a man have iſſue three Daughters by one woman, and one by another woman, and die ſeiſed of Land; the Land ſhall go to all the four Daughters equally, 20 Aſſ. pl. 27. And yet if two of the Siſters by the one woman die without iſſue, the third Siſter by that mother ſhall have all the Land of thoſe two Siſters, and the Siſter by the other mother ſhall have no part of it, 20 Aſſ. 27.

19. If a man hath one only Child, and he doth purchaſe Land and die, and the Land go to the Uncle, (as it muſt) and after he hath another Child; in this caſe the Land ſhall go to the Child that is after born, D. & S. c. 10.

20. If there be a Grandmother of the Fathers part, Mother and Son, and the Grandmother hath a Brother, and the Mother another, and the Son purchaſe Land and die without iſſue; it ſhall go to the Great-Uncle, and not to the Uncle, Dyer 314.

21. Land purchaſed (as appears in ſome caſes before) may go to the Heirs of the part both of the Father and Mother of the Purchaſor, unleſs it be once attached in the Heir of the part of the Father; for then the Heir of the part of the Mother ſhall never have it, becauſe they are not of blood to him that was laſt ſeiſed. But Lands deſcended go only to the Heir of that part from whence it doth deſcend: As if from the Father who did purchaſe it, then it may go to the part of the Heirs of the Mother of the ſame Father, but not to the Heirs of the part of the Sons Mother; for though they be of blood to the Son that was laſt ſeiſed, yet they are not of blood to the Father which was the firſt Purchaſor, 49 Ed. 3. 12. Finches ley, 119.

22. In the Collateral Diſcent of any one that doth purchaſe Lands, and die without iſſue; the Heirs of the part of the Father, and that are of blood of the Anceſtors males, and in the lineal Aſcent by the Father, ſhall be preferred in the Diſcent, before the Heirs that are of the blood of the Females in the lineal Aſcent by the Father in the ſame degree: As the Brother of the Grandfather or Great-Grandfather of the part of the Father, and his Iſſues (be they male or female) ſhall be preferred before the Brother of the Grandmother or Great-Grandmother of the part of the Father and his Iſſues. But if one purchaſe Lands and die without Iſſue, having no Heir of the part of the Father, the Land ſhall deſcend to the next Heir of the part of the Mother; yet ſo, as to the Heirs of the race of the Males firſt: As if the Father of the Father of the Mother of the Purchaſor have one Brother, and the Mother of the Father of the Mother of the Purchaſor hath another; the Brother of the Grandfather, and not of the Grandmother of the Mother ſhall have it, Plow. 444.

23. If one have iſſue two Daughters, and die, each Daughter ſhall have alike? But if the eldeſt have iſſue three Daughters, the youngeſt one; the Daughter of the youngeſt ſhall have as much as the three of the eldeſt. And if the eldeſt have iſſue divers Sons, and the youngeſt divers Daughters; the eldeſt Son of the eldeſt, and the Daughters of the youngeſt ſhall have all alike; the eldeſt Son ſhall have a moyetie, and the Daughters of the youngeſt the other moyetie, Co. ſuper Lit. 164.

24. But if there be Father and Son, and the Son be attainted of Treaſon or Felony in the Fathers life, and overlive his Father; the Land ſhall not come to the Son, nor any of his Iſſues: But if the Son had died before the Father, it ſhould have gone to the other Iſſues of the Father. (See Corruption of Blood.) For if the Son die before the Father having Iſſue, neither the ſecond Son, nor the Iſſue of the firſt Son ſhall inherit it, but it ſhall eſcheat, 27 Aſſ. 11. Co. 3. 41. 4. 124.

25. If a man be attainted of Treaſon or Felony, his blood is ſo corrupt, that Land can neither deſcend to him from any Anceſtor, neither can any have Land from him that ſhall make himſelf Heir to him immediately, Co. lib. Inſt. f. 8. par. 1. And the Kings Pardon will not help this.

Sect. 5.

26. If a Purchaſor of Land have iſſue a Son, and die, and the Son enter and die without iſſue, and without Heir of the part of the Father; the Heir of the part of the Mother of ſuch iſſue ſhall never inherit, but the Heir of the part of the Mother of the Father may inherit it, Plow 446.

27. If a Purchaſor die without iſſue, and there be a Brother of the Grandmother of the part of the Father, and another Brother of the Great-Grandmother of the part of the Father; the Brother of the Great-Grandmother ſhall not have it, but the Brother of the Grandmother ſhall be Heir, Plow. 449.

28. A Monſter that hath not the ſhape of Mankind, ſhall not be Heir nor inherit any Land: But if he have ſome deformity only, as four or ſix fingers, or crooked parts; this will not hinder.

29. A Baſtard alſo ſhall not be Heir to another.

30. Nor ſhall an Alien born out of the Kings liegeance, inherit from his Father. See Cromp. Jur. f. 53. 6. Cowlib. Inſt. 1 par. f. 7, 8.

4. What Diſcent ſhall take away Entry, or not.

The Law doth much regard Diſcents, and every Diſcent ſeems to add ſome ſtrength to the Title. And therefore if one have right to enter into Lands which another enjoyeth, and he doth not enter, but ſuffer him to die ſeiſed of it, and the Land to diſcend; in this caſe his right of Entry is gone, and he hath no remedy but to bring his Action to recover his right. And this holdeth in moſt caſes, and almoſt in all where theſe particulars are in the caſe.

1. A dying ſeiſed by the Anceſtor of an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, and not for life only.

2. A dying ſeiſed of the Poſſeſſion and Frank-tenement alſo, and not a Reverſion or a Remainder only.

3. Where he that died ſeiſed, and he that hath right of Entry, do claim by ſeveral Titles, and not by the ſame.

4. Where

4. Where he that hath the right of Entry is of full age infra quatuor maria, of ſane memory, out of the Priſon, and ſole, and not a Woman covert.

5. Where the Diſſeiſor or Abator muſt have the quiet poſſeſſion of the Land five years before the Diſcent, without any Entry or continual Claim made by him that hath the title or right of Entry.

6. There muſt be a Diſcent, and not a Succeſſion only: As where a Corporation diſſeiſe, and there be twenty Succeſſions, this will not bar him that hath right of his Entry. For the illuſtration whereof, ſee the Caſes and Examples following. Lit. l. 1. *c.*6, D. & S. 24. *Lit. c.*387,388. Finch 46. *Lit.*397,398,402,412. *St.*32 *H.*8.33. *Co.*11.33. Dyer 219. *Lit.*413.448.

1. If one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and diſſeiſed by another, and he die, and the Land deſcend to his Heir, and he enter; in this caſe the Entry of the Diſſeiſee is gone, and he is put to his Writ of Entry ſur diſſeiſon for his remedy: But this Diſſeiſon and Diſcent muſt be in time of Peace; for if it be in time of War, *contra. Lit.*385.47.

2. If one be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor give the ſame Land to another in tail, and the Tenant in tail hath Iſſue and die ſeiſed of that Eſtate, and the Iſſue enter; in this caſe the Entry of the Diſſeiſee is gone, and he is put to his Action if he will have remedy, *Lit. c.*38.

If a Feoffee in fee, or Donee in tail be upon Condition, and he is diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed; the Feoffee or Donee hath loſt his Entry, and is put to his Action, *Lit.*392.

3. If a woman Diſſeiſor marry a husband and have iſſue, and after the wife die ſeiſed, and after the husband die, and then the Heir enter; it ſeems the Diſſeiſor is barred of Entry, 9 *H.*7. 37 *H.*6. And if a woman ſole be diſſeiſed, and after take a husband, and the Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed during the Coverture, the Entry of the Wife is gone, and ſhe is put to her Writ, *Lit.*404.

4. If an Infant diſſeiſe another, and alien the Land, and the Alienee die ſeiſed, his Heir within age; the Diſſeiſſee is barred of his Entry. But if the Diſſeiſor within age enter upon the Heir, (as he may) then may the Diſſeiſee enter upon the Infant, becauſe the Diſcent is defeated, *Lit.*407,408. If one diſſeiſe another, and make a Feoffment upon Condition, and the Feoffee die ſeiſed; then the Entry of the Diſſeiſee is gone: But if the Diſſeiſor enter for the Condition broken, then he may enter upon him, *Lit.*409.

5. If one diſſeiſe a man, and put out his Leſſee for years at once, and die ſeiſed; the Diſſeiſee cannot enter, but is put to his Action; but the Leſſee for years may enter. But if it were a Diſſeiſor of a Tenant for life, *contra. Lit.*411.

6. If a Daughter be diſſeiſed, and after there is a dying ſeiſed, and then the Son is born; this Diſcent will bar him of his Entry, *Bro.*450.

7. If a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for years, and after die ſeiſed; this will bar the Diſſeiſee of his Entry, *Bro.*453. If an Infant make a Feoffment, and after his full age the Feoffee die ſeiſed; or a Feoffee for life alien, and the Alienee die ſeiſed; or a Deviſe be of Land on Condition, and the Heir of the Deviſor enter, and die ſeiſed: In theſe caſes the Entry is gone, and they are put to their Action, 21 *H.*6.71. *Lit.*98. 9 *H.*6.25. If one bargain and ſell his Land, and the Bargainee enter, and after the Bargainor enter upon him and die ſeiſed; the Entry of the Bargainee is gone, Dun & Carlton, M. Jac. B.R.

8. If an Abator or Intrudor, or one that hath but title of Entry, or that may have an Action, die ſeiſed; this Diſcent taketh away Entry, *Lit. Diſcents. Plow.*47. See more of this in Co. upon *Lit.*238.

9. The dying ſeiſed of the Inheritance and Freehold together, whereby the Land deſcends unto his Heir, taketh away the Entry of every one that may have an Action, Lit. Diſcents.

10. The whole time from the Diſſeiſin to the Diſcent caſt, is conſiderable: For if the perſon be not priviledged at all times, the Diſcent binds: As if a Woman-covert be diſſeiſed, and the Husband dieth, and ſhe take a new Husband, and then the Diſcent is caſt; or a man ultra mare is diſſeiſed, and he return into England, and then go over, and then a Diſcent is caſt; this Diſcent doth bind, becauſe of the interim, 9 *H.*7.24. Dyer 143.

11. If

11, If one wrongfully enter upon anothers Poſſeſſion, and put the right Owner of the Freehold and Inheritance from it, he doth thereby get the Freehold and Inheritance by Diſſeiſin, and he may hold againſt all men but the diſſeiſed. And if ſuch Diſſeiſor or Abator having quiet poſſeſſion five years after Diſſeiſin or Abatement, die in poſſeſſion, and the Land deſcend to his Heir; hereby they have gained the right to the poſſeſſion of the Land againſt him that hath right, until he recover it by a fit Real Action: And if it be not ſued for within ſixty years after the Diſſeiſin or Abatement committed, the right Owner doth loſe his right for ever.

12. But if the Anceſtor do not die ſeiſed in Fee or Fee-tail, but of a Term of life only, this will not take away Entry, *Lit. c.*387. *Finches ley, f.*120. And if one be ſeiſed of a Reverſion or Remainder only, and die ſo ſeiſed, and it deſcend to his Heir, this will not bar him that hath right of his Entry, *Lit.c.*388.

13. If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant be diſſeiſed, and he alien in Fee, and the Alienee die without Heir, and the Lord enter as in the Eſcheat; here the Diſſeiſor is not barred of his Entry, but may enter upon the Lord, for here is no Diſcent to the Heir, *Finches ley, f.*120.

14. If one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee or in Fee-tail upon Condition, and the Condition be broken, and the Feoffee or Donee die ſeiſed; yet this doth not take away the Entry of the Feoffor or Donor, but he may enter upon the Heir. So if the Feoffee or Donee on Condition be diſſeiſed, and before or after the Condition broken the Diſſeiſee die ſeiſed; yet the Entry of the Feoffor or Donor is not gone, but he may enter upon him, *Lit.*391. 21 *H.*6.11.

15. If a Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed, and after his Heir endow the Wife of the Diſſeiſor of a third part, and ſhe enter into it; now the Diſſeiſee after the Endowment is not barred of his Entry into this third part, but may enter upon the Wife, *Lit.*393. If a Diſſeiſor infeoff his Father, and he die ſeiſed, and the Land deſcend upon him, the Diſſeiſee may enter upon him notwithſtanding this Diſcent, *Lit.*395.

16. If any of the younger Sons enter by Abatement after the Fathers death, and have iſſue and die ſeiſed, or his iſſue die ſeiſed; this will not bar the eldeſt Son of his Entry: So if one Daughter enter upon all the Land deſcended, and die ſeiſed of it. But if after the eldeſt Son have entred, or all the Daughters have entred, one of the younger Sons, or one of the Daughters diſſeiſe the other and die ſeiſed, *contra. Lit.*397. *Plow.*306.

If an Infant have cauſe of Entry, and the Diſcent happen while he is within age, this will not bar him of his Entry. So if the right of Entry happen to a Woman-covert whiles ſhe is ſo, and the dying ſeiſed be before ſhe is ſole, her Entry is not loſt. So if the cauſe of Entry and Diſcent happen whiles a man is de non ſane memorie, yet the Heir of ſuch man ſo diſſeiſed may enter. So if the Diſſeiſee be in Priſon or out of the Realm at the time of the Diſſeiſon and dying ſeiſed, their Entry is preſerved for them, *Lit.*402,403,405, 21 *H.*6.17. *Lit.*437.

17. If a Diſſeiſor enter into Religion, whereby his Land comes to his Heir; this will not bar the Diſſeiſee of his Entry upon his Heir, *Lit.*410.

18. If a Tenant for life be, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and the Tenant for life is diſſeiſed, and a Diſcent is caſt, and after J. S. die, and after the Tenant for life die; in this caſe the Entry of the Heir of J. S. is not gone, but he may enter, for his Remainder was in cuſtodia legis, *Co.*1.134.

19. If one intrude upon the King, and after the King grant away the Land, and before Entry or Seiſure by the Patentee, the Intrudor doth die ſeiſed; this will not bar the Entry of the Patentee, Dyer 266.

20. If the Alienee in Mortmain die ſeiſed, yet the Lord or his Heir may enter upon the Heir of the Alienee, 21 *H.*6.17. 33 *Aſſ. p.*11.

21. The dying ſeiſed of a Diſſeiſor by ſtrength and without title, taketh not the Entry of him and his Heirs, which at the time of the Diſcent had good title of Entry, unleſs the Diſſeiſor had peaceable poſſeſſion by five years next after the Diſſeiſon. See the Womans Lawyer, *fol.*133. Stat. 32 H. 8. chap. 33. See Enfant.

If

If one have divers children, and the eldeſt being a Baſtard, he doth enter after his fathers death, and quietly hold the Land all his life-time, and hath iſſue and dieth ſeiſed, and the iſſue enter; in this caſe the Entry and Action both of the lawful Heir is gone, and he is without remedy. But if the right Heir had ever made his Entry or Claim upon the Baſtard, contra. Lit. c. 401. 409. 360. 36 Aſſ. 2:

Sect. 9. 5. What Diſcent doth take away Entry and Action alſo.

If one have iſſue a daughter Baſtard, and another daughter Mulier, and both of them do enter together and make partition, and the Baſtard die ſeiſed of her part, and her Heir enter; the Mulier ſhall never have any remedy for that part, 21 Ed. 3. 34.

6. Heir, what.

An Heir is he that ſucceedeth by right of blood in any mans Lands or Tenements in Fee: For nothing paſſeth Jure hæreditatis, but only Fee; and one may be Hæres ſanguinis, and yet not Hæres hæreditatis, being diſinherited. And this Heir is either General Heir, or Heir at Common-Law. And this (by our Law) is the eldeſt Son; and for want of Sons, all the Daughters: And in ſome places, and by ſome Cuſtoms, all the Sons are the Heir, as in Gavelkind-Land; and in ſome places the youngeſt Son, as in Burrow-Engliſh-Land. Or elſe he is Special Heir, which is he that is Heir only by ſome Conveyance (as we ſay) per formam doni, and not Heir at the Common-Law; as when Lands are given to J. S. and the Heirs females of his body, and ſo by any other ſpecial limitation. An Heir is alſo, as a Diſcent is, Lineal and Collateral: (See it in Diſcent.) And no man can be ſaid to be Heir to another, whiles his Anceſtor is living; for ſo long he is only Heir apparent, Co. 1. 66. ſuper Lit. 8. 10. 376.

The kinds.

7. Where the Heir ſhall be charged for his Anceſtor, or not; and how.

For anſwer to this, take theſe things. That every Heir having Fee-ſimple Land, be it by Common-Law, or by Cuſtom of Gavelkind or Burrow-Engliſh, is chargeable as far as the value thereof with the binding Acts of the Anceſtor: Qui ſentit commodum, ſentire debet & onus. For the opening whereof, take theſe Caſes.

Upon an Eſpecialty.

1. If a man bind himſelf and his Heirs by any Obligation, Bill, Covenant, Annuity, or other Eſpecialty, to pay money, or do any other thing, and his Heirs have any Land in Fee-ſimple deſcended to him from the ſame Anceſtor, and the Action be brought before he ſell away the ſame Land bona fide; in this caſe the Heir (be he Lineal or Collateral Heir) will be charged for ſo much as is ſo deſcended to him, and he may be ſued upon that Eſpecialty. And where there be many do make one Heir, as Daughters, or Sons, they may and muſt be all ſued; and if one alone of them be charged, he ſhall have remedy againſt the reſt by Audita Querela. Or the Creditor may in this caſe forbear to ſue the Heir, and ſue the Executor; for the Law gives him his choice to ſue which he will.

Sect. 10. 3. Charged.

But to make an Heir chargeable in this caſe, there muſt be theſe three things. 1. The Heirs muſt be bound by name in the Eſpecialty, as, I bind me and my Heirs. And yet if a man do but bind himſelf to pay money, or do a thing, and do not name an Executor, as, I bind me, my Executors, &c. his Executors be bound as he is. But otherwiſe it is of Heirs: And therefore it is, that if one by any Writing bind himſelf, his Executors and Aſſigns, and do not name his Heir, the Heir ſhall not be charged, though he have never ſo much Land by Diſcent. So if one grant an Annuity to one and his Heirs, and do not ſay, [For me and my Heirs] or [I bind me and my Heirs to pay it] or the like. So if I by Deed bind my Heirs only to do a thing, and do not bind me and my Heirs; in this caſe it ſeems the Heir ſhall not be charged: Yet by a Warranty in Law, the Heir may be charged without being named:

Warranty

2. The ſecond thing needful to make an Heir chargeable to the Deed of his Anceſtor, is, that he muſt have Aſſets in Fee-ſimple deſcended to him from the ſame Anceſtor: And therefore although he have never ſo much Land come to him by Gift in Tail, or of any other Eſtate then Fee-ſimple, or Fee-ſimple Land; if it come by Conveyance of the Father, and not by Diſcent, it will not make the Heir chargeable.

3. The Land deſcended to the Heir, muſt continue in the hands of the Heir till the Action be brought: For if he after his Anceſtors death ſell away the Land deſcended to him before the Action brought on the Eſpecialty, he ſhall not be charged; for he is chargeable only in reſpect of the Land. And yet if an Heir ſhall fraudulently and of purpoſe to avoid the force of a Suit, convey away the Land deſcended; this will not help him, but he may be chargeable notwithſtanding. 4. When he is chargeable, he may not be charged for more then the value of the Land deſcended to him, except it be by his own falſe Plea in the Suit; for ſo he may make himſelf chargeable further. See for all theſe things, D. & S. 170. 173. F.N.B. 120. Co. 3. 12. 6. 47. upon Lit. 102. 183. Dyer 204. 114. 149. 373. 344. 111. 239. Plow. 457. Fitz. Grant 85. 21 *H.*7. 4. 10 *Ed.*4. 10.

2. Thus an Heir may be charged upon the Bond, Bill, or Covenant of his Anceſtor, or by an Annuity granted, or Warranty made by the Anceſtor, Plow. 457. Co. upon Lit. 102. 376.

3. If a Judgment be had againſt me for Debt or Damages, and I leave Land to deſcend to my Heir in Fee-ſimple, the one half of theſe Lands will be liable to Execution in his hands by the Writ of Elegit. See Elegit.

4. All the Lands that come to the Heir as Fee-ſimple Land, and Fee-tail Land, from his Anceſtor, will be liable to pay the Debts due from the Anceſtor to the Lord Protector, albeit the Heir be not named, and albeit there be no Specialty, and albeit it come by Conveyance, and not by Diſcent, Plow. 439. 33 *H.*8. 39.

5. An Heir ſhall not be charged with an Annuity by a Preſcription only without Record or Writing; as that he and his Anceſtors time out of mind have paid: For this will not charge the Heir, 10 *Ed.*4. 10. Bro. Preſcr. 11.

8. What lands and eſtates of the Heirs ſhall be ſubject to this Charge, or not.

For this, take theſe Caſes.

1. None but Lands deſcended in Fee-ſimple ſhall be ſubject to the Charge of the Anceſtor, and put in execution. And therefore in the Suit againſt the Heir, the Judgment is only againſt the Lands deſcended, and not any other Lands, nor Body or Goods of the Heir, except it be by his falſe Plea. And upon the Lands he hath in poſſeſſion, Execution is to be made preſently, that the Plaintiff ſhall recover and hold the Land till he be ſatisfied the Debt. And for the Land in Reverſion, that he ſhall have Execution of it when it doth happen to be in poſſeſſion. And where Lands deſcend to divers Heirs, as on the part of the Father, and on the part of the Mother, in Gavelkind, or the like, they muſt all of them be equally charged. Dyer 393. Kelw. 61. Co. upon Lit. 102. 376.

2. The Heir is not chargeable in reſpect of any Frank-tenement diſcendible. And therefore if Lands be granted to J. S. and his heirs during the life of J. S. or Tenant for life doth grant his Eſtate to another during his own life, and he bind him and his Heirs to pay Debt, or do any other thing, and this Land deſcend to the Heir; this will not be chargeable. So neither will entailed Land be ſubject to ſuch a Charge, Co. 10. 98.

9. What Pleas the Heir muſt plead, and how.

For this, take theſe Caſes.

1. The Heir that is ſued upon ſuch a Deed of the Anceſtor, muſt take heed to his Plea: And his ſafe way is, to confeſs the truth, and ſhew what Land it is that is deſcended to him in Fee-ſimple; and then he cannot be charged further in his other Land, Body or Goods. But if he plead, That nothing came to him by diſcent, and it be found againſt him, or Judgment go againſt him by Nihil dicit, Confeſſion, Non-ſuit, or the like, or upon a Non eſt factum pleaded to the Deed of the Anceſtor; in all theſe caſes the Plaintiff after Judgment given may have Execution againſt the Body, Goods, or other Lands of the Heir, Plow. 440. Co. 5. 36. 8. 53. Dyer 85. 62. 344. 149.

2. If a Judgment be given againſt the Heir by Nihil dicit, Confeſſion, or the like, and after a Scire facias is ſued to have Execution; the Heir cannot now plead he had nothing by Diſcent, Dyer 344.

3. If a Debt be paid by the Executor, or releaſed to him, and after the Heir is ſued for this Debt; the Heir may plead this in Bar of the Action, Co. 10. 93.

Sect. 11.

4. If the Plaintiff be Executor to the Debtee, and hath enough of the Goods and Chattels of the Anceſtor to pay himſelf; he may plead this in bar to the Action, Fitz. Bar, 188.

Eſcheat

Eſcheat is, where a Tenant of Fee-ſimple Land is dead, and there is no Heir capable of the Land, then it ſhall eſcheat to the Lord. And as to this, take theſe things. Eſcheat, what

1. When the Heirs be all dead, ſo that there is no Heir general or ſpecial: Or when the blood of the Anceſtor is corrupt, as where the Anceſtor is attainted for Felony or Treaſon, ſo that now no body can be Heir to him; in theſe caſes the Lord may enter and take the Land by Eſcheat. Or if a Baſtard die without iſſue of his body, and leave Land to deſcend, in which caſe he can have no Heir; the Lord ſhall have the Land by Eſcheat. (See Baſtard.) And if the Tenant or Baſtard in theſe caſes be diſſeiſed and die, the Lord may enter. But if the Diſſeiſor die, or alien the Land to another bona fide before Entry, the Lord may not enter. Baſtard. can have no heir but of his body

2. In caſes of Treaſon, the Lord Protector is to have the Land by Eſcheat; but in caſes of Felony and other Eſcheats, the Lord of whom the Land is held ſhall have it. Treaſon eſcheats to K. Felony to y^e Lord

3. Conditions, Uſes, Rights of Entry and Action, regularly cannot eſcheat.

4. By this Eſcheat the Property of the Land is altered, and given to the Lord of the Land, who may enter or have an Eſcheat. For all theſe things, ſee 29 *Aſſ. pl.*61. Co. 8. 42. Lit. 2. 22 Aſſ. pl. 49: 6 H. 7. 9. Co. 3. 1. upon Lit. 268. 312. 314. 13: See Forfeiture.

For anſwer hereunto, take theſe things.

11. What things ſhall come to the Heir from the Anceſtor, or not, but to the Executor or ſome other.

1. Pigeons in a Dove-houſe, Fiſhes in a Pond, Conies in a Warren, Deer in a Park, where the Anceſtor had the Inheritance, or but for life in the Pond, Warren, Park or Dove-houſe, will not go to the Executor, but to the Heir, or other that hath the Land wherein theſe things are.

2. Rents reſerved on Leaſes made of the Lands deſcending, ſhall go to the Heir, not to the Executor. Executor. ſhall have Damages recovered

3. If the Anceſtor recover Land and Damages in an Action, or a Deed and Damages, and die before Execution; in this caſe the Heir ſhall have Execution for the Land or Deed, and the Executor for the Damages.

12. Heir-looms what.

4. Heir-looms do ſignifie in ſome Countries all Implements of Houſhold, as Tables, Preſſes, Cupboards, Bedſteads, Wainſcotes, and ſuch like, which by the Cuſtom of that Country have belonged to a Houſe certain diſcents; and theſe by that Cuſtom are not to be inventoried, nor ſhall go to the Executor, but to the Heir with the Houſe, Co. upon *Lit.*185. *Goldsb.*129. *pl.*24.

CHAP. LXXVI.

Of an Entry into Lands, or into Religion.

Entry, what.

ENtry into Lands is taken two ways. It is moſt properly taken for the taking or having of poſſeſſion of Lands or Tenements: But it is alſo uſed for a Writ of Poſſeſſion. The firſt is either in deed, or an actual Entry; when a man doth by himſelf, or ſome other by his appointment, actually enter into Lands, which is by ſetting his foot upon it, and claiming the Land. Or it is in Law; and ſo a continual Claim is an Entry, for it amounts to, and is of the ſame force with an Entry in deed. The actual Entry may be made by a mans ſelf, or by his Attorney by warrant from him that hath right of Entry; for which ſee Attorney. And he that hath a lawful power to enter, is ſaid to have a Right or Title of Entry: For ſometimes a man doth it by a Right of Entry, as a Diſſeiſee put out; and ſometimes by a Title of Entry, as upon a Condition, or the like. And by this Entry, if he have Right, he brings the Poſſeſſion and Right together: But if he have no Right, he doth gain no Property in the Land by the Entry in any caſe, but in the caſe of an Occupancie, whereby the Freehold is gained. See Occupant. Terms of Law. Co. upon Lit. 253. 257. 243. 258. Dyer 337.

The kinds.

Attorney.

Right or Title of Entry.

Sect. 1. Where it is lawful, or not. Where the Entry of one ſhall give advantage to another, or not.

Where an Entry is lawful or not, See in Diſcontinuance, Forfeiture, Diſſeiſin, Condition, and other Titles. And where it is neceſſary, Co. upon Lit. 238.

If one Coparcener or Jointenant enter generally, or enter for himſelf and the reſt, or in his own name and the names of the reſt of the Jointenants or Coparceners, and the reſt do agree to it, or do not diſagree to it; this Entry will give advantage to the reſt, and put them all into poſſeſſion of the Land. But if one of them enter ſpecially to his own uſe; as if Tenant in tail die, having two Daughters, and one of them enter and make a Feoffment of all the Land with Warranty, this Entry of the one Daughter will do the other Daughter no good at all, Lit. 160. Dyer 128. 53. 4 H. 7. 9. So if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee; the Entry of the Tenant for life ſhall enure to him in Remainder. (Idem.) So the Entry of the Husband ſhall avail to the Wife to put her in poſſeſſion, Noy 97.

And ſo it is if one have iſſue a Son and a Daughter by one woman, and a Son by another, and is ſeiſed of Capite-Land, and deviſe all to the youngeſt Son and die, and then the youngeſt Son enter into all and die; in this caſe his Entry ſhall avail the eldeſt Son for a third part. And the Entry of one Tenant in Common ſhall be the Entry of the other; and that ſo to give him poſſeſſion, that he may have an Action of Treſpaſs. Adjudg. Smalls Caſe, M. 14 Jac. Com. B. And in all caſes where the Entry is not lawfull, the Entry of one ſhall not benefit or advantage another, 1 H. 6. 5. 8 H. 6. 16.

Sect. 2. Where an Entry into part ſhall gain the poſſeſſion of the whole, or not.

If one have cauſe to enter into any Lands lying in divers Villages within one County, and he enter into a parcel of the Lands or Tenements that are in one Village, in the name of all the Lands and Tenements to which he hath right to enter within all the Villages of the ſame County; by this Entry he ſhall get the poſſeſſion of all the ſame Lands, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes hereafter ſet down; and much more, if all the Land lie in one Village. If therefore one diſſeiſe me of two Acres of Land, (though it be at ſeveral times) and I enter into one of them in the name of both; this is good for both. Lit. ſect. 417. Dyer 337. 227. Co. ſuper Lit. 252 9 H. 7. 25.

The Entry muſt be made as the Action muſt be brought: And therefore if the Land lie in ſeveral Counties, as there muſt be ſeveral Actions, ſo there muſt be ſeveral Entries, 9 H. 7. 25. Co. on Lit. 15.

If

If one make a Feoffment of ſeveral parcels of Land in one County on Condition, and the Condition is broken; in this caſe an Entry into parcel in the name of all the reſt, is good for all. But if the Feoffment were made of ſeveral Lands at ſeveral times with ſeveral Conditions; there ſuch an Entry is not good for any more but what he doth enter upon, 9 *H.*7.25. Co. upon Lit. 252.

If Lands be in the occupation of A. B. C. and a ſtranger enter into the Land in the occupation of A. generally, and without any ſpecial Declaration in the name of all the Lands in the occupation of B. and C. this Entry doth not gain the poſſeſſion of the Lands in the occupation of B. and C. But by a ſpecial Declaration it may be good for all, by Juſt. Hutton, 21 Jac. at Sarum-Aſſiſes. Co. upon Lit. 252. And yet if one diſſeiſe me of two Acres of Land, and he let the ſame to three ſeveral perſons for life; in this caſe if I will enter, I muſt enter upon ſome of the Land in every one of their occupations, and no ſpecial Entry will ſerve here. But if the Leaſes were made to three perſons for years; in this caſe a ſpecial Entry upon one of them in the name of all the reſt, will gain the poſſeſſion of the whole, Co. ſuper Lit. 252.

If one diſſeiſe me of Land lying in three Villages in one County, and he levy a Fine of the Land in one Village, and after I enter into the Land of one of the other Villages in the name of all the reſt; this is no good Entry for to reduce the Poſſeſſion of the Land of which the Fine was levied, but there muſt be a particular Entry upon that Land, becauſe the Conuſee is in by Title, Dyer 337.

If two men ſeverally do diſſeiſe me of two Acres, and I enter into one of theſe Acres in the name of both; this is good only for that whereupon I put my foot, and not for the other. But if theſe two Acres come after into one hand, then the Entry upon one in the name of both, will reduce the Poſſeſſion of both, 9 H. 7. 25. Co. ſuper Lit. 252. And therefore if in the firſt caſe I enter, and make a Leaſe of the two Acres; this Leaſe will be good only for the Acre I do enter upon, and not for the other, Curia M. 8 Jac.

If my Father die ſeiſed of Land in B. he had in his own right, and of other Land he had jointly with my Mother, my Mother being alive, I enter into that he had in his own right in the name of both Lands; this Entry will not give me a poſſeſſion into the other Land to which I have neither Right nor Title, 39 Aſſ. pl. 16. And in all caſes where-ever a man doth intend by his Entry into part to gain the Poſſeſſion, he muſt be ſure to make his Entry ſpecially, (that is) in that part in the name of the whole, Co upon Lit 252.

He that hath right to enter into Land, muſt enter within twenty years of his right firſt accrued, if there be no let by Infancie, Coverture, Impriſonment, Non-ſane-memory, or his being beyond Sea. If ſo, then within twenty years of that Impediment removed. And after this time he cannot enter, his Entry is gone, 21 *Jac. ch.*16.

When a man muſt enter that hath Right. limitation 20. years

Of Entry in Religion.

ENtry in Religion is, where a man doth enter into a Profeſſion of any Religious Popiſh Order of Friars, Monks, or the like. This Religious life, in judgment of our Law, is a Spiritual or Civil death; and he that doth intend ſo to do, may then make his Will and appoint an Executor. And yet if at any time after he ſhall leave this Profeſſion again, then he ſhall have all his Lands and Goods in ſtatu quo prius; and this is called a Dearraignment, St. 31 *H.*8.6.

CHAP. LXXVII.

Of Error.

Error, what.

THis word is taken two ways. 1. Either for ſome fault committed in ſome Suit, or for a Writ of Error; which is a Writ given to the party grieved, for the relief of the party grieved by this Error. In the firſt ſenſe Error is ſometimes in matter of fact, as when one of the parties were dead at the time when Judgment was given: And this point, if it come to iſſue, is to be tryed by Jury; and ſo of the like Errors.

The kinds.

Or it is where there is any diſcontinuance or undue proceeding in the Suit, which appeareth by the Record it ſelf. And ſometimes in matter of Law, which is when it appeareth by the Record as the Caſe is there, that Judgment was not given according to Law. And theſe two laſt ſorts of Errors appearing upon the Records themſelves are to be tryed and determined by the Judges themſelves of the ſame, or of ſome other Court.

Alſo the Error is ſometimes in the proceſs and proceeding of the Suit before Judgment; and then it will overthrow and nullifie the whole Record. And ſometimes it is in the very Judgment it ſelf; and then alſo it marrs all the Record. And ſometimes it is in the Execution after Judgment only; and then the Execution only ſhall be avoided, and the Proceedings before the Judgment, and the Judgment are good, and a new Execution may be made out. And where there are two Judgments, as in ſome caſes there are, there the laſt may be avoided, and the firſt may ſtand good. And in caſe where Execution is avoided, Reſtitution muſt be made of all that the Sheriff hath levied by vertue of any ſuch Reſtitution, F.N.B. 120. Co. upon Lit. 259. 288. Finches ley 468. 12 *Ed.*4. 11. Stat. 9 R. 3. c. 3. 29 Eliz. 2. 27 Eliz. 3 Jac. 8. *Cromp. How it ſhall be reformed.

Some Errors (as before is ſhewed) may be reformed in the ſame Court where the Suit is depending: Some muſt be reformed in other Courts. The Errors in the Court of Common-Pleas are to be reformed in the Upper-Bench: The Errors in the Upper-Bench are to be reformed in the Exchequer-Chamber: The Errors in the Exchequer-Chamber, or in any other Court, may be examined and reformed in the Parliament. The Errors in the Courts of Corporate-Towns, Cities, County-Courts, and Hundred-Courts, may be reformed in the Upper-Bench or Common-Pleas: And an Error in Proceſs in a Suit, may be reformed in the ſame Term in the Court where the Suit is depending, Stat. 27 Eliz. 8. Dyer 250. F.N.B. 21. Plow. 393. 14 *H.*7. 1. 7 H. 6. 28. 23 Eliz. 3. 31 Eliz. 1. 31 *Ed.*3. 12. 28 *Ed.*3. 10. 1 *H.*4. 15: Co. 3. 70. 111. 34. 4. 53. and other Books.

Amendment, what.

Amendment is, where there is ſome Error eſcaped in the Proceſs and Proceedings of a Suit. There in ſome caſes the Judges may amend it, and prevent the bringing of the Writ of Error. For this ſee Stat. 14 Ed. 3. 6. 9 H. 5. 4. 4 H. 6. 3. 8 H. 6. 12. 15.

What Errors are fatal, or not; and where Amendments may be thereof, or not.

In Suits.

There are ſome Errors in the Proceedings of Suits, that the Judges of the Courts where the Suits are ought to take notice of, and to ſtop the Proceedings of the Suit for them. And therefore the Rule is, That of all apparent faults proceeding from the Action, as in falſe Latine, default of Form in the Writ, Inſufficiencie in an Office or Indictment, miſawarding of Proceſs, (as if an Exigent go forth where none lieth) Impoſſibility in the Plea, as in Account ſuppoſing him to be his Receiver for for ſeven years, and the Defendant pleads fully accounted ſuch a day, which is the first day of the ſeven years. In theſe caſes the Court (ex officio) is to take notice of it to abate the Writ, award Superſedeas upon ſuch Offices, Indictments, or Proceſs to ſtay Judgment, if the Defendants Plea be found againſt him, &c. and this without exception taken, or motion made by the party. And therefore although he that caſteth an Eſſoin cannot plead in Abatement of the Writ by way of Plea, yet if it be a matter apparent to the Court, any ſtranger as Amicus Curiæ may do it, and the Court is bound to abate it, though the Tenant or Defendant make default. And on the other ſide, the Judg is to ſee that either party in a Suit is to be hurt, by any Error of a Clerk of the Court and by his miſtake; as where a good Original Writ is ill entred in the Roll, as where the Writ is againſt A. and B. and the whole Proceſs againſt B. and C. Or a Scire facias out of a Fine and part of the Land omitted: Or where the Clerk writeth a ſyllable or a letter too little, or too much. Or where any Error is aſſigned by razing, enterlining, adding, ſubſtracting, or diminiſhing of words, letters, titles, or parcel of letters in any Record, Proceſs or Warrant of Attorney, Original Writ, or Judicial Pannel or Return, though it appear ſuſpitious to the Judges. For, for ſuch things as theſe no Judgment or Record is to be reverſed or adnulled for Error aſſigned therein; but the Judges of the ſame Court, before or after Judgment, may and muſt amend it.

Sect. 3.

But in caſe of Appeals and Indictments for Treaſon and Felony, and Outlawries thereupon, and after Demurrer joined and entred; the ſame Court wherein the Suit is depending may amend all imperfections and want of form, other then thoſe which the party demurring ſhall particularly ſet down in his Demurrer. And after Verdict given in any cauſe on the one ſide or the other, no prejudice ſhall be to either party becauſe of any variance in form only between the parts of the Record, or for lack of Averment of any life, ſo the party be alive, and it be proved upon examination: Or by reaſon any Writ of Venire facias, Habeas corpora, or Diſtringas is awarded to a wrong Officer: Or by reaſon the Viſne is miſawarded; or by reaſon that any of the Jury are miſnamed; or in any Retorn, ſo as upon examination it appear to be the ſame perſon; or by reaſon of lack of Entry of the Retorn, or Miſ-retorn, ſo as upon examination it appear it was duly done: Or by reaſon that the Plaintiff in an Ejectione firme, or any perſonal Suit, being an Infant, did appear by Attorney therein. For all theſe things muſt be amended by the Judges of the ſame Court. But for all theſe things, See more Stat. 21 Jac. 13. 4 *H.*6.3. 14 *Ed.*3.6. 9 *H.*5.4. 4 *H.*6.3. 8 H. 6. 12. 15. 32 H. 8. 10. 18 Eliz. 13. 11 *H.*4.3. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 32. Co 11.6,7. 4.62. 8.133. 5.37.45. 27 *Eliz.*11.5. 23 *Eliz.*3. Dyer 367. 18 Ed 4.3. 4 *H.*6.16. 5 Ed 4.7. 7 *H.*6.5. and divers other places.

In Fines and Common-Recoveries.

Moſt Miſtakes and Errors in Fines and Common-Recoveries, are not fatal, but amendable: For there the Rule is, Conſenſus tollit Errorem; Conſent takes away Error. But ſee for this, *Brownl. False Judgment what.

False Judgment, is a Writ lying where an erroneous Judgment is given in any inferior Court that is not a Court of Record, as County, Hundred-Court, or Court-Baron, then the party grieved by the Judgment may have this Writ, and remove all the Proceſs of the Suit into the Common-Pleas, and there it ſhall be examined: And if it be found, the Judgment ſhall be reverſed, and the Suitors or Judges of the Court ſhall be amerced. CHAP. LXXVIII.

Of an Exchange.

1. Exchange or Eſchange, what.

AN Exchange is the mutual grant of equal Intereſts the one in exchange for the other. Or it is, where a man is ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, Fee tail, for life or years, or is poſſeſſed of Goods, and another is ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of other Lands, or poſſeſſed of other Goods in the like manner, and they do exchange their Lands or Goods the one for the other. And in this there is a double Grant; for each of them doth grant that which is his, to the other. Terms of the Law, tit. Exchange. Finches ley 27.

This manner of onveyance (which heretofore was very frequent) is ſometimes made by word without any writing; and ſometimes it is made by Deed or in writing: And which way ſoever it be made, it muſt be made by this word [Exchange,] which is a word ſo appropriated to this thing, as the word [Frankmarriage] is to a gift in Frankmarriage; neither of which can be made or deſcribed by any circumlocution, *Brownlows Rep.*1 *par.*40. Co. ſuper Lit. 50. Perk. ſect. 253.

2. The effect and fruit of it.

The fruit and effect of an Exchange is, that it doth give the intereſt, and after the property of the things exchanged to either party, according to the Agreement. And if the Exchange be of Lands or Tenements of any Eſtate of Inheritance or Freehold, whether it be by word or deed, it hath a Condition and a Warranty in Law incident and annexed to it as a thing made by the word Exchange, and tacitè implied in every grant of Exchange: A Condition to give a Re-entry upon all the Land given in exchange, if he be put out of all or part of the Land taken in exchange, and a Warranty to enable him to vouch and to recover over in value ſo much of his own Land again given in exchange, as ſhall be recovered from him of the Land taken in exchange, if he be ſued for it, *Co.*4.121. 15 *E.*4.3. 9 *E.*4.21. Bro. Eſchange in toto. Fitz. Eſchange in toto.

Condition.

Warranty.

So that upon every Exchange, either party, if he be put out of or loſe by Action the Land he taketh in Exchange, hath a double remedy againſt the other. And yet this remedy doth go only in the Privity, and ſhall not go to an Aſſignee: As if A. exchange Land with B. and B. be put out of all or part of the Land upon a Title paramount by a Recovery in a real Action or otherwiſe; in this caſe B. may either enter upon his own Land again which he gave in Exchange, or elſe if it be in an Action brought, he may vouch A. upon the Warranty in Law, and ſhall recover as much in value againſt him of the Land he gave, as he hath loſt of the Land he took in Exchange. But if B. alien his Land taken in Exchange to C. and C. be put out of all or part of the Land upon a Title paramount; C. in this caſe can neither enter upon the Land given to A. in Exchange upon the Condition in Law, nor vouch A. to Warranty and recover over in value upon the Warranty in Law. And yet A. in this caſe ſhall have the like remedy againſt C. the Alienee upon the Condition and Warranty both, as he had againſt B. But if A. himſelf implead C. for the Land he gave to B. in Exchange, C. may make uſe of this Warranty in Law by way of Rebutter againſt A.

Aſſignee.

Rebutter.

And in all theſe caſes, where one of the parties is put out of all or part of the Land, or out of part of the Eſtate by Entry, and the other party enter upon the others when y^e eſtate is avoided by entry & it in part or y^e whole & other part or any other Land & void y^e whole exchange but contra when impleaded

Land upon the Condition in Law, he may enter upon the whole Land, and avoid the whole Exchange. But if he be impleaded for a part only, or for the whole, and a part only be recovered from him; in this caſe he ſhall recover ſo much in value of the other Land only as he hath loſt, and no more. As if an Exchange be of three Acres for three Acres, and after one of the parties is put out of one of the Acres by the Entry of a ſtranger; in this caſe he may enter upon the whole three Acres he had given in Exchange, and ſo avoid the whole Exchange if he will. And if A. and B. be Jointenants for life, and the Fee-ſimple to the Heirs of A. and A. exchange this Land with C. in Fee, and then die, and B. enter and avoid the Exchange for his life (as he may) in this caſe C. may avoid the whole Exchange, and enter upon his own three Acres again. So if he in Reverſion diſſeiſe his Tenant for life, and then exchange the Land, and after the Tenant for life enter; in this caſe the other party may defeat the whole Exchange. But in this caſe of an Exchange of three Acres for three Acres, if one of the Acres were gained by Diſſeiſin, and the Diſſeiſee bring an Action and doth recover it againſt the Diſſeiſor; in this caſe if he vouch over the other party to the Exchange, he ſhall recover ſo much in value only of the three Acres he gave in Exchange, as the Acre he hath loſt, and no more.

To the perfection of an Exchange, and to make things to paſs by this kind of Conveyance, theſe things are requiſite. 1. That the perſons or parties thereunto be able to give and take, and not diſabled by any ſpecial impediment. And for this it muſt be known, that ſuch perſons as may be Grantors and Grantees, may make Exchanges; and ſuch perſons as are diſabled to grant, are diſabled to make Exchanges. See Grant Numb. 4.

3. How an Exchange muſt be made, and what ſhall be ſaid a good Exchange, or not.

1. In reſpect of the parties thereunto, and their eſtates.

An Exchange made between the King and a Subject is good, albeit the King hold his Land in one capacity, and the Subject in another, Co. ſuper Lit. 51.

An Exchange made between an Infant and another is not void, but voidable only; for the Infant at his full age may affirm or avoid it at his election, Idem.

Infant.

An Exchange made between a Tenant in tail and another, is not void, but voidable; for it is good againſt himſelf during his life, and his Iſſue at his full age may affirm or avoid it at his election, Bro. Eſchange 9. Perk. ſect. 279.

Tenant in tail.

An Exchange made between a man de non ſane memorie and another, is not void, but voidable; for it is good againſt him, but his Heir may avoid or affirm it at his election, Bro. Eſchange 9.

De non ſane memorie.

A man that doth hold Land in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life in the right of his wife, may exchange this Land, and the Exchange will be good as long as he and his wife doth live. And he with his wife may exchange it for longer time, and the Exchange is good againſt him; but his wife after his death may affirm or avoid it if ſhe will, Bro. idem. Perk. ſect. 279.

Husband in right of his Wife.

One Parſon or Vicar may exchange his Church or Benefice with another, and this Exchange is good, Perk. ſect. 288.

Parſon.

The Diſſeiſor and Diſſeiſee may joyn together and exchange the land whereof the diſſeiſin was made with a ſtranger for other land: but if it be made out of the land and before the entry of the diſſeiſee it ſhall not bind the diſſeiſee, for he may avoid it. And a diſſeiſor cannot exchange the land he hath gotten by diſſeiſin with the diſſeiſee for other land, for this exchange is void, unleſs it be by indenture, or fine, that it may work by way of eſtoppel, Perk. Sect. 280. 273.

The Leſſor and Leſſee may joyn together and exchange the Land leaſed for other Land, and this is good; for it ſhall be ſaid to be the ſurrender of the Leſſee to the Leſſor, and the Exchange of the Leſſor; and therefore the Leſſee (as it ſeems) ſhall have nothing to do with the Land taken in exchange. Sed quære of that. Perk. ſect. 279.

Surrender.

Jointenants for life, the Fee to one of them, may exchange their land with a ſtranger for other land to hold in the ſame nature, and the Exchange is good. But Jointenants, Tenants in common, and Coparceners cannot exchange the lands they do ſo hold with another, before they have made partition, Perk. ſect. 277. 281.

Jointenants. Tenants in common. Coparceners

If A. and B. be Jointenants for life, the Fee to A. and A. exchange the whole land with another for other land; this is good only for his moity, as ſome have ſaid: But it ſeems notwithſtanding it is good for the whole, until it be avoided by the other Jointenant, Perk. ſect. 277.

The

2. In reſpect of the matter whereof it is made, or the nature of the thing exchanged. And of what things and eſtates an Exchange may be made,

The ſecond thing required in a good Exchange is, that the things exchanged be ſuch as whereof an Exchange may be made. And for this it muſt be known, that an Exchange may be made of things of the ſame nature, as of a temporal thing for a temporal thing, a ſpiritual thing for a ſpiritual thing; as a houſe for a houſe, land for land, a Manor for a Manor, a Church for a Church, Rent for Rent, Common for Common, a Horſe for a Horſe, one Piece of Plate for another, or the like: Or it may be made of things of a divers nature; as of a temporal thing for a ſpiritual, as of a Houſe for Land or Rent; a Chamber in a houſe for Common, or for a Reverſion, Seigniory, or Advowſon; of Land or Rent for a Right of Land, or Releaſe of Right; of an Advowſon for Land; of a Rent for a Way; of a Horſe for a Piece of Plate; of a Gown for a Horſe, or the like. And Exchanges made of theſe things, albeit the things exchanged do lie in divers Counties, are good. Alſo a Seigniory by Homage and Fealty, or the like, which is not valuable, may be exchanged for Land, Rent, or any other ſuch like thing. So may a Seigniory by Divine ſervice. But a Seigniory in Frankalmoigne cannot be exchanged with any but the Tenant of the Land that doth hold by the Tenure. And Houſes, Manors, Lands, Rents, Commons, Seigniories, Reverſions, and the like, may be exchanged in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years. So that an Exchange may be of an Inheritance for an Inheritance, of a Frank-tenement for a Frank-tenement, and of Chattels real for Chattels real. Perk. ſect. 263. 261. 262. 266. 258. Lit. ſect. 62. Co. ſuper Lit. 51. 52. Perk. ſect. 259. 260. 258.

If one grant White-acre in Exchange for Black-acre lying within the ſame, or in two Counties, this is a good Exchange. So if I grant a Rent-charge iſſuing out of my land in Exchange to J. S. for an Acre of his land, &c. this is a good Exchange. So if I have a Rent iſſuing out of the land of J. S. and I grant this to J. K. in Exchange for Land or other Rent; this Exchange is good, when the Tenant hath attorned to the Grant of the Rent. So if one have a Rent out of my Land in Fee, and I have the Land in Fee, and I grant the Land in Exchange for the Rent; it ſeems this is a good Exchange. But if one grant me a Manor or Land, and I in Exchange for the ſame Manor or Land grant unto him a Rent de novo iſſuing out of the ſame Land or Manor, this cannot take effect as an Exchange. So if one releaſe his Eſtovers that he hath in ſuch a Wood, and deliver the Releaſe in Exchange for Land given to him in Exchange for the ſame Releaſe; this is a good Exchange. Perk. ſect. 244. Idem 263. 3 E. 4. 10. 9 E. 4. 21. 9 E. 4. 21. Perk. ſect. 262. 266. Fitz. Eſchange 16.

If there be a Diſſeiſor and Diſſeiſee, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe his right to the Diſſeiſor in Exchange for other Land, this is a good Exchange. So if the Diſſeiſor of an Acre of land enfeoff a ſtranger of the ſame Acre of land, and the Feoffee give to the Diſſeiſee an Acre of land in Fee in Exchange for a Releaſe of all his right in the Acre of land of which he was diſſeiſed; this is a good Exchange. Perk. ſect. 271. Idem 282. But if the Diſſeiſee grant his right to a ſtranger that hath nothing in the land, in Exchange for an Acre of land; this Exchange is not good, neither ſhall the ſtranger take any thing by this Grant, Idem ſect. 271. If there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty, and Twelve pence Rent, and the Lord exchange the Seigniory with the Tenant for the Tenancie, or è converſo, by Deed indented; this is held by ſome to be a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 260. If I have a Rent iſſuing out of the land of J. S. and I grant or releaſe the ſame land to J. S. in Exchange for other land; this is a good Exchange. So if I releaſe the ſame Rent unto him in Exchange for a Way over his ground; this is a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 267. If I be ſeiſed of lands to which J. S. hath a right of Action, and I give to him other land for a releaſe of his right; this is a good Exchange. And the ſame Law is of an Exchange of Land, and an Advowſon by Deed indented, for a Releaſe of right in another Advowſon to an Uſurper, when his Incumbent hath been in poſſeſſion of the Church ſix moneths, Idem 268, 269. If two Parſons of a Church make an Exchange of their Benefices by words of Exchange, and each of them reſign his Benefice into the hands of the Biſhop to the ſame intent, and the Patrons preſent accordingly, and the Preſentations are per viam permutationis; this is a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 257.

If

If three Acres of Land with an Advowſon Appendant be given in Exchange by T. K. to J. S. for a Chamber to be aſſigned by the ſaid J. S. at the election of T. K. and he aſſign two Chambers, and T. K. chuſe and enter upon one, and J. S. enter upon the Land; this Exchange is good, notwithſtanding the incertainty. So if J. S. give his Manor of A. to T. K. in Exchange for his Manor of B. or for his Manor of C. and he enter upon one of theſe Manors, and T. K. enter upon the Manor of A; this Exchange is good, Perk. ſect. 264, 265.

Out of all which, theſe things by the way, may be obſerved.

1. That the things exchanged need not to be in eſſe at the time of Exchange made, for a man may grant a Rent de novo out of his Land in Exchange for a Manor. And yet if I grant to another the Manor of A. for the Manor of B. which he is to have after his Fathers death by deſcent, it ſeems this Exchange is void, Co. ſuper Littl. 50. Perk. ſect. 265.

2. There needs no Tranſmutation of Poſſeſſion, for a Releaſe of Rent, Eſtovers, or Right of Land, for Land is good.

3. The things exchanged need not to be of one nature, ſo as they concern Lands or Tenements, for Land may be exchanged for Rent, Common, or any other Inheritance which doth concern Lands or Tenements, or Spiritual for Temporal things, as Tithes: A Tenure by Divine Service for Land, or a Temporal Seigniory. But Annuities, and ſuch like things, which charge the perſon onely, and do not concern Lands or Tenements, or Goods and Chattels, cannot be exchanged for Land.

The third thing requited in a good Exchange is, That it be made in that manner and order, that Law doth require, wherein theſe things are to be known.

3. In reſpect of the manner of the making of the Exchange: And where it ſhall be good without Deed, or not.

1. That if all or part of the things whereof the Exchange is made, do lie in ſeveral Counties; or if all or part of the things whereof the Exchange is, be ſuch as lie in grant and not in Livery, albeit it be in the ſame County; in theſe caſes the Exchange muſt be made by Deed indented in Writing. But where the Exchange is of Lands, and of Lands lying in the ſame County, albeit it be of any Eſtate of Inheritance or free hold, yet it may be by word of mouth without writing. And ſo alſo may it be when the things exchanged do lie in divers Counties, when the Exchange is made onely for a term of years: And therefore if an Exchange be made between J. S. and T. K. of Lands lying in one and the ſame County in Fee, or for life, it may be by word of mouth: But if all or part of the Lands of J. S. lie in one County, and all or part of the Lands of T. K. do lie in another County, the Exchange muſt be made by Deed indented. If an Exchange be made of Rent for Land, and the Land out of which the Rent is iſſuing, and the Land given in Exchange for it do both lie in one County; this Exchange cannot be good without Deed. So if an Exchange be made of the Reverſion of an Acre of Land for three ſhillings of Rent iſſuing out of another Acre of Land, and both Acres are in one County; this Exchange muſt be made by Deed indented, or it will not be good. So if an Exchange be made of an Acre of Land, and a Rent out of another Acre, for another Acre of Land and Common for three Beaſts, and all is in one and the ſame County, this Exchange muſt be by Deed indented, or it will not be good. But if I be ſeiſed of a Manor to which I have Common Appendant or Appurtenant, and T. K. is ſeiſed of another Manor to which he hath a Villain Regardant, and both the Manors are in one County, an Exchange may be made of theſe Manors by word of mouth without writing, and the Common and Villain will paſs as incidents well enough. And yet if J. S. hath an Office whereunto Land doth belong, and T. K. hath Rent iſſuing out of the Land of a ſtranger, and all the Land is in one County, and the Office is to be uſed and occupied in the ſame County; if theſe things be exchanged, it muſt be by Deed indented, Perk. ſect. 244. Co. ſuper Littl. 51, 52. Littl. ſect. 62. Co. 9. 14. Perk. ſect. 247, 248, 229, 250, 246.

2. The word [Eſchange] or [Exchange] muſt be had and uſed between the parties in the making of the Exchange: As I grant to you Whiteacre, To have and to hold to you and your Heirs in Exchange for Blackacre: And in conſideration hereof you grant to me and my Heirs Blackacre in Exchange for Whiteacre, for this word is ſo individually requiſit, as it cannot be ſupplied by any other word, neither will any Averment that it was in Exchange, help in this caſe. And therefore if A. by Deed indented, give to B. an Acre of Land in Fee ſimple, or for life, and by the ſame Deed B. doth give to A. another Acre of Land in the ſame manner, this cannot enure as an Exchange: And therefore if no Livery of Seiſin, ſo as it may take effect by way of Grant, it is utterly void. But by this means, Lands may be granted from one to another, for there needs no Livery of Seiſin. So if an Exchange be made by words between two of Lands in one County, and before their Entry, Indentures are made between them of the ſame Lands without words of Exchange, and no Livery of Seiſin is made; this ſhall not paſs by way of Exchange: And yet it hath been held by ſome, that Permutatio, or ſome other word of like effect may ſupply this word Exchange, Co. ſuper Lit. 50,51. Perk. ſect. 252,253. 9 Ed. 4. 21. Fitz. Exchange 12.

Attornment.

3. That if any Rent, Reverſion, Seigniory, or the like, be granted by either party, that then the Tenant do Attorn to the Grant, for that Attornment is requiſit in this caſe. And yet in the caſe of the Grant of Land, in Poſſeſſion, in Exchange, no

Livery of Seiſin.

Livery of Seiſin is needful. Neither is it needful that either party to the Exchange come to the thing given to him in Exchange, by the ſame mean and manner of Aſſurance: For if Leſſee for life of one Acre, give another Acre to his Leſſor, in Tail, in Exchange for a Releaſe from him of that Acre, To have and to hold in Tail in like manner; this is a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 259. 263. 289. 276.

In future

An Exchange may be made to take effect in futuro, as well as in præſenti, for if an Exchange be made between me and T. K. That after the Feaſt of Eaſter T. K. ſhall have my Manor of Dale in exchange for his Manor of Sale, this is a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 265.

Limitation

Vide infra

If an Exchange be made in writing of Land, and it doth limit and expreſs no eſtate, that either party ſhall have in the thing exchanged, yet this is a good Exchange. But if an eſtate for life be limited expreſly to one, and no expreſs eſtate is limited to the other; this is not a good Exchange, as ſhall be ſhewed in the next place, 19 H. 6. 27. Perk. ſect. 275.

4. In reſpect of the quality or equality of the Eſtates or Intereſts exchanged.

The fourth thing required in a good Exchange, is Equality of Eſtate, viz. That either party have the like kinde of eſtate of the thing exchanged; ſo that if one have an eſtate in Fee-ſimple, the other have ſo likewiſe, and ſo for other eſtates: For if the one grant that the other ſhall have his Land in Fee-ſimple, for the Land which he hath of the other in Fee-tail; or that the one ſhall have in the one Land Fee-tail, and the other in the other Land but for term of life; or that the one ſhall have in the one Land Fee-tail general, and the other in the other Land Fee-tail ſpecial; or that the one ſhall have in the one Land for life, and the other in the other Land but for years; theſe Exchanges are void, and cannot take effect as Exchanges, Fitz. Exchange 15. Littl. ſect. 64,65. Co. ſuper Littl. 50, 51. Perk. ſect. 276. And therefore if the Lord releaſe to his Tenant his Services in Tail, in Exchange for other Lands given to the Lord in Exchange in Tail alſo; this Exchange is void, for by this Releaſe made by the Lord the Services are gone for ever, Perk. ſect. 283. So if Tenant for his own life exchange with him that is Tenant for life of another; this is not a good Exchange. (And by the ſame reaſon it ſhould ſeem if Leſſee for twenty years of his Land Exchange with another for other Land for forty years, that this ſhould not be a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 275. Finches Ley 27.) But if Leſſee for life be of an Acre of Land, and he give another Acre of Land to his Leſſor in Fee-tail in Exchange for a Releaſe of all his Right in the Acre that he holdeth for term of his life, To hold to him and the Heirs of his body engendred; this is a good Exchange, Perk. ſect. 276. Or if Tenant for his own life exchange with him that is Tenant in Tail after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct; this Exchange is good, Co. 11. 80. And yet if an eſtate for life be expreſſed to the one party upon the Exchange, and no eſtate is expreſſed to the other party; it is ſaid, that this Exchange is not good, and yet where no eſtate is expreſſed, the party ſhall have an eſtate for his own life, Perk. ſect. 275. 19 H. 6. 27.

Husband and Wife. Tenant in Tail.

But in theſe caſes it is not neceſſary that the parties to the Exchange, be ſeiſed of an equal eſtate at the time of the Exchange made, for if Tenant in Tail or Husband in right of his Wife, exchange their Land in Fee-ſimple, with another for Lands he hath in Fee-ſimple; this is a good Exchange until it be avoided by the iſſue or the the Wife, Co. ſuper Littl. 51. Perk. ſect. 289. Littl. ſect. 65. Perk. ſect. 280, 281: Neither is it neceſſary that both Eſtates be in poſſeſſion, for one may grant an Acre in poſſeſſion in exchange for an Acre in Reverſion, and this Exchange is good, Idem. Neither is it neceſſary that there be an equality in the value or quantity of the Lands exchanged, for if the Land of one of the parties be worth one hundred pound, and the Land of the other but ten pound, or the Land of one of the parties be one hundred Acres, and the Land of the other but ten Acres, if the eſtates given be equal, the Exchange is good, Idem. Neither is equality in the quality or manner of the eſtates requiſite, Idem. For if two Joyntenants be in Fee of an Acre of Land, and they grant that Acre to another in exchange for other Lands, To have and to hold a Moyety to one of them and his Heirs, and a Moyety to the other and his Heirs, which is an eſtate in Common; or two men give Lands in exchange to A. and his Heirs, for Lands from A. to them two and their Heirs, albeit the one party hath a Joynt eſtate, and the other a Sole eſtate, yet the Exchange is good. The like Law is if the Land of one of the parties be of a defeaſible Title, and the Land of the other of an undefeaſible Title, this Exchange is good till it be avoided.

The fifth and laſt thing required in a good Exchange is, That there be an execution and perfection of the Exchange by Entry or Claim in the life time of the parties, viz. That both the parties to the ſame Exchange, do enter into the things taken in Exchange, if they be ſuch things as they may enter into, for until the Exchange be executed by Entry, or the like, the parties thereunto have no Freehold in Deed, or in Law, in the things exchanged, albeit the ſame things do lie in one County: And if either of the parties die before he enter into the Lands by him taken in Exchange, hereby the whole Exchange is become void, if his Heir will; but if one of the parties enter, he ſhall not firſt begin to avoid the Exchange. But if the parties enter at any time, during their lives, it is ſufficient, unleſs the poſſeſſion be before diveſted by an elder Title, as by Entry for a Condition broken, Entry by a Diſſeiſee or his Heir, or the like, and not reveſted again before the Entry. As if an Exchange be had between two of Land, and before their Entry by force of the Exchange they are, or one of them is diſſeiſed of the Land exchanged, and the Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed thereof, and then they enter according to the Exchange, and put out the Heir of the Diſſeiſor, this ſhall not be ſaid to be an execution of the Exchange; but if the Diſſeiſee have recovered the ſame Land againſt the Heir of the Diſſeiſor by Writ of Entry, and have Execution, then he may execute the Exchange by Entry. And in caſe where a Reverſion, Rent, or Seigniory, is granted in Exchange, it muſt be perfected and executed by the Attornment of the Tenant in the life time of the parties, otherwiſe the Exchange is not good; but in this caſe after Attornment is made, it ſeems the Exchange is perfect without any Entry or Claim, Co. ſuper Littl. 50, 51. Co. 1. 98. 105. Perk. ſect. 284. 286. 292. 289.

5. In reſpect of the Execution of it.

If two Parſons exchange their Churches, and reſign them into the Biſhops hands, this is not a perfect Exchange until they be inducted; and therefore if either of them die before they be both inducted, the Exchange is void, Perk. ſect. 257.

Where a Deed ſhall take effect as an Exchange, there muſt be all the Conditions before mentioned in the caſe. And yet note that where one thing is granted for another in the nature of an Exchange, and for ſome of the cauſes aforeſaid, the things cannot paſs by way of Exchange, there they may paſs notwithſtanding by way of Grant, and the Deed may take effect to other purpoſes, albeit it may not enure and take effect as an Exchange. And therefore if two be ſeiſed of ſeveral Acres of Land, and the one of them by Deed doth give his Acre to the other, and the other his Acre to him without any word of Exchange, and each of them doth make Livery of Seiſin to the other; in this caſe albeit the Acres will not paſs by way of Exchange, yet will they paſs by way of Grant. And in this caſe, if no Livery of Seiſin be made, either of them ſhall hold the Lands granted at will onely. And in like manner it is if two agree to exchange Land, and after each of them levy a Fine or make a Feoffment of the Land to other; by this the Land will paſs each to other, but not by way of Exchange. So if A. and B. his Wife, and C. and D. his Wife agree to Exchange Lands, and A. and B. enter into the Land, they are to have in exchange, and then they do make a Feoffment of their own Land unto C. and his Father, and not to C. and D. his Wife; this ſhall not enure as an Exchange, and therefore C. and D. may enter upon their own Land again, but the Feoffment is good. And if one aſſign a Woman her Dower in exchange for Land; this ſhall not take effect as an Exchange, but it ſhall enure to be a good Aſſignment of Dower, Perk. Sect. 255, 256. Fitz. Exchange 14. Perk. Sect. 272.

Nota

Aſſignment of Dower

5. How an Exchange ſhall be conſtrued and taken,

If two do exchange Land by Deed, and limit no Eſtates, this ſhall be taken for Eſtates for life, and the Exchange is good; but if an Expreſs eſtate be limited to one, and no Expreſs eſtate to the other, it is ſaid this is not good, and that conſtruction of Law will not help it. 19 H. 6. 27. Perk. Sect. 275.

If an Exchange be made between two men of two Acres of Land by Deed, and in the habendum, it is ſet down that each of them ſhall have the Acres given in exchange with divers other Acres not expreſſed in the premiſſes; this addition ſhall be taken as ſurpluſage, and the Exchange ſhall be good for the two Acres. See more in Expoſition of Deeds, Perk. Sect. 251.

Surpluſage

6. Where an Exchange ſhall be determined, or the nature of it changed by matter Ex poſt facto, and how, and where not.

If after an Exchange is made before or after the parties enter, all, or part of the Land given to either party be recovered from him upon an elder Title, as by an Entry upon a Condition broken, alienation in Mortmain, or upon a Diſſeiſin; in theſe caſes if that party enter again upon his own Land, which he gave in exchange (as he may) hereby the whole Exchange is determined. But if after the Exchange is perfect, one of the parties do enter upon the Land, he doth give in exchange, this doth not make void the Exchange, neither may the other party hereupon enter upon the Land he doth give in exchange, but he may have an Aſſize, or an Action of Treſpaſs againſt the other: And yet if an exchange of a Common for a Way, or a Rent, or the like, if the one party deny the Common, it hath been ſaid the other party may deny the Way, or the Rent. Sed quere. Perk. Sect. 286. Co. 4. 122. Perk. Sect. 299. Broo. Exchange 12. Perk. Sect. 299.

Aſſize Treſpaſs Way Rent

If an Exchange be made of Fee between two of a Manor, whereof the one half is in Tail, and the other half is in Fee-ſimple, and the Tenant in Tail that made the Exchange, die; and his iſſue diſagree to it, ſo that the Exchange of the tailed Land is become void; this doth determine the whole Exchange, for when an Exchange becometh void in part, it becometh void in all, and until it be avoided it is good for all. As if one be ſeiſed of White-acre, and he exchange White-acre and Black-acre (which is none of his) with another for two other Acres, this ſhall continue for a good Exchange, and not be avoided until he that hath right to Black-acre doth evict him that hath it in exchange, Broo. Exchange 8. Perk. ſect. 297.

If an Exchange be made by Tenant in Tail, and his iſſue after his death wave the poſſeſſion of all or part of the Land taken in Exchange, and diſagree to the Exchange, hereby the whole Exchange is determined. So if the Wife after the Husbands death, the Infant at his full age, or the Heir of him that is de non ſane memorie diſagree to the Exchange of the Husband, the Infant, or him that is de non ſane memorie, hereby the whole Exchange is determined, and no ſubſequent Agreement can make it good again, Co. 4. 122. Perk. ſect. 296. 294. 290. 298.

Parol Indenture Grant

If two do made an Exchange by word of mouth, and after before either of them enter, they make Indentures of the Lands exchanged, and grant the ſame from one to another; it ſeems hereby the nature of the Exchange is changed, and the Exchange determined, 15 Ed. 4. 3.

7. Who may take advantage of a void or avoidable Exchange, or not. and when.
Infant.
Tenant in Tail.
Husband and Wife.
Home de non ſane memorie.

The parties themſelves, and all privies and ſtrangers for the moſt part may take advantage of ſuch Exchanges as are void for the defects before-named; but when the Exchange is onely voidable, contrà. And therefore when an Exchange is made by an Infant; the Infant himſelf at his full age, or his Heir, and none other may avoid it: And when an Exchange is made by a Tenant in Tail, the Iſſue in Tail after the death of his Anceſtor, and none other may avoid it. And when an Exchange is made by the Husband, or Husband and Wife of the Wives Land, the Wife after the Husbands death, or Heir of the Wife after her death, and none other may avoid it. And when an Exchange is made by a man of non ſane memorie, his Heir after his death and and none other may avoid it. But in all theſe caſes of Infant, Tenant in Tail, Woman Covert, and a man de non ſane memorie, and where Lands are recovered by an elder Title, the other party may not enter and avoid the Exchange until the Infant, Iſſue in Tail, Woman, or Heir of him that is de non ſane memorie, or him that doth loſe the Land, by an elder Title, doth firſt enter, Perk. Sect. 285. Co. 1. 105. Dyer 285. Perk. Sect. 290. 294. 298. Co. 1. 98.

If an Infant exchange Lands, and after at his full age occupy the Lands taken in Exchange for his own Lands, hereby the Exchange is made good. So if Tenant in Tail exchange his intailed Lands with another, and after his death the iſſue occupy the Lands taken in exchange by his Anceſtor, hereby the Exchange is made good for the life of the iſſue in tail. So if the Husband and Wife exchange the Lands of the Wife for other Land, and ſhe after her Husbands death agree to it, and enter into and agree to the Lands taken in Exchange, hereby the Exchange is made good: But if the Husband alone make an Exchange of his Wives Land, and ſhe after his death agree to this, and enter into the Land, it ſeems this will not make the Exchange good. And if a man ſeiſed of Land in right of his Wife in Fee thereof Infeoff a ſtranger, and take an eſtate back again to him and his Wife, and a third perſon in Fee, and they three joyn in exchange of the ſame Land in Fee for other Lands to a ſtranger in Fee, and the Exchange is executed, and the Husband dieth, and ſhe doth occupy the Land taken in exchange with the other third perſon, hereby the Exchange is made good. If a man de non ſane memorie make an Exchange, and his Heir after his death enter into the Land taken by his Anceſtor in Exchange, and agree to the Exchange, hereby the Exchange is made good. And in all theſe caſes, when the Exchange is once by Agreement made good, it can never by any ſubſequent diſagreement be afterwards made void. Co. ſuper Littl. 51. 12 H. 4. 11. *Perk. CHAP. LXXIX.

Of Eſtates.

AN Eſtate is, that Title, Time, or Intereſt, that a man hath to Lands or Tenements. Terms of the Law.

Sect. 1.
1. Eſtate, what.

Eſtates are either of Freehold, that if they continue go to the Heir, or are Chattels that go to the Executor.

The kindes of it.

Eſtates of Freehold, are either Eſtates of Inheritance, or Franck-tenement.

Eſtates of Inheritance, are either Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail. Fee-ſimple is either abſolute and indeterminable, as where Land is given to a man and his Heirs, or it is determinable: And then it is either Expreſs, when it is derived out of an abſolute and pure Eſtate in Fee. As firſt, where it is upon Condition, as in caſe of Mortgage; and this is called Fee-ſimple Conditional: And for this ſee Condition. Or ſecondly, it is by Limitation, as where Land is given to A. and his Heirs, ſo long as B. hath Heirs of his body; this is called Fee-ſimple limited or qualified: And for this ſee Limitation. Or elſe they are implicite and derive out of an Eſtate-tail: As where Tenant in Tail doth bargain and ſell his Land by Deed, indented and inrolled, and after levy a Fine of it to the Bargainee and his Heirs, with Proclamations; by this the Bargainee hath an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple ſo long, as the Tenant in Tail hath Heirs of his body.

Executor.

V. Condition

V. Limitation

Fee-tail is either General, as where Lands are given to J. S. and the Heirs of his body; or Special, as where Land is given to J. S. and the Heirs of his body begotten on the body of J. D.

Franck-tenement is alſo Expreſs or Implied, Expreſs is where Land is granted to one

one and his Heirs, during the life of J. S. Or where Tenant for life doth grant his eſtate to another and his Heirs; in theſe caſes the Leſſee or Grantee hath an eſtate of Franck-tenement diſcendible: Or it is Implied, as where Tenant in Tail doth paſs his Land by way of Bargain and Sale, to another and his Heirs; by this the Bargainee hath an eſtate diſcendible, and determinable upon the death of the Tenant in Tail.

Chattels. Eſtates that are called Chattels, and go to Executors, are either Leaſes for years, Leaſes at Will, or at Sufferance; or heretofore Wardſhips in Capite, and Knights Service now aboliſhed, Co. 10. 97. 4. 30. 82. of Copihold, ſect. 47. Plow. 555, &c.

All Eſtates may be Conditional, as well as Fee-ſimples. Some divide Eſtates into Certain, as Fee-ſimple, and for life or years; and Incertain, as Eſtates at Will or Sufferance.

2. Fee-ſimple, what: The nature of it. Fee-ſimple is where one hath any Lands or Tenements inheritable by a perpetual Right, to him and his Heirs for ever: And this is of all kinde of Eſtates, the greateſt, largeſt, and moſt excellent; and therefore no Remainder can depend upon this. And he that hath this Eſtate, may give, grant, or charge it by his Deed, or will at his pleaſure. He may make what waſte or ſpoil upon it he pleaſeth; he may charge it in his Heirs hand by any Obligation or Warranty, he ſhall make in his life time. The Wife of him that hath it, will be endowed of a third part of it; the Husband of her that hath ſuch an Eſtate, will be Tenant by the Courteſie. But this Eſtate is forfeitable by Treaſon or Felony. See for all this in Treaſon, Felony, Dower, Tenant by the Courteſie, Heir, Littl. f. 1. Co. ſuper Littl. 273. Dyer 33. 330. Perk. ſect. 276. Crompt. Jur. 214, &c. To what Execution it ſhall be liable, ſee Execution.

Sect. 2. What ſhall be ſaid a Fee-ſimple, or not. And how words of Limitation of an Eſtate ſhall be taken. Expoſition of Deed. For Anſwer hereunto, take theſe things.

1. It is a Rule, that Fee-ſimple is commonly made by a Deed, and by this word (Heirs) and cannot well by Deed be made without it. But in a Will it may be made by other words. And when it is made by Deed, it is commonly made by Livery of Seiſin, and cannot otherwiſe be made; and yet it may be, and ſometimes is made without Deed, without the word Heirs, and without Livery of Seiſin, Littl. 1. Co. 1. 62. ſuper Littl. 22. 94.

2. If Lands be given or granted by Fine, Deed, or Will, in Poſſeſſion, Reverſion, or Remainder, Plow. 134. to a man and his Heirs; this is a Fee-ſimple.

3. If Lands be given or granted by Deed, or Fine, or any ſuch like way to J. S. and his Heirs Males, or to J. S. and his Heirs Females; theſe are Fee-ſimples. But if it were by Will, it would be Eſtates Tail; and ſo if it were the Kings gift, 27 H. 8. 27. Littl. ſect. 31.

4. If Lands had been given to J. S. & haredibus, without the word Suis; theſe words make a Fee-ſimple: But if it be to two & haredibus, it maketh but an Eſtate for life, 20 H. 6. 35.

5. If Lands be given or granted to J. S. and to the Heirs of J. S. this doth make an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, 20 H. 6. 35.

6. If Land be given or granted to J. S. and his right Heirs; this is a Fee-ſimple, Co. 2. 91. 33 H. 6. 5.

7. If Lands be given or granted to A. for life, the Remainder to B. for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of A. By this A. hath a Fee-ſimple, 40 Ed. 3. 9. Broo. Donee 55. So if Lands be given or granted to the Wife of J. S. for life, after to J. S. in Tail, and after to the right Heirs of J. S. By this J. S. hath a Fee-ſimple, Co. 2. 91.

8. If Lands be given or granted to a man and his wife, and the Heirs of them iſſuing, or their Heirs iſſuing; this is a Fee-ſimple, and not a Fee-tail, Broo. Eſtates 34.

Leaſe for years Livery & Seiſin

9. If one make a Leaſe of Land to another for twenty years, and that after the twenty years the Leſſee ſhall have it to him and his Heirs by the Rent of ten pound a year; if in this caſe Livery of Seiſin be made upon the Deed, this will be a Fee-ſimple, otherwiſe but a Leaſe for twenty years, Co. ſuper Littl. 217.

10. If Lands be given or granted to a Corporation aggregate of many; this is a Fee-

Inability of Corporation aggregate & ſole

Fee-ſimple without words of [Heirs or Succeſſors] But if it were to a ſole Corporation, as a Biſhop, Parſon, or the like; by this he hath onely an eſtate for life, Co. upon Littl. 24.

11. If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, make a gift of it in Tail, or Leaſe for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs Males of the Body of the Donor; it ſeems this Remainder is a Fee-ſimple, and not a Fee-tail, becauſe the Donor cannot make his right Heir to come in as a Purchaſor, unleſs he put the Fee-ſimple out of his perſon, Dyer 156.

12. If one by Deed, or Will, give or grant Land to J. S. and his Heirs, and if J. S. die without Heirs, that J. D. ſhall have it to him and his Heirs; by this J. S. hath a Fee-ſimple, and J. D. no eſtate at all, Dyer 4. 33.

13. If one by the firſt part of a Deed, called the Premiſſes give or grant Land to one and his Heirs, and in the Habendum ſay, To have and to hold to him for life or years onely, and make Livery of Seiſin upon the Deed; this is a Fee-ſimple, Co. 2. 21, 24.

14. By a Will an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple may be made without the word (Heirs.) And therefore if one by Will deviſe any Land or Rent, &c. to J. S. and his Aſſigns for ever, or to J. S. for ever, or to J. S. paying ten pound to J. D. in all theſe caſes there is a Fee-ſimple made, Co. 3. 21. 1. 44. 85. Dyer 4. 33. Littl. ſect. 1.

15. Upon a Partition a Fee-ſimple may be made without the word (Heirs.) See Partition, Plow 134. Co. upon Littl. 94. 22.

16. If a Grant or Gift, or Deviſe, be of a Reverſion, Common, Rent, or the like things which lie in Grant, there the like words do make the like Eſtate. And then it paſſeth by the Sealing of the Deed without any Livery of Seiſin, Co. 2. 21. 24. But for this point, ſee much more in my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 101, 102, 439, 440. Brownl. Rep. 1 part 47, 49, 167, 169. 2 part. 271, 272. Who ſhall take by ſuch an Eſtate, or not, ſee Diſcent.

Fee-tail is a kinde of Fee-ſimple, but limited in it ſelf, and cut off from the pure and abſolute Fee, Terms of the Law. And this kinde of Eſtate may be made of any Manors, Lands, Tenements, Commons, Rents, Advowſons, Meſnalties, Services, and of ſome Offices and Dignities, as the Offices of a Steward, Bailiff, or Receiver of a Manor; the dignity of a Duke, County, or the like. Alſo Uſes, Offices, and Dignities that concern Land, and certain places; as the Office of the fourth part of the Serjeant; the Office of keeping the Church of our Lady in Lincoln; and ſo likewiſe of all other things that favor of the Realty: But an Annuity is not to be Intailed, nor Copihold Land, but by Cuſtom, Brownl. Rep. 2 part. 42, 43. Co. 9. 105. upon Littl. 20.

This is the next great Eſtate to a Fee-ſimple; and therefore he that hath this Eſtate, however he cannot give, grant, or charge it by his Deed or his Will, as he may a Fee-ſimple eſtate; for he cannot ſo grant or charge it for longer then his own life: Nor can he make the Land in the hands of his Iſſues liable to his Warranty, or Obligations, or Debts, unleſs it be the Kings debts; yet by a Fine, or Common Recovery, he may diſpoſe his Eſtate and bar his Iſſues, and all the Remainders to come after his own eſtate. And he is not puniſhable for any ſpoil or waſte he doth upon the Land, his Wife ſhall be endowed, and her Husband that hath it, ſhall be Tenant by the Courteſie; and if he commit Felony, he doth not forfeit it; and yet if he commit Treaſon, he forfeits his Land, ſo long as he hath Heirs of his Body, Weſtm. 2. chap. 1. 5, 6 Ed. 6. 11. 32 H. 8. 36. Co. 6. 40. 7. 41. 10. 39. will.

4. If one by Will give Lands to J. S. and his Heirs Males, or his Heirs Females; this makes an Eſtate-tail in either of theſe caſes, otherwiſe it is if the words were in a Deed, 27 H. 8. 27. 20 H. 6. 35.

5. If one Deviſe Land by Will to J. S. and his Children; this if he have no Children at the time, will make an Eſtate-tail: But if he have, they will all have Eſtates for their lives joyntly with the Father: And ſo it is if the Land be given to him and his iſſues, Co. 6. 17.

6. If one Deviſe to his Wife for life, and after to his Son; and if his Son die without iſſue, having no Son, then that the Land ſhall go to another; this is an Eſtate-tail to him, and the Heirs Males of his Body: So if the words had been, if he die having no Male, Adjudge, Trin. 7 Jac. Co. B. Robinſons caſe.

7. If one by Will Deviſe Land to J. S. & ſemini ſuo to his Seed, theſe words do make an Eſtate in Tail. But if it be to him & ſanguini ſuo, to his Blood; theſe words make a Fee-ſimple, Adjudge, Mich. 40, 41 Eliz. Downhal and Gatesbies caſe. Broo. Tail 21.

8. If one have iſſue three Sons, and Deviſe his Land (to wit) one part to one Son, another to another, another to another in Tail, and that neither of them ſhall ſell his part, but that every one of them ſhall be Heir to the other; this is an Intailed Eſtate: So as if one of them die without iſſue, his part ſhall not Revert, but ſhall go to the other for it is an implied Remainder, Broo. Deviſe fol. 38.

Sect. 4. Tail Special.

9. If one give or grant Lands to J. S. and M. his Wife, and the Heirs [or Heirs Males, or Heirs Females] of their two Bodies begotten; or to the Heirs [or Heirs Males, or Heirs Females] of the Husband begotten on the Wife, or to J. S. and M. his Wife, and the Heirs he ſhall beget on the body of his Wife, or to J. S. and his Heirs, which he ſhall have by his Wife M. or to J. S. and M. his Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies: All theſe Limitations, whether it be by Deed, or Will, make Eſtates in Special Tail, Littl. Sect. 13, 14, &c. Co. 1. 140.

10. If Lands be given by Deed to J. S. and M. his Wife, To have and to hold to the uſe of the Husband and Wife, and of the Heirs of their two Bodies, this is an Intail in them; otherwiſe it were if the uſe were limited to a ſtranger, Adjudge, Hil. 6 Car. B. R.

11. If Lands be given or granted to a Man and Woman unmarried, and the Heirs of their two Bodies; by this they have an Eſtate-tail, Co. 1 part. 26. 5 H. 7. 10. So if Lands be given or granted to the Husband of M. and Wife of K. and the Heirs of their two Bodies; this is an Eſtate-tail to them, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 20.

12. If Lands be given to another, and to his Heirs on the Body of ſuch a Woman lawfully begotten; this is an Eſtate in Special Tail, and begotten ſhall be intended begotten by the Donee, Co. on Littl. 26.

13. Husband and Wife be, and they have iſſue a Son and Daughter, and the Husband die, and Lands are given to the Wife, and the Heirs of her late Husband on her body begotten; by this the Wife hath eſtate for life, and the Son a good Eſtate-tail, and if he die without iſſue, the Daughter ſhall have it, Co. upon Littl. 26.

14. If Lands be given or granted to the uſe of a man and his wife for their lives, and after to the uſe of their next Iſſue Male to be begotten in Tail, and after to the uſe of the Husband and Wife, and of the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, they having then no Iſſue Male; in this caſe the Husband and Wife are Tenants in Special Tail executed, and after they have Iſſue Male, they are Tenants for life; the Remainder to the Son in Tail, the Remainder to them in Special Tail, Co. upon Littl. 28.

15. If Lands be given or granted to a man and his wife, and to one Heir of their Bodies lawfully begotten, and to one Heir of the Body of that Heir onely; this is an Eſtate-tail, but it is for ſo long onely, Co. on Littl. 22.

16. If Lands be given with ones Daughter or Couſin in Franck-marriage; this is an Eſtate in Special Tail. See for this Littleton, Sect. 17. Co. upon Littl. 21. Franck-marriage.

17. If Lands be given by Will to J. S. and M. his Wife, and the Men-children of their Body begotten, and at this time they have no children, this is an Eſtate-tail, Co. 6. 17.

18. If one have iſſue, a Son, and die, and Lands are given to the Son, and the Heirs of the Body of his dead Father; this is a good Eſtate-tail: But it ſeems in this caſe the Son ſhall have it but for life, unleſs he alſo be the Iſſue in Tail to the Father per formam doni. So if the gift were to the Father, and the Heirs of the Body of the Son, Littl. cap. 30. Co. 8. 87. Dyer 247. 12 H. 4. 1. So if there be Father, Mother, and Son, and the Father die, and the Limitation is by Deed, To the Son and the Heirs of the Body of the Father and Mother; it ſeems this is a good Eſtate-tail, Littl. Sect. 352. So if Lands be given or granted to J. S. and the Heirs, that he ſhall happen to have of his Wife; this is a good Intail to J. S. but the Wife hath nothing in it, 12 Hen. 4. 1. So if Lands be given or granted to J. S. and the Heirs of the Body of his Wife (ſhe being then dead) engendred; this is a good Eſtate-tail, 12 H. 4. 1. 5. What ſhall be ſaid a good manner of Intail, or not.

19. If one Leaſe Land to a Woman ſole for years, and then ſhe take a Husband, and the Leſſor doth releaſe and confirm to them, and the Heirs of his Body, or the Heirs of her Body; theſe are good Eſtates in Tail, 6 Ed. 3. 19.

20. If one give or grant Land to J. S. and M. his Wife, and one Heir of his Body lawfully begotten, and one Heir of that Heir onely; this is a good Intail, 39 Aſſ. pl. 20.

21. If one give or grant Land to J. S. and M. his Wife, and their Heirs, and other Heirs of the ſaid J. S. If the ſaid Heirs of the ſaid J. S. and M. iſſuing ſhall die without Heir de ſe (that is) of them, &c. this is a good Eſtate-tail, 5 Hen. 5. 6.

22. If one give or grant Land to J. S. and the Heirs he ſhall beget of his firſt Wife, or the Heirs he ſhall beget of his Wife; theſe are good Eſtates in Tail, albeit there be no Wife at the time. So if it be to J. S. and the Heirs of his Fleſh, or the Heirs de ſe from him, or to the Heirs that he ſhall happen to have, or that ſhall happen to him, Co. 1. 20. Sect. 5.

23. If Lands be given or granted to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, the Remainder to the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten; this Remainder in Special Tail is void, Co. upon Littl. 28.

24. The words begotten, and to be begotten, do extend to Iſſues begotten before or after.

But for all theſe things, ſee much more in my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 102, 103, 104, 440, 441, 442.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

6. What Acts ſuch a Tenant in Tail may do to Alien or Bar his own Eſtate, or not.

1. Regularly, he that hath this Eſtate can lawfully grant no longer time, but for his own life: And therefore if he grant by way of Bargain and Sale, indented and inrolled more then that as Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, no more will paſs, but what he may lawfully grant. But if he make ſuch an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, by Fine, or Feoffment; this will make a Diſcontinuance, and raiſe another Eſtate, but a tortious one, Co. 1. In Alton Woods caſe, Broo. Diſcontinuance 35.

2. But he that hath an Eſtate-tail of Land, may levy a Fine, or ſuffer a Recovery of it, and by this ſo convey his eſtate, that the Iſſues in Tail and all Remainders may be barred, and a good Eſtate made of the Land to another: And for this ſee Co. 9. 140. 3. 50. and Littl. 371. and in my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 41, 42, 43, 44. 24, 25, 26.

3. This Eſtate may be barred by a Lineal or Colateral Warranty and Aſſets, Co. upon Littl. 371. See for this in my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 190, 191, 192, &c.

4. The Tenant in Tail may make a Leaſe for three lives, or one and twenty years of the Land, ſo uſually let. See 32 H. 8. 28. and my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 277, 278, 279, &c.

5. Tenant in Tail of a Copihold Manor, may grant Copihold Eſtates according to the Cuſtom of the Manor, as well as any other man. See my Book of Copihold.

Releaſe

6. If another man have Right to his Intailed Land, and he grant a Rent-charge out of the ſame Land to him, for a Releaſe of his Right to the Land; and this will binde the Iſſues in Tail.

Tenant in Tail for Felony forfeited

7. If the Tenant in Tail do commit Treaſon, he doth forfeit his Land Intailed, whether it be in Poſſeſſion, or in Right onely; but otherwiſe it is in the Caſe of Felony. See for this Co. upon Littl. 372. 392. 34 H. 8. 20.

Grant or Recovery

8. But Regularly, no Grant, Gift, or Charge, made or done by a Tenant in Tail, of or upon the Land Intailed, if it be executed by Deed, will binde or be good longer then for the life of the Tenant in Tail, and will not conclude the Iſſues; and yet if Tenant in Tail make a Leaſe for life or years, or grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, and after this he levy a Fine, or ſuffer a Recovery of the Land; this may make good the Leaſe, or Charge for all the time, Co. 1. 48. 62. upon Littl. 173. 3. 83. 14 H. 8. 5.

Tenant in Tail in poſſeſſion & Reverſion

9. If there be Tenant in Tail in Poſſeſſion, the Remainder to another in Tail: in this caſe, he in the Remainder may do for the moſt part, all that he in the Poſſeſſion may do, and it will bar him and his Iſſues when it hapneth, as it will him in the firſt Eſtate, and his Iſſues: But if the Tenant in Tail in Poſſeſſion, ſuffer a Recovery; this will utterly bar and overthrow the Remainder Eſtates, and all that the owners thereof have done upon them. And if both of them make Leaſes of, or Charges upon the Land, the Leaſes and Charges of the Tenant in Tail in Poſſeſſion, ſhall be preferred before the Leaſes and Charges of him in Reverſion or Remainder, Co. 1. 61.

Fine not barr to him in Remainder if entry or claim w^thin 5 years

10. If Tenant in Tail levy a Fine with Proclamation, according to the Statute; it is true, this is a Bar to the Eſtate-tail; but it is no Bar to him in Reverſion or Remainder, if he make his Entry or Claim, or bring his Action within five years after the Eſtate-tail ſpent.

Nota

And if a Gift be to the eldeſt Son, and the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder to his Father, and the Heirs of his Body; the Father dieth, the eldeſt Son levieth a Fine with Proclamations, and die without Iſſue; by this the ſecond Son is barred, Co. on Littl. 372.

Tenant in Tail diſſeiſed

And if Tenant in Tail be diſſeiſed, or have a Right of Action, and the Tenant of the Land levy a Fine with Proclamations, and five years paſs, the Eſtate-tail is barred. See Diſcontinuance.

Sect. 6. 7. What perſons ſhall take and inherit by an Intail upon Gift, or not.

1. If the Limitation be to the Heirs Males, then the Heirs Females can never enjoy it. And if it be to the Heirs Females, the Heirs Males ſhall never have it: And therefore if Lands be given to one, and the Heirs Females of his Body, and he have a Son and Daughter; in this caſe his Daughter, and not his Son, ſhall have it, Co. on Littl. 25. 164. Littl. ſect. 21, 22. 9 H. 6. 23.

2. And whoſoever will make his Claim as Heir per formam doni, to ſuch an Eſtate, he muſt make his Diſcent by ſuch Heirs, as if it be to Heirs Males, he muſt derive his Pedigree by Heirs Males, one after another; and ſo if it be by Heirs Females. And therefore if a Gift be to one, and the Heirs Males of his Body, or to a man and his wife, and the Heirs Males of their Bodies, and he or they hath or have Iſſue a Daughter, who hath Iſſue a Son, and die; in this caſe this Son ſhall not inherit it, becauſe he cannot make his Diſcent by Heirs Males, Co. upon Littl. 376, 377. And if Lands be given to one and his Heirs Males of his Body, and he hath two Sons, and die, and his eldeſt Son enter, and hath Iſſue a Daughter, and die; in this caſe the eldeſt Sons Daughter ſhall not inherit the Land, but the yongeſt Brother ſhall have it: And yet the Daughter is next Heir at Law, and were it Fee-ſimple, would have it, Littl. ſect. 22, 23.

3. If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife, and Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, and they have two Sons, and the eldeſt die, and leave a Daughter; in this caſe, ſhe and not the yongeſt Son, ſhall have it. So if the Limitation be to a man, and the Heirs of his Body iſſuing, and he die and have two Sons, and the eldeſt die, leaving a Daughter; in this caſe, ſhe and not the other Son, ſhall inherit the Land, Littl. ſect. 23.

4. If Lands be given to one, and the Heirs Males of his Body, the Remainder to him, and the Heirs Females of his Body, and the Donee hath Iſſue a Son who hath Iſſue a Daughter, who hath Iſſue a Son; in this caſe, the Son is not inheritable to either of theſe Eſtates-tail, but the Land ſhall Revert to the Donor for lack of Heir: For in caſe where there is no Heir to inherit and take per formam doni, as when Iſſues fail, then the Land ſhall return to the Donor, or go to him that is to have it after the Eſtate-tail, determined and ſpent, Co. upon Littl. 25. Littl. ſect. 24. And if the King had given Lands to one and his Heirs Males, which is a Fee-ſimple in caſe of a common perſon, and he die without Heirs Males; the Land (as it ſeems) ſhall Revert to the King, Lovels caſe.

5. If Lands be given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, or in any ſuch like manner, and the Husband alone levy a Fine, or is attainted of Treaſon or Felony; in this caſe, the Iſſues they have are barred to Claim the Land, for they cannot make themſelves Heir to them both, as he muſt do that will Claim the Land by Inheritance; for the Husbands Blood is corrupted by the Felony, and no man can be Heir to him, Co. 9. 138. Plow. 351. Dyer 332. 351. But ſee more for this in Diſcent.

Sect. 7. 8. Tail after Poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, what.

An Eſtate-tail after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, is where Lands are given to a man and his wife in Poſſeſſion or Remainder, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies engendred, or to him and his Heir of the Body of his wife iſſuing, or in any other manner in Special Tail, and one of them die, having no Iſſue between them, or the Iſſue die, living the Father or Mother; ſo that now there is no Iſſue to inherit it per formam doni. In theſe caſes he or ſhe that doth ſo ſurvive, hath this Eſtate, and it is called an Eſtate-tail after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, Co. 11. 82. 26 Hen. 6. 77. 2 H 4. 17. Co. 9. 139. 8. 75.

The nature of this Eſtate.

This Eſtate is an Eſtate made by the Act of God, and the Law together, and not ex proviſione hominis, doth much reliſh of the nature of an Eſtate-tail, out of which it is derived; and of which, it is the Remain and Reſidue: And therefore as to the qualities of it, it hath more Privileges then any other Eſtate for life hath. For firſt, the Tenant of this Eſtate of Land is not puniſhable in Waſte. Secondly, If he alien the Land, he in Reverſion cannot have a Writ of Entry in caſu conſimili. Thirdly, He ſhall not be compelled to Attorn. Fourthly, He ſhall not have need to require aid. Fifthly, No Writ of Intruſion lieth after his death. Sixthly, He may joyn the Miſe in in a Writ of Right in a ſpecial manner. Seventhly, In an Action brought by or againſt him, he ſhall not be named Tenant for life; and all theſe run in the Privity, for if he grant away his Eſtate, they are all gone: But in reſpect of the Quantity of the Eſtate, this Eſtate hath no privilege above other Eſtates for life. And therefore if a Tenant of Land by this Eſtate, make a Feoffment of the Land; he in Reverſion may enter upon him for the Forfeiture. 2. If the Fee-ſimple, or any greater Eſtate then this diſcend upon him; this Eſtate is drowned. 3. If he be impleaded for the Land, he in Reverſion ſhall be received upon his default. 4. If he exchange his Eſtate with a Tenant for life, it is a good Exchange. 5. A Confirmation by him in Reverſion to him, is good to enlarge his Eſtate, Co. upon Littl. 28. Co. 9. 139. 10 H. 6. 1. 45 Ed. 3. 22: Littl. ſect. 534.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, take theſe caſes.

9. How a Limitation to divers perſons, and of divers Eſtates ſhall be taken; and what manner of Eſtates every one ſhall have.

1. If a Grant or Gift be to a Husband and Wife, and a third perſon; and to the Heirs of the Husband, and the third perſon: By this the Wife hath onely an Eſtate for life in a Moyety with her Husband, and the Husband and the third perſon, Eſtates in Fee, in Joyntenancy of the reſt by Moyeties, Dyer 203.

2. If Lands be given to a man and his wife, and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband; by this the Husband hath an Eſtate in General Tail, and his Wife but an Eſtate for life, Littl. Sect. 27.

3. If Lands be given to two Siſters [or two Brothers, or to a Brother and a Siſter] and to the Heirs of their Bodies begotten; by this they ſhall have Joynt-Eſtates for lives; ſo that the Survivor will have all for his life, and after both their deaths, their Heirs have ſeveral Inheritances (that is) Eſtates in General Tail by Moyeties in common one with another. So if Lands be given to Father and Son, and the Heirs of their two Bodies engendred, or to two men that have wives, and their wives and the Heirs of their Bodies engendred; in theſe caſes they have Joynt-Eſtates for lives, and after the one Husband and Wife ſhall have one half, and the other Husband and Wife the other half of the Land in Common. So if it be to a man and two women in Tail; by this all three of them ſhall take ſeverally; ſo in other like caſes, Co. 1. 140. 8. 87. 10. 50. 8 Aſſ. 33. Dyer 145. 7 H. 4. 16, Co. on Littl. 25.

4. If Lands be given in Tail in the Premiſſes of a Deed, To have and to hold to the Donee and his Heirs; by this Limitation there is made an Eſtate-tail firſt, and a Fee-ſimple upon it: But otherwiſe it is where the words of Fee-ſimple be in the Premiſſes, and the words of Intail in the Habendum, for then there is made by it onely an Eſtate-tail according to the Habendum, and no Fee-ſimple Expectant upon it, Co. 8. 154. Dyer 126. 45 Ed. 3. 19.

5. If Lands be given to a man and the Heirs he ſhall beget upon the Body of his Wife; by this he hath an Eſtate-tail, but ſhe hath no Eſtate at all. But otherwiſe it is where it is a Gift to a man and his wife, and to the Heirs they ſhall beget, &c. So if Lands be given to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of the Wife upon her Body, begotten by the Husband; by this the Husband hath but an Eſtate for life, and the Wife an Eſtate in Special Tail. So if Lands be given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Husband, which he ſhall have by his Wife; by this the Wife hath onely an Eſtate for life, and the Husband an Eſtate in Tail, Littl. ſect. 26, 28, 29. Co. on Littl. 26.

6. If Lands be given to a married man, and the wife of another man, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, or in any ſuch wiſe; by this is made and executed a good Eſtate-tail preſently, and whiles the Husband and Wife of the Donees live, they hold for life; and if they happen to die, and the Donees to marry and have Iſſues, then their Iſſues ſhall have it according to the Intail, 15 H. 7. 10.

7. If a Gift be made to a man, and to ſuch a woman as ſhall after be his wife in Tail; this may be a good Eſtate-tail, but the Wife whom he doth after marry, hath nothing by it: But if a Feoffment be made to the uſe of a man, and the wife he ſhall after marry, and after he take a wife; in this caſe the Wife may happily have a good Eſtate joyntly with her Husband, Co. 1. 101. Dyer 340.

8. If Lands be given to two men, To have and to hold to the one for life, the Remainder to the other in Fee; this is good, and ſhall enure according to the Deed, Dyer 126. 50.

9. If

9. If one by his Will Deviſe his Land to his two Daughters, and the Heirs of their Body engendred; by this they are Joyntenants in Tail, and if one of them die before Partition made, the Survivor will have all the Land, Dyer 350. 20.

10. And ſo it is of Remainders, as it is of Poſſeſſions: For if a Remainder be limited to two Brothers in Tail, they ſhall have ſeveral Inheritances by it, Dyer 299. And if a Remainder be given by Will to two Siſters, and the Heirs of their two Bodies to be equally divided; by this they have ſeveral Eſtates-tail, and ſhall hold the Land in Common, Co. 10. 37. See more of this in my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 111; 112.

10. Eſtate for life, what.

An Eſtate for life, is where one hath any thing for his own, or for anothers life: This is but a Particular Eſtate derived out of the Inheritance, upon which a Reverſion or Remainder may depend. And this ſome call a Franck-tenement, and is an Eſtate in ſome caſes diſcendible to the Heir; as when Lands are granted to J. S. and his Heirs, for the life of J. D. In this caſe if J. S. die, his Heir ſhall have it, during the life of J. D. And this is called a Franck-tenement diſcendible, whereas in theſe and ſuch like caſes of Grants for anothers life, if it be not ſo contrived to be made to the Heirs of the Grantee after his death, it will be an Occupant, and he that can firſt get into the Poſſeſſion, after the death of the Tenant for life, ſhall have the Eſtate: And this Eſtate is next in order to an Eſtate-tail, and may be made without Deed, but not without Livery of Seiſin.

The nature of it.

He that hath this Eſtate may charge or grant it, during the time, for which he hath it, and not longer: He may have Fire-boot, Plough-boot, Houſe-boot, &c. (ſee Houſe-boot.) He cannot do Waſte upon it, and if he make any Feoffment of the Land a man holdeth for life, he doth forfeit it; his Wife that hath this Eſtate, is not to be endowed of the thirds, nor her Husband that hath it, to be Tenant by the Courteſie, no, though it be an Eſtate diſcendible to his Heirs. It will be liable to Execution for the Debt of the owner, but it muſt be by Extent onely, for the Sheriff cannot ſell it, as he may a Leaſe for years. It will not be forfeited by an Outlawry againſt the owner, as a Leaſe for years will be: But if the owner commit Felony, or be Outlawed for Felony; by this it will be forfeited. Nor is it forfeited by Petit Larceny, nor upon a Fugam fecit, nor in caſe of Premunire, nor for departing the Realm without Licence, Co. 1. 140. Dyer 253. Finches Ley 22. 39 Edw. 3. 25. See the Titles in their places; and ſee in my Book of Common Aſſurances, chap. 14.

Houſe-boot, Hedge-boot, Fire-boot, &c.

For this matter, take theſe caſes.

What ſhall be ſaid an Eſtate for life, and how words of Limitation herein ſhall be taken.

1. If a Gift, Grant, or Feoffment, be made to another by Deed in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail, in the intent of it; but there are no words [Heirs, or Heirs Males] or other words equivalent in the Deed, ſuch as are in the caſes above; this will make onely an Eſtate for life. So if one bargain and ſell to another by Deed indented and inrolled, and the word [Heirs] be omitted; by this no Eſtate but for life onely is made, 20 H. 6. 35. Co. 1. 100.

2. If Lands be given or granted to two & heredibus, without the word [Suis;] by this they take Eſtates for their two lives onely, 20 H. 6. 35.

3. If Lands be given or granted by Deed, To have and to hold to him or his Heirs, in the diſ-junctive; by this he hath onely an Eſtate for life, Co. 5. 112.

4. If a Tenant in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail, grant all his Eſtate without the word Heirs; it ſeems this is but an Eſtate for life, in the firſt caſe of the Grantee, in the laſt of the Grantor, Littl. 1. Plow. 562.

5. If one give or grant to J. S. and to his Succeſſors; this is but for life: But this grant to a Body Politick, will make a Fee-ſimple, Co. 1. part. 8.

6. If one give or grant to J. S. & ſemini ſuo, or to J. S. exitibus, vel prolibus de corpore ſuo, or the like; by this is granted no more but an Eſtate for life, Co. upon Littl. 20.

7. If one give or grant to J. S. and his Heir (in the ſingular number) by this he hath onely an Eſtate for life, Co. on Littl. 8.

8. If Land be granted to A. and B. for their lives, to the uſe of C. for his life; this is an Eſtate for the life of C. if A. and B. ſo long live, Dyer 186.

9. If one have a Son and Daughter, and dieth, and Lands be given to the Daughter, and the Heirs Females of the Body of her Father; by this the Daughter hath onely an Eſtate for life, Co. upon Littl. 24.

10. If one give or grant to a Woman dum ſola fuit, or durante viduitate, or quamdiu ſe bene geſſerit, or to *J. 11. Dower, what. Dower hath two ſignifications, Firſt, That which the Wife bringeth to her Husband in marriage: Secondly, (and ſo it is moſt commonly in this place taken) A Portion Portion of the Husbands Lands given to the Wife, after his death, for the Term of her life; which is in five manners, 1. By the Common Law, and then it is a third part of all his Fee-ſimple Land. 2. By Cuſtom, and then it is a Moyety, or all his Land, as the Cuſtom is. 3. Ex aſſenſu patris, and then it is ſo, as is agreed upon. 4. Ad oſtium Eccleſiæ, and then it is of as much as is agreed. 5. De la pluis Beale, and then it is of a third part onely. Terms of the Law. Littleton, Tit. Dower.

Dower by the Common Law is a third part of all the Fee-ſimple, and Fee-tail Lands of the Husband, which the Law doth give to the Wife after her Husbands death, for her livelihood. And this ſhe may not enter, and take her ſelf; but the Heir, or he that hath the Land, may aſſign it to her by Deed in the Country: Or if it be not done, but ſhe be denied, or delayed, and ſhe have no part of it, ſhe may have her Writ of Dower, unde nihil habet; or if ſhe have received part ſhe may have her Writ of Right, of Dower, for the reſt: And by theſe means ſhe ſhall recover her Right. The kindes of it.

Dower by Cuſtom, is a Portion that the Wife is to have of the Husbands Lands after his death, by the Cuſtom of ſome place; as in Burrough-Engliſh, all, in Gavelkinde, a Moyety; and this ſhe muſt take and enter to, according to the Cuſtom of the place, Perk. ſect. 435, 436.

Dower ad oſtium Eccleſiæ, is where one of full age is ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple, and about to be married, when he cometh to the door of the Church to be married, doth thereafter affiance between them, endow his Wife of all, or part of his Land, and openly ſhew the quantity and certainty of it: In this caſe the Wife after the death of her Husband, may enter into the ſaid quantity of Land aſſigned to her without any other Aſſignment, Perk. ſect. 437, &c. Sect. 10. Ad oſtium Eccleſiæ, what.

Dower ex aſſenſu patris, is where the Father is ſeiſed of Tenements in Fee; and his Son and Heir apparent (when he is to be married by a Deed of his Fathers conſent alſo) endow his Wife at the door of the Church, of part of his Fathers Lands, and declare the certain quantities: In this caſe alſo, the Wife after the death of her Husband, may enter into the Land aſſigned to her, without any other Aſſignment, Perk. ſect. 441. Ex aſſenſu Patris, what.

Dower de la pluis beale, is in caſe where a man ſeiſed of twenty Acres, ten in Capite, and ten in ſoccage, held of ſeveral Lords, and hath iſſue a Son, within age and die, and the Lord of whom the Land in capite is held, enter into that Land as Gardein, and the Mother of the Iſſue enter into the reſt as Gardein in Soccage; and ſhe brings Dower againſt the Gardein in Chivalry. In this caſe the Gardein in Chivalry may ſhew all this matter, and pray that Judgment may be given, that ſhe ſhall endow her ſelf De la pluis beale, i. e. that ſhe may take her whole Dower out of that Land; and after ſuch a Judgment given, ſhe may in the preſence of her Neighbors, endow her ſelf accordingly; and this ſhe ſhall hold for her life, Perk. ſect. 450. De la pluis Beale, what.

And if in the caſes before of Dower Ex aſſenſu patris, & ad oſtium eccleſiæ, the Wife after the death of the Husband do enter into the Land aſſigned her, and ſo agree to it, then ſhe is concluded to claim any other Dower by the Common Law of any of the Lands of her Husband; but if ſhe will refuſe ſuch Dower, then ſhe may be endowed according to the courſe of the Common Law, Engliſh Lawyer fol. 91.

In all caſes where the Wife ſhall be endowed, theſe things muſt neceſſarily concur. 12. In what caſe, and of what Inheritance and Poſſeſſion of the Husband, the Wife ſhall have Dower after the Husbands death, or not.

1. There muſt be a good marriage.

2. There muſt be a Seiſin or Poſſeſſion in Deed, or in Law in the Husband, of that thing whereof ſhe demandeth Dower.

3. The Franck-tenement and Inheritance muſt be Simul and Semel in the Husband, at ſome time, during his life.

4. The Husband muſt be dead when ſhe doth demand her Dower.

Sect.* 302.

Per metas & Bundas.

If the Husband be ſeiſed of Land in Common, with others, the Wife ſhall be endowed of it; but here the Judgment ſhall not be, That ſhe ſhall hold per metas & bundas in ſeveral, as in other caſes upon the Writ of Dower, but ſhe ſhall hold in Common her part, with the Tenants in Common, F. N. B. 149.

If one ſeiſed in Fee, make a Leaſe for years, and after take a Wife, and die, ſhe ſhall be endowed; but ſhe muſt ſtay the end of the Leaſe for Execution. If a Leaſe be made for years, the Remainder to B. for life, and after to the right Heirs of B. and after B. takes a Wife, and dies, during the years; in this caſe his Wife ſhall have Dower, but ſhe may not injoy it, till the Leaſe for years be ended. So if a Leaſe be made to J. S. for life the remained to a ſtranger for years, the Remainder to J. S. in Fee, and J. S. take a Wife, his Wife ſhall have Dower; but ſhe cannot have the Execution of it, till the Leaſe for years be ended; and if there be any Rent reſerved, it ſeems ſhe ſhall have her thirds of that in the interim.

If Lands be given to A. and B. in Special Tail, the Remainder to A. in General Tail; and his Wife die without iſſue, and he take a ſecond Wife, and die, this ſecond Wife ſhall be endowed, Broo. 372. Co. upon Littl. 321. Co. 10. 46. Perk. Sect. 343.

But of ſuch things as are of no value or certainty, the wife ſhall not have Dower, as Common, and Eſtovers, without number, Annuity, Homage, nor of matters of pleaſure onely, nor of a Caſtle, nor a Houſe that is Caput Baroniæ or Comitatus. If they be for the defence and honor of the Kingdom, elſe ſhe may be endowed of them, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, 31. 9 H. 7. 4. Perk. Sect. 342.

The Wife ſhall not be endowed of a Rent reſerved by the Baron, on a Leaſe for years or life. See more Supra, Perk ſect. 348.

The Husband having onely a Seiſin for an inſtant, as Cey que Uſe, and where a Joyntenant makes a Feoffment, the wife ſhall not be endowed of this, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 31, 32.

If the Freehold of Rents, Common, &c. be ſuſpended and ſo continue, during the Coverture, ſhe ſhall not be endowed of them; but a Releaſe after the Coverture will not bar the wife. Sect. 89.

Sect. 19. 14. Aſſignment of Dower.

Where a Woman hath title to have Dower, in ſome caſes there is no need of any Aſsignment of it to her, but ſhe may enter and take it without Aſsignment. But in moſt caſes, Aſsignment muſt be made to her, and ſhe cannot take it without Aſsignment; and this is ſometimes before an Action brought, and ſometimes after Action brought, and ſometimes by the Heir, ſometimes by the Alienee or Purchaſor, ſometimes by the King, ſometimes by the Gardein, ſometimes by a Diſſeiſor or Abator, and ſometimes by a Sheriff or Eſcheator. And this hath favor in Law; and therefore if the Heir aſsigned Dower to the Feme of the Anceſtor, where ſhe is not dowable; yet ſhe ſhall hold in Dower. See for Aſſignment of Dower, the Womans Lawyer, 243.

In what caſe the wife may aſsign Dower to her ſelf, or enter without Aſſignment, or not.

In caſe of Dower De lapluis Beale, the Wife may aſsign her Dower to her ſelf by Metes and Bounds before her Neighbors, ut ſupra, Littl. ſect. 49.

In all caſes where the Certainty appeareth, what Lands or Tenements the wife ſhall have for her Dower, there the wife may enter after the death of her husband, without any Aſsignment to her. As where the wife is to have all her husbands Lands, by ſome Cuſtoms; and where ſhe is endowed Ex aſſenſu patris, or Ad oſtium eccleſiæ, vide ſupra. Littl. ſect. 43.

If ſhe have a Judgment, and the Sheriff offer her the thirds, by Metes and Bounds, and ſhe then refuſe; yet ſhe may afterwards enter her ſelf, and take it when ſhe will, Dyer 278.

In all ſuch caſes wherein the Certainty doth not appear what the wife is to have for her Dower: As when ſhe is to have a Moyety by the Cuſtom, or a third part by the Common Law.

In ſuch caſes her Dower muſt be aſsigned to her before ſhe can enter into it; and if ſhe enter before, and after ſue for her Dower; this may for that time be pleaded in Bar

Bar to her, that ſhe hath entred into part of the Land, which will be a Bar, ſo long as ſhe holdeth the Poſſeſſion, Littl. ſect. 43. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 22. 6. Dyer 76.

If the Wife have obtained a Judgment to recover her Dower, yet ſhe may not enter, and take it her ſelf, but muſt wait till Execution, Plow 529.

If a Feme diſſeiſe the Terre-Tenant, ſhe cannot endow her ſelf by way of Retainer, Dyer 343.

If one ſeiſed of three ſhillings Rent-charge in Fee, and take a wife and die, ſhe cannot take this Rent, nor Diſtrain for it before Aſsignment. And if ſhe recover it in a Writ of Dower, yet ſhe cannot diſtrain before Execution.

But in other caſes where one demands a thing in Certain, Land, or Rent, the Demandant after Judgment, may enter or diſtrain before any Seiſin, delivered him by the Sheriff, upon an Habere facias Seiſinam, 10 Ed. 3. 22. Perk. ſect. 416. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 34.

Where the Wife of a Tenant in Common, demands a third part of a Moyety, yet after Judgment ſhe cannot enter until the Sheriff deliver her a third part, though the Delivery of the Sheriff do not alter the caſe.

To make a perfect Aſsignment of Dower, theſe things are required.

1. Regularly the Aſsignment muſt be Certain.
2. It muſt be either of ſome part of the Land, whereof ſhe is dowable, or of a Rent, or ſome other profit iſſuing out of the ſame, either before Judgment or after.
3. It muſt be abſolute, not ſubject to Condition or Limitation.
4. It muſt be made by him that is Tenant of the Land.
5. If it be by a Diſſeiſor, it muſt be without Covin.
6. And it muſt not be prejudicial to the Diſſeiſee.
7. It muſt be by him, againſt whom the Writ may be brought.
8. The Gardein in Chivalry may do it, ſo the Heir before the Gardein enter; as in the caſes beneath, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 34, 35.

If the Father endow the Wife of his Son and Heir at marriage, this is Aſsignment is enough, as before. See Dower ex aſſenſu patris. And this is a good Aſsignment without any other.

And if the Heir of the Husband aſsign the Woman her Dower (as he may) by a Deed in the Countrey, and ſhe accept of it; this is good, and will bar her from demanding any Dower by Writ, Co. 3. 27. Perk. ſect. 493.

If there be a Lord and Woman Tenant, and they intermarry, and he die, ſhe may endow her ſelf by a third part of the Services by way of Retainer. Perk. ſect. 303. 417.

Sect. 20. What ſhall be ſaid a good Aſſignment of Dower. In reſpect of the perſon that doth aſſign it.

If a Woman have a Right of Dower to Land, that is in the hands of two or three Joyntenants, and one of them endow her by Aſsignment of part of the Land it ſelf for her Dower; this will binde the reſt. But contrà if it were of a Rent out of the Land, 7 H. 6. 34. Title Dower 169. Perk. ſect 396. Co. 2. 67.

If a Diſſeiſor or Abator, do aſsign Dower to the wife that hath Title of Dower, and it be not by Covin (as in the caſe beneath) it is good and lawful, and will binde him that hath right: But then it muſt be of the Land it ſelf, and not any thing out of the Land, in lieu of it, 44 Edw. 3. 46. Co. 3. 78. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 35.

If a Man ſeiſed of Land in the right of his wife, or joyntly with his wife, aſsign a third part to a woman, that hath right of Dower; this is a good and lawful Aſsignment, and will binde his wife after his death, Perk. ſect. 399.

If there be two or three ſeveral Feoffees of Land, to which a woman hath Title of Dower, and one of them aſsign Dower for the whole Land; it ſeems this is good, and ſhe cannot demand Dower of the reſt. Perk. ſect. 78.

A Gardein in Chivalry may aſſign Dower to a Woman, and it is good; and though the Woman have no right to Dower, yet it ſeems to be good till it be avoided:

ed: And he may aſſign a Rent out of the Lands he hath in Ward in Recompence, and it is good, Fitz. Dower 75. 155. Weſtm. 2.

It ſeems Aſſignment of Dower by any one that hath a Freehold, againſt whom an Action of Dower may be brought, is good, and with the Wives acceptance will bar her; and therefore if it be done by a Tenant for life, it ſeems to be good, Perk. Sect. 404.

If the King have the Wardſhip of the Land, he may endow the Wife by Aſſignment, upon or without a Petition, in Chancery; and if he do ſo before, or after the full age of the Heir; it is good and lawful, and will binde the Heir, 1 Ed. 4. 1. Co. 9. 16. Dyer 228,

If the Husband make a Feoffment of divers Parcels to divers perſons, and die, and leave ſome to diſcend, and the Heir endow the wife of ſome of the Lands diſcended, in full ſatisfaction of all ſhe is to have out of all the Land; this is a good Aſſignment for all the reſt of the Lands, and the Feoffees may take advantage of it, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 35.

The Sheriff or Coroner upon a Writ and Authority given, and ſent to them, may aſſign Dower; and if they do ſo, it is good, and will binde all parties, Perk. Sect. 414.

Sect. 21. In reſpect of the perſon to whom the Aſsignment is made.

If the Wife be married again to another Husband, and Aſsignment be made to him and his wife, and accept it; it ſeems this is good, and ſhall binde the wife. But Quere. Fitz. Dower. 33 Ed. 1. Dower 177. 32 Ed. 1, Dower 121.

In reſpect of the thing aſsigned.

An Heir, or any other that hath a Sole, and lawful right to Land; out of which a Woman is to have Dower may endow her of a Rent, Common, or Profit iſſuing out of the ſame Land, and if ſhe accept it, it will bar her of any other Dower, Perk. Sect. 405:

But the Aſsignment of Parcel of the ſame thing, is the moſt proper Aſsignment; and that any one may do that may aſsign; and it matters not whether ſhe have a third part, for if ſhe accept leſs, it is good enough.

So neither is it material what part of the Capital Houſe, &c. for if ſhe accept any other part, it is ſufficient.

So if ſhe accept a Chamber, it is good, Dyer 361. & 91.

If a man ſeiſed of two Acres in one County, infeoff J. S. of one Acre with Warranty, and die, and his wife is endowed by the Heir, out of the other Acre, for the whole; now this is a good Aſsignment to bar her of any Dower in the other Acre.

So if the Heir make a Leaſe of part, and endow her for the whole out of the reſidue, 3 H. 6. 17. Perk. Sect. 400.

In reſpect of the manner of the Aſsignment.

For the moſt part, it muſt be aſsigned by Metes and Bounds, and when it is ſo, it is a good Aſsignment, Perk. Sect. 411.

If the Wife be endowed by Aſsignment of the third part of a Mill or a Bailiwick, it ſeems this is good; but the beſt Aſsignment of a Mill, or the like; is the whole every third moneth; and of Tithes, the third Cock; and of an Advowſon, the third Preſentment; of a Villain, the endowment ſhall be the third days, weeks, or moneths work; of a Dove-houſe or Fiſhing, the third part of the profit, and ſo of divers other things, Perk. Sect. 415. Co 11. 25. 15 H. 1. 7. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 32.

Any Aſsignment of Dower, may be good without writing or Livery of Seiſin, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 35:

If it be with a Condition annexed, it is good (as it ſeems) but the Condition is void. By two Judges, Mich. 37, 38 Eliz.

Sect. 22. 15. What ſhall be ſaid to be no good Aſsignment or Dower.

If J. S. be Tenant to the Land, of which a wife hath right to have Dower; and the wife, or ſhe and another diſſeiſe the Terre-Tenant, and after the wife is aſsigned her Dower by one that comes to the Land from her, or from her and the other Diſſeiſor; this is no good Aſsignment, but the Terre-Tenant may avoid it, Perk. Sect. 404. Co. 9. 16:

In reſpect of the perſon that doth it.

Aſsignment of Dower by a Gardein in Soccage to one that hath Title, is not good, Perk. Sect. 404:

So

So an Aſsignment by a Leſſee for years, Tenant by Statute or Elegit, Perk. ſect. 404. Co. 9. 16.

If the Husband make ſeveral Feoffments of ſeveral Parcels, and die, and one Feoffee aſſign Dower to the wife, of Parcel of Land in ſatisfaction of all her Dower in all the Lands of the other Feoffees; this will not bar her of her Dower in the reſt, neither may they plead it in Bar to her: But if the Heir aſſign Dower ſo, contrà. See above, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol 35.

If an Intrudor or Diſſeiſor endow a Feme of a Rent, or profit out of the Land, it is not good, Perk. Sect. 349. Co. 2. 67. In reſpect of the thing which is aſſigned.

So if one Joyntenant aſſign a Rent out of the Land, in which the Wife hath Title of Dower; this is no good Aſſignment to binde his Companions, neither may their Cattle be diſtrained for ſuch a Rent, Perk. Sect. 397.

If the Demand be of divers Manors, and the Sheriff one Manor to her, for her Dower; this is good. 12 Ed. 4. 2.

If other Lands be aſsigned to her in recompence of her Dower, or a Rent iſſuing out of other Land; this is no good Aſsignment, neither will it binde her, though ſhe accept it. But of a Rent out of the ſame Land contrà, and that Rent may be aſsigned by word; and if it be after Judgement, in a Scire facias, it may be pleaded, Perk. Sect. 407.

If a Woman that hath Title of Dower, cauſe the Terre Tenant to be Diſſeiſed of purpoſe, that he may endow her either upon an Action brought, or by Agreement; this is no good Aſsignment made by him, thus by Covin. Non facias malum ut inde fiat bonum Dyer 266. Perk. ſect. 410. Co. 6. 58. 3. 78. In reſpect of the manner of the Aſſignment.

If the Husband were Tenant in Common, the Aſsignment muſt not be by Metes and Bounds; for if it be, it is not good: But the Woman muſt hold in Common with the other Tenants in Common.

So if ſhe be endowed of Land that doth belong to Coparceners: But if they make a Partition firſt, then the Aſsignment may be, Per metas & bundas, Perk. ſect. 411, 412.

If an Heir enter and aſsign to his Mother a third part, to hold with him in Common; this is not a good manner of Aſsignment, Perk. ſect. 413.

So if a Sheriff do aſsign Dower, and do not do it in Severalty, Per metas & bundas; it is not good, if it may ſo be done, Perk. ſect. 414.

If the Husband be attainted of High, or of Petit Treaſon (as it ſeems) his wife ſhall loſe her Dower; and though he had made a Feoffment of it to a ſtranger, before the Fact done, yet ſhe is barred, and cannot recover her Dower of it, 5 Ed. 6. 11. Stamf. lib. 3. 33. Sir Simon Sect. 23: 16. Where the Wife ſhall be barred of her Dower perpetually.

If the Husband be attainted of Murder or Felony, and the Land Eſcheat to the Lord or King; the wife is perpetually barred of her Dower: But this it ſeems is altered by the Statute of 1 Ed 6. 12. in the caſe of Treaſon; for in that caſe ſhe loſeth her Dower, Co. upon Littl. fol. 31. Littl. ſect. 55. Perk. ſect. 387. 5 Ed. 6. 12. By the Means of the Husband.

If the Baron have cauſe to recover Land for Waſte or Ceſſer, and doth not, but dieth before it be recovered; by this delay of his, the wife is perpetually barred.

So if the Husband have Land, and is impleaded for it, and he voucheth, and the Demandant recovereth againſt him, and he hath Judgment to recover over, and die before Execution; the wife in this caſe is barred of her Dower.

So if he do not enter when he may; as when he is Diſſeiſed, or a ſtranger doth abate upon him after his Fathers death. See Supra. 1 Hen. 7. chap. 17. 21 Ed. 4. 60.

If a Rent be granted to one in Fee, and the Grantee will not diſtrain, but brings an Annuity againſt the Grantor, and recovers it, hereby the wife is perpetually barred (as it ſeems) of this Dower. Perk. 373.

If the Husband alone levy a Fine, and die, and ſhe do not bring her Action, nor make her Claim in five years after his death; hereby ſhe is barred of her Dower in that Land for ever, Co. 2. 93. 8. 100. Dyer 224. 72. By the Means of the Wife her ſelf.

If

If ſhe depart from her Husband and live with another man, in Avowtry, and be not reconciled unto him of her own accord before his death, without compulſion of the Church, ſhe hath loſt her Dower for ever. Sponte virum mulier fugiens & adultera facta, Dote ſua careat, niſi ſponſo ſponte retracta. And this ſeems to be cauſe of Forfeiture of Dower, though ſhe do not dwell with the Advowterer, *Co. lib. And ſo alſo it is, if ſhe had a Joynture made after marriage, and after her Husbands death ſhe hath by any means accepted it; in theſe caſes ſhe ſhall never be received to demand Dower alſo; and in theſe caſes it is not material what the quantity of the Lands made in Joynture be; if it be but an Acre, if it were intended a Joynture, it is ſufficient Joynture, *Co.*4. 2.

If the Husband and Wife during the Coverture, levy a Fine, or ſuffer a Common Recovery of the Land; the wife is perpetually barred for any Dower in this Land, whereof the Fine or Recovery is, Co. 10. 49. 2. 74.

She may have this Writ for Dower, Ad oſtium Eccleſiæ, Ex aſſenſu patris, and for Dower by the Cuſtom, as well as for any other Dower. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, fol. 35.

Sect. 28. 19. Againſt whom this Writ may be had, or not. This Writ lieth, and may be brought againſt any of them that have power to aſſign Dower (for which ſee before) excepting onely the King, againſt whom no Action will lie: But to him ſhe muſt ſue by Petition, as an Heir, an Alienee, a Gardein, Diſſeiſor, or Abator, &c. againſt any of theſe this Writ lieth; and during the minority of an Heir, as long as he is in the Kings Cuſtody ſhe muſt ſue to him by Petition in Chancery. And after he hath committed him, ſhe may ſue the Patentee by this Writ, or another Gardein in Chivalry; and when the Heir is of age, ſhe muſt ſue him himſelf.

And if divers have ſome of the Land, the Heir and others, ſhe may ſue any one of them: But if ſhe ſue a Purchaſor, ſhe ſhall recover but a third part of his own Land; whereas, if ſhe ſue the Heir, ſhe ſhall recover a third part of the whole.

And it ſeems this Writ doth lie againſt the Committee; of the King, of a Wardſhip and Ward, and Executors of a Gardein in Chivalry, See the Statute of 1 H. 7. 17.

But

But this Writ doth not lie against the Heir as long as he is within age, and in the Kings custody; and therefore if any woman bring this Writ against him in this case, the Heir may have a Writ called Circumspectè Agatis, which is in the nature of a Prohibition to forbid the Judges to proceed any further against the Heir at the Common Law, Co. 9. 16. 4 H. 7. Age. Infant. Circumspectè Agatis, what.

It lieth not against a Gardein in Chivalry, after the Heir is of full age, though the Gardein hold the Land over for a Forfeiture of marriage: Neither doth it lie against the Heir, during his Minority and Wardship, but against the Gardein, Co. 9. 16. Plow. 141.

It lieth not against a Gardein in Soccage, Lessee for years, nor a Lessee for years of a Gardein in Chivalry, nor against a Tenant by Statute or Elegit, nor against a Gardein in Chivalry, till he have entred, and after his entry it lieth not against the Heir, Co. lib. Inst. 1 part. fol. 39. Co. 9. 16. Co. 6. 57. F. N. B. 147.

It is a good Plea for the Defendant to say she is endowed already by the same party, or some other for the Land that she doth now demand Dower of: And what else is a good Plea, or not, see before, where Dower is barred temporally or eternally, and where not, Co. 9. 16. 20. What matter is a good Plea to a Writ of Dower, and who may plead it.

So to say that her Husband was never seised of any such Estate, as whereof the wife may have Dower, Dyer 41.

So to say she hath accepted a Rent out of the Land in recompence of her Dower, Dyer 19. These are good Pleas.

A Gardein in Chivalry may plead in Bar of Dower, Detainment, or Eloigning of the Body of the Ward; and this is a good Bar to the Woman, so long as she do detain: And if the Heir come in as Vouchee, he may plead the same Plea: But he cannot plead Detainment of Charters, Co. on Littl. fol. 39. Never lawfully married, is a good Plea, and was triable by the ordinary: So that the Husband is yet living, Co. lib. Inst. 1 part. fol. 39.

It is a competent livelihood of the Franck-tenement of the Husband, made and assured in consideration of marriage for the wife, to take effect forthwith after the Husbands death, to endure for her life at the least, if she by her own act do not forfeit or determine it before. And this is made sometimes before, and sometimes after marriage; if it be made before marriage, it will bar the Wife of Dower, but if it be made after marriage, the wife after her Husbands death, hath power either to wave it, and demand her Dower at Common Law, or to accept it; and thereby to be barred of her Dower at Common Law. But that Joynter made before marriage, that must be a Bar to the wife of Dower, must be such a Joynture, as within the words or meaning of the Statute of 27 *H.*8. 10. Or else the Wife may have that, and demand Dower also, Vide Womans Lawyer, see fol. 182, &c. Sect. 29. 21. Joynture, what.

A Joynture may be made of such things, as whereof a Woman may be endowed, and not of any other things. 22. Of what things a Joynture may be made, or not.

If an Estate be made to the wife before marriage, in either of the forms hereafter following, it shall be adjudged within the Statute, and be a Bar of Dower, as to the Husband and Wife, and Heirs of their two Bodies begotten; or to the Husband and Wife, and their Heirs, or to the Husband and Wife, and Heirs of one of them, or to the Husband and Wife for their lives, or to the Husband and Wife, for the term of the life of the Wife, or to the Husband for life, the Remainder to the wife for life, or for life upon condition to perform his Will, or durante viduitate sua, or to the wife in Fee-simple, or in Fee-tail, or to the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs Males of their two Bodies. What shall be said a good Joynture before marriage to Bar Dower

And so all such like Estates as beneficial to the Wife, as the least of all these. Co. 4. 2. 27 Hen 8. 10. Dyer 316. Co. 5. 26. & 7. 40. Dyer 96, 228. 317. Plow. 307.

So that to the making of a Joynture good by this Statute of 27 *H.*8. theſe things are requiſite.

1. The Joynture by the firſt Limitation, muſt take effect for her life, in poſſeſſion or profit, preſently after her Husbands death.
2. It muſt be for her life, at leaſt.
3. It muſt be made to her ſelf, and not to another.
4. It muſt be made in ſatisfaction of the whole, and not a part of her Dower.
5. It muſt be expreſſed or averred to be in ſatisfaction of her Dower, Co. upon Littl. 1 part. 35.

But if the Eſtate be not ſo made in his firſt Creation, as the wife may take immediately after her husband, though after it fall out ſo; yet this is not a Joynture within the Statute to Bar Dower: As if an Eſtate were made to the Baron for life, the Remainder to another for life, the Remainder to the wife for life; and after it falleth out, that he in Remainder for life, die before the husband: So that now by this matter ex poſt facto ſhe ſhall take immediately after her husband, yet this is not a Joynture within the Statute. Quod ab initio non valet, in tractu temporis non convaleſcat; & quæ mala ſunt inchoata principio, vix eſt ut bono peragantur exitu, Co. 4. 2. & 4. 3.

If Lands be conveyed to be a Womans before marriage, for part of her Joynture; and after more Land is conveyed after marriage, in full ſatisfaction of her Joynture; this is no Bar of Dower for Incertainty: And therefore if ſhe refuſe that conveyed after marriage, ſhe may have her Dower in all, ſaving that conveyed before marriage, which ſhe may alſo keep.

And if an Eſtate be made to the Wife, for one or more lives of others, or for one thouſand years, if ſhe live ſo long, or for a thouſand years; theſe Eſtates are not within the Statute, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 36.

If an Eſtate be made to others in Fee, or for her life, upon truſt for her benefit, by her aſſent, and expreſs in full ſatisfaction of her Dower; this will not Bar her, Co. Idem.

If one Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf in Tail, and after of his wife for life; this is not a Joynture within the Statute, Paſche, 16 Jac. B. R. Woods caſe.

Sect. 30. What ſhall be ſaid a Joynture after marriage to Bar Dower, or not.

Such a Joynture as will be a Bar of Dower, being made before marriage, will be a Bar of Dower, if it be made after marriage; ſo as the wife do accept it and agree to it, after her husbands death: As in the examples before, if ſuch a form of a Joynture be made after marriage, and accepted after the husbands death by the wife, it will be a Bar of Dower, Co. 4. 4.

If the Husband Deviſe Land to his Wife for ever in Tail, or for life, for her Joynture, in ſatisfaction of Dower, and ſhe accept it after his death, this will be a Bar of Dower, Co. 4 4. Dyer 220.

But if one ſeiſed in Fee of Soccage Land, and in Tail of Capite Land, Deviſe by his Will a third part of his Lands and Tenements to his wife in recompence of her Dowes, and die, and ſhe enter into the third part of the Fee-ſimple Lands onely; by this ſhe is barred of having any more Dower, Dyer 220.

Averment.

If one Deviſe Lands by Will to his Wife generally; this will not Bar her of Dower, neither can it be averred to be intended for a Joynture (but upon a Deed of Lands granted in general, ſuch an Averment will lie) unleſs the Will expreſs ſo, Co. 4. 4. Broo. 421.

If

If a Man makes his Wife a Joynture after marriage, and after in his Will deviſe, that his wife ſhall have a third part of all his Land with her Joynture; in this caſe ſhe will have a third part of the whole as a Legacy, and then if ſhe will wave her Joynture, ſhe may have a third part out of all the Reſidue for her Dower, Dyer 61.

If the Husband make a Leaſe of Lands to his Friends for any number of years, in truſt for his wife and children, that ſhe ſhall have a hundred pound a year out of it, or in any ſuch manner; in this caſe ſhe may have her Dower out of this Land, and yet have this Proviſion alſo. Bridgman Juſtice.

If an Eſtate be made to the Husband in Tail, the Remainder to the wife for life, the Remainder to others; this is no ſuch Joynture, as with her Acceptance within the Statute will bar her of Dower; though the Husband die without iſſue, yet this will not help, but the wife may have Dower in his other Land: But if an Eſtate be made to the husband and wife for their lives, contrà By three Juſtices in Sherleys caſe, M. 13 Jac. B. R.

If her Joynture, after marriage, be made to her by Act of Parliament, ſhe cannot wave it. 27 *H.*8. 10. *Crompt. Sect.*4.

And note that in all the caſes above, where the Joynture is not within the Statute, the wife ſhall have that Eſtate, and her Dower alſo, by Co. lib. Inſt. 1 *part. fol.*36.

If the wife be endowed, and after be evicted out of her Dower, ſhe ſhall be re-endowed again, in theſe caſes following, viz.

If ſhe be endowed of the immediate Eſtate of the Heir of her Husband, and be after impleaded and evicted, ſhe may vouch the Heir, and be newly endowed of the reſt of the Land ſhe hath from her husband, as if the Anceſtor had two Acres by a good Title, and one by a bad; and the wife is endowed of the bad Title Acre, and ſhe is ſued for it, and loſe it: Now ſhe ſhall recover her Thirds out of the other two Acres.

Sect. 31, 32. In what caſe upon the Eviction of the Wife, ſhe ſhall be endowed again, or more Re-endowment.

And ſo if ſhe were endowed by the Heir of the Father, and after ſhe be impleaded, and pray in aid of him, and he make default, and ſhe loſe the Land, ſhe ſhall be newly endowed.

So if a Tenant in Tail diſcontinue, and the Diſcontinuee die, and the wife recover Dower againſt his iſſue, after the Iſſue in Tail brings a Formedon againſt the wife, and ſhe vouch the ſame, and that is loſt; in this caſe ſhe ſhall be re-endowed of the reſt, till it be recovered alſo by the Iſſue in Tail, Perk. Sect. 420.

If there be Great Grand-father, Grand-father, Father and Son, and the Great Grand-father being ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and having a wife, doth give it by Deed to the Grand-father in Tail, and he die, and the Father endow his wife, after the Father and Great Grand-father die; the Great Grand-mother brings Dower againſt the wife of the Grand-father, and recovers: Now in this caſe it ſeems the Grand-mother ſhall be re-endowed of as much as ſhe loſt, but contrà if it were in caſe of Diſcent. As Supra. See Crompt. Juriſd. fol. 43. Co. 4. 122. 5 Ed. 3. 9.

But if the Heir have no Land in the ſame County where her Dower doth lie, it ſeems ſhe ſhall not be re-endowed by him after Eviction. Co. 9. 17. & 4 122.

If ſhe be endowed by the Alienee of the Husband, or of the Heir, and ſhe be afterwards evicted, ſhe ſhall never be re-endowed againſt either of them, unleſs it be in caſe, where her Judgment for her Dower were Conditional, upon the Voucher of the Heir (as the manner is) and after the Judgment is avoided by a Writ of Diſceipt, and hereby the Heir being Vouchee, reſtored to his Land. *Idem. Perk. Sect.*421.

But

But if she sue the Feoffee of the Husband, and he vouch the Heir in what County soever she shall be endowed of the Heir, to that end, That if she lose, she may be newly endowed, which she could not, if she were not endowed by the Feoffee of her Husband. Coke, Justice in Throckmortons case.

Sect. 32. 24. To whom the wife shall be Attendant, and by what Services.

The Wife most commonly shall be Attendant to the Heir in Reversion, and not to the Lord; and she shall Bar a third part of the Services: But if she be endowed by the Gardein in Chivalry, she shall be Attendant to him during the Minority of the Heir for a third part of the Services.

And if she be endowed by a Disseisor, she may be Attendant to him till the Disseisee have the Land again.

And if the Heir grant away the Reversion, and she Attorn to the Grantee, then she shall be Attendant to him.

And if her Husband die without Issue, or Heir, being Tenant in Tail, or in Fee, she shall hold of the Donor or Lord, by the third part of the Services.

But if the Lord purchase the Tenancy, and after the Wife is endowed, she shall hold it discharged of any Services, Perk. Sect. 424, &c. Co. 8. 36. 9. 135. Co. super Littl. 241. 34 Ass. 1.

If the Husband hold of J. S. by three pence, and he hold over by twenty pence Rent, and J. S. Release to the Husband, so that now he doth hold by twenty pence, the Wife being endowed of this Land shall hold it by the third part of three pence; for she shall be endowed of the best. Fitz. Dower, 131.

Sect. 33. Admeasurement of Dower, what.

It is a Writ lying where an Heir within age, or Gardein doth endow a Woman, that is dowable of more then she should have; then the Heir at his full age may sue the Woman again, and shew this, and get her endowed again more equally, and Restitution made.

[9] And if the Heir within age, enter and assign before the Gardein enter (as he may) the Heir at his full age may have this Writ; or the Gardein after his Entry, but not the Assignee of the Gardein; and this Writ lieth upon an Assignment in Chancery. Co. lib. Inst. 1 part. f. 39. West. 2. 7. See for Dower, Statutes, Merton. 1. Westm. 1. 48. 2. 4. 1 Ed. 6. 12. 5 Ed. 6. 12.

Tenant by the Courtesie, what.

Tenant by the Courtesie, is where a man taketh a wife, seised in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, General or Special, and hath Issue by his Wife, Male or Female, and the Childe be living or dead, if the Wife die, the Husband shall hold this Land, during his life by the Courtesie of the Law of England; and then is he Tenant by the Courtesie. Terms Ley 118.

Sect. 34. 25. Of what things the Husband shall be Tenant by the Courtesie, or not. In what case the Husband shall be Tenant by the Courtesie, or not.

And the Husband shall be Tenant by the Courtesie of Lands or Tenements in Demesn, and of Commons, Advowsons, and the like; also of Honors and Offices (as it seems) and of a Castle and Common sans number. Vide Extinguishment, English Lawyer, fol. 79. Co. lib. Inst. 1 part. fol. 29, 30.

In all cases where the Issue of a Woman (Inheretrix of Lands) begotten by her Husband, might by possibility inherit that Land as Heir to the Wife of her Estate there, the Husband shall be Tenant by the Courtesie, yea, though the Wife had Issue inheritable to the Land by a former Husband, Littl. sect. 52. Co. 4. 61. 834.

But then these things must be in the case.

1. The Birth must be a Childe, not a Monster; but though it have some deformity or defect in the Hand or Foot; if it have Humane shape, it sufficeth.

2. It

2. It muſt be born living, not dead.
3. It muſt be born before, not after the Mothers death.
4. The wife muſt have an Actual Seiſin of the thing, whereof he would be Tenant by the Courteſie before her death, if it be to be had, as in theſe caſes.

If a Man have iſſue by a Woman Inheretrix, that hath iſſue by a former Huſband, and the laſt iſſue be dead; or if the Inheritance diſcend to the wife, after the iſſue born, or after the iſſue is dead, or the Eſtate-tail determine by the death of the Woman Tenant in Tail, without iſſue; yet in theſe caſes the Husband ſhall be Tenant by the Courteſie, Co. 8. 34. Littl. 35. 52. Dyer 25. 95. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 29.

If a Woman have a Rent or Advowſon in Fee, and die before any day of payment, or Avoidance come; yet the Husband ſhall be Tenant by the Courteſie, for here he could not have Seiſin, Co. 192. Kelw. 104. Sect. 35.

But if the Inheritance whereof the wife is ſeiſed, be ſuch, as by no poſſibility, the Iſſue between them may inherit the Eſtate the wife had, as Heir to the wife, or the childe be a Monſter, or born dead, or born after the Mothers death, as if it be ripped out of the Mothers Belly, or the wife have no actual Seiſin, or the wife have onely a Right, or the Eſtate is in ſuſpence at her death, he ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie.

And yet if the Suſpenſion of a Seigniory, Rent, or Common, be but for years; as if a Tenant make a Leaſe for years of the Tenancy to the Seignioreſs, who taketh a husband and hath Iſſue, and the wife dieth; now he ſhall be Tenant by the Courteſie, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. 29.

And therefore in all theſe caſes following, the husband ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie: As if the Intail be on the Heirs Males, and they have onely Heirs Females; or the wife be diſſeiſed, and ſhe die before any re-entry made; or a Wife-Lady, and a man her Tenant, and they inter-marry, and they have iſſue, and the wife die, the husband ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie of the Seigniory; or if the Anceſtor die ſeiſed of the Land, and before the Woman enter, ſhe die; or if he be attainted of Felony, and after get a Pardon, and after his wife dieth; or the wife have onely a bare Title, Uſe, or Reverſion, or Remainder, Expectant on a Freehold; in all theſe caſes he ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie, Co. 4. 81. 8. 34. Perk. ſect. 457, 458, 459. Co. 1 98. 3 H. 7. 5. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part fol. 29. 40, 338. Co. lib. Inſt. fol. 29.

An Occupant or Occupancy is either General or Special; the General Occupancy, is where an Eſtate is made or granted of Lands or Tenements to J. S. (or to J. S. his Executors or Aſſigns) during the life of any other perſon or perſons, and he that hath this Eſtate dieth, during the life or lives; in this caſe, now he that can firſt get into the poſſeſſion, by Entry into theſe Lands or Tenements, ſo granted after the death of the Tenant, he ſhall have it during the ſame life or lives, and then he is ſaid to be a General Occupant, and his Eſtate a General Occupancy. So that in this caſe the Law is, Capiat qui capere poteſt. 26. Occupant or Occupancy, what. The kindes. The nature of it.

And this Eſtate, he that gaineth it, he may grant away to another, and if he do not ſo but die, and leave it ſo, then it will be in the ſame caſe as before, and ſo as oft as it ſo hapneth; but otherwiſe it is of ſuch a Grant of Rent, Common, or ſuch like thing.

The Special Occupancy and Occupant, is where Lands or Tenements are granted to J. S. and his Heirs, during the life of any other perſon or perſons; in this caſe, if he that hath this Eſtate, dieth, the Heir ſhall have it, and no other perſon can gain it by Entry, as in the firſt caſe; and this is called a Franck-tenement Diſcendible. Franck tenement Diſcendible, what.

So that it doth much concern all them that take Eſtates for others lives, to have the Eſtate limitted to them, and their Heirs.

And both theſe kinde of Eſtates are in the nature and quality of other Eſtates for lives; Caveat Emptor.

lives; for neither he to whom it is made, his Heir, nor the Occupant, ſhall have aid: This Heir ſhall not be charged by a Specialty, whereby this Tenant doth binde him, and his Heirs, he is puniſhable for Waſte or Forfeiture, and liable to pay Rent, and perform the Service of the Tenant, as another Tenant for life is; the wife ſhall not be endowed, the husband ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie, and the Occupant is bound to pay the Rents, and perform the Covenants annexed to the Eſtate, as another Tenant for life is bound.

Feræ naturæ.

Property.

And the right that men have to Beaſts and Birds that are Feræ naturæ, is but a kinde of Occupancy, whiles they keep them they are their own, though they have no Property in them; and when they are gone, they are any mans that can catch them. See Property. Co. 10. 98. on Littl. 41. Littl. Sect. 167. 41. 339. 388. Dyer 264.

Sect. 36. Of what things it may be, or not. Rent, Common, &c.

A Special Occupancy may be of a Rent, Annuity, Advowſon, Common, or the like thing that lieth in Grant. But a general Occupancy (as it ſeems) can be of nothing but of Houſes, Lands, and ſuch like things. And therefore if a Rent, Common, or the like thing be granted to J. S during the life of any other perſon or perſons, and J. S. die, during the life or lives of that perſon or perſons, or thoſe perſons; in theſe caſes, it ſeems the Rent doth ceaſe, and the Common cannot now be enjoyed by any other perſon or perſons, the firſt Grantee being dead, Littl. 168. Plow. 556. Co. upon Littl. part. 41. Nor can an Occupancy be of a Copihold. And therefore if a Tenant for his own life, of Copihold Land, Surrender his Land to the Lord, to the uſe of A. B. and the Lord admit A. for the life of A This is a Surrender of all his Eſtate, and when A. dieth, the Eſtate is ended, and the Copiholder ſhall not have it again, Co. 1. 41. Mich. 7 Car. Agreed by all the Judges in the Exchequer Chamber.

Copihold.

27. Where a man ſhall be ſaid to be an Occupant, and adjudged to be in as of an Eſtate in Occupancy, or not.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. If one make a Leaſe to J. S. (without more words, or to J. S. his Executors and Aſſigns,) during the life of any other perſon or perſons; this after the death of J. S. will be an Occupancy; and if in this, and ſuch like caſes, the firſt Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years, or at Will to a ſtranger; and this ſecond Leſſee is in Poſſeſſion, and the Leſſee for life die, the Leaſe for years, or at Will, not ended; it ſeems this Leſſee for years, or at Will, ſhall be the Occupant, albeit he never claim as Occupant. But if in this caſe the Leſſee for years, or at Will, be out of Poſſeſſion, and the Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator of the firſt Leſſee, can firſt get into Poſſeſſion, he may be the Occupant. So if one Diſſeiſe the Tenant for anothers life, and the ſame Tenant die before his Entry; the Diſſeiſor will be the Occupant. So if he in Remainder for life Diſſeiſe the Tenant for life, and then the Tenant for life dieth, he in Remainder ſhall have it, and the wrong is purged, Hill. 38 Eliz. B. R. Roſſes caſe. M. 17 Jac. B. R. Whorewoods caſe. 38 H. 6. 28. Plow. 28. 558. Fitz Bar. 303. C. 10. 98. Dyer 321.

2. If Tenant by the Courteſie, or Tenant in Dower grant his Eſtate to J. S. and J. S. die; in this caſe there will be no Occupancy, and therefore it ſeems theſe Tenants ſhall have it again, for they are Tenants to the Lord notwithſtanding the Grant, Adjudg, Stanhops caſe. Mich. 17 Jac. B. R. So if Tenant in Tail Grant totum ſtatum ſuum, (i. e.) all his Eſtate, Mich. 17 Jac. B. R. But Quere.

3. If a Tenant for anothers life, Grant away his Eſtate for life to J. S. and ſay not to him and his Heirs; this after the death of the Grantee, will be a general Occupancy: And the like is ſaid of Tenant in Dower, and by the Courteſie, Plow. 556. 28. Fitz Bar. 303.

4. If one ſeiſed in Fee of Land, or ſeiſed of it for his own life, or the life of another, and he grant it to J. S. and his Heirs for his life; this is not a General Occupancy, but a Special Occupancy. So if a Leaſe be to J. S. and his Aſſigns, for the life of J. D. and J. S. aſſign it to K. L. and his Heirs for the life of J. D. this is a Special; and by this the miſchief of the General Occupancy is avoided, Co. 10. 98. Dyer 321. Bakers caſe. Hill. 37 Eliz. Co. B.

5. If

5. If a Tenant in Tail bargain and ſell his Land by Indented Deed to another and his Heirs, the Bargainee hath but a Franck-tenement diſcendible to his Heirs, determinable on the death of the Tenant in Tail; this is not an Occupancy, nor after that nature; for the Wife of the Bargainee will be endowed, as long as the Eſtate doth continue, and the Bargainee cannot be puniſhed for Waſte or Forfeiture, Co. 10. 98.

6. No Occupancy ſhall be againſt the King, neither ſhall Entry before him; prejudice him, Co. on Littl. 41.

7. Every Entry or coming upon the Land after the death of the Tenant, will not give a man this Eſtate as an Occupant, but it muſt be a purpoſed Entry: And therefore if a man follow his Hauk or Hounds over the Ground; by this he is not an Occupant, Vdals caſe, 32 Eliz. B. R. Adjudged.

8. An Executor cannot be a Special Occupant, but he that firſt enters, though he never Claim the Land, ſhall be the Occupant: And therefore if Leſſee for three other lives, make a Leaſe for years, and then die; the Leſſee for years is the Occupant, and the Leaſe for years is drowned. By Baron Thorpe at Gloceſter Aſſizes, 1654.

9. The way to prevent the miſchief of a General Occupancy is to take in the word Heirs, or for the Tenant that hath an Eſtate of Land lyable to this miſchief, to grant it away, and make Livery upon it, or bargain and ſell it by Deed indented and inrolled, or to Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of it to the uſe of his Wife, or ſome of his Blood, or to make a Leaſe for years of it determinable upon the lives, by which the Eſtate is held.

An Eſtate for years is, where one holdeth Lands or Tenements for a time, or number of years in Certain. And this is one of the leſt and loweſt kinde of Eſtates; (for this though it be a Leaſe for one thouſand years) yet is it (in Judgment of Law) but a Real Chattel that ſhall go to the Executor or Adminiſtrator, and may be forfeited upon an Outlawry in any Action, as a mans Goods and Chattels may be; and this may be made without Deed. And yet this in many things is like to a Leaſe for life; for he that hath this Eſtate, ſhall have Houſe-boot, Fire-boot, Plough-boot, &c. (for which ſee Houſ-boot.) He may charge or grant it, during his Term, and no longer; he may not make Waſte in it, or make any Eſtate of the Land he ſo holdeth for longer time, then he hath in it; and if he do make any Eſtate of Freehold of it, and it be executed by Livery of Seiſin, it is a Forfeiture of the Eſtate. No Wife in this caſe ſhall have Dower, nor Husband be Tenant by the Courteſie, 14 Hen. 7. chap. 3. Finches Law 44. Littl. Sect. 38. Co. upon Littl. 46.

Sect. 37. 28. Eſtates for years, what. The nature of it.

Houſe-boot.

For this, take theſe things.

1. A Leaſe for life or years, may be made with, or without a Deed, or by way of Fine, Record, Bargain, and Sale, or Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to Uſes upon good conſideration of marriage, and the like.

What ſhall be ſaid to be a Leaſe for years, or not.

2. If one by writing, make a Leaſe of Land for years in the Premiſſes, Habendum to the Leſſee, and his Heirs; this, if Livery and Seiſin be made upon it is a Fee-ſimple. But if it be, To him and his Heirs for a certain number of years, and no Livery of Seiſin made; this is but a Leaſe for yeares, Co. 2. 24. 34 H. 6. 27.

3. A. by Articles in writing, covenanted and agreed to and with B. that he ſhould occupy and enjoy White-acre for ſeven years; this is a good Leaſe for ſeven years, Adjudge, Hobbard, Rep. 49. 5 Hen. 7. 2. 21 Hen. 6. 37. Dyer 150.

4. If one grant a Rent of twenty pound a year, until one hundred pound be paid; this is a Leaſe for five years of the Rent. But if it be of a Manor of the value of twenty pound a year, that ſuch a Leaſe were made of in this manner; this were a Leaſe for life of the Leſſee, determinable upon the payment of the money, Co. upon Littl. 42.

5. If one grant the next Advowſon of a Church to J. S. and his Heirs; this is but in the nature of a Chattel, 34 H. 6. 27. But ſee much more of this thing in my Book of Common Aſſurances, fol. 110, 111. and Chap. 14. fol. 267.

Eſtate at Will, what.

The kindes.

An Eſtate at Will, is either by Cuſtom, and ſo are all Copihold Eſtates; for which ſee Copihold, or by Common Law: And this is where a Leaſe is made, during pleaſure. And this is either at the will of the Leſſor; and this is moſt Common: Or at the will of the Leſſee, or during the pleaſure of the Leſſor and Leſſee both together: As when it is made at will indefinitely, and ſay not of the Leſſor or Leſſee. And ſo are all Leaſes at Will, though it be expreſt onely to be at the Will of one of them, yet the other is implied.

The nature of it.

And this is the leaſt and loweſt kinde of Eſtate that can be made, yet the Leſſee may enter upon, or have Action againſt a ſtranger that doth enter upon him. It is a Chattel alſo that will go to the Executor or Adminiſtrator, if the Leaſe be not determined, (as commonly it is by the death of the party;) but if he have a Copihold Manor, he may make Eſtates according to the Cuſtom. But this Eſtate is neither grantable over, nor chargable; yet if the Leſſee ſow the Land, and die, his Executors ſhall reap the Corn: And the Leſſee here, muſt take heed he do not make voluntary Waſte; for this is puniſhable: And yet it ſeems he may take the Shrouds of the Trees. This Eſtate may be made, rendring Rent or Service.

Election.

And for this the Leſſor may diſtrain as long as the Leaſe doth continue; and when it is determined, have an Action of Debt for it. And during the Leaſe, he may diſtrain or bring Action of Debt at his Election. And this differeth from the Eſtate of the Tenant by Sufferance, for he holdeth always by wrong; but Tenant at Will holdeth always by right. If the Leſſor enter and determine the Will, he ſhall not hurt the Leſſee, for he ſhall have the Corn, and time to take his Goods, Co. upon Littl. 56. 551. 57. 270. 14 H. 8. 17. Littl. 14. 72. 27 H. 6. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 5. Co. 2. 24. 20 H. 6. 30.

Sect. 38. 29. What ſhall be ſaid an Eſtate at Will, or not.

If a Feoffment be made in Fee, Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for life, and no Livery of Seiſin is made upon the Deed, to perfect the Eſtate; this is but an Eſtate at Will, Co. 2. 24.

So if a Leaſe be made for years, and it is not expreſſed for what number of years; this is a Leaſe at Will, 21 H. 7. 38.

So if one Leaſe a ground to J. S. for a year, and after by conſent of the Leſſor J. S. doth continue it for many years, as the courſe is; ſome would have this a Leaſe from year to year, at the firſt years Rent by Implication; but this (it ſeems) is nothing but a Tenancy at Will.

If one enter upon anothers Land, and occupy it, and Claim onely an Eſtate at Will; this is no Eſtate at Will, but a Diſſeiſin.

So if a Bargain and Sale be made that is void, as if it be by a Corporation, and done by a wrong name, or the like; in theſe caſes there is no Eſtate at Will made, but they are Diſſeiſins, Littl. ſect. 461. Plow. 537.

By what means it is, or may be determined, or not.

This Leaſe at Will, may be determined by his Will, at whoſe Will it was made: Or if it be made indefinitely at Will, and it ſay not at whoſe will, it is at both their Wills, and either of them may determine it.

But this may be determined by the Act of God; As where the Party by whoſe will the Leaſe is held, die; but otherwiſe it is, if onely one of them, if it be at the will of two, die; or by the Act of the Law, when the Law doth make a Conſtruction upon ſome Acts to be a Determination of the Will, as if the Leſſee do make voluntary Waſte; or the Leſſor doth take the Cattle of the Leſſee upon the ground for Rent, and impound them; by this the Will is determined. And yet if a Femeſole make a Leaſe at Will, and after take a Husband; this doth not determine the Will. So if a Woman-ſole be Tenant at Will, and take a Husband; the Leaſe at Will, is not determined by this. So (it ſeems) the Law is where two Joyntenants make a Leaſe at Will, and one die; the Leaſe at Will is not ended, but the Rent ſhall go to the Survivor. So if it be made to three, and one of them die, the Leaſe is not determined. And by the Act of the Parties themſelves, it may be determined many ways; as by an Actual Countermand in writing, or by word, made by him, at whoſe Will the Eſtate is held: Or by his making of a Feoffment, or Leaſe to another of the the ſame Land; or by the Entry of the Leſſor upon the Leſſee; or by the Leſſees leaving of the poſſeſſion; theſe and other things will determine the Eſtate. But when the Determination is, be it by what means it will, no prejudice ſhall be to either Party; for if the Leſſee ſow the Land, he ſhall not be prevented of the reaping of it, unleſs he turn out himſelf by his Determination of the Will. And if there be a Rent reſerved, the other Party cannot determine the Leaſe a little before the Rent day, to prevent him of his Rent. See for all theſe things, Co. upon Littl. 55, 56, 57. 11. 18. 2. 25, 55, 59. Kelw. 65. 162. 9 H. 7. 24. 13 H. 8. 25. Co. 8. 17. 21. 6. 35. Dyer 62. 4 Hen. 6. 11. 21 Hen. 6. 37. 11 Aſſ. 14. 8 Edw. 3. 63. 8 Aſſ. 28.

An Eſtate at Sufferance (if it be any Eſtate at all) is (ſtrictly taken) where a mans Entry into Land was once lawful, or by Authority, or he had an Eſtate, which is now ended, and yet he doth continue in the Poſſeſſion of the Land: As where one is Leſſee for years, and the years are expired, or Leſſee for anothers life, who is dead, and yet the Leſſee keeps in Poſſeſſion, and keeps out him that hath next right; in this caſe, if it be an Eſtate, it is an unlawful one. And the Party in Reverſion or Remainder kept out, may have againſt him that is in Poſſeſſion, the Writ called Ad terminum qui præteriit. And yet if the Leſſor, or he in Reverſion, have once entred upon the Leſſee, then he may not have this Writ, but muſt have ſome other Remedy; nor will this Writ lie after the death of Tenant in Dower, or by the Courteſie. But if ſuch a Tenant hold himſelf in the Land, after his Term ended, unleſs it be againſt the Leſſors will, he is no wrong doer, till the Leſſor have made his Entry. But for all this, ſee Co. upon Littl. 270, 271. 7 Ed. 4. 6. 11 Aſſ. 14. 21 H. 7. 38. 22 Ed. 4. 38. 14 H. 8. 11. 37 Aſſ. 8. Brownl. Rep. 338. 30.

This Tenant by Sufferance (more largely) is any one that entreth into, and taketh the profits of my Lands by my Sufferance: For which ſee Plow. 537, 538. Co. 4. 24. Dyer 28. 57. 62. 328. Co. upon Littl. 270, 271.

Quare Ejecit infra terminum, what.

Quare ejecit infra terminum, is a Writ lying where a man maketh a Leaſe for years; and after the Leaſe made, and before it be expired, he himſelf putteth out the Leſſee; or he maketh a Feoffment, or Leaſe to another, and the Leſſee or Feoffee doth put out the Termor; in this caſe he may have this Writ againſt him, that ſo putteth him out, and therein ſhall recover his Term, and his Damages. Weſtm. 2. ch. 24. F. N. B. 197.

Ejectione Firme, what.

This Writ of Ejectione Firme, is now become one of the moſt common Actions in Uſe, and is uſed frequently for Tryal of Titles, and is the common rode that men go to the Recovery of the Poſſeſſion of thoſe Lands wherein, or whereto they have a Right or Title, the which they do in this method. They firſt enter upon the Land, and then they make a ſhort Leaſe of it to ſome Friend, and this they Seal and Deliver to him upon the Land, and then he enters, and being put out, brings this Action, and thereby recovers his Leaſe, and the Poſſeſſion of the Land. To this Action (being of every days uſe) we ſhall therefore ſpeak ſomewhat largely, and eſpecially to theſe things. 1. The Entry of the Leſſor that hath the Right. 2. The Leaſe made by him for the Tryal of the Title. 3. The Entry of the Leſſee. 4. The Entry upon him and his Ouſter and Ejectment. 5. The Proces or Pleading in the Action or Suit.

As touching the Entry of the Leſſor that hath right to the Land, there are two things conſiderable; Firſt, Whether he hath any Right or Title to the Land at all: For if it appear the Defendant to have Right to the Land, the Plaintiffs Action will fail. But this is a point too large and general to be diſcuſſed here: And yet take here theſe few things by the way; 1. That a man may have a Right or Title to that Land whereof, and wherein he hath not the poſſeſſion or property. 2. Right is where Land is taken wrongfully from another by Diſſeiſin, or the like, the Challenge or Claim of him from whom it is taken, is called a Right. 3. There is a Right of Action, which is when there is no Remedy left but an Action to recover the Land, and there is a Right of Entry, when the party claiming, may for his Relief, either enter into the Land, or have an Action to recover it; and there is a Title of Entry, which is where no wrong is done, and yet one hath a lawful courſe to enter upon the Land which another hath, but hath no Action to recover it: As where Entry is given to a man for a condition broken, upon an Escheat, the dying of a Tenant without Heir; in all which cases he must make his entry before he can bring any Action, Plow. 558. 255. Finchesley 105. Coo. 10.48. 8.153.4 The property and title of Land is made and may be gained, either by entry, as in case of occupation, where Land is granted to I. S. pur auter vie, and I. S. die, in this case he that gets first in possession shall have the Estate. By descent where a man hath Land of Inheritance, and dieth not disposing of it. By Escheat where the Owner dieth seised, without any Heir, which may be because he is a Bastard, or because he is attainted of Treason or Felony. By Conveyance, and so the property of Land is transferred, and so it is passed by ten manner of waies, or by ten kinde of Conveyances, Fine, Recovery, Feofment, Grant, Bargain and Sale, Lease, Exchange, Surrender, Release or Confirmation. Of all which see my Book of Common Assurances at large. A man may come by a property of Land by an Execution also, as by an Elegit or Extent, of which See in Execution. And Just. Dodridge 2 *part.f.*28. Coo. upon Litt. 10. 2 If he ever had a right of entry into the Land, the next thing considerable is, whether it do continue and be not taken away: for one may have a right of Action and no right of Entry to recover his Land, and he that will maintaine this Action must make himself a title under the Lessor that had a right of entry into the Land when he made the Lease; for he that makes the Lease must have a power and right of entry at the time of the Lease made, otherwise neither the entry nor the Lease will be good. We shall therefore insist a while upon this point, to shew when a Descent will take away an Entry. For the opening whereof let these things be observed.

1. That the Law doth much regard descents, which seem to adde some strength to the Title. And therefore if one wrongfully enter upon the possession of my Land, as being a Disseisor, Abator or Intruder, and put me out of my Free-hold and Inheritance by Disseisin, Abatement, &c. he may hold it against all men but me, and if I suffer him in quiet possession five years after his entry, without entry or continuall claim, and then he die in possession and this Land descend to his Heir, by this means he hath gained the right of possession against me, and I have lost my right of entry; and have no remedy left me by which to recover the Land, but by a reall Action, Writ of entry, Assise, or the like. And this Action if I bring not in the time appointed by the Statutes of Limitation, I shall lose also, and consequently my right to the Land it self, having no means to recover it, and so be without remedy, *Litt. lib.*1.*Chap.*6. Plow 47. Finchesley 120. *D. & St.*24.32 *H.*8.33.

If I be seised of Land in Fee, and disseised by another, and he continue in possession five years without entry or claim, and then die, and his Heir enter; in this case my entry is gone, and I am put to my Writ of entry Sur Disseisin for my remedy, *Litt.Sect.*385. So if the Disseisor give the Land in tayle, and the Tenant in tayle die seised, having issue, and it descend to his issue, *Litt. Sect.*386. So if I be Feoffee in Fee, or Donee in tayle, and be disseised, and the Disseisor die seised, Litt. 392. So if a Feme sole be Disseised, and after take a Husband, and the Disseisor die seised during the coverture; the entry of the wife is gone, and she is put to her Writ, *Litt.*404.

If one be disseised of Land, and the Disseisor give the same Land to another in tayle, and the Tenant in tayle hath issue and die seised of that Estate, and the issue enter; in this case the entry of the Disseisee is gone, and he is put to his Action if he will have remedy, *Litt. chap.*386.

If a Feoffee in Fee, or a Donee in tayle be upon condition, and he is Disseised, and the Disseisor die seised, the Feoffee or Donee hath lost his entry and is put to his Action, *Litt.*392. If a Feme Disseisor marry a husband and have issue and after the wife die seised, and after the husband die, and then the Heir enter, it seems the Disseisor is barred of entry, 9 *H.*7.33.*H.*6.

If an Infant Disseise another, and Alien the land, and the Alienee die seised, his Heir within age; the Disseisee is barred of his entry, but if the Disseisor within age enter upon the Heir, as he may, then may the Disseisee enter upon the Infant because the descent is defeated, *Litt.*407,408. If one Disseise another, and make a Feoffment upon condition, and the Feoffee die seised, the entry of the Disseisee is gone:

gone: but if the Diſſeiſor enter for the condition broken, then he may enter upon him, *Litt.*409.

If one Diſſeiſe a man and Ouſte his leſſee for years at once, and die ſeiſed, the Diſſeiſee cannot enter, but is put to his Action; but the Leſſee for years may enter But if it were a Diſſeiſon of a Tenant for life, *Contra. Litt.*411. If a Daughter be Diſſeiſed, and after there is a dying ſeiſed, and then the Son is born; this Deſcent will barre him of his entry, Broo 450. If a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for years, and after die ſeiſed, this will barre the Diſſeiſee of his entry *Broo.*453. If an Infant make a Feoffment, and after his full age the Feoffee die ſeiſed; or a Leſſee for life Alien, and the Alienee die ſeiſed; or a Deviſe be of Land on condition, and the Heir of the Deviſor enter and die ſeiſed; in theſe caſes the entry is gone, and they are put to their Action, 21 *H.*6.7: Litt: 96: 9 H: 6:25: If one bargain and ſell his Land, and the Bargainee enter, and after the Bargainor enter upon him and die ſeiſed, the entry of the Bargainee is gone.

If an Abator or Intruder, or one that hath but title that may have an Action, die ſeiſed, this deſcent taketh away entry, *Litt: Diſcents Plow.*47: *Litt:*96. *Coo. ſuper Litt.*238. If the Anceſtor do not die ſeiſed in Fee, or Fee-tayle, but tearm of life only, this will not take away entry, *Litt. Cap.*387. *Fincheſley.F.*120. If one be diſſeiſed of a Reverſion or Remainder only, and die ſo ſeiſed, and it deſcend to his Heir, this will not barre him that hath right, of his entry, Litt. cap. 388.390. If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant be diſſeiſed, and he Alien in Fee, and the Alienee die without Heir, and the Lord enter as in his Eſcheate, here the Diſſeiſee is not barred of his Entry, but may enter upon the Lord, for here is no deſcent to the Heir, *Fincheſley f.*120. If one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, or in Fee-tayle upon condition, and the condition be broken, and the Feoffee or Donee die ſeiſed, yet this doth not take away the entry of the Feoffor or Donor, but he may enter upon the Heir. So if the Feoffee or Donee on Condition be diſſeiſed, and before or after the condition broken the Diſſeiſee die ſeiſed; yet the entry of the Feoffor or Donor is not gone, but he may enter upon him, *Litt.*391. 22 *H.*6.11. If a Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed, and after his Heir endow the Wife of the Diſſeiſor of a third part, and ſhe enter into it; now the Diſſeiſee after the endowment is not barred of his entry into the third part, but may enter upon the Wife, *Litt:*393. If a Diſſeiſor infeoff his Father, and he die ſeiſed, and the Land deſcend upon him, the Diſſeiſee may enter upon him, notwithſtanding this deſcent, *Litt.*395. If any of the yonger ſons enter by abatement after the Fathers death, and have iſſue, and die ſeiſed, or his iſſue die ſeiſed, this will not barre the eldeſt ſon of his entry. So if one daughter enter upon all the Land deſcended, and die ſeiſed of it: but if after the eldeſt ſon have entred, or all the daughters have entred, one of the younger ſons, or one of the daughters diſſeiſe the other and die ſeiſed *Contra. Litt.*397. *Plow.*306. If an Infant have cauſe of entry and the Deſcent happen while he is within age; this will not barre him of his entry. So if the right of entry happen to a Feme covert whiles ſhe is ſo; and the dying ſeiſed be before ſhe is ſole; her entry is not loſt. So if the cauſe of entry and deſcent happen whiles a man is de non ſane memory, yet the Heir of ſuch man ſo diſſeiſed may enter. So if the Diſſeiſee be in priſon, or out of the Realm at the time of the diſſeiſon, and dying ſeiſed, their entry is preſerved for them, *Litt.*402. 403.405.21. *H.*6:17. *Litt.*437. If a Diſſeiſor enter into religion, whereby his Land comes to his Heir, this will not barre the Diſſeiſee of his entry upon his Heir, Litt. 410. If a Tenant for life be, the remainder to the right Heirs of I. S. and the Tenant for life is diſſeiſed, and a deſcent is caſt, and after I. S. die and after the Tenant for life die; in this caſe the entry of the Heir of I. S. is not gone, but he may enter, for his remainder was in Cuſtodia Legis, *Coo.*1.134. If one had intruded upon the King, and and after the King grant away the Land, and before entry or ſeiſure by the Patentee the intruder doth die ſeiſed, this will not barre the entry of the Patentee, *Dyer.*266. Out of all which it appeareth that if one man do wrongfully enter upon another mans poſſeſſion, and put the right Owner of the Freehold and Inheritance from it, he doth thereby get the Freehold and Inheritance by Diſſeiſin, and he may hold it againſt all men but the Diſſeiſee. And if ſuch a Diſſeiſor or Abator having having the poſſeſſion five years after the Diſſeiſin or abatement, die in poſſeſſion and the Land deſcend to his Heir, by this the Heir hath gained the poſſeſſion of the Land againſt him that hath right untill he can recover it by a fit reall Action. And if this be not brought within 60 years after the Diſſeiſin or abatement, the right Owner doth loſe his right for ever. But then that deſcent which taketh away entry, muſt be a deſcent and not a ſucceſſion; as if a Corporation diſſeiſe me, and there be tweuty ſucceſſions, this will not hurt me. And this deſcent muſt be ſuch as hath in it theſe things.

1 It muſt be a dying ſeiſed of an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple or Fee tayle, and not for life only.

2 It muſt be a dying ſeiſed of the poſſeſſion and Franktenement alſo; and not of a Reverſion or Remainder only. 3 He that dieth ſeiſed, and he that hath right of entry do claim by ſeverall Titles, and not by the ſame Title

4 The Diſſeiſin and deſcent muſt be in time of peace, for if it be in time of war, it doth not prejudice to him that hath right.

5 The Diſſeiſor or Abator muſt have the quiet poſſeſſion of the Land five years before the deſcent without any entry or continuall claim, made by him that hath the right of entry or title.

6 He that hath the right of entry is of full age infra quatuor Maria, of ſound memory, out of priſon, and ſole; for if the party be within age, beyond ſea, non Compos mentis in priſon, or a Feme covert at the time of his deſcent, it will not Bar.

7 But herein the whole time from the Diſſeiſin to the deſcent caſt is conſiderable; for if the perſon be not priviledged at all times, the deſcent bindes: As if a Feme covert be Diſſeiſed, and the husband dieth, and ſhe take a new husband, and then the deſcent is caſt: or one ultra mare is diſſeiſed, and he return into England, and then goeth beyond ſea again, and then a deſcent is caſt, in theſe caſes the deſcent will bar the entry becauſe of the interim, 9 H. 7. 24. Dyer. 143. Co. upon Lit. Deſcent. Stat. 32. H. 8. 33.

If one have divers children, and the eldeſt being a Baſtard doth enter after his fathers death, and quietly hold the Land without re-entry or claim all his life time, and hath iſſue, and dieth ſeiſed, and the iſſue enter, in this caſe the Action and Entry both of the mulier are gone, and he is without remedy.

So if one have two Daughters, one a Baſtard, they divide, and the Baſtard die ſeiſed of her part, and her iſſue enter, the other Daughter is without remedy. Litt. ſect. 401. 499. 500.

An entry alſo may be gone by lapſe of time, and therefore if the right or title of entry did firſt accrue to a perſon more then twenty years ſince, and he were at that time of full age, not a Feme covert, nor in priſon, nor beyond the ſeas, or Non Compos mentis; and if he were ſo, and have not made his entry within ten years after his full age, diſcoverture, coming, of ſound mind, enlargement out of priſon, coming into the Realm or death; the entry is gone and the party barred thereof for ever, 21. Jac. 16.

Entry good or not. Sect. 3. Entry of one gives advantage to another.

Now having ſhewed where this entry is given, we are to ſhew how it muſt be made, and when it is well made or not; for if it he not well made, this Action is not maintainable. And for the clearing of this point, take theſe rules and caſes following.

1 This entry is to be made by the party that hath right.

2 It is a purpoſed going into or ſetting his foot upon the Land as upon his own Land, Co. upon Lstt. 243. Dyer. 337.

3 This may be done by the party himſelf that hath right to enter, or by his Attorney by warrant from him, or by another to his uſe, and if it be done by Attorney he muſt have a good authority, and ſee he do duely purſue it, Co. on Lit. 257. 258.

4 The Leſſor muſt have a right of entry; for if the right of entry be taken away the Leaſe is not good. And for this ſee the caſe before.

5 He or one of them at leaſt that hath the right, or one for him muſt make the entry. But for the opening of this branch, theſe things muſt be known.

1 That

1 That one Joyntenant, Tenant in Common or Coparcener having right to enter may if he will, enter for all the reſt.

2. If ſuch a perſon enter generally, or for or in the name of himſelf and the reſt, and the reſt do not after diſagree to it, this is a good entry for himſelf and the reſt. And therefore if one have iſſue a ſon and daughter by one venter, and a ſon by another, and being ſeiſed of Capite-Land deviſe all to the youngeſt ſon, and die, and he enter into all, this entry ſhall avail the eldeſt ſon to put him in poſſeſſion of the third part, Adjudg. Smals Caſe: M. 14 Jac. Co.B. But if he enter ſpecially to his own uſe; as if two have right of Entry, and one of them enter, and make a Feoffment of all the Land with warranty; this Entry will not help the other. So if the other do after diſagree to it, he ſhall have no advantage by it, *Lit.*160.Dyer. 53.128.*Coo.upon Litt.*243. 3: If the Tenant for life enter he in remainder may take advantage by it, 4 *H.*7.9.*Dyer.*53.4. By the entry of the husband into that Land he claimeth in right of his wife, the Freehold and poſſeſſion is in the wife, Noy 97.

5. When the entry is not lawfull, the Entry of one will not advantage another, 1 *H.*6.5. 8 *H.*6.16.31 *Aſſ.*33.

4. The Entry into one part may be ſufficient to gain the poſſeſſion of the reſt of the Land. But for the further opening of this branch theſe caſes muſt be laid down; 1. If a man have right to enter into Lands or Tenements in divers Villages within one County accrewed to him at one, or at ſeveral times, and he enter upon one part of it in one Village in the name of all the reſt, to which he hath right to enter within all the Villages of that County; By this he hath gotten the poſſeſſion of the whole, *Litt.Sect.*417. *Dyer.*337.227. *Coo.upon Litt.*252. 9 *H.*7.25. And yet ſome make a difference here, and grant this only where an Eſtate is to veſt, as where the Free-hold in Law is in one, as in an Heir by deſcent, and the poſſeſſion is in no man, nor no Eſtate to be diveſted, that here only entry into part reduceth all into poſſeſſion: And therefore, that if the Lord be to enter for a mortmain, or the Feoffor for a condition broken or the diſſeiſee upon a Diſſeiſin, and he enter upon part for all; that this is not ſufficient to reduce all. But I take it the experience is otherwiſe, however therefore it is ſafeſt to enter upon every part of the Land, *Coo. upon Litt.*15:6.252. 2. If three ſeveral men ſeverally diſſeiſe one of three Acres in one County, and he enter into one of them in the name of all the three Acres, this is good only for that he doth enter upon, and will not reduce them all in poſſeſſion. And yet if theſe three Acres come after the Diſſeiſin into one mans poſſeſſion, there perhaps an Entry upon one may reduce all. But if one man diſſeiſe me of three Acres in one County at ſeveral times; My Entry into one of them in the name of all the reſt will reduce them all, 14. & 15. *Eliz. Earl of Arundels Caſe. Coo.upon Litt:*152.9 *H.*7.25. But for Land that lies in ſeveral Counties there muſt be Entries made in every County, 4 *H.*7.25. *Litt:*417. 3. If one man diſſeiſe me of three Acres, and make a Leaſe thereof to three perſons for life, and I enter upon one of them in one mans poſſeſſion in the name of all the reſt, this will reduce that Acre only, and is not good for the reſt. And if one diſſeiſe me of three Acres lying in three Villages in one County, and he levy a Fine of the Acre in one Village, and after I enter into one of the other Acres in the name of all the three Acres; this doth not reduce the Acre whereof the Fine was levied, without a ſpecial Entry into it. *Dyer.*337. But if Leaſes were made for years of three Acres and gotten by Diſſeiſin to ſeveral Tenants, and Entry into one in the name of the reſt will recontinue, and reveſt all the three Acres, *Coo. upon Litt.*252. And ſo à fortiori, where three Acres are in the poſſeſſion of three men, and I having right to them enter into one of them in the name of them all, this will reduce all the three Acres: The courſe is in the caſes where Entrie is needfull upon every parcel, as where Leſſees claim by ſeveral Titles, &c: to enter upon every parcel, and leave a friend upon it to keep the poſſeſſion, and then to ſeal the Leaſe upon the principal parcel where his laſt Entry is made, and then the Leſſee doth enter upon all, and the men depart; for if he enter in one part only, and ſeal a Leaſe of the whole, this is not good for the reſt, *M.*8.Jac.Curia. But otherwiſe it is where Entry into a part is good for all, as where a diſſeiſor hath made ſeveral Leaſes for years yeats, there the Diſſeiſee doth enter into any part in the name of all, and ſeal a leaſe of all, and this is good for all. And if the leſſees do continue in the poſſeſsion, this is an Ouſter upon which the Leſſee may have an Ejectione Firme, Curia Paſch 9 Jac. B. R. Lovets Caſe. 4. If I enfeoffe one of one Acre of ground upon condition, and enfeoffe him of another Acre upon condition, both Acres in one County, and both conditions are broken; in this caſe an Entry into one Acre in the name of both is not good to reduce both. 5. The entry into parts muſt be in the name of all. For if one that is diſſeiſed of two Acres in one County, enter generally into one of them without ſaying in the name of both; this will only reveſt that Acre wherein the Entrie is made, 5 H. 7: 7. Coo. ſuper Litt. 252. And therefore if Lands in one County be in the occupation of A. B. and C. and I have right to them, and I enter into one of them generally, and do not declare my intent to reduce all; it is ſaid this is a good Entry only for that one Acre wherein I put my Foot, Per Juſtice Hutton at Sarum Aſſiſes, 22 Jac. If one reſtrain his own Entry, and make it ſpecial, and ſay that it ſhall be to that Acre only, wherein he puts his foot, in this caſe it reduceth the poſſeſſion of no more but of that part, Coo. upon Litt. 15: 6. If a Leaſe be made to A. and delivered to B. to the uſe of A. and B. enter to the uſe of A. and after is ouſted, A. may bring this Action upon the Entry, P. 44. Eliz. B: R. Purrel verſ: Biſhop.

Condition Broken

Leaſe to try the Title.

Sect. 5.

And now having done with the matter of Entry of the Leſſor, we are to ſpeak of Leaſes; for to maintain this Action a good Leaſe muſt be ſhewed forth. For the opening of the learning thereof, take theſe Obſervations. 1. The Leaſe to try the Title muſt be well made, ſealed and delivered as other Deeds and Leaſes are to be done. For this See my Book of Common Aſſurances, Chap. 4. & 14. 2. The Leaſe and Entry may be made by the party Leſſor himſelf, if he be of full age, and not a feme covert, or by his Attorney by a Letter of Attorney thus. The Leſſor may ſeal and ſign the Leaſe, and ſeal and deliver a Letter of Attorney at the ſame time to ſome friend, and in this he muſt recite the Leaſe and give the Attorney power to enter into the Land, and there to deliver the Leaſe to the Leſſee as his Deed, and then the Attorney muſt do it in ſuch ſort as the Leſſor himſelf is to do it, and he muſt not deliver it till he come to the Land. 3. The Leaſe muſt be delivered upon the Land; For if the Leſſor ſeal and deliver the Leaſe before his Entry, it is void.

And for this cauſe, if a wife and I. S. be Jointenants in Fee, and being ouſted they make a Leaſe to try the Title, and I. S. and the husband enter and deliver the Leaſe upon the Land, or the wife after and before the ouſter deliver the Leaſe out of the Land, this is not a good Leaſe by the wife. But if the husband and wife make a leaſe and Letter of Attorney to enter and deliver it upon the Land, this may be good, Trin. 9. Jac. B. R. Burnel and Merediths Caſe. A Copie-holder may make a Leaſe for a year without licenſe to try the Title: So may a Tenant in common make a Leaſe of his part for this end. See more Brownl. 1 part. 129.

If a Leaſe be made of white Acre to B: from off the Land, and in the Leaſe is a Letter of Attorney to a ſtranger to deliver it as his Deed upon the Land, but the Leaſe is not delivered, this is not a good Authority, B. R. 4 Car. If A. Leaſe his Land to B: from off the Land, and ſeal and deliver it as his Deed off from the Land, C. being then in the Land, by Diſſeiſin, and after this the Attorney that hath power by another Deed to deliver it as his Deed upon the Land doth ſo, this is not a good Leaſe to maintain an Ejectione firme, Curia B. R.

Authoritie Verball in writing.

A woman Covert, or an Infant, cannot make a Letter of Attorney to ſeal a Leaſe to try a Title, as a man of full age may do; but the husband alone may make a leaſe of his wives Land, Per Juſt. Turner at Lent Aſſiſes, 23 Car. And ſome hold that where a Letter of Attorney may be made, that this power may be given and executed by paroll without writing, Juſt. Jones, 5 Car. If the Declaration be of a Leaſe made by husband and wife, and it is made by Letter of Attorney from the husband and wife; this is not good. But if he declare in this caſe upon a Leaſe made only by the husband, it is good. Brownl. 2 part. 248.

If one that hath right to land enter & make a leaſe for years to one to try the Title, and and the Tenant continue in poſſeſſion, and then he that hath right doth enter and make another Leaſe to another, the firſt Leaſe continuing, and the ancient Tenant continuing in poſſeſſion, the ſecond Leſſee cannot maintain this Action upon this Leaſe, Curia Brownl: 1 part. 128. 129. 130. 134.

Entry of the Leſſee. Entry, General or Special.

3. The next thing is the Entry of the Leſſee, for unleſs it be proved that the Leſſee after the Leaſe made, did enter, this Action will not be maintainable: wherein theſe things are to be known; 1 He muſt make ſuch an Entry, as to gain the poſſeſſion, for he cannot be ejected out of the poſſeſſion of that wherein by Law he was never in the poſſeſſion. 2. His poſſeſſion muſt continue, and not be removed. Brownl. 1 part 130.

Ejectment. Sect. 6.

4. The next thing to be weighed is the ouſter and Ejectment of the Leſſee, for if it do not appear that the Defendant in the Action did out and Eject the Leſſee, this Action will fail. For this then obſerve theſe caſes; 1, The ouſter muſt be real and involuntary: for if one enter by licenſe and agreement of the Leſſee, and (as ſome ſay) of the Leſſor; this is no Ejectment in which the Action will lie. 2. The ouſter ſhall be taken largely againſt the Ejector: It is ſaid therefore, that if A Leaſe two Acres to B, and C enter upon one of them, that this is an ouſter out of both Acres, Juſtice Hutton at Sarum Aſſiſes, 22 Jac. Quære of this. 3. If a woman do enter and continue in poſſeſſion, and after the husband cohabit with her, he is no Ejector, unleſs he agree to it; and therefore in this caſe the Action is to be brought againſt them both. But if the husband agree to it, the Action is to be brought againſt him alone. And yet a Leaſe was made to try a Title of a houſe, and the Leſſees enter into it; and the wife of the party that is in poſſeſſion out him, and ſhut the door, and after the husband cometh and entreth in the houſe, and the Action was brought againſt the husband alone, and ruled to be good, M. 44. 45. Eliz: B. R. Clent verſ. Claſſy. 4. The continuance of the ſame Tenant in poſſeſſion that was in at the time of ſealing of the Leaſe, is an Ejectment by him. 5. The Entry of a man upon the Land, or the putting in of a beaſt into the Land after the ſealing and delivery of the Leaſe, is an Ejectment. 6. If a Leaſe be made to try the Title, and the ſervants of the former poſſeſſor enter with their Maſters Carts to do their ordinary buſineſs, and the Action is brought againſt the Maſter, it is maintainable without proof of the Maſters Commandment for this Entry, P. 1. Car. B. R. Cally verſ. Fiſh. 7. A Tenant in common may by an actuall Ejectment be an Ejector to, and ſued by his companion: The thing in Leaſe was two houſes, I S was in poſſeſſion of one of them, and I D in the poſſeſſion of the other, and the Leaſe was ſealed in the houſe of I S and the Action was brought againſt I D only, the principal Ejector not ſued, and the Plaintiff was forced to be non-ſute. Per Juſt. Aske at Summer Aſſiſes at Glo. 1650. 8. A ſervant that doth dwell with the pretended owner is a ſufficient Ejector, Brownl. 1 part 143.

Pleading. Sect. 7.

5, The laſt thing is the Proceſs and pleading; for, admitting a good power and form of Entry, a Leaſe duly made and executed, an Entry and Ejectment upon the Leaſe, yet there may be in the proceedings in the Action fatal errours. For this then take notice. 1. This writ lyeth not in every cauſe, or for any thing, for it lieth not upon a Leaſe of a ſtock of Cattel, nor upon a Leaſe of a Summ of money, in modo decimandi; nor of a water-courſe, M. 6. Jac. B. R. Challoner, verſ. Moor. But it lieth of a Mannor, Houſe, Land, Medow, Paſture, Tithe, or ſuch like thing, Co. 11. 25: It lieth de pomario. M: 43. 44. Eliz B. R Wright verſ. Wheatly. So it lieth de Coquina, Trin. 2. Jac. Co. B. So alſo de Cubiculo. It lieth alſo of a Colemine, P. 5. Jac. B. R. Comin, verſ. Wheatly. It lieth alſo of a Bailery, of Salt Hill. 6. Jac. B. R. Saunders Caſe. It is not good for a Courſe of water, nor for Common of paſture nor a ſheep gate. But it is good for 10 acres of peaſe. Brownl: 1. part 129. 146. 149. 150. 2. The writ muſt ſet forth the thing in certain for quantity and quality, as one Meſſuage, two Cottages. 7 Acre ter. 4 Acr: prati. 5 Acr: paſture, and ſo of Tithes. And it is not ſufficient to ſay de Tenemento, or de uno repoſitorio, or of Meſſuage and the Lands thereunto belonging, or of ſo much of a Meſſuage in the occupation of I S as doth ſtand upon the bank, &c. or of one cloſe called D containing 3 Acres to a Meſuage belonging, or the like, for this is uncertain.

Error

certain. And yet an Ejectione Firme of a Gate-houſe one Acre parcel of a Manner, a Moity, or a third part of a Mannor, or of a room of a houſe certainly deſcribed, is good, Co. 11, 59. 25. Dyer 84. 305. F. N. B. 220. Finch. 107. Paſch. 17. Car. B. R. Trin. 17. Car.

3. The Leaſe and the Declaration upon it muſt agree. If a Feme Covert, and A be Jointenants in Fee, and A and her husband, and the other Jointenant make a Leaſe for years by Deed indented, and the husband and A enter, and deliver his Leaſe upon the Land, and the Leſſee declare upon a Leaſe from them three, this is nought. 9 Jac. B. R. Curia.

If the Leaſe be for ninety years, if three lives ſo long live, and the Declaration be upon a Leaſe for ninety years without limitation, this is nought, Per Iuſt: Turner at Lent Aſſiſes 23, Car.

CHAP. LXXX.

Of an Eſtoppel.

1 Eſtoppel what.

IT is where a man is concluded and barred, by ſome thing he hath ſaid or done, to ſpeak and make uſe of the truth for his own advantage: where a mans mouth is ſtopt, and his hands bound that now he cannot ſay or doe, that which otherwiſe he might have ſaid or done: And this may be in divers things, and by divers means: As in pleading, or in Deeds and writings under mens hands; when they ſhall aſſent to or confeſs any thing therein that is not true, or in their own diſadvantage, now they are in many of theſe caſes afterwards forbidden to ſay the contraty, if they have need for their advantage: ſo where a man hath election by law: to have one of two things, and he make his choyce of one of them; or to ſue one of two perſons and he ſue one; or to have one of two remedies for the recovery of a thing and he make his choice: now in all theſe caſes, he is concluded ever after to take, or demand, or uſe the other. And ſome of theſe Eſtoppells are by matter of Record. Some by matter in writing, and ſome of matter by fact; of which there are infinite examples: ſome of which ſee below. And ſee Election, and Acceptance, and in other titles where many caſes of Eſtoppell will fall out. Co. 2. 4. 3. 88. Plow. 397.

The Kinds.

2 Where it may be or not.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe things.

1. Note that by a bare ſuppoſall or unneceſſary recitall, or by words or ſayings of another partie, an Eſtoppell ſhall never be produced. 35 H. 6. 33. 3 H. 6. 15. 9 H. 6. 8. for which ſee examples below. So when it appears in the very Deed that the Grantor had no power to grant, Co. 1. 155. Dier. 244. So when it enures by way of paſſing an Intereſt. Co. 6. 15. So when it is to cover wickedneſs and defeate an Act of Parliament. Co. 5. 64. For Eſtoppells are odious in law. Co. upon Litt. 365. See divers rules for Eſtoppels in Co. upon Litt. 352.

By matter of Record.

2. A Record is of that high and excellent nature that the Law will not admit any deniall of that which is apparently within the Record. But that which the parties doe ſay and do there in the Law, doth give great heed unto. And therefore if the Daughter and right Heir will admit a Baſtard of her Fathers

Fathers, or any other to ſue a Livery out of the Kings hand with her; by this means the Baſtard, or other, will get the one half of the Land, and the right Heir ſhall never be afterward received to ſay the Baſtard is not Heir; becauſe ſhe hath allowed the contrary to be true by the Record.

So if two Joyntenants be that do hold in capite, and one Releaſe to the other, and yet after they both Reſpite Homage together in the Exchequer: Now hereby the other Joyntenant hath gained his Moyety again of the Land, and the other Joyntenant ſhall not be received to ſay the contrary.

So if one plead the Kings pardon for his Alienation without Licence, and rei veritat' the Land is not held in capite; now he cannot afterwards ſay, that it is not held in capite, *Co.*7. 1. 8. 16. Plow. 396. Dyer 202. 33 *H.*6. 7. Doct. & Stud. 33. Littl. Sect. 175. Broo. 306. Co. ſuper Littl. 122. Crompt. Juriſd. 49: F. N. B. 97.

3. If one acknowledge upon Record, to hold of his Lord by more ſervices then he doth; he is barred to ſay after that he holdeth by leſs, though it be true.

So if one plead a Releaſe or a Pardon to an offence, he ſhall not ſay after, he is not guilty of the offence, Stamf. 555. 22 Edw. 4. 39. 9 Hen. 4: 8. 11 *H.*4. 69.

If a Tenant in Tail, Leaſe for life, and die, and the Tenant for life is impleaded, and he doth vouch the Iſſue in Tail, and he do enter into the Warranty generally; now the Iſſue is concluded and cannot afterward bring any Formedon to recover this Land. But if he had entred into the Warranty ſpecially, contrà. Tenant in Tail Warranty.

4. If the Husband do diſcontinue the Wives Land, and die, and after his death ſhe brings a Writ of Dower, and doth recover againſt the Diſcontinuee; now by this ſhe is concluded to demand the whole Land, as otherwiſe ſhe might, Co. 4. 5. Dower.

5. If A. and M. his Wife, by the name of A. and B. levy a Fine, ſhe ſhall not avoid it, and ſay againſt the Record, her name is not B. F.N.B. 97. Tenant in Tail Recovery.

If a Tenant in Tail ſuffer a Recovery that his Iſſues may avoid; yet he himſelf is concluded by it, and cannot demand the Land againſt his Recovery, Co. 3. 3. 1. 9.

6. If a Tenant in Tail make a Feoffment, or be diſſeiſſed, and levy a Fine with Proclamations to a ſtranger, the Iſſues of the Tenant in Tail are barred for ever of the Land. Tenant in Tail Fine.

So if an Iſſue in Tail before his Right diſcended, in the life of his Anceſtor, levy a Fine of the Land, whereof he hath poſſibility, and the Proclamation be paſſed; this will bar the Iſſues by Concluſion, Co 3.944.

If Lands be conveyed to a Woman in Tail, within the Statute of the eleventh of Henry the Seventh, and her Husband die, and their Iſſue levy a Fine to a ſtranger, and after the Woman diſcontinue within the Statute, and forfeit: Now the Iſſue by the Fine is eſtopped that he cannot enter; but perhaps the Conuſee may. See more of theſe matters in Fines and Recoveries. And how a Leaſe by a Fine may be good by Eſtoppel, *Co.*4. 53. *Plow.*434. 21 *H.*7. 24. *Co.*4. 71.

7. If one bargain and ſell Land to another, and before Inrollment levy a Fine of it to the Bargainee. Now the Bargainee muſt take by the Fine, and cannot take by the Deed inrolled.

8. If one in pleading doth confeſs the thing that he is charged with, or accuſed for; he is barred now of denial of it afterwards, although it be not true he hath confeſſed: As if one endited of Treſpaſs, confeſs it, and after be ſued in an Action of Treſpaſs for the ſame Treſpaſs; he is concluded now to plead not guilty by his Confeſſion before. By Confeſſion, or Nihil dicit.

9. If the Defendant after Appearance and Declaration, do not plead to the Action, or maintain his Plea, but maketh default, then Judgment ſhall be given againſt him; and this will be peremptory, and as great an Eſtoppel to him as a Confeſſion.

But where one ſhall be eſtopped by matter of pleading, and where not. See the Books at large, Dyer 287. 21 *H.*7. 24.

10. If a Plaintiff or Defendant be barred in any Sute upon a Demurrer, or Verdict; they are concluded to begin any new Sute, or to move again, but in ſpecial Caſes, *Co.*6. 7. 44.

Judgment. 11. If one have a Judgment for a thing already in a Court of Record, he is barred to begin a Sute again for the ſame thing, for which he hath a Judgment, Co. 6. 45. Trin. 3 Jac. Brown & Wolſton.

So Judgment againſt another for the ſame cauſe, ſo that it be ſuch a cauſe as wherein Damages be to be recovered.

If a Tenant for life make a void Leaſe for life, and the Leſſee make a Leaſe at Will, and the Tenant for life levieth a Fine to the Tenant at Will: Now both theſe parties are eſtopped to ſay againſt this Fine, Quod partes ad finem nihil habuerunt, *Co.*2. 55.

Fine. If a Precipe be brought againſt one for Land, and he ſince the Statute of Conjunctis Feoffatis, plead Joyntenancy with another by Fine; and now by this the other may take advantage, and he is eſtopped to ſay the contrary at another time, Plow. 6.

12. If a Feoffment be made to two and their Heirs, and after the Feoffor levies a Fine to them two, and the Heirs of one of them: Now this is no Eſtoppel to the other to demand Fee-ſimple according to the Deed, for the Fine doth enure as a Releaſe, Co. 6.7.44. *Co.*2.74. 6 R. 2.

13. If a Lord Paramount diſtrain the Leſſee of his Tenant, and he in pleading ſay, he holdeth for ten years by a Leaſe from the Tenant, when in truth it is by a Leaſe for twenty years: Now he is not eſtopped hereby to demand his Term of twenty years, Dyer 289.

14. If a Fine be levied Sur Releaſe onely, a man may ſay, that the Conuſee had nothing at the time of the Fine levied in the Land, and to Letters Pattents, one may ſay that nothing was granted by them; and in this caſe there is no Eſtoppel, Co. 3.

15. Though in all Perſonal Actions Regularly, when one is barred by Judgment, Confeſſion, Verdict, &c. He is barred for ever (as above) yet in Real Actions he is not ſo concluded; for if he be barred in a Real Action, he may have another Real Action upon the ſame cauſe, ſo it be an Action of a higher nature, as he may have.

So alſo where the Plaintiff hath miſtaken his Action onely, as hath brought a Formedon in Remainder for a form in Reverſion, or the like, and the Defendant doth plead to the Action of the Writ, ſuch an Action brought without Judgment upon Verdict or Demurrer, or where the Plaintiff is Non-ſuit, or the Plea be diſcontinued will not conclude him, but he may bring the ſame Action again.

So where the Plea is to the Writ onely in Abatement of that, and that be abated by Judgment, or a Demurrer, or Verdict; yet there he is not eſtopped, but may have the ſame Writ again.

So if the Sute be onely diſcontinued, or the Plaintiff be Nonſute; in this caſe he is not barred to begin the ſame Sute again: But if the Plaintiff enter a Retraxit, he is barred for ever, vide Retraxit. F. N. B. 48.

16. If one have uſed as Adminiſtrator, and it have been put in Iſſue, and found againſt him; yet he is not barred by this to ſue as Executor, *Co.*5. 32. Though a Judg-

Judgment given for the ſame thing againſt the ſame perſon or another, is an Eſtoppel for the ſuing again upon the ſame cauſe (as before,) yet if the ſame Judgment be reverſed that was at firſt, or it were for ſome thing elſe, or not for all, that which is in the new Sute; in this caſe the Party is not eſtopped. So where the Judgment is not in a Court of Record, Co. 6. 45.

17. If a Woman covert levy a Fine as a Feme-ſole, her Husband is not eſtopped, but may avoid it by Entry or Claim for him, his wife, and her Heirs without any Writ of Error.

So if J. S. with another mans wife, by the name of J. S. and Jean his wife levy a Fine of the Land of the wife, the right Husband may avoid it ſo, but it ſeems the wife is eſtopped, Keble Whites caſe, Trin. 7 Jac. Co. 8.

18. One ſhall not be eſtopped to ſay any thing againſt that which before he hath ſaid in a Writ, or Court, as in a Formedon, 21 H. 7. 24.

19. If one Claim by Diſcent from J. S. yet in another Formedon he may Claim from J. D. but one ſhall be eſtopped to ſay any thing contained in his Plea, in Bar, or Replication; yea, though the Plaintiff be afterwards Nonſute.

20. If the King Licence to another, to alien the manner of Dole, which is held of him Ut dicitur; this is not any Eſtoppel to him to whom the Licence is made to ſay, the Land is not held of the King, for it is no preciſe Affirmance of the Tenure, Plow. 398.

Hitherto of Eſtoppels by Records, now by Deeds.

1. If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, take a Leaſe of the ſame Land from a ſtranger by Deed indented, now during the Term (and no longer,) this is an Eſtoppel to him, and he cannot to avoid it, ſay it was his own; and if there were any Rent reſerved, he muſt pay it alſo to the Leſſor, during the Term. So if one make a Leaſe of Land by Deed indented, and at that time he had nothing in the Land, but after he purchaſe it, or it doth diſcend to him; this is a good Leaſe by Concluſion, contrà in both caſes, if it were by Deed Poll. Co. 4. 53. Dyer 256. Plow. 344. 14 H. 6. 23. 4 H. 7. 14. Plow. 434. 1. By Matter in Writing.

2. If two men do make an Exchange by word, and after before Entry, by either of them, they make Indentures of the Land, each to other; now it ſeems they are bound by theſe Indentures, and they ſhall have ſuch Eſtate as doth paſs by the Indentures, and not by the Exchange, Perk. ſect. 264. Plow. 433.

3. If one Leaſe to one man for eighty years, and after make another Leaſe by Deed indented, to another for the ſame time; this ſecond Leaſe is good by Eſtoppel onely; and if the firſt do determine by Surrender or Forfeiture, or the like, the ſecond Leſſee ſhall have it; whereas otherwiſe, if it were, by Deed Poll, the ſecond Leaſe were void, Co. 1. 155.

4. If a Leſſee for thirty years of Land, aſſign it over, and after make a Leaſe for ſix years by Deed indented, and then repurchaſe the Leaſe again: Now this Leaſe for ſix years ſhall be good againſt him by Eſtoppel, and he cannot avoid it, Co. 5. 53.

5. If one by Deed indented, make a Partition of Land with another that hath nothing to do in the Land; by this he hath gotten a part of the Land, and the other is concluded to ſay ought againſt it, Broo. 306.

6. If one make a Defeaſance by Indenture of a Deed; now he is hereby eſtopped to ſay, that there is no ſuch Deed, Plow. 397. But if there be any thing put in the Deed by way of Recital, he is not concluded to gainſay that, Broo. Eſtoppel 5.

7. If one that hath nothing in Land make a Leaſe of it by Indenture, rendring Rent, the Leſſee is eſtopped to ſay, that the Leſſor had nothing in the Land at the time time of the Leaſe made, and ſo by this cannot Bar in an Action of Debt; but if it were in a Deed Poll, he might, Littl.

8. If the Husband make a Feoffment of the Land of the Wife, and the Feoffee make a Leaſe to the Husband and Wife for life or years, and the Husband commit Waſte, and the Leſſor brings an Action of Waſte; now the Husband is eſtopped to ſay that the Leſſor hath no Reverſion (as the truth is) for it is in the Wife, Littl. ſect. 666, 667.

9. If one have a Rent common, or the like, by Preſcription, and take a Pattent from the King, or Deed from a common perſon for it; now by this he is concluded ever after to Claim it by Preſcription, 21 *H.*7. 5.

10. If one in conſideration of one thouſand pound, bargain and ſell Land, and rei veritate no ſuch money was paid; yet this being expreſſed upon the Deed of Bargain and Sale, and a Receipt of the money; the Bargainor, it ſeems, is concluded to ſay the contrary, Dyer 169.

11. If one do make a Deed per dures, and after when he is at large, he do make a Defeſonis to it, it ſeems, he is eſtopped to ſay it was per dures, Broo. Def. 17. If one by the name of J. S. of W. binde himſelf in an Obligation, or Bill, or the like: Now he is concluded by this, and he cannot ſay that his name is otherwiſe, or that he is of another place, and ſo avoid his Deed; for which ſee 10 *H.*6.8. 3 *H.*6.25. 22 *H.*6. 53.

So where a Condition of an Obligation is in the particularity, as to infeoff J. S. of the Manor of J. or to pay ſuch a ſum as J. S. doth ſtand bound by Obligation to pay to W. S, or to ſtand to the ſentence of M. S. in a matter of Tithes, in Queſtion between them, there the Obligor is eſtopped to deny any of theſe things, which in the Condition of the Obligation he did grant: But if the Condition be in the generality, as to infeoff one of all his Lands in B. or to the Nonſute in all Actions; here he is not concluded, but may ſay, That he hath no Land there, or that there be no Actions depending, and the like, Dyer 196. 18 Edw. 4. 21 *Ed.*4. 54.

12. If a Condition be to perform an Indenture, the Obligor is eſtopped to ſay, there is no ſuch Indenture, 28 H 6. 7. Bro. Rep. 57.

13. If one binde himſelf by the Condition of an Obligation, to give the third part of his Goods, which his Father Deviſed to him, he is eſtopped to ſay, in pleading gave him none, 8 Jac. Co. B.

14. If one Recite in the Condition of an Obligation where A. doth Demiſe to B. and B to the Obligor. If now the Obligee ſhall hold it quietly, &c. now the Obligor is eſtopped to ſay A. did not Demiſe to B.

So if it be a Condition to pay the Rent reſerved on ſuch a Leaſe, he cannot ſay no ſuch Rent, Trin. 9 Jac. Sherleys caſe.

15. If one be bound to perform the Award made by J. S. he is eſtopped to ſay J. S. Nullum fecit arbitrium King & Percival. B.R. Hil. 14 Jac.

16. If the Condition of an Obligation be, That the Obligor ſhall grant to the Obligee all the Lands mentioned in certain Indentures, bearing date with the Obligation, the Obligor cannot plead no ſuch Indentures; but if the Condition were to infeoff the Obligee of all his Land in S. Contrà per totam Curiam, M. 18 Jac. B. R: Sur. 28 *H.*6. 7. 21 *Ed.*4. 4,54.

So if A. be bound to B. in one hundred pound with Condition that A. before Michaelmas ſhall ſeal a Leaſe to B. under the Covenant contained in an Indenture, bearing date, &c. A. cannot plead that there is no ſuch Indenture. But if the Tenant do confeſs by Deed indented, That he holdeth by other Services, then he doth of his Lord; it ſeems this is no Eſtoppel, neither ſhall the Services be increaſed hereby, 39 *Aſſ. pl.*3.

17. If the Lord by Deed indented, reciting, that whereas his Tenant holdeth of him by ſuch and ſuch Services (otherwiſe then he doth hold by) doth confirm to his Tenant (ſaving his Services) this is no Eſtoppel to the Tenant, Plow. 136. 35 *H.*6. 33.

18. If

18. If a Leſſee for life, and he in Reverſion make a Feoffment, by Deed indented; this ſhall not enure by way of Eſtoppel, becauſe it doth enure by way of paſſing an Intereſt; and whereſoever any Intereſt paſſeth from a man, there a Deed ſhall never work by way of Eſtoppel againſt him. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 45.

19. If a Husband make a Feoffment of his Wives Land, and after the Feoffee make a Leaſe to the Husband and Wife for life or years; this is no Eſtoppel to the Wife, after her Husbands death, but ſhe ſhall be remitted to her firſt Eſtate, Littl. ſect. 667. Remitter.

20. If A. Leſſee for life of B. make a Leaſe for years by Deed indented, and after purchaſe the Reverſion in Fee, and B. dieth; in this caſe A. is not eſtopped to avoid his own Leaſe, by Confeſſion and Avoidance: But if A. had nothing in the Land, and made a Leaſe for years ſo, and after purchaſe the Land contra, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 47.

21. If one take a Leaſe of the Herbage of his Land, and not of the Land it ſelf by Deed indented; this is no Eſtoppel, Co. Idem.

22. If one by Deed call himſelf J. S. Heir of W. S. Now he is not hereby concluded, but in another caſe he may deny himſelf to be Heir of W. S. for it was a ſuperfluous Addition, 35 *H.*6. 33.

23. If one Recite, that whereas he is ſeiſed of the Manor of W. he doth after grant a Rent-charge out of it: Now this Recital in the Deed, ſhall not prejudice him at another time, but he may ſay he is not ſeiſed of the Manor of W. for theſe Recitals are not material, Plow. 18. 397. 33 *H.*6. 10.

24. If one by Deed Poll recite that he hath leaſed Land for ten years; and then Leaſe the ſame to another, for the ſame time; this will not work by way of Eſtoppel. So if one recite that he hath a poſſibility, or a thing not grantable over, and then grant it away; this ſhall never enure by way of Eſtoppel, nay, though it were by Deed indented, becauſe it appears by the Deed it ſelf, the Grantor had nothing to grant, Co. 155. Dyer 244.

25. If a Deed be of a Contract, which in truth is Uſurious, and the Deed acknowledge; yet in this caſe a man ſhall not be concluded to ſay the truth, Co. 5. 69. Uſury.

26. If one have a debt due to him by Contract, and he take an Obligation for it; he is barred to ſue upon the Contract. By other means.

So if it be a debt due by Specialty, and he get a Judgment, he is eſtopped to ſue upon the Obligation again, whiles the Judgment is in force, Co. 6. 45.

27. Sometimes by Acceptance of one thing, one is concluded to demand another, (For which ſee Acceptance;) As if a Woman enter upon, and accept a Joynter made to her after marriage, after her Husbands death; now hereby ſhe is barred of her Dower.

So if ſhe bring a Writ of Dower, and demand, and recover Dower; ſhe is barred of having any Joynter made to her after marriage, Co. 4. 5. Dyer 317.

28. If one have a Judgment, and have choſen an Execution by Elegit; it ſeems he is eſtopped to have any other Execution after. See Execution for this matter.

29. If an Exchange be between two, and one of them enter; now he is eſtopped and concluded, and he cannot avoid Exchange firſt made. See for this, Exchange, Co. upon Littl. 170.

30. If one have his choice of one of two Actions, and he hath choſen one: Now he is barred of the other. So if one have choice of two Remedies, as if one have brought an Appeal of Maime, and recovered Damages, he is barred after to bring any Action of Treſpaſs for the ſame, Et ſic è converſo. So upon an Executory Contract if he bring Debt, and recover, he is barred of any Action of the Caſe, Et ſic è converſo, Co. 4. 43. Co. 4. 94.

31. If

31. If a Tenant make a Feoffment by Colluſion and the Lord accept the ſervices of the Feoffee; hereby he is Eſtopped of the Wardſhip, and of this Averment of Colluſion. So if the Husband ſell his Wives Land and die, and ſhe accept part of it in Dower; ſhe is barred of her, Cui in vita for the whole, F.N.B. 142. 144.

32. If the Husband do diſcontinue the Wives Land, and the Alienees make a Leaſe to the Husband and Wife for their lives, and the Leſſor bring Waſte againſt the Husband; he is Eſtopped by the Feoffment and Waſte, to ſpeak of the Remitter to his Wife, Littl. ſect. 667.

33. If a man ſeiſed of Land in Fee, take a Wife, and then grant a Rent-charge, and after make a Feoffment in Fee, and taketh back an Eſtate-tail, and die, and the Wife recovereth Dower againſt the Iſſue in Tail by Reddition, the Wife ſurmiſeth that her Husband died ſeiſed, and pay a Writ, to enquire of Damages, and hath it; in this caſe ſhe ſhall hold the Land charged with the Rent; for by her prayer ſhe accepteth her ſelf dowable of the ſecond Eſtate, and ſhe is Eſtopped to be endowed of the firſt, 14 Ed. 3. 28.

34. J. S. ſeiſed of Land in Fee hath two Daughters, a Baſtard eigne and mulier puiſne, and die, and they both make Partition, the mulier is hereby concluded for ever, Co. upon Littl. 170.

35. But if one bring Action of Treſpaſs, the Caſe, or the like, where the things are uncertain, and Damages is onely to be recovered, and he hath no Judgment, yet, this is no Eſtoppel to him, but he may bring any other, or the ſame Action at another time. But if he have obtained a Judgment upon the firſt, he is Eſtopped, and the other may plead it in Bar to the ſecond Action, Adjudg, Bridges and Diſſey, M. 5 Jac. B.R.

36. If Partners do make Diviſion of the Lands they have in Tail, and one of them hath the worſt part, though ſhe be concluded, yet it is no Eſtoppel to her Iſſue.

So if Husband and Wife be Tenants in Special Tail of certain Lands in Fee, and they have Iſſue a Daughter, and the Wife dieth, and he take another Wife, and have a Daughter by her; and both theſe enter and make Diviſion, though this be an Eſtoppel to the eldeſt Daughter, during her life, yet it is none to her Iſſue, Co. ſuper Littl. 170

3. What perſons are concluded by an Eſtoppel, or not.

37. Eſtoppels do commonly conclude none but ſuch as be Parties or Privies; and no ſtrangers are bound by them, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes; as when the Eſtoppel is by Act of Parliament, or the like. And therefore a Jury upon Oath, are not concluded and bound up as the Parties be: As if an Obligation be delivered before the date, and dated after the Delivery, the Obligee cannot plead it ſo, but muſt plead it after; yet if the other plead Non eſt factum, the Jury will and may finde it to be his Deed, Co. upon Littl 352.

38. The Heir at Common Law is commonly to be barred by the Eſtoppel, not another Heir, though the Land be to go to him: As if there be Father and Son, and the Son have Iſſue a Son and Daughter by one Woman, and a Daughter by another, and the Grand-father do an Act of Eſtoppel by Deed, the Father die, and the Son die, and his Son alſo die without Iſſue; his Daughter now that muſt have the Land, ſhall not be barred by this Eſtoppel: So an Eſtoppel on the part of the Mother, ſhall not binde the Heir on the Fathers part. And therefore if Bonds be given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Husband, the Husband makes a Gift in Tail, and dieth, and the Wife recover in a Cui in vita againſt the Donee, ſuppoſing ſhe had Fee-ſimple, and make a Feoffment and die, the Donee die without Iſſue, and the Iſſue of the Husband and Wife bring Formedon in the Reverter againſt the Feoffee; he is not Eſtopped, but may ſo do, Co. upon Littl. 365. So if the Husband and Wife be Tenants for life, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Baron, and the Husband give in Tail, and die, the Wife Recover in cui vita, ſuppoſing that ſhe had the Lands to her and her Heirs in Fee; and after recovery Infeoff another, and die, the Donee die without Iſſue. Now the Heir of the Donor ſhall recover this Land, and is not barred by the Eſtoppel of his Mother, becauſe he was Heir to them both, and therefore the Eſtoppel of one of them, could not Bar him, 35 H.6. 33. Broo. Eſtoppel 22. Co. 8. 53. 18 *Ed.*3. 9. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 12.

39. If one Joyntenant in Fee take a Leaſe for years of a ſtranger, the Survivor ſhall not be bound by this, Co. upon Littl. f. 185.

If one make a Leaſe of part of a Term, whereby he is eſtopped, and after aſſign away the Term, the Aſſignee is eſtopped alſo; and Regularly none but Parties and Privies ſhall take advantage of an Eſtoppel (and not ſtrangers) and therefore none may take advantage of any Eſtoppel in any Fine or Recovery; but Parties or Privies, or ſuch as Claim the Land, or the Eſtate, or part of it under him that was party to the Fine or Recovery, 30 *H.6.*2. 4. What perſons ſhall take advantage of an Eſtoppel, or not.

But of ſuch Acts by matter of Record, as trench to the diſinheritance of him, in Reverſion or Remainder: There he in Reverſion or Remainder may take advantage, though he be no party to the thing; as if Leſſee for life or years, pray in Aid of a ſtranger, or levy a Fine, *Co.*4. 53.

Privies in Blood as the Heir, Privies in Eſtate as the Feoffee, Leſſee, &c. Privies in Law as the Lords by Eſcheat, Tenant by the Courteſie, in Dower, the Incumbent of a Benefice, and others that come under by Act in Law, or in the Poſt ſhall take advantage, and be bound by Eſtoppels, Co. upon *Littl.*352.

It is where one Eſtoppel is pleaded againſt another; and that doth put the matter at large, Co. upon *Littl.*352. Eſtoppel againſt Eſtoppel, what.

How an Eſtoppel muſt be pleaded, and the manner of the Concluſion of the Plea, *Co.*4. 53. 11. 52.

CHAP. LXXXI.

Of Eſtovers, Exchangers of Gold and Silver, Exciſe and Eveſdroppers.

ESTovers is a word that hath many ſignifications: For ſometimes it ſignifieth the Suſtenance that a man that hath done Felony, is to have out of his Lands and Goods, for himſelf and his Family, during his Impriſonment. Sometimes it ſignifieth an Allowance in Meat and Cloath. Sometimes an Allowance of Wood, to be taken out of anothers Wood. Sometimes it ſignifieth Houſ-boot, Hay-boot, and Plough-boot: But moſt properly it ſignifieth the Right that a man hath to cut and take Houſ-boot, Hay-boot, and Plough-boot, to expend and uſe in and upon his Houſe, and Tenement, out of the Wood of another man, i. e. Which is either Certain, as ten or twenty load; or Incertain, ſo much as he ſhall ſpend in ſuch a Houſe; or in Groſs, F. N. B. 181. 28 H. 8. 28. See Co. 2 part. Inſt. 17, 18. Eſtovers, What.

Exciſe.

FOr the Exciſe, who muſt pay it, what, and how it is to be paid; See the Ordinances, and Act at large. Act, 14 Auguſt, 1649. and March 17. 1653. June 12. 1649.

Of Exchangers of Gold and Silver, or Bankers.

SEe for this the Statute of 25 Ed. 3. 12.

Of Eveſdroppers.

EVeſdroppers are ſuch as lie about Mens Houſes or Windows to hear Tales, and to carry them about to breed Diviſion, and do ſo; they are to be puniſhed for this in a Leet, or may be puniſhed by Juſtices of the Peace, by the Good-behavior, or Indictment.

CHAP. LXXXII.

Of an Execution.

1. Execution, what it is.

EXecution is the laſt performance of ſome Act, it is moſt commonly taken for the next Act which doth purſue the Judgement, which is the Sentence that a Judge doth make at the end of a Cauſe or Sute, ſpeaking the Law in the caſe, as it appears upon the proofs before him.

In Civil Cauſes it is, where a Judgment is given in any Court for the Recovery of any Debt or Damage, or any Lands, or Tenements, or other things: Or a man doth acknowledge a Debt by a Recognizance or Statute (which is in the nature of a Judgment) and the Party by a Writ, is put into the Poſſeſſion of the thing, ſo recovered by the Judgment, or acknowledged by the Statute. Briefly, It is the obtaining of an Actual Poſſeſſion of any thing acquired by Judgment of Law, Terms Ley, Co. upon Littl. 154.

How many kindes there are.

And ſome of theſe Executors are ſmall and valuable, as where the Sheriff doth take the Defendants Lands or Goods, and deliver them to the Plaintiff in ſatisfaction of his Debt; or not valuable, or quouſque tending onely to an end: As when the body of the Defendant onely is taken and put in priſon, where it is to lie as a pledge till the Debt be ſatisfied; but this doth not ſatisfie the Plaintiff, Co. 6. 87.

The means whereby this is done, are by Writs, which are called Writs of Execution; and theſe are ſome of them againſt the perſon, and ſome of them againſt the Goods, and ſome of them againſt the Lands, and ſome of them againſt them all, Co. 8. 141.

The Writs whereby Execution is done, are for Recovery of Land in a Real Action; as, Habere facias Seiſinam, and an Habere facias Poſſeſſionem. And for Recovery of Debt or Damage in a Perſonal Action; a Capias ad Satisfaciendum, Fieri facias and Elegit, Co. 6. 51. F.N.B. 265. Weſtm. 2. 18.

There are other Writs of Execution, which ſee in Detinue, Chap. 37. And for all the Writs of Execution of a Statute; as, Levari facias, Extendi facias and Liberate; and for a Statute and Recognizance, and that which doth concern it: See in Statutes in my Treatiſe of Common Aſſurances, cap. 20.

Habere facias Seiſinam, what it is.

It is a Writ Judicial, and it lieth where one hath recovered certain Lands in the Kings Court, then he ſhall have this Writ directed to the Sheriff, commanding him to put him in Actual Seiſin of that Land, Perk ſect. 206, 207, 208. Terms Ley 217. F. N. B. 220.

Habere facias Poſſeſſionem, what it is.

It is a Writ Judicial, and lieth where one that was Evicted out of his Farm, hath recovered the ſame in an Ejectione Firme, or, Quare ejecit infra terminum, there he ſhall have this Writ directed to the Sheriff, to command him to put the Plaintiff

Plaintiff into Actual Poſſeſſion of the Term again ; and in Execution of both theſe Writs, the Sheriff may juſtifie the breaking of a Houſe to do it, if he cannot do it otherwiſe, F. N. B. 220, 221. Co. 104. 5. 91. 6. 51. Dyer 278.

Capias ad Satisfaciendum, what it is.

It is a Writ Judicial, and lieth where a man hath recovered any Debt or Damages in any Action perſonal in the Kings Court ; then he that hath recovered, may have this Writ unto the Sheriff to command him to take the Body of the Debtor, and thereupon he ſhall be put in priſon, and there ſhall ſtay without Bail or Mainpriſe, until he hath made ſatisfaction to the Plaintiff, the Debt or Damages recovered. This Writ was given by the Stat. of Weſtm. 2. ch. 11. Marlb. 23. Terms Ley 256. Co. 8. 141. ſuper Littl. 289, 290.

Fieri facias, what it is.

It is a Writ Judicial, and lieth where a man hath recovered any Debt or Damages in any Action Perſonal in the Kings Court, then he that hath recovered may have this Writ to the Sheriff, commanding him to levy the money of the Goods and Chattels of the Defendant, and to bring it into the Court, that the Party Plaintiff may have it, Co. 3. 9. Dyer 306.

And if the Sheriff take Goods and return ſo, and that he cannot finde buyers for the Goods, or delay to deliver it to the Party, then he may have a Venditioni exponas, and compel the Sheriff to ſell the Goods, and bring in the money. And if he ſay the Goods were taken by his Predeceſſor, he muſt have a Diſtringas nuper vic' to the Precedent Sheriff to command him to ſell them, and bring in the money, Dyer 363. 13 *H.*7. 1. 34 *H.*6. 6.

Elegit, what it is.

An Elegit is a Judicial Writ that lieth for him that hath recovered Debt or Damages in the Kings Court againſt another, directed to the Sheriff to command him to make Delivery of the one half of the Parties Lands and Tenements, and of all his Goods, except his Oxen and Beaſts of his Plough to the Plaintiff for ſatisfaction of his Debt. Old N. B. 152. Co. upon Littl. 289. Dyer 306. It lieth alſo upon a Recogniſance in any of the Kings Courts.

Sect. 2. Scire facias, what it is.

But theſe Writs of Execution muſt be had within a year after the Judgment ; otherwiſe it cannot be had till there be firſt ſued out a Scire facias, which is a Judicial Writ going out of a Record, and lying where one hath recovered Lands or Tenements, Debt or Damages, and the Demandant or Plaintiff doth not ſue out Execution within a year after the Judgment had ; in this caſe he cannot ſue Execution, till he have firſt ſummoned the Party to ſhew cauſe why Execution ſhould not be done ; and if now he neglect to anſwer, or cannot be found to be ſummoned, then a ſecond Judgment ſhall be given, that Execution be done on the firſt Judgment. And in this caſe the Defendant may plead any matter growing after Judgment, as Outlawry, Releaſe, &c. to prevent Execution, Co. upon Littl. 290. Dyer 148. Co. 3. 12. And yet if he ſue out Execution within the year, it ſeems he may continue it after the year without a Scire facias, Old N. B. 163. Dyer 207. 271. Finches Ley 477.

Sect. 3. 3. What Execution the Plaintiff may have upon a Judgment, to recover Debt or Damage, and how, or not.

After Judgment had in the upper Bench or Common Pleas, the Plaintiff may have Execution, either of the Body of the Defendant by a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, or upon his Lands by Elegit, or upon his Goods and Chattels by Fieri facias. But a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum will not lie in Execution, unleſs it be in ſuch an Action wherein, and againſt a perſon, againſt whom a Capias doth lie at the beginning, as Debt, Account, Action upon the Caſe, Action of Treſpaſs, Vi & Armis, Annuity, and Covenant ; in all which caſes Capias ad ſatisfaciendum doth lie, but no Execution by Capias ad ſatisfaciendum may be had for Recovery of Damages in a Real Action, nor in any Action againſt a Duke, Earl, or Baron, or their Wives, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes : Nor againſt an Heir, or an Executor, but in ſome ſpecial caſes, Magna Charta 2. 18. Co. 3. 12. Weſtm. 2. 11. Co. 5. 88. 6. 53. Co. 8. 141. 11 H. 7. 15. 2 H. 4. 6, 7.

If one have a Judgment againſt divers for one cauſe, and take out a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum againſt one of them, it ſeems, that after this he can have no other Execution againſt any of the reſt of the Defendants, Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. The Plaintiff after a Fieri facias, if Execution be not done upon it, may have an Elegit or a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum. But after he hath taken out a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, and the ſame be entred upon Record or retorned, he can have no other Execution. So alſo it ſeems after an Elegit ſued out and retorned, the Plaintiff can have no other Execution by Fieri facias or Capias ad ſatisfaciendum; but he muſt have an Alias Elegit, or he may have an Elegit in another County, 13 *H.*7. 1. Co. 5. 87. 15 *H.*7. 15. 33 *H.*6. 47. 28 H. 8. 9. 19 *H.*6. 4. 17 Ed. 4. 4. 21 *H.*7. 19.

If one have recovered part of his debt by a Fieri facias, he may have a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum to recover the reſidue, Mich. 4 Jac. B. R. Carrs Caſe, 18 Ed 4. 11.

If the Defendant be arreſted on a Latitat, and lie in priſon for want of bail, and after the Plaintiff do get a Judgment againſt him; in this caſe, if he will, he may wave his body, and take Execution of his Lands or Goods, M. 4 Jac. B. R. Curia.

If a Judgment be had againſt the Defendant, and he having Land, die, and the Land deſcend to his Heir, after a Scire facias, he may have Execution by Elegit againſt the Heir for this Land, Dyer 208. If a Judgment be given in the Common Bench, and removed from thence into the Upper Bench, by Writ of Error, and there affirmed within the year; in this caſe the Plaintiff ſhall have the ſame Proces of Execution in that Court, as he might have had in the Common Pleas without any Scire facias, Co. 5. 88.

If a Judgment be for Damages againſt two Defendants, and the Plaintiff take out an Execution by an Elegit againſt one of them: In this caſe it ſeems he can have no other Execution againſt the other, 33 *H.*6. 47. The ſame Proces of Execution as a man may have before a Scire facias ſued out upon a Judgment, the ſame he may have after the Scire facias, and none other. And therefore where a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum will not lie before a Scire facias upon the firſt Judgment, it will not lie upon the ſecond Judgment, 48 Ed. 3. 48. 34 *H.*6. 45.

If one be condemned in Treſpaſs, and taken Pro fine Regis, and the Plaintiff pray he may be in Execution for him; in this caſe he cannot after have an Elegit, or a Fieri facias, unleſs the Defendant die in Execution before the Plaintiff be ſatisfied his debt, F. N. B. 246. Co. 5. 77. After Judgment had in an Annuity, the Plaintiff upon a Scire facias may have a Fieri facias to levy it as it becomes due, 11 H. 4. 34. Broo 119. After the Sheriff upon a Fieri facias hath retorned a Fieri feci, ſed non inveni emptores, &c. The Plaintiff cannot have a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, or an Elegit, 13 H 7. 1. When the Defendant was outlawed after Judgment, the Plaintiff muſt have prayed when he was taken for the King, that he may ſtay in Execution for him alſo; for he hath no other Proces of Execution afterwards, nor hath he any other Remedy, unleſs it be by a new Action of Debt, brought upon the Judgment, Co. 5. 88. No Execution can be had againſt Executors on a Judgment againſt the Teſtator, but by Fieri facias, and that De bonis Teſtatoris onely, unleſs it be in caſe where he hath waſted theſe Goods. But for this ſee in Executors in my Treatiſe of Common Aſſurances.

Sect. 4. 4. For and againſt whom Execution ſhall be had upon Judgments for Land, Debt, or Damage, or not; and when, and how it ſhall be done. Heir. Executor.

If one have a Judgment to recover Land, and die before he have Execution, his Heir after his death, may and muſt have Execution. And if there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Fee with Warranty, and he have Judgment to recover in value, and die before Execution without Iſſue, in this caſe he in the Remainder may ſue Execution. If one have Judgment to recover a Term, or any Goods, or a Debt, or Damages, and he die before he have Execution; in theſe caſes the Executor or Adminiſtrator, not the Heir, ſhall have the Execution. And if one have a Judgment to recover Land and Damages together, he may have Execution of both together: But if he die, his Heir muſt have the Execution for the Land, and his Executor or Adminiſtrator muſt have the Execution for the Damages. And ſo it is in caſe of a Judgment to remove a Nuſance, and to recover Damages for the times paſt. And if a Judgment be to recover a Deed belonging to his Land, or twenty pound, and the Plaintiff die before Execution; in this caſe the Heir muſt firſt have a Diſtringas for the Deed, ere the Executor ſue Execution for the money; and if the Deed may be had, the Heir is to have him. But if the Deed cannot be had, the Executor ſhall have Execution for the money, Terms Ley Proces, Dyer 208. 19 Ed. 45. Co. upon Litt. 251. 22 H. 6. 41. But in all theſe caſes neither the Heir nor the Executor nor Adminiſtrator may have Execution of the Judgement till firſt they have ſued out a Scire facias againſt the party againſt whom the Judgement was had, to warn him in, to ſhew cauſe why Execution ſhould not be had againſt him. And then if he either make default, or appearing can ſhew no good cauſe why Execution ſhould not be done againſt him, the Execution ſhall be done for the Plaintiff, as it ſhould have been for him under whom he claims. 19 Ed. 4. 5.

If an Adminiſtrator get a judgement on the behalf of the inteſtate, and die; neither his Executor (if he have any) nor his Adminiſtrator ſhall have Execution of this Judgement, but the Adminiſtrator de bonis non Adminiſtratis of the firſt inteſtate, ſhall have Execution. And if an Executor get a Judgement on the behalf of the Teſtator, and then die; If he make an Executor he ſhall have Execution upon this Judgement. But if he die inteſtate, his Adminiſtrator, unleſs he have alſo an Adminiſtrator de bonis non Adminiſtratis of the Teſtator, cannot have Execution upon this Judgement, Co. 5. 9. If an Executor durante minore ætate, get a Judgement, and before Execution the Executor doth come of age; in this caſe the Executor himſelf may have Execution of this Judgement. So if one be Executor till A be married, and get a Judgement, and before Execution A is married; in this caſe it ſeems the firſt Executor may ſue out Execution, M 9 Jac. B. R. Darrets Caſe. Adminiſtrator

If Judgement be given againſt a Tenant in tayl, and he die before Execution, it may be done by Habeas facias ſeiſinam againſt the iſſue in tayl, Co. 1. 94. 1[illegible]. Haberi

If a Judgement be againſt two Diſſeiſors, and one of them die before Execution, the whole damages ſhall not be levied of the ſurvivor, but a part of it ſhall be levied upon the Heir of him that is dead, Co. 3. 13.

If the principall upon a ſpeciall Bayl do not after Judgement pay the money or yield his body; then and not before, Execution is to be ſued againſt the Bayl, Co. 5. 70. An Heir or an Executor ſhall never be charged by an Execution, but for ſo much in Land, Goods or Chattels, as are come to his hands from the debtor, unleſs it be by his own falſe or fooliſh pleading. If the Defendant be taken upon a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum upon a Judgement, and he die in Execution; in this caſe the Plaintiff may have a new Execution againſt his Heirs, Executors or Adminiſtrators (as the caſe is) and ſhall recover his Debt upon his lands, goods, or chattels, Co. 5. 86. 87. F. N. B. 267.

But no Execution can be had againſt an Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator, upon a Judgement given againſt another under whom he comes, and in whoſe room he ſtands, albeit it be within a year after the Judgement had, but there muſt be firſt a Scire facias againſt him to ſhew cauſe why it ſhould not be had, Co. 3. 11: Dyer 208. Scire facias.

If two or more be bound in an Obligation jointly and ſeverally (as the manner is) and the Judgement is given againſt them all, in this caſe the Plaintiff may take them all in Execution by a capias ad ſatisfaciendum. But he can be ſatisfied the debt but once: and therefore if one of them pay the debt, and any of the reſt be in Execution; in this caſe he and all the reſt are to be diſcharged of the Execution. So if he recover the Debt or value thereof by fieri facias or elegit of one of them, the Lands and goods of the reſt are to be diſcharged; for he ſhall have Execution with ſatisfaction but once. So if the Judgement be on a joint-bill, it ſeems the Law is the ſame; And if in theſe caſes the Judgement and Execution be had againſt one only, the Sheriff may levy the whole debt of him, Co. 11. 7. 5. 87. 119. 4 H. 7. 8. And yet if one have a Judgement for damages againſt divers men for one joint-Treſpaſs, in it this caſe he can have but one Execution againſt them all. But upon this, if it be againſt the bodies by capias ad ſatisfaciendum, the Sheriff may take all or any of them at that time in Execution, and if it be againſt their goods by fieri facias, he may levy it once of all or any of them. But it muſt be levied but once, and they muſt bear it equally amongſt them. And therefore if in the caſe before, Execution be firſt ſued out againſt one of them, and the damages is levied, and after another of them is ſued for the ſame Treſpaſs, he may pleade Execution with ſatisfaction againſt the other, Co. 11. 43. 3 H. 4. 13. 20 H. 6. 11. 34 H. 6. 33. Paſch. 3. *Jac. Upon

What things ſhall be liable to Execution, and the Sheriff may take by vertue thereof Sect. 5.

Upon a Judgement given for debt or damages in the two Courts of Record at Weſtminſter, generally all the Land that the Defendant hath tempore redditionis Judicii, or at any time after, and all the goods and chattels he hath tempore executionis ſhall be ſubject and liable to the Execution. And all theſe may be taken in Execution by the Sheriff, in whoſe hands ſoever they be, Di. 306. 34 Co. 3. 12. 34 H. 6. 45:

Upon a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum.

Upon a capias ad ſatisfaciendum, the Sheriff can take nothing but the body of the defendant, for the writ is to doe no more but to take his body: and to detain him in priſon till he hath ſatisfied the Debt. Co. 5. 8.

Upon a fieri facias.

Upon a Fieri facias the Sheriff may take in Execution any Goods or Chattels reall or perſonall, that the Defendant hath at the time of the Execution awarded, as Leaſe for years, wardſhips, cattell, corn, houſholdſtuff, apparrell, and the like, and this having taken he may ſell and make money of it, and this money pay to the Plaintiff, Co. 8. 171. 7: 39: But the goods or Chattels a man hath as Executor or Adminiſtrator, cannot be taken in Execution, for the Executor or Adminiſtrators own debt, as they may and muſt for the Debt of the Teſtator, Plow. 525. And yet it hath been held that the goods I have to the uſe of another are liable to Execution for my Debt, becauſe they are mine by Law, and his only in equity, M. 7. Jac. C. A. B. So if the defendant deliver his goods to me, to deliver over to another, that in this caſe before the delivery they are liable to Execution, Co. 9. 171. If a man have a Leaſe for years in the right of his wife, & a Judgement be had and Execution awarded againſt him, and he die before it be executed, yet it is ſaid, the Leaſe is liable to the Execution. So likewiſe if the Defendant have a Leaſe for years in Jointenancy with another, Plow 224. And yet if the defendant die before Execution awarded out, the Term is diſcharged and ſhall goe to the ſurviver. But goods pledged and not redeemed, or leaſed for any time and the time not expired, goods diſtrained and continuing as a diſtreſs, goods taken in Execution for another man and another Debt, are not liable to Execution. So offices of Truſt which are not grantable over, may not be taken in Execution, Dyer 363. 7 H. 6. 11. Dyer 67. Co. 8. 171. 2 H. 4. 14: But ſome ſay that if there be other goods enough that the Sheriff may not take in Execution the Beaſts of the Plow, if the other goods be then and there preſent and to be had, whether it be an Execution for the Lord Protector, or a ſubject, Therefore let the Sheriff take heed to this, Co. 2 part Inſt. 133:

Upon an Elegit.

Upon an Elegit the Sheriff is to make Execution of the one half of all the Houſes, Lands, Medows, Paſtures, Rents, Verſions, and Hereditaments, whereof and wherein at the time of the Judgement had, or after the Defendant had any ſole eſtate or intereſt in Fee tayl, or for life, into whoſe hands ſoever the ſame doe afterwards come; ſo alſo the one half of all ſuch Lands he doth hold in Jointenancy, ſo long as the Defendant doth live, and of all, if he do out-live his companion: So alſo if the husband and wife hold Lands for their two lives, this is extendable upon this Writ. But a right only to Land, an Annuity, Copiehold Land, Land the Husband had in right of his wife in Fee, or for life after her death, is not extendable, nor liable to Execution. And all the Goods and Chattels (except only the beaſts of the Plough) which the Defendant hath at the time of the Execution made, are liable to Execution on this writ, as on a Fieri facias. But none of the Goods or Chattels before Execution, Bona fide made away, are liable to Execution on this writ, Weſtm: 2, 18. Co. 6. 78. 8: 171. Dyer 206. 335: Co. 7, 59. 38. 4. 67: 78, F, N, B. 48: Plow. 224. 178, 2 H, 4, 14:

And if the one halfe be extended by one elegit, and then another elegit comes, the one half of the Reſidue only, and not the one half of the whole ſhall be extended upon this ſecond writ. Brownl. 2 part 97. As to this purpoſe, theſe things muſt be premiſed, 1. That if a Sheriff enter into a Franchiſe to do execution, it is good, Fieri non debet, factum valet: But the Lord of the Franchiſe may have an Action of the caſe againſt him for it. But if the Bailiff of a Franchiſe do Execution without this Franchiſe, it is void, and he a Treſpaſſor in all he doth, 11 H. 4. 7: 2. If the Sheriff open or break any houſe to do Execution at the ſuite of a common perſon, the Execution is good, but the party whoſe houſe is broken may have an Action of Treſpaſs againſt him for the breaking of the houſe, Co. 5. 93.

Action of the Caſe. Treſpaſs.

3. If a Sheriff do make Execution upon a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, Fieri facias, Habere facias ſeiſinam, Habere facias poſſeſſionem, a Liberate, or any ſuch like final Proces, upon which no further Proces is to go, though he never return the Execution, yet is the Execution good. But if the Execution be made by Inqueſt, as upon an Elegit, or the like, there Execution is not well done, if it be not retorned. If the Sheriff levy the money, and give it to the party Plaintiff, though he never make any return to the Court, it is good enough, Co. 5. 90. 4. 67. 11. 40. 20 H. 6: 24.

4. If the Sheriff have a Fieri facias, or Capias ad ſatisfaciendum againſt a man, and before Execution he pay him the money; in this caſe he cannot do Execution after: If he do, an Action of Treſpaſſe or falſe Impriſonment lieth againſt him, Per Juſt. Jones. & Juſt. Berkly, B. R. Paſch. 12 Car. Treſpaſſe. Falſe Impriſonment.

Upon an Habere facias ſeiſinam, or poſſeſſionem, the Sheriff is to put the Plaintiff into poſſeſſion of the Land recovered according to the Writ; and if it be of a houſe, and he cannot otherwiſe do Execution of the houſe, he may break open the houſe to do it, Co. 5. 93. If the Judgement be for Rent, the Sheriff may make Execution by word, or by any part of the Land out of which the Rent doth iſſue, F. N. B. 179. Sect. 7. Upon an Habere facias ſeiſinam, or poſſeſſionem.

The Sheriff upon this Writ is to do his beſt to take the body of the party in Execution, and for this purpoſe he is to ſeek for him, and if the door of his houſe be open he may go into his houſe, and take him out of the houſe. But he may not break open the houſe, nor (as it ſeemes) may he pull the latch, and open the dore if it be ſhut, Co. 5: 91. 93. Dyer. 67: 224: And yet if the Officer do ſo, and by that means doth apprehend and arreſt the party, the Arreſt is good, but the Officer may be puniſhed for his exceſſe, Per ch. Juſt. Hobart. Paſch. 21 Jac. And if the Sheriff cannot find him he muſt retorn upon the Writ a non eſt inventus, and thereupon the Plaintiff may have a Writ of Exigent, and ſo out-law him, Dyer. 67. 224. Sect. 8. Upon a Capias ad Satisfaciendum.

The Sheriff upon this Writ is to do his utmoſt endeavour to levy the money upon the Goods and Chattels of the Defendant, and for that purpoſe to enquire and ſeek if he can finde out any Goods or Chattels of his, whereof Execution may be made; And it will be wiſdome in the Plaintiff to make a diligent ſearch to ſee if he can finde out any thing to be taken hold of, and if he can diſcover any, to direct the Sheriff to it, who ex Officio is to take it, and to ſell it; and if he cannot ſell it, he is to retorn it ſo, and therupon a Writ called a venditioni exponas ſhall be ſent to the Sheriff to force him to ſell them, and pay the Plaintiff. But for the opening hereof, theſe things are to be known. Sect. 9. Upon a fieri facias.

1. If the out-dore of the houſe be open, the Sheriff may go into the houſe, and take any thing there liable to the Execution, and being come in at the open door, it ſeemes he may break open any of the inner doors 18, Ed. 4. 4. Co. 5. 90. Co. 4. 74.

2: If any of the Defendants Goods or Chattels be made away by fraud and covin of purpoſe to deceive Creditors, the Sheriff may notwithſtanding take them in Execution, Co. 5: 90. Fraud.

3: If the Sheriff take Leaſes for years or other Chattels real in Execution, he may ſeiſe and ſell them without taking an Enqueſt by a jury of them, and the ſale will be good, Co. 5. 90: 4. 74.

4. If a Sheriff after Execution made, ſell Goods or Chattels and after the judgement whereupon the Execution was had is reverſed by Writ of Errour, yet the ſale made by the Sheriff is good and unavoidable, Co. 5. 90.

5: If the Sheriff ſell the Goods under foot, yet the ſale is good, and the Defendant hath no remedy; And yet if there be Covin between the Sheriff and the buyer, perhaps the owner may have remedy by an Action of the Caſe, or by ſome other means, Kelw. 64. Action of the Caſe.

The Sheriff upon this Writ is to purſue the charge and direction of the Writ (that is) to deliver to the Plaintiff the one half of the Defendants Lands he had, at, or after the time of the Judgement, and all the goods and Chattels the Defendant hath at the time of the Execution done. But in this caſe the Sheriff may not do all himſelf, as he doth upon the Fieri facias. For in this caſe, the Lands, Goods and Chattels muſt be found and prized by an Inquiſition, and the verdict of a jury, and the ſame, and the value thereof returned before he can deliver them to the party or ſell any of them Sect. 10: Upon an Elegit.

them away, and then if there be any Leaſe for years, the Sheriff may either ſell it, and deliver the money to the Plaintiff, or he may deliver it to the Plaintiff at a yearly value, which he will, *Coo.6.73.4:75.7.39. Plow:524.441. Dyer:*1c0. Weſtm.2 ch: 2c:

If there be two ſeveral Judgements againſt one man, he that firſt ſues out the Elegit ſhall have the one half of the whole, and he that ſueth out the Elegit laſt ſhall have but the one half of that which is left, Trin.38.Eliz. Co.B. Curia in Hints Caſe.

If an Action be brought againſt one upon the Deed of his Anceſtor, Binding his Heirs to do any thing, and Judgement be had againſt the Heir, in this caſe the Plaintiff may either have this Execution of the one half of his Land upon the Sta: of Weſtm.2. or (as it ſeems) he may have Execution of all his Land by a Writ at the Common Law, Plow.440:

7. In what caſe the Defendant in Execution ſhall be ſaid to be diſcharged, or not,

If a man be in Execution for a Debt upon a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, and die under Execution, the Debt unpaid; in this caſe the Execution is not diſcharged. But the Plaintiff ſhall have as much remedy to take his Execution upon his Lands, Goods or Chattels, as if he had never taken his body in Execution, *Stat. 21. Jac ch.24. Co:*5.86.

If two be in Execution for one Debt, and one of them die under Execution, this doth not diſcharge the other, F. N. B. 146.

Sect. 11 By Act of God. By Act of Law

If one be in Execution upon a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, and the Court adjudge the Judgement or the Execution erroneous, and ſo Null it; by this the Defendant ſhall be diſcharged of Execution, Coo 8.143.38 *H.*6 4:

If one taken in Execution eſcape, and the Plaintiff bring his Action againſt the Sheriff, or have a Cepi returned upon the Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, and this is filed; in this caſe the Defendant as to the Plaintiff is diſcharged of Execution for ever; But if no Cepi be returned, nor Action brought againſt the Sheriff; in this caſe the Law doth judge him to be out of Execution, 13 H.7: 1. *Plow.*36. 33 H 6:47:

If divers be in priſon for one cauſe, and the Plaintiff receive ſatisfaction from one of them, all the reſt are to be diſcharged, *Co.*11. 7. 2: *R.*3. 9. But if two be bound in a bond, and Judgement and Execution againſt them both, this will not diſcharge the other, nor ſhall he be diſcharged till the Plaintiff have recovered the Debt of the Sheriff, *Co.*5:86. If one be taken by a Capias pro fine, in ſuch a caſe wherein he ſhall be ſaid to be in Execution for the Plaintiff alſo, and he do after ſue Execution againſt the Defendant by Fieri Facias, or Elegit; in this caſe the body is diſcharged from Execution, as to the Plaintiff, 13 H.7.6. If one be in Execution by a Capias pro fine, and he is after taken in Execution for a felony; in this caſe he is diſcharged of the firſt Execution, 6 Ed 4.4. *Dyer.*60. If a priſoner be delivered out of Execution by priviledge of Parliament, this is no diſcharge, but after the priviledge is determined he may be taken again, Stat. 1 *Jac. ch.*13.

By the Act of the parties.

If the defendant pay the money, he is hereby to be diſcharged of the Execution: But if the Plaintiff make any releaſe, defeaſance, or other ſuch like Act to the Defendant being in Execution, amounting to a diſcharge of the Execution; this is not a diſcharge ipſo facto, but by this means the party may procure a diſcharge: and yet if the Plaintiff himſelf ſhall deliver the priſoner out of Execution, hereby he is ipſo facto diſcharged of the Execution for ever. Sect. 12 8. When a man ſhall be ſaid to be in Execution, or not.

If the Sheriff have a man in his cuſtody by Proceſs of law, and after this a Writ of Capias ad ſatisfaciendum is delivered to him; in this caſe in Judgement of Law he ſhall be in Execution preſently upon that Writ, though he never make any actual Arreſt thereupon, Co. 5. 89: 11 H. 4. 12. 14. In all caſes where the Plaintiff may have a Capias ad ſatisfaciendum in the ſuit, and the defendant is taken by a Capias pro fine, or a Capias ut legatum after Judgement, there the Defendant ſhall be in Execution preſently at the ſuite of the party, alſo without prayer or motion to the Court: And in all caſes where he may have a Fieri facias, and no Capias ad ſatisfaciendum, as in Aſſiſe, Rediſſeiſin, and the like, and the party is taken by a Capias pro fine, and committed to priſon at the Keepers of the Liberties ſuite; in all theſe caſes alſo, upon a prayer and motion to the Court, the Defendant ſhall be in Execution for the party alſo, but not without prayer. And in caſes where the Plaintiff hath a Judgement, Judgment, and doth ſurceaſe his time, ſo that now he cannot have Execution by Capias adſatisfaciendum, or Fieri facias, but he is put to his Scire facias; in theſe caſes if the Defendant happen after to be taken by a Capias pro fine for the Keepers of the Liberty, or by a Capias ut legatum, he ſhall not be in Execution for the Plaintiff, without Prayer or Motion to the Court, Co. 5. 89. *F. If after a Judgment given, the Judges of their own heads, or at the requeſt of a Gaoler, or the like, without any Prayer of the Plaintiff, do commit the Defendant to priſon; by this the Defendant ſhall not be ſaid to be in Execution at the Sute of the Plaintiff, Dyer 297.

And in all theſe, and ſuch like caſes where the Law doth once adjudg the party to be in Execution at the Sute of the Plaintiff, if the Sheriff ſuffer him to eſcape, he is chargable for the ſame to the Plaintiff in an Action of Debt, or the caſe, Dyer 306. Debt. Action of the Caſe.

If a Defendant die, his body being in Execution, the Plaintiff may have a new Execution againſt the Lands or Goods of the Defendant as he pleaſeth. CHAP. LXXXIII.

Of Extinguiſhment.

IT ſignifieth the effect of Conſolidation, and is uſed for a perpetual ſtop of a mans right; as for example, If one have a Rent-charge, iſſuing out of Land for ever, and after he purchaſe the ſame Land for ever; now hereby the Rent is extinct for ever. So if a Leſſee for years obtain the Fee-ſimple of Land, ſo that both Eſtates are ſimul & ſemel, in him, now by this the leſſer Eſtate for years, is extinct; and this differeth from Suſpenſion; becauſe in that caſe the right ſuſpended doth revive again: But in this the right extinct dieth for ever; but in this they both agree, that whiles the thing ſuſpended or extinct, doth ſo remain, it is as if it were not, and cannot be uſed or diſpoſed, or had as before; as a Debt ſo Suſpended or Extinct, cannot be ſued for, or had by Executors: A Term of years ſo ſuſpended or extinct, cannot be had, or diſpoſed, or deviſed, neither ſhall go to Executors Sect. 1. 1. Extinguiſhment, what. Reviver.

as another Term, and ſo for the reſt; for this operation of Law makes a kinde of nullity of it: And yet in ſome ſpecial Caſes, a thing ſuſpended, or extinct, ſhall be ſaid to be in eſſe, as to a third perſon; as if one that is Leſſee for years, charge his Land he holdeth, ſo for his Term with a Rent, and then ſurrender to his Leſſor. Now howſoever his Term be extinct, as to his Leſſor, and to himſelf, yet as to the Grantee of the Rent it hath his eſſe ſtill: So if an Executor have a Leaſe for years, and purchaſe the Fee-ſimple of the Land, as to the Executor, and others; this is, and ſhall be ſaid to be extinct; but as to Creditors to be accounted Aſſets, this ſhall be ſaid to be in eſſe, and the Executor ſhall anſwer for it. See Extinguiſhment. Co. 10. 52.

1 Suſpenſion, what.

This word is ſometimes uſed Prominori Excommunicatione. For which ſee the Statute of 24 *H.*8. 12. But more commonly, and ſo in this place it is uſed for a Temporal Stop of a Mans Right. As for example, When one hath a Rent or Service out of Land in Fee, and then Purchaſe an Eſtate in the Land for life or years; now by this, the Rent for the time is ſuſpended, and the Purchaſor cannot have it, Co. upon Littl. 313. 379. 147. Co. 2. 61.

3. What things may be Extinguiſhed or Suſpended, or not.

All kinde of Rent, Seigniories, Services, Commons, Ways, Cuſtoms, Franchiſes, Liberties, Immunities, Uſes, Executions, Warranties, Debts, Statutes, Obligations, Rights, Titles, Actions, Conditions, Preſcriptions, Authorities, and Eſtates for life or years, may be Extinct, and ſome of theſe ſuſpended. But Eſtates in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail cannot be ſuſpended, nor extinguiſhed by a greater Eſtate. See Infra, Dyer 281. Co. upon Littl. 102. 389, 390. And this Suſpenſion may be of any of Seigniory, Rent, Profit, Apprender, &c. By reaſon of the unity of poſſeſſion of the ſame, and of the Land, out of which it doth iſſue, and then it ſleepeth onely, and may be awaked or revived; but when they are extinguiſhed, they die, and cannot be revived, and ſo long no benefit can be taken of the Poſſeſſion, by Rent, Wardſhip, or the like; but of an Eſcheat, or any thing touching the Right, Contrà, Co. upon Littl. 313.

4. In what caſe an Extinguiſhment ſhall be, or not. Of an Eſtate.

Where a greater and leſſor Eſtate do come together, by what means ſoever in one perſon ſimul & ſemel, and the one is leſs then the other, and that other ſo great, as it is able to ſwallow up the leſſer; in this caſe the leſſer ſhall be drowned in the greater, and utterly extinct: As for example, If an Eſtate for life, or years, and the Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail, come together, the Eſtate for life or years, is extinct. So if a Leaſe for years, and a Leaſe for life, come together, the Leaſe for years (though it be for never ſo many years) is extinct. Broo. Extinguiſhment 51. 34. Co. upon Littl. 300.

So if an Executor have a Leaſe for years from his Teſtator, and then purchaſe the Fee-ſimple, or the Fee diſcend upon him, the Leaſe for years, is extinct. So if one have an Eſtate for his own life, and an Eſtate, (i. e.) for anothers life at once, the Eſtate pur auter vie, is extinct, and drowned in the Eſtate for his own life. So if a Leaſe be made to A. for the life of B. the Remainder to A. for his own life; the Eſtate for the life of B. is extinct, and drowned, Co. 1. 87. Bro. 409. Dyer 11. Co. 11. 87.

If one be poſſeſſed of a Term of years, and do by his will deviſe it to A. for life, the Remainder to B. and after A. purchaſe the Fee, or it do diſcend upon him; in this caſe the Leaſe is extinct, becauſe the Remainder to B. is void, Co. 10. 52.

If the Tenant for life or years, and a ſtranger purchaſe the Fee-ſimple, the Term is extinct; as to one Moyety of the Land, Co. 2. 61.

If a Leſſee for years be ouſted, and he in Reverſion diſſeiſed, and the Leſſee do Releaſe to the Diſſeiſor, the Term is extinct, and the Diſſeiſee may enter: But contrà if he that Releaſe had an Eſtate for life, Co. upon Littl. 276.

If an Eſtate be to A. for life, the Remainder to B. for life, the Remainder to A. in Fee, and A. die; now the Eſtate for life to A. is extinct, 46 Ed. 3. 16.

If one that hath an Eſtate, as Tenant in Tail after a poſſibility of Iſſue extinct come by an Eſtate in Tail, or in Fee; the Eſtate he hath as Tenant after Poſſibility, is extinct. Bro. Eſtate 25.

If

If one that hath an Eſtate for his own life, get after an Eſtate for two other lives, his laſt Eſtate for two other lives, is extinct. But ſuch Eſtates may be one in Remainder after another, Co. 5 11. Sect. 2.

If a Tenant by Elegit take a Confirmation from the Conuſor, for the Term of his life, his Eſtate he had by the Elegit, is extinct; and the Tenant that was by Elegit, hath now an Eſtate onely for life, from the Confirmor, ſubject to his charges before the Confirmation as other Eſtates for life. Bro. Extinguiſhment 30.

If a Tenant by Statute obtain the Fee-ſimple of the Land, his Eſtate he had by the Extent, is extinct. Bro. Extinguiſhment 30. 56.

If an Eſtate in Fee Conditional, and an abſolute Fee-ſimple come together, and they are united, the abſolute Eſtate hath drowned the other, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 18.

If one after his Title, begun to be Tenant by Courteſie, make a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition, and enter for the Condition broken; yet by this he hath extinct his Eſtate, ſo that though his Wife die, yet he ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie.

But to make an Extinguiſhment of an Eſtate, theſe two things muſt be.

1. The two Eſtates muſt be together in the ſame perſon ſimul & ſemel in poſſeſſion; and there muſt be no intervenient Eſtate between them. Of Rent, Services, Way, Common, and the like.

2. The one of them muſt be greater and higher then the other, able to drown and ſwallow up the other, or elſe there will be no Extinguiſhment of either; as for Examples.

If there be a Leſſee for ten years, the Remainder for ten years, or the Leſſor grant to another for twenty years, and the firſt Leſſee for ten years, have or purchaſe an Eſtate for life, or in Fee: Now in this caſe his Leaſe for ten years is not extinct. Bro. Extinguiſhment 1. 54. Bro. Sect. 409.

If the Leſſor make a Deed of Feoffment, and a Letter of Attorney to the Leſſee for years, to make Livery, and he doth it accordingly; this will not extinguiſh the Term, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 52.

If Lands be given to two men, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, though here they have an Eſtate for life joyntly, and ſeveral Inheritances; yet the Eſtate for life, is not extinct: But if it were by ſeveral conveynces, contrà; as if a Leaſe were made to two for lives, and after the Leſſor grant the Reverſion to them two, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies, the Eſtate is drowned, Co. upon Littl. fol. 182. Sect. 3.

If an Eſtate-tail, and a Fee-ſimple come together, they continue divided in him, and the one of them doth not drown the other, Co. 1. in Altonwoods caſe.

If an Eſtate in Tail after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, and an Eſtate for life, otherwiſe come together, they are neither of them extinct; for they are all one in quantity.

So if a Fee-ſimple, and a Fee tail Eſtate meet together, the Eſtate-tail is not extinct. Co. 12. 81. 3. 61.

If a Man or Woman Leſſee for years, take a Husband or Wife that hath the Reverſion, it ſeems this Term by this is not extinct.

If an Eſtate be to a Husband and Wife for the life of the Wife, the Remainder to the Husband in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband, the Eſtate for life here, is not extinct, 8 Ed. 4. 20.

If a Leaſe be made to one for his life, and twenty years over, theſe two Eſtates will ſtand together well enough, and there ſhall be no Extinguiſhment. But if it were a Leaſe for twenty years, the Remainder to him for life; here the Eſtate for years were extinguiſhed, Bro. Extinguiſhment.

If a Leſſor make Livery upon the Land of his Leſſee for years Rendring Rent, and the Leſſee give him leave to do it; it ſeems this is not Extinguiſhment of the Term, Dyer 33.

If one that hath a Leaſe for years, grant it to his Wife that hath the Reverſion, and to a ſtranger; by this the Moyety, that the Wife hath, is not extinct, Plow. 67.

If one that hath Execution by a Statute, get a Judgment againſt the Conuſor, and Execution of the ſame Land by Elegit; here is no Extinguiſhment. Bro. Extinguiſhment 67.

If A. makes a Leaſe to B. for years, and after Covenant with C. to levy a Fine to B. and do ſo till a Recovery be had, to the intent onely that B. might be Tenant to the Precipe, and that a Recovery might be had, which was to be to the uſe of C. and his Heirs, and a Fine and a Recovery is had accordingly; in this caſe the Term is not drowned, but ſaved by the Statute of 27 H. 8. of Uſes, Hill. 20 Jac. B. R. Fermors caſe. See Acts.

Of Rent, Services, Way, Common, and the like.

Where one hath as high, as good, and durable Eſtate in any Land, as he hath in any Rent, Common, or other profit, Apprender in or out of the Land, there the Rent, Common, or other profit, is extinct: As if the Lord do purchaſe the Land, or the Land do diſcend to him from his Tenant; now the Services are extinct.

So if one have a Rent-charge iſſuing out of the Land to him, and his Heirs, and he purchaſe the Fee-ſimple of the Land, out of which the Rent doth iſſue, or of any part of it, the Rent is extinct.

So if the Lord and another do purchaſe the Land, out of which he is to have Services, the Services are extinct. But if in that caſe the Grantor by his Deed, reciting the ſaid purchaſe of part, doth grant that he may diſtrain for the Rent; in the Reſidue this will amount to a new grant, Co. upon Littl. fol. 147, 148.

Sect. 4. If a Lord diſſeiſe the Tenant: and make a Feoffment of the Land on Condition, and enter on the breach of him; yet the Seigniory, is extinct. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, fol. 30. Co. Rep. 1 part. 38. 134.

By Releaſe, Services may be extinct, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 76.

If three Joyntenants hold by an Entry yearly Rent, as a Horſe, &c. and the Tenant ceſſe by two years, and the Lord recover two parts againſt two of them, and the third ſues his part by tendring, and giving Sureties; now hereby the Entry, Annual Rent, is extinct, Co. upon Littl. fol. 149.

If there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty and Herriot Service, and the Lord purchaſe part of the Land, the Herriot-Service is extinct, but contrà of an Herriot Cuſtom, Co. upon Littl. 149. And ſee Knights Service; for in theſe caſes, the Service doth continue: But Eſcuage ſhall be Apportioned, and is not extinct. Co. on Littl. 149.

If the Grantee grant the Rent to the Tenant of the Land, and a ſtranger, it is extinct for a Moyety, Co. idem.

If there be Lord Meſn and Tenant, and the Lord purchaſe the Tenancy in Fee; the Meſnalty is extinct; but if the Tenant infeoff the Lord, and his Wife, and their Heirs, here it is but ſuſpended; for if the Wife ſurvive, both Seigniory and Meſnalty are revived, Co. upon Littl. f. 155. See more there.

So if the Tenant purchaſe the Seigniory, the Meſnalty is extinct: So if one that hath Common Appendant in another Land, purchaſe all that Land; this unity of that Land doth extinguiſh the Common. So if one have a Way Appendant to his Mill, or Houſe, or to Church, or the like, through another mans ground, and he purchaſe the ground, through which his Way is, whiles he hath the ground, or Houſe to which it is Appendant; now by this, the Way is extinct: And therefore if he ſell this ground, after it will be wiſdom for him to take care, that he do except and reſerve his Way again which he may do de novo, if he will: But if a whole Pariſh had ſuch a Way, through a ground to Church, and one purchaſe the ground; this would not extinguiſh the Way.

If A. have White-acre and B. Black-acre, and A. have a Way over Black-acre, belonging to White-acre, and he purchaſe both the Acres, hereby the Way is extinct. And therefore if A. afterwards infeoff C. of Black-acre without exception, his Way is gone, B. R. Trin. 2 Car. Mich. Mr. Davers caſe, 11 H. 4. 5. 21 Ed. 3. 2. So by a Releaſe of Rent or Services, they may be extinct: For which ſee Releaſes. Co. upon Littl. fol. 147. a. b. & 312. Co. 2. 73. Co. 4. 38. D. & St. 35. Dyer 45. Plow. 72. 3 Aſſ. pl. 15.

If

If there be Leſſee for life, the Remainder in Fee, and he in Remainder die without Heir; now hereby the Services are extinct.

If a Father grant a Rent-charge to his Son in Fee out of his Land, and the Rent is behinde, the Father die, and it doth diſcend to the Son; in this caſe both the Rent and Annuity are determined, and yet an Action of Debt lieth for the Arrearages, Co. 4. 49. Bro. Extinguiſhment 3. Sect. 5.

If there be any Joyntenants or Coparceners that are to do Sute, and the part of one come to the Lord; now the Sute is extinct. See Cromp. Jur. f. 50. Perk. Sect. 591, 592, 593. Bro. Sute 1.

If one that hath Common by Preſcription in twenty Acres, Releaſe his Common in part of this Land; by this he hath extinct his Common in all, Adjudg. Rotterams caſe, 39, 40 Eliz.

A Lord by Diſclaimer of Services or Seigniory, doth extinguiſh them, Co. upon Littl. fol. 102. If it be in a Court of Record, to make an Extinguiſhment of Rent, &c. theſe three things are requiſite,

1. That the Land and Rent, &c. to be had out of it, be in one hand.
2. That he have both by a good Title.
3. That he have a like Eſtate in both, for otherwiſe there ſhall be no Extinguiſhment. *Plow.*419. *Littl. ſect.*561. As for examples.

If a Woman have a Rent out of three Acres, and after ſhe recover one of the Acres by a Title of Dower; now hereby it ſeems the Rent is not extinct, but ſhall be Apportioned. Bro. Extinguiſhment 52. Homage and Fealty are not extinct by the Lords purchaſe of part of the Land, Co. upon Littl. 149.

If one make a Leaſe for years, rendring Rent, and after make a Feoffment of the Land, and give Livery without the leave of the Leſſee; this is no Extinguiſhment of the Rent. Bro. Extinguiſhment. So alſo of a Leaſe for life: But if one be ſeiſed of a Rent in Fee, and Diſſeiſe the Tenant of the Land, and make a Feoffment in Fee, the Rent is extinct, and will not be revived by the Regreſs of the Tenant. Co. 5. Sir Moyl Finches caſe. Co. upon *Littl.*319.

If a Commoner alien part of his Land, to which the Common doth belong, by this his Common is not extinct, but it ſhall be divided. See Common. If one that hath Common Appendant, purchaſe part of the Land, in which he hath the Common, is not extinct, but ſhall be Apportioned, contrà of Common Appurtenant, *Co.*8.78.

If one have Common Appendant in a great Waſte belonging to his Tenant, and the Lord improve part of the Waſte, and leave ſufficient (which he may do) and after make a Feoffment to the Commoner of this; this is no Extinguiſhment, Dyer 339.

If a Copiholder by Cuſtom claim Common in a great Waſte, and the Lord grant part of it to another, and then make a Copihold Eſtate, yet the Tenant will have Common ſtill, *Co.*8. 64.

If one have a Warren in other Land, and he after purchaſe the Land; this Unity of Poſſeſſion alone, doth not extinguiſh the Warren; but if he make a Feoffment of the Land without excepting his Warren, it ſeems it is extinct, Co. 11. 13. Bro. Extinguiſhment 5.

If one make a Leaſe of three Acres of equal value, yielding three ſhillings Rent, and the Leſſor grant the Reverſion of one, the Grantee ſhall have part of the Rent, *Co.*8. 79.

If a Pariſh hath Way through a ground to Church or Market, and one of them purchaſe it, the Way is not extinct; for this is of neceſſity, otherwiſe it is for other ways, Adjudged, Jordens caſe, Hill. 4 *Jac. B. R. Cromp. Jur.*95. *Co.*517.

If a Leſſee for years grant a Rent-charge, and then doth Surrender, yet the Rent doth continue.

If one that hath a Service in Chivalry, purchaſe Parcel of the Tenancy, yet the Service is not extinct, but remaineth entire, Co. 26.

So if one purchaſe of his Tenant, that holdeth by Rent, Service, Parcel, the Rent ſhall be divided, and is not extinct, Co. upon *Littl.*149.

If

If one that hath a Rent-charge of twenty ſhillings, Releaſe to the Tenant of the Land ten ſhillings, or more, or leſs; this doth not extinguiſh the reſt: So if ſuch a Grantee grant over ten ſhillings parcel of the ſame to another, and the Tenant Attorn; and yet theſe are good, and hereby the Rent is divided, Co. upon Littl. fol. 149. 9 H 6. 12, 53. F. N. B. 152.

If the Land out of which Rent-charge is granted, be recovered by an elder Title, the Rent is not extinct, but the party hath this Writ of Annuity for yet, though the Land be diſcharged, Co. upon Littl. f. 148. So if ceſtuy que vie of Land grant a Rent out of it for one and twenty years, and he for whoſe life it is, dieth within the one and twenty years, yet the Rent ſhall continue as an Annuity, Co. upon Littl. 148.

If B. make a Leaſe of one Acre to A. for life, and A. is ſeiſed of another Acre in Fee, and granteth a Rent-charge to B. out of both, and doth Waſte in the Acre, which he holdeth for life, or maketh a Feoffment of it, and B. recovereth or entereth; in this caſe the whole Rent is not extinct, but ſhall be apportioned, Co. upon Littl. fol. 148.

If one deceaſe the Term-Tenant, that hath a Rent in Fee, or take a Feoffment on Condition; this will not extinct the Rent, Littl. 58.

Of Debts, Cauſes of Action, Obligations, Condition, or Right.

If a Debtee by Obligation, or otherwiſe make a Debtor his Executor, or the Debtor, and another, his Executors; by this the Debt is Releaſed, in Law, and extinct; and that alſo, though the other Executor do ſurvive the Debtor: But as to other Creditors and Legates, this ſhall be ſaid Aſſets, Simons caſe. Trin. 7 *Jac. If an Executor give an Obligation for the payment of a Legacy, it ſeems this doth not extinguiſh the Legacy, but the party may ſue for which he will. By Juſt. Dodridge, 18 Jac.

Condition.

If an Obligation be given, and taken for a Debt due, or a Judgment, or another Obligation; this doth not extinguiſh the former Debt. So neither an Obligation for a Debt due before Auditors on an Accompt. See Debt, Co. 8. 135. Broo. Oblig. 23.

In all caſes, for the moſt part, where a Feoffment will make an Extinguiſhment of an Eſtate, Condition, Rent, or the like, there a Leaſe for years will make a Suſpenſion, Co. 8. 79. See above and beneath. 5. In what caſe a Suſpenſion ſhall be, or not.

And Note, that where there is a Suſpenſion there is no Extinguiſhment: As if one that hath Common Appurtenant in Land, take a Leaſe of part of the Land; this doth ſuſpend his Common, Co. 8. 79. Note.

If one have a Rent or Services out of any Land in Fee, and he purchaſe the ſame Land for life or years, by this the Rent or Service is ſuſpended for that time: So if one have a Rent-charge in Fee, and grant it for life to the Tenant in Fee of the Land, or in Fee to the Tenant for life of the Land; this is a Suſpenſion of the Rent, Finches Ley 134. But it is no Extinguiſhment, and therefore in the firſt caſe, it may be with a Remainder over; in the next, the Tenant may grant it in his life; if he do not, his Heir ſhall have it. Of Rent, Services, Way, &c.

If the Tenant that holdeth by Rent-ſervice, make a Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for life, or years to his Lord; now hereby all the Rent is ſuſpended, and ſhall not be apportioned; Contrà, if the Lord purchaſe in Fee, Co. upon Littl. 148.

So when the Leſſor doth enter upon his Leſſee, and before the day of payment, the Leſſee doth re-enter; this ſhall be no Suſpenſion of the Rent, Co. 2. 31. Packhurſt caſe. Paſche, 7 Jac. B R.

If a Feoffee or Leſſee Covenant to pay a yeerly ſum, as a ſum in groſs, and not as a Rent, and the Leſſor enter upon the Leſſee, or the Leſſee redemiſe to the Leſſor; this is no Suſpenſion of this payment, as it were, if it were a Rent, Co. 4. 52.

If a Feoffment be made in Fee or Leaſe for years, rendring Rent, and the Feoffee, or Leſſee make a Leaſe for years, to the Feoffor or Leſſor, of all or part of that which paſſes by the firſt Leaſe or Feoffment; by this the Rent is ſuſpended, Co. 4. 52.

Rent. If a Leſſor do enter upon his Leſſee for life or years, wrongfully, and keep him out of Poſſeſſion: Now by this, the Rent is ſuſpended till the Leſſee re-enter again; and if he enter upon his Leſſee, and make a Feoffment (and this be a good Feoffment) till the re-entry of the Leſſee, the Rent is ſuſpended. So if he enter upon part onely, and keep out the Leſſee; this is a Suſpenſion for the whole. So if he keep the Poſſeſſion at firſt, and the Leſſee never enter. But if the Leſſor re-enter ſeverally, the Rent is revived, if he enter ſpecially contrà, where the Leſſor doth enter lawfully, as upon a Surrender, Forfeiture, or the like, there ſhall be Apportionment of the Rents, Co. 2. 31. & 4. 5. 21. Plow. 421. Co. upon Littl. fol. 148. Co. 4. 52. Brownl 80. pl. 18.

If one have Common Appendant in Land, and he take a Leaſe for life or years, of all or part of that Land; now hereby the Common is ſuſpended

Way. If one have a Way Appendant to any place, through another's ground, and he take a Leaſe of that ground; now by this he hath ſuſpended his Way.

Rent. If Leſſor grant a Rent-charge, and die, the Tenant for life, being his Heir, he ſhall hold it diſcharged for his life; and therefore the Rent is not extinct to all purpoſes; but if the Tenant for life purchaſe the Fee, contrà, 9 Edw. 4. 18. 11 H. 7. 12.

If Tenant for life make a Leaſe for years, rendring Rent, and after this, the Reverſion diſcend to the Tenant for life, the Rent is not gone, Adjudg, Winſors caſe: But if he purchaſe the Reverſion, contrà, Co. 1. 96.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant letteth Tenements to a Woman for life, the Remainder to another in Fee, and the Lord grant the Services to the Huſband and his Heirs; theſe Services are ſuſpended, during the Coverture; but when the Wife dies, are revived, Littl. ſect. 58.

Of Debts and Cauſes of Action and Condition, &c. Condition. If a Debtor marry with a Debtee Executrix, hereby the Debt is ſuſpended, during the marriage. See before.

If one make a Feoffment of Land in Fee, on condition that the Feoffee ſhall reinfeoff the Feoffor of it, and before it be done, the Feoffor make a Leaſe of all or part of this Land to another; now by this the Condition is ſuſpended: So if the Feoffee had made a Leaſe to the Feoffor of all or part of the Land; this had ſuſpended the Condition, during the Leaſe, if the Condition were to pay Rent, or the like: But if the Condition were for a Collateral thing, the payment of a ſum in groſs, or the like, contrà. If a Feme-ſole Infeoff a man of Land by Deed indented, reſerving Rent to her, and her Heirs, at Eaſter, on Condition to re-enter for non-payment, and then they intermarry; now hereby, during the Coverture, the Rent and Condition are ſuſpended; and if the Condition had been to pay him ten pound at a day, and before he marry her, the Condition is gone, Co. 4. 52. 2. 59. Co. upon Littl. 217, 218.

A Rent-ſervice may be extinct or ſuſpended in part by purchaſe of the Land, but not a Rent-charge; but by a Releaſe, part of a Rent-charge (as it ſeems) may be extinct. Bro. Extinguiſhment, Perk. ſect. 71. 6. Where a thing may be extinct or ſuſpended in part, and how.

A Condition cannot be extinct or ſuſpended in part, but muſt be ſo in all, Co. upon Littl. 215. Co. 2. 50.

A Seigniory Rent, or the like, cannot by any rightful or wrongful act of the party be ſuſpended in part, and in eſſe, for another part, in reſpect of the Land, out of which it is iſſuing: So neither can it by ſuch act be ſuſpended for a Remainder, and in eſſe for the particular Eſtate; but by the act of Law, or of a third perſon, ſuch a Suſpenſion may be, Co. 9. 129. Sect. 8. Seigniory.

By act of the party, a Rent-ſervice cannot be ſuſpended in part, and in eſſe for another part, but by act of Law it may: As when the Gardein in Chivalry entreth into his Wards Land within age; now is the Seigniory ſuſpended, and yet if the Wife of the Tenant be endowed of a third part of the Tenancy, ſhe ſhall pay to the Lord the third part of the Rent, Co. upon Littl. 148. So if the Tenant give part of his Land in Tail to the Father of the Lord, and he die, and it diſcend to the Lord; and ſo it is of a Rent-charge. Idem.

A Seigniory may be ſuſpended in part, by the act of a ſtranger, as if two Joyntenants or Coparceners be of a Seigniory, and one of them doth Diſſeiſe his Tenant, the other may diſtrain for his part, Co. upon Littl 148.

All the things noted before to be ſuſpended, it ſeems, may be revived again, unleſs it be Eſtates; and perſonal things, for they being once ſuſpended, can never be revived, unleſs it be in ſpecial caſes; as the caſe of marriage of a Feme-Executrix with a Debtor (before) and as ſome hold, if a Feme-Obligee marry with the Obligor, and after they be divorced, that now here ſhall be a Reviver of this Debt: But Rents, Seigniories, Services, Conditions, and the like, being once ſuſpended, may be after revived; and therefore if the Tenant Infeoff his Lord on Condition, and after enter; for the Condition broken, the Seigniory is revived, Perk. 19. 7. Where a thing once ſuſpended, may be revived, or not.

If one have a Rent-charge in Fee going out of his Land, and marry with the Woman-Tenant in Fee of the Land, after the marriage diſſolved, the Rent is revived; and if the Husband grant it away, during the Coverture (as it ſeems he may) the Grantee may diſtrain for it preſently. See more Co. upon Littl. 312, 313, 314. 5 Ed. 3. 16. Co. 8. 136. Plow. 36. 72. 154.

If the Heir make a Leaſe for life, reſerving Rent, and the Wife recover Dower againſt his Leſſee, and dieth, and the Leſſee have the Land again; now the Rent is revived, Co. lib. Inſt. fol 42. 1 part. 7 H. 5. 4.

If a Man Leaſe a Houſe and Cloſe, rendring Rent, and the Leſſor enters into the Houſe, and pulleth it down, and then the Leſſee doth re-enter in the Cloſe; in this caſe the Rent once extinct, is not revived, Goldsb. 125. pl. 15.

If one hold 3 Acres by three Rent, and Leaſe one to his Lord for years, here the whole Seigniory is ſuſpended, Bro. 133. If a Feoffment or Leaſe be of divers Parcels of Land, rendring ſeveral Rents out of every Parcel, with Condition of re-entry for non-payment, and the Feoffor or Feoffee make a Leaſe or Feoffment of one Parcel onely, or a Leſſee in ſuch a caſe Surrender one Parcel onely; in theſe caſes the whole Condition is extinct or ſuſpended, Co. 2. 59. 5. 54. 8. Where all or part of the thing onely, ſhall be extinct or ſuſpended.

If a Lord do purchaſe Parcel of the Land that his Tenant doth hold by Herriot-ſervice, the whole ſervice is extinct, contrà if it were by Herriot Cuſtom, 8 H. 7. 10.

If the Lord and another purchaſe the Land of his Tenant, out of which his ſervices do come; the whole ſervices are extinct, 34 Aſſ. 15.

If the Lord purchaſe or accept Parcel of the Tenancy, out of which an entire ſervice is to be paid, or done, or Releaſe his Right in Parcel, the whole Service (whether it be matter of pleaſure, or profit) is extinct, if it be onely ſuch a thing as for the benefit of the Lord; but if it be pro bono publico, then no part of it is extinct, Co. 6. 1. 8. 105.

If one that hath twenty pounds due by Contract, take an Obligation for ten pounds, the whole Debt of twenty pounds is extinct. See more of theſe matters in Apportionment, and other Titles here and there. Bro. Contract 80.

CHAP. LXXXIV.

Of Farm-Farmers, Fee-farm, Faſting-days, Feoffment, Fairs and Markets.

Of Fairs and Markets.

AS to Fairs and Markets, theſe things are to be known.

1. He that hath a Fair or Market, muſt have it by the Kings Grant or Preſcription, ſee Franchiſe.

2. They are not to be kept in Church-yards, Weſtm cap. 6.

3. By an old Law they were forbidden to be held upon Aſcenſion-day, Corpus Chriſti, Whitſunday, Trinity Sunday, the Aſſumption of the Virgin Mary, All-Saints, Good-Friday, nor any Sundays, (the four Sundays in Harveſt excepted) in pain to forfeit the Wares ſo ſhewed to the Lord of the Franchiſe, 27 *H.*6. 5. But they may be kept three days before, or three days after Proclamation being thereof made before-hand, Idem.

4. Every Lord at the beginning of his Fair, is to cry and publiſh how long it ſhall endure, in pain to be grievouſly puniſhed, 2 *Ed.*3. 15.

5. No perſon may keep a Fair longer then he ought to do, in pain to have it ſeiſed into the Kings hand, until he hath made Fine for ſo doing.

6. Merchants after the Fair ended, ſhall cloſe their ſhops, and ſell no more after, in pain to forfeit the double value of the Ware ſo ſold, 5 *Ed.*3.5.

Pi-powder Court.

7. No Action ſhall be admitted in the Pipowder Court, (which is incident to every Fair) but where the Plaintiff, or his Attorney firſt ſwear, That the matter contained in the Declaration was done within the Juriſdiction, and at the time of the Fair, to which Oath the Defendant may joyn iſſue. And if it be tried and go againſt him, or he refuſe to be ſworn, the Defendant ſhall be diſcharged, 17 *Ed.*4. 2.

8. Any Londoner may carry to and ſell Wares in any Fair or Market, 3 *H.*7. 9.

9. Every owner of Fair muſt have a Toll-taker, or if no Toll be paid, a Book-keeper, that muſt ſit there from ten a clock till Sun-ſet in pain of forty ſhillings.

10. He muſt within one day of the Fair, give to the owner of the Fair, a Note of all the Horſes there ſold in pain of forty ſhillings, which the owner muſt ſubſcribe in pain of forty ſhillings.

11. Sale of a ſtoln horſe, and ſold there without Entry in this Book, making him known, Voucher, &c. will not change the property of it. See Property and Statutes, 2, 3 *Ph. & Ma.*7. 31 *Eliz.*12.

Toll in a Fair or Market.

12. Toll to the Fair or Market, is a reaſonable ſum of money due to the owner of the Fair or Market upon ſale of things, tollable within the Fair or Market, or for Stallage, Vicage, or the like.

As touching which, theſe things are to be known.

1. If the King had granted to a man a Fair or Market, and granted no Toll, the Patentee ſhould have had no Toll; and this is a free Fair or Market: And after the King could not have granted Toll without Quid pro quo, (i.e.) ſome proportionable benefit to the Subject.

2. If the Toll be outragious that the King grants, it is void, and it is a free Market or Fair.

3. No Toll is to be paid for any thing brought into a Market or Fair to be ſold to the owner of the Fair, before ſale of the thing, without eſpecial Cuſtom for it time out of minde.

4. It ought to be taken of the buyer onely, when the thing is ſold, but in ancient Fairs and Markets, Toll may be paid for a ſtanding in a Fair or Market, though nothing be ſold, Co. 2 *part. Inſt.*220, 221.

5. If

5. If the King had granted to any generally or ſpecially to be diſcharged of this Toll; this will diſcharge him from all Tolls, to the Kings own Fairs or Markets, and if the Tolls of any Fair or Market, granted after ſuch Grant of Diſcharge, but cannot diſcharge Tolls formerly due to ſubjects, either by Grant or Preſcription. Exemption from Toll.

6. Tenants in Ancient Demeſn for the Lands in their own poſſeſſion, are to pay no Toll; but if he be a common Merchant, and uſe buying and ſelling of things that riſe not upon the Manurance and Husbandry of thoſe Lands, for theſe he muſt pay Toll.

7. The King was not to pay Toll for any of his Goods. Prerogative.

8. The reaſonableneſs or unreaſonableneſs, is to be tryed by the Judges, Co. 2 part Inſt. 222. Tryal.

Of Farm-Farmers.

THe word Farm is moſt properly taken for the chief Meſſuage in a Village or Town, whereunto doth belong great Demeans of all ſorts, and hath been uſed to be let for life, years, or at Will: So that it is a Collective word, conſiſting of divers things gathered into one, as a Meſſuage, Land, Meadow, Paſture, Woods, Commons, and the like. And he that is Leſſee of ſuch a Farm, or occupieth it, is called the Farmor; but the Rent reſerved upon a Leaſe of ſuch a Farm, is called a Farm or Ferm. And a Farmor doth ſometimes ſignifie any Leſſee for life, years, or at Will, of Lands or Houſes, though never ſo few: So ſometimes by Farm or Ferm, is underſtood any Houſe or Land, taken by Indenture of Leaſe or Leaſe-Parol: And Fee-Ferm properly is where the Lord upon the making of the Tenancy, doth reſerve to himſelf and his Heirs the Rent, for which it was before let to Ferm, or at leaſt the fourth part thereof, and is always a great Rent, and reſerved upon an Eſtate in Fee for ever, Plow. 295: Co. 2 part. Inſt. 44.

The Laws of Holidays, 5, 6 Ed. 6. 3. 2, 3 Ed. 6. 19. And are now repealed, or out of uſe, 1 Jac. 25. And Religion: And for Faſting-days, 2, 3 Ed. 6. 19. 5 Eliz. 5. Holidays. Faſting-days.

Of a Feoffment.

FEoffamentum, i. e. Donatio feodi, ſtrictly and properly is the Gift or Grant of any Honors, Caſtles, Manors, Meſſuages, Lands, Houſes, or other Corporal Immovable things of like nature, which be hereditable to another in Fee-ſimple, i. e. to him and his Heirs for ever, by the Delivery of Seiſin and Poſſeſſion of the things given. And from hence comes the word Infeoff, for by this word and the words Give and Grant (as the moſt apt words for that purpoſe) is this kinde of conveyance moſt commonly made. Hence alſo it is that he that makes this Feoffment is called the Feoffor, and he to whom it is made the Feoffee. Alſo it is ſometimes, but improperly, called a Feoffment, when an Eſtate of Freehold onely doth paſs, New Terms Ley. Co. ſuper Lit. 9. Littl. ſect. 57. 1. Feoffment. what. Infeoff. Feoffor. Feoffee.

This kinde of Conveyance, albeit it may be made in moſt caſes by word without any writing, yet it is moſt commonly done by writing, and this writing is then called a Deed or Charter of Feoffment, but hence is the diviſion of a Feoffment by word, or a Feoffment by writing. The ancient Forms and Examples of theſe Deeds are very brief, and yet they had theſe parts contained in them. 1. The Premiſſes. 2. The Habendum. 3. The Tenendum. 4. The Reddendum. 5. The Clauſe of Warranty. 6. The In cujus rei Teſtimonium. 7. The Date. 8. The clauſe of His teſtibus. Hæc fuit candida illius ætatis fides & ſimplicitas, quæ panculis lineis omnia fidei firmamenta poſuerunt. See Weſt Sym. 1 part. ſect. 235. Co. ſuper Lit. 6. 2. The kindes.

And this manner of Conveyance, as it is the moſt ancient kinde of Conveyance, ſo is it the beſt and moſt excellent of all others, and in ſome reſpects doth excel the Conveyance by Fine or Recovery: For it is of that nature and efficacy by reaſon of the Livery of Seiſin evermore inſeparably incident to it, that it cleareth all Diſſeiſins, Abatements, Intruſions, and other wrongful and defeaſible Titles, and reduceth the Eſtate clearly to the Feoffee when the Entry of the Feoffor is lawful, which neither Fine, Recovery, nor Bargain and Sale by Deed indented and inrolled 3. The nature and operation of it.

will doe when the Feoffor is out of poſſeſſion. And it paſſeth the preſent eſtate of the Feoffor, and not only ſo, but barreth and excludeth him of all preſent and future right and poſſibility of right to the thing which is ſo conveyed, inſomuch that if one have divers eſtates all of them paſs by his Feoffment, and if he have any intereſt, Rent, Common, or the like into or out of the Land, it is extinguiſhed and gone by the Feoffment. And further it barreth the Feoffor of all collaterall benefits touching the Land, as condition, power of revocation, writs of error, attaint and the like, inſomuch that if a man make an eſtate of his land upon condition, or with power to revoke it, and after he make a Feoffment of the Land; by this he is barred for ever of taking advantage of the condition or power of revocation. It deſtroyeth contingent uſes, gives away a future uſe incluſively, gives away a Seigniory incluſively, and gives away a right of action: for both the Feoffment and livery of ſeiſin incident thereunto are much favoured in law, and ſhall be conſtrued moſt ſtrongly againſt the Feoffor and in advantage of the Feoffee. And beſides all this, becauſe it is ſo ſolemnly and publiquely made, it is of all other conveyances moſt obſerved, and therefore beſt remembred and proved. Co. ſuper Lit. 49. 9. Co. 1, 111. 112. Plow. 554. 9 H. 7. 24. 39 H. 6. 43. Co. ſuper Lit. 237. *Perk. 4 Who may make or take a Feoffment. And what ſhal be ſaid a good Feoffment. Or not. And what things are requiſite thereunto.

If the Feoffment be made by Deed, then muſt the Deed be ſo made, written, read, ſealed, and delivered as all other Deeds that are well made muſt be. For which ſee Deed ſupra cap. 4. Numb. 5.

1. In reſpect of the perſons thereunto and the quality of their eſtate. Men de non ſane memorie. Feme covert. Infant. Attaint perſons. Outlawed perſons.

And in every good feoffment that is made there muſt be a Feoffor, i. a perſon able to grant the thing paſſed by the Feoffment; a Feoffee. i. a perſon capable of it and able to take it, and a thing grantable, and it muſt be granted in that manner as law requireth. And for this therefore obſerve that whoſoever is diſabled by the common law to take, is diſabled alſo to make a Feoffment, gift, grant, or leaſe, and many alſo that have capacity to take by ſuch conveyances, have no ability to grant by them, as men attainted of treaſon, felony, or in a Premunire, aliens borne, the Kings villaines, Ideots, mad men, a man deafe, blind and dumbe from his nativity, a Feme covert, an infant, and a man by dureſſe, for the Feoffments, gifts. &c. of ſuch perſons may be avoided. But ſuch perſons as have committed treaſon or felony if attainder doe not follow, ſuch as are attaint of hereſie, a leper removed by the Kings writ from the ſociety of men, baſtards, ſuch as are deafe, dumbe or blind, that have underſtanding and ſound memory, albeit they cannot expreſs their intentions otherwiſe then by ſignes, thoſe that are drunken; the villaines of a common perſon before entry, &c. alſo excommunicate perſons, and outlawed perſons, albeit the King take the profits of their lands, all theſe may make Feoffments, gifts, &c. and all theſe have capacity to take by ſuch conveyances. See Grant Numb. 4. Co. ſuper Lit. 2. 42. 43. Perk. ſect. 182. 183. 185. *Bro. Feme covert.

A woman that hath a husband alone and by her ſelfe without her husband cannot make a Feoffment of her own land, and if ſhe doe ſo, it is void, albeit her husband agree to it. Perk. ſect. 185. 186.

Corporation.

Neither the head alone, nor any one or more of the members of a Corporation aggregate of many alone may make a Feoffment of any of the Land belonging to their corporation. But all of them together may make a Feoffment: and if any of them be ſeiſed of Land in his own right and in his naturall capacity, he may make a Feoffment of this land as another man may doe; yea he may make a Feoffment of this Land to the ſame corporation whereof he is a head or member, and ſo give and take alſo in a divers capacity, Fitz. faits & Feoffments 29. Perk. ſect. 205, 224. 225.

Eccleſiaſticall perſons.

Eccleſiaſticall perſons cannot make Feoffments, gifts, &c. of their Eccleſiaſticall Lands for longer time then three lives, or twenty one years, for all Feoffments, gifts, grants and leaſes by Biſhops. albeit they be confirmed by Deane and Chapter, or by any of the Colledges or halls in either of the Univerſities or elſewhere, or by Deane or Chapters, maſters or gardians of any hoſpitalls, Parſons,

Vicars

Vicars, or any other having ſpirituall or eccleſiaſticall living, are avoidable. Co. ſuper Lit. 43.

A man cannot make a Feoffment to his own wife after the marriage is conſummat: But after a contract made, and carnall knowledge had he may make a Feoffment to her, and ſuch a Feoffment will be good, Perk. ſect. 194. Husband and Wife.

One Jointenant cannot make a Feoffment of his part of the Land to his companion, for a man cannot give a poſſeſſion to him that hath it before. And hence it is alſo that the Leſſor cannot make a Feoffment to his Leſſee for life, years, or at will. And yet perhaps a Feoffment in this caſe if it be in writing, may work as a confirmation: But one Tenant in common, or one coparcenor may make a Feoffment of his part of the land to his companion. Perk. ſect. 197. Fitz. faits & Feoffments 26. Jointenants. Tenants in common.

If a man make a Feoffment of anothers land, it is a Diſſeiſin, but a good Feoffment againſt all men but the Diſſeiſee himſelf. And if foure joine in a Feoffment of Land, and three of them have nothing in the Land, and the fourth hath all the eſtate; this is a good Feoffment. Bro. Feoffment 4. Perk. ſect. 222. Diſſeiſor and Diſſeiſee.

A Diſſeiſor cannot make a Feoffment of the Land to the Diſſeiſee, but it will be void, for the Diſſeiſee will be remitted. But a Diſſeiſee may make a Deed of Feoffment and a letter of Atturney to enter and give livery; and if the Atturney doe ſo, this will be a good Feoffment, Perk. ſect. 197. Co. ſuper Lit. 48. 49.

No Feoffment, or livery of Seiſin can be made to the King, for he doth alwaies give and take by matter of record. Fitz, faits & Feoffments 21.

A Feoffment may be made at this day of any thing which doth lie in livery, by whatſoever tenure it be held, notwithſtanding the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 32. Prerogative.

But in ſome caſes where a man doth alien his Land held of the King, he muſt have the Kings licence beforehand to doe it, or elſe he muſt pay a fine to the King afterwards for not having a Licence. But of ſuch things whereof no livery of ſeiſin can be made no Feoffment can be made. Co. ſuper Lit. 49. 21 H. 7. 7 See, infra at Numb. 9. Grant. 5. 2 In reſpect of the matter whereof it is made.

One may make a Feoffment of a moity, third, fourth, or fifth part of his Manor or other land, and that by the name of a moity, third, or fourth part. Co. ſuper Lit. 190.

A Feoffment may be made of an upper chamber over another mans houſe beneath Co. ſuper Lit. 48.

If there be a meadow of one hundred acres which time out of minde hath been divided amongſt divers perſons, and each perſon hath a certaine number of acres, but in no certaine place; the cuſtome being to allot each perſon his number one yeare in one place, and another in another alternis vicibus, in this caſe either of theſe perſons may make a Feoffment of his part by the name of ſo many acres lying in ſuch a meadow without any bounding or deſcribing of it. Co. ſuper Lit. 4. 48.

If parceners have made partition of their Land, that the one ſhall have it from Eaſter to Lammas to her and her heirs, and the other ſhall have it from Lammas to Eaſter to her and her heirs, or that the one ſhall have it one year, and the other the other yeare alternis vicibus: Or if they have two Manors deſcended, and they agree that the one ſhall have the one Manor one year, and the other the other Manor the ſame year, and the next year that he that had the one ſhall have the other alternis vicibus for ever; in theſe caſes the parceners may either of them make a Feoffment of this Land or Manor. Co. ſuper Litt. 4. 48.

If there be any leaſe for life or years in being of that land or thing whereof the Feoffment is made, and he that hath this leaſe for life or years, or in his abſence his bailiff or ſervant keeping in the houſe or land whereof the Feoffment is to be made doth give leave and agree that livery of ſeiſin ſhall be given upon the houſe or Land by the Leſſor himſelf or by his atturney, and for this cauſe doth leave the poſſeſſion of the houſe or land, and thereupon livery of ſeiſin is made; this is a good Feoffment and a good livery of ſeiſin, and yet it doth not prejudice the eſtate of the Leſſee. And if the leſſor make a Feoffment of the Land to a ſtranger by aſſent or licence of the Leſſee, the Leſſee then being on the land; this is a good Feoffment. In like manner as it is, where the Leſſor doth enfeoffe a ſtranger to which the Termor doth 3 In reſpect of the preſence or poſſeſſion of other perſons on the Land at the time of the Feoffment made.

doth agree ſaving his terme. And if the Leſſor make ſuch an entry upon the Leſſee for life or years as to put him out of poſſeſſion of the Houſe or Land, and then he doth make a Feoffment and livery of ſeiſin of it, or if the Leſſor in the abſence of the Leſſee, his Wife, Servants and Children enter upon the thing in Leaſe and make a Feoffment and livery of ſeiſin thereof; in theſe caſes there is a good Feoffment to paſs the reverſion, for in theſe caſes when the Leſſee for life or years doth re-enter, the law doth adjudge this to be an atturnement in law. But if a Leſſor will enter upon his Leſſee, and againſt his will (the Leſſee being ſtill in poſſeſſion of the land) make a Feoffment of the Land and give livery; this is void and can never take effect as a Feoffment. And therefore if there be a conveyance made of a houſe and Land thereunto belonging in Leaſe, and the Feoffor come into part of the Land without the leave of the Leſſee, and there make livery of ſeiſin of that part in the name of all the reſt of the Land, (the Leſſee himſelf, his Wife, Child, or ſervant being then upon any other part of the Land, and eſpecially if they be in the houſe) this is no good Feoffment for any part of the Land, but void for the whole. And yet if the Leſſee for years make an under-leaſe of part of the Land to another, and the Feoffor doth make a Feoffment of this part, and give livery of ſeiſin upon this part, in this caſe the poſſeſſion of the firſt Leſſee in the reſidue will not hurt the Feoffment or livery for this part, but it is a good Feoffment. Veynors caſe Trin. 7 Jac. B. R.

Atturnement.

Allo if the Leſſee give the Leſſor leave to make livery and depart and leave a ſervant of the Leſſee upon the Land; in this caſe it ſeems his preſence upon the Land whiles the livery is made, will not hurt. Co. ſuper Lit. 48.

And ſo if the Leſſee leave the poſſeſſion and leave nothing upon the Land but his cattell; they will not keep his poſſeſſion not prejudice the livery of ſeiſin.

If a Leaſe be made of one acre to one, and another acre to another, and the Leſſor make a Feoffment of both theſe acres, and make livery in one of them in the name of both acres; this is no good Feoffment for the other acre, for by this livery he is not put out of poſſeſſion of that acre. 21 H. 7: 7, Dier 18.

So if one make a Feoffment of two Manors, the one in poſſeſſion, and the other in Leaſe, and give livery of ſeiſin of the Manor in poſſeſſion in the name of both the Manors; this is no good Feoffment for the other Manor, neither will it paſs by this Feoffment. So if one make a leaſe for years of a houſe, and after Feoffment in Fee of the houſe, and of a cloſe adjoining, and give livery of ſeiſin of the houſe, the termors wife and children being then in the houſe; in this caſe this is no good livery neither to paſs the houſe nor the cloſe. 21 *H.*7.7.Dy,18.

Forfeiture.

If Leſſee for life, or years make a Feoffment of the Land, the Leſſor being then upon the Land and not contradicting it; it ſeemes this is a good Feoffment, and that the preſence of the Leſſor upon the Land, eſpecially if he doe not contradict it, will not hinder the virtue of the Feoffment as againſt the Feoffor and all others: but the Leſſor may enter afterwards for the forfeiture notwithſtanding if he pleaſe. Perk. ſect. 222. Dier 362.

Husband and Wife.

If the Husband alone make a Feoffment of the Land, he hath in the right of his wife, or that he hath jointly with his wife, his wife being then upon the Land and diſagreeing to it; in this caſe the Feoffment is good againſt the Feoffor and all others but the wife notwithſtanding her preſence and diſagreement, but the wife may after his death avoid it. Perk. ſect. 223.

Iointenant.

If one iointenant make a Feoffment of the whole Land, his companion being then upon the Land; by this there doth paſs no more but a moity, and the Feoffment is void as to the moity of his companion, for the Feoffment doth not give his moity. Perk. ſect. 229.

If a man enter into my Land by wrong, and make a Feoffment of it to a ſtranger, I being then upon the Land; this Feoffment is void, for in this caſe the law doth adjudge me to be alwaies in, and never out of the poſſeſſion, Perk. ſect. 210.

Prerogative.

If the King have any poſſeſſion of the Land by wardſhip or otherwiſe, the owner of the land can make no feoffment of it. And therefore if the King be entituled tuled to land by wardſhip, or primere ſeiſin after office found after the death of an Aunceſtor of one of his tenants; in this caſe it is ſaid the feoffment of the heire is void and paſſeth nothing, for the King is ſtill in poſſeſſion. And if it be before office found it will be all one, for the office ſhall relate to the death of the Aunceſtor. And yet in theſe caſes the feoffment is good againſt the heire himſelf, and all others beſides the King. If the heir before office found, enter and make a feoffment, and then the King doth pardon the feoffee; in this caſe the feoffment is good. And yet ſuch a feoffment after office with a pardon is void. And the like law is if the entry bee before office, and the pardon after the office; for this is void alſo. But if a man bee out-lawed for debt or treſpaſſe, and thereupon the King hath the profits of the lands, in this caſe the owner may make a feoffment of this land notwithſtanding. *Perk. Divers perſons cannot make a feoffment but it muſt be by deed, as corporations, and ſuch like: Alſo divers things cannot be granted by a feoffment, but the feoffment muſt be made by deed, for a feoffment cannot be made of a reverſion of land but it muſt be by deed. But a leaſe may be made of land to one for life, the remainder to another in fee, and this may be done without any writing by word only. Alſo a feoffment may be made of the moity, third, or fourth part of a manor, or of a peece of land without deed. And yet if one be ſeiſed of a manor, whereunto an Advowſon is appendant, and he make a feoffment of three acres parcell of the manor, together with the Advowſon to two men, Habendum the one moity with the Advowſon to one of them, and the other moity to the other, in this caſe the feoffment cannot be well made unleſſe it be by deed. *Fitz. If a leaſe be made for five years, on condition that if the leſſee pay to the leſſor within the two firſt years ten pound, then that he ſhall have the land to him and his heires, or otherwiſe but for five years; in this caſe if livery of ſeiſin be made to the leſſee before his entry, this is a good feoffment. Et ſic de ſimilibus. Litt. Sect. 250.

Every feoffment alſo whether it be made by deed or without deed, muſt be made with livery of ſeiſin, and this livery of ſeiſin muſt be made according to the rules of livery and ſeiſin herein after laid downe, for this is of the eſſence of a feoffment, and a feoffment is not accounted perfect untill livery of ſeiſin be made, for untill then the feoffee hath only an eſtate at will in the land, and the feoffor may put him out when he will. And if either of the parties die before the livery of ſeiſin be made, the feoffment is void, and no warrant of atturney to make livery can be executed after the death of the feoffor or feoffee, neither is there any remedy in this caſe to get the aſſurance to be made perfect but in a Court of Equity. But in caſe where there are many feoffees, there the death of one or ſome of them will not hinder the livery but it may be made to him or them that doe ſurvive, we muſt ſee therefore in the next place what this livery of ſeiſin is. Litt. Sect. 59. 66. Co. ſuper Litt. 52. Doct & Stud. 13 Livery of ſeiſin Equity.

Livery of ſeiſin, or giving of poſſeſſion is a ſolemnity or overt ceremony required by law and uſed for the paſſing of lands or tenements corporall as an evidence or teſtimoniall of the willing departing by him that makes the livery from the thing whereof livery is made, and the willing acceptance thereof by the other party. And this is as ancient as a feoffment, for no feoffment is made without livery of ſeiſin, albeit livery of ſeiſin be ſometimes made upon other conveyances. And it was firſt invented as an open and notorious act to this end, and that by this meanes the country might take notice how lands doe paſſe from man to man and who is owner thereof, that ſuch as have title thereunto may know againſt whom to bring their actions, and that others may know that have cauſe, of whom to take leaſes, and of whom to require wardſhips &c. And by this means if the title come in queſtion, the jury can the better tell in whom the right is. And of this livery of ſeiſin there are two kinds, 1. A livery in deed. 2. A livery in law, called a livery within view. The livery in deed is when the feoffor, donor &c. by himſelfe or another, taketh the 5. Livery of ſeiſin. what 6. the Kinds.

ring of the door of the houſe, or a turfe, or twig of the land, and delivereth the ſame upon the land unto the feoffee, donee, &c. in the name or ſeiſin of the houſe, or ſeiſin of the land. And this is done ſometimes by the parties themſelves if they be preſent, and ſometimes in their abſence by their atturnyes or procurators The livery in law is where the feoffor ſaith to the feoffee being in view of the land, I give you yonder houſe to you and your heires, goe enter into the ſame and take poſſeſſion thereof accordingly, or the like. New terms of the law. Weſt 2. part Symb. Sect. 251. Co. ſuper Litt. 48.

7. The nature and operation of it.

Becauſe this manner of conveyance by feoffment is ſo ancient, therefore this ceremony (being inſeparably incident to a feoffment) is much favoured in law. And therefore it is expounded and taken ſtrongly againſt him that doth make it, and beneficially for him to whom it is made. And for this cauſe it worketh not only to tranſmit the preſent eſtate, but alſo to barre all preſent and future rights and poſſibilities. If therefore one make a leaſe for life to I. S. the remainder to the right heires of I. D, (which I. D. is then living) and give livery of ſeiſin according to the deed; in this caſe albeit he in remainder be not capable of this remainder, yet by the livery it ſhall paſſe out of the feoffor, and ſhall be in Abeyance during the life of I. S. So if a feoffment be made to one & hæredibus, without the word [Suis,] and livery of ſeiſin be made of the deed; this livery perhaps may make the eſtate good. Bro. eſtates 4. Plow. 28. 29.

8. Where and in what caſes it is requiſite. Or not.

Livery of ſeiſin is needfull and muſt be had and made in all caſes where any eſtate of fee-ſimple, fee-taile, or for a mans owne or another mans life is made or granted by writing, or word in the country of any lands or tenements corporall. And ſo alſo where one doth make a leaſe of land to another for years the remainder to a ſtranger in fee ſimple, fee taiſ, or for life; in theſe caſes livery of ſeiſin muſt be had and made to the leſſee for years or elſe nothing will paſſe to him in remainder; and yet the leaſe for years will be good. And ſo alſo where a leaſe for years is made upon condition that if ſuch a thing happen the leſſee ſhall have the feeſimple; in this caſe the leſſee muſt have livery of ſeiſin before his entry, otherwiſe the eſtate will not increaſe: And ſo alſo if the King make a feoffment of the land he hath in the right of the Duchy of Lancaſter that is not within the county Palatine; in this caſe livery of ſeiſin muſt be made as in the caſe of a Subject. And in all theſe caſes where livery of ſeiſin is requiſite and it is not made, there doth paſſe no eſtate by the conveyance, but an eſtate at will at the moſt. Co. 5. 92. Lit., Sect. 70. Co. 6. 26. Doct. & Stud. 13. Co. ſuper. Lit. 49. Co ſuper Litt. 216. Plow. 214. 219.

But livery of ſeiſin is not needfull or requiſit to bee had and made in caſes where any eſtate of fee-ſimple, fee-taile, or for life is made or granted of any lands by matter of record, as by the Kings Letters Patents, Fine, Recovery, Deed indented and inrolled, and the like; nor is it needfull where any ſuch eſtate is created by way of covenant and raiſing of uſe, by way of Exchange, Indowment ad oſtium Eccleſiæ or ex Aſſenſu patris; nor is it needfull where any ſuch eſtate is paſſed or granted by way of ſurrender, deviſe, releaſe, or confirmation, or by way of increaſe or executory grant, as when the fee-ſimple is granted to the leſſee for life or years in poſſeſſion; neither is it requiſite or can be made where any incorporeall hereditaments, as reverſions, rents, commons, or the like are granted in fee-ſimple, fee-taile, or for life: for in ſome of theſe caſes there is an atturnement to be made that doth ſupply a livery: Neither is it requiſite in ſome caſes where an eſtate of freehold is made of a corporall thing, as if a houſe or land belong to an office, and the office be granted by deed; in this caſe the houſe or land doth paſſe as incident thereunto. So if a houſe or chamber belong to a corody; in this caſe by the grant of the corody the houſe or chamber paſſeth without any livery of ſeiſin. Neither is it requiſite upon a leaſe for years, for if a man make a leaſe for one thouſand years; this leaſe is perfect by the delivery of the deed without any livery of ſeiſin. Neither is it needfull where one doth grant to me and my heires all the trees growing on his ground, for theſe will paſſe without any livery of ſeiſin at all. Co. 2. 23. Litt. Sect. 59. Co. ſuper Litt. 49. Co. 8. 137. 11. 49.

Nor is it needfull when an eſtate is made to one that is in poſſeſſion alreadie, be he he Tenant at will or ſufferance only, or (as it ſeemes) but a Diſſeiſor only. But if an eſtate be made to A in poſſeſſion of the lands and to B. out of poſſeſſion of the land; this without livery of ſeiſin cannot execute any Eſtate in B.

Livery of ſeiſin may and muſt be made either by the party himſelfe that maketh the eſtate, or if it be a livery in deed, it may in his abſence be made by his atturney ſufficiently authorized by writing. And he that may make an eſtate, to the perfection whereof livery is requiſite, may himſelfe and in his owne right make livery thereupon: and in the right of another, and as attorney to another, ſo divers that cannot make any eſtate may notwithſtanding make livery of ſeiſin. And therefore the husband albeit he may not make a feoffment in fee, or leaſe for life, &c. of land to his wife, yet he may as an atturney make livery of ſeiſin to her upon a conveyance made by another. And ſo alſo may the wife upon a conveyance made to the husband or her: And ſo alſo Monks, Infants, Aliens, and ſuch like Perſons diſabled to make feoffments &c. may notwithſtanding make livery of ſeiſin as atturneys upon conveyance made to others. And ſo likewiſe may he in remainder in fee make livery to the leſſee for years. Et ſic de ſimilibus. And this livery of ſeiſin may and muſt be made to the party himſelfe that taketh the eſtate, or in his abſence to his atturney or procurator ſufficiently authorized: and in this caſe any one may be an atturney to take that may be an atturney to give livery. If a feoffment be made to divers by deed and livery of ſeiſin is made to one or ſome of them; this is a good livery to execute the eſtate to them all. But if a feoffment be made to divers without deed, and livery of ſeiſin is made to one or ſome of them in the name of all the reſt; in this caſe the feoffment is good to execute the eſtate in him or them to whom the livery is made, and void as to the reſt. If a leaſe for years be made to A. and B: without deed, the remainder to D in fee, and livery of ſeiſin is made to A: or B. in this caſe this is a good livery to make the remainder to paſſe to D. But if a leaſe be made for years to A. the remainder to the right heires of I. S. in fee, I. S. being then living, and livery of ſeiſin is given to A. this remainder is void, for nemo eſt hæres viventis. One Jointenant cannot make livery of ſeiſin to his companion as a tenant in common may. And a leſſor cannot make livery of ſeiſin to his leſſee for life or years. See before Numb. 4: *Perk. 5. How it may & muſt be made. And what ſhall be ſaid a good livery of ſeiſin or not. 1. In reſpect of the perſons that make it & to whom it is made, and the quality of their eſtate. woman covert Infant.

In all caſes where this ceremony is requiſite, whether it be done by the parties themſelves in perſon or their deputies it muſt be done and made, 1. in the life time of the feoffor, donor, or leſſor, and in the life time of the feoffee, donee, or leſſee for if either of them die it cannot be done afterwards, neither can a warrant of atturney be made to deliver ſeiſin after the death of the feoffor &c. But if there be more feoffees, donees, or leſſees, then one; in ſuch caſes albeit all of them die but one, the livery of ſeiſin may be made to that one that doth ſurvive, and it will be good to him to execute the eſtate in all the land. And ſo it is if there be a warrant of atturney made by a Corporation aggregate, as a Mayor and Communalty, Deane and Chapter, or the like, to give livery of ſeiſin, in this caſe the death of the Mayor, &c. will not determine the authority, and therefore in that caſe the livery of ſeiſin may be made after his death. 2. If it be a leaſe for years with a remainder over in fee, the livery muſt he made to the leſſee for years before his entry or at the time when he doth enter for that purpoſe, for afterwards it cannot be made. Quod ſemel meum eſt, amplius meum eſſe non poteſt. Quære alſo whether the law be not ſo in all other caſes, and let men take heed they doe not (as commonly they doe) enter into the land before they have livery of ſeiſin made thereof unto them: And yet it ſeemes the livery of ſeiſin is good when it is made afterwards by Co. 2. 55. 3. It muſt not be made before the eſtate begin, for if a leaſe be made for years to begin at Michaelmas with a remainder over, and the livery of ſeiſin is made before Michaelmas; this livery of ſeiſin is void; for if a livery worke at all, it muſt worke preſently, and ſo it cannot in this caſe, becauſe it is before the eſtate doth begin. Co. ſuper Litt. 52. Co. ſuper Lit. 49. 216. *Perk. 2. In reſpect of the time when it is made.

A caveat.

If an eſtate be made of divers peeces of land in divers villages in the ſame county,

3. In reſpect of the place or thing wherein it is made.

in this caſe the making of livery of ſeiſin of land in any part thereof in the name of all the reſt, or of one parcell according to the deed, albeit he doth not ſay in the name of &c. ſufficeth for all, if all the peeces be in the grantors poſſeſſion and out of leaſe. But if the peeces of land lie in divers counties, or in the ſame county and they be in leaſe, or out of the poſſeſſion of the feoffor contrà, for in that caſe the making of livery in one part in the name of all the reſt is not ſufficient for the reſt, for in this caſe it is requiſite that livery of ſeiſin be made upon and in ſome of the land in both counties, and upon every parcell of land that is out of poſſeſſion, or at leaſt in ſome parcell of the land in the occupation of every ſeverall tenant. And yet if one part of a Manor be in one county, and the other part in another county in view of that part; in this caſe it ſeemes livery of ſeiſin in the one part in the one county in view of the other part in the other county is good and ſufficeth for all. So if the ſcite of a Manor lie in one county, and the reſt of the Manor in another county; in this caſe the making of livery in the ſcite of the manor is ſufficient for the whole Manor. If a feoffment be made of the Manor of Dale in Sale, the which Manor doth extend in Dale and Sale, and livery of ſeiſin is made accordingly in Dale only and not in Sale alſo; by this feoffment there doth paſſe no more of the Manor but that which is in Dale only. If I be ſeiſed of one acre in fee, and of another acre for life, and I make a feoffment of both acres, and make livery of ſeiſin in that acre whereof I am ſeiſed in fee in the name of both acres; in this caſe it ſeemes this ſufficeth to paſſe both the acres. But if I be ſeiſed of one acre in fee, and poſſeſſed of another acre for years, & I make a feoffment of both acres and livery of ſeiſin in that acre only whereof I am ſeiſed in fee in the name of both the acres, contra; for this is as if I make a feoffment of land whereof I am ſeiſed, and of other land whereof I am not ſeiſed &c. If I be ſeiſed of two acres of land, and let one of them for years, and then make an eſtate of both of them to another, and make livery of ſeiſin in that I have in poſſeſſion in the name of both the acres; this will not ſerve to paſſe the other acre, but livery muſt be made in that acre alſo. And accordingly it was agreed in a caſe in the Kings Bench Hil. 38. Eliz. which was, that a man was ſeiſed in fee of a Manor and other lands called Groves, and he made a feoffment of it (Groves being then in leaſe for years) and a letter of atturney to give livery, and the atturney made livery of the Manor in the name of the reſt, the leſſee being ſtill in poſſeſſion of Groves, in this caſe it was agreed that this was no good feoffment for Groves. Co. ſuper Lit. 48. *Perk. When a feoffment is made of a houſe and land, the livery of ſeiſin is moſt aptly to be made of and in the houſe in the name of the reſt, and at the door of the houſe &c. And when a feoffment is made of a Rectory or Parſonage; the livery of ſeiſin may be made in the Parſonage houſe; or if there be no houſe, it may be made upon the Glebe; or if there be neither, it may be made at the ring of the Church door. See infra.

4. In reſpect of the preſence or poſſeſſion of others.

In the making of every livery of ſeiſin it is requiſite that all perſons that have any lawfull eſtate and poſſeſſion in the thing whereof livery is to be made, as leſſees for life, years, and ſuch like joine in the making thereof or be removed thence, for every livery ought to bring an immediate poſſeſſion to the feoffee, donee, &c. See before Numb. 4.

If leſſee for years make a feoffment and a warrant of atturney to give livery of ſeiſin, and the atturney make livery of ſeiſin the leſſor being preſent upon the land and not contradicting it, it ſeemes this is a good livery of ſeiſin. Dier. 362.

The preſence of the feoffor, donor, &c. upon the land after he hath delivered ſeiſin to the feoffee, donee, &c. albeit he ſtay upon the land a while and doe not depart and leave the feoffee &c. in poſſeſſion, will not hurt the livery. See more ſupra Numb. 4. Bro. Feoffments. 24.

5. In reſpect of the matter whereof it is to be made.

Livery of ſeiſin may be made of any corporall thing, as Manors, houſes, lands, meadowes, paſtures, woods, chambers, or the like. And theſe things therefore are ſaid to lie in livery. But of incorporall things; as rents, advowſons, commons, eſtovers, and and ſuch like things livery cannot be made. And theſe things therefore are ſaid to lie in grant and not in livery. And therefore when a livery is made of theſe nil operatur. See more above Num 4 Co. ſuper Litt. 49.

6. In reſpect of the manner & order of making it. And how livery of ſeiſin is to be made.

To every good livery of ſeiſin is requiſite either ſuch an act as the law doth adjudg to be a livery, or apt words that doe amount unto it, for a livery may be good by words without any act or deed at all. But it cannot be good by an act or deed without any words at all: howbeit that livery that hath an act or ceremony in it is the beſt, becauſe it taketh the deepeſt impreſſion in the witneſſes. Co. 9. 137. ſuper Litt. 49.

The moſt uſuall formall and orderly manner of making of livery of ſeiſin is thus, that the feoffor, donor, &c. and the feoffee, donee, &c. if they be preſent, or in their abſence their atturneys or ſervants that have authority doe come to the door, backſide or garden if it be a houſe, if not, then to ſome part of the land where ſeiſin is to be delivered, and there in the preſence of many good witneſſes doe ſhew the cauſe of their meeting, openly and plainly, doe read the deed or declare the contents thereof and of the letter of atturney if there be any. And then the feoffor, &c. or his atturney (if it be a houſe) doe take the ring, latch or haſpe of the door (all the people, men, women and children being out of the houſe,) or (if it be of a peece of ground) doe take a clod of the ground or a bough or twig of a tree or buſh growing thereupon; and (all the people being out of the ground) the ſame ring &c. clod, bough &c. with the deed doe deliver to the feoffee, donee, &c. or to his atturney: and in the delivery hereof doe uſe theſe or ſome ſuch like words, viz. I deliver theſe to you in the name of ſeiſin of all the lands and tenements contained in this deed, To have and to hold according to the forme and effect of the ſame deed. Or, I deliver you ſeiſin and poſſeſſion of this houſe or ground in the name of all the lands contained in the deed according to the forme and effect of the deed. And then if it be a houſe, the feoffee, &c. doth enter in firſt alone and ſhut to the door, and then he doth open it and let in others. And if the feoffment, gift, or leaſe be made without deed, then they doe and muſt withall expreſſe the very eſtate it ſelf, which the feoffee, donee, or leſſee is to have: as for example, the feoffor, donor, or leſſor muſt come to the houſe or land which is to be granted and where livery of ſeiſin is to be made, and there muſt by apt words grant the houſe or land to him that is to have it in fee-ſimple, or in taile, or for life, (as the agreement is) and in ſeiſin thereof muſt deliver him the ring of the door, or a turfe or twig of the land. And if the feoffment &c. be made by writing, then it is wiſdome to indorſe and ſet downe on the back of the ſame, how, when and where the ſame is made, and the names of the witneſſes thereunto. But a livery of ſeiſin that is not ſo exactly made, may be good notwithſtanding. And therefore if the feoffor, donor, &c. or his atturney take any thing elſe that comes from off the land, as a ſtone, or the like, and therewithall doth make the livery of ſeiſin; or if he take a turfe, or twig from off another mans ground, and not from the ſame whereof poſſeſſion is to be given, and deliver that upon the ground in the name of ſeiſin; or if he take a peece of ſilver or gold, or a rod, ſtick or the like, and deliver this upon the land in the name of ſeiſin; all theſe are good deliveries of ſeiſin and poſſeſſion. So if the feoffor &c. be at the door of the houſe, or by the land, or in the houſe, or upon the land, and after he hath delivered the deed, he ſay to the feoffee, donee, &c. [Here I deliver you ſeiſin and poſſeſſion of this houſe or land in the name of ſeiſin and poſſeſſion of all the lands and tenements contained in the deed.] Or [have and enjoy this houſe or land according to the deed.] Or [enter into this land or houſe, and God give you joy of it.] Or [I am content, you ſhall enjoy this land;] in all theſe caſes there is a good livery of ſeiſin, *Et ſic de ſimilibus. If I being ſeiſed of a houſe in fee make a feoffment of it and of divers lands to a man then preſent with me in the ſame houſe, and there deliver him the deed in the name of ſeiſin of all the lands contained in the deed; in this caſe this is a good delivery of the deed, and a good livery of ſeiſin alſo, albeit I continue in poſſeſſion of the houſe ſtill and goe not out of it. And if I be Lord of a Manor, and lying ſick within ſome part of the Manor I make a feoffment of the Manor, and deliver the deed to the feoffee ſaying to him, I will that you take ſeiſin preſently, and thereupon command all my tenants of the manner to atturne to him, and they doe ſo; this is a good livery of ſeiſin. So if I make a deed, and after I have read it, being upon the land I deliver it to the feoffee, donee, &c. and ſay, Here I deliver you this charter as my deed in the name of ſeiſin of all the lands therein contained, or the like. this is a good delivery of the deed and of ſeiſin. But if I doe only ſeale and deliver the deed upon or in view of the land without ſaying or doing any more; this will not amount to a livery of ſeiſin. And therefore if a man make a feoffment with a letter of atturney to give livery of ſeiſin, and then he deliver the deed upon the land, this is no good making of livery of ſeiſin. And ſo alſo if there be no letter of atturny. Bro. feoffment 28. Perk. Sect. 211 212. Perk. Sect. 215. Co. 6. 26. Cromwals caſe Adjudged in the exchequer 15 Eliz.

If the father infeoffe his ſon of land, and the ſon ſuffer his father to enjoy it, and after the ſon doth come to the Pariſh Church where the land doth lie, and there in the audience of the pariſhioners uſeth theſe words to his father, [Father you have given me ſuch and ſuch lands (and doth name them) as freely as you gave them to me I give them to you againe;] this is no good livery of ſeiſin, neither doth any eſtate paſſe hereby. So if one being upon his land ſay to I. S. [I. S. ſtand forth, I doe here reſerving an eſtate to me for mine owne life give this land to thee and thy heires for ever;] this is no good livery of ſeiſin, neither doth any eſtate paſſe thereby. So if one make a charter of feoffment to me and make no livery of ſeiſin thereupon, and after I make a feoffment of the land to I. S. and the feoffor hearing and having notice of it ſaith [I doe willingly agree to it and am contented that I. S. ſhall have it,] or I doe agree to the feoffment, or the like, in this caſe this doth not make the feoffment that was made to me good. Perk. Sect. 216. Hil. 37 Eliz. B. R. Callards caſe. Fitz. Fait. & feoffments.

If divers parcells of land be conveyed and livery of ſeiſin is made in one; or there be divers feoffees, and livery of ſeiſin is made to one of them according to the deed without uſing any more words; this is good. But the beſt forme and order of making of livery in this caſe is to adde theſe words, [in the name of all the reſt &c.] Co. ſuper Lit. 48. Fitz. Eſtopell. 177.

Livery in law, or within the view.

If the feoffor, donor, &c. deliver the deed in ſight or view of the land, and uſe theſe or any ſuch like words, [I will that you ſhall enter into the land and have it according to the deed;] Or, [take and enjoy the land according to the deed;] Or, [I deliver you this deed in the name of ſeiſin;] Or, [enter you into the land and take ſeiſin of it;] Or [take the land, and God give you joy of it;] Or, (if the eſtate be made without deed) [I give you yonder land to you and your heires and goe and enter into the ſame and take poſſeſſion thereof accordingly;] Or [enter into the land and enjoy it in fee-ſimple to you and your heires, or for your life &c.] in all theſe caſes the eſtate and the livery is good, albeit the feoffor &c. ſtand in one county, and the land in view be in another county. But an Advowſon will not paſſe by livery made in view of the Church without deed, there being an Incumbent in the Church per. ch. Juſt. & Juſt. Manwood. 18. Eliz. in Carys. Rep. 52. And in all theſe caſes of livery within the view, 1. It muſt be made by the perſon himſelf that doth make the eſtate, for it cannot be made by his atturny. 2. There muſt be a relation to the land: for if the feoffor doe deliver the deed only to the feoffee in ſight of the land; this is not a good livery within the view. 3. The parties muſt ſtand within view of the land, for if the feoffor &c. being out of the ſight of the land ſay to the feoffee &c. Goe and enter and take ſeiſin of the land and God ſend you joy of it; this is no good livery of ſeiſin: 4. There muſt be ſome body capable of a freehold to take by the livery, for if it be made to a leſſee for years the remainder to the right heires of I. S. and I. S. is then living, it is void. 5. The feoffee &c. muſt enter preſently, for if either the feoffor, donor &c. or feoffee, donee &c. die before entry; the livery cannot be made good. And yet if the party dare not enter for feare, in this caſe if he claime it only only, and doe not enter it is ſufficient. Co. 9. 137. 6. 26. ſuper Lit. 48. 253. 1] New terms of the Law. Co. ſuper Lit: 48. Dier. 18. 2] 18 H: . 16. 3] Co. ſuper Litt. 48: 5] Co. 1. 156. Perk. Sect. 214. Fitz. faits & feoffments. 47.

Livery of ſeiſin in deed may be made or taken by the deputies or atturnyes of the parties, and this livery by them is as good as that livery of ſeiſin which is made by the parties themſelves; and that alſo, as it ſeemes albeit the parties themſelves be upon the land at the time of the making thereof if they doe not contradict it. Co ſuper Lit. 52. Celw. 1. Co 9: 76. terms of the Law. tit: Livery.

10. Where livery of ſeiſin made or taken by an atturney ſhall be good: And where not. And what warant is ſufficient:

But in the making of this livery care muſt be had,

1. That there be a Deed of Feoffment, for otherwiſe a letter of Atturney to deliver poſſeſſion avaleth nothing.

2. That there be a good Authority in writing, which may be either in the Deed of Feoffment it ſelf, whether it be Poll, or Indented. and that albeit the Atturney be not party to it, or elſe by a ſingle Deed beſides the Feoffment, &c. The opinion therefore in Co. ſuper Lit. 52. 6. as to this point is held not to be law.

3. That the Atturny doe purſue his Authority at leaſt in the ſubſtance and effect of it.

4. That the Atturney doe it in the name of the Feoffor, Donor, &c. who doth give the Authority. 5. That it be done in the life time of the parties. But a livery in Law may not be made by an Atturney. And therefore if a Letter of Atturney be to deliver ſeiſin, generally and the Atturny by virtue thereof deliver ſeiſin in view; this livery of ſeiſin is void. ſee Brownl. 2 part 158. 159 &c.

If an Infant, or woman covert make a Feoffment and letter of Atturney to make livery, and the Atturny doe ſo; this is void, for they are not able to give ſuch an Authority. And if a man whiles he is of ſound memory make a Feoffment with a letter of Atturney to give livery and after he become paralytique and ſo dumbe, but by ſignes he doth declare himſelf to be willing to have livery of ſeiſin made, and it is made; this is a good livery of ſeiſin. But if a letter of Atturney be made to deliver ſeiſin of certain land by one that is de non ſane memorie, and the Deed of Feoffment was made whiles he was of ſound memory, and afterwwards he doth come to his memory again, and then the livery is made upon the firſt warrant without any new aſſent, &c. in this caſe the livery is not good. Bro. Feoffments. 25. Aſſ. pl. 4. Perk. ſect. 23.

Infant. Woman covert.

That for the moſt part which for the manner and order of making it is a good livery of ſeiſin if it be made and taken by the parties themſelves is good being made and taken by their Atturnies or Deputies that have a good Authority and doe well purſue it. And therefore if the conveyance be made of divers Lands, and they lie in one county, and a warrant of Atturney is made to give livery generally, and the Atturney doth make it in one part of the Land in the name of all the reſt; this is a good livery. Et ſic de ſimilibus Dyer 283.

If a man be ſeiſed of black acre, and white acre, and he make a Deed of Feoffment of both theſe acres and a letter of Atturney to enter into both theſe acres, and to deliver ſeiſin of both of them according to the form and effect of the Deed, and he doth enter into black acre and deliver ſeiſin ſecundum formam chartæ; in this caſe the livery of ſeiſin is good, albeit he doe not enter into both the acres, nor into one acre in the name of both. And if the Feoffment be made to two or more, and the warrant of Atturney is to make livery to them both, and the Atturney doth make livery of ſeiſin to one of the Feoffees ſecundum formam & effectum chartæ; in this caſe the livery is good to both, and yet he that is abſent may wave the livery, Co. ſuper Litt. 52.

And yet if a man be diſſeiſed of black acre and white, and a warrant of Atturney is made to one to enter into both theſe acres, and to make livery, and the Atturney doth enter into one acre onely, & make livery of ſeiſin there ſecundum formam chartæ in this caſe the livery of ſeiſin is void for all, for in this caſe he doth leſſe then his Authority. So if a man make a letter of Atturney to deliver ſeiſin to I S upon condition, and the Atturney doth deliver ſeiſin abſolutely; this livery of ſeiſin is void. And ſo in all ſuch like caſes where the Atturney doth leſs then the authority and comcommandement, all that he doth is void. But for the moſt part where the Atturney doth that which he is authoriſed to doe, and more alſo, it is good for ſo much as is warranted, and void for the reſt. And therefore if the letter of Atturney be to give liveryof ſeiſin to I S and the Atturney give it to I S and W S; this livery is good to I S and void to W S: So if the letter of Atturney be to give livery of ſeiſin of white acre only, and he make livery of white acre and black acre alſo, this livery is good for white acre, and void for black acre. Co. ſuper Litt. 52. 258. Perk. ſect. 187. 188. 189.

So if the letter of Atturney be abſolute, and the Atturney give livery upon condition; ſome hold this to be good, and the condition to be void. Perk ſect. 109. Co. ſuper Litt. 258.

If a letter of Atturney be made to two jointly to make or take livery of ſeiſin, and one of them alone doth it without the other; this is a void livery. But otherwiſe it is when it is made to two jointly or ſeverally, for there one of them alone may doe it. Co. ſuper Litt. 49.

If a Letter of Atturney be to make livery of ſeiſin after the death of another man, and the Atturney doth make livery of ſeiſin during that mans life; this livery is void. Perk. ſect. 39.

If I make a letter of Atturney to I S to give livery in the Capital meſſuage, and he doth it in another place, or to doe it between two 2 or 3 a clock, and he doth it at another time, or a Feoffment be made to 2 A and B and the letter of Attorney is to give ſeiſin to A, and he give it B, in all theſe Caſes it is not good: But if the Feoffment be to I S and a letter of Attorney to make livery to him and the Attorney doth make it to his Attorney this is good. 10 H. 7. 19. Dyer 337. 283. 68.

11. How it ſhall enure, and be taken, andconſtrued.

Livery of ſeiſin is ſometimes made ſingle, and without any Relation to the Deed whereby the eſtate upon which the livery is made is created at all: and ſometimes and moſt commonly it is made with reference to theDeed in theſe or ſuch like words [ſecundum formam chartæ.] In the firſt caſe the eſtate is oftentimes made upon the livery; and then there may be one eſtate contained in the Deed, and another made by the livery, alſo there may paſs more Land by the livery, then is in the Deed, and by this means when there is a fault in the Deed, ſo that the Land will not paſs by the Deed, it may perhaps paſs by the livery: but in this caſe then there muſt be apt words uſed in the making of the livery to create the eſtate alſo; as well as to give the poſſeſſion. But where the livery of ſeiſin is made with relation to the Deed, there it muſt take effect according to the Deed, or not at all, for theſe words ſecundum formam chartæ, are to be underſtood according to the quantity and quality of the effectuall eſtate contained in the Deed. And therefore if one make a Deed of Feoffment to another, and in the Deed there is contained no condition at all, and when the Feoffor doth make livery he doth make livery upon condition; or if the Deed contain an eſtate to him and his Heirs, and he maketh livery of an eſtate in taile or for life; in theſe caſes there doth paſs nothing by the Deed. And yet if there be apt words uſed to create ſuch an eſtate at the time of the livery made; ſuch an eſtate may be made by the livery without the Deed, and then the Deed ſhall be void. But if in theſe caſes the Feoffor ſay when he doth make livery on condition in taile, or for life, ſecundum formam chartæ; in this caſe there is a good Feoffment made according to the Deed, and the additionall words are void. So if a man make a Leaſe for years, and make livery ſecundum formam chartæ; this is but a Leaſe for years ſtill. And if A give land to B To have and to hold after the death of A to B and his heirs; this is a void Deed, and therefore if the livery of ſeiſin be made ſecundum formam chartæ, the livery of ſeiſin is void alſo. But if when he doth give livery of ſeiſin, he give it to him and his heir, without theſe words, ſecundum formam, &c. or if in the making of livery he ſay Here I deliver you ſeiſin of this Land, To have and to hold to you and your Heirs for ever, or the like; this may make a fee-ſimple. So if one make a Deed of Feoffment of 2 acres, & after make livery of ſeiſin of 4 acres; in this caſe if there be words in the livery of ſeiſin ſufficient to make a new eſtate, the other two acres may paſs alſo Litt. ſect. 359. Co. ſuper Litt. 48. 122. Fitz. Eſtoppel 177. 7 Ed. 4. 25. Co. ſuper Litt. 49. Fitz. feoffmente & faits 23.

If

If A by Deed give Land to B to have & to hold after the death of A to B and his Heirs; this is a void Deed, and therefore if upon this Deed livery of ſeiſin be made before the day by the party himſelf, or at, or after the day by his Atturney ſecundum formam & effectum chartæ; the livery is void alſo, for it cannot enter ſo: And yet if a Leaſe be made for life to begin in futuro, and at, or after the day come, the Leſſor himſelf in perſon doth make livery of ſeiſin ſecundum formam chartæ; in this caſe the Leaſe perhaps may become good by this livery of ſeiſin. Co. 2. 55. 5, 94. & Greenwoods caſe. B, R. Mich. 17. Iac.

If an agreement be between two, that the one ſhal enfeoff the other upon condition for ſurety of money, and afterwards livery of ſeiſin is made generally without any ſuch condition; in this caſe it is ſaid by ſome the eſtate ſhall be on condition ſtill. Co. ſuper Lit. 222.

If there be a fault in the Deed, as by the miſ-naming of the Feoffor, &c. Feoffee &c. or the like, and afterwards the Feoffor, &c. doth himſelf in perſon make livery of ſeiſin upon this Deed to the Feoffee, &c. by this the fault of the Deed may be holpen and cured. Perk ſect. 42.

If one make a Feoffment to himſelf and another, and give livery of ſeiſin to the other; this is a good Feoffment and ſhall enure to the other wholly, and he ſhall take the whole by the Feoffment and the livery. And ſo if the livery be made to one that is capable, and to another that is not capable; he that is capable ſhall take the whole, and the other ſhall have nothing. So if a Feoffment be made to two, and one of them die before the livery is made, and after the livery is made to the ſurvivor; in this caſe the livery ſhall enure to the ſurvivor only, and he ſhall have all the eſtate thereby. So if a Feoffment be made without Deed to a Corporation, and to I S, and livery is made to I S alone; in this caſe I S ſhall have the whole and the Corporation nothing at all. Perk. ſect. 204. 203. 7 H. 7. 9.

If a Feoffment be made to four, and livery of ſeiſin is made to one, two or three of them; this ſhall enure to them all. But if the Feoffment be without Deed, it ſhall enure to him wholly to whom the livery is made. And if one of them give warrant to the reſt to take livery for him, and they doe ſo; this ſhall enure to them wholly, and not to him at all for any part. Dier. 35. 10 E. 4. 1. Co. 5. 95.

If the Tenant make a Feoffment to his Lord and another, and give livery of ſeiſin to the other; this ſhall enure wholly to the other untill the Lord agree to it, and then to them both. 10. E. 4. 12.

If one make a Deed of Feoffment of one acre of Land to A and his Heirs, and another Deed of the ſame Land to A and his Heirs of his body, and deliver ſeiſin according to the form and effect of both Deeds; in this caſe it ſhall enure by moities, i. he ſhall have an eſtate taile, and the Fee-ſimple expectant in the moity, and a Fee-ſimple in the other moity. Co. ſuper Litt. 21.

If two ſeverall Deeds of Feoffment be made to two ſeverall perſons of one and the ſame thing, he that can get the ſeiſin firſt ſhall have it. Rem domino vel non domino vendente duobus; In jure eſt potior traditione prior.

If Leſſee for life make a Feoffment, and a Letter of Atturney to the Leſſor to make livery, and he doth make livery accordingly; in this caſe this ſhall not enure to bar him of his entry upon the Feoffee for the forfeiture of his Leſſee. But if Leſſee for years make a Feoffment in Fee, and ſuch a letter of Atturney to the Leſſor, and he doe deliver ſeiſin accordingly; this livery ſhall bind him, for it ſhall be ſaid as in his own right, becauſe the Leſſee had no freehold whereof to make livery. Co. ſuper Lit. 52.

If a Leſſor make a Deed of Feoffment, and a letter of Atturney to the Leſſee for years to give livery, and he do accordingly; this ſhall not be conſtrued to extinguiſh or hurt his term. See more in Expoſition of Deeds, ſupra ch. 5. Co. ſuper Lit. 52.

CHAP. LXXXV.

Of a Fine.

Fine, what.

THis word is ambiguously taken in our Law, for ſometimes it is taken for a ſum of money or mulct impoſed or laid upon an offender for ſome offence done, and then alſo it is called a ranſome. And ſometimes it is taken for an Income or a ſum of money paid at the entrance of a Tenant into his Land. And ſometimes it is taken for a final agreement or conveyance upon Record for the ſettling and ſecuring of Lands and Tenements. And in this ſenſe it is taken here; and ſo it is defined by ſome to be, an acknowledgement in the Kings Court of the Land or other thing to be his right that doth complain. And by others, A Covenant made between parties and recorded by the Juſtices. And by others, A friendly, reall and finall agreement amongſt parties concerning any Land or Rent or other thing whereof any ſuit or writ is hanging between them in any Court. And by others more fully, An inſtrument of record of an agreement concerning lands, tenements or hereditaments, duly made by the Kings licenſe and acknowledged by the parties to the ſame, upon a writ of covenant, writ of right, or ſuch like, before the Juſtices of the Common Pleas or others thereunto authoriſed, and ingroſſed of Record in the ſame Court, to end all controverſies thereof both between themſelves which be parties and privies to the ſame, and all ſtrangers not ſuing or claiming in due time. And in every Fine there is a ſuit ſuppoſed, wherein the party that is to have the thing is called the Plaintiff, and ſometimes alſo in another reſpect the conuſee or Recogniſee, and the other that doth depart with the thing is called the Deforceant, and ſometimes in another reſpect the Conuſor or Recogniſor. And it was anciently the end of a ſuit indeed, for after there had been ſome contention about the thing by ſuit, the parties became agreed who ſhould have it, and ſo a fine was levyed of it, and there was an end of the matter; and hence it is ſaid to be fructus or effectus legis, becauſe it gives a man the fruit or effect of his ſuit. And to this day therefore a writ doth alwaies goe forth before a fine can be levyed, and this is now one of the common Aſſurances of the Kingdom. Co. upon Litt. 126, 127. Plow. 357.

Conuſee or Recogniſee. Conuſor or Recogniſor Deforceant.

The partsof it.

There are five eſſentiall parts of a Fine. Firſt, the originall writ taken out againſt the conuſor, for without this a fine cannot be levyed: Secondly, the Kings licenſe for the levying of the fine, and for this the King is to have a fine or ſum of money, which is called Kings ſilver, for this is properly that money which is due to the King, in the Court of Common Pleas, in reſpect of a licenſe there granted to any man for paſſing a fine. And this is part of the revenues of the Crown. Thirdly, the Conuſance or Concord it ſelfe which is the very agreement between the parties that intend the levying of the fine how and in what manner the thing ſhall paſs: and doth begin thus; Et eſt Concordia talis, &c. (i. e.) And the Concord is ſuch, &c. And this is the foundation or ſubſtance of the fine, for if upon this the Kings ſilver be entred, albeit the Conuſor die afterwards, yet the fine is good, and the note or foot of the fine are but abſtracts out of this. Fourthly, the note of the fine, which is an abſtract of the originall Contract or Concord, and doth begin thus, Between A plaintiff and B and C deforciants, &c. Inter A. querentem & C. deforcientes, &c. Fifthly, the foot of the fine, which doth begin thus. Hæc eſt finalis Concordia, &c. this is a finall Concord, &c: and containeth all the matter, the day, yeer, and place, and before what Juſtices it was levied, which is therefore called the Foot of the fine becauſe it is the laſt part of it, and when this is done all is done: And for this there are indentures made by the Chirographer and delivered to the party to whom the Conuſance is made, which is called the Ingroſſing of a fine, for then a fine is ſaid to be ingroſſed when the Chirographer makes the indentures of the fine, and delivers them to the party to whom the conuſance is made. doth Ingroſſing of the Fine, what.

A Fine is either without Ploclamations, which is alſo called a Fine at the common Law, and this is ſuch a Fine as is levyed after ſuch manner and forme as Fines were uſually levyed before 4 *H.*7. upon which no Proclamations were made, which Fine doth ſtill remain of the ſame force as it was at the common Law to diſcontinue the eſtate of the Cogniſor if it be executed. Or it is with Proclamations, which is alſo called a Fine according to the Statute, and which is ſuch a Fine as is levyed with Proclamations after the forme and manner ordained by the ſtatute of 4 H. 7. chap. 24. (and ſuch a Fine ſhall every Fine that is pleaded intended to bee if it bee not ſhewed what Fine it is, and of this ſort were and are moſt Fines ſince 4 H. 7. as being the beſt kinde of Fine of all; and it is in the election of him that ſueth out the Fine as long as he liveth to have it with, or without Proclamations. A Fine alſo whether with or without Proclamations, is either executed, which is ſuch a Fine as of his owne force giveth a preſent poſſeſſion (or at the leaſt in Law) unto the Cogniſee, ſo that he needeth no writ of Habere facias ſeiſinam or other means for the execution thereof; but he may enter: of which ſort is a fine Sur Cogniſance de droit come ceo que il ad de ſon done, an acknowledgment of Right &c. which is in every deed the beſt and ſureſt kind of Fine of all, and this kind of Fine doth alwaies ſuppoſe a feoffment, or gift precedent of the ſame thing whereof the Fine is had, which the Fine is to corroborate and ſtrengthen. Or it is Executory, which is ſuch a Fine as of his own force doth not execute the poſſeſſion in the Cogniſee, and of this ſort is a Fine Sur Cogniſance de droit tantùm, when the party that doth levy the Fine is ſeiſed of the thing, and hee to whom the Fine is levyed hath no freehold therein, but it paſſeth by the Fine: and a Fine Sur Done, Grant, Releaſe ou Confirmation. And if theſe kind of Fines be not levyed or ſuch Render made unto them that be in poſſeſſion at the time of the Fines levyed, the Cogniſees muſt enter or have writs of Habere facias ſeiſinam, according to their ſeverall Caſes for the obtaining of their poſſeſſions. But if at the time of levying of ſuch an executory Fine the party unto whom the eſtate is limited be in poſſeſſion of the lands paſſed, he ſhall not need any writ of execution to put him in poſſeſſion, for then the Fine will enure by way of Extinguiſhment of right, and doth not alter the eſtate or poſſeſſion of the Cogniſee, however perchance it doth better it. The fine Sur conuſance de droit tantùm, alſo doth ſerve ſometimes to make a ſurrender, and then it is therein recited that the Conuſor hath an eſtate for life, and the Conuſee the reverſion: and ſometimes it doth ſerve to grant a Reverſion, and then the particular eſtate is recited to be in another, and that the Conuſor willeth that the other ſhall have the reverſion, or that the Land ſhall remain to the other after the particular eſtate ſpent: A Fine alſo is either ſingle, which is ſuch a Fine by which an Eſtate is granted to the Cogniſee and nothing granted or rendred back again to the Cogniſor by the Cogniſee. Or it is double, which is ſuch a Fine as doth contain a grant, and render back again either of the Land it ſelfe, or of ſome rent, common, or other thing out of it to the Cogniſor for ſome eſtate, limiting thereby many times remainders to ſtrangers which be not named in the writ of covenant, which alſo is ſometimes with reſervation of rent, clauſe of diſtreſſe, and grant of the ſame over. *Weſt. The kinds of it.

A Fine is a Record as of great antiquity, ſo of a high nature, great force, and much credit and eſteem, and it is now become and ſerves for a formall conveyance of land, and one of the common Aſſurances of the Kingdome, for by this meanes a man may convey his land to another in fee ſimple, Fee-taile, for life or years, with reſervation of rent alſo. It is therefore called a Feoffment of record, for it doth countervaile a Feoffment with livery of ſeiſin in the country, and it includeth all that the Feoffment doth; and worketh further of his own nature, and it is indeed for many purpoſes the beſt and moſt excellent aſſurance of all others, for by the ancient common Law it was ſo high a barre, and of ſo great force, and of ſo ſtrong a nature in it ſelfe, that it did conclude and barre not onely ſuch as were parties and privies thereto, and their heirs, but all others of full age, out of priſon, of good memory, and within the four Seas the day of the fine levyed, if they did not make their claim within a year and a day. And it is ſtill of that force, albeit it be ſomewhat enfeebled by ſome Statutes, that either it passeth all the right and interest of the Conusor to the Conusee, or else it worketh by way of extinguishment and Estopell, and doth perpetually barre the Conusor and his heires of all present and future right and possibility of right or other collaterall benefit to the thing whereof the fine is levyed. And if it be a fine with Proclamations, it doth in time become a perpetuall barre to all others also, that have right, except they doe take care to prevent the barre by their claime, Action or entry within five years after the proclamations ended. And it barreth Intailes peremptorily whether the heire do claim within five years or not, if he make his claime by him that levied the fine. Statute of Fines. 18: E. 1. Co. 1. 3. Plow. 358. 265.

5. The nature, uſe, and fruit of a Fine.

.6 What shall be said a good Fine, or not: and how.

Any person male or female, body sole, or corporate, that hath capacity to grant, or is able to be a grantor by a deed, may levy a fine and be a Conusor therein, but there are certain persons prohibited by Law, which the Judges or Commissioners that take the Conusance of fines ought not to admit or receive, and yet if they doe admit them, and a fine be levyed by such persons, the fine is good and unavoidable, and of this sort are mad men, lunatikes, villaines, Ideots, men that have the Lethargy, doting old persons that want discretion, drunken men, and men that are forced to it by threatning, imprisonment or the like, also such as are born blind, deafe and dumbe, but a man that becomes so accidentally may be received and ought not to be refused.

Women covert.

Also women that have husbands ought not to be admitted alone without their husbands to levy fines, and yet if such a woman alone levy a fine of her own land she hath in Fee simple, and her husband doe not avoid it (as he may if he will) by writ of Error, entry, or otherwise during her life, or after her death during his own life, if he be Tenant by the Curtesie, this is now a good fine, and will bind her and her heires for ever, except she be an Infant at the time of the fine levyed, and her husband happen to die during her minority, for then in that Case, if it be not a fine Sur Grant & Render to her in taile or for life, she may avoid it during her minority; but if the converture continue untill her full age, in that case she cannot avoid it except her husband joyn with her in it, but the husband and wife ought to be received together to levy any fine of her Land.

Corporations.

If such persons as are civilly dead, as Fryars, Monkes, and the like, be admitted to levy a Fine, the Fine is void. But such civill bodies as have absolute estate in their possessions, as Maior and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, Colleges, and other Societies corporate, may levy Fines of the Lands they hold in common, even by the Common Law, and such Fines are good, but Ecclesiasticall persons, as Bishops, Deans, Masters of Hospitals, Parsons, Vicars, Prebends, and such like, are by divers Statutes restrained to levy Fines of their spirituall inheritances. West. Symb. part. 2. Sect. 9. Plow. 538. 575. Co. 11. 78. 1. in Magdalen College case.

Any person that hath capacity to take by grant, or may be a Grantee by deed, may take by Fine and be a Conusee therein, as any person male or female, of full age or under age, whether it be a Feme Covert, mad person, lunatike, Ideot, any person in prison, or beyond the Sea, also any person attainted of felony or treason, or outlawed in any personall action, a Bastard, Clark convict, or Alien, may be Conusee in a fine and a Fine levyed to ſuch perſons is good. 3 *H.*6. 42. 41 Ed. 3. 7. 50 Ed. 3. 9.

Alſo Corporations ſpirituall and temporall may be Conuſees in Fines, and Fines levied to them are good, but before the ingroſſing of ſuch Fines there goeth alwaies a writ to the Juſtices of the Common Pleas, Quod permittant finem illum levari. But ſuch perſons as are civilly dead, as Fryers, Monkes and the like, cannot be Conuſees in a Fine, and therefore a Fine levyed to ſuch perſons is void. See Grant. Numb. 2.

The names of Cogniſors and Cogniſees in Fines muſt bee certainly ſet downe, and they muſt for the moſt part bee deſcribed by their right names of Baptiſm and Surname, whether they be King, Prince, Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, Vicounts, Barons, Lords, or Knights, which be names of dignity; but ſome of theſe are ſometimes deſcribed without their ſurname, as Georg' Comes Salop. Iohannes Dux Lancaſtr. Or whether they be Eſquires or Gentlemen, which be names of worſhip and honour. But theſe additions of names of dignity and honour given to ſuch perſons or any others, as Biſhops and the like, are uſed in Fines, rather of curteſie then neceſſity, for they are not needfull in Fines. But in caſe where there bee two of one name it is ſafe to make ſome addition by way of diſtinction, as Senior and Junior and the like.

If a woman, living her firſt husband, take a ſecond husband and with him and by his name knowledge a Fine; it ſeemes this is void, becauſe of this miſtake; but if a woman with her right huſband, by a wrong Chriſtian name, levy a Fine, ſhe is concluded by it, and cannot avoid it during her life. And yet if a Fine be levyed to a man and his wife by a wrong name, as to A. and Sybill his wife, when her name is Iſabell; this is holden to be void. But if a Fine be levyed by a woman by the name of Margery when her name is Margaret, or by the name of Agnes, when her name is Anne, it ſeemes this Fine is a good Fine. Brownl. 1. part. 30. 7 H. 4. 22. 1 Aſſ: pl. 11.

3. In reſpect of the thing whereof the Fine is levied, and of what things a Fine may be levyed or not, and by what names.

A Fine may be levied of all things whereof a Precipe quod reddat lieth, and of all things which are inheritable and in eſſe at the time of the Fine levied, whether the thing be Eccleſiaſtical and made Temporal or Temporal: As of an Honor, Manor, Iſland, Barony, Caſtle, Meſſuage, Cottage, Mill, Toft, Curtilage, Dove-houſe, Garden, Orchard, Land, Meadow, Paſture, Wood, Underwood, Chappel, River, Chauntry, Corrody, Office, Fiſhing, Warren, Fair, Rectory, Mines, a view of Frank pledge, Waife, Eſtray, Felons goods, Deodands, Hoſpitall, Furzes, Heath, Moor, Rent, Common, Advowſon, Hundred, Way, Ferry, Franchiſe, Seigniorie, Reverſion, Toll, Tallage, Pickage, Pontage, Aquitaile. Services. Portion of tithes, Oblations, or the like. 32 *H.*8. 7. Weſt. ymb. his Tract of Fines, ſect. 25. 50. See Expoſition of Deeds, infra.

4. In reſpect of the eſtate of the parties thereunto.

If either the Cogniſor or Cogniſee at the time of the Fine levyed be ſeiſed of any eſtate of Freehold in Fee-ſimple, Fee-taile, or for life, in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder, whether the ſame be by right or wrong, the Fine will bee a good Fine in this reſpect. And therefore if one that is ſeiſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-taile, generall or ſpeciall, levy a Fine of this Land to a ſtranger, this is a good Fine. So if a ſtranger levy a Fine to him of this Land, this is a good Fine. So alſo a Fine levyed by, or to a tenant for life of the Land he doth ſo hold is good in this reſpect: but hee muſt take heed of a Forfeiture in this caſe, for if tenant for Life levy a Fine Sur Cogniſanc' de droit come ceo, &c: to a ſtranger, or levy a Fine ſur Grant & Releaſe to a ſtranger, to hold to the Cogniſee for a longer time then for the life of the tenant for life, howſoever in this caſe the Fine be a good Fine, yet this is a forfeiture of the eſtate of the tenant for life whereof he in reverſion or remainder may take preſent advantage. And yet if ſuch a tenant for life levy a Fine ſur Grant et Releaſe, to hold to the Cogniſee for the life of the tenant for life, or grant his eſtate by ſuch a Fine to him in reverſion or remainder; or by Fine; grant a rent out of the Land for longer time then for his own life, in theſe caſes the fine is good, and there is no forfeiture of the ſtate of the tenant for life. So likewiſe if a Fine be levyed to a tenant for life by a ſtranger, who doth thereby acknowledg all his right to be in the tenant for life, and releaſe and quite claim to him and his heirs, and go no further, this is a good Fine and no forfeiture of the eſtate of the tenant for life, for his eſtate is not changed thereby, and it may enure to him in reverſion, but if the ſtranger ſay further in the Fine Come ceo que il ad de ſon done, this is a Forfeiture. Stat. 27 Ed. 1. 1.

Forfeiture.

But if neither the cogniſor nor cogniſee be ſeiſed of any eſtate of Freehold in poſſeſſion or reverſion of the lands whereof the Fine is levyed at the time of the levying of the ſame, but have only a leaſe for years, or not ſo much, the Fine is void and of no force as to any ſtranger, howſoever it may be good between the parties by way of Eſtopell. And therefore if a leſſee for years, or a diſſeiſee, or one that hath right onely to a remainder or reverſion levie a Fine to a ſtranger that hath nothing in the Land, this Fine is void, or at leaſt voidable as to, and by any ſtranger thereunto, and he that hath cauſe may ſhew that the free-hold eſtate and ſeiſin of the land was in another before and at the time of the Fine levied, and that Partes finis nihil habuerunt tempore levationis finis. The parties to the Fine had nothing when they levied the Fine, and by this avoid it. And yet a vouchee after he hath entred into the warranty may levy a Fine unto the demandant, but not to a ſtranger. And a diſſeiſor may levy a Fine to a ſtranger that hath nothing in the land; and this is a good Fine, for he hath the Fee ſimple by wrong in him. Alſo the iſſue in taile may be barred by way of Eſtoppell, by a Fine levyed by Anceſter being tenant in taile, albeit neither conuſor nor Conuſee have any Eſtate of Freehold in the Land. Co. 5. 123. 3. 88. 90. Super Lit. 251. 3 H. 7. 9. 5 H. 7. 41. 3 H. 6. 21. 27 H. 8. 4. A Joint Tenant, Tenant in Common or Coparcenour, may levy a Fine of his part to a ſtranger, and this will be a good Fine: And ſo alſo as it ſeemes, may one Coparcenour or tenant in common to another. 26 H. 8. 9. Dyer. 334. 69. Plow. 375. 538. E. 4. 13. 11. E. 4. 68. One ſingle member of a corporation aggregate of many cannot levy a Fine of the Lands of the corporation, as the Major or Maſter of a College cannot levy a Fine without the communalty, or his fellows, &c. But ſuch perſons may levy Fines of the Lands they are ſolely ſeiſed in their own right as other men may doe. Such as have Eſtates of freehold in Eccleſiaſticall Lands in the right of their Churches, houſes, &c. as Biſhops, Deanes, and Chapters, Prebends, Parſons & the like, may not levy a Fine of ſuch lands, for if they doe it wil not bind the ſucceſſor. Co. 11 78.

He that hath an Eſtate of fee-ſimple in lands in the right of his wife ought not to levy a Fine thereof without her, and if he doe, ſhee and her heires may avoid it after his death. Alſo he that hath an Eſtate of Lands given in taile by the King, or by the proviſion of the King ought not to levy a Fine of this Land, for it is void as againſt the iſſue in taile and the King. Alſo he that hath an Eſtate of Lands that are prohibited to be ſold by Act of Parliament, ought not to levy a Fine of ſuch Land. Alſo ſhe that hath an eſtate of Lands of her husband, or of any of his anceſtors aſſured to her for her Jointure Dower, or in taile by the meanes of her husband or any of his anceſtors, may not levy a Fine of this Land; for if ſhe grant a greater eſtate then for her own life, this worketh a preſent Forfeiture. Stat. 32 H. 8. chap. 28. 12 E. 4. 12. Co. 6. 55. *Broo. 8. What perſons ſhall be barred by a Fine, or a Fine and Non-claime. And in what time. Or not. And how.

A Fine at the common Law, or a Fine without Proclamations was once a perpetuall bar to all perſons that had right and no impediment at the time of the Fine levied, and that did not claime within a year and a day after the execution of the Fine by poſſeſſion; but now this Law is changed, and this kind of Fine will barre none but ſuch as are parties and privies thereunto. But a Fine by the Statute, or a Fine with Proclamations is now much of the ſame virtue and force as a Fine at the common Law was, for by the Statute of 4 H. 7. it is provided, that every Fine after the ingroſſing thereof ſhall be proclaimed in the Court the ſame Terme, and the three next following Termes, four ſeverall daies in every Terme; which Proclamations ſo made, the Fine ſhall conclude all parties, privies and ſtrangers, except women covert, perſons within 21 years of age, in priſon, out of the Realme, or of non ſane memorie, (being no parties to the Fine) ſo as they or their heires take their Action or Lawfull entrie within five yeares after theſe imperfections removed. Saving to all perſons and their heires (other then parties) the right claime and intereſt which they have at the time of the Fine, ſo as they purſue it by Action or entrie within five yeares after the Proclamations. And ſaving to all other perſons ſuch right, title, claime and intereſt as firſt ſhall grow or come to them after the proclamations by force of any matter before the Fine, ſo as they make their claime or entrie within five years after the ſame grow due; or if at that time there be any impediment as aforeſaid, within five yeares after the impediment removed. And by the ſtatute of 32 H. 8. (which is an expoſition of this ſtatute) it is provided, that all Fines with Proclamations levied according to 4 H. 7. by any perſon of 21. yeares of age of any land, &c. before the fine levied entailed to him that doth levy the fine or any of his Anceſtors in poſſeſſion, reverſion, remainder, or uſe, immediately after Proclamations had, ſhall be a bar againſt him and his Heirs, claiming only by force of any ſuch entaile, and againſt all others claiming only to the uſe of him or any Heir of his body. By which Statute it doth appear, that all the parties to the fine, Conuſors and Conuſees, whether they be femes Covert, men de non ſane memorie, or others, (Infants only excepted who during minority may avoid it) and whether they have a naturall or civill capacity: and privies, viz. privies in bloud, as Heirs whether they be lineall or collaterall, or privies in repreſentation, as Executors and adminiſtrators: and all ſtrangers alſo, viz. all others beſides parties and privies that have or pretend any preſent right or title (except women covert, and the reſt that have impediment that doe make their entrie or claim, or bring their action within 5 years after Proclamations had, & thoſe perſons excepted alſo if they make not their claim, &c. within five years after the impediment removed) all theſe are concluded. i. ſo ſhut & cloſed up together, for their right is ſo extinct hereby, as they can never open their mouthes or lift up a finger againſt it. Saving to all others. i. ſuch as have no preſent right at the time of the fine levied, and were excepted before ſuch Right, Title, Claim or intereſt as ſhal accrew to them after the Proclamations upon any truſt, gift in Taile, or other cauſe, before the fine levyed, ſo as they make their claim, &c. within five years after their right firſt accrewed if they have then no impediment, or if they have, within five years after the impediment removed. Stat. 18 Ed. 1. de finibus, Stat. 34 Ed. 3. 16. Plow 373. Stat. 4. H. 7, chap. 24. 1. R. 3. chap. 7. 32 H. 8. chap. 36.

For a more full underſtanding of which Statutes and this matter, theſe things in generall muſt firſt be obſerved. 1. That the perſons to be barred by a fine are, 1. Parties. 2. Privies. 3. Eſtrangers. The parties if they be of the age of 21 years, are bound for ever by the fine, and ſhall have no time to claim to preſerve their right, The privies alſo, being heirs and Executors to the parties and void of impediment at the time of the fine levied, or not, if they claim by the ſame title that their Anceſtor had that levied the fine, are barred for ever by the fine, and ſhall have no time to claime to preſerve their right. And therefore if my Father diſſeiſe my Grandfather of Land, and then levie a fine of the Land, and then my Grandfather die, and after my Father die, by this fine I am barred of the Land for ever. Dyer 3. paſche. 7. Jac. B. R. And here note, that he that is a privie within the intent of 4 H. 7. is an Heir within the Statute of 32 H. 8: Et ſic é converſo. Trin. 21 Jac. Com. B. Curia in Will. Godfreys Caſe. And that privies or Heirs in eſtate and bloud, as he that is Heir to whom the land doth or ſhould deſcend, are within theſe Statutes, and ſhall be barred by the fine of their Anceſtor of that land. And ſo alſo ſhall privies in eſtate that are not privies in bloud, as where one hath land in burrow Engliſh, and levie a fine of it, hereby the youngeſt ſon is barred. So if one be Tenant in taile to him and the Heirs females of his body, and he levie a fine, having a Son and Daughter, hereby the iſſue female is barred, and yet ſhe is not the Heir of his bloud. But he that is privie in bloud only, and not in eſtate alſo, is not within theſe Statutes, neither ſhall he be barred by the fine: and therefore if Lands be given to a man, and the Heirs females of his body, and he hath a Son and a Daughter, and the ſon levie a fine and die without iſſue, this is no barr to the Daughter, for howſoever ſhe be Heir of his bloud, yet ſhe is not Heir to the eſtate, nor ſhall need to make her conveyance to it by him. The ſtrangers that are to be concluded by the fine, are either, 1. Such as have preſent right and no impediment, and theſe are barred within five years if they make not their claim within five years after the Proclamations. 2. Such as have preſent right, but have impediment of infancy, &c. and theſe are barred if they doe not make their claim within five years after the impediment removed. 3. Such as have no preſent but future right upon cauſe precedent, and they are either without impediment, and then they are barred if they claim not within five years after their right doth accrew: or they have impediments, and then they are barred if they claim not within five years after the impediment removed. 4. Such as have neither preſent nor future right at the time of the levying of the fine by reaſon of any matter before the fine, but whoſe right groweth either entirely after, or partly before, and partly after the fine, and theſe are not barred at all by the fine, but they may make their claim, &c. when they will. And parties, privies, and ſtrangers to finesthat are barred thereby, are ſuch as have naturall capacities or civill, for both theſe are barred. And therefore it is held, if ſuch a Corporation as hath an abſolute eſtate and authority of his poſſeſſions ſo as he may maintaine a writ of right thereof, as Major and Communalty, Deane and Chapter, &c. levie a fine of their Lands, they and their ſucceſſors are barred preſently; but if a Biſhop, Deane, or Prebend, without aſſent of the Dean and Chapter, or a Parſon or Vicar without aſſent of the Patron and Ordinary had levied a fine, this would not have barred the ſucceſſor; neither will it bar now with their aſſent, for they are reſtrained by divers Statutes. Plow. 337. 375. 378. So alſo ſuch perſons are barred by the fines that are levied by others if they make not their claime in time, as if one diſſeiſe a Corporation aggregate of land belonging to their Corporation, and after levie a fine of it with Proclamations; and they doe not make their claim, &c. within five years, hereby they are barred. 2. Where the Anceſtor is barred by the fine, there for the moſt part the Heir is barred alſo. Co. 9. 105. And therefore if Tenant in taile be diſſeiſed, and the diſſeiſor levie a fine with Proclamations, and the Tenant in taile ſuffer five years to paſs without claim, &c. hereby he and his iſſues are barred for ever, ſo that the heir doth ſuffer for the laches of his Anceſtor. 3. The eſtates that ſhall be barred by the fine are eſtates by the common Law, or by Copihold in Fee-ſimple, Fee-taile, or for life, or for years, the eſtates alſo of Tenant by Statute, Elegit, and of Gardeins in Chivalrie, and of Executors that have land untill Debts and Legacies be paid. And therefore if one enter upon, and put out a Copyholder of Land, and levie a fine thereof, and the Copyholder ſuffer five years to paſs and make no claim, &c. the Copyholder and his Lord both are hereby barred for ever. And if a Leaſe be made for years, and the Leſſor or anothere before entrie of the Leſſee levie a fine with Proclamations, and the Leſſee doth not make his claim, &c. within five years, hereby the Leſſee is barred of his intereſt for ever. 4. The Things whereunto theſe Statutes doe extend, are Lands and Tenements, and not a Rent, or other profit apprender out of the Land, and therefore if I have a Rent, Common, or Eſtovers out of Land, or a way over Land, or power to ſell the Land, and a fine is levied of the Land it ſelf, and I doe not make my claim of my rent, &c. within five years, yet I am not hereby barred of my rent, &c. And for this cauſe it is, that if a Tenant in Ancient demeſne levie a fine of his Land, and five years paſs, the Lord is not hereby barred to avoid it, for herein he claimeth not the Land, but his ancient Seigniorie. Co. 9. 104. 5. 124. Plow. 378. Bro. Fines. 123. Co. 5. 124. 5. The time in which they muſt make their claim, or bring their action that have preſent right and no impediment, is within five years after Proclamation had; and the time for them which have impediments, is within five years after the impediments removed. Plow. 370. Lord Zouches caſe. 6 The time wherin they muſt make their claim or bring action whoſe right happens afterwards, if they have no impediment, is within 5 years after the time that their right accrues, and if there be any impedimentwithin 5 years after impediment removed. Dyer 3. Co. 3. 86. 91. Plow. 373. 7. The perſons whoſe right is ſaved and preſerved, are mentioned in the firſt & ſecond ſaving of the Statute of 4 H. 7; and they are ſtrangers, and not parties nor privies. 8. They that have benefit by the firſt Saving of the Statute ſhall have none by the ſecond Saving, for he that will be within the ſecond Saving to have benefit by it, muſt be, 1 Another perſon. 2 The right muſt come and accrew to him firſt. 3. It muſt come to him after the fine and proclamations. 4 His right muſt be upon ſome cauſe or matter before the fine. Co. 5, 124. 9. 106. 9. No fine ſhall bar any eſtate in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder which is not deveſted and put to a right at the time of the fine levied. And therefore if one levie a fine of my Land whiles I am in poſſeſſion of it, this fine will not hurt me. So if the Tenant of the Land, out of which I have a Rent or Common, &c. levie a fine of the Land, this ſhall not bar me of my Rent or Common, for I am ſtill in poſſeſſion of this in the Judgement of the Law. So if there be Tenant for life, the remainder for life, or Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, and the firſt Tenant in Tail or for life do bargain and ſell the Land by Deed indented indented and inrolled, and after levie a fine to the Bargainee, in this caſe the remainders are not barred, albeit five years paſs without claim, for the Law in theſe caſes doth adjudge them alwaies in poſſeſſion. So if I make a Leaſe for years of Land, rendring a rent, and a ſtranger levie a fine of the Land, and the Leſſee for years payeth his rent to me duly, in this caſe I am ſaid to be alwaies in poſſeſſion, and therefore am not barred by this fine of my reverſion. So if there be a Tenant by Copy or Leaſe for life, the remainder for life, and the firſt Tenant for life accept of a fine of the Land with proclamations and 5 years paſs without claim, &c. hereby he? that is in remainder is not barred. So if one have a Leaſe for years of Land to begin in futuro and a fine is levyed of the Land, and five years paſs after the terme begin, it ſeems this is no bar, becauſe this eſtate is not put to a right. Brownl. Rep. 1 part, 181. 2 part, 134. 75, 153.

And for the further illuſtration of all theſe things ſee the examples following. If Tenant in Tail levy a fine of the Land intailed with proclamations according to the ſtatutes, this is a bar to the eſtate taile, wherein theſe things are to be known. Stat. 4 H. 7. 32 H: 8. Co. ſuper Litt. 372. 1] Co 9. 138. 140. Dier: 3. 1. That whereſoever the iſſue doth claim by the ſame title, and muſt make his Conveyance to the Lands by him that levied the fine, there the fine will bar him, and therefore if Lands be given to the husband and wife in ſpeciall taile, viz. to them and to the Heirs of their two bodies iſſuing, or the like, or if the gift be to them and the Heirs males or females of their two bodies, or to them and the Heirs of their bodies with the remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband in Fee, and the Husband alone levieth a fine with proclamations, by this the iſſue in taile is barred, And yet ſo as the right of the wife is ſaved ſo as ſhe makes her claim, &c. within five years after her Husbands death. So if Husband and Wife Tenants in ſpeciall taile have iſſue and the Wife die, and the Husband marry another Wife and have iſſue and levy a fine Sur cogniſance de droit come ceo, &c. and take back by the ſame fine an eſtate in ſpeciall taile the remainder over, &c. and die, the iſſue by the firſt Wife is barred. Dier 354. So if Tenant in Taile be Diſſeiſed, or make a Feoffment in Fee, and after levie a fine with proclamations to the Diſſeiſor or to a ſtranger, the iſſues in taile are hereby barred for ever, the continuance of the poſſeſſion in another notwithſtanding. Co. 3. 90. So if a gift be made to the eldeſt ſon and the Heirs of his body, the remainder to the Father and the Heirs of his body, and the Father dyeth, and the eldeſt ſon levy a fine with Proclamations and dyeth without iſſue, this ſhall barr the ſecond ſon for ever for the remainder deſcended to the eldeſt. Co. ſuper Litt. 372. So if Lands be given to an eldeſt ſon and the Heirs of the bod yof his Father (the Father being then dead) and he levy a Fine of this Land, this will barr the younger brother. Curia trin: 21 Jac. Co. B. But if the iſſue in taile doe not make his title by him that did levy the fine, there the fine will not barr, and therefore if my Father be Tenant in Taile, and his brother Diſſeiſe him and levy a fine, and he and my Father dye, this fine ſhall not barr me as iſſue in taile, becauſe I doe not make my title to the Land by him: but if I ſuffer five years to paſs and doe not make my claim, &c. by this means I may be barred by the fine. Dier 3. And if the fine be levied of another thing then the thing it ſelf entailed, As if the Tenant in taile grant by fine a Rent, Common, or the like out of the Land intailed, this fine will not barr the iſſue. So if a Rent be entailed and the Tenant in Taile of the Rent Diſſeiſe the Terre-Tenant of the Land out of which the rent doth iſſue, and then levy a fine of the Land, this is no bar to the iſſue of the Rent. Plow. 435: 2. Albeit the fine be a double fine with a grant and render, yet it is within theſe Statutes, and will barr the iſſue in taile as well as a ſingle fine, ſo as the grant and render be of the Land it ſelfe and not of any profit apprender out of it. 2] Co. 76. 3. 85. ſuper Litt. 353. Bro. fines. 118. Dier. 272. And therefore if Husband and Wife be Tenants in ſpeciall taile, and they levy a fine with proclamations, and the Conuſee grant and Render the Land to them and their Heirs, this fine will barr the iſſue in taile. And if Tenant in taile joyne with I S and levy a fine to a ſtranger, and the ſtranger doth grant and render the Land againe to I S for years, and to the Tenant in taile in Fee afterwards, the iſſue in taile is barred by this fine.

2. Iſſue in taile barred by the fine of his Anceſtor or ſome other.

fine: So if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in taile, and he in remainder in taile accept of a fine from a ſtranger, and grant and render to the ſtranger againe for years with a remainder over, hereby the iſſue in taile is bound. If Tenant in taile accept of a fine of the Land entailed from a ſtranger, and then grant and render a Rent out of the Land to the ſtranger by the ſame fine, this will not bind the iſſue in taile to pay the ſame Rent. Plow 435. If Tenant in Taile make a Feoffment on Condition, and die having two ſiſters inheritable to the taile, and one of them levy a fine with proclamations ſur releaſe to the Feoffee of the whole, in this caſe it is doubted whether the other ſiſter be barred of her half or not. Dier 117. 3. Albeit the Tenant in Taile die before all the proclamations be finiſhed, yet when they be finiſhed as they may be after his death, the iſſues in taile are bound by the fine, for howſoever by the death of the Tenant in Taile the right of the eſtate taile doth deſcend to the iſſue, yet when the proclamations are paſſed, this right that doth deſcend is bound by the Statutes, and the iſſue cannot by any claim, &c. ſave the right of the eſtate taile that doth deſcend unto him. 3] Co. 3. 86. 87. 1 in Shelleys Caſe. 4. Albeit the iſſue in Taile be within age, out of the Realme, under Coverture, non compos mentis, or in priſon at the time of the fine levied and the proclamations paſſed, yet the eſtate taile is barred by the fine. And therefore if A be Tenant for life of Land the remainder to B in taile, the reverſion to B, and his Heirs expectant, and B levy a fine to C and his Heirs, and hath iſſue and die before all the proclamations are paſſed, the iſſue in taile being then out of the realm, the proclamations are made, and after the iſſue in taile cometh into the Realm and claimeth the remainder in taile upon the Land; in this caſe the eſtate taile is barred for ever. 4] Co. 3. 84, 91, 5. Theſe Statutes doe extend to fines levied by Tenant in taile by concluſion, and the iſſue ſhall be bound by the fine of their Anceſtor unto whom they are privie in eſtate and bloud, albeit partes finis nihil habuerunt tempore finis. And therefore if the iſſue in taile, in the life of his Anceſtor when he hath onely a poſſibility, as if there be Grandfather, Father, and Son, and the Grandfather be Tenant in Taile, and the Father levy a fine of the Land before the Grandfathers death, and then the Grandfather dye before the Father, and after the Father dye, in this caſe the iſſue is barred by this fine. 5] Co, 3. 90. Dier 279, Plow. 435. So alſo if the Grandfather ſurvive the Father. Curia Trin. 21. Jac. Com. B. Godfry & Wades caſe. Dyer 48. But in caſe of a collaterall deſcent, if the collaterall Anceſtor die in the life-time of his Father without iſſue, this fine is no bar, but if he ſurvive his Father; contrà. So if Lands be given to the Grandfather and his wife in ſpeciall taile, and the Grandfather dieth, and the Father doth Diſſeiſe the Grandmother, and doth levy a fine with proclamations, the Grandmother dieth, and then the Father dieth, in this caſe the ſon is barred. So if Lands be conveyed in taile to a woman for her Jointure within the Statute of 11 H. 7, cap. 20. and while ſhe liveth the iſſue in taile doth levy a fine of the Land, by this the iſſues inheritable to the eſtate taile are barred for ever. Co. 3. 50. 51. 9. 140. So if Tenant in taile make a Feoffment or be diſſeiſed, and after levy a fine with proclamations for a ſtranger, hereby his iſſues are barred for ever. So if Tenant in Taile die and his iſſue before his entry (having a freehold in law only) doth levy a fine with proclamations, this ſhall be a bar to his iſſues & to his collaterall Heirs & brothers of the half bloud. Pl. 434. 435 Curia. 21. Jac. Co. B. So if Tenant in taile have four Daughters and one of them levy a fine in the life of the Father, this wil be a bar to her iſſue for the fourth part of the Land, Idem. But in theſe caſes before and ſuch like where the iſſue in taile doth levy a fine in the life time of the Tenant in Taile, the Tenant in Taile himſelf may after levy a fine of the Land, and thereby barr his iſſue, and the Conuſee alſo to whom his iſſue hath levied a fine, and therefore in all theſe caſes it is ſuppoſed that the Tenant in Taile doth dye and ſuffer the right to deſcend to his iſſue, Co. 3, 50. 51. 9. 140. Co. 10. 50. 9. 141. 3. 50. 51. If Lands be given by will to one when he ſhall come to his age of twenty four years, to hold to him and the Heirs of his body, and he after his age of twenty one years levy a fine of this Land with proclamations, this is a barr to the iſſue in taile.

If a Diſſeiſor make a gift in taile, and the Donee make a Feoffment to A and after levy levy a Fine with Proclamations to B. that hath nothing in the Land, this Fine will barre the iſſues in taile, and they ſhall not avoid it by pleading that partes finis nihil habuerunt &c. but it is no barre to the diſſeiſee, for he may avoid it by this plea when he will. And à fortiori therefore, if a Fine be levied by the tenant in taile that hath only an eſtate of free-hold in remainder or reverſion is good: as if A. be tenant for life, the remainder to B. in taile, and B. levy a Fine, albeit this be no diſcontinuance, yet it is a barre to the Eſtate taile. But if tenant in taile have iſſue a ſon and a daughter, and the ſon living the tenant in taile levy a Fine and dye without iſſue, and then the Tenant in taile dieth, by this the daughter and the eſtate taile is not barred. Co. 3 84. Trin. 21. Jac. Co. B. Will. Godfrey verſus Wades caſe. So if the younger ſon levy a Fine in the life of the father, and then the tenant in taile dye, this is no barre to the elder ſon. So if Lands be given to a man and the heires females of his body, and he hath a ſon and a daughter, and the ſon doth levy a Fine of the Land, this is no barre to the daughter. So if tenant in taile have a daughter, his wife being with childe of a ſon, and the daughter levy a Fine, and after the ſon is borne, this Fine ſhall not barre the ſon, for theſe howbeit they be privies and heires to the blood, yet are not privies and heires to the eſtate. 6. Albeit the eſtate paſſed by the Fine be afterwards before all the proclamations had avoided, yet the iſſue in taile is barred by it. Diſcontinuance.

And therefore if tenant in taile diſcontinue in fee, and after diſſeiſe the diſcontinuee and levy a Fine with proclamations to a ſtranger, and take an eſtate back by Render in the ſame Fine, and the diſcontinuee before all the proclamations paſſe enter and claime and ſo avoid the Fine, yet hereby the eſtate taile is barred. Co. 3 91.

And if tenant in taile infeoffe the iſſue in taile and after diſſeiſe him and levy a Fine, the iſſue enter, and after the proclamations paſſe, and after the iſſue in taile doth infeoffe the tenant in taile which levied the Fine and dyeth, it ſeemes this Fine ſhall barre the iſſues in taile. Per Popham & Fenner Juſt. M. 39. 40. Eliz. B. R. This is a barre to the eſtate taile and to the iſſues onely and is no bar to him in remainder or reverſion, and therefore when the eſtate taile is ſpent, this barre is at an end. And therefore if an eſtate be limited to A: and B, his wife and the heires males of the body of A. the remainder to C. and A: and B. have iſſue, and A. dye and B. and her iſſue, or her iſſue alone levy a Fine, this will barre the iſſues of the iſſues whiles there be any, but if they faile it will not barre C. in remainder, except he ſuffer five years to paſſe and ſo be barred by his non claime. So if tenant for life and he that is next in the remainder in taile joyne in a Fine, this is a good barre to the iſſues in taile for ever as long as that eſtate taile ſhall continue, but not to him that is next in remainder, nor to any other that ſhall come in of any remainder in taile or in fee, nor to him in reverſion. If lands be given to A. and the heires males of his body, the remainder to B. and the heires males of his body, the remainder to the right heires of A. and A: doth bargain and ſell this land by deed indented and inrolled to I. S. and his heires, and after levy a Fine of it ſur Conuſance de droit come ceo &c. to him and his heires, by this the remainder to B. is not diſcontinued, but it is a barre to the eſtate taile by the Statutes, and cauſeth the eſtate of the bargainee to laſt ſo long as the tenant in taile hath iſſues of his body, but if the Fine had been before the bargaine and ſale it had been a diſcontinuance of the remainder, but in neither caſe a barre to him in remainder unleſſe he ſuffer himſelfe to be barred by his non-claime within five yeares after his remainder happen to come in poſſeſſion: 8. If there be tenant in taile, the remainder to him in taile, and the tenant in taile levie a Fine of this Land, hereby both his eſtates are barred. Et ſic de ſimilibus. But all this notwithſtanding, If Lands be conveyed to a woman in taile for her joynture within the ſtatute of 11 H. 7. chap. 20. and ſhe levie a Fine of this Land, this will not barre the iſſues in taile. Or if Lands be given in taile to any ſubject by the Kings own gift or proviſion, and the tenant in taile levie a Fine, this Fine ſhall not bind the iſſues in taile nor the King, but others it will barre, for theſe fines are not intended within, but excepted out of the Statute of 32 H. 8. but the King himſelfe being tenant in taile of the gift of ſome of his Anceſtors being ſubjects may levy a Diſcontinuance.

Fine of it to barre his iſſues in taile. Co. 1. 76. ſuper Litt. 372. Co. 10. 96. & 9. Jac. B. R.. Co. ſuper Litt. 372.

Sect. 7. 2 Wife barred by the fine of her Husband or ſome other.

And in all theſe caſes where a recovery will not bar the iſſues in taile, there a fine will not bar them. See Brownl. 1. part. 138. 211. Bro: Fines 121. Co. 6. 55. Dyer. 4 Co. ſuper Lit. 372. Co. 8. 17. 78.

Albeit the fine of the Husband and Wife together of the Wives Land, or of the Land of the Husband and Wife together, be a perpetuall bar to her and her Heirs for ever, yet if the Husband alone levie a fine with Proclamations of ſuch Land, and then he die, in this caſe ſhe is not barred of her right, but if ſhe doe not make her claim &c. within five years after her Husbands death ſhe is barred of her right for ever, notwithſtanding the Statute of 32 H. 8. Dyer 72. Plow. 373. And if one ſeiſed of Land in Fee mary a Wife, and after make a Leaſe of this Land to A for life, the remainder to B in Fee, and B levie a fine with proclamations, and the husband die, and the Wife doe not make her claim &c. within five years after the death of her Husband; hereby ſhe is barred of her Dower for ever notwithſtanding the eſtate for life in A, but if the remainder of B had been put to a right at the time of the fine levied ſhe might have avoided the fine by Plea. M. 18. Jac. Co. B. in Anne Twiſts Caſe. Quod partes finis nihil habuerunt, &c. And if the Husband levy a fine of his own Land and die, and his Widow having no impediment doth not make her claim within five years after his death; hereby ſhe is barred of her dower for ever. Dyer 224. Co. 2. 93.

If a jointure be made to a woman after the coverture, and her Husband and ſhe levie a fine of it; hereby without queſtion ſhe is barred of her jointure in this Land; but it is thought that this is no bar of her dower in the reſidue of the Land of the Husband, and eſpecially then when the fine is Sur conuſance de droit come ceo, &c. Dyer 358. If Lands be given to a Man and his Wife in taile, the remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband, and the Husband alone levie a fine of this, this will not bar the wife except ſhe ſuffer five years to paſs after his death without making claim, &c. and therefore if the fine be to the uſe of the Husband and his Heirs in Fee, he may diſpoſe it as a Fee-ſimple and his iſſue hath no remedy, Brownl. 1 part. 139. Dyer 351.

3: Diſſeiſee and the like barred by the Fine of the Diſſeiſor, &c.

If a man diſſeiſe me of the Land I have in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-taile, and after levie a fine of this Land with Proclamations, and I doe not make my claim, &c. within five years after the Proclamations had, hereby I and my Heirs are barred for ever of this Land, Co. 3: 105. 3: 87. ſuper Lit: 298. And if I being ſuch a Tenant in Fee make a Leaſe for years, or be the Lord of any Copyhold eſtate, and my Leſſee for years, or Copyholder in Fee, or for life be ouſted, and I thereby diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor levie a fine, and neither I nor my Leſſee for years, or Copyholder doe make any claim, &c. within the five years after the fine levied, hereby we are all barred for ever.

And if one diſſeiſe me of Land, and after make a Leaſe for life of it, and then levie a fine with Proclamations, and I ſuffer five years to paſs, hereby I am barred both of the reverſion and of the eſtate for life alſo.

If Tenant for life make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Feoffee levie a fine with Proclamations, and he in reverſion or remainder doe not make his claim, &c. within five years, hereby he is barred for ever. Plow. in Stowels Caſe.

If I pretend Right or Title to Land, and enter upon it, and put him out that is in poſſeſſion, and then I levie a fine with Proclamations, with an intent to bar him, and he doth not make his claim, &c. within five years, hereby he is barred for ever, albeit he had the true Right, and I no right at all. Co. 3. 79.

If I purchaſe Land of H. and after perceiving my title defeaſible, and that a ſtranger hath the right of the Land, I doe levie a fine to, or take a fine from another with Proclamations with intent and of purpoſe to bar him that hath right, and he ſuffer five years to paſs, and doth not make his claim, &c. hereby he is barred of his right for ever. Co. 3. 79. Doct. & St. 83, 155.

Equitie.

And in theſe and ſuch like caſes, there is no reliefe to be had in equity. See more in Numb. 11, infrà.

If

If there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, and the Tenant in Tail bargain and ſell the Land by Deed indented and inrolled, and after levie a fine with Proclamations to the bargainee Sur Conuſance de droit come ceo, &c. in this caſe as to the Tenant in Tail and his iſſue this is a bar, but as to all others it is no bar, albeit they never make any claim, &c. Co. 10. 95. 9. 106. So if Tenant in Tail levie a fine of his intailed Land, this is a bar as to him and his iſſues, but as to all others it is no bar at all, and therefore he in remainder or reverſion in their times may enter notwithſtanding. So if Land be entailed to the Husband and Wife, & the Heirs of their two bodies, and the Husband alone levie a fine of this Land, this as to the Husband Tenant in Tail and his iſſues is a bar, but not as to the Wife, for ſhe ſhall be Tenant in Tail ſtill, and yet it ſeems ſhe may not ſuffer a recovery of this Land afterward, Co. 9. 140. 132. So if a man attainted of Felony or Treaſon levie a fine of his Land, this as to the King and Lord of whom the Land is held is void, and is no bar to their advantage and title of forfeiture, but as to all others it is a good bar. So if one levie a fine of Lands in Ancient Demeſne, and of other Lands together; this as to the Lands in Ancient demeſne is not good, nor any bar at all, but as to the other Lands it is a good bar. 7 H. 4. 44. F, N. B. 98. Plow.

9. Where a Fine ſhall be a bar, as to one perſon, and not to another, or as to one part of the Land, and not to another.

Recovery.

By the ancient common Law, he that had right, was bound to make claim &c. within a year and a day after the fine levied and execution thereupon, or elſe he was barred for ever; but this bar by non claime is now gone, and if ſuch a fine without Proclamations be levied at this day, he that hath right may make his claim at any time to prevent the bar, and avoid the force of the fine. Co. ſuper Litt. 254. 262.

10 The time of claim, and within what time he that hath right to Land muſt make his claim, &c. to prevent the bar of the fine.

Parties to fines void of impediment at the time of the fine levied are barred of the Land preſently, and ſhall have no time to avoid the ſame fine by entrie, claim, &c. And privies in bloud, and privies in repreſentation claiming by the ſame Title which their Anceſtor that levied the ſame fine had, ſhall be barred by the ſame fine preſently, and that whether they have any impediment or not. Stat. 1 R. 3. chap. 7. 4 H. 7. chap. 24.

Parties.

Privies.

Eſtrangers to fines, (being all ſuch as are neither parties nor privies) who have right to the Land whereof the fine is levied, and have no impediment naturall or legall, ſhall have time to make their claim, &c. within five years after the fine levied and Proclamations had, and no longer. See the Sta. Plow. 374. Co. 9. 105. And therefore if Leſſee for years, Tenant by Elegit, Statute, or a Copiholder in Fee, or for life, be ouſted, and he in reverſion Diſſeiſed, they ſhall have but one 5 years between them to make their claim, &c. and if they claim not within that time they are all barred for ever, for they have all preſent right and may bring their action preſently: but otherwiſe it is where the Tenant for life, & he in reverſion be diſſeiſed, for in this caſe he in reverſion is not barred by the firſt 5 years after the fine levied, for in that time he can have no action, therefore he ſhall have time to make his claim 5 years after the death of the Tenant for life.

Eſtrangers.

1. That have preſent right and no impediment.

If a Diſſeiſor levie a fine with Proclamations of the Land whereof the Diſſeiſin was, the Diſſeiſee muſt make his claim within the firſt 5 years, after the Proclamations had, and if he happen to die within the five years, his Heir ſhall not have five years more, but ſo much time more as to make up the time incurred in his fathers or other Anceſtors time 5 years, and albeit he be an Infant at the time of his Anceſtors death, yet he ſhall have no longer time. Plow. 356. 375. If a Tenant in Tail be diſſeiſed and the Diſſeiſor levie a fine, the Tenant in Tail or his iſſues muſt make their claim within the next five years after the Proclamations paſſed, otherwiſe they be barred for ever. The like it is in the lacheſs of him in remainder or reverſion. 19 H. 8. 7, Plow. 374. Dyer 3. And if, in theſe and ſuch like caſes, he that hath preſent right and is without impediment, bring upon himſelf any impediment, as if being within the Realme at the time when the fine is levied, he doe afterwards goe beyond the Sea, or the like, in theſe caſes he ſhall have no longer time then the firſt five years after the proclamations had. Co. 100.

the levying of the Fine, and having then any preſent intereſt or right ſhall have five years time after the infirmity removed to make their claime &c. And therefore an Infant regularly ſhall have time for five years after he come to his full age to make his claime &c. although he be in his mothers wombe at the time of the Fine levied. And yet if my fathers brother diſſeiſe him, and levy a Fine with proclamations, and a year after the proclamations my father dyeth, and after and within five years my uncle dyeth, in this Caſe I by reaſon of my infancy ſhall have only ſo much time to avoid the ſame as at the death of my father remained to come of the five years next after the proclamations, and not a new five years, becauſe I claime by the ſame title that my father had. So if my father, or other anceſtor be diſſeiſed and the diſſeiſor levy a Fine with proclamations, and my father or anceſtor dye within five years after the proclamations, in this caſe I ſhall not have a new five years, but only ſo much as remaineth of the old five years to make my claime &c. Madmen and Lunatickes (being ſtrangers to the fine) ſhall have the like time to make their claim &c. as Infants have, and yet if this infirmity happen after the Fine levied, and before the laſt proclamations be made, theſe perſons are not bound to the firſt years, but ſhall have five years time after they be cured of their maladies. Women Covert (eſtrangers to the Fine) ſhall have five years time after they be diſcovert, to purſue the right. But if a feme ſole (eſtranger to a Fine) have preſent right, and after the Fine levied ſhe take a husband, and ſo five years paſs after the proclamations had, in this caſe ſhe is barred and ſhall have no further time to claime. Eſtrangers to Fines impriſoned at the time of the Fine levied ſhall have the ſame time and liberty Infants have; but if ſuch impriſonment happen after the time of the Fine levied and before the laſt proclamation made, it ſeemeth they ſhall have five years after the inlargement. And eſtrangers to Fines being out of the Realme at the time of the levying thereof ſhall have five years time after their returne to enter or claime &c. But if they be in England at the time of levying of the Fine, and after goe beyond the Seas and ſuffer the five years after the proclamations to paſs, in this caſe they ſhall have no longer time, except they be ſent in the Kings ſervice and by his commandement. And if the party be beyond the Sea at the time of the Fine levyed, and never return but dye there, it ſeems in this caſe the Fine will not bar his heire at all. *See the ſtatutes. 3. That have divers defects

Eſtrangers to fines that have divers defects or infirmities, as Infancy, Coverture, non-ſanity of minde, impriſonment, abſence out of the Realme, to avoid Fines ſhall have time for five years after the laſt of the infirmities removed. But if they have divers impediments, and they be all at once after the proclamations made wholly removed, and after they fall into the like againe and dye, in this caſe their heires ſhall not have a new five years, but the firſt five years begun in their Anceſtors time immediately after the firſt impediments ſo removed ſhall proceed, and non-claime of their heires during all the reſidue of the ſaid five years bindeth them as their ſaid Anceſtors ſhould have been bound thereby if they had remained void of ſuch impediments during all the ſaid five years. Plow. 375, Dier, 133.

4. That are without impediment having future right upon cauſe precedent.

Eſtrangers to Fines that have no preſent but a future right, and that ſuch as groweth wholly before the proclamations, if they be void of impediment, ſhall have five years time after their right, title, claime or intereſt firſt groweth, remaineth, deſcendeth or cometh to them after the proclamations. And therefore if a Mortgagee be diſſeiſed and the diſſeiſor doth levy a Fine with proclamations, and the five years paſſe, and after the Mortgagor payeth or tendreth the money, in this caſe he ſhall have time for five years after the tender or payment of the money to make his claime &c.

So if a man levy a fine of his Land whereof his wife is dowable, ſhe ſhall have five years after her husbands death to make her claime &c. and not be bound by the five years after the Fine. Plow. 373. Dier. 224. Plow. 374. So if tenant in taile levy a Fine with proclamations, and after the Five years dyeth without iſſue, the donor ſhall have five years after his death without iſſue to bring his Formedon. Co. 78. Plow. 373. 374. So if Leſſee for life levy a Fine, or make a feoffment in fee and the Feoffee

Feoffee doth levy a fine; in this caſe he in reverſion or remainder ſhall not be bound by the next five years after the fine levied, but he ſhall five years next after the death of the Tenant for life, and if he die within the five years, his Heir ſhall have only ſo much time as to make up the time before his death five years. Co. 78. Plow. 373. 374. So alſo is the Law if Leſſee for life be Diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor or a ſtranger levy a fine, in this caſe he in reverſion or his Heirs ſhall have five years after the death of the Tenant for life and ſhall not be bound to the next five years after the time of the fine levied. Plow. 374. Co. 9. 105. So if Tenant in Tail in poſſeſſion levy a fine and dye without iſſue, in this caſe he in the remainder ſhall have time for five years after the death of the Tenant in Tail without iſſue, and if he make not his claim, &c. in that time, he and his iſſues are barred for ever. The ſame law is for him in reverſion or the Donor if there be no remainder. Plow. 374. 19 H. 8. 7. Co. 3. 87. 84. Dier 3. And if Tenant in Tail diſcontinue in Fee, and the diſcontinue levieth a fine with proclamations, and five years doe paſs and the Tenant in Tail dieth, in this caſe his iſſue ſhall have five years after the Deſcender to bring his Formedon, Co. 3. 87. But if Tenant in Tail diſcontinue rendring rent and dye, and the iſſue accept the Rent (which doth bar him for his time) and then the diſcontinuee levieth a fine and dyeth, in this caſe the iſſue of the iſſue ſhall not be barred by the five years after the fine, but ſhall have five years after the death of the iſſue, 30. El. And if one de non ſane memorie, make a Feoffment, and the Feoffee levie a fine and then the Feoffor die; in this caſe the Heir ſhall have 5 years after the death of his Anceſtor, and not be bound by the 5 years next after the fine levied. Plow. 374.

5. That have future right & impediment.

Eſtrangers to fines that have future right upon any cauſe precedent being affected with ſuch impediments when the right firſt accreweth, ſhall have five years after the impediment removed to make their claim, &c. And therefore Infants that are born, or in their mothers womb when ſuch right doth happen to them, women Covert, mad men, Lunaticks, priſoners beyond the Seas ſhall have this time. As if a man have iſſue a Son and a Daughter, and the Son doth purchaſe Lands and die, and the Daughter entreth as his Heir, and is Diſſeiſed by A who levieth a fine, and five years claim without claim, and ten years after the Father hath another Son who is Heir to his brother; he ſhall have in this caſe a new full 5 years after he come to his full age, for he is the firſt unto whom the right deſcended after the Proclamations.

But if a ſtranger to a fine to whom a remainder or other title firſt accreweth after the fine doe not purſue his right within 5 years, hereby he and his iſſues are barred for ever. And in like manner if the firſt iſſue in Tail to whom the Title of the Tail firſt accreweth neglect to make his claim &c. within the firſt 5 years after his Title accrewed, hereby he is bound for ever, and the whole eſtate Tail alſo. And if one abate after the death of a Tenant in Fee-ſimple, and make a Feoffment upon condition, and the Feoffee levie a fine, and 5 years paſs without any claim made by his Heir, hereby the Heir is barred for the preſent, but if afterwards the condition be broken, and the Abator enter, then the Heir may have an aſſiſe of Mortdanceſter againſt the Abator or enter when he will. See the Statutes Plow. 366. 367. Dyer 3. Plow. 358.

6. That have no right for any cauſe before the Fine.

Eſtrangers to fines that have neither preſent nor future right at the time of the levying of the ſame fines by reaſon of any matter before the fines levied, whoſe right groweth entirely before the Proclamations or partly before and partly after, may make their claim, &c. when they pleaſe. As if a Father die ſeiſed of Land his elder Son being poſſeſſed, and the younger ſon entreth and is diſſeiſed, and a fine with Proclamations is levied, and then the elder Son is dearraigned, in this caſe it ſeems he is bound to no time. So if a Tenant ceaſe one year, and then a fine with Proclamations is levied, and after the Tenant ceaſeth another year, the Lord may have his Ceſſavit 20 years after the Proclamations. Plow in Stowels Caſe.

7. That have future rights by divers titles.

And Eſtrangers to fines that have ſeverall future rights by divers Titles growing at ſeverall times it ſeemeth ſhall have ſeverall five years to make their claim, &c. com-commencing from the ſeveral times that their Titles do firſt accrue unto them. As if Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Feoffee levy a Fine with Proclamations, and he in the Remainder ſuffer the five years to paſs, in this caſe he is barred of his Entry upon the Alienation for the Forfeiture; but it hath been held, that if the Tenant for life die, that he ſhall have another five years time to bring his Formedon in the Remainder, Plow. 357. 367. 372. So if the Husband make a Feoffment of his Wives Land, to another upon Condition, which is broken, and he levieth a Fine of this Land, and the Husband hath iſſue by his wife, and dieth; and the firſt five years paſs, and then his wife dieth, hereby he is barred of the Title by the Condition, but he ſhall have five years more to make his Claim as Heir to his Mother. But if Lands be given to H. for the life of A. the Remainder to B. for life, the Remainder to H. in Fee, and H. is diſſeiſed, and after the Diſſeiſor levy a fine, and five years paſs; in this caſe H. is barred both of his preſent and future eſtate, and ſhall have no further time to make his Claim, &c. and yet if Ceſtuy que vie and he in the mean Remainder die, H. ſhall have another five years to make his Claim to preſerve his Remainder. In like manner it is if Land be given to H. for the life of A. the remainder to him for the life of B. the remainder to him for the life of C, and he is diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor levieth a Fine with Proclamations; in this caſe, ſome ſay H. for his preſent right ſhall have five years by the firſt ſaving of the Statute, and five years after the death of A. by the ſecond ſaving of the Statute. If one diſſeiſe a Feme-ſole, and after marry her, and have iſſue by her, and the Husband is diſſeiſed before marriage or after, and then a Fine is levied with Proclamations, and the Husband dieth firſt, and afterwards the Wife dieth within the five years, the iſſue being of full age, the five years paſs, hereby he is bound as heir to his Father, but he ſhall have five years more after the death of his Mother to make his Claim, &c. Quando duo jura in una perſonâ concurrunt, æquum eſt ac ſi eſſent in diverſis. Plow. 357. 368. 372.

CHAP. LXXXVI.

Of Fine and Amercement.

1. Fine, what.

THis word Fine hath divers ſignifications: For ſometimes it doth ſignifie Pretium, as when it is the cauſe of obtaining ſome benefit, as leave to Alien, a Writ, or the like. Sometimes it doth ſignifie Pacem, as Finis, quia finem litibus imponit; and in this ſenſe it is taken when it ſpeaks of a Fine of Lands. But ſometimes it doth ſignifie Pœnam; and ſo it is a pecuniary puniſhment impoſed upon ſome offender by a Court or Officer of Juſtice, for an offence done in ſatisfaction of the offence. It hath ſometimes other ſenſes, Co. 8. 59. Terms Ley. Crompt. Jur. 55.

2. Amercement, what.

An Amercement is a penalty or ſum of money, put by a Court upon a man for ſome offence done by Omiſſion or Commiſſion: And this doth differ from a Fine onely in this.

1. A Fine is commonly for ſome great miſdemeanor, and therefore the ſum impoſed is commonly greater: But an Amercement is commonly for ſome petty fault, and therefore the ſum impoſed is ſmall, and leſſer then the offence doth deſerve, and therefore it is called Miſericordia.

2. No Court but a Court of Record can Fine; but any Court that is no Court of Record, as County Court, Hundred Court, or Court Baron, may Amerce.

Afferrors.

3. A Fine is never to be afferred by Afferrors, that is, mitigated by men ſworn to that purpoſe: But moſt Amercements muſt be afferred.

4. To

4. To moſt Fines, eſpecially in Courts of Record, Impriſonment is incident, but not ſo to an Amercement. But Impriſonment doth follow a Fine in a Court of Record, that hath power to impriſon. And in that caſe there lieth a Writ called a Capias pro Fine to apprehend the party fined, that he may be impriſoned till he pay his Fine. F.N.B. 76. Co. 11. 42. 8. 60. upon Littl. 127. Crompt: Jur. 43. 93. 98. 100. 3. Capias pro Fine, what.

For this, take theſe things.

1. All perſons, Male or Female, Clergy or Lay, great or ſmall, may be fined or amerced. 4. Who may be fined or amerced, or not, and where.

2. Cities, Townſhips, Burroughs, and Villages, may be fined or amerced.

3. The King or Queen might not have been fined or amerced.

4. Officers of Courts for any offence done, in or out of their Court, in relation to their Offices; the proper place to fine them, is in the Court whereto they belong, if the Courts have power to fine; or elſe there to amerce them.

5. And if any man, Officer or other, offend in the face of any Court, he is there by that Court to be fined or amerced for it: But he may be puniſhed for this in another Court.

6. Infants may not be fined. Co. 8. 61. May. 9 H. 3. 14. Co. of Copiholds 40. Infants.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe caſes.

1. If any perſon do miſdemean himſelf by contemptuous words or deeds, to a Court of Record, eſpecially in the face of the Court, he may be fined for this, if the Court have power, or elſe amerced, Co. 8. 61. 2 Ed. 4. 1. 5. For what cauſes ſuch perſons may be fined or amerced, or not.

2. If any Officer of a Court behave himſelf corruptly, or negligently, or contemptuouſly in his Office; for this he is to be fined or amerced according to the power of the Court. And therefore if a Sheriff refuſe to execute, or retorn, or miſretorn the Writs of the Court ſent to him, or a Juror to be ſworn, or the like, they may be fined or amerced, Co. 8. 59. 61. 26 Ed. 3. 75.

3. In all Actions Quare vi & Armis, as Reſcous, Treſpaſs, and the like, if Judgment be given againſt the Defendant in a Court of Record, he is to be fined. So in an Aſſiſe, if the Diſſeiſin be found to be with force; but if it be found without force, he is to be amerced onely, Co. 8. 59. 32 H. 6. 21. March. 135: pl. 210.

4. If a Plaintiff get a Judgment in a Real Action by Diſceit, where the Defendant had not Summons, according to Law, he ſhall be fined. But in an Action Perſonal for Diſceit between man and man, if Judgment be given againſt the party Defendant, he is to be onely amerced, Co. 8. 59.

5. If a Defendant plead a falſe Deed, or deny his own Deed, and it be found againſt him, or he do after relinguiſh his Plea, and confeſs the Deed, he is to be fined. But if it were about a Deed of his Anceſtor, or he deny a Recovery or Record, to which he is a party, he ſhall neither be fined nor amerced, 34 H. 6. 20. 10 Aſſ. pl. 10. Co 8. 60. 11 H. 4. 4. Dyer 63.

6. If a Defendant in a Replevin, claim Property falſly, and in a Proprietate probanda, it be found againſt him, he ſhall be fined, Co. 8. 60.

7. If a Plaintiff in an Appeal of death, Robbery, Felony, or Maim, be barred, nonſute, or the Writ abate by his default, he is to be fined, Co. 8. 60. 8 H. 4. 17.

8. If in an Attaint the Plaintiff be barred, or nonſute, or it paſs againſt the Defendant, and he were party to the firſt Record, he ſhall be fined, Co. 8. 60. 15 H. 6. 5. But if he were no party to the firſt Record, as here where he is Tenant by Reſceipt, or the like, there it is otherwiſe, 9 H. 4. 33.

9. If there be two or more Plaintiffs, and one of them die, and the Writ abate; or if the one appear, and the other be nonſute, which in Law is the nonſute of them both in Perſonal Actions: In theſe caſes, he that doth ſurvive, or appear, ſhall not be fined nor amerced. So where the one Plaintiff in ſuch an Action where Summons and Severance lieth, be nonſute, and the other ſue on, he that is nonſute ſhall not be amerced. And ſo it is in all Judicial Proces where the Plaintiff is barred or nonſute, or the Writ abate: And ſo it is, if the Sute be diſcontinued; or the Court be ouſted of Juriſdiction, the Plaintiff ſhall not be amerced, Co. 8. 61. 5. 49. 21 H. 6. 41.

10. If

10. If a Treſpaſs be for Battery againſt the Husband and, Wife ſuppoſing it to be the Battery of both, and it be found to be the Wives onely; yet the Plaintiff ſhall not be amerced, for no other Writ can he had, Co. 8. 61.

11. In all Actions which do not contain ſome force, or ſome Diſceipt to the Court; if the Defendant come the firſt day, and render the thing demanded the firſt day to the Plaintiff; he ſhall neither be fined nor amerced, Co. 5. 49. 8. 61.

12. But in all Writs of Præcipe quod reddat, quod permittat, & quod faciat, if the Plaintiff be barred, or nonſute, or the Writ abate by his default, he ſhall be amerced; and ſo it is in all Actions Perſonal, where it doth ſo paſs againſt the Plaintiff. Co 8. 61.

13. If in Actions that are without force or fraud, the Sute go againſt the Defendant, he will be amerced. And ſo it is where part of the thing in queſtion is found againſt the Defendant; or where are more Defendants, and it is found onely againſt one of them, it is ſo alſo, Co. 8. 61. 7 H. 6. 36. 21 H. 6. 41. 9 H. 6. 2.

14. If one ſue twice for the ſame cauſe, as in a Recaption, or the like, he is to be fined, Co. 8. 60.

15. If one do, or not do any thing againſt an Act of Parliament, in which there is no certain penalty for the offence, the offender (this is a contempt) may be ſued for it. Co. 80. 6. March. f 135. pl. 208.

16. If a Townſhip ſuffer a murderer to eſcape, the murder being done in the day time, it may be amerced. 3 H. 7. 1. See more to this, Mag. Chart. 26. Weſtm. 1. 9. Crompt. Jur. 93, 94, 97, &c. Doct. & Stud. 178. Mag. Chart. 14. Weſtm. 2. 6. Marlb. cap. 18.

For Anſwer hereunto take theſe things.

6. How ſuch perſons may be fined or amerced.

1. Where there is but one Defendant, he cannot be two times amerced, but where there is but one Plaintiff, and divers Defendants, the Plaintiff may be divers times amerced.

2. Where divers are to be fined or amerced, they muſt be fined and amerced ſeverally, and not joyntly, unleſs it be in ſpecial caſes; and yet an Amercement ſet entirely upon a City or Townſhip, is good.

3. No man or place may be twice fined or amerced, for one and the ſame offence.

4. All Amercements ſet, muſt be reaſonably ſet and according to the offence, and not exceſſive.

7. Moderata Miſericordia.

5. If any man be unreaſonably amerced, he may be relieved by a Writ of Moderata miſericordia, if it be in a Court Baron or County Court; and from other Courts, he alſo may appeal in this caſe. And this matter of Reaſonableneſs, or not Reaſonableneſs, ſhall be tried by Judges, and not by a Jury. See for theſe things, Mag. Chart. ch. 14. 34, 35 H. 8. 36. Merton, ch. 3. Marlb. ch. 23. 24. Co. 8. 61. 11. 42, 43 Weſtm. 1. ch. 18. 7 H. 4. 3. ſee Courts.

8. Eſtreats or Extracts.

Extracts are Copies, or true Notes of Original writings, as of Fines, Amercements, or Penalties ſet down in the Records of a Court, to be levied by the Bailiff, or other Officer of every man for his offence. And herein muſt be expreſſed the names of the offender, the ſum impoſed, and the cauſe or offence it ſelf, F. N. B. 75. Weſtm. 2. 8.

Sheriffs may not levy money out of the Exchequer, but by Green Wax, and muſt tot what they receive, or forfeit treble damage; and the cauſe or offence muſt be expreſt in the Extract, 43 Ed. 3. 9. 7 H. 4. 5.

CHAP. LXXXVII.

Of Forfeiture.

IT is the effect of the tranſgreſſion of ſome Penal Law, or of the doing of ſome other wrong or miſdemeanor; by the doing whereof ſomething, either Inheritances, Chattels, Goods, or a Sum of money is forfeit. Forfeiture, what.

And this differs from Confiſcation; becauſe that is confiſcate which is diſavowed by the Offender as none of his, and not claimed by another. But ſuch as are forfeit, have a known Owner; and for ſomething he hath done, he hath forfeited what was his. So that Forfeiture is general, and Confiſcation is more particular for ſuch things as have no Owner, and ſhall go to the Kings Exchequer; for confiſcate goods are ſuch as no body doth claim. As if one indict a man for ſtealing his own goods, and he doth openly in Court diſclaim them, then the King ſhall have them as confiſcate goods. *Quod non capit Chriſtus, capit Fiſcus, Plow.*483. Stamf. 186. *Co.*5.110. upon *Lit.f.*59. Fitz. Corone 371. 355. So if a woman kill her husband and flie, all her husbands goods are confiſcate. So if one indict another for ſtealing the goods he delivered him, in this caſe the goods are confiſcate: Sect. 1. Confiſcation.

All the Lands and Tenements, Goods and Chattels, Debts and Duties that a man hath in his own right, and to his own uſe, are ſubject in ſome caſes to Forfeiture: But Offices of Skill and Diligence, the Lands and Tenements that one hath in truſt, and the Goods and Chattels one hath in anothers right and to anothers uſe, as the Goods and Chattels of Executors, are not ſubject to Forfeiture; nor the Goods Churchwardens have in right of the Church. The Lands a man hath in the right of his wife are ſubject to Forfeiture during his and his wives life together; and the Chattels real and perſonal a man hath by his wife, are ſubject to be forfeited altogether. Alſo Rights and Titles to Land, and Actions in divers caſes are ſubject to Forfeiture, *Stamf.l.*3.*c.*26. 4 *H.*7.11. *Plow.*487.379. 4 *Ed.*3.47. 6 *H.*7.9. *Co.*3. 2. 11.35. Alſo Actions of Debt and Treſpaſs de bonis aſportatis, Account, and ſuch like Actions. But perſonal Actions, as for Battery, and the like, are not liable to Forfeiture. Future Intereſts alſo may be forfeited, Dyer 58. Alſo the Lands or Goods a man hath in Jointenancie, or in Common, are ſubject to Forfeiture, as well as thoſe he hath ſole, 28 *Ed.*3.92. *Stamf.l.*3.*c.*26. 2. What things are ſubject to Forfeiture, or not.

All Eſtates of Inheritances that one hath alone in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, are forfeited by Treaſon. So alſo are all Eſtates that he hath in Jointenancie or in Common with any other. For which ſee Corone, and Stamf. Pleas of the Crown, at large. St. 5 Ed 6. *c.*11.

All Eſtates in Fee-ſimple are forfeited by many kinds of Felony; for which ſee Corone. But in all ſuch caſes the parties muſt be attainted. Eſtates in tail may be forfeited by Alienation of the woman, or the woman or her husband that hath them by the Statute of 11 *H.*7. *cap.*20. See Diſcontinuance.

If an Eſtate be made by the Husband to himſelf for life, and after to his Wife and the Heirs males of her body by him begotten, and he and his Wife levy a Fine and ſuffer a Recovery, yet the Iſſue may enter for a Forfeiture, Co. upon *Lit.*365.

One may forfeit his Land by alienating it to a Religious Houſe, or in Mortmain. See *Stat. Mag. Chart. c.*36. *& de Religioſis, c.*1.

If a Maid above twelve years, and under ſixteen years, agree to be taken away and contracted againſt or without Friends, ſhe loſeth her Inheritance for her life. See Stat. 4 & 5 *P. & M. ch.*8.

A Religious Houſe founded by the King, may forfeit their Land that the King gave them, if they do alienate it, *Weſt.*2. *c.*41.

If a Woman after Rape conſent; as well ſhe as the Raviſher be diſabled to have any Heritage, Dower, or Joint-Feoffment after the death of their Husbands and Anceſtors; and the next of blood ſhall have title to enter incontinently, St. 6. R. 2. ch. 6.

For Treaſon or Felony, a man ſhall loſe to the King or Lord all his Lands, Rents, &c. whereof he hath any Eſtate of Inheritance in poſſeſſion or in right; as Lands of which he is diſſeiſed, and all his Hereditaments from the time of the offence done. For in the caſe of Felony and Treaſon, the Offender doth forfeit not only the Land he hath at the time of the Attainder, but the Land he had at the time of the offence committed, although it be after ſold away; and this whether the Attainder be by Verdict, Outlawry, or otherwiſe, 30 H. 6. 5. And in this caſe the King or Lord that hath the Eſcheat, ſhall avoid all Acts made, done or ſuffered by the Offender after the offence done. But for divers kinds of Felony a man ſhall not forfeit any Inheritance, or any thing but his Goods, or his Goods and Chattels; as for killing ſe defendendo, or by miſchance, &c. For which ſee Corone.

If a Woman being Tenant in tail of the gift of her Husband or any of his Anceſtors, within the Statute of 11 H. 7. accept a Fine ſur conuſance de Droit, &c. and grant and render back for years; it ſeems this is no Forfeiture within that Statute, Dyers Abridg. 38.

For Petty-Treaſon or Felony, a man ſhall not forfeit any of his Lands entailed, longer then for his own life, Stamf. l. 3. c. 26;

If a Son be attainted of Felony in the life of his Father, and be executed, and after the Father die; theſe Lands are not forfeit, but the next Heir ſhall have them. But if the Son ſurvive the Father, though he have a Charter of Pardon, contra. 31 Ed. 1. Diſcent 17. 26 Aſſ. 2.

If a Freeholder ceaſe for ſuch a time to pay his Rent and do his Services, and there is nothing for the Lord to diſtrain, he may forfeit his Land. See for this Ceſſavit. But Gavelkind-Land in Kent is not forfeited by the committing of Felony. The Father to the Bough (there,) the Son to the Plough. For Forfeiture and Confiſcation for Felony, &c. See Co. 3 par. Inſt. c. 102.

Sect. 2. 3. Of particular eſtates, and of Chattels real; and what ſhall be ſaid a cauſe of Forfeiture thereof, or not.

For Anſwer hereunto, take theſe things.

In caſe of Treaſon or Felony.

1. A Forfeiture may be made by a particular Tenant two ways: Either by doing ſomething to the hurt of the Commonwealth, as by doing Treaſon or Felony; or by doing ſomething to the hurt of the Lord, or him in Reverſion. And the hurt to him in Reverſion may be two ways: 1. By matter of Fact. 2. By matter of Record: Alſo it may be by matter of Record three ways: 1. By Alienation. 2. By claiming a greater Eſtate then he hath, or ought to have. 3. By affirming the Reverſion or Remainder to be in a ſtranger. Alſo by Alienation it may be, 1. Either when it doth diveſt the Eſtate, as by levying a Fine, or ſuffering a Recovery of Lands. 2. Or by not diveſting, when there is a Fine levied of an Advowſon in fee, which doth not diveſt the Remainder or Reverſion. By Claim it may be alſo in two ſorts: 1. Expreſs, which is when the Tenant ſhall in a Court of Record claim the Fee; or if being Leſſee for years and ouſted, he bring an Aſſiſe ut de libero tenemento. 2. Implied; as if in a Writ of Right brought againſt him, he ſhall take upon him to join the Miſe upon the meer right; or if Leſſee for years loſe in a Præcipe, and bring a Writ of Error for Error in Proceſs.

In other caſes:

By affirming the Reverſion to be in a ſtranger, he may forfeit his Eſtate two ways. Either actively; and then, 1. By praying in aid of a ſtranger. 2. By attorning to a ſtranger by matter of Record, upon a Grant of the Reverſion to him. 3. When a ſtranger ſhall bring a Writ of Entry in caſu proviſo, and ſuppoſeth the Reverſion in him, and the Tenant doth confeſs the Action. 4. If he plead covinouſly to the diſheriſon of him in Reverſion. 5. If a ſtranger ſhall bring an Action of Waſte, and the Tenant ſhall plead no Waſte done. Or ſecondly, It may be paſſively, as when the Tenant ſhall accept of a Fine ſur coguiſance de Droit, &c. from a ſtranger. By all theſe means the Tenant may forfeit his Eſtate, Co. upon Lit. 251. 367. Dyer 209. 324. 1 H. 7. 22. 9 H. 7. 20. Co. 2. 15. 3. 3. 1. 66. 10. 44. Plow. 35.

2. The

2. The particular Eſtates that may be forfeited hereby, are Eſtates for life, for ones own or anothers life, that one hath alone in ones own right. So Eſtates for life by Dower, by the Courteſie, or after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct. Alſo Eſtates a man hath jointly with his Wife, may be forfeit during their joint lives. So the Eſtates one hath for life in Jointenancie or in Common with another, may be forfeit: Alſo Eſtates for years by Elegit, Statute-Merchant or Staple, Co. 2. 15. 3. 3. 1.66. Dyer 324.362.377.

3. All Eſtates that a man hath for his own or anothers life in his own right, are forfeited by Treaſon or Felony. So are all Eſtates he hath for life in the right of his Wife, during the life of the Husband and Wife together, but no longer. So alſo all the Eſtates a man hath in Jointenancie, or in common with another for life, are forfeit hereby. Alſo all Eſtates that the Offender hath for years by Statute or Elegit, and all Chattels real beſides, as Wardſhips in capite, and the like, that the Offendor hath in his own or in his Wives right, are forfeit by Treaſon or Felony, *Stamf.*3.26. 6 *H.*7.12. Co. upon Lit. 42.351.

4. In caſe of Felony and Treaſon, the Offender doth forfeit not only the particular Eſtates for life which he hath at the time of the Attainder, but alſo them he had at the time of the offence committed, albeit they be after ſold away, 30 H. 6. 5.

5. Leaſes for years are forfeit by Outlawry or Attainder for Treaſon or Felony, or Præmunire, or for killing ones ſelf, or for flying when he is in queſtion for Felony, albeit he be not guilty; or for ſtanding out and refuſing to be tried by the Country; or where a man is convicted of Felony only, and no Judgment is given. So alſo they are forfeit by Petit-Larceny. Alſo all Intereſts that any man hath by Wardſhips, of Tenants by Knights ſervice: And thoſe that have Eſtates in Lands by Extents, Statutes, or Elegits, are forfeit by the cauſes aforeſaid. But Eſtates for lives are not forfeited by Outlawries, except it be in the caſes of Treaſon or Felony. *Addition to the Treatiſe of Juſt. Dodridg, f.*27. Sect. 3.

6. Now for the further opening and illuſtrating of the Forfeitures by Tenants of their particulars and Eſtates, take theſe Caſes following.

If Tenant for life, in Dower, by the Courteſie, or after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, or any Leſſee for years, Tenant by Statute-Merchant, Staple, or Elegit of Lands or Tenements which lie in Livery, make any good, abſolute or conditional Feoffment in Fee, Gift in tail, or Leaſe for any other life then the Tenant for life for the life by which he holds the Eſtate, or levy any Fine ſur conuſance de ceo, &c. or ſuffer any Common-Recovery; or being impleaded pray in aid of a ſtranger; or in a Writ of Right brought againſt him join the Miſe upon the meer Right, or admit the Reverſion to be in another; or in a Quid juris clamat brought againſt him, claim the Fee-ſimple: By either of theſe things he doth forfeit his Eſtate, Co. 2. 15. 3. 3. 1. 66. 8. 144. upon Lit. 251. Dyer 324. 55. 362. 209. 377. Plow. 15.

And if there be Tenant for life of Land, the Remainder for life, the Remainder in Fee, and both the Tenants for life make a Feoffment in Fee to a ſtranger; this is a Forfeiture of both their Eſtates.

So if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Tail or in Fee, and the Tenant for life doth make a Feoffment in Fee to him in the ſecond Remainder in Tail or in Fee; this is a Forfeiture for which he in the firſt Remainder may enter.

So if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee to the Tenant for life, and the Tenant for life make a Feoffment in Fee to a ſtranger; this is a Forfeiture, for which he in the next Remainder may enter. And if there be two Tenants for life, and one of them diſſeiſe the other, and he make a Feoffment in Fee; this is a Forfeiture of his Eſtate; Dyer 339. Co. 1. 141. Co. on Lit. 251. 302. Co. 3. 86.

If Leſſee for life make a Feoffment to a ſtranger, and make a Letter of Attorney to his Leſſor to give Livery of Seiſin, and he give Livery of Seiſin accordingly; yet it ſeems this is a Forfeiture. But otherwiſe it were, if the particular Tenant were a Leſſee for years, Perk ſect. 200. Co. upon *Lit f.*52.

If there be Leſſee for life or years, the Remainder in tail to the Lord Protector, the Remainder to another in fee, and the Leſſee for life or years make a Feoffment; this is a Forfeiture, and yet neither of the Remainders are diſplaced, Co. 1.77.

If Tenant for life be diſſeiſed, or Leſſee for years ouſted, and after levy a Fine to the Diſſeiſor, or to a ſtranger; this is a Forfeiture. So if in this caſe the Leſſee for years bring an Aſſiſe, or any other Real Action againſt him that did put him out, or the Leſſee for life bring a Writ of Right for the Land; all theſe, or any of them are Forfeitures: For the Right of a particular Eſtate may be forfeited, as well as the Right and Poſſeſſion, Co. 2.55. upon Lit. 252.

If Leſſee for life or years make a Feoffment to him in Remainder in tail, and to a ſtranger; it ſeems this is a Forfeiture to him in Reverſion or Remainder in fee, whereof he may take advantage when the Eſtate of the Tenant in tail is ended, 41 Aſſ. pl. 8. 39 Ed. 3.29.

If Leſſee for life make a Feoffment in fee, Gift in tail, or Leaſe for another life on Condition, and after before the Lord enter the Condition is broken, and the Leſſee re-enter; in this caſe albeit he by his entry get but his firſt eſtate, yet it ſeems this is a Forfeiture, and not done away, but he in Reverſion may enter, Co. 8.44. Perk. ſect. 841. 15 Ed 4.4.

Sect. 4. So if Leſſee for life leaſe to another for another life, and this life die before he in Remainder or Reverſion enter for the Forfeiture; yet this is a Forfeiture ſtill, for which he in Remainder or Reverſion may enter, Co. upon Lit. 252. Bro. Forfeiture, 39.

If Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years on Condition to have Fee; this is a Forfeiture, and yet the Fee doth not paſs until the Condition be performed, 27 E. 3 Book of Aſſiſes.

If a Husband that hath a Term in the right of his Wife make a Feoffment on Condition, and after re-enter for the Condition broken; in this caſe there is a Forfeiture, and it is not purged by the Re-entry, Bro. Extinguiſh. 59.

If a Leſſee for life give the Land to one and his Heirs, to the uſe of himſelf and his Heirs for the life of the Leſſee; this is a Forfeiture, Paſch. 21 Eliz.

If A. be Tenant for life, and he leaſe to B. for his life, if A. live ſo long; this is a Forfeiture, B. R. 20 Jac. by the Court.

If one make a Feoffment to another of two Acres, To have and to hold the one for life, and the other in fee, and the Feoffee before his election doth make a Feoffment of both; this is a Forfeiture of one, and he that hath the Title of Entry may enter into which of them he pleaſe, Co. 2.37. But if Leſſee for the life of J. S. make a Leaſe to another and his heirs during the life of J. S. this is no Forfeiture, 27 H. 8.39. So if Tenant for life, and he in the next Remainder in tail join in a Fine, Feoffment, or Recovery to paſs an Eſtate in Fee or Fee-tail, this is no forfeiture. And therefore if the Tenant in tail die without iſſue, the Feoffee or Conuſee ſhall hold the Land during the life of the Leſſee for life. So if Tenant for life do make a Feoffment in fee, or Gift in tail to him in the next Remainder in tail; this is no Forfeiture. So if Tenant for life being impleaded, vouch him in the next Remainder in tail. So if Leſſee for life or years make a Leaſe to him in Reverſion for years, the Remainder over to a ſtranger in Fee, and give Livery and Seiſin to him in Reverſion, and he accept it; this is no Forfeiture. So if Tenant for life make a Feoffment to the Wife of him in Reverſion, and a Letter of Attorney to him to give Livery of Seiſin, and he do ſo to his Wife; this is no Forfeiture, Co. 1. 76. 66. 10. 96. 6. 5. 30 Aſſ. 47. 29 Aſſ. 64. Co. 10.38. Perk. ſect. 203.

And if the thing granted by the Tenant for life be not well conveyed, or it be ſuch a thing granted that doth not lie in Livery, as a Rent, Common, or the like; this will be no Forfeiture. And therefore if the Feoffment, Gift in tail, or Leaſe for other life made by the Tenant for life be not good for want of words in the making, or good execution by Livery of Seiſin or Attornment, or the like; this is no Forfeiture, Co. 2.55. And if a Tenant for life or years of an Advowſon, Reverſion, Remainder, Rent, Common, or the like, make a Feoffment or Grant in Fee of it by Deed; this is no Forfeiture, for in this caſe nothing paſſeth but what may lawfully paſs.

paſs. But if the Grant be by Fine, or the Reverſion be in the King, there haply it may be a Forfeiture. But if Tenant for life or years grant a Rent out of the Land to another in Fee, this is no Forfeiture, 2 H. 5. 7. Co. upon Lit. 251. 15 Ed. 4. 3. Finches ley, 113. 44 Ed. 3. 36.

So if Tenant for life levy a Fine ſur Grant & Releaſe only to the Cogniſee for the life that the Conuſor hath; this is no Forfeiture. So if Tenant for life or years accept of a Fine ſur Cogniſance de Droit come ceo from a ſtranger, this is no Forfeiture. So if he accept of a Fine ſo, and grant and render back to him for years only; this is no Forfeiture, 44 Ed. 3. 36. 1 H. 7. 22. Dyer 148. So if Tenant for anothers life or years of Land, by his Will deviſe the Land to another in Fee; this is no Forfeiture, Fitz. Deviſe 21. So if a Leaſe be made to two and the Heirs of one of them, and they two make a Feoffment to a ſtranger; this is no Forfeiture by the Tenant for life, but his Eſtate doth paſs well enough, Bro. Forf. 96.

If one make a Leaſe for life to one, and after grant to him a Rent alſo for life, and he grant both in Fee; by this the Rent is not forfeit, but the Land only. So if Tenant for life enfeoff him in Remainder for life; this is no Forfeiture, but a Surrender. So if he make a Leaſe to him in Reverſion or Remainder, for the life of him in Remainder or Reverſion; this is no Forfeiture. So if Tenant for life take a Huſband, and they two make a Leaſe to him in Reverſion for the life of the Husband; this is no Forfeiture, Fitz. Dower 95. Co. upon Lit. 42. See more in Diſcontinuance.

If an Annuity be granted to one for life or otherwiſe pro conſilio impendendo, and he refuſe to give Counſel to the Grantor upon requeſt; this is cauſe of Forfeiture of the Annuity. But not giving Counſel, unleſs it be in the Kings caſe, is no cauſe of Forfeiture as Refuſer is, Plow. 455, 456. See Forfeiture.

Sect 5. 4. Of Goods and Chattels, and what ſhall be ſaid a cauſe of Forfeiture thereof, or not; and of what Goods.

All the Goods and Chattels a man hath alone, or in Jointure, or in Common with another, to his own uſe and in his own right, are forfeited by his committing of Treaſon or Felony; and ſo are all his Statutes and Bonds, and Debts due thereby, and upon Contracts and Accounts. But cauſes of Action for Treſpaſs, or the like, are not forfeit, Stamf. 188.

In caſe of Treaſon or Felony.

And in this caſe of Treaſon and Felony, in ſome caſes a man may forfeit Goods wherein he hath no property. As for example: If I deliver to another Money or Corn open, and not in bags, to keep, and redeliver when he ſhall be required, and he be attainted of Treaſon or Felony; this Money or Corn is forfeit. So if one ſteal Goods from divers perſons, and is arraigned for one of theſe Felonies and found guilty; by this he doth forfeit all the reſt. So if one ſteal Goods, and before he be attainted he kill himſelf; by this he doth forfeit not only his own Goods, but the Goods he ſtole, Fitz. Corone 317. Stamf. Pleas of the Crown, 188. 44 Ed. 3. 44.

If a man ſuffer himſelf to be outlawed for Felony, or upon an Indictment for Treaſon or Felony he confeſs the Indictment or be attainted, or upon a Traverſe be found guilty, or upon his Arraignment refuſe to be tried by the Country, or flie for a Felony before or after Arreſt, and whether he did the Felony or not, and although he be acquitted of the Felony, or ſuffer Exigent againſt him for a Felony; or being arreſted for Treaſon or Felony eſcape, and will not be conveyed to Priſon, but is killed in the purſuit; or will not be taken, but is killed: Then in all theſe caſes he doth forfeit his Goods and Chattels. And though a man after a Felony done get a Pardon for it, yet his Goods are forfeit. And if a man ſtand mute upon his Trial, or challenge more then Four and twenty upon his Trial, or have his Clergie, and be a Clerk convict or attaint, Stamf. lib. 3. ch. 29. 22, 23, 24. Plow. 122. Kelw. 68.

So that now in caſe of Treaſon and Felony, a man doth forfeit not only all his Chattels that he hath in poſſeſſion, but ſuch alſo as he hath but a bare right unto only, as Debts and Goods to be accounted for, or wrongfully taken; but not ſuch as for which Damage only is to be recovered, as in Battery, and the like; ſuch things in Action are not forfeited.

But

But in the caſes of Goods and Chattels there is no relation to the time of the offence, as there is in the caſe of Lands. For in that caſe the Lord that is to have the Land by Eſcheat, may avoid all Leaſes, Acts, Statutes and Conveyances made after the offence committed, until the time of the Attainder. But for Goods and Chattels, and Debts, the Kings Title doth look no further back then to the Goods the party hath at the time of the Verdict given, or Confeſſion made; and in caſe of Outlawry, to the time of the Exigent awarded: And therefore till then the property of the Goods is not altered. And therefore it is held, that till then any ſale of Chattels real or perſonal by the Offender is good, and he is to levy upon them. But in this caſe the Kings Officers do uſe, as ſoon as the Offender is apprehended, to ſeiſe and ſecure all his Goods and Chattels, and give him allowance out of them. Co. upon Lit. 380, 381. 29 Aſſ. pl. 63. 50 Aſſ. 5. 8 Ed. 4. 4. 7 H. 4 47.

But by a Statute-Law, no Sheriff, Coroner, or other Officer is to ſeiſe any mans Goods for Treaſon or Felony, before he be attainted according to Law, under pain to forfeit the double value of the Goods, Stat. 1 R. 3. ch. 3. But for killing a man that would rob him, he doth forfeit nothing. And in any caſe a man ſhall not forfeit the Goods that are another mans, and not the Offenders; nor Goods pawned or diſtrained, nor that one hath as Executor, nor the intereſt a man hath as Guardian in Soccage, Plow. 487. Bro. Pledg. M. 7 Jac. Co. B.

Sect. 6. 5. Who ſhall take advantage of a Forfeiture by Entry upon the Land, or Seiſure of the Goods, or not. In caſe of Treaſon or Felony.

In caſe of Forfeiture for Treaſon, the Lord Protector only is to have all the benefit by Lands and Goods. But in caſes of Felony, the Lord Protector is to have the Lands of the Offender for a year and day to make ſpoil upon them, unleſs the Lord redeem it. (For this ſee Anjour and Waſte.) And after this year the Lord of whom the Land is held, is to have it. And all the Goods and Chattels forfeit in the caſe of Felony, the Lord Protector is to have them, unleſs any man have had a Grant from the King of them, or can preſcribe for them; and his Preſcription ſo antient, that it hath been allowed in the Kings Bench, or before the Juſtices in Eyre, Stamf. Prer. 190. F. N. B. 144. Mag. Char. c. 22. And if a man have an Eſtate for life, and forfeit by either of theſe offences; this will not (as ſome ſay) eſcheat to the King; but it ſeems otherwiſe. Nor will this go to him that hath Bona Felonum, by thoſe words, ſhall take advantage of it: And if it be a Copihold, the Lord of the Manor, not the Protector will have it. And by the Grant of Bona Felonum, this will not paſs. Addition to the Treatiſe of Juſt. Doddridg, f. 27, 28. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 47. Brownl. 2 par. 219.

In other caſes.

In caſe of Alienation by a Leſſee for life or years, for the moſt part he in the next Remainder, though he have but a Remainder for life or years, muſt enter; and if there be divers Remainders, every one in Remainder and in Reverſion in his time may take advantage of it. As if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in tail to one, and the Remainder in tail to another, and Tenant for life make a Feoffment in fee, and he in the firſt Remainder die without iſſue and do not enter, then he in the next Remainder may enter for the Forfeiture. Mears Caſe, Paſch. 8 Jac. Co. B Co. 1. 76. 2. 51. upon Lit. 367.

But if a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life, who makes a Feoffment, and the Diſſeiſſee releaſe to the Feoffee of the Tenant for life, the Diſſeiſor can never after enter for the Forfeiture by the Tenant for life.

If an Eſtate be limited to J. S. for life, the Remainder to his Heir-male and the Heir-male of ſuch Heir-male, and J. S. make a Feoffment in fee; his Heir apparent cannot enter for this Forfeiture, for he is no Heir whiles the Father lives. So if a Tenant for life make a Feoffment to Husband and Wife, the Reverſion being in the Wife, and ſhe die without Heir, and the Land eſcheat; the Lord to whom it comes by the Eſcheat, cannot take advantage of this and avoid the Feoffment, Dyer 339. Co. 1. 66.

6. Of Offices, and what ſhall be ſaid the cauſe of Forfeiture of an Office, or not.

Offices may be forfeit divers ways. Some of them may be forfeit by not uſing them; ſome by miſuſing them, or the Officer by miſcarrying himſelf in them may forfeit them: As if any man hath an Office that is appointed for Adminiſtration of Juſtice or publike good, and he is bound to attend it, and do not; this is a Forfeiture.

feiture. And therefore it is, that if a Clerk of the Market, Sheriff, Felizer, Exigenter, or any ſuch like Officer of any of the Courts at Weſtminſter do abſent themſelves any long time, and not attend their Offices, and do the things that belong to their charges: As if the Sheriff do not keep his Turn, the Clerk of the Market his Circuit, this is a Forfeiture.

The Officer may alſo forfeit his Office by his miſcarriage in his Office, two ways: 1. By doing that he ſhould not. 2. By refuſing to do what he ought to do. By doing amiſs, called a Miſuſer or Abuſer. So if any one ſell an Office he hath, if it be for the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, or concerning the Kings Treaſure, Revenue, Account, Cuſtoms, Aulnage, or the like, or Clerkſhip in any Court of Record, as a Felizer, Exigenter, or the like; this is a Forfeiture of his Office. As if a Keeper kill his Deer, or ſuffer them to die by his negligence, or deſtroy the Trees or Covert for Deer: Or a Gaoler keep not his Priſoners in ſafe and ſtreight cuſtody, or keep them in Priſon when they ſhould go out, or the like; theſe are Forfeitures of their Offices. So if a Marſhal ſuffer a voluntary or negligent Eſcape in one of his Priſoners.

By refuſing to do that ex officio which a man is bound to do upon requeſt, is in ſome Offices cauſe of Forfeiture. And therefore if a Steward be deſired by his Maſter to keep Court, and he refuſeth to do it, or doth it not according to the duty of his place for the good of his Maſter; this is a Forfeiture of the Stewardſhip. But if it be an Office not relating to the adminiſtration of Juſtice or publike good, but for the private good of ſome man, and where the Officers perſonal attendance is not abſolutely neceſſary; there his not attendance for a time, eſpecially in caſe where the Maſter hath no great loſs by it, is no Forfeiture. And therefore if a Keeper be two or three days abſent, and his Game be not killed the while, this is no Forfeiture. And if one be to keep a Court, and he is never requeſted to keep it, and he never keep it; this is no Forfeiture. And if an Officer do only threaten, or endeavor a Miſdemeanor, but doth not act or effect it; this is no Forfeiture. And if one be bound to give Counſel for a Fee, and be never asked advice, and he never give any, he doth not forfeit his Fee.

And it ſeems that that which will be a cauſe of Forfeiture in the Maſter, will be a cauſe of Forfeiture if it be done by a Deputy. But if an Officer in Fee do grant his Office for life, and the Grantee for life doth forfeit; he ſhall (as it ſeems) forfeit his own Eſtate for life only, and not the Fee. CHAP. LXXXVIII.

Of Forein and Forreſt, and Forcible Entry, and Forging of Deeds.

Forein or Forain.

THis word is uſed Adjectively in our Law, and is joined with divers Subſtantives. As, Forein matter doth mean matter triable in another County. Forein Plea, is a Refuſal of the Judge as incompetent, becauſe the matter to be tried is out of his Precinct. Forein Anſwer, is ſuch an Anſwer as is not triable in the County where it is made. Forein Service, is ſuch a Service whereby a mean Lord holdeth over of another without the compaſs of his own Fee; or elſe that which a Tenant performeth either to his own Lord, or to the Lord paramount out of the Fee, or elſe Knights ſervice, or Eſcuage uncertain. Forein Attachment, is an Attachment of Foreiners goods found within a Liberty or City, for the ſatisfaction of ſome Citizen to whom the Foreiner oweth money, Kitch. 126. 75. Stat; 4 H. 8. c. 2. 22 H. 8. 2. 14. 15 H. 6. 5. Kitch. 209. *Bro. Of Force, and of Forcible Entry.

Force, what.

IT is an offence by which unlawful violence is uſed to perſons or things. And this is either implied; as in every Treſpaſs, Reſcous and Diſſeiſin, there is a Force implied in Law; or it is actual with weapons, number of perſons, &c. which always carrieth ſome fearful ſhew or matter of terror with it. The actual Force alſo is either ſimple, when it is joined with no other crime, as Entry into Lands only: Or compound, when it is mixed with ſome other fact which of it ſelf is criminal; as if any by force enter into anothers Poſſeſſion, and kill a man, or raviſh a woman there, &c.

Forcible Entry, what.

A Forcible Entry is a violent and actual Entry into any Lands, Houſes, &c. or taking of any Diſtreſs by any perſon weaponed, whether he offer violence, or fear of hurt to any there, or furiouſly drive any out of the poſſeſſion thereof. And ſometimes it is taken for a Writ grounded upon the Statute.

Forcible Detainer, what.

A Forcible Detainer is a violent act of reſiſtance by a ſtrong hand, of men weaponed with harneſs, or other action of fear, in the ſame place or elſwhere, by which the lawful Entry of Juſtices or others is barred or hindered.

1. What ſhall be ſaid to be a forcible Entry into, or Detainer of lands or not.

The Statutes of 5 R. 2. 7. 15 R. 2. 2. 8 H. 6. 9. give charge, that none ſhall enter into any Lands, but where Entry is given them by Law; and then in a mild and a peaceable manner: And that none ſhall enter into, or hold a poſſeſſion of Lands with a ſtrong hand, and with force. For the opening whereof, we muſt know,

1. That one or more may commit this offence.

Infant.
Women-covert.

2. An Infant or a Feme-covert by their own act may commit a forcible Entry or Detainer; but they cannot do it by Commandment, as another man may do.

3. Where divers do come in a company to do this act, and one of them only doth uſe the violence, they are all guilty. But herein we muſt take this difference: Where divers come together in one place to do an unlawful thing, and one only doth it, and the reſt ſtand by and do nothing; in this caſe they are all guilty as principal doers; and the act of one ſhall be ſaid to be the act of all. So that if divers come to enter into Lands where their Entry is not lawful, and all of them but one do enter and demean themſelves peaceably, and he only doth enter with force, and after Entry doth hold with violence: This, albeit it be againſt their wills, is a forcible Entry. And ſo it ſeemeth to be, where ſome of them do come without an evil intent, if they come together, or if they come after, and be aiding and countenancing to the offendors. But when divers come together to do a lawful act, as to diſtrain for Rent due, due, or the like; and in this caſe ſome of them, without any intent before, or allowance or countenance then by the reſt, eſpecially if they diſcountenance it, fall to outrage, and commit this or the like offence; in this caſe it ſeems the reſt are not guilty.

4. A man ſhall not be guilty of this offence by any counſel or command before or agreement after, unleſs he be preſent at the act done. But for further opening hereof, take theſe things. 1. If a maſter come with his ſervants, his ſervants knowing nothing of it, and he enter with force; his ſervants ſhall not be ſaid to be guilty. 2. If a man enter with force to the uſe of another perſon that is not preſent, or by commandment of another not preſent who agreeth to it, yet he is not puniſhable for this force. 3. If many come together, and ſome of them do only enter by force, and the reſt keep it by force; they are all alike guilty both of the forcible Entry and Detainer. Command.

5. Though the King or his Tenant could not be outed of their poſſeſsion, yet this offence may be committed in this Land of the Kings, and then is puniſhable as in other caſes.

6. Though he get no poſſeſsion hereby, yet it may be this offence, and puniſhable.

7. This offence may be committed about a Rent, when one doth diſtrain with force, (be the Rent due, or not;) or when one is coming to diſtrain, and the Tenant doth threaten to kill or forcibly reſiſt him, foreſtall the way, or reſcue the Diſtreſs, or the like. So about a Common, as when one doth forcibly keep his Cattel where he hath no Common, or forcibly reſiſt another man that hath Common.

8. The expreſs Force is that which is forbidden, when it is either with multitude, (i.) a greater Company then ſuch perſons have uſually attending on them; yet one or two, if they be armed, &c. may commit this offence. Or it is with ſtrong hand, (that is) with apparent violence: In word, by threatening ſpeeches, as to ſay, They will keep the poſſeſſion, if it coſt them their lives, or in ſpight of the other being in with him; or if he threaten to kill or hurt the body of him that is in, if he will not go out; or out, if he offer to come in; eſpecially if this make them to go out, or keep off. Or deed, by turbulent behavior or actual violence offered to the perſon of another; or elſe that they be furniſhed with ſome weapons by them not uſually borne, as Swords, Bucklers, Pikes, Javelins, Bills, Clubs, Pitchforks, Staves, Halberts, Bows and Arrows, Croſs-bows, Guns, Harneſs, Armor, or the like; or by caſting of Stones, Blocks, pouring of hot Coals, ſcalding Water or Lead, or with any other thing wherewith one may hurt the perſon of another. And therefore if any enter thus, though no man oppoſe them, this is a forcible Entry: much more if being entred, they there offer any violence, or fear of hurt to the perſon of another that is in poſſeſſion with him; and moſt of all, if they ſhall furiouſly and forcibly expel and drive another out of the poſſeſſion. For if one enter in at the door being open, peaceably, but then he forcibly puts out them that he finds in poſſeſſion, this is a forcible Entry.

If a man have a Force laid in another houſe by the place, this may make him guilty of this offence of forcible Detainer. So if a man after his peaceable Entry get more weapons into the houſe then were there, or uſually he doth bear; or if he make uſe of the weapons in the houſe to defend his poſſeſſion. But the having of them there, if they were there before, is not a Force puniſhable.

9. If any Juſtice of Peace come to view the Force in a houſe, and they refuſe to let him in; this of it ſelf is a forcible Detainer in all caſes, though it be but by one perſon, and no weapon ſhewed. But if a Juſtice of Peace come not there upon complaint and of purpoſe, but by accident or to other ends, and the parties refuſe to let him in; this is no forcible Detainer. So neither if he refuſe to open the door to his Adverſary, or to any other beſides the Juſtice of Peace.

So if he finde any multitude of perſons, Arms, or the like. So if the Diſſeiſor foreſtalleth the way of the diſſeiſed with Force, that he dare not come near, but do refuſe to open the doors to the other party; this is no forcible Detainer.

And if I be in poſſeſſion of a houſe, and another that hath more right would enter; I may keep him out with my ordinary company and weapons, but not otherwiſe, for fear of the guilt of a forcible Detainer. But if my eſtate and poſſeſſion be lawful, and I and my Anceſtors have peaceably enjoyed it for three years together before the Indictment brought, if ſo my Entry were peaceable, not forcible, and I have continued three years poſſeſſion peaceably and without force, I am in poſſeſſion by right, and of a lawful eſtate, and not by wrong: And I have continued this poſſeſſion all theſe three years without interruption, and not diſcontinued, and my eſtate is not ended; in theſe caſes it ſeems I may keep my poſſeſſion with force, and this is no forcible Detainer; which by Plea to the Indictment will avoid Fine, Impriſonment, and Reſtitution.

But to threaten a man, That if he come to enter, he will burn his houſe, or ſpoil his goods therein: To cut trees upon the land, or carry goods out of the houſe after a man hath entred; the door being open, or only latched, to enter without multitude or offenſive weapons. So by fair means to perſwade or entice any body out of the houſe, or by that means to keep them out; to take a man being out of the place and impriſon him, and in the mean while to ſend one to enter into the land or houſe; or to deny to go out, and by impriſonment keep him out; theſe things will not make a forcible Entry or Detainer. And therefore if in theſe caſes the other ſide make a forcible Entry upon them, they may be put out again.

10. Though the party ouſted be dead, that no reſtitution can be made; yet the forcible Entry ſhall be puniſhed.

11. If one enter into an houſe or land, with an intent to cut or carry away his goods or corn, &c. or the like treſpaſs, though he do not put him hereby out of poſſeſſion; this will be a forcible Entry puniſhable by theſe Statutes, if it be with ſtrong hand, or with multitude.

12. So if any enter peaceably, and after Entry, by force do any ſuch act.

13. To detain a houſe mortgaged by force from the Mortgager, is a forcible Detainer.

14. To go over the land with force or multitude to another place or end, is not a forcible Entry: Nor is the Force that is uſed with the warrant, and in the maintenance of the Law, any offence within theſe Statutes, but lawful. So is the Force uſed in the apprehending of Felons by Sheriffs and other Officers, in executing Writs, and in doing their office, in keeping the Peace, in defence of my perſon and houſe, and the like.

But for the further opening hereof, theſe Caſes muſt be heeded. If two or more men be in harneſs, having alſo in their hands divers weapons, and they enter into the houſe of another to have the poſſeſſion thereof without more doing, and hereupon the other party that was in poſſeſſion departeth and goeth far off; this is a forcible Entry. But if two men in that manner break in the houſe, the door being open, and it is not known to what intent, the Tenants being in quiet, and no violence is uſed to them, but they that keep the poſſeſſion run away; this is a forcible Entry.

If a man have two houſes near adjoining, the one by a defeaſible title, the other by a good title, and he keepeth a Force in the houſe he hath by a good title, to keep out of the other houſe; this is a forcible Detainer.

If a man putteth another out of his houſe by Force, leaveth it, and putteth in one of his Servants in a peaceable manner, and keepeth the party put out in Priſon; this is not a forcible detaining, though it be a forcible Entry.

If one ſole perſon alone break the houſe of another, and enter in by the windows againſt the will of the Owner, and then threateneth the party, and he for fear doth forſake the houſe; this is a forcible Entry.

If

If a forcible Entry be made into the houſe of another, with intent to fight with the party there dwelling, and thereupon the party in poſſeſſion and they that enter upon him do all depart out of the houſe; this is no forcible Entry. So if one enter a houſe to ſeiſe a Ward, and is kept out by force; this is no Forcible Detainer. So if a Leſſor enter with force to ſee if any Waſte be done by the Leſſee, this is no Entry by force, although he remain there a whole day and night after. So to enter a houſe in time of War to fortifie it againſt Enemies, is no forcible Entry. So if the Lord diſtrain for Rent where no Rent is due, and he do it with force; this is no forcible Entry. So if one break and enter the houſe to part an Affray there, or to apprehend a Felon, or one that hath dangerouſly hurt another, and is eſcaped and fled into the houſe: But if the man that is hurt be in no danger, it is otherwiſe. So if a Gaoler bring his Priſoners into the houſe, being his own houſe, for ſafe keeping, and keep a Guard about them; this is neither forcible Entry, nor forcible Detainer.

If I hear that certain Fellows will come to my houſe to beat, rob or kill me, and I take in Force to defend my ſelf; this is no forcible Detainer. But if I hear they are coming to take poſſeſſion, and I gather Force to keep my poſſeſſion, this is a forcible Detainer.

If one enter forcibly in a houſe upon another, and impriſon in the ſame houſe him that was in firſt, and himſelf remaineth there with force; this is a forcible Detaining.

If a man claimeth Common to Land, or a Rent out of it, and the Land is detained with force, that he cannot uſe his Common, or have his Rent by Diſtreſs; this is a Detainer with force. But if one have a Warren in anothers Land, and the Land is detained with force when he would uſe his Warren; or one doth enter into the Park of another to diſtrain his Game, and the Owner of the Park do keep him out by force, this is no Detainer by force.

If a man make a Leaſe for life, and after grant the Reverſion to the ſame Leſſee upon Condition on the part of the Leſſee, which Condition is broken, and the Leſſor doth enter with force to get the poſſeſſion of the land; this is a forcible Entry. So if the Leſſee doth alien in Fee, and thereby forfeit the land, and the Leſſor die before his Entry, and then his ſon and heir enter upon the Leſſee with force; this ſhall be a forcible Entry. (All theſe Caſes are in Mr. Riſdens Reading.)

The party grieved by a forcible Entry or Detainer may be relieved, and the offender puniſhed divers ways, (amongſt others) by the help of the Juſtices of the Peace, who may do it upon the Statute of Northampton, which is in the nature of a Commiſſion, wherein they proceed as Miniſters only; or by Indictment upon Stat. 8 H. 6. at the Quarter-Seſſions, which being found there, the party ſhall be reſtored to his poſſeſſion by a Writ of Reſtitution from the Court to the Sheriff, Dyer 187. Cromp. J. P. 165. 3. The Remedy; and how they are to be puniſhed that commit this offence.

But the moſt ſpeedy and common remedy is by complaint to one or more Juſtices of Peace, who may thereupon go to the place where the Force is; and if it be in an houſe, he may enter and ſearch; and if any Force of armor or weapon be worne or borne againſt this Statute, and if any ſuch offenders be found, he may commit them to Priſon, and may ſeiſe and preſs the Armor ſo found with them: And he ought to record all that which he ſhall do in this behalf, and thereout to ſend ſome Eſtreat into the Exchequer, that the Commonwealth may be anſwered of the Armor, or the value thereof. Commitment. Record.

But here again the Juſtice muſt not make any reſtitution to the party outed, but muſt only remove the Force. And concerning the offenders ſo found and committed by the ſaid Juſtice of Peace, it ſeemeth the Juſtice (at his diſcretion) may fine them; and upon paiment thereof, or Sureties found for the ſame, the ſaid Juſtice may deliver the offenders, even as in the former Statutes of 15 R. 2. & 8 H. 6. Or elſe the ſaid Juſtice may record ſuch Force, and commit the offenders, and after certifie the Record in the Upper-Bench, or to the Juſtices of the Gaol-delivery, or to the General Seſſions of the Peace. Reſtitution. Fine. Certificate.

Or elſe the ſame Juſtice or Juſtices of the Peace may proceed otherwiſe: For every Juſtice of Peace upon complaint to him made, or upon other notice to him given of any forcible Entry into, or holding, or Detainer of poſſeſſion of any Lands, Tenements, or other Poſſeſſions, (or of any Benefices or Offices of the Church) contrary to theſe Statutes, by the party grieved; without any examining, queſtioning, or ſtanding upon the Right or Title of either party, may and ought in convenient time (at the coſt of the party grieved) to do execution of the Statutes aforeſaid. And as to the Juſtices duty and power in relation to the Aid he may require, removing the Force, Impriſonment of the Parties, and making Record of the Force; theſe things are to be known.

1. He ought to go to the place where ſuch Force ſhall be to view.

2. He may command and take with him ſufficient Power of the County or Town by diſcretion, and the Sheriff alſo, if need be, to aid him for the better execution of his buſineſs, as well for the arreſting of ſuch Offenders, as alſo for the removing of the Force, and for the conveying of them to the next Gaol. And as to this, theſe things muſt be known.

1. If he require any Men-kind, be they Dukes, Earls, Barons, Lords, or men of lower degree, Apprentices, Servants and others, that are not about the apprehending of Felons, or ſome other publike ſervice: But Women, and Children under fourteen years old, Aliens that are not Denizens, Men that are not compotes mentis, and Priſoners are not bound. 2. Theſe he may require by word of mouth, without a Warrant in writing; but ſo can no other Officer. 3. He may arreſt or impriſon, and fine ſuch as refuſe to aid him.

3. He ought to arreſt and remove all ſuch Offenders as at his coming he ſhall ſee or find continuing the Force, and may take away their weapons, harneſs and armor, and preſently cauſe them to be preſſed, and after to be anſwered to the Commonwealth as forfeited, or the value thereof. And if the doors be ſhut, and they within the houſe ſhall deny the Juſtice to enter, it ſeemeth he may break open the houſe to remove the Force. But if ſuch Offenders being in the houſe at the coming of the Juſtice, ſhall make no reſiſtance, nor make ſhew of any Force, then the Juſtice cannot arreſt or remove them, except upon the enquiry a Force be found. And if the Houſe or Land which is holden with Force, ſhall extend into two Counties, and the Offenders move their Force into that part of the Houſe or Land which is in the other County, when the Juſtice doth come; it is ſaid by ſome, he cannot then remove the Force; but others hold the contrary.

4. He ought to make a Record of ſuch Force by him viewed. Wherein are theſe things to be known. 1. If the Juſtice come to remove the Force, and the Offenders eſcape before they can be arreſted, yet the Juſtice muſt record the forcible Detainer. 2. If the Juſtice be put out of Commiſſion, or made a Sheriff before he come to the place, he cannot then record it. 3. If the Juſtice record a Force, and ſend to Priſon where no Force is, the party is remedileſs. 4. If a Reſcue be made of the Priſoners committed by him, he may record this alſo: But if he record a Murther or Manſlaughter, this is void. 5. This Record ſhall be a ſufficient conviction of the offenders, and the parties ſhall not be allowed to traverſe it. 6. And this Record (made out of Seſſions by a particular Juſtice) the ſame Juſtice may keep by him; or he may make it indented, and certifie the one part into the Upper-Bench, or he may leave it with the Clerk of the Peace, and the other part he may keep himſelf.

Commitment. 5. He ought to commit immediately to the next Gaol all ſuch perſons as he ſhall find and ſee continuing the Force at his coming to the place; the ſaid Offenders there to remain convict by his own eye, teſtimony and Record, until they have paid a Fine to the Lord Protector: For this ſight and view of the Force by the Juſtice (being a Judg of Record) maketh his Record thereof (in the judgment of the Law) as ſtrong and effectual, as if the Offenders had confeſſed the Force before him; and Traverſe. (touching the reſtraining of the Traverſe) more effectual then if the Force had been found by a Jury upon the evidence of others. But the Force muſt be in the preſence or view of the Juſtice of Peace, or elſe he can never record it, nor yet commit the the offenders: For upon Force found by Enquiry only, (although this Preſentment of the Jury be a Conviction of the offenders) it is thought the Juſtice of Peace can neither fine, nor ſend to Gaol. But however he is to remove the offenders that be preſent, that ſo he may reſtore the other, and may bind the offenders to the Good-behaviour. And if they be gone, yet he may make his Warrant to take them and ſend them to Gaol, until they have found Sureties for their Good-behaviour. But for the further opening of this, theſe things muſt be known. Enquiry.

1. The Juſtice of Peace may not view a Force, or fine or impriſon in his own caſe: And yet if he come there, and they make an aſſault upon his perſon, he may ſend them to Gaol for this offence.

2. If one enter into a Houſe upon another with Force, and when the Juſtice comes both ſides are fighting for the poſſeſſion; the Juſtice may remove the Force, but cannot give poſſeſſion to the Owner of the Houſe.

3. If he that hath entred forcibly, hath driven the Owner to one end or part only; the Juſtice may remove, and commit them that have ſo entred.

4. If there be Men in Arms in another Houſe near, though in another County, to beat them that take poſſeſſion of the Houſe in this County; in this caſe it is ſaid, the Juſtices may remove them.

5. If the Juſtices come there by accident where the Force is newly done, they cannot arreſt or impriſon, unleſs there be a forcible Detainer in the view.

6. If the offenders before Arreſt eſcape for that time, and after the ſame day the Juſtices meet them in another place; in this caſe they cannot commit them to Priſon.

7. If the Juſtices coming to the place, meet ſome of the offenders by the way in harneſs, or ſee ſome going thither in harneſs, to keep the place; they cannot upon this commit them to Priſon.

8. If when the Juſtices of Peace come, the offenders eſcape into another County, the Juſtices of Peace cannot arreſt them there, albeit it be upon freſh ſuit. And yet it is ſaid by ſome, that if in this caſe before arreſt of the parties they flie, the Juſtices may arreſt them, but not commit them to Priſon. But I doubt it. And yet if both Houſes be in one County, it is out of queſtion. So if they get into a Caſtle in the ſame County, the Juſtices may upon freſh Suit arreſt them and commit them.

9. All this is to be done there only where the party grieved (in the ſenſe of the Statute) which is the party that is to have reſtitution, doth complain, tender the coſts, &c. Not where any man doth complain. And for the opening hereof, take theſe Caſes.

If a man have a Rent iſſuing out of the Land of another, which Land is detained with force when he would diſtrain; he that is ſo diſturbed is not a party grieved, to be relieved by the Statute. And if a man be ſeiſed of Land to which Common is appendant, is diſſeiſed of the Common, and then aliens the Land to his Son and dieth, after which the Land out of which this Common is iſſuing is detained with force; in this caſe the Son is not a party grieved by this Statute. So if after the Fathers death a ſtranger doth enter by abatement into the Land, and holdeth by force; the Son is not a party grieved within the Statute. So if a man be ſeiſed of Land of which ſuch a forcible Entry is made, and dieth before he complain; in this caſe his Son and Heir cannot complain for this Entry. So if a man deviſe his Land by Will and dieth, and before any Entry made by the Deviſee, a Force is made; the Deviſee is not a party grieved. But if a man make a Leaſe for five years on Condition, that if within the firſt two years the Leſſee pay to him Ten pounds, he ſhall have the Fee, and Livery is made accordingly; in this caſe if any ſuch Entry be within the five years, the Leſſee is a party grieved, albeit the Condition be not performed. So if a man be poſſeſſed of a Term, and make the Heirs of J. S. his Executors and dieth J. S. being alſo dead, leaving iſſue a Daughter, his Wife with child of another Daughter; the firſt enters, and then the other is born; then ſuch Force is committed: In this caſe both the Daughters are parties grieved. So if one enter by Diſſeiſin to the uſe of another, who doth after agree to it, and then a forcible Entry is made; in this caſe neither the the one nor the other is a party grieved. So if one enter by Diſſeiſin to the uſe of an Infant, who doth agree to it, and then ſuch a forcible Entry is made; in this caſe the Infant is not a party grieved. And generally the party to whom Reſtitution ſhall be made, he ſhall be accounted a party grieved within the meaning of this Statute, (And for this ſee afterwards.)

Fine. The ſame Juſtices of Peace, or ſome of them that ſhall ſee the Force, (as having beſt knowledg of the matter, and of the quantity of the offence, and having the cuſtody of this Record) are the proper Judges over this offence, and therefore may aſſeſs the Fine upon every ſuch offender. But the Fine muſt be impoſed upon every offender ſeverally, and not upon them jointly. And the Juſtice ought to eſtreat the ſame Fine, and to ſend the Eſtreat into the Exchequer; and that from thence the Sheriff may be commanded to levy the ſaid Fine to the Commonwealths uſe. But upon the ſame Fine ſo aſſeſſed and eſtreated, it ſeemeth the Juſtice is to deliver the offender: Alſo upon paiment of the ſaid Fine to the Juſtice, or upon Sureties bound by Recogniſance for the paiment thereof, the Juſtice may deliver the offenders again out of Priſon at his pleaſure, by ſome opinions: But quære, for that the Sheriff is accomptant for all Fines. Or the Juſtice of Peace (by ſome opinions) may record ſuch Force, and commit the offenders, and after certifie the Record to the Juſtices of Aſſiſe and Gaol-delivery, or elſe to the General Seſſions of the Peace, and there the offenders may be fined: For the Statute doth not ſay, that the Fine ſhall be aſſeſſed by them that record the Force; but rather the Juſtices of Peace may certifie or deliver the Record by them made, and refer the Fine and further proceeding therein to the Upper-Bench; which is thought to be the ſafeſt courſe. Alſo the Juſtice of Peace, notwithſtanding his own view of the Force, may and ought in ſome good Town or place near where the Force was, to enquire by a ſufficient Jury of the ſame County to be returned by the Sheriff, as well of thoſe which made ſuch forcible Entry, as of thoſe which made ſuch forcible Detainer. Wherein theſe things muſt be obſerved.

Eſtreat.

Accomptant.

Enquiry.

1. That one Juſtice of Peace alone out of Seſſions may make an Enquiry; whereas otherwiſe to hold a Seſſions, there muſt be two at the leaſt, and one of them muſt be of the Quorum.

2. This Enquiry may be made within a moneth after the time.

3. It may be made, whether the offenders be preſent or gone, at the coming of the Juſtice of Peace.

4. This Enquiry may be made, albeit the Juſtice go out to ſee the place where the Force is, and upon his view make a Record: But he muſt take care the Records do not differ; for if the Enqueſt find contrary to the Juſtices Record, the laſt Record is void.

5. One Juſtice may make the View, and another Juſtice may make the Enquiry.

6. If ſeveral Enquiries be made by ſeveral Juſtices upon the Force, every one of them is a good Enquiry.

7. If the Record of Inquiſition ſay the Jury was ſworn, and indeed it was not ſworn, yet it is a good Enquiry.

8. If the Jury be under twelve, or any of them have been attaint of a falſe Oath upon a Decies tantum, or are Ambodexters, the Jury is not good, unleſs there be twelve of the Jury beſides thoſe men.

Warrant to the Sheriff.

9. This Enquiry muſt be made by men of good Eſtates. And therefore the Juſtice of Peace is to ſend his Warrant to the Sheriff, to command him in the behalf of the Lord Protector, to cauſe to come before him four and twenty ſufficient and indifferent perſons, near about the place where the Force is ſuppoſed to be; and every of them ſo returned muſt have Forty ſhillings by the year at leaſt in Lands and Tenements. And the Sheriff is to return Iſſues upon every man ſo ſummoned, the firſt day Twenty ſhillings, the ſecond day Forty ſhillings, and the third day Fifty ſhillings, and at every day after double. And upon default of appearance of the Jurors, the Juſtice may grant an Alias, and after that Pluries infinite, till they come. And if any Sheriff or Bailiff of Franchiſe that hath the Retorn of ſuch Writ, ſhall be be negligent, he ſhall forfeit Forty pounds. But if ſuch Jurors have not Forty ſhillings Land per annum, yet their Preſentment of ſuch Force is good for the Commonwealth, ſo as the offenders ſhall fine therefore. And if the Sheriff return ſmaller Iſſues upon the Enquiries than the Statute doth appoint; yet the party indicted ſhall not impeach the Enquiry thereof. But theſe defaults in the Sheriff for not returning ſufficient men, may be puniſhed by the Juſtice of Peace, who may hear and determine theſe offences by Bill or Indictment, wherein ſhall go the like Proceſs as againſt men indicted for Treſpaſs.

10. It is convenient upon ſuch Enquiry, that the Evidence be given openly to the Jury, to the intent it may appear to the Iuſtice of Peace or Court, whether there be reaſonable cauſe to ſtay Reſtitution, or not, after the Indictment found.

11. If upon ſuch Enquiry, ſuch forcible Entry, or ſuch forcible holding or Detainer ſhall be found by the oaths of the Enquirers, then the ſaid Juſtice of Peace ſhall reſeiſe the Lands or Tenements ſo entred upon or holden, and thereof put the party in poſſeſſion again, which in ſuch ſort was put or holden out. As touching which point, theſe things are to be known.

Reſtitution.

1. Any one or more Juſtices of Peace before whom the Force is found, and not any other Juſtice of Peace in or out of Seſſions, Juſtices of Oyer and Terminer, or Gaol-delivery, may in perſon put the party put out or kept out, in poſſeſſion again, or may award his or their Precept under his or their own Teſt to the Sheriff to do it. And if the Juſtice before whom it be taken be dead, or otherwiſe the Record being before the Juſtices at their Seſſions, they may award Execution by Writ, but not without a Writ, as the Juſtice of Peace himſelf that took the Inquiſition may do. Alſo the Juſtices of the Upper-Bench, upon a Certificate by the Juſtices of Peace of the Force found before them, or upon removal of the Indictment by Certiorari, may by Warrant to the Sheriff, (not in perſon) award Reſtitution. And to do this, the Juſtice or Sheriff may break open any houſe, and take Poſſe Comitatus; and if the Sheriff return, He cannot do it for reſiſtance, he will be amerced.

2. The Reſtitution muſt be made to him that is put out, not to his Heirs, Executor, or any other after his death; but the parties in this caſe may be fined and impriſoned. Co. 3 par. Inſt. f. 142, 143.

Indictment.

3. No Reſtitution ſhall be made, but where the forcible Entry or Detainer is firſt found by Inquiſition, and that upon ſufficient Indictment alſo: For if the Indictment or Inquiſition be quaſhed for inſufficiencie, no Reſtitution can be had upon it. For this cauſe the Indictment muſt expreſs, 1. A putting out, Expulerunt. 2. The quality of the thing entred into, as Meſſuage, Cottage, &c. Therefore they entred the Tenement; is void for incertainty. 3. A keeping out; it muſt ſay, Yet they keep out. 4. It muſt be with ſtrong hand, or with multitude; except it be implied by reciting Stat. 8 H. 6. and conclude, Againſt the form of the Statute aforeſaid, or by ſome other ſuch words. And if one be reſtored upon an inſufficient Indictment, and it be removed into the Upper-Bench, the Court will cauſe the party to be reſtored. And if upon an inſufficient Indictment the Juſtices grant Reſtitution before it be done, the ſame Juſtices, not others, may grant a Superſedeas to ſtay it.

4. Reſtitution is only where a man is put or held out of Land, or the like; not of Rent, or the like.

5. The Juſtice may make Reſtitution, notwithſtanding any offer of Traverſe: Yet in this caſe the ſafeſt way is to ſend the Indictment into the Upper-Bench. But as touching Reſtitution, Inquiſition, and the three years Poſſeſſion, and for the clearing of the Law touching them, theſe things are to be known.

1. To whom Reſtitution ſhall be made, and upon what Inquiſition.

2. If it be found that J. S. was ſeiſed, until he was diſſeiſed by J. D. by force, or until J. D. entred upon him by force; in this caſe Reſtitution ſhall be made to J. S. So if it be found that J. S. was ſeiſed until diſſeiſed by J. D. peaceably, which J. D. holdeth with force; in this caſe Reſtitution ſhall be made to J. S. And if it be found that the Father die, and a ſtranger enter by abatement, and detaineth with force; in this caſe Reſtitution may not be made to the Sons. If it be found that the Father made made a Leaſe for years and die, the years expired, and before ſuch an Entry made by the Son, ſuch a Force is committed; in this caſe the Son ſhall not have Reſtitution.

If it be found that a man is ſeiſed of Land, and hath iſſue a Daughter and dieth, his Wife with child of a Son; the Daughter is ouſted with Force, and then a Son is born; in this caſe the Daughter, and not the Son ſhall have Reſtitution.

If it be found that J. S. was ſeiſed until he was diſſeiſed by J. D. and that J. S. ouſted J. D. with force; in this caſe the Reſtitution ſhall be made to J. D. and not to J. S. If it be found that J. S. was ſeiſed until J. D. ouſted him with force, and alſo that J. D. was ſo ſeiſed until by J. N. diſſeiſed by force; by this Inquiſition J. D. the firſt Diſſeiſor will have Reſtitution againſt J. N. and thereupon J. S. ſhall have Reſtitution againſt J. D. and all upon the ſame Verdict.

If it be found by ſeveral Enquiries, that a man is ouſted by force by ſeveral perſons at ſundry times of one and the ſame thing; each Inqueſt is good, and he may have Reſtitution upon any of them, but he ſhall have but one Reſtitution.

If it be found by ſeveral Enquiries, (i.) by one Inqueſt, that J. S. is ouſted by force; and by another Inqueſt, that J. D. is ouſted by force, and both of the ſame Land; in this caſe each of them may have Reſtitution.

If it be found that J. S. was ſeiſed for the life of A. and he is ouſted with force by B. and that A. is now dead; in this caſe J. S. ſhall have Reſtitution upon this Inquiſition.

If it be found that two Jointenants be ouſted by force; in this caſe one of them may have Reſtitution, without the other. So if it be found that the Father was ſeiſed until he was ouſted with force, and he die before Entry or Reſtitution, the Son ſhall not be reſtored. So of the Executors of a Leſſee for years ouſted before his death. If it be found there is Leſſee for life, the Remainder in fee, and the Leſſee for life is ouſted by force; in this caſe he in Remainder ſhall not be reſtored.

If it be found that J. S. was ſeiſed, until by J. D. he was ouſted by force, and the Enquiry doth not ſay, At the requeſt of J. S. yet he ſhall have Reſtitution.

If it be found that one is ouſted by force, and thereupon he is reſtored, and after he is ouſted by force again by the ſame party; in this caſe he ſhall not have Reſtitution the ſecond time upon the ſame Inquiſition.

If Leſſee for life upon Condition be ouſted by force, and the Leſſor enter for the Condition broken, and this be found; in this caſe the Leſſee ſhall be reſtored.

If Husband and Wife before iſſue had are ouſted with force, and then they have iſſue between them, and the Wife dieth, and this be found; the Husband ſhall have Reſtitution.

If it be found that the Land out of which one hath Rent or Common is detained with force, ſo that he cannot have his Rent or Common; in this caſe he cannot have Reſtitution. And finally it is ſo for the moſt part, that he that is the party grieved, that muſt complain; he is the party to whom Reſtitution ſhall be made. And as touching the three years poſſeſſion, theſe things are to be known.

That if a Diſſeiſor continue the poſſeſſion quietly for one year, and then maketh a Feoffment, and taketh back an eſtate again, and then he continueth for two years more; this is not a good poſſeſſion for three years within the Statute. So if Leſſee for years continue in poſſeſſion for two years, and then his Term expireth, and after this he holdeth for another year; this is not a good continuance in poſſeſſion for three years. But if a man make a Leaſe at will and dieth, after whoſe death the Leſſee doth continue in poſſeſſion three years; this is a good continuance of poſſeſſion within the Statute.

If a Diſſeiſor do continue in poſſeſſion two years, and then is diſſeiſed by his eldeſt Son; the Father dieth, and the Son continueth in poſſeſſion for one year more; this is not a continuance of poſſeſſion for three years, within the Proviſo of the Statute. The ſame Law is, if the Father diſſeiſeth his eldeſt Son and continueth in poſſeſſion three years, and the Son after his death for one year more; this is not a continuance of poſſeſſion by three years within the Statute. But if the Diſſeiſor con-continue the poſſeſsion for two years in his own life-time, and dieth ſeiſed, and his Son and Heir entreth and continueth the poſſeſsion for one whole year; this is a Continuance of poſſeſſion within the Proviſo. The ſame Law is, if the Diſſeiſor continue poſſeſſion for two years in the life-time of the Diſſeiſee, and one year after his death; this is a Continuance of poſſeſſion for three years within the Statute.

If the Diſſeiſee make a continual Claim within three years, but make no Entry, this is not a Continuance in poſſeſſion for three years within the Statute. The ſame Law is, if the Diſſeiſor continue poſſeſſion by two years, and his Feoffee by one year, this is a Continuance of poſſeſſion for three years. If one recovereth againſt another in a Præcipe quod reddat by Covin, and he againſt whom he recovereth hath quiet poſſeſſion thereof for three years; this is a poſſeſſion within the Statute.

If one make a Leaſe to another for the life of J. S. and the Leſſee doth continue the poſſeſſion for two years, and then J. S. die, and the Leſſee doth continue the poſſeſſion one year after his death; this is no Continuance of poſſeſſion within the Statute. But if he continue the poſſeſſion for three years after the death of J. S. this is a good Continuance of poſſeſſion. If the Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life, the Remainder over in fee, and the Leſſee holdeth for a year and dieth, after whoſe death he in Remainder entreth and continueth the poſſeſſion for two years more, this is not a Continuance of poſſeſſion within the Proviſo of the Statute.

In theſe caſes a man may alleadge to ſtay Reſtitution any of theſe things. Cauſes of ſtay of Reſtitution.

1. His quiet poſſeſſion for three years: For there ſhall be no Reſtitution awarded, in caſe where the party indicted hath been in quiet poſſeſſion by the ſpace of three whole years together, next before the day of Indictment found, if his eſtate be not ended. And this the party may alleage; and upon this Reſtitution ſhall be ſtaid by the Juſtice of Peace until it be tried, if the other will deny or traverſe the ſame.

2. He may deliver to the Juſtice of Peace or Court a Certiorari, and this is a Superſedeas to them. And therefore if a man have committed ſuch a Force, and be in doubt that he ſhall be indicted therefore before the Juſtices of Peace, upon the Statute of 8 H. 6. and that thereupon Reſtitution will be awarded againſt him, he may have a Certiorari out of the Upper-Bench ready; and when the Bill of Indictment is found, he may preſently deliver it to the Juſtice of Peace, or Court; and this is a Superſedeas to them; for hereupon the Indictment ſhall be removed unto the Upper-Bench. And although the Indictment be found after the Teſt of the Certiorari, it is not material. But if a Certiorari come to remove an Indictment taken before a Juſtice of Peace in the Country, and the party will not ſue to remove it, but doth ſuffer it to lie ſtill; ſome think the Juſtice may proceed to grant Reſtitution. But it ſeems the Juſtices ex officio are to ſend the Indictment away, becauſe they are commanded ſo by the Writ, and this Writ is a Superſedeas of it ſelf. And after Reſtitution made by the Juſtice of Peace, if the other party do remove the Indictment by a Certiorari of a more eign date then is the Indictment, the Juſtices of the Upper-Bench may award Reſtitution back again; for upon the matter, the Juſtice of Peace had no power to make Reſtitution, for that the Certiorari had relation from the date after Reſtitution granted from the Seſſions, and delivered to the Sheriff; the other party having a Certiorari, delivereth it alſo to the Sheriff; after the Seſſions, the Sheriff ſhall not ſurceaſe thereupon, for he hath no authority to allow thereof. But if the Certiorari were delivered to any Juſtice of Peace, he may thereupon grant a Superſedeas to the Sheriff; and if Reſtitution were made by the Sheriff before the ſaid Superſedeas came to his hand, then the other party ſhall have Reſtitution back again in the Upper-Bench, upon Indictment removed thither. Certiorari. Superſedeas.

3. He may tender a Traverſe; but ſome doubt whether he may be admitted to a Traverſe before the ſame Juſtice of Peace. But this tender of Traverſe (to an Indictment of a forcible Entry) upon St. 8. H. 6. is no Superſedeas but in diſcretion, ſo as the Juſtice of Peace or Court may grant or ſtay the Reſtitution at their diſcretion, according as the truth of the right or title ſhall appear to them. And ſo is the uſe of the Upper-Bench. Or elſe the Juſtices of Peace before whom the Indictment was found, may after Traverſe tendred certifie or deliver the Indictment into the Upper-Bench, and ſo refer the further proceeding thereof to the Juſtices of that Court. Traverſe.

But if the party indicted ſhall tender a Traverſe preſently, whereupon Reſtitution is ſtayed, and after he ſhall not purſue his Traverſe with effect, (but diſcontinueth it) and after doth tender another Traverſe, upon Reſtitution prayed, at another time, the Juſtice of Peace or Court ſhall do well to proceed to grant Reſtitution, notwithſtanding ſuch Traverſe tendred. And it is the courſe in the Upper-Bench, that he that tendred the Traverſe there (upon ſuch an Indictment) ſhall bear all the charges of the Trial, and not the Lord Protector, nor he at whoſe ſuit the Indictment was found. And the ſame reaſon ſeemeth upon an Indictment traverſed before the Juſtices of Peace.

4. He may ſhew Inſufficiencie of the Indictment, for the cauſes before alleadged.

5. And ſome have thought he may plead the Inſufficiencie of any of the Jurors, for not having Forty ſhillings per annum. And ſome think that the Juſtices of Peace ought to ſtay Reſtitution, ſave only in caſe where three years quiet poſſeſſion is alleadged, or by removing the Record. The Mayors and Officers of Cities having Franchiſe, have like authority therein as Juſtices of Peace have within their County, 8 H. 9. c. 9. And if the Juſtices of Peace be negligent in their offices upon theſe Statutes, they may be puniſhed.

Forging a Deed.

Forging of a Deed, what.

FOrging of a Deed is, where a man doth make and publiſh any falſe Deed, Writing or Will, to the prejudice of another mans right, Kelw. 112. Plow. 186.

What is ſuch a Forgery, or not.

To forge a Will in writing, is ſuch a Forgery, March 26. pl. 245.

If a Copiholder make and publiſh a Cuſtomary for a Uſage, and put Seals to it to the Lords prejudice, this is a Forgery. Dyer 302. 322.

If one forge a Teſtament by which a Leaſe for years is given; this is ſuch a Forgery.

But the making, and not publiſhing and uſing of any ſuch Writing or Deed, is no Forgery, nor puniſhable at all. See what ſhall be ſuch a Forgery, more in Kelw. 112. Plow. 88. Co. 4. 17. Dyer 302. 322. 288. Plow. 88.

If any one alone or with others forge any ſuch Deed, Charter, Court-Roll, or Will in writing, with intent to trouble, defeat, or charge the Freehold or Inheritance, the Right or Title of Land of another, or publiſh or give in evidence any ſuch Writing, knowing it to be falſe; he ſhall pay to the party grieved double coſts and damages, be ſet upon the Pillory in ſome Market-Town or open place, and have both his ears cut off, his noſtrils ſlit, and ſeared with an hot iron, forfeit the profits of his land, and be impriſoned all the days of his life.

If it be the forging of a Leaſe for years, of Land only (not Copihold) or of an Annuity, Obligation, Bill, Acquittance, Releaſe, or other Diſcharge of any perſonal thing; he ſhall pay the party grieved double coſts and damages, be ſet on the Pillory, loſe one of his ears, and ſuffer a years impriſonment without Bail. The ſecond offence is Felony without Clergy; alſo the party grieved may for this Forgery have an Action of the Caſe at the Common-Law, St. 5 Eliz. 14.

of a Forreſt.

A Forreſt is a great vaſt Wood or piece of ground, where wild Beaſts did uſe to live. But more largely it is thus deſcribed: It is a certain Territory of woody ground and fruitful Paſtures, priviledged for wild Beaſts and Fowls of the Forreſt, Chaſe, and Warren to reſt and abide in, in the ſafe protection of the King, for his Princely delight and pleaſure. Which Territory of ground ſo priviledged, is meered and bounded with unremoveable Marks, Meers and Boundaries, either known by matter of Record, or elſe by Preſcription. And theſe Forreſts now are, or have been repleniſhed with wild Beaſts of Veneries or Chaſe, and with great Coverts of Vert for the ſuccor of the wild Beaſts to have their abode in. For the preſervation and continuance whereof and the Vert, and Veniſon therein, there are certain particular Laws, Courts, Priviledges and Officers belonging to the ſame, meet for that purpoſe, that are only proper to a Forreſt, and not to any other place. Of theſe there have been many in England, but moſt of them are gone and deſtroyed. See for this, and how they began, in Manwood of Forreſt-Laws.

Forgery, what.

Sect. 1. The properties of it.

The properties of a Forreſt are theſe.

1. None can have it but the King;

2. The Courts muſt be there, the Juſtice-ſeat, Eyre, or General-Seſſions of the Forreſt, which muſt be held every three years, the Swanimote thrice a year, and the Attachment-Court once every forty days.

Court of { Juſtice-ſeat, Swanimote, Attachment.

3. The Officers muſt belong to it for preſervation of Vert and Veniſon: As firſt, the Juſtices of the Forreſt, ſometimes called Juſtices in Eyre of the Forreſt, who have the hearing and determining of all offences committed therein againſt Vert and Veniſon, who did judg by the Laws of the Forreſt, 9 H. 3. For which ſee Juſtices, Manwood Forreſt-Laws.

Juſtices of the Forreſt, what.

The Warden or Keeper of the Forreſt; for which ſee Officers.

Warden of the Forreſt, what.

The next Officer is the Conſtable of the Forreſt, (Manwood.)

Verderer or Verdour, what.

The Verderers or Verdours, who are Judicial Officers of the Forreſt choſen by the Kings Writ to the Sheriff, and ſworn in the County-Court of the Shire, by the Freeholders there within the Forreſt where they dwell, to maintain and keep the Aſſiſes of the Forreſt, and alſo to view, receive, and inroll the Attachments and Preſentments of all manner of Treſpaſſes of the Forreſt of Vert and Veniſon, and to overſee, correct and puniſh other Officers beneath them, Cromp. Jur. 164. Manwood.

Forreſtors or Walkers, what.

The Forreſter is a ſworn Officer appointed by the Kings Letters-Patents to walk the Forreſt early and late, to look to the Vert and Veniſon there, attaching and preſenting all Treſpaſſors againſt them within their own Bailiwick or Walk. They were called Walkers, Cromp. Jur. f. 201. Manwood.

Agiſtors, what.

Agiſtors are ſuch as tack in and receive the money for the tack of the Cattel going in the Forreſt. Manwood.

Regardors, what.

Regardors are ſuch Officers as are to view and enquire of all offences of the Forreſt as well of Vert as of Veniſon, and of all concealments of any offences or defaults of the Forreſters, and of all other Officers of the Forreſt, concerning the execution of their Office. Cromp. Iur. 153. Manwood.

Bailiffs, what. Beadle, what.

Bailiffs of the Forreſt and Beadles are Officers that do make all manner of garniſhments of the Courts, and all manner of Proclamations as well within the Courts of the Forreſt as without, and alſo do execute all the Proceſs of the Forreſt, and are like to the Bailiffs errant of the Sheriff within the County.

Sect. 2. Woodmen, Woodwards, what.

Woodmen are ſuch as look to the Woods there, Manwood.

Woodwards are not only to ſee to the Woods, but to all other matters; and if any do any offence there in Vert and Veniſon, they are to preſent it to the Verderors at the next Swanimote or Attachment-Court. Manwood, and Cromp. Jur. 201.

Ranger, what.

Rangers are ſuch as have the care of the Purliews annexed to the Forreſt, to drive back the game. Idem.

Chaſe, what. A Chace ſeemeth to be nothing but the ground which was a Forreſt in the Kings hands, and hath loſt the properties of a Forreſt, or is in the hands of a Subject.

Free-chaſe. And this muſt always be open, and not incloſed: But a Park muſt be always incloſed, and not lie open. And if this be incloſed, it is forfeit to, and may be ſeiſed by the King. And to recover this Chaſe being denied, there lieth a Writ called Libera Chaſea habenda. See more in Franchiſe.

Libera chaſea habenda, what. Warren, what. A Warren is a Franchiſe or privileged place of pleaſure, only for thoſe Beaſts and Fowls that are Beaſts and Fowls of Warren, as Hares and Conies, and Feſants and Partridges. And ſome of theſe lie open, and ſome are incloſed. Theſe were made at firſt by the Kings grant, and ſo may be now within a mans own ground, no where elſe; and then no man may hunt or fowl there without my licence; and if any man hunt or hawk there, he may be puniſhed, Cromp. Jur, 148. Stat. de Malefactoribus in Parcis, 21 Ed. 3.

Park, what. A Park is a piece of ground incloſed and ſtored with wild Beaſts of Chaſe; or a priviledged place for wild Beaſts of Venery, and for other wild Beaſts that are Beaſts of the Forreſt and of the Chaſe, the which are to be in peace there, ſo that no man in that place may hurt or chaſe them without leave of the Owner. And this muſt be incloſed and may not lie open; for if it do, it is cauſe of Forfeiture to, and ſeiſure by the King as a thing forfeit. Nor can the Owner have an Action againſt ſuch as hunt in his Park, if it lie open. Cromp. Jur. 148. Manwood of his Forreſt-Laws.

Sect. 3. There are divers Terms uſed in the Forreſt-Laws, now to be opened.

Woodgeld, what. Woodgeld ſeemeth to be the gathering or cutting of Wood in the Forreſt, or the money paid for the ſame to the uſe of the Forreſters; or an Immunity from this by the Kings grant, Cromp. Jur. 146.

Regard, what. Regard hath two ſignifications: The one for the Regarders office; 2. The other for the compaſs of ground belonging to his Office. For the firſt, they are before the Courts of the Forreſt to make their Regard, (that is) go through all the Bailiwicks of the Forreſt to ſee what offences be done in Vert and Veniſon, and take Notes thereof, and certifie it to the next Court. And for the other, the Compaſs of his Office is all the ground which is parcel of the Forreſt; for there may be Woods within the limits of the Forreſt that be no parcel thereof, and thoſe are without the Regard, Cromp. Jur. 175. Manwood.

Range, what. A Range ſeemeth to be the Office of the Ranger, and the Circuit thereof. For in ſome Forreſts there are twelve Rangers, who are only to look to the Purlieuſes of the ſame upon the Borders of the Forreſts, which were certain Circuits of ground

Purlieu or Purlue. near unto the Forreſts, which were made Forreſt by Hen. 2. Rich. 1. or King John, and were after by Perambulations granted by Hen. 3. ſevered again from the ſame. And theſe were to hunt back the Deer into the Forreſt, and to preſent all offenders within or without his Purlieu. He was made by the Kings Letters-Patents, and had a Fee out of the Exchequer, and certain Fee-Deer, Manwood.

Purly or Purlieu-man, what. Purlieu-man is he that hath ground within the Purlieu, and hath Forty ſhillings a year Freehold; and ſuch a one with ſome cautions may hunt within his own Purlieu. Manwood. Cromp. Jur. 153.

Sect. 4. Franchaſe is a Liberty of Free-chaſe in a Circuit annexed to a Forreſt, whereby

Frank chaſe, what. all men that have ground within that Circuit are prohibited to cut down Wood, or diſcover, &c. within the view of the Forreſter, though it be his own Demeſne, Cromp. Jur. 187.

Backberond, Dog-draw, Stable-ſtand, what. Bloody hand. Theſe are Terms to note a man that is an offender againſt Vert or Veniſon, and taken in the manner, in theſe caſes. When he hath taken up his ſtand with a Croſs-bow ready to ſhoot, as he were ſtabled, which is called Stable-ſtand: Or when he doth draw after ſome hurt Deer with his Dog, which is called Dog-draw: Or when he beareth the Deer on his back, which is called Back-bear: Or when his hand is bloody with the blood of the Deer. In all theſe caſes the Forreſter may arreſt the body of the offender. Manwood.

Tritis or Triſtis what. This Tritis is a Freedom that one hath from holding a Greyhound in his hand, when the Lord of the Forreſt is hunting there, or elſe to be amerced for his default, Manwood.

Vert

Vert is every thing that doth grow and bear green leaf within the Forreſt, that may cover and hide a Deer. And this is Overt-vert, which is High-wood; and Nether-vert, which is Under-wood: Or general, which is all the High-wood; and ſpecial, which is every Tree and Buſh within the Forreſt to feed the Deer withall, as Pear-trees, Crab-trees, Hawthorns, Blackbuſh, and ſuch like; and Bruſhwood is called Cabliſh. Manwood. Cromp. Jur. 163. Vert, what. Cabliſh, what.

Fence-moneth is a moneth wherein it is unlawful to hunt in the Forreſt, which beginneth fifteen days before Midſomer, and endeth fifteen days after Midſomer: So that in this moneth are one and thirty days, wherein they are not to hunt, becauſe in this time the Female-Deer doth fawn. Manwood. Fence-moneth, what.

Fontgeld is an Amerciament upon men living in the Forreſt, for not cutting out the balls of their great Dogs feet. It doth alſo ſignifie a Privilege to keep Dogs there unlawed, without puniſhment or controlment. Manwood. Cromp. Jur. 197. Sect. 5. Fontgeld, what.

Horngeld ſignifieth a Taxe within the Forreſt, to be paid for horned Beaſts, Cromp. Iur. Horngeld, what.

Minovery doth ſignifie ſome Treſpaſs or offence committed by ſome Engine ſet up in the Forreſt to catch Deer, or the like. St. 7 R. 2. c. 4. Minovery, what

This was an antient great Officer of Windſor-Forreſt, that had power of life and death. Protoforreſtarius, what.

Walkers, theſe are thoſe that are called Forreſters. See before.

An Aſſart is an offence committed in the Forreſt by grubbing up the Woods, Coverts or Thickets, and making them plain as arable Land, or the like. And this is a very great offence. Manwood. Walkers, what? Aſſart or Aſſert, what.

Agiſtment is the tacking in of Cattel in the Forreſt, and receipt of the Tack-money to the Kings uſe. Agiſtment or Pawnage, what?

Of Fowling and Fowl; Foreſtalling, Regrating and Ingroſſing.

FOr Fowling and Fowl, ſee Warren and other Titles, St. 1 Iac. 27. The penalty for killing or taking of old Hierons, ſaving by Hawking or Long-bow, See in Stat. 19 H. 7. c. 11. And for taking of young Hierons out of their neſts without leave of the Owner, St. 19 H. 7. c. 11. 1 Iac. 27. Fowling. Hieron.

The danger of taking Swans eggs, See St. 11 H. 7. c. 17.

There is no Law againſt the taking of Wild-fowl, as Ducks, &c. Swans, or the like with Nets or Engines. But for ſhooting in a Gun at them, the penalty is the ſame as for ſhooting at other things. But if any man take away from another, or kill his tame Swans or Hierons, he may have an Action of Treſpaſs for this, 14 H. 8. 3. 18 H. 8. 2.

of

Of Foreſtalling, Regrating and Ingroſsing.

Foreſtalling, Regrating and Ingroſſing, what.

TO buy or agree for any thing coming towards a Market or great Town, or to move the Seller to raiſe the price, or to diſſwade him from bringing in his Commodities in thoſe places, is Foreſtalling.

To buy up Commodities, as Corn, Wine, Butter, Cheeſe, Fiſh, Candles, Tallow, Sheep, Lambs, Calves, Swine, Pigs, Geeſe, Capons, Hens, Chickens, Pigeons, Conies, or other dead victuals whatſoever in any Fair or Market, and ſell them again there, or in any other place within four miles thereof, is Regrating.

To get by buying or promiſe-taking, otherwiſe then by Deviſe of Land or Tythe, any Corn or Grain, or dead victuals into a mans hands, with intent to ſell the ſame again, this is Ingroſſing. And ſo it is, if one by himſelf or another directly or indirectly buy any Wheat or other Grain, with intent to ſell the ſame in Meal, Flower, or otherwiſe, but by Licence of five Juſtices had in Seſſions. But the buying of Barley and Oats without foreſtalling, to make Malt and Oatmeal; and ſuch Victuallers of all ſorts, as Butchers, Fiſhers, and the like, as buy Victuals without Foreſtalling, and ſell it again by Retail according to their Trades; the buying of Victuals by Inholders and Victuallers, and ſpending it in their houſes; the reſerving of Rent-Corn on a Leaſe for Land; the buying of Victuals to victual a Ship or Fort; the buying of Seed-Corn, when one doth ſell or offer to ſale as much again; the tranſportation of Corn from one Port to another by water; the buying of Corn, Fiſh, Butter or Cheeſe by a Badger, ſo he ſell it again within a moneth; nor the buying and ſelling of Cattel by Drovers licenſed, and not abuſing their Licence, ſo they ſell them forty miles off, are not againſt the Laws, nor puniſhable.

The puniſhment of it.

He that is within two years after any ſuch offence done, convict of it, ſhall ſuffer for the firſt offence Impriſonment two moneths without Bail, and the value of the things bought or had: For the ſecond offence after he hath been once convict, Impriſonment half a year, and the double value of the things: And for the third offence, be ſet on the Pillory in the place where he dwels, forfeit all his goods, and be impriſoned during the Kings pleaſure. See for this St. 5 & 6 E. 6. *c.*6.14. 1 Jac. 25. 21 Jac. 28. Act of Parl. 23 Oct. 1650.

If any within two years of the offence be convict for buying any Oxen, Runts, Kine, Steer, Heifers, Lambs, Sheep, Goats or Kids living, and ſelling them again within five weeks, he ſhall ſuffer the loſs of the double value thereof, Stat. 5 *Ed.*6. ch. 14.

If any buy any Hide of Beaſts out of a Market or Fair, unleſs it be of ſuch as killed the Beaſt for their own proviſion, he forfeits Six ſhillings and eight pence, St. 1 Jac. ch. 22.

If any out of London, Weſtminſter, or Southwark buy to ſell again Butter or Cheeſe, unleſs he ſell it again by Retail, and then not above a Weigh of Cheeſe, or Barrel of Butter, he loſeth the double value of the goods, 21 Jac. 22.

The getting of Oak-bark into ones hand with intent to ſell the ſame again, is puniſhable alſo. But for this, ſee the Statute of 1 Jac. 22. 13 Eliz. 25. Co. 3 par. Inſt. cap. 90. and Brownl. 2 par. 108.

CHAP. XC.

Of Frank-law, Frank-pledg, Freehold, Frank-tenement, Free-chappel, Freſh-ſuit, Friars, and Fuſtians.

Frank-law.

HE that loſeth his Frank-law, as for Conſpiracie and ſome offences a man ſhall do, doth fall into theſe miſchiefs.

1. He ſhall never be empanelled upon any Jury or Aſſiſe, or otherwiſe uſed as a Witneſs to teſtifie Truth.

2. If he have any thing to do in the Kings Courts, he may not come there in perſon, but muſt appear by Attorney.

3. His lands, goods and chattels muſt be ſeiſed into the Kings hands, ſpoiled, and his body impriſoned, 24 Ed. 3. 34.

Frank-pledges, what.

Frankpledges are Sureties for Freemen: For heretofore every freeborn Subject at fourteen years old was to be ſworne, and to fall into one Tything or other, and be bound one for another, as they all were: If any offended, he was to be brought in by the reſt to anſwer his offence, or they were to make amends for his offence: And they did commonly engage by Ten houſholds. See Tything-man.

Frank-tenement or Freehold, what, The kinds.

A Franktenement or Freehold is an Eſtate for life at leaſt; and it is either in deed, or in Law. In deed, when one is actually ſeiſed of it: Or in Law before his Entry, when it is caſt upon a man by a courſe of Law; as when it comes to an Heir by the death of an Anceſtor, or to him in Remainder by the death of the particular Tenant. Or where one doth levy a Fine ſur conuſſance de droit come ceo, &c. or ſur conuſſance de droit tantum, (the which are Feoffments of Record;) in theſe caſes the Conuſee hath a Freehold in him before his Entry.

So if Tenant for life, by agreement with him in Reverſion, ſurrender to him; by this he hath a Freehold in Law before his Entry. So where a man doth bargain and ſell Land by Deed indented and inrolled, or when Uſes are raiſed by Covenant upon good conſiderations; in theſe caſes the Freehold in Law doth paſs preſently. But upon an Exchange or Partition, or Livery within the view, no Freehold is veſted or removed until the parties enter, Finches ley 114, 115. Co. upon Lit. 266. But ſee more to this purpoſe in Eſtates. For this there is one ſpecial Rule here to be remembred; That a Franktenement by way of Intereſt-paſſing cannot commence in futuro: And therefore if one make a Feoffment in fee, a Leaſe for life of Land, or grant a Rent or Common in fee or for life, to begin at a day to come, the Eſtate is void. As if a man by Deed in conſideration of Marriage give and grant his Land to his Son and his Heirs after his Fathers death, and Livery is not made; there paſſeth no Eſtate by this. But by way of Surrender of a Copihold, Bargain and Sale, Deviſe or Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to Uſes, ſuch a Conveyance and Eſtate may be good, March 50. pl. 78. Plow. 301. Co. 8. 94. 7. 40. Dyer 96. 202. But this is ſometimes holpen by a Livery of Seiſin, as in 36 Eliz. Callards Caſe: He being on the Land with his Son, ſaid to him, Stand forth J. S. reſerving an Eſtate to me and my wife, I do give thee this Land. By the better opinion, this was good. See March 177. 236.

Free-Chappel, what.

A Free-Chappel is a Chappel founded in ſome Pariſh for the ſervice of God, by the devotion and liberality of ſome good man, over and above the Mother-Church; unto which it was free for the Pariſhioners to come, or not to come; and endowed it with a maintenance from the Founder, and thereupon called free. Or (as ſome ſay) thoſe only are Free-Chappels that are of the Kings founding, and by him exempted from the juriſdiction of the Ordinary. And the Lord Protector at this day may licenſe a Subject to found ſuch a Chappel, and by his Charter exempt it from the Ordinaries juriſdiction alſo, Regiſt. f. 40, 41.

Freſh-ſuit, what.

Freſh-ſuit is ſuch a preſent and earneſt following of an offender, as never ceaſeth from the time of the offence committed or eſpied, until he be apprehended. And this may be within, or without the view. And the effect of it is this in purſuit of a Felon, that that the party purſuing ſhall have his goods reſtored to him again, whereas otherwiſe they would be forfeit to the King. Co. 3. Highways Caſe. Stamf. Pl. Cor. 3. 10.

Friars. There were of theſe Friars, when they were here, four principal Orders: Minors, Auguſtines, Preachers, and Carmelites; of which all the reſt came. The Friars obſervant were not of any Cloiſter, Covent or Corporation combined together as the reſt, but tied themſelves to obſerve the Rites of their Order, and more ſtrictly then the Conventuals did, and out of ſingularity of zeal did ſeparate themſelves from them, living in places and companies of their own chooſing. Stat. 4 H. 4. 17. 25 H. 8. 12.

Fuſtians. For the true making of Fuſtians, ſee Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 27.
What Fuſtians ſhall be made in Norwich, ſee 1 & 2 P. & M. 14.
Who may ſearch their houſes, and overſee their Fuſtians, 39 Eliz. 23.

CHAP. XCI.

Of Franchiſes and Liberties.

Franchiſe, what it is. A Franchiſe is a Royal Privilege in the hand of a Subject; or ſome Benefit, Power or Freedom, that ſome perſons and places have above others, which originally was derived from the Crown, but now at laſt by continuance of time is claimed and taken in ſome caſes by Preſcription. And of theſe Franchiſes there are many ſorts.

The kinds. Some whereof do ſtand in having; as the goods of Felons, of Fugitives, and of outlawed perſons, Waifs, Strays, Deodaons, Treaſure-trove, Wreck, Markets, Fairs, Warrens, Leets, Courts, and the Cuſtoms of divers Villages, Burroughs and Corporations, Conuſance of Pleas, Hundreds, and the like, Dyer 44. Plow. 169. And for Fairs and Markets, ſee the Statutes of 2 Ed. 3. 15. 5 Ed. 3. 5. 27 H. 6. 5. 17 Ed. 4. 2. 2 & 3 P. & M. 7. 31 Eliz. 12.

Fairs and Markets.

Sect. 1. Some of them do ſtand in doing; as to make Juſtices of the Peace to pardon Felonies, and the power of Corporations, and divers other places, and the like.

Some of them do conſiſt in diſcharge; as to be exempt from ſerving in Juries, from paiment of Subſidies, from the juriſdiction of other Courts, from paiment of Toll, and the like.

And amongſt all theſe ſome are more Royal, as the Franchiſes of the Principality of Wales, and Counties Palatine; alſo goods of Felons, of Fugitives, and of outlawed perſons; power to pardon Treaſon or Felonies, or to make Juſtices pardon Felony or Treaſon, and the like. And theſe it ſeems are ſo appropriate to the places and perſons, as that they are not grantable over to any other place or perſon. But others are leſs Royal, as Markets, Fairs, and ſuch like; and theſe it ſeems are grantable over, unleſs they be real and annexed inſeparably unto ſome place, St. 27 H. 8. ch. 25.

Amongſt theſe alſo ſome are real, i. inſeparably annexed to ſome place, as divers Cuſtoms of divers places, Burroughs and Corporations, the Juriſdiction and Priviledges of the Principality of Wales and Counties Palatine, Warrens, and the like; and theſe be not grantable to any other place by them that do enjoy them. 2. Some are perſonal; and theſe are ſometimes inſeparable from the perſon, and not grantable to another by him; as exemption of Juries, exemption of Toll, and the like. But the moſt of theſe, as Waifs, Strays, Courts, and the like, are grantable from one to another, as other things are: For which ſee Grants. Some of theſe may be claimed by Preſcription, and ſome not: For which ſee Preſcription.

Goods

Goods of Felons, Fugitives, or of Outlawed perſons, are the goods of one that is attainted or outlawed for Felony, or outlawed otherwiſe, or doth flie for Felony, which by Law are forfeited for Waifs, Strays, Deodands, Treaſure-trove, Wreck. (See their ſeveral Titles.) Goods of Felons, what.

Markets and Fairs are publick meetings for Trading and Traffick. For which ſee Stat. 2 Ed. 3. 15. 5 Ed. 3. 5.

Warren is a Franchiſe or priviledged place of pleaſures by grant of the King, or Preſcription, for the preſervation of thoſe Beaſts and Fowls which are Beaſts and Fowls of Warrens; as Hares, Conies, Pheaſants and Partridges. And this a man may have by grant of the King, or Preſcription; and it may be in a mans own ground, or another mans. And if another do chaſe or kill any Beaſts or Fowl of a Warren, the Owner may have an Action of Treſpaſs againſt him. And this may lie open, and need not be incloſed, as a Park muſt. See more in Parks and Forreſts, which it ſeems is in a manner all one with this, Co. upon Lit. 233. Plow. 130. See more in Forreſt. Warren, what. Preſcription. Treſpaſs.

It is a privilege that ſome Town or place have by the Kings grant, by which they have ability to hear and determine matters and cauſes amongſt themſelves, and to call their cauſes out of other Courts, if they be there queſtioned or impleaded, by motion to the Court, and a requeſt of Conuſance, that the matter may be heard and determined by them in their own Court. Which muſt be at the beginning of the Suit; for if once the Court be poſſeſſed of the Suit, it is too late to demand Conuſance for that Suit. And therefore ſuch as have this Franchiſe, are uſed to have Attornies or Bailiffs at Weſtminſter to demand Conuſance (if any Suit come into the Court there) at the very beginning: And this a man muſt have the Kings grant for, for he cannot preſcribe for it; but yet it ſeems one may preſcribe tenere placita in his own Court before his Bailiff in ſuch a place. But Conuſance of Plea lieth always in demand, and is of Record. See Stat. 6 H. 6: ch. 26. Dyer 202. 9 H. 7. 11. For Leets, view of Frankpledg, and Court-Baron, ſee Courts. Conuſance of Pleas, what. Preſcription.

This is a Franchiſe that ſome Hundreds and places have, that the Sheriff cannot come there to do any Execution, or execute any Writ without wrong to the Lord of the Franchiſe: And therefore they uſe to ſend their Warrants to the Bailiffs of thoſe Franchiſes to do it. See Stat. of Lincoln, 9 Ed. 2. But if the Bailiffs of thoſe Franchiſes do not their office, then the Sheriff may do it by a Non omittas. 13 Ed. 1. 39. Lit. ch. Burgage. 40 Aſſ. pl. 27. Retorna Brevium, or Return of Writs, what. Non omittas.

Burroughs are antient Villages incorporate, from whence do come Burgeſſes of Parliament: And theſe have divers Franchiſes, Freedoms and Exemptions that other places have not; as to hold Pleas, and to do divers other things: Amongſt which Burroughs, London, Cheſter, Canterbury, and divers others have divers and ſundry Franchiſes annexed to their Corporations. Places of Priviledg. Burroughs.

The Principality in Wales, are certain Shires in Wales which did belong unto the Kings eldeſt ſon, that have certain Franchiſes; of which read Stat. 38 H. 8. ch. 2. 27 H. 8. 26. Cromp. Jur. f. 137, 138. Plow. 123. 20 Jac. 10. 27 Eliz. 9. 5 Eliz. 25. 34 & 35 H. 8. 36. Sect. 2. Principality of Wales, what.

The Counties-Palatine are four ſpecial Counties, (i.) Lancaſter, Cheſter, Durham, and Ely, which have ſpecial exemption and juriſdiction: For they have juriſdiction of all cauſes that do ariſe within their own limits and Counties, and the Kings Writ doth not come there; and they have the ſame authority in a manner that the Palace of the Kings Royal Court hath. For which ſee the Statute of 37 H. 8. c. 5. whereby their power is ſomwhat abridged. 27 H. 8. 24. 33 H. 8. 39. Counties Palatine, what.

The Cinque-Ports are five Haven-Towns, Romney, Hithe, Dover, Haſting, Sandwich; which becauſe they lie (being Eaſtward towards France) upon the Narrow-Seas, and are dangerous for an Invaſion, therefore they have had antiently, and ſo ſtill have allowed to them divers Franchiſes and Priviledges which are upon Record and well known: As to be quit of Subſidies, to be freed and exempted from the juriſdiction of any other Courts, and to have their cauſes heard and determined among themſelves; to have a ſpecial Governor, who is called Lord Warden de Cinque-Ports, and divers other things. St. 2 H. 5. 6. Mag. char. c. 9. Cinque-Ports, what.

Tribute or Cuſtom, Impoſt, what.

Tribute, Impoſt, Toll and Cuſtom, ſeem to be one thing; a paiment from private men to publike uſe. But Cuſtom properly is the profit which the King maketh of Wares tranſported; and Impoſt is the Tax received by the King for the Wares that are imported from other Nations in to us at any Haven here, Stat. 31 Eliz. 5.

Toll or Tonage, what. Turn-Toll, what

It ſeems there are three kinds of Toll, Tributes or Cuſtoms paid for paſſage, &c. There is Turn-Toll, which is a ſum of money that is to be paid by every one that doth buy any Beaſts or Cattel in any Fair or Market; which the Buyer, and not the Seller (unleſs it be the cuſtom of the place) muſt pay: And if the cuſtom be, that one muſt pay for it, though he do not ſell it, then it muſt be paid accordingly; and if he refuſe to pay it, they may diſtrain the Beaſts or Cattel, unleſs the party be exempted from the paiment of Toll, as one may be, (Of which ſee after Exemption from Toll.) And this one may claim and have by the Kings grant, or by Cuſtom or Preſcription. See Toll, Chap.

Toll-travers, what.

Toll-travers is, where one doth claim to have ſomething for all the Beaſts that are driven over his ground.

Toll-through, what.

Toll-through is, where any Town doth preſcribe to have ſomwhat for every Beaſt that doth go through the Town: which it ſeems hath been given moſt commonly for the repairing of ſome Bridg, or ſome High-way, Stat. 2 & 3 Ph. & M. ch. 7.

Stallage, Pickage, what.

Stallage is money paid for pitching of Stalls in Markets or Fairs; and Pickage is money paid for breaking the ground to do it. This is a kind of Toll. See Toll in Chap.

Exemption of Toll, what. Breve eſſendi quietum de tollonio, what.

Exemption of Toll is, where the King hath granted to any man to be free from paying Toll. In this caſe if any body ſhall diſtrain him, he may have an Action of the Caſe; or if any one require it, he may have a Writ to the Sheriff, De eſſendi quietum de Tollonio. And this one may have by the Kings grant, or Preſcription.

Tonage, what.

Tonage is a Cuſtom or Impoſt for Merchandiſe brought or carried in Tons and ſuch like Veſſels from or to other Nations, after a certain Rate in every Ton, Stat. 14 Ed. 4. ch. 3.

Some alſo ſay, it is taken ſometimes for a Duty due to the Mariners for unlading their Ship arrived in any Haven, after the Rate of every Ton, St. 1 Jac. 33. 3 Car. 1. Act March 11. 1650. This is always ſet by Parliament.

Poundage, what.

Poundage is a Subſidy granted to the King of all manner of Merchandiſes of every Merchant-Denizen and Alien carried out of this Realm, or brought into the ſame by way of Merchandiſe, to the value of Twelve pence in every pound, 12 Ed. 6. ch. 13. Or (as others have it) a Duty due from Mariners for unlading their Ship arrived in any Haven after the Rate of every Ton, Stat. 1 Jac. 33. Act March 11. 1650.

2. What Franchiſes may be claimed by Preſcription, and what not:

Any man may make title to, claim, and have Treaſure-trove, Waifs, Strays, Wreck, Conuſans de Pleas, Courts of Leets, Hundreds, &c. Infangtheef, Outfangtheef, to have a Park, Warren, Royal Fiſhes, Fairs, Markets, Frankfoldage, the keeping of a Gaol, and the like, by uſage and preſcription; and theſe may be gained and kept without matter of Record. But ſo he cannot for ſuch Franchiſes as cannot be ſeiſed before the cauſe be of Record; as the Goods and Chattels of Traitors and Felons, Outlawed perſons, Fugitives, of thoſe that be put in Exigents, Deodands, to make a Corporation, Conſervators of the Peace, or a Coroner; and theſe cannot be claimed by Uſage in the Country without matter of Record, as without Charter, or the like; unleſs it be by a mean as incident to a County-Palatine, which one may have and claim by Preſcription, Co. upon Lit. f. 114.

Sect. 3. 3. When, and what Franchiſes ſhal be forfeit, and how: BY Non-uſer, Abuſer, Refuſer.

Some Franchiſes may be forfeited by a Non-uſer, ſome by Refuſer, and moſt by Abuſer. Of which ſee ſomwhat in Forfeiture de Offices: As if a Clerk of the Market do not uſe his Office, he doth forfeit it, Co. 9. 99.

If one have a Fair or a Market one day, and he keep it another; as if his Grant or Preſcription be for Wedneſday, and he keep it Thurſday, by this he doth forfeit it, Co. 9. 50. So if a Fair or Market be granted a man for one day in the week, and and he keep it two days, 22 Aſſ. 34. But in this laſt caſe he forfeits only that which he hath uſurped.

If one keep a Fair or Market two days, and being queſtioned by the King, he claimeth both days by the Kings grant, and afterwards it is found he hath but one day; by this he doth forfeit both days, St. 2 *Ed.*3.*c.*15. 2 *H.*7.11.

If one have Aſſiſe of Bread and Beer, and Pillory-Tumbrel, and he do not uſe it, he forfeits his Franchiſe.

A Lord of a Franchiſe may loſe it for default in purſuit or arreſting of Felons, *St.*3 Ed. 1. *c.*9. See Cromp. Jur. in all. Where Franchiſes are incident of common right, there the Forfeiture of the one is the Forfeiture of the other; as the abuſe of the Court of Pipowders, is the Forfeiture of the Fair. So where they are ſubordinate one to the other. But where they are contradiſtinct Species, or by ſeveral Titles or Patents, it is otherwiſe. Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Court.

In ſome caſes for the Abuſer of a Franchiſe a man ſhall be fined, but ſhall not forfeit his Franchiſe. So for uſurping a Franchiſe a man ſhall be fined, or for uſurping more then one ought to have: But if one take leſs Franchiſes then he hath right to, this is no Forfeiture, *Bro. Franch.*37.

If one have a Fair or Market-day by Grant or Preſcription granted to him Wedneſday, and he keep it on that day, and another alſo, his Market or Fair on Wedneſday is not forfeit, 22 *Aſſ.*3.4.

If one claim one day by Patent, and another by Preſcription, and the laſt be found againſt him, this is no Forfeiture of that he hath by Grant. So that not uſing of a Fair or Market, it ſeems, is no Forfeiture, *Co.*9.50. 2 *H.*7.1.*c.*30.

A Market or Fair is not forfeit by taking of Toll where none is due, or taking more then is due, Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. by the Court: Or by keeping it longer then the time, Stat. 1 *Ed.*3.15.

An Abbot had a Franchiſe of Gaol-delivery, and he kept the Priſoners too long, and would not be at charge to make deliverance, it was adjudged a cauſe of Forfeiture, 8 *H.*4.18.

A man had a Priſon, and he kept Priſoners for Felony after they were acquitted and had paid their Fees; it was adjudged a Forfeiture of the Franchiſe for ever, 20 Ed. 4. 6.

If a Franchiſe of taking Toll be abuſed, as if exceſſive Toll be taken, it is a Forfeiture, Weſtm. 1. 30. So if they take for Murage more then they ought to take by their Grant, (Idem.) If the Town be the Kings, he may ſeiſe the Franchiſe. So if it be another Lords, and be done by his conſent. If it be a Bailiff or other Officer, he ſhall reſtore as much more as was taken, and ſuffer forty days Impriſonment, (Idem.)

4. What Franchiſes a Subject may have, or not, and how.

No Subject ſhall have power to pardon Felonies or the Acceſſaries, or any Outlawry for ſuch offences; nor to make any Juſtices of Eyre, Aſſiſe, Peace, Gaol-delivery. But other Franchiſes a Subject may have, ſuch as the goods of Felons, of Fugitives, of outlawed perſons, Waifs, Eſtrays, Deodands, Treaſure-trove, Wreck, Markets, Fairs, Leets, and the like. But ſome of theſe may be had by Preſcription, ſome muſt be had by Patent from the Lord Protector. See Brownlow, 2 *par.*219.

Ad quod damnum, what.

Ad quod damnum, is a Writ which ought to be ſued before the King grant certain Liberties, as a Market Fair, or the like, that may be prejudicial to others; and by this it may be enquired of. Terms of the Law.

Non omittas, what.

It is a Writ lying, where a Sheriff doth return upon a Writ to him directed againſt a perſon dwelling in a Franchiſe; That he hath ſent unto the Bailiff of the Franchiſe that hath the Return of Writs, and he hath made him no anſwer, or hath not ſerved the Writ: Then the party may have this Writ to command the Sheriff to enter upon the Liberty, and to execute the Writ himſelf, which otherwiſe he could not do without ſubjecting himſelf to an Action of the Caſe. And withall the Bailiff of the Franchiſe is to be warned; and if he come not at the Return of the Writ, then all the Writs that go forth afterwards in that Suit, ſhall be with a Non omittas. 13 *Ed.*1. 39. St. Lincoln, 9 *Ed.*2. 2 *Ed.*3.5.

Sect. 4. Quo Warranto, what.

It is a Writ for the King, lying where one hath no title to a Franchiſe, as having never any, or having forfeited what he had, to recover it into his hands. For by this Writ the party that doth take the Franchiſe, is required to ſhew by what title he doth hold it; and if he do not appear, then the King may ſeiſe the Franchiſe more diſtrictionis, by the Sheriff; and then the party hath a time by a Replevin to avoid that Seiſure; and if he doth it not within the time, then he doth loſe the Franchiſe for ever. And if it be found that he do uſe the Franchiſe without the Title, then the Judgment is, he ſhall be ouſted of it. If it be found he hath abuſed it, then the Judgment ſhall be, that he hath forfeited it. And this is to be brought before the Juſtices of Eyre or of Aſſiſe; and therefore the allowance of a Franchiſe before them bindeth the King: Otherwiſe upon a Suit in the Common-Pleas. See Cromp. Jur. 144, 145. Bro. Q. Warranto, 5. 7.

When Franchiſes ſhall be ſaid to be extinct, and how.

If the King grant any Privilege, Liberty or Franchiſe, which be in his own hands as parcel of the Flowers of his Crown; as the Goods and Chattels of Felons, Fugitives, or outlawed perſons, Waifs, Eſtrays, Deodands, Wrecks, and the like: If theſe come again to the King, they are extinct, and the King hath them in right of his Crown; and if they were appendant before, the appendancie is now gone. Contra of Fairs, Markets, Hundreds, Leets, Parks, Warrens, and the like, be they appendant to Manors or otherwiſe in groſs, they are not extinct by unity in the Kings hand, Co. 9. 25, 26. Dyer 44. Plow. 219: 15 Ed. 4. 7.

CHAP. XCIII.

Of Gard or Ward, Gift and Grant.

Sect. 1. Gard or Ward.

THis word Gard in French ſignifieth a Cuſtody. And ſometimes it is applied to them that attend upon the ſafety of the Lord Protector. Sometimes it is applied to them that have the Education of Children under age, or of an Ideot. And ſometimes alſo it is taken for a Writ of Ward, of which there are three ſorts; A Writ of Rights of Ward, Ejectment of Ward, and Raviſhment of Ward. In the ſecond ſignification alſo it is moſt commonly applied to the Wardſhip of ſuch an Infant, whoſe Anceſtor held his Land by the Tenure of Capite or Knights ſervice; and by reaſon of that Tenure, his Child, be it male or female, muſt be in the cuſtody of his Lord during its minority.

Gardein, what.

The kinds. Gardein in Chivalry, what.

And hence it is, that he that hath the protection and education of ſuch an Infant, is called a Gardein. For a Gardein is one that hath the wardſhipor keeping of any perſon, or that which is his, or both. And of Gardeins there have been divers kinds; as Gardein in Chivalry, which was one that had the wardſhip and cuſtody of an Heir, an Infant, whoſe Anceſtor died ſeiſed of Land held of the King in capite, or of a common perſon by Knights ſervice. Both which kind of Wardſhips are taken away by an Order of the Lords and Commons in Parliament, 24 Febr. 1645. in theſe words:

It is this day Ordered by the Lords and Commons aſſembled in Parliament, That the Court of Wards and Liveries, and all Wardſhips, Liveries, Primer-Seiſins, and Ouſterlemains, and all other charges incident or ariſing for or by reaſon of Wardſhips, Livery, Primer-Seiſin, or Ouſterlemain, be from this day taken away: And that all Tenures by Homage, and all Fines, Licences, Seiſures, and Pardons for Alienation, and all other charges incident thereunto be taken away: And that all Tenures by Knights ſervice either of the King or others, or by Knights ſervice or Socage in Capite of the King, be turned into free and common Socage.

And therefore we ſhall not need to ſay any thing to them. There are other Gardeins that do yet continue; as Gardeins in Socage, Gardeins in Nurture, Gardeins in Nature. Some make more, and diſtinguiſh Gardeins into Gardeins by Common-Law; ſo were Gardeins in Chivalry: By Nature, as the Father to his eldeſt Son: By Socage and becauſe of Nurture, as Father or Mother, without aſſignation: Or appointed by Will or by Cuſtom, as Orphans in Cities. So that ſome Gardeins are made by the Law, and ſome by the Will of the Anceſtor. See for theſe Diviſions, Co. upon Lit. 76. 88. D. & S. 149. Co. 5. 126. 6. 71.

Grantee of a Ward, what. Committee of a Ward, what.

He that had a Wardſhip by a Tenure in capite committed to him by the King, was called the Grantee of a Ward: And if it had been committed by the King, he was called a Committee of the Ward.

Sect. 2.

The Wardſhip by Tenures in capite and by Knights ſervice being gone, we ſhall not ſtay upon them to ſhew the office and duty of the Gardeins; nor where ſuch Heirs of Anceſtors that do hold Lands by theſe Tenures ſhall be in Ward, or not; nor where there ſhall be a Wardſhip for a third part, upon the Statutes of 32. and 34 H. 8. Nor where the Heir ſhall be out of Ward, or not; or of Marriage, Forfeiture, or value of Marriage: But we ſhall paſs it over, and ſay no more but this, That theſe Tenures had many Incidents annexed to them; as Wardſhip of Body, Marriage, Aid, Homage, Eſcuage, Primer-Seiſin, and drew to them the body, lands, and diſpoſal and profit of the marriage of the Infant, which was ſo much as the Lord tendred in marriage: And this the Heir at his full age was to pay the Lord, or the Lord was to keep the Land for it; or he might have had a Writ called à valore maritagii. And if the Heir had married himſelf during his Minority, being of years of conſent, without the conſent of his Guardian, he had forfeited to his Gardein the double value of his Marriage. See for all this, Co 6. 70. Merton, ch. 7. Dyer 255. 2 H. 7. 9 Co. 5. 127. Weſtm 1. 22. Co. upon Lit. 76, 81, 82, 83. Co. 2. 93. 10. 83. 11. 24. 8. 371. and many other Books.

Aid. Marriage. Eſcuage. Valore maritagii, what.

Forfeiture of Marriage, what.

A Gardein in Socage, is he that hath the Wardſhip or Cuſtody of an Heir an Infant, whoſe Anceſtor died ſeiſed of Land held of the King, or any common perſon by Socage-tenure, or in that nature, as by Petit-Serjeanty, Copy of Court-Roll, or the like. And as to this, theſe things are to be known. Gardein in Socage, what.

1. This Wardſhip is by reaſon of Tenure alſo, and ſhall go to the next of kin unto whom the heritage by his death may not deſcend: As if Land deſcend on the part of the Father, then the next of kin on the part of the Mother ſhall have the Wardſhip, and ſo on the other ſide; and not ſuch a Kinſman as may have or hope for any benefit by his death. The nature of this Wardſhip, and the power and duty of this Gardein.

2. This Wardſhip doth differ from the Wardſhip of Heirs of Capite and Knights-ſervice land. For, 1. The Gardein in Chivalry and by Knights-ſervice had all to his own uſe, and was to hold it till the Heir, if he were a Son, were one and twenty years old. But this Gardein is to hold and take all the profits of the Land till the Heir be fourteen years old only, and then he muſt account for and pay all the profits to the Heir: And after fourteen years of age, the Ward or his Executors or Adminiſtrators may call the Guardian to an Account, by a ſpecial Action of Account given in the Caſe; for which ſee Account. 2. If the Gardein in Chivalry or by Knights ſervice had died during the minority of the Heir, the Executors or Adminiſtrators of the Gardein muſt have had it as a Chattel. But in this caſe, not the Executor or Adminiſtrator, but the next of kin to the Heir: And if it were a Woman Covert that had it, not her Husband, as in the former caſe, but the next of kin to whom the heritage may not deſcend, ſhall have it. 3. A Gardein in Chivalry or Knights-ſervice might have ſold or granted away his Wardſhip; but this Gardein in Socage cannot grant away this Wardſhip to another. And if the Wife be this Gardein, and ſhe and her Husband let the Land, and the Husband die; the Wife may enter and avoid the Leaſe. 4. If the Gardein in capite or Knights-ſervice had married the Heir within age, the Gardein ſhould have had the benefit of it. But if Gardein in Socage marry his Ward within fourteen years of age, he muſt account to the Heir for the Marriage alſo, and pay ſo much as any man bona fide had offered, or would have given in Marriage. Accompt. Chattel.

3. But in this they both agree; that the Gardeins duty and office is to give the Heir education, and to preſerve his Inheritance and the Writings of his Land, and not to make any waſte or deſtruction upon the Land.

4. If an Anceſtor be ſeiſed of Rent-charge, Rent-ſervice, or Common, or ſuch things which lie not in Tenure, and die, his Heir within fourteen years old; in this caſe the Heir may chooſe his Guardian: But if he be ſo tender of years as not able to chooſe, it were fit the next of kin to whom the heritage may not deſcend did diſpoſe him and it, unleſs the Father by will otherwiſe appoint it. But if there be a Gardein in Socage for other Land, it were fit he were Gardein for all. But whoſoever ſhall receive theſe Rents, muſt be accountable to the Heir in an Action of Account for them. See for all theſe things, 28 Ed. 1. Stat. 1. Marlb. c. 17. Co. upon Lit. 87. Lit. l. 2. c. 4. Plow. 296. Co. upon Lit. 87. 89. And the danger of ſuch a Guardians betraying of his Truſt in the marrying of his Ward, See Infant and Marriage.

Guardian in Nurture, is he that is made ſo by Will; which is where a man holdeth goods or lands not held in capite, Knights-ſervice, or in Socage, and giveth them to his Child, and doth by his Will appoint a Guardian to the body of his Child till ſuch a time: And this being confirmed by the Ordinary, was wont to be admitted by our Law. And if the Father did not appoint one till his age of fourteen years, then the Ordinary did appoint one. Sect. 3. Tutor or Gardein in Nurture, what.

But now the Law will do the ſame without the Ordinary, that then it did with the Ordinary. At fourteen years old and after, the Infant may chooſe his own Guardian: Alſo the Father by his Will may appoint what Guardian he pleaſe for his goods or lands held in Socage; but for Copihold-lands, the Cuſtom of the place muſt be obſerved. See for theſe things, Co. of Copihold, ſect. 22. Noy 122, 123.

Gardein in Nature, what.

The Gardein in nature is the Father, who is to have the Wardſhip of his Son and Heir apparent ſo long as he liveth; for during the Fathers life, the body of ſuch Son was not to be in Ward to any other body, but in ſpecial caſes. See Plow. 295. 304. F.N.B. 90. 143. 33 H. 6. 55. See Infant.

Gard by cauſe of Gard, what.

This is where one hath the Wardſhip of a Minor, becauſe he is Gardein to his Lord, being likewiſe in his Minority. Old N.B. 94.

Droit de Gard, what.

Right of Gard is a perſonal Action, or a Writ to recover the Body or Land of an Heir that ſhould be in Ward to him, by reaſon of a Tenure in capite or Knights ſervice. It is called alſo (as it ſeems) Droit de cuſtodia terræ & hæredis, or de communi cuſtodia. F.N.B. 139. Old N.B. 89. And if it be for the Body, this Writ lieth for a Gardian in Socage, Merton c. 6. Co. 9. 129.

Droit de cuſtodia terræ & hæredis; or, de communi cuſtodia.

Ejectment of a Gard, or Ejectione cuſtodiæ what.

This is a perſonal Action or a Writ lying for a Gardein in Chivalry or Socage, where he is put out of the Land, and not out of the Body, for his relief herein. F.N.B. 141.

Raviſhment del Gard, what.

This is a Writ lying where the Body is taken away, and not the Land; and by this the Gardein will recover the Body, if he be not married; and if he be, he ſhall recover damages. Co. upon Lit. 89. F.N.B. 139.

Intruſion del Gard, what.

This is where the Heir before his age, and before he hath ſatisfied, the Lord doth enter upon him and put him out, being Guardian in Chivalry or by Knights ſervice, F.N.B. 197.

Ætate probanda, what.

Ætate probanda, was a Writ of Office to enquire again of the full age of an Heir, being found to be within age by one Office, when he is able to prove he is of full age, F.N.B. 157.

Diſparagement, what.

This was taken for a wrong done by the Guardian in Chivalry to his Ward, by marrying him or her within age of conſent to any unworthy perſon, and unfit for him or her: For by this means the Guardian might have loſt his Ward and all the profits of his Wardſhip, Merton c. 6, 7. Co. on Lit. 80.

Sect. 4. Livery, what.

Livery was, where the Kings Tenant in capite is dead, and his Heir is of full age at the time of his death, or he hath been in Ward, and is now become of full age; in this caſe he had the poſſeſſion delivered unto him by a Writ out of the Kings hands, which was called a Writ of Livery. And Primer-Seiſin was the right the King had to the firſt poſſeſſion of Lands and Tenements held of him in chief, whereof his Tenant died ſeiſed, until the Heir had performed the Service due for it. Theſe Liveries and Primer-Seiſins, and all charges incident and ariſing thereby being taken away by the ſame Parliament-Order, we paſs them by.

Primer Seiſin, what.

Ouſter le main, or Amoveas manum, what.

Ouſter le-main did ſignifie a Judgment given to him that tendered a Traverſe, or ſued a Monſtrans de droit, or a Petition. For when it did appear upon the matter diſcuſſed, that the King had no right to the Wardſhip he ſeiſed, then Judgment was given in Chancery, that the Kings hands ſhould be amoved; and thereupon an Amoveas manum was awarded to the Exchequer, that the Heir ſhould have his Land again. For after the death of the Kings Tenant, the courſe was to enquire by office, and by Inqueſt of Office the death and Tenure was found, and ſo the King was entitled to the Wardſhip. And this Office found, if it had been falſe, might have been avoided by a Traverſe, Monſtrans de Droit, Petition or Pleading. Of which you may read, Stamf. prer. 73. 42. Finches ley 324. Plow. 488. and in many other places. This alſo by the general Order aforeſaid is taken away, and therefore we paſs it over. So alſo Licence for Alienation, Eſcuage, Aid, Homage, Fealty, and the reſt of the things incident to this Tenure is gone.

Aid.
Homage.

Meſne-profits or Rates, or Iſſues.

Meſne-Rates, Profits or Iſſues of Lands, was nothing elſe but the Profits of Land which the King was to have for a time, until he were ſatisfied ſome duties: As when the Heir of his Tenant in capite being of full age did die before tender of his Livery, until the time of his death. And ſo in ſome caſes he was to be anſwered from the time of the Title found; as upon an Alienation in Mortmain, from the time of the Alienation as it is found by Office; and upon Letters-Patents annulled for inſufficiencie, from the time of the Grant, as it is found by Office. See for this, 41 Ed. 3. 11. 11 H. 4. 5. 33 Ed. 1. de Eſceatoribus. 28 Ed. 3. c. 4. Dyer 308.

Diem

Diem clauſit extremum is a Writ that did lie where the Kings Tenant, that held of the Crown in Capite, or by Knights Service, or in Soccage died, then this Writ was directed to the Eſcheator to enquire of what Eſtate he died ſeiſed, who was his next Heir, and his Age, and the certainty of the Land, the value, and of whom it was held, and who took the profits. And this Writ was to be ſued out within a year after the death of the party, and could not be had after that time, but then there muſt be had the Writ called a Mandamus, which is of the ſame nature. And in caſe where the Anceſtor had died the Kings Ward, there muſt have been ſued out the Writ called a Devenerunt, which is of the ſame nature, and differeth in circumſtance onely. But all theſe Writs are now uſeleſs, the Tenure in Capite being taken away. Sect. 5. Diem clauſit extremum, what. Mandamus, what. Devenerunt, what.

Quæ plura was a Writ uſed onely where an Office was fonnd by a former Writ, and ſome of the Land was left out of the Office, then this was given to ſupply it. So alſo was the Melius Inquirendum to ſupply a Defect in a former Office, found by virtue of another Writ. And the Datum eſt nobis intelligi, was a Writ that did lie where upon a former Office the Land was found to be held of another Lord, and not of the King. And there were Records to ſhew they were held of the King, that it might be again enquired of. But all theſe Writs are laid aſide at this day. Quæ plura, what. Melius Inquirendum, what. Datum eſt nobis intelligi, what.

Of a Gift.

THis word importing no more, then the transferring of the property of a thing from one to another, is of larger extent then a Feoffment, which is always applied to an immovable thing; for this is often applied to movable things alſo, as Trees, Cattle, Houſhold-ſtuff, &c. The property whereof is, and may be altered as well by Gift, as by Sale or Grant. And in this ſenſe, a Gift is ſometimes by the Act of the Party, as when one man doth give a thing to another. And this is, or may be either by word or by writing: And ſometimes it is by Act of Law, as when a Woman is married to a Husband, or one is made Executor to another; in theſe caſes by the marriage onely, and taking of the Executorſhip, the Law gives all the Goods of the Woman to the Husband, and of the Teſtator to his Executor. So where one doth take my Goods as a Treſpaſſer, and I recover damages for them upon a Sute in Law; in this caſe the Law doth give him the property of the Goods, becauſe he hath paid for them. But this word Gift is ſometimes taken more ſtrictly, and applied to a conveyance or paſſing of an Eſtate of Lands or Tenements to another in Tail, wherein this word Dedi is moſt commonly uſed. And then he which doth ſo give the Land, is called the Donor, and he to whom it is given, the Donee. And this for the moſt part is by Deed, though it may be otherwiſe. And for theſe Deeds of Gift of immovable or movable things, ſee Deed and Grant in toto, wherein all the Learning touching this matter is involved. And ſo we paſs to a Grant. Gift, what. Donor, Donee.

Of a Grant.

THis word taken largely, is where any thing is granted or paſſed from one to another. And in this ſenſe it doth comprehend Feoffments, Bargains, and Sales, Gifts, Leaſes, Charges, and the like; for he that doth give, or ſell, doth grant alſo. And thus it is ſometimes in writing, or by Deed, and ſometimes it is by word without writing. But the word being taken more ſtrictly and properly, it is the Grant, Conveyance, or Gift by writing of ſuch an Incorporeal thing as lieth in Grant, and not in Livery, and cannot be given or granted by word onely without Deed: Or it is the Grant of ſuch perſons as cannot paſs any thing from them but by Deed, as the King, Bodies Corporate, &c. And this albeit it may be made by other words, yet it is moſt commonly made by this word [Grant] as being moſt proper to this purpoſe. Co. ſuper Littl. 172. 9. Finches Ley 79. Grant, what.

Know therefore that amongſt Hereditaments, ſome are ſuch as are ſaid to lie in Livery, i. ſuch as whereof Livery of Seiſin may be made, as Manors, Houſes, Lands, &c. And ſome are ſuch as do not lie in Livery, i. whereof no Livery of Seiſin can, nor need to be made, but they paſs by the Delivery of the Deed, without any more, and of this ſort are Rents, Reverſions, Services, Advowſons in groſs, and the like; which things cannot paſs from man to man without Deed or matter of record, which is of a higher nature then a deed.

Grantor, Grantee. The Kinds.

And he that makes this grant is called the Grantor, and he to whom it is made is called the Grantee, Co. ſuper Lit. 49.

It is taken here in the largeſt ſenſe, as that which doth comprehend both. And ſo ſome grants are of the land or ſoile it ſelf, and ſome are of ſome profit to be taken out of or from the ſoile, as Rent, Common, &c. And ſome are of goods and Chattels, and ſome are of other things, as Authorities, elections, &c. And they are made ſomtimes by matter of Record, and ſometimes by Deed or writing in the country, and ſometimes by word without either. Some grants alſo tend to charge the grantor with ſomething he was not charged with before, and ſome to paſs ſomething out of him to the Grantee, and ſome tend to diſcharge the Grantee, of ſomething wherewith he was charged or chargeable before, and whereof he is now hereby diſcharged.

3. Things neceſſarily requiſite to every good grant.

Regularly theſe things are requiſite in every good grant or gift. 1. That there be a Grantor, Donor, &c. and that he be a perſon able to grant, and not diſabled by any legall or naturall impediment. 2. That there be a Grantee, Donee, &c. and that he be a perſon capable of the thing granted, and not diſabled to receive it. 3. That there be a thing granted, and that the thing be ſuch a thing as is grantable. 4. That it be granted in that order and manner that Law requireth; as where the thing is not grantable without Deed, that it be done by Deed. And if it be by Deed, that the Deed have apt words to deſcribe and ſet forth the perſon of the Grantor, and Grantee, and thing granted, &c. and that all neceſſary circumſtances, as ſealing, and delivery, and livery of ſeiſin, and atturnement where it is needfull, bee obſerved. 5 That there be an agreement to, and acceptance of the grant or thing granted by him to whom it is made, and for default in either of theſe particulars a grant may be void: In acquirendo rerum dominio, ſcilicet quòd donationes non valent, licèt ſint inceptæ, niſi ſint perfectæ. But if grants be very ancient, and the things granted have been enjoyed according to the grant ever ſince the making of it; in this caſe the grant may be good, notwithſtanding ſome legall defect in ſome of theſe particulars. Co. 11. 73: Plow. 555. Perk. ſect. 1. Bro. Grant. 89.

4. What ſhall be ſaid a good and ſufficient grant, gift, or ſale. Or not. 1. For the manner of it. And what may be granted without Deed Or not. And how. Rents, Services &c.

Corporations, as Dean and Chapter, Major and Communalty, and ſuch like, regularly can neither grant Lands, Goods, or chattels, but it muſt be by Deed. But the Grantees of ſuch perſons, and all other common perſons may grant or give any thing which doth lie in livery, as Manors, Houſes, Lands, and ſuch like things in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, for years, or at will, by word without Deed. And if a Leaſe be made of any ſuch thing for life or years, with a remainder over in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life; it is good, albeit the ſame be done by word without any Deed in writing. Perk. ſect. 64. 4 H. 7. 17. Plow. 150. 16 H. 7. 3. Litt. ſect. 60.

Such things as are ſaid to lie in Grant & not in Livery, generally cannot be granted or given, had or taken without Deed unleſs it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes. And therefore Rents and ſervices, and ſuch like things which are in groſs, and not incident to ſome other thing, may not be granted without a Deed. And therefore if a Rent-Charge be granted unto me for years, I may not grant this Rent over without Deed. And if there be Lord and Tenant of errable Land by fealty, and the ſervice of yeelding the tenth ſheaf of Corn before it be ſowed; the Lord cannot grant this ſervice for years without Deed. But if a Rent, or any ſervice be parcell of, or incident to a manor or any other thing which is Grantable without Deed; in this caſe by the grant of the principall by word, this thing may paſs as belonging thereunto without any Deed. Alſo Rents or ſervices may be granted upon a partition by one coparcenor to another without Deed. Brownl. 1 part 40. Co. ſuper Lit. 49. Dyer. 139. Perk. ſect. 61. 60. 63. Brown. Grant 59.

Reverſion or Remainder.

A reverſion cannot be granted in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years without Deed, unleſs it be in caſe where it is parcell of a Manor. But a reverſion may be granted upon a partition by one coparcenor to another without any Deed. And the ſame Law is of a remainder. And therefore if one make a Leaſe for life or years to one, the Remainder in fee-ſimple, fee-taile, or for life, to another without deed, howſoever this be a good remainder in the firſt creation without deed, yet this remainder cannot be granted over without deed. Perk. Sect. 61. Dier. 174. Plow. 433. Bro. Grant. 104.

to

Advowſon, Tithes &c.

A Parſonage or Rectory, albeit it conſiſt of nothing but Tithes, and the like, beſides the Church and Church-yard, and it hath no houſe nor glebe belonging to it, yet may be granted without deed in fee-ſimple, for life, or years: and then the Tithes and offerings will paſſe as incident. But the Tithes alone, or a portion of Tithes, oblations, mortuaries, or obventions are not grantable by themſelves without deed. And therefore a leaſe paroll of Tithes, albeit it be but for years, is not good. And if the Parſon agree with one of his Pariſhioners, that he ſhall have his own Tithes; this is not a good grant of the Tithes, neither may it be pleaded or uſed ſo; but perhaps by way of agreement a Pariſhioner may retain his Tithes. And if a Leſſee for years of Tithes will grant it over to another at will only, it cannot be done without deed, as was held by Baron Denham, 2 Car. at Sarum Aſſiſes. And yet it is held that a Parſon may grant his Tithes from year to year to him that is to pay them without any Deed, but this is by way of retainer. But this grant or agreement muſt be made to and with the party himſelf that is to pay the Tithe, and not with another: neither can this intereſt bee aſſigned or a ſtranger take advantage of it, as hath been agreed in the caſe of Hawkes and Braſield, Paſch. 3. Jac. B. R. See Brownl. 1 part. 98: 2 part. 11. 15 H. 7. 8. 16 H. 7. 3. 19 H. 8. 12. 21 H. 6. 43. All this was agreed 36 El. B. R. 21. Jac. B. Mich. 8. Jac. Dr. Longworths caſe.

By way of Agreement Tithes may paſs for years without deed, but not by way ofleaſe without a deed; but a leaſe for one year may be of Tithes without a deed.

An Advowſon in groſſe cannot be granted without deed; yea the grantee of the grantee of an Advowſon is to ſhew both the deeds. But an Advowſon is grantable upon a partition between coparcenors without deed. And an Advowſon incident to a manor, or peece of Land is grantable with the manor or land without any deed. The next avoidance to a Church is not grantable without deed. Plow. 150. 9 Ed. 4. 47. 21. Ed. 3. 38. 11 H. 4. 3. Dier. 29. 10. Co. 11.

Common of Paſture &c.

Common of Paſture, of Eſtovers, turbary, Fiſhing, &c. cannot be granted in fee-ſimple, fee-tail, for life, or years, unleſſe it be in caſe of partition, or of appendancy as incident to ſome corporall thing without deed. And therefore if a man grant by word of mouth to me Common for twenty beaſts in his manor; this is not good. Neither if it be granted to me by deed, may I grant this over to another without deed.

But if a man have Common of Paſture appendant or appurtenant to his Land; in this caſe he may grant his Land with the Common appendant by word only without any deed. Franchiſes, as Fairs, Markets, Courts, Warrens, and the like, or the profits thereof are not grantable without deed. But it ſeems a Hundred is grantable without deed, for that is liberum tenementum. The profits of a Mill, County, Ferry, Corody, or the like, are not grantable without deed. Perk. Sect. 61. 15 H. 7. 8.

Franchiſes, and ſuchlikethings.

Things in action, as a right or title of action that doth only depend in action, and things of that nature, as rights and titles of entrie to any reall or perſonall thing are not grantable at all, but by way of releaſe to the tenant of the land &c. by which means it may be extinguiſhed: but this may not be neither without deed. And therefore if a man take my goods as a treſpaſſor, or I deliver him my goods to keep, and after I will give theſe goods to him; I cannot do this without deed. Brownl. 1 part. 40 6 H. 7. 9. Dier. 91. 126. Doct. & St. 16.

Things in action, &ſuch like things.

An election, Condition, covenant, aſſent, Licence, or liberty cannot be created and annexed to an eſtate of inheritance or freehold without deed. Dier. 281.

Offices.

A priviledge to hold Land for life without impeachment of waſt, is not grantable without deed. Offices for the moſt part are not grantable without deed. And yet ſome inferiour offices, as Stewardſhips, Bailiwicks, and the like are, for ſuch officers a Lord of a Manor may retain by word without deed. Co. 9. 9.

Chattels. Moſt Chattels reall and perſonall, may be given and granted without deed. And therefore if a man by word of mouth grant, give, or ſell me his Leaſe for years, the Wardſhip of body and Land, or the Wardſhip of Land that he hath by reaſon of a Tenure by Knights ſervice, or by grant from the King, or grant or ſell me the trees ſtanding upon his ground, the Corn growing upon his Land, his horſe, ſword, plate, or other houſhold-ſtuffe; this is a good grant or gift. But the Wardſhip of the body of an heir onely, cannot be granted without deed. So a next preſentation cannot be granted without deed. Perk. Sect. 57. 60. Bro. Done i. Dier. 370. 5 H. 7. 35. 36. Plow. 150,

What by the ſame deed. If one grant his reverſion of land to one, and by the ſame deed granteth a rent out of the ſame land to another, and delivereth the deed to both of them at one time; this is good, and ſhall enure firſt as a grant of the rent to one, and then as a grant of the reverſion to the other. Plow. 540.

If one convey Land to another, and the grantee by the ſame deed doth grant a rent or common to the grantor out of the ſame land conveyed; this is as good as if it were by another deed. Dier, 6.

By what words of grant. Dedi & Conceſſi be the moſt apt words for all kind of grants, yet it may be by other words, and the grant is good as by thoſe words. Co. ſuper Litt.

The beſt way in Grants is to grant by words of preſent time in the preſent tenſe as well as in the preterperfect tenſe. But a grant by words of the preterperfect tenſe only, as by Dedi & Conceſſi only without words of the preſent tenſe is good. 35 H. 6. 11.

2. In reſpect of the perſon of the grantor &c. and the naming of him. And who may be a grantor. And how. Touching this part two things are requiſite.

1. That the grantor be a perſon able.

2. That if the Grant be by Deed, that he be ſufficiently deſcribed and ſet forth eithe by his proper names, or elſe by ſome other matter of diſtinction. Note therefore that whoſoever may be a feoffor, may be a grantor. And any natural, politique, or corporate body (not prohibited by Law, as Monke, Frier, Woman covert, infant, and ſuch like) may be a grantor, donor &c. And the grants of ſuch perſons will be good. See Feoffment Numb. 4. Perk. Sect. 3.

Alien. An Alien may, and is able to grant or give any thing that he is capable of, to have or take by grant or gift.

Perſon attaint or outlawed. A perſon attainted of treaſon or felony may give or grant his land; and this is good againſt all others beſides the King, and the Lord of whom his Land is held. And he may grant or give his goods to relieve himſelf in priſon, and this will be good againſt all others, and the King and Lord alſo. A perſon outlawed in a perſonall Action may give or grant his goods or chattels, and the gift or grant will be good againſt all others but the King. Perk. Sect. 26.

Woman covert. The Queen may without the agreement of the King make grants, gifts &c. of her Lands or goods, but another woman that hath a husband cannot give, or grant her Lands or goods without her husbands conſent, unleſſe it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes:

And albeit ſhee doe recite by the deed that ſhe is ſole and not covert, yet this will not help. And if the caſe be ſo that by agreement between her and her husband there be a certain portion of her husbands Lands or goods allotted unto her to diſpoſe of, and manage at her pleaſure, yet ſhe alone without her husband can make no good grant or gift of any part of theſe Lands or goods. But if ſhe grant any thing by Fine, and the husband doe not avoid it during the coverture; this grant will binde her after his death. And if ſhe make a gift or grant of her husbands goods, it is thought this is not good untill her husband agree to it. Co. ſuper Litt. 3. Perk. Sect. 8. 20. 41.

An infant cannot make any gift or grant &c. that is good, but in ſpeciall caſes, for if he maketh any grant or gift that taketh effect by the delivery of the deed onely, as if he grant a rent-charge out of his land, or make a feoffment with a letter of Attorney to give livery of ſeiſin, or give or ſell his horſe, and the buyer or donee take him himſelfe; theſe are void ab initio. And if the grant, or gift take effect by the delivery of his own hand, as if hee make a feoffment and give livery of ſeiſin himſelfe, himſelfe, or ſell a horſe and deliver him with his owne hands; this is voidable by the Infant himſelfe, or others that ſhall have his right &c. But if an Infant grant any thing by Fine; this muſt be avoided during his minority, or elſe it cannot be avoided at all. 9 *H.*7. 24. 26 *H.*8. 2. Perk. Sect. 12, 13, 14. 19. 7 H. 4. 5: See cha. 2. Numb. 6.

All Grants that are made by Dureſſe, are voidable by the parties themſelves that make it, or others that have their eſtates &c. But if it be done by Fine, it is good and unavoidable. Perk. Sect. 16. Dureſſe.

All Gifts, Grants, &c. made by deed in the Country by thoſe that are de non ſane memorie are good againſt themſelves, but voidable by thoſe that are their heires, executors, or have their eſtate. But if it be by Fine, it is good and unavoidable. Co. 123. 124. See cap. 2. Number 6. Non ſane memorie.

A man that is borne dumbe, or dumbe and deafe, if he have underſtanding, may by delivery of the Deed and making of ſignes make a good Grant, Gift, &c. But a man that is borne deafe, dumbe and blind cannot. Perk. Sect. 25.

A Baſtard may give or grant as well as any other man, after he hath gotten a name by reputation. Perk. Sect. 26. Baſtard.

A Parſon may grant any thing belonging to his Parſonage for no longer time then for his owne life, and therein likewiſe but during his reſidency, albeit he have the conſent of the Patron and ordinary. See Leaſe. Parſon.

Neither the head without the members of a Corporation, nor the members without the head, as Dean without the Chapter, or Chapter without the Dean, may give or grant any of the Lands belonging to their Corporation. Perk. Sect. 31, 32. 33. Corporation.

One executor or Adminiſtrator may give or ſell any of the goods of the deceaſed, and this is good to bind all the reſt. See Executors. Executors.

What Grants Eccleſiaſticall perſons may make of their Eccleſiaſticall Lands, huſbands of the Lands of their wives, and tenants in taile of their Lands intailed, See in Leaſe.

The name of the perſons in Grants is ſet downe, only to diſtinguiſh perſons and to make the perſon intended certaine: and therefore howſoever it be beſt and moſt ſafe to deſcribe the perſon by his true and proper name of Baptiſme, and alſo by his Sirname, and if it be a Corporation, by the true name whereby the Corporation is made; yet miſtakes in this caſe unleſſe they be very groſſe, will not make void the grant. Miſnaming.

Nihil facit error nominis, cùm de corpore conſtat. And therefore if one that is a Baſtard hath gotten a name by reputation in the place where he doth live, or another man hath gotten another name by common eſteeme then his own right name, or is uſually called by another name then his true name in the place where he lives, in theſe caſes they may grant by this name, and the grant is good. And if a man be baptized by one name, and after be confirmed by another; ſome have ſaid he may grant by either of theſe names. Sed Quære. And if John at Stile grant by the name of W: at Stile; this grant is good. Et ſic de ſimilibus. Co 6. 36. on Lit. 3 Perk. Sect. 41. Co. ſuper Litt. 3. Perk. Sect. 39. Co. ſuper Litt. 3. And theſe grants are good, eſpecially when there is ſome other addition to make it more certain, as when a Duke, Marqueſs, Earle, or Biſhop, grant by their names of honour or dignity, and grant without any name, or with a falſe name of baptiſme, as when the Duke of Suffolke by the name of the Duke of Suffolke, without any more words, or by the name of William Duke of Suffolke, when his name is John, or the Biſhop of Norwich grant ſo; theſe are good grants, becauſe there is but one ſuch Duke, and one ſuch Biſhop within the kingdome. Fitz grant. 67. Perk. Sect. 42. So if a Deane and Chapter, Mayor and Communalty grant by the name of their Corporation without any addition of Chriſtian or Sirname; it is good. And eſpecially then alſo are theſe grants good, when the true name doth appear in ſome other part of the deed. Perk. Sect. 40. As when John at Stile reciteth by his deed that his name is John at Stile, and by the ſame deed doth grant by the name of Thomas at Stile, Or Alice at Stile reciting by her deed that ſhe is a feme covert when in truth ſhe is ſole.

But if an ordinary man grant by his Sirname only without any name of baptiſme, or by his name of baptiſme without any ſirname at all; in theſe and ſuch like caſes for the moſt part the grant will be void for incertainty, unleſſe there be ſome other matter in the deed to help it, or ſome matter done ex poſt-Facto to ſupply it; for in ſome caſes where the thing granted doth lie in livery, ſuch a miſtake or incertainty in the grant may be holpen by the livery of ſeiſin upon the deed afterwards. And ſo alſo it is in the names of Corporations: for if the variance and miſtake by omiſſion or alteration be only in ſome ſmall matter ſo as it is literall and verball only, the grant will not be hurt by it. But if the miſtake or omiſſion be in the ſubſtance of the name; the grant may be void by it. And therefore if Decanus & Capitulum eccleſiæ cathed' Sanctæ & individ. Trin. Caerlil. grant by the name of Decanus eccleſiæ cathed. Sanctæ Trin. in Caerlil. & totum capitulum eccleſiæ prædict. this is good: Et ſic de ſimilibus: for if the ſenſe doth ſtill remaine either expreſly or by neceſſary implication, and the deſcription be ſuch as doth import a ſufficient and certaine demonſtration of the true name of the Corporation according to the foundation thereof, it ſufficeth. But if any of the ſubſtance or eſſence of the name be omitted, contrà. And therefore if a Corporation incorporate by the name of Præpoſiti & collegii regalis coll. beate Mariæ de Eaton juxta Windſor, grant by the name of Præp' & ſociorum Colleg. regalis de Eaton &c. leaving out Collegium beatæ Mariæ; this grant is void. 3 H.6. 26. Perk. Sect. 38, 42. Co. 6. 65, 10. 122, 11, 19. Dier. 150. Co. 10. 124.

3. In reſpect of the grantee & the naming of him. And who may be a grantee &c. And how.

Touching this part, three things are requiſite. 1. That the grantee be a perſon capable. i. that he be a perſon in being at the time of the grant made, and not diſabled by any legall impediment to take by the grant. Co. ſuper Litt. 2, 3. Perk. Sect. 43. See infeoffment. cap 9. Numb. 4.

2. That if the grant be by deed, he grantee be ſufficiently named, or at the leaſt ſet forth and diſtinguiſhed by ſome circumſtantiall matter, and that he be ſo named or deſcribed, as that he may be capable by that name whereby he is ſet forth.

3. That he himſelf and not a ſtranger doe take by the ſame grant. Note therefore that all naturall and politique or corporate bodies that are not diſabled by law may be grantees. And all perſons that may be grantors may be grantees: And ſome others that cannot grant or give, yet may take or receive. And a grant made to one, two, three, or twenty ſuch perſons is good. A Grant of land or rent in poſſeſſion to the right heires of I. S, I. S. being then living is void, for there is nor can be any ſuch perſon in rerum natura, for no man can be an heire to another that is living. But ſuch a grant to one in remainder is good, if ſo be that I. S. die before the particular eſtate end and before the remainder happen. So if a grant be to him or her that ſhall be the firſt child of I. S. and he have no child at the time of the grant, this is void.

So if a grant be made to the wife or child of I. S. when there is none ſuch, it is void.

As if a grant be to I S, and to his firſt borne ſon, or to I. S. and her that ſhall be his wife, and he hath at the time of the grant neither wife nor ſon; in theſe caſes the grant is void as to the wife and ſon, and I. S. ſhall have all by the grant. Co 1. 101. Perk. Sect. 52, 54. Co. 2. 31.

Alien.

An Alien may be a grantee; but if any thing be granted unto him whereof he is uncapable, as any eſtate of lands in fee-ſimple, for life, or years, he cannot hold it, but the King will have it from him. Co. ſuper Litt. 2.

Pre rogative. Perſons attaint

A perſon attainted of treaſon or felony before or after attainder may be a grantee, but he cannot hold the thing granted; for if the King or Lord will he may have it from him. So alſo perſons outlawed in perſonall actions may be grantees of lands, or goods, but the King will have the profits of the Lands and property of the goods. Co. ſuper Litt. 2. Perk. Sect. 48.

Woman covert.

A woman covert may be a grantee; but her husband may by his diſagreement avoid the grant. And yet if he doe not avoid it in his life time, the grant will be good: and he that will have the grant to be void, muſt ſhew that the husband did diſagree to it. Perk. Sect. 43. Co. ſuper Litt. 2.

Infant.

An infant may be a grantee, for this is preſumed to be for his advantage.

And

And yet at his full age he may agree to it and perfect it, or diſagree to it and avoid it without any cauſe ſhewed, Perk. ſect. 4. Co. ſuper Lit. 2.

A man de non ſane memorie may be a Grantee as well as any other man, and it ſeems theſe grants cannot be afterwards avoided. But ſuch men may not be Grantees of Offices of truſt and ſuch like things. Co. Idem. Men de non ſane memorie.

A Baſtard, perſons deformed having humane ſhape, leapers, and ſuch like may be Grantees of Lands or Goods, &c. as other men may be. Co. Idem. Baſtard.

An Hermaphrodite may be a Grantee according to the moſt prevailing Sex. Co. Idem. Hermaphrodite.

A Clerk convict, and a man impriſoned may be a Grantee as well as any other. And ſo alſo may a villaine of the King or of a common perſon, but he cannot retain the thing granted, for the King or Lord may have it from him if he will. Clerk convict. Villaine.

But Monkes, Friers, and ſuch like perſons cannot be Grantees, for they are utterly diſabled. Co. ſuper Lit. 3. Perk. ſect. 48. 51.

Regularly it is requiſite that the Grantee be named by his names of Baptiſme and Sirname, and ſo it is moſt ſafe; and ſpeciall heed muſt be taken to the name of Baptiſme, for that a man cannot have two or more names of Baptiſme as he may of Sirnames. Co. ſuper Lit. 3. And yet in ſome caſes though the name be miſtaken, the grant is good. As if a grant be to I. S. and Em his wife and her name is Emelin, Bro. Noſme. 9. Or a grant is made to Afred Fitzjames by the name of Etheldred Fitzjames Bro. Confirmation. 30. Or a grant be to Robert Earle of Penbrooke where his name is Henry; or to George Biſhop of Norwich where his name is John; Co. 6. 65. 27 E. 3. 85. Or a grant be to a Mayor and Communalty, or a Deane and Chapter, and Mayor or Deane is not named by his proper name, Co. ſuper Lit. 3. Or a grant be to I. S. wife of W. S. where ſhe is ſole; all theſe and ſuch like grants are good, for in this caſe the rule doth hold, utile per inutile non vitiatur. Dyer 119. And if one be baptized by one name, and after confirmed by another; yet a grant to him by his firſt is good, Co. ſuper Lit. 3. And ſo alſo ſome think of a grant to him by his ſecond name. Sed Quære of this. Alſo when a Baſtard hath gotten a name by reputation, a grant may be made to him by that name, and it is good. Miſnaming or not naming.

If a grant be made to W. at Stile by the name of W. at Gappe; this is a good grant notwithſtanding this miſtake. 9 E. 4. 43. Fitz. Grant 23.

But where a grant doth intend to deſcribe the perſon of the Grantee by his proper name and doth omit or miſtake his Chriſtian name or ſirname; in this caſe for the moſt part the grant is void unleſs there be ſome ſpeciall matter to help it, as in the caſes before. And yet if the grant doe not intend to deſcribe the Grantee by his known name, but by ſome other matter, there it may be good by a certain deſcription of the perſon without either ſirname or name of Baptiſm. And therefore a grant to the wife of I. S. or primogenito filio, or to the ſecond ſon, or to the youngeſt ſon, or Seniori puero, or omnibus filiis, or filiabus I. S. or omnibus liberis I. S. or omnibus exitibus I S. or to the right Heirs of I. S. or to the next of bloud of I. S. in theſe caſes grants made to theſe perſons in theſe words are good, for the perſon is certainly enough deſcribed. And if a Leaſe be made to I. S. for life, the remainder to him that ſhall come firſt to Pauls ſuch a day, or to him that I. S. ſhall name in three daies; if in theſe caſes any one doe come to Pauls that day, or be named by I. S. within three daies, and the particular eſtate doth ſo long continue; this is a good grant of the remainder, Id certum eſt quod certum reddi poteſt. But if a grant be made in theſe words, viz. Incertainty.

To foure of the pariſhoners of Dale; or Deo & eccleſiæ de D. or to two of the ſons of I. S. and he hath many ſons; or to I. S. or W. S. in the disjunctive; theſe and ſuch like Grants as theſe are utterly void for incertainty.

And if a gift or grant of goods be to the pariſhioners of Dale in theſe words; it ſeems this is good; but if a grant or gift of Land be made to them by theſe words, it ſeems this is void. And ſo alſo it is of a grant of goods to the Churchwardens of a pariſh, this is held to be good: but otherwiſe it is of a grant of Land to them. A baſtard is capable by that name whereby he is uſually called, and therefore a grant to him by that name is good. And a right heire, or one that ſhall be the firſt iſſue of I. S. that hath no child, is capable of a remainder by that name, but of Land in poſſeſſion he is not capable by that name. And a baſtard as the reputed Son of I. S. may take by a grant to I. S. and his iſſue. A Biſhop may take by the name of a Biſhop without any other name. But if a grant be made to the pariſhioners or inhabitants of Dale, or probis hominibus de Dale, or to the commoners of ſuch a waſt, or to the Lord and his Tenants bond and free; theſe are not good grants; for albeit theſe perſons are capable, yet are they not capable by theſe names.

If a Grant be to Chriſts Church in Oxford, this is good to the Corporation albeit the name of the Corporation be Eccleſia Chriſti in Univerſitate Oxford. Co. ſuper Lit. 3. Perk. ſect. 54. Bro. Grant 65. Done 17. Dyer 337. Perk. ſect. 55. 56. Bro. Don. 31. Grant. 172. Done 50. Fitz. Done. Perk. Sect. 55. 52.

If there be two Grantees and one of them doe take by the Deed it is ſufficient, but if the grant be to one that is no party to the Deed and not to the Grantee himſelf; in this caſe albeit the Grantee and he to whom the grant is made be capable and never ſo well deſcribed by their names yet is the grant void, for no grant can be made but to him that is party to the Deed, except it be by way of remainder.

And therefore if a man make a leaſe for term of life, and after the Leſſor grant to a ſtranger that the Tenant for life ſhall have the Land to him and his Heirs; this Grant is void. Et ſic de ſimilibus. And yet it ſeems in ſome caſes if one of the grantees be party to the Deed that another Grantee that is no party to the Deed may take with him. And therefore the caſe was: Robert gave the reverſion of Lands which Agnes his Wife did hold for her life to Stephan de la More, Habendum poſt mortem dictæ Agnetis in liberum maritagium cum Johanna filia ejuſdem Roberti; in this caſe it was adjudged that albeit Joane were not named before the Habendum, yet that ſhe ſhould take in Tail with her Husband: Doct. & Stud. 94. Co. 1. 15, ſuper Lit. 231. New Terms of the Law. 251. 252: 5 E. 3. 17. Co. ſuper Lit. 21.

4. In reſpect of matter touching the thing granted, charged, &c.

Touching this point theſe things are requiſite.

1. That the thing whereof the grant is made be grantable, and that both in reſpect of the nature of the thing it ſelf, and alſo of his eſtate that doth grant it, for in ſome caſes albeit the thing for the quality of it be grantable, yet in reſpect of the eſtate and property that the owner hath in it, it is not grantable.

2: That if it be by Deed, it be ſufficiently diſtinguiſhed and named.

1. In reſpect of the nature of the thing granted. And what things are grantable over or chargeable. Or not.

Amongſt things that are grantable ſome are grantable de novo and in their firſt creation, but not tranſmiſſible nor aſſignable afterwards. And ſome are grantable at firſt in their originall creation, and aſſignable over afterwards from man to man in infinitum.

All things that may be granted by Fine and whereof a fine may be levied, may be granted over from man to man. See Fine Numb. 6. part. 3. See in expoſition of the Termes of Grants ſupra, cap. 5 Numb. 15. Bro. Done 10.

1. In reſpect of the nature of the thing it ſelfe.

All the things that are before obſerved to be grantable by or without Deed, are grantable over from man to man. And therefore all corporal and immoveable things that lie in livery, as Manors, Meſſuages, Cottages, Lands, Meadowes, Paſtures, Woods and the like are grantable in Fee-ſimple, for life, or years at firſt and aſſignable over again at the pleaſure of the Grantee. Alſo trees, and Emblements are grantable. And a man may grant the veſture or herbage, i. the graſs of his ground and not the ground it ſelf. And a man that is ſeiſed in Fee of a houſe may give or ſell the timber, ſtone, &c. of the houſe, and the Donee or Grantee may take it after the death of the Donor. Alſo all incorporeall things that lie in Grant, as Rents, ſervices and the like, are grantable over in Fee-ſimple, for life, or years, and therefore Rents or ſervices reſerved upon any eſtate and Rents granted out of Lands are grantable over in infinitum. And if a man have a Rent reſerved on a particular eſtate, he may grant over parcell of it. But a Rent or Service ſuſpended cannot be granted. Neither can a man grant a Rent iſſuing out of a Rent. If a Rent be granted to me, I may grant it over to a ſtranger before I be ſeiſed of it; and this grant is void.

Rents, Services,

But

But an Annuity it ſeemes is not grantable over after the firſt creation of it. And yet if an Annuity be granted to I. S. and his aſſignes pro conſilio; it ſeemes this Annuity is grantable over. Advowſons are grantable in fee-ſimple, for life, or years, from man to man in infinitum. Alſo the preſentation to a Church before the Church is void is grantable; but when the Church is void, that Turne is not grantable, for it is then in the nature of a thing in Action. Alſo Rectories, and tithes, and portions of tithes, and penſions are grantable from man to man in infinitum. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 7. Perk. ſect. 90.

Reverſions and Remainders are grantable from man to man in fee-ſimple, fee-tail, for life or years. And if I have a tenant for life of three houſes; I may grant the reverſion of two of them. And if I have the reverſion of three houſes and four acres of land; I may grant the reverſion of two houſes and of two acres of land. And if tenant in taile be of an acre of land the remainder to his right heires, he may grant over this remainder by it ſelf; and yet it is ſuch a thing as the tenant in taile himſelf may bar by a common recovery. But if a grant be of land to I. S. for years the remainder to the right heires I. D. and I. D is living; this remainder is not grantable ſo long as I D, doth live. Perk. ſect. 73. 88. 87. Reverſions & Remainders.

Commons, of paſture, of turbary of fiſhing, of eſtovers, are grantable in fee, for life or years, from man to man in infinitum. And yet if a common in groſs and without number be granted to a man and his heires; it ſeemes this is not grantable over to another man. But if common for a certain number of beaſts be ſo granted, it ſeemes the law is otherwiſe, and that this is grantable over in caſe where the firſt grant is to the grantee only, and not the grantee and his aſſignes. See Brownl: 1 part 32. 42. 43. 2 part. 226 227. Perk. ſect. 103. Per 2 Judges againſt one Hil. 16. Jac. B. R.

Offices are grantable at firſt; but the great Judiciall Offices of the Kingdome, as the Offices of the Lord Keeper, Chiefe Juſtices, or chiefe Baron, or of other of the Juſtices or Barons, and ſuch like, are not grantable over to others, neither may they be Executed by deputies. But the Sheriffes office albeit it be not grantable over, yet may it be executed by deputy. Perk ſect. 101. The reverſion of an office is not grantable by a Subject as it is by the King, yet a Subject may grant an office Habendum after the death of the preſent officer; and this is good. Per Lord Keeper & 2 Chief Juſt. M. 5, Car. in cancellaria. Co. ſuper Litt. 233. Perk ſect. 101. The inferior offices alſo that are offices of truſt, eſpecially if they concern the perſon of the grantor, howſoever they are grantable at firſt, yet are they not grantable over by the officer to any other, unleſſe they be granted to them and their aſſignes: and of this ſort are the offices of Steward, Bailife, Receiver, Sewer, Chamberlaine, Carver, and the like: neither may theſe be executed by deputy, but where the grant is ſo. Offices. Prerogative.

Licences, and authorities are grantable at firſt for the lives of the parties, or for years. But the grantees of them cannot aſſigne them over. And therefore if power be given to me to make an award or livery of ſeiſin; I may not grant over this power to another. And if licence be granted me to walke in another mans garden, or to goe through another mans ground; I may not give or grant this to another: 12 E. 7. 25. 13 H. 7. 13. Licences, Authorities, &c.

A bare poſſibility of an intereſt which is incertaine, is not grantable. And therefore if one have a terme of years in land, and by his will deviſe it to I. S. for his life; and afterwards to me for the reſidue of the yeares; or deviſe it to I. S. if he live ſo long as the terme ſhall laſt, and if he die before the Terme end the remainder to me; in theſe caſes ſo long as I. S. doth live, I cannot grant over this poſſibility. So if a leaſe be made to me and my wife for life, the remainder to the ſurvivor of us; I may not grant this remainder over to another man. But ſuch a poſſibility being coupled with ſome preſent intereſt is grantable over. And therefore if A. have foure houſes in execution upon a ſtatute, and by courſe of time it will endure thirteen years, and after two of the houſes are evicted by Elegit for fifteen years; in this caſe he that hath this execution upon the ſtatute may aſſigne over his intereſt in theſe two houſes, for after the execution by the Elegit is ſatisfied, A. ſhall Poſſibilities.

have the two houſes againe untill he be ſatisfied. Co. 4. 66. 5. 24. Dier. 244. Co. 10. 51.

Incidents.

The Lord cannot grant the wardſhip of the heire of his tenant whiles the tenant is living. Perk. Sect. 50, Thoſe things that are inſeparably incident to others are not grantable without the thing to which they are ſo incident and belonging. And therefore a Court Baron which is evermore incident to a Manor is not grantable without the manor it ſelf: common appendant to land is not grantable without the land it ſelf to which it doth belong: and common of eſtovers appendant to a houſe is not grantable without the houſe it ſelf to which it doth belong. 1 E. 4. 10. Perk. Sect. 104. 5 H. 7. 7.

Suſpended things.

A rent, ſervice, or other thing whiles it is wholly in ſuſpenſe, is not grantable. And therefore if the Lord diſſeiſe the tenant, or the tenant enfeoffe the Lord upon condition; the Lord cannot grant over the Seigniory during this ſuſpenſion. But if one have a rent in fee out of my land, and he purchaſe the ſame land for life or years; in this caſe it ſeemes the rent is grantable, even whiles the eſtate of the land doth continue. So if the tenant make a leaſe for years or life of the tenancy to the Lord; in this caſe the Lord may grant the Seigniory notwithſtanding. And yet if the tenant make a leaſe to another man for life, and the Lord grant the Seigniory to this tenant for life in fee; in this caſe it ſeemes the grantee of the Seigniory cannot grant it over, becauſe it was never in eſſe, 16 H. 7. 4. Co. ſuper Litt. 314. Bro. Grant. 173. Perk. Sect. 88, 89.

Franchiſes.

Franchiſes, as views of Frank pledge, Perquiſites of Courts, Leets, Conuſance of Pleas, Faires, Markets, goods of felons, waiſes, eſtrayes, Hundreds, Ferries, or Paſſages, Warrens, and the like, are grantable over from man to man in fee, for life or years, in infinitum.

Things in action.

Things in action, and things of that nature, as cauſes of ſuit, rights and titles of entry are not grantabl over to ſtrangers but in ſpecial caſes, nor is a Judgment aſſignable. Brownl. 1. part. 33. And therefore if a man have diſſeiſed me of my land or taken away my goods; I may not grant over this land or theſe goods untill I have ſeiſin of them againe. Neither can I grant the Suit which the law doth give to me for my reliefe in the caſes to another man. So if I make a feoffment to another man on condition that if I doe ſuch a thing I ſhall have the land againe; in this caſe I may not before or after the time of performance of the condition, grant over the condition to another. But all theſe things I may releaſe to the parties themſelves, for it is a maxime in law, that every right title, or intereſt in præſenti or in futuro by the joint act of all them that may claime any ſuch right, title or intereſt, may be barred or extinguiſhed: Co. 5. 24. 10. 48. Co. ſuper Lit. 214. Dier. 244. Perk. Sect. 86, 87. 85. Bro. Done. 27 24, 48. Co. 6. 50. And in ſome caſes a grantee of a reverſion may take advantage of a condition annexed to an eſtate for life or years. If a man owe me money on an obligation, or the like; I cannot grant this debt to another: but I may grant a letter of atturney to another man to ſue for it and receive it, or I may grant the writing it ſelf to another, and he may cancell it or give it to the obligor. See Condition Co. ſuper 232. Perk. Sect. 86. A preſentation to a Church after the Church is become void is not grantable, for it is in the nature of a thing in action. Dier. 283. And if a man take my goods from me, or from another man in whoſe hands they are, or I buy goods of another man and ſuffer them in his poſſeſſion and a ſtranger taketh them from him; it ſeemes in theſe caſes I may give the goods to the treſpaſſor, becauſe the property of them is ſtill in me. Perk. Sect. 92 Fitz. Done. 3. 7.

Perſonall things.

Truſts and confidences which are perſonall things for the moſt part, are not grantable over to others. And hence it is alſo that offices of truſt and confidence are not grantabl over but in ſome ſpecial caſes where they are granted to a man and his aſſigns or where they are granted to a man and his heirs, Perk. 99. Pl. 379. And hence it is alſo that a Wardſhip by reaſon of a terme in ſocage, which by the law is given to the next of kin, is not grantabl over to any other perſon by the Gardian in Socage. Plow. 293.

Entire things.

Some things are ſo entire, that they cannot be ſevered by grant. And therefore if a man hold three acres of land of me by twelve pence rent, and I grant the ſervices of the third Acre; this is void, and he ſhall have all or none, for I cannot ſever the tenure: But if a man hold land of me by homage, fealty, eſcuage, and a certain rent; in this caſe I may grant the rent & keep the ſeigniory. Fitz. Grant. 19. 76

A villaine is grantable for life, or years; and if the villaine during the eſtate of the grantee purchaſe land in fee, the grantee ſhall have it for ever as a Perquiſite, albeit he have but an eſtate for life in the villaine it ſelfe. Perk. Sect. 94. Villaines.

All chattels reall and perſonall regularly are grantable from man to man in infinitum, as leaſes for years be they preſent or future, wardſhips of tenants in Capite, or by Knights ſervice, trees, Oxen, horſes, plate, houſholdſtuffe, and the like. Alſo trees, graſſe and corne growing and ſtanding upon the ground, fruit upon the trees, wooll upon the ſheeps back is grantable. Dier 58. Plow. 142. 147. Perk. Sect. 91. Dier. 305. Perk. Sect. 90. Chattells reall and perſonall.

If a man ſell me ten load of wood in his wood to be taken by his aſſignment; or ſell me three acres of wood towards the north-ſide of the wood; by this grant in theſe words, I have ſuch an intereſt as is grantable over. If I make a leaſe by deed of a houſe to another, and therein it is agreed between us, that if the rent be not paid me by ſuch a time I ſhall enter into the houſe and take and ſell the goods there as mine own to pay the rent; it ſeemes this is a good grant of the goods and that I may doe according to the agreement. And if one that doth hold land of me, grant to me by deed indented that I ſhal diſtrain for my ſervice in all his land, this is a good grant. Co. 5. 24. Fitz. Bar. 280. Diſtreſſe.

A man may give or grant money, As if I, deliver one mony on condition that if he aſſure me of ſuch land he ſhall have it, otherwiſe that he ſhall redeliver it to me again, in this caſe if he make the aſſurance he ſhall have the mony, If not, I may have an accompt for it. Fitz. Grant. 6: Fitz. Done. 11. Money.

Such things as are feræ naturæ, as Conies, Hares, Deere, and ſuch like, are not grantable at all. Bro. Done. 34. Ferænaturæ.

A Parſon of a church may grant his tithes for years, and yet they are not in him. Perk. ſect. 90 Tithes.

A man may give or grant his Deeds, i. the parchment, paper and wax to another at his pleaſure, and the Grantee may keep or cancel them. And therefore if a man have an obligation, he may give or grant it away and ſo ſever the Debt and it. So Tenant in Fee-ſimple may give or grant away the Deeds of his Land, and the Executor in the firſt caſe, and the heir in the laſt caſe hath no remedy. But a Tenant in Tail of Land cannot give or grant any of the Deeds belonging to the Land intailed no more then the land it ſelfe. One may give or grant Apparell, and it is ſaid if one make apparell for another, and put it upon him to uſe and weare; this is a gift or grant of the apparell it ſelf. Co. ſuper Litt 232. Trin 38. *El. If one grant to another all the wooll of his ſheep for ſeven years; this is a good grant. Perk. Sect. 90. Wooll.

If one being a Parſon give to another all the wooll he ſhall have for tithe the next year; this is a good grant. Fitz Grant. 40.

If one grant to another his horſe or his cow in the disjunctive; this is a good grant notwithſtanding this incertainty, and the donee ſhall have election, and by that make the grant good. See Certainty. Bro. Done. 19. Incertainty.

Any eſtate that a man hath in fee-ſimple, fee-taile, for life, or years in any Lands &c. or any rent, or profit apprender out of the ſame is grantable from man to man in infinitum. And he that hath any ſuch eſtate of any lands may charge it with any rent or profit to be taken out of it as long as the eſtate of the land doth laſt. But an eſtate at will is not grantable over. And if an eſtate be made to a man and his heires without the word Aſſignes, yet he may aſſigne it at his pleaſure, for Aſſignes is included within Heires. 2. In reſpect of the eſtate, property and poſſeſſion of the grantor.

An Intereſſe termini, i. a leaſe for years to commence in futuro is grantable before the terme doth begin, whether it be a leaſe of the land it ſelf, or any rent or other profit out of it. 22 E. 4. 37. Perk. Sect. 91.

The intereſt or eſtate that a man hath by extent, is aſſignable from man to man at pleaſure. Co. 4. 64.

The reverſion upon an eſtate taile is grantable. And yet the tenant in taile in poſſeſſion by the ſuffering of a common recovery may bar him in reverſion of any fruit of it. Co. 6 S. Geo. Curſons caſe Co. 1. Altonwoods caſe.

If an eſtate be made of land upon condition, as if A. make a feoffment to B. on condition that if A. pay twenty pound he ſhall have the land againe: in this caſe A. and B. together may at any time before the performance of the condition joine together and grant this land, or charge it with any rent &c. and this will be good, for it is a maxime in law, Fee-ſimple land may be charged one way or other. And in this caſe B. may grant over his eſtate alone, but it will be ſubject to the condition. And if B. grant a rent out of the land to a ſtranger, and after the condition is performed and the feoffor enter; in this caſe he ſhall avoid the rent. But in this caſe A. cannot grant, for he hath nothing but a poſſibility. If one enfeoffe divers to the uſe of his ſon and heire upon condition and before the time of performance of the condition the father and ſon joine to grant or charge the land, this is a good grant or charge. Co. 1. 147. 10. 48, 49. Lit. chap. Confirmation. Co. 1. 147.

If the tenant in taile and he that is next in remainder in fee joine in the grant of a rent charge in fee, and after the tenant in taile doth die without iſſue; in this caſe this is a good grant and charge againſt him in remainder. And if A. doth bargaine and ſell land to B. by indenture and before inrolment they doe joine to grant a rent charge to C. by deed; in this caſe this is a good charge and grant whether there be any inrolment or not. And ſo if donor and donee in taile grant a rent charge out of the land, and then the donee die without iſſue; in this caſe the grant is good to bind the donor. Co, ſuper Litt. 45. Co. 10. 48. 49.

If Land be granted to two men & to the Heirs of their two bodies begotten; in this caſe albeit they have ſeverall inheritances after their death, yet neither of them can grant away his eſtate after his life, for they are divided only in ſuppoſition of law. Co. ſuper Litt: 182.

A leaſe is made to the Father during his life and the lives of 2. of his ſones, in this caſe, this leaſe ſhall continue after the death of the father, and the father may aſſigne away all the eſtate. Goldsb. 387.

If one grant me a hundred Coards of wood to be taken by his Aſſignement; it ſeems before Aſſignement I may not grant away this wood over to another. Goldsb. 184. And if the grantee dye before Aſſignement, the grant is void, and his executors ſhall not have it.

One Coparcener of a ſeigniory may grant his part to a ſtranger.

If two Jointenants be of a plow land, and one of them doth grant to a ſtranger common of paſture for beaſts without number to be taken in the ſame land; this is void. Perk. Sect. 73. Perk. Sect. 103.

Iointenants. If two Jointenants be of a reverſion, and one of them grant the whol, this is void for a moity. If a man grant, or charge that which is none of his, and that wherein he hath no property, it being in the grantee or a ſtranger; the grant is void. And therefore if a man grant a rent charge out of the Manor of Dale, or grant a reverſion of land, and in truth the grantor hath nothing in the manor of Dale, or in the land, in this caſe the grant is void. And albeit the grantor doe afterward purchaſe the Manor, or the land, yet this will not make the grant good. But if the grant be by Fine, or by indenture, there in ſome caſes it ſhall be good by way of Eſtoppell. And Eſtoppell. in this caſe albeit the party recite that it is his owne, yet this will not mend the caſes.

And therefore if a man recite that he hath a rent of ten pound a year, and then grant five pound a yeare parcell of it; in this caſe if he have no ſuch rent, the grant is void: Perk. Sect. 80. Perk. Sect. 65. Dier. 12. 33.

Servant. A Shepherd, Bailif, or Parker cannot give or grant away the goods of his maſter without authority. And yet it ſeemes the ſervant of a Taverner or Mercer may give or grant his Maſters Wine or Wares. And if a wife give or grant the goods of her husband; this is a good gift or grant untill the husband diſagree to it, and by his Husband and Wife. agreement it is made good for ever: Bro. Done. 56. 4.

If a man have a leaſe for years of land, and make a leaſe for life of it or charge it for longer time then the leaſe for years doth laſt; in this the grant is good good for ſo long as the Leaſe for years doth laſt, and no longer. But if he make a Leaſe for life and give livery of ſeiſin, he doth forfeit his eſtate. Plow. 525.

Regularly a man cannot grant, or charge that which is not in his own poſſeſſion albeit he have a right to it. And therefore if a man be diſſeiſed of his Land, and before he hath entred into or recovered the land he doth grant or give the land or his right to the Land to a ſtranger, or grant a rent charge out of the Land to a ſtranger; in theſe caſes the grants are not good. And yet ſuch grants by fine may be good by way of Eſtoppell. And by a releaſe alſo the right may be extinct. But if one that hath a reverſion upon an eſtate for life, and he grant a rent iſſuing out of this Land; in this caſe the grant is good, and the charge ſhall faſten upon the Land after the eſtate of the Tenant for life is ended. And if a man grant Common, or Rent, notwithſtanding that a ſtranger take the Rent or uſe the Common at the time of the Grant, yet this grant is good, for a man cannot be out of poſſeſſion of theſe things but at his pleaſure. And if a Leaſe for years be made to me: I may grant away my eſtate before my entry: And if the Leaſe be to begin at a day to come; I may aſſign over my intereſt before the day come, for in this caſe the intereſt is in me from the time of making of the leaſe. Alſo I may give or ſell my goods that I have not in poſſeſſion, and therefore if a man take my goods out of mine or another mans poſſeſſion; I may afterward give or grant theſe goods to him or another man, and this grant or gift is good. *Perk. Eſtoppell.

A Leſſor cannot give or grant the trees growing on the ground of his Leſſee for life or years without the licence of the Leſſee, except they be firſt cut down by the Leſſee or ſome other, for then he may. And if there be leſſee for life, and the Leſſor give the trees growing on the ground, and after the Leſſee for life dieth; in this caſe the Donee cannot take them, for that at the time of the gift a property of them was in the Leſſee. But if a Tenant in Fee-ſimple give or grant the houſes ſtanding, or trees growing on the ground he hath in his poſſeſſion; in this caſe the Grantee or Donee may take them after the death of the grantor, and that albeit they be not cut or taken down before his death. And yet if the Tenant in Tail give or grant the trees grown upon his intailed Land, and the Donor die before the trees be cut; in this caſe the Donee or Grantee cannot cut them afterwards. Howbeit if ſuch a Tenant in Tail give or grant his emblements of Corn growing on the ground, the Donee may cut and take them after the death of the Tenant in Tail. And if the Tenant in Tail give or grant his trees, and die before they be cut, and afterwards before the iſſue in Tail enter into the Land the Donee or Grantee cut them and take them away, in this caſe the iſſue in Tail can bring no action of treſpaſs againſt the Donee or Grantee for the trees. But perhaps if the trees be not removed off the ground, he may take them.

Tenant for life. Trees.

Tenant in Tail.

Emblements.

If two Coparceners be of an advowſon, and the one doth preſent, and then he doth grant the next preſentation: this is a good grant: but by this grant doth not paſs the next he hath to grant, for his companion muſt have the next. So if one be ſeiſed in Fee of an advowſon, and he hath a wife, and he grant the third preſentation; this is a good grant: but it ſhall be taken for the third: he may grant what is the fourth, for the wife is to have the third for her dower, Dyer 35. 15 H. 7.

Preſentation.

If a man have granted a thing once, he cannot afterwards grant it again. And therefore if a man give or grant me a horſe firſt by word of mouth, & after grant him to me by Deed; this ſecond grant is void, and therefore if there be any fault in this grant in writing, it is not material. And if a man grant to me common of paſture without number in his ground, and after make the like grant to another; this ſecond grant is void as to me, albeit it be good againſt the Grantor. And if one grant the next preſentation to a Church after the death of the preſent Incumbent, and after grant the ſame to another; or make a Leaſe of Land to one for ten years, and after make a Leaſe of the ſame Land to another for the ſame ten years; or give a horſe to one, and after give the ſame horſe to another; in all theſe caſes the ſecond grant is void. But if the firſt grant or gift be only of part of the thing granted afterwards,

3. In reſpect of a former grant of the ſame thing.

or of part of the time onely, the ſecond grant will be good for the overplus: And therefore if one be ſeiſed of a manor and demiſe ten acres of the demeſne to ten years, and after demiſe the whole Manor to another for twenty years; this is a good grant for the overplus of the Manor beſides the ten acres, preſently, and for the whole Manor for the laſt ten years.

So if the ſecond grant be to begin after the firſt is determined; it is good. And if the ſecond be ſuch as may be ſatisfied and not impeach the former, both ſhall ſtand good. And therefore if one that hath an Advowſon grant the next preſentation to one, and after he doth grant the next Preſentation to another, and doth not ſay [after the death of the Incumbent;] in this caſe the ſecond grant is good, and the Grantee thereby ſhall have the ſecond avoidance after the death of the preſent Incumbent. *Perk. ſect. 4. In reſpect of naming or deſcription of the thing granted. Miſnaming or Miſrecitall.

By the grant of an acre of Land or of any other thing by the name whereby it is called the reverſion of that thing, if the grantor have no more but a reverſion, will paſs, and this miſtake will not hurt. But it is not ſo è converſo. And yet ſome have ſaid, if one grant a thing in poſſeſſion, by the name of the reverſion of the thing, this is good to paſs the poſſeſſion. Quod non eſt lex. For if one make a leaſe for years, and before the Leſſee enter, the Leſſor grant the Land by the name of the reverſion or the Land; this grant is void. If one make a Leaſe for life of the Demeſnes of a Manor rendring Rent, and after he doth grant the Manor by the name of the Manor; this is a good grant for the reverſion of the Demeſns as wel as for the reſidue of the Manor. But if one grant common by the name of the reverſion of the common, it ſeems this is not good. And yet if one have common and grant it for life, and during that eſtate he doth grant the Common by the name of totam illam Communiam ſuam, &c. ſome doe hold this grant to be good, See Brownl. 1 part 30. 42, 84. 184 Co. 4. 122. Perk Sect, 114. 116 Co. 10. 106. 107. 11. 47. Plow. 190 Co. ſuper Litt. 46. See alſo Co. 2 in Lanes Caſe, *which doth ſeem to warrant this opinion alſo. Any thing may be granted by the name whereby it is and hath been uſually called of latter times within nine or ten years or thereabouts, albeit it be an improper name, and not the ancient name of the thing, but a name newly gotten. And ſo a Manor may paſs by the name of a meſſuage or Farm, or a Farme or Manor by the name of a meſſuage if it be ſo uſually called & reputed. So the great houſes in London called Exceter and Dorſet houſes may be granted by thoſe names, And if a man grant that which in deed is a paſture ground, by the name of a wood; Or grant that which in deed is a wood by the name of a paſture ground, & the things are called by thoſe names; theſe are good grants of thoſe things. And if one grant by the name of a great field that which in Deed is but a little cloſe, but it is uſually called by the name of a great field, this is a good grant of this thing. So if one grant by the name of a plow land that which in truth is but an acre of Land or grant by the name of a Manor that which is but a plow Land; theſe grants are good. And ſo as it ſeems, it is è converſo. But if a man grant a houſe, or a meſſuage; by this grant, an acre of of Land will not paſs. Co 6. 65. 45 E. 3. 6. Bro. grant. 7. Perk. ſect. 116. 14 H. 8. 1. 27 H. 6. 2.

If a man make a Leaſe of one houſe to another for years, and the Leſſee divide it and make two houſes of it, and after the Leſſor doth grant the reverſion of it by the name of one houſe; this is a good grant to paſs it. And if one Leaſe three houſes to three ſeverall men at ſeverall times, and they divide them into twenty nine Tenements and houſholds in them all; and the firſt Leſſor doth grant them by the name of three meſſuages: this is a good grant to paſs them all. But if he grant by the name of fifteen meſſuages or Tenements only: it ſeems this is good for no more but for fifteen of the ſubdivided Tenements.

If one recite that he hath a Rent charge iſſuing out of black acre and white acre, and then grant the ſame Rent, and in truth it doth iſſue out of black acre only: or if he do recite that it doth iſſue out of one acre when in truth it doth iſſue

If one be Patron of the Church of S. Peter and Paul in D. and he grant the next Preſentation of the Church of S. Peter, or of the Church of S. Paul : theſe are void grants to paſs the Preſentation, Bro. Grant 12.

If one grant a Rent out of white acre by the name of a Rent out of black acre, this grant is void as to charge white acre. Perk. ſect 79. Per Ch. Juſtice Hutton & Yelverton, Co. B. Mic. 3. Car. in the caſe of Edward Crew.

If one have a Manor called Steeple Lavington, and he grant it by the name of weſt Lavington alias Steeple Lavington by the [alias] eſpecially if the grant ſay [lying in Lavington] and the Manor of Steeple Lavington doth lie in that pariſh, and the grantor hath no other Land there.

If one grant all his Lands which he hath in D in this mannor, [All my Lands in D which I had of the grant of I. S ;] this is a good grant of all his Lands in D. albeit he had them not of the grant of I. S. but of the grant of another. But if the words be [all my Lands which I had by the grant of I, S. in D.] in this caſe the grant is not good to cary any other Lands in D. but ſuch as he had of the grant of I. S. So if one grant in this manner [all my Manor of Sale in Dale which I had by deſcent] and in truth he had it not by deſcent but by purchaſe ; this is a good grant of the manor. So if one grant all his Lands in Dale, and ſay no more ; this is a good grant to paſs all his Lands there.

But if one grant in this manner, [all my Lands in Dale which I had by deſcent from my father,] and in truth I had them not by deſcent but by purchaſe, this grant is void and will not paſs thoſe Lands. So if I grant in this manner [all my Lands that I had by the attainder of I. S.] and in truth I had no Land by that means, this grant is void. And if I grant after this manner [all my Lands in B in the tenure of D which I had of the gift of I. S.] and in truth it doth lie in B and is in the Tenure of D but it was not purchaſed of I. S ; this is a good grant to paſs the Land, Mic. 2 Jac. in Brownes caſe *agreed. If a pariſh lie in two Counties, viz. Berk and Wilts, and one grant in this manner [all his cloſe called Callis in the pariſh of Hurſt in the county of Berk.] and in truth the cloſe doth lie in the county of Wilts ; this is a good grant to paſs the cloſe.

But if one grant in this manner [All his houſes in the pariſh of S. Butolphs extra Algate late in the tenure of R] where in truth he hath no houſes there, but he hath ſome houſes in S. Butolphs extra Alderſgate ; this is a void grant. And yet if the grant be in this manner [All that my houſe in the occupation of I. S. in S. Andrews pariſh] whereas in truth it is in the pariſh of K. but in the occupation of I. S, it ſeemes this grant is good to paſs the houſe. But if it be thus [All that my houſe in *S. If I grant all and ſingular my Lands in the Tenure of I. D. which I purchaſed of I. N. ſpecified in an Indenture of demiſe made to I N, and I have land wherein ſome of theſe references are true and the reſt falſe, and no land wherein they are all true ; in this caſe nothing paſſeth, as if I have land in the Tenure of I. S. and purchaſed of I. N. but not ſpecified in the Indenture to I. B. or if I have Land which I purchaſed of I. N. and ſpecified in the Indenture to I. B. but not in the Tenure of I. D. But if I have ſome Land wherein this is true, and ſome wherein part of them are true, and part falſe, then doe they paſs thoſe wherein all the circumſtances are true.

If one grant in this manner [my manor of Dale which appeareth by Office found to be of the value of Ten pound per Annum] and in truth in the Office it is found at twenty pound per Annum ; this grant is good notwithſtanding this miſpriſion. Hil. 2. Jac. B. R. per Tanfield.

If

If one grant in this manner [all my manor of W late parcell of the poſſeſſion of the Abbot of S. and late in the poſſeſſion of K,] and in truth it was never in the poſſeſſion of K, this grant is good notwithſtanding. But if the grant be thus [omnia illa, terras &c. in tenura I.S. jacen. in W. nuper prioratui de S, ſpectan.] and in truth the Land doth lie in S. and not in VV; this is no good grant to paſs the Lands in S. And if the Lands doe lie in VV. but are in the Tenure of I D. and not in the Tenure of I S, the grant is void to paſs the Lands in the occupation of I S, Paſc. 7 *Jac. If one purchaſe Land of I S in T and have no other Land there, and he grant his Land in T late the Land of R S or late the Land of S and miſtake or omit the chriſtian name; this grant is good notwithſtanding this miſtake. And ſo alſo it is where there is a blanck left for the chriſtian name. And if in this caſe he grant all his Land in T and ſay no more, this is a good grant to paſs the Land. And if one grant [all his Lands in D called N which were the Lands of I S] this is a good grant to paſs the Lands called N though they were never the Lands of I S. But if the grant be [of all his Lands in D which were the Lands of I S] by this none but thoſe Lands that were the Lands of I S will paſs. Dyer 376. Bro. Grant 92.

If one grant in this manner [all my meadow in D containing ten acres] whereas in truth his meadow there doth contain twenty acres, it ſeems this is a good grant for the whole twenty acres. So if one grant thus [All thoſe forty ſeven acres of Land by the Sleight whereof fifteen lie in D, twenty in E, and twenty five in F] and in truth all of them doe lie in F and none of them in D or E: this is a good grant to cary the whole forty ſeven acres. Dyer 80.

If one grant twenty load of Wood and ſay in his grant [of which twenty load of wood he had ſixteen load by the grant of his father I S] and in truth I S did not grant any wood to him at all, or did not grant unto him ſixteen load only: this is a good grant of the twenty load of wood notwithſtanding this falſe recitall, Bro. Grant. 69.

If one grant his Manor of D and doth not ſay in what Town or Towns it doth lie, this is a good grant. But it is beſt to ſay in what Towns the Manor doth lie, for if it lie in divers places (as it may) and any of the places into which it goeth be omitted and the reſt are ſet down; no part of the Manor lying in the Town that is not expreſſed will paſs. Br. Grant 53. 7 H. 4.41.

If one grant a Manor and that which in truth is but one Manor by the name of the Manor of A and B; this is a good grant of the Manor. And ſo alſo it is if it be two Manors, as if a man be ſeiſed of the Manors of Ryton and Condor in the county of Salop. and he grant in this manner [*totum illud Manerium de Ryton & Condor cum pertinen. in Com. Prerogative. If one have a farme of Land, Meadow, &c. by leaſe called Hodges lying within the pariſhes of S. Stephen and S. Peter in S. Albons, and he reciting the ſaid leaſe grant to C his terme and intereſt in the houſe, lands, &c. called Hodges in the pariſh of S. Peter and S. Albons; this grant is good only for ſo much as doth lie in the pariſh of S. Peter, and not for that which doth lie in S. Stephens. But if he grant the farme, and doth not ſay in what pariſh it doth lie; this is a good grant of the whole farme. As in the caſe before of a Manor that doth lie in divers pariſhes. And if in the caſe here the farme lie within the pariſh of S. Peter only; the grant is good for the whole farme. If one recite that whereas he hath ſuch lands by forfeiture, or whereas ſuch a one hath an eſtate of his Land, or whereas the grantee hath paid him ten pound or done him ſuch ſervice, or the like, and theſe things are not true, and afterwards he doth grant the Land by apt words; this miſtake in theſe caſes will not hurt the grant. But otherwiſe it is in caſe of the King in ſome of theſe caſes. Curia. Co. B. Paſc. 9 Jac. Inter Plat. & Sleepe. Bro. Grant 53.

Prerogative. If one have a Manor in which he hath Parkes and Fiſhponds, and he grant the Manor for life except the game and fiſh, and after grant the reverſion of the Manor; this is a good grant of the game and fiſh alſo. Co. 11.50.

If a grant be of [Centum libratas terra, or 50 libratas terra, or of Centum ſolidat' terra,

If a Grant be of an Acre of Land covered with water, this is a good Grant; Co. ſuper Littl. 4.

If a Grant be of a certain portion of Land or Tithes, or of the fourth part of Land or Tithes, and there be a ſufficient certainty in the deſcription of it, this Grant is good. And therefore if the Grant be of the fourth part of the Tithes, and of the offerings of the Church of St. Peter, this is a good Grant. Dyer 84. 34 Ed 3.

If one ſeiſed of an Advowſon in Fee, grant to J. S. that as oft as the Church is void, he ſhall name the Clerk to the Grantor, and he ſhall preſent him to the Ordinary; this is a good Grant of the Advowſon. Bro. Grant 101. 121.

A Reverſion may be granted by the name of a Remainder, or a Remainder by the name of a Reverſion, and ſuch a Grant is good. As if one grant Land to J. S. the Reverſion to J. D. this is a good Grant of the Remainder. Dyer 46. Plow. in Hills and Granges caſe.

If one make a Leaſe of Land to Husband and Wife for their lives, and after grant the Reverſion of this by the name of the Reverſion of the Land, which the Wife doth hold for life; this Grant is void. So if one grant to two for life, and after grant the Reverſion of one of them, this is void. Fitz. Grant 63.

If the Lord grant his Manor by the name of [His Manor, with the Reverſion of all his Tenants,] or by the name of [the Reverſion of all his Tenants, bond and free which hold for life or years] and do not name them by their particular names; theſe Grants are good in theſe caſes, and certain enough. Fitz. Grant 68. Perk. ſect. 68.

If one grant Land, and ſay not in what Pariſh, or County, or Village it doth lie, yet if there be any other matter to deſcribe it; it ſeems the grant is good enough, and it may be averred where it lieth. But if there be no circumſtantial matter in the grant to denote and decipher out where it doth lie; it ſeems the Grant is void for Incertainty. And therefore if one grant his Manor of Dale, or his Lands in the occupation of J. S. or his Lands that deſcended to J. S. or his Lands that did belong to the Priory of S. or the like; theſe are good Grants and certain enough. Id certum eſt quod certum reddi poteſt. Bro. Grant 53. Co. 9. 47.

If there be Tenant for life of three Houſes and four Acres of Land, and he in Reverſion, grant the Reverſion of two houſes and of two Acres of this Land; this is a good Grant, and hath ſufficient Certainty in it. Perk. ſect. 73.

If a Grant be Incertain altogether, and have not ſufficient Certainty in it, and cannot be made certain by ſome matter Ex poſt facto, it is void. And therefore if there be Lord and Tenant of three Acres of Land by Fealty, and twelve pence Rent, and the Lord grant [the Services of the third Acre] to a ſtranger; this Grant is meerly void. So if Husband and Wife hold an Acre of Land joyntly of J. S. for their lives, and I. S. grant the Reverſion of the Acre of Land which the Husband alone doth hold for his life; this Grant is void. So if there be Lord and three Joyntenants, and the Lord grant the Services of one of them to a ſtranger, this Grant is void. So if one have twenty Tenants that do pay him twelve pence a peece Rent, and he grant five ſhillings yearly out of theſe Rents, and doth not ſay of which Tenants, this Grant is void for Incertainty. So if Conuſance of Pleas be granted, and it is not ſaid before whom, this is utterly void. So if one have two Tenants, and doth grant the Reverſion of one of them, and doth not ſay which, this is void for Incertainty. So if one grant Eſtovers to another, and ſay not what, nor how; this is void. So if one grant me ſo many of his trees, or of his horſes as may be reaſonably ſpared, this grant is void. And yet if one grant me ſo many of his trees as I. S. ſhall think fit, it ſeems this grant is good. And if one grant me one hundred load of Wood to be taken by the Aſſignment of the Grantor, or to be taken by the Aſſignment of J. S. theſe are good Grants. So if one grant me three Acres of Wood toward the North-ſide of the Wood; this is a good Grant, and certain enough. Perk. ſect. 67. & 68, 69. 9 H. 6. 12. 44 Ed. 3. 17. Bro. Grant 52. Dyer 91. Co. 5. 24.

If one Grant to one of the Children of J. S. and J. S. hath more then one, and he doth not deſcribe which he doth intend; this Grant is void for incertainty. Bro. Donee 31.

If one Grant to me a Rent or a Robe, twenty ſhillings or forty ſhillings, or Common of Paſture or Rent, in the Disjunctive which is at firſt very incertain; yet this Grant may become good; for if I make my Election, or he pay the Rent, or perform the Grant in either part, the Grant is now become good. 9 Ed. 4. 36. Perk. ſect. 74. So if one be ſeiſed of two Acres of Land, and he doth Leaſe them for life, the Remainder of one of them, and doth not ſay of which to J. S. in this caſe, if J. S. make his Election which Acre he will have, the Grant of the Remainder to him will be good. Perk. ſect. 76. So it is when a man hath ſix horſes in his Stable, and he doth grant me one of his horſes, but doth not ſay which of them; in this caſe I may chuſe which I will have, and in theſe caſes, when I have made my election, and not before the Grant, is good. And if in theſe caſes the Grantee do not make his election, during his life, it ſeems the Grant will never be good. If one be ſeiſed of Land, and Leaſe it for years, rendring ten ſhillings rent, and after he doth grant a rent of ten ſhillings out of this Land to a ſtranger; in this caſe, albeit, there be ſome incertainty in the Grant, yet this is a good Grant of a Rent of ten ſhillings, but it ſhall be taken a Grant of a new, and not of the old Rent, and therefore ſhall not take effect, until the particular eſtate be ended. Bro. Grant 77.

See more to this point in Deeds, and their Expoſition, chap. 5. Numb. 15. and Fine chap. 2. Numb. 7.

5. In reſpect of matter in ſome other parts of the Grant.

In ſome caſes albeit there be in a Grant, a good Grantor, and a good Grantee, and a thing granted, and all theſe are duly and certainly deſcribed, yet the Grant may be void for ſome fault, in ſome other thing, touching the Grant: As,

1. In the Commencement of the Eſtate.

1. In the Commencement of the Eſtate: For if a man be poſſeſſed of a Term of years, albeit it be one hundred years or upwards, and grant to another all the Reſidue of this term of years that ſhall be to come at the time of his death; this Grant is void for incertainty: And yet if a man poſſeſſed of ſuch a term in Land, grant the Land to another, To have and to hold to him after the death of the Grantor for fifty years, or for two hundred years; theſe are good Grants, and in the firſt caſe the Grantee ſhall have fifty years, if there be ſo many to come of the term of one hundred years, at the death of the Grantor; and in the laſt caſe the Grantee ſhall have the Land for the whole one hundred years, or ſo many of them as are to come at the death of the Grantor. Bro. Grant 154. Co. 1. 155. Plow. 520. So if one Grant any thing that doth lie in Livery or in Grant, and that is in eſſe at the time of the Grant in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life, and the eſtate is to begin at a day to come; this for the moſt, is void; howbeit in ſome caſes the Livery of Seiſin will help it: But a Leaſe for years to begin in futuro, is good enough. And if a Leaſe be made to one for years, or for years determinable upon lives, and after a Leaſe is made to another of the ſame thing, To have and to hold from the end of the former Leaſe; this is a good Leaſe, and the Commencement certain enough. So if a Leaſe be made of Land to one for life, and after the Reverſion thereof, is granted to another for life, Cum poſt mortem vel alio modo vacare contigerit, this is good. Dyer 58. Co. 5. 1. Paſche, 7 Jac. Dennis caſe. So if a Leaſe be made to one for twenty years, if he live ſo long, and after a Leaſe is made to another Habendum, after the end of the Term granted to the Leſſee for twenty years to be accompted from the date of the Deed laſt made; this is a good Grant for twenty years after the firſt Leaſe ended, and the words [to be accompted, &c.] ſhall be rejected. Craddocks caſe. Paſche, 7 Jac. Co. B. And if one grant a Rent to me Habendum, from the time of my full age for my life, and I am of full age at the time of the Grant, this Grant is good for my life. Co. 9. If a Woman-ſole have a Leaſe for years, and take a Husband, and then he in Reverſion Grant the Land to another another Habendum after the terme granted to the husband &c. where in truth it was never granted to the husband but by an Act of law, viz. the mariage, yet this is a good Leaſe. Plow. 192. Co. 5. 36.

2. In the limitation of the eſtate. For if a grant be to two & hæredibus, without Suis, this is void for incertainty, and cannot be made good by Averment. And yet a grant to one & hæredibus, is good. And if a man grant two Acres to have and to hold the one in fee-ſimple and the other in fee-taile, or the one in fee-ſimple and the other for life, and doth not ſet downe which in fee-ſimple &c. in certaine, yet this grant is good, and the grantee hath the election. And yet if one grant two acres to two men, Habendum the one to the one, and the other to the other, and ſay not which either of them ſhall have, this is void for incertainty. And if one have a reverſion of land after a leaſe for yeares, and grant the land Habendum the reverſion, or grant the reverſion Habendum the land, this is good. 22 H. 6. 15. Plow. 28. Perk. Sect. 75. 77. Plow. 152. Co. 10. 107. Plow. 147.

2. In the limitation of the eſtate. Or in the Habendum of the Grant.

Incertainty.

In ſome caſes a grant or gift may be void at leaſt to ſome perſons and purpoſes when there are none of the defects aforeſaid in it, as when it is made upon a corrupt contract, or to the end to defraud creditors of their debts, or purchaſors of their lands bought, or the like, whereof ſee before in Deed chap. 4. Numb. 5.

6. In reſpect of the end or ground of the Grant.

And in ſome caſes albeit there be no other fault in the grant, yet it may become void for want of ſome other matter that ought to be done, as inrolment, livery of ſeiſin, atturnment, &c. for where theſe things are requiſite the grant is not good untill it be had, neither for that thing which will not paſſe without that ceremony, nor yet for that which otherwiſe would paſs by the deed. And therefore if a feoffment be made of a Manor to which an Advowſon is appendant, and no livery is made ſo that the Manor doth not paſſe; the Advowſon will not paſſe neither. Where a grant may be void by the refuſall or waiver of the grantee, See before in Deed Numb. 6. chap: 4. 21 H. 7. 5. Co ſuper Litt.

7 In reſpect o omiſſion of ſome ceremony &c.

If one make a feoffment with warranty, and after the feoffee doth grant to the feoffor that neither he nor his heires ſhall vouch the warrantor or his heires upon the warranty; this is a good diſcharge of the benefit of voucher, and doth bar the feoffee of it. And yet he may bring a Warrantia Chartæ ſtill. So if one grant to mee a rent-charge, and afterwards I grant to him that he ſhall not bee ſued for this rent; this is a good grant to bar me of bringing an annuity for the rent. And yet I may diſtrain for the rent ſtill. And ſo è converſo if I grant to the grantor he ſhall not be diſtrained for the rent, by this I am barred of a diſtreſſe, but not of bringing an annuity for the rent: So if the Lord doth grant to his tenant holding by Knights ſervice, that his heires ſhall not be in ward &c. or a man doth grant to his debtor that he will not ſue him for the Debt at all, or untill ſuch a time; or one grant to his Leſſee for life or years, that he ſhall not be impeached for waſt; all theſe are good diſcharges, and may be pleaded by way of bar to avoid circuity of Action. 7 H. 6. 43. 21 H. 7. 23. Perk. Sect. 69. Bro. Grant. 175. Kelw. 88.

5. What ſhall be ſaid a good grant in the nature of a releaſe or diſcharge. Or not.

How a grant ſhall be uſed and taken Brownlows Rep. 1 part. 32. 2 part, 57. 192. 193.

2. He may take them, although there were no ſpecial Agreement, nor words in his Leaſe to give him liberty to take it.

3. He may (as it ſeems) cut it before he uſe it, that it may be fit for uſe, but not before ſome occaſion begin to appear for the uſe of it.

CHAP. XCVII.

Of an Idiot, Idolatry, and Implication.

Sect. 1. 1. Idiot, what. AN Idiot or Man Non compos mentis, is one that is void of Reaſon and very fooliſh, and wanteth natural and common Underſtanding, as in the Caſes, infra. Sometimes the word is taken for a Plea, to avoid a Deed made by ſuch a man as is ſo, Terms Ley Idiot. Cromp. Jur. 114.

The kinde. There are four ſorts of Men Non compotes mentis.

1. An Idiot or Natural fool ſo born, and he is called an Idiot à Nativitate.

2. One that is ſo by the Viſitation of God, and he is called an Idiot Accidental.

3. One that is Lunatick by certain fits and ſeaſons, that hath his Lucida intervalla.

4. One that hath made himſelf ſo by his own act, as a Drunkard; one that is born dumb, deaf, and blinde, is accounted as an Idiot to ſome purpoſes.

Who ſhall be accounted ſuch a one. He is then reputed, and to be taken a Natural or Accidental Idiot or Lunatick, when he may be made to believe any thing: As that an Aſs can flie, Trees walk, and Beaſts and Birds ſpeak, and the like; or that cannot number twenty pence, name his Father and Mother, nor his own age, or the like. But if he have ſo much knowledge, as to be able to read or learn to read by the inſtruction of others, or meaſure an Ell of Cloth, or name the days of the week, or write Letters, or make acquittances, or beget children, or the like, whereby it doth appear he hath ſome light of Reaſon; in this caſe, he is not to be counted an Ideot, Co 4. 124. Co. ſuper Littl. 247. Perk. 5. *Terms Ley Ideot. Swinb. fol.*43. *Broo.*443. *Co.*4.12. 128. *Cromp. Jur. f.*38.

How he is to be tried. This Idiot is to be tried and diſcovered by the Writ which is called De Idiota inquirendo, which is a Writ directed to the Eſcheator or Sheriff of any County, where the King when he underſtood there was an Ideot, ſo weak of underſtanding, that he could not govern his own Eſtate: That the Sheriff or Coroner therefore do call before him the Idiot, and examine him before a Jury, whether he be ſufficiently able to manage and order his own eſtate with diſcretion, and accordingly to certifie, Co. 9. 31. F.N.B. 231.

Idiota Inquirendo, what.

He that is an Idiot à Nativitate, the King ſhould have the cuſtody, and Wardſhip of all his Land (except Copihold Lands) of whatſoever Lord the ſame be held, and by what means ſoever, as by purchaſe or diſcent, the Ideot did come by them. Alſo he was to have the cuſtody and Wardſhip of his Body, Goods, and Chattels, and all that is his, during the life of the Idiot: And the King was to have the profits of all this to his own uſe, ſave onely that with the ſame, he muſt fine and provide for the Idiot and his family, ſufficient Meat, Drink, Apparel, and other neceſſaries.

But

But the King was to have no intereſt in the Eſtate and Subſtance of the Idiot, but onely a Cuſtody, and therefore he could not ſell any of the Lands, or Goods, or Chattels (unleſs perhaps make a Leaſe of the Land at a yearly rent.) And if the Idiot happen to come to be of his right minde again, then the King was to deliver all that was his to him again, if not, he was to leave it to the Heirs and Executors, or Adminiſtrators of the Idiot after his death: But Rights or Titles of Entry or Action, that the Idiot had, thoſe (it ſeems) the King ſhould have no benefit by neither, could he make any uſe of; but for all that was in poſſeſſion, he was to have as before. And if any man ſhould have kept the Body, Lands, Goods, or Chattels, from the King, the King ſhould have remedy to recover it. 27 Ed. 2. 9, 10. Co. 8. 170. Stamf. pr. c. 9. Co. 4. 126, 127. *F. And for the Lands, Goods, and Chattels of Lunaticks, the King was to hold them during the time of their Lunacy: But as for this Idiot, and he that is an Idiot per Accidens, or one that hath his Lucida intervalla, the King was to have their Eſtate and Subſtance, not as he had the eſtate of the Natural Idiot to his own uſe without rendring an account; but in this caſe he had them onely to keep for the Lunatick, and was to find him and his family with it; and when he came to be of ſome memory again, muſt render to him an account for the profits, and deliver him all the overplus of that hath been laid out for the maintenance of him, and his family, Co. 8. 170. Dyer 25. Stamf. pr. c. 9. F. N. B. 232.

If a Copiholder be an Idiot, his Copihold-eſtate ſhall be ordered by the Lord; and not by the King. Dyer 302.

It ſeems ſuch an Idiot may conſent to marriage, and his Iſſues are Legitimate. Trin. 3 Jac. B R. Stiles caſe.

Sect. 2. What Acts ſuch an Idiot may do, or not.

If ſuch a one were made a Judg, all Acts that ſhould be done by, or before him, as Judg, were good, and would binde all men. Broo. 446.

If ſuch an Idiot do any thing by Fine or Recovery, or the like, it will binde him, and all others, as if he were another man. But the Judges, before whom ſuch a Fine or Recovery is taken, ought not to admit it; ſo if he acknowledge a Recognizance, it is unavoidable. Co. 4. 127. Perk. ſect. 24.

If ſuch a perſon, during the time of his Idiocy or Lunacy, had committed Treaſon againſt the King, he ſhould be puniſhed as a Traitor. Co. 4. 124.

All Acts that the Lunatick man doth, during the time of his Lucida intervalla, though it be by Deed in the Countrey, as a Feoffment, Obligation, or the like, ſhall binde him and all others, that it ſhall concern, as any other man. So if in thoſe times he commit any Felony, or other offence, he ſhall be puniſhed as another man. Co. 4. 127.

All Acts that are done by a Drunkard that makes himſelf De non ſane memorie, ſhall binde and prejudice him, as if he were not ſo, as Deeds, Obligations, and the like, or Bargains and Contracts, he doth make then: Alſo if he do then in that caſe, commit any Treaſon or Felony, his Drunkenneſs will not mitigate, but aggravate his offence. Co. 4. 124. Plow. 19. See Terms Law Diſability 148, 149.

If he make a Bond, and muſt be ſued upon it, and Recovery be had, and his Execution done or money paid, before the Office is found; this is unavoidable. Co. 4. 126.

If ſuch a one as is a Natural or Accidental Idiot or a Lunatick, by the Act of God, do whiles he is ſo, do or commit any act of Felony; this is no Felony in him, neither ſhall he loſe or forfeit life or goods, or any thing elſe, though the act be Felony by a Statute, that doth ſay that every one that doth ſo, ſhall be judged a Felon. Stamf. 1. 7. 3 H. 7. 1. Co. 4. 127. 21 H. 7. 31.

If ſuch a one in that caſe make a Teſtament, it ſeems, it is not good. See Teſtament. Co 6. 13. Dyer 203. 75.

The Acts and Deeds of ſuch perſons done, during the time they are out of their minde, are void or voidable as Acts done by Infants are. See Infant. F. N. B. 202. 7 H. 4. 5. 52. See more for both of them, Teſtament Numb. 4. Grant Numb. 2, 3. Fine Numb. 6, 8. Capacity, Diſability throughout.

Privies

Who may take advantage by their Acts, or not.

Privies in blood, as Heirs, may take advantage, and ſhew the Diſability of their Anceſtors that were Non compotes mentis, and ſo avoid their Acts and Deeds for this cauſe: And for this cauſe they may have a Writ appointed for that end called Dum non fuit compos mentis. Alſo Privies in Repreſentation, as Executors or Adminiſtrators; and therefore if he ſhould make any Obligation, Covenant, or the like; and they be ſued upon it, they may avoid it by ſhewing his Diſability. Co. 4. 127.

Dum non fuit compos mentis, what.

If the Idiot make a Gift, Grant, a Releaſe of his Land before the Kings Office had been found for him, the King might avoid it at any time, during the Idiots life. So alſo he might avoid Obligations, Bills, or the like. Co. 4. 126.

If he grant a Rent-charge out of his Land, and die, his Heir may avoid it, and he ſhall hold it diſcharged. Littl. 405, 406.

A man himſelf that is Non compos mentis, ſhall never for that cauſe avoid his own act, either by Law or in a Court of Equity; for a man ſhall never be received and allowed to ſtultifie himſelf. Implication, what.

Implication is where the Law doth imply ſomething that is not expreſſed between parties, upon their Deeds or Agreements, as ſometimes, if there want words to expreſs their mindes, the Law will help it by Implication; and ſo one word, or thing ſhall be implied by another, ſometimes one ſentence ſhall be implied by another, ſometimes one Eſtate by another: As if one Deviſe, that after his wife J. S. ſhall have his houſe; here the wife ſhall have an Eſtate for life by Implication. It is alſo in divers other caſes, as if one grant an Office, it is a Condition tacite implied by Law, That he muſt execute the Office, elſe the Grant to ceaſe. So in every Exchange a Condition and a Warranty are tacitè implied. Quod neceſſariò ſubintelligitur non deeſt. See in other Titles.

CHAP. XCVIII.

Of Impriſonment.

1. Impriſonment.

IMpriſonment is where a Man is reſtrained of his uſual and lawful liberty; ſo that he cannot go abroad at all times, and in all places with that freedom, as at other times without Bail or Mainpriſe: And this, whether it be in the open Field, or in the Street, or in a Houſe, or in a Gaol, or in a Stocks, all comes to one, if it be any Reſtraint of Liberty, it is an Impriſonment. Terms Ley Impriſonment.

Arreſt.

An Arreſt ſeems to be nothing elſe, but the firſt Act of this Impriſonment, when a man is firſt taken and reſtrained from his Liberty. Terms Ley Arreſt. Note that this Impriſonment will excuſe a man in many Caſes from prejudice, for which ſee Co. ſuper Littl. 159. 260, &c.

Sect. 1, 2. What Act ſhall be ſaid an Arreſt or Impriſonment, or not.

If one lay hands upon a man, and hold him; keep him in a houſe, lock him in a room, tye him to a Tree or Poſt; put him in priſon or Stocks, or the like; all theſe be Impriſonments. So if one ſay to another, I Arreſt you in the Lord Protectors name, and lay no hands on him, it ſeems this is an Arreſt, eſpecially if he be a known, ſworn Officer that doth ſo, for in that caſe were the Arreſt good, the Party is bound to obey, and to ſubmit to the Arreſt. And ſo was the opinion of the Lord-Keeper, and the two Chief Juſtices, Mich. 5 Car. Co. 9. 66, 69.

But

But if one do only require another to ſtand or ſtay, or ſay he doth intend, or will arreſt him, but doth not lay hands upon him, nor ſay he doth arreſt him; this, it ſeems, without more, is no arreſt nor impriſonment, Br. F. Impriſ. 37.

3. Where an Arreſt or Impriſonment ſhall be ſaid to be lawful.

1. In reſpect of the cauſe of the Arreſt.

In all caſes where the Common-Law, or where any Statute doth give power to arreſt and impriſon, there it is lawful and juſtifiable ſo to do. But in that caſe he that doth ſo, muſt take heed that he do purſue the Statute in the manner and order of doing of it: As if a Bailiff be found in arrearages before Auditors, the Auditors may commit him to Priſon; but then it muſt be to the next Priſon, and it muſt be ſpeedily, 13 Ed. 1. 11. Dyer 204.

One convicted of Witchcraft may be impriſoned, St. 1 Jac.

A Forger of Deeds, or one that doth agree to any ſuch thing, to the intent any Freehold may be recovered or charged, may be impriſoned. So if one had refuſed to pay his Tythes after ſentence given in the Spiritual Court for them, he might be impriſoned, 27 H. 8. 1. And ſo in divers other caſes, and for divers other cauſes; for which ſee the Statutes at large, 5 Eliz. 14.

Fine.

In all caſes regularly, where a man is fined by any Court that hath power to fine and impriſon, there he may be impriſoned alſo; for Impriſonment is incident to every Fine: As if Jurors will take more then their Fees for their labors, after they have given their Verdict, of him for whom they gave it: If men will conſpire to put a man in danger of his life by Indictment: If one will willingly plead a falſe Plea, to delay the Suit: If a Sheriff or Bailiff of a Franchiſe will not, or will falſly return his Writ directed to him: If a Guardian in Chivalry will take a Feoffment of his Heir within age, of his Land: If in a Quid juris clamat, or Per quæ ſervitia the Tenant do appear, and refuſe to attorn: If a Sheriff neglect or refuſe to take his oath when he doth enter to his office: If a Leſſee doth commit waſte after a Prohibition by Eſtrepement: If one plead a falſe Deed, or deny his own Deed, and upon Trial it be found againſt him: If a Juror give a falſe Verdict: If one bring an Attaint, and it paſs againſt the Plaintiff: If one bring an Appeal, and by his default the Will abate, or upon Trial it paſs againſt the Plaintiff: If one that is upon Mainpriſe, fail to come in at his day: If one do a Treſpaſs, Diſſeiſon, Forcible Entry, or the like; for theſe and many other cauſes a man may be impriſoned. Br. Impr. 9. 77. 101, 102. Br. Fan. Impr. 107. 10. 13. 98. Fitz. per quæ ſervitia, 23. Dyer 168. Co. 5. 105. 32 H. 8. 54. Br. Impr. 5. 9. 14. 11. 113.

A man may be impriſoned for, or upon ſuſpition of Treaſon, Felony, or any other great offence, for the preventing of any ſuch offence, the breach of the Peace, or the like; ſo for Night-walking, and the like. Vide infra, 9 Ed. 4. 26. 20 Ed. 4. 6. 11 Ed. 4. 4.

If a man be mad and furious, and like in his madneſs to harm; he may be bound or ſhut up by any man whiles he is ſo, to prevent miſchief, Br. F. Impr. 35.

If men ride armed, or there be any Rebellion, the Sheriff, Officer, or any other as aſſiſtant to them, may arreſt and diſarm them, and no falſe Impriſonment lieth, 1 H. 7. 7.

If the Impriſonment be on a falſe and fained Suit, as in ſuing Execution on a Statute when the money is paid, no falſe Impriſonment lieth for this, Stat. 43 Ed. 3. c. 35.

If a Conſtable make a Deputy, and the Deputy do execute Warrants and make Arreſts, it ſeems this is good. Phelps and Winſcombs Caſe, Mich. 13 Jac. B. R.

If a Hue and Cry be levied, and no cauſe; he that doth arreſt on ſuch a Hue and Cry is to be juſtified, and he that raiſed it ſhall be puniſhed, 21 H. 7. 27.

Ordinaries might impriſon Prieſts for Incontinencie, 3 H. 7. 1.

By and upon a Writ of Vi laica removenda, the Sheriff may arreſt a Clerk reſiſting, &c. albeit the Writ ſpeak of many, and thoſe Lay-men, Adjudg. Trin. 18 Jac. B. R.

For Treaſon, Felony, or Breach of the Peace, any man may arreſt without Warrant or Precept, New Terms ley Arreſt. But he that doth arreſt, muſt ſee a Felony be done. Secondly, that he be ſuſpect, Idem. And that there be ſome cauſe to ſuſpect Suſpition. Common voice. him above another; as that Hue and Cry is gone forth, and doth denote ſuch a man as he is; or that it is the common voice that he is the man, or it is ſuch a man as he is, or that he is a Companion of Thieves, or that he hideth himſelf, flieth, or the like. For in theſe caſes any man may by warrant of the Common-Law, without any Writ or Warrant from any other, and that before Preſentment, Indictment, &c. arreſt the party ſuſpect; and whether the cauſe of ſuſpition be good, ſhall be tryed by the Judges in the Action of Falſe Impriſonment, or upon a Habeas Corpus. But it is ſaid, that an Arreſt upon a Hue and Cry is not good, unleſs ſome Felony have been committed, Co. 2 par. Inſt. 2 *H.*7.15. 5 *H.*7.5. And any man ſo taken is to be brought to Gaol, to abide till Seſſions, to be acquitted or indicted, Idem. See more, *Cromp. Jur.f.*16.6.80.*a.*93.*b.*97.*b.*110. See more in *Co.*10.76.

A Juſtice of Peace may himſelf in his own diſcretion arreſt a man, and compel him to find Sureties for the Peace: And if he will, he may then let him go without giving Surety, and no falſe Impriſonment will lie againſt him, Br. Treſp. 177.

In reſpect of the party arreſting, and his Authority. Any man as well as a Conſtable or Officer, after a Felony is done, that doth ſuſpect another, may arreſt him and bring him to an Officer, or to a Juſtice of Peace, or to Gaol, which he will. But in this caſe the party muſt take heed of two things. 1. That there be a Felony done. 2. That he have ſome cauſe and reaſon to ſuſpect that party that he doth arreſt. See Cauſes infra. So any one that doth know ſuch a man hath committed the Felony, may of his own head without any Warrant from a Juſtice or Officer, apprehend the Felon, and carry him to the Officer, Juſtice of Peace, or Priſon. *Plow.*49. 29 *Ed.*3.9. 13 *H.*7.10. 20 *H.*7.26. 5 *H.*7.6. 10 *Ed.*4. 17. 14 H 8.16.

A Watchman may arreſt Night-walkers in the night, 4 *H.*7.15: *Co.*9 68. or any ſuſpitious perſons, 5 *Ed.*3.14. 13 *Ed.*1.

If there be any Breach of the Peace by fighting, or any apparent likelihood thereof, the Conſtables or Officers may take the parties and ſet them by the heels, or put them in Ward. So if they offer to aſſault the Officer himſelf. So if there be a lewd ſuſpected Fellow in a lewd Houſe, it ſeems the Officer may ſet him by the heels, Finches ley 336: Fitz. Bar 202. 3 *H.*4.9. 5 *H.*7 6. 13 *H.*7, 10. 10 *Ed.*4.17. 12 *H.*7.18. 22 *Ed.*4.35. And if there be an Affray, any man may reſtrain the Affrayers to keep Peace: But the Affray being paſt, they cannot meddle further without authority from Officers, *Co.*2 *par. Inſt.*52.

If any Sheriff, Bailiff, Conſtable, Officer, or other Miniſter of Juſtice in doing their Offices, as executing Writs, the Juſtice of Peace Warrants, keeping the Peace, or apprehending Felons, require others to aid them in that work; the parties ſo required muſt aid them, and then their Arreſt or Impriſonment is as lawful as the Officers, Stat. 2 *H.*7. *c.*15. Weſtm. 1. *c.*9. Winton 3 *H.*7.1. *Co.*9. *Co.*8: 66. 5 *H.*7.15.

If one man wound another, ſo that it is uncertain whether he will die or live; the Officer may apprehend the party, and keep him in hold till he ſee whether the party be like to live or die, 10 *H.*7.26. And any other man may arreſt ſuch a man, and hold him for a reaſonable time upon this account, *Co.*2 *Inſt.*52.

Sect. 3. If a man be outlawed for Felony, it ſeems any other man as well as the Sheriff or his Officers, may arreſt the party without any Warrant: But if he be outlawed in an Action perſonal only, contra. Dyer 120.

By a Warrant from the Lord Protector, his Council, or from any the Courts at Weſtminſter, or from a Juſtice of Peace, or from the Sheriff, one may lawfully arreſt or impriſon another. As if a Sheriff have a Writ to arreſt a man, and he make a Warrant to any Bailiff of Franchiſe, or other ſworn, known, or ſpecial Bailiff to arreſt the party; this is a good authority. But therein they muſt take heed they do purſue their Warrant, or elſe the Arreſt or Impriſonment may be wrongful. And this Warrant, it ſeems, muſt be in writing, unleſs the party to be arreſted be preſent; or elſe it ſeems no good authority. But if the party be preſent, it ſeems ſuch verbal authority is good enough, *Co.*8.67. 26 *H.*7.5. *Co.*6.64. Bro. Treſp. 339. 10 *H.*7.16.

If a Sheriff or his Bailiff arreſt a man on a Capias directed to them, and there be no Original on which the Capias was grounded; yet the Arreſt is lawful in them. So if a Capias come to them to take the body of a Duke, Countee, Baron, Dutcheſs, a Counteſs or Baroneſs, againſt whom by Law no Capias doth lie for Debt, or the like, and the Sheriff do execute it; the Arreſt and Impriſonment is lawful. So if the Suit upon which the Proceſs do come to him be never ſo unjuſt, and he arreſt by vertue of the Proceſs, his Act is lawful. Co. 8. 67. 16 H. 7. 3. Kelw. 98. 43 Ed. 3. 33.

After an Action is entred in London, a Serjeant at Mace may arreſt the party with his Mace ex officio, without any Precept at all. Co. 8. 67.

Officers may arreſt ſuſpitious perſons that walk by night, and carry them to a Juſtice, or ſet them in the Stocks till the morning, 5 Ed. 3. 14.

If a Commiſſion contra legem be to J.S. to arreſt J.N. and J.S. do it, the Arreſt is lawful in him, and no falſe Impriſonment lieth, Br. Treſp. 372.

If a Sheriff arreſt a Duke or ſuch like on a Capias, the Arreſt is lawful. See before.

If there be two or more of one name, and the Sheriff hath Proceſs againſt one of them, and there is no diſtinguiſhing addition whereby the Sheriff may know which is intended; in this caſe if he do miſtake, yet the party arreſted hath no remedy but by Indemnitate nominis. But the Sheriff or other Officer is to ſee at his peril, that he miſtake not the party in caſes of Arreſt; for he is bound to take notice of him; for if he miſtake him by information of another, or the like; he ſhall have this Action. And ſo was the opinion of the whole Court, Trin. 38 Eliz. Coots Caſe, B. R. Sect. 4. In reſp. of the party arreſted.

If a Capias come to a Sheriff to arreſt a man by a wrong name, and he do it; this Action lieth, Brownl. 2 par. 48. So if a Proceſs come to the Sheriff to arreſt J.S. and he do arreſt J.N. and although the party Plaintiff do ſhew him a wrong man; this will not help him. And yet if there be practice between him and the party arreſted, he may aver this, and that will help him, Brownl. 1 par. 211. See Br. F. Impr. 19.

If one be arreſted on a Latitat or Quapias in the morning of the day that the Writ is retornable, it ſeems the Arreſt is lawful, Trin. 3 Jac. per three Juſtices. Of the time.

If one arreſt a Miniſter or another on a Sabbath-day, either at the ſuit of the party or the Protector, it is a good Arreſt. But if the Miniſter be arreſted at his Church, eundo or redeundo to or from the ſame, the Bailiffs for this may be bound to their good behaviour, or might have been cenſured in the Star-chamber, eſpecially if it be whiles they are about Divine ſervice, 1 R. 2. 15. 50 Ed. 3. 5. Co. 9. 66. Brags Caſe, Hil. 7 Jac. C.B.

If one arreſt another in the night upon a Proceſs for the Lord Protector, or a common perſon, the Arreſt is lawful, Co. 9. 66.

If two men be fighting, and one of purpoſe to prevent harm put one of them up in a houſe, or lock him in a chamber till the heat be paſt; it ſeems this is lawful: But if they had been quarrelling only, and not fighting, contra. Br. F. Impr. 28. Of the manner and order, and end.

If a man take another on ſuſpition of Felony, or the like, and after put him in the Stocks for a while till ſome other courſe can be taken with him, it ſeems this is lawful and juſtifiable. So if he be ſick, and he keep him a while for that, 5 H. 7. 4. 29 Ed. 3. 9. 9 Ed. 4. 9. 22 Ed. 4. 25. Br. F. Impr. 28.

If one arreſt another on a Juſtice Warrant, and let him go, or he eſcape, and after he taketh him again upon the ſame Warrant, this is good enough, Br. Impr. 18. Br. Impr. 13.

If one ſeiſe the Wardſhip of the body of a Ward happened to him, this is juſtifiable, Plow. 294.

If a man be in danger to be killed by others, and one put or lock him in a houſe or chamber to keep him from their violence, it ſeems this is good and lawful; but he muſt not keep him there longer then is needful, Br. F. Imp. 3.

If one do keep or carry a man or woman by their own agreement, as upon a horſe, in a Boat, or the like, this is juſtifiable alſo, Br. F. Imp. 18.

In reſpect of the Place.

If one arreſt a man upon a Writ in a Franchiſe, the Arreſt is good, and this Action of Falſe impriſonment will not lie, but an Action of the Caſe will. Ch. Juſt. B. R. 14 Jac.

If a man be arreſted in a Church, the Arreſt is good, and no Falſe impriſonment lieth: But if Divine Service be let, the Bailiff may be puniſhed. See before. See Co. 9. 66.

If a Priſoner eſcape, and the Sheriff take him in another County and arreſt him there, the Arreſt is lawful. See Eſcape, infra.

Sect. 5. In reſpect of the purſuit of Authority.

If a Conſtable or any other take a man for Felony or Treaſon, or ſuſpition of Felony, and carry him to the Gaol preſently without any further Warrant, this is juſtifiable, and the Gaoler muſt at his peril receive him. But if another man that is no Officer do ſo, however it be juſtifiable in him, yet it ſeems the Gaoler may chooſe whether he will receive him or no, without a Juſtice of Peace's Warrant. And yet if another man take the Felon in the manner doing his Felony, in this caſe it ſeems the Gaoler muſt receive him. And if the Gaoler in theſe caſes refuſe to receive him, the Officer or other may take home the Priſoner and keep him at his own houſe till courſe be taken; and all this is juſtifiable, Br. F. Impr. 24. 27.

If a Sheriff make a Warrant to three conjunctim & diviſim to arreſt one, and one or three of them do it, this is good, Ludlows Caſe, B. R. But if two of them do it, it ſeems it is not good.

If another man that is no Officer arreſt a man on ſuſpition of Felony, and then deliver him over to an Officer, and the Officer let him go, or do not bring him to the Juſtice or to Gaol, yet the Arreſt of the firſt man is lawful, Br. Impr.

If a Priſoner be by a Writ of Habeas Corpus, or the like, to be brought to Weſtminſter into any of the Courts there, and by the way the Sheriff bring him through another County, and there he detain him; yet there his detaining of him in this caſe is lawful. Contra, if he did go there with a Keeper without Writ. Vide infra. Dyer 66.

If a Juſtice of Peace ſend a Warrant to an Officer to bring J. S. before him, or one of the Juſtices of the County, to give Sureties for the Peace; and if he refuſe, then to carry him to Gaol: And the Priſoner would go to one Juſtice, yet the Officer may bring him to another; and if he refuſe there to give Surety, the Officer may take him to Gaol upon his firſt Warrant without any other. And in all theſe caſes, no Action of Falſe impriſonment will lie againſt the parties that do arreſt or impriſon, Co. 5. 59.

If one threaten to kill another, or break the Peace, and the Officer bring him to the Juſtice; and if he refuſe to be bound for the Peace, and the Officer carry him to Gaol, this is lawful, 22 Aſſ. p. 56. 54. 7. 6. 38 Ed. 3. 6.

If after a man is lawfully arreſted, he be committed to a private Priſon, where he ſhould be ſent to the common Priſon, it ſeems this Action lieth. By Cook Ch. Juſtice. Brownl. 2 par. 41.

4. Where the Arreſt or Impriſonment ſhall be ſaid to be unlawful, upon which Falſe impriſonment lieth. Falſe impriſonment, what. In reſpect of the cauſe.

The Law doth much favour the Liberty of men: And therefore if any man ſhall be reſtrained therein without good cauſe, the party ſo wronged may have an Action of Falſe impriſonment, in the nature of an Action of Treſpaſs, which lieth where a man is wrongfully impriſoned, or detained in priſon contrary to order of Law. And a man is then wrongfully impriſoned, when either there is no good cauſe for his impriſonment, or the party that doth it hath no good authority by any Common or Statute-Law, or by any power or Warrant derived from others: Or elſe when being lawfully impriſoned at firſt, he is unlawfully detained afterwards: Or elſe when the authority ſo given is not purſued, but the party that doth arreſt doth miſdemean himſelf therein, as in the caſes following, F. N. B. tit. Treſpaſs. Co. 8. 66, 67. Br. F. Imp. 1, 2. But in all ſuch caſes the party grieved may have remedy; and this may be puniſhed divers ways beſides this by Falſe impriſonment. For, 1. He may cauſe the party to be indicted at the Kings ſuit. 2. He may have a Habeas corpus out of either Bench, Chancery or Exchequer, for Officers priviledged in their own Courts, and in the Upper-Bench and Chancery for any other. And upon this the Gaoler muſt return, By whom and for what cauſe he was committed: And if it appear juſt, he ſhall be be ſent back; if not, he will be delivered; if it be doubtful, he will be bailed. 3. He may have a Writ De homine replegiando, or De odio & At. See Co. 2 par. Inſt. 55.

For ſuch petty offences for which a man is not fineable, he ſhall not be impriſoned: As if in pleading one do deny the Deed of his Anceſtor, and it be found upon Trial to be his Deed: Or if one ſue on an Obligation for a Debt, and yet know the Defendant hath a Releaſe of the Debt; or if one plead a falſe Deed, and do after before Trial relinquiſh his Plea, Br. Impr. 1. 2. 7.

If I ſuſpect a man for Felony, and complain to a Conſtable, he cannot arreſt him on my ſuſpition; but after I have arreſted him and committed him to him, there the Conſtable may keep him and is bound to look to him, per Ch. Juſt. Bridgman & Cur. See more in Marlb. c. 23.

If one arreſt another for having ſuſpitious goods, and know of no Felony done before; or there be a Felony done, but no cauſe to ſuſpect the party arreſted; in theſe caſes the party may have an Action of Falſe impriſonment. If there be an Order by Law made by a Corporation or Village, That every one that ſhall, or ſhall not do ſuch a thing ſhall be impriſoned, and hereupon a man that breaketh this Order is impriſoned; now hereupon he may have an Action of Falſe impriſonment: For without ſome ſpecial Law or Cuſtom to enable them, they cannot make Laws of impriſonment, Co. 4. 64. 9 H. 5. 29.

If a man bind himſelf to pay money, and that if he pay it not, it ſhall be lawful for the other to impriſon him, and he fail paiment, and the other do impriſon him; a Falſe impriſonment lieth, 23 Ed. 3. 3.

If a Sheriff have a Priſoner in Execution, and do ſet him at liberty, or do voluntarily ſuffer him to eſcape, and afterwards without Writ do take him again in Execution; the party may have an Action of Falſe impriſonment againſt the Sheriff; and though in this caſe the party had promiſed to come to Priſon again by a day, and do not, and thereupon he arreſt him, yet the Arreſt is unlawful, Co. 3. 44. Vide infra.

If the Sheriff or any of his Bailiffs by warrant from him ſhall arreſt any man after the Sheriff is diſcharged of his office; or a Juſtice of Peace and one that hath Warrant from him arreſt any man after his Commiſſion is determined, and notice thereof given; ſuch Arreſts will be unlawful, and the parties may have this Action, Dyer 41. Sect. 7.

If any Bailiff arreſt without a Warrant in writing from his Maſter or Officer, without a Warrant in writing from the Juſtice, (unleſs it be one that is preſent) it ſeems this is unlawful; and though he get a Warrant after in writing, yet this will not help the matter, but the party may have this Action, Dyer 244. 14 H. 8. 16; Co. 9. 66. 344. 10 H. 7. 17.

S.* I arreſt you at the ſuit of W. Now this is an unlawful Arreſt, for which Falſe Impriſonment lieth, Trin. 7 Jac. B. R.

If the Sheriff either of his own head, or by the direction of the Plaintiff arreſt a contrary man, the party arreſted may have this Action, unleſs it be a man of the ſame name: For which ſee above. Kelw. 229. M. 5 Jac. Goldſmiths Caſe.

If a Warrant be to arreſt J. the ſon of W. and he arreſt the ſon of S. which indeed is the right perſon intended, but not the perſon within his Warrant; here the party arreſted may have this Action, 10 Ed. 4. 12. Br. F. Impr. 38.

Of the time. If a Sheriff or his Bailiff will arreſt a man on a Writ after the day of the Retorn, or a Bailiff before the Teſt of his Warrant; the party arreſted may ave this Action, Dyer 242. Co. 8. 66, 67. James verſ. Bone, Paſc. 17 Jac. B. R.

If the Conſtable or Juſtice of Peace, after an affray is paſt and all is quiet, if there be no body wounded, will impriſon the affrayers in the Stocks or elſwhere, it ſeems they may have an Action of falſe Impriſonment, 5 H. 7. 6. 32 H. 8.

If a Warrant be to an Officer to cauſe A. to find Sureties for the Peace or Good-behaviour, and A. hearing of it do voluntary go to another Juſtice and bind himſelf, and get a Superſedeas: Now if after this the Officer arreſt him, the party may have a falſe Impriſonment, Poulton de Pace 20.

Of the manner and end. If one hold another in his arms in the ſtreet or elſwhere, and hinder him of his liberty and reſtrain him; he may bring his Action of falſe Impriſonment, if it be againſt the parties will, though he were never put in Priſon, 43 Ed. 3. 20. 22 Aſſ. pl. 25.

If the Maſter lock a man up in a chamber, and give his Servant the key to keep, and the Servant knowing his impriſonment there to be unjuſt, doth notwithſtanding keep the key: Now this is unjuſt both in Maſter and Servant, and an Action will lie againſt both: But if the Servant had not known the cauſe, no Action would have lien againſt him. 22 Ed. 4. 54.

Sect. 8. Of the place. If the Sheriff will arreſt a man on a Writ out of the compaſs of his County, the party arreſted may have this Action; for he may detain his Priſoner in no other County, when he is to bring him on a Writ into a Court. Whereof ſee before, Br. F. Imp. 27, Weſtm. 7. c. 34.

Of the purſuit of the Authority, or by matter ex poſt facto. If an Officer put a man in Priſon that hath wounded another, to ſee whether the party will live or die, and there do detain him after he doth perceive that the fear and danger of death is paſt; in this caſe the party for this Detainer after a reaſonable time, may have an Action of Falſe Impriſonment, Br. F. Impr. 6.

If a Juſtice of Peace do ſend a general Warrant to an Officer to carry a perſon to Gaol, and ſet down no cauſe why therein, and the Officer thereupon do ſo; it ſeems this Action will lie againſt the Juſtice, if not againſt the Officer alſo. But upon a general Warrant without cauſe to bring a perſon before him, if the Officer do ſo, it is a good Arreſt enough (as it ſeems:) however it ſeems the ſafeſt way to ſet down the cauſe.

If a Juſtice of Peace ſend for a man, and then preſently ſend him to Gaol without any examination, the party may have this Action againſt the Juſtice, Mich. 8 Jac. B. R.

If the Sheriff after he hath arreſted a man lawfully, when a legal Diſcharge is offered him, as a Superſedeas or other Writ; or the party, if it be at another mans ſuit, offer him a Releaſe, and bid him let him go, detain him; this Detainer is a Caption en ley, for which this Action lieth, 2 R. 2. 12. Fitz. tit. Bar, 253. Withers verſ. Henly, B. R. M. 13 Jac.

If

If the Sheriff upon a Capſat make a Warrant to a Bailiff to take the party, and he pay the money to the Sheriff, and hath a Superſedeas, and doth ſhew it to the Bailiff, and yet he doth arreſt him, or being arreſted detain him under colour of illiterature; it ſeems for this Falſe Impriſonment doth lie. Stringer verſ. Stanlake. Trin. 37 Eliz. Co. B. 13 H. 7. 16. 1 H. 7. 28. 33 H. 6. 48. Et iſſue fuit rule en la cas D. Trotman & Hues, at Glouceſter Summer-Aſſiſe 6 Car. dent Whitlock Juſtice. So alſo in the ſame caſe, if one after he hath lawfully arreſted a man, do after detain him for Fees that are not due, or unlawfully arreſt him again for them. See Br. F. Imp. 12. Kelw. 36. 89. So where a Keeper doth detain for undue Fees. Where a man may be impriſoned, See Merton c. 3. 6. 7. 11.

If one that is no known common ſworn Bailiff arreſt a man by Warrant from the Sheriff, and the party ſubmit to the Arreſt and deſire ſight of the Warrant, and the Bailiff will not ſhew it him; then may the party arreſted have this Action againſt him; for after the time of the refuſal, the Arreſt is unlawful. And if the Arreſt be by a Bailiff-errant and ſworn, he is bound to declare the Contents only, and not to ſhew the Warrant it ſelf: And if he do not ſo upon demand of the party arreſted, i. e. ſhew the cauſe at whoſe ſuit, and for what, and in what Court; then the party arreſted may have this Action againſt him, as againſt another Bailiff in the firſt caſe. But if the party arreſted do not deſire to ſee the Warrant, or know the Contents, or do not ſubmit to the Arreſt, but ſtrive to eſcape; in this caſe the Bailiff is not bound to ſhew it, Co. 9. 69. 21 H. 7. 23. 14 H. 7. 9. Co. 6. 55.

If one after he have arreſted a man, when he ſhould carry him to Priſon, or to a Juſtice, carry him to his own houſe, or to the Priſon of another County, (unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes) or keep him longer at his houſe then is meet; in theſe caſes the party may have this Action as for an unlawful impriſonment. So if a Juſtice of Peace, in ſtead of ſending a Priſoner to Gaol where he ſhould have his Trial, will ſend him to another place, or keep him at his houſe; the party may have this Action againſt the Juſtices, per Cook & Foſter Juſtices. Kelw. 45. Plow. 38. Br. F. Imp. 25. 5 Ed. 4. 6. 14 H. 7. 5. Hil. 8 Jac. Bro Treſp. 247.

If one be arreſted by the Sheriffs or his Bailiffs, that by Law is bailable, and he tender them ſuch Bail as the Law requires, and they refuſe it, or detain him longer; the party may have this Action. 23 H. 6. FNB. 152. Plow: Co. Dyer 25. Sect. 9.

If a Sheriff or Bailiff of a Franchiſe arreſt a man upon a Capias ad reſpondend. and after they do not return the Writ, or return him with a Non eſt inventus: Now in this caſe the party may have againſt the Sheriff or Bailiff that arreſted him, an Action of Falſe Impriſonment, Co. 5. 90. Kelw. 81. 89. Plow. 16. 3 H. 7. 11. 21 H. 7: 12.

If a Warrant be to bring one before a Juſtice of Peace, if he do not put in Surety of the Peace, and he do ſo, and the party notwithſtanding apprehend him; the party arreſted may have this Action, Br. F. Impr. 17.

If a Warrant be to an Officer, to cauſe a man to find Sureties of the Peace or Good abearing, and the Officer arreſt him before the other is required to do it, and doth refuſe, he may have Falſe Impriſonment; for the Officer ought to do this firſt, 5 Ed. 4 12.

If a Court meddle with a thing wherewith they have nothing to do; as the Court of Common-Pleas, with Pleas of the Crown; the Leet, with Actions between party and party: There in that caſe, if any ſuch Court ſhall ſend out Precepts or Proceſs to arreſt men; in this caſe all the Officers or Miniſters that ſhall execute ſuch Proceſs or Precepts, ſhall be puniſhed in an Action of Falſe Impriſonment. But if the Court have juriſdiction of the Cauſe, and have erred only in their Proceeding, contra: As where a Capias in the Common-Pleas is awarded without an Original, or a Capias againſt a Duke, Earl, or the like; here no Action lieth againſt the Sheriff or other Officers for executing this Writ. And ſo in like manner in the Warrants of Juſtices of the Peace, if they do command any thing in or about ſuch matters as whereof they are Judges, or wherewith they have to do; although they miſtake or miſ-behave themſelves in the manner of their Proceeding, yet the Officer in that caſe is not to be puniſhed by Falſe Impriſonment. As if a Juſtice of Peace will ſend a Warrant to carry carry a man to Gaol for Felony, before any Indictment be againſt the Felon (which it ſeems he cannot do) and the Officer do ſo, no Action of Falſe Impriſonment will lie againſt the Officer. But if a Juſtice ſhall ſend a Warrant to an Officer to arreſt one for a Debt he doth owe him, and expreſs ſuch a cauſe in the Warrant, and he do ſo; in this caſe the Action may be brought againſt the Juſtice and the Officer alſo. And for this cauſe it ſhould ſeem reaſon that the Juſtice ſhould ſet down his cauſe in his Warrant, that the Officer may judg whether it be fit to be obeyed or no, and not by a kind of neceſſity be brought into danger, and cannot ſee to prevent it. But the experience is otherwiſe in many places, Wolſies Caſe M. 8 Jac. Co. 10. le caſe de Marſhalſey. Keſw. 192. 14 H. 8. 16. 24 Ed. 3. 9. 7 Ed. 3. 24. *Bro. Sect. 10. If one procure another to impriſon me wrongfully, I may have an Action of Falſe Impriſonment againſt them both, 12 H. 7. 15. Dyer 244.

If a Sheriff make a Warrant on a Cap. ad reſpondend. to arreſt a man, and after the Sheriff do not return the Capias; here howſoever this Action lieth againſt the Sheriff, yet it lieth not againſt the Bailiff. Contra, if he be a Bailiff of a Franchiſe, 20 H. 7. 1. 21 H. 7. 22.

The Heir, Executor or Adminiſtrator cannot be charged for the Falſe Impriſonment of the Anceſtor or Teſtator. See Action perſonal.

If a Plaintiff will bring an unlawful Warrant, and ſhew the Sheriff the party, and require him to arreſt him; or bring a good Warrant, and ſhew the Sheriff the wrong perſon, and require him to do it, the Action will be againſt them both, Br. Treſp. 307. 99.

6. Gaoler, what. It is one that hath the cuſtody of the place and Priſon wherein Priſoners are kept; and of theſe there be as many as Gaols and Priſons. Their duty and charge is, to look to their Priſoners that they eſcape not, at their peril; for they muſt anſwer for them. Alſo they muſt ſee that they have neceſſary proviſion: And for that the Law doth give them an Action of Debt to recover it againſt their Priſoner, in which Action the Priſoner ſhall not be ſuffered to wage his Law, becauſe the Gaoler is bound to give it him. Alſo they are to ſee that ſuch Priſoners as are in for Debt upon Executions, be kept in arcta cuſtodia, and have not too much liberty; for by this means they will be forced the ſooner to pay their Debts. The Gaoler it ſeems may put irons or bolts on any Priſoners legs that is committed to him, and juſtifie it, per Juſt. Bridgman, Trin. 8 Car. Mich. 9 *Jac. 7. Priſon, what. Priſoner, what. A Priſon is a ſtrong place or houſe for the ſafe keeping of Debters and Malefactors. And a Priſoner is he that is reſtrained of his Liberty in any Action Civil or Criminal, or upon any Commandment which may be upon matter of Record, as a Commitment in a Court; or upon matter of Fact, when it is upon an Arreſt by a Sheriff, Conſtable, or other.

Tower, what. It is the principal Priſon of the Nation, and therefore uſed for the principal Court, the High Court of Parliament, from whence they do commonly commit men to the Tower: And for the principal perſons, the Peers of the Land, which are always impriſoned there when they are impriſoned.

Marſhalſey and Marſhal, what. It is the proper, ordinary, and immediate Priſon for the Upper-Bench, for Priſoners that are committed out of, or condemned in that Court in Debts and other Civil Pleas. And the Sheriff, Gaoler, or Keeper, he is the Marſhal, who is an Officer attendant on the Upper-Bench, Dyer 297. 21 Ed. 4. 71.

Fleet, what. The Fleet is the proper, ordinary, and immediate Priſon for the Common-Pleas, for the Priſoners committed thence and condemned there in any Civil Plea; the Keeper and Guardian whereof is an Officer attendant on this Court. Alſo this Priſon doth belong to the Palace, Chancery, and Exchequer; and from thence they do uſually commit to this Priſon, Dyer 297. 21 Ed. 4. 71. Dyer 275.

Newgate, what. It is the uſual and proper Priſon unto which Criminal offenders are ſent from the Upper-Bench; and this Priſon is alſo uſed for ſuch kind of priſoners as are within the City of London, as the two Counters are uſed for ſuch as are in priſon for Debt there.

How a priſoner ſhall be conveyed to priſon. See 3 Jac. 10.

An Eſcape is, where one that is Arreſted, cometh to his liberty before he be delivered by Order of Law; and this is ſometimes in Deed, and ſometimes in Law only: Sometimes alſo it is voluntary, and this as it is a greater fault, ſo it is more ſeverely puniſhed: Sometimes it is negligent, which is not ſo great a fault, nor ſo ſeverely puniſhed, *Terms Ley. Co.*5.52. 3 Ed. 38. 8. Eſcape, what. The kindes of it.

The Voluntary is, when the party that hath the priſoner, doth turn him looſe, or ſuffer him willingly to eſcape. *Old Book of Entries, fol.*8.

The Negligent is, when the priſoner gets away by ſome neglect, but yet againſt the will of the Keeper that hath him.

The Eſcape in Deed is, when the priſoner is actually gone. The Eſcape in Law when the priſoner is ſtill in priſon notwithſtanding.

The Fruit and Conſequence of this is, That the party who doth ſuffer this Eſcape, ſhall be puniſhed according to the cauſe, for which the party was impriſoned: As if the priſoner were taken for Treaſon, then a voluntary Eſcape ſuffered of ſuch a priſoner, is Treaſon; and ſo for every offence, as the offence is. And if one do negligently againſt his will, ſuffer any ſuch priſoner to Eſcape, the party that ſo doth, is onely to be fined and impriſoned, and that more or leſs, as the cauſe of the impriſonment of the priſoner was at firſt. *Old Book of Entries, fol.*8. Stamf. 9 *H.*4. 1. See Cromp. Jur. 74,79,80, 105. 1 *R.*2.12. Sect. 11. 9. The fruit of it.

If the Arreſt and Impriſonment were for Debt or Damages upon an Execution, and the Sheriff, Gaoler, or Bailiffs that have the party in Execution, ſuffer him to eſcape voluntarily, and turn him at liberty, or willingly diſcharge him out of Execution; in this caſe the Sheriff or his Gaoler ſhall anſwer the Debt or Damages, for which the party was in Execution unto the Plaintiff, at whoſe Suit he was in Execution, which he may recover by Action of Debt againſt the Sheriff; and he hath no remedy againſt the priſoner, neither can he take him again upon that Execution: And though the Judgment, on which the Execution was, be erroneous, yet ſo long as it doth ſtand in force, it will not help the Sheriff. But if the Eſcape were negligent, and the priſoner get away againſt the will of the Sheriff, or the Gaoler; in that caſe, if he take the priſoner again in freſh purſuit, and before any Action of Debt brought by the Plaintiff upon the Eſcape, then the priſoner ſhall be ſaid to be in Execution as he was before, and the Sheriff or Gaoler ſhall not anſwer the Debt: But if they be ſued, they may plead in Bar, they took the priſoner upon a freſh purſuit; or if he cannot take him upon a freſh purſuit, howſoever in this caſe he muſt anſwer the Debt or Damages to the Plaintiff. Yet for his Counter-remedy againſt he priſoner, he may take him again at any time, or in any place within that County, or elſwhere, where he can finde him, and then may impriſon him, until he hath ſatisfied him as much as he hath paid to the Plaintiff; or elſe he may have an Action of the Caſe againſt the priſoner, and ſo relieve himſelf that way againſt him; or if the firſt Capias ad Sat' on which he was firſt arreſted, be not filed, he may take out a new Execution againſt him at the Suit of the Plaintiff, and take him by that. And after the Eſcape and Repriſal before the party hath his recompence of the Sheriff, he may take him to be in Execution for him again, if he will. But when once the Sheriff doth willingly diſcharge the priſoner, the Plaintiff can never after take out any new Execution againſt the priſoner, but muſt take his Remedy againſt the Sheriff. Co. 5.52. 6 *H.*7.12. 13 *H.*7.1. *Co.*3.52. 14 *H.*7.1. *Co.*9.69. *Co.*8.142. Plowd. 35.37.

Note here, that by freſh purſuit (before) is not meant onely when the purſuer hath the priſoner in ſight; but when he doth make a preſent purſuit after him, and in that purſuit he is taken, though he were out of view, and in another County; for thither alſo in that caſe, may the Sheriff purſue him, and there take him alſo, if he can finde him, *Plow.*35.37. Freſh purſuit, what.

If a Townſhip or Village ſuffer a Murderer to eſcape in the day, though he did his murder in the Fields, or Lanes, it ſhall be puniſhed by Amercement, and that whether they have notice of the murder, or not, Dyer 210.

No Warden of the Fleet ſhall ſuffer any priſoner in Execution, to go out of priſon by Mainpriſe, Bail, Baſton, without making gree to the party, unleſs by Writ or other Commandment of the Lord Protector, upon pain to loſe his office, and the party to have a Writ of Debt againſt him, 1 R. 2. 12.

Sect. 12. 10. What ſhall be ſaid an Eſcape of one in Execution, or not.

If a Sheriff or Gaoler ſuffer his priſoner in Execution to go abroad with his Keeper, or without his Keeper, unleſs it be by the Licenſe of the Lord Chief Juſtice, and of the party Plaintiff, or ſuffer him to go into another County out of his Cuſtody, though it be with his Keeper, and with Licenſe alſo; this is an Eſcape in Law, though he come to priſon again: But in London, by a ſpecial Cuſtom, in ſome caſe, the priſoner may go abroad with his Keeper, and it is no Eſcape. Plow. 36, 37.

If a man be in priſon on an Execution, and the Sheriff at the end of his year do not make him over by Indenture to his Succeſſor, though he tell him of it, and he knoweth there is ſuch a priſoner, yet the new Sheriff is not chargable with him; and therefore this is an Eſcape in the old Sheriff.

So if one man be in Execution for two Debts, and the Sheriff mention but one upon the Indenture; this is an Eſcape for the other. But if the old Sheriff die, then the new Sheriff is chargable for the priſoners he doth finde in priſon, without any Indenture or other notice. Co. 3. 72: 44.

If upon a Capias ad Satisfact' the Sheriff retorn that he hath taken the Body, but hath him not in Court the day of the Retorn of the Writ, although he be in Gaol, yet it ſeems this is an Eſcape in Law: But the practice of this day is otherwiſe. Ideo quere. 7 H. 4. 11. Bro. Eſcape 107.

If a Sheriff or Gaoler will let go his priſoner, and take a promiſe of him, that he will come again by ſuch a day; this is an Eſcape, though the party be come again at the day. Co. 3. 44.

If the King had commanded, or if a great man ſhould require the Sheriff or Gaoler, to diſcharge the priſoner, and he do ſo; this is an Eſcape. So if at any ſuch command, he let him go at liberty for a little while; this is an Eſcape. Dyer 278. 297. 13 H. 4. 13.

If a Woman-ſole be a Keeper of a priſon, and ſhe marry with one of her priſoners; this is an Eſcape in Law. So if a man have a priſon in Fee, and his Son and Heir be his priſoner, and he die, and the priſon deſcend to his Son; this is an Eſcape in Law, Plow. 37.

If one be Arreſted, and the party reſcue himſelf by violence, or another do reſcue him out of the Sheriffs hands, this is an Eſcape; for the Sheriff might have had Poſſe Comitatus to aid him; but if the Reſcue had been by the Kings enemies, contrà. Dyer 241. Co. 6. 54.

If the Baron and Feme be in Execution for the Debt of the Wife, and the Gaoler ſuffer the Wife to eſcape, this is an Eſcape which will make the Goaler chargable for the Debt. Dr. Suteliff verſus Sir George Reynel. Trin. 13 Jac. B. R. See Co. 3. 43.

If the priſoner do involuntarily eſcape, and the Sheriff do make a hot purſuit after him, and take him, though it be in another County; this is no Eſcape, Broo. Eſcape 4.

Where there is no Impriſonment at the time of the Eſcape, there is no Eſcape, as if a priſoner Eſcape; and after the Sheriff take him for himſelf, not upon a freſh purſuit, and after in the time of another Sheriff he doth eſcape; this is no Eſcape as to the Plaintiff, for he was not now in Execution for him.

So if a man be impriſoned by a Court that hath not power ſo to do: As if a Court Baron will grant a Capias to take a mans body in Execution, or the Court hath power, but doth not proceed legally. As if the Chancery will grant a Capias to take a mans body upon a Recognizance where no Capias doth lie, and the Sheriff do ſo, and after let him eſcape; or a Court will ſend a man to priſon on a Judgment for the Plaintiff, without any requeſt or deſire by him; or the party that doth Arreſt hath no Authority, as the Sheriff Arreſt without Proces, and after let the priſoner go: In all theſe caſes there is no Eſcape, 14 Hen. 7. 1. Dyer 66. 206. 197. 306. Bro. Eſcape 3.

If

If a Sheriff die, and a priſoner eſcape before another be made Sheriff; this is no Eſcape to charge the precedent or ſubſequent Sheriff, but the party may be taken in Execution again, upon the ſame Execution, Co. 3. 72.

If a priſoner in Execution eſcape, and the Gaoler make freſh Sute, and before his retaking, the party doth bring his Action againſt the Gaoler; in this caſe the Gaoler cannot retake, as for the Plaintiff to have him in Execution again, but for his own Indempnity. But if he do not bring his Action, then he may take him for the Plaintiff, Goldsb. 180. pl. 114.

If the Sheriff, Juſtice of the Court, and the Plaintiff in the Sute, Licenſe a priſoner to go for a time abroad, and he do ſo and return at his time, this is no Eſcape; but it ſeems the Gaoler or Sheriffs conſent muſt be in this caſe alſo, Dyer 275.

If a Sheriff or Gaoler be to bring a priſoner by Habeas Corpus, or the like, into a Court by a day, and the priſoner get away by the way, or the Keeper go out of the right way, or into another County; yet if he come by the day of the Retorn of the Writ in Court: theſe be no Eſcapes. Co 3. 42. Dyer 249.

If a Plaintiff by word Licenſe a Sheriff to deliver a priſoner, and he do ſo; this is no Eſcape. 27 H. 8. 24.

If a Priſon be burnt with fire, or broken by enemies of the Commonwealth, and hereby the priſoners get out; this is no Eſcape. Contrà, if it be broken by Rebels or Traytors. Dyer 66. Bro. Eſcape 10.

If a man be in Execution, and a Writ of Privilege is ſent to the Sheriff from Parliament, to deliver him, and he do ſo, this is no Eſcape; but after Parliament, he may take him again, Dyer 60.

If a priſoner be took from a Gaoler, by the Lord Protectors Writ, and then by a Court committed to another, this is no Eſcape in the firſt Gaoler. Dyer 249. 152.

If one arreſted on a Meſn Proces be reſcued, the Sheriff ſhall not be puniſhed for this; and if the party bring any Action, he may plead his Reſcous, but ſo he cannot upon an Execution. May verſus Proby, & Lumley vic' Middleſex, Adjudg. Hil. 14 Jac. B.R.

If a priſoner eſcape out of the Kings Bench, or Marſhalſey, or the Fleet, the Keepers of thoſe Priſons ſhall be charged, and the Action ſhall be brought againſt them. Sect. 13. 11. Who ſhall be charged for an Eſcape.

If a priſoner eſcape out of either of the Counters in London, the Action ſhall be brought againſt the Sheriffs of London.

If a priſoner eſcape out of any other Gaol in the Countrey, the Action muſt be brought againſt the Sheriff of the County, Dyer 278. 296. Co. 3. 52.

If a priſoner be removed out of the Fleet, that was there upon an Execution out of the Common Pleas, and he be removed by a Corpus cum cauſa, and then ſent to the Marſhalſey for another Debt; if he eſcape thence, the Gardein of the Marſhalſey ſhall be charged for the firſt and ſecond Debt, and not the Gardein of the Fleet, Dyer 152.

If an eſcape were in the time of a Predeceſſor Sheriff, the Succeſſor ſhall not be charged for it, but the Action ſhall be brought againſt the firſt Sheriff by the name of Nuper vic', Co. 3. 52.

If a Gaoler that hath the Fee of a Priſon, make a Leaſe of it for life or years, and the Leſſee ſuffer an Eſcape, the party grieved may ſue him; and if he be not ſufficient to anſwer it, he may ſue the Leſſor, Co. 4. 98. Dyer 278.

It is where one is kept in Priſon, or reſtrained from his liberty, contrary to Law, or threatned to be killed, maimed, or impriſoned; if he will not do ſome Act, or make ſome Deed, which he thereupon doth; now for this cauſe the Deed is void. And if the party to whom it is made, make any uſe of it, the party that made it may plead it was done by Dureſſe, and ſo avoid it: And yet the party ſo impriſoned may have his Action of falſe Impriſonment alſo, for the Impriſonment, Co. 1, 119. 2. 9. 2 Ed. 4. 19. Perk 16. 9 H. 7. 24. *Terms Ley. 1. There muſt be a Threatning, or Beating, or Impriſonment.

2. The Threatning muſt be of Life, Member, or Impriſonment.

3. It muſt be of the Life, Member, or Body of the party himſelf, that makes the Deed, or his Wife, or Childe.

4. Upon this the Deed muſt be made; and if either of theſe be wanting, it is no Dureſſe, Bro. Dureſſe 76. 18. 9 *H.*7. 24. 39 *H.*6. 50. Brownl. 2 part. 276. As in the Examples following.

If one threaten me, unleſs I will make him a Bond of forty pound, and I tell him I will not, but I will make him a Bond of twenty pound, and I do ſo, this is by Dureſſe. But if I ſay I will not do it, unleſs you give me five pound, and he do ſo; it ſeems this takes away the force, and yet if it move firſt from him, as I will give you five pound, and you ſhall give me a Bond of forty pound; here it ſhall be judged by Dureſſe, and ſo void.

If four do threaten one to impriſon him, if he will not ſeal a Deed to one of them four, and he do ſo for fear of this; this is void. So if one threaten, unleſs he will ſeal to four, and he do ſo, it is void to all four of them, Broo. Dureſſe 1.

If one threaten or impriſon a man till he ſwear, or promiſe he will ſeal ſuch a Deed, and afterwards he doth it accordingly at another time, and in another place out of priſon, and without threatning; yet this ſhall be ſaid to be done by Dureſſe, and therefore void, Broo. Dureſſe 7. 11. 20. 21 *Ed.*4.6.

If one threaten to kill a man, unleſs he will make a Deed to J. S. a ſtranger, and he do ſo; this is void, as if it were to the party himſelf, Broo. Dureſſe 9. 20.

If one that is in priſon for another, upon a lawful cauſe, and I ſhall procure them to be uſed more ſeverely in priſon; by this means to compel him to make ſome Deed, and thereupon he do ſo; this ſhall be ſaid per Dureſſe and void, Broo. Dureſſe 2. 10. Brownl. Reg. 1 part. 64.

If a man be impriſoned at my Sute, be the cauſe unjuſt, or not, and he will then make an Obligation to another; this is good, and cannot be ſaid to be per Dureſſe. Terms Ley.

If one threaten me to take away my Goods, burn or break my Houſe, enter upon my Land, or to kill or wound my Father or Mother, Brother, or Siſter, or Friend, or do impriſon any of them; and hereupon I ſeal a Deed, this is good, and ſhall not be ſaid per Dureſſe, 7 *Ed.*4.21. 20 *Aſſ. pl.*14. 18 *H.*6.21. 21 *Ed.*4.13. 15 *H.*6.17. 11 *Ed.*4.13. 8 *H.*6.8. *Co.*2.9. Some affirm the contrary upon threats to Father or Childe, 15 *Ed.*4.1.

If one diſtrain my Beaſts, to compel me to ſeal a Deed, and will not deliver them, unleſs I do ſo, and threaten me, that unleſs I will ſeal the Deed, if I take my Cattle again, he will beat and kill me; this is no Dureſſe, and therefore if I do ſeal upon this any Deed, the Deed is good enough, Broo. Dureſſe 16.

If a man be arreſted and impriſoned upon good cauſe, and being in priſon make an Obligation, or other Deed to him, at whoſe Sute he was arreſted, or to any other for his enlargement; it is good enough: As if Auditors do commit an Accomptant to priſon, and then he make an Obligation to his Maſter for the Arrearages; or if one in priſon for Felony, will grant a Reverſion to one to help him out of his trouble, it is good enough, Dyer 143. Broo. Dureſſe 17. 11. 4. 6. Mansfields caſe in C. B.

If A. and B. by Dureſſe to B. ſeal a Deed, the Deed is good to A. that was never threatned, M. 7 Jac.

If one make an Obligation by Dureſſe, and after being at large, take a Defeaſance upon it; this makes the Obligation good, and doth eſtop him to ſay it was by Dureſſe, 3 *H.*6.16. Broo. Defeaſance 17.

If a ſtranger be impriſoned by another ſtranger, and kept in priſon until another, as Surety for the ſtranger, make a Bond; this is not avoidable by this Plea, Brownl. 1 part. 64. But if a Court that had no power to impriſon a man (as the High Com-Commiſſion formerly) in things out of their power, had impriſoned a man, and took Bond of him for a Fine; this had been, and ſtill will be void upon this account, Brownl. 2 part. 14.

Sect. 14. 14. Bail, what.

It is where a man is taken and arreſted for any cauſe whatſoever, for that he is reſtrained of his liberty, and for being under Arreſt, doth give Bond to appear at the Aſſizes, Seſſions, or other Court; then upon this he is bailed (i. e.) ſet at liberty till his day of Appearance come. And if he be not bailable, the parties that bailed him, may be puniſhed, Terms Ley Bail. 4 Ed. 3. 2.

Mainpriſe, what.

It is where a man is arreſted in ſome ſpecial caſe, then the Judge may deliver his body to certain men to keep, to bring him at his day; and theſe be called Main pervors, who if the party appear not at the day, are to be amerced: And where a man arreſted, is bailable, and cannot be bailed, he may have a Writ of Mainpriſe to bail him, Terms Ley Main Pervors, F.N.B. 249. 9.

15. Who may be bailed, or not.

Such as are arreſted on mean Proces, Writ, Bill, or Warrant, in Actions Perſonal, or Indictment for Treſpaſs, are Bailable. Such as are accuſed of Receipt of Felons, of Commandment, or Force, or Aid, in Felony done, and a man appealed by an Approver after the death of the Approver (if he be no common Thief, or defamed) ſhall be let out of priſon by a Surety, 33 H. 6. 10. Plow. 67. Weſtm. 1. 15. Daltons J. CHAP. XCIX.

Incident, Appendant, Parcel or Adjacent, Intent and Incontinency.

1. Incident, what. The kindes.

INcidents are ſuch things as depend on other things more principal, to which they are in a manner acceſſary; and theſe are ſometimes called Appendant, and ſometimes Appurtenant; and theſe are of a different nature and conſideration: For ſome of them are, as it were, Parcel of the things themſelves that are the principals, as the Glaſs-windows, Doors, Wainſcots, and other Appendix of a Houſe to the houſe it ſelf, Trees, Hedges, Ways, and Waters to the ground, in which they are. Some of them are ſo Incident to their principal, that they cannot be divided from it, and yet continue to be: As a Court Baron to a Manor, Court of Pipowders to a Fair, and Eſtovers to a Houſe: Charters of Land to the Land, and Common Appendant unto the Land, to which it is Appendant.

And theſe Incidents howſoever they are not needful to the eſſe, yet to the bene eſſe of the things themſelves they are needful; and therefore the Law hath ſuch a care to preſerve them: And for this cauſe it is, That if a Common of Eſtovers do belong to a Houſe, and after the Houſe fall, or be gone, it ſhall continue to the place, where the Houſe ſtood.

And theſe two kindes of Incidents are ſo inherent to the Principals, that by the Grant of the one, the other is granted, and they cannot be extinct by Releaſe, nor ſaved by Exception from the other; but in ſpecial caſes, though it be not named, as the Glaſs, and the reſt, by the Grant of the Houſe, Trees by the Grant of the Ground, and the Court Baron by the Grant of a Manor, and ſo the reſt.

And the third ſort of theſe Incidents, are ſuch as may or may not have Dependance on their Principals, and will ſtand well enough without them: As an Advowſon, Villain, Leet, Warren, and the like; all which may be Appendant to a Manor by Preſcription of Continuance of Uſage, time out of minde; or may be, or be made in Groſs, being ſevered from their principal; of this nature alſo is a Rent Incident to a Reverſion, Co. ſuper Littl. f.93.

And theſe alſo paſs by the Grant of the principal, without any other words of Cum pertinentiis: See Broo. Incidents in toto. Perk. ſect. 112. Dyer 288. 14 H.8. 25. Co. 11. 50. 8 Hen. 7. 54. Plow. 3. 81. Co. 4. 38. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 121, 122. 143. 151, 152. See much of this in the New Book of Executors, fol. 5.

2. What things ſhall be ſaid to be Parcel of, or Incident to other things, and go with them, or not.

All things that are annexed and faſtned to the Houſe by Nails, Skrews, or Pins, or by Morter or Stones, though it be ſet there by the charge of a Leſſee, as Glaſs, Wainſcot, Tables, Shelves, Vates turneis, and the like: Alſo Doors, Locks, Keys, and the like, are ſo Incident to the Houſe, that being once there ſet on by whomſoever, they cannot be ever after divided from the Houſe, unleſs it be by him that hath the Inheritance, that may pull it down if he will: And therefore if any Leſſee for life or years, ſhall ſet on to any Houſe any ſuch thing, he cannot after take it away, neither before nor after the end of his Term; much leſs then when they are fixed by the charge of another; and therefore theſe do go with the Houſe, and the Heir hath them that hath the Houſe, and the Executor as Chattels. See Chattels. Co. 4. 63. 21 *H.*7:26. 20 *H.*7.13.

Land, Meadow, Paſture, Wood, and divers other things are Parcel of a Manor, and Incident to it; for this word is a Compound and Collective word. So Lands, Meadows, or Paſture, may be Parcel of a Monaſtery, Rectory, Caſtle, or Honor:

So

So alſo Tithes, Offerings, and Glebe Land, are Parcel of Parſonage or Vicaridge, Plow. 170. 168. 15 *H.*7. 8.

Fealty is Incident to Homage, and Homage and Knights Service to Eſcuage, and by Grant of Service, Eſcuage doth paſs, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 *part, fol.*69.

Fealty is an Incident inſeparable to a Tenure or Reverſion, Co. ſuper Littl. 93. 143.

So is a Diſtreſs to Homage, Fealty, and Eſcuage, Co. ſuper Littl. 150 b. Cromp. Jur. 113. 116 a.

If one grant me to put Pipes in his Ground to bring water to my houſe; now as Incident to this Grant, I may come upon the Ground to amend my Pipes when there is need. So if I have Trees growing in another mans Ground, I muſt have as Incident to it, ſo much of the Soil as to nouriſh the life Vegetative of the Trees, 9 *Ed.*4.35. Co. 11. 49. 5. 11. 21 *H.*6. 47.

Fire-boot, Houſ-boot, Plough-boot, and Hay-boot, is Incident to every Leaſe for life or years. See Houſ-boot, 9 H 7. 21.

A Diſtreſs is Incident to every Fine or Amercement in a Law-day. See Leet and Fine.

The Qualities of Dower, Courteſie, Diſpuniſhment of Waſte, and power to ſuffer a Common Recovery, are Incident to an Eſtate-tail: See Tail, Co. 10. 30.

Rent and Services reſerved upon any particular Eſtate, are Incident to the Reverſion thereof: Alſo Fealty is Incident to Homage, and to every Tenure. Diſtreſs and Fealty is Incident to Rent-ſervice: A Rent ſeparably, Fealty inſeparably is Incident to the Reverſion, Co. ſuper Littl. 150. And by the Grant of the Reverſion, all the Services will paſs, Co. ſuper Littl. 237. Kelw. 136. Co. 4. 127. Co. ſuper Littl. 151.

Incorporeal things, as Advowſons, Allains, Ways, Courts, Fiſhings, Commons, or the like, may properly be Parcel of, or at leaſt Appendant to Corporeal things, as Houſes, Lands, Manors, and the like. Et ſic contra, Plow. 170. Co 4. 38. Co. ſuper Littl. 122. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, fol. 49.

A Forreſt may be Appendant to an Honor, Land to an Office, or an Office to Land; an Advowſon, Market, Fair, or Warren, Leet, Hundred, and ſuch like, may be Appendant to a Manor. Ways, Commons, Fiſhings, and the like, may be Appurtenant to Lands, Meadows, Paſtures or Rents. A Leet may be Appendant to a Hundred. A Waiff or Eſtray may be Appendant to a Leet, or to a Manor. A Villain Regardant, an Advowſon Appendant, are Incident to a Manor, and paſs without Cum pertinentiis, 11 *H*7. 16. 33 *H.*6. 45. Plow. 170. 8 *H.*7. 5. 4 *Ed.*4. 29. 6 *H.*7. 1. Co. ſuper Littl. 367. March. 76. pl. 115.

A Reverſion Expectant on a Franck-tenement, may be Parcel or Appendant to a Franck-tenement or Inheritance in Poſſeſſion. And all theſe Appendancies may be made by Preſcription of Uſage time out of minde, Co. 11. 47. & 6. 64. Plow. 70.

If one Leaſe a Manor, except an Acre; now this Acre as to the Leſſor, is no part of the Manor, but as to him that hath right by a Title, it is Parcel; and therefore he need not make any Farſpriſe in his Writ, Plow. 104.

If one ſell a Manor, excepting the Woods and Underwoods, and Hierons, and Hawks breed in the Wood, the Leſſor ſhall have them, not the Leſſee. See Attorns, Co. ſuper Littl. 324. ut Littl. 591. 14 *H.*8. 11.

A Waiff or Eſtray, is not as Parcel, nor inſeparably Incident to a Leet, nor one liberty to another, as a Leet to a Hundred, or the like, but by Common Uſage, time out of minde, they may become Appurtenant or Appendant; nor a Rent to Homage or Fealty. 8 *H.*7. 5. 12 *H.*7. 18. Plow. 332. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 150.

Toll, Pickage, and Stallage, is not of Common Right, Incident to a Fair or Market, as the Court of Pipowder is to a Fair, F. Curia, Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. But by Preſcription perhaps may become Incident.

No Corporeal things are, or can be incident to, or parcel of other things of the ſame nature and ſubſtance, as one houſe to another, or Land, Meadow, Paſture, Rent, or the like, to a Houſe or to Rent, unleſs it be in caſe where that to which it is incident,

incident, be a compounded thing, as a Manor, Farm, Caſtle, Honor, or the like; for to ſuch, Land, Meadow, and Paſture, may be incident. See before. Plow. 170. 85. Bro, Incident 29.

A Leet cannot be Appendant to a Church or Chappel, nor Common of Turbary to Land, nor Common Appendant to Meadow, or Paſture, Co. 4. 38. Bonâ fellomi, and ſuch like Royal Franchiſes cannot be Appendant to any Manor or Houſe, or the like, Co. 10. 68.

A Franck-tenement or Inheritance in Poſſeſſion, cannot be Parcel and Appendant to a Reverſion, Expectantona, Co. 11. 47.

Franck-tenement, for which ſee Grant.

Fealty or Reverſion is not inſeparable to the Rent, neither will it paſs by the Grant of it, Co. ſuper Littl. 150. 324, 325.

One Office cannot be Appendant to another properly; but there be ſome great Offices that have other Offices, as incident to theirs, by common uſe of time out of minde, as the Chief Juſtices; and ſo now they are become Appendant, Plow. 138.

If one make a Leaſe of an Incorporeal thing, rendring Rent; this Rent is not incident to, neither will it paſs by the Grant of the Reverſion, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part: fol. 47.

3. Where things Incident may be ſevered, and how, or not.

The Wainſcot doors, or any other part of a Houſe, may be ſevered from a Houſe, by him that hath the Feoffment of the Houſe. A man may bar himſelf of his liberty, to amend his Pipe that hath it (as in the caſe above.) A man may ſever his Tithes and Offerings, from his Gleab. A Leſſee may bar himſelf of his Fire-boot, Hay-boot, and Plough-boot, by Agreement; for Modus & conventio vincunt legem. And a man of his power to diſtrain in ſome caſes where his Diſtreſs is incident; And a man of his power to diſtrain in ſome caſes, where his Diſtreſs is Incident. And the Tenant in Tail in ſome caſes, may be barred of the Privileges and Qualities that are Incident to his Eſtate, Broo. Incid. in toto. 7 Ed. 4. 11. Brownl. Rep. 2 part. 192, 193.

But a Court Baron cannot be ſevered from a Manor, nor a Manor from the Court, for theſe live and die together: So neither can a Court of Pipowders be ſevered from a Fair, Common of Eſtovers from the Houſe, to which it doth belong, nor Common from the Land, to which it doth append; but theſe Commons may by a means be extinct. See Common. Plow. 381. Co. 11. 77. 914. Doct. & Stud. 75. 26 Aſſ. pl. 66.

Homage and Fealty cannot be parted, nor Fealty from a Tenure; nor Wardſhip and Marriage from Eſcuage: But Rent may be ſevered from a Reverſion, and ſo it may from Fealty; for it is but incident ſeparable, yet it paſſeth by Grant of the Rent, unleſs it be ſaved. Co. ſuper Littl. 151. Co. 9. 127. 8 H. 6. 5. 5 H. 7. 7.

Fees or Annuities for Offices, cannot be ſevered from the Offices, whiles the Offices continue. See for this, Plow. 381.

If one grant Wood to be burnt in ſuch a Houſe; this may not be granted from the Houſe, but he that hath the Houſe, ſhall have the Wood.

4. Where things once Appendant, become Diſappendant or Extinct.

If the King had a Manor to which an Advowſon is Appendant, and he grant the Manor, and not name the Advowſon in ſpecial; now hereby the Advowſon is ſevered, and become in Groſs: So if one Leaſe a Manor for life, excepting one Acre Parcel of it; hereby this Acre is ſevered. So if one Diſſeiſe a man of an Acre Parcel of a Manor, hereby this Acre is divided till by his Entry it be united. And if in all theſe Caſes, the owner of the Manor do after grant the Manor or the Reverſion of it, the Advowſon or Acre of Land doth not paſs. Co. 10. 64. 11. 47. Dyer 48.

If one Diſſeiſe me of Common Appendant belonging to my Manor, and during the Diſſeiſon, I ſell the Manor; now hereby the Common is extinct for ever. Co. 11. 47. 40 Ed. 3. 21.

If a Lord will releaſe his Services to his Tenant, hereby they are extinct.

CHAP.

Of Intent.

INtent is the true meaning of men, and their minde in their words, ſayings, and doings: And this in ſome caſes, the Law hath much regard unto, and in ſome not. As in Acts of Parliament, the intent and minde of the Law-makers is much regarded. In Arbitrements, the Intent and Minde of the Arbitrators; in Wills and Teſtaments, the Intent and Minde of the Teſtator; alſo in Deeds and Publick Inſtruments, in Bargains and Contracts, the Law hath much reſpect to the Intent of the Parties: And therefore in divers caſes, if the Intent be ſatisfied, though the words be not, the Law is ſatisfied with this: As if a Feoffment be made on Condition, that the Feoffee ſhall make a Gift in Special Tail to the Feoffor, and his Wife by ſuch a day, and they both, or one of them die before the day, leaving iſſue behinde them, and then the Feoffee make back an Eſtate in the firſt caſe, to the Iſſue, and the Heirs of the Body of the Father and Mother, and in laſt to the Survivor of them, without impeachment of Waſte, the Remainder to the Iſſue in Tail; howſoever this be no performance of the words; yet becauſe it is as near the Intent as may be, the Law doth accept of this as a good performance of the Condition. So è contra when the words are fully performed, and not the Intent, the Law will not be ſatisfied with it: And therefore in the caſe above, if the Feoffee had made a Feoffment to another before, or granted a Rent-charge out of the Land, or the like; and after, before the day, make back an Eſtate according to the Condition; yet the Law will not allow this for a performance of the Condition, and yet he doth as much as is in the words, Littl. Condit. 82. Plow. 29. 28. See 23 *H.*7. 4. Intent, what. Regard.

In ſome caſes the Law doth not regard mens Intent, as when men ſhall do evil, when they ſay they intended none; or do more evil when they intend leſs: Here they ſhall be puniſhed according to their Deed, and not according to their intent; as if one intend onely to beat a man, and therein happen to kill him. So if Mens Wills and Teſtaments have any thing in them contrary, and repugnant to any rule of Law, the Law will not regard it, nor labor to fulfil it.

Of Incontinency and Baſtardy.

AS to the point of Incontinency, we are to know there are divers degrees thereof. Firſt, There is Bigamy, the having of more Wives then one, wherein theſe things are to be known. It is Felony for any one having a Husband or Wife, and knowing him or her to be alive, to marry another Husband or Wife: Secondly, But if the Husband or Wife have been ſeven years together beyond Sea; or they have been ſeven years together one from another in any part of the Kings Dominions; the one of them then not knowing the other to be alive within this time; or they were duly divorced from the firſt Husband or Wife, or the firſt marriage be duly declared to be void, or the firſt marriage were made within age of conſent; In all theſe caſes it is no Felony, 1 Jac. 11. Bigamy, or Double Marriage:

And as to Adultery, theſe things are to be known. Adultery.

1. It is Felony for a Woman, knowing her firſt Husband to be alive, or not having been three years abſent, continually beyond Sea, or elſwhere continually from her, ſo long ſhe not knowing him alive within that time, or by common report reputed to be dead; to be known by a man, it is Felony in both of them.

2. It is Felony for any man to lie with a married Woman, if he know her to be ſo, Act, 10 May, 1650. Fornication.

3. If any others lie together, or if any one be a Baud, or keep a Baudy-houſe, the ſecond offence in both theſe caſes, is Felony, Act, 10 May, 1650. Baud.

4. As to Inceſt, it is to be known, That it is Felony for any one to lie with his, or her Grand-father or Grand-mother, Father or Mother, Brother or Siſter, Son or Daughter, or Grand-childe, Father, Brother or Siſter, Fathers Wife, Mothers Inceſt.

Husband, Sons Wife, Daughters Husband, Wives Mother or Daughter, Husbands Father or Son, Act, 10 May, 1650.

Buggery. Sodomy. 5. It is Felony to commit Buggery with a Beaſt, or to commit Buggery, or Sodomy with a man, 25 Hen. 8. 6. 5 Eliz. 17. Co. 3 part of Inſt. cap. 10.

Rape. 6. It is Felony to raviſh or force any Wife, Widow, or Maid, againſt her will, albeit ſhe do after agree, and conſent to it, 13 Ed. 1. 34. 6 Rich. 2. 6. Co. 2 part. Inſt. cap. 11.

7. It is Felony carnally to know any Maid that is at that time under age of ten years, albeit ſhe be conſenting to it at the time, 18 Eliz. 6.

8. For Fornication, the firſt offence the offender is to be ſent to Gaol three moneths without Bail, and until ſecurity given for the Good-behavior, for one whole year; or the Juſtice of Peace may binde to the Good-behavior for a leſs time, at his diſcretion, Act, 10 May, 1650.

9. A Baud, or one that keeps a Baudy-houſe, is for the firſt offence to be whipped, ſet on the Pillory, burned on the Forehead with the Letter B. put in Bridewel for three years, and bound to the Good-behavior for her life, Act, 10 May, 1645. Co. 3 part Inſt. cap 98.

10. If there be a Baſtard in the Caſe, the Reputed Father thereof, at the requeſt of any Pariſh, (in danger to be charged therewith) is to be bound to the Good-behavior, and to be at the next Seſſions, that he may be forth-coming.

11. The Woman that hath the Baſtard, when ſhe is delivered, and recovered, is for the firſt offence to be ſent to Bridewel a year; and for the ſecond offence ſhe is to be ſent thither, till ſhe put in Sureties for her Good-behavior, and not ſo to offend again.

12. If the Juſtices out of, or in the Seſſions, make any order for the keeping of and ſecuring the Pariſh in danger to be charged, the party charged to be the Father, and the Mother muſt obey it, or be committed to Gaol till they do it, 18 Eliz. 3. 7 Jac. 4.

13. The Laws of Bigamy in other caſes, then as before, are now void, and the marriage of all orders of men, and ſecond marriages lawful to all, and not prejudicial to any. See 1 Ed. 6. 12. 10 Eliz. 7. And ſee more for Baſtards, in Baſtard, and my Book of Juſtice of Peace.

CHAP. C.

Of Joyntenants, Parceners, and Tenants in Common.

Sect. 1. 1. Joyntenants, what.

JOyntenants are ſuch as have, and come by Lands or Tenements, Goods, or Chattels, by one and the ſame joynt Means and Title, as in the caſes hereafter following. As if Lands be given or granted by Fine, Recovery, &c. Deed, or without Deed, or Deviſed by Will to two or more, and their Heirs, or to two or more for their lives, or for other lives, or to two or more for years. (But between Baron and Feme after marriage, there is no Moyety, but each of them hath all, Co. ſuper Littl. 187, 188.)

So if Goods, or any other Chattels, be given or granted to two or more, and they have it in Poſſeſſion, or in Right; in all theſe caſes the Donees or Grantees are Joyntenants.

So if a Contract be made to two or more, or a Recognizance or Obligation be made to two or more, the parties to whom the Contract is made, the Conuſees and Obligees

Obligees are Joyntenants of this Debt or Duty: And between theſe Joyntenants there is a twofold Privity in Eſtate, and in Poſſeſſion, Co. ſuper Littl. 169. Alſo Joyntenants may be of an Eſtate by wrong; but this Jus accreſcendi inter mercatores pro beneficio commercii locum non habet: As of two Merchants for the Wares, Merchandiſes, Debts, or Duties, that they have as joynt Partners or Merchants. See Terms Ley, Littl. fol 62. Broo. Joyntenants 17. Plow. 10. 72. Dyer 250. 305. Co. 3. 26, 29. 1. 85. Noy, chap. 6. Co. ſuper Littl. 182.

2. Where a man ſhall be ſaid to be a Joyntenant, or not.

If an Advowſon be granted to A. & B. Habendum eis & uni eorum conjunctim & diviſim; it ſeems by this they are Joyntenants, Dyer 304.

If Lands be given to two & uni eorum diutius viventi; hereby they are Joyntenants for life, Co. 1 1. 4.

If Lands be given or granted to two, without limitation of any Eſtate; hereby they are Joyntenants for life, Co. 8. 95.

If Lands be given or granted to two or more Habendum to them ſucceſſive, they are hereby Joyntenants. So if Lands be granted to two or more, and to him that ſhall ſurvive, they are by this Limitation, Joyntenants. Broo. Joyntenants 33. And this is ſo, whether the Grant be for life or years. See Broo. Joyntenants 140. Whitlocks caſe, M. 3 Jac. B.R. Broo. Treſpaſs 54.

If a Leaſe be made to two, or more for years, with a Proviſo, That if they die within the Term, that the Term ſhall ceaſe, hereby they are Joyntenants, Dyer 67.

If Joyntenants be ouſted or diſſeiſed, and ſue for and recover again, they ſhall be Joyntenants as they were at firſt, Co. ſuper Littl. 188.

If Chattels Real or Perſonal be granted to a Biſhop, or the like, and another, or to two Corporations, or the like; here they are Joyntenants: And it is not as in the caſe of Lands ſo granted, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 190.

If Leſſee for years grant his Term to another, and a Woman, they are Joyntenants.

But if Goods be given to a Woman, and another, the Husband of the Woman, and the other, are Tenants in Common.

If a Leaſe be made to two or more, Habendum eis ad terminum vitæ eorum conjunctim & alterius diutius viventis, ac aſſignatis ſuis qui primus eorum diſcedere contingat durante vita ejus qui ſuperſtes; hereby they are Joyntenants, Dyer 46. Co. of Copihold 142.

If an Eſtate be made to a Husband and Wife, and a third perſon, hereby they are Joyntenants, the Husband & Wife, hath a Moyety, and the other perſon, the other Moyety, Litt.

If Leſſee for life grant to him in Reverſion, and two others, for two parts in three parts, the other men are Joyntenants, Broo. Joyntenants 14.

If Lands be given to two Men or Women, or more, and the Heirs, or Heirs Males, or Heirs Females of their Bodies, or in any ſuch like manner; hereby they are Joyntenants for their lives, and they have ſeveral Inheritances, and their Iſſues after ſhall be Tenants in Common, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 182, 183. Dyer 350. Littl. fol. 62, 63, 64.

If Lands be given to two or more, and the Heirs, or Heirs Males of the Body of one of them; hereby they are Joyntenants for their lives, and one hath the Inheritance, Dyer 350. Co. 3. 60.

If one make a Feoffment in Fee to the uſe of himſelf, and his wife that ſhall be, and after he take a wife, ſhe ſhall be Joyntenant with him, Co. 1. 101.

If Joyntenants Exchange their Lands, they have in Joyntenancy for other Lands, they ſhall be Joyntenants of their other Land, as they were of this, unleſs they agree to have it in Common, Perk. 55, 56.

If two Men or more do Diſſeiſe another, now hereby they are Joyntenants of this Eſtate, which they have got by the Diſſeiſion, unleſs they made the Diſſeiſon to the uſe of another, or to the uſe of one of them, Littl. cap. Joyntenants, ſect. 62.

If one Diſſeiſe to the uſe of two, and one agree at one time, the other at another, they are Joyntenants, Co. ſuper Littl. 188.

If a Rent-charge of ten pound be granted to A. and B. habendum to them two, viz. to A. until he be married, and to B. until he be advanced unto a Benefice; theſe be Joyntenants in the mean time; and if A. die before marriage, the Rent ſhall ſurvive, but if A. had married, the Rent ſhould have ceaſed for a Moyety, Et ſic è converſo. See more there. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 180, 299, 300.

If a Leaſe be made to three joyntly in the Premiſſes of the Deed, habendum to one for life, the Remainder to another for life, the Remainder to the third for life; hereby they are not Joyntenants, but have one in Remainder after another, Dyer 260.

If one Demiſe to two habendum to one for years, and to the other for life, they are no Joyntenants, Co. ſuper Littl. 188.

If Lands be given to a Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their Bodies, here is no Joyntenancy between them, Co. 10. 50.

If two or more Diſſeiſe another to the uſe of one of them, they are not Joyntenants, Littl. ſect. 62.

If a Leaſe be made to two or more Habendum eis pro termino vitæ eorum eſſe alteri, eorum diutius viventi ſucceſſive uni eorum poſt alterum ſicut nominantur in Indentura, & non conjunctim, and Livery of Seiſin be made accordingly, hereby the Leſſees are not Joyntenants, but ſhall take one after another, vide pur ceo Tenants in Common: For where there is a Tenancy in Common, there is no Joyntenancy: But if an Indent be between A. of the one part, and B. of the other part; and thereby A. demiſe to B. C. and D. habendum to them ſucceſſive, there C. and D. muſt take by way of Remainder, and not joyntly, Dyer 361.

If a man make a Leaſe for life, and after grant the Reverſion to the Tenant for life, and another and their Heirs, they are not Joyntenants of the Reverſion, but the one hath all for life, and the Reverſion between them.

So if two be Tenants for life, and the Reverſion is granted to one of them, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 182.

So if Leſſee for life, grant his eſtate to him in Reverſion, and a ſtranger.

So if a man make a Leaſe for life, and grant the Reverſion to two in Fee, and the Leſſee grant his Eſtate to one of them.

If Lands be given to two & heredibus, it is void, and doth limit no Eſtate.

If Lands be given to a man, and ſuch a woman as ſhall be his wife, here is no Joyntenancy, but the man ſhall have the whole. But if one make a Feoffment in Fee to the uſe of himſelf, and of ſuch wife as he ſhall after marry for their lives, when he takes a wife, they are Joyntenants, Co. 1. 101. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 188.

If Lands be demiſed for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and of J. H. J. S. hath iſſue and dieth, and after J. H. hath iſſue and dieth, the iſſue are not Joyntenants, becauſe the Moyeties veſted at ſeveral times, Co. ſuper Littl. Idem.

Sect. 2. 3. Where the Survivor ſhall have all by right of Survivorſhip.

The nature of this Tenure is, that every Joyntenant is ſeiſed of the whole thing, whether Lands or Goods, of which he is a Joyntenant, and they have it pro indiviſo, and if one of them die naturally or civilly, ſo long as the Joyntenancy doth continue, the ſurviving Joyntenant ſhall have his part, and ſo he that doth live laſt and longeſt, ſhall have the whole, and neither of their parts ſhall go to their Heirs, Executors, or Adminiſtrators, as long as there be any other Joyntenant left to take it, and this is called Jus accreſcendi, Co. ſuper Littl. 181. Plow. 203. Co. 6. 76. Littl fol. 280, 281. Broo. Joyntenancy 38.

In all the caſes above, if one of the Joyntenants die, his part ſhall go to the ſurvivor; as if three Joyntenants be of Land in Fee, and one have iſſue, and die, the Land ſhall go to the other two ſurvivors; and if one of them die, the laſt liver ſhall have the whole, and his Heirs for ever, Littl. fol. 62. Dyer 187. Co. 1. 76.

So if two or more have a Leaſe for years, or a Wardſhip, and one of them die, the ſurvivor ſhall have the whole, and not the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the deceaſed Joyntenant, Littl. f. 62.

So

So if a Recognizance, Bill, or Contract, be made to two, or more, and one die, the Survivors, not his Executors, or Administrators, ſhall take the benefit of it, Littl. f. 62. Broo. Joyntenants 7. 17.

So if the Obligation were to Baron and Feme, and he die, ſhe may ſue, and ſhall have it.

And in all theſe caſes the Survivor may ſue in his own name alone, Broo. Joyntenants 44. 6 Ed. 4. 8. 22 H. 8. 1.

If the Baron and Feme, and a third perſon are Joyntenants into, and the Husband ſell away the whole, and die, and after his Wife die; now by Survivorſhip the right of Action, to recover the whole, is come to him, and it ſeems he ſhall recover the whole.

If two Joyntenants be in a Fee, and one make a Leaſe for years of his own part, rendring Rent, and die, the Survivor ſhall have the Reverſion, but not the Rent, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 185. Dyer 187. For he comes in Paramount.

If a Feme-ſole and another be Joyntenants of a Leaſe for years, and after ſhe take a Husband, and die, the ſurviving Joyntenant ſhall have the whole; for the Joynture was not ſettled by marriage, but the Husband might have ſevered it, if he would in his Wives life. Plow. 4. 18. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 185.

If three or more Joyntenants be, and one Releaſe to them all, it ſeems, that yet the Joyntenancy doth continue, and that the Survivor amongſt them, ſhall have the whole, Broo. Joyntenants 2.

If a Feme-Covert and a ſtranger be Joyntenants of a Term, and the Huſband have the Fee-ſimple, and after the wife die, the ſtranger ſhall have the whole by Survivorſhip, for here the Joynture was not ſevered. Plow. 4. 19, 20.

If two Joyntenants be, and one become in debt to the Lord Protector, and die, it ſeems the Survivor ſhall have the whole, yet ſee the Statute of the 13 Eliz. cap. 4.

If the Limitation be to A. and B. and the Heirs or Heirs Male of B. here if B. die A. ſhall have the whole by Survivorſhip, and if A. die, B. hath the Fee-ſimple, Littl.

If two Joyntenants be of a Rent, and it be behinde for many years, and one of them die, the Survivor ſhall have all the Arrearages, and may bring an Action and recover them, Broo. Joyntenants 3.

So if two Joyntenants be of a Manor, and a Bailiff receive the profits for many years, and then one of them die, the Survivor alone ſhall have all the Arrearages, and may by Action recover them. See the Statute of Broo. Joyntenants, fol. 22.

So if a Husband and Wife loſe an Advowſon in a Quare impedit, by a falſe Oath, and the Husband die, ſhe alone ſhall bring the Attaint, and not the Executors, Heir, or Adminiſtrator of the Husband, though the damages recovered againſt them were paid out of the Goods of the Husband. Broo. Joyntenants, fol. 7.

If Baron and Feme before marriage, be Joyntenants in Fee, and after the Husband, during Coverture alien and die; now his Wife ſhall have the whole by Survivorſhip: And if the Baron be attainted for Felony or Treaſon, yet the Wife ſhall have a Moyety at leaſt, Terms Ley, Dyer 122.

If Lands be let to A. and B. during the life of A. If B. die, A. ſhall have all: But if A. dieth B. hath nothing, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 181. See the Woman Lawyer, fol. 131.

But otherwiſe it is amongſt all ſorts of Merchants, and of joynt Shopkeepers that joyn in Trade; in this caſe if the increaſe thereof, if one die the other ſhall not have the benefit by the Survivor, ſee Brownlows ſecond part fol. 99.

If

Sect. 3. 4. Where not, but the Joynture is ſevered, and ſo this Quality of the Tenure gone.

If once the Joyntenancy be ſevered, unleſs it be revived again (as in ſome caſes it may) the quality of Survivorſhip is gone. And therefore if once the Joyntenants make Partition amongſt them; this is a Severance, and if after one of them die, his part ſhall go to his Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator, as the caſe is, and not to his Companions, *Littl. f.*68, 69. Broo. Joyntenants 2. 8.

So if one of them give, grant, or convey away his part for all his time; this is a Severance, and will prevent Survivorſhip; ſo if he Surrender it, Daniels caſe, Hil. 13 Jac. B.R.

If two Infants be Joyntenants in Fee, and one of them make a Feoffment of his Moyety; this is a Severance of the Joynter, Broo. Joyntenants 13.

If two be Joyntenants for life or years, and one of them purchaſe the Fee, or it diſcend upon him; this is a perpetual Severance of the Joyntenancy, Dyer 12. Co. 2. 61. 3. 60.

If A. be Tenant for life, the Remainder to B. C. and D. for life, the Remainder to E. in Fee, and E. levy a Fine to A. for life, and the Remainder to B. in Fee; this is a Severance of the Joynter between B. and the reſt, Co. 3. 60.

If an Eſtate be to three, and the Heirs of one of them, and he that hath the Fee die, and one of the Survivors purchaſe the Reverſion, hereby the Joyntenancy is ſevered.

If a Leaſe be made to two for their lives, and after the Leſſor grant the Reverſion to them two, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies; the Joynter is ſevered, and they are Tenants in Common, Co. ſuper Littl. 182.

If two Joyntenants be of a Leaſe for one and twenty years, and the one of them letteth his part for certain years, part of the Term; the Joynture is ſevered, Co. ſuper Littl. 192.

If two Joyntenants be in Fee, and one letteth his part to another for the life of the Leſſor, and the other Joyntenant dieth firſt, here ſhall be no Survivorſhip, but it may be if the Leſſor had died firſt, contrà, Co. ſuper Littl. 19.

If a Feme-Covert and another be joyntly poſſeſſed of any Chattels Perſonal, the Law doth preſently ſever the Joynter of it, and give her part to the Husband. Contrà of Chattels Real ut ſupra, 21 *H.*7. 29. Co. ſuper Littl. 185. 25 *H.*7. 29. Plow. 4. 19.

Survivorſhip holdeth not for Goods amongſt Merchants, Brownl. Rep. 2 part, 99.

If three Joyntenants be, and one Releaſe to one of his Companions his part; it ſeems by this the Joynture is ſevered for that part, and the Releaſee, and the other ſhall hold that part in Common, Broo. Joyntenants 2.

If two Joyntenants be, and one is attainted for Felony; in this caſe the Lord, not the Survivor, ſhall have this Moyety, Broo. Adjudg. 12 Car.

If two Joyntenants be of a Term, and one commit Felony by killing himſelf, or otherwiſe, or be outlawed, the Joynture is ſevered, for the Lord Protector ſhall have the Moyety by Forfeiture.

And if it be a Joyntenancy of Perſonal things, as Bond, Oxen, or the like; the Lord Protector will have the whole by Prerogative: So alſo of Chattels Real, if they be between Husband and Wife, Plow. 419. 19 Hen. 7. 47. Broo. Joyntenants 34.

If one Joyntenant loſe his part, and it be recovered from him in an Action; hereby the Joyntenancy is ſevered, Broo. Joyntenants 9.

If a Baron, and Feme, and a third perſon be Joyntenants, and the Baron ſell the whole; this is a Severance of the Joynture, and if he die, the Wife may ſue for her Moyety, F.N.B. 193.

If one Joyntenant being ouſted by his Companion, bring an Aſſiſe againſt him, and recover his Moyety; this is a Severance of the Joynture. Broo. Joyntenants 41.

If two Women-Coverts be Joyntenants, and their Husbands alien the whole, and each of them recover his part by a cui in vita; this is a Severance of the Joynture, Broo. Idem 43.

If

If a man be ſeiſed or poſſeſſed of a joynt Eſtate, and a Judgment is had againſt one, and Execution, it ſeems this is a Severance for ſo much, and ſo long at leaſt as Execution is, Co.6. 79.

If two Joyntenants be in Fee, and one make a Leaſe for life, and die; it ſeems this is a Severance of the Joynture, at leaſt, if the other Joyntenant die; that the Leſſor ſhall not have his part, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 191. But if the Tenant for life die before either of the Joyntenants, then it is in *Statu quo prius, fol.*193. See Littl. fol. 68.

If a Leaſe be made to two for their lives, and the longer liver of them, or either of them longeſt living, and they make Partition and one die; the Leſſor, not the Survivor, nor the Heir or Executor of the Leſſee ſhall have his Moyety that is dead, *Co. ſuper Littl. f.*191. *Broo. Joyntenants, f.*28. 30 *Aſſ. pl.*8.

If one have a Rent iſſuing out of Land, and grant it to the Tenant of the Land, and another; here the Survivor ſhall have nothing, for the one half was extinct, *Plow.*419.

If two Joyntenants be in Fee, and they both joyn in a Leaſe to an Abbot, and a ſecular Man for their lives; here the Reverſion depending upon either of the Freeholds, is ſevered.

So if a Leaſe be made to two ſecular Men habendum the one Moyety to one, and the other to the other. *Co. ſuper Littl. fol.*131.

If two Joyntenants be in Fee for life, and one make a Leaſe for years of the Land, or grant Veſtura terræ, or Herbagium terræ, to begin preſently or after his death, or at any other day to come; this is a good Leaſe, which the Survivor cannot avoid, though the Leſſee die before Entry, or do not enter till after the death of the Leſſor, Co. ſuper Littl. 184. Plow. 203. Littl. 286. *Alienatio rei profectus juri accreſcendi: Co. ſuper Littl.*186. So if two Joyntenants be of a Water, and one grant the ſeveral Piſchary.

Sect. 4. 5. Where the Leaſe, or Charge of one Joyntenant is good, and ſhall charge or bind the Land, or not.

If two be Joyntenants for life, and one make a Leaſe for years, of his part, to begin after his death, during his Companions life; this is a good Leaſe, Adjudged, Harbin and Baſſets caſe, Mich. 3 Jac. B. R. Cite arere in Daniels caſe, Hil. 13 Jac. B. R. per Juſtices; and therefore a fortiori, when the Leaſe is to begin preſently.

If two Joyntenants be for life, and one of them Leaſe for years, rendring Rent, and die; this is a good Leaſe, and the Succeſſor ſhall have it ſubject to the ſame, and yet the Rent reſerved thereupon, is determined, Dyer 187.

If two Joyntenants be in Fee, and one grant a Rent-charge in Fee, and after Releaſe to the other; now in this caſe the Grant of the Rent is good, and the other Joyntenant ſhall hold the Land charged.

If a Feme-ſole and J. S. be Joyntenants for life, and ſhe marry B. and B. and his Wife Leaſe to C. for ſixty years, rendring Rent, if the Wife and J. S. live ſo long, and the Wife dies: Now this Leaſe is good againſt the Survivor, but it ſeems the Rent is determined, Smalman verſus Agtorrow, B. R.

If one Joyntenant grant a Rent-charge, Common of Paſture, Turbary, or a Corrady, or a Way out of the Land and die, the Grant is void as to charge the Land, and the Survivor ſhall hold it diſcharged; but if he ſurvive, it is good. So if after the Charge, the Grantor releaſe to his Companion, then he ſhall hold it charged, 23 *H.*6. 5. *Co. ſuper Littl. f.*185. eſpecially if he hath another Companion or Survivor living. See *Littl.*289. *Co. ſuper Littl.*184.

If two Joyntenants be for life, and a Judgment is had againſt one of them, and he after releaſeth to his Companion, and dies before Execution; now the Survivor ſhall hold this Land diſcharged of the Judgment. Contrà, if he had ſued Execution in the life time of the Joyntenant, for then his Moyety, notwithſtanding the Releaſe, was ſubject to Execution.

So it is in the caſe of a Statute or Recognizance, but if he ſurvive his Companion, the Charge is good for ever. *Co. ſuper Littl fol.*184. See Co. 9.79. Plow. 418.

If a Feme-Covert and another be Joyntenants of a Leaſe for years, and the Husband

Husband will grant a Rent out of the Land, and die, and the Wife die; this Grant is void, and the Survivor ſhall hold it diſcharged, Plow. 418.

If a Leaſe be on Condition, That if the Leſſee pay to the Joyntenants ten pound at ſuch a day, then he ſhall have a Term, and the Joyntenants die before the day, here it ſeems the Leaſe is not good, and the Survivor ſhall hold it diſcharged, Plow. 263. For this was no Leaſe, but a Communication onely, Co. ſuper Littl. 184.

If two Joyntenants be of Land, and one of them grant Common of Paſture for Cattle in the ground, and die, this is not good; but the Survivors ſhall hold, if diſcharged, Perk. ſect. 103.

If one Joyntenant in Fee-ſimple had been in Debt to the King, and died; after his death, no Extent ſhould have been made upon the Lands in the hands of the Survivor, Co. ſuper Littl. 185.

But if a Recovery be had againſt one Joyntenant, and he die before Execution, the Survivor cannot avoid this.

6. What Act one Joyntenant may do, or not. By himſelf.

A Joyntenant may by Act executed diſpoſe his own Eſtate, and give, grant, or ſell it to whom he will, or make any Leaſe of it for part of his time, to begin preſently, or at a day to come after his death, or otherwiſe at his pleaſure; but he cannot diſpoſe his Companions part, and yet if he grant the whole, it will be good for his own part, but it will not paſs his Companions, though he happen to have it before the Survivorſhip; neither can he deviſe his own part by Will, Littl. 286. Plow. 203.

And if two Joyntenants be for life, and one of them doth make a Leaſe for eighty years, to begin after his death, and after dieth; this was adjudged by all the Judges of England a good Leaſe againſt his Companion, Goldsb. 187. pl. 130.

One of the reſt may ſue Partition, and compel his Companions to make Partition. See Partition & le Statutes, 32 H. 8. 32. 31 H. 8. 1. Co. 6. 12. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 187.

If a Joyntenant make a Leaſe for years, though the Leſſee never have poſſeſſion, or it begin at a day to come, and the Joyntenant which made it, die before the day; it bindeth the Survivor: But if he had granted one, that he ſhould have a Leaſe, if he pay ten pound before Midſummer next, and the Joyntenant which made it, die before the day; this will not binde the Survivor, for here no preſent intereſt did paſs, and a Rent thereupon reſerved ſhall not go to the Survivor. Co. ſuper Littl. 318. Plow. 203. Brown.

One alone cannot preſent to an Advowſon; but if one had done it, and the Biſhop inſtituted, &c. it had been good, and it ſhould not hurt his Companion for any after Preſentment, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 186.

If Lands be given to two, and the Survivor of them, neither of them alone whiles they both live, can charge or give this Remainder, Whitlocks caſe, Mich. 3 Jac. B. R.

If a Joyntenant in Fee, Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed for good conſiderations of his Companions part after his death, and after he die before the Covenantor, ſo that he hath his part by Survivorſhip, yet the Covenant is void, and doth not raiſe any uſe. Burtons caſe, Mich. 3 Jac. B.R.

With his Companion.

All the Joyntenants together may grant or charge the Land, how and in what manner they will.

They may all together by conſent and agreement make Partition by Deed, and if they be Joyntenants for years, they may do it without Deed, Co. ſuper Littl. 186, 187. Littl. f. 65.

To his Companion.

They may give their parts one to another by Releaſe, and ſuch a Releaſe is good without any words of Heirs, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 194. and without Attornment, or other Ceremony, Co. ſuper Littl. 318. And therefore if a Baron and Feme, and a third perſon be Joyntenants, and the third perſon releaſe to the Baron and Feme; this is good, and gives all the Eſtate of the third perſon to the Husband, or he may releaſe to the Wife alone, and then that would give all the Eſtate to the Wife alone: Alſo one of them may make the other his Bailif of his Moyety, and have an Action of Account againſt him, and he may let his part to his Companion for years, or at

at will, Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 185. Littl. ſol. 69. Co. 6. 79. 8. 63. But they cannot make a Feoffment, or give Livery of Seiſin one to another, as Tenants in Common and Parceners may; but a Tenant in Common cannot releaſe to his Companion, but a Parcener may both Releaſe and Inſeoff, Perk, ſect. 193. Co. ſuper Littl. 200.

Sect. 5.

7. Where one Joyntenant may prejudice his Companion, or not.

One Joyntenant may prejudice his Companion, as to the profits of the thing, of which they are Joyntenants; for there is a Privity in Truſt between them; and therefore if one take all the profits of the Land, or all the Rent of the thing, or one get the Body of the Ward, or get the Perſonal thing, whatever it be, and uſe it, the other hath no remedy, but to do the like if he can: And in caſe of Executors, one of them may ſell any Chattel, Real or Perſonal, without the reſt. See Executors. Dyer 23. vide infra, Co. 2 68. Kelw. 22.

If two have a Seigniory of a Knights-Service, and the Tenant is dead, his Heir within age, ſo that the Lord may now ſeiſe the Ward or Wave, and Diſtrain for the Rent: If one of the joynt Lords do Diſtrain for the Services, the other is barred and bound by this, 1 Ed. 3. Co. 2. 68.

Alſo in Perſonal Actions, the oue may releaſe all: As if an Obligation be made to two, one of them may releaſe the whole, Co. 6. 25. Plow. 263. Co. 2. 68.

Alſo if a Recogniſance be made to many, and one purchaſe Parcel of the Land, the Statute is extinct for all. See Statutes, Aſſ. 106.

So if two Joyntenants bring an Action of Waſte, and one Releaſe; this is a Bar to his Companion, Co. 2. 68.

And if one Joyntenant do waſte the Land of both of them, as it ſeems, it ſhall be recovered, Kelw. 23. yet ſee 14 Edw. 1. Retorn del Vicount. 9 Hen. 5. cap. 15.

If two Joyntenants be of a Term, and one have the Leaſe, and he give or grant it away, it ſeems he hath no remedy for the Deed; but this doth not hurt the Eſtate. By three Juſtices, Trin. 38 Eliz. B.R.

But one Joyntenant cannot prejudice another, as to any matter of Freehold or Inheritance; and therefore a Joyntenant in Fee, for life or years (unleſs it be in the Caſe of Executors before) cannot ſell his Companions part, or evict him out of it, or charge or impeach it: So neither can he releaſe any real or mixt Action, brought by them againſt another; As if they bring an Aſſiſe, or Writ of Right of Ward, for the Body of a Ward, or the like, and one Joyntenant releaſe to the Defendant; this will not prejudice the reſt, but it may give them the whole, Co. 2. 68. 30 H. 6. 45 Ed. 3. 10. Kelw. 60. Dyer 167. 179.

8. Where an Act done by one Joyntenant, ſhall binde his Companion, or not.

All ſuch Acts as Joyntenants, are compellable to do; there, if one Joyntenant do it, and do it ſo as the Law will compel him; this is good, and will binde his Companions: As if a Woman have Title of Dower to the Land, and one Joyntenant will endow her, and that of a third part onely of the Land; this is good, and will binde his Companion: Or if one Joyntenant Attorn to the Grantee of the Reverſion, or Services in the Countrey, this is good. As if a Leſſor diſſeiſe his Leſſees, and make a Feoffment, and one of them re-enter, this is an Attornment in Law, good, and ſhall ſerve for both. So if a Reverſion be granted to one Joyntenant for life, and he accept the Deed, this is a good Attornment for the other in Law. So if one Leſſee give Seiſin of a Rent to a Lord, it is good, and will binde the reſt. Co. 2. 69. 30 H. 6. 2. Littl. f. 129. 12 Aſſ pl. 20.

So all things that are for their benefit, and as well for the benefit of his Companion as of himſelf, the Act of one ſhall binde the reſt: As if they be to pay a Rent to the Lord, or the like. Payment by one ſhall ſerve for all; ſo a Claim or Entry after a Diſſeiſin, or the like, Co. 2. 68.

If one Joyntenant will endow a Woman of a Rent, in ſtead of Land, or endow her of more then a third part; this will not binde his Companions. So if the Reverſion of two Tenants for life, or the Rent or Seigniory of two Joyntenants be granted by Fine there, if a Writ be brought, to require the Joyntenants to Attorn, one muſt not Attorn without the other, Co. 20. 67.

9. What Acts done by, or to one Joyntenant, ſhall benefit his Companion, or nor.

If one Joyntenant enter or claim the Land, that he and his Companions have right to, this ſhall avail the reſt generally, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 252.

If two Joyntenants make a Leaſe for life, and the Leſſee ſurrender to one of them; it ſeems this ſhall enure to both, in reſpect of their joynt Reverſion, but if the Leſſee grant his Eſtate to one of them, contrà. Co. ſuper Littl. f. 192. Perk. 615.

If one of them obtain a Seiſin of Rent, this ſhall avail his Companion. Broo. Tender 16.

If two Joyntenants make a Leaſe by Poll, or Deed Poll, rendring Rent to one of them; this ſhall enure to both. Contrà, if it be by Deed indented. See Reſervation. But perhaps if one enter or claim, ſpecially to his own uſe or for another, it may not avail his Companion.

10. How Acts done by, or to them, ſhall enure.

If two Joyntenants be of Land with Warranty, and they make Partition by Deed, the Warranty is deſtroyed; but if it be upon a Writ, contrà. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 186, 187.

If a Warranty be made to them, this ſhall enure to them as ſeveral Warranties, Co. 5. 819.

Co. Litt. 6. If there be three Joyntenants, and one releaſe to one of the other; this ſhall not avail the other. Co. ſuper Littl. f. 193.

If Donee in Tail be diſſeiſed by two, and he releaſe to one of them, this ſhall enure to both: But if the Kings Tenant for life had been diſſeiſed by two, and he releaſe to one of them, he ſhall hold out his Companion. So if two Joyntenants make an Eſtate for life, and then diſſeiſe their Leſſee, and he releaſe to one of them, he ſhall hold out his Companion.

If Tenant for life be diſſeiſed by two, and he in Reverſion, and Tenant for life joyn in a Releaſe to one of the Diſſeiſors, he ſhall hold his Companion out: But if they ſeverally releaſe their ſeveral Rights, it ſhall enure to both the Diſſeiſors.

If two men do gain an Advowſon by Uſurpation, and the right Patron doth releaſe to one of them, it ſhall enure to both.

If two Joyntenants be diſſeiſed by two, and one of them releaſe to one, this ſhall enure to both for a Moyety.

If one be diſſeiſed by two Women, and one take a Husband, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Husband; this ſhall enure to both Diſſeiſors. See more in Releaſe. Co. ſuper Littl. 276.

11 What Actions one Joyntenant may have againſt a ſtranger.

It ſeems a Joyntenant can have no Real or Perſonal Action, concerning the Joyntenancy, but he muſt joyn with his Companion; and therefore if they be diſſeiſed of the Freehold, they muſt have an Aſſiſe againſt the Diſſeiſor; if they be ouſted of a Term on Ejectione firme: And if they be wronged in the Profits, as by Waſte, Treſpaſs, or Arrearages of their Bailiff that hath received their Rents or Profits, they muſt joyn in the Action always, unleſs it be in ſome ſpecial caſes, as that Plow. 419. Co. ſuper Littl. f. 195, 196. Littl. 311. 22 H. 6. 12. Broo. Joyntenants 36.

Againſt his Companion. Yet if three Joyntenants be, and one releaſe to one of his Companions, and after they be diſſeiſed; now for the two parts of which they be Tenants in Common, they muſt bring one Action, and for the third part of which, he is Tenant in Common with the other, he muſt bring an Action alone, Cromp. Jur. f. 49. b. Littl. f. 70.

One Joyntenant hath no Action nor Remedy againſt another for the taking of the Profits, or for Waſte making, or the like: And therefore if it were Wood, and one cut it down, and ſell it all, and keep all the money; or if it be an Advowſon, and one alone preſent, and in the caſes before, he hath no Action at Common Law to relieve himſelf. See before Doct. & Stud.

So if one will not help Incloſe the Grounds, or Repair the Walls or Bridges, or the like. But if one ouſt the other altogether, he may have an Aſſiſe, or chaſe the others Cattle, for the chaſing he may have Treſpaſs: And if there be Houſes or Mills upon the thing, and they be in decay, the other Joyntenant may compel him by a Writ of Reparatione facienda, to joyn to repair it, or of Contributione facienda, to contribute towards it. See of Tenants in Common. F. N. B. 34. 162. 6 Hen. 7. 8. F. N. B. 127. Broo. Joyntenants 41. Dyer 923. Co. 6. 12, 13. Lib. Inſt. 1 part. fol. 54.

Tenants in Common, are ſuch as have and come by Lands, Tenements, Goods, or Chattels, by ſeveral Titles and Means; as in the caſes hereafter following, Co. ſuper Littl. 189. 12. Tenants in Common, what.

If any Joyntenant in the caſes above, give, grant, or convey over his part of the thing which they ſo hold in Joyntenancy to a ſtranger; in this caſe the Joyntenancy will be gone, and the ſtranger and the reſt of the Joyntenants, will then be Tenants in Common: Or Tenants in Common may be by Preſcription, as, where one and his Anceſtors, and thoſe whoſe Eſtate he hath in one Moyety, have held in Common the ſame Moyety with another Tenant that hath another Moyety, and with his Anceſtors, and thoſe whoſe Eſtate he hath pro indiviſo, time out of minde. And between theſe, there is onely a Privity of Poſſeſſion, and not of Eſtate of Land, *Littl. fol.*70. *Co.*4.628. 63. *Co. ſuper Littl. fol.*169, 198, 199.

If a Feoffment be of Land to A. and B. habendum the one half to A. the other half to B. here A. and B. are Tenants in Common; but if it be to one and his Heirs, and to the other and his Heirs, *Contrà. So if two had ſuch a thing in Common, and one did commit a Forfeiture, the Lord Protector will have all. Ibidem.

14. The nature and quality of this Tenure.

The nature of this holding is, That howſoever they occupy in Common, and they hold pro indiviſo, and neither of them doth know his own part, as in the caſe of Joyntenants, yet the Survivor in this caſe ſhall not have the part of him that dieth (as in the caſes of Joyntenants) but it ſhall go to his Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator as the caſe is; and therefore ſuch a Tenant may Grant or Charge his Land, as he may any other Land, whereof he is Sole ſeized; and if he will paſs it to his Companion, he may make a Feoffment, and give Livery of Seiſin to him as Parceners may; for it will not paſs by Releaſe, as between Joyntenants: But Actions Perſonal, as it ſeems, do ſurvive, and the Survivor ſhall have the whole of them, as in the caſes of Joyntenants, vide infra. And it ſeems in this caſe one of them cannot do any act to binde, or prejudice his Companion, becauſe they have ſeveral Titles; and in this caſe they may alſo make Partition, if they will, by Agreement, Littl. f. 72. Plow. 140. 10 Ed 4. 3.

Sect. 8.

15. What actions one Tenant in Common may have, or not. Againſt a ſtranger.

All Actions that are Real, and in reſpect of the Reality, the one may and muſt ſue alone; as if they be diſſeiſed, every Tenant in Common muſt have a ſeveral Aſſiſe againſt the Diſſeiſor. And ſo ſhould it ſeem for mixt Actions that are moſt in the Realty, for the Magis dignum trahit adſe minus dignum. But in all Perſonal Actions, as for Treſpaſs in breaking the Hedges, ſpoiling the Houſes, Graſs, Corn, cutting the Wood, taking Fiſh, or the like, there they muſt ſue joyntly, and cannot ſever in the Action.

So alſo for Rent in a Leaſe, in Account againſt the Bailiff, and Actions mixt that are more Perſonal then Real, as Waſte, and the like: And if one of them die, before theſe Actions brought, the right of the Action doth ſurvive to the reſt onely, and they alone ſhall have it as in the caſe of Joyntenants before: And if one of them ſue alone for theſe Cauſes, the Defendant may plead, That he is Tenant in Common, and ſo avoid the Action, Littl. fol. 70, 71. 22 Hen. 6. 12. Broo. Tenants in Common

If Tenant for life, the Reverſion to two Siſters commit Waſte, and one Siſter die having iſſue, and the Tenant commit Waſte again, the iſſue and her Aunt ſhall joyn in the Action of Waſte; and the Aunt-ſole recover treble damages for the Waſte done in her Siſters time, 45 Ed. 3. 3.

If his Companion diſſeiſe him of his Freehold, he may have an Aſſiſe, if he Evict him of his Term, he may have an Ejectione firme, as it ſeems. But for any wrong in taking the whole profits from his Companion, the Law is all one in this caſe, as in the caſe of Joyntenants, which ſee before; for one of them cannot ſue another, Co. ſuper Littl. 199. Againſt his Companion.

And yet if one Tenant in Common will break the Dove-houſe of another, and kill his Pigeons, and ſpoil his flight, or carry away all his Corn after it is ſowed, it ſeems the other ſhall have Treſpaſs againſt him; or break the Pales of his Companions Fold, which they have in Common, Treſpaſs lieth; but this ſeems to be for the wrong done to that wherein he hath a ſole property. Co. ſuper Littl. f. 200. Weſtm. cap. 22. 14 Ed. 4. 8. Somerſets caſe, *B. And if two Merchants occupy their Goods in Common, and to their Common profits, the one may have an Account againſt the other. So may another Tenant in Common, if he make his Companion his Bailiff. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 200. 10 H. 7. 16.

If two be Tenants in Common of Chattels Perſonal, or of Chattels Real entire, and one get all, the other hath no remedy, but to get the Poſſeſſion again, if he can. But if two be Tenants of a Houſe or Mill, one may force the other to contribute towards Reparation; and if they have a River in Common, and one corrupt the River, the other may have an Action on the Caſe. Et ſic in ſimilibus, ſee in the Margent, Co. ſuper Littl. f. 199, 200.

In the Perſonality, one Tenant in Common may prejudice his Companion, as well as a Joyntenant, as in taking the profits; for which ſee before. As alſo in any Perſonal Action brought by them all, one may Releaſe; but if the ſame be for a thing entire, and in the reality, as a Preſentation to a Church, Wardſhip of a Body, or the like, there the Releaſe of one doth not prejudice the reſt, but doth give the reſt the whole, Co. 5. 98. 45 Ed. 3. 10. Co. ſuper Littl. 197. 16. Where one Tenant in Common may prejudice his Companion, or not.

If two Tenants in Common joyn in the Grant of a Rent-charge of twenty ſhillings, this ſhall be and enure as ſeveral Grants. Co. 5. 8. 17. How acts made by, or to one ſhall enure.

Of Paceners.

PArceners, otherwiſe called Coparceners, are ſuch as have equal portion in the Inheritance of the Anceſtors, and this is in the nature of a Tenancy in Common, the difference ſee in the Engliſh Lawyer, fol. 24, 25. And of theſe there are two ſorts. Sect. 9. 1. Parceners, what. The kindes.

One is of Parceners by Law, which is when a man dieth, ſeiſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail, and hath no Sons, or other Heirs Male; but Daughters, Siſters, Aunts, or the like (for if he have but one Daughter, ſhe is no Parcener) then theſe Daughters, or other Collateral Heirs, ſhall have the Lands in equality amongſt them, and theſe are called Parceners at Common Law.

The other is, where Sons or Daughters by the Cuſtom of the Country do challenge an equal part of their Anceſtors Lands he died ſeiſed of, as the Cuſtom of of Gavel-kinde in Kent is, and theſe are called Parceners by Cuſtom; and in theſe caſes, all theſe Parceners are in Judgment of Law, but as one Heir. And they may if they will, hold the Land joyntly without Diviſion, and then they ſhall be ſaid to hold in Parcenary, or they may divide it, and every one hold his part to himſelf, and that is called a Partition, and is defined to be the dividing of Lands or Tenements, diſcended by Common Law or Cuſtom, amongſt Co-heirs or Parceners, whether they be Sons or Daughters, Siſters, Aunts, or otherwiſe of kin to the Anceſtor, from whom the Land diſcended to them: And this may be made, and done voluntarily, or by Agreement of the parties, and without Writ, which is called a Diviſion by the Common, or elſe it may be Compulſory, and by Writ, if either or any of the parties refuſe, and thereby the reſt or any of them, or their Heirs (if any of them be dead) that are willing, may compel the others that refuſe; and this Writ is called a Partitione facienda, which is defined to be a Writ that lieth for thoſe that hold Lands or Tenements pro indiviſo, as Coparceners, and would ſever to every one his part, againſt him or them that refuſe to joyn in Partition, to compel them to it.

Parcenary.

2. Partition, what.

3. Partitione facienda, what.

And ſuch a Diviſion as is ſo made by Writ, is ſaid to be a Diviſion by Statute Law; and this Writ alſo Joyntenants or Tenants in Common, may have to make a Diviſion amongſt them, if they will. See beneath, Parceners ſtat' Hibernie. 9 H. 3. 1. Dyer 29. Co. upon Littl. fol. 164. Co. 6. 12. Dyer 265. F. N. B. 61.

Joyntenants. Tenants in Common.

The fruit of it.

And this Diviſion after it is made, doth change the holding by Coparcenary, ſo that after every one ſhall hold his part in ſeveralty: And yet ſo, as if the part of one be afterwards recovered from him by a lawful Title; in this caſe he may compel the reſt to make a new Partition, and he ſhall have another part from them, and till then he may occupy in Common with them: But if he had aliened that part wholly away, whereof the Eviction was, then it ſeems he cannot enter upon his Companions, unleſs he had reſerved ſome Reverſion. See for this, Co. upon Littl. fol. 164. 170.

4. What perſons ſhall be accounted Parceners, or not.

None ſhall be accounted Parceners, but ſuch as are Females and in equal diſtance, as Daughters, Siſters, Aunts, or the like, or the Heirs of ſuch Females that come to Land by diſcent. For if any ſuch perſons purchaſe Lands or Tenements; in this caſe they are not Parceners, but Joyntenants. See more for this Co. upon Littl. 164. where it appeareth, that men may be Parceners in ſpecial caſes; the Son of ones Daughters, with the Daughters of another.

The nature of this Tenure.

The having of Land in Coparcenery, is in the nature of holding of Land in Common, for no Survivorſhip hath place amongſt them; and either of them may by Act executed, or by his will grant, give, or charge, his own part, whether the thing be in Poſſeſſion, or Reverſion: And they may make a Feoffment one to another, and give Livery one to another, Co. upon Littl. 164. Littl. fol. 64. Dyer 29. Littl. ſect. 280.

And if an Advowſon diſcend amongſt them, they ſhall preſent by turn, the eldeſt firſt, and the reſt after, ordine quiſque ſuo: And if either of them diſturb the other, in this caſe, he that is diſturbed, may have a quare impedit againſt his Companion; but ſo cannot one Joyntenant or Tenant in Common againſt another, Littl. fol. 64. Dyer 29. Littl. ſect. 280. Kelw. 1. F. N. B. 34.

So long as the Land is undivided, they have one intire Freehold in it, in reſpect of a ſtranger, but amongſt themſelves to many purpoſes, ſeveral Freeholds. And this Unity is not ſevered by the death of any of them, but her iſſue, and the reſt ſhall be ſued joyntly, and ſue ſo, but the iſſues of ſeveral Coparceners ſhall not joyn; and yet when they have recovered, a Writ of Partition lieth between them, and there is between them a Privity in Perſon, in Eſtate, and Poſſeſſion, Co. upon Littl. fol. 164. 169. F. N. B. 62.

5. Where Parceners are compellable to make Partition, and how.

Parceners are compellable by the Common-Law to make Partition, and for that purpoſe they may ſue out a Writ of Partitione facienda (ſee above.) And though one of them have made a Leaſe of his part to his Companions, yet he may have this Writ againſt the reſt. Fitz. N. B. 62.

Alſo Joyntenants and Tenants in Common, whether they be ſo, of an Eſtate of Inheritance in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail in their own Rights, or in the Rights of their Wives; or which hold joyntly or in Common, for Term of life, year, or years onely. Joyntenants. Tenants in Common.

And Joyntenants, or Tenants in Common, where one or ſome of them have Eſtate or Eſtates for term of life or years, with the other that have Eſtate or Eſtates of Inheritance, or Freehold, are compellable by the Writ of Partitione facienda to make Partition of the Lands, they do ſo hold as Coparceners are.

And in all theſe caſes, let him that brings the Writ ſee that he comprehend all the Land, whereof Diviſion is to be made in his Writ. Stat. 31 Hen. 8. chap. 1. 32 Hen. 8. chap. 23: Bro. Partition, fol. 33. Co. 6. 12. Dyer 265.

If three Parceners be of a Reverſion after an Eſtate for life, and one of them alien his part by Fine, and after the Tenant for life die, and one of the other two enter into the whole: Now the Alienee, and the other cannot joyn, and have one Writ of Partitione facienda upon theſe Statutes, but they muſt bring ſeveral Writs. Sect. 10.

So if in this caſe the two Coparceners had joyned, and brought the Writ againſt the Alienee upon theſe Statutes, the Writ would abate; yet if the Husband of one of the Siſters, or one of the Parceners her ſelf purchaſe one of her fellows parts, there is a ſpecial Writ by the Common Law in this caſe to compel Partition, Dyer 128. 243. F.N.B. 62.

If there be two Parceners, and one of them take a Husband, and hath iſſue by her, and ſhe die, and he hold himſelf in as Tenant by the Courteſie, they may make Partition by agreement; or if the Tenant by the Courteſie will not, the other may compel him by this Writ: But if the Parcener refuſe, the Tenant by the Courteſie cannot have this Writ againſt the other, that doth refuſe, Littl. ſect. 264.

If one of the Parceners alien his part in Fee, the other Parcener may bring this Writ againſt the Alienee, but the Alienee cannot bring it againſt the Parcener, unleſs it be upon the Statute, as a Tenant in Common, Co. upon Littl. fol. 175.

Coparceners may make Diviſion of their Lands they hold in Coparcenery, either during their whole, or a part of their Eſtate, and that they may do (as hath been ſhewed) either by Agreement with, or without writing, and that divers ways. 6. What ſhall be ſaid a good Partition of their Land. Without Writ by Agreement.

1. As if they agree to divide it, and do divide it to every one his part.

2. If they chuſe certain Friends to divide it, and ſet it out into parts; and in this caſe the eldeſt muſt chuſe firſt, and ſo every one in his age, unleſs they otherwiſe agree.

3. If after the parts be divided, and ſet out, there be Lots caſt, and ſo a choice is made by that means.

4. By caſting in Land in Hotchpot. See beneath, and in Littleton, and all theſe are good Diviſions. Hotchpot.

And in all theſe caſes the parties dividing, if they be of full age, at the time of the Partition made, be bound for them and their Heirs, though it be never ſo unequally made. Infant.

But if the parties that divide, were ſeiſed of an Eſtate-tail, there the Diviſion (if it be unequal) will onely binde them for their lives, and the iſſue of him that hath the leſſer part, may either avoid it, or affirm it. Tail.

So if the Diviſion were made by the Husbands of the Parceners; the Wives after their deaths, if their parts be not equal, may either avoid it, or affirm it.

So if the Parcener be within age, at the time of the Diviſion made after ſhe comes of full age, ſhe may either affirm or avoid it; & if in theſe caſes, that party that may avoid, do verbally agree to the Diviſion, or take the profits of the part alloted t ,or her, o him or

or make a Leaſe of it, after his time, he may avoid it; this hath affirmed the Diviſion: But it ſeems in all theſe caſes, where the Diviſion is equal, that it is not to be avoided by any of the Parceners, or their Heirs, Co. ſuper Littl. 171.

A Partition by Agreement, without Writing, that one ſhall have one part of the Land, and another another part; and that he that hath the better part, ſhall pay to the other Parcener a yearly Rent, iſſuing out of his Land; this is a good Diviſion; and the party to whom this Rent is given by the Agreement, may diſtrain in the Land of Common Right for this Rent, though there be no Deed; ſo a Reverſion, nay Advowſon, or the like, in this caſe may paſs without Deed, Littl. ſect. 251. 29 Aſſ. pl. 23. Plow. 134. Dyer 29.

If they agree that one of them ſhall have all the Lands in Severalty one year, another all another year, or in any ſuch manner, this is a good Partition, F.N.B. 62. 11 H. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 3. 7.

If there be ſome Land in Fee-ſimple, and ſome Land in Fee-tail diſcended, and they agree one ſhall have the one ſort of Lands, and the other the other; this is good, but this may become void by matter Ex poſt facto, F.N.B. 62. M. Littl. ſect. 26.

If Joyntenants, or Tenants in Common of a Term of years of Land, do make Diviſion thereof by word, without Deed, it ſeems it is good enough, Dyer 350.

If Joyntenants, or Tenants in Common of any Eſtate of Inheritance, in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or for years, by mutual agreement, by writing, make Partition, it is good, Dyer 350. Bro. Partition 38.

But if Joyntenants, or Tenants in Common of any Eſtate of Inheritance or Freehold, make Partition by word onely; this is not good to ſever the Joynture, Co. upon Littl. 165.

But Tenants in Common may by word and Livery of Seiſin, make Partition well enough the ſame, Co. 6. 12. Dyer 350.

Sect. 11. Prochein Amy. If Partition be made by Prochein Amy of an Infant that is a Parcener, it is not good.

If the Anceſtor died ſeiſed of Land intailed, and ſo much in Fee-ſimple, and the eldeſt take the intailed, and the other the Fee-ſimple, this is good for their time; but if the yongeſt Alien all or part, in Fee or in Tail, that he leave not a ſufficient Recompence to the Iſſue, the Iſſue may avoid the Exchange, and take to half the exchanged Lands, and the other hath no remedy for his part of the Fee-ſimple Lands, Co. upon Littl. fol. 172.

But contrà of a Leaſe for life or years, but if part of the Fee-Land diſcend, the Iſſue muſt wave the profits of that, if he will have the benefit of the other.

By Writ. The Partition that is made upon a Writ directed to the Sheriff, to make Partition between the parties, muſt be by the Oath of a Jury of twelve lawful men of the Neighborhood.

For ſo is the Judgment upon this Sute, That the Sheriff in perſon ſhall go to the Lands, and that he by the Oaths of twelve men of his Bailiwick, ſhall make Partition between the parties, and that one part ſhall be aſſigned to one, and another part to another. And how the Sheriff doth do this, he muſt return under his Seal, and the Seal of the twelve men to the Juſtices, before whom the Writ is retornable. Co. upon Littl. fol. 167.

If A. and B. be Tenants in Common of a Manor, and A. purchaſe Land, ſo intermixt with the Lands of the Manor, as the Jury cannot tell how to make Diviſion of the Manor, and to diſtinguiſh it from the Land purchaſed: In this caſe A. muſt ſhew the Jury the bounds of the purchaſed Lands, and B. is not bound to do it, or elſe if the Jury have no evidence of either ſide, and they make Partition of the Manor, as it is commonly preſumed and known to extend, it is good enough, Dyer 164.

If there be a Capital Meſſuage upon the Lands to be divided, the Sheriff muſt allot that wholly to the eldeſt of the Parceners, an not divide it. Contra tenetur. Co. upon Littl. 165.

For

For ſuch Inheritances as are entire, as a Villain, Reaſonable Eſtovers, and the like, either the eldeſt muſt have all, and the reſt contribution, or elſe one ſhall have it one while, and the other another; but a Rent-charge is dividable, and the Diſtreſs alſo. See Co. upon Littl. fol. 164, 165. See all the Tract in the Engliſh Lawyer, fol. 24, 25.

7. Where the Entry of one of them ſhall benefit the other, or not.

The Entry of the one Parcener into the Land diſcended, may avail, and ſhall be the Entry of the other, if they agree, ſo Littl. 160.

But if one that doth enter, do enter into all to his own uſe, or after his Entry make a Feoffment in Fee; this ſpecial Entry ſhall not benefit the other: As if a Tenant in Tail die having two Daughters, and the eldeſt enter into the whole, and thereof maketh a Feoffment, with Warranty; this is a Collateral Warranty, which ſheweth that the Entry did not avail both, for there the Warranty muſt begin by Diſſeiſin. But this Entry is onely available when the other will; and therefore if one enter, both cannot be vouched as Heirs, for that is a diſadvantage; but both may have an Aſſiſe, Littl. 160. 4 H. 7. 9.

8. Where they muſt joyn in Action, or not.

If Land diſcend to Parceners, and they die having Iſſues, and the Iſſues be diſſeiſed, or if the Parceners themſelves were diſſeiſed; their Iſſues, or themſelves muſt joyn in an Aſſiſe, againſt the Diſſeiſor.

So if they be diſturbed in a Preſentment to an Advowſon, they muſt all joyn in a quare impedit.

So if they have cauſe to bring Waſte or a Ceſſavit, they muſt joyn. See Joyntenants, and Tenants in Common.

So for Perſonal wrongs, they muſt joyn in Action; and if ſome of them die, the Action ſurvives to the reſt, and they ſhall recover all, as in Account, Treſpaſs, &c. Kelw. 1. Littleton, fol. 71. Broo. Joyntenancy 51. 48. Co. upon Littl. fol. 198.

Hotchpot, what.

It is a mixing together of Lands in Frank-marriage, with other Lands in Fee-ſimple diſcended: As if a man be ſeiſed of thirty Acres of Land in Fee, and giveth ten of them in Frank-marriage with his Daughter, having but one Daughter more, and die ſeiſed of the other twenty Acres; now if ſhe that is married, will have any part of the twenty Acres, ſhe muſt relinquiſh her twenty Acres, and caſt them into the other twenty Acres in Hotchpot, and thereupon an equal Diviſion muſt be made of all, elſe her ſiſter ſhall have the whole twenty Acres.

But if the Land given in Frank-marriage were by another Anceſtor, or given in another nature, and not in the nature of Frank-marriage, then ſhe need not put it into Hotchpot, Littl. ſect. 267, 268.

Of Judgment, Judges, and Ireland, King and Queen.

Judgment, what.

JUdgment is the Sentence and Decree that a Judge doth make at the end of a Sute, which is no more but the pronouncing of what the Law doth ſet down, and determine in that caſe according to that which is alleaged and proved. And this ſo long as it ſtands in force, and till it be reverſed by Attaint or Writ of Error, is final and makes an end of the Sute. Finches Ley 453. Co. ſuper Littl. 39:

As to this take theſe things.

1. In every Judgment there is to be a Proſecutor, a guilty perſon, and a Judg.

2. Some Judgments are Final, and ſome are not.

3. Judgments when they are ready to be given, may be ſtaid, if there be any Error in the proceeding: For albeit a cauſe be ſo forward, that it is ready for Judgment, yet if there be any Error in the proceeding, or it ſtandeth ſo in Law that Judgment ought not to be given in it, as the Judges are about to do, upon the opening of the Matter, and Motion of the other party, the Judgment may be ſtaid. And this is called an Arreſt of Judgment; and upon this is entred by the Judges, Curia aviſare vult, the Court will adviſe.

Arreſt of Judgment, what.

Curia aviſare vult, what.

4. Judgments duly given muſt continue, and the parties for whom they are given, be in peace until they be reverſed by Attaint or Error.

5. The Judges that give the Judgment, and in ſome caſes other Judges that are above them, may if there be cauſe, after they are given, avoid them; and this is called a Vacat.

Vacat of a Judgment, what.

6. A Prelate, two Earls, and two Barons, (upon complaint by Commiſſion from the King) might have called for any Record where delay in any Court had been of entring Judgment, and they with the Lord Chancellor, Treaſurer, and Juſtices of either Bench, and ſuch of the Kings Council as they had thought fit to call to them, might have given Judgment in the Cauſe, and that muſt have ſtood, or they might have referred it to the next Parliament.

7. The Parliament may call in queſtion, and reverſe if they ſee cauſe, the Judgments given in all other Courts. But ſee for theſe, and other things of this Subject: 4 H. 4. 23. 14 Ed. 3. Stat. 1. 5: Co. 3. 13. Dyer 268. Cromp. Jur. 18. Brownl. 98, 99, 188, &c. Dyer 249.

A Judge is one that is deputed by the Supreme Magiſtrate to do right by way of Judgment, and he is called alſo a Juſtice: Of Judges and Juſtices there are many kindes. But ſee for them in Officers and Courts.

Aſſociation is where ſome others are joyned with the Judges to be aſſiſtant with them.

Coram non Judice, what.

Coram non Judice is where any man doth take upon him as a Judge to do any thing in a Cauſe, wherein he hath no Juriſdiction; in this caſe all that he doth, is void, and ſaid to be done Coram non Judice.

So it is for the Judges of the Court of Common Pleas to meddle with the Pleas of the Crown, a Steward in a Leet to meddle with Civil Actions between man and man.

For Judges and Juſtices, this onely is to be known.

1. The Supreme Magiſtrate hath by his Prerogative, the making and appointing of the Judges and Juſtices.

Of Latin and Law.

FOr Latin, this onely is to be known.

1. That all Law-Books that are Printed, muſt be in the Engliſh Tongue, and not in Latin. Latin.

2. All the Pleadings and Proces in Sutes muſt be in Engliſh under pain of twenty pound. Acts, 22 Novemb. 1650. and 9 April, 1651.

Law is a Rule for the governing of a Civil Society, to give to every man that which doth belong to him. 1. Law, what.

1. Our Laws are divided into three ſorts. Common Law, which is nothing elſe but Common Cuſtom, and that which is commonly uſed through the whole Nation; and this is founded eſpecially upon certain Principles or Maxims made out of the Law of God, and the Law of Reaſon. The kindes of the Law. Maxims of Law.

2. Statute Laws which are certain Acts and Conſtitutions of Parliament, that have been made in all ſucceeding Generations, to correct, abridg, and explain the Common Law: And all theſe to give right to every man, and to preſerve every man from wrong.

3. The Cuſtoms of particular places, which are the Laws of the places. *Doct. & Stud. l.*9 75. Dyer 54. *Co.*11. 74. Brownl. Rep. 2 *part. f.*198.

4. There is alſo the Civil Law, Martial Law, Eccleſiaſtical Law, Canon Law, Law of Nations, Law-Merchant, a part of the Law of Nations, and the Law of Chivalry, or Title of Honor. And of all theſe Laws, our Law taketh ſome notice, Doct. & Stud 6. Fitz. Gard. 118. Dyer 150. 21 *H.*7. 33. F.N.B. 117. Co. 2 part. Inſt. 58.

An involuntary Ignorance, as that of an Infant, or a Lunatick, will excuſe them in many caſes, Plow. 19. 2. Where the Ignorance of Law, will excuſe a man, or not.

As if ſuch an one do ſuch an act as would be Felony, or ſome other leſſer offence in another; this ſhall be excuſed in them.

So if ſuch a one neglect to claim, or enter to his Land in time, this laches or neglect ſhall not prejudice him.

But if any other man tranſgreſs any Law, it will not excuſe him to ſay, That he was ignorant of the Law; this is a voluntary Ignorance, as is that alſo of a Drunkard; and therefore his drunkenneſs will not excuſe him of any offence he ſhall commit, *Co.*1. 45. *Plow.*19.

If a man know that two men have pretended Title to one peece of Land, and he will ſay that the one hath the right, and the other hath no Title; if in truth it be otherwiſe, and the other hath the right, that he ſaith hath none; an Action of the Caſe for Slander of the Title will lie, and this ignorance of the Law will not excuſe him, *Co.*1. 177.

So in the caſe of Bankrupts, if one come not in to demand his debt, he may loſe it, and the ignorance of Law will not help him; Vigilantibus & non dormientibus ſubveniunt jura, Co. 2. 26.

3. Where the Ignorance of the Fact will excuſe, or not.

If a Man have made a Leaſe on Condition, that the Leſſee ſhall not do ſome Collateral Act, as Alien without Licence, or the like, which the Leſſee may do, and the Leſſor never know of it, and the Leſſee break the Condition, and after the Leſſor accept the Rent; this ſhall not bar him of Entry for breach of the Condition, unleſs the Leſſor had notice; for this ignorance of the fact here, ſhall help him. Co. 3. 65.

But if one be bound in an Obligation with Condition, that he or another ſhall do any act, as Counſel ſhall adviſe, and he tender him a Deed, that the Obligor cannot read nor underſtand; he muſt ſeal it preſently, and may not forbear till ſome body read it to him, elſe his ignorance will not excuſe him. Co. 2. 3.

If a Deviſe be made to one of Land, till he ſhall levy one hundred pound, and the Deviſee do not know of the Deviſe, and the time doth run on; yet he ſhall hold it no longer then the time he might have levied ſo much out of it, and his ignorance of the fact here will not help him. Co. 4. 82.

If one be bound to repair Houſes, and he know not of the decay, this will not excuſe; but if it were to repair ſuch Houſes as another ſhall after aſſign, and he aſſign unknown unto him; here his ignorance will excuſe, Doct. & Stud. 149. But no Ignorance of Law in theſe points will help.

Wager of Law, what.

It is an Oath taken by ſome certain perſons in ſome Courts, where one is charged with a Debt, or Detinue of Goods without Specialty, or upon ſome ſecret Agreement, where the Plaintiff cannot prove the Surmiſe of his Sute by any Deed, or open act (in which act the Defendant might privily diſcharge it) then the Defendant may if he will, wage his Law; and that is, ſwear that he doth not ow the money, or detain the Goods as the Plaintiff doth pretend, &c. And he is to have ſix, or eight, or twelve (as the Court will appoint him) more, that muſt ſwear they think that he ſweareth truth, which is like the Oath made by Compurgators in the Civil Law; and this offer to wage Law, is called Wager of Law, and the doing of it, doing of Law; and this muſt not be without witneſſes. They were uſed to be eleven, and himſelf twelve, which did countervail a Jury. He is to be ſworn directly and abſolutely, and the Compurgators, that they believe he doth ſay true.

Where it lieth, or not.

This liberty of Wager of Law, is allowed onely in caſes of Secreſie, where the County cannot have notice of the thing: As in Action of Detinue, of Goods lent, or left with the Defendant, for which the Plaintiff hath no Eſpecialty; and in Actions of Debt, upon private Contracts and Agreements, and the like; as for Money lent, Rent upon a Leaſe for years, of a ſtock of Sheep, or the like, Detinue of a Horſe, or other perſonal thing.

But it lieth not in an Action of Debt for Rent upon a Leaſe for years in writing; nor in an Action of Debt for Arrearages of Account, nor in an Action of Debt upon any Bill, Bond, or other Eſpecialty, nor in any Action of the Caſe, nor in Account upon Receipt by another Mans hand, not upon Contract when the party hath a Deed of the Contract, nor upon a Leaſe of Land, though it be ſtored with Beaſts, Finches Ley 425. Nor in an Action of Debt brought for Wages by a Laborer, bound by Statute to ſerve, nor upon a Leaſe for years, though it were made without Deed. See for this, Co. 2 part. Inſt. cap. 28. See more in the Statutes of 38 Ed. 3. 5. 5 H. 4. 8.

4. Nient Lettered, or not able to read.

It is a Plea given for a Lay and unlearned Man, to avoid a Deed he hath made, when ſuch a man is to ſeal a Deed, and he deſire to hear him read, or to hear the Contents of the Deed; and the other party, to whom the Deed is to be ſealed, do not read him, or cauſe him to be read, or the Contents to be ſhewed; or the party himſelf, to whom the Deed is to be ſealed, or another at his requeſt, or of his own minde, do read or declare the Contents thereof, falſly and untruly, concealing part, or reading otherwiſe then it is, or adding more, and thereupon the party ſeal it: Now if he be after ſued upon this Deed, or the party make any uſe of it, the party that made the Deed may avoid it, by ſhewing the whole matter; but if it be a matter of Record, it cannot be avoided for any ſuch cauſe. So if the party do not deſire to hear the Deed read, or the Contents thereof, there the not reading of it, will not make the Deed void; but in that caſe the miſreading of it, though it be done without the parties requeſt, will make the Deed void. But no Ignorance of the Law upon the Deed will help in this caſe.

Then a thing is ſaid to be in Abeyance, when it is in no perſon, for that no perſon is capable of it for the preſent; but it is onely in conſideration of Law, and kept by Law, for one that may be capable of it: As when a Leaſe is made for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. which J. S. is then living; this Remainder is kept by the Law, for it is out of the Grantor, and yet cannot be in the Heirs of J. S. for he can have no Heirs whiles he liveth; but if he die before the Leſſee for life, it will reſt well enough, otherwiſe not; and till the death of the Tenant for life, the Remainder is ſaid to be in Abeyance. Terms Ley. Co. ſuper Littl. 342. 5. Abeyance or Cuſtody of Law.

The Books of Law muſt be turned into, and all Proces in the Courts muſt be in Engliſh. See for this Act, 7 Nov. 1650.

CHAP. CIII.

Of a Leaſe.

A Leaſe doth properly ſignifie a Demiſe or Letting of Lands, Rent-Common, or any Hereditament unto another for a leſſer time then he that doth let it, hath in it. (For when a Leſſee for life or years, doth grant over all his Eſtate or time unto another, this is more properly called an Aſſignment then a Leaſe.) And this albeit, it may be made and done by other words, yet it is moſt commonly and aptly made by the words, Demiſe, Grant, and Let; and in this caſe he that letteth, is called the Leſſor, and he to whom it is let, the Leſſee. 1. Leaſe, what: Aſſignment. Leſſor, Leſſee.

This word alſo is ſometimes, although improperly, applied to the Eſtate, i. The Title, time or intereſt the Leſſee hath to the thing demiſed, and then it is rather referred to the thing taken or had, and the intereſt of the Taker therein; but in this place it is applied rather to the manner or means of attaining, or coming to the thing Letten.

And in this ſenſe it is ſometimes made and done by Record, as Fine, Recovery, &c. and ſometimes, and moſt frequently, by writing, called a Leaſe by Indenture, albeit it may be made alſo by Deed Poll. And ſometimes alſo it is (as it may be of Land, or any ſuch like thing grantable without Deed for life, or never ſo many years) by word of mouth without any writing, and then it is called a Leaſe-Parol: And hence comes the Diviſion of a Leaſe-Parol, and a Leaſe in writing. And all theſe ways it may be made either for life, i. for the life of the Leſſee, or another, or both; or for years, i. for a certain number of years, as ten, an hundred, a thouſand, or ten thouſand years, moneths, weeks, or days, as the Leſſor and Leſſee do agree; and then the Eſtate is properly called a Term of years: For this word Term doth not onely ſignifie the Limits and Limitation of time, but alſo the Eſtate and Intereſt that doth paſs for that time: Theſe Leaſes alſo for years do ſome of them commence in præſenti, and ſome in futuro, at a day to come; and the Leaſe that is to begin in futuro, is called an Intereſſe termini or Future intereſt; or at will, i. when a Leaſe is made of Land to be held at the will and pleaſure of the Leſſor, or at the will and pleaſure of the Leſſor and Leſſee together: And ſuch a Leaſe may be made by word of mouth as well as the former. *Terms Ley. Regularly

3 Things neceſſarily required in every good leaſe.

Regularly theſe things muſt concurr to the making of every good leaſe. See Grant Numb. 4. Co. 6. 36. 34. 35. 1. 154. 155. Co. ſuper Litt. 45. 46. Plow. 273. 523.

1 As in other grants, ſo in this there muſt be a Leſſor, and he muſt be a perſon able, and not reſtrained to make that Leaſe.

2 There muſt be a Leſſee, and he muſt be capable of the thing demiſed, and not diſabled to receive it.

3 There muſt be a thing demiſed, and ſuch a thing as is demiſable.

4 If the thing demiſed be not grantable without a Deed, or the party demiſing not able to grant without Deed, the leaſe muſt be made by Deed. And if ſo, then there muſt be a ſufficient deſcription and ſetting forth of the perſon of the Leſſor, Leſſee, and the thing leaſed, and all neceſſary circumſtances, as ſealing, delivery, &c. required in other grants, muſt be obſerved:

5 If it be a Leaſe for years it muſt have a certain commencement, at leaſt then when it comes to take effect in intereſt or poſſeſſion, and a certain determination either by an expreſs enumeration of years, or by reference to a certainty that is expreſt, or by reducing it to a certainty upon ſome contingent precedent by matter ex poſt-facto, and then the contingent muſt happen before the death of the Leſſor or Leſſee.

6 There muſt be all needfull ceremonies, as livery of ſeiſin, atturnment, and the like, in caſes where they are requiſite.

7 There muſt be an acceptance of the thing demiſed, and the eſtate by the Leſſee.

But whether any rent be reſerved upon a Leaſe for life, years, or at will, or not, is not materiall, except only in the caſes of Leaſes made by Tenant in Tail, husband and wife, and Eccleſiaſticall perſons. Of which ſee infra.

4 What ſhall be ſaid a good and a ſufficient leaſe for life or years. Or not.

For the ability and capacity of the Leſſors and Leſſees, and what ſhall be ſaid a good leaſe or not, in reſpect of the ability of the Leſſor, and the capacity of the Leſſee, and the deſcription of their perſons, the nature and deſcription of the thing demiſed, and what miſ-recitall, or miſnoſmer will hurt, or not, See Grant Num. 4. and infra Numb. 5. 6. 7.

1 In reſpect of the perſons of the Leſſor, and the Leſſee, the thing leaſed, & the eſtate, property, or poſſeſſion of the Leſſor thereir.

Leaſes for life, or years, or at will, may be made of any thing corporall or incorporall, that lieth in livery or grant. Alſo leaſes for years may be made of any goods or chattels. See for this Grant Numb. 4. Bro. Leaſes 23.

A man ſeiſed of an eſtate in Fee-ſimple in his own right of any Lands or Tenements, may by Deed or writing in the country, or without writing, by word of mouth make a leaſe of it for what lives or years he will. And he that is ſeiſed of an eſtate in Tail of any Lands or Tenements, may make any leaſe out of it for his own life, but not longer unleſs it be by fine or recovery, or it be ſuch a leaſe as is warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. (whereof ſee more infra.) And he that is ſeiſed of Lands or Tenements of any eſtate for his own or anothers life may make what leaſe for years he will of it, and it will be good as long as the leaſe for life doth laſt. And he that is poſſeſſed of lands or Tenements for years, may make a leaſe of it for all or part of the years, and theſe are good Leaſes. The Tenant for life or years may alſo aſſigne over all their eſtates if they pleaſe. And if ſuch Tenants make leaſes for longer time, as if Leſſee for years make a leaſe for life ; it ſeems by this the Land will paſs for life, if the Term of years laſt ſo long. But if he give livery of ſeiſin upon it (as he muſt to make the leaſe for life good) this is a forfeiture of the eſtate for years. Co. 7. 12. 1. 44. Plow. 524.

Foafeiture. Infant.

If an Infant be ſeiſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, and he make a Leaſe for years of it rendring no rent; this leaſe is void. But if there be a rent reſerved upon the leaſe, then the leaſe is but voidable, and may by the acceptance of the rent by the Infant after his full age be made good. 9. H. 7. 24. 18. Ed. 4. 2. Plow. 545.

Jointenants, Tenants in Common.

Iointenants, Tenants in Common, and parcenours may make leaſes for life or years of their own parts, and purparties at their pleaſures, and theſe leaſes will binde their companions.

And

And one Coparcenour, or Tenant in Common may make a leaſe of his part to his companion if he will. Litt. cap. Tenant in common, F. N. B. 62. G.

If a Feoffment be made upon condition, and before the time of performance of the condition, the Feoffor and Feoffee doe joyne to make a leaſe for life or years of the Land; this is a good leaſe.

A man that hath an eſtate in land to him and his wife and his Heirs, may make what leaſe he will of the Land, and this will be good againſt all men but his wife onely, and that for her time. Bro. Leaſes 58.

If there be Leſſor in Fee, and Leſſee for ten years; in this caſe they two may joyn together and make a Leaſe for lives, or for any terme of years; and this is good. Co. 10. 49.

A Diſſeiſee cannot make a leaſe of that Land whereof he is diſſeiſed untill he make his entry or recover the poſſeſſion of the Land again. So neither can a woman that hath recovered the third part of her husbands Land in a writ of dower, make any Leaſe of it before ſhe be in poſſeſſion by execution: And yet if a Leaſe be made to me for years, I may make a Leaſe of part, or an aſſignement of all the term before I have made my entry into the Land demiſed. So if the Father die, and the Son make a leaſe to a ſtranger of the Land deſcended to him before his entry; this is a good leaſe: but if a ſtranger had entred and abated into the Land, and then the ſon had made the leaſe, *contrà. By ſpeciall power or proviſo to make leaſes.

In ſome caſes alſo ſuch perſons as are not ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple, &c. nor able to derive ſuch eſtates for life or years out of their own eſtates, may lawfully notwithſtanding make ſuch leaſes for life, &c. And this is ſometimes by ſome ſpeciall Act of Parliament enabling them ſo to doe. And hence it is alſo that a Tenant in Tail may make leaſes for three lives or twenty one years. And ſometimes it is by ſome ſpeciall power or authority that is given or reſerved by and to the party himſelf that had the Fee-ſimple in him, or given to ſome other to doe it in his name, and leaſes thus made may be good. And therefore if any Act of Parliament enable a Tenant in Tail or a Tenant for life to make leaſes for three lives, or twenty one years, leaſes that are ſo made in purſuit of that authority, are good. And if a man be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and convey it to the uſe of himſelf for life, or in Tail, with divers remainders over, with a proviſo that it ſhall be lawfull for him or any ſuch Tenant in Tail, to make leaſes for twenty one years; in this caſe he or they may make ſuch leaſes and they will be good. But in both theſe caſes care muſt be had to purſue the authority ſtrictly i. that the leaſes made be according to the power and direction given by the ſtatute or proviſo: for if it differ and vary ever ſo little from the ſenſe and meaning of the ſame; the leaſe will not be good. And therefore in the caſe before of a power to make leaſes for twenty one years, if the party make more leaſes for twenty one years at one time then one, they are all void but the firſt, becauſe it is againſt the intent of the parties, though it be not againſt the words. And ſo if the power be to make leaſes for three lives; he cannot by this make a leaſe for ninety nine years if three lives ſo long live. But if the power be thus provided, &c. that he may make any leaſe in poſſeſſion or reverſion; ſo as it doe not exceed the number of three lives or twenty one years; in this caſe a leaſe may be made for ninety nine years if three lives live ſo long. But where uſes are raiſed by way of covenant, and in the deed there is a proviſo that the covenantor for divers good conſiderations may make leaſes for years; in this caſe this power is void, and therefore no leaſe can be made hereupon: neither will any averment help in this caſe. And if a man have a letter of Atturney, or other authority to make leaſes for another, and doe make them accordingly; ſuch leaſes are good. Co. 5. 5. Dier 357. Co. 6. 2. 8. 70. 1. 175. See in leaſes made by Tenant in tail infrà. But herein alſo caution muſt be had of three things. 1 That the authority be good. 2 That he that is the Deputy or Atturney doe purſue the authority ſtrictly. 3 That he doe it in the name of his maſter, and not in his own name. Co. 9. 76.

Averment.

But if a power to make leaſes be raiſed upon a Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed without any tranſmutation of the poſſeſſion, this is void in law, and not to be holpen in equity. Caries Rep. 30.

A Leaſe made for a Thouſand days, Months, or weeks, is as good for ſo long as it endureth as a leaſe for an hundred or a thouſand years, So a leaſe for half a year, or a whole year is good: So if a leaſe be made from day to day, or from week to week for four years; this is a good leaſe for four years, Et ſic de ſimilibus. So if one make a leaſe for ten years, and ſo from ten years to ten years, during an hundred years, or untill an hundred years are incurred; this is a good leaſe for an hundred years. So if one make a leaſe from three years to three years, during the life of I S. in this caſe if livery of ſeiſin be not given, this is a good leaſe for ſix years; but if livery be given, it is a good leaſe for the life of I S. And if a leaſe be made from my death untill Anno Domini 1650; this is a good leaſe. Brownl. 1 part 30. Co. 6. 72. 14 H. 8. 13. Plow. 422. Plow. 272. *Bro. Livery of Seiſin.

If one make me a leaſe of Land untill an hundred pound be paid me, and make livery of ſeiſin upon it; this is a good leaſe for life determinable upon the payment of the hundred pound. But if no livery be made, it is no good leaſe. 21. Aſſ. pl.

Executors.

If one make a Leaſe to me for my life, and for four, ten, or twenty years after: this is a good leaſe for life firſt if livery of ſeiſin be made, and then a good leaſe for years for ſo many years as are agreed upon afterwards, which my executors ſhall have. And if no livery of ſeiſin be made; yet it ſeems it is a good leaſe for ſo many years after my death. Bro. Leaſes 27. 51.

If an Indenture of Leaſe be made between A of the one part, and B C and D of the other part, and therein A doth demiſe land to B To have and to hold to him for eighty years, if B ſhall live ſo long, and if he die, or alien the premiſſes within the term, then that his eſtate ſhall ceaſe, and then the Leſſor doth grant the Land to C for ſo many years of the ſaid term as ſhall be then to come after the death or alienation of B, if he live ſo long; in this caſe this is a good leaſe to B for ſo many years as he ſhall live of the eighty years, but the leaſe to C after is not good, for the terme is ended by the death of B, but if the words of the ſecond demiſe be To have and to hold during the reſidue of the eighty years, and not during the reſidue of the terme; in this caſe the ſecond demiſe is good to C alſo. Co. 1. 153. Dyer 253.

If one make me a Leaſe for ſixty years if I live ſo long, provided that if I die within the term, that my Executors ſhall have it during the reſidue of the ſixty years; in this caſe this is a good leaſe for the ſixty years determinable upon my death, but not a good leaſe for the reſidue of the ſixty years after my death. And yet it may amount to a good covenant for that time. Co. 1. 155. Dyer. 150. 2. 53.

Covenant.

If A covenant to levy a fine to B and his Heirs, provided that if he pay B and his Heirs ten pound at the end of thirteen years, that then the fine ſhall be to the uſe of A and his Heirs, and A doth covenant with B by the ſame Deed, that B his Heirs, Executors, and aſſignes, ſhall quietly hold the premiſſes from Michaelmas next for thirteen years and yearly from thenceforth for ever if the ten pound be not paid according to the intent; in this caſe this covenant doth not make a good leaſe for the thirteen years, and it is but a covenant. Evans caſe. Trin 5. Jac. B. R.

Covenant.

If one make a leaſe for a certain number of years, and it is further agreed that upon ſome contingent the Leſſee ſhall have the Fee-ſimple, and livery of ſeiſin is given hereupon; in this caſe the leaſe for years doth continue good for the time agreed upon. Plow. 272. Lit. Sect.

Executors.

A leaſe for years cannot by the agreement of the parties be made to the Heirs of the Leſſee, nor intailed to the Heirs of his body. And therefore if a Leaſe be made to I S and his Heirs, or to I S and the Heirs male of his body, yet the executors of I S and not his Heirs ſhall have it, and the Executors may ſell the term. Co, 2. 24. 10. 87. If two agree by word that one of them ſhall have ſuch a peece of Land for twenty years; this is a good and perfect leaſe that is made by this agreement, albeit they doe agree to have a writing made of it afterwards, for in this caſe the writing is but the confirmation of it. But if the agreement be that ſuch a writing ſhall be made, or that a leaſe ſhall be made of ſuch a thing between them and put in writing, ſo that the agreement hath reference to the writing, and implieth an intent not to perfect the agreement till the writing be made; in this caſe the leaſe is not a perfect leaſe untill the writing be made. Per Juſtice Jones at the Aſſiſes at Glouc.

Albeit the moſt uſuall and proper making of a leaſe is by the words, Demiſe, grant, and to ferm let, and with an Habendum for life or years, yet a Leaſe may be made by other words, for whatſoever word will amount to a Grant will amount to a leaſe. And therefore a Leaſe may be made by the word, Give, Betake, or the like. The word Locavit alſo is a good word. And the uſe in the Exchequer is to make Leaſes by the word Committimus, which is a good word to make a Leaſe, Co. ſuper Litt. 5. F. N. B. 270. e. Br. Leaſes. 71. And if A. doe but grant and covenant with B, that B. ſhall enjoy ſuch a peece of land for 20. years; this is a good leaſe for twenty years. Bro. Leaſes. 60. So if A, promiſe to B, to ſuffer him to enjoy ſuch a peece of land for twenty years; this leaſe is a good leaſe for twenty years. Mic. 9. Jac. B. R Curia.

So if A. licenſe B. to enjoy ſuch a peece of land for twenty years; this is a good leaſe for twenty years. 5 H. 7. 1. And therefore it is the common courſe, if a man make a feoffment in fee, or other eſtate upon condition that if ſuch a thing be, or be not done at ſuch a time, that the feoffor, &c. ſhall reenter, to the end that in this caſe the feoffor, &c. may have the land and continue in poſſeſſion untill that time, to make a Covenant that he ſhall hold and take the profits of the land untill that time; and this Covenant in this caſe will make a good leaſe for that time, if the incertainty of the time (whereunto care muſt be had) doe not make it void. And therefore if A. bargaine and ſell his land to B. on condition to reenter if he pay him an hundred pound, and B. doth covenant with A. that he will not take the profits untill default of payment, or that A. ſhall take the profits untill default of payment; in this caſe howbeit this may be a good Covenant yet it is no good Leaſe. And if the Morgagee covenant with the Morgagor that he will not take the profits of the land untill the day of payment of the mony; in this caſe albeit the time be certaine, yet this is no good Leaſe but a Covenant onely. If one give a Bond for the quiet holding of a Cloſe for three years; it ſeemes this is no leaſe in Law. See the opinion of the Parliament for Bonds and Covenants both Stat. 14 Eliz. cap. 11. Agreed by all the Judges Mic. 20. Jac. et per. Juſt. Bridgman. And 8. Car. B. R. Covenant.

A Leaſe for years may begin at a day to come, as at Michaelmas next, or three or ten years after, or after the death of the Leſſor, or of I. S. and it is as good as where it doth begin preſently. But a leaſe for life of any thing whatſoever whether it lye in Livery, or in Grant, if it be in eſſe before, cannot begin at a day to come. And therefore if a leaſe be made Habendum, from Michaelmas next, or from the day of the making of it, or after the death of the leſſor, or after the death of I. S. to the leſſee for life, this leaſe is not good: but in caſe of a leaſe of land made thus, it is ſometimes holpen by the livery of ſeiſin. But all leaſes for years whether they begin in preſenti, or in futuro, muſt be certaine, that is, they muſt have a certain beginning, and certain ending, and ſo the continuance of the term muſt be certain, otherwiſe they are not good. And yet if the years be certain when the leaſe is to take effect in intereſt or poſſeſſion, it is ſufficient, for untill that time it may depend upon an incertainty, viz. upon a poſſible contingent precedent before it begin in poſſeſſion or intereſt, or upon a limitation or condition ſubſequent: but in caſe when it is to be reduced to a certainty upon a contingent precedent, the contingent muſt happen in the lives of the parties. And albeit there appear no certainty of years in the leaſe, yet if by reference to a certainty it may bee made certaine it is ſufficient. Id certum eſt quod certum reddi poteſt. As for examples, if A. ſeiſed of lands in fee, grant to B. that when B. ſhall pay to A. twenty ſhillings, that from thenceforth he ſhall hold the land for twenty one years, and after B. doth pay the twenty ſhillings; in this caſe B. ſhall have a good leaſe for twenty one years from thenceforth. and if A. grant to B. that if his tenant for life ſhall die, that B. ſhall have the land for ten years; this is a good Leaſe. And if one make a leaſe for years after the death of C. if C. die within ten years; this is a good leaſe if C. die within the ten years, otherwiſe not. But if A. be ſeiſed of land in fee, and leaſe it to B. for ten years, and it is agreed between them that B. ſhall pay to A. an hundred pound at the end of the ſaid ten years, and that if he doe ſo, and ſhall pay the ſaid hundred pound, and an hundred pound at the end of every ten years, that then the ſaid B. ſhall have a perpetuall demiſe and grant of the premiſſes from ten years to ten years continually following extra memoriam hominum &c. in this caſe this, albeit it be a good leaſe for the firſt ten years, yet it is void for all the reſt for incertainty. And if a leaſe be made to begin from the Nativity of Chriſt, and he doth not ſay which Nativity, as next &c. it is void for incertainty. And yet if a leaſe for years be made of land in leaſe for life to have and to hold from the death of the tenant for life; this is a good leaſe: So if it be to have and to hold from Michaelmas next after the death of the tenant for life, or from Michaelmas next after the determination of the eſtate of the tenant for life; theſe are good leaſes. So if there be a former leaſe in being for life or years, and another leaſe for years is made of the land to have and to hold from the end of the former eſtate by ſurrender, forfeiture, or otherwiſe for twenty years; or to have and to hold from the ſurrender, forfeiture, or other determination of the former leaſe if there be any, and if there be none for twenty years; theſe and ſuch like leaſes are good, and this commencement is certain enough. And if one make a leaſe to begin after the death of I.S. & to continue untill Michaelmas, which ſhall be in Anno Domini 1650. this is a good leaſe. Co. ſup. 5. Lit. 45. Co. 1. 1. 155. Co. ſuper Lit. 45. Plow. 83. 524. Co. 6. 35. 1. 155. Plow. 270. Hil. 16. *Jac. in the Exchequer. If a man have a leaſe of land for an hundred years, and he make a leaſe of this land to another to have and to hold to him for 40 years to begin after his death; this is a good leaſe for the whole forty years, if there ſhall be ſo many of the hundred years to come at the time of the death of the leſſor. But if the leſſor grant the land to another to have and to hold to him for and during all the reſidue of the term of an hundred years that ſhall be to come at the time of the death of the grantor; this is void for incertainty. And yet if in this caſe he grant withall all his eſtate, or all his term, or all his intereſt in the premiſſes of the deed, and then ſay to have and to hold the land &c. to the grantee for all the reſidue of the term of an hundred years that ſhall be to come at the time of his death; by this the whole eſtate and intereſt of the grantor into the land doth paſſe preſently by theſe words in the premiſes of the deed. And if in this caſe the leſſee for an hundred years make a leaſe of the land to have and to hold after his death for an hundred years; this will be a good leaſe for as many of the firſt hundred years as ſhall be to come at the time of his death. If a leaſe be made to two for their lives, the remainder which ſhall firſt happen to dye for forty years; in this caſe this is but a poſſibility. And therefore neither the one nor the other, nor both together can grant away this terme of forty years, Goldsb. 168. Lit. Bro: Sect. 437. *Bro. If A. make a leaſe to B. for ninty years to begin after the death of A. on condition to be avoided upon the doing of divers acts by others, and afterwards makes another leaſe of the land Habendum after the determination or redemption of the former leaſe, it ſeems this is a good leaſe and certain enough. But if a leaſe be made to A. for eighty years if he live ſo long, and if he dye within the ſaid term or alien the premiſſes, that then his eſtate ſhall ceaſe, and then he doth further by the ſame deed grant and let the premiſſes for ſo many years as ſhall then remain unexpired after the death of A. or alienation to B. for the reſidue of the ſaid term of eighty years, if he ſhall live ſo long; in this caſe the leaſe to B. is void, for after the death of A. the term is at end. but if he ſay for the reſidue of the eighty years, it is otherwiſe. Per Juſtice Bridgeman. Co. 4. 153. Dier. 253.

If A doth make a leaſe of land to B. for ſo many years as B. hath in the Manor of Dale, and B. hath then a leaſe for ten years of the Manor of Dale; in this caſe this is a good leaſe for ten years. But if A. make a leaſe of land to B: for ſo many years as the land B. hath in execution ſhall be in execution; this leaſe is void for incertainty. And if a leaſe be made during the minority of I. S: or untill I. S. ſhall come to the age age of twenty one years, theſe are good leaſes; and if I. S. dye before he come to his full age, the leaſe is ended. But if a leaſe be made to another until a child that is now in its mothers belly ſhal come to the age of twenty one years; this leaſe is not good. And if a leaſe be made for ſo many years as I. S. ſhall name; in this caſe if I. S. doe name a certain number of years in the life time of the party leſſor; this is a good leaſe. But if a leaſe be made for ſo many years, as the executor of the leſſor, or of the leſſee ſhall name, this leaſe is void. Plow. 273. 523. 522. F. N. B. 6. N. 14 H. 8. 11. Co. 6. 35.

If a man make a leaſe for twenty one years, if I. S. live ſo long, or if the coverture between I. S and D. S. ſhall ſo long continue, or if I. S. ſhall continue to be Parſon of Dale ſo long, theſe and ſuch like leaſes are good. But if A. make a leaſe to B. for ſo many yeares as A. and B. or either of them ſhall live, not naming any certain number of years; this cannot be a good leaſe for years. So if the Parſon of Dale make a leaſe of his glebe for ſo many years as he ſhall be Parſon there, this is not certain neither can it be made ſo by any means. And yet if a Parſon ſhall make a leaſe from three years to three years ſo long as he ſhal be Parſon; this is a good leaſe for ſix years if he continue Parſon ſo long, and for the reſidue void for incertainty. So if I make another a leaſe of land untill he be promoted to a Benefice; this is no good leaſe for years, but void for incertainty. Co. ſuper Lit. 45. Plow. 27.

If I have a rent-charge of twenty pound per annum, and let it to another untill he have levied an hundred pound, this is a good leaſe for five years. But if I have a peece of land of the value of twenty pound per annum, and I make a leaſe of it to another untill he ſhall levy out of the profits thereof an hundred pound; this is no good leaſe for years, but void for incertainty. Co. 6. 35. 14 H. 8. 10. Plow. 274.

But her note in all theſe caſes of incertain leaſes made with ſuch limitations as aforeſaid, as untill ſuch a thing be done, or ſo long as ſuch a thing continue &c. that if livery of ſeiſin be made upon them, they may be good leaſes for life determinable on theſe contingents, albeit they be no good leaſes for years. Plow. 27. Co. 6. 35. Note.

And in ſome ſpeciall caſes a leaſe may be good notwithſtanding ſome incertainty in the continuance of it, for a leaſe may ceaſe for a time and revive again, as if tenant in tail make a leaſe for years reſerving twenty ſhillings, and after take a wife and die without iſſue; in this caſe as to him in reverſion the leaſe is meerly void: but if he indow the wife of the tenant in tail of the land, as to the wife, it is revived again. So if tenant in taile make a leaſe for years rendring rent, and die without iſſue, his wife enceint with a ſon, and he in reverſion enter, in this caſe as againſt him the leaſe is void, but after the ſon is born the leaſe is good again if it be within the Statute. So if tenant in fee-ſimple take a wife, and then make a leaſe for years and dieth, the wife is indowed; in this caſe ſhe ſhall avoid the leaſe, but after her deceaſe the leaſe ſhall be in force again. Co. ſuper Lit. 46 10 Ed 3. 26.

If a leaſe be made for life or years to A. and after the leſſor doth make a leaſe for years by word or in writing to B. regularly this concurrent leaſe to B. is a good leaſe at leaſt for ſo many years of the ſecond leaſe as ſhall be to come after the firſt leaſe is determined according to the agreement, as if the firſt leaſe to A. be for twenty years, and the ſecond leaſe to B. be for thirty years, and both begin at one time; in this caſe the ſecond leaſe is good for the laſt ten years. And yet the reverſion will not paſſe without the atturnment of the tenant, and therefore if any rent be reſerved on the firſt leaſe, the ſecond leſſee ſhall not have it untill the firſt leſſee doth atturn. But if the ſecond leaſe be for the ſame or for a leſſe time, as if the firſt leaſe be for twenty years, and the ſecond leaſe be for twenty or for ten years to begin at the ſame time; theſe ſecond leaſes are for the moſt part void. Plow. 433. 421. 273. Co. 1. 155. Bro. Leaſes. 73. 1 . Plow. 521. Co. 4. 58. And yet herein a difference is taken between leaſes made by matter of record and by writing, and leaſes that are made by word of mouth; for if the ſecond leaſe be made by fine, deed indented, or poll, albeit it be but for the ſame or for a leſſer time, and albeit it be a leaſe of the land it ſelf, and not of the reverſion, yet it will paſſe the rent reſerved upon the firſt leaſe if the firſt leſſee atturn, and ſo alſo it will do without atturnment where atturnment is not needfull. But if the ſecond leaſe be made by word of mouth it is otherwiſe, for a reverſion and a 4. In reſpect of another leaſe then in being of the ſame thing.

Eſtoppel. And if the ſecond leaſe be by fine or deed indented, then alſo it will work by way of Eſtoppel both againſt the leſſor and againſt the leſſee, ſo that if the firſt leaſe happen by any means, as by ſurrender or otherwiſe, to determine before it be run out, then the ſecond leſſee ſhall have it; and if there bee any rent reſerved upon the ſecond leaſe, the leſſee muſt pay it from the time of the making of the leaſe. Dier. 58. 356. Plow. 421, 422. Co. 1. 155. And therefore if one make a leaſe of land to A. for ten years, and after make a leaſe to B. of the ſame land from Michaelmas next for ten years, and before Michaelmas the firſt leſſee doth purchaſe the fee-ſimple ſo that now by this means his term is drowned; in this caſe the ſecond leaſe ſhall begin at Michaelmas. Dier. 112. Plow. 432. So if one make a leaſe to A. for twenty years, and A. make a leaſe of the land to B. for two years rendring rent, and after A. makes a leaſe for the reſt of his time to C. by deed; this leaſe if the leſſee for two years doe atturn, is a good leaſe of the rent and reverſion; and ſo it is alſo without Atturnment, if there be any conſideration given for it, for then it is alſo a good leaſe for all the reſt of the term after the two years. Co. 4. 53. So if one make a leaſe to A, for twenty years, if he live ſo long rendring rent, and after he doth make a leaſe to B. by Indenture for eighty years to begin preſently, or grant the reverſion to begin at a day paſt, or the like, in all theſe caſes if the firſt leſſee atturne, the rent will paſſe, but if not, it will be a good leaſe for the land for ſo many of the years as ſhall bee to come after the Firſt leaſe ended. But if the ſecond leaſe bee by paroll without a deed, the reverſion as a reverſion will not paſſe, and the grant will bee void if there be nothing elſe to help it. Co. 1. 155. Plow. 432. 434. Hil. 6. Jac. Adjudge Finch verſus Vaughan. And in caſes where the ſecond leaſe is void, albeit the firſt leſſee ſurrender his eſtate, or his eſtate end by a condition, yet the ſecond leaſe is not hereby made good. Dier. 112. But if the ſecond leaſe for years after another leaſe for life or years be made for mony, ſo as it may be ſaid to paſſe by way of bargain and ſale; this may help the matter, for in this caſe albeit it be by word only, it may paſs the reverſion and the rent alſo: but in moſt caſes it is good for the remainder of the term after the firſt leaſe ended. And if the ſecond leaſe be to begin after the end of the former leaſe; in this caſe the former leaſe is no impediment at all to the validity of the latter leaſe, but the latter leaſe is good notwithſtanding. Co. 2. 35. 36.

5. What leaſes or other acts may be made or done by a tenant in tail. And what leaſes made by ſuch a tenant ſhall be good to binde the iſſue, or him in remainder, or others after the death of the tenant in tail. And how they ſhal bind.

Any perſon whatſoever of full age that hath any eſtate of inheritance in Fee-taile in his own right of any lands, tenements, or hereditaments, may at this day without fine or recovery make leaſes of ſuch lands for lives or years, and ſuch leaſes ſhall be good ſo as theſe conditions and incidents following be therein obſerved and kept. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 28. Co. ſuper Litt. 44.

1. Such leaſes muſt be by deed indented, and not by deed poll or by paroll.

2. They muſt be made to begin from the day of the making thereof, or from the making thereof.

And therefore a leaſe made to begin from Michaelmas which ſhall be three years after for twenty one years, or a leaſe made to begin after the death of the tenant in tail for twenty one years is not good. Co. 5. 6. Dier. 246.

But if a leaſe be made for twenty years to begin at Michaelmas next; it ſeemes this is a good leaſe.

3. If there be an old leaſe in being of the land, the ſame muſt be ſurrendred, or expired and ended within a year of the time of the making of the new leaſe, and this ſurrender muſt be abſolute, and not conditionall; alſo it muſt be reall, and not illuſory or in ſhew only. For factum non dicitur quod non perſeverat. Co. 5. 2.

4. There muſt not bee a double or concurrent leaſe in being at one time, as if a leaſe for years bee made according to the ſtatute, he in the reverſion cannot afterwards expulſe the leſſee and make a leaſe for life or lives, or another leaſe for years according to the ſtatute, nor è converſo. But if a leaſe for years be made to one, and afterwards a leaſe for life is made to another, and a letter of atturney is made to give livery of ſeiſin upon the leaſe for life, & before the livery made the firſt leaſe

5 Theſe leaſes muſt not exceed three lives, or twenty one years from the time of the making of them. And therefore if Tenant in Tail make a leaſe for twenty two or for forty years, or for four lives; this leaſe is void, and that not only for the overplus of time more then three lives or twenty one years, but for that time of three lives or twenty one years alſo. And it hath been reſolved, that if Tenant in Tail make a leaſe for ninety nine years determinable upon three lives, that this is not a good leaſe. But if a leaſe be made by a Tenant in Tail for a leſſer time, as for two lives, or for twenty years, this is a good leaſe. And if a Leaſe be made for four lives, and it happen that one of the lives die before the Tenant in Tail die; yet this accident will not make the leaſe good, but it remains voidable notwithſtanding. Co. 5. 6. Dyer 246. Co. 1.

6. Theſe leaſes muſt be of Lands, Tenements, or hereditaments manurable or corporall, which are neceſſary to be letten, and whereout a rent by law may be iſſuing and reſerved. And therefore if a Tenant in Tail make a leaſe of ſuch a thing as doth lie in grant, as an Advowſon, Fair, Market, Franchiſe, or the like, out of which a rent cannot be reſerved, eſpecially if it be a Leaſe for life; this leaſe is void, and that albeit the thing hath been anciently and accuſtomably letten. And a grant of a rent-charge therefore out of ſuch lands is void. Tallentines caſe, Paſch. 3 Jac. B. R, Co. 11. 60. Trin. 2 Ja. B. R. Adjudg. Doddingtons Caſe. And if Tenant in Tail make a leaſe for three lives of a portion of Tithes rendring rent, this leaſe is unqueſtionably void. And ſo alſo it ſeems it is if it be a leaſe for twenty one years.

7 They muſt be of ſuch Lands, or Tenements, which have been moſt commonly letten to farm, or occupied by the Farmors thereof by the ſpace of twenty years next before the leaſe made, ſo as if it have been letten for eleven years at one or ſeverall times within twenty years before the new leaſe made, it is ſufficient. And albeit the letting have been by Copy of Court Roll only, yet ſuch a letting in Fee, for life, or years, is a ſufficient letting, and ſo alſo is a letting at will by the Common Law. But theſe lettings to farm muſt be made by ſuch as are ſeiſed of an eſtate of inheritance: for if it have been only by Guardian in Chivalry, Tenant by the courteſie, in dower, or the like; this will not ſerve to be a letting within the intent of the ſtatute. Co. 6. 37. Dyer. 271.

8 There muſt be reſerved upon ſuch leaſes yearely during the ſame leaſes due and payable to the Leſſor and his heirs to whom the reverſion ſhall appertain, ſo much yearly farm or rent, or more as hath been moſt accuſtomably yeelded or paid for the lands &c. within twenty years next before ſuch leaſe made. And therefore if the rent be reſerved but for part of the time of the new leaſe, this leaſe is void. And if the Tenant in Tail have twenty acres of Land that have been accuſtomably letten, and he make a leaſe of theſe twenty acres, and of one acre more which hath not been accuſtomably letten, reſerving the uſuall yearly rent, and ſo much more as to exceed the value of the other acre; this is not a good leaſe by the Statute. So if the Tenant in Tail of two farms, the one at twenty pound rent, the other at ten pound rent, and he make a leaſe of both theſe farms together, at thirty pound rent; this is not a good leaſe within the Statute. Co. 5. 8. 6. 6. 37. But if beſides the annuall rent there have been formerly reſerved things not annuall, as Hariots, Fines, or other profit upon the death of the Farmors, or profit out of anothers ſoil, as paſturage for a colt &c. if upon the new leaſe the yearly rent be reſerved, albeit theſe collaterall reſervations be omitted, yet theſe leaſes are good. Co. 6. 37. 38. Trin. 3 Jac. B. R. Adjudg. Adjudg. Tr. 18. Jac. B. R. And ſo alſo if there be more rent reſerved upon the new leaſe then the rent that hath been anciently paid, the leaſe is good notwithſtanding. And yet if Tenant in Tail of Land let a part of it that hath been accuſtomably letten, and reſerve the rent prorata or more then after the rate; this is not a good leaſe. Co. 5. 6. And yet if two coparcenours have twenty acres of Land of equall value between them in Tail, and the e have been uſually letten, and they make partition of theſe Lands, ſo as each of them hath ten acres; in this caſe they may make leaſes of their ſeverall parts reſerving the half of the accuſtomable rent. Co. 5. 5. And yet Co. ſuper Lit. 44. B. is contra.

And

And if upon the old leaſe the Rent were payable at four days in the year, and by the new leaſe it is reſerved to be paid at one day; this is not a good leaſe. But if the rent upon the old leaſe be payable in gold, and the new rent be payable in ſilver; it ſeems the leaſe is not good. And if a Tenant in Tail be of a Manor that hath been uſually demiſed for ten pound rent, and after a Tenancy eſcheat, and then he doth make a leaſe of the Manor rendring ten pound rent by the year; in this caſe this is a good leaſe, but if the Leſſor purchaſe a Tenancy, then it ſeems otherwiſe. Trin. 3. Jac. B. R. Cornwals caſe. Co 5. 5. Co. 5. 6.

9 Such leaſes muſt not be without impeachment of waſt. And therefore if Tenant in tail make a leaſe of his Land intailed without impeachment of waſt; this leaſe is void. And if a leaſe be made for life, the remainder for life, &c. this is not a good leaſe: for in this caſe during the remainders, the Tenant for life cannot be puniſhed for waſt done. But if ſuch a Tenant of Land make a leaſe of it to I S for the lives of three others; this is a good leaſe, albeit it may afterwards become an occupancy. Co. 6. 37. & Meers caſe Adjudge.

Waſt.

10 Such leaſes muſt not be againſt any ſpeciall Act of Parliament. And therefore if a woman that is Tenant in Tail of the gift of her deceaſed husband, or any of his Auncеſtors whiles ſhe is ſole, or after with another husband make any ſuch leaſe warranted by this Statute; yet this leaſe is not good. Stat. 11 H. 7. 20. Co. 3. 51.

11 They muſt have all due ceremonies and circumſtances for the perfection of them, as other ſuch like leaſes have, as livery of ſeiſin, and the like, where they are needfull. And then only when leaſes have theſe conditions, and are made according to theſe proviſions, are they ſaid to be within this ſtatute of 32 H. 8. and ſuch only as doe bind the Tenant in Tail himſelf, and the iſſue in Tail, for otherwiſe if it be not warranted by this ſtatute, albeit it will bind the Tenant in Tail himſelf that made it, yet it will not binde his iſſue, but as to him it will be void, or voidable at the leaſt: for if Tenant in Tail of land make a leaſe of it for an hundred years without any rent reſerved thereupon; this leaſe as to the iſſue in Tail is void: but if he make a leaſe of his Land for an hundred years rendring rent, and have iſſue and die; in this caſe the leaſe is onely voidable by the iſſue at his pleaſure, and therefore if the iſſue accept the rent after the death of the Tenant in Tail; by this means the leaſe is affirmed and become good. But howſoever the leaſe bee made, it will not binde him that comes in of a remainder over, nor him that is the donor. And therefore if a Tenant in Tail make a leaſe warranted by the Statute, and after die without iſſue, ſo that the land doth remain over to another, or revert to the donor; in theſe caſes neither he in remainder, nor the donor ſhall be bound by this leaſe, for as to them the leaſe is void. And yet by a common recovery the Tenant in Tail may make leaſes of, or lay charges upon the land to bind the donor and him in remainder alſo. But otherwiſe it is of a fine, for if Tenant in Tail make a Leaſe for years by fine, this will not bar the donor, nor the remainder in any caſe where it is in a ſtranger. And yet if the remainder be in the Tenant in Tail himſelf, and he make a leaſe for years by deed according to the Statute or by fine; this leaſe is good and ſhall bind his own remainder. See more Brownl. 1 part. 139. 173. Co. 7. 7. 8. 34. Dyer 7. 8. The womans Lawyer. 73. Plow. 435. 436.

Acceptance.

6. What leaſes or other acts may be made or done by the husband with the lands he hath in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail in the right of his wife, or joyntly with her. And what leaſes made by him of ſuch lands are good. Or not. And how.

The Husband may at this day without fine or recovery make leaſes of the lands, tenements or hereditaments, whereof he hath any eſtate of inheritance in Fee ſimple, or Fee-tail in the right of his Wife, or joyntly with his wife made before or after the coverture, ſo as there be in ſuch leaſes obſerved the eleven conditions or limitations before required in the leaſes made by Tenant in Tail, and ſo that the wife doe joyn in the ſame deed, and be made party thereunto, and doe ſeal and deliver the ſame deed her ſelf in perſon. For if a man and his wife make a letter of Atturney to another to deliver the leaſe upon the Land; this leaſe is not a good leaſe from the wife warranted by the Statute.

And yet then as in other like caſes of leaſes not warranted by this ſtatute, it is a good leaſe againſt the husband.

And when the leaſe is ſuch a leaſe as is warranted by the ſtatute, it doth bind the husband and wife both, and the Heirs of the wife; but if it be an eſtate

Tail

Tail, it doth not bind the Donor nor him in remainder. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 28. Co. ſuper Litt. 44. Paſch. 7 Jac. B.R.

If the Husband and wife at the Common Law had joyned in a leaſe of her land without rendring of Rent; this leaſe had been void as againſt the wife, and ſo is the law ſtill. 26 H 8. 2.

If the husband at the Common Law had been ſeiſed of Land in the right of his wife, and he had made a leaſe for years rendring rent and died; this leaſe had been void, and ſo is the Law ſtill. 26 H. 8. 2. Co. 2, 77.

If the husband and wife at the Common Law had made a leaſe by word rendring rent; this leaſe had been void as againſt the wife; and ſo is the law ſtill. Dyer 91.

The husband and wife together may by fine, or recovery, make what leaſes they will of her Land, or charge it for what time they will; and ſuch leaſes and charges will be good againſt the husband and wife both and their heirs alſo: Stat. 32 H. 8, ch. 28. See the womans Lawyer 163:

But if the husband alone doe levie any fine of his wives land, and thereby make any eſtate whatſoever; this will not bind the wife after her Husbands death, but ſhe may avoid it.

And if the Husband and wife make a leaſe of her land rendring rent to them and the heirs of the wife (as in ſuch leaſes it ought to be;) in this caſe the husband cannot by fine or otherwiſe grant or diſcharge this rent longer then during coverture unleſs the wife joyn in the fine, but the rent ſhall deſcend, remaine or revert in ſuch ſort and manner as the land ſhould have done.

7. What leaſes or other acts Biſhops or other ſpirituall or eccleſiaſticall perſons may make or doe with the lands they have in the right of their churches or houſes. And what leaſes made by ſuch perſons will bind their ſucceſſors and others. Or not.

Biſhops with the confirmation of the Deane and Chapter, Parſons or Vicars with the conſent of their Patrons and Ordinaries, Archdeacons, Prebends, and ſuch as are in the nature of Prebends, as Precentors, Chaunters, Treaſurers, Chancellors and ſuch like, alſo Maſters and Governours and Fellowes of any Colledges or houſes, (by what name ſoever called) Deans and Chapters, Maſters or Gardians of any Hoſpitall and their brethren, or any other body politique, ſpirituall and eccleſiaſticall (Concurrentibus hiis quæ in jure requiruntur) might by the ancient common law have made leaſes for lives or years, or any other eſtate of their ſpirituall or eccleſiaſticall living for any time without ſtint or limitation.

And at this day the Biſhops, and the reſt of the ſaid Spirituall perſons, except Parſons and Vicars, may make leaſes of their ſpirituall livings for three lives, or twenty one years, and ſuch leaſes will be good both againſt themſelves and their ſucceſſors.

But ſuch perſons may not make leaſes or eſtates for any longer time then for three lives or twenty one years; and if they doe, albeit it be by fine or recovery, or it be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, &c. yet it is void as againſt the ſucceſſor.

Neither will the leaſes made by ſuch perſons for three lives or twenty one years be good, unleſs they have certain conditions and properties required in them.

Theſe things therefore are neceſſarily required to be obſerved in the making of ſuch leaſes, Co. ſuper Lit. 44. Co. 5, 14. 11. 66. Stat. 32 H. 8. chap. 28. 13. El. 10. 1 Jac. chap. 3. 1. El. chap 19. 14 El. chap. 11. 18 El. chap. 10. 20.

1 That they have the effect of all the qualities or properties before mentioned and required by the Statute of 32 H. 8. Co. ſuper Litt. 44. Co. 11. 66. 5. 3. 15. in the leaſe made by the Tenant in Tail, and be made after that pattern, viz. That they be by deed indented.

2 That they doe begin from the time of the making of them.

3 and 4 That the old leaſe be ſurrendred, and there be not a concurrent leaſe (ſave in caſe of a Biſhop.) And therefore if any ſuch perſon make a leaſe for 21 years to one, and then make a leaſe for three lives to another; this ſecond leaſe is void.

And yet if a Biſhop make a leaſe for 21 years to one man, and then within a year after make another leaſe to another for 21 years to begin from the making of it, this, ſo as it be confirmed by Dean and Chapter, is reſolved to be a good leaſe.

5 That

5. That they doe not exceed three lives or twenty one years, but they may be for a leſſe time.

6. That they be of lands or tenements manurable or corporall.

7. That they be made of lands that have been commonly let to farm by the ſpace of 20 years before.

8. That there be reſerved upon them the ancient and accuſtomed rent payable to the leſſor and his ſucceſſors during the time.

9. That they be not made without impeachment of waſt.

10. That there be livery of ſeiſin upon them &c. where it is requiſite.

11. If the leaſe be made according to the exception of the Statute of 1 Eliz. and 13 Eliz. and not warranted by the Statute of 32. H. 8. as in the caſe of a concurrent leaſe, and it be made by a Biſhop or any ſole Corporation, it muſt be confirmed by the Deans and Chapters, or others that have intereſt. And if a Parſon or Vicar make a leaſe, it is not good but during the Parſon or Vicars reſidence, according to the Statute of 13 Eliz. chap. 20. and in this caſe there needs no confirmation at all. Co. 11. 66. 5. 3.

12. Some of the leaſes that are made by the Colledges and houſes of the Univerſity &c. muſt have ſome rent corne reſerved upon them. But Biſhops, Deans, Parſons and ſuch like ſpirituall perſons cannot grant the next advowſons of Churches, neither can they grant rents out of their ſpirituall livings but the ſame charges will be void after their death. And if a Biſhop ſuffer an annuity to be recovered againſt him by a pretence of title of preſcription on a Judgment after a verdict or confeſſion, or a parſon in ſuch a caſe pray in aide of the Patron; and ſo ſuffer an annuity to be recovered; this will not bind the ſucceſſor. And yet a Biſhop, or any ſuch ſpirituall perſon may grant ancient offices of truſt of neceſſity or conveniency, as the offices of Chancelor, Regiſter, Steward, Bailiffe, or the like, with the ancient fees incident thereunto for the life or lives of the grantees, and ſuch grants are good, albeit they be made by the Biſhops of the new erected Biſhopricks, and that there be not in them the conditions and properties required in the leaſes before mentioned, ſo as they be confirmed by the Deane and Chapter. But they may not grant any new office nor yet adde any new Fee to the old offices. And therefore if a Biſhop grant an annuity, pro conſilio impenſo & impendendo where none was before; this will not bind the ſucceſſor. And yet if there be an old fee, and there is a new fee added to it; in this caſe it ſeemes it is good for the old fee, albeit it be void for the new fee. Neither may they grant their offices otherwiſe then they have been granted. And therefore where the ancient grants of the office have been to one; it cannot be now granted to two. And where the ancient grants have been to two jointly, they may not be now granted in remainder one after another. Neither may the grants of theſe offices be longer then for the life or lives of the grantees. And in caſe where the grant is void, the confirmation of the Deane and Chapter will not make it good. See Brownl. 2. part. 134. 135. 158. Stat. 18 Eliz. chap. 20. Co. 5. 15. 11. 66. 10. 58. Dier. 370. And moſt of theſe points were agreed by Juſtice Jones & Juſtice Whitlock at Lent Aſſiſes at Gloc. 6. Car.

Note. But here Note that albeit in all theſe caſes of leaſes and grants not warranted by the Statutes aforeſaid, the Statutes ſay the leaſes ſhall be void, yet this is to be underſtood as againſt the ſucceſſors and not againſt the leſſors themſelves, for the leaſes are good ſo long as the leſſors live, or at leaſt ſo long as they continue in the place. And therefore if ſuch a leaſe be made by a Deane and Chapter or other corporation aggregate; it is good as againſt the Deane or other head of the Corporation, ſo long as he doth continue in his place. And if a Biſhop make any leaſe or other grant not warranted by the Statute of 1 Eliz. or a Dean and Chapter, Maſter and Fellowes of a Colledge or the like make leaſes not warranted by the Statute of 13 Eliz. chap. 10. theſe leaſes are good againſt themſelves, albeit they are void againſt their ſucceſſors. So as if a private Act of Parliament doth entaile land upon a man, and appoint him what eſtates he ſhall make, and that if he make any other eſtates they ſhall be void; in this caſe they ſhall not be void as to the tenant in taile himſelf that doth make them. Co. ſuper. Litt. 45. 329. 3. 59. 10. 59. 11. 73. 78. 5. 5.

Leaſes of Benefices with cure, are no longer good then the Parſon is reſident. 13. El. 20.

Leaſes

Leaſes made by Colledges muſt have reſerved upon them the third part of the Rent in Corn. See 18 Eliz. 20.

If one make a Leaſe to another, during the will and pleaſure of him that letteth, or him that taketh, or both (for ſo in effect is every Leaſe at will;) this is a good Leaſe at will. So if one make a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for life. &c. and do not make Livery of Seiſin, and ſo perfect the Eſtate; the Feoffee or Leſſee hath onely an Eſtate at will. But if a bargain and ſale be made of Land, and the ſame is void; or a Corporation grant Land, and the grant is void; by this there is no Leaſe at Will made. Co. ſuper Littl. 55. 56. 270. 14 H. 8. 12. 8. What ſhall be ſaid a good Leaſe at Will, or not.

Leaſes for lives or years are of three natures, ſome be good in Law, ſome be voidable by Entry, and ſome void without Entry. And of ſuch as be good in Law, ſome be good at the Common Law, as Leaſes made by Tenant in Fee-ſimple, notwithſtanding they be for longer time then three lives or twenty one years; ſome by act of Parliament, as Leaſes made by Tenant in Tail, Leaſes made by a Biſhop ſeiſed in Fee in the right of his Church alone without the Chapter, Leaſes made by a man ſeiſed in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-tail of Land, in the right of his wife, together with his wife, for twenty one years, or three lives according to the Statutes. And of ſuch Leaſes as be void alſo, ſome are void at the Common Law, and that ſometimes in præſenti, as in the caſes before of Leaſes for years that have no certainty in them, or Leaſes for lives made without Livery of Seiſin, and the like. And ſome are void in futuro, as if a Tenant in Tail make a Leaſe for years warranted, or not warranted by the Statute, and after die without iſſue; this Leaſe is void as to him in Reverſion or Remainder, Ceſſante ſtatu primitivo ceſſat derivativus. So if a Prebend, Parſon, or Vicar make a Leaſe for years not warranted by the Statutes; this is void by the death of the Leſſor, and the Succeſſor need not make any Entry or Claim to avoid it. So if a Tenant for life make a Leaſe for years, and after die; in this caſe the Leaſe for years is void. And therefore in all theſe, and ſuch like caſes, no Acceptance of Rent after will affirm ſuch Leaſes. But otherwiſe it is in caſes of Leaſes for years, made by Biſhops, albeit they be confirmed by Dean and Chapter; and of Leaſes made by Deans and Chapters, or Tenants in Tail, as to their Succeſſors, and Iſſues, when the Leaſes are not warranted by the Statutes: And otherwiſe it is alſo in the caſe of Leaſes for life, made by theſe or any of the former Leſſors; for in all caſes of Leaſes for life, it muſt be avoided by Entry, &c. and therefore ſuch Leaſes are not void, but voidable, viz. The Leaſes of Biſhops and Deans after their death by their Succeſſors, and that by the Statute Law, and the Leaſes of Tenants in Tail by their Iſſues after their death, and that by the Common Law. And in theſe, and ſuch like caſes, the Acceptance of the Rent, by the Iſſue or Succeſſor, will make good the Leaſe, at leaſt for their time, Co. ſuper Littl. 45. 3. 59. 65. 7, 8. 9. Where a Leaſe for life or years ſhall be void ipſo facto, by the death of the Leſſor, or by other means, or not, but voidable by Entry, &c. and how. Acceptance. Acceptance.

If a Leaſe be made for years on Condition, that upon ſuch a Contingent, it ſhall be void; in this caſe, ſo ſoon as the thing doth happen the Leaſe is void ipſo facto, without any re-entry, &c. But if a Leaſe for life be made on ſuch a Condition; in this caſe the Leſſor muſt enter, &c. before the Leaſe will be void. Co. 3. 65.

CHAP. CIV.

Of a Libel.

Libel, what.

THe word Libel is taken two ways: Sometimes this word is uſed for the Declaration in a Matter in the Spiritual Court, which muſt be delivered unto the Defendant when he demands it. Sometimes, and ſo here this word Libel is taken for a Scandalous writing or doing of ſomewhat that tendeth to the defamation of another, it is called Famoſus libellus ſeu infamatoria Scriptura: Sometimes it is againſt a private perſon, ſometimes againſt a publick perſon, ſometimes againſt the living, ſometimes againſt the dead.

The kindes of it.

A Libel in writing, is when any Epigram, Rime, or other writing, is compoſed or publiſhed to the note, or contumely of another, by which his fame or dignity may be prejudiced; and this may be either verbis aut cantilenis, as where it is maliciouſly repeated or ſung in the preſence of others; ſecondly, Traditione, when the Libel or any Copy of it, is delivered over to another to ſcandalize the party, or it may be by other means. As firſt, by Pictures, when the party is painted in any ignominious and reproachful manner. Secondly, By Signs, when one doth make or fix a Gallows, or any other reproachful or ignominious ſign at the door of the party, or elſewhere. Co. 5. 126. Crompt. Jur. 335. See Co. 3 *part. The puniſhment of it.

Whoſoever contrive, or procure to be contrived, or maliciouſly publiſh any of theſe Libels, knowing them to be ſo (which way ſoever it be done) againſt a private man, living, or dead, is a great offender; and againſt a Magiſtrate, or publick perſon, is a greater, and ſhall be puniſhed by Indictment; and in this caſe it will not help the Libeller, though the things be true, whereof the Libel is; for it is puniſhable notwithſtanding.

And if one finde any ſuch Libel againſt a private man, he may burn it, or deliver it to a Magiſtrate; if it be againſt a publick perſon, he muſt deliver it to a Magiſtrate, or elſe may be puniſhed: But if one onely read a Libel, or hear it read, or laugh at it, or write a Copy of it onely; this is no ſuch Publication as is puniſhable: And yet if after he hath read, or heard it, he repeat it, or read it, or part of it to others, this is puniſhable. Co. 5. 126. 9. 59.

Of Lieu or Place, Linen-Cloth, Lent, and League.

Lieu or Place. AS to Place, theſe things muſt be known.

1. When one thing doth come in the place of another, it ſhall be ſaid to be of the ſame nature, as that it comes in the place of; as in caſe of Recovery of Recompence in Value, Eſchange, and Rent to make Equality of Partition, and the like: For which ſee the Titles.

2. Place is conſiderable in pleading; for ſome things are ſaid to be Local, and can be tried no where but in the County where they were done; and therefore the Action about them, muſt be laid there, as all real Actions about Land. And if one charge an Inn-keeper for the loſs of his Goods, he muſt not ſay the Inn is in another County, then that wherein it is: But for Tranſient Acts, and ſo Actions about them, they may be ſaid to be in any County; and therefore in theſe caſes, though the wrong be done in one place, the Plaintiff may ſuppoſe it to be done in another, and in another County alſo. And the Jury are bound to finde it.

3. When the Law doth require a thing to be ſet down in a place certain, as in caſe of demand of Rent to have a Re-entry, he muſt in pleading, ſay it was done at that place.

4. When a thing is to be done upon Requeſt, ſome place of the Requeſt in pleading muſt be ſuppoſed to be. Co. upon Littl. 282, 283.

CHAP. CVI.

Of Lord and Tenant, Tenure, Services, Manor and Meſn, &c.

THis word Lord or Seignior, is a word of Honor with us, and uſed diverſly. Sometimes it is attributed to a man that is noble by Birth, or Creation, who were ſometimes called Lords of the Parliament. So alſo the Sons of a Duke, and the Sons of an Earl were called Lords. Sect. 1. Lord, what. Seignior. Nobility.

This word is alſo attributed to Men Honorable by Office, as the Lord Chief Juſtices, and others, and ſometimes it is applied to meaner men that have Fee, and are Lords of Manors, and conſequently have the Homage of Tenants that hold of them within their Manors; and the Lord and Tenant in this ſenſe, are Relatives. And by his Tenants, and to them onely, he is called Lord, or Land-lord; and in this ſignification this word Lord is commonly taken. And hence it is that a Manor is called a Seigniory or Lordſhip; and ſo he is divided into Lord above, and Lord Meſn. The Lord Meſn is he that is owner of a Manor, and by vertue thereof, hath Tenants holding of him in Fee, and by Copy of Court-Roll, and yet holdeth himſelf over of a Superior Lord, who is called Lord above, or Lord Paramount. Old N. B. 79. The kindes. Lord Meſn. Lord Paramount.

Tenant is he that holdeth any Lands or Tenements in Fee for life or years, by any kinde of Right or Tenure of another man. And very Lord, and very Tenant, be they that be immediate Lord and Tenant, the one to the other: And Tenure doth ſignifie the manner whereby Tenements are holden of their Lords. Tenant, what. Very Lord, and very Tenant, what.

And of Tenures were divers kindes, ſometimes Spiritual, as Frank-almoign, which is now gone; and others Temporal, as Eſcuage, Cornage, Grand-Serjeanty, Knights-ſervice in capite, or in chief; Knights-ſervice or Chivalry, Caſtle-Gard, Soccage, Petit-Serjeanty, and others. And all theſe (upon the matter) are either in Chivalry or in Soccage. Tenure, what. The kindes.

For Eſcuage, and Cornage, which were Services the Kings Tenants were to do to his perſon, in the Wars againſt the Scots. Grand-Serjeanty, which was likewiſe a Service to be done by the Kings Tenant to the King by attendance upon his perſon. Eſcuage, what. Cornage, what. Grand Serjeanty, what.

Knights-Service in capite, or in chief, which was likewiſe a Service by which the Tenant was bound to ſerve the King in his Wars. And Knights-ſervice or Chivalry, which was a Service whereby another Tenant that held of a common perſon, and not of the King, was bound to go with his Lord in the Wars. And the Tenure by Caſtle-Gard ſeems to be of the ſame nature. But all theſe Tenures and Services, the Incidents to them, of Wardſhip, Marriage, Primer Seiſins, are taken away by Order of Parliament, and turned into Tenures in Soccage: For which ſee Title Gard. Knights-ſervice in capite or in chief, what. Knights-ſervice or Chivalry, what. Caſtle-Gard, what.

So that now there is no Tenure, but of the nature of Tenure in Soccage; and this is where a Tenant doth hold of his Lord, to pay him ſome Rent onely, or to do him ſome Husbandry-work for all manner of Services. So that to hold by Fealty onely, or by Fealty and Rent, or by Homage, Fealty, and Rent, for all manner of Services, or by Petit-Serjeanty, and Soccage in capite; and ſo Fee-farm, Burgage, and all other Tenures whatſoever, at this day, are but Soccage-tenure, Co. 2 *part. Inſt.*44. Which is of that nature, that it draweth to it Aid, (for which ſee Aid) and a Relief. Sect. 2. Soccage, what. Petit-Serjeanty, what. Soccage in capite, what. Burgage Fee farm.

The nature of Soccage Tenure.

For theſe two are inſeparably Incident to every Tenure; and not Liveries, Primer Seiſins, Wardſhips, Ouſter le Maine, Homage, Fines, Seiſures, and Pardons for Alienation, as ſome of the other Tenures did, but now taken away alſo.

And for theſe things, ſee Co. upon Littl. 74, 77, 107, 108. 93. and of Copiholds, with many other places, which we ſhall now paſs over.

Where and how a Tenant may be created, altered, or extinct; and how it ſhall be taken.

As concerning Tenures, theſe things are to be known.

1. A Tenure may be of Houſes, Lands, or Tenements, and ſuch like things, but not of Rents, Seigniories, Commons, or ſuch like things.

2. Any man may alter his Tenure, or extinguiſh it by Releaſe, or the like, but hardly can a common perſon create a Tenure at this day, Crompt. Jur 21. Dyer 84 27 H. 8. 9. Broo. chap. 113.

Priority and Poſteriority.

3. If in caſe of Priority of Tenure and Poſteriority, where one holdeth Land of one Lord more anciently then he doth hold his other Land of another Lord, the Tenant die, the Lord of whom the Land was held by Priority, ſhould have had the Wardſhip of the Body of the Heir, becauſe that could not be divided as the Land of either Lord might. And in caſe where the Priority were Incertain, that it could not be diſcerned, or one Tenure was as old as the other; then he that could firſt have ſeiſed the Body of the Heir, ſhould have had it. And if the King had been one of the Parties, whether the holding of him were by Priority or Poſteriority, he would have the Wardſhip of the Body from all the other Lords: But every Lord ſhall have the Wardſhip of his own Land held of him. Dyer 12. 24. *F. Non-tenure, what.

For Non-tenure, ſee 25 Ed 3. 16. 4 H. 7. 24.

Sect. 3. Services, what. The kindes.

Service is the duty or performance, which the Tenant by reaſon of his Fee, oweth unto his Lord; and this is the Fruit of Tenure.

And of Services there are twelve parts, Homage, Fealty, Eſcuage, Knights-ſervice, Soccage, Frank-almoign, Homage, Anceſtrel, Grand-Serjeanty, Petit-Serjeanty, Tenure in Burgage, in Villainage, and Rents. And there is no Tenure but hath ſome ſervice incident to it: As for Aid, Relief, and ſuch like things, they reckon theſe the Fruit or Improvement of, or Incidents to Services; but they are much of one nature, and may be put together, Co. upon Littl. 94. 6.

And of Services there have been theſe Diviſions. Some were Military and Noble, as Knights-ſervice, and the like; and ſome were more clowniſh and baſe, as Soccage, and the like. Some alſo were ſaid to be real, as Wards, Marriages, and the like; and ſome again were called Perſonal, which were ſuch as were to be done by mens perſons, as Homage, Fealty, and the like. Some Services alſo were ſaid to be for the benefit of the Lord onely, as payment of Rent, and the like; and ſome again were ſaid to be pro bono publico, as the Services of War.

Thoſe for the Lords benefit, ſome of them are Annual, and certain as Rent, Sute of Court, to be Butler or Baker to the Lord; or elſe they are once onely, and upon an Accident, as Herriot, Relief, Fealty, Amercements, Forfeitures, or the like.

Thoſe that are pro bono publico are, Firſt, For defence of the Realm, as Eſcuage, and the like, now taken away. Secondly, To make or repair a Common-Bridge, or Common High-way. Thirdly, For advancement of Religion, and Works of Piety, as to maintain a Preacher, or Ornaments of a Church. Fourthly, To do Works of Charity, as to marry a poor Virgin, or the like. Fifthly, For the advancement of Juſtice, as to aid a Sheriff, to keep a Record, or the like.

Services alſo are ſaid to be entire, or dividable.

There are four ſorts of entire Services. 1. Chattels valuable, as an Ox, Aſs, or the like, or things of pleaſure, as a Falcon, or the like.

2. Such as are perſonal, to be done by the Tenant in perſon to the perſon of the Lord, as Fealty, and the like; to be Butler, Sewer, to the Lord, and the like.

3. Such as conſiſt of ſome Manual work, as to cover the Lords Houſe, Stable, or the like.

4. To

4. To exerciſe ſome Office, as to be Steward, Bailiff, or the like, to the Lord.

Services are alſo yet further diſtinguiſhed into Services of profit, and no fidelity; and ſervices of fidelity, and no profit.

Some ſay Services are free, and they conſiſt, firſt, in Render, as to pay Rent; ſecondly, in uſing, as to have Common; thirdly, in Prender, as to take Eſtovers in the Lords Woods; or Villain, as to ſcoure the Lords Ditches, or the like. And again into Corporal, either of Submiſſion, as Homage, Fealty, &c. or of profit, and that either publick, to amend High-ways, and the like, or the private profit of the Lord. For all which ſee Co. of Copihold, 22. Co. 105. 6. 1. Littl. 222. Co. 10. 106, 108. or Littl. 64. 92. 22 Ed. 4. 3.

Homage is taken two ways. 1. For a Corporal ſervice or ſolemnity uſed by the Tenant to his Lord, and to this Fealty is always incident; and the Receipt of this Service by the Lord from his Tenant, is called the Receipt of Homage. This hath not been uſed at all for many years, and is now gone, we ſhall paſs it over alſo. You may read of it in Littl. ſect. 85, 86, &c. Homage, what. Receipt of Homage, what.

Reſpite of Homage, was nothing but the forbearance or delay of the taking of it: For which, men were wont to pay a ſmall ſum of money in the Exchequer every fifth Term. This alſo is gone, and out of uſe, but you may read of it in Co. of Copihold, and Finches Law. Reſpite of Homage, what.

Fealty is an Oath taken at the admittance of every Tenant, to be true to the Lord, of whom he holdeth his Land. And as to this, theſe things are to be known. Fealty, what.

1. Although Homage were more honorable then this, yet this is more ſacred then that; for this is always done with, but that was done without an Oath.

2. This is a Service that is incident to all Tenures.

3. This may be done often, and muſt be done by the Tenant to every Lord ſucceſſively, and for every peece of Land.

4. This is to be performed by every Freeholder, except Tenants in Frank-almoign, and by all Tenants for years, and by Copiholders.

5. This may be made as well to the Lords Steward or Bailiff, as to the Lord himſelf; otherwiſe it was of Homage, in all theſe particulars when it was in uſe, it was done by none but Tenants in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, and but once, and then to the Lord himſelf, &c. But ſee for Fealty, and how it is made, Co. of Copihold, 19. Rep. 11. 17, 81. upon Littl. 71. 67. 92. F.N.B. 250.

This word Herriot is taken for the beſt Chattel perſonal, as Ox, Horſe, peece of Plate, or Houſhold-ſtuff that a Tenant hath at the time of his death, or time of his Alienation, which the Lord is to have. And this is either by Cuſtom, as where by the Cuſtom of the place, time out of minde it hath been ſo uſed at the death and Alienation of every Tenant, as it is in divers Copiholds, and other Manors by the Copiholders or other Tenants; or it is by Service, when there is no ſuch Cuſtom, but it is reſerved by Grant, That the Tenant ſhall hold by the Service to pay a Herriot at the time of his death or Alienation of his Land. And this alſo is certain, as the beſt Beaſt, &c. or incertain, as yeilding a Herriot, &c. and ſay not what. Co. upon Littl. 185. Sect. 4. Harriot or Herriot, what. The kindes of it.

As to this, theſe things are to be known:

1. Albeit the Lord cannot ſhew the original of a Herriot-cuſtom, yet if he can prove the payment of them, after the death or Alienation of his Tenants (as the Caſe is) from time to time; this is ſufficient to maintain the Service.

2. If the Lord have power to chuſe the beſt Beaſt, and he chuſe the worſt, he is concluded hereby and cannot chuſe again, 16 H. 7. 5.

3. If a Woman be to pay Herriot at her death, the Lord may not ſeiſe the Husbands Goods for this, without a ſpecial Cuſtom to warrant his ſo doing, M. 8 Car. B. R.

4. This muſt be paid before the Mortuary, and the Lord may not by any ſhifting Deviſe of the Tenant, be defeated of it, Co. upon Littl. 185.

5. In

5. In caſe of Herriot Cuſtom, the Lord hath property in the Goods aſſoon as his Tenant dieth, and may take and ſeize it within or without his Lordſhip, where-
Detinue. ever he finde it, and may have a Detinue againſt him that keepeth it from him, and Action of the Caſe. an Action of the Caſe againſt him that doth eſſoyn it, Broo. 348. 8 *H.*7. 10.

6. The Copiholder for life by this Service is, The Lord grants the Seigniory for ninety and nine years, if the Tenant live ſo long, and after makes a Leaſe for four hundred years, the Tenant is ouſted, and dieth; yet a Herriot ſhall be paid, and the Leſſee for ninety and nine years, and not for four hundred years ſhall have it, March. 23. pl. 52.

7. Some hold the Lord alſo may ſeiſe Herriot Service, Goldsb. 191. pl. 128.

Sect. 5. Relief is a certain ſum of money, or other thing which the Heir of a Freeholder Relief, what. that is at full age, at the time of his Anceſtors death, is to pay to the Lord, of whom the Land ſo to him comes, as Heir is held at his entrance into the Land.

The kindes. And it is either Relief-ſervice, which is a Service due from moſt Freehold-Tenants, to their Lords in all places; or Relief-cuſtom, which is a Relief to be paid by the ſpecial Cuſtoms of ſome places, and Manors, upon the Death, or Alienation of the Tenant. And in ſome places it is upon the death of the Tenant onely, Mag. Chart. 2, 3, 12. *Co.*7. 33.

What is to be paid for a Relief, and when. That which is to be paid, in this caſe, for Relief, is not certain nor alike in all places, and for all Tenures; for ſometimes, and in ſome caſes it is more, and in ſome caſes leſs; neither is it paid in all places at the ſame time: For the common courſe is for the Tenure in capite, or by Knights-ſervice, for an Earldom one hundred pound, for a Barony one hundred marks, for a whole Knights Fee one hundred ſhillings, and ſo pro rata. And the Reaſon hereof, ſee after in Knights Fee.

If the Tenure be by grand Serjeanty, the Relief is the value of the whole Land for one year; and if the Tenure be by Soccage or Petit-Serjeanty, the Relief is to be double the Rent: As if the Tenant hold by ten ſhillings Rent yearly, payable at certain times, he ſhall double this Rent, he muſt pay ten ſhillings beſides his Rent preſently. In ſome places by Cuſtom it is half a years profit of the Land, and in ſome places it is a years profit of the Land. And this the Heir is to pay when his Anceſtor dieth, as all the benefit the Lord then hath: And for this if it be Relief-ſervice the Lord may diſtrain, but cannot have an Action of Debt: But if the Lord die, his Executors may have an Action of Debt, but may not diſtrain. And ſome have ſaid alſo the Lord himſelf may have an Action of Debt: And for Relief-cuſtom, according to the Cuſtom of the place. Co. ſuper Littl. 83, 84. 91. 162. Co. of Copihold, 32, 53. *Co.*7. 33. *Kelw.*136. Littl. 157.

Where it ſhall be paid, or not, and how. For Anſwer to this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. Where the Heir was within age at the death of his Anceſtor, the King was to have no Relief at his full age, Mag. Chart. 3.

2. If one hold ſome Land of the King in capite, and ſome of other men by Knights-ſervice, and the King had had the Wardſhip of all (as he muſt have had) the Heir, when he had come of age, muſt have paid a Relief to all the other Lords, for all the Land he held of them, *Co ſuper Littl.*77. Broo Relief 13.

3. In caſe the King when the Heir is of full age, at the death of the Anceſtor, or not to ſue Livery, a Relief is to be paid to the King. *Co. ſuper Littl.*77.

4. The Rule generally is this, That where the Heir ſhall be in Ward, if he be within age, he ſhall pay a Relief if he be of full age, and whiles the Gardein hath the cuſtody of the Land, the Heir is not to pay a Relief. Broo. Relief, 12, 13.

5. If the Meſnalty diſcend to the Tenant of the Land, though the Meſnalty be at the ſame time extinct, yet the Tenant for that time muſt pay a Relief, 11 *H.*7. 12.

6. If one hold of ſeveral common perſons by Knights-ſervice, the Lords by Poſteriority ſhall have no Relief, becauſe they have the Wardſhip of the Land held of them, unleſs it be in caſe where there was Land held of the King, for there the King had all the Land, and then the Heir at full age did pay Relief to the other Lords, 24 Ed. 3. 24.

7. If

7. If the Tenant hold his Land by to do certain days work at Harveſt, or to attend at Chriſtmas, or the like; in theſe caſes the Tenant is not to pay Relief; for theſe Rents are not to be doubled, nor are any corporal ſervices whatſoever to be doubled, Co. upon Lit. 91.

8. If the Tenant be to pay yearly a pair of Gilt-Spurs, or Five ſhillings in money at Eaſter; in this caſe the Tenant may pay which of them he pleaſeth for his Relief, ſo he pay it forthwith. But if he pay not one of them at the time appointed by Law, then the Lord may diſtrain for which he pleaſe, Co. upon Lit. 91. Election.

9. If the Rent to be paid be Ten ſhillings every ſecond or third year, the Relief ſhall be Ten ſhillings, and muſt be paid forthwith, Co. upon Lit. 91.

Sect. 6. Knights-Fee, what.

Knights-Fee was taken heretofore for ſo much as was held a ſufficient livelihood for a Knight; and is not to be reckoned according to the quantity and content of eight Hides, which is (as ſome would have it) eight hundred Acres of Land, nor ſix hundred and eighty Acres of Land (as others would have it to be) but according to the quality and value; and it was eſteemed twelve times the Ploughman or Yeomans living, which in old times was five Nobles. So that the ſtate of a Knight was eſteemed Twenty pounds by the year, be the Acres more or leſs: And then they eſteemed Four hundred Marks by the year ſufficient to maintain the ſtate of a Baron; and Four hundred pounds, twenty Knights Fees by the year, ſufficient to maintain an Earl; and now of late for the two later Dignities of Marquiſs and Duke thus, Eight hundred Marks for a Marquiſs, and Eight hundred pounds for a Duke: which were eſteemed antiently to be a competent yearly Revenue for ſuch perſons. So that according to theſe Rates, the Reliefs of theſe perſons is paid ſtill for the Knights relief, and all thoſe above him, which are the Noblemen: For the Knight payeth the fourth part of his Revenue, being five Pounds; the Baron one hundred Marks, the Earl one hundred Pounds, the Marquiſs two hundred Marks, and the Duke two hundred Pounds. But theſe Paiments being a Charge incident to the Tenure in capite, we do conceive they are now gone by the general Order of Parliament. See Co. 2 par. Inſt. 7, 8, 9. Mag. char. 2. Relief, how much.

By what ſervices one ſhall hold, and how.

Before the Statute of 18 Ed. 1. Quia Emptores, the Grantee of Land muſt always have held the Land of the Grantor by ſuch Services as he held over, if other Services had not been reſerved; or otherwiſe the Grantor might have appointed him to hold of the next Lord. But at this day in all Feoffments to one and his Heirs, the Feoffee is to hold the Land of the chief Lord of the Fee, by the ſame Services that the Feoffor held before. And if the Feoffment be made of parcel of the Land, the Feoffee ſhall hold of the chief Lord pro particula according to the quantity of Land, and the Feoffor ſhall be ſet free for that part. And if one make a Leaſe for life or years, and reſerve no Rent; in this caſe the Leſſor ſhall have Fealty only, and no Rent, although he hold over by Rent. And Donees in tail and their Iſſues are to do ſuch Services to the Lord Paramount as the Donor, if they do not make ſome ſpecial Reſervation upon the Deed, Co. upon Lit. 23. See more after. Fealty.

What ſhall be ſaid a Seiſin of Services, or not.

Seiſin of any part of a Service, is a Seiſin of all. Seiſin of a ſuperior Service, is a Seiſin of all inferior Services incident thereunto. And therefore if a Tenure be by Homage, Fealty and Eſcuage, (which is Knights-Service, and Suit of Court) and he get Seiſin of the Fealty or Homage, this is a Seiſin of all the reſt. So if he had gotten Seiſin of the Eſcuage. So Seiſin of a Rent, is a Seiſin of all the reſt of the Services; and paiment of a Penny in the name of Attornment, is a ſufficient Seiſin of all the Services; and Seiſin of an annual Service, is a good Seiſin for all caſual and accidental Services, Co. 4. 8. Upon Lit. 69. 153. 159. 165. 102. 314. 315.

Where Services ſhall be multiplied by the Alienation of parcel of the Tenancie, or not, but ſhall be divided and apportioned.

For anſwer to this queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. All ſuch Services as are not entire by the Statute of Weſtm. 3. De quia Emptores terrarum, ſhall be apportioned and divided ſecundum valorem, upon every Feoffment by the Tenant upon any part of the Land in ſeveralty. But not ſo upon Alienation of a Moyetie, or a third part of it. As if one hold two Acres in Fee at Two ſhillings Rent, and the Tenant make a Feoffment in Fee of one Acre by name; in this caſe the Rent ſhall be divided, and the Feoffee muſt pay Twelve pence of this Rent.

Rent. But if the Feoffment were of a Moyetie of the two Acres, it were otherwiſe.

2. But if in theſe caſes the Services reſerved be entire, whether annual or accidental, and for a time only; in this caſe they ſhall not be divided, but they ſhall be multiplied, and the Feoffor ſhall perform the ſame Service he did before, and the Feoffee ſhall do as much more. Quæ in partes dividi nequeunt, ſolida à ſingulis præſtantur. As if a Tenant hold his two Acres by the Service of an Oxe or a Falcon, or Fealty, or the like, and make a Feoffment of one Acre; now in this caſe each of them, the Feoffor and Feoffee both, ſhall pay a Horſe or a Falcon. For the Rule is in this, Res inter alios acta nemini nocere debent, ſed prodeſſe poſſunt.

3. And yet if Land out of which Suit of Court is due, do come to divers perſons by diſcent as Coparceners, or by purchaſe of the Land by Parcels, one of them alone ſhall do the Suit, and all the reſt ſhall be contributory. And if one hold by the Service to be Butler, Baker, or to ride with the Lord, or to cover his houſe, or to be his Steward, Bailiff, or the like; in all theſe caſes the Services ſhall not be multiplied, but one alone ſhall do them, and the reſt ſhall be contributory, and the Lord may diſtrain which he will of them for it. And yet if a Hariot be to be paid, this ſhall be multiplied, and every one that hath any part of the Land muſt pay a Hariot, by what means ſoever he come by the Land.

4. Where Land is divided by act of Law; as if a Feoffment be of two Acres rendring an Oxe, and one is Burrough-Engliſh land, and the other Acre is other land, and this land is divided at the Feoffees death and goeth to his two ſons; in this caſe it ſeems there ſhall be but one Oxe paid. So if a Leaſe were made of ſuch Land
Rent. rendring that Rent to the Leſſor and his Heirs, and he die, the two Heirs in this caſe ſhall have but one Oxe. So of a Leaſe made by two Tenants in Common rendring ſuch an entire Rent.

5. But in all caſes where the entire Services are not valuable, as Homage, Fealty, or the like, or they be pro bono publico; there let the Land be divided by the act of the Law, or the act of the party, the Services ſhall be multiplied. See for all this, *Co.*6.1.8.105. upon Lit. 149. Co. 10. 106. 108. Lit. 222. 22 *Ed.*4.36. *Weſtm.*3. chap. 2.

Sect. 7. Where and how Services may be altered and extinguiſhed. The Remedy for theſe Services where they are not performed. For Harriot.

The Lord by Releaſe or Purchaſe of the Tenancie, and by other means, may alter or extinguiſh his Services: Alſo by other means this may be done. But for this ſee Extinguiſhment, ſect. and Apportionment throughout.

For moſt of theſe Services, if they be denied, or not paid to the Lord, his moſt apt and proper remedy for them is to diſtrain. And for this ſee Diſtreſs, chap. ſect. 3. and Rent, chap. ſect. And if the Lands and Tenements lie freſh for two years together, that he can have no Diſtreſs for thoſe two years, then he may have a Ceſſavit, and recover the Land it ſelf. And in ſome caſes the Lord may have an Action of Debt; and for this ſee Debt.

But for accidental Services, as Harriot, Wardſhip, and the like, the remedy is by Seiſure. See Gard, chap. And for Harriot-Cuſtom, the property of the Goods being in the Lord preſently by the death of his Tenant, he may ſeiſe it where-ever he find it: And if it be detained, or eloined and conveyed away, he may have an Action againſt him that doth it; (a) or he may diſtrain for it at his choice, (as is held of late.) But if it be in a Copihold or Cuſtomary Manor, we do not think it ſafe to diſtrain, unleſs the Lords have been uſed to reſtrain. And for Harriot-ſervice, if it be certain, (i.) the beſt Beaſt, or any goods in certain, (b) it is held that the Lord may ſeiſe and take it alſo: But if it be incertain, he cannot ſeiſe it, but muſt diſtrain for it; and ſo he may alſo do for Harriot-ſervice certain, if he will, for in this caſe he hath election which to do. (a) So ruled by Juſt. Jones at Sarum-Aſſizes, 9 Car. (b) M. 39. 40 Eliz. B. R. Goldsb. 191. pl. 128. See for all this, 21 H. 7. 13. 8 H. 7. 10. *Bro. Sect. 8. For Relief. For Aid.

For a Relief the Lord may diſtrain, but cannot bring an Action of Debt; but his Executors may bring an Action of Debt, and cannot diſtrain, Co. upon Lit. 83, 84.

For Aid to make the Lords eldeſt ſon Knight, or marry the Lords daughter, it is ſaid the Lord may diſtrain, or have a Writ to recover it, F. N. B. 82. Co. upon Lit. 91.

See ch. 9. ſect. 1. For

For Suit to the Lords Court, if it be denied, the Lord may compel him to it by Diſtreſs, or a Writ called Secta ad Curiam. See F.N.B 158. 12 *H.*7.17. See Suit, chap. But for ſome kind of Rents the Lord may have a Writ of Debt; for which ſee Debt, in my Firſt Part of The Marrow of the Law. For other Rents, and for Corporal Services, as Homage, Fealty, amending High-ways, Bridges, diſcharging offices to the Lord, and in other caſes the proper remedy is by Diſtreſs. See chap. ſect. 3. For Suit.

Ceſſavit is a Writ that lieth where my very Tenant that holdeth of me by a Rent, and the Rent is behind two years, and no ſufficient Diſtreſs is to be found upon the Land, then I may by this Writ recover the very Land it ſelf. But this Writ lieth for annual Services only, and not for Homage, Fealty, or the like accidental Services; nor will it lie for a Rent-ſeck. And the Heir cannot have this Writ for a Ceſſer in the Anceſtors time, nor one Lord for a Ceſſer in another Lords time. And therefore if the Tenant ceaſe one year in one Lords time, and after another year in the time of another Lord to whom the Seigniory is granted by the firſt Lord; this is diſpuniſhable. And if in this caſe when the Action is brought, the Tenant will come into Court and pay the Arrearages, and give Bond with Sureties duly to pay the Rent afterwards, the Lord muſt accept it. Alſo it is ſaid, the Lord upon ſuch a Ceſſer may enter, or have a Writ of Eſcheat. See for theſe things, Glouc. ch. 4. *Weſtm.*2.21. *Co.*2.93. *Kelw.*74. *Plow.*132. Co. upon Lit. 154. Ceſſavit, what.

Forejudger is a Judgment given in a Writ of Meſne brought by a Tenant againſt the Meſne Lord, which ſhould and ought to acquit the Tenant of Services demanded by the Lord above of whom the Tenement is holden, and the Meſne will not appear; then Judgment is given, that the Meſne Lord ſhall loſe his Seigniory, and the Tenant ſhall ever after hold of the Lord Paramount by ſuch Services as the Meſne held before, and ſhall he diſcharged of the Services he yielded to the Meſne. A Manor by ſome is defined to be a thing compounded of divers parts, as of a Houſe, Land arable, Meadow, Paſture, Woods, Rents, an Advowſon, Court-Baron, and the like. It is called alſo a Seigniory or Lordſhip; and he that hath it, the Seignior or Lord. And of a Manor there are two principal parts; the Demeſne, and the Services. By Demeſne is ſometimes underſtood all the parts of the Manor which are not in the hands of the Freeholders, whether they are in the hands of Leſſees for life, years, or at will. Manor or Seigniory, what. Seignior. Demeſne, what.

But moſt properly and uſually by Demeſns is underſtood the Lords chief Manor-place, which he and his Anceſtors have time out of mind kept in their own hands and occupied, with all the Houſes, Lands, Meadows and Paſtures thereunto belonging, which were never in Leaſe; and this place or houſe was antiently called the Lords Manſion-houſe. And by Services are to be underſtood the Rents and Duties that Tenants are to pay and do to the Lord of the Manor for the Tenements they hold of him: And theſe are either certain, as Rents and the like; or caſual, as Perquiſites are.

Sect. 10. Manſion-houſe, Services, what.

Some ſay a Manor is, where Lands are holden by divers of one man by certain Services. Some define it to be, Lands in the hands of a Lord, of whom many Tenants, two at the leaſt, do hold to do ſuit of Court there: And they hold, that the Land conſidered apart from the Service, is termed Demeſns. And others define a Manor to be a Rule or Government which a man hath over ſuch as hold Land within his Fee; and they ſeem to intend rather the Court-Baron which is incident to every Manor, and doth ſtand and fall with it. And for the ſupport and continuance of this Court, there muſt be two Freeholders at the leaſt left which do hold of the Manor: And therefore it is held, that if all the Freeholds but one do eſcheat, or be bought in by the Lord, the Manor, and conſequently the Court-Baron is diſſolved: For a Manor cannot continue without a Court-Baron, which cannot continue without Freeholders to be Judges of the Court. Yet here we do diſtinguiſh, and we muſt know, that in all Manors where there are Freeholders and Copiholders (as there are in many Manors) there are two Courts; the one called the Court-Baron or Court of Freeholders, wherein they are Judges, and this is to try Actions between party and party; and the other for Copiholders, called the Copiholders Court, which is for the ſurrendring and granting of Eſtates, and making of Admittances, and the like, and in this Court the Lord or his Steward is the Judg. And one of theſe may ſubſiſt without the other: As if the Lord ſell all his Copiholds in Fee to one man; in this caſe the Purchaſor may keep the Copiholders Court, and do all that doth belong thereunto; and the Seller may keep the Freeholders Court, and do all that doth belong thereunto: And therefore the Manor may continue, where either of theſe Courts do continue. *Bro. Freeholders.

The kinds.

A Lord, and a Lordſhip or Manor is either in groſs, when it is held of the perſon of another, as ſometimes it was of the King; or elſe it was becauſe of a Manor, when it was held of the King, as of his Manor, or of his Honor of Dale. Finches ley 145. 34 *H.*6.49. *Bro. chap.*210.

How Manors did begin at the firſt.

It is ſuppoſed that Manors at the firſt did begin thus. The King at firſt granted a certain Circuit of ground to a certain great man, a Baron, or the like, for him and his Heirs to dwell upon, and to exerciſe ſome Juriſdiction within it, paying ſuch Rent and doing ſuch ſervices for the ſame as the King thought good: And then this great man, by example and in imitation of the Kings policie, parcelled out a great part of this Land to others, ſome to one, and ſome to another, and reſerved ſuch like ſervices for war and peace from his Tenants, as he was bound to do to the King. As for example, the King granted two thouſand Acres of land together to one great man to hold of his perſon, to do ſuch ſervice to him in the time of War or Peace, as to provide a Horſe or Ammunition, or to go with him in the War, or to be his Carver, or the like. This great man then doth grant a thouſand Acres of the uttermoſt parts of this land, ſome to one to hold by one ſervice, and ſome to another by another ſervice; and ſome ſervice was for the time of War, and ſome for the time of Peace; ſome to go with the Lord, ſome to provide horſe, ſome to pay money, and ſome to plow and dreſs his land, ſome to repair his houſe, ſome to be his Butler, ſome to be his Bailiff, or to be his Steward, and the like; and a thouſand Acres of this land he kept to himſelf, which the Lord did uſe to manure by his Tenants or Bondmen, ſuch as they had then: And then did the Lord appoint at his Courts of his Manor, which were ſet up with the Manor, how his Tenants ſhould hold their land, making an Entry thereof in the Rolls of the Court; much of which was ſtill in the Lords power, and therefore thoſe Tenants were called Tenants at will; and ſuch were thoſe who are now Copiholders, who hold to this day at the will of the Lord,

Lord, according to the Cuſtom of the Manor. And at the Lords Courts did the Lord uſe to aſſemble his Tenants before his Steward at a time appointed; and there he was by the Oath of his Tenants, Copiholders and Freeholders, to be informed by their Preſentment, of all ſuch Duties, Rents, Reliefs, Wardſhips, Forfeitures, and Profits that did happen to him; and then the Bailiff did uſe by Seiſure, by Diſtreſs, Amerciament, and the like, to do execution amongſt the Tenants, and help the Lord to his dues. And in theſe Courts they had power alſo, the Tenants to ſue one another under Forty ſhillings, and the Freeholders were (as they ſtill are) the Judges in this Court, called the Court-Baron, or Freeholders Court. But the Copiholders of theſe Manors have now gotten Freedom for their Perſons, and Aſſurance for their Eſtates by the Cuſtom of the place; they are not now under the bondage they formerly were. (See in my Book of Copiholds.)

But at this day no Subject can make ſuch a Manor: For ſince the Statute of Quia Emptores terrarum, it is held that no man can well create a Tenure; and therefore it is held, the King himſelf cannot create a Manor at this day: For a Manor was made by continuance of time, when there was a Meſſuage, and the Inhabitants of it have time out of mind occupied Land, Meadow and Paſture as belonging to it, and have had ſuch Rents and Services belonging to it; and have been uſed to preſent to the Advowſon, and the like. And therefore if a man ſhall now give Land to divers men in Tail by the Service of Suit-Court, albeit this Service may be well raiſed, yet is not this a Manor. Nor can a Lord purchaſe other Land and lay to his Manor, though the Tenant be never ſo willing to it.

Sect. 11.

But the changeableneſs of mans eſtate, and mutability of time hath brought it ſo to paſs, that theſe great men or their poſterity have alienated theſe Lands and Manſions, and others that had none, have by their wealth purchaſed many of them; and ſome of them are ſold to meaner men, who by their skill in Phyſick, Law or Merchandiſe, or otherwiſe, have gathered wealth and enabled themſelves to purchaſe the ſame. And many of them for Capital offences have forfeited them into the Kings hands; and ſome of theſe remain in the Crown, others are gone to others from the Crown, Perk. tit. Reſerv. Plow. 169. Co. of Copiholds 52. 55. Bro. Tenure 102.

Steward of a Manor. His power.

And to this Manor do belong two principal Officers: A Steward, which the Lord may make or diſcharge by word or writing; and being made, his office is not to make a benefit by it to himſelf, but to keep the Courts, and therein to enter the Plaints, Pledges, Surrenders, Admittances, Fealties, and the like: For which ſee Officer, chap. ſect. Co. 1. 61. of Copihold 123. Co. 4. 30. 9. 48.

Bailiff of a Manor. His power.

And a Bailiff, who may alſo be made and diſcharged by word without writing; and being made, he is to diſpoſe the affairs of the Lord, to pay and receive his Rents, and give him an account for them, order the Husbandry, diſtrain Beaſts damage-feſant, repair the Lords houſes, pales or hays, and for this purpoſe he may cut down timber: He is alſo (if need be) to tack in Cattel, fell and ſell ſaleable Underwoods, and do other things for the bettering and improvement of the Manor: But he may not ſet up any new houſe, nor old houſe fallen, nor make any additions or alterations, as tile a houſe before thatched, pale it where it was before hedged, or the like, without ſpecial commandment of his Maſter, but he will be a Treſpaſſor, Co. 4. 30. Dyer 148. 12 H. 7. 23. 8 Ed. 4. 13. Bro. Bailiff, 31.

Where and how a Manor may be deſtroyed or ſuſpended, and afterward again revived.

If the Demeſns of a Manor be once by the act of the party ſevered from the Services in Fee-ſimple, or the Copiholds from the Manor in Fee-ſimple, although it be but for an inſtant, and that there be no Tranſmutation of poſſeſſion, by this means the Manor is diſmembred, and is but a maimed Manor. So that if one of the Courts continue, it is a Manor (as we have ſhewed before) but an imperfect Manor. As if one be ſeiſed of a Manor for life, the Remainder to B. and his heirs, and B. levy a Fine to D. of the Demeſns, and he doth render it back to J. S. for forty years, and after to B. and his heirs for ever; by this the Manor is deſtroyed. So if the Lord of the Manor ſell away the Inheritance of all the Copiholds to ſeveral perſons, hereby the Manor and Court of Copiholders is deſtroyed: And ſo it is if he ſell away all the Freeholds, or all but one, hereby the Manor and Court of Freeholders is gone: And ſo it is, if they do all eſcheat into the Lords hands: And ſo it is if the Lord do purchaſe into his own hands all the Freeholds, or all but one; hereby the Manor and Court of Freeholders is diſſolved. But when the Alteration is by act of Law, it is otherwiſe: And therefore if a Manor be divided between Parceners, and one of them hath one part of the Demeſns and Services, and another another part of the Demeſns and Services; in this caſe each of them ſhall have a Manor and a Court. And if upon the Diviſion of the Manor between them, one of the Parceners have all the Demeſns allotted to him, and the other all the Services allotted to him, and after one of them die without iſſue, ſo that his part come to his companion; in this caſe it ſhall be ſaid that the Manor and Courts were only ſuſpended while they were divided; and when they come again together, the Manor is revived again.

If one that hath a Manor grant away the Moyetie of it, hereby the Manor is deſtroyed. By Juſt. Jones.

If one Manor that is held of another eſcheat, ſo that they come into one hand; in this caſe both of them are united and do continue, and are neither of them deſtroyed. But if once a Manor be deſtroyed by the act of the party, he can never after be revived. Fortior eſt diſpoſitio legis quàm hominis.

Sect. 12. Where Land that is part of a Manor, ſhall be ſaid to be divided from the Manor, and where it ſhall be united again, or not.

For anſwer to this, take theſe things.

1. If the Lord make a Feoffment of a Copihold by Deed, or without Deed; by this the Copihold land is abſolutely ſevered from the Manor, and ſhall never be reunited again, Co. 11.47. Dyer 281.

2. If one convey a Manor, excepting one Acre; by this, this one Acre is perpetually ſevered from the Manor, Co. 11.47.

3. If a man be ſeiſed of a Manor in right of his wife, and he grant four Acres of it for life, and after the husband grant the Reverſion of them to J.S. in Fee, and after the husband and wife levy a Fine to J.S. in Fee; by this the four Acres are united to the Manor, and are parcel thereof, Plow. 104. 18 Aſſ. pl. 3.

4. If the Lord of a Manor make a Leaſe for years of part of his Manor by particulars; in this caſe during the Term this is no part of the Manor, neither will it paſs by the grant of the Manor: And albeit the Leſſee do leaſe it back again to the wife of the Leſſor, yet during this time it is not reunited. And yet the Reverſion of theſe Lands in theſe caſes is ſtill parcel of the Manor, Plow. 431. Co. on Lit. 324, 325.

If any bind themſelves by Oath, Covenant, or other alliance, That every one ſhall help and ſuſtain the other falſly and malitiouſly to indict, or falſly to move or maintain Pleas: And alſo ſuch as cauſe Children within age to appeal men of Felony, whereby they are impriſoned and ſore grieved: And ſuch as retain men in the Country with Livery or Fees to maintain their malitious enterpriſes, (and this doth extend as well to the giver as the taker;) and Stewards and Bailiffs of great Lords, which by their ſeigniory, office or power undertake to uphold or maintain quarrels, pleas or debates that concern not them, nor their Lords and Maſters, 33 Ed. 1. 1 R. 2. 7.

A Feoffment made for Maintenance ſhall be void, Stat. R. 2. ch. 9. 8 H. 6. ch. 4.

Maintenance is twofold in Court, called curialis. When one is to have part of the thing, called Champerty. 2. Without having any thing; and this is general, or ſpecial. 3. When one laboureth a Juror. All this is pendente lite in the Courts of Juſtice; or it is ruralis in the Country, by taking or keeping poſſeſſions. Vide infra: This laſt kind is puniſhable only at the ſuit of the King, Co. upon Lit. 369. 368. 2. What ſhall be ſaid to be Maintenance, and puniſhable.

By a great man.

If any man of great authority in the County, will in the preſence of a Jury and the ſtanders by at the Trial of an Iſſue, ſay openly, That he will ſpend money in the Cauſe in queſtion in the behalf of the Plaintiff or Defendant, or that he will give money to labour the Jury, or will ſpeak other great and high words in favor of one of the parties; this is an unlawful maintenance, though he do ſpend no money, or do not labour the Jury, 22 *H.*6.5. 13 *H.*4.19.

So if any ſuch great perſon, when any Iſſue is to be tryed, having nothing to do in the cauſe, ſhall come to the Bar with the Plaintiff or Defendant, and ſtandeth by only; this is an unlawful Maintenance, though the Jury reſpect him not, but give their Verdict the right way, 22 *H.*6.6.

If A. do owe to B. Twenty pounds, and B. promiſe to C. part of this Debt to proſecute and maintain the Suit; this is unlawful Maintenance; but this is more properly to be called and accounted Champerty, 15 *H.*7.2.

By a Juror.

If one of the Jurors in an Inqueſt will give or promiſe money to another of his Fellows, to give or ſay his Verdict for Plaintiff or Defendant; this is Maintenance, though it be according to the truth of the cauſe: But if one of them do perſwade his Companion to paſs for one ſide or other, as he conceiveth the truth of the cauſe to be, and as the Evidence doth induce; this is no Maintenance, 17 *Ed.*4.5. 18 Ed 4.4.

If a Juror take money to ſay his Verdict for the one ſide, See for this 34 *Ed.*3.8. 38 *Ed.*3.12.

If two be in ſuit and do join iſſue, and the Maſter of one of the parties to the ſuit, or any other deliver money of his own head to a ſtranger to labour the Jury to try the iſſue to give Verdict for his ſervant or friend; this is Maintenance in the Maſter or friend, though he never do or ſay any thing to the Jury; or though he do, and the Jury paſs againſt him, Dyer 95. 28 *H.*6.7. 21 *H.*6.15.

If one give a Juror money to appear and ſay his Verdict of one ſide, this is Maintenance, though he do never appear, or do appear and not ſerve, 22 H. 6.6. Dyer 95.

By a Witneſs.

If one do threaten to beat or kill a Juror, if he do not give his Verdict on the one ſide; this is Maintenance, though he give his Verdict on the other ſide, Stat. 22 H. 6.6.

If one come to a Juror of his own head, and offer to inſtruct him of the matter in queſtion, this is Maintenance: But if the Juror come to the party and deſire him to inſtruct him, contra. 22 *H.*6.6.

By another perſon.

If one will come when a Cauſe is in hearing, and offer himſelf of his own head to give Evidence for the one part or the other; this is Maintenance. But if he be ſent for and required by the Court, contra. Quære of this: For I have heard Chief Juſtice Bridgman of Marches ſay, It was no fault to offer ones Evidence, Stat. 28 *H.*6.6.

If any perſon after a Suit is begun, ſhall encourage either of the parties, or yield either of them aid or help, as give them money, retain Councel, or the like, unleſs it be in the caſes hereafter following: All theſe, and ſuch like Acts as theſe, are unlawful Maintenance and puniſhable. Vide plus infra. 22 *H.*6.6.

It may be Maintenance in a man to take parties, though he be to have no part of the thing in queſtion, Co. ſup. Lit. 365.

If any man that is not a Lawyer, and have no intereſt in the cauſe in queſtion, will take upon him to do the part of a Counſellor, as to open the Cauſe, or inſtruct the Jury, or the like; this is Maintenance. So if a man have Land in queſtion, and he will ſhew his Writing to a Nobleman or other that is no Lawyer, and he tell him his cauſe and title to the Land is good; this is Maintenance, 22 *H.*6.6. Fitz. Maint. 21.

If a Sollicitor retain an Attorney for his Maſter, and promiſe him paiment of his Fees; this is no Maintenance, per two Juſtices in Hil. 16 Jac. Upper-Bench. For in doubtful things, the beſt ſhall be taken. See Cromp. Juriſd. 97.a.

3. What not, but is a Maintenance juſtifiable.

By a Lawyer or Attorney.

If any Sergeant or other Counſellor being retained for his Fee, do give his Client the beſt Counſel he can for defence or recovery of his right according to the courſe of Law, or doth enforce the Evidence of his Client at the Bar; this is no Maintenance, but that which is lawful. But if he ſhall pay or promiſe money or reward to any of the the Jury to give his Verdict for his Client, or threaten any of them to be killed, beaten, or otherwiſe evil intreated if they do give their Verdict againſt his Client, or if he do ſpend or offer to ſpend his own money in his Clients cauſe, this is unlawful Maintenance, 6 Ed 4.5. 22 *H.*6.6. 11 *H.*6.13.

If one that is retained an Attorney in any Cauſe, do any lawful Act touching the Suit for the benefit of his Client, as retain Counſel, bring forth Proceſs of Capias, of Execution, or Superſedeas, or the like, procure a Jury to be impanelled and returned by the Sheriff, give in Evidence to a Jury, or requeſt any of the Jurors to appear; this is a maintenance lawful. But if an Attorney ſhall give or promiſe money or reward of his own or of his Clients, to give his Verdict for his Client, or threaten him if he do otherwiſe, or defend or offer to defend his Clients cauſe at his own charge, or procure the Sheriff to return a Jury of his naming; every of theſe acts is an unlawful maintenance, *Kelw.f.*15. 13 *H.*4. 19. 36 *H.*6.37. 11 *H.*6.10.

If a Sheriff or Bailiff ſhall impanel and ſummon a Jury, this is no maintenance in him, but that which is juſtifiable: But if he ſhall give money or reward to a Jury, or do any ſuch unlawful act as before, this is maintenance in him, 22 H. 6. 24. 13 H. 4. 19. By a Sheriff.

If one be like to be arreſted upon a Writ, come to his Neighbour and pray him to adviſe him what to do, and he adviſe him to yield his body to the Juſtices, and to have a Superſedeas; this is a lawful maintenance, St. 22 H. 6. 35. 12 Ed. 4. 14. 19 Ed. 4.3. By a Neighbor.

So if one tell his Neighbour, another doth owe him money, and ask him what he ſhall do, and he adviſe him to ſue him. So if one tell his Neighbour, he muſt have a Suit in ſuch a matter, and ask him what Counſellor or Attorney he were beſt to have, and he tell him, or go with him, or ſpeak for him to his Counſellor or Attorney, or ſtand by at the hearing of his Cauſe, if he be not a great man; all theſe things one Neighbour may do for another: But if he give money or other reward to the Counſellor or Attorney, or to the Sheriff or Bailiff to arreſt a man, this is maintenance, 19 Ed. 4.37.

It is no maintenance for Jurors that are compelled to come, to give a Verdict for one ſide or the other: But if ſuch a Juror ſhall labour the Judg after Verdict to give Judgment, this is maintenance, 18 *Ed.*4. 2. 28 *H.*6.6. By a Juror.

Every one that hath Intereſt into any thing whereof, or concerning which any Suit is, may take part or maintain in the ſame Suit: As if a Tenant for life, years, or Entail of Land be impleaded for the ſame, he in Reverſion or Remainder may maintain the Suit at his own charge: But if one that is Grantee of a Reverſion or Remainder will maintain before he hath Attornment of the Tenant, this may be maintenance, *Br.maint.*58. 6 *H.*5.4. 2 *Plow.*52. 9 *H.*6.64. 39 *H.*6.26. By one that hath intereſt.

If a man have one only Daughter, and he is ſeiſed of Land, and is impleaded for it; ſhe, or her husband (if ſhe be married) may maintain the ſuit, and juſtifie it: But if ſhe be dead without iſſue begotten by her husband before the Suit begun, or the Action brought for ſome other thing, as upon a Covenant, Account, or the like, and they maintain, this is unlawful, 14 *H.*7.2. 6 *Ed.*4.4. 19 Ed 4.3.

If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, make a Leaſe thereof to another for life, and after grant to a ſtranger, That if the ſaid Leſſee for life do die during the Leſſors life, that then the ſtranger ſhall enjoy the Land for twenty years; if the Leſſee for life be impleaded, the Grantee may maintain him, 9 *H.*6.64.

If one that hath the Fee-ſimple of Rents grant it with Warranty, and after the Grantee be impleaded for it, the Grantor in this caſe may maintain it, 11 H. 6. 49.

If a man hath a Rent-charge in Fee out of Lands, and another man hath in cuſtody a Box of Writings concerning the ſame Rents, and after he that hath the Rent doth grant it to a ſtranger and his heirs, and doth grant alſo, that if he can recover the Writings, the other ſhall have them; an Attornment is made to this Grant, and the Grantor doth bring a Detinue for the Box; the Grantee in this caſe may lawfully maintain, 9 *H.*6.64.

If the Tenant be impleaded, the Lord may maintain in reſpect of his Services.

If A. owe to B. Twenty pounds, and C. owe to A. Twenty pounds by Obligation, and A. deliver to B. the Obligation from C. in ſatisfaction of the Twenty pounds; in this caſe B. may ſue C. in the name of A. on this Obligation, and retain Attornies and Councel, and ſo may A. alſo; for both of them have intereſt in this Debt. So if one be bound to pay J.S. Twenty pounds to the uſe of W.S. J.S. and W.S. may both meddle in the Suit, 10 *H.*6.47. 15 *H.*7.2. 34 *H.*6.30.

If one deliver a Writing to one to be kept, and a ſtranger bring a Detinue for it, he that delivered it may maintain, 39 *H.*6.20.

If one of a Pariſh be queſtioned for Burial in the Church-yard, the reſt of the Pariſhioners may maintain the Suit, 18 Ed. 4.2.

If one be bound for anothers appearance, he may go into the Court and ſee if the ſame be recorded; this is juſtifiable: But if he do more, as retain Councel or the like, this is unlawful maintenance, 18 Ed 4.12. See more, 24 *H.*6.25. 14 *H.*6.6. See more, Bro. Choſe Exact. 13. Fitz. Maint. 14. Bro. Maint. in toto.

By a Maſter. If a mans ſervant be ſued, and his maſter requeſt a Lawyer to be of Councel with his ſervant in the ſuit, or go with his ſervant to Councel, or pay the Councellors Fee with part of the wages of his ſervant, or go with his ſervant to the Bar when his cauſe is to be tryed; or if the ſervant be arreſted in a priviledged place, and he at his own charges deliver him, this is a lawful maintenance in reſpect of his ſervice. But if the ſervant be impleaded in any real Action, or otherwiſe where he may appear by Attorney, and his preſence is not requiſite; there if the maſter do any ſuch act, it is a maintenance puniſhable. So if the maſter give him money to go to Law out of his own purſe, per Juſt. Haughton, Hil. 16 Jac. B.R. Or lay out any money for him, unleſs it be out of his wages due to him. And this was the opinion of Juſtice Bridgman and of the whole Court, 8 Car. Trin. in the Marches of Wales. 22 *H.*6.35. 9 *H.*6.64. 28 *H.*6.12. 19 *Ed.*4.3. 21 *H.*7.40.

By a Servant. The Servant in any Suit commenced by or againſt his Maſter, may at the commandment of his Maſter travel in the furtherance thereof, retain Councel with his Maſters money, inſtruct the Councel or the Jury when the cauſe is tryed, or the like. But this muſt be ſuch a Servant as is hired for a year or more, and retained to do all his Maſters ſervices; and not one that is hired for a day or two, or hired to go a journey, or do ſome ſpecial ſervice: For if ſuch a Servant ſhall ſo maintain his Maſter, or his Maſter him, this will be an unlawful maintenance.

So if either of them ſhall give or promiſe money or other reward to any of the Jurors to give his Verdict, or do threaten any of them to be killed, maimed, beaten, diſpoſſeſſed of their Farms or Goods, or give his own money to the Sheriff to get the party arreſted, this is an unlawful maintenance, 19 *H.*6.31. 19 Ed. 4.30. 39 *H.*6.5. 2 Ed. 4.14. 19 *Ed.*4.31.

By a Kinſman: The Father may maintain his Son and Heir; the Son, the Father or Mother; one Brother, or one Ally or neer Kinſman another, by going to the Bar with them and ſtanding there to comfort them, or go with them to Councel, or ſpeak to one to be of Councel with them in their cauſe: But ſuch a one may not retain a Councellor of himſelf, or give him money of his own, or give or promiſe money or other reward to a Juror to give his Verdict for him; for this is an unlawful maintenance. And he that will juſtifie by reaſon of any ſuch affinity through marriage, muſt ſhew that the party by whom the affinity was, is yet living, or ſome iſſue of the body of that party; for otherwiſe the maintenance of ſuch a perſon is unlawful: But it ſeems one Kinſman may not aid another in any caſe but in a real Action, and there where he that doth maintain hath ſome poſſibility to have the Land it ſelf, Stat. 9 Ed. 4.32. 14 *H.*7.2. 20 *H.*6.1. 34 *H.*6.26. 6 Ed. 4.5. 49 Ed. 4.2. St. 6 Ed. 3. ch. 33.

By a Goſſip. If one that is a Goſſip to another do maintain him, this is lawful; for this makes a kind of affinity, 6 *Ed.*4.5.

Any one may go with an outlandiſh man that cannot ſpeak Engliſh, to help to make his mind known, and to inſtruct his Councel; this is a maintenance juſtifiable, 15 *H.*7.2. 34 *H.*6.26.

By any other. Any one may give a poor man that is not able to defend his Suit, money of charity to help him; and this is juſtifiable, 9 H.6.64.

If

If any give to another money to begin and profecute a Suit, this is not maintenance; for no maintenance can be unlawful till the Suit begun, unleſs it be in the caſes following of Champerty. But if I give any man money to follow a Suit, and I do promiſe him what he layeth out more I will pay him; unleſs this be an Attorny, it ſeems this is unlawful, 3 H. 6. 55. 8 H. 5. 8. 10 Ed. 4. 19.

No maintenance in any Spiritual Court is ſuch, for which the party grieved may have the Writ of Maintenance; but it muſt be in the Common-Law Courts. Teſdale againſt Bevington, Mich. 39 & 40 Eliz. Co. B. & P. 37 Eliz. Conſtanly & Barns Caſe.

Champerty is, and Champertors be they that move Pleas and Suits, or cauſe to be moved either by their own procurement, or by others, and ſue them at their proper coſts, for to have part of the Land, or part of thing in queſtion and variance. And this is a ſpecies of Maintenance, for every Champerty is Maintenance, Co. ſup. Lit. f. 368. Weſtm. 1. ch. 25. Weſtm. 2. 48. 28 Ed. 1. 71. 33 Ed. 1. 3 Ed. 1. 25. 13 Ed. 1. 48. 4. Champerty, what. Champertors.

And in this caſe, and for this offence, the party grieved may have either a Writ called a Writ of Champerty, or the Writ of Maintenance to relieve himſelf, or he may proſecute the offence upon the Statute mentioned infra. And this Writ may be brought againſt the Buyer alone, or againſt the Seller alone; and the party grieved may have this Action againſt the Champertors, though he do recover, and ſo loſe nothing by the Champerty, 30 Aſſ. 5. 9 H. 6. 64. 7 Ed. 4. 15.

No Officers of the King by themſelves or others ſhall maintain Pleas, Suits or matters hanging in the Kings Court, for Lands, Tenements, or other things, for to have part or profit thereof by Covenant made between them; and he that doth ſhall be puniſhed at the Kings pleaſure, 3 Ed. 1. 25.

No perſon whatſoever ſhall receive any Lands or Tenements, or any thing by Gift, Purchaſe, or otherwiſe in Fee, or to Farm, ſo long as the thing is in queſtion, (nor for to obtain part of the thing in Plea) or for other reward ſhall maintain any matter that is in ſuit, nor upon any ſuch covenant or agreement ſhall give up his right to another: And he that doth ſo, the taker ſhall loſe as much lands and goods of his, as doth amount to the value of the part that he hath purchaſed for ſuch maintenance; and he ſhall be three years impriſoned, and further puniſhed at the Kings pleaſure. See the Expoſition of this infra. Weſtm. 2. ch. 48. Stat. 21 Ed. 1. ch. 11. 33 Ed. 1. 28.

By this Statute, as well he that ſelleth or demiſeth his Land for life or years, or any part thereof during the time it is in ſuit, ſhall be puniſhed, as he that purchaſeth the ſame, Fitz. Champert. 5.

If any perſon ſhall unlawfully maintain or procure any unlawful maintenance in any Action in any of the Kings Courts where Title of Land may be tryed, or ſhall unlawfully retain, for maintenance of any Suit or Plea, any perſons to embrace any Jurors or Freeholders, to ſuborn any Witneſſes by letters, rewards, promiſes, or by any other ſiniſter labour or means, to the end to maintain any matter or cauſe, or to diſturb or let Juſtice, or to procure or occaſion any manner of perjury by falſe Verdict or otherwiſe in any ſuch Court, ſhall forfeit Ten pounds. Stat. 32 H. 8. 9. Weſtm. 2. 28.

Juſtices of Aſſiſes or of either Bench may hear and determine matters of Maintenance, Conſpiracie, and Champertie; and that which they cannot end, they may adjourn to the Court where they are Juſtices, 4 Ed. 3. 11.

If any one by Covenant or Agreement, or Writing, doth bargain to have parcel of the Land, Debt, or other thing which is in Suit, if it be recovered, to aid and maintain the party to that Suit; this is Champerty, and puniſhable by the Statute before-mentioned. As if I have title to land or goods, and I agree with another that if he will maintain me in the Suit for the recovery thereof, that then he ſhall have a moyetie or a part thereof to himſelf. So if one owe me Twenty pounds, and I offer to a ſtranger part of it to recover it for me, F.N.B. 171. 15 H. 7. 2. 8 Ed. 4. 13. 5. What ſhall be ſaid to be Champerty, or not.

It ſeems that the Aſſignment of Statutes or Bonds for money, is Maintenance or Champerty. See Co. 10. 102. in marg.

If a bargain or agreement be by word, to have part of the thing in ſuit, to this end to maintain the ſuit; this is Champerty, as well as if it were by writing, 7 E 3.9. Fitz. Champ. 6.

If one give his Land freely without conſideration, if it be hanging the Suit, as well as where he ſelleth it for money or other conſideration, 8 Ed. 4. 13. See Cromp. Juriſd. 66. a. 76. Fitz. Champ. 5. 30 Aſſ. p. 5.

If one bargain for Land before any Suit begun for it, and after a Suit begun the party make a Conveyance of the Land according to the bargain, pendente lite, yet this is no Champerty, Fitz. Champ. 15. Plow. 465.

If one make a Feoffment of Land to his own uſe, during the time that a Suit is depending againſt him for this Land; this is no Champerty, 8 Ed. 4. 13.

If one give Land to his Son in Frank-marriage, or for his life, during the time that a Suit is depending againſt him for the ſame Land; this is no Champerty within the Statute of 28 Ed. 1. For next Friends may maintain one another by that Statute, 6 Ed. 3. 33. Plow. 305. Fitz. Champ. 10.

If one make a Leaſe for life of Lands, and after the Tenant for life is impleaded, and hanging that Plea he doth ſurrender to him in Reverſion, this is no Champerty, Fitz. Champ. 14.

If a Judgment be had for Land, and after the Recovery, the party that hath recovered ſell the Land; this is no Champerty.

So if one that hath given him Counſel in the caſe, do take part of the Land recovered for his Fees. But if there were any Contract or Bargain made before the Recovery depending the Suit, then it may be Champerty, Stat. 13 H. 4. ch. 19. 47 Ed. 3. 9.

6. Embracers, what.

Embracers are ſuch, as when a matter is in Trial between party and party, come with the party to the Bar (having received ſome reward ſo to do) and ſpeak in the caſe, or privily labour the Jury, or ſtand there to ſurvey and overlook them, thereby to put them in fear or dread of the matter, or the like. And if in this caſe he take money, it ſeems a Decies tantum may be brought againſt him, St. 38 Ed. 3. 12. See more, Cromp. Jur. f. 32. 38. 6. 39. 28 Ed. 1. 11. 10. 19 H. 7. 13. Terms ley. Co. on Lit. 369.

7. Who ſhall be ſaid to be an Embracer, and what Embracery, or not.

He is accounted an Embracer, who will threaten the Jury, or any of them, if they do not give their Verdict by his direction: Or if one will inſtruct the Jury beforehand, Co. ſuper Lit. 369.

Alſo he that is Procurer of a Jury to appear, who is commonly called a Leader of Inqueſts. And whether the Jury paſs for him, or no, or give any Verdict, or no, it is not material, for he ſhall be puniſhed notwithſtanding, F.N.B. 171: Co. on Lit. 369.

If one take money to embrace, and do not embrace, this is no Embracery.

If the Counſellor for his Fee ſpeak to the Jury, and inform his Clients Evidence unto them ſo much as he can openly upon the Trial of the Cauſe, this is no Embracery: But if he otherwiſe labour to the Jury to give their Verdict, and receive money to that end, this is Embracery, 41 Ed. 3. 9. 6 Ed. 4. 5.

8. The puniſhment of it.

The party that is attainted of this offence, ſhall pay ten times as much as he hath received; as a Juror ſhall do that hath taken money to give his Verdict: which by a Decies tantum in this caſe, as well as in the former, may be recovered againſt the party. See Decies tantum, & Stat. 34 Ed. 3. ch. 8. 38 Ed. 3. 12.

If a Juror take money to give his Verdict on one ſide or the other, he is to be puniſhed as a Maintainer by a Decies tantum.

So if a Juror will take money on both ſides, who is called an Ambodexter; ſuch a one ſhall never be put in Juries or Inqueſts, but be ſent to Priſon, and puniſhed further at the Kings pleaſure; and he may be puniſhed by a Decies tantum, 39 Aſſ. p. 19. But if a Juror take money after Verdict given for the party, where there was no Covenant before, this is out of all the Statute, but he may be fined for this, 5 Ed. 3. 10. 44 Ed. 3. 39; Fitz. Decies tant. 12.

If

If any perſon ſhall bargain, buy or ſell, or by any means get any pretenſed Rights or Titles; or takes Promiſe, Grant, or Covenant to have any Right or Title of any perſon or perſons in or to any Lands or Tenements, but where ſuch perſons which ſhall ſo bargain, &c. their Anceſtors, or they by whom he or they claim the ſame, have been in the poſſeſſion of the ſame, or of the Reverſion or Remainder thereof, or taken the Rents or profits thereof by the ſpace of a year before the ſame Bargain or Covenant, he ſhall loſe the value of the Land ſo held or covenanted for; and the Buyer knowing thereof, ſhall loſe as much alſo. See Cromp. Jur. f. 38. a. Co. on Lit. f. 214. 369. 9. Buying of pretenſed Titles.

But any man that is in lawful poſſeſſion may get any pretenſed right or title, notwithſtanding this Statute, 32 H. 8. 9.

For which note: Title or Right is either meerly in pretence or ſuppoſition, and nothing in truth: Or when it is good Right and Title in truth, and made pretenſed by the act of the party; and both theſe are within the Statute. Alſo a Right is naked without poſſeſſion, when the abſolute Right cometh by Releaſe, or to wrongful poſſeſſion, and no third perſon hath either Jus proprietatis, or Jus poſſeſſionis. When he hath a good Right, and a wrongful Poſſeſſion, vide infra. Co. ſuper Lit. 369.

If one make a Leaſe for years for a Term of years to another of Land, contrary to this Statute; this is as well within the Statute, as if he had made an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for Term of life: And for making ſuch a Leaſe of a pretended Title or Right, the Leſſor and Leſſee ſhall forfeit the value of the Inheritance of the Land. See a Caſe more in Co. ſuper Littleton, fol. 369. Dyer 374. 74. Plow. 87. 10. What ſhall be ſaid a buying of a pretenſed Title, or not.

So if one have a pretended Title or Right to Copihold-land, and ſell it, this is without the danger of this Statute. But if one make a Leaſe for years to another only to try a Title, this ſhall not be within this Statute, Co. 4. 26.

If A. be lawful owner of Land and in poſſeſſion, and B. that hath no right thereunto, granteth to, or contracteth with another for the Land; though the Grant be void, yet the Grantor and Grantee be within the danger of the Statute. if A. in this caſe be diſſeiſed, A. hath a good right: yet if A. being out of poſſeſſion granteth to or contracteth with another for the Land, they are both within the danger of the Statute. A fortiori of a Right in Action, unleſs it be to a great man, &c. Co. on Lit. 369.

He that hath a good Title at the time of his Bargain or Leaſe, is not within this Statute, though neither he nor his Anceſtors have been in poſſeſſion thereof, &c. according to the Statute, by the ſpace of a year before. And therefore if a man do enter into Lands that be holden of him for an Alienation in Mortmain, or if he recover Lands by a Real Action, he may ſell the ſame Land, or make a Leaſe of it within a year after the Entry or Recovery, without any danger of this Statute, Plow. 47. Dyer 74. Co. on Lit. 369.

So if one mortgage his Land for a long time on Condition, and after he redeem it, he may ſell it, though he he have not been in poſſeſſion a year. For by pretenſed Rights is not meant good and clear Rights. But where one man is in poſſeſſion, and another that is out of poſſeſſion doth claim them or ſue for them, doth bargain, ſell, or make any agreement to part from the Land, or to make any aſſurance thereof after he ſhall recover the ſame; this is within the danger of the Statute, whether he hath a good Title, or not. As if a Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſee enter and diſſeiſe his Heir; though he hath an antient Right, yet becauſe he hath unlawful poſſeſſion, if he ſell or contract the Land before he hath been in poſſeſſion a year, he is within the danger of the Statute. But if one be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe to him; now he may ſell it preſently, and need not ſtay the year.

But where he that hath a pretenſed Right, and none in truth, gets the poſſeſſion wrongfully, and then ſels; this is within the Statute. But if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee by a good Title, he in Remainder may get the pretenſed Right.

There are many other Laws concerning Trading and Traffique, to this effect.

1. None may uſe Trades that they have not been trained up in.

2. They in their Trades, eſpecially if they ſell any thing that is to be eaten or drunk by men, muſt ſell true, not falſe and ſophiſticated Commodities, nor uſe deceit.

3. They muſt ſell (eſpecially Proviſion) at reaſonable prices, and for moderate gain.

4. Bakers, Brewers, and ſuch like Tradeſmen muſt keep the Aſſiſe.

5. They muſt buy and ſell by juſt Weights and Meaſures.

Policy of Aſſurance, what.

Policie of Aſſurance, is a courſe taken by thoſe which do adventure Ware or Merchandiſe by Sea; whereby they being loth to hazard their whole Adventure, do give to ſome other a certain rate or proportion, as Ten in the Hundred, or ſuch like, to ſecure the ſafe arrival of the Ship, and ſo much Wares at the place agreed upon. So that if the Ship and Wares do miſcarry, the Aſſurer maketh good to the Venturer ſo much as he promiſeth to ſecure, as Twenty, Forty, a Hundred, more or leſs. And if the Ship do ſafely arrive, he gaineth that clearly which the Venturer doth compound to pay him. And for the more even dealing between the Venturer and the Securer in this caſe, there is a certain Clerk or Officer ordained to ſet down in writing the ſum of their Agreement, that they may not differ thereupon afterwards; and this Writing is called a Charter-party. If any difference be about it, the King hath been uſed to grant a Commiſſion to certain men to hear and end it.

CHAP. CIX.

Of Marriage.

Marriage.

Arriage is the copulation of a man and a woman together, by agreement to be man and wife, by an inſeparable conjunction to live together all the days of their life. And the inception of this firſt is, when wedlock is promiſed and vowed by words in the Future-tenſe, which is called Affiance or Sponſality; which therefore is defined to be, Futurarum nuptiarum conventio & repromiſſio: For, the full contract of Matrimony is, when it is made by words de præſenti, in a lawful conſent. And ſo two be made man and wife before God, without lying together, and that without conſent of Parents or Tutors; which is not of neceſſity, though it be meet and convenient to be had. But Matrimony is not accounted conſummate by our Law, until it be celebrated and ſolemnized in facie Eccleſiæ. Co. ſuper Lit. 76. a. Bract. l. 4. f. 298. Glanv. lib. 1. cap. 1. Wo. Lawyer, 117.

Affiance or Sponſality.

Contract of Marriage.

Affiance Quotuplex, and the validity and fruits thereof.

This Sponſion or firſt promiſing is alſo ſometimes naked, (i.) when they do promiſe ſimply and barely by their word only each to other, to contract Matrimony hereafter: And ſometimes confirmed, (i.) when there is an Oath made, or ſomewhat taken as an earneſt or pledg between them on both parts, or on the one part, to be married hereafter. And it alſo is either publique, and that is either by the parties by themſelves preſent together, or by Meſſage and Letters when they be apart, and of and to which there be ſome privy and witneſſes: Or elſe it is ſecret, Solus cum ſola, to which none are privy but themſelves; which being proved well, is of the ſame force with the former; ſave only that a Promiſe made after to another in publique, ſhall be preferred and prevail againſt it.

Sponſion, { Simple: / Conditional.

This is alſo ſometimes ſimple, and ſometimes it is conditional. If it be conditional, it ſuſpendeth the Promiſe till the Condition be performed, unleſs by a new agreement the Condition were diſcharged. But if the Condition be againſt the right of Matrimony, it maketh the Promiſe void, as, To poiſon the child ſhe firſt conceiveth, &c. But though otherwiſe unhoneſt or impoſſible, yet if it be not againſt the Law of Wedlock, it is good enough. But this Affiance, be it naked or confirmed, publique or private, is not of that force as to compel the parties to marry, but is an obligation only, or being bound in a ſort to marry hereafter: For after ſuch a Promiſe only, the parties may marry themſelves to others; and yet it ſeems the party that doth break his or her Promiſe in this caſe, is ſubject to ſuit and ſome puniſhment in the Spiritual Court. But a legal Contract containeth more in it, and is compulſory: And yet neither Affiance nor Contract is of the force of Marriage; for by this only without Marriage, neither husband nor wife ſhall have any benefit by the others death, and till then they are ſeveral perſons in Law, and may enfeoff one another, Perkins.

Contract legal.

Sect. 1. Note, that in all theſe Promiſes the Law requireth not a curious form of words; for any words whereby their Agreement may appear, will be ſufficient. Womans Lawyer, f. 52.

All perſons may lawfully marry, that be not prohibited by Gods Law to marry, that is, that be not prohibited by the Levitical degrees. All Clergy-men may marry as well as others, and their children ſhall be legitimate, and they themſelves ſhall have all the priviledges of Marriage that other men have. Stat. ſect. 6 Ed. 6. c. 12. 32 H. 8. 38. & 2 & 3 Ed. 6, c. 21. See Co. 2 par. Inſt. 683.

The ſix Clerks of the Chancery, and other Clerks there, may marry, notwithſtanding the old cuſtom to the contrary. Alſo all ſuch as exerciſe any Eccleſiaſtical juriſdiction may be married, notwithſtanding their office and imployment, Stat. 14. & 15 H. 8. c. 8. 37 H. 8. c. 17.

In this conjunction many things are prohibited, and divers things required, 1. In the parties themſelves. 2. In the making of their agreement, Cap. 434.

In

In the parties themſelves, 1. That there be no Impediments natural, or accidental; that they be not either of them within age of conſent, (i.) the man under fourteen, and the woman under twelve, for then may they after when they come to this age, avoid the marriage by their diſagreement, without any divorce at all, and marry others. But by the Civil Law, it ſeems they are deemed able to conſent when they are Puberes ripe, and fit for marriage, though they are not of this age.

2. What perſons may marry, who not. Impediment of Marriage is lawful, what not.

2. That they be of a ſound and whole minde to conſent, and not Inopes mentis, for he that is mad, without intermiſſion of fury, cannot marry, but he that is deaf and dumb may Contract Matrimony.

3. The perſons muſt not be in relation one to another, Infra gradus prohibitos (that is) in reſpect of Conſanguinity, for marriage is forbidden betwixt thoſe that are of Kinred Lineally, (i.) Parents and Children in infant'. Alſo betwixt thoſe that are Kinred in the tranſverſe or Collateral line, until the fourth degree be paſt, or in reſpect of Affinity or Alliance, and this riſeth between them that are married, and the kinred of one of them, as betwixt the Husband and the kinred of his Wife; but this prohibiteth marriage onely to the perſons contracted, &c. for the Couſins or Conſanguinity to my Wife, are Affinity onely to me, and not to my Brothers or Children by a former Wife, and ſo è converſo my Blood, to my Wife. Hence it is, that Father and Son may marry the Mother and Daughter, and that two Brethren may marry two Siſters. And after the fourth degree be paſt, a man may marry any of his Affinity: And thoſe that are not within the Levitical degrees, are not forbidden, (a) therefore a man may marry the Daughter of the Siſter of his firſt Wife.

4. The perſons ſhould be of the ſame Religion, for by the Laws of the Church, Marriages are not good betwixt Jews and Chriſtians.

5. The perſons muſt be fit for generation, and therefore thoſe that by coldneſs of nature or inchantment, are impotent, are forbidden to marry.

6. The perſons muſt be alſo free, and not be engaged to any other, either of them by Precontract; ſecondly, in the making of the Contract.

1. It muſt be free; and therefore if both, or either of the parties be compelled by threatnings, impriſonment, or the like, or drawn by inchantment, &c. Fraud or flattery, or other ſuch means againſt their wills to agree; this will make the marriage void.

2. It muſt be lawful; and therefore if it be corruptly made, as when one hath adulterouſly polluted a Woman, If he promiſe her to have her when his Wife dieth, &c. See more in the Womans Lawyer.

They were then by the Laws formerly to be married by a Miniſter before Witneſſes, according to the Subſtance of the Common Prayer. Sect.

If any Marriage had been made where any ſuch impediment is as aforeſaid, either in the perſons that make it, or the manner of making it, it was to be avoided again afterwards by Divorce at the Suit of the party grieved, by ſentence in the Eccleſiaſtical Court; for to that Court, theſe matters did then belong, and the Ordinary was the onely Judg to judg, diſcuſs, and determine this queſtion and matter of Marriage. But it was not void, until by ſentence of the Spiritual Judg, it was avoided; and therefore if that had not been in the life time of the parties, the iſſue was inheritable, and it could never be avoided after; for a Divorce cannot be after the death of either of the parties. But now the lawfulneſs and unlawfulneſs of Contracts and Marriages, and all Exceptions againſt them ſhall be heard, and ended by the Juſtices of the Peace, at their General Quarter Seſſions by the new Statute, Act, 24 Aug. 1653. Alſo in caſe of a Marriage by Force or Fraud, the Lords Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, may give Commiſſion to men to hear and end it. See Women, Act, 10 Jan. 1650. 14, 15 H. 8. 8. 37 H. 8. 17. & 437. Co. ſuper Lit. 79. a, b. Broo. tit. Gard. 124: Womans Lawyer 57, 58. 32 H. 8. 38. Levit. 18. (a) Trin: 2 Jac. Rich. Parſons caſe. Co. B. Womans Lawyer 59. Kelw. 53: 12 H. 8. 6: Dyer 305. 12 H. 7. 22. Broo. Baſtardy 23, 37, 44, 47. But now by the new Act, the Law is altered herein, and Marriages are to be made up by the Juſtices of Peace, and not by the Miniſters.

3. Things required to make a good Marriage.

For the knowledge of which Law, take theſe things.

1. The Man married muſt be ſixteen years old, or more, and the Woman muſt be fourteen years old, or more.

2. The parties muſt freely conſent, and neither party be brought to it, by Force or Fraud; and their Parents, Gardians, and Overſeers alſo, if they have any, and they be under one and twenty years of age, either of them muſt conſent to it.

3. They that are to marry, muſt one and twenty days before the marriage, deliver to the Regiſter of each Pariſh, where the parties do dwell, the Chriſtian names and ſirnames of the perſons to be married, with the additions of the places where they dwell, and the names of their Parents, Gardians, or Overſeers, if they have any.

4. This Marriage muſt be publiſhed by the Regiſter in the Churches of both places, or by ſome other, by his appointment and procurement, three Lords days before, at the cloſe of the Morning Exerciſes, or in the next Market Town, on three Market days together, in three weeks, one after another in the Market place, between eleven and two of the clock, and then certifie to a Juſtice of Peace of the County where one of the parties dwelt: And if any Exception be againſt the Marriage, this muſt be certified alſo to the Juſtice.

5. This Publication being thus certified by the Regiſter of the places to a Juſtice of Peace; and he being ſatisfied of this Publication, and Conſent of Parties, and their Parents, and Gardians, as before; This Juſtice muſt marry them after the Form herein ſet down afterwards.

The Man taking the Woman by the Hand, muſt ſay theſe words.

Sect. 2.

J. A B. Do here in the preſence of God, the Searcher of all Hearts, take thee C. D. for my wedded Wife; and do alſo in the preſence of God, and before theſe Witneſſes, promiſe to be unto thee a Faithful and Loving Husband.

Then the Woman taking him by the Hand, muſt ſay thus.

J. C. D. Do here in the preſence of God, the Searcher of all Hearts, take thee A. B. for my wedded Husband; and do alſo in the preſence of God, and before theſe Witneſſes, promiſe to be unto thee a Loving, Faithful, and Obedient Wife.

And this being done, the Juſtice is to declare them Man and Wife; and the Subſtance hereof is to be obſerved, or otherwiſe the Marriage is not good.

If either of the Parties be dumb, the words may be ſpared; if they have no Hands; the taking of hands may be ſpared.

This done, he muſt, if the Parties deſire it, give a Certificate hereof in Parchment, under his Hand and Seal, of the Marriage, Witneſſes, and all the Circumſtances thereof to the Parties.

He is to ſee the Regiſter to make an Entry in his Regiſters Book of the Publication, Conſent of Parties, Parents, or Gardians, and Exceptions if any be in the caſe. Act, 24 Aug. 1653.

The Marriage being thus conſummate, they are then reputed Man and Wife.

Husband and Wife. Feme-Covert.

Husband and Wife, are a Man and a Woman coupled together by Marriage, and then is this Woman ſo married, ſaid to be a Feme-Covert, which is defined to be a Woman legally married to a Husband, and married ſhe muſt be; for until ſhe be married, although ſhe be Eſpouſed or Contracted, yet ſhe is not reputed a Feme-Covert. But when ſhe is married in Facie Eccleſiæ, then is ſhe reputed a Feme-Covert, though her Husband never have any Carnal knowledg of her; and hence is the word Coverture for ſo long, as theſe perſons do ſo continue married, ſo long there is a Coverture between them, and the Coverture is ſaid to continue: And whatſoever is done during the continuance of this Marriage, is ſaid to be done during the Coverture. See the Womans Lawyer.

Coverture.

4. To what purpoſes they ſhall be reputed, but as one perſon in Law, and to what purpoſes they ſhall be reputed divers perſons in Law.

This Marriage of two ſuch perſons doth knit them ſo faſt, and make ſuch a ſtrait fellowſhip between them, as that they are ſaid to be but Una perſona, una caro & ſanguis unus: And hence it is, That howſoever in the obliquity of Fines, Recoveries, and Uſes, there is a way, yet a man cannot by down-right Livery or Bargain, Feoffment, Gift, or Leaſe, paſs Lands to his Wife, during the Coverture, not nor make any Covenant or Obligation to her: And if one enter into a Covenant to make his Wife a Feoffment, it is impoſſible, and therefore void, yet one may binde himſelf in an Obligation or Covenant before or after Marriage to a ſtranger, to let his Wife have neceſſaries, or ſo much clothes, or to pay her ſo much money by the year to do it, and this is good.

2. The one of them cannot ſue the other, neither can the Wife ſue any ſtranger, unleſs her Husband be joyned with her.

3. The Wife as ſhe doth participate of the name of her Husband (for ſhe changeth her name into his.) So alſo ſhe doth partake of the Nature and Condition of her Husband. Hence it is, That if he be an Earl, ſhe is a Counteſs; he a Knight, ſhe a Lady: If he were an Alien, and be made Denizen, the Wife ſhall be ſo alſo: If a Freeman marry a Bond-woman, ſhe ſhall be free, during the Coverture: And if a Lord marry his Wife, ſhe ſhall be free, during the Coverture, and è converſo: If a Dutcheſs or Counteſs that is not ſo by birth, marry with a Gentleman or Eſquire, ſhe loſeth her name and dignity, and muſt follow the Condition of her ſecond Husband, Uxor cenſetur dignitate mariti.

4. Hence it is alſo, that the wife cannot be produced as a witneſs for, or againſt her Husband (b) a Writ of Conſpiracy will not lie againſt Husband and Wife. (c) If ſhe deliver her Husbands Goods to a ſtranger, Treſpaſs doth not lie againſt the ſtranger, but ſome other action. (d) If T. enfeoff W. and A. his Wife, and after it is by Parliament enacted, that all eſtates made by T. to W. ſhall be void, the Feoffment ſhall be void, as well to the Wife as to the Husband. (e) If one purchaſe Lands held in capite, to him and his wife, and his Heirs without Licence, and after have a pardon of all offences, Pro quacunque alienatione ſibi facta, and do not ſpeak of his wife, yet it is a good pardon (e) if a Feoffment.

5. If a Feoffment be made of Land to them two, and a third perſon, they two ſhall have but a moyety: If to them two, and two others, they ſhall have but a third part; and if it be made to them two after their marriage together, there ſhall be no moyeties between them, therefore the Husband can neither grant nor forfeit any part of it. And if the Husband alien it, ſhe may after his death recover the whole by a Cui in vita. If a Villain and his wife purchaſe Land, the Lord enter, and the Villain die, ſhe or her Heirs ſhall have it. So if the wife take and convey away her Husbands Goods, this is no Felony in him. So if the Husband joynt purchaſer be an Alien born, or attaint in a premunire, or for Felony: Co. on Lit. 112. 187. Plow. 294. F.N.B. 78. 27 H. 8. 27. 4 H 7. 4. Perk ſect. 763, 764. 39 H. 6. 45. Exod. 21 3. 4 H. 7. 31. D. & St. 139. Broo. ſect. 499. Co. 4. 119. 6. 53. Co. on Littl. 6. b. (b) F.N.B. 116. *Stamf. pl. But in other caſes they are conſidered as divers perſons in Law, and ſo one of them may do an act to another: As firſt, when they do it in auter droit, or as in the perſon of another. As if a Feoffment be made to one of them, and a Letter of Attorny to the other to give Livery, this the one of them may do to the other. So if the wife be an Executrix, ſhe may pay or deliver a Legacy to her husband: So if ſhe have power to ſell Land by Will, ſhe may ſell it to her husband. Perk. ſect. 169. 11 H. 7. Co. ſuper Littl. 187. If an eſtate be made to the husband and wife before marriage, and after they marry, they ſhall have moyeties between them, and one hath not all as in the caſes before (ſee more Caſes for this Infra) Co. ſuper Littl. f. 187. 355. b.

Sect. 3. 5. What acts the Husband may make to his Wife, during the Coverture, where not.

Though by no Conveyance at the Common Law, by plain Livery or Bargain, a man could during the Coverture, either in Poſſeſſion, Reverſion, or Remainder, limit an Eſtate to his Wife; yet by ones Teſtament one might, and ſtill may, either by Cuſtom or Statute deviſe his Land to his wife in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for term of life or years; and one may now upon the Statute of the ſeven and twentieth of Henry the Eight, limit a uſe upon a Feoffment to, or a Covenant with others to ſtand ſeiſed to uſes, to the uſe of his wife: So that now in the obliquity of Fines, Recoveries, and Uſes, there is an expedite way of tranſporting of Inheritance between them: As a Feoffment, Fine, or Recovery may be had and ſuffered to the uſe of the Wife of the Feoffor or Conuſor, and her Heirs. Alſo a man may make a Feoffment to a ſtranger on condition to reinfeoff the Wife of the Feoffer, and this is good by the Common-Law, 4 H. 7: Co. ſuper Litt. fol. 112. Perk. ſect. 763.

Alſo he may give her any of his Goods or Chattels by his Will, for that is not to take effect untill after his death. If an other man make a Feoffment to my Wife, and a letter of Attorney to me give her ſeiſin, I may do it, and it will be good enough. Perk. fol. 41.

6. What acts the Wife may do to her husband, where not.

If Cey q. uſe had deviſed that his wife ſhould ſell his Land, and made her Executrix and died, and ſhe took another Husband, in this caſe ſhe might ſell the Land to her Husband. 10 H. 7. 20. Co. ſuper Litt. f. 112.

But if a Feme Covert be ſeiſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, ſhe can not deviſe it to her Husband, for ſhe is ſub poteſtate viri, and can do nothing in her own right without him, for the Law will preſume it done by Coertion of her Husband. Co. ſuper Litt. 112.

7. How acts done to the Feme-covert alone ſhal enure

A Feme Covert cannot take by grant from the Husband: but ſhe may, and that without any precedent aſſent or agreement of the Husband, be capable of, and take Lands or goods by the gift or grant of others; and therefore all Feoffments, Leaſes, Obligations, &c. made to her are good, and this is good, untill the Husband diſagree to it by word or deed, or both. And if he do neither agree nor diſagree in his life time, then is it unavoydable by any from or under him. But if he diſagree to it, he makes it all voyd; but after he hath once agreed, hee cannot by diſagreement avoid it. And if an eſtate be made to the Wife, and the Husband do agree to it, yet the Wife or her Heirs after his death, may diſagree to it, and avoid it. Vide agreement. 21. H. 7. 20. Br. Cont. 3. 27 H. 8. 25. Perk c. 43. Co. ſuper Litt. f. 3. 1 H. 7. 16. 7 H. 4. 17. 18 H. 6. 8 15. Ed. 4. 1.

8. How acts done to the Husband and Wife ſhall enure.

If a reverſion be granted to a man and a woman and their Heires, and before Attornment they two enter-marry, and then attornment is made. Or if a feoffment were made to them, and after they marry, and then livery of ſeiſin is given to them, ſecundum formam Chartæ; In both theſe caſes they ſhall take entirely, and not by moyties. But if a Feoffment were made before the Statute to the uſe of a man and a woman and their heires, and they entermarry, and then the Statute is made; in this caſe they have moyties, and the Husband may alien a moytie during the Coverture: Fitz. Diſcent. 52. Co. 4. 68. Plow. 483. Co. ſuper Litt. fol. 187.

If an Eſtate be made to a Villayn, and his Wife being free and to their Heires, and the Lord of the Villayn enter, yet if ſhe ſurvive her Husband, ſhe ſhall have the whole. 40 Aſſ. p. 7. Co. ſuper Litt. 187.

If one make a Leaſe to A. and to a Husband and Wife, viz. to A; for life, to the Husband in tayle, and the Wife for years, it ſeemes each of them hath a third part, in reſpect of the ſeveralty of the eſtates. Co. Idem.

If a Feoffment be made to a man and a woman ſole, and their Heirs with warranty, and they intermarry, and after are impleaded, and vouch and recover in value; now of this land ſo recovered in value, there ſhall be no moyties between them, becauſe they are not now capable of moyties. Plow. 485.

If I let land to a Feme ſole for her life, and ſhe taketh a Husband, and after I confirm the ſtate of the Husband and Wife, to have and to hold for tearm of their two lives, in this caſe the Husband doth not hold joyntly with his Wife, but holdeth in right of his Wife, for the tearm of her life, and after for tearm of his own life by way of remainder, if he ſurvive his Wife. And if it had been made of his Eſtate to him alone, to have and to hold the land to him and his Heirs, this had been good: And hereby he ſhould have had the Fee-ſimple after the death of his wife. But if the Confirmation had been made to the Husband and Wife to have and to hold the Land to them two, and their Heires, they are Joynt-Tenants of the Fee-ſimple, and the Husband is ſeized in the right of his wife for her life, for they cannot take by Moyties during the Coverture, Co. ſuper Litt. 299. Fitz. Releaſe. 45.

If a Deed be made to the Husband and Wife of land, and after his death ſhe do accept of the ſtate, now ſhe is bound to perform all the inherent Covenants as much as her Husband. See Covenants 45 Ed. 3. 11. Dier. 13.

If a man letteth land to the Husband and Wife, To have and to hold the one moytie moytie to the Husband for the tearm of his life, and the other moytie to the Wife for the tearm of her life, and the Leſſor confirm the eſtate of them both in the Land Habendum to them, and to their Heirs: by this Confirmation, as to the moyty of the Husband it enureth only to the Husband and his heires, for the wife had nothing in that: But as to the moytie of the Wife, they are Joint-tenants, for the husband hath ſuch an Eſtate of the Wifes moytie as is capable of confirmation. Co. ſuper Lit. 299. Fitz. Confirmation. 17.

Sect. 4. And if one diſſeiſe me, and after I take a Wife, and then after the Tenant doth make Feoffment of this Land to me and my wife, this ſhall enure to me only, and my wife ſhall have no benefit by it. Dier. 10. a.

If Lands be given to a man and his wife, Habendum, the one moity to the Husband, and the other moity to the Wife, in this caſe they ſhall take ſeverally, and be ſeiſed of Moities as tenants in Common, per Knightly (See more to this, ſupra.)

What things are given to the Husband by the marriage, and how, what not.

Howſoever it be ſo, That whatſoever the Husband had before coverture either in Goods or Lands, is abſolutly his own, and the wife hath neither ſeiſin nor property therein; yet all that was the Wives, by inter-marriage is now made the Husbands, & non habet uxor poteſtatem ſui ſed vir, & res licet ſit propria uxoris, vir tamen ejus cuſtos cum ſit caput mulieris. But it is the Husbands, diverſo modo. For as for all the Lands and Tenements whereof ſhe hath any Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life, theſe he is to have during both their lives together. And ſome of them ſometimes after for his own life, by the courteſie of Englandt. And alſo all the right and Titles of Entry that ſhe hath into any Lands, are given to the Husband; ſo that he may enter or claim it as the woman might. Alſo all her Chattels reall ſhe hath in poſſeſſion, and in her own right, as wardſhips of Tenants in Capite, and Knights ſervice, eſtates by Statute-merchant, Statute-ſtaple, leaſes for years, and the like, he ſhall have the uſe and occupatio n of and power by act executed, to give, grant, or ſell, ſurrender or forfeit it during his life: And if he ſurvive his wife, he ſhall have them abſolutely and not conditionally only as he hath them before. Alſo all her Chattels perſonall, as Horſes, Sheep, Neat, Corn, Wool, Money, Plate, Jewels, even to her Chamber, Bracelets and Apparell more then needfull, which ſhe hath in her own right, property and poſſeſſion, are given, with the property thereof unto him by act of Law, by the intermarriage, ſo that he may ſell, keep, or bequeath it if he dye; and if he do not bequeath them, they ſhall goe to his Executors, whether he ſurvive his wife or no, and this is to be underſtood not only, of that ſhe hath at the time of the mariage, but that which ſhall fall to her alſo at any time after the marriage during the Coverture. Alſo all her Choſes and cauſes of Action for any matter before, or after the marriage are his to take, ſue for, or releaſe, when they be due at any time, during both their lives together; but if he doe not diſpoſe it, it will come to his wife again after his death: And therefore if a Legacie be given to a woman ſole, and ſhe take a Husband, untill her Husband releaſe or receive this, if ſhe die ſhe may deviſe or diſpoſe it; and if he dye, it will return to her, and ſhall not goe to his Executors, except it be received by his appointment, for then the thing in action is become in poſſeſſion. Co. ſuper Litt. f. 112. 300. 351. Plow. 191. 419. 21 H. 7. 29. 16 Ed. 4. 8. 7 H. 6. 1. 14 H. 4. 24. 39 H. 6. 27. Co. 10. 51. Doct. & Stu. f. 13. Co. 6. 36. Dyer 177. 251. Plow. 204. 260. 10 H. 6. 11. 11 H. 7. 19. Perk. fol. 148. Huntley & Griffith, p. 38 *Eliz. And if ſhe have made Feoffment or condition that the Feoffee, ſhall pay her 100*l.* at a day, and before the day ſhe marry, how in this caſe the Husband ſhall have this money; or before the day he may releaſe the condition, and this will bind her. All her wardſhips of Socage Tenure, Heirs, and Tuitions, he ſhall have during the Coverture only. Plow. 204. Dyer 251.

But there is this difference between a property of perſonall goods, and a bare poſſeſſion only: For if perſonall goods be bayled to a Feme ſole, or if ſhe find them, or if they come to her hands, as Executrix to a Bayliff, and taketh a Husband, this bare poſſeſſion is not given to the Husband, although the action of Detinue muſt be brought againſt the Husband and the wife, 39 Ed. 3. 17. Co ſuper Litt. 351.

All the Goods and Chattels alſo the Wife hath in auter droit, as Executrix or Admini-

Adminiſtratrix, or as Gardian in Socage, &c. the Husband ſhall have the diſpoſing powerof, during the Coverture, ſo that during that time he may ſell or give them, Plow. 294. 192. Dyer 7. If any Chattels perſonall were given to the Wife, dum ſola fuit, and to a Stranger, and after ſhe mary, now the Husband alone, and the Stranger are Tenants in common of this Chattell, and the Husband ſhall have an abſolute property in the one half of them. Plow. in Bracebridges Caſe.

But none of her dignities are given to him; for though the Husband may be enriched; yet he cannot be ennobled by his Wife: and though a man may ennoble a Wife, yet a Wife cannot dignifie a Husband: But ſhe may loſe her own dignity by taking a Husband; As in the caſe of the Lady Anne Powes 4 Marie 1. Quando mulier nobilis nupſerit ignobili, deſinet eſſe nobilis. Bro. 5 Ed. 499.

What things the Husband ſhall have after the death of his Wife.

After the death of the wife, the Husband ſhall have not only all the Chattels perſonal of his Wife which he ſhall have, whether he ſurvive her or not, but alſo all the Chattels reall of his wife, which then he ſhall have abſolutely to himſelf as his own other Chattels reall: And if they were joyntly poſſeſſed of any Chattels reall, as where a wardſhip or leaſe for years is made to them two, after her death her Husband ſhall have the whole. Co. ſuper Lit. 351. 46. Plow. 191. 192. Fitz. joinder in Actions 20.

Sect. 5.

All Chattels reall being of a mixt nature (viz) partly in poſſeſſion, and partly in action, which happen during the Coverture he ſhall have, if he ſurvive his Wife, albeit he doth not reduce them into poſſeſſion during her life-time: As if the Husband be ſeiſed of a Rent Service, Charge, or Seck, in the right of his wife, & the Rent become due during the Coverture, and thewife dieth, he ſhall have the arrerages. So if he have an Advowſon in the right of his wife, and the Church become void during the Coverture, if he ſurvive her, he ſhall have the preſentation. Co. ſuper Litt, 551. F. N. B. 121. 122. 14 H, 4. 12; Co. ſuper Litt. 120.

All arrerages of Rent incurred and due to the wife before or after Marriage, the Husband ſhall have, if he ſurvive the wife. As if the Wife be endowed of a Rent, and ſhe take a Husband and dye, he ſhall have the Rent arrear during the Coverture, and may ſue for it by the Statute 32 H. 8. c 37. If he make a leaſe of his wives Land, rendring Rent, and ſhe dye, he ſhall have the Rent due in her life time. Co. 4 51. & ſuper Litt. 351. F. N. B 121. 9 H. 6. 52.

Alſo Caſes in action recorded by him, or him and his wife in her life time by Judgement, the Husband ſhall have alſo, and as Executor or Adminiſtrator to her he may have all that ſhe hath. F. N. B. 121. Co. ſuper Litt. 351.

If a Legacie be given to a woman ſole, and ſhe take a Husband, and after ſhe makes a Letter of Attorney to one to receive this money given by the Legacy, and then ſhe dyeth, in this caſe the Husband, and if he dye, his Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have this money, and may have an action of Accompt for it againſt him that received it: So if the Husband had made the Letter of Attorney: but before the thing in action be turned into poſſeſſion, the wife may deviſe, or give, or diſpoſe it to her Husband or any other, and he cannot have it but by her legacy, or by Adminiſtration from her; but now by the receipt of it, the property doth reſt in the Husband, and he, his Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have it. If the woman have a Bond, and ſhe take a Husband who doth make a letter of Attorney to another to receive the money, and ſhe dye, the Husband ſhall have it and accompt for it, pro Popham. Ch. Juſt. for the thing in action is become in poſſeſſion. Huntly & Griffiths Caſe p. 38. Eliz. B. R.

What not, but the Executor of the wife, or ſome other ſhall have it.

If a Feme ſole be poſſeſſed of a Chattel reall, and be thereof diſpoſſeſſed, and then taketh a Husband, and the wife dyeth, and the Husband ſurviveth, this right is not given to the Husband, but the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the wife ſhall have it: And ſo as Executor or Adminiſtrator, the Husband may have that that another may have by that meanes. Co. ſuper Litt. 351.

So if the Wife have but a poſſibility and no intereſt, and dye, the Executor, and not the Husband ſhall have this. Idem.

If ſhe had a wardſhip by reaſon of a tenure in Socage, and dye, her Husband ſhall not have this, but it ſhall go to ſome other; and if he dye before her, this ſhall ſurvive to her, and not go to his Executor, Plow. 293.

Chattels reall conſiſting meerly in action, as a Writ of right of Guard, avatore maritagij, or forfeiture of marriage, Relief whereunto the wife was entitled before the marriage, the Husband ſhall not have unleſſe he recover it, during the Coverture: So alſo Chattels Perſonals that be in action, as debts by obligation or contract, or otherwiſe, before or after marriage; for he that ſues for them after, muſt ſue as Executor or Adminiſtrator to the wife, and that the Husband may be if he will, for he may give her leave to make an Executor, and ſhe may make him her Executor, or if ſhe die inteſtate, he may ſue forth an Adminiſtration, which in right belongs to him. 32 H. 8. chap. 37.

If one give a Feme ſole a Legacy to be paid preſently or at a day to come, and ſhe marry, and dye before any releaſe or diſpoſall by her Husband, in this caſe, her Executor or Adminiſtrator, not her Husband, ſhall have it. per Chief Juſtice Mich. 17. *Jacobi. So if a leaſe be made to them Two, for years during the Coverture, and he do not diſpoſe it in his life time by act executed, the wife ſhall have it all. And regularly that which her Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have after her death (For which, ſee the laſt diviſion) ſhee ſhall have after her Husbands death; as all the goods and Chattels ſhee hath in Auter Droit, not diſpoſed by her Husband. This word Parapherna is uſed in our Law: but in the civill Law, the thing is ſaid to be Paraphernalia, which by the Civilians is ſaid to be ſomething which the wife hath to her ſelfe beſides her Dowry which her Husband gave her, the which ſhe muſt have and not the Executors of the Husband. And of which the Wife may make a Will without the aſſent of her Husband, as being a thing in the free diſpoſition of the wife. And this both by the Civill and the Common Law is all the neceſſary furniture and apparell of a womans body provided her by her Husband which may extend to many Garments of the ſame kinde, and is not to be reſtrained to one garment only, which is, that is ſufficient to cover the body, and yet not to be extended to that which is above her degree, and therefore Jewells and Chains of Gold and Silver ſhall not be eſteemed Parapherna for a Husband-mans wife: but theſe may be Parapherna for the Wife of a Nobleman. Sect. 9.

The Husband during the Coverture is liable and ſubject to all Suits for any cauſes or wrongs by the wife before the marriage or after, during the Coverture, as Debts, Covenants, ſlanders, treſpaſſes, and the like. So as the Husband and the wife be both joyned in the ſuit, and the ſuit be begun, and judgement had in it during the Coverture. For if either the wife be ſued alone, or they be both ſued, and one of them dye, before Judgement obtained, the ſuit faileth. And therefore it is that upon an Indictment againſt the wife alone, for a treſpaſſe, Ryot, or the like, if ſhe be to pay fine, forfeiture, or be impriſoned, the Husband ſhall not be charged with it, unleſſe it be ſo appointed by ſpeciall words in a Statute, but her body muſt ſuffer, and the Fine or forfeiture ſhall be levied of her, if ſhe ſurvive her Husband, for a Husband ſhall never be charged, for the act or default of his wife. but when he is made party to the action and Judgement is given againſt him and his wife; but if the ſuit be by information upon a Penal Law againſt Husband and wife, there he may be charged, Co. 11. 61. *F. If the husband and wife both joyn in a Statute Recognizance, this will not bind the Wife nor her Land. Kelw. 10.

17 Where and what acts make a countermand by the intermarriage, and where and what not.

All acts done by a Feme ſole, that be countermandable, done to the diſadvantage of her husband, if they be not executed before the marriage, are countermanded by the marriage, whereof ſee Countermand See Fine Numb. 6. 8. Grant Numb 2. 3.

But ſuch acts as are done by, or to her, that are or may be for her advantage, are not countermanded by the marriage: So alſo ſuch acts as are not countermandable: As if the Conuſance of a Fine be by her whiles ſhe is ſole, and ſhe marry before the recording and finiſhing of it, yet the Fine may go on: So if a Feme ſole deliver a Deed as in Eſcrow to take effect as her Deed, after certain conditions performed, and before they be performed ſhe marry, yet the conditions may be performed, and the Deed take effect according to the intent and agreement. Dyer 246.

If a Feme ſole and another have a leaſe for years in Joyntenancy, and ſhe take a husband, yet the Joyntenancy doth continue and is not determined.

If a leaſe at will be made to a Feme ſole, and ſhe take a husband, this leaſe is not determined. Plow 418. Kelw. 61. See Countermand

Sect. 13.

18 Where and what actions ſhall be ſued and maintained by husband and wife joyntly, and what the husband ſhal have alone or joyntly with his wife at his election, where, and what not.

In ſome caſes, & for ſome cauſes the husband and wife muſt joyn in the Suit: As if any wrong be done to the perſon, name, or lands of the Wife, before, or during the Coverture, or if the Suit be upon any Covenant on a leaſe made by the husband and Wife of the Wives Lands, where the Covenant is made to them both: or if the Suit be for any Inheritance, as Lands, Commons, Advowſons, or the like, that do belong to the Wife. 9. Ed. 4. 52. Dyer 805. 40 Ed. 3. 3. 21 H. 6. 30. Co. 5. 16. 97. 59.

If an action of Debt upon arrearages of accompt (where one was receiver to her whiles ſhe was ſole) they muſt both joyn, and that though the Auditors were aſſigned during the Coverture in a writ of Detinue of Charters of the inheritance of the Wife, they muſt joyne.

If one have a term in the right of his Wife (and be outed of it) it ſeems they both muſt joyn in an Ejectione Firme. But quære, 47 Ed. 3. 12. Plow. 418. 16 Ed. 4. 18.

If husband and wife make a leaſe for years of the Wives Land, they muſt joyn in an action of Waſt, elſe it is not good. 7 H. 4. 15. 3 H. 6. 53.

In treſpaſs, if the Plaintiff recover againſt the husband and wife by falſe verdict, they muſt both joyn in the attaint. But in ſome caſes the husband muſt ſue alone, and not not joyn his wife with him: As if goods be delivered by them both, the husband alone muſt bring the Detinue: Or if an Aſſumpſit were made to the wife to pay to the husband money, the husband alone muſt ſue for it: If he ſell any of his Wives land for money, he alone muſt ſue for the money, or for any goods or chattels that were hers, he alone muſt bring the Replevin. But if the goods were his Wives as Executrix to another, there he may joyn her with him in the Suit: So likewiſe if the goods were taken from her, dum ſola fuit. 46 Ed. 3. 20. 27 H. 8. 24. 8 Ed 4. 48 Ed. 3. 18. Fitz. Reception 37. Aſſ. 11.

If he have execution of a Statute made to his Wife, or ſhe had execution before the Marriage, and he is afterwards ouſted, he alone may ſue for it. 37 Aſſ. p. 11.

If he ſue for money promiſed him in marriage, he alone may ſue for it: But he muſt be adviſed whether at the Common-law, or in the Spirituall Court: for which, ſee Action ſur le Caſe and Prohibition, and theſe caſes. 23. Aſſ. Pl. 70. 45 Ed. 3. 44. 14 Id. 4. 22. 17 Ed. 4. 5. 19 Ed. 4. 10. Engliſh Lawyer 197.

If a leaſe for years be made, or wardſhip granted to a husband and wife, and they be diſturb'd, the husband, as it ſeems, may ſue, alone, or he may joyn his wife with him, Fitz. Joynder in Action 20. If the wife have a turn to preſent to a Church and the husband is let, he alone may ſue for this, 50 Ed. 3. 13.

In treſpaſs upon the Statute, 5 Rich. 2. the husband alone may ſue, and ſo likewiſe for taking away Charters that do concern the inheritance: So if he alone deliver ſuch Charters.

And in ſome caſes the husband may ſue alone, or may joyn his wife with him at his election: As where an obligation is made to them two during the Coverture: So if an accompt were made to her as her receiver when ſhe was ſole: So if they two make a leaſe of their Land, and the Leſſee make Waſt: So in all actions of the nature of Treſpaſs for wrong done before or after the Coverture on the wives Land wherein Damages only are to be recovered, and he alone may releaſe it: As where a Reverſion is granted to a husband and wife, and the Leſſee break her Covenant: So if ſhe have a Rent charge arrear before the Marriage: So if he have a Leaſe for life in her right, and he make a leaſe for years, and the Leſſee do Waſt, and the husband have cauſe to bring an action of the Caſe: So if an Aſſize have paſſed againſt him and his wife, yet he alone may have the writ of Champarty: So if a man bring a writ of Raviſhment of Goods upon a poſſeſſion Jure uxoris, he may bring it in his own name. If the husband be lord in the right of his wife, of a Mannor, and they have cauſe to bring a writ of Reſcous, he alone, or both of them may ſue: And alwaies where the action may ſurvive the Wife, ſhe may joyn in the Writ: And generally where the hu bands releaſe is good, and will barr the Wife, or that which is in demand, or to be recovered, cometh meerly and only to the husband, there he may ſue in his own name if he will, as where he ſueth one for chaſing in a free Chaſe, which he holds in the right of his Wife, or for Strays taken of Lands holden in the right of his wife, or for breaking of a houſe, and carrying away the timber of a houſe, or eating the Graſs, &c. which is his wives inheritance: So in ſuch like caſes where damages is only to be recovered. H. 6. 37. 16 Ed. 4. 83. H. 6. 53. 43 Ed. 3. 3. 8. 26. 21 H. 6. 30. 7 H. 7. 2. 46 Ed. 3. 3. 8 H. 4. 21. March. 47. pl. 75. 212. 249.

Sect. 14. 19 Where and what actions ought to be ſued joyntly againſt the husband and wife, for a thing done by them during, or before the coverture.

In ſome caſes where there is cauſe of action that doth concern a Feme Covert, the Suit muſt be brought againſt the husband and the Wife, for in no caſe can the Wife be ſued in any action without the husband, and in ſome caſes the husband cannot be ſued without the Wife; as where the ſuit is for the recovery of any Land whereof the Wife hath any eſtate of freehold: So if one deliver goods to a Feme ſole who doth after marry, the husband and Wife muſt be both ſued. If the husband doe commit Waſte in the Land he hath in the right of his Wife, the ſuit muſt be againſt them both: So if a man have cauſe to have an action of the Caſe againſt a man that hath land in the right of his Wife, for not reparations, whereby his Land was drowned it muſt be againſt them both: So if a Leaſe be made to a husband and Wife for years, rendring Rent, Detinue for the Rent or Waſt muſt be brought againſt them both. 39 Ed. 5. 17. Co. 5. 11. 62. 5. 52. 1 H. 4. 31. 3 H. 4. 1.

If

If a Feme-covert finde goods, and convert them to her own uſe, it ſeems the action muſt be brought againſt them, and not againſt the husband onely, if ſhe ſlander another, or beat him, or do any Treſpaſs, or otherwiſe, to him or his, the Action muſt be conceived againſt them both. Dyer 355. 9 Ed. 4.2,4. *M.*31,32 *Eliz. Co.*11.61.b.

20. What not, but againſt the Husband alone, and what the one way or the other at the Election of the party who ſueth them.

But in ſome caſes the husband muſt be ſued alone, as if they two make an Obligation, during the Coverture, he alone muſt be ſued upon it. Co. ſuper Littl.

If one be Guarden in Chivalry, in the right of his wife, and a woman have cauſe to demand Dower out of the Land, he muſt ſue the husband onely; ſo if the Wardſhip were granted to the husband and wife; ſo if a Rent be granted out of the Land a man holds in the right of his wife, to another for his life, and it be arrear, and he dies; here the Action of Debt ſhall be brought againſt the husband alone. So if a wife be Guardein in Soccage of the Lands of an Infant, and take a husband, for the time before the Marriage, they muſt be joyned, but for the time after the Marriage, will lie againſt him alone. Fitz. Debt, 180. Briſſ. Aſſ. 561. Briſſ. 847.930.

21. Where one of them ſhall anſwer without the other, Sur 44 *Ed.*3 1. 34 H 6. 19. 36 H. 6. 1. 43 Ed 3. 18. 41 *Ed.*3. 24. 16 *Aſſ. pl.*1. 3 H. 6. 9. 9 *Ed.*4. 23. 9 *H.*6 8. 8 H. 4. 6. 21 *H.*4. 1. Cauſa Matrimonii prælocuti.

But an Action of Trover and Converſion of the Trover of the wife, it ſeems may be brought againſt the husband and wife, or the husband alone. Drapers caſe, Mich. 1 Jac. B. R.

If one have a Ward in the right of his wife, and a woman have cauſe to bring her Writ of Dower, ſhe muſt have it againſt the husband onely; but if a Writ of Ward-ſhip be brought to recover a Ward, it ſhall be brought againſt them both becauſe of Voucher. 46 *Ed.*3. 20.

And where the Action is brought againſt the husband and wife, ſhe muſt be named Wife in the Writ: But in no caſe may the wife be ſued alone, whiles the husband is living, and known to be ſo, unleſs it be in ſome rare caſe, whereof the husband for ſome offence is baniſhed, &c. 42 Ed 3.23.

It is a Writ lying where Lands are given by a woman to a man, on condition he ſhall take the woman to wife by a day, and before that day he doth diſable himſelf, or at the day he doth not take her accordingly, then the Donee may have this Writ to recover the Land again. But this is now out of uſe: 1 *H.*4. 2 *H.*4.7. 18 *Ed.*4.4. F. N. B. 205. *Co.*2. 15.

Cui in vita.

It is a Writ that lieth where a man is ſeiſed of Lands in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for term of his life in the right of his wife, and doth alien the ſame, and dieth: Then the wife ſhall have this Writ to recover the Land ſo aliened. And if ſhe die before it be recovered, her heir may have a ſur cui in vita. Exp. Terms of the Law, *p.*85.

22. How Criminal Matters done by them joyntly or ſeverally, ſhall be conſtrued, and how they ſhall be puniſhed for them.

A Feme-covert may commit a Felony, and be principal or acceſſory, as another may, as if ſhe kill a man, or ſteal goods, or receive ſtoln goods without her husbands privity; and if ſhe do ſo, ſhe muſt anſwer it her ſelf, for her husband ſhall ſuffer no Corporal puniſhment for her: But if a Feme-covert ſteal any thing by the commandment of her husband, or together with her husband ſhe ſhall be quit, for it is no Felony in her. Contrà, if ſhe hold a man whiles her husband kill him, and if ſhe receive Goods of her husbands ſtealing, though ſhe know it, ſhe is not acceſſory, for ſhe is not bound to diſcover her husband. 15 Ed 4.1. 29 *Aſſ. pl.*40. *Stamf l.*1. *c.*19.

Any act that is high Treaſon in an other, ſhall be ſo in her, and for this offence ſhe is to be burned: So alſo for Petti-Treaſon for the killing of her husband, Dyer 332.

*Sect.*15.

If a woman do commit any miſdemeanor, as Ryot, Battery, &c. for which ſhe may be indited, and Judgment thereupon muſt be againſt her alone, therein ſhe muſt anſwer without her husband, and the Fine put upon her, ſhall not be levied upon her husbands goods in thoſe caſes, but her body muſt anſwer it, and the King muſt ſtay for his Fine until ſhe be ſole: But in caſes where for any miſdemeanor made by any Statute, it is otherwiſe provided, *Co.*11. 61. b.

23. Divorces.

It is the ſeparation of two married perſons before coupled together, by ſentence of a Judg, for it is impoſſible that after perſons are lawfully married, they may by any agreement between themſelves, divide and ſeparate themſelves again, New Terms of Law, Womans Lawyer, *f.*64.

And this is ſometimes, A vinculo Matrimonii, (i.) which doth diſſolve and make a nullity of the marriage from the beginning; and this is when the Divorce is by reaſon of ſome eſſential Impediment, as Cauſa præcontractus, cauſa metus, cauſa frigiditatis vel impotentiæ, cauſa affinitatis vel conſanguinitatis, and this Divorce that is of this kinde, which is perpetual, makes ſuch a nullity of the Marriage ab initio, that he may take any other wife, or ſhe another husband, that all the children had between them, during this marriage, are reputed Baſtards, the wife ſhall have no Dower, the husband ſhall not be Tenant by the Courteſie, they may ſue one another. 32 *H.*8. 11. 38. *Co.*7.45. 9. 141. Dyer 147. *Rew.*164. *Co. ſuper Littl.*235.

The other kinde of Divorce is à menſa & toro; and this is when the Divorce is Cauſa adulterii, or Cauſa profeſſionis, which is onely till reconcilement be had, and doth not diſſolve the Marriage, nor produce any of the effects aforenamed, ſo in this caſe the wife may be endowed, and the children inherit, notwithſtanding.

Cauſes thereof. The cauſes of Divorce, do ſometimes precede, and ſometimes ſucceed the Marriage; precede, as in all the cauſes before, where there is any ſuch impediment; as if it be ſo that two be married, Infra annos nubiles, for this at their full age, they may be divorced: So if either of the ſaid parties be, inops mentis, at the time of, and always after the marriage. 47 *Ed.*3. in ſuis: 39 *Ed.*3.32. 19 Aſſ. pl. 2.

Cauſa conſanguinitatis & affinitatis. If two be married that be within the degrees of Conſanguinity or Affinity forbidden, this is cauſe of Divorce: As if a Woman do marry, her Grand-father, Father, Sons ſon, or Brother of the whole, or of the half Blood, her Father or her Mothers Brother, her Brother or Siſters Son, Brother or Siſters Children, or a Man married the Widow of his Grand-father, Father, Son, Sons Son, the Widow of his Brother or Brothers Son, or his Brothers Sons Son, nor with the Grand-mother, Mother, Daughter, Neece, Great Aunt, or Siſter of his deceaſed Wife. Engliſh Lawyer, *f.*71. 25 *H.*8.22. Womans Lawyer.

Cauſa profeſſionis. If one be a profeſſed Infidel, and the other a profeſſed Chriſtian, it ſeems this is cauſe of Divorce.

Cauſa frigiditatis. If either of the parties at the time of marriage be inhabilis, unable and unfit for procreation, for this cauſe the parties may be divorced, and their after-marriage to others, good; but it ſeems it muſt be ſuch as was at the time of the marriage, for if it happen after marriage, it is no cauſe. *Co.*5.98. Dyer 179. Engliſh Lawyer. Co. 6.66.

Cauſa præcontractus. If one have Contracted marriage before with another, now this is ſufficient cauſe of Divorce of a latter marriage, with another after this Precontract. See 32 *H.*8.38. 2, 3 *Ed.*6.3.

Cauſa metus. So alſo if a marriage be made through fear, or upon any ſuch corrupt terms as before, this is cauſe of Divorce.

Cauſa adulterii. Some cauſes alſo do ſucceed the marriage, as when it is for Adultery or Fornication, which by the Canon, is Carnal and Spiritual, for they diſſolve Matrimony, when one of the parties is converted to Chriſtian Faith, and the other being an Infidel, will not live with him, out of the 1 Cor. 7.

That which a Divorce doth work, and bring forth, may be ſeen by that which was ſaid before, and by theſe caſes following.

24. The effect and fruit thereof. If a man marry with a Woman Precontracted, and hath iſſue by her, this iſſue in Law and Truth beareth the ſirname of his Father: But if after they be divorced for the Precontract, there the iſſue hath loſt his ſirname, and becomes a Baſtard. Co. 6.66.

Sect. 16. If a Leaſe be made to a man and his wife, during the Coverture between them; now if a Divorce be made between them, for any cauſe that doth diſſolve the Marriage; in this caſe the Leaſe is determined: But if the Divorce be cauſa adulterii, this doth not determine the Leaſe. *Co. ſuper Littl.*235.

25. Where and what things the Wife ſhall have again after Divorce, and what acts of the Husband ſhall bind the Wife after the Divorce, and where and what not. If Land be given to a man and his Wife, and to the heirs of their two bodies, and after they are divorced, cauſa præcontractus, hereby their Eſtate of Inheritance is turned into a Joynt Eſtate for life. *Co. ſuper Littl.*28.

If the Husband, during the Coverture, make any Diſcontinuance of his wives Land, or any ways charge it by granting of Rents, Commons, &c. out of it, or entring into any Statute, or the like, and after, they be divorced; in this caſe ſhe ſhall avoid all theſe Diſcontinuances and Charges: And to avoid the Alienations, the Writ of Cui ante Divorcium is given her, it is to recover the Lands ſhe held in her right right alone, or joyntly with him, which he alienedduring the Coverture; or ſhe may enter by the Statute of 32 *H.*8. But ſuch things as are executed, as Gifts and Sales of her Goods, Waſte, Seiſage of Wards, Receipts of Rents, and Preſentments to Benefices, and the like, that were done during the Coverture, ſhall ſtand, and cannot be avoided. Broo. Arraignment 18. *Co.*8. 75.

If Lands be given to her Husband, and her in Frank-marriage, with her marriage, and after they be divorced, now the wife ſhall have all the Land; and if the Husband keep it from her, ſhe may ſue him. So if Goods were given unto her, with the marriage of her Husband, and after they are divorced, ſhe ſhall have all the Goods that are left, and not (bona fide) ſold or ſpent, to her ſelf, and may have a Detinue for to recover them, or ſhe may ſue in the Spiritual Court for them. 19 *Aſſ. pl.*2. Dyer 13. Old N. B. 139. 6 *H*8.7.

If the Husband during the Coverture, releaſe a Legacy due to his Wife, and after they are divorced, it is ſaid the Releaſe is not good to binde the wife; but quere of this caſe, for I think the contrary to be Law. Totty and Stephens, B. R. 44 Eliz.

If one that is bound to a Woman by Obligation marry her, and after they be divorced, it ſeems her action that was ſuſpended, is now revived. See 11 *H.*7.4. Dyer 140.

If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife, ſo as now they have no Moyeties, yet if they be after divorced, there ſhall be Moyeties again between them: And if they be Donees in Tail, and after divorced; now they have but Frank-tenant. Bro. Tail 9. *Perk. ſect.*238. See more in Women, Widows, Acceptance, and Agreement.

Of Marque, Maſons, Malt, Maltſters, and Marſhes.

MArque, and Letters of Marque, are authority given by the Supreme Magiſtrate to ſome perſons, to right themſelves upon ſtrangers without the Limits, and reach of our Laws, by the taking of their Goods, to make amends for ſome wrong done by them to ſome of ours; for which they are deſtitute of Remedy in another Country. And it is ſo called, becauſe the griefs whereupon theſe Letters are ſought and granted, are commonly given about the Bounds and Limits of every Country, or becauſe the Remedie there is moſt likely to be had by ſome ſudden inrode, and hapning of ſuch Recompence of the Injury received, as may moſt conveniently be lighted upon. 15 *H.*6.8. 4 *H.*5.7. Act, 25 June, 1649. 17 April, 1649. Mark or Repriſal, what.

CHAP. CXI.

Of Maſter and Servant, Meaſon or Dwelling-houſe.

Sect. 1.

1. Maſter and Servant.

2. The kindes of Servant.

MAſter and Servant are Relatives; and a Servant in the Intendment of our Law, ſeems to be ſuch a one, as by Agreement and Retainer, oweth duty and ſervice to another; which therefore is called his Maſter. And amongſt Servants ſome are ordinary, menial, and familiar, (i.) Such, as always and conſtantly in Houſe, or attending on their Maſters buſineſs: And theſe are called Menial and Familiar Servants; and theſe are either for a leſs time, As ſuch as are hired by the year, or half a quarter of the year, or ſuch as are for a longer time: As Apprentices which are for ſeven or eight, or more years. And others are extraordinary, and upon occaſion onely, as Retainers, who are not dwelling with him, but bear the Maſters name and Livery, Laborers, and the like; alſo ſome Servants are Univerſal and General. (i.) Such as are to look to all their Maſters buſineſs, and to ſerve him in all his lawful commands, and others are ſpecial and particular. (i.) Such as are to look to ſome things onely, and to ſerve him in ſome ſpecial matters onely, as Bailiffs, Parkers, Stewards, Butlers, Receivers, and the like; and in all theſe caſes the general Rule of Law is: That according as the Agreement and Retainer is, ſo the Servant muſt do his work, and ſo the Maſter muſt pay his wages; and if either of them fail, they may have Reciprocal Remedy one againſt another. See Statutes of Laborers and Debt. 3 Eliz. 4. 16 R. 2. 4.

Retainer.

What Acts of the Servant ſhall binde the Maſter, or not. In matter of Contract.

The Contract of the Servant in buying, will binde the Maſter, and make him chargable to an Action of Debt, for the thing bought, in either of theſe caſes.

1. Where the Servant is a known and common Bailiff to his Maſter, and is uſed to buy for him, and he doth mention his Maſter in the bargain, and doth buy for him, though the Maſter never have the thing bought.

2. Where the Maſter did give him a precedent authority ſo to do, and he do mention his Maſters name in the bargain, and do buy for him, though the Maſter never have the thing bought, nor notice of the bargain; and any friend may be a Servant in theſe caſes.

3. Where the thing bought, doth come to his Maſters uſe, and he doth aſſent to it.

4. When he doth afterwards aſſent to it, though the thing bought do not come to his uſe; for a ſubſequent aſſent is equivalent to a precedent authority. And in theſe caſes the Seller may have an Action of Debt againſt the Maſter: And if the Servant himſelf do make any ſpecial promiſe to pay the money, the Buyer may upon this, have his Action of the Caſe againſt the Servant alſo. And it is held by the better opinion, That theſe Contracts are good, although the Servant in his Contract, do never mention the name of his Maſter. But generally in all other Caſes, the Contract of the Servant as to the Maſter, is void, and will not binde him. Fitz. 202. 27 Aſſ. pl. 5. 11 H. 6. 20. Plow. 11. F.N.B. 62. D. & St. 137. Dyer 234. 2 R. 2. 65. 21 H. 7. 40.

So

So in ſelling the Maſters Goods or Chattels, the Contract of the Servant will binde the Maſter, and alter the property of the thing ſold; in either of theſe caſes.

1. When the Servant hath any precedent authority, general or ſpecial to ſell it; and there it will binde the Maſter, though the money be not paid to the Maſter, or come not to his uſe, and though he have no notice thereof.

2. So if he have no ſuch expreſs charge and authority, if he be a common and known Baily, and uſe to ſell for his Maſter.

Or 3. if the Maſter agree to the ſale and bargain after it is made; and in this caſe the Maſter may have an Action of Debt in his own name againſt the Buyer. Broo. Debt. Contract 24.

If the Servant that is ſuch a known Baily, or hath ſuch an Authority, Pledg or Exchange any of his Maſters Cattle for Corn, or the like, and the Corn come to his Maſters uſe, the Maſter is bound by this: As a Contract made to a Wife, is good when the Husband doth agree to it, ſo it is of a Contract to a Servant, and it ſhall be ſaid to be made to the Husband, and Maſter himſelf. In all the caſes of buying by a Servant, if he promiſe to pay the money by a day, the Seller may have an Action upon the caſe, upon that promiſe, as well as an Action of Debt againſt his Maſter upon the Contract. See Contract.

If I be a Merchant, and have a Factor that doth uſe to buy one kinde of Stuff for me, as Tinue, or the like, and no other; if he buy Says, or other Commodities for me, and aſſume to pay it, I may be ſued upon this Contract of my Factor. Goldsb. 139. *pl.*46.

If one bid another deliver his Servant what he doth call for, and he will pay him, here the Maſter ſhall be chargable for how-much-ſoever the Servant doth fetch, *Co.*8. 146.

If one ſend his Servant to Market or Fair to buy Cattle, or other things for him, and doth not tell him of whom he ſhall buy it; now of whomſoever he ſhall buy it, the Maſter ſhall be chargable: But perhaps, if he had bid him buy of one man, and the Servant buy of another, the Maſter ſhould not have been chargable, Doct. & St. 137. Sect 2.

If ſuch a Servant as is uſed to buy and ſell, ſell his Maſters Horſe, or exchange his Ox for Wheat that cometh to his Maſters uſe; this is good, and the Maſter may not have an Action of Treſpaſs for it; and he ſhall be charged for the Corn, and the other need not ſhew that he had authority from his Maſter, Noy 110.

If one make a man his general Receiver, and he receiveth money of a Debtor of his Maſters, and maketh him an Acquittance, and payeth not the money to his Maſter, yet this payment ſhall binde the Maſter, and diſcharge the Debtor; but if he make an Acquittance to him, and he pay not the money, this will not binde the Maſter. And yet if a man make another his general Receiver by writing, and give him power alſo thereby to make Acquittances, and he make an Acquittance to one of whom he receives not money; this will binde the Maſter, and diſcharge the Debt. Doct. & St. 138. Noy 111. If one ow me money, and I ſend my Servant for it, and he pay it to him; this will bar me to demand it again, and diſcharge him of it, D. & St. 138. In matter of Receipt, Gift, or Diſcharge.

If a Lord of whom Land is held, be diſſeiſed of a Seigniory, and the Bailiff pay the Rent to the Heir of the Lord, without any ſpecial Commandment; this doth give the Heir Seiſin of the ſervice. Doct. & Stud. 138. In point of Conſent.

If my Servant that is no common Bailiff, will buy other mens Goods for me, or ſell my Goods from me, without any authority from me ſo to do; this will not binde nor charge me, ſo as he may bring an Action againſt me for the Goods that are bought, or that I may not take again my Goods that are ſold. Doct. & Stud. 137. What Acts of the Servant will not binde the Maſter.

If ſuch a Servant buy any thing for me, eſpecially if it be things unneceſſary, and thoſe things come to the uſe of my Houſe, yet I ſhall not be bound by, nor charged for this, unleſs I agree to the bargain after that it is made, and had notice of it, 11 *H.*6. 20. D. & St. 137. In matter of Contract.

If a Servant that hath authority to ſell his Maſters Goods, do ſell and warrant the Goods ſold; this Warranty will not binde the Maſter, though the ſale will. 11 *Ed.*4. 7.

If a Taverners or Mercers Servant, or a Parker, Bailiff, or Shepherd, that have the cuſtody and power of their Maſters Goods, and perhaps authority for to ſell them, do give In matter of Receipt or Diſcharge.

give away any of them, it ſeems this gift is void, and doth not binde the Maſter, but that he may bring an Action of Treſpaſs againſt him, that ſhall meddle with them, under colour of ſuch a gift. Noy 110. 21 *Ed.*4. 5. Broo. Donee 56.

If one make one his general Receiver, and he by agreement betwixt the Debtor and him, take and accept a Horſe, or other thing, in recompence of the Debt; this will not binde the Maſter, nor diſcharge the Debtor; and yet if in this caſe, the Receiver had authority from his Maſter, to make ſuch a Commutation, or the Maſter do afterwards aſſent to it, by this the Maſter may be bound. Doct. & Stud. 138.

If my Servant go to a man that doth ow me money, and tell him, or ſhew him a counterfeit Letter, that I ſent him to receive it, and my Debtor pay him the money; this will not bar me of my money, nor diſcharge him of the debt; but if the money come to my uſe after, and I aſſent unto it, contrà. Doct. & Stud. 138.

If there be Lord Meſn, and Tenant, and the Tenant holdeth of the Meſn, as of his Manor, and the Meſn maketh a Bailiff, and after the Tenant maketh a Feoffment, and the Feoffee tendereth notice to the Bailiff, and he accepteth and receiveth the Rent with the arrearages; this notice and acceptance will not binde the Lord, nor compell him to alter his Avowry. Doct. & Stud. 138.

In matter of Conſent.

If one make a Bailiff of his Manor and the Lord of another Manor, of whom the Manor is held, grant the Seigniory to another, and the Bailiff doth after pay the Rent to the Grantee; this ſhall not binde the Lord, nor amount to an Attornment for the Grantee, Doct. & Stud. 130.

If the Bailiff pay more Rent then he ſhould, and the Lord incroach by this means; this ſhall not binde the Maſter, unleſs the Maſter did give commandment to pay more Rent then was due. Doct. & Stud 130.

Sect. 3. Where the Maſter ſhall be charged for the Act or Offence of his Servant or Deputy, or not; and how.

If the Servant keep his Maſters fire ſo negligently, that the Maſters houſe, and his Neighbors alſo is burnt thereby; the Maſter ſhall be charged, and anſwer for this negligence of his Servant: But if this negligence were abroad, out of his Maſters houſe, Contra. Doct. & St. 137. 2 *H.*4. 19. F.N.B. 94. 22 *H.*6 24.

If a common Hoſtlers ſervant rob a gueſt that lodgeth in the houſe, the Maſter ſhall be chargable, and anſwer for this Felony in an Action of the Caſe. But if another man, no common Inn-keeper or Hoſtler do ſo, it is otherwiſe. See Action of the Caſe.

If a Servant of a Gaoler that hath a priſoner in execution for debt, ſuffer him to eſcape; the Maſter ſhall be chargable in an Action of Debt. And if he have a Felon in his cuſtody, and the Servant ſuffer a voluntary eſcape of him, the Maſter ſhall be fined for this, but it ſhall not be Felony in him, as it ſhall be in the Servant. Doct. & Stud. 137. *Co.*9. 98.

Officers, Deputies.

If any Officers do make and appoint any Deputies in their Offices, they ſhall anſwer, and be charged for the offence of their Deputies; and their acts will be as penal to them, as if they were done by themſelves: As High-Sheriffs muſt anſwer for their Under-Sheriffs, Under-Sheriffs for their Bailiffs, Gaolors for their Deputies, and ſo all others. Broo. Forfeiture 27. *Co.*9 98.48. Dyer 238. *Co.*4.33. 5. 89. Br Off. 24. But if one have an Office grantable over to an Aſſignee, and he aſſign it; in this caſe the Aſſignor ſhall not be charged, or prejudiced by any thing the Aſſignee doth. Dyer 261. 10 *H.*7.23. 18 *H.*8. 5.

If a Servant, or one of a mans Family do lay or caſt any thing into the High-way, that is a Nuſance, it ſeems the Maſter may be puniſhed for it. Noy 110. So if a mans Cattle do againſt his will, hurt another, he muſt anſwer for them, for he muſt govern them. Idem. But if a Servant borrow or receive money in his Maſters name, and for him, without any authority from his Maſter, the Maſter ſhall not anſwer this, nor be charged for it, though it come to his uſe, unleſs he do after agree unto it. Doct. & Stud. 137. Noy 109.

If one ſend his Servant with deceitful Wares to a Market or Fair, and command his Servant to ſell them, but doth not ſay to whom; it ſeems no Action of the Caſe will lie againſt the Maſter for this; but if he bid him ſell them to one man in particular, and he do ſo; there for the Goods ſold, the Maſter ſhall be charged in an Action of the Caſe, 11 *Ed.*4. 6.

If

If my Servant drive my Cattle into another mans ground againſt my will, and they do Treſpaſs there; it ſeems I ſhall not anſwer for this Treſpaſs: So if my Servant ſet on my Dog, againſt my will, and kill another mans Cattle; or if he do any other Treſpaſs by beating a man, entry into his Land, taking away his Goods, or otherwiſe, or commit any Felony, I ſhall not be charged, nor anſwer for it, unleſs I be acceſſary thereunto. Doct & St. 137. 11 Ed. 4. 7. 9 H. 6. 53. 6 H. 6. 39. 13 H. 7. 15.

If the Servant ride his Maſters horſe into a Town where they have power to attach Goods upon a Plaint of Debt; and the Goods are attached as the Goods of the Servant, and forfeit for his default of Appearance, the Maſter ſhall not be prejudiced by this; but he may take his horſe again, or bring an Action of Treſpaſs for him. So if the Maſter ſend his Servant for to diſtrain another mans Cattle, and the Servant after he hath diſtrained doth kill, or otherwiſe abuſe the Diſtreſs, the Maſter ſhall not anſwer, nor be charged for this. 21 H. 7. 27. D. & St. 138. Noy 111.

For the Murder, Felony, Battery, or Treſpaſs of his Servant, the Maſter ſhall not be charged. Noy 109. But if I command my Servant to do a Treſpaſs, or agree to it, I am a Treſpaſſer alſo.

No act or default of the Maſter, to which the Servant is no way acceſſary or privy, ſhall binde or be prejudicial to the Servant, unleſs the Servant be acceſſary or aſſenting thereunto; as the Felonies of the Maſter, and the like. So if the Servant diſtrain Cattle, at his Maſters commandment, and after the Maſter do kill, or abuſe the Diſtreſs; or a Bailiff of a Sheriff arreſt a man by the Sheriffs Warrant, and after the Sheriff do not return the Writ. 20 H. 7. 13, 22, 23. Sect. 4.

For Apprentices, theſe things are to be known. Apprentice.

1. That in ſome caſes men may not take Apprentices, or but ſuch a number, and ſuch kinde of Apprentices. 2. A man may not exerciſe ſome Trades, till he have ſerved ſeven years as an Apprentice in the Trade. 3. The differences between Maſters and their Apprentices, are to be ended by the Juſtices of the Peace. 4. A Maſter cannot ſend his Apprentice beyond Sea, unleſs his Calling, to which he is Apprentice require it. 5. In ſome caſes Men and Women may be bound Apprentices againſt their will. 6. Apprentices cannot be turned over from one to another, but by Cuſtom, as in London. But for all theſe, and ſome other things concerning them. In ſome caſes men may not take Journeymen, or not ſo many, or not ſuch men. 4. Servants and Laborers muſt take the wages aſſeſſed by the Juſtices, and may not take more. 5. Maſters muſt give to their Apprentices, Laborers, and Servants, what is meet for Diet, Cloths, and Wages, and may not abuſe them. And Apprentices, Laborers, and Servants, muſt do their duty to their Maſters. 6. If any miſcarriage be of either ſide, the Juſtices of the Peace may puniſh it. The Dwelling-houſe hath many privileges granted to it by Law: As firſt, Precedency in a Writ, if it be demanded amongſt other things. Secondly, It cannot be broken to make an Arreſt at the Sute of a common perſon, but at the Sute of the King, as to arreſt the owner, or another man in it, for Felony, or on a Capias utlagatum it may be broken open. Of Money, Meal, Mills, Millards, Mines, Monopoly, Milderneux and Powldavy.

Meal. IF any ſell Meal any where but in the open Market, or there mixt, and not pure, or do uſe Bolting; he forfeits double the value of it, and muſt be impriſoned two moneths without Bail. Act, 23 Octob. 1650.

Mills and Millards. For Gig-Mills. See 3 Ed.6. 2. 5 Ed.6. 22.

For Iron-Mills. 27 Eliz. 9.

How Millards are to be puniſhed for changing the Griſt, or taking exceſſive Toll. See Leet, and other Titles, and in my Juſtice of Peace Book.

Milderneux and Powldavy. For Milderneux and Powldavy, and how, and where it may be uſed, and by whom, See 1 Jac. 22.

Mines. For Mines, theſe things are to be known. Firſt, That all Mines in any mans ground of Gold and Silver Oar, or where the Major part is Gold and Silver, are the Lord Protectors, and not the owners of the Soyl, whether they be new Mines or old. Secondly, All the Mines and Quaries of Cole, Stone, Brick, Iron, Gravel, Lime, Clay, and the like, when a Tenant for life or years, comes firſt to the Land are his, and he may dig on. But ſuch a Leſſee for life or years, cannot open and dig new Mines or Quarries, without ſpecial words in his Leaſe to warrant it. See more of theſe things in Waſte, Treſpaſs, Eſtate for years.

Monopoly, what. A Monopoly is where the power of ſelling any thing, is in ſome one man alone; or where one doth ingroſs or get into his hands, ſuch a Merchandiſe as none can ſell them, or gain by them, but himſelf. And to this there are three inſeparable Incidents againſt the publick good: Firſt, The price of the Commodity is raiſed. Secondly, The Commodity is made worſe. Thirdly, It tendeth to impoveriſh many poor Artificers and Tradeſmen. And therefore the Law doth utterly diſtaſte it. See for this 21 Jac. 3. Co. 11. 86, 87. and Co. 3 part. Inſt. chap. 85.

Monopoliſts, Propounders, and Projectors. All ſuch as get ſuch Allowance from the King, by Grant, or otherwiſe for the ſole buying, working, or making, or uſing of any thing, whereby any perſon or body Corporate or Politick, are ſought to be reſtrained of any Freedom or Liberty they had before, and hindred in their lawful Trade are called Monopoliſts, &c.

Money. For the Statutes concerning Money. See them in Wingates Abridgment, Money.

CHAP. CXIII.

Of a Mortgage, Mortmain, and Mortuary.

Mortgage or Pledge, what. MOrtgage doth ſignifie in our Law, a pawn of Lands or Tenements, Goods, or Cattles, laid, or bound for Money borrowed, peremptorily to be the Creditors for ever, if the money be not paid at the day agreed upon.

The kindes. The nature of Mortgaged Land and Goods. Of Lands thus: As if one make a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, Leaſe for life, or years to another (for mony borrowed) on Condition, That if he repay him his money by ſuch a day, that then he ſhall have his Land again. And this bindes the Land ſo, till that time, that neither of them can do any thing with the Land:

Land: But both of them together, may ſell or charge it; and after the day paſt, and money not paid, the Mortgagee cannot well ſell it, for the Land (eſpecially if it be of much more value then the money) will be recovered in Chancery, upon payment of the money, Intereſt, and Damage: For which ſee my Firſt part of the Marrow of the Law, f. 628. But for this ſee Condition at large in my Book of Common Aſſurances, chap. 6.

A Pledg of Goods is, where one doth deliver Goods to another man in aſſurance of another thing had from him at the ſame time: And this is either in Deed, where one doth actually deliver Jewel, Plate, or other Goods, to one for twenty pounds lent him; and if he do not pay the money at a day agreed upon, That he to whom they are delivered, ſhall have them; and if he do pay the money, that then he ſhall have the things pledged again. In this caſe if the Deliverer do pay his money at the day, he ſhall have his Goods again, or an Action of Detinue for them, if he refuſe to deliver them: And if he do not pay the money at the day, the other may keep the Goods pledged, for ever; and yet the Quality and Condition of the Intereſts of theſe Parties doth ſtand thus. The Party that doth pledg them, till the time they be forfeit to the Party that hath them in pawn, according to their Agreement, hath a general Property in the things pledged: So as if they be caſually loſt, he muſt abide the loſs of them; and they cannot be forfeit by the Party that hath them in pawn, nor can they be taken in Execution, or attached for his Debt: And yet the party that hath the Pledg, hath ſuch a Special Property in it, That if the thing pawned be a Horſe, Ox, or the like, he may work it, if a Cow milk it: And if it be any other thing, as Apparel, or the like, that will not grow much worſe by uſage, he may uſe it as the firſt owner thereof might have done: But if he ſhall abuſe it, the party pawning it, may have an Action againſt him for this Abuſe. And he that hath this Pledg, may aſſign over his Intereſt to another; and this Aſſignee ſhall hold it upon the ſame Terms the party to whom it was pledged, held it. And if the Goods be taken away from him that hath them in pawn, he may have an Action of Treſpaſs againſt the Taker, and ſay, Quare bona ſua cepit. And if the party to whom it is pawned, die before the day of payment of the money, the Goods ſhall go to his Executor. And when the day is paſt, and the Pledg is forfeit, yet doubtleſs if it be much more worth then the money, the party pawning it, will have it again by a Sute in Chancery, upon payment of the Money, Uſe, and Damage, if he ſue before it be quite ſold: There is alſo a Pledg in Law, where the Law without any Special Agreement made, doth enable a man to keep Goods in the nature of a Diſtreſs. And ſo a Tailor may keep, but muſt not uſe, nor ſell a Garment he hath made, till he be paid for the making of it: And ſo an Inn-keeper may keep, but not uſe his Gueſts Horſe, till he pay him for his Meat; and if he leave him there ſo long, till he have eaten as much as he is worth, he may ſell him, and pay himſelf; and ſo was it agreed, in Trin. 3 Jac. B. R. This word Pledg is taken alſo for one that is Surety for another. Of Mortmain.

IT is where one doth give Lands to, or to the uſe of any Religious Houſe, or other Corporation, then it is ſaid to be in a Mortmain, becauſe the Services are gone, and the Corporation can yield no Services to the Lord; and therefore if any Alien to any ſuch perſons, or in any ſuch manner without the Kings Licence, the Lord of whom the Land is held, may enter at any time, within a year after, for a Forfeiture; and if he do not, the next immediate Lord may, and ſo every Meſn-Lord ſhall have half a year; and if none enter, it ſhall come to the King; and of ſuch Inheritances, wherein no Tenure can be as Villains, Rents, and the like: For theſe the King ſhould have had them preſently; but ſuch Alienations may be good with the Kings Licence. Broo. 19. Dyer 25. 7 *Ed.*1. 25 *H.*8.10. 13 *Ed.*3.3. 16 *R.*2.79. Broo. 79.

Mortmain, what.

Forfeiture.

It is a Writ that is uſed to go forth, when the King was about to grant any Liberties, as Market, Fair, or the like, to enquire what prejudice will come thereby: So alſo it ſeems where one would alien in Mortmain, before the King granted his Licence, he uſed to grant this to the Eſcheator to enquire what harm it may be to him, or to his Country. See 27 *Ed.*1. Ordinatio de libertatibus. F.N.B. 221.

Quale Jus, what. It was a Writ that did lie where an Abbot, or ſuch like perſon had a Judgment to recover againſt one by Default, then before Judgment given, or Execution awarded, this Writ did go to the Eſcheator, to inquire what right he had to recover; and if it had been found he had no right, then the Lord which ſhould have had the Land, if it had been aliened in Mortmain, ſhall have had it. Terms Ley. Of Mortuary or Corſe preſent.

Mortuary or Corſe preſent, what. Executor. MOrtuary is a Gift left by a man at his death to his Pariſh Church, for the Recompence of his Perſonal Tithes and Offerings, not duly paid in his life time: And this by the Executor was uſed to be paid next to the Herriot, and before the Debts: For anciently, if a man had three Beaſts, the Lord had the firſt Beaſt, the Parſon the next, in the right of his Church. But now the rate, and order of this is altered, and ſet down in Certain, by the Statutes of Circumſpecte agatis, 13 *Edw.*1. 21 *H.*8.6. Co. upon *Littl.*185. Doct. & Stud. 175. See Tithes.

CHAP. CXV.

Of Nosm or Name.

Sect. 1.

1. Nosm or Name, what.

NOmen quasi rei notamen, Names were invented onely to put a difference between person and person, thing and thing, and these are considerable in Law, with relation to Deeds or Writs. For by mistakes of names, sometimes Deeds may be avoided, sometimes Writs may be abated, or suits may become erroneous. And for this we are to know that our Law doth call Persons or Bodies, Natural, or Politick.

The kindes of Names, of Baptism, Sirname.

There are many kindes of Names, Names of Persons, or Bodies, and places, of Persons, Natural and Politick; the Politick is sole or aggregate of many: There are Names of Baptism, as John, William, and Sirnames, as White, Dyer, &c. Names of Mystery, or Occupation, as Baker, Mercer, Carpenter; Names of Office, as Justice of Peace, Attorney, and the like; Names of Honor, Degree, or Dignity, as Duke, Earl, Knight, Gentleman; Names of Corporation, as Major and Commonalty, and the like: And Politick Bodies, as Bishops, Deans, &c. There are names of places, as Towns, Villages, Parishes, Hamlets, and the like.

2. Body Politick, what. The kindes of it.

A Body Politick, is a Body in Fiction of Law, that endureth in perpetual succession. And these are either sole of one person, such were a Bishop, Dean, Prebend, Archdeacon, Parson, Abbot, Prior, and the like. And these had a double capacity, to give, or take, sue, or be sued, or else they are aggregate of many, and then are called a Corporation.

3. Corporation, what.

A Corporation is an Assembly, and joyning together of many into one Fellowship, Brotherhood, and minde, whereof one is as the Head, and the rest is as the Body.

The kindes of it.

And these kindes of Corporations were said to be heretofore, either by the Common Law. So the Parliament onely was a Corporation. And so Church wardens also are to some purposes a Corporation, or by the Kings Authority, or mixt. Some of these again were said to be Spiritual, and some Temporal. The Spiritual were also, either of dead persons in Law, as Abbots, Covents, and the like, or they are of able persons in Law, as Dean and Chapter, Master and Fellows of Colledges, and the like. Some of them also were said to be Regular, and some Secular Corporations. Temporal are such as is a Major and Commonalty.

For Corporations, these things are to be known.

4. Corporations. Ordinances.

1. They may not make or execute any Ordinance in Diminution of the Prerogative, or of other, or against common profit, except approved by the Chancellor, Treasurer, Chief Justices, or three of them, or the Justices of Assise, under pain of forty pound. 19 H. 7. 7. 2. They may make no Ordinance to restrain Sutes in the Kings Court, under pain of forty pound, 19 H. 7. 7. Brownl. 2 part, 284. 3. They must take but two shillings and six pence for the first Entry of an Apprentice, and three shillings and four pence for his Entry of Freedom, under pain of forty pound. 22 H. 8. 4. 4. They may not by Bond or Oath, restrain any Apprentice or Journeyman from keeping shop, or take more money of them for their Freedom, then the Fee of Entry. 28 H. 8. 5. 5. Acts done by the Major part, these shall binde the rest, and no Oath taken to the contrary, shall be binding. 33 H. 3. 27.

But for this matter of Corporations, see Co. on Littl. 250. 34. 11. 26. 14 H. 8. 3. And in divers other places in my Book of Common Assurances, chap. 12.

5. Addition and alias Dictus, what.

Addition is a Title given to a Man over and above his proper and Christian name and sirname, shewing his Estate or Degree, Occupation, Mystery, Place, and Dwelling. 1 H. 5. 5. Alias Dictus is the manner of Description of a Defendant in a Writ, when he is sued upon an Especialty, where after a short Description of his Names and Additions, the Writ goeth farther, Alias Dictus; and then doth after describe and set him down again by the very Names and Additions, whereby he is named and bound in the Writing. Dyer 50.

6. Indempnitate nominis, what. This is a Writ that lieth where an Action of Debt, Covenant, or Accompt, is brought againſt one man, or one man hath entred into a Recognizance, or the like, and another man of the ſame ſirname is taken, and vexed in his Body, Goods, or Lands thereby; in this caſe, the party grieved, or his Executors, after his death, if the Goods be taken, ſhall be relieved by this Writ. 7. Miſnoſmer, what. Miſnoſmer is the miſtake of the right name of a perſon, or thing: And this is ſometimes in the Chriſtian, ſometimes in the Sirname, and ſometimes it is in ſome other of the Additions; and where this will mar a Deed, or not. Sect. 2.

As for names of Dignity, and Titles of Honor, theſe things are to be known.

8. Dignities and Nobility, and Title of Honor.

1. There have been, and are, where the Law doth take notice, divers Titles and Degrees of Honor and Dignities, one beneath another, As the King as Supreme (in whoſe room the Lord Protector now is,) the Queen, Prince, Dukes, &c. Marqueſſes, Earls, Vicounts, Barons, Vavaſors, Lords, Knights of the Bath, of the Garter, Baronets, (which are all one with Knights Bannerets, the Templers of the Rhodes, of the Order of St. John of Jeruſalem, Eſquires, Gentlemen, who are ſaid to be thoſe, whom their Blood, and Race, doth make Noble, and known; and under this are compriſed all above Yeomen; for all Noblemen are Gentlemen, but all Gentlemen are not Noblemen-Gentlemen. Alſo perſons were divided thus, as by the Noble, and in reſpect of Nobility of the Lords-houſe of Parliament, and of the Barony of England, or one of the Commons, and in reſpect there of the Commons-houſe in Parliament. And there are divers Degrees of Nobility, As Dukes, Marqueſſes, Earls, Vicounts, and Barons, which laſt word did ſometimes include all the reſt; ſo of the Commons there be degrees, As Knights, Eſquires, Gentlemen, Citizens, Yeomen, and Burgeſſes of ſeveral degrees, but Nobility with us is ſaid to be from the Knight upward, and is leſſer; that is, all from Barons downward, or greater from the Barons upward.

2. Some of theſe Degrees, Orders, and Titles, are gone, as King, Queen, and Prince, Vavaſors, the Order of Knights-Marſhal, Templers of the Rhodes, and others. Some of them continue to this day, as Marqueſſes, and the reſt. Some of all which remain ſtill amongſt us.

Heraulds. 3. Theſe have either Arms, Enſigns, and Cogniſances allowed them, and for the examination, and ſafe keeping of theſe, there are Officers called Heraulds, who are of purpoſe to look to it, and to finde them out, and to give them to ſuch as deſire it.

4. The Kings have had in all times, the diſpoſe of moſt of theſe Inferior Honors at their firſt Creation, as the Dignities of Dukes, Earls, and moſt of the other great Dignities: All which they did ſometimes confer in Fee, ſometimes in Tail, or as they pleaſed. Some of theſe are made by Patent of the King, and ſome by other ways and means, ſome of them are incident to Offices, and ſome not.

6. Some of theſe Creations were done with much Ceremony and Solemnity, and ſome with no Ceremony at all.

Degradation. 7. Theſe Honors had, they that had them, might have loſt and forfeited them, and they might have been degraded of them; the which alſo in ſome caſes was done with much Ceremony. Cambden, Howes Annals, Sir Thomas Smith de Republica.

8. None may aſſume to themſelves, nor give to others any Names, or Titles of Honor, or Dignities conferred on, or given to them by the laſt King, ſince 4 Januar. 1641. Act, 4 Feb. 1651.

9. The differences about theſe things were wont to be decided by the Conſtable of England, and Earl-Marſhal, by the Law of Chivalry, or Title of Honor in the Court of Chivalry. But theſe Officers, and this Court is now gone. 21 *H.*7.33. 37 *H.*6. 16. See Title Lord, *Co.*2 part, *Inſt.*6. CHAP. CXVI.

Of Notice.

Sect. 1. Notice, what.

NOtice is the making ſomething known, that a man was or might be ignorant of before; and this in divers caſes produceth divers effects, As firſt, in reſpect of the party that doth give it, that by this means he ſhall have ſome benefit that otherwiſe he ſhould not have had; or hereby he may be freed of ſome charge, that otherwiſe he ſhould have born. Secondly, In reſpect of the party to whom the notice is to be given; in that, by theſe means he is made ſubject to ſome Action or charge, that otherwiſe he ſhould not have been ſubject unto; and his eſtate is ſubject to a Forfeiture, which otherwiſe it had not been in danger of: Thirdly, In reſpect of both, in that hereby an act may be brought, that otherwiſe had been good, or an act may be good, that otherwiſe had been naught. Co. upon Littl. 309.

Where Notice is requiſit and ought to be given. And what ſhall be ſaid a ſufficient Notice, or not.

If a Parſon had reſigned his Church unto the Ordinary, the Ordinary or his Succeſſor, if he die, muſt give notice thereof to the Patron, elſe he ſhall never take advantage of the Lapſe, if the Patron do not preſent within ſix moneths. Kelw. 49:

To the Patron by the Ordinary.

If the Ordinary had refuſed to inſtitute a Clerk preſented, becauſe he was illiterate (as in that caſe he might) there he muſt have given notice thereof to the Patron, eſpecially if the Patron had been a Lay-man, (for if he had been a Clergiman, it ſeems otherwiſe) or if he had refuſed him for any private cauſe confeſſed upon his examination, and not publickly, and notoriouſly known. In theſe caſes he muſt have given notice to the Patron, or elſe he had taken no advantage of the Lapſe. See Dyer 293. Kelw. 50. 6. Broo. cap. 504. 1 H. 7. 9. Doct. & Stud. l. 2. Kelw. 49, 50. Dyer 293. 246.

If the Parſon be deprived, the Ordinary muſt have given notice hereof to the Patron, or elſe he had taken no advantage of the Lapſe. Dyer 346.

If one that had a Benefice with Cure of eight pound, and is not qualified, had been inſtituted, but not inducted into another, contrary to the Statute of 2. 1 H. 8. The Ordinary muſt have given notice hereof to the Patron, elſe he had taken no advantage of the Lapſe. Co. 4. 79.

If a Church had been void by Simony, the Patron muſt have had notice. 13 Eliz. 6. See more in 31 Eliz. 6.

To the Tenant of the Grant of the Reverſion.

If a Manor be conveyed or transferred from one to another, as when an Eſtate that one hath in a Manor, doth ceaſe by limitation of uſe, and it be limitted to another, then he that is the preſent Lord muſt give notice hereof to the Copiholder, or elſe if the Copiholder deny his Rent upon demand to the Lord, this is no Forfeiture. So alſo is it, though the Manor were paſſed by a Deed of Bargain and Sale inrolled. Co. 8. 92. 5. 13.

Forfeiture by a Copiholder.

To one upon a Condition to avoid or affirm an Eſtate.

If the Leſſor make a Feoffment of his Land in Leaſe for life or years, that is, upon condition to forfeit for non-payment of Rent, and the Leſſor give Livery and Seiſin to the Grantee of the Reverſion, ſo that the Leſſee hath not notice of it; in this caſe the Grantee muſt give him notice of it, elſe he cannot enter after demand for non-payment of the Rent upon the Condition, as the Leſſor might have done; and ſo is it, though the Grant of the Reverſion had been by Deed and Bargain and Sale inrolled. Co. 9. 113. 8. 42.

If one make an Indenture to Uſes, provided, That if one at any time, during his life, pay to J. S. twenty pound, or tender it, at ſuch a place, then the Uſes to ceaſe, or the Eſtate of any raiſed by the ſaid Uſes, ſhall ceaſe; in this caſe, if he will pay the money according to the Condition, he muſt give notice thereof to J. S. elſe the tender at the place, is not ſufficient. Co. 8. 92. Dyer 35. Co. 5. 113.

If

If a Feoffment be made to divers Uſes on Condition, That if one that hath an Eſtate by the ſame Feoffment ſhall do, or not do ſomething, that then his Eſtate ſhall be void; now he muſt have notice of this Condition, or elſe the doing, or not doing of that act, is no Forfeiture of his Eſtate. Dyer 354. Co. 9. Francis caſe.

If a Leaſe be made on Condition to do ſome collateral thing, as build a Houſe, or the like, and the Leſſor ſell the Reverſion by bargain and ſale or Feoffment; in this caſe the Vendee muſt have notice hereof, for otherwiſe if he after the Condition broken, accept the Rent; this is no Diſpenſation of the Condition, or Affirmance of the Eſtate. Co. 3. 64. 8. 92.

Sect. 2. By a Lord to the Feoffee or Purchaſor to change the Avowry.

If one grant a Reverſion, notice hereof muſt be given to the Tenant by the Grantee; for otherwiſe, if he Attorn, and have no notice of the Grant, his Attornment is void, (ſee Attornment.) But Notice by Law may be without Notice in Fact. Co. upon Littl. 308.

To a Purchaſor of a Uſe or Truſt.

If one have any Eſtate, or any Lands in truſt for, and in the uſe of another, and one is about to purchaſe this; in this caſe, it behoves him to whoſe uſe, to give notice of the uſe to the Purchaſers, for otherwiſe the uſe may be gone: For if in that caſe, the party truſted, do for a good conſideration ſell the Land to one that hath notice of the uſe, then the Purchaſor ſhall ſtand ſeiſed of that Land to the firſt uſe. Plow. 351.

To others in other caſes.

If one bring an Action againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator, and lay his Action in another County, then that wherein the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth dwell, he muſt give notice hereof unto him; for the Executor or Adminiſtrator, is not bound to take notice of it, unleſs it be in the ſame County, and therefore if he after that do pay away the Aſſets he hath to another, that hath not begun any Sute, the party hath no Remedy. See Executors. Plow. 279. Broo. Notice 16.

If a mans Dog do kill Cattle, he ſhall not be charged in an Action of the caſe, unleſs he had notice of the quality of the Dog therein. See Action of the Caſe.

If the Lord diſtrain the Tenant for ſuch Services as he holdeth of the Meſn; in this caſe, he may have a Writ of Meſn, without giving any notice thereof to the Meſn; but if he diſtrain for other Services then he holdeth, there he cannot have this Writ before he have given notice to the Meſn. Broo. Notice 21.

If one make a Leaſe for years to one, and after make a Leaſe to another, to begin after the Surrender, End, or Forfeiture of the firſt Leaſe, with clauſe of Re-entry for not payment of Rent. After the Leſſor took a ſecret Surrender of the firſt Leſſee, and after that Surrender a Rent day incurred, and the Rent not paid by the ſecond Leſſee; it was adjudged, that his Eſtate was not void, for the other ought to have given him notice of the Surrender. Goldsb. 140. pl. 49.

If a Condition be to pay money at any time, during ones life, he muſt give notice when he will pay it. Co. upon Littl. f. 211. So if A. be bound to B. with Condition that C. ſhall infeoffee D. on ſuch a day; in this caſe C. muſt give notice to D. thereof, and requeſt him to be on the Land at the day to receive the Feoffment, and he muſt ſeek D. and give him notice. Co upon Littl. 211.

If the Maſter impriſon a man wrongfully, and the ſervant keep the Key of the Room where he is in priſon, he muſt have notice of the cauſe that it is wrongful, or elſe he is no Treſpaſſer. Broo. Faux Impriſonment.

If I hire the ſervant of another man, hired in a foreign County, and have not notice thereof; in this caſe, I am no Treſpaſſer; as it ſeems it ſhould be, if he were the ſervant of another man, hired in the ſame County. Broo. Notice 20. 4. 8.

Sect. 3. If a man be bound by the Condition of an Obligation, or otherwiſe upon a penalty, upon a contingent precedent; this is to be done by the Obligee, and it lieth wholly and properly in his Conuſans, and not in the knowledge of the Obligor; in this caſe it ſeems, that the Obligee muſt give notice of the thing done to the Obligor, or otherwiſe he is not to be charged to do that thing; as if he be to pay money within a week after the Obligee is married; in this caſe he muſt give him notice when he is married. But if he be bound to do ſuch a thing by a ſingle Obligation, Covenant, or an Aſſumpſit onely; in that caſe he muſt take notice of it at his peril. So alſo where where the thing doth lie, as much in the knowledge of the Obligor, as of the Obligee, as in the caſes below. Wheelers caſe. Mich. 7 Jac. B. R. Hil. 9 Jac. B. R.

If A. be bound to B. to pay him one hundred pound when he doth come to London, he muſt give notice to A. when he doth come to London, as was reſolved. Mich. 3 Jac. in Co. B.

If A. be bound to B. in an Obligation with Condition, that B. coming from beyond Sea before the 22 of April, then that A. ſhall pay B. twenty pound before the 27 of April after; in this caſe it ſeems B. is not bound to give notice of his Retorn, Goldsb. 138. pl. 49.

When one is bound to do ſuch an act after the death, or marriage of a ſtranger, or to ſtand to the Award of another. Co. 7. 29.

Where the promiſe is to the party, to do a thing at the time of the marriage of a ſtranger; there it ſeems notice is requiſite, but when it is to be done at the time of the marriage of the party himſelf, contrà. By three Juſtices, in B. R. Trin. 14 Jac. but quere. Co. 7. 29. 9 Ed. 4.

If I binde my ſelf to ſave another harmleſs from a Bond, he is bound in for me; aſſoon as I am ſued, his Obligation is forfeit, without giving notice of it. Foxes caſe, M. 4 Eliz. upon an Arbitrement. See Arbitrement and March, f. 108: pl. 186.

If the Ordinary had refuſed a Clerk preſented, becauſe he was merè laicus, or for any other notorious crime, as becauſe he was a Baſtard, perjured perſon, common whore-maſter, drunkard, or the like; or if a Parſonage had become void by Ceſſion, and the Creation of a Parſon, a Biſhop; in theſe caſes the Ordinary was not bound to give notice to the Patron, but he muſt have taken notice of it at his peril, and preſented again, or elſe the Ordinary may preſent by the Lapſe, Kelw. 49. Dyer 293. Broo. Notice 241. 3. In what caſe the party is bound to take notice, without giving notice.

If one that had a Benefice with Cure of eight pound, and being not qualified for another, had been inſtituted and inducted to another againſt the Statute of 21 H. 8. In this caſe the Ordinary was not bound to give notice, Co. 4. 19.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant make a Feoffment in Fee, and die, then the Lord, though no notice be given to him, yet muſt change his Avowry, and take his Service of the Feoffee, Broo. cap. 108,

So if a Recovery be had againſt the Tenant, or if the Tenant be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed, and ſo the Heir is in by Diſcent, and the Entry of the Diſſeiſee is gone; here the Lord muſt charge his Avowry without notice, Perk. ſect. 131.

If one be bound to pay money, or do any other thing at the death, or marriage of a ſtranger that is not party to the Deed, here the Obligee is not bound to give notice of this contingent to the Obligor, but he muſt enquire and take notice of it at his peril. Wheelers caſe, M. 7 Jac. B. R.

So if one be bound to ſtand to the Arbitrement of J. S. and J. S. do make an Arbitrement, the Obligor muſt take notice, and perform it at his peril.

So if one binde himſelf to account before Auditors, and to pay the Arrearages, he muſt take notice of the Account, and pay the Arrearages at his peril, without any notice given. 1 H. 7. 5. Co. 8. 92.

If one have Land in truſt, or to anothers uſe, and have the ſame without any conſideration; in this caſe the Donee ſhall ſtand ſeiſed to the firſt uſe, though he had no notice of it. Plow 351.

If one diſtrain anothers Cattle, he is not bound to give notice to the owner in what Pound he doth put them, though the owner deſire to know, but he muſt enquire after, and look to them at his peril, Broo. Notice 22.

If a Tenant for life, Leaſe for years and die, the Leſſee for years muſt take notice thereof, and avoid at his peril, and he in Reverſion is not bound to give him notice thereof. Broo. Notice 15. Sect. 4.

If general Acts of Parliament that do concern the whole Nation, the Judges in giving of their Judgments, are bound to take notice; though the ſame be never pleaded before them: And every other man is bound to take notice preſently at his own peril. But of ſpecial Acts of Parliament that concern ſome particular places or perſons perſons, onely the Law doth allow ſome reaſonable time, and means for notice, Broo. Notice 9.

The Sheriff in the ſummoning of men, and taking, and ſeiſing mens Goods, and Lands, is at his peril, to ſee that he do not miſtake, though no notice be given him; and therefore if a Sheriff do make Execution of another mans Goods, or ſeiſe, or diſtrain, or make Replevin of another mans Cattle, or give Seiſin of another mans Land, inſtead of his, that he ought to take and ſeiſe, though notice be given him by the Plaintiff, or ſome other, that they are the proper Goods and Lands of him, whoſe Goods or Lands he intended to take; yet in this caſe the Sheriff is a Treſpaſſor. Doct. & Stud. lib. ſect. 44. Broo. Notice 43.

4. How Notice is to be given.

If the Ordinary had been to give notice of the Avoidance of a Church, or Refuſal of a Clerk to a Patron, he ought and muſt have done it by himſelf, or by ſome other by his appointment, by a writing or Certificate under his hand, certainly and plainly ſetting down the Matter to the Patron, and that to the Perſon of the Patron, if he might have been found; and if he would not be found in the County, then at the Church-door, whereof the Preſentation was to have been. And if another man of his own head had given notice of this to the Patron, this had not been ſufficient. Dyer 327. Co. 6. 40. Doct. & Stud. l. 2. c. 41.

Notice by a Tenant to change the Avowry, muſt be made upon the Land aliened with a tender of all the Arrearages behinde; for if the Lord accept the Services of the Alienee, before the Arrearages paid, he doth loſe his Arrearages for ever. Kelw. 113. Co. 3. 66.

If one be bound to Infeoff ſuch a one as the Obligee ſhall name; now he muſt name them to the Obligor himſelf, for if he do it to a ſtranger, and not to the Obligor, it is not ſufficient. Broo. Notice 150.

If an Executor be ſued in another County, and he pay away his Aſſets before notice be given him, and have no Aſſets to anſwer the Sute; yet this is good, and the other hath no remedy. See before.

CHAP. CXVII.

Of a Nuſance.

1. Nuſans, what.

A Nuſans ſignifieth a thing done, whereby another man is annoyed in his Free-Lands, or Tenements, or otherwiſe: As when a Houſe is built, or Wall ſet up, or Water ſtopt to the grievance of a Neighbor, by which his Frank-tenement is impaired. And this is either Common, when every man is or may be equally annoyed by it; or Special, where ſome one or more are, or may be more hurt by it then others, F. N. B. 193. O. N. B. 108, 109.

Sometimes alſo this word ſignifieth a Writ, which is given for Relief in theſe caſes. See for this, 6 Rich. 2. 9. Crompt. Jur. 222. Weſtm. 2. 25.

2. What ſhall be ſaid a Nuſans, or not.

A Nuſans may be unto a man by ſtopping, or annoying his Ways, Waters, Light, or Air, and that by Building, Diverting, Stopping, Digging, or the like: As if one ſet up or build a Wall againſt the Windows, and light of another mans Houſe; or build a Houſe, ſo that it over-hang his Neighbors, or make a Pig-ſtie, or a Chimney, or lay Dung or Carrion ſo near his Neighbors Houſe, that he is annoyed by it; theſe, and the like Acts are Nuſances, Cujus eſt ſolum, ejus eſt uſque ad cœlum. Co. 9. 54. 5. 101.

The erecting of Lime-kills, and Dye-houſes, may be a Nuſans to the Neighborhood.

If

If there be a High-way thorow a Copice, and the owner make Gates at both ſides to ſave the yong Sprigs, and a ſtranger travelling did unhang them, and cut them in peeces; and the owner brought Treſpaſs, and it was adjudged juſtifiable, and judgment againſt the Defendant. James and Hayward, B. R. Quarto Car. But it is no Nuſans to a man that hath a Mill upon a Water, that another Mill is builded upon the ſame Water by him, unleſs thereby his Water be ſtopt or turned, though he get away part of his Cuſtom by that means. Breo. cap. 36.

It is no Nuſans to build a new Pigeon-houſe, though the Neighborhood be annoyed by it.

It is no Nuſans to a Neighborhood, when a Butcher, or Chandler, or Brewer, doth ſet up his Trade, or Houſes for it, amongſt them. But a Nuſans may be by them, by laying of ſtinking heaps at the doors. Paſche, 5 Jac. B. R. But the building of a Brew-houſe, the keeping of a Chandler, or Butchers-ſhop in an inconvenient place to the offence of the Houſes or Gardens of Neighbors, may be a Nuſans. Trin. 13 Car. B. R.

It is no Nuſans to plant Coneys, whether a man hath any Warren or not; neither is this puniſhable any way, but he may kill them. Adjudged Hil. 39 Eliz. C. B. Rowleſthons caſe.

For Common Nuſances that are, or may be grievous to one as well as another, as in High-ways, and the like, the moſt proper and apt means of Remedy, and place of Redreſs, are the Seſſions, the Sheriffs Turns, and the Leets; for which ſee Courts. 3. The Remedy for this wrong.

If any caſt any Garbage, Dung, Intrails, or any other annoyance into the Ditches, Rivers, Waters, or other places within, or near any City, Burrough, or Town, the Suburbs thereof, in pain to be called by Writ before the Lord Chancellor, and to be puniſhed at his diſcretion. 12 Rich. 2. 13.

But for ſuch Nuſances as are more ſpecial to one mans Freehold, more then anothers, the party grieved muſt be thus relieved; if the Way, Water-courſe, or Conduit, be wholly ſtopt; and he whoſe Way, Water-courſe, or Conduit it is, be he a Freeholder of that thing, to which the Way, Water-courſe, or Conduit doth belong, he may either abate the Nuſans himſelf, or he may have an Aſſiſe of Nuſans, or a Quod Permittat againſt the party that doth the Nuſans. And if the party to whom the Nuſans is done, have onely a Leaſe for years of that to which the Way, Water, or Conduit doth belong, and the Way be wholly, or in part ſtopt, or if he have the Freehold, and the Way or Water be ſtopt in part onely; in this caſe the party wronged cannot have an Aſſiſe, but he muſt have an Action of the Caſe. Co. 5. 73. 33 Hen. 6. 26. Co. 9. 113. 5. 101. F. N. B. 18. 4. 42 Aſſ. pl. 1. 14 Hen. 8. p. ult. 4. Quod Permittat, what.

And if he that doth the thing, Alien the Houſe or thing by which the Nuſance is bred to another, the party grieved ſhall have a Queſtus eſt nobis for his Relief. 5. Queſtus eſt nobis, what.

For every ſpecial Nuſans, a man hath a double Remedy, either by Action, wherein he ſhall recover damages, and Judgment ſhall be that the Nuſans ſhall be removed, and thrown down, &c. as the cauſe doth require, or the party to whom it is done, or his Feoffee, or Alienee, if he ſell away his Land, to which the Nuſans is made, may demoliſh it, whether the Lands be in the hands of ſuch Alienee, or no, and that before any prejudice to them. But if he demoliſh it before this Action brought, he cannot after bring an Action; and if he do hanging the Action, the other may plead it in Bar of the Action; if after pleading, it ſeems, he ſhould have an Audita querela. Co. 9. 55. 5. 101. F. N. B. 185.

If the Nuſans be to a Frank-tenement, the party wronged, or his Heir, or Feoffee, may have a Quod permittat againſt the Actor, without any notice or requeſt before, to reform it; and againſt his Heir or Feoffee, after Requeſt made to him, to reform it. F. N. B. 124. Co. 5. 101. 9. 54. Dyer 313.

If a man have a Houſe near my Houſe, and he ſuffer it ſo ruinous, that it is like to fall on my Houſe; I may have a Writ De domo reparanda, and compel him to repair it by theſe means. Co. lib Inſt. 1 part, fol. 56.

It ſeems generally it is where any thing is done to the Nuſans of the Kings Tenants, or more particularly where any one doth incroach to himſelf, that he ought not in 6. Perpreſture, what.

any Juriſdiction, Land, or Franchiſe. Generally it is as often as any thing is done to the hurt of the Kings Tenement, the Kings Way, or of Common Waters, or of a City, &c. And moſt properly it is where there is a Houſe builded or incloſed, made of any part of the Kings Demeſns, or if a High-way, or a Publick Water, or Common Street, or ſuch like Publick things be taken in to private uſe. So that a Perpreſture is where one incroacheth, or makes that ſeveral to himſelf, which ought to be Common to many. Co. 1 *part of Inſt. fol.*277. 2 *part, fol.*38.

CHAP. CXVIII.

Of an Oath, Oat-Meal, Ordinary, Ordinances, Oyl, Oppreſſion, Obligation and Defeaſance.

Sect. 1. 1. Oath.

AS to an Oath and Swearing, theſe things are to be known.

1. That by Oaths of Witneſſes, is one way of Tryal, and Proof of Matters of Fact in Civil and Criminal Matters. And for this ſee Tryal.

2. Perjury and ſubornation of Perjury.

2. Perjury is a great offence by our Law, and to be ſeverely puniſhed: If it be by a Jury, in a Verdict, in a Civil Cauſe, it is puniſhable in an Attaint; for which ſee *Attaint. Co.*11.98.

3. For wilful Perjury, a man is to forfeit twenty pound, to ſuffer ſix moneths Impriſonment without Bail, and be ever after diſabled to give evidence in any Court of Record, until the Judgment given againſt him for that offence, be Reverſed by Attaint, or otherwiſe. And if he be not able to pay the Fine, he is to be ſet upon the Pillory in ſome Market-place, and to have both his Ears nailed. 5 Eliz. 9.

4. of an Obligation and Defeaſance.

AN Obligation is a Deed in writing, whereby one man doth binde himſelf to another to pay a ſum of money, or do ſome other thing; and he that makes this Deed, is called the Obligor, and he to whom it is made, is called the Obligee. Finches Ley 49. 1. Obligation, what. Obligor, Obligee.

And it is ſometimes Simple or Single, which is when it is to pay a ſum of money, or do ſome other thing, and when it is without any Defeaſance or Condition in, or annexed to it, which alſo is ſometimes with a penalty called a Penal Bill, and ſometimes without a penalty: And this is that which is moſt properly called an Obligation, and ſometimes alſo it is called a Single Bill, or Single Bond; and ſometimes it is double or conditional, which is when it is attended upon, and accompanied with a Condition; and then it is ſaid to be a Bond containing a penalty with Condition to pay money, or do or ſuffer ſome act or thing, &c. And this Condition is ſometimes called a Defeaſance, and then eſpecially when it is (as ſometimes it is) in another Deed or Inſtrument; for moſt commonly it is inſerted into the ſame Deed, wherein the Obligation being the other part of it, is contained: And then alſo it is either ſubſcribed under the Obligation, or included within the body of it, or indorſed upon the back of it. And quacunque viâ if the Condition be performed, the penalty is ſaved; if not, the penalty is forfeit. Co. ſuper Littl. 172. 2. The kindes. 3. What ſhall be ſaid a good Obligation in his Original Creation, or not.

An Obligation may be made upon Parchment or Paper, and in looſe Parchment or Paper; or in a peece of Paper or Parchment ſowed in a Book, and either way it is good. But if it be made on a Tally, peece of Wood, or any other thing but Paper or Parchment, albeit it be ſealed and delivered, yet it is void. Broo. Oblig. 67. 30. Trin. 49 Eliz. B.R. And it may be made in the firſt, or in the third perſon (notwithſtanding the Statute of 38 *Ed.*3.4. which doth intend onely Obligations made beyond the Sea.) Firſt, for the manner and form of it; and what words are ſufficient to make an Obligation.

Sea.) And therefore an Obligation ſo made, as Memorandum quod A. de B. debet C. de D. 10*l. In cujus, &c.* is good. Co. ſuper Littl. 229. Fitz. Obligat. 9.

Albeit the beſt manner and form of an Obligation, is that which is moſt uſuall; yet any words in a writing, ſealed and delivered, whereby a man doth prove and declare himſelf to have another mans money, or to be indebted to him, will make a good Obligation; and therefore if a man by Deed ſay but this, Memorandum that J. A. of B. do ow to C. of D. 20l to be paid at Eaſter next: Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. have had of C. of D. 20l. of which there is 10l. behinde, [or of which I ow him 10l.] Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. have received of C. of D. 20l. to be repaid him again. Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. do grant to ow [or to pay] C. of D. 20l. Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. do promiſe to pay C. of D. 20l. Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. will pay to C. of D. 20l. Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. have had twenty pound of the money of C. of D. Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. have borrowed of C. of D. 20l. Or memorandum, that J. A. of B. do binde my ſelf to C. of D. that he ſhall receive of me twenty pound: All theſe, and ſuch like, are good Obligations. Dyer 21,22,23. Co. 9.53. 37 H. 6.9. 22 Ed. 4.22. Kelw. 34. 21 Ed 4.39. 11 H. 7.6. So if one ſay, memorandum, that J. A. of B. binde my ſelf to C. of D. that he ſhall receive twenty pound by the hands of J. S. when K. doth come to his houſe, and at Michaelmas then next following five pound; this is a good Obligation, and the words [by the hands of J. D.] are void, Broo. Oblig. 56. So if one binde himſelf thus, Memorandum, that J. A. of B. ow to C. of D. twenty pound; for payment of which, I binde my ſelf and my goods; this is a good Obligation, and will binde the perſon, but not his goods, Broo. Oblig. 16. So if one by Deed, Covenant or Promiſe to do a thing, and then uſeth theſe words, Ad quam quidem promiſſionem perimplendam obligo me in 20l. this is a good Obligation for twenty pound, Broo. Oblig. 52. Dyer 6. So if one binde himſelf thus, Memorandum, that J. A. of B. am bound to C. of D. to deliver him twenty quarters of Corn by a day, Ad quod performandum obligo me, without more words; this is a good Obligation, Broo. Obl. 40. 79. So if one binde himſelf thus, Memorandum, that J. A. of B. binde my ſelf to pay C. of D. ten pound at Eaſter, and if I fail to pay it then, I do grant to pay him twenty pound; this is a good Obligation for the twenty pound, if he fail to pay the ten pound: And ſome ſay he may recover both the twenty pound, and the ten pound, Foxals caſe, 9 Jac. B. R. So if one binde himſelf thus, Memorandum, that in conſideration of a Bill of fifty pound, wherein J. S. is bound for me to I. D. for payment of twenty pound: I do binde my ſelf in twenty pound to the ſaid J. S. to ſave him harmleſs from all Actions of the ſame; this is a good Obligation, and if I. D. ſue J. S. the Bill is forfeit. Or if one binde himſelf thus, Be it known, &c. that I. A. of B. do ow unto C. of D. the ſum of fourteen pound, to be paid at the Feaſt of, &c. together with ſix pounds, which I ow him upon Bills and Recogniſances, ſubſcribed with my hand; this is a good Bill, but it is good for no more but the fourteen pound, and not for the ſix pound; for the words do onely import the time of payment of the ſix pounds. If one make a writing in the form of a Statute, which the Party doth Seal, and afterwards legally deliver; but it is not ſealed by the Kings and the Majors Seal, according to the Statute, albeit this be not a good Statute, yet it may be a good Obligation, Trin. 37 Eliz. B. R. Fitz Accompt 79.

If one binde himſelf to pay money, or do any other thing, and afterward doth adde this clauſe in the Deed, Et ad majorem hujus rei ſecuritatem inveni A de B, & C de D fide juſſores, quorum unuſquiſque obligat ſe in toto & in ſolid'. And theſe two do alſo ſeal and deliver the Deed; it ſeems this is a good Obligation to binde them, albeit there be no other words in the Deed, Perk. ſect. 158. Fitz Oblig. 1.

If an Obligation be made to J. D. to the uſe of I. S. this is a good Obligation for I. S. in Equity, and ſome have ſaid he may Releaſe it; but this is much to be doubted; for it is certain I. S. cannot ſue the Obligor in his own name, but when he hath cauſe of Sute he may compel I. D. in Chancery to ſue the Obligor, Br. Obl. 72. Cromp. Jur. 63.

If

If A. of B. binde himſelf to C. of D. to pay twenty pound, and ſay not when; yet the Obligation is good, and the money is due preſently. So if the Obligation be Solvendum nunquam, or ſolvendum at Doomſday, the Obligations are good, and the ſolvendum void, and the money is due preſently. So if A. of B. binde himſelf to C. of D. in twenty pound, ſolvendum A de B. [where it ſhould be ſolvendum C de D,] the Obligation is good, and the ſolvendum void, Broo. Obl. 47. 14 H. 8. 29. 21 Ed. 3. 46. 4 Ed. 4. 29. If the Obligation be made thus, [Obligo me, &c.] leaving out theſe words following [hæredes, Executores & Adminiſtratores;] this is a good Obligation, and the Executors and Adminiſtrators, but not the Heir, are bound by it. And if it be made thus, [Solvendum to the Obligee & ſucceſſoribus ſuis] and not Executoribus, &c.] this is a good Obligation, and the Executors and Adminiſtrators, and not the Succeſſors, except it be in caſe of a Corporation, ſhall take advantage of it, Dyer 13. Broo. Oblig. 15. 68. An Obligation may be good, albeit it contain falſe or incongruous Latin or Engliſh, or Latin be put for Engliſh, or è contra, if the intent of the parties may ſufficiently appear: And therefore if one be bound by the name of Johannes for Johannem, or one binde himſelf in octogenta, for octoginta libris, or in ſeptungentis for ſeptuagintis libris, in wiginti for viginti libris, in ſewteen for ſeaventeen pounds, in quinquegentis for quingentis libris, in ſeptuageſſimo for ſeptuaginta libris, in ſexingentis for ſexcentris libris, in quinquageſſimis, or quinque decies for quinquaginta libris, in octogenta for octoginta libris, or in viginti livers for viginti libris, in viginti nobilibus for twenty nobles, or in octigenta libris for octoginta libris, or quinginta libris for quinquaginta libris, or the like; theſe miſpriſions will not hurt the Obligations, for they are good notwithſtanding. But if one by the Obligation binde himſelf in quinqueagentis libris, or in quinqeagentis libris, or in quinagentis libris, or in ſegintis libris; theſe Obligations are void, for in theſe caſes the meaning is ſo uncertain, that it cannot be diſcerned, and no Averment will ſerve to ſupply it in this caſe. So if an Obligation be dated 23 die Aprilie, in ſtead of Aprilis, this is a good Obligation, and this miſtake will not hurt. See Brownl. Rep. 1 part, 62. 64. 63. 122. 2 part, 208. Co. 10. 133. Fitz Oblig 12. 2 H. 4. 14. Adjudged Vernons caſe, M. 13 Jac. Co. B. Grays caſe, 5 Jac. B. R. M. 10 Car. B. R. Adjudged Fitz Hugh verſus Bridges, 3, 4 Eliz. Co. B. Paris caſe, M. 4 Jac. B R. Trin. 21 Jac. Nowels caſe. And if an Obligation have not date, or a falſe and impoſſible date, or have but half the date, as the year of our Lord onely; or if it want theſe words, In cujus rei, &c. or the like, if it be ſealed and delivered, it is a good Obligation, Co. 2. 5. See Fait, Numb 5.

A Single Obligation may be to pay money, or to do any other thing that is lawful and poſſible, and ſuch Obligations are good. But if the Obligation be to binde a man to do a thing unlawful or impoſſible, it is void; and therefore if one binde himſelf in an Obligation to kill a man, burn a houſe, maintain a Sute, or the like, it is void. So if the Obligation be made for maintenance, or to that end, or if it be made purſuant to, and in execution of an uſurious contract, or the like, it is void. So if an Obligation be made againſt the Statute of 23 H. 6. it is void. So if one binde himſelf in an Obligation, and the matter thereof is altogether uncertain, or inſenſible, it is void; but if there be any reaſonable certainty in it, it is good enough. So if one binde himſelf to go to Rome in three days, under pain of twenty pound, this is void, Co. 10. 110. See Fait or Deed, Numb. 51. See more Infra. Secondly, For the Matter and Subſtance of it.

The Condition of an Obligation may be either in the ſame, or in another Deed, and it may be indorſed of the back of the Obligation, ſubſcribed under it, or contained within it; but the beſt way to make it, is the uſual way, viz. The Condition of this Obligation is ſuch, &c. and yet if it be otherwiſe, it may be good; for if an Obligation be made from A. to B. and on the back of the ſame, theſe words are indorſed [That whereas the within bounden A. is bound to B in 20*l. yet* B. willeth and granteth, that if A. pay to B. 10*l. at* Eaſter, that then the Obligation ſhall be void] it ſeems this is a good Condition: So if in the cloſe of an Obligation of 20*l.* theſe words be added, [That if A. (the Obligor) pay 10*l. to* B. (the Obligee) at Eaſter, that the Obligation ſhall be void,] this is a good Condition. So if an Obligation be made from A. to B. of 20*l.* and theſe words are ſubſcribed, [Now therefore if the Obligor 4. What ſhall be ſaid a good Condition of an Obligation, or not. First, For the Manner and Frame of it.

pay five pound quarterly for four years, then it is agreed that the Obligation ſhall be void,] this is a good Condition. So if a ſingle Obligation be made from A. to B. of twenty pound, and after the Obligation is made, B. doth by another Deed grant, that if A. pay him ten pound at Eaſter, the Obligation ſhall be void; this is a good Condition or Defeaſance: But if A. do binde himſelf in an Obligation to B. of twenty pound, and after B. doth binde himſelf in another Obligation to A. to perform the Covenants of an Indenture; and in this ſecond Obligation, there is a Proviſo that B. ſhall not ſue upon the firſt Obligation till ſuch a time; this is not a good Condition, Plow. 141. 21 *H.*6.51. Fitz Bar 157. *Broo. Obl.*89. Fitz Bar 265. Paſche, 8 Jac. B. Simpſons caſe, 21 *H.*6.51. 26 *H.*8.9. A Bill was made thus, [Memorandum, That J. A. ow to B. twenty pound; for payment whereof I binde my ſelf, &c. In witneſs, &c.] And after this, is ſubſcribed theſe words, [Memorandum, That the ſaid A. be not compelled to pay the ſaid twenty pound, until he recover thirty pound upon an Obligation againſt C, &c. This is a good Defeaſance. *Brownl. 2 part, f.*98. If A. be bound to B. in twenty pound, with Condition, that if B. do not bring A. a horſe before Eaſter, that the Obligation ſhall be void; this is a good Condition. And if the Obligee will have advantage of it, he muſt perform the thing, Et ſic de ſimilibus, 26 *H.*8.8. So if A. be bound in an Obligation to B. in twenty pound, with Condition, that if B. ſhall bring twenty load of Wood to the houſe of A. that A. ſhall pay him the twenty pound, or that A. ſhall pay him twenty pound when B. ſhall bring him twenty load of Wood to his houſe; theſe are good Conditions, and the thing muſt be done before the money is to be paid, *Broo. Count.*69. If the Condition of an Obligation be, That if A. (the Obligor) do not pay to B. (the Obligee) ten pound, that the Obligation ſhall be void, this is a good Condition: But it ſhall be taken according to the words, and therefore the Obligor it not to pay it: And if he be ſued, he may plead performance of the Condition in the not paying of it, *Broo. Oblig.*42. If theſe words be omitted in the cloſe of the Condition [That then the Obligation to be void;] the Condition is void, but it doth not hurt the Obligation, for that remains ſingle: But if the next words, viz. [Or elſe ſhall ſtand in force] be omitted, the Condition is never the worſe; for as the addition of them doth nothing adde to, ſo the omiſſion of them doth nothing detract from the ſtrength of the Obligation. Curia B.R. Pa. 9 Jac. Truman & Parrams caſe.

Secondly, For matter and ſubſtance of it;

The Condition of an Obligation, may be to do any lawful or poſſible thing, as to pay money, deliver Goods or Cattle, acknowledge a Statute, enter into an Obligation, make a Releaſe, make an Eſtate, ſurrender an Eſtate, make Reparations for quiet enjoying, to ſave harmleſs, to defend a Title, to perform Covenants, to abide an Award, to perform a Will, to give ſo much Land or Money in Legacy, to purchaſe Lands, to appear in a Court, to marry another, not to ſue, not to meddle with an Executorſhip, not to revoke a Letter of Attorney, not to be Surety, not to play at Cards or Dice, or any ſuch like thing, and ſuch a Condition is good. So alſo it ſeems a Condition, that a man ſhall not ſell his Goods, is good: But when the matter or thing to be done by the Condition, is unlawful or impoſſible, or the Condition it ſelf is repugnant, inſenſible, or incertain, the Condition is void, and in ſome caſes the Obligation alſo. See Weſt. Symb. Paſche, 8 Jac. Co. B. And herein, theſe differences are to be obſerved. 1. When the thing enjoyned, or reſtrained to be, or not to be done by the Condition, is ſuch a thing in his own nature, as the Commiſſion or Omiſſion thereof, is malum in ſe, there not onely the Condition, but the whole Obligation alſo is void ab initio:

Againſt Law.

And therefore if one be bound in an Obligation with Condition that he ſhall kill a Man, burn a Houſe, do any other Felony, commit any Treſpaſs, maintain any Sute unlawfully; or (being an Officer) that he ſhall take Fees by Extortion, or that he (being a Sheriff, &c.) ſhall let a Priſoner eſcape, or that he ſhall ſave the Obligee harmleſs againſt an unlawful Deed, or that he ſhall not ſave his Land, or that he (being a Tradesman) ſhall not uſe his Trade, (and yet it ſeems a Condition, that a man ſhall not uſe his Trade in one place, or at one time, or if he do that, he ſhall pay ſo much by the year unto another, is not a Condition againſt Law,) or that a man (being an Officer and an Officer pro bono publico) ſhall not exerciſe his office, or the like; this Condition is void, and makes the Obligation, and ſo the whole Deed void. But when the thing to be, or not to be done by the Condition, is ſuch a thing as the Omiſſion or Commiſſion thereof in its nature is not malum in ſe; but onely againſt ſome maxim of Law, as that a man ſhall make a Feoffment to his own wife, or is but malum prohibitum onely, as that a man ſhall erect a Cottage contrary to the Statute of 31 Eliz. or is repugnant to the ſtate, as that a Feoffee of Land ſhall not alien it, or take the profits of it, or that a Tenant in Tail ſhall not ſuffer a Recovery of his Land, or the like; in theſe caſes the Conditions onely are void, and the Obligations remain ſingle and without a Condition. And yet perhaps, if the Obligors be ſued upon theſe Obligations, they may have relief in Equity. See Brownl. 1 part, 63,64,65, 70, 71. 2 part, 281. Co. 10. 101. 11. 53. ſuper Littl. 206. Dyer 304. Plow. 64. Fitz Oblig. 13. See Condition and Covenant. March 191. pl. 238. See Covenant, Numb. 4. Equity.

2. When the matter or thing to be done by the Condition, is ſuch a thing as in its nature is impoſſible to be done at the time of the making of the Obligation, there the Obligation is good, and the Condition onely is void. And therefore if I be bound in an Obligation with Condition, that I ſhall ſtand to the Award of certain perſons, &c. Provided, That the Award be made before the tenth day of May next; and provided, that I have warning fifteen days before the tenth of May, and this Obligation is made the nineth of May; this is a void Condition. And ſo if I be bound in an Obligation with Condition, that I will go to Rome within three days, or that I will make an Eſtate of White-acre in Dale worth ten pound per annum, when reverâ it is worth but five pound per annum, or that I will be non-ſute in ſuch an Action, or aſſure ſuch a peece of ground, when in truth there is no ſuch Action, or peece of ground; this Condition is void, and the Obligation remains ſingle and good. Perk. ſect. 735. Co. ſuper Littl. 207. Fitz Oblig. 17. 27 H. 8. 29. 21 Ed. 4. 54. 42 Ed. 3. 6. So if the Condition be, That whereas A. had a Judgment againſt B. the Obligor for twenty pound, and the Obligee hath acknowledged ſatisfaction, if therefore the Obligor ſhall before ſuch a day get a Warrant from A. whereby the Obligee may be ſaved harmleſs for the ſame acknowledgment, That then, &c. this Condition is void, and as it ſeems, the Obligation alſo, for that it is not onely impoſſible, but againſt Law alſo. But when the thing to be done by the Condition, is a thing poſſible at the time of the making of the Obligation, and after by matter ex poſt facto, by the Act of God, the Act of the Law, or the Act of the Obligee, it is become impoſſible; in this caſe the Obligation and the Condition both are become void: And therefore if a man be bound with a Condition, that he ſhall appear the next Term in ſuch a Court, and before the day the Obligor dieth; hereby the Obligation is ſaved. So if A. be bound to B. that J. S. ſhall marry Jane G. by ſuch a day, and before the day, B. himſelf marry with Jane G. hereby the Obligation is diſcharged, and B. ſhall never take advantage of it. Hillary, 17 Jac. B. R. 21 Ed. 4. 53. Impoſſible.

3. When the Condition of an Obligation is ſo inſenſible and incertain, that the meaning cannot be known, there the Condition onely is void, and the Obligation good: As if an Obligation be made by A. to B. with condition, that A. ſhall keep B. without damage againſt J. S. for ten pound, in which the Obligee is bound to the Obligor; this Condition is void, and the Obligation ſingle. So if the Condition be, That A. ſhall pay his part of the ſums of money, that ſhall be levied for the trying of the Cuſtoms of M, unleſs the word [levied] be uſed for taxed in that Countrey, the Condition is inſenſible and void. So if A. be bound to B. with Condition to ſave him harmleſs, and ſay not for what, or againſt whom; this Condition is void, and the Obligation ſingle: But if any ſenſe or certainty may be made of it, the Obligation and Condition ſhall be both good. Paſche, 9 Jac. B. R. Inſenſible, Incertain.

4. When the Condition of an Obligation in the matter of it, is Repugnant to the Obligation it ſelf, there the Condition is void, and the Obligation good: And therefore if the Condition of an Obligation be, That the Obligee ſhall not have benefit by the Obligation, or that he ſhall not ſue for the money in the Obligation, or the like; this Condition is void, and the Obligation ſingle: And yet this by a Defeaſance made after the Obligation may be done. 7 Hen. 6. 44. 21 H. 7. 24, 30. See Defeaſance. Repugnant.

5. When the thing to be done, by the Condition is to be done beyond the Sea, it hath been held that the Condition is void, and the Obligation ſingle, becauſe the thing was not triable here. See the Statutes of 10 Hen. 6. 14. 21 Ed. 4. 10. Not triable.

But

But it ſeems the Law is otherwiſe now, and that the matter is triable here, and the Condition good, Trin. 7 Jac. B. R. And in all other caſes where a Deed in general is void for Miſnoſmer, Diſability, or otherwiſe, there an Obligation is void, Fitz. Oblig. 2. 11.

All Bonds with Conditions for the enjoying of Spiritual Livings, contrary to the Statute of 13 Eliz. 20. are void by the ſtatute of 14 Eliz. 11.

If any Ladies or Gentlewomen be drawn by flattery, or threatning to enter into any Obligation, Simple or Conditional, to pay any money not truly due, they may be relieved by a courſe in the Chancery, for which ſee 31 *H.*6. 39.

5. When an Obligation ſhall be void, for that it is made to another, and not to the Sheriff, or to the Sheriff in another manner then is appointed by the Statute of 23 *H.*6. 10.

No Sheriff or his Officers ſhall take any Obligation, by colour of their Offices of any perſon in their Ward, but onely to themſelves, and in the name of their Office, with Condition, with Sureties ſufficient, that the priſoner ſhall appear at the day in the Writ; and all others taken in any other form ſhall be void. And perſons that are in his Ward, by Execution, Condemnation, Capias Utlagatum, Excommunication, Surety of the Peace, or ſome other ſpecial caſe, being ſent for by a Juſtice for Felony, or the like, may not be bailed; and others that are arreſted on a Capias for Debt, or an Indictment, or otherwiſe by Writ, Bill, or Warrant that are Mainpernable, muſt be bailed. 23 *H.*6.10.

For the better underſtanding of which Statute, theſe things muſt be obſerved, That ſuch Obligations as differ and vary from the form of this Statute in words and circumſtances onely are good, notwithſtanding this Statute. And therefore if a Priſoner make an Obligation with a Condition, to appear and anſwer in a Plea of Debt, and ſay no more, nor do ſet down the cauſe of the Debt; this is a good Obligation. Villars caſe, M. 9 Jac. B.R. And if the Sheriff take an Obligation with one Surety onely, or with two Sureties that are inſufficient, or with two Sureties of another County; this is a good Obligation. *Co.*10.101. So if the Debt for which the party is arreſted, be three hundred pound, and the Sheriff take an Obligation of one hundred pound for his appearance; this is a good Obligation, for in theſe caſes it is left to his diſcretion, and it doth concern him onely. So if the Condition of the Obligation be for appearance Menſe paſche, omitting proximè futuro, yet it is a good Obligation. Villars caſe. So if the party be arreſted by an Attachment out of the Star-Chamber upon a contempt, and the Condition of the Obligation is, That if the Obligee ſhall appear, and then, and there ſhall anſwer a contempt by him committed againſt the King and his Council, this is a good Obligation. Dyer 364. And if the party that doth make the Obligation be not in the Sheriffs cuſtody, albeit the Obligation be made in any other manner, eſſentially differing from the form preſcribed in the Statute, if it be not againſt the Common Law, it is a good Obligation. And therefore, if when a Capias Utlagatum be delivered to the Sheriff againſt a man, the Sheriff take Bond of him for his Fees, and his Travel; this Bond if it be not within this Statute, yet it is againſt the Common Law, and therefore void, becauſe it is by colour of Extortion. Antleys caſe, Hil. 7 Jac. Co. B. But where the Obligation, whether it be ſingle, or double, made by a priſoner, doth eſſentially differ by addition, alteration, or diminution from the form preſcribed in the Statute, there the Condition and Obligation both are void. *Co.*10.101. And therefore if ſuch a priſoner make an Obligation to any other beſides the Sheriff, albeit he to whom it be made be called Sheriff, or if he make an Obligation to the Sheriff himſelf, and not by the name of his Office; or if he make an Obligation to him by the name of his Office, and doth not rightly name him, (Nowels caſe, Trin. 21 Jac. Curia.) as if he make it to J. S. Vicecomiti in Comitatu prædicto, whereas it ſhould be De Comitatu prædicto: All theſe Obligations are void by this Statute. And if the Sheriff take an Obligation of a Priſoner for his Appearance, in caſe where he is not bailable by the Statute, and ſo let him go free; or if he take an Obligation of a Priſoner that is bailable for his Appearance, and doth inſert other things into the Condition, as to pay money for Meat, Drink, or Fees, or the like; or if he deliver a man in Execution, and take Bond of him to ſave him harmleſs; or to be a true priſoner: All theſe and ſuch like Obligations as theſe, are void by this Statute.

If

If a man be a priſoner in Ludgate upon a Capias utlagatum, and the Gaoler take an obligation of him with two ſureties, with condition to ſave him harmeleſſe, and to diſcharge his fees, and to yield his body at all times upon Summons &c. this is a void obligation, as well againſt the ſureties, as againſt the principall. If the under-Marſhall of the Kings Bench take an obligation of one in execution and a ſtranger with condition to ſave him harmleſſe of all eſcapes, and ſo ſuffer the priſoner to goe at large, this is a voyd obligation. If the Sheriff of Bedford having a priſoner by force of an Execution, let him goe at large, and take an obligation of him, with condition that he ſhall keep the Sheriff without damage againſt the King and the plaintiffe, and be at all times at the commandement of the Sheriff as a true Priſoner, and appear before the Iuſtices of the King at Weſtminſter &c. this is a void obligation. Dier. 118, 119. Dier. 324. Plow. 61. 62.

If a man be a Priſoner to the Sheriff for ſuſpition of Felony, and after a writ comes to him to have all his priſoners at a certain day before the Iuſtices of Goale delivery of the ſame County, and thereupon the Priſoner doth make a ſingle obligation to the Sheriff to appear before the Iuſtices the day of the writ, this is a void obligation, becauſe it is ſingle and not with condition. And if the Sheriff baile not one bailable by a ſingle obligation, it ſeems this is a void obligation. Fitz. Oblig.

A ſingle obligation is alwayes taken moſt in advantage of the obligee and againſt the obligor, but it is otherwiſe of the condition of an obligation, For this is alwayes taken moſt in advantage of the obligor, and againſt the obligee: 10 H. 7. 1. 16. 6 How a ſingle Obligation ſhall be taken.

If two, three, or more bind themſelves in an obligation thus, Obligamus nos, and ſay no more, the Obligation is and ſhall be taken to be joint only and not ſeverall; but if it be thus, Obligamus nos & utrumque noſtrum; or obligamus nos & unumquemque noſtrum; or obligamus nos & quemlibet noſtrum; or obligamus nos & alterum noſtrum; in all theſe caſes the Obligation is both joint, and ſeverall, ſo as in theſe caſes the obligee may ſue al the obligors together, or all of them apart at his pleaſure, but it ſeems he may not ſue ſome of them and ſpare the reſt, but he muſt ſue them al together, or all apart by ſeverall Precipes, and in this caſe he may have ſeverall Judgements and ſeverall executions againſt the obligors, and take all their bodies in execution, but he ſhall have ſatisfaction but once, or from one of them only, for after he hath been ſatisfied by one, the reſt ſhall be diſcharged. But in the firſt caſe where the obligation is joynt and not ſeveral, the obligee muſt ſue all the obligors together, for he cannot ſue one alone with effect without the reſt, unleſs it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes, as where one of the obligors alone doth ſeale the deed, or where all of them do ſeale, but one of them is an Infant, a woman covert, a monk, or the like, or where one of them is dead, for in theſe caſes one or ſome of them may be charged without the reſt. But otherwiſe the Plaintiff cannot proceed in his ſuit againſt one, or ſome of them without the reſt, except the defendant give him advantage, for howſoever the ſuit be well begun, for when one or ſome of them alone is, or are ſued, it ſhall not be intended that the reſt are living, untill it be ſhewed by the other party, yet the defendant is not bound to anſwer, unleſs the reſt be ſued alſo; and therefore in this caſe he or they that is or are ſued alone, are thus to take advantage of it. viz., to ſhew the matter to the Court, and to plead in abatement of the writ; for if he appear and ſhew it not, but plead non eſt factum, or the like, to the obligation, the Iury muſt find againſt him, and he will be charged with the whole debt. And ſo alſo if one appear, and the other make default and is outlawed, it ſeems he that doth appear muſt anſwer all. See Brownl. 1 part. 208. If an obligation be, we bind us or either of us, this is joint & ſeverall at the Election of the obligee. Brownl. 1 part. 121. Dier 19. 310. Co. 5. 119. 9. 53. old N. B. 62. *Broo. Executors and Adminiſtrators ſhall be bound by the obligation of the obligor, albeit they be not named: but the heire of the obligor ſhall not be bound by the obligation, unleſſe he be named in the obligation, viz. obligo me, haredes &c. Dier. 14. 271. Executors. Heire.

If an obligation be made to one and his heires, or to one and his ſucceſſors; the Executors and adminiſtrators, not the heire, or ſucceſſor, ſhall take advantage of it. See before.

If one binde himſelf in an obligation of 200l. to A. and B. ſolvend. 100l to A and 100. to B. and A. die, it ſeems the executors of A. ſhall not have 100l but that B. ſhall have the whole 200l ſed quære. Dier 350.

If one binde himſelf by obligation to I, S. to pay him an 100l when K. doth come to his houſe, and at Michaelmas then next following 100l. more; Michaelmas then next following ſhall be taken for next following the making of the obligation, and not next following the comming of K. to his houſe. *Broo. If one bind himſelf to pay mony upon a ſingle obligation, and doth not ſay when; in this caſe it muſt be paid preſently.

If one bind himſelf by obligation to pay money at Michaelmas, and doth not ſay which Michaelmas, this ſhall be taken for Michaelmas next after the date of the obligation. And ſo alſo it ſhall be taken in the condition of an obligation. If one bind himſelf to pay at ſeverall day. See Brownlows rep. 1 part. 64. 2 part. 98, 99. Dier. 128. 7. How an Obligation with a condition, or the Condition of an Obligation ſhall bee taken. And how it muſt & ought to be performed.

If one bind himſelf to pay 20l in the yeare of our Lord which ſhall be 1599 in and upon the thirteenth of October next inſuing the date of the obligation; this ſhall be taken to be due the 13 of October 1599. and not next after the obligation. See more infra: Agree M. 9 Jac: B: R.

The condition of an obligation when it is doubtfull, is alwaies taken moſt favourably for the obligor, in whoſe advantage it is made, and moſt againſt the obligee, yet ſo as an equall and reaſonable conſtruction be made according to the minds of the parties, albeit the words ſound to a contrary underſtanding: Hill: 37 Eli: B: R: Sharplus verſus Hanckington: Dier: 14: 51:

Firſt in reſpect of the perſons that are to doe the thing.

If ſomething be by a condition to be done, and it is ſet down indefinitly, and not ſet down who ſhall do it, if the obligee hath more skill to do the thing then the obligor, it ſhall be done by him; otherwiſe it ſhall be done by the obligor: as if a tailor be bound to me in an obligation with condition, that if I bring him three yards of Cloth which ſhall be meaſured and ſhaped, and if he make me a Cloak of it &c: and it is not ſaid by whom it ſhall be ſhaped, this muſt be done by the Tailor. See more in Brownlows rep: 1: part 76: and in Acts: Perk Sect: 785:

Secondly in reſpect of the time when the thing is to be done.

If the condition of an obligation be to pay mony, or doe any other tranſitory act to the obligee himſelf, and no time is ſet for the doing thereof, but a place only; this regularly muſt be done in convenient time, and that without requeſt: So alſo in caſe where the thing to be done is in its nature locall, but yet ſuch a thing as may be done in the abſence of the obligee, and without his concurrence, as to acknowledge ſatisfaction on a Iudgement, make a leaſe for years or the like, it muſt be done in convienent time and that without requeſt. So alſo in caſe where the thing to be done is locall, and the concurence of both parties neceſſary therunto, yet when it is to be done to a ſtranger and not to the obligee, as if the condition be that the obligor ſhall make a Feoffment to I. S. it muſt be done in convenient time without requeſt.

But where the thing to be done is locall, and the concurrience of both parties neceſſary thereunto, and the act is to be done by the obligor himſelf, or by a ſtranger to the obligee himſelf, as where the condition is that the obligor, or a ſtranger, ſhall infeoffe the obligee; in this caſe the obligor, or the ſtranger ſhall have time to do it during his life, unleſſe the obligee do haſten it by requeſt, and if he requeſt it ſooner, then it muſt be done in convenient time after requeſt made. And yet if the thing to be done, be to be done wholly by the obligor, or a ſtranger, and doth nothing concern the obligee, as where the condition is that the obligor ſhall goe to Rome, or that I. S: ſhall preach at Pauls Croſs, or the like; in the firſt caſe it may be done at any time during the life of the obligor, and in the laſt caſe it may bee done at any time during the life of I. S. and requeſt in this caſe ſhall not haſten it. See Brownl. 1. part. 73, 74.

If one be bound to pay 10l or to enfeoffe one upon the return of I. S. from Rome, in this caſe if I. S. die before he return from Rome, there the obligation is ſaved though the 10l be not paied. But if it be to pay 10l or to enfeoffe before Michelmas, if the obligor dye before Michaelmas, his executors muſt pay the 10l. By Popham Juſtice, Goldsb. 192.

If

If an obligation be with condition to grant a rent, or an annuity to the obligee during his life, to be paid at Easter, and no time is set for the doing of it; this rent must be granted before Easter next after the obligation, or else the obligation will be forfeit. And if the condition be to grant an Advowson, and no time is set for the doing thereof; It must be done before the Church become voyd, or otherwise the obligation shall be forfeit. *Co.*2.80. *super Litt.*208.

If the condition be to do a thing upon a day in the yeare, and there be two daies of that name in the yeare; in this case it seems it must be done that day that is furthest off from the time of the making of the obligation, especially if that day be the more notorious of the two daies. *Dier.*77.

If the condition be to pay 10l. the eleventh of May next following, and the obligation is dated the 5 of May; in this case the money must be paid the 11 day of the same Month of May, and not of the next Month of May. *Adjudg. M.*20. Jac. B. R. Prescots Case.

If one be bound upon the Feast day of St. Michael to pay money upon the Feast day of St. Michael next coming; this shall be understood the 12. month after, and not that very day so if one be bound in Lent to pay money in the 4 week of Lent next to come, this shall be paid that Lent come 12 Month. Goldsb. 137. *Pl.*40.

If the condition be to permit the obligor to thresh and cary away the Corn in the Barne of the obligee from time to time and at all times convenient, in this case the oblige shal have time, for any time of continuanceas more then two or three years&c: but otherwise perhaps if the words be [within time convenient] but he cannot take it a way on the Sabboth day or in the night, but he shal break his Bond. Goldsb.77.pl.8:

If the Condition be to stand to the award of I. S. and I. S. award money to be paid, but set no time for the payment of it; this must be paid in convenient time, else the obligation shall be forfeit. 22 *Ed.*4.25.

If one be bound to me in an obligation with condition, that if I enfeoffe him of White acre, he will pay me 10l; but doth not say when; this must be done assoon as I make him the Feoffment. So if one be bound to me that if the goods I have delivered to B. shall be lost, that C. shall satisfie me for them, and doth not say when; this shall be presently after the loosing. *Perk. Sect.*797.799.

If the condition be to pay I. S. money when he shall come to the age of 21 years; in this case it must be paid the very day I. S. doth come to his full age, and paiment after is not a sufficient performance of the condition. *N.*2 Jac. B. R. Cranfenet Morses Case.

If the condition be to come at a day to such a place to do a thing, and the thing cannot be done without the concurrence of the other partie; in this case the obligor must stay for the very last instant of the day for his coming; and it seems also he must stay at the place all the day long. 39 El. B. R. Fitz. Barre 92.

If the condition be to pay a rent at Michaelmas or within 20 daies after, the obligation is not forfeit before the 20 daies be past. *Adiudg. pas.*39 Eli.

If one be to do a thing on a day certaine, he may doe it any part of the day whiles the light doth last. And if the Condition be to doe a thing by, or before a day, it may be done the last instant of the day before, and it is sufficient. Broo. Condition. 145. *Dier.*17.7 *Ed.*4.3.

If the condition of an obligation be to pay money, or doe any like transitory act to the obligee on a day certaine, but no place is set down where it shall be done; in this case it must be done to the person of the obligee whersoever he be; and for this purpose, the obligor must at his perill seek out the obligee, if he be intra quatuor mænia, otherwise the obligation is forfeit; but if the obligee be not within the Kingdom at the time when the thing is to be done, he is not bound to seek him, so neither is the obligation forfeit for not doing of the thing. So if one grant an Annuity to another, and doth not set down where it shall be paid, and gives a Bond with condition for the payment thereof; in this case it must be done to the person of the obligee where ever he be. And the like law is as it seems, where the thing to be done by the condition, is to be done by or to a stranger.

3. In respect of the place where the thing is to be done.

But when the thing the party is bound by the condition to do is Locall, he is not bound to goe any further, or to any other place, but to the place it ſelfe: And therefore if the condition be to make a Feoffment of a piece of Land, the party that is bound to doe it, is not bound to goe to any other place, but to the piece of land to doe it. And if a man make a Feoffment in Fee, or leaſe for life or years of land, rendring rent generally, and gives an obligation with condition for the payment of the rent, the Feoffee, or Leſſee, is not bound to goe to any place from the Land to ſeek the Feoffor or Leſſor to pay him this rent. Perk. Sect. 780, 781: 7 Ed 4. 4. 22 Ed. 4. 25 Litt. Sect. 340. 341.

If the condition be, to deliver 20 quarters of Corn ſuch a day to the obligee, and no place is ſet down where it ſhall be delivered; in this caſe it is ſufficient, if the obligor when the Corn is ready, doe give notice thereof to the obligee, and to wiſh him to appoint a place whereunto the obligor may bring it, and if he refuſe to appoint a place, it is at his own perill; or the obligor may bring the corn to the houſe of the obligee, (and this is the ſafeſt way) and if the obligee refuſe it, the condition is performed, and the obligation is diſcharged. Perk. Sect. 785.

4. In reſpect of the thing it ſelf to be done To perform Covenants.

If the condition be to perform all the Covenants in an Indenture; this ſhall be taken as well for the covenants in Law as for the covenants in Deed. Co. 4. 80. Dier. 257.

If a leaſe be made of a Manor excepting a Cloſe, and the Leſſee make an obligation to the Leſſor with condition, that the Leſſee ſhall perform omnia & ſingula in ſcripto prædicto contenta; by this the Cloſe ſhall be taken to be within the condition, ſo that if the Leſſee diſturb the Leſſor in the Cloſe excepted, this ſhall be a breach of the Condition. Plow. 67.

To make a Feoffment, Leaſe &c.

If the condition be, to make a feoffment to the Obligee of Land; in this caſe the Feoffment may be made with, or without writing, and if it be made by writing, it may be made without any warranty or covenants, and this will be a ſufficient performance of the condition. See covenant. Numb. 6.

To make a Releaſe, or other aſſurance.

If the condition be, that the obligor ſhall make a Leaſe to the obligee for 20 years and it is not ſet down when the Leaſe ſhall begin, it ſhall begin preſently. See more in Brownl. 1. part. 84: 94. 91. 92. Co. 6. 33.

If the condition be, that the obligor ſhal doe any act upon requeſt that the Counſel of the obligee ſhall think reaſonable, as for example, ſhall doe any act &c. for the releaſing of an obligation, wherein the obligee is bound to the obligor, and the obligee by adviſe of Counſel deviſeth and requeſteth a releaſe of all demands to the obligee, and to I. S. in this caſe the obligor may refuſe to ſeale it, albeit it be deviſed by the Counſel of the obligee, becauſe it is unreaſonable, for it muſt be a reaſonable act that the obligor by this condition is bound to doe. Dier, 218.

To pay money or aent.

If the condition be to pay 10l. at Michaelmas next, and 10l. yearly after, untill I. S. be made Knight; in this caſe albeit I. S. be made Knight before Michaelmas, yet the firſt 10l at Michaelmas muſt be paid. See more in Brownlows. Rep. 1. part. 104. 103 113. Adiudg. Hil 39 Eli Co. B.

If the condition bee thus: That if the obligor ſhall for ever pay yearly to the obligee &c: 10l. at the two uſuall Feaſts by equall portions, or if his heires ſhall at any time hereafter pay 100l. at one payment to the obligee, that then the obligation to be void; in this caſe albeit the obligor hath election, which of theſe two things to doe; yet becauſe the intent is apparant that one of theſe things ſhould be done, if therefore the 100l. be not paid before the firſt feaſt, the 10l muſt be paid yearly. Adjudge. M. 18. Jac. B. R. Harbert verſus Rocksey.

To warrant land and for quiet enjoying.

If the Condition of an obligation from A. to B be thus; that whereas A. hath ſold to B. a certain Meadow in Dale, that the ſaid A. ſhall warrant the ſame againſt Lord and King and all others, if the ſaid B. ſhall peaceably enjoy it to him, and his heires of the Lord of the Mannor of M. by the ſervices due after the cuſtom &c. in this caſe the ſubſtance of this being for quiet enjoying, it ſhall be extended that way, and albeit it be not ſaid what he ſhall warrant; yet it ſhall be taken the Land in queſtion, and the warranty ſhall be conſtrued to laſt only for the life of B. and not to extend to any new titles after the Covenant, eſpecially ſuch as are by the act and default of the obligee himſelf, as if he commit a forfeiture and the Lord enter, or the like. Dier. 42. 43.

If

If the condition be, That the Obligor ſhall ſufficiently prove ſuch a thing; this ſhall be taken for proof by enqueſt, and accordingly it muſt be done: But if the condition be that it ſhall be done by ſuch a time, or before ſuch perſons as when or where ſuch proof cannot be had, then it is otherwiſe. Where the word [proof] is put generally, it ſhall be underſtood of proof by Juſtice; but when the parties agree upon another form of proof, that ſhal prevail againſt that which is but inſtruction of Law. See more in Brownlows 1. pa. 33. 65. 2 part. 58. *Perk. If the condition of an Obligation be, That the Obligor ſhall infeoffe the Obligee and ſuch others, as he ſhall name by a day; in this caſe the Obligee muſt doe the firſt act, viz. name the others; otherwiſe the Obligor doth not forfeit his Obligation by the not doing of it: But if the condition be to infeoffe me, or ſuch others as I ſhall name before ſuch a day; in this caſe if I doe not name others, it ſeems he muſt enfeoff me before the day at his perill. 5 In reſpect of the manner and order of doing the thing and other matters.

If the condition be, to make ſuch a diſcharge in ſuch a court as the Obligee or his counſell ſhall adviſe; in this caſe the Obligee muſt firſt act, viz. adviſe and give notice of the adviſe to the Obligor before he is bound to doe the thing. But if the condition be to make ſuch a diſcharge in ſuch a Court ſuch a day, as the Judg of that Court ſhall adviſe, in this caſe the Obligor muſt at his perill procure the Judge to adviſe a diſcharge, and it muſt be done that very day, or the obligation will be forfeit, Co. 5. 23.

If the condition be, to pay 20l. to the Obligee when he doth come to London; in this caſe, the Obligee muſt doe the firſt act, viz. make known to the Obligor when he doth firſt come to London; for otherwiſe, it ſeems the Obligor is not bound to pay the money. *Per Iuſt. If the condition be, that the Obligor and his Heirs ſhall at any time upon requeſt made, doe any act, &c. that the Obligee ſhall require, &c. and the Obligee tender a Releaſe or other Deed to ſeale; in this caſe, if the Obligor, or his heir that is to ſeale the Deed, be an illiterate man, he may refuſe to ſeale it, untill he can get ſome body to read it unto him, but he may not refuſe or delay to ſeal it untill he can have a Lawyers adviſe upon it, but he will forfeit his Obligation, Co. 2. 3. 4. Dyer 337.

If

If the condition be, to doe any thing upon requeſt, the Obligor untill requeſt made is not bound to doe any thing towards it, neither can he forfeit his obligation till then.

And yet if in this caſe, the Obligor diſable himſelf to doe the thing he hath undertaken to doe upon requeſt before the requeſt made the obligation may be forfeit without any requeſt made. Perk. Sect. 77. Co. 5. 21.

If the condition bee, that the Obligor ſhall within a certain time ſurrender ſuch land of his for an Annuity, of ſo much as they ſhall agree upon, and they agree upon 10l. per annum; in this caſe the Obligor is not bound to make the ſurrender untill the Annuity be made and tendred unto him. 14. H. 8.

If the condition be, to deliver to the Obligee an obligation wherein the Obligee is bound &c. or to ſeale and deliver to the Obligee ſuch a releaſe of it as ſhall be deviſed by the counſell of the Obligee before Michaelmas, and the counſell doe not adviſe any Releaſe before Michaelmas; in this caſe the Obligor is diſcharged of the obligation, for the Obligee is to doe the firſt act. Hil. 37. *Eliz. If the condition be thus, That if the wife die before Michaelmas without iſſue of her body then living, that the obligation ſhall bee void; in this caſe [then living] ſhall relate ad proximum antecedens, and not to the death of the wife, and therefore if ſhe hath iſſue and die, and after before Michaelmas the iſſue dyeth alſo, the obligation is void. Dier. 17.

If the condition be, that if the Obligor ſhall waſte the goods of the Obligee (his maſter) and this waſte within three Moneths after due proof of it, either by confeſſion or otherwiſe be notified to the Obligor, that the Obligor ſhal ſatisfie the Obligee for it, and the Obligor doe confeſs the waſte under his hand and ſeale; in this caſe, it ſeems this proof though it be extrajudiciall, is ſufficient. Golds caſe M. 13. Ia.

Conditions Impoſſible.

When the condition of an obligation is to doe two things by a day, and at the time of Making of the obligation both of them are poſſible, but after and before the time when the ſame is to be done, one of the things is become impoſſible by the act of God, or by the ſole act and laches of the Obligee himſelf; in this caſe the Obligor is not bound to doe the other thing that is poſſible, but is diſcharged of the whole obligation. But if at the time of the making of the obligation one of the things is, and the other of the things is not poſſible to be done, he muſt perform that which is poſſible. And if in the firſt caſe one of the things become impoſſible afterwards by the act of the Obligor, or a ſtranger, the Obligor muſt ſee that he doe the other thing at his perill. And when the condition of an obligation is to doe one ſingle thing which afterwards before the time when it is to be done doth become impoſſible to be done in all or in part, the obligation is wholly diſcharged; and yet if it be poſſible to be done in any part, it ſhall be performed as neare to the condition as may be. Co. 5. 22. ſuper Lit. 207. Dyer 262. 15 H. 7. 2. 4. H. 7. 4.

If the condition be, to doe one of two things, as to make a Feoffment to me, or pay me 20l. in this caſe, if the Obligor doe either of them, it is ſufficient. But if the condition be in the copulative, as to enfeoff me and pay me 20l. in this caſe, the doing of one of them will not ſuffice, but he muſt doe both. 21 Ed. 3. 29.

If the condition be, to pay to A B and C 30l. a peece within a week after they come to 18 years of age, or within 40 dayes after their dayes of marriage after notice given thereof, which ſhall firſt happen; in this caſe, this notice muſt goe to both the parties, ſo that notice muſt be given when they are 18 years of age; otherwiſe, and untill notice given, it ſeems the Obligor is not bound to pay the money, See more in Condition Numb. 8. and Covenant Numb. 6 See more in Brownlows rep. 1 part. 77. *and in Covenant before. The

The matter of a condition of an obligation is ſometimes affirmative and compulſory and doth conſiſt of ſomething to be done, and ſometimes it is negative and reſtrictive and doth conſiſt of ſomething not to be done; the not doing in the firſt caſe, and doing in the latter caſe cauſeth the obligation to be forfeit, and the doing in the firſt caſe, and not doing in the latter, ſaveth the obligation. 8 When the Condition of an Obligation ſhall be ſaid to be performed and the Obligation ſaved, or not.

If one be bound in an obligation to me, with condition to enfeoff me of Land, and the obligor doe firſt make a Leaſe to me of it, and afterwards he doth make a Releaſe of it to me and my heirs this is a good performance of the condition. See more in Brownlows Rep. 1 part 62. Co. ſuper Lit. 207. plow. 6. 7. 17 Ed. 4. 3. To make a Feoffment.

If the condition be to make me a Feoffment of Land and he tender me a Feoffment, and I refuſe it; by this the condition is performed. So if the condition be, to make a Feoffment to my uſe, and when it is made I refuſe it; this is a good performance of the condition. But if a man bind himſelf in an obligation to me, with condition to make Feoffment to a ſtranger, and he tender the Feoffment to the ſtranger and he doth refuſe it; this is no good performance of the condition, but the obligation is forfeit. If the condition be, to enfeoff me and my wife, and he tender it to me, and I refuſe it; it ſeemes this is a good performance. *Perk. Sect. 784. Fitz. Barre 82. Perk. If one bind himſelf in an obligation to me, with condition to make me a Feoffment of the Mannor of Dale by a day, and he before the day, grant a rent-charge out of the ſame mannor to a ſtranger, and afterwards and before the day alſo, he doth make me a Feoffment of the land; this is a good performance of the condition, and the grant of the rent no breach thereof. But if the Obligor ſell away part of the Mannor before, or make a Feoffment to me but of a moity or a third part of the Mannor; this is no good performance of the condition. And if in this caſe, the Obligor before the day take a wife, and before the day make his Feoffment according to the condition, but the marriage doth continue untill after the day; in this caſe, it ſeems the condition is broken. 3 H. 7. 4. 4 H. 7. 4. Perk. Sect. 757.

If the condition be, that the Obligor ſhall enfeoff me of the Mannor of Dale, and he make a Feoffment of the Mannor of Sale, and I accept thereof; it ſeems this is no performance of the condition, and that my acceptance in this caſe will not help. So if the condition be to make me a Feoffment of Land, and he give me money, a horſe or the like in recompence of this, and I accept thereof; this is no good performance of the condition: And the like Law is in all caſes where the condition is to doe any collaterall thing, as to account, build a houſe, enter into a Recogniſance, or the like, and the Obligor doth give, and the Obligee accept ſome other thing in liew thereof: And ſo alſo it is where the condition is to make a Feoffment to a ſtranger, and the Obligor give, and the ſtranger take another thing in liew thereof. If the condition be to enfeoff me or my Heirs in the disjunctive, and the Obligor enfeoff me and my Heirs; this is a good performance of the condition; for it is impoſſible to enfeoff my Heirs whiles I live, and when two things are to be done by a condition, whereof the one is poſſible at the time of making the obligation, and the other is not; in this caſe it is ſufficient if he doe the thing which is poſſible. *14 H. 8. 15. If the condition be, to make me a Feoffment, or pay me 20l. if the Obligor doe either of them, it is ſufficient.

If the condition be, that the Obligor ſhall make me an eſtate of Land, and make the eſtate to another by my appointment; it ſeems this is no performance of the condition, Fitz. Barre. 55.

If the condition be, that the Obligor or his Feoffees in truſt ſhall make an eſtate to the Obligee ſuch a day, and the Feoffees doe it without the conſent of the Obligor; this is no performance of the condition. See more in Brown. 1 part. 69: 75. Trin. 17. Ia. Br.

To make further aſſurance.

If the condition be, to make further aſſurance, and the Obligor make further aſſurance upon condition, without the agreement of the other party; this is no good performance of the condition. Paſche 8: Ia. Co. B:

To ſave harmleſs.

If the condition be, to ſave me harmleſs from an Annuity wherewith my land is charged, and the Obligor doth pay the ſame yearly, and get me an Acquittance for the ſame from the party; this is a good performance of the condition. But if the condition be to diſcharge me of ſuch an Annuity; in this caſe, payment and procuring me a Releaſe, is no good performance of the condition. 37. H. 6. 18. Perk. ſect. 792.

To grant a rent, or to procure a rent to be granted.

If the condition be, that the Feoffees or Leſſees of the Obligor of ſuch Land which they have in truſt ſhall grant me a rent-charge or releaſe their right to me before ſuch a day, and there be three Feoffees, or Leſſees, and two of them only doe grant this rent, or make this Releaſe; this is no good performance of the condition. *Perk. If the condition be, that the Obligor ſhall purchaſe and procure to me and my heirs a rent of 5 l. per annum, and a ſtranger hath ſuch a rent out of my Land, and he doth get him to releaſe this to me; this is a good performance of the condition; And if one be bound with condition to grant me the rent and farm of ſuch a Mill before Michaelmaſs, to be had and perceived untill I be paid 10l. and before that time he leaſe the Mill to me at a rent, and then ſuffer me to detaine ſo much of the rent; it ſeems this is a good performance of the condition. See more in Brownlow 1 part 75.

To deliver a horſe.

Tender and Refuſall.

If the condition be to deliver me a horſe, and the Obligor tender the horſe unto me, and I refuſe him; hereby the condition is performed; and ſo in all ſuch like caſes where the Obligor is to doe any collaterall thing, as ſtand to an award, or the like; if the Obligor offer to doe it, and the Obligee refuſe, the condition is performed, and the Obligation diſcharged for ever. Co. ſuper Litt. 207.

To pay money

If the condition be, to pay money at a day certain, and the Obligor pay a little before night, time enough for the receiver to ſee to number his money by day light; this is a good performance of the condition, And if the condition be to pay money by, or before a day; paiment the laſt inſtant of the day before is a ſufficient performance of the condition. Dyer 17. ſuper Litt. 202. *Broo. If the condition be, to pay me a ſum of money at a day certaine, and the Obligor pay me leſs money before the day, or all the money before or at the day, or give me ſomething elſe before, or at the day of payment in liew thereof, or pay me all the money or a leſſer ſum at the day appointed, but in another place, and not the place mentioned in the condition, & I accept thereof; in all theſe caſes the condition is well performed. But if a ſtranger to the condition doe ſo, and I accept thereof; this is no good performance of the condition as hath been adjudged. And if the Obligor pay leſs then the whole money at the day of paiment, and the Obligee accept thereof; this is no good performance of the condition. And if the thing to be done be a collaterall thing, as to account, or the like, and the Obligor give unto the Obligee money, or a horſe in liew thereof, and the Obligee accept it; this is no good performance of the condition. *Perk. And

And if the obligor pay the money to the obligee after the day of paiment; this is no performance of the condition, but the obligation is forfeit, and the money paid ſhall goe in part towards the forfeiture. And yet in this caſe the Defendant at this day being ſued upon this obligation, doth uſually adventure to plead conditions performed, and give this ſpeciall matter in evidence to the Jury, who for the moſt part doth find againſt the obligee. And yet if the condition be, to pay me money at a day certaine, or to pay another money at a day certaine, and the obligor pay me or the ſtranger at ſeverall times before the day, and I, or the ſtranger accept thereof; this is a good performance of the condition. But if the obligee doe only promiſe to accept of a horſe for his money at the time of paiment, and when the time of paiment comes, and tender of the horſe is made to him, he doth refuſe him; this tender is not a ſufficient performance of the condition. *Perk. And yet if the obligor be afterwards ſued for this money, he muſt ſay in his pleading, that he is ſtill ready to pay it, and he muſt tender it in court. But if one be bound by a ſingle obligation to pay money, and after at the ſame or ſome other time, he hath a defeaſance from the obligee, that upon paiment of a leſſer ſumme the obligation ſhall be void; and the obligee refuſe the mony when the ſame is tendred at the time when by the Defeaſance it is to be paid; in this caſe the obligor is not bound to tender the money in Court, neither hath the obligee any remedy for it. Co. ſuper Litt. 208, 209. 27 H. 8. 10. *Perk. If the condition be, to pay money between two daies; paiment of the money upon either of thoſe dayes is not a good performance of the condition, but the paiment muſt bee between the two days. Dier. 17.

If the condition be, to pay me 20l. and the obligor pay me ſome of the 20l. in counterfeit pieces, which I not perceiving at the time, doe put up and accept, but after upon a review I doe perceive ſome of them to be naught, and thereupon I doe ſend it back to him again, in this caſe it ſeems the condition is well performed, and therefore the ſending back of the money againe will not cauſe a breach afterwards. *New Terms of the Law. tit. 9 When a ſingle Obligation ſhall be ſaid to be broken and forfeit, or not. If an obligation that is ſingle, be not Performed, as when it is to pay money at a day, and the money is not paid, the obligation is broken. But if a man be bound by an obligation to pay money at ſeverall daies, the obligation is not forfeit, nor can be ſued untill all the dayes be paſt. And yet if the condition of an obligation be to pay money at ſeverall dayes, and the obligor doe fail to pay the money the firſt day; in this caſe the obligee may ſue for the money due by the obligation preſently. Co. 8 153. ſuper Litt. 292. *F. But otherwiſe it is in caſe where one is bound to pay money by the Condition of an obligation; for there the obligor muſt pay the money at his perill, albeit the obligee refuſe to deliver up the obligation or to give a releaſe. *Broo. 10. When the condition of an obligation ſhall be ſaid to be broken and the obligation forfeit, or not. If one be bound to pay money on a ſingle Bill at a day, and the obligor tender the money at the day to the obligee, and he refuſe it; in this caſe, it ſeems he hath no remedy for his money; Sed quære.

In all cauſes when the condition is not performed or broken, the obligation is forfeit, and till then it cannot be forfeit. And therefore, if one be bound in an obligation obligation, with condition to pay me 10l. at Eaſter, before the day come, the obligation cannot bee forfeit; but if it be not paid at the day, the obligation is forfeit. And yet if the obligee himſelf be the cauſe of the breach of the condition, or the thing to be done by the condition, is now become impoſſible by the act of God, the obligation is now become without penalty. As if in the old daies I had been bound in an obligation to an Abbot, that A. ſhould infeoffe him before Chriſtmaſs, if A. enter into Religion, my Bond had been preſently forfeited. If the condition be, that if the obligor before Michaelmaſs make a leaſe to the obligee for thirty one years, if A. will aſſent, and if he will not aſſent then for twenty one years, that then &c. if A. do not aſſent, and the Leaſe for twenty one years be not made before Michaelmaſs, the obligation is forfeit. Dier. 347. If the condition be that the Obligor ſhall make me an eſtate upon requeſt, and he tender me an eſtate before I requeſt it, and afterwards I doe requeſt it, and he doth refuſe it; in this caſe the condition is broken, and the obligation forfeit. 7 H. 6. 24. To make an Eſtate.

If the condition be, that the obligor and his ſon ſhall doe all ſuch acts for the better aſſuring of land, as the obligee or his Counſell ſhall deviſe, and the obligee deviſe and tender a Releaſe to the obligor and his ſon to ſeale, and they delay and refuſe to ſeale it untill they can ſhew it to their Counſell to be adviſed upon it; this is a breach of the condition; but if they be illitterate and refuſe to ſeale it untill they can get it read; this is no breach of the condition, See more in Brownlows. Rep. 1. part. 70. Co. 2. 3 Dier. 337. To make further aſſurance

And therefore much more if the obligee be ſued, arreſted, outlawed, or taken in Execution for the debt of the principall. So alſo if the obligee bee put in feare of arreſt for the debt of the principall, and therefore dare not goe about his buſineſs; by this the condition is broken. But if the obligee be ſued unjuſtly, either becauſe he is ſued before the money is due, or otherwiſe, or if the bond in which he is bound, be againſt law and void, and he ſuffer himſelf to be unjuſtly vexed thereupon To ſave harmleſs.

and doth not take advantage of it, it ſeems this is no breach of the condition of the Bond to ſave harmleſs. Dier. 186. 187. 18 Ed. 4. 27. 28. Co. 5. 24. Old Book of Entry. 12.

If a Bailiff diſtrain beaſts on a withernam, and afterwards re-deliver them to the party of whom he had them, and take a Bond from him with condition to ſave him harmleſs from him for whom the Beaſts were taken, and after he doth bring a detinue againſt the Bailiff for the beaſts; in this caſe the condition is not broken, for this action will not lie in this caſe. To pay money. If the condition be to pay money to me at a day and place certaine, and the mony is not tendred at the time and place, albeit there be no body ready to receive it, if it be tendred, yet the condition is broken. Kelw 60.

If the condition be to pay money to me at a day and place, and the obligor in his going to the place is robbed of the money ſo as he cannot pay him; in this caſe notwithſtanding the condition is broken, and the obligation forfeit, this will not excuſe it. Broo. Oblig 9.

If the condition be to pay money to me at a day and place, and I ſeeing him going to the place to pay the money, do wiſh him to forbeare, and thereupon he doth ſo, and doth not pay it; in this caſe the obligation is forfeit, and this will not excuſe. But if I doe violently and actually detaine and hinder him, ſo that he cannot pay it, this will excuſe him. Kelw 60.

To pay Rent. If the condition be to pay me the rent reſerved on ſuch a leaſe, at the times limited by the leaſe, and it be not accordingly: hereby the condition is broken, albeit I do never demand the rent. Hill. 4 Jac. Molineux Caſe.

If the condition be to pay me the rent reſerved on ſuch a leaſe, and I enter upon all or part of the land demiſed, ſo as the rent is ſuſpended ſo long as I keep the poſſeſſion, in this caſe the non-payment of the rent during the time of the ſuſpenſion of the rent, is no breach of the condition. See more in Brownlows Rep. 2. part. 176.

For quiet enjoying. If the condition be that I ſhall enjoy land without the interruption of any perſon whatſoever, and afterwards I doe forfeit it, my ſelfe by non-payment of rent, or the like, this is no breach of the condition. Dier. 30.

If the condition be, that the obligor ſhall ſuffer the obligee to enjoy lands &c. and that without the let of him &c. or any other perſon or perſons &c. and one that hath an elder title doth enter; this is no breach of the condition. But if he procure this entry and diſturbance, this is a breach of the condition. Dier. 255. 17 Ed. 4. 3.

If the condition be that B. and others ſhall quietly enjoy land, and A. the obligor and B. the obligee doth diſturbe the others; it ſeems by this diſturbance the condition is broken. Kelw. 60.

If the condition be that the obligor ſhall not diſturbe me in the keeping of my Courts, and he keep the Courts and take the Fees himſelf; this is a breach of the condition. Co. 9. 51.

If one make a feoffment of land, and make me an obligation with condition to defend the land for 12 years &c. and I am entred by a ſtranger but never impleaded; in this caſe the condition is broken. Co. ſuper Litt. 384.

Two Iointenants for years of a Mill, one grants away his part to a ſtranger and dies, but the Grantee ſuffer the other Iointenant to enjoy the whole. The other reciting his Eſtate, that his companion was dead, and it was all his, he grants it all over to I. S. and Covenants that the other grantee ſhal enjoy it &c. a Bond with condition to perform Covenants, and after the grantee of his companion enter upon him; this is a breach of the Condition. Brownl. 2 part. 212.

To ſtand to an Award. If the condition be to ſtand to the award of I. S. and the obligor doth afterward counter-maund the ſubmiſſion made to I S. this is a breach of the condition. Factum non dicitur quod non perſeveras. See more in Brownlows ep. 2 part. 48. 290. 291. Co. 4. 61. 8. 83.

To give a licence. If the Condition be that I ſhall have licence to carry wood ſeven years, and the obligor doth give me a licence for ſeven years, and then doth revoke it againe; this is a breach of the condition. Co. 8. 82, 83. 18 Ed. 4. 20.

If

If the condition be, that I, S ſhall give me licence to goe over his ground, and I, S doth ſo, but another doth interrupt me; this is no breach of the condition. And yet if the condition be that I ſhall have licence to go over that ground, there perhaps ſuch an interruption may be a breach of the condition. 18 Ed. 4. 23.

If an obligation be made to me with condition to appear in ſuch a Court ſuch a day, and at the day he is kept in priſon at my ſuit ſo as he cannot appeare; in this caſe his not appearance is no breach of the condition; for his impriſonment ſhall excuſe him. But if his impriſonment be for Felony, or any other ſuch like cauſe of his own, contra. Fitz. Barre. 60. To appeare.

If the condition be, to appear in ſuch a Court ſuch a day, and before the day a Superſedeas doth come to the Sheriff; yet if the Obligor do not appear; the obligation is forfeit. Dyer 25.

If the condition be, that the Obligor ſhall ride with I S to Dover ſuch a day, and I S doth not go thither that day, in this caſe it ſeems the condition is broken, and that he muſt procure I S to go thither and ride with him at his perill. Perk. Sect. To ride to Dover.

If I make a Leaſe for years, and the Leſſee doth enter into an obligation with condition that he ſhall not alien the land demiſed without my licence, and I die, and then he doth alien it; it ſeems this is a breach of the condition. Per. Iuſt. Nichols M. 13. Iac. Not to alien.

If the condition be that I S ſhall ſerve me in all my honeſt and lawfull commands, or that I S ſhall be a good and honeſt ſervant to me one yeare; in the firſt caſe if I command him nothing, the condition is not broken, albeit he never tender his ſervice: but in the laſt caſe it ſeems he is to tender his ſervice to me, or otherwiſe the condition will be broken. But if I refuſe his ſervice when it is tendred, or he die within the time, the obligation is diſcharged. And yet if he depart away within the time, the condition is broken. Perk. Sect. 772, 6. Ed 4. 2. To ſerve.

If the condition be that A ſhall marry B by a day, and before the day the Obligor himſelf doth marry her: in this caſe the condition is broken. But if the Obligee marry her before the day, the obligation is diſcharged. 4 H. 7. 4. Perk. 79. To marry a woman.

If the condition be, to performe the covenants and payments of a deed, and the deed doth containe a Feoffment, and this is on condition that if the Feoffor pay ſuch a ſum of money he ſhall reenter, and he doth not pay it, in this caſe this non-paiment is no breach of the condition. But if A let Land by Indenture to B for years rendring rent, and B doth bind himſelf in an obligation with condition to perfo rm all the covenants contained in the Indenture, and the rent is unpaid; this is a breach of the condition and cauſe of forfeiture of the obligation. If the condition be for the ſafe keeping of priſoners, and one doth eſcape that is in execution, and in priſon under colour of an execution, or the like, but in truth and in judgement of Law is no priſoner; this eſcape is no breach of the condition. See more in Condition at Numb. 10. To doe other things. Brownlows Rep. 1 part 32. 54. 122. 124. 2 part. 177. 212. 213. Curia Trin. 37: Eliz. To keep Priſoners.

If the condition of an obligation conſiſt of two parts in the disjunctive, or be to do one of two things before, or at a day certain, and both the things are poſſible at the time of the making of the obligation, and before the time of performance one of the things is become impoſſible to be done by the act of God, or by the act of the Obligee himſelf; in this caſe the obligation is diſcharged for ever. And therefore if the condition be, That if the Obligor ſhall ſell away his wives Land, if then he ſhall either in his life time purchaſe to his wife and her heirs and aſſignes Land of as good right and value as the money by him received, or had by or upon the ſaid ſaile ſhall amount unto, or elſe do and ſhall leave unto her the ſaid I as Executrix by legacy or otherwiſe as much money as ſhall be by him received upon ſuch ſale; That then &c. and the Obligor doth ſell his wives Land, and then his wife doth die before him ſo that he cannot leave her the money; in this caſe the obligation is diſcharged, and the husband is not bound to purchaſe Land to her and her Heirs. Co. ſuper Litt. 207. 11. By what meanes and when an Obligation good in his original creation, doth or may become void, bee diſcharged or gone by matter ex poſt facto: Or not.

So

So if the condition be, that if I S do not prove the ſuggeſtion of a Bill depending in the Court of requeſts before the utas of Hillary, that then he ſhall pay 20l. &c. and I S die before the utas; hereby the obligation is diſcharged for ever, and he is not bound to pay the 20l. Co. 5. 22. 15 H. 7: 2. So if the condition be that if the Obligor appear in the Kings Bench in Eaſter Terme, or pay 20l. to the Obligee at Michaelmas, and the Obligor die before Eaſter Terme, hereby the obligation is diſcharged: but if he do not appear in Eaſter Terme and out-live the Term, and die after, then it ſeems the 20l. muſt be paid at Michaelmas, or the obligation is forfeit: So if the condition be that the Obligor ſhall marry A before Eaſter, or pay 20l. to the Obligee at Michaelmas, and A die, or become madd before Eaſter, or the Obligee marry A himſelf; and the marriage doth continue between them untill Eaſter be paſt: in all theſe caſes the obligation is diſcharged for ever. But when the thing is become impoſſible by the act or laches of the Obligor, the Law is otherwiſe. And therefore if the condition be, that A ſhall marry with B before Eaſter, or that the Obligor ſhall pay unto the Obligee 20l. at Michaelmas, and the Obligor himſelf marry with B, and the marriage doth continue untill after Eaſter; hereby the obligation is not diſcharged. So if the condition be to deliver up an obligation before Eaſter, or give a releaſe at Michaelmas, and the Obligor doth loſe the obligation, or the obligation is burnt; hereby the obligation is not diſcharged, for if he doth not make the releaſe at Michaelmas, he doth forfeit the obligation. Dyer 262. 15 H. 7. 4. 4 H. 7. 4. Agree 9. Iac. in Bathurſt caſe.

If the condition of an obligation conſiſt of one part only, or be to do one thing at a time certain, and that thing at the time of the obligation made is poſſible to be done, but afterwards and before the time when it is performed it doth become impoſſible by the act of God, or the act of the Obligee; in this caſe alſo the obligation is gone and diſcharged for ever. And therefore if the condition be to appear in perſon ſuch a day in ſuch a Court, and before the day the Obligor die, or at the day the water doth ariſe ſo high that he cannot travaile to the place without perill of life; in theſe caſes the obligation is diſcharged. So if the condition, that A ſhall marry B before Eaſter, and before the time A or B die, or become madd, or the Obligee marry B, and the marriage doth continue untill after the day: in all theſe caſes the obligation is diſcharged, But if the thing become impoſſible by the act of the Obligor, contra. And therefore if the condition be, that the obligor ſhall appeare ſuch a day, and before, and at the day he is impriſoned through ſome default of his own, ſo that he cannot appear, this will not excuſe him, no more then in caſe where he is ſo ſick that he cannot appear without perill of his life. So if the condition be that B ſhall marry C before Eaſter, and the obligor himſelf marry her, and the marriage doth continue untill after the time: in this caſe the obligation is forfeit. So if the condition give the obligor time all his life time to do the thing, the obligation is not diſcharged by his death; but in this caſe he muſt do it during his life time at his perill. 8 Ed. 4. 21. Co. 5. 22. Perk Sect. 769. 767. 4 H. 7. 4. 22 Ed. 4. 27. So held in the Exchequer 3. *Car. If the condition be that the obligor ſhall deliver to the obligee an obligation or ſuch a releaſe as the counſell of the obligee ſhall deviſe before Michaelmas, and the counſell of the obligee deviſe no releaſe before Michaelmas; hereby the obligation is gone for ever. Adjudged 37. Eliz. Co. B. Greeningham verſus Ewre.

If the obligation depend upon, or be neceſſary to ſome other deed, and that Deed become void, in this caſe the obligation is become void alſo; as if the condition of the obligation be to perform the Covenants of an Indenture, and afterwards the covenants be diſcharged or become void; by this means the obligation is diſcharged and gone for ever. And if one make a leaſe for years rendring rent, and the Leſſee enter into an obligation with condition to pay the rent to the Leſſor, and after it fall out ſo that the Leſſee is evicted out of the land by an elder title, whereby the rent in Law is gone; in this caſe and by this means the obligation is diſcharged and gone alſo. But if the eviction be but of a part of the Land, contra. Bro Oblig. 6. 88. 29 4 H. 7. 6

If an obligation be made to me, and delivered to I S to my uſe, and when it is tendred to me, I do refuſe it and diſagree to it; hereby it is become void, and cannot afterwards be made good againe. So if an obligation be made to my wife, and I diſagree to it; hereby it is become void. Coo. 5. 119.

By a Releaſe made from the obligee to the obligor, or to one of the obligors, if there be more then one, the obligation may be diſcharged. And therefore, if an obligation be made to me with condition to pay money, and I by my Deed releaſe it, or acknowledge my ſelf ſatisfied the Debt, albeit I receive none of it, or but part of it in full ſatisfaction of the Debt, by this the obligation is diſcharged for ever. Fit. Barr. 37.

If the obligee make the obligor, or one of the obligors, or all the obligors, his Executor, or his Executors; hereby the obligation is diſcharged for ever. But the granting of Letters of Adminiſtration to one, or more of the obligors, is no diſcharge of the obligation. And if the obligor make the obligee his Executor, this is no diſcharge of the obligation. Broo. Oblig. 61. Co. 8. 136. 8 Ed. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 2. 11 H. 7. 4.

If the condition be to enfeoff K S (a woman) before ſuch a time, and before the day the obligor, doth marry the woman: this doth not diſcharge the obligation. Fitz. Barre. 133.

If the condition be to ſerve me ſeven years, and within the time I licence him to depart, it ſeems that hereby the obligation is diſcharged: And yet if the condition be to ſtand to an Award, and it is awarded that one of the parties ſhall pay 5*l.* a year for ſeven years towards the education of I S, and I S die within the ſeven years, the obligation is not diſchareged by his death, but the money muſt be paid during the time notwithſtanding. Dyer 329.

If the condition be to doe two things, or ſtand upon divers points; and the Obligee ſuppoſing the breach of one of them, doth ſue the obligor, and the iſſue being joyned upon that point, it is found againſt the Plaintiff and he is barred; hereby the whole obligation is diſcharged; and ſo long as that Iudgement is in force, he can never ſue the obligation upon any other point within the condition. Dyer 371.

If the condition be to ſatisfie me for goods I have delivered to I S if they be loſt, and afterwards they be loſt, and I ſue I S and have him in Execution for them; by this the obligation is not diſcharged; but perhaps when I have ſatisfaction of I S being in Execution for the goods, the obligation may be gone. Fitz. Barr. 64.

Of a Defeaſance.

THis in a large ſence doth ſometimes ſignifie a condition annexed to an eſtate, ſometimes the condition of an obligation made with, & annexed to the Obligation at the time of making thereof: But it is more peculiarly & properly applyed to ſuch conditionall inſtruments as are made in Defeaſance and avoidance of Statutes and Recogniſances at the time of entring into the ſame Statutes or Recogniſances, and to ſuch conditionall Inſtruments as are made in Defeaſance of Statutes, Obligations, and the like, after the time of the ſame Statutes entred into, and obligations, &c. made: And it is therefore thus defined. Defeaſance, what.

A Defeaſance is a condition relating to a Deed, as to an obligation, Recogniſance, Statute, or the like, which being performed by the obligor or Recogniſor, the Act is diſabled and made void, as if it had never been done; which differeth from a condition only in this that this, is alwaies made at the ſame time, and annexed to, or inſerted in the ſame Deed, but that is alwaies made in a Deed by it ſelf, and for the moſt part made after the Deed whereunto it hath relation.

There

2. Where and in what caſes a Defeaſance may be; and what things may be defeated and avoided thereby; and where, and what not.

There is no Inheritance Executory, as Rents, Annuities, Conditions, Warranties, Covenants, and ſuch like, but may by a Defeaſance made with the mutuall conſent of all thoſe who were parties to the creation thereof at the ſame, or at any time after be annulled, diſcharged and defeated. And ſo is the Law of Statutes, Recogniſances, Obligations, and the like; yet ſo, as in all theſe caſes regularly, the Defeaſance muſt be made eodem modo as the thing to be defeated was and is created, viz. if the one be by Deed, the other muſt be ſo alſo; for it is a rule, that in all caſes when any Executory thing is created by a Deed, that the ſame thing by the conſent of all perſons which were parties to the creation of it, may be by their Deed defeated and annulled, and therefore that Warranties, Recogniſances, Rents, Charges, Annuities, Covenants, Leaſes for years, Uſes at Common Law, and ſuch like, may by a Defeaſance made with the mutuall conſent of all thoſe that were parties to the creation of it by Deed, be diſcharged and avoided. Nihil eſt tam conveniens naturali æquitati quam quod unumquodque diſſolvi eo ligamine quo ligatur. And therefore by ſuch a Defeaſance, not only the Covenant which doth create a power of Revocation, but the power it ſelf created, may be utterly defeated and avoided: But eſtates of Inheritance, and other eſtates in Taile or for life, executed by Livery, &c. cannot be avoided by Defeaſance made after the time of their creation and firſt making. And yet by another Deed of Defeaſance made at the ſame time, a Feoffment, Releaſe, Leaſe for life, or other executed thing, may be avoided as well as if it were by condition within the ſame Deed; as if a Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Diſſeiſor: this Releaſe cannot be defeated by an Indenture of Defeaſance made afterwards, but it may be defeated by an Indenture of Defeaſance made at the ſame time. Quæ in continenti fiunt in eſſe videntur. Co. ſuper Litt. 236. 237. 1. 111. 113. Plow. 137. 193. 21 H. 7. 23. Bro. Defeaſance in toto.

3. What ſhall be ſaid a good Defeaſance, and what not. For the manner of it:

To make a good Defeaſance, theſe things are requiſite.

1. That the Defeaſance be made eodem modo, as the thing to be defeated is created, for if the obligee by word only diſcharge the obligor, or grant not to ſue him; this will not defeat the obligation; it muſt be by Deed therefore as the former was, Co. 113.

But whether the Deed of Defeaſance be indented or poll is not materiall. Bro. Defeaſ. 12. Fitz. Bar 93.

2. That if it do recite the Statute or the obligation (as for the moſt part it doth) that it be done truly; for if a Defeaſance be made of a Statute or an obligation which is recited to be made the 10 day of May, whereas in truth it bareth date the firſt day of May; this defeaſance is void. Plow. 393.

3. That it be made between the ſame perſons that were parties to the firſt Deed, &c. And therefore if A be bound in an obligation to B in 20l. and B make a Defeaſance to C, that if C pay him 20l: the obligation made by A ſhall be void; this is no good Defeaſance, becauſe it is not made between the ſame parties: And yet if a Statute be made to the husband and Wife, and the husband alone joyn in the making of a Defeaſance, this is a good Defeaſance. 14. H. 8. 10. Bro. Eſtrangal fait. 10. Bro. tit. Defeaſance 3.

4. That it be made after the making of the Recogniſance, obligation, &c. and not before; for if A grant to B, that if B will be bound to him in 20l. by obligation, that the obligation ſhall be void, and after B doth bind himſelf to A in an obligation of 20l. this defeaſance is not good becauſe it is before the obligation Bro. Defeaſance 5.

And yet if the date of the defeaſance be before the date of the Recogniſance, &c. and it be delivered after, it is good enough, Dyer 315.

For the matter of it.

5. That it be made of a thing defeaſable, Plow. 137. Bro. Defeaſance 1.

For if a Diſſeiſee releaſe his right to the Terre-Tenant, and after there is a defeaſance made between them, that if the Releſſor ſhall pay 20l to the Releſſee, the Releaſe ſhall be void: this is a void Defeaſance.

And yet a Releaſe may be avoided by a condition or Defeaſance made at the time of making of a Releaſe as well as a Feoffment. Bro. Defeaſance. 6. 9. Co ſuper Litt. 236.

If

If the Defeaſance of a Recogniſance, Obligation &c. be, That if the Cogniſor, or Obligor, &c. pay a ſum of Money, or do not diſturb the Execution of the Will of J. S. or do make a Leaſe for years to J. S. or the like; theſe are good Defeaſances. As if the Grantee of a Rent-charge grant to his Grantor, that if he ſhall pay him twenty pound ſuch a day, the grant of the Rent ſhall be void. See Weſt. Symb. Broo. Defeaſance in toto. Albeit the Condition of an Obligation, that is repugnant to the Obligation it ſelf, is void and the Obligation ſingle, yet it is otherwiſe in caſe of a Defeaſance made after the Obligation; for this is good, notwithſtanding it be repugnant. And therefore if the Obligee after the Obligation made, grant by Deed to the Obligor, that the Obligation ſhall be void, or that he will not ſue the Obligation at all, or that he will not ſue the Obligation until ſuch a time, or that the Obligation ſhall be diſcharged; theſe Defeaſances are good to avoid the Obligation. 20 Hen. 7. 24. 21 H. 7. 32. Fitz. Bar. 71.

If the Feoffee with Warranty grant, that neither he nor his Heirs ſhall take benefit of the Warranty of the Feoffor, or his Heirs; this is a good Defeaſance of the Warranty; and if he grant not to vouch, this will diſcharge the Voucher: And if he grant not to bring a Warrantia Chartæ, this will bar him of that remedy. In like manner it is, if the Grantee of a Rent-charge grant to the Grantor, that he will not take any benefit by the Grant; this is a total diſcharge: And if he grant he will not bring an Annuity, this is a diſcharge of the perſon; and if he grant that he will not diſtrain the Land for the Rent, this is a diſcharge of the Land. Broo. Defeaſance 4. 7 H. 6. 43. 21 H. 7. 23. Perk. ſect. 69.

If one make a Leaſe for life by Deed, and after by another Deed doth grant to his Leſſee, that he ſhall not be impeached for Waſte; this is a good Diſcharge: And if the Leſſee afterwards grant by Deed to the Leſſor, that if he ſhall bring an Action of Waſte againſt the Leſſee, that he will not make uſe, nor take advantage of the Deed of Diſcharge; this is a good Diſcharge of the Diſcharge. Broo. Defeaſ. 11. Condition 120.

So that hereby it ſeems a Defeaſance may be of a Defeaſance, and one Defeaſance after another, and Regularly the laſt ſhall ſtand. Agreement. Paſche, 8 Jac. Co. B. And therefore if a Leaſe for years be made on Condition to pay twenty pound at Eaſter, and the Leaſe to be void, and before Eaſter the Leſſor and Leſſee agree; that if the Leſſor pay it at Eaſter following, the Leaſe ſhall be void, and before that time they make the like Agreement for another year; it ſeems theſe be good Defeaſances, and that the laſt ſhall ſtand. Per Juſt. Bridgman.

If the Defeaſance after Execution made upon a Statute be thus, That if the Conuſor pay ſo much money, the Statute ſhall be void; it ſeems, by this the Statute and Execution thereupon, is void: Howbeit, it is beſt to adde theſe words in the Defeaſance [and the Execution thereupon.] Broo. Defeaſ. 7.

CHAP. CXIX.

Of an Office.

1. Office, what.

THis word Office hath two ſignifications, i. It ſignifieth an imployment about a work; and of this in the next Chapter: But it ſignifieth alſo an Inquiſition or Inquiry made on the behalf of the Lord Protector of ſomething by vertue of his Office that doth enquire. And by Office found, is meant nothing elſe but ſuch things as are found by Inquiſition made; and of this there are two kindes Intitling or Inſtructing.

The kindes.

That is called an Office Intitling, when it doth veſt the Eſtate and Poſſeſſion of the Land, or other thing in the Lord Protector, who had therein onely a Right or Title before that time; As where an Alien doth purchaſe Land, or a Body Politick or Corporation purchaſe in Mortmain, or of a perſon attaint of Felony, or the like. And ſuch Offices as concern Fee or Frank-tenement muſt be found by virtue of Commiſſion under the Great Seal, or they are not good. The other kinde of Office is, where the Land or thing is lawfully veſted and ſetled before in the Lord Protector, but the particularity thereof doth not appear upon Record, ſo that it may be put in charge; and this is called an Office of Inſtruction, as where the Lord Protectors Tenant doth commit Felony, is attaint and dieth, or one is attainted of high Treaſon, in which caſes he hath right to the Land without Office. And ſuch things as theſe may be found by Commiſſion under the Exchequer Seal, and it will be good enough. And the effect of this Office, that it doth put the Lord Protector into the actual poſſeſſion of the thing, from the time of the finding; ſo that without any Entry or Seiſure he ſhall be anſwered the profits from that time.

2. Inqueſt of Office or Inquiſition, what.

The Inqueſt of Office, is nothing elſe but the Inquiſition, or that which is found by the Inquiry that is made by the charge and office of them that are imployed thereabouts, either as General Officers, and Ex Officio, or by ſpecial Commiſſion. For theſe Inquiſitions were taken ſometimes Virtute Brevis (that is) by virtue of certain Writs; and ſometimes Virtute Commiſſionis, by virtue of a ſpecial Commiſſion directed to certain men for that time and purpoſe onely; and ſometimes they have been more general, As to inquire of all Eſcheats, &c. and ſometimes more Special to enquire of one particular thing. But which way ever they entitle the Lord Protector, they may be uſed as evidence to other men. See Co. 5. 32. Stamf. Pr. chap. 20. 52. 13 Ed. 1. 25. 33 H. 8. 20. 4 Ed. 4. 20. 3 H. 7. 7. Plow. 484. Co. 4. 58. F.N.B. 257. 170. Co. 1. 42. 11 H. 4. 5.

3 Where and of what the Lord Protector ſhall be in poſſeſſion preſently by the Office found without Entry or Seiſure, or not.

For anſwer to this point, theſe things are to be known:

1. The Lord Protector upon an Office found for him, is preſently in poſſeſſion, without Entry or Seiſure; in caſes where his Entry or Seiſure is lawful, and the Poſſeſſion void at the time. As if an Office finde, that the Lord Protectors Tenant hath ſeiſed, or his Tenant for life hath committed Waſte; in theſe caſes the poſſeſſion will not be veſted in him, becauſe his Entry is not lawful, but he is put to ſue a Scire facias. If it had been found by Office, that the Kings Tenant had died ſeiſed without Heir, or his Heir within age, or he had made a Leaſe or Gift in Tail, and the Leaſe had been ended, or Donee dead without iſſue; in theſe caſes the Office had put the King in Poſſeſſion. But if it had found that the Kings Tenant was diſſeiſed, and died without Heir; the King had not been in Poſſeſſion, till the Poſſeſſion and Seiſin of the true Tenant be removed. So if the Office entitle the Lord Protector to a thing not Manual, (i.) of which no profit is to be taken, till it happen, as a Rent, Common, or the like, there he ſhall not be in poſſeſſion till the day. And in all theſe caſes the Lord Protector ſhall be anſwered the mean profits, from the time of his Title appearing of Record; As from the time of the Alienation in Mortmain, or making of void Letters Patents

Mean Profits.

Patents afterward adnulled, and the like. 14 *H.*7. 23. *Co.*4. 58. 34 *H.*6.5. Stamf. Prer. 54. 41 *Ed.*3. 11. 11 H 4.5.

2. In caſe of Treaſon, and a Forfeiture to the Lord Protector, by that means the Lord Protector ſhall be adjudged in actual poſſeſſion of the Land, without any Office or Inquiſition at all, by the Statute of 33 H. 8. 20.

The Tenant for years, Copiholder, and he that hath other profit, Apprender out of Land, whoſe Eſtates are not found in the Office, which doth intitle the Lord Protector to Land by any Attainder, ſhall enjoy their Eſtates notwithſtanding. 2 *Ed.*6.8.

Things are ſometimes found untruly by Offices; and in theſe caſes, thoſe that are like to be hurt, ~~may be hurt~~, may be relieved, by a Traverſe, Monſtrance de droit, by Petition, or by Pleading. And the Traverſe of an Office is nothing elſe, but the ſetting out of ones Right by a Judicial proceeding, to the end to overthrow the Lord Protectors Title. For every Office is in the nature of a Declaration, to which any man may plead, and either deny, or confeſs and avoid, by Monſtrance de droit, (i.) by ſhewing a Right: As for example, If the Office had found that J. S. the Kings Tenant died ſeiſed of the Land, the party grieved by this might have ſaid that J. S. did not die ſeiſed, or otherwiſe confeſs and avoid it, and ſay, That he was the Kings Tenant, and J. S. did diſſeiſe him; or that J. S. had onely an Eſtate upon Condition, and that before his Attainder he did break the Condition, or the like: And this Plea or Allegation ſhall be tried by a Jury in the Upper Bench; and if it be found againſt the Lord Protector, the party wronged ſhall have Reſtitution and Judgment be given, that the Lord Protectors hands ſhall be removed from the poſſeſſion. So where the Office doth finde the Lord Protectors Title by a Purchaſe by an Alienee, or an Alienation in Mortmain, or the like; for where the Office doth intitle the Lord Protector by matter in fait onely, and by no matter of Record, but by the Office it ſelf, thereby matter in fait onely proved to the contrary, it may be avoided, Plow. 488. Broo. 506. 34 *Ed.*3. 14. 36 Ed 3.13. 8 *H.*6. 16. 1 *H.*8.16. 2 *Ed.*6. 8. Stamf. Prer. 73-42. 9 *H.*6.15. 3 *H.*7.3. 4 *H.*7.4. Co. on *Littl.*77.

4. Traverſe of an Office, what. Where and how an Office may be avoided, or not. By Traverſe.

For the further opening hereof, take theſe caſes:

1. If upon this Traverſe it be found againſt the party, he is barred for ever, and and if it be found againſt the Lord Protector, he is barred for he cannot Traverſe it: And yet in ſome caſes he may have a Melius Inquirendum. Co. 8.164.

2. In all caſes where the Title of the party is found by the ſame Office, whereby the Lord Protector is intitled; As if it be found that A. did diſſeiſe B. and then alien in Mortmain, or the like; in this caſe the party ſhall avoid the Office by a Monſtrance de droit, Co. 8.168. But if the Office intitle the Lord Protector by matter of Record, as if it finde that J. S. was attainted of Treaſon, and ſeiſed of Land; if this be falſe, the party grieved by it, may avoid it by Traverſe, or by Monſtrance de droit, ſo long as the Attainder remains in force; and is not put to it to avoid it by Petition, as he was by the Common Law, 3 *H.*7.3. 4 *H.*7.4. 2 *Ed.*6. 8. Co. on *Littl. f.*77. And yet by the very Common Law, if he had matter of as high a nature; and if the Office found an Attainder and Forfeiture by Parliament, and there be another Act of Parliament, whereby the ſame Attainder was repealed; he might by the Common Law have pleaded this without Petition, 4 *H.*4. 24.

By Monſtrance de Droit.

By Petition.

3. If an Office do intitle the King to Perſonal Goods, as if it finde that J. S. was attainted of Felony, or outlawed in Debt or Treſpaſs, and at the ſame time he was poſſeſſed of a Horſe, when in truth, the Horſe was not his but another mans; in this caſe the owner of the Horſe may Traverſe it, and being found with him, ſhall have his Goods again, if the Officer have not accounted for it in the Exchequer, 4 *H.*4. 24. 34 *H.*6.5.

CHAP. CXX.

Of Officers and Offices.

Sect. 1. 1. Officer and Office, what.

THis word Office hath more acceptions then one in our Law, but (as it is here taken) it is that Function, by virtue whereof a man hath ſome Imployment in the Affairs of another, whether of the Supreme Magiſtrate, or of a common perſon. And an Officer is he that is ſo imployed.

The kindes of Offices.

The Office of the Supreme Magiſtrate now in this Common Commonwealth, is the Office of the Lord Protector, who is the Chief and Supreme Officer for the Government of the Country, and Adminiſtration of Juſtice amongſt the people thereof, and that in general is his Office; but for his Election, Office, and Oath, ſee the Government, and Prerogative: And as to the Subordinate Officers under him, of theſe Officers, and their Offices, the old Diviſion of them was into Eccleſiaſtical and Spiritual Officers; ſuch as were Biſhops, Chancellors, Delegates, and divers others, who had Offices and Imployments about Spiritual Matters, now aboliſhed; and Miniſters, Church-wardens, Clerks of Pariſhes, and ſuch like, which do yet continue; and into Civil Officers, and ſome are mixt, having ſome of both Powers: And theſe Civil Officers and Offices were again divided into ſuch as had to do with Matters of Juſtice, or had to do in other matters. The firſt ſort again into Officers and Offices, Judicial and Miniſterial; Judicial (that is) ſuch as conſiſted, and were imployed in the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, Officers that had a Judicial voice in ſome of the Courts of Juſtice, as the Judges of the Court of Star-Chamber, and Court of Wards now removed (for which ſee Courts.) And the Judges of the one Bench, and the other Counſellors of the Council Table, the Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, and the Judges of all the Courts, yet continuing, and not aboliſhed, whoſe Offices you may ſee in Courts.

And then there are Miniſterial Officers of Juſtice; and of theſe the greater part do attend upon the Judicial Officers, either to prepare and make ready Matters for the Judges to determine, or elſe to execute what they have before determined: And ſuch are Sheriffs, Serjeants at Law, Counſellors, Attorneys, Coroners, Keepers of Priſons, Bailiffs, Church-wardens, Treaſurers of the County Stock, and many others.

And ſome Offices are partly Judicial and partly Miniſterial; ſo is the Sheriffs Office, and ſo are ſome other Offices.

The Miniſterial Officers do ſome of them belong to one Court, and ſome of them to another Court. The Officers that do not any thing in the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, are moſt of them ſuch as attend upon the Lord Protector, or other great men, as Bailiffs, Purveyors, Stewards, Surveyors, Parkers, and the like: Alſo ſome Officers are County Officers, and ſome Pariſh Officers; and ſome Offices are more of Charge, then of Profit; and ſome more of Profit, then of Charge.

Sect. 2. 2. The Duty of all Officers in general.

And as touching all ſorts of Officers and Offices in the general, theſe things are to be known.

1. Every man ought to be qualified and fitted for the Office he doth undertake; and this is eſpecially required in Judicial Offices: And therefore if the King grant ſuch an Office to an unskilful man, it is void. And if ſuch an Office be granted in Reverſion, it is void; for happily when it comes to be executed, the Officer may be diſabled, Non compos mentis, &c.

2. Judicial Officers ought to come to their Offices freely, and not give money for them; for if they buy, they muſt ſell them.

3. Theſe Officers of all ſorts are to attend their Offices, eſpecially thoſe that have to do with the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, they are to be induſtrious in execution execution of the things given them in charge, and therein to be faithful and juſt.

4 They are to be contented with the Wages and Fees allowed them, which in moſt caſes are certain and known, either being ſet down by ſome Law, or uſually paid. And if they take any more then this, this is an offence called Extortion, and to be ſeverely puniſhed. Fees. Extortion, what.

5. If Officers that have to do in the Miniſtration of Juſtice be corrupt, cowardly, or negligent, they are to be puniſhed; and ſometimes they forfeit their Offices by it: See for this in Forfeiture.

And for Extortion in a Sheriff, ſee 23 *Hen.*6. 26. 1 *H.*4.11.

In a Coroner, 3 *Ed.*1. 10. 1 *H.*8. 7. 3 *H.*7.1.

In other Officers, 3 Edw. 1. 26. 33 Hen. 8. 39. 7 *Edw.*6. 1. 27 *Hen.*8. 11. 26 *H.*8.3. 2 *H.*4.8. 23 *H.*8.6. 2 *H.*4. 23. 19 *H.*7. 8.

Sect. 3.

As touching Officers in general, theſe things are further to be known. 3. Some other things to be known of all Officers in general, and of Offices in general.

1. Offices of the King are to be granted, and that freely without reward to men fit for them.

2. They that have the making of Juſtices of Peace, Sheriffs, Cuſtomers, and other Officers of the King, may not chooſe for Favor and Reward, but upon Merit and Deſert. Co upon *Littl.*234. 12 *R.*2. 2.

3. If an Office, either of the Grant of the King, or a Subject, which doth concern the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, or the Kings Revenue, or the Commonwealth, or the Intereſt, Benefit, or Safety of the Subject, or the like, be granted to a man that is unexpert, and hath no skill and ability to exerciſe it; the Grant is meerly void, and the party incapable. Hence it is, That a Grant of any Office of Judicature to an Infant, or one not of ſound minde, is void: So the Grant of the Stewardſhip of a Manor to ſuch a one is void. And hence it is, That the Grant of a Reverſion of ſuch an Office, though to a man never ſo skilful, is void, becauſe he may be uncapable when it happens, Co. upon Littl. 3. 6. Co. 11. Heydons caſe. Nor can ſuch an Office be granted in Fee, or for years, to fall to an Executor; but it muſt be granted at will, or for the life of the Grantee. But a Miniſterial Office may be granted in Reverſion: And the Grantee of an Office of Truſt to an Infant, to be executed by his Deputy, happily in ſome caſes may be good, though it be in Reverſion, *March. Rep. f.*39

4. Some Offices after they are granted, are grantable and aſſignable to others, and ſome are not grantable over. And in ſome Offices, the Officer may make a Deputy under him, and in ſome Offices he may not do ſo.

For the clearing of this therefore take theſe things:

1. If an Office that is an Office of Skill, Truſt, Fidelity, and Diligence, be granted to one, as the Chirographers Office, Clerk of the Crown, Clerk of the Pipe, Remembrancer, Stewardſhip of a Court, or Parkerſhip, or the like, be granted to one; in this caſe he cannot grant it over to another. Co. 4. Mittons caſe. Co. 9. Sir George Reynolds caſe, and Countie of Salops caſe.

2. That between an Aſſignee and a Deputy, there is a great difference; For the Deputy hath no Eſtate, nor Intereſt at all in the Office, nor may he do any thing in his own name, but in the name of the Officer, and here the Officer muſt anſwer for his Deputy: And if he cauſe of Forfeiture, the Office will be forfeit, as by the Maſter. But the Aſſignee doth all things in his own name, hath an intereſt in the Office, and muſt anſwer for himſelf. Co 9. 48. Aſſignee. Deputy.

3. It is a general Rule, That a Judicial Office cannot be granted, or exerciſed by Deputy;

Deputy; and yet, it ſeems, a Stewardſhip of a Law days, or Courts Baron, may be executed by Deputy; but a Miniſterial Office may be ſo granted or done; and in this caſe the things done by the Deputy are good. And yet, it ſeems, in this caſe the Officer muſt anſwer for his Deputy. Brownl. 2 part. 334, 335. M. 13 Jac. B.R. Phelps and Winſons caſe.

4. It is another Rule, That ſuch Offices as are Offices of Science, Fidelity, and Diligence, are ſo Perſonal, that in theſe a man can make no Aſſignee, or Deputy, unleſs the grant of the Office be made to them, and their Aſſigns, or be made to be exerciſed by them, or their Deputies, or their ſufficient Deputies. And of this nature is the Office of a Steward, Parker, and ſuch like. And yet in this caſe, if ſuch an Office as a Parkerſhip be granted to a Nobleman, or to an Infant, they ſhall make a Deputy. Co. 9. 48, 49. Plow. 384. 379.

5. The Office or Deputation of any Office, or any part thereof, if it concern the Adminiſtration of Juſtice, or the Receipt, Controlment, or payment of the Kings money, or Surety of the Kings Lands or Cuſtoms, or any Adminiſtration or neceſſary attendance in the Kings Cuſtom-houſe, or the keeping of the Kings places of ſtrength, or the Clerkſhip of any Court of Record, ſhall not be bargained or ſold, or any reward, or agreement for reward taken for it; if he do, the ſeller forfeits the Office, and the buyer is diſabled to enjoy: And yet all the acts he doth, whiles he is in the Office, ſhall be deemed good. 5, 6 Ed 6. 16. Co. on Lit. 234, Goldsb. 180.

6. The great Officers that are made Judges, and other Officers in Courts of Juſtice, muſt ſubſtitute ſuch under them, as be ſufficient and faithful, and for whom they will anſwer. 2 H. 6. 10.

7. Officers being ſued for any thing done about their Offices, they may plead the General Iſſue, and give the Special Matter in Evidence, ſhall have increaſe of Coſts, muſt be ſued in their own County, and cannot be ſued elſwhere. See 21 Jac. 12. Ord. 3 March, 1654. 7 Jac. 5.

8. They muſt take great heed they go not beyond, or abuſe their power, for their own profit or revenge, and ſo expoſe themſelves to Sutes, and loſe the Protection, which the Law doth give them in the Execution of their Offices.

9. That for ſuch Offices as are of charge, and not of profit to the Officer, he that grants the Office, may at his pleaſure diſcharge his Officer. But if there be profit to the Officer, contrà, except it be granted at will. So if he have a colateral certain Fee, for one may not fruſtrate his own Grant. Co. upon Littl. 233. Plow. 379.

Bribery, what. 10. If a Judicial Officer take Gifts or Rewards to pervert Juſtice, and doth ſo; this is Bribery, that upon Indictment in the Upper Bench, or before Judges of Aſſiſe, may be puniſhed by Fine and Impriſonment. And if any Officer by colour of his Office, exacteth and forceth any man to pay any thing that is not due, or above what is due, or before the time it is due; this is Extortion. And for this he ſhall be puniſhed by Fine and Impriſonment, and render double to the party grieved. Co. upon Lit. 168. 10. 100. Weſt. 1. 29. 31 Ed. 3. 4. 1 H. 4. 11. 28 H. 6. 5. Weſtm. 1. 26, 27: See more in Co. 3 part. Inſt. c 68, 69. The word Extortion hath a larger ſenſe, and is referred to all violent and injurious exactings and takings, eſpecially by Officers, by colour, or by countenance of their Office. Plow. 64. Crompt. Juſt. of Peace 8.

This word is a general word, and is applied to Officers for Counties and Hundreds that belong to the County and Hundred, that ſerve Proceſs, ſummon to Court, and execute the Warrants of the Stewards of thoſe Courts, and of the Sheriff and other ſuperior Officers: And it is applied to Bailiffs of Manors, who do uſe to diſpoſe of the affairs of his Lord there, pay and receive his Rents, look to Forfeitures, &c. and ſee the Cuſtoms obſerved. He in ſome Manors is called a Reeve. See for this, Co. 4. 30. Dyer 148. 12 H. 7. 23. Bro. Bail. 31. Treſp. 288. 14 Ed. 3. 9. Stat. of Lincoln, 10 Ed. 2. Major of a City or Corporation. Aldermen. There are alſo in Cities and other Corporate Towns, divers Officers, as Majors, Aldermen, Bailiffs, Recorder, Town-Clerk, Sword-bearer, Serjeants, Stewards, and the like. The principal Officer in moſt places is called the Major, and next to him in thoſe places are the Aldermen. In other places the principal Officers are one, or more, called Bailiffs. And all theſe of the one ſort and the other, are within their Liberties Juſtices of the Peace, and have within their Precincts all or much of the ſame power which the Juſtices of Peace have within their Counties.

Juſticiarii ad pacem infra libertates.

Recorder, what. The Recorder is he, whom the Major and other Magiſtrates of ſuch Cities and places, having Juriſdiction or Court of Record within their Precinct by the Kings Grant, do aſſociate to them for their better direction in matters of Juſtice, and proceedings according to Law. And in ſome Cities they have under him a Town-Clerk, in his abſence to do all this for them. Their Stewards receive and lay out their money for the Corporation, and give account of it. And their Serjeants are to arreſt men for Debts, &c.

Town-Clerk, what.

Steward, what.

Serjeants, what.

There are alſo ſome Officers newly appointed, and that are but for a time, that perhaps will continue but a while, the Laws by which they are made being but of ſhort continuance; as the Commiſſioners and Sub-Commiſſioners, and Clerks of Exciſe; the Commiſſioners, Receivers, Aſſeſſors and Collectors for the Contribution, and divers others. See the Ordinances for that purpoſe.

Sect. 13. There are other Officers, that are ſome of them County-Officers; ſuch as is the Sheriff, the Coroner, the Eſcheator, the Treaſurers of the County-ſtock, Maſters of Bridewell, Gaolers, Eſcheators, Clerks of the Market, and ſuch like.

And then there are ſome others that are Pariſh-Officers; ſuch are the Churchwardens, Overſeers of the Poor, Surveyors of the High-ways, Regiſters, Conſtables, Clerks, Haywards, and ſuch like.

And there are ſome Officers that are for a Hundred; as High-Conſtables, High-Collectors, and the like. And ſome of theſe County-Officers have Courts, and ſome have relation to Courts, as the Sheriff, Coroner, Clerk of the Market.

Sheriff, what. The Sheriff is a County-Officer, partly Judicial, and partly Miniſterial, of great antiquity and authority; who was antiently always an Earl, and he was always choſen by the King, and made by his Letters-Patents only for one year. His charge and duty is, to look to the preſervation of the Kings Peace, to ſee the Writs and Executions that come out of the Courts executed, to impanel Juries, to gather up the Kings debts, to look to the profits of the County, and the regiſtring of the Acts of the County-Court, and the like; and herein his Office is Miniſterial. He is alſo to puniſh the leſſer criminal matters in his Leet or Turn-Court, wherein his Office is Judicial; for in the greater cauſes, the Juſtices of Aſſiſe that go about in their Circuits yearly do diſpatch them. And theſe Officers do uſually make a Deputy or Under-Sheriff, who doth execute the Office under them.

Under-Sheriff, what.

Feodary, what. The Feodary was an Officer authorized by the Maſter of the Court of Wards and Liveries, to aſſiſt the Eſcheator in the finding of Offices and other things concerning the Kings Wards. This Office and Officer is now laid aſide, there being no uſe of him.

The

The Eſcheator was an Officer of the Common-Law, that did look to the Eſcheats of the King within the County, and certifie them in the Exchequer: But he is now laid aſide. See the Books made of this Officer and his Office. Eſcheator, what.

The Clerk of the Market is an Officer (for the moſt part) ſet up in every County to look to this, That all the Meaſures wet and dry, (that is) Ells, Yards, Lagens, Quarts, Pottles, Gallons; and Weights, as Pound, Ounce, &c. be anſwerable to the example of the Standard in the Exchequer. Sometimes there hath been an Officer in the Kings houſe, to take care of the Standards, and to look to the examples thereof all over the Land; and ſo it may be done by one Officer. He is the Comptroller of the Market. Stat. 1 Ed. 4. ch. 1. 13 R. 2. 4. See more of this, Stat: 16 Car. 19. Clerk of the Market, what.

The Coroner is an antient Officer appointed by the Common-Law for matters of the Crown; and of theſe are many in one County. His work is principally to enquire of every man that is killed and doth come to an untimely death, by what means he came to his end; keep a Court, and call a Jury to conſider of every circumſtance, and to enquire who they were that committed the fact, and what Lands or Tenements, Goods or Chattels they had at the time of the fact committed, and to ſeiſe them to the Kings uſe: They are alſo to enquire of Treaſure-trove. He is alſo to look to the keeping of the Peace: He is to keep the Records of the Pleas of the Crown taken before him: He is alſo to view the dead bodies ſlain, and cauſe the Murderer to anſwer for it upon the Indictment taken before him. This Officer is choſen by the Freeholders of the County at their County-Court. But for this ſee the Treatiſes of this Officers Office at large, Stamf. lib. 1. ch. 52. and in many other places. 1 H. 8. 7. 28 Ed. 3. 6. Sect. 14. Coroner, what.

The Treaſurers of the County-Stock for the relief of poor maimed Soldiers and Mariners, are certain Officers yearly choſen by the Juſtices of Peace, to have the charge of the Receipt and Diſburſments of the money taxed and levied upon the whole County yearly for the relief of poor maimed Soldiers and Mariners. For this ſee my Book of the Offices of Conſtables, &c. par. 2. ch. 5. Treaſurer of the County-ſtock for relief of poor maimed Soldiers and Mariners.

The Treaſurers of the County-Stock for the Relief of poor maimed Soldiers cauſed by the late Wars, and the Widows and Orphans of ſuch as have been ſlain or dead in the Service, are certain Officers yearly appointed by the Juſtices of Peace, to have the charge of the Receipt and Diſburſment of the money taxed and levied upon the whole County yearly for the Relief of poor maimed Soldiers and Mariners, and the Widows and Orphans of ſuch as died in the Service of the Parliament. For which ſee the Ordinance of May 28. 1647. and Aug. 10. 1647. Treaſurers of the County-ſtock for relief of poor maimed people, and the Widows and Orphans of ſuch as died in the Service of the Parliament.

The Treaſurers of the County-Stock for the Relief of Priſoners in the Kings-Bench and Marſhalſey, and for the Relief of Hoſpitals and Alms-houſes within the ſame County, are certain Officers yearly appointed by the Juſtices of Peace, to have the charge of the Receipt and Diſburſments of the money taxed and levied upon the whole County yearly for the Relief of the Priſoners in the Kings-Bench and Marſhalſey, and for the Relief of Hoſpitals and Alms-houſes within the ſame County. See for this my Book of the Office of Conſtables, 2 par. ch. 6. Treaſurers of the County-ſtock for relief of the Priſoners in the Kings-Bench and Marſhalſey.

The Collector of the money for the Relief of the Priſoners in the Common-Gaol, is an Officer appointed by the Juſtices of the Peace, to have the charge of the Receipt and Diſburſments of the money taxed and levied upon the whole County for the Relief of the Priſoners in the Common-Gaol. See for this my Book of Conſtables, &c. 2 par. ch. 7. Sect. 15. Collector of the money for the relief of the Priſoners in the Common-Gaol, and his Office.

The Governor or Maſter of the Houſe of Correction, is an Officer appointed by the Juſtices of Peace, to have overſight and government of the Houſe of Correction, and of perſons committed to the ſame. See my Book of Conſtables, &c. 2 par. chap. 4. Governor of the Houſe of Correction, and his Office.

The Conſtables are ſaid to be Officers of the Commonwealth, appointed for the maintenance of the Peace thereof, and to be attendant to Court-Leets, Juſtices of Peace, and Coroners, for the Executions of their Warrants within their Precincts and Liberties. And Mr. Lambert ſaith, The name of a Conſtable in a Hundred or Franchiſe, doth mean that he is an Officer that did ſupport the Kings Majeſty in the main- Conſtables, Tythingmen, &c.

maintenance of his Peace within the Precinct of his Hundred or Franchiſe. And of High-Conſtables what. theſe Conſtables there are now ſaid to be two ſorts: The firſt ſort are the High-Conſtables, which are for the whole Hundred, Lathe, Rape or Wapentake, the which do comprehend many Pariſhes, Tythings and Villages; and therefore theſe Officers in reſpect of place have a more large command then Petty-Conſtables have. Theſe Officers were ordained by the Statute of Wincheſter, which doth appoint (amongſt other things) That for the better keeping of the Peace, two Conſtables in every Hundred and Franchiſe ſhall make the View of Armor. And they are called High-Conſtables, in compariſon of the Conſtables or Petty-Conſtables that be in the Towns or Pariſhes within their Hundreds or Franchiſes; whoſe duty is likewiſe to maintain the Peace within the ſeveral limits of their Towns or Pariſhes And of theſe High Conſtables there were to be, and were antiently two in every Hundred; but at this day there is but one in many Hundreds.

The other ſort of Conſtables are the Petty-Conſtables or the Under-Conſtables, who are only for ſome part, as for a Town, Pariſh, Village, Tything or Hamlet within the Hundred; (for, every Hundred hath his High-Conſtable, and every ſeveral Tything within the Hundred hath the Petty-Conſtable, Tythingman, or the like within it.) So that the command of the Petty-Conſtable is only in one part of the Precinct of the High Conſtable: But otherwiſe for his Authority, by the antient Common-Law, his Office (as far as his Precinct doth extend) is the ſame with the Office of the High-Conſtable over the whole Hundred.

The Tything-men, Borſholders, Boroughead or Headborough, Thirdborough, and Chief Pledg, or by whatſoever names they be called in any Towns, Pariſhes, Tythings, Boroughs, Hamlets or other places, and their Offices, are in effect in moſt places but one and the ſame; for in ſome Counties this Officer is called by one name, and in other Counties by another name: As in Kent he is called Borſholder, in Warwick-ſhire Thirdborough, and in other places he is called Conſtable, and in ſome places he is called Tythingman; for he that is called and ſworne the Tythingman of any place, is (in effect) the Conſtable of the place: And therefore in ſuch places for the moſt part there is no other Officer called or ſworne by the name of a Conſtable. For as Petit-Conſtables, about the beginning of the Reign of Edward the Third, were deviſed in Towns and Pariſhes for the aid of the Conſtables of the Hundred; ſo afterwards Borſholders, and ſuch like, were uſed as Petit-Conſtables within their own Tythings and Boroughs.

But if it be ſo (as in ſome few places) that there is one Conſtable for the Commonwealth, and there is alſo one or more Tythingmen, and the Conſtable doth execute all the Office, and the Tythingmen are but as Attendants on him, and ſeem to have but little power, or it be as in ſome places; the Tythingman is to do ſervice to the Lord of the Manor rather then to the Commonwealth, and he is a Cuſtomary Tythingman choſen at the Lords Court: Or if it be ſo that there are two or more Tythingmen, and one of them is for the Commonwealth to execute the Office of Conſtable, and is always choſen at the Leet, and this Tythingman time out of mind hath been uſed to do nothing about the Office of the Conſtable, but to do other things; in theſe caſes the Cuſtom of the place may and muſt be continued, and ſuch Tythingmen ſhall not be compelled to do more then by Cuſtom they have uſed to do: Howbeit otherwiſe, and in all other places, all theſe Officers are comprehended within this word Conſtable, and all theſe Offices are contained within this Office. See for this at large in my Book of the Office of Conſtables, &c. 1 par. chap. 1.

Sect. 16. Churchwardens. Churchwardens are Officers choſen yearly by the major part of the Pariſhioners according to the Cuſtom of the place, to look to the Church and Church-yard, and things thereunto belonging. See for this at large in my Book of the Office of Conſtables, &c. par. 2. ch. 1.

Sidemen or Queſtmen. Sidemen were thoſe that were yearly choſen according to the Cuſtom of the place, to aſſiſt the Churchwardens in their Preſentment to the Ordinary.

Overſeers of the Poor. The Overſeers of the Poor, are certain Officers appointed yearly to be joyned with and aſſiſtant to the Churchwardens of the Pariſh, in the overſight and ordering of the the Poor of the Parish. See this at large in my Book of Constables, &c. part 2. chap. 2.

The Supravisors of the Surveyors of the High-ways, are Officers yearly chosen by the Constables and Churchwardens of the Parish, to look to the Amendment of the High-ways within the Parish. See for this also a large Treatise in my Book of the *Office of Constables, &c. par.*2. *ch.*3. Supravisors of the High way.

The Register of a Parish, is a new Officer of a Parish chosen by the Parish, and allowed by the Justices of the Peace, for the publication of Contracts of Marriage, and for the taking and keeping of an Entry of all the Marriages, Christenings and Burials within the Parish. Act, Aug. 24. 1653. See for this in the same Book also. Register of a Parish, what.

The Hayward is an Officer appointed in every Town to be the common Herd of the Town, to impound the Cattel that do trespass in the Fields, to look to the Fields, to see that no Pound-breaches be made, and if any be, to present them at the Leet, and to make Replevins, &c. Kitch. f. 46. Hayward, what.

The Parish-Clerk is a Civil Officer that is in every Parish; whose work is to keep the Church clean, look to keep the things there in safety, ring the Bells as occasion is, bury the dead, and the like: And he is to be chosen and removed according to the Custom of the place, *March Rep.*101. Parish-Clerk, what.

The next and last sort of Officers are such as were the Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Officers, such as were the Ordinary, Chancellor, Register, Commissary, and the like who are now gone.

The Ordinary was an Officer instituted by the Common-Law, to have ordinary Jurisdiction in causes Ecclesiastical. His Office was partly Judicial; for he was to judg in Ecclesiastical matters about Wills, Administrations, Bastardy, Marriage, and the like: And partly Ministerial; for he was to execute the commands of the Kings Courts. See for his Office, D. & St. 28. *Perk. sect.*486. *Co.*9.37. 5. 51. upon Lit. 96. 300. and by divers Statutes. And thus in every Diocese was the Bishop of the Diocese, and under him he had his Chancellor, St. 32 *H.*8.*c.*15. and his Register to enter and record all that the Chancellor did. Ordinary, what. Chancellor of the Diocese, what. Register, what.

The Commissary was an Ecclesiastical Officer that had special Jurisdiction in some places remote in the Diocese far from the chief City, where the Chancellors principal Consistory was, where he did exercise his ordinary Jurisdiction. And he was ordained to supply the Bishops Jurisdiction and office in the out-places of the Diocese, or else in such Parishes as were peculiar to the Bishop, and exempt from the Archdeacon: For where by Composition or Prescription the Archdeacons had Jurisdiction within their Archdeaneries, as in most places they had, this Commissary was superfluous. But of this see Co. 5. in the *Ecclesiastical case, f.*9. Commissary, what.

The Official was sometimes he that the Chancellor did appoint under him: And sometimes it was taken for him that the Archdeacon did substitute in the executing of his Jurisdiction, 32 H. 8. 15. Official, what.

The Custos of the Spiritualties, was an Officer that had the Ecclesiastical Jurisdiction in any Diocese during the vacancie of the See; which did by Law belong to the Dean and Chapter. Custos of the Spiritualties, what.

This word did signifie any one that was deputed under one of these Ecclesiastical Judges; he was called Delegate or Surrogate. Delegate, what. Surrogate, what.

CHAP. CXXI.

Of Pardon, Patents, Painters, Peace, Paving, and Perpetuity.

Of a Pardon.

Pardon, what. THis word Pardon is uſed in the Law, for the remitting or forgiving for a Felonious or other offence committed againſt the Supreme Magiſtrate.

The kinds. It hath been divided from the ground, or the manner of it. 1. It hath been ſaid to be, Ex gratia Regis: which is that which the Supreme Magiſtrate doth in ſome ſpecial caſes, out of reſpect to the Perſon, or for ſome other circumſtance, ſhew and afford out of his own Royal prerogative or power. 2. Of courſe: which is that the Law gives, and the King of courſe was to grant in caſe of ſome light offence, as Homicide caſual and the like. It is alſo expreſs, or implied; which may be called, in Fait, or in Law. And it is alſo general, when it is of all offences or Felonies; or it is ſpecial, of ſome particular offence. See Stat. 13 R. 2. ch. 1. 2 R. 3. 2. Plow. 401. See Co. 3 par. Inſt. cap. 105.

Sect. 1: What offences may be pardoned, and how, See Stat. 6 Ed. 1. 9. 2 Ed. 3. 2. 4 Ed. 3. 13. 10 Ed. 3. 2. 14 Ed. 3. 15. 27 Ed. 3. 2. 13 R. 2. 1. 5 H. 4. 2. 5 Ed. 3. 12. 27 H. 8. 25: 3 H. 8. 12. 23 H. 6. 8.

How it ſhall be taken. For the Anſwer of this, take theſe Caſes.

1. By the Pardon of Murder, Manſlaughter is pardoned.

2. By the Kings Pardon of Felony or Treaſon, the Lands or Goods forfeit were not reſtored without a ſpecial Patent of Reſtitution.

3. By the Kings Pardon the blood was not reſtored, but the further corruption of blood was prevented. So that if a man have a ſon, and then be attainted and after pardoned, after this he doth purchaſe other Lands, and then hath another ſon; this other ſon ſhall inherit it.

4. Where a Statute doth give part of the Penalty to the King, and part to the Proſecutor, and after the Suit begun the King had pardoned the offence; by this the Kings part was diſcharged, but the party might have proſecuted ſtill for his part of the Forfeiture; but if the Releaſe had been by the Pardon before the Suit begun, it had been otherwiſe.

5. If the King had pardoned the not making of a Bridg, the Bridg muſt be made notwithſtanding; the offence paſt by non feaſans is only pardoned.

6. If one ſmite a man the firſt of May, and the ſecond of May the King had given him a Pardon for all Felonies, and the third of May he had dyed of this blow; by this he had been pardoned.

7. If after a man had been attainted of Felony or Treaſon, the King had pardoned him all Felonies, Murthers, and Executions of them, Outlawries, Waiving, &c. and pardon and releaſe all Forfeitures of Lands and Goods; by this his life is ſaved, and his Land, if no Office be found, but not the Goods without Reſtitution. Of

Of a Patent.

PAtents are certain Writings made and publiſhed by the Lord Protector, and ſealed with the Broad-Seal, giving to him ſomething which he had not before: And by theſe the Kings have been uſed to grant ſuch things as they have paſſed to their Subjects. And theſe are Records of a high nature; and therefore they need not Delivery, nor Livery of Seiſin, or any ſuch thing to perfect them, as the Deeds of other men do, but the thing will paſs without it. Sect. 1. Patent, what.

Of Peace.

PEace is a quiet and harmleſs carriage and behaviour towards all the people of the Nation. And Surety for the Peace, is a Recogniſance taken by a Juſtice of Peace or other that hath authority ſo to do, of a man to the Lord Protector to keep the Peace. But ſee for this a large Diſcourſe in my Book of Juſtice of Peace, 1 part. Peace, what. Surety of the Peace, what.

The Good-behaviour is much of the ſame nature with that of the Peace, and ſo is the Surety for it: But that this Surety doth comprehend the Surety for the Peace, and much more; and leſs will break this, then will break the other. See for this alſo in the ſame Book. Sect. 1. Good-behaviour and Surety for it, what.

For the Peace, theſe things are to be known.

1. That all men are required to keep it between themſelves and others, and forbidden to break it.

2. They are to do what they can to keep it between others; and for this every man is as a Conſtable.

3. There are divers Offices appointed and impowered of purpoſe to look to it, and to puniſh the breach of it.

4. It is broken, when any thing is done contrary to that quiet, friendly and harmleſs behaviour required of all men; which is an offence againſt the Law.

5. This offence hath its degrees, and is greater or leſs according to circumſtances. The greater are Felonies, Riots, Routs, unlawful Aſſemblies, Forcible Entries, pulling down of walls, houſes, and the like. The circumſtances are, Perſons: To ſtrike a Judg; for a Servant to ſtrike a Maſter, is a great offence: For any man to ſtrike an Officer, is a greater offence then to ſtrike another man. So the place doth aggravate: To ſtrike a man in a Church or Church-yard with a weapon, or to draw a weapon to that purpoſe, is very penal. So all fighting and quarrelling every where is puniſhable.

Challenge. So to challenge another to fight with him, or to receive ſuch a Challenge, is very penal. See my Book of *Juſtice of Peace, ch.*36.

All theſe are greater Breaches of Peace. The leſſer and more ordinary are, by light blows, words and geſtures. And for theſe, if men do but ſpeak any diſgraceful or provoking words to, or of one another, or uſe any diſgraceful or provoking geſtures towards another, they may be puniſhed by the Juſtices of Peace.

6. Proceſs of the Peace and Good-behaviour, ſhall not iſſue out of the Chancery or Kings-Bench, but upon Motion in open Court, and good cauſe ſhewed upon Oath, which ſhall be indorſed upon the back of the Writ. And if that cauſe be after diſproved, the Judges of that Court may commit the Offender to Priſon, till he pay the grieved his coſts and damages, St. 21 *Jac.*8. But ſee more of this in my Juſtice of Peace, and ſee Impriſonment: See Co. 3 *par. Inſt. cap.*72,73.

7. Riding armed in a terrible way, is againſt the Peace,and puniſhable, Co. 3 *par. Inſt. cap.*72,73.

Of Perpetuity.

PErpetuity was an Entail with an Addition, a Deviſe taken up to make a Perpetuity: That whereas an Eſtate-tail by a Deviſe of a Common-Recovery was made barrable; to bar and prevent this, men did entail their Lands with this Condition, That none of them that had the Land by the Entail, ſhould do any Act to put it from the next Heir; and if he did, that he ſhould forfeit his Eſtate, and that the next Heir ſhould enter upon him. But this being found of dangerous conſequence, the Law hath adjudged all theſe Conditions againſt Law, and ſo void, and by this avoided Perpetuities. See Condition.

Of a Pledg. The Pope, and Papiſts.

THis word Pledg is ſometimes applied to Things; and of this ſee in Mortgage. And ſometimes to Perſons; and ſo it is no more but one that is Surety for another, and bound to ſee that done which that other hath undertaken: And if the Principal do not diſcharge the duty for which they are bound, the Surety when he is charged may relieve himſelf by a Writ called Plegiis acquietandis. But this Writ lieth for no Pledges, but ſuch Pledges are called Pledges in the Eſpecialty, and bound by the name of Pledges. Nor in that caſe neither are they chargeable, where the Principal is ſufficient. And if the Surety be made to anſwer the debt, he ſhall hold the goods and debts of the Principal till he be ſatisfied, F.N.B. 137. Mag. char. 8. Of Poor people, Poſſeſſion, Poſſibility, and Præmunire.

Poor and Beggers.

FOr the Poor, take theſe things.

1. As touching ſuch Poor as are painful, and have need of help, they are to be relieved, and the impotent Poor to be maintained.

Sect. 1. Bridewel.

2. The idle Poor are to be forced to work, or to be puniſhed: And they may be ſent to Bridewel, a Work-houſe for idle perſons. As touching which, theſe things are to be known. 1. The Juſtices of the Peace at the Quarter-Seſſions, at the charge of the County, may erect Houſes of Correction to keep, ſet to work, and correct the poor, idle or diſorderly. 2. Incorporate the ſame. 3. And that without Licence of the King. 4. Make and appoint Bridewels or Workhouſes, the Governors thereof, and give allowance of wages to them. 5. Provide Stocks of money, and all that is neceſſary for this end. 6. Make what Orders they pleaſe, according to Law, for the Government of the ſame. 7. Thither may the Juſtices ſend, Firſt, all ſuch as be of any Pariſh, and have able bodies to work, though they do not wander, yet refuſe to work at the wages taxed, or commonly given in thoſe parts, if they have not means to live by. Secondly, Or having lawful means to live by, if they be either idle, or diſorderly perſons. Thirdly, ſuch lewd women who ſhall have Baſtards, which may be chargeable to the Pariſh: But if they will diſcharge the Pariſh of the keeping of the Baſtard, they cannot be puniſhed by Bridewell. Fourthly, any man or woman able to work, that ſhall threaten to run away and leave their Families to the Pariſh; unleſs they give ſufficient Sureties to diſcharge the Pariſh. Fifthly, And he or ſhe that doth ſo run away, is to be puniſhed as an incorrigible Rogue. 8. Theſe the Governors of theſe houſes may puniſh by putting fetters or gyves on them, or moderate whipping of them. 9. Theſe idle and diſorderly perſons muſt be in no ſort chargeable to the Country, but ſhall have Allowance as they deſerve by their own labour, 43 Eliz. 2. 7 Jac. 4. 39 Eliz. 4, 5. 18 Eliz. 3. 21 Jac. 1. Co. 2 par, Inſt. 728.

Alms.

3. None may beg Alms, nor may any give to them that do beg Alms.

Overſeers of the Poor.

4. To ſee to theſe things, there are ſpecial Officers called Overſeers of the Poor, appointed in every Pariſh.

5. Theſe Overſeers may raiſe money on the Pariſh by Rates.

6. They may binde the Poor Apprentices.

7. They may ſet up any Trade to put the Poor to work.

Hoſpitals.

8. There are in ſome places Hoſpitals or publike houſes erect for the Relief of Poor people. As touching which, theſe things are to be underſtood.

Any man that will, that may grant Land, may make and found, or take order to have made and founded a Corporation for a Bridewel, or the Relief of poor, needy or impotent people, by the name of the Maſter and Brethren, or what other names he pleaſeth. 2. Then may he, being ſeiſed of Land in Fee-ſimple, grant ſo much as is above Ten, and under Two hundred pounds a year, to it by that name in Fee-ſimple. 3. He may do this without the Kings Licence. 4. It muſt be by Deed inrolled. 5. He may give any Goods or Chattels to it. 6. After this, make what Orders he pleaſeth for the Government thereof. 7. Appoint a Viſitor, and his power, Stat. 13 Eliz. 17. 39 Eliz. 5. 21 Jac. 8. If any miſ-imployment be hereof, it may be helped by a Commiſſion to enquire of Charitable Uſes, upon Stat. 43 Eliz. 4. See the Statutes at large.

9. And in ſome places there is Money given to Charitable uſes, as to binde forth Apprentices, and the like.

10. If a man be become poor by reaſon that any rich man keeps his Eſtate from him, and ſo he becomes chargeable to the Pariſh; happily the Churchwardens may by by a Suit in Equity force the paiment of ſomething, March 90. pl. 145.

11. For poor Soldiers, Soldiers maimed in the Wars, and the Wives and Children of ſuch as were ſlain in the Wars, ſee Act 13 Sept. 1651. and Act 8 May, 1647. 10 Aug. 1647. 30 Sept. 1651.

For all theſe things, you may read Statutes, 43 Eliz. 1. 3 Car. 4. 18 Eliz. 3. 35 Eliz. 7. 1 H. 5. 3. 39 Eliz. 5. 21 Jac. 1. 43 Eliz. 4. 31 Eliz. 6. 10. 1 Jac. 25. 3 Car. 4. 7 Jac. 3. 18 Eliz. 10. 2 H. 6. 2.

Poſsibility and Impoſsibility.

POſſibility (in the Law-ſenſe) is a thing that may, or may not be: And it is either remote, or neer; or common, or extraordinary. As, that one man may die before another, is a neer, common, or ordinary Poſſibility: But that one man ſhall be married to a woman, and then that ſhe ſhall die, and he be married to another woman; this is a remote and extraordinary Poſſibility, or a Poſſibility upon a Poſſibility.

Impoſſibility is a thing that (by our Law) cannot be: As that a man ſhould be Heir to another man, whiles he to whom he ſhould be Heir is living. So, that a man ſhould give and take by one and the ſame Deed, is impoſſible, Stat. 15 H. 7. 10. 1 H. 4. 1.

Poſſeſsion.

POſſeſſion or Seiſin of Lands, is the actual enjoying of that which either in truth or pretence is ours. And ſo it is either in Deed, or in Law. In Deed, where a man hath Right or Title to Land, and he doth actually enter and put his foot upon it: Poſſeſſio, quaſi pedis poſſeſſio. Or elſe it is in Law: which is, where Lands are deſcended or given to a man, and he hath not as yet actually entred into it; yet in eye of Law he is in the poſſeſſion of it, becauſe he is Tenant to every mans Action that will ſue for the Land. So was it in caſe of the King; he was not ſaid to be in actual poſſeſſion till an Office found, F. N. B. 194. Co. upon Littleton, 111. 153. Kelw. 3. Poſſeſſion or Seiſin, what. The kinds.

Seiſure ſeems to be the ſame with Poſſeſſion; but that this is uſually applied to Lands, and that to Goods and Chattels, the which a man is then ſaid to ſeiſe when he taketh them into his hands, Co. upon Lit. 153. 118. Seiſure, what.

Eſplees is (as it were) the ſeiſin or poſſeſſion of a thing, by the taking of the profit or commodity thereof. As the Eſplees of a Common, is the taking of the Graſs or Common by the mouths of the Beaſts that common there: The Eſplees of an Advowſon, is the taking of the groſs Tythes by the Parſon preſented thereunto: The Eſplees of a Wood, is the ſelling of the Wood; the Eſplees of an Orchard, the ſelling of the Apples and other Fruit there growing; and the Eſplees of a Mill, is the taking of Toll. And this in Actions that are in the meer Right, and not meer poſſeſſory Actions, muſt be alleadged in pleading. But for this ſee Finches ley, 357. 26 H. 8. 3. 8 Ed 3. 38. Eſplees, what.

As to Poſſeſſion, in this place take theſe things.

1. Where there are two in poſſeſſion of the ſame thing at one time, the Law will adjudg him in poſſeſſion that hath the Right. Rules concerning Poſſeſſion.

2. If one only be in poſſeſſion, and he only hath the Right, the Law will keep him there. Conditio poſſidentis.

3. Where each party contending hath an equal Right, he that is in poſſeſſion is in the beſt condition; but otherwiſe matter of Right is more favoured in Law, then matter of Poſſeſſion.

4. Unity of Poſſeſſion will make a Suſpenſion or Extinguiſhment. As if the Lord purchaſe a Tenancie of his own held of him by Hariot-ſervice; in this caſe the Hariot is extinct by Unity of poſſeſſion, becauſe the Seigniory and Tenancie are now in one mans poſſeſſion. Kitch. 134. Lit. 158. Old N. B. 97. 14 H. 7. 5. Plow. 296. See Extinguiſhment. Co. upon Lit. 368.

Of a Præmunire.

Præmunire, what.

PRæmunire was a Writ, or the offence on which the Writ was grounded. The offence was by ſuing to Rome for any thing of Preſentations, or in any Suits, or ſuing in the Spiritual Courts for ſuch things as for which remedy was to be had in the Temporal Courts; and by this they loſt their goods, and were to be impriſoned at the Kings pleaſure. The puniſhment is to be inflicted in other caſes now out of uſe. See Stat. 23 *Ed.*3.5. *ch.*22. and divers others. *Co.*3 *par. Inſt. cap.*54.

CHAP. CXXV.

Of Preſence and Abſence. Prices.

Preſence and Abſence.

FOr Preſence and Abſence, this only is to be known.

1. That a Gift or Grant of Land or Goods may be to a man abſent, but in caſe where Livery of Seiſin is neceſſary.

2. In that caſe the Preſence of one may ſerve for all the reſt of the Feoffees or Grantees. For theſe things ſee *Co.*3.26,27,29.5.94. See tit. Feoffment.

3 Sometimes a Livery of Seiſin, and ſo a Deed, is weakened by the Preſence of others upon the Land. See for this, *Co.*3.23. and Feoffment, chap.

4. Sometimes the Preſence of a man where an offence is done, will make a man guilty of the ſame offence. See Acceſſary, chap.

5. Sometimes the power of a ſuperior Magiſtrate doth take away the power of an inferior Magiſtrate, *Co.*9.118.

Of Prices.

FOr Prices, theſe things are to be known.

1. Victuallers are to ſell their Victuals at reaſonable Prices, 23 *Ed.*3.6.

2. Corporations may ſet the Rates, 3 *H.*8.8. 12 *Ed.*4.2.

3. Juſtices may aſſeſs the Price of Wines, 24 *H.*8.14. And who may ſell Wines, and how, ſee Stat. 7 *Ed.*6.5. 5 *Eliz.*5. 1 *Jac.*25. 8 *Eliz.*9,10.

CHAP. CXXVI.

Of Prerogative.

Prerogative, what.

PRerogative is (in a Legal ſenſe) the Priviledg, Power, or Prehemi-nence that is given to one man above another, to have or do ſome-thing more then another. And this is either ſeparable, or inſepa-rable; certain, or caſual.

Sect. 1.

This Prerogative is greater and leſs, according to the quality of the Perſons in whoſe hands it is. And becauſe the King was, as the Lord Protector now is ſupreme and above all others, being ſtiled by Law, the Head of the Commonwealth, Father of the Country, Maſter of the whole Family of the Nation, Chief Juſtice of all England, and a kind of Petty-God on Earth; the Law (for the excellency of his perſon) did attribute to him (ſimilitudi-narily after a kind, and by way of reſemblance) divers of the Excellencies of God: as Immortality; and therefore in ſome ſenſe he was ſaid not to die, and the death of the King was called the Demiſe of the King: Soveraignty, Majeſty, Power, Verity, Juſtice, and the like.

Lord Protector.

Demiſe of the King, what.

For

For this purpoſe he is conſidered in a twofold capacity; the one Politick, the other Natural. In the firſt capacity it is, that he is ſaid juſt, yet not abſolute as God is, but limited; yet he was ſaid not to die, &c. not to do injuſtice, that he cannot do wrong. And upon this account it is, that the Lands, Jewels and Goods he hath in this capacity as Head of the Commonwealth, and are the Lands and Goods of the Commonwealth, ſhall go after his death to his Succeſſor, not to his Heir or Executor. But conſidered in his Natural capacity, he dieth like other men, and his Lands and Goods he hath in this capacity ſhall go to his Heir and Executors as the Lands and Goods of other men, and not to his Succeſſor.

And yet theſe Capacities do ſomewhat participate one of another. And therefore all Obligations and Eſpecialties made to him (whatſoever they be) ſhall go to his Heirs or Executors at his own diſpoſing. See for theſe things, Stamf. Prer. cap. 1. Co. 11. 74. 12 H. 7. 19. 10 H. 7. 18. 1 H. 7. 18. 7 Ed. 4. 17. Stat. 2 H. 7. ch. 8. 21 H. 7. 21. Co. 7. 7. 6. 27. Plow. 238. 331. and other places.

In the opening of this point, we ſhall firſt ſhew his Prerogative alone, and what he of himſelf may have and do more then any other man. Theſe things we ſhall diſtinguiſh into, 1. The things he is to have and do by the antient Common and Statute-Laws of the Land. 2. The things he is to have and do by the New Act of Government. In ſhewing of his Power, we ſhall ſhew, 1. What he may not do. 2. What he may do. 2. Then in the ſecond place, we ſhall ſet forth his Power as he is aſſiſted by, and accompanied with his Parliament. 3. And then we ſhall ſpeak of his Power, as it is aſſiſted by, and joyned with his Council.

The Lord Protector alone hath very many large and great Priviledges and Preheminencies given him (as in the place of the King) by the antient Laws of the Nation, and by the New Act of Government, above all other men. And theſe are ſome of them more Royal, as to make Judges, confer Honors, and the like. And ſome are leſs Royal, as to grant Waifs, Strays, &c. Some of them are inſeparable to his Office, and cannot be granted over and communicated to, or taken or uſed by others. Some of them are in matter of Profit; ſome in matter of Honor and State only: Some of them do conſiſt in doing, and ſome in having and taking. As in the particulars that follow. The Prerogative of the Lord Protector alone.

The King was, and the Lord Protector is ſtinted and reſtrained by the antient Laws of this Nation, thus. That he cannot make or alter Laws, or change Cuſtoms: He cannot make a man inheritable to Land, that is not inheritable; change the Cuſtom of Gavelkind, create a new Manor, change a Hariot-Cuſtom into Money, create a Copihold-Tenure. 1. What he cannot do, or have.

He may not ſell, deny or delay to any man the Law as the mean, nor Juſtice and Right as the end. He may not therefore by his Letters forbid Judges to do right, or command them to do wrong; nor, did he, are they to obey him. Much leſs may he do wrong and injuſtice. The Rule is therefore, Nihil aliud, &c. (i.) He may do nothing but what of right he may do. Potentia injuriæ eſt impotentia: It is weakneſs to be ſtrong to do evil. (See the Authorities before cited)

The King could not therefore compel his people to make or yield any Gift, Loan, Benevolence, Taxe, or ſuch like Charge, without common conſent by Act of Parliament. He could not compel men to give, or lend him money, and upon refuſal adminiſter an unlawful Oath, nor conſtrain men to be bound to make appearance before, and give attendance upon him and his Privy-Council, nor impriſon, confine, or otherwiſe moleſt them for it.

He could not without cauſe ſhewed impriſon any man, or when any man was impriſoned, keep him and his Cauſe from his Trial at Law, and ſending into the Courts of Juſtice being ſent for by Habeas corpus, &c. or command a man to Priſon againſt the Writs and Proceſs of Law.

He could not in time of Peace billet or quarter Soldiers or Mariners upon men againſt their will in their houſes, nor give Commiſſions to try men by Martial Law. For, all theſe things were declared by the whole Parliament to be againſt the Fundamental Laws of the Nation, 3 Car. The Petition of Right.

Sect. 2.

He may not make nor inflict Puniſhments or Mulcts upon any man for any thing as an offence, which the Law doth not make an offence; nor greater, or other, or otherwiſe then the Law appointeth.

Nor may he enter upon or take away any mans lands or goods, but in a courſe of Law as other men may do. And therefore it is, that if Goods be pledged for Ten pounds to a man that by ſome offence hath forfeited it to the Lord Protector, he muſt pay the Ten pounds, if he will have the Pledg.

He cannot ſuppreſs lawful Trades, nor grant Monopolies, or do any ſuch like thing to grieve or prejudice his Subjects, though it be only in Recreation, if it be lawful, Co. 11.87. Plow. 487.

All theſe and ſuch like things he may not do by the antient and ſtanding Laws of the Nation. And now by the new Act of Government it is declared, 1. That he ſhall not alter, ſuſpend, abrogate or repeal the Laws now in force. 2. That he cannot lay any Taxe or Impoſition of money, but by common conſent in Parliament, or by the conſent of his Council in one ſpecial caſe hereafter named. 3. He cannot enforce men by Laws and Penalties to change their Religion. 4. Nor alter or revoke any thing in the Writing of Government, Govern. Numb. 35,36,37,38,41.

What he may have, and do.

Now for the things which he by his Prerogative may have, receive and do more then ordinary men, they conſiſt in theſe things following.

The Lord Protector, called by the Government, The Protector of the Commonwealth of England, Scotland and Ireland; He is the Supreme Magiſtrate of the three Nations, and from him as from a fountain is all Magiſtracie and Juſtice to be derived.

In the making of Officers and Courts of Juſtice.

He now by the Act of Government hath, as the Kings heretofore had by the Laws of the Nation, the making of all ſubordinate Officers and Miniſters of Juſtice, Commiſſioners, Judges, Juſtices, Sheriffs, and the reſt; ſave only the Chancellors, Keepers or Commiſſioners of the Great Seal, the Treaſurer, Admiral, Chief Governors of Ireland and Scotland, and the Chief Juſtices of both the Benches, who by Art. 34. of the Government, are to be choſen by the approbation of Parliament, and in the intervals of Parliament by the approbation of the major part of the Council, to be afterwards approved by the Parliament. And if any new Courts of Juſtice be to be erected, he muſt do it, Plow. 498. Government, Numb. 3.26. Stat. 27 H. 8.24.

In the conferring of Honors.

All Honors likewiſe flow from him: And therefore if any be to be made Duke, Marquiſs, Earl, Vicount, Knight, or the like, he muſt make them ſuch. Government, Numb. 3.

In the ſtile of Writs, Commiſſions, &c.

All the Writs, Proceſſes, Commiſſions, Patents, Grants, and other things which did uſe to go in the name, and under the ſtile of the King, and after of the Keepers of the Liberty, &c. are now to go in the name and ſtile of the Lord Protector: And all perſons that are ſued for publike offences, are to be ſued, and acts of Juſtice to be done in his name. Government, Art. 2.32.

In his Revenue and Income.

There were divers Manors, Honors, Caſtles, Houſes and Lands, Jewels and Goods antiently belonging to the Kings as Kings, annexed to the Crown; moſt of which are ſold: But that which remaineth, he is to have. And now by the Government he is to have a conſtant yearly Revenue provided and ſetled by the Cuſtoms and ſuch other ways as he and his Council ſhall agree upon, to maintain the ſtanding Army and Navy; and to make up Two hundred thouſand pounds a year to defray the other neceſſary Charge for Adminiſtration of Juſtice, and expence of the Government, Art. 27. And by the 31 Article of the Government it is declared, That all the Lands whatſoever unſold and undiſpoſed, belonging to the Commonwealth, (except the Forreſts and Chaſes and Lands thereto belonging, the Lands of the Rebels in Ireland, in the Counties of Dublin, Cork, Kildare and Caterlagh, and the Land forfeit in Scotland in the late Wars, and the Lands of Papiſts and Delinquents in England who have not compounded) that they be veſted in the Lord Protector and his Succeſſors, not to be aliened but by conſent of Parliament.

In things forfeit.

He hath a Prerogative in Lands and Goods forfeited for offences done. And as to this, theſe things are to be known.

1. That

1. That in caſe of Attainder of Treaſon, he is to have all the Lands of the Traitor of whomſoever they be held; and his entailed, as well as his Fee-ſimple Land. By Traitors.

2. And in caſe of Attainder of Felony, he is to have all the Lands of the Felon that are held of the Protector himſelf, and all the reſt of his Lands of whomſoever they be held, for one year and a day, to the end he may make a deſtruction upon them. And in caſes of Treaſon and Felony both, he is to have the Forfeiture of all the Goods and Chattels of the Offender, unleſs ſome other can make a Title to them by Grant of ſome of the Kings, or by Cuſtom or Preſcription, (which was by Grant at firſt.) But for this ſee Forfeiture, Treaſon, and Felony. Co. upon Lit. 31 a. By Felons. An jour & waſte.

3. He is to have (in rigor of Law) as forfeit by every man outlawed in any perſonal Action, an Appeal of Maihme, or Indictment of Treſpaſs, all his Goods and Chattels of what nature ſoever for ever, and the profits of all his Land for the Offenders own life. For this ſee Outlawry. By outlawed perſons.

4. All the Forfeitures, or parts of Forfeiture that are limited and given by any penal Law to the King, Commonwealth, Keepers of the Liberties, ſhall go to him, according to the limitation of the Law. See Statutes. By penal Laws.

5. All the Fines and Amerciaments generally impoſed upon Offenders in any of the Courts of Juſtice at Weſtminſter, are given to him, and he ſhall have them, if they have not been granted away by former Kings. See Fines and Amerciaments. Fines and Amerciaments.

6. All Iſſues forfeit by default of Appearance, and the like, are given to him alſo. Iſſues.

7. If Lands be given to Superſtitious uſes, he ſhall have them as forfeit. See Uſes. Superſtitious uſes.

8. If an Alien purchaſe Land, the Lord Protector ſhall have it from him as forfeit. See Alien. Alien.

9. And all Debts due by Recogniſances and the like Engagements forfeit, are his. But for all this of Forfeiture in general, ſee 9 Aſſ. 63. 25 Ed. 3. 2. 17 Ed. 2. 14. 27 H. 8. 25. 9 H. 3. 22. Debts by Recogniſance, &c.

10. It is by the 31. Article of the Government declared, That all Debts, Fines, Iſſues, Amerciaments, Penalties and Profits certain and caſual, due to the Keepers of the Liberties, &c. ſhall be due to him to be paid in the publike Receipt, and be ſued for in his name. Sect. 3.

He is by his Prerogative to have divers other matters of profit. As, In other matters of profit.

1. The King was to have the Firſt-fruits, (that is) the profits of one year, and the Tenths after of all the Spiritual Livings. But this it ſeems is now diſpoſed to other uſes. For this ſee Service of God, and Statutes 26 H. 8. 3. 25 H. 8. 20. 27 H. 8. 8. 32 H. 8. 22. In Firſt-fruits. In Tenths.

2. He is to have all Mines of Gold and Silver, and that are mixed with other Oar, if the Gold and Silver be of the greater value, in whoſe ground ſoever they be found, Plow. 314. Cromp Jur. 112. In Mines of Gold and Silver.

3. All Waifs, Eſtrays, Wreck, do originally belong to him, and he muſt have them, unleſs any Subject can ſhew a Grant, or a Cuſtom or Preſcription for them, Co. 7. 16. Plow 315. Stamf. Prer. 40. In Waifs, Eſtrays, Wreck.

4. All the Lands and Goods that no man can make any property in, are his: As the Lands that are gotten by the Sea or Seavern are his, and not the mans whoſe Land is adjoining. In things that have no owner.

5. He is to have all the Royal Fiſhes, as Whales, Sturgeons, and the like; and Fowls, as Swans, and ſuch like, by whomſoever or whereſoever they be taken. In Royal Fiſh and Fowl.

6. The Tythes that ariſe in ſuch places in Forreſts as are not within any County, are his. In Tythes out of any County.

7. All Coin and Treaſure found under, or above ground, whoſe Owner cannot be known, doth belong to him or his Patentee, Co 7. 16. Plow. 315. Stamf. Prer. 40. In Treaſure-trove.

8. By the antient Common-Law, the King might have made any Coin he had pleaſed current here by his Proclamation only; and the Value, Weight, Baſeneſs and Fineneſs, Stamp and Print thereof were wholly at his diſpoſal. But for other Weights and Meaſures, the King could not alter them by his Proclamation. And now alſo it ſeems, in the Coin he can make no alteration, becauſe it is ſetled by Parliament, Act 17 July, 1649. Co. 5. 114. Plow 316. In Coin.

In the Lands of Ideots, &c.

9. He is to have the Cuſtody of the Body and Lands of Natural Fools and Ideots, and he is to take their Lands during their lives without doing waſte, 17 Ed. 2. 9. 32 H. 8. 46. See Ideot. He alſo is to preſerve the Lands of Lunaticks, 17 Ed. 2. 10. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 14.

In Wardſhips, &c.

10. The Kings formerly had the Wardſhips of thoſe Heirs under age, that their Anceſtors held their Lands by the Capite-Tenure; and divers profits he had by this Tenure: But all this is gone, and the Law herein now changed. See Gard. So alſo the Kings had formerly a Prerogative in the Temporalties of the Biſhops, during the vacation: But this is alſo now loſt and gone with the Biſhops.

In Temporalties of Biſhops.

In Cuſtoms and Impoſt.

11. He is to have the Cuſtoms to be paid by Merchants for the Goods and Merchandiſes that are brought into, and carried out of the Land. See for this Cuſtoms.

In making of Corporations.

12. He alone by his Prerogative may make what Corporations he pleaſeth, Finches ley 84.

Franchiſes.

13. About Franchiſes, 1. He may make and grant Franchiſes, Fairs, Markets, and the like; and it is ſaid he may impoſe a ſmall Toll where none was before. But moſt of thoſe Franchiſes which belong to him, he may grant over to others, as Felons goods, Waiſs, Eſtrays, and the like. See for this, Franchiſes. 2. He may by a Quo Warranto put any man to ſhew what Right he hath to any Franchiſe. 3. And it is ſaid he alone may infringe the Liberties he himſelf hath granted to another, without a Non omittas, Paſche 21 Jac. by Coke and Hobard in the Exchequer.

About Denizzation.

14. He alone may make of an Alien a Denizen; but he cannot Naturalize him. See Alien.

About Entire things.

15. In caſe of entire things, he ſhall have all. If one Obligee be outlawed, the Lord Protector ſhall have the whole Obligation.

There are other Prerogatives, that are not ſo much in matter of profit: As,

In Aſſent to Bills in Parliament. Royal Aſſent.

1. The King had a Prerogative called a Royal Aſſent; which was to the Election of a Biſhop by a Dean and Chapter, and to a Bill paſſed by both Houſes of Parliament. All the power that the Lord Protector hath herein now, is: The Bill agreed upon in Parliament muſt be preſented to him, and he muſt have twenty days time to conſider it; and if in that time he do not aſſent to it, nor ſatisfie the Parliament about it, the Parliament may paſs it for a Law without him. Government, Art. 26.

In Pardons.

2. He may pardon any offence (but Treaſon and Murder) after, not before the offence is committed: And he may reſtore the Offender to his lands and goods: And he may prevent a further Corruption of Blood, but the Blood that is corrupted hecannot reſtore; nor can he by his Pardon prevent an Appeal, St. 27 H. 8. 24, 25. Bro. ch. 396. March 213. Government, Art. 4.

About making of Proclamations.

3. No publike Proclamation can be made by any but by him; only in ſome Corporations they claim it by Cuſtom, and it is probable it came at firſt by a Kings grant. See Proclamation.

About a Protection.

4. No Protection for a Defendant can be to keep him off from a Suit, but by him, which can be but for a time, and becauſe he is in his ſervice, F. N. B. 28. 25 Ed. 3. 19.

About Patents to beg.

5. He only can give Patents to beg; and without ſuch a Patent no man can beg.

About making Appropriations, Forreſts and Caſtles.

6. No Appropriation could have been made, nor Tenant in Capite have aliened, or his Wife have married without his Licence. No Forreſt could have been made but by the King. But theſe things are gone, or out of uſe. No man may build a Caſtle now without his leave. Charta de Forreſta, 1 Ed. 4. 1. 27 H. 8. ch. 24.

Sect. 4. About matters of War.

7. By the antient Common-Law, the King alone commanded the Militia by Sea and Land; might have raiſed War againſt, and made Peace with any Nation, and therein might have required all men bound by their Tenure, to ſerve him according to their Tenure; but this Tenure is now gone. But all other men were by Law to ſerve the King in his Wars; only this, he could not force them to ſerve him at their own charge. For the reſt, ſee War. But now by the Government, Art. 5, 6. the Lord Protector (ſitting the Parliament) is to diſpoſe and order the Militia and Forces

Forces both by Sea and Land, and direct in all things concerning the holding of a good Correſpondence with Forein States, by conſent of Parliament; and in the Intervals of Parliament, he is with the adviſe and conſent of the major part of his Council to diſpoſe and order it. And in Art. 27. it is declared, that Ten thouſand Horſe and Dragoons, and Twenty thouſand Foot be kept and maintained in England, Scotland and Ireland, for the defence thereof, and a convenient number of Ships to guard the Seas; and that a conſtant Revenue for the Pay of them be ſetled by the Lord Protector and his Council, not to be altered but in Parliament.

8. His Perſon is priviledged, and cannot be arreſted in any caſe, nor his Goods taken for a Diſtreſs, Toll, Cuſtom, or otherwiſe; nor can he be ſued as other men are ſued. About Arreſt of his perſon or his goods.

9. He hath a Prerogative in many things above others about a Preſentment to a Church, wherein theſe things are to be known. 1. If he preſent to a Church by Lapſe, and the party die before Induction, he ſhall preſent again, Co. 9. 132. 2. The Church ſhall not be ſaid to be full againſt him till Induction, Bro. Preſent. 46. 3. There ſhall be no Lapſe againſt him, but he may preſent notwithſtanding, Prerog. Reg. cap. 9. 4. Double and treble Uſurpations cannot hurt his Inheritance to the Preſentment. And yet if a Common perſon uſurp and preſent upon him, and the Clerk of the Uſurper is inſtituted and inducted; the Lord Protector may not preſent till he have removed him by a Quare impedit, Co. 6. 30. 5. Plenartie is no bar to him in a Quare impedit, Co. 7. 28. See more in this, Stat. 13 Ed 3. 1. 13 R. 2. 1. 4 H. 4. 22. 6. And now by the new Ordinance, That ſuch as do not preſent to Benefices void within ſix moneths after the avoidance, to the Commiſſioners for Approbation, a fit perſon; the Lord Protector ſhall preſent for that turn, Ordin. March 20. 1653. 7. And where a Miniſter is put out for Scandal, &c. the Patron hath four moneths to preſent; and if he do it not in this time, it doth come to the Lord Protector by lapſe, Ord. 30 Aug. 1654. About a Preſentment to a Church.

10. No Act of his ſhall be conſtrued an Eſtoppel, to conclude and prejudice him. About Eſtoppel.

11. He hath a Prerogative above others in his Poſſeſſion; which doth lie in theſe things. 1. He cannot be put out of poſſeſſion of a permanent thing, as Land, or the like. And therefore if one that had been his Ward, had made a Feoffment of his Land whereof he had the Wardſhip, this had not put him out of poſſeſſion; nor can he be diſſeiſed of his Land. But otherwiſe it is of a tranſitory thing, as of a Ward, Advowſon, or the like. 2. No Freehold or matter of Inheritance can be tranſlated from him to another by matter in fait alone; but by matter in fait, and matter of Law together, it may be diveſted. 3. There can be no Diſcontinuance of any Land, whereof there is any Reverſion or Remainder in him. See for theſe things, 1 H 7. 19. Stamf. Prerog. 74, 75. Plow. 553. 32 H. 8. 36. 34 H. 8. 20. 4. The Sale of his Goods in a Market, will not take away his Property therein, Hil. 6 Jac. per Chief Juſtice. About his poſſeſſion and eſtate, and property of lands and goods. Diſcontinuance. Property.

12. No Laches nor folly ſhall be imputed to him, nor ſhall he be hurt thereby. And therefore a Fine, and no Claim in five years, or a Lapſe to a Preſentation of a Church cannot hurt him: And yet he ſhall be barred by twenty years poſſeſſion, upon the Statute of 21 Jac. 1 H. 7. 14. 17 Ed. 2. 8. About Laches. Time of Limitation.

13. He may by his Officers require things neceſſary for the proviſion of his Houſhold and Stable, of them that have to ſpare, at reaſonable Rates, and cannot be denied. See for this in Purveyors. About Purveyance.

14. The Kings Palace at Weſtminſter did extend from Charing-croſs to Weſtminſter-Hall: And the ſame, and ſome other of the Kings antient Palaces have divers Priviledges annexed to them, 28 H. 8. 12. About his Palaces at Weſtminſter and elſewhere.

15. His Servants in Ordinary are priviledged by Law from ſerving any ſuch Offices as may require their attendance; as the Office of Conſtables, Churchwardens, and the like. But if any ſhall put themſelves into his Office Extraordinary, of purpoſe to eſcape Offices, this will not do. Reſolution of the Judges. About his Servants.

16. He may countermand his Preſentment to a Church at any time before Inſtitution and Induction, which another may not do. Dyer 348. 292. About Countermand.

17. If

In Equality of Titles. 17. If his Title and another mans come together, he ſhall be preferred. And therefore if a man make a Feoffment in Fee of Land, on Condition that the Feoffee ſhall not commit Treaſon, and he doth ſo; the Lord Protector ſhall have the Land, Brownl. 1 par. 20. Goldsb. 20.

There are yet divers other things wherein the Lord Protector hath a Prerogative above other men: As,

In Exemption from Statutes. 1. In things that do relate to the penal Laws and Statutes of the Nation. For the opening whereof, theſe things are to be known. Firſt, that albeit he ſhall have advantage by any penal Law or Statute, as another man ſhall, though he be not named in the Statute; yet he ſhall not be bound by any Statute in the affirmative or negative, that doth reſtrain him, or that may be prejudicial to him in his Prerogative, as the Statutes of Limitation, Merton chap. 8. 32 H. 8. 2. 32 H. 6. 6. Weſtm. 2. 5. 13 Eliz. 10. Or that doth bar him of ſome Eſtate, Right, Title or Intereſt that he hath, unleſs he be particularly named in the Statute, as in Weſtm. 1. 35. 25 Ed. 3. 11. And yet ſuch Statutes as are expreſly, or by conſequence pro bono publico, being to ſuppreſs fraud, wrong, or any wickedneſs, as the Statute de Donis; theſe do binde him, unleſs he be particularly excepted, Co. 11. 68. upon Lit. 43. Co. 4. 33. 5. 14. Plow. 240. 223. Cromp. Jur. 15. Secondly, He may diſpenſe with penal Laws: And as to this, theſe things are to be known. 1. When there is any neceſſity, or reaſon of inconvenience to the party with whom he doth diſpenſe, he may diſpenſe with breach of any Statute that is penal, when the Forfeiture is popular, and given to him alone, if it be ſo that the thing to be diſpenſed with be malum prohibitum: But if the thing to be diſpenſed with be malum in ſe, or there be not ſome ſpecial reaſon for a diſpenſation, he cannot diſpenſe with it: And yet this alſo which is malum in ſe, he may pardon after it is done; and therefore it is held he may licenſe a man to coin money, but cannot licenſe him to levy a Nuſance in the High-way, Co. 11. 86. 2 H. 7. 6. Bro. Parl. 16. 21 Ed. 3. 46. 21 Jac. 3. 11 H. 6. 7. Plow. 246. 2. If a Statute ſay, that the Kings Licence in that caſe ſhall be void, and the Licence have a Clauſe of Non obſtante in it; there it is held to be good, 11 H. 7. 11. 3. But a Licence with, or without a Non obſtante, to diſpenſe with a Statute before it is made, cannot be good. And therefore it hath been held, that a Licence to carry Bell-mettal notwithſtanding any Statute that ſhall be made to the contrary, is void, 11 H. 7. 7. 23 H. 6. 18. Dyer 52. 4. He may diſpenſe with his Chaplain whiles he is attending his ſervice, Articuli Cleri, chap. 8. See for this, Co. 3 par. Inſt. chap. 86.

Sect. 6. In Suits. 2. He hath Prerogative above other men about Suits; and that either in Suits brought by him againſt others, or brought by others againſt him. As to the Suits brought by him againſt others, take theſe things. 1. He may in his Suits brought in any Court, (for he may ſue where he will) amend his Declaration the ſame or another Term, F. N. B. 7. Cromp. Jur. 18. 2. He cannot be Nonſuited in any Action, Bro. ch. 1. 8. 3. He may put in double matter, and the party muſt anſwer to it all, 6 H. 7. 5. 4. He may waive his Iſſue, and demur in Law; or waive a Demurrer, and plead to Iſſue in the ſame Term, but not in another Term, 7 H. 6. 85. 5. No Wager of Law can be in a Suit of his, or a Suit concerning him, as in Quo minus brought by another in the Exchequer, Co. 4. 95. 6. He may have an Action of Accompt againſt Executors, Plow. 321. Lit. 118. 7. His Title is always found by Office, and he is not to be put to a real Action for the Trial thereof. 8. He ſhall pay no Coſts, nor others that ſue to his uſe, Bro. c. 353. 9. He ſhall recover Coſts in all Suits brought by him upon any Eſpecialty, 33 H. 8. 39. 10. If any man be indicted of Treaſon or Felony, which is always at his ſuit, and the party accuſed deny the fact, he can have no Council to plead for him: But if it be matter of Law that he hath pleaded, he ſhall have Council to plead for him, 1 H. 7. 3. Stamf. Prerog. 151. 11. No Plaintiff that doth ſue to his uſe, ſhall pay Coſts in any ſuch Suit, 24 H. 8. 8. 12. No Juror in a Suit between him and another, may be challenged by his Adverſary; but he may challenge a Juror without ſhewing of any cauſe, Finches ley. And for Suits brought by others againſt him, he hath theſe Preheminences above others. 1. He may not be ſued as another man may be; but whoever will will ſue him, he muſt ſue by Petition in the Chancery, Stamf. Prer. 76. Plow. 553. Stat. 25 Ed. 3. ch. 19. 2. Nor can he be vouched on a Warranty, which is in the nature of a Suit; and yet one may have aid of him, 15 H. 7. 10. 3. Nor ſhall he be received, Plow. 553. 4. In caſes where he is made a party to a Suit, or may be prejudiced in any Real Action, a Writ of Search lieth, which is to ſearch in the Treaſury before the Plea proceed, if any thing may be there found to maintain his Title. But in an Ejectione firme, or Perſonal Action, this may not be granted, Stat. 27 H. 8. 28. Dyer 320. Co. upon Lit. 77. See more in the next. 5. If a thing in Action be granted to him, he may ſue for it in his own name, Dyer 232. Search, what.

3. The Lord Protector hath Prerogative above other men about the means of getting and recovery of any thing that is due to him from another. And for the opening of this, theſe things are to be known. About the Recovery of his Debt or Duty.

1. All Obligations and Eſpecialties made unto him, are in the nature of Statutes ſtaple; and he ſhall have that remedy upon them for the gaining of his Debt, as another man hath upon a Statute-ſtaple. For which ſee Stat. 33 H. 8. chap. 39. 13 Eliz. 4.

2. Though Heirs be not named in the Eſpecialty, yet they ſhall be bound by it, 33 H. 8. 9.

3. All the Lands that a man hath (of what Eſtate ſoever he hath it) his Body and Goods alſo, ſhall be ſubject to the payment of the Debts men owe to him: And if the Debtor die, all his Lands (whether entailed or otherwiſe) all his Goods and Chattels ſhall be put in Execution to ſatisfie the Lord Protectors debt. And herein alſo he ſhall have Preheminence: He ſhall be firſt paid, although he do not firſt bring his Action againſt the Executors or Adminiſtrators. And this he may recover, albeit there be no Executor or Adminiſtrator. But if there be Goods to ſatisfie, the Lands are not to be medled with. See for this, Stat. 33 H. 8. 39. 9 H. 3. 18. 27 Eliz. 3. 33 Eliz. 41. Kelw. 14. Plow. 440. Co. 7. 19. 8. 171. 7. 20. Plow. 240. 249. 301. Co. 5. 54. 11. 103. Mag. charta, ch. 8.

4. And yet if an Executor bona fide ſhall ſell a Leaſe left him, or any Iſſue in tail ſhall bona fide ſell his entailed Lands; theſe Sales are good, and he ſhall not have Execution of this Land, Plow. 240. 249. Co. 11. 93.

5. And if two Jointenants be of Land, and one of them be indebted to the Lord Protector, he may not have Execution of the other Jointenants part, 40 Aſſ. pl. 36.

6. If there be Sureties for theſe Debts, they are not to be medled with where the Principals be ſufficient and willing to pay, 33 H. 8. 39.

7. He ſhall have a Diſtringas, a ſpecial Writ to bring in the party.

8. And for Officers and others that take up his money, or are Accomptants to him, their perſons, lands and goods of what nature ſoever, in their own or their Executors or Adminiſtrators, or in the hands of whomſoever, (if they have them by Covin) ſhall be chargeable for it. For it is a Rule, That if any Accomptant to the King be, for any money, goods or chattels come to his hands, or any ſuch thing come of his into the hands of a Subject by matter of Record or matter in fait, that all the Land of ſuch a Subject is chargeable for it, and the Kings Officers may ſeiſe the ſame into whoſe hands ſoever it is come afterwards by deſcent, purchaſe, or otherwiſe: And all the Land that any ſuch Officer or Debtor hath at the time of his being Officer or in Debt, is chargeable for the Debt. But it ſeems no Goods are chargeable, but ſuch as the Debtor hath at the time of the Extent and Execution. And no ſhifting Deviſe of the Accomptant in this caſe by purchaſing Lands in other mens names, or the like fraudulent Conveyance, will prevent the Lord Protector of his full remedy againſt it. And if the Accomptant come not in to accompt, or withdraw himſelf from his Accompt, he forfeits his Office, and may be further puniſhed. See for all this, Stat. 7 Jac. 15. 27 Eliz. 3. 14 Eliz. 4. 7. Mag. charta, 8. Weſtm. 1. 19. Articuli Cleri, 12. 33 H. 8. 39. 34 H. 8. 2. Co. 11. 92. on Lit. 90. Plow. 320. Dyer 224. Diſtringas.

8. And hence it is, that his Debtor hath a kind of Prerogative-remedy by a Quo minus in the Exchequer, which any man indebted to the Lord Protector may have againſt Quo minus. againſt his Debter, ſuppoſing that hereby he is diſabled to pay the Lord Protector, and in this Suit the Plaintiff hath many Priviledges that other men have not.

9. His Suits for his Debts ſhall be in the proper Court where they grow due, 33 H. 8. 39.

In taking Diſtreſs. 10. His Officers in diſtraining for him, may do that which other men may not do, as in theſe things, (i.) For Iſſues loſt, they may diſtrain in any place, the High-way or Street, and upon the Church-land. But the Oxen of the Plough may not be taken, no, not for the Lord Protector in any caſe, if there be enough beſides to be had, Co. 2 par. Inſt. 132.

11. For Rents due to him, he may either call for them in by Proceſs out of the Exchequer, or recover them by Diſtreſs. Wherein theſe things muſt be known. 1. He may diſtrain for a Rent-ſeck, as well as for any other Rent. 2. He may diſtrain for any Rent-charge, Seck or Service out of the Land charged with it, or out of which it iſſueth, and out of the Seigniory and Manor upon any of the Lands of the ſame Tenant which he hath in his own hands, and doth manure with his own Cattel. But the Cattel of his Leſſee for life, years, or at will upon their Land ſo held, are not liable to this diſtreſs. 3. He may diſtrain for ſuch a Rent in the High-way or Street. 4. It ſeems he may ſell the Diſtreſs, if the Owner do not redeem it in the time of fifteen days. 5. But in caſe of Forfeiture of a Rent for not paiment, there it ſeems the Lord Protector muſt make his demand as another man muſt do. See for all this, Co. 2 par. 132. Brownl. 1 par. 17, 18. 6. Delay of paiment of the Rent to him, is very penal and dangerous. See Stat. 33 H. 8. 39. 7. The money in another Court may be arreſted for his Debt, Plow. 322.

Sect. 7. About Grants from, and to him.

4. He hath a Prerogative above all others in matters of Grants and Gifts. And that either in ſuch as are made by him to others, or ſuch as are made by others to him. As to the firſt, theſe things are to be known.

Infant. 1. He may, though he be an Infant and under age, give or grant any thing; and Nonage in the King would not have hurt his Grant, Bro. chap. 373. Co. upon Lit. 43.

2. Nothing but things in Action, Chattels perſonal, and tranſitory things, as Felons goods and the like, will paſs from him otherwiſe then by matter of Record, 1 H. 7. 14. Plow. 553. Dyer 232.

3. He may grant over to another a Thing in Action, a Poſſibility, a Condition, and ſuch like thing not grantable by any other man, 2 H. 7. 8. See Choſe in Action.

4. He may in his Gift or Grant except and ſever a thing that in its own nature is inſeparable, Dyer 288.

5. His Grant ſhall not be conſtrued to enure to ſeveral intents, nor to any other intent then what is expreſſed in the Deed; nor to enure to two intents, unleſs they be both expreſſed in the Patent, Plow. 502. Bro. Pat. 44. 37 H. 6. 20.

6. He may give or grant Fee-ſimple on Condition not to alien, which another cannot do, 21 H. 7. 8.

7. He may upon an Eſtate granted by him, reſerve a Rent to a ſtranger, which another man cannot do, 21 H. 7 8.

8. When it doth appear in the body of the Grant, that he is deceived either by a falſe Suggeſtion, or with a falſe Conſideration, or in a point of Law, he may avoid his own Grant. And therefore it is held, that if he grant Land to one and his Heirs-males, that this is void; for he intends by this a Fee-tail, and this in Law is a Fee-ſimple, Plow 455. Co 11; 74. 10. 110. Goldsb. 120. 20.

9. Every Gift and Grant of his made upon the ſurmiſe of the party, ſhall be conſtrued moſt beneficially for him, and moſt againſt the party to whom it is made, Co. 10. 110, 111. 37 H. 6. 20. and ſhall have a moſt benigne interpretation. And therefore if an Obligation be made by two jointly and ſeverally, and he releaſe to one of them, this will not releaſe the other, as it will in the caſe of a common perſon. And if a Leaſe be made of three Acres, reſerving Rent upon Condition, and the Reverſion is granted away of two Acres; this, if it be in the caſe of a common perſon, is an Extinguiſhment of the Condition; but otherwiſe it is if it be by the Lord Protector, Co. 5. 112.

10 Knights

10. Knights Fees, Advowſons Dowers, will not paſs by general words in his Grant, without ſpecial words to paſs them, 17 Ed. 2. 15.

And as touching Grants made to him, theſe things are to be known. 1. He cannot take any Lands, though it be but for years, but by matter of Record, as Office, or the like; and ſo the thing will paſs without Livery of Seiſin: But all Gifts and Grants to him of Land in any other manner, are void. The Power of the Lord Protector aſſiſted and joyned with the Parliament, is in theſe things. 1. The ſupreme Legiſlative power is in them over England, Scotland and Ireland; and they together may make Laws: But if he agree not to their Bills in twenty days, they may paſs them without him, *Governm. The power of the Lord Protector aſſiſted with his Counsil.

The Power of the Lord Protector aſſiſted with his Council, is in theſe things. 1. The exerciſe of the chief Magiſtracie, and Adminiſtration of the Government of the People of England, Scotland and Ireland, is in the Lord Protector aſſiſted with his Council, *Governm. And if any Abatement be made of theſe Forces, and money thereby ſaved, it ſhall be imployed to publike uſe by conſent of Parliament, when any is, or elſe by the Lord Protector and his Council, Government Art. 27, 28, 29. 4. CHAP. CXXVII.

Of Priviledges.

Priviledges, what.

PRiviledges are Liberties and Franchiſes granted to a Perſon, Office, Place, Town or Manor, or which they do claim above other perſons or places.

Sect. 1. The kinds.

And theſe are either Perſonal, or Real. The perſonal Priviledg is that which is granted to any perſon either againſt, or beſides the courſe of the Common-Law. As for example; A Parliament-man may not be arreſted himſelf, or any of his Attendants during the time of the Parliament. An Officer attending in the Chancery, or Court of Upper-Bench, or Common-Pleas, regularly cannot be ſued in any other Court, but muſt be ſued in his own Court, and is to be exempt from certain Offices: And if he be ſued elſwhere, he may remove the Suit by Writ of Priviledg, in which is included a Superſedeas, and on which he may have an Attachment. So Tenants in antient Demeſne.

Writ of Priviledg.

The Real Priviledges of Places are many: As of the Univerſities, as that none of them ſhall be called to Weſtminſter in Suits upon any Contract. Antient Demeſn-Manors, and Townſmen and Citizens in divers antient Towns to be exempt from Toll, and the like. Of this nature is Toll, Turn, Sake, Soke, Infangthief, Outfangthief, and Ordelf, and the like. All this began by the Kings Grant, but is now claimed by Cuſtom and Preſcription. For all which, and that which doth concern this Title, ſee more in Franchiſes, chap. and in Dyer 61. 328. 377. 9 Ed. 4. 53. 27 H. 8. 20. 2 H. 7. 7. Finches ley, 321. St. 5 H. 8. 6. *Cromp. Who are priviledged from ſerving Offices,

For Anſwer to this point, theſe things are to be known.

1. That all men are liable to ſerve the Offices of Conſtables, Churchwardens, and the like Offices, that are not perſons exempt by Law, as all Clergy-men, Peers, and ſome others.

2. None but Men are to ſerve theſe Offices, not Widows or Maids.

3. Clerks attending the Courts at Weſtminſter, and whoſe attendance is neceſſary, cannot be put in ſuch an Office wherein a perſonal and continual attendance is neceſſary, as Conſtable, Churchwarden, or the like: But any Office that may be executed by Deputy, they may be forced to ſerve.

4. Some that heretofore had a deſire to exempt themſelves, made themſelves Servants to the King Extraordinary; but the Judges did diſallow it; otherwiſe the Kings Servants are to be exempt.

5. Phyſitians and Chyrurgeons in London are not to ſerve theſe Offices; but otherwiſe Phyſitians, Lawyers, and all ſuch men are liable to ſerve in theſe Offices in extremity; but becauſe of their much imployment otherwiſe, they are thought fit to be ſpared, March. 30. See Phyſitian.

CHAP. CXXVIII.

Of Privies, Parties, and Eſtrangers; and Prohibition.

PRivies, Parties and Strangers are relative terms uſed in reference to many caſes of Law. The Parties to a Fine or Deed, are thoſe which are named therein as Parties to it; and in relation to them, all others are ſaid to be ſtrangers. Privies are ſaid to be ſuch, as by common intendment in reſpect of ſomething hath paſſed between them, are acquainted with a thing done, and are partakers or have intereſt in it. And theſe are oppoſed or related in this reſpect to ſtrangers, between whom no ſuch dealing or Conveyance hath been. And in reſpect of this, there is ſaid to be a Privity between them. The which is ſaid to be either in Deed, or in Law.

Privies and Privities, what.

The kinds.

Privies and Privities are alſo ſaid to be either in Eſtate, as where a Leaſe is made at will for life or years, or a Feoffment in Fee, there is a Privity between Leſſor and Leſſee, Feoffor and Feoffee, and his Heirs, &c. and they are called Privies. So if one make a Leaſe for life of Land to A. the Remainder to B. here is a Privity of Eſtate betweeen A. and B; and the Leſſor. So between Jointenants, and between Parceners till partition, Husband and Wife, Donor and Donee in Tail, Gardein in Chivalry and his Gard, Tenant in Dower or by the Courteſie, and the Heir, there is a Privity, and they are Privies. So if a Gift be in Tail, the Remainder in Fee; there is a Privity between the Tenant in Tail, Donor, and he in Remainder in Fee. So if one leaſe for years, and after the Leſſee aſſign all or part of the Term; the Aſſignee and the Leſſor are Privies in Eſtate. So if the Leſſor grant over his Reverſion, or the Reverſion eſcheat; here is a Privity between the Grantee or the Lord by Eſcheat, and the Leſſee; Co. 4. 127. 8. 42. 10. 92. upon Lit. 252.

Sect. 1. In Eſtate.

Another kind of Privies and Privities are in Contract, which is by reaſon of a perſonal Contract; and this extendeth only to the perſon of the Leſſor and Leſſee: As where a man doth make a Leaſe for years, there is ſuch a Privity between the Leſſor and Leſſee, Co. 3. 23.

In Contract.

Another kind of Privity is in Eſtate and Contract both; and this can be between none but Leſſor and Leſſee. Another kind of Privity and Privies is by Deed. And this is where a Leaſe is made for life, and afterwards by another Deed the Reverſion is granted to a ſtranger in Fee; this Grantee is called a Privy by Deed, becauſe he hath the Reverſion by Deed. Another ſort are Privies in Law, which is where there is Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant leaſeth the Tenancie for life, and dyeth without Heir, ſo that the Reverſion doth eſcheat to the Lord; in this caſe he is ſaid a Privy in Law, becauſe that he hath his Eſtate only by the Law, that is, by Eſcheat, which is an act of the Law. And he ſometimes is called a Privy in Tenure, Co. 4. 27. Perk. ſect. 432. And ſo it is if the Tenant alien in Mortmain, and the Lord enter for a Forfeiture; here is a Privity in Law. So it is, where-ever there is a Lord and a Tenant that holdeth by ſervice, Co. 8. 43.

In Eſtate and Contract.
In Deed.
In Law or Tenure.

Another ſort of Privies and Privities, are Privies in Blood, which are ſuch as are linked in Conſanguinity; as Heir general, Heir ſpecial, or Heir general and ſpecial, F. N. B. 137. Dyer 3. Co. 4. 126.

Sect. 2. In Blood.

Another ſort of Privies are Privies in Right only: So is it where one poſſeſſed of a Term granteth his Eſtate upon a Condition, and maketh his Executors, and dieth; in this caſe they are called Privies in Right or Repreſentation. So alſo Adminiſtrators are called Privies in Right or Repreſentation. Alſo the Succeſſors of every Body Politick or Corporate, are called Privies in Right, Co. 4 127. upon Lit. 27. 214. Dyer 112.

In Right or Repreſentation.

Privies in Succeſſion, are the Succeſſors of a Corporation. See more for this, Co. upon Lit. 310, 311. & 316, 317, 318. Co. 6. 58. 10. 48.

In Succeſſion.

There is a Privity alſo by Delivery. If I deliver a man Goods to carry to D. and then he ſteal them, this is Felony; for the Privity is gone, when the Goods come there, *Stamf pl.Cor.lib.*1.5.

Where a Privity is neceſſary, and what Privity, for the maintenance of an Action of Debt, Covenant, Waſte, or for Entry for a Condition broken, making good of a Surrender or of a Releaſe, ſee the Titles.

Where a Privity ſhall be ſaid to be gone or not, but to continue ſtill.

For anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes. 1. If Tenant in tail do make a Leaſe for his own life, this doth not determine the privity of Eſtate. But if he make a Leaſe for anothers life, contra, *Co.*8.75. 2. Where Tenant in tail doth become Tenant after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct; this doth not determine the privity, Co. 8.75. 3. The death of one Jointenant doth not determine the privity that was between them and the Lord above them, *Co.*8.75. But if one Jointenant aſſign away all his Eſtate, it is otherwiſe. 4. If Leſſee for life or years aſſign away all his Eſtate, the Privity in Eſtate is gone between Leſſor and Leſſee; and ſo between Jointenants, if one aſſign all his Eſtate. But if the Aſſignment were only of part of the Eſtate, or of the whole upon a Condition, and he enter for the Condition broken, it were otherwiſe, *Co.*8.75. 5. If there be Leſſor and Leſſee for years rendring Rent, and the Leſſee aſſign away all his Intereſt, yet the Privity doth continue, and the Leſſor may bring an Action of Debt for the Rent ſtill. But if the Leſſor grant away the Reverſion, the Privity and Action are gone, *Co.*8.75,76. 6. If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant is diſſeiſed, yet the Privity of Tenure doth remain, *Co.*8.43.

Of a Prohibition.

Sect. 1. Prohibition, what.

A Prohibition is a Writ framed for the forbidding of any Court to proceed in a Cauſe there depending, upon ſuggeſtion that the cognition thereof belongeth not to the ſaid Court. But the word was uſually taken for the Writ which did lie for one which was ſued in the Spiritual Court for a cauſe belonging to the Temporal Juriſdiction. And by this Writ, the Party his Counſel, the Judg and Regiſter were forbidden to proceed any further in the Cauſe, *Fitz.Br.*39. It was uſually granted to the High-Commiſſion, Council of the Marches of Wales, and other Courts now aboliſhed; and therefore we ſhall paſs them over.

The proceeding in it.

And theſe Writs iſſue out of the Chancery, Upper-Bench, or Common-Pleas, and are grantable to the Court of Requeſts, Admiralty, County-Court, Court-Baron, or any other inferior Courts of Record, or not of Record now remaining, in caſes where they meddle with things out of their Juriſdiction, or otherwiſe miſdemean themſelves, to command the Judges, Officers and Parties to proceed no further. And if they do proceed afterwards, an Attachment doth go forth againſt them for their Contempt. But if it do after appear, that the matters for which he was impleaded in thoſe inferior Courts, are to be determined there; then the party ſhall have a Writ of Conſultation, commanding the Judges of that inferior Court to proceed again, and the cauſe ſhall be remanded to them: And then no new Prohibition was to be had. See for all this, *Co.*4. 127. 11. 16. Brownl. 2 par. 1, 2, &c.

Conſultation.

Where it was grantable, or not.

many Statutes now of little uſe, and there is little of this at this day. But when it was given and granted, it was given and granted where the inferior Court did meddle beyond their Juriſdiction, as where the Spiritual Court did meddle with Lay-matters, and other Courts did meddle beyond their Commiſſion and Inſtructions, as when the County-Court or Court ſue for above Forty ſhillings, or for Charters, or Freehold, or for Treſpaſs vi & armis, &c. Or elſe they did deny Law and Juſtice to the Defendants there: As when in the Court of Requeſts they did ſue for a Debt there after the time of Limitation, or a man hath a Releaſe, and they will not allow it, or the like, *Fitz.*46,47. *F.N.B.*46. *O.N.B.*31. *Bro. The Indicavit is alſo much of the nature of the Prohibition, and was directed to the Court Chriſtian, now gone, *F.N.B.*36.

Conſultation, what.

Conſultation is a Writ, whereby a Cauſe that was formerly removed by a Prohibition out of an inferior to a ſuperior Court, is ſent back again, F. N. B. 50. March 141.

CHAP. CXXIX.

Of Property.

PRoperty is the Right that a man hath to any thing which no way dependeth upon another mans courteſie: And he that hath this, is called a Proprietary. 1. Property, what.

Property is either of Lands, or of Goods and Chattels. And of both theſe there are ſaid to be three kinds. 1. Abſolute, which is where a man hath a power to do with a thing what one will; and he hath ſuch a Right in it, that therein he hath no dependance on any other. 2. Qualified or limited, which is a Property to ſome purpoſes only. So the Husband hath property in his Wives real Chattels and Debts, by the Marriage; but in her Chattels perſonal he hath an abſolute property. So of a Pledg, he to whom it is pledged hath but a ſpecial property in it, and the general property is in him that did pledg. So Leſſee for life or years hath a qualified or ſpecial property in the Trees growing on the Land, to ſhroud them, and to have the fruit and ſhadow of them; but he cannot cut and take them away, as the Leſſor who hath the general Property of them may do by the leave of the Leſſee. Proprietary, what. The kinds. Sect. 1. Husband and Wife. Pledg. Leſſor and Leſſee.

There is alſo a poſſeſſory Property of Lands, Goods and Chattels. So a man may have a Poſſeſſion of Lands, to which he hath no Right at all. And ſuch a Property only a man hath in things which are feræ naturæ, (i.) of a wild nature, as Fiſh in a Pond or River; wild Beaſts, as Deer, Conies and Hares, and the like, in a Field or Park; or Fowl, as Pheſants, Partridges, Swans, or the like, by reaſon of Priviledg, as becauſe it is a Free Warren, or the like, and old Pidgeons in or about a houſe. And yet if any of theſe things be made tame, as a Hawk be reclaimed, or a Deer, Ferret, Pidgeon, Cony, Pheſant, Partridg, or other ſuch like Creature be made tame, ſo long as it is tame, a man is ſaid to have a Property in them as in his Oxen and Kine. But if once they get away and turn wild again, not having animum revertendi, (i.) a mind to return, the Property is gone. And yet it is held, that a man whiles his Hawk is in flight of a Partridg, or his Hounds in purſuit of a Hare, or a mans Deer get out of his Park, and he make freſh purſuit after him; that in theſe caſes he hath a kind of property in the wild creature: But if they once get away from him, every man that can may take them. Alſo if a man take wild Beaſts or Fowl, and keep them alive in a Room, though they be not tame, yet he hath a property in them whiles they are there. So alſo a man hath a property in Fiſh in a Trunk, young Pidgeons in his Houſe or Boxes, young Hawks in his Wood till they flie; And if any take them away, he may have an Action of Treſpaſs, and ſay they were his. So he may likewiſe for breaking his Cloſe, and taking away his Conies, Deer, Pheſants or Partridges out of his Warren; but he cannot ſay for taking [his] Deer, &c. Feræ naturæ.

Nor can any Felony be committed by the taking away of any of theſe wild things, unleſs they be made tame: So alſo Felony may be by taking away the Fiſh of a Pond. But in all living tame things, as in Oxen, Cows, Sheep, Hens, Ducks, Geeſe, Capons, Horſes, Swine, Goats, and their Egs and young ones, and the like; and in all dead things, as Emblements, Timber, Jewels, Houſholdſtuff, Implements, Utenſils, Mony, Plate, Corn, Hay, wood fell'd, wares, merchandiſes, Carts, Ploughs, Inſtruments of Muſick, Sect. 2. Felony.

Coaches, and ſuch like Moveables, a man may have an abſolute and general Property.

Alſo a man may have a Property in ſome things of a baſe nature, by the taking whereof no Felony can be committed; as a Blood-hound, Maſtiff, Hounds, Spaniels, and the like. And for theſe a man may have an Action of Treſpaſs, and ſay he took his Dog. And ſo a man may have a Property in Swans.

Treſpaſs.

Alſo of things that are of a tame nature, one man may have but a poſſeſſory, and another man may have the abſolute Property. As for example: If I borrow a Horſe or other thing for a purpoſe, in this caſe I have a ſpecial poſſeſſory property in it to uſe it to that purpoſe for which I borrowed it; and therefore he that hath the general property of it, which is the Lender, cannot take it away againſt our agreement; and if he do, I may have an Action of the Caſe againſt him for it. And if I borrow a Horſe to ride to Dover, and ride out of the way, the Owner cannot take him away, but may have his Action of the Caſe againſt me for it. And if one man deliver me Goods to deliver over to another, he hath the general property or ownerſhip of them, inſomuch that they may be taken in Execution for his Debt, and he may have a Trover for them: And I have ſuch a poſſeſſory property in them, that if they be taken from me, I may have Trover for them. And thus (as it ſeems) one may have a ſpecial property in a Chattel perſonal during ones life by agreement, as where for money I hire a mans Horſe for my life. And in all theſe caſes of a double intereſt or property, one of them cannot deprive the other of his intereſt or property without injury, Co. 7. 17. Plow. 524. 21 H. 7. 14. 7 H. 7. 18. 8. Dyer 306. *Co. ſup. Action of the Caſe. Trover.

Sect. 3. 2. How the Property of Lands or Goods may be gained or altered, or not.

The Property of Lands may be gained many ways: For a man may get the property or ownerſhip of Lands by Entry, by Diſcent, by Eſcheat, or by Conveyance; and by Conveyanae a man may take and get a Property in Land, and attain an Eſtate therein in Fee ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years: And ſo he may have it by Fine, Recovery, Deed, or laſt Will. And by Deed he may take by way of Feoffment, Uſe, Gift, Grant, &c. See the Titles. Plow. 524. Dyer 334.

The Property of Goods and Chattels may be gained or altered by Act in Law; ſo by Forfeiture, Executorſhip, Adminiſtration, and the like: Or by Act of the party; ſo by Gift, Feoffment, Fine, Recovery, Uſe, Covenant, Grant, Bargain, Sale, and Will. And for things that are wild, a man may get a poſſeſſory or qualified property in them four ways. 1. By induſtry, as when he maketh them tame. 2. Or by the place, when they are in his Houſe or Chamber-cloſe, or as Fiſh in a Trunk, or the like. 3. By weakneſs, as young Hawks or Pigeons. 4. By the privilege of the place, as in a Warren. But for the opening hereof further, take theſe Caſes following.

By Act of Law.

1. If a Ship be taken by Pyracie, or by Letters of Mart, and be not brought infra præſidia of that King, by whoſe Subject it was taken; in this caſe it is no lawful prize, and the property not altered, and therefore the ſale by the Taker thereof is void, March 110. pl. 188.

Forfeiture.

2. An Alien-Enemy doth take my Goods in battel, and a Denizen doth take them away from him, and the Owner doth not come and demand them before the ſun-ſet; by this they are loſt, and the property is in him that did retake them, Kelw. 62, 63, 58.

Felons goods. Waif, Eſtray, &c.

3. If Goods become forfeit by Felony, or as Goods waived, an Eſtray or Wreck; by this the Property is altered and removed from the Owner. See Waif, Eſtray, Forfeiture.

Goods attached.

4. Goods are attached to bring the party in to appear, and the Defendant doth make default and not appear; by this the Goods are forfeit, and the property altered, Dyer 338. Bro. Attach. 10.

5. If a Tenant hold by Cuſtom to pay a Hariot at his death, and he die, the property is in the Lord, 8 H. 7. 20. See Hariot.

Treſpaſſor.

6. If one take away my Goods as a Treſpaſſor, and I ſue him for this, and recover damages for it; by this the Goods by act of Law are made his, Kelw. 62, 63, 58.

7. By

7. By an Executorſhip or Adminiſtration, the Property of the Deceaſed's goods is altered and veſted in the Executor or Adminiſtrator. And if an Executor pay ſo much money out of his own Eſtate as the Goods come to, by this he hath gained the Property of the Goods in his own right, which he had before but as Executor: And if he pay but in part to the worth of the Goods, for ſo much the Property is gone. And if two Executors be, and one of them only having Goods enough to pay the Debts, and he pay them; by this he alone hath gotten the Property thereof, *Goldsb.*79. *pl.*50. *Kelw.*62. 13 *H.*4.2. Executor.

8. If a man marry a wife that hath perſonal Goods in her own right; by this the Law doth give them to him as his own Goods, 21 *H.*7.29. Husband and Wife.

9. If a Sheriff take my Goods in Execution upon a Fieri facias, yet is the Property thereof ſtill in me until he doth make ſale thereof, Dyer 98. 67. Brownlow, 1 par. 41.

10. If a man take away my Goods under pretence of Title; it hath been ſaid, this will alter the Property thereof, *Bro.Prop.*35. But I doubt of this.

11. If my Servant (I being a Mercer) take away my Goods, or my Shepherd, Butler, or other Servant take, or ſell away my Goods, unleſs it be in caſe of Sale in Market-overt, no Property is altered by this; for by this relation as a Servant, and his Poſſeſſion, he hath by Law neither general nor ſpecial Property; and therefore I may have Treſpaſs for his taking, and if he imbeſil them, it is Felony, Goldsb. 72. pl. 18. And if a man borrow my Goods, or find my Goods, or take them from me in jeſt, or as a Diſtreſs, or ſteal them from me, and no more; by this no Property is altered, 20 H. 7. 52. Bro. Prop. 27. But by a Sale hereof afterwards in a Market-overt, the Property may alter. See afterwards. Treſpaſs. Felony.

12. One doth grant to another a hundred Cords of Wood, to be taken in ſuch a Wood by the aſſignment of the Grantor; in this caſe before aſſignment nothing paſſeth, and therefore he cannot till then grant it away; and if he die before it be done, the Grant is void, and the Executor ſhall not have it, Goldsb. 184. *pl.*123. So if I ſell to one the beſt Horſe in my Stable, and there be more Horſes there then one; by this no Property is altered till the Vendee hath made election, *Kelw.*69.77. Election: Executor.

13. If the man that hath Goods or Chattels do give them away in his life-time, this will alter the Property. See Gift. Sect. 4. By act of the party.

14. If he give away his Goods by his Will, this may alter the Property. See Teſtament.

15. If a man ſell away his Goods by word or deed, by this the Property may be altered. For this ſee Bargain and Sale, and Contract. And for the further cleering of this point, take theſe things: That in every Sale or Contract of Goods that muſt alter Property, there muſt be theſe things. 1. There muſt be a good Conſideration for the Sale, and the Contract muſt be perfect. And for both theſe points, ſee Contract. 2. If it be perfect and well made, and the Goods ſold are the Sellers own Goods; there, wherever the Contract be made, in or out of a Market, it is good between the parties to change the Property, and to paſs the thing ſold to the Vendee; yea, albeit the Seller know of an Execution againſt him, and ſell the Goods to prevent it. Addition to Juſt. Doddridg, *f.*40. But ſee Colluſion. And if a Sheriff ſell the Goods he hath in Execution, the Sale is good and unavoidable, albeit the Judgment be afterwards reverſed, Dyer 98. 67. And if one ſell Corn in Sacks, the Property may be altered, though it be not delivered, 33 *H.*6.5. So it ſeems it is where Goods be taken on a Statute, and not delivered to the party Plaintiff. But before Sale by the Sheriff, the Property is not altered, Dyer 67. 98. But by a ſpecial Act of Parliament it is provided, That the Sale of Goods wrongfully gotten to any Broker in London, Weſtminſter, Southwark, or within two miles of London, ſhall not alter the Property thereof, Stat. 1 Jac. 21. 3. The Sale of any living or dead Goods (except Horſes) in a Fair or Market, on the Fair or Market-day, (be the Goods whoſe they will, and however come by) yea, although they were ſtollen, is good, and ſhall change the Property thereof and ſettle it in the Buyer. And this Sale will not only bind and conclude the parties buying and ſelling, but all others that have any right to the thing ſold, D. & S. 328. *Perk. ſect.*93. But herein theſe Cautions muſt be taken in. Contract. Sheriff. Horſes.

1. It muſt be a Sale by one that is able to ſell, and one capable of buying. And therefore it is held, That a Sale there by a tender Infant that the Buyer may perceive to be within age, or a Woman covert that the Buyer knows to be ſo, (except it be of ſuch things as ſhe doth uſually deal in, or by her Husbands conſent;) or if a man ſell to another his own Goods, theſe Sales are not good, 21 H. 7. 40. 23 Eliz. Gibſons Caſe. Co. upon Lit. 20. Perk. 713.

2. It muſt be a Sale, and not a free Gift without any valuable Conſideration, 12 Ed. 4. 10. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 713.

3. The place wherein the Sale is, muſt be in the Market or Fair: for a Sale out of a Market or Fair, is not good: Nay, it was held by Juſtice Bridgman, That a Sale in a place which in reputation is a Fair or Market, and in truth is not ſo, is not good. And if one the day before the Market or Fair buy ſtollen Goods of one, and give him Earneſt, but he hath time to take or leave till the next day by Noon, and then the things are brought into the Fair or Market, and then and there they agree, the Buyer pays his money and Toll; it ſeems this is not good to alter Property, Co. 5. 83. Dyer 99. And therefore it ſeems the whole Contract muſt be made in the Fair or Market.

4. The Sale muſt be made bona fide: And therefore if there be any Covinous agreement made between me and another to ſell the Goods of a third man in a Fair or Market, to the end to deprive him thereof: Or if I do ſell the Goods of another man ſo to one that knoweth them to be his, and not my Goods; this will not alter the Property, nor conclude him, 33 H. 6. 5. Co. 3. 78. 5. 83.

5. Some have held, That the Sale muſt be on a Working-day, and not upon the Lords day, to alter Property. And therefore it is held in London, That a Sale any day but the Lords day, there, is good, becauſe every day there is a Market-day. But others hold the contrary for the alteration of Property: And ſo it ſeems the Law is taken, that the Sale is good, and Property changed; but the parties may be puniſhed for prophaning the day. Fieri non debet, ſed factum valet: It ought not to be done; but being done, it is good, Stat. 12 Ed. 4. 8. Dyer 12. Co. 5. 83. Comins Caſe, 38 Eliz. B. R.

Sect. 5. 6. The Sale muſt be in open place, and in the uſual and proper place of the Sale of ſuch things. And therefore it is held, That a Sale of Goods in London in an open Shop where ſuch things are uſed to be ſold, as Plate in a Goldſmiths ſhop, Cloth in a Drapers ſhop, or the like; this Sale is good. But if Plate loſt, or a Jewel borrowed be there ſold in a Drapers or a Scriveners ſhop openly, or in a Goldſmiths ſhop or houſe privately behind the doors or curtains; or if Cloth be there ſold in a Ware-houſe or Back-houſe, and not in the Shop; or a Horſe be ſold in Cheapſide; that theſe Sales are not good to alter the Property, Co. 5. 83. Stat. 4 H. 7. 5. 1 Jac. 21. D. & S. 149. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 713.

7. The Goods ſo ſold muſt be the Goods of a Subject, and not the Goods of the Lord Protector; for in this caſe the Sale is not good, nor is the Property altered, Stat. 7 H. 7. chap. 12. Co. 2 par. 713. Plow. 243. Stat. 35 H. 6. chap. 39.

8. The Sale muſt be made in the day-time between Sun-riſing and Sun-ſet. And therefore it is held, that a Sale in the night is not good, Co. 2 par. Inſt. 714. Old B. Entries, 327.

9. The Goods muſt be free at the time of the Sale. And therefore it is held, That if one ſteal my Goods, and after the Lord Protectors Officer ſeiſe them, and then he or another ſell them in a Fair, &c. this Sale is naught: And therefore if I proſecute the Felon, and cauſe him to be attainted, I ſhall have Reſtitution of my Goods again, Stamf. pl. Cor. 365. Co. Inſt. 2 par. 714. 21 H. 8. 11.

Felon.

Reſtitution.

10. It hath been held by ſome, that Toll muſt be paid, or at leaſt entred upon the Book after the Sale, and that otherwiſe the Sale is not good. But the Law is held to be otherwiſe; and it is held in all caſes, and for all things but for Horſes, the Sale is good, and Property changed without paying or entring of Toll. And ſo it hath been adjudged for Law upon a Sale in any Fair or Market in England, in Cumin and Bowyers Caſe, 38 Eliz. B. R. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 714. 716. 2 & 3 P. & M. 7. 9 H. 6. 45.

But

But by the Statute of 34 H. 8. 26. the Sale of Goods or Chattels ſtollen in any Market or Fair in the Dominion of Wales, will not change the property there, but the Owner upon proof thereof ſhall have his Goods again. But in England the Law is otherwiſe.

11. If the thing ſold be a Horſe beaſt that is ſtollen; the ſale will not be good, nor property changed as to the Owner of the thing ſold, unleſs all theſe things following do concur in the caſe.

1. It muſt be ridden, led, walked, driven, or kept ſtanding by the ſpace of one hour together at the leaſt, between ten of the clock and ſun-ſet.

2. This muſt be in an open place, and in the places wherein Horſes there are commonly uſed to be ſold, and not within any Yard, Back-ſide, Houſe, or other privy or ſecret place.

3. All the parties to the Contract there preſent in the Fair, &c. muſt come together with the Horſe to the Toll-taker or Book-keeper.

4. The Book-keeper muſt then write down in his Book the names, Chriſtian and Sirnames, and dwelling-places of the parties to the Contract, the colour, and one ſpecial mark at the leaſt of the Horſe. Sect. 6.

5. If any Toll be due, it muſt be paid; otherwiſe a Penny muſt be paid for the Entry.

6. Either the Book-keeper or other Officer of the Fair or Market muſt take upon him the perfect knowledg of the Seller, both his names and place of dwelling, which muſt be entred into the Book there; or elſe the Seller muſt bring to the Book-keeper or other Officer of the Fair, one ſufficient perſon a Voucher, that muſt teſtifie that he knoweth the Seller, his true names, myſterie, and place of dwelling. And it is held, this Branch extendeth to all Horſes, ſtollen or not ſtollen. Voucher.

7. Not only the Chriſtian name, Sirname, Myſterie, and place of dwelling or reſiencie of the Seller, but alſo of the Voucher (if any be) muſt be entred in the Book.

8. The very true price bona fide given for the Horſe, muſt alſo be entred in the Book. But in this caſe it ſeems there needs not any large Entry; and no more is required in the Entry, but that the Book-keeper or Voucher did know the parties, &c. For if they ſay they know, and do not know, yet the Sale and Entry is not good. And yet if in truth it be all falſe that is teſtified by the Voucher or the Book-keeper, in this caſe the Sale is void. But the Book-keepers Entry prima facie ſhall be preſumed to be true, till the contrary be proved, that there is no ſuch perſon as the Seller owned by the Book-keeper or Voucher: But being proved that none ſuch was there at the time of the Sale, the Sale is void. And all this was agreed by the Court at Glouceſter-Aſſiſe, by the Lord Chief Baron Wild, Trin. 10 Car. B.R. A. brought Trover againſt B. for a Horſe: B. pleaded Sale and Toll paid, &c. A. replied, that there were no ſuch Vouchers in rerum natura, (i.) in being: B. demurred, and it was adjudged for A. the Plaintiff upon a ſpecial Verdict. Stat. 2 & 3 Ph. & M. 7. 2 Ed. 3. 15. 5 Ed. 3. 3. 27 H. 6. 5. But all this notwithſtanding, a man may without all this caution ſell in a Fair or Market his own Horſe to which no man hath any pretence of Right. See more, Stat. 31 Eliz. 12. 3 Eliz. 22. Co. upon Littleton, 714, 715.

9. There are divers other things by the Statutes required herein: As, that the Rulers of Fairs muſt appoint, 1. A ſet and fit place for the ſale of Horſes. 2. A ſufficient Book and Book-keeper. 3. That the Book-keeper ſhall take his Toll, if any be due, between ten a clock and ſun-ſet. 4. That he deliver his Book to the Ruler of the Fair. 5. That no man ſhall make a falſe Voucher, or vouch that he knoweth not to be true. 6. That no Book-keeper ſhall enter that as of his own knowledg, which he knoweth not to be true. 7. That the Book-keeper ſhall give to the Buyer requiring it, and paying two pence, a Note in writing of the Contents of the ſame Bargain, under the Book-keepers hand. But theſe extend not to the prejudice of the Sale; for albeit theſe be omitted, yet the Sale is good, and Property changed.

Sect. 7.

10. And if any ſtollen Horſe be ſold according to all theſe Conditions; yet if the Owner thereof, his Executor or Adminiſtrator, or any other by his appointment ſhall within ſix moneths of the Felony done, claim, and by two Witneſſes within forty days after prove his claim, and that the Horſe was his within ſix moneths before the claim, before a Juſtice of Peace in or neer the place where the Horſe is found, and ſhall pay or offer to pay ſo much money as the Buyer gave, or ſhall depoſe before the Juſtice of Peace he did give for him; the Property is ſaved to the Owner, and he may either take him, or bring an Action for him, Stat. 31 Eliz. 12. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 715,716,717,718.

11. If one ſell my Goods unduly, not as before is ſet down, I may have them again, for the Sale will not bind me that am a ſtranger; but the Sale is good between the parties themſelves: And the Goods being duly ſold as before, will change the Property, albeit the Goods be the Goods of an Infant, Woman-covert, Ideot, in priſon or beyond ſea; and ſuch as have right to them in anothers right, as an Executor or Adminiſtrator, D. & S. 39. Plow. 243. Co. 2 par. Inſt. 713,714.

12. If I promiſe another for good conſideration to deliver him twenty Buſhels of Corn by a day, by this no property hereof is altered. So if I for good cauſe buy twenty Buſhels of Corn of a man at large, and not in Sacks, or ſet apart in a place certain; by this the property thereof is not altered. Otherwiſe it is if it be divided, and in a place certain, Kelw. 77.69.

13. If one covenant with me, That if I pay him Ten pounds ſuch a day, I ſhall have all his Goods in ſuch a place, and I pay him the Ten pounds; this is a good Sale, and the Property is in me, 27 H. 8. 16.

But by a bare ſtealing or taking away of Goods, or borrowing, without a Sale in a Market or Fair, no Property is altered; and therefore the Owner may ſeiſe them where-ever he find them. See more in Chattels and Contract.

3. Where a Property is determined, or not.

If one have my Corn, and after he turn it into Malt; or my Money, and turn it into Plate, or my Plate into Money; or my Timber, and turn it into a Houſe: In theſe caſes I may not take the things in kind, for hereby my Property is gone. And yet if the thing remain in kind as it was, and may be known, though it be mixed with another thing, or ſomewhat altered; as if one take my Cloth, and make a Garment; or my Leather, and make Shoes or Boots of it; or my Iron, and make a Bar of it; or my Timber, and make a Bar of of it: In theſe and ſuch like caſes it is ſaid I may take my own again, 5 H. 7. 15.

Alſo if one take my Sow, and after ſhe happen to have young Pigs; in this and ſuch like caſes the Property doth continue, and I may take the old and young together.

Of Prophecies, Proclamation, Protection, Proteſt.

THE Penalty of publiſhing any falſe Prophecie, to the intent to make Inſurrection or Diviſion, ſee St. 5 Eliz. 15. Co. 3 par. Inſt. cap. 55. Prophecies.

Proclamation is a publike notice given of any thing whereof the Supreme Magiſtrate thinketh fit to advertiſe the people: As that if a man do not render himſelf at ſuch a time, he ſhall be reputed a Rebel; or to forbid, or command ſuch a thing. This is a piece of the Prerogative of the Lord Protector; and is in caſe of neceſſity, and for a time, of the force of a Law, called therefore Lex temporis: And many things he may do by this alone, as change the Coin of the Nation, &c. For which ſee Prerogative. And none other may do this, but Corporations in ſome caſe, and where they have a Cuſtom for it. See for this, Stat. 31 H. 8. 8. 7 R. 2. 6. 34 H. 8. 13. 18 Ed. 6. 12. Cromp. Jur. 42. Bro. Proclam. 10. See Prerogative. And yet where any Law doth enable to it, as about Fairs, or the like, there it may be done. See Fairs. This word is uſed for other Proclamations, or Proclamations in other caſes. For which ſee Cromp. Jur. 14. 16. 20. 21. Stat. 3 R. 2. 3. 8 H. 6. 10. 13 H. 4. 7. 33 H. 8. 9. 5 Eliz. 9. 23 H. 6. 11. 7 H. 4. 15. 32 H. 8. 9. 2 Ed. 3. 15. 5 Ed. 3. 5. and others. Sect. 1. Proclamation.

Protection is a word of divers ſignifications: For there is a general Protection of the Lord Protector, which is extended to all Subjects, Denizens and Aliens, whoſe offences have not made them uncapable thereof. And there is a particular Protection by Writ. And ſo it is of two ſorts: One to give a man freedom from Suits, which lieth for a man that is to paſs over the Sea in the Lord Protectors ſervice, to quit him in the mean time from all Pleas between him and other men, except Pleas of Dower, Quare Impedit, Aſſiſe de novel Diſſeiſin, Darrein Preſentment, Attaints, and Pleas before the Juſtices in Eyre. The ſecond is for the ſafety of a mans Perſon, Servant, Goods, Lands and Tenements whereof he is lawfully poſſeſſed, from violence, &c. Theſe are now of little uſe. See a large Treatiſe of them in 25 Ed. 3. Stat. 5. 5 Ed. 3. 7. 13 R. 2. 16. 7 H. 4. 4. 1 R. 2. 8. Co upon Lit. 131. and in many other places. See for the firſt, Allegeance. This word alſo is ſometimes taken for the Priviledg of a Parliament-man, and his Servants from Arreſt, during the Parliament-time: For which ſee Priviledg. Protection.

This word Proteſt hath two ſignifications in Law. The one is by way of Cautel, to call Witneſs (as it were) or openly to affirm, that he doth either not at all, or but after a ſort yield his conſent to an Act; as to the proceeding of a Judg in a Court wherein his Juriſdiction is doubtful; or to anſwer upon his Oath further then he is bound, Plow. 176. Another is by way of Complaint, to proteſt a mans Bill. For example: If I give money to a Merchant-man in France, and take his Bill of Exchange to be repaid in England by one to whom he aſſigneth me; if at my coming I find not my ſelf ſatisfied to my content, but denied or delayed, then I may go in the Burſe, or ſome open concourſe of Merchants at the Exchange or elſwhere, and proteſt that I am deceived by him; and thereupon if he have any Goods remaining in any mans hand in this Land, by the Law of Merchants I am to be paid out of them. Proteſt. what. Merchants. Bill of Exchange.

CHAP. CXXXI.

Of Purchaſe.

Purchaſe, what.

PUrchaſe ſtrictly taken, is the Poſſeſſion that a man hath in Land or Tenements, which he hath by his own act, and not by title of deſcent from his Anceſtor, Co. lib. Inſt. f. 3. par. 1. And a Purchaſor is he that comes to Land by theſe means. But it ſeems this word [Purchaſe] ſometimes hath a larger extent, and is taken by way of oppoſition unto Deſcent; when one hath, or cometh by Land in any other nature by Limitation of Eſtate, then by Deſcent.

For Anſwer to this Queſtion, take theſe Caſes.

Sect. 1. Where an Heir ſhall be ſaid to be in as a Purchaſor, and not by Deſcent, or not:

1. When an Eſtate doth originally reſt in the Heir, and was never, neither might ever by any poſſibility be in the Anceſtor; there the Heir ſhall be ſaid to be in the nature and manner of a Purchaſor; and he ſhall never be ſaid to be in by Deſcent, where no Right, Title, Action, or Uſe doth or might deſcend to him from the Anceſtor. As if a woman conſent to a Raviſher, and have a daughter, and ſhe enter by the Statute for the Forfeiture; now ſhe ſhall be ſaid to be in by Purchaſe: And therefore a ſon born after ſhall never deveſt this out of the daughter, Co. 1. 95. 98. 5 Ed. 4. 6. See Enfant.

Enfant born after.

2. So if a Remainder be limited to the right Heir of J. S. and he die having a Daughter; the Daughter is in nature of a Purchaſor, and not by Diſcent; and therefore the Son born after ſhall never have it from her, Co. upon Littleton, f. 164.

3. So if a power of Entry for a Condition broken deſcend, and the Daughter enter for the breach of a Condition, and after the Son is born, the Son ſhall never have it; and yet here the Daughter ſhall be ſaid to be in by Diſcent, eſpecially in caſe where ſhe doth pay the money to redeem Land conveyed away upon Condition. But if the Condition were broken in the life of the Anceſtor, being to be performed by the Feoffee, &c. or it were performed by the Feoffor, and the Land deſcend; here the Daughter ſhall be in by Deſcent, and the Son born after ſhall have it, Co. 1. 99. lib. Inſt. par. 1. f. 76.

4. Where by any Conveyance to the Anceſtor, an Eſtate for years only is limited to him, the Remainder to another for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Leſſee for years; there the Heirs ſhall be ſaid to be in as Purchaſor. So if a Remainder for life be limited to the Heir in the ſingular number, there the Heir ſhall be ſaid to take by Purchaſe for life: But where the Anceſtor taketh an Eſtate of Freehold firſt, contra. And whether the Remainder be raiſed by way of Uſe, or by Act executed, it is all one. See Cromp. Juriſd. in Court of Wards, in toto. Co. 1. 104. & ſuper Lit. 319.

5. But in caſe where an Heir taketh any thing which might have veſted in the Anceſtor, although it do veſt firſt in the Heir, and do never veſt in the Anceſtor, yet the Heir ſhall be ſaid to be in in nature, courſe and degree of Deſcent, and not of Purchaſe; though not directly and to all purpoſes, as to take away the Entry of one that hath right, to have his Age, or be in Ward: As if a Fine be levied to A. in Fee, and he die before Execution, here his Heir ſhall be in by Deſcent. And therefore if there be an elder Son, and he die, his Wife with child, and the ſecond Son enter, the Child of the eldeſt Son, after he is born, ſhall ouſt him and have the Land. So of a Recovery. So if one have a Seigniory by Deſcent, and after the Tenancie eſcheat, and after a Son that is next Heir is born, he ſhall have the Tenancie, Co. 1. 98. 106. Bro. Age 51. Co. lib. Inſt. f. 22. 1 par. 37. 6.

So

So if two exchange Land, and the one entreth, and the other dieth before his Entry, and then his Heir entreth (as he may) he is by way of Deſcent; and therefore if in that caſe a Son be born after, he ſhall ouſt the Daughter and Heir that entred before, Perk. 57.

6. So if one do covenant with me, That when J. S. ſhall convey to him the Manor of W. he will ſtand ſeiſed of the Manor of J. S. to the uſe of me and my Heirs, and I die, and after J. S. convey to him the Manor of W. Now in this caſe my Heir ſhall be in this Land in nature of Deſcent, and not by Purchaſe, Co. 1. 99.

7. So if a Feme conſent to a Raviſher, or a Remainder be limited to right Heirs as in the caſes above: If he that ſhould firſt enter die before Entry, and the younger Son enter, and after the Son of the elder Son is born, that Son ſhall enter for Heir, he ſhall be ſaid to be in in nature of a Diſcent, Co. 1. 99.

8. Where the Eſtate is made by way of Limitation in the intent of the parties, there the Grantee ſhall never take it by way of Purchaſe; but rather then ſo, the Grant ſhall be void. As if one leaſe for life on Condition, that if the Leſſor die without Heirs, the Leſſee ſhall have the Land to him and his Heirs, and after the Leſſee dieth, and then the Leſſor dieth without Heir, the Leſſees Heir ſhall not have it, Plow 48. 3.

9. Where an Anceſtor by any Gift or Conveyance taketh an Eſtate of Franktenement to himſelf, and in the ſame Conveyance another Eſtate is limited mediately, or immediately to his Heirs in Fee or in Tail; in ſuch caſes [his Heirs] are words of Limitation, and he ſhall be in by Deſcent, not by Purchaſe.

Who is capable of a Purchaſe, and to be a Purchaſor, and by what names, See Diſability and Grant.

Of Purveyors.

Purveyors were ſuch Officers as did take up and make proviſion for the Kings Houſhold, Horſes, Wars and Caſtles: And as touching whom theſe things are briefly to be known. Purveyors, what.

11. They cannot take Timber growing upon the Inheritance of a Subject, without his leave, no more then the Inheritance it ſelf, Co. 2 par. Inſt. 35.

CHAP. CXXXIII.

Of Quantity, Weights and Meaſures.

Quantity, what.

The kinds.

Quantity is a certain meaſure, according to which any thing is ſaid to be long, broad, or deep. And Meaſures (in conſideration of Law) are either of Land, or of other things. And thoſe things are either things which are meaſured by the Pint, Quart, &c. which are wet, as Oyl, Wine, and the like; or dry, as Whear, Apples, and the like: Or ſuch as are meaſured by the Ell, Yard, &c.

Sect. 1. Virgata terræ or Yard-land, what.

A Yard-land (in Latine, virgata terræ) is a quantity of Land called by this name; but no certain quantity: Nor is it all one in all places, (as ſome would have it) juſt twenty Acres in all Countries: For in ſome Countries it containeth twenty Acres, in ſome twenty four, in ſome thirty Acres, according to the eſtimation of the Country. And therefore it is, that a Fine de Virgata terræ is void for incertainty, Co. upon Lit. 69.

Oxgang of Land what.

An Oxgang of Land is not a certain quantity of Land, as fifteen Acres, whereof eight make a Plough-land; but it it is a certain quantity of Land ſo called, and more or leſs according to the eſtimation of Countries, Co. upon Lit. 69.

Librata terræ, what.

Librata terræ (as ſome ſay) containeth four Oxganges, and every Oxgange thirteen Acres. Others ſay it is ſo much as is worth twenty ſhillings a year.

Hide of Land, what.

A Hide of Land alſo is an uncertain quantity of Land by that name: Some men think it to be as much as may be plowed by one Plough in a year; others would have it a hundred Acres, and that eight Hides do make a Knights Fee. But it is to be reckoned according to the eſtimation of the Country.

Selion of Land, what.

And ſo is a Selion of Land (in Latine, Selio terræ) it ſometimes ſignifieth an Acre, ſometimes half an Acre, ſometimes more, and ſometimes leſs; and ſometimes a Ridg, Cromp. Juriſd. 222. It cannot be demanded in a Fine, it is ſo uncertain.

Fardingdeal, or Farrundel of Land, what.

1. That

Sect. 4. 1. That Weights and Meaſures are uſed in reference to Land, dry things, and moiſt things.

2. There are two ſorts of Weights in uſe with us at this day. The one called the Troy-Weight, which is twelve ounces, or twenty ſhillings Sterling. Twenty Penny-weight makes an Ounce, twenty four Grains make a Penny-weight, twenty Mites make a Grain, twenty four Droits make a Mite, twenty Perits make a Droit, twenty four Blanks make a Perit, Act 17 July, 1649. The Troy-Weight which is twelve ounces in the pound, and no more; by which Pearls, Precious-Stones, Electuaries, and Medicinable things, Gold, Silver, and Bread is weighed.

The other is called Averdepois, which is ſixteen ounces, or twenty five ſhillings Sterling in the Pound: And by this all other things, as Grocery wares, Phyſical Drugs, Butter, Wax, Wooll, Steel, Lead, and the like are weighed. But to the Averdepois weight there is allowed to every Hundred twelve pound; ſo as a hundred and twelve pounds makes a Hundred weight, fifty ſix pounds half a Hundred weight, and twenty eight a Quarter. Three Barley-corns make the Inch, four Inches a Handfull, twelve Inches a Foot, three Foot make a Yard, three Foot and nine Inches make the Ell; five Yards and a half, which is eighteen Foot and a half, make a Perch, Pole or Rod, 27 Ed 3. 10.

3. That the Meaſure and Eſtimate of Land is to be eſtemed according to the Country, and not according to the Statute: And ſo all Contracts for Land or other things, by word or in writing, are to be underſtood and expounded. And therefore if a Sale be of Tods, Buſhels, Yards or Ells, it ſhall be meaſured and accounted according to the Cuſtom of the place, but not according to the Statute. Therefore a Grant of a Selion, or Oxgang, or Hide of Land, is to be accounted according as it is commonly taken in the place where the thing doth lie. A ſale of Acres of Wood, Acres by the Meaſure of the Country: And ſo of Meaſures of Corn, Tuns, Weights, Buſhels, and the reſt.

4. There muſt be but one Scantling of Weights and Meaſures throughout the whole Land:

Eſtandard or Standard of the Exchequer.

5. This Weight and Meaſure muſt be according to the Standard of the Exchequer.

6. The ſame muſt be ſealed with the Protectors Seal; the Peck, Gallon, Pottle, Quart and Pint, Buſhel and Half-buſhel, and none elſe, by the opinion of ſome men.

7. The Averdepois-Weight is allowable according to the Cuſtom of the place.

8. Meaſures of Corn muſt be ſtriked all of them.

9. The Meaſure and Weights wherewith men buy and ſell, muſt be ſealed and marked by the Officer to be according to the Standard in the Exchequer, which is the principal or ſtanding Meaſure of the Lord Protector, to the ſcantling whereof all the Meaſures through the Land are, or ought to be framed by the Clerk of the Market, Aulneger, and other Officers according to their Function.

10. To look to this, there is to be an Officer of purpoſe, called the Clerk of the Market, and in Corporations commonly the Head-Officer, who hath this Office alſo.

11. If any of theſe Officers refuſe to ſeal the Weights and Meaſures that are good, or ſeal ſuch as are not good, they forfeit Five pounds.

Of Records.

REcords are authentical and uncontrollable Writings, which are of that high and ſacred nature, credit and authority in the Judgment of Law, that they or any thing contained in them cannot be apparently or directly gainſaid or denied; neither have they need of any proof, for they prove themſelves, and muſt be tryed only by themſelves, and are the beſt Evidences to prove any thing for others, that can be; and it is a proof before the proof of Witneſſes. And though they do contain apparent falſhood, and tend to the miſchief and overthrow of any perſon, yet they are not to be denied: And therefore no Averment lieth againſt them, as to ſay they were made at any other time then they bear date. And hence it is, that if one be certified in the Exchequer to be outlawed, he may not deny it, nor hath he any remedy but to reverſe it. And hence it is, that to raſe or imbeſil them is ſo great an offence, as Felony. (See Crown.) Sect. 1. Records, what. Evidence. Proof. Averment. Raſure. Imbeſilling of a Record.

If a man have occaſion to uſe a Record, he may have a Copy or Tranſcript of it, or he may have it exemplied under the Great Seal. For if a man will plead a Record in another Court then that wherein it doth remain, and it be denied, and no ſuch Record be pleaded to it where an Action is brought upon it, or it be pleaded in bar of an Action; there he that is againſt the Record, may demand Oyer, that is, ſight of the Record; and then the other party ſhall have day to bring the ſame into the Court. And if then he bring it not, this ſhall be ſaid to be a Failer of the Record, and Judgment ſhall be given againſt him. It muſt therefore be exemplified under the Great Seal, and then it muſt be ſent into the Chancery by Certiorari, and ſo brought into the Court where it is denied: And an Exemplification under the Seal of the ſame Court wherein it is, is not ſufficient, if the Record it ſelf be denied: But if ſomething in it only be denied, it may be good enough to give in Evidence to a Jury. And ſo alſo a true Copy of it being proved by Witneſs, is ſufficient to give in Evidence to a Jury. Tranſcript of a Record, what. Exemplification of a Record. Nul tiel Record, what. Oyer de Record, what. Failer de Record, what. Certiorari. Evidence.

CHAP. CXXXV.

Of a Common-Recovery.

Sect. 1. Common-Recovery, what.

A Recovery in general, is the obtaining of any thing injuſtly taken or detained by Judgment or Trial of Law. And it is either a Common-Recovery, which is ſuch a Recovery as is uſed for a Common Aſſurance of Land; or other Recovery, which is not uſed as an Aſſurance of Land. And the Common-Recovery that is uſed for the Aſſurance of Land, is nothing elſe but fictio juris, or a certain form or courſe ſet down by Law to be obſerved, for the better aſſuring of Lands and Tenements to men. And this is ſomewhat after the example of the Recovery upon Title, which is without conſent, and contrary to the will of him againſt whom the ſame is had: For there is in this a colourable Suit, wherein there is a Demandant, which is called the Recoverer; and a Tenant, which is called the Recoveree; and one that is called to warrant upon a ſuppoſed Warranty, which is called the Vouchee, Co. on Lit. 154. 23 Eliz. ch. 3. Doct. & St. 41. Weſt. Sym. Recovery.

Recoverer. Recoveree. Vouchee.

2. The kinds.

The Common-Recovery is ſometimes with a ſingle Voucher, which is when the Writ is brought againſt him that is to paſs the Land immediately, and he doth vouch over the Common Vouchee. And ſometimes it is with a double Voucher, which is when the Writ is brought againſt another to whom he that is to paſs the Land hath aliened it, and he doth vouch him that is to make the Aſſurance, and he doth vouch over the Common Vouchee: And this is the ſureſt way, and the ſafeſt kinde of Recovery.

3. The manner and order of ſuffering a Common-Recovery.

In this formality of a Common-Recovery, the courſe is, That by agreement of the parties, a real Action is begun by a Writ of Entry, brought by him that is to have the Land aſſured againſt him that is to make the ſame Aſſurance, if it be with a ſingle Voucher, or if it be with a double Voucher, againſt him to whom he that is to make the Aſſurance hath aliened the Land. And in this Suit, the Recoverer that doth bring the Action, doth ſurmiſe that the Tenant againſt whom the Writ is brought hath no right to the Land, but that the Recoverer hath right thereunto, and the Tenant came to it from ſuch a ſtranger whom the Demandant doth name. And to this the Tenant doth appear in perſon, or by an Attorney, and then doth enter into defence of the Land: But in pleading doth vouch to Warranty, (i.) doth alleadg that he bought the Land of J. S. a ſtranger, who in the Conveyance thereof bound himſelf and his Heirs to warrant and make good the Title to him or them to whom it is conveyed: And thereupon he prayeth that J. S. may be called in to defend the Title; and then he is allowed by the Court to call in J. S. to ſay what he can for the juſtifying of his right to the Land before he ſo conveyed it: And hereupon J. S. doth appear, and make ſhew as if he would defend the Title, but doth pray a further day may be aſſigned to him to make his defence; which being granted him by the Court, at the day appointed, he by agreement, Covin, and aſſent of the parties doth not come in, but make default: And thereupon the Land is to be recovered by him that brought the Writ againſt the Tenant, and he is left for his remedy to J. S. upon his Warranty; and accordingly Judgment is given by the Court, That the Demandant or Recoverer ſhall recover the Land demanded againſt the Tenant, and that the Tenant ſhall recover ſo much Land of J. S. of his own Land in recompence for the Land recovered from him, which he ought to have warranted and defended, but ſuffered to be loſt. And this Recovery over, is called a Recovery in Value, or pro rata: But if the Recovery be with a double Voucher, or a treble Voucher, J. S. is upon his appearance to call or vouch to warrant J. D. and to alleadg in the ſame manner as the Tenant doth, and ſo pray that J. D. may come in, and thereupon J. D. doth come in and appear, and make default. And ſo if there be more more Vouchers; and then there muſt be ſeveral Recoveries over in value againſt every one of them: But he that is the laſt Vouchee, is always the Common Voucher, who is one of the Cryers of the Court of Common-Pleas; a man not worth any thing, and one that hath no Land to render in value upon the ſuppoſed Warranty. And by his Deviſe, grounded upon the ſtrict Principles of Law, the firſt Tenant doth willingly let go the Land for the aſſurance of the Purchaſor, and yet in truth hath no recompence over, becauſe the Vouchee hath no Land to render in value. And by this means, if one hath an Eſtate-tail in Lands which he is deſirous to ſell, or to convert into an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, the ſame is commonly done: For the Tenant in Tail doth cauſe the Purchaſor, or ſome friend of his, to bring a Writ of Entry againſt him for this Land, and he appeareth to the Writ, and in pleading ſaith, That the Land came to him or his Anceſtors from ſuch a man or his Anceſtors, who in the Conveyance bound themſelves to warrant it: And thereupon that man is called in, who doth appear and make default, and thereupon Judgment is had againſt him in manner as aforeſaid. Or if he would have the Recovery with a double Voucher, then doth he by Fine, Feoffment, or Deed of Bargain and Sale inrolled, diſcontinue the Land; and then cauſe the Recoverer that is to have the Land, to bring his Writ of Entry againſt the Diſcontinuee, and he doth vouch the Tenant in Tail, who doth vouch over the Common Vouchee; and ſo it is done: And by this the Eſtate-tail that the Tenant in Tail hath or had, is barred and bound, for that it appeareth now he had no power to entail the Land whereunto he had no juſt title; and beſides he ſhall recover a recompence in value, and this is adjudged in Law to go in ſucceſſion of Eſtate, as the Land ſhould have done: Which is the reaſon why the Recovery is a Bar to all that are in Remainder and Reverſion, as well as to the Iſſues in Tail. Co. 1. 94. 10. 43. 45. F.N.B. 134. Co. 9. 6.

Recovery in value, or pro rata, what.

And in the ſuffering of theſe Recoveries, the Tenants and Vouches do appear moſt commonly in perſon in Court, and ſo the Recovery is finiſhed in Court preſently without more doing. But ſometimes they will not, or cannot appear in perſon; and then they do uſe to appear and ſuffer the Recovery by Attorney: And in this caſe there muſt be a Conuſance for a Warrant of Attorney taken, to authorize the Attorney or Attorneys in this manner, if it be for a treble Voucher. Warrant of Attorney.

And in theſe caſes to make two Attornies at the leaſt, and to give them an authority jointly and ſeverally, that if one of them die before the Recovery be ſuffered, the other may have power to do and diſpatch it. And theſe Warrants of Attorney for the ſuffering of Recoveries, are to be acknowledged and certified in the ſame manner as the Conuſances of Fines acknowledged in the Country are; ſave only that Recogniſances for Warrants of Attorney for Recoveries may be taken by any Judg of the Court of Common-Pleas, or any Serjeant at Law, without a Dedimus poteſtatem: But if any others take it, they uſe to do it by a ſpecial Dedimus poteſtatem; which is to command the Commiſſioners therein named, to come to ſuch perſons, and to take the names of their Attorny or Attornies in the Suit, and to certifie the ſame into the Chancery under their Seals ſuch a day. And if there be any Woman-covert that is to make the Conuſance, it ſeems ſhe is to be examined as in the caſe of the Conuſance of a Fine. And when this is done, the Recovery may be ſuffered by the Attornies, without the perſonal appearance of the parties. Dedimus poteſtatem. Examination.

And this is as good a Recovery as the other which is ſuffered by the perſons themſelves appearing in Court, but that it will require longer time for the perfection of it: For in this caſe there muſt go forth a Summoneas ad Warrant. which muſt have nine Retorns ere the Recovery can be perfected, and by that time one of the parties may be dead.

And when the Recovery is thus ſuffered by the parties in perſon, or by their Attornies, the ſame is to be entred by one of the Clerks of the Common-Pleas, upon the Rolls of the ſame Court, there to remain upon record. And herein there muſt go forth a Writ of Execution, called Habere facias Seiſinam; which is ſent to the Sheriff of the County where the Land doth lie, to put the Recoverer in poſſeſſion of the Land, (except the Recovery be of a Reverſion of Land after a Leaſe for years of it, in which caſe the Reverſion ſhall be in the Recoverers by a Claim without any Writ.) And this Writ the Sheriff doth return as executed according to the Contents thereof, albeit in truth he never do any thing upon it. And after this, all the ſame Proceedings is to be exemplified by the Clerk of the ſame Court, Co. 10. 43. Co. 1. 94.

Habere facias Seiſinam.

4. The uſe, nature, and operation of it.

A Recovery being matter of Record, is much of the nature of a Fine, and ſuch a thing whereof the Law taketh notice: For it is now become a formal and orderly manner of Aſſurance of Lands, and one of the Common Aſſurances of the Kingdom, or a common way and means to paſs Lands from one to another. And therefore if a Tenant for life ſuffer ſuch a Recovery of his Land, it is a Forfeiture of his Eſtate; an Uſe may be averred upon it as well as upon a Fine, and it may be avoided for Covin as well as any kind of Conveyance elſe. But it is of ſpecial uſe, and hath a ſpecial vertue to bar and bind Eſtates in Tail, and all the Remainders and Reverſions thereupon. And becauſe many of the Inheritances of the Kingdom do depend upon this Aſſurance, and it is oft-times the greateſt Aſſurance Purchaſors have for their money, therefore it hath much favour from the Law at this day: And therefore the Law will not endure it ſhall be diſputed againſt; for, Communis Error facit Jus. And hence it is that it ſhall not be avoided for ſmall Errors: For it is another Rule of Law, Conſenſus tollit Errorem. And if a Recovery be ſuffered by a Tenant in Tail, hereby he hath not only diſcontinued, barred, and diſcharged the Eſtate-tail, and ſo defeated himſelf and his Iſſues the former owner of the Land, and all the Remainders and Reverſions thereupon that ſhould take place after the Eſtate-tail, whether they be in eſſe, or contingent only; but alſo all former Eſtates, Leaſes and Charges made by him in remainder or reverſion. For as when the Eſtate-tail in poſſeſſion is not barred by a Recovery, the Eſtates in reverſion or remainder are not barred; for, Quod non in magis propinquo, non in magis remoto valebit: So it is è converſo, where the Eſtate-tail in poſſeſſion is barred by the Recovery, all the Remainder, and the Reverſions, Conditions, Charges, Incumbrances, and Eſtates dependent upon it are barred alſo, except it be in ſome ſpecial caſes where the Remainder or Reverſion was in the King. And therefore if A. be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in Fee; and B. or C. doth make a Leaſe for years of the Land, or grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, or enter into a Statute, or the like, or grant the Remainder or Reverſion upon Condition, and after A. doth ſuffer a Common-recovery of the Land, and after dieth without iſſue; in this caſe the Recoverer ſhall hold the Lands diſcharged of all theſe Eſtates and Charges in Remainder. But otherwiſe it is if A. himſelf make a Leaſe, or enter into a Statute, and then ſuffer a Common-recovery of the Land; in this caſe this Recovery doth not avoid, but affirmeth the Leaſe or Charge: For whereas it was before voidable by the Iſſue in Tail, or him in Remainder or Reverſion; now it is good againſt them all, and the Recoverer alſo ſhall hold it charged and ſubject to the Leaſe and Charge of the Tenant in Tail.

Forfeiture. Averment. Covin.

This kind of an Aſſurance therefore is in ſome reſpects better then a Fine: For, a Fine will bar the Heir in Tail, but not him that is in Remainder or Reverſion; but a Recovery will bar them all. Co. 5. 41. 10. 37. 39. 3. 5. 6. 41. 42. D. & S. 41. 49. 50. Stat. 13 Eliz. ch. 5. 23. ch. 3. St. 7 H. 8. ch. 4. Co. 1. 62. 25. 44 Ed. 3. ch. 22.

In

In every good and binding Common-recovery, theſe things are requiſite:

5. What ſhall be ſaid a good Common-recovery, and who ſhall be barred and bound thereby, or not.

1. That there be a Demandant, a Tenant, and Vouchee, as the efficient cauſes thereof; for if either of theſe be wanting, it is not a compleat Recovery. And therefore if a Common-recovery be had againſt a Tenant in tail without a Voucher, this is void. And for this it is to be known, that ſuch perſons, and by ſuch names may be Demandants, Tenants, and Vouchees in Recoveries, as may be Cognizors and Cognizees in Fines. And therefore a Recovery ſuffered by an Infant appearing by his Guardian, is good, and will bind him and all others. So alſo a Recovery had againſt a Woman that hath a Husband, being joyned with her Husband, will bind her and all others.

Sect. 1. Infant. Woman-covert.

2. That there be Land demanded as the matter, and that the thing be demandable. And for this it is to be known, that of ſuch things, and by ſuch names as a Writ of Covenant for the levying of a Fine may be had, a Writ of Entry for the ſuffering of a Recovery may be had, ſave only it may not be of a Trench, of a ſtanding Pool, one Load of Land, of Eſtovers, Homage, Fealty, Services to be done, of an Oxgange of Wood, of Felons Land, of a Garden, Cottage, Croft, a Yard-land, a Quar of Minerals, a Market, neither of an Upper-Cockloft. And yet of ſome of theſe alſo it may be by other names. Alſo a Recovery may be had of a Rent, Common, Advowſon, Franchiſes, and the like, but not of an Annuity.

Sect. 2.

3. That it be had and ſuffered in that order and form as Law requireth, viz. That there be a Writ of Entry brought, an appearance of the Tenant in fact, a Voucher, and an appearance of the Tenant in Law, the Vouchee, Judgment and Execution, in manner as aforeſaid: For if there be any ſubſtantial defect in theſe things, the Recovery may be thereby avoided by Writ of Error; but if it be only in form, it will not hurt.

4. That there be a lawful Tenant to the Precipe, (i.) That the Writ of Entry be brought againſt one that at the time of the Writ brought is Tenant of the Freehold, either by right, (i.) that hath an Eſtate for life, at leaſt in the Land; or by wrong, (i.) that is a Diſſeiſor of the Land demanded, and whereof the Recovery is had. And therefore in this caſe the courſe is, where the Land to be recovered is in poſſeſſion, and a Fine and Recovery is had of it together, the Fine is ſued out firſt; for this doth make the Cogniſee Tenant of the Freehold of the Land, and the Recovery is had againſt him. And when the Recovery is to be had of a Reverſion, and that there is an Eſtate for life in being of the Land whereof the Recovery is to be had, (For an Eſtate for years, or any ſuch like Eſtate will not hinder the ſuffering of a Recovery) there the courſe is, to get a Conditional Surrender from the Tenant for life, of his Eſtate to him in Reverſion or Remainder, to the end that he may be perfect Tenant of the Inheritance; and then the Writ of Entry may be brought, and the Recovery had againſt him: For if a Writ of Entry be brought againſt the ſtranger, and he vouch the Tenant in tail in poſſeſſion of the Land, and ſo a Recovery is had; or if there be Tenant for life of Land, the Remainder or Reverſion to another in tail or in fee, and a ſtranger doth bring a Writ of Entry againſt him in the Remainder or Reverſion, or againſt a ſtranger who doth vouch him, and ſo a Recovery is had; theſe Recoveries are not good. And yet if the Writ be brought againſt the Tenant of the Land, and a ſtranger that hath nothing in the Land together, and ſo a Recovery be had; this Recovery is good enough. And if a Diſſeiſor make a Gift in tail of the Land to another, and the Writ is brought againſt him, and he vouch the Diſſeiſee, and he vouch the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery. Dyer 252. Co. on Lit. 46.3.6. Co. 3.6. on Lit. 46. Lit Br. ſect. 519. Plow. 514. D. & S. 49. Prerogative.

5. That it be in ſuch a caſe as is not prohibited by ſome Statute-Law; for if the King give any of his own Land whereof he is ſeiſed, or cauſe or procure another in conſideration of money or other Land, to give the Land whereof he is ſeiſed in tail to any of his Subjects or Servants, in recompence of their ſervice, or the like, the Remainder to the King in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail, ſuch Eſtates in tail cannot be barred by a Common-recovery. And therefore if ſuch a Tenant in tail ſhall ſuffer a Recovery of ſuch Lands, it is void, and it will neither bar the Iſſues in Tail, nor any of them in Remainder, nor the King. 34 H. 8. 20. Co. on Lit. 371. 2. 5. 16. Co. 8. 77, 78:

But

But if the King make ſuch a Gift in Tail, keeping the Reverſion to himſelf, and after doth grant the Reverſion to another; in this caſe the Tenant in Tail may ſuffer a Recovery, and bar the Eſtate-tail, and the Reverſion alſo. And where a Subject by the Kings proviſion doth make ſuch a Gift in Tail, and then doth grant the Remainder to the King for life or years only; in this caſe the Eſtate-tail, Remainders, and Reverſions alſo may be barred by a Common-Recovery. So in other caſes where a Subject doth make a Gift in Tail, the Remainder to the King in Fee; this Eſtate-tail may be barred by a Common Recovery. And therefore if there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder or Reverſion in Fee to another, and he in Remainder or Reverſion by Deed indented and enrolled doth bargain and ſell his Remainder or Reverſion in Fee to the King; or if one covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to divers Uſes in Tail, the Remainder to the King in Fee; in theſe caſes the Eſtates, and the Reverſion and Remainders depending thereupon, may be barred by a Common-Recovery.

So if a man make a Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and he in the Remainder doth grant his Remainder to another for life, the Remainder in Fee to the King on Condition the Eſtate ſhall be void upon the tender of Twenty pounds; in this caſe the Eſtate-tail, and the Reverſion alſo and Condition thereupon may be barred. So if the Duke of Lancaſter had made a Gift in Tail, and the Reverſion had deſcended to the King; this Eſtate-tail might have been barred by a Recovery. So if Prince Henry ſon of H. 7. had made a Gift in Tail, the Remainder to H. 7. in Fee, which Remainder by the death of H. 7. had deſcended to H. 8. in this caſe the Tenant in Tail might have barred the Eſtate-tail by a Recovery. And yet if the King had made a Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, or grant the Reverſion in Tail; in theſe caſes a Common-Recovery might not have been ſuffered to bar the Entail, Remainder, or Reverſion.

And if the Husband, for the advancement of his wife in Jointure, and the preferment of the Heirs of their two bodies, make an Eſtate in Tail to him and his Wife, and the Heirs of their two bodies; and the Wife after her Husbands death, alone by herſelf or any other Husband ſuffer a Common-Recovery of the Land whereof this Eſtate is made; this Recovery will not bar the Eſtate-tail, Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. Co. 3. 58. 61. 59. But if in this caſe the Recovery be ſuffered by the Heir in Tail, or by the Heir in Tail and his Mother together, it is a good Recovery. And therefore if A. be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and he make a Feoffment in Fee to the intent that the Feoffee ſhall reconvey it to him and his wife, and the Heirs-males of his body; and this is done accordingly, and they have iſſue a Son, and ſhe ſurrender or make a Forfeiture, and he enter and ſuffer a Recovery; this is a good Recovery and Bar to the Eſtate-tail. Or if the Writ be brought againſt the Mother, and ſhe vouch the Heir in Tail, and ſo a Recovery is had, this Recovery will bar the Eſtate-tail. And howſoever at the Common-Law, a Recovery againſt the Tenant for life, with a Voucher upon a lawful Warranty and a Recovery in value, was a Bar to him in Remainder or Reverſion, and there was no remedy in this caſe; yet at this day it is otherwiſe, Stat. 14 Eliz. ch. 8. Co. 15. 62. 10. 43. 45. 3. 6.

Sect. 2. And therefore if Tenant in Tail after poſſibility of Iſſue extinct, Tenant by the Courteſie, or any other Tenant for life, do ſuffer their Lands to be recovered from them by Covin and Agreement, either as immediate Tenants, or as Vouchees upon feigned Titles, without the conſent and to the prejudice of him in Remainder or Reverſion: ſuch Recoveries are void, and will not bar the Remainders or Reverſions, but are Forfeitures of the Eſtates of ſuch Tenants for life. Inſomuch that if a Tenant for life be made Tenant in fact to the Writ, or Tenant in Law upon the Voucher, and ſo a Recovery be had; as if Tenant for life make a Leaſe for years, and the Leſſee for years doth make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Feoffee doth ſuffer a Common-Recovery, in which the Tenant for life is vouched, and he vouch the Common Vouchee; theſe Recoveries will not bind the Reverſions or Remainders. But there is no proviſion made at this day to preſerve the Reverſion or Remainder expectant upon an Eſtate-tail; nor to avoid a Recovery of a Tenant for life, where he in the next Remainder is agreeing and aſſenting to it.

Forfeiture.

And

And therefore if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder to A. in Tail to B. in Tail, &c. with divers Remainders over, and the Tenant for life doth ſuffer a Common Recovery, in which he doth vouch A. who doth vouch the Common Vouchee; in this caſe this is a good Recovery, and doth bar the Eſtate-tail, the Remainders, and Reverſions alſo. And if one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and have two Sons, A. by his firſt wife, and B. and a Daughter by his ſecond wife, and he deviſe the Land to his wife for her life, the Remainder to B. his Son in Tail, and the Reverſion of the Fee deſcend to A. and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the Tenant for life, and ſhe vouch B. and he doth vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had without the conſent of the Heir in Reverſion, this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Eſtates in poſſeſſion, Remainder and Reverſion. And if a Writ of Entry be brought againſt the Tenant for life, and he make default; after default, and the next in Remainder in Tail is received, or he pray in aid of him in Reverſion or Remainder, and then they vouch over, and ſo a Recovery is had; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Eſtates in Remainder and Reverſion. But if the Writ of Entry be brought againſt the Tenant for life, and him in the Remainder in Tail together, and they vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had; this will be no good Recovery to bar the Eſtate-tail. And if Spiritual perſons, as Biſhops, Deans, Parſons, and ſuch like ſuffer a Recovery of their Eccleſiaſtical lands, ſuch a Recovery is void, and will not bind the Succeſſors. Sect. 4. Co. on Lit. 44. Plow. Mauxels Caſe. Co. 10. 373. 1. 94. Plow. 357.

But if it be not in ſome ſuch prohibited caſe as before, and the Recovery be had by and between ſuch perſons, and of ſuch things, and in ſuch a manner as aforeſaid; in ſuch caſes albeit there be in truth no Warranty made upon which the Voucher is had, and albeit there be nothing to be recovered in value, for that the Vouchee hath no Land to recover over in recompence, and albeit that no Execution be done in the life-time of the party againſt whom the Recovery is had, yet is the ſame regularly a perpetual Bar to the parties againſt whom the ſame is had, and their Heirs, of all the Eſtates they have in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life in them, and againſt them in Remainder or Reverſion, and their Remainders and Reverſions that are depending upon the Eſtates: with this difference. The Recovery with the ſingle Voucher doth not bar any Eſtate but ſuch as the Tenant in Tail hath, at the time of the Recovery had, in poſſeſſion: So that if the Tenant in Tail be in of any other Eſtate, as by Diſſeiſin, or the Conveyance of the Diſſeiſor, or the like, this Eſtate is not barred. But the Recovery with the double Voucher doth bind and bar all Intereſts, Eſtates and Titles, that the Vouchee hath at the time of the Entry into the Warranty. All which is further illuſtrated by the Examples following: Co. 3. 59. Lit. Br. ſect. 38. 12 Ed. 4. 13. 13 Ed. 4. 1.

If the Writ of Entry be brought againſt the Tenant in tail, and he vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had; this Recovery with ſingle Voucher is a good Recovery, and Bar to the Eſtate-tail, if it be then in poſſeſſion, and not put to a right, and to all the Remainders and Reverſions depending thereupon. Co. 3. 5. 10. 37.

So if Lands be given to A. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. (B. being then alive) and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the Tenant in Tail, and he doth vouch over the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to the Eſtate-tail, and the Remainder alſo. But if the Tenant in Tail be diſſeiſed, and then ſuffer a Recovery with a ſingle Voucher; or the Diſſeiſor make a new Eſtate in Tail to the Tenant in Tail, and then the Tenant in Tail doth ſuffer a Recovery with a ſingle Voucher; or if the Tenant in Tail make a Feoffment in Fee of Land, and then take back a new Eſtate to himſelf from the Diſcontinuee in Tail or in Fee, and then doth ſuffer a Recovery with a ſingle Voucher: By this Recovery the Entail is not barred; but by a Recovery with a double Voucher, in theſe caſes, the Eſtate-tail is barred. And therefore as where the Tenant in Tail doth levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, or bargain and ſell the Land by Deed indented and enrolled, and the Writ is brought againſt the Conuſee, Feoffee, or Bargainee, and he doth vouch the Tenant in Tail, and he doth vouch the Common Vouchee; this doth bar the Eſtate-tail, and the Remainders and Reverſions depending thereupon. Co. 1. 135, 136. 3. 59. 12 Ed. 4. 19. 13 Ed. 4. Co. 10. 45.

So

So if in theſe caſes the Conuſee, Feoffee or Bargainee doth make a new Eſtate in Tail to the Conuſor, Feoffor or Bargainor, or he diſſeiſe the Conuſee, Feoffee, or Bargainee, and then levy a Fine, make a Feoffment or Bargain, and ſell to another againſt whom the Writ of Entry is brought, and he vouch the Tenant in Tail, and he doth vouch the Common Vouchee; by this Recovery the firſt and ſecond Eſtate-tail, and all the Remainders and Reverſions depending thereupon are barred. So if Lands be given to J. S. and the Heirs-males of the body of his wife engendered, and he hath iſſue a Son, and after his wife dieth, and he diſcontinue and take an Eſtate to him and the Heirs-females of the body of his ſecond wife, and after diſcontinue again, and after take an Eſtate to him and the Heirs-females of his own body, and after diſcontinue again, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the laſt Diſcontinuee, and he doth vouch the Tenant in Tail, who doth enter into the Warranty generally, and voucheth the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and Bar to all the Eſtates in Tail, and to all the Remainders and Reverſions alſo. And if A. before the Statute of Uſes, had been Tenant in Tail, and had made a Feoffment in Fee to B. and he and B. had after made a Feoffment to C. to the uſe of A. and his wife, and the Heirs of their two bodies, and then ſhe had died, and after A. had entred upon C. the Feoffee, and made a Feoffment to W. in Fee, againſt whom J. S. had brought a Writ of Entry, and he had vouched A. the Tenant in Tail; this had been a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Eſtates. And if Lands be given to husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the husband, with Remainders over to ſtrangers, and the husband alone doth diſcontinue; the whole Land by Fine, Feoffment, or Bargain and Sale, by Deed indented and enrolled, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the Diſcontinuee, and he doth vouch the huſband alone without the wife, and the husband doth vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had; this is a good Recovery for the whole Land, and a Bar to all the Eſtates in Tail and Remainder, and Reverſion, but not to the Eſtate of the wife for her life after the husbands death. But if Lands be given to the husband and wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, with Remainders over to ſtrangers, and the husband alone diſcontinue, and the Recovery is ſuffered as in the laſt caſe; it ſeems this is no Bar to the Eſtates in Tail or Remainder, or Reverſion for any part of the Land.

Co. 3. 5. Plow. in Mauxels Caſe, 1. 8.

Co. 3. 5. 6. 32.

And yet if Lands be given to J. S. and J. D. in Tail, and J. S. diſcontinue the whole, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the Diſcontinuee, and he vouch J. S. alone, this a good Recovery for the one half of the Land, and a Bar to all the Eſtates. And if Lands be given as before unto husband and wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt them both, and they vouch the Common Vouchee; or the husband alone doth diſcontinue, and he vouch the husband and wife both, and they enter into the Warranty, and vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo the Recovery is had; theſe are good Recoveries for the whole, and a Bar to all the Eſtates in Tail, and to the Eſtate of the Woman, and to all other Eſtates. And where Lands are given to a man and his wife, and the heirs of the body of the wife, or to the wife and the heirs of her body, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the husband and wife, and they vouch the Common Vouchee; theſe are good Recoveries, and will bar the husbands and wives, and the Eſtates in Tail, Remainder and Reverſion.

Husband and Wife.

Lit. Brown. 37.

And where a man hath Land in which his wife hath a Jointure, or to which ſhe will have title of Dower after his death; if the Writ of Entry in this caſe be brought againſt them both, and they vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had; this Recovery will bar them both; but the husband alone, without her, cannot bar her of any ſuch Eſtate by a Recovery, for ſhe may falſifie and avoid it after his death. And if Lands be given to husband and wife, and the heirs of the body of the husband, and the Writ of Entry be brought againſt the husband alone, and he vouch the Common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had with a ſingle Voucher; this is no good Recovery for any part of the Land, nor Bar to any of the Eſtates, albeit the husband do ſurvive the wife.

Sect. 3. Plow. 514.

Co. 3. 5. 1. 12 Ed. 4. 14. Co 3. 6.

And

And yet if the Lands be given to two others, and the Heirs of the Body of one of them, the Remainder over to a ſtranger, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt one of them; and he vouch the common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Eſtates for the one half of the Land.

If Land be given to A. in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in Tail, the Remainder to D. in Fee, and A. doth make a Feoffment in Fee, and the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the Feoffee, and he doth vouch B. (being him in the ſecond Remainder in Tail) to Warranty, and he doth vouch the common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to the ſecond Eſtate-tail, and all the Remainders and Reverſions depending thereupon; and yet it is no Bar of the firſt Eſtate-tail which A. hath.

If the Writ of Entry be brought againſt a Mortgagee, and he doth vouch the common Vouchee, and ſo a Recovery is had; this is no good Recovery to Bar, or binde the Mortgagor, but that he may enter upon the Condition broken. Curia, Mich. 18 Jac. B. R. So was it held by moſt of the Judges in the caſe between Pell and Brown.

So if one give Lands to B. and his Heirs, ſo long as C. ſhall have Heirs of his Body, and B. doth ſuffer a common Recovery, and vouch the common Vouchee; this is no good Recovery to Bar the Donor of the poſſibility: For in both theſe caſes, he that is to be barred, hath no Remainder or Reverſion, but an intereſt or poſſibility which cannot receive a recompence in value.

But if in theſe caſes the Mortgagee vouch to Warranty the Mortgagor, or B. the Donee vouch the Donor, and ſo they Vouch over the common Vouchee, and ſo the Recovery is had; theſe will be good Recoveries to Bar both them, and their Heirs for ever.

And if one have an Eſtate in Fee-ſimple, determinable on a Limitation, or a Condition, As if Lands be given to A. and his Heirs, until B. pay him one hundred pound, and then that it ſhall remain to B. and his Heirs; and A. in this caſe doth ſuffer a common Recovery, and vouch the common Vouchee. It ſeems this is no Bar to B. and his Heirs, but that upon payment of the one hundred pound, he ſhall have the Land.

So if one by his Will Deviſe his Land thus, I give unto A. my Son, and his Heirs for ever, my Land in W. paying twenty pound to B. when A. ſhall come to one and twenty years of age, and then to A. and his Heirs for ever; and if A. ſhall die without Heirs of his Body, C. being then living, that then C. ſhall have it to him, and his Heirs for ever; and A. pay the twenty pound to B. at his full age, and then ſuffer a Recovery of the Land; this is no Bar to C. of his Eſtate. Co. 3. 5.

But here it muſt be noted, that in the caſes before where it is ſaid, That a Recovery is void, it is meant as to the Heirs, and them in Reverſion, and Remainders; for as to the parties themſelves, that do ſuffer the Recovery, the ſame is for the moſt part good, and bindeth them by way of Eſtoppel and Concluſion.

And it muſt be noted alſo, That a ſtranger that hath right to the Land at the time of the Recovery ſuffered, is not barred at all by the Recovery, or by his Lacheſs of Non-claim, &c. as in the caſe of a Fine. See Brownl. 1 part, 36. 193. 2 part. 171.

The Recoverors in common Recoveries, their Heirs and Aſſigns, ſhall have the like Remedy againſt Leſſees for lives and years of the Land recovered, their Executors or Aſſigns, by Diſtreſs, Avowry, Action of Debt, for the Rents and Services reſerved upon their Leaſes, that ſhall be due after the ſame Recoveries had; and alſo like Actions of Waſte done after the Recovery had; and like Remedy upon a diſturbance in a Preſentation to an Advowſon, and in like manner and form, as the Leſſor ſhould, or might have had, if the ſame Recoveries had never been had, albeit the ſame Leſſees do never Attorn to the ſame Recoverors. And if a man make a Leaſe for years to begin at Michaelmas, reſerving Rent, and before Michaelmas he ſuffer a Recovery; in this caſe the Recoveror ſhall diſtrain for this Rent, which the Leſſor before the Recovery, could not diſtrain for: But if the Recovery had not been had, he might have diſtrained. 7 H. 8. 4. Dyer 31. Co. on Littl. 104.

Sect. 6. A Recovery may be defeated, fruſtrated, and avoided (which is called the falſifying of a Recovery) in part, or in all, for many cauſes; as for that, there is ſome groſs and ſubſtantial Error in the manner of the proceedings. But the Recovery is not avoidable for Falſe or Incongruous Latin, Raſure, Interlining, Miſentring of any Warrant of Attorney, Miſretorning or not Retorning of the Sheriff, or other want of Form in Words, and not in Matter of Subſtance, becauſe it is done by the conſent of the Parties. Or it may be avoided, for that he againſt whom the Writ of Entry is brought, is not Tenant of the Freehold, by right or wrong, at the time of the Writ brought, As when the Writ is brought againſt a ſtranger that hath nothing in the Land, and he doth vouch the Tenant in Tail in Poſſeſſion of the Land. Or a Recovery may be avoided, for that he that hath the Eſtate, and the Right, is neither Party nor Privy to the Recovery, As when the Writ of Entry is brought againſt the Diſſeiſor, and he vouch a ſtranger that hath nothing in the Land: Or a Recovery is had againſt the Husband alone of the Land, whereunto his Wife hath Title of Dower: Or a Recovery may be avoided, for that another hath ſome Eſtate, in the thing whereof the Recovery is had at the time of the Recovery ſuffered, As when there is a Recovery had of Land, whereof there is a Leaſe or Eſtate for years, by Statute, Elegit, or the like: Or it may be avoided, for that the Rovery is had by Coven, As when it is ſuffered by Tenant for life, to diſ-inherit him in Reverſion; or when it is gotten by ſome undue practiſe and ſiniſter dealing, for in this caſe it is ſometimes made void by a Vacat or Sentence of a Court.

And where a Recovery is avoidable or reverſable, for any of theſe, or ſuch other like cauſes, it muſt be avoided by him, whom it doth concern, that is barred and bound by the ſame Recovery that ſhould have had the Land, if the ſame Recovery had not been, and not by any other whom it doth not concern. As if an Erroneous Recovery be ſuffered by Tenant in Tail; in this caſe his Iſſues, or if they fail, the next in Remainder or Reverſion, ſhall defeat it.

So alſo if the Land be recovered againſt a ſtranger, the Tenant in Tail ſhall avoid it; and if the Land be recovered againſt a Diſſeiſor, the Diſſeiſſee ſhall avoid it: And if the Land be recovered againſt him in Reverſion or Remainder, the Tenant for years, by Staute or Elegit, ſhall avoid it: But in theſe laſt caſes, they ſhall falſifie and avoid it, during their particular Eſtates onely.

So alſo the Wife ſhall falſifie the Recovery ſuffered by her Husband alone, as to her Title of Dower onely, and no longer, or further. And he in the Reverſion or Remainder, ſhall falſifie and avoid the Recovery ſuffered by the Tenant for life, either in the life time of the Tenant, or afterwards. But neither he in Reverſion or Remainder, or any one, by or under him, or any other, can falſifie a Recovery ſuffered by the Tenant in Tail in Poſſeſſion, except it be for ſome ſuch cauſes as before. And the Recoveror himſelf cannot falſifie a Recovery. So neither can a Guardian, or a Tenant of a Manor, As if one hold Land of a Manor, and a ſtranger recover the Manor by a feigned Title; a Tenant of the Manor cannot falſifie this Recovery.

And in all theſe caſes, where a Recovery is avoidable, and a man hath power given to falſifie: He muſt do the ſame by Writ of Error ſometimes, as in the caſe of Erroneous proceedings; and ſometimes by pleading and the ſetting forth of the Special Matter, as in the caſe where Tenant is not Tenant of the Freehold, or when the Recovery is had by Coven, againſt the Tenant for life, or the like; and ſometimes by the ſhewing and ſetting forth of the Practiſe to the Court, and a Motion made, that a Vacat may be had upon the Judgment for the cauſes alleaged. 33 Eliz. 3. Co. 5. 40. 21 H. 8: 15. Co. on Littl. 46. 104. Co. 3. 78. Dyer 249. Co. 3. 4. 1. 62. 5. 39. Plow. 515.

CHAP. CXXXVI.

Of Relation.

IT is fictio juris to make a nullity of a thing from the beginning, for a certain intent which had eſſence; or more plainly, A fiction of Law, whereby ſomething is for Special Purpoſe, deemed never to have been, which in truth was; or as others define it, It is a Term of Law where in conſideration of Law, two times, or other things are ſo conſidered, as if they were all one; and the thing ſubſequent is ſaid to take his effect at the time preceding, As if one deliver a writing, to be delivered to one upon payment of money: Now when the money is paid, this Delivery ſhall relate unto the firſt Delivery, and be of force from that time. Sect. 1. 1. Relation, what. Delivery of a Deed.

And this the Law doth moſt commonly make to help Acts in Law, and not the Acts of the Parties, and propter neceſcitatem ut res magis valeat quàm pereat, (that is) for neceſſity to make the thing to take effect; and therefore it ſhall never work to any other collateral intent, but ſhall be reſtrained onely to the ſame thing, and to the ſame intent, and between the ſame parties onely, and ſhall not be ſtrained to a third perſon, that is not party, nor privy to prejudice him; neither ſhall it make that tortious, that was lawful before; nec operatur alicui damnum, (that is) nor ſhall it enure to hurt any body: As in the caſes beneath, Co. 1. 99. 7. 39. Plow. 488.

Relations are allowed in caſes of Conditions, Judgments, Executions, and Actions, in caſes of Offices, in caſes of Inrollments, in caſes of Acts of Parliament, in caſes of Adminiſtration, Probate of Wills, in caſes of Agreement, in caſes of Forfeitures, in caſes of Indentures, to guide a precedent Aſſurance: For which ſee the Titles, 10 *H.*6. 6. Dyer 136: But it ſeems in caſes of Attornment it doth not allow a Relation; and therefore if one Reverſion be granted to two men, by two ſeveral Deeds: And he that hath the laſt grant get Attornment firſt, and after the other get Attornment alſo, the ſecond Grantee that got the Attornment firſt ſhall have the Reverſion. Co. 1. 99. 7. 39. 5. 26. Co. 2. 73, 78. 3. 83. 9. 9, 15. Littl. ſect 552. 2. A Judgment againſt an Heir upon the Obligation of his Anceſtor, ſhall have Relation to the time of the Writ firſt purchaſed, and from that time it will avoid all Alienations made by the Heir. See Judgment. Where a Judgment againſt any man doth binde his Lands he hath in Fee ſimple, and Execution ſhall relate for them to the time of the Judgment put for Goods and Chattels, contrà. Sect. 2. 3. Where Relation ſhall be of matter of Record, and how of a Judgment.

If an Office had intitled the King, by reaſon of a Seigniory, it ſhall relate to the time of the Anceſtors death, to this ſpecial intent, to give the King the Meſn profits of the Land: And if it intitle him ratione prioris recti, &c. by reaſion of his firſt Right or Title, it ſhall relate to the time of the Right or Title accrued, as to the time of the Condition broken, or Alienation in Mortmain, to give the King the Meſn profits. But where he was intitled to Land jure protectionis ſuæ Regiæ, (that is) by his Regal Protection; as in caſe of an Idiot, a nativitate, or nomine deſtrictionis, (that is) in the name of a Diſtreſs: As where his Tenant did alien, or his Widow marry without Licence, ſo where he was intitled by an Attainder of Felony. In theſe caſes the Office ſhall have Relation, as to avoid all Alienations, and mean Incumbrances to the time of the Nativity of the Idiot, Alienation, or Marriage of his Tenant, and Felony committed, but as to the mean profits to the time of the Office found onely. And therefore if the Husband and Wife be Joyntenants of a Leaſe, and the Husband kill himſelf, and this was after found by Office: this ſhall relate to the time of the murther, and ſo intitle the King to the whole, Co. 8. 170. 4. 126: Stamf. pl. cap. 13. Kelw. 71: Plow. 486. Co. 9. 131. Of an Office.

Of an Inrollment of a Deed of Bargain and Sale.

The Inrollment of a Deed of Bargain and Sale, when it is done within the ſix moneths, ſhall to moſt purpoſes relate to the time of the Delivery, or of the Date of the Deed. And it is given as a Rule, that it ſhall have relation to the time of the Delivery of the Deed, viz. To avoid all mean Eſtates and Charges made to a ſtranger by the Bargainor after the Delivery of the Deed before the Inrollment, but not to diveſt any eſtate lawfully ſettled in the interim in the Bargainee himſelf: And therefore if one bargain and ſell his Land by Deed indented to one, and after before the Deed is inrolled, he enter into a Statute, or grant a Rent-charge out of this Land, or make a Leaſe of the Land to another, and then the Deed is inrolled within the time; in this caſe the Relation ſhall avoid all the mean Charges and Eſtates. And if A. bargain and ſell his Land by Deed indented to B. and afterwards doth ſell the ſame Land by Deed indented to C. and the Deed made to C. is firſt inrolled, and then the Deed made to B. is inrolled alſo within the ſix moneths; in this caſe B. ſhall have the Land, and the Relation of his Inrollment ſhall make the Inrollment of the other Deed void. So if A. levy a Fine of the Land to C. yet B. ſhall have the Land. But if the firſt Deed made to B. be not inrolled within the ſix moneths, and the Deed to C. be inrolled within the ſix moneths, contrà. Dyer 218. Curia, Mich. 3 Jac. B. R.

If A. bargain and ſell Land to B. and after levy a Fine to B. of the ſame Land, and after within ſix moneths the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe B. ſhall take by the Fine, and not by the bargain and Sale. Co. 4. 71.

If one Joyntenant alien all his Lands in Dale to A. and before the Inrollment, the other Joyntenant die, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe but a Moyety, and not the whole Land doth paſs. Bro. Fait Inroll. 9.

If A. bargain and ſell his Land to B. and after this A. doth become a Bankrupt, and the Commiſſioners ſell the Land to C. and after the Deed is inrolled within ſix moneths; in this caſe B. and not C. the Purchaſor ſhall have the Land. So held 4 Car. B. R.

Sect. 3. If A. bargain and ſell his Land held in Capite to B. in Fee, and B. dieth before Inrollment, and then the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe the Heir of B. ſhall be in Ward for the Land. And ſo was it held by all the Juſtices in Sir Walter Earls caſe, Paſche, 15 Jac. Curia, Ward. And yet in this caſe the Wife of the Bargainee ſhall

Dower. not have Dower, as was held by Anderſon, Chief Juſtice, and Juſtice Walmſley. 3 Jac. Co. B. And again in Sir Robert Barkers caſe, 6 Jac. And if one bargain and ſell his Land to J. S. and after this the Rent incur; and then the Deed is inrolled; the Bar-

Rent. gainee, and not the Bargainor, ſhall have the Rent. Per Curiam B. R. Hill. 11 Car.

If A. bargain and ſell his Land to B. in Fee, and then marry C. and die, and C. is endowed, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe the Dower of the Woman ſhall be taken away by Relation, as was held in Baron Frevils caſe. 22 Eliz. Co. B.

Releaſe. If A. bargain and ſell Land to B. and C. in Fee, and B. releaſe to C. before the Inrollment; this Releaſe is void. 3 Jac. Co. B.

If A. Diſſeiſſor, bargain and ſell the Land diſſeiſed to B. in Fee, and the Diſſeiſſee doth releaſe to the Bargainor, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe this Releaſe ſhall avail B. So held in Mockets caſe. 10 Eliz.

If A. bargain and ſell his Land to B. and B. before Inrollment doth bargain and ſell the Land to C. the firſt Deed is inrolled, and then the ſecond is inrolled; in this caſe the laſt bargain and ſale is void, and ſhall not be made good by Relation, as was held by the Court in Sir Robert Barkers caſe. 6 Jac.

Condition. If a Leaſe be made, rendring Rent on condition to re-enter for not payment, and the Leſſor bargain and ſell the Reverſion by Deed indented; and after the Deed made the Rent is arrear, and then the Deed is inrolled; in this caſe it ſhall not relate to give re-entry for the Condition broken. So was it held in Sir Chriſtopher Hattons caſe.

Leaſe. If A. bargain and ſell Land to B. in Tail, and B. before Inrollment of the Deed, doth make a Leaſe according to the Statute of 32 H. 8 and after the Deed is inrolled; this is a good Leaſe. So hath it been adjudged.

If

If A. acknowledge a Statute to B. and B extend it, and after it, and before a Liberate, A. become Bankrupt, and the Commiſſioners ſell the Land, and after the Liberate is had; in this caſe the Liberate ſhall relate to the extent, and avoid the ſale by the Commiſſioners. B. R. 4 Car. Of a S.

If a Feme-ſole deliver a Deed as an Eſcrow, to be afterwards delivered as her Deed, and before this delivery as her Deed, ſhe die, or take a Husband; yet if this Deed be after delivered it ſhall be good by Relation, and ſaid to take effect as ab initio, (i.) From the beginning. Co. 3. 35. Plow. 344. And for the Relation of a Deed made by a Woman-ſole, or Infant, ſee Deed. Yet where an Obligation is delivered as an Eſcrow, and the Obligee before the ſecond Delivery, releaſe the debt or duty, this were no bar of the Debt; for to this collateral purpoſe, it ſhall not relate. So if an Infant or a Feme-covert deliver a Deed as an Eſcrow, and before the ſecond Delivery ſhe become Sole, or he become of Age; this Deed ſhall not be made good by Relation. Perk. Sect. 139. Co. 3. 35. Goldsb. 163. Sect. 4. 4. Where a Relation ſhall be of matter of Deed, or not.

So if a Diſſeiſee make a Leaſe for years, and deliver it as an Eſcrow to another, and command him to enter into the Land, and deliver it as his Deed to the Leſſee, here it ſhall be ſaid to take effect by the ſecond Delivery, and ſhall not relate; for then the Leaſe would be void. So if a Feoffee on condition grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, and the Grantee bring an Annuity; this is a good Annuity between them two, but ſhall not relate to prejudice the Feoffor, if he re-enter on this condition. Co. 3. 35. & Co. 3. 29.

If one make a Feoffment of a Manor by Deed, or without Deed, and a long time after Livery, the Tenants do attorn to the Grantee: Now by this the Attornment ſhall relate to paſs the Manor ab initio; but not to charge the Tenants for the Arrearages in the mean time. So if one Infeoff an Infant or Feme-covert, and after give, grant, or deviſe the Land, or any thing out of it, and after the Infant or Woman diſagree to it; this ſhall relate to this purpoſe, to diſcharge the Husband or Infant from damages for the time; but not to make the Void Gift or Grant good. So if a Diſſeiſor make a Feoffment to A. and B. by Deed, and give Livery to A. in the name of both, and A. dies, and B. diſagrees; this ſhall relate to charge him of the mean profits, but to no other purpoſes. Co. 3. 29. Co. upon Littl 310. 5. When the Wife is indowed by the Heir of her Husband, ſhe ſhall be in immediately from the Husband; and therefore if the Husband were a Diſſeiſor, and the Heir in by diſcent, yet the Diſſeiſor may enter upon the Wife: for things relating to a time long before, be as if they were done at that time. 36 H. 6. 7. Littl. 92.

CHAP.

CHAP. CXXXVII.

Of a Releaſe.

1. Releaſe, what.

A Releaſe is the giving or diſcharging of the Right or Action which a man hath or may have, or claim againſt another man, or that which is his: Or it is the conveyance of a mans Intereſt or Right which he hath unto a thing, to another that hath the Poſſeſſion thereof, or ſome Eſtate therein. And this albeit, it may be made by other words, as Dedi, Conceſſi, or Renunciaſſe, or ſuch like; yet it is moſt commonly and properly made by theſe words, Remiſiſſe, Relaxaſſe, & quietum clamaſſe, all which are much to one purpoſe. He that makes the Releaſe is ſometimes called the Releſſor, and he to whom it is made, the Releſſee. Terms Ley. Weſt. Symb. lib. 2. ſect. 466.

Releſſor, Releſſee.

2. The kindes.

There are two kindes of Releaſes like unto thoſe of Confirmation, viz. A Releaſe Expreſs, or in Deed, and that is a purpoſed Releaſe, when the Act done, or Deed made, is intended a Releaſe: And this is always done by writing; and then it is defined by ſome to be an Inſtrument, whereby Eſtates, Rights, Titles, Actions, and other things be ſometimes extinguiſhed, ſometimes transferred, ſometimes abridged, and ſometimes enlarged, which is after this manner. Noverint, &c. me A. de B. remiſiſſe, relaxaſſe & omnino de me [vel pro me] & hæred meis quietum clamaſſe C. de D. totum jus, titulum & clameumque habui, habeo vel quoviſmodo in futuro habere potero de & in uno meſuagio cum pertin' in F, &c. And a Releaſe implied, or in Law, and that is when the Law by Intendment and Conſtruction, and by way of conſequent doth make a Releaſe of an Act done to another purpoſe: And this is ſometimes by writing, and ſometimes without writing. Theſe Releaſes alſo are ſometimes of a bare and naked right, and ſometimes of a right accompanied with ſome Eſtate or Intereſt; and ſometimes they are of Actions real, or in Lands or Tenements, and ſometimes of Actions perſonal, of, or in Goods or Chattels, and ſometimes of Actions mixt, partly in the Realty, and partly in the Perſonalty. Co. ſuper Littl. 264, 265.

3. The nature and operation of it in general.

A Releaſe is much of the nature of a Confirmation, for in moſt things they agree and produce the like effects: This therefore is ſaid ſometimes to enure by way of mitter le eſtate, that is, by way of giving or transferring or enlargment of an Eſtate or Intereſt, and ſo doth give ſome new Intereſt or Eſtate to him to whom it is made: And ſometimes it is ſaid to enure by way of mitter le droit onely, that is, by way of giving, transferring, and diſcharging of a right Title or Entry unto him, to whom it is made. And ſo it doth ſometimes perfect an Eſtate that was imperfect and defeaſible before, and enure by way of Entry and Feoffment: And ſometimes alſo it doth enure to make a Conditional eſtate abſolute: And ſometimes alſo it doth work and enure by way of extinguiſhment or diſcharge: And then alſo ſometimes it doth enure by way of diſcharge or extinguiſhment, as againſt all perſons, and ſo as that whereof all perſons may take advantage: And ſometimes it doth enure onely as a Diſcharge againſt ſome perſons onely, and as to or againſt other perſons by way of Mitter le droit: And ſome of theſe in Deed enure by way of Extinguiſhment, for that he to whom the Releaſe is made, cannot have the thing releaſed: And ſome of them have ſome quality of ſuch Releaſes, and are ſaid to enure by way of Extinguiſhment, but in truth do not, for that he to whom the Releaſe is made, may receive and take the thing releaſed. And in ſome caſes alſo a Releaſe like a Confirmation, doth enure by way of Abridgment. But a man cannot Bar himſelf hereby of a Right that ſhall come to him hereafter; and therefore it is held, that theſe words uſed in Releaſes, [Quæ quoviſmodo in futuro habere potero] are to no purpoſe. Co. ſuper Littl. 193, 273, 277. Co. 1. 147. Littl. ſect. 606. 459. 465. 466. 446.

Lands,

Lands, Tenements and hereditaments themſelves may be given and transferred by way of releaſe, and all rights and titles to lands may be given, barred and diſcharged, by releaſe, and ſo alſo may rights and titles to goods and chattells. Alſo all actions reall, perſonall and mixt, may be given, diſcharged or extinct by releaſe; for howſoever rights and titles of entry cannot be granted by act of the party, nor any action may be granted from one man to another by act of the Law or the party, yet all theſe may be releaſed to the terre-tenant, And a right to a freehold or Inheritance, ſeigniory or rent in preſenti or futuro may be releaſed five manner of waies, and the firſt three waies without any privity at all. 1. To the Tenant of the free hold in deed or in Law. 2. To him in the remainder 3. To him in reverſion. The other two waies in reſpect of privity without any eſtate or right, as by demandant to vouchee, Donor to Donee after the Donee hath diſcontinued. Brownl. 1 part 110. 116. 149. Co. 10. 48 ſuper Litt. 268: 269. 266. 4. What things may be releaſed Or not. And how.

Alſo conditions annexed to eſtates, powers of revocation of Uſes, Warranties, Covenants, Tenures, Services, Rents, Commons, and other profits to be taken out of Lands may be diſcharged, extinguiſhed and determined by releaſe to the Tenant of the land, &c. Bro. Releaſe in toto.

Alſo poſſibilities of Land &c. if they be neer and common poſſibilities albeit they be not grantable over to another perſon, yet may they be releaſed to him that hath the preſent eſtate of the land. And therefore if a man poſſeſſed of a terme deviſe it to A for life, the remainder to B and his Heirs males during the terme; in this caſe albeit B may not grant his intereſt over yet he may releaſe it to A. and if A deviſe to B twenty pound when he comes to the age of twenty four years, and die; in this caſe B after he is of the age of twenty one years may releaſe this legacy. So a covenant to doe a future act may be releaſed before it be broken.

And it ſeems alſo the conuſee of a Statute or recogniſance may releaſe to a Feoffee of part of the Land, and ſo barr himſelf of Execution of that Land.

And if I grant to I S that if he doe ſuch a thing he ſhall have an annuity of twenty pound for his life; in this caſe it ſeems I S may releaſe this before the condition be performed. And if I make a Feoffment to I S to divers uſes with power to revoke it; I may releaſe this power to one that hath an eſtate of freehold in poſſeſſion, reverſion or remainder in the Land. And yet if I make a Feoffment to I S with proviſo that if B revoke, that the uſes ſhall ceaſe; in this caſe B cannot releaſe this pow er.

And a remote poſſibility that is altogether incertaine cannot be releaſed. And therefore if the ſonn of the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the diſſeiſor in the life time of his father; this releaſe is void. And ſo if the conuſee of a Statute releaſe his right to the land of the conuſor before execution; this releaſe is void. And ſo if a plaintiff releaſe to a Bail in the Kings Bench before Judgement given, this releaſe is void. Co. 10. 47. 51. 52. 5. 70. 71. ſuper Litt. 265. Lit. Sect. 446. Co. 1. 111. 111. Dier. 57. Co. 1. 113. 174.

So if one promiſe to pay me ten pound upon the ſurrender of my Land to him, and that if he ſhall ſell it for above fifty pound that then he ſhall pay me tenn pound more, and I releaſe this to him before he do ſell it and before I do ſurrender, in this caſe this doth not releaſ the ſecond promiſe becauſe it is not releaſable. Adjudged Trin. 14, Jac. B. R.

Alſo Debts, Legacies, and other duties may be releaſed and diſcharged thereby before or after they become due. And therefore a rent or annuity may be releaſed before the day of payment.

And ſo alſo may a debt due by obligation: Judgements, Executions, Recogniſances and the like, by apt words be diſcharged by releaſe. See infra

If the charge or duty grow by record, the diſcharge and releaſe thereof muſt be by record alſo. And if it grow by writing, the diſcharge and releaſe muſt be by writing alſo. Nihil eſt magis rationi conſentaneum quam eodem modo quodque diſſolvere quo conflatum eſt. And therefore a duty growing by a verball agreement may in ſome caſes be releaſed by word without writing. 5. How and after what manner theſe things may be releaſed.

But

But regularly lands and Tenements cannot be given, nor rights and titles to lands, and actions be diſcharged by releaſe without a Deed in writing.

Condition. Defeaſance.

A releaſe that doth enure by way of mitter le eſtate, mitter le droit, or extinguiſhment, may be made upon condition or with a defeaſance, ſo as the condition or defeaſance be contained in the releaſe or delivered at the ſame time with it, for no defeaſance made after can avoid the force of a releaſe made before. Co ſuper Litt. 274. Perk. Sect. 718. Lit. 467. Co. 1. 111. 21. H. 7. 24.

And yet a releaſe may be delivered as an eſcrow, and ſo the force of it may be ſuſpended for a time.

But a releaſe of a condition may not be made upon a condition.

Nor may a releaſe of a chattell be upon a condition ſubſequent, but it may be upon a condition precedent.

And therefore if a man releaſe a debt to another upon condition that the releſſor may have ſuch a debt owing from a third perſon to the releſſee; this is a good condition. Curia. B. R. Hill. 9 Car. Barkley & Perkes caſe.

A releaſe of all actions may be made untill a time paſt, as untill the firſt of May laſt, or untill the day of the date of the releaſe; and this will diſcharge all actions till then and none after. Dier 307. 21 H. 7. 24. Co. ſuper Litt. 274. Sect. 467.

But a releaſe cannot be made of a right or action for a part of an eſtate, or for a a time only, as for one year, or untill Michaelmas next, or the like: for a releaſe of ſuch a thing for one day or for one hour is a releaſe of it for ever.

And yet a man may releaſe his right in a part of the land. And therefore if a man be diſſeiſed of two acres, he may releaſe his right in one of them and enter into the other acre.

Alſo a releaſe in the nature of an acquittance may be of part of a debt.

And therefore if one be bound in an obligation of four hundred pound to pay two hundred pound at Michaelmas, and at Chriſtmas after the Obligee by his Deed releaſeth three hundred ninety pound parcell of the ſaid four hundred pound; this is a good releaſe for ſo much and no more. Adjudged Barkley & Perkes caſe. Hil. 9 Car. B. R.

6 What releaſes may be made of lands or Tenements. And what ſhal be ſaid a good releaſe in deed Or not. And by whatwords it may be made.

In every good releaſe in Deed, howſoever it enure, theſe things are requiſite.

1 That there be a good Releſſor, and a good Releſſee, and a thing to be releaſed.

2 That the deed be well ſealed, delivered &c. And if it tend and enure by way of enlargement of eſtate, then theſe things are further required to make the releaſe good.

1. When it doth enure by way of enlargement or paſſing of an eſtate.

1 He that doth make the releaſe muſt have ſuch an eſtate in himſelf as out of which ſuch an eſtate may be derived and granted to the Releſſee as is intended by the Releaſe, as if he have the reverſion in Fee of Lands, he may releaſe to a Tenant for years and thereby encreaſe his eſtate to an eſtate for life or in tail, or he may paſs his whole Fee-ſimple by the releaſe. Dyer. 251.

1. In reſpect of the eſtate of the releſſor. Surrender.

But if there be Leſſee for years rendring rent, and the reverſion is granted for life the remainder over in Fee, and the Grantee of the reverſion releaſe all his right to him in remainder, and then he in the remainder grant the Reverſion, and the Tenant for life releaſe to the Grantee alſo; in this caſe it ſeems both theſe releaſes are void and cannot enure as releaſes, howbeit it may be if they have words of ſurrender in them they may enure as ſurrenders. Per Juſtice Jones. 5 Car. Dier idem.

So if there be Leſſee for years, the remainder in Tail, the remainder in Fee, and the Leſſee for years being a woman doth marry with him in the remainder in Fee, and he in remainder in Tail releaſe to him in remainder in Fee; this is a void releaſe. Adjudged Trin. 5. Jac. B. R. Buttlers caſe.

So if Tenant for life releaſe to him in remainder in Fee or in Tail; it ſeems this is void and cannot enure as a releaſe

So if there be Tenant for life, the remainder in Tail, the remainder in Fee, and he in remainder in Fee releaſe to the Tenant for life; this will not increaſe his eſtate.

And if the Tenant in Tail in in this caſe releaſe to the Tenant for life, his eſtate ſhall be no longer increaſed hereby then for the life of the Tenant in Tail. Lit. Sect. 598. Plow. 556. Co. ſuper Litt. 345.

2. He

2. He to whom the releaſe is made muſt have ſome eſtate in poſſeſſion in deed or in law, or in reverſion in deed, in his own or anothers right of the lands whereof the releaſe is made to be as a foundation for the releaſe to ſtand upon; for a releaſe which muſt enure to enlarge an eſtate cannot work without a poſſeſſion joined with an eſtate. And therefore the releſſee muſt be leſſee for life, years, or tenant by ſtatute Merchant, Staple, Elegit, or as gardian in chivalry that doth hold the land over for the value, or at leaſt he muſt be tenant at will. And therefore if a man let his land to another for term of years to begin preſently, and after the leſſor or his heir doth releaſe to the leſſee (after his entry and being in poſſeſſion) all his right in the land; this is good to enlarge the eſtate according to the time ſet down in the releaſe. But if the releaſe be before the term begin, or after the term begin and before the leſſee have entred; (howſoever if any rent be reſerved on the leaſe it may enure and be good to extinguiſh that rent) yet it is not good to enlarge the eſtate. And yet if a tenant for 20. years in poſſeſſion make a leaſe to B. for 10. years, and B. enter and he in the reverſion releaſe to the firſt leſſee for years; this is a good releaſe to enlarge the eſtate. 2. In reſpect of the eſtate of him to whom the releaſe is made.

So if a man make a leaſe for years the remainder for life or years, and the firſt leſſee doth enter; in this caſe a releaſe to him in remainder is good to enlarge the eſtate.

So if I grant the reverſion of my tenant for life to another for life, and after releaſe to him and his heires; this is a good releaſe to enlarge the eſtate. Co ſuper Lit. 270. 273. 265. Litt. Sect. 459. Plow. 423. Dier. 4. 15 H. 7. 14.

So if a man make a leaſe for life or years to a feme ſole, and ſhe take a husband; and he in the reverſion releaſe to the husband and his heires; this is a good releaſe to enlarge the eſtate according to the words of the releaſe. But if the caſe be ſo that a man had an eſtate in poſſeſſion of land, and he be now out of the poſſeſſion of it, and have but a right only to it; or if he have a poſſeſſion only and no eſtate; or if he have neither eſtate nor poſſeſſion; in theſe caſes a releaſe made to ſuch a one will not availe to enlarge his eſtate. Co. ſuper Litt. 273.

And therefore if a man make a leaſe for life the remainder for life, and the firſt leſſee dieth, and the leſſor releaſe to him in remainder for life, before his entry; this is a good releaſe to enlarge his eſtate, for he hath an eſtate of freehold in law capable of enlargement by releaſe before entry. But if there be leſſee for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in tail, the remainder in fee, and the leſſee for life is diſſeiſed and during the poſſeſſion of the diſſeiſor he that hath right doth releaſe to one of them in the remainder, this is void. So if lands be given in tail or leaſed for life, and the donee or leſſee is diſſeiſed, and during the poſſeſſion of the diſſeiſor the donor or leſſor doth releaſe all his right to the donee or leſſee, this is void and will not enlarge his eſtate, howbeit if there be any rent reſerved on the eſtate it will extinguiſh the rent.

So if the tenant by the curteſie grant over his eſtate, and after he in reverſion doth releaſe to the tenant by the curteſie, in this caſe his releaſe is void and wil not enlarge his eſtate.

So if an Infant make a leaſe for life, and the leſſee granteth the eſtate over with warranty, and the Infant at full age doth bring a Dum fuit infra ætatem, and the tenant doth vouch the grantor, who doth enter into the warranty, and the demandant being the Infant doth releaſe to him and his heires, this will not enlarge his eſtate, for in truth he had no eſtate before, and that which is not cannot be enlarged.

And if leſſee for life or years, releaſe to him in remainder or reverſion, this cannot be good as a releaſe, howbeit if there be apt words it may amount to a Surrender.

And if a man have only an occupation of land as tenant at ſufferance, as when a leſſee for years doth hold over his terme, or the like; no releaſe to him can work any enlargement of eſtate, for albeit he have a poſſeſſion yet hath he no eſtate, and beſides in this caſe there is no privity: which is the third thing required in theſe releaſes, Co. ſuper Litt. 270. Litt. Sect. 451. Litt. Sect. 455, 456. Co. ſuper. Litt. 273. Dier. 251. Co. ſuper Litt. 271. Litt. Sect. 461.

3. In reſpect of privity.

For as in all theſe releaſes that enure by way of increaſe or paſſing an eſtate, there muſt be ſome eſtate in the releſſor and the releſſee, ſo there muſt be ſome privity in eſtate between them at the time of the releaſe made, for an eſtate without privity is not ſufficient. And therefore it muſt be, between donor and donee, leſſor and leſſee, and the like, as in the caſes before, between him in reverſion and the leſſee for life or years, tenant by ſtatute Merchant or Staple, or by Elegit or Gardian in Chivalry that keepeth the land for the value. And if tenant for life leaſe for years, and he in the reverſion and the tenant for life doe joine together and releaſe to the leſſee for years; this is a good releaſe to enlarge the eſtate. So if he in reverſion releaſe to the husband that hath an eſtate in the right of his wife only for life or years; this is a good releaſe. So if leſſee for years make a leaſe of the land but for part of the terme, the privity continueth ſtill, and therefore a releaſe to him is good to enlarge the eſtate.

But if he aſſigne over all the terme then the privity is gone, and therefore a releaſe made to him afterwards is void. And then a releaſe made to the aſſignee of the terme is good to enlarge the eſtate. And if a diſſeiſor make a leaſe for life or years, and after he and the diſſeiſee joine to gether to make a releaſe to the leſſee for life or years this is a good releaſe to enlarge the eſtate. But if the diſſeiſor in this caſe make a leaſe for life or years, and the diſſeiſee or he that hath right releaſe to the tenant for life or years; in this caſe the releaſe is void for want of privity. And if there be leſſee for years the remainder for life, and he in reverſion releaſe to the leſſee for years or him in remainder for life and his heirs all his right; this is a good releaſe to work an enlargement of eſtate. So if one make a leaſe for life, and grant the reverſion for life, and then the leſſor doth releaſe to the grantee of the reverſion and his heirs; this is a good releaſe to enlarge the eſtate of the grantee, and here is privity enough.

If A. be tenant for life, the remainder to B. in tail. the remainder to C. for life, the remainder to A. in fee, and A. die, and his heir doth releaſe all his right to B. being in poſſeſſion; this is a good releaſe and gives the Fee-ſimple. See Brownl. 1 part. 207. Co. ſuper Litt. 269. Litt. Sect. 461. Plow. 541. Co. ſuper. Litt. 273. Dier. 4. Co. 3. 22. Plow. 540. 14 H. 7. 4. Litt. Sect. 518. Co. ſuper Litt. 273. Bro. Releaſe. 71.

But if A. make a leaſe to B. for life, and the leſſee maketh a leaſe for years, and after A. in the life time of the tenant for life maketh a releaſe to the leſſee for years, this releaſe is void and will not enlarge his eſtate for want of privity.

So if a man make a leaſe for twenty years, and the leſſee make a leaſe for ten years, and the firſt leſſor doth releaſe to the ſecond leſſee and his heirs; this releaſe is void.

So alſo if the donee in taile make a leaſe for his own life, and the donor releaſe to the leſſee and his heirs; this releaſe is void.

So alſo if the donee in taile make a leaſe for his own life, and after the donor releaſe to the donee and his heirs; it ſeems this is not a good releaſe.

Alſo one Jointenant or coparcener may releaſe to another and thereby transferre all his Eſtate and give the whole intereſt unto his companion; and this is a good releaſe to paſs all his or her part of the land.

And if there be three Jointenants in fee and they make a leaſe for life, and after two of them releaſe all their right in the land to the third; this is a good releaſe.

So if one make a leaſe for life to another, and after grant the reverſion to ſeven, and the tenant for life doth atturn, and after four of the ſeven releaſe all their right to the other three, and after one of the three releaſe to the other two; theſe are good releaſes.

So if a leaſe for years be made to two, to begin at a day to come, a releaſe by one of them to the other is good to give all the terme and all the land to the releſſee.

But it ſeems one tenant in common cannot releaſe to another tenant in common. Co. ſuper Lit. 273. Litt. Sect. 516. Bro. Releaſe. 77. Perk. Sect. 84. 10 Ed. 4. 3.

The

The fourth thing that is required in ſuch a releaſe is ſufficient words in law not only to make a releaſe, (which is required in all releaſes) but alſo to raiſe and create a new eſtate. For this therefore know that all releaſes (of what kind ſoever) are commonly made by theſe words, Remiſiſſe, Relaxaſſe, & quietum clamaſſe, as being the moſt ancient and ſignificant words for this purpoſe. And amongſt theſe the word Releaſe is the moſt effectuall word, as that which doth include the other two, and as that which is the proper and peculiar word for this kind of conveyance. But there are other words alſo by which a releaſe may be made, as Renunciare, Acquietare, &c. And therefore it is held that if one have common in anothers land, and he by deed releaſe it to him thus: Renuntio Communiam meam &c. this is a good releaſe. And if the leſſor doe but grant to his leſſee for life that he ſhall be diſcharged of the rent; this is a good releaſe of the rent. And it is a rule, That by what words a debt or duty may be created, by words of a contrary ſignification it may be releaſed. And therefore if one doe acknowledge himſelf to be ſatisfied and diſcharged a debt, this is a good releaſe of the debt. And for words to raiſe the eſtate it is uſuall and moſt ſafe to ſpecifie in the deed what eſtate he to whom the releaſe is made ſhall have; and in moſt caſes this is needfull: for it is generally true, that when a releaſe doth enure by way of enlargment of eſtate no inheritance in feeſimple or fee taile can paſs without apt words of inheritance. And therefore if I make a leaſe of land to another for his life, and after I releaſe to him all my right without more ſaying in the releaſe, hereby his eſtate is not enlarged. But if I releaſe to him and his heirs; by this he hath a fee-ſimple. And if I releaſe to him and the heirs of his body; by this he hath an eſtate taile. But where a releaſe worketh by way of mittere le eſtate there in ſome caſes there needs not any words of inheritance, as in caſes where releaſes are made between Jointenants or coparceners, as where a joint eſtate is made to the husband and wife and a third perſon and their heires, and the third perſon doth releaſe all his right to the husband alone, or to the wife alone. So if there be three Jointenants, and one of them doth releaſe to one of the other two; in all theſe and ſuch like caſes there needs not any limitation of the eſtate, for the releaſe is good without it, Co. ſuper. Litt. 273. 264. 301. 9 H. 6: 35. Dier. 116 Litt. Sect. 544. Co. ſuper. Litt. 264. Dier. 307. Co. 9. 52. Co. ſuper Litt. 273. Litt. Sect. 465. 468, 469.

4. In reſpect of the words whereby it is made.

In every good releaſe in deed that doth tend and enure to give diſcharge or extinguiſh any right or title of lands it is alſo further requiſite, Litt. Sect. 466. Co. ſuper. Litt. 265. Co. 5. 70. 71. 1. 112. 8. 151.

2. When it doth enure by way of paſſing & extinguiſhment of a right or title only.

1. That he that doth make it hath at the time of the releaſe made ſome right or title to releaſe.

1. In reſpect of the eſtate of the releſſor.

As where one doth diſſeiſe me of land, and I releaſe to him all my right in the land this is a good releaſe. So if one diſſeiſe my tenant for life, and I (being the next in remainder or reverſion in fee) do releaſe to him that did make the diſſeiſin, this is a good releaſe. So if the husband make a leaſe for life, and then take a wife and dieth, and the wife releaſe her dower to him in reverſion; this is a good releaſe. And ſo alſo if after the mariage a man make a leaſe for life the remainder in fee, and ſhe releaſe all her right to him in remainder in fee, or to him in reverſion; this is a good releaſe and will barr her for ever.

And therefore if the Releſſor have only a poſſibility of a right, or a right happen to come to him after the releaſe, this is not ſufficient to make the releaſe good. And therefore if the father be diſſeiſed, and the ſon before the fathers death releaſe all his right to the diſſeiſor, and after the father dieth, ſo that the right doth deſcend; this is no good releaſe to bar the Releſſor of his right. So if there be Grandfather, father and ſon, and the father diſſeiſe the Grandfather, and make a feoffment, and the ſon releaſe in the lifetime of his father, and after the father and grandfather die; this releaſe in this caſe will not bar him. So if a leaſe be made for life, the remainder to the right heirs of I. S. and the leſſee is diſſeiſed, and the eldeſt ſon of I. S. living, his father doth releaſe to the diſſeiſor; this releaſe is void. So if the conuſee of a ſtature &c. doe releaſe to the conuſor all his right in the land; this is void, and he may ſue execution after notwithſtanding. Litt. Sect. 446. Co. 10. 47, 42. ſuper. Lit. 265. Co. 10. 57. Co. 5. 70.

Or if the Releſſor have only a power, this is not ſufficient to make the releaſe good.

And therefore if a man by his will deviſe that his executors ſhall ſell his land, and dieth, and the executors releaſe all their right and title in the land to the heir; this releaſe is void. Litt. Sect 446. Co. 10. 47. 42. ſuper Litt. 265. Co. 10. 57. Co. 5. 70. Co. ſuper Litt. 265.

2. In reſpect of the eſtate of him to whom the releaſe is made,

2. In all caſes of a releaſe of a bare right of a Freehold in lands or tenements, he to whom the releaſe is made muſt at the time of the making thereof in any caſe have the Freehold in deed or in law in poſſeſſion or ſome ſtate in remainder or reverſion in deed (and not in right only) in fee-ſimple, fee-tail, or for life of the lands whereof the releaſe is made; for rights of entry, and actions, and the like, are not to be transferred to ſtrangers, but are thus to be releaſed, and ſuch releaſes are good. As if the diſſeiſee releaſe to the diſſeiſor himſelf who hath the freehold in deed, or to the heir of the diſſeiſor before his entry, who hath the freehold in law, or to the leſſee for life of the diſſeiſor; theſe releaſes are good. So if a diſſeiſor make a leaſe to A. and his heirs during the life of B. and A. die, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to his heir before his entry; this is a good releaſe. So if a Fine ſur conuſance de droit come ceo &c. or ſur conuſance de droit only (which is a feoffment on record) be levied, or if tenant for life by agreement of him in the reverſion ſurrender to him in the reverſion, or if a man doe bargain and ſell his land by deed indented and inrolled, or uſes are raiſed by covenant on good conſiderations; in all theſe caſes the conuſee, him in reverſion, bargainee, and ceſtuy que uſe, have a freehold in law in them before entry.

And therefore a releaſe to them (of the right of the land by him that hath it, is good and will bar the Releſſor. But otherwiſe it is in caſes of Exchange, Partition, or upon Livery within the view, for in theſe caſes no releaſe is good until an actuall entry made, for till then they have neither freehold in right nor law. So if a diſſeiſor make a gift in tail, or leaſe for life or years of the land, and keep the reverſion, and then the diſſeiſee or his heir releaſe to the diſſeiſor all his right: this is a good releaſe to bar his right for ever. So if the heir of the diſſeiſor be diſſeiſed, and the firſt diſſeiſee doe after releaſe to him all his right; this is a good releaſe to bar him. So if a donee in tail diſcontinue in fee, and the donor releaſe to the diſcontinuee and die; this is a good releaſe againſt the donor. So if the donee in tail be diſſeiſed, and after the donor releaſe to the donee all his right: this is good, but in this caſe nothing of the reverſion will paſs by the releaſe, for the donee had then nothing but a right.

Extinguiſhment.

But if any rent be reſerved on the eſtate tail, the rent is gone by the releaſe. So if a leaſe be made to one for life rendring rent, and the leſſee is diſſeiſed, and the leſſor releaſe to the leſſee and his heirs all his right; in this caſe albeit the rent be extinct, yet nothing of the right of the reverſion doth paſs. And yet if a woman that hath right of dower releaſe to the guardian in Chivalry: this is a good releaſe, and her right or title of dower is gone. But if a diſſeiſor make a leaſe for years, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to the leſſee for years; this releaſe is void becauſe he hath no freehold. But if he make a leaſe for life, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to the leſſee for life, this is a good releaſe.

So alſo a releaſe to the diſſeiſor after the leaſe for years made is good. And if leſſee for years be ouſted, and he in the reverſion diſſeiſed, and the diſſeiſor make a leaſe for years, and the firſt leſſee releaſe to him, this is a good releaſe. Alſo in ſome caſes a releaſe made to one that hath neither freehold indeed, nor freehold in law, is good when he hath an eſtate in reverſion or remainder, as in the caſe before, where a releaſe is made by the diſſeiſee to the diſſeiſor after he hath made an eſtate for life. So if the demandant in a reall action releaſe to the tenant that comes in by receipt upon a prayer of aid or voucher upon a warranty; this is good. And yet if it be before the receipt, or entry into the warranty, or it be by any other beſides the demandant, it is void. So if the tenant in a reall action alien hanging the precipe quod reddat againſt him, and after alienation the plaintiff releaſe all his right in the land to him, this is a good releaſe. So if a diſſeiſor make a leaſe for life, the remainder remainder to another for life, the remainder to a third in taile, the remainder to a fourth in fee, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to either of them in remainder; this is a good releaſe. But if in this caſe tenant for life be diſſeiſed, and after he that hath right (the poſſeſſion being in the diſſeiſor) doth releaſe to either of them in remainder; this is a void releaſe. Brownlows. 2 part. 254. But in all the caſes of a releaſe of a bare right to him that hath an eſtate of a freehold in deed orin law, generally there needs no privity to make the releaſe good: as in the caſe before of a releaſe made to the tenant for life of the diſſeiſor, and them that follow. For if tenant for life make a leaſe to another for life of the leſſee, the remainder over in fee, and the firſt leſſor releaſe all his right to him to whom the tenant made the leaſe for life; this is a good releaſe and a perpetuall bar, albeit the releaſe be not to him and his heirs. And ſo it is in caſe of a reverſion. Co. ſuper Litt. 267. Co. ſuper Lit. 266 275. Lit. Sect. 448 1 H. 6. 4. Dier. 302. Litt. Sect 449. Co. ſuper Litt. 266. Litt. Sect. 455, 456. Co. ſuper Litt. 265. Litt. Sect: 448, 449 450. 451. Co. 8. 151. Co. ſuper. Litt. 275. Lit. Sect. 470. 471. Co. 10. 48. 3. In reſpect of privity.

If leſſee for years be ouſted, and he in the reverſion diſſeiſed, and the diſſeiſor make a leaſe for years, and the leſſee that is ouſted doth releaſe to the leſſee of the diſſeiſor; this is a good releaſe. And yet if the diſſeiſee doe releaſe to the leſſee for years of the diſſeiſor; this is void.

If leſſee for a thouſaad years be ouſted by the leſſor, and he make a leaſe for two years, and the leſſee for a thouſand years releaſe unto him; this is a good releaſe. But if a leſſor diſſeiſe his leſſee for life, and make a leaſe for a thouſand years, and the leſſee for life releaſe to this leſſee of a thouſand years; this releaſe is void.

If one be diſſeiſed, and after another doth diſſeiſe him, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to the laſt diſſeiſor; this is a good releaſe. So if A. diſſeiſe B. who infeoffeth C. with warranty, who infeoffeth D. with warranty, and E. diſſeiſeth D. to whom B. the firſt diſſeiſee releaſeth; this is a good releaſe, and doth defeat all the mean eſtates and warranties. So if my diſſeiſor leaſe for life, and the leſſee for life alien in fee, and I releaſe to the alienee all my right, &c. this is a good releaſe and will bar me of my entry: but if my entry be gone, as if I leaſe for life, and my leſſee be diſſeiſed and that diſſeiſor is diſſeiſed, and I releaſe to the ſecond diſſeiſor; in this caſe the firſt diſſeiſor may enter upon the ſecond. So if my diſſeiſor in the caſe aforeſaid make a leaſe for life, and the leſſee for life maketh a feoffment to two, and I releaſe to one of the feoffees; this is a good releaſe and will bar me and my diſſeiſor alſo. So if tenant for life let the land to another for the life of the leſſee, the remainder to another in fee, and the leſſor releaſe to his tenant for life; this is a good releaſe. Co. ſuper Litt. 277. Litt. Sect. 473. 470, 471. 478.

If one that hath a ſon within age be diſſeiſed and die, and the diſſeiſor die ſeiſed, and the land deſcend to his heir, and a ſtranger abate, to whom the ſon when he comes of age doth releaſe; this is a good releaſe. So if one be diſſeiſed by an infant which doth alien in fee, and the alienee die ſeiſed, and his heir entreth, the diſſeiſor being within age, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to the heir of the alience; this is a good releaſe. But where an inheritance or an eſtate for life is releaſed to one that is but tenant for years, the releaſe is not good without privity. And therefore if tenant for life or in fee releaſe to the leſſee for years of his diſſeiſor; this is not good. But the releaſe of a term of years to the leſſee for years of him that doth eject him is good enough without privity, as in the caſe before. 9 H. 6. 43. Co. 10. 48.

But here note that in caſes of a void releaſe of a right to an inheritance or freehold where there is a warranty contained in the deed, the warranty may be good, and be uſed by way of rebutter, albeit the releaſe be void. As if the ſon of the diſſeiſee releaſe with warranty in the life time of his father, or there be grandfather, father and ſon, and the father diſſeiſe the grandfather, and make a leaſe with warranty and die, in both theſe caſes albeit the ſon be not barred by the releaſe, yet he is barred by the warranty. Co. ſuper. Litt. 265. Warranty.

4. Such words as will make a good releaſe in the caſes of releaſes that enure by way of enlargment of eſtate, will make a good releaſe in theſe caſes. And note that this kinde of releaſe is good without any limitation or ſpecifying of the eſtate, for 4. In reſpect of the words whereby it is made.

for by a releaſe of all a mans right without ſaying To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, &c. in all the caſes before, he that makes the releaſe is barred of his right for ever, for if I be ſeiſed of an eſtate in Fee by wrong, and he that hath right releaſe to me all his right, albeit it be but for one houre, yet this is a good releaſe for ever. Co. ſuper Litt. ſect. 467.

7. What Releaſes may be made of other things. And what ſhall be ſaid a good Releaſe in Deed of ſuch things. Or not. And by what words. Of a ſeigniory, Rent-ſervice, common, or the like.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord releaſe to the Tenant all his right that he hath in the Seigniory, or all his right that he hath in the Land, &c. this is a good releaſe to extinguiſh the ſeigniory. And in this caſe there need no words of inheritance or limitation, for by releaſe of all the right in the ſeigniory; the ſame is extinct for ever, without ſaying [to him and his heirs]. And yet in this caſe the Lord may by apt words releaſe his Seigniory to the Tenant only in Tail, or for life, and it ſhall be good ſo long.

But if a Lord grant to his Tenant that he ſhall doe his ſuit to another Manor of the Lords, or that the Tenant ſhall give him yearly twelve pence for his ſuit; this grant will not extinguiſh and determine the ſervices or Tenure. Lit. ſect. 480. Co. ſuper Lit. 280. 305. Perk. ſect. 70.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant be diſſeiſed, and after the Lord releaſe all his right, &c. to the Tenant; by this releaſe the ſervice or ſeigniory is extinct, for albeit a right regularly cannot be releaſed to him that hath but a bare right, yet a ſeigniory may be releaſed and extinct to him that hath but a bare right in the Land.

But if the Tenant make a Feoffment in Fee, and then the Lord releaſe all his right, &c. to the Tenant; this is not good to extinguiſh the ſeigniory or ſervices, but it will diſcharge all the arrearages. Lit. ſect. 457. Co. 10. 48. ſuper Lit. 268.

If a rent-charge, common of paſture, or any other profit apprender be iſſuing out of my Land, and he that hath it doth releaſe it to me; this is a good releaſe and will extinguiſh it. But if I be diſſeiſed of the Land, and have but a right at the time of the releaſe made: the releaſe is not good, as it is in the caſe of a rent-ſervice and a ſeigniory.

But if lands be given to me in Tail, or for life rendring rent, and I be diſſeiſed, and after the Donor releaſe to me all his right in the Land; this is a good releaſe and ſhall extinguiſh the rent. So if in this caſe where I am Tenant in Tail, and I make a Feoffment in Fee rendring rent, and after I releaſe to the Feoffee: this is a good releaſe and hereby the rent is extinct. And if two coparceners be of a rent, and one of them take the Terre-Tenant to husband, and after either of them releaſe; theſe releaſes will be good. Lit. ſect. 480. 536. 537. Co. ſuper Lit. 305. Lit. ſect. 455. 456. Co. ſuper Lit. 273.

If one diſſeiſe me of land, and then grant a rent charge out of the Land, and I reciting the ſame grant releaſe to the Grantee; this releaſe it ſeems is good, and will bar me ſo as after my reentry I ſhall not be able to avoid it. Lit. ſect. 527. Co. ſuper Lit. 300.

Of an Advowſon, &c.

If two have the grant of the next advowſon or avoidance of a Church; before it be void one of them may releaſe to the other, but afterwards they cannot; Co. ſuper Lit. 270.

Of a Condition.

If A make a Feoffment in Fee, gift in Tail, leaſe for life or years to B on condition that upon ſuch a contingent it ſhall be void; in this caſe A may before the condition broken releaſe all his right in the Land, or releaſe the condition to B; and this will be good to make the eſtate abſolute and to diſcharge the condition. So if a Feoffee on condition make a gift in Tail or leaſe for life, and after the Feoffor releaſe to the Donee or Leſſee; this is a good releaſe to diſcharge the condition. So if a copyholder ſurrender to the uſe of another on condition, and this is preſented to be without condition, and after the ſurrendror doth releaſe to him to whoſe uſe the ſurrender was made all his right, &c. this is a good releaſe and doth extinguiſh the condition.

But if a Diſſeiſor make a Feoffment on condition, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Feoffee on condition; howſoever this doth bar the right of the Diſſeiſee, yet it doth not diſcharge the condition. Co. 1. 112. Perk. ſect. 823. 764.

Where

Where a power or authority is ſuch that doth reſpect the benefit of the releſſor, as in the uſuall caſes of power of revocation of uſes, when the Feoffor, &c. hath power to alter, change, determine or revoke the uſes being intended for his benefit, and he releaſe to any one that hath a freehold in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder, by the former limitation: this is a good releaſe and doth extinguiſh the power, and make the eſtates that were before defeaſible abſolute, and it doth ſeclude him from any power of alteration or revocation. But if the power be collaterall, or the uſe of a ſtranger, and nothing to the benefit of him that makes the releaſe: as if A make a Feoffment to B to divers uſes; provided that B ſhall revoke the uſes, and B releaſe to any one of them that hath a uſe, this doth not extinguiſh the power, as in caſe where the power is given to A, and A doth releaſe it. Co. 1. 112. 113. 173. 174. Of a power of revocation.

If a Feoffment be made with warranty, and the Feoffee releaſe the warranty; this doth extinct it. And ſo it is of other warranties. But if Tenant in Tail releaſe the warranty annexed to his eſtate Tail, this doth not extinguiſh this warranty. Of a warranty.

Any man may releaſe any debt or duty due to himſelf. Alſo a man may diſcharge or releaſe any thing due, or any wrong done to his wife before or after the marriage. And therefore if a Treſpaſs were done, or a promiſe were made to my wife before the marriage; I may at any time during the marriage releaſe this. So if any wrong be done, or obligation, ſtatute, or promiſe made to her alone; or to her and me together at any time during the marriage; I alone may releaſe and diſcharge this. Of debts and other duties perſonall.

And if my wife be an Executrix to any other man, I may releaſe any debt or duty due to the teſtator. See Brownlows 1. part 15. 19. Bro. Releaſe 88. 21 H. 7. 29. Co. 5. 27.

And if a Legacy be given to a woman ſole to be paid at Michaelmas next, and I marry with her, and I releaſe the legacy before the day: it ſeems by this the legacy is gone. Per. ch. Juſtice B. R. Mich. 17. Ja.

An Infant Executor may releaſe a debt duly paid unto him of the teſtators debt. Co. 5. 27. Infant.

But if he releaſe that which he doth not receive, it is a void releaſe. And regularly the releaſe of an infant is void.

An Executor before probate of the Will may releaſe a debt or duty due to the teſtator; and this releaſe is good to bar him. Co. 5. 27. 9. 39,

2 In reſpect of the time.

A future or contingent promiſe may be releaſed and diſcharged before the contingent happen. A debt on an obligation, or rent may alſo be releaſed before the day of payment as well as after, but not by the ſame words. And therefore if one promiſe to I S that upon the ſurrender of I S he will pay him an hundred and ten pound, and after the promiſe, and before the ſurrender he releaſe this debt; this doth diſcharge the Debt. But if the promiſe be that if the ſurrendree ſhall ſell the land, and ſhall have five hundred pound, that then he ſhall pay to the ſurrendror an hundred pound more, and the ſurrendror before ſale releaſe this ſum; this is no diſcharge of it; And yet a releaſe of the promiſe is a diſcharge of it. And if A promiſe to me that if I S doe not pay to me an hundred pound 1 Octobris, that he doth owe me, that A will pay me the hundred pound, 10 Novembris, and I 10 Septembris releaſe to him this debt, or all actions and demands; in this caſe this releaſe is not good to diſcharge this promiſe. But by a releaſe of the promiſe, the ſame is diſcharged. Trin. 14. Jac. in Eltons caſe. Hil. 16 Jac. B.R. Briſcoe verſus Heirs.

If a man releaſe to another all actions, and doe not ſay further which he hath againſt him; this is as good a releaſe as if theſe words were inſerted. Quod neceſſario ſub intelligitur non deeſt. Bro. Releaſe 29. Of actions.

And all theſe releaſes muſt be made by apt words, and ſuch as law ſhall judge ſufficient for that purpoſe. Co. 9. 53.

And in all caſes care muſt be had there be no miſtake, for miſtakes will make releaſes and confirmations void as well as other grants

And therefore if A make a releaſe to B in this manner: Noveritis, &c. me A de B remiſiſſe &c. B omnes actiones quas idem B habet verſus, A, whereas it ſhould be quas idem A habet verſus B; this releaſe is void. See more in Brownlows Rep. 2 part. 215. Bro. Releaſe 56. 58,

8. What ſhall be ſaid a Releaſe in Law. Or not. And how.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord purchaſe the Tenancy; by this means the ſervices are releaſed and extinct in Law.

And if the Lord diſſeiſe his Tenant, and make a Feoffment in Fee by deed or without deed; this is a releaſe in Law of the ſeigniory. Co. ſuper Litt. 264.

Of a ſeigniory

If a diſſeiſee diſſeiſe the heir of the deiſſeiſor, and make a Feoffment with or without a deed; this is a releaſe in fee in Law of the right.

Of a right to land.

And if he make a leaſe for life, this is a releaſe in Law of the right ſo long as the leaſe doth laſt. Co. idem.

Of a right of action. Executor.

If a creditor, as an Obligee, or the like, make a debtor, as the Obligor, &c, his Executor; by this means the action is releaſed by act of Law, and yet the duty remains ſtill, for the Executor may retain ſo much of the goods of the Teſtator. And if the creditor be a woman, and ſhe marry with the debtor; by this the debt is releaſed in Law. And if there be two Obligees or debtees, and one of them being a woman, is married to the Obligor; this is a releaſe in Law of the debt, albeit the Creditor be an Infant. See more in Brownlows Rep. 1 part 64. 73. Co. ſuper Litt. 264. 8 E. 4. 3. 21 E. 4. 2.

But if there be a woman Executrix to the debtee, and ſhe take the debtor to husband; this is no releaſe in Law. M. 30. & 31. El. B. R. Adjudged.

And if an Obligor be made Adminiſtrator of the goods and chattels of the Obligee; this is no releaſe in Law. Co. 8. 136.

9 The force and virtue of it. And how it ſhall enure and be conſtrued and taken. 1 In reſpect of the perſons. And where a releaſe made by one ſhall bind another. And where not. And where a releaſe made to one ſhal enure to others. Or not. Executors.

Where divers joyn in any ſuit or action to recover any perſonall thing of which they are to have the joynt benefit or intereſt when the law doth not compell them to joyn, there the releaſe of one of them ſhall bar all the reſt. And therefore if two men joyn in an action of Debt, Treſpas, or the like, and one of them alone doth releaſe to the defendant; this is a bar to the other plaintiffs alſo. So if a ſtatute or an Obligation be made to two or more, and one of them releaſe it to the Conuſor or Obligor, this is a diſcharge of the whole duty, and a bar to the reſt, ſo that they can make no uſe of the Statute or Obligation. But if divers be charged in any action and they for the diſcharge of themſelves only joyn in a Suit or action, where alſo they can doe no otherwiſe being compelled by law to joyn: in this caſe the releaſe of one of them ſhall not hurt the others. And therefore if divers joyn in a writ of Error, Attaint, or Audita querela, and one of them releaſe to the defendant in the writ, this will not bar the reſt of their remedy, but they may goe on in their ſuit notwithſtanding. Co. 6. 25. 5. 22. Bro. Releaſe 84. 94. ſtat. 23 H. 8. ch. 3.

If there be two or more Executors and one of them alone releaſe a debt or duty to the teſtator before judgement had in a Suit had by all the Executors againſt the Debtor, this will bar all the reſt. But otherwiſe it ſeems it is after judgement had. 16. H. 7. 4.

If a writ of ward be brought by two, and one of them releaſe, this ſhall not bar his companion, but ſhall enure to his benefit, for hereby he ſhall have the whole ward. Co. ſuper Lit. 205.

A releaſe made to the Tenant in Tail, or for life of the right to the land, ſhall avail and enure to him that hath a reverſion or remainder in deed. And ſo é converſo. A releaſe made to him that hath a remainder or reverſion will avail and enure to the benefit of him that hath the eſtate tail for life, or years precedent. As if a Diſſeiſor make a leaſe for life, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe to the Tenant for life, this ſhall enure to the Diſſeiſor. So if he or a Tenant for life make a leaſe for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in Tail, the remainder in Fee, and the Diſſeiſee or firſt Leſſor doth releaſe all his right to any one of them in remainder, this ſhall enure unto, and benefit all the reſt. And if the husband make a leaſe of his wives Land to one for life, the remainder to another in Fee, and the wife after his death doth releaſe all her right in the land to him in remainder: this ſhall enure to the Leſſee for life. Lit. Sect. 452. 470. Co ſuper Litt. 275. 290. 267. 268. Co. 8. 151.

If

If a diſſeiſor make a leaſe for life, and the diſſeiſee releaſe all his right to the tenant for life; this ſhall enure to the benefit of the diſſeiſor. But if the diſſeiſee releaſe no more to the tenant for life but all actions; this releaſe will not benefit him in remainder or reverſion after the death of the tenant for life. Co. ſuper. Litt. 275.

If a diſſeiſor make a feoffment to two in fee, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to one of the feoffees, this ſhall enure to both. Litt. Sect. 472.

If tenant in tail be diſſeiſed by two, and he releaſe to one of them; this ſhall enure to both.

But if the Kings tenant be diſſeiſed by two, and he releaſe to one of them; this ſhall not enure to the other. So if two jointenants make a leaſe for life, and then diſſeiſe the tenant for life, and he releaſe to one of them; in this caſe his companion ſhall have no benefit by it. Co. ſuper. Litt. 276.

If tenant in fee ſimple be diſſeiſed by two, or two doe abate or intrude, and he doth releaſe to one of them; the other ſhall have no benefit by this. But if tenant for life doe after a diſſeiſin done to him releaſe to one of the diſſeiſors; this ſhal enure to both. Litt. Sect. 472, 522.

And if two diſſeiſors be, and they make a leaſe for life or years, & after the diſſeiſee doth releaſe to one of the diſſeiſors, this ſhall enure to them both, and to the benefit of the leſſee for life alſo. Co. ſuper. Litt. 276.

And if leſſee for years be ouſted, and he in reverſion diſſeiſed; and the leſſee releaſe to the diſſeiſor; the term of years is hereby extinct, and the diſſeiſee may take advantage of it and enter preſently.

But if two jointenants in fee be diſſeiſed by two diſſeiſors, and one of the diſſeiſees releaſe to one of the diſſeiſors all his right; this ſhall enure to the other, for this extendeth but to a moity.

If a releaſe be made by a woman of her dower to the guardian in Chivalry, this ſhall enure to the heir, and he may take advantage of it. Co. ſuper. Litt. 266.

If tenant for life be diſſeiſed by two, and he in the reverſion and the tenant for life join in a releaſe to one of the diſſeiſors; this ſhall not enure to the other. But if they doe ſeverally releaſe their ſeverall rights, their ſeverall releaſes ſhall enure to both the diſſeiſors. Co. ſuper. Litt. 276.

If mortgagee upon condition after the condition broken be diſſeiſed by two, and the mortgagor that hath the title of entry doth releaſe to the one diſſeiſor; this ſhal enure to both.

And like law is for an entry for mortmain, or a conſent to raviſhment Co. idem. &c.

If there be Lord and two jointenants, and the Lord releaſe to one of them; this ſhall avail his companion. Co. ſuper. Litt. 269.

If tenant in fee-ſimple make a feoffment in fee, and after the Lord releaſe to the feoffor, this ſhall not enure to the feoffee to extinguiſh the ſeigniory. But if he releaſe to the feoffee, this ſhall enure to the feoffor to extinguiſh the ſeigniory.

If there be lord and tenant, and the tenant make a leaſe for life, the remainder in fee, and the Lord releaſe to the tenant for life; the rent is hereby wholly extinguiſhed, and he in remainder ſhall take advantage of it; as when the heir of a diſſeiſor is diſſeiſed, and the diſſeiſor makes a leaſe for life, the remainder in fee, and the firſt diſſeiſee doth releaſe to the tenant for life; this ſhall enure by way of extinguiſhment to him in remainder, viz. to the leſſee for life firſt, and after to him in remainder. Co. ſuper. Litt. 279.

If two tenants in common of land grant a rent of forty ſhillings out of it, and the grantee releaſe to one of them; this ſhall not enure to the other. But if one be tenant for life of lands the reverſion in fee to another, and they join in the grant of a rent out of the lands, and the grantee releaſe either to the tenant for life, or to him in reverſion; this ſhall enure to the other and extinct the whole rent. Co. ſuper. Litt. 267.

If two men gain an advowſon by uſurpation, and the right Patron releaſe to one of them; this releaſe ſhall enure to them both. Co. ſuper Litt. 276.

If two be bound jointly and ſeverally in any obligation, or other eſpecialty, and the obligee, &c. releaſe to one of them; this ſhall enure to diſcharge the other alſo if it be a good releaſe as to him that makes it.

But otherwiſe it is in caſe of a releaſe made by the King. Co. 5. 59 ſuper Litt. 232. Litt. Sect. 376.

Prerogative. And If two do a treſpaſs to another together, and he to whom it is made doth releaſe it to one of them; this ſhall enure to diſcharge the other.

To husband & wife. If husband and wife, and I. S. purchaſe to them and the heirs of the husband, and after I. S. releaſe all his right in the land to the husband; the wife ſhall have no benefit by this, but it ſhall enure to the husband alone Dier. 319. Co. ſuper. Litt. 273 276. 14 H. 8. 6.

And if there be two women joint diſſeiſereſſes, and the one take a husband, and the diſſeiſee releaſe to the other; in this caſe the husband and wife ſhall take no benefit by this.

And if the diſſeiſee releaſe to the husband; this ſhall enure to him and his wife and the other woman.

And if one that hath a rent out of my wives land releaſe it to me and my heirs; this ſhall enure by way of extinguiſhment, and my wife will have advantage of it. And yet if the words be [grant and releaſe] the rent to the husband and his heirs; in this caſe the husband may take as a grant if he will.

Note. But here note in all theſe caſes of releaſes, when one man will take advantage of a releaſe made to another, he muſt have the releaſe to ſhew and plead. Co. ſuper. Litt. 232.

If I bee diſſeiſed, and I releaſe to the diſſeiſor all actions I have or may have againſt him; this is but perſonall, and ſhall not be expounded to bar my heir after my death of his remedy, neither will it bar me of my remedy againſt his heir after his death. Co 10. 51. 22 H. 6. 1.

So if I deliver goods to another, and afterwards I releaſe to him all actions, and then he die; by this I am not barred ſo, but I may ſue his executors.

2. In reſpect of the thing releaſed. Of all actions. A releaſe of all actions without any more words, is better then a releaſe of all actions reall only, or a releaſe of all actions perſonall onely, for by a releaſe of actions, or a releaſe of all manner of actions, without more words, are releaſed and diſcharged all reall, perſonall, and mixt actions then depending, and all cauſes of ſuit for any reall or perſonall thing: as Appeals for the death of an anceſtor, conſpiracies, ſuits by Scire facias to have execution of a Judgement, detinue for charters. Co. 8. 153. 5. 28. 70. Kelw. 113, Co. ſuper. Litt. 286. 290. 292. 289. Lit. ſect. 492. 505, 506. 512, 513. Broo. ſtat. 39.

And if two conſpire to indite me, and I releaſe to them all actions, and after they goe on with their conſpiracy; by this releaſe I am barred to doe any thing againſt them.

By this releaſe alſo of all actions, a debt due to be paid upon a ſtatute or an obligation at a day to come, albeit the releaſe be before the day is diſcharged, and by this alſo the ſtatute it ſelf if it be at any time before execution is diſcharged.

And if one be to pay forty pound at four days, and ſome of the days are paſt, and ſome to come, and the debtee make ſuch a releaſe, by this the whole debt is diſcharged. See more Brownlows. 1. part. 84. 80.

Alſo in a Scire facias upon a Fine or a Judgement, this releaſe is a good plea in bar.

But this releaſe of all actions will not diſcharge Executions, or bar a man of taking out of Executions, except it be where it muſt bee done by Scire facias. Neither will it diſcharge or bar a man of ſuits by Audita Querela, or writ of Error to reverſe an erroneous judgement, neither will it diſcharge covenants before they be broken, nor will it diſcharge any thing for which the releſſor had no cauſe of action at the time of the releaſe made, as if a woman have title

title of dower, and doe releaſe all actions to him that hath the reverſion of the land after an eſtate for life ; or a man is by an award to pay me ten pound at a day to come, and before the time I make ſuch a releaſe; or I make a leaſe rendring rent, or an annuity is granted to me, and before the rent-day, I make the leſſee or the grantor ſuch a releaſe; in theſe caſes, and by a releaſe in theſe words without more the dower debt, rent, or annuity, is not diſcharged.

It being made before the day of paiment of an Annuity to the grantee of an Annuity, it will diſcharge the Arrerages before accrued, but not the paiments after. 4 Ed 4. 4co. for a releaſe is not avoidable to any right or Action but what a man hath at the time of the releaſe, Goldsb. 163. And therefore it is there held by Gawdy and Popham Juſtices. That where an Obligation is delivered as an Eſcrow, and the obligee releaſe to the obligor all actions, and after the obligation is delivered as his deed; this releaſe will not diſcharge it. 5 H. 7. 27.

And if a man have two remedies or means to come by land, as action and entry, or by goods, as action and ſeiſure, or the like; in this caſe by a releaſe of all actions he doth not barr himſelf of the other remedy. Et ſic è converſo. Litt. Sect. 496, 497.

And if a man doth covenant to build an houſe, or make an eſtate, and before the covenant broken the covenantee doth releaſe unto him all actions; by this the covenant it ſelf is not diſcharged. And yet after the covenant is broken, this releaſe will diſcharge the action of covenant given upon that breach. Co. ſuper Litt. 292.

By a releaſe of all a mans right into any lands or tenements without more words is releaſed and diſcharged all manner of rights of action and entry the releſſor hath to, in or againſt the land, for there is jus recuperandi, proſequendi, intrandi, habendi, retinendi, percipiendi, poſſidendi, and all theſe rights, whether they accrue by fine, feoffment, deſcent, or otherwiſe, are extinct and diſcharged; ſo that if the leſſee have gotten into the land of the releſſor by wrong, by this releaſe the wrong is diſcharged, and the releſſee is in the land by good title. Co. 8. 151. Plow. 484. 6 H. 7. 8. Co. 3. 29. 6. 1. ſuper Litt. 345. Of all right.

Alſo by this releaſe are diſcharged and releaſed all titles of dower, and titles of entry upon a condition or alienation in mortmain.

And if a woman have title of dower after an eſtate for life, and make ſuch a releaſe to him in reverſion, this doth barr her. By ſuch a releaſe alſo from the Lord to the tenant the ſervices are extinct.

But this releaſe wil not bar a man of a poſſibility of a right that he hath at the time of the releaſe, or of a right that ſhall deſcend to him afterwards. And therefore if the conuſee of a ſtatute before Execution releaſe all his right into the land to the terretenant; or the heire of the diſſeiſee in the life-time of his father doe releaſe to the diſſeiſor all his right; theſe releaſes doe not bar them. Nor will this releaſe bar a man of an Audita Querela, and ſuch like things. And yet if the tenant in a reall action after the demandant hath recovered the land, releaſe to him all his right in the land; this doth bar him of a writ of Errour for any errour in the proceeding in that ſuit. Co. 10. 47. ſuper. Litt. 289.

And if there be Lord and tenant by fealty and rent, and the Lord by his deed reciting the tenure doth releaſe all his right in the land ſaving his ſaid rent; by this releaſe the right of the ſeigniory, ſave only of the ſeigniory of the rent and fealty, is extinct.

And if the Lord releaſe to his tenant all his right to the land and ſeigniory, ſalvo ſibi dominio ſuo, &c. hereby the ſervices only, not the tenure is extinct. Co. ſuper Litt. 159. Dier. 157.

And if one have a rent-charge out of my land, and make ſuch a releaſe of all his right to the land to me that am the terretenant without excepting of the rent; hereby the rent is extinct and gone for ever. Perk. Sect. 644.

By a releaſe of all a mans title into lands or tenements, without more words is releaſed and diſcharged as much as is releaſed by the releaſe of all a mans right, and both theſe releaſes have the like operation, for howſoever title ſtrictly and properly Of all title.

is where a man hath lawfull cauſe of entry into lands where of another is ſeiſed, for which he can have no action, yet it is commonly taken more largely, and doth include a right alſo.

And Titulus eſt juſta cauſa poſſidendi quod noſtrum eſt. Kelw. 484. 6, 7, 8. Co: ſuper. Litt 265. 345.

Of entry or right of entry,

By a releaſe of all entries or rights of entry a man hath into lands, without more words a man is barred of all right or power of entry into thoſe lands upon any right whatſoever.

And if a man have no other means to come by the land but by an entry; and he hath releaſed that by theſe words; he is barred for ever. But if one have a double remedy, viz. a right of entry, and an action to recover his right by, and then releaſe all enrries; by this he is not barred of his action. Co. 8. 151.

Of actions reall.

By a releaſe of all actions reall without more words, are diſcharged all reall and mixt actions then depending, and all cauſes of reall and mixt actions not depending.

And therefore all cauſes of ſuing of aſſiſes, writs of entry, Quare Impedit, actions of waſte, and the like, which the party hath at the time of the releaſe made, are hereby diſcharged. But this releaſe will not bar him that doth make it of any cauſes of action that ſhall ariſe and accrue afterwards. Neither will it bar him of an appeal of death or robbery, writ of Error, or any ſuch like thing. Nor of any thing which a releaſe of all actions will not bar. And yet when land is to be reſtored or recovered by judgement in a writ of Error; this releaſe is a bar to the writ of Error. So if a judgment be given upon a falſe verdict in a reall action, a releaſe of all actions reall is a bar in an attaint. See more. 1 part. 65. Litt. Sect. 492, 493. 495. Co. 8. 151. Litt. Sect. 115. 500. Co. ſuper Litt. 288, 289.

Of actions perſonall.

By a releaſe of all actions perſonal without more words are diſcharged all perſonall actions then depending, and all cauſes of perſonall actions wherein a perſonall thing only is to be recovered, and therefore hereby are diſcharged all cauſes of ſuing out of actions of debt, treſpaſs, detinue, or the like. Alſo all mixt actions, as actions of waſt, Quare Impedit, an aſſiſe of novel diſſeiſin, writ of annuity, appeal of maihme, and the like. Bro. Releaſe. 47. Co. ſuper. Litt. 285. 9 H. 6. 57. Litt. Sect. 502.

And if debt, &c. or damages be recovered in a perſonall action by falſe verdict, & the defendant bringeth a writ of attaint, or if a writ of Audita Querela be brought by the defendant in the former action to diſcharge him of execution; by this releaſe the defendant in both caſes is barred of his ſuit. Co. ſuper. Litt. 289.

Alſo when by a writ of Error the plaintiff ſhall recover, or be reſtored to any perſonall thing only, as debt, damage, or the like: as if the plaintiff in a perſonall action recover any debt, &c. or damages, and be outlawed after judgement; in this caſe in a writ of Error brought by the defendant upon the principall judgement, this releaſe will bar him.

But where by a writ of Error the plaintiff ſhall not be reſtored to any perſonall or reall thing, this releaſe is no bar: as if a man be outlawed in an action perſonall by proceſs upon the originall, and bring a writ of Error, and then releaſe, this is no barre to him: Co. ſuper. Litt. 288. Litt. Sect. 503.

If a man by wrong take or find my goods, or they be delivered to him, and I releaſe to him all actions perſonall; notwithſtanding this releaſe, I may in this caſe take my goods again, albeit I be barred of my action by this releaſe.

Neither is this releaſe a bar in an appeal of robbery or death.

Neither will it bar in any caſe where a releaſe of all actions will not bar.

Neither is it any bar to an action of debt brought for an annuity granted for a term of years for any arrearages that ſhall grow due after the releaſe.

Nor for any rent or ſum of nomine pene, when the releaſe is before the ſame day, or nomine pene happen.

Neither is it a bar in ſuch reall actions wherein damages are recoverable only by the ſtatute, and not by the common law, as in a writ of Dower, entry, ſur diſſeiſin diſſeiſin in le per Mordanceſter, Aile, &c. See more Brownl. 1 part. 64: Lit. Se ct. 497. 498. 500. Co. ſuper Lit. 292. 285.

By a releaſe of all debts without more words, are diſcharged and releaſed all Debts then owing from the releſſee to the releſſor upon eſpecialties, or otherwiſe, all Debts due alſo upon Statutes. Co. ſuper Lit. 76. 291. Fitz. Andita Querela. 3. Of Debts.

And therefore if the Conuſor himſelf, or his Land, be in Execution for the Debt, and he hath ſuch a releaſe, he muſt be diſcharged: and ſo he cannot upon a releaſe of all actions.

By a releaſe of all duties without more words is a releſſor barred, and the releſſee diſcharged of all actions, judgements, and Executions, alſo of all obligations. And if the body of a man be in Execution, and the plaintiff make him ſuch a releaſe; hereby he ſhall be diſcharged of execution, becauſe the duty it ſelf is diſcharged. Of Duties.

And if there be rent or ſervices behind to the Lord from his Tenant, and the Lord make ſuch a releaſe to his Tenant; by this it ſeems the arrearages are releaſed. Co. 8. 153. & ſuper Lit. 291.

This word is of ſomewhat a more large extent then actions, for by a releaſe of all ſuits without more words is releaſed and diſcharged as much as by a releaſe of all actions. Of Suits.

And hereby alſo are diſcharged all executions in the caſe of a ſubject. But in the caſe of the King it doth not releaſe executions. Prerogative.

And this doth not releaſe a Covenant before it be broken. Co. 8. 154, 157, 5: 70: ſuper Litt. 291.

By a releaſe of all quarrels without more words, all actions reall and perſonall, and all cauſes of ſuch actions are releaſed and diſcharged. So likewiſe by the releaſe of all controverſies, or by the releaſe of all debates. But this will not bar the releſſor of any cauſes of Suit that ſhall ariſe after, and was not at the time of the releaſe: as the breach of a Covenant which ſhall be after, albeit the Covenant be before, is not diſcharged hereby. See more in Brownlows rep. 64. 65. 115. 80. Co. ſuper Litt. 292. 8: 157: 5. 70. Of Debates, quarrels, controverſies.

By a releaſe of all covenants without more words, all covenants then broken and all that ſhall be after broken that were then made, and in being, are diſcharged. Qui deſtruit medium deſtruit finem Co. 1. 112. 10. 51. ſuper Lit. 292. Of Covenants

But a releaſe of all Actions, Suits, Quarrels, Debts, Executions and Treſpaſſes before any covenant broken, is no bar to the Action of Covenant:

So if one be baile for another and enter into a recogniſance that if Judgement paſs againſt the principall, and he will not either pay the condemnation or yield his body to priſon that then he will pay it,

And the creditor before Judgement releaſe to the Conuſor as is before, and it was adjudged to be no bar of the Execution againſt the baile. Goldsb. 162. plea. 66. for it was not an abſolute, but a contingent duty.

And therefore if a Leſſee doe Covenant to leave a houſe leaſed to him at the end of the terme as it was at the beginning of the terme, and the Leſſor before the end of the terme releaſe to the Leſſee all Covenants; this doth diſcharge the Covenant.

But this releaſe doth diſcharge nothing elſe but Covenants. Adjudged Hill. 4: Jac. B. R. Hancocks caſe.

By a releaſe of all Statutes, from the Conuſee to the terre-tenant without more words the Statute is diſcharged. Of Statutes.

And yet if he releaſe all his right in the land of the Conuſor; this will not diſcharge the land of Execution. Co. 10. 47.

By a releaſe of all errors and writs of errors, and writs of error, and that before they be brought, are extinct and diſcharged. Co 2. 16. Lit. Sect. 503. Of Errors.

And if a man be outlawed in a perſonall action by proceſs upon originall, and make ſuch a releaſe; this will bar him.

By a releaſe of all Warranties or Covenants reall, all Warranties then made and being, are for ever diſcharged. Litt. Sect. 148. Of Warranties.

By

Of Legacies. By a releaſe of all legacies without more words, a man doth bar himſelf of all the legacies given him in preſenti or futuro, ſo that if he be to have a legacy at 24 years old, and at 21 years of age he releaſe to the Executor all legacies or this legacy in particular; this is a bar to him of this legacy for ever. Co. 10. 51. Dyer 56: Co. ſuper Lit. 76.

And yet a releaſe of all demands in this caſe is no diſcharge of this legacy.

Of Rent. By a releaſe of Rent the Rent is extinct and diſcharged whether the day of payment be come or not. But a Releaſe of all actions will not diſcharge a Rent before the day of paiment come. Co. ſuper Lit. 292.

Of promiſes. By a Releaſe of all promiſes or Aſſumpſits without more words a man may bar himſelf of a contingent or future thing that by other words could not be releaſed, as if a man promiſe to me that if I S doe not pay me one hundred pound the tenth of March next, that he will pay it me the twentieth of that month, and before the time I releaſe to him all actions and demands; this will not diſcharge the promiſe. But if I releaſe to him all promiſes, this will bar mee. Et ſic de ſimilibus. Adjudged Hil. 16. Jac. B. R. Briſcoe verſ. Heires. Co. 10. 51.

Of Judgements. By a Releaſe of all Judgements without more words he that maketh it is barred of the effect, of any Judgement he hath againſt the Releſſee, for if Execution be not taken out he is now barred of it.

Of Executions And if the Releſſee, or his land, &c. be in Execution he and it ſhall be diſcharged thereof by Audita querela.

And by a Releaſe of all Executions without more words, a man is barred of taking or having out of any Execution upon any Judgement either before Scire facias or after.

But if after Execution be made by Capias ad Stat. Elegit, or fieri facias the plaintiff Releaſe to the defendant all Executions, he cannot plead ſuch a Releaſe but he Audita querela. muſt have an Audita querela, and that he may have to diſcharge him of Execution. Lit. Sect. 507. Co 8. 151. ſuper Lit. 290.

Of Appeales. By a Releaſe of all appeales, are diſcharged all appeales of Felony, of Death, of Robbery, of Rape, of Burning, of Larceny depending, and all cauſes not yet moved alſo. Co. ſuper Lit. 287. 288.

Of Advantages. By this Releaſe of all advantages, it ſeems actions of Debt upon account are diſcharged Co. 8. 150.

Of Conſpiracies. By a Releaſe of all conſpiracies, all conſpiracies paſt are diſcharged, and ſuch alſo as are only begun and ſhall be proſecuted and perfected after the Releaſe, are likewiſe hereby diſcharged. Kelw. 113.

Of forgeries. By a Releaſe of all forgeries before publication the forgery is diſcharged, but not the publication, and therefore the Releſſor may take his remedy for that notwithſtanding Co. 10. 48.

Of demands or Claimes. A Releaſe of all demands is the beſt Releaſe of all, and this word is the moſt effectuall word of all, and doth indeed include and comprehend within it moſt of all the Releaſes before. Co. ſuper Litt. 291 Co. 8. 54. Lit. ſect. 501. 509. 510.

By a releaſe of all demands without more words are Releaſed all rights and Titles to Land, Warranties, conditions annexed to eſtates before they be broken or performed, and after they be broken.

Alſo by this releaſe are releaſed and diſcharged all Statutes, Obligations, Contracts, Recogniſances, Covenants, Rents, Commons, and the like.

Alſo all manner of actions reall and perſonall, Appeales, Debts, Duties.

Alſo all manner of Judgements, Executions. Alſo all Annuities, and Arrearages of Annuities and Rents. And therefore if a man have a Title of entry by force of a condition, &c. or a right of entry into any Lands; by ſuch a releaſe the right and Title is gone. And if a man have a rent-ſervice, rent-charge, Eſtovers, or other profit to be taken out of the Land; by ſuch a releaſe to the Tenant of the Land it is diſcharged and extinct. See more Brownl. 1 part. 80. 64. 65, 115. 116. 186.

And therefore if a Termor for years grant the Land by indenture to A rendring rent, and at the end of the firſt yeare he releaſe to the Grantee all demands; the rent is hereby extinct during all the time. Adjudged B. R. paſc. 17. Jac. Wottons caſe:

A releaſe of all demands will diſcharge a rent due. Goldsb. 168. a debt upon an Award to be paid at a day to come being made before the day. But if it be a duty that reſts meerly in poſſibilitie and contingencie, as if one be bound that if A deliver to him at a day Hay he will pay money; this cannot be releaſed by this before the day, ſo a nomine pene waiting upon a rent, untill the rent be behind, ſo to pay 10l upon the birth of a child, or the like. Brownlows 1 part 1. 9. 115. And a releaſe of all claimes it ſeems is much of the ſame nature.

But by a releaſe of all demands or of all claimes is not releaſed any ſuch thing as whereof a releaſe cannot be made, as a meer poſſibility, or the like. Co. 5. 70.

Neither will this releaſe diſcharge a covenant or promiſe that is future and contingent before it be in being. Nor a covenant before it is broken: and therefore if the Leſſee of a houſe covenant to leave it as well in the end of his terme as it was in the beginning of his terme, and before the end of the terme the leſſor releaſe to the Leſſee all demands; this is no bar to an action brought for a breach of the covenant afterwards. Hil. 4. Jac. B. R. Hancocks caſe Adjudged.

And if a man in conſideration of a ſumm of money given to him by a woman ſole aſſume to her that if ſhe mary one M that he will pay to her after the death of M one hundred pound by the year if ſhe ſurvive him, and ſhe mary him, and the husband releaſe all demands and then die; this is no bar to the duty.

So if one promiſe a woman that if ſhe will marry him that he will leave her worth one hundred pound if ſhe doe ſurvive him, and before the marriage ſhe releaſe to him all actions and demands; this doth not diſcharge the promiſe. Hil. 6. Jac. B. R. Belcher & Hudſons caſe.

And note that all theſe words are of the ſame force when they are joyned with other words as when they are alone. Note.

If two Tenants in Common of land grant a rent-charge of forty ſhillings out of it to one in Fee, and the Grantee releaſe to one of them; this ſhall extinguiſh but twenty ſhillings, for that the grant in judgement of law is ſeverall. Co. ſuper Litt. 267.

If one have ſeverall cauſes of action againſt two, and make a joynt releaſe to them; this ſhall be taken to be a releaſe of all joynt and ſeverall cauſes of action 19 H. 6. 4.

So if an Executor have ſome cauſe of action for himſelf, and ſome for his Teſtator, and he releaſe all actions, indefinitly; this releaſe doth diſcharge both ſorts of actions. Bro. Releaſe 31. 29.

If the Tenancy be given to the Lord and a ſtranger, and to the heires of the ſtranger, and the Lord releaſe to his companion all his right in the Land; this ſhall enure not only to paſs his eſtate in the Tenancy but alſo to extinguiſh his right in the Seigniory. Co. ſuper Litt. 280.

If there be Lord and Tenant of two acres, and the Lord releaſe all his right in one of them to the Tenant; hereby the ſervices are extinct for both. Perk. Sect. 71. Bro Releaſe 85. 9 E. 3.

So if one have a rent-charge out of twenty acres, and releaſe all his right in one acre; hereby all the rent is extinct.

And yet if A leaſe white acre to B for life rendring rent, and afterwards doth releaſe part of the rent; this is good only for ſuch part.

If I be ſeiſed of Land in Fee and I make a Leaſe of it to one for life, and after I releaſe all my right in the Land for the life of the Tenant for life, ſo as neither I nor my Heirs ſhall have claim or challenge any thing or right in that Land for the life of the Tenant for life; by this releaſe nothing is extinct or diſcharged but the cauſes of action of waſt that were then, and not any cauſe that ſhall happen afterwards. Bro. Releaſe 65.

If a Statute be entred into the twentyeth of Aprill, and the Conuſee by a releaſe dated the ninteenth of Aprill (meaning to except the Statute) doth releaſe all debts and demands till the making of the releaſe; by this releaſe the Statute is diſcharged. But if the words had been to the day of the date of the releaſe contra. See more in Brownlows Rep. 2 part. 300.

If

If a promiſe be of two parts, and he to whom it is made doth releaſe one part; it ſeems this is a releaſe of both. Per Juſtice Dodrige Trin. 14. Jac.

If A Jan. 1. enter into an obligation of forty pound to B. and B July 13 make a Deed thus, It is agreed between B on the one part and A on the other part, that upon good conſiderations B doth acknowledge himſelf fully ſatisfied and diſcharged of all bonds, debts or demands whatſoever from the beginning of the world to this day by the ſaid A, and that he the ſaid B is to deliver all ſuch bonds as he hath yet undelivered to A except one bond of forty pound yet unforfeit which is for the paiment of, &c. which was the obligation before; in this caſe it was adjudged a good releaſe and diſcharged of all the bonds excepting that one, and that this exception ſhall goe to all the premiſſes, Co. 9. 53.

3 In reſpect of the time or eſtate.

A releaſe of a right, or an action cannot be for a time but it will be for ever.

And therefore if a releaſe be made to any one that hath a Fee-ſimple by wrong by him that hath the right for one houre, one yeare, for life, or yeares; this is a good releaſe for ever Litt. Sect. 467. 470. Co. ſuper Litt. 273. 264. 280. Kelworth 88. Co. ſuper Litt 9.

And if the Diſſeiſee releaſe all his right in the land to the Diſſeiſor without naming his Heires or ſetting down any time how long the releſſee ſhall have the land or the right of the Diſſeiſee therein; this is a good releaſe for ever, and doth make the eſtate of the diſſeiſor good for ever, and ſo doth make a good eſtate in Fee-ſimple without theſe words [his Heirs, &c] And if the Diſſeiſor or his Heire make a gift in Tail, or a leaſe for life, and the Diſſeiſee releaſe all his right to the Donee or Leſſee for life, To have and to hold for life only; this is a good releaſe of his right for ever.

But if the Diſſeiſee do Diſſeiſe the Heire of the Diſſeiſor, and make a leaſe for life (which is a releaſe in Law;) by this the right is releaſed during that time only.

So if one Jointenant or parcener releaſe to the other all his right in the Land, without the words [heires] or any more word; this releaſe doth give to his companion his whole intereſt for ever.

And when the Lord, or Grantee of a rent releaſe to the Tenant, or terre-tenant generally; by theſe releaſes a Feeſimple is transferred without any words of heires, &c. And yet the Lord may releaſe his Seigniory to his Tenant, to hold to him in Taile or for life, and this ſhall be taken and enjoyed accordingly. But if the Lord doth releaſe the Seigniory to his Tenant without any words of heires put in the Deed, the ſame is extinct.

And if I let land to a man for terme of yeares and after I releaſe to him all my right which I have in the Land, without uſing any other words in the Deed; or releaſe to him, To have and to hold for his life; in both theſe caſes he hath an eſtate for his life only. Lit. Sect. 545. 546. 565. Plow. 556. Dier 263.

And if I leaſe land to a man for his own life, and after releaſe to him To have and to hold for his own life; hereby he hath but an eſtate for his own life.

But if I make a leaſe to him for anothers life; and after releaſe to him Habendum to him for his own life, by this he hath an eſtate for his own life.

But if I be ſeiſed of land in Fee-ſimple and let it to another for life or years, and then releaſe all my right to him To have and to hold to him and his heirs, hereby he hath the Fee-ſimple.

And if I releaſe all my right to him To have and to hold to him and the heires of his body, hereby he hath an eſtate Tail.

And if one be ſeiſed in Fee of a rent ſervice or charge, and grant it firſt for life, and then releaſe it to the Grantee To hold to him and his heirs, or to him and the heires of his body: this ſhall enure to an enlargement according to the agreement. Lit. Sect. 549.

But if one grant a rent-charge out of his land de novo, and after releaſe to the Grantee all his right in the rent, To have and to hold to him in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail: this doth not enlarge the eſtate.

And

And if Tenant in Tail, or for life make a Leaſe for years, and after by Deed doth Releaſe all his right to the Leſſee for years in poſſeſſion, to hold to him and his Heirs for ever; this will not make the Eſtate of the Leſſee good for longer time, then the life of the Releſſor. Littl. Sect. 606. 610. 24 Eliz. 3. 28.

If one make a Leaſe for ten years, the Remainder for twenty years to another, and he in Remainder, Releaſe all his right to the Leſſee for ten years; in this caſe the Releſſee hath an Eſtate for thirty years, and no leſs; for one Leaſe for years cannot drown in another. Co. ſuper Littl. 273.

If I let Land to a Woman ſole for her life, or for years, and ſhe take a Husband, and after I Releaſe to them two to hold for their lives; this ſhall enure no further then the intent, and in the firſt caſe he ſhall hold joyntly with his Wife, but in her right, whiles ſhe doth live, and after for his own life, if he ſurvive, and in the laſt caſe they ſhall have the Freehold joyntly. Littl. Sect. 526. Co. ſuper Littl. fol. 299. 300.

If there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty and Rent, and the Lord granteth the Seigniory for years, and the Tenant attorneth, and the Lord Releaſeth his Seigniory to the Tenant for years, and to the Tenant of the Land generally; by this the Seigniory is extinct for ever, and the Eſtate of the Leſſee alſo: But if the Releaſe be to them and their Heirs; then the Leſſee ſhall have the Inheritance of the one Moyety, and the other is extinct. Co. ſuper Littl. 280.

10. Acquittance, what.

It is a diſcharge in writing of a ſum of money, or other duty which ought to be paid or done; As if one be bound to pay money on an Obligation, or Rent reſerved upon a Leaſe, or the like, and the party to whom the money or duty ſhould be paid or done upon the Receipt thereof, or upon ſome other Agreement between them, maketh a writing under his hand, witneſſing that he is paid or otherwiſe contented, and therefore doth acquit and diſcharge him of the ſame. The which is ſuch a diſcharge, and Bar in the Law, that he cannot demand and recover the ſame again contrary thereunto, if the acquitance be ſhewed. Terms Ley.

11. Where a man is not bound to pay money without he hath an Acquitance.

The Obligor is not bound to pay money upon a ſingle Bond, unleſs the Obligee will make to him an Acquitance or Releaſe; nor is he bound to pay it before he hath the Acquitance: And in this caſe the Obligor may compel the Obligee to make him an Acquitance. And ſo alſo it is in caſe of a Statute Merchant, one is not bound to pay the money thereupon, before he hath the Acquitance or Releaſe of the Plaintiff. But otherwiſe it is in caſe of an Obligation with a Condition; for there a man may aver payment. 22 Ed. 4. 6. 41 Ed. 3. 25. 1 H. 7. 15. 22 Ed. 4. 6. Broo. Debt 43. Oblig. 10.

CHAP. CXXXVIII.

Of a Remitter.

Sect. 1. 1. Remitter, what.

REmitter is where a man is come to two Titles in Lands or Tenements, and his latter is defective, and not ſo good as the former; or when a Mans Entry is taken away by Diſcent or Diſcontinuance, and he hath the Frank-tenement caſt upon him by a new Title; in this caſe he ſhall be, or at leaſt may be (if he will) reſtored to his firſt Title, and then he ſhall be ſaid to be in by that Title, and that ſhall be ſaid to him a Remitter.

It is thus defined by ſome. Remitter is an operation of Law upon the meeting of an ancient Right, redmediable; and a latter ſtate in one perſon where there is no folly in him, whereby the ancient Right is reſtored, and ſet up again, and the new defeaſible Eſtate vaniſhed away. Quod prius eſt verius, Co. upon Littl. 347, 348. As if a man be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor makes a Feoffment to the Diſſeiſee; in this caſe the Diſſeiſee may (if he will) be remitted to his elder Title, or he may chuſe: For in ſome caſes where it is not to the prejudice of a ſtranger, he that hath the Titles, may chuſe whether he will hold by the former, or the latter Title; and if he enter generally, where he hath two Titles, the Law will judge him in of his elder Title, until he have done ſome act to declare his Election. So that there are two things requiſit in a Remitter; firſt, Ancient Right; ſecondly, A new Poſſeſſion: And the reaſon of it, is the Ancient Right, which is, firſt, moſt ſure; ſecondly, moſt worthy: And for the Poſſeſſion, it ought to be where the party gets the Poſſeſſion, and not by an act wherein is folly. Thirdly, the efficient cauſe is an act in Law: And for the ancient Right, it muſt be a Right not a Title, and it muſt be a Right of Entry, and in that caſe, however he come to the Poſſeſſion, he ſhall be remitted, unleſs it be by Eſtoppel; and this Remitter by Right of Entry, is not waveable. *Crompt. Election.

Sect. 2. 2. In what caſe a Remitter ſhall be.

For Anſwer hereunto, theſe things are to be known:

1. In all caſes, when a man hath a lawful Right of Entry into Land, and the Poſſeſſion be caſt upon him by Act of Law, nolens volens, he muſt be remitted; but if it come by his own act, it is in his Election, whether he will be remitted, or not: As if after he have one Title, he take any eſtate by any other way and means, then by Fine or Deed indented, (whereby he may be eſtopped) he ſhall be remitted. Broo. cap. 252.

Election.

2. If one Leaſe for life to one, and he alien in Fee, and the Alienee make an Eſtate to the Leſſor; in this caſe the Leſſor is remitted. Littl. Sect. 694. 695.

3. If Lands be given to a Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to another in Tail, the Remainder to another in Fee; and the Husband of the Wife diſcontinue, and the Husband and the Wife take back a new eſtate to them for their lives; this is a Remitter to them, and all them in the Remainder. Littl. Sect. 673.

4. If an Eſtate be made to the Husband in Tail, the Remainder to his Wife for life, the Remainder to B. C. D in Fee: And after another Eſtate is executed to the Husband and Wife for life, the Remainder to another, and ſhe enter generally after the Husbands death, ſhe ſhall be judged in, as in her Remitter, without ſpecial Claim made; for that is her beſt Eſtate. By three Judges. Where the party that is to be remitted, hath a Right of Entry, howſoever he come to the Poſſeſſion, unleſs it be by Eſtoppel, he ſhall be remitted. By Juſtice Dodridge. 16 *Jac. B. To a Tenant in Tail, and his Iſſue.

5. If a Tenant in Tail diſcontinue the Tail, and after diſſeiſe his Diſcontinuee, and die ſeiſed; the Iſſue in Tail that comes in now by diſcent, ſhall be remitted, and the Title of the Diſcontinuee is utterly defeated, though the Iſſue be an Infant, or

Feme-

Feme-covert. Littl. ſect. 147. If a Tenant in Tail infeoff his Iſſue in Tail within age, and after die, the Iſſue is remitted, though he be of full age before the death of the Anceſtor. Littl. ſect. 660. If one diſſeiſe the Diſcontinuee of a Tenant in Tail, and Infeoff the Iſſue, the Iſſue after the Anceſtors death, ſhall be remitted. Plow. 48. 19 H. 8. 12. Infant.

6. If a Tenant in Tail diſcontinue in Fee, and then take back an Eſtate in Fee, and after deviſe the Land by will, and the Deviſee wave the Deviſe; in this caſe the Iſſue ſhall be remitted, contrà, if he had not waved it. Dyer 221. Kelw. 4.

7. If Lands be intailed to a man and his wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies engendred, and they have a daughter, and the wife die, and the husband marry another, and have another daughter by her, and diſcontinue the Tail; and after doth diſſeiſe the Diſcontinuee, and die ſeiſed, and the Land diſcend to the daughters; the eldeſt is remitted for one moyety, but the youngeſt is not for the other moyety. Littl. ſect. 662.

8. If a Tenant in Tail infeoff his Heir Apparant in the Tail, and another, the Iſſue is remitted for the one moyety, but not the other for the other moyety. Lit. ſect. 663.

9. If a Tenant in Tail infeoff his Iſſue in Tail, and another of the Intail Land, and Livery of Seiſin is made to the other, according to the Deed, and the ſon not knowing of it, doth not agree to the Feoffment, and after the other die, and the ſon never meddle with the profits of the Land, during his Fathers life, and then the Father die; now the ſon is remitted. Littl. ſect. 684. If a Tenant in Tail infeoff his Iſſue, being within age, and his wife in Fee, and dieth; this is a Remitter to the Iſſue preſently by the death of the Tenant in Tail. Co. ſuper Littl. 351.

10. If the Husband alien the Lands he hath in the right of his wife, and after take back an Eſtate again to them for their lives, or otherwiſe; now in this caſe, if the wife do ſurvive the Husband, ſhe ſhall be remitted; and that though this ſecond Eſtate to the husband and wife be by Fine: But if the wife die firſt, the Heir of the wife ſhall not be remitted, if the ſecond Eſtate were a Fee-ſimple. Littl. ſect. 666, 667. Sect. 3. To a Wife that hath a Husband.

11. If the husband diſcontinue his wives Land, and the Diſcontinuee is diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor doth make a Feoffment in Fee or Leaſe for life to the wife; in this caſe ſhe ſhall be remitted; but if it were by Covin between the Diſſeiſor and the wife, contrà: Co. 3. 78. Littl. ſect. 678. If the Tenant in Tail diſcontinue the Tail, and have iſſue a daughter of full age; and ſhe take a Husband, and the Diſcontinuee makes a Releaſe of it to the Baron and wife, for their lives; this is a Remitter to her, and ſhe is in of the Eſtate-tail. Littl. 671.

12. If Lands be given to a man and his wife, and the heirs of their two bodies, and after the husband alien the Land in Fee; and take back an eſtate to him and his wife for their lives; in this caſe they ſhall be both remitted. Littl. ſect. 671.

13. If the Husband diſcontinue his wives Land, and take back an Eſtate to him and his wife, and a third perſon; this is a Remitter for their Wives moyety, not for the other. Littl. ſect. 676. And if the Husband in this caſe take back an Eſtate to him, and his wife, during the life of the Husband; this is a Remitter to his wife preſently. Littl. ſect. 676.

14. If one diſſeiſe me, and after make a Feoffment to me with Warranty, now I may be remitted, if I will, or I may make uſe of the Feoffment, with Warranty at my Election. 12 H. 7. 20. To the Diſſeiſee or his Heir. Election.

15. If a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for years or life, or any other Eſtate to the Diſſeiſee by Deed, or without Deed; this is a Remitter, contrà, if it were by Fine. Litt. ſect. 693. 12 H. 7. 20.

16. If my Father diſſeiſe me, and after die ſeiſed, and the Land diſcend to me, I am and muſt be remitted. Kelw. 41. 12 H. 7. 20.

Sect. 4. 17. If the Heir of the Diſſeiſor, that is in by diſcent, make a Leaſe for life to J. S. the Remainder for life, or in Fee to the Diſſeiſee; in this caſe, after the death of J. S. the Diſſeiſee ſhall be remitted; for when two Titles meet, the beſt ſhall be preferred. 11 Ed. 4. 1. Littl. ſect 685.

To an Infant. 18. If one diſcontinue the Land of an Infant, and after one diſſeiſe the Diſcontinuee, and infeoff the Infant, the Infant ſhall be remitted; but if there were any Covin between the Infant and Diſſeiſor, contrà. Co. 3. 78.

19. If a Tenant in Tail infeoff a Feme-ſole, and the Iſſue in the Tail, being within age, take her to wife after the death of the Anceſtor; in this caſe he is remitted, and his wife hath nothing in the Land, but if he had been of age when he had married her, contrà. Littl. ſect. 665.

20. If two Joyntenants be, one of full age, and the other within age, and they be diſſeiſed, and the Diſſeiſor die ſeiſed, and his Heir enter (the other Joyntenant ſtill within age) and the Heir of the Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe to them; this is a Remitter for the moyety of him within age, but for the other moyety, contrà. Littl. ſect. 696.

To a Parſon of a Church. 21. If I be ſeiſed of an Advowſon in groſs, and an uſurpation be had againſt me, and at the next avoidance I uſurp again; in this caſe I ſhall be remitted.

3. In what caſe no Remitter ſhall be. No Remitter ſhall be in theſe caſes.

Firſt, When the party doth come to the ſecond Title, by Act of Parliament.

Secondly, When he comes to it by Fine or other Record.

Thirdly, When there is not both an Action and a Right, with a diſcent come to the party to be remitted; for if the Right and the Poſſeſſion of the Land be in ſeveral perſons, and he that hath the Right, hath one againſt whom to bring his action, there ſhall be no Remitter.

Fourthly, When the party comes to the laſt Title by his own wrong.

Fifthly, When a man hath but a Title of Entry onely, as for Mortmain, Eſcheat, Condition broken, or the like. Co. upon Littl. 348.

Sixthly, When two Rights onely diſcend, there muſt be an Ancient Right, and a new Eſtate; for one Right cannot work a Remitter to another Right.

Seventhly, No Remitter ſhall be to a Right remedileſs; for the which, one can have no Action. Dyer 54. Co. 3. 3. Plow. 207. Kelw. 44. Littl. ſect. 147.

Sect. 5. For the illuſtrating of which, take theſe caſes.

To a Tenant in Tail, or his Iſſue. 1. If a Tenant in Tail infeoff the Iſſue in Tail, after he is of full age, and die, the Iſſue ſhall not be remitted to his elder Title. Littl. ſect. 664.

2. If a Tenant in Tail ſince the Statute of Uſes, make a Feoffment in Fee to the uſe of the Iſſue in Tail, and die; in this caſe the Iſſue ſhall not be remitted, but in this caſe, if any Entry be given to the Iſſue by Law, he may take it. But if the Iſſue in this caſe wave the Poſſeſſion, and bring a Formedon in the Diſcender, and recover againſt the Feoffees, he ſhall be remitted. Broo. Remitter 149. Plow. 114. Dyer 23.

3. If a Tenant in Tail ſuffer a Common Recovery, and after diſſeiſe the Recoveror, and die; his Iſſue ſhall not be remitted, though the Recovery be erroneous, as long as it ſtands in force, and is not reverſed; for neither an Action without a Right, nor a Right without an Action can make a Remitter. Co. upon Littl. 349.

4. If the Iſſue in Tail diſſeiſe the Diſcontinuee of his Father, and then infeoff his Father, and he die, and the Land diſcend to him; in this caſe he ſhall not be remitted. Perk. ſect. 397.

5. If a Tenant in Tail have Iſſue two ſons of full age, and he Leaſe the Land intailed to his elder ſon for life, the Remainder to his yonger ſon for life; this is no Remitter to the eldeſt; but if he die without Iſſue of his body, this is a Remitter to the yongeſt. Littl. ſect. 682.

6. If the Tenant in Tail, and his Iſſue, diſſeiſe the Diſcontinuee of the Tenant in Tail, Tail, and the Tenant in Tail die, whereby the Lands diſcend to the Iſſue; now thongh he ſhall be remitted againſt all ſtrangers, yet not againſt the Diſcontinuee. 11 Ed. 4. 2.

7. If the Husband and Wife alien the Land of the Wife by Fine, and after take back any Eſtate to them again; in this caſe the Wife ſhall not be remitted. To a Wife that hath a Husband.

8. If the Husband diſcontinue the Tenements of his Wife, and take back an Eſtate to him for term of his life, the Remainder to his Wife, during the Husbands life; this is no Remitter, but after if ſhe ſurvive him, it is a Remitter, Littl. ſect. 680.

9. If the Husband make a Feoffment in Fee of the Land, he hath in the right of his Wife, and then take back an Eſtate in Fee to him, and his Wife, and ſhe die, and he over-live her; now her heir ſhall not be remitted.

10. If the yonger Brother diſſeiſe the elder, and the elder bring an Aſſiſe, and is barred, and after the yonger die without Iſſue, and the Land diſcend to the elder; in this caſe the elder is not remitted. Dyer 5. To the Diſſeiſee, or his Heir.

11. A man ſhall never be remitted to an Advowſon Appendant, though he have right, till he have recontinued the Manor, to which it is Appendant. So if one purchaſe an Advowſon in Fee, and ſuffer uſurpation, and ſix moneths, and it be after caſt upon him, by diſcent or other Act in Law, he ſhall not be remitted. So if the Uſurper grant the Advowſon, to the Purchaſor and his Heirs, and he dieth, his Heir is not remitted. If a Tenant in Tail of a Manor, to which an Advowſon is Appendant, make a Diſcontinuance, the Diſcontinuee granteth the Advowſon to Tenant in Tail, and his Heirs, the Tenant in Tail dieth, the Iſſue is not remitted: But contrà, if one be remitted to the principal, he ſhall be remitted to the Acceſſary, though ſevered by the Diſcontinuee. Co. upon Littl. 349. 4. For the thing, to which a man is to be remitted.

If the Feoffee of the Tenant in Tail charge the Land, or make Leaſes, or the like, and after the Iſſue is remitted; theſe charges and acts of the Feoffee, are avoided; ſo in all like caſes. Littl. ſect. 659. 5. What Acts ſhall be avoided by the Remitter, or nor.

If the Tenant in Tail infeoff his Iſſue in Tail, within age, and after being of full age, and then charge the Land, and after the Tenant in Tail die; now the Iſſue being remitted, the charge is avoided. Littl. ſect. 660.

If the Husband diſcontinue the Wives Land, and the Diſcontinuee make an Eſtate to the Husband and Wife, on Condition, and after the Husband die, and the Wife is remitted, here the Condition is avoided. Littl. ſect. 660.

CHAP. CXXXIX.

Of Remover of Records, Cauſes, and Perſons, out of one County into another.

Sect. 1.

1. Remover.

Emover is where a Sute or Cauſe is removed out of one Court into another; and for this purpoſe there are divers Writs and Means. Some of theſe are to remove the Cauſe onely, and ſome of them are to remove the Perſon and his Cauſe both. Co. 11. 41. Some of the firſt ſort are to remove Cauſes out of Courts of Record, and ſome to remove Cauſes out of Courts that are not Courts of Record. Corpus cum Cauſa, Habeas Corpus, is to remove the perſon, being a priſoner about the Cauſe, and his Cauſe; the Habeas Corpus, alſo Writs of Privilege, Prohibition, Cerciorari, Recordary, and others, are to remove the Cauſes onely. Writs of Error and Attaint alſo do remove Sutes. 21 Jac. chap. 23.

2. Recordo & proceſſu Mittendis, what.

There is an old Writ called Recordo & proceſſu mittendis, by which this was done.

Corpus cum cauſa, what.

Corpus cum cauſa, is a Writ iſſuing out of the Chancery, to remove both the Body and the Record, touching the Cauſe of any man lying in Execution, upon a Judgment for Debt into the Upper Bench, &c. there to lie until he have ſatisfied the Judgment. F.N.B. 251. Dyer 61.

3. Habeas Corpus, what.

Habeas Corpus, is a Writ lying where a man is indicted of Treſpaſs before Juſtices of Peace, or in a Court of any Franchiſe, and upon his apprehenſion being laid in priſon for the ſame, he may have out of the Upper Bench, thereby to remove himſelf thither at his own coſts, and to anſwer the cauſe there, &c. And the order in this cauſe is firſt to procure a Cerciorari out of the Chancery, directed to the Juſtices for the removing of the Indictment into the Upper Bench, and upon that to procure this Writ to the Sheriff, for the cauſing of his Body to be brought at a day. F.N.B. 250.

Cerciorari.

This Writ is uſed alſo for the removing of other Cauſes in other caſes, from one Court to another. F.N.B. 7. 250. 78. 110. Crompt. Jur. 46.

Sect. 2.

4. Cerciorari, what.

A Cerciorari, is a Writ that lieth where one is impleaded in a baſe or inferior Court, that is a Court of Record, and one of the parties contending, ſuppoſing he may not have Juſtice there upon a Bill in Chancery, compriſing ſome matter of Conſcience, as that he hath not had, or is not like to have Juſtice there, he ſhall have this Writ to remove the Record into the Chancery, that the cauſe may be there determined. And if he do not prove the matter of his Bill, there the other party ſhall have a Writ of Procedendo to ſend back the Record thither again, there to be ended.

Procedendo.

And by this other Records, as Indictments, Recogniſances, and the like, may be removed, and ſent up; and the courſe is to ſend the Record firſt into the Chancery, and not firſt to certifie it into the Upper Bench or Common Pleas, but out of the Chancery, to ſend it thither by a Mittimus, which is the ſending of a Record into another Court. And a Writ of Error is a Cerciorari in it ſelf. 2 H. 5. 2. F.N.B. 242. 12 Ed. 4. 11.

Mittimus.

This lieth in many other caſes. March. 196. pl. 241.

Remand, what.

The Remanding of a Cauſe, is the ſending it back into the ſame Court, out of which, it was called and ſent for.

Sect. 3.

5. Procedendo, what.

Procedendo is a Writ whereby a Plea or Cauſe, formerly called from a baſe or inferior Court to the Chancery, Upper Bench, or Common Pleas, by Writ of Privilege

or

or Cerciorari, is releaſed and ſent down again into the ſame Court, to be proceeded in there, after it appeareth, That the Defendant hath no cauſe of Privilege, or that the matter compriſed in the Bill, is not well proved. Co. 6 63. 21 R. 2. 11.

Now as touching all theſe things, the removing of Perſons and Cauſes, theſe things are to be known.

1. The Judges of the Upper Bench, may ſend priſoners from thence in the Country to be tried, if they pleaſe. 6 H. 8. 6.

2. No Habeas Corpus or Cerciorari, is to be granted to remove any priſoner out of any Gaol, or to remove any Recogniſance, except the Writ be ſigned by the Chief Juſtice, or in his abſence by one of the other Judges own hands, under pain of five pound forfeit by him that makes the Writ: But the Writ is good (as it ſeems) and to be obeyed, though his name be not to it. 1, 2 Phil. & Ma. 13.

3. No Writ to remove a Sute begun in an Inferior Court of Record is to be obeyed, unleſs it be delivered to the Steward of the ſame Court, before Iſſue or Demurrer joyned, ſo as the Iſſue or Demurrer were not joyned within ſix weeks, next after the Arreſt, or Appearance of the Defendant. 21 Jac. 23.

4. No Writ to remove a Cauſe, is to be received and allowed, unleſs it be delivered to the Judge of the Cauſe, before the Jury hath appeared, and one of them ſworn to try the cauſe; for then it is too late. 43 Eliz. 5.

5. No Writ to remove any Cauſe out of an Inferior Court of Record ſhall be allowed, if the cauſe be not five pound, or above, and do not concern Freehold, or Inheritance, Title of Land. Leaſe, or Rent, where an Utter Bareſter of three years ſtanding, is Steward or Aſſiſtant to him. 21 Jac. 23.

6. But if there be a Fore gn, or other Plea pleaded, that is not tryable there, then it is removable. Idem.

7. Writs of Error and Attaint are allowable, as formerly. Idem.

8. A Sluce being once remanded by Procedendo, ſhall never after be removed again. Idem.

9. No Cerciorari to remove any Indictment of Riot, Forcible Entry, Aſſault and Battery, is to be allowed, unleſs it be delivered at the Quarter Seſſions in open Court: And that the parties indicted, do there put in Bond of ten pound to the proſecutor, to pay him ſuch Coſts and Damages as the Juſtices of Peace ſhall ſet down. 21 Jac. 8.

10. No Writ of Cerciorari ſhall be allowed to remove any Information or Indictment againſt any man, or proceedings for any thing within the new Ordinance for High-ways, made March. 1654.

11. No Cerciorari or Habeas Corpus, ſhall be allowed to remove any Indictment for any offence about Corn, Wine, Beer, Ale, Fiſh, Fleſh, Salt, Butter, Cheeſe, or other dead victual whatſoever. Act, 23 October, 1650.

12. No Cerciorari ſhall be allowed to remove an Indictment for making, or taking of Challenges. Ord. 29 June. 1654.

13. Cercioraries ſhall not be allowed to remove Bills of Indictment of Riot, Forcible Entry, or of Aſſault and Battery, unleſs the party indicted will become bound with ſufficient Sureties, ſuch as the Juſtices of Peace in Seſſions ſhall like of, to pay to the Proſecutor within a moneth after Conviction, ſuch Coſts and Damages as the Juſtices ſhall aſſeſs. 21 Jac. 8. But other Indictments may be removed without this Caution.

14. Two men and their wives were indicted for a Forcible Entry, who brought a Cerciorari, and ſome of them refuſed to be bound according to the Statute of 21 Jac. yet the Cauſe is to be removed, March. f. 27. pl 63.

15. If the Sureties tendred, be worth ten pound a peece, the Juſtices muſt accept them for the ten pound Bond, upon the Statute of 21 Jac. the ſame.

16. After tender of ſufficient Sureties, according to the Statute, all the proceedings of the Juſtices, are Coram non judice, (i.) as before no Judge. March 27.

17. Upon a Cerciorari to remove an Indictment againſt a man, he is to be bound to proſecute with effect (that is) to traverſe the Indictment, or quaſh it for defect. And if he do appear, an Attachment ſhall go out againſt him. March 76. pl. 118.

Of

Of a Recordary, &c.

6. Recordary, what.

A Recordary is a Writ iſſuing out of the Upper Bench or Common Pleas to the Sheriff, to command him to ſend a Plaint that is before him, without Writ in his County Court, into that Court, from whence the Recordary is, to the end, that the cauſe may be there determined: And this the Sheriff is to ſend up and certifie under his own, and the Seals of four of the Suitors that are Judges of the ſame Court. And he is withal to warn the other party to be in the Court there at a time certain.

Suitors.

7. Pone, what.

And a Pone doth nothing differ from this, but that it is to remove a Sute that is there before the Sheriff, by Writ and not by Plaint: And if this be ſued out by the Plaintiff in the firſt Sute, it may be had without ſhewing any cauſe at all for it: But if it be ſued out by the Defendant, he muſt ſhew cauſe for it. As if it be to remove a Plea in a Replevin by Plaint, to ſhew that the Defendant doth avow for Damage-feaſant, that the Plaintiff doth juſtifie for Common of Paſture, which is a Plea touching Freehold, and therefore ſhould not be without Writ. F. N. B. 119. 47. 70. 18. 71. 3 Hen. 6. 30. 12 Edw. 4. 11. 21 Jac. 23. 13 Edw. 1. 2. 43 Eliz. 5.

Tolt, what.

A Tolt is a Writ whereby a cauſe depending in a Court-Baron, is removed into the County-Court.

Sect. 4.
8. Accedas ad Curiam, what.

Accedas ad curiam is a Writ iſſuing out of the Upper Bench or Common Pleas, directed to the Sheriff, to command him to go to ſuch a Court of ſuch a Lord or Franchiſe, as County-Court or Court-Baron, or other Court that is not a Court of Record.

Where a Plaint is ſued for taking of Beaſts as a Diſtreſs, or ſome falſe Judgment, is ſuppoſed to be given in a Sute there; and that there he do make Record of the ſame Sute, in the preſence of the Sutors of the ſame Court, and four Knights of the County; and the ſame certifie into the Court, from whence the Writ came, at the day limited in the Writ. But this cannot be had of either ſide, without ſhewing of ſome cauſe.

And the cauſes for which theſe Sutes are uſed to be removed, are becauſe they queſtion Freehold there, or ſome thing is pleaded that is Foreign, and not triable in the Court.

And the Recordary, Pone, and this Writ, are to no other purpoſe but to remove a Sute into a Superior Court, and are in the nature of a Certiorari. And upon the Removal, the Sute is at an end in the Inferior Court: And if the other party, or any of the Judges, or other Officers of the Court, do proceed after the Removal of the cauſe, the party that removed the Sute, may have an Attachment againſt them. And after it is once ſent away, it can never be ſent back again, but muſt be tried there. See F. N. B. 70. Plow. 74. Finches Ley 444.

CHAP. CXL.

Of a Rent.

A Rent is a Sum of money, or other Conſideration, iſſuing yearly out of Lands or manual Tenements. Redditus à redeundo, quia retroit; vel à reddere, i. retro dari. This differeth eſſentially from an Annuity: For a Rent doth always iſſue out of Lands or Tenements, and the Land alſo is the debtor. Otherwiſe it is of an Annuity, which is chargeable upon the perſon of a man only, and he alone is the Debtor for this. Co. ſuper Lit. 141, 142. Plow. 132, 138, 139. And of Rents there are ſaid to be three kinds. Sect. 1. 1. Rent, what it is.

1. Rent-ſervice; which is, where a man doth hold his land of his Lord by Fealty and certain Rent, or to render and yield Hens, Capons, Roſes, Spurs, Bows, Arrows, Horſes, Wheat, or the like; or to perform any office, or yield any attendance, or the like: And to this Rent, Diſtreſs is incident of common right. The kinds of it.

2. Rent-charge; which is where an Eſtate is made of Lands or Tenements to another in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years, rendring a Sum of money or other thing to be paid yearly to him that made it and his Heirs; and there is a Clauſe in the Deed, That if the Rent be behind, it ſhall be lawful for the Feoffor, Leſſor or Donor to diſtrain for it upon the Land. Or where one doth grant a Rent out of his Lands or Tenements to another in Fee for life or years, with ſuch a power to ſtrain for the Rent if it be behind: And to this no Diſtreſs is incident of common right, but by the agreement of the parties the Land is charged with the Diſtreſs; and hence it is called a Rent-charge.

3. Rent-ſeck is where a Rent is reſerved or granted (as in the caſe before) without any clauſe of Diſtreſs, or power to diſtrain: And this is called Redditus ſiccus, dry Rent; becauſe he that is to have it, till he hath gotten Seiſin of it, hath no remedy to recover it, if it be denied to him; and then he hath no other remedy but an Aſſiſe for the recovery of it. Terms of the Law, Rent. Co. ſuper Lit. 142. Lit. c. 12. Finches ley, 155. D. & S. c. 30. And regularly a man cannot have, or challenge, or make a title to any kind of Rent, unleſs it be a Rent-ſervice, or a Rent charge in the caſe of Preſcription, or for equality of Partition, unleſs he have a Deed to ſhew for it. Co. 6. 63. Lit. 40. Co. ſuper Lit. 142. 146. Title to it.

If one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and make a Gift of it in tail, or make a Gift in tail to one, the Remainder in tail to another, or a Leaſe for life or for years, keeping the Reverſion in him, without any Clauſe in the Deed enabling him to diſtrain for it; this is a Rent-ſervice ſtill. But if the Reverſion be gone, it doth continue no longer a Rent-ſervice, for there can be no Rent-ſervice but where there is a Reverſion, Lit. 214, 215. 228, 229. Plow. 132. 142. Co. on Lit. 162. And therefore if one by Deed indented make a Feoffment in fee to one, or a Gift in tail, or a Leaſe for life or years to one, with the Remainder over to another in Fee, and reſerve a Rent upon any ſuch Eſtate without any clauſe of Diſtreſs for not paiment; this is a Rent-ſeck, not a Rent-ſervice. So if one ſeiſed in Fee of Land by Deed-poll or Indenture, grant a Rent iſſuing out of his Land, without any clauſe of Diſtreſs for not paiment; this is a Rent-ſeck. Lit. ſect. 214. 215. 217. Co 6. 58. ſup Lit 150, 151. If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord grant the Rent (except Fealty, which is incident to every Rent-ſervice) this is a Rent-ſeck, Perk ſect. 113. So if one hold his Land by Homage, Fealty, and other Services, yielding a Rent, and the Lord grant away the Rent reſerving the Services, or grant the Services ſaving the Rent; in theſe caſes the Rent is a Rent-ſeck, Lit. ſect. 226, 227. Co ſup. Lit. 151. If one leaſe Land to another for life rendring Rent, and after he in Reverſion grant away this Rent to another; this during the life is a Rent-ſeck, Lit. ſect. 228. If one deviſe a Rent by Will in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail for life or for years, without any clauſe of Diſtreſs, this is a Rent-ſeck; but if it be with a clauſe of Diſtreſs, it is a Rent-charge, Co. 6. 56. Dyer 348. 2. What kind of Rent it is. Rent ſervice. Rent charge.

If one make a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, Leaſe for life or years of Land to one; or a Gift in Tail, Leaſe for life or years, with the Remainder over to another in Fee, and upon any ſuch Eſtate reſerve a Rent, and in the Deed there is a power to diſtrain in the Feoffor, Donor, or Leſſor, if the Rent be behind; this is a Rent-charge, Co. ſuper Lit. 143. Plow. 132. Lit. ſect. 217.

So if one by Indenture or Deed-poll grant a yearly Rent to be iſſuing out of his Lands to another in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail for life or years, with ſuch a power in the Deed, 13 Ed. 4. 6. 5 H. 6. 6. Lit. ſect. 218.

So if the Tenant of a Land chargeable with a Rent-ſeck, grant a power to diſtrain upon the Land for the Rent to him that hath it; this is now become a Rent-charge, Dyer 348.

So if one Coparcener upon a partition to make an equality, agree that the other ſhall have a Rent out of his part of the Land; this is a Rent-charge for which the other may diſtrain, though there be no Deed for the Rent, nor clauſe of Diſtreſs in a Deed, 15 H. 5. 5.

If one by Will in writing deviſe a Rent out of his Land, with a clauſe of Diſtreſs; this is a Rent-charge, Co. 5. 18.

If the Tenant of the Land grant a Diſtreſs to him that only hath a Rent-ſeck, this now is become a Rent-charge, Co. 5. 118. Dyer 328. Co. ſuper Lit. 13.

Rent-ſeck. If one by Deed indented make a Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for life or years, with a Remainder over in Fee, or a Feoffment in Fee, and reſerve a Rent upon any ſuch Eſtate, without any clauſe of Diſtreſs for non-paiment; this is a Rent-ſeck. Lit. ſect. 216. 217. 215.

So if one ſeiſed in Fee of Land by Deed-poll or Indenture, grant a Rent iſſuing out of his Land, without any clauſe of Diſtreſs in the Deed; this is a Rent-ſeck. Co. 6. 5. 8. Co. ſuper Lit. 150.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord grant the Rent, (except the Fealty which is incident to every Rent-ſervice) this is Rent-ſeck. Perk. ſect. 113.

If one hold his Land by Homage, Fealty, and other ſervices, yielding a Rent, and the Lord grant away the Rent reſerving the Services; this is a Rent-ſeck. Co. ſuper Lit. 151. Lit ſect. 226, 227.

If one deviſe a Rent by Will in Fee, Fee-tail, for life or years, without any clauſe of Diſtreſs; this is a Rent-ſeck. Co. 6. 56.

If a Lord have two Daughters and dieth, and upon partition one hath the Rent, the other the Fealty; this is Rent-ſeck. Co. ſuper Lit. 150. Dyer 384.

If one leaſe Land to another for life rendring Rent, and after he in Reverſion grant away this Rent to another; during the Reverſion, this is a Rent-ſeck. Lit. ſect. 228. So if he grant the Services, ſaving the Rent. Co. ſuper Lit. 151.

3. What ſhall be ſaid a good Rent by Grant or Reſervation, or not: And how taken. In reſpect of the thing out of which it doth iſſue.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

1. If a Leaſe be made of a Manor, Lands, Meadows, Paſtures, Mill, or the like, rendring a Rent, or a Rent be granted iſſuing out of ſuch things; this is a good Rent, for theſe things are chargeable with a Rent. So if one be ſeiſed of a Reverſion or Remainder of Land after an Eſtate for life, years, or in tail, and grant or reſerve a Rent-charge out of it; this is a good Grant and Reſervation, and the Land ſhall be charged when it comes in poſſeſſion. Co. 7. 27. Plow. 157. 100. Co. 4. 49. Plow. 198. Co. ſuper Lit. 144.

2. If one that hath but a Leaſe for years of Land, leaſe the Land rendring Rent, or grant a Rent out of the Land; this Grant or Reſervation is good during the Term: And if he had granted for a longer time, yet it is good for the time of the Leaſe. But if one be poſſeſſed of a Term of White-acre, and ſeiſed in Fee of Black-acre, and grant a Rent out of both theſe Acres for life; the Rent ſhall iſſue out of Black-acre only. Co. 2. 36. 14 H. 7. 2. Co. 7. 23.

3. If one make a Leaſe for years of Land, and after grant a Rent-charge out of the ſaid Land; this is a good Rent: And if the Leſſee ſurrender, the Rent ſhall begin preſently. So if one grant a Reverſion or Remainder rendring a Rent, it is good. Co. ſuper Lit. 47. Plow. 198.

4. If

4. If one make a Leaſe of the Veſture or Herbage of his Land, reſerving a Rent; this is a good Rent. Co. 7. 38.

5. If one grant a Meſnalty reſerving a Rent, it is good; for the Tenancie may eſcheat, and then the Donee may diſtrain for all the Arrearages, 1 H. 4. 1.

6. A Rent iſſuing out of a Rectory, is good.

7. But if one grant a Rent out of anothers Land, this is void as to charge the Land; and though he after purchaſe the ſame Land, yet this will not make the Land chargeable, but it will be a good Annuity to the perſon. Brownlow, 1 par. 30.

If one grant or reſerve any Rent out of a thing that is not manorable, or that is Hereditamentum incorporeum, it is void. And therefore if one grant or reſerve a Rent out of a Fair, Market, Tythes, or Hundred, Offices, Corrody, Grinding at a Mill, Liberties, Priviledges, Piſchary, Common, Advowſon, or the next Avoidance of a Church, or the right of Land only, or the like; ſuch Grants and Reſervations are void.

So if one grant a Rent iſſuing out of another Rent, or reſerve a Rent upon the Grant of another Rent; ſuch Grants or Reſervations are void. So if one recite that he hath a Rent, and grant it over, reſerving a Rent out of it, this is void. But yet theſe Grants of Rent may be good to charge the perſon in an Annuity. And yet if one have a Rent-ſervice, he may grant it, or part of it away; and if the Tenant attorn, this is a good Grant: But if it were a Rent-charge, it ſeems contrary. See for this, Co. ſuper Lit. 142, 144. Co. 7. 27. Plow. 132. Co. 10. 60. 93. Co. 1. 59. Kelw. 161. 3 H. 6. 20.

8. If one be diſſeiſed, and after grant a Rent out of the Land, this is void: But if it be by Fine or Indenture, it may be good by way of Eſtoppel, Co. 2. 53.

9. No Rent granted out of, or reſerved upon any incorporeal thing, as Commons, Offices, and the things before named, is good: And yet in caſe of the King, ſuch a Grant or Reſervation may be good; for it is a rule, That a Rent muſt always be reſerved out of ſuch a thing whereunto the Leſſor may reſort for Diſtreſs. And yet in the caſe of a common perſon alſo, if a Leaſe for years be made of any ſuch incorporeal thing rendring a Rent, the Reſervation may be good by way of Contract to give an Action. But in caſe of a Leaſe for life of ſuch thing, it is void to all purpoſes. Co. ſuper Lit. 47.

One may have or grant a Rent by Fine, or Fine and Render. See Fine. Br. Reſ. 2. Co. 2. 72. St. 27 H. 8. c. 10.

The Tenant by Grant may give the Lord power to diſtrain for his Rent or Services in any other place, as well as that which is held of him. 9 H. 6. 9.

If one grant Twenty ſhillings Annui redditus de J. S. Annuatim percept. it ſeems this is a good Grant to charge both the Perſon and Land. Kelw. ibid.

If one grant a Rent, percipiendum apud Manerium de S. it ſeems this is a good Grant to charge the Perſon and Land. 41 Ed. 2. 15.

If one ſay, Obligo me J. S. & hæredibus ſuis in annuali redditu de decem lib. quem percipio de Manerio meo de S. & obligo Manerium prædictum ad diſtringendum; it ſeems this is a good Rent-charge, to charge both perſon and Land. 46 Ed. 3. 48.

So if one grant Rent extra White-acre, or de White-acre, or percipiendum in vel ad White-acre; all Grants of Rent made with theſe or ſuch like words, may be good. See 46 Ed. 3. 48. 22 Aſſ. 66. 21 H. 7. 4. 41 Aſſ. pl. 3.

If a Leaſe be made rendring Rent, and it ſay not to whom; yet this is a good Reſervation. See more infra in Reſerv. 27 H. 8. 19.

One may reſerve a Rent upon a Bargain and Sale, and this will be good by the Saving in the Statute of Uſes. Adjudged, Wykes Caſe, M. 40 Eliz. B. R. Dyer 45. A Rent-charge may be claimed and had againſt another by Preſcription; That a man and his Anceſtors, whoſe Heir he is, time out of of minde have been ſeiſed of it, and uſed to diſtrain from it, when it hath been arrear. And thus a man may make a good Title to this Rent without Deed. But one cannot preſcribe in him, and thoſe whoſe Eſtate he hath; for that he cannot have their Eſtate but by Writing. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 144. Lit. 46. Co. 6. 63.

If one grant a Rent-charge out of his Land, Provided that the Grant ſhall not extend to charge the perſon of the Grantor in an Annuity; this is a good Rent-charge, but the perſon of the Grantor ſhall not be charged in an Annuity. And yet if ſuch a Grant were of Rent out of his Land without clauſe of Diſtreſs with ſuch a Proviſo, this Proviſo were void, unleſs the Grantor do give the Grantee Seiſin of the Rent at the time of the Grant. Co. 6. 58. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 146: Co. 7: 23.

If one grant a Rent out of his Coffers, or out of all his Lands in general, with a clauſe in the Deed, That if the Rent be not paid, the Grantee ſhall diſtrain for it in the Manor of S. this is a good Rent to charge both the perſon and Manor of S. but not any other Lands.

So if one poſſeſſed of Black-acre for years, and ſeiſed of White-acre in Fee, grant a Rent out of both for life, with a clauſe of Diſtreſs in both; the Rent doth iſſue out of White-acre only: But yet both the perſon and the two Acres are to be charged for the Rent. And ſo in all like caſes.

But if one grant a Rent for life out of his Term, the Land is charged during the Term, if the Grantee live ſo long. Stat. 26 H. 8. chap. 5. Co. 7. 23. Co. ſuper Lit: f. 146.

If one grant to another, that he ſhall diſtrain for a Rent of Forty ſhillings a year in his Manor of S. if it be not paid him yearly at Michaelmas; this is a good Rent-charge to charge the Manor, but not the perſon of the Grantor. Plow. 139. Co. 7. 24. Lit. 219, 220.

If the Father be ſeiſed of Land, and he and his eldeſt Son join in a Leaſe for years to begin after the Fathers death, and ſay, Rendring Rent to the Heir of the Father; this were a good Reſervation: But if the Reſervation be to the Son by name, it is void, for he is but as a ſtranger. *Adjudg. One may grant a Rent by Will, and a clauſe of Diſtreſs alſo by the Will; and this is good. Co. 8. 84. Dyer 348.

As if one by Will deviſe Ten pounds to be paid out of his Land quarterly at the moſt uſual Feaſts, and for non-paiment to diſtrain, and the Diſtreſs to keep till paiment of Arrearages; this is a good Rent by Will, for life of the Deviſee. Co. ſup. Lit: 144.

One may reſerve a Rent upon a Deed of Bargain and Sale. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 144.

If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, bindeth his Goods and Chattels to the paiment of a yearly Rent; or, Obligo Manerium meum de C. & omnia bona in dicto Manerio exiſtent. A. de B. in annuo redditu de vigint: ſol. ad diſtringendum per Ballivum Dom. Regis pro reddito prædicto: Theſe be good Grants of Rent to charge the Land. Co. ſuper Lit. 147:

If one grant a Rent of Forty ſhillings out of his Manor of D. and grant over by the ſame or another Deed, That if the Rent be behind, the Grantee ſhall diſtrain in the Manor of S. the Rent doth iſſue out of one Manor; but this is a good Grant to charge both Manors with the Rent. Co. ſuper Lit. 147. 7: 23.

Sect. 3: If a man be ſeiſed of twenty Acres of Land, and grant a Rent of twenty pounds percipiendum de qualibet acra terræ meæ; this is a good Grant, and ſeveral out of every Acre; ſo that in all it is twenty pounds a year. 21 H. 6. 10. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 147.

If one by Deed grant a Rent-charge to a man out of his Land for life, and granteth further by the ſame Deed, that he had his Heirs may diſtrain in the Land for the ſame Rent; this is a good new Grant of a new Rent in Fee-ſimple. Co. ſuper Lit. 147. 148.

Upon

Upon a Releaſe that doth enure to create or enlarge an Eſtate, or by way of Mitter le State, a Rent may be reſerved; but not upon a Releaſe that works by way of Mitter le Droit, or by way of Extinguiſhment. Co. ſuper Littleton, f. 193.

If a Company in London grant an Annuity out of their cleer gain; that Annuity is good, and thoſe words void. Trin. 17 Jac. Co. B.

If one by his Will dated the nineteenth day of October, deviſe to *J. A Rent may be granted upon Condition, and it may be granted for life, years, or in Tail or in Fee, or for life and years with Remainder over; and theſe manner of Grants of Rents are good. Plow. 30. See Remainder.

A Rent may be had or reſerved without Deed for owelty of partition, or upon a Leaſe for life or years, or Gift in tail, or to a woman out of the Land for which ſhe is endowed: But a Rent for inequality of Exchange cannot be without Deed. Co. ſuper Lit. 169.

A Rent de novo cannot be granted without Deed; and if it be, it is void: But one may have a Rent by Preſcription, (vide ſupra.) Doct. & Stu. vide Faits. Bro. Reſervat. 18.

If one ſeiſed of a Rent in Fee, grant it after the death of J. S. it ſeems this is a void Grant. 8 H. 7. 3.

If Lands be given in Frankmarriage, reſerving a Rent; the Reſervation is void till the fourth degree paſt, and afterwards good. 26 Aſſ. 66.

If the Eſtate be void on which the Reſervation is made, the Reſervation is void alſo, 14 Jac. B. R.

A Rent cannot be reſerved on a Parol-Feoffment; but on a Feoffment by Deed-poll it may. 14 Car. B. R.

For Anſwer to this, how a Reſervation ſhall be expounded, take theſe Caſes: How it ſhall be taken.

1. If a Rent be reſerved on a Leaſe, and it is not ſaid how long it ſhall continue, or to whom it ſhall go; in this caſe it ſhall continue as long as the Eſtate doth continue, and ſhall go to the Heir, or him that hath the Reverſion. Dyer 45. Kelw. 88.

2. If one by Deed indented demiſe to A. for life, with divers Remainders over, Reddend. inde to the Leſſor and his Heirs a Rent; this Rent ſhall extend to all the Eſtates, if he in Remainder after the Eſtate for life will agree to it. Co. 5. 111. 10. 107.

3. If one leaſe for a year with theſe words, [And if the parties ſhall agree for a new Leaſe for longer time then for three years, yielding during the Term aforeſaid] in this caſe the Reſervation ſhall extend as well to the firſt year, as to the three laſt years. Co. 10. 106. 107. 5. 111. Brownlow, Rep. 2 par. 30. See more in Chap.

If one leaſe for life or years, and the Leſſee do covenant to pay Ten pounds by the year Rent, and ſo it is ſet down in the Deed, not in the nature of a Reſervation, with with rendring, yielding or paying ſuch a ſum, or any ſuch like words; this is not a Rent, but a Sum of money in groſs, for which the party cannot have the ſame remedy as he may for a Rent, but an Action of Debt or Covenant. Dyer 361. Plow. 133. Browning and Beſtons Caſe.

4. What payment ſhall be ſaid to be a ſum in groſs, and not a Rent.

If one ſeiſed of Lands, and poſſeſſed of divers Implements and Chattels, make a Leaſe for years of it, and the Leſſee covenant and grant that he will pay during the Term an hundred pounds at ſuch days; this is no Rent, nor in the nature of a Rent, but a Sum of money in groſs. Dyer 276.

If one grant to do a thing, & toties quoties defectus fuerit, he ſhall forfeit Ten pounds; this is no Rent, but a Sum in groſs, for which Debt only lieth, Dyer 24.

5. What payment ſhall be ſaid an Annuity, and not a Rent.

Annuity, what.

An Annuity is a yearly ſum of money, or other thing to be had from the perſon of the Grantor. Sometimes this word alſo is taken for the Writ of Annuity, which is provided for the recovery of this yearly paiment, if it be behind. And to this a man may make to himſelf a Title by Preſcription or Grant. And this by Grant a man may have in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years, to be received of the perſon of the Grantor, or of him and his heirs. And by this the Grantee or his heirs, or either of their Grantees may take advantage. Lit. f. 41. Plow. 13. 27. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 144.

Sect. 4.

If one grant a Rent, Annuity, or Sum of money out of his Coffers, or out of his Land, and ſay not what Land, nor where; this is an Annuity, not a Rent. Lit. f. 48.

If one grant a Rent-charge out of anothers Land; this ſhall be an Annuity, and ſhall charge the perſon of the Grantor. Co. 6. 58.

If one grant a Rent out of ſuch a thing as is not chargeable with a Rent; there this ſhall be an Annuity to charge the perſon. Co. 6. 58. 10. 93.

If the King had given a Sum of money to one newly dignified, or another man grant an Annuity pro conſilio impenſo & impendendo, or for exerciſing an Office: And ſo in all ſuch like caſes where no Land is chargeable with the ſum or paiment, and the ſum be yearly, it ſhall be reputed an Annuity.

A Company in London granted an Annuity of Twenty pounds per annum, and to give Counſel, out of their cleer gains in the Trade; this is a good Annuity, and thoſe laſt words are void. Co. B. Smiths Caſe, 17 Jac.

A Rent-charge alſo is ſometimes converted into an Annuity; and for this ſee Suſpenſion.

6. The Remedy for Recovery of an Annuity.

As no Freehold is chargeable with an Annuity, ſo no Diſtreſs can be taken for it, neither can the party have any remedy for the recovery of it but a Writ of Annuity, in which he ſhall recover all the arrearages behind of the Annuity; and when once he hath a Judgment upon this Writ, ſo long as this is of force, he ſhall never have any other Writ of Annuity, nor new Action againſt the party, but a Scire facias out of that Judgment. But after an Annuity is determined, the party unto whom any Arrearages be behind, may bring an Action of Debt for them.

But for ſuch a Rent as may be granted without Deed, a Writ of Annuity doth not lie, though it be granted by Deed. And for a Writ granted for owelty of partition, no Writ of Annuity doth lie. And where a Rent is apportioned by Act in Law, this Writ of Annuity faileth. Co. 7. 9. F. N. B. 152. Dyer 26. 373. Co. 6. 45. upon Lit. pl. 144, 145, 150.

7. The Remedy for Recovery of a Rent. Diſſeiſin.

If one be once ſeiſed, and hath a Freehold of any Rent, and be after diſſeiſed of it, he may have an Aſſiſe to recover it. And note that the Diſſeiſon of a Rent is, when the party is diſturbed in the means of Recovery of his Rent, which for a Rent-charge may be by five cauſes or means. As,

1. By Reſcous, which is when the party hath diſtrained one, and the Diſtreſs is reſcued, or being upon the Land to diſtrain, cannot be ſuffered. Lit. f. 236, 237. 240. 239. Br. Diſſeiſ. 69.

2. Replevin, which is where an Action of Replevin is brought upon the Diſtreſs taken.

3. Denier,

3. Denier, which is the denying or not paiment of the Rent on the Land, when it is required.

4. Incloſure, which is when the party doth come to the place whence the Rent doth iſſue, or where he hath power to diſtrain, and it is incloſed by walls or the like, that he cannot come at it: But if the place were not newly, but antiently incloſed, then it were no Diſſeiſor.

5. Foreſtalling; which is when the party is going to diſtrain for the Rent, and the Tenant hearing of it doth foreſtall the way with force and arms, or threaten to kill or wound, ſo that he dare not go to diſtrain.

And for a Rent-ſervice this may be by three cauſes, as by Reſcous, Replevin, and Incloſure. And for a Rent-ſeck by three cauſes, Denying, Incloſing, and Foreſtalling. But this Aſſiſe lieth not until an Actual Seiſin of the Rent, Co. ſuper Lit. 153. 160, 161. 99 Ed. 3. 15.

In an Aſſiſe for the Rent, the Plaintiff ſhall recover the Rent and Damages: But in a Reſcous he ſhall recover the Damages only, and the thing diſtrained ſhall be taken again as a Diſtreſs.

For an Annual Rent due from a Freeholder, the Lord may diſtrain; but he cannot have Debt for Rent or Corporal ſervice as long as the ſame doth continue, but after it is ended he may. Co. of Copiholds, 50.

If a Leſſee for twenty years of Land, grant it to a ſtranger for part of the years rendring Rent; in this caſe the Grantor may diſtrain, or have an Action of Debt for the Rent. Perk. ſect. 693. Co. 1. 97.

If one were never ſeiſed of a Rent-charge, and diſtrain, and a Reſcous is made, he cannot have an Aſſiſe, but muſt have a Reſcous. Co. 1. 97.

In caſe where one may diſtrain for a Rent, he may not diſtrain in any other place but ſuch out of which the Rent doth iſſue, unleſs it be where the Diſtreſs is given in another place (as above) but in any other part of the Land where he will he may diſtrain. See Diſtreſs. Br. Rent, 2. Lit. 48. Plow. 239.

If one at Michaelmas make a Leaſe for years, rendring Rent at Michaelmas or ten days after; the Leſſor may bring an Action of Debt for the laſt years Rent, and ſuppoſe it to be due at Michaelmas. Barwicks Caſe, Tr. 9 Jac.

If a Leaſe be made rendring Rent, on Condition of Re-entry for non-paiment, and the Leſſor re-enter for non-paiment, yet he may bring an Action of Debt for the Rent. So it ſeems where a Re-entry is given, and the Leſſor hath made a legal demand, though he received the Rent after, yet he may re-enter notwithſtanding. Kelw. 153. 112.

Recoverors upon Common-recoveries ſhall have the ſame remedy for their Rents by Diſtreſs, or an Action of Debt againſt Leſſees for years before Attornment, as the Recoverees had. St. 7 H. 8. 4. 21 H. 8. 15. Co. ſuper Lit. 104. See more, Co. ſuper Lit. 323. & Debt.

For every Rent-charge, if it be unpaid, the party to whom it is due hath this remedy: Either he may diſtrain upon the Land charged with it, or he may bring an Annuity againſt the Grantor at his election; unleſs it be in caſe where by the original agreement one of theſe remedies are debarred, as the caſe above, Grant de Rent-charge, Proviſo it ſhall not charge the perſon, &c. 8. The remedy for Recovery of a Rent-charge.

But where the party hath this double means of remedy, he may not make uſe of both: For if once he bring a Writ of Annuity (in caſe where the perſon is chargeable, and the Writ doth well lie) and declare; by this the Land is diſcharged for ever. And if he once diſtrain and avow for the Rent in a Court of Record; by this the perſon of the Grantor is diſcharged for ever, Co. ſuper Lit. 145. So if the Grantee bring an Aſſiſe and make his plaint; but the purchaſe of the Writ of Annuity or Aſſiſe doth not determine his Election, Dyer 344. Lit. ſect. 219. Co. 7. 24. Plow. 13. 5 H. 7. 33. Dyer 362. F. N. B. 152.

If a Rent-charge be granted with a Proviſo it ſhall not charge the perſon of the Grantor, and after the Rent is determined, and there are arrearages behind; in this caſe notwithſtanding the Proviſo, the party may have an Action of Debt for the arrearages, Co. 7. 39. Dyer 217.

And

And though a Deed that is with a clauſe of Diſtreſs for Rent, do grant further that he ſhall keep the Goods diſtrained againſt Gages and Pledges, yet they are ſubject to Replevin, Co. ſuper Lit. 145. 282. For elſe by a new invention all Replevins ſhall be taken away.

If one have a Rent-charge for years, and the Term expire; in this caſe he may not diſtrain for the Rent, by the opinion of Juſtice Crook & Barclay. Paſc. 10 Car. Crawley contra. But he muſt have an Action of Debt, as he muſt whiles the Leaſe doth continue.

But in all caſes where the Land charged is diſcharged by the act of the party, as purchaſe of part, or the like, the Grantee cannot have an Annuity; but if it be determined by the act of God, or Law, there he ſhall have an Annuity, as of a Rent granted for anothers life. Co. upon Lit. 148.

If one be ſeiſed of Land for the life of J. S. grant a Rent out of it for twenty one years, and J. S. die; in this caſe the Rent ſhall continue for the years, but the Land is diſcharged. Co. ſuper Lit. 148.

Of recovery of Rent-ſervice.

For a Rent-ſervice reſerved on a Leaſe for years, if it be unpaid, the party to whom it is due may either diſtrain for it, or elſe he may bring an Action of Debt and recover it. Lit. ſect. 213. 331. But for Rent-ſervice in other caſes, it ſeems he hath no means of Recovery of it, but by Diſtreſs and Aſſiſe. (See ſupra, & Diſtreſs.) Perk. ſect. 693. So upon a Gift in tail or Leaſe for life. Littleton, ſect. 213.

If one that hath but a Leaſe for years, make a Leaſe of the Land for part of the time, rendring the Rent, and the Rent is behind, the Leſſor may have an Action of Debt for this Rent; by which it ſeems this Rent is a Rent-ſervice. Plow. 521. 9 H. 5. 8.

Executors.

Executors ſhall have the like remedy for Rent-charge and Rent-ſervice due to their Teſtator, as their Teſtator had, and they may diſtrain for the arrearages due in their Teſtators time: And ſo alſo ſhall the Tenant of the Land, whether he be Heir or Feoffee to him that ſhould have paid it, Heir or Feoffee of the Heir or Feoffee, & ſic in infinitum; Iſſues in tail, or he to whoſe uſe, or any other that come into the Land from or under him that ſhould have paid it. As for example, if one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and the Rent be arrear, and the Leſſor make his Executor and die, and the Land deſcend to his heir; the Executor may bring an Action of Debt for this Rent. Co. ſuper Lit. 162. St. 32 H. 8. c. 37. Co. 4c. 50. Dyer 373.

So if one grant a Rent for life out of his Land, and the Rent is arrear in divers Feoffees time of the Land one after another, and the Grantee die, his Executors may bring an Action of Debt againſt every one of the Feoffees, and recover the arrearages of him for his own time. Qui ſentit commodum, ſentire debet & onus: But if a Tenant in tail make a Feoffment, and the Diſcontinuee charge the Land, and after enfeoff the Iſſue in tail and die; the Iſſue is remitted to his firſt Eſtate, and ſhall not be charged with this Rent.

So if one have a Rent-charge or Rent-ſervice for life or in fee, and it be arrear, and after he grant away the Rent to another, and the Tenant attorn, and then he die; his Executor ſhall never recover theſe arrearages by this Statute, but they are loſt. Co. 7. 37.

If one have ſuch a Rent for the life of J. S. and J. S. die, yet the party may have his remedy againſt the Occupier of the Land by Diſtreſs. As if one deviſe a Rent out of the Land by Will, with clauſe of Diſtreſs to B. for the life of C. and the Heir to whom the Land charged doth deſcend doth leaſe it to D. the Remainder to E. in Fee, and the Rent is behind in the life of D. and D. die, and after C. die; Now in this caſe the Lands in the hands of him in Remainder ſhall be charged with theſe Arrearages, and the party may diſtrain for them. Stat. 32 H. 8. ch. 37. Co. 6. 118.

Husband and Wife.

If any ſuch Rents be arrear to Femes-ſole that after marry, or Femes-covert during the Coverture; the Husband, his Executors or Adminiſtrators ſhall have the ſame remedy for it the Wife had by Action of Debt or Diſtreſs. As if a Femeſole have a Rent-charge granted to her for life, and the Rent be behind, and after ſhe take a Husband, and the Rent be behind again, and ſhe die; the Husband may recover both theſe Rents by this Statute. See the Statute at large, and *Co. ſuper Lit. f.*162. *Co.*4.50. F.N.B. 121.

ſole

Corporal ſervices, as Work-days, and Nomine pœnæ, and the like, are not within this Statute; but all others are. *Co. ſuper Lit. f.*162.

Of Recovery of a Rent-ſeck.

In theſe three ſpecial Caſes, one may diſtrain for a Rent-ſeck.

1. Where a Woman hath it for part of her Dower, in favorem dotis:
2. When the King is to have it by his Prerogative.
3. When a Parcener is to have it for equality of partition.

But in all other caſes there is no remedy for a Rent-ſeck, but by an Aſſiſe; and that a man cannot have neither, until he have got Seiſon of the Rent, (See Seiſon) after this manner as followeth. See alſo ſome caſes before, where one may diſtrain. Co. ſuper Littl. f. 147. Kelw. 104. Co. 7. 28. Littl. f. 235. Co. 6. 56. 58.

Sect. 6. Demand.

After this Rent is due, and Seiſon had thereof, he muſt demand it at the laſt part of the day of paiment: But if no Tender be made of it at the day of paiment, though no Demand be then made, then the party may at any time after the day come on the Land, and demand the Rent; and if the Tenant or ſome other for him be not there ready to pay it, this is a Denial in Law, upon which he may have an Aſſiſe, and therein he ſhall recover the Rent, Arrearages, and Coſts and Damages.

But if there were a Tender by the Tenant on the very day, the laſt moment thereof (as it muſt) and no man ready to receive it; in this caſe he hath no ſuch remedy, unleſs he can after meet with the Tenant upon ſome part of the Land, and there demand it.

And therefore then in that caſe, the beſt way is to be on the Land the next day of paiment, and there demand the Rent and Arrearages thereof the laſt part of the day: And if no body tender it, this is a Denial upon which he may have an Aſſiſe. See more in *Demand. Lit.*235. *Co.*7. 28. *Lit.*233. *Co. ſuper Lit. f.*153.

Note.

And here note that a man may have ſuch a Condition, or Conditional Clauſe in the Deed, that by it the Leſſor upon Non-paiment of the Rent may enter and keep the Land as a Pledg till the Rent be paid For which ſee Co. ſup. Lit. 202,203. But not that he ſhall hold the Diſtreſs againſt Gages and Pledges, Co. ſup. Lit. 283. if it be a Diſtreſs for Rent. *Lit. ſect.*327. *Plow.*524.

8. Demand or Requeſt, what. Where it is needful,

It is the calling upon any man for any thing that is due; and this ſometimes is called Requeſt.

Demand for Rent muſt be made, though the Tenant or any for him be not there to pay it. Co. ſuper Lit. 153.

To have a Re-entry, or Nomine pœnæ.

In moſt caſes when a man will enter into Land upon a Condition for Non-paiment of Rent, or will have a Penalty or Nomine pœnæ of a greater Sum for Non-paiment of a leſs; he muſt firſt make a Demand or Requeſt for it, and that in that manner for time, place and order, as is ſet down here; elſe his Entry is unlawful, and he ſhall not have the Nomine pœnæ, and that though there be no words in the Deed between them that it ſhall be firſt demanded, and though no man be upon the Land to pay it or tender it.

But perhaps if the words of the Condition be, That he ſhall enter, or the Eſtate ſhall ceaſe without Demand; there Demand may not be neceſſary. 2 *H.*7:14. Br. Tend. 41.

As if one leaſe for life, Leaſe, Tail, or in Fee, rendring Rent at Michaelmas, Provided that if it be behind and unpaid after the day, the Leſſor, Feoffor, or Donor ſhall re-enter: In this caſe he muſt demand it firſt.

So if there be a Covenant or Condition, that if the Rent be not paid the day, the Leſſee ſhall forfeit Twenty ſhillings Nomine pœnæ, or in any ſuch like manner; he muſt demand it ere this Forfeiture ſhall be loſt. Co. ſuper Lit. 153. 201, 202. Co. 432. Noy 97. Dyer 329. 13. 79. 51. Plow. 172. 70. Co. 6. 56. Perk. ſect. 836. Co. 10. 129. 14 Ed. 4. 4.

If a Leaſe be made of Land in Bucks, rendring Rent at the Exchange in London on Condition to re-enter; here Demand muſt be made before Re entry. Adjudg Trin. 37 Eliz. B.R.

If Leſſee be bound by Obligation to pay the Rent reſerved, it muſt be demanded. Reſolv. B.R. Hobard Rep. 12.

To have a Diſtreſs or an Aſſiſe:

If one deviſe Land to one by Will, and a Rent to another iſſuing out of it; and that if the Rent ſhall be arrear, the Deviſee of the Rent after demand ſhall diſtrain; it ſeems in this caſe he cannot diſtrain till he have demanded it. B. R. Symonds Caſe, Hil. 4. Jac. And ſo in like caſe, Co. upon Littleton, 144. 202. mutatis mutandis.

So if a Rent be reſerved by Deed, and that if the Rent be behind and lawfully demanded at the houſe, that the Leſſor ſhall diſtrain; he cannot diſtrain till demand, March 147. unto 218.

One muſt demand a Rent-ſeck and Arrearages after it is due, before he can have an Aſſiſe for it. And this Demand muſt be made alſo upon the Land in ſome overt place, the laſt day of paiment.

But for a Demand to enable one to diſtrain, that muſt be made, if the agreement be ſo, before Diſtreſs. Co. ſuper Lit. 202.

Sect. 7. To have another Debt or Duty.

An Annuity (it ſeems) muſt be demanded, before any can recover any Damages for withholding it: And if one be bound to another he ſhall quietly enjoy an Annuity, it ſeems this Obligation is not forfeit, till he hath demanded the Annuity.

But of a Sum of money one is bound to pay by Covenant or Obligation yearly, contra.

So if one be bound to pay money on a ſingle Obligation, or by a Contract, and no day is ſet forth; the party may chooſe whether he will pay till Requeſt or Demand be made for it by Suit or otherwiſe; and if he do not demand it otherwiſe before he ſue for it, he ſhall recover no Damages notwithſtanding, but his bare money.

But if there be an Obligation of a greater Sum, with Condition to pay a Leſſee, or one be bound in another Obligation, contra. To pay the money in that Obligation, it is otherwiſe, Bro. Tender, 22. Condition, 153. 173. 16 H. 7. 14. 14 H. 8. 19.

So if one be bound to pay money on an Award, Brownl. 1 par. 46. 49. 23. 53. 56. 65.

If one be bound to pay Twenty pounds by a Bill upon Demand, or to do any other duty, if it be by Eſpecialty, there needs no Requeſt to be made or laid in the Declaration for the duty: But if it be without Eſpecialty, there it muſt be made and ſet forth in the Court for the duty, eſpecially if it be in caſe of Collateral Aſſumpſit; as if one promiſe to pay Ten pounds Rent to another at a years end, being demanded, if it be not paid before. Paſch. 17 Jac. B.R. Baſſports Caſe.

If one ſay to another, Lend J. S. Ten pounds, and if he pay you not by the years end, then that he will pay it upon requeſt; in this caſe a Requeſt is neceſſary, and it muſt be after the year. Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Baſſpoles Caſe, Hill and Wades Caſe, 16 Jac. B. R.

And

And in all caſes where Demand makes the duty, or is parcel of the duty; there it is neceſſary, otherwiſe not.

9. Where Demand is not neceſſary of a Rent.

If one deviſe Lands by his Will to another, on Condition he ſhall pay Twenty pounds a year out of it at two Feaſts to J. S. in this caſe neither J. S. nor the heir of the Deviſor need to demand the Rent: But the Deviſee of the Land at his peril muſt pay it to ſave the Condition, and that without Requeſt. Dyer 348. 74.

But if one deviſeth a Rent by Will, and willeth that if default of paiment be, the Executors or Deviſee ſhall have the Land; in this caſe the Deviſee of the Rent muſt demand Rent, before any Forfeiture ſhall be of the Land. Dyer 348.

If a Rent be granted with Condition, and that if it be arrear, that the Grantee may diſtrain; here the Grantee need not demand it before he diſtrain, but may diſtrain the firſt day after it is due. Plow. 70.

If the King be to enter or have a Nominè pœnæ for Non-paiment of Rent, he is not bound to demand it, but his Patentee muſt demand it as another man. Kelw. 153. Co. 7. 28.

If one be bound by Obligation or Covenant to pay the Rent reſerved on ſuch a Leaſe; in this caſe to make a Forfeiture of the Obligation, or Breach of the Covenant, there needs no Demand. But if it were to perform the Covenants, contra, there it muſt be demanded. Brownlow, 2 par. 176. Stat. 22 H. 6. ch. 57. Bro. Tend. 20.

In other caſes.

If one be bound to pay Twenty pounds by a Bill upon Demand, an actual Demand in this caſe is not neceſſary. Adjudg. Hil. 39 Eliz. 11 H. 4. 18.

If one deliver Goods to deliver back again upon Requeſt; here needs no actual Requeſt before a Suit. So in a Detinue.

But if one be bound to deliver Goods upon Requeſt, an actual Requeſt muſt be made before a Suit can be had. Brownl. 1 par. 10.

10. When and how Demand muſt be made. The Time.

Where Demand is requiſite for to gain a Re-entry into Land, or a Nomine pœnæ, there it muſt be made in the place ſubſcribed, here the laſt day given to the Leſſee for the paiment of his Rent, and the laſt part of the day, ſo long time before the Sun-ſet as wherein the money to be paid and received may be conveniently told and numbred by day-light, or before Sun-ſet. And when the Leſſee hath two times given to him for paiment, as when the Leaſe is rendring Rent at Michaelmas, or within twelve days after, or in like manner; here demand muſt be made the laſt part of the firſt day, (i) Michaelmas day, and the laſt part of the laſt of the twelve days.

Sect. 8.

But if the longer time had been put into the Condition only, as rendring Rent at Michaelmas, Provided that if it be behind twelve days after, the Leſſor ſhall reenter; in this caſe he need not demand it at Michaelmas, but the laſt part of the twelve days only, and that is ſufficient; and when he doth come to demand, it is good to continue his Demand till night, and the Leſſor is not bound to make any other Demand at any other time, neither is a Demand any other time good. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 202. Co. 4. 72. 51. Dyer 329. 130. 79. 51. Plow. 172 76. Co. 6. 56. Perk. ſect. 836. Br. Tend. 41. 2 H. 7. 7. 14. Co. 10. 129. Co. 7. 28. Barwicks Caſe.

If one have a Rent-ſeck to be paid at a day arrear, he need not demand it with the Arrearages, the laſt part of the day when it ought to be paid; but he may demand it at any time afterwards. Co. ſuper Littleton, fol. 154. Co. 7. 28.

If one be to demand a Rent only before he diſtrain, he is not bound to that point of time as before, but there he may demand it at any time after the day of paiment of it. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 144. 153. Co. 7. 28.

Bnt a Demand to enable a Diſtreſs only, may be at any time after the day, and it is good enough. Mich. 40, 41 Eliz. between Stanley and Read. Co. 7. 28.

The Place. It muſt be made the time aforeſaid upon ſome part of the Land whence the Rent doth iſſue, and upon that part that is moſt eminent and notorious: As a Capital Meſſuage and great Porch in that houſe, and at the Fore-door, and not at the Back-door; and though the Fore-door be open, yet the Leſſor or Feoffor need not go in, though he ſee the Leſſee or Feoffee within to tender it; but if he do it at the Fore-door, it is ſufficient: And if there be no Houſe, ſome Gate or Stile upon ſome High-way going through the Lands charged. And if there be two places of paiment, as if it be, [Yielding and paying the Rent at ſuch a Stile, or in the Dwelling-houſe, or the like] there Demand muſt be made at both places, for the Leſſee hath election to pay it at either. So if it be, [Yielding or paying at or in a place] the Demand muſt be made at and in the place.

And if the Rent be to be paid at any place out of the Land charged with it, then the Demand muſt be made at that place, and need not to be made upon the Land charged, and there in the moſt notorious place. Co. ſuper Lit. 201. *Co.*4.32.6,46. Dyer 329.73.130.5. *Plow.*172.30. Perk. 836. 2 *H.*7.14. *Co.*10.129. *Co.*7.28. *Lit ſect.*341. *Co.*4.72.

If no other place be appointed, the Demand ſhall be made upon the Land always by the Leſſor, or his ſufficient Attorney. Noy 98. Brownl. 1 par. 138.

If the King make a Leaſe rendring Rent at the Receipt of the Exchequer, and he grant the Reverſion; his Patentee muſt demand it upon the Land, and need not demand it at the Exchequer. But if no place were mentioned in the Kings caſe, the party is bound to pay it at the Kings Receipt. Co. ſuper Lit. 201.

A. mortgaged Land to B. on Condition, that if he pay B. money, he ſhall reenter: After, before the day of paiment, A. is attainted; in this caſe B. is to demand the money at the Exchequer, and not upon the Land, nor is the King bound to tender it. *Goldsb.*137. *pl.*41.

And the Leſſor is not bound to make any Demand at any other place; neither is a Demand at any other place good. Co. ſuper Lit. 153.

But if there be a Houſe and Land, a Demand at the Houſe is needful to have a Reentry on a Condition; but a Demand on the Land to have an Aſſiſe, is good enough for a Rent-ſeck. Co. ſuper Lit. 153.

If the Feoffment were of a Wood only, there Demand muſt be made at the Gate, or in the High-way that leads through it; and if one place be as notorious as the other, the Feoffor may demand it at either: And therefore in that caſe it is good for the Feoffee to tender it at both, for elſe it will not avail if the Leſſor be not there. Co. ſuper Lit. 202.

The manner of doing it. The Leſſor himſelf, or ſome body for him, muſt come upon the place at the time when the Demand muſt be made, (as is ſhewed you before) and there he muſt make an actual or verbal Demand of the Rent; and it is good to ſet forth how much it is, and to ſhew his readineſs there to receive it, in this manner: Here I demand of J.S. Twenty pounds due to me at the Feaſt of &c. for a Meſſuage &c. which he holdeth of me in Leaſe by Indenture, &c. And there let him remain until it be dark, that he cannot ſee to tell the money. And all this muſt be before ſubſtantial Witneſſes. And if it be to be paid on the Land, it ſeems the Leſſor muſt do the firſt act, (i.) demand it, before the other is bound to pay it; and the other is not bound to tender till he demand it. But if it were paid at a place out of the Land, then the Leſſee is bound to do the firſt act, (i.) tender it at his peril. But it is ſafe for both to do their parts. Abundans cautela non nocet. Dyer 329. 130. 79. 51. Plow. 70.

As for an Example to all this: If one make a Leaſe of a Houſe, divers Lands and Woods to another for years, rendring an Hundred pounds Rent at Michaelmas, Provided that if the Rent be behind ten days after Michaelmas, the Leſſor ſhall reenter, or the Leſſee ſhall forfeit Ten pounds Nomine pœnæ: In this caſe if the Leſſor will take advantage of this Forfeiture of Land or Money, he or ſome body for him muſt come the laſt part of the laſt of the ten days, (time enough before Sun-ſet to tell an Hundred pounds) to the ſame Houſe, and there demand the Rent, and continue there till Sun-ſet; and if at that time the Rent be not tendered by the Leſſee, or ſome body for him, or if it be denied, this is a Diſſeiſon of the Rent for which he may have an Aſſiſe; and for this alſo the Leſſor may re-enter, and recover the Nomine pœnæ. See the Books above. Bro. Diſſeiſ. 69.

If a Feoffment be with Condition to reinfeoff the Feoffor, and no time ſet, ſo that he hath time for life, if requeſt haſten it not: If the Feoffor or any other party make requeſt, it muſt be to the Feoffee, that he will be at a certain time on the Land, and make the State. Co. ſuper Lit. 219. Sect. 9.

Every good Demand and Requeſt for Rent, muſt be made as before; and if it fail in any of thoſe circumſtances, it is not good. But if the Leſſor and Leſſee agree and be contented to have it otherwiſe, there it may be good enough: For, Modus & conventio vincunt legem; & volenti non fit injuria. Co. 7. 28. Co. 5. 40. Dyer 78. 51. 68. Bro. 483. 11. What ſhall be ſaid a good Demand, or not.

If one leaſe for years rendring Rent, on Condition that if it be arrear forty days after the day, the Leſſor and his Heir ſhall re-enter, and the Leſſor demand it, and after die; this is a good Demand to give Re-entry to his Heir: But if the Leſſor die after the day, and then the Heir demand it, this is not a good Demand to give a Re-entry. 13 H. 4. 17. D. & S. 35.

A Demand of more then the Rent is, is a good Demand notwithſtanding for the Rent to gain a Re-entry, or Nomine pœnæ.

If two make a Leaſe rendring Rent, on Condition that if it be behind and unpaid by them, they ſhall re-enter, and one of them die, and the Survivor demand it, it is a good Demand. So if the Leaſe were made to two, and one of them die, and the Rent is demanded of the Survivor of them. Dr. 207. 41 Ed. 3. 16. See Tender infra, for more

If a Rent-ſeck be to be paid at Eaſter, and the day be paſt, and the Rent not paid nor demanded at the day, and he demand it after the day, this is not a good demand, unleſs he meet with the Tenant upon ſome part of the Land, and there demand it. See Co. 10. 129. Co. 7. 28.

If the Leſſor demand the Rent before he die, his Heir may enter. Noy 97. See for Demand of Rent, Goldsb. 129. pl. 25; 124. pl. 9.

It is a careful Offer of a thing that ought to be paid or done, at the time and place it ought to be paid and done. And this word, as it is applied to Rent, ſeems to be a Relative to Demand, and both of them to look one to another: For in moſt caſes, then and there a man is bound to tender a thing to another, where and when that other is bound to demand; and there and then that other may and muſt demand, where he hath liberty to tender. And the Law will not make the Leſſor to attend then or there to demand, where and when it doth not enjoin the Leſſee to tender: Neither ſhall the Leſſee have liberty to tender any where or time, but when or where the Leſſor is bound to wait to demand it: And therefore moſt of the Queſtions for Tender, are anſwered in Demand. Br. Tend. 23. Co. ſuper Lit. 211. See Obligation. 12. Tender or paiment, what.

And note, that in all caſes where Tender is requiſite, and it be made legally, though the party refuſe, yet it ſhall give him as much advantage as if the other had accepted it; and the other in moſt caſes is without remedy for his money. And in caſe of Tender of money, Tender in purſes or bags, without ſhewing or telling of it, is ſufficient. Co. ſuper Lit. 207. 206. 209. Noy 94, 95.

In all caſes where by Demand of the Rent the Leſſor &c. muſt name a Re-entry, or Nomine pœnæ, there the Leſſee &c. by Tender of the Rent muſt ſave the Forfeiture; and Tender is neceſſary therefore. 2 H. 7. 6. 13. Where it is neceſſary, and not.

But the King, if he be to pay a Rent, is not bound to tender it.

If one tender Rent at the day, and be after ſued for it, he need not tender it again in Court. Br. Tend. 6.

So for money tendred on a Condition of Obligation, according to the Condition.

If one enfeoff another on Condition, that he and his heir ſhall render to a ſtranger and and his heir twenty ſhillings, &c. and if he fail, that the Feoffor ſhall re-enter; this is no Rent, and therefore here needs no Demand, but the other is bound to pay it at his peril. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 213.

14. How it muſt be made. For the time.

If the Leſſee &c. will tender to ſave the penalty or Forfeiture of Land or money, he muſt do in that manner for time and place, as the Leſſor muſt demand it; and he need not do it at any other time, in any other place, or in any other manner. Plow. 172. Dyer 109. Plow. 70. Dyer 79. 6 H. 7. 2. Lit. 341. (See the particulars above.) As if a Leaſe be made rendring Rent at Michaelmaſs, and the Leſſee bind himſelf by a collateral Covenant or Obligation to pay it at the day; here he muſt tender it at the very day to ſave the Covenant or Obligation. Bro. Tender 41. 11. 20.

Sect. 10.

Note for the time of paiment of Rent there are four times. 1. Voluntary, but not ſatisfactory, and yet good to ſome purpoſe: As if a Leſſee, Donee, &c. pay the Rent before the day, this is good to give Seiſon for to enable him that hath the Rent to bring an Aſſiſe. The ſecond time is voluntary and ſatisfactory in ſome caſes: As if it be paid the morning of the laſt day, and the Leſſor die before the end of the day; this is good againſt the Heirs and Executors, but not againſt the King, if he were to have it. The third is the legal and abſolute ſatisfactory time, which is a convenient time before the laſt inſtant of the laſt day; and then it muſt be paid or rendred. The fourth is ſatisfactory, but not voluntary, but coercive when it is done by Suit. Co. 10. 127. Lit ſect. 127. Plow. 172.

If the Leaſe be rendring Rent at Michaelmaſs, or twelve days after, or in that manner, he may tender it the laſt part of either of the days, and good: And if he tender it the firſt, and the Leſſor be not there, and he tender it not the laſt day, and then the Leſſor demand it, he cannot re-enter. Co. 10. 129. & Curia, B. R.

For the place.

If the Leſſee will make a Tender of his Rent, it muſt be done and made in the moſt notorious place of the Land, unleſs the Rent be to be paid at a place out of the Land, then there it muſt be tendered. See in Demand. Plow. 711. Lit. ſect. 341. Co. 4. 71. Bro. Tend. 23. Co. ſuper Lit. f. 105. 201.

If the King leaſe Land rendring Rent at the Receipt of Exchequer, and after grant the Reverſion to a Subject: Now after this Grant, Tender of the Rent upon the moſt notorious place of the Land is ſufficient. Co. 4. 72.

If there be a time and place certain ſet down for the tender of a ſum in groſs upon a Condition, the tender muſt be there and then, and neither of the parties are bound to any other place. Co. ſuper Lit. 211, 112.

If one will tender money due on a Condition, (which is not Rent) it muſt be to the perſon of the party whereſoever he is. Co. ſuper Lit. 210.

If Land be mortgaged for money; at the day the Heir, Executor, Adminiſtraor, Ordinary, Gardein in Soccage or Chivalry, or any one, if the Heir be an Infant, may tender the money. Co. ſuper Lit. 206, 207.

If Land be mortgaged, and a Condition is to pay money on a day; it ſeems the Tender muſt be (as in the caſes of Rent before) a convenient time before Sun-ſet: But if the Feoffor tender it to the perſon of the Mortgagee at any time of the day of paiment, it is ſufficient. Co. ſuper Lit. 206. 208.

15. What ſhall be ſaid a good Tender or paiment, or not; and how it ſhall be taken.

That is a good Tender, that is made with all the circumſtance and regard of time and place, as before. If a Rent be to be paid at one of two days, the Leſſee hath election which of them; and if he pay it either of the days, it is ſufficient, as in the caſes in the laſt Diviſion. So if it be in one of two places, as rendring Rent in the Church of A. or in the Church of B. Tender in either of them is ſufficient; but Demand muſt be made in both places. So if a Rent be to be paid at or in any place, Tender in either is ſufficient. Co. ſuper Lit. 202.

When a Rent is to be paid to Jointenants or Coparceners, (it ſeems) Tender to one of them is good and ſufficient. So alſo Tender by one Jointenant (it ſeems) is good for all the reſt. Bro. Tend. 16. 19.

If a Leſſor diſtrain for Rent, and the Leſſee tender him all the Arrearages, and the the Leſſor refuſe, he cannot diſtrain after; for this is a good Tender to bar him in Avowry, and it ſeems he can have no remedy for his Rent after. So if two days Rent be behind, and he tender him one days Rent, this is good for one day: Contra where he tender him but part of a days Rent only. Stat. 7 H. 4. chap. 18. Bro. Tender 2.

Tender of money in Farthings is no good paiment in Curia Manches, nor &c. Sometimes paiment, or Tender and acceptance of one thing for another, or of a in another place, is good for . See Acceptance and Condition.

If the Feoffee cometh to the Feoffor to any place upon any part of the ground the day of paiment, and offer the Rent, albeit it be not the moſt notorious place, nor at the laſt inſtant of the day, yet the Feoffor is bound to receive it, or elſe ſhall he not take any advantage by Demand. Co. upon *Lit. f.*202.

If Rent be payable at Michaelmas, on Condition that if he pay not in a week, &c. Here if the Feoffee meet the Feoffor on the Land within that week, and tender it, it ſeems good. Co. upon *Lit. f.*202.

But a Tender out of the Land to the perſon of the Leſſor, when the Rent is to be paid upon the Land, is not good. So a Tender after the days of paiment be paſt, is not good. So a Tender in a Wood or other ſecret corner, where there be more notorious places amongſt the Lands out of which the Rent doth iſſue, is not good: But if the Leſſor will accept it at any other place before the laſt day of paiment, it ſeems then it is good enough.

So Tender in word only, or a Talk of Rent, when he doth not ſhew it, is not good; for he muſt prove he had, and tendered ſo much money as the Rent is.

A Tender of a Sum in groſs on a Condition, is not good on the Land, unleſs the party be there to receive it. Bro. Tend. 11. Perk. ſect. 83. 22 H. 6. 65. Perk. ſect. 837, 838. Co. ſuper Lit. 210.

If a Feoffment be on Condition that the Feoffor ſhall pay to the Feoffee twenty pounds, and ſet no time, and the Feoffor die: Now his Heir, Executor or Adminiſtrator cannot tender the money; for Tender by them is not good to perform the Condition, Co. ſuper Lit. 207, 208.

If one owe me ten pounds by Obligation, and ten pounds otherwiſe, and he pay me ten pounds generally, it ſhall be intended the ten pounds upon the Obligation, Brownl. 2 par. 108.

Paiment of money to the Wife due to the Husband, is not a good paiment, Co. 7. 28.

If there be Leſſee for life, or for years determinable upon life, and this Leſſee make a Leaſe for years, reſerving Rent to be paid at the four Quarter-Feaſts, and the life die, ſo that the primitive eſtate end before the Quarter-day; now by this the Rent of this Quarter is gone, Co. 10. 127. Sect. 11. 16. Where a Rent ſhall be ſaid to be gone or not.

If all the Land be evicted before the laſt day of paiment by one that hath an eigne title, the whole Rent is gone. Contra, if it be but part of the Land; for then the Rent ſhall be apportioned. See Apportionment. Co. 10. 127. Plow. 71. 134. If a Rent be granted to one in Fee, or to a Corporation, and the Grantee die without Heir, or the Corporation be diſſolved; it ſeems in this caſe the Rent is determined. See more in Co. 5. 17. 27 H. 8. 10.

If there be Leſſee for life rendring Rent, and the Leſſor grant and confirm the Land to the Leſſee and his heirs; by this the Rent is determined. Co ſuper Lit. 278. 301. 307. 308.

If one make a Leaſe at Will rendring Rent, and after the Leſſor determine the Will; now the Rent is determined alſo.

If two Jointenants be, and one of them grant a Rent-charge and die; now the Rent is determined, and the Survivor ſhall hold it diſcharged: But if the Survivor had accepted a Releaſe of the Right of his Companion, contra. See more in Extinguiſhment. See Perk. ſect. 592, 593, &c. Co. 6. 16.

If a Rent or an Annuity be granted in reſpect of an Office, and the Office be determined, the Rent ſhall determine alſo. Plow. 382.

If a Diſſeiſor grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, and after accepteth a Releaſe of the Diſſeiſee; the Rent is not gone, no more then a Condition added to an Eſtate made by the Diſſeiſor, to whom the Diſſeiſee releaſeth: But if the Diſſeiſee enter and make a Feoffment, contra. Co. ſuper Lit. 277.

If one make a Leaſe for years rendring Rent, and after grant this Rent to J. S. and the Tenant attorn, and after the Leſſee for years ſurrender; yet the Rent doth continue, and it ſeems he may have an Action of Debt to recover it: So if Leſſee for years grant a Rent-charge, and after ſurrender his Eſtate, yet the Rent is not determined. Co. 8. 144. 20 Ed. 4. 13. Plow. 198.

If a Tenant in tail grant a Rent-charge out of his Land, and after ſuffer a Common-Recovery; this doth not avoid, but affirm and make good the Charge. See Womans Lawyer, f. 169. Co. 2.

If A. leaſe Copihold and Freehold Terre and Licenſe, rendring Rent, this is an entire Rent; and if he in Reverſion grant the Reverſion of both, that which doth paſs by Surrender ſhall relate to make the entire Recovery to paſs, and the Rents ſhall continue entire, Capels Caſe. See Extinguiſhment.

17. Who ſhall have a Rent, and the Arrears of it.

The Rent in moſt caſes doth follow the Reverſion, if there be any, as the Acceſſary doth the Principal. Co. 5. 55. Lit. ſect. 390. Dyer 5.

If one ſeiſed in Fee of Land make a Leaſe of it rendring Rent, and ſay not to whom, and it be behind, the Executors ſhall have the Arrearages, but for the time to come it ſhall go with the Reverſion. So if the Reſervation had been to the Leſſor, then the Executors ſhould have had the Arrearages after his death, the Heir the Rent to come.

So if a Husband poſſeſſed of a Term of Land in the right of his Wife, leaſe part of the Land rendring Rent, and die; the Wife ſhall not have this Rent, but the Executor of the Husband. 26 H. 8. 7.

If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee, leaſe it for years, rendring Rent to him and his heirs at Michaelmas, or within twenty days after, and after Michaelmas before the twenty days ended the Leſſor die or grant away the Reverſion, and the Tenant attorn; in the firſt caſe the Heir, not the Executor ſhall have the Rent; in the laſt the Grantee ſhall have it. Dyer 287. 204. Co. 10.

If one ſeiſed in Fee of a Houſe make a Leaſe thereof, and of certain Implements therein for years, rendring Rent to him, his Heirs and Aſſigns, and the Leſſor die; now this Rent ſhall go to the Heir during the Leaſe, and not to the Executor. But if the Leſſee had covenanted to pay ſo much money by the year to the Leſſor, his Heirs and Aſſigns; in this caſe the Executors, not the Heir ſhould have had this Sum during the Leaſe. Dyer 361. 275.

If a man ſeiſed of a Term for twenty years in the right of his wife, leaſe the ſame for ten years to a ſtranger rendring Rent, and the Rent is arrear, and the husband die; it ſeems the wife ſhall have this Rent, not the Executor. But the contrary adjudged, B. R. inter Bloxton & Heath. Perk. ſect. 834.

If

If a woman and her ſecond husband leaſe the Land ſhe was endowed of by her firſt husband, rendring Rent, and the Rent be arrear, and ſhe die; the ſecond husband, nor the heirs of the firſt husband ſhall have theſe Arrearages. See more for this in Chattels. Bro. Rent 10.

If one ſeiſed of Land ex parte matris, make a Feoffment in Fee rendring Rent to him and his heirs; this Rent ſhall go to the heirs ex parte matris: But if it had been a Leaſe for life, or Gift in tail, contra; there the Rent had gone to the heirs ex parte matris.

If A. Leſſee for years die, and make B. his Executor, and B. leaſe part of the Term to C. rendring Rent, and die inteſtate, and D. gets Adminiſtration; D. ſhall not have the Rent, as it ſeems, becauſe he comes in Paramount. Sect. 12.

A. Tenant in tail diſcontinue to B. B. leaſe it to C. for years rendring Rent, Arrearages of Rent incur; A. dies, his Iſſue doth recover againſt B. in a Formedon, yet the Leſſee ſhall pay the Arrearages to B. for B. ſhall pay Damages. Juſtice Haughton, Hil. 18 Jac. B.R. See more in Baron and Feme.

Sect. 13. Reſervation or Render, what.

It is that Rent or Service which the Grantor in any Grant tieth the Grantee to perform to him, or the Lord Paramount; for which ſee Fait. And this is conſiderable at Common-Law, or by Cuſtom of Manors; for which ſee Co. 10. 128. 11. 18. Plow. 134.

Prender.

The word Render alſo is uſed in Fines, when the Fine is double, and containeth a Grant or Render back again of ſome Rent, Common, or other thing out of the Land it ſelf to the Cognizor. Alſo there be certain things that lie in Prender, which may be taken by the Lord or his Officer when they chance, without any offer made by the Tenant; as the Ward of Lands, the Body of the Heir, and the like. And other things that lie in Render muſt be delivered or anſwered, as Rent, Reliefs, Herriots, and the like. And if a man make a Gift in tail without any Reſervation, the Law makes a Reſervation of the ſame Services to the Donor, by which he doth hold, Co. ſuper Lit. f. 143. And upon a Leaſe for life or years, there the Law reſerveth Fealty only, Perk. ſect. 696.

How it ſhall be taken.

If a Leaſe be made rendring Rent, without any more ſaying how long it ſhall continue, or to whom the Rent ſhall go; in this caſe the Rent ſhall continue as long as the Eſtate, and ſhall go to the Heir or him that hath the Reverſion, Dyer 451. Kelw. 88.

If one by Deed indented demiſe to A. for life, with divers Remainders over, Reddend. inde to the Leſſor and his heirs a Rent; this Reſervation ſhall extend to all the Eſtate, if he in Remainder agree to it after the Eſtate for life. Co. 10. 107. Bro Reſerv. 7.

If one leaſe for a year, with theſe words, [And if the parties ſhall agree for a new Leaſe for longer time then for three years, Reddend. durante Termino prædicto;] this Reſervation ſhall extend to the firſt year, as well as to the three laſt. Co 11. 106.

Nomine pœnæ, what.

It is a greater Sum of money, or Penalty appointed to be paid in default of paiment of a leſſer, or of doing ſome other thing.

Note, that for the Arrearages of a Nomine pœnæ there is no remedy given by the Statute of 32 H. 8. 37. and yet the ſame as an Incident to the Rent ſhall deſcend to the Heir: For the Grantee himſelf during his life, and his Executors or Adminiſtrators after his death may have an Action of Debt for it. Co. ſuper Lit. 162.

Recouper, what.

It is the keeping back and ſtopping of ſomething which is due, to ſatisfie another duty to the party which is to pay the firſt. As for example, where I have a Rent-charge iſſuing out of Land, and I diſſeiſe the Tenant of the Land, and he recover the Land and Twenty pounds Damages againſt me; now I may recoup and keep back out of that Damages as much of the Rent as is due to me in the time: Or if there were a Rent-charge iſſuing out of the Land to another, and I had paid it, I ſhall be allowed it. Co. 6. 31. Dyer 2.

Arrearages, what. Arrearages are Duties behind and unpaid after the days and times in which they are due, as Rent or other thing reſerved. And for theſe, if a man have any due to him of a Rent-ſervice or a Rent-charge, and after he accept the Rent at one of the days whereon it ought to be paid, and give an Acquittance for it; by this he is Acceptance. barred of all the Arrearages, though the Acceptance and Releaſe were made by the Husband, and the Rent were due to the Wife whiles ſhe was ſole: And no proof ſhall be admitted to the contrary. Plow. 133. Co. 3. 65. Dyer 171. Co. ſuper Lit. 373.

Denier, what. Note. Denier is properly the denying of a thing due where it is required; and every Non-paiment of a Rent upon demand, is a Denial in Law. And note that whereſoever there is a lawful Demand of a Rent, and the ſame is not paid, whether the Tenant be preſent or abſent, there is a Denial in Law, albeit there be no words of Denial. And where there is no Demand made, there is no Denial. Noy 54. Co. 8. 146. Co. ſuper Lit. 153.

CHAP. CXLI.

Of Reſcous, Reſeiſer, Reſtitution, and Retorn.

Sect. 1. Reſcous, what. REſcous doth ſignifie an act of Reſiſtance againſt lawful Authority. And it is either of a Diſtreſs, for which ſee in Chap. 68 Or it is of the perſon of a man, and that is in divers caſes: As where a Bailiff or other Officer doth arreſt a man upon a Writ, and he himſelf doth violently get away, or ſome others do violently take him away and procure his eſcape from the Arreſt; in this caſe when the Sheriff hath retorned this Reſcue, as he muſt upon the Writ when the Retorn thereof is called for, then the parties that made the Reſcue Fine. muſt anſwer to it; and if it be found againſt them, they will be fined for it, or the party grieved by it may have a Writ of Reſcous againſt them.

Or it is where an offender after Arreſt is reſcued by others. In this caſe if the Felony. Arreſt be for Treaſon, the Reſcue is Treaſon; if for Felony, the Reſcue is Felony, and the Reſcuer a Felon. And if the Sheriff arreſt a man by a Capias for Felony, and he be reſcued, it is Felony, although the party be innocent. And yet if the Sheriff or any other man arreſt a man without authority of Law, in this caſe he may reſcue himſelf, or another man may reſcue him, and this is no offence. Co. ſuper Lit. 161. F.N.B. 101.

Reſeiſer and Reſumption, what. Reſeiſer was the taking again of Land into the Kings hand, whereof a general Livery or Ouſterlemain was formerly ſued amiſs, and not according to Law. And Reſumption was the taking again into the Kings hands ſuch Lands, as before upon a falſe ſuggeſtion or other error he had delivered to the Heir, or granted to any man by his Letters-Patents.

Reſtitution, what. Reſtitution is the yielding up again of any thing unlawfully taken from another: And it is uſed for the putting of him in poſſeſſion of Land, that is put out by a Forcible Entry: For which ſee Forcible Entry. It is alſo taken for a Writ by which the Goods of a man ſtollen from him are reſtored, upon the Statute of 21 H. 8. 1. And as to the Reſtitution of Goods, theſe things muſt be known.

Felon. 1. Where a man doth make freſh ſuit after the Felon, and overtake him with his Goods, then he may take them again. Or if he do not ſo, yet if he proſecute the Felon, and cauſe him to be indicted and found guilty, though he be not executed, cuted; in theſe caſes he may have this Writ of Reſtitution from the Judg. But otherwiſe it is if the Thief be outlawed for the Felony, and where he is condemned or outlawed for another Felony, and where the Goods are come to the Crown as forfeit; for here the Owner is without remedy, Cromp. Jur. 98. Co. 3 par. Inſt. 242, 243. Stat. 31 Eliz. ch. 11. 21 H. 8. 11. Addition to Juſt. Dodd. f. 41.

2. There was a Reſtitution to Biſhops and Spiritual perſons, of the Temporalties belonging to their Biſhopricks and Spiritual Livings, now out of uſe. See Regiſt. 294.

3. If upon an Erroneous Judgment, and a Fieri facias, a mans Goods be ſold, or a Term is ſold, the Owner cannot have it again, but he ſhall be reſtored to the money made of it. But upon an Elegit, if a Term be extended and delivered to the Plaintiff, he ſhall be reſtored to the Term it ſelf.

4. If one Leaſe or Goods be ſold by the Sheriff upon a ſpecial Cap. utlagatum, and it be reverſed for Error; in this caſe he ſhall be reſtored to the thing in kinde, Co. 8. 142, 143 6. 74, 75.

5. If a ſtollen Horſe be well ſold in a Fair, the right Owner or his Executors, if they come within ſix moneths after the ſtealing at the Pariſh or Corporation where he ſhall find him, and make proof by two ſufficient Witneſſes to the next Juſtice of Peace or Head-Officer of the Corporation, that the Horſe was his, and repay the Buyer ſo much as he upon his own oath before ſuch Juſtice will ſay he gave for him, he ſhall have him again. Stat. 31 Eliz. 12. See Co. 3. par. Inſt. c. 108.

This word Retorn is taken three ways. Sometimes it is applied to the Caſe of a Replevin, where it is called a Retorno habendo. See it in Chap. 25 Sometimes it is applied to the days of Apparence in every Term: And in this ſenſe, Hillary-Term hath four; Eaſter-Term, five; Trinity-Term, four; and Michaelmas-Term, ſix Retorns. But it is taken in a third ſenſe, and applied to Officers, Sheriffs, Bailiffs, and the like: And ſo it is nothing elſe but a Certificate made by an Officer to the Court from whence a Writ or a Warrant doth come, of what he hath done touching the ſerving of the ſame Writ or Warrant, Weſtm. 2. ch. 39. And as to it in this ſenſe, theſe things are to be known. Retorn, what?

1. The Writs that are to do things in Franchiſes, are to be directed to the Sheriff, and he muſt ſend to the Bailiff of the Franchiſe, who muſt make his Retorn to the Sheriff, and the Sheriff muſt retorn to the Court from whence the Writ came, 7 Ed. 4. 14. 12 Ed. 4. 15.

2. Moſt Original and Judicial Proceſs muſt be retorned into the Courts from whence they came, after they be executed. But for this ſee Co. 5. 90. 2 H. 6. 7. and ſee in Execution. Execution.

3. If the Officer do refuſe or delay to make Retorn where it is neceſſary, in ſome caſes the Court will fine him, and in ſome caſes amerce him or ſet iſſues upon him, and in ſome caſes ſend out Proceſs of Contempt againſt him to compel him to make his Retorn. Contempt.

4. And in all caſes where Officers do make a Retorn, they muſt be ſure to make a true, and ſee they do not make a falſe Retorn; for ſo the party hurt thereby may have an Action of the Caſe againſt him; for which ſee Action of the Caſe. Action of the Caſe.

5. Alſo in their Retorns they muſt take care, eſpecially in ſuch Retorns as do ſtand for a kind of Declaration, and for an Accuſation, as in the Retorn of Reſcous, and the like, they muſt be ſure to make their Retorn certain and perfect, and they muſt put their names to them when they have done, Co. 11. 40. 4. 67. Plow. 63. 117. 129; Kelw. 165. *Bro. CHAP. CXLII.

Of a Reverſion and Remainder.

Sect. 1.

1. Reverſion, what.

REverſion ſignifieth in our Law, a Poſſibility reſerved to a mans ſelf and his heirs to have again Lands or Tenements made conditionally over to others; upon the defect or failing of ſuch Condition. Or as others define it, It is a certain Eſtate remaining in the Leſſor or Donor, after the particular Eſtate conveyed or granted to another by Leaſe for years, life, or Gift in tail.

And the difference between a Remainder and a Reverſion, is, That a Remainder is general, and may be to any man elſe as well as to him that doth grant or convey the Land, &c. for life or otherwiſe: A Reverſion is to himſelf from whom the Conveyance of the Land &c. proceeded, and is commonly perpetual as to him and his heirs alſo. Alſo a Remainder is appointed over at the ſame time, but the Reverſion is not ſo, Co. lib. Inſt. f. 22. 1 par. 142. Noy 39.

2. The nature of it.

Aid.

Attornment.

Extinguiſhment

And this is of that nature, as it will be more eaſily transferred from one to another then an Eſtate in poſſeſſion: And though the particular Eſtate, and this Eſtate in Reverſion be divers and diſtinct, and therefore the Tenant may pray in aid of him in Reverſion, yet they have relation one to other. And therefore if there be Leſſee for life or years, and he in Reverſion diſſeiſe his Leſſee for life, or ouſt his Leſſee for years of his Term, and make a Feoffment, and the Leſſee enter on the Feoffee claiming his Eſtate only; this is a good Attornment. And if they come both together, the one will extinguiſh the other; and he that hath a Reverſion cannot be ouſted of it, unleſs the Tenant be ouſted of his Eſtate and Poſſeſſion alſo. As if one ſeiſed of a Manor, make a Gift in tail of part of it rendring Rent, and the Owner is diſſeiſed, and the Tenant in tail attorn to the Diſſeiſee; yet the Diſſeiſee ſhall have the Rent of the Tenant in tail, Co. 7. 97. Plow. 162.

If Tenant for life and he in Reverſion join in a Leaſe for life, or Gift in tail by Deed, reſerving a Rent; this ſhall enure to the Tenant for life only during his life, and after to him in Reverſion, Co. upon Lit. f. 214.

3. What ſhall be ſaid a good Reverſion, and how.

If one ſeiſed in Fee, give to the uſe of himſelf for life, or the uſe of another for life, and after to the uſe of another in tail, and after to the uſe of the right heirs of the Donor; here the Donor hath a good Fee-ſimple expectant upon an Eſtate-tail as a Reverſion, and not as a Remainder. So where no Eſtate for life is limited to the Father; for there the Law maketh an Eſtate for life, and the Heirs take by deſcent, Co. 2. 90. Dyer 7. Co. upon Lit. 22.

If one have a Leaſe of Land for twenty years, and he leaſe for two years rendring Rent, and after grant all his Eſtate and Term to another, and the Leſſee for two years attorn; this is a good Grant of the Term, and the Grantee hath it by way of Reverſion, Co. 4. 52.

Sect. 2. But if one make a Feoffment in Fee upon Condition or Limitation, reſerving the Reverſion; this is no good Reverſion, for all the Eſtate is gone by the Feoffment, and and a Reverſion or Remainder, cannot be Expectant upon an Inheritance in Fee-ſimple, abſolute or determinable. Co. 10.95:

If a Reverſion be granted of a Judicial Office, it is a void Grant, Officia Judicia non conceduntur antequam, vacent. Co. 11. 4. Office.

All Pattentees and Grantees of Reverſion, ſhall have advantage of every Condition, Covenant, and Agreement, againſt Tenants for life or years, which have their Leaſes by Indentures. 4. The Remedy of him in Reverſion againſt him that hath the particular Eſtate for any wrong done to him, concerning the Land.

So alſo the Leſſees againſt the Grantees of Reverſion. See Condition, Covenants. Co. 3.62. 5.56. 112: & 8. 95. Condition. Covenant.

If the particular Tenant do commit Waſte, he in Reverſion may have an Action of Waſte. See Waſte, and 32 *H.*8, 34. *Plow.*175. Dyer 61. 131. 309. Weſtm. 2. cap. 4.5. Waſte.

A Copiholder for life cannot by any Forfeiture deſtroy the Eſtate of him in Reverſion. 39 *H.*6. 5. Where the Tenant may hurt the Reverſion, or not. Sect. 3.

Remainder (Quaſi terra remanens,) it is a power or hope that one hath to enjoy Lands, Tenements, or Rents, after the Eſtate of another expired; or the reſidue of an Eſtate appointed over at the ſame time: As if one give or grant Lands or Tenements to one for life or years, the Remaider to another in Fee, Tail, life or years; and in this caſe the Remainder, and the particular Eſtate, do make (as it were) but one Eſtate, and therefore the Remainder is called the Reſidue of the Eſtate; and for this cauſe it is that that which is done by, or to one of them in many caſes ſhall binde and advantage the other, as an Attornment or Releaſe made to one of them, ſhall advantage the other. And this doth differ from a Reverſion, for the Remainder is always a ſucceeding Eſtate, appointed and limited over the time, the precedent Eſtate was made, and the Reverſion is an Eſtate left in the Giver, after the particular Eſtate for years, life, or intail, made by him. See more in Crompt. Juriſd. cap. 11. 6. 6. Remainder, what. Attornment. Releaſe.

A Remainder is, and may be created ſometimes by Fine, Deed, or other Conveyance, and ſometimes by Will; or it may be without Deed by a Livery of Seiſon: And the moſt apt and proper word to create an Eſtate by way of Remainder, is the word Remainder it ſelf; As a Leaſe to one for life or years, the Remainder, or [and that it ſhall remain to] another, and the like: But an Eſtate by way of Remainder may be made and limited by other words. And therefore it is agreed for Law, That if a Leaſe for years or life be made to B. the Reverter to C. or [and that after his death, the Lands Redibunt at C.] or [and after to C.] or [and after that the Land ſhall go to C.] or [and that the Land ſhall diſcend to C.] or [provided on condition, That if ſuch a thing happen, C. ſhall have it,] or any other ſuch like words. All theſe are good Remainders. See more in Broo. Donee & Remainder. Plow. 134. 9 Hen. 8. 2. Co. 3.20. Plow. 159. 170. 542. 7. How, and by what words a Remainder, is and may be made.

To make a good Remainder by the Rules of Law, theſe things are requiſite. 8. What ſhall be ſaid a good Remainder in his Original Creation, or not.

1. There muſt be a particular Eſtate Precedent, as an Eſtate for life or years, or a Frank-tenement diſcendible, or ſpecial occupancy; and that muſt be created at the ſame time when the Remainder is made, as a foundation to ſupport the Remainder, for neither without ſuch a particular Eſtate: Nor yet upon a Fee-ſimple, Conditional, or limited, can a Remainder depend.

2. This particular Eſtate muſt continue until the Remainder happen, for if it do determine before the Remainder, it is void.

3. There muſt be a remnant of Eſtate in the Leſſor, to grant more then the particular eſtate.

4. The

4. The Remainder muſt paſs out of the Leſſor or Donor preſently, to him in Remainder, or elſe it muſt be put in cuſtody of Law, and in Abeyance, elſe it is not good.

Sect. 4. 5. The Remainder muſt veſt in Eſtate, either preſently, during the particular Eſtate, or eo inſtanti when the particular Eſtate doth determine, and not before nor after; for if the particular Eſtate be ended, before it happen, the Remainder is void, or if it happen before the particular Eſtate be ended, the Remainder is void.

6. There muſt be a perſon capable at the time of the Creation of the Eſtate, or at leaſt by common and ordinary poſſibility, one that may be capable by that time the Remainder happen.

7. If the Remainder be to come, and upon a poſſibility, it muſt be ſuch a poſſibility as is near common and ordinary, as death, death without iſſue, Coverture, or the like; and not remote, as Entry into Religion, or the like, for then it is void. See the caſes below, Plow. 136. Co. 10. 97. 320. Plow. 34, 35. 21 Hen. 7. 12. Co. 3. 20. Littl. 162. Co. 1. 66. Perk. 12. Dier 140. 18 Hen. 8. 4. Plow. 155.

In reſpect of the manner of Limitation. By Deed. If a Leaſe be made by Deed for life or years, the Remainder over, and Livery of Seiſin be given, it ſeems this is a good Remainder, Quere. For it ſeems experience is otherwiſe. See the Addition to Juſtice Dodridge, f. 31.

So alſo is a Gift in Tail, with a Remainder over in Fee. Co. upon Littl. 143. Littl. ſect. 60. 22 H. 6. 1.

If a Leaſe be made for life, with Condition, That if the Leſſee for life die, that it ſhall remain over; this is a good Remainder. Plow. 25. 27 H. 8. 24.

If a Leaſe be made for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs, or primo genito filio de J. S. this is a good Remainder. Co. 2. 51.

If a Leaſe be made for life, and after the Leſſor confirm by his Deed, the Eſtate of the Tenant for Term of life, the Remainder over to another in Fee; this is a good Remainder. Co. upon Littl. 317.

If a Leaſe be made to J. S. for life, provided, That if he marry the daughter of the Leſſor, he ſhall have the Fee; this a good Remainder, and the Fee will increaſe. Plow. 25.

If a Leaſe be made to A. for life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of A. and the Heirs of that right Heir; this is a good Remainder, but A. may Bar his Heir of it. Co. 1. 66. Dyer 309.

Sect. 5. If a Leaſe be made for life, the Remainder to J. S. in Tail, and if J. S. die without iſſue, or marry the Remainder to J. B. this Remainder upon this Contingent to J. B. is good. Dyer 304. Co. 2. 50.

If a Leaſe be made to J. S. for life, and after the death of J. D. the Remainder to another, this is a good Remainder, and will veſt well enough, if J. D. die, during the life of J. S.

So if a Leaſe be made to A. for life, the Remainder to B. for life, and if B. die befor A. then to remain to C. for life, this is a good Remainder, and will veſt well enough if A. ſurvive C.

So if one have a ſon of nine years of age, and make a Leaſe till his ſon come of full years, and after that it ſhall remain to another in Fee, if he live to his full age; this will be a good Remainder not elſe. Co. 3. 20.

If a Feoffment be to the uſe of an eldeſt ſon for ſixty years, the Remainder to a yonger ſon for life, the Remainder to the Heirs Males of the eldeſt; it ſeems this is a good Remainder. Trin. 7 Jac. By the Juſtices.

If a Leaſe be made of a Houſe for life, the Remainder to W. for life, Si ipſe inhabitaret ſuper prædict' domum; and if W. happen to die before the firſt Tenant, then it ſhall remain to K. for life, this is a good Remainder. Plow. fol. 4.

If Lands be given to A. and B. ſo long as they live joyntly together, the Remainder to the right Heirs of him that dieth firſt, this is a good Remainder. Co. on Littl. 378.

If

If one by Will deviſe his Land to A. B. for eight years, and after that the ſame ſhall remain to his Executors, until his ſon ſhall come of age of one and twenty years; and then that it ſhall remain to him and his Heirs for ever; this is a good Remainder to the ſon and his Heirs, but if it were by Deed, contrà. Co. 3. 20. By Will.

If one deviſe to J. S. the Remainder to one in ventre ſa meere; it ſeems this is a good Remainder. Chief Juſtice. Mich. 13 Jac. B. R. John Simpſons caſe.

If one by Deed, inrolled and indented, bargain and ſell to one for life, the Remainder to another in Fee; this is a good Remainder by this means. Co. 1. 45. By Bargain and Sale.

If a Rent that is in eſſe, be granted with a Remainder over, this is a good Remainder. Plow. 35. In reſpect of the thing granted.

And ſo it ſeems of a Rent newly created, granted to one for life, the Remainder to another; if there be a clauſe for the Grantee to diſtrain for his life, and after for him in Remainder for his time. So if one that hath a Rent-charge in Fee, grant it for life to the Tenant of the Land in Fee with a Remainder over; this is a good Remainder. Finches Ley. 133.

If an Eſtate be made to J. S. and his Heirs, during the life of W. this is a good Eſtate precedent, on which to limit a Remainder; and therefore a Remainder limited upon this Eſtate, is good, as upon a Leaſe for life or years; for this in effect, is but a Leaſe for life. In reſpect of the precedent Eſtate.

So if two Joyntenants be, and one make a Leaſe for life, the Remainder to his Companion, it is a good Remainder. Co. upon Littl. fol. 192, 208. Durels caſe, Hil. 1 Jac.

And if I give a Remainder after my death, it is void. March. 51.

But if a Leaſe be by Deed for life or years to a Monk, with a Remainder over, the Remainder, is void: But ſuch a Remainder made by a Will, is good enough, Broo. Grant 133. For lack of a particular Eſtate.

If a Leaſe be by Deed for life, the Remainder to another, and the Leſſee for life wave his Eſtate; now this Remainder is void: But if the Creation of the Eſtates were by Will, contrà. Co. 1. 101. 37 H. 6. 36. Sect. 6.

If one by Deed convey Land in Fee-ſimple to one on Condition, That if he do not ſuch a thing, or if ſuch a thing happen, that the Land ſhall remain to other, this is a void Remainder. Co. 10. 97. Co. 3. 20. Plow. 34.

But if this were by Will, perhaps it might be a good Remainder for one Fee-ſimple cannot depend upon another. Co. lib. Inſtit. 1 part, fol. 18. Broo. Donee, fol. 45.

If one by Deed convey Land to one and his Heirs, ſo long as J. S. hath Heirs of his Body, and after that it ſhall remain to W. this Remainder is void: But perhaps if this were by Will, it might be good; but otherwiſe a Remainder will not depend upon a Fee-ſimple determinable. Co. 10. 97. Plow. 35.

If he in Reverſion confirm to the Tenant for life, with a Remainder over, or the Heir endow his Mother with a Remainder over; theſe Remainders are void, for the particular Eſtate was not made at the ſame time: But if the Leaſe had been pur autre vie, and the confirmation for his own life, with a Remainder over, it had been good. Co. 3. 20. 1. 175. Doct. & Stud. fol. 20.

If one Leaſe for life, and that upon ſuch a Contingent the Eſtate ſhall ceaſe, and then after that it ſhall remain to another; this Remainder is void. Co 3. 20. 21 H. 7. 22. Plow. 25. 155. For lack of continuance of particular Eſtate.

If one Leaſe for life, and that two days after the death of the Tenant for life, it ſhall remain over to another; this is a void Remainder. 21 H. 7. 22.

If a Leſſor diſſeiſe his Tenant for life, and after make a new Leaſe to him for life, with a Remainder over, this Remainder is void, becauſe the Leſſee for life, is remitted, to his firſt Eſtate, and the laſt eſtate for life is gone. Plow. 25. Littl. Sect. Remitter. Remitter.

If one Leaſe to A. for one and twenty years, if B. live ſo long, and after the death death of B. that this ſhall remain over in Fee. So if a Leaſe be made for years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. In theſe caſes, if this be by Deed, the Remainders are void. Co. 3.20.

So if one having iſſue a ſon not of age, makes a Leaſe till his ſon ſhall come to his full age, and after he ſhall ſo do, that it ſhall go to another in Fee, it ſeems this is void. Idem.

Sect. 7. For want of a Remnant of Eſtate.

If a Tenant in Tail, Poſſeſſion or Remainder, grant all his Eſtate to J. S. the Remainder to J. D. This Remainder is void, for he had nothing more in him to grant. So if there be Tenant for life, the Remainder in Tail, and he in Remainder grant all his Eſtate and Right to one Habend, during the life of the firſt Tenant, and after to the uſe of the King; this is a void Remainder. Co. 2. 52. Co. 2. 50.

For that it doth not veſt in time convenient.

If a Leaſe be made to two, the Remainder in Fee to one, after the death of the firſt, this is a void Remainder. Plow. 24. 18 H. 8. 4.

If a Leaſe be for life, the Remainder for life, and that after the death of the firſt Tenant for life, yet ſhall remain to a ſtranger in Fee; this ſecond Remainder is void. Plow. 24.

If A. Leaſe to B for the life of B. and after the death of A. to B. and his Heirs; if A. ſurvive B, this Remainder is void. Co. 10. 85.

For that he in Remainder is not capable.

If a Leaſe be for years, or life, the Remainder to a Monk, or other dead perſon in Law; this Remainder is void, though he became after deraigned, and ſo is made capable, and this be before the Remainder happen. Co. 2. 50. Broo. Donee, fol. 37.

If a Leaſe be made to J. S. for life, the Remainder to the eldeſt Iſſue-male of B. and the Heirs-males of his Body, B. hath iſſue a Baſtard ſon, this Remainder is not good to him; but after he hath been born a while, that by reputation he hath gotten the name of a ſon, a Remainder may be good to him ſo made as before. So if one make a Leaſe for life to R. the Remainder to the eldeſt Iſſue-male of R. to be begotten of the body of J. S. whether the ſame be legitimate or illegitimate, and they have iſſue a Baſtard; this Baſtard ſhall not have this Remainder. So a Remainder limited to the firſt reputed ſon, or Baſtard, is not good in the caſe of Blodwel and Edwards. Hil. 38 Eliz. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, fol. 3.

If a Leaſe be made for life or years, the Remainder to the ſon of J. S. and he have no ſuch ſon at that time, though he happen after to have ſuch a ſon, yet this Remainder is void. Co. 2. 50. Dier 340. 10 Ed. 3. 46.

So if it be a Leaſe for years or life, the Remainder to a Corporation, and there is none of that name.

So if it be a Leaſe for life or years, the Remainder to ſuch a one as the particular Tenant ſhall name, though he do after name one, yet the Remainder is void. Broo. Donee 37. Co. 2. 51. 9 H. 6. 24.

Sect. 8. If a Leaſe be for life or years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and there is no ſuch J. S. then in being; this is a void Remainder, though after ſuch a one happen to be born, and to have an Heir, and J. S. die before the Remainder happen. So if there were ſuch an J. S. if he were living. Co. 1. 58. 2 Hen. 7. 13. Co. upon Littl. 217.

If A. have iſſue a ſon and daughter, and a Leaſe for life be made, the Remainder to the Heirs Females of the body of A. A. dieth, the Heir Female in this caſe ſhall take nothing, for ſhe is not Heir. See the Engliſh Lawyer, 14, 15. Co. upon Littl. fol. 2.

For lack of Certainty. If a Leaſe be made to one, until he ſhall enter into Religion, the Remainder to H. this is a void Remainder. Co. 1. 51.

Alſo the caſes in the laſt Diviſion anſwer to this. See them there, and ſee more in Plowden, Colthirſts caſe.

If a Leaſe be made to A. for life, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in forma prædicta; this Remainder to C. is void: But if it had been to C. in eadem forma, it had been good. 14 Hen. 4. cap. 15. Co. lib. Inſtit. 1 part, fol. 25.

If

If one give Lands to one in Tail, on Condition, that if he alien in Fee, that then his Eſtate ſhall ceaſe, and the Lands ſhall remain to another; this is a void Remainder: And yet if one make a Leaſe for life to A B. and C. And if B. ſurvive C. then the Remainder to B. and his Heirs; this is a good Remainder on this Contingent. Littl. ſect. 721. Co. upon Littl. 377. For that it doth not paſs out of the Grantor.

If a Leaſe be made for years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. (which J. S. is then living) this Remainder is void; but a Leaſe for life with ſuch a Remainder over, is good. Plow. 83. Co. 1. 132, 136.

If one ſeiſed in Fee make a Leaſe for life, the Remainder to himſelf in tail; this is a void Remainder. Co. 3. 20. Broo. Reſer. 14. So if one make a Gift in Tail or Leaſe for life, the Remainder to his own right Heirs; this Remainder is void, Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, fol. 23.

If a Leaſe be made to A. for life, the Remainder to B. for life, provided, That if the Leſſor ſhall have any ſon, during his life, that ſhall live till his age of five years; that then the Eſtate limited to B. ſhall ceaſe, and that it ſhall remain to another; this ſecond Remainder upon a Contingent, is void: For a Remainder muſt come at firſt by Livery, and cannot commence after upon a Contingent. 36 Eliz. Co. B.

If an Eſtate be made at Will, with a Remainder over; this is not a good Remainder, for this Eſtate will not ſupport a Remainder. Co. 8. 75.

Sect. 9. Who ſhall take a Remainder: The next of Blood.

If one have iſſue two ſons A. and B. and dieth. B. hath two ſons C. and D. and dieth. C. the eldeſt ſon hath Iſſue, and dieth, a Leaſe is made for life to A. the Remainder to the next of blood in Fee; now by this D. ſhall take, and not the iſſue of C. So if a Leaſe be made to a ſon, the Remainder to the next of Blood; it ſeems the Father, and not the Uncle, ſhall take by this. So if a man hath two ſons, and the eldeſt have a ſon and die, and a Remainder is limitted to the next of his Blood, the yongeſt ſhall take it. Co. lib. Inſt. 1 part, fol. 10, 13.

9. Where a Remainder ſhall be deſtroyed, and how.

If an Eſtate be to A. for life, the Remainder to the right heirs of A. or the right heirs of B. or the right heir, and heir of ſuch right heir, or the like, and A. make a Feoffment in Fee: Now by this, the Remainder is deſtroyed for ever, and can never be revived. But if the Tenant for life had been diſſeiſed onely, and ſo died, the Remainder might have continued and veſted well enough. Co. 1. 60. 136.

If Lands be given or granted for life, the Remainder to the right heirs of W. and W. is attainted of Treaſon or Felony; now the heir ſhall never have this Remainder. But if the Limitation had been to the Heirs Males of W. contrà. Co. 10. 102. fol. 2. Broo. cap. 302.

If a Diſſeiſor make a Leaſe for life with a Remainder over, and after the Diſſeiſee enter; now the Remainder is deſtroyed and gone for ever. Littl. ſect. 521. Broo. cap. 302.

If A. infeoff B. and his heirs to the uſe of C. and D. his wife, and the heirs of the ſurvivor of them, and C. makes a Feoffment to E. and dieth; this Feoffment doth deſtroy the Contingent Remainder, Adjudge. Co. 1. 135.

If a Gift in Tail be made to A. the Remainder to the right heirs of B. and the Donee makes a Feoffment to B. A. dies; in this caſe the heir ſhall not have the Remainder. Piggot and Smiths caſe.

CHAP. CXLIII.

Of Rogues, Ryot, Rout, and unlawful Aſſembly.

Sect. 1. Rogues, what.

FOr Rogues, theſe things are to be known.

1. That all perſons above ſeven years old that go about begging or wandring idly, under any pretence whatſoever, are to be accounted Rogues: But none under ſeven years old, are to be reckoned Rogues.

2. All idle perſons that go about, uſing unlawful arts, as Juglers, Fortune-tellers, &c. are accounted Rogues.

3. All Proctors, Patent gatherers, Collectors for Gaols, Priſons, or Hoſpitals, are ſo to be accounted; but not Patent gatherers for fire.

4. All Fencers, Bear-wards, Common Players of Interludes, and Minſtrels, that wander about, are ſo to be eſteemed.

5. All Pedlers, Tinkers, Petty-Chapmen, and Glaſs-men, wandring about, are ſo to be accounted.

6. All wandring perſons, and common Laborers, being able to work, that loyter and refuſe to work for reaſonable wages, not having whereon to live.

7. Such as having Licenſe to beg in their own pariſh, beg elſwhere.

Egyptians, what.

8. Thoſe who wander in the habit of Egyptians, not being Felons, are alſo accounted Rogues. And Egyptians are a counterfeit kinde of Rogues, that being Engliſh or Welſh-people, accompany themſelves together, diſguiſing themſelves in ſtrange Robes, blacking their faces and bodies, and framing to themſelves a ſtrange Language, wander up and down, and under pretence of telling of Fortunes, curing diſeaſes, and ſuch like abuſe the ignorant common people, by ſtealing all that is not to hot and to heavy for their carriage.

9. Soldiers and Marriners that beg (not being Felons) and eſpecially where they counterfeit a Certificate of their Commanders, are ſuch alſo.

10. And ſo are all theſe that follow. Perſons that go to, or from Bath, and do not purſue their Licenſe.

11. A Rogue whipped that doth beg again, or not purſue the direction of his Teſtimonial.

12. He that doth go with a general Paſport, and not from Pariſh to Pariſh.

13. He that goeth with his Paſport by himſelf, without a guide: Nay, it is held, that all Paſports are void, and that none can go with a Paſs, but he will be a Rogue.

14. Servants that go out of their Pariſh without a Teſtimonial, or with a forged Teſtimonial.

15. Such as do run away, or threaten to run away from their charges, and to leave them to the Pariſh.

16. A Soldier or Mariner that hath a Penſion, and ſhall beg or counterfeit a Certificate.

17. Thoſe that are ſick of the Plague, and wilfully go abroad in company contrary to the command of Officers; all theſe are held to be Rogues. And if it be a Woman that hath a Husband, ſhe may be a Rogue, as well as a Man: But if the Parents be not Rogues, the Children cannot be ſo, unleſs they beg, and become ſo.

What ſhall be done with them.

They that are ſuch perſons, are thus to be dealt with.

1. They are to be whipped openly, till their bodies be bloody.

2. They muſt have a Paſs or Teſtimonial under the Hand and Seal of one Juſtice of Peace, or under the Hands and Seals of the Miniſter, Conſtable, and one of the Pariſh beſide, appointing whither he ſhall go, which way, and in what time.

3. With this Paſs he is to be carried and conveyed from Pariſh to Pariſh, by the Officers thereof, the next way to the Pariſh where he was born, if it may be known by by his confeſſion, or otherwiſe; if not, then to the Pariſh where he laſt dwelt by the ſpace of one year; or if neither can be known, then through the Pariſh, through which he laſt paſt, without puniſhment: And the Officer of that Pariſh is to carry him to the Houſe of Correction, or Common Gaol, where he is to be till he be placed, if able, in ſervice, if otherwiſe, in an Alms-houſe. See 5 Eliz. 4. 43 Eliz. 3. 7 Jac. 4. 39 Eliz. 4, 17. 1 Jac. 7. 12 R. 2. 8. 23 Ed. 3. 7. 22 H. 8. 12. 1 Ed 6. 2, 3. 3, 4 Ed. 3. 16. 35 Eliz. 7.

Reſolution of the Judges upon the Statutes, upon which theſe things are to be known.

1. Generally the Wife and Children muſt go and be paſſed, with the Husband and Parents: And if a Wife become vagrant, ſhe is to be ſent to her Husband.

2. None may be forced to turn Rogue, ſo as to be ſent, &c.

3. None but a Rogue is thus to be uſed; for if a Servant be out of his time, idle, or go into another Pariſh, and is there idle, he is not ſo to be handled, ſo neither is a traveller or paſſenger.

4. The childe of a Woman, hanged for Felony, is to be ſent to the place of its birth, and if that cannot be known, to the place where ſhe was taken.

5. He that doth run or threaten to run from his charge, &c. He that being allowed by the Overſeers to beg doth exceed his Licenſe: Such as are infected with the Plague, and go abroad, and able idle perſons that be poor, and refuſe to work: All theſe upon their delivery, are not to be ſent to their place of birth, but to their place of dwelling, if they have any, if not, where they laſt dwelt for a year. And the loyterer that will not work for the wages aſſeſſed, may be ſent to the Houſe of Correction.

6. He that is found in the privy ſearch, may be puniſhed by the Juſtice of Peace, or ſent to the Houſe of Correction, there to be ſet a work.

7. He is not to be relieved; for if any Officer do give him money, or an Ale-houſe-keeper lodge him, he forfeits ten ſhillings.

8. He that doth any thing in hinderance of the Execution of the Statute of 31 Eliz. 4. loſeth five pound, and is to be bound to the Good-behavior.

Incorrigible Rogue, what.

He that doth appear to be dangerous to the people, that doth offer violence, or uſe any threatning ſpeeches towards them, or will not leave his Roguiſh life, but being puniſhed and ſent home, doth rogue again; or that doth affirm, he was born in ſuch a place, or laſt dwelt a year in ſuch a Town, and when he is come thither, it appears to be falſe; or ſuch a one as is able to labor, and he doth threaten to run away, and leave his charge to the Pariſh, or doth ſo. All theſe are to be reputed Incorrigible Rogues, and are to be brought by the Conſtable to the next Juſtice, who may ſecure them. And two Juſtices may ſend them to Gaol, or the Houſe of Correction, till the Quarter Seſſions, and then they are to be branded on the left Shoulder with an hot Iron, &c. and from the Seſſions to be ſent to the place of their laſt habitation. 1 Jac. 7. 25. And he that falſifieth his birth, is to be ſent away by the two next Juſtices to the Gaol or Bridewel. See more of this in my Juſtice of Peace.

What is to be done with them.

Of a Ryot, Rout, and unlawful Aſſembly.

FOr the better underſtanding of the Law in this, theſe things are to be known.

Unlawful Aſſembly, what.

1. That an unlawful Aſſembly, is where three or more do meet to do an unlawful act againſt the Peace, as to beat down a Pale, Ditch, Houſe, or the like, or to do a lawful thing in an unlawful way or manner, as to diſtrain for his Rent with force and violence; but they do nothing. A Rout is when they go forward (after they are thus met) in a turbulent way to effect, but do not finiſh it. A Ryot is when they do not onely begin, and go on, but finiſh their work: So that in theſe offences there muſt be theſe things concurrant.

Rout, what.

Ryot, what.

What ſhall be ſaid to be a Ryot, Rout, or Unlawful Aſſembly, or not.

Firſt, There muſt be three or more perſons in the work, and this may be made up of Women and Children of any diſcretion: But this offence may be committed, though ſome of the company ſtand by, and do nothing; for if they ſtand by and countenance it, it is as bad, as if they did it: But if they come by chance, and intend nothing, contrà.

Secondly, Their Aſſembly that they go with, or their intent muſt be evil, to do ſome hurt to men, or that which is theirs (which in ſome caſes will be preſumed;) as if the Lord with two or more perſons, enter on his Copiholder with force, and cut and take his Corn, becauſe he doth not pay him his Fine; this is a Ryot, and yet this Entry lawful: So if a man make reſiſtance againſt the Sheriff, or any other in their doing of Juſtice. So if two or three make a forcible Entry; and this may be puniſhed both ways. Meetings and Aſſemblies of any perſons upon matches made for Cock-fighting, are unlawful Aſſemblies, and (it ſeems) may now be puniſhed as a Ryot. Ord 31 March, 1654. And ſo (as it ſeems) are Meetings to ſet up May-Poles, eſpecially when it is done with Guns and Drums. Ord. April, 1644. If many come together unarmed, they know not why themſelves; this is no offence puniſhable, unleſs it can be known, they came to ſome evil intent, or they do miſcarry themſelves in ſome evil act.

If one ride or go abroad with his Servants armed, and in harneſs, and do no more; this is an Unlawful Aſſembly if not a Ryot: But if he intending a Ryot by an Entry in to Land, or the like, go with his ordinary ſervants, who know nothing, and they do enter, this is not a Ryot in the ſervants, if it be any in the Maſter. To go in a Privy Coat of Mail, is not this offence: And albeit one be threatned, and in danger of his life, and to defend himſelf he gathers aforce, and they ride about armed; this is a Ryot, yet if they did abide in his houſe, happily it may be juſtified. But if a man do onely go abroad with his houſhold ſervants, which he hath commonly in his Family, though they be more then his ability to keep; this is no offence, and if they hap to make an affray, or do any unlawful thing; this will not amount to this offence, except it can appear they had an intent before to do it, but an affray onely.

The Watch in London on Midſummer night, Aſſemblies for merry Meetings onely; wherein there is no breach of the Peace, nor terror to the People, are not taken to be this offence: But take heed they be not ſuch Meetings, as are forbidden, as May-Pole Meetings, Cock-fighting Matches, or at prohibited times, as upon the Lords-day; for this may make it queſtionable. But if there happen to be an affray at ſuch Meetings, it is not interpreted to be this offence: But the coming to ſuch a Meeting with ſuch an intent, or the taking of ſides and parties at ſuch a time, and in ſuch a caſe eſpecially, if after their parting they meet again, may amount to this offence.

If a Jury come to try an iſſue, and they happen to fall out and fight; this is not this offence, but an affray. The Sheriff, and other Officers of Juſtice, in going about with Troops and Arms, do not commit this offence.

Thirdly, The manner of their motion and action, (if the matter be good) muſt be bad, as when it is turbulent; ſo that by their coming together, they breed ſome apparant diſturbance, either by word, geſture, or action; ſo that peaceable men are feared, or light men imboldened; for as a man may do an unlawful thing, ſo as it may not be a Ryot; ſo he may do a lawful thing, ſo as to make it a Ryot: And therefore if a convenient number onely, with convenient Tools, onely meet together to abate a Common Nuſance; as where a man hath erected a Wearton, a Common River, where the people paſs with their Boats, and they come to the place, and make a Trench in his ground that did it, the better to do it; this is no offence. But if in doing this, they come weaponed, or in the night, or uſe threatning ſpeeches, that they will do it, if they die for it, or the like; this may make it a Ryot. So if I claim a peece of Timber, and another hath better right to it then I have, and I take a convenient number of perſons, and peaceably remove it; this is no Ryot.

Fourthly, If a man hath Title to Corn, and he come with a great number to cut it with Sickles; this is no Ryot. But if he have no Title, it is otherwiſe. Hughs Rep. 438.

Of Seals of the Lord Protector, Seiſure of Goods, Sewers, and Seavorn.

Sect. 1. Seals, what.

THe Lord Protector hath four Seals, which he doth uſe in his Gifts and Grants, and publick and private Acts.

The firſt is the Grand Seal, which is the chief; and of which, the Lord Chancelor, or Keeper, or Commiſſioners for the time being, have the Cuſtody: And by this onely, the Lord Protector doth, and may Seal Writs, and grant or give away any Office, Manors, Lands, or Tenements; for by the Common Law, no Grant of any Land by the King, was available or pleadable, but under the Great Seal of England, of which onely, all the Courts are to take notice: And therefore though this Seal be chargable, becauſe every thing doth paſs the Privy Signet, and Privy Seal, before it come to this; yet it is the ſafeſt and ſureſt way to have any thing from the Lord Protector, under this Seal.

The ſecond is the Privy or Petit Seal, and by this he doth, and may give Fees, grant Prohibitions againſt a man, that he ſhall not go out of the Realm, preſent to a Church, make an Attorney, diſcharge debts, or the like: But he cannot give or grant away Lands by this onely, nor Seal Writs with this.

The third is the Privy Signet, and by this alſo he may prohibit a man to go out of the Realm, preſent to a Church, or the like; but by this he cannot diſpoſe his Treaſure, or diſcharge debts, or the like.

The fourth is the Exchequer Seal, and by this the King did uſe to grant ſmall matters, as Cottages, and the like, or to make a Leaſe of greater things for three lives onely; and the Law doth allow of ſuch grants, becauſe elſe no man would take them, the charge of the Grand Seal is ſo great: And how the Clerks that have the Cuſtody of the Seals, muſt uſe them, and what Fees they muſt take for the ſame. Seiſure of Goods for offences.

1. No Goods can be taken, and ſeiſed to the uſe of the Lord Protector, before the ſame are forfeit.

2. The ſame cannot be Inventoried, and the Town charged therewith, before the owner be indicted of Record.

3. So there are two manner of Seiſures, one verbal without taking, removing, or carrying away, onely to make an Inventory, and charge the Town. And the other an actual Seiſure, and taking away the ſame.

Sewar or Sewer hath two ſignifications with us.

And the Commiſſioners of Sewers, are thoſe that are authoriſed under the Great Seal to over-look theſe, and to ſee Drains, and Ditches, well kept and maintained in the Mariſh, and Fen Countries, for the better conveyance of the Water into the Sea, and the preſerving of the Graſs for the Food of Cattle.

CHAP. CXLVI.

Of the Service of God or Religion.

Sect. 1.

AS touching the Service of God, or Religion, and the Laws of the Nation now in force, and of use relating thereunto, these things are to be known.

1. The great regard the Law hath of Religion.

1. That the Christian Religion contained in the Scriptures, is held forth and commended, as the Profession of these Nations; yet so, as no man is to be compelled to it by Penalties, or otherwise, then by the endeavor of sound Doctrine, and the examples of good Conversation, and by the encouragement of painful, and able Teachers for instructing of the people, and confutation of Error, and Heresie. Government, Art. 35, 36, 37.

2. That such as profess Faith in God by Jesus Christ, though differing in judgment from the Doctrine, Discipline, or Worship, publickly held forth, shall not be restrained, but protected in the Profession of the Faith, and Exercise of their Religion; so that they abuse not this liberty to the civil Injury of others, and to the actual Disturbance of the Publick Peace on their parts: Provided, That this liberty be not extended to Popery or Prelacy; nor to such as under the Profession of Christ, hold forth and practise licentiousness. Government, Art. 36, 37, 38.

3. That the Law hath a special regard of it, and therefore it holdeth forth these Religious Principles.

First, That Religion and Justice are the main Pillars of the Commonwealth.

Secondly, And that that is the best reason that makes for Religion. Co. 5. 14.

The main things the Law doth take care of, in order to the Advancement and Preservation of Religion, are Religious times or days; Religious things, as the holy Scriptures, holy Ordinances, or Worships, and an orderly performance of them; Religious places, and Religious Orders of Men, and Officers; such as are the Ministers of the Gospel, and as to them, their due qualification, election, disposal, and reward.

As touching Religious times, these things are to be known.

2. Lords day.

1. That by our Law, there is no day now ordinarily to be kept holy, but the Lords day. Act, 27 Sept. 1650. The Common and Statute Laws also, do highly advance the Authority, and severely injoyn the Sanctification, and forbid all manner of profanation of this day. 5, 6 Ed. 6. 3. Plow. 265. Co 9. 66. And therefore all works (but works of Piety, Charity, and other works of necessity) are forbidden on this day. And for this cause it is, That if any part of the proceedings of a Sute in a Court of Justice be entred and recorded, as done this day, it makes it all void; and all serving Warrants or Proces on this day, but in special cases, is void; and it is a rule, Dies dominicus non est juridicus. And if a Keepers Deer be stoln out of his Park, whiles he is at Church serving God (though this in another case be a forfeiture of his Office) yet in this case, and at this time, it is not at all penal to him. 5 Ed. 3. 27.

2. But this notwithstanding it is lawful, to pursue and arrest Felons, such as break the Peace, suppress uproars, quench fire in houses, visit sick people, and the like. Co. 5. 83. Plow. 265. See more of this in my Office of the Justice of Peace, Chapter of the Lords day

Holy days.

3. But as to the other Holy days called Feast days, they are now totally abrogated, and at an end. Act, 27 Sept. 1650 But the fifth day of November we are to meet once to thank God for our deliverance from the Gun-powder Treason. 3 Jac. 1.

As

3 Holy Scriptures.

As touching the holy Scriptures, theſe things are to be known.

1. The Maximes of the Law, concerning them, which are theſe.

Firſt, That they are of Soveraign Authority. 34 H. 6. 40.

Secondly, That the Goſpel of Jeſus Chriſt is of infallible truth.

Thirdly, That any Statute, Preſcription, Cuſtom, or Canon againſt it, is void, and not to be admitted.

2. Blaſphemy and Hereſie.

Fourthly, To maintain and publiſh, by Preaching, Printing, Writing, or Teaching any thing contrary to them; As in the firſt place, That there is no God, that he is not preſent in all places, that he doth not know, and fore-know all things, that he is not Almighty, that he is not perfectly holy, that he is not eternal, or that either of the three perſons of the Godhead is not God, or that theſe three are not one eternal God, or that Chriſt the Son, is not equal with the Father, or ſhall ſo divide the Manhood of Chriſt, or that the Godhead, and Manhood of Chriſt, are ſeveral Natures, or deny that the Manhood of Chriſt, is without ſin, or that Chriſt, died, roſe again, or did not aſcend into Heaven bodily, or that his death is not meritorious to Believers, the Reſurrection, or day of Judgment, or that the Scriptures are not the Word of God, or that Chriſt is not the Son of God, and ſhall be obſtinate herein, it is Felony. And in the ſecond place, if any man affirm, as before, That all ſhall be ſaved, that man hath free-wil, that God may be worſhipped by Images, Purgatory, or that the Soul dieth, or ſleepeth after death, that the Revelations or Workings of the Spirit, are a Rule of Faith, though againſt the Word, that Man is not to believe above Reaſon, that the Moral Law is at an end, that a Chriſtian need not pray nor repent, that Baptizing of Infants is void and unlawful, or deny the Lords day, or Sacraments, or the Miniſters and Magiſtrates office, or are rebaptiſed, and be obſtinate herein, is to be impriſoned, till he give Sureties not to do ſo again. And in the third place, If any ſeriouſly maintain (he being not diſtracted) by Word or Writing, any Creature to be God, or to be equal with God in his Attributes, or that God dwells in the Creature, or ſhall deny the Holineſs and Righteouſneſs of God, or ſay, That wicked perſons, wickedneſs, or wicked acts of Swearing, Drunkenneſs, or Leudneſs, are not unholy againſt Gods Word, or are approved by him, or that ſuch things, or ſuch perſons therein, are like God, or ſhall ſay, That theſe acts of denying or blaſpheming God, or the holineſs or righteouſneſs of God, or that the acts of curſing God, or ſwearing profanely or falſly by the Name of God, or the acts of Lying, Stealing, Couſening and Defrauding others, Sodomy, Drunkenneſs, Filthy, and Laſcivious ſpeaking, are not things in themſelves ſhameful, wicked, and abominable in any perſon whatſoever to be practiſed, or ſhall affirm, That the acts of Adultery, Drunkenneſs, and the like open wickedneſs are in their own nature, as holy and righteous, as Prayer, Preaching, or giving thanks to God, or ſhall maintain, That whatever wickedneſs is acted by them, may be done without ſin, or that ſuch acts are acted by God, or the Majeſty of God, or Eternity that is in them, that Heaven and Happineſs is in the acting of theſe things, or that ſuch men as act them, are moſt like to God or Eternity, which do commit the greateſt ſins with leaſt remorſe, or ſenſe, or that there is no ſuch thing really and truly, as ſin, unrighteouſneſs, or unholineſs, but as a man or woman judgeth thereof, or that there is neither Heaven nor Hell, Salvation or Damnation, or that theſe are one and the ſame thing, &c. For the firſt offence herein, he is to be impriſoned in the Gaol, or Bridewel, three moneths without Bail; for the ſecond offence, to be baniſhed, and if he retorn, to ſuffer as a Felon. Ord 2 May, 1648. 9 Auguſt, 1650. But now we muſt examine, how the puniſhment of men upon theſe, will ſtand with the Articles of the Government, which willeth that men be, not puniſhed for their opinions, that hold the Head-Faith in God by Jeſus Chriſt and do not injury, nor make diſturbance, nor hold forth, nor practiſe Popery, nor Licentiouſneſs: It ſeems then neceſſary here to diſtinguiſh amongſt theſe Opinions; and to make theſe onely puniſhable by theſe Acts and Ordinances, which deny the Godhead in his Eſſence, or Attributes, or Chriſt in his Natures, or Offices; of which ſort, are moſt of the firſt, and laſt rank; and all thoſe that tend to Licentiouſneſs, as all thoſe of the laſt rank. And thoſe

thoſe that are Popiſh, as Freewil, Purgatory, Images, and the like; ſuch as are againſt the Scripture, as that Revelations, and workings of the Spirit, are the Rule of Faith, though againſt the Word of God, and ſuch like. And thoſe that are againſt Magiſtracy and Miniſtry altogether; and ſuch like, which are againſt Peace, and tend to Licentiouſneſs; that theſe onely are to be puniſhed, and that the leſſer, and not dangerous opinions, denying Presbytery, Baptiſing of Infants, and affirming, That men muſt be re-baptiſed, and the like; that theſe are not puniſhable now by theſe Laws. Quere therefore well of this.

As touching the External worſhip of God, by preaching and hearing Gods Word, Prayer to, and praiſing of God, and the Adminiſtration of the Sacraments; theſe things are to be known. 5. The Preaching and Hearing of Gods Word. Prayer to, and praiſing of God, and Adminiſtration of the Sacraments.

1. The Law requireth that theſe things are to be done.

2. That they be ſolemnly, conſtantly, unanimouſly, purely, reverently, and devoutly done, and performed, both by the Miniſter and the people. See 5, 6 Ed. 6. 1. 1 Eliz. 2. 23 Eliz. 1. 13 Eliz. 1. But moſt lively and excellently in the Preamble of the Statute of 5, 6 Ed. 6. 3. 1 Ed. 6. 1. 2, 3 Ed 6. 1.

3. But men are not by Law bound now to, but forbidden the uſe of the Book of Common Prayer, nor are men now bound in the Worſhip of God, to the Superſtitious rights thereby injoyned, and formerly uſed, as the Croſs in Baptiſm, kneeling at the Lords Supper, and bowing at the name of Jeſus; but theſe are ſent after the abominable Maſs, to the place from whence they came. Act, 27 Sept. 1650. Ordinance, 3 Jan. 1644. Ord. 23 Auguſt, 1645. 6. Common Prayer Book.

But the External Form and Order, now by the Law ſet forth, and commended to the Nation for the doing of theſe Services of God, is the Directory; for this by a Law is to be put in execution for publick worſhip in all places. Ordinance, 23 Aug. 1645. 7. Directory.

And as to theſe things, this is here to be known.

1. He that uſeth the Common Prayer-Book in publick or private, forfeits for the firſt offence five pound, for the ſecond offence ten pound, for the third offence impriſonment for a year without Bail.

2. He that doth not uſe the Directory, or by writing, or otherwiſe doth deprave it, ſhall be fined by the Judges at their diſcretion, not under five pound, nor above fifty pound.

This Law ſeems now to be altered by the Government: Art. 36, 37, 38. And that no man now is to be moleſted about Forms of Religion; and that this is the ſenſe of the preſent Authority, appears by the Ordinance for ejecting of Scandalous Miniſters. 29 Aug. 1654.

As touching Religious places, ſuch as are Churches and Chappels, which are greater and leſſer Meeting-places of Pariſhes onely, theſe things are to be known. 8. Churches.

1. That the Law doth not own them, as places capable of Holineſs by any Conſecration, but as convenient places for the meeting of the people, and doth therefore take care for the keeping of them repaired. For which ſee my Book of the Office of Church-wardens, and Act, 9 Feb. 1647.

2. The Law doth take order for keeping of the Congregations there about Gods Worſhip in Peace, without diſturbance; and therefore any diſturbance done there, is very penal. 2, 3 Ed. 6. 1. 1 Eliz. 2. 1 Mary 3. And all fighting, quarrelling, or ſtriking there, or in the Church-yard, is to be ſeverely puniſhed. 5, 6 Edw. 6. chap. 4.

3. For the better ſecuring hereof, the Church-yard is alſo to be defended in peace. 5, 6 Ed. 6. 4. It is therefore Ordered, That if any do maliciouſly ſtrike another, or draw his Weapon of purpoſe to ſtrike another in any Church, or Church-yard, he is to have one of his Ears cut off. 5, 6 Ed. 6. 4. Church-yard.

4. But the Pariſhioners are not now bound as heretofore, to come to their own Aſſemblies, or Pariſh, or to any Pariſh Church to ſerve God; but ſo as they ſerve him, they may joyn themſelves unto what Aſſembly, and in what place they pleaſe. Act, 27 Sept. 1650. Going to Church.

Abbeys, Monaſteries, Chantries.

5. As for other places called heretofore Religious Houſes, ſuch as were Abbeys, Priories, Monaſteries, Chantries, being places of Superſtitious Chanting or Singing, and ſuch like Houſes, they are aboliſhed, and gone, and Conventual Cathedral Churches; for Biſhops, Deans, and ſuch like, are going after them, but it is Pariſh-Churches and Chappels the Law takes care of. See Free Chappel.

9. Religious Perſons, or Clergy.

As touching Religious Perſons, that is Miniſters, and Preachers of the Goſpel; ſometimes called in our Law by the name of Religious Men, ſometimes by the name of Clergy-men, ſometimes Eccleſiaſtical Perſons, ſometimes Spiritual Perſons, ſometimes (but improperly the Church) the Church, and ſometimes Parſons, Curates, and Vicars.

As to theſe and the Law concerning them, in order to the preſervation of Religion; theſe things are to be known.

Sect. 3.

1. That they are to be well qualified for, and orderly called and admitted into the office, and then being called to any People or Pariſh, their duty is to look to, and watch for the Souls of theſe people, to diſpence the Bread of Life by Preaching, to pray for the people, to uſe, and ſhew Charity toward the poor, and Hoſpitality towards all. And that this may be the better done, the Law doth require they ſhould be reſident, and will not allow them to be abſent from their charges, but by ſome ſpecial Diſpenſation: And for this, they are to have the Profits of the Church and Church-hay, the Glebe-land, and the Tithes of all the yearly increaſe within the Pariſh; alſo the Oblations; Obventions, and Mortuaries, uſually paid in the place; and all Encouragements: And that the preſent maintenance by Tithes, be not taken away, nor impeached, until a better proviſion can be made. Government, Art. 35. And in reſpect of their continual attendance upon their ſacred Function, they are freed from all perſonal charges that may hinder them in their Calling; for ſuch ſhall not be choſen, Bailiffs, Beadles, Reeves, or other ſuch like Officers, nor be compelled to come to the Sheriffs Leet; and they may have an Action of Treſpaſs for any Treſpaſs in the Trees, or Graſs of the Glebe, or Church-hay. They may make any Leaſe of their Tithes, or their Glebe, during the time they are Parſons, but they can do no Act to bar their Succeſſors now, unleſs it be within the Statutes of Eccleſiaſtical perſons: For they have not the meer Right of the Land in them, in Right of their Churches, but the Fee-ſimple is in Abeyance; and therefore they cannot diſcontinue, but every Act they do will be avoided, when they ceaſe to be Incumbents, except ſuch as be done by conſent of Patron and Ordinary, which will binde for ever, if none of the Statutes touching Eccleſiaſtical perſons hinder.

But for the particular opening of theſe things, and the ſetting forth the Law herein, as it ſtands at this day, we ſhall ſpeak ſomething to theſe two things.

Firſt, What he is to be, and do.

Secondly, What he is to have and receive.

Qualifications of Miniſters.

For the firſt of theſe. 1. The Law requires that ſuch as enter into the Office of a Preacher of the Goſpel, be duly qualified; that he be unblameable in converſation, ſound in opinion, able to teach; and for this, the Biſhop was carefully to examine him, and by information from others, to ſatisfie himſelf herein: And now there are called Commiſſioners ſpecially appointed to try, examine, and admit ſuch as are preſented to any place.

And as touching them, and this thing, know theſe things.

1. That none can come into any Benefice, or Lecture now, but he muſt paſs through this Examination, and have their Approbation under the Seal of their Office.

Inſtitution and Induction.

2. This being done, it will be as much, and as good, as Inſtitution and Induction.

3. Theſe Commiſſioners before they Approve any, muſt have a Certificate under the hands of three perſons, at leaſt; whereof one a Miniſter of known Godlineſs and Integrity of the holy and good converſation of the Man.

Augmentation.

4. All perſons that will receive any Augmentation, by Parliament Proviſion, muſt be thus approved and allowed. Ord. 20 March, 1653.

2. He ought to be admitted and allowed; he was therefore to be called, approved, and allowed by a Biſhop, or by one of the Univerſities; and without this, no man was to have taken upon him the Office. 13 Eliz. 12. 31 Eliz. 26.

3. And

3. And he that is to come to a Benefice at this day, muſt have ſome kinde of Preſentation to it, ſuch as the time doth yield, if it be from the Lord Protector, or the Keepers of the Great Seal, by the Great Seal, from any other he muſt have a Gift or Collation. Preſentation.

But here by the way for a third thing, it muſt be noted, That the Preſentation or Collation muſt be free, and the Incumbent muſt come in without corruption: And it is therefore provided by the 13 Eliz. 12. That if any ſell any Spiritual Living; as if a Patron take money or other Reward, to preſent his Clerk or a Clergyman to any Parſonage, or Vicarage, or take upon him the Parſon or Vicar, or promiſe for any Reward, to reſign again upon requeſt all ſuch Preſentations, and the Inſtitutions and Inductions thereupon gotten, by this means are void; and the party giving and taking, do each of them forfeit the double value of the Church for one year; and the party that doth give, is hereby made incapable of that Church for ever. 31 Eliz. 6.

Wherein theſe things are further to be known.

1. That if a man give the reward himſelf, he is ſaid to be Simoniacus, but if it be given by another without his Privity, he is ſaid to be Simoniace promotus, and in both caſes it is alike dangerous and penal. Co. on Littl. 120. 10. Simony.

2. A. (the Church being void) Contracts Simoniacally with the Patron to have the Preſentation, and upon this corrupt Agreement he preſents R, a man ignorant of this Agreement; in this caſe he was removed. Calverts caſe in the Exchequer. Brownl. Rep. 2 part, 164.

3. This Law of Simony doth hold as well where the Patron that doth preſent is an uſurper, as otherwiſe; but in this caſe the Rightful Patron, and not the Lord Protector, ſhall have the next Preſentation, but otherwiſe it is where the Rightful Patron doth make ſuch a corrupt Contract. Co. upon Littl. 120. For in this caſe, albeit he that comes in upon this corrupt Contract, be admitted, and die in the Parſonage, yet the Lord Protector hath not loſt his turn, but ſhall preſent; but if he had reſigned, or made Ceſſion, and then another had been preſented, and then the firſt Clerk had died, then the Lord Protector had loſt his Preſentment. Brownl. Rep. 1 part, 164. Sect. 4.

4. But to ſell or buy for ones ſelf, or for ſome other, the next avoidance of a Benefice for Reward, it ſeems is not Simony. M. 8 Jac. B.R. And yet ſee Winchcombs caſe, 14 Jac. C. B. The caſe was A. a Clerk, when the Church was full, agreed with the Patron to give him ninety eight pounds when the Church ſhould become void, the then Incumbent being a very old and ſickly man; and agreed that the Patron ſhould grant the Avoidance to a Friend of the Clerks, who did preſent him; this was held a Simonical Contract. See this in Brownl. Rep. 1 part, 7.

A Contract by one with the Patrons Brother (the Church being then full) that if he could procure three Grants of the next Avoidance to be ſurrendred, and the Patron to preſent him, when it became void, he would make him a Leaſe of Parcel of the Tithes of the Rectory, and he during the life of the Incumbent got the Grants to be ſurrendred, and all the reſt was done, and it was agreed to be void.

5. And in this caſe the Church will be void without Deprivation or Sentence Declaratory. March 84. pl. 139.

6. An Incumbent preſented by Simony, cannot ſue a Pariſhioner for Tithe. March. 84 pl. 139. Co. 3 part, Inſt. 71.

But the Law at this day doth not require, that he ſhould reade and ſubſcribe the Articles of Religion, nor take the Oath of Supremacy, nor obſerve any of the Orders, Forms, or Ceremonies contained in the Book of Common Prayer, or in the Canons, nor that he ſhould be inſtituted, and inducted into a Benefice, when he is to receive it, but it is ſufficient that the ſame be given to, or conferred upon him. And now by the new Ordinance, 20 March. 1653. it is declared, That all thoſe Subſcription and reading of Articles. Oath of Supremacy. Common Prayer.

that come into any Benefice, according to the Rules thereof, ſhall be as fully intitled to the ſame, as if they had been inſtituted, and inducted into it. And by another new Ordinance, 30 Auguſt. 1654. it is provided, That where one was formerly evicted or ſequeſtred, and yet he keeps in the place, and none was put in by the 30 of Auguſt, 1654. The Patron may preſent within four moneths after the 28 of Auguſt, 1654. to the Commiſſioners for Approbation, and they may admit him. And in places of all ſuch Miniſters, as the Commiſſioners of the Counties ſhall eject for Scandal, &c. The Patron muſt preſent within four moneths after the ejectment, to the Commiſſioners for Approbation. And if he that is ejected die, or reſign, theſe Commiſſioners for Approbation, may give the Miniſter Admiſſion; and this is as good as Inſtitution and Induction, in all theſe caſes.

Inſtitution and Induction.

11. Non-Reſidence, what it is.

2. Being in the Office, and a Charge in his Hands, he ought then to be reſident, and abiding amongſt his people, and there to watch over, and look to their Souls, and there to be an example of Piety, Sobriety, Honeſty, Charity, and Hoſpitality to them; and it is forbidden him to be non-reſident. And therefore Plurality (that is) that ſuch a man ſhould have two or more Spiritual Livings, or Promotions, is generally forbidden to ſuch a man; and the conſequence of it, is this, That by the taking of the ſecond, the firſt doth become void, and he loſeth the firſt by Seſſion: And this is againſt the ancient Common Law it ſelf; and it is now forbidden by divers Statutes, except onely in ſome ſpecial caſes, to ſome great mens Chaplains (that is) ſuch Miniſters as depend upon them for the Service of God in their Houſes, where commonly they have a Chappel. But if any ſuch perſon having a Benefice (be it Parſonage or Vicarage) ſhall not be Reſident upon it, but wilfully abſent himſelf by the ſpace of one moneth for a time, or two moneths, at ſeveral times in one year, he loſeth ten pound by the Statute of 21 H 8.13. And no Diſpenſation will ſerve in this caſe: But ſuch perſons as were in the Kings ſervice beyond the Sea, during that time onely, Schollars under forty years old, ſtudying at the Univerſity, that have Office, or do Exerciſe there, and are in the Univerſity, and preſent at their Houſe Exerciſes, and ſuch as did, Exerciſes themſelves, the Chaplains of the King, and divers other great perſons might have been Non-reſident, ſo long as they were attending upon ſuch great men in their Houſes; ſo ſuch as are impriſoned, or ſick, or attending upon, and by order of any Court, are excuſed of their Reſidence. And if there be a Parſonage Houſe, ſome hold that he muſt be Reſident upon it; but if not, he may reſide elſwhere in the place. Co. 4. 79. 118. 9. F. N. B. 34. Articuli Cler. 8, 9. 14 H 8. 17. Co. 6. 21. 28 H. 8. 23. 26 H. 8. 14. 25 H. 8, 16. 33 H. 8. 28.

Plurality, what.

Seſſion, what.

Chaplain, who.

Where a Miniſter may be Non Reſident, and have Plurality of Livings, or not.

If any man that hath a Benefice, with cure of Souls, of the yearly value of eight pound, or above, do accept of, and ſhall be duly put into another Benefice with cure of Souls, and be in poſſeſſion thereof; the firſt ſhall be adjudged void, and the Patron may preſent again, and no Diſpenſation can be in this caſe.

2. He is amongſt his people, to teach nothing but ſound doctrine, and purely to adminiſter the holy Sacraments, he is to take care of the holy Worſhip of God: For this ſee Co. 11. 70. 6. 21. 13 Eliz. 12. 2, 3 Ed. 6. 1. 5, 6 Ed. 6. 6.

3. He is to Preach once on the fifth of November. 3 Jac. 1.

Common Prayer.

Ceremonies.

4. But he is not bound now to, but forbidden the uſe of the Common Prayer-Book; nor is he bound now to any Ceremonies therein, nor any thing enjoyned concerning the ſame, or by the Biſhops Canons, or touching the reading of the Articles of Religion, or the Statute of 5, 6 Ed. 6. to perſwade men to come to their Pariſh Church; for theſe Laws are abrogated. Ordinance, 5 March, 1653. Act, 27 Sept. 1650. Ord. 3 Jan. 1644.

12. Dilapidations.

5. He is to take care to keep up, and maintain in good repair the Houſes, and Buildings ſtanding upon, and belonging to his Benefice. For if there be any Dilapidations (that is) wilful, or negligent ruine, or decay therein, the Executors, or Adminiſtrators of the perſons, in whoſe time the ſame was done or ſuffered, muſt make amends to him that doth ſucceed in the ſame Spiritual Living: And he might have ſued for the ſame in the Spiritual Court. And if the offender in this caſe had made a Deed of Gift, to defeat the Succeſſor of the effect of his Sute, it had been void.

void. 13 Eliz. 10. The Spiritual Court being now gone, we know not what remedy may be had in this caſe, unleſs the Chancery will give relief herein: But by the new Ordinance, 29 Auguſt. 1654.

The Miniſters put into places in the room of others, put out for ſcandal, &c. are to look to the repair of the Houſes, and be forced by Juſtices of the Peace thereto. Alſo the Sequeſtrators, whiles they have it in their hands, muſt repair out of the profits.

He is to take care to diſcharge the firſt-fruits, and tenths, that the charge thereof be not left upon his Succeſſor. 13. Firſt-fruits and Annates, what.

The firſt-fruits are the profits of every Spiritual Living for one year. And this had now been given to the Lord Protector; the ordering of which, is in the Exchequer: For every one that is choſen, appointed, and preſented to any Parſonage, or Vicarage, which doth exceed the value of eight Marks, muſt before he intermeddle with the profits thereof, pay unto or agree, and give ſecurity for to the Lord Protector, or ſuch as he doth appoint to take the ſame, the firſt-fruits of their Spiritual Promotion, under pain to forfeit the double value thereof: And if the Benefice be under eight Marks in value, then he is to give ſecurity to pay the ſame firſt-fruits three years after his Induction thereunto. 27 Hen. 8. 7. 2, 3 Edw. 6. 20. 7 Edw. 6 4. 1 Eliz. 4. 34, 35 H. 8. 17. 26 H. 8. 45. March. 5. 10. 1 Eliz. 4. But it ſeems all this now is ſet apart for the maintenance of the Miniſtery. See Act, 8 June. 1649.

6. So alſo he is to diſcharge the Tenths; the Tenths are a yearly portion of tribute, to the value of the tenth part of all the profits appertaining to a Spiritual Living; and this is now reduced to a certainty and known. And this every Parſon and Vicar muſt have paid before the firſt of April, yearly, to the uſe of the Lord Protector. It was wont to be paid to the Biſhop, and by him into the Exchequer, but now it is paid immediatly into the Exchequer; and by that Court the ſame is forced in. 26 H. 8. 3. 32 H. 8. 45. March. 5. 1 Eliz. 4. But this alſo, it ſeems, is now imployed as the firſt-fruits are. Act, 8 June, 1649. and Ord. 2 September, 1654. 14. Tenths, what.

7. He may not meddle with any Temporal Juriſdiction, or Authority to the Exerciſe, whereof he is diſabled. 16, 17 Car. 17. And he is forbidden the taking of Farms, or taking of Parſonages or Vicarages, and the involving of himſelf in ſecular affairs. See for this, 21 H. 8. 13. Dyer 358.

8. He is forbidden by Law to make a deſtruction upon the Benefice, or to leſſen the Revenue, and therefore he can lay no charge, nor make any Eſtate upon any part of it, for longer time, then his own life, except onely of ſuch Lands as have been uſually let, which he may let for three lives, or one and twenty years. 13 Eliz. 1. 14 Eliz. 11. 18 Eliz. 10. And no Leaſe he can make of ſuch a Benefice with Cure, is good longer then he is ordinarily Reſident, and ſerving the Cure there without abſence, above fourſcore days in one year. 13 Eliz. 20. 18 Eliz. 10. 14 Eliz. 11. And yet he that is allowed to have two Benefices, may let one of them to his Curate that ſhall ſerve that Cure. But that Leaſe will be good onely, ſo long as the Curate ſhall be Reſident there, without forty days abſence in one year. 13 Eliz. 20. 18 Eliz. 10. 4 Eliz. 11.

9. He is as another man to pay his ſhare of Rates to the Poor, Church, and Highways. Rates.

And now for the ſecond thing, what theſe perſons are to have and receive, theſe things are to be known.

They have to their perſons divers privileges above other men: For firſt, ſuch a man cannot be arreſted upon a Statute-merchant, or Staple, and if he be, he may have a Writ called Quod Clericus captus & deliberetur; nor may he be arreſted for any cauſe but Felony, whileſt he is bona fide in the doing of his Office, and about his Divine Function: And if therefore he be taken out of the Pulpit, whileſt he is Preaching or Praying, ſome have ſaid, That for this he may have an Action of Falſe impriſonment, againſt them that do it: But whether it be ſo, or no, this is certain, That for this, the perſons that do it, may be indicted and fined. And for arreſting Quod Clericus captus virtute ſtatuti deliberetur, what.

arresting a Minister in the going to, or coming from Church, about the Service of God, the Bailiffs and those that have any hand in it, may be bound to the Good-behavior. But if the Minister shall keep himself in the Church, of purpose to prevent such Arrests, this privilege will not hold. Regist. Orig. 147. 50 Edw. 3. 5. 1 *R.*2. 15.

2. He is to be freed, and exempt from, and not bound to serve in any office that may disturb, or distract him in his calling: And therefore he is not bound to serve the office of Constable, Tithingman, Bailiff, Beadle, Church-warden, Overseer of the Poor, or the like office. Albeit he hath secular Lands, besides his Spiritual Promotion, and in respect thereof chargable, if he were another man; yet he is exempt for this also. And if any such office be put upon him, he may be relieved by a Writ called Quod Clerici non eligantur in officio, &c. And by this Writ he may be discharged. F.N.B. 177.

Quod Clerici non eligantur in officio, what.

3. He is not bound to appear, or do service in a Leet, or Law-day, as other men are, *Marlb cap.*10. And to discharge them if they were, they had a Writ to relieve them *F.N.B.*160.

4. They ought not in person to serve in the Wars; also they ought to be quit, and discharged of Tolls, and Customs, Average, Pontage, Paviage, and the like, for their Ecclesiastical Goods: And if they had been molested therefore, they might have had Remedy by a Writ, provided for the purpose. But this and many others, are gone and lost. Co. 2 part, Inst 4. 121.

Sect. 6.

5. And as they have privileges for their persons, so for their possessions of Lands and Goods; therefore it is provided, That no Distress be taken in the Ancient Fees, or Lands belonging to the Church; as in the Glebe of a Parson, or the like, that their Goods be not distrained for a fifteenth, due from the whole Parish, if they be, he may be relieved by a Writ called Quod personæ nec Prebendarii distringantur, &c. That neither themselves, nor their Farmers, or Tenants, were to be forced by Purveyors for the Kings use. See for this 9 *Ed.*2. 9. F. N. B. 173, 176. Crompt. Jur. 38.

Quod personæ nec Prebendarii distringantur, &c. what.

6. They are to have a competency of maintenance: And for this, the Law gives them these things.

First, They are to have the Houses belonging to the Minister, the Glebe, the Tithes, the Profits of the Churchyard, the Oblations, Obventions, and Mortuaries thereunto belonging: But for all this see my Book of Tithes, and the Profits sequestred and received, during the Vacation, are to be paid unto the Parson succeeding, save onely the charge of taking in, &c. And for serving the Cure in that time 21 *H.*8.11.

Emblements; Will.

Secondly, They are to have the Corn growing upon the Glebe when they die, and may by their Will give it to whom they will. Idem.

Leases.

Thirdly, They may make any Lease of, or charge upon their Benefice, for their own lives, and Leases for three lives, and one and twenty years of the Land that hath been usually so let. 13 *Eliz.*10.

15. Augmentations.

Fourthly, There are now divers Additional helps for their maintenance by way of Augmentation.

As touching which, these things are to be known.

1. There is a great Revenue given, to be imployed to this purpose, and Commissioners specially appointed to take and receive accompt thereof, and to look to the improvement thereof. See the Acts and Ordinances, 8 June, 1649. 5 April, 1650. 2 Sept. 1654.

2. These Laws judg an hundred pound a year competent for Ministers, save onely in Towns, and Cities.

3. These Commissioners are to overlook all the Augmentations, and by, and with the Approbation of the Lord Protector, and his Council, they may make, adde to, and take from what they please.

16. Union and Division of Parishes and Churches.

4. For their help of maintenance, they may divide or unite Churches.

As touching which, take these things.

1. The Commissioners may procure from the Chancery, the Retorn of all the former former Commiſſions executed, and have new Commiſſions where they pleaſe, for the diſcovery of the value of Parſonages and Vicarages, with, or without Cure of Souls, the Incumbents, Scituation of the Churches, &c.

2. When they are informed of the caſe, by and with the Approbation of the Lord Protector and his Council, out of Parliament time, they may unite two, or more Churches together; and all the profits thereof, if one of them be not maintained at the charge of the Pariſhioners, and appoint which Church ſhall be the Meeting-place, and then they muſt be taxed altogether to repair, but other taxes ſhall go as before; have their Church-wardens as formerly, the Patrons ſhall preſent by turn, as the Commiſſioners ſhall ſet down.

3. In this caſe, where they ſee good, they may pull down one of the Churches, and keep the materials for publick uſe.

4. They may alſo, by and with the Approbation aforeſaid, ſever and divide Pariſhes, and fix the maintenance out of the profits of the Church where they think fit. See the Ordinances at large for theſe things.

5. And now in the laſt place, if being in this office he be found inſufficient, or ill-affected, or be ſcandalous there for his life or doctrine, he is to be ejected by the Ordinance, 29 Aug. 1654. 16. Scandalous and ill affected Miniſters and School-Maſters.

And for this, theſe things are to be known.

1. There are Commiſſioners of every County to put in execution this Ordinance.

2. Any five of theſe Commiſſioners may Convent before them, any ſcandalous, ignorant, negligent, inſufficient, and diſaffected Miniſter, Preacher, School-maſter, and examine witneſſes againſt, and put him out of his place, if they finde him guilty of matter of ſcandal, or ill-affection to the Government, in any of the particulars here mentioned.

3. The things for which he is to be put out, are;

Firſt, If he hath been formerly ejected or ſequeſtred, and yet keeps in his place.

Secondly, If he hath held and maintained any of the blaſphemous Opinions of the third and laſt rank before-named, at Sect. 1. Or have held, taught, and maintained the Popes Supremacy, Tranſubſtantiation, Purgatory, Worſhipping of Images, That the conſecrated Hoſt, Crucifixes, or Images, are to be worſhipped; that Salvation may be merited by Works, or be found guilty of profane Swearing or Curſing, Perjury or Subornation of Perjury, Adultery, Fornication, Drunkenneſs, common haunting of Taverns or Ale-houſes, frequent Quarrelling or Fighting, frequenting playing at Cards or Dice, profaning of the Sabbath-day, or allow the ſame in their Families, or countenance it in their Pariſhes, or Schollars, or have publickly and frequently read, and uſed the Book of Common Prayer, ſince 1 Jan. 1653. Or have been publickly profane Scoffers at, or Revilers of the ſtrict Profeſſion, and Profeſſors of Religion, or Godlineſs, or do encourage or countenance by word, or practiſe Whitſon-Ales, Wakes, Morrice-Dances, May-poles, Stage-plays, or ſuch like Licentious practiſes, or have by Writing, Preaching, or otherwiſe declared their diſaffection to the preſent Government, or are negligent, non-reſident, and careleſs of Praying, Preaching, &c. or of their Schollars, if they are School-maſters, having no good excuſe for it.

Thirdly, If he be put out for inſufficiency, it muſt be with conſent, declared of five Miniſters alſo.

Fourthly, Where they put out a School-maſter, they may put in another, as long as he lives, as oft as the place ſhall be void.

Fifthly, They may ſequeſter the Profits of the Livings, out of which they put out any Miniſter in the hands of ſome of the Pariſh, to provide for the place, repair the houſes, and to keep for the next Incumbent.

Sixthly, If the party put out, be gone, they may allow his Wife and Children a fifth part, and force payment thereof by Sequeſtration.

Seventhly, None may keep School in the place where he was put out, under pain of ten ſhillings a day. See the Ordinance of the ſecond of September, 1654. at large.

And

And now, as touching all the reſt of the rabble of the Men, and Orders formerly called Religious, of the Regular and Secular Clergy, ſuch as were the Abbots, Priors, Monks, Fryers, Canons, Nuns, Arch-Biſhops, Biſhops, Deans, Arch-Deacons, Prebends, and the like: Theſe are aboliſhed, and gone, and not owned by our Law at this day. Ord. 9 Octob. 1646.

We are ſilent therefore about Metropolitans, Biſhops, Suffragans, and ſay nothing of Conge de Eſlier, Conſecration, Regio Aſſenſu, and ſuch like aboliſhed things. See Name.

Convocation-houſe.

The Convocation-houſe was the Houſe wherein the whole Clergy did aſſemble to conſult of Matters Eccleſiaſtical, in time of Parliament: It did conſiſt of two Houſes, an upper houſe, where the Arch-Biſhops and Biſhops alone did ſit, and a lower houſe, where all the reſt of the Clergy did ſit: And the lower houſe was made of Clergy men, choſen for Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, and for the Common Clergy of every Dioceſs, which were called Proctors of the Clergy, like to the Members of the Houſe of Commons: And in both theſe Houſes they had one they called a Prolocutor, like to the Speaker in the Parliament But theſe things are now gone, and aboliſhed; and yet it ſeems the Provincial or Sinodial Canons and Conſtitutions formerly made by the Clergy, in the Convocation-houſe, or in their other Convocations, that are not contrary to the Royal Prerogative, or the Laws and Cuſtoms of the Realm, are ſtill in force, if there were any way to put them in execution, as there is not; for the Biſhops and their Courts are gone, and therefore the Canons can be of no force at this day. 25 Hen. 8. 19. 27 Hen. 8. 15. 3 Edw. 6. cap. 17.

CHAP.

CHAP. CXLVII:

Of Shoo-makers, Tanners, Curriers, and Skinners.

Sect. 1. Shoo-makers, Tanners, Curriers.

NO man may uſe the Trade of Tanner, the ſame time, and ſo long as he doth uſe the Trade of a Butcher, under pain to forfeit ſix ſhillings and eight pence, for every day he ſhall uſe both theſe occupations together. 1 Jac. 22.

None may uſe the Trade of Tanning of Leather, or make gain thereby, but ſuch as have been brought up as Apprentices, or hired ſervants in the Trade ſeven years, except the Wife and Sons of a Tanner, as hath been brought up and uſed in the Trade four years; or the ſon or daughter of a Tanner, or him that ſhall marry ſuch a Wife, or daughter, to whom a Tan-houſe and Fats are left, upon pain to forfeit all the Leather that ſuch a perſon ſhall Tan. Idem.

No perſon ſhall uſe the Trade of Tanning of Leather, ſo long as he doth uſe the Trade of a Shoo-maker, Currier, Butcher, or any other Artificer, uſing, cutting, or working of Leather, under pain to looſe all the Hides, or Skins, they ſhall work, during that time. Nor the Myſtery of Currier, ſo long as he ſhall uſe the Trade of a Tanner, Cord-wayner, Shoo-maker, Butcher, or other Artificer, that uſeth cutting of Leather, under pain of ſix ſhillings and eight pence for every Skin or Hide, he ſhall curry, during that time.

No perſons may buy or beſpeak any rough Hide, or Calves Skin in the Hair, to Tan the ſame; but Tanners and ſuch as do Tan the ſame, under pain to forfeit them, or the value thereof.

Foreſtalling.

No Tanner or other may foreſtal any Hides, coming towards any Fair or Market, nor ſhall buy any Hide in any place, but in an open Fair or Market, unleſs it be of one that killed the Beaſt, for the proviſion of his own houſe, under pain of ſix ſhillings and eight pence, for every Hide ſo bought.

None may buy or ſell any Tanned Leather, not wrought and converted into made Wares, but onely ſuch as will work and convert the ſame Leather into made Wares, under pain of forfeiture of the Leather.

All Artificers that do uſe to convert Tanned Leather into made Wares, may buy for that purpoſe all kinde of Tanned Leather at Leaden-hall, in London, every Monday, the ſame being daily ſearched and ſealed.

Sadlers, Girdlers.

Sadlers and Girdlers may ſell their Necks and Shreds of Tanned Leather red.

No perſon uſing the Trade of Tanning of Leather, ſhall ſuffer any Hide or Skin to lie in the Limes, till the ſame be over-limed: Nor ſhall put any Hides or Skins into any Tan-Fats, before the Lime be well and perfitly ſokened and wrought out of them: Nor ſhall uſe any thing, or ſtuff in or about the workmanſhip or Tanning of Leather, but onely Aſh-bark, Oak-bark, Tapwort, Mault, Meal, Lime, Culver-dung, or Hen-dung: Nor ſhall ſuffer it to hang wet in the Froſt, till it be frozen: Nor ſhall dry or parch the ſame with the heat of the fire, or the Summer Sun: Nor ſhall Tan any Hide that is rotten by long lying: Nor ſhall ſuffer the Hides for Sole-Leather to lie in the Woozes leſs time then nine moneths: Nor ſhall negligently work the Hides in the Woozes: Nor ſhall put to ſale any Hide that ſhall not be wrought, as aforeſaid, under pain to forfeit the juſt value thereof.

No Tanner muſt raiſe with any mixtures, any Hide to be imployed, to back, bend Leather, Clouting Leather, or any other Sole-Leather, unleſs the ſame be for largeneſs and growth, fit for that uſe, upon pain of forfeiture thereof.

No perſon may ſell any kinde of Tanned Leather red, and unwrought, but in open Fair or Markets, in the places therefore commonly accuſtomed, unleſs the ſame were firſt lawfully ſearched, and ſealed in ſome open Fair or Market, or place appointed pointed for that purpoſe; nor ſhall offer any Tanned Leather red, and unwrought before the ſame be ſearched and ſealed, under pain to forfeit for the ſame for every Hide ſix ſhillings and eight pence, and for every dozen of Calves skins, or Sheeps skins, three ſhillings and four pence, and the ſame Hides.

If any man offer to put to ſale his Leather before it be ſufficiently Tanned, and dried, he ſhall loſe ſo much of the ſame Leather, and of every Hide, as ſhall be ſo untanned or undried, to be judged and cut off from the reſt, by the direction and diſcretion of the Triers.

Tanners. Tanners muſt not ſet their Fats in Tan hills or other places where the Woozes, or Leather that ſhall be put to Tan in the ſame, may take any unkinde heats, or may put any Leather into any hot or warm Woozes, or ſhall Tan any Hide, Calve-skin, or Sheep-skin, with any hot or warm Woozes, under pain to forfeit ten pound, and ſtand on the Pillory three Market days for every offence.

Curriers. No perſon in any Market or Corporate Town, ſhall curry any Leather in any Shoo-makers or other houſe, beſides his own; nor ſhall curry any Leather, except it be well and perfectly Tanned; nor curry any Hide or Skin, being not well dried after his wet ſeaſon; in which wet ſeaſon he ſhall not uſe any ſtale Urine, or other deceitful mixture to hurt the ſame; nor ſhall curry any Leather fit for utter Sole-Leather, with any other ſtuff, but hard Tallow, and with enough of that; nor ſhall curry any Leather meet for over Leather and inner Soles, but with good ſtuff, freſh, and not ſalt; nor ſhall burn or ſcald any Hide or Leather in the currying; nor ſhave any Leather to thin; nor ſhall gaſh or hurt any Leather in the ſhaving, or otherwiſe, but ſhall work it ſufficiently in all points, under pain to forfeit for every offence, (unleſs it be in gaſhing or hurting by ſhaving) ſix ſhillings and eight pence; and for ſuch offence double ſo much as the Hide or Skin is impaired thereby.

Shoo-maker. No Shoo-maker or other, living in London, or within three miles of it, that doth uſe wet curried Leather, ſhall put it to be curried to any but to one that is free of the Company of Curriers in London, under pain to forfeit the Leather, or value thereof. And no perſon within that circuit, may uſe any Leather in made Wares, but ſuch as have been ſearched and ſealed by the Warden of the ſame Company, under pain to forfeit for every Hide or Skin ſix ſhillings and eight pence, beſides the Leather it ſelf.

Currier. No Currier muſt refuſe to curry any Leather brought to him by any one that is a cutter of Leather, with ſufficient ſtuff to liquor the ſame, but ſhall well and ſufficiently diſpatch the ſame within three days, at the moſt, under pain to forfeit ten ſhillings for every Hide or peece of Leather, not ſo done.

The Wardens of the Company muſt ſearch all the Leather brought to any of the Company to be curried, and after it is curried well, within one day ſeal it.

Shoo-maker. No Cordwainer or Shoo-maker, ſhall make any Boots, Shooes, Buskins, Startups, Slippers, or Pantofles, of Engliſh Leather wet curried (other then Deer-skins, Calves-skins, or Goat-skins, dreſſed like unto Spaniſh Leather) but of Leather, well and truly tanned and curried as before, or well tanned onely, and well and ſubſtantially ſewed with good thred, well twiſted and made, and waxed with Wax well Rozoned, and the ſtitches hard drawn with Hand-Leathers, without mixing the Over-Leathers; nor ſhall put into any of their Ware they make, any Leather made of a Sheep-skin, Bull-hide, or Horſe-hide; nor into the upper Leather of any Shooes, Startups, Slippers, or Pantofles, or into the nether part of any Boots (unleſs it be in the inner part of the Shoo) any part of any Hide, from which the Sole-Leather is cut, called the Wombs, Necks, Shank, Flank, Pole or Cheek; nor ſhall put in the upper Sole any other Leather, then the beſt of the Ox or Steer-hide; nor into the inner Sole, any other Leather then the Wombs, Neck, Pole, or Cheek; nor in the Treſſwels of the double ſoled Shooes, other then the Flanks of the Hides aforeſaid; nor ſhall make or put to ſale in any year, between the laſt of September, and the twentieth of April, any Ware to be worn above four years of age, wherein is any dry Engliſh Leather (other then Calves-skins, or Goat-skins) to be dreſſed like unto Spaniſh Leather, under pain to forfeit for every offence the ſaid Wares, or the value thereof.

Searchers. The Maſters and Wardens of the Company of Shoo-makers, Curriers, &c. in London, muſt ſearch all the Wares in London, and three miles about four times in every year, year, in the houſes of all ſuch kinde of Artificers, and thoſe they finde inſufficient, they may ſeize and take away: And the Major and Aldermen of London, muſt every year appoint honeſt Freemen of the ſame Company to be Sealers of Leathers, who muſt ſeal what upon ſearch they finde to be ſufficient; but Sheep skins are not to be ſealed. Alſo Majors, Bailiffs, and other Head-officers in all Cities, Boroughs, and Market Towns, and Lords of Liberties, Fairs and Markets, out of the Circuit of London, and three miles about it, yearly appoint and ſwear two or more ſufficient men of the place, to view, ſearch, and ſeal with a ſeal for the purpoſe, the Leather of that place, under pain of forty pound: And they muſt view and ſeal what they finde ſufficient; and if they finde any Leather bought or ſold, which ſhall be otherwiſe tanned, or curried, then is before appointed; or any Ware otherwiſe made, then is before preſcribed, they may ſeiſe and keep the ſame, until it be tried by the Triers. Sealers.

In London, the Major after any Leather or Wares ſeiſed, and notice given to him, muſt appoint ſix Triers, who upon their Oath, muſt try whether the Leather or Ware is ſerviceable, or not. And in other places, ſuch as appoint ſealers, ſhall preſently after notice to them given of any Leather or Wares ſealed, appoint and ſwear ſix Triers, to try the Leather or Wares ſeiſed, whether they be ſerviceable or not; and if not, they be to forfeit five pound. All red tanned Leather (except Sheep skin Leather) to be ſold in London, muſt firſt be brought into Leaden-hall, and ſearched, ſealed and regiſtred, before it be brought into houſe: And none muſt be ſold within London, or three miles, before this be done: And no ſuch Wares muſt be ſold there, but in open Shop, common Fair or Market. All Juſtices of Gaol-delivery of the Peace, Majors, &c. Stewards of Leets, may hear and determine all thoſe offences. Triers.

No tanned Leather ſhall be ſold by weight, under pain of forfeiture of it. See 1 Jac. 22. 4 Jac. 6. As for the Statutes of 5, 6 Ed. 6. 15. concerning the ingroſſing and tranſporting of Leather, and ſome other things therein named, we conceive the ſame to be repealed by 1 Jac. 22. 4 Jac. 6. and therefore not abridged.

Of a Statute.

1. Statute, what.

A Statute is a Bond or Obligation of Record: But this word is ſometimes uſed in another ſenſe, viz. For a Decree made in Parliament called an Act of Parliament. Terms Ley. Stat. de Mercatoribus. Acton Burnel. 11 Ed. 1.

2. The kindes. Statute Merchant, what.

And of theſe Obligations, there are three kindes: Firſt, A Statute Merchant; ſecondly, A Statute Staple; thirdly, A Recogniſance. The Statute Merchant is a Bond acknowledged before one of the Clerks of the Statute Merchant and Major, and chief Warden of the City of London, or two Merchants of the ſaid City, for that purpoſed aſſigned, or before the Major, chief Warden or Maſter of other Cities, as York, Briſtow, or the like; or the Bailiff of any Burrough or Village, or other ſufficient men for that purpoſe, appointed and authoriſed, ſealed with the ſeal of the Debtor or Recogniſor, and of the King, which is of two peeces; the greater whereof is kept by the Major or chief Warden, and the leſſer by the ſaid Clerk. And this albeit at firſt it was ordained and uſed for Merchants onely, yet at this day, it is and may be uſed and given by any others, and is become one of the Common Aſſurances of the Kingdom.

Statute Staple, what.

The Staple, doth ſignifie this or that Town or City, whether the Merchants by common Order and Commandment, do carry their Commodities, as Wool, and the like, to utter by the great. And the Statute Staple is either properly or improperly ſo called: That which is properly ſo called, is defined to be a Bond of Record, acknowledged before the Major of the Staple, in the preſence of one or two Conſtables of the ſame Staple, and is ſealed with the Seal of the Staple, and ſometimes alſo with the Seal of the party, the which it ſeems is not neceſſary. And this is founded upon the 27 Ed. 3. 9. and was invented, and is uſed onely for Merchants and Merchandiſes of the ſame Staple; this is of the ſame nature the Statute Merchant is.

Recogniſance, what.

That which is improperly ſo called, is alſo called a Recogniſance, which is alſo a Bond of Record, teſtifying, That the Recogniſor doth ow to the Recogniſee a ſum of money: And of theſe there are divers kindes; for there is one Recogniſance founded upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. 6. And this is always to be acknowledged before the Chief Juſtice of the Kings Bench, or of the Common Pleas, in the Term time, or in their abſence out of Term, before the Major of the Staple at Weſtminſter, and the Recorder of the City of London, for the time being. And it is to be ſealed with the Seal of the Conuſor, and with the Seal of the King, appointed for that purpoſe, and with the Seal of the Chief Juſtice, Major, and Recorder, before whom it is acknowledged; and they before whom it is taken, do ſubſcribe their names to it: And this was ordained, and may be, and is uſed by Merchants, or any other whomſoever for payment of debts, or aſſurance of other things; and this alſo is of the ſame nature the Statute Merchant is: And both this, and the two former, are much of the nature of Judgments had upon Sutes in the Courts of Kings Bench and Common Pleas, and therefore they are called Pocket Judgments. 27 Ed. 3. Stat. 2. cap. 1, 2, 3. 27 Ed 3. 9. 22 H 8. 6. Co. ſuper Littl. 289. 15 H. 7. 16. Co. 8. 153.

There

There are alſo divers other kindes of Recogniſances, that are taken by and acknowledged before the Lord Keeper, Maſter of the Wards, Maſter of the Rolls, Maſter of the Chancery, Juſtices of the one Bench, or of the other, (ſome of which are called Bails) Barons of the Exchequer, Judges in their Circuits, Juſtices of the Peace, Sheriffs, and others; ſome whereof are by the Common Law, and ſome by certain Statutes. And amongſt theſe, ſome are without Seal, and recorded onely, and ſome are ſealed and recorded alſo; and ſome of them are in a ſum certain, as the Recogniſances taken in the Common Pleas for Bail are, and ſome of them are incertain, as thoſe Recogniſances that are taken for Bail in the Kings Bench, which are after this manner, Si judicium redditum, &c. tunc volo & concedo, That the debt recovered againſt the Defendant, ſhall be levied of my Goods and Chattels, &c. And theſe alſo are much of the nature of the former kinde of Recogniſances; and all Obligations made to the King, are of the ſame nature, and have the force of a Recogniſance. Prerogative.

Statutes and Recogniſances are ſometimes ſingle, without any Defeaſance, and ſometimes they are double, i.e. with a Defeaſance or Condition, upon the performance whereof, the ſame are to be avoided.

The Debtor, or he that doth enter into the Statute or Recogniſance, is called the Recogniſor or Conuſor, and the Debtee, or he to whom it is made, is called the Recogniſee or Conuſee.

Conuſor, Conuſee.

To make a good Statute or Obligation of Record, the form preſcribed muſt be purſued.

3. What ſhall be ſaid a good Statute or Recogniſance, and what not.

1. In reſpect of the perſons before whom; and therefore, the Statute Merchant or Staple, or the Recogniſance founded upon the Statute of 23 H 8. may not be acknowledged before any others, beſides the perſons appointed by the Statutes: Neither may any other Recogniſance be acknowledged before any, but ſuch as either have power Ex Officio, and by their Offices to take them, or have ſpecial Commiſſion ſo to do; and therefore a Recogniſance taken by a Conſtable, is void. If a Recogniſance be made to the Lord Keeper, and two others, and it be acknowledged before himſelf, this is void as to him. Dyer 35. Littl. Broo. ſect. 484. 511. F. N. B. 267 a. Dyer 220.

Firſt, In reſpect of the perſons before whom it is acknowledged.

2. In reſpect of the manner of making and acknowledging of it; and therefore if the ſubſtantial form, appointed by the Statutes, be not obſerved, it will be void. If therefore a Statute Merchant be not ſealed with the Seal of the Debtor, and there be not a Seal of two peeces annexed to it, this is no good Statute, neither can it take effect as a Statute; howbeit in this caſe, if it be delivered by the party, it may take effect as an Obligation: But if the variance from the Statutes, be onely in ſome circumſtance, this will not hurt a Statute or a Recogniſance. And therefore it is held, That albeit there be no time ſet for the payment of the money in the Statute, yet the Statute is good, for then it is due preſently. And albeit the Statute be written with anothers hand, and not with the hand of the Clerk of the Statutes, or the like; yet is the Statute good enough. And if a Statute Staple be not ſealed with the Seal of the party that doth acknowledge it, yet it ſeems it is good enough, for the Statute doth not require it; but a Recogniſance within the Statute of 23 *Hen.*8. cannot be good, except the Seal of the party be to it, for ſo are the words of the Statute. Hollingſworth verſus Aſcugh. Paſche, 35 Eliz. Co. B. Adjudg. Perk 3. Juſtices. Co. B. Trin. 22 Jac.

Secondly, In reſpect of the manner of making it.

Obligation.

If a Recogniſance or a Statute be to pay money at ſeveral days, it is good enough, and if the Conuſor fail one day, Execution may be ſued of the whole Statute. Co. 8. 153.

Every Statute Staple or Merchant, not brought to the Clerk of the Recogniſances within four moneths next after the acknowledging, to enter a true Copy thereof, ſhall be void, againſt all perſons, their Heirs, Succeſſors, Executors, Adminiſtrators and Aſſigns onely, which for good conſideration ſhall after the acknowledging of the ſame Statute, purchaſe the Land, or any part liable thereunto, or any Rent, Leaſe, or profit out of it. 27 Eliz. 4.

4 All the Proceedings upon a Statute or Recognisance, and the manner and order of Execution thereupon.

The proceedings upon a Statute or Recognisance, to have the Fruit and effect thereof, is not like to the proceedings in other cases of Sutes upon Obligations, and the like, to reduce them to Judgment, but as they are in their own nature much like to the nature of a Judgment, so is the Proceeding and Execution thereupon, much like to the Proceeding and Execution upon a Judgment; And therefore the Conusee may, if he please, bring an Action of Debt upon a Statute, and wave all other Proceeding, or otherwise, if he like not this course, he [or if he be dead, his Executor or Administrator, and if his Executor be dead, the Executor of his Executor] may assoon as the same is forfeit, have present Execution of it after this manner: He must bring his Statute to the Major and Clerk, or other Officer, before whom it was acknowledged, and there if they finde the Record of it, and the day to be past for the payment of the money, they are to apprehend and imprison the body of the Conusor, if he be a Lay person, and can be found within their jurisdiction; and if he cannot be found there, they are to certifie the Record into the Chancery, which also if they refuse to do, they may be compelled unto by a Certiorare: And if that Certificate be faulty, or Execution be not done upon it, by reason of the death of the Conusee, or otherwise, the Conusee or his Executor or Administrator, may have another Certificate: And thereupon, in case of the Statute Merchant, he shall have a Writ of Capias out of the Chancery, directed to the Sheriff of the County where the Conusor lives, to apprehend and imprison him (if he be not a Clergiman) and this is to be retorned in the Common Pleas, or Kings Bench. And when the Conusor is taken, he shall have time for a quarter of a year to make his agreement with the Conusee, and to sell his Lands or Goods to satisfie the Conusee: And for that purpose, he may sell his Lands or Goods, albeit he be in prison, and his sale is good and lawful: And if in that time, he do not satisfie the Conusee, or if upon the Capias, the Sheriff retorn a Non est inventus, then by another Writ [or by divers Writs, if the Lands or Goods lie in divers Counties] called an Extendi facias. And in the case of a Statute Staple, presently after the Certificate into the Chancery, the Conusee shall have a Writ to take his body, and extend his Lands and Goods retornable in Chancery; and this Writ is a Commission directed to the Sheriff of the County, where the Lands and Goods lie for the valuing of the same, whereby all the Lands, Goods, and Chattels of the Conusor shall be appriſed and valued at a reasonable rate by a Jury of sworn men, charged by the Sheriff for that purpose; which Inquisition so taken, is to be retorned by the Sheriff; and thereupon the Lands, Goods, and Chattels are to be taken into the Sheriffs hands, and by him to be delivered to the Conusee (which the Sheriff may do if he will, without any Writ) to hold unto the Conusee, until he be satisfied his debt and damages. And if the Sheriff refuse so to do, the Conusee shall have a Writ out of the Chancery, called a Liberate, to compel him to deliver to the Conusee the Lands, Goods, and Chattels, so found by Inquisition, and taken into his hands upon the Extent, which the Sheriff need not to retorn. [Fitz. Accompt 97. Execution in toto. Broo. Statute in toto. Stat. Acton Burnel de Mercatoribus. 27 Ed. 3. 9. *F. N. But if the Conusee accept of the Lands and Goods from the Sheriff, or suffer the Term to pass, wherein the Writ is retornable, he is too late, and hath no Remedy at all. And if the Appraisors do undervalue the Lands or Goods, in favor to the Debtee, it seems the Conusor hath no Remedy at all, for he may at any time pay all or the residue of the debt and damages unlevied, and have his Land again if he please. And in case caſe where the Inquiſition or Extent taken and made, is inſufficient, as if part of the Land onely be extended in the name of all the Lands, or it is found the Conuſor died ſeiſed of Land, and it is not ſaid of what eſtate, or the like, the Conuſee ſhall have a new Extent, and this is called a Re-extent; and this he may have, albeit the Lands or Goods be delivered to the Conuſee by a Liberate, if the Conuſee have not entred upon, and accepted it, but if he once accept it, he can never after have a Re-extent. Re-extent.

And when the Conuſee is in poſſeſſion of Lands by ſuch an Extent as before, then is he Tenant by Statute; and after the Conuſee is once ſetled in peace in the Lands extended, he ſhall hold it until he be ſatisfied his debt, and his reaſonable coſts and damages for travel, ſute, delay, and expence. But it ſeems the time ſhall not run out, nor be ſaid to begin until the Entry of the Conuſee into the Land; for if the Land be extended, and remain ſeven years without a Liberate made, yet he may have a Liberate at the end of the ſeven years: And aſſoon as the Conuſee ſhall be ſatisfied his debt and damage by the Goods and Chattels of the Conuſor, and by the ordinary and certain, or extraordinary and caſual profits of the Land, the Conuſor ſhall have his Land again: And for that purpoſe, if the Conuſee refuſe to give him an account, and to yield up his Land to him the Conuſor, howbeit he may not enter, yet may compel the Conuſee thereunto by a Writ called a Venire facias ad computandum, in the nature of a Scire facias, by which the Conuſor ſhall call the Conuſee, his Executors or Adminiſtrators to account; and if upon the account, it ſhall appear he is ſatisfied, the Conuſor ſhall have his Land again; and if it appear he is over-ſatisfied, he ſhall anſwer the overplus to the Conuſor. But the Conuſor may not enter upon the Conuſee until he hath brought this Writ, and made it thereupon to appear that the Conuſee is ſatisfied: And if in caſe the Conuſee be dead, his Executor or Adminiſtrator, may have Execution of the Statute, without any Scire facias upon the ſhewing of the Statute, and the Teſtament in Chancery: And if the Sheriff retorn that the Conuſor is dead, the Execution ſhall be made of his Lands onely in the hands of his Heir, or the Purchaſor; but if the Heir be under age, the Execution cannot be done until he be of full age: And if the Conuſor die in priſon, the Execution ſhall be of his Lands, Goods, and Chattels; and if the Gaolor that hath him in priſon ſuffer him to eſcape, he muſt anſwer the debt: And if it fall out that the Conuſee, his Executors or Adminiſtrator be ouſted, or diſturbed of his Execution by the Conuſor himſelf, or any other during the time of the Extent, he may relieve himſelf againſt the diſturber by Aſſiſe, or other Action, as another in the like caſe may do: And if he be rightfully ouſted or diſturbed by one that hath better right, as by one that hath a former Statute, or the like, or by the Act of God, as by Fire, Water, or the like; in theſe caſes the Conuſee ſhall hold the Land over after the time of his Extent, until he be ſatisfied. But when it is through his own neglect onely, that he is unſatisfied, as where the Lands are delivered to him by the Liberate, and he after his Entry into them, make a Conditional Surrender of them: As if Lands of the value of ten pound by the year, be delivered to him in Execution for forty pound, and he within four years make a Conditional Surrender of them to the Conuſor, and after he enter for the Condition broken; in this caſe he ſhall not hold the Land over the four years, for he muſt take the profits upon his Extent preſently. The proceeding in Execution of the Statute Staple, and the Recogniſance founded upon the Statute of the 23 of Henry the Eight, is after the ſame manner throughout, as the proceeding in Execution of the Statute Marchant is, with theſe differences onely. (Adjudge Butler verſus Wallis, Paſche, 38 Eliz. B R.) That upon the Execution of the Statute Marchant, there doth iſſue forth a Capias againſt the body, before any Execution be to be made of the Lands, or Goods, and Chattels, and the Lands and Goods cannot be extended until a quarter of a year be paſt after the body is taken, or the Sheriff have retorned a Non eſt inventus; but upon the Execution of the Statute Staple, and the Recogniſance, the Body, Goods, and Lands, may be taken together at the firſt; this therefore is a more ſpeedy Remedy then the former. Alſo upon a Statute Marchant, one may have an Action of Debt, but otherwiſe upon a Statute Staple, and the Capias upon the Statute Merchant may be retornable in the Kings Bench, or Common Pleas, but the

The proceeding upon the other ſort of Recogniſances, are after another manner; for upon Recogniſances at the Common Law, if the money be not paid at the day, the Conuſee his Executor or Adminiſtrator, is to bring a Scire Facias againſt the Conuſor, or if he be dead, againſt his Heirs when they be of full age; or if the Lands the Conuſor had at the time of entring into the Recogniſance, be ſold againſt the Purchaſers of theſe Lands, which the Conuſor had at any time after the Recogniſance entred into, to warn them to come into that Court whence the Scire facias cometh, and to ſhew cauſe why Execution ſhould not be done upon the ſaid Recogniſance: And if the party or parties cannot be found to be warned, or being warned, do not appear at the time, or appearing, ſhew no cauſe why the debt ſhould not be levied, then the Conuſee ſhall have Execution of a Moyety of his Lands by Elegit; or if the Conuſor be living, of all his Goods by Levari or Fieri facias at his Election, but he cannot have Execution of his body, unleſs he bring an Action of Debt upon the Recogniſance, or it be by courſe of the Court, as it is in the Kings Bench upon a Bail, in which caſe a Capias doth lie. Dyer 360. 315. Weſt. 2. 18. *Broo. 5. What things are ſubject and liable to Execution upon a Statute or Recogniſance; and when, and how, and what not.

When a man doth enter into a Statute or Recogniſance, the Land of the Conuſor is not the Debtor, but the body; and the Land is liable onely in reſpect that it was in the hands of the Conuſor, at the time of acknowledging of the Statute, or after; and the Land is not charged with the Debt, but chargably onely at the Election of the Conuſee; but the perſon is charged, and the Land is chargable in reſpect of the perſon, and not the perſon in reſpect of the Land. And therefore albeit the Conuſor alien his Land to another, yet he remains Debtor ſtill, and his body and his Goods ſhall be taken in Execution; and yet when Execution is ſued upon the Land, the Land is charged and become Debtor alſo. Plow. 72. Co. 10. 50, 51. Broo. St. Marchant.

First, In reſpect of the nature and quality of the things themſelves.

The body of the Conuſor himſelf, but not the body of his Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator, is liable to Execution, and may be taken, albeit there be Lands, Goods, and Chattels to ſatisfie the Debt; and all the Demeſn and Copihold Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments, Corporael and Incorporeal of the Conuſor, that are grantable over, as his Manors, Meſſuages, Lands, Meadows, Paſtures, Woods, Rents, Commons, Tithes, Advowſons, and the like: Alſo all his Goods and Chattels, as Leaſes for years, Wardſhips, Emblements, Cattle, Houſhold-ſtuff, and the like, are liable to Execution upon a Statute. *Stat. de Mercatoribus. And therefore if a man make a Leaſe for life, or years, and after enter into a Statute, or Recogniſance; this Reverſion cum acciderit ſhall be ſubject to Execution, and the Conuſor cannot (as it ſeems) by any ſale thereof prevent it; and yet the contrary hath been held for Law. Littl. Broo. Sect. 227. Dyer 373. And if one make a Feoffment in Fee, or Leaſe for life, reſerving a Rent; this Rent is extendable, and the Conuſee may diſtrain for it. Doct. & Stud. 53. *Broo. So if the Leſſee for life, make a Leaſe for years rendring a Rent, and then the Leſſee for life enter into a Statute; this Rent is ſubject to Execution, and it ſeems the Conuſee may bring an Action of Debt againſt the Leſſee for years for it. Harringtons caſe. Paſche, 9 Jac. B. R. And albeit the Rent become extinct by the purchaſe of the Conuſor or otherwiſe, yet as to the Conuſee it ſhall be ſaid to be in eſſe and ſubject to Execution ſtill. And therefore if a Rent be granted unto me for my life, after the death of my Wife, and after I do acknowledge a Statute, and then my Wife die, and then I Releaſe the Rent to the Terre-tenant; this Rent ſhall be liable to Execution. Co. 7. 38. The Lands the Conuſor hoth in jointenancy with another, are ſubject to execution during the life of the Conuſor and no longer; for after his death the ſurviving jointenant ſhall have all; but if the Conuſor ſurvive his companion, then all the Land ſhall be ſubject to execution: and the Lands the Conuſor hath as Tenant in Tail, are liable to execution only during the life of him being the Tenant in Tail; for afterwards they ſhall go to his iſſue in Tail.

And yet if the Tenant in Tail after he hath entred into a Statute, ſuffer a recovery of the Land intailed, in this caſe the Land ſhall be ſubject to execution as if it were Fee-ſimple Land.

And the Lands the Conuſor hath in the right of his Wife, ſhall be charged and ſubject to execution only during the lives of the Husband and Wife together, and no longer.

If a Feoffment be made in condition to make an eſtate to another by a day of the ſame Land, and before the day the Feoffee enter into a Statute or a Recogniſance; this Land ſhall be ſubject unto execution untill the Feoffor reenter, for the breach of the condition. Littl. Sect. 358.

If one be ſeiſed of Land, and then enter into a Statute; this Land ſhall not be ſubject to execution: and yet if the Conuſor do after recover the Land by entry or action, it ſhall be lyable to Execution. Co. 2. 59.

The goods and Chattels whereof the Conuſor is ſolely poſſeſſed, and poſſeſſed in his own right; and the Goods and Chattels of which he is jointly poſſeſſed with another; and the Goods and Chattels he hath in the right of his Wife, are liable to execution.

But the Goods or Chattels that he or his Wife hath as Executor or Executrix to another or as pledged only, it ſeems are not ſubject to Execution. And if the Conuſor deliver goods to another to deliver over to I. S. theſe goods before they be delivered over are liable to execution.

And if he have leaſes for years in the right of his Wife, and die before Execution be done, it ſeems theſe leaſes are liable to execution. Sed quære.

But if the Conuſor have goods in his Cuſtody of another mans, or have goods he hath diſtrained in the nature of a diſtreſs, theſe are not liable to Execution. Stat. de Mercatoribus. Co. 3. 11. 12. Plow. 524. Co. 8. 171. 5. 90. Dyer 67.

All the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments which the Conuſor had at the time of the Statute or Recogniſance entred into, or at any time after, into whoſe hands by what means ſoever the ſame are betide and come at the time of Execution, are ſubject and liable to the Execution. But the Lands the Conuſor had and did put away before the time of the Statute or Recogniſance entred into are not liable to Execution. And all the Goods and Chattels the Conuſor hath and are found in his hands at the time when the Execution is to be made by the Extendi facias, are liable to the Execution. But the Goods and Chattels he had and did Bonâ fide do away before the time of Execution done, are not liable to the Execution. Co. 3, 12. Stat de Mercatoribus. 3. In reſpect of the time.

And in all theſe things before ſubject to Execution, the Conuſee may take all or part at his pleaſuree. And therefore if the Conuſor have ſold his Lands to diverſperſous, or have ſold ſome of his Lands to divers perſons, or to one 4. In reſpect of the quantity.

man, and keep the reſt in his hands, or it deſcend to his Heir; the Conuſee may ſue Execution upon the lands in either of their hands at his election; ſo that if the Cogniſee after the Statute entred into and before execution purchaſe part of the land of the Cogniſor, he may notwithſtanding have execution, upon the reſidue in the hands of the conuſor, or in the hands of his heir; and yet ſo that in ſome of theſe caſes his execution may be afterwards avoided, and he compelled to ſue execution againe. See Brownlows 1 part 38. 2 part. 97. Broo. Stat. 10. 48. 25. Plow. 72. See infra.

The Cogniſee upon other Recogniſances ſhall have the ſame things in execution, as a man ſhall have after a judgment in a Suite in the Kings Bench or Common-Pleas by Fieri facias, or Leviari facias, all his goods and chattels, and by Elegit the moity of his lands, and all his chattels beſides the Cattel of his plough and implements of husbandry. But in theſe caſes he cannot take the body of the Conuſor in execution; unleſs it be upon a new Suite, or in caſe of baile, in the Kings-Bench. *Weſtm. 2. chap. 18. Plow. 72. Co. 3. 12. Dier. 306. 5. Where a man ſhall have a Re-extent or new execution, and where not.

Howſoever by the Common-Law after a full and perfect execution had by extent returned and of record, there ſhall never be any reextent, yet by a ſpeciall Act of Parliament it is provided, that if after lands, &c. be had in execution upon a juſt or lawfull title, wherewith all the ſaid lands, &c. were liable tied or bound at ſuch time as they were delivered or taken in execution, they ſhall be taken or recovered away from him before he hath received his full debt and damages, in this caſe after a Scire facias had againſt the Conuſor his heirs, executors, adminiſtrators, or purchaſors, he (or his executors or adminiſtrators if he be dead) ſhall have a new execution to levie the reſidue of the debt and damages then unſatisfied. 32 H. 8. 5. Wherein theſe things are to be obſerved.

1. In caſe where the Conuſee is unlawfully and wrongfully diſturbed either by the Conuſor or by a ſtranger in the taking of the profits of the land delivered to him in execution; there he may and muſt bring his action and recover damages, and theſe damages ſhall go toward his ſatisfaction; for in this caſe and for this diſturbance, he ſhall not hold the land a day the longer. And where he is hindred by his own neglect or act in the taking of the profits of the land, as where his debt is 40l. and he hath 10l. a year delivered to him by which he may ſatisfie himſelf in four years, and within the time he make a conditionall ſurrender to the Conuſor, and enter for the condition broken; in this caſe he ſhall not hold the land over, neither ſhall he have any Reextent.

And where the let or diſturbance is ſuch, as wherein the Conuſee hath remedy given him by the Common-Law to hold the land over after the diſturbance removed; in this caſe he ſhal have no new execution nor Reextent within this Statute; for where the Conuſee hath remedy in præſenti for part, or in futuro for all or part, this Statute extendeth not to it. And therefore where the Conuſee is hindred in the taking of the profits of land by the Act of God, as by fire, overflowing of water or the like; or the act of the party Conuſor, or any by or under him, as when one is bound to A. in a Statute of 100l. and after to B. in a Statute of 200l. and B. extendeth the land firſt, and then A. extendeth the land and taketh it away from B. or when the Gardian in Chivalry doth put out the Conuſee by reaſon of the Wardſhip of the heire of the Conuſor, or the Wife of the Conuſor doth claime her dower and put out the Conuſee, or one diſſeiſe his leſſee for life, or out his leſſee for years, and then acknowledge a Statute, and after execution is ſued againſt him, and then the land is delivered to the conuſee, and after the leſſee for life or years doth enter; in all theſe caſes, becauſe by the Common-Law, the Conuſee may hold over the land after the time given him by the extent and after the impediments removed, untill he be ſatisfied his debt and damages, therefore, he ſhall have no aid of this Statute by Reextent; for he is then only to be relieved by this Statute when as he is evicted and diſturbed, and is wholly and clearely without any remedy at the Common-Law. Co. 4. 66. 82. Plow. 61. 15 H. 7. 15. Co. ſuper Litt: 299. Kitch. 116.

2. Where the Statute ſaith [Untill he, &c. or his aſſigns ſhall fully and wholy have levied levied the whole debt and damages] if he hath aſſigned ſeverall parcels to ſeverall aſſignes, yet all they ſhall have the land but untill the whole debt be paid.

3. Where the words be [for the which the ſaid lands, &c. were delivered in execution] If A. diſſeiſor convey the lands to the King who granteth the ſame over to A and his heirs to hold by fealty and 20*l.* rent, and after granteth the Seigniory, to B. B. acknowledgeth a Statute, and execution is ſued of the Seigniory, A. dieth without heire, and the conuſee entreth and is evicted by the diſſeiſee; in this caſe he ſhall have the ayd of this Statute; but the Perquiſite of a Villain being evicted is out of the Statute.

4. Where the words be [delivered and taken in execution] yet if after the Liberate the Conuſee enter (as he may) ſo as the land is never delivered, yet it is within the remedy of this Statute.

5. Albeit the Statute ſpeake only of the recoveror, obligee, &c. and not of their executors, adminiſtrators, or aſſignes, yet the Statute ſhall extend to them.

6. Where the Statute ſpeakes of a Scire facias out of the ſame Court, &c. if the record be removed into another Court and there affirmed, he may have a Scire facias out of that Court.

7. Where the Statute gives a Scire facias againſt ſuch perſon and perſons, &c. that were parties to the firſt execution, their heirs executors or aſſigns, &c. this muſt not be taken ſo generally as the letter is; for if the firſt execution were had againſt a purchaſor, &c. ſo as nothing in his hands were liable but the land recovered, if this land bee evict from the tenant by execution, no Scire facias ſhall goe againſt him, his executors, &c. but if he hath other lands ſubject to execution, then a Scire facias lieth againſt him or his aſſignes, but not againſt his executor; neither in that caſe can he have a Scire facias upon this Statute againſt the firſt debtor or recogniſor, but if there be ſeverall aſſignes of ſeveral parcels of lands ſubject to the execution, one Scire facias will lie againſt all the aſſignes. See more in Brownl. 2. parts 122.

A Statute or recogniſance and the execution thereupon may be diſcharged divers waies, as by defeaſance, releaſe, paiment of the mony, debt, and damages, or the reſidue thereof unlevied, delivery up of the Statute, Spurchaſe of part of the land by the cogniſee, or the like. 7. Where and by what means a Statute or Recogniſance, and the execution thereof ſhall be diſcharged, ſuſpended, or avoided in all or in part, and where not.

And therefore if there be a defeaſance to the Statute or recogniſance, and it be to pay mony at a day, or to performe ſome other thing, and the money be paid, or the thing done accordingly, this is a diſcharge of the Statute. And therefore if ſuch a Statute or recogniſance be afterwards ſued againſt the Conuſor, he may bee relieved by an Audita Querela. And if A. bind himſelf to B. by a Statute of 20*l.* and B. ſue execution, and the lands of A. are delivered to him in execution untill he levy the money, and after B. doth make a defeaſance to A. by Indenture, that if A. pay 10*l.* by a day certaine, that then the Statute or Recogniſance ſhall be void; if this be don accordingly, the Statute and the execution thereupon is defeated and diſcharged. D. 297. 315. Co. 6. 13. 20 Aſſ. pl. 7. See Defeaſance. By defeaſance.

And if the Cogniſee before execution or after, releaſe to the Cogniſor the Statute or recogniſance, or the debt; this is a perpetuall diſcharge of the Statute and the execution thereupon. But if the Conuſee before execution releaſe to the Conuſor all his right in or to the land; this will not diſcharge the whole execution; for if he may not ſue execution of the land afterwards (as it ſeems he may this notwithſtanding) yet he may ſue execution of his body and goods. By releaſe.

But ſuch a releaſe after execution made of the land, will no doubt diſcharge the land.

And yet if a Conuſee releaſe all his right in the land to the Feoffee of the Cogniſor of a parcel of the land, it ſeems this will diſcharge the land of execution, albeit it be before the execution ſued that this releaſe is made.

And ſo it is ſaid it was reſolved Mich. 26. 27. Eliz. Co. ſuper Litt. 76. 10. 47. 50. 51. ſuper. Litt. 265. Broo. St. Mar. chant. 25. See Releaſe.

If the Cogniſee aſſigne the Statute or Recogniſance to the Cogniſor or to the Terre- By purchaſe or ſurrender of the Land.

Terre-Tenant by way of diſcharge of the Debt or Land; it ſeems this is a good releaſe and diſcharge of it in Law. And if the Cogniſee purchaſe any part of the Land of the Cogniſor after the Statute or Recogniſance entred into; this is no diſcharge of the Statute or the Recogniſance, but the Cogniſee may have Execution notwithſtanding of the Lands that are left in the hands of the Cogniſor, or of his body, or goods, or all. But if the Cogniſee purchaſe parcell of the Lands, and a ſtranger another parcell; in this caſe the Lands that are purchaſed by the ſtranger ſhall be diſcharged of Execution. And if the Cogniſee after Execution ſued, purchaſe any part of the Land, or the Fee-ſimple of all or part of it doth deſcend to him; by this the whole Execution is diſcharged. And if the Cogniſee purchaſe all the Lands of the Cogniſor; by this the Execution as to the Land is ſuſpended, but this is no diſcharge as to the body and goods of the Conuſor, for they are ſubject to Execution ſtill. And if the Conuſee reinfeoff the Conuſor again, the Execution may be revived again againſt the Lands of the Conuſor, ſo that they will be ſubject to Execution again, whether they do continue in his hands or be ſold away to others.

So alſo if the Conuſee enfeoffe a ſtranger after he doth purchaſe the Land, and the ſtranger doth enfeoffe the Conuſor; in this caſe alſo the Execution is revived, and the Lands ſhal now be ſubject thereunto as they were before, Barrow & Graies caſe 38. *Eliz. If a Leſſee for life make a leaſe for years rendring a Rent, and after enter into a Statute to I. S. and then enter into another Statute to *I. 8. Where the Conuſor, or his Heir, or an alienee, or purchaſor ſhall have contribution upon a Statute or Recogniſance, or not.

If the Conuſor after he hath entred into a Statute or Recogniſance, doth convey away his Land to divers perſons, and then the Conuſee ſue Execution of the Statute upon the Lands of one or ſome of them, and not of all; in this caſe he or they whoſe Lands is, or are taken in Execution, may by an Audita querela or Scire Facias, have contribution from the reſt, wherein theſe differences muſt be obſerved: That one Purchaſor ſhall have Contribution from another: And therefore if the Conuſor ſell ſome Lands to I, S. and other Lands to I, D, and the Conuſee ſue Execution only of the Lands of I, S. I, S. ſhall have contribution againſt I, D. And the Feoffee of the Purchaſor, the Feoffee of the Heir of the Conuſor, the Feoffee of the Feoffee, and another Feoffee ſhall have contribution of the Heir of the Conuſor: But the Conuſor himſelf ſhall not have Contribution from a Purchaſor; and therefore, if he ſell part of his Lands, and keep part in his hands, and the Conuſee ſue Execution only of the Lands in the hands of the Conuſor or his Heirs; in this caſe, neither he nor his Heirs ſhall have any contribution from the Purchaſors; and one Heire ſhall have contribution from another. And therefore, if one be ſeiſed of two Acres, the one in Burrow-Engliſh, the other of other Land, and he enter into a Statute and die, and he hath but two Daughters, and the Execution is ſued upon the land of one of them; he ſhall have contribution from the other. So where ſome land doth diſcend to the Heire of the part of the Father, and ſome to the Heir of the part of the Mother. Plow. 72. Co. 3. 12. 6. 13.

If one be ſeiſed of Lands in Fee in the County of A, and B, and enter into a Statute or Recogniſance, and the Conuſor die, and then the Conuſee die alſo, and his Executor doth ſue Execution of the Lands in B only, and hath Execution, and after the Heir doth ſell theſe Lands; in this caſe the Vendee ſhall have no contribution. So alſo it ſeems the Law is, if the Heir ſell the Land to divers, and one of the Purchaſors appear to the ſcire facias, and the Iudgement is given againſt him, and he afterwards ſell the Land, his Vendee ſhall have no contribution: And in all theſe caſes where it is ſaid the one Purchaſor ſhall have contribution, it is not intended that the reſt ſhall give or allow him any thing by way of contribution, but that the party whoſe Lands are extended, may by Audita Querela or ſcire facias, facias, as the caſe requireth, defeat the Execution, and thereby ſhall be reſtored to all the mean profits, and force the Conuſee to ſue his Execution upon all the Land, that the Land of every one of the Terre-tenants may be equally extended. See more in my Book of Common Aſſurances.

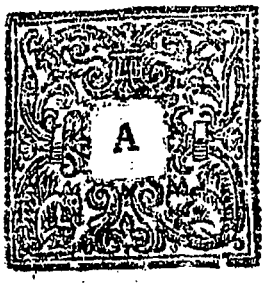
CHAP. CL.

Of a Statute Law.



Statute is taken ſometimes for an Obligation of Record; but here it is taken for a Decree, or Act of Parliament, made by the Lord Protector, and Parliament of the Nation, (which is the Repreſentative, and Body of the ſame) for the Goverment thereof; and theſe Laws are over, and beſides the Univerſal or Common Law of the Nation. Sect. 1. 2. Statute, what.

And ſo a Statute is either general, and publick, or particular and private. Thoſe that are general alſo, are either ſuch as concern all the Subjects of this Realm alike, as the Statutes of Champerty, Maintenance, the Statutes of 13 Eliz. 10. 18 Eliz. 11. 1 Ed. 6. 14. Magna Charta 25. Weſtm. 2. 25, 18, 41. 23 H. 8. de Attaint. 4 H. 7. 17. and divers others, or ſuch as concern all the Species of one General of Men, or things onely; as all the Spiritual Tye, or all Officers. Weſtm. 1. 26. All Trades and Myſteries, or all Lords, or the like. Marl. 3. And ſo it is where the Matter is Special, ſo that under it be nothing but Individuals; yet if it be General, as to the perſons, it is a General Law. Co. 4. 76. The kindes.

Thoſe Statutes that are particular or private, are either ſuch as are general in a particular; as which concern all Sheriffs, or all Biſhops, or all Deans, or all Cloathiers, or all Colledges in the Univerſities, or the like. 18 Eliz. 6. 23 H. 6. 18. Or elſe a particular and ſpecial, when it doth concern one Individual; as the Sheriff of Norwich, Dean of Windſor, College of Eaton. Plow. 65. 13 Ed. 4. 8. Dyer 119.

So when the Law, as to the perſon, is general, but the matter it doth concern, is Individual or ſingular. Co. 4. 26.

Alſo ſome Statutes are Affirmative, and ſome Negative; and ſome bring in a new Law, and ſome do onely declare the old. Co. 4. 76.

This word is taken for the firſt part of an Act or Statute, which is as a Key to open the minde of the Makers, and to ſhew what miſchiefs they intend to remedy that make the Statute; and ſome Statutes have theſe, and ſome are without them. Preamble, what.

An Action upon a Statute, called an Action Popular, is an Action which is given to a man by ſome Statutes, where none was before, and is called Popular, becauſe it is not given to one, but to every man that will; and yet if one hath begun the Sute, another cannot ſue it out. F.N.B. 43. Co. 10. 75. See Action, and the duty of Informers upon ſuch Statutes. See 18 Eliz. 5. 21 Jac. 4. 31 Eliz. 5. and Informers. 2. Action Popular, what.

If one hath any occaſion, or cauſe to make uſe of a Statute that is general in any Court, he need not to plead it, and ſet it forth at large, but onely that part, or ſo much as doth concern him, and will ſerve his turn, or the ſubſtance of it. 3. Where a Statute muſt be pleaded, or not.

And if one will charge another with the breach of any ſuch Statute, there need no more be ſaid, but encounter tiel Statute, &c. For the Judges in their giving of Judgments, are bound to take notice of the ſaid Statutes: But if the Statute be ſpecial, or particular, or private, there if any man will have benefit by, or make uſe of him, or will charge another upon him, he muſt plead, and ſhew the Statute at large; for otherwiſe the Judges in their Judgments, are not bound to take notice of them. Crompt Jur. fol. 15, 16, 17.

All

What ſhall be ſaid a good Statute, or not.

All Statutes that agree with the Statutes of Heaven, and Ordinances of God, though they croſs, and utterly overthrow any of the former Statutes or Laws of the Nation, are good: But if they be expreſly repugnant to the Laws of God, as that no man ſhall help or comfort them that be in diſtreſs; they are not good, but utterly unlawful; but it muſt be made by all the Parliament. See Crompt. Jur. 190. 34 *H.*6.40.

The Expoſition of Statutes belongs onely to the Judges, and Juſtices of Courts, and they are to be guided by theſe general rules. March 90. *pl.*148.

General Rules for the Expoſition of Statutes.

1. They muſt mark the Coherence, and take all the parts together, and then expound them, as neer to the intent and minde of the Makers, as poſſible they can conceive, and not ſtick too much in the words; for, Qui hæret in litera, hæret in cortice, & notitia Ramorum Statuti, non in Sermonis foliis, ſed in rationis radice poſita eſt. *Co.*10. 100. And therefore if the Law be, that whoſoever ſhall kill a man, ſhall be hanged; if a Mad-man do ſo, or one in Execution of Juſtice do ſo, this Law muſt not be extended to him: But yet the words are to be regarded alſo; and therefore it is a rule, That à verbis legis non eſt recedendum & maledicta eſt expoſitio quæ corrumpit viſcera textus. *Plow.*18.396. *Co.*10. 100.

2. Where an Act Affirmative, and that is the Introduction of a new Law, doth give power, or Intereſt to a perſon certain, or a thing is to be done before a perſon certain, in that caſe Incluſio unius eſt excluſio alterius: But if it be the Declaration of an old Law, contrà, unleſs there be a Negative clauſe annexed. *Co.*11. Dr. Foſters caſe. An Affirmative Subſequent Law will not repeal, or abrogate an Act Affirmative Precedent, unleſs it be contrary to it in Matter; nor alter the Common Law before, neither will ſuch an Act take away Cuſtoms. Alſo, if the Statute be Negative, and but the Declaration of an ancient Common Law, and in Affirmance thereof, this will not alter a Cuſtom. Co. on *Littl. f.*115. but otherwiſe the rule is, The latter Laws do abrogate the former Laws.

3. One part of a Statute muſt expound another; and this is one of the beſt means to finde the ſence. Co. on *Littl.*381.

4. There muſt be an Equity in expounding all Laws, and this doth ſometimes extend the ſence beyond the words, and ſometimes it doth abridge the ſence, and make it narrower, and leſs then the words. Plow. 65.

5. When the words of a Statute are ſpecial, but the reaſon is general, the Statute is generally to be underſtood. *Co.*10. in Rewſages caſe.

6. That which is generally ſpoken, muſt be generally underſtood; for he that ſpeaketh all, leaveth out nothing. Idem.

7. Such an Expoſition muſt be made, as to ſuppreſs the miſchief, and advance the remedy intended. Co. on *Littl.*381.

8. The words muſt always be taken in a lawful, rightful ſence. Idem.

9. Every Act made againſt an Injury or Grievance, doth expreſly or implicitly give to the party wronged, a Remedy. Co. 2 part, Inſt. 55.

Where-ever a Statute doth forbid any thing to a man, the party grieved may not onely have this Action upon the Statute for his private relief, but alſo the offender ſhall be for his contempt puniſhed at the Kings Suit, by Fine and Impriſonment. Co. 2 *part, Inſt.*131. 163.

CHAP. CLI.

Of Sute, Subſtance, and Circumſtance.

THis word is ſometimes taken for a Sute in Law, which is nothing but an Action. See Action. Sect. 1: Sute, what.

Alſo ſometimes it is taken for the following of one in chaſe, as Freſh-ſute. See Eſcape. The kindes.

Alſo ſometimes it is taken for the Attendance, which a Tenant or other doth ow to the Court of his Lord. And ſo it is taken here, and then it is either Real or Royal, which is the ſervice that men ow to the Sheriffs Turn or Leet, or other Law-days, unto which, men are bound to come, to hear, and learn the Laws by which they are to be governed; and it is called Royal, becauſe of their Allegeance which men are ſworn to there; and therein their Oath is, That they ſhall be loyal Subjects to the King. Sute at a Law day.

And this ſervice is not to be done in reſpect of the Land that he holdeth within the County or place where the Leet is, but by reaſon of his perſon and abode there, and ought to be done twice a year; and for default hereof, he is to be amerced, and not diſtrained. Amerced, what.

Sute Covenant is, where one is bound and hath undertaken by Covenant to do Sute to the Court of another.

Sute Cuſtom is, where by the Cuſtom of the place, the Tenant or other is to do Sute to the Court of the Lord.

Sute Service is the Sute that one is bound to yield to his Lords Court, or the Sheriffs County Court, or ſome Hundred, from three weeks to three weeks; and this is not to be done, in reſpect of a mans perſon or abode in the place, wherein the Court is; but in reſpect of a mans Land which he holdeth of the Manor, or within the County or Hundred, where the Court is. And for default of this, a man ſhall be diſtrained and not amerced: And if a man refuſe to do his Sute he oweth to ſuch a County Court, or Court Baron, he may be compelled to it by Writ called Secta ad Curiam. And if a Tenure be to come to a Leet or Hundred to do ſome ſpecial Service, as to be Cryer, &c. it is a good Service, but not a Sute Service. Bro. Sute 17. F.N.B. 158. Secta ad Curiam, what.

And in this caſe of Sute Service, which is to be done in reſpect of the Land, if the Land come to diverſe Parceners, the eldeſt of them muſt do all the Sute; and for that purpoſe, if he or ſhe refuſe, may be compelled by a Writ called Secta faciendа per illum qui habet initiam partem: But in this caſe the eldeſt ſhall have Contribution of the reſt; and if the eldeſt do make all the Sute, and the reſt will not contribute, he may have a Writ of Contributione facienda againſt them, and compel them to it. Who ſhall do the Sute. Secta per illum qui habet initiam partem, what. Contribution. Contributione facienda, what.

So in all other like caſes, where there be many Feoffees, the Lord ſhall have but one Sute, and the reſt ſhall contribute. F. N. B. 126. Marlb. chap. 9.

But if one have Land in divers Hundreds, he can do no Sute, but where he doth dwell; and if he be diſtrained to do Service elſwhere, he may diſcharge it by a Writ. Fitz. 16.

None ſhall be diſtrained to do Sute of Court, unleſs he be ſpecially bound to it by his Charter of Feoffment, except ſuch as they, or their Anceſtors were wont to do it: Forty years before the making of this Statute, where then they were infeoffed by Deed or without Deed.

If a man live within one Hundred, and hold Land of J. S. as of his Hundred of W. which is another Hundred, and of another man, yet he muſt do Sute in the Hundred where he dwells, by reaſon of his perſonal reſidence, and ſo to the County Court. Mich. 9 Car. Sir Piercy Harberts caſe in the Exchequer. See the old Statute of Marlb. 9.

CHAP. CLII.

Of Subſidy and Superſedeas.

Sect. 1.
Subſidy, what.

SUbſidy was a Tax or Tribute, aſſeſſed by Parliament, and granted by the Commons to be levied of every Subject according to the value of his Lands or Goods, after the rate of four ſhillings in the pound for Land, and two ſhillings eight pence for Goods, as was moſt commonly uſed; and the manner of Aſſeſſing every Mans Lands or Goods, was this Firſt, There did iſſue a Commiſſion out of the Chancery, to Men of Honor or Worſhip, in every County; by vertue whereof, To call unto them the Head-Conſtables or Bailiffs of every Hundred, and by them the Conſtable, and three or four of the ſubſtantialleſt Houſholders in every Town, within their Hundred, at a certain day: Which men ſo called, or as many of them, as the Commiſſioners thought good to uſe, did rate the Inhabitants of their own Town, in ſuch reaſonable manner as they thought meet, yet by the diſcretion of the ſaid Commiſſioners, and then every man after his value ſet down, muſt at their time, pay to the Collectors appointed, after the rate aforeſaid.

Tonnage and Poundage.
For the Subſidy of Tonnage and Poundage, ſee Cuſtoms and Franchiſes, and the Act, 11 March, 1650.

Tax and Tallage, what.
Tax and Tallage was a Dizme Quinzime, or other Subſidy granted to the King by Parliament.

Quinzime, what.
Quinzime was called a Fifteen, and it was a payment granted by the Parliament to the King, and by him laid upon the Subjects; which was rated after the Fifteenth part of Mens, Lands, or Goods in the Country; and after the tenth part of Mens Goods in Cities and Burroughs. 7 *H.*7.5. Broo. 242. Co. 2 part, Inſt. fol. 77.

Tenth.

So that this doth differ from a Subſidy, for that is uncertain as mens Eſtates be, becauſe it doth light on the perſon; this is certain, becauſe it doth light on the Towns, Pariſhes, and Villages in general; and it is ſo called, becauſe it amounteth to one Fifteenth part of that the Town was valued at heretofore; and every Town, City, and Village, greater or leſs, do or may know by the Exchequer Roll, what their Fifteen doth a mount unto: And this was to be levied of Mens Lands, or Goods, as the Cuſtom and uſe of the place was. Dyer 143.

Dizmes, what.
Dizmes was a Tribute laid on the Spiritualty, and granted to the King by Parliament, as the Quinzime was upon the Laity. Broo. 342.

Impoſitions of Benevolence.
All Exactions and Impoſitions of money upon the people, without their conſent in Parliament, by way of Benevolence.

Pole money, Ship-money.
Poll-money, Ship-money, and the like, declared to be unlawful, and taken away. See 25 Edw. 1. De tallagio non concedendo tem' Ed, 1. 1 Ed. 3. Stat. 2. cap. 6. 11 Rich. 2. 9. 9 *H.*4.7. 1 *R.*3.2. 19 *H.*7.8. 16, 17 Car. 14. 3 Car.

No Impoſition of money may be but in Parliament, ſee Cuſtoms. Co. 2 part, Inſt. cap. 30. Petition of Right, B. Car.

Superſedeas, what.
Superſedeas is a Writ that lieth in divers caſes, and implies a Command or Requeſt to forbear or ſtay the doing of that, which in appearance of Law were to be done, were it not for the cauſe, whereupon the Writ is granted. As for example.

A man is to have Surety of the Peace againſt him, of whom he will ſwear, that he is afraid, and the Juſtice required hereunto, cannot deny him; yet if the party be be formerly bound to the Peace, either in the Chancery, or elſwhere; this Writ of Superſedeas lieth to ſtay the Juſtice from binding the ſame party to the Peace, which otherwiſe he might not deny. F. N. B. 236. Poulton de Pace 26.

Where it lieth, or not, and how.

Where a man doth bring a Writ of Error to Reverſe a Judgment, he may have a Superſedeas to ſtay Execution upon the Judgment; but if the Judgment were for Debt on an Obligation, ſingle or double, or upon a Contract, he muſt firſt enter into a Recognizance to proſecute with effect, according to the Statute of 3 Jac. 8. Plow. 49. 5 H. 7. 22. Dyer 284. 193. 81.

If one be ſued, and a Capias or Exigent be awarded againſt a man, in the Term he may have a Superſedeas out of the ſame Court, whence the Capias did iſſue, or out of the Term, from the Chancery; that the Sheriff ſhall take Surety of him and let him go, or that he ſhall not arreſt him, if he be not arreſted. F. N. B. 137.

So if one be indicted before the Juſtices of the Peace, and a Capias is out, he may by this Writ command the Sheriff to take Sureties for his appearance, and not to arreſt him, or if he have to let him go.

If the Sheriff in his County Court will proceed in ſuch Cauſes, as wherein he is not to meddle, the party grieved may have a Superſedeas and ſtay him, and ſo in divers other caſes. F. N. B. 236, 237.

But in Attaint, he ſhall not have a Superſedeas to ſtay Execution; nor in caſe, where a Sheriff or Gaolor doth ſet at liberty one that is in his cuſtody upon an Execution, and after doth take him again: For in this caſe he muſt have an Audita Querela. See Audita Querela. Crompt. Juriſd. 52, 59. 64. 24. 91. 98. 113.

CHAP. CLIII.

Of a Surrender and Tenants.

1. Surrender, what.

A Surrender properly taken, is the yielding or delivering up of Lands or Tenements, and the Eſtate a man hath therein, unto another that hath a higher and greater Eſtate in the ſame Lands or Tenements: But it is ſometimes improperly applied to other things. He that doth Surrender, is called the Surrendror, and he to whom it is made, is called the Surrendree. Co. ſuper Littl. 337.

Surrendror, Surrendree.

2. The kindes.

And there be three kindes of Surrender. 1. A Surrender properly taken at the Common-Law. 2. A Surrender by Cuſtom of Lands holden by Cuſtom, or Cuſtomary Eſtates, whereof we ſpeak not here. 3. A Surrender improperly taken, as of a Deed, or Grant of a Rent-charge, of a Patent, and of Lands in Fee-ſimple to the King.

The Surrender properly taken, is of two ſorts. 1. Expreſs, or in Deed, which is when it is done by apt words, and the Expreſs Agreement of the parties. 2. In Law or implied, which is when it is wrought by conſequent and operation of Law, or when the Law doth interpret or enure ſomething done to another intent to make a Surrender of it. And in the firſt caſe it is ſometimes by word onely, and ſometimes by writing; and when it is by writing, it is ſaid to be an Inſtrument teſtifying by apt words, That the particular Tenant of the Lands or Tenements for life or years doth conſent and agree that he which hath the next and immediate remainder or reverſion thereof ſhall alſo have the particular eſtate of the ſame in poſſeſſion, and that he yeeldeth the ſame unto him.

3. The effect of it.

The Fruit and effect of a ſurrender is, that it doth paſs the eſtate of the ſurrendror to the ſurrendree, and that hereupon the eſtate of the ſurrendror is drowned and extinct in the eſtate of the ſurrendree, And yet not ſo but that to ſome purpoſes it ſhall bee ſaid to have continuance ſtill. And therefore if tenant for life grant a rent-charge and after doth ſurrender his land; in this caſe the rent-charge ſhall continue notwithſtanding the ſurrender. So if leſſee for life make a leaſe for years rendring rent, and the leſſee for life ſurrender his eſtate, in this caſe albeit the primitive eſtate for life be yeelded up, yet the derivative eſtate for years ſhall continue notwithſtanding, but the ſurrendree ſhall not have the rent reſerved upon the leaſe for years. So if leſſee for life or years break a covenant with his leſſor, and after ſurrender his eſtate to him, his breach of covenant is not hereby ſalved, for the leſſor may have an action of covenant ſtill notwithſtanding the ſurrender. And if one ſeiſed of land grant a rent out of it in fee, and this rent is extended on a ſtatute, or granted for leis time to another and then the grantee doth ſurrender the deed of the grant of the rent to the tenant of the land; in this caſe the rent ſhall continue as to him that hath execution and the grantee. And if one make a leaſe for years rendring rent, and the leſſee ſurrender his eſtate to the leſſor; hereby the rent is extinct: but if the leſſor grant the rent to a ſtranger before the ſurrender contrà. And if one leaſe for years, and the leſſee let parcel of his term to his leſſor rendring rent, and after the leſſee ſurrender his whole eſtate; in this caſe it ſeems the rent is determined. Co. ſuper Litt. 338. Co. 1. 96. Bro. ſurrender. 47. *Perk. 4. What ſhall be ſaid a ſurrender in law of lands. And by what means an eſtate ſhall be ſurrendred in law. Or not By acceptance and taking of a new eſtate.

If leſſee for life or years take a new leaſe of him in reverſion of the ſame thing in particular contained in the former leaſe for life or years; this is a ſurrender in law of the firſt leaſe. As if leſſee for his own or anothers life in poſſeſſion or reverſion take a new leaſe for years; or a leſſee for forty years take a new leaſe for fifty years, the firſt leaſe in both theſe caſes is ſurrendred.

And this rule holdeth, albeit the ſecond leaſe be for a leſs time then the firſt, as if leſſee for life accept a leaſe for years, or leſſee for twenty years, accept a Leaſe for two years. And albeit the ſecond leaſe be voidable, as being made upon condition, as if leſſee for twenty years take a new leaſe for 20. years upon condition that if ſuch a thing happen the ſecond leaſe ſhalbe void, and the thing doe after happen; in this caſe both theſe leaſes are become void. As where the leſſor doth grant the reverſion to the leſſee upon condition, and after the condition is broken.

Or if the ſecond leaſe be made by tenant in tail, or the like: as if a man make a leaſe for years of land, and then make a Feoffment to another of the land, and then take back an eſtate to him and his wife of the land, and then make a new leaſe to the leſſee for ten years; this is a ſurrender in law of the firſt leaſe. But if the ſecond leaſe be meerly void, then it is otherwiſe. And therefore if the leſſor doe by words of covenant only promiſe to his leſſee that he ſhall have a new leaſe, and doe never actualy make him; this is no ſurrender in law. And this rule as it ſeems holdeth alſo, albeit the ſecond leaſe be to the leſſee and a ſtranger, or to the leſſee and his wife: and albeit the ſecond leaſe be by word only, and the firſt leaſe be by deed, if ſo be that the thing granted by the leaſe be ſuch a thing as may paſs by word without writing; and albeit the ſecond leaſe be in another right, as if the husband have a leaſe for years in theright of his wife and then take a new leaſe to himſelf in his own name: and albeit the firſt leaſe be to begin preſently, and the ſecond be to begin at a day to come, or è converſo; and albeit there be a mean eſtate between, as if land be let to A. for years, and after let to B. for years, to begin after the firſt term, and the aſſigne of A. doth take a new leaſe. So if one demiſe land for ten years to one, and after demiſe it for ten years to another, to begin at Michaelmas, and after the firſt leſſee accept a new leaſe. For in all theſe caſes there is a ſurrender in law of the firſt leaſes. 14 H. 8. 15. Plow. 194. Dier. 28. Co. 10. 67. Perk. Sect. 617. Co. 5. 11. *Fitz. And

And if there be two leſſees for life, or years, and one of them take a new leaſe for years, this is a ſurrender of his moity; whereby it doth appear that a ſurrender in law may be made of ſome eſtates which cannot be ſurrendred by a ſurrender in fait; for fortior eſt diſpoſitio legis quam hominis. And hence it is that a corporation aggregate may make a ſurrender in law without deed, although it cannot make an expreſs ſurrender without deed. But if the leſſee doe only licence the leſſor to make a feoffment and to give livery of ſeiſin: or do give livery of ſeiſin for him as his Atturney: or doe licence him to enter into the land and no more, neither of theſe things ſhall be ſaid to be a ſurrender in law. So if the ſecond leaſe be made of another, and not of the ſame thing whereof the firſt leaſe is made, as where the firſt leaſe is of the land, and the ſecond is made of a rent or other profit to be taken out of the land, or the firſt is of a Manor, and the ſecond of the Bayliwick or Stewardſhip of the Manor, or the firſt is of a Park, and the ſecond is of the Keeperſhip of the Park; in theſe caſes there is no ſurrender of the firſt leaſe. Alſo if the ſecond leaſe be not a good leaſe, perhaps it ſhall not be conſtrued a ſurrender. See Co. 2. Lanes Caſe. 17. Dier. 46. Co. 2. 60: Co. 6. 69. 10. 67. Perk. Sect. 608. Bro. Surrender. 48. Trin. 5. Jac. Co. 6. 69. Adjudged.

And if leſſee for 20 years make a leaſe for 10 years and he after take a leaſe for 5 years; this is not properly a ſurrender, but it maketh void the firſt leaſe as it enureth by way of diſſolution of Contract.

But if the firſt leaſe be of the land it ſelf, and the ſecond leaſe is of the veſture of the ſame land, this is held to be a ſurrender of the firſt leaſe. So if the ſecond leaſe be not to begin untill the firſt leaſe end, the taking of this ſecond leaſe is no ſurrender of the firſt leaſe. So it hath been ſaid if one make a leaſe of black acre in Dale, and the leſſee accept a ſecond leaſe of all the lands of the leſſor in Dale in generall words, and the leſſor that doth make the leas have divers other lands there beſides this acre, that this is no ſurrender of the firſt leaſe. Sed quere of this, for others do much doubt it.

So if one enter into land, and make a leaſe for the trial of the title only, and after the leſſor (he and the leſſee being both out of poſſeſſion) make another leaſe of the ſame thing to the leſſee; it ſeems this is no ſurrender of the firſt leaſe: but if the leſſor enter before he make the leaſe contra. Trin. 5. Jac. Sir Jo Chamberlains caſe. See Dier. 200. Co. 5. 11. Per. Curiam. B. R. 9, Jac.

To make a good ſurrender in deed of lands, and to make them to paſs by ſuch a ſurrender, theſe things are firſt of all required. 5. What ſhall be ſaid a ſurrender in deed of lands. And when they ſhal be ſaid to paſs by ſuch a ſurrender. Or not

That the ſurrendror be a perſon able to grant and make, and the ſurrendree a perſon capable and able to take and receive a ſurrender, and that they both have ſuch eſtates as are capable of a ſurrender. And for this purpoſe.

1. That the ſurrendror have an eſtate in poſſeſſion of the thing ſurrendred at the time of the ſurrender made, and not a bare right thereunto only. 1. In reſpect of the perſon between whom it is made, and their eſtate & poſſeſſion.

2. That the ſurrender be to him that hath the next immediate eſtate in remainder or reverſion, and that there be no intervenient eſtate coming between.

3. That there be a privity of eſtate between the ſurrendror and the ſurrendree.

4. That the ſurrendree have a higher and greater eſtate in the thing ſurrendred, then the ſurrendror hath, ſo that the eſtate of the ſurrendror may be drowned therein.

5. That he have the eſtate in his own right, and not in the right of his wife &c.

6. And that he be ſole ſeiſed of this eſtate in remainder or reverſion, and not in jointenancy.

7. Some make a ſeventh and that is that he that doth ſurrender be in poſſeſſion of the thing ſurrendred. And therefore hold that the ſurrender of land made in London of land in Eſſex of the land when the ſurrendror is out of the poſſeſſion is void. Goldsb. 47. Pl. 3.

As for examples, infants, women covert, mad and lunatick men, and all ſuch like perſons, as are diſabled to grant, are diſabled to make a ſurrender, and none but ſuch as may grant their land may ſurrender their land. See Perk. in his chap. of ſurrender in toto. Bro. Surrender in toto. Fitz. Surrender in toto. Co. ſuper. Litt. 338. A Corporation aggregate of many cannot make an expreſs ſurrender without a deed, but it may make ſuch a ſurrender by deed. And ſuch perſons as are diſabled to take by a grant are diſabled to take by a ſurrender, and ſuch as may bee grantees, may be ſurrendrees; and therefore a ſurrender made to an infant is good.

Husband and wife. If the husband have a leaſe or eſtate for years in the right of his wife, he alone, or he and his wife together may ſurrender this; but if the husband have an eſtate for life in the right of his wife, being tenant in dower or otherwiſe, and he alone, or he and ſhee together ſurrender this; this ſurrender is good only during the life of the husband, except it bee made by fine. Co. 10.67. Perk. Sect. 613. 612. Bro. ſurrender. 44. 21 H. 7. 25.

Executors. Tenant in common. One executor may ſurrender an eſtate or leaſe for years which the executors have in the right of their teſtator. If there be two tenants in common, and one of them have the particular eſtate, and the other the fee-ſimple; as where an eſtate is limited to two and the heirs of one of them, and he that hath the eſtate for life doth alien his part to a ſtranger; in this caſe the alienee may ſurrender to the other jointenant. So if there be three jointenants for life, and the fee-ſimple is limited to the heirs of one of them; and one of the jointenants for life doth releaſe to the other, and he to whom this releaſe is made doth ſurrender to him that hath the fee-ſimple; this Iointenant. is a good ſurrender of a third part. But otherwiſe one jointenant cannot ſurrender to another jointenant, albeit he be tenant for life which doth make, and the tenant in fee-ſimple, that doth take the ſurrender. Perk. Sect. 586, 587. Fitz. ſur. 2. A leſſee for life or years, may ſurrender to him that is next in remainder in fee-ſimple, or fee-tail, or to him in reverſion in fee, and this is a good ſurrender, and a ſurrender as it ſeems may be made to the grantee of the reverſion before atturnment, ſo as atturnment be afterwards made. Perk Sect. 584. Co ſuper Litt. 338. Per. Sect. 600. Bro. ſur. 4.

Livery of ſeiſin. And in caſe of the ſurrender of an eſtate for life there needs no livery of ſeiſin as in caſe of the grant of an eſtate for life. Dier. 251. 358. 280. A leſſee for years of a term to begin at a day to come cannot ſurrender it by an actuall ſurrender before the day the term begin, as he may by a ſurrender in law. Perk. Sect. 601, 602. 4 H. 7. 10. Co. 6. 69. If leſſee for life be diſſeiſed, or leſſee for years be ouſted, and before his entry or the getting of the poſſeſſion again, he ſurrender his eſtate to him in reverſion; this ſurrender is void. So if a woman that hath title of dower ſurrender it to him in reverſion before ſhe hath recovered it; this ſurrender is void. And yet if leſſee for years after his term is begun and before his entry, when no body doth keep from him the profits, doe ſurrender his eſtate; it ſeems this is a good ſurrender; but if another enter before him, and keep him out, it ſeems otherwiſe. Perk Sect. 600, 601, 602, 603. If there be leſſee for years, the remainder for life, the remainder or reverſion in fee, and the leſſee for years be ouſted, and he that ouſted him die ſeiſed, and then the leſſee for years enter, and then the tenant for life ſurrender to him in remainder or reverſion in fee; this is not a good ſurrender, for there is in this caſe but a bare right of remainder for life and in fee; bnt if the leſſee for years had not been ouſted, it had been a good ſurrender. If there be leſſee for years, the remainder for life, the remainder in fee; the leſſee for years may ſurrender to the leſſee for life, and ſo may the tenant for life to him in remainder or reverſion in fee, but if there be tenant for life, the remainder for life, the remainder in fee; in this caſe the ſecond tenant for life cannot ſurrender to him in remainder in fee. Perk Sect. 605. Dier. 251. If a leaſe bee made for life or years to A. the remainder for life to B. the remainder in fee tail to C. and the firſt tenant for life or years doth ſurrender to C. or to the leſſor, B. being the next in remainder for life being then living; this is not a good ſurrender, neither can it take effect as a ſurrender in reſpect of the intervenient eſtate. And ſo ſome ſay the law is if the middle remainder be but for years only; as if a leaſe be made for years, the remainder for years, and the firſt termor ſurrender his intereſt to the leſſor; this is no good ſurrender. Sed quere. Perk. Sect. 588. For it ſhould ſeem that a future intereſt will no more hinder an actuall ſurrender of the firſt leſſee, then a ſurrender in law. And ſo alſo it ſeems the law is for a concurrent leaſe, which for the latter part of it is in the nature of a future intereſt. Dier. 112. Plow. 190. Dier. 93. Plow. 432, 433.

But

But if in this caſe it fall out the middle remainder be void; as where a leaſe is made to A. for life, or years the remainder to a monk (who is a perſon uncapable) for life or years, the remainder to I. S. in fee; in this caſe A. the firſt tenant may ſurrender to him in remainder in fee, and the ſurrender is good. If leſſee for 20. years make a leaſe for 5 years, and the leſſee for 5 years enter, and after the leſſee for 20. years ſurrender to him in reverſion or remainder; this is a good ſurrender. So alſo if the two leſſees join in the ſurrender. So alſo if the firſt leſſee ſurrender firſt, and the leſſee for 5 years ſurrender after. But if the leſſee for five years ſurrender to him in the reverſion or the remainder before the ſurrender of the leſſee for 20 years; this cannot take effect as a ſurrender for two cauſes. Perk. Sect. 604. 14 H. 7, 3. Plow. 541. Bro. Sur. 16.

1. Becauſe there is a remnant of the term as an intervenient eſtate to hinder the drowning of the term.

2. Becauſe there wants a privity betweeen the leſſee for five years, and him in reverſion.

If tenant in fee-ſimple ſurrender to the Lord Paramount of whom the land is held; this can never take effect as a ſurrender, unleſs it be in a ſpeciall caſe where the Lord hath cauſe to have a Ceſſavit. So if tenant in tail ſurrender to him in remainder or reverſion in fee-ſimple; this cannot take effect as a ſurrender: So if leſſee for life ſurrender to him in remainder for years: or tenant for the life of B. ſurrender to him that hath an eſtate for the life of C. theſe are void ſurrenders; for the eſtates of them to whom they are made, are not capable of ſuch ſurrenders, for they are not greater then the eſtates of the ſurrendrors, and therefore not able to drown the eſtates ſurrendred. And yet if leſſee for the life of another, or for his own life ſurrender his eſtate to him in remainder that is tenant for his own life, this is a good ſurrender, for an eſtate, for a mans own life is greater in judgement of law then an eſtate for another mans life. And hence it is that if a leaſe bee made to two for their lives, the remainder to a third perſon for his own life, and one of the firſt tenants for life ſurrender his eſtate unto him in remainder for life; this is a good ſurrender for a moity.

If leſſee for life or years ſurrender to him in remainder or reverſion that hath no good eſtate in the remainder or reverſion, as where the remainder or reverſion is granted by word only, or being granted by deed there is no atturnment of the tenant to the grant, or the like; this ſurrender is not good. And yet if tenant in taile make a leaſe for life whereby he gaineth a new reverſion (but defeaſible) and the tenant for life doth ſurrender to the tenant in tail, this ſhall be a good ſurrender. So if a woman inheritrix have a husband, and they have iſſue a ſon, and the husband dieth, and ſhe take another husband, and he letteth the land for life, and the wife dieth, and the tenant for life doth ſurrender his eſtate to the ſecond husband, this is a good ſurrender to moſt purpoſes. Bro. ſur. 9. Fitz. ſur. 10. Perk. Sect. 590. Perk. Sect. 589. Co. ſuper. Litt. 42. 3 61. Perk. Sect. 590. Co. 2. 66. Co. ſuper Litt. 338.

If a feme ſole be ſeiſed of land in fee, and ſhe make a leaſe thereof to a ſtranger for life, and then take a husband, and the leſſee ſurrender to the husband, this is no good ſurrender, neither can it enure ſo, becauſe he to whom it is made hath not the reverſion in his own but in his wives right. Perk. Sect. 622.

2. In reſpect of the place where it is made. And where the ſurrender of land in one County may be good for the lands that doe lie in another county. Or not.

It is further alſo required in every good ſurrender, that if it be made by word and without deed, that then it be made in the ſame County where the land to be ſurrendred doth lie, but by writing a man may make a ſurrender of lands that doe lie in any other County, and in what place ſo ever it doth lie. And a ſurrender may be by word or writing of lands lying within the ſame County in any place out of the land. And therefore if tenant for life ſurrender to him in reverſion in any place out of the land within the ſame County, and the ſurrendree agree to it, the freehold is in him preſently. Bro. ſur. 2. 8. Fitz Partition. 5. Perk. Sect. 583.

3. In reſpect of the matter or thing. And of what things a ſurrender may be made. Or not.

3. That it be made of ſuch things, of which a ſurrender may be made. For ſurrenders may not be made of eſtates in fee-ſimple, or fee-taile, nor yet of rights or titles onely of eſtates for life or years, nor yet of part of an eſtate for life or years, as if a man have a leaſe for ten years, he cannot ſurrender the laſt ſeven years, and keep to himſelf himſelf the three years. But otherwiſe one may ſurrender any kinde of eſtate for life as by dower, by the curteſie, or as tenant in tail after poſſibility of iſſue extinct, or for years, or years determinable upon lives, and that of any meſuages, houſes, lands, commons, rents or the like, that are grantable from one to another, and ſuch ſurrenders are good. See Brownlows Rep. 1. *part.*40.41, 2. part. 155. Bro. ſurrend. in toto. Per. chap. Sur. in toto. Co 5. 11 ſuper. Litt. 338.

4. That there be words, or words and deeds ſufficient to make the mind of the ſurrendror to appear that he is willing and deſirous to part with & yield up the thing ſurrendred into the hands of the ſurrendree. And herein it is to be known that albeit the words ſurrender, Give or yeeld up, be the moſt ſignificant and proper words whereby to make a ſurrender, yet any other words, eſpecially if it be in the ſurrender of a leaſe for years that, do teſtifie and declare the will and aſſent of him that is the particular tenant, that he in the remainder or reverſion ſhall have the eſtate of the tenant, be ſufficient to paſs the eſtate by way of ſurrender. And therefore if leſſee for life or years doe by word or writing ſay, that he will hold the land no longer, and wiſh him in reverſion or remainder therefore to enter. Or that it is his deſire that he ſhall enter into the land, and have it and his eſtate therein: Or that he is content that he ſhall have his eſtate, or have his leaſe; ſuch, or any ſuch like declaration as this made to him in reverſion or remainder, will be a good ſurrender. Perk. Sect. 607 608, 609. Dier. 251. Bro. ſur. 1. 35. 37. 17. 21 H. 7. 7. So if leſſee for years deliver his Indenture to a ſtranger, to deliver it and all his eſtate up to him in reverſion, and doe appoint the ſtranger to deliver and ſurrender it to him in reverſion, and he doe ſo, and he in reverſion accept thereof, this is a good ſurrender; but otherwiſe it is of an eſtate for life.

4. In reſpect of the manner. And how and by what words a ſurrender may be made. And where it may be made without deed, and upon condition. Or not.

So if the particular Tenant doe by the words Give, Grant or Confirm, paſs his eſtate to him in reverſion, and he doe enter and agree to it; this is a good ſurrender.

And by all theſe ſurrenders the eſtates will paſs by way of ſurrender, except it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes where the intent of the parties doth plainly appear to be that the eſtate ſhall not paſs by way of ſurrender. See Brownl. 1. part. 208. Hil. 37 El. B. R. Sleigh and Batemans caſe. But if a leſſee for life or years doe only goe from the houſe or land; and carry away his goods and cattell, and ſo waive the poſſeſſion for a time, either becauſe the leſſor ſhall not diſtrain them for rent behind, or the like, and thereupon the leſſor doth enter and enjoy it; this is no ſurrender, neither is this a good yeelding up of his eſtate. And in ſuch a manner and by ſuch words as before, any thing that may be granted by word without writing, may be ſurrendred by word without writing, ſo as it be made within the ſame County where the thing ſurrendred doth lie.

And this holdeth true albeit the eſtate to bee ſurrendred were created by deed.

But ſuch things, as commons, rents, advowſons, reverſions, remainders, and the like, that cannot bee granted without deed cannot be ſurrendred without deed. And therefore if a leaſe be made for life, the remainder for life by word of mouth without any writing; he in the remainder for life cannot ſurrender his remainder for life without deed.

So where one hath a rent, advowſon or the like, as Tenant in Dower, or by the courteſie; this cannot be ſurrendred without Deed. And in caſe where there is any ſpeciall matter to be contained in the ſurrender, as reſervation of rent, condition, or the like, there for the moſt part it muſt be by deed; or it will not be good. And therefore if tenant for life declare himſelf by word of mouth to be contented and agreed that he in the reverſion ſhall have the land and his eſtate therein; rendring ten ſhillings a years Rent: or yaying ſuch a ſumme of money, or upon condition that if he ſurvive the leſſor he ſhall have it again &c. this is no good ſurrender. Perk. Sect. 581, 582, 583. Fitz. Sur. 1. Co. ſuper Litt. 338. Dier. 251. Bro. Sur. 16. And a ſurrender may be made alſo upon a condition precedent or ſubſequent, as if it be with reſervation of rent that if it be not paid it ſhall be void; but if it be an eſtate for life that is ſo ſurrendred, it ſeems it muſt be made by writing indented, and ſo likewiſe it ſhould ſeem the law is of the ſurrender of a leaſe for years upon a condition, or however it is moſt ſafe ſo to doe. Perk. Sect. 607, 608. 609, Dier. 251. Bro. ſur. 1, 35. 37. 17. 21 H. 7. 7. Hil. 37 *El. B. R. Sleigh and Batemans caſe. Perk. 5. That the ſurrendree doe agree to, and accept of it for untill then the ſurrender is not perfect, but if the ſurrendree doe once agree to it, he cannot after diſagree, for his firſt agreement doth perfect the ſurrender. But the actuall entry of the ſurrendree into the land is not neceſſary. And therefore if tenant for life or years ſurrender to him in reverſion out of the land, and he agree to it, he hath the land in him preſently. And yet he may not bring any action of Treſpas againſt any man for any Treſpaſs done upon the land untill he have made his entry. Perk. Sect. 608. Litt. Bro. 163. March. Rep. 5.

5. In reſpect of the agreement of him to whom the ſurrender is made. And what agreement is neceſſary. Agreement. Treſpaſs.

If I make a leaſe to I. S. for ſo many years as I. D. ſhall name, I. S. cannot ſurrender this before I. D. name the time. Goldsb. 168. by Judge Popham.

But here note, that in the caſes before where things may not paſs by way of ſurrender, either becauſe of an intervenient eſtate, or the like; if there be ſufficient words in the deed, it may avail to other purpoſes, and may enure and paſs the thing by way of grant; but then if it be an eſtate for life that is intended to be ſurrendred, there muſt be livery of ſeiſin made upon the deed. And wherefore if there be leſſee for years, the remainder for life or years, the remainder in fee, and the leſſee for years in poſſeſſion doth ſurrender and grant all his eſtate to him in remainder in fee; howſoever this deed cannot enure as a ſurrender, yet it ſhall enure as a good grant of the eſtate of the leſſee for years unto him in remainder in fee. Perk. Sect. 588. 589.

6. How a ſurrender ſhall be conſtrued and taken.

A ſurrender in generall ſhall be taken moſt ſtrongly againſt the ſurrendror, and moſt beneficially for the ſurrendree. And therefore if I hold of the leaſe of A. one acre for life, and another acre for years, and I ſurrender to A. all my lands, or all my lands I hold of his leaſe; by this ſurrender both the acres are ſurrendred. But if the ſurrender be of all the lands I have or hold for life, or of all the lands I have or hold for years of the leaſe of A. contra. And if I hold one acre for life of the leaſe of the father of I. S. and I hold another acre for life or years of the leaſe of I. S. himſelf, and I ſurrender to I. S. all the land I hold of his leaſe; by this the land that I had by the leaſe of his father doth not paſs. A ſurrender to one jointenant ſhall be conſtrued to enure to them all. But if tenant for life or years grant his eſtate to one of the jointenants in reverſion, it ſeems this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender to them all, but as a grant to him alone. Perk. Sect 610. 611 Perk. Sect. 615. Bro. Sur. 54.

If the leſſor make, and the leſſee take a new leaſe upon condition, this ſurrender in law is abſolute, and albeit the condition be broken, yet the firſt leaſe is gone. But if the leſſee ſurrender or grant his eſtate to the leſſor upon condition; this condition if it be broken may reveſt the eſtate. Co ſuper Litt. 218.

See more in the next queſtion, and in Expoſition of Deeds.

7. Where a feoffment, leaſe, grant, or other act made, or done by the tenant for life or years, ſhall be a ſurrender or not. And how it ſhall enure or be conſtrued and taken.

1. When it is made to him in reverſion or remainder.

If any kind of tenant for life of land infeoff him in remainder or reverſion of the land, or grant his eſtate to him in remainder or reverſion; this ſhall enure as a ſurrender. And if leſſee for years before his term doe begin, make a feoffment to him in reverſion or remainder, or grant his eſtate to him, this ſhall enure as a ſurrender And if leſſee for life grant his eſtate to him in reverſion, the remainder in fee to another; this ſhall enure as a ſurrender, and this remainder is void. But if ſuch a tenant for life make a leaſe to him in remainder or reverſion for the terme of the life of him in remainder or reverſion; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender becauſe it doth not give the whole eſtate, but it ſhal enure by way of grant. So if leſſee for life make a leaſe to him in remainder in tail for term of the life of him in remainder; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, but as a grant, and ſhall end with the life of the grantee. If leſſee for forty years make a leaſe for thirty ſeven years on condition, & after grant his eſtate to him in reverſion, and the ſecond leſſee atturn; this ſhall enure as a ſurrender. If there be tenant for life, the remainder in tail to a ſtranger, and the remainder in tail to another ſtranger, the remainder in fee to the tenant for life, and the tenant for life doth make a feoffment to the firſt tenant in tail, this ſhall enure as a ſurrender of the eſtate for life and as a grant of the reverſion in fee alſo. If tenant for life being a woman take a husband

Husband, and then her Husband and ſhe by Deed indented make a leaſe to him in reverſion for the life of the Husband; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, but as a grant. If there be Tenant for his own life, the remainder to I S for his life, and the firſt Tenant for life ſurrender to him in remainder for the life of him in remainder; it ſeems this ſhall enure as a ſurrender, and is no forfeiture; but if he grant it to him for the life of a ſtranger, and make livery of ſeiſin, this is a forfeiture. If Leſſee for life, the Reverſion being in jointenants, grant the Land to one or all of the jointenants for twenty years; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, but as a grant, for there remains an intereſt in the Leſſee ſtill as a mean eſtate. If Leſſee for years make him in Reverſion or Remainder his Executor; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, albeit it doe give him the whole eſtate. If Land be given to the Husband and Wife, the Remainder to I, S, and the Husband diſcontinue in Fee, and take back an eſtate to him and his Wife, the Remainder to W N, and die, and the Wife claim in by the ſecond eſtate, and ſurrender to W N; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, but as a grant: Bro. ſur. 3. 5. Perk. ſect. 616. 620. 623. Co. ſuper Lit. 42. *Bro. Forfeiture.

2. When it is done or made to him and a ſtranger.

If Leſſee for life or years grant his eſtate to him in Remainder or Reverſion and a ſtranger; this ſhall enure as a ſurrender of the one half to him in Reverſion and as a grant of the other moity to the ſtranger. And yet it is ſaid, that if Leſſee for life of Land grant his eſtate to him in the Reverſion and two others, that hereby they have a joint eſtate, and the ſurvivor ſhall have the whole. If Leſſee for life make a leaſe for his own life to the Leſſor, the Remainder to the Leſſor and a ſtranger in Fee; this ſhall enure as a ſurrender of the one moity, and a forfeiture of the other moity.

Forfeiture.

If Tenant for life ſurrender to the Husband of a woman Tenant in Tail or in Fee; this ſhall enure as a grant, not as a ſurrender. And ſo alſo it ſeems is the Law when the ſurrender is to the Husband and Wife. And if B be Tenant for life, the remainder to C in Tail, the remainder to D in Tail, and B infeoff C and S his Wife in Fee; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, but it is a forfeiture: ſo that if C die without iſſue D may enter. If there be Leſſee for life, the reverſion to two Coparcenours, and one of them take a Husband, and the Leſſee doth grant his eſtate to her and her Husband; this ſhall not enure as a ſurrender, but as a grant. And yet if Tenant for life doe grant his eſtate to the Husband and Wife, ſhe having the reverſion if ſhe be an infant and within age at this time: it ſeems this ſhall enure as a ſurrender, not as a grant, Bro. ſurrender 11. Co. 2. 61. 3. 61. Perk. ſect. 619. Co. ſuper Litt. 335. Perk. ſect. 622. Bro. ſurrender 20. 34. 23. Bro. ſurrender 46 Perk. ſect. 623. 21 H. 7. 40. Bro. ſurrender 34.

3. When it is done with him in reverſion or remainder.

If Tenant for life, or years, and he in Reverſion or Remainder by word without Deed join in a Feoffment; it ſhall be ſaid the ſurrender of the eſtate for life or years to him in the reverſion, and the Feoffment of him in reverſion.

But if he in reverſion infeoff the Tenant for life without any Deed; this ſhall enure firſt as a ſurrender of the Leaſe for life, and then as a Feoffment, See more in Deed Numb. and ſee Brownl. 2 part 75. 156. Plow. 140. Dier 358.

8. Where a Deed or Rent may be ſurrendred. And how ſuch a ſurrender ſhall enure or be taken.

If I have a rent in Fee, for life, or years, iſſuing ont of another mans Manor, or other lands, I may ſurrender it, for if I deliver the Deed of the grant of the rent to be cancelled unto any one that hath any eſtate of the Manor or Land in Fee-ſimple, for life, or years, in poſſeſſion or remainder, either ſolely by himſelf, or jointly with others, this is a good ſurrender, and hereby the rent is extinct and gone.

But one that is Tenant in Tail of a Rent cannot ſurrender it, neither will the delivering up of the Deed in this caſe determine the rent.

And if one be ſeiſed of Land out of which a rent is iſſuing in Fee, and is diſſeiſed, and during the diſſeiſin the grantee of the rent ſurrender his rent, and give up his Deed; it ſeems this doth not extinguiſh the rent, yet hath the Grantee no remedy for his rent when he hath delivered up his Deed. And yet if one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, out of which a rent is iſſuing in Fee, and he die without Heir, ſo that the Land Eſcheat, and before the Lord enter upon his Eſcheat, he that hath the Rent doth ſurrender the Deed of the Rent to the Lord; it ſeems this is a good Surrender to extinguiſh the Rent. And if the Grantee of a Rent-charge in Fee, grant the ſame to him in Fee, that is ſeiſed of the Land in Fee; this ſhall enure to extinguiſh the Rent, but if he grant it to one that hath onely an Eſtate for life, contrà. 14 *H.*7.2. *Perk. Of Tenants.

to

FOr all ſorts of Tenants holding Eſtates, theſe things are to be known.

Tenant in Fee-ſimple.

1. The Tenant in Fee-ſimple of Land hath the moſt abſolute Eſtate; and for him and his Eſtate, theſe things are to be known.

Firſt, He may diſpoſe this Land or Eſtate by Act executed, or his laſt Will at his pleaſure, or he may charge it at his pleaſure.

Secondly, He may make what waſte and deſtruction he will upon his Land.

Thirdly, His Wife ſhall have Dower of a thirds of it, her Husband ſhall be Tenant by the courteſie of it that hath it.

Fourthly, He may notwithſtanding forfeit it by committing Treaſon or Felony.

Fifthly, It will be liable to the Debts, the which he doth by Deed, engage his Heir to pay. See Eſtates.

Tenant in Tail.

2. The like may be ſaid of a Tenant in Tail, ſave onely in the Caſe of Forfeiture by committing of Felony: And if he will diſpoſe of, or charge his Land for longer time then his own life, he muſt do it by Fine or Recovery, otherwiſe by Deed he cannot do it.

Tenant in Tail after poſſibility of Iſſue Extinct.

3. But a Tenant in Tail after poſſibility of Iſſue Extinct, hath but an Eſtate for life: And this although, as to the quality of it, it hath more Privileges then other Eſtates for life, for this Tenant is not puniſhable for Waſte; yet not as to the quantity: Therefore if this Tenant make an Eſtate in Fee ſimple, Fee-tail, or for any other life then his own of his Land, he doth forfeit it no more then any other Tenant that holdeth for his own life, as Tenant in Dower, by the Courteſie, or for his own, or for anothers life.

Tenant by the Courteſie, in Dower, for his own, or for anothers life.

As touching all which Eſtates, theſe things are to be known.

1. That none of theſe, but the firſt, can commit Waſte, onely they may take and ſhall have reaſonable Eſtovers of Fire-boot, Plough-boot, Houſ-boot, Hay-boot, &c.

2. They cannot charge, or grant it, but for their own lives, and if they do ſo they will forfeit their Eſtates.

3. If they grant their Eſtates to another for their lives, or hold for anothers life, and they die that hold the Land, ſo there will be an Occupancy, if it be not carefully prevented.

4. There ſhall be no Tenancy in Dower, or by the Courteſie under ſuch a Tenant.

5. They cannot make it liable to their Debts, but for their own time.

6. It is forfeitable for Treaſon or Felony: But it ſhall not be forfeit by an Outlawry, as a Leaſe for years ſhall be.

7. The like is for a Leaſe for years; wherein theſe things are to be known.

Tenant for years.

1. That a Leaſe for years ſhall go to an Executor or Adminiſtrator as a Chattle, which a Leaſe for life cannot do.

2. The Tenant may grant or charge it, during the Leaſe onely, and if the Tenant make a Feoffment, Gift in Tail, or Leaſe for life of the Land, he forfeits it.

3. He may not do Waſte.

4. If the Tenant be out-lawed, though but in a Perſonal Action, he doth forfeit it.

5. The Tenant at Will, and at Sufferance, is the loweſt and leaſt Eſtate of all; this cannot be granted, nor charged, nor injoyed but at pleaſure.

See for theſe things in Eſtates.

Of the Term-time, and Tame Beaſts.

Term, what.

Vacation.

THis word Term is ſometimes taken for the bounds and limits of time, as a Leaſe for Term of life, or for Term of years; or elſe for the time, when the Courts at Weſtminſter, are all open to hear all Complaints for Wrongs, and to ſeek Right by courſe of Law: To which, in this reſpect, is oppoſed the reſt of the year called Vacations. And of theſe Terms, are four in the year; but for them and their Retorns. See Retorn. 32 *H.*8.21. Marlb ch. 12. And the new Statute of 16, 17 *Car.*6. By which, Michaelmas Term is to begin at Tres Michael, for the keeping of Eſſoyns, Profers, Retorns, and other Ceremonies heretofore uſed, and the full Term ſhall be four days after, unleſs it hap on a Sunday, then it is to be the next day. And in this Term ſhall be but ſix Retorns, viz. Tres Michael. Menſ. Michael. Craſt. Anim. Craſt. Mar. Oct. Martin. and Quind. Martin.

Sect. 1. For Time, theſe things are to be known.

Temps or Time.

Inſtance.

1. The Law doth divide and apply Inſtance (a thing not dividable by Logicians) to ſeveral purpoſes, as if they were ſeveral times. And herein are two Rules or Fictions of Law. Firſt, Priority of time is imagined in things done together. Secondly, In things done in an inſtant, a Priority is ſuppoſed alſo. Hence it is, that he that killeth himſelf, is adjudged a Felon, albeit he be not a Felon, till he have done it, and then he is not in being. *Plow.*110. 540. 11 *H.*7.12. 7 *H.*4.16.

2. In divers caſes the Law doth reſtrain and limit men to a time, for the having or taking of ſome benefit, preventing ſome loſs, or doing of ſome thing, and herein the time is reaſonable, and according to the nature of the thing. As for the bringing of Actions, in divers Caſes there are divers Times; for which ſee 21 Jac. 16. and in Actions. So upon Penal Laws, the Sute muſt be according to the time ſet by the Law; for which ſee Action Popular. For the preventing of a Mans Bar to his Right in Land, by a Fine upon the Statute, he muſt enter or claim within five years; for which ſee Fine. To prevent the loſs of his Goods, as a Waiff, Eſtray, or Wreck, he muſt put in his Claim within a year. To prevent the Bar of a Fine at Common Law, or a Recovery in a Writ of Right, he muſt make his Claim within a year and a day: And if Goods be loſt in War, and recovered from the enemy, the owner muſt claim them before the Sun-ſet, or elſe the taker ſhall have them. Co. upon Littl. 254. 135, 136. 7 *Ed.*4.14. *Plow.*272. 16. 3. The Lord Protector by his Prerogative, is to have the Lands of Felons, that Eſcheat to other Lords, he is to have them firſt of all for a year and a day, and no longer to make ſpoil thereof, by Raſing, Earing, Cutting, and Subverting, Houſes, Trees, Meadows, &c. But this is to be underſtood when a Tenant in Fee-ſimple is attainted, for where a Tenant in Tail, or Tenant for life, is attainted of Felony, there the Lord Protector will have the profits of the Land, during the life of the Tenant in Tail, or of the Tenant for life. Co. 2 part, Inſt. 37.

CHAP. CLV.

Of a Teſtament.

A Teſtament is the ful and compleat declaration of a mans mind or laſt will of that he would have to be done after his death: It is in Latin Teſtamentum, i. Teſtatis mentis, the witneſs of a mans mind; and to deviſe by Teſtament, is to ſpeak by a mans Will what his mind is to have done after his death: And this is ſometimes called a Will, or laſt Will; for theſe words are Synonima, and are as it ſeems promiſcuouſly uſed in our Law: yet moſt properly, a Will is of Land, and a Teſtament requires Executors. Howſoever by the Civill Law, it is then only ſaid to be a Teſtament when there is an Executor made and named in it; and when there is none but a Codicill only; for a Codicill is the ſame that a Teſtament is, but that it is without an Executor; and a man can make but one Teſtament that ſhall take effect, but he may make as many Codicills as he will. And by the Common Law where Lands or Tenements are deviſed in writing, albeit there be no Executor named, yet there is properly called a laſt Will, and where it doth concerne Chattels only, a Teſtament. He that doth make the Teſtament is called the Teſtator; and when a man dieth without Will, he is ſaid to die inteſtate. Terms of the Law, Bro. ſect. 300. Co. ſuper Lit. 111. Swinb. of Wills 24.

1. Teſtament. what.

Codicil. what.

Teſtator.

Inteſtate.

Of Teſtaments there be two ſorts, namely a Teſtament in writing or a written Teſtament, which is, where the minde of the Teſtator in his life time, by himſelf or ſome other, by his appointment, is put in writing. And a Teſtament by word or without writing, which is, where a man is ſick, and for fear leaſt death or want of memory, or ſpeech, ſhould ſurprize him, that he ſhould be prevented if he ſtayed the writing of his Teſtament, deſireth his neighbours and friends to bear witneſs of his laſt Will, and then declareth the ſame preſently by words before them; And this is called a Nuncupative, or Nuncupatorie Teſtament: And this being after his death proved by Witneſſes, and put in writing by the Ordinary, is of as great force for any other thing but Land, as when at the firſt in the life of the Teſtator it is put in writing. A Codicill alſo is in writing, or by word as a Teſtament is: The Civilians have other diviſions of Wills and Teſtaments, as ſolemn and unſolemn, priviledged and unpriviledged, whereof the Common Law maketh no mention. Perk. ſect. 476. Co. ſuper Lit. 111.

The kinds.

Nuncupative.

The parts of every compleat Teſtament whereof it doth conſiſt, are two.

1. The making of Deviſes, or giving of Legacies. 2. The making and Ordination of an Executor; for a Teſtament can be no more without, then a Codicill can be with an Executor. Terms of the Law, tit. Deviſe. Co ſuper Litt. 111. Swinb. lib. 1. c. 7.

2 The Parts of it.

Deviſe or Legacy, what.

A Deviſe or Legacy is where a man in his Teſtament doth give any thing to another; the firſt of theſe Terms is properly applied to the gift of Lands, and the laſt to the gift of goods or chattels: and therefore a Deviſe ſtrictly is ſaid to be where a man in his Teſtament doth give his lands to another after his deceaſe; and a Legacy is ſaid to be where a man in his Teſtament doth give any chattell to another to have after the death of the Teſtator; but the word is promiſcuouſly applied to the one and to the other. And he that gives by ſuch a Will is called the Deviſor, and he to whom the thing is given, the Deviſee or Legatee.

Deviſor, Deviſee, or Legatee.

Quotuplex.

And a deviſe is ſometimes ſimple and without condition, as where I give my land to another and his heires, or I give 20l. to another, without more words. And ſometimes it is with a condition, which is when there is a quality added to the deviſe or legacy, whereby the effect of it ſuſpended or hindred, and it is thereby made to depend on ſome future event.

Conditionall Deviſe.

And this condition in this caſe may be made almoſt by any words, as if I give to one my land if he pay 20l. to my Daughter, or ſo as he pay 20l. to my Daughter, or paying 20l. to my Daughter, or I give one 20l. if he marry my Daughter, or when he ſhall marry my Daughter, or I give my Wife 20l. a year whiles ſhe ſhall live unmarried, or I give to him, or to whomſoever ſhall marry my Daughter 20l. or the like; in all theſe caſes the deviſe is conditionall. The firſt kind of deviſe is called by the Civillians a ſimple aſſignation, and the latter a conditionall aſſignation. Dyer 317. 74. Co. ſuper Lit. 217. Swinb. 132, 134. 136.

Executor what.

An Executor in a large ſenſe is taken for any one that is appointed to have the diſpoſition and ordering of the goods and chattels of a man that is dead. And ſo there are three kinds of Executors: the firſt is à lege conſtitutus, who is therefore called legitimus, and ſuch a one is the Ordinary of the Dioceſs who hath ordinary Iuriſdiction in matters Eccleſiaſticall: the ſecond is à Teſtatore conſtitutus, who is therefore called Teſtamentarius, and he is ſtrictly and properly called an Executor, and is defined to be one appointed by a mans laſt Will and Teſtament to have the diſpoſing and adminiſtration of all or part of a mans goods and chattels, and to perform a mans laſt Will and Teſtament according to the contents thereof: the third is ab Epiſcopo conſtitutus who is therefore ſaid to be Dativus. And ſuch a one is an Adminiſtrator, who is defined to be one that hath the goods and chattels of a man dying inteſtate committed to his charge by the Ordinary for want of an Executor. And his power, benefit and charge is in all things equall to the power, benefit, and charge of an Executor. New Terms of the Law. Co. 8. 135, Plow. 288. Co. ſuper Litt. 209. Co. 9. 40.

Ordinary.

Adminiſtrator

Quotuplex.

The Executor and Adminiſtrator alſo is ſometimes univerſall or totall, i. one that hath the power and diſpoſition of the whole perſonall eſtate committed to him. And ſometimes he is particular or partiall, i one that hath the power and diſpoſition of ſome part of the eſtate, or of all the eſtate for a time only committed to him. And ſometimes he is abſolute, i. ſuch a one that hath an abſolute power of the eſtate, as Executor or Adminiſtrator, and ſometimes he is conditionall, i. one that hath a limited and conditionall power of the eſtate only. And in both caſes he ſhall be charged and chargable for ſo much as is committed to him as the Teſtator or inteſtate himſelfe: for this cauſe the Executor is ſaid to repreſent the perſon of the Teſtator; for as to the eſtate committed to his truſt he may charge others, and be charged himſelf, ſue and be ſued, as the Teſtator himſelf might. And the eſtate he hath by his Executorſhip is ſaid to be in him to the uſe of the Teſtator and in his right: and that he doth in the diſpoſition of his eſtate is ſaid to be in the right and to the uſe of the Teſtator alſo; And the Adminiſtrator hath the ſame power and property over and in the goods and chattels, the ſame remedy by Suit, and ſo farr forth ſhall be charged as the Executor; for they differ not in nature, but in name only. And yet the Adminiſtrator is but the Ordinaries deputy, and he may revoke the Adminiſtration, or call the Adminiſtrator to an account. Dyer 4. Bro. Executor 155. Co. 6, 19, Co. ſuper Lit. 209: Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11: Co. 9: 40. 8. 135.

Repreſent the perſon of the Teſtator.

3. The nature and effect of a Teſtament, and of a Codicill.

A Teſtament is of that nature that it doth much differ from other acts and deeds that men doe and execute in their life times: for albeit it be made, ſealed and publiſhed in never ſo ſolemn a manner, yet it hath no life nor vertue in it untill the Teſtators death; for it is a Maxime in Law, Omne Teſtamentum morte conſummatum eſt, Et voluntas ambulatoria uſque ad extremum vitæ exitum; it is therefore reſemved untill death to the interlocutory ſentence, and after death to the definitive ſentence of a Iudge. And hence it is ſaid, Sed legum ſervanda fides, ſuprema voluntas. Quod mandat fierique jubet parere neceſſe eſt. Swinb. 12, Dyer 143: Co: ſuper Lit. 112. Litt ſect. 168. Co. 4. 61. And for this cauſe a man may alter, or make void his will at his pleaſure, and he may make as many new Wills and Teſtaments as he will, and there is no means under the Sun to barr a man of this liberty, Lit. Bro. Sect. 300. And the latter Teſtament doth always revoke and overthrow the former; but otherwiſe it is of a Codicill; Lit. Sect. 168. Perk ſect. 478. for a man may make as many of theſe as he will, and make no Teſtament at all; Swinb. 13. 14, or if he make a Teſtament he may afterwards make as many Codicils as he will, and one of them will not overthrow the other; for in the firſt caſe they muſt all be annexed to the the letters of Adminiſtration, and the Adminiſtrator muſt perform them, and in the latter caſe they muſt be all annexed to the Teſtament, and the Executor muſt take care to performe them. Bro. Teſtament 20.

A Teſtament therefore is ſaid to have three degrees.

1. An Inception, which is the making of it.
2. A Progreſſion, which is the publication of it.
3. A Conſummation, which is the death of the Teſtator, Plow. 343. 344.

In grants therefore, the firſt is of greateſt force, but in Teſtaments the laſt is of greateſt force.

But when a Teſtament is perfect by the death of the party, it doth as effectually give and transferr eſtates and alter the property of lands and goods, as acts executed by deed in the life time of the parties. Co ſuper Litt. 1. for hereby diſcents of lands are prevented, and a man may make eſtates in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years, of Lands, Tenements, Rents, Reverſions, or ſervices as effectually as by Deed; and theſe eſtates alſo will be good without any Livery of Seiſin, or Attournement. And hereby alſo Rents, and power to diſtraine for them may be reſerved: conditions created and annexed to eſtates, or things deviſed. Lit. Sect. 167. 168.

And therefore they that take by deviſes of Lands, are ſaid to take in the nature of purchaſors. Perk. Sect. 505. And if therefore a Tenant in Tail make a Feoffment to the uſe of himſelf in Fee, and after deviſe the ſame land to his Wife in Fee, and die; the ſon is not remitted, though the Father die ſeiſed: for the deviſe doth prevent the diſcent. Dyer 221.

To the making of every good Teſtament, theſe things are requiſite. Co. 6. 3.

4. What ſhall be ſaid a good and a ſufficient Teſtament Or not. First, in reſpect of the perſon that doth make it, and the thing whereof it is made. And what Perſons may make a Teſtament, And of what things, or not And how. A Feme Covert,

1. That the Teſtator be a perſon able to make a Teſtament, and not diſabled for any ſpeciall cauſe, either in reſpect of his perſon, mind or condition, or in reſpect of the thing whereof the Teſtament is to be made. And for this it muſt be known.

That a Woman that hath a Husband, cannot make a Teſtament of her Land or Goods, except it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes; for of her Lands ſhe can make no Teſtament with, or without her Husbands conſent (Stat. 32. & 34 H. 8. c. 5. Co. 4 51. Bro. Teſtament 13) of the Goods and Chattels ſhe hath as Executrix to any other, ſhe may make an Executor without her Husbands conſent; for if ſhe do not ſo, the Adminiſtration of them muſt be granted to the next of kin to the deceaſed Teſtator, and ſhall not go to the Husband, (12 H. 7. 14. Perk. ſect. 501. Fitz. Executor 40.) but of them ſhe can make no deviſe with or without her Husbands leave, for they are not deviſable; and if ſhe do deviſe them, the deviſe is void. And of the things due to the wife whereof ſhe was not poſſeſſed during the marriage, as things in action and the like, it ſeemes ſhe may make her Teſtament, at leaſt ſhe may make her Husband Executor, of her Paraphonalia. Plow. 526. Fitz. Executor 109. viz. her neceſſary wearing apparell, being that which is fit for one of her rank: ſome ſay ſhe may make a Teſtament without her Husbands leave, others doubt of this, howbeit all agree that ſhe and not his Executor ſhall have this after her Husbands death, and that the Husband cannot give it away from her. And of the goods and chattels her Husband hath, either by her or otherwiſe, ſhe may not make a Teſtament without the licence and conſent of her Husband firſt had ſo to do. But with his leave and conſent ſhe may make a Teſtament of his goods, and make him her Executor if ſhe will. 12 H. 7. 24. 18 Ed 4. 11. Perk. Sect. 501. Fitz Executor 5. 28. 109. Bro. Teſtament 11.

And it is ſaid alſo, that if ſhe do make a Teſtament of his Goods (in truth without his leave and conſent) and he after her death ſuffer the Will to be proved, and deliver the goods accordingly; in this caſe the Teſtament is good.

And yet if the Husband give his Wife leave to make a Teſtament of his goods, and ſhe do ſo, he may revoke the ſame at any time in her life time, or after her death before the Will be proved.

But a Woman after contract with any man, may before the marriage make a Teſtament as well as any other, and is not at all diſabled hereby.

An

An Infant. An Infant untill he be of the age of 21 years can make no Teſtament of his lands by the Statutes of 32 & 34 H. 8. But by ſpeciall cuſtome in ſome places where land is deviſable by cuſtome he may deviſe it ſooner. And of his goods and chattels, if he be a boy, he may make a Teſtament at fourteen years of age and not before; and if a Maid, at twelve years of age and not before; and then they may do it without, and againſt the conſent of their Tutor, Father, or Guardian, Stat. 32 Ed. 34. H. 8. cap. 5. Perk. Sect. 503. 504. Br. Cuſtome 50. Swin. 37, 38. And yet ſome ſay an Infant cannot make a Teſtament of his goods and chattels untill he be eighteen years of age. Co. ſuper Lit. 89

A Lunaticks perſon. A mad or lunatick perſon during the time of his infanity of mind cannot make a Teſtament of Lands or goods; but ſuch a one as hath his lucida intervalla, cleer or calm intermiſſions, may during the time of ſuch quietneſs and freedom of mind make his Teſtament, and it will be good.

An Idiot. So alſo an Idiote i. ſuch a one as cannot number twenty, or tell what age he is, or the like, cannot make a Teſtament, or diſpoſe of his lands or goods; and albeit he doe make a wiſe, reaſonable, and ſenſible Teſtament, yet is the Teſtament void. Perk. ſect. 503, 504. 24. Swinb. 37. 40 Swinb. 39. 40. Swinb. 42. But ſuch a one as is of a meane underſtanding only, that hath groſſum caput, and is of the middle ſort between a wiſe man and a fool, is not prohibited to make a Teſtament.

An old man. So alſo an old man that by reaſon of his great age is childiſh againe, or ſo forgetfull that he doth forget his own name, cannot make a Teſtament; for a Teſtamant made by ſuch a one is void. So alſo it ſeemes a drunken man, that is ſo exceſſively drunk, that he is deprived of the uſe of reaſon and underſtanding, during that time, may not make a Teſtament, for it is requiſite when the Teſtator doth make his Will, that he be of ſound and perfect memory, i. e. that he have a reaſonable memory and underſtanding to diſpoſe of his eſtate with reaſon, Co. 6. 23. Hill. 3 Car. per the Lord Keeper in the Chancery.

A deafe and dumb man. A man that is both deaf and dumb, and that is ſo by nature, cannot make a Teſtament. But a man that is ſo by accident, may by writing or ſignes make a Teſtament. And ſo may a man that is deafe or dumb by nature or accident. And ſo alſo may a man that is blind. Swinb. 53.

An alien. An alien born cannot make a Teſtament of Lands or goods. A man that is entred into Religion, cannot make a Teſtament. Curia. B. R. 7 Iac.

A Traitor. A Traitor attainted from the time of the Treaſon committed can make no Teſtament of his Lands or Goods; for they are all forfeit to the King; but after the time he hath a pardon from the King for his offence, he may make a Teſtament of his Lands or Goods as another man.

A Felon. A man that is attainted or convict of Felony cannot make a Teſtament of his Lands or Goods, for they are forfeit; but if a man be only indicted, and die before attainder, his Teſtament is good for his Lands and goods both. And if he be indicted and will not anſwer upon his arraignment, but ſtandeth mute, &c. in this caſe his Lands are not forfeit, and therefore it ſeemes he may make a Teſtament of them. And if a man kill himſelf, his Teſtament as to his Goods and Chattels is void, but as to his Lands is good. Stat. 5. & 6. Ed. 6. c. 11. Swinb 54. Prerogativa Regis. Plow. 258. 259. Plow. 261.

A Felo de ſe. An outlawed perſon. A Corporation. A Villaine. A man that is outlawed in a perſonall action cannot make a Teſtament of his Goods and Chattels ſo long as the outlawry doth continue in force; but of his Lands he may make a Teſtament. The head, or any of the members of a corporation may not make a Teſtament of his Lands or Goods they have in Common, for they ſhall goe in ſucceſſion. A Villaine cannot make a Teſtament of his Lands or Goods after the Lord hath ſeiſed them. But here note, that howſoever the Teſtaments of Traitors, Aliens, Felons, Out-lawed perſons, and Villaines, be void as to the King, or Lord that hath right to the Lands or Goods by forfeiture or otherwiſe, yet it ſeems the Teſtament is good againſt the Teſtator himſelf, and all others but ſuch perſons only. And here note further alſo. By the Civill Law alſo the Teſtaments of divers others, as Excommunicate perſons, Hereticks, Uſurers, Inceſtuous perſons, Sodomites, Libellers, and the like, are void. But by our law, the Teſtaments of ſuch perſons, at leaſt as to their lands, are good by the Statutes that do enable men to deviſe their lands. Fiz. Dec. 16. Fitz. Teſtament 1. Swinb. 155, &c. 32. & 34 H. 8. Perk. Sect. 496.

But

But all other perſons whatſoever, Male or Female, old or young, lay or ſpirituall, Rich or Poor, at any time before their death whiles they are able to ſpeak ſo diſtinctly, or write ſo plainly as another may underſtand them, and underſtand that they underſtand themſelves, may make Teſtaments of their Lands, Goods, and Chattels, and that albeit they have ſworn to the contrary: and none are reſtrained of this liberty, but ſuch as are before named. See more infra to this matter, and Capacitie, Abilitie.

The ſecond thing required to the making of a good Teſtament is, that he that doth make it have at the time of the making of it, Animum teſtandi, a mind to diſpoſe, a firme reſolution and adviſed determination to make a Teſtament; otherwiſe the Teſtament will be void; for it is the mind not the words of the Teſtator that doth give life to the Teſtament, for if a man raſhly, unadviſedly, incidently, jeſtingly, or boaſtingly, and not ſeriouſly write or ſay that ſuch a one ſhall be his Executor, or have all his goods, or that he will give to ſuch a one ſuch a thing; this is no Teſtament, nor to be regarded. And the mind of the Teſtator herein is to be diſcovered by circumſtances; for if at the time he be ſick, or ſet himſelf ſeriouſly to make his Teſtament, or require witneſſes to bear witneſs of it, it ſhall be deemed in earneſt; but if it be by way of diſcourſe onely, or of ſome what he would do hereafter, or the like, it ſhall be taken for nothing, See more infra at Numb. 7. Swin. 9. 121. 324, 325. Secondly, in reſpect of the mind of him that doth make it.

The third thing required in a good Teſtament, is, that the minde of the Teſtator in the making of it bee free, and not moved by fear, fraud, or flattery, for when a Teſtator is moved to make his Teſtament by fear, or circumvented by fraud, or overcome by ſome immoderate flattery; the ſame is void, or at leaſt voidable by exception. And therefore if a man by occaſion of ſome preſent fear, or violence, or threatning of future evils do at the ſame time, or afterwards by the ſame motive make a Teſtament: this Teſtament is void, not only as to him that put him ſo in fear, but as to all others, albeit the Teſtator confirm it with an oath. But if the cauſe of fear be ſome vain matter, or being weighty is removed, and the Teſtator doth afterwards when the fear is paſt, confirm the Teſtament; in this caſe perhaps the Teſtament may be good. And if a man by occaſion of ſome fraud or deceit be moved to make a Teſtament, if the deceit be ſuch as may move a prudent man or woman, and if it be evill alſo, the Teſtament is void, or voidable at the leaſt; but if the deceit be light and ſmall, or if it be to a good end, as where a man is about to give all his eſtate to ſome lewd perſon from his wife and children, and they perſwade the Teſtator that the lewd fellow is dead, or the like, and thereby procure him to give his eſtate to them; this is a good Teſtament. And one may by honeſt interceſſions & modeſt perſwaſions procure another to make himſelf or a ſtranger Executor to him, or the like, and this will not hurt the Teſtament. Alſo a man may uſe fair and flattering ſpeeches to move the Teſtator to make his Teſtament, and to give his eſtate unto himſelf, or ſome friend of his, except it be in caſe where the flatterer doth firſt beate or threaten him, or put him in fear, or to his flattery joineth fraud and deceit, or the Teſtator is a perſon of weak judgement, or under the danger or government of the flatterer, as when the Phyſician ſhall perſwade his Patient under his hands to make his Teſtament, and give his eſtate to himſelf; or the wife attending on her Husband in his ſickneſs ſhall neglect him, and continually provoke him to give her all, or where the perſwader is importunate and will have no deniall, or when there is another Teſtament made before; for in all theſe caſes the Teſtament will be in danger to be avoided. And if I be much privie to another mans mind, and he tell me often in his health how he doth intend to ſettle his eſtate, and he being ſick, I doe of mine own head draw a will according to his mind, before declared to me, and bring it to him, and ask him whether this ſhall be his will or no, and he doth conſider of it, and then deliver him back to me, and ſay yea; this is a good Teſtament. But if otherwiſe, ſome friends of a ſick man of their own heads, ſhall make a Will and bring it to a man in extremity of ſickneſs, and read it to him, and ask him whether this ſhall be his Will, and he ſay yea, yea: Or if a man be in great extremity of ſickneſs; and read it to him, and ask him whether this ſhall be his Will, Thirdly, in reſpect of the occaſion or motive of it.

and he ſay yea, yea: Or if a man be in great extremity, and his friends preſs him much, and ſo wreſt words from him, eſpecially if it be in advantage of them, or ſome friends of theirs; in theſe caſes the Teſtaments are very ſuſpitious.

But as touching theſe two laſt things, Quære how they ſhall avail in the Wills of Lands which are not regulated ſo much by the Civill Law.

Fourthly, in reſpect of the manner and form of the diſpoſition.

The fourth thing required in the making of a good Teſtament, is, that that form and order that the Law preſcribeth be obſerved in the diſpoſition. Swinb. 112. Bro. Teſt. 20.

First, naming of an Executor

And therefore 1. that there be an Executor named in all Teſtaments of Goods and Chattels, and that that Executor named be capable of the Executorſhip; for this is ſaid to be the head and foundation of the Teſtament; for if there be never ſo many Legacies given, and no Executor made, this diſpoſitſon is but a Codicill, and cannot properly be called a Teſtament; for in this caſe the party dead, is ſaid to die inteſtate and the Adminiſtration of his goods muſt be granted to the Widdow, or next of kinn; whereas on the other ſide, if an Executor be appointed, albeit there be no Legacy given, yet this diſpoſition is, and is properly ſaid, to be a Teſtament.

Secondly, if it be of Lands, it muſt be in writing.

2. If the Teſtament be of Lands or Tenaments, it muſt be in writing, and it muſt be committed to writing at the time of the making thereof: And it is not ſufficient, that it be put in writing after the death of the Teſtator, being firſt made by word of mouth only, for then it is but Nuncupative ſtill.

But if the Teſtament be firſt made by word of mouth, and be afterwards written, and then brought to the Teſtator, and he approve it for his Teſtament: Or if the Teſtator, when he doth declare his mind, doth appoint that the ſame ſhall be written, and thereupon the ſame is written accordingly in the life time of the Teſtator; theſe are good Teſtaments of Land, and as good as if they be written, at the firſt. Stat. 32. & 34 H. 8. Perk ſect. 476. 477. Dier 72. Plow. 345. Co. 4. 60. Dier 53.

If therefore one be very ſick, and another come to him, and ask him whether his wife ſhall have his Land, and he ſay yea, and a Clerk being preſent doth put this in writing without any precedent commandement or ſubſequent allowance of the ſick man; this is no good Teſtament of the Land.

So if one declare his whole mind before Witneſſes, and ſend for a Notary to write it, and die before he come, and he write it after his death; this is no good Teſtament for his Lands, but a good Nuncupative Will for his Goods and Chattels, except he declare his mind to be that it ſhall not be his will unleſs it be put in, writing, for then perhaps it may not be a good wil for his goods and chattels.

So if he that doth write the will cannot hear the party ſpeak, and another that ſtands by the ſick man doth tell him what he doth ſay; in this caſe if there be none others preſent to prove that he reported the very words of the ſick man; this will be no good Teſtament of the Land.

But if a Notary take direction from the ſick man for his VVill, and after goe away and write it, and then doth bring it again and read it to the Teſtator and he approve it: Or if it be written from his mouth by the Notary according to his mind; and his mind were to have it written, albeit it be not ſhewed or read to him afterwards; theſe are good Teſtaments.

So if the Notary doe only take certaine rude notes or directions from the ſick man which he doth agree unto, and they be afterwards written faire in his life time, and not ſhewed to him againe, or not written faire untill after his death; theſe are good Teſtaments of Lands.

If a ſick man bid the Notary make a Teſtament of his Lands, but doth not tell him how, and the Notary make a deviſe of it after his own minde; this is no good Teſtament; and yet if it be after read unto, and approved by the Teſtator, it may be good.

And ſo if a Teſtament be found written in the Teſtators houſe, and not known by whom, and it be read unto, and approved by the Teſtator; this is now a good Teſtament in writing for Lands and goods. Adjudged Trin. 20. Jac.

3. Uſes

3. Uſes of lands before the Statute of uſes, might, and lands and tenements deviſable by Cuſtome, and goods and chattels may be diſpoſed by word without writing, and ſuch Teſtaments of ſuch things ſo made are good. 4. It is not material in what matter or ſtuff, whether in paper or parchment, nor in what language, whether in Latin, French, or any other tongue, nor in what hand, or letters, whether in Secretary hand, Roman hand, or Court hand, or in any other hand a Teſtament be written, ſo it be fair and legible, that it may be read and underſtood: Neither is it material whether the ſame be written at large, or by notes, or characters uſual or unuſual, as xx^{s} for twenty ſhillings, or when the figure (2) is uſed in ſtead of the letter A, if it be uſual in the Teſtators writing, or the like; for the Teſtament is good notwithſtanding. So alſo if ſome words be omitted, or ſentences improper uſed, when the intent and meaning is apparent, as where a man ſaith [I make my wife of this my laſt Will and Teſtament] leaving out the word [Executrix] yet the Teſtament is good, and this ſhall be underſtood: But if it be ſo done as it cannot be read, or by reading the minde of the Teſtator cannot be known, then is the Teſtament voyd and of no force. In like manner as a Nuncupative Will is, when the words ſpoken, are ſo ambiguous, obſcure, and uncertain, that thereby the meaning of the Teſtator cannot be known nor underſtood. Swinb. part. 4. Sect. 25, 26.

Thirdly, uſes and lands by cuſtome, and chattels deviſable without writing.

Fourthly, the matter or hand wherein and whereby it is written.

5. Where writing is needfull (as in the caſe of diſpoſition of land it is) there ſealing of the Teſtament, or ſubſcribing of the Teſtators name is not neceſſary. And therefore if a man by himſelf or another, do make a Teſtament of his land, and do not put his Seal or name to it, if he agree to it, this is a ſufficient Teſtament. Perk. 476, 477. March. Rep. f. 206. pl. 245.

Fifthly, ſealing and ſubſcribing the Teſtators name not needfull.

6. If whiles the Teſtator is making his Will, and whiles he intendeth to proceed further at that time either by adding, diminiſhing, or altering, he be ſuddenly ſtricken with ſickneſs or inſanity of minde whereby he cannot proceed, but gives it over in the midſt, and ſo he dye; it ſeems in this caſe the whole Will is voyd, Swinb. 6. Lit. Broo. Sect. 300. Swinb. part. 7. Sect. 10. Coo. 3, 31. And yet if a man begin his Will, and make perfect Deviſes to one, and then of himſelf give over untill another time: or if a man make a perfect Deviſe to one, and then dye before he can make any Deviſe to any others, it ſeems theſe are good Teſtaments for as much as is done. And therefore it is ſaid if one command another to make his Will, and by it to deviſe White Acre to I S and his heirs, and Black Acre to I N and his heirs, and he write the Deviſe to I S and his heirs, and the Teſtator dye before he can write the Deviſe to I N and his heirs; this is a good Deviſe to I S, but a voyd Deviſe to I N and his heirs. But if a man bid the Notary write a Deviſe of his land to I S upon condition, and the Notary write the Deviſe to I S, but the Teſtator dyeth before he can write the condition; in this caſe the whole Deviſe is voyd, Brownlows Rep. 1. part. 44. But a man may, if he pleaſe, make a Teſtament of part of his goods, and dye inteſtate for the reſt, and that diſpoſition he doth make is good for ſo much, Swinb. 188.

Sixthly, interruption in the making of the Will.

7. The laſt thing required to the perfection of a Teſtament, is, that it be proved; for if it be never ſo well made, and be in truth the Teſtament of the Teſtator, yet if it cannot be by proof made to appear ſo, it is but a voyd Teſtament, and of no force at all. And therefore herein theſe things are to be known:

Seventhly, in reſpect of the proof of it, and what ſhall be ſaid a ſufficient proof of a Teſtament, or not.

1. That a Nuncupative Teſtament muſt be proved by two Witneſſes at the leaſt, and thoſe muſt be ſuch as are without exception, Swinb. part. 7. Sect. 13. part. 4. Sect. 25.

2. A written Teſtament when it is written with the Teſtators own hand, doth prove and approve it ſelf, and therefore needs not the help of Witneſſes to prove it. And for this cauſe, if a mans Teſtament be found written fair and perfect with his own hand after his death, albeit it be not ſubſcribed with his name, ſealed with his Seal, or have any Witneſſes to it; if it be known or can be proved to be his hand, it is held to be a good Teſtament and a ſufficient proof of it ſelf; but if it be ſealed with the Seal, and ſubſcribed by the name of the Teſtator, and can be proved by Witneſſes, it is the more authentique. And when it is found amongſt the choyce evidences of the Teſtator, or faſt locked up in a ſafe place, it is the more eſteemed; for if it be written in another hand, and the Teſtators hand and Seal, or one of them not to it, albeit it be found in ſuch a place as before, yet ſome proof will be expected of it further by Witneſſes in that caſe. And if a writing be found under the Teſtators own hand, yet if it be but a ſcribbled writing, written Copie-wiſe, with a great diſtance between every line without any date, in ſtrange characters, with many interlinings, and lying amongſt his voyd papers, or the like; this will not be eſteemed a ſufficient Teſtament, nor a good proof of it; but it ſhall be accounted rather a draught or image of the Teſtators Will for a direction to him after to make his Will by: And yet if it can be proved that the Teſtator did declare himſelf that this ſhould be his Will; this will be a good Teſtament, and a good proof of it.

3. If it be proved the Teſtator ſaid his Teſtament was in ſuch a Schedule in the hands of I S, and I S produce a writing depoſing it to be the ſame; it ſeems this is a ſufficient proof: but if he ſay withall, it is written with his own hand, then it ſeems ſome other proof, as by comparing hands, or the like, that it is his hand, wherein it is written, will be expected.

4. If the Witneſſes will prove the writing produced to be the laſt Will of the Teſtator, or that he ſaid it was, or it ſhould be his laſt Will, or that it is the ſame writing that was ſhewed unto them, and whereunto they are Witneſſes, albeit they never heard it read, or ſet their hands to it, it is a ſufficient proof. And a Will may be proved by Witneſſes for Goods though it be not to be ſhewed: but if any tampering were with the Witneſſes, it will be dangerous. 5. All perſons, male and female, rich and poor, are eſteemed competent Witneſſes to prove a Will, ſave onely ſuch as are infamous, as perjured perſons, and the like; and ſuch as want underſtanding and judgement, as children, infants, and the like; and ſuch as are preſumed to bear affection, as kindred, tenants, ſervants, and the like, Swinb. part. 4. Sect. 21. A Legatee is reputed a competent Witneſs to prove any other part of the Will but his own Legacy, or to prove any thing againſt himſelf touching his own Legacy, but not otherwiſe. And therefore, where there be but two Witneſſes of a Will, wherein either of them hath ſomewhat bequeathed unto himſelf, this Will cannot be ſufficiently proved for thoſe Legacies; but for the reſt of the Will it may be ſufficiently proved.

Witneſs competent to prove a Teſtament.

6. Where there is no queſtion nor oppoſition moved or had about, or againſt a Teſtament, there the Oath of the Executor alone is eſteemed a ſufficient proof of it, and in that caſe regularly no other proof is required. And where more proof is neceſſary, as in the caſes before, it is in the diſcretion of the Ordinary, what proof to admit and allow: And thoſe Witneſſes for number, nature, and quality; or that other proof that he doth deem and accept for ſufficient, is ſufficient; and the Teſtament ſo proved by ſuch Witneſſes, or other proof, is ſufficiently proved. And of this queſtion, ſee more infra, at numb. 7.

5. Where, and how a Teſtament good in his beginning, may become voyd by matter ex poſt facto, or not.

A Teſtament ſufficient and good in his creation and beginning, may afterwards become voyd by divers means; as 1. By Countermand or Revocation, and this is ſometimes by the party himſelf that made it, and ſometimes it is by another: And ſometimes it is expreſs, and ſometimes it is implyed; for it is a Rule, That any act or thing done, or words ſpoken by the Teſtator after the Teſtament made, that doth alter or croſs all or part of his Teſtament made before, is a Revocation of it, or of that part thereof that is ſo croſſed and altered, Coo. 4. 61. Litt. Sect. 168. Plow. 344, 341. Swinb. part. 7. Sect. 14, 15. Perk. Sect. 478. Coo. 3. 36. 8. 82, 83. And therefore if a Feme Covert make a Teſtament, and after take a husband, by this the Teſtament is revoked. And if a man make a Teſtament of land, and after make a Feoffment of the ſame land, which Feoffment is not good for ſome defect in the Livery of Seiſin or otherwiſe, ſo that the Feoffer dyeth ſeized of the land notwithſtanding; hereby the Teſtament as to this land is revoked. If ſeized of land, deviſeth it by VVill to I. D. and after makes a Feoffment of this land; and when he comes to ſeal it, he ſaith, will not this hurt my VVill? to which was anſwered, no: then ſaid he, I will ſeal it, and ſo he did, and a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, which was made in part of the land; in this caſe it was agreed to be no Revocation of the VVill for the reſidue wherein no Livery was made, Goldſ. 33. pl. 7. If one had made a VVill in writing, and after ſay of it, it ſhall not be his VVill, this is a Revocation: But if one hath made a VVill, and another comes to him, and ſayes, have you made your VVill? and he ſaith, no; and he ſaith, will you make your VVill? and he ſaith, no; yet this is no Revocation, Adjudge. Goldſ. 33. pl. 7. So if a man make a latter Teſtament, and therein by expreſs words doth revoke the former Teſtament; or if a man by any writing, or by word of mouth (for one may by word of mouth revoke a Will in writing, albeit it be of land, Dyer 310. 34. Eliz. B. R. Burton's Caſe. Goldſ. 33. pl. 7.) do expreſly revoke a former Teſtament that he hath made, and make no new Teſtament (for ſo a man may do and dye inteſtate, if he will:) or if a man make a latter Teſtament, and make no mention of the former Teſtament; all theſe are Countermands of the former Teſtament. And the latter Teſtament doth alwayes revoke the former; and that albeit the Executor of the latter do refuſe the Executorſhip, or dye during the life of the Teſtator, or after his death; and albeit the King be made Executor of the former; and albeit the former be a written, and the latter but a Nuncupative Teſtament; and this holdeth true in a Teſtament of lands, as well as in a Teſtament of Goods and Chattels; but otherwiſe it is è converſo; for however a man may by word avoyd a VVill made in writing that is good, yet a man cannot by word make good and affirm a VVill made in writing that is voyd: And therefore if a man deviſe his land in writing to I. S. and his heirs, and I. S. dye before the Deviſor, and after the Deviſor ſay by word, That the heirs of I. S. ſhall have the land, as I S ſhould have had if he had lived; this verbal declaration will not affirm the diſpoſition. Alſo, the latter Teſtament doth infringe the former, albeit there be no mention made in the latter of revoking of the former; and albeit there be twenty VVitneſſes of the former, and but two or none of the latter; and albeit in the former, the Executor be appointed ſimply, and without condition; and in the latter, he be appointed conditionally, and the ſame condition be alſo broken, ſo that the condition be of ſomething then to come at the time when the condition was made: but if the Executor of the latter Teſtament be made upon ſome condition then preſent or paſt, the condition not exiſting, the former Teſtament is not revoked; and albeit the former Teſtament be made irrevocable, i. e. that the Teſtator ſay, I make this my laſt VVill and Teſtament irrevocable; and albeit the Teſtator hath ſworn not to revoke the former, the Oath being alſo revoked together with the Teſtament; and albeit the Teſtator enter into an Obligation, with condition not to revoke it, but then in this caſe he doth forfeit his Obligation. But the latter Teſtament doth not revoke the former in theſe caſes following, i. e. when the latter is imperfect in reſpect of VVill, i. e. when the Teſtator dyeth whiles he is making of it, and before he can finiſh it, or when it is vehemently ſuſpected that the Teſtator was compelled to make the latter by fear or violence, or induced to make it by fraud and deceit; or when the former was made by the Teſtator whiles he was in his good and perfect minde and memory; and the latter is made by him when he is incompos mentis, or when the latter is made by the perſwaſion and for the benefit of certain perſons; when the Teſtator is in extremity of ſickneſs, unleſs it appear plainly to be the expreſs Will of the Teſtator to revoke the former, or unleſs the Teſtator himſelf did dictate the latter, or in caſe the latter be in favour of the children of the Teſtator, or others who are to have the Adminiſtration of his goods if he dye inteſtate. 2. When the Teſtator doth make two Teſtaments, a former and a latter, both being written, and afterwards lying ſick upon his death-bed, they are both preſented unto him, and he is deſired to deliver to one of the ſtanders by, which of them he will have to ſtand for his laſt Will, and he deliver the former. 3. When the latter doth agree in all points with the former, for then both of them are as one in divers writings. 4. When in the latter Teſtament there is no Executor named, for then it is but a Codicil or addition to the former. 5. When the latter is made upon ſome ſudden diſcontent againſt the Executor of the former Teſtament, and afterwards he and the Executor are reconciled again; in theſe and ſuch like caſes, the latter Teſtament is no Revocation of the former. If the husband licenſe his wife to make a Teſtament, and after her death he forbid the Probate, this is a Countermand of the Teſtament, Lit. Broo. 55. But note here, that Revocations in general are not favoured in Law, and therefore he that will avoyd a former Will by Revocation, muſt ſee he prove it well.

By Countermand or Revocation.

Condition.

Secondly, by cancelling of it.

2. A good Teſtament may become voyd by cancelling or other deſtruction of it, as where the Teſtator himſelf, or ſome other by his commandment, doth cut, or tear it in peices, deface it, or caſt it into the fire; by this means the Teſtament is made voyd, except it be in caſe where the Teſtator doth it unadviſedly, or it be done by ſome other without his conſent, or by ſome caſualty, or when he doth willingly pull away the Seals, and then he doth afterwards ſeal it again; or where the whole Teſtament is not cancelled or defaced, but ſome or the chief part thereof, as the naming of the Executor, or the like; for it is good ſtill for the reſidue; or where there be ſeveral papers, or writings, of one, ten, or each of them, containing the whole Teſtament, the cancelling or defacing of ſome of them doth not hurt the Teſtament, unleſs it can be proved that the Teſtators minde was to avoyd it all, or where the Teſtament is loſt in the life time of the Teſtator, or after; for in this caſe ſo much as can be proved by Witneſſes is ſtill in force, Swinb. lib. 7. part. Sect. 16.

Thirdly, by alteration of the eſtate of the Teſtator,

3. A good Teſtament may become voyd by alteration of the eſtate of the Teſtator; as when a man after the time of making the Teſtament, and before his death is convicted or condemned of ſome great crime, for the which the Law deprives him of the making of a Teſtament, as Treaſon, Felony, or the like. And yet if the crime be pardoned and purged before his death, the Teſtament may be good enough. And if a man of ſane and perfect memory make his Teſtament, and after become inops mentis, as every man for the moſt part is before his death, this doth not hurt the Teſtament. Swinb. part. 7. Sect. 17. Coo. 4. 62.

Fourthly, by intention to alter it.

4. A good Teſtament may become voyd by an intention onely to alter it when the Teſtator is hindred in his intention that it cannot take effect: And therefore if when the Teſtator intendeth to alter his Teſtament, or to make a new one, he be by fear or fraud forbidden or letten, that he dare not or cannot alter it, or the Notary or Witneſſes dare not, or may not be ſuffered to come to him; as when a wife or ſome other that is to have a benefit by the former Will, under pretence that ſhe hath a charge from the Phyſician that none ſhall come at him, or under pretence that he is aſleep, or the like, will not ſuffer any body to come at him; or when the Notary and Witneſſes are all preſent, and they make ſuch a noyſe or quarrelling, that they hinder the effect of his intent; or when the Teſtator is kept from doing it by importunate requeſts, and flattering perſwaſions; in all theſe caſes, and by theſe means the former Teſtament may become voyd, Swinb. part. 7. Sect. 18. But if it appear the Teſtator hath no purpoſe to alter the Teſtament when he is let, as aforeſaid; the fear is a vain fear, the Teſtator is prohibited at another time, and not the time when he doth intend to alter the Teſtament, but he hath ſundry opportunities after that time to do it, and doth it not, or he is drawn onely by the fair ſpeeches of a wife or friend, or by the weeping, or other trouble ariſing from the grief of the Legatary or Executor for the Teſtators ſickneſs, onely he is diſturbed; in theſe caſes perhaps it may not be voyd. And where it is voyd by the prohibition of a Legatary onely, it is voyd for ſo much as doth concern him onely, and not for the reſt of the Teſtament.

Fifthly, by making another of the ſame date.

5. A good Teſtament may become voyd by making another of the ſame date; for if two Teſtaments be found after the death of the Teſtator, and it cannot be diſcerned or proved which was made former or latter; the one of them doth overthrow the other, and both of them are become voyd; except they be both to the ſame purpoſe, or one of them be made in favour to wife and children, children, &c. and the other to ſtrangers. Swinb. part. 7. ſect. 11. Perk. Sect. 479. And yet in the firſt caſe alſo the Teſtator by declaration of his minde, which of them he will have to take effect, may make either of them good.

6. A good Teſtament may be made void by the declaration of the Teſtators minde, as if a man have two Teſtaments lying by him, the one made after the other, and they are both ſhewed or delivered to the Teſtator when he lyeth ſick, and he by word or ſigne declare that he will have the former to ſtand; this declaration doth revoke the latter, and affirm the former. And where a man would revoke a Will for any of theſe cauſes, he muſt preſently after the death of the Teſtator put in a Caveat or exception in that Court where the Will is to be proved, and thereupon proceed to queſtion it, or by a prohibition in ſome caſes he may ſtay the Probate in the Spirituall Court. See more infra at Numb. 12. Sixthly, by the declaration of the Teſtator.

If a woman covert without the leave of her husband make a Teſtament of her husbands goods, and the husband doth after her death connive at the Probate, and deliver the goods accordingly, hereby the Teſtament of the wife is become good; but if an Infant or mad man make a Teſtament in the time of his Infancy or madneſs, and after the Infant or mad man become of full age, or ſober, before his death; it ſeemes theſe Teſtaments are void. Perk. Sect. 501. Coo. 1. 99. 2. 55. And yet if the Infant at his full age, or the mad man when he is ſober make a publication of this Teſtament, it may perhaps be good.

If a man make a former and a latter Will, and by this latter the former is revoked, and after the Teſtator declare himſelf that the former ſhall ſtand; by this the former that was void before, is now become good again. Perk. Sect. 479. Coo. 4. 61. Plow. 344. And yet if a man make a Will that is void, and it be proved after his death; this Probate will not make it good, but it doth remain void as it was before. 6. Where a Teſtament void or voidable in his Inception, may become good by ſome matter or accident ex poſt facto. And where not.

If a Feme ſole make a Will, and then take a husband whereby the Will is countermanded, and ſo become void; if her husband die, ſo that ſhe become ſole again: this accident will not make the Will good again, but it doth remaine void ſtill; but perhaps by a new publication after ſhe doth become ſole, it may become good again. See more infra at Numb. 11.

To the making of a good and ſufficient Deviſe, theſe things are requiſite. What ſhall be ſaid a good and ſufficient Deviſe or Legacy, or not.

1. That there be a deviſor, and he be a perſon able to deviſe, and that both in reſpect of the condition of his own perſon and of the thing whereof the Deviſe is made. See before at Numb. 4.

2. That there be a Deviſee, and that he be a Perſon capable and able to receive the thing deviſed, either at the time when the Deviſe is made, or at leaſt when the Deviſe is to take effect.

3. That the Deviſor have at the time of the deviſe made animum teſtandi, i. a mind to make a deviſe.

4. That the Will of the Deviſor be free, and not drawn or coacted by fraud, flattery, fear, or the like.

5. That the Deviſe be made in due manner and forme.

6. That the thing deviſed be a thing deviſable.

7. That it be deviſed upon lawfull termes and conditions.

8. That there be words ſufficient to make his mind known. Firſt, in repect of matter touching the Deviſor, and who may be a Deviſor.

9. That it be proved after the death of the Deviſor. Perk. Sect. 406. See before at Numb. 4. and after at Numb. 17.

10. And if it be a Deviſe of land, it is further required that the Deviſor be ſolely ſeiſed of the land, and not jointly ſeized with another; and that he be ſeiſed of an eſtate in Fee-ſimple: and that the Deviſe be in writing. And for the firſt of theſe it is to be known, that whoſoever may make a Teſtament, may make a deviſe of the ſame thing of which he may make a Teſtament. Et ſic è converſo. And whoſoever is diſabled to make a Teſtament, is diſabled to deviſe by ſuch a Teſtament. And therefore Infants may not deviſe their lands untill they be 21 years of age; nor their goods and chattels untill they be 14 years of age (or as ſome ſay untill they be 18 years of age.) Women that have husbands, cannot deviſe their lands to their lands to their own husbands, or others, either by or without their husbands conſent, albeit there be a cuſtom to enable them thereunto; but all ſuch deviſes are void. Coo. ſuper Litt. 112. 4. 61. Broo. Deviſe 32. And Spirituall perſons, as Archbiſhops, Biſhops, Deanes, Archdeacons, Prebends, Parſons, Vicars, or any member of a Corporation may not deviſe the Lands or Goods they have in the right of their Churches and Corporations. Perk. Sect. 496. And for the ſecond thing, this is to be known.

Secondly, in reſpect of the matter touching the Deviſee. And who may be a Deviſee. And by what name.

1. That regularly whoſoever may be a Grantee, may be a Deviſee or Legatee. Perk. Sect. 505. 510. Swinb. 222. See infra at Numb. 18. And therefore a Deviſe made to any perſon or perſons, male or female, children or ſtrangers, bondmen or Freemen, Laymen or Clerks, Debtors or Creditors, Infants or men of full age, women ſole or covert, Colledges, Univerſities, Corporations, or the like, are good. But it is ſaid, that if any Legacy be given to an Heretick, Apoſtate, Traitor, Felon, Excommunicate perſon, Out-lawed perſon, Baſtard, unlawfull Colledge, Libeller, Sodomite, Uſurer, Recuſant convict, it is void by the Civill Law, except it be in ſome ſpeciall caſes. And yet it ſeems a Deviſe of lands to any ſuch perſon is good within the Statute of VVills. Dyer 303. 304. B. R. Curia. Mic. 3 Ja. A Deviſe to an Infant in the womb of its mother, at the time of the death of the Teſtator is void. New Termes of the Law tit. Deviſe. See infra Numb. 11. And yet if a man deviſe to ſuch an Infant, and he happen to be born before the death of the Teſtator, it ſeems in this caſe the Deviſe is good; for it is a rule. That the Deviſee muſt be capable of the thing deviſed at the time of the death of the Deviſor; if it be then to take effect in poſſeſſion, or if it be a remainder, he muſt be capable of it at the time when the remainder ſhall happen, or otherwiſe the Deviſe is void. f. 9 Ja. B. R. And a man may deviſe his lands, goods, or chattels, to his own wife, as well as to any other. M. 19 Ja. Curia. B. R. Crumpe verſus Bodie.

Incertainty.

Averment.

2. But he that may be thus a Deviſee, and is capable of a thing deviſed, muſt be certainly named and deſcribed; for if a Deviſe be to a perſon altogether incertaine, the Deviſe is altogether void. And therefore if I give my land to my beſt friend, or to my beſt friends, theſe are void Deviſes. Coo. 6. 68. If one have two ſonns of one name called J. S. and he deviſe to his ſon J. S. without any diſtinction; it ſeems this Deviſe is void for uncertainty; but in this caſe perhaps an averment which ſon is meant, may help. Swimb. 293, 294, 295, 296. So if one give to J. S. 20 l. and there be two or more of that name; this Deviſe is void, except it may be proved by ſo thing which of them he meant. So if one ſay in his Teſtament I give to one of the world 10 l. this Deviſe is void for incertainty. So if one give him 10 l. whoſe name is written in a Schedule in the cuſtody of ſuch a man; and in truth there is no ſuch Schedule in the cuſtody of ſuch a man to be found; or if there be no name written therein; it ſeems theſe Legacies are void for incertainty. So if a man give a Legacy to a man incertaine, and no ſuch man is to be found, and the meaning of the Teſtator cannot be known; this Deviſe is void. And yet if a man by his Will ſay thus, I deviſe to him that ſhall marry my daughter; this is a good Deviſe; and he that doth marry my daughter in my life-time, or after my death ſhall have it. And if a man deviſe any thing ad pias cauſas, as to the Church, or to the Poore, not expreſſing what Church or Poor; this perhaps may be a good Deviſe. So if a man gives 20 l. to his kindred; it is ſaid this is a Dood Deviſe, and that a reaſonable expoſition ſhall be made of it as neer the intent of the Teſtator as may be, viz. that thoſe in the next degree ſhall have it firſt, and then thoſe in the next degree to that ſhall have it afterwards; and if it be a Deviſe to the kindred of another man, that they ſhall have it equally. Sed quære of this Diviſe, for it ſeems altogether uncertain.) So if a man give to J. S. or J. D. 20 l. this is held to be a good Deviſe, albeit it be ſomewhat incertain, and the disjunctive ſhall be taken for a copulative, and ſo J. S. and J. D. ſhall take both by this Deviſe; but if in this caſe one of them be neerer of kin than the other, then it is ſaid, he ſhall have it for his life, and the other afterwards. Swinb. part. 7. ſect. 9. And if one deviſe 20 l. to A. or B. which of them J. S. will appoint; this is a good Deviſe, and he that J. S. ſhall appoint ſhall have it.

And

And if one deviſe to J. S. and his children; this is a good Deviſe and certain enough, and hereby he and his children ſhall take the thing deviſed together. Plow. 345. Coo. 1. 105. 155. Perk. ſect. 508.

3. And as the perſon to whom the Deviſe is made, muſt be capable, and certainly deſcribed and named, ſo muſt he be capable by that name by which the Deviſe is made to him, or otherwiſe the Deviſe is void, and therefore if a Deviſe be to the heirs of J. S. J. S. being living; this Deviſe is void. And yet if lands or Goods be deviſed to the Executors of J. S. and J. S. die before the Teſtator, and make Executors; this is a good Deviſe to the Executors. And if a man deviſe his land to J. S. for life, the remainder to the next of kin, [or next of blood] of J. S. this is a good Deviſe of the remainder. Fitz. Deviſe 27. Plo. 523. Perk. ſect. 509, 510 Broo. Corporation. 55. And if a man deviſe goods to the Pariſhioners of the Pariſh of S, to the uſe of the Church; this is a good Deviſe, and the Churchwardens may recover it. And if a man deviſe Eccleſiæ ſanctæ Andreæ de Holborne; it ſeems this is a good Deviſe to the Parſon of that Church. And if a man deviſe to the City of London, Univerſity of Oxford, or to Queens Colledge in Oxford, theſe are good Deviſes. But if one deviſe to the Commonalty of a Guild that is not incorporate, as to two of the middle men of the Guild of the Fraternity of Whiteacres in London, or the like; this deviſe is void.

4. And if the perſon be capable, well named, and capable by that name, if his name be truly ſet down, yet if his name be not ſo, but miſtaken, the Deviſe is void. And therefore if one intending to give 20 l. to J. S. deviſe to J. N. 20 l. this deviſe is void, both to J. S. and J. N. except the perſon be certainly denoted and deſcribed by ſome other circumſtance, as to J. N. the ſon of J. S. my Landlord, or the like. Dyer. 4. Perk. ſect. 505. Swinb. 289, 290. So if one deviſe to the Abbot of S. Peter, when the foundation is the Abbot of S. Paul; this Deviſe is void. And if one deviſe to a Corporation, and there be none of that name at the time of the Deviſe, nor during the life of the Teſtator, this Deviſe is void, and ſo alſo it ſeems the Law is, if there be a Colledge made after of that name. But if one deviſe a thing to the wife of J. S. and before the Deviſor die, J. S. dye, and ſhe take another husband, and is called by another name; yet this Deviſe is good. Plow. 344. So if one give a Legacy to J. S. Dean of Pauls, and the Chapter there and their Succeſſors, and after before the death of the Deviſor J. S. die, and another is made Dean; yet this Deviſe is good notwithſtanding this miſtake. For the third and fourth thing required in a good Deviſe, ſee before at Numb. 4. Part. 2. 3. Brounl. 1. part 13. Miſnaming.

And for the fifth thing, it is to be known,

1. That lands and tenements deviſable by cuſtome, may be deviſed by a Nuncupative Will without any writing for any time whatſoever, as Uſes at the Common-Law that are now withing the Statute might have been. Coo. ſuper Litt. 111. Plow. 345. Swinb. part 1. ſect. 12. Alſo thoſe Uſes that remaine at the Common-Law, and are not within the Statute, may be deviſed by word without any writing. But no eſtate can be made of lands by Deviſe upon the Statute, except the Deviſe be in writing; and ſo a man may deviſe his land, albeit he make no Executor; for an Executor hath nothing to do with the Free-hold of land. Alſo Goods and Chattells, leaſes for years of Lands, Wards, Villaines, and the like may be deviſed by word without any writing at all. Plow. 345. Swinb. part. 1. Sect. 12. Dyer 140. And yet it ſeems queſtionable whether a Leaſe for years of a Rent, Common, or ſuch like thing, be deviſable by word without writing. Fifthly, in reſpect of matter touching the manner and forme of the Deviſe. And how a Deviſe may be made.

2. The forme of words in a Deviſe is not at all regarded; and therefore if one ſay, I give, inſtitute, deſire, appoint, or will, that J. S. ſhall have my land, or that J. S. ſhall have 20 l. or let J. S. have my land or 20 l. all theſe Deviſes are as good as if he ſay, I deviſe to J. S. my land or 20 l. Swinb. part. 4. ſect. 4. Plow. 23. Littl. Broo. ſect. 316. Dyer 23. And therefore if one at this day ſince the Statute of Uſes deviſe that his Feoffees of the land ſhall be ſeized of the land to the uſe of J. S. and his heires, or to the uſe of J. S. and the heires of his body; or if ſuch a man deviſe that his Feoffees ſhall make an eſtate of the land to J. S. and and his heirs; or to him and the heires of his body; this is a good Deviſe of the land in Fee-ſimple, or Fee-taile. And if a man make a Feoffment of his land to the uſe of his laſt Will, and then deviſe that his Feoffees ſhall be ſeized to the uſe of J. S; this is a good Deviſe of the land per intentionem Paſche. 9. Jac. Newmans caſe. And if I deviſe that J. S. ſhall have, hold, and occupy my land for his life; this is a good Deviſe of the land for his life. Plow. 546. Coo. 4. 66. 8. 95. If a man have a Leaſe for years for land, and he deviſe his Leaſe, or his Terme, or his Ferme, or the profits or occupation of the land; by either of theſe Deviſes his whole leaſe and all his intereſt in the land is given as well as by any other forme of words Dyer 122. 33. 128. Coo. 1. 83. 6. 42. Dyer 4. 33.

3. A man may deviſe lands, tenements, or hereditaments in poſſeſſion in Fee, for life or years; or he may deviſe it in reverſion, viz. to one for life, the remainder to another in Fee, or in taile, or in any other ſort, as a man may grant it by his Deed, and ſuch Deviſes are good. But if the Fee-ſimple of land be deviſed to one, the remainder cannot be deviſed to another, albeit the firſt Deviſe be but conditionall. And therefore if land be deviſed to J. S. and his heirs and if he dye without heirs, that it ſhall remain to J. N. & his heirs; this is a void remainder to J. N. So if a man deviſe his land to J. S. in Fee, ita quod ſolvat J. N. 20 l. and if he faile, that it ſhall remain to J. N. and his heirs, this remainder to J. N. is void; for if J. S. faile of payment, J. N. ſhall not enter and have the land, but the heir of the Deviſor. And yet perhaps a rent may be deviſed after this manner. Howbeit if another man have a Rent-charge of 20 l. a year, iſſuing out of my land for 20. years; and he deviſe this unto me untill I have levied 100 l. by way of retainder, to J. S; this remainder is not good. Dyer 139, 140.

Condition. 4. A Deviſe may be of Lands, Goods, or Chattels ſimply and abſolutely or conditionally; the ſimple Deviſe alſo may be in præſenti, or in futuro. And therefore as a Deviſe to one and his heirs in præſenti, is good, ſo a Deviſe to one and his heirs after the death of J. S. is good. Plow. 523. Perk. ſect. 163. See Condition Coo. 8. 95. If I deviſe land to J. S. and his heirs on condition, as ſo as, or ita quod, he pay 10 l. to W. S. or paying to W. S. 10 l. or ad ſolvendum 10 l. to J. S; the Deviſe in all theſe caſes is a good conditionall Deviſe; and if the condition be not performed or broken, the eſtate is ended, and the heir may take advantage of it. And therefore if lands be ſo given to the heir, the condition is idle, becauſe none can enter but him. And if I deviſe that, if J. S. pay my Executors 20 l. that he ſhall have White acre to him and his heirs for ever, or for life &c. this is a good Deviſe, and after the contingent ſhall take effect accordingly, and in this caſe and in ſuch like the heir of the Deviſor muſt keep the land untill till the contingent do happen. In like manner as if it be a chattell, the Executor ſhall keep the thing untill the condition be performed, and after a condition broken he ſhall take advantage of it.

Limitation. 5. A Deviſe may be alſo with a limitation, as in the caſes before; and as, where one gives land to another, and his heirs ſo long as J. S. ſhall have heirs of his body; or where one doth deviſe his land to A his ſon and his heirs for ever, paying to B his brother 20 l. when he ſhall come of age, and then that he ſhall enter and have it to him and his heirs, and if he die without heirs of his body, the ſaid B. then living then that B and his heirs ſhall have it in the ſame manner: And theſe and ſuch like Deviſes are good.

6. A man that is ſeiſed of land in Fee, may deviſe that his Executors ſhall ſell it; or may deviſe it to his Executors to ſell, or Deviſe it to his Executors, and that they ſhall ſell it; and theſe Deviſes are good. Coo. ſuper Littl. 112. 113. 236.

Clauſe of Diſtreſſe. warrantiæ. 7. A Deviſe may be of a rent, or of land reſerving a rent, with clauſe of Diſtreſſe. Dyer 348. 100. 8. 84, 85. broken 2. part 190. As if a man Deviſe land to J. S, paying 10 l. by the year to his wife, and if it be unpaid, that ſhe ſhall diſtraine for it; this is a good Deviſe: But a Warranty cannot be made by a Will. Coo. ſuper Littl. 386. And yet if a man deviſe land to another for life, or in Taile reſerving a rent; in this caſe the heirs of the Deviſor ſhall be bound to the Warranty ranty in Law, and the Deviſee ſhall take advantage of it.

8. A man may deviſe his land to one, and deviſe a rent out of the ſame land to another, and theſe Deviſes are good. So a man may deviſe his land to one in Fee, and after deviſe the ſame land to another for life or years; and theſe are good Deviſes, and may ſtand together. Plow. 523. 540. Dyer 357. Coo. 8. 94. 83. So alſo if a man in the fore-part of his Will by generall words, deviſe all his lands to one in Fee, and in the latter part of his Will, deviſe ſome ſpeciall part of it to another in Fee; theſe Deviſes are good and ſhall ſtand together, as for example, if one have a Farm, and in the firſt part of his VVill, give this Farm to one, and in the latter part of his VVill give one Cloſe (a part of this Farm to another) or a man deviſe all his land in B (which is in the County of Glouc.) to A his daughter, and the latter part of his Will deviſeth all his land in the County of Glouc. in the poſſeſſion of J.S. to his ſon, and part of the land in B. is in the poſſeſſion of J.S. and in Glouceſterſh. theſe are good Deviſes & ſhall ſtand together. But otherwiſe, it is when the generall clauſe doth come laſt, as where one doth give his land to A his daughter and in the latter part of his Will, doth give all his land in Hartfordſhire in the poſſeſſion of J.S. to W. and the land given to A, is in Hartfordſhire, and in the poſſeſſion of J. S. in this caſe the Deviſes will not ſtand together, for the firſt Deviſe is void 38. Eliz. Co. B. Agreed divers times: and ſo alſo it is where both the Deviſes are particular, as, where firſt in a mans VVill, he doth give VVhite Acre to A and his heirs, and after in his VVill he doth give VVhite Acre to B and his heirs; in this caſe the firſt Deviſe to A is void. And yet in this laſt caſe, ſome have held the Deviſes ſhall be good, and that A and B ſhall be Joint-tenants ideo Quære. Dyer in his Lecture, 1. & per Inſt. Dodr. If one deviſe all his land to J. S. and his heirs excepting 20 l. for ſeven years, which he willeth ſhall be imployed for his children; this is a good Deviſe of this ſum of 20 l. a year. Trin. 9. Ja. B. R.

9. And a man may deviſe his land for ſo many years as J.S. ſhall name, and after, appoint that his ſon ſhall have it during the minority of his ſon, and both theſe Deviſes may ſtand together: And therefore, if A be poſſeſſed of the Mannor of D for years, and he deviſeth all his Term to his eldeſt ſon if he live ſo long, and if he die before he have any iſſue of his body, then to his younger ſon in the ſame manner, but withall, he doth appoint that his wife ſhall have the occupation of the land untill his eldeſt ſon be 21 years of age; theſe Deviſes ſhall ſtand together, and the wife ſhall enjoy the Mannour, for that time by this Deviſe. Plow. 523. 546.

10. A man may deviſe a term of years by way of remainder; as for example, A man that is poſſeſſed of a term of years of land, may deviſe it to J. S. for life, the remainder to J. D. or to J. S. for life, and that it ſhall after remain to J. D. or to J. S. for ſo many years as he ſhall live, and after to J. D. or in any ſuch like manner, theſe are good Deviſes both to the firſt, and to him in remainder alſo by way of Executory Deviſe, though not by way of remainder, and in this caſe the firſt Deviſee cannot hinder the ſecond Deviſee of the remnant of the terme. Coo. 8. 95. Plow. 519. 546. 516. 539. Dyer 277. But a man cannot by Deed in his life time grant his term in this manner. Nor if a man be poſſeſſed of a term can he entail it by his Will: And therefore, if a man poſſeſſed of his term of years of land Deviſe his term or his land to J. S. and his heirs, or to J. S. and the heirs of his body, or to J. S. and his iſſues, the remainder to J. D. this remainder is void, and it is a good deviſe of the whole term to J. S. and his Executors. Coo. 10. 87. 47. Paſche 17. Jac. B. R. Child. verſus Baily. Alſo a Chattell perſonall may (as it ſeems) be deviſed to one for life, and afterwards to another, but yet ſo as the one muſt have the property only, and the firſt but the occupation only, as if one deviſe that J. D. ſhall have the occupation of his plate for his life, and after that it ſhall remain to J.S. this is a good Deviſe of the plate to J.S. 37 H. 6. 30 Littl. Broo. ſect. 388. 314. 209. But if the thing it ſelf be deviſed to the firſt of them; then the Deviſe to the ſecond is void, for the gift of a chattell perſonall for one houre is the gift of it for ever. And ſo it did ſeem in the Lady Daves Caſe. Hill. 9. Car. B. R. Grant.

11. A Legacy of Goods or Chattels may be given to, or untill a certain time, or from or after a time certain or incertain; as for five years, or from, or untill the marriage of A or the like; and theſe Diſpoſitions are good. Swinb. part.4. ſect.17.

12. A man may deviſe his land for ſo many years as J. S. ſhall name, and if J.S. do name a certain number of years in the life-time of the Deviſor, this will be a good Deviſe. But if one deviſe his land for ſo many years, as his Executor ſhall name, it ſeems this Deviſe is not good. Plow. 524. 6. As touching the ſixth thing required in a good Deviſe, theſe things are to be known.

Sixthly, in reſpect of matter touching the thing deviſed, and what may be deviſed, and by what name.

Deviſe of land and tenements.

1. That Lands, Tenements, and Hereditaments for the nature and quality of them are deviſable as well as other things. Dyer. 371. *Coo.*8.83.6.16. ſuper Littl. 111. Perk. ſect. 496. 500. 497. 538. Littl. ſect. 167. Dyer 155. old N. B. And therefore by the cuſtome of ſome places, lands in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder are deviſable in Fee for life, or years; and a man that hath a Leaſe for years of land, may deviſe the land at his pleaſure during his term. But by the ancient Common-Law in favour to heirs, the lands that a man had in Fee-ſimple were not deviſable by Teſtament, except only in ſome ſpeciall places by the cuſtome of the place, as Gavelkind-lands in Kent, and lands within certain Borrough-Townes, as London, Oxford, &c. and by the cuſtome of thoſe places ſuch lands are deviſable: And in ſome places the cuſtome is, that they may deviſe their purchaſed lands only; and in other places, that they may deviſe their lands deſcended alſo: And in ſome places the cuſtome is that they may deviſe for life only, and in other places, that they may deviſe in Fee-ſimple and Fee-taile alſo. And in all theſe places where ſuch cuſtomes are, they may deviſe their lands now as they might have done before the Statute; for the Statute hath not deſtroyed their cuſtome. And therefore at this day they that have ſuch lands in ſuch places, have their election either to deviſe according to the power the cuſtome doth give them, or according to the power the Statute doth give them, and in the firſt caſe the Deviſe is good againſt the heir for the whole; and in the laſt caſe, it is good againſt him for two parts in three only. Alſo by the Common Law, the Uſes of lands were deviſable, as Goods, and Chattels were at the pleaſure of him that had them. Perk. ſect. 496. 528. 538. But otherwiſe, and in other caſes, lands and tenements, might not be deviſed and diſpoſed by Will, untill 32 H. 8. at which time the owners of lands, tenements, rents, &c. were by Act of Parliament enabled to deviſe and diſpoſe their lands as followeth: He that hath any land in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder by Socage Tenure, and hath no land held in Capite, or by Knights Service, may deviſe all his land, or any rent, Common, or other profit apprender out of it to any perſon in Fee-ſimple, Fee-taile, for life or years, at his pleaſure. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 1. 34 *H.*8. c. 5. He that hath any ſuch land held of the King in Capite by Knights Service, or by Knights Service and not in Chief, or held of any common perſon by Knights Service, may deviſe two parts thereof in three, to be divided, or any rent &c. out of thoſe two parts at his pleaſure, and no more; for the third part muſt deſcend to the heir and come to ſatisfie the Lord his duties; and therefore the Deviſe of the whole land in this caſe is void for the third part. He that hath any ſuch land held by Knights Service in Capite, and other lands held by Socage Tenure may deviſe two parts of the whole, and no more, or any rent &c. out of it at his pleaſure. He that doth hold land of the King by Knights Service onely, and not in Capite; or of a meane Lord by Knights Service, and hath alſo other lands held by Socage Tenure, may deviſe two parts in three of all the land held by Knights Service or any rent &c. out of it, and all his Socage land at his pleaſure. So that now by theſe Statutes, a man that hath lands in Fee-ſimple, may deviſe them in Fee-ſimple, Fee-taile, for life, or years abſolutely, or conditionally at his pleaſure. And therefore if one deviſe his land to one for life, the remainder in Fee, or Fee-taile to another; or deviſe his land to B. the remainder to the next heir male of B. and the heirs males of the body of ſuch heir male or the like; theſe are good Deviſes. But for the more full underſtanding of theſe things, it is to be known in the next place.

2. That this Statute doth not enable men to deviſe land that are diſabled by Law

Law in reſpect of their perſons or minds, as Infants, women Covert, men, de non ſana memory, or the like; nor ſuch as are diſabled in reſpect either of the nature of their land, as Copi-holders (for Copi-hold-land is not deviſable) or of the eſtate they have in the land, as Tenants in Taile, or pur autervie, or Joynt-tenants; for theſe can no more deviſe the land they do ſo hold, than they could before the Statute. But ſuch as are ſeiſed of land in Common, or Coparcenary, may deviſe their land as well as thoſe that are ſole ſeized. See the Statute Coo. ſuper Littl. 111. Perk. ſect. 544. Littl. ſect. 287. Dyer, 210. old, N. B. 89. Perk. ſect. 500, 539, 540. 446, 497, 498. And if two be Joint-tenants for life, the Fee-ſimple to one of them; he that hath the Fee-ſimple, may deviſe his Fee-ſimple after the death of his companion. Neither doth this Statute enable thoſe that are ſeiſed of lands in Fee, in the right of their houſes and Churches to deviſe the ſame lands: And therefore, Biſhops, Deans, Parſons, Vicars, Maſters of Hoſpitals, or the like, can no more deviſe the lands belonging to their Biſhopricks, &c. than they could before the Statute, but the lands they are ſeized of in their own right, they may deviſe like other men.

3. Heriditaments that are not of any yearly value, are ſome of them deviſable, and ſome not; for if the King grant to one and his heirs bona & catalla felonum & fugitivorum vel ut lagatorum, Fines, and Amercements within ſuch a Mannour or Village; in this caſe, the owner can neither deviſe theſe things to another, as part of the two parts; nor leave them to deſcend for a third part. Coo. 10. 81. 3. 32. ſuper Litt. 111. And yet if one have a Mannour unto which a Leet, Waiſe, Eſtray, or the like is appendant or appurtenant; thereby the Deviſe of the Mannour with the appurtenances, theſe things may paſſe as incident to the Mannour: But if a man have a Hundred, with the goods of Felons, Outlawes, Fines, Amercements, Retorna brevium, and other ſuch caſuall Hereditaments within the ſame Hundred, and theſe have been uſually let to Farm for a rent; in this caſe, theſe things may be deviſed or left to deſcend for a third part.

4. Such uncertain Franchiſes as before that are Hereditaments of no yearly value, albeit they are not deviſable, yet may reſtraine the deviſe of a mans lands and tenements, and make it void for a third part, if they be held in Capite, for if it is not requiſite, that the thing held by the Tenure in Capite be deviſable; and ſuch things as may not be left to deſcend to the Lord for a third part, and to ſatisfie him, his duties, may notwithſtanding be deviſable, or reſtrain the Deviſe of other lands and tenements, and make it void for a third part. And therefore, a Reverſion upon an eſtate taile, which is dry and fruitleſs, if it be holden of the King by Knights Service in Capite will hinder the Deviſe of the third part of a mans lands and tenements: Alſo an eſtate taile of lands held in Capite may reſtrain the Deviſe of a third part of other lands. And therefore, if ſuch lands be conveyed to one and the heirs of his body, the remainder to another, and he have other lands in Socage; if he have any iſſue, he can deviſe but two parts of his Socage land. And where the Statute ſpeaks of a remainder, it is to be intended of ſuch a remainder, only, as may draw Ward and Marriage by the Common-Law, and this is that remainder only, that doth hinder a Deviſe.

And therefore if A be ſeized of lands in Socage Tenure; and B. be ſeized of lands in Fee, held in Capite by Knights Service, and B. make a Leaſe for life or gift in Taile to C. the remainder to A in Taile or in Fee; in this caſe, A. during the eſtate for life or in Taile, may deviſe all his Socage-land, notwithſtanding this remainder. But if a man make a Leaſe for life or years, and after grant the reverſion for life, or in Taile, the remainder in Fee, and after the Grantee for life dyeth, or Donee in Taile dyeth without iſſue, in this caſe, this remainder which now is in point of reverſion, will reſtrain the Deviſe of other lands, and make it void for a third part. Coo. 10. 81, 82. ſuper Littl. 111. Coo. 3. 35. 30. 34.

5. In all caſes where a man is reſtrained to deviſe any part of his lands held in Socage, he muſt have lands held in Capite at the ſame time, and therefore the time of having of lands to deviſe, and holding of other lands in Capite, and diſpoſing of the lands to be deviſed, muſt concurre. And therefore, if a man be ſeiſed of an Acre of land in Fee, held of the King in Chief by Knights Service, and of other two Acres in Fee held in Socage, and enfeffee his younger ſon of the Acre held in Capite, and of one of the other Acres, or convey it to the uſe of his wife, or for the payment of his debts, &c. and after purchaſe land held in Socage; in this caſe, he may deviſe all the new purchaſed land held in Socage without reſtraint. Coo. 10. 81. 11. 24. 3. 30. 34, 35. ſuper Littl. 111. Dyer 158. So if a man be ſeiſed of lands held by Knights ſervice in Capite in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder, and of lands held in Socage, and by his Will in writing, doth deviſe all the ſaid lands, and after the land held in Capite is recovered from him, or aliened by him bona fide; in theſe caſes the Deviſe is good for all the land held in Socage: And hence it is, That if the King grant land to one in Fee Farm to hold in Socage at a rent, and after grant this rent to another and his heirs, to hold in Capite, and the Grantee of the rent doth grant it to him that hath the land; in this caſe, becauſe the rent is extinct, and he cannot be ſaid to hold lands in Capite, this ſhall not reſtraine the Deviſe of any of his lands.

And yet if a man hold ſome lands by Knights Service in Capite, and other lands in Socage, and be diſſeiſed of the lands held in Capite; he cannot deviſe all his Socage land, but the Deviſe will be void for a third part, for he is ſaid to have that land ſtill, whereof he hath the right. And albeit the Statute ſay [that he that hath lands held of the King in Capite, and other lands in Socage, may give two parts for the advancement of his wife, paiment of his debts, preferment of his children] whereby he is reſtrained to deviſe any more. And therefore, if by act, executed in his life time, he convey two parts to any ſuch uſes or intents, he cannot deviſe any more by his Will, but the reſidue muſt deſcend, yet this alſo is to be intended of the land he hath at the ſame time. For if a man be ſeiſed of land held in Socage of the yearly value of 20 l. per annum, and he hath not any land held in Capite by Knights Service, and he make his Will in writing, and by it, deviſe his Socage land to one in Fee, and then purchaſe land of the value of 20 s. per annum held in Capite, and die; this will make the Deviſe void for a part of the land that is held in Socage: But if a man ſeiſed of land in Fee of Socage Tenure, aſſure it to the uſe of his wife for her Jointure, and after purchaſe lands held in Capite by Knights Service; he may deviſe two parts in three of all this Capite land, and the King ſhall not have any thing out of, or for the Socage land: If a man ſeiſed of lands, part of which are held in Capite, and part in Socage make a Feoffment of the lands held in Capite, (being two parts in three of the whole) to the uſe of him and his wife for life, with divers remainders over; in this caſe, he may not deviſe any of the Socage land. And if a man have no Socage land but Capite land, and convey it away in Fee-ſimple, keeping no Rerverſion to any ſuch uſe, and after purchaſe Socage land; he may deviſe all the Socage land newly purchaſed. Coo. 34. 11. 24.

6. As the Teſtator enabled to deviſe by this Statute without reſtraint, is, and muſt be one that hath the land he doth deviſe at the time of the Deviſe made, and no other land then to be an impediment to his Deviſe, ſo he muſt have a ſole eſtate as well in the land he doth leave to deſcend to the heir, as in the land he doth Deviſe: And therefore, if lands held in Capite be conveyed to a man and his wife, and the heirs of their two bodyes; and this man hath other lands whereof he is ſole ſeiſed held of the King in Capite by Knights Service; in this caſe he may not deviſe two parts of the whole, ſuppoſing this may ſuffice for the Kings third part, for he may deviſe but two parts of the reſidue; i. e. of that whereof he is ſole ſeiſed, either at the time of making of the Will, or at the leaſt at the time of the death of the Teſtator. Coo. 3. 32.

7. The eſtate of the land that is held, muſt continue after the death of the Tenant

Tenant, otherwiſe it will be no reſtraint, Coo. 10. 84. And therefore, if a Tenant in Tail be to him and the heirs males of his body, the remainder in Fee to another of Lands held by Knights Service in Capite; and he is ſeized of other lands in Socage in Fee, and by his Will in writing deviſe all the Socage land, and dye without iſſue male; in this caſe, the Deviſe is good for all the Socage land. And ſo alſo it is, where the eſtate the Anceſtor had of the land held is defeated by condition. 8. That which a man cannot diſpoſe by any act in his life time, ſhall not be taken for any ſuch Mannours, &c. whereof a man may deviſe two parts by authority of this Statute at his death: And therefore in the caſe of an undivided eſtate of lands between husband and wife, where the husband can make no diſpoſition for longer time than during the Coverture; theſe lands are not to be eſteemed ſuch as are to be accounted amongſt the lands, whereof two parts in three are deviſable. Coo. 3. 32. 9. The Tenure by Knights Service muſt continue after the death of the Deviſor, otherwiſe the land ſo held will be no reſtraint. And therefore if the King grant land to one and his heirs, to hold during his life by Knights Service in Capite, and after in Socage; or to hold during his life in Socage, and after by Knights Service; in theſe caſes, the Grantee may deviſe all his land, notwithſtanding the Tenure of this land, Coo. 10. 84. 3. 34. 10. The King or other Lord muſt have a full and clear yearly value of the third part left to deſcend to him, and the value is to be eſteemed as it is, and doth happen to be at the time of the death of the Teſtator; for the King or other Lord muſt have the like and equal benefit for his third part, as the Deviſee hath for the two parts, without diminution or ſubſtraction; when therefore a man will have his Deviſe good for the reſidue, he muſt take care that the third part be ſo left; for if the third part be not valuable, or be charged with any rent, &c. or be upon any uncertainty, as if it be upon a poſſibility only, as where a man and his wife be ſeized of a joynt eſtate Tail made during the Coverture, and he Deviſe other lands to her on condition, that ſhe ſhall wave her eſtate made during the Coverture, and ſo intend that that part of his land ſhall be left for the Kings part, this Deviſe will not be good for the reſidue; and albeit the wife do wave the eſtate after the husbands death, yet this will not help the matter, or make the Deviſe good for that part for which it was voyd before: But it is not material by what Tenure the third part deſcending be held: For it is holden by the better opinion, That if a man be ſeized of 20 l. land held of the King in Capite, and 10 l. land held of a Subject by Socage, and he deviſe all the Capite land to a ſtranger; that this is a good Deviſe for the whole, and that the King ſhall be ſatisfied by the Socage land. And if be of the value of the third part, albeit it be but of an eſtate Tail whereof the Anceſtor was ſeized, or it be new purchaſed land, yet it is ſufficient: And therefore if ſome lands be given to a man and the heirs of his body of the value of 10 l. per annum, and he be ſeized of other lands in Fee-ſimple to the value of 20 l. per annum, and all or part of theſe are held in Capite by Knights Service; in this caſe he may deviſe the lands in Fee-ſimple, and leave the entailed land to deſcend for a 3d part: And if a man be ſeized of ſuch land, and convey it to the uſes within the Statute, or any of them, and after purchaſe new land, and leave that to deſcend, this is ſufficient, Coo. 3. 32. 31. ſuper Litt. 111. 10. 84. 11. The third part that is left to deſcend to ſatisfie the King or other Lord, muſt deſcend immediatly, and he muſt not ſtay for it. And therefore, if a man be ſeized of three Acres of land held by Knights Service in Capite, and make a Leaſe of one Acre for life, and after deviſe the other two Acres; this Deviſe is not good for the whole two Acres, but for two parts in three thereof onely; and albeit the Tenant for life dye afterwards, yet this will not help the matter. But if the Deviſor leave a full third part immediatly to deſcend in Fee-ſimple or in Fee-tail, he may deviſe the other two parts at his pleaſure. And if he do not leave a third part to the full, it muſt be made up and ſupplyed out of the other two parts, which in caſe of the King is done by Commiſſion out of the Court of Wards, and in caſe of a Subject by Commiſſion out of the Chancery, Coo. 3. 34. 12. As the third part left to deſcend, muſt be of as good value as either of the other two parts is at the time of the death of the Teſtator, or otherwiſe the Deviſe of all the reſidue will not be good; ſo muſt it be taken out of the lands of the Teſtator indifferently: And therefore, if a man be ſeized in Fee of land held in Chief by Knights Service, and make a Feoffment of the one half of it to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to the uſe of one he doth intend to marry, and after to the uſe of another in remainder, or to any other ſuch like uſes within the Statute, and after he doth marry the ſame woman, and after he deviſeth the other moity to his wife, children, or any other; in this caſe, albeit the wives eſtate have precedency, yet the King ſhall have his third part out of both the moities equally. So if one be ſeized of Gavel-kind land held in Capite, and his ſon being dead, deviſe part of it to one of his grand-children, and part of it to another, and part to a third Tail; in this caſe, the Kings third part ſhall come out of all the three parts equally, and accordingly the Deviſe will be voyd for ſo much to every one of them, Coo. ſuper Litt. 111. 9. 133. 3. 32. 30. So if one hold three ſeveral Mannours of three ſeveral Lords, he cannot deviſe two of theſe Mannours, leaving a third to deſcend, but he may deviſe two parts of every of the third Mannours, and a third part of each Mannour muſt deſcend to each Lord, for there muſt be an equality in theſe things. For further illuſtration of which things, the examples following are to be heeded. W. B. being ſeized of the Mannour of Thoby in Capite, and of lands in Fobbing held in Socage in Fee, and he and his wife being ſeized of the Mannour of Hinton held in Capite to them and the heirs of their two bodies begotten by an eſtate made to them during the Coverture for the joynture of the wife, the reverſion to W. in Fee, and Thoby doth amount to the value of two parts, and Hinton and Fobbing to a third part, and W. B. by his Will in writing doth deviſe Thoby to his wife for life, upon condition that ſhe ſhall not take her former Joynture, with divers remainders over, and dye, and ſhe refuſed her former Joynture in Hinton; in this caſe it was adjudged that the Deviſe was not good for the whole Mannour of Thoby, and that the Mannour of Hinton was not a ſufficient third part to deſcend, Coo. 3. Butler and Bakers Caſe. L. L. being ſeized of the Mannour of Affaland, Heanton, Rillaton, Pengelley, Willeſworthy, and Triveſquite (the laſt onely held in Capite) in Fee, and having iſſue Thomas his eldeſt ſon, William, Humphrey, and Richard, younger ſons, which Richard had iſſue Leonard, makes a Feoffment of theſe Mannours to divers uſes, viz. of the Mannours of R, P, W, and A, to the uſe of the Feoffer, for life, and after to the uſe of ſuch perſon as he ſhould appoint by his laſt Will, and after to the uſe of W. his ſecond ſonne in Taile, and after to his other ſonnes in Tail, and after to the uſe of the Feoffer and his wife in Taile, and after to the uſe of the Feoffer and his heirs for ever, Coo. 10. 78. Leonard Lovels Caſe. Coo. 11. 24. And of the Mannour of H. to ſuch like uſes, and of the Mannour of T. alſo to ſuch like uſes, and the ſame uſes were with power of Revocation: And after the Feoffor purchaſed eight Acres of other land held in Socage, and after did revoke the uſes of the Mannours of R, P.W. and A. and after deviſed ſome of the ſaid Mannours (excepting ſome peices) and the ſaid eight Acres of land to his eldeſt ſon and the heirs male of his body for 500 years on certain conditions, and if he dye without iſſue, that it ſhall go to William, &c. and afterwards he dyed ſeized of the ſaid eight Acres of land, and the lands deviſed by the Will at the time of the death of the Teſtator were of the yearly value of 24 l. 14 s. 10 d. per annum, & non ultra, and the lands whereof the Feoffment was made, and not revoked, were at the time of the death of the Teſtator of the value of 55 l. 6 s. 8 d. in this caſe, it was adjudged that the Deviſe of the eight Acres newly purchaſed was voyd, at leaſt for a third part, and reſtrained by the reverſion in Fee expectant upon the eſtate Tail made to the younger ſon of the Mannour held in Capite. And it was reſolved, That if a man be ſeized of three Acres of equal yearly value, one of them held of the King by Knights Service in Capite, and have iſſue two ſons, and give the Acre ſo held; and another of the Acres to his younger ſon, whereby he hath ſo executed his power by the Statute, that he cannot deviſe by his Will any part of the third Acre; and after he purchaſe three Acres of equal value held in Socage; that in this caſe, becauſe he hath the reverſion in

Fee

Fee upon the eſtate Tail made to the younger ſon, he can deviſe no more but two parts of the ſaid land ſo newly purchaſed. But if the reverſion be gone before the purchaſe, he may deviſe the whole; but if a man be ſeized of lands in Fee, part of which are held of the King in Capite by Knights Service, and he convey two parts of it unto any of his ſons, or to the uſe of his wife for life, or in Tail; in this caſe, albeit he may not deviſe any part of the reſidue, yet he may by his Will deviſe the reverſion of the two parts. And in caſe, where he hath not conveyed the full two parts, he may deviſe ſo much as to make up that he hath conveyed full two parts: And it was further reſolved in the ſame Leonard Lovets caſe, That whereas the Statute ſaith, All perſons, &c. having, &c. of any Mannours, &c. in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder, &c. and the Feoffer L. L. in the caſe before had a remainder in Tail expectant upon the eſtates in Tail limited to the ſons; that this remainder was not within the Statute, nor would have reſtrained the Deviſe, but for the reverſion in Fee afterwards, Coo. 6. 16. ſuper Litt. 111. A.B. being ſeized in Fee of the Mannour of Gracedin held in Capite, and of the value of 30 l. per an. and of the Mannour of Normanton held in Capite, of the value of 18 l. per an. in conſideration of a marriage with M, did covenant to ſtand ſeized of the Mannor of G, to the uſe of himſelf and the heirs males of his body on the body of the ſaid M, and after to the uſe of W. B. his brother, and the heirs males of his body, and after to the uſe of another brother in Tail, and after to the uſe of his own right heirs, and of the Mannour of N to the uſe of himſelf and M he is to marry, and the heirs of his body, and after the remainders as before of the other Mannour, and after the marriage is had, and A B doth purchaſe other lands held in Socage of the value of 3 l. per annum, and then deviſed the ſame new purchaſed lands; in this caſe, it was adjudged that the Deviſe was voyd for a third part of the Socage land, in reſpect of the reverſion dependant upon the eſtate Tail, and yet that it was a good Deviſe for two parts of the new purchaſed land, albeit he had executed his power, and given more than two parts to the uſe of his wife, Coo. 11. 23. Henry Harpur's Caſe. And in theſe caſes where a man hath land held in Capite, and other land, and he convey the land held in Capite to any of the Uſes within the Statute, as to his younger children or the like, or convey it with power of revocation onely, ſo that he hath power of the land ſtill, and after he purchaſe land held in Socage; in this caſe it ſeems he may deviſe all the land newly purchaſed, as if the land were conveyed without any ſuch power of revocation, Coo. 10. 83. A being ſeized of land in Fee held of the King in Capite, made a Feoffment of two parts of it to the uſe of his wife, for her life, for her Joynture, and after made a Feoffment of the third part to the uſe of ſuch perſon and perſons, and of ſuch eſtate and eſtates as he ſhall limit and appoint by his laſt Will and Teſtament in writing, and afterwards he did by his laſt Will in writing deviſe this third part to one in Fee; in this caſe it was reſolved that the Deviſe was good for the whole third part, Coo. 6. 17. Sir Edwards Caſe. And yet if a man make a Feoffment in Fee of land held in Capite to the uſe of his laſt Will, albeit the Deviſe of the Land be with reference to the Feoffment, yet it is voyd for a third part. E.B. being ſeized of ſix Mannours, the one in Fee, and the reſt in Tail, with the reverſion expectant to him and his heirs, and hath iſſue T. B. divers of which Mannours are held of the King in Capite by Knights Service, and every of them of equal yearly value, by his laſt Will in writing did deviſe all the ſaid Mannours to divers perſons and their heirs for payment of his debts, and advancement of his children, and then died, and the eſtate in Tail that deſcended to his iſſue was more than a third part of all; in this caſe it was reſolved that the Deviſe was good for two parts of the reverſions, and for the entire Mannour in Poſſeſſion, and not voyd for a third part of the Mannour in Poſſeſſion, and for all the reverſions in Fee, Coo. 10. 81. Tr. 34. Eliz. Bedinfield's Caſe. A man being ſeized in fee of Gavelkind land in Kent, part whereof is held of the King in Capite, and part of Common perſons in Socage, hath iſſue A, who hath iſſue B, C, and D. and A deviſeth ſome of theſe lands to B, and ſome to C, and ſome to D his Grandchildren in Tail; in this caſe the Deviſe is voyd for a third part of the whole,

as

as well for the land held in Socage as the land held in Capite, Coo. Rep. Stamf. Per. 8. And yet if in this caſe no Will be made, the King ſhall have but a third part of that which doth deſcend to the eldeſt ſon, the heir at the Common Law, and not the third part of that which doth deſcend to the younger ſons by cuſtome. And if lands deviſable by cuſtome come into the Kings hands, and he grant them to hold of him in Capite, and the Patentee deviſe them to the uſe of his wife, children, or for payment of his debts, &c. in this caſe the Deviſe is voyd for a third part: And here note, that in all the caſes before, where a man is reſtrained to deviſe a third part of his land, if he deviſe the whole, the Deviſe is good notwithſtanding for ſo much as he hath power to deviſe. See more, Brownl. 2. part. 105, 106, 107. And enquire what alteration is made in the Law in theſe Caſes by the order of Parliament, whereby theſe Tenures and the Incidents thereof are taken away. And as touching the thing deviſed, it is further to be known. 13. That a man muſt have right to, and poſſeſſion of the land he deviſeth, or elſe the Deviſe is not good. And therefore if a Diſſeiſor deviſe the land he hath gotten by Diſſeiſin, this Deviſe as to the Diſſeiſee is voyd, Plow. 485. And if a man be diſſeiſed of his land, ſo that he hath nothing but a right thereof left, and then he deviſe this right, or deviſe the land, this Deviſe is voyd. And if one contract for land, and pay his money for it, but hath no aſſurance of the land, and he deviſe this land to another, this cannot be a good Deviſe of the land, but perhaps the Deviſee may in a Court of equity compell him that hath received the money to aſſure and ſettle the land according to the Deviſe. Nevils Caſe. And if one deviſe another mans land, this Deviſe is voyd; but if he after the Deviſe made purchaſe this land, now is the Deviſe good, Plow. 144. Fitz. Deviſe 7. If a man bargain and ſell land to me on condition to re-enter, if he pay me 10 l. and I covenant that I will not take the profits untill default of payment, and he make a Leaſe of ſix years of it to another, and after break the condition; in this caſe I may deviſe this land, and the Deviſe will be good, Adjudged Powſley and Blakemans Caſe. 14. A Seigniory, Rent, or the like thing is deviſable as land is, and will paſs without the Atturnement of the Tenant, Perk. Sect. 538. Litt. Sect. 585, 586. Dyer 253. 140. 5. 52. F. N. B. 121. Coo. ſuper Litt. 111. 8. 83. 3. 33. Brownl. 1. part. 75, 76. The like Law is of a reverſion alſo. And a man may deviſe a Rent de novo iſſuing out of land, or a Rent iſſuing out of land that is in eſſe before. And therefore if a man make a Leaſe for life or years, rendring Rent, the Leſſor may deviſe this Rent. So if a Rent be granted to one and his heirs, the Grantee may deviſe this Rent. So a man that is ſeized of land in Fee, may deviſe any Rent out of it at his pleaſure. And therefore if a man that holdeth his land by Knights Service in Chief, by his Will deviſe any Rent Common, or other profit out of it; this Deviſe is good, and that albeit the Rent or Profit doth amount to the value of the whole land; as if one have three Acres of land worth 3 s. by the year, and he deviſe 3 s. Rent out of it; this is a good Deviſe of the whole Rent; but in this caſe the Rent ſhall iſſue out of two parts of the land, and a third part ſhall be free and not charged with it, but he may charge 2 parts in 3 parts of ſuch land at his pleaſure. And ſo alſo it is if a man have lands holden by Knights Service, and not in Capite, and other lands in Socage, he may charge two parts of the Knights Service land, and all his Socage land at his pleaſure. And if a man have lands held in Socage, and no lands held in Capite, or by Knights Service, he may deviſe what Rent he will out of it. But a man cannot deviſe a Rent Common, or any ſuch like thing out of another mans land that is none of his own, nor out of that he hath not. And therefore if one deviſe 10 l. out of his Mannour of Dale, when in truth he hath no ſuch Mannour, this Deviſe is voyd. If a Rent be granted to me for the life of I. S. it ſeems I may not deviſe this Rent, but that the Terre-tenant ſhall hold it as an Occupant, Dyer 253. 15. Where a man is ſeized of a houſe in Fee, and may deviſe the houſe it ſelf, there it ſeems he may deviſe the doors, windows, wainſcot, or the like Incidents of the houſe. And where a man may deviſe the land it ſelf, it ſeems he may deviſe the trees or graſs growing upon the land, Quando licet id quod majus, videtur & licere id quod minus. But where the land it ſelf is not deviſable, there ſuch things incident or annexed to,

Deviſe of a right to Land, or of Land that is another mans.

Deviſe of Rent, Common, Seigniory, or the like.

Occupant.

Deviſe of houſes, doors, glaſs, wainſcot, &c.

or

or growing, or being upon it, are not deviſable. And therefore the Tenant in Tail for life or years of land, may not deviſe the houſes or windows, doors, or wainſcot of houſes, or trees or graſs being or growing thereupon, but this Deviſe is voyd, *Coo.4.63. Perk.Sect.*512,518. *Coo.*11. Rich. Lifords Caſe. Kelw 88. 16. Where a man hath a Uſe that is not executed by the Statute of Uſes, but remains at the Common Law, he may deviſe it as he may any other thing, Perk. Sect. 50. Dyer. And therefore if one be poſſeſſed of a Term of years, and grant it over to another to the uſe of the Grantor, he may diſpoſe this uſe by his Will, for it is in the nature of a Chattel. But if a man have ſuch a uſe in joynt-tenancy, he cannot deviſe it, See Uſes. 17. All manner of Goods and Chattels real and perſonal may be diviſed by Teſtament. And therefore Leaſes for years of lands, Grants for years of Rent, Common, or the like, Wardſhips of the bodies and lands of heirs of Tenants by tenure in Capite, and by Knights Service, Cattel, as Oxen, Sheep, Horſes, &c. Gold, Silver, Money, Plate, Houſhold-ſtuff, as Beds, Pots, Pans, Platters, &c. Corn, Wood, and Implements of Husbandry may be deviſed by Will; and not onely thoſe a man hath at the time of the Deviſe, but thoſe a man is to have or may have afterwards. And therefore it is held, a man may give his corn that ſhall grow in ſuch a ground the next year after his death, or the wool or lambs his flock of ſheep ſhall yeild the next year after his death; and that theſe Deviſes are good; but if in this caſe there ſhall be no ſuch corn growing in that ground, or any lambs or wool ariſing out of his flock that year, the Legacy is fruitleſs. And yet if the Teſtator devile to I.S. 20 quarters of corn, or 20 lambs, and both will that the ſame ſhall be paid out of his corn that ſhall grow, or out of his flock the next year, and there be not ſo much corn, or not ſo many lambs, or not any at all growing or ariſing, yet this is a good Deviſe, and the things muſt be paid. In like manner, if a man give to I.S. a horſe, or a yoke of oxen, in this caſe, albeit the Teſtator have neither horſe nor yoke of oxen, yet the Deviſe is good, and muſt be performed, *Swinb.part.*3. *Sect.*5. Perk. Sect. 511. 525. 18. Things in action, as debts, and the like, albeit they be not grantable by deed in the life time of the party, yet are they deviſable by Will. And therefore if the Teſtator doth by his Will give any debt due to him on an obligation, or on a contract, or the like; this Deviſe is good. And the thing deviſed may be had thus; the Teſtator may if he will make the Legatary Executor as to that debt, or if he do not, the Legatary may ſue the Executor in the Spiritual Court, or in ſome Court of equity, and thereby compell the Executor either to recover it himſelf, and ſo to pay it to the Legatary, or to give the Legatary power to ſue for and recover it himſelf in the Executors name. But if it be ſuch a cauſe of action as is altogether uncertain, as where a man may have an action againſt another for taking away his goods, or to compell him to make an account, or the like; this is ſuch a cauſe of action as is not deviſable. And yet poſſibilities and uncertainties are in divers caſes deviſable, *Perk. Sect.*527. *Litt. Broo. Sect.*437. Dyer 272. *Plow.*520. And therefore if one have money to be paid him on a Mortgage, he may deviſe this money when it comes; as if I enfeoff a ſtranger of land, upon condition that if he do not pay me 20 l. ſuch a day, that I may re-enter, in this caſe I may deviſe this 20 l. if it be paid, and the Deviſe is good, albeit it be made before the day of payment come. And if a man be poſſeſſed of a Term of years, and deviſe all the reſidue of that Term of years that ſhall be to come at the time of his death; this Deviſe is good, and yet ſuch a Grant by deed is voyd, Childs Caſe, 17. Ja. B. R. Rot. a meer poſſibility, and a thing altogether uncertain, is no more deviſable by will, than it is grantable by deed, *Perk. Sect.*520, 521, &c. See in Grants. 19. Emblements, i. e. the corn that is ſown and growing upon a mans ground at the time of his death, and which himſelf ſhould have reaped if he had lived to the harveſt (as in moſt caſes he ſhall where he doth ſow it) are deviſable. And therefore if a man have land in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years, and ſow it with corn; he may deviſe the corn at his death to whom he pleaſe; and yet if the Leſſee for years ſow his land ſo little while before his Term expire that it cannot be ripe before the end of the Term, and he dye, it ſeems he cannot deviſe this corn, for if he had lived he could not have reaped it after the end of the Term.

Deviſe of a Uſe.

Deviſe of goods and chattels.

Deviſe of debts, and thing in action, poſſibilities, and uncertainties

Grant.

Deviſe of Emblements.

Deviſe of Obligations. Counterpanes of Leaſes, &c.

20. Obligations, Counterpanes of Leaſes, and ſuch like things alſo are deviſable; but in this caſe the Deviſee cannot ſue upon the Obligation in his own name, nor enter for the condition broken upon the Leaſe, if there be cauſe, but he may cancel, give, ſell, or deliver up the Obligation or Counterpane to the Obligor, or Leſſee, Perk. Sect. 527. And finally, whatſoever ſhall come to the Executor after the death of the Teſtator in the right of his Executorſhip, may be deviſed by the laſt Will and Teſtament of the Teſtator. See infra in numb.

Deviſe of the things a man hath in Joynture with another.

21. The Goods and Chattels that a man hath joyntly with another are not deviſable. And therefore if there be two Joynt-tenants of Goods or Chattels, as where ſuch things are given to two, or two do buy ſuch things together, and one of them deviſe his part of the things to a ſtranger, this Deviſe is voyd. Inſomuch, that if in this caſe the Teſtator make the other Joynt-tenant his Executor, the Will as to this is voyd, and he ſhall not be charged as Executor for thoſe Goods, but he ſhall have them altogether by right of ſurvivorſhip, Perk. Sect. 526. Litt. Sect. 287. Doct. & St. 167.

Deviſe of the things a man hath in anothers right.

22. The Goods and Chattels that a man hath in anothers right are not deviſable; and therefore an Executor or Adminiſtrator cannot deviſe the Goods and Chattels he hath as Executor or Adminiſtrator, for ſuch the Deviſe is voyd, Plow. 525. Broo. Adminiſtrator 7. Fitz. Adm. 3. Howbeit the Executor may appoint an Executor of the Goods of the firſt Teſtator, which the Adminiſtrator cannot do; and of the profits that do ariſe by the Goods and Chattels the Executor or Adminiſtrator hath during the time of his Adminiſtration, he may make diſpoſition. The Goods and Chattels belonging to Colledges and Hoſpitals may not be deviſed by the Teſtaments of the Maſters or Governours thereof, nor the Goods and Chattels belonging to other Corporations by the Mayors, Bayliffs, or Heads thereof. And the Goods & Chattels that Churchwardens have in the right of the Church are not deviſable, Doct. & St. lib. 2. c. 39. Perk. Sect. 496, 498, 499. All the Chattels real that a man hath in the right of his wife by her means, and all the Obligations that are made to her alone before, or during the time of the Coverture, and the Chattels real or perſonal that his wife hath as Executrix to any other, are not deviſable by the Teſtament of the husband. But all the Chattels perſonal that a man hath by his wife which ſhe hath in her own right, and the debts due upon Obligations made to the husband and wife both during the Coverture, are deviſable by the Teſtament of the husband, Perk. Sect. 560. Doct. & St. c. 7.

Husband and wife.

Deviſe of things that are incident and annexed to ſome other thing.

23. Such things as are annexed and incident to a Free-hold or inheritance, ſo that it cannot be ſevered from it by him that hath the property of them, as wainſcot, and glaſs to houſes, and the like, are not deviſable; but in ſuch caſes where the thing it ſelf to which it is annexed is deviſable, Perk. Sect. 526. Relw. 88. See before.

Deviſe of things that are not the Deviſors, or belong not unto his Executor.

24. The Goods and Chattels that are another mans, are not deviſable, and therefore if a man give another mans horſe, it is a voyd Deviſe. So if one deviſe the things that by ſpecial cuſtome of ſome places, as the heir-loomes do belong to the heir, this Deviſe is voyd, for it is not deviſable from him, Plow. Granthams Caſe. Coo. ſuper Litt. 185. Coo. ſuper Litt. 308.

Deviſe of a Preſentation to a Church.

25. If a Biſhop have a Ward belonging to his Biſhoprick fallen, he may deviſe it; but if a Church of his become voyd in his life time, he cannot deviſe the Preſentation. If a Parſon of a Church have the Advouſon in Fee, and he deviſe that his Executors two or three of them ſhall preſent at the next avoydance, this is a good Deviſe, Trin. 13. Ja. Curia. B. R.

Miſtake or errour in the thing deviſed.

26. All theſe things before that are deviſable, when they are deviſed muſt be named, and deviſed either by their proper name, or otherwiſe deſcribed by ſome other matter whereby the minde of the Teſtator may be known and diſcerned; for if he erre and miſtake in the name or ſubſtance of the thing deviſed, or it be ſo uncertainly deviſed and deſcribed that it cannot be perceived what he intendeth, the Deviſe is voyd, Swinb. part. 7. c. 5. Plow. 525. Perk. Sect. 500. Brownl. 1. part. 132. And therefore if one deviſe a peice of ground by the name of a Meſſuage, except it be ſo called, the Deviſe is voyd; and yet by the Deviſe of the uſe, profit, or occupation of land, the land it ſelf is well deviſed; and by the Deviſe vne of land it ſelf, the reverſion thereof may be deviſed. But if one intending to deviſe a horſe, doth deviſe an oxe; or meaning to give gold, doth give apparel; theſe Legacies are voyd, unleſs his meaning may appear by ſome circumſtance to be otherwiſe; as if a man have but one horſe, and he be called Arundell, and he deviſe his horſe Bucephall; this Legacy is good enough. And if a man give all his money in ſuch a Cheſt, when in truth there is no money in that Cheſt; or give to another the 10 l. which I. S. doth owe him, when in truth I. S. doth not owe any ſuch money; this Deviſe is voyd. And yet if the Deviſe be thus, viz. I give to A. B. 10 l. and I will that the ſame be paid of the money I have in ſuch a Cheſt, or of the money which ſuch a man doth owe me; in this caſe the Deviſe is good, albeit there be not any money in the Cheſt, or owing. And if one give 10 l. remaining in ſuch a Cheſt, whereas in truth there is but 5 l. in the Cheſt, in this caſe the Legacy is good for the 5 l. But errour and miſtake in the quantity and quality of the thing deviſed, when the ſame for the ſubſtance of it is certain, doth not hurt: And therefore, if the Teſtator meaning to give the fourth part of his goods, give the one half, or meaning to give but 50 l. give 100 l. or è converſo, meaning to give a greater, doth give a leſs quantity or ſum; in theſe caſes, the Legacy is good, and the Legatary ſhall have as much as the Teſtator did mean. If a man give his white horſe, when in truth he hath but one horſe, and that is black; this is a good Deviſe of this horſe: And if the thing deviſed be under ſuch general words, that the minde of the Teſtator cannot be known by it, the Deviſe is voyd: and therefore, if the Teſtator ſay, I do bequeath ſomething, or I bequeath a ſubſtance, or I bequeath a body, or I bequeath, or the like; theſe Deviſes are voyd for uncertainty: So if he ſay, I do give lands, or I do give goods; theſe Deviſes are voyd: And yet if the Teſtator give a horſe, an oxe, a gold chain, or the like indefinitely; in theſe caſes, the Deviſe is good, albeit he have no ſuch thing. But if one deviſe thus, I give lead, money, wheat, oil, or the like; and ſay, not how much, or what quantity; this Legacy is voyd for uncertainty, or at leaſt the Executor may deliver what quantity thereof he will, and this ſhall ſatisfie the Legacy, Swinb. part. 7. caſ. 10.

Incertainty in the thing deviſed.

7. As touching the terms of a Deviſe, it muſt be known, That if one deviſe any thing to wicked ends, or upon wicked conditions, as to the end that the Deviſee ſhall kill a man, or becauſe he hath killed a man, or the like; theſe Deviſes are voyd in like manner, as it is when the cauſe or motive is falſe, as becauſe one is my Coſin, or hath lent me money, I deviſe to him 20 l. and he is not my Coſin, or did not lend me money; theſe Deviſes are voyd, Swinb. 289. And as touching the reſt of the properties of a good Deviſe, ſee them before in the properties of a good Teſtament, Coo. 3. 36. And here by the way, be adviſed if thou haſt land to ſettle, rather to do it by act executed by advice of learned Counſel in thy life and health-time, and therein adde ſuch conditions and proviſoes of revocation, and otherwiſe as thou wilt; or if thou wilt do it by Will, then do it in thy perfect memory, and by learned advice: Let the Will be indented, and of two parts, and leave one part with a friend, that it be not ſuppreſſed after thy death; Let there be credible Witneſſes to the publication thereof, and let their names be ſubſcribed to it: Let the whole Will be written with one hand, and in one peice of paper or parchment for fear of alteration, addition, or diminution: Let the hand and ſeal of the Deviſor be ſet to it: And if it be in ſeveral parts, let his hand and ſeal, and the hands of the Witneſſes be to every part: If there be any raſing or interlining, let there be a Memorandum of it. And if thou make any revocation of thy Will, do it by good advice, and by writing;

A Caveat for making of Teſtaments.

8. The Expoſition of Teſtaments and Deviſes, and how they ſhall be conſtrued and taken. Deviſes of Land.

The general rules for the Expoſition of Wills, are theſe, That they muſt have a favourable and benign interpretation, and as near to the minde and intent of the Teſtator as may be; and yet ſo withall, as his intent may ſtand with the rules of Law, and be not repugnant thereunto, Plow. 540. Coo. ſuper Litt. 322. It is ſaid to be therefore a Maxim of Law, Quod ultima voluntas teſtatoris perimplenda eſt ſecundùm veram intentionem ſuam, according to theſe Verſes:

Sed legum ſervanda fides, ſuprema voluntas
Quod mandat fierique jubet parere neceſſe eſt.

First, in reſpect of the perſon that is to take by the Deviſe; and what, when, and how he ſhall ſo take by the Deviſe.

If a Deviſe be made of land to I. S. and the heirs males of his body; by this Deviſe the ſons and not the daughters of I. S. ſhall have the land. And if a Deviſe be made of land to I. S. and the heirs Females of his body; by this Deviſe the daughters and not the ſons of I. S. ſhall have the land. And yet it hath been ſaid in theſe caſes, that if in the firſt caſe the Deviſee hath iſſue a daughter, who hath iſſue a ſon; or in the laſt caſe, hath iſſue a ſon, who hath iſſue a daughter, that this ſon and daughter ſhall take by this Deviſe in theſe caſes; but it ſeems the Law is otherwiſe, Terms of the Law, tit. Deviſe. Coo. ſuper Litt. 25. Plow. 414.

Grant.

If a Deviſe be made of land to I. S. and his heirs males, by this Deviſe I. S. hath an eſtate Tail; but otherwiſe it is of ſuch a limitation by Deed; for if one by Deed give land to another and his heirs males, by this the Donee hath a Fee-ſimple, and his heirs general ſhall have it, 27. H. 8. 17.

If a Deviſe be of land to I. S. and to the eldeſt heirs females of his body; by this Deviſe all his daughters, and not one of them onely ſhall take it: So if one deviſe Gavelkind-land to a man and his eldeſt heirs; this doth not alter the cuſtome, but by this all the ſons ſhall take, Coo. ſuper Litt. 27.

If a man deviſe his land to his wife for life, the remainder to his ſon and the heirs males of his body engendred, and for default of ſuch iſſue the remainder to his next heir male, and the heirs males of the body of that heir male, and after his ſon dye without iſſue (his wife living) and the Deviſor hath iſſue a daughter, who hath iſſue a ſon; in this caſe and by this Deviſe it ſeems the daughter and not her ſon ſhall have the land, and that in Fee-ſimple, Fitz. Deviſe 2.

If a man deviſe his land to his wife for life, and after to his own right heirs males, and he hath iſſue three daughters, and after his death one of them hath a ſon; in this caſe, and by this Deviſe the next collateral heir male of the Deviſor, and not the ſon of the daughter ſhall have the land, Trin. 9. Jac. Adjudged Curtes's Caſe.

If a man have iſſue two ſons and a daughter, and deviſe his land to his wife for ten years, the remainder to his younger ſon and his heirs, and if either of the ſaid two ſons dye without iſſue of their bodies, the remainder to the daughter and her heirs, and the younger ſon dye in the life time of the father, and after the father dye; in this caſe, and by this Deviſe the daughter hath a good remainder, but it ſeems the elder ſon hath firſt an eſtate Tail by the intent of the Deviſor. Dyer 122.

If a man deviſe ſome land to A his eldeſt daughter and her heirs, & if ſhe dye without iſſue, to T his youngeſt daughter and her heirs, and if ſhe dye within 16 years, that A ſhall have her part to her and her heirs, and if A marry ſuch an one, that T ſhall have her part to her and her heirs; and if T dye having no iſſue, that all her part ſhall go to M and E his Neeces; and if A dye without iſſue, that T ſhall have her part to her and her heirs, and T after the 16 years doth dye without iſſue; in this caſe the Neeces M and E, and not A ſhall have her part that is dead. Dyer 330.

If land be deviſed to A for life, the remainder to a Monk for life, the remainder to I S in Fee; by this Deviſe he in the remainder in Fee ſhall take preſently after the firſt eſtate for life ended; and if the Deviſe be to a Monk for life, the remainder to I S in Fee; by this I S ſhall take preſently, Perk. Sect. 566, 567.

If there be husband and wife, and they have iſſue a ſon and a daughter, and the husband die, and land is deviſed to the wife and the heirs of her late husband on her body begotten; in this caſe, and by this Deviſe the wife hath onely an eſtate for life, the ſon an eſtate in Taile, and ſo alſo the daughter in caſe he die without iſſue. Coo. ſuper Littl. 26.

For life. If one deviſe to J. S. that if he and his heirs of his body be not paid 20 l. rent yearly, he and they ſhall diſtraine, &c. by this Deviſe J. S. hath an eſtate taile of this rent. But if the Deviſe be that if J. S. be not paid 20 l. yearly, he ſhall diſtrain &c. by this Devile J. S. hath only an eſtate for life. So if one deviſe a rent of 10 l. out of his land to be paid quarterly, and ſay not how long the rent ſhall continue: this is but an eſtate for life. Coo. ſuper Littl. 147. 8. 85. Brownl 2. part 74. 75.

If one deviſe his land thus, I give my land in Dale to J. S. for his life, or to J. S. [without any more words] or J. S. & his heir, in the ſingular number; or J. S. and his children, and J. S. hath children at the time of the Deviſe; or to J. S. & his ſucceſſors, (J. S. being a naturall perſon;) by all theſe and ſuch like Deviſes J. S. hath only an eſtate for life in the thing deviſed. Fitz. Deviſe 16. Coo. 6. 16. Perk. ſect. 577. But if the Teſtator have only a Terme of years in the land whereof the Deviſe is made, and deviſe this land to J. S. and doth not ſay for what time; it ſeems that by this Deviſe the whole Terme is deviſed, unleſs the intent doth appear to be otherwiſe. And if one deviſe land (whereof a man is ſeiſed in Fee) to J. S. paying 10 l. to J. D. by this Deviſe, albeit there be no eſtate expreſſed, yet J. S. hath the Fee-ſimple of the land, in reſpect of the payment of the money. Mich. 13 Jac. B. R. Dyer ſect. 307. But if the intent of the Teſtator appear to be that J. S. ſhall have the land but for his life, contra; for there the conſideration will not alter the eſtate expreſſed upon the gift. See before Littl. Broo. ſect. 406. 125.

Deed. If land be deviſed thus, I give my land in Dale to J. S. and his aſſignes, [without more words] by this Deviſe is held to be given no more but an eſtate for life by conſtruction upon a Will, as it is upon a Deed. Coo. ſuper Litt. 9. 4. 29. And yet in the New Termes of the Law tit. Deviſe, the contrary is affirmed, Ideo quære.

If one deviſe thus, I will that J. S. ſhall have and occupy my land in Dale, and ſay not how long: by this Deviſe J. S. ſhall have the land for his life. Paſch. 9. Jac. Newmans caſe. But if I deviſe that J. S. ſhall enter into my land, and ſay no more; by this Deviſe J. S. hath no eſtate at all, but power to enter into the land only. Dyer 342.

If a man have a ſon and a daughter and dieth, and lands are deviſed to the daughter, and the heirs females of the body of the Father; by this Deviſe the daughter hath hath only an eſtate for her life; for there is no ſuch perſon, for ſhe is not heir. Coo. ſuper Littl. 24.

If one deviſe his land thus, I give my land in Dale to J. S. for his life, and after to the next right heire of J. S. in the ſingular number, and to his right heirs for ever; by this deviſe J. S. hath only an eſtate for life. Coo. 1. 66.

So if one deviſe land to J. S. for life, and after to the next heir male of J. S. and to the heirs males of the body of ſuch next heir male; by this deviſe J. S. hath an eſtate for life only; but if it be thus, I give my land in Dale to J. S. for his life, and after to the heirs, or to the right heirs of J. S. by theſe deviſes J. S. hath the Fee-ſimple of the land; And if it be to J. S. for life, and after to the heirs males of J. S. by this J. S. hath an eſtate Taile.

If one deviſe land to J. S. and E. his wife, and after their deceaſe, [or the remainder] to their children; by this deviſe whether they have, or have not children at the time, J. S. and E. his wife have eſtates for their lives only. Coo. 6. 16. See Goldsb. 138. Plow. 47. 134. Plow. 33.

If one deviſe his land to his wife for her life, and if ſhe live till his ſon come to the age of 24. years, that then he ſhall have the land; And if ſhe dye before he come to that age, then that J. S. ſhall have it till his ſon come to that age, and J. S. dye before the wife, and after ſhe dye before the ſon come to 24. years, in this caſe the Executors of J. S. ſhall not have the land till the ſon come to 24. years of age. Goldsb. 64. Plow. 2.

If one deviſe a moity of his land to his wife for life, and the other moity to his ſecond ſon, and after by another clauſe doth deviſe it all to his ſon after the death of his wife: by this Deviſe the ſon hath only an eſtate for life after the wives death, and no more. Curia 7. Ja. Coo. B.

If one deviſe his land to J. S. in Fee after the death of J. B. (being his ſon and heir apparant;) by this Deviſe J. B. hath an eſtate for life by implication, and untill the Deviſe take effect, the Law gives it to him by deſcent. And ſo alſo it ſeems the law is where one doth deviſe his land to J. S. after the death of his wife: that by this Deviſe the wife hath an eſtate for life by implication. And therefore if a man deviſe thus, I give my goods to my wife, and that after her deceaſe, my ſon and heir ſhall have the houſe where the goods are; it is held by this Deviſe that the wife hath an eſtate for life in the houſe by implication; for a man is bound to provide for his own wife. But if a man deviſe his land to J. S. after the death of J. W. (a ſtranger to the Deviſor;) it ſeems that by this Deviſe J. W. hath no eſtate at all by implication, and that this doth but ſet forth when the eſtate of J. S. ſhall begin, and that the intent of the Teſtator is that his heir ſhall have it untill that time. Broo. Deviſe 48. 52. Littl. Broo. 107. 13. H. 7. 13. New terms of the Law tit. Deviſe Plow. 158. 414. 521. By Implication.

If one deviſe lands thus, I give my land in Dale to J. S. to the intent that with the profits thereof, he ſhall bring up a child, or to the intent, that with the profits thereof, he ſhall pay to A 10 l. or to the intent that he ſhall out of the profits thereof pay yearly 10 l. by theſe Deviſes J. S. hath only an eſtate for life, albeit the payments to be made be greater than the rent of the land: And therfore, it is not like to the caſe before, where a ſum of mony is to be paid preſently. Coo. 6. 16. 3. 20. Broo. Eſtates 78.

If one deviſe his land thus, I give my land to A. my coſin in Fee-ſimple, after her deceaſe to W. her ſon (who is her heir apparant;) by this Deviſe ſhe hath an eſtate for life firſt, the remainder to her ſon for his life, the remainder to the heirs of A in Fee-ſimple: And ſo alſo is the Law when the Deviſe is to any other after that manner. Dyer 357.

If my father be tenant for life of land, the remainder to me in Fee, and I deviſe this land to my wife, rendring for her naturall life 40 s. to the right heir of my father; by this Deviſe my wife hath an eſtate for life after the death of my father. Dyer 371.

If one deviſe his land unto his Executors, untill his ſon ſhall come unto 21. years of age, the profits to be imployed towards the performance of his Will, and when he ſhall come to that age, then that his ſon and his heirs ſhall have it; by this Deviſe the Executors ſhall have it untill he be 21. years of age, and if he die before that time, untill the time he ſhould have been 21. years of age, if he had lived ſo long; and [ſhall] in this caſe ſhall be taken for [ſhould.] Coo. 3. 20. For years.

If one deviſe his land to his Executors for the payment of his debts, and untill his debts be paid; by this Deviſe the Executors have but a chattell and an uncertain intereſt, and they and their Exeecutors ſhall hold it untill the debts be paid and no longer. Coo. ſuper Littl. 42.

If one deviſe his land to J. S. and the heirs males of his body for the term of fifty years; it ſeems that by this Deviſe, J. S. hath but a Leaſe for ſo many years, if the heirs males of his body ſhall ſo long continue, and that for want of iſſue male, the terme of years ſhall end: And in this caſe, the Executor or Adminiſtrator, not the heirs males of J. S. ſhall have it after his death. Coo. 10. in Leonard Lovel's caſe, 87. 46.

Executors.

Fourthly, in reſpect of other matters.

If one deviſe his land thus, I give to J. S. and J. D. and their heirs, my land in Dale equally; or my land in Dale to be equally divided; by theſe Deviſes J. S. and I D ſhall have and hold the land, not as Joint-tenants, but as Tenants in common, ſo that the heir and not the ſurvivor ſhall have his part that firſt dyeth: And yet in caſe of ſuch a limitation by Deed, it is otherwiſe: And if one deviſe his land to J S. and J. D. and their heirs [without more words;] it ſeems that by this Deviſe they ſhall take and hold as Joint-tenants. Adjudged Lowen verſus Coxe. Mich. 37. 38. Eliz. Co. B. Dyer 25. Littl. Bro. ſect. 133. Littl. 283. Perk. ſect. 170. Dyer 350.

And yet if one deviſe land to J. S. and J. D. and the heirs of either of their bodies lawfully engendred; it ſeems that by this Deviſe J. S. and J. D. ſhall take and hold as Tenants in common and not as Joint-tenants, Dyer 326. And if one deviſe his land to J. S. and J. D. thus, I will that J. S. and J. D. ſhall have my lands in Dale, and occupy them indifferently to them and their heirs. Paſche 9. Ja. Newmans caſe. See Brownlows Rep. 1. part. 131. 169.

If one that hath 2. daughters only give his land to them in Fee; they ſhall be in by deviſe as Joint-tenants, and not by deſcent as Partners. But if he have but one daughter, or a ſon and heir, and give it ſo, it is void, and they ſhall take by deſcent. Goldsb. 141. Plow. 53.

Deviſe of goods and chattels. Firſt, in reſpect of the perſon that ſhall take by the Deviſe.

If one be poſſeſſed of a terme of years of land, and deviſe the ſame to his wife during all the years, and if ſhe die within the years, then to A and B his two ſons, if they have no iſſue male; but if they or either of them have iſſue male, then that it ſhall go to the uſe of thoſe iſſues male; and ſhe die, and the two ſons die without iſſue born, one of their wives being privily with child of a ſon, which after his death is borne; in this caſe and by this deviſe this iſſue male ſhall have it aſſoone as he is born. Hill. 13 Ja. B. R. Adjudged. Blandfords caſe.

Executors.

Heire.

If one be poſſeſſed of a terme of years, and he deviſe it to another and his heirs, or his heirs males; by this Deviſe the Executors or Adminiſtrators, not the heirs of the Legatee ſhall have it. Coo. 10. 46. Lampets caſe. Perk. ſect. 558, 556. And therfore, if Leſſee for years of land deviſe all his intereſt therein to his wife, if ſhe live ſo long, and after her death, if any part of the term be to come, deviſe the ſame to J. S. his ſon and the heirs of his body; in this caſe and by this Deviſe, the Executors and Adminiſtrators of J. S. not his heirs ſhall have it, at leaſt, ſo long as he hath any heirs of his body: And yet if one poſſeſſed of a term of years, deviſe it to J. S. and after his death, that the heir of J. S. ſhall have it; in this caſe J. S. ſhall have ſo many years of the term as he ſhall live, and the heir of J. S. and the Executor of that heir ſhall have the reſidue of the term. See Brown. Rep. 1. part. 41. 131.

If one give 10 l. to the Children of J. S. and at the time of the Deviſe J. S. hath foure children, and after before the death of the Teſtator he happen to have two more; in this caſe and by this Deviſe, the two children he hath afterwards ſhall have no part of the 10 l. but thoſe four he had before ſhall have it all. Swinb. 316.

If one give 10 l. to his Pariſh-Church, and at the time of the Will made, he live in one Pariſh, and after he doth remove into another Pariſh, and die there; by this Deviſe the Pariſh where he lived before, and not where he died, ſhall have this 10 l. Swinb. 316.

Secondly, in reſpect of the thing.

If one deviſe a third part of all his goods and chattels; by this Deviſe, ſome ſay, doth paſſe, and is given no more but a clear third part after debts and Legacies paid: but it ſeems a third part of the whole is hereby deviſed, out of which the debts muſt firſt be paid by Law. Dyer 598. 164.

If

If one deviſe to another all his Goods and Chattels, or all his Plate, or all of any other thing in general; by this Deviſe doth paſs and is given not onely all the Teſtator hath of that thing at the time of the making of the Will, but alſo all he hath at the time of his death; and not onely what he hath in poſſeſſion, but alſo what he hath not in poſſeſſion: But if one deviſe all his goods, or all his plate, &c. in ſuch a place, or in the occupation of I S; by this Deviſe none other will paſs but what are in that place, and in the occupation of I S. Plow. 343. Swinb. 318.

If one have a term of years of a portion of Tithes in Dale, and have a term of years of land in Dale; and he deviſe all his lands and tenements in Dale, and all his eſtate therein to I S; by this Deviſe the portion of Tithes doth not paſs, for it is neither land, nor tenement: but by deviſe of all his hereditaments, perhaps it may paſs. Sed Quære. By the opinion of divers Lawyers.

If one deviſe to I S all his Goods and Chattels, by this deviſe doth paſs and is given all his eſtate active and paſſive (except land of inheritance, and free-hold eſtates, and ſuch things as depend thereupon) as Leaſes for years, Wardſhips by Tenure in Capite, or by Knights Service, gold, ſilver, plate, houſhold-ſtuff, cattel, corn, debts, and the like; and if one deviſe to I S all his goods, or all his Chattels, by either of theſe is deviſed as much as by both of them. Portman verſus Willis. Paſche. 36 Eliz. Co. B. Coo. ſuper Litt. 118. Swinb. part. 7. c. 10.

If one give his Goods by Will to his wife for life, and after her deceaſe to I S, this is not good to I S, for a Deviſe of a remainder of goods is not good. But where the Deviſe is of the uſe and occupation of goods onely, there it may be good by way of remainder, March. 106. pl. 183.

If one have goods worth 100 l. and owe 20 l. and giveth to his wife the one half of all his goods to be equally divided between him and his executors, in this caſe the wife ſhall have the one half of all the eſtate, and that without defalcation, Goldſb. 149. pl. 74.

If one deviſe to I S all his moveables, by this Deviſe doth paſs all his perſonal goods, both quick and dead, which either move themſelves, as horſes, ſheep, and the like; or may be moved by another, as plate, houſhold-ſtuff, corn in the garners and barns, or in the ſheaf, &c. Swinb. 305. 306, 307. alſo all Bonds and Eſpecialties; and by a Deviſe of Immovables doth paſs Leaſes, Rents, graſs, and the like; but not any of thoſe things that do paſs by the deviſe of moveables; but debts will not paſs by either of theſe Deviſes, Agree Hill. 9. Car. Co. B.

If one deviſe to another all his houſhold-ſtuff, hereby doth paſs his plate, coaches, tables, ſtools, forms, beds, veſſels of wood, braſs, pewter, earth, and the like; but not his apparel, books, weapons, tools for Artificers, cattel, victuals, corn, plow-geare, and the like; by a Deviſe of all utenſils, it is agreed that plate and jewels do not paſs, Swinb. 313. part. 7. c. 10. Dyer 59.

If a man deviſe to I S one of his horſes, or a horſe, by this deviſe I S ſhall have the election, if there be more than one, which horſe he will have: but if the deviſe be thus, I will that my Executor ſhall deliver to I S one of my horſes; in this caſe the Executor hath the election, and may deliver which of them he will, Swinb. 302. Election.

If one deviſe thus, I give to I S my corn growing in ſuch a ground this next year; or the lambs of my flock this next year; by theſe deviſes the Legatee ſhall have no more but what doth grow that year. But if he deviſe ſo many quarters of corn, or ſo many lambs; in theſe caſes ſo much muſt be paid howſoever, Swinb. 94.

If one have a Leaſe for years of land, and deviſe it to I S for life; by this deviſe the whole term is deviſed, and I S the Deviſee ſhall have the whole term if he live ſo long, and yet I S ſhall not have an eſtate for life by this deviſe; and ſo alſo it ſeems the Law is upon a Grant by deed after this manner, Coo. 4. 66. Plow. 520. Coo. 7. 23. And if a man poſſeſſed of a term of years of land, deviſe his term, or his Leaſe, or the land it ſelf by a deviſe, in either of theſe terms the whole term doth paſs, Brownl. Rep. 1. part. 41, 45. 2. part. 308, 309. Grandfather, father, and ſon; the grandfather was poſſeſſed of a term of 22 years to come, he deviſed the land to the ſon for 21 years, and makes the ſon his Executor, and dyes; the ſon being Thirdly, in reſpect of the time.

within the age of 21 years, the Father enters into the land, and makes a Leaſe for 7 years by Indenture, untill the ſon come to full age, the father makes the ſon his Executor, and dyes; the ſon enters by force of the Deviſe made by the Grandfather; in this caſe it was adjudged that the ſon ſhall avoyd the Leaſe made by his father, Brownl. 2. part. 308.

If a man be poſſeſſed of two houſes for years, and deviſe them to his wife for her life, if ſhe live ſole; the remainder to I S; and if ſhe marry, then that ſhe ſhall have one of them during the reſt of the term, [and then addeth theſe words] and alſo, I will that ſhe ſhall have 20 l. a year out of my other lands; in this caſe, and by this Deviſe, it ſeems the Annuity ſhall continue during the term. Sed quære. for the Judges were divided in this point, Paſche 14. Jac. B. R. Gough and Haywards Caſe.

If a Legacy be given, and no time is ſet for the payment or doing of it, if it be ſimple, it muſt be paid and done preſently; if it be conditional, and upon a condition precedent, it muſt be paid or done the time the condition is firſt extant: and if there be a time ſet for the payment or doing of it, it muſt be paid or done at the time appointed. 9. Deviſe of lands to Executors or others to ſell; or that Executors or others ſhall ſell or otherwiſe diſpoſe them: how this ſhall be taken, and what ſale and diſpoſition ſhall be good, or not.

Deviſe of Lands to Executors to ſell, to pay debts, legacies, &c. are ſome of them after one manner, and ſome after another; for ſometimes the Deviſe is thus, I will that my Executors, or that A B and C my Executors ſhall ſell my land, Coo. ſuper Litt. 236. 112, 113. 15 H. 7. 12. Dyer 177. 219. Kelw. 107 108. Perk. Sect. 543. 542. Litt. Broo. Sect. 371. Kelw. 40 45. and ſometimes the Deviſe is thus, I give my land to my Executors to be ſold, or to the end that they ſhall ſell it; in the firſt caſe, the Executors have onely an authority and no intereſt, and therefore in that caſe the land doth deſcend in the interim to the heir of the Deviſor, and he ſhall have the profits of the land untill it be ſold; and if it be never ſold, he ſhall ever have the profits of it; and in this caſe, they may ſell it when they will, if they be not haſtned thereunto by order of Court; and when they do ſell, they muſt all joyn in the ſale by the Common Law, or otherwiſe the ſale had not been good; and therefore if one or more of them had dyed before the ſale, they that had ſurvived or their Executors could never have ſold it by this authority; ſo likewiſe if any of the Executors had refuſed the charge of the Will, the land could not have been ſold by the reſt, unleſs the words of the Will had been, that his Executors or ſome of them ſhould ſell it; for in that caſe, ſome of them even by the Common Law it ſelf might have ſold, and now alſo by the Statute of 21 H. 8. cap. 4. ſome of them may ſell it without the reſt; as if one give his land to A for life, and that after his deceaſe it ſhall be ſold by his Executors, and make four Executors, and one of them dye during the life of A, and then A dyeth; in this caſe the other three Executors may ſell. So if one give his land in Tail, and that if the Donee dye without iſſue, that the lands ſhall be ſold by his ſons-in-law, and he have then five ſons-in-law, and one of them dye in the life-time of the Donee, and after the Donee dye without iſſue; in this caſe, the other four may ſell the land, and the ſale made thereof is good: And yet if the words of the Will be, That it, ſhall be ſold by A B and C his Executors, or his ſons-in-law; in this caſe, if one of them dye, it cannot be ſold by the reſt: but in the laſt caſe before, where the Deviſe is, I give my land to my Executors to be ſold, &c. the Executors have an intereſt in the land, and an authority about the land alſo, and therefore in this caſe the deſcent is prevented, and the Executors ſhall keep it till the ſale; neither will any diſſeiſin, fine, recovery, or Feoffment by the heir prejudice their intereſt, but that they may ſell it when they will, but they muſt ſell it in time convenient, or otherwiſe the heir may enter and put them out by a condition in Law that is annexed to the intereſt, or perhaps the heir may tender to them the worth of the land, and if they refuſe to accept it, he may enter upon them, and out them: and it ſeems in this caſe, the mean profits untill the ſale is no Aſſets, but the money made upon the ſale ſhall be Aſſets in their hand: and in this caſe, albeit one or more of the Executors dye, or refuſe, yet the reſt may ſell it, even by the Common Law it ſelf, and ſo alſo by conſtruction upon upon the ſame Statute, for the eſtate ſurviveth. But it ſeems they may not ſell to him that doth refuſe; neither may they in either caſe transfer their power to ſell to any other, nor keep the land themſelves, and pay ſo much of their own money as the land is worth. A Deviſe was to A for life, the remainder to his ſon in Tail, and if his ſon dye without iſſue of his body, that then the land ſhall be ſold by his Executors, and maketh two Executors and dyeth, A dyeth; in this caſe it ſeems one of the Executors cannot ſell, Goldib. 2. pl. 4.

If the Deviſe be that the Executors ſhall ſell with the aſſent of I S; in this caſe if I S dye before he aſſent, the Executors cannot ſell, and in his life time they cannot ſell without his aſſent, Brownl. 2. Rep. 100.

If one deviſeth by his Will, that his land ſhall be ſold to pay his debts, and ſay not by whom; in this caſe it ſhall be ſold by his Executors; and if one deviſe all his land except one Acre which he doth appoint to pay his debts; by this Deviſe his Executors or the ſurvivor of them may ſell it: but if one ſay by his Will that I S ſhall have ram gubernationem puerorum meorum quam, the diſpoſing, letting, and ſetting of my lands; by this Deviſe I S hath not power given to him to ſell the land, Perk. Sect. 547. Dyer 371. 26.

If one deviſe that his land ſhall be ſold after the death of his wife by his Executors with the aſſent of I S. and make his wife and a ſtranger his Executors, and dye, and after I S dye; in this caſe, the land cannot be ſold, for the authority is determined, Dyer 219.

If one deviſe that his Executors ſhall ſell the land, and with the money coming or made of it, ſhall pay ſuch and ſuch Legacies or ſums of money, in particular to ſuch and ſuch perſons by name; this is not a Legacy for which a Suit lyeth in a Court Chriſtian, but for this, every one that is to have portion may have account againſt the Executors after the ſale, Dyer 151, 152.

If one give lands to another, to give them again to the children of the Teſtator, or to diſpoſe them at the Will of the Deviſees to ſome of the children of the Deviſor; in theſe caſes, the Deviſees muſt diſpoſe it accordingly, and cannot give it to any other, Trin. 2. Car. B. R. And if one give lands to others, to the intent that with the profits thereof they ſhall educate children, or pay ſuch ſums of money, or the, &c. in this caſe, the Deviſees muſt do accordingly, or they may be compelled thereunto, Coo. 6. 16.

And in all caſes of deviſes of lands to Executors to ſell, it is wiſdome to make it certain, i.e. that the Executors or the ſurvivor of them, or ſuch or ſo many of them as take upon them the probate of the Will (if his meaning be ſo) ſhall ſell it, Coo. ſuper Litt. 112, 113. And it is better to give an Authority than an eſtate, unleſs his meaning be that they ſhall take the profits of the land untill the ſale; and if he do ſo, then it is neceſſary that he appoint that the mean profits untill the ſale ſhall be Aſſets in their hands, for otherwiſe it ſhall not be ſo. See more, Brownl. 1. part. 34. 2. part. 47. 100.

10. Deviſe upon condition, and what words in a Will ſhall be conſtrued in the ſenſe of a condition, and what not.

The ſame words that in a Deed will make a condition, and the thing granted thereby to be conditional, will make a condition in a Will, and the thing given thereby to be conditional, Dyer 33, 348. 126. Coo. ſuper Litt. 236. See condition. And therefore theſe words, Provided on condition, So that, If, and the like, will make a condition in a Will: So that if one deviſe land to I S on condition, or So that, or If, or provided that he do bring up his eldeſt ſon, or pay his wife 20 l. a year for her life, or the like; by theſe Deviſes, the eſtate is made conditional: Alſo other words that being uſed in a Deed will not make a condition, yet being uſed in a Will make a condition, and the eſtate made by the Deviſe to be conditional: And therefore, if a man deviſe his land to his Executors to be ſold; or deviſe his land to them or others to pay 20 l. to I S, or paying 20 l. to I S; in theſe caſes, and by theſe Deviſes, the eſtates are made conditional: and of theſe conditions regularly the heir, and not a ſtranger ſhall take advantake. So as if one deviſe land to another and his heirs, provided that he pay 10 l. to I S, otherwiſe that the land ſhall remain to I D, and his heirs; in this caſe, if the Deviſee do not pay the money, I D ſhall not take advantage of it, nor have the land according to the Deviſe, viſe, but the heir of the Deviſor ſhall enter and have the land, and put out the Deviſee. And if one deviſe his land to I S for life, on condition to pay 20 l. to I D, and after to I D in Tail; in this caſe, if I S do not pay the 20 l. it ſeems the heir ſhall enter and hold the land during the life of I S, and that I D ſhall not have it till then, Dyer 33.348.126.128.

And in caſes of Deviſes of Goods or Chattels, other words will make a Deviſe conditional in divers caſes, as [when] as, I give to I S 10 l. when he ſhall be married; and [whiles] as, I give to I S 20 l. whiles he ſhall abide with my children, which is as much as if he abide with my children; and [which] as I give him 20 l. which ſhall marry my daughter; and the ablative caſe abſolute, as, my ſon being dead, I give to I S 20 l. And of all theſe conditions regularly, the Executor and no other ſhall take advantage. But if the condition be ſuch for the matter and ſubſtance of it, as is impoſſible, unlawfull, or the like; there perhaps theſe words may not make a condition, nor the thing deviſed conditional, but rather make the whole ſentence voyd. Whereof reade Swinb. part. 4. Sect. 5. at large. Swinb. 126.

11. Where a Deviſe voyd or voydable in his exception, may become good by matter ex poſt facto, or not.

If one deviſe his land to his daughter and heir apparent in Fee-ſimple, this Deviſe is voyd; yet if in this caſe the wife of the Deviſor be privily with child of a ſon which is born after his death, now is the Deviſe become good, for now ſhe is not heir to her father, Fitz. tit. Aſſize. 27.

If a woman that hath a husband, deviſe her land by Will during the Coverture, and after her husbands death when ſhe is ſole, ſhe do publiſh and approve it; in this caſe and by this means the Deviſe is become good: but if ſhe make and publiſh it during the Coverture, and after her husband dye and ſhe become ſole, this accident without any more will not make the Deviſe good; the ſame Law is of the Deviſe of goods and chattels, Plow. 344.

If an Infant within age deviſe his lands or goods, and publiſh his Will, and after he comes to be of full age, he doth publiſh and approve it again; in this caſe and by this means the Deviſe is become good: but if the Infant live to be of full age, and do not publiſh and approve it, contra, Plow. 344.

If a Legacy of goods or chattels be given on condition to a man uncapable; and before the condition is extant, he doth become capable; in this caſe, and by this means the Deviſe is become good. See before at numb. 6. more of this matter, Swinb. 340.

12. Where a Deviſe good in his inception, ſhall, or may become voyd by matter ex poſt facto, or not.

By a ſubſequent repugnant Will.

A Deviſe that hath a good beginning, is ſometimes avoyded and overthrown by ſubſequent matter in the ſame Will, and ſometimes by ſubſequent matter in another Will, and ſometimes by ſome other accident ex poſt facto: For if a man make a ſubſequent or latter Deviſe either in the ſame or in another Will, ſo contrary and repugnant to the former, that both cannot ſtand together, this doth overthrow the former, Litt. 168. Coo. ſuper Litt. 112. Plow. 540. 541. Coo. 8. 94 6. 33. And therefore if a man do give White Acre to I S in Fee, or his white horſe to I S, and after by the ſame or another Will doth give White Acre to I D in Fee, or his white horſe to I D, theſe latter Deviſes do overthrow the former, cum duo inter ſe pugnantia reperiuntur in teſtamento, ultimum ratum eſt: And as a latter Will doth overthrow the former, ſo the latter part of a Will doth overthrow the former part of the ſame Will. But if the Deviſees be ſuch as they may ſtand both together, and are not directly repugnant, nor do fight one againſt another, there the latter ſhall not overthrow the former, but both ſhall be received: And therefore if one deviſe his land to I S, and his heirs, and after by the ſame Will deviſe a Rent out of the ſame land to I D and his heirs, or è contra. So if one deviſe White Acre to A for life, and afterwards give the ſame Acre to B in Fee; in this caſe the one may have it for his life, and the other may have the Fee-ſimple afterwards. See before.

By a waving of the eſtate deviſed.

If one deviſe his land to his ſon and heir in Fee-ſimple, or deviſe it to a ſtranger for years, the remainder to his ſon and heir in Fee-ſimple, and the heir after the death of the Deviſor doth (as he may) wave the eſtate given him by the Deviſe, and claim the land by deſcent; in this caſe and by this means the Deviſe is become voyd. But if the Deviſe be to the ſon and heir in Tail, the remainder mainder to a ſtranger, there he cannot wave the Deviſe, and take it in any other manner. And ſo if a man have onely two daughters (who are his heirs) and he deviſe his land to them; or have Gavelkind-land, and deviſe it to all his ſons: they may not wave theſe Deviſes and take by deſcent, for by Deviſe they ſhall take as joynt-tenants, who otherwiſe by deſcent ſhall take as Parceners, Plow. 545. Perk. Sect. 569. Litt. Broo. 453. Kitchin 127. Dyer 317, 350.

If one deviſe his land to another in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years, and the Deviſee after the death of the Teſtator doth refuſe and wave the eſtate deviſed to him; in this caſe and by this means the Deviſe is become voyd. And it ſeems a verbal waver is ſufficient in this caſe. So if one give goods or chattels to another, and the Deviſee refuſe it; by this means the Deviſe is become voyd, and any waver or refuſal will ſuffice in this caſe; for a man ſhall not be compelled Nolens volens to take a thing deviſed to him, Litt. Broo. Sect. 482. Perk. Sect. 569. Dyer 61. Coo. 9. 140. Plow. 543, 544.

If a woman ſole deviſe her lands or goods by Will, and after take a husband and dye during the Coverture; by this means the Deviſe is become voyd. And yet if ſhe ſurvive her husband, and dye unmarried, now is the Deviſe become good again, Plow. 348.

If one deviſe his land to I S and his heirs, and afterwards I S dye the Teſtator living; by this means the Deviſe is become voyd. And in this caſe no verbal declaration of the Teſtator, that the heirs of I S ſhall have it will help; for albeit a Deviſe of land in writing may be revoked by a verbal ſubſequent declaration, or by any act croſſing or controuling that Deviſe, yet a Deviſe becoming voyd by that means cannot be made good by any ſuch verbal declaration ſubſequent to the ſame Countermand, Plow. 50. 346, 344, 341. So if one give any goods or chattels to I S, and he dye before the Teſtator; in this caſe and by this means the Deviſe is become voyd, and the Executor of I S ſhall not have it, See infra at numb. 14. And yet if a Deviſe be of land to A for life, the remainder to B in Tail, and A dye before the Teſtator; it ſeems the Deviſe of the remainder doth continue good notwithſtanding, Perk. Sect. 567, 568.

And if one deviſe lands or goods to the wife of I S, and afterwards her husband dyeth, and ſhe marry with another man, and then the Deviſor dyeth; this is a good deviſe notwithſtanding, and not avoyded by either of theſe Accidents, Plow. 344.

If one deviſe a Term that he hath to A for life, the remainder to ſuch perſons as ſhall be occupiers of White Acre at the death of A; this Deviſe albeit in his beginning it be good, yet if the Deviſor dye before A, it ſeems now to become voyd; for he that will take by way of Executory deviſe, muſt take as an immediate purchaſer, and be capable and known at the time of the death of the Teſtator, Per Juſtice Jones, M. 9. Jac. Co. B.

If I give to I S 20 l. if he marry my daughter, and ſhe dye before he marry her; in this caſe and by this means the Legacy is become voyd, Swinb. 356.

If I give a debt owing me to I S, and afterwards I receive or releaſe the debt; hereby the deviſe is become voyd, Perk. Sect.

If a man make a Will and give Legacies, and appoint one or more his Executor or Executors, and he or they after his death all refuſe to take upon them the Adminiſtration: yet in this caſe the Legacies remain good, and are not become voyd: And in this caſe the courſe is to grant the Adminiſtration of the goods to him to whom it doth belong, and to annex the Will to the Adminiſtration, and then the Adminiſtrator is to perform the Will as the Executor ought to do, Litt. Broo. Sect. 300.

It is held alſo that a Legacy of goods or chattels may become voyd by the injurious dealing of the Legatee againſt the Teſtator after the Legacy given: whereof reade Swinb. part. 7. Sect. 22.

And when the thing deviſed is dead, or ſpoyled, howſoever by this means the Deviſe is not become voyd, yet it loſeth his effect, and is as if it were voyd, Swinb. 357. A Legacy may be extinct and gone by a Contract alſo, as where the Executor gives the Legatee an obligation for the money, otherwiſe it is as if it were made to a ſtranger, Brownl. 2. part. 11. See more ſupra at numb. 5. Brownl. 2. part. 111.

13. Where a Legacy ſhall go to the Executor when the Legatee doth dye before he doth receive it; and where not.

In all theſe caſes, when the diſpoſition of the Legacy is pure, and no time is ſet for the performing of it; or there is a ſet time for the doing of it, and the Legatee dye before the time: and where the diſpoſition of the Legacy is conditional, and a time ſet for the doing of it, if the Legatee live till that time, or the condition be performed; in all theſe caſes the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Legatee ſhall have the Legacy, and the ſame remedy to recover it that the Legatee himſelf had, Swinb. 350, 355, 356. But if the Legatee dye before the condition be performed, contra; And yet if in that caſe the Teſtators minde ſhall appear to be that the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Legatee ſhall have it, or the condition be to be performed by another, and there be no default in the Legatee: or if the diſpoſition be modal: or the Legacy that was at firſt upon condition, be afterwards repeated without condition, or it be referred to a condition to be afterwards ſet down, and none is ſet down; in theſe caſes the Legacy is not loſt by the death of the Legatee, but ſhall go to his Executor or Adminiſtrator: As for Example; If one deviſe 20 l. to W S to be paid within 4 years after the death of the Teſtator, and the Legatee dye before the four years expired; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator after the 4 years expired ſhall recover the Legacy. If one give to W S 20 l. when he cometh to 21 years of age, and he dye before he come to the age of 21 years, in this caſe his Executor ſhall not have the Legacy. But if the Deviſe be thus, I give to W S 20 l. and I will that it ſhall be paid him at his age of 21 years, and he dye before he come to the age of 21 years; in this caſe his Executor ſhall recover the Legacy, Broo. Deviſe 27, 45. Swinb. 350, 355. Dyer 59. Swinb. 358 356. Plow. 345. So if one give to I S 20 l. when he ſhall be married, and he dye before marriage; in this caſe his Executor ſhall not have it. But if one deviſe thus, I give to W S 20 l. towards his marriage, and he dye unmarried; in this caſe the Executor ſhall have and recover the Legacy. So if one do give to W S 20 l. when the Executor of the Teſtator ſhall dye; in this caſe if W S dye before the Executor, the Executor or Adminiſtrator of W S ſhall not have the Legacy. If one deviſe goods or chattels to I S, and I S dye before the Teſtator, the Executor or Adminiſtrator of I S ſhall not have this Legacy. See more in Brownl. 1. part. 32.

14. Where an Executor upon a Deviſe to him hath an Election to have the thing deviſed as Executor or as Legatee. And when he ſhall have it in the one right or in the other; and what act ſhall make a declaration of his Election.

When any Chattel real or perſonal is given to an Executor by a Will, the Executor hath an election given him by the Law to have and take it in the one right or in the other, viz. as Executor, or as Legatee: and by his ſpecial entry, or ſeizing of the thing, or ſome ſpecial declaration, his election is to be made. And if the Executor do enter generally (as moſt do) and never make any declaration which way, or by which right he will have it (as moſt Executors uſe to do) he ſhall be ſaid to have it, and the Law ſhall adjudge it in him as Executor, and not as Legatee. But if by any ſubſequent words or deeds he ſhall declare his minde to be otherwiſe, he ſhall be in as a Legatee ab initio; And yet if once he do any ſuch act as is proper to an Executor, this is a diſagreement to the Legacy ab initio; and after that it ſeems he cannot take as Legatee, but muſt take as Executor. And if one Executor of many to whom a term of years of land is deviſed, occupy the ſame alone, and the reſt intermeddle not with the profits thereof, albeit he make no declaration, it is ſaid this is a good declaration of his election to have it as Legatee. But if a term of years be given to the wife of I S, and I S be made Executor, and he enter generally, and after makes his Teſtament and never ſpeaks of this term; this is no declaration of his Election to have it as Legatee, neither ſhall the term be ſo deemed in him but as Executor. But in theſe caſes this muſt be heeded, that howſoever the Executor hath power to take as Executor, or as Legatee, yet he cannot take as Legatee to prejudice Creditors in their debts; but the ſame things they ſo take as a Legacy, if there be not enough beſides, ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in their hands as to the Creditor for the ſatisfaction and payment of their debts, Plow. 519, 520, 543. Coo. 10. 47. 2. 37. 8. 96. Dyer 277. 367. Perk. Sect. 57. 4 573, 575. Brownl. Goldsb. 185. pl. 125.

Aſſets.

If

If a man deviſe that after his Debts and Legacies paid, his wife ſhall have all the reſidue of his goods and chattels to diſtribute for his Sarle, &c. and make his wife his Executor; in this caſe it is ſaid ſhe hath no election, but ſhe muſt take as Executor, and cannot take as Legatee, Dyer 331.

When a Deviſe of goods or chattels is well made, the aſſent of the Executor is neceſſary to the perfection thereof, for untill then the Legatee may not have or meddle with the thing deviſed. And this Aſſent is defined to be the agreement of an Executor or Adminiſtrator, that a Legatee ſhall have the thing bequeathed unto him. And it is either expreſs, i.e. when the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth by expreſs words agree to the Deviſe. Or implyed, i.e. when the Executor doth not by words, but by ſome overt act declare his aſſent that the Legatee ſhall have the thing deviſed unto him, Coo. 10.47,52. March. 137. pl. 209. 15. Aſſent Quid

This agreement of the Executor or Adminiſtrator is not needfull in the caſe of deviſe of land; for if a man be ſeized of land in Fee-ſimple, and deviſeth to another in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for term of life, or years; in theſe caſes the Deviſee may enter into the land deviſed without any leave of the Executor or Adminiſtrator: and in truth in theſe caſes the Free-hold or eſtate is ſaid to be in the Deviſee before his entry: and therefore if the heir enter firſt, the Deviſee may enter upon him, and put him out, Coo. ſuper Litt. 111. Perk. Sect. 576,578,579. Swinb. 134, 135. Brownl. 1. part. 132. And in caſe where land is deviſed by the cuſtome of a place, if the heir enter firſt and keep the Deviſee out, the Deviſee may have a Writ of Ex gravi querela againſt him for his relief: and this Writ is incident to that cuſtome. But if a Deviſee enter firſt into the land deviſed unto him, and then the heir of the Deviſor enter upon him, then the Deviſee may take his remedy at the Common Law as in other caſes. And with theſe things the ordinary Executor or Adminiſtrator is not to intermeddle. But regularly a Deviſee cannot nor may not have or take any chattel real or perſonal deviſed to him without the agreement or delivery of the Executor or Adminiſtrator, Perk. Sect. 570. Coo. ſuper Litt. 211. Plow. 525. 20. Ed. 4.9. And by this aſſent if the Deviſe be good (for otherwiſe an aſſent will not make it good) the Deviſe is perfected, and the Legacy executed. And yet if the Legatee have the thing deviſed in his own hands; or if there be a ſpecial clauſe in the Will giving him authority to take it himſelf; or it be a Legacy to good and godly uſes; or the thing given be like to periſh on the ground, being corn or the like, and there be aſſets beſides to pay all the debts; in theſe caſes perhaps the aſſent of the Executor or Adminiſtrator may not be neceſſary, but the Legatee may take the thing deviſed without his agreement, otherwiſe not in any caſe, Swinb. 353. Broo. tit. deviſe 6.30. And if a Legacy be given to one of the Executors themſelves, he may take it without any aſſent of his Co-executors, and that before Adminiſtration alſo if he will, Perk. Sect. 572. 16. Where an Aſſent is neceſſary, or not. And where a man may enter into the lands, or take the goods or chattels deviſed unto him without the aſſent or delivery of the Executor. And what ſhall be ſaid a ſufficient Aſſent to execute a Legacy or not.

If there be many Executors, the aſſent of any one of them is ſufficient; and if there be but one, and he be dead, the aſſent of his Executor is ſufficient; or if he dye inteſtate, the aſſent of the Adminiſtrator de bonis non adminiſtratis of the firſt Teſtator is ſufficient; or the Legatee himſelf in this caſe where the Executor dyeth inteſtate, or where he doth refuſe to take upon him the Adminiſtration, may take Adminiſtration himſelf, and by publick declaration aſſent to his own Legacy. And if a man be Executor and Legatee both, he may aſſent to, and take the Legacy, and yet wave the Executorſhip, and this aſſent is good. And therefore if the Legatee of a term of years be made Executor, and he enter and claim and occupy the land by force of the Deviſe, and dye before Probate of the Wil: the Executor of the Legatee, and not the Ordinary, ſhall have this term; and yet it ſeems the Executor may not do this in prejudice of a Creditor to hinder him of his debt, Dyer 372. 367. See Agreement.

Any agreement in word or deed will ſuffice to make an aſſent, and execute a Deviſe, Coo. 4.28. Let Executors take heed therefore; for if an Executor do but agree that the Legatee of a term of years of land ſhall take the profits thereof, and that but for a time onely; or ſay to the Legatee, God ſend you joy of it: or I intend you ſhall have it according to the Deviſe, or the like; this is a good aſſent to exe- A Caveat for Executors.

a will amount to an Attornment may make an Aſſent to a Legacy cute the Legacy. And if the Executor agree that the Legatee and a ſtranger together ſhall take the profits of the land, or the thing deviſed; this is a good aſſent. And it ſeems that whatſoever verbal agreement will amount to an Atturnment, may make an aſſent to a Legacy. See Atturnment. If therefore the Executor agree to the Legacy upon certain terms and conditions; this is agreed to be a good and abſolute aſſent to the Legacy, Per 2 Juſtices, M. 37, 38. Eliz. B. R. Coo. 4. 28. Nichols was poſſeſſed of a term of a 1000 years, he deviſed it to E for life, the remainder to I H, and made W husband to E Executor, and dyed; I H deviſed his intereſt to I S, and made O his Executor and dyed; after W ſpake theſe words, If E my wife were dead, my eſtate in the land were gone, and then it remains to I H; in this caſe theſe points were agreed by the Judges; 1. That the Deviſe to I H by way of Executorie remainder is good. 2. That the Deviſe by I H to I S is voyd, for it is but a poſſibility. 3. That an aſſent to the firſt Deviſe is an aſſent to him in remainder. 4. That if the Executor enter generally, he is in as Executor, and not as Deviſee. 5. That in this caſe W hath made his election to have it as a Legatee in right of his wife by thoſe words. 6. That the aſſent comes time enough after the death of I H to ſettle the remainder in O the Executor. 7. But they ſeemed to encline, that there where the Executor wanteth Aſſets, he ſhall not be concluded by an implyed without an expreſs aſſent, March. 137. pl. 209.

If a term of years be given to the wife of the Teſtator during the minority of his eldeſt ſon, to the intent that ſhe with the profits thereof ſhall breed up his children, the remainder of the ſame term to the ſame eldeſt ſon, and ſhe is made Executrix, and ſhe enter generally, but doth alwayes breed the children of the Teſtator; in this caſe it ſeems that this education of the children ſhall be taken for an aſſent againſt her to veſt the eſtate in the eldeſt ſon, Plow. 540. And if a man poſſeſſed of a term of years give it to his wife, if ſhe live ſo long, and after her deceaſe the remainder of years to I S, and make his wife Executrix, and ſhe enter, claiming to have it onely for her life, the remainder to I S according to the Deviſe; in this caſe this is a good aſſent for the execution of the remnant of the term in I S, Plow. 516. Perk. Sect. 574. And if a term be deviſed to A for life, the remainder to B, and the Executor aſſent to the Deviſe of A; in this caſe this is a good aſſent to the deviſe of B, and ſhall execute the ſame alſo, whether the Executor have aſſets or not, Coo. 8. 95. 4. 66. 10. 47. Perk. Sect. 574. So if a man poſſeſſed of a term of 20 years. deviſe it to one for 10 years, and after to another for the remnant of the term; or if the Deviſe be to one for ſo many years of the term as he ſhall live, and after to another for the reſt of the time: in all theſe caſes an aſſent to the firſt Deviſee is an aſſent to the ſecond alſo. And ſo alſo it ſeems is the Law of a chattel perſonal, when the occupation thereof is firſt deviſed to one, and then the thing to another, 37 H. 6. 30. And if one that hath a term of years give it to his wife for her life, the remainder to his ſon, and make her Executrix, and ſhe enter claiming by force of the Deviſe, and not as Executrix; in this caſe this is a good aſſent to execute the Deviſe to him in remainder, Plow. 519, 543. Coo. 3. 96. 10. 47.

If one be poſſeſſed of a term of years of land, and he deviſe it to one of his Executors alone for part of the time, and the remainder of the time after to a ſtranger: and that Executor alone, albeit he enter generally, doth occupy the land himſelf, and the other Executors do not intermeddle therewith; in this caſe it ſeems this is a good aſſent to execute the Legacy to him in remainder for the reſt of the term. And yet if one give goods to one of his Executors for life, and after to a ſtranger for life, and this Executor alone get the goods into his own hands, and occupy them alone all his life time; it ſeems this occupation without ſome aſſent, will not execute the gift in the ſecond Legatee, Perk, Sect. 574 575. Fitz. Deviſe 6.

If one poſſeſſed of a Leaſe for years, deviſe it to his Executors, and deviſe a rent out of it to I S, and the Executors pay the rent; this is a good aſſent to the whole Legacy. But if he deviſe a rent, or Common out of it for certain years to I S, and after deviſe the term to I D: and the Executor doth agree that I S ſhall put in his cattel, or doth pay the rent to I S, (which is a good aſſent to the Legacy of I S;) this is no aſſent nor execution of the Legacy of I D; And yet perhaps if he deviſe a rent at firſt to I D for part of the term, and another rent to I S for the reſidue of the terme afterwards; in this care it ſeems, that an aſſent to the firſt is not ſufficient to perfect the Deviſe of the ſecond Legatee. And yet if a Termor, deviſe the occupation or profits of his land to J S for 10 years of his Terme, and after deviſe the land it ſelf to J D for the reſt of the term; in this caſe if the Executor aſſent to the Legacy of J S, this will be a good aſſent to, and execution of the Legacy of J D. Plow. 540. 544. Coo. 8. 96. Plow. 541, 542. 522.

If one poſſeſſed of a term deviſe it to I S for life, the remainder to I W, and make I S his Executor, and I S take a releaſe from I W of all his right to the land; this is an implicite aſſent to the Legacy of I W. Coo. 10. 52.

If a man deviſe the occupation of a book or any other chattell perſonall to I S, or that I S ſhall have the occupation of any ſuch like thing during his life, and that after his deceaſe it ſhall go to I D for ever, and the Executor deliver the thing to I S; it ſeems this is a good execution of the Legacy to the ſecond Deviſee I D; and therefore after the death of I S he may ſeiſe the goods and hold them according to the Deviſe. Old N. B. 80. 37 H. 6. 30.

17. How a Deviſee may attaine the thing deviſed: And what remedy he ſhall have to recover it, or damages for it.

If lands, or any rent, or other profit to be taken out of lands, be deviſed to a man in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years; in theſe caſes the Deviſee may enter into, and have and take the thing deviſed without the leave or agreement of the Executor or Adminiſtrator: and ſo he may whether there be any Executor made or not, and whether the Will be proved or not, for the Ordinary and the Executor have nothing to do with theſe things. And if the Deviſee in any ſuch caſe be diſturbed in the having or taking of ſuch things, he may have the ſame remedy as men have in other caſes. And where the land is deviſed by cuſtome, if the heire enter before the Deviſee, the Deviſee may be relieved by a Writ called Ex gravi Querela; but if the Deviſee enter firſt, and then the heir enter upon him, the Deviſee may have his remedy at the Common-Law. Perk. ſect. 576, 577, 578, 579. Coo. ſuper Littl. 111.

If lands are given thus, I will that my Executors ſhall ſell my land, and with the money made thereof ſhall pay 10 l. to my daughter A, and 10 l. to my daughter B. in this caſe and for this gift A and B may either ſue the executors in a Court of equity, or have an action of Accompt againſt them in a Court of Common-Law. Trin. 9. Jac. Lovets caſe Dyer 151. 152.

If Leſſee for years deviſe his term to Executors for life, the remainder over to J. S. for the reſt of the term: and the executor entreth and doth aſſent to the Legacy and dye, and the executor of the executor doth take the profits of the land, and keep out the ſecond Legatee; in this caſe it ſeems he may have an Accompt againſt the executor of the executor for the profits of the land. Dyer 277. But if one deviſe his land to his ſon and his heirs (except 20 l. a yeare for ſeven years to be imployed as followeth) and doth appoint his ſon (being his executor alſo) to pay that money to his daughters for portions; in this caſe the daughters may not have an Accompt at the Common-Law, but they may ſue the executors in the Spirituall Court or in a Court of equity, and if the executor be dead, they may ſue his executor. Trin. 9. Ja. Lovets caſe.

If one deviſe a rent out of his land, and do charge the land with a diſtreſſe: the Deviſee may make uſe of that remedy and diſtrain for the rent: but unleſſe power be given him by the Will to diſtrain, he may not diſtrain for it. Dyer 348.

If one be poſſeſſed of a term of years of land, and deviſe it to his wife to the end that ſhe with the profits thereof ſhall breed up his children; in this caſe this is no Legacy to them, and therefore it ſeems they have no remedy but in Chancery or ſome other Court of equity againſt her, if ſhe refuſe to do it. Plow. 545.

And in caſes of Deviſes of goods and chattels, as Leaſes for years, rents out of ſuch Leaſes, and the like, the Legatee cannot take the thing deviſed before he have the Aſſent of the Executor or Adminiſtrator thereunto: And therefore, if in theſe caſes the Executor or Adminiſtrator refuſe to agree to, perform, and deliver the Legacy, the Legatee might have ſued him in the Spirituall Court, or in ſome Court of Equity to compell him thereunto: And the Legatee might not ſue for a Legacy in any of the Courts of Common-Law: But now by the new Ordinance he is to ſue at the Common-Law, and not in the Chancery. But enquire how he is to ſue at Common-Law, and what the courſe of practiſe herein is: And in theſe Courts and by theſe means, the Deviſee may recover his Legacy againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator, if he have Aſſets to pay the debts of the Teſtator; for otherwiſe a Legacy is not recoverable at all; but in caſe where the Executor or Adminiſtrator hath once agreed to the Legacy, ſo as it is executed, it is then ſo veſted in the Legatee, and he hath ſuch a property therein, that he may enter into, or ſeiſe and take the thing deviſed as his own, and if any man keep or take it from him, he may have reliefe as in other caſes. Broo. Non-ability 18. Fitz. Excomengment 13.

If another doth claime by Deed of gift the goods a Legatee doth ſue for; this may be tryed in the Eccleſiaſticall Court. 37 H. 6. 9

If a debt, obligation, or any ſuch like thing in action be deviſed to another, the Deviſee hath no means to recover it, but by a Suit in the Spirituall Court, or in ſome Court of Equity, to compell the Executor to ſue for it himſelf, or to make the Legatee a Letter of Atturney, to ſue for it in the Executors name; for the Legatee cannot ſue for it in his own name, unleſſe he be made Executor as to that debt, &c. (which is the beſt courſe in theſe caſes:) and yet if the Legatee have the Bond or Eſpecialty in his hands, he may deliver it up or cancell it. Perk. ſect. 527. Swinb.

If a man deviſe a term of years of land to J. S. and make another his Executor, and the Executor having enough beſides to pay the debts doth ſell this term; in this caſe, albeit the ſale be good, and J. S. have no remedy nor means to recover the term, yet he may ſue the Executor for it, and recover the worth of it in damages in Court of Equity. Plow. 543. 545. And of this opinion were Sir John Walter, and Sir John Bridgman, upon deliberate adviſe.

And now having done with the firſt part of a Teſtament, viz. a Deviſe; we come to that which doth concern the ſecond part, viz. an Executor.

18. What perſon may make or appoint an Executor, and what not, and how.

Any perſon that may make a Teſtament, and deviſe his goods and chattels, may make an executor. See before at Numb. 4. part. 1. And a woman that hath a husband, as to the goods and chattels ſhe hath as Executrix to another, and as to her own goods and things in action, viz. debts due unto her upon Obligations, and Eſpecialties made to her alone before, or after her marriage, may make an Executor. Fitz. Executor 28. And he that may make an Executor, may make either one, two, three, or more his Executors at his pleaſure. Swinb. 187. Dyer 4. Broo. Executors 155. 19 H. 8. Littl. Broo. ſect. 180. 3 H. 6, 7, Swinb. 200. 193.

And he may if he will make one man his Executor for one year, another man his Executor for another year; or one man his Executor untill ſuch a time, and then another his Executor; As one may make A & B his Executors, and that B ſhall not meddle during the life of A. And a man may make one man Executor for one part of his eſtate. and another man his Executor for the other part of his eſtate; or one may make one man Executor as to part of his eſtate, and die inteſtate, as to the reſidue of his eſtate: Alſo a man may appoint one to be his Executor, if he will accept it, and if he refuſe that, another ſhall be his Executor. And laſtly, a man may make another his Executor upon condition, viz. ſo as he give Bond to ſuch and ſuch men to perform his Will, or the like: And all theſe nominations and appointments of Executor are good. See Brownl. 2. part. 282.

19. What perſon may be made or appointed an Executor, and what not, and by what name.

Any perſon that may be a Legatee, and take by the Deviſe of goods and chattels, may be an Executor: And therefore it is ſaid, That any perſon or perſons, male or female, of the Clergy, or Laity, children or ſtrangers, friends or enemies, marryed, or unmarried, creditor or debtor, bond or free, may be an Executor. See at Numb. 4. part. 2. Numb. 7. Swinb. 222. Fitz. Executors 47. 87. Deviſe 3. And that a Baſtard, an Excommunicate, or an Out-lawed perſon, may be as able and as abſolute an Executor as any other. Fitz. Executor, 11, 88. Non-ability, 18. Broo. Non-ability, 38.

And an Infant or child in utero matris may be an Executor; but he cannot meddle with the Adminiſtration of the goods untill he be of the age of 17. years, and therefore the Ordinary muſt grant the Adminiſtration unto ſome other, untill that time in truſt, and for the benefit of the Infant. Coo. 6. 67.

And

And a woman that hath a husband, may be an Executrix to any other perſon. Fitz. Executor 24.

Alſo a woman may be Executrix to her own husband, and the husband may be Executor to his own wife, and by this means he may recover all the debts due to her upon Obligations, Recogniſances, and the like, made to her before or after the marriage, and the goods that were taken away from her before the marriage; all which the husband ſhall not have but by Executorſhip or an Adminiſtration of her goods and chattels. Fitz. Executor 24. Broo. Conſultation, 5. Husband and Wife.

And all theſe perſons that may be Executors, may be Executors by that name as they may be Deviſees: And yet if there be two of one name, and the Teſtator make one of that name his Executor, and doth not ſay, neither can it be diſcerned which of them he doth intend, in this caſe neither of them ſhall be Executor. See Acts Capacitie. See before at Numb. 7. Swinb. 292.

But it is ſaid, that an Heretick, Apoſtate, Traitor, Felon, Recuſant convict, Sodomite, Libeller, Baſtard begotten in Inceſt, or a notoriour Uſurer cannot be an Executor: Swinb. 222, 223. Coo. 9. 39.

And that if a man be for any of theſe cauſes uncapable at the time of the death of the Teſtator, when the Executor is to take upon him the Executorſhip, that he is for ever uncapable; but it hath been held by the Common-Law, that a perſon attaint, may be an Executor. Broo. Nonability 18. Fitz. Excomengment. 13.

20 By what words a man may be made an Executor, and what words in a Teſtament ſhall make a man full Executor, or not, but a Coadjutor or Supravi ſor; and who ſhall be an Executor by ſuch words.

The moſt apt and proper words whereby to conſtitute an Executor, are, I make J. S. my Executor, or, I make J. S. the Executor of my Will, &c. But an Executor may be conſtituted by other words equivalent or by implication: And therefore, if a man ſay in his Will, I will that J. S. ſhall be my generall Adminiſtrator, or I will that J. S. ſhall adminiſter all my goods, or I will that J. S. ſhall diſpoſe all my goods and chattels, or I commit all my goods to J. S. or I commit all my goods to the diſpoſition of J. S. or I make J. S. Lord of all my goods, or I make J. S. Legatary of all my goods, or I leave all my goods to J. S. or I give all my goods to J. S. and make no other Executor; in all theſe caſes, J. S. by intendment of Law is made Executor of all the goods and chattels of the deceaſed: So if a man ſay, Of all my goods I make J. S. and ſay no more, but omit the word [Executor,] by theſe words J. S. is made Executor: So if one ſay, I will that J. S. ſhall diſpoſe all the goods that are in his hands, by theſe words J. S. as to thoſe goods is made Executor: So if I deliver goods to J. S. to keep untill my death, and then to diſtribute ad pios uſus, or for my ſoul, hereby J. S. is made Executor of thoſe goods. So if one ſay, I will that J. S. ſhall be my Executor, if J. D. will not, by this J. D. is made Executor in the firſt place by implication, and if he refuſe, then J. S. ſhall be Executor. But if a man make A. and B. his Executors, and ſay, I will that J. S. ſhall be a Coadjutor, or helper to A. and B. ad diſtribuendum or adminiſtandum bona mea; or I will that J. S. ſhall be Surveyor, or Supraviſor of my Will; in theſe caſes and by theſe words, J. S. is not made Executor with A. and B. Swinb. part. 4. ſect. 17, 18, 19. Dyer 4. 19 H. 8. 8. 21 H. 6. 6. Fitz. Executor 43. Broo. Executors, 98. 73. Fitz Executors, 113. 121, Brieſe 999.

And yet if he ſay, I will that J. S. ſhall have Adminiſtration of my goods, or be Executor with A. and B. or be Adminiſtrator with A. and B. in theſe caſes and by theſe words, JS. is made joint Executor with A and B. And if one ſuppoſing J. S. to be dead, ſay, I will that J. D. ſhall be my Executor, becauſe J. S. is dead, in this caſe and by theſe words, J. S. if he be living is made Executor firſt; and if he refuſe, J. D. ſhall be Executor: If one make a A. B. and C. his Executors, and then ſaith afterwards: And I will that B. ſhall adminiſter my goods alone, or that B. only ſhall adminiſter my goods; it ſeems in theſe caſes, B. only is made Executor, and that A and C are not made joint Executors with him. 3 H. 6. 6, 7.

21. Where and in what caſe an Adminiſtration is grantable, or not: And to whom it doth belong to grant it, and to whom it muſt be granted.

In all Caſes where a man hath any goods or chattels to adminiſter, and he doth die a naturall or civill death, and dyeth inteſtate, either in deed i. e. doth make no Will at all, nor appoint any Executor, or in Law; i. e. that doth make one or more more his Executor or Executors, and he or they ſo appointed, is, or are ſuch perſons, as are not in being; or if they be in being is, or are ſo uncertainly named, that it cannot be diſcerned whom the Teſtator doth intend; or if he is, or they be well named, he is, or they are all uncapable by reaſon of ſome legall impediment; or if otherwiſe, they be capable, they do all die before the Will be proved; of if they live, if being cited to come in before the Ordinary to prove the Will, they either refuſe to appear, or if they do appear, they refuſe to prove the Will, and to take upon them the Adminiſtration of the goods & chattels of the deceaſed; in all theſe caſes, the Ordinary may and ought to grant the Adminiſtration of all the goods and chattels of the deceaſed to him that of right it doth belong unto according to his diſcretion. Coo. 9. 39. Plow. 276. Doct. & Stud. 78. 132. Dyer 236. 4 H. 7.13.

And if a man make a Will and after the death of the Teſtator, the Executor prove it, and then dye inteſtate, the Ordinary muſt grant the Adminiſtration of the goods of the firſt Teſtator, not adminiſtred in the hands of the Executor to ſome competent perſon or perſons according to his diſcretion: but where a man hath no goods and chattels to adminiſter, i. e. either he hath none, or if he have, they are none of his, or if they are, there is an Executor named, in rerum natura, capable, and well named, and he doth accept, or at leaſt hath not refuſed the Executorſhip; in theſe caſes, the Adminiſtration ought not to be granted; or if it be granted, it will be void or voidable at the leaſt: And in caſes, where the Adminiſtration is grantable by the Ordinary and others as before, ſuch perſons having power to grant it, may not grant it to whom they pleaſe, but as they are bound to grant it, and cannot refuſe ſo to doe, ſo are they directed and appointed to whom they ſhall grant it; for it is appointed by a ſpeciall Law, That the Ordinary ſhall depute the next friends of the Inteſtate to adminiſter his goods if they deſire it: and the Adminiſtration is to be committed to the widow, or next of blood, or both to the Inteſtate, and where there be divers in equall degree, and they all ſue for it, the Ordinary may accept them all or refuſe ſome of them, and commit the Adminiſtration to the reſt only; and if ſome of them only ſue for it, he may grant it to them alone: So that now the Law and courſe is to grant the Adminiſtration to the neereſt of kin to the deceaſed: Stat. 31. Ed. 3. c. 11. 21. H. 8. c. 5. Littl. Broo. ſect. 233. 415. Fitz. Excomengment. 13. Coo. 9. 39. 40. 3. 40. Dyer 339. 4 H. 7. 14.

As 1. to the husband or wife; and if there be none ſuch, 2. to the children, ſons or daughters; and if there be none ſuch, 3. to the Parents, Father or Mother; and if there be none ſuch, 4. to the brothers or ſiſters of the whole blood; and if there be none ſuch, 5. to the brothers or ſiſters of the half blood; and if there be none ſuch, 6. to the next of kin, Uncles, &c. And if theſe come in time and deſire the Adminiſtration, the Ordinary may and muſt grant it to them, and cannot grant it to any other if they be capable of it as moſt men are: and if divers of theſe in equall degree deſire it, the Ordinary may grant to which of them he pleaſeth; howſoever in this caſe, it ſeemes moſt juſt and equall to grant it to them all unleſſe he have ſome ſpeciall reaſon to admit ſome, and to exclude the reſt: and if none of theſe that are next of kin ſhall deſire it, but ſuffer the time to ſlip; in this caſe, the Ordinary may grant it to whatſoever ſtranger he pleaſe: And yet then perhaps the next of kinne may by Suit get the ſame Adminiſtration revoked, and a new Adminiſtration granted to him. See infra at Numb. 41.

22. How an Adminiſtration may be granted, and what ſhall be ſaid a good Adminiſtration, or not.

An Adminiſtration may and muſt be granted in writing under Seal, for by word of mouth it may not be granted; and it may be granted as well upon condition as abſolute: and it may be granted, as well for a part of the eſtate as for the whole: And therefore, if a man have goods in two Provinces, and he make a Will of his goods in one of the Provinces, and die Inteſtate for the goods in the other Province, an Adminiſtration may be granted for the goods in this Province: Alſo an Adminiſtration may be granted during, or untill a certaine time, or continually. Dyer, 294. Fitz. Admin. 5. 34 H. 6. 14. Plow. 279.

And therefore, if a man make a Will and appoint an Executor for ſeven years after after the ſeven years ended, the Ordinary may and muſt grant an Adminiſtration of the goods. So if one do appoint another to be his Executor a year after his death, the Ordinary may and muſt grant the Adminiſtration for that year, untill the power of the Executor doth take place: And all theſe Adminiſtrations are good. See Brownl. 1. part 5. 2. part 119.

23. Who ſhall adminiſter after the death of an Executor or Adminiſtrator, and who not, and how an Executor of an Executor ſhall charge and be charged.

If an Executor die after he hath proved the Will, and he hath made a Teſtament, and appointed an Executor therein; in this caſe, this Executor alſo ſhall be Executor to the firſt Teſtator, as he is to the ſecond, and he ſhall have all the benefit, and be ſubject to all the charge that the firſt Executor had and was ſubject unto; and yet the goods of one Teſtator ſhall not be ſubject to the debts of the other; but each of the Teſtators goods ſhall be ſubject to the payment of his own debts only. Stat. 25. Ed. 3. c. 4. Coo. 5. 9. Plow. 86. 34 H. 6. 14. And if in this caſe, the Executor of the Executor take upon him the Adminiſtration of the goods of the firſt Teſtator, he cannot refuſe the Adminiſtration of the goods of the latter: but he may take upon him the latter and refuſe the former. Trin. 17. Jac. Co. B. Wolfe & Heidens caſe. But if the Executor refuſe to adminiſter to the firſt Teſtator before the Ordinary, or dye before the Probate of the Will, and he hath made a Teſtament and appointed an Executor therein; in theſe caſes, it ſeemes the Executor of the Executor ſhall not adminiſter the goods of the firſt Teſtator, but the Ordinary muſt grant the Admiſtration thereof Dyer 372. And yet if all the reſidue of the goods of the firſt Teſtator be given by the Teſtament to the firſt Executor after the debts be paid; in this caſe albeit he die before Probate of the Will, yet his Executor ſhall be Executor alſo to the firſt Teſtator, or elſe he ſhall have the Adminiſtration of his goods and chattels granted unto him: And therefore, if A make his Will, and give Legacies to B. and D. and give all the reſt of his goods and chattels after debts and Legacies paid to C. his wife, and make her his ſole Executrix, and ſhe die before Probate of the VVill, or any election made, not knowing of the VVill; and E. ſue out Adminiſtration of the goods of A. and pay the Legacies to B. and D. and F. ſue out an Adminiſtration of the goods of C. in this caſe, the Adminiſtrator of C. and not of A. ſhall have the goods; for the Law doth judge them in C. after the debts and Legacies paid without any election. Adjudged in Hill. 9. Car. in Dens caſe. See Brownl. 1. part. 91.

If an Executor after he hath proved the Teſtators VVill, die Inteſtate; in this caſe, the Adminiſtration of the goods of the firſt Teſtator not adminiſtred in the hands of the Executor muſt be granted to whom the Ordinary ſhall think fit: And if the Ordinary pleaſe, he may grant the Adminiſtration, de bonis non adminiſtratis of the firſt deceaſed, and of the goods of the ſecond deceaſed to one and the ſame perſon: And herein the Adminiſtrator muſt take care that his Adminiſtration have ſpeciall words for the granting of an Adminiſtration of the goods of the firſt Teſtator, not adminiſtred; Broo. Executor 117. 26 H. 8. 7. Coo. 1. 96. Dyer 372. Termes of the Law tit. Adminiſtration. For howſoever ſome hold that by the generall Adminiſtration, the Adminiſtrator ſhall have not only the goods of the Executor, but the goods of his Teſtator alſo, yet it ſeems this is not taken to be Law at this day. Fitz. Adminiſtrator. 9.

If there be two Executors made, and one of them doth refuſe before the Ordinary, and the other doth prove the Will, and make a Will himſelf and appoint an Executor and then die; in this caſe, it ſeemes the Executor of the Executor that did prove the Will alone ſhall have the diſpoſition of all the Eſtate, and be Executor to the firſt Teſtator, and that the ſurviving Executor ſhall not meddle therewith, for that his Election by the death of his companion is gone. Dyer 160.

And if one make two Executors, and one of them doth make an Executor and dye, and the other that doth ſurvive hath accepted the Executorſhip; in this caſe, the ſurviving Executor ſhall have the ſole diſpoſing of the eſtate, and the Executor of the deceaſed Executor ſhall not intermeddle therewith: And if therfore the ſurviving Executor die Inteſtate, an Adminiſtration de bonis non Adminiſtratis of the firſt Teſtator ſhall be granted: And if the Executor of the deceaſed Executor have any of the eſtate in his hands, the ſurviving Executor may take or recover it from him: And if two be made Executors, and one of them is uncapable; in this caſe, he that is capable ſhall adminiſter alone Litt. Broo. ſect. 169. Broo. Executor 179. 99. Fitz. Executor 12. 113. Dyer 187.

If one that is Adminiſtrator of another mans goods do make his Will and make an Executor and die; or do die Inteſtate, and the Adminiſtration of his goods is granted to ſome body; in the firſt of theſe caſes the Executor, and in the laſt the Adminiſtrator, unleſſe he be made Adminiſtrator of theſe goods alſo ſhall not meddle with theſe goods of the firſt deceaſed: but the adminiſtration of the goods of the firſt deceaſed in the hands of the Adminiſtrator not adminiſtred muſt be granted again. Dyer 372. 112. Coo. 5. 9. Goldsb. 182. Plow. 118.

And hence it is that if the Adminiſtrator of my goods have a judgement for a debt due to me, and he dye before execution, and make an Executor, or die inteſtate, that in this caſe his Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall never have execution of this judgement. And the ſame law is of the Adminiſtrator of my Executor in this caſe. See Brownlows Rep. 57. 1. part.

24. Where an Executor or Adminiſtrator may accept or refuſe the Executorſhip or Adminiſtration, and how, and where he may be Executor after he hath refuſed or not. And what actor intermedling with the goods of the dead ſhall be ſaid an Adminiſtration, and what not.

An Executor or Adminiſtrator may accept or refuſe the executorſhip or the adminiſtration at his pleaſure; and therefore he may at any time before he hath intermedled with the eſtate as Executor or Adminiſtrator refuſe it; and if he be ſued by any as Executor or Adminiſtator, he may plead. ne unques Executor, i. e. he was never Executor or Adminiſtrator, and did never adminiſter: and if it be true, he ſhall by this means avoid the ſuite: for a man ſhall not be compelled to take ſuch a charge upon him whether he will or no. Coo. 9. 37. 37 H. 6. 27, 28. 20 H. 6. 1.

If therefore there be many Executors, or an adminiſtration be granted unto many; and one of the Executors prove the Will in the name of the reſt, or one accept the adminiſtration in the name of all the reſt, yet the reſt may refuſe to accept it, and plead in any Suite againſt them that they are not Executors or Adminiſtrators. But as an Executor or an Adminiſtrator after he hath once legally refuſed the Executorſhip or adminiſtration, can never after intermeddle therewith: ſo after he hath once legally accepted thereof, (that is) hath done any thing as Executor or adminiſtrator, and which is proper only for an executor or adminiſtrator to do, he can never after refuſe it. And his acceptance of part, in this caſe, will make him chargeable with all, except it be in the caſe before of an Executor who may accept of the laſt Executorſhip, and refuſe the firſt. Brownlows Rep. 1. part. 82. 2. part. 58, 59. 183, 184. &c.

If an Executor plead, he did never adminiſter as Executor, yet he may afterwards adminiſter as Executor if he pleaſe. Goldsb. 31. Plow. 2.

If the Executors being cited to come in and prove their Will, appear before the Ordinary, and refuſe to adminiſter and to prove the VVill, they cannot afterwards accept it or intermeddle with it. But herein this difference muſt be obſerved; That where there be many Executors named and made, and they being cited ſome of them only do appear and refuſe to accept it: (the reſt of the Executors being then living) and after ſome or one of the reſt of the Executors prove the VVill, or take upon him the Executorſhip; in this caſe and notwithſtanding this refuſall, they that doe refuſe may afterwards at any time, at leaſt during the life time of their Co-executors that did accept thereof and intermeddle therewith as far forth as either of the reſt. Coo. 9. 37. Fitz. Adminiſtra-tion 6. 11. Broo. Adminiſtration 32. Executors. 117. Coo. 5. 28. Perk. ſect. 485. Dyer 160. 21. Ed. 23.

And therefore in this caſe howſoever the Executors refuſing ſhall not be charged in any ſuite againſt, all the Executors for any thing due from the Teſtator, but they may by their plea avoid it: yet the Executors accepting cannot ſue for any thing due to the Teſtator, nor be ſued for any thing due from the Teſtator, but they muſt ſue and be ſued in the names of themſelves and their Co-executors that do refuſe alſo. And if there be three Executors, and two of them prove the Will, and the third refuſe; yet this third Executor alone may releaſe any debt due to the the Teſtator. But if there be but one Executor made, and he alone, or if there be many made, and they do all together refuſe before the Ordinary to take upon him or them, the adminiſtration; in this caſe the Teſtator is ſo far forth ſaid to be dead inteſtate, and thereupon therefore the Ordinary may grant the adminiſtration of the goods of the deceaſed, and then the Executor or Executors can never after accept thereof, or intermeddle therewith.

And if one or more of the Executors refuſe, and the reſt accept, if he or they which accept die before he or they that refuſed accept; it ſeems in this caſe they can never afterwards accept it, but the Adminiſtration muſt be granted.

If one be ſued as Executor or Adminiſtrator, and he plead to the Suit ne unques Executor, i. e. he was never executor or adminiſtrator, if he have not in truth intermedled before; this plea is a refuſall of the executorſhip or adminiſtration, and therefore he can never afterwards accept or intermeddle with the executorſhip or adminiſtration. See the caſes before.

Every intermedling with the goods of the deceaſed, or with the office and work of an executor, ſhall not be ſaid to be ſuch an adminiſtration as to amount unto an acceptance of the executorſhip or adminiſtration, and ſo to make a man chargeable as executor or adminiſtrator. Coo. 9. 37. 5. 34. Dyer 105. Kel. 63. Broo.

And therefore if a man that is an executor or adminiſtrator do only lay up and preſerve the goods of the deceaſed; or command another to take away the goods of the deceaſed from one that hath them in his keeping; or ſee the deceaſed buried in a decent manner, and for that purpoſe uſe, and if need be ſell ſome of his goods to do it, or make an Inventory of the goods and chattels of the deceaſed; or prove the Teſtators Will with his own money; or take his own goods lying amongſt the goods of the deceaſed: or take and uſe ſome of the goods of the deceaſed onely by miſtake, or as a treſpaſſer, or by the delivery of another; or take and diſpoſe any of the goods of the deceaſed, when the executor or adminiſtrator doth challenge them as his own & in his own right: or if he redeem any of the goods of the deceaſed with his own money when they are pledged to the full value, and the day of redemption is paſt, as neither of theſe acts will make a ſtranger an executor of his own wrong: ſo neither will they amount to an acceptance of the executorſhip, and make the executor or adminiſtrator chargeable as executor or adminiſtrator. Adminiſtrator 35, 36. Fitz Adminiſtrator 7. Broo. Executor 165. 132 H. 6. 6. Dyer 135.

Executor of his own wrong.

But if a man that is an executor or adminiſtrator ſhall ſue by that name for any debt due to the deceaſed; or being ſued by that name for any debt or duty due from the deceaſed, ſhall imparle to the Suite, or plead any other plea beſides ne unques Executor; or ſhall take into his hands the goods of the deceaſed, and convert them to his own uſe, and alter the property by ſale, gift, or otherwiſe, and all this as the goods of the deceaſed, (and ſo it ſhall be intended againſt him if he do not declare the contrary, that he doth take and uſe them as his own &c.) or if he deliver the goods of the deceaſed to Creditors or Legataries in ſatisfaction of their debts or Legacies; or receive any debt due to the deceaſed, and give a releaſe for the ſame; or releaſe any debt due to him before it be paid; or pay any debt due from the deceaſed, except it be with his own money: any or either of theſe acts will amount unto an acceptance of the Executorſhip, and therefore after an Executor or Adminiſtrator hath done any ſuch act, he can never after refuſe the Executorſhip or Adminiſtration.

Two Executors be made joyntly by Will, one of them doth releaſe a debt, and after before the Ordinary refuſed to adminiſter; It was agreed by all the Judges it was too late, for he had made his Election by the releaſe. Brownl. 2. part 58. ſect. 25.

25. What things an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have by vertue of his Executorſhip or Adminiſtration. And what not.

If a woman ſole be made an Executrix to another, and ſhe marry a husband before ſhe intermeddle with the eſtate, and then her husband doth adminiſter; this is ſuch an acceptance as will bind her, and ſhe can never afterwards refuſe it. Broo. Executor 147.

The Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have by vertue of his Executorſhip or Adminiſtration all the chattels reall and perſonall of the Teſtator, as well thoſe that are in poſſeſſion, as Leaſes for years of Land, Rent, Common, or the like, Grants of next Advowſons, and Preſentations, Wardſhips of heirs by reaſon of tenures in Capite, or Knights Service, corn growing and cut, trees, and graſſe cut and ſevered, cattell, money, plate, houſhold-ſtuffe, and the like, as alſo thoſe that are in action, as right and intereſt of executions upon Judgements, Statutes, Obligations, Cauſes of action, and the like; He ſhall have alſo all other things that are of the nature of chattels. Coo. ſuper Littl. 209. 388. Perk. ſect. 69. Plow. 293. Doct. & St. 39. 76. Perk. ſect. 833. Coo. 4. 65. 63. 7. 17. Kelw. 118.

First in reſpect of the nature of the thing.

And therefore the Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have the two years of the heir female that is in Ward; a relief or an advowſon that is fallen; and yet if a Biſhop have title to preſent by the vacation of a Church, and then he dye; in this caſe the King and not the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Biſhop ſhall preſent.) And if the Lord have a greater eſtate in the Seigniory than for life or years, it is ſaid the Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall not have the relief. Coo. ſuper Littl. 79. Dyer 130. 283. Dyer 24. Broo. Executor 143.

And the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Lord ſhall have Fines aſſeſſed upon the Tenants upon their admittances in the Lords time. And if I make a Feoffment in Fee, gift in tail, or leaſe for life, rendring Rent, and the Rent is behind, and then I dye; in this caſe the arrerages of Rent due to me in my life time ſhall go to my Executor or Adminiſtrator in the nature of a chattell. Stat. 32. H. 8. cap. 37. Coo. 4. 48. Dyer 573.

So if a Rent be granted out of land to me in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or years, and it be not paid to me in my life time; theſe arrerages ſhall go to my Executor or Adminiſtrator, and not to any other. And ſo alſo if a Parſon have an annuity in Fee in the right of his Church, and it be behind, and the Parſon dye; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator, not the ſucceſſor of the Parſon ſhall have the arrerages. F. N. B. 120. L.

And if I be ſeiſed of land and poſſeſſed of a ſtock of cattell, and let it to another for years, and he covenant by the Leaſe to pay me and my wife, our heirs and aſſignes 100 l. by the year, during the term; in this caſe after my death, and my wife ſurviving me, her Executor or Adminiſtrator, and not my heir ſhall have this payment. Dyer 275.

And if one ſeized of land in Fee make a Feoffment of it to me excepting the trees, and after grant me the trees for years; or if he make me a Leaſe of the land firſt for years, and after doth grant me the trees for a number of years, to begin after the end of the term of the land; in both theſe caſes I have the trees in the nature of a chattell, and if I dye my Executor or adminiſtrator ſhall have them. Coo. 4. 63.

And if a man grant to me the next Preſentation to the Church of D. in this caſe if I dy, my executor or adminiſtrator ſhall have it as a chattell. Dyer 283. 34 H. 6. 27.

And my wife ſhall have ſo much of her wearing apparell as is neceſſary and convenient for one in her eſtate and condition: and therefore that ſhall not go to my Executor. But ſo much of her wearing apparell as ſhe hath ſuperfluous and more than neceſſary for her, ſhall go to my executor or adminiſtrator after my death. See ſupra at Numb. 7.

And the charters and evidences that do concern any of my chattels which my executor or adminiſtrator is to have, ſhall go with the ſame chattels. So alſo any Charters whatſoever, if they be pledged to me for money, ſhall go to my executor or adminiſtrator untill the money be paid, Broo. chattels 12. But otherwiſe thoſe deeds and evidences that do belong to the heir as incident to the Inheritance, ſhall not go to my executor or adminiſtrator after my death. But matters of truſt, and ſuch things as are perſonall, as offices of truſt, wardſhips by reaſon of a Tenure in Socage, or Jure naturæ, or the like, ſhall not go to the executor or adminiſtrator after the death of him that hath them. So an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall not have the graſſe and trees growing on the ground no more than the ſoile or ground it ſelf whereon they grow. Plow. 293. Coo. 3. 39. 9. 99. So an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall not have the Incidents of a houſe, as glaſs, doors, wanſcot, and the like, no more than the houſe it ſelf, nor pales, wals, ſtauks, fiſh in Ponds, Deere, or Conies in Parks, Pigeons in Pigeon-houſes, or the like. Kelw. 118. See before at Numb. 7.

If

If a Leaſe for years of land be granted to me and my heirs, or to me and my ſucceſſors, and I dye, my Executor or Adminiſtrator, and not my heir ſhall have this term, *Coo.*10.87. *Litt.Sect.*740. Fitz.Accompt. 56. *F.N.B.*120. Brownl. 1. *part.*77.106. The ſame law is if a wardſhip, or the next advouſon of a Church be granted unto me and my heirs; or if a Covenant or an Obligation be made to me and my heirs: for in all theſe caſes this is ſtill a chattel in me that ſhall go to my Executor or Adminiſtrator, and he onely ſhall take advantage by it. And if my heir or ſucceſſor happen to get the Deed, the Executor or Adminiſtrator may recover it from him. And if a Leaſe be made to me for 20 years without naming my Executors or Adminiſtrators or Aſſigns in the Leaſe; in this caſe if I dye, my Executor or Adminiſtrator notwithſtanding ſhall have it during the term. And if a Leaſe for years be made to a Biſhop and his ſucceſſors, and he dye, his Executor or Adminiſtrator, not his ſucceſſor ſhall have it, New terms of the Law tit. aſſigns: Coo.ſuper Litt 46. And if a man be poſſeſſed of a term of years of land, and grant it by deed, or give it by Will to me and my heirs, or to me and my heirs males: or deviſe it by Will to A for life, the remainder to me and my heirs; in theſe caſes I ſhall have theſe terms of years as chattels, and after my death my Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have them, *Coo.*8.95.10.87. *Plow.*524. And if a man grant a rent out of his land to me and my heirs for 20 years, and I dye, my Executor or Adminiſtrator, not my heir, ſhall have this rent, Litt. Sect. 740. And if a rent be granted to me, my heirs and executors during the life of I S, and for one half year after, and I dye; in this caſe the half years rent ſhall go to my executor or adminiſtrator, and not to my heir, M.7.Ja.Co.B.Wats caſe. Litt. Sect. 739. And if I be ſeized of land in Fee, and make a Leaſe for years of it, rendring rent, and then deviſe this rent to a ſtranger, and the Deviſee dye; in this caſe his executor or adminiſtrator ſhall have it, Dyer 5. And if a Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years abſolutely; this in Law is a Leaſe for ſo many years, if the life ſo long live, and ſhall to go the executor or adminiſtrator after his death. *See Brownl.*19.30.1 *part. Coo.*7.12.

Secondly, in reſpect of the caſe.

If I have a box, cheſt, or trunk wherein my writings that do concern my inheritance do lye, and the ſame is open, and not ſealed or locked; in this caſe my Executor ſhall have it: but if it be ſealed or locked, contra, for then it ſhall go to him that is to have the writings as incident thereto. And yet if there be any money, plate, or any other ſuch like thing in the cheſt alſo, my Executor ſhall have that thing, Broo.Executors 145.97 Fitz.Executors 111.

The Incidents of a houſe, as glaſs-windows annexed with nails or otherwiſe to the windows, the wainſcot fixed by nails, skrews, or irons put through the poſts or wals, tables dormant, furnaces of lead and braſs, and fats in a brew or die-houſe ſtanding and faſtned to the walls, or ſtanding in, or faſtned to the ground in the middle of the houſe, (though faſtned to no wall) a copper, or lead fixed to the houſe, the doors within and without that are hanging and ſerving to any part of the houſe, ſhall not go to the executor or adminiſtrator to be divided and ſold from the houſe, albeit the executor or adminiſtrator have a Leaſe for years of the houſe, and by that means hath the houſe alſo. But if the glaſs be from the windows, or there be wainſcot looſe, or doors more than are uſed that are not hanging, or the like: theſe things ſhall go to the executor or adminiſtrator, *Coo.*4.63. 21 *H.*7.26.

If I make a Feoffment to I S of land, on condition that if he pay me, my heirs or aſſigns, or my heirs, executors or adminiſtrators a 100 l. ſuch a day, that the Feoffment ſhall be voyd, and I dye before the time of payment; in this caſe, if this money be paid at the day, my executor or adminiſtrator, and not my heir, ſhall have it, *Coo.*5.96. Fitz.Executor 8.

If one be ſeized in Fee of lands whereon there are trees growing, and he make a Feoffment of the land to me, excepting the trees, and afterwards he doth ſell me trees for ever, and after I dye; in this caſe my executor or adminiſtrator ſhall not have theſe trees, as they ſhall in caſe where the Feoffor doth grant them to me for years. And if I be ſeized of land in Fee, and I make a Leaſe for life or years of it, excepting the trees, and afterwards I dye; in this caſe my executor or adminiſtrator ſhall not have theſe trees, but they ſhall go in both caſes with the land, Coo 4.63.11.48.

If a Leaſe be made for life or years of land whereon a houſe is ſtanding, or timber is growing, and the houſe is proſtrate, or the timber is cut or fallen down (by whomſoever or what means ſoever it be) the materials of this houſe, and this timber is now become a chattel; and therefore if the Leaſe be without impeachment of waſte, it ſhall go to the Leſſee, and after his death to his Executor or Adminiſtrator; but if the Leaſe be otherwiſe, it ſhall go to the Leſſor, and after his death to his Executor or Adminiſtrator. But if the timber be cut for reparations onely, or the Leſſee will imploy the materials of the houſe to build it again, and the Leaſe do continue, it may be ſo imployed, and then the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Leſſor may not take it, *Coo.*4.63.11.81.84.

If one be ſeized in Fee-ſimple of ground whereon trees do grow, and he ſell me theſe trees for money, and afterwards I dye before they be cut; in this caſe my Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have and may cut them, Coo. 11. 50. Perk. Sect. 58.

If the Kings tenant by Knights Service in Capite be ſeized of a Mannour whereunto an Advouſon is appendant, and the Church become voyd, and the tenant dyeth, his heir within age: in this caſe the King, and not the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the tenant ſhall have the Preſentation. And yet if in this caſe the land be held of a common perſon, the Executor or Adminiſtrator, and not the Guardian ſhall have it, Coo. ſuper Litt. 388.

In all caſes regularly where a man doth ſow land, whereof and wherein he hath ſuch an eſtate as may perhaps continue untill the corn be ripe, if he that doth ſow it dye before it be cut and ſevered, his Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall have it; as if the husband ſow the land whereof he hath an eſtate in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or for a certain number of years in the right of his wife, and dye ere it be ripe; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the husband, and not the wife ſhall have it. And if one that holdeth land for the life of I S ſow the land, and I S dye ere it be ripe & cut; the executor or adminiſtrator of the tenant ſhall have this corn. And if tenant in Tail or in Dower ſow the land they do ſo hold, and dye ere it be cut; the executor or adminiſtrator, not the iſſue in tail, nor the heir, or him in reverſion ſhall have it. So if the husband make a Feoffment in Fee to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after of his wife, &c. and he ſow the land, and after dye; his executor or adminiſtrator, not his wife ſhall have the corn. But if a Feoffment be made to the uſe of the husband and wife together in Fee, or for life, and the husband ſow the land; in this caſe the wife, not the executor or adminiſtrator of the husband ſhall have the corn. So if a Leſſee for years certain ſow the land a little before the end of his term, and the term end before it be cut; in this caſe he that is to have the land, not the executor or adminiſtrator of the Leſſee for years ſhall have the corn, Dyer. 316. Doct. & St. 35. Perk. Sect. 59.

If there be Tenant for life, the remainder in Fee of a Tenancy, and the Lord grant his Seigniory for life, and after he in remainder in Fee of the Tenancy dye, his heir within age, and after the Lord dye, and after the Tenant for life dye; in this caſe the heir, and not the executor or adminiſtrator of the Lord, ſhall have the Wardſhip. *Coo.*2.93.

If one be ſeized of land in Fee, and make a Leaſe for years, rendring rent at Michaelmas, or within ten ten dayes after, and the Leſſor happen to dye during the term after Michaelmas, and before the ten dayes expired; in this caſe the heir of the Leſſor, and not his executor or adminiſtrator, ſhall have the laſt half years rent due at Michaelmas, Hill. 7. Jac. B. R. per curiam.

If one grant a Rent in Fee, and grant withall that if the Rent be behind, the Grantor ſhall forfeit 20 s. nomine pœnæ to the Grantee and his heirs, and the Rent is behind, and the Grantee dye; in this caſe his executor or adminiſtrator, not his heir ſhall have this money that is forfeit already, *F.N.B.*120. Fitz. Covenant 17.

Dyer

Dyer 24. So if one make a Feoffment in Fee of land, and the Feoffee doth covenant to do divers things to the Feoffor, Et quoties defectus fuerit, &c. that he ſhall forfeit to him and his heirs 5 l. and the Feoffee doth fail and break his covenant divers wayes, and the Feoffor dyeth; in this caſe his executor or adminiſtrator, not his heir ſhall have and recover all the forfeitures that are paſt.

If a Biſhop, Parſon, Vicar, Maſter of Hoſpital, or any body politick be poſſeſſed of any goods or chattels in their own right, and dye; theſe ſhall go to the executor or adminiſtrator, not the ſucceſſor of ſuch a perſon. And albeit ſuch things be granted to them and their ſucceſſors, yet their executors and adminiſtrators, and not their ſucceſſors ſhall have it. But if a Corporation aggregate, as Dean and Chapter, Mayor or Commonalty, and the like, have any goods or chattels in right of their Corporation, and any of the Heads or Members thereof dye; the executors or adminiſtrators of ſuch perſon ſhall not have them, but they ſhall continue in ſucceſſion with the Corporation, Coo. 4.65. Perk. Sect 58. Coo. ſuper Litt. 46.

An executor or adminiſtrator ſhall have the benefit of a pardon granted to the deceaſed, and ſhall have advantage of any errour in any outlawry againſt the deceaſed, and have reſtitution of the goods forfeit thereupon, Coo. 6.80. Dyer 201.

The executor or adminiſtrator of a woman that hath a husband, ſhall have by right of his executorſhip or adminiſtration, all Actions, Rights, and Titles to any chattels, and poſſibilities, and things of that nature which the wife had before the marriage, and which fell to her during the marriage; for theſe things the husband ſhall not have by the intermarriage after his wives death, as he ſhall have all the reſt of her goods and chattels, except he have them as executor or adminiſtrator to her, as he may be. And if ſuch a woman have any goods or chattels as executrix to another, her executor or adminiſtrator, not her husband ſhall have theſe alſo; for ſhe hath theſe goods in anothers, and not in her own right, Coo. ſuper Littl. 351. Plow. 294. 192. Husband and wife.

If I have any goods or chattels in joynt-tenancy with another, as if a Leaſe be made of lands to me and another for years, or a horſe or other chattel perſonal be given or granted to me and another; in theſe caſes if I dye, my executor or adminiſtrator ſhall not have any part of theſe goods or chattels, but the other ſurviving joynt-tenant ſhall have them all. But otherwiſe it is of the goods and chattels that I and another have in Common. And therefore if I and another have goods and chattels in that nature as before, and he or I grant that which doth belong unto us thereof unto a ſtranger; in this caſe the ſtranger, and him of us two that hath kept his part are Tenants in Common of the things; and therefore if either of us dye, the part of him that dyeth in the goods and chattels ſhall go to his executor or adminiſtrator, and not to the other Tenant in Common, Litt. Sect. 281. Perk. Sect. 525 526. Litt. Sect. 320, 321.

If I have a Judgement for land in a real or mixt action, and for damages recovered in the ſame Suit, and I dye; in this caſe my executor or adminiſtrator, not my heir, ſhall ſue execution for, and recover the damages, but not for the land. So if I recover damages againſt another for the detaining of my Charters, and dye; my executor or adminiſtrator ſhall recover the damages, but the heir ſhall have the Charters, and the heir muſt ſue his Scire facias for the Charters ere the executor can ſue for the damages, Fitz. Executor 53.84.117 Alſo if I recover any debt or damage in any perſonal action, my executor or adminiſtrator ſhall recover and have this. See more infra at numb. 39. But the Adminiſtrators of an Executor cannot have a Scire facias upon a Judgement given for the Teſtator, March. Rep. 9.

26. What an Executor may do by vertue of his Executorſhip. And the power of an Executor, Adminiſtrator, or Ordinary.

The power and intereſt which the Executor hath is wholly by the Will. And hence it is that an Executor, whether he be abſolute or conditional whiles he is Executor, may do any thing as Executor (except onely ſue for debts and duties due to the Teſtator) as well before the Probate of the Will as he may do after; for before the Probate he may enter into and ſeize the goods and chattels whatſoever they be, or give power to another ſo to do: and if any of them be taken or kept from him, he may have an action of treſpaſs, or a replevin to recover them; he may give or ſell any of the goods or chattels; he may pay any of the debts due from, and and receive or releaſe anydebts due to the deceaſed,*Coo.*6.18.9.38.5.27,*Plow.*280. 9*Ed.*4.47.36*H.*6.7.Fitz. Adminiſtrator 2.6.*Brownl.*1.*part.*76.77.73.53.But it is otherwiſe in the caſe of an Adminiſtration;for inaſmuch as his power & intereſt is given to him wholly by the Adminiſtration, therefore he can do nothing untill the Adminiſtration be granted. And yet in this caſe as to the goods taken away before the Adminiſtration, the Adminiſtration ſhall have ſuch a relation as to give the Adminiſtrator an action for them. But otherwiſe after the Adminiſtration is granted, the intereſt and power of the Adminiſtrator is equal to and with the power and intereſt of the Executor. And yet it is otherwiſe of the power and intereſt of the Ordinary; For howſoever it ſeems by the antient Common Law he might ſeize, preſerve,give,grant,and diſpoſe the goods of the inteſtate to pious uſes, yet might he not ſue for the goods or debts due to the inteſtate, no more than he might be ſued for any debts due from the inteſtate; and at this day he may onely keep and preſerve the goods of the deceaſed untill adminiſtration be granted, and ſue him in the Court of the Ordinary that doth detain the goods from him, and perhaps may ſue him that ſhall take the goods out of his poſſeſſion; for he may not ſell or give the goods of the deceaſed, nor receive or releaſe any debts; for in caſe where there is an Executor made that is capable, &c. he is not to meddle at all with the eſtate untill the Executor refuſe: and where there is no Executor that the party is dead inteſtate,the Ordinary is preſently to commit the Adminiſtration to the neareſt of the kindred; which when he hath done, his power is at an end, for it is doubted of ſome whether he may repeal an Adminiſtration without cauſe or not; but it hath been clearly held by all, that he may not diſpoſe of the eſtate afterwards, and that he hath not power to enforce the Adminiſtrator to give portions to children out of the eſtate, and that if he do go about it,either before or after the granting of the Letters of Adminiſtration, the Adminiſtrator may have a Prohibition, *Coo.*8.135. 9.39.Dyer 255.*Weſtm.*2.*cap.*20. 31 *Ed.*3.*c.*11. And accordingly divers have been granted; And yet notwithſtanding it ſeems this courſe is uſual: and Prohibitions not often granted at this day, *Hil.*13.Ja.Co.B. Henſlowes caſe. *Trin.*3.tac.Co.B. Davis caſe. *Hill.*2.*Car.Co.*9.Fotherlies caſe. An Executor or Adminiſtrator may after the death of the deceaſed enter into the houſe where the deceaſed lived, and where he dyed,and where the goods are, and take them away, and juſtifie it; but he muſt do it within convenient and reaſonable time, as within 30 dayes after his death, or thereabouts, and in a quiet and fair manner when the door is open, &c. Litt.Sect. 69. Plow. 281. Broo. Executor 129. He may keep any of the goods of the deceaſed, ſo as he pay or lay out as much of his own money in and about the Adminiſtration of the ſame eſtate,Dyer 2. He may, if he want money to diſcharge Funerals, or pay debts, ſell any of the chattels real or perſonal whereof the deceaſed dyed poſſeſſed; and that albeit the thing in particular be deviſed: as if a man be poſſeſſed of a term of years inter alia, and deviſe the ſame term to I S, the Executor or Adminiſtrator notwithſtanding this deviſe may at any time before aſſent given to the Legacy, if he have not aſſets to pay the debts, ſell this term, and the Legatee is remedileſs. And ſo he may do alſo, albeit there be enough beſides to pay the debts, and he have no need; but then in this caſe the Legatee ſhall have ſome relief in a Court of Equity againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator for damages, but the ſale is unavoydable, *Plow.*543,544. An Executor or Adminiſtrator may retain ſo much of the eſtate as to ſatisfie his own debt firſt, if any be due unto him. And if he hath enough to pay all the Debts and Legacies,he may pay them in what order he will without danger to himſelf, or wrong to Creditors or Legataries. And if he hath not enough, he may pay them in what order he will, but not without danger to himſelf. But if any thing be due to himſelf, he may pay that firſt of all, and for others that are in equal degree, he may pay which of them he will firſt, Plow. 184. 543. Coo. 5. 28. And for the Legataries, he may prefer which of them he will, or pay one of them his whole Legacy, and pay another a part of his, or not pay him any part of his Legacy if there be no aſſets to do it. But an Executor or an Adminiſtrator may not ſell any thing that is given in ſpecial to a Legatee to pay another Legacy given to another Legatee, not compell a Creditor or Legatee to take ſome of the Goods of the Deceaſed for his Debt or Legacy, whether he will or no, not deviſe the Goods he hath as Executor or as Adminiſtrator, neither can Executors or Adminiſtrators make deviſion of the Goods amongſt them. The addition to Juſtice Dodridge Treatiſe 93. Kelw. 62. 27 *H.*8. 22. Plow. 525.

nor

Infant.

An Infant that is an Executor, after the time he is capable, hath as much power as another Executor of full age; for he may ſell the Goods, receive Debts, and make releaſes for the moneyes he doth receive, aſſent to a Legacy when debts are paid, ſue, and be ſued as another Executor. And he is only diſabled to do any thing to hurt himſelf; And therefore if he releaſe a debt before he receive it, the Releaſe is void; and if he aſſent to a Legacy before the debts are paid, the aſſent is void, and if he do any other act which will be a waſting of the Goods in an Executor that is of full age, it ſhall not bind him. Coo. 5. 28.

And it ſeems, that howſoever an Infant Executor after ſeventeen years of age, may ſell any of the Chattels perſonall he hath as Executor, yet that after his age of ſeventeen years, and before he is one and twenty years of age, that he cannot ſell a Leaſe for years he hath in the right of his Executorſhip, but that ſuch ſale is void And ſo was it held by Juſtice Hutton at Sarum Aſſiſes, 21 Jac.

Woman Covert.

A Woman covert that hath a Husband, and is an Executrix may do any lawfull act as another Executor may do, but ſhe may not do any thing to prejudice her Husband, as releaſe a debt before it be paid, aſſent to, or deliver a Legacy before the debts be paid, or the like, and yet the Husband himſelf may do ſo. Broo. Executor 178. 152. Fitz. Executor 55. Coo. 5. 28.

27. The office, duly, charge, of an Executor or Adminiſtrator, and of the Ordinary.

The Office and duty in generall of an Executor or Adminiſtrator is to diſpoſe of all the Eſtate of the deceaſed wherewith he hath to do: 1. Truly not to convert any of it to his own uſe, but to the uſe and beſt advantage of the deceaſed nor to labour by any undue practiſe or means to hinder any Creditor of his debt. 2. Lawfully to pay debts and Legacies in that order the Law preſcribeth. 3. Diligently, Quia negligentia ſemper habet commitem infortunium; but more particularly. Coo 8. 133.

First in the Funerals.

The firſt duty and care of an Executor or an Adminiſtrator after he had taken upon him the charge of the Adminiſtration of the Goods and Chattels of the deceaſed, after the Goods are laid up, is to ſee the body of the deceaſed laudably interred according to his rank and quality; wherein let the Executor or Adminiſtrator take this caution by the way, Not to exceed in Funerall Pomp, eſpecially if it be ſo that the Eſtate will ſcarcely reach to pay the Debts; for let his expences be what they will, the Iudges (who in this are to determine what ſhall be allowed) will allow what they pleaſe, and they are pleaſed in ſuch caſes to allow but a ſmall matter, and whatſoever the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth lay out more, he muſt bear out of his own Eſtate, if he have not enough beſides to pay the debts. Doct. & St. 75. Plow. 543. Kelw. 64.

Secondly, in making an Inventary.

The ſecond duty and care muſt be to make an Inventary, i.e. a Schedule containing a true and perfect deſcription of all the Goods and Chattels of the deceaſed at the time of his death, as of his Wares, Merchandizes, Emblements, and the like, with their appriſement and value, and of none elſe, and of all debts due to him and from him. Doct. & St. 35. Stat. 21 *H.*8. *c.*3. Dyer 166. Swinb. part 6. Sect. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10.

And this muſt be made by and before two of the Creditors ot Legataries of the deceaſed (if there be any ſuch and they will do it) and two others, or in caſe they refuſe, by and before two other men of the honeſt Neighbours. And herein let the Executor or Adminiſtrator take this caution by the way, not to intermeddle with the Goods before he hath done this; for howſoever he may do any act as Executor before the Inventary be made, yet the Ordinary may puniſh this upon him except it be done with the Ordinaries licenſe, who in this caſe may give what time he will for the doing of it; and untill the Inventary be made and put in, it ſhall be preſumed againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator that he hath Aſſets in his hands to pay all men; and beſides, untill this be done, he cannot deduct to ſatisfie his own debt firſt, and bar other men by Plea. But of the other ſide when he hath made and exhibited a true and perfect Inventary of all the Goods and Chattels, it ſhall be preſumed againſt him that he hath ſo much as is contained in the Inventory and no more, unleſſe more can be proved by Witneſſes.

Thirdly in Probate of the Will.

3. The third thing whereof the Executor or Adminiſtrator is to take care, is to prove the Will if there be any: and this the Ordinary will compell him to do, but otherwiſe he may do any thing as Executor, ſave onely ſue actions as well before Probate as after. See Probate infra at Numb.

Fourthly in payment of Debts and Legacies; and the order of Debts and Legacies.

4. The fourth thing whereof the Executor or Adminiſtrator muſt take care, is to ſell and make money of the goods and Chattels, and to receive the debts due to the deceaſed, and then to pay the Debts and Legacies due to the Creditors and Legataries, wherein the Executor or Adminiſtrator muſt be very cautious and wary. And for this purpoſe let him obſerve that all the Debts muſt be paid before any Legacies be paid or delivered, and if there be not enough beſides to pay the debts, any thing given by way of Legacy, may be ſold to make money to pay the Debts, and the Legataries muſt loſe their Legacies. And in payment of Debts this decorum muſt be obſerved.

Retainer.

1. Amongſt perſons that are Creditors, the Executor or Adminiſtrator himſelf ſhall be preferred, ſo that if any debt be due to him, he may deduct to ſatisfie himſelf firſt, albeit others loſe their whole Debt thereby, and eſpecially then when his Debt is in equall degree with other Debts.

2. After the Executor or Adminiſtrator is ſerved and ſatisfied his Debt, then the King is to be preferred, ſo that if there be any Debt due to him, and he begin his ſuit for it before any other man can get a Judgement for his Debt againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator, his Debt ſhall be paid before any others.

3. After the King is ſerved and ſatisfied his Debt, then the debts of common perſons muſt be paid. Coo.9 88. Plow. 184.545. Dyer 80. *Doct. & St.*75,76,77,78. 132. Stat. 33 *H.8.cap.39.Coo.*5.28.4.54.59. 60.8.132. Dyer 232.32. 21 *Ed.*4.21. *Broo. And theſe alſo muſt be paid in this order or manner.

1. The Debts due by Record, by any Judgement had againſt the Deceaſed in any judiciall proceeding in any Court of Record.

2. The Debts due by Statutes or Recognizances entred into by the Deceaſed; for the Debts due upon Judgements muſt be ſatisfied before theſe; ſit judicium prius vel poſterius

3. The Debts due by Obligations, and penall and ſingle Bils, for theſe are in equall degree, and theſe are to be paid after Statutes and Recognizances. And yet if the Statute or recognizance be only for performance of Covenants, & no Covenant is broken, an Obligation for the payment of preſent money ſhall be diſcharged before it.

4. The debts due for Rent upon Leaſes of Land, or grants of Rents; but ſome ſay, that Debts due for Rent in the Teſtators life time (be the Rent reſerved upon Leaſes made by, or without deed for years, or at will) are in equality of degree, with debts due upon Eſpecialties.

5. The Debts due for Servants Wages and Workmen.

6. The Debts due upon Shop-books and verbal Contracts, and yet it is ſaid by ſome, that Legacies are to be paid before Debts due by Shop books, Bills unſealed, or contracts by word, Quod non credo, Addition to Juſt. Dodridge 92.

And amongſt Debts alſo that are in equality of degree, thoſe that are due are to be paid before thoſe that are not due; and thoſe whoſe day of payment is already come, before thoſe whoſe day of payment is not yet come: and yet if the Creditor whoſe day of payment is already come, do not ſue for his Debt untill his Debt whoſe day of payment is at a day to come, become due, the Executor or Adminiſtrator may ſatisfie which of them he will firſt.

And amongſt Debts that are due, and already to be paid, thoſe that are firſt ſued for, are to be firſt paid: Or if the Creditors begin their Suits together, the Executor or Adminiſtrator may pay which he will of them firſt, and to pay Debts in any other order is dangerous: And therefore for the purpoſe, if the Deceaſed are two ſeverall Debts of 10 l. apiece to two ſeverall Creditors by

ſeverall

ſeverall Obligations, and the Executor or Admidiſtrator hath enough onely to pay one of them, he that can firſt get Judgment and Execution ſhall firſt be ſatisfied, and if the Executor or Adminiſtrator do afterwards pay the other his Debt, he muſt ſatisfie the firſt out of his own Eſtate.

If one that hath a Debt due to him from the Deceaſed upon a ſimple Contract, or the like, ſue the Executor or Adminiſtrator for it; and there be debts due to others upon Bonds and Bills unſatisfied; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator may not pay this debt, nor may he ſuffer the Plaintiff to recover in his Action, for if he do, and if he have not Aſſets beſides to ſatisfie the debts due upon Bills and Bonds, he muſt ſatisfie ſo much out of his own Eſtate as he hath ſo paid, or ſuffered to be recovered from him; for in the caſe of an Action brought, he is to plead and to ſet forth theſe debts upon eſpecialties, and to ſay, That he hath no more but what is ſufficient to ſatisfie them, &c. and thereby he ſhall bar the Plaintiff in his Action.

In like manner it is, if one that hath a debt due to him from the deceaſed upon an Obligation, ſue the Executor or Adminiſtrator thereupon, and there be debts due to others upon Judgments, Statutes, or Recognizances, and the Executor or Adminiſtrator ſuffer the Plaintiff to recover the debt due upon the Obligation for want of pleading the Judgments, &c. or doth voluntary pay that debt, and he hath not Aſſets beſides to pay the debts due upon Judgments, &c. In this caſe, he muſt pay ſo much out of his own Eſtate towards the ſatisfaction of the ſaid debts due upon Judgments, &c. as he hath paid of the debt due upon the Obligation.

But here it muſt be noted, that no Judgment or Statute that is diſcharged, or is left and ſuffered to lye by agreement to bar others of their Debts, ſhall be any bar to others that ſue for their due Debts upon Obligations, &c. And therefore if any Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall plead any ſuch Judgment, &c. in bar of any other Debt ſued for by any other Creditor, the Creditor may by ſpeciall pleading ſet forth this matter of Covin, and avoid the Plea and Bar of the Executor or Adminiſtrator. Covin.

If one Creditor whoſe Debt is in equall degree, and preſently due and to be paid, begin a Suit againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator for his Debt, and he hath notice that the Suit is begun againſt him, or the Action is laid in the County where the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth dwell, or (as ſome have ſaid) in London (in both which caſes, it ſeems he is bound to take notice thereof at his perill) and after this Suit begun he doth make voluntary payment of another Debt in equall degree in all reſpects, for which no Suit is begun, this is a Devaſtavit in the Executor or Adminiſtrator, and if he have not Aſſets to ſatisfie him who began his Suit firſt, he ſhall be compelled to ſatisfie ſo much thereof as he doth voluntarily pay to the other, and that out of his own Eſtate: And yet an Executor or Adminiſtrator may make voluntary payment of any Debt due by Record, as by Judgment, Statute, &c. after ſuch a Suit begun, and juſtifie it.

If two Creditors in equall degree to all purpoſes begin to ſue for their Debts at one time; In this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator cannot ſafely make voluntary payment to either of them, unleſſe he have enough to pay them both; but his ſafeſt way is to pay him firſt, that in a due and legall proceeding (for he may not covinouſly help one of them to a Judgment ſooner) can firſt recover it by Judgment and Execution: And yet if in this caſe no Suit be begun, the Executor or Adminiſtrator may make voluntary payment to either of them in equall degree of his whole Debt, albeit he have no Aſſets left to pay unto the other any part of his Debt.

If A. and B. be two Creditors in equall degree, and A. begin his Suit firſt; and after B. doth begin his Suit, and it hapneth that B. bona fide without any Covin or agreement between him and the Executor or Adminiſtrator, doth get Judgment and Execution firſt; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator may make payment to B. firſt of all. But if the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth by any Covin and agreement help B. to his Judgment and Execution firſt, and by this meanes he is firſt ſatisfied, if there be not enough left to ſatisfie A. he Covin.

muſt ſatisfie him out of his own Eſtate. If two Suits begin at, or about one time upon two ſeverall Obligations, and the Executor is forced to plead to them both before either of them hath a Judgment, ſo that he cannot plead the Judgment that the other hath againſt him, and he hath not Aſſets to ſatisfie both the debts ſued for, and after the Plaintiffs in both the Suits get Judgment and Execution. Quære what the Executor or Adminiſtrator may do in this caſe: And here note by the way, that it is policy for a Creditor that hath cauſe to ſue an Executor, or Adminiſtrator, to be doing betimes, and to get Judgment and Execution as ſoon as he may; for it falleth out in this caſe, That he that doth firſt come ſhall be firſt ſerved: After all the debts are paid in ſuch order and manner as before, then is the Executor or Adminiſtrator to pay and to deliver the Legacies: and herein the Executor may prefer himſelf ſo, that if any Legacy be given to him, he may detain and deduct it, albeit there be nothing left to diſcharge the Legacies given to others; and after he hath ſatisfied himſelf, he may ſatisfie and deliver what Legacies he will, albeit there be not enough to ſatisfie all the Legatees: or he may pay to each of of the Legatees a part of their Legacy, and deduct a part out of every Legacy where there is not enough to ſatisfie all the Legacies. : But if any particular thing, as a Leaſe, or a Horſe, or the like be given; this muſt be delivered accordingly, and may not be ſold by the Executor or Adminiſtrator to pay others all, or any part of their Legacies: and if there be enough to pay all the Legacies, they muſt be paid all according to the Will: And it is ſaid by ſome, that if an Executor or Adminiſtrator make no Inventary of the goods, that he muſt pay all the Legacies, whether he have Aſſets or not: Doct: & St: 34. Plow: 545. & Wimb: 110. 114.

Fifthly, in making an Account.

The laſt thing an Executor or Adminiſtrator is to take care of, is to make an account (for it is held that an Executor or Adminiſtrator is not bound in Law or Conſcience to make reſtitution for perſonall wrongs) wherin this is to be known, that the Ordinary may, if he wil, call the executor or adminiſtrator to account concerning the Goods and Chattels of the deceaſed, either generally or particularly, as the caſe requireth; and that with, or without the Creditors or Legataries inſtigation, within a year, or what time he will; unto which account he may call all the Creditors and Legataries; & therin the executor or adminiſtrator muſt ſhew what he hath received, and what he hath laid out, and prove it in ſuch ſort as the Ordinary ſhall like: And then if it be found he hath faithfully and fully adminiſtred, the Ordinary may acquit him of the burthen, and then he is diſcharged of all Suits in the Spirituall Court; but this account and diſcharge will not help nor avail him at all to diſcharge him of Suits at the Common Law. Swinb: Part: 6. Sect: 17.

The Office and duty of the Ordinary after the death of any perſon within his Dioceſſe, is if he hear of any Will made, and any Executor appointed, to cite the Executor, and to compell him to come in and prove the Wil, and to accept and take upon him the Adminiſtration of the Goods, or to refuſe it: and if the Executor refuſe, or if there be a Will made, and no Executor appointed, the Ordinary muſt commit the Adminiſtration Cum teſtamento annexo to whom he ſhall think fit, and take bond of the Adminiſtrator to perform the Will. And if there be no will made, he is to grant the Adminiſtration of the Goods to the next of kin, if he or they requiſe it; and if not ſo, to whomſoever beſides ſhall deſire it; or if no body ſeek it, he may grant Letters to whom he will Ad colligendum bona defuncti, and therby take the Goods of the deceaſed into his own hands: and then it ſeems he is to pay therwith the Debts and Legacies of the Deceaſed, ſo far as the ſame will reach, in ſuch order as the Executor or Adminiſtrator is to pay them. See more of this queſtion in Numb. 29. infra. Co. 5. 83. 5. 39. Lit. Broo. Sect 233. F. N. B. 220. Dyer 232. Doct. & St. 132. *Broo. An Executor or Adminiſtator regularly ſhall charge all others for any Debt or duty due to the Deceaſed, as the Deceaſed himſelf might have done; and the ſame Actions Actions the Deceaſed might have had, the ſame Actions for the moſt part the Executor or Adminiſtrator may have alſo: And therefore he may have an action of Account, an Action of Treſpaſſe De bonis aſportatis in vita teſtatoris, An Action of Debt againſt a Gaoler upon the eſcape of a Priſoner, a Writ of Error upon the Statute of 27 Eliz. an Attaint upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. A Writ of Reſtitution upon the Statute of 21 *H.*8. If an Action upon the Caſe upon the Aſſumpſit of the Teſtator, An Indempnitate nominis when the Deceaſed's Goods are taken upon an Out-lawry againſt another man of his name. An Action of Covenant for breach of a Covenant made to the Deceaſed. An Action upon the Caſe upon the Trover and Converſion of the Goods of the Teſtator. An Ejectione firme for an Ejectment of the Teſtator out of a Terme. An Action of Debt for the Rent behind in the life-time of the Deceaſed. An Action of Debt for the Arrearages of an Annuity due to the Teſtator in his life: And a Raviſhment, or Ejectment of Guard for a wrong done to the Deceaſed. But an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall not charge another, or have any Action againſt him for a perſonall wrong done to the Teſtator, when the wrong done to his perſon, or that which is his, is of that nature as for which Damages only are to be recovered: And therefore an Executor or Adminiſtrator cannot ſue another for the beating or wounding of the Deceaſed, or for a Treſpaſſe done to him in his Cattle, Graſſe, or Corne, or for a Waſte done by his Tenant in his Lands; for theſe are ſaid to be perſonall Actions, which dye with the perſon according to rule, Actio perſonalis moritur cum perſona. See for this March. 923. 13. pl. 33. Plow. 181. Coo. 11. 90. Weſt. 2. c. 22. *F. 28. Where and how an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall charge others in reſpect of the Eſtate of the Deceaſed, and what actions & remedy he may have againſt others and what not, and how.

Perſonall Actions.

If the Teſtament be kept from the Executor, he may have remedy to recover it in the Spirituall Court: So if the Goods of the Deceaſed be kept from him, he may ſue there for them if he will, or he may ſue in any Court of Common Law. And if there be a Will, and an Executor made, or two Adminiſtrations granted together, he that is right full Executor or Adminiſtrator may ſue the wrongfull Adminiſtrator for the Goods in his cuſtody. 36 H. 6, 7. Coo. 8. 135.

If one grant a Rent out of his Land for life, provided that it ſhall not charge his perſon, and the Rent is behind, and the Grantee dieth; in this caſe, the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Grantee may have an Action of Debt for theſe Arrearages. Coo. ſuper Litt. 146.

If any Rent or Arrearages of Rent be due to me upon a grant of Rent out of any Land to me, or reſervation of Rent upon any Eſtate made by me of Land; in theſe caſes, my Executor or Adminiſtration may have an Action of Debt for this Rent, or he may diſtraine for it, ſo long as the Land chargable with the Rent, and out of which it doth iſſue, is in his poſſeſſion that ought to pay it, or in the poſſeſſion of any one that doth claime by or under him. Coo. 4. 50. Stat. 32 H. 8. cap. 37.

And in caſe where a man doth ſue as Executor or Adminiſtrator, he muſt in his Action name himſelf as he is, i. e. if he be an Executor, he muſt name himſelf ſo; and if an Adminiſtrator, he muſt name himſelf ſo: And if there be many Executors, and ſome accept, and ſome refuſe, if they bring any Action, they muſt be all named in the Writ: And yet if one Executor have Goods in his poſſeſſion, and he alone ſell them, perhaps for this Contract he may bring an Action for the money in his own name: So alſo if the Goods be taken out of his poſſeſſion alone, it is ſaid he alone may ſue for them; but the ſafeſt way in theſe caſes, is to ſue in the names of all the Executors; for the poſſeſſion of one of them is ſaid to be the poſſeſſion of all of them. Coo. 5. 33. *Bro. And therefore if a man bind himſelf by Obligation or Covenant to pay money or do any ſuch like thing, and do not bind his Executors or Adminiſtrators by name; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator may be ſued and may be charged as far forth as if they were named. And yet where the Covenant is but perſonal, as where one doth make a Leaſe for years, and the Leſſor doth Covenant to pay the Quit-rents, but he doth not ſay during the terme; by this it ſeems the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Leſſor ſhall not be charged. An action of the caſe lieth againſt him upon an Aſſumpſit, or the ſimple Contract of the Teſtator, eſpecially where the ground of the Aſſumpſit is a true debt, a Rationabile parte bonorum lieth againſt him; a Detinue lieth againſt him for the Goods delivered to the Deceaſed, if the Executor or Adminiſtrator do ſtill continue the poſſeſſion of them: Alſo an action of debt lieth againſt him for arrearages of account found upon the Deceaſed before Auditors. Coo. 9.86. Plow. 182. F.N.B. 121.3 *H.*6.35.11 *H.*4.45.

If a Leaſe for years be made rendring Rent, and the Rent is behind, and the Leſſee die; in this caſe the Executor or Adminiſtrator of the Leſſee ſhall be charged for this Rent. An Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall not be charged for any perſonall wrong done by the Deceaſed, and therefore no action may be brought againſt him for any ſuch cauſe, as becauſe the Deceaſed did burn the Deed of the Plaintiff, ſuffer a Priſoner at his Suite to eſcape, cut down his Trees, eat up his Graſſe, beat or wound the body of the Plaintiff, defame him in his name, or the like; for all theſe are ſaid to be perſonall actions that dye with the perſon, neither is there any remedy to be had againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator in equity in theſe caſes, neither ſhall he be charged in any action of Account for any Receit or Occupation by by the Deceaſed. And yet perhaps an action of the Caſe may lie in this Caſe; neither will an action of Debt lie againſt him upon the ſimple contract of the Deceaſed, but an action of the caſe onely. Neither will an action lie againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator upon an arbitrement made in the life time of the Deceaſed, albeit it be made in writing. Neither will any Action lie againſt any Executor or Adminiſtrator for coſts given in the Starchamber or Chancery againſt the Deceaſed in a Suit there, but when the party dieth the ſame is loſt; and where a man doth ſue an executor Adminiſtrator in a Suit, he muſt charge him as he is, viz. if he be an Executor he muſt ſue him by that name, if an Adminiſtrator, then by that name. 30 What Act one Executor or Adminiſtrator alone may do; And where the act or laches of one may prejudice or barr his compan-on, and where not.

And therefore if there be two Executors and one of them deliver up the Obligation to the Debtor whereby he is bound, the other Executor ſhall not recover him in a detinue. So if two Executors have Lands or Goods in Execution, and one of them releaſe all his intereſt, this is a totall diſcharge of the Execution, Adjudge M. 39, 40. Eliz. B R.

And yet if in this Caſe there be any practice between the Executor and the Creditor in this matter, and there be not Aſſets beſides to pay all the Debts and Legacies, here perhaps the other Executor may have remedy in equity againſt his coexecutor and the creditor. But how the Law is of Adminiſtrators, Quære; for ſome think that one of them alſo may ſell Goods, releaſe Debts, plead to Actions, or the like without the other. Goldsb. 141. 54. Others of a contrary opinion, and that becauſe they have but one entire authority given them, that they muſt act together and not aſunder, but Adminiſtrators have by the Adminiſtration as much intereſt as an Executor hath, and therefore we conceive he hath as much power as an Executor hath. Cromp. Jac. 45, 4 *H.*7.4.

If one Executor atturn to the Grant of a Reverſion or a Rent, this is as good as if they did all atturn and bind all the reſt, as in caſe of aſſent to a Legacy; for in this caſe the aſſent will bind all the reſt, albeit there be not enough to pay the debts beſides the Legacy given away by aſſent, but his aſſent ſhall not hurt his coexecutors in a Devaſtavit. Dyer 210. Coo. 4.31. Addition to Juſt. Dodridge 4.

If one Executor appear to an action ſued againſt them all, or plead a Plea to it; this for the moſt part ſhall be ſaid to be the appearance and plea of them all, and ſhall bind the reſt. Goldsb. 141. Pl. 54. Coo. 9. 38. Dyer 1210.

If two Executors ſue together, and one of them is ſummoned and ſevered; in this caſe he that is ſummoned may before Judgement releaſe the duty, but if the other proſecute to Judgement firſt, and then he that is ſevered acknowledge ſatisfaction, this will not benefit the defendant, nor barr the reſt that are plaintiffs in the Judgement. And if 3 executors ſue, and 2 are ſummoned and ſevered, and the 3 recover and dye; in this caſe the other two ſhall have Execution. Dyer 310.210.16 *H.*7.4. See more at Numb, 27. ſupra 1. Brown. 2 part 58.

31. What act one Executor may do to another, And what remedy or action one Executor or Adminiſtrator may have againſt another or not.

One Executor or adminiſtrator cannot give or ſell any of the Goods or chattels of the deceaſed to another Executor or Adminiſtrator; and therefore they may not make Diviſion of the goods amongſt themſelves; and regularly one of them cannot ſue another of them. And therefore if one keep, give, or ſell all the goods, releaſe debts, or the like, in the diſturbance of the Execution of the Will, or due Adminiſtration of the eſtate; it ſeems the other hath no remedy againſt him, except it be in the Caſe of Coven before; But if all the reſidue of the Goods and Chattels after Debts and Legacies paid be given to one of the Executors alone, and after the Debts and Legacies paid, the reſt do detain it or any part of it from him; in this caſe perhaps he may have ſome remedy againſt them. 27 *H.*8.21.6 *H.*7.5. Plow. 343. Fitz. Executors 6.

If the Debtor make his Creditor, and another his Executors, and the Creditor doth refuſe the Executorſhip, and the other doth accept it; in this caſe the creditor may ſue the Executor for this Debt: But if both prove the Will, and the Debtor die, the ſurviving coexecutor cannot ſue the Executor of the debtor for this debt. And if one make a woman and two others his Executors, and a creditor before ſhe doth accept of the Executorſhip doth marry her; in this caſe he may ſue the other Executors for this debt; but if ſhe have accepted of the Executorſhip firſt contra, 11 *H.*4.83.

32. Devaſtavit Quid What ſhall be ſaid a Devaſtavit and waſting of the goods of the deceaſed by an Executor, or adminiſtrator, and how he ſhall be charged thereupon.

A Devaſtavit or Waſte in an Executor or Adminiſtrator is, when he doth miſimploy the eſtate of the deceaſed, and miſdemean himſelf in the managing thereof againſt the truſt repoſed in him. And this may be done divers wayes, as

1. When the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth beſtow more upon the Funerals of the Deceaſed then is meet, having reſpect to his degree and Eſtate.

2. When he doth pay Legacies in money, or aſſent to Legacies given in other things before the debts are paid, and hath not enough beſides to pay the debts.

3. When he doth not pay the debts in that order & manner as is before ſet down, but doth pay them firſt he ſhould pay laſt, and he hath not enough to pay them all.

4. When he doth releaſe a debt or duty due to the Deceaſed before he doth receive it, or when the Goods of the Deceaſed being taken from him, he doth releaſe to him that doth take them the action whereby he may recover them.

5. When he doth ſell the Goods of the Deceaſed much under value, eſpecially if it be with covin, as to his near Friends, to his own uſe, to have money underhand, or the like, but otherwiſe to ſell them under value, eſpecially where he cannot conveniently make more of them, is no waſte. Plow. 543. Coo. 532. Doct. and St. 75 Perk. ſe. 488. 570 Kelw. 59.

All theſe and ſuch like acts as theſe are ſaid to be a waſte in an Executor or Adminiſtrator; and being diſcovered againſt him by the return of the Sheriff (or as ſome think by inqueſt of Office) it will produce this effect, to make the Executor or Adminiſtrator chargeable for ſo much as he hath miſimployed and waſted de bonis propriis, ſo that any creditor may charge him for the debt due to him from the Teſtator as for his own proper debt, and for ſo much the Execution ſhall be made againſt him upon his own body, Lands, and goods; And yet ſo, as one Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall not be charged for the Waſte of another; for if there be many Executors, and one of them doth onely commit the Waſte, he onely ſhall be puniſhed for this Waſte. Dyer 185. Coo. 5.32 Old B. of Entries 11. Dyer 210. Doct. & St. 78.

And the Executor or Adminiſtrator if he do commit a Waſte in the gift or ſale of goods, ſhall anſwer it alone; for he to whom the goods are given or ſold ſhall not be puniſhed for it, neither ſhall the executor or adminiſtrator of the Executor or adminiſtator be puniſhed for it after his death. And howſoever the Husband ſhall be charged in a Devaſtavit for the Waſt of himſelf or his Wife where ſhe is an Executrix whiles they both live together; yet if a Woman Executrix take a Husband, and during the marriage he or ſhe doth commit a Waſte, and after ſhe die; in this caſe it ſeems the Husband ſhall not be charged for the Waſte himſelf or his Wife did, Sed quære of this. For if a void adminiſtration be committed and the Adminiſtrator do waſte the goods, and after the Adminiſtration is committed to another; in this caſe the firſt Adminiſtrator may be charged by the creditors for the waſt done in his time. But an Executor or adminiſtrator may lawfully ſell or convert the goods of the deceaſed to his own uſe, ſo as he convert the money to the uſe of the deceaſed in payment of debts, or the like, and pay ſo much of his own money, as the goods ſo converted to his uſe are worth; and theſe acts are not eſteemed a waſt in him. Alſo he may ſell any ſpeciall Legacy that is given, and this is no waſt in him, howbeit it is a wrong to the Legatee if there be aſſets to pay Debts beſides. And when he hath enough to pay all the Debts and Legacies, then he may diſpoſe of the whole eſtate how he will without any prejudice to himſelf at all. See more Brownl. 1 part 24. 33. 116. 2. part 81.

An Executor of his own wrong is one that is neither lawfull Executor nor Adminiſtrator, and yet doth take upon him to do and act ſuch things as are onely fit for, and proper to an Executor or Adminiſtrator, as to take the goods of the deceaſed into his own poſſeſſion, give and ſell them, pay the Debts of the deceaſed therewith, releaſe the debts due to the deceaſed and the like. Terms of the Law, Kelw. 59. 93. Dyer 105. 157. 255. Coo. 5 32. Broo. Executor 162.

33. Executor of his own wrong who ſhall be ſaid to be ſo. And what act ſhall make him ſo to be accounted. And what act ſuch an executor may do, and how he ſhall be charged or not.

And a man may make himſelf ſuch an Executor by any ſuch intermedling with the office and work of an Executor as followeth; 1. By proving the Will with the money of the dead, but to prove another mans Will at my own charge, will no more make me chargeable, as Executor of mine own wrong, then to bury the deceaſed in a decent manner out of his own eſtate. 2. By a ſeiſing, gaining, keeping and uſing of the goods of the deceaſed as a mans own, eſpecially if he convert them to his own uſe, ſell or otherwiſe diſpoſe them, and every colour of Title will not help in this caſe, for if a man make a Deed of gift of all his goods and chattels to another, and dieth inteſtate, and this in truth is fraudulent and in truſt, and the Donee after the death of the Donor doth diſpoſe of theſe goods and Chattels, in this caſe and by this means, he ſhall be Executor of his own wrong. Goldsb. 116. pl. 12. Brownl. 1. part 103. 2. part 384. 185.

And yet if the Deed of gift be bona fide in ſatisfaction of a juſt debt, and the goods be no more then the Debt, it may be otherwiſe: but if the goods be much more then the debt, there it ſeems he ſhall be charged ſo for the overplus, and that whether he have them in poſſeſſion or not; and ſo was the opinion of Juſtice Jones, at Glouceſt. Aſſiſes. 9 Car. If the Ordinary grant Letters ad colligendum & vendendum the goods of the deceaſed that are like to periſh, and I. S. to whom the Letters are made, under colour thereof doth take and ſell the goods, hereby he may make himſelf chargeable as Executor of his own wrong: for the Ordinary hath no ſuch power himſelf, and therefore he may not give that power to another. If a man that is next of kin procure a beggar, or a ſtranger to take out an Adminiſtration, and then to make him a deed of gift of all the goods for a ſmall matter, he may be thus charged for the overplus of the worth of the goods more then he gave. So if a Debtor procure ſuch an adminiſtration to be taken out, and then get a Releaſe of his debt from the adminiſtrator, this may make him chargeable as Executor of his own wrong for ſo much as his debt doth come unto. Stat. 43. Eliz. cap. 8. Plich. 7 Ja. Co. B per ch. Juſtice.

And yet a man may take away his own goods that were in the hands of the deceaſed without danger. And every having and poſſeſſion of the goods of the deceaſed will not make a man executor of his own wrong: For if a man die in my houſe, and have goods there, and I keep them untill I can well be diſcharged of them, this will not make me chargeable, as executor of mine own wrong. Trin. 17 Jac. per chief Juſt.

So if I do onely lay up the goods of the deceaſed to preſerve them in ſafety for him that ſhall have right to them, this will make me no more chargeable then if I take an Inventory of all the goods of the deceaſed. Coo. 5. 34. Kelw. 63.

So if another man take the goods of the deceaſed and ſell them to me or give them to me, howſoever this will make him chargeable as executor of his own wrong, yet this will not make me chargeable ſo, neither will every diſpoſition of the goods of the deceaſed make a man executor of his own wrong, for if a man ſell ſome of the goods of the deceaſed (where there is need) to help forward a decent Funerall of the body of the deceaſed: this is no ſuch diſpoſition as to make a man chargeable thus. So if I deliver the wife of the deceaſed her neceſſary wearing apparrel, or if I be wife to the deceaſed and take it my ſelf. So where I take any of the deceaſeds goods into my hands by miſtake, ſuppoſing them to be mine own, or under colour of Title, as when I have a good deed of gift or ſale of them without any fraud or coven: or under a good authority, as when I take them upon a a Warrant from the Sheriffe that hath proceſſe out of the Exchequer to take them, or as a Treſpaſſor onely, as when I kill or otherwiſe abuſe the Cattel; ſuch an intermedling with the goods of the Deceaſed will not make a man chargeable as Executor of his own wrong, neither may I be ſo charged in theſe caſes. Kel. 63 52. 33 H. 6. 21. 32 H. 6. 6. Dyer 167, Coo. 5. 34. 20 Ed. 4 17. Fitz. Executor 122.

The Third way by which a man may make himſelf chargeable as Executor of his own wrong, is by delivering of the goods of the deceaſed to creditors in ſatisfaction of their Debts, or by ſelling any of the goods of the deceaſed to pay the Debts of the deceaſed, and paying the ſame with the money made thereof; but to pay the deceaſeds Debt with a mans own money will not make him chargeable ſo. See the caſes before.

The fourth way by which a man may make himſelf ſo chargeable, is by receiving any of the Debts due to the deceaſed. Dyer 166.

The fifth way by which a man may make himſelf chargeable ſo, is by releaſing any Debts or duties due to the deceaſed.

The ſixth way, by delivering any Legacies given by the deceaſed in kind, or by paying any Legacies, except it be with a mans own money. Dyer 166.

The ſeventh way, by taking a mans Legacy given to him before the Executor have accepted of the executorſhip and aſſented to the Legacy.

The eighth way, by ſuing as Executor to the deceaſed, for any debt due to the deceaſed.

And the ninth way by taking upon him to ſell the Lands of the Deceaſed as his Executor. In all theſe caſes, and by all theſe and ſuch like means, a man may make himſelf an executor of his own wrong: ſo that if an Executor after he hath legally waived the Executorſhip, or an adminiſtrator after his Adminiſtration is repealed and revoked, intermeddle with the eſtate in any ſuch manner, he may be charged as executor of his own wrong: and if a woman take more of her wearing apparell then is neceſſary and convenient for one of her rank and condition, without Legacy of the husband and licence of the executor, ſhe may be charged thus. Dyer 105. Dyer 166. 33 H. 6. 31.

And if a man under colour of an Adminiſtration that is not good, or of a Commiſſion ad colligendum bona defuncti that is not good, or of a Will when in truth there is none at all, or no good Will, do take upon him to intermeddle with the goods and to diſpoſe of the eſtate in manner as aforeſaid, by this means he may make himſelf chargeable thus. And in theſe Caſes, and by theſe means, ſuch perſons that do ſo intermeddle, do make themſelves to be accounted in Law Executors; but Executors by wrong onely and not Executors by right. And therefore ſuch perſons have not the favour nor power of lawfull Executors, as to bring any action for Debt due to the Deceaſed, to deduct and pay themſelves any Debt due to themſelves firſt of all, and to bar other Creditors, and the like. And for ſo much as they have ſo diſpoſed and miſ-imployed, and no more, they make themſelves chargeable to any Creditor or Legatee of the Deceaſed that ſhall ſue them as far forth as a lawfull executor is chargeable. Dyer 255. 166. Coo. 5. 34. 9. 39. Coo. 5. 34. Plow. 148. 145. 33 H. 6. 31. Dyer 210. Plow, 184. Coo. 5. 33.

And albeit, he that doth thus be a Creditor, yet this will not help him; for a Creditor may not enter upon the Goods of the Deceaſed, and pay himſelf firſt, and if hee do ſo, if there bee a lawfull Executor or adminiſtrator made he may ſue the Creditor; and if there be no Executor or Adminiſtrator made made, the Creditor may by this means make himſelf chargeable to other Creditors as Executor of his own wrong, for ſo much as he hath taken into his own hands: And then a man ſhall be charged the rather in theſe Caſes, and by this means when there is no Executor made; or if there be an Executor made, when he doth refuſe to take upon him the Executorſhip, nor any Adminiſtration granted; for when a man dyeth Inteſtate, and a ſtranger taketh and uſeth the goods of the deceaſed as his own, albeit he pay no Debt or Legacy, nor do any other act as Executor, yet when no other man taketh upon him the Adminiſtration, this intermedling ſhall make him chargeable as Executor of his own wrong; for in that caſe the Creditor hath no other remedy: But in caſe where there is an Executor made, and he doth prove the Teſtament, and doth take upon him the Adminiſtration of the goods, and then a ſtranger taketh out of the hands of this Executor, or getteth into his own hands all or ſome of the goods of the deceaſed, and uſeth them as his own; this will not make this ſtranger Executor of his own wrong, for now there is a lawfull Executor againſt whom the Creditor may have his remedy, and the Executor ſhall have his remedy for theſe goods againſt the ſtranger; for they are and ſhall be accounted Aſſets in the hands of the Executor ſtill, notwithſtanding the ſtranger hath the poſſeſſion of them: and yet in this caſe alſo where there is a rightfull Executor, if a ſtranger ſhall take the goods into his hands, claim to be Executor, pay debts and Legacies; and receive debts, and intermeddle as an Executor; in this caſe, perhaps, and by this expreſſe Adminiſtration as Executor, he may be charged as Executor of his own wrong, albeit there be a lawfull Executor: and if a man die inteſtate, and a ſtranger intermeddle with the eſtate as before, and then the Adminiſtration is granted to another; in this caſe the ſtranger may be charged by any creditor or Legatee as Executor of his own wrong for his intermedling before the Adminiſtration granted; for the rightfull Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall be charged with no more then what doth come into his hands. And if an Adminiſtration be granted afterwards to any one that hath ſo intermedled with the goods before; this will not purge the wrong done before; and therefore in this Caſe a Creditor may charge him as Executor of his own wrong, or as a lawfull Adminiſtrator at his election, Coo. 5. 33 Kelw. 59. Paſch. 39 Eliz. Coo. B. Bradbury verſus Reynolds. See more, Brownl. 1. part 103. 2. part 184, 185.

34. Adminiſtrator durante minori ætate, what he is and his power and when it ſhall end.

The Adminiſtrator, durante minori ætate, is a ſpeciall kind of Adminiſtrator, and is in caſe where an Infant under the age of 17 years (for at that age an Infant is capable of an Executorſhip) is made an Executor, and the adminiſtration of the goods (as the manner is in that caſe) is committed to one or more of the next friend or friends of the Infant during his minority, which is untill he be of the age of ſeventeen years; he that hath ſuch an Adminiſtration granted unto him is ſuch an Adminiſtrator. And he is ſometimes generall, i.e. when his adminiſtration is granted to him adopus & uuſm of the Infant onely. In the firſt caſe, he hath as large a power as another Adminiſtrator, and therefore he may aſſent to a Legacy, albeit there be not Aſſets to pay Debts; he may ſell any of the goods and chattels of the deceaſed, or give them away or the like, as another Adminiſtrator may do. Coo. 5. 29. 6. 27. 9. 27.

But in the laſt caſe it is otherwiſe; for ſuch a ſpeciall Adminiſtrator can do little more then the Ordinary himſelf, and therefore he may not ſell any of the goods or chattels of the deceaſed, except it be in caſe where they are like to periſh, for funerall expences, or for payment of Debts, nor may he aſſent to a Legacy where there is not Aſſets to pay Debts &c. And this adminiſtration is ipſo facto determined when the executor doth come to the age of ſeventeen years: And therefore if it be granted during the minority of four Executors, and one of them die, or come to the age of ſeventeen years, now is the Adminiſtration determined: And if the Executor be a woman and ſhe take a husband that is ſeventeen years of age or upwards; in this caſe it ſeems the Adminiſtration is determined: and therefore alſo it is, that if ſuch an Adminiſtration durante minori ætate be granted after the Executor is ſeventeen years of age, the Adminiſtration is void; See more of this Brownl. 1 part 31. 46, 47, 80. 101. 2. part 83. 148.

35. Where an Adminiſtration once committed by the Ordinary may be afterwards revoked; and what ſhall be ſaid a Revocation of ſuch an Adminiſtration, or not: and what acts done before ſhall ſtand in force, or not.

It hath been held that the Ordinary after he hath granted Adminiſtration of the Goods of a man Inteſtate to another, may afterwards without cauſe revoke the ſame and grant it to another, at his pleaſure: and that if the Ordinary grant letters of Adminiſtration to one, and after grant Letters of Adminiſtration to another, of the Goods of the ſame man, that hereby the ſecond Letters of Adminiſtration are Ipſo facto countermanded, albeit there be no words of Revocation in them. 4 *H.*7.14. *Lit.Broo.Sect.*330.34 *H.*6.14.Dyer 339.Broo.Adminiſtrator 7.

But it ſeems the Law is otherwiſe, and that after the Ordinary hath granted the Adminiſtration according to the charge and direction given him by the Statutes, that he cannot afterwards revoke it, and grant it to another without cauſe; i.e. unleſſe the firſt Adminiſtration be illegally granted, as when it is granted to a ſtranger, and not to the next of kin, or the like; or unleſſe the firſt Adminiſtrator cannot, or will not adminiſter; for in theſe caſes he may without doubt grant the Adminiſtration to another. And yet in theſe caſes where there is a former Adminiſtration granted regularly, all acts that the firſt Adminiſtrator doth lawfully execute and do as Adminiſtrator, as ſale of Goods, payment or receit of Debts, making Releaſes, and the like, are good, and ſhall bind the next and ſucceeding Adminiſtrator. And therefore, if the Ordinary after the death of a man Inteſtate, doth grant the Adminiſtration of his Goods to a ſtranger, and the next of kin doth ſue by Citation to have it repealed, and the firſt Adminiſtrator hanging that Suit in the Spirituall Court, doth ſell the Goods of purpoſe to defeat the ſecond Adminiſtration, and after the firſt Letters of Adminiſtration are revoked by ſentence, and the firſt ſentence annulled, and the Adminiſtration is committed to another; in this caſe the ſecond Adminiſtrator cannot recover theſe Goods or have any remedy for them. And yet perhaps if there be any fraud in the caſe, an Executor may have relief upon the Statute of 13 Eliz. But if the firſt Suit and ſentence be by appeal avoided, then all that the firſt Adminiſtrator doth is void, and the ſecond Adminiſtrator may recover the Goods notwithſtanding the ſale: And if the firſt Adminiſtration be upon condition, all the acts of the Adminiſtrator doth before the condition broken, are good; and therefore if he give or ſell the Goods, the ſubſequent Adminiſtrator cannot avoid it See the *Stat.*21 *H.*8.*c.*5.*Coo.*6.18.New Book of Entries 38.*Plow.*281.*Coo.*6.18,19.Dyer 339.*Coo.*6.19.

If a man dye Inteſtate, and have not Bona notabilia, and the Biſhop of the Dioceſſe grant Letters of Adminiſtration to one, and after the Arch-biſhop doth grant Letters of Adminiſtration to another; in this caſe the effect of the firſt Adminiſtration is ſuſpended untill the other be repealed and declared by ſentence to be void. If there be a Will, and it is concealed, and thereupon an Adminiſtration is granted, and after the Will is produced and proved; in this caſe the Adminiſtration is Ipſo facto determined, and all the acts the Adminiſtrator hath done ab initio, are become void. 36 What Acts done by one Executor or Adminiſtrator, may be avoided by the ſubſequent Executor or Adminiſtrator, and what not.

If a Will be made by an Ideot, and an Executor appointed therein, and the Executor take upon him the Adminiſtration, and after the Will is avoided for the weakneſſe of the Teſtator; in this caſe it ſeems that all the Acts the Executor doth before the avoidance of the Will are good and not to be avoided by the Adminiſtrator. Dyer.

If there be a Will made, and an Executor appointed, and the Ordinary cite the Executor to come in, and prove the Will, and he doth not come, and thereupon the Ordinary doth grant the Adminiſtration to another; in this caſe all acts done by the Adminiſtrator are good, and ſhall bind the Executor, if he may, and ſhall afterwards take upon him the Executorſhip. But otherwiſe it is where the Ordinary doth grant the Adminiſtration before the Executor be cited to appear, or before the time given him to take upon him the Adminiſtration; for in this caſe, nothing that he doth ſhall bind the Executor. 3 *H.*7.14.

When there is an Adminiſtration granted, and it is afterwards upon a Suit by condition only repealed; in this caſe all acts done by the firſt Adminiſtrator are good and ſhall bind the ſubſequent Adminiſtrator. *Coo.*6.18,19.*Plow.*282. Coo. 8. 143.139.

But

But in caſe where the firſt Adminiſtration is upon a Suit by appeal by ſentence annihilated and declared void, there all acts done by the firſt Adminiſtrator are void, and ſhall not bind the ſubſequent Adminiſtrator: And therefore if the Ordinary of the Dioceſſe grant an Adminiſtration that doth belong to the Metropolitan to grant (in which caſe the Adminiſtration is void) all acts done by the Adminiſtrator are void, and may be avoided by the ſucceeding Adminiſtrator. But when the Adminiſtration doth belong to the Ordinary of the Dioceſſe to grant, and the Metropolitan doth grant it (in which caſe it is only voidable) in that caſe, all acts upon and by vertue of the firſt Adminiſtration before the ſecond Adminiſtration, are good.

If an Adminiſtration be granted to a ſtranger, and afterwards it is revoked and granted to the next of kin; in this caſe all lawfull acts done by the firſt Adminiſtrator before, and hanging the Suit, are good and unavoidable by the ſubſequent Adminiſtrator; and yet perhaps if the firſt Adminiſtrator waſte the Goods, it may be he may be charged for this by the ſubſequent Adminiſtrator, or by a Creditor. Wilſon verſus Packman. M. 37,38 Eliz B.R.

Where the Executor by the Will is not to adminiſter untill a certain time; in this caſe the Adminiſtration of all the Goods is to be granted untill that time; and all acts done by ſuch an Adminiſtrator before that time are good, and ſhall bind the Executor. So where an Executor is made, or an Adminiſtration is granted upon condition, which is after broken, ſo that the Executorſhip or Adminiſtration is determined; yet in this caſe all acts done by him before this time are good. Plow. 281,282. Coo. 6.19. 34 H.6.14.

If there be a falſe and a true Will, and the Executor of the falſe will prove this Will firſt, and afterwards the Executor of the true Will doth diſprove and avoid the firſt Will; in this caſe alſo he may avoid all acts the firſt Executor doth. 37. What ſhall be ſaid a good bar in Debt, or other Action brought by, or againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator, and what not.

The ſame Bars and Pleas regularly, that a man may have to actions brought by the Deceaſed himſelf in his life, a man may have to bar the action and Suit of his Executor or Adminiſtrator after his death. But an Executor or Adminiſtrator may have beſides the ſame Pleas and Bars to Actions the Deceaſed might have had, as Non eſt factum; Per Dureſſe, Non Aſſumpſit, and the like; divers other Pleas and Bars to Actions in reſpect of his Eſtate and condition as Executor or Adminiſtrator: For if he never meddle with the Goods and Chattels of the Deceaſed, and yet he be ſued as Executor or Adminiſtrator; he may plead Ne unque; i. e. he did never intermeddle as Executor or Adminiſtrator; and if this be found for him, this will bar the Plaintiff: And if he do intermeddle and take upon him the Adminiſtration, he may plead if the caſe be ſo, that he cannot recover the Goods of the Deceaſed; for he ſhall be charged for no more then what he can get in his poſſeſſion. Or he may plead that he hath fully adminiſtred all the Goods and Chattels of the Deceaſed, and hath nothing left to adminiſter; or he may plead, that he hath paid ſo much of his own money as the Goods in his hands do amount unto. Or if he be ſued for Debts due by Obligations, or ſuch like Eſpecialties entred into by the Deceaſed, he may plead that there are Debts due, and yet to pay on Judgments had againſt the Deceaſed, or that there are Debts due, and yet to pay on Recognizances or Statutes entred into by the Deceaſed, and that he hath no more then enough to ſatisfie them: Or he may plead that there are Judgments had againſt him for other Debts of the Deceaſed in equall degree with the Debt ſued for, and that he has no more then enough to diſcharge them: ſo as theſe former Debts, on, and for which theſe Judgments were had and Statutes given, be bona fide due, and the Judgments, Recognizances, and Statutes in truth continued for the ſame; for if there be any fraud in the caſe, viz. that either the Judgments, Recognizances, or Statutes, were at firſt entred into, or are afterwards continued of purpoſe to deceive or delay others of their due Debts, when either the Debt is ſatisfied, or compounded for leſſe, or the like; in theſe caſes, this Plea will not ſerve; but in this matter being diſcloſed, by the Plaintiffs pleading he will avoid it. Coo. 5. 33. Dyer 30.80. Coo. 8 132.134.21 *H.*6. 19. Dyer 2. 27 *H.*8.6. Coo. 9. 108. 2 H. 4. 21. Brownl. 2. part. 118,19.

And

And if he be ſued for a Debt due upon a ſimple Contract or promiſe of the Teſtator, he may plead there are Debts to pay due by Obligations and other Eſpecialties entred into by the Deceaſed, and that he hath no more then enough to ſatiſfie thoſe Debts, and this will bar the Plaintiff in his action: And therefore if an Executor or Adminiſtrator plead a Judgment in Bar of an action of Debt upon an Obligation, he muſt ſhew alſo that the Suit whereupon the Judgment was had, was upon an Obligation; for if it were on a ſimple Contract, it is no Bar. And if the Executor be ſued for Debt on an Obligation, he may plead he made voluntary payment of other Debts due upon Obligations, or gave new ſecurity for them in his own name before the Suit began, and that he hath no more then enough to ſatisfie them. But to plead ſuch a voluntary payment or giving of new ſecurity after Suits begun upon this Obligation now in Suit is no good Plea.

If an Action be brought againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator upon an Eſpecialty for money, it is no good Plea in Bar of this action to plead a Statute or Recognizance with Defeaſance to perform Covenants when there is no Covenant broken.

If a Suit be againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator for a Legacy, it ſeems it is no good Plea to plead a Bond with Condition for performance of Covenants, or for the doing of any other collaterall thing that is contingent only, and not yet broken. It is no good Plea in an action for an Executor or Adminiſtrator to ſay, that the Deceaſed was Out-lawed. 38. Where and in what caſe an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall be charged by his own act or pleading upon his owne Goods, and where execution ſhall be de bonis propriis & where not.

An Executor or Adminiſtrator may make himſelf chargable of his own Goods, either by omiſſion, as when he being ſued upon an Obligation, or the like, and there is a Judgment againſt him or the Deceaſed in force, and he hath but enough to ſatisfie that Judgment, and he doth not plead this in Bar of the preſent action, but doth ſuffer the Plaintiff to recover againſt him; in this caſe he muſt ſatisfie this ſecond Debt out of his own Eſtate; or by Commiſſion, and that either by doing, as when he doth any act that is a waſte in him, and thereupon a Devaſtavit is returned againſt him, for in this caſe he muſt anſwer ſo much as he hath waſted out of his own Eſtate; or by ſaying, as when a Suit is againſt, and he doth plead ſuch a falſe Plea therein as doth tend to the perpetuall Bar of the Plaintiff in the action, and yet it is of a thing that doth lye within his perfect knowledge, as when he doth plead he is not Executor, nor did ever adminiſter as Executor, and upon tryall of this Iſſue againſt him it be found he is a rightfull or wrongfull Executor; in this caſe he muſt ſatisfie this Debt out of his own Eſtate whether he have aſſets or not, and the Execution had upon the Judgment had in this Suit ſhall be De bonis propriis. 2 H. 6. 12. Dyer 185. 80. Coc. 9. 90. 94. 9 H. 6. 57. 34 H. 6. 45. Broo. Executor 141. 105. Lit. Broo. Sect. 29 Kelw. 61. Broo. Executors 164.

And if an Executor or Adminiſtrator be ſued, and he plead to the action plenè adminiſtravit, and upon tryall it is found againſt him; in this caſe if he have any of the Goods of the Deceaſed left in his hand, the execution ſhall be of them, but if he have none of the Goods of the Deceaſed left, the execution ſhall be, and he ſhall be charged for ſo much as is found to be in his hands de bonis propriis.

But where he is ſued upon a promiſe made by the Teſtator, and he plead non aſſumpſit to it; and where he ſued upon a Deed made by the Teſtator, and he plead non eſt factum to it, or the like; and theſe Iſſues upon tryall are found againſt him: or when he ſhall confeſſe the action, or ſuffer a Judgment to go by default againſt him, or plead any vaine Plea; in all theſe caſes he ſhall not be chargable of his own Eſtate, neither ſhall the Judgment and Execution in theſe caſes be de bonis propriis, but de bonis Teſtatoris only for the Debt, and de bonis propriis for the Coſts: And yet if an Executor or Adminiſtrator ſhall entreat a Creditor to forbeare his Debt untill a day, and then promiſe to pay him, by this promiſe he hath made himſelfe chargable as for his owne Debt, howbeit it ſhall be allowed him upon his Account.

But in all theſe caſes, and ſuch like, where a man ſhall be charged of his own Eſtate, and the execution ſhall be de bonis propriis, it ſeems the Judgment is alwaies de bonis Teſtatoris, and the courſe is this, the firſt Execution is againſt the Executor de bonis Teſtatoris, and not de bonis propriis: And after a Devaſtavit returned by the Sheriff againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator, and not before, a new Execution is directed to the Sheriff to levy the Debt de bonis Teſtatoris; and if there be none of them to be found in his hands, then to levy them de bonis propriis.

And therefore if an Executor or Adminiſtrator be ſued by a Creditor, and the Executor or Adminiſtrator plead a Plenè adminiſtravit generally, or plead ſpecially that he hath no more but to ſatisfie a Judgment or the like, and upon tryall this Iſſue is found againſt him, and it is found he hath in all or part enough to ſatisfie the Debt; in theſe caſes the Judgment is de bonis Teſtatoris, and thereupon an Execution is (as in other caſes) to levy the Debt de bonis Teſtatoris in the hands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator, and for the Coſts de bonis propriis. And upon the return of the Sheriff a ſpeciall Execution doth iſſue forth to levy the money de bonis Teſtatoris: Et ſi conſtare poterit, that he hath waſted the Goods, then that he ſhall make the Execution de bonis propriis. And hereupon alſo the Plaintiff may if he will have a Capias againſt the body, or an Elegit againſt the Lands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator, and no other courſe of proceeding can or may be had againſt the Executor or Adminiſtrator in this caſe. Atworths caſe, Mich 38,39 Eliz. 34 H. 6.45.46 *Ed.*3.9. *Fitz. Aſſets, Quid.

Aſſets in this caſe is ſaid to be where one dieth indebted, and maketh his Executor, or dieth inteſtate, and the Executor or Adminiſtrator hath ſufficient in Goods or Chattels, or other profits to pay the Debts or ſome part thereof; this is ſaid aſſets in his hands; and for ſo much he ſhall be be charged. *Termes of the Law. Coo. ſuper Lit.*374.

37 What ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in the hands of an Executor or Adminiſtrator to charge him or not.

All thoſe Goods, and Chattels, Actions, and Commodities which were the Deceaſeds in right of action or poſſeſſion as his own, and ſo continued to the time of his death, and which after his death the Executor or Adminiſtrator doth get into his hands, as duly belonging to him in the right of his Executorſhip and Adminiſtration, and all ſuch things as do come to the Executor and Adminiſtrator in liew or by reaſon of that, and nothing elſe ſhall be ſaid to be aſſets in the hands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator to make him chargable to a Creditor or Legatee. And herein theſe things are to be known.

1. That Aſſets in the hands of one of the Executors ſhall be ſaid to be aſſets in the hands of all the Executors. *Kelw.*51.

2. That Aſſets in any part of the World ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in every part of the World: and therefore if that point be in iſſue, and it appear that there is Aſſets in the hands of any one of the Executors, or in any County or place whatſoever, the Jury muſt find that there is Aſſets. *Coo.*6.47.

3. All Goods and Chattels of what nature or kind whatſoever that are valuable, as Oxen, Kine, Corne, &c. ſhall be eſteemed Aſſets. But ſuch things as are not valuable, as a Preſentation to a Church, and the like, ſhall not be accounted Aſſets. *Coo ſuper Lit.*388.

4. All the Goods and Chattels that come to the Executor or Adminiſtrator in the right of their Executorſhip or Adminiſtration, and that there are by Law given to them by vertue thereof in the right of the Deceaſed (for which, ſee before before at Numb. 25.) and which are in poſſeſſion ſhall be eſteemed Aſſets in his hands. And therefore if a Feoffment be made to the uſe of the Feoffor for life, and after to the uſe of his Executors and Aſſignes for twenty years; in this caſe it ſeems this twenty years ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in the hands of the Executor of the Feoffor. And Goods pledged to the Deceaſed and not redeemed, or the money wherewith it is redeemed, when it is redeemed, ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in the hands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator. And if the Deceaſed doth appoint that the Executors ſhall ſell his Land to pay his Debts, the money that is made of the Land when it is ſold, ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in his hands. *Coo.ſuper Lit.*388.5.34. Dyer 362. *Kelw.*63.*Coo.ſuper Lit.*54.Dyer 362.20 *H.*7.4.Broo. Aſſets 12. See before Numb.

5. All the Goods and Chattels in action or in poſſibility at the time of the death of the Deceaſed that are afterwards recovered, and are gotten in poſſeſſion into the hands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator when they are ſo recovered, are eſteemed Aſſets in his hands. But they are never accounted Aſſets untill they are recovered and come in poſſeſſion; and therefore if there be Debts owing to the Deceaſed upon Statutes or Obligations, or otherwiſe, theſe are never eſteemed Aſſets in the hands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator untill he hath recovered them. Coo. ſuper Lit. 124,5.31.Broo. Aſſets 24. Dyer 264.121. 2 *H.*4.21. Coo 6.58 *Kelw.*63. Dyer 362.

So likewiſe if there be debt or damages recovered by a Judgment had by the Deceaſed, but no execution is done untill execution be made; this ſhall not be eſteemed Aſſets in the hands of the Executor or Adminiſtrator.

So if the Executor bring an action of Treſpaſſe againſt another De bonis aſportatis in vita Teſtatoris, and he have a Judgment for damages; in this caſe untill he hath recovered it by execution, it ſhall not be eſteemed Aſſets in his hands. And if the Judgment be erroneous, and the execution avoidable; in this caſe albeit it be recovered and gotten in poſſeſſion, yet it ſhall not be eſteemed Aſſets. And therefore if one ſue another and recover againſt him as Adminiſtrator of I. S. and after a Teſtament made by I. S. is produced and proved, and thereby an Executor is made; in this caſe the money recovered by the Adminiſtrator ſhall not be ſaid to be Aſſets in his hands as to any of the Creditors, becauſe the Executor may recover it from him, or the Debtor will have it again. And if the Executor or Adminiſtrator do never recover and get the thing into his poſſeſſion, he ſhall never be charged, eſpecially there where he hath done his beſt to get it and cannot. If one covenant to make a Leaſe for years to the Deceaſed his Executors or Adminiſtrators, and after his death the Leaſe is made to the Executor or Adminiſtrator accordingly; in this caſe this Leaſe ſhall be ſaid to be Aſſets in his hands, and he ſhall be chargable for ſo much to any Creditor. And whatſoever the Executor or Adminiſtrator muſt be forced to ſue for by the name of Executor or Adminiſtrator being recovered, ſhall be eſteemed Aſſets in his hands. *Curia Mich.*13.B.R. Coo. 1. 98.*Plow.*84.292.*Coo.*5.34.

6. Albeit the thing be extinct and gone as to the Executor and Adminiſtrator himſelf, yet it may have his being and be accounted Aſſets as to the Creditors and Legatees. And therefore if an Executor or an Adminiſtrator have a Leaſe for years of Land in the right of the Deceaſed, and afterwards he doth purchaſe the Fee-ſimple of the Land (whereby the Leaſe is drowned) yet in this caſe this Leaſe ſhall continue to be Aſſets as to the Creditors and Legatees ſtill. *Coo.*1.87. *Broo. Leaſes.*63.

And if the Debtee make the Debtor his Executor, or the Debtee dye Inteſtate, and the Adminiſtration is committed to the Debtor; in theſe caſes this Debt ſhall be ſaid to continue, and ſhall be eſteemed Aſſets for ſo much as to other Creditors. And if a Woman Executrix have Goods worth twenty pounds, and ſhe marry with one of the Creditors to whom twenty pounds is owing; in this caſe it ſeems the Husband may not retain the Goods to pay himſelf, but they ſhall be Aſſets to other Creditors. And yet if the Debtor make the Debtee his Executor, he may retain ſo much as to ſatisfie his own Debt, and that he doth ſo retain ſhall not be ſaid to be Aſſets in his hands as to any other Creditor.

And

And if I. S. have goods to the value of 20l. and he is bound to B. and C. in 20l. a peece, and he dieth inteſtate, and after D. doth adminiſter, and then B. dyeth and maketh D. his executor; in this caſe D. may retain this to ſatisfie his own debt, and it ſhall not be ſaid to be aſſets in his hands as to any other. Barnets caſe, Hill. 8. Jac. Flow: 184.

7. The goods and chattels of other men in the hands of the executor or adminiſtrator that were in poſſeſſion of the deceaſed, if he had no right to them, or if he had, and they do not belong to the executors, will not make the executor or adminiſtrator chargable; for theſe ſhall not bee eſteemed aſſets in his hands. And therefore if the goods of another man be amongſt the goods of the deceaſed, and theſe come all together into the hands of the executor or adminiſtrator; theſe goods that are the goods of another ſhall not be ſaid to be aſſets in the hands of the executor or adminiſtrator. And if the executor doth receive a rent that doth belong to the heir, this rent ſhall not be ſaid to be aſſets in his hands: and hence it is that if the deceaſed were outlawed at the time of his death, that his goods and chattels are not no be accounted aſſets, for they are none of his. Kelw. 63. Co. 6. 58. Dier. 362. Doct. & St. lib. 2: cap. 3.

8. If an executor of his own wrong, to whom 20l. is owing, doth enter upon ſo much of the goods of the deceaſed as is worth 20l. intending to pay himſelf; this ſhall be eſteemed aſſets in his hands to make him chargable for ſo much to any Creditor or Legatee. Co. 5. 30. Dier 2.

9. If the deceaſed have goods worth 20l. and owe 20l. to A. and 10l. to B. and he compound with A. for 10l. in this caſe he ſhall be ſaid to have aſſets, and be charged to pay the debt of B. alſo. 27 H. 8. 6.

10. If a man have a Leaſe for years worth 20l. per annum at the rent of 5l. and he die; in this caſe not the whole value of the land, but ſo much as is above the rent ſhall be ſaid to be aſſets in the hands of the executor or adminiſtrator. See more in Brownlows: Rep. 1. parte 33: 76. 2 part. 47.

If an executor have goods of 20l. value, and he take up an obligation of the teſtators of 20l. and pay the money; now the property of this is in him, and this is not aſſets to any other. So if he give his owne body, or another for him to the creditor of the Teſtator for 20l. But a promiſe to pay the 20l. will not diſcharge the Aſſets, Goldsb. 79. Pl. 15. If one deviſe his land to his Executors for years, this is Aſſets in their hands. But if he deviſe that they ſhall ſell his land; it is not aſſets till it be ſold, and the money received for it ſhall be Aſſets. Brownl. 2 part. 47.

The Probate of a Teſtament is the producting and inſinuating of it before the Eccleſiaſticall Iudge, Ordinary of the place where the party dyeth, or other that hath power to take the ſame. And this is done in two ſorts, either in common Form, i. e. upon the oath of the executor or party exhibiting it upon his credulity that the Will exhibited is the laſt will and Teſtament of the party deceaſed, which is the ordinary courſe; and this the Ordinary may accept if he will. Or per teſtes, i. e. Which is when over and beſides his oath he doth alſo produce witneſſes or maketh other proof to confirm the ſame, and that in the preſence of ſuch as may pretend any intereſt in the goods of the deceaſed, or at the leaſt in their abſence after they have been lawfully ſummoned to ſee ſuch a Will proved if they think good. And this courſe is uſed only where there is a ſuſpition of the Will, and the Caveat is entred, or where there is a feare of contention and ſtrife between the kindred & friends of the party deceaſed about his goods; for a Will proved in common form may be called into queſtion at any time thirty years after; and when the Will is thus exhibited into the Biſhops Court, the ſame is to be kept by his Officers, and the Copy thereof in parchment under the Biſhops Seale of his office to be certified and delivered, which parchment ſo ſealed is called the will proved. Swinb. 261. 264.

40. Probate Quid. Quotuplex.

41. Where the Probate of a Will is neceſſary, and by what Executor; & by and before whom.

The probate of the will (as having reſpect to the goods and chattels) is in ſome reſpect neceſſary; for howſoever as touching any free hold of lands deviſed it is not all material, and howſoever the Executor before Probate may receive and releaſe debts and do moſt other acts as Executor, yet he cannot ſue for any debt due to the Teſtator. Co. ſuper Litt. 292. Perk. Sect. 481.

And in what time it muſt be proved,

And if the Executor delay the Probate, the ordinary may by proceſs compell him to come in and accept or refuſe of the Executorſhip. And when it is proved it muſt be proved by the Executors or one of them at leaſt; and if all the goods of the deceaſed be within the ſame Dioceſs wherein he lived and dyed, the Executor muſt prove it before the ordinary of the Dioceſs, or before his lawfull Commiſſary or Deputy, or before the Archdeacon or his deputy or Commiſſary (as their compoſition is) or if the goods be in a Peculiar, then before him that is Iudge of that Peculiar; or if the goods be within two Peculiars then before the Ordinary of the Dioceſs wherein theſe two Peculiars lye. But if there be bona notabilia in the caſe, viz. that the Teſtator have goods or chattels at the time of his death of the value of 5l. or more lying in two or more Counties, or have good debts upon Eſpecialties (as ſome ſay) for otherwiſe they follow the perſon; or have any (Eſpecialties as other ſay) lying in other Counties for debt, ſo that there be of goods and chattels or good debts to the value of 5l. in any other Dioceſs then that wherein the Teſtator led his life and dyed, then the Probate doth belong to the Arch-biſhop of that Dioceſs wherein it is, unleſs the Ordinary of the ſame dioceſs have the Probate by compoſition between him and the Metropolitan; for otherwiſe there muſt be ſeverall Probates for the goods in every Dioceſs (as anciently was uſed in theſe caſes.) But if a man dye in his journey in another Dioceſs, and have more then 5l. goods about him, this ſhall not be ſaid to be bona notabila, but the Will may be proved before the Ordinary of the place where the deceaſed lived and his Eſtate doth lie. And except it be in caſes where men have bona notabilia, the Officers of the Courts of the Metropolitans are not to cite men out of their own Dioceſs; and to diſcover this matrer, it is the duty of the Ordinary of the Dioceſs, when any man comes to prove a Will, to give him an Oath, and examine him whether he know of, or doe believe, there are any goods to the value of 5l. lying in any other Dioceſs at the time of the Teſtators death, and if he hear of any to diſmiſs them to the Prerogative Court, and to give them notice of it. Alſo in ſome places, the Lords of mannors have the probate of all the Wills within their Mannor by cuſtome of the place; and in thoſe places it muſt be proved there, and not elſewhere. And when an Executor is bound to prove the Will before the ordinary as before, the ordinary may give him what time to doe it he doth think fit, and when he doth prove it, the Ordinary doth take an Oath of him to adminiſter the goods faithfully, and to take bond of him alſo if he pleaſe; but this ſome doe omit. CHAP. CLVII.

Of a Parſon and Vicar, his Parſonage or Vicarage, and the Profits belonging to them. Of Tithes, and their Kindes. Of the nature of Tithes, and how they are grantable. Who muſt pay Tithes at this day, and to whom, and who are capable of receiving and retaining of Tithes, and by what Title, and how. Of what things Tithe is to be paid, and of what not, and out of what Land, and how. When, where, and how Tithes payable muſt be paid and ſet forth, and when the Parſon, &c. may take them? Who muſt pay Tithe that is to be paid, and may be ſued for it? And to whom the Tithe muſt be paid? Which way the Owner of Tithes, and ſuch like things, may recover them being detained. In what caſe, and how a perſon or place may be quit and diſcharged of Tithes; and what ſhall be a good diſcharge, or not? Of other Profits which the Parſon and Vicar doth claim. What Tithes the Parſon, and what the Vicar ſhall have.

Of a Parſon and Vicar, his Parſonage or Vicarage, and the Profits belonging to them.

THe Parſon at firſt was he that had the Charge of a Pariſh Church, and was called the Rector of a Church; but he is moſt properly ſo called, that hath a Parſonage where there is a Vicarage endowed.

The Vicarage is a certain Portion of the Parſonage allowed to the Vicar for his Maintenance. And this Portion in ſome places is a ſum of money certain: In other places it is a part of the Tithes in kinde, and commonly the ſmaller Tithes; but in ſome few places the Vicar hath part of the great Tithes alſo: And he that hath the right to, and poſſeſſion of this, is called the Vicar; and he that hath the other part is called the Parſon, who in ſome Pariſhes is the Miniſter of the place, one they call a Clergy-man or Miniſter; and in other places he is a Lay-man, where it is an Impropriation.

The Profits and Fruits of a Parſonage or Vicarage, belonging to the Parſon or Vicar, are his Glebe Land, (if there be any) Oblations, Obventions, Offerings and Tithes.

The Glebe is that Portion of Land, Meadow, or Paſture, that is belonging to, and parcel of the Parſonage or Vicarage, over and above the Tithes.

Oblations, Obventions and Offerings ſeem to be but one thing, and that which was called meerly Spiritual. The Oblations were ſaid to be ſuch things Real or Perſonal as were offered to God and his Church, by Teſtament or otherwiſe; and Obventions did include Oblations, and other things now unknown and loſt amongſt us; and of this nature it ſeems the Mortuary is: And the other Profits are the Tithes.

Of Tithes, and their kinds

What they are.

Tithes are a certain part of the fruit or Lawful increaſe of the earth, Beaſts, or mens labours, which in moſt places, and of moſt things is the tenth part, and hath been by the Law given to the Miniſters of the Goſpel, in recompence of their labour in the execution of their Office.

Their kinds.

There are three ſorts of Tithes. Some of them are Predial, that is, ſuch as come in, and ariſe yearly of the fruit and profit of the earth; ſuch as are Wood, Corn, Grain, Hay, the ſeed of Rape, Parſley, Hops, Saffron, Wood, Flax, Hemp, darnel or cockle, Fenel, Anniſe, and the like. Such are the fruits of Trees, as Apples, Pears, Plums, Nuts, Cherries, Wardens, Grapes, Maſt, Acornes, and the like. Such alſo (as it ſeems,) are Herbs, as Rue, Sage, Mint, and the like.

Some of them are Perſonal, and they are ſuch as ariſe and grow due by the profits that come by mans honeſt labour and induſtry in ſome perſonal work, Artifice or Negotiation, as by buying, ſelling, Merchandizing; or by the labour of handicrafts men, ſuch as are Carpenters, Maſons, Fiſhers, Fowlers, Hunters, and the like. So offerings are ſaid to be perſonall Tithes.

And ſome Tithes are ſaid to be mixt, ſuch are the profits of ſome things that ariſe partly from the labour and care of men; and partly from the earth where the things are fed, of this ſort are Cattle, as their young Calves, Lambs, Kids, Roes, the Wool of Sheep, Milk and Cheeſe of Cowes; ſo the Eggs and Chickens of Hens, Geeſe, Ducks, and Swans, and the like.

Amongſt Predial Tithes, ſome of them are ſaid to be greater, as Wood, Corn, Hay, and the like. And ſome of them are leſſor, as the Tithe of Herbs, Flax, Hemp, and the like. And all theſe of the one ſort and of the other, the diſpute is under the names of Tithes of Harveſt Fruits; of Woods felled, and preſerved to grow again; of Wood not in uſe nor apt for Timber, but for Fire; of Trees planted for fencing of Grounds, in Fields, Paſtures, and Hedggrowes; of Turves growing in fenniſh and mooriſh Grounds; of paſture ground, of Hay, of Wool, of Lambs, of Calves, of Pigs, of Colts, of Milk, of Cheeſe, of Fruits, of Trees, of Seeds, Hemp, Flax, onions, Rape, of Pot-Herbs; of Maſt of Beech or Oak, of Mills driven by wind or water, of Parks, Warrens, Pools, ponds, of Wild Beaſts under cuſtody, &c. of Dove-Cotes or Dove-Houſes, of Bees, of Fowlings, of Huntings, of Fiſhings, of Swans, of Geeſe, of Eggs, of Crafts and Manual occupations, of Trade by wares, Merchandize, &c. And about all theſe things eſpecially are all the Queſtions and caſes that follow concerning this ſubject.

Portion of Tithes what.

A portion of Tithes are Tithes that were at the firſt ſeparated and given by the Devotion of a Pariſhoner, and were not derived out of the Parſonage. And therefore cannot be ſwallowed up againe by the Parſonage, as a vicarage may be, but it will be diſtinct ſtill.

Of the nature of Tithes, and how they are grantable.

Tithes by our Law were accounted an Eccleſiaſtical Inheritance, and collateral to the ſtate of the Land out of which they come, which of common right are to be paid out of all lands, Meadowes and Paſtures, and which of their proper nature originally were due only to Eccleſiaſtical perſons by Eccleſiaſticall Law, and till they were ſevered, were eſteemed meerly Eccleſiaſtical: for the ſubſtraction whereof, no remedy wsa given by the Common Law. Neither can any unity of poſſeſſion extinguiſh or ſuſpend them, but they remain ſtill in eſſe, and might be demiſed or let to any ſpiritual perſon. And if a Parſon impropriate had infeoffed another of part of his Glebe, or had made a Leaſe of it to him, yet he ſhould have had Tithe thereof ſtill, ſo that a man might have had Tithe againſt his own Feoffment, for they were not claimed in reſpect of any ownerſhip in the Land, but ex debito, by the Law of God. So if a Parſon purchaſe Land within his Rectory. And after leaſe the Parſonage, the Leſſee ſhall have Tithe of this new purchaſed Land. And a Lay-man by the Common Law,

Law, could not have had an Inheritance deſcendable and grantable of Tithes as of other Temporal poſſeſſions, neither will they paſs by the ſame words in Grants as other Temporal poſſeſſions will do. And therefore if one grant a ground cum proficuis & commoditatibus eidem pertinentibus, the Tithes will not paſs by this. But now the Law is changed herein, for they and other Eccleſiaſtical Duties, eſpecially ſuch as came to the Crown by the ſtatutes of 27 H. 8. 31 H. 1. 1. Ed. 6. are by thoſe Statutes, and the Statutes of 32 *H.*8. and 1. & 2 Phil. & Mar. in the hands of Lay-men Temporal Inheritances, and are of the nature of other Land; it ſhall be accounted Aſſets in the hands of an Heir. The wife ſhal be endowed of it, the husband tenant by the courteſie for them: real actions may be brought, and they have all other incidents of Lay-Inheritances. Cook 11. 14. Dier. 43. Cook. 1. 3. Cook, upon Litt. 5. 159.

By way of agreement Tithes may paſs for years without deed, but not by way of leaſe without a deed. But a leaſe may be for one year of Tithes without deed. Hughes Rep. 354. See Grant.

Who muſt pay Tithes at this day, and to whom, and who are capable of receiving and retaining of Tithes, and by what Title, and how.

TIthes by the Common Law are due of common right out of all things; and every man at this day Alien and Denizen, is bound to pay the ſame, that cannot ſhew a ſpecial exemption and freedome, by compoſition, cuſtome, preſcription, or ſome act of Parliament. So the Kings have paid no Tithes ſometimes for their Lands in their own hands. So neither the Lord Protector nor his Patentees are to pay Tithe for ſome of their ancient Forreſts-Lands that lye in no Pariſh, or between to pariſhes; this is not to pay Tithe. And ſo the Vicar in ſome places doth pay no Tithe to the Parſon, ſo long as his Vicarage Land is occupied by himſelf. Cro. Jur. 60. Cook. 2 44. Broo. Diſmes. 10. And it is ſaid, if a Biſhop had held Land diſcharged of Tithe, and made Feoffment or Leaſe of it, that his Leſſee or Feoffee ſhall not pay for it. Cook. 2. 44.

And as to the perſons to whom, and capable of receipt of Tithe, albeit by the common Law anciently, no Lay-perſon was capable of them, ſave only by way of diſcharge; as where a Pariſhioner had compounded with the Vicar or Parſon for his owne Tithe, yet at this day any man may have them as other Lay-Inheritances; and Lay-men (as they call them) as well as clergy men, have them. And to make Clergy men capable of them, there were heretofore many things required, as Examination and Allowance by the Biſhop, ſubſcription to the Articles of Religion, Inſtitution and induction into the parſonage or Vicarage, to which the Tithes belong. But in theſe things the Lawes are changed at this day. And therefore it ſeems ſuch a perſon once capable of Tithes, cannot be made uncapable afterwards, as heretofore, unleſs it be where he hath one Benefice of 8*l.* a year, and he take another; for in this caſe it ſeems he ſhall loſe the firſt. But for this, ſee the Statutes of 21 H. 8 13. 28 H. 8. 13. Cook. 4 79. & 6. 20. Pluralitie.

A Parſon or Vicar may have Tithe out of his Pariſh, by a ſpecial Preſcription. Or he may preſcribe to have a ſum of Money for tithes within his Pariſh of any certain man there in lieu of Tithes. And another man alſo may have Title to a portion of Tithes by Preſcription. Bro. 85. Cook. 11. 19. Book of Entries. N. B. f. 9. Cook. 2. 45. Cook. 4. 49. And a man may have his own Tithe of the Parſon by agreement between them, for the Parſons life; or how they pleaſe. Preſcription.

Of what things Tithe is to be paid, and of what not, and out of what Land, and how.

FOr Anſwer to this Queſtion take theſe Generall rules 1. A man ſhall pay Tithes of his ground whether he doe manure it or not. 2. When a Parſon doth any thing which by Law he is not compellable to doe, which doth turne to the benefit of the Parſon, there he ſhall not have Tithes of the thing in liew whereof this is done:

March

32 H. 8 7. And ſo it is to be paid for, and out of all things within (not without) the Pariſh, that ariſe, grow, and happen from year to year by the Act of God alone, or by the Act of God and man together. But more particularly, all Lands are to pay Tithe of what nature ſoever it is, Errable Meadow, or Paſture.

Sect. 1. Of Trees and Woods.

All ſorts of Trees, but Timber Trees are to pay Tithe (that is) their tenth of increaſe, living or dead, uſed or ſold by the owner, for the body, Branches, Bark, Fruit, Root, and Branches that grow out of the Root. And within this Rule all Fruit-trees, as Apple-trees, Pear-trees, Nut-trees, Walnut-trees, and the like, are to yield the tenth of their increaſe of fruit yearly; and if they be cut down, the tenth of the body, whether ſold or kept; and if they be pared, the tenth of their parings, whether ſold or kept. So Tithe is to be paid of the fruit, body, bark and branches of all other Trees not apt to Timber, as Willows, Sallows, though they be above twenty years growth, or of any age whatſoever, and were never cut before. So alſo Tithe is to be paid of Silva cædua; that is, Under-woods, and Coppices felled and preſerved to grow again, and which by good Husbandry may grow again. And of all theſe things the Parſon is to have the tenth part, as the owner hath, and at the time when the owner doth receive his nine parts.

For Wood cut for his own uſe.

But of the Under-woods of Coppices, parings of Fruit-trees, or other Trees cut onely for Mounds, or for Plough-geer, for hedging and fencing of the Corn-fields or other grounds within the Pariſh, or for fuel for the maintenance of the Plough or Pale, no Tithe is to be paid for it, although the Vicar have the Tithe Wood, and the Parſon the Tithe of the places incloſed. Nor is Tithe to be paid of Under-woods, which are digged up by the Roots: Nor (as it ſeems) for the Wood of Coppices or Trees that a man doth cut or ſpend in his own houſe-keeping, though he ſpend much; by Hobbard Chief Juſtice. But if the Parſon can alledge a ſpecial cuſtome for it, he may have Tithe for this alſo, M. 4 Jac. B. R. March 58. pl. 89.

Timber.

But for Timber Trees, ſuch as are Oak, Aſh, and Elm, which are eſteemed Timber after they are twenty years old in all Countries; and Beech, Horſe-beech, Hornbeam, Maple, Aſpe, and Hazle, any of which may be, and are eſteemed Timber in ſome Countries, as the uſage of the Countrey, or the plenty or ſcarcity of other Timber there, is; for theſe, either living or dead, for their bodies, branches, bark, roots, or germines that grow out of them no Tithe is to be paid at all, in any caſe; but Tithe is to be paid for all this Timber-wood, if it be cut within twenty years after the firſt planting of it: No Tithe ſhall be paid of Aſpe in any Countrey, Brownl. 161.

For the opening whereof (in relation to Wood and Trees) further; theſe things are to be known.

1. If the Parſon have Tithe of the Fruit of a Tree, and the ſame year the owner doth fell the Tree, and make it into Billets or Faggots; in this caſe the Parſon ſhall not have Tithe for the Tree; for it is a Rule, That he muſt not have Tithe of one thing twice in one year. 2. Beech in a Countrey where there is abundance of it, is not to be accounted Timber, nor to be Tithe-free, 16 Jac. Co. B. Pinders caſe. 3. Cherry-trees in Buckinghamſhire have bin adjudged Timber and Tithe-free, Paſche, 17 Jac. B. R. 4. If a man lop a Tree under twenty years growth, and after ſuffer the body to grow paſt twenty years growth, and then lop it again; in this caſe no Tithe ſhall be paid for it, though it were not Tithe-free at the firſt cutting. Co. B. by the whole Court, Brownl. 1 part. 33. 5. If Wood be cut to make Hedges, which is not tithable, and there be a little remaining or left of it, no Tithe ſhall be paid for this remnant. 6. If Wood be cut down and imployed for Hop-poles, where the Parſon or Vicar hath Tithe Hops; in this caſe he ſhall not have Tithe of the Hop-poles. 7. If a great Wood doth conſiſt for the moſt part of Under-wood, which is tytheable, and ſome great Trees of Beeches or other Wood, grow ſcattering amongſt them; in this caſe Tithe may be paid, and muſt be, unleſs the uſage be otherwiſe of all both great and ſmall together. And ſo if a Wood do conſiſt for the moſt part of Timber-trees, and there is ſome ſmall parcel of Under-wood or Buſhes growing in the ſame Wood: No Tithe ſhall be paid for this Under-wood or Buſhes. Trin. 19. Jac. B. R. Adjudg. 16 Jac. in C. B. Leonards caſe. 8. No Tithe is to be paid of Common of Eſtovers, the Wood that he burns in his Houſe. For Wood cut for Houſe-houſe-boote hedg-boote, plough-boote cart-boote, and fire-boote. Goldsb. Pl. 93.

Sect. 2. Of Mines and Quarries.

No Tithes are to be paid of Mines or Quarries, Iron, braſs, Tin, Lead, Coals, Stone, Tile, Brick, Lime, Gravel, Marle, Chalk, Clay, and the like, which a man doth find and make in his own Land, for they are parcel of the inheritance, and the Parſon or Vicar hath tithe of the graſs and corn upon the ground; and it is a rule, the Land muſt not pay a double Tithe; and beſides it is not a yearly profit. Regiſter 51. Fitz. Nat Brev. 53. 9 Broo. Diſmes. 18.

Of Houſes.

No Tithes regularly are to be paid for houſes of habitation, nor of any rent, reſerved upon any demiſe of them, for tithes are to be paid of things that renew yearly by the Act of God.

But by a ſpecial cuſtome, , or by an act of Parliament, as in London, where the Parſons have 2s. 6d. out of every pound rent in lieu of Tithe, there it is good enough, Cook, 11. 16. Fitz. Nat. Brev. 53. 37 Hen. 8. Ch. 12

Of barren heath & waſt ground.

If any barren heath, or waſte ground, that is barren in his own Nature, and that cannot be fitted for husbandry without an extraordinary charge, although it may pay Tithe of wool, or Lamb, or other things, or the Tithe that it formerly paid, yet it ſhall pay no Tithe of corn for ſeven years after they have by their Husbandry improved it, and made it fit for tillage. But if a wood be grubbed up, and made fit to plough, this muſt pay Tithe preſently. So if it become barren by a ſudden accident, of inundation, or the like, or by being overgrowne with buſhes or the like, and it be reduced, this muſt pay Tithe preſently. M. 11. Jac. C. B. Sharringtons Caſe. Dier. 170. 2 Ed. 6. Ch. 13.

Of Mills:

Tithes are to be paid for all new Corn-mills, be they wind or water Mills; and for fulling, Paper, or Apple-mils that are common and publick mills; and whether they be driven by wind or water, ſome Tithe or other is to be paid for them. But for an old corn mill, that no tithe was ever paid for, no Tithe is to be paid, except perſonal tithe, as for a trade of profit, and ſo it will be for the other Mils. But ſee how it is to be paid Chap. 5. Sect. 1.

Of Turves.

Tithes are to be paid of turves that grow in fenniſh and mooriſh grounds, when they are uſed for firing

Of heath, furs, and broom.

Tithes ſhall be paid of heath, furrs and broom, unleſs the owner can preſcribe, or make good a ſpecial cuſtome of payment of milk and calves, &c. of the cattel kept upon the ground, M. 29 El. B. R. Adjudge.

Sect. 3. Of graſs, cut or eaten.

Tithe is to be paid of the graſs growing on the ground whether it be cut for hay or eat by cattle, to be ſet out according to the cuſtome of the place. And as to this kind of Tithe theſe things are to be known.

Rate-Tithe.

1. A Rate-Tithe is to be paid according to the cuſtome of the place for the feeding of Sheep and all other Cattel, (ſave only Oxen that labour, and the young cattel that are bred for Oxen or Cowes) as for horſes and Cattel that are fatted; for tithe muſt be paid for theſe, for the paſture and profit of the cattel, whether they go on the Common or elſewhere.

2. If two Pariſhes together have Common becauſe of vicinage, and the cattel of the one ſide do ſtray to the other ſide, and there abide; in this caſe no tithe ſhall bee paid for this to the Parſon of the pariſh where the Cattel do ſtray, but to the Parſon of the other pariſh. So if ſheep ſtray out of one into another pariſh, and there Eane, no tithe is to be paid for this to the Parſon of that place; but if they go there by the ſpace of one Month or more, for this a rate-tithe muſt be paid to that place where they are for a month together. And ſo in all caſes where ſheep go awhile in one, and another while in another pariſh. Trin. 7 Jac. B. R. Broo. Diſmes. 16.

3. If ſheep after they be ſhorn dye before Eaſter next following, it is ſaid no tithe ſhall be paid for their wooll unleſs the parſon or vicar that claimes it, can alledge a ſpeciall preſcription for it. So no tithes are to be paid of the pelts or fells of ſheep which die of the rot without a ſpecial preſcription for it. Trin. 3 Car. B. R. Aſhton's Caſe.

4. Tithe

Grounds let. 4. Tithe muſt be paid for all the grounds within the pariſh; and therefore if the grounds within the pariſh be let, or the herbage there be ſold to a ſtranger out of the pariſh, the Tithe muſt be paid to the Parſon, and that by the Owner of the Cattle, unleſs the courſe there be otherwiſe.

Agiſtment or tack of cattel. 5. It ſeems tithe is to be paid for the Agiſtment, that is, tacking in of cattel of ſtrangers in the pariſh. And that to be paid by the owner of the land that tack them in, and not by the owner of the cattel; for the Parſon may not know the owner of the cattel, 17. Jac. B. R. But if there be any cuſtome againſt it, this may prevent it, and make it payable by the ſtranger.

Horſes. 6. No tithe is to be paid for the herbage or feeding of riding horſes, that the Pariſhoner doth uſe for his own riding. And if a man let out his paſture Lands, reſerving the paſture for one horſe to ride about his own affairs, or for husbandry, no tithe ſhall be paid for the paſture for this horſe. But if a man keep or breed a horſe or horſes in his paſture to ſell them, there a tithe ſhall be paid for the horſes paſture. H. 15 Jac. B. R. Hides Caſe.

Plough cattel. 7. no tithe is to be paid for the graſs eaten by the working Oxen or Horſes about Husbandry, that are uſed in the pariſh about Husbandry. But if the Pariſhoner uſe them to other purpoſes within the pariſh, or for husbandry without the pariſh, it may be otherwiſe. M. 8. Jac. Co. B. in Baxters caſe.

Sect. 4. Cowes and barren cattel. 8. No tithe ſhall be paid for the feeding of Cowes that give Milk, nor for barren and dry cattel that are bred for the plough or paile, whether they feed in the incloſed or in the common grounds of the pariſh. But if a man keep cattel until they are ready for the pail or the plough, and then ſel them, and make profit of them, in this caſe he is to pay Tithe for them; for if the owner feed his ground with cattel that bring no profit to the Parſon, he muſt pay tithes for them. M. 8. Jac. Co. B. Baxters Caſe. Trin. 9 Jac. B. R. The whole Court.

Strangers renting within the pariſh. 9. If a ſtranger feed a ground within the pariſh with his cattel that do bring no profit to the Parſon or Vicar, he is to pay tithe for it. And therefore it ſeems reaſonable, that though it be his own ground that is the ſtranger, and he feed them with his own cattel that do work in another pariſh, that he ſhould pay as a ſtranger that doth rent a ground within the pariſh.

Eamouth or after-paſture. 10. No tithe is to be paid of the Eamouth or after-paſture, after the graſs is mowed and tithe hath been paid of it, unleſs by cuſtom there hath been more graſs left then is uſual. Nor is there any tithe to be paid for the herbage of the cattel that eat up the ſame graſs, unleſs there be ſome Fraud in the caſe. Paſch. 17. Jac. Co. B. Adjudg. M. 6 Jac. Co. B. Smiths Caſe.

11. No tithe is to be paid for the graſs or herbage of the ſtuds, or meers of ground at the lands end, and adjoining to the errable Land, where the land it ſelfe doth pay tithe.

And ſo if lands lye fallow every ſecond or third year, the owner ſhall pay no tithe for the paſture of this land, nor for feeding upon the ſtubble, albeit it bee fed with barren cattel. Paſch. 7. Jac. Co. B. Adjudg. And yet if he keep it lay beyond the courſe of Husbandry, in this caſe he is to pay tithe again.

Rakings of ſtubble. 12. No tithe is to be paid for the herbage of the ground whereon corn hath been ſowen that hath paid tithe, no more then for the rakings of the ſtubble, Paſch. 7. Jac. Co. B. Adjudg.

13. If a man bring in a flock of Sheep to dung the land, and they come by night only and lye there, no tithe is to be paid for this; but if they feed there half their time, they will be tytheable.

For the time when and how theſe tithes are to be paid and done, ſee in Chap. 5. Sect. 1.

Sect. 5. Of corn ſown. Tithes alſo are to be paid of all ſuch things as come in yearly by the bleſſing of God, and the induſtry of the party together. And therefore Tithes muſt be paid of all kind of corn ſowen upon the ground; as Wheat, Rye, Barly, Beans, Peaſe, and the like, to be ſet out after the cuſtome of the place. So alſo tithe muſt be paid of Plants, Herbs, and ſeeds of Woad, Saffron, Flax, Hemp, and the like. Brownl. 1 part. 149. Pl. 75.

And

And as to this, theſe things are to be known.

1. No Tithe is to be paid for the after-rakings, or ſtubble of corn, when Tithe hath been paid for the corn it ſelf, unleſs it be where there hath been fraud in cutting it over long.

2. No Tithe is to be paid for the courſe corn, as Vetches, Tares and the like, which is eaten up by the cattel that do the husbandry there, whether it be eaten green or ripe, or eaten upon the ground where it groweth or elſewhere, unleſs the Parſon have a ſpeciall cuſtom for it.

3. If corne be ſowed where woad was ſowen, or where other things grew, the tithe ſhall be paid of this, and in its own kind alſo. So if Woad or other things bee ſowed where corne had been ſowed, the owner of the Soile muſt pay his Tithe, and pay it in kind of that which groweth there, as he doth in the change of wheat, beans, barly, &c. Change of grain.

4. If the Soile of an Orchard be ſowen with any kind of grain, the parſon will have tithe of it; although hee have tithe of the fruit of the trees, for they are of ſeveral kinds.

Tithes alſo muſt be paid of the calves of Kine, Lambs of Sheep, young Pigs of Sowes, Colts of Mares, Kids of Goats, &c. Alſo of the Cheeſe and Milk of Cowes, Sheep, and Goats, and of the Wool of Sheep, & of the Eggs and young of Hens, geeſe, Ducks, &c. and of the Honey and Wax of Bees, and for dry Cattel, and fat Beaſts ſold and killed, and according to the courſe of the place. Sect. 9. Of cattel and fowle.

But for the further opening hereof theſe things are to bee knowne.

1. If the Pariſhioner have but nine Pigs, or ſix calves, the Parſon can have no tithe in kind that year, without a ſpecial cuſtome to warrant it, as in many places there is; for theſe things are intire, and not divideable as wool is. And therefore the Parſon muſt have his Tithe pro rata, either in money the ſame year, if there be any cuſtome for it, or in kind the next year, and ſo reckon both the years together. M. 7. Jac. Co. B. And if a pariſhioner have but one Cow, or milk his Cow every ſecond day; ſo that he can make no cheeſe, in this caſe the cuſtome of the place is to be obſerved, ſo that ſomething be paid; otherwiſe no cuſtom in this caſe will bind, ſo for calves, colts, and kids when they are under the number of Tithe in kind; and if there be no cuſtome in it, the Parſon muſt have the tenth when ever it comes.

2. It hath been ſaid that no tithe is to be paid for dry cattel bred for the plough or paile, unleſs they be ſold away before they be put to that uſe; for tithe muſt be paid for ſuch cattel, and for fatting cattel ſold or killed after the cuſtome of the place. M. 17. Jac. B. R. curia, M. 2 Jac. B. R. Webs Caſe. And though at firſt they were bread for the plough or pail, yet if after fatted and kild, or ſold, Tithe muſt be paid for them. M. 8. Caroli, by three Juſtices. Dry cattel.

3. Tithe muſt be paid of the locks and flocks of Wool, after the Wool made up, if they be more then ordinary, and left deceitfully, otherwiſe not. Locks of wool

4. Where ſheep be removed from one Pariſh to another, each Parſon muſt have pro rata, but under three dayes no rate is to be paid, as for example, If forty ſheep yeild eighty pound of Wooll, and theſe have been fed and lyen all the year in one place; in this caſe the parſon of that place muſt have all the tithe; if the ſheep were there but half the year, then he is to have but forty pound of the Wool; if three months only, then but twenty pound of the Wool; and ſo ratably for four or five months more or leſs. And the Parſon in whoſe Pariſh the ſheep lay and fed but one month he ſhall have only the tithe of the twelfth part of the Wool: and if the ſheep feed all the year in one pariſh, and lye in another pariſh, the tithe ſhall be devided betwixt the parſons. And if ſheep come from one place, and be ſhorne in a place where they were not before, it ſeems the tithe muſt be paid where the ſheering is, unleſs it appear to bee paid to the Parſon of the place from whence they came And ſo of the young of cattel, lambs, calves, pigs, colts and the like, where the dam was removed from one place to another, a rate tithe muſt be paid to the Parſon according to the times of their abode in the ſeveral places, from the times of their engendring by the month rate. Broo. Diſmes 16. Rate tithe for wool of ſheep, and of young cattel.

5. If any have cattel titheable feeding in any waſt place, not commonly knowne to be in any Pariſh, yet the tithe thereof is to be paid, and to be paid to the Parſon of the place where the owner of the cattel doth dwel.

6. When the tenth part of the milk is paid, there muſt be no tithe paid of the cheeſe which is made of the other nine parts of the milk. And ſo where tithe is paid for the cheeſe, no Tithe is paid for the milk.

No Tithe is to be paid for Cattel fed for the uſe of the houſe, but if he feed to ſel he muſt pay for them. Goldsb. 147. Pl. 66.

But ſee more of this, and when, and how this is to be paid and delivered in Chap. 5. Sect. 2.

Sect. 7. Of Parks, warrens, pools and Dove-houſes.

Some tithe is to be paid of Parks, Warrens, Pools, Ponds, and Dove-Houſes, and for Coneys, Pigeons, and Fiſh. And ſome would have Coneys in a Coniger, fiſh in a pond, or ſeveral fiſhing in the nature of Predial Tithes, and that the tenth of the profit is to be allowed.

But for the opening of this, take theſe things.

Coneys, Fiſh, Pigeons.

1. That where the things bring in a certain profit, and without much charge, as Coneys, fiſh, and Pigeons, there is great reaſon the Parſon or Vicar ſhould have the full tithe of them; and in theſe caſes a diviſion may be eaſily made. But Fiſh in a River are not titheable but by cuſtome.

2. the Pigeons are a ſenſible loſs to the Parſon in the deſtruction of Corn, and good reaſon then the Parſon ſhould have ſome profit by them.

3. In ſome caſes, as where Gentlemen have turned their fields into Conigers, and laid down their tillage, the loſs of the Parſon hath been notorious, and the caſe grievous hurtful to the Parſon and Commonwealth, profitable to none but the owner of the Land; theſe caſes deſerve no favour.

4. We conceive the Parſon will have no remedy in this caſe by Law; and that in all theſe caſes there is no thing to be had but what the cuſtom or uſage yeilds; for Dear and Coneys being wild, are not reckoned a mans own till they are catched. It is held for law, that Conies are not Titheable but by Cuſtome. And therefore where Parſons have ſued for them the Judges were wont to grant a prohibition: March. f. 56. Pl. 87. And a man is to pay Tithe of nothing whereof he hath not a property, except only the perſonal Tithe which is a ſmall matter. When Pheaſants Partriges, Swans and ſuch like wild things of profit become tame, it ſeems they muſt pay tithe, but not otherwiſe. And for ſuch things of pleaſure as are of no profit, as Hawks, Hounds, Apes, Thruſhes, Poppingjayes and the like, no Tithe ſhall be paid of theſe.

Feræ Naturæ.

Matters of pleaſure.

Perſonal tithe. Trades and labours.

Some Tithe hath been by uſage paid in the nature of perſonal Tithe for mens Trades and labours. So Fiſhers, Fowlers, Hawkers, and the like, not ſuch as Fiſh, Hunt, and Fowle for pleaſure, but ſuch as make a Trade of, and get by Fiſhing, Hunting, and Fowling, have paid. So Carpenters, Maſons, and all handicrafts men have paid; ſo Merchants, Mercers, Drapers, and all Tradeſmen; ſo men-ſervants and maid-ſervants have paid ſome ſmall matter in the nature of an offering, as the tenth of their clear gain once a year to the Parſon: and this to be paid ſtill according to the cuſtome of the place.

And for any other things or for things titheable out of any Land, which by the Lawes, by any Priviledg, Preſcription or compoſition ought to be diſcharged, no tithe is to be paid. But Cuſtome may make a thing Titheable that otherwiſe is not Titheable. March. 65.

See more of this, and how theſe Tithes ſhall be paid, Chap. 5. Sect. 3.

When, where, and how Tithes payable muſt be paid and ſet forth, and when the Parſon, &c. may take them?

FOR anſwer to this Queſtion in the general, the Law ſaith, that all Tithes and Church duties are to be yeilded and paid according to the uſage and cuſtome of the place where they are to be paid. Stat. 27. H. 8. 20. 32 H. 8. 7 And for predial Tithes, the tenth part of the profits are to be ſet forth and divided from the nine parts in the place where they grow, before the owner taketh away his part thereof: and the owner is to ſend to the Parſon, who is to ſend his ſervant when the tithe is to be ſevered, and ſee that it be juſtly done; and then the law doth give him a reaſonable time time to take it away. But the Parſon cannot Tithe himſelfe or take his owne Tithe without leave of the owner, and if he doe ſo, an Action of Treſpas will lye againſt him by the owner of the land. And if Tithe be once ſet out and divided, the Parſon not the Pariſhioner muſt look to it, for he muſt bear the loſs of it, if any come to it. And this ſetting out of the Tithe the Law ſaith muſt be effectual; and therefore if the owner ſet out his tithe, and then take it away again, this is not a good payment of his Tithe: and if the owner ſell the whole to another before the tithe be ſet out, with an agreement to deceive the Parſon; this is fraud, and not allowed for a good payment in Law. And this muſt be heeded as to the manner of Tithing, that the cuſtom of the place is to be obſerved; for in ſome places the cuſtome is to leave the Tithe in graſs in ſwathes, in other places in windrowes, in other places in graſs-cocks, in other places in hay-cocks, and either way it is good. So for the time when, and place where, the cuſtome of the place muſt be followed, but the parſon ſhall have reaſonable time to take it away. Broo. Treſpaſs 125. Cook. 2 Part Inſtit. 610. Brownl 2 part. 9.

To give to the Parſon the Tenth Acre of wood in a Coppice, or the tenth coard (if the coards be equal) is a good payment and ſetting forth of this Tithe, eſpecially if it be the cuſtome of Tithing wood in the Countrey. Of trees and wood.

The Tithe of the Maſt of Oak and Beech, if it be ſold, muſt be anſwered by the tenth penny; if it be eaten by Pigs, the tenth of the worth thereof muſt be anſwered. And the moſt reaſonable way of payment for any thing ſold, is to pay the Parſon the tenth penny of the money made thereof.

The payment of Tithes and Church duties in the City of London, which is 2 s. 9 d. in the pound of the rent of their Houſes, is to be made according to the uſage there. Stat. 27. H. 8. 20. and 32. H. 8. 7. 37. H. 8. 12. Cook. 11. 16. Of houſes in London.

The Tithe of the new corn-mil muſt not be the tenth penny of the rent, But the tenth meaſure of the Corn, or the tenth tole diſh, if there be not cuſtome in it. But the Millard for his Fulling Mil, Rape-Mil, Paper-Mil, Iron, Powder, Lead, Edge, Copper, and Tin Mils; and ſo for an ancient Corn-Mil, is to pay only perſonal Tithe as for a Handicraft or Faculty. Paſch. 17. Jac. Johnſons Caſe. Fitz. Nat. Brev. 41. G. Coo. 2. 44. And if a rate tithe be paid for two Mils in one houſe, and one of them is made a Corn-Mill; in this caſe Tithe ſhall be paid in kind for this Mill. And if one pair of Mill-ſtones be turned into two pair of Mill-ſtones, now both of them muſt pay Tithe, and the priviledge is loſt. Brownl. Rep. 1. Part. 31. Sect. 1. Of Mils.

The Tithe of the Hay, may be ſet out and delivered in ſwathes, windrowes, or cocks as the cuſtome of the place is. Of graſs, cut, or caren.

The Tithe fruit of Apple-trees, Pear-trees and the like trees are to be ſet out and delivered when they are newly gathered, and if then the Owner do not give the Parſon notice and ſet them out, and they be by his means loſt or impaired, the Owner is chargeable to the Parſon in treble damages. Fruits of trees as Apples, &c.

The common courſe of ſetting out and delivering corne by the common Law, is by the tenth ſhock, cock, or ſheaf; but if the cuſtome of the place be otherwiſe, the Parſon muſt ſit down by it; and if there be a cuſtom to put the corn into ſhocks, and that every ſhock be ten ſheaves, and that the Parſon muſt have the tenth ſhock; it muſt be done by two Juſtices, B. R. But without a ſpecial cuſtom binding the owner of the Land, he is not bound to ſet the Parſons part of the corn up an end in ſhocks. Smiths Caſe. Co. B. the Court. Of corn ſown

The tithe ſeeds and herbs of gardens and fields, as Rape, Hemp, Flax, Parſley, Fennel, and the like, and of Sage, Mints, Onions, Leeks, and the like, either of the ſeed, or of the Herb before the ſeed time; this muſt bee paid at the time when the owner doth receive in his nine parts thereof. Of ſeeds and herbs.

The time when the calves and Lambs are to be paid and delivered, is when they are weanable, and able to live without the Dam, and unleſs there be any cuſtom herein againſt the Parſon, at this time all theſe young things are to be delivered. And if the owner ſell any calf or lamb, in moſt places the Parſon is to have the tenth penny of the money and ſo he muſt, if there be nothing in the cuſtom againſt it. Sect. 1. Of calves and lambs.

And if the owner kill a calf in ſome places, the Parſon hath the right ſhoulder,

And the cuſtome muſt be yielded to as reaſonable, if any thing though never ſo little, be paid for it, otherwiſe not.

Of milk and cheeſe. The Tithe of Milk and Cheeſe is to be paid in the ſeaſon thereof, and ſo long, and ſo ſoon as either of them is taken by the pariſhioner.

Bees. The tenth meaſure of Honey and the tenth weight of Wax, not the tenth Bee, nor the tenth Swarm of Bees is to be paid for Bees.

Of hens, ducks wild and tame The Tithe of Chicken and Eggs, of all kind of tame Birds or Fowle, as Swans, Hens, Ducks, Geeſe, they are to be delivered and paid, or that which is paid for them, according to the cuſtome of the place. But for wild Swans, Geeſe and Ducks, if they be taken in, and from a certain and known place, they are ſaid to be titheable as Predial Tithes; but if from incertain and unknowne places, they are ſaid to be as perſonal Tithes. But I ſuppoſe no Tithe is to be paid in either caſe.

Sect. 3. Perſonal tithes. For perſonal Tithes, which is for Trades, Crafts, and manual Occupations, and the profit made thereby. It is provided by a ſpecial Law, that all ſuch as uſe trading, buying and ſelling, handicrafts (except common Labourers) ſhall pay their Tithes, as they were uſed to be paid forty years before the Statute of 2 Ed. 6. and as of right they ought to be paid. And for this the Pariſhioner doth uſe at or about Eaſter (in moſt places the uſual time of payment for ſmal Tithes) to pay a ſmall ſum of money to the Parſon or Vicar. And according to the cuſtome of that place men are to pay, for without a cuſtom for it nothing at this day is to be paid for this: by three Judges Co. B. 17. Jac.

And for all, or any of theſe things, in caſe where the Owner may let or ſell the thing of which the Tithe is to be had, the beſt way is to let the Parſon or Vicar to have the tenth penny made by the ſale, as they have generally of grounds let to ſtrangers out of the Pariſh; in which caſe the Parſon hath commonly, and muſt have, if there be no cuſtome againſt it, the tenth penny of the Rent.

But in no caſe the Parſon or Vicar may take his Tithe before the ſame be ſevered from the nine parts and Tithed. And if the owner will not cut his corn till it be ſpoiled, the Parſon is remedileſs. 12 Ed. 4 D. & St. 169.

Who muſt pay the Tithe that is to be paid, and may be ſued for it? and to whom the Tithe muſt be paid?

Sect. 1. FOR anſwer to the firſt part of this Queſtion, take theſe things.

1. That generally he that receiveth the nine parts, is to pay the tenth part to the Parſon. And yet if a man that is owner of a Coppice, or other ſuch like thing, and he cut it and ſell it all; in this caſe the Seller muſt anſwer the Parſon for his tithe and not the buyer. And therefore if A. cut the graſs of his ground, and put it all (not ſetting out Tithe) in a rick in the ground, and three months after he ſell it away to B in this caſe B cannot be ſued for this tithe. Hill. 16. Jac. by chief Juſtice, in Aſh-fields Caſe. And if one ſell Uuderwoods ſtanding, the buyer, not the ſeller muſt anſwer the Tithe. But the Tithe due for fellets before the ſale, the ſeller muſt anſwer for this.

Executor. 2. If a Pariſhoner dye before he pay his tithe, his Executor, if he have Aſſets, muſt pay it.

3. If a Pariſhoner let or ſell his ground or herbage, it is ſaid the Parſon may ſue the owner of the ground, or the owner of the Cattel, at his choiſe, which is reaſonable, if the uſage be not againſt it.

4. If Cattel be pawned or pledged, the Gagee muſt pay tithe for them. But if I deliver my goods to H. to be redelivered to me I muſt pay Tithe for them.

And for anſwer to the ſecond part of this Queſtion, theſe things are to be known.

1. The Tithes muſt be paid to him that hath right to them, be he Lay-man, as an Impropriator, or a Clergy man (as we have called them and) be he parſon or Vicar of the place.

2. The rule generally is this, that the Tithe muſt be paid to the parſon or Vicar of the Pariſh wherein it ariſeth, and not to the Parſon or Vicar of another Pariſh.

3. The Tithe hapning in the time of the vacation, the ſucceeding Parſon is to have it; but they that gather it in may keep up ſo much thereof, as to pay them their charge

in

in the collection thereof, and to Miniſters that did ſerve the Cure there. And if one be put into a place, and then he is removed, and another is put in, the firſt of theſe ſhall have the Tythes that hapned in the vacation time, Hil. 18. Jac. Woods Caſe.

4. If any man have Cattel Tytheable feeding in any waſte, or place which is not certainly known to be in a Pariſh, the Tythe thereof ſhal be paid to the Parſon of the place where the Owner of the Cattel doth dwell.

5. If a man living in the Pariſh of A, being a common Fiſher, Fowler, or Hunter, and Fiſh, Fowle, or hunt in the grounds of H in B, and take fiſh there, if this were free and without reward in H then it is a perſonal Tythe that muſt be paid to the Parſon of A. But if H had money or reward for this, then it is ſaid H muſt pay the Parſon of B. as for a predial Tythe.

6. Perſonal Tythes are alwaies to be paid to the Parſon or Vicar of that place where the perſon that is to pay the Tythes doth dwel.

Which way the Owner of Tythes, and ſuch like things, may recover them being detained.

FOr anſwer to this, we are to know, that by the ancient Law of the Nation, Tythes were not recoverable by any man in any place but in the Spiritual Court, and thereby no perſon but ſuch as they called Spiritual perſons, or Clergy men, and this Eccleſiaſtical Court is gone, But they are now recoverable by all ſorts of men alike, and in theſe waies, Firſt for Predial Tithes, ſuch as are the Tythe of Wood, Graſs, Fruit, Hay, and the like divideable things; if theſe be not duly and truly divided and ſet forth, as before is ſhewed they ought to be, the Parſon or Vicar may ſue for them in any of the Courts by an Action of Debt, wherein he ſhall recover treble damages upon the Statute of Ed. 6.

But for leſſer Tithes of Wool and Lamb, and the like, no Action will lye upon this Statute, nor for money given to the Parſon in lieu of them. But for the one and the other, the party grieved may at this day ſue in the Chancery, or in the Exchequer, or before two Juſtices of the Peace, who in moſt caſes for all Tythe, Offerings, Oblations, Obventions, rates for Tythes, and all Arears thereof, are to give relief. Stat. 27. H. 8. 20. 2. Ed. 6. 13. 32. H. 8. 7. Cook upon Litt. 159.

And if the Tythe be once ſevered and ſet forth, and they be after taken away by the owner of the Land or a ſtranger; in this caſe the Parſon may have an Action of Treſpaſs againſt him. Bro. Diſmes 6. Brownl. 2 Part 30. Miniſters put in by Authoritie of Parlament and now put out by the death of him that was ejected, And ſuch who having been preſented ſince the firſt of Aprill 16 3. and are not approved by the Commiſſioners for Approbation, and are therefore put out, may be releived for their Areares by the Commiſſioners for putting out of Scandalous Miniſters by the new Ordinance. Auguſt. 29. 1654. Alſo all ſuch as thoſe Commiſſioners doe put in, they may helpe them to their dues.

In what caſe, and how a perſon or place may be quit and diſcharged of Tythes: and what ſhall be a good diſcharge, or not.

SPiritual perſons were ſome of them formerly diſcharged of Tythe by their Order but there are no ſuch diſcharges now; but a diſcharge of Tythes may be at this day by the cuſtome of a County, or by a Preſcription, or by a Compoſition, which at firſt was made by and between the Parſon, Patron, and Ordinary, and another, or by an alteration of the place out of which the Tythe doth come, or by an Act of Parliament, and by a unity of poſſeſſion Coo. 1 part 33. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 13. 32 H. 8. 7. Cook 44 Brownl. 2 part 20. Or by priviledg, as certain Religious Orders, Templers, and others of which there are none with us. And therefore no ſuch diſcharge can be amongſt us at this day. Brownlow's 2 part 33. Or they may be ſuſpended for a certain time, and revived again. Of all which ſee examples in the caſes that follow. Sect. 1.

A man may be diſcharged of payment of Tythe by a cuſtom or preſcription: Wherein theſe things are to be known.

1. Cuſtom

By Cuſtome or preſcription.

1. Cuſtom and Preſcription do differ but little; cuſtom goes to a place or County, and preſcription to a perſon.

And what is good or not.

2. A Cuſtom applyed to a Country to pay no Tythe in ſome caſes, as the Cuſtom for the Wild, being forty Pariſhes in Suſſex, to pay no Tythe, is good. But generally ſuch a Cuſtom is not good, and a preſcription to pay no Tythe, nor any thing in lieu of it, is not good, nor will it diſcharge, though nothing can be proved to be paid within the time of memory. D. & St. 171. 167. Bro. Preſcrip. 92. Cook. 244. And yet one may ſhew a diſcharge of his Land another way which will amount to the payment of no Tythe, nor nothing for it.

3. But any man may preſcribe de modo decimandi; i. e. to pay money or other thing in lieu of the Tythe in kind for a Manor, Farm, or piece of Land; and if he can prove this time out of mind, this will diſcharge him. Cook 1. 44. 45. And therefore a Preſcription to pay 4 d, or any other ſum of money for all his Tythe whatſoever, or all his Tythe Hay, or all his Tythe Corn in ſuch a Farm or ſuch a Cloſe, is good. If one Preſcribe that he is to put the Corn of the ground in Hillocks or Cocks, &c. and that for this the Parſon is to have no Tythe Corn every ſecond year, or is to have no Tythe in ſome part of the ground, this is good. So if he preſcribe to pay the tenth fleece of Wool, and for this to be diſcharged of the Tythe of the locks; this is a good preſcription. 36. 37. Eliz. Co. B, Jeſops caſe. But if one preſcribe becauſe he doth pay Tythe Hay, he is to pay no Tythe Corn; or becauſe he payeth Tythe Corn, he is to pay no Tythe of his Cattel; this is not good. Smiths caſe Hill 8. Jac. B. R. So if one preſcribe to be diſcharged of Tythes in one place, becauſe he payeth Tythes in another place; or to be diſcharged of Tythes of Lambs, becauſe he payeth Tythe of Wool; or to be diſcharged of Tythes of other Cattel, becauſe he payeth 12 d. for a Cow; theſe are not good preſcriptions. Fleetwoods caſe, 7 Jac. Co. B. If a cuſtom be alledged, that the Parſon ſhall have but the tenth ſheaf of Wheat for the Tythe of all manner of Corn and Grain; this is not a good cuſtome. Mich. 11. Jac. Co. B. Jacks caſe. 38 Eliz. Co. B. Adjudged. So a Cuſtom was alledged, that the owners of a Farm had been uſed time out of mind to take back 30 ſheafs of their Tythe Corn again after it was ſet out, to their own uſe; This was diſallowed. Cuſtom to pay Tythes in kind for ſheep, if they continue in the pariſh all the year, but if ſold before their time, but a halfe penny for every ſheep ſo ſold, it was held no good Cuſtom. But a Cuſtom to pay no Tythes of lopping or wood for fire, Hedges, &c. is a good Cuſtom, B. R. March 79. pl. 128.

4. A Preſcription to pay a ſhoulder of a Buck or Doe, when they are killed, in lieu of all the Tythe of a Park, is good, and will diſcharge the Park. 3. 7 & 37. Eliz. Shipdams caſe. And although after the Park be diſcharged, and converted into tillage or hop round, yet it is held that the Parſon ſhall not have Tithes in kind, but the diſcharge ſhall continue. M. 5. Jac. Co. B. Adjudg. M. 11. Jac. Co. B. Cowpers Caſe.

5. A Preſcription to pay a leſs part then the tenth part, may be good and binding.

Sect. 2.

6. A Preſcription that if one have leſs then ſeven Lambs, he ſhal pay but 1 d. a piece for them, is good Curia 7. Jac. B. R. Patches caſe.

7. A Preſcription to be diſcharged of Tithes for every houſe in London, in lieu of 12 d. of the rent made of the houſe, is good. Cook 11. 16. And ſo for any other thing that may be conceived to have a reaſonable Commencement, the Law will admit it.

8. One may preſcribe, that he, and all thoſe whoſe eſtates he hath in the Mannor of Dale in Dale, time out of mind, have paid to the Parſon of Dale for the time being a certain Penſion yearly for the maintenance of Divine Service there, in ſatisfaction of all the Tithes ariſing and growing within the Manor of Dale; and preſcribes further, that he and all thoſe whoſe Eſtates he hath in the ſaid Manor, time out of mind, have been uſed in regard of the ſaid penſion ſo paid to the Parſon, to have all the Tythes happening and ariſing within the ſaid Manor or any part of it; viz. of all the Lands held of the ſaid Manor or any parcel of it; this is a good Preſcription, and may have a reaſonable beginning thus, That the Lord was ſeized of all the Manor before the Tenancies derived out of it, and by ſome good Compoſition or Grant between him, the Parſon, Patron, and Ordinary, it was granted to him in lieu of this money, which muſt be intended becauſe time out of mind it hath been ſo paid. Cook 7. 45.

7.45. But without ſome ſpecial matter alledged, a Lord cannot preſcribe after this manner in him and all thoſe, &c. generally.

9. A Preſcription to pay money for the Tythe of Milche beaſts is good. But a Preſcription that for the paiment of Mony for Milche beaſts, he ſhould be diſcharged from the payment of money for other beaſts, or to be diſcharged of Tithes for all Agiſtments in the Land is not good. Goldsb. 147. pl. 66

10. A modus decimandi, cannot be laid as to offerings and ſuch like perſonal things March 81. pl. 131. Alſo a Pariſhioner may be diſcharged of Tithe by Grant or an agreement with the Parſon; if he be a Spiritual Perſon, he may diſcharge it for his life; if he be an Impropriator, he may diſcharge it for all the time he hath the Parſonage. But a ſpirituall Perſon cannot by his agreement bind his ſucceſſors. And payment of a ſum of money in lieu and recompence of Tithes for ſixty yeers, or thereabouts is held a reaſonable time to make a preſcription. Cook upon Litt. 14. Crompt. Jur. 77. Dyer 7. 9. Tythe may be diſcharged by the alteration of the place or thing out of which the Tithe is to come. For the opening of which take theſe things.

Sect. 3. By an alteration of the place or thing out of which the Tithe doth come, or by other alteration. Whether gone or not.

1. If one preſcribe to be diſcharged of paiment of Tithe Hay for ſuch a ground, or the Tithe Corn of ſuch a ground; and the owner change the nature of the ground, the Paſture into Tillage, or Tillage into paſture; in theſe caſes the preſcription is gone. Hill. 7. Jac. B. R. Shiptons caſe Adjudged. But if the preſcription be general, 4 d. for all manner of Tithe ariſing in ſuch a ground, there the alteration will not hurt the preſcription. So it is if one preſcribe to pay the ſhoulder of every Buck and Deer of his Park for all manner of Tithe of the Park, and the whole Park be after diſparked and ſown to Corn, it is ſaid the Preſcription is gone, and that Tythes muſt now be paid in kind; but if any part of it remain a Park, and the reſt only be ſowed, it is otherwiſe. 36, 37 Eliz, Shipdams Park in Norfolk. So it is ſaid, If all the Parks be ſuffered to fall down, which is a diſparking in Law of the Park. yet the ſame doth not deſtroy the manner of Tithing, for the ſame may be a Park, again. But ſome doubt of this. And a difference hath been taken, where a Preſcription runs to ſo many Acres of Land certain for in that caſe the modus continueth: and where to the Park in the name of a Park, in which caſe it is gone if it be diſparked. Paſch. 19. Jac. Co. B. Pools caſe, and in Brownl. Rep. 1 Part Paſch. 10. Jac. Co. B. 35. It is doubted whether the Tithes be not gone in both caſes; and held, that if a man can preſcribe for ſo many Bucks, that this Park is diſcharged, and if it be diſparked, that the preſcription is not gone. If a man have a modus decimandi for Hay in Black-acre, and he ſow the ſame acre 7 years together with Corn, this doth not deſtroy the modus decimandi, but the ſame ſhall continue when the ſame is made into Hay again. Hughes Rep. 194; pl. 278. But the Parſon will have Tythe in kind when it is ſowed with Corn, &c.

2. And if two Fulling Mils be under one roof, and a rate-Tithe be paid for the Mils (which is a kind of preſcription) and after the Mils are altered, and made into one Corn-Mil, in this caſe the preſcription is gone, and Titbe ſhall now be paid in kind. So if there be but one pair of ſtones in the Mil, and after there is another pair of ſtones put in the Mil; now Tithe muſt be paid in kind, and the manner of Tithing is gone. Brownl. Rep. 1 Part. Paſch. 10. Jac. 31.

3. If I have the Tithe of the Hay of a cloſe, or all manner of Tithe there, and the owner of the ground turn it from Meadow, to Tillage, or to hops, or the like, or turne it from Tillage to paſture, the Tithe is not gone, but ſhall be paid in kind as it falleth. So if one turne wood-ground into Meadow or Tillage, the owner ſhall pay Tithe in kind, and Tithe is not loſt hereby; only if it fall out to be within the caſe of barren heath, he ſhall pay for ſeven years no more then was paid formerly for it, See it before. Paſch. 18. Jac. B. R. Court in Baxters Caſe.

4. If one be to day a ſum of money for the Tithe of a piece of ground, and the ground be after turned to houſes and gardens; in this caſe the manner of Tithing doth continue. Cook 11. 16.

5. If one turn his paſture into a Coniger, and make coney-borrowes in it, the Tithe will not be gone. But I conceive, it doth continue as it did for the manner of Tithing as before, and no new manner of Tithing, See before Tithe of Coneys. M. 13. Car. B. R.

6 If

6 If the Vicar keep the Glebe in his own hands, it is ſaid, That ſo long he is to pay no Tithe to the Parſon impropriate. But if he leaſe it to another, then the Leſſee muſt pay Tithe to him, and if he ſow the Land, that he muſt pay Tithe as other men. Brownl. Rep. 69.

Suſpenſion. 7. If a Parſon impropriate keep his Glebe in his own hands, he cannot pay Tithe to himſelf. But if he ſell or let it to another he ſhall pay Tithe as other men. And if a Parſon purchaſe Land within his Rectory, no Tithe is to be payed for this whiles it is in his own hands. But if he after leaſe the Parſonage; his Leſſee ſhall have Tithe of this new purchaſed Land. And if he make a Feoffment or Leaſe of the purchaſed Land, his Feoffee or Leſſee muſt pay Tithe again. Cook upon Litt. 139, 11. 14. Bro. Diſmes 17. Dyer 43.

And if one purchaſe a Parſonage and a Manor in the pariſh diſcharged of Tithes, and then leaſe part of the demeſnes of the Manor; it is ſaid the Leſſor ſhall have Tithe of this part. Bro. Diſmes 17. Sed quære of this.

8. If Land lye in a Forreſt in any pariſh, and is Tithe-free, and the Forreſt bed is Forrefted, now it ſhall pay Tithe in kind. Crompt. Jur. 52. Lord Ch. Baron at Sarum Aſſizes.

The alteration of payment (as if in ſtead of the money to be paid, another ſum, or Tithes in kind have been paid for twenty years paſt) will not deſtroy the preſcription. Cook upon Lit. 14 Dyer 7.

Sect. 4. By Act of Parliament and nnity of poſſeſſion together Whether gone or not.

Lands may be diſcharged from paiment of Tithes by Act of Parliament, as by a unity of poſſeſſion of the parſonage, and Lands which did pay Tithes, or by an appropriation or otherwiſe, in the hand of Religious and Eccleſiaſtical perſons, (as they were called.) So that now at this day by the Statute of 31 H. 8. 13. Such a unity in the ſaid Religious houſes and perſons will be a diſcharge to all Patentees from the payment of Tithes of Lands that came to the Crown by the ſame Statute. But then this unity in the ſaid Religious perſons muſt have been juſta, obtained by Right; for if either the Parſonage, Vicarage, Tithes or Lands had come or been united to their houſes by diſſeiſins, or other tortious and unlawful Acts, this had not been a good diſcharge within the Statute.

2. It muſt have been æqualis, there muſt have been a Fee-ſimple both in the Lands out of which the Tithes were to be paid, and in the Parſonage or Vicarage in them; for if the Abbots, Pryors. or other religious perſons had held but by Leaſe, that had not been ſuch a unity as the Statute intended.

3. It muſt have been libera, free from the payment of any Tithes, for if their Farmers or Tenants, at wil or years had paid Tithes, that had not been a ſufficient unity to have diſcharged the Land 4. And laſtly, It muſt have been perpetua, time out of mind. And then for the infinite impoſſibility, and impoſſible infiniteneſs that ſuch Immunities and diſcharges, that ſuch religious perſons and houſes had before time of memory could not be known; ſuch unity had been a good diſcharge of the Lands in their own hands. And if the Monaſtery were built in the time of memory, or appropriated within the time of memory, and Tithe were paid before this, it will not ſerve turne to diſcharge it.

And at this day ſuch an unity is a good diſcharge for the Kings patentees, with the Statute of 31 H. 8. But ſuch Lands as came to the Crown by the Statute of 27. H. 8. of diſſolution, muſt at this day pay Tithes, although the Lands in the hands of ſuch religious perſons or houſes were diſcharged from the payment of Tithe; for the priviledges being perſonal priviledges, were extinguiſhed by the Statute of Diſſolution, and, there are no words in that Statute to ſave them. Stat. 31 H. 8, 13 7 H. 4. 6. 32 H. 8. 7. Cook 11. 14. 2. 42. Dyer 278. 349. 277.

Of other Profits which the Parſon and Vicar doth claim.

THere are ſome other ſmall profits which Parſons and Vicars claim as belonging to their Parſonages and Vicarages beſide Tythe, and money in lieu of Tithe, as Mortuaries, Oblations, Obventions, &c. And as to Mortuaries theſe things are to be known 1 That no Mortuary is to be paid, but where it hath been uſed to be paid.

2 There

2. There ſhall be but one Mortuary paid, and no more.
3. No perſon that doth keep houſe muſt pay them.
4. No Woman that hath a Husband ſhall pay them:
5. No children muſt pay them.
6. Where they are to be paid, they muſt be paid after this proportion, viz. He that dieth having goods under ten marks ſhall pay nothing; for Goods above that value, and under thirty pound, but three ſhillings four pence; for Goods above thirty pound, and under forty pound, ſix ſhillings eight pence; for goods above forty pound, how much ever it be, but ten ſhillings:
7. All this account muſt be made onely out of the Goods remaining after debts paid.
8. The Parſon of the place where the party dwells, not of the place where he dieth, muſt have it. 21 *H.*8.6. 26 *H.*8.15.

Oblations, Obventions, and Offerings.

There is no more to be ſaid for Obventions, Oblations, and Offerings, which ſeem to be all one, but that they by the Law now in force are to be paid as formerly they have been. 32 *H.*8.7. 27 *H.*8.20. 2, 3 *Ed.*6. 13. *Co.*11. 16.

What Tithes the Parſon, and what the Vicar ſhall have.

IN this, theſe things are to be known.
1. Of meer Right the Parſon is to have all the Tithes if there be no Endowment of the Viccarage. *Hughs Rep.*64.
2. In this, Cuſtom is much regarded, for albeit the Compoſition be, that he ſhall have Garba, yet if he never had any more but Hay, he ſhall have no more now, Adjudge.
3. The Vicar cannot have Tithes, but by Donation, Compoſition, or Preſcription, for all the Tithes de jure appertain to the Parſon. March 11. *pl.*29.
4. If the Compoſition be, that the Parſon ſhall have all the Tithe-corn, and the Vicar all other Tithes; and one ſow his errable with Saffron, the Vicar not the Parſon will have it. Vicar of Farnhams caſe, Co. B.
5. That which the Vicar and his Predeceſſors have received time out of minde, that he ſhall have.
6. The Vicar will have Tithe of Saffron, of Land newly ſown with Saffron, albeit the Land were ſowed before with Corn forty years together. By Juſtice Popham. Goldsb. 150.
7. It is commonly held, That if the Vicar be to have the Tithes of all the Crofts in ſuch a place, that yet he ſhall not have the Tithes of the Crofts, parcel of the Parſonage; and if he be to have the Tithes of all the Dove-houſes of the place, yet he ſhall not have the Tithes of the Dove-houſes belonging to the Parſonage.
8. If the Vicar by the Endowment, be to have the Tithe-hay of all the Meadows in ſuch a place, yet he ſhall not hereby have any more but the Tithes of thoſe that were Meadows at the time of the Endowment, and not of thoſe grounds that were made Meadow ſince the Endowment. By Baron Denham a difference was taken where an Endowment is Local, as where the Vicar doth claim to have all the Tithes in ſuch grounds, and he hath always had the Tithe of that place, and it hath never been ſowed, and he hath no Tithes, but the ſmall Tithes of the reſt of the Pariſh by the Endowment, yet if it be new ſowed, he ſhall have the Tithe of the Corn: But if he be to have the ſmall Tithes generally, and he hath always had Tithes in ſuch a place, and it was never ſowed, and now it is ſowed to Corn; in this caſe he ſhall not have the Corn. 8 Car. at Sarum Aſſiſes.
9. If a man hath a Modus decimandi for Hay in Black-acre, and he ſow it ſeven years together with Corn, the Parſon will have the Corn ſo long. And the Vicar the Hay, or the Modus decimandi, or Hay in kinde, if he be endowed of it. Hughs Rep. 194. *pl.*274.

CHAP. CLVIII.

Of Title and Toll, of Counties and Towns.

Title of Entry, what.

TItle of Entry is properly where a man hath a lawful cauſe to come upon, and enter into a thing which another hath, but hath no Action to recover it. As when an Eſtate is made upon Condition, and the Condition broken, or one hath aliened in Mortmain, or die without any Heir ſo that the Land Eſcheat; in theſe caſes, the party that is to enter for the Condition broken, or the Lord of whom the Lands are held which are aliened, or in which the Tenant died, is ſaid to have a Title of Entry. But this word is ſometimes taken more largely and applied to the Right or Title a man hath to Land by any means whatſoever; and then it is ſaid to be a juſt cauſe of poſſeſſing that which is our own: For the Law doth put a difference between Title of Entry, and Right of Entry; for Title of Entry is ſaid to be where no wrong is done, as in the caſes before. But Right of Entry is where a wrong was done before, as where a man hath wrongfully entred into my Lands, or taken away my Goods, by Diſſeiſin, or the like; in this caſe I may have an Action, and ſometimes an Entry alſo; but in the other, there is onely an Entry given. And where the Law gives an Action onely, as the onely Remedy to reduce the poſſeſſion, there it is called a Right of Action, but where an Entry, there a Right of Entry. *Plow.*555. Finches Ley 105. *Co.*10.48.

Of Toll.

Sect. 1. Toll, what.

THis word Toll in a general ſenſe, doth ſignifie any manner of Cuſtom, Subſidy, Preſtation, Impoſition, or ſum of money, demanded for carrying out or bringing in of Wares, to be taken of the buyer; and is ſometimes uſed for a liberty to buy and ſell within the Precincts of a Manor; and ſo it ſeems to be but as a Fair or Market: Sometimes it is uſed for a Tribute or Cuſtom, to pay a little ſum of money for a conveniency of paſſage, or ſome other thing. As where it is claimed for the ſetting up of Stalls in Fairs or Markets, which is called Stallage, or for the digging of the ground there for that purpoſe, which is called Pickage, or for drawing up of Veſſels out of a Ship into a Wharf, which is called Cranage, or for going over ſuch a place on foot, called Pedage, or for paſſing over a Ferry with Man or Beaſts, which is called a Paſſage, or for paſſing over a Bridg, which is called Pontage, or for the paving of a City or Cauſway, which is called Pavage, or for the making of a Wall in time of War, for defence of the Nation, which is called Murage, or for the weighing of Wool, which is called Tronage, or for a Paſſage with Wares, which is called Peſſage: But this word is moſt properly taken for a payment uſed in Cities, Towns, Markets, and Fairs, for Goods and Cattles brought thither to be bought and ſold. *Co.*8. 46,47. 11 *H.*6.19. 9 *H.*6.45. *Kelw.*138. 145. Fitz Toll. 138. 7 *H.*4.4.

Preſcription.

2. They were at the firſt by the Kings Grant, and now are claimed, and may be had by Preſcription.

3. It is held the Lord Protector may by his Prerogative create ſuch a Toll, a ſmall ſum of money to be paid for this.

4. But by Cuſtom or Preſcription, it may be claimed not onely for ſale of Goods, but for a ſtanding in the Fair or Market.

5. The ſum demanded muſt be a ſum Incertain.

6. It

6. It is ſaid it hath been adjudged, That he that hath a Toll in a Market or Fair, by Preſcription or Grant of the King may diſtrain for it. Trin. 38 Eliz. B.R. Heddy and Wheel-houſe. Diſtreſs.

7. This Toll for ſale in a Fair or Market, is to be paid always by the buyer, unleſs there be a Cuſtom to the contrary, for then it muſt be paid as the Cuſtom hath been.

8. Toll is not to be paid for the things a man doth buy for his own expences, unleſs the Cuſtom be otherwiſe.

9. Nor is it to be paid for Goods brought into the Market or Fair, unleſs he ſell it, without a ſpecial Cuſtom. Murage, which is a reaſonable ſum taken for Toll of every Cart, Wain, Horſe laden coming to that Town, for the incloſing of the Town with Walls of defence for the ſafeguard of the people, in time of War, from Inſurrection, Uproar or Tumults. This Pontage, Pavage, Keyage, and the like payments are due, either by Grant or Preſcription Murage.

11. But if a Wall be made, which is not defenſible, nor for ſafeguard of the people, then ought not this Toll to be paid. Co. 2 part. Inſt. 122.

CHAP. CLX.

Of Treſpaſs.

Sect. 1. 1. Treſpaſs, what it is.

How many kindes of it there are.

THE word Treſpaſs in our Law is commonly taken for a wrong or offence done by one man to another. And ſo it is ſometimes againſt the perſon of a man, and ſometimes againſt that which is his: And both theſe kinde of wrongs do ſometimes lie in not doing ſomewhat a man ought to do, and ſometimes in doing what a man ought not to do. Theſe wrongs are alſo ſome of them accompanied with a kinde, or at leaſt with a colour of violence, and ſome of them are done without any violence, and conſiſt rather of matter of fraud or negligence: For remedy againſt the laſt kinde of offences the Action of the Caſe is provided; and of this we have written largely in Chap. 13, &c. But the remedy that is given for injuries done with force, or colour of force, is by this kinde of Action, of which we are now to treat in this place. And ſo Treſpaſſes are either extraordinary and greater or ordinary and leſs: The great Treſpaſſes are killing or wounding a man, pulling down or firing of Houſes or Mills, or throwing down of Park-walls or Pales, the burning or deſtroying of a Frame of Timber prepared for a Houſe, or burning a Cart loaden with Goods, or burning of a heap of Wood prepared for Coal, cutting out the Tongue of a Beaſt, cutting off the Ears of a Man, barking of Fruit-trees, breaking and cutting down, or deſtroying the Heads or Dams of Ponds or Pool where are Fiſh, and ſuch like. The leſſer are the beating of a man, entring into his Cloſe, taking away his Goods, or the like. Both theſe are alſo either to the perſon of a man, or to that which is his. Of the leſſer wrongs done to the perſon of a man; there are four kindes, or five degrees, whereof we ſhall ſpeak in this place.

Sect. 2. Menacing, what it is. Aſſault, what is it is. Battery, what it is. Maim, what it is. Impriſonment, what it is.

Menacing or threatning (which is) where one doth threaten to do another any hurt. Aſſault (which is) where one doth unlawfully ſet upon and attempt to beat another, but doth it not. Battery (which is) when one doth unlawfully beat another. Maim (which is) where one doth by any violent act offered to another, take from him the uſe of any of his principal members of his body, whereby his ſtrength is impaired, and he made more unfit to ſerve the Commonwealth. Impriſonment (which is) where a man is reſtrained of his ordinary and lawful liberty, that he cannot go about his buſineſs, as at other times. The wrongs that are done to that which is a mans (that is) his Goods, they are to his Goods animate or inanimate. Animate, either reaſonable, as Wife, Childe, Servant, Tenant, Ward, or the like; unreaſonable, as Beaſts, Fiſh, or the like. His inanimate good is either his Land or Plate, Houſhold-ſtuff or the like.

Property. Theſe Treſpaſſes are alſo done either with pretence of Title, by which the Property is altered, or without pretence of Title. They are alſo ſaid to be Local (that is) annexed to a place, as cutting of Trees, Graſs, digging of ground, or the like; or elſe they are tranſitory, as the beating of a man, carrying away his Goods, ſpoiling of Writings, or the like. And for remedy againſt theſe kinde of wrongs, this Action or Writ is appointed. Finches Ley 203. 198. Co. 1 part, Inſt. 57. 126. Old N. B. 48. Cromp. Jur. 33.

2. Writ of Treſpaſs, what it is.

The word Treſpaſs is ſometimes uſed for the Writ of Treſpaſs, which is where any Treſpaſs is done by one to another, which is ſuppoſed to be done with force and arms; and and by this the Plaintiff ſhall recover damages, according to the wrong done to him; and the Defendant found guilty of this offence, is (rigore juris) to pay a Fine to the Keepers of the Liberty, and to be impriſoned till he pay or compound it. And this Writ muſt always ſuppoſe the wrong to be done, Vi & armis, Finches Ley 198. Old N. B. 48.

All perſons, men, women, and children, not diſabled to ſue in any Action, may, having ſuch a wrong done unto them, as for which this Action lieth, have this Action for their relief. 3. Where, and in what caſe this Action lieth, or not. Sect. 3.

The Church-wardens of a Pariſh may have this Action againſt him that doth break or take away any of the Pariſh Goods, belonging to the Church, as the Communion Cup, Table-cloth, or the like, in the cuſtody of the preſent or former Church-wardens: But no Pariſhioner can have this Action for theſe Goods. And for a wrong done to the Church, by breaking the Bells, Walls, or the like, or to the Church-yard, by cutting of Trees, eating of Graſs, or the like, he that is Parſon of the Church by Inſtitution and Induction, not the Church-wardens, muſt have this Action. *Broo. The Maſter of an Hoſpital may have this Action for the Goods of the Houſe, taken away in his own, or in his Predeceſſors time. F.N.B. 89. Maſter of an Hoſpital.

Executors may have this Action for the Goods of the Teſtator, taken out of their poſſeſſion; and ſo may the Ordinary for the Goods he hath as Ordinary, and are taken out of his poſſeſſion. But otherwiſe it is for the Goods taken away from the deceaſed; and yet the Executor ſhall have an Action of Treſpaſs, De bonis aſportatis in vita teſtatoris. F.N.B. 92. 117. Executors.

For any the leaſt beating or impriſonment of my Wife, we together may have this Action: But if it be ſuch a beating, as whereby I loſe her company or ſervice, I alone without her may have this Action. So for any the leaſt hurt done to my ſervant, he may bring this Action; but unleſs it be ſuch a hurt as thereby I loſe his ſervice, I cannot bring this Action. 20 *H.*7.5. 22 Aſſ. 16 *H.*7.11. Co 3.113. 10. 130. 5.108. Old Book of Entries, 555. Husband and Wife. Maſter and Servant.

One that hath but a bare poſſeſſion of, and no good Title to Land, may have this Action for a Treſpaſs done upon the Land againſt any one that hath no right, but not againſt him that hath right. Plow. 431. 546. 3 H 6. 32. 12 *Ed.*4. 8. 4 Ed. 4. 73. And yet he that hath a Right or Title to Land onely, either by Deſcent, Condition broken, or a Leaſe made to him, and he hath not made his actual Entry into the Land; in this caſe he may not bring this Action for any Treſpaſs done upon the Land. Kelw. 163. Plow. 144. He that hath the poſſeſſion onely.

He that hath but the Herbage of a ground, may bring this Action for wrong done to him in the Graſs of the ground, but not for cutting or ſpoiling the Trees of the ground. Dyer 285. 5 *H.*7.10. Herbage.

It hath been ſaid, That the Leſſee for years cannot have this Action againſt his Leſſor, for taking his Cattle by way of Diſtreſs upon the Land, though there be no cauſe of their taking. Finches Ley 199. 5 *H.*7.10. Bro. Treſ. 220. But I doubt of this. Leſſee for years.

Not onely he that doth the wrong, but he that is acceſſary to it before or after the thing done, may be charged as principal by this Action; inſomuch as he that doth command, perſwade, procure or incite another to do a Treſpaſs, before it be done, eſpecially if he be preſent at the doing of it, or doth participate with it after it is done, is a Treſpaſſor, and the party grieved may have this Action againſt them all, or any of them for it. Co. upon *Littl.*57. Broo. Treſp. 113. *D. & St.*25. 12 *H.*7.15. Dyer 244. 2. In reſpect of the perſon that doth the wrong, and who may be ſued in this Action, or not.

And therefore if a man do a Treſpaſs to my uſe, and I do afterwards agree to it, in this caſe I am a Treſpaſſor, and may be ſued for it. Broo. Treſp. 256. So if I without authority had in the time of the War, as a Commiſſioner with others joyned to ſummon ſummon a man to appear before us, and then the other Commiſſioners without me had impriſoned, and made him pay a Fine. It ſeems I ſhall be accounted a Treſpaſſor in all this. By Juſtice Jermine at Gloceſter Aſſiſes, 1649. If the Maſter lock a man up in a Chamber, and give his man the Key, and charge him to keep it, and he knowing of the unjuſt impriſonment, keep him there, he and his Maſter both may be ſued in this Action for this; and yet if the ſervant knew not of it, he ſhall not be charged, 22 Ed. 4. 45. And if a ſervant do a Treſpaſs by the Maſters command, both of them may be ſued in this Action. But if the ſervant do more then he is commanded, as if his Maſter ſend him to diſtrain, and he after he hath taken the Diſtreſs doth abuſe it, or the like; in theſe caſes the Maſter ſhall not be charged for any more then what he gave command to do, but the ſervant ſhall be charged with the whole. 21 H. 7. 21. Dyer 365. And if my ſervant of his own head, without any knowledge or command of mine, doth a Treſpaſs to another man, I ſhall not be chargable with it. 13 H 7. 15. Kelw. 3. As if the Sheriff make a Warrant to his Bailiff to arreſt the body, or attach the Goods of J. S. and the Bailiff attach the Goods, or arreſt the body of J. N. In this caſe no Action will lie againſt the Sheriff, but againſt his Bailiff for this. Mich. 7 Jac. Co. B. If many come to do a Treſpaſs, and they are all preſent when the Treſpaſs is done, and ſome of them do onely look on, and do nothing, yet they be all charged as Treſpaſſors, if they do not declare their diſaſſent to it. But if ſome of them fall into the company accidentally, contrà; for they may not be ſued. Hob. Rep. pl. 69.

Maſter and Servant.

If one command his ſervant to do a Treſpaſs which he doth, and then dieth before Action brought; in this caſe the Maſter may be ſued notwithſtanding. 17 H. 4. 19.

If a Court, or Judge of a Court meddle with, and admit of Sutes in Matters wherewith they have nothing to do, nor have colour of Juriſdiction; as if the Court of Common Pleas meddle with matters of the Crown, the Leet or Juſtice of Peace with Actions between party and party, or the Court of a Manor with Land without the Manor; in theſe and ſuch like caſes where the Court, or Judge, or Juſtice of Peace, ſhall ſend out any Proces or Warrant to arreſt, or do any execution, and the party is thereupon arreſted, or any execution is done, he may have this Action, not onely againſt the party, or Miniſterial officers that do make the arreſt, and do execution, but alſo againſt the Judicial officer that doth ſend the Warrant or Proces: But if the Judge or Judicial officer have Juriſdiction of the cauſe, and do onely miſtake in the manner and order of proceeding; as if in the Court of a Manor where they ſhould hold Plea by Plaint, if they do hold Plea by Writ, or a Capias is awarded in the Common Pleas without an Original, or a Capias is awarded againſt a Duke, or ſuch a perſon againſt whom a Capias doth not lie, or Proces doth iſſue out in an unjuſt Sute, and the Sheriff or Officer doth execute this, or a Juſtice of Peace doth ſend a Warrant to carry a man to Gaol for Felony, without any Information or Examination; in theſe and ſuch like caſes the party grieved may not have this Action, either againſt him that doth execute, or him that ſent the Warrant; And yet it is ſaid, That if a Juſtice ſend a man to Gaol without Examination, that he may have this Action againſt the Juſtice Mich 8 Jac. B. R. And yet if in this caſe the Proces or Warrant come from a Court of Juſtice, it ſeems no Action will lie againſt the Judges of the Court, for a Court cannot be ſued: But if a Juſtice of Peace ſhall ſend his Warrant to an inferior officer to carry J. S. to Gaol, becauſe he doth not pay him a Debt of ten pound he oweth to him, or to J. O. and the officer doth execute this Warrant; in this caſe J. S. may have this Action againſt the Juſtice of Peace and Officer both. Co. 10. The caſe of the Marſhalſey. 8. 6. 22 Aſſ. 64. Plow. 394. Kelw. 129. 98.

If a Juſtice of Peace ſend a general Warrant to arreſt a man, and expreſs no cauſe in it, and the Officer execute it; it is ſaid this Action will lie againſt the Juſtice onely, and not againſt the Officer, M. 8 Jac. B. R.

If the Sheriff have a Capias ad reſpondendum againſt me, and make a Warrant to his ordinary Bailiff to arreſt me, and he doth ſo, and the Sheriff doth not return the Writ this Action will lie againſt the Sheriff, not againſt the Bailiff for this. But if the Bailiff which which made the arreſt, were the Bailiff of a Franchiſe, contrà. 20 *H.*7. 1. 2 H 7. 22. If a Plaintiff in any Sute bring an unlawful Warrant to the Sheriff, and ſhew him the party, and require him to arreſt him; or bring him a good Warrant, and ſhew him the wrong party, and require him to arreſt him; in both theſe caſes the party grieved may have this Action againſt them both. So alſo for any thing done againſt the Goods of the Defendant by the Plaintiffs miſ-information, Broo. Treſp. 307. 99. *Officer.*8. No Action will lie againſt an Heir, Executor, or Adminiſtrator for a Treſpaſs done by the Anceſtor or Teſtator, Actio perſonalis moritur cum perſona. See Impriſonment.

A Servant or Ward may have this Action againſt their Maſter or Guardian if they do abuſe them. 28 *H.*6. 25. If many men do a Treſpaſs to me, I may ſue all, ſome, or any one of them at my pleaſure, *Co.*8. 159. If a man force another man to ſtrike me, or thruſt him upon my ground, for this wrong I may have this Action againſt him that did force, but not againſt him that was forced. Hob. Rep. pl. 176. Motes caſe. 2 Car. By Chief Baron at Sarum Aſſiſes. If I deliver another my Goods to keep to my uſe, and he give or ſell them to a ſtranger; in this caſe, though I may have this Action, or an Action of the Caſe againſt him, yet I may not have either of them againſt the ſtranger, Lit. ſect. 70. Co. upon it. And yet if my ſervant ſhall ſell or give away my Goods to a ſtranger, and he take them away without delivery of my ſervant; it is ſaid in this caſe I may have this Action againſt the ſtranger. Noy 111. 21 *H.*7. 39. But if one man take away my Goods by wrong (that is) ſo take them from me, as by his taking he gets a property in them, and then he doth deliver them over to another ſtranger; or another ſtranger doth take them away from him by wrong, ſo that he gets a property in them; in this caſe it ſeems I may not have this Action againſt the ſecond taker. Broo. Treſp. 329. 21 *H.*7. 39. And yet it is ſaid, That if a ſtranger buy my Goods of one that hath ſtoln them from me in a Market or Fair, knowing them to be ſtoln; in this caſe I may have this Action againſt him, as well as againſt the thief, D. & St. 149. If one diſſeiſe me of my Land, and afterwards another diſſeiſe him, or he make a Feoffment or Leaſe of it to another, and the ſecond Diſſeiſee, Feoffee or Leſſee do Treſpaſs upon the Land; in theſe caſes I may not have this Action againſt the ſecond Diſſeiſor, Feoffee or Leſſee, as I may againſt the firſt Diſſeiſor, who muſt anſwer me all the Damages done by the reſt. Co. 11. 51. 6. 7, 9. 13 *H.*7. 15. 10 *H.*7. 27.

If I have a free Warren or Feeding in another mans ground, and the owner of the ground diſturb me, I may have this Action as well againſt him, as I might have had it againſt another that did me Treſpaſs. 5 H. 7. 10. Dyer 285. So the Leſſee for life or years may have this Action as well againſt the Leſſor for a Treſpaſs done by him upon the Land, as againſt any other man. 5 *H.*7. 10. So if a Feoffer having made a Feoffment to me upon Condition, enter before the Condition broken, and after the Condition is broken, and then he enter again; in this caſe, for his firſt Entry, I may have this Action againſt him. 10 *H.*7. 22. If a Hue and Cry be levied without cauſe, and an Officer having ſome cauſe of ſuſpition, arreſt me; in this caſe I may not have this Action againſt him, but againſt him that firſt levied it. 21 H. 7. 27. If a Lord diſtrain upon his very Tenant wrongfully, and the Beaſts return to his Tenant, it ſeems he cannot have this Action againſt the Lord for the wrong, but he might have replieved them had they been impounded. F. N. B. 96.

This Action will lie for a Maim, Impriſonment, Battery, or Aſſault done to the perſon of another: For if another man ſhall by any violent act, maim me, viz. deprive me of the uſe of any of my principal Members of my Body, as my Hand, Leg, Finger, Eye, one of my Fore-teeth, or the like, whereby my ſtrength is impaired, and I am made the more unfit for publick ſervice; in this caſe I may either have this Action, or an Appeal of Maim, which I will; and by either of theſe I ſhall recover Damages according to my hurt. But if the hurt be ſmall onely, making a deformity in the Body, as when the Ear or Noſe is cut off, or the grinding Teeth put out; in theſe caſes the party hurt, hath no remedy but by this Action. Finches Ley 204. Stamf. lib 1. *cap.*44. See *Exod.*21. 18, 19. & 22. 5. If another man do unjuſtly impriſon me, or keep my Wife or Ward from me, I may have this Action.

Sect. 5.
3. In reſpect of the thing done, and for what cauſe this Action will lie or not, but ſome other, or no Action at all. Wrong to perſon.
Maim.
Impriſonment,

But

But for the further opening of this point of Treſpaſs for an unjuſt impriſonment, that we may ſet forth where an Action of Treſpaſs will lie for a falſe impriſonment, theſe things are to be known.

Arreſt.

1. If a man ſhall lay hands upon me, and hold me in his arms, keep me in mine own or another mans houſe, tie me to a Tree or poſt, put me in a Priſon or Stocks, or any other way reſtrain me of my liberty againſt my will; all theſe are Arreſts and falſe Impriſonments for which this Action lieth. So if a known Officer had but ſaid, I arreſt you in the Kings name, and had laid no hands on him, this had been an Arreſt. But if one do onely bid me ſtand or ſtay, and ſay that he doth intend or mean to arreſt me, but doth not lay hands upon me; or if one carry or detain me with my conſent, as a Boat-man in a Boat, Coach-man in a Coach, or the like; this is no Arreſt, nor will this Action lie for this. And yet if a Coach-man carry me further then I am willing, for this I may have this Action. Co. 9. 66. 69. Broo. F. Impriſ. 37. 10. 43 Ed. 3. 20. But to thruſt another in a great throng or a croud, is not an aſſault nor actionable. By Baron Thorp at Gloceſter Aſſiſes. 1654.

Falſe Impriſonment.

2. The liberty of a man is much favored in Law, and therefore if any man reſtrain me thereof without good warrant, and againſt Law, I may have an Action of falſe Impriſonment againſt him, which is in the nature of an Action of Treſpaſs, F. N. B. Treſpaſs, in toto.

Where an Impriſonment ſhall be ſaid to be unlawful, upon which this Action will lie or not, but it is juſtifiable.

Sect. 6.

In reſpect of the cauſe or end, & where, and why one may be impriſoned, or not.

For Debt, &c.

3. Then a man is ſaid to be unlawfully impriſoned, when either there is no good cauſe for his Impriſonment, or he that doth impriſon, hath no good Authority to do it, or having good Authority, he doth not purſue it, or he doth arreſt at a forbidden time, or in a forbidden place, or the like. But we ſhall handle this point apart, and ſhew at large where an Arreſt or Impriſonment ſhall be ſaid to be unlawful or not, in theſe following caſes.

If I ow another man money, or have done him a Treſpaſs, and he of his own head without any Writ, impriſon me, till I pay him his debt, or till I give him a recompence for the Treſpaſs; or if a man impriſon me till I pay him money, enter into a Bond or Statute, or make a Releaſe, or the like; in all theſe caſes this Action is given for my Relief, Old Book of Entries, 587. F. N. B. 88. And yet in caſe where I am duly impriſoned by ſome legal Warrant, but in a falſe or feigned Sute, where no money is due, or the money is paid, or the like; in theſe caſes the Impriſonment is lawful, and I may not have this Action for the Impriſonment, 43 Ed. 3. 35. If a man be wounded and like to die, any man may arreſt him that gave the wound, and he may be kept till it be ſeen that the danger is paſt. But if he be kept after, an Action will lie for this. 16 H. 7. 28. Broo. F. Imp. 6. Brownl. 1 part. 198.

For ſuſpition of Felony.

If one arreſt me upon a ſuſpition of Felony, when in truth no Felony is done; or if there be any Felony done, there is no more cauſe to ſuſpect me then any other man in the world; in this caſe, and for this wrong I may have this Action. But on the other ſide, If a Felony be done, or noiſed abroad to be done, and there be ſome cauſe to ſuſpect me more then another, and he that doth ſuſpect me doth arreſt me, he may juſtifie it, and if I ſue him for it, he will avoid the Sute: But for the opening hereof, take theſe things.

1. One man may be juſtly ſuſpected more then another of a Felony, if either he be a ſuſpitious perſon, and generally thought to be a thief, and doth live neer the place where the Felony was done, or the goods ſtoln be found in his hands, or there be Hue and Cry after ſuch a kinde of man, or if upon the Hue and Cry he flie, or if he were ſeen neer about the time or place, where and when the Felony was done, or if a Felony be done, and the common report is that J. S. did it; this is ſufficient to ground an Arreſt upon. Brownl. 1 part 3. For theſe and many ſuch like cauſes, one may be ſuſpected before another.

2. In this caſe, he that hath cauſe to ſuſpect, not another, may arreſt the party ſuſpected; for if I ſuſpect another man for the Felony done, and tell a third perſon of it; in this caſe this third perſon, albeit he be an Officer, may not arreſt him upon my ſuſpition. And yet if haply upon my relation, he alſo do ſuſpect him, then he may arreſt him upon his own ſuſpition, for it is a principle of Law, That one man cannot arreſt for Felony upon another mans ſuſpition.

3. He

3. He that doth ſuſpect, be he officer or other man, may arreſt the party ſuſpect of his own head, and without any Warrant from a Juſtice of Peace. But the common courſe is at this day to do it by the Warrant of a Juſtice of Peace, and this now in reſpect of the common uſage may be lawful and juſtifiable, Communis error facit jus.

4. If the party ſuſpected will not ſubmit and yield himſelf, but reſiſt, the party that doth arreſt may juſtifie the beating of him; and if it cannot be avoided in the apprehending of him, but that he muſt kill him, he ſhall not be puniſhed for it. Murder juſtifiable.

5. The party that doth arreſt may juſtifie the breaking of any houſe to take him, after demand of the opening of the doors. Breaking a Houſe.

6. The party arreſting after the arreſt made, may bring the priſoner to a Juſtice of peace, Conſtable, or to priſon, at his choice.

7. If he bring him and deliver him to a Conſtable, the Conſtable may juſtifie the detainment of him.

8. If the Conſtable after he is delivered to him, let him go, yet the arreſt of the party was juſtifiable.

9. If it be an Officer that doth bring the priſoner to the Goal, the Goaler is bound to receive him, but if it be not an Officer it is ſaid the Goaler may chuſe whether he will receive him without the Mittimus of the Juſtice of peace: however (in my opinion) as he may lawfully, ſo he ſhall do well to receive him in this caſe.

10. If the Officer let the priſoner go after he is delivered to him, it ſeems he that did firſt arreſt him, may arreſt him again.

11. If the Goaler will not receive the perſon ſuſpect becauſe he is not brought by the Juſtice Warrant, the party arreſting may carry him back, and take courſe to ſecure him.

12. If the priſoner be ſick he may keep him in his houſe a while, till he be fit to be carried, and if he be dangerous or deſperate, he may ſecure him a while in the Stocks, or manacle him, if need be.

13. If the Conſtable arreſt a man for Felony and he flie, and another man without command of the Conſtable arreſt him, it hath been ſaid that this arreſt is unlawfull, Sed quære, for I doubt it, Broo. F. Impr. 24. 27. Treſpas. 9. 207. 335. 13 Ed. 4. 9. 7 H. 4. 3. 14 H. 8. 1. 27 H. 8. 23; Pl. 40: 13 H. 7: 10: 5 H. 7: 4: 19 Ed. 49: 22 Ed. 4. 25.

Watchmen and Conſtables, and ſuch like Officers may arreſt night-walkers that are ſuſpitious, and keep them all night, and if there be cauſe, as if they be dangerous, the Officers want help, or the like, put them into the Stocks till the morning, and then bring them to a Juſtice of peace to be examined. But if ſuch Officer ſhall arreſt and uſe me ſo without any cauſe of ſuſpition at all, I may have remedy by this action, St. 5 Ed. 3. Ch. 14. 4 H. 7. 15. Co. 9 68. Night-walkers.

If I binde my ſelf to pay money, and agree that if I pay it not the Debtee himſelf ſhall take and impriſon me till I pay it, if he do ſo I may have this Action for it, 28 Ed. 3. 3. So if a keeper ſuffer me (being his priſoner) voluntarily to eſcape, upon my promiſe that if I render not my ſelf again by a day, that he ſhall arreſt me, and I do not, and thereupon he do arreſt me, I may have this Action againſt him, Co. 3. 44. By agreement.

If I be a Ward to one by Tenure, and he by himſelf or ſome other ſeiſe me, and keep me, no Action lieth for this, Plow. 294. Broo Impr. 13. 21 H. 6. 5. Old B. entries. 584. Ward.

If one Impriſon me for a Fine impoſed upon me in a Leet, except it be in caſe where the Lord can preſcribe to impriſon for a Fine; in this Caſe I may have this Action. And yet regularly whereſoever a man is fined in a Court of Record, he may be impriſoned, for impriſonment is incident to a Fine till it be paid, Broo. Impr. 97. Co. 8. Godfreys Caſe. Fine.

If a man be mad, and like in his fury to do miſchief to himſelf or others; in this caſe his Friends may binde or ſhut him up to prevent it, or if one be like to be drowned or burned, any man may pull him up out of the fire or water with violence to ſave him, no action will lie for this, Plow. 18. Br. F. Impr. 35 Old B. Entries 555. To ptevent hurt. Mad-man.

If men be fighting, or about to fight, and like to kill one another, any one may take and keep away one of them from the othe, and if need be lock him up in a houſe for a reaſonable time, till the heat be paſt, to the end that he may not kill nor be killed, & no action will lie for this, for it is iuſtifiable. For the better underſtanding of this, take theſe caſes. 1. If two men be fighting, any man may ſtand between them to part them. To keep peace and prevent murder.

2. And yet if in this caſe a man ſhall uſe them more extremely then he need, or do any thing before there is need; for this he may perhaps be liable to this Action. And therefore if an Officer ſhall, upon a few hot words, take one of the parties and put him in the Stocks; or if an Officer after an affray is paſt, and when no hurt is done, ſhall carry one of the Affrayers to priſon, or when there is cauſe ſhall keep the Affrayer longer then is needful, he may be liable to this Action, Bro. Imp. 3.

3. If one be about to do a Robbery, threaten to kill another, abuſe an Officer, or be taken in incontinencie, or the like, the Officer may arreſt him, and carry him to a Juſtice to put in Bail, or be ordered according to Law.

4. If the Juſtice do nothing with him, yet the Arreſt is lawful by the Officer, 5 *H.*7.6. *Bro.F.Impr.*20. 13 H. 7. 10. Old B. Entries, 554.

If any men ride armed terribly, or any Inſurrection be, all Officers of the Peace, and others in their aſſiſtance, may arreſt, impriſon and diſarm them, *Bro.Treſp.*184.

Eſcape. If one arreſt me on a Juſtice of Peace's Warrant, and I get away from him againſt his will, he may take me again where-ever he can find me, and juſtifie it. So likewiſe may a Sheriff his Priſoner in Execution for Debt. And yet if the Sheriff ſhall ſuffer him voluntarily to eſcape, and after arreſt him again; this ſecond Arreſt is unlawful, and this Action may be had for it. Otherwiſe it is (as it ſeems) upon a ſecond Arreſt by a Juſtice of Peace's Warrant, Bro. Impr. 8. *Co.*3.44.

Sureties of the Peace. A Juſtice of Peace may require any man to give Sureties of the Peace or Good-behaviour; and if he refuſe to do it, may cauſe him to be impriſoned. And if a man arreſted by the Warrant of a Juſtice of Peace to bring a man to give Sureties for the Peace or Good-behaviour, ſhall refuſe to put in Bail, the Officer without any new Warrant may carry him to Gaol. And if the Warrant from the Juſtice be, to bring him before him, or ſome other Juſtice of Peace of the County, the Officer, not the Priſoner, ſhall have the choice to what Juſtice of Peace to bring him: It therefore he bring him to one he is not willing to go to, or if he refuſe, carry him to Gaol, he may not have this Action againſt him for this, *Co.*5.59. Old B. Entries, 598,599, 560. *Bro.Treſp.*177. 5 *H.*7.6.

Officers. A man may be impriſoned for divers other cauſes, and in divers other caſes; as for divers offences done againſt the Common-Law; as an Officer for neglect of his duty, an Officer or any other for diſobedience or contempt to a Court, an Officer for making of a falſe Retorn, and the like. And therefore if a man be duly impriſoned for any ſuch cauſe, he may not have this Action for this Impriſonment. But if one be impriſoned for any other cauſe for which Impriſonment doth not lie, the party grieved may have this Action, Bro. Impr. 2.7. Alſo a man may be impriſoned for divers cauſes, and in divers caſes, by authority of divers Acts of Parliament; as for Arrearages of Account before Auditors, in caſes of Witchcraft, Forgery of Deeds, Forcible Entry, Riot, Rout, unlawful Aſſembly, for lack of Diſtreſs ſufficient, or refuſing to pay a Rate or a penalty for an offence done, Officers for refuſing to execute their Office, or to account, Alehouſe-keepers for ſelling Ale after they are ſuppreſſed, Officers or others for not obeying the Orders and Warrants of Juſtices of Peace in or out of Seſſions, Foreſtallers, Regrators, Ingroſſers, Rogues, and many others. And therefore in all theſe caſes where the Law doth warrant an Impriſonment, and the party is duly impriſoned according to that Law, he may not have an Action of Falſe Impriſonment againſt him that doth arreſt him, or for this Impriſonment. But for any threatening of a hurtful blow, as to hold up his fiſt in anger, and ſaying, I could find in my heart, &c. or, I will fell thee to the ground, if the man threatened be within his reach: Or for puſhing or ſtriking at, though he miſs the man, or thruſting a man, as for menaces and aſſaults, this Action doth lie. By Baron Thorp, at Glouceſter, 1654.

Sect. 7. Then an Impriſonment is ſaid to be unlawful, and gives this Action, when albeit the cauſe may be good, yet,

In reſpect of the authority by which it is done. 1. He that makes the Arreſt doth it without any colour of authority at all; as when a Creditor of his own head without authority from any Court ſhall arreſt the Debtor for his Debt. Or,

2. If he have a colour of authority, yet he hath no good authority; as when a Court

Court or Officer ſhall give a power, not having it, to arreſt a mans body, or a Corporation, without a cuſtome, ſhall make a Law of Impriſonment, and under this is authority a man doth arreſt, or a Conſtable ſhall arreſt a Scold, and put her in the Cucking-ſtool before ſhe is preſented in a Court, and he have a Warrant to do it. Or 3. When a Court or Officer hath a good power, but doth not well make it out; as if the Judges of the Common-pleas by word, without a Writ, command the arreſt of a Debtor, or ſend a Writ without a ſeale, and the Sheriff doth execute it; and yet a known Officer in a Corporation may Arreſt by his Mace without any precept. Or 4. When the Authority is well made forth, but it is not well purſued and executed; as when a warrant is made to three Conjunctim & Diviſim, and two of them do it, it ſeems this is not good, but all or one of them may do it, and this is good; or if the Warrant be to cauſe one to finde ſureties of the Peace, or to arreſt him, and the Officer do arreſt him before he require ſureties, and he refuſe it. So if the Warrant be to arreſt him if he doth not give ſureties; and he doe give ſureties, and yet the Officer doth arreſt him afterwards. And yet it doth not help in theſe caſes, if when the arreſt is made, it be done without Warrant, or without a good Warrant. If the party arreſting do afterwards procure a good Warrant, this will not make the arreſt Lawful. Co. 4. 64 8. 67. 10 H. 7. 17. 26. Broo. Treſp. 339. 5 Ed. 4. 12. *Broo. F. 2. A Watchman or Conſtable Ex Officio, may arreſt ſuſpitious perſons walking by night, and ſecure them. But other perſons that are not Officers it ſeems may not do ſo; if therefore ſuch perſons ſhall do ſo, the party arreſted may have this action, Co. 9. 68. 4 H. 7. 5. 18. Stat. 5 Ed. 3. 14.

3. Conſtables and ſuch like Officers, may Ex Officio arreſt Perſons breaking the Peace, or committing lewdneſs together. But other men cannot do ſo, unleſs it be in caſe of an affray and danger of murder, to part them, and keep them aſunder only till the heat be paſt. And therefore if I and another be fighting, and one that is no officer take me and put me in the ſtocks; I may have this action againſt him, Finchesley. 336. *Fitz. 4. If a Conſtable make a Deputy, and the Deputy arreſt me in caſe where the Conſtable may arreſt me; it ſeems this is lawfull and not Actionable, M. 13. Jac. B. R. Phelps Caſe.

5. If a Sheriff, Conſtable, or any ſuch like officer, in the execution of his office (being to arreſt me) require others to aid him, and they do ſo, I may have this action no more againſt them then againſt the officer himſelf, for men are bound in theſe caſes to aſſiſt, Co. 8. 66. 5. H. 7. 15. *Broo. 6. A Juſtice of peace himſelf may require any man to give ſureties of the peace or good behaviour when he hath cauſe, and if the party refuſe, he may himſelf arreſt and impriſon him, Broo. Treſ. 177.

Any perſon, Lay or Eccleſiaſtick, but Barons and Peers (who are priviledged perſons) may be arreſted: and for theſe alſo; if a Sheriff have a Capias out of the Common-pleas to arreſt ſuch a perſon, and he do arreſt his body, hereby the Sheriff may not be charged in this Action. Fieri non debet, ſed factum valet, Co. 8. 67. *Broo. remedy but by an Indempnitate nominis, Broo. F. Impr. 19. If a warrant be intended againſt me, but my name is miſtaken, and another name inſerted in the warrant, and by this Warrant the Officer doth arreſt me; in this caſe I may have this action for this arreſt, Broo. F. Impr. 38. Brownl. 1. part. 210. 2 part. 48, 49.

An arreſt of a Miniſter going to, or returning from the Church is held to be unlawfull, Brownl. 2 part. 301.

Sect. 10. In reſpect of the time of the Arreſt.

If a Sheriff or any of his Officers arreſt a man upon a Writ after the day of the return thereof is paſt, this is unlawful, and the party arreſted may have this action. And ſo ſome ſay the Law is, if he do arreſt before the day of the Teſt of the Writ, Co. 8. 66. Dier 242. And yet if a man be arreſted on a Capias or a Latitat the morning of the ſame day whereon the Writ is retornable; it ſeems this is a good and juſtifiable arreſt, Trin 3. Jac. per two Judges.

2. If a Warrant of a Juſtice be to arreſt and bring a man to the next Seſſions, and the Officer do thereupon arreſt him after the Seſſions, this is an unlawfull arreſt, Trin. 9. Car. B. R.

3. If one have a Warrant to arreſt me from a Juſtice of Peace or the Sheriff, and before the Warrant is executed the Sheriff or Juſtice of Peace is diſcharged of his Office, and the Officer hath notice of it, and yet he do afterwards arreſt me upon this Warrant, in this caſe I may have this Action, Dier 41.

By the new Act of Parliament, 19 April 1650. all Arreſts on that day, ſave only for Felony, breach of the Peace, and profanation of the day, are made unlawfull, and the Arreſters to be puniſhed

4. An arreſt may be upon any day of the week, and upon any part of the day or night; and yet let the Officer ſee to it, for if he uſe to make arreſts on the Lords day, or if he arreſt a Miniſter going to, or returning from the Church, or in the Church, eſpecially whiles he is about the ſervice of God; this is an offence that was puniſhable in the Starchamber, and is puniſhable by binding the offender to the good behaviour, Co. 9. 66. Trin. 3 Jac. per. 3 Juſtices. Stat. 1. R. 2. Ch. 15. 50 Ed. 3. 5.

5. If a Warrant be from a Juſtice of Peace directed to an Officer to cauſe me to finde ſureties of the Peace, and I hearing of it, do voluntarily binde my ſelf before a Juſtice of Peace, and have a Superſedeas from him, and give notice hereof to the Officer, and yet he do afterwards arreſt me, I may have this action againſt him, Polton de pace. 20.

Sect. 11. In reſpect of the place.

1. An arreſt may be in any place, Church, Houſe or Field, only let the Officer ſee to it, that he do it not in the Church, eſpecially that he diſturb not the ſervice of God; for however the arreſt be good, yet the thing done is a miſdemeanor puniſhable, ſo alſo let him take heed that he enter not into another mans houſe to make his arreſt, when it is in a ſuit brought by a private perſon, and not in caſe of the Commonwealth, wherein one may juſtifie the entering into and breaking of a houſe, if a man cannot otherwiſe do it. And let him ſee he do it within his own Precinct, for in theſe caſes he may make himſelf liable to this action. And yet in caſe of arreſt in another mans houſe, the Arreſt is good, and the Officer not puniſhable for this by any Action of the party arreſted, but the Owner of the houſe may bring this Action for his entry into the houſe, Co. 9. 66. 14 Jac. B. R. per Ch. Juſtice.

2. If the officer arreſt a man in a franchiſe or priviledged place, (within his Precinct otherwiſe) this arreſt is good. And yet the Lord of the Franchiſe may have an Action of the caſe againſt the Officer for intruding into his Franchiſe, Co. 9. 66. Ch. Juſt. B. R. in 15 Jac.

Eſcape.

3. In ſome caſes the Sheriff or other Officer may go out of his County or Precincts as the Sheriff upon the eſcape of a priſoner, or a ſpeciall Writ to remove a priſoner. But if a priſoner be with his Keeper only in another County where the Sheriff hath not to do, and unleſs it be in the caſes before; this is an eſcape, and the priſoner may have this action againſt the Sheriff, Dier 66. Alſo the Juſtice of Peace may ſpecially command an Officer out of his Precinct, and by ſuch ſpeciall command an officer may Arreſt out of his precinct, Broo. F. Impr. 26. Weſtm. ch. 1. 34.

Sect. 12. In reſpect of matter ſubſequent to the Arreſt. Falſe retorn. Refuſe bail.

If a Sheriff or a Bailiff of a Franchiſe Arreſt me upon a Capias ad Reſpondendum, and afterward he do not retorn the Writ, or do retorn him Non eſt inventus; in theſe caſes I may have this Action, Co. 5. 90 Kelw. 3, 66. 89. 3 H. 7. 11.

If the Sheriff or his Bailiffs Arreſt me, and I am bailable, and offer them ſufficient bail, and they refuſe it, for the impriſonment afterwards this action lieth, Dier 25. Pl. 60. F. N. B. 152.

If

If any Officer after I am to be diſcharged, having put in bail or otherwiſe, Keep me, or having let me go, Arreſt me again for undue Fees; I may have this Action for the detainment afterwards. But for due Fees it ſeems the Officer may keep the priſoner till he pay them. For Fees.

If one after he hath arreſted me, when he ſhould carry me to a Juſtice, or to a Goal that I may be in a way of Triall or delivery, he keep me at his houſe, or in another place, unleſs it be in a caſe of neceſſity, and ſo long as the neceſſity ſhall continue; I may have this Action againſt him, Kewl. 45. Plow. 38. Bro. F. Impr. 25. Brownl. 2 part. 41. Stat. 5. H. 4. ch. 10. Keep the priſoner from trial.

If a known ſworn common Baily Arreſt me by a Warrant from the Sheriff, and I ſubmit to the Arreſt, and deſire ſight of the Warrant, and he will not ſhew it, nor declare the contents of it (that is) ſhew the cauſe, at whoſe ſuit, and for what ſumm, and in what Court, &c. I may have this Action againſt him, and if it be another Bailiff, he muſt ſhew the Warrant it ſelf, otherwiſe the party arreſted may have this Action againſt him. But in caſe where I do not deſire the ſight of the Warrant, or do not ſubmit to the Arreſt but ſtrive to eſcape, in this caſe the Bailiff is not bound to ſhew the Warrant, or declare the contents of it, Cook. 9. 69. 6. 55. 21 H. 7. 23. 14 H. 7. 9. Refuſe to ſhew his Authority.

If a Juſtice of Peace ſend for a man about a Felony, and then preſently ſend him to Goal without any examination; it ſeems this Action will lie for him againſt the Juſtice of Peace, M. 8. Jac. B. R. If the Sheriffs Baily having Arreſted me upon an Execution, I pay the money and get a Superſedeas from the Sheriff to diſcharge me, and the Bailiff pretending he cannot reade the Superſedeas or the like, refuſe to deliver me; I may have this Action againſt him, Trin. 37 Eliz. Co. B. Stringers Caſe. And by Juſt. Whitlock at Glouc. Aſſiſes. 6. Car. 13 H. 7. 16. 1 H. 7. 28. So if the Sheriff himſelf after he hath arreſted me, and I get and ſhew him a Legall diſcharge, as a Superſedeas from above, the Plaintiffs Releaſe, and a power from him to deliver me; he ſhall notwithſtanding keep me priſoner ſtill, in this caſe I may have this Action againſt him. M. 13 Jac. B. R. Withers Caſe. Fitz Barr 253. Not examination of a Felon.

If one do wrongfully beat or hurt me, or cauſe me to be hurt by ſetting his dog upon me, or the like; I may have this Action againſt him, Fincheſley 263. But for the further opening of this point take theſe following caſes. Sect. 13. Battery and Aſſault.

1. If one hurt me againſt his will, or by accident, as at a Training, Tilt, Foot-ball, Fence, or other play, by the glance of an Arrow, caſt of a Stone or the like, I may have this Action againſt him: and yet if the thing done, be done by an unavoidable neceſſity, wherein he that doth it is no waies faulty, as if he run upon my Sword, or Musket as I am about to diſcharge it, and thereby hurt himſelf, or the like; for theſe things no Action will lie. Hob. Rep pl. 176 Bro. Treſp. 178. 294. 6 Ed. 4. 7. 10 Ed. 4. 6. So if one be forced to ſtrike me, or thruſt upon me, I may not ſue him that was forced for this, 9 Ed. 4. 37. 21 H. 7. 27. Accidents. Neceſſity unavoidable.

2. If one make but an Aſſault upon me firſt (and what an aſſault is we have ſhewed before, and ſhall do after) I may then beat him and juſtifie it, but I may not wound him, and it is not materiall in this caſe whether I be in any imminent danger or not, Old B. Entries 644. Of his own wrong.

3. If one go about to enter into my houſe, or to take away my goods againſt my will, I may in defence thereof gently put him back, and if that will not do, I may beat him and juſtifie it. So it ſeems if a man have taken my goods I may preſently retake them, and if he will not deliver them, do as before. But if a man go about to ſtop or turn my water-courſe, or enter into my Cloſe againſt my will, I may not make this reſiſtance. And yet in theſe caſes I may molliter manus imponere upon the Treſpaſſor to keep him off, and juſtifie this, Curia Paſ. 7 Jac. B. R. Old B. entries. 554. 553. 14 H. 7. Baron Henden at Glouc. Aſſiſes. 17 Car. Brownl. 1 part. 218. In defence of ones Houſe and Goods.

4 A friend alſo may juſtifie the beating of a ſtranger in the defence of the life and perſon of his friend, as a Wife for a Husband, a Husband for a Wife, a Father for a Childe, a Childe for a Father, a Servant for a Maſter or Miſtreſs, but not a Maſter for a Servant; and in theſe caſes they may diſarm him that doth make the aſſault, till the heat be paſt, Bro. Treſp. 37. Old B. entries 553. 554.

5 Albeit

Wound, what. 5 Albeit in theſe caſes the beating of another is juſtifiable, yet the wounding, that is, the breaking of the fleſh and letting out the bloud is not juſtifiable, 16 Ed. 4. 11. 21 H. 8. 39. 27. Kelw. 92. 9 Ed. 4. 28. Bro. Treſp. 37.

Rogue. 6. Moderate correction may be given to a Rogue according to the Statute, and no Action will lie for this battery.

Correction of Children, Scholars, &c. 7. A Maſter may give moderate correction to his Apprentiſe, Scholar, or Servant, and no Action will lie againſt the Maſter for this; but if the correction be exceſſive, this Action will lie, Bro. Treſpas. 353. 349. Old B. entries. 555.

Oppoſers of Authority. 8. If any man arreſted upon a Writ, or for felony, ſhall not ſubmit to the Arreſt but reſiſt, and there be no other remedy, they that Arreſt may beat or wound him; and if any others ſhall goe about to prevent the Arreſt, or after Arreſt to reſcue the priſoner, they that make the Arreſt may juſtifie the beating of the oppoſers, 5 H. 7. 5. 4 H. 7. 18. 21 H. 7. 39. 2 Ed. 4. 6. Fitz. Corone 263.

9. If two be fighting together, any man that ſtands by may go between them and do his beſt to part them, and juſtifie this; but he may not juſtifie the beating or hurting of either of them, unleſs he do firſt beat or ſtrike at him, Per Juſtice Jones, Lent Aſſiſes at Glouc. 5. Car.

10. If a man trouble a Congregation at Divine Service, the Miniſter or any other for him may as it ſeems lay hands upon him, and put him out of the Church and juſtifie it, Old B. entries 554.

Sect. 14. Aſſault, what. If another man do unlawfully ſet upon me, attempt to beat me, ſtrike at me though he do not hit me, or hold up his weapon to ſtrike at me being within his reach, thruſt or puſh me, caſt ſtones at me, though he do not hit me caſt, drink in my face or upon my clothes, beſet my houſe, tear my clothes or the like, this is an aſſault for which I may have this Action. So if one Raviſh me being a Woman, this

Rape. is a foul aſſault and an Impriſonment alſo, for which I may be relieved by this Action. But if one offer to take away my hunting dog from me by force, or ſtrike at me at a great diſtance, ſo that he could neither hit me nor put me in fear of being hit or ſtricken, or if one ſtrike at me, hurl ſtones at me, or do any ſuch like act as before, merrily or accidentally, and not purpoſely and ſeriouſly, in theſe caſes and for theſe cauſes it ſeems no Action will lie, Fincheſley 29. 40 Ed. 3. 40. Bro. Treſpas 336. 236. 9 Ed. 4. 26. 22 Aſſ. 60: Old B. entries 552.

Menace and lying in wait. If one do threaten me to my face or behind my back, to kill or beat me, or lie in wait and watch to do ſo, inſomuch that I dare not follow my buſineſs as at other times, and I have any ſpeciall loſs by this, I may have this Action for my remedy. But if he threaten only to ſue me or the like, or if I have no ſpeciall loſs by the threatening; no Action will lie for this, 18 Ed. 4. 28. 10 Ed. 4. 28. 7 Ed. 4. 24. 3 H. 6. 18. And yet if a man furiouſly purſue me, that I cannot avoid him, having fled from him as far as I can; I may then threaten to kill him, if he will not depart, and juſtifie it, Bro. Treſpas 28.

Thus we have done with the Treſpaſſes that are done to a mans own perſon; now we are to ſpeak to the Treſpaſſes that are done to him in that which is his, that is, his Wife, Childe, Servant, Tenant, Ward, Houſe, Land, Goods or Cattel.

Violence offered to a man in his Wife, Childe, Servant, &c. If one carry or keep away my Wife from me againſt my will, I may have this Action; and yet if my Wife be like to be drowned or be ſick, or otherwiſe in imminent danger, and another take her up and bring her home to my houſe, or any ſafe place to ſuccour and preſerve her, or if one at her requeſt take her up and carry her from a Fair, to eaſe her; no Action will lie for either of theſe things. So it is ſaid if I abuſe my Wife, and a friend take her and carry her to ſue out a Divorce, or to have a Warrant of the Peace againſt the Husband when there is cauſe, that for this I may not have this Action, ſed Quære of this, 21 H. 7. 27. 9 Ed. 4. 33. F. N. B. 91. Old B. entries 593. 20 H. 7. 2. So if one take or keep away my Ward from me being his Guardian or my Son and Heir, knowing it to be ſo, I may have this Action. So if one take away my Son or Daughter: So if one threaten or lie in wait for my Servants to kill or maim them, that they dare not follow their buſineſs, or maim or hurt my ſervant that he doth not, nor can do me the ſervice he did formerly, whereby I have any ſpeciall loſs, I may have this Action for remedy againſt this loſs. But if the threatening be only to ſue my Servants, or the like, or whatever it be, if I have no ſpecial loſs by it, no Action will lie for it, Old B. Entr. 552. 20 *H.*7.5. 9 *H.*7.7. *Bro.Treſp.*388.609. So if one take or keep away my Servant from me, knowing him to be my Servant. And ſo likewiſe it is if one threaten my Tenants at will, ſo that they depart from my Lands, and I have any ſpecial loſs thereby, I may have relief by this Action. But if my Leſſees for life or years be ſo threatened, no Action will lie by me for this threatening, Old B.Entr 569.593.582.583. So if I be a Gaoler, and one take away my Priſoner from me; or I be a Lord, and one take away my Villain from me; or I be a Soldier and have taken a Priſe in War, and another take it from me, I muſt have this Action.

Wrong done to a man in his Houſe or Lands, or Goods or Cattel.

If any man enter into, burn or break my Houſe, pull down or break down my Walls, or break or carry away my Wainſcot, Doors, Furnaces or Windows of my Houſe, enter into my Orchard, Garden, Cloſe or Lands, and tread, eat, plow, root up, cut or ſpoil the Corn, Graſs, Wood, Hedges or Trees thereon growing, or rob me of the Fruit of my Garden or Orchard, ſet up Pales or a Fold in my Ground, dig or carry away my Land, Coals, Mines or Stones, fill my Ditches: If one dig, root up, break or take away my Poles, Hedges, Gates, Pales, Fences; or if one break, ſpoil, or take away my Money, Plate, Corn, Grain, Cheſt, Houſholdſtuff, Wood cut, Weapons, Ship, Boat, Wain, Writings, Bottles, Wooll ſhorne, or the like Goods, or unlawfully diſtrain any ſuch thing of mine, or abuſe it after it is taken as a Diſtreſs, or ſuffer his Goods to lie in my Houſe, or upon my Ground Damage-feſant: If one kill, beat, hurt, chaſe or take away my Cattel, Hound, Hawk, Maſtiff, Pheſants, Partridges, Poppinjays, Thruſhes, or the like, being tamed and uſing my Houſe, pull o rſheer my Sheep, ſtrike my Horſe in travel, and by that means it throw me down, take away Goods waived, or an Eſtray or Felons goods belonging to me, or unlawfully arreſt or diſtrain my Cattel, or abuſe them being diſtrained, or ſuffer his Cattel to be upon my Ground Damage-feſant: If one kill, hurt, or take away my Deer, or any ſuch like Beaſt, my Cocks, Hens, or my Partridges, or any ſuch like Fowl, whiles it is tame and uſing about my Houſe, my young Pidgeons or Hawks out of their neſts or boxes: If one hunt in my free Warren, deſtroy my Fiſh, or diſturb my Fiſhing, hinder me in my Fold of my Cattel, put any thing in the water I uſe for my ſelf or my Cattel to infect it: If one do ſtop Ditches, and thereby or otherwiſe cauſe the water to overflow or run over my Ground, take Wine out of my Bottles and put water in the room, dig Trenches overthwart the way to hinder my going to my Ground, or let out the water out of my Mill-pond that I cannot grinde, break or cut my Sluces or the head of my Pond, and let out my Fiſh; or break the head of another Pool, and let ſo much water into my Pond, that it doth overflow, and the Fiſh do go out: If any man take away my Tythes, being Parſon: In all theſe caſes before, and ſuch like caſes, I may have this Action for my remedy, Brownl. 1 par. 30.

It is ſaid alſo, that for taking exceſſive Toll of me by a Millard, I may have this Action; and that if one diſturb me in a Market or Fair where it is due, I may have this remedy, Bro. Treſp. 41, and *F. N. B. Treſp. in toto. Old N. B. Treſp. in toto. Co.*9.112. But for this ſee more afterwards. If a Deviſee of a Term or Goods, enter into the Lands or take the Goods before the aſſent of the Executor, he may have this Action againſt him, *Bro.Treſp.*25.

Sect. 15. In reſpect of the caſe, and where this Action will lie for ſuch a thing done, or not.

If I have a Fiſhing or a Warren in another mans Ground, and the Owner of the Ground or another take, hunt, kill or deſtroy my Fiſh or my Game, I may have this Action for my relief, 12 *H.*8.3. *Kelw.*30. If I have Fiſh in a Trunk or Pond, and a ſtranger take them away, I may have this Action againſt him. If I have Hounds, Spaniels, Maſtiffs, Greyhounds, or ſuch like uſeful Dogs, and any man take them from me, or hurt them with me, I may have this Action againſt him, *Hob.Rep pl.*363. 12 *H.*8.3. 18 *H.*8.2. And yet if one have a Dog that doth uſe to kill my Conies in my Warren, or a Hawk that doth uſe to kill my Pidgeons about my Pidgeon-houſe, and I kill him; no Action will lie againſt me for this. Matters of pleaſure.

Wild Beaſts and Birds.

If I have a Deer, Hare or Cony, or any ſuch like beaſt; a Pidgeon, Swan, Hawk, Pheſant, Partridg, Parret, Black-bird, Thruſh, Popinjay, or the like Bird that is tame and and doth uſe my houſe, and any man do take them from me, and hurt them with me, I may have this action. But if any man take any ſuch creature whiles it is wilde, no Action will lie for this, nor if once they were tame and after become wilde again. If one take away my Hawk in flight, or my Deer out of my Warren whiles I am in hunting of him, I may have this action, 12 *H.*8.3. 3 *H.*6.5. 18 *H.*8.2. Broo. Treſpas. 407. 215. *Hob. Rep. pl.*363.

If one come into my Warren or priviledged place, though it be not my Ground, and there hunt, kill or take away my game of Fiſh, Beaſts or Fowl, or kill my Cones in my own ground that is no Warren; I may have this action againſt him. And if a man ſpring a Feſant in his own Warren, and it flie into another mans Ground which is no Warren; he may enter the ground and take the Hawk and Feſant; but if they flie into another mans Warren, there his entry is a treſpaſs. But if one kill my wilde hares or conies out of my free Warren and out of my Ground, I can have no action for this. 12 *H.*8.3. Kelw. 30. F. N. B. 87. 38 *Ed.*3. 10 *Broo. Treſp.*111.

Damag feſant. If a mans goods or Cattel be in my houſe or ground Damage Feſant, albeit it be againſt the Owners will and without his knowledge, yet I may have this Action for the treſpaſs, or Diſtraine them Damage feſant at my choiſe, *Kelw.*3. 13 *H.*7. 10. *Old B. entries.*570, 571. As if a leſſee of my houſe ſuffer his Goods a longer time then is reaſonable, after his leaſe ended, I may Diſtrain them, ſome ſay I may alſo bring this Action againſt him: but it is beſt to make an entry firſt, 13 *H.*7 9. And if the owner of the Cattel enter and take them away before he have tendred amends to me for the Treſpaſs, this is a ſecond Treſpaſs for which I may have this Action alſo, 21 *H.*7.27. If a ſtranger put in his beaſts into the Common where I have common, I may not have this action againſt him, but I may Diſtrain them Damage Feſant, *Co.*9. 112. 15 *H.*7.13.

Chaſing of Cattel. If a man himſelf or with dogs chaſe or hunt my Cattel in mine or another mans Ground, I may have this action; and yet the owner of the ground wherein my Cattel are doing Treſpaſs, may gently by himſelf or his Dogs chaſe them out, and juſtifie it. But if he do them hurt thereby, this Action will lie, *Hill.*16 Jac. B. R. Per. 3. *Juſtices in Burges Caſe. M.*5 Jac. B. R. Glovers Caſe. Co. 4. in Terringtons Caſe. Broo. Treſp. 421. *Co.*8.67. And if ones Pigs be in my ground, I may chaſe them out with a Dog, if I do not hurt them, Hill. 16 Jac. B. R.

If a mans Cattel be in anothers ground doing treſpaſs, the owner of the ground is not bound to put them into the pound, but may put them out, and if they be thereby loſt he ſhall not anſwer them, *M.*5, Jac. Sr Chr. Hudſons Caſe.

Goods confounded that cannot be known. If a man take my Corn and put to his, ſo that it cannot be diſtinguiſhed which is his and which is mine, and then I carry away all, it ſeems this Action will not lie againſt me for this, 22 Car. at Glouc. Aſſiſes, per Serjant Wilde.

Tenant at will. Waſte. If my tenant at will of my Land do commit any voluntary waſte, as burn the houſes or the like, I may have this action againſt him. But otherwiſe it is of a negligent or permiſſive waſte, *Co.*5. 31. Dier 171. Lit. Sect. 71 Broo. Treſp. 362. And if ſuch a Tenant cut under-wood, not timber, at ſeaſonable times, or having a Mine, dig and ſell there, no Action will lie for either of theſe things againſt him, Broo. Treſp. 327. But for cutting Trees this Action, not waſt lyeth. Alſo this action will lye againſt my ſervant for taking away or ſpoiling my goods in his hands and poſſeſſion. Goldsb. 72. *Pl.*18.66. Pl. 10.

Goods delivered upon truſt, or come without taking into a mans hands. Regularly where a man hath my goods by my delivery upon a truſt, as when I deliver to another my goods to keep, or I deliver Goods to a Carrier to carry, or the like; if he convey or keep them from me, or ſpoil, or ſell them, or negligently ſuffer them to be ſpoiled, I cannot have this action for my remedy, but ſome other action, *Co.*5.14. 2 *H.*7.11, 16 *H.*7.3. And yet if my ſhepherd willfully deſtroy my ſheep, or my Butler willfully ſpoil my plate, or I deliver my Cattel to one to plow or compaſs his land, and he kil them; in theſe caſes I may have this Action againſt him, *Co.*5, 14.31. 2 *H.*7.11. Broo. Treſp. 343. 327. 295. 72. *Litt. Sect.*72. So if another do it by the Licence of ſuch a perſon. And by theſe caſes it ſeems this Action ſhould lie againſt the Carrier in the firſt caſe, Sed quære. If I be a Taverner, Mercer or Draper, and my ſervant uſing to ſell my goods give away my Goods, it is ſaid I may not ſaid, I may not have this Action, nor any other againſt the taker, but muſt take my remedy againſt my ſervant, Broo. Treſp. 205. Sed quære. If my Wife convey away my Goods, and I die, my Executor may not have this Action, but muſt have ſome other remedy, M. 8 Jac. C. B. If one give me leave to put my Corn in his Barn, and I agree that he ſhall keep the Key, and he ſell the Corn; it is ſaid, I cannot have this Action againſt him, but ſome other. By Serjeant Wilde, 22 Car. at Gloceſter Aſſiſes. If my Goods happen to be in an Executors hands amongſt the Teſtators Goods, unawares of the Executor, no Action of Treſpaſs will lie againſt him for this. But after notice given to the Executor, and a Demand of the Goods, and Refuſal, ſome other Action will lie. 21 H. 7. 27. Broo. Treſp. 311.

Incidents of Houſe.

We have ſhewed before, that this Action will lie for the owner of a Houſe, againſt him that ſhall take away or ſpoil any of the Incidents of his houſe, as Furnaces, Doors, Wainſcots, Pale, Glaſs, or the like: And for this it is to be known, That all things that are annexed and faſtned to a Houſe by Nails, Screws or Pins, or by Morter or Stones, as Glaſs, Wainſcot, Tables, Shelfs, Vaults, Furnaces, Doors, Locks and Keys, and the like, are ſo inſeparably incident to the Houſe, that be they put on by whomſoever, they cannot be taken away by the Leſſee for life or years, before or after the end of his Term, but he muſt ſubject himſelf to this Action; but he that hath any Eſtate in Fee-ſimple or Fee-tail of ſuch a houſe, may pluck it down if he will, and ſo may a Leſſee that holds it for life or years, without Impeachment of Waſte, 21 H. 7. 26. Co. 4. 63. 21 H. 7. 13. See more in Property, cap. 17.

Sect. 16. About taking away Cattel or Goods, and where a man may take his Cattel or Goods from another man, or not.

If a Man do voluntarily take away my Goods or Cattle, and keep them till I pay him money, either without colour or with colour, as under pretence that it is his Herriot, Waiff, or Eſtray, when it is not ſo, this Action lieth; and if he will not reſtore them till I pay Money or Bond, I ſhall have a Recompence for it all in Damages in this Action, Broo. Treſp. 354. M. 8 Car. B R. Cannons caſe. So if a man ſhall any way take away or ſpoil my Goods. If a man drive my Cattel into another mans ground, I may go into the ground and fetch out my Cattel, and yet by this I am a Treſpaſſor to the owner of the ground, and for this he may bring this Action againſt me, and I muſt take my Counter-remedy againſt him that drave them in, Dodridge in his Treatiſe, 21 H. 7. 27. D. & St. 34. Co. 1 part. 54. But if the owner of the ground drive my Cattel, or carry my Goods without Authority into his ground, I may (eſpecially in a freſh purſuit) go into his ground and fetch them out, and for this he can have no Action againſt me, and yet in this caſe I may not go into his dwelling-houſe to take my Goods again, nor had the Goods been delivered by me, could I have entred into his Cloſe to take them again. 21 H. 6. 39. 9 Ed 4. 35. Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. Old B. of Entries, 561. If ones Cattel in drift break a way into my ground, where the Incloſure is good, or into my houſe, the door being open, the Driver may fetch them out, but I may have this Action for the Entry, being a Treſpaſs, Broo. Treſp. 321. If I be driving Cattel to Pound, and they eſcape into another Pariſh, or another mans ground againſt my will, and I do preſently fetch them out, no Action will lie againſt me for this, Broo. Treſp. 335.

Note.

Whereſoever I may juſtifie the taking of my Cattel, I may juſtifie the taking of their yong ones, if they have any. Broo. Treſp. 323. If one take away my Goods from me, I may then preſently take them from him, and juſtifie it, Kelw. 62. Broo. Treſp. 185. And if I deliver to one Goods to deliver to me on Requeſt, and he deliver them to another, it is ſaid, I may take them away from him, 21 H. 7. 13. Broo. Treſp. 118. 186.

Acts of kindneſs.

If my dead Goods be in danger of ſpoiling, as my Corn in the Harveſt, and my Neighbor out of his good will doth take it up, or bring it to his own, or my Barn; or if he trench my Meadow where need is, and doth mend it, or if a ſtrangers Cattel be in my Corn, and he drive them out: In all theſe caſes, and for theſe things, done without my leave, I may have this Action. And yet if my own Cattel be in my Corn, and another man drive them out, no Action will lie for this. If a houſe be on fire, I may take any mans Goods out of the houſe, or fire, to preſerve them, and no Action will lie for this. And if my Horſe be faln in a Pit, and in danger, any man may juſtifie the pulling of him out of the Pit, Kelw. 88. 2 H. 6. 37. 21 H. 7. 27. 12 H. 8. 2, 15. 8 Ed. 4. 35. 13 H. 8. 16.

For Publick good.

If a Ship be in danger of drowning, the Marriners may caſt out the Goods to ſave men and juſtifie it. So when a Houſe is on fire, the Neighbors may take out the Goods to preſerve them, Daffins caſe. 6 Jac. 21 *H.*7.27. If one aſſault me with a weapon, I may (it ſeems) take away his weapon and deliver it to a Conſtable to keep the peace, and juſtifie it, N. B. of Entries 651.

Sect. 19. About Entry into, or breaking of another Mans Houſe or Ground, and where it is lawful, or not.

It is a rule that no man may enter into my Houſe or Ground without my authority or licence, or authority of Law. And if he doth, he is a Treſpaſſor to me, and I may have this Action againſt him, 12 *H.*8.2. But in many caſes a man may enter into my Houſe or Cloſe, and be blameleſs. For the opening hereof, therefore take theſe caſes.

View or to fetch Goods.

1. If another man have a Horſe, Timber, or other Goods in my Houſe or Ground, and he enter into it, to ſee or take it away without my leave, I may have this Action againſt him; and albeit he had a Leaſe of the Land a little before, yet if it be now ended, this will not help him, 21 *H.*7.13. 19 *H.*7.9. 14 *H.*8.1. 9 *Ed.*4.35. And albeit I did command my ſervant to deliver the thing to him, yet this will not excuſe the Entry, 18 *Ed.*4.25. If I be an Executor, I ſhall have a reaſonable time to fetch away my Goods out of the Houſe wherein I may enter and take them. And yet if I be a Leſſee of a houſe for the life of J. S. or J. S. Leſſee for life make me a Leaſe for years, and J. S. die; in theſe caſes, if I have Goods in the houſe, and take them away in convenient time, no Action will lie againſt me; otherwiſe it is if I ſuffer them to ſtay too long; and the Judges ſhall ſet down what time is reaſonable, not the Jury, 22 *Ed.*4.27. By Juſtice Haughton, 2 *H.*6.15,16. Brownl. 1 *part.*224.

2. If a man take away my Cattel or Goods, and put them into his ground, I may follow them and take them again; otherwiſe it is if they were taken away by a ſtranger, or I deliver them to him, or they be in his dwelling-houſe, ſee before. And yet it is ſaid, if a man have my Goods in his houſe, and his door be open, that I may go in and fetch them out. Howes caſe, M. 9 Jac. B.R. Broo. Treſp. 118.186. 21 *H.*7.13.

Flight to ſave life.

3. If a man be aſſaulted and like to be killed, and he flie through my ground to ſave his life, I cannot ſue him for this, 37 *H.*6. 37.

To fetch out lops of Trees.

4. If a man lop a Tree, and ſome of the Lops unavoidably fall into my ground, and he go into my ground, and fetch them out, I cannot have an Action for this, either for the fall or entry; but the neceſſity muſt be unavoidable, elſe an Action will lie for both, *Broo. Treſp.*310. Hill. 8 Jac. By Juſtice Dodridge. And yet if there be two Tenants in Common of a Tree that doth grow between two men, and one of them doth cut and ſeiſe it all; in this caſe the other cannot go into the others houſe or ground to ſeiſe it.

To Repair.

5. If one be bound to repair a Bridg which cannot be done without his coming upon my ground do it; in this caſe he may do ſo at a ſeaſonable time without danger of this Action, *Broo. Treſp.*260. So if one grant me to dig a trench in his ground to lead water to my houſe, if it be ſtopped, I may go into his ground to amend it, 13 *H.*8.15. 9 *Ed.*4.25.

Upon a Licence.

6. If I do licenſe J. S. to deliver Wood to J. D. in ſuch a Cloſe, and J. D. come into the Cloſe to take it, it ſeems this is juſtifiable, *Broo. Treſp.*242.

To take Tithes

7. The Parſon may come into my ground, being a Pariſhioner, and ſhall have a reaſonable time to order and fetch his Tithes, *Bro. Treſp.*345. 325. 49.

To remove a Nuſance.

8. If I have a Mill, and the water that drives it, runs through another mans ground, and ſomething is done there to obſtruct my water; in this caſe I may go into his ground to ſee, and if any be, to remove it, and if it be a houſe, I may abate it, and juſtifie it, 9 *Ed.*4.35.

To Diſtrain.

9. If my Tenant when I am coming to diſtrain, drive his Cattel into another mans ground, or into ſome other ground of his own, held of another man; in theſe caſes I may enter into the ground and take them.

To prevant a common miſchief, and for Publick good.

10. In caſe of a common danger, as if water that runs by a Town be ſtopped, that it may endanger the drowning of the Town, I may go into any mans ground to give it a paſſage, and if a Houſe be on fire, any man may pull down part of it to ſave the reſt; or pull down it, or perhaps other houſes to prevent the burning of many others. So in caſe of Enemies, Soldiers may juſtifie the making of Bulwarks. So Fiſhers may juſtifie the going into any mans ground to amend or dry their Nets. So men may go into any mans ground to hunt or kill Foxes, Otters, Grayes, and the like Vermin, and all this without the Licenſe of the owner, Dyer 36. 12 *H.*8. 2. Brow. Treſpaſs 40. 21 H 7. 27. 13 *H.*8. 16. 8 *Ed.*4. 35, 18. But a man may not do ſo to kill Hares: Alſo to keep the peace and prevent miſchief, any man may enter into anothers ground, or (as it ſeems) his houſe either. So alſo to apprehend Felons, any man may enter into another mans ground or houſe, and break the houſe alſo if need be: Alſo a man may turn his Plough upon his Neighbors Land in the Field, if it cannot be avoided in Plowing, Broo. Treſp. 354. 327. So to make a perambulation, the Miniſter and Pariſhioners may after their uſual manner go into mens grounds. N. B. Entries 652. Old B. Entries 558. See more after where this Action will lie againſt an Officer.

11. If a Mans Horſe or Beaſt be like to be drowned, I may go into any mans ground to ſave him, and if he be like to be killed, I may go into into his houſe to preſerve him, 12 *H.*8. 2. 13 *H.*8. 5. And yet if I go into another mans ground to ſave his horſe from ſtealing, or his Tithes from being ſpoiled by weather or Pigs, he may have this Action againſt me, 21 *H.*7. 27. 9 *Ed.*4. 35. To ſave Men or Cattel in danger.

12. If one be unlawfully impriſoned in my houſe, and he break the houſe, and get out, I cannot have this Action againſt him, 9 *Ed.*4. 35. 21 *H.*7. 37.

13. If one have ſheep ſtoln, he may go into any mans ground where he doth ſuſpect the ſheep are, to ſee the ſheep whether they be his or not. By Juſtice Berkley, M. 8 Car. To look for ſtoln Goods.

14. If the Sheriff have a Replevin againſt my Goods, the Plaintiff may come with him into my Cloſe to ſhew him my Goods, 3 *H.*6. 37.

15. If I have Cloth in a Tailors or Sheremans ſhop, and the door be open, I may go in to ſee it, Howes caſe. M. 9 Jac. B. R. To ſee a Mans Goods.

16. If I make a Leaſe of my dwelling-houſe, rendring Rent, or one is bound to pay me money on an Obligation in my dwelling-houſe; in this caſe he may come into my houſe to do it, when I am there to tender. But if it be to be done in another mans houſe. Contra. Plow. 71. 18 *Ed.*4. 25. 9 *Ed.*4. 25. To pay Mony.

17. If I or the Commonwealth have a way through anothers ground, or title of Common there, or cauſe to diſtrain there; in theſe caſes I may come into the ground to uſe or do it, and no Action will lie againſt me for this in any of the caſes before, M. 7 Jac. B. R. Old B. of Entries 559, 560. And yet if I be beſides the way, or take more common then my due, this Action will lie for this exceeding. To take his Way, Common, &c.

18. If a man have buſineſs with me to ſhew me a deed for preventing a difference, or the like, and I being in my houſe or ground, he come in to ſpeak of the matter; it is ſaid this is not actionable, Broo. Treſp. 23. Sed Quere. For if he do it without licence or invitation, it ſeems to me actionable.

19. In many other caſes the Law gives power to enter into Houſe or Land, as Travellers or others, may go into a common Inn or Hoſtry, a man may Diſtrain for his Rent or Damage-feſant, a man that hath right to an Eſtray, may ſeiſe him, a man that hath a Reverſion of Land may go into it to view it, a man that hath power to ſell Land, hath power to view it and value it; a Commoner may go on the Common to ſee his Cattel: The Kings Purveyor might have taken up Cattel for the King, and no Action will lie againſt theſe men for any of theſe things.

But in all theſe, and ſuch like caſes, where a man may juſtifie his Entry into another mans houſe or ground, for ſome ſpecial purpoſe, he muſt ſee he do not abuſe his power there. And therefore in all the caſes before of power given to enter into Lands, if he ſhall break the Hedges, leave open the Gates, or otherwiſe abuſe his power, he ſhall be puniſhed as a Treſpaſſor from the beginning. And in the laſt caſes, if a Traveller or other, ſhall ſtay in the Inn over-long, break or take away any of the Houſhold-goods, break the Windows of the Inn, or the like, or the party diſtraining in the next caſe ſhall work, kill, or otherwiſe abuſe the Diſtreſs, or in the next caſe he ſhall hurt, ſell, or kill the Eſtray, or in the next caſe, if he in Reverſion ſhall break the houſe to come in, or being come in at the doors, ſtay all night, cut down Trees, or dig the ground, or the Purveyor ſell the Cattel or Goods taken up; in all theſe, and the like caſes before, the Law doth reckon all that is done unlawful, and the party grieved may have this Action for his relief.

Debt. And yet if one enter into an Inn, and do not pay for his victuals he calleth for, or being diſtrained, and he offer the Rent, for which he was diſtrained, and the Diſtrainer will not deliver the Diſtreſs; in theſe caſes, and for theſe cauſes the offender is not reputed a Treſpaſſor ab initio, but in that thing onely.

Action of the Caſe. And in the firſt caſe the In-keeper ſhall have an Action of Debt, or on the Caſe, for his money; in the latter, an Action of Treſpaſs, or Treſpaſe on the Caſe for his Relief. Co. 8. 146. 5. 76. D. & St. 112. Dyer 36. 134. 5 *H.*7. 11. 16 *H.*7. 14. 21 *H.*7. 22. 9 *H.*6. 29. 11 *H.*4. 75.

In like manner it is of an authority given by one man to another, if he to whom it is given, exceed and abuſe it, as I give one leave to enter into my houſe or cloſe, and he break the Houſe, or cut down Trees, or I give one power to take one, and he take two of my Horſes, or I give one power to ride my Horſe to Dover, and he ride him further; in theſe, and ſuch like caſe, he is a Treſpaſſor onely in the exceſs. And if there be violence, or colour of violence in the Act, it is puniſhable by this Action. But if the injury be rather in matter of Fraud, it is puniſhable by an Action of the Caſe. Broo Treſp. 327. 295. 72. And in all theſe and ſuch like caſes before ſet forth, the Action may be avoided by ſetting forth the matter in a ſpecial Plea.

Action of the Caſe.

By inevitable neceſſity or accident. If one do me a Treſpaſs againſt his will; as if his Cattel come unawares into my ground, yet I may have this Action againſt him; and yet if my Dog of his own accord without any provocation of mine, kill or chaſe a mans Cattel, I ſhall not be charged with this, unleſs it be ſheep, and the Dog have been uſed to chaſe and kill them, and I have had notice of it. Dyer 29.

By Cattle in Corn. If all the Neighbors in a Village take their Corn out of their Field, aed one perverſe fellow leave his Corn there of purpoſe, and the Neighbors put their Cattel in the Field, and the Cattel eat his Corn, he may not have this Action for this. Bro. Treſp. 352.

By the fall of Lops. If a man lop a Tree, and ſome of the lops by chance, and againſt his will, that doth lop, fall into my ground, or on my hedg, and he fetch it out again preſently; yet in this caſe, and for this I may have this Action for one and other: But if there be an inevitable neceſſity, or it fall out by the Act of God onely, or by a ſtrange wind, or the like, no Action will lie for this, Broo. Treſp. 310. 10 Ed 4. 2. 20 Ed. 4. 6, 37.

To catch a bit in paſſing on the way. If one have a way through my ground where no incloſure is, and he drive his Cattle there, or through the Corn field, where the way is, and they catch a bit as they go againſt the drivers will, being as careful as he can, no Action will lie for this: But if the driver bait, or keep the Cattle there, I may have this Action againſt him, or the owner of the Cattle, Broo. Treſp. 321. 351.

To part Cattle. If my Cattle be with another bodies ſo together that I cannot part them, and I drive them to a convenient place to ſhift and part them: No Action will lie againſt me for this, Broo. Treſp. 354. 327.

To Plough Land. If a man in Earing be neceſſitated to turn his Plough upon my Land according to the faſhion of the Countrey, and the Sullow hap thereby to turn up ſome of my Land, or the Cattle hap to catch a bit of my Graſs or Corn on my Land, no Action will lie for this. Broo. Treſp. 354. 327.

Upon an Eſtate made by an Infant, Feme-covert, &c. If an Infant make a Feoffment, and make a Letter of Attorney to give Livery of Seiſin, and the Attorney do enter; he is a Treſpaſſor, and for this the Infant may have this Action. But if the Infant give Livery of Seiſin with his own hands, he cannot then have this Action againſt the Feoffee. So if he ſell Goods, and the Vendee take them without his Delivery, by this he is a Treſpaſſor: But if the Infant deliver the Goods with his own hand to the Vendee, contrà. Bro Treſp. 16. 338. Perk. Sect. 16, 17.

If an Infant, Feme-covert, or Man per dureſſe grant a Rent-charge out of his Land, and the Grantee by colour thereof diſtrain upon the Land, the Cattle of the Infant, Husband that hath in right of his Wife, or him that granted by dureſſe; in all theſe caſes this Action lieth againſt him that diſtraineth, 21 *H.*7. 39. Broo. Treſp. 151.

To skour a Ditch. If a man have an ancient Ditch in my ground, and he come at ſeaſonable times to skour it, and doth skour it, keeping the old breadth, I cannot bring an Action againſt him for this. By Baron Henden at Gloceſter Aſſiſes, 17 Car.

Treſpaſs diſpuniſhable. In Hay. If a man give me leave to ſet a Rick of Hay in his ground, till I can conveniently ſell it, and after two years time he makes a Leaſe of the ground to another, and he turns

turns in his Cattle, and doth eat up my Hay; in this caſe I can have no Action againſt him, for by making the Leaſe, it ſeems the Licenſe is determined, Hill. 17 Jac. B.R. Sir William Webs caſe.

In Tithe.

The Parſon ſhall have a reaſonable time to prepare and fetch his Tithe on my Land: But if he leave it on my Land any long time after my Corn is gone, and my Cattle ſpoil it, he hath no Remedy, 12 *Ed.*4.6.

In Gates. Nuſance.

If a new Gate be ſet up in the High-way, where none was before, and I being a Traveller break it to peeces; this is juſtifiable, and no Action will lie againſt me for this, Adjudged. Car. B.R. James and Haywoods caſe. So for any other Nuſance.

Sect. 18. The Ownerſhip and Poſſeſſion of the thing wherein the Treſpaſs is done.

A man that will maintain this Action for any wrong done to, or in his Lands or Goods, muſt have a good Ownerſhip and Property, or at the leaſt a good and lawful Poſſeſſion in the thing wherein the Treſpaſs is ſuppoſed to be done: And for this, take theſe things.

1. A man may gain a Property into Goods, two ways. Firſt, Either by Act of the Party, as by Gift, Sale, Legacy, and the like: Secondly, Or by Act of Law, as by Waiving, Straying, Shipwrack, Forfeiture, Executorſhip, Adminiſtration, Treſpaſs, and Recovery of damage, Stealing and open Sale, by Tenure, Cuſtom, as Herriot, and the like. Juſtice Dodridge, 2 *part. f.*72, &c.

2. A Leſſee for years after his Leaſe is ended, may have this Action for a Treſpaſs done upon the Land before the Leaſe was ended. Plow. 431. *Broo.*456.

3. Any man that hath but a bare poſſeſſion of, and no Title to Land, may have this Action againſt him that hath no right. *Plow.*431. 546. *Broo.*456. Co 5. 85.

4. No man can have this Action for a Treſpaſs done upon his Land, until he be poſſeſſed of the ſame by Entry: And therefore if Land deſcend to an Heir, or a Leaſe to begin at Michaelmas, or one hath a title of Entry for a Condition broken, or the like, and a Treſpaſs is done upon the Land before the Entry of the Heir in the firſt, the Leſſee in the ſecond, or him that hath title to enter in the third caſe; in theſe caſes the party grieved, may not have this Action. 11 H 7.22. *Plo.*142. 22 *Ed.*4.37.

5. If Leſſee pur auter vie or Leſſee for years keep himſelf in poſſeſſion of the Land after the Term and Eſtate ended, the party that is to have the Land, cannot maintain this Action till he have made his actual Entry, and then onely for the Treſpaſs done after, and not before his Entry. *Plow.*133. 136. *Broo. Treſ.*365. *Co.*1.57. 11 *H.*7.22.

6. If an Office finde Land in a Subjects hands to Eſcheat, he that is in poſſeſſion of the Land, cannot afterwards bring this Action for Treſpaſs done in the Land. Plow. 489. 19 *Ed.*4. 2.

7. If one give or ſell me Goods, and before I get the poſſeſſion of them, another man doth take them away or hurt them; in this caſe I may have this Action for my Remedy. *Broo. Treſp.*303.

8. If I borrow a Horſe to ride a journey, and the owner or a ſtranger take away the Horſe from me before I have done my journey, it ſeems I may have this Action; and albeit I abuſe him, or ride him out of the way, yet he cannot take him from me till I have done my journey. Lees caſe.

9. A man may have this Action for a Treſpaſs done in Goods, wherein he hath onely a poſſeſſion and no property. And therefore it is no good Plea to this Action, that the goods be the goods of a ſtranger, and not of the Plaintiff. 4 *Ed.*4.75. 3 *H.*6.32.

By cutting off, or taking away Trees.

If a man cut or carry away my Trees, I may have this Action againſt him. And for this, take theſe things.

1. If a Tenant in Tail ſell his Trees growing upon the Land, and die before they be cut, in this caſe the Vendee may not cut and take them away, but he will be liable to this Action, by the Heir, or by him in Reverſion. But otherwiſe it is of Trees ſold by Tenant in Fee-ſimple. Perk. Sect. 58, 59.

2. If I grant to another Eſtovers in my Wood, by the view and delivery of the Baily, and he take them without leave of the Baily: Or if he have power to take in my Wood to any uſe without asking, and he take more then he doth put to that uſe, I may have this Action. *Broo. Treſp.*327. And yet if he cut it before he do uſe it, to the end it may be more ſeaſonable and fit for uſe, no Action will lie for this, 10 Ed 4.3. Brownl. 1 part. 44.

3. If

3. If I be a Leſſee for life or years of Land, and a ſtranger cut down Timber, or do any other waſte, I may bring this Action againſt him, and ſhall recover treble damages, becauſe I muſt be charged ſo much in the Action of Waſte againſt me.

4. If one ſell me all his Trees in ſuch a Cloſe, and after he cut them down himſelf, and then I fetch them away, no Action will lie for this, Dyer 305. So if after this ſale he ſelleth his Cloſe to another, and I do then cut and carry away the Trees, I may juſtifie it. Broo. Treſp. 400.

5. If I ſell a Wood, except forty Oaks, to be taken away by me in two years, and I do not cut them within the time, and then he do cut all, and do not leave me forty Oaks; in this caſe I am without Remedy. Broo. Treſp. 50. 399.

Waſte.

6. If my Leſſee for life or years do a Waſte in the Lands leaſed, I may not have this Action, but muſt have Remedy by an Action of Waſte. And yet if I make a Leaſe for life or years of a Cloſe, excepting the Trees, and the Leſſee or a ſtranger do Treſpaſs in the Trees, Acorn or Fruit thereof, which in this caſe I am alſo to have; for this, this Action and not an Action of Waſte lieth, Co. 5. Sir Thomas Palmers caſe. See more in Property, cap 17.

By cutting, taking away of Corn or Grais.

If a man cut or carry away my Emblements, viz. my Corn or Graſs, I may have this Action againſt him. But for the further knowledge hereof, take theſe things.

Executor.

1. If a Tenant in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life, or at will, ſow his Land, and die before he reap it, his Executor ſhall reap it: So where-ever an Eſtate dependeth on a life. If a Leaſe be made for life, the Remainder in Fee, and the Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years, the Leſſee for years ſow the Land, and after the Leſſee for life die; in this caſe the Leſſees Executor, not he in Remainder, ſhall have the Corn, Co. 5. 85. So if Tenant in Dower ſow her Land and die, her Executor ſhall reap it. 20 H. 3. 2. Perk 522.

Husband and Wife.

But if ſhe ſow her Land, and then take a Husband, and he die before it be cut; in this caſe ſhe, not her Husbands Executor, ſhall have it. Broo. Emblements 26. Co. 5. 116. Co. upon Littl. 55. And if the Leſſor of a Tenant at will, determine the will himſelf after the Corn is ſowed, the Tenant at will, not the Leſſor, ſhall have the Corn, Co. upon Littl. 55. But if the Tenant at will, himſelf determine the will, contrà. And if ſuch a Tenant after he is diſcharged ſhall enter again, and then ſow the Land; in this caſe the Lord, and not the Tenant, ſhall have it. Co. 5. 116. Dyer 173. And if any Tenant do onely ear and dung the Land, and it be not ſowed before his death, he loſeth the Corn. Littl 68. Co. 5. 116. Perk 512. 37 H. 6. 25. And albeit the Corn be cut, yet he that hath right to it ſhall have it.

2. If a Tenant for years in Certain, who knoweth the end of his Term, ſow the Land, and his Term end before the Corn be ripe and cut; he that hath right to the Land, not the Tenant, ſhall have the Corn. Littl 68. Co. upon it.

3. If a man under colour of a Leaſe, or other Conveyance, ſuppoſing him to be good, when he is not, doth ſow the Land; not the owner nor his Executor, if he die, but he that right hath to the Land, if he ſhall enter, muſt have the Corn. Lees caſe. 9 Jac.

4. If two be Tenants in Common, and one die, and his Wife hold in Common, and ſow the Land, and die; in this caſe, neither the other Tenant in Common, nor the Heir, but the Executor of the Woman, ſhall have the Corn, Perk. 523.

5. If a Parſon die before the Corn is reaped, when the Glebe-Land is ſowed, and another Parſon made; in this caſe, not the Succeſſor, but the Executors or Adminiſtrators of the firſt Parſon dead, ſhall have the Corn: But the Tithes accrewing, during the Vacation, muſt go all to the Succeſſor. 21 H. 6. 30. 34 H. 6. 33.

6. If a Diſſeiſor, or a Diſſeiſor of a Diſſeiſor, or a Feoffee, Donee or Leſſee of the firſt or ſecond Diſſeiſor, ſow the Land, and cut and carry away the Corn, or cut and carry away the Graſs or Trees; or gather and carry away the Fruits, Apples, Nuts, &c. or give or ſell, either the one or the other; in theſe caſes after the Regreſs of the Diſſeiſee, the Property of it all is in him, and he may take it where ever he finde it; and if he die his Executor ſhall have it: And ſo it ſeems is the Law for Flax or Hemp, or any other Annual profit; and if it be gone he ſhall recover damages in Treſpaſs. Co. Inſt. 1 part 55. 11. 51. Dyer 31. Perk. 519. Co. 5. 85.

Husband and Wife.

7. If one be ſeiſed of Land in the right of his Wife, in fee or for life, and he ſow the Land,

Land, or he make a Leaſe for years, and the Leſſee ſow the Land, and after before the end of the Tearm the Husband or Wife die, his Executors, or the Leſſee, or his Executors, ſhall have the Emblements, 7 H. 4. 17. So if a Joint eſtate be made to the Husband and Wife, and the Husband ſow the Land and die, his Executor ſhall have it, Co. 1 part 55: Dyer 316. If Land be leaſed to a Husband and Wife at will and after they be divorced Cauſa præcontractus, and the Land be ſowed before the Divorce; in this caſe the Husband, not the Lord, ſhall have the Corn, Co. 5. 116. If the Wife of a Copie-holder that holdeth Durante viduitate, according to the cuſtom ſow the Land, or make a Leaſe, and the Leſſee ſow the Land, and before it be cut ſhe take a Husband; in this caſe the Lord or his Executors, not the Husband ſhall have the Corn, Co. 5. 116. Executors.

8. If one ſeiſed of Land in Fee have iſſue a daughter, and die, his Wife being privily with childe of a ſon, and the daughter ſoweth, and after the ſon is born, the daughter in this caſe ſhall reap it, though the ſon enter before the Corn be ripe, Co. 1. 55.

9. If a Tenant by Statute ſow the Land, and after ſome extraordinary increaſe happneth that he is ſatisfied; in this caſe the Tenant ſhall notwithſtanding reap it, Co. 1. part 55.

10 If the eſtate of the Tenant, though incertain, be upon a defeaſible Title by a right paramount, or if the eſtate of the Tenant determine by his Act, he that hath right or entreth, not the Tenant, ſhall have the Corn. And therefore if one enter upon Land on a Condition in Deed, or al Condition in Law, as if Leſſee for life or or years of Land, alien it in Fee, or do waſte; or if a Feoffment or Leaſe be made on Condition, and the Condition be broken: or the Lord of a Copy-holder enter for a Forfeiture on his Tenant. So where one commits Felony and forfeit, and an entry is made for the Common-wealth; in all theſe caſes the Feoffor, Leſſor, Lord, or Keepers of the Liberties ſhall have all the Emblements that are growing, and not cut upon the Land at the time of his Entry upon, or recovery of the Land. But if it be cut and ſo ſevered from the Land before the entry, contra. So where ever one doth recover Land in an Action, he ſhall have the Corn upon it, Co. 5. 115. 4. 21. Perk. ſect. 515. Co. upon Lit: 55. 5 H. 7: 16 See more in Property, ch. 17. And in all or moſt of theſe Caſes where any man doth cut or take away the Emblements that doth belong to me; I may have this remedie by this Action of Treſpaſs. Brownl. 1. part 221.

This Action wil lie againſt a Sheriff his Bailiffs or under-Officers, or any other ſuch like Officers. But for the further opening of this point, take theſe caſes following. Againſt an Officer.

1. If a Sheriff have a Writ againſt the Lands or Goods of another man, and he miſtake and execute it upon my Lands or Goods; as if he take my Horſe under my ſervant in a ſute againſt him; or repleive my Goods for another mans, I may have this Action againſt him. And it will not excuſe the Officer in this caſe to ſay, that the Plaintiff in the ſuite, or any other man did affirm, that the Lands or Goods were the Lands or Goods of the Defendant, Dyer 295. Kelw. 129 119. D. & St. 149: 150. Brownl. 1 part 210. 226. Sect. 19. For miſtaking the Goods.

2. If another mans Lands or Goods be leaſed or pledged to me, and the Sheriff take them as his Lands or Goods, I may have this Action againſt the Sheriff, Bro. Treſpas 364.

3. If the Sheriff or any of his Officers having Proces againſt my Land or Goods, exceed his Authority, as upon a common Proces, Capias ad reſpondendum, Latitat, or the like Proces, or a Capias ad Satisfaciendum, Fieri facias, or the like Execution againſt me; if in the Executing of theſe Writs he brake open my Houſe, Doors or Cheſts, which is more then he can juſtifie, for he may not (as it ſeems) in this caſe do more then come in when the Door is open, and cannot pull the latch or open it; in theſe caſes I may have this Action againſt him, Co. 5. 93. 8 Ed. 4, 4. 18. Ed. 4. 41. Hob. Rep. pl. 62. Brownlow. 1 part 117. For breaking my Houſe.

4. If upon ſuch a Writ, Proces or Warrant againſt my Lands or Goods, in Executing whereof or otherwiſe, where an Officer may break my houſe, as upon an Habere facias Seiſinam, or Poſſeſſionem, or Capias utlegatum, or to apprehend Felons or Adulterers, or to ſearch for ſtolen Goods, or upon a Capias ad Satisfaciendum, to take another man in my houſe; in theſe and ſuch like caſes, if he break open Where one may break a Houſe.

my

my houſe or Doors before he hath firſt demanded the opening of the Doors, I may have this Action againſt him, 1 H. 7. 6. 13 Ed. 4. 9, Co. 5. 90. 63. Bro. Treſpas 248. Brown l. 1 part. 50. 221.

5. If in all theſe and ſuch like caſes the Officer do but his duty, no action will lie againſt him; & therefore if the Offcers of the County-Court within their Juriſdiction, attach mens Goods by Warrant of the Court, and take them with them, or leave them with the owners, or others in their places do according to their duties, they may juſtifie it, 9 H 7. 6:

If a Sheriff execute a writ the retorne day it is a good Execution. Goldsb. 142. pl. 56. See Diſtreſs. If a writ come to him to doe Execution of the goods of I S and he make Execution of the goods of I N, he is a Treſpaſſor, and albeit the Plaintiff, himſelf did direct him to theſe goods; this will not helpe him unleſs there be practiſe between him and I N. and ſo in caſe of Replevin upon the goods of a wrong man. Alſo the party grieved may have this action againſt him that did miſguide him. Brownl. 1 part. 211. So if a Bayliff execute Proces made to him by the Steward of a Court where the Court had not Juriſdiction. Brownl. 1 part. 210.

6. If one inform a Conſtable that A hath robbed B, and he doth thereupon enter into the houſe of A to ſearch for the Goods ſtolen, and in truth no Robbery is done; in this caſe the Lord-Keeper held, That this Action will lie againſt the Conſtable; but the two chief Juſtices held the contrary, Hill. 3 Jac. in the Star Chamber. See Authoritie. Licence.

7. If a man have taken my Goods, and impounded them in his own Cloſe, and a Replevin come, and the owner of the Ground reſiſt it, if then the Officer break the Cloſe to do it, this is not Actionable, 21 H. 7 27. 4 Ed. 4. 35.

8. If an Officer do any ſuch Act as belongs to his Office without the precinct of his command, as a Conſtable without his Pariſh, regularly he is by this a Treſpaſſor, and this is actionable; and yet if an Officer attach my Goods within his Juriſdiction, and I reſcue them, and cary them without his precinct; in this caſe it ſeems upon a freſh purſuite, I may go after them, and take them again, Bro. Treſp. 23.

About a Diſtreſs.

If one diſtrain my Cattel or Goods without any cauſe or colour, or for a Debt on a Bond, or Fine, or a Amearcement in an Court-Leet that is not legally ſet, or any ſuch like cauſe that is not good or Juſt. Or if a man having diſtrained my Goods, will not tell me requiring it, and offering to give ſatisfaction, for what cauſe he diſtrained, or if having cauſe to diſtrain, he do diſtrain beaſts not diſtrainable, as beaſts of the Plough, or ſheep of the Fold. Or if having diſtrained beaſts diſtrainable, he after abuſe them, as if being a Horſe or Ox he work it, or being unruly he fetter it, or tie it to the Pound, ſo as it be thereby hurt, or if he put the diſtreſs in an unknown place that I cannot tell how to replieve it. Or if he take them out of one County and put them in a pound in another County; or if he diſtrain them in the high-way, or a place not diſtrainable; in all theſe caſes I may have this Action, Co. 8. 147. D. & St. 112. F.N.B. 47, 48. And yet it is ſaid, if a Lord diſtrain upon his very Tenant without any juſt cauſe, that he may not have this Action for this wrong. And it is ſaid, if the Lord diſtrain for Rent, and the Tenant offer the Rent, that no Action but Detinue lieth. Bro. Treſpas 29. H. 7. 11. Bro. 344. 220. If my ſervant take a diſtreſs for me, and the owner of the Cattel deſire me to deliver them, and if he pay not the money by a day, that he ſhall have them again; in this caſe it is ſaid, if he pay not the monie, that my man may take them again, Bro. Treſpas 29.

5. Severall Treſpaſſes for which the Treſpaſſor is to be further puniſhed then to give ſingle damage to the partie wronged. Deſtroying Fiſh-ponds taking away Fiſh.

If I be about to diſtrain for a Rent, and the Tenant ſeeing me coming to diſtrain, drive his Cattel into another mans ground, not held of me, and I diſtrain them there, no Action will lie againſt me for this, Old B. entries, 570. If a Diſtreſs be taken from me after I have diſtrained, I cannot for this have this Action. But I may have a Reſcous, M. 7 Jac. Co. B. Brownl. 1 part. 12. 221. 224. There are divers Treſpaſſes which by certain Statutes are to be further puniſhed, then by ſingle Damage. As

1. For breaking cutting or deſtroying the Head or Damme of any Poole, Mote, Stews, or Pits wherein are Fiſh, and for fiſhing in any ſuch Place againſt the owners will, a man is to be impriſoned 3 months, and then put in ſureties for his good behaviour 7 yeares, or elſe to continue in priſon till he ſo doe; and he is to pay to the partie grieved treble damages.

2 For

2. For breaking into, and hunting in any Park, or incloſed ground to hunt and kill the Deer there, or Coneys there, or to take away any Hawk, or any Hawk Egges out of any mans Woods, a man is to be puniſhed in the ſame manner and meaſure. 5 Eliz. 21. Robbing Parks of Deer and Coneys.

3. If it be for killing Deer, he is to be bound with two good Sureties, or in ſtead of trebble damages, the party grieved may recover of him ten pound for his ſatisfaction. And when he is ſatisfied for the wrong, he may, if he will, releaſe him of the Good-behavior. 7 Jac. 13. 3 Jac. 13. Taking Hawks and Hawks Eggs.

4. For wilful cutting of the head, or dam of any Pool, Mote, or Stew, or the head, or pipe of any Conduit, or burning of any Cart or Wain load of Coals, or other Goods, or burning of any heaps of Wood prepared for Coals, Billet, or Talwood. And for cutting out the Tongue of any tame Beaſts; and for cutting of a mans Ear (except it be by an affray, &c.) And for barking of a mans Fruit-trees. For any of theſe offences, the offender muſt pay to the party wronged trebble damages for his amends, and pay ten pound penalty to the Lord Protector. 37 H. 8. 6.

5. For cutting and taking away Corn growing, robbing an Orchard or Garden, digging up or taking away any Fruit-trees, breaking any Hedges, Pales, or other Fences, cutting or ſpoiling any Woods, or Under-woods ſtanding and growing, or the like, the offender is (and ſuch as receive the things, are) to give ſuch amends to the party wronged, as any Juſtice of Peace ſhall ſet down: And if he do not perform the Order of the Juſtice of Peace; or the Juſtice think him unable to make amends by money, he is to be whipped. 43 Eliz. 7.

Sect. 20. 6. What ſhall be ſaid to be a good Plea in Bar, and avoidance of this Action, or not.

There are divers things to be pleaded in avoidance of this Action: There is the general Plea, which is Not guilty, and there are divers ſpecial Pleas; and the ſpecial Pleas are ſome of them of one nature, and ſome of another, for ſome of them found in a way of juſtification, when the matter doth contain a good Reaſon to maintain the lawfulneſs of that he did, for which he is now queſtioned: Some of them found in a way of excuſe onely, and will free a man from any puniſhment for the thing ſo done at that time: And ſome of them found in acquital of a man altogether, and contain ſo much, that he is not guilty at all: And ſome of them found in diſcharge of him of the Action whereto he was once chargable and liable. And the Defendant muſt be very careful, for if he have matter of juſtification or excuſe to plead, he muſt be ſure to plead it ſpecially; for in thoſe caſes if he plead Not guilty, it will be found againſt him, Co. 5. 85. upon Littl. 282, 283. Brownl. 1 part. 224.

Sect. 21. Matter of Juſtification.

Special Pleas by way of Juſtification, are ſuch as ſet forth ſome ſpecial thing, by which he doth juſtifie the thing he doth with another mans Lands or Goods; as that he did it by authority. And this may be given either by the Law, or by the party: Wherein to make it good, there muſt be two things. Firſt, A good Authority: Secondly, It muſt be well perſued.

In Treſpaſs for Entry into Land, it is a good Plea to make a good Title to the Land or Common in it, and ſo for Goods. N. B. E. in toto. O. B. E. 566, 567, 565, 590, 580.

For Aſſault.

It is a good Plea to a Treſpaſs for an Aſſault and Battery, to ſay that the Plaintiff began, &c. N. B. of Entries 644. And to this Action for Impriſonment, Aſſault or Battery, That he did it by neceſſity, in an Arreſt to inforce obedience, or the like, Old Book of Entries, 599. 598. 560. It is a good Plea in Treſpaſs for taking a Horſe, to ſay, he borrowed it for a time, or a purpoſe which is not yet out or done. Broo. Treſpaſs 337. In Treſpaſs for cutting Trees, it is a good Plea, That the Plaintiff hired him to do it, Broo. Treſp. 383. In Treſpaſs for taking of Goods, it is a good Plea to ſay, That the Plaintiff left them in the Defendants houſe, and after there was an Agreement between them, that he ſhould keep them till the Plaintiff had paid him ten pound, which he hath not paid him, 21 H. 7. 13. But it is no good Plea to ſay, That the Goods were the Goods of a ſtranger, and not the Goods of the Plaintiff, 4 Ed. 4. 75. 3 H. 6. 32. In Treſpaſs for Entry into a Houſe, it is a good Plea to ſay, He entred to apprehend a Felon, and took his Goods that were there, Old Book of Entries 580. In Treſpaſs for taking of Goods, it is a good Plea to ſay, He did it by Warrant, as Bailiff of a Court-Leet for a Forfeiture, &c. N. B. of Entries, 665.

or be diſtrained for rent ſervices, Old B. of entries 604. 605. 603 That he diſtrained for Subſidie, Fifteens or the like, Old B of entries 601. So that he took them by vertue of any Proces out of a Court enabled with power to make out ſuch Proces, Old B. of entries, 598. 599. 600. That he took the goods for Hariot, Waif, Eſtray, Wreck, or the like. Old B. of entries, in toto 584. Or that he diſtrained them for pownage, or the like; or for levying of expences for Knights of the Parliament, or the like, Old B of entries 599. See Authoritie.

His Freehold. In Treſpaſs for entry into Land, it is a good plea to ſay, That it was his Free-hold or the Free-hold of another from whom he had Authority to do what he did. Br. ch. 47. 23. New B. of entries, 645. 582. So if it be for putting in of Cattel, it is a good Plea to ſhew he hath right of Common there, and under colour therof he put in his Cattel, Bro. Treſp. 30.

If one have Corn upon anothers Land, and he take it, and the Owner of the Land ſue him; he muſt juſtifie, and may not plead Not guilty, Co. 5. 85.

In Treſpaſs for taking Cattel, it is a good bar to ſet forth a good ſale to the Defendant, and that he thereby took them Bro. Treſp. 328. For cutting Trees, it is a good plea to ſay that the Plaintiff gave them to the Defendant, Bro. Treſp. 42.

There are divers other Pleas that enure by way of bar, as a Judgement had and Damages recovered againſt the defendant for the ſame Treſpaſs, in another Action of the ſame or another nature, Fitz. Corona. 110. And if an Action be brought againſt a man for a Treſpaſs by aſſault and battery done by him, it is a good plea to ſay it was done by him and another, and the plaintiff hath recovered Damages of the other. But if the beaſts of A and B come together into my Ground; in this caſe I may recover ſeverally, and this plea will not hold. Hill. 18 Jac. B. R. Hunneyes Caſe.

Arbitrement. Arbitrement may be alſo pleaded in bar of this Action.

Accord. Alſo Accord with ſatisfaction may be pleaded in bar of this Action. For the clearing whereof take theſe things.

1. The thing given and received muſt be valuable and ſatisfactory, a charge to the giver, and a benefit to the receiver. And therefore if one plead, that whereas there were divers Treſpaſſes committed by each of them, one upon another, and by mediation of friends they agreed one ſhould go quit againſt the other, this is no plea, neither will it bar in the Suit. So in an entry on the Statute of Rich. That the Plaintiff ſhall reenter and have his Land in peace, and that he ſhall deliver in the Writings that he hath that do concern the Land, Dyer 356. 16 Ed. 4. 8. 9 Ed. 4. 19. Fitz. Accord. 3. 4. So if it be in Treſpaſs for Goods taken, and the Defendant plead an Accord made that he ſhould have his goods again, 9 Ed. 4. 19. 30 H. 6. 4. So if it be that the Defendant ſhould do his endeavor to make the Plaintiff and another (who was at ods with him) agreed, or (as it ſeems) to ſhew that he did make an Accord between him and the ſtranger, unleſs he ſhew withall that he is at ſome charge to do it. And yet if the Defendant give the Plaintiff a pottle of Wine in ſatisfaction of the Treſpaſs, and he agree to it, this is a good accord and a bar in the Action, Fitz. Accord. 1. 19, H. 6. 29. Fitz. bar 26.

2. It muſt be perfectly and compleatly finiſhed and Executed, and ſatisfaction made according to the agreement before any Action brought: and therefore if the Defendant plead an Accord that he muſt make Windows, and pay 10 l. at a day to come, and he ſet forth that he hath made the Windows, but he hath not ſet forth he hath paid the 10 l. this is no bar, 17 Ed. 4. 2. 6 H. 7. 10. In Treſpaſs the Defendant pleaded an Accord to pay 6 d. to the Plaintiff, and to give him counſel when he ſhall require it; this is no good Plea, 17 Ed. 4. 2. Old N. B. f. 122. Tender of money without paiment is no good plea in bar of this Action.

3. It muſt be in the life-time of him that did the wrong; and therefore if the Accord be between the parties, and be executed by the Heir or Executor of the Treſpaſſor, this is no bar where this Action may lie againſt the Executor, Dyer 356.

4. The Party to whom the wrong is done muſt accept the amends according to the agreement, for it ſeems notwithſtanding the Accord, he may refuſe it; and tender of amends without an acceptance thereof, is no plea to this Action, but being accepted accepted, is, For as wrongs and injuries cauſe diſcord and variance, and beget Suits; ſo by an Accord between the parties this may be recompenced, and this recompence begetteth Peace, Co. 9. 79. 5 Ed. 4. 7. Dyer 356.

5. If divers do a Treſpaſs, and one make a good Accord, this will diſcharge and be a bar to all the reſt, Co. 9. 79.

6. If a ſtranger, as one of the Parents or Friends of the Treſpaſſor, give the amends in recompence; it ſeems this is as good as if the party himſelf did give it. In Detinue for a Cheſt and Charters therein, by the delivery of the Plaintiff, the Defendant plead an Accord, that he ſhould keep the Cheſt untill the Plaintiff come to Briſtoll, and there it ſhall be opened, and if any Deeds be there that do concern a Houſe of which the Plaintiff had enfeoffed the Defendant, that he ſhall keep it ſtill, and ſaith that he never came to Briſtoll; and it was awarded a good concord. But quere Fitz. Bar 166. Accord. 2. 7 Ed. 4. 23.

7 If one be Amearced for a private Nuſance or Treſpaſs done to the Lord in his Leet, and he receive the Amearcement, though it be Extortion, and he could not have recovered it; yet it ſeems if he after bring an Action for this Nuſance, this acceptance of the Amearcement may be pleaded in bar. Fitz. Bar. 187. 222. Broo: Treſp. 195. 61. 66.

8. In a writ of falſe impriſonment, the Defendant ſaith it was agreed between the Plaintiff and him that he ſhould bring the Defendant to ſuch a place which is the ſame impriſonment, and it ſeems this was no good Plea. Fitz. Bar. 14. Brownlows 1 part. 133. 2 part 130. 131. 132.

That the Plaintiff hath a Replevin depending in another Court for the ſame Treſpaſs, is a good Plea, Bro. Treſp. 357. But it is not a good Plea that he hath been indicted for the ſame thing, and paid a Fine to the King. And yet that he hath been Indicted, Arrained and Acquitted, is ſaid to be a good Plea, ſed quere. So, tha he hath been (being a Tenant) Amearced for the Treſpaſs at the Lords Court already, and paid the Amearcement, is ſaid to be a good Plea, Co. 4. 43. 9. H. 6: 5 c. Bro. Treſp. 405. 17 Ed 4. 8. But I doubt this caſe.

If it be be for Cattel Damage-feaſant in his Ground, it is a good Plea to ſay the Plaintiff did drive the Cattel into his ground, Bro. Treſp 148. Kelw. 30.

A Licenſe may be pleaded in avoidance of this Action, as if it be for an entry into Houſe or Lands, taking of Goods or the like, he may plead a Licenſe ſo to do from the Owner, as that he invited me into his houſe, gave me leave to go through his Cloſe, &c. Bro. Treſp. 533. Co. upon Lit. 368. But then there muſt be theſe things in the caſe Matter of excuſe and diſcharge. Sect. 22. Licenſe.

1. A good Licenſe, for if a Tenant at will ſhall Licenſe me to cut down Trees upon the Land, or a Shepherd that hath Sheep to keep ſhall Licenſe me to kill them; this will not excuſe me in a ſuit for this, Bro. Treſp. 295.

2. This Licenſe muſt be purſued. 11 H. 7. 21. Old B. entries. 596. 597. 505. Bro: Treſp. 194. 19 H. 6. 65.

To an Action for a Battery, it is a good plea to ſay that he did it of his own wrong, that is, that the Plaintiff did begin the Affray firſt, &c. 34 H. 6. 16. 41: Aſſ. pl. 21. Books of Entries in toto.

If the Action be for ſuffering a mans Goods to lie in his houſe Damage feaſant, it is a good excuſe for the Defendant to ſay that he was Tenant to a Leſſee for life, that lived far from him, that he could not hear of his death in a long time after he was dead, and therefore the Goods were not removed ſo quickly. In Treſpaſs for a hurt, It is a good Plea to ſay that the Plaintiff and Defendant agreed to run at Tilt, Barriers, or to play at Backſword, Foot-ball or the like, and by that means the hurt came, Fitz. Bar. 244. In Treſpaſs for Damage by Cattel, it is a good Plea to ſay that the mounds of the cloſe adjacent were the Plaintiffs, and for lack of repair thereof they came into the Plaintiffs Ground, Old N. B. 561. 562. 563.

But if the beaſts were turned in, the Plaintiff may ſhew it by his reply, Old N. B, 503. 563. It is a good plea to ſhew a pardon by Act of Parliament, Old B. Entries 596. In an Action for Toll, it is a good plea to ſay, time out of Mind ſuch men have been diſcharged and ought to be diſcharged of Toll in Fairs or for paſſages, &c. Old B. Entries 605.

In treſpaſs for beating a ſervant, it is a good Plea that he was not his ſervant at that time, Old B. Entries 605. For entring into a Cloſe, that the Defendant being Leſſee for life, made a Feoffment in Fee, and ſo a Forfeiture or an Eſcheat. Old B. Entries 577. 581. That the Goods were pledged to him, or him that delivered them to him for money not yet paid, Old B. Entries 598. For Fiſhing it is a good Plea to ſay he hath a fiſhing there, and under colour thereof he doth fiſh, Old B. Entries 596.

The Defendant in this Action hath many Pleas to plead in avoidance of this Action by way of excuſe. As to an Action of Treſpaſs for the Defendants Cattel breaking into the Plaintiffs Cloſe, it is a good Plea to ſay that they came in through the mounds of the Plaintiff, for want of Sufficient repair. For further knowledge of which point, theſe things are to be known,

1. This is not a good Plea for any but for him that hath ſome intereſt into the adjoining Ground, as having Title of Common there, or being Leſſee for years, or at will of it, having his Cattel there at Tack, or having leave to put in his Cattel there; and therefore this will not bar the Action of the caſe of a ſtranger where his Cattel had nothing to do in the next Ground towards which the Incloſure was ſo bad.

2. Neither is this any good Plea for him that hath ſome intereſt in the Ground adjoining, where he did put in his Cattel firſt of all into the Plaintiffs Ground, and not into his own, for the Cattel muſt goe in of themſelves.

3. It is no Plea that there is no good Incloſure, unleſs he ſay that the Owner of the Gronnd time out of mind did uſe to incloſe it.

4. It is ſufficient proof to maintain this Plea, that the mounds were bad at the time, though it cannot be proved that the Cattel went in through thoſe bad mounds, for that ſhall be preſumed unleſs the contrary appear, Dyer 365. *Bro. For taking Goods it is a good Plea to ſay that the Defendant being poſſeſſed thereof, delivered them to a ſtranger from whom the Plaintiff took them, and the Defendant took them from the Plaintiff, *Old B. That I am Parſon of A and a Pariſhoner ſet out his Tithes, and the Plaintiff took them away, and I took them from him, this is juſtifiable, Old B. Entries 374. A Releaſe of the Party Treſpaſſed to the Treſpaſſor, is a diſcharge in Law, and may be pleaded in bar of this Action.

Releaſe.

If divers do a Treſpaſs together, and the party to whom it is done releaſe it by generall or ſpeciall words to one of them, this is a diſcharge of all the Treſpaſſors, and every one of them may plead it in bar if he can get and ſhew it, for they are but one Treſpaſſor, and each of them is anſwerable for the whole fact, but a releaſe is a good ſatisfaction in Law as a ſatisfaction in Deed. *Hob. Sect. 23. Matter of diſcharge. Releaſe of one.

Authoritie. Licence. Tender of amends, that is, offer of a recompence for a Treſpaſs done, is a good plea in this Action. But therein theſe things are to be done.

1 That if one diſtrain my Beaſts Damage-feaſant, and I offer him a competent recompence before the Beaſts be taken, or before they be Impounded, this is a good bar, and ſo may be pleaded in the Action of Treſpaſs: but ſuch a tender after the Impounding of the Beaſts is not ſo. Co. 5. 76.

Amends.

2 And

2. And yet in all Actions Quare Clauſum fregit, if the Defendant do tender ſufficient amends before the Action brought, and in his Plea to the Action diſclaim to make any Title or claim to the land, and the Treſpaſs be by negligence or involuntary, by this (being proved) the Plaintiff ſhall be barr'd, Stat. 21. Jac. chap. 16. And it was the opinion of two Juſtices, Popham & Williams, Trin. 3. Jac. B.R. that the common Law was ſo before this Statute.

The Defendant in this Action may plead Not guilty in all theſe following caſes.

Sect. 24. Where one may plead Non guilty or not, but he muſt plead Specially.

1. VVhen the thing ſuppoſed to be done for matter of Fact, is not true.

2. VVhen the matter as it is, is not a Treſpaſs, but ſome other offence, nor is this Action of Treſpaſs given for it, but ſome other Action.

3. VVhen the Lands or Goods is mine for which the Action is brought, not the Plaintiffs. But in all other caſes the Defendant may not pleade Not guilty, but muſt pleade ſpecially, and ſhew the ſpeciall matter by way of excuſe or juſtification, as the caſe is. And therefore he muſt pleade and juſtifie ſpecially in all theſe following caſes; as where an Impriſonment or entry is given by authority of Law, or by authority from any party, as for an Impriſonment by the Statute of Treſpaſſors in Parks putting a man off his ground, arreſting a man as Conſtable to keep the peace, thruſting a man out of a Church that doth trouble the Congregation in Service: That he parted an affray, and keept the quareller apart, during the heat. *Old B. So if the Defendant juſtifie by reaſon of a Rent-charge, he muſt plead it eſpecially, and cannot juſtifie it upon a Not-guilty, Old B. Entries 549. So if one put in his Cattel by agreement with the Plaintiff Idem. And yet it ſeems if he be to juſtifie by reaſon of a Title to the Land, he may plead not guilty, and give the ſpeciall matter in Evidence, as in Detinue, Non Detinet, , when the goods are the Defendants, 22 H. 6. 33. Co. upon Lit 283: For Entry into a houſe and taking money away; That the Plaintiff owed him the money, and he went into his houſe to receive it, being invited by the Plaintiff, Old B. of Entries 561. In an Action of Treſpaſs for taking away a box of VVritings it is no good juſtification to ſay, there was but one writing in it, which was the Defendants, for a man cannot juſtifie the breaking or taking away of anothers box to fetch or take out his own goods, Fitz. Treſpas 73.

And in theſe caſes where the Defendant hath cauſe of Excuſe or Juſtification, and ſhould plead ſpecially, he pleade the generall plea of Not guilty, it will upon the evidence (the caſe appearing ſo) paſs againſt him: for he may not give the ſpeciall matter in Evidence. But this muſt be underſtood with two cautions.

1. That whenſoever a man cannot have advantage of the ſpeciall matter by way of pleading, there he ſhall take advantage of it in the Evidence. For example, the rule of Law is, that a man cannot juſtifie in the killing or death of a man, and therefore in that caſe he ſhall be received to give the ſpecial matter in evidence, as that it was de defendendo, or in defence of his houſe in the night againſt thieves and robbers, or the like.

2 That in any Action upon the Caſe, Treſpaſs, Battery, or of falſe impriſonment againſt any juſtice of peace, Major or Bayliff of City or Town corporate, Headborough, Portreve, Conſtable, Tythingman, Collector of ſubſidie or fifteen in any of the Courts at Weſtminſter, or elſewhere, concerning any thing by any of them done by reaſon of any of their Offices aforeſaid, and all other in their aid or aſſiſtance or by their commandment, &c. they may plead the generall iſſue, and give the ſpeciall matter for their Excuſe or juſtification sn Evidence.

In an action of Treſpaſs or other ſuit againſt any perſon, for taking of any Diſtreſs or other Act doing, by force of the Commiſſion of Sewers, the defendant in any ſuch Action ſhall and may make Avowry Conuſance, or Juſtification generally, that it was done by Authority of the Commiſſion of Sewers for Lot or Tax aſſeſſed by that Commiſſion, &c. And the Plaintiff ſhall reply he did it of his own wrong without ſuch cauſe, and both theſe Acts were made for avoiding of prolixity and captiouſneſs of pleading, tending to the great charge and danger of Officers and Miniſters of Juſtice, &c. Co. upon Lit. 282. 283.

If any Action be brought againſt any perſon for doing any thing by vertue of an Ordinance of Parliament by the perſons enabled to do it, or others by their command or in their aid, it muſt be laid where the fact was done, not elſewhere, and the Defendant may plead not guilty, and give in evidence the Ordinance of Parliament: and if it appear not to be done in the ſame Country where it is laid, the Jury ſhall finde for the Defendant; and if the verdict paſs with the Defendant, or the Plaintiff be Nonſuit, or ſuffer a diſcontinuance, the Judges ſhall give to the Defendant double coſts, Ord. 2. Dec. 1646. If any Officer or their aſſiſtants be ſued for any thing done by Authority of the Ordinance of 9 February 1647. he muſt be ſued in the Country where it was done, he may plead the generall iſſue, and he ſhall recover double coſts. See the Ordinance. The like remedy is given in divers other caſes by divers other Ordinances of Parliament.

And now by the late Act made, 23 Octob. 1650. The Defendant may plead the generall iſſue of Not guilty, or ſome ſuch like generall Plea, and give the ſpeciall matter in evidence.

CHAP.

CHAP. CLXI.

Of Trial.

THis word Trial ſeems to be taken two ways in our Law: 1. For the manner and order of Proceeding in the hearing and determinidg of matters in difference. 2. For the manner of finding out and diſcovery of a thing doubtful and in queſtion; or to find out by due examination the truth of the point in iſſue between the parties, whereupon Judgment may be given, Co. ſup. Lit. 125. 1. Trial, what.

And as the Queſtion between the parties is always twofold, ſo is the Trial thereof. For it is either quæſtio Juris, as upon general Cuſtoms of England, which is Common-Law, or the ſenſe of a Statute; and that is always tried by the Judges, either upon a Demurrer, ſpecial Verdict, or Exception: For, Cuilibet in arte ſua perito eſt credendum, & quod quiſque norit in hoc ſe exerceat. Or it is quæſtio Facti: Or it is matter of Record, and then it is tried by the Record it ſelf. And for this, as there are diverſity of matters and things to be tried, ſo there are divers manner of Trials, and the Trial is always to be according to the nature of the thing to be tried. 2. The kinds of it.

There are divers ways and means of Trial of matters of Fact, when they are pleaded and come in iſſue. Sect. 1.

1. By Peers: For the Trial of a Peer of the Realm, in Treaſon, is by Peers upon their Honor, without oath. By Peers.

2. By Judges: For, the Cuſtoms and Uſages of Courts by the Judges of the ſame Court, if they be there pleaded; and the Nonage of an Infant and Maihme by Inſpection, and the reaſonableneſs of a Fine of an Offender, or upon Surrender of a Copihold-eſtate, the reaſonableneſs of a Cuſtom, and ſuch like things, ſhall be tried by the Judges. By the Judges. Inſpection, what

3. By Witneſſes: And then it is uſually done by two Witneſſes. In Dower, and Appeal of the death of the Husband, if his death be in queſtion, it ſhall be tried by proof of Witneſſes before the Judges. So the proof of a Summons, or the Challenge of a Juror muſt be tried by proof of Witneſſes; and divers other things muſt be tried by the examination of parties and Witneſſes. And of this nature is the Trial by Wager of Law: which ſee in Law. By Witneſſes. Wager of Law. Examination.

Alſo ſome Trials have been by Parliament; and ſometimes by Battel, now out of uſe. Many things alſo are tried by Certificate; as the doing of Service by him that holdeth by Eſcuage in Scotland, was to be tried by the Kings Marſhal of his Army, Baſtardy, Excommunication, Entry into Religion, Marriage, and the like, were tried by the Certificate of the Ordinary: But theſe muſt now be tried the ordinary way, and ſo muſt Wills and Adminiſtrations. The Priviledges and Liberties of Courts of Record, Cities and Burroughs, muſt be tried by their Charters and Records. But the moſt common and frequent way of Trial of all matters of Fact, is by a Jury of twelve men; and ſometimes greater, called a Grand Aſſiſe; or leſſer, called a Petit Aſſiſe. For all theſe things, ſee at large, Co. upon Lit. 125. 6. Plow. 230. Co. 9. 30. 31. 35. 40. & 11. 10. 44. Plow. 82. D. & S. 20. Cromp Jur. 65, 66, *&c. The Trial of all Criminal matters is by the Country; and the party accuſed hath this benefit to be tried by his neighbors, and cannot be denied it unleſs it be his own fault, as where he is mute, and will not put himſelf upon the Country; for then without further Trial, Judgment de pain fort & dure is paſſed by the Judges upon him. See Action. Stamf. pl. Cor. 150. Mute.

For

Sect. 2. 3 In what place a Trial by Jury ſhall be.

For the places of Trial of matters, theſe things are to be known.

1. This is a general Rule; That the Trial muſt be always in that County and place where the Jury may have the beſt knowledg of the matter. And therefore if the thing lie in the notice of two Counties, the Jury ſhall be made equally out of both Counties. But out of more then two Counties it cannot be made.

2. Queſtions of Title of Land (except it be in ſome ſpecial caſes, and by ſpecial order of the Judges) are to be tried in the County where the Land doth lie. For the Law is, That all real and mixt Actions, as Waſte, Ejectione Firme, and the like, muſt be brought in the County where the Land lieth. But for Debt, Detinue, Account, Actions of the Caſe, Treſpaſs for Battery, and the like, they uſe to lay it in any County, and accordingly it may be tried.

3. The Judges of the Court wherein the Action is depending, may order the Trial of all Actions to be where they pleaſe.

4. All Criminal matters are to be tried where the offence is done. See for this more, 49 Aſſ. p. 11. 21 H. 6. 3. 7 R. 2. 10. 26 H. 8. 12. 27 H. 8. 4. 28 H. 8. 15. 33 H. 8. 12. 33. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 24. 14. 18 Eliz. 11. 7 Jac. 1. 21 Jac. 12. Co. upon Lit. 124. 7. 1. 9. 19. 9 Ed 3 ſt. 1. c. 4.

5. If done beyond Sea, it may now be tried in England. See Act, Sept. 20. 1649.

Iſſue, what.

This word hath divers uſes. It ſignifieth ſometimes the Children begotten between a man and his wife: Sometimes profits by Fines, Amerciaments, &c. Sometimes profit of Land; and ſometimes the Point of matter depending in Suit, whereupon the parties join and put their Cauſe to the Trial of the Judg or Jury, to make an end of the Suit. And this is ſometimes upon a Point in Law, and then it is called a Demurrer; and ſometimes it is upon a matter in Fact, when a thing alleadged by one is denied by the other. And then alſo it is either general, as Not guilty, or the like: Or ſpecial, when it is joined upon ſome ſpecial matter; ſometimes about matter of Record, ſometimes about matter of Writing, and ſometimes about matter of Fact, as about a Perſon, Time, Place, or the like. Sometimes alſo it is in the Affirmative; ſometimes in the Negative. And for all this, ſee Finches ley, 397. Co. 11. 10. 13 Ed. 1. 39.

Enqueſt or Inqueſt, what. Jurors, what.

An Inqueſt is the Enquiry that is made by a Jury of men ſworne to that purpoſe. And ſome do divide it into an Inqueſt of Jury, and Inqueſt of Office. The Jurors are the men that are ſworne in this Jury, which ſometimes are twelve, and ſometimes twenty four; who are ſworne to deliver and find the Truth upon ſuch Evidence as ſhall be given in to them touching the matter in queſtion.

Sect. 3. 4. The proceedings in Civil cauſes.

And by ſuch men are matters of Fact (for the moſt part) tried with us in England, in cauſes both Criminal and Civil. For in cauſes Civil, after each party hath ſaid what they can one againſt another in pleading, if there ariſe any Doubt about any matter of Fact, it is to be referred to the diſcretion of twelve indifferent men to be impannelled by the Sheriff for the purpoſe; and as they bring in their Verdict, ſo Judgment paſſeth. And this the Judg is to declare as the Law is, upon the matter of Fact: For the Judg ſaith, the Jury finds the Fact thus, then the Law is thus, and ſo we judg. For the Rule is, Ad quæſtionem Facti reſpondent Juratores, & ad quæſtionem Legis reſpondent Judices.

5. The proceedings in Criminal cauſes.

And for Criminal cauſes, the courſe in that is, That at the great and general Aſſiſes, and at the general Seſſions of the Peace, where are many Cauſes, there is (amongſt the reſt) one Jury called the Grand Jury, that commonly is of twenty four of the moſt ſubſtantial men out of every Hundred within the County returned by the Sheriff, and they are to conſider of all Bills of Indictment preferred to the Court: which they do either approve by writing theſe words upon them, [A true Bill;] or diſapprove, by writing upon them, [We are ignorant.] And ſuch as they do approve, if they be proceeded upon, are then further to be referred to another Jury. They may alſo upon their own Preſentment without Indictment charge any man with any crime; and this will be of the force of an Indictment, and the ſame Proceeding in this as upon an Indictment: For the party accuſed may traverſe the offence, and bring it to be tried by a Petit Jury. Other leſſer matters there in theſe Courts are proceeded upon without a Jury. And there ſome things are challenged for for insufficiencie, that must be tried by the Court: Some things are removed by Certiorari into a higher Court, and then there it must be tried. And that thing to which there is a Traverse put in, must be tried and ended by a Petit Jury: which (for the most part) in all Civil and Criminal causes, are but twelve. And these ought to be Free-men, not Vilains or Aliens; and lawful men, not outlawed men, and also men of worth and honesty. What Jurors ought to be.

But if the Suit be between an Alien and Denizen, in this case the Jury must be the one half of Aliens, and the other half of Denizens, which is called Trial medietate linguæ. The Disseisin of an Office in any Court, or rasing a Record in any Court, by the Filizers and Attornies of the Court. Medietate linguæ, what.

And the Answer of such a Jury in any Criminal or Civil matter referred to them, is called their Verdict. See for all these things, Finches ley 399. Westm. 2: 38. Stat. 28 Ed 3.9.11. 26 Ed 3.13. 11 H. 4.9. 34 Ed 3.8. 27 Ed. 1.2. Co. 6.47: 7.14. upon Lit. 155.271. with many others. Verdict, what.

And these Jurors in Civil matters are to see that they be not corrupted. For if they be, they may be severely punished by a Writ called a Decies tantum, which is a Writ lying against a Juror in any Inquest, when he taketh money or other reward of the one party or the other, to say or give his Verdict upon his side. And this any man that will, may sue against the Juror in the Lord Protector's and his own name; and if it be found, he is to lose ten times so much as he took, to be divided between the Lord Protector and Informer. And so it lieth against an Embraceror, one that doth procure another to be so perjured. See for this, Cromp. Jur. 208. 38 Ed 3.13. 39 Ed. 3.8. F.N.B. 171. Co. 7.14. And if the Jury give a false Verdict, and Judgment be given upon it, the party grieved may have a Writ of Attaint against them. But for this see my Second Part of the Marrow of the Law, f. 169, &c. Decies tantum, what. Attaint, what.

Visne is a neighbour-place neer at hand, out of which the Jury must come for the Trial of the thing in question committed or done neer thereabouts. For every Trial must be out of that Town, Parish, Hamlet, or place known out of the Town, &c. within the Record within which the matter of Fact issuable is alleadged, which is most certain and neerest thereunto, the Inhabitants whereof may have the more certain knowledg of the Fact. As if the Fact be alleadged to be done in a certain street called Kings-street in the City of Westminster in the County of Middlesex; in this case the Visne cannot come out of the street, for it is neither Town, Parish, nor Hamlet nor place, out of the neighbourhood whereof a Jury may come by Law, nor shall it come out of Westminster, but out of the Parish of S. Margaret, because that is most certain. See for this, Co. upon Lit. 125. 158. Hob. Rep. f. 8, 9. Stat. 25 H. 8: chap. 26. Sect. 4. Visne, or Venew what.

This word Issues is sometimes taken for the Forfeiture for not appearing upon a Distress infinite, which is the value of the Land from the Test of the Writ to the day of the Retorn. But it is also taken for the Forfeitures of those Jurors, that being duly summoned to appear, do make a default, which is more or less, as please the Judges of the Court. And these Issues being returned upon a Tenant in Fee-simple, in tail, or for life of another or himself, or in the right of his way; the Land he then hath will be chargeable for it, and any mans Cattel upon this Land may be distrained for it. See for this, Co. upon Lit 102. 22 H. 6.4. 35 H. 8.6. 2 Ed 6.22. 8 H. 6 9. 27 Eliz. 6.7. 1 Jac. 26. 4 H. 8.7. Issues, what.

Exemption of Juries, is a privilege that some men have to be exempted from the service in Juries. And this some have by dignity, as Barons, and such as are above them in degree, who are not to serve in ordinary Juries, but for Trial of a Peer, or the like. Others by a Writ, when they are very old, then they may have a Writ of Exemption or of Ease to be quit of all such publike service, as De non ponendis in Assisis, and the like. Or it may be by the Kings Grant: Or it may be by Custom, as Tenants in antient Demesn. But which way soever this notwithstanding, in case of a Grand Assise, Perambulation, Attaint, and some other special cases, such men as common persons, in the three last cases may be forced to serve. See for this, 12 Ed. 4. 18. Co. 6.53. Cromp. Jur. 20. Brownl. Rep. 1 par. f. 30. Marlb. ch. 14. 5 H. 8. ch. 6. Exemption of Juries, what. Writ of Ease: De non ponendis in Assisis & Juratis, what.

Sect. 5: Tales, what.

A Tales is a ſupply of men impannelled upon a Jury or an Inqueſt, when they do not appear, or when upon their appearance they are challenged for the Plaintiff or Defendant. Which ſupply, as it ſeems, was heretofore uſed to be made by Writs of Decem tales, Octo tales, &c. one of them after another as there was need, until the full Jury did appear. But now by a new Statute, the Judg upon motion made to him may (in caſe but one of the principal Pannel do appear) preſently cauſe a ſupply to be made of ſo many men as are wanting, of them that are there preſent ſtanding about the Court. And hereupon the very Act of Supply is called, A Tales de circumſtantibus. 35 *H.*8.6. 14 *Eliz.*9. 4 & 5 *P.& M.*7.9. *Co.*10.99. 20 *Ed.*4.11. *Stamf.*155. 37 *H.*6.12. 14 *H.*7.2.

Triers, what.

Triers be ſuch as be choſen to examine whether a Challenge made to the whole Pannel, or any one of the Pannel or Jury, be juſt, or not. For the courſe is, ſometimes to try a man by his Oath, and ſometimes by others of the Jury. If any of the Jury, after ſome of them be ſworne, be challenged; thoſe that are ſworne, are to ſay whether he that is challenged be indifferent, or not. But if the firſt or ſecond man be challenged, then the Court doth uſe to appoint ſome of them (who it pleaſeth) that ſhall be afterward ſworne, to try the indifferencie of the perſon challenged. 27 *H.*8. 28. 49 *Ed.*3.1. 3 *H.*6.36. 21 *H.*7.29. 28 *H.*8.26. Finches ley 112.

Hundredors, what.

Hundredors are men dwelling within the Hundred where the Land lieth, fit to be returned of a Jury upon any controverſie, Cromp. Jur. 217.

Pannel or Array, what. Array the Pannel.

The Pannel or Array, is nothing elſe but a Schedule or Roll containing the names of the Jurors that are returned in the Jury by the Sheriff to paſs upon the Trial of the matter. And to array the Pannel, is nothing elſe but to ſet forth one by one the men that are impannelled. For this, ſee Plow. 177. St. 18 H. 6. 14. 42 Ed. 3. 11. Co. upon Lit. 158.

Sect. 6. Venire facias, what.

Venire facias is a Writ Judicial going out of a Record, and lieth where two parties plead and come to iſſue upon the ſaying of the Country: For then the party, Plaintiff or Defendant, ſhall have this Writ directed to the Sheriff to cauſe to come twenty four lawful men of the County to ſay the truth upon the Iſſue taken. And if they come not at the day of the Writ returned, then ſhall go forth againſt them a Habeas corpora, and then a Diſtringas and other Writs, to bring them in to try the matter. The which two laſt Writs are uſually made with this clauſe, Niſi prius juſticiarii venerint, &c. and is returnable after the time of the Judges coming in their Circuit, and then it is uſually diſpatched by their Commiſſion of Niſi prius. Old N. B. f. 157.

Habeas Corpora what. Diſtringas, what.

Niſi prius, what.

Niſi prius, is a Writ Judicial lying where the Inqueſt is pannelled and returned before the Juſtices, upon requeſt of either party to the Sheriff, to cauſe the Jury to come before the Juſtices in the ſame County for the eaſe of the Country. 14 *Ed.*3.15. F.N.B. 120.

Challenge, what. The kinds of it. Array. Polls.

Challenge is an exception to things or perſons. To things, as Declarations, Pleadings, &c. For which ſee Pleadings. To perſons, when in an Aſſiſe or Jury the Plaintiff or Defendant doth except againſt all, or ſome, or one of them. And this laſt Challenge is ſometimes to the whole Array or Pannel, and ſometimes it is the Polls only, (i.) to ſome, or one, or more of the Jurors. And this Challenge alſo is ſometimes peremptory, (i.) without cauſe, which the Law doth give in ſome ſpecial caſe as an advantage: As a Priſoner arraigned for Felony (in favour of life) may challenge twenty of the Jury that are to try him for his life, which he may do without ſhewing any cauſe; and then theſe twenty muſt be put out, and others put in their room. Or elſe it is upon Cauſe. And amongſt Cauſes ſome are principal, and ſome inferior. A principal Challenge is, where it is apparent the Pannel or Perſon challenged is partial, being made in favour to one ſide, or in malice to the other, and ſo not indifferent. As if a Sheriff or Juror be a Brother, Son, Son-in-law, or Tenant of the one party, or be of kin in the ninth degree, though he cannot be Heir to the Land in queſtion. And if a Juror be of kin neerer or further off, and of the whole or half blood, ſo the pedigree can be conveyed in a certainty, it is a good Challenge. And ſo it is if the Juror were put in at the parties naming to the Sheriff, or the Sheriff or Juror be within the parties Fee, or his Servant, or within his Diſtreſs; whether whether a mediate, as holding of J. S. who holdeth of the party, or immediate Tenant, or not his Tenant, but he is to come to his Hundred, or the party hath a Rent-charge going out of his Land, or the party is to be Heir to him of other Land: All these are good Causes of Challenge, and are (as it seems) principal Challenges. So in personal Suits, That the party hath been Arbitrator of his side, and in that matter; That he hath an Action of Battery depending against the party; That there is an Action of Debt depending by the party against him; That he hath taken money to give his Verdict for the one party; That he hath given his Verdict beforehand, or that he hath given his Verdict formerly in the same matter: These are said to be principal Challenges. So it is said of those things that do only induce it; as that he is the parties Servant, Attorney, or Counsellor, Steward of his Manor, of the same Society, or hath given his Verdict before in a like matter. In all these and the like cases the other party may challenge him for this: And this being found by his own confession, upon his oath or otherwise, or by the Triers to be true, he will be laid aside. The inferior causes are such, as though they be found to be true, are more questionable. But in all Challenges, these Rules must be kept.

Rules concerning it.

1. All Challenges must be taken before the Jurors be sworn.

2. If one challenge a Juror, and it be found against the Challenger, he may not now challenge the Juror for a second cause.

3. If one challenge the Array, and it be found against him, he may not afterwards challenge any of the Polls without shewing cause presently, and this shall be tried presently.

4. No Challenge shall be admitted against the Triers appointed by the Court. See for all this, Co. upon Lit. 6. 156, 157, 158. Plow. 124, 125. Co. 1. 6. Finches ley 400. 7 H. 4. 10. 18 Ass. pl. 22. 21 Ed. 4. 61, 67. Stat. 27 H. 8. 26. 25 H. 8. 3. 22 H. 8. 14. 33 Ed. 1. Cromp. Jur. f. 81. 97. 25 Ed. 3. 3.

Treat, what.

Treat doth signifie as much as taken out or withdrawn; and is applied to a Juror, as a Juror is challenged for any cause, and for that cause he is Treat, that is, withdrawn, removed or discharged. Old N. B. 159.

Sect. 7. Certificate of Assise, what.

This is (as it seems) where the Bailiff of a Tenant in an Assise pleadeth, &c. and loseth by the Assise, and the Tenant himself hath a Release or some other Discharge to plead, then he may by this means have the Parties and first Jurors to appear again; and if it be found, he that recovered before shall lose the Land and yield double damages. Terms of the Law.

Evidence or Proof, what.

This Evidence sometimes signifieth authentical writings of Contracts. And sometimes any Proof, be it by testimony of Witnesses, Writings, Records, or otherwise offered to a Jury for proof of a matter in question and at issue, Co. 9. 9. And Proofs for to determine matter of fact, and to be offered to a Judg and Jury, are of two sorts. First, living, as by Witnesses; and to a Jury one Witnes is sufficient: And dead as matters of Record, as Letters-Patents, Fines, Recoveries, Inrollments, and the like; Writings sealed and delivered, as Feoffments, Leases, Releases, &c. and without Seal, as Courts-Rolls, Accounts, and the like. Co. upon Lit 283. 115. 6. For when a cause or suit in a mans proceeding comes hitherto, as that the contrary part denieth any deed or thing as not done, or not to be so as is alleadged on the other side, and then he joineth in the affirmative and offereth to prove the same, each of them are to give the best Evidence that they can to make his own saying good and true. And if the case be between the King and a Prisoner, he is first to say what he can himself; and then all that can say any thing against him, are to be heard upon oath; and then others may be heard for him, but not upon oath: And according to this Evidence on both sides, or without any Evidence at all, the Jury are to give their Verdict according to their oaths. Co. 9. 9. Dyer 2. Cromp. Jurisd. 218.

Witnesses.

For answer hereunto, these things must be known.

What Witnesses are good Witnesses to give in Evidence, or not.

1. Such persons as are infamous, as are persons attainted of Felony, or of a false Verdict, or of a Conspiracie, or of Perjury, or in a Præmunire, or of Forgery upon the Statute of 5 Eliz. chap. 14. and not upon the Statute of 1 H. 5. 3.

and ſuch as have had Judgment to loſe their ears, or ſtand on the Pillory or Tumbrel, or have been ſtigmatized or branded; and Infidels, men not of ſound memory, or not of diſcretion, or ſuch as are intereſſed in the cauſe, and may have benefit by the thing in queſtion, are not competent Witneſſes, but may be excepted againſt; and a Wife cannot be a Witneſs for or againſt her Husband. But all other perſons, albeit they be Kinſmen never ſo neer, Tenants, Servants, Maſters, Counſellors and Attornies, are allowed for competent Witneſſes, Co. upon Lit. f. 6. Plow. 8. 12. And theſe being required muſt come in to give Evidence, or they forfeit Ten pounds to the party damnified, and muſt give him coſts and damages, St. 5 *Eliz. c.*9.

What ſhall be ſaid to be good Evidence, and what things may be given in Evidence and proved, and how, and by whom.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe things.

1. Some things ought to be pleaded, and may not be given in Evidence. And for this, ſee Co. upon Lit. 282,283.

2. Records may prove themſelves and other things, but may not be proved by Witneſſes. But any thing done in the County-Court, Court-Baron, or Hundred-Court, may be proved by Witneſſes.

3. A Fine or Common-Recovery may be given in Evidence without being under the Great Seal, or Seal of the Court, and without vouching the Roll of the Recovery. And yet the Jury (as it ſeems) may chooſe whether they will find it upon this Evidence, or not, Plow. 410.

4. In a Plene Adminiſtravit, an Account given to, and allowed by the Ordinary, was not allowed for a good Evidence, nor is it to be received. The Court, Paſche 7 Jac. Co. B. So a Pedigree by a Herald of Arms is not to be admitted for proof of an Heir; but it muſt be proved by Deeds, Records, or Witneſſes. The Court, Paſche 8 Jac.

5. Depoſitions taken in the Eccleſiaſtical Court, cannot be given in Evidence, though the parties be dead March Rep. f. 120.

6. A Church-book is not to be given in Evidence. Brownl. 1 par. 207.

Shop-book. 7. None that keep a Shop-book, his Executors or Adminiſtrators, may give it in Evidence for Wares or Work, for above a year before the Action brought, unleſs they have a Bond or Bill for the Debt, or brought an Action thereupon within a year after the Wares delivered, or Work done. But this is to be obſerved amongſt others, and not between Merchant and Merchant, Tradeſman and Tradeſman, or Merchant or Tradeſman, St. 7 Jac. 12.

8. By the new Statute, 23 Octob. 1650. one may give in Evidence upon a general Iſſue, any matter ſpecial that he might have pleaded in the Action.

9. Juſtices of Peace, Conſtables, Bailiffs, Churchwardens, Surveyors of Highways, and ſuch like Officers, may plead the general Iſſue, and give the ſpecial matter in Evidence, St. 7 Jac. 5. 21 Jac. 12. Ord. 31 March, 1654.

Sect. 8. What ſhall be ſaid a good Evidence or proof to maintain a point in iſſue, or not.

For Anſwer to this, take theſe Caſes.

If in a Plene Adminiſtravit the Defendant give in Evidence, that part of the goods were pledged, and he redeemed them with his own money, and paid as much of his own money towards the Teſtators debts; this was held good. Co. ſuper Lit. 283. Dyer 2.

If the Iſſue be a Recogniſance or not, and a Recogniſance with a Defeaſance is given in Evidence; this is a good proof. Plow. 14.

If the point in Iſſue be, That he was never Executor, and the other prove an Adminiſtration committed to him; this is a good Evidence. Dyer 305.

If in a Detinue the Defendant plead he doth not detain, and he prove a Gift of the thing from the Plaintiff, this is a good Evidence. But otherwiſe it was, if he had ſhewed that they were pledged for money, and the money not paid; for this muſt have been ſpecially pleaded. But now this will be good alſo upon the new Act for general pleading. Co. ſuper Lit. 283.

If in Waſte the Defendant ſhew the thing done was by a Tempeſt, or by Lightening; this is a good Evidence. And ſo now to ſay, That he did repair it before the Action brought: But this heretofore muſt have been ſpecially pleaded, Co. ſup. Lit. 282.

If

If in debt upon a Bond, the Defendant plead, Non eſt factum, it is not his Deed; and the Defendant prove the Seal was broken off and put on again, or prove a Raſure of the Deed; either of theſe is a good Evidence, and will bar the Plaintiff. Co. 5. 119. 11. 27.

If the point be upon a tranſitory Treſpaſs done at a day or place certain, and the proof is that it was done at another day before, or at another place; this is good enough. But otherwiſe it is, if the proof be that it was done at a time after the time laid in the Action, Co. ſuper Lit. 283.

If the Iſſue be an Agreement, a ſpecial Agreement proved will maintain it. So of a Feoffment, a Feoffment on Condition will maintain it. Plow. 8.

If the Iſſue be in a Suit againſt an Executor or Adminiſtrator, Aſſets in London; proof of Aſſets in any place in the world is good to maintain it, Co. 6. 47. And if it be in caſe of an Heir on a Suit grounded on a Specialty againſt him, the Iſſue is Aſſets by deſcent; it will make it good to prove Aſſets in any place in England. And if Aſſets in one County be the point, it is good enough to prove Aſſets in any County, Dyer 271. Cromp. Jur. 12.

If the Defendant plead paiment to a Bond or Bill, and it appears the Debt is very old, and it hath not been demanded, nor any Uſe paid for it for many years, nor is there any badg of the continuance of it; in this caſe it is, upon the common preſumption that it is paid, held a good Evidence, and the Juries do uſe to find for the Defendants. (Experience.)

In Trover and Converſion of Goods, and Not guilty pleaded, it is good Evidence for the Plaintiff as to the point of Converſion of the Goods, that the Plaintiff demanded them, and the other denied or refuſed to deliver them. Plow. 14.

A Licence to alien Land, or a Pardon for an Alienation of Land, was held by a common preſumption, a good proof that the Land was held in Capite. M. 7 Car. B. R. Sir Jo Conſtables Caſe. But if a Leaſe for life be the point, and it is proved, and no Livery of Seiſin given upon it; this is no good Evidence, Co. ſup. Lit. 283. So if the point be a Gift in Tail made by J. S. and the proof is of a Deed made by J. D. this is not a good Evidence. So if the point be a Leaſe parol, and a Leaſe in writing is given in Evidence; theſe are not good. Bro. Gen. Iſſue, 81. Plow. 14.

If in Debt on a Bond, and not his Deed pleaded, he ſhew that the Bond was joint, this is not good, Co. ſup. Lit. 283. And yet perhaps now by the new Act, this ſpecial matter may be given in Evidence; for he may give in Evidence any thing that he may plead eſpecially; and this pleaded ſpecially would have barred. So in an Aſſiſe, and no wrong pleaded, and a Releaſe after the Diſſeiſin is given in Evidence. So where the Iſſue in Treſpaſs is Not guilty, and the Defendant give in Evidence a Licence, Kelw. 55. 59 Or give in Evidence ſon aſſault demeſne, that the Defendant began. But if he plead de ſon aſſault demeſne, he may not give in Evidence, Not guilty. Idem.

To prove the ſealing and delivery of a Deed, and not know the party that did it, is not a good Evidence; and yet if they know him when they ſee him again, it is well enough, Kelw. 59.

If Executors in a Plene Adminiſtravit had given a Judgment in Evidence; this was not good, but muſt have been pleaded ſpecially; but it ſeems is good now. Kelw. 59.

If the Action of Waſte be laid in cutting and felling Trees, and the Evidence in mooting or rooting up of Trees; it ſeems not good. M. 7 Jac. Co B.

If a Feoffment be the Iſſue, and a Deed is ſhewed with this Indorſment, That J. S. Attorney of the Feoffor did give Livery according to the Deed, and no Letter of Attorney proved or inſerted in the Deed, but the Feoffor recites in his Will that he had conveyed his Land; this (it ſeems) is not good. Gibbins Caſe, P 7 Jac. B. R.

In an Action of the Caſe upon a Promiſe, and Non aſſumpſit pleaded, Paiment could not have been given in Evidence, as now it ſeems it may. (Three Judges.) So in Debt for Rent, That the Leſſor had entred into part of the Land, Goldsb. f. 81.

One brings an Action of Treſpaſs in a Cloſe abutting on a certain Mill, &c. If he prove not the Buttals, he is gone. The Court, Goldsb. 125.

If there be two Batteries made between the Plaintiff and Defendant at divers times; the Plaintiff to maintain the Iſſue, muſt prove the Battery made the ſame day he hath laid in his Declaration, and may not be admitted to give another day in Evidence, Brownl. 1 par. 233.

Sect. 9. Verdict, what.

Verdict is the Anſwer of the Jury made upon any cauſe Civil or Criminal, committed by the Court to their conſideration or Trial: which is general, as Not guilty, or Guilty; or ſpecial, when they find Special, and for the doubtfulneſs of it refer it to the Judges for their advice. Co. 9.12.119.6.46.

What ſhall be ſaid to be a good Verdict, or not.

If a Verdict find the matter or ſubſtance of the Iſſue, it is good enough, though it vary in circumſtance. See Co. upon Lit. & Dyer 55. March 9.

Notwithſtanding a Jury, after they be agreed, do eat or drink at their own charge, or at his charge for whom they do find; this is not Finable, and the Verdict is good. But if it were before they were agreed, at the charge of him for whom they find; this would make the Verdict void. But if it were at their own charge, or his againſt whom they find, it is Fineable, but the Verdict is good, Co. upon Lit. 227. And yet if they eat and drink at their own charge before they be agreed, it is ſaid the Verdict is naught, Dyer 3. 20 *H.*7.3. Hughs 1 Rep. 353.

If the Action be againſt a Leſſee for cutting of Trees on a Covenant, and he ſay he cut twenty Trees, and the Jury find ten, it is a good Verdict: For if the matter of the Iſſue be found, it is well enough. As if one be indicted, that he of malice prepenſed killed J. S. and the Jury find him guilty of manſlaughter; this is a good Verdict. So if a Plaintiff alleadg the avoidance of a Church by privation, and the Jury find it to be by death, it is good. Co. upon Lit. 282.

The Jury muſt not find any thing contrary to what is agreed in pleading between the parties, either expreſly or implicitely; and if they do, the Judges may reject it. As in Waſte ſuppoſed in A. if the Defendant plead that A. is a Hamlet in B. and not a Town of it ſelf; in this he confeſſeth the Waſte: The Jury that are to try this Iſſue, whether it be in B. &c. ſhall not be admitted to find no Waſte done, for that were againſt the Record. 9 H. 6. 56. Co. upon Lit. 22.

If upon a Treſpaſs local, as Graſs cut down in the County of S. where the Treſpaſs was in the County of D. and the Defendant plead Not guilty (as he may) and the Jury find him guilty in the County of S. this Verdict is void, and no Judgment ſhall be given upon it. 9 *H.*6.63.

If they find a matter in certainty or ambiguouſly, it is void: As in a Plene Adminiſtravit, if they find the Executor have Goods in his hands, and find not to what value: So if they find part of the Iſſue, and find nothing for the reſidue, it is void. But if they give a Verdict of the whole Iſſue and more, it is good enough. Utile per inutile non vitiatur, Co. on Lit. 227.

If the Plaintiff after Evidence given, and the Jury departed from the Bar, deliver any Letter, Evidence, or Eſcrow to the Jury, not before given in Evidence at the Bar: if it paſs with him, this will avoid the Verdict; but if it paſs againſt him, contra, &c. So if they carry away any Writing unſealed, this will not avoid it, though this be a Miſdemeaſance, Co. upon Lit. f. 227, 281. See more, Brownl. Rep. 1 par. 49. 2 par. 150.190. 9 H 6.57. 20 *H.*7.3. Dyer 3.

Witneſſes.

As to Witneſſes, theſe things are to be known. Firſt, Thoſe that are ſerved by Proceſs out of any Court of Record to come in as Witneſſes, and are tendred reaſonable charges, muſt appear if they have no let, under pain of Ten pounds, and to give recompence to the party grieved according to his damage, 5 Eliz. 9. Wherein this is to be known, 1. It ſufficeth to leave a Note of the Proceſs at the houſe of the Witneſs. 2. If the charges tendred be not enough, if the Witneſſes accept it, he is bound to appear: But otherwiſe not, if he do not leave ſufficient to bear his charges. 3. He that ſues upon this Statute, muſt aver that he is damnified, March Rep. 43. 4. A Lawyer that was of Counſel, may be examined upon oath as a Witneſs to the matter of the Agreement, not to the validity of an Aſſurance, nor to his Counſel that he gave, Mar. R. 83. Secondly, If a Witneſs commit wilful Perjury, he loſeth Twenty pounds, ſhall be impriſoned ſix moneths without Bail, ſtand in the Pillory, and be diſabled to be a Witneſs, 5 Eliz. 9. Thirdly, The penalty of him that ſhall procure ſuch Perjury, Idem. Fourthly, How Witneſſes to prove a Deed were called in before 5 Eliz. ſee St. 12 Ed. 2. 2.

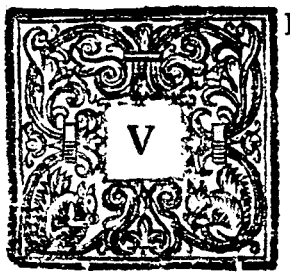
CHAP. CLXII.

Of Upholſters, View, Victuallers, Univerſities, and Vilains.



View is, where an Action is brought for Land, and the Defendant doth not well know what Land it is that the Demandant asketh; then the Tenant ſhall pray the View, (that is) that he may ſee the Land which he claimeth. View, what.

Then the Court will ſend Veyors to view the place in queſtion, for the better deciſion of the Right. And if the Defendant deny, this is called a Counterplea of the View. Veyors, what. Counterplea of the View.

For matters relating to the Univerſities, ſee Stat. 2 & 3 P. & M. 15. 13 Eliz. 21. Univerſities.

How Upholſters muſt prepare, make and ſell Featherbeds, Bolſters, Pillows, Quilts, Matreſſes, and Cuſhions, ſee Stat. 11. *H.*7. 18. 5 & 6 *Ed.*6.23. Upholſters.

For Victuallers, Victuals, and Hoſtlers, theſe things are to be known. Sect. 1. Victuallers, Inholders, and Hoſtlers.

1. Victuallers muſt ſell their victuals at the prices the Juſtices of Peace ſhall ſet down in their Seſſions, Stat. 13 *R.*2. 8. 25 *H.*8. 2.

2. If they do not aſſeſs, they muſt ſell at reaſonable rates, reſpecting the times.

3. They may not make Agreement to ſell their Victuals at a certain price, Stat. 2 & 3 Ed. 6. 15.

4. No Victualler, whilſt he is a Victualler, may exerciſe any Judicial office in that place.

5. The Inholder may keep his Gueſts horſe, till he be paid for the meat of him and his horſe. And if he ſtay ſo long till it come to the worth of the horſe, he may ſell the horſe and pay himſelf, by a Cuſtom in London, Brownl. 2 par. 254. But out of London it ſeems he cannot ſell the horſe, nor do more then keep him as a Pledg; nor can he work him. Brownl. 2 par. 254.

No Inholder or Hoſtler may take any thing for Litter for horſes; nor may they take of any man more then what is reaſonable, having reſpect to the Markets, for any kind of proviſion for man or beaſt. Nor if he live where a Baker is, may he make his Horſe-bread himſelf; and if he do, he muſt make it of the due aſſiſe and weight. See for all this, St. 13 *R.*2. 8. 23 Ed. 3. 6. 21 Jac. 22. 5 Eliz. 5. 27 Eliz. 11. 28 *H.*8. 14. 37 *H.*8. 13. 34 *H.*8. 7. 4 *H.*4. 25. 12 *Ed.*4. 8. 25 *H.*8. 1. 23 *H.*8. 4. 32 H. 8. 41.

7. The Inholder is to look to the goods of his Gueſt, whiles they are in his houſe. And for this theſe things are to be known. 1. He is not to be charged with the goods of any one that doth not lodg in the Inne: And therefore if a Neighbor come to dinner there, he ſhall not anſwer for his goods; ſo if any Neighbor come in to tipple there. 2. He ſhall not anſwer for any goods, but what are loſt by his default. 3. He ſhall not be charged for the goods of any but ſuch as lodg in the Inne: And therefore if a Haberdaſher come to an Inne and there ſell divers Hats, and then go to a Fair and leave divers Hats there, and they be loſt; the Inn-keeper ſhall not be charged. And yet one lodged there and left a Trunk a while, and went away and did not lie there; the Trunk was ſtollen, and the Inn-keeper charged with it. 4. If the Owner deſire his horſe may go to graſs, and it be loſt, the Inn-keeper ſhall not anſwer it; but if the Inn-keeper put him to graſs of his own head, it is otherwiſe. 5. Albeit the Inn-keeper deliver the key of his chamber to his Gueſt, yet he ſhall be charged if the goods be loſt, Brownl. 1 par. 244, 245. 6. An Inn-keeper muſt receive a Traveller, or elſe the Traveller may ſue him. 7. The Inn-keeper is not bound to receive his horſe or goods, unleſs he receive the Maſter alſo. See Action upon the Caſe.

Villains, Villenage, what. Neife, what. Liber ate probanda Nativo habend. Manumiſſion, what.

As for Villains, which were Bondmen, and Villenage, which was a ſervile Tenure long ſince gone: Therefore of them, and of a Neif, which was a Bondwoman; Libertate probanda, to prove freedom and diſcharge from bondage; Nativo habendo, to fetch a Villain again, being run away; Infranchiſement or Manumiſſion, the freeing of a Slave out of Bondage, we ſhall ſay nothing, becauſe they are things gone long ſince.

CHAP. CLXIII.

Of Uſes.

1. Uſe, what.

A Uſe is, the profit or benefit of Lands or Tenements: Or as others define it, The equity and honeſty to hold the Land, in conſcientia boni viri: Or as others define it more fully, It is a truſt or confidence repoſed in ſome other, which is not iſſuing out of the Land, but as a thing collateral annexed in privity to the Eſtate of the Land, and to the perſon touching the Land, ſo that he for whom he is truſted ſhall take the profit of the Land, and the Terre-tenant ſhall diſpoſe of it according to his direction. As for an example: If a Feoffment be made to J. S. and his heirs, to the uſe, profit or behoof of W. S. and his heirs; in this caſe heretofore J. S. had the eſtate and property of the Land, but W. S. had and was to have the profits in honeſty and equity. So if one agree with W. S. for a piece of Land for Twenty pounds, and pay him the money, but hath no aſſurance of the Land, yet the equity and honeſty to have this Land is in him that hath contracted and paid his money for it: And this Truſt was called the Uſe of the Land. And hence came the courſe in Conveyances, to ſet down in the Habendum to whoſe uſe; as, Habendum to A. and his heirs, to the uſe of A. and his heirs. And he for whom this Truſt is, and that ought to have the profit of the Land by Conveyance as aforeſaid, is called Ceſtuy que uſe. There is a Uſe alſo of Goods and Chattels, which is properly called a Truſt or Confidence; for one may have ſuch things to the uſe of another. Co. 1. 121, 122. See the Addition to Juſt. Doddr. Treatiſe. Co. ſuper Lit. 271, 272.

Ceſtuy que uſe. Truſt or Confidence, what.

2. The kinds.

A Uſe is either expreſs, (i.) when the uſe or intent is openly declared and expreſſed between the parties upon the making of the Eſtate of Land whereunto the uſe is annexed: As when a Feoffment is made of Land to J. S. and his heirs, to the uſe of W. S. and the heirs of, or heirs males of the body of the ſaid W. S. or to the end or intent that W. S. and his heirs, or W. S. and the heirs of his body ſhall take the profits of it, and the like; or when I covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of the Land to the uſe of my wife for life, and after of my eldeſt ſon and the heirs of his body, or the like. Or it is implied, (i.) when the Uſe is not declared upon the agreement between the parties, but is left to the conſtruction, and made by the operation of Law: As when a man ſeiſed of Land makes a Feoffment in Fee, or doth levy a Fine, or ſuffer a Common-Recovery of it to another without any conſideration, and it is not agreed nor declared to what uſe or intent it ſhall be; this by conſtruction of Law ſhall be to the uſe of the Feoffor, Conuſor, or Recoveree: But if there be any conſideration of money or other thing paid or given, or any Rent or Tenure reſerved, then by conſtruction of Law it ſhall be to the uſe of the Feoffee, Conuſee, or Recoveror; for otherwiſe the Law preſumeth that the intent of him that did part with the Land was ſo, viz. That the other ſhould have the property of the Land to his uſe, and that he himſelf ſhould take the profits of it. So when one doth bargain and ſell his Land for money to another, and no Uſe is expreſſed; in this caſe the Law doth ſay, it ſhall be to the uſe of the Bargainee and his heirs. Doct. & St. 95. Perk. ſect. 533. Co. 2. 58. 9. 11. Dyer 18, 146.

A Uſe alſo is either in eſſe, and that in Poſſeſſion, Reverſion, or Remainder; as when a Feoffment is made to J. S. to the uſe of J. W. and his heirs, or to the uſe of J. W. and after to the uſe of J. D. and the heirs males of his body, and after to the uſe of S T. and his heirs for ever. Or it is in poſſe, or in contingencie; as when by poſſibility it may happen to be in Poſſeſſion, Reverſion, or Remainder: As where a Uſe is limited to me for life, and after to him that ſhall be my firſt ſon in Tail; this is only the poſſibility of a Uſe, for it may or may not be. Co. 1. 121.

3. The nature, incidents, and original of it.

A Uſe at the Common-Law, before the Statute hereafter ſpoken of was made, was, and where that Statute doth not take place, is nothing but a meer confidence and truſt collateral to, and diſtinct from the Land annexed in privity of Eſtate, and to the perſon touching the Land, to this purpoſe, That Ceſtuy que uſe ſhould take the profit of the Land, and the Feoffee or Terre-tenant that was truſted ſhould make Eſtates, and otherwiſe diſpoſe of the Land as the Ceſtuy que uſe in his life, or at his death by his laſt Will and Teſtament ſhould direct and appoint; and if he made no diſpoſition, then that it ſhould go to his heir. So that the Feoffee had the Freehold or ſole property of the thing in him; and Ceſtuy que uſe had neither jus in re, nor jus ad rem, (For if he againſt the Will of the Feoffee had entred into the Land, he had been a Treſpaſſor:) but a bare confidence or truſt, for which the Ceſtuy que uſe had no remedy but in Chancery upon breach of the truſt, and there to have the Feoffee impriſoned until he perform the truſt according to the Order of the Court. And theſe Uſes to ſome purpoſes were reputed in Law as Chattels, and therefore were deviſable by Will; and to ſome purpoſes as Hereditaments, and a kind of Inheritance, of which there was poſſeſſio fratris &c. And to ſome purpoſes neither Chattels nor Hereditaments; for they were not eſteemed Aſſets in the Heir or Executor, neither were they reputed as Commons, Rents, Conditions, and ſuch like Inheritances which are diſcontinued or taken away by the Alienation of the Terre-tenant, Eſcheat, Diſſeiſin, &c. But a Uſe is not ſo. Co. in Chudleighs Caſe, in toto; and Shelleys Caſe. Kelw. 160. Dyer 12. Bro. Feoffm. al. uſes in toto. Conſc. 25.

Incidents of it.

And to every of theſe Uſes there were two inſeparable Incidents; Confidence in the Perſon, and Privity in the Eſtate, expreſſed by the parties, or implied by the Law: And when either of theſe failed, the Uſe was either gone for ever, or ſuſpended for a time at the leaſt. And therefore if the Feoffee to uſe, upon good conſideration, had enfeoffed another of the Land that had not notice of the Uſe, the Uſe had been gone for ever; becauſe howſoever here was a Privity of Eſtate, yet here was no Confidence in the perſon. But if the Feoffment had been without Conſideration to ſuch a one; in this caſe the Uſe had remained ſtill, becauſe the Law did imply a Notice. Trin. 17 Jac. Cancellaria.

So alſo it ſeems the Law was, when it was made in conſideration of marriage only. And if a Diſſeiſor, Abator or Intrudor had come to the poſſeſſion of the Land whereof the uſe was, albeit he had notice of the uſe, yet the uſe was ſuſpended during their poſſeſſion, and they ſhould not have been ſeiſed to uſe as the Feoffee was; for they come not to the Land in the per, but in the poſt. And if a Lord by Eſcheat, Lord of a Villain, or one that had entred for Mortmain, or that had recovered in a Ceſſavit, &c. had come to ſuch Land, and had notice of the uſe, the uſe had been gone for ever; for theſe came to the Land in the poſt and above the uſe. And Tenant in Dower and by the Courteſie ſhould not be ſeiſed to uſes in being; for all theſe wanted Privity of Eſtate. And if there had been Tenant for life, the Remainder in Fee to the uſe of another, and the Tenant for life had made a Feoffment in Fee to one that had notice of the uſes; this ſecond Feoffee ſhould not have ſtood ſeiſed to the firſt uſes.

So if the Husband had made a Feoffment in Fee of the Land of his Wife, upon Conſideration, and without any Uſe expreſſed, the Wife ſhould not have had a Subpœna, becauſe the Feoffee was not in Privity of Eſtate of the Wife. And if Ceſtuy que uſe for life or in tail, the Remainder in tail, with divers Remainders over in uſe, had made a Feoffment to one that had notice; he ſhould not have been ſeiſed to the firſt uſes, cauſa qua ſupra. But otherwiſe it is of Commons, Advowſons, and ſuch like appendants or appurtenants: For if Tenant in tail, or Husband in right of his Wife make a Feoffment of a Manor, or of part of it with an Advowſon appendant; the Advowſon at leaſt, after Preſentment, ſhall paſs as appendant to the Manor, or to part of the Manor, and not to the Eſtate of the Land which is diſcontinued by the Feoffment. So if a Diſſeiſor, Abator, Intrudor, or the Lord by Eſcheat, or the like, ſhall have theſe things as annexed to the Land, or the poſſeſſion of the Land. So that there is a difference between a Uſe, a Warranty, and ſuch like things that are annexed to the Eſtate of the Land in privity; and Commons, Advowſons, and other Hereditaments that are annexed to the poſſeſſion of the Land.

The original of it, and why ſo much lands were put in uſe.

And theſe Uſes began firſt when the cuſtom of Property began and was brought in, that one man knew his own from another mans, and then was to enjoy his own, and not to be deprived of it without conſent or order of Law. For then he that had Land, had two things in him; a poſſeſſion of the Land, and power to take the profits of it. And thoſe being to be diſtinguiſhed, he might give the Freehold or Poſſeſſion to another, and take the profits to himſelf. D. & S. 96. Co. 1. 123, 124. Stat. 27 H 8 ch. 10. in the Preamble.

And they were the rather allowed by the Law for a time as reaſonable, becauſe they gave a man power to diſpoſe of his Land by Will, which otherwiſe he could not have done but in ſome ſpecial caſes by Cuſtom of the place. But in time this uſe was turned into an abuſe; and the greateſt part of all the Lands in the Kingdom, eſpecially in the time of the Broil between the Houſes of York and Lancaſter, were put in Uſe, partly of fraud, and partly of fear. Which produced not a few inconveniences: For thereby many were deceived of their juſt and reaſonable rights, as namely, A man that had cauſe to ſue for his Land, knew not againſt whom to bring his Action, or who was Owner of it; the Wife was defrauded of her Thirds, the Husband of being Tenant by the Courteſie, the Lord of his Wardſhip, Relief, Harriot and Eſcheat, the Creditor of his Extent for Debt, the poor Tenant of his Leaſe, and other Purchaſors of their purchaſe. For theſe rights and duties were given by the Law from him that was owner of the Land, and none other, which at this time was the Feoffee of truſt; and ſo the Feoffor, the old owner of the Land, ſhould take the profits, and leave the power to diſpoſe of the Land at his diſcretion to the Feoffee: And yet the Feoffee was not ſuch a Tenant of the Land, as his Wife might have Dower, or the Land be extended for his Debt, or that he might forfeit it by Felony or Treaſon, or that his Heir ſhould be in Ward for it, or any duty of Tenure fall to the Lord by his death, or that he could make any Eſtates of it. Alſo Lands were many times conveyed by laſt Wills, by words only, and ſometimes by Tokens only in time of great extremity of weakneſs: And many perjuries for Trial of ſecret Uſes, were daily committed.

The miſchief of Uſes.

Uſes and Poſſeſſions united.

All which having been eſpied, have been laboured to be cured and holpen by divers particular Acts of Parliament in all ſucceeding ages. Stat. 1 R. 2. ch. 9. 4 H. 4. 7. 11 H. 6. 3. 1 R. 3. 1. 4 H. 7. 17. 1 H. 7. 1. 19 H. 7. 15. 27 H. 8. 10. But the makers of theſe Laws finding the continuances of theſe Uſes ſo miſchievous, that they did over-reach the policie of all Laws: For a general remedy, and a perfect cure of all the ſaid miſchiefs and abuſes, have at laſt provided; That where any are, or ſhall be ſeiſed of any Lands to the uſe or truſt of any other, by reaſon of any Bargain, Sale, Feoffment, Fine, Recovery, Contract, Agreement, or otherwiſe, by any means whatſoever, Ceſtuy que uſe or truſt, that hath any ſuch uſe in Fee-ſimple for term of life or years, or otherwiſe, or any uſe in Reverſion or Remainder, &c. ſhall have the poſſeſſion of the Land in ſuch quality, manner and condition as he had the uſe or truſt: And where any one is ſeiſed of Lands to the uſe or intent that another ſhall have a yearly Rent out of the ſame Lands, Ceſtuy que uſe of the Rent ſhall be deemed in poſſeſſion thereof of like eſtate as he had the uſe. By which Statute the uſe and poſſeſſion of Land is now at this day coupled, conjoined and married with an indiſſoluble knot, ſo as they cannot now ſtand apart and divided, but he that hath the one muſt have the other, and the one doth enſue the other as the ſhadow doth the body: And therefore now upon Fines, Recoveries and Feoffments, the Eſtate doth ſettle as the uſe and intent of the parties is declared by word or writing before the act done.

As

As for example, If a Writing be made between two or more, that one of them ſhall levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, or ſuffer a Recovery to the other, to the uſe and intent that one of them, or another man ſhall have it for life, and after another in Tail, and after a third in Fee-ſimple; in this caſe the Law ſetleth the Eſtate according to the uſe and intent declared: So that now what Eſtate a man hath in the uſe, the ſame he hath in the poſſeſſion.

To what uſes the Statute of 27 H. 8. doth extend, and to what not.

But herein for the more full underſtanding of this Statute, and the Law at this day, it muſt be obſerved, that this Statute doth not extend to all manner of uſes, neither are all uſes executed and united to the poſſeſſion hereby. For to every execution of a uſe within this Statute, four things are requiſite.

1. That there be a perſon ſeiſed.
2. That there be a Ceſtuy que uſe in eſſe.
3. That there be a uſe in eſſe in Poſſeſſion, Reverſion, or Remainder.
4. That the Eſtate out of which the uſes do ariſe, be veſted in Ceſtuy que uſe. So that when theſe four, viz. Seiſin in the Feoffees, Ceſtuy que uſe in rerum natura, Uſe in eſſe, and that the Eſtate of the Feoffees doth veſt in Ceſtuy que uſe, then there is an execution of the uſe within this Statute. But if any of theſe fail, there is no execution of the uſe within this Statute. Co. 1.126.136. Plow. 351. And therefore it is agreed, that this Statute doth not execute any uſe but only uſes in eſſe: So that the right of a preſent, and a future or contingent uſe are excluded until they come in eſſe, and then the Statute doth execute them. Alſo if no alteration be of the Eſtate of the Land before; and if Ceſtuy que uſe in tail with divers uſes in remainder had made a Feoffment, and died before the Statute, no execution ſhould have been of this right of a uſe until Entry by the Feoffees. Co. 1.126. Dyer 58. 88. 330. So if Ceſtuy que uſe in poſſeſſion had made a Feoffment before the Statute, no right of the uſe in poſſeſſion or remainder ſhall be executed by the Statute, until the regreſs by the Feoffees. So if a Feoffment had been made before the Statute to the uſe of the Feoffee for life, and after to the uſes of others in remainder, and the Feoffee had made a Feoffment in fee to another; this uſe ſhall not be recontinued, or the repoſſeſſion of the Land executed unto it by this Statute.

So that the right of uſes in eſſe, and uſes in contingencie, until they happen to be in eſſe, remain at the Common-Law as they were before the Statute. And therefore if the Eſtate of the Feoffees be in ſuch caſes diveſted by Diſſeiſin; or the King, or a Corporation, or an Alien, or a perſon attaint, &c. be enfeoffed of the Land before the uſe come in eſſe; or if the Land be aliened bona fide upon conſideration to one that hath notice of the uſe; this uſe can never be executed until theſe Poſſeſſions be removed by lawful Entry or Action of the Feoffees. And if their Entry and Action be barred, the uſe is gone for ever, and the party grieved thereby hath no remedy but in Chancery. And therefore if Ceſtuy que uſe in tail, the Remainder in tail reſtrained with a clauſe of perpetuity be diſſeiſed, no uſe in contingencie can be executed by this Statute.

And if before the Statute a Feoffment had been made in Fee to the uſe of J. S. for life, and after to the uſe of the right heirs of J. N. and the Feoffees had been diſſeiſed, and then the Statute had been made, and after J. N. die, and after his death J. S. die; this uſe ſhall never be executed in the right heir of J. N. Co. 1.138.

And ſo alſo if a Diſſeiſin be after the Statute, and before the death of J. N. no poſſeſſion ſhall be executed in the right heir of J. N. Alſo uſes that need no execution by the Statute, as when a man doth convey Land to J. S. and his heirs, to the uſe of J. S. and his heirs; this doth not need help of this Statute: Alſo uſes that are againſt the Rules of the Common-Law, ſhall not be executed by this Statute. And therefore if a Feoffment be made to the uſe of A. for life, and after to the uſe of every perſon that ſhall be his heir one after another for term of his life. So if one make a Feoffment to the uſe of another in tail, with divers Remainders over, with a Previſo that neither of them ſhall diſcontinue or alien, &c. Theſe uſes ſhall not be executed, becauſe theſe Limitations are wholly void. And in theſe caſes (it ſeems) there is no remedy to be had in Chancery againſt the Feoffees.

So that out of all this appeareth, that ſome Uſes are executed preſently, as Uſes in eſſe; and ſome are executed by matter ex poſt facto, if they be according to Law, and come in eſſe in due time. But if they be Uſes invented and limited in a new manner, and not according to the antient Common-Law, they are altogether void, and extinguiſhed and aboliſhed by this Statute. And where Lands are conveyed to others in truſt after this or the like manner, viz. That the Feoffees ſhall take the profits, and deliver them to the Feoffor and his Heirs, &c. or that the Feoffees ſhall convey it to the Heir of the Feoffor at his age of twenty one years: And where Lands are conveyed to certain uſes expreſſed and declared, and there be other ſecret uſes and intents agreed upon between the parties; theſe uſes or truſts are not within this Statute, neither will the Statute execute them, but they remain as they were before the Statute, determinable in Chancery.

Alſo Leaſes for years of Lands in uſe that have their being before, and are granted over in uſe, are not executed by this Statute. And therefore if a Leſſee for years of Land grant or aſſign over his Eſtate to A. and B. and their Aſſigns, to the uſe of the Grantor and his wife for the term of their lives; this uſe or truſt is out of the Statute, and not executed thereby: And therefore in this caſe all the Eſtate is in A. and B. and the Grantor hath nothing but a uſe, for which he hath his remedy in Chancery. Dyer 369.356. Cromp. Jur. 65.

So if one be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and he bargain and ſell it, or make a Leaſe of it to another in truſt, and for the benefit of a third perſon; this is but a Chancery-truſt &c. in this third perſon, as was held clearly, M. 8 Car. B.R. And yet if a Feoffment be made to the uſe of J.S. and his Aſſigns for the term of twenty years, this term of years ſhall be executed by the Statute. And ſo in all ſuch like caſes and queſtions of Truſts and Uſes that are not within the Statute of Uſes, the Law is now as it was before the ſame Statute was made, and all thoſe matters are determinable in Chancery. For as the queſtios of Uſes and Truſts that are within the Statute, are to be decided and ruled by the Judges of the Common-Law; ſo are all other queſtions of Uſes and Truſts that are out of the Statute, to be ruled and decided by the Judges of the Chancery.

4. What ſhall be ſaid a good uſe of Land, or not, and when and where ſuch a uſe ſhall be raiſed, altered or created, or not. Firſt in reſpect of the manner of raiſing it, and the ſeveral ways whereby Uſes may be raiſed.

To make a good Uſe, or to make a Uſe to riſe, eſpecially ſuch a Uſe as may be within the Statute, reſpect muſt be had to divers things, Co. ſuper Lit. 271: Plow. 301.

Firſt, to the ways or means of creating and raiſing of Uſes: wherein it is to be obſerved, that albeit the quality of the Uſes be changed in moſt caſes by the Statute of Uſes, yet Uſes, and Uſes within this Statute are, and may be raiſed as they might before the Statute, either by tranſmutation of the Eſtate, as by Fine, Feoffment, Common-Recovery, &c. or out of the Eſtate of the Owner of the Land, as by Bargain and Sale, by Deed indented or inrolled, or by Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to Uſes upon good conſideration.

And therefore a Fine, Feoffment, or Recovery may be had of Land, to the uſe and intent that either of the parties thereunto, or others, ſhall have it for any time or eſtate; and by this means what Uſes, and conſequently what Eſtates a man will, may be raiſed and created. And in theſe caſes the Conuſor, Feoffor, or Recoveree may appoint the Uſe of the ſame Fine, Feoffment, or Recovery to whom he will, without any reſpect of marriage, money, kindred, or the like; for in this caſe his will guideth the equity of the eſtate, Brownl. 2 par. 76.201. Dyer 186.

Or if a man make a Leaſe to A. for life, to the uſe of B. for life; this is a good uſe and eſtate in B. during the life of A. Co. 6.68.

Or if a man by Bargain and Sale for good conſideration ſell his Land to another, hereby the Uſe will riſe according to the Eſtate bargained and ſold, unto the Bargainee. But in this caſe if it be an Eſtate of Freehold, as of Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, or for life, that is ſold; the Bargain and Sale muſt be made by Deed indented and inrolled within ſix moneths after in ſome of the Courts at Weſtminſter, or in the Seſſions Rolls of the Shire where the Land lieth, (except it be in Cities and Corporate-Towns where they uſe to inroll Deeds) otherwiſe no Uſe will riſe by it. But if it be an Eſtate or term for years only that is ſold, there the Uſe will riſe well enough without without any ſuch matter, Dyer 155. Co. 2. 36. 7. 40. 8. 93. 4. 70. See Bargain and Sale. Co. 2. 35. 8. 94. Or if a man ſeiſed of Land in Fee, covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of it to the uſe of his wife, children, brethren, or other kinsfolk for life, in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail: Or if one ſeiſed of Land in Fee ſimple, covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of it to the uſe of a woman he is to marry, or to the uſe of a woman his ſon or other kinſman is to marry, or the like: hereby the Uſes, and conſequently the Eſtates will riſe accordingly. And in theſe caſes there is no need it ſhould be by Deed indented, &c. or that the Deed be inrolled; for Uſes may be raiſed by Deed poll, as well as by Deed indented.

Uſes may be raiſed by Covenant for Jointures: But power to make Leaſes cannot paſs in this manner. But this muſt be done by Fine, Feoffment, or Tranſmutation of Poſſeſſion, if there be a Covenant that the Owner will ſtand ſeiſed to theſe uſes. And this alſo is the opinion and practice of the Chancery, Car. Rep. 22. 30. But if a man by Deed convey Land to his ſecond ſon, thus: I do give and grant this Land to J. S. my ſecond ſon, and his heirs after my death, and no Livery made; the ſon ſhall take nothing by this Covenant, nor will any Uſe ariſe, Mar. 50. pl. 78.

Alſo Uſes may be created (as ſome hold) by word or Parol-agreement, as well as by Deed or writing: For it is ſaid it hath been adjudged, That if a man ſay to his ſon and a wife that his ſon is to marry, that in conſideration of the ſame marriage they ſhall have the Land to them two in tail, that hereby a good Eſtate-tail will ariſe after the marriage: And that where one doth by word without Deed grant to his ſon and his wife in tail Land in conſideration of their marriage, that it was agreed by all the Judges, that the Uſe did riſe upon this agreement. Cromp. Jur. 61. 60. Plow. 301. 308. and the better opinion of the Judges in Corbins Caſe, 38 Eliz. Howſoever it is ſafe in theſe caſes to do it by Deed and in writing: For, Dyer 296. Plow. 22. ſeem to oppugn this.

And if a man make a Feoffment, levy a Fine, or ſuffer a Recovery to the uſe of his laſt Will, or to the intent to perform his laſt Will, or to the uſe of ſuch perſon and perſons, and of ſuch eſtate and eſtates as he ſhall limit by his laſt Will, and then afterwards by his laſt Will declare the Uſes, theſe are good Uſes, and this is a good way of raiſing of Uſes. Lit. ſect. 462, 463. Co. 6. 17.

So if a man deviſe his Land by Will to J. S. and his heirs, to the uſe of J. D. and his heirs; it ſeems that the Uſe will riſe to J. D. and his heirs by this means. And if a man by verbal agreement, in conſideration of money or the like, ſell his Land to another, or agree and promiſe that the Bargainee ſhall have it for any time, howſoever that hereby no Uſe nor Eſtate will ariſe (if it be a Freehold that is ſold) within the Statute, becauſe it is not by Deed indented, &c. yet it ſeems a good Uſe will ariſe at the Common Law, and that the Bargainee ſhall have relief in Equity for his Purchaſe. See Stat. 27 H. 8. of Uſes. Fitz. Deviſe 22. Dyer 229. Conſcience.

The ſecond thing whereunto reſpect muſt be had, is to the perſons truſted, or to him to whom the Conveyance is made: For to every good Uſe there muſt be a perſon ſeiſed to uſe, and he muſt be a perſon capable of ſuch a Seiſin. And for this it muſt be known, that any ſole perſon that may make an Eſtate to himſelf, may make an Eſtate to other uſes. Alſo a man may be ſeiſed of his own Land to other uſes, as in the caſe of a Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to uſes. But the King, or any Body Corporate, Alien born, or perſon attaint, cannot be ſeiſed to other uſes no more by an original Feoffment to uſe, then when they come by the Land in uſe at the ſecond hand: In which caſe (as hath been ſhewed) neither ſuch Perſons, nor Diſſeiſors, Abators, or Intrudors, or Lords of Vilains, or by Eſcheats, ſhall be ſeiſed to other uſes: But in all theſe caſes the uſes are void, and the parties ſhall hold the Land to their own uſes, or to the uſes of the Feoffors &c. and not to the uſe of Ceſtuy que uſe. And a Bargainee of Land for valuable conſideration, cannot be ſeiſed of the Land to any other uſe but his own. Co. 1. 122. 127. 135. Plow. 238. Dyer 8. 283. Reſolved in Doctor Atkins Caſe, 44 Q. Co. B. Dyer 155. Lit. Bro. ſect. 60. Secondly in reſpect of the perſons truſted, and what perſons may not be ſeiſed to the uſe of another, but to their own uſe.

The

Thirdly in reſpect of the perſons for whom the truſt is, or the Ceſtuy que uſe.

The third thing to be reſpected is the Ceſtuy que uſe: For to every good uſe, as there muſt be a perſon ſeiſed to uſe, ſo there muſt be a perſon to whoſe uſe he is ſeiſed, and he muſt be capable alſo. And for this it muſt be obſerved, that any man that is capable of an Eſtate directly and immediately to himſelf, is capable of the ſame Eſtate by way of uſe: But if the uſe be limited to a Corporation, there muſt be a Licence had, otherwiſe it will be an alienation in Mortmain. (See before.) And if future uſes upon Contingencies be limited to ſuch perſons as are not in being, theſe uſes, howſoever they are good at the Common-Law, yet they are not good within the Statute, neither doth the Statute execute them at all until they come in poſſeſſion. And if a Feoffment be made to J.S. and his heirs to the uſe of the Pariſhioners of Dale; this uſe is void, for they are incapable by this name; and it ſhall be to the uſe of the Feoffor. Co. 1. 136. Bro. Mortmain, 37. Brownl. 1 par. 193. St. 12 H. 7. 27. 49 Ed. 3. 4.

Fourthly in reſpect of the eſtate and poſſeſſion of him that doth create the uſe.

The fourth thing to be regarded, is the Eſtate of him that doth raiſe the uſe, in the Land whereof the uſe is raiſed. For howſoever the Tenant in Fee-ſimple of Land may create what uſes he will in Fee, for life, or years upon it, and ſuch uſes are good, and the Tenant in tail or for life may perhaps grant their Land for their own lives to the uſe of a third perſon: Yet if a Tenant in tail for good conſideration covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after of his eldeſt ſon in tail, no uſe will riſe by this Covenant. So if Tenant in tail of an Advowſon in groſs, grant it by Deed to one and his heirs, to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to the uſe of another in Fee; this Grant is void by the death of the Tenant in tail. And if ſuch a Tenant in tail bargain and ſell his Land by Deed indented and inrolled, hereby the Bargainee hath an Eſtate deſcendible to his heirs, but determinable upon the death of the Tenant in tail. And if one covenant by Indenture to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of B. of White-acre, which he hath not then, but he doth afterwards purchaſe it; by this no uſe will riſe. And if one that hath but a term of years grant it to J.S. to the uſe of himſelf for life, &c. this is no good uſe within the Statute, but a Chancery-truſt only. Hil. 38 Eliz. Co. B. Curia. Co. 2. 52. Paſch. 13 Jac. Co. B. Seignior Sav verſus Smith. Co. 10. 96. Yelvertons Caſe, 37 Q. B.R.

Fifthly in reſpect of the eſtate and poſſeſſion of him that doth take by the Conveyance.

The fifth thing to be reſpected, is the Eſtate of him that doth take by the Conveyance out of which the uſes are derived: For howſoever where a man doth grant in Fee-ſimple to another and his Heirs, he may limit what uſes he will upon this eſtate; and if a man make an Eſtate for life to another, he may limit an uſe thereupon; yet if a man make a Gift in tail to another, he can limit no uſe thereupon, Dyer 369. Co. 2. 78. Co. ſuper Lit. 19.

And therefore if one grant his Land to J.S. and the heirs of his body, to the uſe of J.S. and his heirs in Fee; this limitation of uſe is void, and J. S. hath hereby an Eſtate in tail. And if a Feoffment be made to J.S. to have and to hold unto him and the heirs of his body, to the uſe of him, his heirs and aſſigns for ever, this uſe is void. Trin. 14 Jac. B.R. Adjudged, Cooper and Franklins Caſe.

And where one doth bargain and ſell Land for money, (in which caſe the Law doth make an expreſs uſe) no other uſe can be appointed. And therefore if A. for money bargain and ſell Land to B. and his heirs, to the uſe of A. for life, and after of B. in tail, and after of A. in fee; all theſe uſes are void, for a uſe cannot riſe out of a uſe. Dyer 169. Cromp. Jur. 53. Lit. Bro. ſect. 284.

So if A. make a Leaſe to B for years rendring Rent, to have and to hold to the uſe of the Leſſor; this uſe is void, as being againſt reaſon alſo. And if a Feoffee to uſe before the Statute of Uſes, had bargained and ſold the Land to one who had notice of the former uſe, no uſe had been made hereby; for there might not be two uſes in being of the ſame Land at one time. Dyer 155: Co. 1. 136, 137.

And if A. enfeoff B. to the uſe of C. and his heirs, with Proviſo, that if D. pay to C. an hundred pounds, that C. and his heirs ſhall ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of D. and his heirs, this laſt uſe is void; for the uſe muſt ariſe out of the Eſtate of the Feoffee, and not out of the Eſtate of the Ceſtuy que uſe. See Brownlows Reports, 1 par. 40.

The

The ſixth thing whereunto reſpect muſt be had, is the Cauſe or Conſideration. For howſoever in caſes where Uſes paſs by way of tranſmutation of poſſeſſion, as by Fine, Feoffment or Recovery, there the Conſideration is not at all material, for he that doth make the Eſtate, may appoint the Uſe to whom he will, without any reſpect to marriage, kindred, money, or other thing: For in this caſe his own will and conſideration guideth the uſe and equity of the Eſtate. Yet in Bargains and Sales, and Covenants to ſtand ſeiſed to Uſes, it is otherwiſe: for there Conſideration is ſo neceſſary, that nothing will paſs, neither will any Uſe riſe without a Conſideration, i.e. ſome matter that may be a cauſe or occaſion meritorious which amounteth to a mutual recompence in Deed or in Law, which muſt be expreſſed or implied in the Deed whereby the Uſe is created, or elſe ſupplied by averment and proof: For howſoever in this caſe an Averment ſhall not be allowed and taken againſt a Deed, that there was no Conſideration given, when there is an expreſs Conſideration upon the Deed; yet when the Deed expreſſeth no Conſideration, or ſaith [for divers good Conſiderations] or the like, there an Averment of a good Conſideration given ſhall be received, for this is an Averment that may ſtand with the Deed; and without Conſideration Inrollment will not help. And therefore if one bargain and ſell his Land to another by Deed indented and inrolled, without any Conſideration; it ſeems no Uſe will riſe by this to the Bargainee. Dyer 169. Cromp. Jur. 62. Dyer 146. Co. 1. 176. 11. 25. Dyer 312.

Sixthly in reſpect of the cauſe or conſideration of it, and what ſhall be a ſufficient conſideration to raiſe or alter a uſe, or not.

Averment.

So if one [for divers good Cauſes and Conſiderations, or for divers great and valuable Conſiderations] bargain and ſell his Land to another, or covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of his Land to the uſe of another that is not of his kindred, no uſe will riſe by this, unleſs it be proved that money or ſomething elſe was given for it. 41 Q. adjudg. But if a man by Deed in conſideration of money, as [in conſideration of the ſum of an hundred pounds to him paid, or in conſideration of a competent ſum of money to him paid, or otherwiſe promiſed to be paid, or in conſideration of other Land, or of giving of Counſel, or the like] bargain and ſell, or by ſuch like words grant his Land to another in Fee-ſimple, Fee-tail, for life or years; in theſe caſes the Uſe will ariſe to the Bargain well enough Plow. 301. Bro. Fait. Inroll. 9. D. & S. 99. Cromp. Jur. 60. 61. Dyer 90. Cromp. Jur. 61.

And therefore if I covenant with with B. that when he doth enfeoff me of White-acre, I will ſtand ſeiſed of Black-acre to the uſe of him and his heirs, and he doth enfeoff me accordingly; in this caſe the uſe of Black-acre will riſe to B. and he and his heirs ſhall have it according to the agreement.

So if I agree with my Leſſee for years, that if he pay me a hundred pounds within his term, that I will ſtand ſeiſed of the Land to the uſe of him and his heirs, and he do pay me the hundred pounds accordingly; in this caſe the Uſe will riſe, and he and his heirs ſhall have it according to the agreement. Bro. Expoſition of words, 44. So if I covenant that my ſon ſhall marry the daughter of A. and A. promiſe to give me a hundred pounds for the marriage-portion, and I covenant that if the ſame marriage do not take effect, I and my heirs will ſtand ſeiſed of the Land to the uſe of A and his heirs, until the hundred pounds be paid; in this caſe a good Uſe will riſe of the Land accordingly, if the marriage do not take effect.

But in all theſe and ſuch like caſes, the Covenant muſt be by Deed indented, and it muſt be inrolled; otherwiſe no Uſes will ariſe. And when the Deed is inrolled, it ſhall take effect as from the beginning by Relation, to avoid all intervenient Eſtates and Charges whatſoever. And in like manner it is, if one for no cauſe, or for no conſideration, as [becauſe he is of his antient acquaintance, or becauſe there hath been entire love or great familiarity between them, or becauſe he hath been his Chamber-fellow, School-fellow, or Fellow-ſervant, or becauſe he hath done him good ſervice, or becauſe he was his Maſter and taught him, or to the end that he may pay his Debts and Legacies, and diſcharge his Funerals, or for divers good cauſes and conſiderations:] If one for any of theſe, or any ſuch like cauſe and conſideration covenant with another that he will ſtand ſeiſed of his Land to the uſe of that other and his heirs, or that he and his heirs ſhall have the Land, &c. By this Covenant, whether it be inrolled or not, no Uſe at all will riſe. Plow. 302. 2 H. 7. 20.

Relation.

So

So if one covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of J. S. (who is his Baſtard-ſon) and his heirs, no Uſe will ariſe hereby. And yet perhaps upon ſuch a Covenant as this, whereupon no Uſe nor Eſtate doth ariſe, an Action of Covenant may lie. Dyer 374. Co. 7. 11. 10. 143. 1. 83. Plow. 301. Lit. Bro. ſect. 284. Co. 1. 154.

Covenant.

But if one [in conſideration of nature, kindred, blood, or marriage with ones ſelf, or any of his blood, paiment of debts, or for the like cauſe] or without any ſuch expreſs Conſideration at all, covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf, his wife, children, brothers, ſiſters, or couſins, or their wives; theſe are good Conſiderations, and the Uſes and Eſtates thereupon thus raiſed and made are good. And therefore if one covenant by his Deed, without expreſſion of any Conſideration, to ſtand ſeiſed of his Land to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after of his Wife for life, and after of his Child in tail or for life, and after of his Brother in tail or for life, or in fee, or in any ſuch like manner; theſe Uſes will riſe, and the Eſtates will be well made hereby accordingly.

So if I agree with another, That if he marry my daughter, that from the time of the marriage they ſhall have my Land to them and their heirs; in this caſe, and by this agreement, if he do marry my daughter, they will have my Land according to the agreement. So if I being about to marry with a woman, covenant with J. S. to ſtand ſeiſed of my Land to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after to the uſe of the woman I am to marry for her life, and after to the uſe of the heirs of my body begotten on her; theſe are good Uſes and Eſtates that are made by this Covenant. Plow. 301. Bro. Feoffment, al. uſes, 54.

But here by the way, this difference muſt be obſerved, where a man doth covenant in conſideration of a Marriage to be had, to ſtand ſeiſed to Uſe, and the Marriage doth not take effect, there no Uſe ſhall ariſe. Curia, Trin. 10 Car. B. R. Hoskins Caſe. So alſo if the parties diſagree at their age of conſent: And ſo was it held in the Lord Herberts Caſe. But where one doth covenant to make a Feoffment, or levy a Fine to ſuch Uſes, and the Feoffment is made, or Fine levied accordingly; there notwithſtanding the Marriage doth not take effect, yet the Uſe ſhall ariſe: for there he is in by the Fine or Feoffment, in which caſe there needs no Conſideration. And therefore if A. covenant with B. that in conſideration C. is his Kinſman, and in conſideration of a Marriage to be had between C. and E. he will make a Feoffment and other Aſſurances to the uſe of himſelf for life, the Remainder to C. and E. and the heirs of their two bodies, and after Aſſurances are made accordingly by Fine or Feoffment, but they do not intermarry, but marry others; in this caſe notwithſtanding E. ſhall have a Moity of the Land.

So if I covenant (in conſideration of the love I bear to my Wife) to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of her and her heirs of my body begotten, and after to the uſe of my Brother; hereby the Uſe will riſe to my Brother alſo, albeit he be not within the expreſs Conſideration. Co. 7. 40. 11. 24. Dyer 374.

So if one covenant with his two Sons for the love he doth bear to them, to ſtand ſeiſed of his Land to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after of his Wife for life, and after of his two Sons in tail one after another; in this caſe the Conſideration is ſufficient to raiſe the Uſe to the Husband and Wife alſo.

So if one (in conſideration of the love he doth bear to his Brother) doth covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of his Brother, and the Wife of his Brother for life, or in tail; in this caſe the Conſideration is ſufficient to raiſe the Uſes to them both. So if I covenant (in conſideration of the marriage of my ſon with the daughter of another) to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after of my ſon and his wife in tail; theſe are good Uſes, and will riſe accordingly.

If I covenant with J. S. to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of him, his Executors, &c. (he being none of my kindred) for twenty years, and after to the uſe of my Son in tail; in this caſe the Uſe will not riſe to J. S. but it will riſe to my Son well enough. For albeit the Conſideration of money given by one, may be a Conſideration to all the Eſtates; yet the Conſideration of blood, &c. is ſingular, and will raiſe the Uſe of that only to which it goeth. Plow. 307. Dyer 174.

But

But if I Covenant with B in conſideration of the marriage of my ſon with the daughter of B to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of R (a ſtranger) for life, and after to the uſe of my ſon and his wife in Taile; in this caſe the uſe ſhall riſe to R, albeit he be a ſtranger, and that for the ſupportance of the remainder, which cannot be without a particular eſtate: and in all theſe, and ſuch like caſes, no inrolement of the Deed is neceſſary. If I (in conſideration of 10.l. given to me by my ſon,) Covenant with him to ſtand ſeiſed of Land to the uſe of him and his heirs; in this caſe, no uſe will riſe without inrolement by the implyed conſideration, becauſe there is an expreſs conſideration, Et expreſſum facit ceſſare tacitum. Cook 11. 24, 25. 7. 40. Inrolement.

And yet if I Covenant, that in conſideration that I S is my ſon, and hath paid me 10.l. that I will ſtand ſeiſed of Land to the uſe of him and his heirs; in this caſe, the uſe will ariſe without inrolement. Manrels caſe Trin. 3 Jac. B R. Broo. Feoffmental uſe, 15 Plow.

And if I Covenant in conſideration of 100.l. and of a marriage, to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after of my ſon in Taile; hereby the uſe is raiſed, and the poſſeſſion charged without inrolement. Manrels caſe. 4.

So alſo where a Feoffment is made, fine levied, or recovery ſuffered, and no uſe declared thereupon; and the ſame is without any conſideration of fine or Rent; by this the uſe is not changed, for it doth reſult to the Feoffor, Conuſor, and Recoveree, and he hath the eſtate as he had it before; but if in theſe, and ſuch like caſes, there be but a penny or a penny worth of conſideration given, or any Rent reſerved upon the Feoffment; the uſe will riſe well enough to the Feoffee, &c. Cook 1. 24. Doct. & St. 97. 99, 101.

And if any Tenure be created, as where a Gift in Taile, Leaſe for life or years is made; in theſe caſes, albeit there be no conſideration given, yet the uſe will riſe well enough to the Donee or Leaſſee, and eſpecially, if any Rent be reſerved, for that is a kind of conſideration: But if a Leaſſee for years grant over his term to another without any conſideration at all, it ſeems by this no uſe at all will riſe to the Grantee, and therefore that the Grantee ſhall hold all it to the uſe of the Grantor; ſed Quære.

The Seventh thing whereunto reſpect is to be had, is the manner and form of words uſed in the making and raiſing of uſes, wherein there is much regard to the mind and intention of parties. Seventhly, in reſpect of the manner and frame of the words uſed in the raiſing of uſes, and what manner of uſes may be made, or not.

For if one Covenant in conſideration of 20.l. paid him by I S, to ſtand ſeiſed of Land to the uſe of I S and his heirs: or if one covenant that I S and his heirs ſhall have his Land; if this Deed be inrolled, this is a good bargain and ſale to raiſe the uſe, and will do it as well as when it is made by the words [bargaine and ſell.] Cook 8. 95.

So if one for good conſideration by words of Demiſe and Grant, make a Leaſe of his Land for a term of years; hereby the uſe will riſe to the Leaſſee as well as if the Leaſe were made by the words, bargaine and ſell, Et ſic de ſimilibus. Cook 2. in Sir Rowland Heywards caſe.

And yet if one by words of bargaine and ſell, convey his Land to his ſon, no uſe will ariſe by this, except there be mony paid, and the Deed be inrolled. Wards verſus. Lambert. Co. B. Paſche 37. Eliz. Inrolement.

And if one, in conſideration of Mony grant his Land to his ſon, or any other by the word [enfeoffe;] no uſe will riſe by this, unleſs Livery of Seiſin be made thereupon, becauſe the intent of the parties in theſe caſes doth appear to be to paſs it in another manner: And if in the laſt caſe Livery of Seiſin be made, then the uſe ſhall be guided by Law, that is, if nothing be given, it ſhall be to the uſe of the Feoffor, and not amount to a limitation of uſe to the ſon. Reſolved in Stiles caſe. 37. Eliz.

[If one Covenant with his ſon, that his Land ſhall remain, or that his Land ſhall deſcend to him; this is a good Covenant to raiſe the uſe according to the limitation: 21. Hen. 7. 18. Plow. 308. 301. Broo. Feoffmental uſe, 16.

And yet if one covenant with his Son upon his marriage, that his Land ſhall remain, revert, or deſcend to his ſon in Fee, or in Fee-Taile, by this no uſe will be raiſed; becauſe it is ſo incertain; but perhaps this may amount to a covenant, whereupon the ſon may have an Action of Covenant.

Covenant. If I Covenant for me and my heirs, that I and my heirs, and all others that are ſeiſed, ſhall be thereof ſeiſed to the uſe of &c. this is a good covenant to raiſe the uſe, albeit it be in words of the future tenſe.

If I Covenant with my eldeſt ſon and ſtrangers, to convey my Land to the ſame ſtrangers to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after of my ſon in Taile &c. and I grant by the Deed, that the ſaid perſons ſeiſed of the ſaid Land, ſhall be from thence ſeiſed to the ſaid uſes, and none other uſe, and no other conveyance is made; it ſeems this is ſufficient to raiſe the uſe: And yet if I be ſeiſed of Land in Fee, and covenant with I S, that A B and C D and their heirs, ſhall ſtand and be ſeiſed of this Land to the uſe of &c. it ſeems this is not a good Covenant to raiſe the uſes: Dyer 374.

If a Feoffment, or other Conveyance be made to the uſe of the Feoffor and the heirs of his body, on the body of M the wife of S T, and for default of ſuch iſſue, to the uſe of him and the heirs of his body of S the now wife of W K, and for default of ſuch iſſue, then to the uſe and performance of his laſt Will for 10 yeares immediatly after his death, and after the term ended, to the uſe of the Feoffees and their heirs during the life of W (eldeſt ſon of the Feoffor,) and after his death, to the uſe of the firſt iſſue male of the body of the Feoffor lawfully begotten, and the heirs of the body of ſuch firſt iſſue male, and for default of ſuch firſt iſſue male, to the ſecond iſſue male &c. [in the ſame manner;] theſe are good limitations of uſes. So if a uſe be limited to I S for life without impeachment of waſte & after to the uſe of B & C, their executors & adminiſtrators for the term of twenty years, & after, to the uſe of C & the heirs males of his body &c. theſe are good uſes. So if a uſe be limited after this manner, viz. to the uſe of a mans laſt Will and Teſtament, or to the uſe of ſuch perſon and perſons, and of ſuch eſtate and eſtates as he ſhall limit and appoint by his laſt Will and Teſtament; or to the uſe of ſuch perſon and perſons, or to ſuch uſes and purpoſes as he ſhall by any writing under his hand and ſeal declare and appoint; theſe are good limitations. If I Covenant with another in conſideration of blood &c. that I will ſtand ſeiſed of my Land to the uſe of ſuch of my ſons, or ſuch of my couſins, as the Covenant ſhall name, in this caſe, after a nomination made, the uſe will riſe well enough. Cook 1. 120. Cook 1. 90. Cook 6. 18. Litt. ſect. 462. 463. Cook 1. 176.

Incertainty. But if I (for and in conſideration of 10 l. or the like good conſideration) Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of Land to the uſe of ſuch perſons as the covenantee ſhall name; in this caſe, albeit the covenantee do nominate ſome of my couſins, or blood, yet no uſe will riſe by this for the incertainty of it. If a Feoffment or other conveyance be to the uſe of I S and his heirs, provided that if the Feoffor pay 10 l. at ſuch a day, that then it ſhall be to the uſe of the Feoffor and his heirs; this is a good limitation, and the uſe will riſe accordingly. A uſe may be limited to a woman durante viduitate ſua, and this is good. Cook 4. 3.

If a man be ſeiſed of two Manors, and covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of the ſame to the uſes following, viz. of the one to the uſe of the covenantor for his life, and after to the uſe of his wife for life, and after to the uſe of his eldeſt ſon in Taile &c. And for the other Manor, to the uſe of his ſecond ſon in Taile &c. theſe are good limitations, and the uſes will riſe accordingly. Cook 11. 23.

If a man ſeiſed of Land in Fee agree with another, that a Fine ſhall be levied of it, and that the ſame ſhall be to the uſes following, viz. that I S (the Conuſor) ſhall have one yearly Rent of 50 l. during his life to be iſſuing out of the ſame Land, and as touching the Land charged with the Rent &c. to the uſe of I D (the Conuſee) until default of payment of the ſaid yearly Rent, and then to the uſe of I S and his heirs for ever; this is a good limitation, and the uſe will riſe accordingly, Et ſic de ſimilibus. Cook 2. 69, 70.

If a Feoffment be made by I S to the uſes in certain Indentures Tripatite of the ſame date, and therein is declared that it ſhall be to the uſe of A for life without impeachment ment of Waſte, and after to the uſe of ſuch Farmors, or Tenants to whom he ſhall demiſe any part of the premiſes for life, or lives, or for any term of years, as in any ſuch demiſe ſhall be limited and appointed; and after to the uſe of the performance of the laſt Will of the ſaid L, and to the uſe of ſuch perſon or perſons ſeverally to whom the ſaid L by his laſt Will and Teſtament ſhall appoint any eſtate; and after to the uſe of &c. theſe are good uſes, and the eſtates ſhall riſe accordingly. Brownl. 2. part 51.

A uſe may be limited upon condition, and the condition may be annexed to one of the uſes, and not unto another. Cook 4 14

If Lands be conveyed to I S and the heirs of his body, to the uſe of I S and his heirs, or to the uſe of a ſtranger and his heirs: this uſe will not riſe in this manner. And yet if lands be conveyed to I S, and his heirs, to the uſe of him and the heirs Males of his body, and after to the uſe of a ſtranger and his heirs, it ſeems this is a good limitation. Cook ſuper. Littl. 19.

If one grant Lands by Deed to husband and wife, To have and to hold to the uſe of the husband and wife, and of the heirs of their two bodies; this is a good eſtate Taile by this limitation, albeit he do not ſay Habendum to them and their heirs &c. but Habendum to their uſes; but otherwiſe it were if the uſe were limited to a ſtranger in this manner. Hill. 6 Car. B R. Adjudge.

If Lands be conveyed by I S to I D, to the uſe of I S, or to the uſe of his wife for life, or to the uſe of any other for life, the remainder to another in Taile, or for life, the remainder to a third, his Executors &c. for ſix months, and after the ſix months ended, to the uſe of a fourth and his heirs; theſe are good limitations, and the eſtates will riſe accordingly. Dyer 314.

If a uſe be limited to the Conuſee of a Fine, or a Recoverer in a Recoverie until he make a Leaſe for Fourty years, and after to the uſe of the Recoverees or Conuſors and their Heirs; this is a good limitation, and the uſe will riſe accordingly. Dyer 290.

Contingent uſes, or uſes in poſſe may be created as well as uſes in eſſe; and therefore if Lands be conveyed to the uſe of a man, and the wife he ſhall afterwards marry, or to the uſe of his firſt, ſecond, or third wife; or to the uſe of I S for life, and after to the uſe of the right heirs of I D, and I D is then living; or to the uſe of I S for life, and after to the uſe of him that ſhall be his firſt heir male, and the heirs of the body of ſuch heir male &c. all theſe, and ſuch like, are good uſes; but they are uſes at the Common-Law ſtill, and are not executed by the Statute until they come in eſſe. Cook 1 in Chudleighs caſe, 135.

'Eighthly, in reſpect of the Nature and Quality of the Uſe. Charitable uſes.

The laſt thing whereunto reſpect is to be had, is the Nature and Quality of the Uſe: And herein it is to be known, that a man may at this day by act executed in his life time, or by his laſt Will and Teſtament at his death, give his Lands, Tenements, or Hereditaments to any perſon or perſons not corporate, and their heirs, for any Religious, Charitable, or Civil Uſe, as well as for any private Uſe. Cook 1. 26. 8. 131. 4. 113.

And therefore a man may ſo diſpoſe of his Lands for the finding of a Preacher, erecting or maintenance of a School, Relief and comfort of Maimed Souldiers, ſuſtenance of poor people, reparations of Churches, High-wayes, Bridges, diſcharging of the poor Inhabitants of a Village of the common charges, to make a ſtock for poor Labourers in Husbandry, and poor Apprentices, and for the marriage of poor Virgins, or other ſuch like uſes, and theſe uſes are not prohibited by any Statute.

And it is good Policy upon every ſuch Feoffment or eſtate to reſerve to the Feoffer and his heirs ſome ſmall Rent, or to ſet down ſome ſmall Conſideration: But theſe uſes are not ſuch uſes as are executed by the Statute of uſes, neither are they to be reſembled to the uſes aforeſaid; for in this caſe, if there be any miſimployment of the Lands, or breach of the Truſt by the parties truſted, Redreſs is to be had by the Lord Chancellor or Lord Keeper by a ſpecial courſe of proceeding. For which, ſee the Statutes of 39 Eliz. chap. 6. 43 Eliz. chap. 9. 7 Jac. chap. 3.

Superſtitious Vſes.

But if any man have heretofore given, or heretofore ſhall give any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments by act executed in his Life, or by his laſt Will at his Death to any perſon ſingular, or corporate, in Fee-ſimple, Fee-Taile for life, or years, to the intent, or upon condition to maintain any ſuperſtitious Uſe, as to finde a Chaplain, and have the ſervice of a Prieſt to ſay Maſſe, or to have a Prieſt or other man to Pray for the Soul of any dead man in ſuch a Church or other place, or to have or maintain perpetual Obites, Lamps, or Torches, &c, to be uſed at certain times to help to ſave the Souls of men out of the ſuppoſed Purgatory; all theſe and ſuch like uſes are void: And the Lands that are ſo given to ſuch ſuperſtitious uſes, are to be forfeited, and given to the King, and he ſhall have them; and yet ſo, that if there be any charitable uſe intermixed with the ſuperſtitious uſe, and they may be diſtinguiſhed, the King ſhall have only ſo much as is given to the ſuperſtitious uſe, and not that which is given to the charitable uſe alſo: For which, ſee Adams and Lamberts Caſe at large, Cook 4 104. Stat. 15 Rich. 2 chap. 5 37 Hen. 8 ch. 4. 1 Edw. 6. cha. 14.

5. Declaration of Vſes: And where a uſe of Land may bee declared upon any Aſſurance, and what ſhall be ſaid a ſufficient declaration of ſuch a uſe, or not.

As touching the Declaration of Uſes, i. e. the manifeſtation or agreement of the Parties, to what uſes and intents the Aſſurance made ſhall be, theſe things are to be known:

1. That uſes may be declared or averred on a Fine, Feoffment, or recovery of Land; but on a bargain and ſale of Land, no uſe may be declared or averred, but what the Law doth make, Cook 1. 175, 176. Dyer 169.

And upon a Covenant of uſes, no other uſe may be declared or averred, but what is contained within the Deed.

2. Every one may declare and diſpoſe the uſe of Land according to the eſtate that he hath in the Land; for the declaration and diſpoſition of the uſe doth enſue the ownerſhip of the Land ſicut umbra ſequitur corpus, Cook 2. 55. Dyer 290.

And at this day the uſe doth draw the Land to it, as the body or principal the ſhaddow or acceſſary: And therefore the owner of the Land, or he from whom the the land doth move, ought to limit and declare the uſe of the land; as if the Husband and Wife levie a Fine of the Land, whereof he is ſeiſed in the right of his wife; the Husband alone may declare the uſe of this Fine, and this declaration ſhall binde the wife, albeit her aſſent to the limitation of the uſes do not appear, if her diſaſſent doth not appear; but in this caſe, it is moſt proper to have a declaration of the uſes by the husband and wife both; for ſhe alone, becauſe ſhe is ſub poteſtate viri, cannot alone declare or limit any uſe; neither can the husband alone limit any uſe againſt her good will, becauſe he hath not the eſtate of the Land: And therefore, if A and B his wife be ſeiſed of land in the right of his wife, and ſhe without the conſent of her husband, covenant by Indenture with C and D, 14 Martii 14 Eliz. that a fine ſhall be levied of this Land, and that it ſhall be to the uſe of her ſelf for life without impeachment of waſte, and after to the Conuſees for their lives, to the intent that they ſhall ſuffer I S to take the proffits for his life with divers remainders over; and afterwards, and before the fine levied, the husband alone by another Indenture 31 Febr. 22 Eliz. (wherein the wife is named a party) without the conſent of his wife, doth agree that a fine ſhall be levied to the uſe of him and his wife, and after to the uſes limited by the wives Indenture, and after the fine is levied accordingly; in this caſe, albeit the variance be in one particular only, and the limitations in all the reſt of the uſes and eſtates do agree, yet all the ſame limitations by both Indentures are void, and the uſe upon the conveyance is left to conſtruction of Law, and therefore ſhall be to the wife and her heirs for ever: And yet if the husband and wife agree in the limitation of the uſes for part of the land, and differ in the reſt, the limitations for ſo much as they agree in, are good, and void for the reſidue: And in theſe caſes where the declaration is good, the wife and her heirs ſhall be bound by it. So if two Joynt-tenants are, and they, or two others having ſeveral eſtates, joyn in a fine, and one of them declare the uſe in one manner, and the other doth declare the uſe in another manner; this declaration is good for either of their parts; for the declaration ſhall be governed according to their eſtates. And if an Infant, or a man de none ſane memorie, doth declare the uſe of a fine levied by him, this declaration is good, and ſhall binde him ſo long as the fine ſhall continue in his force.

3. This

3 This declaration of Uſes may be made either by Deed indented (which is the moſt uſual and ſafe way,) or by Deed Poll : As where the parties do by ſuch a writing agree that an Aſſurance paſſed, or to be paſſed, ſhall be to ſuch and ſuch uſes: as that a fine ſhall be levied by ſuch a time, and that it ſhall be to the uſe of one for life, another in Tail, and another in Fee. Cook 2 73. 5 29

Or it may be made by a verbal agreement without any writing at all ; as where an agreement is ſo had and made between two or more, that a Fine or Recovery ſhall be had, and it ſhall be to ſuch and ſuch uſes, and the ſame is had accordingly ; in this caſe, this is a ſufficient declaration being proved ; but it is not ſafe in theſe caſes to depend upon ſlippery memory.

4. This declaration by word or writing, may be made before, at, or after the time of making the Aſſurance : and therefore one may covenant or agree that I S ſhall recover againſt him, or that he will levy a Fine, or make a Feoffment to I S of ſuch land, and that the ſame ſhall be to the uſe of &c. Cook 2 69 70. 6 29 63 Dyer 290 Coo. 7 40. Coo. 98. Dyer 136.

And if one make a Feoffment ; he may declare the uſes of it at the ſame time, and that within the ſame, or in another Deed at his pleaſure : And if the Aſſurance be paſt, and no declaration of uſes had before, or at the time of paſſing it, a declaration may be ſubſequent, viz. That the ſame Aſſurance was, and ſhall be, and the Recoverers &c. ſhall ſtand and be ſeized to ſuch and ſuch uſes ; for an Indenture ſubſequent may direct and declare the uſes of a Fine or Recovery precedent. But herein theſe diverſities are to be obſerved ; when precedent Indentures are made to direct the uſes of a ſubſequent Aſſurance, and after the aſſurance made accordingly, there no Averment ſhall be taken by word, that the ſame Aſſurance was to other uſes then are declared by the Indenture : But againſt an Indenture ſubſequent, declaring the uſes of an Aſſurance precedent, an Averment may be taken, that there were other uſes expreſſed and limited, before or at the time of the Aſſurance, then are contained in the Indenture. If a precedent Indenture be made to direct the uſes of a ſubſequent Aſſurance, when the Aſſurance comes, the land is bound, and the Conuſor or Recoveree cannot by any act of his, after the Recovery had, charge or avoid it ; but if the declaration be ſubſequent, if in the interim, between the Aſſurance had, and the declaration of the uſes, the Conuſor or Recoveree ſell, give or charge the Land to others ; this ſubſequent declaration will not ſubvert the mean eſtates, charges or intereſts, unleſſe it can be otherwiſe proved, that by a certain and complete agreement of the parties, the Aſſurance was had and made to theſe uſes. Averment.

5. When the agreement for the limitation of uſes is precedent, whether it be by writing or word, it is but directory, and doth not bind the eſtate until the ſame Aſſurance be afterwards had, and therefore by a new agreement or declaration made in the ſame manner as the former, viz. in writing, if the former be ſo, and between the ſame parties either before, or at the time of the ſame Aſſurance paſſed, new uſes may be made, and the former uſes changed ; but when the ſame Aſſurance is purſued accordingly, and no intervenient alteration is made, it ſhall be expounded to be to the ſame uſes, and ſhall bind the parties, and no naked Averment ſhall be received of any latter or other agreement contrary to the Indentures.

6. The declaration of the uſes muſt be certain, and that eſpecially in three things ; in the perſons to whom, in the Lands, &c. of which, and in the eſtates by which the uſes are declared ; and if there want certainty in either of theſe, the declaration is not good ; and it muſt be complete of it ſelf without any reference to Indentures or other writings to be made afterwards ; for then it is but an imperfect communication, and no complete declaration.

7 Where an Indenture precedent is to limit the uſes of a ſubſequent Fine or Recovery, and it is not purſued in ſome circumſtance of time, perſon, quantity or the like ; yet if no other new meane agreement may be proved, the Aſſurance ſhall be in judgment of Law to the uſes contained in the ſame Indenture ; but if the variance be in theſe particulars, and the form of the Indentnre be not purſued, there an Averment without writing may be taken, that the fine or other Aſſurance was to other uſes then are conteined in the Indenture ; and if none ſuch can be made, then it is left to

conſtruction

conſtruction of Law. And therefore if A be ſeiſed of divers Manors in Fee, and by his Indenture dated 10 Martii. 21 Eliz. doth covenant with B and C, That he, before the end of Trinity Term next, will by Fine or other Conveyance aſſure one of theſe Manors to them, and that the ſame Aſſurance ſhall be to the uſe of A and E his wife, and of the heirs of A, and the 28 day the Deed is inrolled, and the 29 day of the ſame month, he doth by another Indenture covenant with the ſame C and D to convey all the ſame Manors to the ſame C and D before the Annunciation next, and that the ſame Aſſurance ſhall be to the uſe of A and his heirs males of his body, and for default of ſuch iſſue, to the uſe of divers others in remainder, and by this Indenture doth covenant, that if he ſhall not ſufficiently convey this land by the day, that he will ſtand ſeiſed to the ſame uſes &c, and no Fine is levied by the end of Trinity Terme, but the 17 of September following, a note of a Fine is acknowledged to B and C and the heirs of B, of the land within the firſt Indenture; and the 18 of the ſame month, another note of a Fine is acknowledged to C and D of the ſame, and other land in the laſt Indenture, and both theſe Fines are entred in Octabis Mich. following, in this caſe, theſe Fines cannot be directed and declared by both Indentures, and therefore it ſeemes the declarations are void.

6. Averment of Uſes; & where a uſe of land may be averred upon any aſſurance; And what ſhall be ſaid a ſufficient averment, or not.

As touching Averment of Uſes; i.e. the proof of uſes by witneſſes, theſe things are to be known, That where any uſe is expreſſed upon a Charter of Feoffment, no other uſe contra or preter the uſe which is expreſſed, ſhall be admitted. But in caſes of Fines and Recoveries, wherein no uſes are expreſſed, other uſes then what Law conſtruction will make, may be ſhewed and proved to be agreed upon, and the ſame aſſurances ſhall be to ſuch uſes, as by proof ſhall be made to appear to be the intent of the parties: As if a man and his wife ſell her land for money, and after levy a Fine to the Vendee and his heirs; in this caſe it may be averred it was for money, and this ſhall carry the uſe to the Vendee without any declaration of uſe, which otherwiſe would reſult to the woman and her heirs: and yet if a Fine be with a Grant and Render, no averment to prove it to be to other uſes, then what are contained in the Fine, ſhall be received. Cook 9 8 5 20 25. Doct. & St. 95 Cook 2 57.

And where the uſes of a Conveyance be declared by Indenture before, or at the time of the ſame Conveyance, no averment ſhall be received of any other uſes then what are contained in the Indenture: But if the Indenture of declaration be ſubſequent, there an averment lyeth and ſhall be received that there were other uſes agreed upon, at, or before the time of the conveyance made. Cook 9 8.

And where no agreement is made to levy a Fine, or ſuffer a Recovery, before, or at a time certain, and that it ſhall be of ſuch and ſuch lands, and to ſuch and ſuch perſons; and after it falleth out the Fine or Recovery is not had by that time, or not of the ſame land, or not between the ſame perſons; in theſe caſes an averment may be had of other uſes and of another agreement.

7. To what uſe an aſſurance of land ſhall be by conſtruction of Law, and how the limitation of the Uſes of land by a Deed ſhall be conſtrued.

Where the uſes of an aſſurance are certainly agreed upon and declared between the parties thereunto, there regularly it ſhall be to ſuch uſes as are declared and agreed upon, and to none others. But if a conveyance be made of land by Fine, Feoffment or Recovery, and no uſes thereof declared and agreed upon, the Law will limit and appoint the uſe according to equity and conſcience. And therefore if a man levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, or ſuffer a Recovery of Land without any conſideration, the Law will adjudge the uſe to be in the Feoffor, Conuſor and Recoveree who doth part with the Land. And ſo if a man make a Feoffment to the intent to perform his laſt Will, or to the uſe of his laſt Will, or to ſuch perſons as he ſhall limit by his laſt Will; in all theſe caſes the uſe ſhall be in the Feoffor and his heirs whiles he doth live, to diſpoſe at his pleaſure. Doct. & St. 95. Perk. Sect. 533. Cook 1 24. Dyer 18. Cromp. Jur. 62. Cook ſuper Litt. 271.

And ſo if one make a Feoffment of Land to I S and his heires, to the uſe of W S for 20 years, and limit the uſe no further; in this caſe the reſidue of the uſe after the 20 years, ſhall be to the Feoffor and his heirs: But if in theſe caſes there be any conſideration of money or the like, though never ſo little given, or any rent reſerved upon the Feoffment, the Law will adjudg the uſe in the Feoffee, Conuſee, or Recoveror. Bakers Caſe Co. B. Hill. 37 Eliz.

And

And yet in that caſe alſo, if other uſes be expreſſed upon the Deed, it ſeems it ſhall go to the uſes expreſſed; as, if A for 20 l. paid by B, enfeoff B and his heirs to the uſe of C and his heirs. Doct. & St 95.

If the husband and wife levy a Fine of the wives land without conſideration, and without any declaration of uſe, the Law wil adjudg this to be to the uſe of the wife and her heirs; but if they ſell her land for money, and after levy a Fine thereof to the Vendee; this ſhal be to the uſe of the Vendee and his heires. Coo. 2. 57. 58.

And if a man be ſeiſed of Land, of the part of his Mother, and without any conſideration make a Feoffment in Fee of it, this ſhall be ſaid to his uſe in the ſame nature he had it before.

So if two Joint-tenants be of land, the one in Fee ſimple, the other but for life, and they without any conſideration levy a Fine of it, and make no declaration of uſe; the uſe ſhall be to them of the ſame eſtate as they had before in the land.

So if A tenant for life of land, and B in reverſion or remainder, levy a Fine of this land, generally this ſhall be to the uſe of A for life, and to the uſe of B in Fee afterwards as it was before.

So if A be ſeiſed in Fee of an Acre of ground, and he and B joyn together and levy a Fine of it to another without any conſideration; this ſhall be to the uſe of A and his heirs only.

If one make a gift in taile, or Leaſe for life, or years, albeit it be without any conſideration of Fine or Rent, yet the Law will adjudg the uſe in the Donee or Leſſee, and not in the Donor or Leſſor. Perk. Sect. 533

If one at this day by Deed indented, bargein and ſell his land to another for mony, and doth limit no eſtate, but the Deed is Habendum to him only, and not Habendum to him and his heirs, or to him and the heires of his body, or to him for life: howſoever in this caſe, before the Statute of uſes was made, it was otherwiſe; yet now the common received opinion is, that by this there doth paſſe only an eſtate for life, and not a Fee-ſimple. Plow. 539. Cook 1. 87. Yet ſee Litt. Broo. 538. Cromp. Jnr. 47. 27 H. 8. 6. Cook 1. 110.

If a Feoffment be made to I S and his heires to the uſe of I D without any more words; by this limitation I D hath only an eſtate for life: So if a Feoffment be made to I S and his heirs to the uſe of I D for ever, without ſaying, [And his heirs] hereby I D hath only an eſtate for life: and ſo of other uſes the conſtruction ſhall be according to the rules of Law. Cook ſuper Lit. 42. Dyer 169.

If a uſe be limitted to I S and his heires until A ſhall come from beyond the Sea, and attain his full age and dye, in this caſe if he come from beyond Sea, attain his ful age or dye, the uſe ſhall ceaſe. Paſch. 3 Eliz. B. R. the Lord Mordants Caſe.

If one covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of A his eldeſt ſon, and the heirs males of his body, and after to the uſe of B his ſecond ſon in taile in the ſame manner, or according to the limitation to A; by this, B hath an eſtate taile to him and the heires males of his body, Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Rigwayes caſe.

If a Feoffment in Fee be made to the uſe of a man and his wife for their lives, and after to the uſe of their next iſſue male to be begotten, in tail, and after to the uſe of the husband and wife, and of the heirs of their two bodies begotten (they having no iſſue male then;) by this the husband and wife are tenants in ſpecial Tail executed; and after they have iſſue male, they are tenants for life, the remainder to the ſon in tail, the remainder to them in ſpecial tail. Cook ſuper Litt. 28.

If one make a Feoffment to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after his deceaſe to the uſe of Alice whom he doth intend to marry, until the iſſue he ſhall beget of her ſhall be of the age 21 years, and after the iſſue cometh to that age, then to the uſe of the wife during her widow-hood, and the husband dye without iſſue: by this the wife ſhall have an eſtate, at leaſt during her widow-hood. Dyer 300.

If I covenant with B that in conſideration he will marry my daughter, that from the time of the marriage I will ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after to the uſe of C a ſtranger. and the heires males of his body, and after to the uſe of B and my daughter, and the heires of their two bodies; in this caſe albeit the uſe limitted to C the ſtranger be void, yet it ſeemes B and my daughter ſhall not

not have the Land till the death of C without iſſue, but that my heirs ſhall have it till that time. Cook 1.

If I covenant with B to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of my ſelf for life, and after my death to the uſe of C (a ſtranger) for the term of 20 years, and after the end of the term to the uſe of my ſon in tail; in this caſe the uſe limited to C is void, and my ſon after my death ſhall have the land: But if the words of the Covenant be, [And after the end of 20 years,] in ſtead of, [And after the end of the term,] my ſon ſhall not have the Land until the 20 years be expired. Cook 1. 155. See more in expoſition of Deeds.

8. Where and how uſes of Land may be extinguiſhed and deſtroyed or ſuſpended, or not; and where the ancient uſes ſhal be revived by the entry of the Feoffees, or not.

All ſuch uſes as are not within, nor executed by the Statute of 27 *H.*8. but remain at the Common Law, may be deſtroyed, diſcontinued or ſuſpended as uſes before the Statute might have been. And therefore contingent uſes may be extinguiſhed or ſuſpended at this day. As, if a man ſeiſed of land in Fee have three ſons, A, B and C, and he make a Feoffment of his land to divers Feoffees to the uſe of them and their heires during the life of A, and after to the uſe of the firſt ſon that A ſhall beget, and the heires males of the body of ſuch firſt ſon; or if a Feoffment be made to the uſe of a man and the wife that he ſhall marry, or the like; if in theſe caſes the Feoffees make a Feoffment over, before the contingent uſes happen to be in eſſe, as before A have any ſon, or the man take a wife, &c. albeit it be to one that have notice of theſe uſes, yet the uſes are deſtroyed for ever, and the Feoffees cannot enter and revive them contrary to their own Feoffment. And if in theſe caſes the Foeffees before the contingent remainder veſt be diſſeiſed, hereby the uſes are ſuſpended; but then by the Reentry of the Feoffees the ancient uſes will be revived again: And therefore if the Feoffees releaſe to the Diſſeiſor, and ſo bar themſelves of their entry, the uſes are extinguiſhed and ſhall not be revived, and the party grieved hath no remedy but in Chancery againſt the Feoffees for breach of truſt. And if the Feoffees in the firſt caſe before, dye before A have any ſon born, the contingent remainder is gone: As where a Feoffment is made to the uſe of the Feoffor for life, and after to the uſe of the right heirs of I S in Fee, and the Feoffor dye before I S; in this caſe the remainder is gone, for a remainder cannot be without a particular eſtate no more of a uſe then of an eſtate made in poſſeſſion: and ſuch a remainder muſt veſt during the particular eſtate, or at leaſt eo inſtanti, when the particular eſtate doth end. Cook 1. Chudleighs caſe.

If a Feoffment be made to the uſe of I S and the wife he ſhall afterwards marry, and of the heires males of their bodies; and I S make a Feoffment of this land to another before he take a wife; hereby the contingent remainder is deſtroyed. Coo. 1. 136.

If A enfeoff B and his heires to the uſe of C and D his wife, and the heires of the ſurvivor of them, and C makes a Feoffment to E and dyeth: this Feoffment doth deſtroy the contingent remainder, Hillar. 2. Carol. Scaccar Adjudged.

When the eſtate out of which the uſes do ariſe is gone, the uſes are gone alſo: As, if a Leaſe be made to A for his life to the uſe of B for his life, and A dye; hereby the eſtate of B is gone. Dyer 186.

Alſo uſes of lands may be gone by Revocation, whereof ſee in the next part.

9. Where a power to revoke uſes of land ſhall be good, and how they ſhall be taken; and what Revocation by reaſon of ſuch power ſhal be good, and what not. Brownl. Rep. 2. part 157.

Proviſoes and Powers of revocation of uſes of lands are very frequent in voluntary conveyances (whether by Feoffment or otherwiſe) that paſſe land by way of raiſing of uſes, and are executed by the Statute of 27 *H.*8. and the inheritances of many depend thereupon. Cook ſuper Litt. 237. 7. 11. 12. 10. 143. 1. 110. 173. 107. Dyer 372.

As, if a man ſeiſed of land in Fee have divers ſons, and he covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of that land to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after, of his eldeſt ſon in tail, and for want of ſuch iſſue, to the uſe of his ſecond ſon in tail, &c. with a Proviſo, that it ſhal be lawful for him at any time during his life to revoke any of the ſaid uſes, and to limit and appoint other uſes, &c.

Or if A by Indenture between him and B his heir apparant an Infant, covenant with B for the advancement of his blood, &c. to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelfe for life, and after to the uſe of his ſaid heire apparant, and the heires males of his body, and after to the uſe of his right heirs; provided that if A by himſelf or any other during his life ſhall deliver or offer to B a Ring of gold, to the intent to make void all the ſaid uſes, that then the ſame uſes ſhall be void, and he may limit new uſes. Or if A by Indenture Covenant with B to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf, and his wife, and his daughter for their lives, and after &c. provided that if the ſaid A during his life, and after the debts mentioned in the Schedule annexed to the Indenture ſhall be paid, ſhall be diſpoſed to determine, diſannul, change, alter, enlarge, diminiſh or make void the uſes or eſtates, or any of them, of the premiſſes or any part thereof, and by writing indented under his Hand and Seal ſubſcribed in the preſence of three Witneſſes ſhall declare his mind to be ſo, that then the ſame uſes ſhall be void: All theſe and ſuch like Proviſoes being coupled with a uſe, are allowed to be good, and not repugnant to the former eſtates. But in caſe of ſuch a Feoffment or other conveyance whereby the Feoffee or Grantee is in by the Common-Law, as where A doth enfeoffe B and his heires to the uſe of B and his heires, it ſaid ſuch a Proviſo is meerly repugnant and void.

And as touching theſe Proviſoes or Revocations, theſe things are to be known;

1. Theſe Revocations are favourably interpreted, becauſe many mens Inheritances depend upon it: And therefore he that hath this power may revoke part of the uſes at one time, and part at another time; and the revocation of the old, may be made by the making of new uſes without any expreſſe revocation: And by the ſame conveyance whereby the old uſes be revoked, the new uſes may be created and limited, and then the former uſes do ceaſe ipſo facto by this revocation without any entry or claim. As if one covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to the uſe of himſelf and his wife for their lives, and after to the uſe of A his daughter for life, and after to the uſe of B his Daughter in tail, &c. provided that if he ſhall be minded, &c. he may by writing &c. make void the ſame uſes, and declare the uſes to others; and he doth make void the uſe to his wife at one time and no more, and after by deed doth limit and appoint new uſes of the whole by a new Covenant to ſtand ſeiſed to other uſes; theſe are good revocations; for there needs no real and expreſſe revocation of former uſes, but the creating of new uſes is in Law an actual revocation of the old uſes, as the making of a latter is ipſo facto a revocation of a former Will.

2. The Proviſo muſt for the ſubſtance of it be purſued in the revocation, and all incident circumſtances thereof muſt be obſerved, as ſealing, ſubſcription of names, witneſſes, and the like; otherwiſe the revocation will not be good. And therefore if the Proviſo be, that if the Covenantor ſhall be minded to revoke, and ſhall declare his mind by writing indented under his Hand and Seal, delivered before three Witneſſes, the uſes ſhall be void; in this caſe a revocation by word without writing, or by a writing and not indented, or by writing indented and not under Hand and Seal, or under Hand and Seal, and before two witneſſes only, is not good. And yet if a Proviſo be, that if the Covenantor ſhall at any time during his life by writing under his Hand and Seale delivered before two witneſſes revoke the ſame &c. the old uſes ſhall be void, and the Covenantor by his laſt Will and Teſtament in writing under his Hand and Seal before two Witneſſes doth give the Land to another, and make no expreſſe revocation of the former uſes: this is a good revocation in Law. If the Proviſo be, that if the Covenantor be minded at any time during his life to revoke the ſame uſes &c. and ſhall pay or render to A B 20s. in ſuch a place; in this caſe tender of this 20 s. in that place at any time is not good, unleſſe he happen to meet with A B at the place, for then tender at any time is good, but otherwiſe the Covenantor muſt give notice to A B what time hee will render the twenty ſhillings, in that place, otherwiſe the revocation is not good. Trinit. 18. Jacob. Com. B. Tibbet and Leas Caſe. Cook 8. 92 1.

If one be to marry his daughter to the ſon of another man, and they do mutually covenant to ſtand ſeiſed of their lands to the uſe of their ſon and daughter with Proviſo to revoke the uſes with the conſent of the mothers, if they or either of them be then living, and one of them dye; in this caſe a revocation, by the conſent of the ſurviving mother is ſufficient. Trin. 18 Jac. B.R. Savil and Sterlings caſe.

3. When the Covenantor doth make void ſuch uſes by vertue of ſuch a revocation, he is ſeiſed again of the Land in Fee-ſimple, as he was at firſt, without any entry or claim.

4 This power of revocation, whether it be preſent, as thoſe before and moſt are, or future, as when they are upon contingent, as if the Covenantor over-live I S or the like, when it is reſerved to the party himſelf that made the uſes, may by his Fine or Feoffment be utterly extinguiſhed: As if he make a Feoffment, or levy a Fine of the land, whereunto the uſes and Proviſo are annexed, by this the Proviſo is extinct: and yet ſo, as if he make a Feoffment, or levy a Fine of part of the Land only, this ſhall extinguiſh his power but to that part only: But if the power be reſerved to a ſtranger, it ſeemes the Fine or Feoffment of him that made it, will not extinguiſh it. This power alſo when it is preſent may be extinguiſhed by a Releaſe made by him that hath the power, to any one that hath any eſtate of Franktenement in the land in poſſeſſion, reverſion, or remainder; or it may be avoided by Defeaſance, whether it be preſent or future. Cook 1. 111. 112. 113. ſuper Litt. 237.

Defeaſance.

10 Other truſts and Confidences of lands and of chattels real and perſonal, the nature of ſuch truſt, the duty of them that are truſted, and the remedy to be had againſt them for breach of their truſt.

If one convey his lands to certaine friends in truſt, to the intent that they ſhal convey it to ſuch perſons as he ſhall ſet down in his laſt Will and Teſtament; Or if a man deliver money to a friend in truſt to purchaſe land for him and his heires, to the end that he may have the profits thereof for his life, and to the end it may be conveyed to them afterwards: Or if a man deliver money to his friend to buy land for him that doth deliver the money in his owne name: Or if a man enfeoff his friend and his heires of land, to the intent that he ſhall alien the Land to whom I S ſhall appoint; Or if land be conveyed to me in Mortgage, and I pay all the money, but I (to prevent the Joynture of my wife, or for ſome ſuch like cauſe) name a friend Joynt-Purchaſor with me, and ſo the conveyance is made to us both; if in any of theſe caſes, or in any other ſuch like caſe the friend truſted prove falſe, and do not perform the truſt, but turn the profits of the land to their own uſe, or refuſe to ſettle it according to the truſt, or the like, the party grieved muſt have his remedy in Chancery, for theſe are not Truſts or Uſes within the Statute, nor ſuch for which there is any remedy at the Common-Law; And in that caſe where the land is ſettled to the intent that the friends truſted ſhall ſettle it where I S ſhall appoint, if I S do not appoint how it ſhall be ſettled, it ſeems the Feoffees ſhall have it to their own uſe. Cromp. Jur. 48. 59. 58. 54. Dyer 160. Fitz. Accompt. 122.

And if a man give or grant his goods or chattels, as Leaſes for yeares or the like, to friends in truſt, to the uſe of himſelf for life, and after to perform his Will, or the like; theſe are ſuch uſes and truſts as are not within the Statute of uſes, and for the breach of which there is no remedy at the Common-Law, but in Chancery only. So if an Obligation or Statute be made to A B to the uſe of C D; this is a truſt of the ſame nature: and if A B releaſe the Obligation without the conſent of C D, or get the money into his own hands, C D ſhall have relief in Chancery. *Cromp. And in all theſe caſes, and ſuch like caſes, the general rules by which uſes were governed at the Common-Law are ſtill in force and to take place, as thoſe by which uſes and truſts are now for the moſt part governed.

As, 1. If there be any cauſe to ſue for or about the lands or goods wherewith the parties are truſted, as if they deny or delay to perform the truſt, they muſt be compelled thereunto by Suit in Chancery. 7. E. 4. 29. Cro. Jur. 62. 63. 65. 11. E. 4. 24. E. 4. 37.

2. The Ceſtuy que uſe or party for whom the truſt is, cannot of himſelf diſpoſe of the lands or goods, for the property and intereſt in Law is in the Truſtees; and if it be an Obligation or Statute that is made to the uſe of another, Ceſtuy que uſe cannot releaſe releaſe it, but the Truſtee muſt releaſe it. Cromp. Jur. 62,63.65. 11. Ed. 4. 24. Ed. 4 37.

3. If the party truſted ſo with lands, goods or chattels, give, grant or ſell the ſame lands, goods or chattels to one that hath knowledg of the ſame uſes or truſts (as it is alwaies preſumed he hath where the truſts are expreſſed upon the ſame Deed, by which the lands, goods or chattels are given or granted,) or if the things ſo given or granted, be granted upon the ſame truſts, or to the ſame uſes, or without any conſideration at all; in theſe caſes he to whom the thing whereabout the truſt is, ſhall have the ſame thing upon the ſame truſt, and to the ſame uſe as he that did give or grant the ſame had it. But in caſe where no truſt or uſe is expreſſed upon the Deed, the Purchaſor or Buyer hath no notice or knowledge of the uſe or truſt, and he gives a valuable conſideration for the thing, there for the moſt part the ſale is good, and the party grieved thereby hath no remedy, but againſt the party firſt truſted in Chancery, and the Purchaſor ſhall have and enjoy the thing ſo bought to his own uſe for ever; but he that is the party truſted will be forced in Chancery to make the party grieved an amends in damages for this breach of truſt: And if there be any practice, packing, or combination between the buyer aud the ſeller in the matter, there perhaps the Suit may hold againſt them both, and the Buyer may be forced to reſtore the thing it ſelf. And yet if A enter into a Statute to B and C to the uſe of B, and A having notice of this uſe doth get a releaſe from C: in this caſe it ſeems B muſt have his whole remedy againſt C, and ſhall have no remedy againſt A. 11 Ed. 4.8.

4. If the Truſtor or Ceſtuy que uſe in theſe caſes commit Felony, &c. ſo that the things if he had the property of them were forfeit, in this caſe it ſeems that neither they nor their heirs, executors &c. nor yet the Lord, &c. ſhall have them, but the Truſtees ſhall keep them for ever. Broo. Feoffment al uſe 34.

5 If the Ceſtuy que uſe or Truſtors dye, and appoint how the ſame things ſhall be diſpoſed of, the Truſtees are bound to ſee it done; as if the Truſtor appoint it ſhall pay his debts, or provide Legacies, the parties truſted muſt take care it be ſo imployed; and in this caſe the Debtees and Legatees alſo may compel the Truſtees in Chancery. 15 H. 7.12. Cromp. Jur. 54.

6. In all theſe caſes regularly the thing whereof the truſt is, is in equity at the diſpoſing of him that is the Ceſtuy que uſe, unleſſe he do otherwiſe apoint it, and if at his death he make no diſpoſition thereof it ſhall go to his heire, executor &c. Dyer 49.

7. In all theſe caſes the Truſtees ſhall have their reaſonable allowance in Chancery for whatſoever they have laid out about the land, &c. in Suits or otherwiſe for the profit of the Truſtor. 8 H. 7.11.

Out of all which may appear how dangerous it is for a man to meddle with any lands, goods or chattles ſo conveyed or ſettled in truſt, for the Ceſtuy que uſe or Truſtors have no property in the thing, and therefore they cannot ſell or give it, and the Truſtee hath it but to anothers uſe: And it is not ſafe therefore to deal with either of them alone, nor yet indeed ſafe to deal at all in theſe caſes, unleſſe the buyer may have the Conſent, ſale, and aſſurance, or the Releaſe, &c. of the Truſtors and Truſtees altogether: And if there be any woman Covert, or Infant within the Truſt, it is moſt of all dangerous. And if goods or chattels be given to, or to the uſe of a Feme Covert, or Infant, and certain friends are truſted therewith, if they do ſell or give away theſe goods or chattels contrary to the Truſt, they muſt be ſure to anſwer it: if therefore they ſell them, let them ſee that the money made thereof be as beneficial, and be beſtowed for the wife or children; for it ſeems it is not ſufficient in this caſe, that the mony made thereof be paid to them. Mar. f. 44, pl. 69. 7 Ed. 4.14. Fitz. Subpæna 5.

CHAP. CLXIV.

Of Usury.

Usury, what. The kinds.

USury is the certain gain of a thing above the Principal, or that which is lent, exacted only in consideration of the loan, whether it be of money, corn, meat, apparel, wares or the like.

Or (as another defineth it) it is a certain profit that is received for the use of a thing lent.

Sect. 1.

Of this there are two parts, a tolerated or lawful Usury, or a forbidden and unlawful Usury.

Lawful Usury.

The first is where there is no more taken directly or indirectly for loan of any moneys, wares, merchandize, or other Commodities whatsoever, then the value of six pounds for the forbearance of one hundred pounds for a year, and so after that rate for a greater or lesser sum, or for a longer or shorter time.

Unlawful usury.

The unlawful Usury, is, Where there is taken directly or indirectly for loan of any money, wares, merchandize, or other Commodities whatsoever, above the value of six pounds for the forbearance of one hundred pounds for a year, and so after that rate for a greater and lesser sum, and for a longer and shorter time.

The punishment of it.

And the punishment of it is this, That he that takes it, is to lose three times so much as the value of that which he did so take; and all the Bonds, Contracts and Assurances for the having of more then after the rate of six pound for the hundred, are void. *Stat.*21.*Jac.*17. 37 *H.*8.9. 39.*Eliz.*8. 13.*Eliz.*8. *Act.*8.*Aug.*1651. Plow. 282. He may be punished also by Indictment and Fine. See my Just.of Peace. And so some hold of all Usury, and that all Usury is against our Law, which seems to be the better opinion. See Cook 3 *part. Inst.cap.*70.

1. What Contract shall be said to be usurious, against the Statutes and void. Or not.

For the answer of this Question, and Exposition of the Statutes concerning Usury; take some Rules, and some Cases. The Rules are these.

1, That an usurious Contract may be made up by Fines, Recoveries, or any kind of Assurance, as well as Bonds, and they are all void, of what kind soever they be. Cook 3.80. But a Judgment cannot be avoyded by a plea of an usurious Contract, as that the Defendant had one hundred pound of the Plaintiff, and agreed to give him twenty pound for the loan of it a year, and therefore that the Plaintiff desired a Judgment for 120 l. which is that for which the Suit is by Scire Facias. Adjudg Midleton vers Hall M. 39.40. Eliz.B.R.

2 Where the first Contract is usurious, all the Assurances that depend upon it are void. *Pasch.*7.Jac. B.R. Corslets case.

3 If a man do not pursue his Contract, and take what he hath agreed upon, he cannot be punished by the forfeiture of the treble value, but the Contract and Assurances thereupon are void. *Curia B.R.Trin.*13. Car.

4. Usury cannot be by taking something in the by, as a pawn for a Security. *Trin.*13 Car.B.R.

5. Nothing that is given to the Broker in the by, will make the Contract usurious, By Just. Bridgman, Hill 7. Car.

6. No usurious Contract can be regularly where the Principal is lost, especially if it be in a bargain of Land, unless it be where by notorious circumstances the contract doth appeare corrupt. Corslets case Pasch. 7 Jac. B. R. Brownl. 1. part 180.

7 If the Original Contract be not usurious, no matter ex post facto; i. no matter done afterwards can make it so. *Thurslies case Hil.*7 *Jac.Com.R. Brownl.*1.part 73.

8.No

8. No Stranger not privy to the corrupt contract ſhall be puniſhed for it. Brownl. Rep. 1. 85.

9. He that is bound in a Counter-bond to his Surety, cannot Plead in diſcharge of that, that the firſt Obligation was upon an uſurious contract. Adj. Robinſons verſus May. M. 39. 40. Eliz. B R.

10. When a Deed is perfected and delivered as a Deed, it cannot be avoided by any ſubſequent agreement as uſurious; but if it be part of the original contract, and made together, it may make all void, and may be pleaded in avoydance of any Deed. Brownl. Rep. 1. part 191.

11. A Woman that hath a Husband, or a man and his Wife and Third perſon cannot make an uſurious contract within theſe Statutes. Trin. 13. Carol. B. R. Feme Covert.

12. Where, upon the firſt Contract the Lender is not ſure of any benefit, but he doth ſecondarily hope for ſome at the will of the Borrower only, this is not corrupt. Cook. 5. 69.

For the further Opening and Illuſtration of which Rules, take theſe Caſes:

1. One borrowed 100.l. and for this, morgaged Land above 8.l. value by the year, on condition, that if the Morgagee pay ſuch a day (which is at the years end) the money, the eſtate to ceaſe; this was an uſurious contract. But if it were on condition, that if he pay the 100.l. before that day, contra; for then he may pay it when he will, and have his Land, and the Lender is not ſure of any ſuch recompence, as the nature of Uſury is; for hear it ſhall be taken only to be a penalty to the Borrower, and an Aſſurance to the Lender: So alſo, if one lend 10.l. and take ſecurity by Statute or Obligation, that the Borrower at a years end ſhall pay the Lender 20.l. for it, this is uſurious: But if it be, that if he pay it not within a year, then he ſhall pay him 20.l. it ſeems this is not uſurious; If one come to another to borrow 500.l. of him and tell him he is unable to pay it together, and therefore deſires to pay it in 12 or 13 years; and offers for his kindneſs to give him 200.l. over and above, if ſo be he will let him have it ſo with the uſe of it, and then they caſt the Principal, Uſe, and the 200.l. in an Annuity, and ſo agreed at laſt upon an Annuity for 14 years of 80.l. per annum, which they agreed would pay the Principal, Uſe, and 200.l; this is an uſurious contract, and therefore all Statutes and Bonds made to perform it muſt needs be void. Adjudge Corſlets caſe, Paſ. 7. Jac. B R.

2. If one take 10.l. in the 100.l. for uſe, and alſo in the ſame Contract, he cauſe the Obligor to take from him a Leaſe for 30 years of a Houſe, at 60 pound Rent, whereas in truth it is worth but 20.l. by the year; this is an uſurious contract. Curia. Sanders caſe, B R.

3. If upon the Loan of Money a Feoffment be made of Land for ſecurity of the Money, and Bonds beſides for the payment of the Intereſt after the rate of the Statute, and the Land be worth by the year more than the Intereſt; this is a corrupt contract: But if it be agreed the Feoffor ſhall take the profits of the Land, contra: and if the Feoffee take not the profits it ſhall be preſumed to be ſo, unleſs the contrary be ſhewed. Witchel and Guiſel, M. 8. Car. B R.

4. The 17 of July 1579. a Rent of 20.l. by the year was granted for the Loan of 100.l. and it was to be paid every half year; the firſt payment to begin at Chriſtmaſs, 1580. on condition, that if he pay the 100.l. the 17 of July 1580. then the Rent to ceaſe; this contract was not uſurious; for the Grantor might have paid the 100.l. before the firſt day of payment of Rent, and then the Grantee had had nothing for the Loan of his 100.l. all that time: But if there had been a private collateral agreement between the parties, that they ſhould not pay the 100.l. or redeem it, and that Clauſe were put in to evade the Statute; then the contract had been uſurious notwithſtanding, and ſo in all like caſes. Cook. 5. 9. Sect. 2.

5. One, the 6 of December, borrowed 30.l. till the ſecond of June then next following, to be paid then for it 33.l. for the Principal and Loan, if the ſon of the Obligee ſhall be then living; and if he die before, then that he ſhall pay 27.l. which is leſs then the Principal; this contract was agreed to be uſurious and naught. Coo. 5. 70.

6. If

6. If one borrow 100.l. after the rate of the Statute, and the borrower do after pay part of the Principal, and all the Use within the year, and the lender receive, or the lender sue for it within the year, this is no usury; for if the original Contract be not usurious, no matter ex post facto, that is, afterwards, can make it so. Hill. 7. Jac. B R. Curia et H. 7. Jac. Cook. B.

7. If one borrow of me 6.l. and bind himself to pay me 6.l. by a day; and bind himself moreover, that if he do not pay me the 6.l. by the day, that then he shall pay me 10.l. for that 6.l. this is no usurious Contract; for all Obligations with Conditions for Money lent, are to this purpose. Thurslies case, Br. Oblig. 79.

8. If A enfeoffe B upon loan of 100.l. to the use of B and his heirs, provided, that if A pay 100.l. at the years end that it shall be to the use of A and his heirs, and that land is of the value of 20.l. by the year, if in this case it be agreed the Feoffee shall take the profits, this is usury; but if it be agreed the Feoffor shall take it as it may be besides the Deed, contra. ch. just. M. 4. Car.

9. Scire facias was to execute a Judgement; The Defendant pleaded, that he borrowed of the Plantiff 100.l. to give him 120.l. for the loan thereof a year; and the Plantiff for his Assurance would have the Defendant confess this Judgement of 120.l. and so pleaded the statute of Usury in Bar, upon which the Plantiff demurred, and Judgement was given for the Plantiffe, and agreed to be too late, and that it should have been pleaded in the first Suit. Middletons and Halls case, Trin. 39. Eliz. B R.

10. —— Debt was brought for 60.l. on an Obligation; The Defendant pleaded the statute of Usury, and shewed, that a Ship went a Fishing to the New found land, which Voyage might be performed in 8 Months; and the Plantiff delivered 50.l. to the Defendant to pay 60 l. upon the Return of the Ship to Dartmouth from Fishing; and if the Ship should not come to the New found land, but by reason of Leakage or tempest should return to Dartmouth, then that he should pay the Principal Money; and if the Ship should never Return, that he should pay nothing; and it was adjudged no usury: for if it staid two years at the New found land, he was to Pay but 20.l. Pasch. 6. Jac. Sharpley versus Hurrel. Co. B.

11. Warnes was indebted to Ader 100.l. upon an usurious Contract; and Ader was indebted to Ellis in 100.l. just debt, for which Warnes and Ader were bound to the Plaintiff, and debt being brought upon this Obligation, Warnes pleaded the usury between him and Ader to avoid the Bond; and Ellis replyed, that he knew nothing of it; and it was adjudged against the Defendant. Trin. 2 Jac. Co. B.

12. A Replevin was brought, and the Defendant avowed for an Annuity of 20.l. granted for years: payable upon demand, and alleaged a demand, the Plaintiff demands Oyer of the Deed, where it appeared, that for 100.l. a Rent of 20.l. was granted for 8 years; and another of 20.l. for 2 years if E R and T should so long live, and the plaintiff pleaded the statute of usury; and it was Ruled, that if it had been laid to be upon a loan of Money, it had been usurious; but if it be a Bargain for an Annuity, it is no Usury. Cotterel against Harrington, Pasch. 6. Jac. Cook B.

13. An Action of Debt was brought for a Debt on a Bond, the Defendant pleads the Statute of Usury, and shews a corrupt Lending in the year 32, to be paid in 33; and after a new Bond in 35 for part of the first sum; And it was judged that this new Bond could not be corrupt if the first Contract were not corrupt. Brownl. Rep. 1. part 73.

3. Dry Exchange, what. These words, Dry Exchange, seem to be a cleanly term invented for the disguising of foul Usury, in the which something is pretended to pass of both sides, whereas in truth nothing passeth but on the one side. Stat. 3. H. 7. 5.

4. Brokers, what. Brokers are such as make Bargains, and drive Contracts between Buyers and Sellers, Borrowers and Lenders of Money.

No such kind of person, as a Broker, Scrivener, or Solliciter, may take directly, or indirectly, for driving any Bargain for loan or forbearance of Money, above the Rate of 5.s. for the forbearance of 100.l. for a year, and so rateably for more or less:

Nor

Nor above 12.d. for the making or renewing of a Bond or Bill, or for a Counter-Bond, under pain of 20.l. Act. 8. Auguſt 1651.

If a Broker that hath received any Goods wrongfully taken in London, Weſtminſter, Southwark, or within two miles of London, do not upon requeſt of the true owner thereof, diſcover of who he had them, and what is become of them, he ſhall loſe to the owner the double value thereof. Stat. 1. Jac. 21.

CHAP. CLXV.

Of an Utlawry.

IT is the puniſhment of a man, that being called into Law, and lawfully ſought, doth contemtuouſly refuſe to appear. And this is, and may be in and upon perſonal Actions, or in and upon Appeals and Indictments. In perſonal Actions, as Account, Debt, Replevin, Detinue, Action upon the Caſe, Treſpaſs, Covenant, Annuity. And in perſonal Actions it is and may be either before Judgement had in the Suits, or after Judgement; and in both Caſes it is after Writs of Exigent and Proclamation go forth, and upon the Proclamation in perſonal Actions the party hath been required to appear five ſeveral County Court dayes in the open County Court, and once in the open Seſſions, and once at the Church door where he hath or did lately dwell; And then, and thereupon if he appear not, Judgement is given by the Coroners of the County Court, that he ſhall be Outlawed, extra legem poſitus, & pro exlige tenebitur cùm principi nec legi obediat. And thereupon doth iſſue forth againſt him the Writ of Capias utlegatum; which is defined to be Utlawry, what. Sect. 1.

In what Actions it lyeth.

The Kinds.

A Writ that lyeth againſt a man that is Outlawed in any Suit, commanding the Sheriff to take the Party for not appearing on the Exigent, and to bring him to priſon, that he may anſwer for his contempt, and there he muſt ſtay without Bayle or Mainpriſe, which is called a general Cap. utlegatum.

Or elſe, there may go forth a Writ called A Capias utlegatum ut inquiras de bonis et cattellis, for a ſpecial Capias utlegatum, to require the Sheriff to take his Body (as before) and withal to enquire of his Goods and Chattels which are forfeited by the Outlawry, and to ſeize them into the Kings hands, and to his uſe: And this may be directed to the Sheriff of any County.

And by this Outlawry, all his Goods and Chattels are not only forfeit, and therefore he can make no Teſtament of them; but he is diſabled to ſue in any Action as long as the Outlawry is of Record againſt him.

Teſtament.

Diſability to ſue.

And in this caſe hath a man no remedy but to Reverſe the Outlawry, if he can finde any Error in the proceedings, or elſe to get the Kings pardon.

How to be avoyded.

But if it be after Judgement, he muſt pay the Debt, or agree with the party plaintiff before he can have any pardon from the King.

And if it be before Judgement, the party muſt firſt come into the Court, and yield his body to the Priſon, and the Plaintiff ſhall be ſummoned to come in by Scire facias, to proceed upon the firſt original; and if he come not, the Pardon ſhall be allowed; if he do, they ſhall Plead.

And if it happen to be Reverſed for Error, the party Outlawed ſhall have Reſtitution of his Goods that are in the Sheriffs hands, or were ſold by him before.

And

And the Outlawry for Felony and Treaſon, or for Treſpaſs in an Appeal or Judgment, if after two Capias one after another, then if he appear not to anſwer the Fact, he is Outlawed.

Proces. For in Indictments of Felony, if the party indicted appear not, the Proces are 1. a Capias, and upon a non eſt inventus returned, another Capias; which being ſo returned, there goeth out an Exigent, and the Sheriff is commanded to proclaim him 5 County dayes, and then if he yield not his Body, he is to be Outlawed by the Coroners, which the Sheriff is to return.

Attainder. And then is the Party indicted Attainted, and from that time doth loſe his Land by Eſcheate.

Forfeiture. But for his Goods, he loſeth them aſſoon as the Proclamation is Awarded. Doc. &

The condition of a man Outlawed, & what he forfeits by it. If a man be Outlawed for Treaſon or Felony upon an Indictment; by this he forfeits all his Lands, Goods, and Chattels: his Land from the time of the Return of the Outlawry by the Coroners upon the Exigent; and his Goods from the time of the Awarding of the Exigent. But as to the Lands, there is a Relation to make a Forfeiture of all the Lands he hath to the time of the Offence committed. For which, ſee Relation and Forfeiture. Broo. Forfeiture 400 447

For Felony.

If a man be Outlawed in a perſonal Action, or upon an Appeal of Maim, or Indictment of Treſpas; by this the Party Outlawed doth loſe and forfeit to the Lord Protector, all his Goods and Chattels that he hath at the time of the Outlawry pronounced, as Leaſes for years, Wardſhips of Tenants in Capite, (if any were) Cattel; Houſhold-ſtuff, Plate, Money, Jewels; alſo, all Debts by Eſpecialty and otherwiſe, all Statutes, Recognizances, and Obligations, and all things elſe as Emblements of Corn and Graſs, and whatever elſe is included within Chattels, that he hath to his own uſe, and in his own right.

So alſo he loſeth the profits of his Land for his life, the which the Lord Protector may take ſo as notwithſtanding he may not Manure it. 9 Hen 6 20 30 H 6 20 19 H 6 47 30 Aſſ pl 1 Stamf lib 3 chap 27 Cook 7 1 22 4 95 5 59 63 5 Hen 7 16 Plow 541 Broo Forfeiture 75 24 26

And if two, or more perſons have joyntly, or in common, any Goods or Chattels, Bonds, or Debts, and one of them be Outlawed, all the Debts, Bonds, Goods, or Chattels, are forfeited to the Lord Protector, and the other Joynt-tenants or Tenants in Common, cannot be holpen. Plow 343 322 Dyer 11

And yet in 6 Car. in the Court of Wards in the Lord Brooks caſe, it was held by the Judges aſſiſtants, That where the Lord Brook had bargained and ſold Land to A B C and D for years, and C and D were Outlawed, that by this C and D had forfeited but their Moyitie, and that they were Tenants in Common with the King.

But Inheritances and Freeholds, nor the Trees upon the Land, Doors, and other incidents annexed to the Land, nor Debts upon a ſimple Contract, nor ſuch cauſes of Action as for which Damages onely are to be recovered, as for Battery; nor Actions for Goods taken away, nor for matters of Account are not forfeited hereby.

So neither are things wherein the party Outlawed hath only a ſpecial Property, as a Pledge, Diſtreſs, Leaſe mortgaged, or the like, theſe are not forfeited hereby.

So neither are thoſe things forfeited which one hath to anothers uſe, as the Goods or Chattels one hath as Executor or Adminiſtrator to another. Perk 388 5 H 7 16 Cook 4 63 20 H 7 13 16 Edw 4 4 50 Aſſ pl 1 29 Aſſ pl 47 50 Aſſ pl 5 28 Edw 3 92

And yet in M 9 Car. in Aſhfords caſe in the Exchequer, the Caſe was this, There were divers Leaſes for years in Truſt for I S, and one of them was Outlawed: It is ſaid it was adjudged that the whole Leaſe was forfeit.

Excom-

Of Excommunication:

EXcommunication was a cenſure by the Eccleſiaſtical Judg, by which a man was deprived of the uſe of the Sacraments, and ſometimes of the fellowſhip of men. And thus if a man had remained forty dayes, and had not reconciled himſelf to his Ordinary, upon a Certificate of the Biſhop into Chancery, there did iſſue out thence a Writ called an Excommunicato capiendo, to the Sheriff to apprehend him, by which he was to be impriſoned without Bayle or Mainpriſe until he did ſubmit and were abſolved, and then he had a Writ of Excommunicato Deliberando; And by this he was to be delivered again after he had ſubmitted. But theſe things about Excommunication, now that Biſhops are gone, are out of uſe.

CHAP. CLXVI.

Of Waiver, Waif, Eſtray, Treaſure-Trove and Warranty.

THis word Waiver (as it ſeems) is ſometimes applyed to an eſtate or ſomething that is made and conveyed to a man, and ſo it ſignifieth nothing elſe but the refuſal to accept of the thing ſo made and conveyed. And ſometimes it is applyed to a plea, and then ſignifieth a refuſal to ſtand to a former plea pleaded, and the pleading of a new: for which laſt ſenſe read 13 Ed. 4.8. 20 H. 6.22. Relw. 37. 21 Ed. 3.49. 5 H. 7.9.

Waiver, what. Sect. 1.

For anſwer to this Queſtion, take theſe Caſes.

1 If a Joynture be made to a Woman after marriage, ſhe after her husbands death may waive it by word in the Country; and this is good. Cook 3.27. Dyer 61.

Where one may waive a thing fallen to him, and how, or not

2 If an eſtate be made to a man and his wife in ſpecial Taile, and the husband deviſe to the wife for life; in this caſe if ſhe will, ſhe may waive the eſtate tail, and take by the deviſe. Cook 9.140.

3 A man or a woman cannot by the Common-Law waive or refuſe any eſtate of inheritance made to him or her by any verbal Waiver or diſagreement in the Country, but that he or ſhe may afterwards again in a Court of Record accept it. See more in other Titles. Cook 3.26. Dyer 61.

4 Where a particular eſtate is given with a remainder, there regularly he that hath the particular eſtate ſhall not be allowed to waive it, for the prejudice of him in remainder; but if one have a reverſion, contra, for that is not hurt by the waiver. 41 Ed. 3. Ch. Inſt. B. R. 13. Jur.

5 Infant, or if he dye before agreement, may waive an eſtate made to him. So may not a man, De non ſane memory, after he hath purchaſed Lands; but if he dye before agreement, his heire may avoid and waive it. Cook 1 part. D. & S. Inſt. fol. 23.

6 One cannot waive, or alter a Title of Inheritance that a man hath in the Country, though his title be but by Preſcription or Cuſtome. Cook upon Litt. fol. 114.

If a Feoffment be made to an Infant iſſue in tail, he may waive it at his full age. Cook on Litt. 348.

Of Waif, Eſtray, &c.

Waif, what. WAif is, when a Thief hath Feloniouſly ſtolne goods, and being neerly followed with Hue and Cry, or elſe overcharged with the burden or trouble of the goods, for his eaſe, or more flyeth away, and leaveth the goods or any part of them behind him; then the Kings Officer, or Reeve, or Bailiff of the Lord of the Manor, who by Cuſtome, Preſcription or Charter hath ſuch a Franchiſe of Waif, may ſeiſe the goods ſo waived to the Lords uſe, who may keep them as his own proper goods.

For the further opening of which, theſe things are to be known,

1. That if the Owner come with freſh Suit after the Felon, and ſue an Appeal, or he or any other for him, do give in evidence againſt him at his Araignment upon the Indictment, and he be by this meanes attainted thereof, &c. or outlaw him for want of appearing; in theſe caſes the owner ſhall have reſtitution of his goods ſo ſtolen and waived.

Reſtitution.

2 In this caſe it is wiſdom in the Lord to ſeize the goods preſently, for if the owner ſeize it before him, though it be twenty years after, he ſhall have it, though he made no freſh Suit after the Felon; but if a ſtranger take it away before ſeiſure, an Action of Treſpaſs doth lye. See Doct. & St. 176. 177. Stat. 21 H. 8. 11.

3 And it ſeems, that Lords that will have theſe Waifs, muſt cauſe them to be cryed in Churches and Markets thereabout, and then if they be not claimed within the year and day after, they are forfeit. Dalton De Officio Vice-Comitis, fol. 34.

4 But if the Priſoner had not the goods with or about him at the time of his flight, having hid or left them in his own or any other houſe, or left them in any ones cuſtody, or in any Manor, or hid them in any place before his flight, then they are no waifs nor forfeit, but the owner may take them. Cook 5. 109. 21. H. 8. 11.

5 Theſe Waifs belong to the King, unleſſe there be ſome that have a Patent from the King for it, or can preſcribe for the having of them time out of mind; and the only Remedy of getting them is by ſeizure only. Cook of Copyholds 51.

6 If Cattel ſtolen be driven by the thief, and men coming to take him, he flyeth, and whiles they run after him, the goods go out of one Manor into another, now the Lord of the Manor where they were left firſt, by his Bailiff muſt ſeize them in the other Manor, before the Bailiff of that Manor had ſeized them, unleſſe that other Manor were the Lord Protectors, for there the Law gives him ſeiſon without any actual ſeiſure. Dyer 338.

Seiſ. 2.

Wrack. Wrack is where a Ship loaden is caſt away upon the Coaſts, ſo that no living Creature that was in it when it began to ſink eſcapeth to land with life; then all theſe goods are ſaid to be wracked, and they belong to the Lord Protector, if they be found, except the Lord of the Soyl adjoyning can entitle himſelf to them by Cuſtome or Charter. See Admiral.

Eſtray, what. An Eſtray is where any tame Beaſt is found wandring about from its place within any Lordſhip, and not owned by any man.

As touching which theſe things are to be known,

1 Eſtrayes were Originally the Kings, and came from him; now may be had by Preſcription, as Waifs may; or they may be claimed and had by the Kings grant, and he that hath the one ſhall have the other.

2 It is to be ordered thus, The Lord of the ſoyle, after he hath ſeiſed it, and put a Withe about its neck, and made open Proclamation two Market dayes adjoyning at three Market Townes, as ſome ſay; and (as others ſay) at two of the next Market Villages, ſhewing the Marks of the Cattle, if the Owner do not come within a year and a day after and claim them, it is the Lord Protectors, the Lords of the ſoyle, or his that hath a Charter from any King, or can preſcribe for it. And if the owner do come come within the year and the day, he is to give reasonable satisfaction for the keeping of it, and to have it again. And they that have it may detain it till he pay for the keeping of it.

3 Till the year and day be expired, the Lord hath no Property in it; and therefore if it be taken away before this time, the Lord or his Bailiffe may not have an Action of Trespasse for it, but the Owner of it may have an Action of Trespas. Property. Trespasse.

4 If the thing be the goods of an Infant, woman covert, Executrix or one beyond the sea, or in prison, yet are they subject to this hazard and loss, as much as the goods of any other person.

5 If the thing before the year be out, and after Proclamation, estray into another Manor, and be seised there as an Estray, the first Lord hath lost it, and he cannot go into the other Manor to re-take it.

6 The Lord or his Bailiff is bound to give the Beast meat till the year and day be up, and he cannot use it; if an horse or ox, may not work it, if a Gelding he may not fetter him, but if it be a Cow he may milk it.

For all this, see Brco. Estray 3 4. Dyer 338. 12 H. 8. 10. Fitz Nat. Brev. 90. Co.k 9.23. 5.108. 7.16. Doct. & Stat. 176. Brownl. 1. *Rep.*236. 2 part 219.

Of Treasure-trove.

TReasure Trove is where any Money, Gold, or Silver, Plate or Bulloigne is found in any place under ground, and no man knoweth whose it is, in this case the Lord Protector will have it: But if any have a Patent from any King for it, or can prescribe for it, he will have it. Treasure trove, what.

But if it be found above ground or in the sea, it is the mans that found it, and no Treasure trove: and yet it is held, that if it be Gold, Silver, Coyn, Plate or Bullion, where-ever it be found, it is Treasure trove. But for Mines of mettal (unlesse they be Mines of Gold and Silver, or Mines mixt wherein is most of the Gold and Silver Oar, which belong to the Lord Protector) they do belong to the owner of the ground wherein they are. *Plow.*322.314. Stamf. Prer.ch. 42.

Of a Warranty.

A Warranty is a certain Covenant real annexed to lands or tenements whereby a man and his heirs are bound to warrant the same. Or it is where a man is bound to warrant the land or hereditament that another hath. And he that doth make this Warranty is called the Warrantor, and he to whom it is made the warrantee. Finch. ley 39. Cook super Litt. 365. 1 Warranty, what. Warrantor. Warrantee.

There are two kind of warranties,

1. A warranty in Deed, or an expresse warranty, which is when the same is expressed; i. when a Fine or Feoffment by deed is levied or made in Fee, or a lease for life is made by deed, comprehending warranty, or which hath an expresse clause of warranty contained in it, as when a Conusor, Feoffor or Lessor doth covenant to warrant the Land to the Conusee, Feoffee or Lessee; which is in these words, Ego I S & heredes mei Warrantizabimus & in perpetuum defendemus VV S & heredibus suis tenementa predicta contra omnes homines in perpetuum. And by the Statute of Bigamis Dedi is made an expresse warranty during the life of Feoffor. Cook 1. 2. super Litt. 365. 4.18. 2. The kinds.

2. A warranty in law, or an implied warranty, which is when it is not expressed by the party but tacite made and implied by the Law, whereof see divers examples infra. The warranty in Deed also is either lineal, which is thus described, A Covenant real annexed to the Land by him which either was owner, or might have inherited the Land, and from whom his heir lineal or collateral might by poſſibility have claimed the Land as heir from him that made the warranty. Or elſe it is collateral, which is thus deſcribed; A warranty made by him that had no right, or poſſibility of right to the Land, and is collateral to the title of the Land. Alſo there is a warranty which doth commence by diſſeiſin or wrong, of all which ſee divers examples afterwards. And note that all theſe things here are to be applied to warranties of Lands and concerning freeholds and inheritances, for there is a warranty of Goods and Chattels in contracts, of which we treat not here. Cook ſuper 383, 384. 370. 365.

3. The fruit and effect of it, and what uſe may be made of it.

The fruit and effect of this warranty in deed is, that it doth alwayes conclude and bar the warrantor himſelf of the Land ſo warranted for ever, ſo that all his preſent and future Rights that he hath or may have therein are hereby extinct. Cook ſuper Litt. 265. 372. 365. 384.

And therefore, if the Father be diſſeiſed, and the ſon in his life time releaſe all his right to the Land to the diſſeiſor, and make a warranty of the Land in the Deed, and then the father dieth, and the right of the Land deſcendeth to the ſon; in this caſe albeit the releaſe doth not bar the ſon, yet the warranty doth bar him. Cook 4. 121. 10. 97.

And for the moſt part alſo, it doth conclude and bar the heirs of him that made the warranty, to whom the ſame waranty doth deſcend, to demand the ſame Land againſt the warranty; for if it be a lineal warranty, it is a bar of an eſtate in fee ſimple without any Aſſets, i. without any other Land deſcended to him in fee ſimple from the ſame anceſtor that made the warranty: and with Aſſets, it is a bar of an eſtate in taile. And if it be a Collateral Warranty, it is with or without Aſſets a bar of an eſtate in fee ſimple or fee taile, and all poſſibility of right thereunto; and yet ſo as it doth not paſs any eſtate or right, but only bind the right ſo long as the warranty is in force: for if the warranty be avoided, the right may be revived. But neither the lineal or collateral warranty can enlarge an eſtate.

And therefore if a Leſſor by Deed releaſe to his Leſſee for life, and warrant the Land to him and his heirs; this doth not make his eſtate greater, neither will it bar Titles of Entry or Action in caſes of Mortmain, conſent to a Raviſher, Mortgage, or Dower. Cook ſuper Litt. 389. &c.

And therefore if an Anceſtor of the Lord hath title to enter upon an Alienation in Mortmain, and he releaſe, or make a feoffement with warranty; this warranty will neither bar him nor his heir.

So if a collateral Anceſtor will make a warranty which doth after deſcend upon one that hath title of entry upon a condition broken; this will not bar his entry, &c. neither will it bar any Right that ſhall Commence after the warranty made. And the warranty that doth commence by Diſſeiſin, doth not bind or bar any eſtate with, or without Aſſets.

And in Caſes where the lineal or collateral warranty is a bar, there if the party be impleaded by him or his heirs that made the warranty, the party impleaded that is Tenant of the Land, may plead and ſhew forth this warranty againſt him, and demand Judgement, whether he contrary to his own warranty ſhall be ſuffered or received to demand the thing warranted? and this in pleading is called a Rebutter. Cook ſuper Litt. 265. Cook 10. 98, 99. Dyer 42. Cook ſuper Litt. 101.

Rebutter, what.

And if he be impleaded or ſued by another for the Land, then he to whom the warranty is made or his heirs may vouch, i. call in the warrantor or his heirs to warrant the Land.

Voucher, what.

And this is an interpleader in the nature of an Action brought by the warrantor againſt the warrantee, wherein he that doth vouch, (called the vouchor) is demandant, and he that is vouched (called the vouchee) is made tenant or defendant to the Action, and the vouchor is as it were out of the ſuit.

Vouchor.
Vouchee.

And this ſecond Tenant the vouchee is called the Tenant by Warranty.

Tenant by the Warranty, what.

And hereupon ſhall iſſue forth to the Sheriff a Writ to ſummon the Vouchee to appear, called a Summons ad Warrantizandum.

Summons ad Warrantizandum, what.

And if the Vouchee appear, he muſt plead to the Vouchor; and if he ſhew cauſe

why

why he ſhould not warrant, that muſt be tried, and this ſhewing of Cauſe is called a Counterplea to the Voucher: but if he plead in avoidance of the warranty, it is called a Counterplea to the warranty.

Counterplea to the Voucher. what.

Counterplea to the Warranty. what.

And if he cannot gainſay the warranty, the ſtranger ſhall recover the Land demanded againſt the Vouchor, and he ſhall recover as much other Land againſt the Vouchee of the Lands he hath or had at the time of the voucher.

Recovery in value, what.

And this Recovery of other Land is called a Recovery in Value.

And if the Vouchee hath at the time of the Vouchor and Recovery no Lands deſcended to him to anſwer the warranty, but hath afterwards Land happening to him by deſcent from that Anceſtor, then he may have a reſummons and recover the Land that doth after happen.

But if the Sheriff return upon the ſummons, that the Vouchee is ſummoned, and he doth make default, then he ſhall have a Magnum cape ad valentiam, when if he make default again, the Judgement ſhall be given againſt the Vouchor, and he ſhall recover over in value againſt the Vouchee; and if the Vouchee appear and then make default, the Voucher ſhall have a Parvum cape ad valentiam, and then if he make default, Judgement ſhall be given as before.

Sequatur ſub ſuo periculo, what.

But if the Sheriff return upon the ſummons, he hath nothing whereby he may be ſummoned, then may the Vouchor have a Writ called Sequatur ſub ſuo periculo, whereupon ſhall go an Alias and Pluries; and if the like Return be made, the demandant ſhall have Judgement againſt the firſt tenant, but he cannot recover in value againſt the Vouchee.

Dearraignment del Garranty. what.

And if the caſe be ſo the Vouchee had a Warranty from ſome other for the Land, he may Dearraign. i. maintain the Warranty over, and ſhall recover in value over alſo againſt his Vouchor in the ſame manner as before.

Warrantia chartæ, what.

Or the Warrantee to whom the Warranty is made or his heirs may at any time before they be impleaded for the Land, if they will bring a Warrantia Chartæ upon the Warranty in the Deed againſt the Warrantor or his heirs, and hereby all the Land the heir of the Warrantor hath by deſcent from the Anceſtor that made the Warranty at the time of this Writ brought, ſhall be bound and charged with the warranty into whoſe hands ſoever it go afterwards: ſo that if the Land warranted be after recovered from the warrantee, he ſhall recover ſo much land over again of the other land of the heir of the warrantor or of the warrantor himſelf if he be living. And albeit the warrantee or his heirs do recover in this Writ, yet he may after upon occaſion Vouch the Warrantor or his Heirs notwithſtanding. F.N.B. 134 Cook ſuper Littl. 102.

And herein obſerve it is good Policy, if a man ſuſpect any thing, to bring this Writ of Warrantia Chartæ betimes, becauſe it binds all the Land of the warrantor from the time of the Writ brought, and not any of his other Lands he had before that time, that are now aliened.

4. What words and clauſes in a deed will make a warranty. Or not.

The words Dedi & conceſſi, or Dedi only in a Feoffment do make a warranty when an eſtate of franketenement or inheritance doth paſs by the Deed. But the word Conceſſi only, or Demiſi & conceſſi, do not make ſuch a warranty. And by force of the Statute of Bigamis chap. 6. Dedi is made an expreſs warranty during the life of the Feoffor. Cook ſuper Litt. 383, 384. Cook 4. 81.

The word Warrantizo, or warrant, is the only apt and effectual word to make an expreſs warranty or a warranty in Deed, and therefore this word only is uſed in fines. And the words Defendo, or Acquieto, albeit they be commonly uſed in Deeds, yet of themſelves without the other will not make a warranty. Litt. Sect. 733. Cook 5. 17, 18.

If a man by Deed doth grant to warrant Land to I S and his heirs, and the warrantor doth not bind his heirs to the warranty; or doth not warrant to I S and his heirs, but to I S only; or doth warrant to I S and his aſſignes, and not to I S and his heirs; or doth bind himſelf and his heirs to warrant the land, but doth not ſay how long, nor againſt whom; theſe are good warranties, but how they ſhall be taken, ſee afterwards. Dyer 42. Cook ſuper Litt. 383.

A war-

5. To what things a warranty may be annexed and extended. And to what not. And how.

A warranty in Deed may be annexed to eſtates of inheritance or freehold, and that not only of corporeal things which paſs by livery, as houſes, lands, and the like, but alſo of incorporeal things which lie in Grant, as Advowſons, Rents, Commons, Eſtovers, and the like, which iſſue out of Lands or Tenements, and that not only to inheritances in eſſe, but alſo to ſuch as are newly created, as a man (ſome ſay) may grant a Rent &c. de novo, out of land for life, in taile, or in fee, with warranty. Cook ſuper Litt. 366. 389.

So a warranty in Law may extend to a Rent newly created, and therefore if ſuch a Rent be granted in exchange for an Acre of Land; this exchange and warranty thereunto annexed is good.

But a warranty may not be annexed to an eſtate or Leaſe for years, albeit it be a Leaſe of one thouſand years, nor to any other Chattel, and therefore in all actions the which Leſſee for years may have as treſpaſs &c, a warranty cannot be pleaded in bar.

A warranty may be made upon any kinde of conveyance, as upon fines, feoffments, gifts, &c. alſo a warranty may be made by and upon releaſes and confirmations made to the tenant of the Land, albeit he that makes the releaſe or confirmation, hath no right to the Land, &c. Cook ſuper Litt. 372. 385. Litt. Sect. 738. 745. 706.

And yet ſome ſay, That by a Releaſe or Confirmation where there is no eſtate created, or tranſmutation of the poſſeſſion, a warranty cannot be made to the Aſſignee.

But if A be ſeiſed of Land in fee, and B doth releaſe to him, or doth confirm his eſtate in fee with warranty to him, his heirs, and aſſignes; in this caſe all men agree this warranty to be good; and ſo alſo it ſeems it is in the caſe laſt before, and that both the party himſelf, and the Aſſignee may vouch.

6. What ſhall be a good warranty in Law. And how it ſhall bar and binde.

A warranty in Law may be good in his creation, albeit it be made without Deed, for if a man by his laſt Will and Teſtament deviſe Lands to another man for life, or in taile rendring Rent; to this eſtate there is a warranty in Law annexed. Cook ſuper Litt. 384. 386.

The words Dedi & conceſſi, or Dedi only in a Feoffment, make a good warrant in Law. Cook ſuper Litt. 384.

But the word Conceſſi only in fine or feoffment, doth not make a warranty in Law. F N B 134. Cook 4. 80.

And albeit there be an expreſs warranty in the Deed, yet this doth not take away the implied warranty of the Law.

And this warranty in Law by Dedi & conceſſi, or by Dedi only, is a general warranty during the life of the Feoffor.

Partition. Exchange.

Every Partition and Exchange implyeth in it, and hath annexed to it a ſpecial warranty in Law, and how it ſhall bar and be extended, ſee in Exchange. Cook ſuper Litt. 102 384.

Every Tenure by Homage Aunceſtrel, i. where a Tenant and his Aunceſtors have held Land of a Lord, and his Aunceſtors time out of minde by Homage hath a warranty in law annexed to it, by which the Lord is bound to warrant it to the Tenant and his heirs. Cook 4. 80.

If one make a Gift in Taile or Leaſe for life of Land by Deed, or without Deed, reſerving a Rent, or of a Rent-ſervice by Deed; in theſe caſes there is annexed an implyed warranty againſt the Donor or Leſſor, his Heirs and Aſſignes. Cook ſuper Litt. 334.

When Dower is aſſigned to a Woman, there is a warranty in Law included, which is that the Tenant in Dower being impleaded, ſhall Vouch and recover in value a third part of the two parts whereof ſhe is Dowable. Cook ſuper Littleton, 384.

And this warranty in Law is of the nature of a lineal warranty, and ſhall binde as a lineal warrantly only, for it doth never bar any Collateral Title. Cook ſuper Litt. 384.

And

And hence it is, that this warranty and aſſets in ſome caſes is a good bar; as if Tenant in taile exchange for other lands which are deſcended to the iſſue, and he hath accepted of them, or if not, that other lands are deſcended to him. But if tenant in taile of lands make a gift in tail or leaſe for life rendring rent, and dye; in this caſe this is no bar. And yet if other aſſets in Fee-ſimple deſcend, this warranty in Law and aſſets is a good bar.

To every good warranty in Deed that muſt bar and bind, theſe things are requiſite,

7. What ſhal be ſaid a good warranty in deed. Or not. And how it ſhall bar and bind.

1 That the perſon that doth warrant, be a perſon able, for if an Infant make a Feoffment in fee of land, and thereby doth bind himſelf and his heires to warrant the Land; in this caſe albeit the Feoffment be only voidable, yet the warranty is void. Cook ſuper Litt. 367.

Infant.

2. That the warranty be made by deed in writing, for if a man make a Feoffment by word, and by word bind him and his heires to warrant the Land; this is not a good warranty. So if a man give lands to another by his laſt will, and thereby bind him and his heires to warrant it; this warranty, although the will be in writing, is void. Litt. Sect. 703. Cook ſuper Litt. 386.

3. That there be ſome eſtate to which the warranty is annexed, that may ſupport it: for if one covenant to warrant land to another, and make him no eſtate, or make him an eſtate that is not good, and covenant to warrant the thing granted; in theſe things the warranty is void. Cook 10. 96. & ſuper Litt. 384.

4 That the eſtate to which the warranty is annexed, be ſuch an eſtate as is able to ſupport it, and therefore that it be a leaſe for life at the leaſt: for if one make a Leaſe for years of land, and bind himſelf and his heires to warrant the land; this is no good warranty, neither will it have the effect of a warranty: but this may amount to a covenant on which an action of covenant may be brought. Cook ſuper Litt. 378. 26 H. 8. 9.

5 That the warranty deſcend upon him that is heir of the whole blood by the common Law to him that made the warranty, and not upon another: for if Tenant in tail in Burrough Engliſh (where by cuſtome the youngeſt ſon is to enherit) diſcontinue the tail, and have iſſue two ſons, and the Uncle releaſe to the Diſcontinuee with warranty, and dieth; this is no good warranty to bind the ſon. Cook ſuper Lit. 12. Litt. fol. 161. Sect. 735.

So if in this caſe tenant in tail diſcontinue the taile, with warranty &c. having two ſons, and dye ſeiſed of other lands in the ſame Burrough in Fee-ſimple, to the value of land in taile; the younger ſon is not barred by this warranty.

So if one give his land to his eldeſt ſon, and the heirs males of his body, the remainder to the ſecond ſon, &c. and the eldeſt ſon doth alien with warranty, having iſſue a daughter, and dye; this is no good warranty to bar the ſecond ſon. Lit. fol. 161.

So if Tenant in taile have iſſue two daughters by divers venters, and dye, and they enter; and a ſtranger doth diſſeiſe them, and one of them doth releaſe all her right, and bind her and her heires to warrant it; in this caſe the warranty is not good to bar the ſiſter: but if they had been by one venter, contra. Litt. Sect. 737.

So if two brothers be by demy venters, and the eldeſt doth releaſe with warranty to the diſſeiſor of the Uncle, and dieth without iſſue, and the younger dyeth; this is no good warranty to bar the younger brother, for a warranty muſt evermore deſcend upon him that is heire at the common Law to him that made it. Cook ſuper Litt 387 Lit. Sect. 718.

6 That he that is heire do continue to be ſo, and that neither the deſcent of the title nor the warranty be interrupted, for if one bind him and his heires to warrant, and after is attainted of Felony, and dye; this warranty doth not bind his heir. Lit. Sect. 745. 746.

So if tenant in tail be diſſeiſed, and after releaſe to the diſſeiſor with warranty, and after after the tenant in taile is attainted of Felony, and hath iſſue and dye; this warranty will not bind the iſſue.

7 That the eſtate of free-hold that is to be barred, be put to a right before or at the time of the warranty made, and that he to whom the warranty doth deſcend, have then but a right to the land, for a warranty will not barre any eſtate of Freehold or inheritance in eſſe, in poſſeſſion, reverſion or remainder, that is not diſplaced and put to a right before, or at the time of the warranty made, though after at the time of the deſcent of the warranty, the eſtate of freehold or inheritance be diſplaced and diveſted. And therefore if there be father and ſon, and the ſon hath a rent-ſervice, ſuit to a mill, rent charge, rent-ſeck, common of paſture, or other profit apprender out of Land of the father, and the father maketh a Feoffment in Fee with warranty, and dyeth; this ſhall not bar the ſon of the rent, common, &c. And albeit the ſon after the Feoffment with warranty, and before the death of the father hath been diſſeiſed, and ſo being out of poſſeſſion the warranty had deſcended upon him, yet this warranty ſhould not bind him. Cook 10.96,97. ſuper Lit. 388. 21 *H.*7.

So if my collateral Anceſtor releaſe to my tenant for life with warranty and dye, and this warranty deſcend upon me, this ſhall not bind my reverſion or remainder. But if in the caſe before, the ſon be diſſeiſed of the rent &c. and affirm himſelfe to be diſſeiſed by the bringing of an Aſſize (for otherwiſe he ſhall not be ſaid to be out of poſſeſſion of a rent, or the like) and after the father doth releaſe with warranty and dye; in this caſe the collateral warranty ſhall bind and bar the ſon of his rent &c. And if in the laſt Caſe my tenant for life be diſſeiſed, and my Anceſtor doth releaſe to the diſſeiſor with warranty and dye; this is a good warranty to bar and bind me.

8 That the warranty do take effect in the life time of the Anceſtor, and that he be bound by it, for the heire ſhall never be bound by an expreſſe warranty but where the Anceſtor was bound by the ſame warranty, and therefore a warranty made by Will is void. Litt. Sect. 734.

9 That the heir claim in the ſame right that the Anceſtor doth: for if one be a ſucceſſor only in caſe of a corporation, he ſhall not be bound by the warranty of a natural Anceſtor. Cook ſuper Litt. 370.

10 That the heire that is to be barred by the warranty be of full age, at the time of the fall of the warranty: for if my Anceſtor make a Feoffment, or a releaſe with warranty, and at this time I am within age, and after he dye, and the warranty deſcend upon me within age, this warranty ſhall not bind me: But if I become of age after the warranty of my Anceſtor, and before his death; in this caſe the warranty may bar me. And in the firſt caſe it will bar me alſo, whiles it is in force; but I may by my entry avoid it. And the ſame Law is of a woman covert. And yet if the entry of an Infant or a woman covert be not lawful, when the warranty doth deſcend; in this caſe the warranty ſhall bind them as well as any other, for ſuch a warranty cannot be avoided but by entry and avoiding the eſtate. And where the husband is within age at the time of the deſcent of a warranty to his wife, and the entry of the wife is taken away, there the warranty ſhall bind the wife. Litt. Sect. 726. Cook 1.67.140. ſuper Lit. 380.

If Lands be given to A for life, and after to the next heire male of A, and the heires males of the body of that heire male, and A having iſſue B, makes a Feoffment of the land with warranty to I S; this is a good warranty and a bar to the iſſue, for a man may be barred of his right by a warranty, which he could never avoid: as where Leſſee for life is diſſeiſed, and a collateral Anceſtor of the Leſſor doth releaſe to the Diſſeiſor with warranty and dye, and this doth deſcend upon the Leſſor; by this he is barred. Cook 1.66. 44 *Ed.*3.30. 44 *Aſſ. pl.*35.

A warranty made for life or in tail is good, and ſhall bind for ſo long only: as if Tenant in taile of land let it for life, the remainder to another in Fee, and a collateral Anceſtor doth confirme the eſtate of the tenant for life and dye, and the tenant in tail hath iſſue; this is a bar to the iſſue during the life of the tenant for for life. And in this caſe upon a voucher the recovery in value ſhall be put for life only. Litt. Sect. 738. Cook ſuper Litt. 387.

If one make a Gift in taile, and grant to warrant the land given according to the Gift; this warranty is good no longer then the eſtate doth laſt. And no warranty that a Donor can make in this caſe can bar him of the land if the Donee die without iſſue, and the eſtate determine. Cook 10 96.

And where a warranty doth bar, it is entire, and doth extend to all the Land, and to all perſons upon whom it doth deſcend, and is a bar of all the right that every one of them hath in the land; ſo that if they have all right joyntly or ſeverally, or one onely hath all the right, and the reſt none, he that hath the right is barred. And therefore if lands he given to A, and the heirs of his body; and for want of ſuch iſſue, to E his ſiſter, and the heirs of her body; and A doth make a Feoffment with warranty, and die without iſſue, having two ſiſters, E and S; this is a bar to E for the whole, albeit the warranty deſcend on her and another. Cook 8. 52. ſuper Litt. 373

If there be tenant for life, the remainder to his ſon and heir apparant in tail, and the father doth make a feoffment in fee with warrantie, and dieth; in this caſe this is a warranty, and will bar the ſon, albeit it be made of purpoſe to bar him. But if by agreement and covin between him and A and B, he makes a leaſe to A, who makes a feoffment in fee to B, to whom the father doth releaſe with warranty, thinking by a collaterall warranty to bar his ſon; this is no bar, for this warranty began by diſſeiſin: and if in the firſt caſe the ſon doth enter in the life time of the father, upon the land, he doth avoid the warranty. Cook 5.79

If the father be tenant for life, the remainder to the next heir male of the father, and to the heirs males of the body of ſuch next heir male; aad the father makes a feoffment to I S with warrantie, and dieth; it ſeems this warranty is a good bar to the heir; and in this caſe the heire cannot enter in the life time of his father; for he cannot be heire male unto his father untill his fathers death. Cook 1. 66.

If tenant for life make a feoffment with warranty, or be diſſeiſed, and releaſe with warranty, and he in reverſion being heir to the tenant for life, doth not enter, but ſuffers the leſſee for life to die, and thereby the warranty to fall and deſcend upon him: in this caſe, this warranty generally is a barre without any aſſets. But if he that doth ſo alien &c. be tenant by the courteſie, this is no bar to the heire without aſſets in fee ſimple, from the tenant by the courteſie; and then it is a bar for ſo much. Cook ſuper Litt. 366, 365. Cook 1. 67. Stat. Glouc. chap. 6 Litt. Sect. 724. 725.

And if the heir for want of this aſſets, at the time doth recover the land from his mother, and after aſsets doth deſcend from the father; in this caſe the tenant ſhall recover the ſame land of the mother again. And if ſhe that doth ſo alien, &c. to be tenant for life of the inheritance, or purchaſe of her deceaſed husband, or given unto her by any of the Anceſtors of her Husband, or by any other perſon ſeiſed to the uſe of her Husband, or of any of his Anceſtors; in this caſe her alienation, releaſe, or confirmation with warranty ſhall not bind the heir, whether he hath aſsets or not. Stat. 11. Hen. 7. chap. 20. Litt. Sect. 727. Cook ſuper Littleton 365.

But if a man convey lands to the uſe of himſelf, B his wife, and the heires of his body, and they have iſsue C. and the father dieth, and C diſſeiſeth his mother, or getteth a feoffment from a diſſeiſor, and then ſuffereth a recovery with a ſingle voucher, and after the wife doth releaſe to the recoverer with warranty; in this caſe the warranty is a bar to the iſsue, and not void by the Statute of 11. H. 7. Co. 3. 58.

If the Husband that is ſeiſed of lands in the right of his Wife levie a fine, or maketh a Feoffment in fee with warranty, and the Wife dieth and then the Husband dieth; this warranty ſhall not binde the heir of the Wife without aſſets of other land in fee ſimple from the father, albeit he be not tenant by the courteſie; but it is before her death that he doth make the eſtate and the warranty. But a Fine levied by the Husband and Wife, in this caſe is a good bar to the heir. Cook ſuper Litt. 366, 381. Stat. Glouc. ch. 6. Lit. Sect. 332.

If tenant in taile that is in of another eſtate, i. either by diſſeiſin, or by the feoffment of a diſſeiſor, doth ſuffer a common recovery, and a collateral Anceſtor of the Tenant in taile doth releaſe with warranty to the recoverer, and after the recoverer doth make a feoffment to uſes executed by the Statute of 27 Hen. 8. and after the collateral Anceſtor dieth; in this caſe albeit the eſtate of the land be transferred in the poſt before the deſcent of the warranty, yet it ſhall binde. So if he, to whom the warranty is made, ſuffer a common recovery, and after the Anceſtor dieth. But if tenant in Dower enfeoffe a villain with warranty, and the Lord of the villain enter into the land before the deſcent of the warranty, and after the woman dieth; this warranty ſhall not binde the right of the Heir. So if a collateral warranty be made to a Baſtard and his heirs, and living the Anceſtor, the Baſtard dieth without iſſue, and the Lord by Eſcheat doth enter, and after the Anceſtor dieth; this warranty ſhall not binde. Cook 3. 62. 22 Aſſ. pl. 37. 29 Aſſ. pl. 34.

A Collateral Warranty may deſcend upon an iſſue in taile before the right deſcend, and yet be good with this difference, that the right be in eſſe in ſome of the Anceſtors of the Heir at the time of the Deſcent of the warranty: As, if Tenant in taile diſcontinue the taile in fee, and the diſcontinuee is diſſeiſed, and the brother of the Tenant in Tayle releaſeth all his right &c. to the diſſeiſor with warranty, and dieth without iſſue, and the Tenant in taile hath iſſue and dieth; in this caſe the iſſue is barred. But otherwiſe it is where the right is not in eſſe in the heir or any of his Anceſtors at the time of the fall of the warranty, as if Lord and Tenant be, and the Tenant make a Feoffment in fee with warranty, and after the Feoffee doth purchaſe the Seigniory, and after the Tenant doth ceaſe; in this caſe the Lord ſhall have a Ceſſavit, for a warranty doth never bar any right that doth commence after the warranty. Litt. Sect. 7 Hen. Cook ſuper Litt. 388.

8. What ſhall be ſaid a lineal warranty. And how ſuch a warranty ſhall bar.

If the caſe be ſo, that if no ſuch warranty had been made by the Father or other Anceſtor, the right of the Lands or Tenements ſo warranted, had or might have deſcended or come from the ſame Anceſtor, and that from and by him that made the ſame Warranty, ſuch a Warranty is a lineal Warranty. Litt. Sect. 703. 711.

As if a man be ſeiſed in fee of Land, and make a feoffment of it to another, and bind him and his heirs to warrant the Land, and hath iſſue and die, and the warranty doth deſcend upon the iſſue; this is a lineal warranty, for that if none ſuch had been, the right of the Land had deſcended to him as heir to his father, and he muſt have made his deſcent by him. Cook ſuper Litt. 371.

And if there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Grandfather be diſſeiſed, and the Father releaſe to the diſſeiſor being in Poſſeſſion with warranty &c. and dieth, and after the Grandfather dieth; this is a lineal warranty to the Son, and albeit in this caſe the warranty deſcend before the right, yet it is a good bar. And if there be two brothers, and the father is diſſeiſed, and the eldeſt brother doth releaſe with warranty, and die without iſſue, and after the father dieth, and the warranty doth deſcend to the younger ſon; this is a lineal warranty to him. Litt. Sect. 707.

And if Lands be given to A for life, the remainder to his right heirs, and he doth make a feoffment with warranty and die; this is but a lineal warranty. And if two parcenors be, and the eldeſt enter into all the Land to her own uſe, and then doth make a feoffment with warranty and dieth without iſſue; this, as to her own part, is a lineal warranty, but as to her ſiſters part is a collateral warranty. Cook 1. 66, 67.

And in every caſe where one doth demand any eſtate taile, if an Anceſtor of the iſſue in taile, whether he had poſſeſſion of the Land or not, hath made a warranty, and if the iſſue, that were to bring a writ of Foremedon, may or might have by poſſibilty by ſome matter that might have been done, conveyed to himſelf a title by force of the Gift by him that made the warranty; this is a lineal warranty. Cook 8. 52.

As if a man be ſeiſed of land of an eſtate taile to him and the heirs of his body begotten, and make a feoffment of it, and bind him and his heirs to warrant it, and hath iſſue and dieth; this warranty deſcending upon the iſſue is a lineal warranty.

And if lands be given to one and the heirs males of his body, and for want of ſuch iſſue to the heirs females of his body, and the Donee doth make a feoffment with warranty, and hath iſſue a ſon and a daughter and dieth; this warranty is lineal to the ſon, and if the ſon dieth without iſſue male, it is a lineal warranty from the father to the daughter. But if the Brother in his life time releaſe to the diſcontinuee &c. with warranty &c. and after dieth without iſſue; this is a collateral warranty to the daughter. Litt. Sect. 709.

If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two bodies engendred, and they have iſſue, and the Husband diſcontinue and die, and after the Wife doth releaſe with warranty and die; this is a lineal warranty. Litt. Sect. 714.

And if Lands be given to a man and a woman unmarried and the heirs of their two bodies, and they intermarry, and are diſſeiſed, and the husband doth releaſe with warranty and dieth, and after the wife dieth; this is a lineal warranty to the iſſue for all the Land. Cook ſuper Litt. 375.

And if Tenant in Taile have iſſue three ſons and diſcontinue, and the middle brother doth releaſe with warranty, and die without iſſue, and after the father dieth, and after the elder brother dieth without iſſue, ſo that the warranty doth deſcend to the younger brother; this is a lineal warranty to him. Litt. Sect. 718.

And if a father give land to his eldeſt ſon and the heirs males of his body, &c. the remainder to the ſecond ſon, &c. if the eldeſt ſon alien in fee with warranty, &c. and hath iſſue female, and dieth without iſſue male; this is a lineal warranty to the ſecond ſon. And in all theſe Cales of a lineal warranty if the right of the eſtate to be barred be the right of an eſtate in fee ſimple, it is a bar without any aſſets; for the rule is, That as to him that demandeth fee ſimple by any of his Anceſtors, he ſhall be barred and bound by a lineal warranty that doth deſcend upon him, unleſs he be reſtrained by ſome Statute. Litt. Sect. 711, 712. Doct. & Stud. 152, 153. Cook 8 52.

But it doth not bind the right of an eſtate in fee taile without aſſets, for in that caſe the rule is, That as to him that demandeth fee taile by Writ of Formedon in the Deſcendor, he ſhall not be barred by a lineal warranty, unleſs he hath aſſets by deſcent in fee ſimple of other land from the ſame Anceſtor that made the warranty; and then it is a bar for ſo much only as doth deſcend to him, no more. And yet if the iſſue in taile do alien the aſſets deſcended and die; in this caſe the iſſue of that iſſue is not barred by this warranty and aſſets. But if the iſſue to whom the warranty doth deſcend bring his Writ of Formedon, and is barred by Judgement by reaſon of the warranty and aſſets; in this caſe albeit he alien the aſſets afterwards, yet the eſtate taile is barred for ever. Cook ſuper Litt. 393 See Brownl. 1 Part 153.

9. What ſhall be ſaid a collateral warranty. And how ſuch a warranty ſhall bar.

If Tenant for life do alien in fee with warranty, or be diſſeiſed and releaſe to the diſſeiſor with warranty and die, and the warranty deſcend on him in reverſion or remainder; this is a collateral warranty. So if the Leſſee for life be deſſeiſed, and a collateral Anceſtor of him in reverſion releaſe with warranty and die, and the warranty deſcend on him in reverſion; this is a collateral warranty. for that is collateral which is collateral to the title of the Land. Cook 1. 67. 21 Hen. 7. 10. Litt. Sect. 725.

And if a man ſeiſed of Lands in fee have iſſue two ſons, and the father dieth, and the younger ſon doth enter, and doth alien the land with warranty, and die without iſſue; this is now a collateral warranty that is deſcended on the elder brother. Litt. Sect. 707. Doct. & St. 152.

And if a ſon be diſſeiſed of his own land, and bring an Aſſiſe, and after the father doth releaſe to the diſſeiſor with warranty and dieth; this warranty that doth deſcend to the ſon is a collateral warranty. 21 Hen. 7. 10.

And if a Father diſſeiſe his ſon of the Land he hath of his own Purchaſe without any intent to alien afterwards and to bar his ſon, and after he doth make a feoffment with warranty and die before the entry of his ſon, ſo that the warranty doth deſcend; this is a collateral warranty. Litt. Sect. 704.

If there be father and two ſons, and the father is diſſeiſed, and the younger ſon doth releaſe with warranty to the diſſeiſor and die without iſſue, and then the father dieth; in this caſe the warranty now deſcended, is a collateral warranty. Litt. Sect. 707.

If a Leaſe be made for life to the father, the remainder to his next heir, and the father is diſſeiſed and doth releaſe with warranty and dieth; this is a collateral warranty to the heir. And if the husband diſcontinue the right of his wife, and an Anceſtor collateral to the wife to whom ſhe is heir doth releaſe with warranty and die, and after the husband dieth; this is a collateral warranty, and a bar to her. Cook ſuper Litt. 388.

And in every caſe where a man doth demand an eſtate taile by a Writ of Formedon, if any Anceſtor of the iſſue in taile which hath or hath not poſſeſſion, maketh a warranty, and the iſſue that is demandant cannot by any poſſibility that may be done convey to him a title by force of the gift from and by him that made the warranty; this is a collateral warranty: as if Tenant in taile diſcontinue the taile and die, having iſſue, and the uncle of the iſſue doth releaſe with warranty to the diſcontinuee, and die without iſſue, ſo that the warranty doth deſcend on the iſſue in taile; this is a collateral warranty. So if ſuch a diſcontinuee make a feoffment in fee, or be diſſeiſed, and the uncle releaſe with warranty to the diſſeiſor, or feoffee, and die without iſſue, and the warranty doth deſcend on the iſſue; this is a collateral warranty. Cook 10. 96. Litt. Sect. 709. Plow. 234. Kelw. 78.

If a Tenant in taile have three ſons, and diſcontinue the taile in fee, and the middle brother doth releaſe to the diſcontinuee with warranty, and after the Tenant in taile dieth; this is a collateral warranty to the elder brother. Litt. Sect. 708.

If one have iſſue three ſons, and giveth land to the eldeſt, and the heirs of his body; and for want of ſuch iſſue to the middle, and the heirs of his body; the remainder to the third, and the heirs of his body; and the eldeſt doth diſcontinue the taile in fee with warranty, and die without iſſue; this is collateral to the middle ſon. In the ſame manner it is in caſe where the middle ſon hath the ſame land by force of the ſame remainder, becauſe his elder brother made no diſcontinuance but died without iſſue of his body, and after the middle brother doth make a diſcontinuance with warranty, &c. and dieth without iſſue; this is a collateral warranty to the youngeſt ſon. And in this caſe if any of the ſons be diſſeiſed, and the father that made the Gift, &c. releaſeth to the diſſeiſor all his right with warranty; this is a collateral warranty to that ſon upon whom the warranty doth deſcend. Litt. Sect. 716.

If Lands be given to A, and the heirs of his body, and for want of ſuch iſſue to E his ſiſter, and the heirs of her body, and A doth make a feoffment with warranty, and die without iſſue, having two ſiſters E and S; this is a collateral warranty to E. Cook 1. 52. Litt. Sect. 713.

If lands be given to a man and the heirs of his body begotten, who taketh a wife and hath iſſue a ſon by her, and the husband doth diſcontinue the taile in fee and dieth, and after the wife doth releaſe to the diſcontinuee with warranty and dieth, and the warranty doth deſcend to the ſon; this is collateral to him. If Tenant in taile diſcontinue the taile in fee, and the diſcontinuee is diſſeiſed, and the brother of the tenant in taile doth releaſe to the diſſeiſor with warranty in fee, and dieth without iſſue, and the tenant in taile hath iſſue and dieth; this is collateral as to the iſſue. If tenant in taile have iſſue two daughters, and die, and the elder enter into all to her own uſe, and thereof make a feoffment in fee with warranty, and die without iſſue, this warranty as to the other ſiſters part is collateral, but not as to her own. Litt. Sect. 741.

If the husband and wife, tenants in ſpecial taile, have iſſue a daughter, and the wife dye, and the husband by a ſecond wife have iſſue another daughter, and diſcontinueth tinueth in Fee, and dyeth, and a collateral Anceſtor of the daughters releaſe to the Diſcontinuee with warranty and dyeth, and the warranty deſcend upon both the daughters; this is a collateral warranty to them. Cook ſuper Litt. 373.

If lands be given to one, and the heires males of his body, and for want of ſuch iſſue to the heirs females of his body, and the father dy, and the brother releaſe with warranty, and dye without iſſue; this is collateral to the daughter.

If tenant in tail make a Leaſe for life, the remainder to another in Fee, and a collateral Anceſtor doth confirm the eſtate of tenant for life with warranty and dye, and after the tenant in tail die having iſſue; this is a good binding collateral warranty during the eſtate for life.

And in all theſe and ſuch like caſes of a collateral warranty, whether the right be the right of an eſtate tail, or the right of an eſtate in fee ſimple that is to be barred, it is a bar without any aſſets; for in this caſe the rule is, That a collateral warranty is a bar to him that demandeth fee ſimple, and alſo to him that demandeth fee taile, without any other deſcent of lands in fee ſimple, ſo that the heir on whom the ſame warranty is deſcended, can never have the land ſo warranted whiles the warranty doth continue in force, but is bound thereby, except it be in ſome ſpecial caſes reſtrained by Act of Parliament, as where the husband alone during his wives life, or after her death, being Tenant by the courteſie, makes a Feoffment by Fine or Deed of his wives land, which ſhe hath by deſcent or purchaſe, with warranty; this will not bar her heir without aſſets of other Lands in fee ſimple deſcended from the ſame Anceſtor that made the warranty. Litt. Sect. 712. Cook ſuper Lit. 374. Cook 10. 96. Stat. of Glouc. chap. 3. Cook ſuper Litt. 365. Stat. 11 H. 7. chap. 20.

Or where a wife after her husbands death ſhall alone or with her ſucceeding husband alien, releaſe, confirm or diſcontinue with warranty, the land ſhe holdeth in dower or in tail of the gift of her former husband, or any of his Anceſtors; this warranty is voidable, and will not bind with aſſets.

10. What ſhall be ſaid a warranty that doth begin by diſſeiſon And what ſuch a warranty doth work.

If the ſon purchaſe land &c. and after let it to his father or any other Anceſtor for years or at will, and he by his Deed doth infeoff a ſtranger, and that with warranty, and after dyeth, whereby the warranty doth deſcend upon the heir; this warranty doth commence by diſſeiſin. Litt. Sect. 699. 700. 701. 702. Finch. 82. Cook ſuper Litt. 367.

So if tenant by Elegit, Statute Merchant, Guardian in Chivalry, or Soccage, or becauſe of Nurture, make a Feoffment with warranty, and this warranty doth deſcend on his heir; this warranty doth commence by diſſeiſin.

So if one that hath no right at all enter into my land, and make a Feoffment to another with warranty.

So if one Coparcenor enter into the whole land, and make a Feoffment in fee with warranty; this warranty as to the one moyety doth begin by diſſeiſin.

So if father and ſon purchaſe lands to them jointly &c. and the father alien the whole to another with warranty &c. and after the father dieth; this warranty as to the one moity doth begin by diſſeiſin.

But if the purchaſe be to them two and the heirs of the ſon, it is otherwiſe; for if the ſon enter in the life time of the father, the warranty is avoided for all: but if he do not enter, then as to the fathers moity it is a collateral warranty. And if the purchaſe be to the father and ſon and the heirs of the father, and the father alien with warranty &c. in this caſe the warranty is good for the whole.

If the father be tenant for life, the remainder to his ſon and heir in fee, and the father by covin and conſent, of purpoſe to bar the heir by a collateral warranty, maketh a leaſe for years, to the end that the Leſſee ſhould make a Feoffment in fee that the father may releaſe to the Feoffee with warranty, and all this is done accordingly, and the father dyeth, and the warranty doth deſcend to the ſon; in this caſe the warranty ſhall be ſaid to begin by diſſeiſon. But if the father in this caſe make a Feoffment in fee with warranty and dye; this is a good warranty to bind the ſon, albeit it be done of purpoſe to bar him. Cook 5. 80. ſuper Litt. 366. 367.

So

So if one brother make a gift in taile to another, and the Uncle doth diſſeiſe the Donee, and enfeoff another with warranty, the Uncle dieth, and the warranty deſcendeth on the Donor, and then the Donee dieth without iſſue; this warranty doth begin by diſſeiſin.

So if the father and ſon, and a third perſon be Joint-tenants in fee, and the father maketh a Feoffment in Fee of the whole with warranty, and dyeth, and then the ſon dyeth; in this caſe as to the part of the third perſon, and to the part of the ſon, the warranty ſhall be ſaid to begin by diſſeiſin.

But releaſes at this day by a tenant for life to a diſſeiſor or any other without covin, albeit it be to the intent to bar him in reverſion, ſhall bar him; for intent without covin and diſſeiſin ſhall not avoid a warranty.

And examples of Warranties that do begin by diſſeiſin, have theſe qualities.

1. That for the moſt part the diſſeiſin is done immediately to the heire that is bound by the warranty.

2. The warranty and diſſeiſin are ſimul and ſemel. And yet if a man diſſeiſe another, with intent to make a Feoffment with warranty, albeit the Feoffment be made twenty years after the diſſeiſin, yet it ſhall be ſaid to be a warranty, that doth begin by diſſeiſin.

But in all theſe caſes of warranties that do begin by diſſeiſin, this is the rule, That they are altogether void and without force as to all others but to the parties themſelves that do make them, and therefore they do not bar or bind any others at all of their right that have any.

And the ſame Law is of a warranty that doth begin by abatement or intruſion; that is, when an abatement or intruſion is made of purpoſe to make a Feoffment in fee with warranty.

And ſo alſo it is where the tenant dyeth without heire, and an Anceſtor of the Lord doth enter before the entry of the Lord, and make a Feoffment in fee with warranty; in this caſe this ſhall not binde the Lord, becauſe it doth begin by wrong.

11. How a warranty ſhall be taken.

All warranties in general are favourably taken in Law, becauſe they are part of mens aſſurances. Every warranty in Law is taken for, and hath the effect of a lineal warranty.

The warranty that is made by Dedi & Conceſſi, or Dedi only in a feoffment, is and ſhall be taken for a general warranty againſt all perſons to the Feoffee and his heirs, during the life of the Feoffor only, albeit there be no ſervice reſerved by the Deed nor heir named: but it ſhall not extend to the Aſſignee of the Feoffee. And if there be any ſervice reſerved on the Deed, then it ſhall extend againſt the heir alſo. Cook 4.81. 5.17.

The warranty in Law that is made upon the gift in tail, or leaſe for life, rendring rent, is a ſpecial warranty againſt the Donor and Leſſor, and his heires and aſſignes, ſo that the Donee or Leſſee may vouch the grantor after the grant of the reverſion, or the grantee of the reverſion after the atturnment of the Tenant at his election. Cook 4.81. ſuper Litt. 384.

The warranty in Law that is made upon an Exchange, is ſpecial in divers reſpects, for it extendeth reciprocally to, and againſt the heires of both parties, and it doth extend only to the ſame land that is given in exchange, and none other, and no uſe can be made of it but by Voucher, for no Warrantia Cartæ doth lye upon it. So alſo the warranty that is made in dower is taken to extend only to the other two parts of the land. Cook 4.121. ſuper Litt. 384.

The warranty in law that is made upon the tenure of Homage Anceſtrel, extendeth reciprocally to the heires, and againſt the heires of both parties. Cook ſuper Litt. 384.

If a Feoffment be made of land to three jointly, and the Feoffors do warrant the land to the Feoffees, and every of them; this warrantie ſhall be joint and not ſeveral. But if the eſtate be ſeveral, as if one grant white acre to A, and black acre to B, and grant to warrant the land to them, and either of them; in this caſe the warranty ſhall be ſeveral. Cook 5.59.

If a

If a man of full age, and an Infant join in a Feoffment with warranty; this ſhall be taken for a good warranty as to the whole for him that is of full age and void for the Infant, and not void in part, and good in part. Cook ſuper Litt. 367.

If a man make a Feoffment in fee, and bind his heirs, but not himſelf to warranty; in this caſe and by this his heires ſhall not be bound, and it ſeemes alſo that it will not bind the warrantor himſelf. But if a man bind himſelf to warrant, and not his heires by the Feoffment; in this caſe the Feoffor himſelf is bound to the warranty, but not his heires, for it is a maxime of Law, That the heir ſhall never be bound to any expreſſe warranty, but where the Anceſtor was bound by the ſame warranty. Cook ſuper Litt. 47. 385. Dyer 42. Kelw. 108. Cook 6. 69.

If one make a Feoffment to B and his heires, and thereby doth grant to warrant the land, and doth not ſay to B and his heirs; yet this warranty ſhall be taken to extend to them. But if the Feoffor doth grant to warrant the land to B, and doth not ſay to his heires, this ſhall not extend to his heires. And if in this caſe the warranty be to B and his Aſſignes, it ſhall not extend to his heires, neither ſhall the Aſſignees take the advantage of it after the death of B. And if the warranty be to B and his heires, and not to his Aſſignes alſo; this ſhall not extend to his aſſignes. If one make a Feoffment to A, habendum to him and his heires, and bind himſelf and his heires to warrant the Land in forma prædicta; in this caſe the warranty ſhall extend to the Feoffee and his heirs.

If one grant to warrant land to another and his heires, and doth not ſay againſt what perſons, this ſhall be taken for a general warranty againſt all men. Cook 1. 1.

If one make an eſtate, and grant to warrant the land, but doth not ſay how long; this ſhall be taken for as long as the eſtate to which the warrantie is knit doth laſt.

If a warranty be made againſt any ſpecial perſons, it ſhall extend to them, and no further, and it ſhall extend in all caſes for, and to all titles, and entries upon title; and it ſhall not, in any ſuch caſes extend to tortious and unlawful entries Dyer 328.

If a man be ſeiſed of rent-ſeck, iſſuing out of the Manor of Dale, and he take a wife, and the husband doth releaſe to the terre-tenant, and warranteth tenementa prædicta, and dieth; this warranty ſhall extend to the rent as well as to the land; and therefore if the wife ſue for her thirds of the rent, the terre-tenant may vouch the heire. Cook ſuper Litt. 366.

And regularly the warranty doth extend to all things iſſuing out of the land, viz. to warrant it in the ſame manner and plight as it was in the hands of the Feoffor, and he ſhall vouch as of lands diſcharged. And therefore if grantee of a rent grant it to the tenant of the land on condition, and the tenant doth make a Feoffment of the land with warranty; in this caſe the warranty ſhall not extend to the rent, albeit the Feoffment be made of the Land diſcharged of the rent. Cook ſuper Litt. 388, 389.

And if a woman have a rent-charge in fee, and ſhe doth intermarry with the tenant of the Land, and a ſtranger doth releaſe to the tenant of the land with warranty; this warranty ſhall not extend to bar any action to be brought after the death of the wife for the rent. But if in this caſe the tenant make a Feoffment in fee with warranty and dieth, the Feoffee in a cui in vita brought by the wife ſhal vouch as of lands diſcharged at the time of the warranty made.

So if tenant in tail of a rent-charge purchaſe the land and make a Feoffment with warranty, and the iſſue bring a Formedon of the rent, the tenant ſhall not vouch. &c.

All thoſe that are parties to the warranty, i. ſuch as are named in the Deed regularly, ſhall take advantage of the warranty; as if one doth warrant land to another, his heirs and Aſſigns; in this caſe both the heirs and the aſſigns ſhall take advantage of it, and they both may vouch or rebut, or have a warrantia cartæ, ſo as they come in privity of eſtate, for otherwiſe the heirs or Aſſigns cannot vouch, or have a Warrantia cartæ, and yet he may rebut notwithſtanding in divers caſes. Cook ſuper Lit. 365. 5. 17.

11. Who may take advantage of a warranty And how. And againſt whom it may be taken. Aſſignes.

But

But thoſe that are not named for the moſt part ſhall not take advantage of the warranty, and therefore if land be warranted to I S, and not to him and his heirs, or to him and his Aſſigns, or to him his heires and aſſigns; in this caſe neither the heir nor the aſſignee may vouch or have a Warrantia Cartæ; and yet in ſome caſes where it is ſo, the aſſignee or tenant of the land may rebut.

The warranty annexed to an Exchange, a Partition, by Dedi. and by homage Anceſtrel, doth alwayes go in Privity, and therefore an aſſignee in theſe caſes can take no advantage of it. And yet in caſes of Exchange and Dedi, an Aſſignee may rebut. But the aſſignee of a leſſee for life may take advantage of the warranty in Law annexed to his eſtate. Cook ſuper Litt. 384.

If one grant to warrant Land to another, his heires and Aſſignes; in this caſe the heirs or Aſſigns, heir of the Aſſignee, or Aſſignee of the heirs of the Feoffee, or Aſſignee of Aſſignees in infinitum, ſhall take advantage of the warranty. Cook 5. 17. ſuper Litt. 384. 385.

And therefore if one enfeoff I S to have and to hold to him, his heires and aſſigns, and warrant the land to him his heires and aſſignes, and A doth enfeoff B and his heires, and B dyeth; in this caſe the heire of B ſhall vouch as Aſſignee to A. And if one enfeoff A and B, Habendum, to them and their heires, and warrant the land to them, their heirs and aſſignes, and A dye, and B doth ſurvive and dye, and his heire enfeoffe C; in this caſe C ſhall take advantage of this warranty as Aſſignee. If one enfeoff A with warranty to him, his heirs and aſſigns, and A doth enfeoff B, and B doth re-enfeoff A; in this caſe neither A or his Aſſigns ſhall ever take any advantage of this warranty. And yet if B enfeoff the heir of A, he may take advantage of the warranty.

If one make a Feoffment by deed with warranty to the Feoffee, his heirs and aſſigns and the Feoffee doth make a Feoffment over to another by word without deed: in this caſe the ſecond Feoffee ſhall have all the advantage of this warranty, for an aſſignee by word ſhall have the ſame advantage that an Aſſignee by Deed ſhall have.

If a Feoffment be made with warranty to a man and his heires and aſſignes, and he make a gift in tail, the remainder in fee, and the Donee make a Feoffment in fee; this Feoffee ſhall not vouch as aſſignee, but he muſt vouch his Donor upon the warranty in Law; and yet he may rebut.

If lands be given to two brethren in fee ſimple, with warranty to the eldeſt and his heires, and the eldeſt dye without iſſue; in this caſe albeit the other brother be his heire, yet he ſhall have no advantage at all by the warranty, becauſe he comes in above the warranty. But generally all that claime under the warranty ſhall take advantage thereof by way of rebutter, albeit they can take no other advantage by it.

If one make a Feoffment to two, their heires and aſſigns, and one of them doth make a Feoffment in Fee, this Feoffee in this caſe ſhall not take advantage as aſſignee.

An aſſignee of part of the land ſhall take advantage of a warranty, as if a man make a Feoffment of two acres with warranty to him, his heirs and aſſignes, and the Feoffee doth make a Feoffment of one acre of it to another: in this caſe the ſecond Feoffee ſhall take advantage of the warranty as aſſignee. And therefore herein there is a difference between the whole eſtate in part, and part of the eſtate in the whole or in any part, for if a man have a warranty to him, his heirs and aſſigns, and he make a leaſe for life, or gift in tail; in theſe caſes the leſſee or donee ſhall not take advantage of the warranty as aſſigns: but they may vouch the leſſor or donor upon the warranty in Law. Cook ſuper Litt, 385

But if a leaſe for life be made, the remainder in fee; ſuch a leſſee may vouch as aſſignee upon the firſt warranty. Cook ſuper Litt. 384.

If the father have a Feoffment made to him and his heires with warranty, and he make a Feoffment to his ſon and heir with warranty; in this caſe the ſon may take advantage of the firſt warranty after the fathers death. Cook ſuper Litt, 384.

If a man enfeoff a woman with warranty, and they intermarry and are impleaded, and upon the default of the husband, the wife is received; in this caſe ſhe may vouch her husband. Et ſic è converſo. Cook ſuper Lit. 390.

If

If a woman enfeoff a man with warranty, and they intermarry and are impleaded; the husband in this caſe ſhall vouch himſelf and the wife. Cook ſuper Litt. 390.

He that comes into the land meerly by act of Law in the poſt, as the Lord by Eſcheat or the like, ſhall never take advantage of a warranty; and therefore if tenant in dower enfeoff a villaine with warranty, and the Lord of the villain enter: or a Feoffment be to a Baſtard with warranty, and he dye without iſſue, and the Lord enter by Eſcheat; in theſe caſes the Lord ſhall never take advantage of theſe warranties. 26 H. 8 3. 22 Aſſ. pl. 37. 29 Aſſ. 34. Cook 3 62 63.

But otherwiſe it is where a man comes to land by limitation of uſe or a common recovery, which is by the act of the party, for if tenant in taile being in of another Eſtate, i. by diſſeiſin, or Feoffment of a diſſeiſor ſuffer a common recovery, and a collateral Anceſtor of the Tenant in tail doth releaſe with warranty to the recoveror, and after the recoveror doth make a Feoffment to uſes, which are executed by the Statute of 27 H. 8. and after the collateral Anceſtor dieth; in this caſe the terre-tenants may take advantage of the warranty by way of rebutter, albeit the eſtate be transferred in the poſt.

So if he to whom the warranty is made, ſuffer a common recovery, and after the Anceſtor dieth; the recoveror may take advantage of this warranty by way of rebutter, for any man that hath the poſſeſſion of land, albeit he have no deed to ſhew how he came by the poſſeſſion of it, or how he is Aſſignee, may rebut the Demandant, and ſo bar him and defend his own poſſeſſion: And therefore the tenant by the courteſie, donee in tail that is in of anothers eſtate, an Aſſignee by force of a warranty made to a man and his heires, Feoffee of a Donee in tail may rebut and bar the Demandant by the warranty.

If one enfeoff another of an acre of ground with warranty, and hath iſſue two ſons, and dyeth ſeized of another acre of land of the nature of Burrough Engliſh; in this caſe albeit the warranty deſcend upon the eldeſt ſon only, yet both the ſons may be vouched. And ſo alſo it is of heires in Gavelkind; the eldeſt ſhall be vouched as heir to the warranty, and the reſt in reſpect of inheritance. Cook ſuper Litt. 376. 1 Ed. 3. 13. 5 H. 7. 2.

And in like ſort the heir at the common Law, and the heir of the part of the mother ſhall be vouched, or the heire at the Common Law may be vouched alone at the election of a Tenant. And in like ſort the heire at the Common Law ſhall be vouched with the heire in Burrough Engliſh. And ſo alſo a baſtard ſhall be vouched with a mulier. And if a man die ſeiſed of certain lands in fee, having iſſue a ſon and a daughter by one venter, and a ſon by another, and the eldeſt ſon entreth, and dieth, & the land doth deſcend to the ſiſter, in this caſe the warranty doth deſcend on the ſon, and he may be vouched as heir, and the ſiſter alſo may be vouched as heir to the land.

If two make a Feoffment with warranty, and the one dye; the ſurvivor ſhall not be charged alone with the warranty, but the heire of him that is dead ſhall be charged alſo. And if two be bound to warrant land, and both of them dye; the heirs of both of them ought to be vouched, and ſhall be equally charged. And if the heir be vouched in the ward of three ſeveral perſons, the one of them only ſhall not be charged, but they ſhall be charged equally. Cook 3 14 ſuper Litt. 386. 16 H. 7 13. 48 Ed. 3 5.

If a woman an heir of the diſſeiſor enfeoff me with warranty, and after ſhe is married to the diſſeiſee; in this caſe I may take advantage of this warranty againſt the diſſeiſee and rebut him upon it if he ſue me for the land. So if the husband and wife ſue me for the land of his wife, and I have a warranty of a collateral Anceſtor of the husbands deſcended to him; in this caſe I may make uſe of this to bar the husband and wife. Cook ſuper Litt. 365.

A warranty lineal or collateral may be defeated, determined or avoided in all or in part. And this is ſomtimes by matter in law, & ſomtimes by matter in deed. Con L. 392

13. When a warranty ſhall be ſaid to be defeated, determined or avoided. And how. Or nor.

If the eſtate to which the warranty is annexed be gone, the warranty annexed thereunto is gone alſo. And therefore if an eſtate tail to which a warranty is annexed be ſpent, the warranty is determined. And if a man make a gift in tail with warranty, and after the Donee doth make a Feoffment and dye without iſſue, the warranty is gone. Cook 10 96 1, 2, 3. 62. Lit. Sect. 641. Cook ſuper Lit. 392.

So if tenant in tail diſcontinue the taile,and the diſcontinuee be diſſeiſed, or make a Feoffment on condition,and a collateral Anceſtor of the iſſue releaſe to the diſſeiſor, or feoffee on condition,with warranty, and after the diſcontinuee doth enter upon the diſſeiſor, or on the Feoffee for the condition broken; in theſe caſes the warranty made by the collateral Anceſtor is gone. So if a Seigniory be granted with warranty, and the tenancy eſcheat ſo that the Seigniority is extinct; hereby alſo the warranty is defeated. So if a collateral anceſtor heretofore had releaſed with warranty, and then had entered into Religion, this warranty had bound; but if after he had been de-arraigned the warranty had been defeated. Brownl. 2 part 169.

If the father make a Feoffment to his ſon and heir apparant,with warranty and die, ſo that the warranty doth deſcend upon the ſon; hereby the warranty is gone.And yet if a feoffment be made to a man and his heirs,and he dyeth,leaving iſſue daughters: in this caſe the warranty ſhall be divided and is not determined. Cook ſuper Lit. 384. Broo. Warranty 27.

If tenant in tail doth make a Feoffment to his Uncle,and after the Uncle doth make a feoffment in fee with warranty &c. to another, and after the feoffee of the Uncle doth re-infeoff again the Uncle, and after the Uncle doth infeoff a ſtranger in fee without warranty, and dyeth without iſſue, and the Tenant in tail dyeth; hereby the warranty made to the firſt Feoffee is defeated. So if the Uncle make the warranty to the Feoffee, his heirs and aſſigns,and take back an eſtate in fee,and after doth enfeoff another. But if one make a feoffment with warranty to the Feoffee his heires and aſſigns, and the Feoffee doth re-infeoff the Feoffor and his wife,or the Feoffor and a ſtranger; in theſe caſes the warranty is not defeated,but doth continue ſtill. So if two do make a feoffment with warranty to one,his heirs and aſſigns, and the Feoffee doth re-infeoff one of the Feoffors; in this caſe the warranty is not gone. And if in the firſt caſe the Feoffee make an eſtate to his Uncle in tail or for life,ſaving the reverſion,or a Leaſe for life the remainder over &c.in this caſe the warranty is only ſuſpended. *Lit. Sect.*743 *Cook ſuper Lit.*390. *Lit.Sect.*744. If one make a Feoffment or releaſe with warranty,and after is attainted of Treaſon or Felony; hereby the warranty is gone; and albeit he do afterwards obtain his pardon,yet the warranty is not revived.*Coo.ſuper Lit.*391. If a feoffment with warranty be made to two or more,and they being Joyntenants do after by deed make partition; by this the warranty is determined. Cook 6.12. So if two Jointenants be,and one of them diſſeiſe the other,and he that is diſſeiſed doth recover in an aſſiſe and hath judgment to hold in ſeveralty; hereby the warranty is determined. *Adjudg.Hill.*22 Jac. B R Euſtace and Sholes Caſe. So if A and B be Jointenants of white acre for life, and A by fine doth grant to B totum & quicquid habet in tenementis,hereby the warranty is gone. But if a partition be made by Judgment upon a Writ by force of the Statute of 13 H. 8. this doth not defeat the warranty fallen to them, but it ſhall be divided between them, and they ſhall all of them take advantage of it.

If one enfeoff three,with warranty to them and their heires,and one of them releaſe to one of the other two; hereby the warranty is gone for that part. But if one of them releaſe to the other two; in this caſe the warranty is not gone,but doth continue,and they may vouch upon it. Cook ſuper Litt. 385.

If one enfeoff two men and their heirs,and one of them doth make a feoffment in fee; hereby the warranty is not determined, but the other may take advantage of it notwithſtanding. *Cook ſuper Lit.*385. If the party that hath the warranty, or the eſtate to which the warranty is annexed, releaſe to him that is bound to warrant all warranties, or all covenants real, or all demands; by either of theſe releaſes the warranty is gone. So alſo if by a Defeaſance made between the parties it be agreed the warranty ſhall be void,by this defeaſance the warranty may be avoided alſo. Or if it be ſo agreed that the Warrantee or his heirs &c.ſhal not vouch,or have a Warrantia cartæ by this the warranty is avoided in part. *Cook ſuper Litt.*393.392. *Lit.Sect.*748.

Releaſe.

Defeaſance.

If tenant in tail doth enfeoff his Uncle,which doth enfeoff another in fee with warranty,if in this caſe the feoffee releaſe the warranty to his Uncle; hereby the warranty is extinct.But if a gift in taile be made with warranty,in this caſe a releaſe made by the Tenant in tail of this warranty will not extinguiſh it. *Cook ſuper Lit.*391.

If

If the parties between whom the warranty is, intermary, hereby the warranty is ſuſpended during the Coverture in ſome caſes. Cook ſuper Litt. 390.

If tenant in tail doth make a Feoffment in fee with warranty, and diſſeiſeth the Diſcontinuee, and dieth ſeiſed, this doth ſuſpend the warranty. Cook ſuper Litt. 330.

If two make a Feoffment in fee, and warrant the land to the Feoffee, and his heires, and the Feoffee doth releaſe the warranty to one of the Feoffors; this doth not determine the warranty of the other as to the moyety. So if one doth enfeoff two with warranty, and the one of them doth releaſe the warranty; this doth not extinguiſh the warranty for the other moity, but it doth continue ſtill.

A warranty alſo may loſe his force by taking benefit or making uſe thereof; for after a man hath once taken advantage thereof, in ſome caſes he can make no further uſe of it: of which read Cook ſuper Litt. 393.

Of Waſte.

Waſte, what.

THis word, (Waſte) is ſometimes taken for a wrong done by a Tenant to him in Reverſion, where a Tenant for his own or anothers life, in Dower, for years, or by the courteſie of England, or a Guardian in Chivalry, when he to the prejudice of him in reverſion, or the heir, doth make waſte or ſpoile in the Houſes, Woods, Gardens, Orchards or Lands he doth hold. And ſo it is either voluntary, when the Tenant doth willingly do it: or it is permiſſive and negligent, when the Tenant doth ſuffer it to be done. Termes Ley. Cook upon Litt. 1. part 53. 57.

How many kinds there are.

Writ of Waſte what it is.

This word is ſometimes alſo taken for the Action or Writ that is given to relieve a man againſt ſuch a wrong done, which is defined to be a Writ lying where any Tenant for life, years, in dower, by the courteſie, or Guardian in Chivalry, doth make waſte; then he in Reverſion ſhall have this Writ.

How many kinds of it there are. Sect. 1.

And this is either in the Tenet, when it is brought againſt him that hath the preſent eſtate, or in the Tenuit, when it is brought againſt him that had, but now hath not the eſtate in the land: and by this Writ in the Tenet, the waſte being found, he ſhall recover treble damages, and locum vaſtatum, the place waſted, (i) The Leſſee for life or years that is convicted of this offence, ſhall loſe, and the Plaintiff in this ſuit, if he recover, ſhall recover treble damages, and the place waſted: that is, if it be in a whole houſe, the houſe, the whole houſe; if it be in one or two roomes ſparſim, thoſe roomes; if it be in a Cloſe, as much of the Cloſe as is waſted; if it be in Trees or Hedg-rowes, the circuit of the root and no more; and if it be in the corner of a Wood here and there, that corner of the Wood only; but if it be in divers places of the Woods ſparſim & circumquaque, here and there, perhaps the whole wood; and this he ſhall recover, diſcharged of all incumbrances. So that if Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for years, and after enter into the Land and make waſte, and the Leſſor recover the Land, in this Action he ſhall avoid the Leaſe made before the waſte done. And if Leſſee for life do waſte, and after grant a rent out of the Land, and after in this Writ the Land is recovered, the Leſſor ſhall hold it diſcharged. But if the waſte be before the grant of the Rent, contra. Cook upon Litt. 233. But if it be in Tenuit nothing can be recovered but damages. And if the waſte be done by a Guardian in the Wards land, to the value of twenty ſhillings, the Ward may ſue this Writ, and ſhall hereby gain his liberty; and the Guardian ſhall loſe the wardſhip of body and land: And if this be not ſufficient, the Ward alſo ſhall recover damages beſides. Marlb. chap. 23. Weſtm. 2. 14. *Stat. Where this Action lieth or not. 1. In reſpect of the perſon wronged; and who may have this Action or not. And for what Waſte. Sect. 2.

This Action lyeth and may be had by him that is in Reverſion or next in Remainder, in fee ſimple or fee tail, after the particular eſtate for life &c. ended; or by his Heire, or by the Grantee of the Reverſion or Remainder, or by the Grantee of ſuch Heire or Grantee: and ſo by any Grantee of the Reverſion in infinitum. Cook 1 part 53. F.N.B. 57.

But a Tenant for life, or he that hath a leſſe eſtate then of fee ſimple, or fee-tail, may not have this Action. Noy 26. Cook upon Litt. 273. But it will not lye for an heir or grantee, for a waſte done by the Tenant in the time of the Anceſtor or Grantor: Nor can the Grantor, after this grant, bring an Action of Waſte for Waſte before or after the grant. Nor will it lye for the Grantee of a Reverſion for a waſte done by the Tenant before or after the Grant until Attornment; nor after Attornment will it lye for any waſte done before Attornment; though it were not puniſhed before by the Grantor. Dyer 31. Cook 6. 68. Perk. 93. 48 Ed. 3. 15. 9 H. 7. 20. And yet it is ſaid, if an Action of waſte be depending, and the anceſtor dye, that the heir may finiſh this Action. Stat. 11 H. 6. 5.

And if two Copartners be of a Reverſion, and a waſte is committed, and one of them dye; in this caſe the Survivor and the Aunt may maintain the Action. Cook 1 part 53. A body politick, and the Succeſſor or Grantee of ſuch a body that hath a Reverſion, may have this action. But yet ſuch perſons cannot have this Action for any waſte done in the time of their Predeceſſors. F.N.B. 54.

If a Leaſe be made for life, the remainder in tail to another, the remainder in fee to Leſſee for life, and the Tenant for life do waſte; he in the next remainder ſhall have the action againſt him, F.N.B. 90. Cook 1 45.

And if there be tenant for life, the remainder to another for years, the remainder to a third in fee, or in tail to a third, or a third have the reverſion, and the Tenant for life doth waſte; in this caſe the action may be brought againſt him preſently; but execution for the land may not be had till the Leaſe for yeares be ended. But if the mean leaſe be a leaſe for life, no Action will lye till the death or ſurrender of the Leſſee. Remoto impedimento emergit Actio, Cook 5. 76. 2. 92. Fitz N. B. 59.

And if one make a Leaſe for life, and after grant the Reverſion for years, no Action will lye during the yeares. But, if after a Leaſe for life the Leſſor ſhall make a Leaſe for yeares to begin after the eſtate for life ended: this is no impediment. Fitz. Waſte 18.

on

Alſo the Lord that hath a Reverſion by Eſcheat, and one that had had a Reverſion granted from the King, and he that hath a Reverſion by deviſe; though the Tenant have not atturned, may have this Action for waſte done by Tenant, F.N.B. 60. And yet it ſeems in Kelw. 109. That this Action is not maintainable without a privity which is not in the caſe of the Lord in by Eſcheat.

If Tenant in tail make a leaſe for life of the Land, and the leſſee for life do waſte; the Tenant in tail ſhall have the Action. Brownl. 1. part 238.

If two Jointenants, Partners or Tenants in common be, and one of them before partition made, make a Leaſe to a ſtranger, and he do commit waſte, they muſt both of them bring the Action; but he only that made the leaſe ſhall recover the damages. M. 8. Jac. Curia. Cook 1. part 53. F.N.B. 60. Joynder in Action.

And if A and B be Jointenants for life, the fee ſimple to B, and they two make a Leaſe for life, and the Leſſee do waſte; in this caſe they two muſt joyn in this Action. 13 *H.*7, 15. F.N.B. 59. For one Tenant in common of a Reverſion cannot have an Action of waſte alone without his companion. M. 36. 37 Eliz. Cook B. Hill and Harts Caſe. Jointenants. Tenants in common.

And if Tenant for life and he in Reverſion or remainder in Fee joyn in a Leaſe for life or years, and this Leſſee do waſte, they muſt both joyn in this Action, and the firſt Leſſee for life ſhall recover the place waſted, and the firſt Leſſor the treble damages. 27 *H.*8. 13. 22 *H.*6. 24. Cook 1 part 42.

If the Lands be granted to two, and the heires of one of them, and the Tenant for life do waſte; in this caſe the other Jointenant cannot have this Action, but his heirs may. F.N.B. 87. Cook 1 part 53. 200.

If a woman covert have any cauſe to bring this Action, ſhe and her husband muſt joyn in it: and if they two make a Leaſe of their, or of the wives land, and the husband dye, and ſhe take another husband, and the Leſſee do waſte, the husband and wife muſt bring the Action. Husband and Wife.

So if three Copartners divide the land, and one of them hath a Reverſion to her part, and then ſhe marry a husband, and after the Tenant do waſte; in this caſe the husband and wife muſt joyne in the Action. 9 H. 6. 43. F.N.B. 57.

If there be husband and wife in remainder in ſpecial taile, and the wife dyeth without iſſue; in this caſe the Husband cannot now have this Writ againſt the Tenant; and if the Suit were begun, it will now abate by her death. Cook upon Litt. 285. Abatement.

This Action lyeth againſt a Tenant for life, either his own or anothers life occupant, a general or ſpecial tenant in Dower, or by the Courteſie, a Tenant for years, though but for one year or half a year. Glouc. chap. 5. F.N.B. 60. Cook 109. 6. 37 6. 73. But not againſt a Tenant in fee ſimple, fee tail, in taile after poſſibility of iſſue extinct or againſt him that hath an eſtate of Frank-tenement only diſtendible; as if tenant in tayle make a Feoffment or bargain, and ſell his land to another and his heirs Cook 10. 98. Nor againſt a Tenant by Elegit, Statute-Merchant, or Staple, Tenant in Mortgage, or Tenant at will. Cook 50. 89. 1. 57. 6. 41. N.B. 41. F.N.B. 59. Nor will it lye againſt Leſſee for years or life after ſurrender of his eſtate to the Reverſioner, and his acceptance thereof, Old N.B. 36. M. 4. Jac. B.R. in Morlayes Caſe. In reſpect of the perſons that do the wrong and againſt whom it lyeth, or not. And for what waſte. Sect. 3.

It lyeth againſt Leſſees for life and yeeres, for waſte done by themſelves or ſtrangers, and that whether they come by their eſtate by leaſe or deviſe. Plow. 10. Cook 1 part 53.

If Leſſee for life make a Leaſe for yeers, and the Leſſee for yeers do waſte; he in reverſion muſt have his remedy againſt the Leſſee for life, and he ſhall have his counter remedy againſt the Leſſee for yeers by Action of the Caſe. Paſch. 38. Eliz. B. R.

If Leſſee for yeeres grant away part of his term, the Action muſt be brought againſt the firſt Leſſee, and not againſt this Leſſee of part of the term.

If

If Tenant in Dower, or by the Courteſie, aſſign or grant over his or her eſtate, and afterwards the Grantee do or ſuffer waſte, the Tenant, not the aſſignee, muſt be ſued. F.N B. 56.

If a Leſſee for life or yeares grant over his eſtate in the Land, but doth ſtill take the profits of it, or grant it over to that end, that he in reverſion may not know againſt whom to bring his Action; in this caſe he may bring his Action againſt the Leſſee or his Aſſignee at his choice. Stat. 11. H. 6. 5. Cook 5. 77.

It lyeth againſt a Leſſee for life or years, after he hath aſſigned his terme for the waſte done by him before the Aſſignment. But for the waſte done after the Aſſignment, the Action muſt be brought againſt the Aſſignee; and ſo each of them are to be charged for his own time. And yet if the Leſſee begin a waſte, and then grant over his eſtate, and the Grantee continue the waſting; in this caſe the Action may be laid againſt the Aſſignee. F N B 56 Old N B 37.

If Tenant pur auter vie do waſte, and the life dye; yet the Tenant may be puniſhed in this Action, Cook 1 part 285. Cook 7 2. 5 12.

If the Tenant grant his eſtate over on condition, and the grantee do waſte, and the Tenant enter for the condition broken; the Action muſt be brought againſt the Grantee, Cook 1 part 54.

Executors. It will not lye againſt Executors or Adminiſtrators for a waſte done by the Teſtator, for moritur cum perſona, Kelw 105 F N B 57.

And yet it will lye againſt the Executors of a Leſſee for years, for waſte continued by them: as if a Leſſee for yeers begin a new waſte by digging a Mine or the like, and deviſe the term to another; and the Executors enter and continue the waſte, go to dig in the Mine or the like, and after aſſent to the Legacy; this Action will lye againſt the Executors for the continued waſte, Cook 5 12. 10 Ed 4 1. Brownl 1 part 238. 2 part 133.

Infant. This Action lyeth againſt an Infant, not only for a waſte done by himſelf, but alſo for a waſte done by a ſtranger. Cook 1 53.

Husband and Wife. This Action lyeth againſt Husband and Wife. If a Leaſe be made to the wife alone for life or yeers, and ſhe or her husband do make waſte, this Action muſt be againſt them both whiles they are living, and it will not lye againſt one of them, F N B 57. But if it be a Leaſe for life, and ſhe dye, the Action is gone, and will not lye againſt the husband, albeit he did joyn in the waſte: and yet if the husband be poſſeſſed of a term in the right of his wife, and he do waſte, and then the wife dye; in this caſe he may be ſued for this waſte, Cook 1 part 54. Cook 5 75, 2 H. 43. And if ſhe be Leſſee, and take a husband that doth waſte and dye, ſhe may be charged for this. F N B 58 59. N B 36.

If lands be given to husband and wife, and the heires of the body of the husband, or the heires of the body of the wife, and he dye, and ſhe do waſte; or ſhe dye and he do waſte; in this caſe the heire may have this Action againſt the husband or wife, as the caſe is F N B 57.

It is ſaid, That if a Husband and wife have a joyint eſtate, and the husband do waſte and dye, and the wife agree to the eſtate, that the Action will lye againſt the ſurviving wife, for this waſte of the husband. Sed quære Cook 1 53. N B 36 58 59. Broo. Waſte 11.

Tenant in dower by the Courteſie. Sect. 4. If a Tenant in Dower, or by the Courteſie, grant over her or his eſtate, and afterwards waſte is done; for this waſte the Action muſt be brought by the heire againſt the Tenant, not the Aſſignee; and yet if ſuch a Tenant by the Courteſie grant over his Eſtate to a ſtranger, after he hath attorned to the Grantee of a Reverſion upon a Grant thereof made before, and the Aſſignee doth waſte, in this caſe the Action muſt be brought againſt the Aſſignee, and not againſt the Tenant by the Courteſie. So if the wife Tenant in Dower grant her eſtate to a ſtranger, and after the heir grant the Reverſion in Fee to another, and the Tenant atturn, and after the Aſſignee doth waſte; in this caſe the Action muſt be brought againſt the Aſſignee or the Tenant in Dower: not the Tenant her ſelfe; for in both caſes after the heire hath granted away his Reverſion, the Tenants after Aſſignment of their eſtates ſhall not be charge, Cook 1 part 54 310.

If

If there be two Jointenants, or Tenants in common, in Fee or for life, of a Wood or Common of Turbary, or fiſhing, or the like; and one of them doth waſte againſt the will of his companion, he may ſue the other, and he may be ſued for this: otherwiſe it is of Partners. Cook 1 part 200. Tenants in Common. Joyntenants, &c.

If Tenant for life be diſſeiſed of his eſtate, and the Diſſeiſor commit waſte; the Leſſee for life, not the Diſſeiſor ſhall be charged in this Action for this wrong. Broo. Waſte 36. N B 37. Diſſeizor.

If a ſtranger againſt the will of the Leſſee, Tenant in Dower, &c. do waſte; this Action may not be brought againſt the ſtranger, but the leſſee or tenant for this waſte: and he ſhall by an Action of Treſpaſſe recover as much as he loſeth againſt the ſtranger. D & St 34 Cook 1 part 54. Stranger.

It lyeth againſt the Guardian in Chivalry, for waſte done by himſelf; but not for waſte done by a ſtranger. Cook 67. 1 part 54. And ſo alſo his Grantee of the Wardſhip; but againſt each of them for the waſte in his owne time only. And yet it is ſaid, it will lie againſt the Aſſignee of this Gardian, for the waſte done by the Gardian. Cook 5 12. Fitz Waſte 10. If two Jointenants be of a Ward, and one of them do waſte, both of them muſt be ſued for it. Cook 1 part 54. Gardian in Chivalry.

It is ſaid it wil lye againſt a Guardian in Soccage for waſte done by himſelf; though not for waſte done by a ſtranger, F N B 59. But the conttary is affirmed by Cook 1 part 54. In Soccage.

Voluntary and negligent waſtes are alike puniſhable. Dyer 281. The Leſſee or Tenant is bound by Law to keep the houſen in as good caſe and plight as they are when he comes to them; and if he doth not ſo, but ſuffer any part of it by his negligence to grow ruinous; this is waſte for which the Leſſor may ſue the Leſſee in this Action, Broo Waſte 130. In reſpect of the thing in which the wrong is pretended to be done.

But for the further opening of this point, take theſe things, In Houſes. Sect. 5.

1 To ſuffer it to decay, is waſte; albeit there be no Timber upon the thing to repair it; for the Tenant muſt procure timber at his own charge.

2 To proſtrate, abate or break down any of the houſen, either the whole or part (that is) any of the principal walls, or walls of partitions in chambers; or elſe; whether they be of ſtone or mud, is waſte. Broo Waſte 26. Kelw 37 10 H 725 F N B 59. And yet to throw down the poſts or frame of a houſe remaining of an old building, or ſet up for a new building, it ſeemes is no waſte, Broo Waſte 107.

3 If the houſe be uncovered by tempeſt, and the Tenant do not repair it in convenient time, this is waſte. Cook 1 part 53

4 To ſuffer the houſe to be burnt by negligence or miſchance, is waſte. Cook 1 part 53

5 If the houſe be ruinous when the Tenant comes firſt into it, and hee pull it downe, and do not build it up againe, this is waſte. Cook 1 part 53

6 It is waſte in the Tenant (as ſome ſay) to build up a new houſe, though with timber of his own; yet others doubt of this: And if after it be new builded the Tenant ſuffer the houſe to decay, this is another waſte. And yet to pull down an old houſe ready to fall, and to ſet up another with his own charge of the ſame length and breadth, is in the Tenant no waſte. So neither to ſet up a houſe with his own timber that was blown down by wind or tempeſt, though it be leſſer then the former houſe. Broo Waſte 39 93 Cook 1 part 53 12 H 4 6 11 Ed 2 Statham.

7 To take away, pull off, or break downe the Wainſcots, Doors, Windowes, Benches, Furnaces, or any other the inſeparable incidents of the houſe, being ſet up and faſtned by the Leſſor or Leſſee, or whomſoever, is waſte. Cook 4 94 1 part of his Inſt 53

8 To ſuffer the houſes, covered at the time of the tenants taking to it, to be uncovered ſo long, as that thereby the principal pieces of timber of the houſe (viz.) the Beames, Rafters, Sparres, Planchers, &c do putrifie and rot, is waſte. But the not covering of a new frame of building uncovered when the tenant comes to it, is not waſte. And if it be uncovered when the tenant comes to it, though by this meanes meanes the houſe fall down, it is no waſte: and if the uncovering do not produce the effect of marring the timber, this is not a waſte. Cook 1 part 53 Broo Waſte 69 455 82. 12 H 4 4. 10 H 7 2. F N B 59.

9. If the houſe be proſtrate by tempeſts, floods, or burnt by lightning, or be proſtrate by enemies, without any default or power to prevent it in the Tenant; or if at his coming into it, it be ſo ruinous, that it cannot be kept up, and it fall down; and the Tenant build it up again with ſuch materials as remaine, and other timber of his own; or (as ſome ſay) the timber upon the ground, and build it no larger then it was, this is no waſte. Cook 1 part 53, 54 Broo Waſte 117 82. Yet I doubt of the laſt, for he is not in theſe caſes bound to repaire it, nor are theſe ſpoiles any ſuch waſte, for which the Tenant is at all puniſhable. Cook 10 139 11 41 4 64 F N B 59 Broo. Waſte 19 130 Dyer 36 F N B 60 20 H 7 2.

In Trees and Woods. The Tenant is to preſerve the Timber Trees on the Land, and if he make ſpoyle in them, this is waſte; for which he in reverſion ſhall have this remedy.

But for the further opening of this point take theſe things.

1 To cut or break down or root up Trees that are or may be timber; as Oak, Aſh, which are timber in all Countries; or other trees in ſome Countries where Timber is ſcarce: Elme whether young or old, above or under twenty yeares of age, to ſell, build a new houſe or a new roome, or to any other purpoſe then towards the neceſſary repair of the old houſe or houſing, being on the land at the time of the Leaſe, and in decay by age or tempeſt, is Waſte. 15 H 7 21 Kelw. 95 11 H 4 11 12 H 7 1 Dyer 314 11 H 6 1 F N B 99 7 H 6 40 Cook 1 part 53.

2 To cut down timber for reparations at unſeaſonable times that it dye; or to cut it, and after to ſell it, or employ it to any other uſe, is waſte: And though after ſale he buy it again, and imploy it to reparations; yet it is ſaid this wil not help the caſe. 12 Ed 3 Waſte 28

3 Some ſay, To cut downe timber to build new houſes, broken or burnt down by fire, water, enemies, or the like hand of God, is waſte; becauſe he is not bound to repaire it; nor is it any waſte in the Tenant. Dyer 36 Perk. 738. It hath been ſaid, That if a Tenant cut down timber-trees, before there is need of reparations, and keep them till the timber be ſomewhat ſeaſonable; or to cut down more then enough, ſo he keep it for that uſe, and do not miſ-imploy it, is no waſte. M 37 & 38 Eliz. per curiam. But it ſeems the contrary hath been adjudged. M 39 40 Eliz. Com. B. in Gorges caſe. But if an apparant need appear, it may be cut a little before it be uſed. Cook 1 139 11 48 664 F N B 59.

4 So it is ſaid, That to cut down timber for neceſſary reparations, and then to ſell it and uſe his own, or ſo much thereof for reparations, or repair the houſes with the money, is waſte, 12 Ed 3 Waſte 20. I doubt this firſt caſe. Cook 1 part 53.

5 To cut down timber to repaire the houſes decayed by the Tenants default, it is waſte, and a double waſte, F N B 59. Cook 1 53. If a houſe be ruinous at the time of a Leaſe, and after fall, and the Tenant cut down timber to repaire it; this is no waſt Cook 1 part 54.

6 To cut young timber trees to repair, when there is enough of fitter timber beſides, is waſte, 11 H 6 1 13 H 7 21 F N B 60.

7 To cut down all the under woods in a wood where no high-woods are growing amongſt it, is waſte, Broo. chap. 411. So, to cut down ſuch a wood, and then to ſuffer Cattel to crop it, being newly felled, and kill it, or to root and ſtub it up, this is waſte, F N B 59 Cook 1 53.

8 To cut down timber trees for fire-boot and hedg-boot, when there is enough other boot, is waſte, per two Juſtices. P. 7 Jac. B. R.

9 To cut down ſuch trees for fire, as are not fit for fire, being timber, and only hollow and dry at the top, is ſaid to be waſte: but if they be hollow and dry and dead, that they bear not fruit nor leaves in Summer; if then the Tenant cut down ſuch trees for fire-boot this is not waſte. And by this, it ſeems, otherwiſe they are not to be cut down for fire-boot, Dyer 332 Cook 1 part 53. And yet trees that will never be fit for timber (it ſeems) may be cut for that uſe, 11 H 6 1.

10. If a man leaſe his land wherein is an open Mine, to another, with all the Mines in it, for years; and the Leſſee cut timber trees upon the land, to uphold the earth about the Mines, to keep it from falling; it ſeems this is no waſte, Paſch 17 Jac Cook B.

11. To cut down more fire-boot, hay-boot, hedg-boot and houſe-boot (to keep it as he found it) than is neceſſary; or to cut down the green wood, when there is ſufficient dry and dead wood, is waſte, Broo Waſte 130 F N B 59 Cook 1 part 53 88.

12. It is ſaid, That to cut down Willows, Beech, Birch, Maple, or Aſpe that grow in the ſight and view of a Manor-Houſe, or are a ſafeguard to it, is waſte, 40 Edw 3 25 Cook 1 part 53.

13. To cut great Hazles in a Wood and Country, where is no other wood, may be (as ſome ſay) waſte, 40 Edw 3 25 Broo Waſte 21.

14. To ſhroud timber trees at ſeaſonable times; to cut down, or fell Willow, or other trees that will not be timber, dead wood, or under wood, for fire, is no waſte, F N B 59 60.

15. To fell Copices and under-woods, to fell every five, ten, or twenty years, as the courſe of the Country is, and Tenants have been uſed to do, is no waſte, 10 H 7 2 F N B 59 60 11 H 6 1.

16. To cut or moote Thorns or Buſhes growing in a ground for the bettering of it, is no waſte, Dyer 37 43. So to cut up black-thorn to burn; though it be in a Champion Country, where fuel is ſcarce, M 8 Jac Curia. And yet it is ſaid, it may be waſte, to cut white-thorn in ſuch a country; unleſs it be for reparations. So to ſuffer it to be deſtroyed. So it is ſaid by ſome, That to cut down, or grub up quick-ſet hedges in a country where fuel is ſcarce, may be waſte, Broo Treſp 136 134 411 Cook 1 part, folio 53. for that may be waſte in a field-country, that is not waſte in a wood-land country. The breaking of a hedge in other caſes, is no waſte, Broo Waſte, 34 See Brownl 1 part 2 part 46 167. Thorns.

To cut down Fruit-trees, Apple-trees, or Pear-trees, or Plum-trees, or the like, growing in an Orchard or Garden; though it be for reparations, is waſte. So to take away, cut, or pull up ſuch trees half broken by the wind, or otherwiſe, whiles they do yet bear fruit, or the young ſprings of them that may bear fruit, is waſte, 10 H 7 2 48 Edw 3 44 Broo Waſte 19. And yet it is no waſte to cut, or deſtroy ſuch fruit-trees growing in the fields, out of an Orchard or Garden, nor in an Orchard and Garden when they are utterly ſubverted and fruitleſs, Broo Waſte 82 39 Cook 1 part 53. In Gardens or Orchards.

To dig or eare up the ground, to make gutters or gripes to the hurt of the ground, may be waſte. So to eare up ancient deep Meadow, not ploughed in any mans memory; grub up wood and turn it into earable, or turn earable into a Wood, is waſte, Dyer 37 Cook 1 p. 53. But to dig or gripe a foggie Meadow, for the bettering of it, is no waſte: Or to let ones earable, or other ground lye freſh; or let Thorns or Weeds over-grow it; or to plough up ground that hath been ploughed within the memory of man; or that is ſometimes earable, and ſometimes Meadow; or ſometimes Meadow, and ſometimes Paſture; this is no waſte, Dyer 361 F N B 59 2 H 6. 11 Hill 8 Jac B R Treſhams caſe. If the Tenant being bound to repair the Banks, for lack hereof ſuffer the water to overflow, and much to hurt the ground; this may be waſte: But if the over-flowing be by ſome extraordinary flood, contra, Cook 10 139 1 part 53. Inlands.

If the Tenant ſhall open, or dig new Quarrs for Coal, Stone, Brick, Metal, Gravel, Lime, Clay, or the like; this is waſte; unleſs there be ſpecial words in his Leaſe, to warrant it: But it is no waſte for the Tenant to dig forwards, in an old Mine that was open before. And if a Leaſe be made with the Mines; yet if the Leſſee open any other Mines, than what was open before; this is a waſte: But if no Mine were opened before; then it is ſaid the Leſſee may open the Mines, and not do waſte, Cook 5 12. 1 part 53 54. It is no waſte to dig the Land for Gravel, and ſuch like neceſſaries for reparations, Cook 1 part 53 54. To ſow earable ground to Woad, is ſaid to be waſte; becauſe it will bear no corn the next year; Treſham's caſe. To ſuffer earable to be Mines drowned, ſo that it turn to clay; or to ſuffer Medows to be drowned, ſo that it turn to be hereby Ruſhie, and little worth, may be waſte, 20 Hen 6 1 Brownl 1 part 241.

In Parks or other things.

To ſuffer the Walls, or Pale of a Park to be ſo decayed, that it want incloſure, that the Deer are, or may be diſperſed, may be a waſte, Broo 130 Cook 1 part 53. So to kill or deſtroy all the Fiſh in a Pond, may be waſte, 6 R 2 Statham. So to take ſo many young out of a Pigeon-houſe, Warren, Park, Vivarie, Eſtagnes, or the like, not maintaining that ſtore that was there when the Tenant came firſt, may be a waſte, Cook 1 part 53. It is ſaid, That to ſuffer a mud-wall, thatched, or tyled, to be uncovered, whereby it periſh and fall, is a waſte. Bro Waſte 39. But if it be uncovered when the Tenant comes to it, it is ſaid to be no waſte; and ſo though he take it down, Bro Waſte 94 Cook 1 part 53. But none of theſe things will be waſte in a Tenant, where he doth them by the leave or command of the Landlord, Dyer 37 Kelw 37. 8 H 8 5. nor when his Leaſe is without impeachment of waſte.

In reſpect of the Caſe. Sect. 6.

If one demiſe a Cloſe, Habendum the Cloſe with the Trees; and the Leſſee cut the Trees, this is a Waſte: for the Trees do not paſs by the Habendum, being not in the premiſes of the Deed, Paſch 7 Jac Co B Sir Francis Leakes caſe.

If one make a Leaſe for years or life, by words of Demiſe and Grant of a Cloſe with all the Timber-trees except Oaks, and the Leſſee cut the trees that are not Oaks, this is waſte, Dyer 375 314 Cook 11 48. If the Leſſor make his Leaſe to the Leſſee excepting the Trees, and the Leſſee cut the trees; in this caſe the Leſſor muſt have an Action of Treſpas for the Wrong, and not an action of Waſte: for the Trees were not let, Dyer 19 Purfrayes caſe M 9 Jac Goldſb 1 pl 1. If the Leſſor be bound to repair; and the Leſſee do it himſelf; this is not waſte, Cook 1 part 54. If the Leſſee cut down timber, or pull down houſes, and the Leſſor take it away, yet the action lyeth againſt the Leſſee for this, Cook 4 64 11 48. So, if a Leſſee cut timber for Repaire, and ſell it, and then buy it again and repair the Houſes with it, yet the Action will lie for the cutting of it, Broo 112. If the Leſſee have covenanted not to do waſte, and he do waſte; yet the Leſſor may have this Action, and remedy upon his Covenant alſo, M 9 Jac. Coventries caſe. If the Leſſor Covenant with the Leſſee that he ſhall take as much timber as he will, and he cut Timber: it ſeems either this is no waſte, or the Covenant may be pleaded by way of Rebutter, Purfrayes caſe, M 9 Jac. If the Leſſor and Leſſee together, do ſuch an act as is waſte, no action will lie for this. So if the Leſſor himſelf do the thing, Dyer 37 Kelw 37 Perk 182 203. So, if the Leſſee do it by leave or warrant from the Leſſor, 18 H 8 5. If the Leſſee do any thing upon the Land, which is a waſte, before the Leaſe begin, it ſeems this is not actionable, Perk Sect 602. If the ruine be cauſed by the extraordinary hand of God, as by Fire, Wind, or Water; this Action will not lie for this, Cook 64 Broo Waſte 31

Treſpaſſe.

If the Leaſe be made without impeachment of waſte, the Leſſee cannot do waſte.

But for the opening of this clauſe, Without Impeachment of Waſte, and to ſhew the Law herein, theſe things are to be known.

Without Impeachment of Waſte, How it ſhall be taken. Sect. 7.

1. An Impeachment of Waſte, doth ſignifie a reſtraint from committing of Waſte in Lands or Tenements: And without Impeachment, doth ſignifie a liberty to do waſte, and an eſtate without any ſuch reſtraint, Cook 11 82.

2. Theſe, or the like words inſerted into the Deed, are ſaid to be annexed to the Eſtate, do change the quality of the Eſtate, and make the Tenant, herein, in the nature of a Tenant in taile; and it addeth a priviledge thereunto, and they give the Leſſee a power and intereſt to make waſte, and to diſpoſe the thing to his own uſe; ſo that now he hath a general property in that thing wherein before he had only a ſpecial property; ſo that now he may cut down Trees, or pull down Houſes, and then; or if they be thrown or cut down by others, he may take the Wood and Timber to himſelf: And if the Leſſor ſue this Action for this waſte, the Tenant may bar him with this clauſe, Cook 11 81 2 81 1 14 Marlb chap 23 Plow 135 141 Cook 6 63.

3. But it muſt be thoſe very words, or of the like ſenſe: For if the words be without without Impeachment of waſte by any Writ of waſte; theſe words are not ſo large, they do not give ſuch a power to the Tenant, nor alter the Property, but only diſcharge the Action; ſo that the Landlord can bring no Action againſt the Tenant for the waſte done. Dyer 204 Cook 11 82 83.

4. The words muſt be inſerted in the ſame Deed whereby the Eſtate is made, or another Deed made at the ſame time; for if he make his Leaſe without this Clauſe, and after willeth that the Leſſee ſhall hold without Impeachment of waſte, it is ſaid, theſe words work nothing to diſcharge Action or give an Intereſt, Cook 11 82 83 Plow 556 557.

5. And yet if A make a Leaſe for years to B, and among other Covenants doth inſert this. And the ſaid A doth for him and his heirs covenant with B that he, his executors and aſſignes, ſhall at all times during the ſaid term, fell, cut down, all the wood, trees and hedges growing upon the land, and the ſame carry away and convert to his own uſe, without any let of the Leſſor, his heirs or aſſignes; it is thought that theſe words will amount to this clauſe, and diſcharge the Leſſee; And this was the Opinion of divers Councellors, M. 10 Car. If a Leaſe be made with this clauſe, Proviſo, quod non proſternet domus voluntarie; if in this caſe the Leſſee throw down any of the houſes, it will be waſte, Plow. 153. 9 Hen. 6. 35. So if one make a Leaſe for life, and by Deed grant, that if any waſte be done, it ſhall be redreſſed by neighbours, and not by Suit or Plea; yet an Action of waſte will lye, Cook 1 part 53.

6. This priviledge where it is, may be loſt; for it is annexed only to privity of Eſtate. And therefore if one that hath this priviledge annexed to his Eſtate, agree to change his Eſtate, the priviledge is gone. And therefore, if he that hath a Leaſe for years, with this clauſe in his Deed, accept of a Deed of confirmatiom of his Eſtate, without this clauſe: Or if a Leaſe be made to a man for anothers life, with this clauſe, the remainder to him for his own life without this clauſe; the priviledge by the extinguiſhment of the eſtate is gone. So if Tenant in tayle, after poſſibility of iſſue extinct (which holdeth after this manner) granteth away his eſtate to another; by this the priviledge is gone, Cook 11. 83. And yet it is held, if Leſſee for years, having this clauſe in his Leaſe, do aſſign over his term, to a ſtranger, that this priviledge is not gone; but ſhall go to the Aſſignee, and the Aſſignee of the Aſſignee in infinitum; for the Tenant in taile hath only a perſonal priviledge, or priviledge in Law: but this is an actual priviledge, annexed by the Leſſor to the Eſtate; and ſhall go with it. And of this opinion were divers Councellors in Mich. Term 10 Car.

A man makes a Feoffment to the uſe of himſelf and his wife, et alterius eorum diutius viventis abſque impetitione vaſti durantibus vitis ipſorum; in this caſe if the husband die, the wife ſhall hold the land without Impeachment of waſte, Goldſb. 31. pl. 5.

Some have ſaid, That this Action lyeth not, except the damage come to ſix-pence; and that the Plaintiff cannot have Judgement where the waſte comes but to twelve-pence; others where it comes but to three-pence; for de minimis non curat Lex. And yet Cook in his 1. part of his Inſt. f. 54. ſaith, That waſte done in trees, to the value of three ſhillings four-pence, is adjudged waſte; and that many little waſtes may make up a Value. And it ſeems, by the common practice, it will lye for any value; only the Plaintiff muſt be ſure to declare for enough; otherwiſe the Declaration is not good. But if ſo he declare: then if the Jury find but one peny damage, it is good, Broo. Waſte 20. 70. 74. Plow. 329. 9. H. 6. 66. 38. H. 8. 7. Value.

If Tenant in tayle bring this Action, and hanging the Action, the Eſtate in taile determine, and the Plaintiffe become Tenant in tail after poſſibility of iſſue extinct: hereby the action of Waſte is gone. So if the Tenant or he in Reverſion die, the Action is gone; and if the Suit were begun, it muſt abate. So, if after the waſte is done the Reverſion be put out of that eſtate, wherein it was, as if it be granted away to a ſtranger; and in this caſe the taking of it back again will not revive the Action. If he that hath the Reverſion grant it to the uſe of himſelf, and his wife, and his heirs; the waſte in theſe caſes is diſ-puniſhable, Cook 1 part 53. By what means this Action may be determined, or not. ſect. 8.

The Pleas to this Action may be either general or ſpecial; the general Plea is Nul waſte fait. The ſpecial Pleas are many, either in a way of Juſtification, or Excuſe, as the Pleas: What ſhall be ſaid a good Plea in this Action, or not.

Sect. 9. the caſe is. It is a good Plea, if the waſte be laid to be in not reparations; that it was repaired before the Action brought: This muſt be pleaded ſpecially. But to ſay, it was repaired after the action was brought, is no good Plea, Cook 5. 119. 13. H. 7. 20. Cook 4. 64. 11. 48. So it is a good Plea to any waſte, that the Leſſor gave authority to do it, Kelw. 37. Broo. Done 13. It is no good Plea to ſay, That the Plaintiff did covenant to deliver Timber from off the thing to do it, and refuſed; for the Defendant in this caſe, may take it. But if the agreement were, That he ſhould have it from another thing, perhaps the Plea may be good, Broo. Waſte 36. Brownl. 1 part 240. 241.

It is a good Plea to ſay, The Houſe, or Trees, were burnt or ſpoyled with fire, with water, or by wind; that the ruine was cauſed by ſome extraordinary Act of God, Broo. waſte 31. Cook 4. 64. So it is a good Plea to ſay, the houſe fell before the Leaſe; or that the Leaſe is ſurrendered to the Leſſor, and he hath accepted it; or that the Plaintiff hath entred upon the land, and before his entrie there was no waſte done; or that the Plaintiff himſelf did the waſte; or that the houſe was ſo decayed, at the time of the Leaſe, that it could not be upheld; or that the houſe fell with tempeſt, or was burnt; or that the Plaintiff hath granted away his Eſtate, and before the Grant there was no waſte done; or that the Plaintiff hath by good words releaſed it; or that the Leaſe was made without Impeachment of waſte, 12. H. 4. 6. 8. H. 5. 8. Broo. waſte 18. 29. 33. 54. Finches ley 55. But it is no good Plea for the Defendant to ſay, He had nothing in the land at the time of the waſte done, Broo. waſte 22.

It is no good Plea in this action, for cutting down timber, or pulling down the houſe, that the Leſſor took away the timber or materials, Cook. 4. 64. 11. 48. Nor that the Leſſor hath a Covenant from the Leſſee, not to do waſte, Curia M. 9. Jac. in Coventries caſe.

It is not a good Plea, for the Tenant, in an Action of waſte, for cutting Timber, to ſay, That he cut it, and keeps it till there ſhall be need. Adjudg. Gorges verſ. Stanfield, M. 39. 40. Eliz. Cook B. Nor to ſay, He cut for neceſſary reparations; unleſs he ſay withal, That he imployed it to that purpoſe, Dyer 332. And yet no doubt, it may be juſtified to cut it a little before it be uſed, when an occaſion of uſe is apparently at hand.

It is a good Plea, to ſay, He cut it to make Poſts to part Incloſures; if he can withal preſcribe, that there have been alwayes ſuch an Incloſure there, Dyer 332. And in all theſe caſes, upon the general iſſue, the Defendant may give in Evidence, any thing that is no waſte, as by Enemies, Tempeſt, Lightning, or the like. But he cannot give in Evidence, juſtifiable waſte, as to repair the houſe, or the like; nor that which is in excuſe, as, That he repaired it before the Action brought; and ſo for the like, Dyer 276. 212. Cook upon Litt. 283. 12. H. 8. 1. 29. Edw. 3. waſte 30. But now by the late Act of 23. Octob. 1650. Not guilty, or ſome ſuch other general iſſue may be pleaded, and the ſpecial matter may be given in Evidence.

Evidence.

Eſtreupement is ſometimes taken for the Waſte it ſelf, and ſometimes for a Writ in the nature of a Prohibition to forbid the making or doing of any Waſte, F. N. B. 60. 61.

See for this Cook 3 part Inſt. chap. 6.

Of VVood and Trees.

What wood & trees m y be cut, and how. And how they muſt be diſpoſe. Sect. 1

AS to this theſe things are to be known,

1 He that doth fell or cut any Copice or Underwoods, or wood or trees in waſte ground, if it be not above twenty four yeares growth (unleſſe it be in ſome ſpecial caſes) muſt leave ſtanding and unfelled in every acre twelve Standils or ſtorers of Oak, if there be ſo many there, or otherwiſe ſo many of Elme, Aſh, Aſp, or Beech to make them up twelve. And thoſe of ſuch as are like to make timber, and were left the time the wood was cut laſt before, and if there be not ſo many of them, then ſo many others of thoſe that are ſtanding at the time of the fell of the moſt lively trees, and thoſe ſtandils ſo left muſt be preſerved and not cut until they be ten inches ſquare within three foot of the ground, under pain of three ſhillings and four pence for every tree ſo cut and not left before, or not preſerved or cut after; and if the wood be above twenty four yeares growth, then he muſt leave ſtanding twelve great Oaks, or if there be not ſo many, other trees, and theſe muſt afterwards be preſerved and not cut down twenty years after (except it be to repair the Owners houſe, waterworks, garden, Pales of Parks, or the like) under the pain of 6 s 8 d for every tree not ſo left, and being left, not after preſerved. Stat 13 El 25 35 H 8 17.

Standils.

2 He that is Lord or owner of a wood wherein others have common, cannot fell any part of it, (except it be for his own private uſe, (i.) for reparations of his houſe, for fire, or the like) until he hath a fourth part divided from the reſt, and fenced and incloſed incloſed by agreement between him and the Commoners and Tenants, or (if they cannot agree upon the diviſion) by order of two Juſtices of the Peace, and then he may fell the fourth part (but he muſt leave and preſerve the Standils as before) and after that diviſion and felling, the Commoners are to have Common there, but in all the other three parts they muſt take their common as before time, and therein during the Incloſure, the Lord is to have no Common. Stat. 13 El 25 35 H 8 17. Incloſure. Standals. Common.

3 No perſon may convert or imploy to Coal, or other fuel for the making of Iron or Iron metal, any part of any timber tree or Oak, Beech or Aſh, of the breadth of one foot ſquare at the ſtub, growing within fourteen miles of the ſea, or any part of any the great Rivers by which carriage is uſed by boat, nor any other wood or underwoods within twenty two miles of the City of London, and ſome other places (for which ſee the Statute) and Iron mills. Stat 1 El chap 15 23 El chap 5. And for Iron and Iron-mills, ſee Stat 27 El 19. Coal. Iron-Mils.

4 No perſon, nor the Protectors Purveyor himſelfe (unleſſe it be for neceſſary timber for houſes, ſhips and mills) may fell any Oaken trees meet to be barked, where it is worth two ſhillings a Cart load, beſides the charge of barking and pilling, but between the firſt day of April and laſt day of June, under pain of the loſſe of the double value thereof; and if the Protectors Purveyor take any ſuch tree, the Owner may keep back the Bark, Lop and Top thereof. 1 Jacob chap 22. Bark.

5 None may deſtroy any woods, or convert into Tillage or Paſture any wood or underwood, that is two acres or more in quantity, and two furlong diſtant from the houſe of the Owner of the wood, or to which the wood doth belong, under paine of forty ſhillings for every acre. 35 H 8 chap 17 13 El 25.

6 And whoſoever doth cut down any underwoods or Copice of twenty four years growth or under, not only may, but muſt incloſe it, or preſerve it from cattel ſix yeers after: And if it be of the growth of fourteen years, and under twenty foure yeers, he muſt incloſe and preſerve it eight yeers after: and if it be above the growth of twenty four yeers, he muſt encloſe it or preſerve it nine yeears, under pain of 3 s 4 d for every Rood, not ſo incloſed or preſerved. But if it be in a Park where is Game, there he muſt incloſe or preſerve it four years only, and no more under the like pain. But if any ſtranger ſpoile the bounds, he muſt bear the penalty, not the Owner the ſame. 13 El 25 Incloſure.

7 Any perſon may fell and incloſe all their woods and underwoods in any waſte grounds which have been uſed to be incloſed and kept for the maintenance of wood and underwood.

8 For the Aſſize, (i) the bredth and length of fuel (i.) Tal wood, Billet, Faggot, in and about London amd other Townes Corporate and Cities, and who may buy the ſame. See Stat. 7 Ed 6 chap 7 23 El chap 14. Aſſize of wood. Fuel.

If a ſtranger treſpaſs me in my wood or Trees, I may have an Action of treſpaſſe, for which ſee Treſpaſs. If it be my Tenant, there in ſome caſes I may have an Action of waſte (for which ſee Waſte) And if the ſoyle of the wood be mine in proper, there I may have the ſame remedy againſt a treſpaſſer, as if it were in any other ſeveral Cloſe. But if it be in ſuch a wood, wherein other have Common of Paſture, there for any treſpaſſe to the woods in cutting them down, or the like, I may have an action of Treſpaſſe. But if it be in the paſture of a Common wood, I can bring no Action more then another Commoner. Cook 8 138. What remedy a man ſhall have for wrong done in his woods and Trees. Sect. 2. Treſpaſſe. Commoner.

If the Lord have the fourth part of a wood by a due incloſure to himſelf (as above) no Commoner may put in any Cattel there untill five years after the time of incloſure, and then but Calves and yeerling Colts only, until ſix yeers, if the wood were under the age of fourteen yeares, at the laſt fall, or elſe until the age of eight years, if the wood were about twenty four years, under pain to forfeit four pence a Beaſt. But if the Cattel of the Commoner be put in, the Lord can have no Action of Treſpaſſe againſt him; for by the Common Law until this Statute, he that had a wood wherein another had common could not incloſe it. and exclude the Commoner. Cook 8 138 Stat 35 H 8 17 13 El 25.

If a

If a man ſuffer his ſwine to come into ſuch an incloſed wood during the time of the Incloſure of it as above, unringed or unpegged, he ſhall forfeit 4 d for every ſwine 55 H. 8. 9.

If a man do purpoſely burn a heap or pile of wood, or bark any Apple, Pear, or other fruit trees, the owner ſhall recover trebble damages in an action of Treſpaſſe, and he that doth it, looſe 10 l. to the Protector. Stat. 37 H. 6. chap. 6.

If any cut or take away any hedge, pales, rails or fence, cut or ſpoile any woods or underwoods, or dig or take up any fruit trees, beſides that the party grieved may have an Action of Treſpaſſe, he may complain to a Juſtice of Peace, and he muſt compel the Offendor to make the party offended an amends, or elſe the Delinquent muſt be whipped. Stat. 43 Eliz. chap. 7.

For the Woods and Forreſts. See Stat. 1 Ed. 3. 2. 9 H. 3. 9. 12. 13. 22. Ed. 4 7. Cook 8. 36.

Tree

For Trees theſe things are to be known,

1 The property of the Trees upon the ground of a Leſſee for years or life be partly in him that hath fee, for the body of the timber trees ſtanding and fallen are his, but the boughs and fruit are the Tenants, and the trees, when dead, for fireboot, alſo ſo much of the timber as is neceſſary for houſe-boot, plow-boot, &c. The bodies of trees not timber, the Leſſee may cut down and burn alſo. See Waſte Sect. 5. Treſpaſſe Sect. 18. Property.

2 If one that is Leſſee for years have a Leaſe without impeachment of Waſte, here the trees fallen, and ſtanding are the Tenants or Leſſees, and not the Leſſors. See Waſte. See Eſtates for years, and Houſe-boot, &c.

CHAP. CLXIX.

Of Wayes and Bridges, and Women.

Way, what.

A Way is a paſſage for men to travel in. And there be three kinds of wayes.

The Kinds.

1 A foot-way; and this was the firſt way.

2 A foot and horſe way, and this is commonly called a pack and a prime, becauſe it is both a foot way, which is the firſt and Prime way, and a pack and drift way alſo, which doth contain the other two. And alſo 3. A Cart-way; and this is it which in the Law Books is called Chimin. And from hence doth come the word Chiminage, which doth ſignifie a Toll due by Cuſtome for the having of a way through a Forreſt (which is ſometimes in ancient Records called Pedagium.) And this way alſo is twofold.

Chiminage, what.

Pedagium. what.

Sect. 1.

1 Publick, the which is called the Lord Protectors high-way, or the Royal way, which is the way that leadeth from one Village to another, and to Market Townes; this is a way for all men, and wherein every man ought to paſſe to and fro without let; which is called the Lord Protectors high-way, becauſe the Lord Protector hath at all times paſſage in it for himſelf and all his people, and he may puniſh all the Nuſances and abuſes done in it.

2. Private, and then it is either vicinalis; (i.) That which doth belong to a Village or Town, or that which is in, or leadeth to or from a Village, or doth ſerve for a Village, to lead to the high-way, Church,

Chuch, Market, field, or the like. And this way is called, Common. 2 Particular. And this way is where one or more, hath by grant or Preſcription, through another mans ground, either from one cloſe to another, or from his houſe into the field, high-way or the like: And this way is ſometimes appendant (that is) adjoyning to ſome other thing, as houſe or land, and appertaining thereunto; as if a man hire a cloſe or paſture, and hath a Covenant for ingreſſe and egreſſe to and from the ſaid cloſe, through the ground of ſome other man, through which otherwiſe he might not paſſe: or it may be that which is called Real, which is when a man purchaſeth a way through the ground of another man, for ſuch as do, or ſhall dwell in ſuch a houſe, or for ſuch as ſhall be owners of ſuch a Manor for ever; Or it is in groſſe (i.) Such a way as a man doth hold principally and ſolely by it ſelf: As where one doth Covenant for a way through the ground of another man for himſelf and his heires. So that there are high-wayes, common-wayes, and private wayes. Terms of the Law. Cook upon Litt 56. *Kytch.fol.*137.35.

As touching the Lord Protectors High-way, theſe things are to bee knowne, 2 The nature of wayes, and the intereſt of the Protector and Subject in the High wayes.

1 That the Protector hath not, nor claimeth more therein but the free paſſage of him and his ſubjects as an eaſment, the which if any man do deny or interrupt them in, he may be puniſhed for it.

2 That the ſubject hath not, nor claimeth more therein of right, but a liberty and freedom for his travel and paſſage, the which he may juſtifie by Preſcription, and no man can deny it to him.

3 The ſubject can make no other uſe of it but for his travel, and therefore he may not build houſes or lay his ſoyle or blocks upon it, but he will be puniſhable for it, nor will a Preſcription in this caſe enable him ſo to do Preſcription.

4 The ſoil and the freehold of the ſame and all the profits thereof, as trees, graſſe, and the like, do belong to the Lord or Owner of the Soil or Manor, and not to the L. Protector or his Subjects in general, nor to him whoſe ground is next adjoyning: And therefore the Lord or owner of the ſoyle may lay the Hills there, or do any thing for the bettering of the high-way; or he may take the profits, the Trees, Mines or the like, ſo as he do not prejudice the way thereby; for this he may not do, albeit he pretend a preſcription for it. And the Franchiſe of the high-way doth belong to the Lord of the ſoil, and he ſhall have a Purpreſture. And hence it is that by the Common Law the Lord or Owner of the Soil, is bound to cut down the trees and buſhes therein that do offend. And hence it was that if one had given a Manor, rendring rent, and within this Manor there had been a great ſtreet, that the Donor might have diſtrained for his rent in this ſtreet, for it was reputed within the Fee, until the Statute of Marlbridg came, which did forbid the taking of a diſtreſſe in the high way; and yet in caſes where the high-way doth go through a mans ſeveral grounds, the Owner of the ground and not the Lord of the Manor ſhall have the trees and profits of the high-way. Inter Cautrel & Church, Hillar. 42. *Eliz. Rot.*473. Broo. Nuſance 28 *H.*7.5. Diſtreſs. Trees.

And any man (as it ſeemes) by Preſcription may have Common of paſture and feeding for his Cattel in the high-way, albeit the ſoile belong to another. Common.

8. The Inhabitants of a Pariſh by the Common-Law are to Repair all the High-wayes of the Pariſh, unleſs Preſcription do binde any other to it. March 26.

3 Where a way may be by preſcription: And how, and in what form, and by what perſon the preſcription ought to be made and alleaged. Preſcription. Sect. 2.

Every man by the Common-law may Preſcribe to paſs and repaſs in the Lord Protectors High-way; and by preſcription men may have a private way: and therefore the Inhabitants of a Village, being but Tenants at will, may preſcribe to have a way to Church, or to Market, or into their Fields; and if they ſay, that the Cuſtom and Uſage of the Village of D, hath been time out of minde, that the Inhabitants of the ſame Village have had a way over ſuch a Ground or Cloſe, this is good. Alſo, one or ſome few men, may preſcribe to have a way to his Field or Cloſe, through another mans Cloſe. And in theſe caſes it is held, men may preſcribe to have a way through a Church or Church-yard, and therefore much more through a common houſe, or through an Orchard or Garden. But in all theſe caſes when a man is to make or ſet out his title by his preſcription, he muſt take care how he doth preſcribe; viz. By what Perſons, and in whoſe Names to make the preſcription, and to ſet forth the particulars, what way he doth claim, and which way it is to go: As if a man claim a way from his houſe, to ſuch a Cloſe called B, he muſt ſet forth what way, whether Horſe or Foot way he claimeth, and by and through what places his way is to go, or otherwiſe his pleading will be faulty, Dyer 71. 18. Edw. 4. 3. Broo. preſcript. 76. Cook 6. 60. 18. Edw. 4. 8. Broo. preſcript. 91. & 76.

4 What ſhall be ſaid a Diſturbance. And the remedy for a wrong or Diſturbance in a publick or private way.

To erect a Houſe, or Wall upon the High-way, to ſet up a Houſe of Office, to lay Soyl or Carrion in or upon the high-way, if it be an annoyance to the Traveller; to dig a ditch athwart the way, or any way to ſtraiten and leſſen the way, not to ſcour the ditches, but to ſuffer them to fill, that the water doth over-flow into the way, or otherwiſe not to repair but to ſuffer the way to be decayed; all theſe, and ſuch like things, in caſe of the Lord Protectors high-way, are diſturbances, and wrongs to the Lord Protector and his Subjects. By the Common Law and Cuſtom of England, no Carrier or other man ought to draw or carry above 2000 weight, and with a Waggon having but two wheels and but four horſes, and he that doth draw more and hurt the wayes, may be fined and impriſoned for it. And now by the new Law, if he draw with more than 5 Horſes, or 6 Oxen and a Horſe, it is under pain of 20. s. Ord. April 12. 1644 March 135. pl. 220. For the puniſhment and redreſs whereof, no one man in particular may have an Action of the Caſe, for then every man might have an Action. But this is to be puniſhed and redreſſed moſt properly at a Leet, or the Upper-Bench, or in the Exchequer at the Sheriffs Turn by Preſentment, or at the Seſſions by Indictment; in which caſe any Subject that will, may be a proſecutor in the Lord Protectors Name: Or if the common Nuſance in this caſe be in erecting, any man may proſecute the thing erected. If the fault be in not repairing, the party that ought to repair, muſt be puniſhed: as, if it be the Inhabitants of the Pariſh that ſhould repair, and they do not, they muſt be puniſhed: and if any man be bound by his Tenure or otherwiſe to repair, and do not, he is to be puniſhed for it; and yet the Lord of the Soyl may have a private Action againſt a man that ſhall dig in the ſoyle of the Lord Protectors high-way: Alſo if any man in particular ſhall meet with any ſpecial harm by the publick Nuſance, as if a man lay a tree, or dig a pit in the high-way, and my Horſe ſtumble at it and hurt me, or himſelf thereby, albeit there be a great deal of room beſides in the high-way; in this caſe he may have a ſpecial action of the caſe, Agreed in Sir Edward Duncombes caſe, Trin. 10. B. R But if the high-way lead through a Corn-field, or ſuch like place, and a man hath land on both ſides, and he incloſe on both ſides leaving the way broader than it was before, this ſtraiting of the way in this caſe is not puniſhable: And yet in this caſe of a common field, if the high-way lying in it be ill for travelling, the Paſſengers may go into the land adjoyning, and if the next land be deep, into the next to that, and if the land be incloſed, and the way deep, he may break the incloſure, and go on the other ſide, Cook 9. 113. 3. 73. 27. H. 8. 27. 13. H. 8. 16. Cook upon Litt. 56. 27. *Broo. Action of the Caſe.

Tenure.

Action of the Caſe.

The ſame things for the moſt part that are Diſturbances to a man in the Protectors high-way, are Diſturbances to men in other wayes, but they are not to have the ſame Remedy; for if the Inhabitants of a Village have a way to their Church, or otherwiſe, therwiſe, and they are diſturbed by any means that they cannot uſe their way as formerly they have done; in this caſe every man of them may have an Action of the Caſe againſt the diſturber, as every Commoner may have againſt a Stranger, that doth diſturbe them in their Common: for otherwiſe they were without Remedy; for they cannot puniſh this wrong in a Leet: and if any one, or more men have a private way to a Cloſe, &c. and another diſturbe him in it, he is to have an Action of the Caſe, or in ſome caſes an Aſſiſe of Nuſance: Or if his way be ſtopped, he may open it, or go beſides it; and therefore in an Action of Treſpaſs for breaking of ones Cloſe, the Defendant pleaded, That time out of mind he hath had a way through it, and that the Plantiff being owner of the land hath plowed it, and ſtopped the way with thorns, whereby the Defendant being barred of his ancient way, went beſides it upon the land adjoyning to his way. And this was adjudged a good Plea in Horn and Winſlades caſe, M. 6. Jac B. R. But in theſe things ſome take Differences, and ſay, Where a man hath the Freehold of the thing whereto the way is appendant, or appurtenant, there he muſt have an Aſſiſe, and where not, an Action of the Caſe: And where the way is wholly ſtopped, there the party grieved ſhall have an Aſſiſe; but where it is but ſtraitned only, there an Action of the Caſe: and where the ſtopping is by the Ter-tenant an Aſſiſe lyeth, but when it is by a ſtranger, an Action of the Caſe lyeth: and where one doth not repair ſo that I cannot paſs, there I muſt have an Action of the Caſe, but where he doth erect or levy any Nuſans in it, I muſt have an Aſſiſe, F. N. B. 183. 184. Br Nuſans 13. Dyer 250. Cook 5. 73. 27. H. 8. 27. 14. H. 8. 31.

Action of the Caſe.

Treſpaſſe.

Amongſt Copy-holders, who can have no Aſſiſe nor Action of the Caſe for wrong done in their wayes, it is uſual to enquire at their Courts, and to pain the parties that do wrong, and to Aſſeſs the pain, for in this caſe they may do ſo, becauſe they have no other remedy, Kytch. 35.

Sect. 3.

All men that have Ditches adjoyning to the high-wayes, are bound to cleanſe them, though there be no Preſcription againſt them for it; (But for the Ditches that do not adjoyn, thoſe they are not bound to cleanſe, unleſs there can be alledged ſome Preſcription againſt them in it.) And it ſeems to me by the ſame Reaſon, that thoſe that have trees, whoſe boughs do over-hang and annoy the high-wayes, are bound to lop them; yet the Opinion of Richil is contrary, in 8. Hen. 7. 5. But now by the Statutes, they are bound to ſcour their Ditches, and cut their Trees and Buſhes, under pain of ten ſhillings for every default, 8. Hen. 7. 5.

5. Of Amendment of Wayes and Bridges. And how it ſhall be.

Preſcription.

The Conſtables and Church-wardens of every Pariſh, with ſome of the Pariſhioners muſt upon Eaſter tueſday or wedneſday, yearly appoint and chooſe Surveyors for that year for amending the high-wayes: thoſe Surveyors are to ſee to the amendment of the wayes, and for that end to require the ayd and help of the neighbourhood, according to the Statutes, which ſee at large, 2. & 3. Ph. & M. cap. 8. 18. Eliz. chap. 9 3. Jac. cap. 19.

Surveyors.

But now by a new Additional Law, made by the Lord Protector and his Council, 31 March 1654. There is a further Proviſion for the Repair of the high-wayes. The Heads whereof are theſe:

1. That two, or more of every Pariſh that have 20.l. a year, or 100.l. in Goods, muſt be choſen yearly in every Pariſh the firſt tueſday after the 25 of March for Surveyors.

2. They are to be ſworn before a Juſtice of Peace.

3. They muſt look to, and amend all the High-wayes and Bridges in the Countries, Streets, and Pavements of Towns, and reforme Nuſances therein.

4. They may with conſent of one Juſtice, make and levy any Rate not exceeding twelve pence a pound upon the Inhabitants of the Pariſh to amend the high-way.

5. With this Money they may hire men and Plowes and amend the High-wayes, &c.

6. Take Materials in any mans Earable or Paſture.

7. Force men to ſcour their Ditches, turn their Waters, &c.

8. If the Pariſh be Poor and not able to do it, it ſhall have help from other Pariſhes.

9. If any thing be given to the Repair of High-wayes and miſ-imployed, the Juſtices at their Quarter Seſſions may order it.

10. Theſe Surveyors may ſeize and keep every Horſe, or Mare, above 5 in a Plow, or Horſe, Ox, that is above 6 Oxen and one Mare in a Plow or Cart that paſſeth through the Town, and keep it 7 dayes till the Owner pay twenty ſhillings a Horſe, Mare, or Ox above the ſame number; and if the Owner will not pay it, he may ſell the ſame, and pay the twenty ſhillings, and give the Owner the reſt.

By-lawes. 11. The Pariſh may alſo make By-laws for their High-wayes, and being confirmed at the Quarter Seſſions muſt be obeyed.

12. All the Fines and Forfeitures by this Law, and the former Laws, are to go, and be imployed by theſe Officers towards the Repair of the High-wayes. But for all theſe things, ſee them at large in my Juſtice of Peace Office, the Third Edition.

By the Ancient Common-Lawes, Villages are bound to Repair their High-wayes, and may be puniſhed for their Decay; and if any do break down, ſtraiten, corrupt, or mar the High-wayes, he is puniſhable in the Kings Bench, or before Juſtices of the Peace, Oyer and Terminer, Leet, or the like, 27. Aſſ. 63. Cromp. jur. 76.

So all Purpreſtures or Nuſances made upon the Protectors high-way by Land or Water, to the damage of the Protector and his people, is unpuniſhable there. idem. And he that hath land adjoyning to any high-way, by the common-law (before any ſtatutes) was, and is chargeable of common-right to cleanſe and ſcour the ditches adjoyning to the high-way, *H.*8.7. Broo. Nuſance 28. If a man incloſe the high-way and put it within his own ground, the pariſh is not to repaire it, but he muſt repair it himſelf, Trin. 10 Car. B.R. per curiam in Sir Edw. Duncombes caſe. By an ancient Statute the high-wayes from one Market town to another ought to be enlarged, and all the Buſhes and ſmall Woods neer it to be cut down, that there be no lurking places for Theeves within two hundred foot of either ſide; and if by default of the ſame any Robbery were done, the Lord of the place ought to anſwer it; and if any Murther, the Lord ſhall be fined. And ſo the wayes within the Kings Forreſts and demean lands ought to be enlarged; and by the ſtatute it is provided, That if a Park be taken from the high-way, the Lord ſhall ſet his Wall or Pale two hundred foot from the high-way, or that he may make ſuch a Wall, Dike, or Hedge, that Offenders may not paſs to and fro to do evil, Stat. of Wincheſt. 13. Edw. 1 5.

Bridges. If Bridges be decayed, and any one or more is bound by Preſcription to repair them, he or they ſhall be compelled to it. And for this purpoſe it ſeems is the ancient Writ in the Regiſter called Pontibus Reparandis, which is a Writ directed to the Sheriff, to will him to command one or more to repair a Bridge to whom it belongeth. And for this was the Pontage, which doth ſignifie either a Contribution towards the maintenance or re-edifying of Bridges, or a Toll taken for this purpoſe of all thoſe that paſs over Bridges, Weſt 2 chap. 2. 39. Eliz. 24. Crompt. jur. fol 199 Regiſt. Orig. fol. 153. Four Juſtices, whereof one of the Quorum, may take order for amendment of Bridges in the high-wayes, and compel them to it that ought to mend them: and if it be uncertain who ought to do it, they may ſet a Rate upon the Neighbor-hood, and make them do it, and appoint Surveyors to ſee it done: But no man unleſs it be in this courſe ſhall be diſtrained to make any Bridges, but ſuch as have been uſed to do it, St. 22 *H.*8. 5 9 *H.*3. cap. 15. See For Bridges Cook 2. par. juſt. 697. the Expoſition of theſe Statutes.
